NEW YEAR RESOLUTIONS.

The first day of the New Year is a good day for new resolutions, simply because every day in the year is good for them. Besides, the new year brings a refreshing sense of newness and the question comes naturally to the conscience: "Why not turn over a new leaf in some things?"

Let us outline a set of resolutions for all the readers of the Advocate which has begun the year under such auspicious circumstances.

THE READERS OF THE "OLD RALEIGH"

I will live more constantly in the presence of God. I will talk to Him more frequently. I will read His Word oftener and strive to obey its precepts more implicitly. I will make a sacrifice if necessary to attend if possible every church service. I will not lose sight of the fact that the Sunday-school is one of the great agencies God is using for the salvation of the world, and that I cannot neglect the Sunday-school without helping to imperil the church. I will not leave personal work for the salvation of souls in the hands of the preacher. I will never neglect an opportunity to speak to an ungodly man or woman on the subject of salvation, and I will try to be instrumental in the salvation of at least one sinner during this year. I will erect a family altar in my home. I will be a better member of that home, a kinder friend, a truer citizen and a more Christly Christian. It will be my effort to resent all injuries by heaping coals of fire on the head of the offender, and I will not let the sun go down on my wrath. I will pray every day for my preacher and the Raleigh Christian Advocate.

THE PREACHER

I will fill, if possible, every appointment during the year, not allowing weather or even the prospect of our empty church to keep me away. I will not feed the people on sermons that have been moulding in the "barrell." If I should be compelled to feed them on such food, I will try to compensate by not keeping them too long at the table. I will make every sermon evangelical and will not wait for the protracted meeting to call sinners to repentance. I will know all my members. I will wear a smile and never be discontented. I will visit my people as much as possible, realizing the fact that in order to preach successfully to any people I must know them, and that in order to know them, I must see them often—especially in their homes. I will begin each day by drawing largely on the heavenly storehouse through prayer and the reading of God's Word. I will be an example to my people in Christian Charity. I will not speak slightingly or unkindly of any man or woman. My highest object during this year will be to win sinners to Christ and comfort and strengthen those who are already His. I will be loyal to the church in believing and practicing her doctrines and in supporting her institutions. I appreciate the fact that the church organ is the "Junior Preacher," and for the sake of my own success as well as the intellectual and spiritual welfare of my people, I will see that all the homes in my charge be supplied with the Raleigh Christian Advocate. I will try to secure at least twenty-five new subscribers during the year.

"THE OLD RALEIGH."

I will try to be more of a spiritual blessing to my readers during this year. I will try to avoid having in my columns anything that will not have a tendency to make one better intellectually and morally. I will try to enlarge the reading space for the Family and Children's page, feeling that these departments are the most important in the whole paper. I will try to make a minimum of mistakes in the mailing department relying on those who send us subscribers and renewals to write plainly with pen and ink, giving the full name of the party and the post-office. I will try to write my editorials on my knees, having before me a vision of the over 30,000 readers to whom I am responsible. I will be a paper for the whole church—for the humblest member as well as for the most prominent and influential.

L' ENVOI.

We know not what awaits us this year as a Conference, as a people, as a nation. We know, however, that the God who has watched over us in the past will be with us in the future. By His help we can make 1904 the most successful year we have lived. Let us forget the things that are behind and look forward to the things that are before. No darkness need affright us. No ill omens need swerve us from the path of rectitude and faith. Let us go on.

"Behind him lay the gray Azores,
Behind, the Gates of Hercules;
Before him not the ghost of shores,
Before him only shoreless seas.
The good mate said: "Now must we pray.
For lo! the very stars are gone;
Brave admiral, speak, 'What shall I say?'
Why say, 'Sail on! sail on! and on!'"

THE DIVINITY OF JESUS CHRIST.

The proper divinity of the Lord Jesus Christ is the very soul of the Christian system. It cannot be denied without tearing out the vitals of a living Christianity. Its roots are struck far back in the teaching of the Old Testament. It is inextricably interwoven with the entire fabric of the New. It is at this hour the strength of Christendom. Were it universally ignored or questioned, all the great churches might as well cease their operations, tear down their steeples, and auction their temples for warehouses or shambles.

When, therefore, a Toronto pulpit impugns our Lord's divinity, and a popular paper publishes the specious reasoning with seeming approbation, it surely is not inopportune to call attention to this supremely important doctrine. The difference between ourselves and those who reject it is as the difference between light and darkness, life and death. He who worships Christ as God, and he who represents him as a fallible man, cannot be partakers of the same religion. Both, it is true, believe there is a God; but they are essentially at issue as to who and what God is. If we be right, the Unitarian is a blasphemer; if we be wrong, we are idolaters. There is no alternative. There can be no alternative.

That in the worship of the Lord Jesus Christ we do not give God's glory "to another," is manifest both from Scripture and experience. St. John, who survived the rest of the apostles, lived long enough to see certain speculative errors creep into the Christian church. Some insisted on speaking of Christ as "the Word"— philosophical term which implied inferiority to God, the creator and supporter of the universe. His gospel is nothing more or less than a polemical treatise written to counteract this ruinous teaching. Jealous for his Master's honor, he seized the term in question from the enemy, fixed its sense by applying it to the Saviour, and said: "In the beginning was the Word . . . . and the Word was God. All things were made by him, and without him was not anything made that was made." How triumphantly he demonstrates his thesis the careful student may readily discern.

It would be necessary to transcribe practically the whole of the New Testament writings in order to further illustrate their bearing upon the matter in hand. But we turn to Christian experience, which has its own scientific and evidential value. Myriads of men have called Christ their "Lord and God," and, through confidence in his wondrous atonement have passed from sin to holiness, from unrest and bitterness to joy and peace. Is it to be believed that the lives and deaths of men dishonoring God in the most gross manner, should be thus peaceful, heavenly, triumphant? Can it for an instant be supposed that the great body of the church, so-called, is allowed to fall into deadly heresy? and that multitudes, countless multitudes, die, not only without repentance, but triumphing above everything else in their most deadly error? And yet this is the conclusion to which we must come, if we reject the divinity of Christ.

If Jesus Christ is not God, then in much that he said he could not even have been sincere. This is a conclusion which cannot be resisted. As Liddon once wrote: "Eternal Jesus! it is thyself who has bidden us either despise thee or worship thee. Thou wouldst have us despise thee as our fellowman, if we will not worship thee as our God. . . . . But convinced of these thy moral glories, and by thy majestic exercise of creative and healing power, we believe and are sure that thou hast the words of eternal life. Of a truth, thou art the King of Glory, O Christ; thou art the Everlasting Son of the Father."—Christian Guardian.

The only commendable "confidence man" that we know of is the preacher or private Christian who has a faculty of entering the confidence of the sinful to steal the heart and hand it over to God for cleansing.

The New Year.

BY W. H. MOORE.

The Babe is born. Out of the womb of Time
He comes with rosy cheeks, and scarce a cry,
Smiling, and cooing, in beauty sublime—
May he never have cause to heave a sigh.

But who can tell what the future holds,
For the Urchin so auspiciously born;
Some tears there will be, as the scroll unfolds,
And the days and nights go merrily on.

We wish thee well. May peace attend thy way.
And when thou diest, as thou must, and will,
May those whom thou hast blest, rise up to say,
May we, as he, our destiny fulfill.

A Great Mistake.

REV. J. V. WILLIAMS.

I met a brother preacher some time ago who was talking of transferring. He was above 60 years of age (I think), but yet was thinking about taking his place in a new Conference.

I saw him first 28 years ago at a camp meeting. He was young and good looking. He had recently married a daughter of a wealthy man, and they were both at the camp meeting. She was pretty and he of course was in love with her. He preached for the camp meeting one day, and did it well.

I thought there was a bright future for that brother, and I think, now that I was right, provided he had stuck to his one work, preaching the gospel. But soon I noticed that he was on the supernumerary list—his throat was sore. How is it that rich wives do make preacher's throats sore?

He has been in business of some sort for many years, but has not been prosperous. Now he is back in the regular work, but he is no longer in his prime, and the places that he could have easily taken twenty years ago he can't get now. He's a stranger to the work. By falling out he has lost of course, and he can't understand now why it is he is assigned to such poor work.

He has recently been appointed to a $350 Circuit, and is debating whether or not to take it. I advised him to go to his work at once and trust God and trust the church.

I've noticed this thing of preachers going into business for years. Somehow it don't work.

If a man is called to preach he ought to preach and trust God for the rest.

Down in Alabama some time ago I met a drummer who told me a good story. He said that his father was a rich farmer who owned several hundred negroes and many farms. He had seven daughters and one son. It was the custom of his father to give each daughter, when she married, a farm and several negroes. One of the daughters married a young Methodist preacher. The morning after the marriage the young preacher found under his plate at breakfast, a check for $5,000, and a deed for negroes and a farm. After breakfast the father said to the groom and bride, 'Come into the parlor, I wan't a word with you.' He said to the young preacher, 'What are your plans?' The young fellow was embarrassed and, blushing, said, 'I have no plans, except to go up to Conference and take the work that they give me.' What did you get last year?' the father said. 'One hundred and fifty dollars,' he answered. 'Do you think that will pay?' said the father of the bride. 'Oh,' said the young preacher, 'I had not thought of that, I believe it will always pay to do your duty, and I'm going to do my duty and trust God."

The beautiful young wife came to his rescue, and said laughingly, "Father you don't understand; Will is going to be a bishop."

The good old Methodist father joined in the laugh, and said, "God bless you my son, always do your duty."

The war left the old father bankrupt. The only one of the family who had anything left was the preacher, who had invested his $5,000 in a college. His money kept on growing until he was a very rich man. Sure enough, to the surprise of many, he was elected bishop."

Since this story was told me by his brother-in-law, the wife of his youth has gone to heaven, and the good bishop has again married a very rich woman. He is today a millionaire. "Does it pay?"

"Whatsoever is right that will I give you." My doubting brother, be sure that it will always pay to do your duty.

Memoir of Rev Bernice B. Culbreth

(The memoir of Rev. B. B. Culbreth has not hitherto been published in the Advocate, and is now published by request.—Ed.)

Bernice B. Culbreth, a servant of Jesus Christ, separated unto the Gospel of God, and a faithful soldier in Methodism's itinerant hosts, died at his home in Cary, N. C., May 12, 1903.

He was born near Owensville, Sampson County, November 6, 1835. He failed to measure the allotted span of life, yet in his life there was a rich fulness, which cannot be expressed in terms of days and months and years.

The following is the record of his labors. It tells only of a humble Methodist preacher whose highest ambition it was to work wisely and faithfully for the salvation of human souls. It recounts the labors which, in fulness, rarely belong to lives of even three-score years and ten:

Entered Conference in 1859; 1860, served New Bern Circuit; 1861-2, served Columbia Circuit; 1863, served Stokes Circuit; 1864, served Contentnea Circuit; 1865, served Wilson Circuit; 1866-7, served Duplin Circuit; 1868, served Magnolia Circuit; 1869, served Cape Fear Circuit; 1870-1, served Jonesboro Circuit; 1872, served Williamston Circuit; 1873-4, acted as agent of Trinity College; 1875, served Wadesboro Circuit; 1876-7, served Washington Station; 1878, served Lenoir Circuit; 1879, served LaGrange Circuit; 1880-1-2-3, served Cary Circuit; 1884, served Smithfield Circuit; 1885, served Laurinburg Circuit; 1886-7, served South Edgecombe Circuit; 1888, served Weldon and Halifax Station; 1889, served Rocky Mount and Battleboro; 1890-1, served Warren Circuit; 1892-3, served Tar River Circuit; 1894, served Lumberton Circuit; 1895, served Sampson Circuit; 1896, served Kenly Circuit; 1897-8, served Bethel Station; 1899, served Bladen Street, Wilmington; 1900, served Cape Fear Circuit; 1901, served Deep River Circuit; 1902, served Wilson Circuit; 1903, served Durham City Mission and Buckhorn Circuit.

It is thus seen that as an itinerant preacher, he traversed the whole State, from the Blue Ridge to the Atlantic Ocean. He had, perhaps, a wider acquaintance than any other preacher in North Carolina of like age.

While the mental endowments of Bernice Culbreth were not striking, yet they were not less than strong. He was an educated man. He graduated at Trinity (then Normal) College in 1858, and was thereafter deeply interested in the cause of Christian education.

No one was able to be long in the company of Bernice Culbreth without becoming conscious of the fact that his chief endowment was of a spiritual kind. He loved to talk of God and His Son, Jesus Christ. His presence exhaled a spiritual aroma. His soul carried the glow caught from a shining face on the mountain top. It is not strange that he had unusual aspirations for the very highest life attainable in the economy of grace. He made no professions which lacked a foundation in the white virtues of a consecrated life. His spiritual temperament was that of the mystic with martial longings. He would have made a beau-ideal of a soldier in the hosts of the Crusaders.

There were several circumstances which rendered spiritual his whole trend and cast. He had a spiritual ancestry. He was the son of Love Culbreth and Martha Owen. The former was a faithful preacher of the gospel. The latter was one of Solomon's wise women. He had three uncles who were preachers of usefulness and influence, Blackman, Gray, and Daniel Culbreth. He was converted at an early age, and the evening glow of his religious experience carried the beauty of the dawn. The mellowness of the harvest retained the freshness of the planting. The faith born in childhood carried childhood's simplicity and trust into the very shadows of life's twilight. He was converted in a meeting held in old Union Church, a log meeting house, when religious experience was perhaps more greatly magnified than at the present time. The new birth was an emphatic reality in his life. All these circumstances helped to make Bernice Culbreth an intensely spiritual man—an intensely happy man. He rioted in the very joy of existence. He was a royal companion. His bursts of quaint humor, his original sayings, and his sunny, stingless repartee made him a conspicuous and popular figure in every circle and body. How we miss his exuberant humor and tonic companionship at this Conference!

As a preacher, he was plain and evangelical. He was not uniformly impressive, yet he was always earnest. At times he rose to grand heights of effectiveness. He loved to call sinners to repentance and was strictly a revival preacher. Thousands of his spiritual children remain to speak in loving tones of B. B. Culbreth.

He was twice married—in 1862 to Miss Ada Moore, who lived only a short while, and in 1866 to Miss Dora McGee who years ago entered into rest. She left two children to him—Ada Moore and J. Marvin. The latter is following in the ministerial succession as a member of the North Carolina Conference. The deceased loved his family with a deep, tender love.

At the last Conference, he was assigned to the Durham City Mission. He went bravely to his post of duty. His field was somewhat limited. I saw him frequently during the earlier part of the year. He made no complaint, but I thought that I could see symptoms of unrest in his heart. As I looked into his eyes, I saw what I took to be longings for the old scenes—longings for the freedom of the fields and the forests where the battle cry could ring clear and strong, longings for the hungry congregations in the old church around which the birds sing and the breezes sweep—longings for the prayer around the country firesides where simple faith in the old eternal doctrines hallow the hearthstone—longings, in fact, for that rest which the home-bound sailor craves when he sights the distant harbor.

God gave the old man the desires of his heart. For a short while he was the pastor of the flock on Buckhorn Circuit. He heard the birds sing again and preached to loving hearts the precious doctrine of redeeming grace. Then came the real rest.

"The calm of Heaven was in his eye,
And joy and peace were in his breast:
He found amid confusion rest,
In which all strife and clamor die.
His Psalm was keyed to one deep note:
In him we saw the reverence dwell,
The mind and soul according well,
Of which the greatest Laureate wrote."

And so in another life we see an illustration of the truth of the Psalmist: "Precious in the eyes of the Lord is the death of His saints."

Christianity.

BY BISHOP O. P. FITZGERALD.

1. Christ could not reveal the way of salvation, except he were a prophet.

2. He could not work out that salvation, except he were a priest.

3. He could not confer that salvation upon us, except he were a King.

That is, He could not be prophet, priest and King, except He were the Christ.

This is Christianity.

The Great Alternative.

C. H. WETHERBE.

All through the Bible runs the thought that all people are given a choice between two great conditions, or two courses of procedure, one of which is a continuance in the attitude of disobedience and rebellion against God, with all of its dire consequences; and the other is personal submission to and fellowship with God, with a train of imperishable blessings. God has set before people the great ideas of life and death, asking them to choose one or the other. All people, in their natural state, are sinners, and the question for each one to consider is, shall I continue in this dead and damning condition, or shall I accept God's insistent offer of deliverance from it, with an assurance of eternal blessedness? This is the great alternative, and it is the greatest that a human mind can conceive of.

And then there is a similar alternative, which has reference to those who are in a spiritually backslidden state. They are called upon to choose between continuing in that condition, with its spiritual unrest, its moral barrenness, its experiences of divine chastisement, and its harrowing memories, on the one hand, and a return to God in confession and penitence, receiving a fervent welcome from God and an abundance of his spiritual riches, on the other hand. Why should a backslidden one hesitate a moment in making a right choice? In Nehemiah's fervent prayer, at the time of the return of the Israelites from their Babylonian captivity, we may see a great alternative presented, as follows: "If ye trespass I will scatter you abroad among the peoples; but if ye return unto me and keep my commandments and do them, though your outcasts were in the uttermost part of the heaven, yet will I gather them from thence and will bring them unto the place that I have chosen to cause my name to dwell there." Here was a momentous choice placed before that people. Would any sane man hesitate in making a right choice? To choose to keep on God's side, obeying him with free fidelity, was not only a very great advantage to those people, but it is such to all people now.

A Word About Henderson.

In my life I have passed through many sad partings and separations, but none sadder to me than my departure from Henderson. For two years I had served those people as their pastor, and no pleasanter have I ever spent elsewhere. All impressions to the contrary notwithstanding. I have found them no harder to please than any other people I have served. An interest in them and attention to them by the pastor solve the problem of how to influence and lead them, two essentials to success with any church or people. After an endeavor to convince them of my desire to help them, I preached the whole truth to them, and they kindly received and appreciated it. In the church are some as true, devout Christians, and loyal, devoted Methodists, and warmhearted friends and supporters of the attentive pastor as can be found anywhere. In the future I shall delight to think of their manifested appreciation and willing support of me in all good words and works. Indeed, the memory of them shall be kept green in my heart even when the shadows of life's evening lengthen about my feet.

So after two years association and experience with those people, I give as my honest, candid opinion that there isn't a more promising or desirable church to serve in our entire Conference. The church has mostly turned her face to the future, to which she looks with hope and ambition. The progress she has made these two years of my pastorate is prophetic of still greater progress to come. They wrought with me and I with them. We wrought together and the result was not my success but our success to the praise of God, our Heavenly Father. Hence I congratulate my successor, Dr. L. L. Nash, on his good fortune in falling into the hands of a people who were so kind to us. I am so glad to bear publicly this testimony to the merit of our Henderson church and people. That God may graciously bless and give pastor and people their best year is my prayer.

Very truly,

J. D. BUNDY.

Carthage Circuit.

Rev. J. W. Jenkins, who spent the second Sunday in December, 1903, with us in Carthage, "talked Orphanage" at 11 p. m., and "preached Orphanage" at 7 p. m. His messages made a profound impression upon our people, and the Sunday-school will cheerfully support an orphan.

Christmas came and went without disorder; and appropriate exercises, affording the children much good cheer, were held by the Carthage, High Falls, and Ingram Branch Sunday-schools.

On the 23rd of December, 1903, at the residence of the bride's father, Mr. Jesse Fry, Carthage, N. C., Mr. John Phillips and Miss Glennie Fry, in the presence of a large company of relatives, were happily married, this writer officiating.

One full round, including eight appointments and many pastoral visits, has been made; and I am most thankful to say that my return to a charge has never been met with more cordial greetings and more helpful assurances. More hearty co-operation and more practical systems will greatly aid in maintaining the hundred per cent basis reached last year.

This is written from Monroe, N. C., where I am on a visit to my venerable father. Here I spent my "teens" in the academic schools. No longer a town, but now a throbbing, thriving city, largely filled with strangers seeking health and wealth, the place of my youth is scarcely recognizable. Instead of the old wooden church, at whose altar I found peace, the Methodists are now worshiping in a $25,000 building of magnificent proportions and exquisite embellishments. The $7,000 debt is to be fully liquidated on January 1, 1904; certainly a joyful new year awaits Rev. J. C. Rowe, D. D., the most highly esteemed pastor, and his very heroic flock.

R. H. BROOM, Pastor.

Fremont, N. C., Dec. 24, 1903.

Dear Advocate:—Please say for me that I have been pounded.

Such a crowd! Some got left, but it didn't look like it. It is astonishing how many different things people can think of when they start out on an errand of this kind. Turkeys and toothpicks and everything between. I am glad I am in Fremont. I am getting fat—not financially, but otherwise.

If I dig my grave with my teeth it will be no surprise. But I will try to be temperate and serve this people the better because of their kindness to me and mine. God bless them every one.

D. L. EARNHARDT.

Bertie Circuit Notice!

Dear Brethren:—Our first Quarterly Conference will be held January 23rd and 24th, at Windsor. Our new Presiding Elder—and he is one of the biggest men in Conference—will be with us. At this season of the year, of course roads are bad, but I trust that in spite of bad roads, a good number from all our churches will meet him and greet him here. Trustees, Sunday-school Superintendents, class leaders, secretaries of church conferences and presidents of Epworth Leagues are members of our Quarterly Conferences as well as stewards and the preacher; and the law of the church, as regards their attendance on Quarterly Conference, is the same. Brethren, let us have a large attendance of officials on Saturday. This will help to make a good impression on our Presiding Elder. Most of our homes get the Advocate. If you are not a subscriber and this copy finds its way to your home it is because your pastor has requested a sample copy sent there. When you have read it send me or hand me $1.50 that I may have your name placed on their list of subscribers. Letter from West Durham

Dear Advocate:—I have only a few lines for you to-day. I have tried West Durham one year and am more than pleased with its treatment and advantages given me. We have a very heroic band of Methodists here. They are very true and faithful to their pastor, and loyal to their church. I do not mean to say that all on the roll are models, but that ours is a good average with county or city churches.

All our financial obligations were met in full, as the minutes will show. And we have had a reasonable number of accessions during the year, notwithstanding we had a net loss in membership.

I wish just here to acknowledge several pounding during the year, and once since Conference. But just imagine my surprise and the breadth of my smiles when my Epworth League, through Rev. E. M. Hoyle, presented me, for a Christmas gift, with a set of the Expositor's Bible (25 volumes). I am now, if not heretofore, a firm believer in Epworth Leagues; and especially West Durham League. May God bless us all this year.

C. P. JEROME.

West Durham, N. C., Dec. 30, 1903.

Florida Winter Bible Courses, Gainsville, Florida, January 31 to February 15, 1904.

Great preparations are now being made by the citizens of Gainesville, Fla., for the establishment there of an Annual Winter Bible Conference, on the order of Northfield, Winonah Lake and Mt. Lake Park summer conferences. All the churches of the little city are enthusiastically interested, and the citizens have erected a splendid auditorium for the Conference, seating three thousand.

Among the speakers who will take part in the Conference are many well-known and able men:

Dr. Len G. Broughton, pastor Baptist Tabernacle, Atlanta, Ga.; Dr. W. E. Blackstone, Missionary Evangelist, of Chicago, Ill.; Mr. S. H. Hadley, of the McAuley Mission, New York; Rev. Dr. D. V. Gwilym, eloquent Episcopal rector, New York; Dr. E. I. D. Pepper, of Philadelphia, Pa.; Prof. J. R. C. Browne, Presbyterian, of Virginia; Mrs. Margaret Bottome, president of the Order of King's Daughters; Dr. Clarence B. Strouse, Methodist evangelist, and editor of the "Consecrated Life," of Philadelphia, Pa.; and many others.

Gainesville is the finest town in Florida, and is located in the centre of the State; very high and well drained; pure water from a magnificent spring; wide streets, shaded by beautiful oak trees; a lovely climate, which is a balm and cure for weak lungs; it is surrounded by a number of the finest truck and vegetable farms in Florida; a number of beautiful lakes, full of fine fish, and game in abundance. Its population is five thousand.

It is an ideal place to spend the winter. The hotels and boarding-houses are as reasonable in their charges as any Northern town; private board from $5 to $8 per week, hotels from $8 to $15 per week. A specialist tourist rate is given Gainesville from all points; tickets good to return as late as May. One can attend the Conference and spend a month and return, from any point east of the Mississippi River for less than one hundred dollars expense.

It is a great opportunity to visit Florida and attend the Conference. Date is January 31 to February 15, followed by the Christian Workers' Institute, February 15 to 28.

The Florida Winter Chautauqua, presenting a splendid programme, opens in Gainesville February 29 to March 15.

SEC. BIBLE CONFERENCE,
Gainesville, Fla.

A Faithful Steward Cared.

One of the most enjoyable occasions it has been my pleasure to attend, was the Christmas exercises in our Sunday-school at Pittsboro.

It has been the custom in this school for some years to present the smaller scholars with a nice book at Christmas. This year the school had a more elaborate program, which consisted of songs, recitations and some handsome presents to the officers of the school. But best of all was the presentation of a handsome gold-headed cane to Bro. A. G. Headen. The secret had been so perfectly kept that Brother Headen was taken completely by surprise. He has been the leader of the church here for more than thirty years, as steward, Sunday-school superintendent, trustee. The cane was but a small token of the love and esteem of those he has served so faithfully all these years.

His response was such as cannot be put on paper. It was a glad, good time.

JAS. H. FRIZELLE.

At His Post.

On November 12 the Associated Press dispatches contained the news of the death from yellow fever of Dr. U. H. Nixon, surgeon in charge of Hospital Monterey, Monterey, Mex. This grievous news was sudden and unexpected. It was known that Mrs. Nixon had the fever, though she has been reported improving, and for a time it was suspected that, by a mistake of the press, her husband's death was announced in place of hers.

The doubt was not for long. A few lines, written some days earlier by the Doctor himself, came in by mail, admitting that he too had the fever. The terrible news was confirmed. Dr. Nixon, who in hourly peril of his life had for weeks past been nursing others through the dread disease, was himself gone. It was hard at first to grasp the meaning of the facts. So full of energy, of hope, of keen interest in the work to which he brought so much skill, had the Doctor been, and so vigorous and active had his spirit showed through his letters, that it seemed impossible he should have passed so quickly out of the world. Yet so it was.

Born in Campbell County, Ga., November 21, 1865; converted and united with the Southern Methodist Church in 1879; graduated from the Barnes Medical College in 1893; sent as medical missionary to Monterey, Mex., in 1901; died November 11, 1903. The facts are not many nor striking, yet they are parts of a hero's life. No missionary has more earnestly thrown himself into his work, nor more successfully wrung victory and progress out of adverse circumstances. From their inception his efforts were wise, incisive, prompt, and vigorous.

For some time the desire for missionary service grew upon him. In 1900 he applied to the Board of Missions from Killeen, Tex. Here he had a practice which brought him in some $3,000 a year, together with an interest in a thriving drug store. His standing in his community, both as a physician and a citizen (and every true Christian must be true citizen too), may be adequately indicated by the fact that he was assistant surgeon to the Gulf, Colorado and Sante Fe Railroad, the medical examiner for eight old-line insurance companies, president of the Bell County Association of Physicians and Surgeons, member of the Central Texas Medical Association, and chairman of the Democratic Executive Committee for the county. Through correspondence with Rev. J. L. Hendry he had been interested in China, then under the cloud of the Boxer trouble, and, anticipating new opportunities after the disturbances were over, such as would offer large possibilities to the active Church, he desired to find work for himself in that field.

Just at this time a great hue and cry was sounding over the country: "Why send missionaries to the cruel Chinese?" Everywhere there were queries and shiverings: "Is it safe? Is it safe?" Safe? Why should it be safe? There was no manly thing ever done because it was safe. A manly thing was only done, since the world began, because it needed to be done and a man was there to do it. This man saw a thing to do. He stopped not to count the cost, but made up his mind to do it.

It was impossible to send reinforcements to China at that time; but on a visit from Dr. C. F. Reid and a presentation of the needs of Korea, Dr. Nixon applied for work in that field. Owing to financial difficulties of the Board, a long delay ensued. At the last, while possibilities in Korea still seemed remote, the Doctor was offered work in Mexico. The disappointment at not being able to go to the East, in which he had become deeply interested, was a bitter one, yet without one word of dissatisfaction he promptly responded to this new call. In July, 1901, he reached Monterey and began work, having sold his interests at home, left his practice, and given up everything to put his whole life into an heroic effort to save the souls and bodies of men.

Under his management the work enlarged wonderfully. Citizens of the town—Mexicans, Germans, and Americans—were interested. Patronage and donations began to come in. Medical services for the railroad and for local companies were arranged for to help defray expenses. The activity and skill of the Doctor and his financial and business ability commended him to all.

Opposition is never very far off. The Catholics became alarmed. By threats and cajoleries they set to work to scare away the patrons of the Protestant hospital. The support of many, and donations half promised, were lost; but the work forged steadily ahead. A magnificent success in an unprecedented time was achieved. For the last year, the second in its history, the hospital has been self-supporting. The surgical operations—for Dr. Nixon was a surgeon among the very best—and the nursing have proved uniformly successful. The results of the medical work were such as any man might be proud of. Neither were souls forgotten in the ministry to bodies.

All this while the Doctor was working to the very limit of his strength. Until nurses could be secured, he had nursing and operating and all to do almost alone. Then, as the number and efficiency of the nurses rose, he undertook more work. They were in cramped quarters; the equipment was inadequate; private rooms were too few; the night nurse's rest was broken because she had only the room of the day nurses' to sleep in; and in and outdoor calls and all the business of the institution fell upon the Doctor's shoulders. Yet no word came from him, save of further enlargement to meet growing needs and of more perfect appliances while the burden was becoming more onerous every day.

Time after time he was written to take more rest and better care of himself. But what could he do? There was work to be done, much work—the life and death of men and women dependent on him—and no one else to do it. There was but one possible conclusion.

"My work is exceedingly trying. I am beginning to feel the effect of the strain upon my nervous system. May the Lord give me physical strength to meet all the demands upon me!

Again, in March, 1903, he wrote: "The Lord has wonderfully blessed my efforts in my work here, and I hope to continue to press the battle more and more.

In June, 1903, he writes:

"I feel very thankful that the people here appreciate the work we are doing, and hope that our work here will meet the expectations of all long after my poor, weak arms have ceased to labor. I have put forth my very best efforts in trying to build up a work that will be not only an honor to the Church, but one that will be fruitful in results, both temporal and spiritual; and I feel that it is coming up to our expectations on this line. Am not very well at this time. The warm weather is very trying.

The Family.

A New Year's Vow.

Come, let us use the grace divine,
And all, with one accord,
In a perpetual covenant join
Ourselves to Christ the Lord.

Give up ourselves, through Jesus' power,
His name to glorify;
And promise, in this sacred hour,
For God to live and die.

The covenant we this moment make
Be ever kept in mind;
We will no more our God forsake,
Or cast His words behind.

To each the covenant blood apply,
Which takes our sins away;
And register our names on high,
And keep us to that day.

—Charles Wesley.

Something Each Day.

Something each day—a smile,
It is not much to give,
And the little gifts of life
Make sweet the days we live.
The world has weary hearts
That we can bless and cheer,
And a smile for every day
Makes sunshine all the year.

Something each day—a word.
We cannot know its power,
It grows in fruitfulness,
As grows the gentle flower.
What comfort it may bring,
Where all is dark and drear!
For a kind word every day
Makes pleasant all the year.

Something each day—a thought
Unselfish, good and true,
That aids another's need,
While we our way pursue;
That seeks to lighten hearts,
That leads to pathways clear;
For a helpful thought each day
Makes happy all the year.

Something each day—a deed,
Of kindness and of good,
To link in closer bonds
All human brotherhood.
O, thus the heavenly will
We all may do while here;
For a good deed every day
Makes blessed all the year.

The Curtain Falls.

Over the sorrow and over the bliss,
Over the teardrop, over the kiss,
Over the crimes that blotted and blurred,
Over the wound of the angry word,
Over the deeds in weakness done,
Over the battles lost and won,
Year that to-morrow will not be here,
Over our freedom, over our thralls,
In the dark and the midnight, the curtain falls.

Over our gain and over our loss,
Over our crown and over our cross,
Over the fret of our discontent,
Over the ill that we never meant,
Over the scars of our self-denial,
Over the strength that conquered trial,
Now in the end of the flying year,
Year that to-morrow will not be here,
Quietly final, the prompter calls:
Over it swiftly the curtain falls.

Over the crowds and the solitudes,
Over our shifting, hurrying moods,
Over the hearths where bright flames leap,
Over the cribs where the babies sleep,
Over the clamor, over the strife,
Over the pageantry of life,
Year that to-morrow will not be here,
Swiftly and surely, from starry walls,
Silently downward the curtain falls.

—Harper's Bazar.

From the Past Into the Future.

Almighty God, we worship thee this day in gratitude and love for thy past goodness. Thou hast written thy name over all our past. Every hour is jeweled with thy mercy, and every breath is the witness of thy strength. If we have been healed of our self-despisings, it is by the encouragements of thy heart. We bless thee for the ministry of thy love and for the healing of thy mercy. And we beseech thee that as we stand upon the frontier of the unknown, and strain our wistful eyes to read its secret, that thou wilt give quietness to our spirit. Say to us to-day that thou wilt go with us. That every step of ours shall be guided by thy wisdom, and in every way we shall be supported by thy strength. Assure us of thy continual presence and love. Let thy light and thy truth be our perpetual guide, through Jesus Christ, our Lord. Amen.

"By faith they passed through the Red Sea as by dry land."—Hebrews xi, 29.

This is the most dramatic incident in the history of the children of Israel. It is the one event which they never forgot. It is written deep in the nation's mind. The awful stillness of the midnight silence, and flaming pillar casting its lurid glare, the gradual encroachment of the pursuers, the silent majesty of the jeweled sky, and in front of the people, barring their way, the long sweep of the black and fearful waters. And then, the path made through the trackless waters, and the mobile sea fashioning itself into walls of crystal, and the transit of the hosts of God from the known to the unknown, guided and guarded by the kindly hand of the Lord. That was an incident to mortise the national life in God; and to be the bulwark of the people's faith in many a time of trial and discipline. They trusted in him, and he, in time of trial and discipline. They trusted in him, and he, in whom no spirit ever trusted in vain, made a way through the waters and led them into the land of his promise. "By faith they passed through the Red Sea."

And, to-day, our position is not unlike theirs. Behind us there lies the future, infinite, unknown, bodeful. To-morrow is trackless. There are no sounds of familiar voices haunting its silence. Its quietness is disturbed by no familiar presences. Veils are hung between us and the days which are to be, veils which it is unwisdom for us to attempt to lift, and ignorance which it is our peace to leave undisturbed. However glorious our past, it is now only a memory, and can be no refuge for the spirit, no home for the heart. Whatever splendors may hang about the present their luster is perishable, and here we can not stay. Forward we must go. Out of the known and the familiar into the unknown and the unfamiliar. This only do we know (and it is enough!), that all that unknowness is known to God, and is covered by his infinite sympathy and love. He leadeth us to the land that is covered even to its furthest inch, by his all-embracing promise. A thousand mysteries close in our little life.

"We only know we can not drift
Beyond his love and care."

It is said of the children of Israel that they made this passage from the known to the unknown in the power of a faith that trampled fear beneath its feet, and held on its way, trusting in the Lord. They ventured themselves on God. Faith is not a principle of passive acquiescence, but the energetic apprehension by the will of the will of God. It is that act of the spirit by which the whole life puts itself in harmony with God's purposes, and quietly but remorselessly follows him to its splendid achievement. Outwardly, in this hour, there may seem to be fear, misgiving, doubt; but the keen eye of the writer of the Hebrews saw the secret spirit of it all. He saw the heart following hard after God, the clinging of the soul with both its hands to the outstretched hand of the Lord; the fine venturesomeness of the life, even where it can not see the way, upon the promised guidance of God, and he declares in a passage which is alive with the man's best life, "By faith they passed through the Red Sea." Faith the ground of man's conquest; the method of his highest victory. Not "a lath painted to look like iron," but, however frail it may look, that which trambles another glories under its feet and conducts the spirit through ever-threatening menace to the land which has been promised by the mouth of the Lord.

And this, to-day, is the supremest need of us all. We have to go forth into a future quite unknown. A future which, if we can read it in the light of our past, will have in it sunlight and darkness, rapture and despair. All our sorrows are not behind us, and all our gladness is not in front. The web of the future will be woven out of joy and sorrow. Love will have its agony as well as its rapture. There will be nights that are full of dark, as well as days that are brimful of light. And the whole future lies in the dim haze of unpenetrated uncertainty. November may bring our brightest days, and June our darkest. There is but one power in the strength of which we can make a dry path through the wet waters, and that is the power of faith. We need to rediscover God—his active and his invincible defense. We need to lay hold of this God with a faith which is active, venturous, and invincible. Neither the church nor the individual has a greater need to-day than to learn the living meaning of the first great article of its masterful Creed, "I believe in God."—Methodist Recorder.

The capacity of our sorrows belongs to our grandeur; and the loftiest of our race are those who have had the profoundest sympathies, because they have had the profoundest sorrows.—Henry Giles.

Today is mine; I hold it fast,
Hold it and use it as I may,
Unmindful of the shadow cast
By that dim thing called yesterday.

—Susan Coolidge.

The Years.

O, hark, my friend, I hear them slowly going,
Not to return;
Short is each year of life's Sojourn.

Each year should be a type of what
The old and new;
Ring out the false, ring in
The true.

Ring out the old infirmities—the
Let them pass by;
The time is coming when
We die.

But no; the hour that takes us, brings us comfort.
'Tis only flying
From "old" and "new." We call it
Dying.

But new life's eve it is—a New-Year's Morning,
And gladness;
Heaven's bells shall ring away
All sadness.

—Robert Atherton, the Plowman
Poet.

Greeting the New Year.

"The Old and New Year meet;
And one goes back to God again
And one stays on for joy or pain.

And no one else can come as near
To face as he, the Stranger Year.

Be not afraid to give thyself
Into his guiding hands. . . . .
For God is in the year;

O, love him, for he comes to bless
Thy life with good and happiness."

We read a story not long ago wherein a man who meant to do right, and wanted to do right, grew much disgusted with making resolves, and so instead of framing fresh determination in his mind as to what he would try to do during another year, he entered in his memorandum-book: "Have resolved to make no more resolves." That seemed to settle the matter, so far as fresh resolves were concerned. Yet it really did not settle it at all. For, as often as that entry confronted the man, he felt a sense of shame, which in time appeared like a form of moral defeat. And so it was not very long before he tore the unworthy words out and in their place put resolutions so sincerely entered that they proved more abiding and helpful than any formed for years before. It is sometimes discouraging work making resolves and re-resolves, yet we see it can be still more discouraging not to make them. The old proverb tells us that in the face of repeated resolutions man "dies the same." Yet the validity of the old proverb can be very warrantably questioned. Many the high promise and resolute determination made at the beginning of a new year which holds good to the close.

The verse reminds us that the old year has gone back to God, and that the new one has come for either good or ill. We scarcely need reminding that time comes very near holding us all in its close embrace. The counsel is timely that bids us not to be afraid to trust ourselves into the guiding hands of the year because God is in it. And it is reassuring to be told that time comes to bless our lives with "good and happiness."—The Christian Work.

Our Boys and Girls.

Around the Globe.

I started out around the world.
('Twas half-past five o'clock;
My hair was nicely brushed and curled;
I wore my Sunday frock.)
And cast I went from Illinois
As straight as I could go
Until I thought I'd got to Troy,
Where lives my Uncle Joe.

But here of course I didn't stay—
I had so much ahead;
I took a ship at Boston Bay
And o'er the ocean sped.
I wasn't sick a single speck,
And sailed with might and main,
And didn't stop for storm or wreck,
And landed right in Spain.

I went through Spain and Italy.
And Turkey, Turkestan.
And China too; and next, dear me,
I found I'd reached Japan:
And here the ocean was again
Which I must cross once more;
So in a boat I stepped, and then
Set out and sailed for shore.

Now, this was our America;
I had no time to waste,
But went from California
To Illinois in haste,
Because I'd heard the tea-bell sound.
And mamma call and call;
On papa's desk. That's all.
—Churchman.

Lottie's Christmas Secrets.

When a little girl has five times as many pennies to spend for Christmas as she is years old, she ought to be very happy. This it was that made Lottie Pringle so happy. She was five years old and she had twenty-five cents to buy Christmas presents for her father, mother, brother Joe and four sisters.

"Now, mamma," said Lottie, "let's talk about what I'll get, 'cause you'll have to help me think; only sister Mary did tell me what to get for you, but I'm not going to tell. I mean, I don't think I'm going to tell."

"No," said mamma, "I can wait till Christmas. But what will you get for papa?"

"I did buy his present, mamma, when I went out with Sister Mary and bought your darning—"Oh!" and Lottie's hand was pressed tightly over her mouth. "Did you hear, mamma?"

"I only heard one word, dear."

"Well, it takes two words to tell it, so I guess you don't know."

"I think we would better talk about what to buy for Mary," said mamma. "How would a lead-pencil do for Mary and one for Brother Joe, too?"

"I know they'd like that, mamma. They're always saying: 'Where's my pencil?' when they're going to study and I won't tell."

"No, you mustn't tell."

"Mamma, I can tell you what I've got for you, 'cause of course I'll tell you all the things; but I won't show it to you."

"Maybe you'll be sorry if you tell me now; you'd better keep it for a Christmas secret."

"Oh, no," pleaded Lottie, "I'll just have to tell. It's a darning-needle, it's a darning needle; but you musn't see it till Christmas." And then Lottie had to give her mother a hug and a kiss. "You like it, don't you, mamma?"

"Indeed, I do, dear; and I shall know just what to do with it."

Lottie was delighted. The next day she went out with her mother and bought the pencils for Mary and Joe. When Mary came from school, they had just been carefully hidden away; but the eager little girl whispered to her mother that she could show Mary the one she had for Joe, "and you know, mamma, she won't know about the one I've got for her."

"Now be careful," whispered mamma. "Don't bring but one."

"Lottie flew to bring the pencil and came running back. "See, Mary, what I've got for Joe; and don't you tell him."

"Not I," said Mary, as she took the pencil. "How very nice! He'll be so pleased."

"Yes, and I got—" But, seeing mamma's warning finger, she caught the pencil from Mary and ran out of the room. The door shut behind her with a decided slam and mamma was thinking the secret was safe, when, lo! it opened just a crack and a little voice called back, "There's one for you, Mary, just like it."

Nothing would do but Joe must see Mary's pencil; and when he praised it and said it was a nice pencil for Mary to lend him sometimes, what did Lottie do, in spite of warning looks and coughs from Mary and mamma, but tell him, while she jumped up and down with delight, that he was to have one for his very own.

When Alice and Margie asked mamma one morning for money to buy a paper pad to carry to school, Lottie shut her lips very tightly, clapped her hands over her mouth, then laughed and, pointing to mamma's bureau, said mysteriously, "You can't guess what's in there this minute, that I bought with my own money?"

Another time mamma overheard her saying to Sarah, in the next room, "When Christmas comes, you won't have to use that old penholder any more and I know why."

Whenever papa used a postage-stamp, Lottie was always at his elbow to ask "if his stamps would last him till Christmas," or if he thought "postage-stamps made good Christmas presents."

Indeed, Lottie found so many times and ways to tell her Christmas secrets that the family finally gave up trying to prevent it.

But, after all, what do you think she said when Christmas day really came?

"Oh, I'm so glad it's come, because now I shan't have to keep my Christmas secrets any longer."—Helen Ames Walker.

"Our residue of days and hours,
Thine, wholly thine, shall be;
And all our consecrated powers
A sacrifice to thee;
Till Jesus in the clouds appear
To saints on earth forgiven,
And bring the grand sabbatic year,
The jubilee of heaven."

New Year's day! The time for a calm review of our lives during the past year; a close self-examination; a careful adjustment of the balances to see if there is danger of the fatal "wanting" being found against us.

God help us to be honest with ourselves—there is much to be considered, and a vital issue confronts us. Have we been faithful and true in all the relations of our lives—have we loved our neighbor as ourselves—have we exemplified in our lives the basic principle of "pure and undefiled religion:" and have we seasoned all the other good words, thoughts and deeds, by a conscientious obedience to the last great command of our risen Lord: "Go (or send) ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature?"

Have we, amid the domestic and social pleasures of the season, forgotten our duty—our high privilege—to plan for a liberal Christmas offering to our missionary work?

If every member of the W. F. M. Society of the N. C. Conference has "laid by her in store as God hath prospered her," a commensurate offering for this joyous season, there wil be an evident impetus to missionary plans and projects.

How many responses have been made to "Aunt Lizzie's" suggestion to her Bright Jewels, that they make a special Christmas offering for the work among heathen children?

An occasional communication from our Lady Managers to this column would be of interest to its many readers—keep us thoroughly informed about what our children are doing, and how they are being trained.

In our Missionary Advocate of December, we find the following item: "The first money given for foreign mission work in modern times was given by Sir Walter Raleigh. The sum was five hundred dollars, and it was used in converting the heathen Indians of America."

There is a great difference between reading a sermon and preaching it. Fluttering and flying are not the same thing, though they may look like it for a moment.—Joseph Parker.

It has been estimated that there are 8,700 ways in which half-a-crown may be changed. How many ways are there in which a life may be lived?—Joseph Parker.

Greeting.

A happy new year to every Home Mission worker, as well as every reader of the Raleigh Advocate! May each one of us strive as never before to make it the best year in Home Mission history; without a doubt, then, it will be one of many blessings and much happiness. And can there be any reason why each one should not do her best? Sisters, let none of us quiet our disturbed consciences by humbly confessing that we are unable to help; rather, let us realize that we must give account of the time allowed for this life, and bravely and usefully and joyfully bear our responsibility. The wealthy may lighten the burden of poverty and bring gladness to the despairing; the intellectual may use their talents for the upbuilding of the work, consecrating their gifts of tongue and pen; the strong and healthy may help and cheer the weak and oppressed; the sorrowing may carry sympathy and hope to others in distress; the sick and the poor may pray continually for God's blessing on all efforts. Everyone is endowed with the ability to make some return to the One who has given the great opportunity for eternal life, and it is generally in the form of aid to others.

Our Mountain School.

How many Auxiliaries have raised the amounts pledged during Miss Bennett's canvass among us? I think the larger number promised to remit in January, and I urge you to do so as early as possible. The expenses are heavy and there is need for ready money. Send to our Conference Treasurer, Mrs. W. H. Speight, Whiteville, N. C. It is necessary for all Methodists to bestir themselves and send quickly every dollar that has been pledged—that there may be further opportunity to work. The Board of Home Missions will convene in Kansas City on the 15th of April, and it is our cherished desire to present it then free of debt—you know it cannot be accepted until entirely unencumbered. I am loth to believe that our North Carolina Methodists will even run the risk of disappointment.

The Brevard Teachers.

You will be glad to hear the latest news from the schools. Up to this time 80 pupils have been enrolled, and the number would have been larger if the Boarding Department were fully equipped. It has been necessary to add another teacher to the overworked Faculty, and a most fortunate selection has been made in Miss Ruth Campbell, a daughter of a Methodist minister of the Louisville Conference; she has taught two terms at the Sue Bennett Memorial School, and has recently taken a course at the Peabody Normal in Nashville, Tenn. The Principal, Prof. E. E. Bishop, is also a Kentuckian, a ripe Christian, and a man of fine and successful experience. From a personal letter written by one of the teachers, I find that both he and his wife are deeply spiritual and truly consecrated. The "hand of the Lord" seems to be guiding in a peculiar manner the affairs concerning this school. The other teachers are Miss Florence Kern, of Mississippi, Mrs. David Ray, of Tennessee, and Miss Mattie Stansel, of our own State,—all competent, faithful, brave, ready to suffer, if need be, for Christ's sake. A Young Woman's Christian Association has been organized, which will, doubtless, be very helpful, as many of the girls seem hungry for such work.

City Missions.

In December Miss Bennett organized a good, strong city mission in Mobile, Ala. The ladies of Montgomery, Ala., also, have recently organized one. These swell the number of City Mission Boards, under the auspices of the Home Mission Society, to fifteen, seven of which are conducted on the settlement plan. The work is advancing wonderfully, especially this branch of it. I have heard that a missionary in a Northern city offered the gospel to 15 nationalities in one week. What a hand we may have in helping to bring all nations to Christ!

Miss Bennett's Message.

In a late letter from our beloved President she gave me this message, which I deliver with faith and trust: "Please ask your auxiliaries to pray the Lord of the vineyard to thrust forth more laborers into the harvest."

Dr. Marshal Beaty, the Nose, Throat and Lung Specialist, of Cincinnati, recently completed a series of trial treatments of his Antiseptic Medicated Air Cure on one hundred patients; some were consumptives in the lowest consumptive stages, others of a catarrhal, asthmatic and bronchial nature. The record of each patient kept by the Doctor as the home treatment progressed, was very interesting. The most remarkable and gratifying features in connection with the treatment was the rapid healing of the cavities and tubercles of the lungs and the raw, ulcerated surface of the mucous membrane of the entire breathing organs. This is phenomenal, and ample proof that this great discovery has solved the problem of a permanent cure for the thousands of sufferers from all catarrhal, bronchial and lung troubles. In his account of it, the Doctor says: "No germ of Catarrh, Asthma, Bronchitis or Consumption can live under the action of this powerful antiseptic. When taken internally and breathed and inhaled into the air passages, bronchial tubes and cells of the lungs, the germs are at once destroyed and expelled from the system, and the disease is arrested and cured by removing the cause."

THE COMPLETE CURE

To introduce and prove beyond doubt that this great treatment will cure Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma, Catarrh and Weak Lungs, Dr. Beaty has decided to make another test step to others at a Full Month's Treatment Free, including Inspirator and all medicines complete, exactly as shown in illustration.

The Doctor will keep in close touch with all patients during the progress of the treatment, and will make no charge for his professional services, consultation, and the necessary correspondence.

When Dr. Beaty makes such a liberal offer as this, thereby saving patients the large sums they usually expend for medicine, advice, prescriptions, consultations, etc., there can be no excuse why sufferers should hesitate to put his treatment to the test.

Do not delay, but write at once, addressing Dr. M. Beaty, 253 West 9th St., Cincinnati, Ohio, and tell him the nature of your head, throat or lung trouble, and how long the disease has had a hold on you. This test course is intended to prove the genuine merits of the treatment and costs nothing.

Editorial.

THE SITUATION.

We feel sure that it is a matter of deep regret to many of our readers that the old-time controversy over Trinity College and its affairs is again on. It has raged for several weeks. It was at its hottest during the Christmas holidays when "peace on earth, good will to men" is supposed to be the ruling motto.

Pardon us at this point for going back a few years when, as one of the editors of the church organ, we represented our Conference within the bounds of another Conference. A newspaper controversy, more heated if possible than the one just referred to, arose. The President and Trustees of Trinity College had been unjustly attacked. We went to the rescue. For nearly two years our columns were filled with explanations, defences, and denunciations—with what force we will leave others to say. We felt when the fight was over that the church could hardly stand the strain of another such warfare. The people were tired of controversy. Thousands beside our Carolina firesides longed for a church paper that, free from the stain of strife, might bring to them the messages of the Prince of Peace. The succeeding years have been teaching us that, as a rule, the church has little to gain in a newspaper controversy. As a rule, the best defence that can be made is a majestic silence born in the deep consciousness of eternal rectitude. While, of course, there are exceptions to this rule, it is still a fact that when the church through its journals combats the world in its own arena, she loses more than she gains. Factions are created in spite of all that can be done. Strong temptations are offered to other parties to settle questions of their own. The influence of the church is lessened with many outsiders. Attention to souls that are waiting for the bread of life is painfully and often disastrously diverted. Never before in the history of our church in North Carolina have our people been so tired of controversy as now. No one comes so painfully in contact with this fact as the editor of the church paper.

So it is not strange that when the Bassett trouble began, we had as little to say about it as possible. We did not publish the offending article or any part of it. We felt that the least publicity given to the article was best for Dr. Bassett and the people at large. We wished and hoped and prayed that the matter might be settled quietly, and that the church might be spared the strain of another heated excitement. We used our powers of persuasion to keep the matter out of Conference.

The Trustees met. Our readers know how we felt and how we voted. The majority was against us. Together with six other Trustees we bowed to the will of that majority, feeling that, while it had made a mistake, it was incumbent upon us as loyal sons to render to our college in the future a richer compensating tribute of love and loyalty. That tribute is being rendered now. There cannot be in our own heart any doubt of this.

After and before the meeting of the Board of Trustees, the News and Observer and other papers went beyond their journalistic prerogatives in bitterly attacking not only Dr. Bassett, but the President of the College, and the Trustees who voted to retain Dr. Bassett, and in keeping up the attack day by day. Their conduct was highly censurable and invited only the merited rebuke of every Methodist no matter what his views might be on the subject at issue. In our issue of December 16, we expressed our indignation, defended the attacked parties, and, in the name of justice and a great church, called for fair dealing. There is no use of rehearsing what we wrote.

We may be allowed here to say that never for one moment have we felt that the sacred rights of the Methodist people of North Carolina have been in the slightest danger of being stolen by an offending press. To base any course of action on such a fear would be to discredit the intelligence and independence of 140,000 Methodists and pay to the hostile papers the compliment of their lives. Our confidence in our Methodist people is still unshaken and we are far from being panic stricken. Reading the history of a Methodism which, unabashed and unafraid, has carved her own course through the centuries, we have no fear that ten thousand newspapers can rob her, if they would, of her independence or deflect her course. Methodists will never cease to do what seems best in the light of her own mind and conscience.

So in all deference to those who think otherwise, we will say that we have sounded no tocsin of war. We have burned no red fire. We have thrown no ephithets. We have threatened no boycotts. We have done what we will continue to do—pursue that course which is most conducive to the defence and development of Methodism and her institutions and most consistent with the healthy quietude of a people who have been sorely harassed and who are longing for rest.

There is one other matter we wish to discuss briefly, and then we are through.

A few days ago there appeared in the Boston Transcript a letter sent from Durham, and evidently written by a scholar, well acquainted with the affairs of Trinity College. We know enough of the authorship of this letter to state that it was not written by any one connected with the college itself. This letter contained a cruel attack on Trinity College antecedent to its removal from Durham on the seven Trustees who voted for the resignation of Dr. Bassett, and on the Methodist preachers in North Carolina.

"Trinity College was a backwoods institution—a pretty good high school—belonging to the Methodist Church until ten or twelve years ago. . . . Moving was a mere matter of three or four professors making a journey of seventy-five or eighty miles."

Here is a reference to the Methodist preachers of North Carolina and to the seven who voted for the resignation of Dr. Bassett: "The Methodist preachers are the preservers of every old idea. Timid to the point of cowardice, they can be driven to any cruel action, if they are made to think that the pillars of society are about to be pulled down. There are a number of these men on the Board of Trustees. The preachers were simply scared into submission. . . . . The other fact of far reaching consequence is the clear light that the incident threw on the character of the clergy. They are 'good' men. But they stand and have long stood in the way of all progress in thought in the South. They have been used by the politicians and they use the churches to stifle real freedom."

If such cruel abuse had been written in a North Carolina paper, there would have been no necessity for special attention. Trinity College under Braxton Craven, the minority members of the Board, and the Methodist preachers of North Carolina are too well known here to suffer from abuse. But this letter was published in a New England paper and the caricature has been placed before the eyes of an alien people who will carry the picture in their minds to their very graves. It is almost inconceivable that, while so many "defences" have been made lately, there has been no defence of the Methodist preacher of North Carolina, with the exception of that contained in the News and Observer, which reproduced the article. We take this our first opportunity of rebuking the cruel misrepresentations of the anonymous correspondent. Surely, since we have defended the eighteen Trustees who voted for the retention of Dr. Bassett, we cannot do less than defend the seven who voted for his resignation. They are men of such character as to render them safe from any attack where they are known. They make no pretensions to bravery, but they are not timid and cowardly enough to refuse to sign their names to any article they may write. They make no pretensions to being overly "good," but they are never cruel enough to caricature good men in a land where no defence can be made.

And the Methodist preacher of North Carolina. Typically he is a man, who, claiming no social prestige and turning aside from the allurements of wealth, finds his highest joy in telling the "old, old story of Jesus and His love." We know him. We ought to know him. We have seen his struggles. We have watched his heroic sacrifices blooming through strenuous days and years into glorious achievement. We have sat with him in the little parsonage when the doorway was thronged by Poverty's ravening wolves. We have ridden with him through swamps and over mountain when his heart sang the melodies of Heaven and his eye flashed with heroic fire more exultant than that which flashed in the eyes of the knights of the Golden Horseshoe "who followed Spottswood round the land." We have helped him to raise the shout of victory in the old country meeting house when Jehovah was present in soul-purging fire. We have seen him lay the battered armor on the wall to enter that rest where no sound of reville or clash of arms is ever heard.

It was through his prayer and labors that our great college was builded. To see him abused and caricatured before an alien people by one who, for aught we know, has partaken of the hospitality of the institution into which the Methodist preacher has placed his very blood arouses our indignation. For one we will salute the Methodist preacher when living and, ever ready to defend his memory, we will drop one flower on the mound that heaves above his sleeping ashes.

But enough. Another bright new year has dawned upon us. We regret that there has been any necessity for inserting in this the first issue of 1904 anything which even approaches the controversial. For weeks we have been holding off two sides which wished to publish their views in the Advocate. We trust that we will be able to continue this course. It will not do to make the columns of the Advocate an Aceldama. We repeat, our people are sick of controversy. Thousands upon thousands in our old commonwealth are waiting to touch the hem of Christ's garment and be healed. This may be the year, and the only year, of their opportunity. Shall we not make a way for the approach of the Healer?

THE ADVOCATE FOR 1904.

The Advocate has had the best December in its history. We trust that January will be still better. Subscriber, do not wait, but send on your renewal at once. Preacher, begin your work at once. Money is easy now with the people. We are preparing for the biggest year yet for the "Old Raleigh."

The Raleigh Christian Advocate has the following in its "General Notes" column: "It will not do for Methodist editors to feed too much with fictional literature. One of the brethren ventured to refer to the 'Mill on the Floss,' and the linotype man, with practical views, made it 'The Mule on the Hoss.'"

We venture to suggest the retirement of any Methodist editor that doesn't know a "mule" from a "mill."—Alabama Christian Advocate.

We copy the above from the Alabama Advocate for a purpose; we have been trying for a week—at intervals—to analyze this last clause so as to eliminate the joke—for we suppose it must be a joke—but as yet without success. Surely we must have more of the English in our blood than we supposed. Anyway we feel much like the Cockney who wished to know distinctly, "What was the matter with the pie."—St. Louis Christian Advocate.

Do you know, Brother Woods, that the paragraph to which you refer has caused us a bothersment second only to that occasioned by "How old was Ann?" There must be in the paragraph some point too subtle and delicate for our gross perceptions. Let us hear from the Alabama.

Personals.

Bishop Morrison's address is 3915 St. Charles Avenue, New Orleans.

Rev. George A. Cook, of the New England Conference, has charged Dr. Borden P. Bowne, of Boston University, with heresy.

The Thomasville Church, Georgia, will assume the support of Dr. J. C. C. Newton, upon his return to the Japan Mission.

Rev. B. C. Thompson and family, who spent several weeks in Alamance County after Conference, returned to their home last week, stopping part of a day in Raleigh.

Rev. M. C. Thomas, who, with the exuberance of youth, disclaims the title, "Conference Patriarch," made us happy by a visit to our office last week.

Rev. G. G. Ragan, father of Rev. J. S. Ragan, of the Hot Springs Circuit, Western North Carolina Conference, died at his home in Kentucky November 29.

We deeply sympathize with Prof. and Mrs. O. W. Carr in the death of their youngest daughter Lucy, who died a few days ago at Old Trinity. She was a most estimable Christian young lady.

Miss Eva Booth, Canadian Commissioner, will succeed her sister, the late Mrs. Booth Tucker, in command of the Salvation Army in the United States.

Dr. and Mrs. Jno. R. Brooks will make their home in Louisburg during the winter. We are glad to know that the health of both is considerably improved.

Rev. W. B. Rankin, D. D., the efficient Superintendent of the American Bible Society in Texas, died at Washington College, East Tennessee, on December 15.

The St. Louis Christian Advocate, so ably edited by that ex-North Carolinian and alumnus of Trinity College, Dr. C. C. Woods, has entered upon its fifty-fourth year.

Mr. G. A. Dobbin, who had been so long the efficient District Passenger Agent of the Santa Fe Railroad, has become a member of the Massengale Advertising Agency.

Dr. C. W. Byrd, who had been on a visit to his mother in Harnett County, passed through Raleigh on last Monday en route to his home in Atlanta. He is doing fine work in one of the largest churches in Atlanta.

Rev. J. C. Ley has succeded Rev. L. W. Moore as editor of the Florida Christian Advocate. The paper will hereafter be published in Tallahassee. Our best wishes go with the retiring editor, and we extend the glad hand to Brother Ley.

We are requested by Bro. W. B. Cooper to announce that the Sunday-School Board will expect all applications to go in to him as Secretary before March 1st, as the distribution of the funds are to be made on that day. Let all interested heed this urgent request of Brother Cooper.

Dr. W. H. Moore preached at Edenton Street on last Sunday morning and at Central Church in the evening. He had just come from a family reunion, which must have been very enjoyable. We are sure that his poem in this week's issue of the Advocate will be very enjoyable to our readers.

HANDBOOK NOTICE.

By the time this meets the eye of the reader, the Handbook for 1904 will be ready for delivery unless something untoward happens. We weigh well our words when we say that the Handbook for 1904 will be the best we have yet issued. We feel that we have a right to feel a special pride in this issue and to expect that every Methodist who feels an interest in his church will order at once. Price 25 cents per copy. This notice will explain to the large number who have already ordered the Handbook why they have not received it.

North Carolina Methodism.

The post-office address of Rev. L. E. Sawyer is Farmville, N. C.

We have been cordially received here, salary raised, and tokens of appreciation. Send me a copy of the Handbook as soon as issued.—R. C. Craven.

We desire to have the post-office address of the following: Rev. J. C. Crisp, Rev. W. O. Davis, Rev. F. F. Eure, Rev. J. M. Marlowe, and Rev. C. O. Du Rant.

Rev. J. V. Williams announces that he will be ready after January 1st to engage in revival work in North Carolina. All brethren wishing to secure his help will write to him.

We had a fine reception here at Jonesboro last night. Many of the leading men and women came to welcome us, and had everything in readiness. Hope to have a good year here.—E. Pope.

We have begun our third year here with bright prospects for a good year. Our people have been exceedingly thoughtful of us during the holidays. My stewards are earnest men, and are planning for the success of the work more wisely than ever before.—G. B. Webster.

J. W. Jenkins, Superintendent of the Methodist Orphanage, at Raleigh, preached in the Methodist Church here Sunday. Rev. Mr. Jenkins is doing a good work for the Orphanage, and his visits here are always well pleasing to Weldon people. His sermons Sunday were excellent, and no one could have heard them without feeling that they had been benefited thereby.—Weldon News.

We are glad to say that a large number took advantage of our Christmas Gift Offer. A large number of beautifully engraved cards went out from this office a few days before Christmas, apprising certain ones that the "Old Raleigh" had been sent to them for one year by certain ones (names given). No more helpful, appropriate gift has been rendered by any one.

An interesting feature of the quarterly meeting at Lumberton Methodist Church last Monday was the discussion of the proposition to reduce Lumberton to a station and place another preacher as supply for the country churches. The question was submitted to the representatives from the country churches for them to decide for both sides, and after some discussion, which was of the most kindly nature, they decided not to make any change for the present. The people have already such appreciation of Rev. Z. Paris, the new preacher, that they do not want to consider any proposition that means for them to be deprived of his services among them. Our people are delighted with Presiding Elder Cole.—Lumberton Argus.

This morning at 8.30 o'clock, at the District parsonage on West Main Street, Rev. G. T. Adams, of New Bern, and Miss Mary Gibbs, daughter of Rev. J. T. Gibbs, of this city, were united in marriage. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Gibbs, father of the bride, assisted by Rev. Dr. E. A. Yates, and took place in the parlor of the parsonage. Mr. C. B. Adams, brother of the groom, was best man, while Miss Eunice Gibbs, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Miss Stella McCall presided at the piano and rendered several very appropriate selections. Mrs. J. E. Lea, of Atlanta, then sang a solo, which was followed by Miss McCall, who played the wedding march in a very impressive manner. The newly married couple left on the 10.25 S. A. L. train for Washington, and other prominent places, where they will spend some time before going to their home at New Bern. The groom is a young minister, who holds a charge at New Bern, and is greatly beloved by all who know him, while the bride is the daughter of Rev. Dr. J. T. Gibbs, Presiding Elder of the Durham District. She is a very charming young lady, and holds the confidence and esteem of all whom she comes in contact with.—Durham Sun.

General Notes.

The Salvation Army made preparations to feed 250,000 poor people in the United States on Christmas day.

On Sunday night a disastrous fire occurred in the North Carolina Texas Female College at Sherman, and the "Annie Nugent Hall," and the building known as "The Brick" are in ruins.

It is estimated that the Methodist Church property of the world amounts to $300,000,000. The followers of John Wesley now number over 28,000,000 ,of whom over 22,000,000 are in America.

Nashville, Tenn., is certainly a city of Southern Methodist preachers. In all, there are seventy-seven now living there, according to recent register published in the Midland Methodist.—Exchange.

There are twelve different Protestant denominations operating in Cuba, among which the Methodist, Baptist, and Presbyterian churches are leaders. The membership of all the churches is now reported to be 2,500.

Rev. Geo. D. Snyder, of Hagerstown, Md., financial agent of Catawba College, recently turned over to the Rev. J. L. Murphy, chairman of the board of trustees, $15,000,000 secured for the endowment of a chair of theology.

Rev. C. C. Thompson received a letter from Rev. J. Robt. Moose stating that Mrs. R. A. Hardie, wife of Dr. Hardie, one of the missionaries of the Methodist Church in Korea, was on her way to Lenoir to enter her daughters in Davenport College.—N. C. Christian Advocate.

The mayor and city attorney of Augusta, Ga., have been asked by the city council to decide whether raffling at a church fair is a violation of the State statutes against gambling. Raffling is a bad business, whether carried on by the church or State. It is nothing but the alphabet of gambling. We are surprised that we have in any of our churches people who conduct it in any form.

Rev. R. M. Hoyle, Presiding Elder of the Waynesville District, has resigned his charge on account of the health of himself and wife. Mr. Hoyle was formerly pastor of Forest Hill Methodist Church. Rev. C. F. Sherrill, pastor of the Shelby Church, has been appointed to succeed Mr. Hoyle, and Mr. Hoyle will be pastor of the Shelby Church.—Shelby Aurora.

The Progressive Farmer has been sold to a new company just organized, of which Mr. C. H. Poe is the largest stockholder. The Farmer will be enlarged and otherwise improved. Mr. Poe is editor and manager. Profs. B. W. Kilgore and C. W. Burkett are the agricultural editors. The Farmer, under the new regime, will be a great paper.

The Baltimore and Richmond Christian Advocate announces that the stock of Rev. Herbert M. Hope has been sold to Rev. James Cannon, of Blackstone, and J. Sidney Peters, of Hampton. By this purchase these gentlemen gain control of the paper and will assume management at once. Mr. Hope will retire, but Rev. Dr. Lafferty will remain as one of the editorial writers. The Methodist Recorder, which has been published at Blackstone by Mr. Cannon, will be combined with the Advocate. Mr. Hope is a trained newspaper man, and he did fine work for the Advocate. Mr. Cannon has also had valuable experience as editor, and he and Dr. Lafferty and Mr. Peters will doubtless keep the Advocate up to its former standard of excellence.—Richmond Dispatch.

The Southern Methodist Book Depository of Staunton, Va., advertises in this issue. The Depository was endorsed by the North Carolina Conference at its late session at Goldsboro, and is in every way worthy of the patronage of our people. We trust that our readers will look up the ad and remember the Depository when they want books.

Epworth League.

Topic for January 3, 1904.

The Lordship of Christ.

(Ps. ii. 6-12.)

Reference word, Lord. (Luke vi. 46; Acts x. 36; Rom. xiv. 9.)

The second Psalm doubtless was composed by David after he had taken Jerusalem from the Jebusites and made it the capital of his kingdom; whereupon the people of Syria, Phoenicia, and other countries, joining with the Philistines, sought to destroy David. The kings "took counsel together," and heathen peoples "raged" against David as the Lord's "anointed" and the representative of the worship of Jehovah. War was to be waged not only between opposing kings but also between opposing religions, between God and Baal. Trusting in the Lord, David overthrew all his enemies. (2 Sam. v. 7-9, 17, 19.)

The Psalm, however, has a higher meaning than as a song of triumph for victory in battle. David was a type of the Messiah, and he here prophetically sets forth the conflict between good and evil, right and wrong, Christ and Belial, and the final complete triumph of Christ.

A CONSPIRACY OF EVIL.

The rage of the heathen and the confederation of kings against David typify the enmity of wicked angels and men against Christ and his Church. Satan and his hosts, evil men, heathenism, our own sinful hearts and ways, are always in battle array against Christ and Christianity. The National Association of Liquor Dealers meets annually to devise shrewd and aggressive plans against the temperance movement. Gamblers and saloon keepers would destroy the Bible and turn churches into whisky shops if they dared. The conflict is fierce, but the result is sure, if all Christians are faithful: for our King shall finally destroy all who oppose his universal reign.

ENTHRONEMENT OF THE KING.

"I have set my King upon my holy hill of Zion." The Father issues a royal decree, announcing the enthronement of Christ. He states his purpose to make him King over all.

Nothing can permanently withstand the constantly increasing supremacy of Jesus. The Babylonian, Grecian, and Roman governments were called world empires, but the expression applies only to Christ's kingdom. He is the only King of kings and Lord of lords. How foolish to rebel against his sovereign and overwhelming authority!

THE ROYAL PROCLAMATION.

Christ, being enthroned, issues his inaugural address. He quotes from the imperial rescript of his Father: "I will declare the decree."

1. Authentication of sonship. "Thou art my Son: this day have I begotten thee." (Matt. iii. 17; Luke ix. 35; Heb. i. 2.)

2. Promise of world conquest. "I shall give thee the heathen . . . and the uttermost parts of the earth."

3. Destruction of all enemies. "Thou shalt break them, . . . dash them in pieces." Words cannot be stronger. God intends to make His Son king over all. Omnipotence is back of Christ. This decree invests him with universal supremacy which none can withstand. To oppose him is like an infant in the path of a locomotive, like a scientific observer pushing back an eruption of Vesuvius, like a sailor trying to hold the ocean in a storm. The destruction of those who resist the lordship of Christ shall be certain, complete, irreparable, as a potter's vessel dashed in pieces by an iron rod in Samsonian hands. (Luke xx. 18.)

ALLEGIANCE TO THE KING.

In view of Christ's lordship, and the unreasonableness, futility, and ruin of opposition, we are exhorted to make a loyal and loving surrender to his claims upon us.

1. This is the part of wisdom. "Be wise, . . . be instructed." Irreligion is folly. "The fool hath said . . . no God." (Ps. liii. 1.) It is no excuse to say that we did not know our duty to Christ as King. The Bible will make us "wise unto salvation," if we will only open our eyes to read. (2 Tim. iii. 15.)

2. Knowing duty, we should do it. "Serve the Lord." Knowledge leads to service. The sin of most is that, although they know God's will, they do it not, and shall receive sorer punishment, like the servant beaten with many stripes. (Luke xii. 47.)

3. Love should be the motive. "Kiss the Son." To kiss the Son means to render him loving homage, adoring allegiance. No earthly attachment should take the place of Christ in our hearts. We should lavish on him an inexhaustible wealth of affection. The grand passion of our hearts should be for Jesus, Lover of our souls.

"Thy only love do I require,
Nothing in earth beneath desire,
Nothing in heaven above;
Let earth, and heaven, and all things go,
Give me thy only love to know,
Give me thy only love."

The Cause of Crime Is Drink

"The great cause of social crime is drink. The great cause of poverty is drink. When I hear of a family broken up, I ask the cause—drink. If I go to the gallows, I ask its victim the cause, the answer—drink. Then I ask myself in perfect wonderment, why do not men put an end to this thing?"—Archbishop Ireland.

How They All Get Around

Lesson for January 10, 1904.

The Preaching of John the Baptist.

Matthew 3:1-12.

Golden Text. Repent ye: for the kingdom of heaven is at hand. Matt. 3:2.

This lesson brings us face to face with the man who by a rhetorical figure peculiarly appropriate to an Oriental land was known as the forerunner of Jesus. In Eastern lands, where the streets are narrow and tortuous, it is imperative for some one to run in advance of the governor or other high official who desires to make rapid progress in his carriage through the city. So it was needful that some one should precede the Messiah, preparing the hearts of the people for his reception.

The Elements of John's Preaching.—First and foremost in John's preaching was the call to repentance. Wherever there is sin, there is always need for repentance, and John the Baptist found sin abounding in all classes and grades of society in his day, as he would also find, if he were to return to the world today.

In immediate connection with the call to repentance John preached the immanence of the kingdom of heaven. This he urged as a pressing reason for repentance; for into that kingdom there is no admission except for those who have truly repented of their sins.

The kingdom of heaven as preached by John signified the Messianic kingdom introduced by our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. It was the kingdom which Jesus came to establish and of which he is the divine head.

John's preaching contained a note of warning, which made itself especially heard when the Pharisees and Sadducees came to hear him speak. Hypocrisy was utterly abhorrent to him and he did not fear to rebuke those in high places for their pride and self-righteousness.

John's preaching was wholesome and convincing. Multitudes were converted by his instrumentality, and yet he remained ever humble in spirit, declaring that he was not even worthy to bear the shoes of the Messiah who should follow him.

The Kind of Preaching Needed Today.—The question is often asked, what kind of preaching is needed today. By studying the preaching of John the Baptist we may find the answer to this question. We need the same kind of preaching now, as was exemplified in this servant of God, who will be ever remembered as a great preacher of righteousness.

The kind of preaching that is needed at the present day is the fearless proclamation of the truth as it is in Christ Jesus. Before such preaching, inspired by the Holy Spirit of God, the citadels of evil must inevitably fall.

NO PITY SHOWN.

"For years fate was after me contimously" writes F. A. Gulledge, Verbena, Ala. "I had a terrible case of Piles causing 24 tumors. When all failed Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured me. Equally good for Burns and all aches and pains. Only 25c. at all druggists.

Hadn't You Better Take a Sleep?

A farmer, about the time the temperance reform was beginning to exert a healthful influence, said to his newly-hired man:

"Jonathan, I did not think to mention to you when I hired you that I shall try to have my work done this year without rum. How much must I give you to do without?"

"Oh," said Jonathan, "I don't care much about it; you may give me what you please."

"Well," said the farmer, "I will give you a sheep in the fall if you will do without rum."

"Agreed."

"Father, will you give me a sheep, too, if I do without rum?" then asked the elder son.

"Yes, you shall have a sheep if you do without."

The youngest son then said: "Father, will you give me a sheep if I will do without?"

"Yes, Chandler, you shall have a sheep also."

A flower is not the same thing to a botanist as to a poet. Nor is a child the same thing to a physiologist as to a mother.—Joseph Parker.

MORPHINE

OPIUM, WHISKEY AND ALL DRUG HABITS

CURED WITHOUT PAIN AT YOUR HOME.

We Have a Private Sanatorium for Complicated Cases.

If you are addicted to these habits you think you will quit it, but you won't, you can't unaided, but you can be cured and restored to your former health and vigor without pain or the loss of an hour from your business at a moderate cost. The medicine builds up your health, restores your nervous system to its normal condition; you feel like a different person from the beginning of treatment LEAVING OFF OPIATES AFTER THE FIRST DOSE. You will soon be convinced and fully satisfied in your own mind that you will be cured.

Mr. T. M. Brown, of Dequeen, Ark., says: "Over seven years ago I was cured of the opium habit by your medicine, and have continued in the very best of health since."

Dr. W. M. Tunstall, of Lovingston, Va., says: "I am glad to say that I firmly believe that I am entirely and permanently cured of the Drink Habit, as I have never even so much as wanted a drink in ony form since I took your eradicator, now eighteen months ago. It was the best dollars I ever invested."

Mrs. Virginia Townsend, of Shreveport, La., writes: "No more opium. I have taken no other remedy than yours, and I make no mistake when I say that my health is better now than it ever was in my life, and I owe it to you and your remedy. It has been twelve years since I was cured by your treatment."

Washington, N. C.

At Weldon, we were rained out, and at Washington, we were frozen out. Small congregations. But we had our three talks. Our good friends, Bro. E. B. Moore, gave us lodging here in his elegant new home. Brother Thompson is in high favor with his people.

Weldon.

The third Sunday in December was spent in Weldon. We were among our friends. But the rain-compelling clouds were against us. It is proposed that we go in a dry spell the next time, as we seem to carry rain with us. We talked three times to small but appreciative audiences. It was really a treat to lodge where so many weary itinerants have lodged—at Sister Wilkin's boarding-house.

Christmas at the Orphanage.

Christmas is growing on us at the Orphanage. The last was a protracted one. Sister Proctor and her helping class opened it Thursday evening with a Christmas tree. There was mutual enjoyment. They were happy in giving and the children were happy in receiving.

Santa Claus came Thursday night and filled thirty-one stockings hung on thirty-one nails in a frame made by the boys for that purpose. Christmas day, Mr. and Mrs. Josephus Daniels came out with the little boys and played Santa Claus by distributing little sacks of good things to us all in the name of the boys.

The matron gave us a bountiful Christmas dinner, and the good things poured in from every direction. It ran clear up to New Year's day. Such a time we never had before.

The Baptist Orphanage.

The Committee on Orphanage made the finest report in the history of the Orphanage. The General Manager, Rev. J. B. Boone, reported that the plant had increased from $25,000 to $150,000, in the last eight years, or at the rate of $15,625 per year. Taking the Dennis Simmons' bequest of $78,000 out, it will be $47,000 increase in a natural way, or nearly $6,000 per annum above the large sum spent in current expenses, in supporting the Orphanage. So the Baptists of North Carolina pay about twice as much to support that institution as they do to Foreign Missions. Rev. Mr. Boone reports further, that these buildings have been put up by the liberality of individuals without drawing a dollar from the general collections.

He also reports that several buildings will go up during the next year. That ten or twelve buildings have been promised, or are provided for, within the next five years, or earlier.

There are three hundred children there now. In less than five years, they will have five hundred. Twenty-five thousand dollars was raised this year.

God speed them in this great work. When will our rich Methodists take the work fully to heart? Who will be the first to put us up a cottage here to perpetuate his own name, or the name of a beloved wife, now in glory. Judge Howard has immortalized his, by building a $4,000 cottage at Barium Springs.

Our people will see it after awhile. Speak out, beloved. The ground is waiting.

Washington, N. C.

At Weldon, we were rained out, and at Washington, we were frozen out. Small congregations. But we had our three talks. Our good friends, Bro. E. B. Moore, gave us lodging here in his elegant new home. Brother Thompson is in high favor with his people.

Weldon.

The third Sunday in December was spent in Weldom. We were among our friends. But the rain-compelling clouds were against us. It is proposed that we go in a dry spell the next time, as we seem to carry rain with us. We talked three times to small but appreciative audiences. It was really a treat to lodge where so many weary itinerants have lodged—at Sister Wilkin's boarding-house.

Christmas at the Orphanage.

Christmas is growing on us at the Orphanage. The last was a protracted one. Sister Proctor and her helping class opened it Thursday evening with a Christmas tree. There was mutual enjoyment. They were happy in giving and the children were happy in receiving.

Santa Claus came Thursday night and filled thirty-one stockings hung on thirty-one nails in a frame made by the boys for that purpose. Christmas day, Mr. and Mrs. Josephus Daniels came out with the little boys and played Santa Claus by distributing little sacks of good things to us all in the name of the boys.

The matron gave us a bountiful Christmas dinner, and the good things poured in from every direction. It ran clear up to New Year's day. Such a time we never had before.

JOHNSON.—The subject of this sketch, William Burgess Johnson, son of Geo. W., and Alice A. Johnson, was born near Margarettsville, N. C., March 10, 1884, and died September 16, 1903, and was, therefore, 19 years, 6 months, and 6 days of age. He joined the Methodist Church, at Sharon, under the ministry of Rev. Phillip Greening, in August, 1896, and remained faithful to the end.

Willie, as he was familiarly called, was a noble young man. His devotion to his parents, and all the loved ones at home, was beautiful. His father and mother had hoped for him a devoted service in the church they loved so well, and he was just beginning to encourage them that they had not hoped in vain; but the work so well begun must cease ere they could realize that God wanted him in heaven. Only a few years ago a sister and a brother, both nearly grown, were taken from this home within a few days of each other. It was hard for the parents to give them up; they could not understand then; they cannot understand now, but they are satisfied that they "shall know hereafter." That they may all meet as a united family in the great family above, is the prayer of the pastor.

W. C. MERRITT.

HINSLEY.—Joseph Alfred Hinsley, little son of C. F. and Cara A. Hinsley, was born April 19, 1898, and died, after a short illness of two days, December 11, 1903, aged 5 years, 7 months and 22 days.

He was a bright, obedient and an affectionate child. Jesus said, "Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not; for of such is the kingdom of God." We sorrow not as those that have no hope, but know in heaven we will soon meet little Joseph in our Father's house, for Jesus says, "I go to prepare a place for you." Let me say to the bereaved ones, grieve not, but lean on the everlasting arms of Jesus and quietly listen while He speaks words of comfort and cheer to your troubled hearts.

"Oh! there at last, life's trials past,
We'll meet our loved ones more,
Whose feet have trod the path of God—
Not lost but gone before."

B. COLE.

BALDWIN.—Lucian Fisk Baldwin was born in Chatham County, N. C., January 22, 1840, and died September 19, 1903. He was converted in his boyhood and joined Mount Pleasant Methodist Church, where he remained a devoted member until his death. He was prepared for college under the instruction of William Bingham and afterwards attended the State University. He was a member of Company D, Orange Light Infantry, First Regiment N. C. Volunteers, and was in the first regular engagement of the war between the States, known as Big Bethel, near Yorktown, Va., June 10, 1861. For a number of years he held the position of public administrator of Chatham County, having resigned the same when his health began to fail. He was married to Miss Julia F. Bynum, September 2, 1863. Six children, three sons and three daughters, with their mother, survive him.

He possessed a naturally bright mind, and was fond of reading. Scott being one of his favorite authors. A superb type of common sense blended with sparkling wit and humor and with a generous and kind spirit. Ever scorning the mean and ignoble, his life was an exponent of frank, liberal and honest principles. The name of "Doc" Baldwin will thus be ever associated with the patriotic citizen, the humble Christian, the true friend and neighbor, and the affectionate husband and father.

As in the years of manly vigor he had bravely fought life's battles, so in the closing period of physical infirmity his Christian courage was shown in the grace of enduring affliction; and his faith, in patiently waiting for the crowning day. He said that all was well with him, and prayed: "Not my will but Thine be done." He talked much of those things that are above, as the scenes of earth receded and as the scenes of heaven opened and brightened before his vision. He talked of soon seeing his departed loved ones, and of meeting bye and bye those left behind. During the closing hours he called by name his sainted and departed father, and also one of his little children who had preceded him to heaven; and spoke of each of the living children, adding that he wanted them to be good. Like a veteran soldier, he said the separation was not to be long, and that the family reunion in heaven would be so sweet. To his devoted companion he said: "I can't come to you but you can come to me." Having thus bidden farewell to his loved ones on the shore of time, he steered out upon the open sea where he "crossed the bar," and joyfully "met his Pilot face to face."

In the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends, his body was peacefully laid to rest in the cemetery of Mount Pleasant Church to await the resurrection morn. Hail, noble brother and friend. We expect to greet thee amid yon hills of glorious light!

S. B. TURRENTINE.

POWELL.—Caroline G. Powell, widow of the late John B. Powell, of Warren County, N. C., was born April 8, 1827, and died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Jere Draper, in Warrenton, N. C., November 12, 1903, aged 76 years, 7 months, and 4 days.

She professed faith in Christ in the morning of life and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in which church she was a faithful member for more than fifty years. In December, 1846, she was happily married to John B. Powell, and this union was blessed with 9 children, one of whom with the husband and father passed to their reward a few years ago. Sister Powell was a kind and considerate companion, a devoted and tender mother, a true and hepful friend and a faithful Christian.

This is a brief outline of her long and beautiful life, which closed in peace. She was faithful unto death, and the promised crown is hers. Her last years were spent under the hand of affliction, which she bore with patience and resignation. She possessed a well balanced mind; her individuality was expressed in ways peculiar to herself. Her life was one of beautiful service. She was not willing to enjoy alone the blessings with which God had blessed her. She helped others by sharing with them those things with which God had blessed her, by words fitly spoken, by deeds of love and mercy when she saw a soul in need, and by a womanly tenderness in the presence of a heart that was sick and sore.

Sister Powell was unassuming and retiring in disposition, it is yet, however, of her kind that the rank and file of the Lord's hosts are made up.

Be it enough that her name is written in the book of life and not heralded far and wide on earth. They are silent influences that are so potential in making the best life of our country and church. The tender mother with this purity of the snowflake and righteousness of heart toward God never really dies in influence in this world. The children's heritage is rich. She was carried to her last resting place in a quiet country graveyard followed by a long train of sorrowing relatives and friends where the funeral services were conducted by the writer, after which she was quietly laid away in the silent grave to rest until God shall call her hence. May the benedictions of heaven rest upon the sorrowing ones.

is Vernal Saw Palmetto Berry Wine. It is not merely a relief. It permanently cures any kind of a case of constipation, no matter of how long standing. It is not a purgative nor an irritant cathartic. These simply lash and hurt the bowels, and bring but temporary relief. The condition left behind is worse than the first. Vernal Saw Palmetto Berry Wine does just the opposite. It is a tonic laxative of the highest order. It tones, strengthens and gives new life and vigor to the bowels. Only one small dose a day removes all the causes of the trouble, and leaves the bowels well and able to move themselves without the aid of medicines. It cures dyspepsia, kidney and liver troubles, indigestion, headaches, catarrh of the stomach, and all other diseases and conditions growing out of a clogged condition of the system. Try it free. A sample bottle for the asking. Vernal Remedy Co., 85 Seneca Bldg., Buffalo, N. Y.

Resolutions of Respect.

Whereas, God in His unerring providence, has severed from our midst, by death, our dear sister, Maggie Cahoon, and feeling sensibly her loss as a member of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society; therefore, be it Resolved 1. That in the death of Maggie we realize that our Society has lost a faithful member and constant attendant.

2. That we deeply deplore our loss because she was ever ready and willing to extend efficient aid to promote the interest of the Society.

3. That while our hearts are wrung with anguish because of the void which her vacant chair leaves in our circle, yet, we rejoice that she occupies a glorious seat in the Celestial City, where she rests from her labors.

4. That this beautiful light, which only set to rise upon a fairer, left behind it a glow which will continue to shine in the heart of our Union forever.

5. That the "vanished hand" and "still voice" will beckon and call us to a more valiant fight and a closer walk with God.

6. That we bow in humble submission to the will of Him who doeth all things well. And while we indulge our sorrow and labor under a burden of loss, we can still look beyond the veil and realize afresh our assurance in the realities of heaven.

7. That the portal to the Celestial City is very near, and the entering in is only a step and the possessions abundant.

And while her life was not without its beauties, having accepted the atonement at an early age, she sought a home in the church and walked consistently therein until death.

8. That we extend to the heart-broken family our sincere sympathy in this sad bereavement, and commend to him who has said, "My grace shall be sufficient for you."

9. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family of our deceased sister, and one to the Raleigh Christian Advocate for publication.

BRUTALLY TORTURED.

A case came to light that for persistent and unmerciful torture has perhaps never been equaled. Joe Golobiek of Colusa, Calif., writes: "For 15 years I endured insufferable pain from Rheumatism and nothing relieved me though I tried everything known. I came across Electric Bitters and it's the greatest medicine on earth for that trouble. A few bottles of it completely relieved and cured me." Just as good for Liver and Kidney troubles and general debility. Only 50c. Satisfaction guaranteed by all druggists.

A FINE INVESTMENT.

In this issue of the Raleigh Christian Advocate is published an advertisement of the Florence Wagon Works offering $70,000 in new stock at par. The idea of the company is not only to supply a larger operating capital but to distribute its stock as widely as possible throughout the South with a view to securing the co-operation of widely separated stockholders in pushing the interest of the Florence light running wagon. This stock is perfectly safe and is worth much more than par. The average dividend for five years has been 15 per cent, besides placing excess profits to surplus account. As it is next to the largest enterprise of its kind in the South and is in charge of competent and able business men, the investment is a particularly attractive one. See ad. in this paper.

AN OPPORTUNITY FOR CAPABLE MEN.

A man's business is to a great extent his education, and for diversity of experience, for insight into human nature, and for learning how to influence and handle men, there is no business equal to that of soliciting life insurance. And there is no business which commands more liberal compensation or affords better opportunities for advancement and promotion. This is the time for making contracts for the new year. The Southern Loan and Trust Co., of Greensboro, N. C., will employ on liberal terms capable men of character to sell its "Trust Bond" life policies in North Carolina. Men of experience who can furnish satisfactory evidence of ability to produce business will be employed on a salary with further compensation contingent on the business done. The company has a surplus to policyholders of $210,000, issues a full line of contracts as liberal as any that are issued. If you are interested, address A. W. McAlister, Manager of Insurance Department, Greensboro, N. C.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

The Southern Railway announces effective November 29th, the present Greensboro and Goldsboro sleeping car line will be shortened and made a Raleigh and Greensboro line; these cars will be handled as at present, on trains Nos. 111 and 112.

These cars will be opened at Raleigh and Greensboro for the reception of passengers at 9.00 p. m., and passengers will be allowed to remain in cars at these points until 7.00 a. m.

A Notice to the Brethren.

Lenoir, N. C., Dec. 21, 1903.
Dear Brother Ivey:

I had the pleasure of being with and assisting Brothers Snipes and Bradshaw last year in their protracted meetings and enjoyed it very much. I shall be glad to assist any brother in the North Carolina Conference during the year, receiving as compensation, a voluntary contribution by the people attending. May this year of toil among you witness marvelous displays of God's saving and sanctifying power!

Yours in His service,
D. H. COMANN.

The Mid-Year Meeting of the Board of Missions is to be held in Rocky Mount, January 26-28.

The meeting will begin on Tuesday afternoon and close Thursday morning. It is earnestly hoped to have a full attendance of Presiding Elders, District Secretaries, members of the Board, and others specially interested in our missionary work.

A Golden Wedding.

It is nothing but natural that we should feel a deep interest in Dr. and Mrs. S. Lander, our dearly beloved teachers of the long ago. But we feel sure that there are many in North Carolina who will read with deep interest the following account of the golden wedding of this couple taken from the Southern Christian Advocate:

"The Williamston News of last week contained an account of the Golden Wedding of Dr. and Mrs. Lander, celebrated at their home in Williamston, December 21, 1903. The following, written by Mr. R. Brooks Goodgion will be of interest to the many friends of Dr. and Mrs. Lander: 'Many guests were present and the hum of social intercourse, interspersed with wit and humor, could be heard on every hand, as youth and old age conspired in celebrating this happy event. The decorations in the reception and refreshment rooms were simple but very pretty and appropriate to the occasion. In the parlor radiating from the center of the ceiling to each corner of the room there were graceful festoons in white, spangled with golden stars, designed by the bride's own hands. Curtains of the same design draped the windows, and banked at the top of each was a mass of green, with a sheaf of golden grain to brighten its beauty. Over the mantle were the dates 1853 and 1903 made of gold and encircled with green wreaths. Masses of ferns and pot plants completed the artistic effect in this room where the bride and groom received their friends. The refreshment room was in charge of the Misses Lander of the third generation, becomingly attired in yellow.

A look at the presents was bewildering. It would require one of the gentle sex to describe the scores and scores of handsome presents sent by loving hands from far and near. From far-away China came an elegant piece of embroidery with the following inscription:

"A souvenir from far Cathay, with the abiding love and gratitude of a 'daughter' who treasures as golden every day spent under your influence."

(Signed) JOHNNIE SANDERS.

The only person present at the golden wedding who witnessed the marriage was Mrs. Templeton, who came four hundred miles to participate in this celebration, again being by her sister's side as she received her friends.

Our town wishes the bride and groom a continued honey moon for many days to come and assures them that their stay here has been an inspiration and a benediction to our people.

Dr. and Mrs. Lander, both children of Methodist parents, are blessed in seeing the second and third generation of their descendants each with a representative in the ministry—Dr. John M. Lander, an honored member of the Southern Methodist Conference in Brazil and Rev. Norman L. Prince, now pursuing a course of study in Vanderbilt University. The best legacy that can be left to descendants is the record of a life well spent, and we are sure that the children of Dr. and Mrs. Lander will ever have before them such a legacy as a continual inspiration to all that is good and pure and noble."

GENTLEMEN:—This is to certify that I have used "Cercalite" for a number of years and have sold it for the past three years and I, myself find it to be equal to, if not better, in many respects, than Nitrate Soda. My best customers are anxious to use it again this year. On my own crops I used it on wheat, oats and cotton, and for every dollar I invested in "Cercalite" I am sure it paid me $2.50. I prefer "Cercalite" as a top-dressing to Nitrate Soda, even if the goods were the same price. Splendid for Oats and Grain.

THE WORLD AS WE SEE IT.

It is useless to call upon the anonymous Durham correspondent of the Boston Transcript (a correspondent, who, we believe, does not live in Durham) to come out in a brave manly way and give his name to the public. It is useless for the reason that no brave manly man will ever write slanderous things of Methodist preachers. Much less will he write such things anonymously. Much less will he divulge his name after having written. No, it may as well be set down that the slandering correspondent will never respond to an appeal in behalf of open courage and high manliness. He is by all tokens an utter stranger to such feelings.

The Panama Canal question is sure to be a vital question in the rapidly approaching Presidential campaign. One party thinks that it can see in the question the unmistakable dissolution of the other party. Mr. Roosevelt has undoubtedly strengthened himself and his party by his able message of last week to the Congress. This message has been viciously attacked. It has also received the warmest commendation. As for our part we cannot see that the United States could have acted in any other way in its relations to the new republic, Colombia, which had the chance of its life, has lost it. This little country simply played the part of the dog which in crossing a stream with meat in its mouth, lost the meat in grabbing for that which it thought it saw in the water. It is strange that even now there is an effort by some in behalf of the Nicaraguan route. But we have become accustomed to strange things in the political world.

The death last week of Generals A. B. Longstreet and John B. Gordon has revived in the minds of thousands of Southern people the memories of forty years ago. Both men were prominent actors in the great civil struggle of the early sixties. General Longstreet, while one of the ablest soldiers of the South, was unsuccessful in maintaining that popularity with his own people which must always be regarded as one of the richest gifts of any people. General Gordon was a great fighter. As a Christian citizen after the war he embalmed himself in the hearts of his people. There was something pathetic in the last moments of his sojourn on earth. His mind wandered and he imagined that he was again leading his men on the battle-fields of Virginia. When so weak that he could hardly whisper, he said, "I hope General Lee wont surrender. I can cut my way through the force in front." We lay them gently to rest—these old soldiers of the South. They have passed from life's stormy drama into the great stillness. Let them rest there and in the chastened memories of succeeding generations in the land for which they fought.

The Grand Lodge of North Carolina Masons convened in its one hundred and sixteenth annual communication in the city of Raleigh on yesterday. There are several facts in connection with this communication which should cause all Masons to feel joyful. (1) The statistics will show that there has been a net gain of 2,000 members during the year. (2) The prospects for the early beginning and speedy completion of the Masonic Temple are very bright. The Temple will cost $125,000, and will be the handsomest building in the State. Its annual income of over $15,000 will be devoted to benevolent objects. We congratulate the Grand Lodge on the success of its plans, its healthy growth, and its general prosperity.

About the funniest thing we have heard about Elijah the Restorer is that while in Texas a few days ago he attended the opening of a new hotel and was shocked into pious fulminations against the lavish silver service on the table and the roasted pig. Yet the feeling of mirth is ever ready to explode into fragments of good honest indignation when we hear this of the man who rides in his own palace car to New York City while his deluded followers doze in cramped seats. It is said that Elijah the Restorer will soon embark for Australia. Let no one say him nay. Let him go, and our earnest hope is that he may conclude to locate his Zion on some far off island of the Pacific where he may spend the rest of his days, if unfortunately, he escape those prison bars in Australia. Let no one here who loves his country place one obstacle in the way of Elijah the Embarker.

The Advocate has had little to say lately about the trouble between Russia and Japan. One of the most unsatisfactory things in newspaperdom is the typical report of the gathering of war clouds in Eastern skies. For instance, what can be gained from such a see-saw as this? It is practically seen every day: "Berlin, Jan. 1.—It is now conceded by the representatives of every Power that war between Japan and Russia is not only a probability but a certainty and a necessity." St. Petersburg, Jan. 1.—"Russia thinks that there are no reasons why the relations between herself and Japan should be considered in the least strained." Paris, Jan. 2.—"Russia is mobilizing her troops preparatory to moving on Port Arthur, and certain diplomatic representatives say that war has actually begun." Tokio, Jan. 3.—"Minister Kemura says that the points of difference between Japan and Russia have been unduly magnified and that the prospects for peace which has never really been endangered are growing brighter daily." Cologne, Jan. 3.—"War, war, war. It has at last come." Washington, Jan. 3.—"A peaceful settlement of the vexed Eastern question is already a fixity. Japan and Russia are really on the best of terms." The foregoing dispatches, while manufactured, really represent what the public is treated to every day. It is no wonder that the head of the public is in a somewhat dazed condition. As we have said, the Advocate has had little to say on the question. We do not know anything to say, only that we will never believe that there is war between Japan and Russia until it is officially declared.

Ruth Cleveland is a household word throughout this Republic. Fifteen years ago when it was announced that a little stranger had visited the White House and that its name was Ruth, the heart gate of sixty million people flew open to make a place for the first child born in the White House. The eyes of a great people followed the course of Ruth as she climbed the daisied slopes of childhood. Not much was said, but much was felt. So when it was announced a few days ago that the white ribbons were fluttering from the door knob of the Cleveland mansion at Princeton to tell the world that the feet of Ruth had grown tired of earthly ramblings and had passed through the gates of Asphodel, a huge wave of sorrow for the dead and sympathy for the living swept the great American heart as a storm-born gust sweeps the June wheat-fields. Only a little girl with her hopes and ambitions and dreams, but she is one of the great unnumbered who will long be remembered.

The one inevitable eternal truth that in shade and shine will knock at the gate of human consciousness is that the sacrifice of life's picket lines is the price of the rearguard's victory. With what ghastly emphasis truth is emphasized in the late Chicago horror! If that foolish woman had not cried fire, if that congested mass of pallid, panting, fighting, dying men and women and children had not piled up against those obdurate doorways—all to make a Dantesque horror to blanch the faces and sicken the heart of the living when the very New Year bells were getting ready to peal—what then? Why, during the succeeding years the columns of newspapers, perhaps, would have contained the details of miniature catastrophes in defective buildings—but all going to make up a horrible total. But death overreached itself in Chicago. A reform looking to the protection of public buildings is sweeping over the land in all the madness of a revolution. It is reaching every hamlet in the land. This reform means the cheating of death in thousands upon thousands of cases. A great victory for human life. But the ghastly tragedy in Chicago was the price of that victory.

The last rural free delivery mail route established in this State went into effect December 16th, and made the total 446.

It turns out that Governor Aycock pardoned only eighty criminals last year; nineteen less than were pardoned by the Governor ten years ago.

Art Thou my Father? Let me rest,
For Thou dost order what is best:
And whatsoe'er is dark or bright,
Thou only doest all things right.

Art Thou my Father? All I need
Is needed for my wandering feet;
O let me not from duty stray;
But guard and guide me every day.

Art Thou my Father? Soul, look up.
And if there comes one bitter cup
In all thy sweet, O it was given
To lead thee on to Christ and heaven!

Thou art my Father! At the last,
When all earth's joy and gloom is past,
Thy voice will call, "No longer roam,
But come, my weary child, come home!"

OUR MID-YEAR MEETING.

As announced in the report of the Board of Missions at our last Conference, the mid-year missionary meeting this year will be held in Rocky Mount, beginning Tuesday, January 26th, at 3 p. m. All the members of the Board, the Presiding Elders and the District Missionary Secretaries are expected to be present and take part in the meeting. Others who would like to attend will be welcome, but entertainment will be provided only for those who notify Rev. W. S. Rone one week beforehand of their intention to attend. Let every one be present at the opening session and remain till the close. The following is the program, in part, that will be followed:

Tuesday Afternoon.—Opening exercises, special prayer being offered for the presence of the Holy Spirit. "The Object of the Meeting," by the President of the Board, Rev. R. F. Bumpas. Appointment of Committee on Resolutions. "What we have accomplished, and what we hope to accomplish," by the Conference Secretary.

Tuesday Evening.—Missionary Sermon, by Rev. J. D. Bundy.

Wednesday Morning.—"The Presiding Elder and Missions," (20 min.), by Rev. J. E. Underwood. "How Collections Were Secured in Full in My District Last Year," by Revs. W. S. Rone and R. B. John. "Why We Failed to Secure Collections in Full Last Year," by other Presiding Elders present. "The Missionary Institute," general discussion.

Wednesday Afternoon.—"Our Domestic Missions," by Rev. A. McCullen. Informal consideration of the following questions: (1) Are we justified in making appropriations "to the man" rather than "to the mission"? (2) Is it wise to make appropriations to charges able, but not liberal enough, to support themselves? (3) How may the Board encourage missions to become self-sustaining? (4) How may the Board prevent the appointment of inefficient men to our mission fields?

Wednesday Evening.—Missionary address.

Thursday Morning.—The District Missionary Secretary: (1) His relation to the Presiding Elder. (2) His relation to the pastors. (3) How may he reach the Sunday-schools? (4) How may he reach the Epworth Leagues? Suggestions as to the work of the Conference Secretary. Report of the Commitee on Resolutions. Adjournment.

BURDENED WITH RESPONSIBILITY.

Unless a minister have upon him some measure of a burden of responsibility in declaring the gospel he is not likely to make a fruitful impression upon his hearers. Besides, such an one has reason to think that God never called him to preach. No man should enter the ministry without regarding it as being a most serious duty to stand before people in God's name and declare to them truths of the gravest character. Let it be understood by both preacher and people that there is nothing more solemn, more weighty, more awful in its issues, than is the position of one who occupies the office of an ambassador of God in behalf of sinful human beings. Here is what Mr. Baxter of Kidermister, the great preacher, said: "I wonder at myself that I do not tremble as one who looks for the great day when he must give an account unto God. I wonder that I can think of anything else, that I can preach so calmly, that I can let men alone in their sins, that I do not go and beseech them to be reconciled to God. I rarely come out of my pulpit that I do not say, 'How couldst thou speak of life and death with such a heart; how couldst thou preach of heaven and hell in such a careless manner? Art thou in earnest, or art thou jesting? Shouldst thou not weep over such a people?'" This is an example of a minister who was profoundly burdened with the responsibility of his high calling. He kept his eyes on God, as one to whom he owed the utmost fidelity; and he also had his mind upon the perilous condition of the unsaved ones around him, and of the immediate necessity of their being rescued from eternal doom. It is not surprising that he often felt that he was less fervent in his zeal than he ought to be, for he held before him a very high ideal. The most earnest ministers, by the very nature and force of their earnestness, are dissatisfied with their efforts. And what a very great difference there is between such a man as Mr. Baxter and many ministers in these days who tamely deliver sermons which consist in pleasant views of human nature and the final destiny of unsaved people! The latter act as though they believe that God is too tender and patient to ever be angry with sinners. O preacher, why are you occupying the office of God's ambassador? How can you continue unburdened in relation to perishing people?

CHRISTMAS AT RIVERDALE CHURCH, CARTERET CIRCUIT.

The entertainment on Saturday night which was postponed from Christmas night owing to the inclement weather.

The subject of entertainment:

Glad Tidings, recitations by children; "Christmas," by Sadie Wood; "Peace On Earth," by Carrie Hardison; "Christmas Morn," by Julia Hardison. These three girls did very well their part.

The next on the program was recitations by the primary class. I don't remember their subjects, but they did credit to their class.

"Of All Days This is the Shortest," by Miss Maggie Williams, and "Christmas Day," by Miss Mamie Biggs, were well done.

"Billy's Christmas Rose," by Miss Lillie Hasslett, came last—and like the other recitations was very appropriate and impressive. Her recitation would do credit to a much larger occasion than ours at Riverdale.

The decorations were of a unique character, well arranged, showing good taste and much skill on the part of the ladies, who always do things well when not bothered too much by the men.

There were two Christmas trees—one on either side of the altar—laden with beautiful handkerchiefs for the children, with class-pins and the number of the different classes on each pin; also a nice little Christmas card with each. Each tree was called "The Handkerchief Tree." From each tree a beautiful arch was formed, under which the children stood while reciting. The music was rendered by Miss Carrie P. Hardison, of Thurman, N. C. She performed her part exceedingly well. Sister Carrie is a good worker, both in church and Sabbath-school, at Riverdale, and is building for herself "monumentum aere perennium."

A solo, "O Wonderful Babe," by Miss Laura Conner, was splendid. A duet, "Beautiful Songs," by Misses Sadie and Jamie Conner, was fine. The primary class song, "The Sweet Story," was the most impressive and interesting music of the occasion. Santa Claus came in with a bag of fine apples. He was not prepossessing in looks, but he was kind—gave me an extra apple.

Bro. G. L. Hardison is the Superintendent of our Sunday-school. He deserves much praise. He is "Suaviter in modo, fortiter in re."

THE YEAR'S RESOLVES.

"I don't know how many times I have smiled at the futility of making good resolutions at the New Year," said a woman, opening a fresh diary, on the clean pages of which she expected to write a record from day to day. "Yet," she added, "I go on doing it just the same."

"And do you not keep them?" said her friend.

"Well, yes, for a little while, but the novelty wears off and I slip back into the old worn grooves. For example, I am very impulsive and impetuous, and am apt to speak hastily and with too much heat and vehemence. I greatly admire poise and serenity and a calm composed demeanor. So, when I say 'A Happy New Year' to my family, I am inwardly determined that I will do my best to make it so. I dislike my tendency to exaggeration and fussing, to pressing my own way on other people. I start in January trying to imitate some very quiet and controlled person, trying to be soft-voiced and lovely, but before February comes, I forget all about it. I am just my old boisterous, clamorous self underneath, and my old, eager impatient self outside."

"I am not sure," said the friend, "that your resolves are in the line the Lord approves of. When He makes a pansy, he does not want it to be a chrysanthemum, and He does not require the eagle to be a dove. Each after its kind is His rule. He gave you the swift, impulsive disposition, the readiness in action, the rush and stir that belong to you, as a personality. Of you, He asks the consecration of what you have, not of what you have not. Isn't there too much imitation on our part of others, and maybe not enough acceptance of ourselves as His workmanship? I do think it right to make good resolutions, but I think the better way is to ask for—

"'The daily strength
To none that ask denied.'

Just to take each moment as it comes, a gift from our dear Lord's hand, and to take each sin and blunder and blemish as they come, and beg His pardon, and then to go on, is the wiser way. If de do resolve, should we not do so with God's help?"

The friend stopped talking. She had been a learner in God's school, taught by the discipline of sorrow. The lady to whom she spoke made a record in her new diary. It was—"F— has been a great help to me. She brought me a message from the King. I shall try, with His blessing, to serve Him well this year, day by day, being myself and not another, and humbly trying to do His will.

"'Content to fill a little place
If he be glorified.'"

PROGRAM OF THE MID-YEAR MEETING.

The program of the mid-year meeting of the Board of Missions to be held in Rocky Mount, January 27-29, outlined in this issue of the Advocate by our efficient Secretary, is tentative and suggestive rather than complete and final.

The subjects presented will be discussed, and others looking to the progress and development of our missionary work and spirit. The discussions will be informal and general, and all attending will be expected to take part.

The meeting is called that we may confer together about our missionary work, and secure the best possible methods for its advancement.

We hope to have some representative of the General Board with us.

Japan, it is declared, is about to send a large military force to Korea, for the purpose of maintaining order at the disturbed port.

LETTER FROM ALABAMA.

E. A. WRIGHT.

To "the land beyond the mountains," as it is styled by the press of this city, on the 18th of December, 1903, I took my departure, destined for Childersburg, a town of that "Land," where is located the parsonage of the circuit called the "Childersburg," and to this point, after a ride by rail of forty miles, I arrived about 6 o'clock p. m., leaving this city at 4 o'clock p. m. Here finding myself "in darkness thick enough almost to be felt," I "hobbled" on my crutches for a distance of over one half a mile to the parsonage, where I found the newly appointed pastor, Rev. James Williams, with his family of six motherless children nicely housed in their new home, to which he and they had come just one week prior to my arrival, and was given by them an "open-handed and warm-hearted welcome." He, Bro. Williams, had not been in his new home long enough to have everything in "ship shape for the entertainment of a visitor, but such as he had on hand in provisions and bedding he with "all hospitality" divided with his weary, crippled brother. Next morning I was met in the town by a good sister who happened to come to town that morning with her little six-year-old boy, and was offered a seat with them in her buggy, of which I accepted, and went with her to her home in "Cahatchie Valley," near Rocky Mount M. E. Church, a church on Childersburg circuit, about eight miles out from Childersburg. This sister was Mrs. George Bice. Here I was met the next morning by Bro. Williams, the pastor at the church, and Bro. Williams preached to the people present his first sermon at this church of the Conference year. He preached in the morning and I preached at night to a small but appreciative congregation. This was owing to the inclemency of the weather and the near approach of Christmas. In this neighborhood I remained visiting among the brethren until the following Wednesday. On that day I was taken by Bro. L. C. Bost in his buggy to Bro. D. S. Bryant's, where I spent the night. Thursday morning I was taken by Bro. Bryant back to Childersburg, and from thence to "Center Hill" to the residence of Bro. JJasper Bush, where I remained until the following Sunday.

On Sunday (the fourth Sunday of December) I preached two sermons, one in the morning and the other at night, at the public school-house, to small but appreciative audiences. In the morning I used the text found in Col. 1-2, and at night from the text found in the first epistle general of John 11: 8. The congregations were highly delighted, and gavve me a hearty invitation to come again and to preach to them—to take a monthly appointment.

I spent Sunday afternoon and Sunday night and Monday and Monday night with Sister Heath, a widow much beloved by all for her devotion to the church and for her long extended custom of giving to all Methodist preachers (when down in these parts) a home beneath her roof. From here I went, on Tuesday, back to Bro. Jasper Bush's, where I stayed until late in the afternoon. And from his place I went to Bro. W. H. H. Rayfield's (almost in sight of Bro. Bush's) where I tarried until Thursday, December 30th. On Wednesday I accompanied Bro. Rayfield to Sylacanga (the marble city), Talladego County, a place I had not visited since 1895, the year I served a M. P. Circuit in this county. Here I met with a number of my former M. P. brethren, who all seemed glad to meet and greet their former pastor. Many and cordial were the invitations I received from them to go home and spend a time with them—offering me a most royal entertainment. On Thursday, Brother Rayfield sent me to Childersburg, where I remained until Friday, January 1, 1904, when I returned to my home in this city. I went from "beyond the mountains," in Jefferson County, down to the famous "Cabatchie mountains" of Talladega County, one of the most fertile counties of Alabama, in search of health, and here I found it under the blessing of God in the pure mountain air and sparkling spring waters of this beautiful land—this land of corn and wine, this land of milk and honey, this land of "hog and hominy," this land of noble men and beautiful women, all of whom extended to me a most cordial welcome and hearty invitation to come again and stay as long as I pleased.

This was a part of the territory over which Rev. John A. May and myself traveled last August in our wonderful revivalistic work, in which we won to Christ, under the guidance of the Holy Spirit, ninety-nine souls, and when people came flocking to the churches "like doves to windows."

"Show me," the weary traveler sighed.
"A place where I may rest,
Nor ever wish to journey on,
And leave a spot so blessed."
An aged man at once arose,
And took him by the hand,
And let him on until at last
They came to Dixie's land.
They halted where the roses bloom,
The cotton spreads its snow,
The blighting frost forgot to come,
The winter winds to blow.
The banjo and the mocking-bird,
With music filled the air,
And all the men were brave and true,
And all the maidens fair.

"A paradise!" the traveler cried,
Here let me build my home;
Here let me live and die content,
And never, never roam.
But tell me, pray, what name it bears,
Your garden rich and great?
This, proudly said the aged man,
"Is Alabama State."

And the garden is in Talladege County.

JAPAN MISSION CONFERENCE.

The twelfth session of the Japan Mission Annual Conference was held in Hiroshima, Japan, September 9-14, 1903, and, in the absence of Bishop Charles B. Galloway, Dr. S. H. Wainwright was elected president of the Conference.

This is the first session of the Conference I have missed since I joined it eight and a half years ago, and I am sorry I missed this, as it seems to have been one of the most satisfactory held for years. I am dependent for information on private letters and the printed minutes, but they give a good account of things. Delicate matters were skillfully handled and an aggressive evangelistic campaign was organized. All departments of the work show health and growth. Church members have increased from 866 to 1,000—a net increase of 15.4 per cent; Sunday-school scholars from 2,048 to 2,745; Epworth League members from 89 to 268; Bible classes from 182 to 445. The Sabbath is better observed, the finances show improvement, and the educational work has never been so prosperous.

I have read the printed minutes, which came to hand a short time ago, from beginning to end, and the dominant note in the reports of boards, committees, and individuals is that of hopefulness.

Kwansei Gakuin reported the largest attendance in its history, and half of the proposed endowment of fifty thousand dollars subscribed. The principal of Hiroshima Girls' School says that "the school year ending March, 1903, was one of the most remarkable years this school has ever known." Palmore Institute reports the year as "one of peculiar joy and blessing," and says that "the outlook is glorious from the standpoint of opportunity." The principal of the Bible Women's Training School reports "advance on all lines," and "feels that the turning point has come in the history of this work." And what is perhaps even more important than these things, two of the presiding elders and one pastor tell us that God is calling young men into the ministry, and they are answering the call, and are preparing for this all-important work. An efficient Japanese ministry must antedate a self-sustaining Japanese church. For several years Christian workers have been alarmed at the small number of young men preparing for the ministry, and for two or three years may have been praying over it. Our own mission, the Missionary Association of Southwest Japan, and other organizations, have set apart special days for prayer that God would send forth more laborers into this great harvest field, and have urged unceasing prayer to this end. God is answering these prayers, and men are being raised up to preach the gospel.

Bro. B. W. Waters, presiding elder of the Hiroshima District, says in his report: "Both in school and evangelistic work, I have never known the opportunities to be greater. That 'the field is white unto the harvest' is true in a fuller sense in Japan to-day than I have ever known it before." And the Committee on the State of the Church says: "The ring of victory is in every voice, and all seem full of hops for greater achievements during the coming year. The attitude of the people is rapidly turning toward Christianity, and opposition is weakening. Surely a great opportunity is before us."

The fact is the opportunity is far greater than the ability of the present force of workers. Doors are standing wide open where there is none to enter and take possession. The workers are far too few, and those that are there are sadly handicapped for lack of funds. No one who has not been on the ground and seen with his own eyes can fully realize how true this is. One of the missionaries who is liberal to a fault and has almost taken the bread from his children's mouths in order to maintain the work in his care, writes: "Yet, where there are so many inviting opportunities, often we cannot use them to the greatest advantage for lack of funds. . . . . Often a helpful meeting could be arranged for a weak church, but the expense, though comparatively small, cannot be provided. Preachers could be multiplied by a little more money for itineration."

These are facts for the Church in America to ponder. Never in the history of mission in Japan has the outlook been so encouraging, never have the opportunities been so great. The question is whether we are going to let them slip from us. Let us allow no opportunity to escape us in this great strategic mission field of the world.

SMALL CAUSES OF DEFEAT.

I begin my day's work some mornings perhaps wearied, perhaps annoyed by the multiplicity of trifles which seem too small to bring great principles to bear upon them. But do you not think there would be a strange change wrought in the petty trifles which all our lives, of whatever texture they are, must largely be composed of, if we began each day and task with that old prayer: "Rise Lord, and let thine enemies be scattered!" Do you not think there would come a quiet in our hearts and a victorious peace to which we are too much strangers? If we carried the assurance that there is One who fights for us into the trifles as well as into the sore struggles of our lives, we should have peace and victory. Most of us will not have many large occasions of trial and conflict in our career; and if God's fighting for us is not actual in regard to the small annoyances of home and daily life, I know not for what it is available. There are more deaths in skirmishes than in the pitched field of a great battle. More Christian people lose their hold of God, their sense of his presence, and are beaten accordingly by reason of the little enemies which come down on them like a cloud of gnats on a summer's evening, than are defeated by the shock of a great assault or a great temptation, which call out their strength and sends them to their knees to ask for help from God.—Dr. Alexander Maclaren.

One of the lessons that only somewhat of experience will teach most of us, is not to mistrust men whom we dislike. Likes and dislikes are largely temperamental. Some of our fellow-mortals "rub us the wrong way." We cannot help it, they cannot help it.—Nashville Christian Advocate.

Trinity College Notes.

College exercises were resumed Tuesday, January 5, with an unusually full attendance. A number of new students have entered for the spring term.

The Literary Societies have elected representatives to compete in the preliminary contest which is to be held January 18, for the purpose of selecting students to enter the debate with Emory College. This debate will be held in Oxford, Ga., during the Easter holidays. The Debate Council is also arranging a debate to be held in Durham in the spring.

Mr. L. H. Gibbons, manager of the base-ball team, has arranged a fine schedule for the spring. A number of games with Northern and Southern colleges are to be played in Durham. The prospects for a good team are very fine. Mr. Otis Stocksdale, who has coached the team for the past two years, has been engaged for next season. All these games will be played under the rules and regulations of the Southern Inter-Collegiate Athletic Association, of which Trinity is a member.

A Pounding.

Shortly after our arrival on the circuit in December, several of our Trenton friends came over to the parsonage and brought us a number of presents just such as we needed. We are thankful, and take this opportunity to express our thanks publicly; not only to those who came to the pounding, but to those also who have given us presents at other times.

We begin the new year, hoping that we may render better service than we have hitherto. Over $300 has been raised on the new parsonage. The good women have rendered valuable service in raising this, and we count on their assistance this year in raising parsonage money, and bespeak the hearty co-operation of all who can assist us in this. For all purposes, about $1,400 was raised on our charges last year, which is a better financial record than has been made in several years.

Forty-nine members were received into the church in 1903, thirty-seven on profession of faith, which gave us a net increase in membership of several.

The Raleigh Christian Advocate, our excellent Conference organ, has a comparatively large circulation on the circuit, and we hope to extend this this year. D. C. GEDDIE.

A Pleasant Backward Look.

I ought to have sent the following last year, but being pressed for time on account of afflictions in my home and the push to get ready for Conference, I was unable to do so.

The Lord blessed us last year in many respects. He gave us glorious revivals in the church which were very much needed. Many were brought to know more of the Lord and His goodness, and many things that had hitherto gone wrong were righted, placing the membership of the church in better relation thereby, fitting them for better work. In a ministry of eleven years, I have never seen meetings show forth more universal results for good along all lines. Besides the quickening of the church, we also rejoice in the fact that many sinners "closed in with offered mercy," and were made happy in a Saviour's love, eighteen of whom conected themselves with the church.

I am glad to say, after a delightful visit with our loved ones, the first time in three years, we have gotten back once more, and have renewed our friendship with this good people (than which there is none better), and we find them ready to co-operate more than ever in the work for the Lord, and from the present outlook we are expecting glorious results for our Lord's kingdom.

I wish to say I hope to be able to do much for the "Old Raleigh" during the year.

A. L. ORMOND.

A Preacher Pleased.

Dear Advocate:—After four pleasant years on the Millbrook Circuit, at our last Conference, we were appointed to Brooklyn and Macedonia. We are well pleased with our new work. The people are kind to us. Uncle Jerry and his wife and children came to see us New Year's evening and all brought bundles. We enjoyed their presence at that time and the contents of the bundles after they were gone. Uncle Jerry and his folks are all O. K. May the good Lord bless them abundantly.

The outlook on this work is encouraging.

N. L. SEABOLT, P. C.

Dear Brother Ivey:—On Wednesday before Christmas we were the happy and thankful recipients of a nice pounding from the membership of Webb's Chapel. If their appreciation of our services is as weighty as the pounding, it is certainly first-class. Bro. Jno. E. Ford was kind in representing himself and the other donors in bringing the many good things to us—such as hams, lard, sausage, chickens (dressed), coffee, both green and roasted, butter, sugar, cakes in variety, grond peas, nuts and walnuts, canned oysters and tomatoes, sweet potatoes and $2.00 in money. Brother Doc Allen and wife made us a present of a fine turkey for Christmas, as usual. We are very grateful to all these brethren and sisters who were so thoughtful of us and our needs. The blessing of heaven abide with them.

The Baltimore-Richmond Christian Advocate, which has lately been merged with the Southern Methodist Recorder, has come out in a new dress which is very comely. We like the typographical changes which have been made. Revs. Cannon and Peters have very sound ideas of business, and we doubt not that the paper will be a success. The former editors—Drs. Lafferty and Cox—remain on the tripod to the delight of their many readers.

The Family.

A True Heroine.

It was a patriotic meeting, and the young people, one after another, had eulogized the national heroes—Washington, Lincoln, Grant, Sherman, Marcus Whitman, Nathan Hale; there were many names, and all worthy the honor and reverence paid their memories. Last of all, a minister rose—one whose work led him often into the poorest homes in the city.

"The other day," he said, "I went to see one of our people who was in trouble. Her husband was a drunkard, and now her only son had fallen ill, and there were but her tired, worn-out hands for the double burden.

"'How do you get along?' I asked.

"'Don't you ever get tired of it?' I inquired.

"She looked up at me simply. 'Oh, that's all right,' she answered. 'If the Lord wants me to spend my life over the tubs, I'm willing.'

"I thought of that life—of it's thirty years of thankless, unremitting toil, of the years still before her, bare of love or ease or pleasure, and I went home with my lesson. None of our patriots, great as they were, and worthy of the highest honor that we can give them, ever seemed to me more splendid than that poor, unlettered woman standing so heroically in her hard place, and willing to stand till the end."

How Laughter Cured an Insane Patient.

There is nothing better established among physicians than that cheerfulness prolongs life, and also enriches and enlarges it. Wholesomled, joyons laughter is a powerful health tonic. "There is no one remotest corner or little inlet of the minute blood vessels of the human body," says an eminent physician, "that does not feel some wavelet from the convulsions occasioned by a good, hearty laugh." Laughter stimulates the digestive process, accelerates the respiration, and gives a warm glow to the whole system. It brightens the eye, expands the chest, forces the poison out from the least-sized lung cells, fills them with life-giving oxygen, and tends to restore that exquisite poise or balance which we call health. It is said that Lycurgus set up the god of laughter in the Spartan eating halls. If there is anything the American people need to learn, it is to laugh at meals. There is no table-sauce like it. It is the great enemy of dyspepsia.

Some time ago a patient in an insane asylum was suffering from extreme melancholia. He did not laugh or smile. Day after day he sat or walked with an expression of settled melancholy on his face. Months passed, without bringing any change in his condition. Finally his physician resolved to try a new form of treatment,—the laugh-cure. He employed a large, jovial, hearty man to come to the patient's door every day and laugh. What peals the visitor set ringing through the whole establishment, of deep, melodious, side-shaking laughter, so joyous, hearty, and infectious that every one who heard was compelled to join in it! But the melancholy sufferer looked at the laughing man with the same deep, immovable gloom upon his face. One day, while the laughter was convulsing every one in his vicinity, the patient suddenly stopped pacing his room, and burst into a hearty laugh. The effect was magical. The light of reason shone once more in his face. He looked around in a dazed way, and asked: "Where am I? What is this place?" The black clouds of gloom had been dispersed. The melancholia had departed. The man was in his right mind again. Laughter had done for him what the physicians, the drugs, and all the treatment at the asylum had failed to do.

If people only knew what the habit of practicing real side-shaking laughter every day would do for them, thousands of physicians would be looking for a change of employment. If you want to be well and happy, practice laughter. Don't be afraid to let yourself out. Shake yourself with deep, hearty laughter several times every day. It will do more for you than horseback riding, a gymnasium, or solemn, sober walks. It is the best kind of recreation. It is nature's great safety valve. It gives the body more resisting power. It doubles one's force, and increases capacity for endurance.—Orison Swett Marden, in "Success."

The New Stenographer.

I have a new stenographer—she came to work to-day;
She told me that she wrote the latest system,
Two hundred words a minute seemed to her, she said, like play;
And word for word at that—she never missed 'em!

I gave her some dictation—a letter to a man—
And this, as I remember it, was how the letter ran:

"Dear Sir:—I have your favor, and in reply would state
That I accept the offer in your of recent date.
I wish to say, however, that under no condition
Can I afford to think of your free lance proposition;
I shall begin to-morrow to turn the matter out;
The copy will be ready by August 10th about.
Material of this nature should not be rushed unduly.
Thanking you for your favor.
I am yours very truly."

She took it down in shorthand with apparent ease and grace;
She didn't call me back all in a flurry,
That I, "at last I have a girl worth keeping 'round the place;"
Then said, "Now write it out—you needn't hurry."

The typewriter she tackled—now and then she struck a key,
And after thirty minutes this is what she handed me:

"Dear sir, I have the Fever, and in a Pile i Sit,
And I except the Offer as you Have reasoned it.
I wish to see however That under any condition
Can I for to Think of a free lunch Pronouncium?
I Shal be in tomorrow To turn the mother out.
The can will be red and Will cost, $10, about.
Mateerful of this nation should not rust N. Dooley,
Thinking you have the Fever I am yours very Truely."

Personal Work in Soul Winning

Dr. A. C. Dixon holds that the key to soul-winning lies in personal work. He declares one sentence spoken in loving earnestness to an individual may do more than ten sermons delivered to the crowd. In proof of the statement he recently related the following incident:

"One afternoon as I was on my way to a meeting, which was one of what we were trying to make a revival series, I felt a trifle discouraged because no unsaved people were coming to the church. I was compelled to preach every day to a small number of 'regulars,' whom I knew would be there before I went. They were the 'Tenth Legion,' the old guard who are a constant source of enjoyment to a pastor and yet a source also of discouragement. He could not do without them, and sometimes he hardly knows what to do with them. They go to church and receive with appreciation everything he gives them, but though in the army, some of them have not fired a gun in ten years. They are good, conservative people who are going to heaven, but they do not seem to be taking others with them. I knew that this small company of faithful people would be there ready for my message, but the burden of my soul was for the unsaved who were not coming.

"Looking just ahead of me I saw three young men standing on the street corner talking pleasantly with each other, and the thought came, 'Why not try to win these young men to Christ? He can save on the street as well as in the church.' So I walked up to them and asked, in as cheerful a voice as I could command, 'Young gentlemen, are you all Christians?' 'Yes, thank you,' replied two of them, 'we are members of the Methodist church.' 'No, answered the third, with rather an embarrassed expression, 'I am not, but my mother is a member of the same church with these young men.' I said to him, 'Will you come with me to a meeting we are to hold in a few minutes?' 'Thank you,' he said, 'but I haven't time, for I am very busy preparing for examination in high school next week.' The Spirit seemed to give me the right answer when I asked the question: 'Are you ready for the great examination in the future?' and I passed on to the meeting.

"Within a few minutes I saw that young man come in the door and take a back seat. He is now a minister of the Gospel and says that his Christian life began on the street corner when the question was asked which he could not answer until he had accepted Jesus Christ as Saviour. It is no exaggeration, I think, to say that God did more through me in that three minutes' conversation on the street corner than by any ten sermons I preached during the series of meetings."—Exchange.

Riddles.

The oldest riddle is that put forth by Samson (Judges 14:14), "Out of the eater came forth meat, and out of the strong came forth sweetness." The solution is found in the same chapter.

Another old riddle is that ascribed to Cleobulus, one of the seven wise men of Greece, seven hundred and five years before Christ: "There is a father with twice six sons; these sons have thirty daughters apiece, parti-colored, having one cheek white and the other black, who never see each other's face, nor live above twenty-four hours."

COWPER'S RIDDLE.

I am just two and two, I am warm, I am cold,
And the parent of numbers that cannot be told;
I am lawful, unlawful—a duty, a fault,
I am often sold dear, good for nothing when bought,
An extraordinary boon, and a matter of course,

VOLTAIRE'S RIDDLE.

What is the longest and yet the shortest thing in the world, the swiftest, and the slowest; the most divisible and the most extended; the least valued, and the most regretted; without which nothing can be done; which devours everything, however small, and yet gives life and spirit to all things, however great? Time.

A PERSIAN RIDDLE

A soul above it,
And a soul below,
With leather between,
And swift it doth go.
On horse with a man astraddle.
The answer is a saddle

ECHO

When winter piles
The forest aisles
With drifts of snow
And through the lines
Of roaring pines
The ice-winds blow,
About my cave
The tempests rave
Like storms at sea;
But none can break
My walls and take
My voice from me!
I found my birth
When heaven and earth
From chaos rose;
And not till Death
Steals Nature's breath
My life shall close!

Singing for God.

Andrew Bonar, speaking of the power of silent influence radiated by every individual, said:

"Communion with God has the effect of making us joyous. The Lord does not like to see any of His disciples looking sad. Christians can sometimes do more by shining for God than by speaking for Him.—Exchange.

The tallest clouds are the thunder heads which we most commonly see on summer afternoons.

Our Boys and Girls.

Be Watchful.

This is a time of the year when the devil is going to tempt us; and let us be strong and yield not to temptation.

Many people spend Christmas season in drinking and gambling, when they ought to spend it in a more religious way than that. It commemorates the birth of Christ, and we ought to thank the Lord for giving His Son Jesus Christ for saving the world.

If we trust the devil instead of the Lord, we will never enjoy the goodness of our good Lord. He is so good to us, and so patient with us, we ought to love Him better.

Let us never take a strong drink.

I hereby promise in the fear of God, to abstain from the use of all alcoholic liquors. If the devil tempts us to drink, or to do anything wrong, let us turn a deaf ear to him.

Yield not to temptation.

For yielding is sin.

Put forth your whole effort.

And strive to conquer and to win.

How to Save the Boys.

A banker in Allegan County, Mich., three or four years ago voted to license the saloons, and they were brought back into the county. A few weeks ago ex-Senator Humphrey was at a hotel in Allegan, and looking out he saw the banker walking back and forth in front of the hotel bar-room and looking in when any one opened the door. The Senator went out and spoke to the banker.

The banker said, "Senator, I am uneasy about my boy. Do you think he may be in the saloon? Did you see anything of him?"

"Yes, I saw him in the back room of the saloon playing cards and drinking," replied Senator Humphrey.

The father seemed speechless for a moment, and then from a heart full of distress cried out, "O God! how shall I save my boy from ruin?"

"You have a grave problem to solve."

"I would give half I am worth to destroy every saloon in the country," said the banker.

"Ah! It seems cruel to remind you of it now, but you should have come to that conclusion when we wanted you to join us in the fight to keep them out of the county. Now they have your boy, and I do not know what you can do. May God help you."

Why should not the father expect his boy to fall in with what he indorsed? Parents, think of that, and vote to outlaw the saloon.

In many another place might the above sad story be duplicated. The State Issue relates it of a father in a Michigan town, but that there are doubtless a hundred thousand homes in which there is such a "skeleton in the closet," is not an outspoken complaint.

At a public meeting, where appeal was being made for funds to forward some effort in behalf of the young, the speaker declared that if but a single boy were saved the hundred thousand dollars asked for would be well expended. When a friend inquired whether he had not spoken rather hastily, he replied: "No, not if it was my boy."

Let each citizen, where the saloon is seeking entrance, remember now, before it is too late, that its coming means ruin to somebody's boy, and let each father say to himself, "It may be my boy."—John F. Hill, D. D.

A glance at the above names, comprising the officers of the W. F. M. S. of the N. C. Conference, at once assures us that our column is headlined with talent and missionary lore sufficient to keep it "running over" every week with missionary news and notes that would be of great interest to its readers—how about it, dear sisters? Among your New Year's resolutions, is there not one that you will do more for this column this year than you have done in the past?

The regular monthly meeting of the Edenton Street Auxiliary was held last Monday, and, notwithstanding the intense cold and threatening weather, there was a fair attendance. One can well afford to "breast the storm" to hear our talented Recording Secretary read the minutes of the previous meeting, not only giving the result of regular routine work, but embodying with it such earnest, helpful, beautiful thoughts and suggestions as go directly to the hearts and minds of the listeners. One item of special encouragement was the fact that the Auxiliary has made decided gains on all lines over the same period last year.

The name of Mrs. R. F. Bumpas was added to our roll, and her presence, as well as her influence and co-operation, will be a benediction to the Auxiliary.

M. A. BEACH.

From "Witchery or Work" in the Missionary Advocate we take the following: The work of the Woman's Foreign Society should be a thrilling inspiration to every woman in the church. It is really more than this: it is a trumpet call, a bugle note for every one to fall into line and follow Christ as he marches on to draw all men to himself and conquer the whole world of sin.

Do tender-hearted Christian women need special appeals to arouse and awaken them to the actual necessity for their co-operation in this work? It seems so, to judge from the stirring appeal that has gone throughout the whole church from Bishop Galloway's pen, calling on the women of the church to come to the help of the General Board. Surely he did not know that the Woman's Board was just then in such dire straits that for the first and only time in its history of twenty-five years, the question was pressing: Shall we recall some of our missionaries, and break up some of the plants already so well established, or shall we borrow the money to meet the deficiencies of the last quarter?

The missionaries of the General Board in the foreign fields say: "The work of the Woman's Board is our right arm."

There seems to be an idea still abroad that there is some witchery about the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, and that, however threatening the ordeals, the difficulties will pass away. Just now the Woman's Board, "in a time like this, demands strong minds, great hearts, true faith, and ready hands."

The church is full of such men and women; we believe there are hundreds of laymen in the M. E. Church, South, who, if they were reminded, would gladly give contributions to the Woman's Foreign Missionary Societies of their own churches, or, if preferred, send them to Mrs. H. N. McTyre, Nashville, Tenn. This is not a request made by the Woman's Board, nor is it known to any, but why should we not ask this of "strong minds, great hearts, true faith, and ready hands?"

The members of this Society know they are on the right path; they are not discouraged, but they need the active sympathy and co-operation of the whole church.

Annual Meetings—April 30 to May 4.

It has been decided to hold our annual meeting on the 30th of April, at Selma. The time is most auspicious soon after the meeting of the Board, in the early fresh of beautiful, hopeful spring; the selection of places most fortunate—we know the glowing hearts and graceful hospitality of our Johnston County friends. Let every officer, indeed, every member, bestir herself and work mightily during this last quarter; all of us long to carry up a good report, and it is necessary to have a full and complete one, to which every member must contribute her share of good works. I trust there is not one indifferent or careless, and may we see clearly our responsibilities and joyfully claim and use our privileges.

Last Year's Record.

Our annual report was most encouraging, showing the gratifying fact that nearly $4.00 per member was contributed. After giving me this item, our president added that there are some who pay their dues only (alas! we all know some who neglect this), which proves the faithfulness of others. And when we reflect that the ones who supplement deficiences in the Home work are the same ones usually who give most to the Foreign; their faithfulness becomes conspicuous. I earnestly hope their beautiful example will be warmly admired and worthily imitated.

New Reading Course.

The Literature Committee has been in session in Asheville and arranged this course:

BIBLE STUDY.

Old Testament—from Genesis to Ruth.

"How to Pray," by Torrey. Price, 75 cents.

HOME MISSION STUDY.

Annual reports.

"Our Homes"—our valuable organ.

"Under Our Flag," by A. M. Guernsey. Price, paper, 30 cents; cloth, 50 cents.

"The Leaven in a Great City," by Lillian Betts.

Every Auxiliary should endeavor to take up this interesting and instructive course, and I hope every officer, Conference, District and Auxiliary will feel that it is one of her special duties to bring its importance before the members until every Auxiliary shall own all the volumes and study them. We must see to it that it is never said: "My people perish for lack of knowledge" of missionary methods, and the best means of success in them.

An Ounce of Prevention.

I have already told our Auxiliaries of the latest gift to our Home Mission work, but I must tell it here, that all of the Advocate readers may rejoice with us. Mr. W. P. Blasengame, of Thomasville, Ga., has recently given to the City Board of Thomasville a thirteen room house and proceeds from ninety acres of land, to be called "The Vashti Blasengame Industrial Home for Girls." It is a memorial to his mother, and will be a safe haven for girls without mothers and without homes. Could there be a more eloquent expression of reverent honor for a devoted mother? It speaks, too, of a Christ-like yearning for the purity of woman—he would have the orphan girls before they are tossed about by the pitiless winds of a cold world.

Mrs. W. H. Johnson, of our Dallas Home, says: "I find that nearly four-fifth of our fallen girls are orphans, or have only one parent." This work of prevention is the most important with which we have to deal.

Another Open Door.

The Thomasville Board desires to make this the property of our Board as soon as we can accept it, which we will joyfully do when we see our way clear to support it. It is in charge of one of our new deaconesses, Miss Annie Heath, and every room has been furnished by different ones, in memory of loved ones, while money for other expenses has come in unsolicited. The seal of God's approval is already clearly stamped upon it. What a delight to help the girls in Georgia and our sister States; the Italians in Florida, the Chinese and Japanese in California, and many others! And our sister States gladly help us, too. Do not the breadth and beauty of the connectional feature grow upon us?

Hatter: "What size does he wear?"

Young wife: "I declare I forgot to find out; I know the size of the collars he wear, though. It's 15. He'd want about size 18 or 20 for a hat, wouldn't he?"

Editorial.

The fact that it takes two to make a quarrel is a good one to carry with us during the year.

The transgression of the one who refers to the citizens of Panama as Panamanians is exceeded in seriousness only by that involved in calling them Panamen. The idea of writing the word American!

There was only one lynching in North Carolina last year, so an exchange states. There were eight in number in 1901-1902. The former fact robs some bellicose journals of their "thunder," yet they should be more than willing to swap "thunder" for a good showing which means the advance of Christian civilization.

There is now raging in Uganda and the region inward from the shores of Lake Victoria a disease called the "sleeping sickness." Without having any intention of depreciating the seriousness of the situation, we remark that, according to the testimony of divers preachers, the same disease prevails among the religious congregations of the land. The victim, as a usual thing, gravitates toward the "amen corner."

"Speak to all more kindly
Than the year before,
Pray a little oftener,
Love a little more;
Cling a little closer
To the Father's love;
So life below shall liker grow
To the life above."

To every lover of freedom and justice, the news that Dreyfus has won his fight for honor must be very gratifying. This most mysterious, yet perfectly plain, case in which a military man degraded, tried, imprisoned for five years on miserable Devil's Isle, then brought back to France, and given only a semi-vindication, fought through long years for his honor, and was rewarded at last by a lieutenant-colonelcy in the French army, is a shining illustration of the truth that

"Truth crushed to earth will rise again.
The eternal years of God are hers."

The arguments used by some of our Northern brethren who wish the General Conference to eliminate that section of the Discipline which forbids certain forms of worldly amusement seem to us to be unworthy of those who have a true idea of the mission of the church. How foolish it is to say that this elimination would cause the Methodist Church to gain many members in persons who would otherwise stay in the world or go to other churches! Why, Methodism by removing all restrictions, could congest her rolls with names, but what would these names be worth to Methodism and righteousness? Quality, not quantity, is what all the churches need.

There is a story going the rounds to the effect that a certain Admiral in the Civil War was approached by a commercial prince with the request that he be allowed to pass a certain point with a cargo of cotton. The Admiral refused the request. Money was offered, but to no purpose. The sum of $50,000 was then offered, whereupon the Admiral roughly ejected the would-be briber from his presence with the exclamation, "Get out, you scoundrel. You have come too near my price." The incident is a true illustration of human nature, and is in accord with the spirit of the petition, "Lead us not into temptation." The man who is not in constant fear that he has a price which Satan may at any time offer is always in danger. "And what I say unto you, I say unto all: Watch."

There is in human nature an incessant and insatiable craving for companionship. Our lives are controlled and moulded by our companionships.

The most helpful companionship is that of a high, noble purpose. This may take the place of family and friend—in fact of every other personal agency except God himself.

About six weeks ago, nearly two hundred preachers received at the hands of the Bishop in Goldsboro their appointment for the year. Some went to their field of work with strong assurance. Others went with shrinkings and tremblings. All went with hope and courage.

It is not necessary to emphasize the fact that each preacher's success during the year will be determined by the question of companionship. If he goes about his duties in a dull purposeless way he will inevitably run up against failure. If he has a supreme purpose toward which he bends his primary and subordinate energies, he may be a success. He may be a failure. The question will be determined by what the one supreme purpose is.

It is well enough at this, the beginning of the new year, to stress the truth that the one supreme purpose of every Methodist preacher within the bounds of the North Carolina Conference should be to win souls during the year. He is to look upon soul-winning as the great work of his life—the work to which he is divinely called, the work to which he has promised before God and man to give his best energies, the work to which he stands committed through his human and divine credentials.

So seriously is the purpose to win souls the supreme purpose in every preacher's life that the fact of merely preaching to large and delighted congregations and carrying up to Conference overflowing salaries and collections should sink into comparative insignificance. The preacher in his round of duties may ponder adequately the tremendous issues involved in the question, "For what shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" and at the same time fail to address to himself this heart-searching question: "For what shall it profit humanity if I preach with the eloquence of Apollos and draw great congregations and raise large collection and yet fail to win souls to Christ?"

Christ came to seek and save the lost. Methodism had her origin in the overwhelming desire of the Oxford scholar to save men from the "wrath to come." We are organized as a church, we hold our Conferences, we operate our machinery, we call the congregations together, we preach the everlasting Word—all that the great purpose for which the Son of God was manifested may be carried out. The fields are white unto the harvest. Sin abounds. Sinners multiply. Then how can we lay the flattering unction to our souls that we may preach and preach and yet guiltlessly stand before the Father of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ and say, "I have won no soul from death this year."

No; God does not call any man into a line of work in which he may not be successful. There is one immutable promise which is vouchsafed to every soul-saver, and it is that he may win souls. We are soul-savers. Let us claim the promise. Let us carry on our legitimate work.

It is with sadness that we look back upon a year in which Methodism in the North Carolina Conference had a net gain of less than three hundred souls. The harvest fields bloomed in beauty and bent under the burden of their rich bounty. The very streams seemed to sing hosannas as they rushed among our hills and through our plains to turn ten thousand wheels of industry. Commerce laughed, and among the red flames that burned on myriads of heartstones glowed the white light of general prosperity. In the laughter of happy school children as they danced on the way to school was a new note caught from the song of a commonwealth pledged to an emancipation from ignorance. New organs pealed forth sweeter music. New parsonages housed the preachers and their families. Yet after all, the great harvest fields of souls remained unreaped.

A net gain of less than three hundred souls! The smallest gain in the whole sisterhood of Conferences. Are we then wasting space in exhorting our fellow laborers in the name of the Saviour of sinners to remember that the duty of saving souls this year is the paramount duty. Are we merely sounding a note of pessimism in beseeching every one in the North Carolina Conference who names the name of Christ to adopt as a companion during the year the prayer-warmed and God-begotten purpose to be a soul-saver?

May God give us all a closer view of and deeper sensibility to sin; a wider vision of redeeming grace, a more intense hunger for souls, a more trustful reliance on Him whose promises are yea and amen, and that victory which always comes to those whose hearts are intent on the fulfillment of the Divine purpose.

THE NORTH CAROLINA METHODIST HANDBOOK.

This annual publication of over one-hundred and fifty pages, beautifully bound in blue and crimson covers, furnishes that information which cannot be found in the church paper, the Conference journal, or in any other publication. It is the information which every intelligent Methodist needs.

Some of the literary features are: "Why I Am a Methodist," by Dr. W. F. Tillett, of Vanderbilt University; "Infant Baptism," by Rev. M. H. Tuttle, of the North Carolina Conference; data, statistical and official, of the M. E. Church, South; The International Sunday-School Convention; The History of Missions; Complete Exhibits of the North Carolina Conference and the Western North Carolina Conference, giving name, appointment, and post-office of each preacher; the principal events of North Carolina Methodism during the year with dates; cardinal doctrines of Methodism; interesting facts connected with facts connected with North Carolina. These are only a part of what the Handbook contains in the literary line.

The Handbook is handsomely illustrated. Besides the full page portraits of Bishops Candler and Smith, Dr. Tillett, Rev. M. H. Tuttle, Rev. M. V. Sherrill, Rev. C. G. Little, Rev. S. G. Stamey, Rev. B. B. Culbreth, Rev. A. R. Goodchild, Rev. J. W. Wallace, and Rev. L. Johnson, there are twenty finely executed maps. Each map represents a District, with the boundaries of the Circuits. These are the first maps of the kind ever brought out in North Carolina, and are very useful and pleasing to the eye. There is also a Historical Tree giving in pictorial form the history of Methodism from the very beginning.

It is a dollar book for a quarter of a dollar, and a compendium of the richest information. The standard unchanging price of the Handbook is twenty-five cents. A discount is offered on orders of six or more.

THE PAPER AND THE BOTTLE.

We are not referring to the bottle which is so popular with those of bilulous propensities. We refer to a bottle of ink with the accompanying instrument, called the pen. The paper referred to is the Raleigh Christian Advocate. Our exhortation is to the preachers and layman of our Conference to use the pen and the ink to furnish reading matter for the afore-mentioned paper.

The Raleigh Christian Advocate is not strong enough financially to pay for its contributions. No paper in the State is. We are compelled to rely to a large extent on our readers for matter.

Send us short postal card items. Send us longer accounts of the work on your charge. Send us your views on the vital issues of the Church at large. In short, let us hear from you.

Personals.

Rev. Sam P. Jones recently spoke for the Y. M. C. A. of Louisville, Ky., and raised $1,500 on the debt.

Dr. James W. Lee, of St. Louis, will soon have his book, "The Making of a Man," printed in Chinese.

The widow of Bishop Paine died a few days ago in Aberdeen, Mississippi, in the eighty-fourth year of her age.

Judge J. M. Dickinson, general counsel for the Illinois Central Railroad, will deliver the literary address at the Vanderbilt commencement.

We learn from the New Orleans Christian Advocate that Bishop Keener, while still physically feeble, suffers no abatement in intellectual vigor.

Dr. P. L. Groome, formerly of the W. N. C. Conference, is now at Lordsburg, New Mexico, under treatment. We are glad to know that he is hopeful of good results.

Rev. H. M. North delivered on last Sunday afternoon before the Y. M. C. A. in Elizabeth City the first of the series of talks on the Study of the Bible.

Messrs. S. M. Rollinson, of Elizabeth City, and A. S. Stough, of Hatteras, passed through Raleigh last week on their return from a pleasant visit to points in Florida. While in Raleigh they paid the Advocate a pleasant call.

Our thanks are hereby rendered to our Japanese brother at Hiroshima, Japan, Rev. T. Kugimiya, for the Year Book of the Japan Mission and Minutes of the Twelfth Annual Session of the Japan Mission Conference held at Hiroshima, Japan.

The death of Mrs. M. A. Adams, of Wilson, removes from us one of our most saintly and accomplished women. She was of more than ordinary strength of character and beauty of Christian life. The three children have our profoundest sympathy in their affliction.

Rev. W. L. Cuninggim, Secretary of the North Carolina Conference, is to be commended for the dispatch and accuracy with which he published the Conference Journal which is just from the presses of Edwards & Broughton. The Journal makes an exceedingly neat appearance.

Dr. E. A. Yates and Prof. W. H. Pegram, of Trinity College, have the deepest sympathies of the Editor of the Advocate in their present affliction. The notice of the death and funeral, respectively, of Mrs. Yates and Mrs. Pegram are to be found on another page of the Advocate.

Rev. R. M. Hoyle, Presiding Elder of the Waynesville District, W. N. C. Conference, has surrendered his work on account of impaired health. He has been appointed to the pastorate of Shelby Station, while the former pastor, Rev. C. F. Sherrill, takes charge of Waynesville District.

Rev. J. B. Ley succeeds Dr. L. W. Moore as editor of the Florida Christian Advocate. We congratulate the present editor on the very auspicious beginning he has made. He establishes very clearly the fact that he is no novice with the pen. The arrangement of the matter shows editorial discrimination and taste. Those Florida Methodists should give their excellent paper a subscription list of at least five thousand.

Dr. Cave, who over one year ago accepted a call to the pastorate of the Presbyterian Church of Raleigh, and who has been debarred from taking his place through family affliction, will take charge in a few days. Dr. Alfred Moment, who has been filling Dr. Cave's place, has endeared himself to all the Christian people of Raleigh, who will long remember his excellent personal qualities and ministerial ability.

North Carolina Methodism.

Rev. E. C. Glenn began a series of meetings at West Durham on last Sunday.

"Our work on the station started well, and has exceeded our most sanguine expectations every way. Our town is growing and our church is growing. Our congregations would do credit to a city charge. We hope for a most prosperous year."—Rev. N. E. Coltrane.

Rev. W. H. Puckett, Oxford Circuit, writes that he and his are now comfortably located in the circuit parsonage at Oxford; that he has been very kindly received by his people, and that he hopes to do the best year's work of his life. We trust that his sick child is now convalescing.

A worthy layman of Roxboro writes us that Rev. K. D. Holmes is liked better and better each year, and that the Stewards at their first meeting of the year fixed the salary of the P. C. at $1,010, thus making Roxboro Circuit the strongest Circuit financially in the Conference.

The Rev. E. C. Sell, Mrs. Sell and their four children passed through the city yesterday on their way to Snow Hill where he will be located this year. He was formerly pastor of Market Street M. E. Church, of this city, and made a host of friends, who greeted him with gladness yesterday.—Wilmington Star.

Rev. W. P. Constable, Columbia Circuit, writes: "Columbia Circuit broke all previous records last year by paying up in full. I have been very cordially received on my return for the third year, and we are busy building new churches and repairing others. We will have one of the new churches completed in about three weeks from now."

Greenville has lost two excellent families whose departure brings regret to many people here. The last North Carolina Conference appointed Rev. F. A. Bishop to the charge of Central Church at Raleigh, and appointed Rev. H. M. Eure to the charge of the church at Beaufort. Both have gone to begin the work of their new fields. Rev. Mr. Bishop was Presiding Elder of this district for four years, and made his home in Greenville. Rev. Mr. Eure was pastor of the church here for three years. Both are consecrated men, ever faithful to their duties, and with their families, were held in highest esteem.—Greenville Reflector.

The Henderson Gold Leaf had in its last issue a large electrotype of Dr. L. L. Nash, the new pastor of our church in Henderson, and thus speaks of him: "Dr. Nash is one of the strongest men in the North Carolina Conference, and Henderson is fortunate in having him come to this charge. He will not only prove a capable and successful pastor, popular and acceptable to his own charge, but to the community at large, he will be a factor for good, and the Gold Leaf welcomes his coming amongst us. Dr. Nash preached to his congregation Sunday and made a favorable impression upon those who heard him. His text was appropriate, his illustrations apt and the subject matter such as might have been expected from a man of his ability on an occasion of this kind."

The reception of the members of the Epworth League of the Central Methodist church to their new pastor and his wife, Rev. F. A. Bishop and Mrs. Bishop, last night was a delightful occasion. A large number of young people were present, as well as the older ones. The reception took place immediately after the regular church conference and was held in the lecture room, lasting from 9 until 11. The speech introducing the new pastor was made by Mr. L. M. Johnson, whose remarks were happily appropriate to the occasion. Mr. Bishop responded in a very apt and touching way, expressing his deep appreciation of the many kindnesses shown him, and the efforts of the Epworth League in making it possible for him to meet the people of the church in such a pleasant way.—Raleigh News and Observer.

My Place in the War Against Intemperance.

(Isa. 24: 9-11; Hab. 2:15; 1 Thess. 5: 6-8.)

AN INTENSELY PERSONAL TOPIC

This week's theme is aimed directly at every member of the Epworth League. "What is my part in the war?" Here is no chance for glittering generalities. The war is on. It is against a real evil, the greatest, by far, in all the land. Every Christian, by virtue of his Christianity, has set his face against it.

But intemperance has so many entanglements with business, social life, and politics that the question may arise: "How far shall I go in my opposition to the drink evil?"

The only answer that reaches the heart of the question is this: "I must be an enemy of intemperance wherever I find it, no matter what it involves in the way of personal sacrifice."

If business interests are involved it is better to lose money, or business opportunities, than to gain them at the expense of one's conscience. And opposition to ever form of the liquor business is a matter of conscience.

If social interests are concerned, it is the merest trifling with vital interests to let social claims come between a Christian and his duty.

If it is a matter of politics—aye, there's the rub! It is a matter of politics. There is no way of dealing with the whole subject without following it into politics. Moral suasion, education, regulation—all these are good. But they are not sufficient. The trouble is that people are willing to persuade, to educate, and to regulate, but they are not willing to vote, or to induce others to vote. And so long as this is true, we shall always be waging an uphill fight.

In all our warfare against intemperance we shall remember that we are Christians, consistent, loyal, loving, and utterly in earnest.

THINGS YOU CAN DO.

Become a pledged abstainer.

Let people know you are an abstainer.

Get others to become pledged abstainers.

Buy temperance literature, and circulate it.

Help the innocent sufferers whom the whiskey business has deprived of comfort, health, protection, and happiness.

Vote—if you have a vote—against the saloon, no matter what other issues are pending. So long as the saloon is in politics there is no other dominant issue.

Support every agency that is working against intemperance. Do not discourage anybody who is really doing effective work against any phase of the whole bad business.

PARAGRAPHS TO SUGGEST TESTIMONY: A QUESTION YOU MUST ANSWER.

The great question, after all, in temperance, is not whether all people are working in the same way, but whether they are working in some way for this urgent cause. People will never wholly agree upon methods in temperance any more than they will in church policy. It is useless to try to round up all temperance sympathizers in the fold of one society, or under the leadership of one reform or one newspaper. This is not to say that all methods are equally good, for some are better than others, and some may do well for one set of circumstances, but not for others. The best methods must be sought, with charity for those who differ from us. And yet, the great, insistent moral question is not "Are you working in my way for temperance?" but "Are you conscientiously and prayerfully and definitely working in some way to reform the drunkard, to abolish the saloon, to educate the children, to oppose the exportation of American rum to American colonies—in a word, to make the world a cleaner, quieter, happier place to live in?"—Caleb Jones, M. D.

"It is a great deal easier to do that which God gives us to do, no matter how hard it is, than to face the responsibility of not doing it."—J. R. Miller.

THE IEPORTANCE OF THE WAR.

I am not a total abstainer, either theoretically or practically, and I have always voted in favor of license. It is needless to say that I do not belong to the Prohibition Party. But anybody who can see must know that, considered merely as a question of social economy, of dollars and cents, of tax-bills, and public convenience generally, the drink question is the question of the day. The tariff wrangle is a mere baby to it. If intelligent, steady-going people could be induced to spend upon the drink question a fraction of the time and money they employ upon the other, we might hope for some real improvement.—Prof. J. J. McCook.

WHEN YOU ARE ALL BOUND UP

and are suffering from indigestion, lack of appetite, foul breath, headache, dyspepsia, catarrh of the stomach, kidney and liver complaints you need a tonic laxative, something that will move the bowels quickly, easily and without leaving hurtful effects behind. Never use a purgative or cathartic. They weaken the bowels and system and make the disease worse. Use instead Vernal Saw Palmetto Berry Wine. It tones, builds up, gives new strength and vigor, not alone to the bowels but to the whole being. Only one small dose a day will cure any case, from the lightest to the worst. That means cure, not simply relief only. Most obstinate cases yield gently and easily and the cure is permanent. Vernal Saw Palmetto Berry Wine is not a patent medicine. A list of ingredients is in every package with explanation of their action. Write us for a free sample bottle. Vernal Remedy Co., 85 Seneca Building, Buffalo, N. Y. All leading druggists sell it.

GENTLEMEN:—This is to certify that I have used "Cerealite" for a number of years and have sold it for the past three years and I, myself, find it to be equal to, if not better, in many respects, than Nitrate Soda. My best customers are anxious to see it again this year. On my own crops I used it on wheat, oats and cotton, and for every dollar I invested in "Cerealite" I am sure it paid me $2.50. I prefer "Cerealite" as a top-dressing to Nitrate Soda, even if the goods were the same price. Splendid for Oats and Grain.

Lesson for January 17, 1904.

The Baptism and Temptation of Jesus.

Golden Text. And lo, a voice from heaven, saying, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased. (Matt. 3:17.)

The Fourfold Temptation.—The thirteenth chapter closes with an account of the baptismal scene at the river Jordan. Before entering upon his own public ministry Jesus gave the seal of his approval to the work of John, his forerunner. The baptism of John was a sign of submission and devotion to God and his service. Jesus "fulfils all righteousness," by thus publicly and solemnly declaring his submission and devotion to the God of Israel. The Father honored this act by pouring out his Spirit and visibly manifesting his presence in the "form of a dove," and by proclaiming in the hearing of all, "This is my beloved Son." The temptations follow immediately. Three distinct assaults of the arch fiend are recorded, but four things seem to be involved.

The Father's goodness assailed. The insinuation is subtle as it was in the case of the temptation in Eden (Gen. 3: 1-5). "He endeavored to beget in our first parents a notion that God forbade them the tree of knowledge because he grudged them the benefit of it; and so here he insinuates to our Savior, that his Father has cast him off and left him to shift for himself." "Did God acknowledge thee as his Son, and has he now left thee to famish with hunger? How inconsistent, how inconsiderate. I would endure it no longer, but 'command that these stones be made bread.' The Father hath forgotten and forsaken thee. Assert thine own power." To have thus used his power here would have been a violation of the conditions he assumed when he entered the body "prepared" for him (Heb. 10:5) and became subject to human infirmity and limitation. No temptation more frequently assails God's people than the temptation to question the goodness of God.

Tempted to doubt his Sonship. "If thou be the Son of God." Satan covertly insinuates that he may be mistaken in believing himself the Son of God. These internal assurances may have been but the imaginations of an overwrought mind; that voice at the river's brink a deception. "I would bring this matter to the test and know for myself. Test your power and see whether indeed you are the Son of God." Thus Satan assails the people of God, tempting them to doubt the evidence of their acceptance with God and also in some way to try the matter. Faith does not rest upon satisfied sense or sensibility, but upon the word of God (Heb. 11: 8, 17-19, 30).

Tempted to presumption. "If . . . cast thyself down." "No harm can come to thee if thou art the son of God." In his humanity Jesus could only use his divine power to protect him from evil when in the path of duty. Duty did not require him to cast himself down. It would have been presumption. Many have been tempted to presumption, and many have fallen thereby. A man who had been saved from drink went with some old companions into a bar-room while they drank, thinking thus to show to them his power over drink, but he fell, and was never restored again.

Tempted to idolatry (vs. 8-10). "I am the god of this world. You want to win it. The way you have chosen is a hard one. You need not go that way. By one act of worship acknowledge my right to it, and all is yours." Christ repudiated him and his claim. Satan is the acknowledged god of this world (2 Cor. 4: 4), but he is a base usurper, and ultimately the rightful Lord will be recognized (Phil. 2: 9-11). Often the saints are tempted to find an easier way, to bow down at some mandate of the world, or worship at some shrine of self or mammon. At all such times only one answer should be given: "It is written," etc., (v. 10).—Practical Commentary.

APPLICATION: VICTORY OVER TEMPTION.

1. Jesus.—1. Sought baptism at the hands of an inferior. We lose a blessing if we despise the channel through which God sends it.

2. In self-denial and cheerful obedience fulfilled each small part of God's plan for his life. In this he expects each disciple to follow his example.

3. Was tempted in all points like unto his brethren, resisted as we too may resist, won a victory as we too may be victorious in every temptation (1 Cor. 10: 13).

4. Can fully sympathize with man in every trial and temptation.

II. John.—A feeling of unworthiness does not excuse from service.

III. The Tempter.—1. Always attacks us at our greatest disadvantage and often just after great spiritual blessings.

2. Quotes Scripture.

3. Makes extravagant promises which he cannot fulfill.

IV. Man.—Special consecration and the conscious presence of the Holy Spirit before venturing upon life's work insure positive, glorious success.

DEATH BY NEGLECT.

Dr. D. M. Bye, the eminent specialist, of Indianapolis, who cures cancer by the use of a combination of oils, says thousands of persons die from cancer every year from no cause save neglect. If taken in time not one case in a thousand need be fatal. The fear of the knife or the dread of the burning, torturing plaster causes a few to neglect themselves till they pass the fatal point. By far the greater portion die because their friends or relatives, on whom they are dependent, are inexcusable in their suffering and incurable danger till it is too late. If you have friends afflicted write to-day for free book, giving particulars. Address Dr. D. M. Bye Co., Drawer 505, Indianapolis, Ind.

Brother Wynne, (J. S.), one of our executive committee, is a jolly man. He loves the Orphanage. He loves our children. They love him. He hardly ever comes, but that he brings them something. Something good. They would like to see him come every day and Sunday for a rarity. Apples were his last gift. Jimmie said that he could eat two; Warner, (he always has big ideas), said that he could eat ten. The way the girls devoured theirs seemed to say, We are somewhat like Warner. It seemed to do Brother Wynne as much good as it did our boys and girls. Our meetings, are monthly.

Carthage.

Carthage is on the map of Moore. 'Tis said to be very healthy. It looks like it. It is the town of the beloved S. D. Adams. It is the place where you may get a Tyson & Jones buggy if you will put in your order—for they work on orders only. None better than these. It was a great day for the Superintendent. The pleasure of talking three times in one day was intense. That Sunday-school, led by a learned limb of the law, Brother Burns, will be a great power for good when they get into the Orphanage work fully. That beautiful church, now free from debt by the wise direction of Brother Broom, stands as a monument to that intelligent congregation. They have entered the good work, and no doubt will be among our most liberal supporters soon. It is always a delight to lodge in the home of Brother Broom. He and wife and children all make one feel so much at home. God bless them.

Thanks to One and All.

The good things keep coming in. And yet there is promise of more to follow. We have never had so many apples sent us. And if there is anything that can beat a pig enjoying an apple, it must be an orphan. And it is nip and tuck between the orphans and the Superintendent. The fact is, the Matron, the Teacher, Fannie and George, and the whole body, have done yeoman service in that line.

We spoke of a tub of oysters some time ago. Another tub came a day or two ago, and we thought somebody had sent us a tub of lard—real hog's fat. Why not? The children ought to be greased occasionally. Wheels have to be greased to make them run slick. But it was not. It was genuine chocolate cream drops. Did ever such a thing appear at an orphanage before? A tub of candy. The tag said, "From J. A. Campbell."

Language fails to express our thanks to these dear friends.

Speaking of the many and varied gifts that came to this home during the Christmas holidays, I would say that it pays to make our wishes known.

Persons write and say, I saw in the Advocate that you wanted thus and so. So I send you this and that.

Persons write to ask us what we need. What is best to send. We will say what we do not think it best to send. Don't send fancy things. Fine dresses would injure our reputation. Don't send gold rings. If the friends of these children are able to send them costly presents and large money to spend as they, the children, please, they are able to help support them. Besides, when they go to the cook room, or to the wash tub, the ring will be in their way. It is time enough for the girls to have such things when they leave here. If they prove themselves worthy, the nice things will come in due time. We want a striking calendar clock?

Encouraging.

You will see from the receipts that several pastors have taken collections since Conference for the Orphanage. That is so encouraging. Straws show which way the wind blows. These show that the brethren have it on their minds and in their hearts. Then the brethren in the ministry greet us so cordially. The people love to talk about the Orphanage, and inquire so kindly about the children. They are anxious to have us carry them with us to see them. How we would like to do it. But then it costs money to do so.

Speaking of costs. The railroads are very kind to let our children travel on them for one cent a mile. But my, how they do lay it on for freight. They charged us $1.11 to bring us twenty pounds of feathers from Currituck County. They charged $1.15 to bring us a box of dry goods from Littleton that weighed 100 pounds. But they will deadhead them if application is made. So will the express company also.

SHAW.—Bro. G. P. Shaw, a member of the Methodist Church in West Durham, died at his home, December 12, 1903, of heart failure, after four weeks suffering and confinement. Brother Shaw was a man successful in business, faithful to his church, and universally respected. He leaves a wife and one child who mourn his death, together with a host of friends and relatives. May our Father in Heaven mercifully with his favor look upon them.

C. P. JEROME.

BRADFORD.—Sister Mary Parker Bradford, wife of Bro. J. E. Bradford, of Oxford, N. C., died at her home December 28, 1903. Sister Bradford was about twenty-eight years old, and had been married only about one year. Hers was a happy life, full of Christ, and had a peaceful end. She had been a member of Westville, Durham M. E. Church, South, for several years, was an earnest and happy Christian. She has a brother who is now a missionary in India under the auspices of the M. E. Church. She leaves a husband and a little babe, a mother, two sisters, two brothers, and a host of friends, and relatives, who sorrow, but not without hope of seeing her again in the beautiful and bright beyond.

BEAVERS.—Mrs. Dora Beavers, (nee Hays), was born January 28, 1861, and died November 30, 1903. Her time on earth was 42 years, 10 months, and 2 days. Sister Beavers spent her time well, and run the race patiently. Her work will abide. She was in every sense a model member of the church. She leaves a husband and ten children to mourn their loss.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. R. W. Bailey and this writer, at Andrews' Chapel Church, on December 1, 1903, where a large crowd had gathered to pay their last tribute of respect to her mortal remains.

May God's comforting spirit comfort that bereaved family, and by and by gather them all to the good Home above.

N. L. SEABOLT.

GUESS.—Mrs. Nancy Jane Guess was born October 9, 1819, and died December 13, 1903. On January 29, 1846, she was married to Mr. J. R. Guess. In 1855 she was converted and joined the Presbyterian Church. In the fall of 1880 she moved from her old home in Orange County, to Cary, N. C., and in 1884 she joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. Sister Guess leaves a husband, several children and grandchildren, to mourn for her.

The above brief chronology defines one of the most symmetrical and beautiful characters that I have known. In all the offices of the home she excelled. As mother, sister, relative, friend, and neighbor, her praise was on the lips of all who knew her. She had learned to exemplify piety at home. She exercised the tenderness and affection which characterize the noblest type of motherhood. She was faithful to her church, and when the last hour came there was no fear of death or dread of the future, but it was just closing her eyes on the things of the world to awake in the bright and happy home above. Just before she went up to heaven she sang, as best she could, "Blessed Assurance, Jesus is Mine! O what a foretaste of glory divine." May God bless those who are left behind.

GEO. B. STARLING.

POLER.—While every death is sad, and some are particularly so, there are others from which the element of sadness is almost eliminated because of the beauty of a heroic faith, and the sunset glow which surrounds the dying saint, such was the death of Mrs. Maude Poler (nee McDonald). She was born July 4, 1882, was converted and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in Sanford, in 1890, at the age of 9 years, and lived a consistant member of the same until her death.

She was married to Irman Gilbert Poler, October 11, 1899, who preceded her to the spirit world, only eleven months, for she was called away on December 15, 1903.

With a heroism seldom seen in one so young, she bore up through the sad affliction of the death of her husband, and looked out upon a world that needed her help, but while her friends and loved ones thought there was a long life of usefulness before her, yet the unseen hand of disease had taken hold upon her, and after seven weeks of suffering she went home. During her sickness she was patient and submissive. Her faith in God was strong and she kept planing how she would do more for Him should she grow better. Her pastor asked her about her spiritual condition several times, and her answer was, "I am satisfied, Jesus is with me." She had no fear, for she loved much, and love casteth out all fear. She often spoke of God's goodness to her, and expressed her thankfulness to him. She wanted to live, she was so young, but she was ready to die.

As she was standing upon the very verge of eternity with the world receding from her view and strange realities bursting upon her vision, she said: "A frivolous life is a worthless life." She then spoke words of consolation to friends and loved ones.

She was conscious until the end.

Her faith in God was so simple and childlike that it was grand. She never faltered in her love to friends, or her devotion to her church. Her life was well spent, her death was triumphant, her rest is sweet.

She was acquainted with sorrow, but possessed a peace this world could not give or take, she was of a cheerful disposition, and brought sunshine to home and loved ones. The church and Sunday-school and the entire community will miss her sadly, but the home that she had brightened will feel her loss more keenly. That home once bright is now in darkness.

May grace come to the stricken mother and sisters and stepfather, and guide them where Maude is, into light eternal.

HER PASTOR.

THARRINGTON.—Departed this life at Cottage Hill, Warren County, N. C., on December 13th, at 2.45 p. m., Minnie Vann Tharrington, in the 20th year of her age. The youngest daughter of the late Allen P. and Mrs. Emily T. Tharrington. Minnie was nineteen years, eleven months, and twenty-seven days old when she entered into the joys of rest from this life. Though tender in years, she was well matured in all that is good, noble and pure. As we try to express the love, admiration and appreciation for one who has gone to be with Jesus, how small and feeble seem our efforts. She professed faith in Christ and joined the M. E. Church at Arcola, N. C., in July, 1896, and has ever since been one of its most earnest and zealous workers for its welfare. Lovely in person, noble in mind, with a tender sympathetic heart, full of compassion for any that might be in trouble, she was always ready to assist where her services were required; but she has gone leaving for those that loved her a sweet memory of a most useful and unselfish life. The light of this world has merely faded from her for trusting in God as she did she has gone where light eternal fadeth not. She was sick only a short time, but suffered a great deal. Though her pains were sharp, her agonies great, she did not murmur or complain, but bore her sufferings with patience, continually speaking words of courage to those that so tenderly and lovingly nursed her during her illness. She had no fear of death, but rather welcomed its coming, as she fully realized and knew that God whom she had trusted, was ready to support her through the vale of death. She fully realized that she was going, and early in the morning of the day of her death, she called to some of the dear ones near, and said: "Going home; going home." In her death the church loses one of its most useful members, her family one of its brightest jewels, though what is our loss is her gain. She is survived by a devoted mother, four sisters, two brothers, and a host of friends. To the bereaved ones we extend our most heartfelt sympathy, at the same time point them to her beautiful life as the way that we should all live that we may meet beyond the river, where there will be no more sorrows or partings.

To him that overcometh, God giveth a crown;
Through faith we shall conquer, though often cast down.
He who is our Savior, our strength will renew;
Look ever to Jesus, He will carry you through.

The Sly Opossum.

To the casual observer the opossum is a brainless, slow-going, lazy beast, with scarcely enough energy to eat his food. But I fancy that there is a good deal more of the knave than the fool about him, and that his apparent stupidity is but a part of his business policy. Helpless as he often seems to be, he usually has a snug hole to crawl into when he wishes to sleep, and he seldom goes hungry when there is any food to be had. Although he is slow, he is persevering, and manages somehow to capture many animals which have much greater speed. Squirrels, for instance, often fall a prey to him in the open woods, and once, when I left an opossum for a few hours in the same room with some red squirrels, he had captured and half devoured one before I returned. Rats, mice and rabbits he also captures, probably by lying in wait for them, and insects he obtains in various ways. Birds' eggs he regards with much favor, and he finds a great many, both on the ground and in the trees, during the nesting-season. Young birds, too, are hunted for and devoured, and occasionally the old birds themselves fail to escape him.

But he is not dependent on animal food, for all is grist which comes to his mill. He is fond of nearly all the wild fruits and berries he finds in the woods and fields, and will even come into the orchards and vineyards to sample the cultivated varieties.—December Woman's Home Companion.

The Farm School.

"My boy, I am very sorry you cannot go to college this fall. I talked with your father, and he feels bad about it. 'Mother,' he said, 'you know that the fall work must be done, and I am not as strong as I used to be; I am very proud of Samuel. He is such a strong, noble boy;' and he rushed out to work."

"Did father say that? It is hard for him. I will not complain. Good-by college for me, mother."

The mother thought long about this educational matter. She could not understand why they did not have school later and only in the winter. Finally, a bright idea came into her mind, as she was looking over some old clothes. "There is our minister; I wonder if he would not teach our Sammy." The more she thought of it the brighter the idea grew. She went to the old superannuated man, and told him the whole plan.

"Teach him! Bless the boy, yes, and his chums also. They can recite Saturday afternoons, and the lessons given will be learned as they go about their work. I have an original idea about education. We will take the things about us, and follow their names, origins, plans, uses, and connections. In that way they will learn literature, languages, and the sciences. The race began on a farm, and nearly all our education of any value is identified with it. Agassiz started his boys to studying a fish, and asked them to describe it. I shall begin with a plow, and lead them on back through history. They will enjoy it, and so shall I." The old minister brightened with the idea of the mission before him.

It is needless to say that the boys looked forward to Saturday conferences with pleasure, and they became, in time, learned in the lore of the past and present.—Northwestern Advocate.

The January Cosmopolitan sustains the many-sided character of this popular magazine. The leading article is from the pen of Lady Henry Somerset, who writes on the people, especially the children, of the London slums, and is illustrated by striking photographs of the capital's poverty. Other illustrated features are a description of San Marino, the oldest republic in the world, by Herbert S. Stone; "The Odd and Eccentric in the Drama," by H. H. Boyesen, 2d, in which the pictures are scenes from the latest and most beautifully mounted melodramas and extravaganzas. "Some Famous Hymns and Their Authors," by Laura Grover Smith, contains portraits of the great hymn-writers and some of the places associated with them. "Childhood through the Ages," by Leo Claretie, has some curious pictures of old toys and dolls. "The Diary of King Edward VIII." records the attempt of a royal personage to lead a useful and not a useless life. Cyrus Townsend Brady begins a series of great interest, "The Dramatic History of South America," with the first article on Peru and the Pizarros. Fiction is contributed by H. G. Wells, William R. Leighton, Elliott Flower, Sara Beaumont Kennedy and Constance Maud. The very popular "Captains of Industry" series is continued with sketches of F. Augustus Heinze, Charles Joseph Bonaparte and President Harper of the Chicago University.

The following advertisement once appeared in a daily paper: "Wanted, a nice cottage and grounds in exchange for a lot choice liquors." Thousands make the exchange every year, and find drunkards' graves.

BRUTALLY TORTURED.

A case came to light that for persistent and unmerciful torture has perhaps never been equaled. Joe Golobick of Colusa, Calif., writes: "For 15 years I endured insufferable pain from Rheumatism and nothing relieved me though I tried everything known. I came across Electric Bitters and it's the greatest medicine on earth for that trouble. A few bottles of it completely relieved and cured me." Just as good for Liver and Kidney troubles and general debility. Only 50c. Satisfaction guaranteed by all druggists.

Death of Mrs. Pegram and Mrs. Yates.

On Sunday morning at 11 o'clock, the altar of death was set up in the home of Dr. W. H. Pegram, of Trinity Park, and his beloved wife, who has been his ever ready help meet for the past 28 years, passed into the shadow of the valley of death.

The deceased had been a great sufferer for some time from an incurable disease, and it had been seen for some time that the end was near at hand.

Mrs. Pegram was in the 59th year of her age. She was born December 5, 1845, at Old Trinity, where her remains were carried for interment.

She was a daughter of Rev. Braxton Craven, D. D., LL.D., founder of Trinity College, and remained in the shadows of the College walls during her entire life, with the exception of the time she consumed at the Greensboro Female College, from which school she graduated with high honors.

On June 10, 1875, commencement day, she was wedded to Prof. W. H. Pegram, the ceremony being performed by Bishop E. M. Marvin, in the Chapel at Old Trinity College. Of this union there are five children, three sons and two daughters. They are as follows: George Braxton Pegram instructor in Physics in Columbia University, of New York; Miss Annie Pegram, professor of Mathematics in Greensboro Female College, John Edward Pegram, principal of the West Durham Graded School; Miss Irene Craven Pegram and William Pegram, the two youngest children, who are still at the old home place.

Mrs. Pegram was a devout Christian, being a member of Trinity Church in this city.

The remains were taken to Old Trinity, her old home, this morning for interment. The pall bearers were Messrs. J. D. Pridgen, Gen. Julian S. Carr, Professors Merritt, Mims, Hamaker and Flowers.

The floral designs were numerous and were very handsome.

Thus ends a beautiful life, surrounded by her family, in the calm holy quietude of a beautiful Sabbath morning, without a murmuring word of regret at having to make a change of world she eamly, trustingly surrendered every attachment on earth and then without a tremor of fear she commended her soul to the redeeming mercy of Him in whose service she has spent all of her useful and active life, and died as dies the servant of the Most High.

Prof. Pegram has scores of friends all over the State who deeply sympathize with him in the loss of one who has been such a shining light to his household.

DEATH OF MRS E A. YATES.

Last Saturday afternoon Mrs. E. A. Yates, wife of Rev. Dr. E. A. Yates, of this city, died at Morganton, where she had been for some time. Her death was no surprise to any one as she had been in declining health for quite a time, and gradually her condition grew weaker and the end had been expected for a number of days.

Mrs. Yates was 66 years of age and had lived a devoted Christian life from her early girlhood days. She was a member of the Beaufort Methodist church, and when the family moved from that place to Wilmington, she moved her membership to the Methodist church there, and had been a member there ever since.

She was united in marriage to Rev. Dr. E. A. Yates in 1863, forty years ago, and of this union there were three children, the only daughter, Mrs. J. R. Green, passing away some time ago.

She leaves a husband and two sons, Messrs. W. K. and Cecil Yates, to mourn her death.

The remains reached this city yesterday afternoon and were carried direct from the train to the residence in the western part of the city where the funeral was held this afternoon at 3 o'clock, conducted by Rev. Dr. J. C. Kilgo, president of Trinity College, assisted by Rev. W. L. Cunninggim, pastor of Main Street Church, after which they were carried to Maplewood Cemetery, where the interment took place.

The pall bearers were Messrs. W. H. McCabe, H. N. Snow, J. H. Southgate, T. J. Lambe, Dr. Edwin Mims and Prof. J. F .Bivins.

The floral offerings were very beautiful and appropriate.

The bereaved relatives have the sympathy of the whole community.—Durham Sun.

Gen. John B. Gordon, in recent years the most noted of all living Confederates, died at Miami, Fla., at 10 o'clock Saturday night, 9th. He was 72 years old, and had served as Governor and United States Senator from Georgia.

From the close of the war General Gordon put forth every effort to bring about harmonious relations between the North and South. He never spoke a bitter word against the North. He was commander-in-chief of the Confederate Veterans' organization for many years, and whenever he presided at meetings of the organization he was greeted with great enthusiasm.

The cottonseed oil industry has greatly injured the raising of the staple by consuming the first and best seed and leaving the farmers the poor seed in the last pickings of inferior cotton for planting purposes. This has resulted in deteriorated plant, smaller bolls and shorted fiber, greatly reducing thereby the total yield in pounds per acre. There is need of more intelligence in the farming operations.—Asheville Citizen.

"Wouldn't you like to have your pick?" asked Larry.

"Not me pick," said Mike, "but me shovel."—Epworth Herald.

THE WORLD AS WE SEE IT.

Mrs. Eddy has made a New Year's gift of $3,000 to the Christian Scientists of New Bern. The sum is to be applied to the building of the new church. We are not so sure that the gift represents any great liberality on the part of Mrs. Eddy. Every member is required to purchase Mrs. Eddy's book, which is sold at a profit of about five hundred per cent, we are told. As long as Mrs. Eddy has such a lucrative source of income she can afford to make a great many New Year's presents of $3,000, and never feel it.

It is to be regretted that the two enterprises which mean so much to North Carolina and the whole South seem to be foredoomed to failure. We refer to the Appalachian Park and the Inland Waterway. The bill to establish the former passed the Senate, but there is hardly a ghost of a chance for it to pass the House. The Inland Waterway has received but scant support. Sectional feeling is in the way of these great enterprises. Yet there are some who speak glowingly of the effected obliteration of all sectional rancor.

The Senate Committee on Privilege and Elections met on last Saturday to consider the charges made against Senator Smoot of Utah. The charges are grave. The principal contention is that Mr. Smoot is a polygamist. The most sensational statement during the discussion was that of Mr. Worthington, counsel for Mr. Smoot, that the Senate has no jurisdiction of offences which may have been committed before a member became a Senator unless committed in connection with his election. In reply to Senator Pettus, Mr. Worthington further said, that no matter what any Senator has done before his election, the Senate has no right to expel him for the offence. We are sure that the statement will cause surprise to thousands of people. According to this, a cutthroat or a thief, if once elected Senator, may hold his place provided his evil practices do not continue after election.

The New York Christian Advocate, whose able editor never speaks rashly, gives a very just and fair criticism of the recent speech of Governor Aycock in Baltimore. Dr. Buckley closes with the following true and appropriate statements: "That the education of the negro is an injury to him has been loudly alleged, but it does not carry the sense of the best Southern people. It does, however, carry the sense of the best Southern people, and ought to of the best Northern people, that any education of the negro, which has a tendency to fillll him with pride, a distaste for hard work, and a disposition to get on without it if he can, is most pernicious."

Archbishop Quigley in protesting against the law which compels every one who takes a place as teacher in the public schools of Chicago to attend a certain Normal School comes out very openly in his denunciation of the system which compels Catholics to send their children to schools in which there is no religion taught, or, if any, one in which Catholics do not believe. The Archbishop, however, falls into his own net, for it is a fact that two-thirds of the public school teachers of Chicago are Catholics. It seems that the Archbishop should consider it the part of wisdom to be quiet in this matter. He certainly should feel that, from his own standpoint, his church has no ground of complaint.

If you wish a clear, clean-cut, reliable statement of the status of prominent affairs in any foreign country, always go to an intelligent missionary in that country. What he says is worth more from the standpoint of reliability than all the reports of the Associated Press. According to these reports, Russia is occupying Manchuria only temporarily and is ready to move out at any time. But Dr. A. A. Parker, one of our missionaries in China, says that the occupation of Manchuria by Russia was really accomplished seven or eight years ago by the payment of large sums of money to certain Chinese leaders led by Li Hung Chang, who allowed Russia to proceed with her plans.

The experience of passenger train No. 76, eastbound, on the Seaboard, one mile east of Sanderson Fla., on last Saturday night, is worthy to be recorded and noted, not because the experience was a new one with the Seaboard road, but because the outcome was so contrary to the general rule. You know that it is an almost unheard of thing for train robbers and burglars to be foiled in their attempts. They not only get their booty, but make their escape so completely that not even a trace of them is found. Four white men on last Saturday night stopped the train referred to and blew open the baggage car with dynamite. When did robbers ever mistake the baggage car for an express car before? Conductor Peck then mustered three men who opened fire upon the robbers and put them to flight. The wonder is that Conductor Peck and his three helpers were not killed, and that the robbers loaded with wallets of gold did not jolly the passengers awhile and then leisurely depart. This is generally the way it goes. But Providence was evidently on the side of the Seaboard in this instance.

There was great significance in the action of the Grand Lodge of Masons last Thursday in Raleigh when the retailing of spirituous liquors was made a Masonic offence. This action has long been expected. The principles of Masonry are too high and beneficent to allow a member to engage in that business which is so destructive to the interests of humanity. We regard this action of the Grand Lodge as an important movement for temperance in North Carolina. The following are the officers for the ensuing year: Grand Master, W. S. Liddell; Deputy Grand Master, F. D. Winston; Senior Grand Warden, S. M. Gattis; Junior Grand Warden, R. N. Hackett; Grand Treasurer, William Simpson; Assistant Grand Treasurer, Leo. D. Heartt; Grand Secretary, John C. Drewry; Grand Chaplain, T. N. Ivey; Grand Lecturer, B. W. Hatcher; Senior Grand Deacon, W. B. McCoy; Junior Grand Deacon, F. M. Winchester; Grand Marshal, W. J. Roberts; Grand Pursuivant, J. B. Griggs; Grand Tiler, R. H. Bradley; Custodian of the Work, J. E. Cameron.

Mr. Andrew Carnegie, in a recent address before a graduating class in New York, gave some excellent advice to the young men on how to attain success in life. Among other good things, he said:

"There are several classes of young men. There are those who do not do all their duty, there are those who profess to do their duty, and there is a third class, far better than the other two, that do their duty and a little more.

"There are many great pianists, but Paderewski is at the head because he does a little more than the others. There are hundreds of race-horses, but it is those who go a few seconds faster than the others that acquire renown. So it is in the sailing of yachts. It is little more that that wins. So it is with the young and old men who do a little more than their duty.

"No one can cheat a young man out of success in life. You young lads have begun well. Keep on. Don't bother about the future. Do your duty and a little more, and the future will take care of itself."

"Why do so many boys go to the bad?" is a question which is ever before us? There are many answers to this question. We are going to give one answer in the following: A few nights ago, in passing the Academy of Music, we noticed a dense mob in front of the central door, waiting for the doors to open. In that clamoring mob, we noticed a large number of boys—many in knee-breeches. That night they saw a glorification of Jesse James, a red-handed murderer. In their minds and hearts were planted seed whose deadly germination can be prevented, if at all, only by a kind Providence.

At the late session of the South Carolina Conference, Dr. S. A. Weber made a most interesting and helpful address before the Conference Historical Society. The subject of his address was: "The Conference of 1859." We suggest that our own Historical Society could do well in having the speaker at our next meeting to discuss some Conference in the past. It would be a rich field.

Paragraphs 455 and 458 Interpreted.

BY BISHOP O. P. FITZGERALD.

A ministerial brother, a pastor in active service, whose zeal for the Church is notable, and who has "a good business head on him," as the saying goes, submits a question to me concerning the transfer or sale of Church property, which demands careful consideration by all concerned. My answer is given only as my individual opinion. The only one of my colleagues from whom I have heard takes the same view of the matter that I do. But let opinions differ as they may, the importance of a right understanding and uniform action will be conceded by all. Practical unanimity, I trust, will follow due inquiry.

The question refers to the inalienability of funds arising from the proceeds of the sale of a Church building or of parsonage property. To me it seems clear that neither in the one case nor the other can such funds be diverted from the object for which they were originally contributed and invested. The law in the case is found in paragraphs 455 and 458 of our Book of Discipline.

Paragraph 455 provides that in all conveyances of grounds for the building of houses of worship, or upon which they may have been already built, this "trust clause" shall be inserted at the proper place: "In trust, that said premises shall be used, kept, maintained, and disposed of, as a place of divine worship for the use of the ministry and membership of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, subject to the discipline, usage, and ministerial appointments of said Church, as from time to time authorized and declared by the General Conference of said Church, and by the Annual Conference within whose bounds the said premises are situate."

Paragraph 458 provides that in all conveyances of ground for the building of dwelling-houses for the use of the preachers, or upon which they may have been already built, that the following clause be inserted at the proper place: "In trust, that such premises shall be held, kept, maintained, and disposed of, as a place of residence for the use and occupancy of the preachers of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, who may from time to time be appointed in said place; subject to the usage and discipline of said Church, as from time to time authorized and declared by the General Conference of said Church, and by the Annual Conference within whose bounds the said premises are situate."

It will be observed that the same language is used in both paragraphs 455 and 458, except that a different kind of property is named. The same interpretation therefore seems to be called for prima facie.

The author of both of these paragraphs (adopted in 1866) was Judge Merritt, a reputable lawyer and jurist, whose testimony as to their intent might be accepted as conclusive by all interested persons. He says: "The language used was to prevent the alienation of funds in either case. The wording of these paragraphs, correctly interpreted, will not permit Church funds to put into a parsonage or parsonage funds to be put into a church building."

This means that funds arising from the sale of parsonage property must be reinvested in the same kind of property. In other words, paragraph 458 is as binding in this particular as paragraph 455.

The law seems to be explicit in its provisions. The interpretation given by its author seems to be that which is natural and inevitable. Good faith toward the donors in all cases would seem to point to the same conclusion.

A recent utterance by the Editor of the Nashville Christian Advocate presented what seemed to me the right view of this matter. After due consideration by his editorial colleagues, it is hoped that there will be general agreement of opinion on their part. I also indulge the hope that throughout our whole Church there will be agreement in opinion and action. And if there should be any entanglements or embarrassments among our people anywhere growing out of former transactions in this matter, the exhibition of a spirit of patience and conciliation, and the exercise of a reasonable share of common sense, ought to prevent hard feelings and harsh measures in all cases.

A Free Bible.

REV. T. H. LAW, D. D.

When Martin Luther was a monk in the monastery at Erfurt, it is said that he found there a single copy of the Bible. That was probably the first whole Bible the young monk had ever seen. And, as the story goes, that Bible was held fast to its place by a chain. Now this chained Bible at Erfurt was a striking illustration of the relation of the Bible in that day to the common people: it was emphatically a chained book.

It was chained away from the common people.

First, in that it was held in a dead language. True, the Bible had before this been rendered into some of the living tongues of earth; Wickliffe's version in our own language had already been made. But the authorized version, that which carried with it the authority of the Church of Rome, which then dominated the Christian world, was the Vulgate, the Latin version of Jerome, which only the scholars could read. It was thus cut off from the common people.

Second, it was too expensive a book for ordinary people to own. True, the art of printing with types had recently been invented, and the Bible is said to have been the first book printed in this way; but the process was as yet so expensive that few people could afford to buy a book so costly as the Bible. And thus again it was shut off from the reach of the common people.

And third, it was under the ban of the priest. It is the doctrine of the Romish Church that the common people are not to be entrusted with the Bible, but must receive the word from the lips of the priest, who doles it out to them in such portions and with such limitations, interpretations and applications as suit his priestly purposes. So again the Bible was removed away from the common people.

But when Martin Luther bent over that chained Bible at Erfurt, and, under the teaching of the Holy Spirit, drew life and liberty from its inspired pages, he then and there conceived that great religious revolution which he went forth from those cloistered walls to inaugurate, and by which he not only tore away the chains which bound the Bible, but also the bonds of Papal domination, and lifted the Christian religion out of the perversion and degradation into which it had sunk.

Now the central principle of this great movement, which we call the Reformation, was a Free Bible. This Luther sought to give to his loved Germany and the world. And this has been the cardinal principle of Protestant Christianity ever since. A Free Bible in the truest and fullest sense of the term.

The Bible translated into the living tongues, the popular languages of earth, so that the common people can read and hear and interpret it for themselves, and thus receive directly into their own minds and hearts the message of Divine truth.

The Bible as thus translated, printed and made cheap, so that everybody can have one for himself.

And the Bible circulated, brought immediately to everybody's hand, so that every one may have the opportunity to know the Word of God, which is able to make wise unto salvation.

To make effective this great principle of our Protestantism, Bible societies were organized and are now maintained. And what have they accomplished in this respect during the one hundred years of their operations? They have greatly promoted the translation of the Scriptures so that to-day the Word of God is read in over four hundred different dialects and languages, spoken by about three-fourths of the whole population of the globe. They have made the Bible without comparison the cheapest book on the market, so very cheap that even the poorest can own a copy and have it for himself. And they have circulated in Christian, papal and pagan countries, fully three hundred million copies of the Bible in whole or in part.

Then appreciating the priceless value of a Free Bible, ought we not all to celebrate with thanksgiving and rejoicing the Centennial of this grand movement on the sixth of March next?

Uplifted by Christ.

C. H. WETHERBE.

Christ was lifted to His cross that by His death He might lift millions of believing penitents from the depths of their sins into the heights of grace and glory. No one, by his own moral nobleness nor by any moral education, can arise from his spiritual death into newness of life. And a glorious feature of Christ's uplifting power is that it brings many extreme sinners into the free life of God. Sometime ago a converted Jew, named Jacob Hirschler, died. He was born in Austro-Hungary, and after a career of wickedness in that land he came to New York. In a sketch, written by himself, he says: "So terrible had the burden of my remorse and despair become that I was on the brink of a sick soul's crowning disaster, when one evening God led my stumbling feet to a Salvation Army open-air meeting, just at the moment when my very prototype in evil began to testify. He, too, had lived almost exactly the life of vice, action for action, that I had, and before my eyes he stood declaring his freedom. For three weeks I fought the strength of that man's testimony in the conviction that gripped my soul. For three weeks I sought by every specious argument known to hell to crush out the ever-growing certainty that in this man's bold assertion lay the glimmering of my sole hope. It was a warfare between mighty natural forces; it rent and tore me asunder before my soul found courage to believe. But hallelujah! through the mercy of Christ, my Messiah and the whole world's, courage was at last given me, and with it came strength to hasten, without a moment's pause for further parley, to the Army penitent-form, where, for the first t[ime] in my life, I really felt and knew God. To His glory, then, great and unthinkable above all things, and for the reassurance of many who, like me, greatly long, yet are fearful, I have wri[tten] all haltingly and incompletely, this h[istory] of a career which, after many years, in His mercy Christ has uplifted by His salvation." Well, if Christ can successfully uplift such a great sinner as that Jew was, He certainly can do as much for you, my reader. Will you now let Him?

During our recent absence from town, some parties, unknown but strongly suspected, formed a conspiracy to invade the parsonage. This they did, but escaped undiscovered before we reached the house. We have strong evidence against them in the form of a great variety of packages, every one welcome in itself but thrice welcome for the love that prompted it. It was very pleasant to be allowed to return to this charge for my fourth year. I loved them before last year; but those months of unceasing thoughtfulness for me and mine, when through prolonged illness I could do no work, had made them doubly dear; and now they begin this year with renewed kindness. May our Father bless them and make me a blessing to them.

Our new Presiding Elder, new to the work as well as to us, opened his campaign on the district with us. In the pulpit and in the chair he proved himself well fitted to the work. But of course everybody knew as much before he was [ap]. Nevertheless, Presiding Elder Cole will find it hard to excel in fidelity or usefulness Presiding Elder Rone. The three years past during w[hich] I have served under him have placed him high in my esteem and love. May the Heavenly Fa[ther] attend him in his new and important work.

Some New Year Thoughts.

C. F. S.

Man is a complex being: organic body, rational soul, and spiritual nature. In this complexity is unity, the essential being. The sun is neither light, heat, nor chemical affinity, but these three in one combined. The color, form, and fragrance are inseparable from the flower—they are the flower. So man is a trinity in unity: organic body, rational mind, and spiritual nature. The state of man is fourfold. First, His primitive state in Eden. Second: His fallen state; he lost God's image, and from Eden he was driven out. Third: His gracious state; for him the cross is set up; for him Jesus died. Last: His immortal state; heaven or hell; light or darkness.

The body of man is the most complex and complete piece of material workmanship of Almighty God. It is God's last and greatest work. It is the apex and crown of all material things. Earth's most glorious building is selected to represent it, the Temple on Mt. Moriah: "Ye are a temple." To work out the Atonement, Christ assumed the body. He carried it back with him to heaven: Perfect man—Perfect God. On the side of his Humanity he can sympathize with us. On the side of his divinity he can save us.

"If it were not so I would have told you." There is a heaven above to answer to the longings of the heart. There is light for the eye; sound for the ear. The fish has an ocean. The bird has all the heavens for its flight. There is an immortality to answer to the soul's longings. He who made the sun for the flower has put a real heavens above us to answer to the deepest intuitions and desires of an immortal spirit. "If it were not so I would have told you." God will not mock us with false hopes. The hope of heaven is in the heart, and there is a real heaven above.

The attraction of our loved ones is an argument for another life. How often on the head has been felt the hand of a sainted mother. Previous to the year 1845, the planet Uranus was subjected to certain perturbations that could not be accounted for by any known planet. A French mathematician, Verrier, said there must be somewhere a heavenly body undiscovered. Dr. Galle, of the Berlin observatory, turned his telescope to the place designated, and found the planet. Through all these years it had thrown its light and heat upon the planet, and from its attractions, though unseen, it was known to exist.

"Dead are like the stars by day,
Withdrawn from mortal eye,
Yet holding unperceived their way
Through the cloudless sky.

The flying kite cannot be seen in the twilight. It can be felt to draw and be known to exist when we hold the cord. The attractions of our departed ones prove another life.

"Over the river they beckon to me,
Loved ones who have crossed to the further side;
The gleam of their snowy robes I see,
But their voices are drowned with the rushing tide.

"There is one with ringlets of sunny gold,
And eyes the reflection of heaven's own blue;
He crossed in the twilight gray and cold,
And the pale mist hid him from mortal view.

"We saw not the angels who met him there,
The gates of the city we could not see;
But over the river, over the river,
My brother stands waiting to welcome me."

The World's Fourth Sunday School Convention.

The General Secretary of the North Carolina Sunday-School Association, Mr. S. M. Smith, has received a notice from Mr. E. K. Warren, of Michigan, Chairman of the World's Executive Sunday-school Committee, stating that the delegation from America to the World's Fourth Sunday-school Convention, will sail from New York March 8, 1904. This will no doubt be the greatest Sunday-school Convention ever held. The following persons have been appointed from North Carolina, and will probably go: Prof. and Mrs. C. H. Crowell, High Point; Prof. and Mrs. W. M. Cundiff, Siloam; Mr. W. M. Curtis, Hendersonville; Mr. and Mrs. Geo. W. Watts, Durham; Mrs. Judge Seymour, New Bern; and Mr. R. H. Ricks, Rocky Mount. This State is entitled to fifteen delegates in all, which leaves six vacancies at present. Ohio leads the list with 43, all of whom have already engaged berths. There are only about 200 vacancies in all, and if others wish to go from North Carolina they should make application at once. The cost of the entire trip, including quite a number of side trips and all extras except stewards' fees, is $300 to $700, according to location of state room. The Convention will be called to order on Easter morning on the Mount of Olives just outside the gates of Jerusalem. Representatives from every country on the globe will be in attendance. This is the greatest step ever undertaken by the International and World's Executive Committee, and will of course be the greatest gathering of Sunday-school workers the world has ever seen, or known. The American ship will be joined in the Mediterranean by others carrying delegations from the various countries of Europe and other parts of the world.

THE CONVENTION.

The sessions of the Convention will be held in large tents, while other meetings will be held in Bethany, in Gethsemane, on the Mount of Olives and Bethlehem Hills. A series of supplementary Sunday-school Lessons has been prepared, based on the sacred places to be visited, all of which will have special reference to the Sunday-school lessons proper for the coming year. The very best known Sunday-school men in the world will be on the program and in attendance.

THE STEAMER

The "Crosser Kurfurst" of the North German Lloyd Line, has been chartered for this cruise. She is a floating palace, and one of the steadiest, most comfortable ships in the world. The dining-rooms, vestibules and drawing-rooms are magnificently decorated and furnished. The ship is fitted up with concert grand pianos, library, reading-rooms, etc.

THE TRIP

Hon. Herbert E. Clark, present Vice-Consul for Palestine, will personally escort the delegation, while several other tourist agents and guides will be available. Mr. Clark has lived in Palestine for thirty-six years, has a personal knowledge of the people, their customs, habits, etc. He is also acquainted with the location and history of all the local shrines and sacred places in the Holy Land. The regular cruise includes side-trips to Bethlehem, Bethany, Cairo, the Pyramids, etc. A special program is being prepared for each day from the time the ship leaves New York until she returns May 31. A daily paper will be printed on board announcing the order of exercises, the news of the ship, etc. A special choir will be organized as soon as the ship sails, which will have charge of the music throughout the voyage. Dr. W. B. Chamberlain, of the Chair of Sacred Music in Chicago Theological Seminary, will be in charge. Besides the music furnished by this splendid choir the ship's band and orchestra will be at the disposal of the delegation. Lectures will be given and conferences conducted daily, by the leading Sunday-school men of the world. A part of the ship will be converted into a chapel for this especial purpose. Quite a number of foreign missionaries will join the party along the Mediterranean and at Jerusalem, the presence of whom will of course add much to the success of the Convention and the cruise.

WHAT IS INCLUDED

Railway and steamship passage for the entire route, hotel accommodations, omnibus to and from stations where neccessary, carriages, drives, and excursions to a number of cities, in fact everything except steward's fees, which is somewhat optional with each individual.

WHERE THE SHIP WILL STOP.

Landings for the purpose of sight-seeing will be made at the following places: Madeira, one and one-half days; Gibralter, nine hours; Algiers, eleven hours; Malta, carriage and railway to Pitta Vecchia and return, thirty miles; Piraeus to Athens and return by rail, carriage drives, visit to Robert College;; Smyrna, several hours; Beyrout, several hours, carriage drives to American College and other places. Returning, stops will be made at Alexandria, Cairo, Naples, Rome, Nice. Side trips have been planned from many of these points for those who wish to take them. Among the many side trips which have been planned the most important is probably that across Europe. Leaving the main tour at Rome, those who desire may cross the continent for $160, visiting Florence, Venice, Milan, Lucerne, Paris, London, Southampton and across to New York on another of the North German Lloyd steamers. Three other side-trips across Europe touching other points have been arranged.

WHAT IS NECESSARY.

The only thing necessary to do for those who wish to go from North Carolina is to write Mr. N. B. Broughton, Raleigh, Chairman of the State Executive Committee of the North Carolina Sunday-school Association, saying that you desire the appointment. A certificate of appointment will be sent you, which, with $25, should be sent at once to Mr. E. K. Warren, Three Oaks, Mich. This is the chance of a life time for the Sunday-school workers of North Carolina, and in view of this fact pastors and superintendents throughout the State are asked to make the announcements in their churches and schools. The opportunity is too valuable not to be brought to the attention of those who can and who might go, if they only knew about it.

Bishop Granbery on "Different Ways of Coming to Christ"

Centuries have passed since the apostolic age. Christianity has largely leavened those countries with which we are best acquainted. Christendom means that in a sense we are Christians by natural birth. In the home, school, and Church, we have had Christian training teaching and training. We have all our days been familiar with Christian examples, conversation, and literature. Christianity has, by multiform methods and in various measures, moulded the sentiments and customs of our people. They are not abruptly aroused by the blast of the gospel trumpet, threatening judgment, summoning to repentance, and offering reconciliation. They have often heard the voice of God in their hearts, and felt the gentle touch and drawing of the Spirit. Even outside the circle of the saved, we witness in many persons a high sense of honor, repugnance to vice, gentle manners, kindness of heart, and readiness to assist in moral and benevolent enterprises, and even in distinctively religious work, which are the fruit and praise of the gospel.

This widespread culture has not lessened the necessity of conversion and spiritual regeneration; but it has modified in a degree their manifestation, and especially the emotional excitement attendant upon them. Sudden and astonishing conversions do occur among us. Drunkards, gamblers, rakes, rioters, thieves, and other criminals, are arrested, brought to repentance, and changed in heart and life. Not less wonderful is the effect of the gospel on skeptics, and on slaves of mammon, ambition, pride, and fashion. Cries of remorse, shame, and terror are succeeded by shouts of gratitude and rapture. But in many cases there is little agitation in those who seek, little ecstasy in those who find. They come to Christ in early life; or, if later, after a long state of being almost persuaded, they yield to the grace of God, and, understanding the plan of salvation, they easily embrace the promises in Christ and enter peace and assurance. A difference of the same sort is seen in Lydia and the jailer.

Still waters need not be shallow. The white heat of fused iron may be intenser than the red, roaring flames of seasoned timber. Quiet pressure may be as effective as ringing blows. Cries and sobs, convulsive movements and prostration, songs and shouts, hand-clapping and leaping, do not guage strength of feeling, much less of purpose. A gentle woman, shrinking from curious eyes and ears, may carry heaven in her heart, and dare martyrdom for Christ's sake, or, what perhaps is greater, spend a long life of joyous self-sacrifice in his service.—Western Christian Advocate.

The Old Charge and the New.

Dear Advocate:—We spent three pleasant years in Beaufort, and our hearts were sad when in the early moving of December 10th, we turned our faces away from the dear, good friends who had been so true, so kind, so helpful to us during our stay among them; may heaven's richest blessings forever rest upon them.

On our way to our new charge we spent a most delightful night at the "Davis House" in Kinston (Rev. E. H. Davis, the successful and justly popular pastor of our church in Kinston, proprietor), and as we were pleased with the fare, we shall remember the "Davis House" when we pass through Kinston.

We arrived at Greenville early in the morning of December 11th, and were carried to our "hired house" on the corner of Second and Washington Streets (known now as the "Bishop House"), where we found good fires, warm rooms and a hearty welcome.

That night the Board of Stewards met and made liberal and satisfactory allowance for the support of the pastor and his family. On Sunday following, which was the second Sunday in December, I preached to an attentive congregation at eleven o'clock a. m. At night the other churches closed their doors and united with our people in a "welcome service," which was one of the most pleasant services I ever attended.

The first week in January was observed as a week of special prayer, the Presbyterian, Baptist (Missionary), Baptist (Free Will), Christian and Methodist Churches uniting in the services. On account of inclement weather, the people could not attend the services as they otherwise would have done, but we are sure much real good was accomplished.

Greenville is, in many respects, a most delightful town; its people are intelligent and progressive, yet we are cursed with a liquor distillery and open grog-shops, but the good people of the town are determined to place a period to this curse in the near future.

Sincerely. J. A. HORNADAY.

Burlington Circuit.

Dear Advocate:—After visiting relatives and friends, my wife and I came over to our new home, the parsonage, on Wednesday after Christmas day. We were delighted to find on our arrival several of the good members of the Shiloh Church. Bro. John Boone seemed to be leading the way with Bro. T. J. Gwynn and his wife. There were to meet us also, several young people. After warming for a short while, by one of those regular winter fires, we soon found ourselves surrounding the dinner table which had been bountifully supplied by both the Shiloh and the "Hub" members, together with the good people around the parsonage of other denominations. The dinner was delightful, but better still were our feelings when we were shown the many good and valuable things that had been collected for us and which we are still enjoying. We extend our heartfelt thanks to all who participated in this pounding.

I have visited two of my churches—Mount Vernon and Prospect. I have been very favorably impressed with the people at both places. They seem to be a very appreciative people of the gospel, showing this by giving me the very best of attention.

I must say that I am well pleased with my work, and trust that we will have a good year.

From Storm-Swept Hatteras.

Dear Brother Ivey:—We reached here December the 11th. Our reception was more than we anticipated.

We have preached at every appointment on the charge. God manifested himself in these services.

Santa Claus visited us on the night of December 31st. This far surpassed any pounding in our experience.

May God richly reward these good people. God bless the Advocate.

Yours in love,

W. F. GALLOWAY.

The Family.

The Eternal Goodness.

I walked with bare, hushed feet the ground
Ye tread with boldness shod;
I dare not fix with mete and bound
The love and power of God.

Yet in the maddening maze of things,
And tossed by storm and flood,
To one fixed stake my spirit clings,
I know that God is good.

I know not what the future hath
Of marvel or surprise,
Assured a one that life and death
His mercy underlies.

And if my heart and flesh are weak
To bear an untried pain,
The bruised reed He will not break.
But strengthen and sustain.

And so beside life's silent sea
I wait with muffled oar;
No harm from Him can come to me
On ocean or on shore.

I know not where His islands lift
Their fronded palms in air;
I only know I cannot drift
Beyond His love and care.

—J. G. Whittier.

Remember the Folks at Home.

A friend was telling me about a young man who travels extensively in the interests of the firm by whom he is employed. My friend said: "George has always been such a home boy that they miss him very much when he is away on these long trips, but then his mother gets a letter from him every day while he is away."

"Does he write every day?" I asked incredulously; for I happened to know a few people who consider it somewhat of an effort to write a letter much less frequently.

My friend assured me that the postman never failed to stop every day with a letter from the absent son. I liked that. It is but a little thing to do, but I venture to assert that it isn't always the news or the message that brings the light into that mother's eyes, but the living thoughtfulness of her boy, who is never too busy to write to mother. God bless George.

There comes to my mind a little scene in striking contrast: Last Christmas morning I called at the humble home of an aged couple. It was worth while to take my little gift in person, just to see their faces brighten because they had been remembered. During our conversation the mother said, with tears welling up in her faded eyes, and her voice choking: "My son hasn't sent anything this year; he has forgotten his old mother."

The son, who lives in a distant State, had occasionally sent his parents a Christmas present. And the old hearts were sad and lonely this year because nothing had come as evidence that they had been remembered. The pathos of it saddened me as I suggested the possibility of a delay. I have never heard whether they received anything—I never had the heart to inquire. But in this instance, too, I am sure it was not so much the gift they looked for as the affection and thoughtfulness and expression of filial tenderness for which their hearts wistfully yearned.

When I was a very little girl a picture-book was given to me, entitled "My Mother." The first illustration showed a young mother bending over a crib in which was a little baby girl. The story of the lives of mother and child was continued in each successive picture, and the last one represented the mother, old and bent and feeble, leaning on the arm of her daughter, now grown to womanhood, who tenderly guided the faltering steps. The impression that picture made upon my childish mind has never been effaced. It is but natural and right that the young and strong should become the support and stay of the old and infirm. And nothing appeals to me more strongly than the dependence of the aged.

Then write often, sons and daughters who are away from home; don't neglect a token of remembrance and anniversary occasions, for the time will surely come when there will be no occasion for these things; and the pangs of remorse can never undo the cruelty of neglect.

It isn't the thing you do, dear,
It's the thing you leave undone,
That gives you a bit of heartache
At the setting of the sun.
The tender word forgotten,
The letter you did not write,
The flower you did not send, dear,
Are your haunting ghosts at night."

—Epworth Herald.

Every daughter of Eve—or at least every one who belongs to that branch of her family that eventually became Americans,—is fond of pretty clothes, as an adjunct in the furtherance of the natural desire to please, an instinct implanted by a beneficent Creator,—but not every girl knows that her breeding is shown in her clothes, and that fine ones do not make her a lady nor impose upon any one by making her appear to be one.

Cheap finery not only betrays poverty, which it is unnecessary to confide to the world at large, which regards it most unsympathetically, and not only proclaims ignorance of good taste, but also lays a girl open to misconception and possible identification with the least worthy of her sex. We are not all amenable to suggestions for our good; and, when our desire clash with our "sense of oughtness," it depends upon the quality of our make-up which shall prevail. Another evidence of gentle breeding is a well-modulated voice. Thomas Wentworth Higginson said: "Shut me up in a dark room with a mixed multitude, and I can pick out the gentlefolks by their voices."

In the compass of every voice there are three registers,—the middle or throat, the lower or chest, and the upper or head register. The use of the middle pitch for talking is very desirable, but the voice should be trained to slide up and down, varying with the emotions; low, when the mood inclines toward seriousness, and higher when it becomes tinged with excitement. An interesting speaker constantly changes his pitch; not abruptly, but with ease and skill, and the greater range one has the more certain he is to get and retain the pleased attention of listeners. Our high-pitched, strident voices are sharply criticised, and it is quite within our power to change them.

I confess to liking a bit of slang now and then from a young man's mouth. It sounds racy, adds snap and spice if used judiciously, and a few of its terms are pithy and expressive, but when a girl uses slang it only sounds common. What is becoming to one sex is not becoming so to the other.

When we see a woman who laughs and talks loudly in public places, we put a severe strain upon our charity and judgment not to think her vulgar. When to the conventional, "How do you do?" she replies, "Fine!" we know on just what rung of the social ladder to put her.—Mrs. Burton Kingsland, in "Success."

Expecting a Flood.

An old lady recently bargained with a London cabman standing outside a railway station to take her into town. The sum being agreed upon, the dame returned into the station, and soon reappeared with two parrots in cages, which she handed up to the cabman.

Again she journeyed to the platform and brought out two cats. A third trip she made, bringing back a daintly dressed fox terrier, and a fourth expedition was interrupted by cabby exclaiming: "Beggin' your pardon, ma'am, but you ain't expecting a flood, I 'ope?"

"Dear me, no," was the reply; "whatever made you ask that question, cabby?"

"Oh, it's all right, ma'am," said John. "I thought I'd ask, 'cos I ain't certain as 'ow my horse can swim, and I fancied by the look of your luggage that you were a-takin' my keb for a Noah's Ark!"

How Not to Write for a Newspaper.

When you are seized with an irresistible impulse to write for newspaper columns, be sure to supply yourself with a large quantity of paper, then spread yourself over all of it. Write enough to fill a book and add "To be continued." It will make the editor feel that he is getting something immense; besides, it will be good for the country, increasing the revenue of a Postal Department with postage forward and return.

In the next place, don't use pen and ink, much less a typewriter. Get hold of a little old lead pencil and smear the page with it. It will accelerate the return of your manuscript.

Be careful to write a cramped hand, making the letters very small and running the words close together—paper is expensive. The editor will bless you, and the compositors will say words.

If you are an old hand at newspaper work, make your chirography as much like Egyptian hieroglyphics as possible. Your manuscript, if not wanted by the editor, can be sent down to the U. of C., and Professor Brested, the Egyptian scholar, will date it back to the time of Thothmes the Third, and put it in his museum.

Write a long introduction and work very slowly to what you want to say. It will prevent a rush of ideas to the reader's head. And keep your thought very thin—words are what people want.

Make yourself to be understood. It will give you the reputation of being deep.

Sacrifice everything else to dignity. Make your sentences as stiff as a shirt just out a Chinese laundry.

And be dull; don't fail to be dull, especially if you are writing from a sense of duty. Also, be stupid. The waste-paper basket is yearning for stupid articles.

And, above all things, take it for granted that there is room for tons of matter in each issue of the paper.—The Advance.

Wesley's Definition of a Methodist.

"A Methodist is one that has the love of God shed abroad in his heart by the Holy Ghost given unto him; one who loves the Lord his God with all his heart, soul, and mind, and strength. He rejoices evermore, prays without ceasing, and in everything gives thanks. His heart is full of love to all mankind, and is purified from envy, malice, wrath and every unkind affection. His one desire, and the one design of his life, is not to do his own will, but the will of Him that sent him. He keeps all God's commandments, from the least to the greatest. He follows not the customs of the world; for vice does not lose its nature through its becoming fashionable. He fares not sumptuously every day. He cannot lay up treasures upon the earth; nor can he adorn himself with gold or costly apparel. He cannot join in any diversion that has the least tendency to vice. He cannot speak evil of his neighbor any more than he can lie. He cannot utter unkind or evil words. No corrupt communication ever comes out of his mouth. He does good unto all men, unto neighbors, strangers, friends and enemies. These are the principles and practices of our sect. These are the marks of a true Methodist. By these alone do Methodists desire to be distinguished from other men."—Exchange.

The front door-bell rang furiously. A head adorned with shaggy and unmanageable whiskers was thrust out of the chamber window, and a voice that fitted the bearer inquired, "Who is it?"

"Oh, is this Mr. Higgin?" came a shrill voice from the shade of the doorway below.

"Please come to No. 41 High Street just as quick as you can, and bring your instruments."

"I ain't no doctor; I'm a carpenter. Dr. Higgins lives two doors below," and the window was coming down with a slam, when "Please, sir," said the little voice, "it's you we want. Pa and ma is shut up in the folding bed, and we can't get 'em out."

Our Boys and Girls.

What the New Year Brought.

It was almost midnight. Eunice stood listening at the window. She had turned out the light and thrown up the shade. How pure and white the snow-covered fields looked in the moonlight! Like the first unsoiled page of the New Year, she thought.

"I wonder what the New Year has in store for me," she said. "Will it be some great happiness, or will it be a great sorrow? Or will it be only little pains and pleasures?"

The first stroke of a bell sounded clear on the still night air, and then the music of many chimes came ringing across the fields. Eunice turned from the window and knelt by her bed.

"Dear Father," she prayed, "make me ready for what Thou dost send. Give me grace to bear the trials that may come with the New Year, and wisdom to meet its perplexities."

In the breakfast-room on New Year's morning Eunice lingered for a little talk with grandfather. Turning the leaves of an illuminated calendar, she spoke aloud the question which had been in her thoughts the night before: "What will it bring to me?"

"What you choose," said the old man.

"What do you mean, grandpa? I am not a fairy godmother to bring by magic whatever I may wish."

"Perhaps not; but remember the years are what we make them, Eunice, child, dont look to circumstances for happiness. Happiness comes first from within. The magic wand is unselfishness. Don't forget, my child."

The door-bell rang, and Eunice flew to answer it, returning with the morning mail.

"Here's your paper, grandpa, and a letter for me. From Jennie, I know. Such a pretty seal—ten pages—just like her—how nice!" and Eunice settled herself on the couch to read it.

There was silence for a few moments and then she burst forth:

"O grandpa, it's the loveliest piece of good fortune! Jennie is going to Washington with her father and mother, and she invites me to go with them. They'll stay until Congress adjourns. All my expenses paid! The capital will be lively this winter and there'll be no end of good times. Isn't it a rare chance? So much for the New Year! I'll write to-day and accept the invitation."

Later, as she watched the sun setting in a great red sea of cloud, her brother Fred came in.

"Another letter for you, Sis! I was around by the post-office," and he tossed her the missive. Eunice glanced at the post-mark and opened the letter a trifle indifferently. She read:

My Dear Niece:—Your Aunt Sabina is real poorly. I am afraid sometimes she won't get better, she's been sick so long. You know she took a great notion to you when you was here two years ago, and she talks about you often now. It would do her a heap of good to see you again. I thought maybe you'd come down and stay a spell, say through the dead of winter. So that's what I'm writing for. She don't know about it. I wanted to sort of surprise her. Hoping you will come soon, I am your affectionate uncle,

JONAS PARKS.

"Well, I am sure I can't go," she said to herself. "Jennie's letter came first and I've accepted the invitation. To be sure, I haven't posted the letter yet, but Jennie will be disappointed if I refuse."

She stood for a few minutes absent-mindedly tearing the envelope into bits. After awhile she said half aloud:

"I suppose Uncle Jonas will be disappointed, too, and it won't make so much difference to Jennie. Any of the girls would go to her gladly. But, oh, dear, it's such a chance, and I do want so much to go! Oh, I can't give it up!"

"Oh, I am so miserable! So miserable, when I meant to be happy! And I've tried to remember what grandpa said, that happiness comes from within." In spite of herself, tears of disappointment and vexation wet her cheks. She dashed them away and sat down in the little rocker for a good think.

"Unselfishness is the magic wand." The words rang in her ears. Had she been—was she—selfish? Had she been looking to her own pleasure for happiness? Resolutely Eunice cross-questioned herself while the long hand of her watch went round more than once, but when at last she rose to brush her hair, the face that looked at her from the mirror was sweet and untroubled.

The next day a letter went to Jennie Barnes containing a hearty appreciation of the invitation tendered and an honest reason for its refusal. In the same mail sped on to Jonas Parks another letter which, when it was opened, made that good man's kindly face beam for joy.

"Grandpa," said Eunice the day following, as she turned the key in the lock of her trunk just packed, "I think I understand better what you meant by saying it was not wise to depend too much on circumstances for one's happiness. I thought at one time that nothing but a trip to Washington could bring me happiness since I decided to go to Uncle Jonas'. I've thought of so many things to do for Aunt Sabina I can hardly wait to get there."

"Ah, child, you are on the right track now. The New Year will surely bring you what you make of it, dearie.—Josephine E. Toal.

NIGHT WAS HER TERROR.

"I would cough nearly all night long," writes Mrs. Chas. Applegate, of Alexandria, Ind., "and could hardly get any sleep. I had consumption so bad that if I walked a block I would cough frightfully and spit blood, but, when all other medicines failed, three $1.00 bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery wholly cured me and I gained 58 pounds." It's absolutely guaranteed to cure Coughs, Colds, La Grippe, Bronchitis and all Throat and Lung Troubles. Price 50c. and $1.00. Trial bottles free at all druggists.

"Give your blood a cleaning." Rheumacide clears out all the impurities that make you ill. Ask your druggist.

SUFFERED A THOUSAND DEATHS

Five Physicians had done their best to cure James Wilkes, of Dillon, S. C., who had one of the most terrible cases of RHEUMATISM on record. They all failed until one doctor prescribed—

Rheumacide

IT CURED HELPLESS CRIPPLE.

Mr. Wilkes writes in the course of a long letter, dated August 18, 1902:

"My legs were drawn back until my feet touched my hips. I was as helpless as a baby for nearly 12 months. The muscles of my arms and legs were hard and shriveled up. I suffered death many times over. Was treated by six different physicians in McColl, Dillon and Marion, but none of them could do me any good, until Dr. J. P. Ewing, of Dillon, told me to try your RHEUMACIDE. I began to take it, and before the first bottle was used up I began to get better. I used 13 bottles and was completely cured."

Dr. J. P. Ewing confirms Mr. Wilkes' statement in every particular.

"Salvation! O salvation!
The joyful sound proclaim,
Till earth's remotest nation
Shall learn Messiah's name."

At the last annual meeting of the W. F. M. S. of the N. C. Conference, Miss Mary Pescud was appointed to organize Golden Link Societies throughout the Conference, wherever it was advisable or possible. She made quite a promising beginning in the work, organizing several societies, but illness forced her to suspend all effort for a time. She is now about restored to her usual health, and is planning to resume the work of organizing the young people's societies. May the blessed Spirit crown all her efforts with success in this most important department of missionary work. She now has on hand samples of badges for Golden Link members. The price of the solid gold badge is one dollar and twenty cents, and the plated is forty cents. She would be glad to have orders as early as possible from those who would like to have these badges.

From our Conference Corresponding Secretary we have the following items concerning the report of the third quarter: In the Raleigh District two societies were organized—one auxiliary, with eichteen members, and one Golden Link society, with ten members. In the Durham District there was one auxiliary organized with eight members. In the Fayetteville District one auxiliary, with thirteen members, and one Golden Link society with eight members.

Our roll has been increased by the addition of these fifty-seven names, in one quarter.

The Secretary of the Raleigh District will be gratified to know that the largest increase of members was in her District. We rejoice with her, and she has our thanks for her quarterly report which shows gains in finances, too, in her District—read it:

District Secretary's Report of the W. F. M. S. of the Raleigh District, for the third quarter, ending December 1, 1903:

Selma, 19 members, paid $4; Franklinton, 13 members, paid $8.15; Oxford, 20 members, paid $18.75; Four Oaks, 16 members, paid $32.30; Edenton Street, 52 members, paid $32.85; Cary, 18 members, paid $15.06; Banks, 20 members, paid $11.35; Elizabeth, 17 members, paid $10.18; Central, 23 members, paid $5.60; Louisburg, 32 members, paid $6.35; Young Woman's F. M. S., Edenton Street, 35 members, paid $21.30; Central, 20 members, paid $9.50.

There are nine Bright Jewel Bands in the District, but only two have been reported to me this quarter. I hope more has been sent to "Aunt Lizzie" from the Bright Jewels than reported to me.

There have been $205.95 reported to me this quarter.

I appreciate the promptness of the Auxiliaries in sending in their reports. I hope the Bright Jewels will do as well next quarter.

Miss Pescud organized Banks Auxiliary in last October, and a Golden Links Society of ten young ladies in Franklinton in November. I hope to hear from them next quarter.

As this is the last quarter of our fiscal year, let us, with renewed efforts, try to bring up our Pledge, Conference Expense and all other funds, in full.

Some have already paid up and more. I hope all the other Auxiliaries will. Some are right much in arrears.

MRS. R. H. WHITAKER,
District Secretary.

In looking over the above report it will be seen that Four Oaks with sixteen members, has paid nearly as much as Edenton Street with fifty-two members. It would be a great blessing to our missionary work if Four Oaks could be duplicated in many of our larger towns.

A Delegate from Every Auxiliary.

It is important that all Auxiliaries be represented at our Annual Meeting at Selma, April 30, to May 4; and I desire to remind them now to make arrangements therefor. Let the Treasurers look after the local funds and ask for special collections to pay the delegates' railroad expenses, if necessary. It is a wise use of money, for individual reports contribute largely to the success of the meeting, and the reflex benefit received by the Auxiliaries is still greater.

Who Shall be the Delegate?

Let each President, with the aid of her sister officers and members, select the right woman—one who will intelligently and gladly tell of the successes and efforts, and mistakes, too, of the year, carrying hope and cheer and sympathy to the other Auxiliaries ,and who will bring back new ideas, fresh courage and a reconsecration to the cause—in short, a woman who loves the work because it is service for humanity under the command of the first great Missionary.

Leading Auxiliaries in the Third Quarter.

Wilmington sent the largest amount to the Conference Treasurer—$256.82. There are 67 members, with an average attendance of 44.

City Roads Church, Elizabeth City, added the largest number to the Baby Roll—12.

Selma gained the largest number of new subscribers to "Our Homes"—5.

Special mention should be made of Windsor, which numbers only 15, but the earnest workers reported from the Brigade $6.03.

I know you all are glad to hear these fine accounts and, with me, congratulate our faithful sisters. I regret that I cannot give the names of the successful officers of the various departments, but I have not been able to learn them all.

Auxiliary Corresponding Secretaries.

If there are other Auxiliaries which ought to be mentioned, I hope the Corresponding Secretaries will write me. Our Conference Corresponding Secretary has given me the highest figures sent her. If all could only realize the importance of sending full reports, much would be gained; it is a great pleasure to me to tell the Advocate readers of the advancement in every line of work, and it must stimulate our members to know what all are doing. Please vie with one another in sending best reports at the end of this fourth quarter; this is a healthy, hearty Christian rivalry that can only produce good.

Concerning Reports of Local Work.

In January number of "Our Homes," attention is called to the difficulty of getting full reports of money raised for local work, both the General Treasurer and the General Secretary complaining of it. The Conference Treasurers say they cannot get the full amounts from the Auxiliary Treasurers. The explanation is that in many Auxiliaries there are two Treasurers, one for connectional funds and one for local, and the former does not get from the latter the necessary information. The easiest remedy for this is for the local Treasurer to hand the other a written statement of all local expenditures either monthly or quarterly, and I hope all Treasurers will bear this in mind. The officers of our Board desire to give credit for all efforts, and as a large part of the work is local, a failure to tell it discredits the auxiliaries and also the whole Home Mission Society.

Editorial.

IT WOULD HAVE BEEN BETTER.

Willis W. Cooper was one of the most prominent laymen of the M. E. Church. To him is due, in a large measure, the Epworth League. He believed in promoting among young people the spirit of Christian service. He organized the Chicago Newsboy Club, through whose instrumentality many a young heart has been given to Christ.

In the great Twentieth Century Forward movement of his church Mr. Cooper took a very active part, which helped wonderfully in bringing about the successful consummation of this worthy enterprise. He was devoted to the cause of Foreign Missions and the Young Men's Christian Associations of the land.

He was a model Methodist layman as far as his spirit and activities were concerned. God blessed him with a large business, which brought him wealth. He made a habit of giving to the Lord one-fifth of his income.

He had a very happy Christian experience. Converted when a boy through the efforts of a boy, he became imbued with the idea that the world is to be won to Christ through individual effort. This idea he put into practice every day of his life. He was always engaged in some effort to make souls happier and better. He was always saying kind things about people, and if he could not say something good he said nothing at all.

This good and great man was one of the victims of the disastrous fire in the Iroquois Theatre, Chicago, on Wednesday, December 29, 1903. Many have expressed surprise that Willis Cooper was at the theatre. His church and other evangelical churches condemn the theatre. Why was he there? The fact of his being there, so tragically proclaimed by his own death, has bewildered many of his friends and thrown a kind of blight upon his post-mortem influence.

Did he do wrong in attending Mr. Blue Beard? It is said to be a harmless, innocent, play, unattended by those demoralizing features which belong to a majority of plays. Mr. Cooper must answer the question for himself. He went to an occasional play of this sort, as he said, "with a good conscience and without loss of enthusiasm for the great religious enterprises in which he was engaged." Still it is a fact that his death occurring in a theatre fire has shocked thousands of hearts in that important religious world in which he moved. It does not help to say that his friends had no right to be so strangely shocked. They were thus shocked and a good man's influence has received a check which all must deplore. If it was not morally wrong for Mr. Cooper to attend Mr. Bluebeard, it was certainly morally unfortunate for him to do so.

If Mr. Cooper had only followed this doctrine, how much better it would have been: "I believe that there are plays which are not only harmless in themselves, but under certain circumstances, intellectually and morally stimulating; I believe that it is not wrong in itself to attend these plays. But the drama in general is one of the worst foes to spirituality which the Church encounters. As a rule, the church member who likes most to attend plays likes least to attend prayermeeting and the Sunday service. Yet there are thousands who seeing me 'eat the meat' which I have a right to eat are 'offended.' They look upon my going even to a 'harmless' play as a sin. I may go to a harmless play without receiving hurt, yet at the same time the weak consciences of some of my brethren are hurt. Besides, every time I go to a 'harmless' play, my influence may lead some one to go to two plays which are rotten. He cannot discriminate as I do. He is one of the 'weak' brethren. 'Therefore if eating meat maketh my brother to offend I will eat no meat while the world standeth.'" This was the doctrine of Christ. This was the doctrine of St. Paul. This is the essence of that Christian love which by the help of faith and hope is to take the world for Christ."

If Mr. Cooper, who, we believe, is in heaven, had only reasoned thus, how much better it would have been. His influence would have been brighter and better for it.

The story brings a sad warning to us all, especially to the young. Let us avoid the very appearance of evil. Let us take care of our influence, even if we have to sacrifice innocent pleasures to do so. Let us watch, "for we know not at what hour the Son of Man cometh."

The one who succeeds never suffers from a lack of the world's plaudits. Let us give a few of them to the one who is trying to succeed.

A preacher is an "apostle of sunshine." What a caricature he is when he goes about with a sad countenance, a sepulchral voice, and sour words.

O Lord, teach me to know my help from thee and seek after it; to find my place and keep it; to know my duty and do it. Amen.—Daily prayer of John Wallace.

The man who proposes to sell you a thirty-day clock may be offering you a good article, but beware of the Devil when he praises a religion which is to be wound up only once a week.

Those mission boards, both home and foreign, which shake their heads at the idea of working certain sparse fields, should think of "Mr. Seward's ice-berg," Alaska, which was bought for a mere song, but has proved to be the richest territory in Uncle Sam's wide domain.

Every active, exercise-loving boy knows that he can jump further when he measures with his eye a point just a little beyond that which he thinks that he can reach. There is a valuable lesson in this fact. We can never have too high an ideal and the higher the ideal, the higher we will climb.

Powerful is the light of the sun which daily mounts to the zenith; strong is the light of that fluid which, silent and unseen, flows in myriad currents around the earth; beautiful is the light which trembles in the pearly dew drop. But the only light on land or sea that can drive away the moral and spiritual darkness around us comes from him who has caught it from the Light of the World.

We read in one of our religious exchanges that Dr. Charles M. Stuart, of Garrett Biblical Institute, Evanston, Ill., read a paper on "Robert Burns" before the Chicago Methodist Preacher's meeting on last Monday morning. As one of the unappreciative, non-progressive "Philistines," we would be allowed to ask what appropriatness is there in foisting upon a preachers' meeting a discussion of the godless, church-hating poet, Burns? Have these preachers exhausted St. Paul, or Isaiah, or John? Is there anything in the city of Chicago to suggest the advisability of discussing some vital practical question which looks to the betterment of humanity and the alleviation of its sufferings?

NOTICE.

The Conference Journals have been sent out except to the following brethren whose post-office address I did not know, viz.: J. C. Crisp, W. O. Davis, F. F. Eure, and J. M. Marlowe.

If these brethren desire the Journals, and will inform me of the number they desire, and give me their post-office address, I will forward Journals to them.

I will have still, after filling these orders, a few copies of the Journal which I will send to those desiring them at the rate of $1.00 per dozen, or 10 cents per copy, postpaid.

Very truly yours,

W. L. CUNINGGIM.

Durham, N. C., January 5, 1904.

A NOTE FROM BISHOP DUNCAN.

I thank you for the copy of the North Carolina Methodist Handbook. It will be very useful and helpful to me. Every North Carolina preacher and family should have it. You are giving a very readable and excellent paper to the church in your State.

With kindest regards and best wishes.

Truly and sincerely,

W. W. DUNCAN.

PASTORS, ATTENTION!

Any Sunday-schools in your charge that may need help from the Sunday-school Board will please correspond with me immediately. Blanks are ready. The distribution of funds March 1st. We want to get more life into the Sunday-school work.

NOTICE TO STOCKHOLDERS.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Raleigh Advocate Company will be held in the Advocate office Monday night, February 1, 1904, at eight o'clock.

J. F. MILLER, President.
M. T. PLYLER, Secretary-Treasurer.

WANTED.

The Raleigh Christian Advocate of October 21, 1903; October 28, 1903; November 25, 1903; December 23, 1903, and January 6, 1904.

The first services for 1904 in the Methodist church Sunday morning were largely attended and proved very interesting indeed. The voluntary was well sung by a class of Sunday-school scholars, led by little Miss Estelle Bullock, and the offertory was sweetly rendered by Master Jas. Taylor, who possesses a sweet voice. Mrs. Kate Fleming presided at the organ. Rev. F. M. Shamburger, who has already won the hearts of the people, preached an exceedingly able sermon, followed by the Holy Communion.—Oxford Ledger.

"Let us never grow weary in well doing, for in due season we shall reap if we faint not," was the text used by Rev. Z. Paris, at the Methodist church, as the foundation for an excellent New Year's sermon with which he treated a large congregation last Sunday morning. The people are already full of appreciation for Mr. Paris. There were eleven accessions to the church.—Lumberton Argus.

Rev. W. H. Puckett filled his first appointment at Salem the fourth Sunday in December. He made a fine impression upon the people, and we trust he will suit the work and be the right man in the right place. The wife and daughter of Mr. Puckett have been right sick for several days, but we are glad they are better now.—Oxford Ledger.

The successful equipment and endowment of our university in China and our college in Japan are the pledges of a boundless influence to be exerted by Southern Methodism in the future of those vast empires. A casual or an indifferent thought does not take in the meaning of these achievements.—Epworth Era.

The Trustees of Wofford College held a meeting on January 6th to take steps toward carrying out the resolutions adopted at the last session of the South Carolina Conference, looking to an increase of the endowment of the college. Prof. J. G. Clinkscales will probably take charge of the movement.

The secular press reports that the joint Hymnal Commission has classified the hymns under titles and sub-titles as follows: Worship, the Trinity, the Father, the Son, the Holy Ghost; the Holy Scriptures, the Church, the Gospel, the Christian Life, Time and Eternity, Special Subjects and Occasions, Chants and Doxologies.

Personals.

The Baltimore and Richmond Christian Advocate is valued at $15,000.

Rev. William E. Huntington, D. D., has just been elected President of Boston University.

Dr. J. C. C. Newton, after five years in the home land from his Japanese mission field, has returned to that field.

Dr. Chauncy Hobart, of Red Wing, Minn., died last week at the age of ninety-three. He was one of Methodism's historic characters.

Drs. Bradford P. Raymond, J. W. Bashford and W. F. McDowell are now going through the South inspecting the schools of the M. E. Church.

Dr. Charles W. Dabney has resigned the presidency of the University of Tennessee to accept the presidency of the University of Cincinnati.

Rev. Frank DeWitt Talmage has resigned his Chicago pastorate, and will accept the pastorate of the First Presbyterian Church, Los Angeles, Cal.

Rev. W. G. Starr, D. D., pastor of Washington Street Church, Petersburg, has been requested by the official board of that church to prepare a short biographical sketch of the men who have been pastors of said church.

The following brethren, some of whom attended the Grand Lodge, were appreciated visitors to this office: Dr. H. V. Dunston, J. B. Wilson, ... R. A. Foster, Revs. A. J. Parker, L. M. Chaffin, L. H. Joyner, and Dr. J. T. Gibbs.

A note from Rev. E. W. Fox, who recently transferred to the Western North Carolina Conference, and was assigned to Stanly Circuit, tells us that his health has already greatly improved and that he is very pleasantly situated.

Rev. L. L. Johnson, formerly of the Western North Carolina Conference, is now located at Afton, Indian Territory. He writes us that he is well pleased with his work and the whole country. He promises an early letter for the Advocate.

Mrs. Helen M. Bailey, mother of Rev. R. W. Bailey of the North Carolina Conference, died at Dayton, Durham County, on Monday night, 11th instant. She was sixty-four years old. In the language of the Durham Sun, "her life was a shining example of piety and Christian purity, and her loss will be deeply felt in her community." Our deepest sympathies for the bereaved ones.

At the session of the Hymnal Commission in Washington the joint hymn-book for the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, was substantially completed and has been committed, for the completion of some details, to an editorial committee consisting of Prof. Charles M. Stuart, of Garrett Biblical Institute, and Prof. W. F. Tillett, of Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn.

Bishop W. A. Candler and Dr. J. S. Frazer left Montgomery on the evening of January 7th for an extended trip through Mexico, visiting the churches and looking after missionary affairs. Bishop Candler will hold the session of the Central Mexican Annual Conference at Durango, January 13th, the session of the Central Mexican Annual Conference at Mexico City January 20th, and the session of the Mexican Border Annual Conference January 27th.

We extend our warmest sympathy to the bereaved ones in the recent death of Mr. Marcus B. Tuttle, one of the most prominent citizens of Caldwell County, and a tower of strength to Methodism in all that section. He was indeed "an Israelite in whom there was no guile." He was the father of Rev. D. H. Tuttle, of the North Carolina Conference, and of Rev. R. G. Tuttle, of the Western North Carolina Conference. These sons have a rich legacy in the character of such a father.

North Carolina Methodism.

Rev. B. C. Allred writes that he has been kindly received on Warrenton Circuit and that he is highly pleased with his work.

Rev. Jno. H. Hall writes us that the temperance people in Rockingham are preparing to inaugurate a movement for the closing of the saloons in that town.

In a private note, Rev. H. B. Anderson says he has been kindly received at St. John's (Goldsboro), and has been the recipient of many kind favors. He has made a good beginning.

The protracted services which are being held in the West Durham Methodist Church continue to grow in interest. Large crowds are in attendance at each meeting, and there have already been a number of conversions.

Rev. Mr. Smith, Presiding Elder of Warrenton District, preached in the Methodist Church here Sunday afternoon and night, to large congregations. He delivered two very able and interesting sermons, and he has most favorably impressed our people.—Roanoke-Chowan Times.

Rev. J. O. Guthrie, P. C., Selma Circuit, speaks in high praise of the charge and the people. He says that the sum of $1,000 has already been subscribed for a $1,500 church at Princeton. He says that Selma has one of the best Sunday-schools in the State. There are ninety members of the church and 130 members of the Sunday-school. This is, indeed, ideal. The roll is always revised at the beginning of the year.

The stewards of Cary Circuit held their first meeting in the Advocate office on last Saturday. The meeting was well attended. The stewards of Cary Circuit are loyal business men who have progressive ideas, and who believe in Methodism and their pastor, Rev. G. B. Starling. They increased his salary $75.00, and made plans for systematic payments. The Circuit never had a brighter outlook than at present. This stewards' meeting always means much to the Advocate, because the stewards believe in taking the Advocate. You see?

Rev. R. F. Taylor, Battleboro and Whitakers, writes: "I am now settled down at my work, have been very kindly received, and I am delighted with my people, and judging from the many expressions of kindness shown us from a material standpoint, our people are somewhat satisfied with the preacher. We made a little visit a few evenings ago out to Brother and Sister Gorham's, and when we left, our buggy was loaded with chickens, eggs, sausage, fruit, potatoes and many other things of like nature; and on our arrival here Thursday before Christmas, in a short time we were pounded grandly by our energetic and thrifty merchants here of the firm of T. P. Braswell & Son. Though not members of our church, they are very kind, hospitable and pleasant gentlemen. I expect to try to do some extra work for the Advocate in February. Hope to have you with us this year.

Rev. J. A. Hornady, the new pastor of the Methodist Church here, preached his first sermon to his new charge on Sunday morning. His sermon was excellent, and made a good impression on all present. Sunday night all the congregations of the town joined together in extending him a welcome to Greenville. This welcome service was characteristic of the Christian unity existing among the different churches of Greenville. Rev. F. G. Hartman, of the Presbyterian Church, delivered the address of welcome for all the other churches of the town, and ex-Governor T. J. Jarvis spoke the words of welcome for the Methodist Church. Rev. Mr. Hornaday was most happy in his response to these addresses, and at once won a warm place in the hearts of all who heard him. He is a man of most pleasant appearance and address, an earnest speaker, and we feel sure his stay in Greenville will prove a blessing to his church and to the community.—Greenville Reflector.

General Notes.

Our St. Louis churches now employ five deaconesses and one missionary.

Mr. John D. Rockefeller gave the University of Chicago a Christmas gift of $1, 850,000.

Dr. W. W. Bays, W. N. C. Conference, has recently taken the agency of Rutherford College.

The papers report that Mount Vernon Place Church, Washington, is to build a $100,000 church.

There are now in the Districts ravaged by the Chinese Boxers 885 more members than there were when the persecution began.

The alumni and friends of Central College living in Kansas City gave a banquet in the interest of the college on the evening of December 28 at the Coats House.

Bishop Hurst's fine library, which is valued at $50,000, is soon to be offered at public auction. Some of his friends are maturing plans to prevent the auction.

The General Committee of the World's Student Christian Federation, John R. Mott, General Secretary, has appointed February 14th as a Universal Day of Prayer for Students.

Six Conferences of the M. E. Church, South, have reported assessments for Foreign Missions paid in full: Montana, Missouri, Los Angeles, East Columbia, New Mexico and Holston.

Zion's Herald, Boston, has opened its columns to nominations for Bishops. So far, twenty-seven names have been presented. Dr. James M. Buckley heads the list; Dr. Jno. F. Goucher comes next.

The North Texas Female College, under the control of Mrs. Bishop Key, has had a big fire, loss estimated at $35,000. Another building has been secured, and the college exercises will go right on.

We congratulate the Salisbury Globe, recently purchased by Mr. H. B. Varner and J. B. Spillman, on its auspicious entrance into the field of journalism under the new regime. It deserves great success.

Mr. R. W. Perks makes the authoritative announcement that the million guineas will all be in the hands of the Twentieth Century Fund by March next. Special thanksgiving services are to follow the completion of this great enterprise.

Manager Cannon, of the Baltimore and Richmond Christian Advocate, has hit upon a plan for insuring the placing of the proper address on all communications to the paper. There is in Richmond an "Advocate" for the colored people. Bro. Cannon tells the brethren to address their communications to him unless they want their matter printed in the negro paper. Bro. Cannon truly has a "cinch" on the brethren.

The Oxford Seminary was burned on last Monday morning. The fire originated while the students were at breakfast. The whole building was consumed. Insurance $10,000. President Hobgood has our deepest sympathy. He had built up one of the finest schools for girls in the State. The present term opened unusually well. Every room was filled. We trust that the Seminary may open at once in other buildings.

The editor of the Era, who is Joint Secretary of the Joint Hymnal Commission, was made the recipient of a tender and much appreciated testimonial by his brethren just before the final adjournment of the Commission. Bishop Hoss, speaking for the members of his section, presented the Secretary with a handsome three-volume set of Morley's "Life of Gladstone," volume one being inscribed with the names of the members of the Commission. The words recorded here are some faint expression of the pleasure and gratitude which were provoked in us by this act of delicate brotherly thoughtfulness.—Epworth Era.

The Shame and Curse of Atheism.

Reference Word—Fool. (Prov. xii. 15; Eccles. ii. 14; Luke xii. 20.)

Many kinds of fools are mentioned in the Bible, but the fool who makes a mock of sin is to be avoided most of all. In the estimation of a majority of mankind, the highest folly is to deny God. "The fool hath said there is no God."

WHAT AN ATHEIST IS

He disbelieves in the existence of God. An infidel rejects the Bible, but believes in God as revealed in nature. An atheist rejects religion, the Bible, and God. "Atheism is the highest theft against God, because it would steal from him not sun, sea or (his goods, but himself), proceeding farther than 'Deus haec non curat,' to 'Deus non est'—than to say, 'God will not regard it,' but 'There is no God to regard it.' These offer not only a wicked hand to their own conscience to scrape out the deep-graven and indelible characters of the divinity there, but a sacrilegious hand to heaven as if they would empty it of Deity, and pull Jehovah out of his throne, and make him a non ens."

THE FOLLY OF ATHEISM.

The word "fool" is not synonymous with the word "idiot." It does not mean one who is too unintelligent to believe, but one who in the perversity of his heart refuses to believe. He has brains enough, but in his pride, or prejudice, or love of sin, he refuses to believe that there is any one to call him to account, and, rather than acknowledge such a one and sue for mercy, he rushes into eternity, saying: "There is no God." "The atheism of this age is chiefly founded upon the absurd fallacy that the idea of law in nature excludes the idea of God in nature. As well might they say the code of Napoleon in France excludes the idea of Napoleon from France."

ATHEISM A SIN OF THE HEART.

There are few atheists of the intellect. The evidences of God are so numerous and convincing that sanity cannot reject them. "God never wrought a miracle to convince an atheist, because his ordinary works may convince him; and unless men will be wilfully and stubbornly blind, they must needs subscribe to that of St. Paul (Acts xiv. 17). 'God hath not left himself without witness, in that he doeth good, and gives us rain from heaven, and fruitful seasons, filling our hearts with food and gladness;' and (Rom. i. 20), 'The invisible things of him from the creation of the world are clearly seen, being understood by the things that are made, even his eternal power and Godhead; so that they are without excuse.'"

Though the mind may accept God, the heart may reject him. We are warned against "an evil heart of unbelief, in departing from the living God." (Heb. iii. 12.) "Out of the heart proceed evil thoughts" and all vile and wicked things. (Matt. xv. 19.) A sinful heart does not want to believe in God, for such belief puts a scourge in the hand of conscience, it is a poisoned dagger in the soul. Luther said: "I fear my own heart more than I do the pope and all his cardinals. I have within me the great pope—self." If you suspect a tendency within yourself to unbelief, if you think of blotting God out of your consciousness, stop, examine yourself, see if it is not because you are weakening in moral fiber, because you are yielding to temptation, because you contemplate some sin, and do not wish to be reproved by the words, "Thou God seest me."

THE SOIL AND RESULTS OF ATHEISM.

The Psalm tells a sad story. The heart rejects God. Then come the awful sequences. "They are corrupt, they have done abominable works, there is none that doeth good." Adam Clarke comments on this: "They are in a state of putrescency, and they have done abominable works—the corruption of their hearts extends itself through all the actions of their lives. They are a plague of the most deadly kind, propagate nothing but destruction; and, like their father the devil, spread far and wide the contagion of sin and death. Not one of them does good. He cannot, for he has no divine influence, and he denies that such can be received."

We shrink from such characterization, but how many thousands within sight of our churches live as if there were no God! Rather than give up sin and selfishness, they give up God. Do not our own hearts condemn us?

DEATH BY NEGLECT.

Dr. D. M. Bye, the eminent specialist, of Indianapolis, who cures cancer by the use of a combination of oils, says thousands of persons die from cancer every year from no cause save neglect. If taken in time not one case in a thousand need be fatal. The fear of the knife or the dread of the burning, torturing plaster causes a few to neglect themselves till they pass the fatal point. By far the greater portion die because their friends or relatives, on whom they are dependent, are insensible to their suffering and impending danger till it is too late. If you have friends afflicted write to-day for free book, giving particulars. Address Dr. D. M. Bye Co., Drawer 505, Indianapolis, Ind.

Lesson for January 24, 1904.

Jesus Rejected at Nazareth.
(Luke 4:16.30.)

Golden Text.—He came unto his own, and his own received him not. John 1:11.

We pass over the Judean ministry of Jesus, which is mentioned by John but omitted by the Synoptists, and take up the thread of the narrative at the beginning of the Galilean ministry. John the Baptist was in prison, and Jesus was now in the second year of his public ministry.

The Divine Preacher.—Returning to Nazareth, the scene of his boyhood and early manhood, Jesus went, on the Sabbath, into the synagogue, in accordance with his usual custom, and preached a wonderful sermon, based upon the words of Isaiah (chap. 61:1, 2).

We cannot regard what Luke has written as the full report of all that Jesus said in the synagogue. It must rather be regarded as a condensation or summary of the words of the divine preacher who expounded the Scripture to the people in the synagogue that day.

The Mission of Jesus.—The words of Isaiah, used by our Lord as the text of his discourse, portray the mission of the Messiah, and Jesus applies these words directly to himself, thus unmistakably claiming to be the Messiah.

The words of Isaiah describe the mission of Jesus in its broadest and deepest significance. It will be found exceedingly helpful and inspiring to study this description of the Messiah and to notice how perfectly Jesus Christ fulfilled the prediction of the prophetic seer of old.

Through Jesus and by him the Gospel has been preached to the poor, not only to those poor in worldly goods, but to those who are poor in spirit. Jesus has healed the broken-hearted, both those whose hearts have been broken by sorrow and those whose hearts have been crushed by sin. He has brought deliverance to the captives, those who have been the captives of cruel superstition, of hard-hearted tyranny, and of heathen conquerors, as well as those who have been the slaves of their own sinful passions. Jesus has given sight to the blind, those blinded by disease, those blinded by the temptations and follies of the world. He has set at liberty those who are bruised—bruised both in body and in spirit. And finally Jesus has proclaimed, by his coming, the acceptable year of the Lord.

The Reception of the Message.—The reception given to the words of Jesus by the people of Nazareth gathered in the synagogue is typical of the way in which the gospel message is ever received.

At first they recognized the strength of the appeal made by Jesus, for we read that they wondered at the gracious words which proceeded out of the mouth of the Saviour. But unbelief soon arose in their hearts to dissipate the gracious influence of the divine message, and they asked: "Is not this Joseph's son?" Finally they rose up and thrust him out and would have killed him, if his divine power had not saved him from their fury, so that he passed through the midst of them unharmed.

The Rejection of the Saviour.—We read of the treatment accorded to Jesus by the people of Nazareth, and it pains and grieves us. But how many there are who in spirit are treating Jesus as did the people of Nazareth.

May God help us to hear willingly and to accept gladly the precious truths of the Christian faith as they are presented to us in the church and in the home.

Policy of the Anti-Saloon League for 1904.

The New Year will be a great working year for the Anti-Saloon League. The fact that it is a political year should put us on our guard. Our duty is to influence political action, but not to make a political party.

We have first to enforce the Watts Act. This is the biggest work that we shall have. Infringements of the law should be reported boldly and resisted strenuously.

Second, we have to protect the Watts Act. It has been hinted that an effort will be made to repeal or break that Act. This effort may be made publicly. I hope so; for in that event we can successfully resist it and gain some ground besides. But let us be sure that it shall not be made secretly by demanding that all candidates state their position.

Third, we have to improve that Act. We must have an anti-jug law. I receive letters every week complaining that prohibition is made of no effect by the shipment of liquor into prohibition territory. Let us urge candidates to support a measure that will give people prohibition wherever they vote for it. This is only right and reasonable.

Fourth. We must move against the drunkard. The liquor-seller is not the only man to restrain and overcome. We cannot deny men the right to drink; but we can deny them the right to get drunk. Let us therefore urge the enactment of a law making drunkenness a misdemeanor or worse.

But our work is by no means altogether of a law-making kind.

We must make an active campaign for temperance. We must reach and secure personally the rising generation. I venture to suggest that we have temperance rallies throughout the State this winter and coming spring and undertake to get 100,000 boys and young men to sign the pledge—to abstain from liquors and cigarettes and to stand for temperance reforms. This would be a great work of education, and if the temperance leaders think well of it, we will put it on foot.

Let us not be unmindful that some of our towns—only forty, I think—still license the sale of liquor. Let us lay plans to redeem these towns in 1904. Organization and agitation will do the work.

Early in the spring we should have a State Temperance Convention, to emphasize our plans, to encourage the workers, and to strengthen our hold upon the Commonwealth.

So there is more than ever to be done this year by the North Carolina Temperance forces. Let the local officers, Executive Committeemen, etc., get together as soon as possible and thoroughly organize and arouse their counties. Let us make this year the great year of achievement for Temperance in North Carolina as last year was the great year of awakening. Our successes in the past will lose their greater meaning unless they inspire us to more earnest hopes, larger undertakings and more sacrificing work in the year now coming to us.

Sincerely yours,
J. W. BAILEY.

A GREAT INVENTION

AND DISCOVERY—A GENUINE CURE FOR CATARRH AND DEAFNESS.

A great advance has been made in the successful treatment of catarrh and deafness by the discovery of Rhinol, the catarrh specific, and the invention by Dr. J. R. Blosser, of Philadelphia, of a device or appliance (to be patented) which for the first time makes it possible to apply an effective remedy to all parts of the head and the external and internal ear.

Rhinol is both a direct local and a constitutional specific for catarrh of the head, throat and lungs, and for deafness, head noises, etc. It reaches every spot and speck that is ever affected by catarrh and not only heals the local catarrh, but by its absorption into the blood, expels every taint of the disease from the system. It breaks up the habit of "always taking cold," thus removing the cause that produces and keeps up catarrh. It is the only remedy that does this and hence is the only positive, radical, permanent cure for catarrh.

A sample of Rhinol, to demonstrate its splendid effect, together with full particulars as to the ear appliance, will be sent absolutely free to any sufferer who will write to Dr. J. R. Blosser, 415 Heed Bldg., Philadelphia, Pa.

THE OLD BOTTLE.

Get me out the bottle, wife,
It is our time to take
The nightly drink of Ore of Life,
The Brew of God's own Make,
That keeps our blood in action still,
E'en though our bones are old,
That helps us carry out God's will,
Though the ashes of life grow cold.

You and I know what it be,
Though some there are who mock,
We know what it's done for you and me,
This Ore, this Earth-born rock,
That lifted you up from a siege like death
When the night all around was black,
That carried me through like an Angel's breath
When my hold on life seemed slack.

'Twas full five years ago, wife,
That time of trouble and pain,
When we thought no power could win the strife,
Nor life in our bodies retain,
But came a rift in the clouds, wife,
When Vitae-Ore to us was brought,
Hope in our bosoms again was rife,
To win the struggle bravely fought.

You and I know how we did win,
How drink after drink we took,
And with each draught gave thanks to Him
As the pangs of disease us forsook,
And since that time with each Moonrise
We've taken the nightly dose,
A Homage to it and the All-wise,
And so we shall till we close.

A full-sized One Dollar package of Vitae-Ore—the Ore of Life—will be sent on thirty days' trial to every reader of this paper who requests it. Read the offer made in this issue by the proprietors, the Theo. Noel Company of Chicago.

Light Running Florence Wagon.

This company, the next to the largest wagon works in the South, capital $150,000, is increasing its capital stock to $250,000, in order to supply sufficient operating capital to run the plant to its full capacity. This has never been done before, owing to the large sum necessary to carry the hard wood for the long period in which it is held for drying.

There are enough "Light Running Florence" wagons in use to reach, if hitched together,

From the Atlantic to the Mississippi.

It is the purpose of the Florence Wagon Works to induce co-operation of its widely distributed stockholders, enlarging thereby the demand for these splendid wagons and benefiting its stockholders with larger dividends.

Of the $100,000 additional capital to be issued, $80,000 has been placed.

The balance of $70,000 is offered at par, first to USERS OF THE FLORENCE WAGON, then to the general public throughout the South on the following terms: 25 per cent cash down, 25 per cent at 4 months, 25 per cent in 8 months, 25 per cent in 12 months; deferred payments evidenced by notes. Subscribers to share prorata in dividends from time one-half the subscription is paid.

The purpose of the company is to distribute its new stock widely to secure the advertising value of many widely distributed stockholders.

A HOMELY ILLUSTRATION.

When you get a sliver in your finger, the sensation is anything but pleasant. Allow it to remain long enough and it will fester and give you a lot of trouble. Remove the cause and the pain will stop.

It's the same way with the whole body. When your head aches, it is nature's message sent from the stomach to the brain. Every throb is but a click in the message whose letters spell "danger—send relief." Some people, when they get a headache, rush to the drug store and swallow some powerful tablet or powder which sets the heart to thumping and the blood racing around the body at a terrific rate. Do you? Other people take strong purgatives which rip and tear through the stomach and bowels, leaving them irritated and sore. Do you? Still other people take Vernal Palmettona (formerly known as Vernal Saw Palmetto Berry Wine.) It is a sensible remedy to use. It removes the cause of the trouble. It helps the stomach and bowels to get rid of poisonous waste matter, by stimulating their natural muscular action. It tones up and strengthens the nerves; it enriches the blood and builds up hard, healthy tissues. Only one small dose a day is required to permanently cure ailments of stomach, liver, bowels, heart, kidneys and blood. Try it before you buy. Write us for a free sample bottle. It will do you good. Promptly sent postpaid. Formula sent in every package. Address, Vernal Remedy Co., 538 Seneca Building, Buffalo, N. Y. Sold at all druggists.

OLD BUT EVER NEW.

More than eighteen years ago, Mr. M. D. Sams, came with his heart bruised, crushed, bleeding with grief from the sad words of his physician, an experienced and talented doctor, "your wife must die." These words were fresh in his mind, ringing in his ears, burning their way as an arrow through his heart, to forever blight his mortal existence.

After the careful and painstaking efforts of Dr. Whitaker, the skilled physician and Dropsy Specialist that he is, Mr. Sams wrote this.

Dr. S. T. Whitaker, Atlanta, Ga.

Dear Sir:—In the year 1885, when I first applied to you for medicine for my wife, her condition was such that not only her immediate family and friends but the entire community was convinced that death would be a relief. Her limbs, body and face were swollen to an enormous size, and large quantities of fluid were drawn from her system by the use of the needle. Her suffering was intense. Specialists had been employed, but all to no avail. Her case was pronounced hopeless and incurable. Her physicians gave up the case, and said she could live but a few days at most. Her death was hourly expected.

At this time I had read of your wonderful cures, and decided to write you. I received your reply, and began the use of your remedies. Before she had taken one bottle of your medicine, the dropsical effusion, with all the complications in the case that is peculiar to it, left her, gave way rapidly. Since then she has given birth to three children. With no outward symptoms, which proves to my mind that the cure is complete.

I am free to acknowledge that I am of the opinion that it not been for your treatment she would not have recovered.

I heartily recommend you and your treatment to all.

Yours very truly,
Woolsey, Ga. M. D. SIMS.

Now more than eighteen years since this marvelous cure was effected, Mrs. Sams, still lives, (all the while free from Dropsy), to tell the "Old But Ever New," story, of Dr. Whitaker's effectual work in restoring her to health.

He guarantees immediate relief in your case. Give age and name of patient and history of case, and a free treatment with directions will be sent at once. Address S. T. Whitaker, M. D., Dropsy Specialist, 41 E. Irwin St., Atlanta, Ga.

P. S.—Send in care of C. C. Dept., for sample of an absolute cure for Catarrh, Cold in Head, etc. Enclose four one cent stamps and request a prescription for Hair-Tonic. It can be filled at any Drug Store.

WILKERSON.—Miss Emma Wilkerson, daughter of W. W. Wilkerson, died at her home near Purley, Caswell County, after a lingering failing of health, on December 21, 1903. This young lady was just merging into womanhood, whose cheering spirit gladdened all whom she knew. She professed faith in Christ very early in life, in fact her gentle life revealed to her home and large circle of acquaintances that the hour never was when she didn't love Jesus, her Lord and Savior.

Emma was a faithful Christian and member of the Methodist Church. She was true to church and Sunday-school, and loved her pastor, whose own heart was pained when God took her to be with Him in the better land. She leaves a father and three sisters here below, but hers was a happy exit to be with loved ones who had gone before forevermore at God's right hand, praising and glorifying His holy name. We pray His abiding presence to hallow that stricken home and gradually remove the ghastly shadow across its doorway.

J. A. DAILEY, Pastor.

She had been ill for some weeks, and up to the time of her death the physicians had hopes of her recovery, but God in His infinite wisdom, willed it otherwise, and our loss has been Heaven's gain. Eva was only eleven years of age, and had been an earnest worker in the Methodist Church during the last two years of her young life. Death in all its darkness and gloom possessed no horrors for her, but she looked on it as the only and fitting way to that future life of rest and peace.

During all her illness she was patient and enduring, and not a murmur or complaint escaped her lips. In her school life she was always kind to her mates and ever ready to assist them. She was my pupil, and her death has left a vacancy among my little ones that cannot be filled by numbers, for the sweetness of her disposition and her willingness to serve made her beloved of both pupil and teacher.

We feel deeply for her mother and sister and brothers, who miss so much the bright little star from amid the family circle. May God in His goodness, bring comfort and consolation to their grieved hearts, and cause them to see that His way is best.

JOHN D. LANGSTON.

CULBRETH.—At his home in Owensville, N. C., Thomas Neil Culbreth died at 12.15 a. m., December 18, 1903, in his 78th year. He was the last surviving member of the firm of W. & T. Culbreth, who did business years ago at Cedar Creek, Blockersville, and at Owensville. But retired from mercantile life twenty years ago and settled together on a farm, where they remained until death.

Wm. R. Culbreth, after a long, lingering illness, died May 24, 1901, and was buried in the old Culbreth burying ground, where sleep these brothers, side by side.

Thomas requested that he be buried in a like casket as his brother William was buried, and by his side. These brothers had been partners in business from young manhood and their devotion to each other was remarkable.

William R. was never married, but seemed to love Thomas's children as if they had been his own, and manifested almost a mother's love and care for them, and the children scarcely knew the difference in their love for father and Uncle Will. Thomas was twice married. First to Miss Mary Ann Brown, of whom were born six children, that lived to maturity—five daughters, Mrs. Amelia Underwood, Mrs. Rosa Martin, Mrs. Ellen Owen, Mrs. Willie Culbreth, and Miss Anna Culbreth, and one son, Lalister L. Culbreth. His second marriage was with Susan White, widow of James White, of whom was born one son, James Benton. These seven affectionate children, with his loving wife, are all left to mourn the death of these good men, Thomas and William.

Thomas N. was the last surviving member of the noted Culbreth family. Daniel, Blackman, Love, and Gray, were Methodist preachers. There were seven sons and seven daughters—all true Methodists.

What the Culbreth family has done for Methodism remains to be revealed in the eternal day.

Thomas Neil Culbreth's death is mourned by many. The poor of his community will miss him much. His death is a sad loss to his church and country. But our loss is his gain. He died strong in faith giving glory to God. His last words were: Hope, hope, glorious hope.

B. B. HOLDER, P. C.

DANIEL.—Mrs. Sarah A. Daniel was born in Barnwell County, S. C., February 23, 1844, and died in Wilmington, N. C., May 31, 1903. She was twice married. Her first husband was Mr. Frank Adams, to whom she was married October 20, 1859. On December 28, 1862, Mr. Adams died. On August 6, 1868, she married Mr. J. G. Daniel. To this marriage there were born three children—Lula, James and Mamie.

Mr. Daniel preceded her by about a year to the spirit world, and she was left the second time a widow. In the midst of her children who loved her with a tender love, and who showed her every mark of honor and of reverence, she spent the evening of her life. Happy in her home, with strong faith in her God and at peace with the world, the end of her earthy pilgrimage was beautiful to contemplate.

Mrs. Daniel was a woman of superior character. She was for many years a devoted member of the Methodist Church. She was faithful to the vows she made at her altars; she was always in her seat at the regular services of her church; she loved the company of God's people; she read her Bible with a heart to know the truth; she looked well after her house and kept herself unspotted from the world.

She was a woman of meek and quiet spirit. In the sacred precincts of her home, serving in her lot those she loved, she was content to be unknown to the great outside world. Her chief concern was to do well the task God gave her as wife and mother.

Rarely have we known a spirit so lovable, so gentle, so guileless, so truthful, so pure in thoughts, so kind in speech, so patient with the world. She was the friend of the minister of Christ. Her pastors always found in her an earnest co-worker in every good cause. Her friendship was very precious to me—a friendship that enriched my own life.

She lived well and went down to her end in the peace of God. Every care was given to her declining days. All that loving hearts could do to make the evening-time sweet to her was done with much tenderness and grace. She sleeps well with the smile of God upon her face.

The Death of a Christian Saint.

On the 22nd of December, 1903, Thomas T. Seeders passed away at his home in this city in the 66th year of his life. He was fully and most blessedly prepared for this great change that awaited him, for he was a most consecrated, faithful, believing, humble Christian. He was of Virginia birth, and served with fidelity and conrage the Southern cause in the great war, marching under the stars and bars to victory and defeat, but he followed the blood-stained Banner of the Cross, keeping step day by day to the music of heaven, with a higher zeal, a more unfaltering devotion, a completer consecration. When the Great Commander issued His final order to him, the dear old Christian soldier obeyed at once, without fear or doubt, but with strong, unflagging faith, and ascended on high to join the great army of the Lord in the kingdom of glory; to be forever with the Lord of l ords and the blood-washed throng of immortals,—the redeemed, the regenerated, the sanctified, the glorified saints of heaven, who had come up through great tribulation. Thus passed away one of the purest, best, most thoroughly religious and most consecrated Christians I have ever known personally in a long life. He was for years a steward in Fifth Street Methodist E. Church in this city. For nearly thirteen years he had served with utmost fidelity as a steward of Market Street Church. He had been a most earnest class leader for some ninety years or more. He never missed a service of the church—preaching, prayer-meeting, class meeting, stewards' meeting, church meeting, watch night—unless prevented Providentially. He was full of hope, zeal, love, and was a man of much prayer and toil for the Master. He was greatly esteemed by all who were fortunate enough to know this dearly beloved and sainted brother in the Lord. Like Zacharias, he "was filled with the Holy Ghost," and loving God supremely, with his heart's affections set upon things heavenly; he walked before God in all circumspection and humility of soul, faithful and true and believing, a good, lovable man if I ever knew one. We were great friends; never a word or thought of disagreement or evil between us, and I loved the man, I trust, "with a pure heart fervently." I sat by his side for sixteen years in the "Amen! corner." I miss the dear brother now greatly, but rejoice in the great change that has come to him, and that now in indescribable peace and joy he is glorified in the Redeemer, the "Beloved" Son of God in whom he is "accepted."

May we all who read this brief tribute meet him there and meet our Saviour "face to face."

He married Miss ..... Jones, of Fayetteville, and after a long and happy married life, she survives him, and their two children, Miss Mettie and Thomas, named after his dear, faithful father. The funeral services at the church were participated in by Rev. J. W. Potter, his devoted pastor for four years, by his successor, Rev. Mr. Haltom, and Rev. Mr. McCullen, the new pastor of Fifth Street Church. Mr. Potter delivered a most admirable address—truthful, tender, full of love and inspiration. The prayer of Mr. McCullen was excellent.

There are many hearts in Wilmington that revere and honor the memory of Thomas T. Seeders. He was a printer, and a good one, a poor man, but a devout one, a true man, but a faithful one; he had no home or riches; he was not important on "'Change," or sought after in commercial or banking circles, but he was far above those, for he was indeed "the son of a King." Good-bye for the present, dear friend, until we meet, not long hence, in the land of glory and perpetual peace! "It doth not yet appear what we shall be." Eye hath not seen; ear hath not heard; heart hath not conceived. "The bright visions of genius fade before the ineffable reality, and the harps of the seraphim tremble beneath the burden of its song. "Hallelujah! the Lord God Omnipotent reigneth!

Some days ago I prepared a more careful, more elaborate tribute, but it has disappeared most strangely, most unaccountably.

Resolutions of Respect.

Whereas, God in His great wisdom and love has taken from our Sunday-school at Gibson, N. C., from toil and rest, Bro. F. B. Gibson, one of its most faithful and devoted teachers, and most liberal and ardent supporters; therefore be it Resolved 1. That we revere his memory, imitate his fidelity and zeal in this work that was so dear to his heart.

2. That we will, by divine help, close up the rank that has been broken by his departure, that our loss and his gain may be for the glory of God.

3. That we express, with all sincerity, our heartfelt sympathy for the bereaved family in this their great sorrow and commend them to Him who has said, "My grace shall be sufficient for you."

4. That we, the members of this Sunday-school, place in this church some token of our appreciation of his life.

5. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the sorrow-stricken family and a copy be spread upon the minutes of our Sunday-school, and a copy sent to the Raleigh Advocate and the Laurinburg Exchange for publication.

BRUTALLY TORTURED.

A case came to light that for persistent and unmerciful torture has perhaps never been equaled. Joe Golobick of Colusa, Calif., writes: "For 15 years I endured insufferable pain from Rheumatism and nothing relieved me though I tried everything known. I came across Electric Bitters and it's the greatest medicine on earth for that trouble. A few bottles of it completely relieved and cured me." Just as good for Liver and Kidney troubles and general debility. Only 50c. Satisfaction guaranteed by all druggists.

Dr. Marshal Beaty, the Nose, Throat and Lung Specialist, of Cincinnati, recently completed a series of trial treatments of his Antiseptic Medicated Air Cure on one hundred patients; some were consumptives in the lowest emaciated stages, others of a catarrhal, asthmatic and bronchial nature. The record of each patient kept by the Doctor as the home treatment progressed, was very interesting. The most remarkable and gratifying features in connection with the treatment was the rapid healing of the cavities and tubercles of the lungs and the raw, ulcerated surface of the mucous membrane of the entire breathing organs. This is phenomenal, and ample proof that his great discovery has solved the problem of a permanent cure for the thousands of sufferers from all catarrhal, bronchial and lung troubles. In his records of it, the Doctor says: "No germ of Catarrh, Asthma, Bronchitis or Consumption can live under the action of this powerful antiseptic. When taken internally and breathed and inhaled into the air passages, bronchial tubes and cells of the lungs, the germs are at once destroyed and expelled from the system, and the disease is arrested and cured by removing the cause."

To introduce and prove beyond doubt that this great treatment will cure Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma, Catarrh and Weak Lungs, Dr. Beaty has decided to make another test offer to others of a Full Month's Treatment, Free, including Inspirator and all medicines complete, exactly as shown in illustration.

The Doctor will keep in close touch with all patients during the progress of the treatment, and will make no charge for his professional services, consultation and the necessary correspondence.

When Dr. Beaty makes such a liberal offer as this, thereby saving patients the large sums they usually expend for medicine, advice, prescriptions, consultations, etc., there can be no excuse why sufferers should hesitate to put his treatment to the test.

Do not delay, but write at once, addressing Dr. M. Beaty, 258 West 9th St., Cincinnati, Ohio, and tell him the nature of your head, throat or lung trouble, and how long the disease has had a hold on you. This test course is intended to prove the genuine merits of the treatment and costs nothing.

PERSONAL TO SUBSCRIBERS!

WRITE FOR IT.

This announcement won't cure you! The reading of it won't ease your aches and pains. The medicine advertised WILL, but if you NEED it, if you WANT it, you MUST WRITE FOR IT.

WE have it and are willing to send it to you ON trial, AT OUR RISK, YOU TO BE THE JUDGE but we cannot know that you need it, that you want it, unless you write to us to send it to you.

How many times have you seen "Personal to Subscribers" in this paper? How many times have you THOUGHT you would answer it and send for a package on trial, at our risk? Now suit the ACTION to THOUGHT, and write for it to-day. Hundreds of your FELLOW SUBSCRIBERS have done what we ask you to do and are not sorry for having done it. You do it NOW! YOU ARE TO BE THE JUDGE!

READ OUR SPECIAL TRIAL OFFER.

WE WILL SEND to every reader of the RALEIGH CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, or worthy person recommended by a subscriber, a full sized $1.00 package of Vitæ-Ore, by mail, postpaid, sufficient for one month's treatment to be paid for when the person in one month's time after receipt, if the receiver can truthfully say that its use has done him or her more good than all the drugs or dopes of quacks or good doctors or patent medicines he or she has ever used. Read this over again carefully, and understand that we want to pay only when it has done you good and not before. We take all the risk; you have nothing to lose. If it does not benefit you you pay us nothing. Vitæ-Ore is a natural herb ailment, purely alkaline substance—mineral—Ore—mined from the ground like gold and silver, and requires about twenty years for oxidization. It contains free iron, free sulphur and magnesium, and one package will equal in medicinal strength and curative value 800 gallons of the most powerful, efficacious mineral water drunk fresh at the springs. It is a geological discovery, to which there is nothing added or taken from. It is the marvel of the century for curing such diseases as

Rheumatism, Bright's Disease, Blood Poisoning, Heart Trouble, Dropsy, Catarrh and Throat Affections, Liver, Kidney and Bladder Ailments, Stomach and Female Disorders, LaGrippe, Malarial Fever, Nervous Prostration, and General Debility,

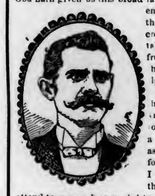
As thousands testify, and as no one, answering this, writing for a package, will deny after using. Vitæ-Ore has cured more chronic, obstinate, pronounced incurable cases than any other known medicine and will reach cases with a more rapid and powerful curative action than any medicine, combination of medicines, or doctor's prescription which it is possible to procure.

Vitæ-Ore will do the same for you as it has for hundreds of readers of this paper if you will give it a trial. Send for a $1.00 package at our risk. You have nothing to lose but the stamp to answer this announcement. If the medicine does not benefit you, write us so and there is no harm done. We want no one's money whom Vitæ-Ore cannot benefit. Can anything be more fair? What sensible person, no matter how prejudiced he or she may be who desires a cure and is willing to pay for it, would hesitate to try Vitæ-Ore on this liberal offer? One package is usually sufficient to cure ordinary cases; two or three for chronic, obstinate case. We mean just what we say in this announcement, and we will do just as what agree. Write to-day for a package at our risk and expense, giving your age and ailments, and mention this paper so we may know that you are entitled to this liberal offer.

This offer will challenge the attention and consideration, and afterward the gratitude of every living person who desires better health, or who suffers pains, ills and diseases which have defied the medical world and grown worse with age. We care not for your skepticism, but ask only your investigation and at our expense, regardless of what ills you have, by sending to us for a package.

Rev. S. E. McMillian

Wrote for it and Now Praises It Most Highly.



It is because I have tested this wonderful remedy called VITÆ-ORE that I thus speak forth in its praise, so that all suffering humanity may know that in its grasp lies a cure for their ills. The good God hath given us this broad land, so that we may enjoy its love lines in that for which he hath created it and overtake of its delicious fruits and drink from the pebbly brook as it ripples by. But the suffering ones, and there are many thousands, needeth Health to enjoy its luxuries, a health that I most assuredly feel can be found in VITÆ-ORE. I was unable for more than three months to attend to my work as a minister of the Gospel; my health was fast failing me, and my condition gave me cause for much alarm. At this time I read an advertisement of VITÆ-ORE in my paper (praise to the editor for the space he gave it). I at once sent for a dollar package on trial and immediately began its use. I must say of a truth to man before God, VITÆ-ORE began its work at once. In two weeks I felt like a different man, and was again able to attend to my duties as before. I would consider the results more than miraculous with so short a time did I not call into account the origin of VITÆ-ORE and know that He that placed it in the ground can perform more than miracles. I want to help Uncle Noel in the good work, and want to help my fellow men, and I say to all who need it, or who need new life new strength and new health USE IT! "It was placed in the earth for your ills by One greater than thou." REV. S. E. McMILLIAN, Ophelia, W. Va.

REV. W. P. BANKS

Sec'y Cent. Tenn. M. E. Conference, Cured of Rheumatism.

Read What He Says:

"In October, 1902, I had a severe and prolonged attack of Muscular Rheumatism, the disease taking hold particularly in my back, and at times so affecting my right hip joint that I could not walk a step without support. In spite of all medical aid, of which I secured the best in this section, the condition continued until the following January, at which time I began the use of VITÆ-ORE. After using one and a half packages of this remedy every vestige of the Rheumatism had disappeared, and I am left improved in every respect, much stronger and better in a general way. VITÆ-ORE is certainly a wonderful medicine. I have seen it tried in other cases in this neighborhood with like results.

THE WORLD AS WE SEE IT.

Judge Cook decided at the Durham County Superior Court that only in four counties of the State can the place of the delivery of whiskey be accounted the place of sale. This decision, of course, highly pleased the anti-temperance people, who know that as long as the jug traffic can be carried on, no temperance law can be wholly effective. Last week at the Wake Superior Court, Judge Brown decided that the law which, according to Judge Cook, applies only to four counties of the State, applies to the whole State. This, of course, brings joy to the temperance forces.

But the end is not yet. The Supreme Court must pass on the matter. The decision of the Supreme Court will be awaited with keen and almost painful interest. When we have an effective anti-jug law we will have the instrument with which to rout the last regiment of the enemy.

On last Tuesday night we sat in the Hall of Representatives in the Capitol at Raleigh. Above the speaker's desk were fastened the banners of the Lost Cause. One was battle-torn and age-stained. The band played the old tunes which forty years ago thrilled the hearts of Southern people, whether watching by lonely hearthstones or engaging in the tumult of battle. Captain Samuel A. Ashe limned on the mental canvas of his audience the outlines of that great Chieftain, General Robert Edward Lee, whose birthday was being observed all over the South. The battle-flags, the Confederate veterans present, the music, the pathetic periods of the gifted speaker, the hymn sung and the poem rendered so touchingly by Mrs. F. A. Olds, made us sad. But our deepest sadness was caused by the reflection that the audience was so small. Pit and gallery should have been crowded with the men and women of the capital city desirous of showing annual respect to the great chieftain of the South. We cannot afford to allow the temple in which his memory is enshrined to become dusty and deserted. The finest test of individual or nation is the remembrance of its dead.

Sheriff Page, of Wake County, is represented as saying that he is the man who first proclaimed the fact that people are slower to pay their taxes in prosperous years than in bad ones. This popular sheriff is only making public a principle in civic affairs which has been recognized in ecclesiastical affairs ever since there arose that "murmuring of the Grecians against the Hebrews"—the time when people began to pay church "quarterage," as it is called in Methodist nomenclature. Ever since the days of boyhood we have heard preachers say that the hardest years mean the best collections. The explanation given by Sheriff Page is the right one. "In the hard years people are very particular to pay first the debts which they are morally and legally bound to pay systematically. But in plenteous years they feel that they have the money to pay when they please, and are in no hurry about it, as they will have no trouble in paying."

There may be much or little truth in the oft-repeated proclamations of Mr. Bryan's political invalidism, but one fact is certain: the Nebraskan's purpose to have his own way in tonguing and grooving the planks in the platform of his party is strong and lusty. His late European trip seems to have cleared from his mind any cobwebs of indecision that may have gathered in the corners during the nearly four years of his editorial experience, for he came back to deliver a few days ago at Lincoln, Nebraska, a banquet speech in which he clearly outlined his purpose to adhere strictly to the principles of 1896 and 1900, and frown upon all those who do not agree with him.

Mr. Bryan is at least consistent. But some types of consistency are not always excellent if we may believe in the doctrine of Mr. Emerson, who, when he had advanced a certain opinion, and was told that this opinion contradicted the one he had advanced a few days before, replied: "Certainly; three days have elapsed since then." Mr. Bryan evidently does not believe in this kind of consistency. We undertake, as a layman, to say that his part in the great drama to be played before the Ides of November will be picturesquely and intensely dramatic.

Rev. H. K. Carroll, LL D., was in charge of the Government Census of Churches in 1890. Since that time he has compiled annually the statistics of the religious bodies in the United States. He is a statistical expert and the figures given by him may be regarded as reliable.

The net gain of all denominations in 1903, according to Dr. Carroll, were 2,340 ministers, 2,647 churches, and 482,459 communicants. The net gain in membership for 1902 was greater by 72,955 than that of 1903. This is perhaps explained by the fact the Roman Catholic Church in 1902 reported abnormal gains. The net gain in ministers and churches for 1903, was greater than that of 1902.

The Roman Catholic Church stands first in gain in membership—166,010. It must be remembered that the Roman Catholic Church counts all baptized persons, whether adults or infants. The African Methodist Episcopal Church stands next—56,646. The Southern Baptist Church comes next with a gain of 40,000. The Disciples of Christ stand next—28,421. The Methodist Episcopal Church is fifth with a gain of 20,967. The Methodist Episcopal Church, South, stands sixth, having had a net gain of 20,119.

The gains of Methodists of all names were 112,946, about twenty-three per cent of the grand total. The gains of the Baptists of all names were 61,146; those of all bodies of Lutherans, 35,567; those of all Presbyterian bodies, 26,506; those of the Protestant Episcopal Church, 15,209.

Governor Vardaman, of Mississippi, in his inaugural address on January 19, made some statements pertaining to the education of the negro which we consider untrue and unfortunate. According to the Associated Press he declared that education is a curse to the negro, and urged an amendment to the State Constitution that will place the distribution of the common school fund solely within the power of the Legislature, which means of course, that the amount now apportioned to the colored schools shall be considerably reduced.

Governor Aycock, in his admirable speech, delivered lately in Baltimore, said that one of the greatest dangers which we confront is the danger of not being just to the negro. He did not say that we are unjust to the negro, but that there is danger of falling into this attitude. We cannot but think that Governor Aycock had in mind the policy which has been so openly outlined by Governor Vardaman in his inaugural addres.

We are not denying the truth of some of the statements of Governor Vardaman. The education which the negro has received in many sections has been very disappointing to many who desire the progress of the races. But this does not mean that the education of the negro is and must be a failure. Education is a postive term and a positive thing, and cannot vary in its intent and content. It has never hurt anything. It can never hurt anything. It is the same under all condition, in all times, places, and races.

The method of education is sometimes wrong, and, when so, can lead only to bad results. We believe that tthe negro in many cases has been wrongly educated. Hence his so-called education makes him a vagabond and a criminal. Instead of proclaiming that the education of the negro is a failure, let us rather look in the face the fact that the methods of his education have made him a failure. Let us reform the methods and we will then reform him. Let us not fall into the folly of making a financial discrimination between the white man and the negro that will rob the latter of a complete chance to avail himself of that which forms an integral part of real righteousness—education.

One who intimately knew the late B. M. Tuttle, father of Rev. D. H. Tuttle, thus writes: "He was ready. Left all worldly affairs in good condition. Had 'set his house in order' temporally as well as spiritually. Was a member of the church sixty-two years and filled many years in the capacity of Sunday-school superintendent, trustee, and steward." We knew this good man from boyhood, and it is pleasant to realize that the foregoing truthful words but imperfectly outline the grandeur of his character.

Contributions.

Two Kinds of Poundings.

BY A. J. PARKER.

There are two kinds of poundings, viz., one for pastors and the other for editors. The first is much enjoyed and the second to be endured.

PASTORS' POUNDINGS

Being a Methodist preacher, I suppose my experience is in order. It was on the last night of the old year (1903) and within a few hours of its death, that a large number of the people of Mantoe, mostly ladies, called at the parsonage to wish us a happy new year and to leave two large well filled baskets as tokens of their esteem and friendship. A few days ago Bethany repeated the dose. We enjoyed it immensely. Of course the bundles were valuable, but we prize far more the motives which prompted this action. I know you wish you were a pastor again so you could repeat the experience of other days. It must make your mouth water for another taste of "sop and tater," when the pastors begin telling about these pleasant occasions. These poundings cheer the soul and help men to preach more effectively. I once knew a preacher who, because of certain developments, had the "blues," and talked about giving up his work. He felt that his people did not care for him. His sermons were poor, although he was what is termed a good preacher. One good sister proposed a pounding and the people become interested. After the pounding was over the people awoke to the fact that their preacher was a power. There was new life in his sermons. The result was that a mutual love sprang up which continues to abide. But I want to say a word about

EDITORS' POUNDINGS

Surely, Mr. Editor, you have been pounded too, but somehow you do not seem to grow fat on the treatment. I expect if you were to own it, you get pounded oftener than the most popular preacher in our Conference. I can see the crowd gathering, they are heading for the Advocate office, each intent on giving you the benefit of his pound. The packages they bear do not look much like the picture of a well-filled pantry, but nearer like instruments of mischief. Let us hear what they have to say.

No. 1 says: "I do not get my paper regularly, therefore I shall not pay for it." This man has never informed the editor of this before.

No. 2 says: "I subscribed for six months and you have sent it for a year. I did not tell you to do it, so I am not going to pay for it." Did you take it out of the office and read it? Yes. Did you and your family good? Yes. Now, why do you refuse to pay for it? Because I did not tell you to send it."

No. 3 says: "I handed my subscription to my pastor and you have not credited me, and I know my pastor is an honest man." Have you asked your pastor about this; maybe he has forgotten about it? No.

No. 4: "I owe you for ten years subscription, and you have sent me a statement—a dun—and I tell you I will not stand it. Here is your money; take it and stop my paper."

No. 5: "I told John Smith to tell Henry Jones when he went to Raleigh to tell you that as soon as cotton reached eighteen cents a pound that I was going to pay up for my paper."

No. 6: "Is a bill for paper."

No. 7: "Is a bill for labor."

No. 8: "Is a bill for postage.'

No. 9: "Is a bill for office rent."

No. 10: "Is the printer asking for more matter to fill up the editorial columns?"

These and many others are after you, each throwing in his pound.

Now, Mr. Editor, if you want to know how to avoid these unpleasant visitors, just learn how to buy paper and ink, hire labor, and pay postage and rent without money, and give every fellow the paper free, and go around to all the sticklers and pay them to take the paper, and you can do. I guess you like the fun of being editor, for you have many pleasant occasions, but somehow I like the pastor's poundings better than I do those of an editor.

A Round Completed.

Dear Brother Ivey:—We have completed the rounds on North Gates Circuit and we are, therefore, prepared to speak through your columns concerning the charge and its reception of us. Let me say first, that if Bishop Candler had permitted me to have selected my own field of labor, I am sure I would not have chosen a place equal to the one to which he sent me, for I fear it has no equal in the North Carolina Conference for its kindnesses to its pastor.

On the night of the 26th of December we arrived at Gates Station where we were met by Bro. Harry B. Cross,than whom there is no more clever man to be found anywhere. Comfortably tucked in his carriage, we rode two miles to the parsonage, where we found a warm house, a warm supper, and a number of what has already proved to be warm friends. They took us, I believe, right into their hearts, and we can assure you we took them into ours.

After they had served us a nice supper and talked with us a while, we had prayers and they departed, leaving wife and me sole possessors of the house. Being left alone, we began to look around, and we soon found ourselves the occupants of a seven-room house, well furnished with good furniture. We found also that our pantry had been well supplied for us with sugar, coffee, lard, butter, baking powder, flour, cake, milk, bacon, ham, and potatoes. Being satisfied with the indoors of our home, we laid ourselves upon a nice feathed bed and got a good night's rest.

Arising the next morning, we went out and found our shed contained a lot of nice wood sawed ready for our stoves. And strutting around the yard, as if he were "lord of all he surveyed," a rooster was found followed by nine hens. All these things made us feel that we were prepared to keep house.

Eleven o'clock came and found us in the home church just at the corner of our field, and a beautiful little structure it is. We preached to their usual congregation, though it was a cold day, and then accepted an invitation to dine with Sister Alice Williams, where we had a good dinner and met many companionable brethren and sisters.

Three o'clock found us at Savages Church, just two miles off, where we preached to a large congregation, and received a hearty welcome at their hands.

Early in the following week, brethren and sisters began to tell me if there was any thing needed at the parsonage to let them know. They seemed anxious to do for us all they could. We were a little slow in making our wants known, so a committee of ladies visited the parsonage and left to purchase, at an early date, about $50.00 worth of new goods.

We would say that we have had a pounding, but that would convey the idea that a lot of things came all at once and then ceased. Almost every day has brought to us some of the good things of life. If you love spare-bone, back-bone and sausage, Doctor, just come down and we will try to satisfy you.

We feel that we have a goodly people to serve, and our purpose shall be to serve them to the best of our ability. The prospects are fine for a good year.

We have already begun to talk Advocate, and hope to be of some service to you this year.

Yours fraternally,

W. H. BROWN.

A man conscious of his own smallness nearly always takes refuge behind the bulk of larger men. It is commendable from one standpoint at least. True courage, however, makes defense of its own bosom.

Letter from Indian Territory.

L. L. JOHNSON.

Dear Dr. Ivey:—I am almost surprised at myself that I have again transferred. I am now in the Indian Territory, and stationed at Afton, in the Cherokee district. There was only one reason for my leaving Missouri, and that was, I wanted to come to the Territory. I have no complaint to make against the Southwest Missouri Conference. The preachers and people treated me even better than I deserved. Many of them assured me a welcome among them should I ever desire to return. My appointments in that Conference were all that I could expect.

So far, we are well pleased in our new field. Our people received us very kindly, and have shown us many favors already. A donation was in the parsonage when we arrived. Since then we have received so nice presents, among them being a telephone plan in the parsonage and all charges paid for a year. They called it a "New Year's" gift.

We are among the Cherokees, and they are more like Southern people than any other race. In fact, they are Southern. Now and then I find one who was born in North Carolina. We like the Indians. Of course we do not come in contact with many of the full-bloods. They usually live in the country. But the mixed bloods are found in both town and country, and make up a large majority of the people. While a number of my church members are white people, a majority of them have Indian blood, of which they are proud. Many of them are intelligent and make as good citizens and Christians as anybody.

There is a mistaken idea about the Indian Territory. We are not in the backwoods. We have some as good society as is found anywhere. Our town will compare favorably with towns in the States of like size and age. All believe there is a bright future for the Territory and our church. The M. E. Church, South, stands in the front, and we expect to keep it there. True, there is much work here to be done, but that helps to develop Christian energy. The Indians own the land, and for the present cannot sell it. Other people can only buy town lots appraised by the Government. The country generally is but thinly settled. Most of it is rolling prairie, but in some sections there is timber. The land is fertile, and perhaps three-fourths of it or more has never been in cultivation. The wild prairie grass abounds everywhere, and is used for pasture and hay. The shipment of prairie hay from this place is about 1,200 cars this year, and about 125 cars of cattle and hogs.

Our town is on the main line of the Frisco from St. Louis to Oklahoma City. We also have a road from here to Kansas City. Eight passenger trains stop here daily. So we are not out of the world. Within two lots of the parsonage there is an artesian well, 600 feet deep, sending out a constant flow of pure water, tinged with sulphur. We have near town a man by the name of Jack Squirrel, a family of Buzzards, two families of Muskrats, and a Mr. Snakekiller.

I have never seen such a delightful winter anywhere as we are having. The weather has been almost perfect so far. No snow and but little rain. It is a much milder climate than Missouri, though it joins that State on the southwest.

The weekly visits of the Raleigh Advocate are always interesting and refreshing. It is usually good news from a far country. Now and then the death of an old friend is reported that makes the heart sad, and reminds us that those we love so well in the dear old home-land are gathering on the other shore. Sometimes I stop to think over all the charges I served in North Carolina, and the people who loved us and drew us close to their warm hearts.

The Lord has been good to us all since we came West. Friends have abounded. We have had health. Our children are all with us. We try to be thankful to the Giver of all good.

The Advocate is an excellent paper. God bless it and its well-equipped Editor. Best wishes to all our friends who may read these lines.

A Vital Starting Point.

C. H. WETHERBE.

Very many people, claiming to have a high-grade of religion without accepting the atonement of Christ, need to be most forcibly reminded that all true religion today had its starting point from Christ's cross. Had there been no other types of religion in this country than those of Universalism and Unitarianism it is safe to say that there never would have come into existence the great Christian schools which abound in the land. Nor would there be Christian Endeavor Societies, Epworth Leagues, and Young Men's Christian Associations, to say nothing of other Christian organizations which are doing a vast deal for the eternal welfare of people. Vital Christianity has been the pioneer in organizing and propelling those institutions which are at the front in rescuing fallen humanity. They never would have come forth from any source which ignored the cross of Calvary, with its blood theology. False types of Christianity never rise to the heights of radically redeeming mankind from the slavery of its sins. Rev. W. Mathison, of Australia, in a recent address, said: "The cross, then, is a great resting place. But it is also a great starting point. The more we realize the rest there is in it, the more we are moved to higher things." He also said: "It is by the way of the cross that we pass from the pagan to the Christian conception of life. The passage is a very grievous one to fallen man. Satan has written over the entrance the lying legend, 'Abandon hope, all ye who enter here.' Many want the rest of the cross without its inspiration, the privileges of the cross without its obligations, the safety of the cross without its responsibilities. But the cross points the way. In the midst of the world it stands." Yes, and the civilized nations of the world would not be what they now are if there had been no cross with a dying Christ on it. A thousand perfectly moral persons, if they were to have been crucified on the cross in Christ's day, and he had been left out entirely, could not have produced any great moral change, either in sinners or in institutions. The whole flood of redeeming and saving power, which has affected mankind graciously, started from the cross.

Who Is to Be Blamed?

A METHODIST.

The Christmas season has just passed with its varied entertainments and thoughts. Now we are realizing the effects. What has it produced in us?

As these things crowd upon my mind, as I come to face the effect of these seasons upon the young life of the church, I ask myself what does Christmas mean to a great many of our young church people? I read the dailies: "Mrs. B. gave a most enjoyable card party last evening in honor of Miss C." The most delightful german of the season was most gracefully led by Mr. and Miss D., the most intricate figures danced." "Mrs. E. gave a grand reception. Miss F., with all her charming beauty, presided at the punch bowl." These young people, some of them members of the Methodist Church. I ask myself, what are we coming to, and who is to blame for this card playing, wine drinking, and dancing, by members of the Methodist Church?

I must confess that we preachers have not handled these sins and sinners as we should. I am also aware that there are difficulties in the way of handling them.

But I am convinced that there are other shoulders that must share the blame for the entrance and continuance of these flagrant violations of church vows and the spirit of Christianity in the church of today. Namely, the parents of these young people.

Let an earnest pastor approach the mother of one of these dancing girls, and ask her help in stopping her from dancing, and lo and behold, her mother approves of it. But, urges the pastor, "its a viclation of the church rules." "O yes, I know that, but you know the rules are not enforced now." "But," urges the pastor, "these things are contrary to the spirit of Christianity, and I see the effect upon the spiritual life of your child." "O well, you can't put old heads on young shoulders, and I am sure my daughter is as pious as a great many who make greater pretensions." says the mother.

Thus you will learn that instead of finding in some mothers a great helper in saving the young life to the church, you will find the worst disorganizer and hindrance. They say "there is no harm in playing cards; it keeps the young folks at home." "There is no harm in the dance; it's such an accomplishment and makes one so graceful;" and wine and punch completes the refreshments at all polite receptions.

Now, what type of young life would you expect in such a home as this. Is it a wonder that these young people care so little for the Sabbath-school, the prayer-meeting, the Epworth League?

These things coming so thick during Christmas, along with my study of the Sunday-school lessons, have sent me into a study of the home life and training of our Savior and John the Baptist; and as I have studied these pious Jewish homes—to which God entrusted His Son our Savior, and John the Baptist, I have asked myself, what help were these homes to these upon whom our hopes depend?

I can but shudder when I think what would have been the consequence if God had committed the training of either of these to one of these modern up-to-date homes.

One of the hardest tasks any preacher ever set himself to is to try to save a dancing member of his church when she has a mother behind her who wants to get her into what is call society, and is willing to pay the price.

These things demand the most prayerful study of the hearts of our church today.

Elizabeth City Methodism.

J. V. WILLIAMS.

It was my good fortune to spend Sunday, January 10th, in Elizabeth City, and to preach three times that day.

I wrote Brother Tuttle that I was on the way, and they arranged to give me plenty of latitude. Brother Tuttle was in Western North Carolina to attend the burial of his father. A sad mission, but I'm sure that God stood by him.

It was arranged that I should preach for the First Church at eleven o'clock and for Brother North at City Roads at 7.30 p. m.

At the First Church I found a live Sunday-school at 9.30 a. m., led by that noble Methodist layman and Christian gentleman, W. J. Woodly. Enthusiasm seems to be in the air there. They sing and pray like live folks. At eleven o'clock I preached at the First Church to a large congregation. A people who pray while you preach, and go away feeling that they have met the Lord. A happy people—a happy preacher.

At 3 p. m. Brother Woodly took me out to preach at Eqworth Church; a new church finished last year by Brother Tuttle, and where he holds regular preaching services. The drive was only three miles, and Brother Woodley's rubber-tire carriage and fine black nag made the ride a pleasure. I found an intelligent congregation waiting, and ready to hear the Word. Feeling at home when in the country, I gave them the best I had. I love the good old country Methodist meetings.

At night I met a full house and lovely people at City Roads. Some of those saints have left their old church and friends to serve God and do faithful duty in a new church. God bless them! City Roads Church is a beauty, a gem; it shines. But the good people of our church who divided their forces for the glory of God outshine this building. "They shall shine forever and ever."

COLUMBIA

Happening to be in Columbia on Wednesday afternoon, I called to pay my respects to our preacher on that work, Brother Counstable. He was away holding a protracted meeting in the country. What do you think of that? A country revival in January. That reminds me of what Bishop Candler's two brothers, who were lawyers, said of his first sermon:

"Warren" had been off to college and got converted, and went to preaching, like St. Paul, "not conferring with flesh and blood."

When the boy (about eighteen, I think) came home he preached for the home-folks. His two brothers were "thar," as he would say.

Walking back from the church, one said to the other: "What do you think of Warren?" "Warren will do," said the other.

Well, I think a preacher who goes out in the backwoods to hold a revival in January "will do," don't you Brother Ivey?

Sister Constable fed me, and showed me the way to the church. To my surprise, I found a good congregation,and instead of holding a prayer-meeting, preached for them. The choir is led by Sister Constable, and such fine singing I have seldom heard. They open their mouths. Many choirs sing like they were tired; they make me tired.

In a few days I shall be engaged in my loved employ, revival work, and hope to win a thousand souls to Jesus this year. Pray for me.

Bethel Circuit.

As those who have charges are writing from and of their charges, I will write a word from the charge in which I live. It is a sad reality to me that I have no charge. No one who has not experienced it knows—no tongue can tell or pen describe.

Old Bethel is O. K., and we have no doubt of success in all church interests with Rev. W. H. Kirton at the wheel. The stewards met January 15th and made a liberal assessment for the support of the ministry.

Brother Kirton has made a fine impression on his people. He is a strong matter-of-fact preacher. He preaches Christ in all his offices, as all-sufficient for all men now and ever more.

Rev. J. D. Bundy, our new Presiding Elder, has not been seen here yet. Our first quarterly meeting will be in February.

Yours, etc., I. O. U.

The further down you can drive the saloon, the further away you remove temptation from those who work in high places.

From Roberdell.

Dear Brother:—I have made one full round on my circuit. My people have received me very kindly, and I enter upon my work hopefully.

Roberdell is a nice place to live. We have a good church here, and my congregations are large and appreciative. We also have a good school running ten months in the year, absolutely free; the mill owners supplementing the public school money so as to give the children school advantages all the year. This means right much to us, as we send five children.

The Circuit is large, having eight appointments, and nearly all the churches weak; but we think they will take care of us, and are hoping for a god year in the church. We enjoy the riding over these high hills after having been in a level country so long; but we remember with grateful appreciation the kindness we received at the hands of our Red Springs friends for three years. God bless them and give them a good year under the leadership of their faithful pastor, Rev. S. E. Mercer. Already we have heard favorable reports from him and his good wife.

I am entering upon my thirty-second year in circuit work. God has been good to me all these years, and I am still happy in this work. God bless you and all the readers of the Advocate.

Z. T. HARRISON.

Letter from Raeford.

Dear Brother Ivey:

If you will accept from an inexperienced pen, a little account of the work and progress in Methodism at this point for the last four years it shall be my purpose to offer some little history.

Four years ago under the kind compliance by invitation, Rev. E. Pope, then serving Red Springs Circuit, gave us a monthly service, arranging same so as to not conflict with his regular assigned work. At that time we could only claim five Methodists belonging to our little band or mission, holding services in a school house. Under the wise instruction and counsel of Brother Pope, the work prospered and grew, his labors being spent among us for a large portion of two years. It was then the duty, and pleasant duty, of Rev. J. T. Harrison, to continue instructing this little flock, who soon saw the field for labor and necessity for a church at this point. From time to time members were added by certificate or profession of faith. In July, 1902, definite plans and organization were perfected for immediate construction of a building. Mr. J. W. McLauchlin, a noble Presbyterian brother, at once donated site, and work was begun.

Few in number, resolute in determination, yet necessarily much time was consumed. Finance was a puzzling problem just here, though backed b determination, resolution, willingness and an ever abiding faith in God and our community, the work progressed until June, 1903, when same was pronounced ready for occupancy. Brother Harrison, after much toil and untiring devotion for its successful completion conducting the first service.

We feel safe in saying, no town of six hundred inhabitants, through our section of country, can claim a more beautiful, commodious, or more modern church edifice. A small debt yet remains of some six hundred and twenty-five dollars; but we have the assurance that same will be eliminated before many years shall have passed. Our membership has now been increased to about thirty-five, and the prospects are bright for future developments.

Much credit is due Brothers Pope and Harrison, and we wish them much success in their future fields of labors.

Rev. S. E. Mercer was sent us by last Conference, having preached several times to large, appreciative audiences already. We feel safe in saying his association and labors will be a benediction to our entire people, and bespeak for him a rich harvest in 1904.

Rev. J. N. Cole, Presiding Elder, was here last Thursday, conducting Quarterly Conference; it being his first visit to our place. He expressed himself as being highly pleased with this section and town, the same surpassing far his expectations.

We wish him to come often and stay longer.

Cannot close without saying best wishes for the Editor and the Advocate.

Yours truly,

BENNETT F. MOORE.

Trinity Park School.

Readers of this letter will notice that the name of the school has changed from Trinity Park High School to Trinity Park School. The reasons for making this change were in order to avoid confusion with the High School forming the system of Durham Public Schools and with Trinity High School situated at the site of old Trinity College near High Point, N. C. The school hereafter will be known as Trinity Park School.

The school has had a splendid opening since the holidays. Almost all of the old students have returned, together with about fifteen new ones. The number now enrolled is larger than for the corresponding time of tthe year during any year since the founding of the school, and they continue to come. Letters are being constantly received from prospective students, and a number of students are expected in the next few days and at the opening of the spring term.

Both dormitories have been filled, and the authorities have rented a large new building near the school, and a number of students have rooms there. All these rooms are now taken and some students have been placed in rooms in private families.

The spring term will open on February 1st, and then the athletic spirit will be abroad. Already this spirit is showing itself among the students, and a schedule of games is being arranged, and the season promises to be a very succesful one for the school.

The Epworth League and the Era—A Statement by the General Secretary.

Mr. Editor:—May I ask a little space to make a general business statement to the members and friends of the Epworth League throughout the connection?

First, that the year just closed shows the greatest prosperity in League work that we have yet been able to report. The increase is about one hundred and seventy-five Chapters, and six thousand five hundred members. The activity in League organization at this time is most gratifying. We are earnestly seeking to effect an organization in every congregation in the church. The League has fully vindicated the claim which was made for it in the beginning.

Second, that the subscription income of the Era has been so considerably increased as that we are now in sight of a long wished for consummation, namely, the overcoming of the annual deficit. The margin is now so small that any considerable immediate movement amongst the Leagues to extend the circulation will more than balance the accounts. The fiscal year ends April first, next. Will not our League Chapter everywhere read our meaning out of this.

Faithfully, H. M. DU BOSE,
General Secretary and Editor.

Another Pounding.

Dear Bro. Ivey:—The good ladies rushed in the other day while this scribe was sick and pounded us severely. Well, you know that kind does not hurt. When they were gone we found in the larder enough for many days. Such kind remembrance makes the poor, homeless Methodist preacher and his family feel that some one has his interest at heart. We invoke heaven's richest blessings upon them. I desire to be a greater blessing to them this year than ever.

God bless the "Old Raleigh" and its editor.

Fraternally, W. A. JENKINS.

Maysville, N. C., January 21, 1904.

SOME COMMENDATIONS OF THE HANDBOOK.

The issue for 1904 is at hand, and is a beautiful and valuable piece of work. The book contains many things of interest, among them the condensed minutes of both the North Carolina Conferences. This gives a full and accurate survey Methodism throughout the State. Another most convenient item is that which gives the official bodies and officers of the general church.

Dr. Tillett, Dean of the Theological Faculty of Vanderbilt University, contributes quite an appropriate and searching paper on "Why I Am a Methodist," while Rev. M. H. Tuttle, of the North Carolina Conference, writes luminously on the very important subject of "Infant Baptism." Both papers are admirable in themselves and in their timeliness.

One of the most impressive and valuable features of the work is a section of twenty pages, giving maps of every county in the State, with location of every Methodist Church. This feature alone must have required a large amount of work and pains.

Dr. Ivey has done a truly good thing, and it will be well for Methodist progress and history if he shall find a worthy imitator in every State covered by our church.—Rev. James Alkins, D. D.

* * *

I have examined it carefully and am delighted with it. The two articles—one by Dr. Tillett on "Why I Am a Methodist," and the other by Rev. M. H. Tuttle on "Infant Baptism"—should alone command a large sale for the book. Another feature which is worthy of special mention is the maps of the Districts, showing the location of each church. This is unique and valuable. The book is superior in every respect to the one issued last year, and every Methodist family in North Carolina should have a copy of it. My League will give you a good order soon.—Rev. G. T. Adams, New Bern.

* * *

Those members of the Methodist Church in North Carolina—both Conferences—who are alive to the interests of the church and who desire to keep well posted about Methodist men and Methodist affairs, are to be congratulated that they have such a complete and concise source of information as the North Carolina Methodist Handbook, a copy of which has just been placed in our hands by Rev. T. N. Ivey, D. D., the editor. Dr. Ivey is also to be congratulated upon the splendid service he has rendered Methodism in editing and compiling a complete compendium of Methodist ideas, policies, and current history.—Morning Post.

* * *

We are obliged to Rev. T. N. Ivey, D. D., editor of the Raleigh Christian Advocate and of the North Carolina Methodist Handbook for 1904, for a copy of that Handbook. It is packed full of important information, going even beyond the Holston Annual in its exhibit of ecclesiastical data. What more could the editor of the Annual say? Good for Dr. Ivey, and may the Conference Secretaries pass it on!—Midland Methodist.

* * *

We acknowledge the courtesy of Rev. T. N. Ivey, D. D., in sending us a copy of the Handbook. This is the third year of this interesting and important annual, and each edition is an improvement on the former. The notable feature of improvement in this year's edition is the excellent maps of all the districts in the two Conferences, showing the location of the churches and the boundaries of Districts and charges. It is well worth the price—25 cents—and should be in the home of every North Carolina Methodist.—N. C. Christian Advocate.

* * *

Rev. T. N. Ivey, D. D., editor of the Raleigh Christian Advocate, favors us with copy of the North Carolina Methodist Handbook, which is the most complete and satisfactory we have ever seen. Besides the minutes of both Conferences for 1903, it contains a great deal of interesting information about the church, both local and general. We congratulate our talented brother on his good work. —St. Louis Christian Advocate.

The Family.

What's In the Glass?

It was John G. Saxe, who, fifty years ago was America's leading humorist, who wrote this startling warning:

"You have heard of the snake in the grass, my boy,
Of the terrible snake in the grass:
But now you must know,
Man's deadliest foe,
Is the venomous snake in the glass.
Alas!
The venomous snake in the glass."

And it was Henry W. Longfellow, whose "Psalm of Life" every American boy knows (or ought to know) by heart, that wrote:

"Touch the goblet no more!
It will make thy heart sore,
To its very core.
Its perfume is the breath
Of the angel of death:
And the light that within it lies
Is the flash of his evil eyes.
Beware! Oh, beware!
For sickness, sorrow, and care.
All are there!"

The Girl in the Church.

In considering the relation of the young woman to the church it is not necessary to emphasize especially the duty of attendance upon the regular meetings of the young people's society. That is self-evident, and is a duty which she would look upon as a privilege if she would recall the fact that the girl in the early part of the nineteenth century had no such advantages. Fifty years ago, when a girl came into the church she was on the same level with the older members. There were no special meetings for young people, and special effort was made in their behalf. The girl was cordially welcomed, but was expected to fit herself into the regular church work. It would seem that today occasional emphasis needs to be laid on phases of church work outside of the young people's societies.

It is inspiring to attend an Epworth League meeting and see the room crowded with earnest young people, but it is pathetic in the extreme, if, a few minutes later, nearly all of them desert the church and leave the minister to preach to the faithful few who recognize attendance upon the regular service as a duty. It might be a question whether the young people's meeting might not better take the place of the evening service and be attended by young and old, rather than that it should become an excuse for the young people to neglect the regular services of the church. Certainly, respect for her pastor, if nothing else, should influence the earnest young Christian woman not to make the special meeting an excuse for absenting herself from the church service.

While the Epworth League meetings will give her self-reliance, and also bring encouragement, from the sympathetic association with those whose religious problems and exeriences are like her own, she needs in addition the instruction and guidance of more mature and experienced teachers. And, at the same time, her presence as an earnest listener will help to give inspiration and courage to the pastor. A minister never feels so much enthusiasm for his work as when he sees in his congregation the responsive faces of a company of earnest young Christians whom he feels he is guiding in the way of life.

But to listen is not the whole duty of the girl in a great congregation. Her voice is needed in the responsive excreises, and in the singing. Fifty years ago all young people sang. The singing-schools were not only great benefactors, but also great sources of pleasure. We all learned to sing, and out of harmony of voices sprang much harmony of lives. Today there is so much "voice culture" that few people sing. The young people are silent in our churches, unless they have been so taught that they feel capable of singing solos effectively—and sometimes affectedly—and being paid for the same. We need a revival of the consciousness that singing is the part of worship belonging especially to the congregation, and that each member is as much bound to sing as the minister is to preach.

In the social life of the church the girl is particularly welcome. To her is delegated much of the work of church bazars, suppers, and sociables. Fifty years ago she would not have found this outlet for her executive ability. There was then no social church life; that is, with the church as a center. Now the church is more of a home, and the grace of hospitality becomes a church duty. Here the girl will find opportunity for displaying her tact, her unselfishness, her helpfulness, her most beautiful social qualities. She will do this if she holds herself in a measure responsible for the happiness of others, instead of thinking only about "having a good time" herself; if she will consider herself one of the hostesses of the occasion, instead of only a guest, she will discover myriad ways in which the social life of the church will afford an opportunity to cultivate Christian virtues.

This thought of being a hostess will help her also to see other opportunities for kindly courtesy. She will note the stranger in the congregation, especially if old, feeble, or poorly dressed, and with cordial greeting will welcome her—or him—to the Father's house; she will take some neglected child under her protecting care, and she will not forget occasionally to tell the pastor if she has been especially helped by some word of his. He has brought to her the Bread of Life; surely the gift is worth a "thank you." She cannot measure the cheer and encouragement which such a recognition will bring to his heart.

In all probability, if there is one place in church work where the girl is needed more than anywhere else, it is in the Sunday-school. Too many young people feel that they have graduated from the Sunday-school, and desert it when they reach the age where they could be of most service within its ranks. If the girl feels herself too old to be a pupil she is not too young to be a teacher, and perhaps in teaching she will become aware of her own lack of knowledge. Nowhere can the earnest young woman be a greater power than in dealing with a class of girls or boys in the Sunday-school, and nowhere will she find a wider field for the development of all her resources, mental and spiritual. To these enthusiastic young hearts she becomes a veritable heroine, a source of inspiration. Her greatest crown of glory in after years may be the knowledge that in her Sunday-school class she started some soul on a search for truth, and directed some feet into the way of life.—Mary Wood-Allen.

It Is Generally Understood.

That it takes two to fill a family jar.

That a photographed smile is never beautiful.

That a floating debt is not necessarily a light one.

That faith and fear do not live on the same street.

That the milk of human kindness never sours in the atmosphere of God's love.

That when an Epworthian begins to backslide he first lops off the regular church prayer meeting.

That the young man who expects to drift into something will eventually dwindle into nothing.

That if we reckon ourselves dead unto sin we have no business around in that neighborhood.

That the value of conversion does not depend so much upon what we turn from as upon what we turn to.

That the man who says a minister cannot be both a good preacher and a good pastor advertises his lack of sense.

That one cannot be holy without surrendering his will. But that does not mean that holiness disintegrates the backbone.

That a youth's way of thinking, like the fuzz on his upper lip, is to be esteemed mainly as a shadow of things to come.

That the minister who expects to succeed in these days without being actually laborious in his pastoral work, is propping himself up with a vain hope.

Can't Keep Up Both.

A gentleman who was traveling, being delayed at a railroad junction, entered into conversation with a care-worn lady who, with three small children, was also waiting for a train. This was part of what was said:

"Where are you going, madam?"

"To my father's at ——. I have not been home since I was married. I did think I never would go back to my people, but I am going back to stay."

"Is your husband dead?"

"No, sir; but he spends all he makes for liquor, and I can't make a living for him, the children and myself. My father wrote me if I would come home he and my brothers would take care of me and the children. I hate to go back this way, but I can't keep up a home and the saloons both. When I married my husband he was a fine business man, and had a good position. Now he works about at anything to get money to buy whiskey. He don't seem to care anything for me now, or his children, either. I wish the men would not vote for saloons, that break up homes!"

"Two things," said the gentleman who relates this story, "rang in my ears for days and weeks, and the pathetic face of that wronged woman haunts me by day and by night to this hour; 'I can't keep up a home and saloons both.' 'I wish the men would not vote for the saloons that break up homes.' That face and those two sentences have forever made me an enemy to the saloon. Till I came to this conclusion I felt that I did not want to meet a good woman face to face.—Selected.

The Horse Died Suddenly.

The late Prof. O. C. Marsh, who for many years occupied the chair of paleontology at Yale, and who, at his death, left a scientific collection of great value to the university, used to delight in telling the following story, which the Youth's Companion prints:

One morning he was walking down a New Haven street, when he met a negro driving a horse with a curiously malformed hoof.

"When your horse dies," said the professor to the old darkey, "I will give you three dollars for that hoof, if you will cut it off, and bring it to me."

"Very well, sah," was the reply, and horse and driver disappeared.

Two hours later, when the professor reached home, he found the negro, who had been impatiently awaiting him for an hour. Handing a carefully-wrapped package to the professor, the darky said: "De hoss is daid, sah."

A Remarkable Grammatical Change.

Gen. Leonard Wood attended in his boyhood a school in Middleboro, Mass., and in Middleboro they still speak of the direct and original mind that the boy had.

"I remember one day in school," said a Middleboro man recently, "Wood was called up in the grammar lesson. The teacher said:

"'Leonard, give me a sentence, and we'll see if we can change it to the imperative mood.'

"'The horse draws the cart,' said Leonard.

"'Very good. The horse draws the cart. Now change the sentence to an imperative.'

"'Get up!' said young Wood.

How it Could Have Been Avoided.

An Ohio Congressman tells this story of a rural barrister before a country magistrate. The case was one in which the plaintiff sought to recover damages from a railroad company for killing a cow.

"If the train had been running as it should have been ran, or if the bell had been rung as it should have been rang, or if the whistle had been blown as it should have been blew, both of which they did neither, the cow would not have been injured when she was killed.

The Little Fence.

A good lawyer learns many lessons in the school of human nature; and thus it was that Lawyer Hackett did not fear to purchase the tract of land which had been "lawed over" for years. Some of the people wondered why he wanted to get hold of property with such an incubus of uncertainty up on it. Others thought that perhaps he wanted some legal knitting work, and would pitch in red-hot to fight that line fence question on his own hook.

That's what the owner of the adjoining land thought. So he braced himself for trouble when he saw Hackett coming across the field one day.

Said Hackett: "What's your claim here, anyway, as to this fence?"

"I insist," replied his neighbor, "that your fence is over on my land two feet at one end and one foot at least at the other end."

"Well," replied Hackett, "you go ahead, just as quick as you can, and set your fence over. At the end where you say that I encroach on your land two feet set the fence on my land four feet."

"But," persisted the neighbor, "that's twice what I claim."

"I don't care about that," said over this land. I want you to take enough so you are perfectly satisfied, and then we can get along pleasantly. Go ahead and help yourself.

The man paused, abashed. He had been ready to commence the old struggle, tooth and nail, but this move of the new neighbor stunned him. Yet he was not to be outdone in generosity. He looked at Hackett. "Squire," said he, "that fence ain't going to be moved an inch. I don't want the land; there was nothing in the fight anyway but the principle of the thing."—Christian Observer.

"If any man sin, we have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous: and he is the propitiation for our sins: and not for our's only, but also for the sins of the whole world."

The literary meeting of the Edenton Street Auxiliary was held at the regular time, at the home of Mrs. W. H. Hughes, Secretary. The President of the Auxiliary was detained at home by illness; but with that band of elect women, always "zealous of good works," no special leader is necessary—they are always ready for any emergency, on account of their rich endowment of zeal and spiritual power.

They report an enjoyable, profitable meeting, which was "rounded up" in a most pleasant fashion by the hospitable hostess.

Mrs. Swindell, our Conference Corresponding Secretary, requests us to say that "badges for the Golden Links members are ready. Solid gold, one dollar and twenty-five cents; others, forty cents. All members are requested to wear a badge if possible."

Last week we mentioned the fact that Miss Mary Pescud had samples of the badges, the solid gold being worth one dollar and twenty cents. She does not keep the badges on hand, but sends her orders immediately to Mrs. Trueheart. This, perhaps, is the cause of the difference in price as given by Mrs. Swindell—that amount being for express or postage.

Our readers, especially those who are interested in the missionary work, will be pleased to read the following:

Some facts from the Conference Treasurer:

Our total receipts for the third quarter is $1,449.69, an increase of $770.26 over the previous quarter. Shall we congratulate ourselves? That sounds like we are moving forward. Let us study our situation a little:

Our collections for the first quarter amounted to $1,213.59; for our second quarter, $679.43; and for our third quarter, $149.69.

This is a typical report. Instead of having a fine Thanksgiving quarter, in many cases it was but paying up back dues.

Some Auxiliaries have measured up well. To those we say, keep up your standard, and attempt great things and expect great things.

Some others seem highly sensitive to warm weather. I live in the country, and am accustomed to go to the Quarterly Conferences. It is no unusual thing for me to hear a good brother tell his Presiding Elder, when questioned about his Sunday-school: "We have a very good Sunday-school during the summer months ,but when the weather gets cold, we are compelled to go into 'winter quarters.'"

But our Missionary Societies certainly have a different constitution. They thrive in cold weather, and "go a summering" during our second quarter, and rarely leave even their dues behind. Often their meetings are not even held for a month or so, and no report, or a very small one, for the Treasurer.

In the meantime Mrs. McTyiere writes again and again, "Do not wait for the quarter to close, but send the money on as soon as you get as much as five hundred dollars—our work is suffering for the need of funds."

Sisters, think of these things, and when the mercury goes up, and you make your summer's flitting, do not sacrifice our cause, and rob our Thanksgiving quarter.

While your thermometers run low and your interest and enthusiasm high, there is one more fact I want to put before you:

Our pledge is $2,000 this year. To the present time we have raised but $1,160.65, leaving us a balance of $839.35 ,and but one more quarter in which to raise it!

We have never raised that much during one quarter but once, and that was during our Twentieth Century offerings. But what we have done once, we can do again.

These are facts. Let me urge you to think of them, pray over them, and act on them.

MRS. B. B. ADAMS.

His Last Message.

The following is the closing chapter of General Gordon's latest book, "War Reminisancies," issue a few month's ago. It is a lofty and eloquent sentiment:

"'The unseemly things which occurred in the great conflict between the States should be forgotten, or at least forgiven, and no longer permitted to disturb complete harmony between North and South. American youth in all sections should be taught to hold in perpetual remembrance all that was great and good on both sides; to comprehend the inherited convictions for which saintly women suffered and patriotic men died; to recognize the unparalleled carnage as proof of unrivalled courage * * * It will be a glorious day for our country when all the children within its borders shall learn that the four years of fratricidal war between the North and South was waged by neither with criminal or unworthy intent, but by both to protect what they conceived to be threatened rights and imperilled liberty.

"'We shall then see that under God's providence every sheet of flame from the blazing rifles of the contending armies, every whizzing shell that tore through the forests at Shiloh and Chancellorsville, every cannon shot that shook Chickamauga's hills or thundered around the heights of Gettysburg and all the blood and tears that were shed are yet to become contributions for the upbuilding of American freedom.'"

January Questions and Answers.

"What is the greatest hindrance to my Auxiliary?" I believe the answer to this vital question is the same in every Auxiliary, and it is the true one, I fear, of a large proportion of our members, viz.: Thoughtfulness. We do not give this branch of our Lord's work the important place in our minds that we should, and, in consequence, do not pray and labor for it according to our privileges.

"What can I do to remove it?" Pray more earnestly, then study the cause more intelligently; the result, necessarily, will be larger and more effective labor.

"Our Homes."

The best way to know the cause is to take this excellent paper and read and digest its fine editorials and valuable contributions. If its great helpfulness were fully appreciated, not a Home Mission member would be without it.

At our last Edenton Street meeting, Mrs. B. F. Dixon was appointed Auxiliary Agent for it in place of Mrs. M. L. Morris, who has recently left Raleigh. Mrs. Dixon's hands were already full, holding Conference and Auxiliary offices in both the W. H. M. S. and the W. F. M. S., but knowing the importance of the place, she consented to do her best until the next election of officers.

Change of Residence.

One of Raleigh's best Christian workers in the W. C. T. U., the W. H. M. S., the W. F. M. S., Sunday-school and church—Mrs. M. L. Morris—has returned to New Bern, her former home. Raleigh hates to lose her, especially we of Edenton Street Church, but we are glad in her happy surroundings and in New Bern's gain. As she knows, our loving prayers will ever go with her.

Brooklyn Auxiliary.

Mrs. W. P. Abrams, First Vice-President of this Auxiliary, is filling the place of President since the departure of Mrs. McFarland. She was a most efficient President, and her leaving is much regretted. During his four years' pastorate at Brooklyn Church, Rev. M. M. McFarland and his wife greatly endeared themselves to its members and to many others in our city; they carried with them the sincere affection and best wishes of all.

The A. B. C. Home in Texas.

Our Home in Dallas has succeeded in finding an assistant to Mrs. W. H. Johnson. She is Mrs. W. J. Stone, widow of one of our Indian Mission Conference preachers, and has for several years been President of the Indian Mission Conference Home Mission Society. With her practical experience and spiritual development (what development can be fuller than that which follows the way of sorrows, if trod aright?), we believe she will be used to bless and to advance the work.

Daily News.

Why should not we watch the conditions and needs of the Master's work as carefully and as fully as the business men do the daily bulletins concerning stocks, etc.? Sisters, keep one informed, please, of all that is going on in the Auxiliaries. And Press Superintends, see to it that you do your parts through your secular papers.

The Homer Toberman Deaconess Home.

The December number of "Our Homes" contains a most interesting account of the laying of the corner-stone of this, our first Deaconess Home of the M. E. Church, South, which is now ready for use. It was a great day in Los Angeles, and as the years roll on this gift will increase in value and in usefulness, because it is an emblem of consecrated love and sanctified affliction.

Dr. Reid had charge of the impressive ceremonies, and the address was delivered by Bishop H. C. Morrison (another of Kentucky's best gifts to Methodism).

May our Eastern Methodists soon follow the beautiful example set by the Western, and rejoice in their Deaconess Home.

Editorial.

Much is being said about the statement recently made by a Missouri preacher that the Bible contains the only solution of the labor problem. Certainly. We thought it is a commonly recognized fact that the Bible contains in some form the solution of all our problems. Why make an ado over the statement that 2 and 2 make 4, or that a straight line is the shortest distance between two points?

The rapiers of the Midland Methodist and the Baptist and Reflector are clashing and flashing in a contest over the mode of baptism. The last view of the contestants disclosed the fact that the former's keen blade, sharpened by Bible truth, had almost amputated the arm of his antagonist, and we could almost hear Burrows cry out: "You brought it all on yourself, Folk; I did not begin this fuss."

In two and one-half years, Dr. S. Parks Cadman added to the Central Congregational Church, Brooklyn, of which he is pastor, five hundred members. We will mention two elements which, he said, contributed to this remarkable success: Pastoral visitation from house to house, and constant preaching on the very essence of the Gospel. We commend this to those preachers who claim that they can get along without the former.

The report on the cause of the great fire in the Iroquois Theatre in Chicago discloses the fact that the building was not completed when it was opened, and the doors and other exits were locked at the time of the fire. No criticism is made of the building department, although seven violations of the building ordinance are noted. It is sincerely hoped that the spirit of reformation in buildings with a view to safety from fires may not lose its force, but grow stronger and stronger.

We are glad to learn that the City Council of Nashville, Tennessee, has revoked the ordinance compelling the Publishing House to pay taxes on its property. We are no great stickler for the exemption from taxation of some forms of church property, but years ago the city of Nashville promised that the Publishing House should never be required to pay taxes. On the strength of that promise, we have heard that the Publishing House was located in Nashville. That promise is still sacred and should be sacredly kept.

You say that your charge paid the Foreign and Domestic Missions collections in full; that you overpaid the other collections and salaries; that you built five new churches and one parsonage. Well, that is good. But did the idea ever strike you that there is one interest above that of collections, and such and parsonage building—the interest of a human soul? Has it ever occurred to you that while many conversions on your work during the year may cover a multitude of sins in the shape of financial shortage in collections, that full and overflowing collections and salaries can hardly cover one sin in the shape of shortage in attention to "the thing of greatest worth, the whole creation round?"

We have just laid down a paper in which we read that a certain brother talked ten minutes to his congregation on the subject of the church paper, and that at the conclusion of the sermon he called for subscriptions and secured three. We said to ourselves: the key action of that preacher was in calling for subscriptions. Just a mere talk about the paper, and nothing more, is generally ineffective. Suppose a preacher should preach soul-warming sermons, and never call for penitents, how many conversions would he have? Just about as many conversions as he has when he talks about the church paper and fails to call for subscriptions. When you bait your hook give the fish a chance to bite. This is a newly coined aphorism to be practiced by soul-savers and subscription-getters. Verbum sap.

CLEAR THE ICE-GORGES.

The ice-gorges which form in the rivers further North are always a menace to life and property. Huge dams are often formed, and when the dam breaks or melts, the overflow caused thereby often does great damage.

For the last few days the columns of our daily newspapers have been filled with the accounts of damage threatened or already inflicted through the obstructing ice with which the excessive and continuous cold weather of the winter has filled the Northern rivers, especially those in Pennsylvania.

As we read of the situation, we think of the river of redeeming race which runs through the plains of our great church. It touches every city and country church and every little schoolhouse where the Gospel is preached. At many points along this wonderful stream ice-gorges have formed. They make the atmosphere frigid. No flower of love and faith can bloom in such an atmosphere. These ice-gorges, so still and seemingly unhurtful, will cause trouble. Souls may be lost.

So, Christian brother, if you live in the vicinity of the ice-gorge, be sure to break it in the safest way possible. Nothing but a good revival can avert impending disaster. The best thing to do is to keep these ice-gorges from forming. "Be instant in season and out of season." Look after all the meetings and institutions of the church. Look after the young. Look after the newly converted.

"THE DORMANT IDEA."

The world has no lack of ideas. Many of them may be truly called "dormant"—sleeping. Some of them ought to sleep. The world is strange enough as it is, but it would be stranger if all the ideas which germinate, ferment, and decay in the human mind should find actualization.

We would see horses hitched to the rear of the vehicle instead of to the front. Potatoes would grow on trees. Gold would be mined in the seas instead of in the mountains. Presidents would be hod carriers. School buildings would be turned into engine houses. Churches would be used as livery stables. Earth and Mars would declare war against each other and send out warships to clash among the stars. God would be blotted out of existence, and, among "gods many," the Devil would reign supreme.

No, it is very fortunate that some ideas were forcordained to be dormant and enjoy more than a Rip Van Winkle sleep.

But in nearly every person's mind there is "the dormant idea." It holds sway among other ideas. It has been waiting for months, perhaps for years, to get into the outer world and hold a practical sway in a real embodiment and activity. It has red rich blood in it. It is the natural born child of the head and heart. It is rich in possibilities. It pleads with you in your waking hours. It haunts you in your dreams.

It was the dormant idea in Guttenberg that became the father of the printing press, hand-worked, triple deckers, and all. The Mergenthaler is the lineal grandchild. It was the dormant idea that produced the ordinary wood-screw and poured over a million dollars in the hands of him who aroused the idea from its couch. It was the dormant idea that kindled the fires of the Reformation and created "Sunny Jim," who is now the olive-crowned king of the advertising world. Trace the most wonderful and triumphant creations in the civic, ecclesiastical, financial, mechanical and agricultural world back to their inspiration and beginning, and you will find that they sprang from "the dormant idea."

You have within you "the dormant idea." It may relate to the best method of raising the toothsome groundpea; to the best system of keeping your books or rearing children; to the best way of teaching your Sunday-school class, conducting a prayer-meeting, or preaching a sermon; to the best system for raising Conference collections and visiting your members. It makes no difference what it is. If that idea has been legitimately conceived in the home of wedded heart and head, and has been rocked in the cradle of a true purpose, and nourished with the milk of sanctified ambition, it demands a place in the great throbbing, glowing outer world, where it may have a chance to grow and bless the world.

Open the gate and let it out. It has been peering through the cracks long enough.

Do not be afraid that people will laugh at its new clothes, though they be cut after a pattern, the like of which is similar to nothing in the heavens above, the earth beneath, or the waters under the earth. Every great thing in the Universe, except God Himself, was once new, and perhaps the angels, when they saw it, smiled more in incredulous wonder than in amazed adoration.

Do not be afraid that your "dormant idea" will stumble along and make a failure after all. Failures, anyway, are the stepping stones to success. The badge of success which every great man wears on his breast is a simulacrum of failure. One reason why we think Langley will succeed with his air-ship is in the fact that he has made so many failures and still keeps on trying.

Do not let the pictures of "grooves," "precedents," and "traditions" hang on the wall and scare you into refusing to let your "dormant idea" out into the world of reality and usefulness. Do not for a moment believe that there is a scintilla of truth in the doctrine laid down by a certain Mr. Campbell:

Love God, love your fellow man, and, with the sacred enthusiasm which belonged to the long line of useful men and women stretching from Bezaleel to the patentee of the latest and best mouse-trap, send out your "dormant idea," and may it have Godspeed.

It is a refreshing fact that in the roar and rush of this great commercial world, the grace of benevolence has shown no signs of decay. During the year 1903, the sum of $77,000,000 was expended in benefactions. The largest bequest was that of Arisch Wentworth, who gave $7,000,000 for the founding of an industrial school in Boston. The largest amount given to charity was that given by a man by the name of Wilder, to the charities of St. Paul, Minn. The amount given to educational institutions was not comparatively large. Yet, as we have said, the spirit of general benevolence continues strong.

Last week was notable in the history of the State as being marked by the occurrence of fires which destroyed the buildings and other property of two of our most prominent educational institutions.

First came the burning of Oxford Female Seminary on Monday morning, the 18th inst. The fire began while the students were at breakfast. No lives were lost, but the building was totally destroyed and much private property of the students. The loss of the building amounted to about $10,000, mostly covered by insurance. The school was the property of President F. P. Hobgood, who has the sympathies of the whole State. This most excellent institution, we trust and believe, will be reopened under its usual favorable auspices.

On last Thursday morning the main building of the State Normal College caught fire and was burned to the ground in a few hours. No lives were lost. Many of the students lost their trunks and clothing. The total loss was about $75,000; insurance about $35,000. The loss in this instance is upon the State, which will rebuild at once. We are glad to say that the fire will not cause any interruption in the course of the school. The city of Greensboro showed its usual sympathy to President McIver and the students.

On the following night the town of Louisburg was swept by a disastrous fire, which destroyed about $20,000 worth of property. Insurance about $10,000.

North Carolina Methodism.

The Selma correspondent of the Smithfield Herald speaks in high praises of Rev. J. O. Guthrie and his labors on the Selma Circuit.

Rev. H. B. Anderson was requested by the Epworth League Board to edit the Advocate Epworth League column. Our readers may look for a most interesting column.

We were pleased to have a visit last week from Mr. O. R. Rand, of Smithfield. He says that the people are very much pleased with the station arrangement and their preacher, Rev. N. E. Coltrane.

The Epworth Union of Raleigh had a delightful meeting at Central Church on last Monday night. Hon. B. R. Lacy, State Treasurer, who is one of the most popular speakers in the State, delivered a most edifying address.

Mr. P. H. Turner, one of our excellent laymen at Franklinton, thus writes: "I have been taking the Advocate thirty-two years. You are giving us a good paper. May the Master help you in the true work of the church."

The people of Louisburg are taking steps to organize a Y. M. C. A. in that pleasant town. Mr. A. G. Knebel, Y. M. C. A. State Secretary, spoke in Louisburg last Tuesday night. Youngsville, also, expects to have the Y. M. C. A.

Mrs. Walter Holcombe, of Statesville, N. C., wife of Rev. Walter Holcombe, and daughter of Major and Mrs. W. M. Robbins, was so badly burned on January 20th that she died later from the shock. The bereaved ones have our deepest sympathy.

We congratulate Mr. A. G. Headen, who for long years has been a useful official of the Methodist Church at Pittsboro, on the high esteem in which he is rightly held. The Sunday-school of which he is a member lately presented him with a gold-headed cane as a mark of its esteem.

Rev. W. A. Jenkins has sent us his neat pamphlet on the question of the Millenium. He has our thanks. The pamphlet is well written. We have not yet had the time to critically read it, but from what we have read we would judge that the author has the sound and correct view on the subject.

Rev. G. W. Starling, of Buckhorn Circuit, was in to see us a few days ago. We are glad to find that the health of Brother Starling and wife is restored. He has entered enthusiastically into his work, and is planning to sow down his charge with the Advocate. Look out for his report at next Conference.

Rev. L. E. Sawyer, of Farmville Circuit, reports a most pleasant pounding received by himself and family a few nights ago. He hopes to be able to have his new church at Farmville ready for occupancy in a short while. He is looking forward to a gracious protracted meeting in this church. May he have it to an increase in spiritual power and membership.

Rev. A. J. Parker writes forcibly this week on the subject of "Poundings." We must say that the poundings which come to this office from Brother Parker are not like those he writes about. It is nothing uncommon for him to fill up a whole page with the names of the new subscribers and renewals which he sends in. Brother Parker has full right to write on this subject.

Rev. G. T. Adams, of New Bern, writes us a personal letter from which we feel at liberty to take the following: "There is a sound in the tops of the mulberry trees.' One hundred and fifty-four at prayer-meeting Thursday night. Three hundred and one at Sunday-school last Sunday afternoon. The church packed Sunday morning. Two conversions. Sunday night, one conversion. That is the burden of my soul—that sinners may find Christ. I preach Him as the world's only hope. Our new church is progressing rapidly."

The entire estate will amount to more than $100,000.

OUR CAMPAIGN FOR NEW SUBSCRIBERS.

The North Carolina Conference at its last session in Goldsboro unanimously adopted the recommendation of the Committee on Books and Periodicals that each Presiding Elder strive to have his District furnish at least one hundred and fifty new subscribers to the Raleigh Christian Advocate before May, 1904.

This recommendation and action were based upon the necessity which the Advocate now confronts—that of falling in line with the other Advocates and increasing the subscription list. The Midland Methodist has lately increased its subscription list by nearly 2,000; the Wesleyan, by over this number; the Alabama, by nearly this number; the Southern, by over this number. The Raleigh Christian Advocate had 6,000 subscribers at this time last year. It has a little over this number now. Within the last year it has advanced one hundred per cent in merit, if we accept the hundred of statements received in letters coming to this office. It reaches less than half of the Methodists in the North Carolina Conference. Why should not the "Old Raleigh" have 7,500 subscribers by May? The people need the paper. The paper needs the support of the people, and must have it if it keeps up to its present standard.

We have begun the campaign for increasing our circulation. We must have those new subscribers.

We are sending out to every preacher in the Conference privately our plan. In the same envelope in which this plan is enclosed are a Raleigh Advocate letter-head and a stamped envelope. The letter-head and envelope are to be used at once. We expect to see them back in this office at the very earliest mail possible. We have no time to lose. We earnestly request every preacher to read the plan carefully and co-operate with the Business Manager in carrying out every detail. If this be done, our campaign for new subscribers will be a victorious one.

The last column on the 8th page will contain our campaign matter. It will show each week how many new subscribers have come from each District since the adjournment of Conference. To the District which, by May 1st, shall have sent in the largest number of new subscribers, we will give a present worth not less than $25.00. The present will be delivered at the District Conference; and may be applied as the Conference sees proper. So look each week at the Campaign column. On the ninth page the general receipts of subscriptions and renewals for each day will be published.

We would urge our preachers while they are working for new subscribers to collect all the renewals possible. These cannot be neglected. They are the "sinews of war.' We have no special agents now in the field. Our preachers are our only agents. Upon them we implicitly rely.

So let us push the battle to the gates. Let us work earnestly and continuously, and the victory will be ours.

AS IT STANDS.

Raleigh District	19
Fayetteville District	12
Washington District	12
Elizabeth Cit District	13
Rockingham District	8
Warreton District	10
New Bern District	7
Wilmington District	19
Durham District	2

The Conference has requested each District to furnish 150 new subscribers by May 1, 1904. The report for each District will be made weekly in this column. The District reporting the largest number of new subscribers by May 1, 1904, will receive a present not costing less than $25.00, to be applied as the Conference thinks best.

Epworth League.

CONDUCTED BY REV. H. B. ANDERSON.

Topic for January 31, 1904.

A Few Words by Way of a Beginning.

Having been asked to take charge of the League columns of the Advocate, I consented to do so, not because I felt any special fitness or aptitude for the work, but because I love the League and hope, in an humble way, to contribute to its growth and development. As members of the North Carolina Conference, we have not given this branch of church work the thought, attention, and effort it deserves.

A League means the development of the young life of the church along many lines. A League prayer-meeting means more than the mere exercise in a devotional meeting. It means the development of a spiritually-minded church.

The League brings the young people into vital touch with the wants of those about them. It develops in them a sympathy that issues in a desire to be helpful to others, not only to supply needed food and raiment, but to carry sunshine into darkened homes and saddened hearts. Who can estimate the value of a bright, cheerful countenance, a flower and a kind word in such a home, to say nothing of the effect upon the contributors of such favors?

A League means a church membership versed in the polity and doctrine of the church; an intelligent devotion to the service of God; an enlarged view of the great commission. And why should these things not be? The last decade has marked progress in every branch of learning; science, philosophy, art and in every branch of business, even to that of farming. The church, too, has advanced, but I fear backward. In seeking to be altruistic she has dropped into latitudinarianism. What we need is a better knowledge of Christ, and a broader conception of God, and not an interpretation of the doctrines of the church in a loose latitudinarian way. And this is the conception of the League.

The League, young, cheerful, hopeful, infuses new life into a fossilized communion, a sort of aide-de-camp to the great General. If we accomplish anything in some communities it must be through the young people, despite of a dead church, and not because we have the sympathy and aid of fathers and mothers. Our hope, brethren, is in a well ordered League. We save the young people to the church and ultimately increase her usefulness.

The Conference requested the Presiding Elders to appoint an organizer in every district. We hope these brethren will do this at as early a date as possible, if the man is available. Let him be an enthusiastic Epworthian.

Let as many as favor an advance in the League movement in the North Carolina Conference say aye, and immediately begin the work in his own charge.

Will not the pastors furnish me at once the names and addresses of their League Presidents and Secretaries?

Let the League Secretaries, or some one appointed by the League, furnish the editor of this column items of interest, from time to time, for publication. Address him at Goldsboro, N. C.

The editor of this column wishes the Leagues a happy New Year. May this be a year full of good works. When faith in Christ is strong, work abounds; when love for Him is full, enduring toil continues; when hope is perfect, patience is perennial.

The Southport Epworth Leaguers have built for themselves a League hall, and are now holding their meetings in it. All praise to them. They have more than doubled their membership in the last year.

FACTS WORTH KNOWING.

The bowels must at least once in twenty-four hours discharge the waste matter of that which has been taken into the body as food. When they fail to do so constipation results.

Constipation is nearly always due to a dry state of the mucous membrances which line the intestines, rendering it difficult for them to expel the waste matter by the squirming motion of the muscles controlling them, which is the method provided by nature.

Habitual Constipation is the "advance agent" of nearly every case of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Sluggish Liver or Kidney Disease. The stomach, liver and kidneys do not get diseased without due cause, and congested (constipated or costive) bowels are usually the direct cause.

Vernal Saw Palmetto Berry Wine will insure a full, natural discharge from the bowels every morning. It cleanses, soothes and heals the linings of the intestines. It will cure the most stubborn case of Constipation, to stay cured. When the constipation is cured, the ailments caused by it will surely disappear.

Vernal Saw Palmetto Berry Wine is sold by all leading druggists, but in order to prove the statements made above, a sample bottle, together with a booklet containing valuable suggestions for health, will be sent absolutely free and prepaid to any reader of the Raleigh Christian Advocate who will send his or her name and address to the Vernal Remedy Co., 85 Seneca Building, Buffalo, N. Y. It will cost you nothing except the price of a postal.

Lesson for January 31, 1904.

Jesus Calls for Disciples.

Luke 5:1-11.

Golden Text. If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed. John 8:31.

The four men who were called to be the disciples of Jesus in the narrative before us were not strangers to the Master. Months before they had received a preliminary call to follow Christ, but now the time had come when the connection between Master and disciple must be closer and more intimate. So in this lesson we see the way in which Jesus welded the bond of union which already existed into a tie that became indissoluble.

The Miraculous Draught of Fishes.—The miracle recorded in our lesson is familiar to us all, and needs no repetition here. The essential thing for us to ask is what may be learned from this remarkable act of divine power.

It illustrates the value of faith, of patience and of obedience. The disciples had faith in Jesus, else they would not have heeded his command to launch out into the deep. They had patience, for though they had toiled all night, they were ready to make one more trial. Finally, they showed the highest qualification for discipleship in their obedience.

Followers of Jesus.—Peter and Andrew, James and John became followers of Jesus, as we see in our lesson, for they forsook all else and followed the Master all through the rest of their lives. Shall we not follow their example and strive to become faithful disciples of the Lord Jesus Christ?

Incentive and Inspiration.

There are certain grand incentives and inspirations to missions which must be steadily and prayerfully cultivated.

1. Christ's command and promise. It is a question, at bottom, of submission to Divine authority, or, as the Duke of Wellington said, of "obedience to marching orders."

2. There must be love for man as man. We must remember Robert McAll's two sentences with which he began and upon which he built up his great mission in France—"God loves you," and "I love you." Nothing can take the place of a passionate devotion to Christ on the one hand and to human souls on the other.

3. The principle of self-sacrifice, which is born of love and which is identical with it, must become the law of our life. We must have the spirit of John Maynard, the martyr pilot on the Great Lakes of the North. Standing at his wheel on the burning steamer, seeking to beach the boat in time to save the passengers' lives, removing his right hand from the wheel when burned to a crisp, he placed his left hand on the wheel to be burned, and sacrificed his own life cheerfully that he might save the lives of others. We need the spirit of "Chinese" Gordon, whose principles of life began and ended in utter absorption to the will of God and utter oblivion of self.

4. We need a revival of stewardship. We must learn anew that holy lesson that all things belong to God, and, hence, that man owes nothing. What he has is simply committed to him in trust, to be rendered back to the original Owner. We have long since outgrown this Apostolic principle. Men consider that what they have is their own; that it was got by their own industry and sagacity and economy and frugality, and they deny the claims of God upon their property; and this is true even of many devout disciples.

Last of all, we need the revival of spiritual sensibility. Our faculties must be exercised to discern invisible things, and we must come anew under the powers of the world to come—Christ as Leader; the Holy Spirit as Administrator; eternal realities as the hope and inspiration of the Church of God.

When such conditions as these are fulfilled, we can understand such words as those of Rev. Hunter Corbett: "I may have 'buried my life' in China, but this I know: that at this moment there are at least two thousand converts there who are daily praying to God for me." Dr. H. H. Jessup, of Syria, when offered a missionary secretaryship in New York City, which would have multiplied his salary fourfold and lifted him to leadership in his own land, sent a letter of declination which was itself a grand missionary document. He said, in substance, that his American friends, in asking him to forsake his Syrian work and converts, were suggesting a self-denial for which grace had not yet made him equal. Such identity with the work makes even self-sacrifice a joy. —Dr. A. T. Pierson.

SO EASY TO FORGET.

In 888 cases out of every thousand, the directions which accompany a physician's prescription or proprietory medicine, tell you to take a dose three or four times a day, either before or after meals, and on going to bed. In 999 cases out of a thousand, this rule is never strictly followed. You start in to observe it religiously, and succeed pretty well at first, but soon you'll begin to skip doses, then the medicine fails in its intended effect. It's so easy to forget.

If the remedy is in liquid form, the business man loses a dose in the middle of the day unless some thoughtful wife, mother or sister gives him a spoon and makes him take an extra bottle to the office. Most men hate to do this. If the medicine is in tablet form, the chances are he will never think of it until he reaches for car fare on his way home. It's so easy to forget. This applies to men and women alike.

The proprietors of Vernal Palmettona (formerly known as Vernal Saw Palmetto Berry Wine) had sense and foresight enough to make their remedy so that only dose a day is necessary. It is easy to remember to take it after the last meal or on going to bed. It stands in a class by itself. If you are pestered with indigestion, constipation, liver trouble, bowel trouble or any skin affliction resulting from bad blood, Vernal Palmettona is what you need. Try it at our expense. Write for a free sample bottle. It will do you good. Address, Vernal Remedy Co., 358 Seneca Building, Buffalo, N. Y. Sold at all druggists.

The building of the Oxford Seminary was burned on Monday morning. The fire started in a bed-room. The building was insured, but the loss to Professor Hobgood in this interruption of his school work will be a great one. Do You Buy Fertilizers?

In next week's Progressive Farmer Prof. B. W. Kilgore is to begin a series of papers on fertilizers—value of the different ingredients, needs of different crops and of different soils, methods of applying, wasteful practices to be avoided, formulas needed for cotton, tobacco, corn, grain, and other crops, economy of home-mixing, etc., etc.

When we consider that North Carolina farmers spend something more than $6,000,000 a year for commercial fertilizers, the importance of this matter of discriminating and intelligent application becomes clear at once.

And there is nobody in the South better qualified to discuss it than Professor Kilgore. One of the first agricultural chemists of the country, he has added to his scientific knowledge the practical experience of years of carefully directed experimental work on the test farms in the different sections and on the different soils of the State.

If there were nothing else in The Progressive Farmer during 1904, the farmer paying $1 for a year's subscription and getting these articles would still find it a profitable investment.—The Progressive Farmer, January 19, 1904.

Orphanage Day.

Bro. E. H. Davis suggests an Orphanage day for every church.

That is a most excellent idea.

Have it early in the year. Let it be known before hand. Publish it well. Get up a good program. Get your speakers. Don't wait for the Superintendent. Give the facts about the work to the people. Excite an interest. Give all the congregation a chance to do something for it. It will do the churches good. There are many Methodists in the bounds of the North Carolina Conference that don't know that there is such a thing as a Methodist Orphanage. Try it, brethren in the ministry.

Kinston.

We have so many personal friends in Kinston, that it is always pleasant to stop there. It is filled up with Green County folks, and that is saying enough for any town. Then those to the manor born, are all right also—then to spend two nights and a day with Ed. Davis, and his family, in his hospitable home, made my stay there most pleasant. A little talk of thanks to that live Sunday-school, and a long talk to that liberal congregation, with a collection following, and the privilege of hearing an excellent sermon from Brother Davis at night, gave me a most delightful day in that bustling little city by the Neuse.

Missionary and Educational Institutes and the Orphanage.

The time is near for the holding of our Missionary and Educational Institutes.

It seems to me that it would be well to put our Orphanage on the programs of these meetings. The Orphanage work is both missionary and educational. The Woman's Home Mission Society has taken it in hand, and is doing some of its best work here. Surely this is home mission work. We are looking after God's little ones—looking after their bodies by feeding and clothing them—looking after their minds by teaching them the rudiments of an English education—looking after their souls by training them in obedience, industry, truthfulness and honesty; seeing that they attend divine service once on each Sunday, teaching them the Word of God, and having them do that which is right in the sight of God.

District Conference and the Orphanage.

We think that our District Conferences ought to give more time to a consideration of our Orphanage work. The Baptists use their Associations with great success in the interest of their Orphanage. So also, the Presbyterians use their Presbyteries, and the Episcopalians their Convocations. It adds interest to these assemblies, and accomplishes much for a most worthy cause. Let us devote at least an hour. Let the matter be discussed. Let preachers and laymen take a hand in it. Let the whole church feel that it is their Orphanage.

Some of our Presiding Elders put it in their program last year. Will not all do it this? Give it a fair chance, beloved. Give it more time. It will pay.

NO PITY SHOWN.

"For years fate was after me continuously" writes F. A. Gulledge, Verbena, Ala. "I had a terrible case of Piles causing 24 tumors. When all failed Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured me. Equally good for Burns and all aches and pains. Only 25c. at all druggists.

A GREAT INVENTION

A great advance has been made in the successful treatment of catarrh and deafness by the discovery of Rhinol, the catarrh specific, and the invention by Dr. J. R. Blosser, of Philadelphia, of a device or appliance (to be patented) which for the first time makes it possible to apply an effective remedy to all parts of the head and the external and internal ear.

Rhinol is both a direct local and a constitutional specific for catarrh of the head, throat and lungs, and for deafness, head noises, etc. It reaches every spot and speck that is ever affected by catarrh and not only heals the local catarrh, but by its absorption into the blood, expels every taint of the disease from the system. It breaks up the habit of "always taking cold," thus removing the cause that produces and keeps up catarrh. It is the only remedy that does this and hence is the only positive, radical, permanent cure for catarrh.

A sample of Rhinol, to demonstrate its splendid effect, together with full particulars as to the ear appliance, will be sent absolutely free to any sufferer who will write to Dr. J. R. Blosser, 415 Heed Bldg., Philadelphia, Pa.

Dr. Owen's Electric Belt

Is the grandest achievement of medical science; the most perfect electrical health appliance in the world It positively and permanently cures rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica, backache, neuralgia and pains of every description, Indigestion, Constipation, Malaria, Catarrh, Kidney and Bladder Troubles, and all Female Complaints. It builds up the nervous system, strengthens every muscle and restores the vim and vigor of youth. You simply put it on when you retire and when you get up you feel like a new person.

It Cures While You Sleep.

Thousands and thousands who thought there was no help for them, have been cured through its use, why should you not be one of them? Write for large Free Illustrated Catalogue which explains all. Beware of imitations Dr. Owens Electric Belt Co., 618 Olive Street, St. Louis, Mo.

RACHELS.—Little Ena May, infant daughter of Fairly and Mary Jane Rachels, departed this life in October, 1903. She survived her mother only a few months, then followed her to the spirit-land. He who said, "Suffer the little children to come unto me," transplanted that little life to his Father's kingdom where it will bloom in immortal youth.

"I take these little lambs, said he.
And lay them in my breast;
Protection they shall find in me,
In me be ever blest."

CHAS. O. DURANT.

RACHELS.—Mary Jane Rachels, wife of Fairby Rachels, of Scotland County, N. C., was born October 3, 1880, and died July 17, 1903.

The deceased joined the Methodist Church at about the age of twelve years, and lived a consistent member till her death.

"Hope looks beyond the bounds of time,
When what we now deplore,
Shall rise in full immortal prime,
And bloom to fade no more."

To the bereaved husband and family we extend our sympathies and commend them to the God of all consolation, who alone is able to comfort, sustain and guide through all life's sorrows, to that life and home above, where eternal bliss shall be the heritage of all God's faithful children ,and where we shall be reunited with the loved ones gone before, and be ever with the Lord.

CHAS. O. DURAANT.

YOUNGBLOOD.—March 27, 1903. Clara Helme Youngblood was called from earth to join the redeemed above. Seven weeks before, her husband, David T. Youngblood, passed away, leaving her under a cloud of bereavement.

Impaired health forced her to give up her place in business, at the close of 1902. This was a great trial to her, from which she had not recovered when her sorrow came, and the heavy folds of that dark cloud hung low about her till the Father of mercy took her above all cloud and darkness.

At Rocky Point, under the tuition of Rev. F. A. Bishop, and at Clayton Academy, she made good use of her school-days, and became fond of literature, delighting in the aesthetical and poetical. She was most partial to Tennyson's poems, often committing pages to memory. Best of all, she was a Christian, and bore her sorrows and afflictions with resignation. She wrought well in every relation of life, and has entered into rest.

POPE.—The subject of this sketch was borne near Clinton, N. C., June 5, 1834, and died with pneumonia December 14, 1903.

He was a faithful steward of his church and superintendent of Kendall's Chapel Sunday-school. His seat was never vacant except caused from sickness. He entered the late war in 1861 (Company F., 20th Regiment). He lost his right arm at the battle at South Mountain, Md., Sunday, September 15, 1862.

He was married to Miss Sarah Ann Pearson. To this union were born seven children, all of whom survive him. He loved his family and his God. Just before he died he told his children to be soldiers for Jesus and told those around him that his faith was sufficient and that there were no clouds to darken his pathway. May the benedictions of heaven rest upon the sorrowing ones.

J. O. CULBRETH.

YARRELL.—Mrs. Emily Yarrell died at the home of Mrs. M. E. Carstarphen, Williamston, N. C., December 19, 1903, after an illness of only a few days.

Sister Yarrell was seventy-nine years old. She had been a faithful member of the M. E. Church, South, for years. Everybody who knew Sister Yarrell loved her. She was of a bright, happy disposition; she carried all her sorrows and cares to the Lord in prayer. Her death was a calm, peaceful falling asleep. Those who stood about her death-bed could feel the presence of the unseen. Heavenly hosts carried her pure spirit to the God who gave it.

Sister Yarrell leaves two sons, one living near Williamston ,with whom she made her home; the other is living in Belton, Texas.

WATSON.—Fred. C. Watson was born May 28, 1860, departed this life December 8, 1903.

Brother Watson was converted in early life and joined the Missionary Baptist Church, of which he lived an acceptable member until his marriage in 1883 to Miss Lula Faust, daughter of Dr. H. M. Faust ,of Randolph County, after which he joined the Methodist Church with his wife and lived a faithful member until the day of his death.

Brother Watson was a good citizen, a devoted Christian, a large-hearted, lovable and sweet-spirited man, an affectionate and devoted husband and father. He had a large circle of friends, for he made friends wherever he went. His death was peculiarly sad, being separated from his family, except his wife, who reached him at Lumberton a few days before his death.

He leaves a sorrowing wife, five children and a host of friends to mourn their loss.

The large congregation which gathered in the Methodist Church at Goldston to attend the funeral service told of the high esteem in which he was held in the community in which he lived. May God's richest blessings abide with these sorrowing ones.

JNO. C. HUMBLE.

WOOTTEN.—Another family circle broken; another jewel in heaven; another father and mother crushed and almost heart-broken on account of the loss of a darling child.

Gertrude Wootten, age nine years, youngest child of Bro. and Sister W. L. Wootten, was accidentally hurt while at play on Sunday, December 27, 1903, and died the next Friday from the injuries.

She was a bright and energetic little girl, and had a lovable disposition. I saw her only once, and she made an impression on me by her kindness to her sisters.

She was conscious until a few minutes before she died, and told her papa to kiss her goodnight for she was going to heaven.

There she waits to welcome them. May the sorrowing family remember that she cannot come back, but that we can go to her.

B. E. STANFIELD.

MOORE.—James William Moore was born September 17, 1835, and died December 14, 1903, aged 68 years, two months and twenty-seven days.

Brother Moore lived a very consistent Christian life. In early life he connected himself with the Methodist Church and lived and sustained himself purely in that relation for about forty-three years. He was sweet in disposition, and loved his church, and loved to support her needs without a murmur; and he was the warm and unostentatious friend of the preacher, making him always feel welcome at his pleasant home. He was a wise and good husband, a true and devoted father, who considered no toil or sacrifice a hardship if he might thereby provide for the physical wants of his family. I talked with him during his sickness and found him perfectly resigned. He said: "I am trusting in Jesus; I have tried to live the best I knew how." He was of a family of Moores that have been firm, true, pure, and good, in every generation from the old settlers of the same name.

To the deeply bereaved wife and children we offer our tenderest sympathy, and prayers for the blessing of God to rest upon them in this sad hour; and we with them rejoice in the assurance that the beloved one has entered upon the blissful and perpetual "rest of the people of God." "Well done thou good and faithful servant: thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things; enter thou into the joy of thy Lord." Matt. 25:21.)

M. D. GILES.

POOL.—On December 17, 1903, Miss Sarah Elizabeth Pool, daughter of Dr. John H and Sarah Pool, died at her home in South Mills, N. C., age thirty years, eight months and eigteen days. Miss Lizzie had been in feeble health for more than a year, having contracted that dreaded disease, consumption, and for the last few weeks of her life she sat propped in her rocking chair patiently waiting for the summons to come, which would forever free her body from pain and her mind from care.

She joined the Methodist Church in early childhood and served the church as organist for several years. She was also president of the Rose Bud Society, where no doubt her gentle manners and beautiful Christian life left an impress upon many a young mind that will bear fruit to the honor and glory of God.

Hers was indeed a beautiful life. She was intelligent, yet unassuming, never frivolous, and yet always had a smile for every one. She was also one of the most unselfish persons I ever knew; she literally gave her life for the good of others, and never seemed to regard anything a sacrifice that she could do for the happiness or comfort of others. During her illness I never heard her complain, but she patiently bore her sufferings without a murmur.

Her death is a loss to our church and community, and the sobs and tears at her grave told of the high esteem in which she was held.

As we turn from her grave it is with bowed heads and sad hearts, but with a determination to emulate the virtues of this noble young Christian woman, who has gone to dwell in that house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens.

W. E. HOCUTT,
Her pastor.

LAST YEAR A GOOD YEAR FOR THE HOME COMPANIES.

The annual meetings of the Greensboro Fire Insurance Companies were held in Greensboro on the 21st inst., at which the old officers and directors were re-elected. Although the fire record in North Carolina for 1903 was less favorable to insurance companies generally than during the last several years, and in spite of frequent fires, the Greensboro companies got through the year with fire losses well within the profit-making limit and with substantial additions to their resources. The premiums received by these home companies for the year 1903 amounted to $208,538.00, and their losses for the year amounted to $90,615.00, and their net total surplus to policyholders was increased during the year from $423,458.00 to $504,061.00. These companies directly and indirectly are saving about a quarter of a million dollars annually to the property owners of the State in the cost of their insurance and the people of North Carolina will be glad to know that they fared so well in 1903.

Self-Praise for Success.

C. H. WETHERBE.

It may be possible for some Christians to become so free from all human tendencies in themselves as to not have the slightest disposition to praise themselves for the success which they have in doing good deeds but I have never seen such a person.

According to my judgment of human nature, even in its most favored state, there is a particular proneness in all Christians to give themselves considerable credit for the successful issue of their good deeds. Some of them have so much native modesty, and also sound sense, that they refrain from manifesting a congratulatory spirit over their prosperous doings. The late C. H. Spurgeon, in a sermon said:

"Perhaps we are not able yet to bear a very large measure of success. If the Lord blesses some brethren a little, and they see a few souls brought to Christ, they are not only very grateful and very happy, which is quite right, but they are very great in their own esteem, which is quite wrong. You should hear them at night, after a successful meeting; you would hardly know them. God has given them a puff of wind in their sail, and they are almost blown over, for they have so little ballast. There are some of us workers for God whom He cannot trust with success; that is one reason for our failures, for our Master means to make more use of us by and by."

I have observed, for many years, that even ministers who say much in favor of personal freedom from all bent to evil, are strongly inclined to exalt the importance of their own work and its results, at the same time taking pains, evidently, to make it appear that other ministers, not agreeing with their extreme notions, did not secure much fruit from their labors. And I have known some ministers who, while saying that the Lord's power was greatly manifest in the place where they labored, took special care to make the impression that, if it had not been for their own exertions, but little would have been accomplished! Is that a decent way to treat God? And, really, is it true that God does put much honor on one who is full of self-praise?

Roper.

Dear Bro. Ivey:—The pastors' reports, coming in at the very close of Conference proceedings at Goldsboro, had to be boiled down. I could not say all that was worthy to be said. I trust it is worth the while if I should say some of it now.

Roper charge is composed of two churches almost in one community, only four and a half miles apart, among a thrifty, industrious, though not a wealthy people. My first year here has brought me to feel identified with their every interest. As they plant and plow, cut and saw, sell and buy for a livelihood, my heart goes with them. In their homes and everywhere I feel at home—I am at home.

We had twenty-two additions last year. There was a small net gain; full collections all around and a surplus on pastor's salary, Bishop's collection, church extension and education was our financial report.

A good graded school work is begun, supported by voluntary special tax. There is general educational awakening. Several young people are in college. Our people are warm friend and patrons of Trinity and other colleges.

This work is specially interesting because of its active organizations. When we get the "Baby Roll" begun, we will have organized work for all the family. Besides three evergreen Sunday-schools, two of which have the Missionary Societies, we have a Junior League of busy children who are valuable helpers. We have two Senior Leagues doing some good work, especially in charity and help. The ladies have a good Woman's Home Mission Society. They take their paper, and undertake the parsonage aid department as well as the general work of the society. The Board of Stewards is composed of good men who attend their meeting, organize for work and do the work. Business judgment is used in their religious work. They have made financial plans for the new year and, as usual, arrange to raise the Conference collections as well as the salaries. The pastor's salary, which was amply satisfactory to me last year, was voluntarily increased by them this year. They surprised me. Of course I am more than pleased. This substantial token of their generous confidence deeply moves me. I pray that it may inspire in me better service in holy things.

The present administration does not afford opportunity for poundings at the parsonage. "Pity 'tis, tis true." Led by the Leagues, these good people though are keeping up the practice by carrying or sending poundings to sick and needy ones around us, which is better, is it not?

Brother Jenkins deeply interested all of us on January 17th with his talks at both churches about the orphans and the Orphanage. The collection amounted to nearly $100.00. Our Roper Sunday-school has since reorganized for the support of an orphan, which they have done for two years past, paying $60.00 per year. The superintendent promises to send us a picture of Warner Vernon, who is to be our boy. These are some of the evidences of the life of this good people. Who would not rejoice to be their pastor? I think even an editor would. The present pastor is not inviting any change. Of course all are not active. Many are not. Wish we could say all are zealous in good works and Godly.

Our special prayer is that this may be a great year of grace and of spiritual baptism and abounding spiritual life. May the beauty of the Lord our God be upon us and establish the work of our hands.

Yours sincerely, W. F. CRAVEN.

"The Paper and the Bottle."

Your editorial on the above subject set up an interesting train of thought in my mind. Like a flash, Martin Luther's experience with Satan came to me. You remember his confinement in the Castle Wartburg upon the mountain and in the midst of the black Thuringian forests. Full of fiery zeal and Christian earnestness, his restless spirit chafed against his limitations. He was often greatly depressed and full of melancholy. On one occasion, while thus chafing against his restraints, he saw, or thought he saw, the devil come into his room, and pace up and down the floor glaring at him like a lion ready to spring upon his prey. Greatly alarmed at this, the great reformer seized the ink-stand and flung it at the head of his insolent adversary, smashing the ink-stand against the wall. And who blames Mr. Luther? Surely one under similar circumstances would be inclined to seize the most convenient missile and hurl it at the audacious fiend. A bottle! A bottle of ink is a good thing to hurl at the head of the great adversary of God and man. Long time ago young Sophomores debated lustily this question: "Which is mightier, the pen or the sword?" That question is no longer debatable. It is no longer a question of superiority of strength between brawn and brain, between physical force and the dynamics of thought. The days of Samson Agonistes are past. If the walls of Dagon are to be shaken down it cannot now be done "by main strength and awkwardness." Besides the sacrifice of Samson is to be avoided. The days are upon us when "one shall chase a thousand and two put ten thousand to flight;" but it must be done with a brain girt about with truth. The ink bottle! The pen and the press,—this is the power that sways the multitudes of this generation. What virtue has not been promoted when properly championed by the press? What enemy has not been routed, scouted and defeated when pursued by the press? The ink bottle and the whiskey bottle have met in hot battle and intemperance slinks away in inglorious defeat, while garlands of victory adorn the press. To a judicious use of ink perhaps as much as any thing else is due the progress in temperance reform in our beloved State. All honor to the men who have stood in the thickest of the fight and hurled the ink bottle at the whiskey traffic!

Thus also are daily being won victories over every form of error. The pen and the press have been made the means of conveying thought to the multitudes and this thought has been converted into conscience as the silken fibers are woven into cloth, so that a competent leader may hurl the multitudes in solid phalanx against any and every enemy of truth who dares to raise his head.

But one thing we must deplore. It is this: An agency so powerful is sometimes employed against the truth instead of for the truth. But "truth is mighty and must prevail." Her cause may sometimes suffer, but in the long run she must be conqueror since her best friend is God.

"Truth crushed to earth shall rise again,
The eternal years of God are hers;
Error vanquish writhes in pain,
And dies amid her worshippers."

So with every error that dares to contest the progress of man. Wise and good men will continue to throw the ink-stands at them, smashing them through the opposing walls of ignorance and crime until the enemy shall fly before the truth and we be permitted to see the realization of the prophet's dream when he saw the vision of one "coming forth as the morning; fair as the moon, clear as the sun, and terrible as an army with banners."

An Evergreen on the Late Rev. B. R. Hall's Grave.

Dear Bro. Ivey:—During the recent session of our Conference at Goldsboro some good woman, whose name I did not get, sent to me a note in substance as follows:

"When a boy at Bingham School, Mebane, Orange County, N. C., Ben R. Hall asked to be allowed to help in a little Sunday-school, poorly conducted, in an old, almost forsaken Baptist church. He was soon elected superintendent; the school flourished, and he walked eight miles to attend the school, nearly always bringing a schoolmate with him. The writer did not remember how long he conducted the school; his face soon faded from our memory, but his work remained, and the boy in blue clothes and brass buttons will ever be held in loving remembrance."

Brother Hall rests from his labors, but the tide of his life-toil is widening in influence till the roll-call to reward is heard from our ascended Lord and Master.

D. H. TUTTLE.

Milton.

To the "Old Raleigh:"—I am now practically beginning my second year on the Milton Circuit. The people have received me kindly, having made the first round and have met them face to face. I have worked and planned therein for a year of untiring effort and increased energy to do faithfully here, the Lord willing, that that He has committed to my hands. My faith in God is secure while my confidence, in a large measure with all my brethren, is unshaken.

We have had battles fierce and hard to fight here, and we are still on the field, holding the shield in place with sword in hand, facing the enemy with his bold affront, "for the Lord of hosts is with us, and the God of Jacob is our refuge;" and yet, with such a mighty "rock of defence," even amidst so trying conflicts, it is hard sometimes not to lose heart. "But if the Lord is for us, who can be against us?"

We have held our first Quarterly Conference with our beloved Presiding Elder, Dr. Gibbs, in the chair. He, I think, was instrumental in moving us off well with our work, if we can but only keep moving well all the year. But when the traces begin to slacken, he just comes along and takes up a link and we move on. His presence is always a help to us.

I have just read the General Rules, and held our church Conference at the Milton Church. In our report to this Conference of last year's work here it was sad to us that we were unable to report but very few accessions, yet I'm satisfied that good was accomplished. The financial showing without doubt is far above the average in the Annual Conference; in fact, I know of no other church that contributes so largely to the benevolences, ours having averaged, per member, $11.45 last year.

We hope to make the month of February in the main a missionary month, when we shall make an effort to raise our Foreign and Domestic Missions. I shall devote my time and attention to the subject of missions almost solely during the coming month. I shall not forget the "Old Raleigh" in my go-rounds. It is read right much among my people and greatly enjoyed by all. No one says "stop" his paper, and I trust every one will gladly respond when I shall shortly call in person for their renewals. We have set our faces over here towards the eternal hills. In a sense, we may be in sight of Sodom, but our backs are turned squarely on her wickedness, and we fleeing with our lives, and calling to others, for the City of Refuge. Pray for us, brethren, for we most surely need your prayers and sympathy.

Six Months in the New Life of John Wesley.

BY GEORGE G. SMITH.

The Wesley's published journals are books of never-failing interest to me. When my brain is weary and nearly all reading is distasteful, I can always turn to his journals with interest.

The six months of which I propose to give a rapid account were from January to July of 1760. He had now been an evangelist for twenty-eight years. His societies had multiplied and were scattered over all England and there were a good many in Ireland and a few in Scotland. It was his custom to leave London early in January and make quite a long circuit before he returned. The few years preceding this had been years of great trial to him, the trial coming from a most unexpected quarter, and touching him in a very sensitive spot.

Over twenty-five years before he had given a "Plain Account of Christian Perfection," as he understood it, and occasionally he had preached on the subject, to mature Christians and shown the privilege of having hearts filled with pure love. Among those who had entered into his society, at an early date, was Thomas Maxfield, a servant man, who, having shown great gifts, was permitted by him to exercise in public in his societies and finally he used him as a lay preacher and secured for him ordination. Maxfield had married a lady of considerable property and aided Mr. Wesley in London. He was enthusiastic in his advocacy of Mr. Wesley's views on the possibility of entire sanctification, and finally went far beyond him, in his teachings. There had been under him and his sympathizer Bell, wild excitement and fanaticism in London which the preachers tried in vain to check. Mr. Wesley had laid his stern hand on the movement and it had been checked and the wild fire was gradually dying down. He had married a rich widow seven years before, and she made his home wretched, but no one would suppose from his journal that he had any private trouble at all. Two weeks before he began his tour in 1766, his mare fell and caught his leg under her, but he went to the happy home at Shanham, of Mr. Perronett, in a coach, and after two weeks was able to begin his journey. In London he met a congregation at 4 o'clock in the morning for a praise service, and at night held a service he often held, and always with a blessing, attending it, a meeting of the Society for the renewal of its covenant with God. In these latter days this kind of a service is at a discount, the worse for the latter days. He had had an unhappy difference with Mr. Berridge, once his efficient coadjutor, who came to see him in a sweeter mood, to which he had been brought by Mr. Whitefield, who was now in full accord with his old friend. On Sunday evening, early in January, he rode out to his friend Ebenezer Blackwells, sixteen miles from London. Mr. Blackwell was a rich banker, and his home was Mr. Wesley's. Here he rested for four days, and read Bishop Low the reply to Bishop Warburton. He remained in his delightful retreat until Monday, when he took what we call a hack, and he called a machine, and, after preaching, began his journey. The night was cold, the ground hard frozen, and the machine broke down before daylight, but was mended up, and he preached that afternoon at Yarmouth, about forty miles from London. He found things sadly disturbed by the doctrinal defection of one of his preachers, whose head, he said, had been turned, and who had become a Calvinist. On Thursday he was at Norwich and remained there for three days. He left the society on Monday, and on Tuesday started on his return to London, preaching at Colchester. He found this society, too, had been sadly rent by discord, but was recovering. He reached London Friday and on Tuesday had a meeting of the society to consult as to paying a debt of $2,000. Mr. Whitefield was in London, and called to see him. He mentions a society for the Reformation of Manners, somewhat like our good order club, with whose president he dined, which had been in great trouble from a law suit, because of its efforts to suppress crime.

One, evidently an old friend, who had been cheated out of a fortune, who was ragged and starving, wished to get back to his old country. Mr. Wesley said he was short of money, but he told him to call in an hour. Just before he came Mr. Wesley received a hundred dollars he had not looked for, and furnished him with clothes and money. He then took four days now to make out a new roll of members, and found six hundred members had been lost in the time of this Bell and Maxfield trouble. He remained quiet for a week, and then went to Bedford, about fifty miles away, to meet a friend who had lost his wife and preach her funeral sermon. Thursday and Friday he preached and then returned to his retreat at Lewisham ,when he finished his notes on Job. He gives in his journal an account of Henry Jackson, who was ninety-nine years and five months old, who for years had never been out of temper, but always happy in the Lord. He was still reading Lowth, whom he greatly admired, on Thursday he was in London, and on Tuesday in Bristol,and on Wednesday went over to Kingswood to see about his school there, which was sadly disorganized. He gave them all a very plain talk, and avowed his purpose to have a Christian school or none. On Sunday he preached at Princess Street at 8 o'clock, and on the Square in the evening. He gives his texts. In the morning, "Awake thou that sleepest;" at night, n "Come Lord Jesus." It was now March, the balmy weather was over, and a bitter northeast wind was blowing, but he preached out of doors on Wednesday facing the wind, and wrapped in his hood he rode to a farm house and was refused shelter, and then further, when a good woman gave him a refuge and he a talk for her good, and the next day went to Birmingham, leaving there before sunrise, the weather fearfully cold he started on his way and preached at 11 o'clock, and then to Nottingham, when he preached again.

He preached twice on a cold Sunday, then rode to Derby, where he saw a careless people who needed stirring up, and preached on "Gallio cared for none of these things." Then on Tuesday rode 12 miles, and preached on "Fellowship with the Father, and the Son." Then on Thursday, after a cold ride over the Inowy Mountains, he preached to a few poor people in a mountain hamlet. On Good Friday he went to church, then preached on "We preach Christ crucified," etc., and in Manchester preached for two days, one sermon a beggine sermon, and a poor man sent him two guineas to pay the Society debt. On Tuesday he had a sad revelation as he examined closely fifty who had professed perfect love two years before, to find over 35 who had lost ground. They were, however, striving to recover it. Then he rode through the rain and visited a poor woman who had been an invalid for eight years. She had been a patient sufferer, and gave her the sacrament, and a poor sinner desiring to take the sacrament with her, did so, and found rest for her soul. He remained at Manchester for nearly a week, then riding through Warrington, he preached at noon, and went on to Liverpool, where he regulated the Society, but was unable to regulate a sensible woman who had become an enthusiast. He was in the habit of having all his chapels decked according to a simple form, and in a certain way, but now he came across a deed which was sadly out of shape, much to his displeasure. He was in no humor to stand the foolishness of some insolent, stupid folks found at Wigan, where he rebuked them sharply. On Friday and on Saturday he preached, despite the cold, and on Sunday, while the wind was exceedingly sharp, he preached again. Then on Monday he rode in a hail storm, and on Tuesday preached in a meadow on "By grace are ye saved." And then over dreary mountains on his way to the county in which he was born. He says he came to a little hamlet that put him in mind of Perrysburg, in Georgia. It consisted of a few half starved people, with out any trade, domestic or foreign, but they all loved the Gospel. On Monday he preached, on Tuesday he found the Society broken up by John Hill's joining the Baptists, with 26 of his flock. On Wednesday he preached four times and then rode through the fens to Epworth where he was born. He was now sixty-four years old. He hastened on Sunday to Haxly, where the Curate preached a harmless sermon against the Methodists, and at one or two, he preached on, "Behold now is the day of Salvation," and at 4 o'clock he preached in the market place at Epworth on "He beheld the city and wept over it." He says of this sermon: "Such a call the inhabitants of this town have scarce ever heard before." Then on Monday under a tree, he preached again, and then on Tuesday at Thirsk, and then at New Castle. This was the 30th of April. The next day, and for four days, he rested in New Castle. He loved quietness and silence, but if duty called for noise and tumult all was well. He rested till Sunday, then preached three times. Then began his journey again, preached Wednesday and Thursday. Had a pleasant visit to a rich Quaker's. Preached three times on Sunday; Monday preached to the Collins, visited the Castle of the Duke of New Castle, the next day preached in the streets, then in the town hall of Berwick, then on Friday to a congregation in the country. Then to Preston pans in Scotland where he had a stolid audience, with no more feeling than stones. And then to Edinburgh. He was never a favorite in Scotland, nor were the Scotch according to to his mind. It was the day of the reign of the Moderates, and he was impressed by the frivolous carriage of many in the Assembly. He preached at 7 o'clock, in Leith, and heard a thundering sermon in the Kirk, and preached again at night. On Monday he rode through the rain to Dundee and preached Monday, Tuesday and Thursday.

Ahoskie, N. C.

I have just completed my first round for this, our fourth year, on the Harrellsville Circuit, have been kindly received and have our work in good shape for our last year on this charge.

Our first Quarterly Conference was held January 21st. Rev. G. F. Smith, our new Presiding Elder, preached three excellent sermons and held our Quarterly Conference. He made a fine impression on our people and we are expecting the best year on this charge that we have ever had.

The Stewards raised the pastor's salary again, and we feel that there is progress being made along all lines.

We have been "pounded" for three years, and still we are alive. Sometime before Conference a large crowd of Ahoskie people, headed by Dr. J. H. Mitchell, of the Baptist Church, gave us a "severe" pounding that lasted for weeks and months. They took entire possession of the parsonage, and while they piled up the good things until the table seemed as though it would groan beneath its burden, this scribe was trying to prepare to meet the friends who had come so unexpectedly and found him unprepared. Still the same work goes on, and lips are powerless to express our heartfelt thanks. We are filled with rejoicing and fresh enthusiasm to press forward in the work. This is an educated, intelligent, cultured and refined people. We all expect a good year and will be disappointed if we do not have it.

Surely the Lord has cast our lot in pleasant places, for no one in the whole Conference has a better and kinder people than we have. Pray for us that we may be as faithful to our people as they are to us.

We look forward every week to the visit of the Advocate. May the Lord bless the Advocate and its editor this year as never before. We hope to have the Advocate in every Methodist home on this charge by the close of our fourth year.

Come to see us soon.

Our Commissioners in Korea.

Korea has for some weeks been the centre of political disturbance. While the antagonistic forces in diplomacy have been those of Russia and Japan, the storm centre is on the little peninsula which lies between Manchuria and the Japanese Empire.

Naturally the friends and relatives of our missionaries in Korea have been made anxious by the press dispatches and reports from the East. It is hardly necessary to say that many of these reports are vague and unreliable. There has been sufficient ground, however, in view of the war-like attitude of the two countries mentioned, and on account of some danger of riot among the populace in Korea, to take precautionary measures. This was done by the Secretaries of the Board of Missions under instructions of the Executive Committee of the Board at its meeting in Nashville on the 5th of January.

The communication sent the missionaries of both Boards was to the effect, first: that they should report their names and residence, with value or property at their respective mission stations, to the Hon. H. N. Allen, our United States Minister at Seoul; second, that the were to follow the instructions of Minister Allen in case he thought their personal safety demanded their withdrawal from the interior; and third, in case of war and the necessity arising from such extraordinary conditions, that the male members of the mission were to convey the women and children to a place of safety beyond the confines of Korea. These instructions were accompanied by an authorization to draw upon the Board of Missions for funds to meet exigencies in case such should arise.

It is due the church and those who are personally interested that this statement should be published. The Secretaries have given careful study to the situation, and while they have taken every precaution, there is no necessity, in their opinion, for further steps at present. In this they have the judgment of those in charge of the Presbyterian and Northern Methodist Boards. The Secretaries and representatives of other missionary bodies, to the number of fifty, met last week in New York City for annual conference and discussion of questions pertaining to their great work in the Orient and in other fields.

W. R. LAMBUTH.

A communication has just been placed on my desk from L. M. Thomas, Esq., Chattanooga, Tenn. In response to a cable dispatch to Minister Allen concerning the welfare of his sister, Mrs. C. G. Hounshell, the following reply was received:

"All are well. There is no danger. Can be fully protected." W. R. LAMBUTH.

Notes from Weldon.

Dear Dr. Ivey:—We have begun our third year here. The prospect for a good year is encouraging. There is no more loyal and liberal congregation, I am sure, in our Conference. This church met every assessment for 1903, besides a large amounts for other objects. They paid nearly $15 per member, with no church building on hand.

I see that a good many of the preachers have been pounded. We are among the fortunate ones.

We hope to have a gracious year here in spiritual things. We are praying for and expecting an ingathering of souls this year.

May God give us a great year in our Zion. Let me exhort all who read this short letter to pray that God may pour out His spirit abundantly upon us this year. Why not? He is gracious. He will come if we prepare for Him.

Sincerely, W. W. ROSE.

The Doubter.

An open Bible, a studious eye
A searcher in league with prayer
Will check the doubter's question, "Why?"
And quiet his reasoning "Where?"

Faith will become a living power;
Hope will enlighten the mind;
Christ's flaming love will soon devour
The doubts of a soul resigned.

God's Holy Spirit will fill the life;
Man's body his temple will be;
The worshipful heart will rest from strife,
For lo! the Doubter shall see.

—J. T. S., in Evangelist.

I Remember.

I look on a world of splendor, where joy seems brimming o'er,
And my soul is tempted thither by its pleasures
evermore;
But if ever I feign would yield to the subtile
Power of wrong,
Jesus, I then remember, when tempted Thou wast strong.

My cup is steeped in sorrow, its sharp edge has no sweet,
And the breath of its myrrh and aloes is cold
as wintry sleet,
But if ever I turn to leave it, with its cheerful
dregs unquaffed,
Saviour, I then remember how much harder was Thy draught.

My path is beset with briars; they rend the tender flesh,
The net is spread in the darkling stretch, to catch me in its mesh,
But if ever I would shun it, I see Thy face divine,
Jesus, I remember, a crueler way was Thine.

My Cross is of fire and steel and it cuts to the very quick,
But, if to the top of Calvary I climb alone,
heartsick,
When the soul I would have died for, turns ice and stone from me,
Saviour of all, I remember, a world rejected
Thee.

If You are Well-Bred.

You will be kind.
You will not use slang.
You will try to make others happy.
You will not be shy or self-conscious.
You will never indulge in ill-natured gossip.
You will never forget the respect due to age.
You will not swagger or boast of your achievements.
You will think of others before you think of yourself.
You will be scrupulous in your regard for the rights of others.
You will not measure your civility by people's bank accounts.
You will not forget engagements, promises or obligations of any kind.
In conversation you will not be argumentative or contradictory.
You will never make fun of the peculiarities or idiosyncrasies of others.
You will not bore people by constantly talking of yourself and your affairs.
You will never under any circumstances cause another pain, if you can help it.
You will not think that "good intentions" compensate for rude or gruff manners.
You will be as agreeable to your social inferiors as to your equals and superiors.
You will not sulk or feel neglected if others receive more attention than you do.
You will not have two sets of manners; one for "company" and one for home use.
You will never remind a cripple of his deformity, or probe the sore spots of a sensitive soul.
You will not gulp down your soup so audibly that you can be heard across the room, nor sop up the sauce in your plate with bits of bread.
You will let a refined manner and superior intelligence show that you have traveled, instead of constantly talking of the different countries you have visited.
You will not remark, while a guest, that you do not like the food which has been served to you.
You will not attract attention by either your loud talk or laughter, or show your egotism by trying to absorb conversation.—Orison Swett, in February "Success."

Forcing a Decision.

Governor Mickey, of Nebraska, that stanch Methodist, was visited a few days ago by an escaped insane inmate of the Grand Island Soldiers' Home, armed with a huge paper-knife. Brandishing his weapon, he declared that Senator Dietrich, now under indictment for bribery, is innocent, and compelled the Governor to express the same view. The Governor was agreeing with everything he said when Capitol employes rushed in and overpowered the lunatic.

The Governor was quite right, though the late Dr. Trumbull would probably have declared that he was lying.

It is not a lie to deceive an insane man to prevent him from injuring himself and others. A man brandishing a huge knife forced his way into the presence of the Duke of Wellington, and thus addressed him: "I am Apollyon, and am sent to kill you." "What!" said the duke, "you see that pile of letters; I can't stop now. Come again when I have finished them." The man had politeness enough to withdraw, and was soon taken in custody. Mr. Spurgeon once found himself face to face with a lunatic, who had gotten into his private room, and who said to him: "I am sent by God to do everything you wish." Said Spurgeon, with the wit that never failed him, "I was wishing that you would go away;" and he records that the fellow had sense enough left to do it.

However, it hardly does to agree always with the deranged. After Abraham Lincoln was assassinated, a clergyman, dressed in clerical attire, who thought he must agree with everything a patient said, visited an asylum, and as he entered one of the wards an inmate drew near and said: "What a terrible thing this is that our President should be killed!" "Yes," said the minister, "it is."

"And then think, too, that they should beat Secretary Seward almost to death." "Awful!" said the minister.

"And then that they should kill General Grant, after all that he has done." "Yes," said the minister, "that was worst of all. The general had risked his life on many a battlefield for the Union."

"And then to think," said the insane man, "that the wretches should come on to Plymouth Church and slay Henry Ward Beecher, while he was administering the communion, so that his blood mingled with the wine." "Yes," said the minister, "that was a most sacrilegious thing."

"Now here," said the lunatic, "you look like a minister, but you are the biggest liar I ever met."

The insane often have their mother wit left, and amuse themselves at the expense of those who stare at them as if they were wild animals.—New York Advocate.

Thoughts for the Thoughtful.

"Oh, the bliss of being trusted on the errands of the King!"

It is well to be an independent man but it is never well to be independent of God.

If we search for trouble, we can generally find it. If we desire peace, we can usually make it.

We are responsible not only for what we are, but also for what we appear to be.

At least once in every man's life the Lord puts a signed blank check into his hands, and all that man's future is determined by the way he fills the blank.

A child-like trust of heart that can take a hand and, wondering, walk in paths unknown and strange, is the prime requisite of all religion.—James Martineau.

In righteous contests with other men a Christian should feel himself a man among men; but when his is the duty of guiding and helping hosts of men, he is wisest who is not too self-confident.

"I was having a nice walk and feeling so happy. It was a beautiful day until I met Ellen, and—she murdered it," said our school-girl, laughing, but with a suspicion of tears in her eyes. All of us who knew Ellen knew from experience what had happened. The pretty new suit, a delight to one to whom new suits were rare, had been criticised, compared with others, its little defects pointed out, until it seemed very inferior and its purchase ill-advised. The kindness of a friend, which had set the young heart bounding, might have, it was suggested, an ulterior motive so selfish and ignoble as to rob it of its worth. The hopeful symptoms in the case of a dear invalid were only such, it was pointed out, as had proved utterly deceptive in a similar case, and meant no permanent improvement. The disparaging, suspicious, discouraging words, needless words—clouded all the joy and hopefulness that had made the morning bright. The few drops of poison were enough to "murder" the day, but the law holds no penalty for such very common assassinations.—The Wellspring.

What the Moon Can Tell.

A clear moon indicates frost.

If the moon looks high cold weather may be expected.

If the moon looks low down, warm weather is promised.

If the moon changes with the wind in the east, then shall we have bad weather.

If the moon be bright and clear when three days old, fine weather is promised.

When the moon is visible in the day time, then may we look forward to cool days.

When the points of the crescent of the new moon are very clearly visible, frost may be looked for.

If the new moon appears with its points inward, then will the month be dry, but should the points be downward, more or less rain must be expected during the next three weeks.—American Queen.

Mr. W. C. Everett, manager of the branch of the publishing House in Dallas Texas, spent several days in Nashville last week, conferring with the agents, Mr. Smith and Dr. Lamar. Mr. Everett brought an excellent report of the business of the Dallas house, which has had a constant growth, showing a marked yearly increase.

For the first time in the history of Texas Methodism, the bishops and connectional boards will meet in Waco next May. This is quite a compliment to Texas Methodism, and it will prove itself equal to the occasion. Texas will never miss an opportunity like this, and we look forward to this great meeting with much interest.—Nashville Advocate.

Fanny Crosby (Mrs. Van Alstyne), the blind poetess and sacred song writer, was recently honored by a special service at the Union Evangelical Church, Corona, L. I., at which Will Carleton, the poet-lecturer of Brooklyn, and the pastor of the church, the Rev. W. J. Peck, urged the need of a home for the hymn writer.

The secular press reports that Bishop Galloway has cabled all of our missionaries in Korea to move into Seoul, the capital city, immediately, or to go at once to Japan. He has received advices that the missionaries are in great danger of losing their lives.

Our Boys and Girls.

Goodnight.

Little boy sweetheart, with eyes that shine
Blue as the skies on a summer morn,
Lips that are wreathed in a smile divine,
Velvety cheek that is pressed to mine,
Life has seemed fairer since you were born;
Fold up your petals, my rosebud white,
Goodnight, my baby, goodnight, Goodnight.

Little boy sweetheart, I love you so!
How deep that love you will never know.
Night after night, when my work is through,
Worn out and weary I come to you,
Bend o'er your couch till upon my ear
Falls a faint music I yearn to hear,
Made by your breathing so soft and light,
Goodnight, my baby, goodnight, Goodnight.

Then by your side as I nightly kneel
To the All-Father I make appeal,
That He will guide you and guard and bless,
Touch you with love and unselfishness,
Mould you and lead you life's path along,
That you grow manly and true and strong,
That He may grant you a future bright—
Goodnight, my baby, goodnight, Goodnight.

Sometimes in days that are yet to be,
In the last hours you shall come to me,
You who shall stand at your life's proud prime,
I whose head shall be touched with rime,
There shall we part for the last sad time;
Then, as the world recedes from view,
On your dear face I will turn my sight
And cut of death I will call to you,
"Goodnight, my baby, goodnight, Goodnight."

Mother's Birthday.

All the children in the Sinclair family took an interest in birthdays. They were not satisfied save as each child's birthday was celebrated and a big cake with one candle for each year was always a feature. Of course mamma was the one who managed all these birthdays. But the great occasion of all was when mother's own birthday came. They all laughingly said they could not afford candles for her birthday, because it took so many of them. This year the children made up their minds mamma must have a fine birthday and a sure enough present. They began to plan for it a long time beforehand. Tom had worked a little during the summer and had some money of his own. Sarah was always very careful with her monthly allowance money and she was ready to give, too. Baby Ben begged pennies from papa and some from mamma, too, telling her with his innocent little lips that "me wants det you birfday." It didn't matter much, though, for mamma could easily guess what they were all thinking about.

What do you think they were planning to give her? Why, some years before they had owned a beautiful yellow canary and big, shiny brass cage for him to live in. The cage was still theirs, but the bird had escaped one day when the door of the cage was accidentally left open. The children remembered—that is, the older ones—how mamma almost cried that day when she saw Dickey fly away. So now they were trying to get mother another birdie.

Papa had to help them to get the money, but the idea was all theirs. Tom stopped on his way from school and got the bird they had selected from the store. It was in a little wooden cage. You may be sure Tom enjoyed carrying it home. He met Sarah at a place near home and she peeped in at the dear little birdie. When Tom was upstairs in his room each one of the children had a peep, save little Ben, who could not be trusted to keep a secret.

In the morning early Tom got out of bed and brought the cage from the garret, where it had been so long. He wiped the dust from it and put the new Dickey in its home. Then he carried it down stairs and put it right by mother's place on the table.

You may be sure no one was late for breakfast that day. Mother was really surprised and as truly pleased. And the new Dickey? Why, at exactly the right minute he opened his throat and sang a beautiful song. From that moment he was a part of the home and everybody loved him.—Selected.

SUICIDE PREVENTED.

The startling announcement that a preventive of suicide had been discovered will interest many. A run down system, or despondency invariably precede suicide and something has been found that will prevent that condition which makes suicide likely. It's also a great Stomach, Liver and Kidney regulator. Only 50 cents. Satisfaction guaranteed by all druggists.

A THIEF.

Never was the old aphorism, "Procrastination a thief of time," truer or with results more hazardous than in a case of Dropsy. Why delay placing your case in the care and under the treatment of the noted and skilled Dropsy Specialist? You are allowing yourself to slowly but surely drown. You see day after day your swelling is increasing.

This is not true with patients under treatment of this eminent specialist. From day to day the swelling decreases and strength increases.

In these columns we print testimonials from those who have been cured by this famous Drop-y Specialist, telling of the wonderful and prompt effect of his treatment. How, after a few days of breathing that awful labored breathing, accomplished after the greatest effort, was made easy; how those who had not been able to lie down for weeks and could only eat a little naps while sitting upright, could in a few days lie down and sleep as sweetly as the new-born babe upon its mother's bosom; how those who had been so enormously swollen and their condition so extremely precarious, that not only their friends had said that recovery was impossible, but their physicians said they must die, was promptly relieved, and in a short time cured.

Never was there a time when plain facts were more imperative with you than now. Let the readers of the Raleigh Christian Advocate stop this procrastination to-day. Act, write, giving history of case, name and age of patient, and forward to S. T. Whitaker, M. D., Dropsy Specialist, 41 E. Irwin St., Atlanta, Ga., and he will send you a free treatment with full directions, that is guaranteed to give immediate relief.

P. S.—Send in care of C. C. Dept. for sample of an absolute cure for Catarrh, Cold in the Head, etc. Enclose four one-cent stamps and request a prescription for Half-Tonic. It can be filled at any Drug Store.

JOINTS PAIN YOU THIS MORNING?

First sign of RHEUMATISM. Dangerous to let it run. Easy to cure now. A single bottle of

Rheumacide

Will probably do the work. Bad cases require more. RHEUMACIDE cures by getting rid of the cause, so that no trace of the disease lingers in the system. It purifies the blood, relieves the inflammation of the kidneys, the chronic constipation and the catarrh that follows such a condition of the system.

Though Mrs. Mary E. Welborn, of High Point, N. C., is 80 years old and had suffered from rheumatism for 20 years, she was completely cured by RHEUMACIDE, and declares she feels "years younger" and is anxious for "all who are suffering from any of the forms of this dread disease" to try RHEUMACIDE and be cured.

REV. J. R. WHEELER, a noted Methodist minister, of Reinertown, Md., writes enthusiastically of RHEUMACIDE, which cured him. He is 75 years old and has been in the ministry 50 years.

"O multiply thy sowers seed,
And fruit we every hour shall bear;
Throughout the world thy gospel spread,
Thine everlasting truth declare!"

There was an error in Mrs. Whitaker's report, which should have been corrected last week—the name Selma occurs where it should have been Salem. There is no Foreign Missionary Auxiliary in Selma.

The copy for this column has to be sent in Friday morning, before the Advocate is issued the following Wednesday—nearly a week in advance; hence the necessity of items or notices for this department being sent in as early in the week as possible.

The annual meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the North Carolina Conference will be held in Elizabeth City, April 20-25. Rev. W. B. Lee, of the Brazil Mission, will preach the annual sermon. There will be universal satisfaction and pleasure when it is known that this talented missionary brother will preach—his knowledge and experience, gained through years of active work in the field, will enable him to "bring forth out of his treasure things new and old."

In reference to the annual meeting, Bro. D. H. Tuttle, pastor of the church in Elizabeth City, wrote the following to "Aunt Lucy:"

"We want you to come in full delegation from all points in the Conference. We want no home disappointment, because the delegate named for it did not come. May the meeting be a blessing to all, and, through us, to the cause across the sea."

Aunt Lucy says: "A warm, hearty welcome awaits us, I am assured; not only from the pastor, but from other citizens, as well as from our Auxiliary in that hospitable city by the sea."

This subject is mentioned early that it may impress itself upon the mind and heart of every member of our Missionary Societies. Make no mistake in the selection of your delegates; plan for the representation of every Auxiliary. Golden Links and Juvenile Society; be "instant in prayer" for the presence and blessing of the Holy Spirit and there will be no question as to the rich result of the meeting.

A communication from our Superintendent of Juvenile Work is always gladly received; she has the success of her department constantly in mind and her wise words and suggestions should find a lodgment in the minds of those to whom she speaks. Hear her:

To the Lady Managers of the Bright Jewels.

Dear Sisters:—In a recent number of the Raleigh Advocate, Mrs. Dixon, always alert to every interest of our work, made a suggestion so timely and practical, that I wish to emphasize it by an especial appeal to you.

It is that you, through our column in the Advocate, make occasional reports of the condition and progress of your Bright Jewel Bands. This cannot fail to be helpful in awakening new interest, and stimulating each other to greater activity.

Make special mention of any new feature you have introduced, your mode of conducting it, and with what success, etc. Send your communication to Mrs. Dixon, who will see that it is published in due time.

Now, who will be the first to comply with this request?

I also wish to call your attention to the fact, that it is only one more month before our Annual Report is made up. Please see that all the dues of your Society is paid up, and secure as large an amount as you possibly can for your pledge.

We must not fall behind in any interest of our work, and it may depend upon your individual effort whether we make a backward or a forward movement.

It is not too early to begin to plan a program for Easter, to which season we look hopefully for an ingathering from our Jewels. All this means work continual and faithful. But is not the result to be accomplished worth the effort and sacrifice?

"Hark the voice of Jesus calling;
Who will go and work to-day.
Fields are white and harvests waiting—
Who will bear the sheaves away?"

Lovingly,

AUNT LIZZIE.

February Questions and Answers.

"Must every member pay $1.00 above dues?

No. But the Auxiliary is expected to have as much as $1.00 per member above the dues.

What counts on the extra dollar?

Everything that is raised in the Auxiliary outside the dues, except Loan Funds, Endowment Funds, and any other money which has a specific use. Week of Prayer money, mite boxes, etc., all count on the extra dollar."

I repeat these questions here to give emphasis to them, and to urge all Auxiliaries to pay their dues in full and, also, to raise the extra $1.00 per member.

Treasurers, you have only one month more of this fiscal year—work mightily.

Why this Call for Extra Funds?

The Home Mission cause has prospered beyond expectation—God's blessing rests upon every department of it. This brings enlargement of opportunity, and as our income is small, there must be systematic and practical business management.

Each Conference Society uses one-half of its dues for work within its own bounds, consequently, the $2,000 members pay to the connectional fund only about $16,000. At the meeting of the Board last year it was found imperative to make an appropriation of $21,838—the General Secretary having beforehand gotten from each Institution an itemized account of amount needed for succeeding year. To cover this the extra $1.00 per member is asked.

A Message from Our President and General Secretary.

"Remember, you are called to be a co-laborer with your Lord in saving our world, and these are some of the things He has asked you to do in this copartnership."

Let every woman bestir herself lest there be languishing of the Lord's work. If one fails to pay in full, it would not seem much, but if hundreds should, think of the result! Everything, then, depends on each individual, and I beg you to realize your responsibility. There is no time to lose, for in one month the year's record will have been made, and it is for Eternity. No woman is willing to "rob God."

A Model Letter

I have received such a charming and cheering letter from Mrs. J. B. Exum, Corresponding Secretary of Fremont, I must share it with our readers:

"Our Home Mission Society has just held the monthly meeting, and 16 of the 23 members were present. Our Mite Box Brigade numbers 31 members. We observed the Week of Prayer with appropriate exercises of songs, prayers, recitations and readings relating to the work; and a part of the time had our pastor and Presiding Elder with us. We use the Items, also, the Bible Study in Our Homes, and find them very interesting and instructive. Our Auxiliary sends a box of clothing twice a year to a little boy at the Orphanage, and we are trying to pay off a church debt here. Our Society is growing in numbers and in interest. Pray for us, that we may improve in all lines."

Officers of Fremont Auxiliary.

Mrs. C. C. Aycock, President; Mrs. W. M. Darden, Recording Secretary and Treasurer; Mrs. J. B. Exum, Corresponding Secretary.

Happy greetings to Fremont! Could there be a more beautiful beginning for the new year than was made at this January meeting? I believe marked success will characterize every meeting of the year, and I hope all the Auxiliaries will profit by the wisdom of Fremont and strive to keep pace with its good works.

Wills Point, Tex., the Banner Auxiliary.

Texas may now be called "The Constellation State," for her noble women "shall shine as the stars forever and forever."

Let me tell you of the latest achievement of the Wills Point Auxiliary: they divided into sections, went out after members, and in one week gained one hundred new members!

The section securing the smallest number gave a reception to the entire membership, thus bringing all together in delightful communion.

What one Auxiliary can do, another can—which will be the first to begin to follow this magnificent leadership at once, even in this last month?

DEATH BY NEGLECT.

Dr. D. M. Bye, the eminent specialist, of Indianapolis, who cures cancer by the use of a combination of oils, says thousands of persons die from cancer every year from no cause save neglect. If taken in time not one case in a thousand need be fatal. The fear of the knife or the dread of the burning, torturing plaster causes a few to neglect themselves till they pass the fatal point. By far the greater portion die because their friends or relatives, on whom they are dependent, are insensible to their suffering and impending danger till it is too late. If you have friends afflicted write to-day for free book, giving particulars. Address Dr. D. M. Bye Co., Drawer 505, Indianapolis, Ind.

Editorial.

THE ROMANOFF AND THE MIKADO.

We present to our readers this week, on our front page, a map of that section of the world which probably will be the great battle ground of nations. From that battle ground, if battle ground it must be, will spring the harvests for which the granaries of Christian civilization have been waiting during the long centuries.

So it is entirely appropriate and natural that the eyes, not only of the civic, but of the religious world should rest intently and anxiously on that portion of the Orient which we present to our readers in this issue.

What is the trouble between the Jap and the Slav? Why is the former buying warships and changing its army of 175,000 men on a peace footing into an army of 675,000 men? Why is Russia fortifying Manchuria and sending thousands upon thousands of soldiers along that long line of railroad which stretches from St. Petersburg to Vladivostok, which looks out on the Japan Sea?

In general terms, Japan is an obstruction in the way of Russia's march eastward. Russia's occupation of Manchuria threatens the integrity of Japan. Russia for over a century has had its eyes not only the great inert drowsy empire of China, but upon the whole Orient. The fact has inoculated Japan with a chronic and persistent suspicion of Russia's good faith even when the safest and most plausible assurances are given. Since October 8, 1903, Japan has had no doubt of Russia's intention to command the Korean strait, which means, of course, a "cabined, cribbed, and confined" Japan, and a Russia the length of whose leash is measured only by the lengths of the lines of latitude and longitude.

But to be more specific. When, in 1895, the Japanese marched to the gates of Pekin and placed hoary, terrified China, or at least that part which was touched by the war, at their mercy, Russia, backed by Germany and France, stepped in and said to Japan: You must leave China. You must leave Korea. You must keep within bounds; Japan had nothing else to do than to accept the inevitable. For had not the appeal to Roseberry been in vain? England failed to see the "day of her merciful visitation" and allowed a hostile race to occupy the territory which might have remained in friendly hands had there been at England's helm a man instead of Roseberry.

But the Japanese, famed for their diplomacy, exacted from Russia a promise to evacuate Manchuria by October 8, 1903. Russian occupancy of Korea meant not only the impossibility of a free hand for Japan in Korea, but a possible Russian occupancy of Korea. But October 8th came and went, and the sound of Russian hammers, building forts, was still heard.

Why the Great Powers have failed to compel Russia to keep its promise made to poor little Japan is a secret known only in diplomatic circles.

Since the middle of October Japan has considered a war inevitable. Diplomatic messages have been received and sent, and at this writing Japan is awaiting what it is thought will be the last diplomatic fencing of the two nations. If Russia insists on holding Manchuria and refusing to give Japan right-of-way in Korea, there will be war. Japan never makes a bluff, and does not know the meaning of insincerity and bluster. Russia may find this out in time and avert, for awhile, the impending war. But that war will come in time. That war, in the final issue, may crush the Jap, but it will fail to establish the supremacy of the Slav in the Orient. It will prove the key to unlock the great gates to Anglo-Saxon liberty and enlightment. It will be the hand to level the mounta[illegible], and fill up the valleys to make a level highway for the onward march of Immanuel.

So we trust that our readers may study closely and intelligently the map which is on the first page, and which was prepared for the Advocate. It represents the section which is to offer the solution to that intricate problem which for a long time has bewildered the church of God.

A SUNDAY AT CLAYTON.

Years ago—not so many—we had the honor of having among our pupils in Oak Institute, one of our Conference schools, a young man and lady, who, in the midst of their scholastic duties which were performed cheerfully and thoroughly, found time to make the preliminary arrangements for being life-long pupils in the school of matrimony. That young man is now the preacher-in-charge of Clayton Circuit, and that young lady presides as queen in the parsonage home in which there are five princes and one blooming princess.

Well, to come to the point, we had been under a promise for about two years to visit the domain of our whilom friends and pupils, and we determined to fulfill that promise on last Sunday. We went down to Clayton on the evening before, and were soon enjoying the royalty of the parsonage home. We always feel at home in a parsonage, especially in one in which we receive such kindnesses heaped upon the occupant of the prophet's chamber by Rev. G. W. Fisher and wife.

We were very much surprised when we found a full congregation in the church on Sunday morning and evening. We had thought that the very inclement weather, together with the ice-bound streets and sidewalks, would prevent the people from going out to church. But such was not the case. Those Clayton people love the church, and they are of the kind that believe in being "instant in season and out of season." The membership is small, but earnest, and loyal. They love their preacher, and give him their co-operation. We had the pleasure of meeting many of our friends and making new ones. It is always a pleasure to visit Clayton.

Clayton has advanced wonderfully in a material way for the last few years. It is now a town of more than twelve hundred people. It has a large cotton mill, a flourishing oil mill, an extensive planing establishment, and a number of first-class stores. Such men as the Hornes, the McCullers, the Barneses, the Barbours, and others, have helped to make Clayton so prosperous. This is the home of Mr. Ashley Horne, so well-known throughout the State as one of its most prosperous and progressive business men, and who is now the President of the North Carolina Agricultural Society. He is enthusiastic over the State Fair, and our people may look out for something good.

They have a fine school building in Clayton and a school of corresponding excellence managed by Professor Williams and wife. They are doing work of a very high grade.

Clayton Circuit is a large one. Like other circuits, it is a something like a shoe-string, extending twenty miles in the direction of Fayetteville. Brother Fisher is much pleased with the work, and as we have said, the people are pleased with him. The reports made show this. Any work will be safe in his hands. His people believe in the Raleigh Christian Advocate. Many of them take it.

We wish that it were in our power to make all over the Conference such visits as the one we made to Clayton. We like to meet the people and the preachers and their families. But the fact that we have both the editorial and business burdens of the paper upon us makes it almost impossible for us to leave the office.

REDEEMING THE TIME.

On the railroads in some parts of our great country, distance is no longer measured by miles, but by hours. Those accustomed to travel can tell how far they have ridden by the number of hours they have been on the train. A ship-building concern in San Francisco recently testified that although the wages of its men had been phenomenally advanced, yet the output from the goods was less than when wages were smaller and the workday longer. A carpenter proposed to work at building a fence for $1.50 per day, and insisted that it would take from three and a half to four days to do the work. He finally agreed to build the fence by the panel, and had it done in two days.

An industrious, energetic housewife rises early, cooks breakfast, sets a large house in order and is ready to rest at eleven o'clock. Many women worry over smaller duties the whole morning.

The above incidents serve to illustrate the truth that our tasks are larger, or smaller, according to the time we require to accomplish them. We often hear a remark like this: "That man has lived more in ten years than most men do in a lifetime." Philipps Brooks debated the question whether he would desire long life or expend his energies in fierce enthusiasm. He chose the latter; to what profit to the world men already know. It is pitiable to see a man take a whole day to do what he might do in half the time. It is dishonest. It is sin. If right requires that a man work, it none the less requires that he work with his might. There is too much to be done to linger long over one task. Get done with what you have in hand as quickly as possible. Something else is waiting for you. If you are afraid to do more than you think it is your duty to do, you are, and must ever remain, an unprofitable servant. Many coveted positions are filled by others only because you spent all your time on little things, and are not through with that small duty when a larger one calls you. Have regard to the injunction, "Never be unemployed," and take heed just as surely to that other, "Never be triflingly employed." Seest thou a man diligent in his business? He shall stand before kings."

CAN WE AFFORD IT?

Editor Johnson, of Charity and Children, gives the circulation of the religious papers in South Carolina, and with very commendable zeal in putting forth every fact which illustrates the strength of his church, says: "We have not the statistics for North Carolina, but we should not be surprised if the circulation of Baptist papers in this State (North Carolina) is equal to that of all other religious papers combined."

Now, Brother Johnson, the only fault we find with your statement is that it is true. At least, we are afraid that it is true.

The papers of the Missionary Baptist Church in North Carolina have a circulation of nearly twenty thousand. There are only two Methodist papers in the State—the North Carolina Christian Advocate, and this paper. The former, representing the territory west of Greensboro, has about 5,000 subscribers; the latter, representing the territory east of Greensboro, has about 6,000 subscribers. We will not count an extra 150. This makes about 11,000 subscribers for our papers. The Recorder, with its 8,500 or 9,000, the North Carolina Baptist and Charity and Children, with their combined circulation of about 10,000, as we have heard, make a fine showing for the Baptists.

We congratulate them, but at the same time we give notice that Editor Johnson cannot much longer say that the Baptists support their paper better than the Methodists support theirs. We are on the war-path. Editor Blair, of the North Carolina Christian Advocate, is rigged out in full paint and feather for a large increase in circulation for his paper, and we believe that he is succeeding. As for the Raleigh Christian Advocate, we will not say that we are "beating the bushes" for new subscribers. There is no need of that. The non-subscribers are out in the open—and plenty of them. By the last of March we propose to capture a large part of them, and then we will "beat the bushes."

We Methodists believe in being in the front rank in every movement, and we are determined to make it possible for any to say truthfully that the percentage of Methodists who take their church paper is as great as that of any denomination in the State. Our zeal is not based primarily upon mere denominational pride and competition, but upon the desire to place the power of the church paper in as many homes as possible.

Shall we succeed? We believe that we will. Our laymen are in earnest. What story shall we tell of our success by May 1st?

In the meantime watch the District record week by week.

North Carolina Methodism.

Rev. W. A. Forbes desires us to state that his post-office address is Benson, N. C., instead of Buie's Creek, N. C.

Rutherford College has now on roll 250, an unusually large enrollment; indeed, the largest in the history of the college.

We are glad to know that Hon. W. H. P. Jenkins, who was seriously hurt a few days ago by being thrown from his buggy, is rapidly improving.

The annual meeting of the Woman's Home Mission Society of the North Carolina Conference will be held at Selma, N. C., April 30 to May 4.

We acknowledge an invitation to attend the sixty-ninth anniversary of the Philomathesian and Euzelian Literary Societies of Wake Forest College, Friday, February 12th, 1904.

Rev. C. M. Lance has begun his work with great enthusiasm. He writes that he has a good people to serve and that they have already begun to prepare for the District Conference.

A pleasant note from Rev. R. B. Clark, who has taken work in the Western North Carolina Conference, has been received. He reports a rich field for work and results in his present charge.

The following appreciated invitation has reached us: 1879—1904.—Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Jno. R. Brooks at home on Thursday evening, February 4th, from eight until eleven, Louisburg, North Carolina.

Rev. R. L. Davis, who is nothing if not energetic and progressive, has sent us the Annual Pastoral Letter which he distributes among his members. it makes good reading for every Methodist.

Methodism in the State, and the town of Tarboro, have sustained a distinct loss in the death of Dr. J. W. Jones, who died on the 28th inst., at the residence of his son in Tarboro. Dr. Jones was a true man in every respect, and he will be missed.

We have received from Bros. W. I. Wright of Ingold, N. C., and W. N. Brothers, of Rose Dale, N. C., a large number of renewals and new subscribers. These brethren believe in the Advocate and their people. They are laymen, but they believe in helping the preacher. In fact, we receive material help from the laymen from all over the Conference. They will all accept our thanks.

Rev. W. A. Betts, of the South Carolina Conference is publishing in booklet form "Experience of a Confederate Chaplain." The "Chaplain" is our dear Dr. A. D. Betts, of the North Carolina Conference. This book will be a rich one, and we await its publication with interest. Thousands in North Carolina love to read everything Dr. Betts writes, and his "Experiences" will have a large sale. By the way, there is no use of waiting until a man dies to say good things of him. Why should not the Advocate receive for publication some personal estimates of our good Dr. Betts? Who will be the first?

We take the following from the Southport Standard: "Great interest is being manifested in the protracted meeting which began at the Methodist Church last Sunday. Services are being held both morning and evening, and at the evening services, especially, the building is always filled with people. The pastor, Rev. Euclid McWhorter, is being assisted by Evangelist E. C. Glenn, of Greensboro, N. C., who preaches at both the morning and evening services. Mr. Glenn is a forceful and eloquent speaker, and the prospects are that his zealous work will result in the accomplishment of much good.

Publisher's Column.

A CORRECT MAILING LIST.

For two successive weeks we urged every subscriber whose label is wrong to write us at once. We have received a few correction orders, and we are congratulating ourselves that our list is about correct. For surely after our notice published so prominently on the first page, it should be difficult to find now any one who claims that his label is wrong. In the meantime there are on our list thousands of dates which ought to be changed at once through a renewal of subscription. Will you not attend to this at once? Let us make a correct mailing list to mean a mailing list whose labels show subscriptions paid up. Send in your renewal.

AS IT STANDS.

Raleigh District	25
Fayetteville District	14
Washington District	13
Elizabeth Cit District	13
Rockingham District	8
Warrenton District	13
New Bern District	9
Wilmington District	19
Durham District	4

The Conference has requested each District to furnish 150 new subscribers by May 1, 1904. The report for each District will be made weekly in this column. The District reporting the largest number of new subscribers by May 1, 1904, will receive a present not costing less than $25.00, to be applied as the Conference thinks best.

THOSE NAMES.

We are highly gratified at the way the preachers are sending us the names asked for. We believe that they are determined to carry out the resolution adopted at Conference looking to increasing the circulation of the paper. We cannot afford to fail in this enterprise. There are some preachers who are on a new work. Of course we cannot expect them to send at once names asked for. We would urge them to send the names as soon as possible.

OUR SEED OFFER.

We propose to make again our seed offer. The list will be printed next week. In the meantime, those who send in their names after February 3, will be entitled to the seed. So send in your renewal, and if you desire the seed, let us know and we will send the seed later.

We were pleased to receive a call last week from Mr. H. M. McAlister, the energetic and successful Business Manager of the Presbyterian Standard. Mr. McAlister has a keen eye not only for business, but for fine literary points. In his addresses to Synods and Presbyteries he shows the force of an orator as well as the acumen of a Business Manager.

The Regents of the American Society of Religious Education have called the Tenth National Congress of Religious Education to be held in the city of Washington, D. C., March 1, 2, and 3, 1904. This is a very important occasion and will awaken great interest. Rev. H. M. Blair, editor of the North Carolina Christian Advocate, and G. H. Cornelson, of Concord, are the Senators from North Carolina.

The Bible depot at Shanghai, China, distributed in 1902 1,084,000 books and had orders for 100,000 more copies than could be filled. In the light of these figures, the duty of Christians in this country toward the American Bible Society is plain.—Wesleyan Advocate.

NORTH CAROLINA
EPWORTH LEAGUE
FOR CHRIST AND THE CHURCH
DEVOTIONAL. CHARITABLE. LITERARY. EVANGELICAL.
CONFERENCE

EDITED BY REV. H. B. ANDERSON.

An Epworth Leaguer's Soliloquy.

BY ZELMA F. MOORE.

To go, or not to go, that is the question:
Whether 'tis nobler in the maid to travel
To the great national Conference this year,
Or just remain at home in peace and quiet,
And by remaining end it?—To go, to go—
No more; and by deciding say we end
The question, and the thousands of discussions
This mind is heir to—'tis a consummation
Devoutly to be wished. To go, to go—
To go; perchance to talk—aye, there's the rub;
For in that Conference what thoughts may come,
When once we're in the spirit of it all,
Must make us talk: there's the respect
That makes our hesitation so long-lived;
For who would bear to just sit silent there,
To hear fine speeches, the wise man's good advice,
The pangs of dispriz'd work, the League's delay,
The idleness of members, and the spurns
That patient merit of the unworthy takes,
When she herself might tell her hopes and fears
And get assistance? Who would stay away
To read and hear of its success through life,
But that the dread of saying something there—
Before that large assembly, at which none
Can well remain silent—puzzles the will,
And makes us rather want to stay at home
Than go to talk of that we know not of?
Thus conscience does make cowards of us all;
And thus the native hue of resolution
Is sicklied o'er with the pale cast of doubt;
And Conferences of great pith and moment,
With this regard, my purpose turn away,
And cause me to stay away.—Soft you, now!
The wondrous Conference! Leaguers, I come! in vain
I have tried to stay away.

Supreme Missionary Motives.

Obedience to God and love to man for Christ's sake are the twin screws which propel the missionary enterprise. It is well enough to let lesser motives have their place, but it is both unwise and unscriptural to depend upon these for spiritual voltage. Just now great pressure is brought to bear upon Epworth Leaguers to give to the missionary cause. Clear and distinct, my young friends, rings out the voice of our risen Lord as he stands between the open tomb and the open gates of glory, a point at which his humiliation ends and his exultation begins as he grasps the imperial scepter, he said: "All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth. Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature." In the face of the manifold discouragements of mission work this motive of obedience never loses its grip. It holds with a sweet and constant grasp that steadies while impels.

This with the love of man for Christ's sake is the sustaining motive of every intelligent servant of the Lord, and holds him steady to the mightiest task that ever was set for men. Epworthians, do not disregard the lesser motives, but let the supreme motive of missions stir your zeal in the cause of your Lord and Master.

The League will arise and shine—
When we all do our best.
When the Holy Spirit leads.
When we have higher ideals.
When reading circles multiply.
When all the pastors take hold.
When hard work becomes a joy.
When presidents forget to scold.
When social climes are discarded.
When General Apathy is expelled.
When business is done in business ways.
When jerkiness gives place to steadiness.
When cabinet meetings are held regularly.
When petty contentions are thrown overboard.
When the devotional meeting becomes a Pentecost.

A contemporary observes that the devil is the most obliging person in the world. He does not stand much on his dignity. If he cannot get the privilege of preaching he is willing to play the organ, lead the choir, or serve on some important committee. He is not particular where he serves, only so he has a chance to get in his work.

Accepting the above as true, let us ask ourselves the question if such zeal marks our efforts in the cause of the Lord? Are we not far too easily switched off the track of duty and privilege by a want of sympathy or an adverse criticism? If we can't do what we wish to do are we willing to take an humbler place, and there push forward the work of the Master with all diligence?

Lesson for February 7, 1904.

The Sabbath in Capernaum.

Mark 1:21-34.

Golden Text. He laid his hands on every one of them, and healed them. Luke 4:40.

Jesus had now fairly entered upon what is generally known as his Galilean ministry, which covered about two years. For the center of his operations he chose Capernaum, and our lesson tells us how he spent a Sabbath in that city, so divinely favored by the Master's presence and yet so blind to its high privilege.

Jesus in the Synagogue.—On the Sabbath day, Jesus always turned his footsteps toward the synagogue. On this particular Sabbath, he not only attended the service, but exercised the prerogative which belonged to every male adult worshiper of expounding the Holy Scriptures. The hearers in the synagogue were astonished at his teaching, we are told, for Jesus taught as one that had authority, and not as the scribes.

This means that Jesus spoke as the one Divine Teacher, conscious within himself of possessing the truth in perfect knowledge, and of being able to communicate that truth, whereas the scribes were mere human interpreters, whose words carried no weight because they were simply the echo of the thoughts of others. The scribes, as we know from both sacred and secular history, were literalists. They concerned themselves only with the letter of the law, but its spiritual interpretation was far beyond their power to give.

The Man With an Unclean Spirit.—Among the hearers of Jesus was one of those sorely afflicted beings, described in the Scriptures as possessed with an unclean spirit. The physiological aspects of this malady correspond very closely with some forms of epilepsy or insanity as seen in our own time. The Scriptures, however, clearly imply the agency of evil spirits in producing the terrible state in which these sufferers found themselves.

The important point for us to observe is that this man with an unclean spirit who came to the synagogue on that Sabbath day when Jesus taught the people, was healed of his malady. Again the people marveled, for they were not prepared for this demonstration of power. Yet it was the natural and the fitting sequence to the teaching of Jesus, and had his hearers fully appreciated the divine quality of the words to which they had just listened, they would not have been surprised at the miracle which Jesus wrought.

A Gracious Ministry of Healing.—The Master's merciful work was not ended when he left the synagogue on that Sabbath day. Peter's wife's mother lay ill in the home which he entered, and soon she was cured of her sickness and able to minister to the wants of Jesus and his four disciples.

And still the work of healing was not ended, for when the cool of the evening had come, a great multitude of people afflicted with all sorts of diseases were brought to Jesus, and he healed them all.

Suggestive Thoughts.—This Sabbath in Capernaum was a typical one as we may well infer that Jesus spent every Sabbath, as he did this one, in divine worship and in gracious ministry upon others. Herein is a noble example for all his followers.

We cannot exaggerate the importance of the teachings of Jesus. They are our safest and our best guide amid all the perplexities of life. Let us ever seek to know the mind of the Master upon every subject with which we deal in life, and when we have found what his teaching is, let us follow faithfully what we have learned from him as the final and authoritative word.

Begin Again

Things that are worth the winning
Must ever at cost be won,
A feeble wish can accomplish naught,
And see no great thing done;
They that are wise press onward,
They who are strong ascend;
So be not stilled by a great defeat
But begin again, my friend.

What is a fall or a failure
But a call to try again?
Have some short roads to success been closed?
There are others that still remain;
Therefore be yet brave-hearted,
And faithful to reach the end,
And the crown is best that was hard to win;
So begin again, my friend.

—Marianne Farningham.

A DROP OF BLOOD.

Taken from a person who has for a few months used Vernal Palmettona (formerly known as Vernal Saw Palmetto Berry Wine) is pure and free from taint.

We say a few months, because it takes time to overcome the effect of years of careless living in the matter of diet, sleep and dissipation. This great one dose a day remedy gives back quick relief from indigestion, constipation, dyspepsia, headache and all kinds of kidney, liver and stomach trouble, but as the impurities entered the system slowly, so they must be gotten rid of.

Poisons and disease germs creep into the blood through the retention of impure waste matter in the stomach and bowels and through inactive kidneys and a lazy liver. Vernal Palmettona gives gentle aid to the weakened digestive organs. Gradually they gain strength and are finally able to perform their natural functions without any help. When this stage is reached use a little judgment in what you eat and drink and you will have no more trouble. You will be able to do twice as much work as before, whether it is done with your hands or brain.

Perhaps you have read this kind of talk before and have found the remedy talked about to be a flat failure in your case. If so, you are prejudiced. Knowing that such a prejudice often exists, we give every one a chance to try Vernal Palmettona before they buy. It is on sale at all leading drug stores, but you can try it free of expense. Write us for a free sample bottle to-day. If it does you good, it is easy to step into a drug store and get a full-size bottle. The druggist will not try to sell you something else. If he does, he is an exception, for druggists know that Vernal Palmettona is the best remedy of its kind in existence. Vernal Remedy Co., 538 Seneca Building, Buffalo, N. Y.

"Give your blood a cleaning." Rheumacide clears out all the impurities that make you ill. Ask your druggist.

Unusual.

A box came to us this evening, January 13, as the result of an exhibition held in the basement of the Christian Church in Durham, N. C., by Masters John W. Cox, Emmett R. Aiken, John A. Uzzle, Lewis Sasser, George Ellis, Willie Cox, Will Ellis, and Misses Evelyn Walker and Jennie Uzzle. The oldest boy is 13 years old. We appreciate this box most highly. Come to see us, boys and girls. We are glad of your well-wishes. The boxes continue to come. We are still having Christmas.

Drop Us a Line.

Bro. J. H. M. Giles promised at Conference to drop us a line to tell us how he did things in his collections for the Orphanage. He is one of our most successful co-workers. We are looking out for his plan. Meanwhile let others drop us a line on that subject. We will be glad to publish them, if we have room in our corner. Dr. Ivey is generous. We always welcome suggestions. The fact is, we like good advice, and always take it when our judgment approves of it, or when it agrees with our own notions. We sometimes ask the opinions of others to find out whether they agree with our own. We are well satisfied with ourselves when they do.

Epworth Leagues and the Orphanage.

The Epworth Leagues have not taken our Orphanage to heart much. Only a few have done anything for it, so far. "There are so few of them," say you? All the worse for the church. "The church has not taken the League to heart much." That is so. It may be, if you will take this work in hand—a work so practical, so near the people's heart, so popular with everybody—that the church will take you into its heart. The Oxford Orphan Asylum and the Goldsboro Orphanage, have done more to popularize Masonry and Odd Fellowship than anything else in North Carolina. Let the live Leagues take the matter in hand and see what will be the result. Try the supporting of an orphan by sending us $5 a month.

A GREAT INVENTION
AND DISCOVERY—A GENUINE CURE FOR CATARRH AND DEAFNESS.

A great advance has been made in the successful treatment of catarrh and deafness by the discovery of Rhinol, the catarrh specific, and the invention by Dr. J. R. Blosser, of Philadelphia, of a device or appliance (to be patented) which for the first time makes it possible to apply an effective remedy to all parts of the head and the external and internal ear.

Rhinol is both a direct local and a constitutional specific for catarrh of the head, throat and lungs, and for deafness, head noises, etc. It reaches every spot and speck that is ever affected by catarrh and not only heals the local catarrh, but by its absorption into the blood, expels every taint of the disease from the system. It breaks up the habit of "always taking cold," thus removing the cause that produces and keeps up catarrh. It is the only remedy that does this and hence is the only positive, radical, permanent cure for catarrh.

A sample of Rhinol, to demonstrate its splendid effect, together with full particulars as to the ear appliance, will be sent absolutely free to any sufferer who will write to Dr. J. R. Blosser, 415 Heed Bldg., Philadelphia, Pa.

FREE

Dr. Marshal Beaty, the Nose, Throat and Lung Specialist, of Cincinnati, recently completed a series of trial treatments of his Antiseptic Medicated Air Cure on one hundred patients; some were consumptives in the lowest emaciated stages, others of a catarrhal, asthmatic and bronchial nature. The record of each patient kept by the Doctor as the home treatment progressed, was very interesting. The most remarkable and gratifying features in connection with the treatment was the rapid healing of the cavities and tubercles of the lungs and the raw, ulcerated surface of the mucous membrane of the entire breathing organs. This is phenomenal, and ample proof that this great discovery has solved the problem of a permanent cure for the thousands of sufferers from all catarrhal, bronchial and lung troubles. In his account of it, the Doctor says: "No germ of Catarrh, Asthma, Bronchitis or Consumption can live under the action of this powerful antiseptic. When taken internally and breathed and inhaled into the air passages, bronchial tubes and cells of the lungs, the germs are at once destroyed and expelled from the system, and the disease is arrested and cured by removing the cause."

RADIUM

RADIOS RADIOS RADIOS

Stupendous Offer Made by a Well-known Philadelphia Firm.

RADIOS RADIOS RADIOS

Thousands of Persons in all Sections of the Country Have Been Healed by This Wonderful Discovery.

DEAR FRIENDS:—Don't read this advertisement if you expect to get something for nothing, because you won't. We have a good article and we want money for it. Be sensible.

If you had something that was worth a dollar would you give it free? When you read an advertisement where you get something for nothing, that something is either no good or else they are up to some "that flam" game.

We are not running a patent medicine business, so rest easy on that subject.

We do not know the word failure—never have and never will. Have devoted a diligent class of years to the ones we want to reach. We benefit men and women in all walks of life. Men and women who today are before the public as matured characters have had our combined and the benefit of our experience. It is a 20th century product, one that will be more appreciated the more it is tried.

"Fresh from the bath and as good as she looks." This old saying describes our clients to a T. We have a VITALIZER—no superficial medicine. It tones the system, centralizes weakness of all descriptions—makes an even temperament all over the body, and in fact it makes a new man and woman. Radios will within a few years be a part of every hospital and surgical institution of our land. No germ can stand the force of contact with this new discovery. Rheumatism and debility flee before it. The mighty force of the turbulent waters of Niagara are in comparison with this new product as an old-fashioned CANDLE is to RADIUM.

One person writes: "Why did not some one discover it before?"

Another says: "So simple, it is hardly credible."

From the far West comes the unsolicited report: "A God-send to humanity."

Walcott Christie, of New York, the well-known author, says: "My success, in a great measure, is due to 'Radios.'"

Weakness of certain organs is responsible for all diseases. We build up your system so that a disease is an impossibility. If your digestive organs are out of order, if your blood is impure, if you can't sleep, eat or attend to business, I will cure you and guarantee to do so. I will give you a written guarantee. Could you ask anything more?

Marriages.

ROZIER—REGAN.—Stephen Rozier and Miss May Regan were married at the residence of the bride's father, Joseph Regan, on December 23, 1904. Both of Robeson County. Z. Paris officiated.

ROGERS—FUSSELL. — At the residence of the bride's father, Mr. Jas. H. Fussell, Rose Hill, N. C., on November 22, 1903, Mr. J. E. Rogers to Miss Lucy Fussell, Rev. W. D. Sasser officiating.

Obituaries.

Obituaries containing not more than one hundred and fifty words are inserted free of charge. Those sending obituaries containing over one hundred and fifty words are requested to send with the obituary one cent for every word in excess. Unless this rule is observed the obituary must be cut down to the proper limit.

JEROME.—Little Juanita Douglas, infant daughter of James C. and Leonna D. Jerome, was born November 14, 1903, and died January 3rd.

She was sent to gladden our hearts for a short while, then plucked as a bud from earth to heaven. Her redeemed spirit escapes the sorrows of sinful life, and goes back to God, leaving the fond parents in deep sorrow. But they know they have a family begun in heaven.

"Thou art gone precious darling,
Never more canst thou return;
Thou shalt sleep a peaceful slumber
'Till the resurrection morn."

Farewell, my little sister; if I am faithful I shall meet and greet you in the better land.

MYRTLE.

GILBERT.—Nathan Gilbert was born July 17, 1857, and died at his home three miles from Shady Grove Church on Jones Circuit, December 26, 1903.

He married a most excellent lady January 27, 1876, who, with the seven children, survive him. About eighteen years ago, under the ministry of that deeply pious man, Rev. A. D. Betts, he united with the M. E. Church, South, and lived a beautiful Christian life till God called him. He will be greatly missed at Shady Grove. He was an officer there, and faithful to perform his church duties, and was at the house of God during religious services unless providentially hindered from attending.

At the graveyard near his dwelling we laid him to rest. His loved ones are in great sorrow, but are resigned to the will of God.

Good-bye till we meet again.

D. C. GEDDIE.

ROBERTS—Miss Candace Roberts was born December 2, 1826, and died at her home in Durham County, January 7, 1904, having lived all her life at the place of her birth.

She was never married. Years ago she took a motherless nephew and cared for him till he was grown and they were not separated till death came for her.

In early life she joined Mt. Bethel Methodist Church and remained a true member there till death.

Sister Roberts was a true Christian.

She delighted to be at God's house. Her conversation was always sweet. She was happy and desired all others to be. She did not complain if things did not go as she desired.

One who has lived long in the community told me that she had never heard a person speak evil of sister Roberts.

Her death was sudden but not unprepared.

The Lord bring the brother, sister and relatives to her in heaven.

J. B. THOMPSON, P. C.

WINSTEAD.—Again death has aimed high and smote a prince among men.

Jas. M. Winstead departed this life January 9th, after a brief but painful illness.

He had gone in and out among friends and relatives for about thirty years in his quiet, manly way, and had won the confidence, love and esteem of all who knew him.

He was the soul of honor. His integrity was of the very highest order. His father having died while James was but little more than a child, he, being the oldest child, took up the responsibilities of the family. And never did man meet responsibility more bravely and patiently or with greater fidelity than did he.

He was faithful in all things.

He leaves two brothers and a sister, griefstricken under this sore bereavement.

May the Lord, that pitieth like as a father the son whom he loveth, comfort them in this hour.

K. D. HOLMES, P. C.

Roxboro, N. C., Jan. 20, 1904.

LUCAS.—John Claude Lucas, son of Dr. and Mrs. W. H. G. Lucas, of White Hall, Bladen County, N. C., was born March 31, 1880, and was killed near the place of his birth August 12, 1903, and was therefore 23 years, 4 months, and 11 days of age. I have known him well since he was 12 years old, and have never known a more promising boy and young man than he was. Quiet and retiring in his disposition, one had to know him well to appreciate his noble qualities. To know him was to admire and to love him. Already he gave promise of taking his place among the leading men of his section, thus following in the footsteps of his ancestors. For six years this writer was the pastor of his father's family, and during those years saw a great deal of the subject of this sketch. We were often together in the family circle, and often were we alone together. For the last three years we have regularly corresponded. During all of our associations I never heard him speak one unkind or unbecoming word. He was true to his friends and considerate of everybody. To his parents he was obedient and respectful, to his brothers and sisters kind and affectionate, and devotedly attached to every member of the family. They are crushed and heartbroken because of his death. He was a regular attendant upon all the services at Soule's Chapel Church, always occupying next to the front seat, and was an attentive hearer. On that fatal August morning, only two or three hours before his awful death, he was with his parents and brothers and sisters at the family altar.

While superintending his business he went to the assistance of two of his men, and while helping them he was instantly killed by a falling tree. His body rests in the graveyard at Soule's Chapel Church. Peace to his memory. I loved him. I now miss him. Father, mother, three sisters, two brothers, and a large circle of friends mourn his seemingly untimely death.

May God give to the stricken family His comforting and sustaining grace.

L. M. CHAFFIN.

ADAMS.—Mrs. M. A. Adams, the beloved President of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, Wilson, N. C., passed from us to her reward on January 8th, 1904. She has been our leader so long that our little Society scarcely knows what to do without her consecrated leadership. We sincerely mourn our loss, but are happy in the belief that it is her gain. Therefore be it resolved by this Society:

1. That we humbly submit to the will of our heavenly Father who is too good and wise to err.

2. We will take up this great work with renewed zeal and fidelity, as his children should, and trust Him for guidance and strength.

3. That we extend to the bereaved family our deepest sympathy in this their great sorrow, and pray God's blessings upon each of them.

4. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, and one to the Raleigh Christian Advocate and Woman's Missionary Advocate for publication; also that they be spread upon the minutes of our Society.

MRS. A. P. TYER,
MRS. W. S. ANDERSON,
MRS. LAT. WILLIAMS,
Committee.

THE DEATH PENALTY.

A little thing sometimes results in death. Thus a mere scratch, insignificant cuts or puny boils have paid the death penalty. It is wise to have Bucklen's Arnica Salve ever handy. It's the best Salve on earth and will prevent fatality, when Burns, Sores, Ulcers and Piles threaten. Only 25 cents at all druggists.

THE VALUE OF THE BELL.

Many of our smaller churches now without a bell would use every effort to procure one did they fully appreciate its value as a church help. There is many a struggling church whose half empty seats are largely owing to the lack of a bell to emphasize its existence. And a thoroughly good bell is not necessarily a matter of any considerable expense. The "Blymyer" bell, made by the Cincinnati Bell Foundry Co., of Cincinnati, Ohio, while very moderate in price, is fully equal in rich purity of tone and resonance to the most expensive bell made. Their catalogue is free, and may contain the germ of new vitality to many a struggling congregation. Send for it.

THE WORLD AS WE SEE IT.

Senator Simmons made a notable speech on the question of the Panama Canal. According to our view, he made a sound speech. In doing so, he showed a robustness and independence of spirit which do great credit to his character as a statesman.

Time generally brings a solution to the most intricate problem. Months ago, Minnie Cox, a colored woman, was in charge of the post-office at Indianola, Mississippi. Through a pressure, which no doubt, was unjust, she was induced to resign. President Roosevelt discontinued the office, and the people were compelled to hire a special carrier and get their mail from a point twenty-five miles distant. The President has just sent to the Senate the nomination of William Martin to be postmaster of the Indianola office. He was one of the bondsmen of Minnie Cox. We presume that the incident is now closed.

There is a certain gentleman whom we meet on the street almost every day. He is a man of affairs. It is part of his life's duty to dive into the small and great events of this restless, wicked world with all its dynamic forces. He has his cares. Blue spectacles are offered to him daily, and doubtless he hears voices calling him into the murky shadows of misanthropic intro-spection.

Yes, he is often tempted to have the "blues." But in rain or shine he meets you with a smile and cheering word. The warmth of his cheer melts the icicles hanging to the eaves of your heart. After having left him you feel as if you had just passed through a patch of May sunshine.

Now this scribe believes that when the true assets of the city of Raleigh shall be computed, it will be found that such a man as we have just been talking about furnishes a large part of the best capital. "Talk happiness. The world is sad enough without your woes."

The beginning of hostilities between Japan and Russia is hourly expected. Japan has severed all diplomatic relations with Russia. Russia has assumed an aggrieved tone and affects to wonder that Japan has acted so hastily before receiving the last note from St. Petersburg. But it is well-known that Russia has delayed the transmission of this note in order that she might have more time in which to prepare for war.

Later.—As we make up the forms the news comes that the Japanese torpedo boats have sunk three Russian warships and that the town of Port Arthur is being bombarded by the Japanese ships.

A silence must now fall on the many who, for several years, have been saying that the United States from the very beginning of the Spanish-Cuban trouble has had no intention of releasing her hold upon Cuba. The annexation of Cuba by the united States has been regarded as a certainty by no small part of our citizenship. But now. For was not the United States flag lowered on Cabanas on last Thursday, and did not the last battalion of United States troops leave the island of Cuba? Yes; the United States has proven its sincerity in its part in the eventful drama of the last few years. But this does not forestall the final event—the annexation of Cuba by the United States. This is the inevitable conclusion. It will come in time.

It is not always safe to subscribe to all the teachings of John G. Woolley, the great temperance orator, or of any other man either, but we venture to say that the following from Mr. Woolley will please the taste and judgment of every true temperance man and woman:

"But a farm is worth little, in itself. And a crop is worth little, in itself. And a house is only the rough outer staging and false-work of the invisible. If a farmer sacrifices his boys to his hogs or his daughters to his orchard, or works his wife to death to raise fine cows, he is a failure and a fool. The secret of good husbandry is as broad as life itself, it is so to work the land as to make the crops better; and so to work the farm as to make his home better; and so to work the home as to make the neighborhood better; and so to work the neighborhood as to make the State better; and so to work the State as to make the nation better, and so to work the nation as to make the world better."

The Legislature of 1866-'67 issued $1,500,000 in bonds to aid in the construction of the W. N. C. R. R. The bonds were secured by a second mortgage on the State's interest in the road. The Legislature of 1877 offered to compromise these bonds by paying twenty-five cents on the dollar. This action was considered justifiable on the ground that the buyers of the bonds paid only about one-fourth of the face value. All the holders of the bonds except the Schaefer Company, of New York, accepted the compromise. The Schaefer Company, debarred from suing for the payment of the bonds by the law which forbids the suing of a State by an individual, transferred ten of the bonds to the University of South Dakota. The State of South Dakota last year sued the State of North Carolina for the payment of these ten bonds. The Supreme Court of the United States decided last week that the State must pay for the bonds, with accumulated interest, amounting to about $27,000. The decision applies only to the bonds held by South Dakota. There are moral features connected with this question which we will not now discuss, as time is necessary for an adequate study of the case.

There is no such thing as perpetual motion in the scientific sense. There can never be such a thing. But if we believe the New York American, Prof. George B. Pegram, of Columbia University, and son of Prof. W. H. Pegram of Trinity College, Durham, has come very near presenting to the world a perpetual motion device discovered by Professor Strutt.

The American describes it as follows: "All behold a slender pendulum of gold swing back and forth at regular intervals of sixty seconds. The Professor explained that the action was caused by the two known rays of radium—the positive and the negative—working upon the gold. One set of rays repelled the gold, while the other overcame the repulsion and attracted it. The pendulum, in a vacuum tube, is attached to a wire running through the glass to the ground. Another wire is attached to the tiny glass and aluminum tube holding the radium, and when the gold touches the radium tube the wires cause a discharge of the attracting ray current, and the pendulum swings back to its former position and then is gradually drawn back again to the tube. Professor Pegram made this interesting mention to illustrate his lecture on 'The Year's Work With Radium.'"

There is one man in Raleigh who has become convinced that a public speaker places himself in a peculiar sense at the mercy of his hearer. This man is one of our most honored State officials—a Presbyterian of whom Calvin might well be proud, and a Southerner of Southerners. He has an able address on a Bible theme, and it is receiving a State-wide reputation.

This brother had just delivered this address to a large audience of young people, and was sitting by his fire, doubtless chewing the sweet end of the reflection that he had closed up the duties of the day in a commendable manner. The telephone bell rang. Through the night there came to him the raucous voice of one at a newspaper office who was "writing up" the address. The telephone caller longed to get the sentiments "straight." He loathed all misinterpretation and misquotation. There were three points on which information was desired. What do you suppose they were?

1. "Am I correct in understanding you to say that the government of the Roman Catholic Church is the ideal government and this church has done more good than all the Protestant churches combined?"

2. "Am I right in understanding you to say that Stonewall Jackson brought on the Civil War?"

3. "Did you say that a certain Bible character actually wore no socks?"

It is no wonder that our good Presbyterian brother was almost agasp when he put the receiver in place and frantically set to work to put an end to the wild career of that "write up," which was only feverishly waiting to make a sensation and wreck a reputation.

Cracks in Our Cistern

J. MARVIN CULBRETH.

At our last Annual Conference, Bishop Candler commended a certain pastor for effecting the transfer of a number of memberships from his charge to another, with a loss to the church comparatively small. The incident points a warning finger to an evil that has too long been allowed to menace the integrity of our communion. While the evil remains, we shall be continually losing members, in part to other denominations, in larger part to the big, unfriendly world.

Every pastor who is possessed of any experience at all knows that there is a class of people who do not properly estimate the worth of church affiliations. With many of this class it is a matter of indifference whether they retain their membership in the church or not. So when they move from one place to another, their church letters, instead of being their first thought, are forgotten altogether. In the new home they are approached by the pastor of the local church, and asked to transfer their membership. Instances are rare indeed in which this objection is not immediately offered: 'We don't know how long we'll be here. We may not like this place, and may go back where we came from before long." No argument convinces them, no persuasion is effective. And it is noted by careful observers that few of these people actually return to the places whence they came. Most of them stay in one place, at least two years, some as long as six. The next move carries them into a strange community.

The first bad result from this condition is that many really effective members become estranged from the church. They do not know the church, the church does not know them. They lose interest. Back at the home church they are lost sight of; their names are dropped. They are again adrift in the world as though they had never known the love of God; "wandering stars," "clouds without moisture." The children of these people grow up without any well-defined convictions, and will join one church as readily as another. With the parents themselves, faith becomes rather a matter of convenience than of persuasion. Indeed, a false pride makes them hesitate to take again the vows they have once thrown to the winds; and while they hesitate, the proselyter gets in his work.

In the nature of the case, only one remedy seems to be at hand to cure this evil. The church itself should determine that its communcants shall hold their membership in the charges within whose bounds they live; and pastors should be required to make such changes, without being requested to do so, as would be necessary to fulfill this requirement. In other words, it ought to be the duty of every pastor to furnish certificates for all who leave his charge and enter another, without waiting to be asked to do so. The assumption that every pastor knows his congregation and keeps himself informed as to the movements of its members, is necessary, of course, to make the plan practicable.

At the same time that many were, in this way, being saved to the church, Methodism would conserve her energies in another particular. There are those who save themselves from being classed with the offenders just mentioned only to fall under an accusation more damaging than that directed against the first class. These, too, get up out of the land of their kindred and go into another country. They, also, object to having their names transferred to the register of the local church. They so love the old home church, there are such memories associated with it, they have such solicitude for its welfare, that no argument is strong enough to get them to change their membership. Granting that they are sincere, it is nevertheless easily apparent that they are mistaken. Without identifying themselves with the local church, they can give but inferior support to it at best. Unquestionably the support they give the home church is even less satisfactory, because it is almost entirely a consideration of dollars apart from personal presence. They do their best at neither place. The strain of the double service causes a waste of energy, then weakness, then growing indifference. It is impossible, this serving two masters; and we would just as well learn it once for all. But what if many of this class are not sincere! What if some of them conceal behind professions of loyalty to the mother church a niggardly desire to be taxed where the tax rate is lowest? The assessment, at Sardis, forsooth, is not so large as it would be at Sarepta! Loyalty to the old church, with its limited opportunities and its comparatively small undertakings, does not require so much of a man as would loyalty to a larger church, with a larger activity and demanding considerably more revenue. Imagine a man's being permitted to live in town and pay taxes as though he lived in the country? Verily "the children of this world are wiser in their generation than the children of light."

Of course, the remedy suggested would meet with positive resistance at the hands of many laymen and some few pastors. But people may be taught that the good of the church, as well as their own highest interests, must not be subordinated to whims of indifference, sentiment, or avarice. Our church determines to what conference a resident, local, supernumerary, or superannuated preacher shall belong. Might it not also, without transcending its authority, determine that a layman's membership shall be within the bounds of the charge in which he lives?

Bits of Thought on Prohibition.

D. H. TUTTLE.

Temptation seen is stronger by far than temptation heard of. (Gen. 3.) Apply this to open saloon and blind tiger.

* * *

White supremacy stands a poor chance and makes a poorer show on saloon streets or at saloon counters. Is racial superiority worth anything then? To me, all liquor coons look and act alike.

* * *

The old soak will hunt for liquor, and if able, will buy a jug-full. The man or boy who has not formed the appetite will do neither. The open saloon entices to the creation of appetite. A friend from Kansas says: "One comforting fact with us, that we have young men and women now coming to their majority who have never seen a saloon—its all history with them."

* * *

The work of Prohibition is not to regulate the drinking of the individual, but to prohibit the legalized traffic—to make the seller and buyer alone responsible for their acts. "No license" means that the liquor buyer and seller are both in the path of the sneak-thief. It requires a lower order of manhood to patronize the outlawed blind-tiger than to patronize the licensed saloon.

* * *

The more dangerous a thing is the less convenient it ought to be. Powder, dynamite and gasoline are stored away to themselves at a safe distance from other property. All intoxicants ought to be treated in like manner, and sold only under the sign of the skull and cross-bones—they are too dangerous for indiscriminate handling.

* * *

Worldly-wise politicians said, a few years past, to men who wanted to sell liquor: "Give us revenue for educational purposes, and you can have license to sell." The bargain was made, and we have had mental training on blood money. Moral training in such league invites divine curse. Against this enemy that came in like a flood, God raised up a standard: A noble woman introduced the teaching of scientific temperance into the public schools—the evils of intemperance on the human organism were clearly shown. Result: A generation of boys and girls have grown to man and womanhood, and public sentiment has become strong enough to sweep saloons away in most communities—the open-eyed tiger is being knocked into a blind one from which all have much better chances of escape. Thus hath God made the covetousness of man to praise him by making the public schools that patriotic (?) saloon-keepers were so willing to support one of the chiefest instruments of destruction to their business.

* * *

Henceforth and forever in the "Old North State," woe-betide the political party that would seek to roll itself into power on a whiskey barrel, or woe-betide the political candidate who espouses the saloon cause for success. Selah!

Methodist Baptism in North Carolina.

A. D. BETTS.

I trust our Methodist Protestant brethren are "diligently intent and exhort parents" to baptize their children, as we promised to do. I have not their statistics.

I am glad our Western North Carolina Conference brethren report 1,646 infant and 2,371 adult baptisms for 1903.

Some in the North Carolina Conference must have neglected the children. We report only 878 infant and 2,096 adult baptisms.

The North Carolina Conference received 2,165 on profession of faith, and the Western North Carolina Conference received 4,832.

God grant that 1904 may witness more conversions, larger accessions and many more infant baptisms. I believe when parents prayerfully give their children to God in baptism and faithfully teach them, they may expect their early conversion.

Tenth National Congress of Religious Education.

The Regents of the American Society of Religious Education have called the Tenth National Congress of Religious Education, to be held in the city of Washington, D. C., March 1, 2, and 3, 1904. The ministerial associations of the city have appointed committees to assist in perfecting arrangements.

The purpose of the Congress will be to consider what has been done and what more may be done to disseminate Bible truth for spiritual profit. The theme will be "The Bible in the Spiritual Life." This will be divided under several heads and treated with reference to the individual Christian, the family, the Sunday-school, the pulpit, and the college. The all-important topic of "Teacher Training" will be presented by a commission of seven educators who are eminently equipped for the service. The various topics will be presented in carefully prepared papers by gentlemen of national reputation, and these will be discussed by the delegates. The treatment of the themes will furnish a most thorough and comprehensive survey of the entire subject, immensely profitable to all who hear.

Several railroads have offered one and one-third fare to delegates who pay full fare going and receive a certificate from the agent where the ticket is purchased, and this certificate, endorsed by the Secretary of the Congress, will secure one-third rate returning. It is expected that all roads will grant the same concession.

There is a general invitation to ministers and laymen to become delegates to the Congress. It is desired that each political division should be represented by twice as many as there are representatives in the lower House of the United States Congress. The Regents have appointed two in each State, called Senators, to assist in securing delegates and in awakening interest in the Congress. Names should be sent to them or direct to the Secretary, Rev. J. E. Gilbert, D. D., Washington, D. C., who will, upon request, furnish fuller information on all points and send credentials with the completed program. The Senators from North Carolina are Revs. H. M. Blair and G. H. Cornelison.

The Old Time Preacher.

REV. R. H. WHITAKER.

Sixty years ago, Methodist preachers rode on horse-back and carried their Bibles, hymn books, disciplines, and a few articles of clothing in saddlebags. Most preachers had appointments every day in the month, and circuits were larger than districts are now. On a preacher's first round, on a new circuit, he so distributed his clothing as that he would find a change once or twice a week, as he went around; by which arrangement he did not have to carry many with him; and thus he had more room in his saddlebags to carry Bibles, hymnbooks, and disciplines, for his people. My father's house was one of the places where a change of clothes was made monthly. The preacher did not always spend the night there; but after changing clothing, he would move on to some other place to hold a prayer-meeting perhaps, and go still further on towards the next appointment, after holding such meeting, before stopping to rest. All around the circuit he had these changing places; and, as the old-time school teacher boarded around among his scholars, so the old-time preacher had his washing done around among his people. In those days the preachers did not wear collars, but, instead, they wore white handkerchiefs folded and neatly tied around the neck, which, I expect, were more comfortable and did not soil so easily as do linen collars nowadays. I remember how much pains my mother used to take in properly folding and pressing those neckties; especially how careful she was to have them snowy white. And seeing that, coupled with the anxiety she manifested with reference to the preacher's comfort, generally, I had the impression made upon my mind that the preacher was no ordinary individual; but that he represented Christ; and that his coming was truly a visit of the Master himself. And so great was my reverence for him, I felt, as he laid his hand upon my head and blessed me, that heaven surely could not be very far away.

I fear that the children of this day do not have that reverence for the preacher that I had; and, I fear, also, that parents are not as careful as they should be to impress the minds of their children with the sacredness of spiritual things; for, it is a sad fact, that in many places, neither the preacher nor the gospel he preaches, impresses the children to the extent of making them understand that God's house is a sacred place, and he who stands up to preach the gospel, is the ambassador of Christ, bringing to them a message of salvation. I say all this because, in many places, children, and young people as well, who ought to know better, do not seem to have any more respect for God's house than if it were a theatre. This certainly would not be so if proper views had been instilled into the children at home by the parents. But I am wandering.

Coming back to the olden time: in my imagination, I hear my mother singing a very sweet song, the words and tune of which I well remember, though I have not heard it in fifty years. It was full of pathos, yet full of praise; and I could but wonder why the tears stood in her eyes, while she sang. One time she said, seeing that I was looking earnestly at her: "I love to sing that old song, because my mother used to sing it when I was a girl. It is one of Skidmore's songs." And then she told me a great deal about the preacher Skidmore; and, taking down a well worn little book, she remarked, "this is Skidmore's Selections;" and, for a while, as I leaned upon her lap and listened, she sang so sweetly snatches of those old gospel melodies, which, in the early days of Methodism, melted stony hearts into submission to Christ, and cheered and invigorated the faith of the believer.

That old song is living in memory now, just as my grandmother sang it to my mother a hundred years ago, and as she sang it to me near seventy years ago. What a beautiful thought is contained in Paul's injunction to Timothy: "Continue thou in the things which thou hast learned, and hast been assured of, knowing of whom thou hast learned them." Yes, "remember that your grandmother Lois taught your mother Eunice, and your mother Eunice taught you: so that from a child you have known the holy Scriptures which are able to make you wise unto salvation through faith in Jesus Christ."

Of course, I never saw Lewis Skidmore, yet, in my childhood days I knew him well; nor do I remember my grandmother, but I do remember the old song she sang to my mother. In singing to my mother she sang to me.

I am glad that my mother took so much pains in washing and ironing the preacher's white cravat, for it taught me a lesson which all should learn, that the profoundest respect is due to those who preach the gospel, and the utmost reverence should be given to the worship of God, in the sanctuary. And if parents fail at every other point, in the training of children, they should be careful not to let their children lose faith in Christ, nor in those who preach the gospel. Infidelity is the result of the carelessness of parents, and, I may add, of the inconsistencies of parents, also.

How we children used to be delighted to see the preacher come! True, our delight was heightened by the certainty of having a good supper, cakes and preserves thrown in; but, that was not all. The very fact that a preacher, who sang, prayed, preached, baptized and married people, was at our house, made us feel that we were somehow blest. And we were. I realize that, though then a child, the visit of the man of God at my father's house, sixty years ago, is helping me now.

I don't claim that the old time preacher was a more Godly man than the preacher of this day; nor would I dare assert that he was a better preacher; for, he was not. But, I do contend that the oldtime preacher came nearer up to the Apostolic style, in his presentation of the truths of the gospel. His denunciation of sin, was terrible; his picture of the doom of the lost soul was awful; his arguments to prove that all men were sinners and, without a Savior, all would be eternally lost, were convincing; while the picture which he drew of heaven, when all the redeemed shall be with God, saved eternally, was transporting to the soul that had believed in the name of the only begotten Son of God; and the consequence was, men and women wept, prayed, and shouted at every service. The old-time preachers like the Apostles, were men taken from their fishing boats, so to speak. They had not studied theology, nor did they understand much of what the world is pleased to call science; but, they did read the Scriptures, and believed them to be God's revelation of Himself to the world. They did believe also in the witness of the Spirit; therefore, they emphasized it, and insisted, that it was not only the privilege, but the duty of believers to live in conscious touch with Christ; maintaining that to be a Christian was to have fellowship with God, as with a father; and the soul must be as conscious of that fellowship as the natural child is conscious of being in his earthly father's home, and enjoying that earthly father's love and benefactions.

In my childhood, Methodism was not, by any means, so rich as it now is; but was, as we sometimes say of the farmers who provide well for their families, "well to do."

As I remember, there were but few rich men who were Methodists in those days, and the preachers used more than they do now, such texts as: "It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle, than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God"—"How hardly shall they that have riches enter into the kingdom of God!"—"Go thy way, sell whatsoever thou hast, and give to the poor."—"For the love of money is the root of all evil!"—"They that will be rich, fall into temptation, and a snare, and into many foolish and hurtful lusts which drown men in destruction and perdition;" and they emphasized more than they do now that other text: "No man can serve two masters."

At the risk of being called "old fogy," I maintain that the old time preacher had an advantage the preacher of thi day has not; I mean, "lining the hymn" as it was sung. What magnetism, what power—yea, majesty, I might say— in the old-time congregational singing, when the preacher, by reading two or three lines of his hymn at a time, would make his congregation sing, with the spirit and with the understanding, the lofty and inspiring sentiment of the sermon that was to follow. No wonder that, after singing

"No foot of land do I possess,
No cottage in the wilderness,
A poor wayfaring man,
I lodge awhile in tents below;
Or gladly wander to and fro,
Till I my Canaan gain,"

the preacher was able to make his congregation feel that Christliness is to be like Christ, who was in the world, yet not of the world; had not where to lay His head; and, catching the spirit of the sermon on the danger of riches, how the old-time Methodist could, with fervor, sing:

"Nothing on earth I call my own,
A stranger to the world unknown,
I all their goods despise."

But Methodism is getting rich now, and those old hymns are back numbers; or, if sung at all, sung by a choir of professional singers who make very good music, but so obscure the words as that the congregation can't tell whether it is "Rock of Ages," "Jesus Lover of My Soul," or "Jim Crack Corn," they are singing. And, so far as the spiritual effect upon the congregation is concerned, so the singing is done scientifically and artistically, it don't matter so much with the congregation, what the words are. Thus are the preachers of this day deprived of one of the most powerful helps which the preachers of the olden time used to so great advantage. As a closing remark, I wish to say, that if a sinner will study the Methodist Hymn Book, he will find in it enough of gospel light to lead him to Christ, and enough of gospel strength and wisdom to keep him in the way that leads to life everlasting. And yet, in many Methodist congregations the Methodist Hymn Book is not used.

An Important Meeting.

The Mid-Year Meeting of the Board of Missions this year is pronounced by those who attended it the most helpful and inspiring yet held.

The attendance was larger than heretofore. All the Presiding Elders were present save one, all the District Missionary Secretaries save one, all the clerical members of the Board save one, a majority of lay members, and several brethren of the Conference.

Rev. W. H. Willis, Missionary Secretary of the Western North Carolina Conference, added to the profit of the occasion by his maps, charts and excellent missionary sermon. The addresses of Rev. W. B. Lee, of the Brazil Mission, were instructive and uplifting, as were those also of his co-laborer of the Woman's Board, Miss Mary Pescud.

One of the most encouraging indications was the deep interest manifested in the work, and the spirit of inquiry. Each person present seemed desirous to learn the best possible methods of prosecuting successfully the work.

As one-seventh of the members of the North Carolina Conference were present, it is hoped that the spirit of this meeting will permeate our entire Conference.

R. F. BUMPAS.

Bear in mind that your happiness or your misery is very much of your own making. You cannot create spiritual sunlight any more than you can create the morning star; but you can put your soul where Christ is shining. Keep a clean conscience. Keep a good stock of God's promises within reach. Keep a nightingale of hope in your soul that can sing away the dark hours when they do come.—T. L. Cuyler.

Aurelian Springs.

Dear Editor:—Please allow me a little space in the Advocate. On December 15, leaving a people I had learned to love, we started from Robersonville to a country which we "knew not of." After a cold drive, we stopped for the night in the beautiful and thriving town of Enfield, where we were royally entertained by the mayor of the town and his good wife. Next morning we made our way via Halifax, where we joined wife and children. We were met by Bro. J. C. Butts, who carried us to his home that day, and on to the parsonage at Aurelian Springs Friday, where we were kindly received, and the many good people of the Roanoke Circuit have made us feel at home, and the many tokens of love they are continually bestowing on us bring us under many obligations to them.

The brethren talk about poundings—there has been almost one continual pounding since we came, and last Thursday night, about 7.30 o'clock, the young people of Mt. Tabor Church and this community came in and took possession of the dining-room with arms full of bundles, boxes, and packages, and made us feel like we were in a land of plenty, and among true, kind,and thoughtful people. May the good Lord bless and reward all those who have been and are still so mindful of our needs.

We found a nice parsonage, well arranged and located, but not quite completed. It is the faithful and earnest work of Bro. R. B. Clark, who served this circuit the past two years, and is now in the Western North Carolina Conference on the Coleridge Circuit. Brother Clark did a noble work here, and he still lives in the memory of these people.

We have filled all the appointments since we came, and have had good congregations at most places despite the very cold weather, and we enjoyed preaching at every service. We are looking forward to a good and prosperous year. I hope to do some good work for the "Old Raleigh" soon in the way of collecting and getting new subscribers.

Wishing you a successful year, I remain,

Yours in His work,

W. B. HUMBLE.

P. S.—Please say my post-office is Aurelian Springs instead of Littleton.

New Bern.

The Advocate has been a welcome visitor to my house for the past thirty-five years, and when it fails to make its appearance, there seems to be something out of joint. We consider the Advocate a first-class paper and up-to-date in all departments.

Mr. Editor, in writing this, I will not fail to mention my visits to the Annual Conference, which is always a source of pleasure and help to me. I always enjoy listening to the reports from the different charges and stations, and the sharp sayings of the Bishop. More than all, I enjoy the Sunday morning love feast.

I have been attending the Conferences for many years. I always make use of my vacations in attending Conferences, and I hope to visit many more.

But the sad part is the reading of the memoirs of our departed brethren.

The contractors are driving ahead on our new church building. The walls are rapidly going up, and the contractors say it will be completed by December 1st, this year, and it is going to be a beauty, and do credit to Methodism in North Carolina. There is no doubt that it will be completed by that time, as we have the right kind of grit in the building committee and the good women behind them.

Brother Adams has fully taken hold of the Centenary Church, and is making things lively. He is no stranger to the people of New Bern, and has the elements about him to build up the congregation in spiritual things.

Wishing you and the Advocate a successful year, I am,

Yours truly, B. G. CREDLE.

An Important Question.

Dear Bro. Ivey:—I do not bother you much with nonsense. I asked the question through our North Carolina Christian Advocate at Greensboro if any one would answer this question: "Are not our city pastors who put their appointments in the Sabbath papers breaking Sunday and violating the commandment found in 8th to 11th verses of the 20th chapter of Exodus? No one has had the backbone to answer it. Will some of my dear friends in the North Carolina Conference answer this and grant me this one favor? Maybe J. V. Williams will.

Truly, JNO. F. BUTT.

Orlando, Florida.

A Pleasant Occasion.

Dear Advocate.—Please allow me space in your good paper to inform my dear old friends of the many friends we have in Washington. On the night of Jan. 21, the Ladies' Aid Society, with the pastor, visited our home, and when they left, there were bundles upon top of bundles of good things left behind for us. It would be tedious to try and mention all the many good things. Our pantry was well filled. We wanted to thank them, but our hearts were too full for words.

This is not the first time they have helped us. They are always making our hearts glad, and we don't fail to give them our prayers, as that is all we can do, and may the richest blessings of heaven rest upon them. May it be restored unto them four-fold, is my prayer.

I must say they are the best people in the world.

With best wishes for the Advocate, I am

Yours in faith,

MRS. J. G. PEGRAM.

Washington, N. C., January 23, 1904.

A Rebuke and an Appreciation.

Dear Dr. Ivey:—I want to begin this note by giving you and my former Presiding Elder a good "scolding."

My Presiding Elder happened to be on Ocracoke last fall when there was a good little breeze and a little swelling of the tides, and he went off and reported the thing through his own eyes. And then you had to go and color what he said by referring to him as having been in some of the "straits" of Paul. We don't like this kind of a thing; it makes people afraid to come to see us, and it especially impresses our preachers.

I know my beloved Presiding Elder was scared, and I was sorry for him, and on this ground (fright) I suppose we will have to excuse him; but don't either of you make any more flings at us.

The year has begun favorably, and we are expecting progress along all lines of church work during the year.

There are times when a goodly number of our congregation get together and come in a body to fill the parsonage larder with good things. One of these times was on our return to the parsonage after the Christmas holidays. But our poundings don't stop there—somebody is continually bringing us under renewed obligations by bringing in something nice for the table.

May copious showers of blessings, both temporal and spiritual, come upon these good people during the year.

Yours fraternally,

R. R. GRANT.

The late Rev. Dr. James Pullman, of Lynn, was brother or George M. Pullman, the famous sleeping-car inventor and millionaire. When young in the ministry he was besieged by his brother to forsake it and enter business and become rich in worldly goods. "This does not appeal to me," was the young preacher's reply, as he asserted the supremacy of the spiritual over the material. The time came, years after, when the millionaric visited his brother in Lynn, that the earlier colloquy was recalled. "James, you were right and I was wrong. You have chosen the better part," was the tribute of the magnate to the prophet.

The Family.

Future Life.

In this great universe of God,
There is a place called "Heaven."
Just where no one has said,
But God's Word asserts it certain.
There angels, and redeemed of earth,
Unite in song and hymns of praise.
There thousands go soon after birth,
And tune their harps in endless lays.
Where is Heaven? No matter where,
For 'tis a part of God's domain.
A place "I go," said Jesus, "to prepare,"
Where all who love me meet again—
And there will be no weeping eyes,
In that pure place of endless bliss;
No fainting hearts, or startling cries,
In that fair land where Jesus is.
And shall we know each other there,
When on that rich and glorious shore,
With naught to fear, or cause a care?
Yes; we shall know, and with them adore.
There may be in the world to come,
Angelic labors most sublime.
The King will plan and lead us on
To victories, during endless time.
This boundless universe of God
Will ample space give each and all.
And to all its riches will afford.
Then Christ to each be "all in all."

River Song.

I heard a river softly sing
A song to lull impatient youth;
I felt the brush of angel's wing,
And learned the angel's name was Truth.

Forever as the river flowed
It turned the mill-wheel, slaked the thirst
Of man and beast along its road,—
Kept green what, else, the sun had curst.

And always on its broadening tide,
By peopled city, steepled town,
The white-sailed ships in safety ride
To rest, and drop their anchors down.

No sad complaint nor murmuring
To mar its measures or its word,
No yearning for Niagara's swing,—
And this the song the listener heard:

"Count not that day as one misspent
Which claims not some achievement won
To fix the world in wonderment,
And reap the plaudits of 'Well done!'

No steep Sierras sheer and bold,
No snow-capped peaks for eagle's wings,
Are life's endeavors,—but the old,
The trivial, tasks that each day brings.

Whose hands and hearts are filled with these
At last the victor's wreath shall wrest;
He hears celestial harmonies
Who lives the noblest, dies the best."

This was the song the river sang,
Then vanished in God's ocean,—when
There floated down and sweetly rang
An angel's silvered note, "Amen."

Perspective, or Teaching a Brother Minister How to be Humble.

In 1882, I happened to be a member of a District Conference held at a small country village in the State of Georgia. A young preacher, whose name for the time being I will call Jones, was also a member of the same body. He was tall, handsome,and weighed one hundred and ninety pounds, more, or not much less. Physically, he was a splendid looking fellow. There was a degree of composure and an air of self-satisfaction about the young man particularly noticeable, but having no other foundation for its existence, so far as I could see, than that of excellent health. This was made all the more prominent and definite by this fact, that upon motion, Jones was unanimously elected secretary of the meeting. I shall never forget the seeming sense of infinite worth, and the evident consciousness of almost universal significance, under the weight of which the secretary-elect appeared to be laboring, as he deliberately moved down the aisle to take his place at the desk in front of the audience. Nothing less than the brush of a master could do the subject justice. For one, being a young man, and struggling for a place to stand, I was oppressed. In the presence of a secretary of such protruding and expanding tonnage, I was led to doubt, if room for any other preacher, of the same age, would be left to breathe in the district. During most of the moring session I was in trouble. The idea of being obliterated was the one I was forced to face. To see an ego, already insufferably large, further inflated to the degree of occupying about all the space in sight, because of the honor of an election to the secretaryship of a small country meeting, in an obscure country town, was more than a sensitive nature could complacently stand. It was not without a struggle that I recovered my equanimity and peace of mind. Upon regaining serenity and assurance of my rights to breathe, and to be, along with other earthly mortals, I felt it my duty, in some diplomatic and tactful way, to rebuke the secretary. He had no right, it seemed to me, to carry such poise and unperturbable balance in the presence of his equals. So coming down the steps in the bright sunshine of a cloudless Southern day, I said: "Suppose we take a little walk." To this he consented. We passed under great oak trees, some three hundred yards from the church, reaching at length a high rail fence enclosing a cotton field. Here I said: "Brother Jones, have you ever paid any particular attention to the study of astronomy?" "No," he replied. "It seems to me," I continued, "that you should take up this subject and, at least, seek to acquaint yourself with the popular phases of it." "What is the use?" he inquired. "Well," said I, "by the study of astronomy you will come to see that this earth is one of the smallest planets. From the planet Saturn, though a member of our solar system, you could not see it at all without a magnifying glass of tremendous power. And on the distant world of Neptune, one year equals one hundred and sixty-five of ours, and there, ten years represents the historic interval separting France from the Roman period; for 1,650 years ago the Romans reigned in Lutetia and Gaaul. Far beyond Neptune there are stars so distant from this earth that it takes light, traveling as rapidly as light does, ten thousand years to reach it from one of them. There are stars so much larger than this globe that if you were to visit one of them, with two such worlds as this as your personal property, you would be too poor to move in respectable society. In some of them, two worlds like this wuld not more than supply you with pocket change enough to pay your hotel bill for two weeks. Some of them are so large that the inhabitants on them would not find this world big enough for a middle man in a game of marbles." While talking to him after this style, the secretary looked at me in perfect astonishment, as if he wondered just why I should cause to beat upon him such enormous waves of immensity. "Yes," I continued, "this little earth is a mere speck in infinite space, a mere particle of dust in comparison with some of the fixed stars. And yet, on this diminutive point in space there live and struggle over fourteen hundred millions of people, and three times this number appear and pass from it every hundred years. Now," said I, "Bro. Jones, get these wide-reaching stupendous facts in your mind, and in addition to this, that you are just one of the millions on this small speck in space, and you will cease to sit back of that secretary's desk looking as though you were in doubt as to whether you are a part of the universe of the universe a part of you." Jones laughed after a mild fashion, but he had evidently been impressed. In the afternoon, I looked to see how he was getting on, and to my delight, he had lost the pompous air. He appeared simple and sane and humble. A look into the depths had sobered him. Jones has done well in the church. He is to-day a presiding elder, and I have always taken to myself the credit of giving him a perspective that has kept him balanced and thus contributed to his success.—Rev. James W. Lee, in the St. Louis Christian Advocate.

"Be Still and Know."

How can God give us visions when life is hurrying at a precipitate rate? I have stood in the national gallery and seen people gallop round the chamber and glance at twelve of Turner's pictures in the space of five minutes. Surely we might say to such trippers, "Be still and know Turner!" Gaze quietly at one little bit of cloud or at one branch or at one wave of the sea or at one ray of the drifting moon. "Be still, and know Turner." But God has difficulty in getting us still. That is perhaps why he has sometimes employed the ministry of dreams. Men have had "visions in the night." In the day-time I have a divine visitor in the shape of some worthy thought or noble impulse or hallowed suggestions, but I am in such feverish haste that I do not heed it and pass along. I do not "turn aside to see this great thing," and so I lose the heavenly vision. If I would know more of God, I must relax the strain and moderate the pace. I must "be still."—J. H. Jowett.

The Faultless Christ.

C. F. SHERRILL.

The world has no arch infidel to-day. Its Tom Paines and Voltaires and Ingersolls are no more. The form of infidelity at present is agnosticism. This is an insidious and subtle foe. Its indifference to Christianity is our dread.

* * *

What think ye of Christ? Christ called attention to himself. Christianity is founded on a Person. It is not a Creed, but the Christ that is our life.

* * *

The world's greatest teachers have never said, "I am the truth." The best of them only claimed to point to the realm of truth. They were content to point out great—veritics. They had a vision of the light. Christ is so different from the greatest men. He was the Light. He never discovered truth. He was the Truth.

* * *

Two things determine a man's greatness—the purity of his character and the realm and extent of his influence. The greatest men are the best and most useful. Here Christ is supremely great. No man was so pure as He. None have exerted so wide an influence. Both these elements of greatness meet in Him in their perfection.

* * *

"I find no faut in Him." Pilate's verdict of the Christ abides. We cannot say of Jesus that He had less sin than other men. Nor can we say He had more virtue. We cannot compare Him with men. Virtue had its perfection in Him. There was no stain in His life. He was perfect man and perfect God.

* * *

No moral stain ever fell upon the character of Jesus, even from the lips of His enemies. The accusation, "This man eateth with sinners," had no moral evil in it. He was crucified because He claimed to be the Son of God. He has made His claim good. This is the one Character in all the ages that has had no moral stain on it. Jesus was God.

* * *

None of us wish to be judged at the weakest point in our lives. Jesus had no weak point. He was always at His best—in life and in the awful trail of His death, in the sunshine of applause and in the dark gloom of apparent failure. He never spoke a word that ought to be left unsaid. He never performed a deed we could wish undone; though we do worship Him as God. There is no weak point in His life. Judge Him at any time or place, and He is the one sinless and perfect Being.

Have you a burning desire to make the world better and happier? Begin in the little world in which you live. Make your own home cheerier, and from that work outward. Only what one is in his own home can he be effectively outside.—Wellspring.

"O let all the soul within you
For the truth's sake go abroad!
Strike! Let every nerve and sinew
Tell on ages, tell for God."

To the Bright Jewels, and to the members of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the North Carolina Conference:

Our own missionary, Elizabeth Davis, sends love and greetings from her far-away home in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. She says: "God bless them, and prosper the work of their hands, fill their hearts with His joy and love, and make them to know His will. Ask them," she says, "to pray for me—I want to do God's work acceptably."

Since this is our missionary whom we support, may not an earnest prayer accompany every contribution to her salary?

S. D. SWINDELL, Cor. Sec.

Attention is called to the following letter from the pastor of the Methodist church at Elizabeth City:

Dear Sister:—"Aunt Lucy" writes me to give you shortest and best route to Elizabeth City."

For New Bern and Wilmington Districts, by way of New Bern, taking steamer "Nenso" on Monday, Wednesday or Friday, at 6 p. m., arriving in Elizabeth City next morning early.

For the Washington District, via Plymouth and Edenton, arriving here at 9.30 a. m., or 2.30 p. m.

For all other Districts over either the Atlantic Coast Line, or the S. A. L., via Suffolk, Va. Leaving any point on either of these lines on a morning train you can reach here same afternoon about 6.30 o'clock. On either of these last roads you will change cars at Suffolk, Va., coming over the new Suffolk and Carolina, to Elizabeth City, or persons desiring to come via Norfolk.

Hoping for a "big turn out" of God's hand-maidens at the meeting, I remain yours truly,

D. H. TUTTLE.

Thanks are hereby tendered to Brother Tuttle for his prompt response to the request of our beloved President.

It will be well for the sisters to preserve this letter for future reference. To many it will be the first trip to Elizabeth City, and the above instructions as to schedules will be important and helpful.

"Notes from the Secretary's Desk," which appear in the numbers of the Woman's Missionary Advocate, should be read and digested by every member of our Auxiliaries.

They are always brimful of interest and instruction. Many points of missionary work and policy, about which we often hear questions and discussions in our monthly meetings and elsewhere, could be finally settled and absorbed, if these "items" were read and remembered by all our members.

The mantle of our sainted Mrs. McGovock is resting upon a talented and worthy successor, and her monthly contributions to the Missionary Advocate are calculated to impart, not only the information we need about our work at home and abroad, but the inspiration and enthusiasm which are so necessary to successful work.

She says "our mission stations are flourishing wonderfully, for the amount of money supplied, and the few workers sent out. There are encouragements to continue the great work to which we have been called. Many prayers go up to the throne of God, many noble women are full of joy in the service, but many who profess the love of God in their hearts seem indifferent, and do little or nothing to advance its interests. Special prayer should go up for these, that God would open their hearts, touch their sympathies, and quicken their consciences.

Prosperity marks the work abroad, but corresponding prosperity at home, so essential to the increase abroad, does not characterize all our Conference Societies. The Son of God goes forth to war, but His church at large deserts at the pinch those who follow in His train, and watches them a moment with cold indifference as they climb the steep ascent alone with peril, toil, and pain, and then turns back unmoved to its own self-interests and amusements!

How can these indifferent ones be aroused to the serious condition threatening us as a Woman's Board? Will not those who realize the situation besiege the throne of grace that God's Spirit may work upon the hearts of the indifferent and quicken their consciences?"

The Union Missionary organization will hold its second meeting at Edenton Street Church some time during this month—the time will be announced later on.

Every member of the various missionary societies of the city is cordially invited to be present. This includes all the workers in the Home Mission cause, as well as the Foreign.

The main feature of the program will be the address by Miss Mary Pescud, missionary to Brazil.

A Composite Picture of the Twentieth Century Woman.

The morning mail was handed in—messages from absent loved ones, monthly bills, business letters, literary magazines, church papers, Foreign Mission literature. I was preparing our Home Mission column at the time, and as my eyes fell on the housekeeper's keys at my belt and the darning basket just beyond, this flash-thought came: "A composite photograph of the twentieth century woman!"

BUT IT IS NOT A NEW PICTURE

Recalling my gifted mother's daily life, and her mother's, about which she used to tell me, I see similar experiences. Are they not the same in every age, with all Christian women, who strive to lead high, useful lives?

I think we have long realized that the circumstances of our environment make it impossible for many to dive deeply into abstruse subjects.

There Is Work for All, Even the Most Ambitious, in the Home Mission Society.

Shall we spend our days regretting our environment, or like some sweet sisters, envying our blessed brothers?

No! Rather let us rejoice in our many-sided opportunities (a notable one of which is the power and pleasure of counseling and comforting these brilliant brothers), and see to it that they all find channels through our beloved Home Mission Society.

Auxiliary Third Vice-Presidents.

Our Board Superintendent of Press Work, Mrs. Luke Johnson, has reminded you that many Florine McEachern Brigades have been organized, but have not been properly reported. Please read the February items carefully, and carry out the directions correctly and quickly.

Two Reasons.

There are two reasons for doing this—both urgent: One to have a full report ready for March 1st that our faithful Conference Superintendent of this Department, Mrs. J. A. Spiers, may happily carry to the Board meeting at Kansas City; the other, to advance this great and loving work in memory of the little girl in heaven.

I think all mothers, who engage in it through their children, may feel that it is, in some degree, in memory, also, of their own precious ones who are with little Florine.

Boxes of Supplies.

How many Auxiliaries have this winter sent boxes to the needy pastors on the non-paying charges? In January, "Our Homes," our Board Superintendent of Supplies, Mrs. Yarborough, tells of twenty-two calls that she cannot answer. This is distressing and depressing.

The Remedy.

Our Orphanage is our first heart-charge, but the brave men and their families in the hard places should not be allowed to suffer. We know that the "laborer is worthy of his hire," and we Christian women should strive to answer this call of the church, which is the call of God. Several Auxiliaries could unite and send a box together. It is not too late, for winter is not yet over, and the March winds are to follow, but work should be begun immediately.

Amazing Growth.

We hear every week of Home Mission successes, but the growth of City Missions seems almost amazing. In reading of it, we feel that God is waiting to do great things for us in this line.

The door is wide open to our town and city Auxiliaries. A Needed Pamphlet on City Missions has been prepared by Miss Helm and is ready for distribution. Order from Mrs. R. W. MacDonell, Nashville, Tenn.

HAPPINESS.

What is your opinion of happiness?

What are the essentials upon which you think it depends? Money, love, health—nine out of ten persons would say. Reverse the order of the three and you'll have them as they should be. You cannot be happy if your health is bad. Neither can those around you. Ever notice how grouchy a man or woman is who has dyspepsia or any form of stomach trouble? They cannot help it. It's the result of weakened nerves. Don't judge him too harshly. You cannot expect to find a sunny disposition where pain is gnawing away the body, mind and nerves.

Some of them try to get cured—try hard, but finally give up in despair. Vernal Palmettoin (formerly known as Vernal Saw Palmetto Berry Wine) has restored more of these people to health and happiness than any other remedy on earth.

It is a purely vegetable remedy which roots out the cause of the trouble at the very start. It is a positive and permanent cure for ailments of stomach, liver, bowels, kidneys, heart and blood. It doesn't act like harsh purgatives and cathartics. It does its work gently, thoroughly and with no shock to the nervous system. We want you to try this grand remedy at our expense. Write for a free sample bottle today. Gladly sent postpaid. Learn for yourself what it will do, before you buy. We know what it has done, what it will do. You do not. We take this way of showing our confidence in it. Address, Vernal Remedy Co., 538 Seneca Building, Buffalo, N. Y.

Editorial.

Pride with fortune makes misfortune. True humility with misfortune makes a blessing.

Alfred Henry Lewis, the brilliant newspaper correspondent and author, says that the one unchanging test of a man's greatness is his unchangeableness in all the varying conditions of life.

The New York correspondent of the Charlotte Observer says that there is great demand at present for the rear seats in theatres and music halls. Wonder if our church congregations have not been under a fire scare all these years. There are two fires, however. The dread of one drives people to the front. The dread of the other drives them to the rear.

To the brethren and sisters who claim that preachers are taking all the money out of the country: Dearly Beloved:—A very wise man who never speaks rashly and who is none other than Chancellor Day, of Syracuse University, says that it costs $15,000,000 to support the ministers of the gospel and only $25,000,000 to support pet dogs. Think on this.

We read in one of our church papers that a certain minister who had reported his field as thoroughly gleaned in the way of new subscribers, concluded to make another effort. He found twelve families and secured six new subscribers. The grandest results in the civil and ecclesiastical world are, as a rule, found among the fragments. Hesitate long before you announce that your field is thoroughly worked either for new subscribers or conversions.

The Panama Canal is going to be dug. We might as well give up all doubts on this subject. It is going to create for the churches possibilities which are amazing and inspiring in their scope. We are glad to see that the eyes of our episcopal watchmen are on such strategic centres as New Orleans, Mobile, Galveston, and other Southern points. The Canal will make another South, and the Church will be found ready to utilize her grand opoprtunities.

Rest is a very strongly emphasized word in the Christian's vocabulary. The longer we live the more are we convinced that the meaning of the word is not clearly apprehended. The trouble is that many Christians locate Rest on the other side—in the grand temple of which this life is only the vestibule. The truth is that there is on the other side no rest which may not be enjoyed on this side. To long for death shows a spirit which is neither practical nor heroic. If you wish to dwell in the sunshine of your Savior's presence you can do so here. If you long for the heavenly peace, remember that he that "dwelleth in the secret place at the Most High shall abide under the shadow of the Almighty"—here on this side.

We clip the following from the Western Christian Advocate, whose editor is a writer of rare power, and we call upon Brother Woods, of the St. Louis, to clarify our vision of the whys and wherefores of the paragraph:

"In a magazine of lower criticism we note a caustic reference to 'the senseless and silly optimism of the Western Christian Advocate.' Now it just occurs to us that perhaps and sometimes the senselessest and silliest sort of optimism that was ever invented is vastly more justifiable and immensely more preferable to the sagaciousest and most eminently properly-behaved pessimism that was ever exploited for the discouragement of struggling humanity. God is called in the Scriptures the God of all hope, and the foolishness of God is wiser than men and the weakness of God is stronger than men."

LET THEM BE STRONGER NEXT TIME.

It will be noticed that, in the Resolutions adopted by the Mid-Year Meeting of the Board of Missions at Rocky Mount, there was an expression of the sense of the meeting that the Presiding Elders should use their authority more freely in sending the preachers in charge of stronger charges to aid mission charges in their revival meetings, and that the Presiding Elders themselves should render greater assistance at this point.

Now this is what we call a step in the right direction. We have advocated something like this for the last few years. There is no measuring the value of the aid that a preacher may render to a mission point in helping the one in charge of that mission in a season of revival services. It will help the mission. It will help the assisting preacher.

We are looking forward to the time when there will come from our Mid-Year Meetings or Annual Conference a still stronger resolution to the effect that much larger appropriations be made to our domestic mission points and that our very strongest men be placed in charge of these points. We confess that we have never been able to understand why the assessments for domestic mission work in our Conference should not be at least equal to the assessment for foreign missions. We sat in a meeting not long ago in which there was a kind of jubilation over the fact that the Conference had over paid its foreign mission assessment. Of course the jubilation over such an event was natural and legitimate. But there were two facts which had a tendency to throw a kind of blight on the general rejoicing, and they were these: (1) The assessments for domestic missions were much lower than the assessments for foreign missions; (2) The assessments for domestic missions were not paid in full. There was a reproachful anomaly in all this, and it haunts us during the months, especially when the vision of waste-places in our Conference territory bursts on our view.

If the call of the spiritually destitute places in our midst is as urgent as that from the spiritually destitute places in heathen lands, we cannot be justified in running to answer the one, and walking to answer the other. If the need in the foreign field is really primary, then the only way to establish its primacy is to strengthen fully the source of strength—the home field. The truth of the matter is, the true spirit of missions knows no such words as domestic and foreign. It sends the gospel into every waste place around and beyond.

With a larger appropriation for domestic missions—an appropriation at least equal to that for foreign missions, we could man all our domestic mission point with our very strongest men. This is the policy of our Presbyterian brethren, and their missionary conquests for the last few years in North Carolina have been almost phenomenal. One of the strongest Presbyterian preachers then in the State was sent several years ago into the very heart of our mountain country. He did mission work for four years in a section where the Presbyterian Church had hardly been heard of. They paid him $1,200 a year. Now there are flourishing Presbyterian churches in that section. Presbyterianism is strong, and we understand that quite a number of men and women who used to worship as Methodists in the little feebly supplied mission churches in that section are now the bone and sinew of the flourishing Presbyterian churches there. It will pay any man to give special attention to the weak places in his spiritual nature. It will pay just as handsomely for a Conference to give special attention to our weak, wasting mission points. The extravagance of sending that Presbyterian preacher just mentioned, at such a price, into that section turned out to be a wealth producing economy.

We trust that all the recommendations of the Mid-Year Meeting will be fully carried out. We trust that the recommendations next year will be stronger, and more far-reaching, with results that may cause the waste places in our midst to bloom and bear the richest fruit for God.

A VEXED QUESTION IN LIMBO.

The question of the organic union of the two branches of Episcopal Methodism in the United States has been discussed for over a quarter of a century. The very thought of organic union carries with it an affirmative argument, for the expression, "In union there is strength," is almost axiomatic.

For quite a while there were found both North and South quite a number who strongly believed and emphatically taught that the organic union of Methodism is the ideal consummation, and that whatever obstacles might lie in the way now, this consummation is inevitable.

But many who thus believed and taught have revised their doctrine on this point and have come to the conclusion that,while on general principles unity is strength, in American Methodism division is strength. The passing years are proving that separate battalions of Methodism can accomplish more in the extension of Christ's kingdom than can one congested body.

This aside, the fact of our grave race problem must render impractical the scheme of organic union. This view is plainly and strongly advanced by Dr. A. J. Lamar, Publishing House Agent, in an article in the last number of the Northwestern Christian Advocate. Dr. Lamar writes from a Christian standpoint. He believes in cultivating the warmest fraternal feelings toward the Methodist Episcopal Church, but he is too well acquainted with the social status of affairs both North and South not to affirm with the utmost emphasis that organic union is nothing at present but a wild tantalizing vision.

The writer called attention to the fact that for one of the Bishops of the M. E. Church who have been so enthusiastic in their advocacy of social equality to hold a Conference in Mississippi would breed a kind of earthquake which would be duplicated when one of our Bishops who do not believe in social equality would hold a Conference in New England.

THE BALTIMORE FIRE.

On last Sunday morning one of the most destructive fires that ever occurred in this country started in the building of John E. Hurst & Co., Hopkins Place, Baltimore, Md. A high wind was blowing and in a short time the fire was beyond control. It spread rapidly from block to block and was not checked until Monday night.

The territory bounded by Lombard, Light, St. Paul, and Howard, Streets, has been laid waste. Thirty blocks containing about three thousand buildings, have been consumed.

The loss of property is immense, and is variously estimated from $100,000,000 to $200,000,000. The wholesale district was entirely destroyed. Among the fine buildings burned were the courthouse, cost $3,000,000; the Calvert building, costing $1,250,000; the Equitable building, costing over $1,000,000; the general offices of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, costing $1,125,000, and many other valuable buildings.

Very fortunately, only one death has been reported. This seems almost miraculous in a fire which raged thirty-six hours and destroyed so many million dollars of property. In this, Baltimore is to be congratulated.

The unfortunate city has the sympathies of the whole nation. In a short time disaster robbed her of the bulk of her accumulated wealth, bankrupted the largest and most reliable firms in the country, and threw thousands out of employment.

In point of property destroyed ,the Baltimore fire was more disastrous than that of Chicago. A much larger area in Chicago was burned, and several hundred lives were lost.

These disasters which are coming so thick and fast should cause us to feel very humble in the sight of God. Man and his works seem very insignificant in the presence of these appalling disasters.

On account of the sickness of our efficient mailer the corrections in labels which should appear this week will not appear until next week.

North Carolina Methodism.

Rev. Walter Holcomb has closed a very successful meeting at Mount Airy.

The Durham District Conference will be held at Graham, embracing the fourth Sunday in March.

The brethren will have to be patient with us in the publication of obituaries. We have quite a number on hand.

The Trinity-Emory debate will be held at Oxford College, Ga., at some time during the Easter holidays. Trinity won last year.

Mr. W. H. Hall, son of our Rev. J. H. Hall, of the North Carolina Conference, has been appointed to an Annapolis cadetship.

The following brethren placed us under obligation to them for a pleasant visit last week: Revs. G. W. Fisher, G. T. Adams, W. L. Grissom, and Mr. W. B. Cooper.

Read carefully the programs of New Bern District and Elizabeth City District Missionary Institutes. The former will be held in New Bern, February 24-25; the latter at Columbia, March 9-11.

Rev. Albert S. Barnes is warm in his appreciation of the kind people on Cinton Circuit. He says that this work is very rapidly developing and that it will soon be among the best in the Conference.

Rev. W. B. Lee, of the Brazil Mission, and at present residing temporarily in Greensboro, N. C., is furnishing for the North Carolina Advocate a very interesting series of articles on "Romanism As It Is."

Our Methodist preachers in Raleigh and Wake County have organized a Preachers' Meeting. It will meet on the third Monday in this month in the Sunday-school room of Edenton Street Church. A full meeting is desired.

Mr. H. D. Guerrant, one of our worthy Methodist laymen of Danville, Va., sends for a Handbook, and adds: "A native of North Carolina, I love everything connected with the grand old State, especially in church matters."

The two tracts of land which have been received as a bequest by the Methodist Orphanage from the estate of the late Samuel P. Cross, of Gatesville, N. C., lie in Alabama, and will prove valuable property for the Orphanage.

The late Dr. J. A. Sherrill, of Catawba County, provided in his will that all his real estate, valued at about $5,000, should go to the Foreign Missionary Board of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, on the death of his widow.

The marriage of Rev. E. K. McLarty, of Concord Station, W. N. C. Conference, to Miss Mary W. Brown, of Asheville, is announced for two o'clock, February 19, in Chestnut Street, Asheville, N. C. Our congratulations and best wishes in advance.

Rev. J. H. M. Giles writes that he expects to send in his share of new subscribers. Of course He is as true in his aim at a new subscriber as at a Carteret swamp bear. He preached in his new church—Bethel—on the fifth Sunday in January, and is happy.

We are glad to learn that Davenport Female College has now a larger number of boarders than it has had in a quarter of a century. Dr. Tigert will preach the commencement sermon, and President H. N. Snyder, of Wofford College, will deliver the literary address.

Rev. W. C. Merritt has our deepest sympathies in the loss by death of his father, on January 27. The deceased was one of our most faithful laymen, having been a member of the Methodist Church for nearly fifty years, and a steward and trustee for more than half of this time. He had a strong influence in his community, and he will be greatly missed. We regret that the news of his death was received too late for publication in last week's Advocate.

President Harper explains publicly that Chicago University is not a Baptist institution. He has been lately honored with the French decoration of the "Cross of the Legion of Honor."

Dr. Charles Augustus Briggs, who some time ago left the Presbyterian for the Protestant Episcopal Church, is criticising the doctrine of Apostolical Succession. It is thought that he will soon be in the Roman Catholic Church.

Mr. C. H. Poe, editor of The Progressive Farmer, has in the February Atlantic Monthly a very wise article on the subject of lynching. He takes the ground—and, we think, very justly—that the evil cannot be corrected until certain legal reforms be instituted.

The Nashville Christian Advocate is making an earnest appeal for 10,000 new subscribers. We trust that this appeal will find a ready response. Within the last year the New York Christian Advocate has added nearly 15,0000 subscribers to its mailing list. The Methodists of the South can, and should, do as much for the General Organ.

NORTH CAROLINA EPWORTH LEAGUE CONFERENCE
DEVOTIONAL. CHARITABLE. LITERARY. EVANGELICAL.
EDITED BY REV. H. B. ANDERSON.

How to Have a Good Business Meeting.

The weak spot in our Epworth Leagues is the business meeting, and for this reason I have given the entire space allotted us, in this issue of the Advocate, to this very real and perplexing problem, as I feel sure our workers will welcome any light on this subject.

"An important consideration," he says, "is the

TIME AND PLACE OF MEETING.

"Whatever may be the inclination of some of the members, the business meeting should not be held on Sunday. Exceptions may be made in the case of special meetings, but the regular business meetings ought not to be held on the Lord's Day.

"As to the place, we should always decide in favor of the church. A home might be selected as the place of meeting, but there is more or less danger of the social feature being magnified to the detriment of a good business meeting. The business to be transacted pertains to the Lord's work, and the Lord's house appears to be the most appropriate place to meet.

It may be said that in most cases the cause of a poor business meeting may be a

LACK OF INTEREST.

"The spiritual side of the society's life is so emphatically presented that the young person who is received into membership has no conception of his responsibility to attend the business meetings, and to participate in the transaction of business. The attention of the new member is not called to the business meetings. Frequently the announcement is made only in a perfunctory way. To improve these meetings it is absolutely necessary to arouse a deeper interest in the members, who ought to be made to feel that the business is theirs and that they ought to participate in the transaction of every item. An aroused interest will naturally result in

A SENSE OF RESPONSIBILITY

"When once you have made a member to feel his personal responsibility in a matter it is easy to secure his co-operation. A great improvement could be made in all organizations of the church if every one could be made to feel a deeper responsibility. Many persons suffer from self-depreciation and keep themselves in the back-ground, while others, of less ability and more self-confident, assert themselves. If you are a member of a young people's society, you ought to regard your presence as required at every meeting, and feel yourself personally responsible for what is transacted at the business meetings.

"Again, business meetings should be

CONSTITUTIONAL

That is, our meetings ought to be conducted in accordance with the requirements of the constitution of the society. This will have a tendency to create a deeper interest, and to promote the efficiency of every officer and chairman of the various committees. We cannot expect the president of the society to be an adept in parliamentary tactics, but in every business meeting the simplest parliamentary rules should be observed. What is worth doing at all is worth doing well.

"The president should also insist on

THE COMMITTEE REPORTS

"Too little importance is generally attached to this part of a business meeting. When the constitution calls for a written report the president should insist on its fulfilment. Often the question is asked by a chairman of a committee: 'What shall I report?' Mr. Wells says that a good committee report will tell four things:

"(a) What the committee planned to do;

"(b) What it succeeded in doing;

"(c) What it wants to do during the next month, and

"(d) How the society can help it.

"A good report will show evidence of having been prepared very thoughtfully, and carefully as to the arrangement. The habit of hastily writing reports during the progress of the business meeting cannot be too severely condemned. The disposal of the report is a matter in regard to which a difference of opinion may exist. Generally speaking, it is sufficient to receive and file the reports of committees, instead of recording every report on the minutes. A good plan to aid the secretary in filing reports and insure uniformity in size of paper, is for the society to furnish the chairman of every committee with the stationery required. The reports of the secretary and treasurer, however, ought to be received and entered on the minutes.

"The responsibility for good committee reports, however, rests not alone with the various chairmen, but with the members, who ought to

DISCUSS THE REPORTS

"Time ought to be provided for the discussion of the reports, and the co-operation of the members ought to be secured by every committee in any special work they may have in contemplation. This is the time to help one another. If a member, for instance, would like to see a certain thing accomplished, but which comes under the head of another committee, this is his opportunity to speak. Generally, the committees at their meetings require all the time at their disposal to transact the business in hand, and all suggestions as far as possible from members outside of the committee should be made openly in the business meeting. The time at the business meetings may be too short to discuss the work of every committee. An excellent plan has been suggested, and by many societies successfully carried out, of selecting the work of one committee as the subject for a meeting."

Lesson for February 14, 1904.

Jesus Forgives Sin.

(Mark 2: 1-12.)

Golden Text:—The Son of man hath power on earth to forgive sins. (Mark 2: 10.)

After the events recorded in our last lesson Jesus made his first circuit through Galilee, preaching and casting out demons and healing all manner of diseases. Only one of these miracles is narrated in full, namely, the healing of the leper, which is reported by each one of the Synoptists.

A Thronged House.—Returning to Capernaum, after this tour of Galilee, Jesus resumed his teaching. The news that he was again at home spread rapidly through the city, and soon the house in which he was speaking was crowded to its utmost capacity, "so that there was no longer room, no, not even at the door."

A Needy Soul Brought to Jesus.—It was under these conditions that a man in sore need was brought to the house where Jesus was. He is described as sick of the palsy. The word palsy is a contraction of the word "paralysis." The term palsy or paralysis was used by the ancient physicians in a much wider sense than by our modern men of science. It included not only what we call paralysis, but also cramps and lock-jaw. We are not aware what particular form of paralysis had seized the sufferer who was brought to Jesus, but it is evident that his was a serious case.

On their arrival at the house, the four friends who were bearing the paralytic found the access to Jesus was impossible in the ordinary way. They were, however, equal to the emergency, and soon they had made their way to the roof, had made a hole through the flimsy material of which an Oriental roof is usually constructed, and had let down the paralytic at the feet of Jesus.

A Sinner Forgiven.—With divine insight Jesus at once saw that the man before him had a twofold need. He was both diseased in body and sinful at heart. This does not mean that the paralytic was a greater sinner than other men. It shows, however, that Jesus recognizes forgiveness as the supreme need of every human soul.

Certain of the scribes who were present at once questioned the power of Jesus to forgive sins. The assumption of this power was indeed a claim to divine attributes which could not be misunderstood, for as the scribes truly intimated, there is no one who can forgive sins, save God only.

The Paralytic Healed.—In vindication of his divine right to forgive sins, and to reward the faith of the paralytic and his four friends, Jesus now pronounced the words which made the paralytic a well man. The cure was instantaneous and complete. It was a perfect vindication, and the beholders, we are told, were all amazed, and glorified God.

The Application of the Lessons.—Though Jesus has ascended into heaven, he still has the power to forgive sins which he exercised while on earth. There is no sinner beyond the reach of his love and mercy.

We may still, as did the four who bore the paralytic of old, aid in bringing others to Jesus. The example of these four men who carried the paralytic is often referred to as an illustration of personal work. Let us be assured that every effort made in faith to bring inquirers to Christ will meet with his divine benediction.

Faith is and must always be the fundamental condition of our acceptance with God. We show our faith by believing in Christ, and coming to him for the supply of all our need.

A HOME CURE FOR CANCER.

Thousands of dollars have been spent and years of labor exerted to discover the cause and perfect a cure for that terrible disease, Cancer. The cause is only interesting from a scientific standpoint, and from the fact that it might lead to discovery of a cure. The cure is a vital problem. Success has attended the efforts so far of but one concern, the Dr. D. M. Bye Co. These eminent specialists have perfected a Combination of Oils which have wonderful effects on diseased tissue, leaving unharmed the sound. The Oils are mild and safe, and can be used at home in most cases. Don't trifle with death; write at once for free books giving particulars. Address Dr. D. M. Bye Co., Drawer 505, Indianapolis, Ind.

I.

Your Committee on Resolutions beg leave to report as follows:

In view of the deficit in the assessments for missions in our Conference and the great need for a forward movement, we recommend:

1. That the preachers and people be requested to unite in earnest prayer for the success of our work this year.

2. That the Secretary of the Board be requested to send a circular letter to each preacher in the Conference urging a united effort to raise the assessments in full in every charge and district.

3. That we urge the pastors to co-operate with the District Missionary Secretaries in their work.

4. That we urge the importance of placing that excellent periodical, "Go Forward," in every home possible.

5. That if the President of the Board find it practicable to hold such a meeting, or deem it wise, the Board be called to meet on Tuesday before Conference to confer with the Presiding Elders.

6. That it is the sense of this meeting that the Presiding Elders should use their authority more freely in sending the preachers in charge of stronger charges to aid mission charges in their revival meetings, and that the Presiding Elders should themselves render greater assistance at that point.

J. F. MILLER, Chairman.
N. H. D. WILSON, Secretary.

II.

Your Committee on Resolutions would recommend:

That, as we have in our midst a large number of another race whose spiritual welfare should appeal to our sympathies, we urge our preachers and people to do all in their power to promote the development of the Christian character and spiritual life of the negroes in their several communities. J. F. MILLER, Chairman.

N. H. D. WILSON, Secreary.

The debt on the Baptist University will be paid; a sufficient amount having been raised for that purpose.

MORPHINE

OPIUM, WHISKEY AND ALL DRUG HABITS

CURED WITHOUT PAIN AT YOUR HOME.

We Have a Private Sanatorium for Complicated Cases.

If you are addicted to these habits you think you will quit it, but you won't, you can't unaided, but you can be cured and restored to your former health and vigor without pain or the loss of an hour from your business at a moderate cost. The medicine builds up your health, restores your nervous system to its normal condition; you feel like a different person from the beginning of treatment, LEAVING OFF OPIATES AFTER THE FIRST DOSE. You will soon be convinced and fully satisfied in your own mind that you will be cured.

Mr. T. M. Brown, of Tequeen, Ark., says: "Over seven years ago I was cured of the opium habit by your medicine, and have continued in the very best of health since."

Dr. W. M. Tunstall, of Lovingston, Va., says: "I am glad to say that I firmly believe that I am entirely and permanently cured of the Drink Habit, as I have never even so much as wanted a drink in any form since I took your eradicator, now eighteen months ago. It was the best dollars I ever invested."

Mrs. Virginia Townsend, of Shreveport, La., writes: "No more opium. I have taken no other remedy than yours, and I make no mistake when I say that my health is better now than it ever was in my life, and I owe it to you and your remedy. It has been twelve years since I was cured by your treatment."

Thanksgiving Again.

Besides the bountiful Thanksgiving dinner referred to in the last Advocate, the following was given us by Raleigh friends: Messrs. Crowder & Rand, box of candy; Messrs. Dobbin & Ferrall, bolt of ginghams; Mr. A. Dughi, two bunches of bananas.

Numerous boxes came in from different directions, an account of which is seen in our list of donations in kind.

What One Man Can Do.

Bro. E. R. Mixon, of Washington, N. C., has busied himself for two years past in Washington in our behalf, with very great success. This year he shipped three boxes. Two have arrived, bringing flour enough for a month, sugar for two months, and coffee enough for nearly twelve months, besides other things. We will report on the box yet to come next week. Will not others do likewise, next time?

Did Not Get There.

Had an appointment for Mount Gilead for the second Sunday. It is sweet for us to have an appointment at this time of year. The preachers are so hard pressed in the homestretch. Rising at 2.30 a. m., we hastened away to board the S. A. L. train, due at 3.40. 'Twas said the train was one hour and thirty minutes late. That passed. They then said: thirty minutes more. That passed. Seven o'clock came. They then said they did not know when it would come. So we sadly turned our face homeward. We hope to see the good Mt. Gilead people some of these times. They have heard of our Orphanage over there, for W. W. Rose has been there.

A Suggestion.

Let some good woman or man in each congregation be appointed to wait on the merchants and the people generally for Thank offerings. Do it on Wednesday before Thanksgiving day. Let this sister or brother call in any help needed. If no one is appointed—won't you, brother, sister, take it in hand? Brother Mixon, of Washington, (Little Washington, it used to be called), took the matter in hand and sent us one of the largest and most valuable boxes ever sent here.

Be sure not to let the sugar and rice mix.

Nor would sugar and soda make a very good mixture.

Roper and Pleasant Grove.

I had long essayed to go to Roper City. But hitherto had been let. But putting myself under the wing of Rev. A. J. Parker, our little Asa, I found myself there after a short ride of nine miles from Plymouth. It did not take Maggie and Mattie, a beautiful span of blacks, long to make the trip. The clock pointed to 9.30 p. m. when we reached there. We were soon tucked away in Brother Kessinger's snug home, and found ourselves in the land of dreams. It was pleasant to look into the face of that live, bright Sunday-school, and thank them for taking care of an orphan here for two past years. We found a nice, and an appreciative congregation at Pleasant Grove. They gave a good collection. A good congregation greeted us at Roper at night. Of course the collection was taken. Rising at five o'clock and an early breakfast by sister Roper, sent us on to Plymouth in time to take the 7.20 train for home. It was sweet to be with Brother Craven, and most pleasant to meet that people. We shall be glad to go again.

Division of Work at the Orphanage.

In the last arrangement for work at the Orphanage, the kitchen fell to Lillie Dill. She is boss of the culinary department. LeRoy Nash makes her fires and brings her water, and makes himself useful generally.

Frances McGirk is in charge of the dining room. Preston Peacock is her fire-maker, and Malinda Bradshaw, Bettie McGirk, and Mabel Bradsher, are her helpers.

Mabel Bailey and Bessie Vernon are the laundry girls, and Joseph Nash and Ebin Bell make their fires and keep them supplied with water.

Cassie Bright attends to the Matron's and the Teacher's room.

Louise Sivilis and Lola Bell are a sort of all work girls; and Carrie McCaskill, Bessie Faucett, Margaret Bradsher and Willie Vernon are the yard girls.

Preston Peacock is leader of the morning working force, and Nash Cox, Berry Ashley, Frank Webber and Clay Huddleston are his comrades with the ax.

Wade Ashley is the leader of the evening working force, and Gus McCaskell, Charlie Gay, Paul Peacock, Tommie Cox and James Gay his companions in labor.

Jimmie Ledbetter and Warner Vernon are the kitchen wood carriers, and supply the pig pen with leaves.

The laundry girls deserve special mention for converting our old wood-house into a neat laundry. The girls all vie with each other in keeping their departments in first-class order. The boys try to beat each other cutting. They are improving very much in this art.

RADIUM

RADIOS RADIOS RADIOS

Stupendous Offer Made by a Well-known Philadelphia Firm.

RADIOS RADIOS RADIOS

Thousands of Persons in all Sections of the Country Have Been Healed by This Wonderful Discovery.

DEAR FRIENDS:—Don't read this advertisement if you expect to get something for nothing, because you won't. We have a good article and we want money for it. Be sensible.

If you had something that was worth a dollar would you give it free? When you read an advertisement where you get something for nothing, that something is either no good or else they are up to some "Blue flam" game.

We are not running a patent medicine business, so rest easy on that subject.

We do not know the word failure—never have and never will. The educated and higher classes are the ones we want to reach. We reach men and women in all walks of life. Men and women who to-day are before the public as nationa characters have had our confidence and the benefit of our experience. It is a 20th century product, one that will be more appreciated the more it is tried.

"Fresh from the bath and as good as she looks." This old saying describes our clients to a T. We have a VITALIZER—not a patent medicine—it tones the system, centralizes wastes of all descriptions—makes an even temperature all over the body, and in fact it makes a new man and woman. Radios will within a few years be a part of every hospital and surgical institution of our land. No germ can stand the force of contact with this new discovery. Rheumatism and debility flee before it. The mighty force of the turbulent waters of Niagara are in comparison with this new product as an old-fashioned CANDLE is to RADIUM.

One person writes: "Why did not some one discover it before?"

Another says: "So simple, it is hardly creditable."

From the far West comes the unsolicited report: "A God-send to humanity."

Walcott Christie, of New York, the well-known author, says: "My success, in a great measure, is due to 'Radios.'"

Weakness of certain organs is responsible for all diseases. We build up your system so that a disease is an impossibility. If your digestive organs are out of order, if your blood is impure, if you can't sleep, eat or attend to business, I will cure you and guarantee to do so. I will give you a written guarantee. Could you ask anything more?

JOHNSON.—Maria J. Johnson, wife of Junius W. Johnson, was born near Conway, N. C., Northampton County, May 3, 1867, and died October 27, 1903, in the thirty-seventh year of her age.

Sister Johnson began life with the advantage of pious parents. She professed faith in Christ at about fourteen years of age, and joined the M. E. Church, South, remaining a faithful member until death. Her life was one of beautiful service. In disposition, she was unassuming, —even retiring. But her devotion to the church was steady and loyal. In things pertaining to faith she held an exalted place. In the spiritual realm she moved on high ground.

It was the privilege of the writer to number her among his friends for nearly three years. We saw her often, and we think we knew her well. She was always the pastor's friend.

On November 4, 1886, she was happily married to Junius W. Johnson. To this union God gave six children—four girls and two boys. The children's legacy is rich. Her influence will abide. We expect to meet her amid the hills of light!

She was carried to her last resting place—a quiet country graveyard—followed by a long train of sorrowing relatives and friends, and was quietly laid away to await the call of God. May our heavenly Father sustain the husband and direct the little feet of the children till we all meet in our home above.

W. C. MERRITT.

NOELL.—Mary Arabella Noell (nee Moore) was born February 9, 1827, and died December 25, 1903.

Sister Noell said some days before her death that she was not afraid to die, and that God's will must be done." She died like she lived—peacefully and quietly. Her very life was a crown of loving kindness, and her home was the home of the preacher, and not only the Methodist itinerant, but of all denominations. She was a member of the M. E. Church, South, nearly sixty years, and in that relation she lived a very consistent Christian of the pure type. She was loved by all who knew her; so kind and affectionate to her neighbors and kinsmen, and so devoted to her children that the stroke in her death makes the grief greater.

She was the salt of the earth, and that kind which had not lost its savor. Her character, all lit up with the light of God, was like a city on a hill which can not be hid. May her life, kind deeds, and words, be golden sunbeams to fall on the pathway of her loved ones to cheer them and guide their feet in the same good way.

She leaves a heart-stricken husband, W. T. Noell, to mourn his loss, and five sons, Jas. S., J. L., J. W., Thos. A. Noell, of Mount Tirzah, and Paul Noell, of Durham, and three daughters, Mrs. Susan East, of Mount Tirzah, Mrs. Virginia Speed and Mrs. Lucy Tillett, of Durham, and a large number of grandchildren. May the Lord comfort and sustain with His grace the sorrowing ones.

M. D. GILES.

BULLOCK. — Bessie Windham, daughter of David and Appie Bullock, of Edgecombe County, was born May 12, 1873. At the tender age of three, her mother died. This was a heavy blow to little Bessie. Often she would look up toward the stars and wish for mamma, and often would she bathe her pillow with tears, while her heart broke and bled, crying, "Mamma! Mamma!" The influence of her angel mother's love was still with her, and a faint memory of that face and passionate love followed her through life. At the age of fifteen, she joined the church at old McKendree, under the ministry of Rev. E. C. Glenn.

On June 24, 1902, she was happily married to Junius McDaniel Windham, of Farmville, N. C. This was a happy union.

When Farmville Church was organized two years ago, she transferred her membership here, and was a consistent and loyal member till death. As a member of the Church Builder's Society, she was tireless and earnest, loyal and true. She was not sick long, but her illness was severe. When the little babe came, he brought sunshine and gladness; but, alas! the shadows followed soon, so soon,—the tender babe of three days died on Monday night,—a new sorrow; another burden; another fond mother's heart touched.

Raising up in bed, she called for her babe, and pressed it gently to her bosom, as only mothers can, in an affectionate farewell. But the parting was not for long, for on Sunday evening, December 27, as the gathering shadows chased the departing rays of the setting sun, she fell on sleep—that blessed sleep from which none ever wake to weep.

She knew she was going to die; made her will, and bade her loved ones good-bye.

We laid her gently to rest in the new cemetery, beside her little one, where alone they sleep, side by side. Peace to their ashes!

L. E. SAWYER.

HOLT.—Mrs. Nancy M. Holt, wife of Dr. E. M. Holt, died of pleurisy, December 23, 1903, Had she lived until the last day of December, she would have been seventy-one years of age.

Sister Holt was endowed with a good mind and took lively interest in the events engaging the public mind.

She was an unusually industrious woman. "To her it was a sin to be idle." As a neighbor, she loved and was loved. Ready to help the poor, glad to accommodate the stranger and always happy in making the children happy.

Though admired and loved by the outside world, it was in her home that she was best known and best loved. As a wife, she was affectionate and helpful; she made home the happiest place on earth to her husband.

She was one of the most thoughtful mothers that we ever saw—she was more concerned about her children's welfare than her own comfort. Two little motherless grandchildren had found shelter and protection in her. Their fondness for her only reflects the tender love she had for them.

Best of all, Sister Holt was a true Christian. She loved the church and was an ardent and loyal Methodist. Many a weary itinerant has found rest, cheer, and encouragement in her home. Fully believing in the universality of the atonement, she was anxious about the souls of the unsaved.

On Sunday before she died I saw her and she said, tell the people at my funeral that I said "There is virtue in religion and that I am not afraid to die." She also told me that every day for forty years she had tried to live in a state of constant readiness to die.

No wonder she could lean on her son and breathe her last that he might say, "Mother's death was triumphant."

Wife, mother, grandmother, friend, we miss thee, but by God's grace it shall not be so forever.

Resolutions of Respect.

Whereas, in the providence of an all-wise God, our friend and colleague, Prof. W. H. Pegram, has been called to mourn the loss of his beloved wife.

We, the faculty of Trinity College, desire to express to him and his family our sincere sympathy in their bereavement. In doing this we feel that we are voicing the heartfelt sentiment, not only of ourselves, but also of the large number who have known her during the many years in which she has been so closely identified with the life of the college.

In a time of such deep affliction we feel the inadequacy of human expression and offer our earnest prayer that the hope and consolation of our Christian religion may be theirs in its fullest measure in this their hour of need.

A. H. MERITT,
WILLIAM H. GLASSON,
C. W. EDWARDS,
Committee.

Whereas, God in His infinite wisdom and mercy, has seen fit to take from us our beloved brother, co-worker and friend, James Meldrum Winstead; and,

Whereas, it is with the deepest sorrow and sincerest regret that we are compelled to chronicle his death, and consequent separation from us and from the work in which he has been so faithful and efficient.

Therefore we, the Roxboro Methodist Sunday-school resolve:

1. That while we bow to the decree of the Divine will, yet we sincerely mourn our loss, and deeply deplore the fact that he has been taken from us.

2. That in him our Sunday-school has lost a faithful member and zealous worker and our church a member whose life was consistent with the Christianity for which it stands. We feel that his life was always for good in our Sunday-school and elsewhere, and that he was a model young man and was always to be found at the post of duty. In life he was pure and courageous; in death, he was not afraid.

3. That we tender our profoundest sympathies and condolence to his bereaved sister and brothers and other members of his family who, in his death, have suffered a loss that cannot be repaired.

4. That in this act of Providence, this community has lost a good citizen, a true man, and a Christian gentleman, and one whose influence will be sadly missed.

5. That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of this Sunday-school; that a copy be sent to the bereaved family, and that a copy each be sent to the Roxboro Courier and the Raleigh Christian Advocate for publication.

To the Farmers.

In an address to the farmers of the State, some time since, I said:

"It is gratifying to those who stood by the Alliance in its adversity as well as in its prosperity, ever faithful and true to its Declaration of Purposes, to feel that the fruition of their hopes is so near at hand—that the farmers of the State are again to be knit together by fraternal obligations. The fires have been kept burning on the altar, and a light in the window awaiting their return. When the farmers have again assembled in the Alliance halls, and re-dedicated themselves to its work, may there be no looking backward, but only a determination to push upward and forward until they shall stand in the front ranks of American citizenship.

If the order has made mistakes heretofore it has profited by them, and their injurious effects have put it on its guard against repeating them."

Since those words were first written, last fall, hundreds of North Carolina's best and most progressive farmers have been added to the list of active members of the Alliance, and today hundreds now are asking: "When can you send Lecturer Cates to our county? Our people feel the necessity of organization and want the Alliance reorganized."

Within the last week I have had reports of four sub Alliances being organized, all of them with a strong, active membership, and, without waiting for the State Organizer, I commend the example of these good people to the farmers of the State.

In view of the wide-spread interest in the Alliance and its reorganization, coming to me from the different sections of the State, I suggest that Saturday, February 27th, be made a general farmers rally day for the Alliance. Let the farmers of every neighborhood in the State meet on that day at their respective school houses or other places of meeting and get together in organization. It matters not if your Alliance has not met in years, get together and reorganize it. I will gladly send blanks or other information at my command to any one asking for them. A postal will do. Say you want to reorganize the Alliance, giving your name and postoffice address, and I will do the rest. Do not wait for some one else to take the lead, but you go to see your neighbors at once and suggest to them the meeting.

T. B. PARKER,
Secretary State Farmers' Alliance.
Raleigh, N. C., February 8, 1904.

CABBAGE CULTURE.

Lands should be plowed deep, harrowed and marked out in rows two and a half feet apart. A very necessary precaution is to thoroughly ditch the land so that at no time water will stand on it.

A liberal application of fertilizer is necessary, say fifteen hundred pounds to the acre. This fertilizer should consist of a high grade fertilizer, analyzing 8 per cent ammonia, 7 per cent phosphoric acid and 5 per cent potash. It is applied in the marks laid off for the rows and a scooter or bulltongue plow run through it, so as to thoroughly mix it with the soil. Two furrows are then thrown together to make a medium-sized bed, which is then rolled, to firm the ground, and plants set out on the rows eighteen to twenty inches apart. As soon as the plants are started growing, the field is harrowed with an iron age harrow and dressing of five hundred pounds of fertilizers to the acre is applied in every other row, followed with a subsoil or some other plow which will thoroughly break the beds until you can see the cracks extending across the same. In about ten days the other furrow is treated in exactly the same way. After that the land is kept open by constant work, using a plow, harrow, cultivator or some like tool that will not break the soil deeper than two inches. Cultivation should occur every week or ten days until the cabbages are headed, or the foliage completely covers the ground. Under ordinary conditions crops worked in this way yield an average of one hundred crates of cabbages per acre.

A GREAT INVENTION
AND DISCOVERY—A GENUINE CURE FOR CATARRH AND DEAFNESS.

A great advance has been made in the successful treatment of catarrh and deafness by the discovery of Rhinol, the catarrh specific, and the invention by Dr. J. R. Blosser, of Philadelphia, of a device or appliance (to be patented) which for the first time makes it possible to apply an effective remedy to all parts of the head and the external and internal ear.

Rhinol is both a direct local and a constitutional specific for catarrh of the head, throat and lungs, and for deafness, head noises, etc. It reaches every spot and speck that is ever affected by catarrh and not only heals the local catarrh, but by its absorption into the blood, expels every taint of the disease from the system. It breaks up the habit of "always taking cold," thus removing the cause that produces and keeps up catarrh. It is the only remedy that does this and hence is the only positive, radical, permanent cure for catarrh.

A sample of Rhinol, to demonstrate its splendid effect, together with full particulars as to the ear appliance, will be sent absolutely free to any sufferer who will write to Dr. J. R. Blosser, 415 Heed Bldg., Philadelphia, Pa.

THE WORLD AS WE SEE IT.

A State election, coming as it does every four years, is generally regarded as a great strain on morals and business. There are some considerations, however, that tend to relieve the situation just now in North Carolina. Among them are these: There are no primaries to be held for the State officers; the nominations are to be made in an early convention; the gentlemen who are seeking the nomination for Governor are all Christian gentlemen who would grace any chair within the gift of the people. These gentlemen will tolerate no "red fire" and submarine torpedoing.

The death of Mark Hanna, which occurred on last Monday night in the city of Washington, removes from the public stage one of the most prominent actors in the great drama of business and political life. Mr. Hanna was a most successful business man. While not a statesman in any sense of the word, he was an astute politician, and wielded a continent-wide influence. In private life, Mr. Hanna was known as a true friend. He was much less black than he has been painted. Mr. Davenport, the famous cartoonist, is responsible for a large part of the general misapprehension of Mr. Hanna's character.

The spirit which the city of Baltimore maintains in the face of the great disaster of last week, and the plans that are being formed and carried out in the rebuilding of the burned district are bearing testimony to the business wisdom and energy of the great city. No outside help has been called for. Nearly all the firms whose buildings were burned are doing business in extemporized quarters; thousands of workmen are clearing away the debris which is carried away over temporary tracks extending to the very heart of the burned district; curves and diagonals in the streets are being eliminated, and many other things are being projected for the building of a greater Baltimore. This fire will prove a blessing in more ways than one.

Greensboro Female College has had a most eventful history, especially since last June. After the notice of the closing of its doors was given by the Directors, it was sadly assumed by the public that the career of the noble institution was at an end. But it is remembered with what superb faith and energy the Alumnae Association set to work to re-establish the institution. They succeeded, and the record of this success forms one of the brightest pages of North Carolina's educational history. The College is now running successfully, with a brave, talented woman at its head, and employing an experienced Faculty. The number of pupils is very gratifying. Last week, the property was practically accepted by the two North Carolina Conferences through regularly appointed commissioners. The sky is bright, and the future is assured.

The question of unsafe theatres, most tragically brought into prominence by the late fire in Chicago, has caused a wide-spread and exhaustive discussion in the religious journals of the moral side of the drama. The general impeachment of the drama from a moral and religious viewpoint is usually answered by a commiserating smile and a reference to Puritanism; or if it receives a more considerate attention, by the statement to the effect that the church is over-zealous and somewhat provincial.

The church would be wise in allowing its point to be proven by the stern arguments of events or the statements of those who are most intimately connected with dramatic life. A few weeks ago, the daily papers were filled with the story of a civil case in France in which a theatrical manager was suing an actress for refusing to wear an indecent garb. Indecency, we are sorry to say, is money in the hands of a manager. This fact, without going into logical details, tells much that helps the church in its argument.

Mr. Clement Scott, the leading dramatic critic in England, said a few years ago in an interview "that it would be nearly impossible for a woman who adopts the stage to remain pure," adding that "the freedom of life, speech, and gesture behind the curtain renders it almost impossible for a woman to preserve that simplicity of manner which is her greatest charm. What is infinitely more to be deplored," he said, "is that a woman who endeavors to keep her purity is almost, as a necessity, doomed to failure in her career. It is an awful thing to say, and still more terrible that it is true, but no one who knows the life of the green-room dare deny it."

If the church, in its opposition to the theatre be narrow and puritanical, so is Mr. Clement Scott and others who have a still more intimate knowledge of it.

Russia fired the first shot in the present war. On the morning of February 8th, the Korietz, a Russian battleship, meeting the Japanese squadron en route to Chemulno on the western coast of Korea, fired on the Japanese torpedo boats. Late the same day the Japanese fleet engaged the Russian fleet and beached two battleships and a cruiser. The next morning the attack was renewed and one Russian battleship and four cruisers were put out of action. The next day the Japanese fleet captured three transports carrying 2,000 Russian soldiers. Three out of the four Russian ships of the Vladisvostok fleet were blown up by mines in their attempt to reach Hakodate, a seaport town in northern Japan. One of the Russian ships was sunk by the Russian land batteries.

The Japanese losses, so far, have been comparatively insignificant. In the attempt to land at Talienwand, 400 Japanese soldiers were sabred by the Cossacks.

The Japanese, unhindered, are landing by thousands in Korea. They have mobilized their army on the peninsula above Port Arthur, and have strengthened themselves on the Yalu river which separates the peninsula from Manchuria. Here or at Dalny a few miles north of Porth Arthur, the first land battle is expected to take place. In the meantime almost daily attacks are being made by the Japanese fleet on Port Arthur, which is entirely cut off, having the Japanese army behind, and the Japanese fleet in front.

Preparations are being made by Russia to convey troops over the Siberian railroad. The Baltic fleet is shut up and cannot pass the Dardanelles. It seems as if Japan in the first few days of the war has Russia at her mercy.

At the instance of Mr. Hay, our Secretary of State, England, France, Germany, Italy, Denmark, China, and Japan have declared that China with the exception of Manchuria must be neutral ground. Yet the indications are that China will lend her aid to Japan. The Powers are very anxious to localize as far as possible the field of operations. What will take place is altogether problematic. The situation is very critical. Japan has simply startled the civilized world by her strength. The feeling of sympathy for Japan is now changing into a vague fear that there is something after all in the talk about the "Yellow Peril." If China should fall into the hands of victorious Japan, the map of the world would be changed.

It may be interesting to our readers to know that the population of Japan is larger than that of the United States in 1860. Japan claims forty-three million people. She can easily raise an army of a million men. She has adopted the most modern methods of warfare. Wireless telegraphy is being used to great advantage by her ships.

"We are hourly helping or harming our fellows. We may not have a thought of one who is near us. We may not say a word, or give a look, kind or unkind, to him. Yet we may cheer and help him, or sadden and dishearten him, by our countenances as he looks at us, as we look at him. No one of us stands or falls to himself alone. Our influence is continuous. There are those who are constantly help their fellows by their loving looks or words. And there are those who are a constant cause of depression, by not being thoughtful to do this. What have you done for others in this way today?"

Censure and criticism never hurt anybody. If false, they cannot hurt you unless you are wanting in manly character; if true, they show a man his weak points and forewarn him against failure and trouble.—Gladstone.

Georgia Letter.

G. G. SMITH.

It is my custom to begin every day with the reading of the Bible. Before I read the daily papers I find it profitable to read some part of the Word of God, and to read it for devotional and not for homiletical purposes. I have been reading for some time, an analysis of the Bible in which the various matters of which the Bible treats are put under respective heads, and I have been reading today under the head of "Morals" what the Bible says of ministering to the poor.

Whatever men may say of the God of the Bible, and however the working people of the world may be taught by their leaders to deny him, the poor have had no such friend as is revealed in this book. From the first book of the whole sixty, there is not one which does not defend the poor and seek to protect him against oppression, and secure for him relief and kindly care when he is in need. There is in this world a fearful amount of poverty, and the poor have been with us always, and the hopeless poverty of many who seem to us to be guiltless of any crime calling for punishment is a sad sight to see. The man who can read of the slums of the great cities, of the starving of the masses in the far East, of the condition of the peasantry of Russia and of all Europe, and feel no twinge of pain in his heart, is sadly lacking in human sympathy, but these we must leave where God has placed them, and come to our own land and study the question of poverty and the alleviation of it from our own standpoint. Up to the war between the States and its sad ending as far as the South was concerned there was no part of the world so free from pauperism. There was great simplicity of life in many sections, a want of everything like luxury and great discomfort as men would call it resulting from leaky cabins and tables spread with very homely food, but there was a full supply of all that was really demanded to allay hunger and provide for warmth. The farming people of the middle classes, and the rich planters and the slaves were none of them in want. There was but little call for general benevolence. The poor houses were empty, there were no orphanages nor need of them, and the old and decrepit were always cared for.

There were no large cities and the slums were unknown. There were but few factories, and the operatives were well provided for. There was not a negro beggar in all the land, and not a poor wretch amongst them ever died from want of food or fuel. But the war came, the negro was freed because his master chose rather that he should be free, than the liberty for which the master fought should be lost. Then the poor fellow without money or friends or protector, unwilling to be controlled, unwilling to control himself, was set at liberty to drink and gamble and debauch at will, and he rushed madly like a silly moth to an electric globe to the cities. The money the master had hitherto expended in securing provision for his dependents he now had to invest in factories and enterprises, and so cities grew, and poor people congregated, and now we have thousands of paupers, and there is real want or great privation on every hand. The State does much. It has its poor farm, and poor houses. The people generally do much. There are orphan homes among Jews, Catholics, Methodists, Baptists, Presbyterians, Episcopalians, Masons, and those with no church connection, crowded with helpless children. We have homes for the friendless, sheltering arms, dispensaries of medicine, and scores of other ways to relieve the poor among us. And all is due to the old book we call the Bible.

The question I have been pondering all day is what is my duty to the poor about me, and what can I do to relieve them.

First of all, I must have a heart to sympathize with them, and must open my eyes to the fact that they are here. I must not, because the sight is distressing, refuse to open my eyes, nor must I quiet myself with the thoughts that they are what they are, because they have chosen to do the things that lead to destitution, or have refused to do those which thrift demands.

On the other hand, I must have no absurd fantastic notions of what my duty to the poor demands, in the way of what we call self-denial. I may eat my beefsteak and my roll in comfort, even though I know the poor negro in the alley below has neither. I may wear my comfortable flannels even though I know he has not good clothing. It is God's will I should, and the butcher and the farmer and the tailor, and the shepherd, are all dependent on me or such as I am, for the supply of their needs, but though I cannot give the pauper all I have, nor even employ him and pay him for his work, as I do my servants, I can help him wisely and kindly after I have paid those who supply my needs, and have furnished of my means to assist the State, and the organized charities, in helping the destitute; there are special calls which I must meet. There are movings of the good Spirit in my heart to which I must respond. Once my heart turned toward a preacher, on a mission. I had not heard from him, but I had a yearning to do something for him. I had but little money, but I sent him a part of that. When he saw me, he said that money came when he was destitute of everything, and came just in time. Once when I was myself in real need, a lady I had never heard of and of another church, sent me a barrel of flour. I met a poor Irish woman in New York once who looked so hopeless and distressed that I put my hand in my pocket for a small coin, but hesitated to offer it to her. She came to me, and said: "An' sir, will ye give me a cint. I have been away up town for wurruk, and have not had a bit of bread today?" Of course I relieved her want without a question further, but when one who was the son of one of my dearest friends, after a debauch came to me for a quarter, I positively refused him. He said he was hungry, and I told him I would buy him a breakfast (which he did not want), but would not give him a penny.

We cannot hamper ourselves by iron-bound rules. Nor are we to be absurd enough to take the Savior's word literally, and give to every one that asks of us an alm.

The church is the best organized charity in this world, if it only realized it. If every church of every name in this land looked after the poor within its survey, there would be no real poverty which would be unrelieved.

But no church ought to be bound by its own limits in dispensing charity. There are churches where there is much money and few poor. There are others where there is but little money and many poor. Then there should be union. Take Richmond up town and down town. If Trinity, in sight of the market, where George Wiley is at work, and its surroundings should have all the burden of his mission to bear, it would soon find itself bankrupt; while if Centenary was to wait to find in reach of it the poor demanding relief, it would have to wait a long time. We will find in our rural settlements but few really destitute among the whites, but the poor black people call loudly for our help.

It is God's plan to make us like Himself, and he gives us hearts to feel for the destitute, and means with which to relieve them. The machinery of the church, its missions, its orphanages, its Conference funds, for the widows, orphans, wornout and invalid preachers, provide a way by which we can do our best work for the poor.

But after all, the best way to remedy poverty is to prevent it, and if we can only make the world generally religious, we will abolish poverty with all its ills. Only in the life of obedience to God's law is there to be found a true sociology.

I wonder why it is that we are not all kinder than we are. How much the world needs it! How easily it is done! How instantaneously it acts! How infallibly it is remembered! How superabundantly it pays itself back!—Southern Churchman.

The Present and Personal Christ.

C. F. SHERRILL.

In the human heart is the feeling that if we are to live near Christ we must live better.

* * *

Purity, love, forgiveness, and humility, are the Christian's crowning graces. These virtues had their perfection in Christ. How little did the pagan know and long for either. The life of Jesus has filled these words with a new meaning. How humble is the genuine Christian. To live near Jesus we must live pure. It has come to mean that the Christian spirit is one of forgiveness. Our Lord was love.

* * *

How beautiful is humility when found in its perfection. The lordly conceit of a Caesar is so different from the matchless humility of the Christ. He who was "Lord of all" was the "servant of all." The Master ministered. The Savior served. Infinite love labored. Humility had its perfection in Jesus. He taught us the true grandeur of life. He was meek and mereiful and masterful.

* * *

What makes the genuine Christian? Not the mere external forms of Christianity. What makes the true patriot? Not to pay his taxes, or to imitate a Washington, or command a regiment. There must be something more than this: the patriotic spirit. Such a spirit will make a patriot. The spirit of the Christ makes a Christian. The Christian character must have the genuine spirit. The patriotic spirit is a lofty thing. The Christian spirit excels it. It is beautiful to love one's country. It is a finer thing by far to seek first the kingdom of God.

* * *

Jesus' mission on earth was more than to teach morals and exemplify virtues in his own life. He taught great moral truths. He excelleth in this respect all earthly teachers. He lived beautifully every great truth he taught. But this was not the chief purpose of his coming. He came to put a new spirit in man. Paul caught the spirit; and John; and Wesley. It is in our reach. To believe the moral truths of Jesus is only a part of our duty. The greatest and most blessed thing of all is to receive the spirit of Christ.

* * *

How great is the power of a strong personality. A brave man will inspire us with strength. To live with one genuinely pure will make us better. Christ is the greatest of all personalities. To live near the Great Companion makes us purer, more loving, humble, and of a forgiving spirit. Napoleon had great influence with his men. The influence of Jesus is greater.

* * *

The influence of a great personality weakens and wanes at death. The Tenth Legion fought no battles for a dead Caesar. Cromwell's Ironsides are no more. Napoleon's Old Guard is only a name. Christ lost nothing by his death. Contrary to all human laws, he gained infinitely by it. The cross has become the crown of his power. He left no glory in the grave. The circling ages increase the potency and power of his unique personality. "I am with you always even unto the end of the world."

* * *

Jesus is the ideal of every noble life; and he is the power that inspires to it. He sets the example, and his spirit in us helps us to live up to it. Christ is both Patron and Power. All the fine sayings of Seneca, Socrates, Confucius, and Epictetus, about a good life, fall far short of the words of Jesus. In this life there is inspiration to a noble life. Love lifts.

"Seeing is believing." Ah, turn it about the other way: "Believing is seeing." Jesus Christ will reveal Himself to that "inner eye which is the bliss of solitude" and the joy of the Christian life—will reveal Himself to that inward eye so clearly, so closely, so certainly as there will be no room left for doubt.—Alex. MacLaren, D. D.

A Personal Estimate.

J. T. GIBBS.

Dear Dr. Ivey:—I have just read your suggestion that there be sent to the Advocate some personal estimates of Rev. A. D. Betts, D. D., while he is still living. My recollections of him when I was his Presiding Elder causes me to estimate him as, perhaps, the most unselfish man amongst us, regarding his fields of labor. Once at Conference, when it was understood between us that he would move, he waited until the appointments had been read, and final adjournment had been had, to deliver his wife's message of love to me, and yet kindly suggested that I could not have been consciously influenced in the making of his appointment by knowledge of such affectionate esteem. On another occasion when developments after an early fourth Quarterly Conference impressed him that some of the brethren would prefer a change in preachers at Conference, he by letter asked me to authorize him to make appointments for me to preach at some of his churches in the week, his Circuit being located between the Circuits I had published quarterly meetings for including the Sabbaths preceeding and sueceeding the week named, and thus be brought me again to his Circuit that the brethren should have opportunity to talk with me, and that I should have opportunity to further study the needs of the work, and he himself magnanimously and cheerfully consented that the change be made, and as to where he should be sent I could only learn from him that he was ready to go anywhere. Indeed, I found him always the very embodiment of the spirit of our itineraney.

Another recollcetion of Dr. Betts. It was at Trinity College at a commencement. I had gone to his room, and my son coming for me I arose to go, when the Doctor laid his hand on me and asked me to wait and have a word of prayer with him, and closing the door we three knelt together and it was not difficult to lead in that prayer; for I was in the prophet's chamber. I love this man of God.

But, Mr. Editor, in writing as above of a living preacher I feel constrained to name another, whose name went for the first time on the list of the superannuates at our last Conference. That other is Rev. J. E. Thompson. Brother Thompson has been the faithful pastor of myself and family, and I have been his Presiding Elder. I have known him long and well, and in my opinion our Conference has had no more guileless man, and he has been too broad to entertain narrow views of his brethren. Once I saw his courage tested, and he, whose modesty had made him at times appear timid, was seen to be the very soul of valor, and yet none the less the disciple of the meek and lowly Jesus. He has been a very useful man, as many in every pastoral charge he has served will attest; his presence will still be a benediction to any community, and his judgment valuable.

What I have written, Mr. Editor, has been prompted by love, and it is not a fulsome tribute to either of these brethren.

Number One.

J. V. WILLIAMS

Your suggestion in last Advocate that we write of our esteem of "Uncle Betts," and bring some of the flowers while he lives, is a good one.

I was with him nearly five weeks, three years ago, and no man ever impressed me more, as being Christ-like. Living holiness.

His success, as the world counts success, has not been very great, yet thousands whom he has led to Christ, call him blessed, and will be a crown of rejoicing in the better world.

A little girl saw the crape on the door, and noticed that they carried in many flowers. The next day she tied crape on her door.

A neighbor came over and asked who was dead. The mother, surprised, called her little girl and scolded her. The little girl in tears, said: "Mamma, I wanted them to bring in flowers before you die."

You remember, Doctor, the day I met Bro. B. B. Culbreth in your office about four years ago. I had been away from North Carolina about ten years, and Brother Culbreth seemed delighted to meet me.

I said: "Brother Culbreth, Ivey is going to say some fine things about you when you are gone. Look how he holds that pen now." He looked and seemed to say: "I wonder if he will?" "But," said I, "my flowers must be brought in now. You have made a grand success in life. You have not made much money perhaps, but the love of thousands for you all over North Carolina is beautiful. Thousands will speak and write lovingly of you when you are gone, but I'll bring in the flowers now."

The tears stealing down the cheek told how I had touched his heart.

A low "thank you" was all he said, and we talked of other things pertaining to the kingdom. "He that winneth souls is wise."

Some Facts About Missionary Collections.

F. D. SWINDELL.

At the Wilmington Conference there was a readjustment of the missionary assessment on the Districts, and resulted in an increase on some districts and a deercase on others.

The increase was as follows:

Raleigh District, $56.00; Durham District, $111.00; New Bern District, $217.00; Washington District, $49.00; Warrenton District, $365.00; Elizabeth City District, $47.00.

Decrease:

Fayetteville District, $73.00; Rockingham District, $237.00; Wilmington District, $344.00.

Raleigh District, $63.00; Durham District, $66; Fayetteville District, $175.00; Rockingham District, $154.00; Wilmington District, $571.00; New Bern District, $278.00; Washington District, $221.00; Warrenton District, $270.00; Elizabeth City, District, $160.00.

The largest gain was on the Wilmington District, and the next largest on the New Bern.

The deficits were:

Raleigh District, $329.80; Durham District, $221.36; Fayetteville District, $381.10; New Bern District, $217.58; Washington District, $577.00; Warrenton District, $388.00.

Paid beyond assessment:

Rockingham District, $80.03; Wilmington District, $8.81; Elizabeth City, $76.46.

If the assessments had stood as they were the year previous, the New Bern District would have paid out on missions.

The decrease of assessments on the Rockingham and Wilmington Districts was so large that they were enabled to reach the amounts assessed them.

The Elizabeth City District, with a slightly increased assessment, went beyond, and is the banner district of the Conference in its collections.

Selma Auxiliary.

About three years ago there came to our little town a lovely Christian lady from Weldon, and organized in our church the Woman's Home Mission Society. All who know Mrs. Henry Spiers can understand what an inspiration it was for us to have had her with us at the beginning of this work which has been such a source of blessing and pleasure.

The first two years our membership ranged from sixteen to twenty-two, but for the past year (until a month or so ago) we have had only eleven names on our roll. During the three years of our labors we have never failed to collect every cent of the dues. Since our District meeting in Smithfield, our membership has more than doubled, for we have twenty-five members now, and we mean to have more.

The children in the church have for some time had a local organization connected with our Home Mission Local Department. We are to reorganize this month into the connectional. We are looking for great results from our children, for they are well trained in efforts for the Master, and this will be truly a work of love.

At our last meeting the agent for Our Homes reported five subscriptions. Almost every member of our Auxiliary has access to this excellent paper.

We have been clothing for nearly three years a little boy at the Orphanage in Raleigh, and on last Thanksgiving the children of our church gave a recital and collected $21.25. Most of this the children earned. We tried to make them feel that they were giving their own money. Two little girls made theirs by doing the family washing one week, and it is a large family; we consider this one of the bravest undertakings we have ever known. One little boy made his contribution by carrying in wood, and the little fellow worked manfully, for he is only five years old. Numbers of older ones did the same thing. Little Mary Guerrant Mitchener earned her money by singing and reciting for the boarders and then taking up a collection. She and her sister Rosalie, made $1.13 each, the largest amount made by any one child. We felt very proud of our little folks, and God blessed their efforts.

For the last year we have had numbers of cottage prayer meetings, taking as our subjects the Sunday-school lessons. We are going to meet every week, and after the devotional exercises some member will read while the others sew. In this way we can take in our Reading Course. The garments made at these weekly meetings are to be sold for the benefit of our treasury.

On our Baby Roll there are seven names, and the Mitebox Brigade has eight members. This department has not been given the attention we could wish as we have had no Superintendent for several months. At our last meeting Mrs. Ellis, who has just come to us from Kittrell, was selected as Superintendent of Baby Roll, and we feel sure the work will prosper in the hands and heart of such a noble Christian.

As to the spiritual influence the Home Mission work has had upon our church—this can be said; we love each other better, and there is less selfishness among us. We are broader in our views, and all seem to have more of the love of Christ in their hearts than ever before. We have an excellent Sunday-school and a model Aid Society. Of course we cannot claim credit for all the good influence, but we certainly feel that a large share of it belongs to the Home Missionary Society. We used to dislike sending our money from our own town, we were too much interested in seeing results, but now we feel differently, and our members contribute liberally to almost every call. Being spiritually better, there is little trouble financially. We sent this year $10.00 to the Scarritt Bible and Training School, and also a contribution to Brevard. Our local work has been excellent.

We have tried to give a sketch of our work, feeling sure that our sister Auxiliaries will be glad to read. We all feel happy and very, very thankful that God has so blessed us. We ask all of the Auxiliaries to pray for us, that we may continue in love and fellowship with Christ. We are anxious to meet the laborers in this branch of the Lord's work, and we will gladly welcome the Annual Meeting this year. May it be a source of richest blessings to us all.

MRS. N. E. EDGERTON,
Corresponding Secretary.

Selma, N. C., February, 1904.

Let not soft slumber close your eyes,
Before you've recollected thrice
The train of action through the day!
Where have my feet chose out their way?
What have I learnt, where'er I've been,
From all I've heard, from all I've seen?
What know I more that's worth the knowing?
What have I done that's worth the doing?
What have I sought that I should shun?
What duty have I left undone,
Or into what new follies run?
These self-inquiries are the road
That leads to virtue and to God.

Mount Airy District, W. N. C. Conf.

A Good Word from Clinton.

Dear Dr. Ivey:—Our pastor, Rev. A. S. Barnes, has completed his second round on the Clinton Circuit, and we have all fallen in love with him, regardless of denominational lines; especially we of the Keener Church.

We are expecting great things this year along all lines of church work, and especially of spiritual blessings. Why not? Is not our Lord able to do great things if we will only put ourselves into His hands and submit to His will?

J. A. F.

Siler City Circuit.

Our first Quarterly Conference was held February 6th and 7th. Brother Hurley in the chair and pulpit gave entire satisfaction. The pastor had to leave him in charge on Sunday to preach to a small congregation, as we were on the road, or under it, for seven hours, and for one hour or more storm lashed and rain splashed as we have not been in twenty years. This part of our religion we did not enjoy; nor next day, on and under the same kind of roads for eight hours. The path of duty is safe, spiritually, but often painful, and even dangerous to the body.

J. SANFORD.

Gates Circuit.

Dear Editor:—I have not written anything from the Gates Circuit, not because I have not been most kindly treated, for while I have not had what might be called a pounding, I have received innumerable tokens of appreciation. The liberality of these most excellent people is not spasmodic, but it abounds the year round. I have been in the Conference twenty years, and every charge that I have served has been a good one (better than I deserved), but I have found no better type of Methodism than we have in Gates County.

The stewards have very kindly raised my salary to $800, which indicates progress, and which I very greatly appreciate.

We are planning to build a new church at Gatesville, and hope to complete it during the year.

The "Old Raleigh" is in high favor in these parts, and you may look for more subscriptions and renewals soon.

Yours truly, T. J. DAILEY.

Front Street, Burlington.

Last night the occupants of Front Street Church parsonage were taken completely by surprise when a large number of friends came into the dining-room and gave us a liberal pounding. About one year ago we were pounded by this same good people. Since we first came to Burlington, we have received, continually, practical evidences of love from this dear people. Beginning back in December and continuing up to last night, we have received many substantial gifts from them.

I have never served a people who treat their pastor with more consideration and who have given me more nice things than some of our Burlington people. I would that I could express to them just how I feel in this matter, but words are not adequate to express my very deep appreciation to them for all their consideration for me and mine.

Mrs. Caviness joins me in fervent prayer that blessings from above may be showered copiously upon them. D. N. CAVINESS.

February 8, 1904.

Craven Circuit.

While on this circuit no occasion has come for using the slang word "pounding," yet the heart has been frequently made glad by generous gifts from godly souls. These have come opportunely as gentle showers, which are beautiful, useful, and inspiring. This year has broken all previous records. The genuine grace of giving is attested by the fact that this is known to but three parties—the giver, the receiver, and the all-seeing One.

Plans are being laid for progress in all departments of church work, including the Conference "organ." We hope to see this militant host nearer the mount of God in 1905 than they are to-day.

W. H. TOWNSEND.

Aurora Circuit.

Since our arrival, the middle of December last, we have been the recipients of much kindness. While we have had no stampede in the way of a pounding, our people have visited us with presents, also such as good things to eat; and their good will and favors continue.

The first day of February, the time of our first quarterly meeting was a cold, snowy day, yet the stewards met and provided liberal things for us, increasing the salary for this year. A committee was appointed to look after the painting of the church and parsonage. In view of the District Conference to be held here during the year, our people are arranging to improve our church and parsonage by a nice coat of paint on each.

Rev. J. D. Bundy, our new Presiding Elder, made a good impression upon us, both as a presiding officer and preacher. He delighted our people. They will be glad to see him come again. Of course we expect you with us Dr. Ivey at our District Conference.

J. M. LOWDER.

Grifton Circuit

Dear Dr. Ivey:—After having spent three years on the Aurora charge, among as good people, in many respects, as you will find anywhere, for I can truly say that we had many strong friends and it was real hard to part from many of them, (but Bishop Candler, at Goldsboro, said go, so we obeyed), we came to Grifton about the middle of December, 1903. We have been received kindly at all points on the work.

On Christmas eve a good number of young people came to the parsonage and gave us a real pounding, consisting of many things for the outer-man, and from that time to the present, they have shown us many acts of kindness. Now I desire to express my gratitude to them all for every act of kindness shown to me and mine, and may God so help me to dispense to them the truth that it may be a great blessing to them all.

Our first Quarterly Conference was held the 6th and 7th. Dr. Swindell was on hand and preached in his usual way, which was profitable and encouraging to all.

All the business of the Quarterly Conference was attended to, the salary was increased and a better payment made than for years past. The Advocate was not overlooked, and we shall continue to do what we can for it. You are giving us a good paper and it ought to be in every Methodist home, but we cannot get every one to take it. May God bless you.

Yours truly. P. GREENING.

Grifton, N. C., February 9, 1903.

Youngsville Circuit.

Dear Advocate:—After four years' service on Elizabeth Circuit, among a people, many of whom attested their love in various ways, my family and I reached our new circuit—Youngsville—about noon on December 16th, and were met by quite a number of ladies and gentlemen, who gave us a cordial welcome, and there being no parsonage on the circuit and no vacant house in town, took us to the hotel and sent our horse to the livery stable until a home could be rented January 1st, the church paying all expenses.

On the following Monday we left to spend Christmas at my old home in Halifax; my first Christmas at home since 1887. After a stay of twelve days there, and at Littleton Female College, I returned to my charge, and have been warmly received at every appointment. My family returned on Thursday, January 28th, in a snow-storm, and on the following Saturday night, notwithstanding the snow, kind hearts—Christians, Baptists and Methodists—found their way to our rented home and left many tokens of appreciation, upon which tokens we expect to subsist for sometime to come. May God bless such people.

Yours sincerely,

GEO. T. SIMMONS.

DR PECK'S ASSISTANT PASTOR.

[The late Dr. J. O. Peck was one of the strongest men ever produced by the M. E. Church. It will be seen that he did not consider himself too great to give attention to his Assistant Pastor.—Editor.]

After prayerfully considering the real conditions in my charge, I felt it was an important duty to take my assistant pastor in hand and present our relations to the whole membership and congregation. The first thing I did was to present some straightforward facts to my people from the pulpit. I did this, of course, in the presence of my assistant.

I first gave a short account of some of the experiences in some of my former charges with assistant pastors, proving to my congregation that working together was the only sure way of getting into a kingdom of success. My people listened as never before. They believed what I was saying. In a gentle manner I spoke of my assistant as being effective, efficient, intelligent, and loyal to the church, but would be unable to accomplish much good without my co-operation and that of my people.

I threw my brains, soul, tact, and enthusiasm into my utterances. I talked as if I was in a revival. I had every soul in the house wide-awake and the assistant pastor's mouth and ears wide open. I spoke of the beauties and helpfulness of the work done by my co-worker, and stated how, if we became a part of that work, we would become more intelligent Methodists. I became so in earnest in what I was driving at that I actually appealed to the loyalty of my people and urged them to stand firmly by both—the pastor and his assistant. Then I made a drive at the disloyal. I drove a nail clear in and covered the head with putty. I told them they were not true to their convictions to support neighboring pastors and let their own starve. I swept the whole keyboard of incentives to support our own church and all its interests. I could see by the expressions of faces all over the congregation that I had won a victory. The assistant pastor so enthusiastically praised was pleased, but could not speak.

Everything was said and done that was necessary, I announced that the pastor and his assistant would visit every family in the church as soon as possible and begin sharp-shooting at close range.

We went together—myself and my assistant—The Christian Advocate. I took a clean copy of this great official church paper with me into every home. I even went into stores, shops, and factories. Subscribe! subscribe! was my appeal. The few that hesitated I stayed with till they saw a "great light" and did subscribe. Only here and there a soul escaped. There were always a few people who were too poor to take the paper.

I attended to the work personally. I would no more allow some sister, brother, or unemployed preacher to do such a work for me than I would invite them to lead a revival for me. I always met with success when I made a house-to-house canvass. It was a great work for Christ. O that every pastor would push the circulation of the church paper!

The pastor's assistant is The Christian Advocate.

"Count your mercies, count your mercies, my dear," was good old Grandbother Comforts never-failing advice when things went wrong with those around her. She was not unsympathetic or unkindly—quite the reverse; but she was a philosopher, in her homely fashion. She knew that, if she could only get people to count their "mercies," the list would be so long that it would crowd out altogether the ill that at first sight loomed up so large. It is a simple remedy for real or fancied ills, and easily applied—"Count your mercies."

The Rev. Frank Swainson, of All-Saints' Church, Sheffield, enjoys the distinction of having the largest Bible class in England, if not in the world. He started his men's class at All-Saints' in 1898 with a membership of nine; in two years the number had increased to 500, and in three years to 900; at the commencement of the present year the figure stood at 2,003, and last month it had further increased to over 2,200—a total which is said to put it ahead of Mr. Rockefeller's famous class in New York.

An opal lay in the case, cold and lusterless. It was held a few moments in a warm hand, when it gleamed and glowed with all the beauty of the rainbow. All about us are human lives of children or of older persons, which seem cold and unbeautiful, without spiritual radiance or the gleams of indwelling light which tell of immortality. Yet they need only the touch of a warm human hand, the pressure of love, to bring out in them the brightness of the spiritual beauty that is hidden in them.—J. R. Miller, D. D.

Beauty, truth, love, are the realities which abide. Goodness has slowly proved itself in the world—is every day proving itself to be that to which reason tends, in which it realizes itself.—Mrs. Humphry Ward.

A maiden lady, an enthusiastic admirer of the pastor's wife, said: "If I were given the choice of being somebody else than myself, I have often thought I would like to be our pastor's wife."

Our Boys and Girls.

Snow Hill, N. C.

Dear Advocate:—I am a little boy eight years old, and I go to Sunday-school. My teacher is Miss Iola Patrick. I have two brothers and one little sister. I like to live at Snow Hill.

Will close by asking this question. Who was the strongest man?

Yours truly.

Camden, N. C., Feb. 3, 1904.

Dear Advocate:—I am a little girl twelve years old. My papa takes the Advocate, and I enjoy reading the little folks letters so much. I have two brothers and one sister. I go to Sunday-school and every-day school too.

Will close for this time by asking a question: What army killed king Og?

Your unknown friend.

FANNIE M. SATTER.

Snow Hill, N. C.

Dear Advocate:—My brothers are writing to the Children's Column, so I got mamma to write for me. I am five years old, and go with papa to church often, and enjoy it. I am not going to school yet, but will go when I am old enough. I hope that old waste-basket will not catch me.

With love and best wishes for the Advocate, and all the little folks, I am,

Your friend,

MARVIN MOORE SELL.

Smithfield, N. C., Feb. 2, 1904.

Dear Advocate:—My mother takes your paper and I enjoy reading the little folks letters. This is my second letter. I go to school and Sunday-school. I never miss Sunday-school unless I am sick or away any kind of weather. I have the same school and Sunday-school teacher. It is Miss Mabel Coltrane, our pastor's daughter.

I will answer Mary Inez Pruden's question: John's head was given to the daughter of Herodias and his body was buried by his disciples. I will ask a question: Who was the first martyr?

Enclose you will find ten cents for the Orphanage.

ERMA E. STEVENS.

Sanford, N. C., Feb. 1, 1904.

Dear Advocate:—I would like to enter your warm circle of boys and girls once more. I have not written in so long a time that I daresay none of the correspondents remember me. I will answer Miss Emma L. Taylor's question. King Og of Bashan slept on an iron bedstead. It was nine cubits long and four cubits wide.

I will also answer Mary Inez Pruden's question. John the Baptist was beheaded by the command of Herod, and the head was given to the daughter of Herodias, who carried it to her mother. The body was buried by Jesus' disciples.

I have two questions to ask, and am requested to ask a third.

How many times is the word "grandmother" mentioned in the Bible?

Methusalch was the oldest man known of, yet his father lived longer than he; also how many people known of ascended to heaven alive?

Will some one answer these questions?

With best wishes to the Advocate and Brother Jenkins and his orphan children, I remain.

Your true friend,

SAMUEL J. STEPHENS.

Snow Hill, N. C.

Dear Advocate:—I am a little boy nine years old. I go to Sunday-school every time I can. My teacher is Miss Iola Patrick. I also go to the public school here. Miss Mattie Albritton is my teacher. I like my teachers very much. I am studying grammar, geography, speller, arithmetic, and am reading Robinson Crusoe.

I have two little brothers younger than myself, and one pretty little sister. Her name is Kathleen. She can talk plainly.

We spent Christmas with Grandma Allen, and had a nice time.

Will ask a question. How old was Moses when he died?

Yours truly.

ALLEN MUNSEY SELL.

February 2, 1904.

Seaboard, N. C., Feb. 1, 1904.

Dear Advocate:—I am a little girl eight years old my next birthday. I have been to hear our new preacher twice. His name is J. G. Johnson. We like him so much. He has not called on papa yet, but he will soon. Rev. Mr. Fox was our preacher last year, and his flock liked him on each of his charges and spoke highly of him. I think Brother Johnson will fill his place as a preacher, but we hated so bad to give Brother Fox up. He served us faithfully for two years, but on account of his health, he got a transfer to the Western North Carolina Conference.

I am going to school every day. My teacher is Mr. J. E. Woodroof.

Success to the Advocate. I remain,

Yours truly,

EMMA F. HARRIS.

Vandemere, N. C., Jan. 25, 1904.

Dear Advocate:—I am a little girl thirteen years old. I go to school every day. I study arithmetic, spelling, grammar, history, geography. My teacher's name is Mr. Daniel Caffery. I go to Sunday-school, and I like to go. My teacher's name is Miss Annie W. Cabell, and I like her very much.

I will answer Lilla May Trower's question. Joseph had twelve brothers.

Now I will ask a question. Who was it spoken of in the Bible that had six fingers on each hand and six toes on each foot—twenty-four in all?

If this escapes the waste basket, I will write again. I will close.

Your unknown friend,

NANNIE MORRIS.

SUFFERED A THOUSAND DEATHS

Five Physicians had done their best to cure James Wilkes, of Dillon, S. C., who had one of the most terrible cases of RHEUMATISM on record. They all failed until one doctor prescribed—

Rheumacide

IT CURED HELPLESS CRIPPLE.

Mr. Wilkes writes in the course of a long letter, dated August 18, 1902: "My legs were drawn back until my feet touched my hips. I was as helpless as a baby for nearly 12 months. The muscles of my arms and legs were hard and shriveled up. I suffered death many times over. Was treated by six different physicians in McColl, Dillon and Marion, but none of them could do me any good, until Dr. J. P. Ewing, of Dillon, told me to try your RHEUMACIDE. I began to take it, and before the first bottle was used up I began to get better. I used 5½ bottles and was completely cured."

Dr. J. P. Ewing confirms Mr. Wilkes' statement in every particular.

"For Zion's sake will I not hold my peace, and for Jerusalem's sake I will not rest, until the righteousness thereof go forth as brightness, and the salvation thereof as a lamp that burneth."

The regular monthly meeting of the Edenton Street Auxiliary of the W. F. M. S. was held last Monday afternoon, with a large attendance of members.

The routine of work, as called for in the program, showed a satisfactory state of things in the Auxiliary. Our Corresponding Secretary being detained at home by illness, her sister, Miss N. Hutchings, read for us the leaflet, "The Unemployed In Our Churches."

Mrs. B. F. Dixon delegate, and Mrs. R. O. Burton alternate, was the result of an election for a representative to our Annual Meeting in Elizabeth City.

Arrangements were made also for the meeting of the Union Missionary Association which will be held at Edenton Street Sunday-school room, February 15th. These meetings are interesting and helpful to all who attend—"in union there is strength."

Miss Mary Pesend will have eager listeners as she recounts her experiences and the condition of affairs in her field of labor in Brazil.

The following earnest appeal from our Corresponding Secretary should be carefully read and considered. Is there a member of our missionary societies who will not be impressed by the serious facts that confront her; and will she not at once respond to the urgent need of our cause? Is there a woman who would be willing or pleased to know that her failure to meet her obligations to the Missionary Society was bringing failure to her Lord's cause, and depriving our workers abroad of the means to spread the light and joy of the blessed gospel? There surely cannot be one; and it will only be necessary for our women to read about the real condition of things in the following appeal, to cause them to examine closely what they have done in the past, and to resolve to act at once in making good any delinquency. Remember that there is imperative need for every cent of Dues and Conference Epense Fund, as well as the Pledge assessment money—some have no idea of the importance of these.

May the following words reach the heart and conscience of every reader:

Goldsboro, Feb., 1904.

Dear Sisters:—The crisis is not only upon the Woman's Board, but it has come to the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the North Carolina Conference; and with bated breath, we are watching the issue of the crucial hour.

Our pledge is behind $721.45; the fund for the Isabella Hendrix Home and School, $66.45; the Student Loan Fund, $41.45; and the Conference Expense Fund, in arrears.

You see by these figures how much we are behind in our collections, and you doubtless feel that something must be done. What we do must be done quickly, even in a few days, as the first of March will close our fiscal year.

Let me appeal to you in the name of our Christ and for the sake of those poor unfortunates who have never heard of Him, to open your hearts and your purses, and pour out a generous offering to the Lord, who has dealt so bountifully with you.

You who have not given to these collections, do so now; and you who have given, double your contributions, and thus "come up to the help of the Lord against the mighty."

This appeal is to each individual. The responsibility is upon you; make some real sacrifice that you may help in this hour of need. Will some woman who is able, make a special gift now? Ah! what a help it would be! But let all give something, remembering the blessing that came from the widow's mite.

To repeat, we need $721.45 to bring up our pledge; this includes the salaries of our missionaries and the Children's Hospital, the Mary Black Memorial, in Soo Chow, China. This hospital, as you know, is supported by the Bright Jewels of the North Carolina Conference.

We need to finish out our assessment to the Isabella Hendrix Home and School in Juiz de Fora, Brazil. $66.45; and to meet the remainder of our amount promised to the Student Loan Fund in the Scarrett Bible and Training School we must raise $41.55.

And as to our Conference Expense Fund, the treasury is really empty. the amount on hand is only $12.60, and all of that and more too, is due for printing blanks and for other expenses.

We really have nothing in the treasury to meet the running expenses, and the expense of the Annual Meeting of our Conference Society in April.

Let me doubly urge every member to pay her twenty-five cents for Conference Expense Fund without fail, and just as soon as possible.

If any neglected to pay this fund last year, let them pay that also.

I think we have never been in such a strait since our organization twenty-five years ago; and since the times have not been stringent, we cannot understand the deficit.

My faith in you is strong; I believe that our women will come at once to the rescue, and will respond cheerfully and liberally to the call of Him who said: "Inasmuch as you have done it unto one of the least of these, my brethren, you have done it unto me."

Yours in His name,

SUE D. SWINDELL,

Daily Study of the Word of God.

We cannot be successful missionaries unless we follow the teachings of the first and greatest Missionary. And we are infinitely blessed in having His life so plainly set before us. But do we study it as we should? Unless we do, and from it gain nourishment and strength, there will be nothing to give others. I think many of us desire to be intelligent, well-equipped Christians, but there are many duties, it is not easy to find time for much study. Let us, then, look for helps.

BIBLE STUDY IN "OUR HOMES."

I know of no better than the carefully prepared, comprehensive and conscientious lessons in our organ, and commend them to every Auxiliary, indeed, I urge every one to take up at once and pursue faithfully. Fremont is the only one that has written me of the regular using of them. How many more can make the same sweet confession? I am glad to say our Edenton Street Auxiliary at the January meeting decided to begin at once, and I believe much will be gained.

OUR HOME MISSION ORGAN.

What would result if there were fifty thousand women daily pursuing this Bible Study? Such spiritual development as we have scarcely been able to realize, and such an advance in mission methods as we have never seen? Let us earnestly strive to increase the circulation of "Our Homes." Every woman may have a hand in this effort and it would be time well spent.

Boxes of Supplies.

Since my item on this subject in last week's Advocate, the joyful news has come that Mrs. Yarborough's appeal brought a sufficient number of responses to supply the needs of all applicants. Is it not direct answer to prayer? Next summer, or early fall, let us begin to prepare in time, that we may be ready for the first calls.

Our School at Brevard.

What a pleasure to look on the picture of Brevard School in our February issue? And it is an imposing building, but by no means complete within. The brave teachers and pupils have endured hardships there this winter with poor heating arrangements, and few appliances for work; but the furnace is now almost in place, comforts and conveniences are increasing, order is coming out of chaos, and the people are showing their appreciation of the work.

100 PUPILS

There are now one hundred pupils, nine boarding in the house, and more are expected.

How stand the subscriptions? It is important that every Auxiliary see to it that the report for the fourth quarter contains these happy words, "Brevard subscription paid in full." And I trust both Conferences are working manfully to lift the entire debt, that it may be ready for presentation to the Board in April. There is only a little more than a month longer to work.

Mrs C. Price Brown, Superintendent of The Horner-Tobernan Home.

There was general rejoicing when this fine woman accepted the position of Superintendent of this Home. Her knowledge of the community and her long experience as a Christian worker will be most useful, while her judgment, tact and piety fit her pre-eminently to advise and lead the young Deaconesses.

Selma Auxiliary.

It is a great pleasure to give you on another page Mrs. N. E. Edgerton's admirable sketch of her Auxiliary. As we read of its sweet spirit of fellowship, and beautiful words and works, we rejoice anew that our Annual Meeting is to be held with these choice Christians.

HOW TO ENJOY BREAKFAST.

"Just a roll and coffee, is all I ever eat for breakfast." How often you hear this statement, especially among women. Some men talk the same way. What's the trouble? Breakfast should be one of the best meals of the day. It is needed to get up steam for the body and nerves for the daily toil. When a person doesn't enjoy breakfast, there's something wrong with the stomach. In the majority of cases it is tired out and weak in the morning from working overtime trying to digest things which should never have been put into it and in fighting to get rid of poisonous, catarrhal waste matter. While this rough and tumble goes on in the stomach, the brain is made unnaturally active by weird dreams, some of them frightful in nature. Result—mental and physical exhaustion in the morning.

The stomach of a healthy person rests at night, so does his brain. If your appetite is bad, if you are restless at night, if you have bad dreams, if you are distressed after eating, if your breath is bad in the morning, if you are troubled with catarrh, if you are bilious, if you are constipated, if your kidneys do not act properly, and if you are generally run down, you need Vernal Palmetona (formerly known as Vernal Saw Palmetto Berry Wine). Only one dose a day is required. Take it on going to bed. You will have perfect rest at night, a good appetite for breakfast and enjoy all your other meals. You can get it at all drug stores. If you want a free sample bottle, to try before you buy, send us your name and address. It will be sent promptly, postpaid. Vernal Remedy Co., 538 Seneca Building, Buffalo, N. Y.

Editorial.

It is so painfully common for some Methodists who take up their residence in a new locality to be seemingly oblivious to the fact that they have a church certificate in their pockets that when we do see a new resident placing his certificate at once in the hands of the pastor we receive a positive refreshment. We heard a pastor say a few days ago that some Methodists moved one day into his town and the next day (Sunday) deposited at the church door with the usher their certificates to be handed to the pastor. This is what we call Methodism.

A recent report of the Ohio State Penitentiary classes the inmates as follows: Methodist, 409; Catholic, 321; Baptist, 302; Lutheran, 140; Congregationalist, 129; Disciples, 53; United Brethren, 49; Episcopalian, 36. Of course these prisoners do not claim membership, but affiliation through parentage. There being more Methodists in Ohio than any other denomination, it falls to the lot of Methodism to wear the unsavory honor of numerical primacy. But let us drop this subject. It is extremely embarrassing. The "figgers" are disreputable.

There is a fraternal order known as the Knights of the Golden Eagle whose membership is about 75,000. Many of the "Eagles" are saloon men, and the order has been rather priding itself on its broadness on the liquor question. But there is now a movement to reject all applicants who are connected with the manufacture and sale of liquor. The "Eagles" know how much they can stand. This is one of many striking illustrations of the fact that liquor selling in this country is doomed. The tidal wave of temperance is going to sweep the whole country.

We often hear of a revival "breaking out," just as if it were measles or small-pox. We feel sure that there is no such occurrence as the "breaking out" of a revival. A revival comes as an answer to deep, earnest, soul-hungry prayer. It is the result always following the exercise of elements working in a human heart which with a mighty faith takes hold on God. If there seems to be a "breaking out" without human premeditation and expectation, you may feel sure all the same, that some one has been preparing for it. A true revival is always a "breaking in"—of divine light and life.

Bishop Galloway, in his admirable address on "Methodism's To-morrow," delivered recently in St. Louis, advocated a plan for the easy transfer of ministers from one branch (North or South) to the other without a surrender of credentials on the one hand or the formal recognition of orders on the other. The Bishop thinks that the present plan is an "ecclesiastical incongruity," and somewhat after the fashion of the good brother who, at one of our Annual Conferences, gravely said, "I and the Bishop have agreed on this point," we would say that Bishop Galloway agrees with us in his views as stated above.

Several of our church papers across the line are discussing the religion of Abraham Lincoln. We cannot find any evidence that Mr. Lincoln was anything more than a moralist. He believed in the existence of God and in the inspiration of the Bible, just as does the great majority of Anglo-Saxon people, but that he was a Christian, we cannot believe. Yet we must say that Mr. Lincoln never in his life applied to Jefferson Davis, General Lee, and other Southern men the bitter epithets of "traitors" and "murderers" which were applied to these men by the great Bishop Simpson who delivered the celebrated funeral oration on Lincoln.

The two acts necessary to God in the birth and development of Christian character are surrender and obedience.—Rev. I. Mench Chambers.

A FLYING SCUD.

The principle of lay representation in our higher Conferences began to work a long time ago. The "little handful on the mountain" has increased mightily until now we have the laity represented in every official body of our Church. And it is right. The wisdom of lay representation has been amply demonstrated.

But we see a flying scud in the sky. It is capable of bellying and blackening into a storm-cloud stretching from horizon to horizon. We cannot tell. The Methodists believe in an electrically charged atmosphere. They believe that such an atmosphere stimulates pious energy, accelerates the speed of the wheels of progress, and promotes spiritual digestion.

But it is probable that the present flying scud will sail away into the west to drape the sunset temple. We at least trust that it will emit no lightning nor procreate a hurricane. We do not think that it will. It is only a low lying cirrus—we trust.

There is on the part of some a demand, on the part of others only a suggestion, that laymen be accorded a place in the Bishops' Cabinet. The place, of course, is to be measured, cleared, and swept by an enactment of the General Conference. We hardly see how the General Conference can do this, inasmuch as the law of our church recognizes no such thing as a Bishop's Cabinet. We have what is called a Bishop's Cabinet, but it is a creation of the Bishop, himself who has it in his own power to foster or destroy this creation of his. Like our good brother, Dr. Boswell, of the New Orleans, we see at present in a legislative enactment providing for this lay representation in the Cabinet several anomalies and the birth of ecclesiastical embarrassment.

If, however, this call for lay representation in the Cabinet be the demonstration of the popular spirit which desires a full opportunity for the laymen of the church to express their views to the Bishop, we see nothing but what is sound, practical, and Methodistic. It has been understood from the very first that no Bishop is able to make any just and wise disposition of the preachers without learning adequately the needs of the various fields and the equipment and capabilities of the various preachers. Claiming no infallibility, the Bishop must obtain the necessary information outside of his own head and heart. He must get it from those best qualified to know—the Presiding Elders. This is one great function of the Presiding Eldership which makes the institution a necessity in Methodist polity. Inability to exercise this function and carry it out to its beneficent conclusion in giving the Bishop that information which in some cases he could not otherwise get would be the reductio ad absurdum of an Episcopal polity.

But Presiding Elders are fallible. At times they make lack information which laymen could furnish. We see nothing in our economy which would debar the latter from conferring with the Bishop with the assurance that the conference would be welcome to the man on whom the heavy responsibility of making the appointment finally rests.

We heard one of our Bishops practically say that before making the appointments he welcomed the views of any Methodist sincerely desirous of advancing the best interests of Methodism and seeking the glory of God.

We feel sure that the spirit is Methodistic and wise. We also feel sure that when the laity learn that they may feel free in talking not only to the Presiding Elders but to the Bishops about the needs of the various fields of labor, all talk about official representation in the Cabinet will cease, and the "flying scud" will become a dream.

NOTICE OF THANKS.

I desire to thank the friends who have responded to my letters, and to say to those who have not answered that I am hopefully waiting to hear from them. Fraternally,

A. McCULLEN.

MAKING A MISSIONARY CONFERENCE.

We have just received from Rev. R. H. Willis, Conference Secretary of Missions, a copy of a circular letter which has been sent to every preacher in the Conference. It is full of encouraging information and earnest exhortation.

The tables show that, during the last six years, the collections for Foreign and Domestic Missions have increased from $15,215 to $23,531. In the last two years the increase has amounted to $4,439. Six years ago, the deficit was $8,482. Last year it was $1,969. Six years ago there were only thirty-four charges that paid their missionary assessment in full, and only five that overpaid this assessment. Last year one hundred and seven charges paid in full, and of these twenty-seven paid in full. Previous to 1902, no District had paid its missionary assessments in full. Last year three Districts, the Elizabeth City, the Wilmington and the Rockingham, overpaid the assessment.

Certainly, it is nothing but natural and reasonable for us to expect that, if proper methods be used with consecrated energy on the part of the preachers, the Journal of the next Conference will show the assessments of every District paid in full. This consummation should certainly be the goal for every preacher and layman in the Conference. We can and should reach it. The love of God which is shed abroad in the human soul by a Heaven-descended Spirit is the love which yearns for the salvation of every lost soul, and goes out to meet it. The love which glows in any soul or church is measured therefore by the missionary exploits of that soul or Church.

Begin early in taking collections, organize the Sunday-schools into Missionary Societies, preach the gospel in the waste places at home, draw energy and enthusiasm from the dyamo of a true revival in every church, and the work will be done.

This Mid-Winter Missionary Meeting was a most happy conception. We feel sure that great good will flow from it. This and the District Missionary Institutes will help mightily not only the missionary heart of our Conference, but will break in rich blessings on every interest of the church.

A LETTER THAT CHEERS.

We are in receipt of more than an ordinary number of letters expressing appreciation of the Raleigh Christian Advocate. It is clear that it is the consensus of opinion that the motto of the paper, "Better and Better," is being lived up to. We wish that we could publish all these letters, but lack of necessary space forbids. We, however, append the following from one of our patriarchs who in his old age has lost none of his loyalty to the church and love for God.

"Please find check for $1.50 to run to January 1, 1905. I have been a regular subscriber to the Advocate about fifty years, commencing with the beginning, joined the Methodist Church 18th September, 1843. Rev. Joseph Goodman in charge (then Roanoke Circuit, I think), Nathan Anderson, Jr., preacher, at Zion Church; was steward 33 years. Wife and I passed our golden wedding 12th October, 1898. Wife now 74; I am in my 79th year. The Lord has been very good to us, for which we are thankful. We have enjoyed the Advocate a long time, but more than ever now.

Yours truly, etc.,

W. W. WHITE.

Manson, N. C., Feb. 2, 1904.

On February 22, Hon. R. B. Glenn, of Winston, will deliver the anniversary address before the Neithean Literary Society of the Louisburg Female College. On May 22, at eleven o'clock a. m., the new Methodist Church in Louisburg will be dedicated by Bishop W. W. Duncan, of South Carolina, and at eight o'clock p. m., of the same day, the Bishop will address the Young Women's Christian Association of Louisburg Female College. On Tuesday, May 24, at eleven o'clock a. m., the Bishop will preach the baccalaureate sermon before the graduating class and young ladies of the college. On commencement day, May 25, at eleven o'clock a. m., Hon. Thomas W. Mason, of Garysburg, will deliver the literary address.

North Carolina Methodism.

Rev. F. M. Shamburger, pastor at Oxford, was given a reception by his members last week.

The members of Centenary Church, Greensboro, N. C., are preparing to erect a large and handsome edifice in a choice part of the city.

The New Bern District Conference will be held at Beaufort, beginning June 30, and embrace the first Sunday in July. Bishop A. Coke Smith will preside.

Rev. J. M. Rice writes: "My health is still very poor. I can read but little, but I enjoy the visits of the "Old Raleigh." It seems to get 'better and better.'"

Rev. E. C. Glenn will assist Rev. W. E. Hocutt in a meeting at South Mills, to begin February 18. Brother Glenn has just closed a successful meeting at West Durham.

The Spencer Methodist Church has closed the contract by which the building of the Presbyterian Church in East Spencer becomes the property of the Methodist Church.

There will be a special meeting of the Methodist preachers of Raleigh and Wake County on next Monday at 11.30 a. m., in the Sunday-school room of Edenton Street Church.

The Executive Committee of the Methodist Orphanage met here and ordered four hundred opera chairs for the chapel. The chapel will be one of the most elegant auditoriums in the State.

Rev. J. W. Bradley, P. C. Rowland Circuit, who has spent several weeks in Louisiana on a business trip, has returned to his work, and he writes us encouragingly of the prospects of the "Old Raleigh" on his work.

Rev. W. L. Grissom was in Raleigh a few days, ago and in his visit to the office, he told us that he was very busy on his History of Methodism, which will be published at an early day. This will be a very valuable book for the church.

The following brethren were appreciated visitors during the last few days: Y. T. Ormond, Esq., Kinston; Rev. A. P. Tyer, Wilson; Dr. J. C. Kilgo, Durham; Mr. W. D. Hunter, of Sanford; and Dr. E. H. Bobbitt, of Franklin County.

The following nice note has come from Rev. E. R. Welch, Hope Mills Circuit: "I am very busy, having lately come here, but you can count on my doing what I can. Among other duties, I have a free night school—three nights per week. Am getting started off well with my work."

Rev. J. A. Lee received a telegram Tuesday from Henrietta, N. C., conveying the sad news of the death of his father, Mr. J. H. Lee, at his home in that place. Mr. Lee left Tuesday afternoon to attend the funeral service. Brother Lee and the other bereaved ones have our deepest sympathy.

Mr. J. M. Jones, one of our truest laymen, says in a recent letter, enclosing subscription: "I can't do without the dear 'Old Raleigh;' it is a great help to me spiritually, and I lay it by when it comes to enjoy especially on the Sabbath when I can enjoy its good reading matter. Your are giving us a splendid paper."

The North Carolina Christian Advocate announces that some one has stolen the typewriter of Dr. T. F. Marr, pastor of Tryon Street, Charlotte. The theft of a typewriter belonging to certain of our own correspondents (if they had one) would be as great loss to the "Old Raleigh" as to the owner of the machine.

To any of our young preachers who are in need of theological books, Rev. L. M. Brower, of Liberty, N. C., will sell anything he has in a large selection of our standards at a very low price. Write, stating what is wanted, and he will quote prices in reach of the smallest salaried brethren. He has a well selected library, accumulated in the last twenty years, and will take pleasure in writing to any who are in need of books.

Publisher's Column.

ONLY FOR NEW SUBSCRIBERS.

We would say that the offer to send the Raleigh Christian Advocate and the Progressive Farmer one year for $2.00 applies only to new subscribers. The offer never was designed to apply to renewals. We would also say that when we make these low rates the seed offer does not apply. If you are not a subscriber to the Raleigh Christian Advocate, send us $2.00, and we will send the Advocate and the Progressive Farmer for one year.

THE DISTRICTS THIS WEEK.

It will be seen that the Raleigh District stands ahead so far in the number of new subscribers sent in. The Wilmington District stands next. The Washington District stands third. Elizabeth City and Warrenton tie. Durham District stands lowest, but is only gathering reserved strength to surprise the other Districts, we imagine. Only the unusually bad weather has kept out of the regular table much larger figures for each District. Let us see how it will be next week.

SUBSCRIPTIONS DUE.

The continued bad weather has checked the flow of remittances that usually pour in at this time of the year. We trust that all our subscribers whose renewals are due will not wait for fair weather, but will let us hear from them at once.

In a few days we will begin to send out statements to all subscribers who are behind. Remember that we cannot afford to send out such a paper as we are now publishing at the rate of $1.50 a year unless this price be paid in advance. We are compelled to use business methods, and no one can justly complain if he receives a statement of his indebtedness to the Advocate. We are compelled to collect at once.

AS IT STANDS.

Raleigh District	27
Fayetteville District	15
Washington District	18
Elizabeth City District	14
Rockingham District	8
Warrenton District	14
New Bern District	13
Wilmington District	24
Durham District	5

The Conference has requested each District to furnish 150 new subscribers by May 1, 1904. The report for each District will be made weekly in this column. The District reporting the largest number of new subscribers by May 1, 1904, will receive a present not costing less than $25.00, to be applied as the District Conference thinks best.

THE HANDBOOK MAPS.

The maps showing the location of all the Methodist churches in the State constitute one of the valuable features of the North Carolina Methodist Handbook for 1904. These maps have elicited many expressions of commendation from people outside of the State. Our brethren of other denominations think that the maps are wonderful. Nothing of the kind for a whole State has ever been gotten out before. To show our friends who have not yet opened their eyes to the fact that in the Handbook they have that which they cannot afford to do without, we publish a sample map on one of the pages of the Advocate this week. The reader can see that it combines accuracy with artistic finish.

The Handbook for 1904 represents more work and contains more valuable matter than any Handbook yet issued by us. Every reader of the Advocate should have a copy which costs only 25 cents. See your preacher, and if he has none on hand, order at once from this office.

NORTH CAROLINA
EPWORTH LEAGUE
DEVOTIONAL CHARITABLE CONFERENCE LITERARY EVANGELICAL

EDITED BY REV. M. B. ANDERSON.

We hope to hear soon from some presiding elder who has thrown the weight of his influence in the Epworth League scale. Who'll be the first?

The squibs in this column are not to fill space. We mean business—League business. Let us all be up and doing. Let us say, we, His servants, will arise and build and remove the reproach that now overshadows us.

Before these columns fall under the eyes of the readers two Leagues will in all probability be organized. One at Goldsboro and the other at Smithfield. We hope to report quite a number of new Leagues this year. Brethren, let the good work go on.

What are the Leagues doing? We would be glad to have items of interest, each week for these columns, from all the chapters. Do not wait to write a page. Tell us in few words, on a postal card, something of interest that has transpired in your chapter. If anything has gladdened your hearts, it may be helpful in some way to others. Tell it out! Tell it out!

It may cost you, brother pastor, much work, much hard work, to organize and set a-going properly and successfully an Epworth League, but it is worth all your effort to train intelligent workers for future Methodism. The League is a providential arrangement; its success means volumes for our beloved church. If you cannot see it that way, try just one successful League, and I will underwrite a resolution of your League thought.

Shall we hold a Conference League? When and where? What say the brethren?

What districts contemplate the holding of District Conference Leagues? The Wilmington District held such a successful League last year the brethren of that district will of course hold another this year. The New Bern District will be the second. Which District will be the next?

Father Jenkins, of the Orphanage, complains that our Leagues do not take the Orphanage to heart. It is not that we are indifferent to the great cause he represents, but because we have not yet been in position to do the good we wish to do. We young people are very fond of babies, and when we are strong enough we will want to help care for them and "spell" Father Jenkins a little.

He also says: "The church has not taken the League to heart much." Does he mean that the mother has cast her child out as a waif? Well, we will not play the part of a waif. As we are able, we will contribute to the mother's comfort. We are strictly loyal to her that gave us birth; we love her with an undying love.

A Hunger for Souls.

There is no work in which Epworthians may engage that is freighted with such joy to the worker, and at the same time so fruitful of good as personal work for souls. We are indebted to the Enworth Herald for the following helpful words on this subject:

The half-hearted Christian is never a soul-winner. In the very nature of the case he cannot be. The task is too great and delicate for the indifferent one. The whole heart and life must be involved. We must be consumed with anxiety to bring souls home to God. Consumed. Yes, that is the word. It must be the principal thing in life. Everything else must be of minor importance. Everything else must give way to it.

This is especially so when we attempt the work of personal evangelism. The same kind of consecration might possibly be dispensed with when we are making public appeals to a crowd. But when we are seeking to reach sinners one by one this hunger for souls is an essential condition of success. We can do little with individuals unless we yearn for their salvation.

In one of his addresses Bishop Goodsell relates this incident concerning the late Dr. J. O. Peck: "While I was pastor at First Church, New Haven, Dr. Peck having succeeded me at Trinity, it was my custom to go to New York on an early train Monday morning to read proofs of a department in The Christian Advocate, of which I then had charge. One morning I met Dr. Peck before six o'clock, plowing his way through the sand a foot deep. 'What calls you out so early, doctor?' I asked. 'I am going to see a man who has lied to the Holy Ghost, and speak with him before he goes to his work. He promised God and me yesterday that he would seek pardon at the altar last night, and he did not come, and I am going to see about it.' I shall never forget the wonderful light in his eye and his determined stride, as he plowed on after the neglectful soul. Was it any wonder that he was a great evangelist?"

Lesson for February 21, 1904.

Jesus and the Sabbath.

(Matthew 12: 1-13.

Golden Text.—It is lawful to do well on the Sabbaths days. (Matt. 12: 12.)

After the healing of the paralytic, the next event of which we read in the life of Christ is the calling of Matthew, the publican, to be one of his disciples.

Next comes the healing of the impotent man at the Pool of Bethesda in Jerusalem on the Sabbath day. This incident is narrated by John alone (John 5: 1-47). It should be carefully read, however, as a prelude to our lesson.

A Walk Through the Fields on the Sabbath.—Shortly after the healing of the impotent man, Jesus went with his disciples through the fields in the vicinity of Capernaum. Their destination is not mentioned, yet it is not an unfair inference to suppose that they were on their way to the synagogue, which it was Jesus' constant custom to attend on the Sabbath day.

The Criticism of the Pharisees.—It was a field of grain, through which Jesus was walking with his disciples, and his disciples plucked the ears and ate, as they walked along. Now rabbinical tradition had thrown around the Sabbath a multitidue of burdensome and trivial restrictions, and in plucking the ears of grain, rubbing them with their hands, and eating them, as they walked along, the disciples had committed an infraction of these rabbinical regulations. The Pharisees thereupon eagerly seized upon this as a ground of criticism, hoping thereby to discredit Jesus who had allowed his disciples to do this without rebuke on his part.

Things Allowable on the Sabbath.—In answer to the criticism of the Pharisees Jesus threw some light upon what was allowable on the Sabbath. He would not rebuke his disciples, but he called the attention of their critics to what David had done under the stress of hunger and to the work done in the temple by the priests on the Sabbath day. Having cited these as illustrations of what is allowable on the Sabbath, Jesus showed that the Pharisees themselves had sinned, for in their criticism of the disciples who were innocent both as to act and intention of any Sabbath desecration, they had shown a conspicuous lack of the spirit of gentleness and mercy, which is one of God's chief requirements.

The True Principles of Sabbath Observance.—Jesus in his teaching about the Sabbath and in his own personal example emphasized broad principles, not petty details. He showed first and always that the Sabbath was intended for worship and for rest. Works of necessity were never prohibited by our Master, and works of mercy were specifically enjoined.

A Concrete Illustration.—A practical demonstration of Jesus' views upon the right observance of the Sabbath was given in the synagogue, where there was a man with a withered hand. Here was a clear case of human need. Eagerly did his enemies watch to see if Jesus would exercise his healing power. Indeed they questioned him, saying: "Is it lawful to heal on the Sabbath?" Jesus' answer to this question was in the nature of a parable, unanswerable in its logic. A sheep that had fallen into a pit on the Sabbath day would certainly be rescued. How much more then should a sick man be healed on the Sabbath day? And while they wrestled with this irresistible logic, Jesus healed the withered hand.

The Sabbath Question in Modern Times.—One of the great problems of the age is that of Sabbath observance. There is a real danger of the desecration of the Sabbath. The present peril is not so much that of overburdening the Sabbath with restrictions as of neglecting even the broad principles laid down by our Master. Let us always remember that the Christian Sabbath is for worship, for rest and for works of charity and mercy.

Good laws cannot always make good people, but good people ought always to make good laws.

You cannot legislate a sinner into a saint, but a saint can so legislate as to make himself a sinner.

How Shall We Settle All Questions Petaining to This Life?

Ans: By anylitical and synthetical reasoning. If you needed the services of a farmer, you would not send for a bookkeeper; if a lawyer, you would not send for a minister; if a chemist, you would not send for a school teacher because he was reputed to know all things in general, and not chemistry, in special. Belated.

The little piece that we wrote before Thanksgiving, telling our friends how they could help us, appeared in the Advocate of last week. I suppose the hopper was over full, and the mill ground slowly; or did it take the Egyptian editor that long to decipher our enmeiform characters? If so, we give it up on our fist and will set to learning "verticle."

We have high hope of seeing our receipts on the thirteenth page yet. We will reduce the grist in quanity and try to improve it in quality.

Personal Presents.

We have not been reporting these in the Advocate; but they have come in so nicely recently, that we deem it well to notice them at this time.

That box of nice things from Mrs. Barrett's class in the Sunday-school at Windsor to Charlie Gay was nice indeed. That nice doll from Geneva Cheatham to little Mary Bradshaw, and that of a beautiful doll from Mary Cleavis Daniels to our little Bessie Faucett, were highly appreciated by these little girls.

We have planted our sempernongs. Thanks to Brother Sam Reeks, of Macon, for them. We have turned out two persimmon trees. Who will send us apple, pear, peach or other fruit trees? Our neighbors might bring us shade trees—sugar maple, ash or something of the kind.

Big Money.

We are delighted to see so many rich men and women putting big money in charitable institutions. But it hurts us that but one man has put big money in this Orphanage. But while so few have put large amounts in it, it is pleasant to know that so large a number of persons have put some money in it. Besides the magnificent gift of the late A. F. Page, there have been but two persons that have given us over a thousand dollars. One gave $2,000, one $1,125, one $1,000, one $800, one $750, one $600 and nine $500 each, and some $200 or more, and a goodly number $100 or more. But the vast aggregate foots up well. The blessedness of giving has been widely diffused.

The ad. that won the $25 00 prize offered by Mrs. Joe Person and was awarded to Mr. L. F. Alford, Raleigh, N. C., is here given:

Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy Cures To Stay Cured. Try It.

ALL BLOOD DISEASES yield to the curative properties of this wonderful medicine, while the WASH has no equal in healing old sores, ulcers, etc. The REMEDY has cured thousands of others. It will cure YOU. The WASH has healed thousands of others. It will heal YOU.

FREE

Dr. Marshal Beaty, the Nose, Throat and Lung Specialist, of Cincinnati, recently completed a series of trial treatments of his Antiseptic Medicated Air Cure on one hundred patients; some were consumptives in the lowest emaciated stages, others of a catarrhal, asthmatic and bronchial nature. The record of each patient kept by the Doctor as the home treatment progressed, was very interesting. The most remarkable and gratifying features in connection with the treatment was the rapid healing of the cavities and tubercles of the lungs and the raw, ulcerated surface of the mucous membrane of the entire breathing organs. This is phenomenal, and ample proof that this great discovery has solved the problem of a permanent cure for the thousands of sufferers from all catarrhal, bronchial and lung troubles; in his account of it, the Doctor says: "No germ of Catarrh, Asthma, Bronchitis or Consumption can live under the action of this powerful antiseptic. When taken internally and breathed and inhaled into the air passages, bronchial tubes and cells of the lungs, the germs are at once destroyed and expelled from the system, and the disease is arrested and cured by removing the cause."

To introduce and prove beyond doubt that this great treatment will cure Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma, Catarrh and Weak Lungs, Dr. Beaty has decided to make another test offer to others of a Full Month's Treatment, Free, including Inspirator and all medicines complete, exactly as shown in illustration.

The Doctor will keep in close touch with all patients during the progress of the treatment, and will make no charge for his professional services, consultation, and the necessary correspondence.

When Dr. Beaty makes such a liberal offer as this, thereby saving patients the large sums they usually expend for medicine, advice, prescriptions, consultations, etc., there can be no excuse why sufferers should hesitate to put his treatment to the test.

Do not delay, but write at once, addressing Dr. M. Beaty, 253 West 9th St., Cincinnati, Ohio, and tell him the nature of your head, throat or lung trouble, and how long the disease has had a hold on you. This test course is intended to prove the genuine merits of the treatment and costs nothing.

Thousands of Persons in all Sections of the Country Have Been Healed by This Wonderful Discovery.

DEAR FRIENDS:—Don't read this advertisement if you expect to get something for nothing, because you won't. We have a good article and we want money for it. Be sensible.

If you had something that was worth a dollar would you give it for 7 When you read an advertisement where you get something for nothing, that something is either no good or else they are up to some "Hill Billy" game.

We are not running a patent medicine business, so rest easy on that subject.

We do not know the world is sure—never have and never will. The educated and higher class are the ones we want to reach. We reach men and women in all walks of life. Men and women who today are before the public as national characters have had our counsel and the benefit of our experience. It is a 20th century product, one that will be more appreciated the more it is tried.

"Fresh from the bath and as good as she looks." This old saying describes our clients to a T. We have a VITALIZER—not a patent medicine. It tones the system, centralizes weakness of all descriptions—makes an even temperature all over the body and in fact it makes a new man and woman. Radios will within a few years be a part of every hospital and surgical institution of the land. No germ can stand the force of contact with this new discovery. Rheumatism and debility flee before it. The healthy force of the turbulent waters of Niagara are in a comparison with this new product as an old-fashioned CANDLE is to RADIUM.

One person writes: "Why did not some one discover it before?"

Another says: "So simple, it is hardly credulous."

From the far West comes the unsolicited remark: "A God-send to humanity."

Wolcott Christie, of New York, the well-known author, says: "My success is a great measure, is due to Radios."

Weakness of certain organs is responsible for all diseases. We will build up your system so that disease is an impossibility. If your digestive organs are out of order, if your blood is impure, if you can't sleep, eat or attend to business, I will cure you and guarantee to do so. I will give you a written guarantee. Could you ask anything more? "RADIUS."

RADIUM RADIUM RADIUM

Delight your friends, astonish relatives, and make wonderful experiments with this new media—RADIUS SULPHIDE of Zinc activity, 600,00 mg. to 800,500. We give you this as a present when you order "RADIOS." This alone is worth to save at the hand dollars of any man or woman's money. Acts the same as X-RAYS. Simply wonderful. REMEMBER THIS IS A PRESENT.

HARGETT. — Sarah Hargett, about sixty-eight years of age, and one of our best women, died November 25, 1904. She joined the M. E. Church, South, when young, and remained a consistent member till death. She was married May 21, 1857, and there were six children, four of whom are now living. Their names are John M., William L., Abner J., and Miss Mary E. Hargett. There are fourteen grand children.

May God's blessings come upon the sorrowing loved ones.

D. C. GEDDIE.

PUGH.—Mrs. Emma Pugh (nee Murrill) was born at Town Creek, in Brunswick County, N. C., February 11, 1845, and was married in Wilmington, N. C., in the year 1869 to Mr. W. W. Pugh, of Hyde County, N. C., and died very suddenly at her home, Lake Comfort, Hyde County, N. C., December 21, 1903.

She was an invalid very nearly all of her life, but she was a faithful follower of her Master, and died in the triumph of a gospel faith. May the Lord be very near and dear to the sorrowing ones, and may they, as an unbroken family, meet in the happy beyond.

Y. E. WRIGHT.

JOHNSTON.—The subject of this sketch, Mrs. Mary S. Johnston, wife of Wm. O. Johnston, was born in Duplin County, June 9th, 1851, and died at her home on Harrison Creek, Pender County, December 10th, 1903. The mother of ten children, seven of whom, with her husband survive her. She was greatly afflicted in body and mind for about twenty years, and death to her was a great relief. She was a true wife and mother and an exemplary Christian, genuinely converted, and identified herself with the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, at about twelve years of age, and remained a devoted member until death. May the Lord greatly bless and comfort the husband and children, and may they be prepared to meet her in that land far away where all is joy, and peace, and love.

Y. E. WRIGHT.

LANE.—Julia Harris Lane, the oldest daughter of J. J. and Mrs. E. H. Lane, was born July 13, 1895, and was called to leave this tenement of clay for a home of bliss October 14, 1903. Little Julia was a good, bright and beautiful child, a star in the home, and a constant joy to all her many friends and relatives. It was a sad providence that called away one so young and hopeful; but she has gone before to be a beacon light to guide all the dear ones to that clime where all is light and love.

May a gracious Father bring all the bereaved to Himself when the storms of life are over.

W. H. TOWNSEND.

BROWN.—Mrs. Eleanor Brown (nee Kilpatrick), wife of James Brown of Craven County, was born March 26, 1830, and entered into rest July 26, 1903. Sister Brown was converted under the ministry of Rev. H. H. Gibbons, in 1848, and united with the M. E. Church, South.

This mother in Israel led a constant, joyful and exemplary Christian life. She knew in whom she believed, and enjoyed daily the witness of the Spirit. Serenity and cheerfulness clothed her as with a garment. When the last fatal illness came and life was slowly ebbing away this saintly spirit spoke of her approaching dissolution without fear and with sublime resignation to her Father's will departed in holy triumph.

Sister Brown was a devoted wife, a fond mother, a kind neighbor, and an undimmed light in the church of God.

A husband and many relatives and friends and the church of Christ are bereaved by the departure of this noble soul.

W. H. TOWNSEND.

WINSTEAD.—Joseph Winstead was born February 6, 1883, and died at his home at Winsteadville, August 18, 1903. It was my privilege to know this brother for nearly two years prior to his death. He was a regular attendant of our services at Bethany Church, and Secretary of the Sunday-school for several years. He was one of the noblest young men I ever knew. I have never known one that was more generally beloved nor more sincerely lamented by those that knew him. His devotion to his mother, his brothers and sisters, and his friendly disposition toward all with whom he came in contact have given him a place in their memory and affections that will never be filled by another. Although in an agony of suffering, when he realized that the end was near he called his loved ones, one by one, thanked them for their kindness, made them farewell and exhorted them to meet him in heaven. Trying as this was, it was done with a composure and heroism that was truly sublime. By the grace of God we hope to meet him in the better world.

DEATH BY NEGLECT.

Dr. D. M. Bye, the eminent specialist, of Indianapolis, who cures cancer by the use of a combination of oils, says thousands of persons die from cancer every year from no cause save neglect. If taken in time not one case in a thousand need be fatal. The fear of the knife or the dread of the burning, torturing plaster, causes a few to neglect themselves till they pass the fatal point. By far the greater portion die because their friends or relatives, on whom they are dependent, are insensible to their sufferings and impending danger till it is too late. If you have friends afflicted write today for free book, giving particulars. Address Dr. D. M. Bye Co., Drawer 505, Indianapolis, Ind.

You Are to Be the Judge!

JEFFERSON SAID:

"I believe that there are certain substances, by which, applied to the Human Body, either externally or internally, or both, Nature can be assisted, and by such assistance accomplish in a short time what Nature otherwise, unaided, would do slowly."

And Jefferson believed but little in doctors! What was true in his time is true to-day, that at best we can only assist Nature. It is for this we claim for Vitæ-ore its full position of nature aided from the ground like gold and silver. Nothing unreasonable, nor natural or supernatural. It assists nature and thus accomplishes in a short time what nature unaided would do slowly. It only builds, makes more rapid and sufficient the natural processes of resistance from disease, from waste and decay. It stimulates the natural forces to greater activity to quicker action in a rational health making manner, and thus cures where revolutionary treatments fail even to benefit.

We want you to judge it, to learn for yourself whether or not Jefferson was right, and it at our expense. We are willing to take the risk.

Sent on Thirty Days' Trial!

Read Our Special Offer!

WE WILL SEND to every subscriber or reader who writes us, mentioning the RALEIGH CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, a full sized $1.00 package of Vitæ-Ore, by mail, postpaid, sufficient for one month's treatment to be paid for within one month's time after receipt if the receiver can truthfully say that it has done him or her more good than all the doctors' prescriptions, quinine, and patent medicines he or she has ever used. Read this over again carefully, and understand that we ask to pay only when it has done you good and not before. We take all the risk; you have nothing to lose. If it does not benefit you you pay us no thing. Vitæ-Ore is a natural mineralmatter, crude substance—mineral—Ore—mined from the ground like gold and silver, and requires about twenty years for oxidization. It contains iron, free sulphur and magnesium, and one package will equal in medicinal strength and curative value 800 gallons of the most powerful, delicate mineral water drunk fresh at the springs. It is a geological discovery to which there is nothing added or taken from. It is the marvel of the century for curing such diseases as Rheumatism, Bright's Disease, Blood Poisoning, Heart Trouble, Dropsy, Catarrh and such Affections, Liver and Kidney and Bladder Ailments, Stomach and Female Disorders, Malarial Fever, Nervous Prostration and General Debility as thousands testify, and as to one, answering this, writing for a package, we deny after using. Vitæ-Ore has cured more chronic, obstinate, pronounced incurable cases than any other known medicine and will reach such cases with a more rapid and powerful and curative action than any medicine, combination of medicines, or doctor's prescription which it is possible to procure.

VITÆ-ORE will do the same for you as it has for hundreds of readers of this paper if you will give it a trial. Send for a $1.00 package at our risk. You have no big to lose but the stamp to answer this announcement. We take the risk. If the medicine does not benefit you, write us so and there is no harm done. We want no one's money whom Vitæ Ore cannot benefit. Is not anything he or she has ever tried, and sensible person, no matter how prejudiced he or she may be, who does a square and fair thing to trial for it, would do right by Vitæ-ore on this liberal offer? One package is usually sufficient to cure ordinary cases; two or three for chronic, obstinate cases. We mean just what we say in this announcement and will do just what we agree. Write to-day for a package at our risk and expense giving your age and ailments, and mention this paper, so that we may know that you are entitled to this liberal offer.

YOU ARE TO BE THE JUDGE!

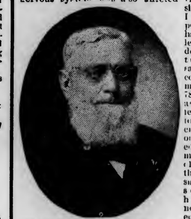
ENTIRELY CURED OF RHEUMATISM AT THE AGE OF 78.

Rev. John Fuchs, the Well-Known Evangelical Minister, Tells of Wonderfully Quick Results.



I was afflicted with Rheumatism for many years, the attacks being especially severe during cold weather. I could not sleep nights on account of the pain, which centered in my back and left leg. My nervous system was also affected that when I shaved myself I had to support the left side with the hand with the left one. The doctors who treated me said they could not help me as I was 78 years old and my system according to them, was entirely worn out. I do not like to be filled with so many kinds of medicine that I had a small drug-store at home, but no thing helped me. I had new hopes, as summer approached, that the warm weather would bring me relief, but this hope was not gratified, as I grew no better. Then I gave up all thought of a cure, thinking that the doctors were right and that nothing could help me.

One day I read the VITÆ-ORE advertisement in our existing church paper, and sent for a package on trial as advertised. After five days I counted the dollar for the treatment, as it had in that short time done me so much good that I was then willing to pay the money. After using two packages I was entirely cured of Rheumatism and my nervous system is now so wonderfully improved and strengthened that I can walk with as much force and vigor as I could twenty or twenty-five years ago. VITÆ-ORE has caused an entire change in my system, seeming to make a new man of me. I wanted to walk with my report until I was fully convinced that the benefit is entirely and permanent and while at the time without the least inducement from the Theo. Noel Company mere throw in a special lotion toward God and the whole FIVITÆ-ORE medicine, as well as the advertising in our church paper. I hope at Vitæ-Ore will continue to be a blessing to all suffering mankind.

REV. N. A. BARR

Has Used It, and Also Seen Its Action in Other Cases. Read What he Says:

I have been troubled for a number of years with an anæmic condition of the blood and weak digestive organs. I tried different remedies that were recommended to me and received treatment from a number of different physicians. I could see very little improvement. I was about discouraged experiencing a vacation during the hot weather. My attention was directed to Vitæ-ore. I sent for a package and in nearly three months I have a woman well. I used to use the third package and I can truthfully say that Vitæ-ore has helped me more than any other remedy or medical treatment I have ever taken. I can now eat and relish a hearty meal. Scientific physicians are using it, mostly chronic cases of long standing in Liver, Stomach, Blood and Kidney Trouble. The reports that have been received from these people are all favorable. In every instance, where directions are followed, he writer honestly believes that Vitæ-Ore will do what it claims to do, especially in digestive, Blood and Kidney Disorders. N. A. BARR,

NOT A PENNY UNLESS BENEFITED!

Your Doctor

May tell you that your case is incurable, that medical science is unable to help you that all you can expect is temporary or slight relief. Well let him think so. He is certainly entitled to his opinion. You need not think so if less you wish to. Many people whose testimony appears in the books and pamphlets of the Theo. Noel Company were told that their cases were hopeless, helpless impossible incurable, past all recovery, yet—read their testimony. Many were told that they had but a few short years—some but months—to live, yet—read their testimony. There are some things in Heaven and earth that are dreamed of in the Doctor's philosophy, but Vitæ-Ore is one of them.

GOOD EXTERNALLY ALSO—Although Vitæ-Ore is intended primarily to be taken into the system through the stomach and thereafter by a natural process also finding its way into the blood, the vehicle which conveys its curative properties to all parts of the body, it possesses qualities character sic of it exclusively which render it wonderfully effective as an external applicant, acting on the seat of affection. In certain disorders, as Throat Troubles, which it is used externally as a spray, gargle or swab, according to the printed directions which accompany the Ore, the Elixir comes into direct contact with the diseased and inflamed membrane, right to the base of the trouble and receives the first assimilated with the blood, as is the case in organic disorders. It is this positive property which has made it such a powerful specific for Diphtheria that we set at all throat troubles, and explain above remedy which will cure Rheumatism can also vanquish this dread disorder, as has been frequently asked. In cases of Piles, the Vitæ-Elixir, applied full strength to the afflicted parts, exerts a natural astringent effect, which, in co-operation with the remedial action secured by its internal use at the same time, brings about a cure in short order and we have no hesitation in matching it against any remedy or combination of remedies advertised exclusively for the cure of this trouble.

Particularly in Eczema, Salt Rheum, Acne and all Skin Disorders, as well as old Sores and Ulcers, its value used externally as well as internally is specially demonstrated, and more quickly than any other lotion or preparation that can be used. A complete and permanent cure in these cases is of course dependent upon a thorough and radical cleansing of the blood, for which purpose there is nothing equal to Vitæ-Ore internally, but a few applications of the Elixir, externally, have been known in thousands of cases to accomplish what weeks of other treatments could not, and followed by the intelligent use internally as purified and enriched the blood as to make a return of the trouble impossible. No person suffering from any Eczematous affection of skin disease should hesitate for one moment in giving Vitæ-Ore a trial, and all will find that its merit has in no wise been exaggerated. Vitæ-Ore, internally and externally in cases where the trouble is externally manifested, forms an irresistable combination and acknowledged specific that need only be used by such suffers to be immediately appreciated.

NOTE This offer will challenge the attention and consideration, and afterward the gratitude of every living person who desires better health or who suffers pains, ills and diseases which have defied the medical world and grown worse with age. We care not for your skepticism, but ask only your investigation, and at our expense, regardless of what ills you have, by sending to us for a package. Address

THE WORLD AS WE SEE IT.

Hon. John H. Small, who has been persistent and unwearying in his efforts to secure the Inland Waterway, of which we have written much in these columns does not regard the enterprise as doomed to failure. Mr. Small says that "the Inland Waterway is one of the most meritorious projects connected with internal improvements now before the country, and that it has never been presented to any intelligent individual or to any commercial organization without receiving unstinted approval."

If patience, energy, and wisdom can do anything toward bringing this great enterprise to a successful consummation Mr. Small may congratulate himself—for he possesses these important qualifications.

If John J. Ingalls were alive, he would doubtless revise his doctrines on the iridescent dreaminess of the ten commandments in politics. The action of John F. Shafroth, a member of the House of Representatives, last week indicates that there is at least a conscience in politics. Mr. Shafroth had represented the Tenth Colorado. District for ten years. He become convinced that he was illegally elected to a seat in the Fifty-eighth Congress, and one day last week he gave Shafroth had represented the Tenth Colorado This action of Mr. Shafroth will strike some as being sentimental and foolish, but to those who believe in the absolute sway of morality anywhere and everywhere, his action will appear noble and encouraging.

Anything that affects the welfare of humanity, especially suffering humanity, in North Carolina is of primary importance. That our legislators have seemed indifferent to this fact is one of our misfortunes. We cannot feel that our charitable institutions have received that practical sympathy and help which the generosity of North Carolina in other respects has never failed to manifest.

Why is it that any movement in the direction of a reformatory for juvenile criminals has inevitably been placed in legislative cold storage?

Why is it that the State Hospital for the Insane at Morganton, with one hundred vacant rooms, is compelled to turn away so many pitiable applicants for admission? The rooms are ready, but the State has never given the money sufficient to support the occupants of these rooms. Hence, Superintendent Murphy has been compelled to turn over to the care of our jails, poorhouses, and homes of relatives those for whose care the State, and the State alone, is responsible.

Dr. McKee, the Superintendent of Central Hospital, tells us that every room in this institution is filled, and that, like Dr. Murphy, he is compelled to turn away, many insane men and women, who need the treatment that can be obtained in the Hospital.

These are plain significant questions, which the people of North Carolina must answer. We speak of temperance as the great question which must receive attention by our next Legislature. And it is. But, men and brethren, this care of the insane of our State is another great question. It must receive attention.

In this connection, we will say that in the last few days there has been a conference of the Superintendents of the two Hospitals. The situation was thoroughly canvassed and discussed, and the Boards which will meet in April will be earnestly requested to supply the deficiency which is crying aloud to the people of the whole State. There is no doubt, we trust, that the request of the Superintendents will be more than granted.

The rain came down in torrents; yet the spacious auditorium of the Presbyterian Church was crowded to its utmost capacity. Hon. Wm. Jennings Bryan had come to the capital city to deliver an address to the students of the Agricultural and Mechanical College. The time we speak of in the begining of this paragraph was on Sunday afternoon. The distinguished orator spoke to the Y. M. C. A. of the College. The immense audience, coupled with the fact of down-pouring torrents, spoke eloquently of the continuing hold of the great apostle of Free Silver on the people. In fact, the principle grievance of the people against Mr. Bryan is that his remembrance of the dead is ultra-loyal and abnormal. But this, surely, can be forgiven.

We could not see Mr. Bryan as he spoke. One of those Brobdignagian, yet beautiful hats, whose use in a public audience should be estopped by law, hid not only the speaker, but almost the whole platform on which he stood. By a painful strain of the cervical vertebrae, we could catch fitful glimpses of the speaker's face. We were anxious to see it, for we desired to know what changes two Presidential defeats had wrought upon it. There was a change. The face was fuller and had a ruddier color. The eyes had a more contemplative expression. The lion mane on his head was as black and full as ever. The voice, though superb in its richness, had somewhat of weariness in it. The first few sentences betokened that the speaker was not "on his mettle," and that some of his audience would be disappointed.

Yet Mr. Bryan made a strong, helpful address to those young men. It throbbed with moral, and at times, a spiritual force. As he showered those wealthy sentences upon us, we could not avoid the mental exclamation, "What a wondrous preacher he would have made!" He spoke on several subjects. That on which he dwelt the longest was "The Prince of Peace." We must say that Mr. Bryan's most implacable enemy could not be in his presence without escaping the conviction that the Defeated One has a mental and moral storage battery which is possessed by but few men.

Up to a week ago the war between Russia and Japan was full of stirring events which satisfied the hunger of the most avid sensation hunter. Pictures of anchoring transports, manœuvering war vessels, and torpedoed cruisers danced in horrid insistency before the mind's eye.

But within the last week nothing startling has occurred. If anything startling has occurred, we know nothing of it. The Japanese, in their secretiveness, have cut all cables of communication, both electrical and verbal. The censorship obtaining in Russia prevents even the Russians from knowing what is going on. In the last few days, however, the censorship has been annulled, and a few days of liberty has dawned for Russia.

We know that Japan has landed a large number of troops in Korea, which has not yet aroused from its indifference. The Japanese troops at the present writing, have massed themselves on the Yalu River, which separates the Korean peninsula from Manchuria. Some of the troops have passed over to Harbin, which is near the intersection of the Vladivostock and Port Arthur branches of the Trans-Siberian Railroad. It is hardly likely that the Japanese troops will venture as far North as Harbin.

Russia is just beginning to move troops eastward. When it is remembered that these troops will have to be transported over a line of railroad six thousand miles long, the reader can form some idea of the time that must intervene between now and the opening of extensive hostilities on land. The difficulty in transporting troops and supplies to the scene of conflict is one of the greatest disadvantages with which Russia will have to contend.

The Russian feeling against England and the United States is very bitter. The most intelligent observers fear a general international complication. There are so many interests involved that this fear is well-founded. There are a great many dispatches, however, which are false. The yellow journals must have grist, you know. We will try to give our readers only that which they may accept as fact.

McClure's for March adds still further to its well established reputation as a torch-bearer in the magazine world. It is still going before, lighting the way. In this number the light is shed on several of the nation's dark places greatly to the interest of the public. Especially startling in its illumination is a powerful article on "The Case of the State of Kentucky versus Caleb Powers," by Samuel Hopkins Adams, who tersely and dramatically reads the lines of this dark page in Kentucky's history. For the first time on a printed page Mr. Adams presents the facts concerning the bitter political feud which cost the life of William Goebel, the man who raised himself by his own boot-straps into the governorship of a great State, and the efforts of his followers and friends to revenge his death in reckless and wrathful disregard of every other consideration.

Soul-winning Our Work.

REV. R. H. WHITAKER.

More stress was laid on "Gifts and Graces," in the early history of Methodism, in reckoning of the qualities needed by the person who was to go out as an ambassador for Christ, than in this our day. We are bordering upon that condition of things which was very plain to Mr. Wesley, and was, by him, made very apparent to the Protestant world, a century and a half ago, when the preacher's qualifications were supposed to be education and ordination. Consequently we are drifting away from the idea that "gifts and graces" are essentials.

The reader must not jump at the conclusion that I am going to depreciate education, for I am not. I detest, as much as any one can, the idea that one must be an ignoramus to become a teacher in sacred things; and I deplore the fact that so many of us, who are endeavoring to let our light shine, have so little light to give out, in the way of better education; for, I am conscious that, in this age of reasons and scientific research, when the Jew asks for a sign, and the Greek seeks after wisdom, that the man of God, who is to measure lances with sceptics of every kind, should be thoroughly prepared for the task he undertakes.

But, I do insist that to be successful soul winners (and that after all is the main object of preaching), we must not so exalt education as to minify "gifts and graces;" nor should we admit, because one is educated he therefore possesses them. They are not one and the same, but as different as things can be. A man may be educated in all the wisdom of the world and in all the religions of the world as well, and he may be a theologian, able to teach all the doctrines of the Bible, and to route all the heresies that ingenuity can devise; and yet he may not be a soul-winner.

St. Paul drew some distinctions in the 13th chapter of first Corinthians, when he said: "Though I speak with the tongues of men and of angels, and have not charity, I am become as sounding brass, or a tinkling cymbol. Though I have the gift of prophecy, and understand all mysteries, and all knowledge, and though I have all faith so that I could remove mountains, and have not charity, I am nothing. And though I bestow all my goods to feed the poor, and though I give my body to be burned, and have not charity, it profiteth me nothing."

It is very evident that, in Paul's estimation, something more is needed, to fit one for successful gospel work, than eloquence, gift of prophecy, faith, liberality or even giving one's body to be burned. He must have the grace of love.

Without undertaking to give definitions of the two words separately, I assume, that, taken together, they become a term which suggest to the mind that which is spiritual as contradistinguished from that which is acquired, from instructors and by the reading of books. In short, "gifts and graces" stand for that charity which Paul says: "Suffereth long and is kind; envieth not; vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up; doth not behave itself unseemly, seeketh not her own, is not easily provoked, thinketh no evil; rejoiceth not in iniquity, but rejoiceth in the truth."

If I am correct in my definition, then, it stands to reason that a minister's qualifications for soul-saving labors are sadly deficient, how eloquent soever he may be, without "gifts and graces."

I, therefore, come to this conclusion, that successful soul winning is not the result of that education of the head which places one man above another in the realm of science, or gives one the advantage over the masses in public speaking; that, eloquence of tongue, nor elegance of style, nor logic, nor rhetoric, nor all together, can take the place of that important something which "gifts and graces" alone can supply.

The best equipped gospel minister is the one who has learned to utilize all his powers and gifts. A small gun, carrying small shells, if well manned and skillfully handled, will do better execution than a larger gun so unwieldly that it cannot be brought down to a proper range, but throws its great shells over the head of the enemy, doing him no harm, and accomplishing nothing beyond making a great noise. In support of the above proposition I will take the liberty of referring to two preachers, whom I knew well, and for whom I had, while they lived, the very highest regard. One of them was a preacher of very high order, and always drew fine congregations. His thorough book knowledge made him the peer of any man in discussing, learnedly, any phase of theology, or any question of science, or any system of government; and, it was like reading an encyclopedia, to hear him preach one of his well studied sermons. But, when the benediction was pronounced, it fell upon hearts that had not been touched. I heard that he said before he died, that if any soul had been brought to Christ by him he was not aware of it.

The other preacher to whom I refer did not have in early life those educational advantages which are supposed to be necessary to fit men to preach; but, he used all the knowledge he had, and all that he could acquire, daily adding to his store, until he grew to be a giant; not in theory, merely, but in practice. He acquired as he had need, and brought into immediate use every thing acquired; so that, theory remained theory no longer than it took him to put it into practice. Consequently he had no theories: with him, life was intensely practical, and soul-saving being the height of his ambition, he went at his work in a practical way, using practical means. In his mind had been fixed Bible statements that he could not doubt; therefore, his creed was as simple as were those Bible statements, and he wasted no time in trying to reconcile those statements with theories, the eggs of which were laid by "Advanced Thinkers" and hatched out by "Higher Critics."

His creed was, God made man in His own image; man sinned, therefore last that image; but, God so loved the world, the sin-cursed world —that He gave His Son, that whosoever believeth might not perish, but have eternal life.

With a creed so simple, so easy to understand, and with a logic that aimed not to bolster up theories, but to impress truths; and with a soul-purpose aflame with love, he went out seeking and saving, and thousands, through his efforts, were brought out of darkness, into the marvellous light and liberty of the gospel.

The only point I am trying to make is, that a little knowledge well used, is a great deal better than knowing so much, and using so little to the glory of God. And this leads me to say, that too many very good people, in order to keep up with advanced thought, are filling up on stuff they can never use for God's glory; and, instead of its being a means of spiritual growth, it weakens their faith, and destroys their taste for spiritual food.

"In the last days perilous times shall come," said the Apostle Paul, writing to Timothy, just before his death; and then he goes on to describe the conditions which would exist in those perilous times saying: "Men shall be lovers of their own selves." * * * "Having the form of Godliness, but denying the power thereof;" * * * "Ever learning, but never able to come to the knowledge of the truth:" * * * "Will not endure sound doctrine;" * * * "Shall turn away their ears from the truth, and shall be turned unto fables."

In view of so sad a state of affairs in the church of God, the sainted Apostle, rising in his feelings to the height of his earnest desire to stay the flood tide of error, utters these solemn words: "I charge thee, therefore, before God, and the Lord Jesus Christ, who shall judge the quick and the dead at His appearing and His kingdom; PREACH THE WORD!" And not only preach, but "reprove, rebuke, exhort."

Dear old Paul; how anxious he was to see his Master's kingdom established; yet, how sad to his heart the prophetic view of the perilous times, when the so-called people of God would have "itching ears," and because they could not endure sound doctrine they would "heap to themselves teachers" who would lower the standard of the Gospel to suit their back-slidden condition!

I do not say that the period to which Paul referred, in his last letter to Timothy, has come; but, I will say, these are perilous times; and if we would transmit the church of Christ, in as good condition as we found it, to our children, we must heed the Apostle's earnest injunction: "Preach the Word!" And, in so doing, give no attention to scientific theories, nor to advanced thinkers' speculations; but use as our motto Paul's declaration to the Corinthians: "I determined not to know anything among you save Jesus Christ and Him crucified!"

A Message from Wilmington.

Dear Bro. Ivey:—Let me send you a short message from Wilmington—the City by the Sea.

This is a delightful residence place for a Methodist preacher; the people honor him as the servant of God and it is their choice pleasure to make him feel that they are glad to have him minister to them in holy things. The hearty, loving welcome given me as pastor of Fifth Street Church should satisfy anybody. I have never been more kindly received, or had more substantial evidences of appreciation. I feel highly honored to be the pastor of this heroic band of tested workers. I shall under grace do them the best work in my power. The field here is one of the most hopeful I have ever seen. Ten years from now the preachers will be falling over each other trying to get this charge.

The Methodist preachers in Wilmington are a noble band. (The writer will try not to lower the average much.)

First in place and importance is our Presiding Elder. Rev. R. B. John fills the place as leader. He is big of body and brain, with a heart to match. We love and fully trust him. As a wide-awake, sensible, energetic worker, he has no superior. He feels the great responsibility of his office, and the district is being rapidly and wisely developed under his skillful guidance. The preachers on this district will have to move fast to keep up with this hustling Elder. We thank God for him, and pray God's blessing upon him.

Grace Church has the peerless Watson as pastor. In the strenuous language of President Roosevelt, the people of Grace are "delighted" with Watson. He is wearing out shoe leather in the week and straining brain cells on Sunday. Everybody loves this sunny natured, tender hearted, big brained man. Can he? Yes, sir! Those Grace people say he can preach.

Market Street Church is proud of Haltom. He looks after all their interests with fidelity; humble, lovable, consecrated, he is a blessing to any community. Long may his bow abide.

Bladen Street Church has a Webster for pastor. His relation to Noah and Daniel I do not know. He is a hustler—he loves the church, and the word failure has been cut out of his lexicon. Rich blessings upon him.

We are all comrades in the work of our Lord, and are hoping and praying for great things this year.

Our Missionary Institute was held in Grace Church the 9th and 10th of February, and was a success. Our Presiding Elder had things ready for practical work. I think much good will result from our deliberations.

Come to see us this year, eat and sleep in our homes, preach in our churches, take subscriptions for the Advocate from our members, bathe in our ocean and return to Raleigh a wiser, cleaner and richer man.

Success to you in your work.

Affectionately, A. McCULLEN.

Memoir of Rev. Levi Branson, D. D.

BY REV. ROBAH F. BUMPAS.

The subject of this sketch was one of the most widely known local ministers of our church, and for half a century had been prominently connected with the material and intellectual development of his native State. He organized the Local Preacher's Conference to promote the greater efficiency of the local ministry. He belonged to that class of men who were the pioneer home missionaries of our church, who cultivated the waste places, gathered congregations and organized churches. They had behind them no board of missions and looked for no pecuniary reward. Unfortunately it is a class that is rapidly passing away.

Levi Branson was born in Randolph County, February 5, 1832. He was reared by pious parents, and when a boy gave his heart to God and joined the Methodist Church. In 1856 he graduated from Trinity College, and in 1857 was licensed to preach the gospel, and in due course ordained deacon and elder.

In 1858 he was happily married to Miss Edith Cunninggim, a sister of the late Rev. Jesse A. Cunninggim, D. D., and the Rev. Wm. H. Cunninggim. Seven children were born to them, three of whom survive, Eugine C. Branson, of the State Normal, Athens, Ga.; Mrs. Lillian B. Simmons, wife of Rev. George T. Simmons, of the North Carolina Conference, and Mrs. Daisy B. Marchman, the wife of a minister of the North Georgia Conference.

Upon leaving college Mr. Branson was for some time Principal of Lenoir Institute. In 1862 he removed to Raleigh and opened a book store, which he continued for many years. During the Civil War he published a series of school books some of which were edited by his sister, Mrs. Mary B. Moore: The Dixie Speller, Reader, Arithmetic and Geography. He also edited a religious paper called "The Enterprise." For many years he published the Agricultural Almanac, the calculations for which were made by Dr. Braxton Craven until his death. He also published the State Directory, York's Grammer, three volumes of North Carolina Sermons, and a number of other books.

This summary, brief and incomplete as it necessarily is for lack of fuller data, is nevertheless sufficient to indicate that through a long life Brother Branson labored assidiously to develop the material resources and advance the intellectual and religious interests of his native State. The one great desire of his heart was to do something for the uplifting of humanity, that his life might prove a blessing to his fellow men.

His Alma Mater honored him with the degree of A. M., and Rutherford College with that of D. D.

Three years ago his health began to fail, but so gradual was the progress of disease, that he often entertained the hope of recovery. Last April he became helpless. He was carried to his daughter's in Atlanta, but continued to grow feeble. He became weary of life, yet continued patient and submissive. A few days before the silver cord was loosed, he called his wife to his bedside and said: "I shall not be with you many more days." She asked: "If it is the Father's will to call you are you ready and willing to go?" "Yes, willing," he replied, "and my hope is in Jesus, my Savior."

His funeral was conducted by the writer from Central Church, Raleigh, with which he was so long identified, and his body awaits the resurrection trumpet, in our beautiful Oakwood Cemetery.

Temperance.

Let us face the situation now, just as it is.

I, and a man of the world, start with loaded wagons for a still. He has corn for the still and I have corn for the still. I want to know now the difference between our lights. We are both sowing the seed of distruction. My seed that I am sowing side by side with this ungodly man, will spring up, and develop every species of wickedness known to God or man.

My associate is doing just the thing the world and everybody expects of him. But am I? No, indeed religion don't look for this sort of work, from a church member. As I wagon my corn to the old still house, James 3:11,12, speaks to me in these words: "Doth a fountain send forth at the same place, sweet water and bitter?"

Can the fig tree, my brethren, bear olive berries? Either a vine figs? So can no fountain both yield salt water and fresh.

Then James lets me know that I can't serve God and the devil, out of the same heart, if I am a church member. My example is a thousand times more degraded than the ungodly, who make no pretentions to religion. This is the way I see it, and I firmly believe that I see it right. There is enough professed Christianity to banish the liquor curse from the land if it were pure; but the religion that will flood the world with the whiskey curse will not stand at the judgment day. Hence all such pretended religion is a curse to any people. Pure religion blesses the nations of the earth.

Then if I sow seed that comes forth and develops every species of wickedness known to man Ezekiel would come to me and all other such slack twisted professors of religion in these words, 18:24: "But when the righteous turneth away from his righteousness, and committeth iniquity, and doeth according to all the abominations that the wicked man doeth, shall he live? All his righteousness that he hath done shall not be mentioned. In his trespass that he hath tresspassed, and in his sin that he hath sinned, in them shall he die."

The great need of our country today is "Nathans." Yes, men who will stand up and say to slack-twisted church members: "Thou art the man." R. Q. A. TEAGUE.

A Protest and Correction.

Dear Advocate:—I wish to correct the misstatements of Brother Grant—for he has most assuredly misrepresented me. I never wrote one word to any paper about my trip to Ocracoke. Brother Whichard, editor of the Greenville Reflector, knew I had been in that direction, and asked me about it. Parties on Ocracoke had stated to me the tide was higher than it had been since August, 1899. I told simply what residents of Ocracoke had told me.

As to being frightened while there, that is the first suggestion I have ever heard about my being frightened in that section. A regular sea turtle seldom fears a storm—it is only the highland terrapin that cannot stand salt water and wind at the same time. The old Elder has been used to boats and water from babyhood, and the idea of a high-land speckle-back terrapin calling an old weather-beaten salt-water turtle frightened at a cats paw is simply absurd.

I wonder what the elements had to do with the great loyalty of Brother Grant to the appointing power when he was really willing to move out on the main land?

I respectfully suggest that before my young brother arraigns an old man up for cowardice that he try at least to secure the facts, and state only what he knows to be facts, in order that he may not misrepresent an innocent brother. I really enjoyed being at Ocracoke, and so manifest was my pleasure at the scene that my good brother, Capt. J. W. Howard, thought I ought to stay on the water.

I think Dr. Grant is about the only one on the island who ever dreamed that the Elder was frightened. That old saying that the man drunk thinks every one else is drunk, is the only plan on which I can excuse Dr. Grant for his misrepresentations.

Very truly.

Rev. Dr. A D. Betts.

A man by nature richly endowed—a fragrant and generous soul, to whom goodness is easy and natural under the sunshine of grace. He does not have to study to be good—goodness is not a thing that he has to purpose in his soul—it is the opening of his soul in its purely natural life under grace, just as beauty and fragrance are the opening of a flower in its own sweet life. Dr. Betts is the born gentleman—full of all human excellence—unselfish, large-hearted and noble, ready for every good word and work.

He has lived to make the world brighter and purer and sweeter. He is a lifter of burdens from the hearts of his fellow men. His pathway is a pathway of light. He is the child of the day. Good-will to all men has been the song of his life. The love of Christ has been the sweet constraint of his labors. And in it all he has had the peace of God in his heart and has been one of the happiest of the servants of the King.

A man without an enemy—a man that never lost a friend—a man beloved by everybody, and that himself loves everybody, and that loves God best, is the venerable Dr. Betts.

Dear Dr. Ivey:—Will it be pardonable in a preacher who has not been pounded to write to the Advocate? It seems, as we are not to blame, we might be allowed the privilege. We came to our work about two months ago, have made two rounds, met a great many of our people, kindly received and treated everywhere.

Our first Quarterly Conference was the fifth Sunday in January. The weather was so unfavorable that few could attend, but it was far from being a failure, for Brother Hurley was on hand. You know Brother Hurley, and you know where he is concerned there is no such thing as failure. We have held a four days' meeting at one of our churches—Bascome's Chapel. We feel that much good was accomplished, old animosities buried, three joined the church, with others to follow, and a Sunday-school organized.

We send one renewal to the Advocate.

We think we have a field in which much may be accomplished for the Master, and we pray that God give us knowledge and strength for the work.

Enjoy the blessings of this day if God sends them, and the evils of it bear patiently and sweetly, for this day is only ours; we are dead to yesterday, and we are not yet born to tomorrow. But if we look abroad, and bring into one day's thoughts the evil of many, certain and uncertain, what will be and what will never be, our load will be as intolerable as it is unreasonable.—Jeremy Taylor.

Remember that charity thinketh no evil, much less repeats it. There are two good rules which ought to be written on every heart—never believe anything bad about anybody unless you positively know it is true; never tell even that unless you feel that it is absolutely necessary, and that God is listening while you tell it.—Henry van Dyke.

Trust in yourself, and you are doomed to disappointment; trust in your friends and they will die and leave you; trust in money, and you may have it taken from you; trust in reputation, and some slanderous tongue may blast it; but trust in God, and you are never to be confounded in time or eternity.

A Winter Revival.

Dear Advocate:—I left Wilmington this morning where I've been helping Brother Webster in a meeting for two weeks.

It has not been a very great meeting, yet we have had perhaps a dozen professions. Eight were at the altar for prayers last night, and the meeting will continue. May they yet have a time of great ingathering of souls.

Bladen Church is coming. There has been a big improvement under the pastorate of Webster.

They need a new church badly to house the congregation and Sunday-school. It ought to be built at an early day.

This is three years in succession I have held a meeting at Bladen Street, and my faith is still growing in regards to her future.

Am with Brother Benson this week at Nashville helping at one of his country churches. We expect a real summer-time revival.

Who but a Hdye County man would hold revival services in February at a country church? Benson will do, and so will all the Hyde County people.

Yours for salvation,

J. V. WILLIAMS.

Letter from Dr. Whisner.

My Dear Doctor:—I am grateful to be able to state , for the encouragement of our people in the North Carolina Conference, that the collections for Church Extension for 1903 are over $92,000, which is an increase over the preceding year of over $14,000. The increase in your Conference is $774 over the preceding year.

I learn from your minutes of 1903 that you have 704 societies and 674 churches, or thirty societies that are without a church. Your Conference has paid in the twenty-one years of the history of our Church Extension organization in the annual collections, a total of $45,532.94, to Special $2,318.85 and to the Loan Funds $97.85, and during the same period one hundred and ninety-five, or largely more than one-fourth of your churches, have been aided with donations amounting to $30,209, and loans amounting to $7,750. This shows how large a proportion of the gifts of your people to this cause has been spent on the churches of your own Conference. I hope your readers will note the fact too, that large as is the increase in the contributions by your Conference in 1903, they have a deficiency of $1,115 on the Church Extension collection. And large as is the increase in the church at large, the deficiency is also large. The assessment was $125,000 and the payment less than $93,000 for Church Extension.

I am rejoiced at the disposition shown by many to pay assessments for missions in full, and I hope the same interest will be manifest to pay Church Extension assessments in full. The demands made upon the Board of Church Extension are very far beyond their means, and this demand is more and more from the mission fields, and unless our income is largely increased, the work of our church in the foreign, as well as in the home field, is certain to be very greatly embarrassed. May I not hope, therefore, that the Presiding Elders in your Conference will see to it that proper emphasis is put upon the Church Extension collection in their District and Quarterly Conferences, and that collections in full for Church Extension will be the motto of pastors and people in every charge in the North Carolina Conference for the year 1904?

Most truly yours,

P. H. WHISNER, Cor. Sec.

In Memoriam.

The Rev. Jesse Hayes Page was born in Wake County, North Carolina, May 23, 1831. He was a son of Anderson Page, who was one of the oldest Methodists in the State when he died, only a few years ago, at the age of ninety-four. This Methodist patriarch reared several sons and daughters, nearly all of whom were staunch members of the M. E. Church, South, and were all influential in their day and generation. The subject of this memoir gave a long life to the work of the church as teacher and preacher, and no man ever had more friends, and fewer enemies, within a circle of a large acquaintance han he. He was educated at South Lowell Academy and Randolph-Macon College, and thereby thoroughly furnished for his life work.

He went to Brinkleyville, Halifax County, N. C., where he opened a school in 1855. There he married Miss Martha Eliza Wills on the second day of December, 1856. She was a daughter of the Rev. William H. Wills, D. D., who was a leading minister of the Methodist Protestant Church. Brother Page taught school at Brinkleyville until 1861. He joined the North Carolina Conference of the Methodist Protestant Church in 1858, and was elected Secretary of that Conference in 1859. He established a female school at Brinkleyville, N. C., which he taught until he enlisted and went into the Confederate Army, which he did as a private in the First Regiment of North Carolina troops. He served the six months time for which he volunteered; then came home and taught his school for a while, he then voluntered as a private in the Forty-third Regiment of North Carolina troops, and was afterwards appointed chaplain of his regiment. After the close of the war, he returned to Brinkleyville and taught his school in 1865. In 1866, he traveled the Tar River Circuit of the Methodist Protestant Conference. In 1867 and 1868 he taught again at Brinkleyville; in 1869 he moved to Whitakerstown, N. C., where he taught two years, and traveled a circuit. He moved to Guilford County in 1871 and taught there two years. In 1873 he moved to Cary, N. C., where he taught until 1877. In 1878 he traveled the Halifax Circuit of the Methodist Protestant Conference. In 1879 he was made President of the Methodist Protestant Conference. In 1880 he moved to Winston. In 1881 he united with the North Carolina Conference, M. E. Church, South, after which he filled the following appointments:

Lenoir Station and Circuit, 1881-2; Rock Spring Circuit, 1883-4; Rockingham Station, '85-6-7; Kinston Station, 1888; Concord Station, 1889-90; Statesville Station, 1891-2; Morganton Station, 1893-4; Aberdeen Circuit, 1895-6-7; Rockingham Station, 1898; Laurinburg Station, 1899. At the Conference held in Elizabeth City in 1899, he asked for and obtained a superannuated relation. His active ministry came to an end, as he was literally worn out in the work. After he retired from the active work, he lived for a year and a half in Laurinburg, one year in Rockingham, and then settled in Henderson, N. C., where he died December 10, 1903, in the seventy-third year of his age.

Brother Page was an able minister of the New Testament. He was remarkable as an expositor of the Word, and an eminent Biblical preacher. His sermons were always edifying and instructive. He was an Israelite indeed, in whom there was no guile. He was simple and childlike in manner, but as firm in purpose as as a rock. When he thought he was right, he was absolutely fearless and immovable. He was a man greatly beloved by a host of friends and acquaintances.

During the last few months of his life his mind gave way so completely that he frequently did not know his dearest friends. He gradually grew weaker in body and mind, until the weary wheels of life stood still at last, and he quietly retired to Abraham's bosom.

He leaves a devoted wife, one son and five daughters, besides a large circle of relatives and friends to mourn his death.

Earth has known few truer and purer spirits than that of Rev. Jesse H. Page. When he fell, one of the tallest trees of the forest went down, and as we look up we can see more light through the opening. For there is an indefinable spiritual influence that goes out from such a life; although a cloud may hang over the intellect as it withdraws, yet, there is a spiritual radiance that was never seen on land or sea. His face, after death wore a serene expression, that impressed all who saw it.

"Though from the borne of time and place,
The flood has borne him far;
We know he met his pilot face to face,
When he crossed the bar."

The Handbook and Infant Baptism.

"Editor Ivey, of the Raleigh Christian Advocate, has issued a Year Book for the Methodists of great value. He has laboriously made maps of every District in the State. The only thing in the book out of date is an article endeavoring to prove that infant sprinkling is baptism. The intelligent world has long ago abandoned this position, and it is about time North Carolina Methodists were coming around frankly."—Josiah William Bailey in Biblical Recorder, February 17th.

No, Brother Bailey, you are mistaken. The fools are not near all dead yet. Nine-tenths of all the nominal Christians of the world, denominationally speaking, still contend for the church rights of children. Some immerse them in water under the mistaken notion that water is a symbol of the grave, others let the water fall upon them symbolizing the descent of the Spirit in spiritual baptism, but nearly all preach the old doctrine that Jesus preached that infants belong to the kingdom of God above, and are therefore entitled to be recognized in the kingdom here. We Methodists don't know any better way than the Old Testament way of training up a child in the way he should go, or starting him in the road we would like for him to continue in. We have no better sense than to imitate the example of Jesus who was brought into the visible church by His parents when He was eight days old. (Lk. 2nd chapter), and who staid in the church and died for it. The "intelligent world" may do as it pleases, but we will stick to the ways marked out by divine authority until ordered to do otherwise. No such orders have ever been given.

Truly,

D. L. EARNHARDT.

The Family.

"And as feeble babes that suffer,
Toss and cry, and will not rest
Are the ones the tender mother
Holds the closest, loves the best—
So when we are weak and wretched,
By our sins weighed down, distressed,
Then it is that God's great patience
Holds us closest, loves us best."

God's Care.

("The Lord preserveth them that love Him.")
Though a gift of sorrow.
Crown the year,
What shall be to-morrow
Do not fear;
Nothing need alarm thee.
Sorrow cannot harm thee.
God is near.

What of thy departed?
Safe are they;
Be not thou faint-hearted.
Trust and pray:
When the shadows gather
Hasten to the Father
Every day.

Lose no time in sighing.
Trust and love;
Happy living, dying.
Thou shalt prove
How He changes never,
How He loves forever
Friend above.

Therefore make to-morrow
Glad with song;
Joy comes after sorrow.
Peace stays long;
In His love abiding,
In His shelter hiding.
Be thou strong.

Whose Prayers Were Answered?

Robert J. Burdette, writing in the Baptist Commonwealth, preaches an eloquent sermon on prayer. It is well worth consideration for the sake of what it implies, as well as for what it directly says:

"I remember once upon a time, when I was a boy in Illinois, there was a long dry summer, when it seemed as though the world would be burned up. The Christian people assembled in their churches and prayed one whole day for rain.

"Prayed for rain! One day!

"For cloudless weeks the panting trees of the forest had lifted their curled and wilted leaves day after day praying for rain in the face of the blazing sun. For weeks the brown pastures, cripsed to the very roots, had cried and cried for rain. For weeks the drooping corn-blades hanging about the stalks, limp and withered, had prayed for rain. The dry bed of the little brook that crossed our farm was one long prayer. The very cattle that with the dumb and touching patience of the brutes came down every day to the caked bed of the dry pond, stood where the bank used to be, and prayed for the pond.

"Pray for rain one day! God's world of meadow and hill and brook and field and woods were praying all the time.

"And one night it rained. Soft as a benediction the drops of blessing pattered on the cornblades, and on the brown pastures; you could hear the rising wind sigh, as though it was the parched earth drawing a long breath of relife. All night long, and all next day, and the next night, it rained.

"Did we assemble in our churches, and spend another whole day in thanksgiving?

"We did not. Our pastors thanked God for the rain the following Sunday morning a few days later.

"But, oh, the gratitude of the cornfields and the pastures and the woods! Lifting their leaves and the long green blades to heaven! And the brook singing all day long—such an anthem of joy and gratitude—whispering a soft little solo through the weeds, and breaking out into such a jubilant chorus when a little runway of rocks gave chance for the cascade to lift up its voice. What a joyous, glad, exultant world it was! And the cattle, standing knee-deep in the pond, as though they would say, 'We knew it would fill up again;' drinking and bending their heads to drink again, and thence once more drinking as though they would drain the pond, and then lifting their heads with a long sigh of fullness and contentment—Oh, how glad and how grateful they were!

"And we men said, 'Well, our prayers brought rain.' Every man who had grumbled abont the long drought, every man who had murmured against God, and found fault with his weather for two months, and then offered one prayer in that all-day meeting, thought he had brought the rain.

"Whose prayers do you suppose God answered?

"'Your Heavenly Father knoweth ye have need of these things.'"

Echoes from Dr. Torry.

It is good to be honest, but it is safe to be sure.

What the whole world is hungering for is the pure word of God.

The first purpose of the ministry is to seek and to save the lost.

Out of Christ man is a mere caricature of what God meant him to be.

You cannot have peace down in the depths of your soul unless you take Jesus Christ.

One of the most important functions of ministers is to train and perfect the saints for service.

The minister who is not seeking and saving the lost is a failure so far as his ministry is concerned.

You don't know what real happiness and sunshine are unless you have the love of Christ in your heart.

A real Christian who is out-and-out for Christ has joy unspeakable and full of glory, and no one else has.

If you want the deepest, highest, purest, and most unspeakable joy on earth, take Jesus Christ this very moment.

Just so surely as you receive the baptism of the Holy Ghost will you receive power for service in that sphere to which God has called you.

By a Christian I understand anyone who comes to Christ as a lost sinner, surrendering his will to him, and confessing him before the world.

To be a real Christian you should be ready to go anywhere God wants you to go, do anything he wants you to do, and be anything He wants you to be.

If a minister engages himself in every social function and philanthropic movement to which men invite him, he will leave himself no time for the work God wants him to do.

The Lord's Prayer.

I used to think the Lord's Prayer was a short prayer; but as I live longer, and see more of life, I begin to believe there is no such thing as getting through it. If a man, in praying that prayer, were to be stopped by every word until he had thoroughly prayed it, it would take him a lifetime. "Our Father"—there would be a wall a hundred feet high in just these two words to most men. If they might say, "Our Tyrant," or "Our Monarch," or even "Our Creator," they could get along with it; but "Our Father"—why, a man is almost a saint who can pray that. You read, "Thy will be done;" and you say to yourself, "Oh! I can pray that;" and all the time your mind goes round and round in immense circuits and far-off distances; but God is continually bringing the circuits nearer to you, till He says, "How is it about your temper and your pride? How is it about your business and your daily life?" This is a revolutionary petition. It would make many a man's shop and store tumble to the ground to utter it. Who can stand at the end of the avenue along which all his pleasant thoughts and wishes are blossoming like flowers, and send these terrible words, "Thy will be done," crashing down through it? I think it is the most fearful prayer to pray in the world.—Henry Ward Beecher.

Our Boys and Girls.

For the Little Ones.

Two little stars are peeping
Down on the snow,
While fleecy clouds are leaping
Over them so.
And there is another
Just gleaming behind,
Soon will the vault of heaven,
In countless numbers shine.
The silver stars are twinkling
Down on us here,
While their little eyes are winking,
We have nothing to fear.
The little heavenly candles
Are shining to-night;
Who taught them to shine
With radiancy bright?
They only are pointing
The way to the skies,
Our thoughts they are beckoning,
Upward to rise.

We all like Mrs. Anne Barbery very well. She said she was never going to teach for us again. We all are sorry.

This is my third letter. I am in a hurry, so please excuse bad writing.

My little cousin, Mettie B. Carr, is writing one too, and it is her first letter to the Advocate, so please excuse her bad writing, and perhaps she will do better the next time.

I will close for this time, wishing to see this in print.

Your little friend,
MARY JULIA GORE.

Clayton, N. C., Feb, 4, 1904.

Dear Advocate:—I am a little girl ten years old. I go to Sunday-school every Sunday I can. My teacher is Mrs. B. F. Williams. I like her very much. Our superintendent is Mr. E. B. McCullers, and our pastor is Rev. G. W. Fisher.

My father takes the Advocate, and I enjoy reading the little folk's letters very much, so I thought I would write.

I go to every-day school also. I study the fourth reader, arithmetic, grammar, geography and spelling. My teacher is Mrs. R. F. Williams.

Dr. Ivey preached here last Sunday and Sunday night. I like him very much.

I hope to see this in print.

An unknown friend,
MINNIE POOLE.

"Spirit of truth and love,
Life-giving, holy Dove,
Speed forth thy flight;
Move o'er the waters' face
By thine almighty grace;
And in earth's darkest place,
Let there be light."

From the North Carolina Advocate we clip the following: "A cable message to New York from Seoul, Korea, reached the office of the Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church in this city on the 16th inst., announcing the safety of all the Methodist missionaries in Korea, and the safe arrival from Shanghai of Bishop David H. Moore."

News of war in the far East causes anxious thought for our faithful workers there. The above message is reassuring to the home friends.

Miss Mary Pescud and Mrs. Battis had very attentive listeners at the Union Missionary Meeting at Edenton Street Church last Monday afternoon. Their addresses were full of interest and instruction on Brazil and the inter-denominational meetings in Denver.

The duet, "The Lord is my Shepherd," sung by Mrs. Albright and Miss Nina Green was very much enjoyed, as was the solo by Mrs. Kephart.

Members of the Young Woman's Society and Bright Jewels served the refreshments so bountifully provided by the Edenton Street Auxiliary.

Altogether, it was a very pleasant, instructive, social gathering.

Time and place of next meeting will be decided by the Committee later on.

The shocking news of the burning of Greensboro Female College has just reached our city. How many sad hearts there are today, all over our State, and especially in the Methodist Church, and the Missionary Societies of both Conferences! A large percentage of their numbers are either alumnae, or true, loyal friends of the dear old College.

The Presidents of our Conference Societies, Mrs. Lucy H. Robertson and our own "Aunt Lucy" Cunninggim, have been for years closely allied with the interests of the College; and they have in this hour of utter desolation, the sincere sympathy and earnest prayer of all their sisters.

How many of our Lady Managers read "Aunt Lizzie's" letter to them in the Raleigh Advocate in February? Only one response to her request has been received, but there will be others, if but the importance of the children's work can be sufficiently emphasized. No department of our work is more vital to future usefulness, and we urge the Lady Managers to comply with Mrs. Hendren's request.

Read the following from Miss Hutchings:

My Dear Mrs. Dixon:—In our Advocate of February 3rd, I find a letter from our dear Lady Manager of the Bright Jewels, "Aunt Lizzie."

Now as a loyal Bright Jewel, I must hasten to comply with the little modest request she makes to us Lady Managers.

Edenton Street Bright Jewels have lived the life of the average Societies, I suppose—some times on the mountain tops, then down in the valley; sometimes in the sunlight, ever so many more times in the shade; for some time I am glad to say we have been in the sunlight.

We have good meetings despite the past few weeks of snow, sleet, and rain.

We love the Missionary work. As Lady Manager for many years, I have closely looked into the best methods of interesting the children in the work, and I find the very best way possible is to keep them thinking of it from day to day, and week to week; hence we hold a Jewel meeting every Sabbath afternoon. It is too long to wait four weeks for a meeting—the children lose interest.

While it is work for the Lady Manager, yet it is the life of the Jewel Band—I find it so. It is sweet to work for the Master whenever He calls.

We have had several accessions dur ing the past year—we welcomed two new members last Sabbath.

Our President, one of the girls, conducts the meeting—that, I find, is a great educational school along the line of future Missionary zeal in the years so soon to come, when our Woman Societies are to be officered and the work carried on efficiently.

We take ten copies of the Little Worker and the children enjoy them very much.

I must not make my letter too long or dear Mrs. Dixon will wish she had not made her proposition to "Aunt Lizzie," as she wants space for other letters.

But, in conclusion, I must say I have the children to do all they will in the meetings, even to pray if possible, and that we are educating them up to do.

I will write another letter before long if this is accepted.

The Lady Managers will please write—I am anxious to hear and borrow others' methods.

May God's blessing rest on Aunt Lizzie and the work of the children.

Sincerely yours in the Master's cause.

NARCISSA HUTCHINGS,
Lady Manager Edenton St. Bright Jewels.

Full Reports for the Fourth Quarter.

In one week full reports of the fourth quarter, and all other work that has not been mentioned before should be in the hands of our Conference Corresponding Secretary; also, all communications concerning literature and press work should be in my hands.

Auxiliary Corresponding Secretaries and Treasurers, are you ready? I trust so, and that your reports will bring pleasure and encouragement.

A Reminder.

Lest you may have overlooked my urgent personal requests sent in both January and February, and because I will not be able to send a third, I ask all who have not answered concerning the Press Exhibit to please do so at once. Elizabeth City, Smithfield and Selma have responded beautifully, but I am looking fondly for letters and newspapers from others. Please do not disappoint me. It is right to take pride in our Lord's work, and I believe you feel as much as I do.

Mrs. R. W MacDonnell.

Our General Secretary is now touring the Southwest, in order to thoroughly understand the work there, that she may make a clear and comprehensive presentation of its needs at the meeting of the Board. Her itinerary includes the Cuban schools of Tampa and Key West, the Paine Annex for negro girls in Augusta, Ga., and a number of city missions en route. I know that all the Auxiliaries unite in the earnest hope that her physical strength may continue and that she may receive a double portion of wisdom to aid her in her arduous and loving undertaking.

Read Carefully.

I have been sending items monthly since last June to every Auxiliary on the list given me by our Conference Corresponding Secretary, and have also written several times to the Auxiliary Corresponding Secretaries. Most of the ladies have sent sweet and gracious replies, but there are a few who have never sent me a line, indeed, I have not been able to tell our Board Superintendent if the items are used in the meetings. Sisters, why is this? I do not believe that you realize that this course is unjust to yourselves and unfair to me. It is, however, and I beg you to please send me a message, if only a line, as soon as you read this.

Juvenile Societies.

During this quarter I have been sending items to our four Juvenile Societies, believing that they would be helpful, also that they would be appreciated. Young ladies, please write me at once if I judged aright.

There is nothing more beautiful than a consecrated, useful young Christian, and I feel a specially warm interest in a young Home Mission woman.

Cuban Communications.

At Ybor City 85 children have been enrolled, and Miss Ford says the school has never been in a more satisfactory condition. She is the right woman in the right place, and rejoices in the privilege of training these children for the blessed eternity. Little Dolores and little Candida are our Cuban children who are the special pets of the Spartanburg, S. C., Society, and the Paine Memorial Juvenile Society of New Orleans.

Ruth Hargrove School.

We recall with delight a visit from the elect lady for whom this school was named, Mrs. Hargrove, wife of Bishop Hargrove.

It has recently received a gift of two handsome book cases from the same kind friend who gave a large number of books some time since—Dr. Murray, of Key West. The hall is now called the Rebah Murray Library. Another valuable gift is a horse and buggy, which is a daily reminder of the loving kindness of Mrs. Ross, of Tennessee.

Ruth Hargrove has a strong faculty and a large number of pupils. Miss Reid, the able Principal, has been compelled to turn away boys for lack of room. May Southern mothers wake up to their solemn responsibilities and sacred privileges in these matters!

Our New North Carolina Auxiliaries.

We are looking with eager interest for news from our youngest sisters. I have had charming letters from Mrs. Mims, of Trinity Church, Durham, Mrs. Fisher, of Lake Landing, and Miss Aileen Smith, of Whiteville; but what of the others of the new nine? I believe you are waiting for me to tell you here how I long to be cheered by your messengers—and now that I have done so, I shall expect to hear from you by the end of the week. Suppose you do not see the Advocate—but I shall not make such an unfortunate supposition.

A Repetition.

Many of our Home Mission members take the Raleigh Advocate (all who write to me do, I think), and I earnestly hope all will soon be on its list. I again ask all to help me get new readers for it, not forgetting to ask your friends to subscribe through me, as you know Dr. Ivey kindly allows a certain per cent for our work.

GREENSBORO FEMALE COLLEGE IN ASHES.

On last Thursday morning, about 2 o'clock, Greensboro Female College was discovered to be on fire. The alarm was quickly given and the fire companies were soon present, but the supply of water was found to be inadequate, and all that the engines and individuals were able to do was not sufficient to check the flames. In a short while the loved structpre was in ashes and the noble hill was crowned only with smoking ruins.

No one was injured. No life was lost. All the property within the walls save that which was in the third story, was saved. The whole property was value at $100,000. On this there was insurance to the amount of $35,000.

The origin of the fire is unknown. There is strong suspicion that it was a case of incendiarism. Two weeks before, a fire had started in the same part of the building. Since then the management of the college had been unusually careful. The electrical engineer of Greensboro states that the fire could not have been occasioned by defective electrical arrangement. In this connection, we may say that it is very strange that in the last few weeks three of our educational institutions for women should have been burned down.

Greensboro Female College has had an eventful history. The next to the oldest college for women in the South, she has passed through vicissitudes many. Burned down once before, she arose in new pride from her ashes. Harrassed by debt and threatened by calamity she has lived through the years to bless North Carolina through the many cultured and consecrated women she has sent out from her walls.

Last summer, she faced one of her darkest crises when her doors were closed and it was announced that her career had come to an end. It was then reserved for her daughters aided by a sympathetic and generous people to come to her aid, throw open her doors, and announce to the world that the noble old institution would weather the gale.

The college opened in September with a remarkably full patronage, considering the adverse circumstances. The able President aided by a select faculty was doing fine work and preparing for a brighter era in the history of the college. Our people were beginning to feel elated over the bright prospects when the last sad story was written in flame and smoke on last Thursday morning.

But North Carolina Methodism is familiar with such disasters. Taking for a motto, "ad astra per aspera," our people have found in disaster the inspiration for stronger endeavor, and have made them the foundation stones for the most brilliant successes.

What now? Will the institution lie in her ashes? Has the historical last straw broken the back of our people's faith and energy? No, a thousand times. The college will be rebuilt. To deny this would be to affirm of our Methodism a weakness which would be her everlasting shame. Rich in material means, rich in the faith which has pushed the ark of progress forward through shade and sunshine, across hill and over plain, our people must not—will not, stagger at this blow. Out of the ashes will come a greater institution. We base our prophecy on the strong rock of our trust in the faith and loyalty of our people.

We await with deep interest the outcome of the meeting of the Board of Directors of the two Conferences. Not only the noble President, and the loving daughters of the college, but the whole State is waiting for our Methodism to show her faith and activity in this trying hour.

It is an impression with many that the Bishops of our church have an easy time, and that their only really strenuous experience is in presiding over an Annual Conference. It is a fact that this experience of the Bishops is generally the least strenuous. If our people could only realize what labors our Bishops are having now in an "off time" the general impression above referred to would speedily depart.

A CRY WE MUST HEED.

In 1861 the American Bible Society was born. The mother Society is the British and Foreign Bible Society, which had its start in 1804.

The Universal Bible Sunday is set for the 6th of March. Surely this will be a significant and important day throughout Christendom.

Since its establishment, the American Bible Society has issued 72,670,783 copies of the Bible. Last year, 2,058,989 copies were issued. The Bible is now printed in nearly fifty languages and dialects. What good has been done by the millions of copies of the Bible sent out by the British and Foreign and American Bible Society can be estimated only by the divine mind.

We are sorry that the receipts of the American Bible Society fall short last year about $50,000. Yet the Society has relaxed none of its energy in the circulation of the Bible.

These facts should be considered seriously by our people in the North Carolina Conference. Our collections for the Bible Cause in the past have not been short of a burlesque. That exhibit made by Dr. A. D. Betts in last week's Advocate was thought-provoking and conscious-stinging. The North Carolina Conference should ease its conscience this year by making a phenomenal contribution to the Bible Cause. We can never hurt any good cause by taking up a big collection for another good cause. To think otherwise is to be guilty of a heresy of which the Devil is very fond.

Surely the sixty odd thousand Methodists in the North Carolina Conference will not be content with giving less than one cent per capita to circulating the Word of God. We cannot afford it.

DEATH OF MR. JOHN H. CLIFTON.

Mr. John H. Clifton, one of our most valuable printers in the employ of the Mutual Publishing Company, was run over by an egine on last Thursday night and instantly killed. He was on his way home from the office. In an attempt to pass the rear of the train which had blocked up the regular pass-way, he was caught by a shifting engine which was not seen by him.

The funeral was on Friday afternoon, and was conducted by Rev. N. L. Seabolt, assisted by Rev. J. M. Culbreth and this writer. Although the icy rain was pouring down in torrents, there was a large concourse of people present to do honor to the memory of the deceased.

Mr. Clifton was a stockholder in the Raleigh Christian Advocate Company and was until last September, a year ago, foreman in the Raleigh Advocate plant. We always found him faithful to his trust. He took a deep interest in the welfare of the Raleigh Advocate.

He was a steward in Brooklyn Methodist Church. He was regarded as one of the most valuable members of that congregation. He was always anxious that his church should make a good report at Conference, and our last experience with him was when he came into our office to get assessments for his charge as furnished by the Secretary of Raleigh District. He is sadly missed in the office by all of his associates who, with all of us, were shoked at his untimely death.

He was in his thirty-first year, and in his robust physical manhood looked forward to enjoying a long life. But life is so uncertain. In one quick moment he passed away from us.

About two years ago, the writer united the deceased in marriage to Miss Rebecca Emory. In their comfortable little home, gladdened a few months ago by their loved infant, the happy couple made their plans for the future—plans which have been so tragically upset. But God knows best. May He send His comforting spirit to that crushed young wife, the old father and mother, and the other bereaved ones.

Mr. W. B. Cooper, Secretary of the Sunday-School Board, desires to hear from every pastor who has needy Sunday-schools within his charge. Write to him at once as distribution is to be made March 1st. This is an important matter.

A Card to Many Friends of Greensboro Female College.

In behalf of the Alumnae Association of Greensboro Female College, of the faculty and students, Mrs. Robertson desires to return sincere thanks to the many friends throughout the State for telegrams and letters of sympathy on the occasion of the recent destruction of the College by fire. In the midst of this direful calamity such kind expressions of sympathy as came from all sections of the State were indeed most gratifying to the wounded spirits of those so immediately afflicted by the loss of the honored old institution around which clustered so many associations of the past and hopes for the future.

In the confusion consequent upon the fire, involving separation from office, desk and all facilities for correspondence Mrs. Robertson regrets that she has not been able to send a response to each kind message, but hopes in the near future to send a personal letter of appreciation to every friend who has so kindly remembered her and the school in this time of affliction.

There was one truth which Mr. Bryan in his two addresses in Raleigh emphasized with striking earnestness and it is this: All true life is not a thing of accumulation but of distribution. It is not what we take out of life that makes us great in God's sight, but what we put into it. Forgetting ourselves into a glorious immortality is a privilege than which there is none higher, and thus forgetting we make green the remembrance of every high and holy thing.

"Live a natural life, eat what you want, and walk on the sunny side of the street," is the recipe for a long life, given by Dr. Robert Collyer, who has passed his eightieth birthday. The first item is a good one. We are not so sure about the second. We accept it as meaning, "eat only what you need." The third is worthy of being posted on the desk or anywhere else it may be frequently seen. The reflex influence of a bright Christian optimism on the physical man has been taught from the time of Christ. It is time that we are beginning to practice the doctrine.

Bishop Fallows is furnishing for the Ram's Horn a series of very plain practical articles on Christian Science. In the last issue, Frank Beard has used his pencil, and in a very telling way has advanced a strong argument against the Christless Science which is denominated Christian Science. He represents a follower of this deluded cult coming to a solid stone wall which prevents further progress. This stone wall is Common Sense. It seems that this wall should be sufficient to stop every Christian Scientist and cause the scales to fall from the eyes.

Several years ago, it was found that the public schools in 651 out of 808 American cities had religious exercises. In 77 cities, religious exercises were prohibited. In 602 cities, the Bible was read in the schools. In 536, prayer formed a part of the exercises. In 99, comment on the Bible was prohibited. A good showing. Yet we cannot escape at present a feeling of deep apprehension. Since the doctrine that the work of the world's civilization has shifted from the church to the schoolhouse has been preached so publicly and widely, we wonder if such a favorable showing as we have outlined above can be made.

Liberty comprehends all that God in His deepest love designs for the world, animate and inanimate. Since liberty is the possession and proper use of God-given rights and privileges; since the exercise of such rights and privileges means the supremacy of law; since the supremacy of law means the supremacy of God, every true law being nothing but the authority and expression of God's will; then it follows that liberty is no term to be lightly used, but something which swings itself into the realm of righteousness, and, planting its feet on the grand doctrine that God is love, resolves itself into the richest expression of that love and be comes the compendium of all blessings.

North Carolina Methodism.

Dr. L. L. Nash is assisting Rev. N. E. Coltrane in a meeting at Smithfield this week.

The post-office of Rev. J. D. Bundy will be Rocky Mount, N. C., until further notice is given.

Rev. E. C. Glenn reports a fine meeting at Southport. He began a meeting at South Mills last week.

Rev. R. C. Beaman and his little daughter Catharine spent last Tuesday in Raleigh, and we were glad to have them as visitors to this office.

Rev. J. H. Shore came down to Raleigh on last Monday afternoon to hear Mr. Bryan at night. Brother Shore is doing a great work on the Franklinton Circuit.

The continued bad weather is reducing the size of the Sabbath congregations. But we remember with gratitude that the last Sundays of the Conference year are generally fair.

The death of Mr. D. C. Branson, in New York City last week was a sad one. Since his graduation at Trinity he had spent several years in Europe in study. He was a very brilliant man.

Mrs. Sarah B. Guthrie, mother of Rev. J. O. Guthrie of the North Carolina Conference, died last week in Burlington. She was buried at Siler City. She was a fervent Christian, and will be greatly missed. All the children and other bereaved ones have our deepest sympathy.

Rev. C. M. Lance, Graham, desires from every preacher in the Durham District the number and names of his delegates to the District Conference, which is announced in this issue. It is very important that Brother Lance should know who expect to reach Graham by private conveyance.

Bishop Wallace W. Duncan spent several days last week at Trinity Park, the guest of President Kilgo. On Sunday he preached in Craven Memorial Hall to a large audience. Bishop Duncan is a great favorite with the college community, and his coming is always looked forward to with great pleasure.

The debts upon the church and parsonage at Maxton, amounting in all to about $360, have recently been met in full by Messrs. J. W. Carter and A. J. McKinnon. While no condition was demanded, it is understood that the other members of the charge will put the parsonage in good repair during the year.

Rev. G. R. Rood, who was in the office on Tuesday, told us that, in spite of rainy Sundays, he had filled all his appointments and had taken collections for the Bible cause which amount to over 2 cents per capita for his membership. The Stewards have increased his salary for the present year.

The report of the Librarian of Trinity College shows that during the year ending February 1st, there have been added to the library 9, 953 bound volumes and 1,123 pamphlets. During the preceding year there were added 4,419 bound volumes and 669 pamphlets. This makes the accession for the last two years 14,372 bound volumes and 1,792 pamphlets.

While appreciating the kind words used by the Biblical Recorder with reference to the North Carolina Methodist Handbook, we felt that the Recorder, in its remarks about infant baptism, was cutting an abnormally large slice of intelligence out of the church population of the world and putting it into the Baptist pantry. We were just getting ready to "deliver ourselves" on this point when the letter of Brother Earnhart, published on another page, was received. He covers the ground like a Hippodrome tent. We look for large orders for the Handbook.

News comes from from Dr. C. F. Reid, at San Francisco, that he has nearly raised the $7,500 which was necessary to secure a lot and plant an effective church at the University of California.

General Notes.

Bishop Hartzell dedicated a church in Anstali, Rhodesia, last autumn, costing $20,000.

The Young Men's Christian Association for North and South Carolina will convene in Spartanburg, February 20-23.

Bishop Hoss will hold a Bible Conference or Institute in First Church, Memphis, beginning March 20, and continuing ten days.

Dr. and Mrs. Hamil will spend the month of April on the Pacific slope in the interest of Sunday-school training work for teachers.

Rev. G. Campbell Morgan has received a pressing invitation to the pastorate of Westminster Chapel (Congregational), London, England.

The school at London, Ky., under the direction of the Home Mission Society, is doing good work. The opening for the second term is unusually good.

We regret to learn that Dr. G. C. Rankin, editor of the Texas Christian Advocate, is seriously sick. We trust that there may be a speedy recovery.

Dr. Gross Alexander has been invited by the editor, Dr. Hastings, of Edinburgh, Scotland, to write a series of articles for a new dictionary of Christ.

Mr. Daniel Denham, who for fifty years had been cashier of the Methodist Book Concern in New York, was suddenly killed by a train last week.

Dr. J. M. Buckley, editor of the New York Christian Advocate, will lecture at the Nashville Tabernacle on the night of February 25, for the benefit of Walden University.

Dr. J. D. Hammond has just returned from a visit to Oklahoma. He describes the building for the Epworth University in Oklahoma as complete and well suited to the purpose for which it has been built.

Bishop Warren A. Candler preaches the commencement sermon at Vanderbilt University June 12, 1904. Judge J. M. Dickinson, of Chicago, delivers the literary address. Mr. Chales N. Burch is alumni orator.

Lately there have been made some very great changes in the Florida, and Baltimore and Richmond Advocates. All these changes are for the better. We congratulate the Alabama on its new and neat heading.

The New Century Knights, of which Dr. Palmore, of the St. Louis Advocate is organizer, is to have a field day at the World's Fair. The management has appointed June 25 for the marshaling of the hosts.

Governor Frazier, of Tennessee, vetoes the Dispensary Bill passed by the Legislature of that State on the ground that if it is immoral and injurious for the State to sell liquor it is equally so for the State to sell it.

The twenty-second annual session of the Monteagle Assembly will begin July 2 and close August 30. The Bible School will be in charge of Dr. George B. Eager, of Louisville, Ky., and Dr. George Summey, of New Orleans.

One of the great theologians and mathematical scholars of the world, Rev. Dr. George Salmon, provost of Trinity College, Dublin, is dead at the age of eighty-five. He was Professor of Divinity in the Dublin University, 1866-1888, when he assumed the post in which he died. Mathematical text-books, an introduction to the New Testament, volumes of sermons, and Biblical discussions of high value came from his pen.

Mr. J. A. Odell, of Greensboro, has recently purchased a $3,500 monument. On one side will be carved, "J. A. Odell;" on the other, "W. H. Branson." Mr. Branson was Mr. Odell's adopted son, and lost his life in an accident in a cotton mill at Durham several years ago.

Publisher's Column.

We want a copy of the Advocate of July 20th.

We are very much crowded with obituaries just now. Hence there must be delay in the publication of some. We try to publish them in the order in which they are received.

The preachers have been hindered sadly during February in their work for the Advocate. The receipts are evidence of this fact. We desire to make March a red-letter month.

I saw enclosed cutting in North Carolina Advocate. You seem to be quite sure that every Methodist family in the State positively needs the Handbook. I have thought it possible that one or two families out of the State might make some use of it also. Kindly send me a copy for enclosed 25 cents in stamps.—Yours very truly, Geo. T. Terrell, 90 Mt. Carmel, Ocean Grove, N. J.

The brethren continue to write to us that the lists we have sent them contain the names not only of their own subscribers, but of other preachers. We know it. Yet at the same time we do not expect the preachers to collect for another charge. Subscribers from several charges get their paper at the same office. Unless we have the church registers present, we cannot tell to what charge they belong. Hence, we have to group the subscribers according to post-offices and not churches.

We trust that the brethren understand this matter. We have explained it several times in the Advocate, but we assume that the papers containing the explanation must have missed reaching their destination. Every preacher, you know, reads the Advocate.

SOME THINGS THEY ARE SAYING ABOUT THE ADVOCATE.

We do so much enjoy its weekly visits and find it a blessing in our home. We can't do without the Advocate as long as we can get $1.50 to pay for it. May God bless you in the editorial chair, and may it be as great a blessing to others as it is to the writer.—Mrs. L. H. W.

* * *

Enclosed you will find check for $1.50—my renewal to the Advocate. So long as I have anything to read (except my Bible), I want my "church paper," and when I read it, I want to know that it is paid for.—Miss M. R.

EDITED BY REV. W. B. ANDERSON.

What the President of a Chapter Can Do.

Let not the president think his work is accomplished when he has presided at the business meeting. If so, he has an imperfect idea of the duties and opportunities of his office. System is the secret of success in everything, and none the less in a League chapter.

But system is not self-developing, it requires a guiding hand to establish and maintain it. The president should be the central force which combines and harmonizes the various activities of the chapter. He should be ex-officio a member of all the committees; he then keeps in touch with all branches of the work. After the election of officers he should see that each new committee has a meeting to plan the work for the coming term. He should, if possible, be present at the first committee meeting to advise and assist in the plans. He has in this way an opportunity of not only directing every line of work, but of infusing enthusiasm and energy in each department at the very outset.

Of course this will not be done in a dictatorial spirit, but in the spirit of brotherliness and with due deference to the views of the committee and the pastor, who is also a member of the committees. The president should seek to foster a mutual desire to be led into the highest and best service.

The president should also remember that initial velocity, however great, will expend itself after a time, and unless the chapter has more than the usual number of faithful members, the committee work will lag. He should know what is being done in the committee room and by expression of approval or suggestion of improvement show the chairman that he has an interest in his special work and is keeping close watch upon it. If a committee fails to take up its duties, the chapter will neglect that department of work; hence the importance of stimulating and wisely directing the committee work.

The president should, of course, attend the council meetings where all departments of League work come together for consultation and that due emphasis should be given to each department of League activities. Without the council, it is to be feared that undue consideration may be given to one branch of the League work as against another. While all things should be done with reference to the glory of God, the League should not be narrowed down to a weekly prayer-meeting, nor should it become a social club nor a literary society; yet all these should have due consideration, and in the council meeting the work of each should be planned and these plans submitted to the chapter and, after being passed upon there, the president should be, as it were a balance wheel which, while he urges forward, at the same time prevents spasmodic or erratic action and insures an even, steady movement in all departments.

What the president should not do is perhaps as important as what he should do. He should not attempt to do work that rightfully belongs to another. He should never dictate what shall be done in his chapter. He should never take an important step without approval of his chapter. He should never scold or complain. Our parents, teachers, and often preachers, do enough of this. Let us have none of it in the League.

Lesson for February 28, 1904.

Hearers and Doers of the Word.

(Matthew 7:21-29.)

Golden Text.—Be ye doers of the word, and not hearers only. (James 1:22.)

Shortly after the healing of the man with the withered hand, Jesus chose the twelve disciples, whose names are recorded in each of the Synoptic Gospels.

Following immediately upon the selection of the Twelve came the Sermon on the Mount, the concluding portion of which is assigned for our study in the present lesson.

It seems best to identify the Sermon on the Mount with the so-called Sermon on the Plain, which is given by Luke (chapter 6:17-7:1). The horns of Hattin are usually identified with the Mount of Beatitudes, and the configuration of the landscape presents itself either as that of a mountain or a plain, according to the precise position of the observer.

The Sermon on the Mount.—As this lesson is the only one in our present course of study of the life of Jesus that refers to the Sermon on the Mount, it will be well, especially in the older classes of the Sunday-school, to take a comprehensive view of the whole discourse, dwelling especially on the portion assigned for our study which forms the application of the sermon.

The Sermon on the Mount was Jesus' platform of principles. We may regard it as his inaugural address, for he had just chosen his disciples, and this sermon was to instruct them in the new faith whose apostles they were to be.

While the Sermon on the Mount is the longest recorded discourse of Jesus, we must not make the mistake of thinking that it contains the whole of the Gospel which he came to declare. The Sermon on the Mount dwells especially on the practical side of the Christian life. Because an important doctrine like that of the Atonement, for example, is not fully set forth in this matchless discourse, we must not say that the Atonement is not a vital part of our Christian faith and doctrine. In order to a full-rounded conception of the Gospel we must take the whole of Jesus' life and teaching, both as recorded by the Evangelists and in the Epistles of the New Testament.

Entrance Into the Kingdom of Heaven.—Having set forth in the main portion of the Sermon on the Mount the chief characteristics of the kingdom of heaven, Jesus now set forths in the concluding portion the conditions of entrance into that kingdom.

It is not mere profession but real performance that will win admission into the kingdom of heaven. Not those who say, "Lord, Lord," but those who have both heard and done the sayings of Jesus will be the chosen ones to whom the gates of the kingdom shall open, and who shall hear the voice of the Master bidding them enter in.

The Two Houses.—Jesus closes his discourse with a vivid and striking parable which must have brought home to his hearers in most realistic fashion the relative position of those who are only hearers and those who are both hearers and doers of the Word.

The house founded upon a rock represents the condition of the man who both hears and does the will of the Master. He is founded upon the rock Christ Jesus, and the fiercest storms and the most raging flood cannot overthrow him.

The house built upon the sand represents the condition of the man who is resting upon an insincere profession. He cannot withstand the tempests of trial or adversity, and in the end he is swept away into utter destruction.

The Voice of Authority.—The closing verses of our lesson are significant, for we are there told that the people were astonished at his teaching, for Jesus taught as one having authority, and not as the scribes. The words of Jesus are those of final authority. Let us hear and heed them now and always.

SUICIDE PREVENTED.

The startling announcement that a preventive of suicide had been discovered will interest many. A run down system, or despondency invariably precede suicide and something has been found that will prevent that condition which makes suicide likely. At the first thought of self-destruction take Electric Bitters. It being a great tonic and nervine will strengthen the nerves and build up the system. It's also a great Stomach, Liver and Kidney regulator. Only 50 cents. Satisfaction guaranteed by all druggists.

Those Windows Again.

I am asked if there are any windows untaken. A plenty of them—$2 to $4 each. Send in the money. We will put you on the list.

A Great Event at the Orphanage.

The boys caught a rabbit on our grounds without trap, or gun, or dog. It may be that he was a runaway from the fifty that was sent us by express from Macon, Ga. My! if we had turned them all loose here, I reckon there would have been a thousand here by this time.

That Cow.

Effie and Daisy are not doing much in the dairy business just now. Bro. W. J. Woodley sent us a large quantity of Malta Vita. Milk and sugar are the best preparations for that cereal. So we need milk to enable us to enjoy our new food. If any of our friends have a spare cow, they may send her in.

A New Remedy.

One of our little girls complained of a pain. A biscuit was suggested as a good remedy. She did not demur to the dose. The effect was magical. Her little friends, our baby boys and girls, did not object to taking one as a preventive. Long endure this new remedy! We have taken out no patent right on it yet.

An Extinct Race.

The race of the thousand dollar Methodists in the North Carolina Conference seems to have died out. Brother Hurley found some. I can't. I reckon we would better take Hurley out of the Presiding Elder's place, and set him on a still hunt. A few thousand dollar men would send us forward amazingly toward the completion of our main building. We have two one thousand dollar rooms left. If any one knows of a living specimen of the genus homo, I wish they would let me know of his or her whereabouts. We have a large number of five hundred dollar rooms. Two five hundred dollars makes a thousand. Don't you see? No better place in all this wide world for the investment of money for God and humanity. Send it along.

Henderson.

I have a warm side for Henderson. It used to be in Granville County, you know. Then they are niee people any way.

Rev. L. L. Nash, D. D., is the pastor of the M. E. Church. He is growing fast with that congregation, and they are growing fast upon him. They will be in love with each other soon.

The weather was not good. A fire, not far from the church, broke up the Sunday-school, and interfered with the congregation. But a fine collection for the size of the crowd, was lifted. Bro. R. J. Corbitt will support our Paul Peacock here, by paying $5 per month. The Sunday-school is supporting an orphan also. It was so pleasant to spend a short time with friends of former days. The parsonage was a most delightful lodging place.

Mount Gilead.

That was a pleasant day at Mt. Gilead. Brother Hix gave us right-of-way while he went to the country. It was a privilege to talk to that Sunday-school and that intelligent congregation. The people and the preacher seem to be mutually pleased with each other. It was my first visit, but I think it will not be my last, if I have my way about it.

If Brother and Sister William Ingram and their accomplished daughter, Miss Monte, can't make a preacher feel at home, there is no use trying.

A stop over at Biscoe and Aberdeen, both going and coming, made the trip a little tedious, but it enabled me to see my friends.

Mt. Gilead is a goodly town, and it is growing.

Comparisons—Favorable and Unfavorable.

When we read of the great things being done by the Orphanages of our sister denominations, it makes us feel very bad, and we long to see the day when rich Methodists will put large money in ours. We grow heart-sick and weary waiting. But when we compare ours with their's at our age, then we have to put on the brakes to keep us from boasting. When the Baptist Orphanage was twelve and a half years old, their plant was worth $25,000; the Presbyterian's at $32,000, when that was ten years old: ours, when four years old, is worth $44,000. The first averaged $2,000 a year; the second a little over $3,000 a year, and ours $11,000.

Now, methinks I hear Bro. Archie Johnson, of Charity and Children, say: "Don't bray brother."

Well, we want; but we thank God and take courage.

CABBAGE PLANTS.

Now ready for delivery, ten million Cabbage Plants of the following varieties:

Also Alexander Seed Company's Augusta Early Tucker.

Price—$1.50 Per Thousand.

These plants are grown in the open air on the Sea Coast of South Carolina. They are stocky and hardy, and when replanted will stand severe cold without injury. I have a special low rate with the Southern Express Company and plants can be delivered at any point on their line at a rate of 20 to 40 cents per thousand; minimum charge on single package, 35 cents.

RADIUM

RADIOS RADIOS RADIOS

Stupendous Offer Made by a Well-known Philadelphia Firm.

RADIOS RADIOS RADIOS

Thousands of Persons in all Sections of the Country Have Been Healed by This Wonderful Discovery.

DEAR FRIENDS:—Don't read this advertisement if you expect to get something for nothing, because you won't. We have a good article and we want money for it. Be sensible.

If you had something that was worth a dollar would you give it for it? When you read an advertisement who're you get something for nothing, that something is either no good or else they are up to some "Hindu" game.

We are not running a patent medicine business, so rest easy on that subject.

We do not know the word failure—never have and never will. The educated and higher classes are the ones we want to reach. We reach men and women in all walks of life. Men and women who today are before the public as patriotic characters have had our could see and the benefit of our experience. It is a 20th century product, one that will be more appreciated the more it is tried.

"Fresh from the bath and as good as she looks." This old saying describes our clients to a T. We have a VITALIZER—not a patent medicine. It tones the system, centralizes weaknesses of all descriptions—makes an even temperature all over the body, and in fact it makes a new man and woman. Boston will within a few years be a part of every hospital and surgical institution of the land. No germ can stand the force of contact with this new discovery. Rheumatism and debility flee before it. The mighty force of the turbulent waters of Niagara are incompris'n with this new product as an old-fashioned CANDLE is to RADIUM.

One person writes: "why did not some one discover it before?"

Another says: "So simple, it is hardly creditable."

From the far West comes the unsolicited report: "A Godsend to humanity."

Wolcott Christie, of New York, the well-known author, says: "My success, in a great measure, is due to 'Radios.'"

Weakness of certain organs is responsible for all diseases. We build up your system so that a disease is an impossibility. If your digestive organs are out of order, if your blood is impure, if you can't sleep, eat or attend to business, I will cure you and guarantee to do so. I will give you a written guarantee. Could you ask anything more? "RADIOS."

ROGERS.—Levi Rogers was born March 17, 1835, and died February 7, 1904. For many years he was a faithful member of Hickory Mountain Church, now on Siler City Circuit.

One of his last acts was to call his loved ones around his bedside and admonish them to serve the Lord and meet him in heaven. This done, the strong man who had fought so many hard battles, committed his soul and his precious family into the keeping of God. He was one of the old veterans, highly esteemed, and many were present to honor him when we laid him to rest.

Brother Rogers was twice married, and leaves a wife and eleven children to mourn their loss.

J. SANDFORD.

PHIBBS.—Elizabeth J. Phibbs was born May 29, 1831, and died December 12, 1903. She was converted in early life and lived a consistent member of the Shiloh Church for more than forty years.

On January 7, 1858, she was united in marriage to Samuel M. Phibbs, who died December 11, 1862, while in the service of the Confederacy. To this union were born two children—Maggie A. and Julia F. Phibbs. Only one daughter, Julia, the wife of John W. Faucett, still survives; Maggie, the first wife of John W. Faucett crossed over the river about seven years ago, and will be in glory to meet her mother.

Sister Phibbs is reported to me as having been a warm friend to her pastor and a strong pillar in her church. May the life she lived be an inspiration to many others.

S. F. NICKS.

LEWIS.—Mary Margaret Elizabeth Lewis, daughter of Mr. Sam and Mrs. Roberta Lewis, was born April 19, 1884, and died January 31, 1904, living not quite one score years.

Bessie joined the Shiloh Church September 15, 1896, and from that time has lived a consecrated Christian life which is worthy of imitation. Bessie loved her church and took great delight in attending and in taking part in divine service; this she did as long as she was able. She was a loving and obedient child to father and mother and kind to brothers and sister as if her pleasure was found in doing their will.

After suffering for a long time, she gave up all hope of ever getting well, and became perfectly resigned to God's will.

Bereaved ones, take comfort in the fact that your loss is her gain. "The Lord gave, and the Lord taketh away, blessed be the name of the Lord." Job. 1:21.

S. F. NICKS.

ROBERTS.—Sacred to the memory of our dear mother Mrs. M. A. Roberts, who fell asleep sweetly in the arms of Jesus three years ago, Sunday next. Peace to her dear soul.

Our mother, though dead,
Will never be forgotten;
As l as life shall last
May all try to meet her in ven.
The me of the blessed and bless.

ADAMS.—Martha A. Hasty was born April 27, 1845.

In 1882 she was happily married to W. H. Adams, a brother of the sainted Rev. S. D. Adams. In early life she professed faith in Christ, and conected herself with the Methodist Church, leading an exemplary and useful life. She was ready when the summons came. She had no children of her own, but was indeed a mother to her step-children, and a help-meet to her aged and sorrow-stricken husband. Her body rests in the cemetery at Raiford, N. C.

Farewell dear sister. We hope to meet you in the "land that is fairer than day."

T. H. WALTERS.

February 10, 1904.

McKINNON.—Died at her home, Cumberland, N. C., January 9, 1904, Sister Mary McKinnon, aged seventeen years.

Two years ago, under the ministry of Rev. H. G. Stamey, she gave her heart to the Lord in the true sense of the word, and joined Beaver Creek Church. Since then, till death claimed her, her Christian life was true and beautiful. She enjoyed the love and confidence of all who knew her. She loved her Saviour and her church.

Her illness lasted for several months, but she bore it all patiently and cheerfully. During her last days, the writer visited her and found her "standing on the promises." She stated that if it were God's will, she was ready and willing to go. This was her continual testimony. She passed her last hours in rejoicing, and "fell on sleep," that sleep "from which none ever wakes to weep."

"God's finger touched her and she slept."

May consoling and sustaining grace be vouchsafed to the bereaved family.

E. R. WELCH.

Tracy Whitcomb.

This nobly built, noble hearted and sunny-faced servant of Jesus Christ, and His church, was born in Ontario, New York, January 19, 1835, and went to his mansion in the city of God on the 20th day of October, 1903. He was twice married—first about 1863 to Mrs. Lottie Hazlett, who died June 18, 1898. The second happy marriage was with Miss Mary Allen, September 18, 1899, who now remains in lonely widowhood sustained and comforted by the Holy Spirit. The last thirty-four years of his life was spent in this Southland, and these were about the number of the years of his life that were spent in the service of his Lord. His was a "great conversion," for said he: "I received the spirit of adoption whereby I cried Abba Father."

His membership was in the First M. E. Church, South, Elizabeth City, N. C., until October, 1902, when he, with one hundred and twenty-six others, was transferred to the new City Roads M. E. Church, South, becoming its charter membership. It was a sad choice to him, but he went from a loyal sense of duty to Christ and His cause. He was an intelligent and persistent church worker, filling with great acceptability for many years the offices of steward and trustee. As trustee of church property, he was a worthy example to many who nominally fill the office, knowing little or nothing of duties committed to them. He was most favorably known and loved for his splendid power of song—so spiritual, so enthusiastic, leading for years, but at different periods, both the church and Sunday-school music. As for his Lord, so for his country, was he a brave and true soldier on the side of the Union during the Civil War, but on coming South identified himself with all our interests, temporal and spiritual, laboring wisely for their upbuilding. He died in the fullest esteem and confidence of all our people. The same being fully manifested in the great company that followed his remains from his residence to his church, and from the church to the cemetery, where we laid him to rest in hope of a glorious resurrection.

Brother, we loved thee here among men, and expect to recognize you among "the spirits of just men made perfect" in the "general assembly and church of the first born."

D. H. TUTTLE.

Resolutions of Respect.

Whereas, God in His infinite wisdom has seen fit to take from our midst by death our little friend, Eva Strickland; therefore be it

Resolved 1. That we, the members of Cokesbury Sunday-school, do deeply deplore the loss of such a young, earnest Christian life.

2. That in her loss there is a universal bereavement for which there is no consolation except in our faith in the wisdom and justice of God.

3. That we extend to the family in this dark hour of bereavement our deepest sympathy, with the earnest hope that they may be comforted and sustained by the loving tenderness of that God who does not willingly bring sorrow to our hearts.

4. That a copy of these resolutions be placed upon the minutes of our Sunday-school, a copy be sent to the Raleigh Christian Advocate, and a copy be sent to the bereaved family.

A HUMAN LIFE LINE.

If all the people who have been cured by Vernal Palmettona (formerly known as Vernal Saw Palmetto Berry Wine) were lined up in single file, two feet apart, the line beginning at Buffalo, would extend for miles and miles, far out toward the West. In this line would be found men, women and children, representing every vocation in life. Most of them were in bad shape physically when they began to take Vernal Palmettona. Some of them owe their very lives to it. If you were to talk to them, they would give full credit to this great tonic laxative remedy. Some of them went way on up into middle life, some of them even to old age, before they began to taking our cure.

"If I had only taken Vernal Palmettona sooner," is the regret of many who realize that they might have been saved years of suffering. Do not let this be your experience. Indigestion, constipation, dyspepsia and all other diseases of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels are relieved quickly and eventually cured permanently by Vernal Palmettona. Only one dose a day does the work. It is done gently, yet thoroughly. This is in direct contrast to harsh purgatives and cathartics which are positively harmful. Many people are skeptical about a medicine with which they are unfamiliar. Maybe you are one of them. We don't blame you. It is common sense. We plainly print the guaranteed formula on every package of our remedy. Better still, we will send you postpaid a free sample. Try before you buy. Address, Vernal Remedy Co., 538 Seneca Building, Buffalo, N. Y. Sold at all druggists.

An Address to the Friends of Temperance.

I am authorized by the State Central Committee to make the following address to the men and women in North Carolina that are interested in all reasonable endeavors to save our people from the curse of strong drink:

THE SALOON IS GOING.

We are encouraged by the growing sentiment in opposition to the saloon. The saloon is going, and it must go. We must press on in this field of endeavor. The saloon is one chief aggravating source of the drink evil. Under its fostering care the amount of liquor consumed per capita in the United States has doubled in twenty years. This is sufficient to alarm every citizen. The saloon destroys annually more than one billion dollars of wealth and more than 100,000 men, and with them the peace and happiness of hundreds of thousands of innocent parents, wives, and children. The saloon now takes for its share one boy in every five. The saloon is now demanding the right to divide our Sabbath day with the churches and it also demands an ever-enlarging influence in our halls of legislation. Intelligent citizens must agree that they cannot afford to acquiesce in the policy of the saloon; but on the other hand, that they owe it to themselves, to their own welfare, to our country, to their children and to God Almighty to take measures to put the administering of the traffic in liquors either beyond the recognition of law or in a system that will tend to restrain rather than to increase that traffic and its inevitable woes.

I am hopeful that the present year will record the passing of the saloon in its last strongholds in North Carolina. From every quarter I receive assurances that the people are rapidly coming to agree that the saloon is the one agent set for the increase of the drink evil, and that, therefore, common sense, as well as love for humanity, impels them to rise against it.

PLEDGES: PERSONAL WORK.

But our work must not stop with this. No man's full duty is public. Every man has a personal duty. When we shall have closed the saloons and even while we are endeavoring to close them, we must seek to save the drunkard himself, and also to save the rising generation from the curse of drink. Advocates of saloons and distilleries have often bidden us to do our duty, attend to our business and preach temperance. We propose to take them at their word. To this end, we are now instituting a personal campaign. This will be our most effectual and inspiring service.

In a word, we would revive the old-time good and noble work of pledging ourselves and our friends and our children against the use of intoxicating liquors as a beverage. We expect every genuine friend of humanity to enlist in this cause. We call upon every pastor in North Carolina to preach a temperance sermon and to have pledges circulated amongst his people. We call upon Sunday-school superintendents and Sunday-school teachers and day-school teachers also to enlist in this most noble work of bringing up in our Commonwealth a generation safe-guarded against strong drink. We likewise call upon fathers and mothers. Let it be understood that we are not abandoning our work against the saloons. We are reinforcing that work with this personal enlistment of a vast army pledged against it. Nor are we abandoning the drunkard. Save him wherever possible; but let us be wise and save our children from becoming drunkards by pledging them against drink now in the day when they may be saved.

I am having 100,000 pledges printed; and I have an indefinite order with the printers. Call upon me for as many as you can use.

We desire that this work shall begin as early as possible, and by all means that throughout March and April it shall be most energetically carried on.

I suggest that wherever possible the leaders get up a Temperance Rally, and, if it seems wise, organize a permanent local temperance league.

Nothing short of a campaign, which will reach every soul in the Commonwealth, will suffice to acquit us of our obligation in this most important matter. We have the workers in every community. We have churches and schools and good people everywhere. Let every one do his or her duty. This is a work in which every one can be of service; and it is the very highest possible work. Let us go into it in full view of its high meaning. Let us understand that God calls upon each of us with the highest motives that He has at command, namely, His love for us, our duty to Him, His love for others, the coming of His kingdom upon earth and the saving to Him of the creatures of His making. And let us understand that in that day He will not holds us guiltless if we have withheld our arm from His cause. And so, seeing that it is no small matter, but exceedingly great and noble, and seeing that it appeals to every Christian with the very power of God, I look for an awakening and an enlistment from one end of our beloved Commonwealth to the other.

Sincerely,
J. W. BAILEY,
Chairman.

THE WORLD AS WE SEE IT.

Those people who complain that there are so few honest, truthful biographers, writers of obituaries, and preachers of funeral sermons, may surely derive some comfort from the following short obituary which recently appeared in the Southwestern Christian Advocate:

"Mr. Mat Lewis, an old sinner and citizen of Willis, died December 31st, aged sixty-three years. His death was timely. He was taken with heart trouble in the night about 2 a. m., and died at 5 a. m. He leaves a faithful and loving wife, seven children, and three brothers."

A large majority of the Senate voted for the ratification of the Panama Canal treaty. Of course this was according to expectation. No dominant party could divide on such a question. It is too big with beneficent possibilities for any responsible party to become a headsman for its decapitation. Sixteen Democrats voted for the treaty; seventeen voted against it. Among the former was Senator Simmons whose speeches on the question were decided features of the debate. Among the seventeen was Senator Overman, who made a strong, conscientious speech in support of his position. The fact that our North Carolina Senators were divided on this question does not argue any lack on the part of either Senator of loyalty and statesmanship. It simply shows that we have men who are strong enough to rise above party and vote according to their judgment and conscience.

It requires no special intellectual acumen to perceive that defective divorce laws in North Carolina are responsible for the abnormally large number of divorce cases which weekly congest our Superior Courts. Three divorces were granted in one day last week at the Wilson Court. We can hardly read a paper without seeing some mention of the number of divorces granted at some court. It looks as if North Carolina were trying to outdo South Dakota in this respect. Thus it will continue under our present laws. So another question to be considered in the coming election when members of the Legislature are to be elected is the divorce question. Be sure to vote for no man, who, however honest he may be in his convictions, has loose notions on the divorce problem. There is too much at stake. When the sanctity of the marriage relation is attacked, the pillars of our Christian civilization tremble.

It looks as if the recently enacted suffrage laws in several Southern States—laws which practically disfranchise the illiterate negro citizen—are not to be affected by any decision of the Supreme Court of the United States. A test case from Alabama was heard last week before the United States Supereme Court and was thus decided in the opinion written by Justice Day.

"Now it is perfectly settled that unless a Federal right has been set up and denied in the State court, we have no right to review its decision, and after a very careful examination of this matter and a due appreciation of the gravity of the charge made as to the political action of that State, we see no ground to distinguish it from the universal rule as applied in this court affecting writs of error of this kind.

The case was that of Jackson Giles vs. The Board of Registration of Montgomery County, Alabama, and involved the suffrage clause of the new Constitution of Alabama. Discrimination against the colored race, of which Giles is a member, was charged.

We have written much in these columns concerning the negro and collateral questions. Indeed we have written so much, and so much has been written in other papers and magazines on this subject, that we have become very weary of reading and being read when the unfortunate phases of our unfortunate social problem is being discussed.

But we must raise our voice against that crime which has blackened the face of humanity in Mississippi during the week just passed. We refer to the burning at the stake of three negroes—two men and one innocent woman. The crime which the negro men committed was murder. There was no outrage of woman. No matter what the crime committed was, the act of taking those criminals and burning them at the stake was inspired by a feeling which cannto be designated otherwise than brutish and fiendish.

We are aware that cases of this kind occur North as well as South. This makes no difference. In the name of all that is good, let us in the South declare war against this spirit which in the name of justice descends to the lowest depths of animalism and wallows in the black mire of barbarous cruelty.

The State is stirred from the mountains to the ocean over the appointment of a Receiver for the Atlantic and North Carolina Railroad. The Receiver appointed is Mr. V. E. McBee, of New York, and the request was made by Mr. K. S. Finch, of the same city. It is understood that Mr. Finch is not one of the original stockholders of the A. & N. C. Railroad stock but merely acquired the stock in order that as a non-resident he might bring his request into a Federal Court.

Our readers remember that several syndicates have lately made propositions to lease the A. & N. C. R. R. The State so far has been unwilling to lease, and it is thought that the appointment of a Receiver has some direct connection with the refusal to lease.

The road is badly in debt and, in spite of the very best management, is not paying expenses. The stockholders have never received any dividends. The equipment is wearing out, and every day the road's value is being diminished. All that we have to say is that if a Receiver can make anything out of the road for the State and other stockholders, we can see no reason why there should be any objection to this latest move. Receiverships have often brought order out of chaos and revived a business which, otherwise, might have gone to the wall.

One of the most prominent features of the war situation in the East is the scarcity of authentic news. Dispatches there are in great number, but when those of today deny those of yesterday, the inevitable conclusion is, that if anything of importance is happening, it fails to reach the ears of the great sensation-loving reading public. There are several things that the public knows concerning operations during the week just closing. We will give them.

It is known that whatever arrangements may have been made concerning the preservation of the neutrality of Korea, it may be set down as certain that this neutrality will not prevent Korea's throwing all her available strength to the side of Japan. The treaty made by Japan with Korea is causing considerable restlessness among the Powers. It is clear that any hostile action of France in aid of Russia will necessitate action on the part of Great Britain. Germany will then be unable to keep from taking an active part.

It is known that one day last week the Japanese fleet tried to sink some stone-laden transports in the narrowest part of the harbor at Port Arthur, and thus bottle up the fleet. The stone-laden barges were sunk by the Russian batteries, but at the wrong place. So the attempt failed, and it was published in St. Petersburg as a great victory for the Russians. It is stated that the transports which were sunk were manned by merchantmen sailors, because there was such eagerness of the regular sailors to die for their country, that no appointment could be made from their number without stirring up bad blood among the disappointed ones. As it happened, not a single man of the Japanese lost his life.

The news that Vladivostock has been blockaded, and that the Japanese have landed at Possiett Bay and are moving in the direction of Kirin to flank the Russian forces in and around Port Arthur lacks confirmation.

It is known that the railroad across Lake Baikal, forty miles wide, has been completed, and that thousands of Russian troops are being hurried eastward over the Siberian Railroad. The Russians are massing themselves at Harbin, and it is probable that the Russian forces have not yet crossed the Yalu River into Korea.

In working soul-insurance our preachers should not neglect church and parsonage insurance. Three churches in the North Georgia Conference have been burned since December 1. Strange to say, not a single one of these churches was insured. If it is our duty to insure our own house, surely it is a double duty to insure God's house which has been placed in our keeping.

Neither Add To, Nor Take From.

REV. R. H. WLITAKER.

If accept Jesus as our Savior, let him be to us a complete Savior. If we accept the gospel—"the good tidings of great joy"—let it be to us, as Paul describes it, "the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth." If we accept the Bible as the revelation of God to men, let it be to us a sacred book that must not be garbled nor emasculated, much less warped and twisted to bring its requirements down to our carnal desires and purposes.

It is good for a man to realize his ignorance, for then he is in a condition to learn. If we think more highly of ourselves than we ought, we deceive ourselves. "Professing themselves to be wise they became fools." * * * "Vain in their imagination" and 'changed the truth of God into a lie," is the way that Paul writes to the Romans, describing that kind of educated infidelity which "worshipped and served the creature more than the Creator."

Speaking of Israel, his own people, with whom God entered into covenant, Paul says: "I bear them record that they have a zeal of God, but not according to knowledge. For being ignorant of God's righteousness, and going about to establish their own righteousness, they have not sumbitted themselves unto the righteousness of God." Too true of some in this our day.

The plan of salvation is plain and easy; so plain the wayfaring man though a fool need not err therein, and so easy that the weakest soul may overcome the combined powers of earth and hell, and wear the victor's crown, in heaven.

But the plan of salvation is plain and easy, only so long as men are learners. In these days, as in Paul's time, those "professing themselves to be wise become fools;"—in other words, they become "vain in their imaginations," going about to establish their own righteousness; or what is no better, trying to establish some new theories.

To sum up in few words and make plain what I mean, if we would be saved from our sins and become heirs of eternal glory, we must, with childlike faith, take Christ, as he is represented to us, as our Savior; the gospel, as we have received it, as the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth, and the Bible as it is as the revelation of God to men.

Building upon that foundation, millions of souls have reared their spiritual ladders, reaching from earth to heaven, upon which they have ascended to be with him who said: "To him that overcometh, I will grant to sit with me in my throne." And millions more will go up as they went, until, as John describes: "A great multitude which no man could number, of all nations, and kindreds, and people, and tongues" shall stand before the Lamb, clothed in white robes, and palms in their hands."

But, it always has been, and always will be, a rough way to heaven, to those who are not childlike in faith; especially to those who "profess themselves to be wise," and are "vain in their imagination;" who allow their vanity to lead them off into the wilds of free thought, where they lose sight of all the old landmarks, and imagine, because God has endowed them with intelligence, and they have had advantages above their fellow mortals, that it becomes their province to show off, by trying to unsettle the world's faith in those things which, hitherto, have been accepted as truths, divinely taught.

With all my heart I believe that the Apostle's Creed is a correct presentation, to the world's mind and heart, of God; and in its scope takes in every vital thought connected with the plan of salvation. And this creed is founded upon revelation, which revelation God has given to the world at various times, in sundry places, and in many ways; the record of all which, made by men whom God designated, by the impartation of the Holy Spirit, to do that work, is, what we call the Word of God—the Bible. If by believing that creed and living according to the precepts of that book, called the Bible, I have peace of mind, love God and love my fellow man, and can rejoice daily in hope of eternal life, why should I care about those things which are not calculated to strengthen, but to weaken my faith? Why need I lie awake at night racking my brain with a doubt as to whether Moses wrote the Pentateuch, or David wrote the Psalms, or the Son of Amoz wrote the prophecies of Isaiah, or Ezekiel wrote prophetically or historically? If faith, in the Lord Jesus Christ, secures the pardon of my sins, and the Spirit, answering to the blood, tells me I am born of God; and my own consciousness assures me that, whereas, I was blind, now I see, I am certain of one thing, and that is, Christ is a Savior—my Savior—and that salvation—my salvation—does not depend upon whether Moses or Job, or any other person, wrote the Pentateuch, but faith in Jesus Christ. "He that believeth is not condemned; but he that believeth not is condemned already, because he hath not believed in the name of the only begotten Son of God." That's what Christ said. So I don't take very much stock in those advanced thinkers who, instead of crying: "Behold the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world," are spending sleepless nights wondering whether they are descended from monkeys, apes or baboons; about what happened in the pre-historic period, when the earth was a loblolly, mud turtles were the aristocracy, and terrapins the poor bockra; and who, with scientific speculation are shaking the world's confidence in the divinity of the Bible. I don't take much stock in that crowd.

Christ said he was the Son of God, and that the prophecies pointed to him. He didn't raise the question whether or not Moses wrote the Pentateuch. He did not say anything about evolution. But he did say: "The Son of Man is come to seek and to save that which is lost." And he did say: "God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son that whosoever believeth in him should not perish but have everlasting life."

With Christ (the Son of God), Moses, and Job, and Isaiah, and David, and Ezekiel, and all the other writers, seem to be pleased; at least, he makes no complaint against them, or their writings. His great concern was to make the world believe what had been written. He said: "Search the Scriptures; for in them ye think ye have eternal life, and they are they which testify of me." That settles it. If Christ be the Son of God—the promised Messiah—his statement puts the seal of truth upon the Word as written, and by whom written, when he says: "They are they which testify of me."

I will say in conclusion, that the church has nothing to dread or to fear from outsiders; the devils fear and tremble; but our danger lies in the fact, that in our great desire to please the people, who, in these latter times, have "itching ears," we are not keeping the cross, "stained with hallowed blood," always in view, but are obscuring it by the discussion of those things which amuse and entertain, but do not make sinners fall out with their sins, nor church members lead higher and better lives.

If all the time and labor expended by Darwin, Spencer, Huxley and Tyndall, in endeavoring to establish the doctrine of evolution, and its kindred isms, had been devoted, by them, to the work of extending and building up the kingdom of heaven in the earth, how much better it would have been both for them and the world. And how much better it would be if our young Bible students, who are expecting to go out as preachers, and to whom a sinsick world is to look for that instruction in righteousness so much needed to bring it back to health and better living, if they would study Christ more and Darwin less, and spend more time in seeking a deeper work of grace in heart and in life, and less in trying to settle the question whether man originally had a tail, and whether he owned that tail as a tadpole or as a monkey.

Men who have nothing else to do, and do not care what becomes of the soul, after death, have time, of course, to discuss evolution and kindred subjects; but, I guess Paul, as a preacher of righteousness, was about right when he said: "God forbid that I should glory save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ;" and in effect also said: "I am here to preach and not to discuss baptism." Big guns, shooting only blank cartridges, make abundance of noise and smoke; but smaller guns well shotted with gospel truth, and touched off with gospel faith, do the execution, after all.

The Incarnate Christ.

C. F. SHERRILL.

Christianity has brought us great and ennobling truths. It has brought us a great Life. Other great teachers and philosophers have done much for the world's betterment. Christ more than they all. To his lofty truth we must add his holy Person, the Incarnate Christ.

* * *

Christ is the Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end, the first and the last of the material and moral universe. All things begin and end in him. He is the starting point and goal of things seen and unseen. For him all things exist and by him they consist. He is the Maker and Final Cause of the physical and moral universe. All things are for his glory. To him they tend. In him they have their explanation and perfection.

* * *

Christ is much larger than Christendom and Christianity. The latter embrace all that pertains to Christ in time: Christ in art and laws, in morals and literature, in governments and men. But there is a Christ of the eternities as well as of time.

* * *

Some one has said that Greece was in the shape of a human hand. Here art had its origin. Here the skillful hand of man reared temples, wrote poems and philosophies, and carved statues. Italy was in the shape of a foot. Here was heard the tramp of Caesar's conquering legions. The mighty power of Rome shook the world. Palestine was in the shape of a harp. Religion is the music of the skies. Here the Incarnate Son of God spoke in heavenly melodies his beatitudes and parables. The music from the Christ-life has never died out in the human heart.

* * *

Christ once lived on earth; but he now lives in the thoughts and hearts of men. If some vast earthquake could engulf all the libraries of earth, so that not a vestige of Christ's teachings should remain, the human heart holds enough in sacred and perpetual memory to reproduce the Bible. The teachings of the Lord are one treasure the heart will never part with. There is more of Christ in the world now than when he was in Palestine. He is with all believers in a fuller sense than he was with the twelve.

In the creation, man was made in the image of God. In the Incarnation, God was made in the image of man. The creation is the basis of the Incarnation. If man could be made in God's image, God could be made in man's image. What communication God has made between the two natures, the human and the divine. The creation and the Incarnation both prove that we belong to God.

Christ Jesus was the Word of God. Christ was both message and Messenger. Jesus speaks for the humble poor and for the lofty. This Word of God is intelligible to all and for all. Fresh is the Living Word to every age and to every heart.

"And so the Word had breath, and wrought
With human hands the creed of creeds.
In loveliness of perfect deeds
More strong than all poetic thought;
Which he may read that binds the sheaf,
Or builds the house or digs the grave,
And those wild eyes that watch the wave
In roarings round the coral reef."

Things in General.

W. S. HESTER.

Dear Dr. Ivey:—Will you please allow me a few words in the Advocate, that I may join company with your many writers and readers who having received a blessing, love to "pass it on."

I wish first to express my hearty thanks for the regular visit of your good paper, the "Old Raleigh," which has come so promptly with it's good cheer, through this long cold winter.

You can't know quite yet how much joy we old people, shut in by age and the weather, get out of your weekly visits. "It's like a medicine."

It is a rich repast, full of varieties, good for the soul, mind and body. I have been a regular reader of the Advocate from my youth up, and my love for it is not diminished with increase of years; and it seems to get better and richer and fuller of the things I love.

Many things in its pages I see from week to week which cheer my heart, and to which I would be glad to respond a hearty amen.

In this connection I want to thank Dr. Whitaker for his reminiscences of "The Old Time Preacher."

It recalled so vividly many scenes of like happy experiences in my own life. Then the "Old Time Preacher" made his monthly rounds and would stop at my father's home (which was always the preacher's home) for a day or two's rest, and to readjust his wardrobe. I find it profitable to review the experiences of those occasions.

The coming of such men as Goodman, the Nicholson, Wyche, Tillett and Alfred Norman, and many others of precious memory. But while we love to linger around "the sweet memories of departed days" or "sigh for the joys that will not come back," we have a live issue of to-day: How can we most successfully aid the pastor of the present day and our new preacher, to win and save the children of this generation? Who will answer? I want to thank Dr. Gibbs and Brother Williams also, for their timely expressions of appreciation of Dr. Betts's life and work.

May he and they live long to bless the church and you and your paper likewise.

Preachers and Debts.

I feel sure that the number of preachers who would wilfully leave a debt unsettled is exceedingly small. But since the sad fact stares us in the face that there are some who do, whether wilfully or not, thus sin against the cause they represent, themselves, and the good name of the ministry, it seems to be necessary that attention be directed to this matter.

Under present conditions it is almost, if not absolutely necessary, for preachers on small charges to have some indulgence during the year. The preacher is promised from $300 to $500 on these charges. And he is paid sometimes from $10 to $35 per quarter. Out of this he and the Presiding Elder are to live three months. This is soon gone and his family is in need. What is to be done? To ask for money a month after Conference is like trying to milk a cow between meals, she won't "give down her milk," and sometimes is inclined to kick. So he is confronted with the dreadful alternative of debt or hunger. But he has learned some way that Brother A who proceeded him left a small account unsettled with the grocer. And Brother B, who served this charge several years ago, owes Mr. Somebody a dry goods account, and has not so much as written him a line in regard to this debt. Then from the fact that "a burnt child dreads fire" he feels that all the merchants are afraid of preacher debts. Here is a dilemma. And how the poor heart and brain ache as he waits a few days trying to find some way out. No one can ever know the unpleasantness of this situation but he who has felt it. We are taught to be humble, but such humiliation is neither taught nor sanctioned by the Bible. So he is forced, finally, to go with burning face to one of these "burned children," the merchant, and ask to be "trusted" till the next quarter, which, when it comes, brings him another $20 with which to pay up and run three months more. Thus he is harrassed and perplexed the whole year, and kept out of the secret places of the Most High, and incapacitated for the high and holy work to which he is appointed. There is a sad picture here which no one can paint as Colonel Bruton. Would that all might hear him. But what I want to say is this: Since the present state of our conscience and education makes it necessary for many of the preachers to have "credit," this alone, to say nothing of higher reasons, ought to make our reputation as debtpayers as sacred to us as our right arm. We had better beg (the last resort) from house to house than make debts we can't pay. A 50-cent debt unpaid will spoil the labor of a four-years' pastorate, and make it hard for the man who follows. If Bros. A and B had managed to pay up, Bro. C would not have been so embarrassed when his money gave out. Sometimes it may be impossible for the preacher to pay up before he moves, but it is never impossible for him to go to his creditors like a man and leave them with at least some hope of getting their money later. Brethren, let's be more careful how we leave debts unpaid, and hope and pray for the day when we can do our Master's work without having to make debts.

Tongue Fruit for Church Extension.

Church Extension! Church Extension! Church Extension! What is it? Why, it is putting churches where they have not been; making them better where they are. Church blessings I mean. Church Extension makes permanent the work of your missionary by housing his gospel harvest. It is your work of faith saying, when the missionary teaches and preaches, "we have come to stay." Then pray for Church Extension; talk up Church Extension when thou sittest in thine house, and when thou walkest by the way, or when thou standest in front of the church with thy neighbors before preaching; then be sure to pay up. Give Church Extension assessment when thy pastor asketh it of thee.

* * *

The assessment on our Conference for Church Extension last year was $5,812; we paid, $4,466.23. Dear Savior thou seest we were $1,345.73 short of a minimum standard of duty. Pardon us as we determine to do better. We must do better. Some of us are putting the Lord's tenth, the tithe, among our own stuff. God's cause suffers while we steal. Malachi 3: 8-12. Read that indictment against many of us, and conditional promise of pardon.

* * *

During this month of February three applications for aid to the Parent Board of Church Extension have come to my hands. The Conference Board could have more than met the request of all these had our assessment for last year been paid in full. We people in the oldest Conference ought not to use all the half we keep for Conference demands, and then ask of the Parent Board for part of the half we have sent them for the wider fields of the general work. Let us not do it at least until we have met in full our Conference assessment. Half of that will meet all our applications without calling on the Parent Board, save in rare cases.

* * *

Our Board of Church Extension was not organized as a kind of "grab-bag" from which to get cash, when with earnest effort and self-denial the money could be raised at home. "Tote fair." Willingness to receive ought to equal willingness to give. Let application for aid be "Z" in the alphabet of effort.

D. H. TUTTLE.

Dr. Alexander MacLaren, speaking of the attributes of the Christian, says: "Giving is essential to the completeness of Christian character. It is the crowning grace, because it is the manifestation of the highest excellence. It is the result of sympathy, unselfishness, of contact with Christ, of drinking in of his spirit."

Dr. A. D. Betts as I Know Him.

My personal acquaintance and association with the subject of this sketch began 20 years ago and has continued, with an intimacy akin to family ties, until a few years back when the relentless machinery of the Methodist Conference sent him to a distant field. Fortunately during this time his appointments were in this immediate vicinity enabling us to come in contact almost daily. Twenty years! Quite a span in life, and much may be accomplished; but when embraced between the 52 and 72 years, not much that is of intcrest to the public. That is a period when men begin to plan for retirement, superannuation, etc. The history making epoch is past. Bodily infirmities in case of veterans of the Civil War, at least, from exposure and hardships of various kinds, claim the attention. Instead of benefactors to the human race, they become themselves beneficiaries of a willing and generous constituency. Our hero stands out a grand exception to the rule. There is nothing in common with this class except the mere fact of age. A perfectly sound, though somewhat frail body and a mind as active as in youth—a result largely due to his strict observance of the laws of health and wonderful self-control. To properly appreciate the character of this great and good man certain facts must be borne in mind. Besides his age, there are other considerations of importance. One of the best educated men of the day, with high social and family connections; with ability to fill with ease and honor any position within the gift of the people—to deliberately turn his back upon all such opportunities and voluntarily take upon himself a work almost menial in comparison, a work fraught with danger to himself as well as great hardships—the remuneration a mere pittance. Is this not most remarkable in this age of self-aggrandizement and commercialism? A complete crucifixion of self for others and withal a cheerful and happy disposition almost angelic. A practical Christian, preaching six days what he preaches the seventh, contact with such a man, is a benediction. As preacher and pastor, citizen—in all, he is a model. But it is in the sick room—especially among the needy poor, that he shines with peculiar splendor. This is the work he selects and is never so happy as when engaged thereat.

He does not wait to be sent for, nor even for such cares to be reported to him. He is always on the alert, and where needed most, there he is to be found. Not only does he divide his money, but where that is not sufficient to relieve all the needs, he supplies the deficiency with personal service. How often has he been seen with armfuls of wood from a neighboring saw mill, buckets of water, etc., hastening to relieve suffering! This, of course, is outside his ministration to their spiritual needs.

Young men have a special interest for him. In his lodge (Odd Fellows), on the streets, everywhere, he is their friend.

The desire to help others seems to overshadow all other consideration. His favorite song as I have often heard him in his room at my home before joining the family at the breakfast table, is: "Help us to help each other, Lord." This correctly illustrates the principle of his life. Whether money or otherwise, donations to him are used to help others. But my space is limited. My estimate of Rev. A. D. Betts, formed from personal observation (for he never heralds his work to the world). Truly, his left hand is ignorant of what his right does. Of all my acquaintances, he is the best and greatest, not as the world calls great, perhaps, for he is to be measured by no such standard.

The influence for good of the very presence of this Godly man in a community can not be estimated in words; greater far than volumes of sermons and discourses.

May he be spared many years of health and usefulness is the prayer of one who loves him next to his immediate family.

New Bern, N. C., Jan. 25, 1904.

A Preache'rs Saddened Heart and Home.

During a pastorate of only two short months, Rev. R. C. Craven has won his way to the hearts of our Tarboro people as but few men can so quickly. During this brief period his heart has repeatedly been called on to go out in sympathy to sorrowing ones. Only last Monday morning he was called from his Quarterly Conference to conduct the funeral service of a deceased young member. He knew not then that he would himself so soon be called on to walk in the shadows of sorrow, but perhaps was a little fearful, for at his home lay his first born, Grady, a bright, promising son, prostrated by intense suffering the previous afternoon and night. He had rallied some, but it was only the loosening of death's hold for a few hours to tighten his grip, which brought the necessity for an operation as an only hope. It did not suffice to release his victim, and, early Wednesday morning, Grady passed out from his happy home here up by sun, moon and stars to his new home in the skies. How quickly did he go away when his spirit began to spread its wings to fly! Poising for a few days only, he caught a glimpse of the eternal day, unfolded his pinions and was gone. Papa and mamma will look through tears at his vacant chair, but he fills another. His boyish voice is hushed to them, but it is sending forth sweeter notes. The sound of his foot-steps falls no more on their ears, but his feet press the walks of brighter shores. To them comes the sweet thought that Grady is still their boy, though taken to be kept in safety by the Father until they go home.

With Paul, Brother and Sister Craven know in whom they have believed, and, with David, look to the hills, whence cometh all their help. Their sad experience now inducts them into that circle of sympathetic fellowship where hearts are made akin in sorrow. From that circle many earnest prayers go to the Father to fold them closely in His arms to His great heart of love and tenderness, and to them flow tides of sympathy from sincere hearts that have felt the sobs of sorrow which bear them down. May the God of all grace bring Grady's weeping loved ones to a happy reunion with him at last.

Rowland Circuit.

Dear Brother Ivey:—Please allow space in your paper for a few lines from one who has long been a subscriber and enjoyed reading its pages so much.

Our Circuit this year is in charge of one of the best of pastors, Rev. J. W. Bradley. He was absent for two months (December and January), but has returned to us, very much to the delight of his congregations, all of whom love him for his kindness of manner and Christian disposition.

He came to us in 1903 a stranger, but he didn't make but a few rounds before he had hosts of friends, not only of his own churches, but other denominations as well.

The poor and the rich he visits alike.

To the aged and infirm he is gentleness itself.

To the sick room he carries a ray of sunshine as he goes.

In September he started a protracted meeting at our church, but was called to the bedside of his sister who was dying. God was merciful though, and spared her life until he could get to her, when with her last farewells she entrusted her orphan children to his care. (Their father having died some time before.)

This we know he feels a great responsibility, as he is a young man and unmarried; but we feel sure that God will bless his efforts and be a father to the fatherless ones.

Brother Bradley has visited homes in his congregations that never knew what it was to have a minister call on them. This, with so many other evidences of kindness, have greatly endeared him to his people.

I hope this will be a prosperous year with him and his churches, and that the Lord will greatly bless all his labors.

Wishing success to you and your good paper, I am Affectionately,

AN OLD SUBSCRIBER.

"Pray Ye Therefore the Lord of the Harvest."

Believing that the time has come when as a united company we need to entreat Him with whom all things are possible to thrust forth laborers into the harvest, we ask that all of the members of the Woman's Home Mission Society observe Friday, March 11, as a day of self-examination and prayer.

Now, as never before in the history of the church, city missions boards, rescue homes, and schools are urgently calling to the Board for trained women—deaconesses or missionaries—to help in the work of the Lord, and there are no women ready to answer these calls. Through the Scarritt Bible and Training School the church stands ready to give the needed training. Where are the hundreds of young or middle-aged women in our church who have said at her altars, "I am willing to do whatever God wants me to do?"

Are they waiting for a more definite call? In His name we send it forth now. Let them wait no longer. "Say not ye, There are yet four months, and then cometh harvest? behold, I say unto you, Lift up your eyes, and look on the fields; for they are white already to harvest."

Make the 11th day of March a day of entering into your closets for solemn, searching self-examination and prayer, and then pay your vows unto the Lord.

New Bern District Missionary Institute.

The Institute was held in Centenary Church, New Bern, Thursday and Friday, February 26-27. Sixteen of the twenty-one preachers in the District were present, and several laymen. All took a lively interest in the proceedings, and the meeting was a success.

One of the subjects emphasized in the discussion was that of revivals. The need of a revival of religion in the District is felt, and, with this in view, preachers were urged to give more attention to the matter of prayer and fasting, and in their preaching to place more emphasis upon the work of the Holy Spirit.

After seeing the interest manifested in this Institute we have reason to believe that the New Bern District will pay its missionary assessment in full.

The writer was appointed Missionary Secretary for the District.

The following resolution was passed:

"Resolved, That we have heard with approval of the suggestion made by Rev. W. R. Ware, of the Western North Carolina Conference, in regard to a Missionary Conference for the South Atlantic Conferences of our church, that it is the sense of this body that such a meeting would be productive of much good to the cause of missions, and that we request Dr. Swindell to present this resolution to the Board of Missions at their next annual meeting."

R. H. WILLIS.

Shallotte Circuit.

Dear Advocate:—We returned immediately to our charge after Conference, this being our second year. We have lost no time since Conference in planning for a successful year's work.

Owing to inclement weather, we have not been able to fill all our appointments.

We have already received two persons into full connection, and have raised, up to date, a part of our Conference collections. We are presenting in an earnest way the Raleigh Christian Advocate to our people, from a house to house visit, and by other methods.

Success to the "Old Raleigh."

Kindness to the Preacher.

J. D. Ballentine, a merchant prince at Fuquay Springs, is not only kindness itself to all his patrons, but seems to know just what an itinerant preacher's pantry and stomach need. To have seen his pastor's buggy on last Monday, after he had taken possession of it for a few minutes, would have convinced the most skeptical mind of this fact. More still, to spend the noon hour around the board in his palatial home, in the presence of his charming wife, is not only refreshing to the inner-man, but is a sure cure for Monday blues.

G. W. STARLING.

A Grateful Acknowledgment.

Dear Dr. Ivey:—One day in three hundred and sixty-five is appointed for general thanksgiving. Yet to make suitable mention of favors received is not out of order any day in the year. Indeed the development of one's spirit of gratitude is usually proportional to the frequency of its expression.

So then, kindly acknowledge for me, through our paper the gift of a new suit of clothes from the ladies of Springfield Church. This I accept in evidence of esteem.

Mrs. Creel joins me in sending to them our most sincere regard.

Yours truly,

E. K. CREEL.

Straits, N. C., Feb. 26, 1904.

Market Street, Wilmington.

On the evening of the 8th inst., the members and friends of Market Street Church gave us a most delightful and enjoyable reception at the residence of Bro. R. H. Beery, 801 Princess Street. Fifty odd people were present and spent the evening pleasantly and profitably. They engaged in singing hymns, playing innocent games, telling stories, talking and laughing till all were invited into the dining-room and served with ice cream and cake. The refreshments were furnished by the young men of the church. After prayer by the pastor, the people turned their steps homeward.

There were as many parcels and packages left for our pantry as there were people in attendance. Hams, flour, sugar, coffee, canned goods, fruits and others staple articles fit for a king were left in sufficient quantity to supply our table for weeks. The entire affair was a surprise to us, except an invitation to meet with the stewards in their monthly meeting and spend the evening with Mr. and Mrs. Beery. This is the second time these people have "pounded" us by storm and between times there have been showers of blessings. There are no better people to serve than those in Market Street Church.

We have received five members into the church since Conference. Collections have been taken for the assessments ordered by the Annual Conference and the entire amount subscribed. The Sunday-school has been newly supplied with Young People's Hymnal No. 2. The attendance and collections are very encouraging in the Sunday-school.

All the regular meeting of the church have been well attended, and the spiritual state is in good condition. Pastor's salary is paid in full every month.

There is no better nor more beautiful location in Wilmington for a prosperous Methodist Church than our lot on Market and Ninth Streets. The time is not far distant when we shall have a house on this lot in keeping with other improvements and pleasing to Almighty God. Under Bro. J. W. Potter of last year this church led in number of conversions and accessions on professions of faith, second in number of accessions by certificate and in infant baptisms. If we can secure the co-operation of the Methodists of the city as the mission churches of St. Louis and Dallas have done the past few years, we shall, like them, soon be sufficiently strong to take care of ourselves and then help other weak and struggling churches to their feet.

The Family.

The Truce of the Bear.

BY RUDYARD KIPLING.

(This poem, which appeared in 1898, set all Europe by the ears, for it was regarded as as a direct slap at the Czar's motives in proposing the Peace Conference at The Hague. Adam-zad means Russia, and the blind beggar is England.

Yearly, with tent and rifle, our careless white men go
By the pass called Muttianec, to shoot in the vale below.
Yearly by Muttianec he follows our white men in—
Matun, the old blind beggar, bandaged from brow to chin.

Eyeless, noseless and lipless—toothless, broken of speech,
Seeking a dole at the doorway he mumbles his tale to each;
Over and over the story, ending as he began:
"Make ye no truce with Adam-zad—the Bear that walks like a man!

"There was a flint in my musket—pricked and primed was the pan,
When I went hunting Adam-zad—the Bear that stands like a man.
I looked my last on the timber, I looked my last on the snow,
When I went hunting Adam-zad fifty summers ago!

"I knew his times and his season, as he knew mine, that fed
By night in the ripened maizefield and robbed my house of bread;
I knew his strength and cunning, as he knew mine, that crept
At dawn to the crowded goat-pens and plundered while I slept.

"Up from his stong play-ground—down from his well-digged lair—
Out on the naked ridges ran Adam-zad the Bear;
Groaning, grunting and roaring, heavy with stolen meals,
Two long marches to nothward, and I was at his heels!

"Two full marches to the northward, at the fall of the second night,
I came on mine enemy Adam-zad all panting from his flight.
There was charge in the musket—pricked and primed was the pan—
My finger crooked on the trigger—when he reared up like a man.

"Horrible, hairy, human, with paws like hands in prayer,
Making his supplication rose Adam-zad the Bear!
I looked at the swaying shoulders, at the paunch's swag and swing,
And my heart was touched with pity for the monstrous, pleading thing.

"Touched with pity and wonder, I did not fire then . . .
I have looked no more on women—I have walked no more with men.
Nearer he tottered and nearer, with paws like hands that pray—
From brow to jaw that steel-shod paw, it ripped my face away!

"Sudden, silent, and savage, searing as flame the blow—
Faceless I fell before his feet, fifty summers ago.
I heard him grunt and chuckle—I heard him pass to his den,
He left me blind to the darkened years and the little mercy of men.

"Now ye go down in the morning with guns of the newer style,
That load (I have felt) in the middle and range (I have heard) a mile?
Luck to the white man's rifle, that shoots so fast and true,
But—pay, and I lift my bandage and show what the Bear can do!"

(Flesh like slag in the furnace, knobbed and withered and gray—Matun, the old blind beggar, he gives good worth for his pay.)
"Rouse him at noon in the bushes, follow and press him hard—
Not for his ragings and roarings flinch ye from Adam-zad.

"But (pay, and I put back the bandage) this is the time to fear,
When he stands up like a tired man, tottering near and near;
When he stands up as leading, in wavering, man-brute guise,
When he veils the hate and cunning of the little, swinish eyes;

"When he shows as seeking quarter, with paws like hands in prayer,
That is the time of peril—the time of the Truce of the Bear!"

Eyeless, noseless, and lipless, asking a dole at the door,
Matun, the old blind beggar, he tells it o'er and o'er;
Fumbling and feeling the rifles, warming his hands at the flame,
Hearing our careless white men talk of the morrow's game;

Over and over the story, ending as he began:—
"There is no truce with Adam-zad, the Bear that looks like a man!"

Iceberg Support.

"Why did you leave so strong a charge?" said a friend to a pastor.

"My brother, I could not stay another day. I stayed as long as I could."

"Was there trouble?" inquired the friend.

"No, there was no trouble. They met all their legal obligations to me promptly, and appeared satisfied with my work, but I felt I had no support. The people seemed to give me plenty of support, but it was the support of the iceberg. It was cold. There was no heart in it."

"Did you do anything to set them against you?"

"I was not conscious of it if I did. I never said an unkind word from the pulpit or privately."

"Do you think you fitted the situation?"

"Well, I don't think I did, and I'm sure I couldn't have stood it any longer. During my stay I pressed the matter of church membership personally and faithfully to practically all not on the roll, and the addition I had didn't represent 3 per cent of the roll per year."

"How did they attend church?"

"Fairly well I thought, considering conditions, but I couldn't seem to break up their well-bred indifference. It was as I tell you. I felt I had my back up against an iceberg. I would have died of cold had I remained."

This conversation took place between two pastors whose friendship is of long standing. The man who received this iceberg support— a man sweet in spirit and strong—has been for three years in another congregation. The additions to membership have been numerous and steady. He is receiving a smaller salary than formerly; but he is conscious of the warm-hearted support of his people and is happy in his work, though it is very heavy.

The complaint as to short pastorates is seldom heard where the pastor is made to feel he has the hearty support of his people. Pecuniary support is always a quite secondary consideration with good men. Hard work is a happiness to the man who feels his work is appreciated.—Rev. F. W. Murray, in The Christian Endeavor World.

"True and Tried."

Life's companships are full of significance for the Christian as well as for the worldling. While the determination of character is ultimately found in the will of the individual, it is nevertheless true that a man's companions, even his chance acquaintances, exercise a strong influence in directing, accentuating, or modifying his dominant characteristics. It is of the utmost importance, therefore, that a man should select his friends judiciously, and should deal with all transcient acquaintances cautiously, not admitting any to close intimacy until their worth has been surely tested and their affection proved through extended trial. One there is whose friendship for the soul is ever dependable, blessed, and, in the supreme sense, rewarding. God can be trusted. An old lady's Bible was found to be lettered on the margin every here and there with the characters, "T. & T." Asked what the cabalistic signs signified, the old saint replied: "They are writen after the verses which contain promises that I have personally tested, and which I have, therefore, marked 'True and Tried.'" God is a helper who is "True and Tried." All true human friendships, like that of David for Jonathan, are types, partial, but significant, of that most blessed divine relation which subsists between the great Creator and the soul that humbly confides in him.—Zion's Herald.

What Lemons Are Good For.

1. Give hot lemonade at bedtime to cure a cold.

2. Bake a lemon, take out the inside and mix with sugar to make a thick syrup. Keep it warm, and take a teaspoonful frequently to drive away a cough.

3. Lemon juice is good to rub on the hands and face at bed-time to remove tan and clear the complexion, but dilute it with water, else it will darken the skin.

4. Lemon juice will quickly remove stains from the hands.

5. A glass of lemonade taken every morning will sometimes prevent bilious attacks.

6. Lemon juice is more wholesome than vinegar when used in salads, sauces, etc.

7. A slice of lemon bound on a corn at night will remove the soreness.

8. Don't waste the lemon rind. A little of it grated when fresh, and added to apple-pie or apple-sauce is an improvement. The rind of a fresh lemon grated and added to bread-pudding will make a different dish of it.

9. Lemons may be kept nice and fresh for a long time if placed in a jar of water; but the water should be changed every day.—Farmer's Advocate.

It May Have Been a Dream.

It may have been a dream, a dream full sweet—
But, once, I stood inside the gates of pearl;
And there I saw soft, snow-white flags unfurl,
And ranks of angels tread the golden street;
And as those bright ones marched, they sang, and sang
Till all the vibrant air with music rang.

"Where are the little ones?" at last I said;
"The children of the kingdom, where are they—
Who came to earth and quickly went away,
Leaving fond human hearts uncomforted?"
One led me on where fields grew green outside,
And there I saw the children who had died.

Through death, they entered life divine and fair,
Christ-lilies grew about them tall and sweet,
Soft moss a carpet spread before their feet;
And oft the Master walked among them there,
And rose and lily bloomed with rarer grace
Beneath the tender smiling of his face.

In terraces the gardens lay each side
The rippling river, limped, pure, and bright,
Where often harpers played to give delight:
And many a mother-angel served as guide,
From pleasure unto pleasure, bliss to bliss,
For naught of joy the heavenly children miss.

Look out for renewals and new subscribers to the "Old Raleigh" pretty soon. I think every subscriber will renew.

The foundation for our new church at Rowland is being laid. All our people are enthusiastic over it.

We are trying to repair our church at Centenary before the quarterly meeting.

Purvis Church will be painted inside soon.

At Oak Grove we hope to paint the church this year.

So you see the "Raby Circuit" is anxious to grow. And may this year be marked with not only material growth, but spiritual development as well through His servant by the power of the Holy Spirit.

Yours and His for service,

Dear Advocate:—I am a little boy twelve years old. I have never written to you; I will write now.

I go to school and my teacher is Miss Phelps. I like her very much.

I will close by asking a question: How many years was Noah building the ark?

I will answer Mamie Hunley's question—Elijah went to heaven without dying.

I will ask a question: What are the first five books of the Bible called?

Enclosed find fifteen cents for the orphans.

Mrs. R. F. Williams is my Sunday-school teacher. I go to every-day school also. Mrs. Williams is my teacher at both schools.

I will answer Maud Hill's question: Now, I will ask a question: How many of Jesus' disciples were baptized?

I will enclose ten cents for the orphans.

Your little friend,
MIDRED BARBOUR.

Methodist Orphanage,
Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 22, 1904.

Dear Advocate:—I am a boy thirteen years old. My father, mother and two of my brothers are dead. They all died of typhoid fever. There are five of us living now—two girls and three boys. Two of us are here at the Orphanage. We are members of the Methodist Church and have joined Grit's Golden Rule Club.

We came from Ashpole, Robeson County, N. C.

We are always glad when the Advocate comes. We all thank Dr. Ivey for sending it to us.

We are getting along well in our studies. We all had a glorious Christmas.

I will ask a question: By how many names is the Saviour called in the Bible?

With best wishes for the Advocate.

"Then Peter opened his mouth, and said, Of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons: but in every nation he that feareth Him, and worketh righteousness is accepted of Him."

Mrs. R. H. Whitaker, our District Secretary, sends this message to her Auxiliaries and Bright Jewel Bands:

I have sent both quarterly and annual blanks to each Auxiliary of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, and to each Lady Manager of the Bright Jewels in the Raleigh District.

I earnestly hope that the reports will be made promptly, and that all collections may come up in full. The leaflets will be forwarded as soon as I receive them.

Do not neglect to elect your delegates to the Annual Meeting which will be held in Elizabeth City, April 20-25.

Yours truly,
MRS. R. H. WHITAKER,
District Secretary.

Will not some others of our District Secretaries talk to their Auxiliaries through this column?

The Golden Links have been honored with a department in our Woman's Missionary Advocate. It is well, for every facility for growth and intelligence should be given to this important sphere of usefulness in the missionary cause. Out of their ranks must come—in a few years, perhaps,—efficient, consecrated women to fill the places now occupied by those who have labored faithfully for years, for the prosperity of "woman's work for woman," and who must needs retire from active service.

From close association with the members of our own Young Woman's Society (they prefer to keep their old-time name) it cannot be doubted that in these organizations may be found every element of character necessary for capable, loyal leaders.

Our column is open for news from the Golden Links of our own Conference Society.

Through the courtesy and hospitality of our Corresponding Secretary Miss Julia Hutchings, the literary meeting of the Edenton Street Auxiliary was held at her home last Tuesday afternoon, and a pleasant, interesting meeting it was; only one objection to it all could be found, and that was the rather small attendance of members. So much unfavorable weather this winter has robbed our missionary meetings of the presence of many who have been, heretofore, faithful attendants.

No doubt some of our readers think Edenton Street Auxiliary appears very frequently in this column, and they would like to read, sometimes, of what other Auxiliaries are doing—so would we. If you, dear sister, find it in your heart to make a criticism of this kind, remember you are to blame for the nonappearance of news from your own Auxiliary. Right gladly would items be received and published, from every point in our Conference Society.

The beloved Recording Secretary of the Western North Carolina Conference Society, Mrs. Jno. R. Brooks, is now in our city the guest of her sister, Mrs. Garland Jones. We trust her health will permit her to attend all our missionary meetings—Home and Foreign—while she is here. Her long service in this cause, and her ripe experience in all phases of Christian work, make her a wise counselor, and a valuable acquisition to any business or social gathering.

Next Monday closes our fiscal year, and a few days thereafter every report of the year's work must be sent in. Will there be an Auxiliary that will pay in full its obligations for the whole year? If there be such an one, our Treasurer, Mrs. Adams, is requested to send the name of Auxiliary to this column for publication.

There must be some fault in our financial system, that it would be well for us to discover and remedy, if possible. The matter of postponing payment of dues and Conference expense fund from time to time and from quarter to quarter, thus causing an unusual and embarrassing rush of work for the Treasurers at the close of the year, is becoming a serious one; and it will require consideration and adjustment—if such thing is possible—at our approaching Annual Meeting. All our sisters who have a talent for managing business matters, should give this subject their serious thought, that some plan may be formulated requiring the prompt payment of funds as they become due each quarter.

It has been said that women, as a general thing, are always ready and willing to meet their obligations in secular affairs—how much more should they be so in their church work!

When we put our names on the roll of the Missionary Society, it is our bounden duty to pay every cent it demands for the prosecution of its work. "Counting the cost," of which our Savior at one time spoke to His disciples, should be done before our names are given in; and when, after due deliberation, we cast our lots in with God's own chosen laborers, and are faithful to Him and our vows. He will see that we have sufficient to meet all demands.

FEARFUL ODDS AGAINST HIM.

Bedridden, alone, and destitute. Such, in brief was the condition of an old soldier by name of J. J. Havens, Versailles, O. For years he was troubled with Kidney disease and neither doctors nor medicines gave him relief. At length he tried Electric Bitters. It put him on his feet in short order and now he testifies: "I'm on the road to complete recovery." Best on earth for Liver and Kidney troubles and all forms of Stomach and Bowel Complaints. Only 50c. Guaranteed by all druggists.

March Questions.

When was the Deaconess work begun in the Southern Methodist Church? In May, 1902.

Upon whom do the control and equipment of the Deaconesses rest? Upon the Committee of Control which consists of the officers of the Woman's Board of Home Missions, the Principal of the Scarritt Bible and Training School and two additional members from the Society at large, quadrennially elected by the Board.

Who placed the responsibility there? The General Conference, assembled at Dallas, Texas, when it created the office of Deaconess in connection with the Woman's Home Mission Society.

High Authority.

We see that these elect women go out with commissions from highest authority, and they can be trusted to follow them conscientiously and intelligently, for, before receiving, they are required to pass satisfactory examinations both as to religious and educational qualifications.

Continual Calls.

So rapidly are the Deaconesses gaining acknowledgement and appreciation, they are receiving numberless calls in every department of Home Mission service. They are needed to lighten the burdens of the poor, to nurse the sick, to train the orphans, to teach the ignorant, to carry sympathy to the sorrowing, to go out after the wandering and the sinful—and in all these ministrations they are following in the footsteps of the great Teacher just as did their sisters in Holy Writ.

May our young women realize the almost illimitable privileges that are in their power, and gratefully and joyfully use them.

Windsor Auxiliary.

I take great pleasure in giving you Miss Helen Gilliam's report, which is full of good works and glad cheer:

"In the past year our Auxiliary has increased in numbers and interest. Our officers are faithful and efficient and the outlook for the new year is encouraging.

"Our Mite Box Brigade numbers thirteen, and though organized only a short time since, raised $6.03 during the third quarter. There are ten names on the pay-roll.

"Several of our officers and teachers are unable to get to the meetings until after schools hours; for this reason our winter sessions are short, giving little time for the excellent monthly program. As the days grow longer, however, we hope to carry it out more satisfactorily.

"At our December meeting the Superintendent of Literature (Miss Gillam herself filled this position at that time—Editor) arranged a quiz upon the work as presented by her on former occasions. It was decided to be an excellent method for fixing the work in our minds.

"Amount raised during the year in dues, mite-boxes, week of prayer offerings and for Deaconess Fund, $45.13. We clothe an orphan at our Orphanage, and during this quarter have expended $8.00 on our parsonage.

"HELEN E. GILLAM,
Corresponding Secretary."

Officers of Windsor Auxiliary.

When I tell you that until recently this Auxiliary numbered only fifteen members, you can understand why their faithfulness deserves special commendation. I must introduce the officers:

Mrs. H. V. Dunston, President.
Mrs. E. S. Dail, First Vice-President.
Mrs. J. B. Nicholls, Second Vice-President.
Mrs. R. L. Davis, Third Vice-President.
Miss Maude Gurley, Recording Secretary.
Miss Helen Gillam, Corresponding Secretary.
Mrs. Mary F. Gillam, Treasurer.
Mrs. W. E. Copeland, Superintendent of Literature and Press Work.

Winfall Auxiliary.

We give the glad hand of welcome to this new Auxiliary. The fact that its President, Mrs. F. L. Church, wife of the pastor, came from the North Georgia Conference, insures its success, and, I doubt not, her sisters officers will prove faithful and helpful. Allow me to present them all:

Mrs. F. L. Church, President.
Mrs. M. L. Twine, First Vice-President.
Miss Mattie White, Third Vice-President.
Mrs. M. S. Rollins, Recording Secretary.
Mrs. W. L. Jessup, Corresponding Secretary.
Mrs. Joseph White, Treasurer.

Largest [Number of Auxiliaries in the Elizabeth City District.

Winfall makes the ninth Auxiliary in the Elizabeth City District—the largest number in any District of the North Carolina Conference.

Is not this eloquent testimony to the faithfulness and industry of our Conference President, Mrs. J. E. Underwood and the District Secretary, Mrs. C. M. Hollowell? I trust it will be an object lesson by the other District Secretaries and other Conference officers.

DO YOU TAKE YOUR CHURCH PAPER?

For the last few weeks, the Raleigh Christian Advocate has been going to the home of thousands who are not subscribers to the paper.

The question which stands at the head of this column is addressed to these thousands. Of course the only answer to this question is "No." You do not take your church paper, but we trust that, after reading this article, you will resolve in your heart that hereafter you will be able to say "Yes" in answer to this question.

YOU SHOULD TAKE IT

Because it is a weekly messenger from Christ. It is set for the advancement of Christ's kingdom on earth. To take the paper which belongs to Christ himself is to obey that great command, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and His righteousness." Not to take such a paper when able, especially when you take the papers of the world, is to disobey the command, and rob yourself of the promise, "and all these things shall be added unto you."

You should take it because by so doing you will strengthen your church. Every working body of men and women has its newspaper organ. The saloon association has its organ, because it cannot get along without its paper. It circulates by its hundreds of thousands. Why is it that your church is not more useful and powerful than it is? Simply because there are so many like you—not taking the church paper. Every subscriber to the church paper adds strength to the church itself. Why? Ask the preacher who finds that ease in holding revivals, building churches, and collecting church funds is in direct proportion to the number of church papers taken in his charge. Ask the steward, the Sunday-school Superintendent, and other officials who find that the most loyal official boards, the best Sunday-schools and prayer meetings and largest congregations are found among the people who take their church paper.

You should take your church paper because it will help you intellectually and spiritually. You cannot read the Raleigh Christian Advocate, with its varied contents, without becoming a better man or woman—a more intelligent man or woman—a more loyal man or woman. You need to know more about your church, her people, and her operations. You cannot love that which you know nothing about. The more you know about a lovable thing the more you will love it. The more you know about your church, the more you will love her and the happier you will be.

Your family needs the church paper. The wife needs it in the midst of her household duties and cares. The husband needs it. He may say that he has no time to read it. But that husband forgets that Almighty God intends that every child of His shall take time to read His paper. That child of yours needs it. It is going to read something. If it cannot read the right thing, it is going to read the wrong thing. There are men and women in heaven today because their parents took the church paper. There are men and women in perdition today, because there was no church paper in their childhood's home.

THOSE SAMPLE COPIES.

We trust that you have read every one of them. In order that you might do so we have spent hundreds of dollars.

You ask if the papers you have received free of charge are average samples of the paper for the year 1904. We frankly say that they are not. Providence helping us, the Advocate three months from now will be far better than the one you have just received. The paper next fall will be better than the paper of next summer. You know our motto, "Better and Better." We propose making the pages for the family and the children special features this year, not to speak of other departments in which we purpose to make beenficial changes.

Sit right down and send us one dollar with your name and post-office address, and the Raleigh Christian Advocate will visit you until January 1, 1905.

This is a great offer we are making you. You cannot afford to miss it. We are determined to place the Advocate in 1,500 new homes.

We Methodists think that we are a great people, and we are. But how do you like this? One Presbyterian out of every eight in North Carolina takes his church paper; one Missionary Baptist out of nine in North Carolina takes his church paper; only one Methodist out of every fourteen in North Carolina takes his church paper. As a Methodist you do not like your showing in this comparison. Neither do we. So primarily for the reasons given already, and secondarily, because we suffer fearfully in comparison with other denominations in the State in the matter of supporting church papers, we again ask you to send us at once one dollar and receive the Raleigh Christian Advocate until January 1, 1905.

"THE FOREIGN PEOPLE A-FIGHTING."

Those who are safely removed from the arena of a war in which they are not directly involved are apt to be swayed by two feelings which themselves are very closely allied—that of partisanship and self-complacency.

It is difficult for one to look at a dog fight without taking sides. Much more difficult is it for one to see two great nations fighting each other on that awful stage reddened with blood and shaken by the thunder of great guns and not be overmastered by a desire to see one side come out victorious. The desire is natural, human, and almost inevitable.

Then there is a feeling of a self-congratulatory nature. The picture of suffering is brought out in bold relief—the picture of men slain on the field, dying in hospitals, starving in prisons; of orphaned children, and weeping widows; of burning cities, maddened mobs, and other hideous forms in the black procession of War. How natural and easy it is for us to say, "We are truly blessed. We are not called upon to suffer."

Goethe knew something of this dominant feeling of self-complacency. In Scene II. of Faust, he pictures the people before the city gates, and represents one citizen as saying:

"On Sundays, holidays, there's naught I take delight in Like gossiping of war and war's array,
When down in Turkey, far away
The foreign people are a-fighting."

To which another citizen replies:

To which another citizen replies, showing that he fully appreciates the sentiments of his well-fed, selfish friend:

"Yes neighbor! that's my notion too.
Why let them break their heads, let loose their passion,
And mix things madly through and through,
So here we keep our good old fashion."

Those citizens represent a large number of people who at a distance are now looking at the mighty struggle of Japan and Russia. "Why let them break their heads, so here we keep our good old fashion" is the feeling of too many.

Suffice it to say, this self-complacency is altogether barbarous, and consequently does not begether barbarous and consequently does not become a Christian nation. It develops a nature in whose dark undergrowths all the finer, nobler feelings are poisoned and stifled.

Rather let us at this time, while we thank God that the clouds of war are not darkening our sky, develop a feeling of strong sympathy for the thousands who must suffer, both Japanese and Russians. May it be a time for strengthening our faith in that God who has promised to, "beat swords into plough shares and spears into pruning hooks." Let sorrow that the mandates of the "Prince of Peace" are not being obeyed only deepen the trust that the time will soon come when the last echoes of the battle's thunder shall die away over the hills of Time, white with the waving flags of eternal Peace.

"RESURGAM"—G. F. C.

The trustees of Greensboro Female College lost no time in holding a meeting and making their plans. The College was burned on Thursday morning and on the following Tuesday the Trustees held a meeting which was enthusiastic from every standpoint. Every trustee was present with one exception.

After having thoroughly looked into the condition of things, the trustees found themselves prepared to make the following announcement:

1. The bonded indebtedness is $40,000.
2. The insurance on the property destroyed by fire is $35,000, which is sufficient to pay off the bonded indebtedness, except $5,000, held by the alumnae association in trust for the education of needy students.
3. We have pledges and cash in hand sufficient to pay the balance of $10,000 due for the purchase of the capital stock of $25,000.
4. We have appointed a committee to collect the insurance and pay off the bonded indebtedness.
5. We have decided to rebuild the college, and have appointed a building committee, for that purpose, to begin work as soon as $35,000 shall have been subscribed, to be paid when called for by the building committee.
6. We have appointed a special committee to co-operate with the Alumnae Association for the purpose of raising the needed funds for rebuilding.
7. We appeal to all the friends of the college to come to the rescue in this time of her sorest need, and to raise the needed subscriptions in thirty days, so that the work of rebuilding may begin at once.
8. The building contemplated, which will have modern improvements, will cost about $50,000, exclusive of furniture.

The rebuilding of Greensboro Female College is a matter in which all North Carolina Methodists should feel glad to take a part. There should be no dependence on the contribution of large sums. The Methodist people as a whole should help and realize that the small as well as the larger sums will be welcomed.

The Trinity College Glee Club made its first appearance in Raleigh on last Monday night in Metropolitan Hall. The audience was large and appreciative. The young men gave a first-class entertainment. Their dignified bearing and the almost perfect rendition of the various parts reflected great credit on the Glee Club and the college they represent.

Dr. G. C. Rankin, we are glad to state, is improving, but at this writing is not able to leave his room. He has enjoyed (?) a serious spell of sickness. For one who has enjoyed for many years such excellent health as has the Doctor, it is a very trying ordeal to be pent up in a sick room for many days. We hope to be able to record in next issue his entire recovery.—Texas Christian Advocate.

Dr. Rankin has been compelled to forego making his trip to Europe as had been planned.

North Carolina Methodism.

The Missionary Institute of Fayetteville District will meet in Sanford, March 9-11, 1904.

It is announced that Rev. Sam P. Jones will lecture in Rockingham on Monday night, March 7th.

If any one has the idea that the friends of Greensboro Female College are in the least discouraged, let him dismiss the idea at once.

Rev. R. G. Barrett, known to a great many in the North Carolina Conference, was married last week in Statesville to Mrs. Jennie C. Rickert.

According to the last Journal the only absent lay delegate of the North Carolina Conference at Goldsboro was the lamented F. B. Gibson, who died during the session.

We are glad that we can announce that there is in the North Carolina Conference a marked disposition to increase the preacher's salary. This fact is brightly auspicious.

Mr. R. M. Phillips is to be congratulated on his part in the Greensboro edition of the Morning Post. Brother Phillips is one of the expert reporters and newspaper men of the State.

From present indications we would judge that the preachers of the North Carolina Conference are preparing to make a great campaign for the Raleigh Christian Advocate during the month of March.

Rev. L. B. Jones writes us a roseate letter in which he says that he is getting on finely on his work. We like to hear these encouraging reports during this period of rain, sleet and snow, and muddy roads.

The facts contained in the communication of Rev. G. T. Simmons on the fourth page of the Advocate indicate that Youngsville Circuit is throbbing with vitality and is not lacking in appreciation of their consecrated and faithful pastor.

In the various missionary institutes now being held throughout the Conference there should be for our preachers and laymen great inspiration not only for missionary work, but for work in all departments. The missionary institute is a great thing.

Rev. W. B. Lee, a returned missionary to Brazil, preached on last Sunday to the Edenton Street congregation in the morning and to the Central congregation in the evening. This was Brother Lee's first appearance before our Raleigh people, and his sermons were highly edifying.

Our hearts go out to Rev. W. F. Craven and wife in the loss by death of their young son Grady which occurred on February 4th. Appendicitis was the cause. The deceased was a bright, lovable boy, and his death is a great blow to his parents, who we feel sure, are bearing it in the strength of Christian faith.

Who should step into our office the other day but the unique J. V. Williams the continent trotting commercial tourist and evangelist. He was in his usual good spirits. He was on his way to Texas to be gone about four months. He wishes to return to North Carolina in time for the District Conferences. Bro. J. V. is a great Methodist.

Rev. R. F. Bumpas, pastor of Edenton Street Church, Raleigh, enlivened his prayer-meeting on last Wednesday night by a talk in which he showed the connection between some prophecies in the Bible and the present Eastern trouble. Brother Bumpas and the other Methodist pastors in the city are doing a great deal of hard work just now in spite of the rough weather.

Dr. L. L. Nash, who went to Smithfield on the 22nd to assist Rev. N. E. Coltrane in a meeting, had to return to Henderson on the following Friday on account of his being too ill to preach. In passing through Raleigh on his return he paid the Advocate office a pleasant visit. He said that the prospects for a good meeting at Smithfield were very bright, and Rev. N. E. Coltrane has Smithfield Station in excellent condition.

General Notes.

The circulation of the Epworth Herald, published in Chicago, is now 125,000.

The Nebraska Supreme Court has decided that dealing in options in grain is gambling.

We are rejoiced to know that Bishop J. C. Granbery has regained his wonted health.

The combined sales of the two Book Concerns of the M. E. Church for the year 1903 are $2,210,666.42.

J. E. Hubbard, who has just been appointed Secretary of the Y. M. C. A. for Havana, has sailed for that city.

Rev. G. Campbell Morgan has declined to become the pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church of Chicago.

All the missionaries in Korea seem to be safe. They are ready to leave at short notice when leaving becomes necessary.

The sixty-seventh anniversary of the birth of Dwight L. Moody has just been celebrated in the Moody Church, Chicago.

Bishop Hoss who has been appointed fraternal messenger to the Conference of the British Wesleyan Church, will sail in July.

We are glad to know that Dr. W. F. Tillett, who has been suffering greatly with an affection of the left eye, is able to be at work again.

Dr. James Atkins makes an address this week in Washington, D. C. Subject: "The Field of Hope in the Work of Religious Education."

Norfolk Methodism has recently sustained a severe loss in the death of its two most valuable laymen, Messrs. B. T. Booker and C. W. Pettitt.

Dr. George E. Howe leaves the editorship of The Watchman (Baptist) to occupy the chair of Modern Christianity in Newton Theological Institute.

Rev. E. B. Chappell, D. D., pastor McKendree, Nashville, Tennessee, has been offered the Presidency of Epworth University at Oklahoma City, Oklahoma.

Rev. W. A. Guerry is in the field to raise an endowment fund of $40,000 for the endowment fund of the University of the South, at Sewanee, Tennessee.

Dr. P. H. Whisner, Corresponding Secretary of the Board of Church Extension, states that the increase this year in contributions to that cause is over $14,000.

Dr. James Cannon, Manager of the Baltimore-Richmond Christian Advocate, is furnishing for that paper an admirable series of articles on the Educational Needs in Virginia.

The Southern Methodist Church has inaugurated a Sunday-school movement in Japan by appointing Rev. K. Mito, of Uwaiima, Japan, to travel in Japan and organize Sunday-schools.

There are in the Methodist church throughout the world 48,815 preachers, 89,430 churches, 81,580 Sunday-schools, 6,523,230 Sunday-school officers and teachers, and 7,801,311 church members.

There are 62,000 Methodists in Ireland. While during the last decade the Roman Catholics, Protestant Episcopalians, and Presbyterians, show a decrease, the Methodists show an increase of eleven per cent.

Joe Ramsay is holding meetings in Nashville, Tenn. We trust that Joe, who has heard it thunder a good many times, has stopped calling himself the "boy preacher." Joe is a power, though, wherever he goes.

It is difficult for anything on a big scale to happen without involving in some way a Methodist preacher. In the late Baptimore fire, a preacher of the Baltimore Conference lost a dress suit. Just think of it, ye shades of Asbury!

Have you seen the paper called "Work"? It is published and edited by Dr. S. A. Steel, at Lumberton, Miss. It is fresh, original, unique. Its very typographical character is of a new kind. It is as invigorating as an electric battery—the kind that you cannot turn loose.

Publisher's Column.

THE CAMPAIGN FOR NEW SUBSCRIBERS.

The Conference has requested each District to furnish 150 new subscribers by May 1, 1904. The report for each District will be made weekly in this column. The District reporting the largest number of new subscribers by May 1, 1904, will receive a present not costing less than $25.00, to be applied as the District Conference thinks best.

The following new subscribers have been received since February 24:

D. C. Geddie, 1; W. L. Cunningim, 2; E. Z. R., 1; F. L. Church, 2; W. H. W., 1; P. Greening, 1; F. M. S., 1; W. F. Galloway, 1; J. D. Pegram, 2; W. H. Townsend, 1; J. H. M. Giles, 2; B. C. Glover, 13; B. E. Stanfield, 2; Rufus Bradley, 1; N. H. Guyton, 1; W. D. Sasser, 1; T. A. Smoot, 1; H. E. Tripp, 1; J. E. Saunders, 3; R. F. W., 1.

Raleigh District	42
Fayetteville District	26
Washington District	25
Elizabeth City District	17
Rockingham District	10
Warrenton District	17
New Bern District	98
Wilmington District	27
Durham District	12

THE CAMPAIGN.

We have no doubt that all the preachers in the Conference are determined on carrying out the Conference resolution and securing by the first of May 150 new subscribers for each District.

We have no doubt that they all realize that we cannot afford to fail in this enterprise.

But we would suggest that we have no time to lose. Right now is the time to secure new subscribers.

One preacher writes us that he is going to lay aside everything else for a few days this week and work for new subscribers. He will succeed. So will every other preacher who will go at it in this determined and business-like way. Try it and see for yourself. The effort will break in with blessings on every department of church work in your charge.

THE HANDBOOK.

The edition of the Handbook is being rapidly depleted, and there are many of our readers who have not yet secured a copy. The probability is that your only chance to secure a copy is to send 25 cents to this office and secure one.

We publish below what the Nashville Christian Advocate and the Sunday-School Magazine have to say of the Handbook:

"Dr. T. N. Ivey, who edits the Raleigh Christian Advocate, has become so expert in his calling that it no longer exhausts his energies to get out, week by week, one of the best papers in the Church. For the good year 1904 he springs upon the fraternity of hard-worked editors a surprise in his North Carolina Methodist Handbook. It is a good Handbook for any Methodist, containing connectional data, summaries as to membership, etc., of the whole Church, and other matters of general interest. One of the novel features for the two Carolina Conferences are the district and circuit maps. Such a book will be invaluable to the future historian."—Nashville Christian Advocate.

"The issue for 1904 is at hand, and is a beautiful and valuable piece of work. The book contains many things of interest, among others the condensed minutes of both the North Carolina Conferences. This gives a full and accurate survey of Methodism throughout the State. Another most convenient item is that which gives the official bodies and officers of the general Church.

"Dr. Tillett, Dean of the Theological Faculty of Vanderbilt University, contributes quite an appropriate and searching paper on 'Why I Am a Methodist,' while Rev. M. H. Tuttle, of the North Carolina Conference, writes luminously on the very important subject of 'Infant Baptism.' Both papers are admirable in themselves and in their timeliness.

"One of the most impressive and valuable features of the work is a section of twenty pages, giving maps of every county in the State, with the location of every Methodist Church. This feature alone must have required a large amount of work and pains.

"Dr. Ivey has done a truly good thing, and it will be well for Methodist progress and Methodist history if he shall find a worthy imitator in every State covered by our Church."—S. S. Magazine.

The Era.

This most ably edited League organ is indispensable to the success of an Epworth League Chapter. It is filled from start to finish with matter helpful, in many ways, to all our young people, especially to Epworthians. Let the agents press the canvas until the Era is in every family.

The Prayer Meeting.

Reader, do you take part in the prayer-meetings? You do not know who may be awaiting the impetus of your example, or to whom your words may be the message of the most high.

Make careful preparation. The best results are to be attained through prayerful study.

Call into requisition your best talents. The best is none too good for the great work the Epworth League is engaged in. Here, particularly, is the old adage true, "That which is worth doing at all is worth doing well."

The leader has studied the subject and chosen the truth to be emphasized. Help him to concentrate all minds on his leading thought.

By all means avoid a "hobby." It is good always to be holy; but it is not good to be always talking about it. It is good always to pray; but it is not always good to be thrusting your opinions about prayer on others. Be an all-round, symmetrical Epworthian, thoroughly furnished unto all good works.

Be brief and to the point. Others ought to take part. Give them a chance.

Always stand while speaking. It manifests greater interest in what you have to say and begets an interest in others.

In all you have to say remember that Christ is the most attentive listener; seek the praise of the Master.

Brother pastor, you said when you read our request, I will send name of League president and secretary. But you forgot. As soon as you read this, draw a postal card and write on it the information desired, and post it at once.

Thanking you in advance for the favor, I am,

Yours in League bonds,
H. B. ANDERSON,
Goldsboro, N. C.

Secretary Thornburgh reports the League of Edenton Street Church, Raleigh, as having taken on new life. They have a fine Epworth Era agent in the person of Miss Jennie Powell.

The Southport League now has 112 members who rendered valuable assistance in their recent glorious revival there. This League is wide-awake, both to the financial and spiritual interest of the church. An intelligent member said recently: "An old fossil will say the League is a failure.' Better not say that in Southport."

Lesson for March 6, 1904.

Jesus Calms the Storm.

(Mark 4:35-41.)

Golden Text.—He maketh the storm a calm, so that the waves thereof are still. (Psalms 107:29.)

The incident which forms the subject of this lesson took place a few weeks after the Sermon on the Mount. This period, though brief, had been one of great activity on the part of our Master.

Immediately after delivering the Sermon on the Mount Jesus had healed the Centurion's servant. Then he had raised from the dead the son of the widow of Nain. About this time he received the message of inquiry which John the Baptist sent from his prison cell in Macherus. It was now also that he uttered his upbraiding words against Capernaum, Chorazin and Bethsaida. Soon after he was anointed at the house of a Pharisee by the woman who is described as a sinner. Following this Jesus went forth on another circuit through the Galilean region, during which he healed a demoniac and rebuked the blasphemy of the scribes and Pharisees. His mother and his brethren came seeking him, and Jesus taught the multitude that whosoever shall do the will of God is the same as his nearest relative. Shortly after this Jesus spoke a number of parables concerning the kingdom. These parables were uttered by him as he sat by the seaside, and the incident of our lesson followed at the close of the same day.

The Sea of Galilee.—It will greatly serve to enhance the interest of this lesson if we can gain a clear idea of the Sea of Galilee. The use of the word "Sea" is apt to mislead us as to the size of this body of water. It is in reality simply a lake, a little larger than Schroon Lake in the Adirondack Mountains, but not so large as Lage George. It is thirteen miles long and from four to seven miles broad, its shape resembling that of a pear.

In the time of Christ the shores of the Sea of Galilee were lined with busy thriving villages and towns, while its waters were dotted with the sails of many ships. The landscape presented a scene of beautiful verdure and fertility, and everything betokened prosperity.

Now much of this is changed. The leading cities of Jesus' time have either utterly disappeared or lie in shapeless ruins. The hillsides are bleak and barren and overgrown with thorns and briers, while hardly a sail is to be seen on the waters of the lake.

Only the sea itself is not changed. Its waters remains clear and limpid as of old, and fish abound in its crystal depths. The same mountains hem in its shores, and down upon its bosom still sweep storms as fierce as the one described in the text of our lesson.

A Miracle of Power.—The mighty works done by Jesus were of varied kinds. The miracle recorded in the present connection was essentially one of power. It was an act of special intervention by which he demonstrated his authority over the inanimate forces of nature. There is a wonderful beauty in the narrative as told by the Evangelists, and it reveals our Lord in a new light, as striking as it is instructive.

The Voyage of Life.—Life has often and most fittingly been compared to a voyage. Every human soul must needs take this voyage, and storms and temptests are sure to arise.

There is only one who can still the fury of the storms with which we meet on the voyage of life and who can bring us safely at the close of our course into the haven of peace.

Let us take Christ to be our divine Pilot. Let us look to him to calm the storms that beat down upon us. He alone can keep us in perfect safety. So let us entrust ourselves completely in his hands.

GASTRITIS, SO PRONOUNCED BY PHYSICIANS, CURED BY MRS. JOE PERSON'S REMEDY.

Huntersville, N. C., May 15, 1902.

Two years ago I was completely run down. I suffered from indigestion all the time, with gas on the stomach, and the trouble was pronounced gastritis. I had no appetite for anything, and felt no inclination to eat. This brought on nervous prostration, and the least excitement brought on a nervous spell and I could hardly control myself. I could not get any natural sleep as a result of this nervousness. I was under medical treatment for four years, and was not even benefited.

I then determined to try Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy, bought one-half dozen bottles and I commenced to improve when on the fourth bottle. I was much stronger, slept much better, did not have those nervous spells nearly so often, and knew that my general health was building up. My appetite was improved and I began to enjoy eating and what I ate agreed with me. With all my ailments I had neuralgia of the bowels, which caused me intense suffering. After I took six bottles of the Remedy I found I was certainly mending, and bought six more. Before I had finished the dozen bottles the neuralgia of the bowels was completely cured. I took in all a dozen and a half bottles, which restored me to good health. I feel that I owe my life to Mrs. Joe Person's Remey. I was not able even to keep house, but had to employ help for everything; I was run down so that I felt that life was no pleasure in a certain sense. Now I am able to attend to all my household duties, and feel that I am some good, once more, to my family.

If any one has indigestion or nervous prostration, my advice is take Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy, and if one will only take enough to build up the system, it will surely cure.

MRS. W. S. CALDWELL.

CHARLES J. PARKER,
RALEIGH, N. C.

Dr. Marshal Beaty, the Nose, Throat and Lung Specialist, of Cincinnati, recently completed a series of trial treatments of his Antiseptic Medicated Air Cure on one hundred patients; some were consumptives in the lowest emaciated stages, others of a catarrhal, asthmatic and bronchial nature. The record of each patient kept by the Doctor as the home treatment progressed, was very interesting. The most remarkable and gratifying features in connection with the treatment was the rapid healing of the cavities and tubercles of the lungs and the raw, ulcerated surface of the mucous membrane of the entire breathing organs. This is phenomenal, and ample proof that this great discovery has solved the problem of a permanent cure for the thousands of sufferers from all catarrhal, bronchial and lung troubles. In his account of it, the Doctor says: "No germ of Catarrh, Asthma, Bronchitis or Consumption can live under the action of this powerful antiseptic. When taken internally and breathed and inhaled into the air passages, bronchial tubes and cells of the lungs, the germs are at once destroyed and expelled from the system, and the disease is arrested and cured by removing the cause."

THE COMPLETE CURE

To introduce and prove beyond doubt that this great treatment will cure Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma, Catarrh and Weak Lungs, Dr. Beaty has decided to make another test offer to others of a Full Month's Treatment, Free, including inspirator and all medicines complete, exactly as shown in illustration.

The Doctor will keep in close touch with all patients during the progress of the treatment, and will make no charge for his professional services, consultation, and the necessary correspondence.

When Dr. Beaty makes such a liberal offer as this, thereby saving patients the large sums they usually expend for medicine, advice, prescriptions, consultations, etc., there can be no excuse why sufferers should hesitate to put his treatment to the test.

Do not delay, but write at once, addressing Dr. M. Beaty, 285 West 9th St., Cincinnati, Ohio, and tell him the nature of your head, throat or lung trouble, and how long the disease has had a hold on you. The test course is intended to prove the genuine merits of the treatment and costs nothing.

Central Church, Raleigh.

It was pleasant to talk to the Sunday-school at Central Church last Sabbath. That is a bright and promising school. I am glad that they are taking our Orphanage on their hearts. We expect to hear good news from them soon. The talk at the eleven o'clock service was enjoyed by the speaker. How we preachers do like to hear ourselves talk and try to persuade ourselves that others do too! Well, one good sister said that she did. It may be that others did, but were too modest to tell me of it. We took a good collection for the size of the congregation. It was a bad day, you known. Central is coming. It is on its feet.

Our Wants.

Garden seeds are wanted here; fruit trees would be acceptable, and also a few sugar maples and ash trees.

The matron says the molasses is nearly out. What say our Wilmington friends?

The time for planting Irish potatoes is here. What about the seed?

These rooms are waiting. Two at $1,000 each, one at $700, eighteen at $500 each, three at $400 each. Who will take them.

It will cost $1,200 to furnish a dormitory. There are ten of these. Sixty-three quarter, enamelled iron bedsteads, etc., are required.

Sixty dollars will furnish a schoolroom. There are five of these. Some one is wanted to take all of them.

A Word to Subscribers.

Some friends made their subscriptions at Goldsboro, expecting to pay them about the first of February. They are due now. Will they not please send in the amount? Some are sending it in. We are getting in our material and need money to pay for it.

One more word in regard to the old subscriptions. The preachers that turned their orphans' collections into the treasurer of the Board have never reported to me how much they collected on subscriptions. As I do not know who have paid and who have not. The friends know. So, brother, will you not send it? Or if you never intend to pay it, will you not kindly drop us a note to that effect? Let us square the books some how. I tried my best to collect them last year, but failed. What shall I do now?

The Smith Home for Girls.

At Oakland, Cal., there is a home for orphan girls. Mr. F. M. Smith has made a fortune on borax, and is known as the "Borax King." Mrs. Mary R. Smith, his wife, is a big-hearted woman. She has an only daughter named Marion. But Mrs. Smith has a heart large enough to take in needy girls; so she has established a Home for them. It is known as "The Home of a Hundred Daughters." It is to consist of ten cottages, with a mother and ten girls in each cottage, with all other necessary buildings. Each mother is allowed $100 per month for the support of that cottage. Each cottage is to be endowed with $25,000.

Mrs. Smith tries to treat every one of these girls just as she treats her own little Marion. Three hundred thousand dollars have already been put in the plant. Isn't it beautiful? She is getting pleasure out of wealth.

Remembering the Orphanage in Will.

A Brother Cross, of Gatesville, moved out to Alabama and died. But before he died he remembered his native State, and left the Methodist Orphanage two small tracts of land, which have been sold for $400. The sum, 'tis true, is not large; but we appreciate it all the same. We will safely invest it, I suppose, and know it as "the Cross Fund." Let it bear his name.

Brother Sedberry, of Fayetteville, was the first to remember us in his will. Brother Cross is the second. Others have us in their wills. More will as the years go by. We know of no better object. No doubt that will become common. No doubt cottages will be built this way. Five thousand dollars will build and equip a cottage. Twenty-five thousand dollars will endow it. What a monument that would be to any name.

A Methodist Flour Mill.

A barrel of nice flour came to this Home a day or two since, sent us by Bro. J. S. Carr from his Carrolina Roller Mills, Durham, N. C. It was not the first. Many thanks to Bro. Carr. He is a Methodist. It may be that there are other Methodists flour mills in North Carolina. If some friends would just let them know that there is a Methodist Orphanage in North Carolina, they might send us something to make biscuits out of for these hungry mouths, and then when some good wholesale grocer saw fit to send us a barrel of molasses, we could have pan-cakes and molasses—or, if they, the grocers, should send us a barrel of sugar, we could have fried fritters and sugar-sweetening. These children have a sweet tooth as well as a knack for wheat bread.

UNTOUCHED BY BALTIMORE FIRE.

The building of the Bobbitt Chemical Co., No. 316 West Lombard St., Baltimore, the proprietors of "Rheumacide," the famous remedy for Rheumatism, was saved fromm the great fire that destroyed most of the business section of Baltimore. Time and again it was threatened with destruction. But "Rheumacide" is still being manufactured and shipped in quantities from the same old stand.

RADIUM

RADIOS RADIOS RADIOS

Stupendous Offer Made by a Well-known Philadelphia Firm.

RADIOS RADIOS RADIOS

Thousands of Persons in all Sections of the Country Have Been Healed by This Wonderful Discovery.

DEAR FRIENDS:—Don't read this advertisement if you expect to get something for nothing, because you won't. We have a good article and we want money for it. Be sensible.

If you had something that was worth a dollar would you give it free? When you read an advertisement where you get something for nothing, that something is either no good or else they are up to some "dim flam" game.

We are not running a patent medicine business, so rest easy on that subject.

We do not know the word failure—never have and never will. The educated and higher classes are the ones we want to reach. We reach men and women in all walks of life. Men and women who to-day are before the public as national characters have had our confidence and the benefit of our experience. It is a 20th century product, one that will be more appreciated the more it is tried.

"Fresh from the bath and as good as she looks." This old saying describes our clients to a T. We have a VITALIZER—not a patent medicine. It tones the system, centralizes weakness of all descriptions—makes an even temperature all over the body and in fact it makes a new man and woman. Radios will within a few years be a part of every hospital and surgical institution of our land. No germ can stand the force of contact with this new discovery. Rheumatism and debility flee before it. The mighty force of the turbulent waters of Niagara are in comparison with this new product as an old-fashioned CANDLE is to RADIUM.

One person writes: "Why did not some one discover it before?"

Another says: "So simple, it is hardly creditable."

From the far West comes the unsolicited response: "A God-send to humanity."

Wallcott Christie, of New York, the well-known author, says: "My success, in a great measure, is due to 'Radios.'"

Weakness of certain organs is responsible for all diseases. We build up your system so that a disease is an impossibility. If your digestive organs are out of order, if your blood is impure, if you can't sleep, eat or attend to business, I will cure you and guarantee to do so. I will give you a written guarantee. Could you ask anything more?

"RADIOS."

We give you this as a present when you order "RADIOS." This alone is worth several thousand dollars of any man or woman's money. Acts the same as X-rays. Simply wonderful. REMEMBER THIS IS A PRESENT.

RAINS.—Bro. Wesley Rains was born January 29, 1875, and died January 24, 1904. He was remarried to Miss Sibbie Brown June, 1901, with whom he lived happily till his death. He professed religion and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in early life. He was a faithful husband, a true friend, and loyal to his church and Sabbath School.

When he found he must submit to the death summons, he said he was ready and willing to go, realizing "the best of all is God is with us."

CHAS. M. LANCE.

SYLIVANT.—Died, near Hookerton, N. C., February 10, 1904, little Herbert Elbert, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Sylivant, aged six months and twenty days. He was a bright little boy and his departure was a sad one. In the casket he reminded us of a sleeping babe. The ground, when we gathered around the grave, was white with snow, typical of the snow-white realm to which the little spirit has gone. May God's grace sustain the grief-stricken parents, and may they meet their little boy in the land of rest, where parting will be no more.

"Death may the bands of life unloose,
But can't dissolve my love:
Millions of infant souls compose
The family above."

E. C. S.

BRUHL.—Clifford J. De Bruhl was born August 11th, 1876, and was called to his reward by pneumonia January 6th, 1904.

Young Clifford was converted at the age of thirteen under the ministry of Rev. J. G. Johnson, and united with the M. E. Church, South. Through life he was a worthy, consistent member. Modest, faithful, true, Brother De Buhl lived, it is said, without an enemy and died lamented by all who knew him.

His father died when he was but a boy, but to his mother he was ever a dutiful and affectionate son, and a wise and generous provider. This nobleman of nature and grace was happily married October 9th, 1898, to Mrs. Nannie E. Monett. Their wedded life ran as smoothly and harmoniously as the planets in their orbits. To them two handsome boys came to cheer their hearts.

An aged mother, wife, and two sons, a brother and a sister are bereaved by the departure of this son of the Redeemer. Many a gracious Father keep them all unto eternal life.

W. M. T.

HOLMES.—Mr. James T. Holmes died at his home, Snow Hill, N. C., February 1, 1904. He was about fifty-eight years of age. His last days were spent in wrestling with diseases —pneumonia and throat affection— which were more than he could bear. He was a good, quiet citizen, and a consistent member of the Methodist Church. A widow and six children are left to lament his death. May the good Lord comfort them, and may they finally come to the "rest that remains for the people of God," there to find the husband and father who has gone before.

"Though to-day we're filled with mourning,
Mercy still is on the throne;
With thy smiles of love returning,
We can sing, 'Thy will be done.'"

E. C. S.

BRUTON.—God in His wisdom has seen it best to take from us our much-beloved sister, Emma L. Bruton.

On last Tuesday news reached me that sister was burned. O, how it broke my heart to think such a dear, good woman had met with such a bad accident. She was married fourteen months ago to Mr. Marvin Bruton. Happiness reigned supreme in their home. Unto them was born one sweet little boy; and why God took her, we can't understand, but He knows best. It is so hard to give her up. She was converted in her girlhood and lived in peace with God all her life. She leaves many relatives and friends to mourn her loss. May our heavenly Father comfort the bereaved ones.

A SISTER.

BARROW.—Mrs. Mary Barrow, aged seventy-three years, left this world for the world above on the third of January, 1904. She lived and died near Mount Hermon Church, Snow Hill Circuit. When about eighteen years of age, she united with the Methodist Church, and continued true and faithful unto the end. Three children survive her. They miss a mother's presence and counsel. Their loss is irreparable. May they look to the God of all grace, and finally meet their sainted mother in heaven.

"Borne by angels on their wings,
Far from earth the spirit flies,
Finds her God, and sits, and sings,
Triumphing in paradise."

E. C. S.

DOZIER.—Mrs. Charlotte N. Dozier died at the home of Dr. J. E. Patrick, Snow Hill, N. C., February 1, 1904, in the eighty-first year of her age. Early in life she professed faith in Christ and joined the Methodist Church. Her life was consecrated to God. Our sister had crossed the line of four-score years. Good old age. While she appeared to be in her usual health, it is probable that she tented on the river's brink for some weeks prior to her death. None realized that the crossing was so near. She was resigned and ready to go. At last, in the still hours of the night, the Saviour came, and called His waiting child, and she passed over the river. She is now safe on the other shore, where she can join the saints made perfect in singing:

"Glory to God! all dangers are o'er,
We stand secure on the glorified shore:
Glory to God! we will shout evermore,
We're home at last."

Resolutions of Respect.

Whereas, it has pleased our kind heavenly Father in His wisdom to take from us our former beloved secretary and treasuer, Joseph P. Tinnin, we, as the Sunday-school of Pittsboro Methodist Church, desire to express our appreciation of his long life of faithful service in this school, as pupil, teacher and officer, and our admiration of the beautiful example of Christian patient endurance as shown forth in his daily life amonst us; therefore be it resolved

1. That the Sunday-school has lost one of its most faithful members, the church one of her sweetest singers and the community at large one of its best Christian characters.

2. That we bow in humble submission to the will of Him who doeth all things well.

3. That we extend to the bereaved wife and widowed mother our love and sympathy.

4. That copies of these resolutions be sent to the county papers and the Raleigh Christian Advocate and to the family of the deceased.

Santa Fe
ALL THE WAY.

Died at Fairfield, N. C., November 28, 1903, Mrs. Elizena Simmons, wife of Dr. P. H. Simmons. In the death of this good woman, our town loses one of its strongest, most helpful Christians.

Our Woman's Foreign Missionary Society and Parsonage Aid Society will miss her presence and sweet fellowship. Each and every member was a personal friend of our dear sister, and with the entire community we mourn her loss. But sorrow shall be turned into gladness in the resurrection morn, and in anticipation of the glad meeting in that blessed day, be it resolved by these Societies:

1. That God is all wise and all merciful, and our will is His will, therefore "all is well."

2. That we will so live that when our summons comes, we, too, shall be "not afraid," but ready, and listening, for the call.

3. That to the bereaved family, husband, children, sister and brothers, we extend our deepest sympathy and pray God to be their comfort in sorrow and salvation in the life to come.

4. That a copy of these resolutions be sent the family, one to the Raleigh Christian Advocate and be spread upon the minutes of our Societies.

SO EASY TO FORGET.

In 999 cases out of every thousand the directions which accompany a physician's prescription or proprietory medicine, tell you to take a dose three or four times a day, either before or after meals, and on going to bed. In 999 cases out of a thousand, this rule is never strictly followed. You start in to observe it religiously, and succeed pretty well at first, but soon you'll begin to skip doses, then the medicine fails in its intended effect. It's so easy to forget.

If the remedy is in liquid form, the business man loses a dose in the middle of the day unless some thoughtful wife, mother or sister gives him a spoon and makes him take an extra bottle to the office. Most men hate to do this. If the medicine is in tablet form, the chances are he will never think of it until he reaches for car fare on his way home. It's so easy to forget. This applies to men and women alike.

The proprietors of Vernal Palmettona (formerly known as Vernal Saw Palmetto Berry Wine) had sense and foresight enough to make their remedy so that only one dose a day is necessary. It is easy to remember to take it after the last meal or on going to bed. It stands in a class by itself. If you are pestered with indigestion, constipation, liver trouble, bowel trouble or any skin affliction resulting from bad blood, Vernal Palmettona is what you need. Try it at our expense. Write for a free sample bottle. It will do you good. Address, Vernal Remedy Co., 538 Seneca Building, Buffalo, N. Y. Sold by all druggists.

A Faithful Compliance With Obligation.

None doubt the propriety of its practice. All admire its performance. The gentleman who has the reputation of faithfully complying with his obligations, indeed has an enviable one.

Thousands of Dr. Whitaker's patients and friends testify to this unequivocal loyalty to his fixed principle; his fidelity to duty; his indomitable perseverance for the welfare of the sick under his care; either in his immediate vicinity or hundreds of miles away.

Mr. Miles B. Kepler, of Renova, Pa., says: "I wish to express my gratitude for the great relief which I have received, the careful attention you have given me, and the faithful manner in which you have complied with your obligations.

I was sorely afflicted with Dropsy for about six months; my heart was very weak. The doctors could not do anything for me, so I thought I would surely die, as I was growing worse all the time. I was gaining in weight very fast. A friend of mine told me of you, the great Dropsy specialist. I wrote at once for treatment, and it was promptly received; half of the free treatment gave prompt relief, and in a very short time I was perfectly well. I am well, and now as sound as I ever was.

I feel that I am under great obligations to you, and most freely recommend you and your treatment to any one who may be afflicted with this dreadful disease, Dropsy and its complications."

Let those who are suffering with Dropsy in any of its various forms, write today to this well-known specialist, giving age and name of patient and history of case for a free treatment which he guarantees to give immediate relief. Address S. T. Whitaker, M. D., 41 E. Irwin St., Atlanta, Ga.

Literary Notes.

The beginnings of that great American enterprise, the express business, which, fifty years ago, was unknown and now almost cobwebs the entire world, are interestingly described by Edwin Markham in the March "Success." Mr. Markham's article is entitled, "On the Trail to the Golden Gate," and is the second of the epics of industry which he is writing specially for "Success." Among the fiction of this issue is the first installment of what promises to be an absorbingly interesting serial story, by Joseph A. Altsheler, and two short stories, "With Plenary Power," by E. Spence De Puc, and "Six Pounds Short," by Chauncey Thomas. "George Ade, Maker of Fun," is the subject of an article by Roger Galeshore, and a happy illustration of Mr. Ade's inimatable style is given in "The Fable o fthe Honest Money-maker," which appears as an accompaniment to the article. A glowing tribute to Harvard's much-esteemed president, Charles William Eliot, is paid in a character-sketch by Martin M. Foss, and the story of Madame Marchesi, the woman who has helped to develop so many of the world's most famous singers, is told by William Armstrong in the first of a series of articles to appear about "Women Who Have Won." "What's the Use of Poetry?" by Richard Le Gallienne, is a poet's plea for a better understanding of "the spirit of the muse," and in a department conducted by Arthur Stringer, the best books of the month are ably reviewed. There are also poems by George Shephard Burleigh, Alice Webster, William J. Lapton, Robert Mackay, and Captain Jack Crawford, and a helpful editorial by Dr. O. S. Marden, entitled, "Over-sensitiveness as a Barrier." Other articles of interest are, "As the Twig is Bent," by Marion Foster Washburne, "Jane Adams' Noble Work," by Jane A. Stewart, "The Poplar Side of Science," by Garrett P. Serviss, "The Latest Wonders in the World of Science," by Arthur E. Bostwick, "Use Good English," by Walter Wellesley, and "Yucatan, a Country of Contrarieties," by Thos. R. Dawley, Jr. Some simple exercises for the improvement of one's physical condition are given by Wm. R. C. Latson, in an article entitled, "Vitality and Success." A juvenile story, "How Uf-Red-Hair Became a Chief," by Edwin L. Arnold, and "Sam Loyd's Brain Teasers" are also features of the March "Success."—From "Success," for March, 1904.

A Good Recipe fo Those Who are Sensitive.

Morbid sensitiveness requires heroic treatment. A sufferer who wishes to overcome it must take himself in hand as determinedly as he would if he wished to get control of a quick temper, or to rid himself of a habit of lying, or stealing, or drinking, or any other defect which prevented his being a whole man.

"What shall I do to get rid of it?" asks a victim. Think less of yourself and more of others. Mingle freely with people. Become interested in things outside of yourself. Do not brood over what is said to you, or analyze every simple remark until you magnify it into something of the greatest importance. Do not have such a low and unjust estimate of people as to think they are bent on nothing but hurting the feelings of others, and depreciating and making light of them on every possible occasion. A man who appreciates himself at this true value, and who gives his neighbors credit for being at least as good as he is, cannot be a victim of over-sensitiveness.

When a prominent Congresman was told that a member of the House of Representatives had insulted him, he replied, "No gentleman would insult me, and no one else could." "But I am not derided," calmly replied Diogenes to one who told him that he was derided. The philosopher knew that onl those are ridiculed who feel the ridicule and are hurt by it.—O. S. Marden, in March "Success."

Mrs. M. L. Adams, Fredonia, Ala., took Botanic Blood Balm which effectually cured an eating cancer of the nose and face. The sores healed up perfectly. Many doctors had given up her case as hopeless. Her nose and lip were raw as beef, with offensive discharge from the eating sore. Doctors advised cutting, but it failed. Blood Balm healed the sores, and Mrs. Guerney is as well as ever. Botanic Blood Balm also cures eczema, itching humors, scabs, and scales, bone pains, ulcers, offiensive pimples, blood poison, carbuncles, scrofula, risings and bumps on the skin and all blood troubles. THE WORLD AS WE SEE IT.

The answer of the Atlantic and North Carolina Railroad, through Governor Aycock and Attorney-General Gilmer, to the complaint of K. S. Finch upon which the road was placed in the hands of a Receiver, was filed last week. The railroad answers that Mr. Finch was not a stockholder at the time when the transactions alleged took place.

The railroad further answers that for several years it has produced revenue sufficient to declare dividends, but that the net profits by action of the Directors have been applied to the improvement of the road-bed, rolling stock, and other equipments; that the report for 1903 shows a net profit of $75,800. The case will be heard by Judge Simonton about the middle of March.

Years ago—not so many—we had among our pupils in the little town of Shelby a bright-faced, handsome boy, who, while not painfully studious, yet managed to give his teacher a minimum of trouble both in studies and deportment. That boy, now advanced several years into mature manhood, stood several days on the floor of Congress and exploded an old story that told how Mr. Cleveland, while President, had dined a negro man. A belief in this story had served to break in some degree the force of the criticism of President Roosevelt's action in dining Booker Washington.

Mr. Scott, from Kansas, one day last week in a speech charged that Cleveland, when President, had dined a negro man by the name of Taylor. Hon. E. Y. Webb at once wrote to Mr. Cleveland and secured a denial of the statement. The letter was read on the floor of Congress by Mr. Webb, who followed the reading of the letter by appropriate words. This incident was the sensation of the week in Washington City. There is nothing of political significance in the incident.

The election of Mr. Smoot to the United States Senate will doubtless prove the match to fire the fuse that will lead to the explosion and utter destruction of Mormonism as a polygamous institution. Ever since Utah was admitted to the Union and passed under the law prohibiting polygamy, it has been seen that polygamy is still practiced. When Mr. Smoot, who is an Apostle of the Mormon Church, was elected to the United States Senate, a movement to make a complete expose of the principles and practices of Mormonism was started by determined lovers of righteousness. Through the efforts of these men, the Senate ordered an investigation. The Committee met early last week and continued, and is still continuing, its investigations. Only one man, so far, has been examined—President Smith, nephew of the founder of Mormonism. President Smith has shown up badly. He has proved to be a bad witness. In answer to questions from the Committee, he has stated that he believes that polygamy came to Mormonism as a divine revelation. Yet he says that the manifesto of President Woodruff abolishing polygamy had its origin in divine revelation. He had five wives in 1890, and admits that he has been practicing polygamy since 1890. When asked why he broke the laws of the State in this respect, he answered by saying that when it came to an issue between the State and revelation he chose to hold to the latter. The light is being turned on Mormonism, and whatever may be the outcome as to Mr. Smoot, it may be safely asserted that enough will have been brought out to deal the death blow to Mormonism as a polygamous church.

No attempt will be made to prove that Mr. Smoot is a polygamist, as it is very clear that he is not. But it will be proved that he is an apostle of a church which allows an infraction of the laws of the State, and has utter control of any member, whether he be a private citizen or a United States Senator.

One of the strangest and most valuable victories for temperance ever achieved in the State lay in the decision of the Supreme Court last week which declared that the place of delivery anywhere in the State is the place of sale. This, of course, makes an anti-jug law for the whole State, and no liquor can be shipped into prohibition territory.

The outcome is strange in that it was not premeditated by the Legislature. An attempt was made several times during the last Legislature to pass an open anti-jug law for the State, but in each case the attempt proved unsuccessful. Such a law, however, was passed for four counties. This is indicated in the caption. But somehow in the body of the law there crept in the phrase "in the entire State," and in a test case brought up from the Durham Superior Court, the Supreme Court decided that this phrase makes the law to apply to the whole State.

The Legislature passed an anti-jug law for the whole State, and did not know it, just as it passed two years before a law requiring a preacher, selling a Bible or hymn-book, to pay a peddler's tax. A bad law in one instance, but it had to stand until it was changed by the next Legislaturer. In the latter instance a most salutory law was passed, and like the other it must stand until repealed. Every temperance advocate should see that the present law be confirmed by the Legislature which is to be elected next fall.

It must be remembered, however, that liquor can be shipped still into prohibition territory in North Carolina from points outside the State. This can be done under the provisions of the Inter-State Commerce law. The Hepburn-Dolliver Bill, which is now being considered by the proper Congressional Committee is likely to be reported favorably. If reported favorably, it will pass both Houses, and will prevent liquor being imported into prohibition territory from points outside the State. There are many prayers going up that the Hepburn-Dolliver Bill may pass.

There are three centers of public interest in the Russo-Japanese war area. These points are Port Arthur at the southern extremity of the Liao-tung peninsula; Vladivostock, the ice-bound terminus of the Siberian railroad; and that section lying almost in a straight line between Dalny and Harbin, which latter place is where the Port Arthur line of railroad meets the line which extends to Vladivostock.

Nothing of interest has happened during the week at the first point, with this exception: A few days ago the Japanese fleet dashed within range of the shore batteries and bombarded Port Arthur furiously for two hours and then withdrew without being damaged or inflicting any damage. It appears that Russia is preparing to evacuate Port Arthur as its capture is imminent and certain. The supply of food is said to be very limited.

The latest news is that the Japanese fleet on Sunday bombarded Vladivostock without any injurious effect, as the lyddyte shells of the Japanese ships failed to explode. It is also said that the Russian fleet has been locked outside of the harbor, but this late news lacks confirmation and is hardly true. Vladivostock seems to be in as dire straits as is Porth Arthur.

Reports of clashes between Russian and Japanese forces in the territory around Mukden are very frequent. In the meanwhile large Japanese forces are being massed in Korea, and Russia is hurrying forces as rapidly as possible eastward.

It is said that the hostile feeling of the Russians against the United States is less pronounced than it was one week ago. Feeling, however, against England is very bitter.

In a speech before the Book Committee of the Methodist Episcopal Church, Mr. R. T. Miller said, concerning church papers: "I challenge the country to show better papers than those which our church furnishes. For dignity, culture, helpfulness, devotion, they cannot be surpassed. If they do not circulate as widely as they should, it is not because they are not worthy, or able, or bright, but because we have failed to adopt the best means of reaching the people and securing their subscriptions."

Rev. G. F. Smith, P. E., has requested us to issue a Warrenton District edition of the Advocate. We will cheerfully comply. The edition will be issued the last week in March. It will be filled with special articles and will be finely illustrated. It will be dedicated to full collections, great meetings, and 300 new subscribers for the Warrenton District. A large number of extra copies will be circulated throughout the District. Look out for this issue.

Hard Fighting Ahead.

REV. R. H. WHITAKER.

If the world was not better than it was sixty years ago, this at least is true: it has more and better churches, a better educated ministry more schools and colleges, larger missionary operations, and vastly more wealth than our fathers ever dreamed of; being able to spend, for the necessaries and the luxuries of life, dollars where they could spend only dimes.

Some think the world is growing better, every day, and that it is only a matter of time when Satan will have been driven out, and this sin-cursed world will be as Eden was before the fall. I cannot vouch for that. As the signs appear to me, sin is more securely entrenched in the earth than ever before, and the hardest fighting is still ahead. The family government is to be reorganized and the church to be purified before the final great battle can be fought. As matters now are, Satan has the church at a terrible disadvantage. The church has so adjusted itself to the world, and the world has so insidiously wormed itself into the church, that there seems to be no line of demarcation. No need of and no place for repentance on the part of the sinner, because he is already, in his estimation, quite as moral as he would be in the church. And then the young Christian, who was taught to believe that card-playing, drinking, dancing, Sabbath-breaking and profanity are awful sins, has come to learn, from the conduct of some other and older church members, that there is no great harm in any of them, and to conclude that the old fathers, who insisted on men's living pure and sinless lives, were narrow in their views, and required a great deal more of church members than was necessary. As a consequence, the average church member, instead of growing in grace, labors hardest to bring his church down on a level with his own worldly mindedness, and to so regulate conscience as that it will offer no protest against back-sliding.

The old negro who said, as evidence that he was growing in grace, "when I first jined the church my conscience wouldn't let me cut a stick of wood on Sunday to make a fire; but, bless the Lord, I've growed in grace so I can even make baskets all day long on Sunday, and conscience don't say a word," was about on a plane with the average Christian sentiment that has well-nigh lost its reverence for the Sabbath day; and, in many other things, strayed from the old paths.

The worldly Christian, instead of expanding, and growing up to, and filling out the old gospel pattern as it was made by Christ and His apostles, seems to be engaged in trimming the pattern down to fit his size.

If there be any truth in what I have written, I am sure that I am not wrong in saying that the hardest fighting is ahead of us—the remodeling of the family government and the purifying of the church. We cannot do much with or for the church until the family government has been remodeled; because nothing in morals can rise higher than the family. Godless homes make Godless churches; and Godless churches are doing more harm than good in the world. It was a grand thing to be a Jewish father or mother, when the family of God was in its infantile state, going from place to place, dwelling in tents; when the law had been given; when they were in the wilderness; when they crossed the Jordan and entered into the promised possession, and through the times of the Judges and the Kings; and all through those periods of God's providence that preceded and pointed to the coming of Christ. And why? Because it was the duty of parents to keep a live church in the home.

Parents did not, however, always do it. Old Eli seems to have been a good man, in some respects, but his home government must have been deficient, for no father ever raised worse boys than Hophni and Phineas—Eli's sons. When we read of the wickedness of those boys, and remember that they were the sons of a priest, and acting as priest themselves, we do not wonder that the church was corrupt.

I am not able to tell parents how they should manage their children, for I do not know how to conduct my own household as it should be done; nevertheless, I contend that the church cannot be purified and made ready to fight its last and hardest battle against the enemy of souls, until there is a radical change in the homes of the people. And this change must begin in the lives of the parents.

What do I mean? I mean that parents, like the Spartan, who reared children for the State only, are placing too little value on their children's spiritual training. So they are well fed and clothed and their minds are trained for the conflicts of time and sense, parents seem to think they have fulfilled their duties and fully met the requirements of their high and sacred positions.

Of course, it is but natural parents should desire that their children should be good, in a sense; but I fear that the standard of goodness, in many so-called Christian homes, has been lowered and lowered until it means no more than being civil or genteel. When God gave the law it was expressly conditioned that it should be remembered and lived up to by those to whom given, and also their children, and all children to the latest and last born. The command made it imperative upon parents to acquaint themselves with God's will so they might be able to teach their children. "And these words," said God, "which I command thee this day shall be in thine heart." Hear it, father, mother—"thine heart. The trouble begins right here. We cannot say with the Psalmist: "Thy word have I hid in my heart;" therefore we have, as parents, to acknowledge we have not obeyed God's command: "These words shall be in thine heart." Unless we have the "words" in our hearts we cannot do what God further commands: "And thou shalt teach them diligently to thy children." No, we cannot teach what we do not know; and the children soon find out that we don't know, and lose confidence in us, and just in proportion as they lose confidence in us, their parents, they lose faith in God. But, hear it all: "And shalt talk of them where thou sittest in thine house." Tell the children as they gather under the home shelter what God is to them, and requires of them; and how blest they are in having such a heavenly Father; and how grateful all of God's children should be, and how good they can be, and how happy they may forever be, by simply obeying him.

Little children, do your parents talk to you of God and His goodness, and of your duty to Him, when you are at home? Does the father take the Bible and read and explain a chapter, to you dear children, at night; and does he tell you that he loves God and that he and mother have tasted of the good words and of the powers of the world to come? How is it at your homes, children? Are your parents doing their duty by you?

In many homes, it is a lamentable fact, the Word of God has been banished from the centre-table to make room for cards. And it is also a fact that many mothers, instead of teaching the children "when they walk by the way," hasten by the boys (some of them their own little boys) who are playing and betting on their marble games and ripping out an oath almost every time one shoots; I say it's a fact that many mothers hasten by their boys, who are learning the rudiments of gambling, to some society home where they, the mothers, go through the motion of gambling. Would you speak to one of those little boys about playing "for keeps," and tell him that it is a species of gambling, he would reply by saying, "We gamble at home."

It is a difficult matter to define church membership. I used to think that a church had the right to prescribe a rule of faith and a code of laws; and that its members were in honor-bound to observe them. But these are days of the illimitable freedom of thought, speech and action; and so, it is very difficult to determine just where we are; what we believe, and which way we are heading. John the Baptist started a reformation when he said to the Jewish church members: "Repent, for the kingdom of God is at hand!" Those Pharisees and Sadducees thought they were the salt of the earth; but John said they were a "generation of vipers." O, how the cause of God suffers on account of the vipers in it!

The funniest sight to the devil, on this earth, is a card party made up of a parcel of women who are church members and whose children are being neglected at home, playing for a prize. He knows how to manage them. Makes them believe that card playing puts them into "society," and society can do as it pleases. And so, sister Methodist and sister Bantist, and sister Presbyterian and Sister Episcopalian, sit around a card table and shuffle cards, when they all know that, in so doing, they are violating the rules of their several churches, and know furthermore, they are setting examples that will likely lead to the ruin of their children. The devil could not ask a funnier sight. But, how said it must be to the angels. Yes, there is hard fighting ahead to drive sin from its strongest holds—the family and the church.

Southport.

Dr. Ivey:—We have good news—Southport is waking up. We have climbed from the dead-level of our worldliness and indifference to the promontory of consecration and faith where we can take a prayerful and hopeful survey of our duties and possibilities. We have quickened our pace in the march of life. In grace, as well as in nature, our Father is making all things new. It reminds us of a California spring morning. You, I believe, have an idea of that paradisical figure. Who ever witnessed the green pomp and splendor of a western landscape, fragrant with bursting bloom, instinct with animal life, and resonant with the voices of countless feathered vocalists, but that felt a new inspiration to trust: "So is every one that is born of God." Surely it is the type of a new birth, as well as of Easter glory. "Old things are passed away, behold all things are become new" with us in our church life. Our Sunday-school is new. It is doing better work than ever before, and is large and increasing. Our League is new. We have the largest membership in the North Carolina Conference. We have received more than fifty recruits in this young soldiery since Conference. It would soften even an editor's heart to hear these young soldiers drill and swing their swords! Amen! Our church membership is new. We have received seventy additions since Conference. Our membership is religious. Our prayer-meetings are so well attended that we do not have a vacant seat in our annex, the place of holding these meetings. Our congregations at the preaching services are large and attentive.

These results follow a revival meeting in which Rev. E. C. Glenn labored so untiringly, prayerfully, and ably. He impressed every one as being a man of God. His preaching, unlike most revivalists whom we have heard, did not consist of stories, borrowed anecdotes, and hair-raising pictures. He began his work by laying a foundation in the doctrine of the New Birth, and upon this foundation he proceeded to build. His gospel was simple, truthful, and out of God's Word, and was greatly honored. He did us only good. We are glad he came. May he be so favored of God in every place. His wife was also a great help in the meeting and won many hearts to her, among the young people, especially.

We are making arrangements for a good District Conference, and we shall expect our editor. Come down and see our city by the sea! Come see our country, and witness our growth, and give us a message.

We expect to carry up a full report in every particular at Conference. Our hearts throb with gratitude to God for all His blessings.

Fraternally,

EUCLID McWHORTER.

The Presiding Elder as Evangelist.

BY J. V. WILLIAMS.

Recently I have read an article in the Nashville Advocate on "The Presiding Eldership," and also noted some resolutions, passed at the Rocky Mount Missionary Conference, requesting the Presiding Elders to do more preaching at weak points within the districts.

Now, I want to say a few words on this subject, but am rather afraid that some sensitive elder will think me too fresh, so I'll try to keep in the middle of the road.

For a long time the Presiding Eldership among us has been considered useless on stations and the larger circuits. Yes, worse than useless; for it is a heavy expense, without any returns whatever.

I think the idea that a Presiding Elder is needed in this day to look after the business interest of the church at the stations and best circuits, is simply ridiculous.

Our best preachers are on the stations and larger circuits, and they are the equal of the elder in every sense, and certainly know how to conduct the business of a Quarterly Conference.

Is the Presiding Elder wanted on these appointments for revival work? I think that I can see a thousand preachers smile. I have not heard of a Presiding Elder being invited to hold a revival meeting at a station for twenty-five years. They say "he's not a revivalist."

To say that a Methodist preacher is not a revivalist is saying that he is not a success, as a Methodist Church, without revivals, is a dead sort of thing. It seems, however, that we have come to the time when some Methodist Churches can exist without revivals, and some pastors can be popular without revivals. God help us!

No, I don't believe any such thing. Every Presiding Elder can hold a successful revival, and there was a day when he did. What should be done?

Every Presiding Elder should be an evangelist on his district and arrange to hold at least two revival meetings each year at all the mission appointments.

So, if there was six mission appointments on his district, and the Elder spent four weeks in revival work at each, he would have but little time to spend at stations on Sunday, where he is not wanted.

There will be a change in the Presiding Eldership within the next few years. We will elect a General Conference with fewer Presiding Elders, and then we will demand, by law, that the Elder will confine his work to evangelizing mission fields.

It is very different in the M. E. Church, North. In the New York East Conference, they have but four Presiding Elders to three hundred appointments, so that the Elder is kept busy holding Quarterly Conferences all the week.

One of our districts formulated a plan last year for an evangelist on a district all the year. It would work. It ought to be done. But in the mean time let the Presiding Elders begin the work of an evangelist and continue until called to Conference next November.

The Presiding Elder who will take up this work in earnest and continue it, will solve the problem now before the church and bring glory to God and salvation to many souls.

Rev. Thomas Cooper.

My parents names were Thomas and Tahpenes Cooper. I was born in Caroline County, Maryland, December 15, 1780. My parents were God-fearing people, and taught their children prayers, read the Scriptures to us, and taught us the fear of God from infancy. Their instructions had a happy effect on my mind, for I have realized its salutary influence, in some degree, through every period of my life. In 1789, my father died. In 1794 my mother and family removed to North Carolina. In 1797 I embraced religion through the instrumentality of the Methodists and joined the M. E. Church, Smith's M. House, Guilford County. I soon felt such a weighty and solemn concern for the salvation of my fellow beings that I scarcely knew how to contain myself, being young and naturally of an uncommon timid and retiring disposition, I kept those painful exercises of mind entirely too myself (except in one intance) for years as a punishment for my disobedience to the heavenly calling; and the Holy Spirit for a time almost left me.

In 1804 my mother and the little remnant of the family which remained together, removed to Rowan County, N. C. There my peculiar situation as it relates to place and business, made it (as I thought at least) impracticable for three years to be a member of society, though I maintained my integrity, yet I sustained great spiritual loss.

In 1808, I was made class leader at McNights, Salisbury Circuit; about that time God began to revive His work again powerfully in my soul, and with powerful demonstrations, renewed my call to the ministry. My mother being now in a situation to do without me,and Providence opening my way in other respects, I now gave up myself to serve the church in any way, or place, where His wisdom might direct. At Conference held at Tarboro, N. C., in 1809, I was admitted on trial and appointed to Sussex Circuit; 1810 Amelia Circuit; 1811 ordained deacon, and sent to Gloucester Circuit; 1812 Pamlico; 1813 ordained elder at New Bern and sent to Petersburg nine months and three on Greenville Circuit; 1814 Camden and Edenton; 1815 Hanover Circuit. I think that I was in the spirit of the work. I know God was with me powerfully and His pleasure prospered. By this time I was admonished by an injured constitution . . . . that retirement was prudent and necessary.

January 4, 1816, I was joined in marriage to Miss Sarah E. Norment, daughter of Major Samuel Norment, deceased, of Caroline County, Va. In 1817 I removed to my old neighborhood in North Carolina. The 13th of May in that year, God took my blest partner to Himself, leaving me an infant son as a pledge of our union. Here Providence opened a scene of trial and anguish that I scarcely ever anticipated, but God sustained me, and His grace, through Christ Jesus, amidst all the sufferings and wastes of nature, still supported me.

In 1820, February 15th, I was united in marriage to Miss Martha Winston Dabney, daughter of Mr. Cornelius Dabney, Louisa County, Virginia.

OCTOBER 9, 1829

Brother, the reason of my troubling you with these lines, is to fulfill the request of Uncle Cooper, made on his death-bed a few days before he died. He told me when he died that he wished you to preach his funeral sermon and, also, to write his life; that he wrote the heads of it down so that you might fill it out. We are trying to get as much as we can of what he said on his death-bed together, and expect to send it to you as soon as we can.

Aunt Cooper would be glad if you would preach the funeral about Christmas, if it suits you.

Yours respectfully, L. C.

A Great Shadow.

Dear Brother:—We are overshadowed by a very heavy cloud. Grady, our only boy, near 14 years of age, after making a brave fight for his life, against overwhelming odds, succumbed to the last enemy, and went home to God, as his last words attested.

He was bright, manly, winning, obedient, honorable. The loss is ours; the gain, his.

As he has gone home to God, we shall love other boys more, and take greater interest in them.

This is indeed the smoking furnace; but the burning light will come apace.

Sincerely yours,

R. C. CRAVEN.

Youngsville Circuit.

Dear Advocate:—Our first Quarterly Conference was held at Youngsville February 13. The weather and roads were so severe I feared it would be a failure, but the brethren came—stewards and trustees—ten, twelve, eighteen and twenty miles. All the six churches were represented, except one, and we had the most enthusiastic Quarterly Conference I ever attended. The stewards raised the pastor's salary $35.00 without solicitation from him; assumed the rent for our rooms of $60.00, and appropriated $40.00 for furniture, and the Conference appointed a Parsonage Building Committee.

Two of the brethren from Leak's Church supplemented the pounding already reported from Youngsville, with ham, sausage, dressed fowl, canned peaches and butter, and, on the following Monday, pounded the parsonage. Quilts, sheets, pillow-cases, towels, etc., were received. How good these people are to this preacher and his family. May heaven's richest blessings come upon them this year.

Yours truly, GEO T. SIMMONS.

Rockingham District.

Things discussed and action agreed upon in Conference of the pastors on the Rockingham District in their recent session in Hamlet.

1. The collections in full for all purposes this year. The District over paid on missions last year. We will endeavor to pay in full the assessment for all purposes this year.

2. A vigorous canvass for the Raleigh Christian Advocate, our own Conference organ—a hundred and fifty new subscribers by the first of May. The Church Paper in the home means the better life of the home and the strengthening of the home for Christ and for His church.

3. Education. We will endeavor to deepen the interest of our people in the education of their children; and we will counsel them to stand by their own church schools.

4. Sunday-schools. One of the most vital interests of the church. We will make a general advance movement for the larger success of this great work on our District.

5. Pastoral visiting. The home-visiting pastor is the true pattern. Every family to be visited by the pastors—without which we cannot faithfully watch for souls as those who must give account.

6. And all to the end of deepening the spiritual life of the church.

7. And all to the end of the conversion of sinners. This is the one thing to which we are called—to lead sinners to Christ.

'Tis all my business here below
To cry, "Behold the Lamb."

"Whom we preach, warning every man and teaching every man in all wisdom; that we may present every man perfect in Christ."

JOHN N. COLE.

Rockingham, N. C., March 3, 1904.

Nashville Circuit.

Dear Dr. Ivey:—This is our third year on the Nashville Circuit. We have been kindly received, have made the rounds on the work since Conference, but owing to so much unfavorable weather, have had generally small congregations at our country appointments.

We have some very loyal Methodists on the Nashville Circuit.

Our first quarterly meeting was held on the 17th and 18th of January. Our new Presiding Elder, Rev. J. D. Bundy, was with us and did preaching of a high order. He looks well after all the interests of the church. Our people were very favorably impressed with him.

The attendance of official members at Quarterly Conference was very good. All of the six churches represented, notwithstanding it was held on Monday, and some had to ride twelve or fifteen miles over bad roads. Have held one protracted meeting. Bro. J. V. Williams assisted me and preached some good gospel sermons. We have not escaped a "pounding." Last Thursday night as I was sitting quietly with my wife in the study, there was a gentle rap at the door. Some of the good sisters had brought us a large box filled with so many of the necessaries of life. Sugar, coffee, flour, meat, meal, butter, dried fruit, etc.,—things which not only fill up the empty pantry, but filled his heart with joy that his people remember his temporal needs. Our hearts are full of gratitude. May God bless them.

I shall look after the interest of the Advocate as I go the rounds of my work.

Fraternally yours.

J. M. BENSON.

Bertie Circuit.

Bad Sundays and worse roads have reduced our congregations this winter. However, with few exceptions, we have held services according to appointments.

Our first Quarterly Conference was held January 23rd and 24th. Our new Presiding Elder, Brother Smith, was with us. He preached well and God used him for good. Our people are much in love with him; indeed, the affection is mutual. We had a good congregation Saturday, although the weather was bad. Sunday the church was full. Our stewards reported more than 30 per cent of the salaries for the year. They are all faithful and energetic. Such a board would make good reports anywhere. But not as good as they do here; for Bertie has a liberal type of Methodism. This scribe appreciates the fact that he serves a kind and generous people, who are constantly looking after the interests of those who live in the parsonage. Why, only last week our Windsor church gave us a pounding. God's richest blessings upon them. I desire to give them the best year of my ministry.

Our ladies are doing a great work. The W. H. M. Society is prosperous, growing and very active. The parsonage is in safe hands and faithfully looked after. They clothe an orphan and do much for missions. The baby roll and mite-box brigade deserve much credit. The pastor certainly appreciates their faithful and efficient work.

Throughout the circuit we are planning and praying for great revivals and large ingatherings. Let all North Carolina Methodism join us in supplicating the throne of grace for showers of blessings upon Bertie Circuit. Bertie Methodism is weak in members, but bold and courageous. The burden of my heart is the salvation of souls.

Scott's Hill Circuit.

Rocky Point, N. C., March 2, 1904.

Dear Brother Ivey:—As I have not seen a letter from Scotts Hill Circuit, I thought I would write a few lines in regard to this charge. Under the pastorate of Bro. Y. E. Wright this charge is moving along nicely. I am glad that the Conference returned Brother Wright to us this year. He is the right man in the right place. I hope we can keep him four years, as he is doing such a great work with us. We have increased his salary this year some, and we hope to have a prosperous year this year in paying up in full all collections. Which I think we will do by the help of the Lord. When Brother Wright came to us our church was in the rear some; but we have come out now, and every church on the charge is in the advance now. We hope there will be much good done this year along the line of all church work. And may there be many souls won to Christ during this year. I take your paper. I think the Advocate is a fine paper. I recommend it to all Methodists throughout our State. I will now close, hoping the Advocate much success and a prosperous year.

Rev. A. D. Betts.

It has been my good fortune to know, esteem and love "Brother Betts" for more than forty years, and my life has been made better for having enjoyed so rich a bounty. I flatter myself to hope that my life bears the water-marks of some, at least, of the many good qualities of this faithful man of God, who was humble, lovable and consecrated. His consecrated life, filled with love for his fellow-man, and abounding in good works, like the "alabaster box," yields a most delightful perfume.

I well remember the day of his graduation, and can recall with distinctness the subject of his graduating thesis. It was fine, and made a most marked impression. I am proud that all these forty odd years, I have been blessed with his friendship. May his evening tide be as sweet and mellow as the "sunset's radiant glow," and may he be spared yet many years to tabernacle in the flesh, that his life and example may abide as a benediction with all "who love his appearing," and when he crosses the bar, "may he meet his pilot face to face."

I am glad of an opportunity to add my tribute to one so worthy. JULIAN S. CARR.

The Family.

The Lent Jewels—A Jewish Tale.

In schools of wisdom all the day was spent;
His steps at eve the Rabbi homeward bent,
With homeward thoughts which dwelt upon the wife
And two fair children who consoled his life.
She, meeting at the threshold, led him in,
And with these words preventing, did begin:
"Ever rejoicing at your wished return,
Yet am I most so now, for since this morn,
I have been much perplexed and sorely tried
Upon one point, which you shall now decide.
Some years ago a friend into my care,
Some jewels gave, rich, precious gems they were.
But having given them in my charge this friend
Did afterwards, nor come, nor for them, send.
But left them in my keeping for so long,
That now it almost seems to me a wrong.
That he should suddenly arrive to-day,
To take those jewels, which he lent, away.
What think you? Shall I freely yield them back
And with no murmuring? So henceforth to lack
Those gems myself, which I had learned to see Almost as mine forever, mine in fee." . . . .

"What question can be here? Your own true heart
Must needs advise you of the only part:
That may be claimed again that was but lent,
And should be yielded with no discontent.
Nor surely can we feel herein a wrong,
That it was left us to enjoy so long."

"Good is the word," she answered. "May we now
And evermore that it is good allow."
And rising, to an inner chamber led,
And there she showed him, stretched upon one bed
Two children pale, and he the jewels knew.
Which God had lent him, and resumed anew.

At the Mission Door.

A little newsboy, weeping, stood
Outside "The Waif's Retreat;"
A shaggy dog, his only friend,
Was crouching at his feet
With attitude of perfect trust,
And tender lovelit eye.
I saw the boy bend over him
With tear-wet cheek, and sigh.

I asked him why those bitter tears:
He turned away his head,
And answered: "Dere's me only frien'
Since dad and ma is dead;
An' dose folks in de Mission say
Dat Tip, he can't come in:
Dat lovin' of a dog like dis
Ain't nothin' but a sin.

"Well, Boss, I don't know nothin' much;
But, say, when mudder died,
Tip foun' me at her grave at night,
An' laid down by my side;
An', when I cried dere all alone,
His head was on me knee,
An' somethin' in his eye jes' said
He'd be a frien' to me.

"Now, Boss, you look into dem eyes
An' say if he can't speak;
I tells yer, Tip's a gentleman.
If he ain't nice and sleek;
He don't snap like a low-down cur.
His ways is high an' fine;
An', when I t'ink how good he is,
I'm mighty proud he's mine."

Tip seemed to feel his master's praise,
He looked so very wise,
As if some sad, imprisoned soul
Were shining through his eyes.
I took the boy's brown hand in mind,
And wiped his tears away,
And told him that no nobler friend
Man has on earth to-day.

Both boy and dog crept to my heart,
And they have now become
The sunshine on my cheerless hearth,
The blessings of my home;
And all that I shall ask of Him
Who keeps the heavenly log,
May I be worthy that boy's love,—
The friendship of his dog!

How I Met General John B. Gordon.

I first met General Gordon in Nashville, Tenn., in 1892. He came to that city to deliver his great lecture, "The last days of the Confederacy." Of course he received an enthusiastic welcome.

My son, at that time a lad twelve or thirteen years old, had been an omnivorous reader of Confederate history, and was well up on General Gordon's record. He was eager to see and hear the war-battered hero who led Lee's advance into Pennsylvania, and the last charge at Appomattox. He had imbibed, in some way, sentiments of intense bitterness toward the North. I was troubled about it, for while I am myself a "dyed-in-the-wool" Southerner, I have only the most fraternal sentiment toward our friends "up North."

One day, in conversation with Mr. Thomas Nelson Page, I told him of my son's juvenile ultra-bourbonism, and of my inability to understand where he got his impressions. Mr. Page suggested that there was probably "a woman in the case." And, sure enough, upon inquiry, I found that a favorite aunt, who lived in Petersburg, Va., during the war, had been entertaining the little folks with stories of the siege of Petersburg. It was easy to see, then, where the boy got his views. Grant's shells, as they went screaming and bursting in lurid splendor over "the cockade city," and driving the women and children into the cellars for safety, were not very fraternal messengers.

I took my boy with me to call on General Gordon at the hotel. The General put his arm around him, and spoke to him very kindly, which of course pleased him greatly.

That evening we went early to the tabernacle to hear the General's lecture. Just as we took our seats, General T——, of the Federal Army, also took a seat just in front of us. A very large Union flag had been hung on the wall behind the platform, and we were scarcely seated when my son observed it, and said: "What have they put the flag up there for?"

I suggested in an undertone that he would better be careful; that there was a Yankee general just in front of us, and he might overhear him. He "didn't care if he did. They had no business putting that flag up there!"

The colloquy was interrupted by the manager, who discovered us, and invited us to occupy seats on the platform. This brought us in front of General T——, who preferred to retain his seat in the audience.

Immediately thereafter General Gordon came upon the platform, and while a storm of applause was shaking the very roof, he beckoned me to him, and asked if I would do him a favor.

"Certainly," I replied.

"I have left the manuscript of my speech in my trunk at the hotel. I think I know it, but, unless I have it by me, am afraid I may forget some parts of it. Here is the key to my room, and this one is the key to my trunk. I wish you would go and bring my speech."

"All right," I said, "but will I have time?"

"General Jackson is to introduce me, and I will keep him speaking till you get here," he replied.

I hurried to the hotel, opened his trunk, rummaged among a lot of papers, and finally found "The last days of the Confederacy," and rushed back to the tabernacle. A jerk on General Jackson's coat-tail arrested an eloquent oration, and brought General Gordon to the stand. He spoke two hours, with the manuscript lying before him on the table, and he never once referred to it.

At one point in his speech he paid a glowing tribute to General Robert E. Lee, which, of course, elicited loud applause from the audience. My son fairly went wild. He cheered with hands and feet and voice. So did General T——. Whereupon my son leaned over to me and exclaimed: "What is he cheering for? Lee was our man."

"Oh, yes," I said, "but the war was over long before you were born. General T—— is cheering because he admires Lee."

A little further on, General Gordon paid a high compliment to General Grant. Again there was defeaning applause, such old Confederates as Jackson and Kelley and Morton, General Forest's chief of artillery, joining in lustily. I watched my son to see if he would take part. He did, but in a feeble way. He was probably thinking of Grant's shells, and of his mother hiding from them in the cellar. Poor fellow!

Several days passed and I was walking with my boy in the woods around our home in the neighborhood of Nashville, when he said: "Papa, I think I have a subscriber for the Youth's Companion in that house yonder.

"What!" I exclaimed, in assumed surprise. "Are you circulating that paper?"

"Yes, sir," he said, "isn't it a good paper?"

"Oh, yes," I replied, "it is an excellent paper. But it is printed in Boston; and I didn't think you would circulate a Yankee paper."

"Oh, pshaw, papa!" he said, "what in the world is the use of keeping up the fuss?"

And then I saw that General Gordon had done his work well. The example of this old hero of a hundred battles, bearing the scars of the conflict on his body, pleading for fraternity and speaking of the Northern soldiers as brothers, had exoreised the evil spirit of sectional prejudice, and left the boy free—not the less a Southerner, but more an American. I have always been profoundly grateful to General Gordon for the valuable service he rendered me on that occasion.

I believe that was the effect of his speech on all who heard it, and I know it was the aim of his work as a lecturer to promote love and good fellowship between the North and the South.

By the way, I think my son hit the nail on the head when he said: "What in the world is the use of keeping up the fuss?" The great conflict has passed into history. No one ever dreams of reopening the issues it decided. The fame of the great actors in the drama belongs to the whole country. General Gordon, one of the noblest characters on either side, was allowed to live for a whole generation after the close of the struggle, that he might exemplify the patriotism that rises above all sectionalism and embraces the nation in its loyal devotion. In every great battle in Virginia from the first Manassas to Appomattox; in the very vortex of the hottest of them; shot eight times; rising from the ranks to be a lieutenant-general; the commander-in-chief of the Confederate veterans; a typical Southerner in every respect—no man in America loved the Union or the flag with a sincerer or more ardent love than General John B. Gordon. His whole career from the time he sheathed his stainless sword at Appomattox, recalls General Grant's epigrammatic words: "Let us have peace." The men foremost in the fight were the first to quit.—Rev. S. A. Steel, D. D., in Epworth Herald.

Elizabeth City District.—Sunbury, Wednesday, July 13th; embracing third Sunday.

General Booth has been much occupied with preparations for the International Congress of the Salvation Army, to be held in the summer. This will doubtless constitute the most important series of gatherings the Salvation Army has yet held, and will be most intimately bound up with the future welfare of the organization.

News comes from Dr. C. F. Reid at San Francisco, that he has nearly raised the $7,500 which was necessary to secure a lot and plant an effective church at the University of California. The West must move forward by infusing Christian principles into the young men, who are going out yearly to take the positions of power in the community.

Our column is enriched this week by words from our President, and Superintendent of our Juvenile work—special attention is called to both.

"Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of Hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing that there shall not be room enough to receive it."

To the W. F. M. S. of the N. C. Conference.

My Dear Sisters:—The time for our Annual Meeting is rapidly approaching—April 20-25—will soon roll around. What we do must be done quickly.

I hope there will be found women in every auxiliary who will be willing to make a sacrifice, if need be, to attend this meeting.

Let us not disappoint those good, hospitable sisters of Elizabeth City, who are looking forward to our coming with pleasure.

Be sure to elect as your delegate and alternate, women who will go unless providentially hindered; and do so at your March meeting.

Our two missionaries from Brazil, Rev. W. B. Lee and Miss Mary Pescud, will add much interest to this meeting.

We are anticipating a good time in every respect. Let there be united, earnest prayer for the presence and power of the Holy Spirit upon us all.

Yours loving co-worker,
LUCY A. CUNINGGIM.

To Bright Jewel Societies.

Dear Jewels:—I was gratified to see in "our column" last week so interesting and encouraging a report from the Lady Manager of Edenton Street Bright Jewels; and am hoping that others will soon follow her example, and tell something of the work of their Societies.

In the report from Edenton Street there are some very valuable suggestions, which I doubt not will be helpful to other Lady Managers.

I have just received a check for $6.00 from Raeford, N. C. There is, at that place, a Union Missionary Society for children, composed of Methodists and Presbyterians. At a recent mite-box opening, this amount was in the boxes given out to the Methodist children, and was sent with the request that it go on our Pledge, in response to Mrs. Swindell's recent statement of the large deficiency therein.

I am glad to know of this interest in missionary work at Raeford, and hope it may increase to such an extent that our children there shall soon be organized into a Bright Jewel Band, and report their work regularly. We should be happy indeed to welcome them among us.

The $6.00 will be placed on our Bright Jewel Pledge for the Mary Black Memorial at Soochow, China; and we pray that it may be so directed as to minister to the needs of some suffering child in the hospital of that far-off land. And thus may it be to them the glad messenger of the blessed effects of the gospel of Christ!

Of course you are all preparing for the celebration of Easter in the interest of our work. I would advise you to send to "The Lorenz Publishing Co.," Dayton, Ohio, for "The Easter Promise," a most beautiful and appropriate program, the music of which is especially bright and inspiring. The price of the programs is five cents per copy, fifty-five cents per dozen, postpaid.

Be sure to elect a delegate to our Annual Meeting at Elizabeth City, April 20-25.

Hoping to meet many of you there,
Lovingly,
AUNT LIZZIE.

Despite the inclement weather on last Sabbath morning, Edenton Street Church contained a good congregation of eager listeners, as Rev. W. B. Lee, missionary to Brazil, portrayed in forceful language the real condition of Christian (?) life and customs in that country; also the vast need for the pure gospel as enunciated by our Savior, and all the institutions there which are working for its promulgation.

His appeal for means to furnish a new building of the Granberry College in Juiz de Fora was responded to by a contribution of seventy-two dollars.

In the evening service at Central Church a contribution of eight dollars was made for the same purpose.

The Annual Meeting at Elizabeth City in April is going to be—to many—a test, not only of our love for, and faithfulness in, our missionary work, but of our desire and capacity to meet squarely our obligations; and as "Aunt Lucy" says, "be willing to make sacrifice, if need be."

At this juncture of the missionary work of our Conference, there is urgent need for a full representation of all the societies in the Conference. A determined effort on the part of our women can accomplish the sending of a delegate from every Society, and thus make the meeting at Elizabeth City what it should be—the best we have ever had.

If, in this matter, we bring into use all the business tact, industry and judgment with which we accomplish things in secular matters, our desire for a successful meeting will be gratified; but, from some unknown cause, when we come to church work, we have a vague idea that our desired results will be accomplished by some supernatural means. Be assured, however, that it is only when we have exhausted our own God-given resources, that He may, perchance, levy upon those of a fish or a raven to tide us over some dire necessity.

A Home Experience.

I am glad to give our readers a bit of homelife from the pen of one of our new Corresponding Secretaries, Mrs. M. M. Fisher, of Lake Landing Auxiliary. The sweet simplicity and gentle graciousness of the incident appeal to us all, and the plea for more of the Christ-spirit in our daily lives finds an echo in all the hearts of true Home Mission women.

"The Gospel in the Kitchen."

"I had just come in from my kitchen after a hard job of two days' duration, and was very tired. As I sat down I took from the table our dear little paper, The King's Messenger, to read as I rested.

The first thing that caught my eye was "the Gospel in the Kitchen.' Curious to know if some other sister had enjoyed an experience similar to mine, I read what followed—and as I read, my heart was filled with gratitude to God for His omnipresence. He is in 'Miss Pearl's' kitchen, He is in my kitchen, and, sisters, He is in your kitchens. Do you look for Him there? If you have never looked, you do not know how much you have missed. Begin now and look till you find Him: it may be, you will discover Him in your servants—possibly the one that is giving you most trouble. It was there I found Him, and I will tell you about it. I had before me some difficult and undesirable work, and sent out for several colored women, that it might soon be finished. It was very cold and I succeeded in hiring only two women and one girl, so was forced to help as well as direct. The girl became so absorbed in her duties she unconsciously began to hum one of her church hymns, and the women soon joined her; suddenly one turned and commanded the child to hush, adding, "You should have more manners than to sing in Miss ———'s kitchen.' I said, 'Sing, Bettie, I like to hear you, and I wish the others to sing with you.' Their faces beamed with pleasure, and as they sang one hymn after another, their hearts grew light (and mine also), while the work sped swiftly on, and was soon well accomplished. My daughter had joined me, and at the close we thanked them sincerely, because we had enjoyed the day and, better still, realized that God was with us. 'The Gospel in the kitchen'! Is not this real Home Mission work?

Would to God more of it could be found there! Let us strive to be so full of the spirit of Christ we cannot hide it at any time or in any place, but must let it shine in the parlor, in the kitchen, everywhere. Sometimes we smother it in the parlor.

When Christ said, 'Begin at Jerusalem,' what did He mean but to begin at home? 'Go ye out into all the world' was the next command. We may not be able to go, but we can show to all around us the spirit of Christ, and they, in turn, can teach others."

MRS. M. M. FISHER.

Wanted, $100.

To equip a much needed room in the Key West School.

No one can say the contributions keep pace with the needs in the Home Mission Society. But we should have the abiding faith that help will come. We must not fail to tell of these matters, however, that they may be fully understood when the man or woman and the opportunity meet. How beautiful to furnish this room and name for some loved one in Heaven or on earth!

A Magnanamous Offer from a Western Brother.

Mr. N. W. Harris, of Chicago, already widely and gratefully known through his kind help to the Chicago Training School, offers to pay all expenses (except transportation) of twenty young women who may desire to attend the Spring Normal Course, beginning March 10. This special course in Bible Study and Methods of Christian work is very fine and very beneficial, and he desires to aid our young women to become leaders in establishing centers of work in our great Southern Church.

Those who desire to improve this beautiful opportunity should at once communicate with Mrs. R. W. MacDonell, General Secretary of Woman's Board of Home Missions, Nashville, Tenn.

This seems almost a challenge from one of our royal Soldiers of the Cross—may there be a score of speedy responses from others enlisted in the same great army!

THE COMMON ORDER OF WORSHIP.

In another column of this paper may be seen the Common Order of Worship of the Methodist Episcopal Church and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. It was adopted by the Joint Commissions at their meetings held at Ocean Grove, New Jersey, July 7, 1903, and at Nashville, Tennessee, February 24, 1904.

An order of worship, though having no precedent in the days of the Apostles, is nevertheless a thing to be desired for reasons that belong to the eternal fitness of things and appeal most strongly to common sense. Yet we must not lose sight of the fact that an order of worship may be so unvarying and fixed as to defeat some of the very purposes of worship itself. The Methodist Church has never favored, and never will favor, a rubric so inflexible as not to admit the utmost freedom and spontaneity in public worship.

That there is an advantage to Methodism in the United States in having a common order of worship must be evident to every mind. Methodism is a unit. The Northern and Southern branches of the church, having the same doctrines, and the same polity, are simply manifesting an existing homogeneity by having the same order of worship.

It will be noticed that the Apostles' Creed may be omitted. It would have not been amiss, it seems to us, to make the recitation the rule. We fear that many Methodists do not know the Apostles Creed. In some Sunday-schools it is rarely heard. As a condensed expression of Christian belief it is unsurpassed, coming as it does from the very heart of the early Christian Church. To repeat the Creed, Sabbath after Sabbath, is to add not only to the impressiveness and usefulness of the whole service but to the intelligence and spirituality of the congregation.

The Gloria Patri may be omitted. We are glad that the Commissions did not make this Gloria the rule. It is a benediction set to music, it is true, but it is a benediction which can claim no origin save in the Roman Catholic Church. There are thousands of Methodists who would be unable to sing the Gloria with any spiritual fervor.

We are also glad that there is nothing in the Order of Worship which calls for that peculiar and Romish usage observed in some Methodist Churches—that of making the appearance of the preacher in the pulpit a signal for the people to kneel or bow in prayer. We believe in the rule according to which the worshipper bows in silent prayer as soon as he takes his seat. But it has always given us a spiritually "uncanny" feeling to see a congregation bowing or kneeling at the entrance of the preacher. It never fails to suggest the idea that some of the more worldly ones will look upon such action as obeisance to the preacher rather than humility in the presence of the Lord of Hosts. But this is only the way we look at it. Our readers may look at it with other eyes.

The suggestion that the people kneel on entering the sanctuary is so patiently wise and practical that it is to be hoped that it may be followed as closely as any regular rule laid down in the Order of Worship. But there is another suggestion which is golden—"Let all our services begin exactly at the time appointed." To wait for the congregation to assemble or for the organist or some other choice member of the choir to arrive is to invite that bane of public worship—a disturbance to the worship during the first fifteen minutes of the exercises. No pastor will lose anything by letting his congregation know that he is going to begin on time even if there is only one other worshipper present.

We wish that it were possible to incorporate as a rule in the Order of Worship the suggestion that an invitation to come to Christ or to unite with the church should be given when the last hymn is sung. It seems to be the idea that giving an invitation to a sinner is fit only for a revival occasion. In fact, we think that we know some Methodists who would look upon the extension of an invitation to a sinner right after one of those "beautiful" sermons and that "glorious" programme of song as an unwarranted breach of ecclesiastical decorum. God pity us! The church has no time for giving mere entertainments. Her work is to save souls as well as to edify the saints. If our ministry should make it a rule to preach such sermons as would naturally be followed by an invitation to sinners, and then extend that invitation though it should spoil (!) the whole service, we believe in our hearts that a grand new day would dawn for Methodism.

We must say that much of this latter-day prophesying makes us tired. Every community has its prophet. A man in Durham prophesied, presumably getting his prophecy from Daniel or Ezekiel, that Friday, February 26th, would be a day of dense darkness for the space of three hours. The fact is, this day was one of the whitest in the whole year, covering this whole section with sleet and snow.

Dr. Woods, of the St. Louis, in the last issue of his excellent paper, has powerfully clarified our vision of the whys and wherefores of that wonderful paragraph in the Western, and we are thankful and content. We have clipped his thesis for future use. We must suggest, however, that Dr. Woods has not yet solved that "mule-on-the-hoss" problem sprung by the Alabama. The question is, "What will he do with it?"

While we are not enthusiastic over the plan of holding religious services at Fairs, yet we were pleased when we heard that George Stuart had been placed in charge of the religious work during the St. Louis Fair. Now a disappointment comes in the shape of a statement that the plan has fallen through. George Stuart could have come as near getting an audience at St. Louis as any preacher you could find.

Who ever expected to see in the staid, dignified, and conservative Nashville Christian Advocate a bordered notice in large type in the center of the first page? Yet the unexpected has been seen. Bishop Fitzgerald, who has lost none of his spiritual vigor as a Christian, and none of his magic as an editor, furnishes an exhortation for this central displayed space. He exhorts Southern Methodism to rally to the Nashville and furnish the ten-thousand new subscribers asked for. We trust that the hard-working and versatile Winton, with his corps of business-like assistants, will secure those new subscribers. Then the Nashville will spread herself. She will have thirty-two pages, with paid contributors. Then Dr. Winton will smile, and all Southern Methodism will smile with him.

WHAT THEY SAY OF THE "OLD RALEIGH."

"The paper gets better every week."—S. A. S.

"God bless you in your noble work, and the bold stand you take on all questions pertaining to the Master's kingdom. Success to the 'Old Raleigh.'"—C. H. J.

"I have been a reader of our church paper from the Richmond Christian Advocate up to now. I want to congratulate you on your success not only in keeping up the standard of excellence it has most always had, but never in my memory has it been as good as to-day."—W. B. L.

"The 'Old Raleigh' is such a valued paper in our home, we simply can't do without its weekly visits to our home. It is interesting not only to wife and myself, but also to our oldest son, although he is only seven years old. He knows just when it is due to come. I do not see how any Methodist can get along without it as I consider it a school book for Methodism and a good training course for the children."

North Carolina Methodism.

Rev. Walter Holcombe left for a trip to Europe last Tuesday.

Rev. J. H. Shore is assisting Rev. C. W. Robinson in a meeting at Warrenton this week.

Last Sunday was a likely day for man and beast. We have no doubt that preachers and people utilized it to the utmost.

Dr. Jno. R. Brooks and wife, who have been making Louisburg their home during the winter, are spending a short while in Raleigh. Dr. Brooks looks vigorous physically, and seems to have regained in a large measure his health. Both he and his wife have many friends in Raleigh.

That was a great meeting in Southport, reported by Rev. Euclid McWhorter. The Methodist Church received sixty new members. Other churches have received large additions. Brother McWhorter writes that his membership is in a hopeful state. Old distressing troubles are dead.

Mr. W. Ed. Moss, one of our official laymen of Henderson, was in the office a few days ago. He is enthusiastic over the work in Henderson and speaks highly of Dr. Nash. From what he says the Henderson people are going to give the Conference a royal entertainment next December.

Rev. H. A. Humble, Littleton Circuit, writes glowingly of the results of a good meeting recently held in Littleton by Rev. Mr. Black, of the Presbyterian Church. All the churches of the town have enjoyed an addition in membership and spiritual life. Brother Humble has been sick for two weeks, but is himself again, we are glad to know.

We regret to learn that Dr. Jonathan Sanford, P. C. of Siler City Circuit, had his ankle sprained and one bone broken a few days ago. We sympathize with Dr. Sanford in this affliction. Though past middle life, he still has the fire and energy of youth, and for such a man to be kept away from his work is a great affliction, to say nothing of the physical suffering.

We are indebted to Senator L. S. Overman for a copy of his speech on the Panama Canal question, dleivered in the Senate of the United States, February 9, 1904. The speech represents the conscientious sentiments of Senator Overman, and is built on a high plane of statesmanship. The Senator speaks as frankly in the Senate as in a Methodist prayer-meeting.

The Lumberton Methodists are engaged in the enterprise of building a new church. The parsonage will be moved back, and a new church costing $6,000 and $10,000 will be built. A considerable portion of the amount necessary has already been subscribed. We rejoice in the great success of the pastor, Rev. Z. Paris. He has captured the situation, it seems.

Mr. Leon Williams, son of Rev. J. V. Williams, and at present a student at Trinity College, manifested his interest in the Advocate by making us a pleasant call a few days ago. He is a young man of decided talents. He is one of the most popular members of the Trinity College Glee Club, which gave such a pleasant entertainment to a crowded house in Raleigh last week.

Rev. Hugh Paylor, of the Virginia Conference, writes as follows in the North Carolina Christian Advocate: "The Virginia Conference gets some of its best material from among the 'down homers.' We have more than twenty in our effective ranks now, prominent among whom are Dr. Simpson, of Clay Street, Richmond; Rev. Jas. C. Reed, Presiding Elder of Lynchburg District; Dr. E. L. Pell, the author of Pell's Notes, of world-wide fame; Rev. J. N. Latham, of Monumental Church, Portsmouth. I have frequently laughingly remarked to the brethren that Virginia could not get along without the 'Tar Heels,' and they have been compelled to admit that the sons of North Carolina generally make a success of whatever they undertake anywhere."

General Notes.

Dr. G. C. Rankin has recovered from his illness, and is at his desk again.

A great missionary Convention will be held in San Francisco from April 28 to May 1.

There are fifty-three women in the Congregational ministry in the United States.

Seven Methodist parsonages have been built in Pekin, China, at a total cost of $31,650.

In the State of Michigan the average ministerial salary in the Methodist Church last year was $743.

Dr. Burrows, editor of the Midland Methodist, is writing for his paper some very interesting letters from Cuba.

The Mayor of Brownwood, Texas, has withdrawn his suit for libel against the Texas Advocate Publishing Company.

Dr. J. D. Barbee, who for several weeks has been critically ill with pneumonia, is thought to be on the road to recovery.

In England 250 Endeavor Societies have raised 7,000 pounds for building and equipping the mission steamer "Endeavor," which is to run on the Congo.

We are glad to learn that the business of the Epworth Era reached its highest notch during February. Dr. Du Bose, the editor, has returned from Cuba, and is now in Arkansas.

Dowie's reception in Australia was warm, but hardly enthusiastic. A mob of five thousand tried to lay hands on him, but he showed his usual facility for eluding the clutches of his enemies.

The manuscript of the first book of "Paradise Lost" was recently sold at public auction in London for $25,000. The manuscript was the one from which the poem was set up by the printer.

"The Daily Paper," Mr. W. T. Stead's new venture in journalism, has come to an end, after a brief existence of five weeks. The immediate cause of failure was the serious break-down in Mr. Stead's health the second day of the paper's life.

It is interesting to note that John Morley, M. P., the distinguished literateur and biographer of Gladstone, is the great-grandson of Duncan McAllum, a Methodist preacher, and the grandnephew of Dr. Daniel McAllum, also a Methodist preacher. His mother was a Methodist class-leader.

According to statistics recently gathered, about 30,000,000 are living in prohibition territory in this country. This is more than one-third of the entire population. In Maine, Kansas and North Dakota they have prohibition by State law; in thirty-eight other States they have it by local option.

Mr. Leon Williams, son of Rev. J. V. Williams, and at present a student at Trinity College, manifested his interest in the Advocate by making us a pleasant call a few days ago. He is a young man of decided talents. He is one of the most popular members of the Trinity College Glee Club, which gave such a pleasant entertainment to a crowded house in Raleigh last week.

Rev. H. H. Smith, of Walkertown, Va., had prepared an admirable little pamphlet containing verses of Scripture such as should be memorized by children, especially in Sunday-school classes. This pamphlet touches and supplies a need which we are afraid has not been receiving adequate attention.

Rev. H. C. Brown, preacher in charge at Medford, Columbia Conference, was picked up unconscious near his church a few days ago. Examination by the physicians disclosed the fact that he had been struck by some blunt instrument. The parties were unknown. The object was supposed to be robbery.

In the report of the number of churches and of communicants of some of the leading bodies, as given in the Family Christian Almanac, of the American Tract Society, the average of members to a church stands as follows: Methodist Episcopal Church, North, 105; Methodist Episcopal Church, South, 103; Presbyterian Church, North, 136; Presbyterian Church, South, 77; Congregational, 112; Protestant Episcopal, 109; Baptist, 97; Reformed Church in America, 180.

Publisher's Column.

A LITTLE CHAT WITH OUR READERS ABOUT THE BUSINESS OF THE ADVOCATE.

It is known that the editor of the Raleigh Christian Advocate is also Business Manager. This fact means that he runs a "high pressure engine," with the governors almost horizontal. He is not complaining of hard work, but simply wishes to show why he has no time to respond affirmatively to many kind invitations to form and meet engagements throughout the Conference.

For several years we have been working on an adequate business system for the Advocate. We have had many difficulties to contend with—difficulties whose gravity can be appreciated only by those who are acquainted with newspaper work. We are glad to say that we can report progress. To prove this fact, and at the same time to give our readers an idea to which they are entitled, we will tell something about our system. System we must have in order that one man may perform the duties of both editor and Business Manager.

Every letter which comes to this office receives the most careful attention. We do not trust to our memory. Each letter shows when it comes to the office and everything that is done with the matter in hand. The letter which you sent to this office one year ago can be found by us in our files in a few moments.

The name of every one who sends money and the amount sent are recorded in our combined Journal and Cash Book. This book is our own invention. It is to be copyrighted. There is nothing like it as far as we know. It shows on a line across the page for every day in the year the following items representing what has been received since the first day of the year: Number of new subscribers, number of renewals, number of discontinuances, amount received from subscribers, amount received from advertisers, amount received from miscellaneous sources, total amount received from all sources. It also shows for every day in the year how much has been paid out since the beginning of the year on salaries, paper, postage, rent, insurance, taxes, etc. It also shows for every day in the year the amount of cash in hand, balance in bank, and the total paid out out from all sources. The system works automatically and any school-boy can understand it. It must be balanced to a cent at the close of each day. On the last line of the page representing the last day of the year is a clear, complete statement of the business of the whole year.

There is only one thing lacking to make our business system complete, and that is the Card Index. Through lack of this we have not been able to reduce the number of mistakes in the mailing list to a minimum. We are now installing the Macey Card Index System. By this we will keep an individual account with every subscriber to the paper. This will save time and prevent confusion in the mailing list. By the end of the year we hope to have the Card System complete.

We write all this to let our subscribers know that their business dealings of the Advocate receive the most careful and accurate attention. Miss M. S. Carter, our head book-keeper, has experience, is very accurate, and conscientiously attends to the slightest details.

We also write all this to let our readers know that, as we are running our business according to the most modern and accurate methods, we must insist on our subscribers dealing with us on strict business principles.

With all modesty, we may say that one can look at the paper we are publishing and see clearly that the price we charge for it is very low. Other things are going up in price, but the price of the Advocate remains the same. One can see also that in order to maintain the paper at the present price, we must use the rule of "cash in advance." If a subscriber gets behind, we must send out a statement. This is business. This is an exercise of the law of business self-preservation. We are sorry that some of our readers do not appreciate this fact.

We trust that every reader of the Advocate will look at his label and see if it shows that his paper is paid up to date. If it is not, let him send us his renewal, with back dues at once. The price of labor, paper, and freight rates have gone up, and as the price of the Advocate is the same, we must insist that every subscriber regard his obligation to the Advocate as strong as his most sacred obligation to other things.

THE CAMPAIGN FOR NEW SUBSCRIBERS.

The Conference has requested each District to furnish 150 new subscribers by May 1, 1904. The report for each District will be made weekly in this column. The District reporting the largest number of new subscribers by May 1, 1904, will receive a present not costing less than $25.00, to be applied as the District Conference thinks best.

The following new subscribers have been received since March 2, 1904:

Rev. G. W. Starling	26
B. C. Glover	22
Rev. J. W. Bradley	6
Rev. W. C. Merritt	6
Rev. J. W. Potter	4

Direct	7

The following shows how many new subscribers have been received from each District since December 1st:

Fayetteville District	57
Raleigh District	47
Durham District	40
New Bern District	34
Wilmington District	27
Warrenton District	27
Washington District	25
Elizabeth City District	24
Rockingham District	23

Do you notice how, in the last week, Fayetteville District has captured the top of the column from the Raleigh? Also, how Durham has climbed from the bottom of the column to the third place? Rockingham has been forced to the bottom, and Wilmington changes from second position to third and ties with the Warrenton. Watch the changes in next week's table.

THE WEEK'S BLUE RIBBON FOR REV. G. W. STARLING.

During the week, Rev. G. W. Starling, P. C. of Buckhorn Circuit, sent in 26 new yearly subscribers. He secured them in the bounds of one of the best Circuits in the Conference, but a Circuit, mind you, which at times in the past has been represented to the editor of the paper as one "in which you just can't get the people to take the paper." But Bro. Starling had faith in the paper and the people. He had energy. He baited his hook and gave the fish a chance to bite by taking a member off to one side and telling him his duty to take his church paper. Furthermore, Starling says that he is going to send 10 more new subscribers before May 1.

In the meantime, let it be remembered that the single subscriptions sent in count for much. They often represent a vast amount of earnest labor on the part of the preacher and occupy a very important place in our list. We appreciate them all.

WE HAVE BURNED THE BRIDGE BEHIND US.

The Resolution of the North Carolina Conference requesting each Presiding Elder's district to furnish 150 new subscribers to the Raleigh Christian Advocate by May 1, 1904, is before the public. It is based upon the fact that each Presiding Elder's district can easily furnish this number again and again. Less than one half of the Methodist families in the Conference take the Advocate.

We are publishing the number received from each District during the week. If we fail to secure the number, we are going to fail before Southern Methodism. If we succeed we are going to succeed as publicly. But there is no "if" in the matter. We are not going to fail, because the "we" represent the North Carolina Conference which does not know how to fail. We are going to succeed and succeed gloriously. We are waiting to see which district comes first under the wire. Remember that we have only March and April.

Has the Era agent of your Chapter been appointed?

Have you a "Bible Circle?"

Have you caught the "Institute" idea?

How are you advancing in "Christian culture?"

Is your Missionary Committee active?

The "Quiet Hour" and "Morning Watch" are most helpful in the growth and development of a Christian character. Send to Nashville for literature.

At St. John parsonage, February 15th, an Epworth League was organized with the following officers: President, Albert Thompson; First Vice-President, Mr. Letha Tyson; Second Vice-President, Miss Maggie Wells; Third Vice-President, Leslie Johnson; Fourth Vice-President, Miss Ada Wrenn; Secretary, Miss Hattie Midgette; Treasurer, John Rafer; Organist, Miss Sallie Wrenn; Assistant Organist, Miss Berta Brown.

Christliness in Spirit and Service.

It matters not so much what we profess as it does how we, as Christ's followers, present Him to a lost and perishing world. It was never more important that Christ be manifested in our lives. We see much and hear much that seems hollow and meaningless because men have no experimental knowledge of the things they assert. Intellectual men are everywhere asking: What is the spirit that actuates us. That which impresses the world and that which shall give final victory is the Christ-likeness of our spirit and service.

The world must love the Christ. Every great church organization must be measured not by its numbers nor its enthusiasm, but by its likeness to the divine One.

Are you rejoiced at the number of members you have in your League? Or, perhaps, you are discouraged because you have so few? The true estimate of value to be placed upon your Chapter is not the fine literary department; nor the number that attend the devotional meetings; nor yet the amount of charity bestowed; but the real character of your members, the Christlikeness of their spirit and service.

How to Sweeten Life.

Open all the doors to the religion of Christ. It will make this world a paradise. It will sweeten the everyday trials of life, the little perplexities and annoyances, little sorrows and trials, little disappointments and mistakes. Nature ever helps the tiny objects. A small flower blossoms at my feet. The clouds gather swiftly in the sky to water it; infinite chemistry works at its roots to nourish it; the mighty power of gravitation and other equally unconquerable forces hold it and guard it; the sun rises and shines to paint beauty upon its cheek; the winds are marshaled to fan it; everything is made to contribute to the comfort of this tiny flower. The religion of Christ is suited to tired men and women and children. It is suited to the office, the cradle, the sewing-machine, the headache, the heartache, the nursery, the school-room, the lonely attic, the evening ramble. It should sweeten all the moments, thoughts and feelings, the voice, the conversation, the toils and afflictions of life, the temper, and the heart; and all may have and enjoy it.—Ram's Horn.

A Striking Contrast.

What a marvelous difference there is between the attitude of ministers in regard to young people's work! One actively associates himself with the League and is really a leader in all its enterprises, while another stands aloof, and does scarcely anything more than occasionally attend a League service. Here is an instance which we cannot refrain from giving:

A pastor came into the central office of the Epworth League, a few days ago, and left an order for one dozen copies of our new Bible study text-book, "Studies in the Life of Christ." He said that he had been talking the matter up among the young people, and had aroused considerable interest. He intended to take charge of the work personally, and expected that it would prove a great source of inspiration and blessing to the church.

In another church a young lady was trying, without any assistance from her pastor, to get the League members to take up the Bible Study. One evening, when the minister had dropped into the League meeting for a few minutes, she handed him a copy of "Studies in the Life of Christ," with the request that he would take it home and look over it. To her astonishment he refused to accept it, and turned away saying, that he was too busy to bother with anything of the kind.

We are thankful that pastors of the first type are so numerous, and that the other sort are so few and far between. It is sad to think that there is even one who would show such indifference. By and bye this brother will be wondering why Quarterly Boards do not invite him.—Exchange.

Lesson for March 13, 1904.

Death of John the Baptist.

(Matthew 14:1-12.)

Golden Text:—Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life. (Rev. 2:10.)

The Ministry of the Baptist.—John began his preaching six months before Jesus entered upon his public ministry. For a year and a half John the Baptist and Jesus were both actively at work. Then John was thrown into prison by Herod Antipas, the tetrarch of Galilee.

John was shut up in the castle Macherus by Herod simply because he was a fearless preacher of righteousness. Herod and Herodias had made a shameless alliance. Each of them had been married to another spouse, but guilty passion had triumphed over all restraints and they were now living in a sinful union. John the Baptist had openly rebuked Herod for his shameless infidelity, and now he was made to feel the and a remorseless woman.

Herod's Birthday.—Never in human history was a birthday party attended with more disastrous moral consequences than the one of which we read in this present lesson. Herod and his nobles gave themselves over to the utmost indulgence at the banquet prepared to celebrate the occasion. Doubtless the wine flowed freely, and while the revelling was at its height, Salome, the daughter of Herodias by her former husband Phillip, came in and danced before the assembled company.

The Price of a Dance.—The sight of the princess Salome in a dance should have awakened a sense of shame and displeasure in the mind of Herod, for no woman of repectability would willingly have exhibited herself thus. Inflamed, however, by passion and flushed with the banquet, Herod promised Salome whatever she would ask, even to the half of his kingdom.

The Baptist Beheaded.—God does not always rescue his servants from physical death, as the annals of martyrdom plainly show, but he gives them strength to endure, as seeing him who is invisible. John the Baptist was beheaded in accordance with Salome's request. Yet in his death this fearless prophet of old stands out resplendent in the light of history, while his royal executioner will be remembered to the end of time as an example of deepest infamy.

The Source of all Comfort.—Most touching are the closing words of our lesson, which tell us how the disciples of John came and took up the body and buried it, and went and told Jesus. What Jesus said to these sorrowing disciples, we do not know, but who can doubt that they received from the Master a message of great consolation?

Suggestive Teachings.—Some very helpful suggestions bearing upon this lesson will be found in a book by Dr. James Stalker, entitled "The Two St. Johns of the New Testament." (Published by the American Tract Society, 150 Nassau Street, price, postpaid, $1.00). A group of manly Christian virtues find an embodiment in this rugged prophet of the wilderness. Truth, courage, endurance, these and kindred qualities stand out in bold relife and make the character of John the Baptist worthy of all emulation.

The temperance application to be made from this lesson is the warning which Herod's life gives us against unbridled excess. His career ended most miserably. So is it with all who allow their appetite for strong drink or for any other evil indulgence to gain the mastery over them.

ABSOLUTELY A CHANGE.

About seven years ago my health began to fail. I was completely "run down," and my blood got in a bad condition. I suffered with severe pains in different parts of my body, so severe that I could not lie in any position long at a time, and in consequence of this I did not know what it was to get a good night's rest. I had been taking different medicines for the trouble for three years, but got no relief. Then I thought I would try Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy. I had no faith in it, or anything else for my ease, but I thought it would be a change. The third night after I started on it I got the first good night's sleep I had had in many months. I became hopeful. The Remedy relieved the terrible pains I had been suffering from so long, and being able to sleep well at night, I soon began to feel like a new man. My appetite began to improve. I began to build up in every respect. I continued its use until I took about three dozen bottles, when I knew I was a well man. I have been cured four years, have never felt those pains since, and am now a perfectly healthy man, nor have I ever needed any of the Remedy since.

The Infidel's Dream.

Here is the infidel's dream, as related by Gov. Bob Taylor, of Tennessee. It is pictured in Governor Taylor's own peculiarly beautiful style of poetic prose:

"It is in the desert where virtue trembles to tread, where hope falters and faith is crucified, the infidel dreams. To him all there is in heaven is bounded by this little span of life. All there is of pleasure and of love is circumscribed by a few fleeting years; all there is in the human brain; all there is of mystery and infinity is fathomable by human reason, and all there is of virtue is measured by the relation of man to man. To him all must end in the tongueless silence of the dreamless dust, and all that lies beyond the grave is a voiceless shore and a starless sky. To him there is no print of deathless feet on its echoless sand, or thrill of immortal music in its joyless air. He has lost his God, and like some seraph flying in the rayless night, he probes his way on flagging pinions, searching for the light where darkness reigns, for life where death is king.

A hotel at Lucerne, Switzerland, announces in English that "the menu of this hotel leaves the guests nothing to hope for."

"Of course," said the bachelor, thoughtfully, "there can be no such thing as joint rule in a family. Some one must be the head."

"True; but the scepter passes from one to another."

"How?"

"Well, at the beginning of married life the husband holds it; then it gently and unobstrusively passes to the wife, and he never gets it back again."

"She keeps it forever?"

"O, no; the baby gets it next."

Mr. McCorkle: "This statue you speak of was an equestrian one, was it?"

Mrs. McCorkle: "No, it was just a man on horseback."

CANCER CURED BY BLOOD BALM.—ALL SKIN AND BLOOD DISEASES CURED.

Mrs. M. L. Adams, Fredonia, Ala., took Botanic Blood Balm which effectually cured an eating cancer of the nose and face. The sores healed up perfectly. Many doctors had given up her case as hopeless. Hundreds of cases of cancer, eating sores, suppurating swellings, etc., have been cured by Blood Balm. Among others, Mrs. B. M. Guerney, Warrior Stand, Ala. Her nose and lip were raw as beef, with offensive discharge from the eating sore. Doctors advised cutting, but it failed. Blood Balm healed the sores, and Mrs. Guerney is as well as ever. Botanic Blood Balm also cures eczema, itching humors, scabs, and scales, bone pains, ulcers, offiensive pimples, blood poison, carbuncles, scrofula, risings and bumps on the skin and all blood troubles. Druggists, $1 per large bottle. Sample of Botanic Blood Balm free and prepaid by writing Blood Balm Co., Atlanta, Ga. Describe trouble and special medical advice sent in sealed letter. It is certainly worth while investigating such a remarkable remedy, as Blood Balm cures the most awful, worst and most deep-seated blood diseases.

That Candy Pulling.

The boys were promised a treat if they would keep good fires during the winter. They had done wonderfully well. Which has added much to our comfort amid the ice and snow and rain and sleet that visited our home. Last Saturday was the day of the feast. Everything for Sunday was prepared. All bathed and in their Sunday clothes they were ready for a good time. It was a candy pulling. The boys invited the girls, and they pulled in pairs—a boy and a girl. As there was an odst boy, Miss Lucy pulled with him. It was indeed a great time.

A hearty vote of thanks was given Miss Fannie for the entertainment.

New Bern.

When I joined the North Carolina Conference in New Bern in 1858, it was considered about the most desirable pastoral charge in the Conference. It was longer in rallying from the wreck of the war than some other churches. It was within the enemy's lines so long. But it is coming to the front rapidly. It will soon take its old stand. I took it into my head to run down to the Mission Institute. Was one of the first to get there, and the very last to leave.

Adams—our Troy—had no business putting me in the sweet home of Brother Munger, if he did not wish me to stay so long. It almost broke that good peoples heart to take Bumpas from them. But they applied, as a balm, their new pastor and his young bride. Spent Sunday with them. Their fine, new church is going up. Bless old New Bern!

The fish are beginning to run. Wonder if any will run up our spring branch?

Two barrels of Irish potatoes were given us for seed last year. Wonder if more will be given us this year?

Wonder if some good old farmer sister hasn't got some butter beans—takes heaps for us—cornfield snaps, shallotts—I reckon that's the way to spell them—bunch cymbling seed, pumpkin seed, Barnibess beans, etc., that they would like to give the Orphanage. Then the old gentleman might throw in a few bushels of cornfield peas, some seed corn, like Bigs's, a runlet of sorghum, a few pounds of butter—don't mind about its being yellow. Canned fruits come never amiss. All these, and more, will be acceptable. All the more acceptable if transportation charges are paid. "Is the corn shelled?" you know.

Can't Keep Up Both.

A gentleman who was traveling, being delayed at a railroad junction, entered into conversation with a careworn lady who, with three small children, was also waiting for a train. This was part of what was said:

"Where are you going, madam?"

"To my father's at ——. I have not been home since I was married. I did think I never would go back to my people, but I am going to stay."

"Is your husband dead?"

"No, sir; but he spends all he makes for liquor, and I can't make a living for him, the children and myself. My father wrote me if I would come home he and my brothers would take care of me and the children. I hate to go back this way, but I can't keep up a home and the saloons both. When I married my husband he was a fine business man, and had a good position. Now he works about at anything to get money to buy whiskey. He don't seem to care anything for me now, or his children, either. I wish the men would not vote for saloons, that break up homes!"

"Two things," said the gentleman who relates this story, "rang in my ears for days and weeks, and the pathetic face of that wronged woman haunts me by day and by night to this hour; 'I can't keep up a home and the saloons both.' 'I wish the men would not vote for the saloons that break up homes.' That face and those two sentences have forever made me an enemy to the saloon. Till I came to this conclusion I felt that I did not want to meet a good woman face to face."

A Notable Appeal.

The American Bible Society for nearly eighty-eight years has pursued its single aim of circulating the Bible without note or comment in this and all lands. For this purpose it has been concerned in securing translations of the Scriptures in nearly one hundred languages. It sustains a close relation to the Christian churches of the United States as the ally and helper of their mission work at home and abroad, and as such deserves and receives their support. But, in addition, the effect of its labor has been very marked upon the whole civilization. To have circulated, as it has done, seventy-two million Bibles, Testaments or portions thereof, is to have powerfully contributed to the moral health of the world. The social fabric of modern States has no surer foundation than the Bible, especially in a republic like ours, which rests upon the moral character and educated judgment of the individual.

No thoughtful man can doubt that to decrease the circulation and use of the Bible among the people would seriously menace the highest interest of civilized humanity.

Inasmuch as the work of the society is in danger of being seriously crippled from lack of funds, its appeals for aid should meet generous response from all who love American institutions. We owe a debt to the Bible which can be partly paid now by carrying forward this great undertaking with increased vigor.

O'BRIEN.—Mrs. Martha Ann O'BRIEN, born Hargrove, was born in Marion County, S. C., September 10, 1832, was married in 1865 to Mr. W. W. O'Brien, and died in Maxton, N. C., February 4, 1904. Of her own children, Messrs. Asa O'Brien, of Maxton, and W. P. O'Brien, of Wilmington, and Mrs. Pattie Wilkerson, Mrs. Nettie Patterson and Mrs. Lily Sinclair, all of the vicinity of Maxton, remain to weep her departure, while Mr. O'Brien's older children, to whom she was ever a loving mother, mingle their tears with theirs.

Early in life Mrs. O'Brien was converted and joined the Methodist Church, South. For a while she was a member of the Presbyterian Church, but as soon as her location permitted, she reunited with the beloved church of her childhood. She was ever a loyal Christian, and whenever clouds arose, she sought the place of prayer, and it was soon sunshine again. Called in a moment, she was ready. It is well with her.

N. H. D. WILSON.

HOLMES.—A true good man, an earnest, useful and happy Christian went to heaven New Year's Day, 1904, when the spirit of Bro. Wallace Holmes departed its earthly tabernacle. Place of birth, East Lake, Dare County, N. C. Time, November 17, 1834. Was converted in 1850. Held prayer-meetings at seventeen years of age. Prayed in public. Was many years Sunday-school superintendent and class leader. Was married in 1854. Lived happily with his wife until her death in 1894. Lived ten years in Currituck County. Three years in Camden County. Last years of life spent in Elizabeth City. Always took church membership when he moved; said he wanted to be numbered with God's people wherever he lived. He was an ardent prohibitionist. During last three years often said: "I hope I may live to see the day when liquor will be put out of Elizabeth City." He saw it, and died that day. His sorrowing children have his good example to follow, and his prayers to help them to heaven.

T. H. TUTTLE.

HAZLEWOOD.—Mrs. Amanda F. Hazlewood (nee Spain) was born July 27, 1840, and died at her home in Franklinton, N. C., January 23, 1904.

She was married July 17, 1866, to Warwick Hazlewood, who preceded her several years to the heavenly world. When about fourteen years old, she was very soundly converted to God and united with the Methodist E. Church, South, in whose communion she lived a consistent and deeply consecrated life until her translation to the church in the skies. At the time of her death, she was a member of the church at Ebenezer, on the Tar River Circuit.

Sister Hazlewood was a woman of great fixedness of purpose and decision of character. She was always able and ready to give a reason for the faith that was in her and for the Methodism in which she so ardently believed. Her character was positively righteous, which is more than mere negative innocence. Her life was filled with good works, and every Methodist preacher who has occupied the parsonage, since she lived there, will testify to her very many kindnesses to the preacher and his family.

She was a faithful member of the W. F. M. Society in our church at Franklinton. The Society testified its great love for her in placing a beautiful wreath of flowers on her grave.

She and her sister had been living together for a long time, now her sister is left alone in feeble health to mourn her great loss. May the Comforter take of the things of Christ and apply them to her wounded and desolate heart, and may she, with all who knew the loved one gone before, meet in the home of the good.

JNO. H. SHORE.

BAILEY.—Helen Maria Palmer Bailey was born in Prince Edward County, Va., May 2, 1830. She had the misfortune to lose her mother in the tender years of childhood. She was thus bereft of a mother's love and guidance in the formative period of her character. But a kind Providence watched her and threw about her such influences as were calculated to make out of the orphan girl one of the noblest specimens of Christian womanhood. At the age of twelve years, under the ministry of Rev. John Early, afterward Bishop, she was converted and joined the M. E. Church two years before its division into M. E. Church and M. E. Church, South. Notwithstanding this tender age at which she began th Christian life, she never fell from grace, nor put her Lord to an open shame by inconsistencies. From her conversion to her death, one purpose, that of a consistent Christian life, dominated her. October 23, 1851, she was happily married to John Price Bailey. From this union five children were born, four of whom still live—two boys and two girls. At the death of her husband, who fell in the Seven Days' battle around Richmond, Va., new difficulties and responsibilities confronted her. With these she went to the Lord for help and guidance. She said to this writer of this event: "It was certainly dark. I could not see. I could but walk by faith. But some how I never feared." She said: "The Lord helped me to take care of and raise the children, now they take care of me. It rejoices me that they are all professors of religion, and members of the church."

Sister Bailey was a quiet, unassuming woman. Reserved in disposition, yet as a Christian she never swered from duty. When no man in Andrew's Chapel Church would superintend the Sunday-school, at the request of her pastor, Brother Betts, she took charge of it and went bravely on. Notwithstanding she lived four or more miles from the church, she faithfully superintended the school for several years. She loved her church and devoted her best energies to it. She could truly say—

"For her my tears shall fall,
For her my prayers ascend;
To her my cares and toils be given,
Till toils and cares shall end."

Her life was simply beautiful in its sweet and gentle goodness. She had a word of cheer and encouragement for the Christian, and a word of gentle loving warning for the wayward. She loved the services of the sanctuary, and never contented herself away from the church when services were to be held there, if she could possibly go. She loved her Bible, and good looks and papers, but she never substituted these for public worship.

With such a mother no wonder that her eldest boy should be a minister of the gospel; that her two daughters should be Christian teachers, and the other boy a Christian farmer.

Sister Bailey loved to sing the sweet songs of Zion, and when she could not sing for weakness, she treasured the sentiment and melody in her mind and heart. All of her church service had a thrill of joy for her soul. The poet gives expression to her feelings in these words:

"Beyond my highest joy
I prize her heavenly ways,
Her sweet communion, solemn vows,
Her hymns of love and praise."

Her final test was in the fourteen weeks of lingering suffering on the margin of the great river. During this protracted illness no word of complaint escaped her lips. She gave constant evidence of her readiness to lay down the armor of her warfare and take the crown of life. The religion and faith which had given her courage in life's hard battles supported her amid the darkening shades of the valley of death. At her home in Durham County, N. C., on January 11, 1904, this beautiful life, which had been shining as a Christian for sixty years, went out. Amid friends and loved ones she quietly, peacefully gathered about her the drapery of her couch, closed her eyes, and God took her.

Her pastor, the Rev. G. R. Rood, conducted the funeral services and laid the body to rest at the church which she loved so well. May all her loved ones meet her amid the glories of the eternal world in the city of God.

J. M. ASHBY.

BRINN.—Little Elma Elliott Brinn, son of J. Y. and Lilly Belle Brinn, was born December 11, 1896, and died December 28, 1903. He was a remarkably bright, handsome, interesting little fellow; and because of this unusual promise that seemed to be before him his early death was the more greatly deplored and keenly felt by all. The affections of father, mother, and all other members of the family were fully set upon him. He was the joy and delight of the entire household. A little beam of sunshine which God in His goodness allowed to brighten Brother Brinn's home for a short while and then withdrew His own into the skies. His little stay upon earth, though seemingly so short, was long enough to accomplish great things. His pure, innocent, sweet life, though but a span, won the hearts of father and mother, and then transferred their affections with himself into the heavens. Father and mother are better today and nearer to God because of his having lived. He is now a tie binding them to Heaven. It is no small blessing to have a child in Heaven. We deeply sympathize with Brother and Sister Brinn in their sorrow. We realize the loss they have sustained from a worldly point of view, but let them remember that their loss and sorrow are their child's eternal joy and gain. The little fellow has only gone to his rest.

"Go to thy rest, fair child!
Go to thy dreamless bed,
Gentle, and meek, and mild,
With blessings on thy head."

"Shall love, with weak embrace,
Thy heavenward flight detain?
No angel! seek thy place
Amid yon cherub train."

M. H. TUTTLE.

Hon. D. C. Allen.

David Charles Allen was born August 13, 1834, and died June 2, 1903, aged sixty-eight years, nine months and nineteen days. He was sick a short time, but suffered much. He was educated in Wilmington and at Chapel Hill, reading law under Judge Pearson. He practiced law in Wilmington, and was associated in a law partnership with the late Adam Empire. At that time he was also a member of the Wilmington Light Infantry. When the war came on, he went to the front with the 30th North Carolina Regiment, as Lieutenant, being successively captain, major and colonel. After the war, he settled down on his plantation, near what is now East Arcadia, and remained there till the final summons came.

A few years after the war he represented Brunswick County in two sessions of the Legislature, and was a member of the House of Representatives from Columbus County in 1899 and 1901.

In 1870, he was united in marriage to Miss Jennie Robeson, who, with ten children, survives him. He left one brother, Capt. W. H. Allen, of Wilmington, N. C.

As a husband, he was sympathetic, affectionate, and true. As a father, he loved his children devotedly, instructed them carefully and admonished them kindly. He enjoyed their society, and often joined in their innocent games and merry laughter. The young people loved his company while older friends and acquaintances appreciated his true Christian character.

He was a consistent member of the Methodist Church for several years, filling the offices of steward and Sunday-school superintendent. How he will be missed by the entire community and especially in the little church and Sunday-school at Wayman!

He is gone. No more will we hear his friendly voice; but his influence still lives. Farewell, noble spirit. May we all meet thee again, where pain and death can never come.

A. R. S.

A DROP OF BLOOD

Taken from a person who has for a few months used Vernal Palmettona (formerly known as Vernal Saw Palmetto Berry Wine) is pure and free from taint.

We say a few months, because it takes time to overcome the effect of years of careless living in the matter of diet, sleep and dissipation. This great one dose a day remedy gives quick relief from indigestion, constipation, dyspepsia, headache and all kinds of kidney, liver and stomach trouble, but as the impurities entered the system slowly, so they must be gotten rid of.

Poisons and disease germs creep into the blood through the retention of impure waste matter in the stomach and bowels and through inactive kidneys and a lazy liver. Vernal Palmettona gives gentle aid to the weakened digestive organs. Gradually they gain strength and are finally able to perform their natural functions without any help. When this stage is reached, use a little judgment in what you eat and drink and you will have no more trouble. You'll be able to do twice as much work as before, whether it is done with your hands or brain.

Perhaps you have read this kind of talk before and have found the remedy talked about to be a flat failure in your case. If so, you are prejudiced. Knowing that such a prejudice often exists, we give every one a chance to try Vernal Palmettona before they buy. It is on sale at all leading drug stores, but you can try it free of expense. Write us for a free sample bottle today. It will be promptly sent postpaid. If it does you good, it is easy to step into a drug store and get a full size bottle. The druggist will not try to sell you something else. If he does he is an exception, for druggists know that Vernal Palmettona is the best remedy of its kind in existence. Sabbath Reading.

"Louisa," Fairview, Pa., writes: "We live only once, and I mean to enjoy myself." How often we hear some one make this remark; but does the person who makes it stop to think how much it means? We do live but once, and when that once is over there is no going back and living it over again. This life is only a time of probation, and what we are at the end of our earthly life we will be in eternity. If we are true Christians, when we die we will go to heaven to live with God forever and ever. We should try to live our one life in such a way that we will be ready to go when He does call. It may be in an hour, a week, ten years or fifty years. It is well that we do not know. Supposing you or I should be suddenly called, would our soul be ready to meet its maker? In these days of disaster and accidents we cannot take up a daily paper without reading an account of something horrible which has happened somewhere in the world. In one place five people lost their lives, in another twenty, another fifty or sixty, and in some the list of the dead runs up to hundreds or thousands. The question is, was each one of these people ready when called? A great many do not want to go to some "stuffy old church" on Sunday and listen to a "dry sermon." They say they live only once, and they are going to enjoy themselves. So they take the horse and buggy, the trolley car, the steamboat or the steam car, and go to some place of amusement. They enjoy (?) themselves all day and go home in the evening more tired than if they had worked hard. If we keep the Sabbath day holy, go to church and sing, or hear others sing the most beautiful songs that can be sung, listen to the minister tell us about God, and after the services are over, receive a hearty handshake from the pastor—this does one almost as much good as the sermon—we go home and spend the day quietly. We can read some good book, or visit with someone, and we thank God in our hearts that He has given us a rest day. This is real enjoyment. Many a married woman, instead of doing her duty as she should, goes away from home, leaving her children, if she has any, to take care of themselves, or go to the neighbors to be taken care of. Her husband has to get along the best way he can, and if he remonstrates with her, he gets this answer: "I live only once, and I mean to enjoy myself. I will not make a slave of myself for you or anyone else." Is this what she promised to do when she was married? The wayward girl, who will not mind what she is told, who goes to every party and dance she can, and runs around the streets at night, if she is told or asked to lead a different life, says: "I live only once and I mean to enjoy myself." She keeps on enjoying (?) herself until she either ruins her health or her character, or both. The victims of strong drink enjoy themselves in their way. A great many of them think more of a glass of beer or whiskey than anything else. Their enjoyment usually ends in a drunkard's grave. And the Bible teaches us that no drunkard can enter heaven. Boys, don't let whiskey, beer and cigarettes become your master, master them. And "He shall set the sheep on His right hand, but the goats on His left."—Matt. 25:33. My dear reader, will you and I be set on His right hand or on the left? Let us remember, it will be one of the two. And will hear the King say, "Come, ye blessed of My Father, inherit the Kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world; for I was a hungered and ye gave me drink; I was a stranger, and ye took me in; naked, and ye clothed me; I was sick and ye visited me; I was in prison and ye came unto me. Verily, I say unto you, Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me." Or will we hear Him say these words? "Depart from me, ye cursed, into everlasting fire prepared for the devil and his angels. For I was a hungered, and ye gave me no meat; I was thirsty and ye gave me no drink; I was a stranger and ye took me not in; naked and ye clothed me not; sick and in prison and ye visited me not: Verily, I say unto you, inasmuch as ye did it unto one of the least of these, ye did it not to me. And these shall go away into everlasting punishment, but the righteous into life eternal." On which side will you and I be, dear reader?

"Now, Frankie," said the teacher, kindly, pointing to a word of four letters on the chart, "you know what f-oo-t spells."

Frankie stood still, and remained silent. It was clear that the word was not familiar to him.

"Yes, Frankie, you should know what the word is. What do you have inside your boot?" continued the teacher, suggestively.

"Sock," said Frankie, triumphantly.

Mr. Gaswell, who had come recently into the possession of a considerable fortune, had decided to erect a large office building, and was discussing the plans with an architect.

"As to the floors, now," said the architect, "you would want them in mosaic patterns, I presume?"

"I don't know about that," responded Mr. Gaswell, dubiously scratching his jaw, "I hain't got any prejudices against Moses as a man, and he certainly knowed a good deal about law; but when it comes to laying floors, it kind o' seems to me I'd ruther have them unsectarian like. Don't it strike you that way?"

Prospective Purchaser: "What inducement do you offer if I should buy a dog?"

Canine Dealer: "Why, lady, if you buy a dog I'll learn you how to whistle so you can call him."

Holy Ghost Power.

REV. R. H. WHITAKER.

When Joel said: "And it shall come to pass afterward, that I will pour out my spirit upon all flesh," he uttered a prophecy that has not only been fulfilled in a most remarkable manner, but is being fulfilled continually; and, so long as the world stands, men will realize that, in that prophecy there was to them a promise, that the heavenly Father will give the Holy Spirit to them that ask Him.

Unaided by the Holy Spirit, we, as workers in the Master's vineyard, are impotent; and cannot expect to be otherwise than failures. "Not by might nor by power, but my spirit, saith the Lord," is eternally true; and the sooner all of us realize that, of ourselves, we can do nothing, but, that the Holy Ghost, through us, can accomplish all things, the better it will be for us, and for the success of the gospel as well.

"In the last days I will pour out my Spirit upon all flesh," was a special promise to us, who live in this last day—the day of the Lord—which was ushered in by the preaching of John the Baptist, when he said, "Repent for the kingdom of heaven is at hand." He was the "Voice of one crying in the wilderness, prepare ye the way of the Lord, make his paths straight," and as a special preparation for that special work, he was filled with the Holy Ghost from his mother's womb.

John's baptism with water, at the Jordan, was not only antecedent to, but, it was intended to be typical of, that act of the Father, which was the beginning of the fulfillment of Joel's prophecy. John, as already stated, was prepared for his special work. The angel which appeared unto Zacharias, as he stood by the altar of incense, and announced the future birth of a son, whose name should be called John, also said: "For he shall be great in the sight of the Lord, and shall drink neither wine nor strong drink; and he shall be filled with the Holy Ghost, even from his mother's womb." Which announcement clearly sets forth the doctrine, that, the indwelling of the Holy Ghost was the all-important thing, in John's preparation, for the work which God designed that he should do.

Jesus was about entering upon his great work, but he had not been endued with power; that power which was to be given in fulfillment of Joel's prophecy. Therefore, he came to John to receive that water baptism which was to precede and be a type of the Holy Ghost baptism, that was to follow, when God should begin "to pour out his Spirit upon all flesh."

Christ was himself flesh, and the representative of all flesh; and, up to that point, he had not been endued with divine power. John's baptism did not impart to Him any power; indeed, it was not its design to give power, but to be a type of that baptism which should impart it. John said: "I baptize you with water, but one mightier than I cometh. * * * He shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost and with fire." When Jesus went to John to be baptized, John demurred; but Jesus said: "Suffer it to be so now; for thus it becometh us to fulfill all righteousness."

Jesus meant several things, when He said: "for thus it becometh us to fulfill all righteousness." In the first place, He meant to say, that, "while I am not a sinner, I am the representative of sinners—stand in the place of sinners—therefore, it becometh me to be baptized as a sinner, unto repentance, as though I were a sinner, that the Father may see that I accept the lowly estate of becoming the representative of sinful and degraded rebels."

In the second place, Jesus might have meant, John's baptism with water was necessary in order that the world might behold a type of that baptism, which was soon to follow, when, for the first time, the prophecy of Joel would be fulfilled: "In the last days I will pour out my spirit upon all flesh."

Immediately, therefore, after Jesus had been baptized of John, the Father, seeing that He had submitted to that baptism which ranked him among sinners, and, at the same time, typified that prophetic promise, "I will pour out my Spirit upon all flesh," the windows of heaven were opened, and down came the Holy Ghost, in the shape of a dove, and lighted on Jesus; and, at the same moment, a voice from heaven said: "This is my beloved Son in whom I am well pleased." Thus, for the first time, was fulfilled a prophecy that had been standing for eight hundred years; and thus, for the first time, was Jesus filled with the Holy Ghost. Luke says (4:1) "And Jesus being full of the Holy Ghost returned from Jordan, and was led by the Spirit into the wilderness. Being forty days tempted of the devil."

In a moment of time, as it were, Jesus, the Son of Mary, who, aforetime, had no power, was filled with the Holy Ghost, being able to successfully resist and to overcome temptations that were prolonged for forty days and nights in the wilderness. The prophecy entitled him to that power; but, before it was bestowed, he must prove to the Father that He was worthy of it; and this He did by submitting Himself to John's baptism.

Now, Jesus is a baptizer; and He like the Father, is to baptize with the Holy Ghost, which Holy Ghost baptism was typified in John's baptism. John said: "I baptize you with water;" "He shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost."

But Christ did not baptize while He remained here with us; nor was any one baptized in the name of the Father, Son and Holy Ghost until after Christ did baptize on the day of Pentecost, as John said He would, "with the Holy Ghost and with fire."

I am so glad that Jesus, after His resurrection, and just before His ascension, made His last talk to His disciples concerning that old prophetic promise of Joel. He said: "Behold I send the promise of my Father upon you; but tarry ye in the city of Jerusalem until ye be endued with power from on high." The promise of my Father is: "I will pour out my Spirit upon all flesh." "But that spirit, His words implied, will not be poured out upon you until you are ready to receive it. It was poured out upon me, by the Father when, and not until, I had fulfilled all the requirements. Tarry ye in the city; I will send the promise of my Father upon you, and then shall ye be endued with power, from on high, as I was when old Joel's promise was poured out upon me."

Doubtless the disciples thought it strange, they having been witnesses of all that Jesus had said and done, that they were not permitted to go out at once and begin to preach. "Why may we not preach? Have we not seen all His miracles and heard all His blessed discourses, and seen His tender and loving ministrations; giving sight to the blind, fleetness to the lame, hearing to the deaf, healing to the leper and even life to the dead? Surely we know enough of Him to preach at once. Why should we waste time in the city of Jerusalem?"

Poor bigoted moratals, we are, thinking we can do holy work in our strength! How many of us would do better work if we would but tarry awhile until the baptism comes. They waited. He said He would send the promise of the Father, if they would tarry in the city: "John verily baptized you," He said, "with water; but ye shall be baptized with the Holy Ghost, not many days hence." "And ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you."

With one accord they were in one place, waiting and trusting in the promises made to them, by the Master when, lo, as a mighty rushing wind, the baptism came, and they were all filled with the Holy Ghost. Such a scene as ensued had never before been witnessed on earth. Everybody began to shout and praise the Lord; and, they did so many strange things, somebody suggested that they surely must have been drinking new wine, intimating that they were drunk.

But Peter, standing up with the eleven, lifted up his voice and said: "These men are not drunken, as ye suppose. * * * But this is that which was spoken by the prophet Joel: "And it shall come to pass in the last days, saith God, I will pour out of my Spirit upon all flesh."

And then Peter went on to explain the whole matter, telling how Christ, after death had been raised up, whereof they were all witnesses; and finally reached this climax: "Therefore," (Jesus) "being by the right hand of God exalted, and having received of the Father the promise of the Holy Ghost, he hath shed forth this, which ye now see and hear." By which I understand Peter to mean, that, Jesus having received the anointing of the Holy Ghost, at the Jordan, as was prophesied by Joel, and being exalted at the right hand of God, this, which ye do now see and hear, is the baptism to which John referred, when he said, "He shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost and with fire;" and the fulfillment of the promise Jesus made to His disciples: "I will send the promise of my Father upon you."

I need not tell the reader how successfully the Apostles preached after Jesus had baptized them; three thousand being convérted in a day, and five thousand soon added to the church: but, will venture to make this final remark, that the baptism of the Holy Ghost is just as necessary now as then, and that that baptism can be had for the asking. "If ye being evil know how to give good gifts unto your children, how much more will the Heavenly Father give the Holy Ghost to them that ask him?"

If our meetings are failures, sinners are not converted, and the churches are not revived, the reason is obvious: the Holy Ghost is not with us. And why? Shall I write it? Because we do not ask the Heavenly Father. In an agony of earnestness we should sing, as well as pray:

"Come Holy Spirit Heavenly Dove,
With all thy quickening powers;
Kindle a flame of sacred love,
In these cold hearts of ours."

The Living Christ.

C. F. SHERRILL.

The question of all questions with us is our characters. Circumstances without and conscience within help mold character. The personal spiritual presence and power of the Son is necessary to Christian character. This world was not made for pleasure, or fame, or fortune. Things here are so uncertain. This strange world was made for something greater. Character abides. We carry with us to another realm what we are.

* * *

This world is not for worldliness. Mutation and change stamped on all earthly things cry out against worldliness. This life cannot be properly or prosperously lived without Christ. What shall we say, then, of the other life? The Lord of all will be as much needed there as here.

* * *

While life's uncertainties teach us not to rest our faith in the seen and temporal, they are yet proper conditions for the formation of character. By this discipline we become more patient and reposeful. They teach us to look to the abiding Truth.

* * *

Christ is the solution of our problems. We find light in Him. He answers the soul's quest for happiness. In Him the soul's faith finds its answer. "Thou hast the words of eternal life." This is as true in America as in Caesarea Philippi. "In him was life, and the life was the light of men." He who lives the Christ-life will find a light shining on his path. Christ answers the soul's search for God.

* * *

"My soul is athirst for God." David was the poet laureate under God of the human heart. The cry of his soul is that of ours. We were made by God, and can never rest until we rest in Him. The human heart yearns for a personal Friend and Father. This yearning is an index to the nobility of the soul. No man ought to renounce the thirst of the soul for God. To renounce here is to renounce our true self.

* * *

To bid man be satisfied with less than God is to bid him deny his true dignity and nature. The soul reaching out for the Infinite is not a sign of its littleness but its greatness.

* * *

False religions represent man as seeking some unknown and dreaded power. The religion of Christ represents God as seeking man. Man finds God in Christ, and God finds man in Christ. Jesus is God's way to man and man's way to God.

* * *

Christ has changed the moral climate of the world. The warm sunshine of His love has melted the cold iciness of paganism and blind fate. Jesus is in the thought and language of men. A thousand outward evidences testify to the historic Christ. The crowning evidence, though, of a living Christ is Christ living in the heart.

"He is his own best evidence,
His interest is within."

* * *

Senator Hill, of Georgia, bequeathed to his children "the Christian religion as the most valuable legacy." This is one legacy we can bequeath and still have. The more we give of the living Christ to others, the more we have of Him.

Advice to the Ministers.

Sensible is the minister who will give welcome to advice from those who are competent to bestow it. There are very many pastors who resent the offering to them of advice from any source, especially if the advice consist in an effort to correct some specific fault in speech or manner. Such pastors rebel against fine opportunities for necessary improvement. It is sometimes humiliating to a self-opinionated minister to have pointed out to him a blunder in speech, but self-humbling is one condition of true progress. Pastors tell others of their faults, and sometimes they do so in very plain language; why should not the same pastors kindly receive correction of their own faults?

The editor of the Western Christian Advocate says:

"We once had a parishioner who was a 'fiend' on 'three thousand words often mispronounced,' and occasionally we thought that all he heard of the sermon was the words we bungled on. But we owe him a debt which we gladly acknowledge. It is not pleasant, of course, to be brought to face the unpalatable fact that we are not perfect, but we ought to take our medicine with a smiling face. Which friend ought a minister to prefer: one who is always congratulatory and assuring him that he is 'all right,' or one who not to indulge captious fault-finding, but desiring to help the pastor he loves to be a more competent minister of the gospel, to preach more effectively by overcoming some little things that—out of all proportion to their importance—may be hindering his influence and message, speaks a candid word now and then? The latter, surely, if a man has any 'saving common sense' and wants really to make the most of himself." Yes, and the minister who does make the most of himself, also makes the most of the critical advice which he receives, even though some of it come in a rather blunt manner. I have frequently yearned to give some helping advice to certain pastors whose faults in speech were conspicuous, but have hesitated to do so because of the offense that would probably have been taken if I had done so. And yet, even though we may believe that offense will be given, it may be our duty to venture a correction of faults that are harming the pastor.

There have been pastors who, though at first they manifested irritability in being corrected, were afterwards very glad of such a service. A true friend wants to do all he can to increase his pastor's power. C. H. WETHERBE.

Woman's Christian Association, 1814 Washington Avenue.

An appeal for co-operation of Christian women for the protection of young women, especially for those ambitious for employment in our city during the "World's Fair."

The Women's Christian Association of St. Louis are aware of the fact that plausible people are secured to bring young women to our city with assurance of any employment they desire being in waiting for them (but one idea is theirs—Ruin). To in any degree meet this monster, all must unite in a general protective plan, if by any peradventure we may save a few of the many tempted by alluring promises.

You ask, how can we co-operate. One effective way is to organize a Travelers' Aid, where there is none, by one of two ways. First, by appointing a committee for this serviee in one of your local organizations, to be known as "Travelers' Aid Committee." (This name is emphasized to prevent confusion among workers).

The other plan is to organize by selecting a woman of your place for president, who has a heart for the work and ability to lead; also a capable secretary and treasurer. Add others for your committee work who should be a safeguard for young women. This form of work can be organized in one church or by all uniting. This appeal is made to unify the protective forces that may be promptly available.

If any of your young women have been induced by a stranger to visit or seek employment in St. Louis, during the Exposition, sound the note of alarm. There is danger. Let every young woman, unattended by a friend, see to it: First, that she has money enough with her for an emergency and safe return home. Second, know from a reliable source her destination here is safe before she leaves home. Third, depend upon herself and officials on the railroad for information concerning trains. Any added intelligence necessary reserve for "Travelers' Aid," referred to in following paragraph:

One of your committee should be at the railroad station at train time. As your introduction of any young woman leaving for St. Louis, to the representative of the "Travelers' Aid" here, pin a knot of blue ribbon on her waist, left side, and instruct her to find a woman in the waiting room at Union Station who wears a blue badge with "Travelers' Aid of Women's Christian Association, St. Louis," printed on it in gold letters. They are to be found at above place at the time of incoming and outgoing trains.

The Women's Christian Association will be willing to be interrogated by letter or telegram, and do all in their power to save. But, remember, the greatest success must be with you, where the numbers are so much less than in St. Louis at this time.

Hoping this appeal may be promptly approved and this work inaugurated, by which effort many may be saved from a fate worse than death, we subscribe ourselves.

Yours in Christian service,

WOMAN CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

Religion in Our State Schools.

The Christians in North Carolina pay most of the money to run these schools, and have a right to know what they are doing for the souls of our young people.

At Chapel Hill for over a hundred years the faculty and students have met for morning prayer. Many of the professors are earnest church workers. The oldest one teaches a student Sunday-school class in the College chapel. The President and one professor teach student classes in the Presbyterian church. Three professors teach classes in the Missionary Baptist church. Dr. Raper has a large student class in our Methodist Sunday-school. The students have about ten classes among themselves in the University. The Y. M. C. A. runs four country Sunday-schools. A. D. BETTS.

Dear Dr. Ivey:—We have just closed a great meeting at South Mills. The meeting was held by Rev. E. C. Glenn, and it was indeed one of the very best meetings it has ever been my pleasure to attend. First of all, it was great in spiritual power. Brother Glenn began the meeting by preaching directly to church members. He told us what it takes to constitute a Christian life. What we must be in order to be saved. Then what we must do in order to keep saved. After services continued till the church seemed to get right, and power descended from heaven, and shouts were heard in the camp. Many, whose lives were not right with God, gave up their sins and were greatly blessed. At the beginning of the meeting we only had two members who would pray in public, but daily recruits were added, till about every male member and many of the ladies were willing to lead in prayer, or do any other work they could. Results in this were wonderful. Again, it was great, because of the number saved, we cannot tell how many, because we believe that many of the church members were saved, as well as many of those who were not members of any church. There were 17 additions to the Methodist church, and seven to the Baptist, but I am certain that as many more were converted. Some of these were heads of families.

It was a great meeting because of the interest it has left in the hearts of the people. The Sunday-school has grown a good deal and much of this growth was among heads of families. Religion seems to be the topic of the day.

Last, but not least, it was a great meeting, because of the preaching done. Brother Glenn is indeed a great preacher, and a sound preacher, and a plain, practical preacher. Any child can understand him, while the most intelligent will listen with intense interest. I wish his sermon on Regeneration could be preached in every church in our land. Perfect harmony prevailed among Baptist and Methodist, and the Baptist church was strengthened almost or quite as much as ours. It was a feast for all.

Another item of good news is that on the 1st of July, the whiskey shops will close in South Mills, to open no more. This was brought about by Mr. J. W. Taylor, a saloon keeper, who became convinced that the whiskey traffic is a curse to any community, and therefore joined me in the prohibition fight. He drew up a petition to the County Commissioners and circulated it among his friends, and then I took it, and today we have the name of every voter in South Mills, except six, asking that no more license be granted. This makes all the counties east of Chowan, free from saloons. Let us thank God and take courage.

Pray that we may live better and do more.

Yours in Christ,

W. E. HOCUTT.

Murfreesboro.

Dear Dr. Ivey:—I have been thinking for some time about writing concerning our work here. It was my pleasure to serve for the past three years some as good Methodists as are found anywhere, and it was with some degree of reluctance that I parted with them. But my lot this year has been cast among a most excellent people. Our people are loyal to their church and seem to have a deep spirituality. We are not troubled with much worldliness in the church. My people have very kindly received me, and I love them all. It is my great desire to serve them in every possible way.

Our Presiding Elder, Bro. G. F. Smith, has been with us and preached once. Our people are delighted with him. He seems to be the right man for Presiding Elder.

Nearly all our people take the Advocate, and I trust those who do not will decide to do so soon.

The Ladies' Aid Society has been very kind to the preacher in neatly furnishing his room with a carpet and other things that were needed. It makes a preacher's heart rejoice to have such kindness bestowed upon him.

Dr. Ivey, we would be glad to have you come and preach for us. We would delight you with good music, and I am sure you would delight us with a good sermon. We are praying for and expecting a happy and prosperous year in our work.

Woman's Work.

Darning little stockings, for little restless feet,
Mending little aprons, to keep them clean and neat,
Washing little faces, and kissing tears away,
Brushing out the ringlets that tangle every day.

Picking out the splinters, tying up the toes,
In the land of babyhood there are many woes;
Filling hungry mouths with something nice to eat,
Chasing back the shadows from faces fair and sweet.

Finding little caps, soothing aching heads,
Telling them a story, putting them to bed;
Sewing on the buttons, tying up the shoes.
This is happy work to drive away the blues.

Hearing little lessons, teaching words of prayer,
Guiding infant minds to heaven and Jesus there,
Holding up the weak, urging on the strong.
Pointing out the right, frowning on the wrong.

Leading on their footsteps, teaching youthful hearts
To work and live for Jesus, in life to do their part;
Still onward leading, guiding, the battle is not o'er,
But e'en till manhood, woman, this is thy work and more.

Carteret Charge.

Dear Dr. Ivey:—Well, our Quarterly Meeting is over. We had exhorted the brethren to either fast on Friday before, as the discipline requires, or to abstain, and we have reasons to believe that many of the brethren complied.

Our Quarterly Meeting was attended with great success. Dr. Swindell preached with unusual spiritual power, and all seemed charmed with the preaching. The sacrament was attended with the presence of the Holy Spirit, and we had a good time. The next Quarterly Meeting will be held in the new church—Bethel—at the Quaker grave-yard, near Beaufort, N. C.

We hope to raise every cent of our collections this year so as to report all the collections in full—in excess if possible. We have not been pounded since we have been on this charge, but the many expressions of kindness of these good people are too numerous to mention here. These people don't pound, but they do better—their good things abound to their pastor, and more so this year than any of the three previous years of my ministry here, or any other charge that I've served, as for that. May the good Lord make me a great blessing to these people is my prayer.

I hear many words of praise for the "Old Raleigh" on the work. I'm working for the paper, and you may be sure that I will get a new subscriber here and there, and sometimes where I had least thought of getting one.

We are organizing all our Sabbath Schools into Mission Societies.

Yours in Christ,

Wilson.

My Dear Bro. Ivey:—Surely the hand of severe affliction has been laid upon me since last I saw you. I have been down in the vale of pain and sorrow. For nearly six weeks I have been upon a bed of sickness. Sleepless nights and days of sorrow have been my portion. First taken with la grippe, I suffered intensely, then the surgeon's knife was used to afford me the needed relief, and until recently I have been suffering more than tongue can express. But a greater sorrow awaited me. Our dear little infant son (Edwin Glenn), which came to us, died last Sunday evening. God gave it to our keeping but a few short hours, and then its sinless spirit winged its flight back to the home of the good and blessed, where it will await the coming of mamma and papa in the sweet sometime when life's cares and sorrows are over. We laid the little body to rest in the silent city of the dead yesterday afternoon, there to await the Saviour's call to come forth to a blessed immortality. In my deep sorrow I have tried to be submissive and, though my heart is bleeding and body suffering pain, I can say in all earnestness, "Thy will, not mine, be done." In all my afflictions I have much to be thankful for. Kind friends administered to our every need, and extended that sympathy and aid so comforting to hearts stricken with grief and distress. I feel thankful that though my recovery is not usually slow, I have the assurance of the good doctors, Messrs Moore, Anderson and Dickinson, of the Sanatorium, who so faithfully attended me, that I shall be in better health than for years, which will enable me to prosecute my work here with greater energy and vigor than ever before. Dear brother, there is a large field before me; the harvest is ripening, and I am praying for a glorious outpouring of God's spirit and the conversion of scores and hundreds of precious immortal souls. The prospects are that good men and women are becoming serious about their eternal welfare, and are asking that prayers be offered at a throne of grace in their behalf.

Pray that my heart may be made to rejoice in leading souls to Christ, and that I may forget my own sorrows in doing good to others. The blessing of our heavenly Father abide with you.

Siler City Circuit.

Dear Dr. Ivey:—I see it reported in the Nashville Advocate that this writer fell and broke his thigh. This is a mistake. On February 20th, by a misstep, I broke the inside bone of the right leg just above the ankle. The ankle more or less disjointed. I have suffered very little pain at any time, and am, I think, doing finely.

I have arranged to fill all my appointments the third Sunday, and hope by the fourth Sunday to tighten the traces for Mount Vernon for the 11 o'clock service and back to Siler City at night.

I am learning the meaning of "enforced rest," and can say truthfully, it is a hard lesson; to me especially, as I am not used to it. During my whole ministry, to the time of my recent misfortune, I have missed but four Sabbaths from sickness or hurt. For this I am profoundly thankful, and hope soon be at work.

My people, as ever, have been very kind, and I can but hope that this may be the best year of the four that I have served them.

If my memory is not at fault, I never began a year's work in better health, and I am sure I never had a more earnest desire to render the best possible service for the salvation of souls and the glory of God. While confined I can pray, think, study, and I shall be happier when I am able to meet my people and tell them what I have been thinking about. In the meantime, I am not discouraged nor cast down, but patient and hopeful.

With greetings of love to all, I ask them to pray for me, and by God's help we shall win in the great battle for righteousness and heaven.

Let us ask God for enlarged success in the North Carolina Conference, and to this end let each preacher cultivate his own field faithfully. The impulse is strong to write more, but I must stop or I may not see this in print.

Trinity Notes.

The Science Club held its monthly meeting Saturday evening, March 5th. The Executive Committee of the Association, which makes arrangements for the program, consists of Profs. W. H. Pegram and C. W. Edwards. The secretary of the club is Mr. Julian Blanchard. The program of the last meeting was:

1. Some recent developments in transportation.
2. Disintegration of radio-active substances.
3. A note on the series alternating current motor.

The literary societies will hold a preliminary contest next Saturday evening to select representatives for an inter-society debate to be held in May.

Arrangements are being made to erect more seats on the athletic field. The base-ball team is hard at work, and promises to be a very fine one.

The catalogue for 1903-1904 is being prepared and will soon be ready for distribution.

The Junior Class has elected Mr. Julian Blanchard, of Hertford, N. C., editor of the Archive for next year, and Mr. M. E. Newsom, Jr., of Littleton, N. C., business manager. The Archive is issued by the Senior Class, and the officers elected by the present Junior Class will take charge at the close of the present academic year. The assistants are selected by the editor and manager. The present editorial staff has conducted the Archive with great ability, and the Senior Class deserves great credit for the success which the Archive has achieved under their management.

A Layman's View.

Dear Dr. Ivey:—In reply to your suggestion, I want to say in reference to "Uncle Betts," that he was once my pastor, and the bonds of love then sealed still remain. He has never forgotten the covenant then entered into with my people.

He is emphatically a seed-sower, and though results may not always appear, eternity will reveal the good he has done. I have seen him under different circumstances, even surrounded by sin—and why should not a preacher go where sin is?—yet he never forgot his Master's business. He does a great deal of personal work, and it would be well to remember, that however indifferent one may appear, often beneath there is a soul hungry for some word of encouragement.

Sincerely, M. MIAL.

District Conference Notes.

The Durham District Conference, as I have before published in the Advocate, will convene in Graham at 9 a. m. the 24th of this month. This writing is to urge every member of the Conference to go on Wednesday, and every pastor to report his work in writing Thursday morning. Then we can truly confer together, and have time for full discussion.

Glad, Mr. Editor, that you will be with us.

The Silent Pastor.

The religious paper is a silent pastor. The editor does not ring the door-bell and wait for some one to ask him in, take his hat, and to invite him into the parlor and to a seat. He does not meet each member of the household, shake hands, and ask about the health of each, and report how the folks are at home. He enters like an invisible spirit, or is received as a bundle from the postman, to be opened at pleasure, and examined by each one at any time, morning noon, or night. His communications and instructions are given to the whole family together, or to one or more at a time, in the parlor, the dining-room, the kitchen, or the bed-room. When the family have received all he has to communicate, and are so edified and pleased as to desire him to visit some distant friend, he will go to the post-office and into the mail, and visit another family and repeat everything to all that can hear or read.

What he has to communicate is very interesting and profitable. It has respect to Christian doctrine and duty, the meaning of the Scriptures, church history and Christian work, missions and Sabbath schools, temperance and the Sabbath, literature, education, art, science and government, vice and sin, and whatsoever is useful in this life and that which is to come. Every wise head of a family should welcome his visits. Whoso shuts him out does his own soul an injury and denies his family knowledge, culture, and the bread of life.—Herald and Presbyter.

The Singing of Br'er Williams.

Br'er Williams come to meetin' des ez sollum ez kin be,

En he keeps time ter de music: Side ter side he shake his head,
En his voice rock all de rafters en de tiptop er de shed!

'Peared lak dat "Free Salvation" made de soul er him rejoice;
You couldn't hear de organ fer de bass drum er his voice!
He ecafened all de angels 'tother side de Jasper Sea,

But w'en dey pass de hat aroun'—de organ pealin' deep—
Br'er Williams couldn't see it: he wus allus fas' asleep!
En "Here's de hat, Br'er Williams; rouse up yo' sleepin' soul!
En ain't you got a dollar fer de los' sheep er de fol' ?"

But he never wake 'tewell after de collection time wus done,
W'en he say: "My soul been lighted wid de Halleluia Sun!
De singin' er dat ol' song do my soul sich good, you see,
I sleeps, en dreams er Paradise, whar all salvation's free!"

The Blessings of Darkness.

Glory may grow out of affliction. Every trial, every sorrow, every cross, has for the righteous soul a compensating element of good. And there are blessings which can come to us in no other way than through the toils, conflicts, self-denials and even bereavements which make up life's affliction. It was only in the fiery furnace that the Hebrew youth could see "the Form of the Fourth." That Form, brighter than the flame, made the furnace more glorious than a regal palace. Only in the den of wild beasts or in the prison does Daniel or Peter find the angelic messengers powerful to shut the lion's mouth or strong to break the chain of captivity and open the iron door. Only amid the frowning hills of Bethel, when his weary head was on the pillow of stone, could Jacob see the ladder reaching to the opening skies, thronged with radiant angels. Only from desolate, seagirt, rocky Patmos could John catch glimpses of the gates of pearl which swing open to the paradise of God. When hunted like a partridge, when surrounded by foes who were driving him to battle, or when smitten by the chastisement of Providence, David's soul quivered with strongest emotion and woke the mighty harp of Israel to its sublimest themes. John Henry Newman wrote "Lead, kindly light" when his spirit was depressed with loneliness and homesickness while on a dreary voyage, and Tennyson's greatest poem, "In Memoriam," comes to us baptized with the tears of his greatest sorrow in the loss of Hallam. Bunyan's great dream doubtless came to him in Bedford jail and Dante's "Divine Comedy" was sung in exile. Goldsmith wrote his finest lines to keep away hunger and the sheriff. And it may be doubted whether "starry-minded Milton" had ever finished his magnificent epic had he not gone blind. In the darkness may come our finest inspirations and our noblest thoughts. We may dream our happiest dream in the dungeon. From the stony pillar we may behold the gleaming ladder against the sky, and from Patmos' crags, which bruise our feet, sweet paradise may bless our sight. The truest prayer or song that ever came out of the heart, the prayer or song that has added beauty to the life and nobility to the soul, has been evoked by sorrow, like fragrance crushed from roses or the incense touched with fire.

Our sorrows give us such a glimpse of human friendship that they seem to form but the cloudy background for Kindness to paint its genial features on and work thereon its bow of hope and promise. One can almost afford to be ill for the kind inquiries that are made of him and the good wishes that are sent. I do not believe waiting until people are dying or dead before saying good things about their virtues. But many a person never loved humanity worthily until, in his bereavement, he found how kind and generous and sympathetic his neighbors were. When death threw its sable wing over the home and the people said such gentle things about the dead and such hopeful things, it was not so dark, a ray of kindly light broke in and the afflicted will carry with them the memory of that kindness and sympathy as long as they carry the memory of their grief. The child, frightened by the thunder and the blackness of the gathering storms, runs to mother; her smile and song assure and quiet him and he will remember mother's face and voice as long as he remembers the storm, yet would he be willing to hear the thunder again for a chance to hear that mother sing. There is compensation somewhere that gives value to every trial. The seamen of Galilee would be willing to have the storm rage again if they could hear Jesus say, "Peace, be still." The three weary apostles would gladly climb the mount again in the night to witness a transfiguration, and the man restored to sight would almost be willing to go blind again to have the great Physician open his eyes and to feel the thrill of that life-giving touch. So there are men and women who would be willing again to pass through any affliction which they have experienced for the good which they are wise enough to see has come to them through it in the past. David said, "It is good for me that I have been afflicted." The time comes in the experience of the good man when he can look back and recognize the beneficial character of what he may once have called his bad luck, his misfortune, a calamity, a disaster, life's affliction and God's chastening. Many a man never knew the value of divine grace nor appreciated his religion until he passed through trials and temptations. You do not have to ask about the staunchness of a ship that has sailed through a hundred storms. You do not have to test the temper of a sword that has fought a hundred battles. You do not have to examine the soundness of the walls that have stood a hundred cannonadings and baffled a hundred fierce assaults. And the religion which comes to man's help in every affliction, which comforts him in sorrow, encourages him in his trial, helps him bear his burden, conquer his temptations, subdue his passions and dispel his doubts and fears, needs no defense of logic or eloquence; its very helpfulness is its defense and in that is the proof of its divinity. So if affliction gives us a better knowledge of human kindness and a clearer, more positive proof of God's providence and of the divine nature of the gospel, it works out for us a good against which gold would weigh as nothing in the balance.

Then, many will confess that they did not actually know themselves until they had been brought to the test by some baekset or some conflict. I have known men and women, possessing a fear of death which they could not shake off, to be brought to the very portals of the unseen world and finally restored with the old fear gone. Their faith was stronger, their hope was brighter than they knew, and, ever after, the brightest spot in all the past was that long and severe illness which demonstrated the genuineness of their religious experience. Affliction of another sort, reverses of fortune, loss of wealth, the death of friends and, still more trying, the ill-treatment of their fellowmen, calumny and misrepresentation, have come upon persons with a force which they never supposed they had strength and grace enough to bear. But they found themselves battling manfully against their adverse circumstances with a patience, courage, faith and hope of which they never before knew themselves to be possessed. They did not lose their temper and become bitter, but remained sweet, dignified and manly. They grew mild, gentle and considerate; not resentful and unforgiving. Until affliction comes we may not, as Longfellow says:

"Know how sublime a thing it is To suffer and be strong."

—Rev. Frank M. Bristol, D. D., in "The Religious Instinct of Man."

Filial Faith.

On reaching home one evening, tired and somewhat dispirited, my little girl brought me her copy-book, which she had just completed. It was her first, and the young face reddened with a beautiful and honest flush, for she knew as she turned over the pages some little word of praise and cheer would reward her hard attempt. The pages were very neatly written, and I told her what a pleasure it was to see how careful she had been. Presently we came to one on which were two small blots. As she turned the page her little hand was laid upon them, and, looking up into my face with an artlessness which was beautiful, she said: "Papa, don't see the blots!" Of course I did not see them, but I bent down and kissed the little forehead, and was thankful for the lesson I had learned. How precious it would be if, amid all the nameless strifes and discords which so fret and chafe us, we would just lay the finger on the sullied page of human lives, and not "see the blots!" When littlenesses and meannesses and pretty oppositions annoy and vex us, if we could only look away from these to some brighter pages! In all our bleared and blotted books there are some "leaves of healing." And when on bended knee we bring the day's poor purposes and poorer performances to the great Father, and say, "Forgive us our trespasses," let it be with the soft undertone of the child's filial faith, "Father, do not see the blots."—Christian Advocate (Nashville).

People Who Die Smiling.

A. L. O. E. went to India after she was fifty years old, and immediately set herself to learn the language, that she might be able to engage in mission work. It proved a dieaffilt task for the brave old lady, and though she never showed any discouragement, her friends in England wrote privately to ask if there was any chance of her mastering the language sufficiently to become useful. "She is useful now," was the answer: "her bright smile puts hope into our hearts and wins the hearts of the natives to feel confidence in us."

It is doubtful if A. L. O. E. ever knew of that reply; but in one of her letters is a sentence that fits in right here. In telling of the peaceful death of a native Christian she dwells upon the rapturous smile the dying believer wore. "I have seen many deathbeds in my long life," she said, "but I never saw anybody except a Christian die smiling."

Is it not true that nobody has any reason to smile, in life or in death, except those to whom "the Wonderful" has said, "Let not your heart be troubled?"—Selected.

What To-day Tells of To-morrow.

We sometimes ask ourselves if we shall be willing to die, or should we be willing to live in hopeless suffering, or should we be willing to put the fire to our darling ambitions? It is easy to answer such questions. We determine the future by the present. If to-day we do to-day's duty, to-morrow we shall be able to do to-morrow's duty. If to-day we are willing to have hard duties laid on us, to-morrow we shall not decline to-morrow's hard work. If to-day we are willing to live for God, on some to-morrow we shall be willing to die for Him. To-day we do not receive dying grace, for God does not call us to death. To-day He calls us to life, and therefore He gives us living grace. To-morrow, He will call us to death, and to-morrow He will give dying grace.—Exchange.

SUFFERED A THOUSAND DEATHS

Five Physicians had done their best to cure James Wilkes, of Dillon, S. C., who had one of the most terrible cases of RHEUMATISM on record. They all failed until one doctor prescribed—

Rheumacide

IT CURED HELPLESS CRIPPLE.

Mr. Wilkes writes in the course of a long letter, dated August 18, 1902:

"My legs were drawn back until my feet touched my hips. I was as helpless as a baby for nearly 12 months. The muscles of my arms and legs were hard and shriveled up. I suffered death many times over. Was treated by six different physicians in McColl, Dillon and Marion, but none of them could do me any good, until Dr. J. P. Ewing, of Dillon, told me to try your RHEUMACIDE. I began to take it, and before the first bottle was used up I began to get better. I used 5½ bottles and was completely cured."

Dr. J. P. Ewing confirms Mr. Wilkes' statement in every particular.

Officers of the W. F. M. S. of the N. C. Conference, June, 1903-'04.

President—Mrs. Lucy A. Cunninggim, Greensboro, N. C
Vice-President—Mrs. R. A. Willis, Littleton, N. C.
Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. F. D. Swindell, Goldsboro, N. C.
Recording Secretary—Miss Blanche Fentress, Wilmington, N. C.
Treasurer—Mrs. B. B. Adams, Four Oaks, N. C.
Superintendent and Treasurer Juvenile Work—Mrs. L. M. Hendren, New Berne, N. C.

The regular monthly meeting of Edenton Street Auxiliary was held last Monday afternoon. All the officers were re-elected. There was a large attendance of members, and the meeting was a spiritual and financial success. After the routine business had been conducted, in which our faithful Treasurer, Mrs. V. Royster, reported every cent due for the whole year had been paid in, a supplication for "a clearer consciousness of faith and a more abiding faith," was led by Mrs. Battis in a very earnest manner, thus closing—with new-made vows of faithfulness during the present year—a most enjoyable and profitable meeting.

It seems that the first note of "alarms" sounded by our Conference Treasurer, Mrs. Adams, and followed later by the same from our Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Swindell, has rung out along the ranks of our Auxiliaries, and have put all in the attitude of "attention," serious and determined; and it is gratifying to know that good results are already being reported.

May these "bugle notes" continue to sound in our ears during the whole of this year, causing us to keep "regular step" in every duty and obligation.

One of the District Secretaries sends in good, cheering news. Listen:

Dear Mrs. Dixon:—After making out my Annual Report, I felt so encouraged and happy over the work done in the Wilmington District for the year, that I want you to tell the good news in our Department in the Advocate, that all who love the cause may know it and rejoice with me.

We have raised $5.87 more than the pledge for this District. Collections show an increase of $202.22 over last year. Our Auxiliaries are in good condition, and we are hopeful that others will be organized during this year.

Let us thank God for such good results.

Yours truly,
MRS. J. N. GIBBONS,
District Secretary.

We have heard from but this one of the nine District Secretaries—where are the eight?

In response to a request that Rev. W. B. Lee give our column something bearing on the women's work in Brazil, he was kindly given us the following:

Dear Mrs. Dixon:—I promised to give you a few points about the work of the W. F. M. B. for Bello-Horizante, Minus, Brazil.

This new city is the new capital of the State. It has a population of about 8,000. The conditions are peculiarly favorable to the establishing of the Gospel.

Everybody is new in the place. There have come people from all parts of the State and from outside, so that social sets and rings are yet not very clearly established. The limitations that are placed upon social relations in older places are all lacking here. The Catholic church has been slow to follow up this state of things and conserve its forces. An order of teaching sisters has opened a school there, but many prominent people have spoken to our pastor, asking him to use his influence to bring our women there, and pledging their support.

We can expect a reasonable support from the outside, but our own people there are in great need of a school.

This school is so far away from the Isabel Hendrix that there could be no conflict of interests.

Our people there have been begging for a school for four years. They had a small school once, but had to give it up.

These are not, however, the chief considerations that present to me the great need of a school at the capital now.

A few years ago the city gave our church a whole block in a very desirable location. It contains 11,736 square yards. To hold this property we contracted to put up three buildings—a residence, a church, a school. The first is completed; about half the money raised for the church. The property must be held. All the buildings will be needed to carry on the work at the capital. The women have been contemplating the opening of work there some time.

Now, it seems to us that if our sisters would put up a building on this lot that it would be much wiser than renting. The proposition is very simple. You are going to the capital. You must build or rent. Your rents will be at least $1,000 a year. In ten years you will have spent money enough to put up the building our contract calls for, and you will not have a brick-bat to show for it. Now, spend this amount at the beginning of the ten years in a building on a fine property that our church wants to hold, and at the end of the period you have a permanent school property, and have done with rents forever at the capital.

I hope you will stir your sisters up on this subject, and do something.

Yours truly,
W. B. LEE.

Sprin .

The beautiful resurrection season has come again. Nature will soon be dressed in "living green." Even the thought is vivifying, and I trust the sisters throughout the Conference are feeling fresh interest and forming new plans. We are beginning a new fiscal year; let us unite hearts and wills and determine to make it the best in our history so far.

To the Country Auxiliaries.

I shall now look eagerly for news from the Auxiliaries in the country. Who will be the first to cheer me? I wish I could help you to fully realize the importance of your efforts, for you not only accomplish much in your own vicinity, but many of you are an inspiration to us in the towns.

Rejoice that you can now meet together again and take up work where you left off, especially the Auxiliaries that have disbanded. In my reports to our Board Superintendent, I am glad to tell her that I send communications to the disbanded Societies. Sisters, we cannot give you up—will you not reorganize at once?

An Iowa Auxiliary.

I have read of a country Auxiliary in Iowa that is ten years old and has failed to hold only seven meetings, and then because of severe storms. There are thirty-two members and $500.00 has been raised; think of the solid comfort this represents; also try to comprehend the reflex gain from Christian fellowship and sympathetic communion.

What the women of Iowa have done others can do, and this is the time to arrange for all-day meetings, to thoroughly perfect missionary plans. District Secretaries, we hope you will use and improve these delightful opportunities.

Smithfield Juvenile Home Missionary Society.

Miss Ida Galloway is the first Corresponding Secretary from the Juvenile Societies who has written to me, and her letter is so admirable and so full of beautiful promise, I take great pride in publishing it in our column:

"I received the February items with your message, which I read at our last meeting. Our Lady Manager told us about the items, but hereafter I want to do this myself.

"This Society has been going on a few years, but only local work has been done. In January it was reorganized into a Juvenile Home Mission Society. We have twenty-three members, and have had two meetings, with an average attendance of fifteen. We sent $2.30 to the Treasurer as dues.

"The officers are:

"President, Rena Bingham.

"First Vice President, Leon Stevens.

"Second Vice-President, Lucy Hood.

"Treasurer, Erma Stevens.

"Recording Secretary, Bessie Coats.

"Corresponding Secretary, Ida Galloway.

"Lady Manager, Miss Flossie Abell.

"Miss Flossie has given me the items you sent for the next meeting, and I have been studying, that I may tell about them myself.

"I hope that our Society will do well and that I can send you good reports.

"Sincerely,
"IDA GALLOWAY."

I believe these dear young Christians will continue earnest and efficient; they are fine examples for us all. They are very fortunate in their faithful and successful Lady Manager.

Delegates to Annual Meeting—April 27 to May 1—Selma.

The time for our Annual Meeting is approaching. Those Auxiliaries who have not already elected delegates should do so at once. A full representation is necessary to a successful meeting, and each Auxiliary should do its part. I hope the delegates will bring clear and useful suggestions concerning our Press Department, and shall depend on the Auxiliary officers in charge to provide them. And I trust no one will refuse to perform any duty asked by our faithful President—it is a privilege to help "hold up her hands."

Brigade Results.

One of 115 children gathered $20, another $17 from the boxes alone, while still another brought $68 from both the boxes and the enrollment. This is cheering news to our ladies in charge of Brigades, and will show them the reward of careful, painstaking perseverance.

FEARFUL ODDS AGAINST HIM.

Bedridden, alone, and destitute. Such, in brief was the condition of an old soldier by name of J. J. Havens, Versailles, O. For years he was troubled with Kidney disease and neither doctors nor medicines gave him relief. At length he tried Electric Bitters. It put him on his feet in short order and now he testifies: "I'm on the road to complete recovery." Best on earth for Liver and Kidney troubles and all forms of Stomach and Bowel Complaints. Only 50c. Guaranteed by all druggists.

Editorial

A DROWSING PUBLIC CONSCIENCE.

Private conscience belongs to an individual. Public conscience belongs to a community. A wakeful, alert public conscience is conditioned only by a wakeful, alert private conscience. Yet public conscience may sleep, while private conscience is wakeful to a degree. Fear of criticism, unwillingness to march in a moral parade for fear that those in the doors and windows may cry fanaticism, and saddest of all, a disposition to submit blindly and passively to enthroned iniquity, may cause us to take possession of a really sensitive individual conscience and out of it manufacture a drowsy, shapeless, and almost lifeless public conscience.

The pessimist is not always untruthful. Among sound prophesyings are some bits of truth which, while not always palatable, are always wholesome. We feel confident that there is truth in the charge that the conscience of Christendom, especially in this public, is sleeping strangely and fatally in the presence of certain black, gigantic evils which have reared their horrid crests in the face of purity, honor, and righteousness since the flaming sword was placed at the gate of Paradise.

These thoughts were suggested by that pleading, pathetic letter from the women of St. Louis published on the third page of the Advocate. Some may skip this article, looking upon it as the sentimental, unpractical effervescence of feminine emotion. But the intelligent man or woman with a heart, and with a knowledge of things as they exist, can feel in the earnest words of those women the pulse beat of bleeding hearts.

Those women know that there is a vast organization ramifying every country on the face of the earth and engaged in the traffic of the souls and bodies of girls. It is a slave trade beside which the slave trade of the last century sinks into insignificance. This organization has its agencies and bureaus of information. It makes its "corners," establishes its markets, works its system of distribution and uses the law of supply and demand, as in the legitimate trade—all based on the downfall of woman and the brutal devilish animalism of man. The agents of this organization are in every land. They are here in North Carolina. These women of St. Louis know that the Exposition in that city is expected by the foul traders in woman's purity to furnish them a mine of gold.

Young women from this country and other countries are "wanted" in St. Louis during the Exposition. Many will answer the "wants" expecting to find employment. Many will find—God pity them—only ruin.

Why is it that a great Christian nation will rush to arms to free the suffering people of that beautiful island in our summer seas and yet remain unresponsive to the cry of its own insulted, degraded, destroyed womanhood. Why is it that when one woman is reported to be captured by Eastern brigands a thrill of sympathy runs through the whole nation and a purse of fifty thousand dollars is raised at once to help in effecting her release when thousands upon thousands of girls in our own land fall into a far worse bondage, and but a feeble cry is raised at the horror of it. Surely God will not hold us guiltless if in the presence of Dame Prudery we sit with closed mouths as the black procession of sin passes onward and downward. In past years humanity has found a way to staunch some of its most cruel wounds. There is a way to staunch this wound through which the life currents of society are pouring.

All honor and God-speed to the comparatively few women and men in this and other countries who, in the name of righteousness, are working day and night to checkmate the moves of those who deal in human souls.

A LAYMAN'S PLEA

We were greatly interested in reading a few weeks ago an article in the Southern Christian Advocate, entitled, "A Layman's Impressions At Conference."

There was much hard sense in this article, and we feel sure that every preacher who read it aright succeeded in learning some valuable things and having his memory refreshed on others. Preachers are so much in the habit of hearing themselves that an opportunity of hearing the laymen at times furnishes an open gate which leads into pastunres green.

There was in the article referred to a specially striking paragraph, relating to the criticism of preachers by preachers in the presence of laymen. We cannot do better than to produce the paragraph. Here it is.

"And by the way, while I am on criticism, let me say a few words to preachers along that line, and what I say is in the spirit of love: Say just as little evil of each other as you possibly can, and if you are going to say it at all, say it to each other—not to the laymen. The average layman has a very exalted idea of the Methodist preacher. He has been taught by his father and mother that he is to be loved, honored, and respected; that he is a man of God, and, to a large extent, above the petty jealousies and animosities of life, and when you suggest that he is capable of these things, you lower yourself in the estimation of your listener, and cripple the preacher's usefulness. Yea, more, you shake the faith of the layman in the church that he loves and in Christianity itself."

We can all ponder to great advantage these earnest words of laymen. It is so easy for us to run into censoriousness, especially in speaking about our brethren, and in doing so, we may run into a very reprehensible inconsistency.

OUR DUTY TO THE DEAD.

Only a few years ago there was erected on Trinity Park one of the handsomest auditoriums in the South. It was built by the pupils and friends of the lamented Braxton Craven who was for so many years the illustrious president of Trinity College. The building was dedicated to his memory and named "The Craven Memorial Hall." It is a beautiful tribute in brick and stone to a great life whose influence still lives throughout the South in many different forms.

At the Alumni meeting in June, 1903, the editor of the Raleigh Christian Advocate was appointed a committee of one to raise funds for the painting of an oil portrait of Dr. Craven. The duty imposed by this appointment came as a labor of love to one already burdened with duties, yet the mission was cheerfully accepted. We felt that, throughout North Carolina and other Southern States, there are thousands who were once pupils of Dr. Craven's and who, now freighted with the heritage of his life's noble influence, would be only too glad to aid in putting the last finishing touch to his monument on Trinity Park by contributing to an oil portrait.

This picture, in the providence of God, will be made. At next commencement it will look down on the immense throngs that will sit in the Craven Memorial Hall. Work must begin on this picture in a very few days in order that ample time may be given for the execution of a portrait that in a limited sense will be worthy of the original.

We now call for contributions. Let them come from the former pupils and the friends of Dr. Craven. No one who is acquainted with the history of raising subscriptions for any purpose need be afraid that he can give too much. Give as much as you can. Any amount you may send will be helpful and appreciated. Your names will be recorded and a receipt will be sent to you. There is no time to lose. Let us hear from you at once.

President Davis, in a private letter, writes that Rev. L. S. Massey has entered upon his work with zeal and energy, that it took him only a short time to gain the love and confidence of his people, and that he is strictly holding the fort.

A house of worship has been built by the church at Forks Prairie, Washington. The work has been done under great difficulties. Some of the materials had to be brought one hundred and fifty miles through the dense forests of northwestern Washington, which surround the little prairie where the church is situated.

Rev. D. H. Tuttle began a revival meeting at Trinity Park on last Tuesday night. He called to see us as he passed through Raleigh. As usual, his hands are full of work. He has raised all his Conference collections. Epworth and Walker Memorial will have their own preacher after June 1st.

The Biscoe correspondent of the Anglo-Saxon writes as follows: "Rev. G. A. Oglesby preached to the societies Sunday morning and Miss Pescud, a returned missionary from Brazil, lectured Sunday night; a special collection was taken amounting to $62.50. The meeting no doubt accomplished much for good. We all hope to again have another occasion for a visit by such visitors."

Rev. J. M. Lamb, of Fayetteville, is a Methodist well known throughout our Conference. He gained considerable reputation as one of the best members of the last Legislature. He is always in evidence in our annual church meetings. We call attention to the advertisement of his nursery in this paper. His catalogue this year is beautiful and complete. Look up J. M. Lamb if you wish anything in the nursery line.

"My dear young man, only for the missionary, you and I instead of being in this cabin would probably by this time have been inside some of those savages, as you call them, who waved us such an affectionate farewell from their shores." Such was the reply made by Henry Drummond to a fellow passenger who as they were steaming away from the New Hebrides, expressed his skepticism as to the good done in those islands by the missionaries. A very apt reply.

Rev. J. H. M. Giles writes to the News and Observer that the temperance sentiment is growing in Newport and adds: "Last Sunday night Dr. Swindell preached the greatest sermon on temperance that it has ever been my pleasure to hear—the range of thought, the depth of feeling, and his very impressive way of delivery, have elicited much commendation among the people of Newport. Some who were not in favor of prohibition before have said that they are going to vote against whiskey from now on every chance they get. 'Dominus vobiscum.'"

Our newsy and progressive contemporary, the Burlington News, in discussing our paragraph of a few weeks ago, in which we exhorted our members to have their churches and parsonages insured, closes by saying: "And we believe in having faith enough to believe that after a congregation goes to work and through sacrifice and offering, dedicates a church to God, that if He wants to use it, He wont burn it up. Spend the insurance money in converting the heathen." Our esteemed neighbor in writing these words did not pause to consider what defective theology and false common sense he was palming off on his readers. We will excuse him this time only on the assumption that he is innocent of the inconsistency of giving the above advice and at the same time paying premiums on a life insurance policy.

Dr. B. O. Hester is a North Carolinian, now living in Waco, Texas. He has a fine practice in that city. He renews his subscription and says: "I have personally known the Advocate since childhood. It and the Nashville were the first papers with which I became acquainted. Such papers are bound to impress a boy for the right. We are sorry that we cannot accept Dr. Hster's kind invitation to attend the meeting of the Board of Missions in Waco.

We regret to learn that Mr. J. A. Long, Jr., a student at Trinity College, and a son of Hon. J. A. Long, of Roxboro, had the misfortune to break his leg while he was playing ball a few days ago.

The Missionary Institute of Fayetteville District met in Sanford last week. According to the Sanford Express, the meeting was interesting and well attended. Rev. W. B. Lee made an excellent address on Brazil.

The fire loss on the Greensboro Female College has been satisfactorily adjusted, the insurance companies, of which there were sixteen interested, agreeing to pay the whole amount of $35,000, for which the property was insured.

Bishop Duncan will dedicate the new Methodist Church at Louisburg at 11 a. m. on May 22. On the same day, at 8 o'clock p. m., he will address the Y. M. C. A. of Louisburg Female College. On Tuesday, May 24, he will preach the Commencement sermon. On May 25, at 1 o'clock p. m., Hon. Thos. W. Mason, of Garysburg, will deliver the literary address. The Commencement of Louisburg Female College is always an interesting occasion.

General Notes

The Pope is trying to bring about a reform in Catholic churches by prohibiting women from singing in the choirs.

Rev. Elijah P. Brown is doing a great work in schools and factories by delivering addresses calculated to break down opposition to revivals.

The native work under the Methodist Episcopal Church in the Philippine islands is supported entirely without help from the missionary society.

A bank book with a credit of $1,160, and a silver loving cup, was presented to the sexton of Fifth Avenue Church, New York, a few days ago.

Last year 244 medical missions in China treated almost 700,000 persons. Several great printing presses sent out 10,000,000 Scripture portions.

Governor Vardaman has almost redeemed himself in the eyes of his Northern brethren by his activity in preventing the lynching of that colored man in Mississippi a few days ago.

The internal condition of Russia is represented by the Berlin newspapers as being very discouraging. The great mass of Russians indulge gloomy forebodings as to the outcome of the war.

Dr. James Stalker, of the United Free Church of Scotland, will deliver a series of lectures in April at Union Seminary, Richmond, Va. His theme will be the "Ethical Teachings of Christ."

The Epworth Hotel at the World's Fair is to have an auditorium connected with it, seating from 500 to 700, where religious meetings will be held. This will doubtless be headquarters for Methodism.

The address delivered by Hon. Seth Low before the students of the Methodist College in Rome, Italy, has given great offence to the Pope who believes that the Methodists have no business in Rome, anyway.

More than eight hundred Sunday-school workers took the special steamer Grosser Kurfurst last week to attend the Fourth World's Sunday-school Convention, which is to meet in the city of Jerusalem in April.

Admiral Uriu, in charge of the Japanese fleet which defeated the Russian ships at Chemulpo, Korea at the beginning of the present war, is a Christian, and graduated at Annapolis in 1881. His wife was educated in this country at Vassar.

The widow of the late Dr. John Hall died February 15, at the advanced age of eighty-seven years. Her husband was the distinguished pastor of the Fifth Avenue Church, New York, for a number of years, and he has been dead six years.

The Woman's College of Baltimore is facing a serious crisis. It had investments in the burned district. Practically all the financial support received by this institution came from the city of Baltimore. One-half million of dollars is needed at once.

Rev. Jerome C. Berryman, the Nestor of Southern Methodism, sole survivor of the memorable General Conference of 1844, passed his ninety-fourth birthday February 22 at his home in Caledonia, Mo. His connection with the Conference began 75 years ago.

Mrs. C. K. Marshall, of Vicksburg, died one day last week at the advanced age of ninety-two. She was the daughter of Rev. Newit Vick, the founder of Vicksburg. It was her father who gave $150 to help build the first Methodist Church in Natchez in 1807, and in his house at Old Spring Hill the first Conference was held on Mississippi soil. Her husband was one of the most noted preachers of the State. Her end was peace. Bishop Galloway conducted the funeral services, and her remains were laid to rest beside the sacred dust of her distinguished husband.—Nashville Advocate.

Publisher's Column

THE WEEK'S WORK.

We are just now getting into our campaign for new subscribers. The week's work evidences a great activity on the part of our preachers for new subscribers. It takes hard work to secure some of these subscribers. One new subscriber sent in often indicates a large expenditure of labor. One brother who sent in two new subscribers the last week wrote that he had to visit twenty-four families in order to secure them. This shows loyalty and determination to succeed. It will pay that preacher in more ways than one.

The campaign closes May 1. All the offers made except seed will apply to that time. The first week in May we will publish a tabulated statement showing the new subscribers and renewals from each District, showing the result of every preacher's work. We are expecting to receive a large number of new subscribers this week.

THE CAMPAIGN FOR NEW SUBSCRIBERS.

The Conference has requested each District to furnish 150 new subscribers by May 1, 1904. The report for each District will be made weekly in this column. The District reporting the largest number of new subscribers by May 1, 1904, will receive a present not costing less than $25.00, to be applied as the District Conference thinks best.

The following new subscribers have been received since March 9, 1904:

Raleigh District	67
Fayetteville District	60
Rockingham District	56
Durham District	52
Washington District	45
Warrenton District	44
New Bern District	42
Wilmington District	33
Elizabeth City District	30

You see that Raleigh has again won first place. Rockingham moves from the bottom to third place. Warrenton moves one place nearer the top. Elizabeth City takes its bottom place, but will not hold it long, we believe. The brethren are working hard, and there will be interesting developments next week unless we be mistaken. Watch the list.

Rev. I. N. Mann, that worthy local preacher of Siler City, though in very feeble health, still maintains his interest in the affairs of his church. Through his instrumentality we received last week a large number of renewals for the Advocate.

We are desirous of obtaining a copy of the Raleigh Christian Advocate for January 20, 1904.

NORTH CAROLINA EPWORTH LEAGUE CONFERENCE
DEVOTIONAL CHARITABLE LITERARY EVANGELICAL
"LIVE FOR CHRIST AND HELP HUMANITY"

EDITED BY REV. H. B. ANDERSON.

Shall I Organize a League? How?

There are some of our pastors who have been seriously contemplating the organization of an Epworth League, but fear to undertake it because they know little about the workings of the League and their young people know less. It is not necessary that you have a single young man or woman that knows anything at all about the League, provided you can get them sufficiently interested to learn something about it. See two or three of your brightest young people who are thought well of by their comrades and talk the League into them. If you know nothing about its workings, tell them so, and say we will all learn together. Mention the matter in the pulpit. This, with the interest you have awakened in the 2 or 3, will set all to talking, and they will soon want to see how a League works. If those you first mentioned the matter to have any will-power your success in the matter is assured.

Now organize. It will be well to have the officers selected before you call for nominations. For this reason it is wise to have a Committee on Nominations who have been previously advised. You may have to see that your committee is elected. If such precautions are not taken, somebody may be put in office who through neglect may cripple, if they do not kill, the Chapter.

Once the Chapter is organized, stay by it; stay by it until it is able to manage its own affairs. The young people do not want too much ministerial interference, but they want to see that their pastor is interested in them and their work. At first they may frequently call upon you for help and suggestions. Your greatest trouble will be in familiarizing yourself with the League and its work so as to give correct information. They will gradually lift the burden from you, but will always expect your sympathy.

Does any brother say he has no time for this work? Better visit less, at certain places, than neglect the young people of your charge. There are odds and ends of time that might be very profitably devoted to them, and thus prevent the great waste at the point where youth and manhood meet, and where maidenhood and and womanhood tone heach other.

The types made one paragraph in our article on "What the president of a chapter can do."—that concerning the "Council"—unintelligible. To convey my ideas to the mind of the reader, the entire paragraph must be recast. This I will do in an article "On the Council" at an early date.

A League was organized at St. John M. E. Church, Goldsboro, N. C., in February, and notice was sent to this column a few weeks ago, but for some unknown reason, has never appeared. I am glad to state that each week it is growing in interest and numbers.

[If Brother Anderson will look in the issue of March 9th, he will see the notice published.—Ed. Advocate.]

Let us not be too exacting one of another, but bear patiently with the defects and infirmities of others, remembering that we, too, have faults and many failings with which others must bear.

If you are quite sure you will never need forgiveness of God or man, then you may, with some degree of reason, refuse to forgive another; but if not, would it not be wise to cultivate a forgiving spirit?

Faith and love grow together. As love increases, faith increases. The more we love the better we understand, and the more we trust God and man, and the more confidently we labor for the uplifting of those around us.

Devotional Study.

Mr. John R. Mott urges the following rules for devotional study of the Bible. They are so pertinent that we print them with the hope that our Leagues will cut them out and paste them in their Bibles for daily use in the study of the Word of God:

1. Divide into brief daily sub-divisions.
2. Study alone with no one but God to interpret.
3. Make constant personal application of the Word.
4. Concentrate the mind on your study.
5. Let nothing divert you from the subject in hand.
6. Be thorough. Dig deep and meditate much.

The true spirit of Bible study must be characterized by the following six traits: It must be earnest, dependent, prayerful, child-like, obedient, and practical. If we would study thus, our spiritual growth would be in leaps and bounds.

Lesson for March 20, 1904.

Jesus Feeds the Five Thousand.

(Matthew 14: 13-23.)

Golden Text.—Jesus said unto them, I am the bread of life. (John 6: 35.)

It was immediately following upon the death of John the Baptist that the incident of our lesson took place. It is worthy of note that this miracle of feeding the five thousand is the only one recorded by all four of the Evangelists.

Upon learning of the death of John the Baptist, Jesus withdrew from Galilee into the desert region near Bethsaida.

A Hungering Multitude.—Jesus' movements were not unobserved, however. The multitude had seen him embark with his disciples and noted the direction in which he had sailed. While he was conferring with his disciples in some secluded spot near Bethsaida, the people in large numbers were making their way on foot around the margin of the lake, and presently they were in close proximity to the Master.

It was a needy multitude which thus sought for Jesus. Among them were many sick, who longed for healing; while doubtless others were moved simply by curiosity.

A Ministering Teacher.—Jesus, looking upon the multitude, was moved with compassion toward them, we are told. What a beautiful insight it gives us into the mind of Christ to learn that he was thus touched with pity for the people. Mark gives us the striking similitude in which this throng of people seeking Jesus is spoken of as sheep without a shepherd. So indeed they were, for the priests and rulers who should have cared for them were recreant to their trust, and they were in danger of perishing spiritually.

A Great Miracle.—When Jesus had finished his work of ministering to the spiritual needs of his hearers and had healed all their sick, a new need arose. The people were physically hungry, for they were a long way from their homes, and few, if any, had brought provisions with them. The distress of the multitude, however, was simply a further call for the compassion of Christ, and he responded to the appeal by the wondrous miracle recorded in our lesson.

A Boy Helper.—A striking part in this great miracle of feeding the five thousand is played by a mere lad who had with him five loaves and two small fishes. Namless though he is, this boy has been a potent influence for good, for whenever the story of the feeding of the multitude has been told, the part played by this boy helper has also been recounted. So his simple service will always be remembered as an inspiration to deeds of helpfulness, which while they appear small, yet are often the means under the divine providence of largest blessings to others.

Abundant Provision.—One fact that strikes us forcibly in the story of this miracle is the abundant provision which was made. Every one was satisfied, or "filled," as it is expressively said in the Scriptures, and yet after they had all finished eating, twelve basketfuls of the fragments were taken up. This generous provision for the needs of the multitude should teach us to be liberal, while on the other hand the care exercised by our Master that none of the fragments should be lost should warn us against the sin of wastefulness.

The Bread of Life.—Our treatment of this lesson will not be complete, if it does not include a reference to the teachings of Jesus, which followed this miracle and were suggested by it. We find the Master's comments upon this incident in the sixth chapter of the Gosnel according to St. John. Here Jesus directs the thoughts of his hearers away from the bread which perishes to the provisions made for their eternal life through himself.

Jesus is still the Bread of Life. Without this bread our souls must surely die. With it we shall have life forevermore.

ABSOLUTELY A CHANGE.

About seven years ago my health began to fail, I was completely "run down," and my blood got in a bad condition. I suffered with severe pains in different parts of my body, so severe that I could not lie in any position long at a time, and in consequence of this I did not know what it was to get a good night's rest. I had been taking different medicines for the trouble for three years, but got no relief. Then I thought I would try Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy. I had no faith in it, or anything else for my case, but I thought it would be a change. The third night after I started on it I got the first good night's sleep I had had in many months. I became hopeful. The Remedy relieved the terrible pains I had been suffering from so long, and being able to sleep well at night, I soon began to feel like a new man. My appetite began to improve, I began to build up in every respect. I continued its use until I took about three dozen bottles, when I knew I was a well man. I have been cured four years, have never felt those pains since, and am now a perfectly healthy man, nor have I ever needed any of the Remedy since.

CARD FROM MRS. PERSON.

Can it be that Most of the Ills of Life Can be Cured Through the Blood?

I have confined the recommendation of my Remedy to trouble that had their origin in impure blood, or a "rundown" system, and yet I know it can do more.

Five years ago my Remedy cured Mrs. J. S. Thompson, of Hasty, N. C., of ladies' troubles, and since then she has used it as a family medicine, and now I have her testimonial showing that it carried two of her children safely through an attack of typhoid fever.

My Remedy cured a case of kidney trouble in my own family, of six months' standing, after all medical treatment had failed, and the party was regarded as a doomed man. Finding that he was rapidly declining, we tried the Remedy, and in two weeks a great change was apparent, and in two months he was well, and the cure was permanent.

I here known it tried in a well-known family in this State (whose name I am at liberty to give), for puerperal fever, when four doctors in consultation said that the patient could not live many hours, and it cured her. The reaction was immediate.

I saw Mr. Fred Howell, of Goldsboro, N. C., when he was down with consumption. I saw him again recently, a well man, after using the Remedy two years.

I have seen two ladies, suffering with cancer of the womb (and I know of a third and I have seen them perfectly cured, after having used my Remedy and Wash for about a year.

I have known it to cure a great many cases of stomach trouble, that had failed to yield to any other treatment.

I have known it cure four cases of nurse's sore mouth, after all medical treatment had failed.

I have known the Wash to cure a case of bladder trouble, when the physician said an operation alone could reach it.

In the beginning of my business career, twenty-one years ago, realizing what a powerful agency for relief to the afflicted was in my hands, I went to the medical fraternity of Raleigh, and invited them to investigate my claim that I had a specific for troubles that came from blood impurity. I invited examination, to the end that it might be generally used by the profession, if I could substantiate my claim. I offered to accept ann number of test cases that would satisfy them in regard to merit of my Remedy, and I would cure them free. I only asked them to agree to watch the result of my Remedy, and if I cured every one, for them to agree to acknowledge it publicly. But this they said would be "unprofessional" and an "irregular proceeding, and they, therefore (?) declined, although I offered to give them officially my full formula.

This goes to prove the unbounded confidence I had in my Remedy in the beginning of my work, and it is now established on a pedestal none can shake.

Dr. Marshal Beaty, the Nose, Throat and Lung Specialist, of Cincinnati, recently completed a series of trial treatments of his Antiseptic Medicated Air Cure on one hundred patients; some were consumptives in the lowest emaciated stages, others of a catarrhal, asthmatic and bronchial nature. The record of each patient kept by the Doctor as the home treatment progressed, was very interesting. The most remarkable and gratifying features in connection with the treatment was the rapid healing of the cavities and tubercles of the lungs and the raw, ulcerated surface of the mucous membrane of the entire breathing organs. This is phenomenal, and ample proof that this great discovery has solved the problem of a permanent cure for the thousands of sufferers from all catarrhal, bronchial and lung troubles. In his account of it, the Doctor says: "No germ of Catarrh, Asthma, Bronchitis or Consumption can live under the action of this powerful antiseptic. When taken internally and breathed and inhaled into the air passages, bronchial tubes and cells of the lungs, the germs are at once destroyed and expelled from the system, and the disease is arrested and cured by removing the cause."

To introduce and prove beyond doubt that this great treatment will cure Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma, Catarrh and Weak Lungs, Dr. Beaty has decided to make another test offer to others of a Full Months Treatment, Free, including Inspirator and all medicines complete, exactly as shown in illustration.

The Doctor will keep in close touch with all patients during the progress of the treatment, and will make no charge for his professional services, consultation, and the necessary correspondence.

When Dr. Beaty makes such a liberal offer as this, thereby saving patients the large sums they usually expend for medicine, advice, prescriptions, consultations, etc., there can be no excuse why sufferers should hesitate to put his treatment to the test.

Do not delay, but write at once, addressing Dr. M. Beaty, 253 West 9th St., Cincinnati, Ohio, and tell him the nature of your bead, throat or lung trouble, and how long the disease has had a hold on you. This test course is intended to prove the genuine merits of the treatment and costs nothing.

Resumption of Work.

The workmen are putting in our skylights over the chapel and the light shaft, and the cornicing will be finished up right away. Some of our glass has arived and the lights have been put in most of the windows of the first story. We have had bad luck in getting glass for our chapel. Ten out of twelve panes were broken in the first lot, and the second lot has not yet arrived, though ordered, or supposed to have been, over four months ago. The chairs and the doors have not yet arrived. But all things come to them that wait. We are waiting.

Plastering is to begin again on Monday, the 14th inst.

Those Trees, Etc.

The trees are coming. Sister Ormond has sent us a nice lot of peach trees from Kittrell and Bro. W. H. Dorris, of Creedmoor, another.

Many thanks to these friends.

Those peanuts from Conway were greatly enjoyed by the children in the eating. But the after pains were not enjoyed so much. But they are brave boys and girls, and seem willing to tackle another bag.

They are now enjoying those nice sweet potatoes sent by those dear little friends of Fayetteville, Mary W., Evelyn Gertrude and A. McA. Council. "Taters" are always in season here. Some other little friends might send us some to bed. It will soon be time. Norton yams are our favorite. "The corn is being shelled." We have paid out no freight this week. That saves us lots.

Help Now, Beloved.

In view of putting in a full force on our main building in order to push it to completion, it is necessary to have pecuniary help from every quarter.

Will our preacher brethren not talk for us? Organize the Sunday-schools, call on our wealthy friends, take collections and help us generally. Will not those friends who expect to give us large money do so right away? Take a room, brother—sister. We have them at $2,500, $1,000, $700, $500 and $400. Speak out, beloved; don't be afraid. Let every one that intends to put a brick in this great building do so at once. Send anything from a nickle to a $1,000. Our expenses will be large. Don't let us have to stop the work for the want of funds.

Selma.

A 'phone message from Brother Guthrie stating that he was too unwell to fill his appointment at Selma for Sunday, received last Saturday, and asking me to fill it, gave me a chance to visit that dear people and to talk Orphanage to both the Sunday-school and the church.

Bro. Guthrie has won all hearts, and is giving first-class service. They are delighted with the new arrangement. There are high hopes of its complete success. They have long wished for an arrangement of this sort.

It was so restful to lodge with my past friends, Brother and Sister J. A. Spiers. That little Sunday-school is a daisy; and that infant class is the gem of it. I always loved to go to Selma. Brother Moore preached us a number one sermon at night.

Sanford.

On a flying trip to Sanford, Wednesday, the 9th inst., I found the Fayetteville District Mission Institute assembling. With P. E. Hurley in the chair, Brown as recorder, and Lee, of Brazil, as supervisor, and a host of preachers to help Hurley talk, things were lively. The Orphanage man got in a word by substitution. He, the Orphanage man, hated to leave them so hastily, and regretted to tear himself away so soon from the sweet home they had provided for him, with Brother and Sister Hunter.

But our onions, big-headed, and Irish potatoes had not been planted. It always makes me glad to meet a body of Methodist preachers. They were having a most successful conference. The prospect for full missionary collections for the year was hopeful.

CANCER CURED BY BLOOD BALM—ALL SKIN AND BLOOD DISEASES CURED.

Mrs. M. L. Adams, Fredonia, Ala., took Botanic Blood Balm which effectually cured an eating cancer of the nose and face. The sores healed up perfectly. Many doctors had given up her case as hopeless. Hundreds of cases of cancer, eating sores, suppurating swellings, etc., have been cured by Blood Balm. Among others, Mrs. B. M. Guerney, Warrior Stand, Ala. Her nose and lip were raw as beef, with offensive discharge from the eating sore. Doctors advised cutting, but it failed. Blood Balm healed the sores, and Mrs. Guerney is as well as ever. Botanic Blood Balm also cures eczema, itching humors, scabs, and scales, bone pains, ulcers, offiensive pimples, blood poison, carbuncles, scrofula, risings and bumps on the skin and all blood troubles. Druggists, $1 per large bottle. Sample of Botanic Blood Balm free and prepaid by writing Blood Balm Co., Atlanta, Ga. Describe trouble and special medical advice sent in sealed letter. It is certainly worth while investigating such a remarkable remedy, as Blood Balm cures the most awful, worst and most deep-seated blood diseases.

Unless this rule is observed the obituary must be cut down to the proper limit.

BARNES.—Stephen D. Barnes, Jr., was born in Elizabeth City, N. C., July 22, 1903; was given to God by his parents, Stephen D. Barnes, Sr., and his wife, Sallie, in holy baptism November 8, 1903, and on December 27, 1903, went to be with Him who said, "Suffer the little ones to come unto me," and "took them in His arms and blessed them." He was sick only a few days, and then joined his granpa in heaven, whence he had gone only five days before. He was a sunny-faced child, with fragrance of promise about him. The parents have consolation in Christ.

D. H. TUTTLE, Pastor.

BROCH.—Isaac Broch, the son of Benjamin and N. M. Broch, was born September 23, 1876, and was accidentally killed November 24, 1903. He joined the M. E. Church, South, at Cypress Creek on Jones Circuit when he was eleven years of age, and continued a consistent member till death. He leaves a widow (a most excellent Christian woman), and three small children, an aged father and mother, one brother and one sister. His death, so sudden, so unexpected, was quite a shock, and he will be greatly missed. We pray that God may bless them in this sore bereavement, and that they may all meet in heaven.

D. C. GEDDIE.

MOSSES.—After a few day's sickness and suffering, Bro. T. W. Mosses departed this life on the 13th day of February, 1904. His death was a sad death to all of us, but we believe from the example that he lived that he is now better off than any of us. He was a member of Goldston Methodist Church, and had been for quite a time, and was found at his post of duty at all times, when not providential hindered. He was also a steward in his church.

He will be missed by the entire neighborhood, and more so by his church, and while it is sad to us, we feel like heaven is his home. The consoling thought is that while he can't come back to us, we can so live that we can go to him. He leaves a wife and four children. They have our sympathy. Grieve not, for God never makes a mistake, and we should all live so that when the end has come it can be said that we have lived a Christ-like life and that is best of all.

W. L. GOLDSTON.

CLIFTON.—John Henry Clifton was born near Rolesville, Wake County, N. C., December 18, 1873, and died February 18, 1904, aged thirty years and two months.

Brother Clifton was converted and joined the church about ten years ago. Since that time he has been a faithful member. He has filled the following offices in the church: Secretary of the Sunday-school, secretary of the church and was a steward at the time of his death.

Brother Clifton was a good husband, father and neighbor. We all miss the once bright face and cheerful words that came from a loving man. The whole community is still under a shadow of breavement. May God send His comforting grace to the bereaved family in great measure, and may we all meet him in the "sweet bye and bye."

N. L. SEABOLT.

ALSTON.—Minnie B. Alston, nee Gilmore, was born December 18, 1881, and departed this life February 22, 1904, aged twenty-two years, two months and four days.

Minnie was converted when twelve years of age under the preaching of Rev. H. G. Stamey, and joined the Methodist Church, in which she lived a faithful member until her death. She suffered for quite a while before her death, but without a murmur. Her's was a most triumphant end. She left the clearest evidence of her future welfare. Her life had been one of consecrated Christian service, showing to the world that she was not ashamed of the gospel she professed.

She leaves a husband, Mr. P. K. Alston, of Graham, and a little child scarce eighteen months old, a father and mother, several brothers and sisters and a host of friends to mourn their loss.

J. C. HUMBLE, P. C.

BROCKETT—Jonathan T. Brockett was born in Camden County, N. C., on January 7, 1846, and went to be with Jesus from his home in Elizabeth City, N. C., December 22, 1903. For a number of years he was a member of the M. E. Church, South, and always loved the services of God's house, especially the ordinance of the Lord's Supper. I never remember to have known any one who seemed more deeply moved at the remembrance of what Christ had done for him. His heart melted at the sight of the emblem of the broken body and shed blood of the Saviour who died for him.

He was in feeble health for four years, and his sufferings were of a most painful and patience-testing character. He stood the test, learning sweet submission to God's will in the trying hours of pain bearing. We witnessed these things. His family have the hope that is born of Christian faith as a silver lining to the cloud of sorrow that is about them.

D. H. TUTTLE, Pastor.

IRONMONGER.—James W. Ironmonger was born in Norfolk County, Va., September 2, 1839, and died November 25, 1903.

Bro. Ironmonger was a great sufferer from childhood. It was not thought he would reach manhood. When the war broke out between the North and South, he heeded his country's call and entered the army, serving, with tottering frame, through the swamps of the Chickahominy, wading often to his picket post. Here he contracted rheumatism, from which he suffered as long as he lived.

Brother Ironmonger was twice married. His first wife was Miss Mary V. Butt, of Norfolk County, Va., to whom he was married the 8th of January, 1868. Six children survive him as the fruit of this marriage. On August 6th, 1898, he was married to his second wife, Miss Maggie Richardson, of New Bern, N. C., who survives him. He was converted soon after the war and joined Denby's Church, in whose communion he remained till his death. Brother Ironmonger was a good man, undemonstrative, but a conscientious, retiring, unassuming Christian. He was strong in his attachments, and kept a roll of his old comrades in the war, of whom he often spoke in the kindest terms. He was a loving, devoted husband, a kind and indulgent father, a good, obliging neighbor, an honest, industrious man. He was useful in the church and the community, and will be greatly missed. He was sick during his last illness three weeks, and although he suffered at times the most excruciating pain, yet he bore his sufferings with marked patience and resignation till death came and he fell "asleep in Jesus."

His body was laid to rest in the burying ground near the old homestead. His spirit is in heaven.

W. V. VADEN.

JOHNSON.—Rev. Joshua Johnson was born September 15, 1822, and died December 11, 1903. Brother Johnson was converted and gave his heart to Christ, and his hand to the church when a boy. That he was in earnest and not satisfied with anything short of the direct witness of the "Spirit bearing witness with his spirit that he was a child of God," his subsequent life proved.

In early life our brother felt called to work for the Lord, and at a Quarterly Conference held at Windsor Church, May 5, 1849, Rev. W. J. Duval preacher in charge, he was licensed to exhort. At a Quarterly Conference held at the same church, October 12, 1852, Rev. Miles P. Owen, local preacher-pastor, and Rev. Jas. Reid, P. E., he was licensed to preach. At the Annual Conference held in Goldsboro in December, 1857, presided over by Bishop Geo. F. Pierce, he was ordained deacon, and from then until a few years of his death, he was a faithful ambassador for Christ.

For nearly fifty years Brother Johnson preached the gospel in its purity and power. He was a revivalist of no mean order, and working together with his pastor when he was present, and often alone in his absence, he held some very gracious revivals and led many souls to the Saviour. Many of these souls preceded him to heaven, and no doubt gave him a joyous welcome upon his arrival. Brother Johnson's mind gave way several years before he died, incapacitating him for work. But even during these years in his rational moments he loved to talk about Jesus and His love.

He was twice married, and the fruit of these unions were five children, four of whom live to mourn their loss. The unusually large number that attended his funeral at Centre Church attested to high esteem in which he was held. May the great host of loved ones and friends follow him as he followed Christ, and at the end meet him in glory.

A. J. GROVES.

Resolutions of Respect

Whereas, the all-wise God has called from labor to reward our beloved sister, Mrs. Sarah Walker Daniel, nee Turrentine, who for forty-nine years was a faithful and consistent member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, it is Resolved 1. That while bowing with deep humility to the decree of an all-wise Providence, we can but lament the death of one who, by her sweet disposition and kindness of heart, had endeared herself to all.

2. That in her death the church has lost a most valuable member, the community a most worthy Christian friend.

3. That her example should stimulate us to greater zeal, and self-sacrifice, in our effort to promote Christ's kingdom on earth.

4. That we tender the bereaved family our deepest sympathy, and pray they may be sustained by the knowledge that our heavenly Father doeth all things well.

5. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family of the deceased, and also that the proceedings be spread on the Sunday-school record, and a copy be furnished the Raleigh Christian Advocate for publication.

HAPPINESS.

What is your opinion of happiness? What are the essentials upon which you think it depends? Money, love, health—nine out of ten persons would say. Reverse the order of the three and you'll have them as they should be. You cannot be happy if your health is bad. Neither can those around you. Ever notice how grouchy a man or woman is who has dyspepsia or any form of stomach trouble? They cannot help it. It's the result of weakened nerves. Don't judge him too harshly. You cannot expect to find a sunny disposition where pain is gnawing away the body, mind and nerves.

It is a purely vegetable remedy which roots out the cause of the trouble at the very start. It is a positive and permanent cure for ailments of stomach, liver, bowels, kidneys, heart and blood. It doesn't act like harsh purgatives and cathartics. It does its work gently, thoroughly and with no shock to the nervous system. We want you to try this grand remedy at our expense. Write for a free sample bottle to-day. Gladly sent postpaid. Learn for yourself what it will do, before you buy. We know what it has done, what it will do. You do not. We take this way of showing our confidence in it. Address, Vernal Remedy Co., 538, Seneca Building, Buffalo, N. Y.

LEGAL ARRANGEMENT MADE FOR PERPETUATING THE BINGHAM SCHOOL.

(From the Asheville Daily Citizen of March 5, 1904.)

A legal paper of unusual interest at the office of the Register of Deeds is a deed registered yesterday by Col. Robert Bingham, transferring The Bingham School property to trustees, who, at his decease, will transfer it to a corporation, the stock in which is to be equally divided between his heirs-at-law. By this means the School can go on without legal complications, embarrassments or delays. Col. Bingham retains absolute control while he lives, and is using this method to administer on this very valuable property during his own life-time.

His two sons-in-law, Major R. T. Grinnan and Dr. S. R. McKee, and his legal adviser, Frank Carter, Esq., are the trustees named in the deed.

Major Grinnan has been with the School for more than twenty years, and is vice-president. Dr. McKee was with it for several years, both before and after it came to Asheville in 1891. The Wachovia Loan and Trust Company is made executor of the will of even date with this conveyance, and referred to therein.

About half of the present landed property, all that it had at first, was bonded in 1891 for thirty thousand ($30,000) dollars. Eighteen thousand ($18,000) dollars of the bonded debt has been paid, and the conveyance charges the whole property, now consisting of seventy-five (75) acres and the improvements, which cost seventy thousand ($70,000) dollars, with the remaining twelve thousand ($12,000) of the School bonds, thereby greatly enhancing the security.

In connection with these wise provisions for the future of this famous Institution, it is not amiss to say of its present and past that its area of patronage was never so wide, its income never so large, its equipment never so good, its location and climatic attractions never so fine.

Before the Civil War it could not accommodate all who wished to attend; but in order to do fuller justice to its patrons and its pupils, it declined to increase its capacity. After the Civil War it more than doubled its capacity to accommodate its steadily increasing patronage. Of late it again can not accommodate all who wish to attend, but it again declines to increase its capacity, refusing pupils instead.

Colonel Bingham's age sits so lightly upon him that he will not need a successor for many years to come. When the immediate succession must be provided for, it is well provided in Major Grinnan and Dr. McKee, singly, or in conjunction. Col. Bingham's son, Robert W. Bingham, now of Louisville, Ky., was connected with the school for several years; but greatly to the regret of its many friends in Asheville and elsewhere, he is now so wedded to the legal profession that he will probably not be connected with the School again otherwise than as an adviser.

But Col. Bingham is carrying on the work of his grandfather, and there is no reason why his two grandsons and namesakes shall not carry on the work which he has done more than all his predecessors to make worth continuing; and it may be a matter of public interest that his two grandsons are being reared with this end in view.

By the legal arrangements just effected everything which human foresight can do has been done to perpetuate the South's oldest and most successful School for Boys, and to transmit it, under greatly improved conditions, to future generations of Binghams.

A FAITHFUL COMPLIANCE WITH OBLIGATION.

None doubt the propriety of this practice. All admire its performance. The gentleman who has the reputation of faithfully complying with his obligations, indeed has an enviable one.

Thousands of Dr. Whitaker's patients and friends testify to this unequivocal loyalty to his fixed principle; his fidelity to duty; his indomitable perseverance for the welfare of the sick under his care; either in his immediate vicinity or hundreds of miles away.

Mr. Miles B. Kepler, of Renova, Pa., says: "I wish to express my gratitude for the great relief which I have received, the careful attention you have given me, and the faithful manner in which you have complied with your obligations.

I was sorely afflicted with Dropsy for about six months; my heart was very weak. The doctors could not do anything for me, so I thought I would surely die, as I was growing worse all the time. I was gaining in weight very fast. A friend of mine told me of you, the great Dropsy specialist. I wrote at once for treatment, and it was promptly received; half of the free treatment gave prompt relief, and in a very short time I was perfectly well. I am well, and now as sound as I ever was.

I feel that I am under great obligations to you, and most freely recommend you and your treatment to any one who may be afflicted with this dreadful disease, Dropsy and its complications."

Let those who are suffering with Dropsy in any of its various forms, write today to this well-known specialist, giving age and name of patient and history of case for a free treatment which he guarantees to give immediate relief. Address S. T. Whitaker, M. D., 41 E. Irwin St., Atlanta, Ga.

Dr. A. D. Betts.

I first saw Rev. A. D. Betts, D. D., at a Monday night prayer-meeting in the Seaman's Bethel, in Wilmington, N. C., in 1866. He made an impression upon my mind that night as a very earnest, zealous, godly man, full of the gladness of religion. I then thought he was acquainted with his Lord and was in great peace. In 1876, I was received on trial in the North Carolina Conference. Since that time we have had the annual greeting without a break that I remember. We were pastors in the same town. It was a real pleasure and much profit to be associated with him in the same pastorate. I received much benefit from the association.

While on the Washington District as Presiding Elder, we were together again for two years, where I saw Dr. Betts from another standpoint.

First as a youth, I saw him in that prayermeeting. Then as a brother in our Conference. Again as pastors in the same charge, and then associated as Presiding Elder and pastor. He has always been the same earnest, sweet-spirited representative of his Lord. I always loved to attend his prayer meetings. His life his work was a benediction to me, and left his charge better for the association. I looked at him during our last Conference at Goldsboro, and thought surely no man has ever passed so many years with so little change. Remarkably little difference in physical appearance. Just as full of energy—just as earnest, just as anxious for conversions as back in the sixties.

He has always tried to sow seed in the byways. His horse soon learned to stop on meeting any one. Only a minute to ask about the spiritual condition and he was gone, singing as he went. Was that time wasted? I heard a preacher say at District Conference in LaGrange, that the brief question: "Are you on the road for the better land," by Dr. Betts, fastened conviction upon him and led him in contrition to his Lord. I always appreciated his prayers for me, and regarded his visits to our home as a benediction.

Here and there in my journeys I found old veterans who gave very warm commendations of Dr. Betts as a faithful, conscientious chaplain during the war. He yet holds a very large place in the hearts of the old soldiers.

Yes he is now on the downward slope in life's journey—the material sun is getting lower—but in the spiritual life his sun is yet at meridian and will not go down, but grow brighter and brighter until the perfect day. God forever bless him and all of his.

Your brother,
F. A. BISHOP.

CROP INSURANCE.

We will call your attention to the ad. of the Park Region Mutual Hail Insurance Association which will be found in another column of this paper. This is one of the oldest and most reliable Hail Insurance Companies doing business in the United States. It was organized in Minnesota in 1894, but has since extended its business to a number of different States in the Union. They began business in North Carolina in the early spring of 1902, and during that year and 1903, they sustained something like 500 losses in this State, every one of which was satisfactorily adjusted and paid in full by the Company. Many of these losses have been very large ones, and the payment of the same has been a great benefit to the farmers who otherwise would have been at a great loss. Among the larger losses which they have paid, we will mention the one of Col. J. J. Laughinghouse, of Pitt County, who in the year 1902, was paid a loss of $3,500 upon damage sustained to his tobacco crop. They insure growing crops of all kinds against damage by hail storms. The cost of carrying the insurance is reasonable, and every farmer owes it to himself, to his family and to his creditors to protect his growing crops, and there is no better way of protecting them than by taking a policy with The Park Region Mutual Hail Insurance Association whose branch office in this State is located in Raleigh.

Warrenton District.

REV. G. F. SMITH, PRESIDING ELDER.

Warrenton District embraces all of five counties, and portions of five others; and has about 13,000 inhabitants, 21 pastors, 7,320 members of our church, 585 officers and teachers, and 4,799 scholars in the Sunday-school.

"Lift up your eyes and look on the fields, for they are white already to harvest." Every man and woman is a part of the white fields where a possible sheaf may be gathered for the heavenly garner. God calls every Christian to be a reaper.

A thousand converts this year is our watchword. Is that too much for twenty-one consecrated preachers and seven thousand members to accomplish? Can not seven save one in twelve months?

Personal work on the part of every Christian is necessary. Pray for your friends and urge them to accept Christ. Who will excel in winning souls—the most glorious work that hearts and hands may know?

Pray in your family. There is no place more sacred than a Christian home, and in it there should be an altar of prayer. Prayer is as important as breakfast. Read God's Word and pray and give God the first place in your thoughts and home. It is a duty; begin to-day.

Great responsibility rests on the superintendents and teachers of our Sunday-schools. Teachers have the love of their classes and can be helpful to them in many ways. Teacher, let me make one suggestion to you. When you go to your class next Sunday morning, tell them how anxious you are for them to be true to Christ, and ask those who are Christians to join you in daily prayer for the conversion of those who do not know the Lord.

I desire to call the attention of pastors and superintendents to paragraph 247 of the discipline which requires every Sunday-school to be organized into a missionary society. This society should meet (not at hour for Sunday-school) once a month, and have a service consisting of songs, exercises for small children, reading leaflets, short addresses on some missionary field or prominent missionary, or other phases of missionary work. This would develop active church workers who would no more think of opposing missions than the church.

If every teacher and scholar in the North Carolina Conference will give five cents at each monthly meeting it will amount to more than thirty thousand dollars a year, or five thousand more than the entire Conference paid for Home and Foreign Missions last year.

The salaries of pastors, and the Conference collections, ought to be paid in full. It would have a fine moral influence on the church, and the church would be an example to all of its members in meeting their financial obligations.

To accomplish this important work it is necessary to begin to raise the collections ordered by the Conference at once, and have Home and Foreign Missions in hand before District Conference.

Every steward should collect the amount due the pastor once a month, or quarter. It will be easier and better for steward, church and pastor.

The debt on district parsonage has been paid and parsonage will soon be furnished. Preachers and people have done nobly.

The pastors are in great favor with the people. More deeply pious, loyal, intelligent members are not to be found in North Carolina, and no people have more faithful, consecrated preachers.

Religion in the Home.

BY L. L. NASH, HENDERSON STATION.

Home! What tender memories cluster around this word? It brings back to our hearts the thought of father and mother, and brothers and sisters, even when the evening shades are falling along life's pathway, and the family has been scattered, and the home circle has been broken up. But there are unfading memories of home that grow brighter, even down to the end of life's journey. It may be questioned whether the highest type of manhood, and womanhood, can be developed anywhere but in a Christian home.

But what is a Christian home? I shall endeavor to answer this question briefly.

1. A Christian home is a home where Christ dwells with the family. In such a home there is a family altar, where the Word of God is read daily, and where prayer is offered. Bishop Marvin said: "A home without a family altar is a heathen institution." Bishop Pierce said: "I have thought over the matter carefully; I am fully satisfied that it takes less religion to establish a family altar, than it will require to take us to heaven." A family altar is necessary to a Christian home. How can the family hope to have the blessing of God upon it, when He is shut out, and when His worship is neglected? When Robert Burns wrote his greatest poem, "The Cotters Saturday Night," he could not complete the picture without family worship. Burns was far from being a Christian himself, but he was too good a poet not to know that religion in the home is the brightest gem in it. There are no memories so precious as those that take us back to the quiet hour when the family circle met with God at the altar of prayer. When father and mother are dead, and brothers and sisters are scattered, the influence of the family altar will continue to prove a potent influence upon the life of those reared in such a home. Fathers of families, if you have not a family altar, delay not, but begin now, and let not another day pass by without reading the Word of God, and praying with your family. When you begin this holy duty, life will become a new experience, and home will be placed in a different attitude to God. O that all of our people would erect family altars, and keep the incense of prayer burning upon them!

2. Home is a conservator of the work of the church, and no other instrumentality can do the work of the home in preparing the way for the salvation of the young, and training them in the Christian life that the home influence can do. The home influence can make the work of the ministry the power of God unto the salvation of the young, or it can greatly hinder the gospel. Some young people rise above this influence by the grace of God, and are religious in spite of bad example at home. But these are exceptional cases; and there never will be the best results accruing from the work of the church until our homes are made centres of religious life and spiritual power. The Sunday-school depends upon the home in large measure for its best success.

3. A great deal depends on the literature read in the home. "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he," and as we read, so will we think. Every Christian man, who is the head of a family, should regard it as his religious duty to put into his home the best books and periodicals he is able to buy. If we grow in grace, we must grow in knowledge. The home should be a school of religious thought. The work of the church, and the progress of the kingdom, should be kept prominent before the minds of all in the household and have a chief place in family thought and discussion. Of course this will necessitate the reading of the religious paper. We cannot feel interest in that about which we know nothing. It is not simply our duty to be Christians, but it is our duty to be intelligent Christians. God will not simply hold us responsible for what we know, but for what we may know. We have no right to be ignorant of the work of God in the world, if we have the opportunity of knowing what He is doing. "If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them." No one will do the things that are right unless he knows what they are.

4. Love is the bond that holds the family together. Take love out of the home, and instead of its being the best representative of heaven on earth, it becomes the representative of hell. Kindness and gentleness to all should be cultivated in the home. Here is where gentlemen and ladies are made. The Christian home is the highest school of culture. Without its refining influence, the best school can only turn out a well developed, intellectual boor.

In conclusion, the home is the place where the highest type of manhood is developed.

How Can the Superintendents and Teachers Lead Scholars to Christ?

BY J. T. FLYTHE.

In attempting to answer the above question, I would say that the first thing necessary is a Spirit-filled life on the part of the superintendent and the teachers. No man can lead in a path in which he does not travel, nor will he lift others to a higher plane than that upon which he himself moves. The life of the superintendent and that of the teacher should be consecrated to God's service, and the Christ life so exemplified on all occasions that the scholars may gain confidence in the piety of his teacher and his superintendent, for unless the scholar has confidence in his teacher's piety, all efforts on the part of the teacher to create in the scholar a yearning for true piety will prove futile.

The superintendent may accomplish a great deal in winning the souls of his scholars to Christ, by association and personal talks with the scholars, showing his concern for their spiritual welfare, and learning the peculiar conditions and surroundings of each and helping them to overcome any obstacle and pointing them to Jesus Christ as a personal Saviour and the true source of all help and comfort.

The teacher has an advantage in this that none other has; he (or she) has one opportunity for coming in the very closest touch with the scholars, and making lasting impressions upon their minds; therefore it is essential, as I stated in the outset, that the spiritual life of the teacher should be unquestionable. If the life of the teacher is not consistent, there can be no good effect from it upon the life of the scholar, but rather a tendency to lessen their spiritual desires and interest. There are great opportunities afforded the teacher in the proper teaching of the lesson. No teacher should ever appear before his (or her) class without the lesson well in hand, thorough preparation of the lesson should be made before an attempt to teach it; a few minutes on Saturday night or Sunday morning before Sunday-school will not suffice. Every preparation possible should be made, not with a view to delivering an eloquent and learned lecture for the entertainment of the class, but with a view to bringing out all the essential, vital and spiritual points and applying them in such a way as to rivet them upon the minds and hearts of the scholars, thereby lifting them to a higher life and inspiring them to nobler deeds through Jesus Christ.

Think about it a little. Not great thoughts, great deeds, or great experiences are the most potent agencies in building human character. Trifles make character.

Individual Work to Save Men.

REV. H. A. HUMBLE, LITTLETON CIRCUIT.

Jesus said, "Go ye therefore and make disciples of all the nations." (R. V.) This command implies personal contact with the pupil. Again he gave us the force of His example in the cases of Nicodemus and the woman of Sychar. The disciples also were individual workers. Andrew brought Peter to Jesus, Philip brought Nathaniel, Ananias brought God's message of salvation to Saul, and eight years afterward, Barnabas went to Tarsus and brought Saul out of seclusion to Antioch and started him on that long life of usefulness.

Every fully awakened conscience feels this to be a duty. But many Christians try to believe that it is the duty of the preacher, and a few others, but not their own personal duty. Oh, that such eyes may be opened!

There are many advantages in this kind of work as contrasted with appeals to the multitude. The man approached feels the force of the message of instruction, rebuke, warning, entreaty or invitation as he could never feel it were he only one of a hundred or a thousand listening to the same message. In appealing to the multitude the personal element is lost.

H. Clay Trumbull says: "My experience in active service in the Civil War taught me, as I am sure it taught others on both sides in that conflict, that the thunder of artillery was likely to be most impressive, but that the rifles of the sharpshooters brought down more men."

Who has not demonstrated in his personal experience the advantages of this face to face and heart to heart work? What unlooked for receptions of the message, what warm friendships have sprung up by it, and what joy filled the heart of the faithful worker?

The business world has fully demonstrated the value of individual work with individuals. It is their personal contact with men that tells. If insurance companies and wholesale houses persued the methods of the average church they would be forced to quit the field.

Again, the opportunities for individual work are abundant.

The woman will come to the well while the Teacher rests there; Zacchens will be in the sycamore tree when He passes under it; the woman of Canaan will find him in retirement; Paul will find a Lydia at the river side, and be chained to a Roman soldier for years.

Thus the Christian women will have opportunities to speak on the great theme in their homes, the merchant or clerk with the customer, the employer with his employee, the banker in his office, the insurance man when the policy is delivered. Especially does the physician have large opportunities for personal work. Sorrows and losses soften the heart as showers the soil. He is on hand and may readily sow the good seed. The farmer on those Sunday evenings where groups of his neighbors gather and discuss crops, weather and neighborhood news. The Sunday-school superintendent and the teacher have many golden opportunities for this kind of work.

Just think how near you are to an unsaved soul. Have you embraced the great opportunity? If not, do it to-day.

"But there are difficulties." Yes; and there are difficulties in the way of every duty, and every way of success. The chief of these is the Devil, of course. To quote Mr. Trumbull again: "Satan's favorite argument with a Christian is that just now is not a good time to speak on the subject. The lover of Christ and of souls is told that he will harm the cause he loves by introducing the theme of themes just now." And, again: "Never to this present day can I speak to a single soul for Christ without being reminded by Satan that I am in danger of harming the cause by introducing it just now."

Did not the Master have difficulties to overcome in order to reveal himself to the woman of Sychar? Let us see.

First, he was tired. "Being wearied with his journey, he sat thus on the well." Second, the person was a woman, and with a very doubtful character. Third, it was twelve o'clock and the woman would naturally be in a hurry to get back with her water-pot for dinner. Fourth, the prejudice existing between the Jews and the Samaritans. Fifth, the futility of the effort. She was a bad woman. How many times these same difficulties are urged by us as reasons why we should keep silent! Yet, the Master dared not neglect the opportunity, and with ease, from the most natural request, led up to the greatest of revelations.

Likewise did not Ananias present good excuses for not going to Saul's relief? Saul was a daring persecutor. He had done "much evil," and he was clothed with authority from the high priest. Yet God said, "Go thy way, for he is a chosen vessel unto me." To Ananias his case was hopeless. To God he was a "chosen vessel." God knew, and Ananias was never ashamed of his day's work. It matters not how great the barriers to individual work may seem, when God says "Go thy way" there are no barriers, and at the end of duty is God's "chosen vessel." "Better make a hundred failures than do nothing."

Suffer a word of exhortation. If you cannot swing the cradle or manage the reaper, why not glean in the whitened fields?

When God directs you to go out, do you not realize that he is consistent with himself, and has gone out before you and prepared your way? If David had remained under the mulberry trees after the sound of the going in their tops, he would have lost God's company, but following on he kept it. If you would have Christ with you, keep up with Him. He can't adjust Himself to your unfaithfulness. His habitation is the climax of duty.

"Let him know, that he which converteth the sinner from the error of his way, shall save a soul from death, and cover a multitude of sins."

"And they that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament; and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars forever and forever."

Henderson Mission.

R. D. DANIEL.

This work is an extension of, and is under the supervision of, Henderson Station. This field is distinctly mission. Missionary appropriation is $700. This mission paid, in addition to the appropriation, $78 last year. I think the prospects are favorable for doing more this year.

The migrating feature characterizing mill people accounts for the fact that more names appeared on the roll than were accessible.

We have about seventy-eight available members. This year we have received by certificate nine members and lost one.

At North Henderson the Methodists have sole use of Company Chapel for religious service. This building is used for school purposes. Have had an encouraging prayer-meeting every week at this point in spite of foul weather. We have a good Sunday-school at North Henderson. Enrolled about one hundred and twenty. Attendance encouraging.

The Methodists built a chapel at South Henderson which was burned by accident about last Conference. We hope to rebuild at an early date. A Building Committee has been appointed. Have arranged to get title to property as required by discipline. We have $204 from insurance on burned building. We shall endeavor to increase this by individual offerings by the friends of Henderson Mission.

We have not lost our organization at South Henderson. Sunday-school and cottage prayer-meetings are held every week in private homes.

Our work has been greatly hindered by the small-pox plague at both points. Hope to be relieved of this soon.

Am glad to say we have some loyal Methodists among our number. I am pleased with the work and its prospects. We solicit the prayers of the Warrenton District.

Domestic Missions.

REV. P. D. WOODALL, S. ROCKY MOUNT AND MARVIN.

There are within the bounds of our Conference charges called mission charges. They are thus called because they are not self-sustaining. They get help from the stronger charges. Some of these mission charges do not pay their preachers more than one-third the salary; some not more than one-half, and others, probably as much as three-fourths. What they fail to pay must come from the Domestic Mission Fund.

It is very important that our self-supporting charges pay their assessments on Domestic Missions early in the year, because preachers serving our mission charges need the money. Failure to do this may financially embarrass them.

Many and blessed results have sprung from these weak charges being helped. Souls have been born into God's kingdom. The gospel has been preached to those in great need of it. Some of our able preachers and prominent laymen are some of the fruit of Domestic Missions. Some of the best material for building exalted Christian characters is found in these destitute places.

To neglect aiding these places is a great sin. No one can doubt, for a moment, that to refuse to give a starving man a piece of bread would be a great wrong. There are in our borders those who are starving for the want of the bread of life. To give it to them we must give our means. If we fail to do this God will hold us responsible. We need to have more fervent charity in this matter. Let us keep before us the fact that our Lord gave a great deal of his attention to the suffering poor.

It is our imperative duty to give to this great cause. Great spiritual blessings will be the result if we will with a true spirit give all we can. Hungry souls are crying for help. God is calling us. Let us not turn a deaf ear, but give as God has prospered us.

Epworth League Work.

BY REV. J. T. STANFORD, RICH SQUARE CIRCUIT.

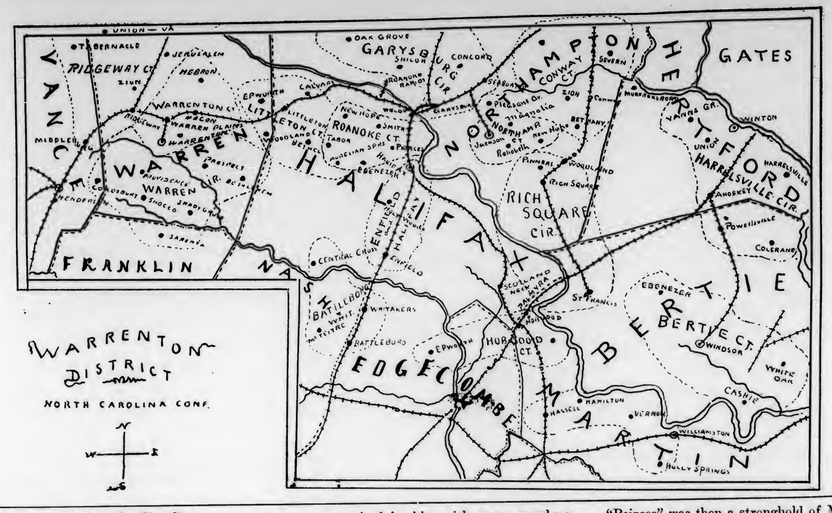
The greatest problem in the material world which has confronted man is the harnessing of latent energy. Steam, electricity, wind and all known explosives have been harnessed and are doing man's bidding. Again, in the State a similar problem presents itself: How can the State best use the latent energy in the individual. Many plans have been worked and some of them very successfully by the State. The church has a like problem in the question: How shall we best use to advantage the latent energy in the church? The above question seems to stir each General Conference from centre to circumference. It was in one of these stirs that the Epworth League was brought to the altar of the church and its name enrolled in our book of discipline.

Since the beginning, the League has been growing slowly but surely. It is fast becoming the spiritual "radium" of church work. It is a well organized society for the building of Christ's kingdom. A few specimens of its work is a sufficient guarantee for its final triumph. The names of its three departments—devotional, charity and help and literary—form a strong Trinity for the uplifting of mankind.

The League embraces the best in all good orders for bringing about the ideal society for man. The Epworth League work has latitude enough to embrace all that is necessary for self-culture and the spiritual development of each individual.

In the League, the pastor finds an organized band of young people ready to be used in the spiritual development of the church, for reading and circulating the best literature, for visiting and caring for the sick, feeding the hungry and clothing the naked. The League is a power in paying off church and parsonage debts and in securing various collections.

In so short an article I can only give an outline of Epworth League work. I have long since learned that the League can, and will, become the right-hand of any pastor.



Memories of Roanoke Circuit.

MRS. IDA T. WILKINS.

Fifty years ago this circuit comprised much of Halifax and part of Warren Counties. There were few churches except Methodist. The Methodist preachers then, as now, were pioneers in spreading the gospel and found a footing wherever possible, so while other denominations had no churches for miles apart in this section, at short intervals would be found a plain little Methodist Church. I remember six within a radius of ten miles of this place. Some of these were built and supported almost entirely by a few families in each neighborhood. Of these, "Pierces" and "Smiths" are an example. (By the way, I have heard that Bishop Smith's ancestors were from just the neighborhood of these two churches.) Of the men who labored here in the past, I would speak.

I would not disparage our preachers of to-day, but to us in the past was given the "cream" of the gospel. The men who rode this circuit knew what the words consecration and service meant, and the people lent receptive ears. The prophet was received as if sent from God, and the rule of our church, not to speak evil of ministers, was rigidly obeyed as far as I know.

I am not quite old enough to remember when Dr. John E. Edwards, a young preacher, traveled this circuit, but one of the earliest recollections of my childhood is the music of an old Methodist hymn, borne out on the evening air from a prayer-meeting, held at my grandmother's, by that sweet singer, Rev. Joseph Martin. That was early in the fifties and comes to me down the corridor of time as a memory of that Godly man. He not only preached but carried the revival fires into the home as well. Penitents were called for and sinners converted around the hearth-stone in the country where these prayer-meetings were often held.

Rev. Robert J. Carson, Presiding Elder of what was then Washington District, was much loved and honored. This district reached from Roanoke River on the north to perhaps the sound. I do not know.

A faithful colaborer with these men was Mr. Edward Morecock, for many years class-leader at New Hope Church. He is still remembered in love by many of our older people. So pure was his life that on the morning of the great meteoric display in 1833 he rose from his bed thanking God that he had lived to see the resurrection morn and went out to the family graveyard to meet the dead whom he fully expected would come from their graves. His wife, who is in her ninety-fourth year, still lives an honored resident of our town.

I would not fail to mention an elect lady, a neighbor of Mrs. Morecock. This was a daughter of Col. Willie Jones, of Halifax, whose first husband was Governor Hutchings Burton, of North Carolina. She afterwards married Col. Andrew Joyner, whose daughter, by a former marriage, was the wife of Rev. R. O. Burton. Mrs. Joyner was a devout Methodist who carried her religion into her daily life.

Another honored layman of that day, and later, was Capt. James Simmons. The church in Weldon was organized by him with seven members sometime in the forties, and a building erected for public worship. That was the only church here until after the war. It was my privilege when a child to hear Bishop Early preach in this church, and remember some one saying of his sermon that "he opened his mouth and the preach poured out."

About the year 1854, Rev. L. S. Burkhead brought to this circuit a fair young bride whose life went out with the dawn of a new life within only a few short months. Then comes to my mind a memory of her sweet face.

At the Conference of 1855, Rev. Jno. N. Andrews was sent to Roanoke Circuit with Rev. M. J. Hunt as assistant preacher. The year 1856 was a memorable one in church history with us. Early in the spring a revival was held in Weldon which was far-reaching in its influence. The saints were revived, sinners scoffed and then tremblingly asked for mercy, and many were added to the church. A prominent worker in this was a son of Capt. Simmons, now Judge J. T. Simmons, of Sardis, Mississippi.

The two preachers soon won all hearts and began to plan for a great camp-meeting to be held at "Pierce's Church," five miles from Weldon, in the late summer. These plans were all carried out. The people came out from their homes and built large wooden tents on three sides of a large hollow square, in the centre of which was the "stand," or place, for preaching. Every preparation was made to entertain the crowds which came to the meetings. These were immense. The services lasted two weeks and over one hundred persons were converted. I remember as many as fifteen ministers being present at some of the services. Many came from the section north of the Roanoke, then in the Virginia Conference. Among those who made a fine impression was Dr. Carter, president of Petersburg Female College.

The meetings started out somewhat coldly, nor was there a change until the preacher in charge in one of his characteristic prayers asked that the devil might be driven from the camp-ground and that the Holy Spirit might come in power. From that time the interest was intense. Sunrise prayer-meetings were held in the morning and often the services were prolonged until late at night with scarcely any intermission.

The expense of these meetings, though necessarily very great, was borne heartily by the people of the surrounding country. Open-handed hospitality was extended to all, and not a collection do I remember.

My mother's and sister's families owned a tent built with three rooms, and passages without doors, which was used for sitting room, an open shelter over long table for dining-room and shack for kitchen. One bed-room was for the preachers and other gentlemen company, one the private room of the family, the other for any ladies or children who might want to stay all night. On two sides of this room a frame work was built on which one continuous bed was arranged. This was generally crowded to its utmost capacity. Uncomfortable do you say? Well, not much, and then think of the love and good will which prevailed.

"Peirces" was then a stronghold of Methodism, but like most neighborhoods in this country, has changed a great deal. There are still a few faithful ones there who are doing good work.

The good Brother Andrews did on this circuit can never be estimated. His hold on the hearts of the people was wonderful. He came back upon one occasion after he had gone from the work and preached in our little church in Weldon. When it was known that he would preach, the people came from far and near. The house could not hold half the crowd, so seats were arranged out doors on one side of the church and he stood by a window and preached from the text—Eccles. 11:9. The effect of the sermon was powerful and it was long remembered.

Neither do I forget one sweet summer's day when Rev. Ira T. Wyche, at the bedside of a dying saint, administered to her the emblems of the broken body and shed blood of our blessed Lord and I, for the first time, joined in this holy sacrament.

Oh! the hallowed influences of a Christian mother; can we value them as we should?

I might mention the names of Thos. G. Lowe, Wm. H. Babbitt, and many others, but like St. Paul again I would say, that time would fail me to give due notice to all the Gideons and Baraks who, having obtained a good report, have received their reward. My mind loves to linger around the memory of one whom we claim as our very own—Rev. R. O. Burton. To him, more than others, is due our very existence as a church in this community during the dark days of and after the Civil War. Grand old man that he was! We are proud that his body rests within the bounds of Roanoke Circuit, where he labored and loved so long. A shaft of purest marble should mark his resting place, and that would be but a small tribute to his great worth and work. Through his efforts the present church building in Weldon was erected at a time when poverty and financial ruin had fallen on all alike. This was dedicated by Rev. Chas. F. Deems, February 12, 1876, and if Dr. Burton loved one church more than another, it was the one in Weldon.

We were then still a part of Roanoke Circuit, and had preaching only once a month, unless, as he often did, he came and preached for us between his other appointments.

In the fall of 1877, there was another great religious awakening in Weldon. Rev. Chas. Cook, of Warrenton, a local preacher, came to us without invitation that I know of, and with no expectation of pecuniary reward, but seemed truly sent from God. He laid no claims to being a great preacher. He had many texts, but after about five minutes' talk they each resolved themselves into a living appeal to a holier and better life. These exhortations, however, were accompanied by the Holy Spirit, and though other and finer preachers came to see and join in the work, it was so evident his duty that he continued to preach during the six weeks the meeting lasted.

The whole town was stirred with religious interest. Crowds came to the services and many were converted. A larger part of these have passed over the river, but there are some who are faithful who will read these lines and remember this as the date of their new birth.

The Holy Spirit in Our Work.

REV. E. E. ROSE, NORTHAMPTON CIRCUIT.

The work imposed by our Lord upon the church is a work that might employ angels. Yet the allwise Master has designed that man should be laborers together with Him in finishing the work that Christ began to do and to teach.

The day may have been when Methodism needed strength numerically and financially, but if this day ever was, it is past, and the crying need of the church to-day, probably as it never was before, is for a spirit-filled and spirit-used church. It is not by might nor by power but by my spirit saith the Lord. The opportunities and talents were never more apparent according to what we might have accomplished. From the beginning of our beloved Methodism until now the witness of the spirit has been one of the doctrines which has been peculiar to its life, which has been preached from its every pulpit and experienced by many that have fallen on sleep. The little cloud, first no larger than a man's hand, has lengthened until it measures the horizon of the human family. With the glorious history of the past can we fail? We can and we will fail if we substitute farms, wealth, educations, and members for the work of the Holy Spirit. We need not simply to have seen Christ, but to tarry in prayer until we are endowed with Holy Ghost power from on high; then we shall be witnesses of our Lord unto the uttermost parts of the earth.

Our fathers with a ministry and membership not so well equipped as is the church to-day, under brush arbors, in log meeting houses, often heard the shouts of victory, while we, with all our modern machinery, are gaining ground too slowly. To our knees, then, that the Holy Spirit may convict sinners, convert mourners (old style), and witness to us all that we are children of God.

To Pastors and People of Warrenton District.

REV. C. W. ROBINSON, WARRENTON CIRCUIT.

As missionary secretary of the Warrenton District, I beg you to suffer a few words of exhortation from me. Our church registers do not show a very gratifying increase in the membership of the church during the past year, nor does the minutes of the Annual Conference exhibit any great amount of enthusiasm on the part of the church to give the benedictions of the gospel to all men.

Our church under the focalized light of the Holy Scriptures, and of the Holy Spirit, has planned to do something in the cultivation of Emmanuel's land at home and abroad, and hence she has called upon all her people to lay a suitable offering upon the altar for this purpose. And as a district, we want to do our part. It is true that a few of our districts in the North Carolina Conference paid the Home and Foreign Missionary assessments, but where is the district that paid all of the benevolent assessments in full? Some have asked, and others will ask, this question: Is it possible for the Warrenton District to pay every dollar of the assessments? I answer yes; and this is the answer of many to the question. We can pay the entire amount with all ease and hardly know, in three months afterward, that we have cast anything into the treasury of the Lord. To do this will greatly enrich us in mind and in heart, and prepare all for better work in soul-winning. But to do this we must lay these interests on our hearts and consciences, and say it can be done, and that it must be done. And this conclusion will be reached with rare exceptions by all who will take the fifteenth chapter of St. John to guide, and periodically tarry in the closet before God to know His will concerning us. Have you studied the command of our Lord in connection with our own spiritual well being: "Go ye, therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." "To obey is better than sacrifice." Have you reflected upon the awful destitution of the benighted nations of the earth? If you have not, I can understand why you are indifferent; otherwise I cannot. We all are anxious to see gracious revivals of religion in all of our pastoral charges; let us pray for this. We are anxious to see the Warrenton District pay all of the assessments in full; let us pray and work for that.

How to Reach the Mill People.

REV. G. D. LANGSTON, ROANOKE RAPIDS AND ROSEMARY.

Having been asked to write a paper on this subject, I would note first some of the hindrances we meet in trying to reach the mill people.

The wives and mothers, who should be first in the mental, moral and spiritual salvation of the children, are, by a train of circumstances, shut out from church work. Their home work is usually heavy, many taking boarders, and they have so little time that they often admit that they have stayed from church until they have no desire to attend. The children, thus neglected, often wander away from home and away from good influences.

Another of the hindrances is the unholy competition of churches, the curse of Protestantism. One church will not inquire if a child attends any Sabbath-school, but "Do you come to ours?" Then small bribes will be given till a spirit of commercialism is begotten in the child to look for the loaves and fishes only. When he finds the church which bids highest for his presence, he calls his friends and tells them he has found the best place to go. The question is, how shall we reach these people?

First, we need a live, wide-awake pastor, filled with love for God and His people. He must not only love the people, but visit from house to house, having a word of cheerful conversation and praying if at all convenient. But he should never call a tired mother from her cooking to read a long chapter and make a longer prayer till the bread burns and the mother's patience is exhausted. He must look after the children, organizing them into Sunday-school Missionary Societies, Epworth Leagues, etc. He must put the young men and women to work. He must be one of his own people, not try to feed them from a "long-handled spoon." He must make them feel that he has an interest in them, personally, and must preach the Word in simplicity and all sincerity. If mothers cannot attend church, if they will not, the pastor must carry the message to them. He must be instant in season, always abounding in the work of the Lord.

The line, mapped out above, is not easy. Sometimes you will knock at a door and fail to gain admission. Go again and again, pray for that home and God will open the way. I knew of a pastor who asked a mother, in her home, if he might have a word of prayer. She said, "No, I have no time to fool with you." Again, he went to that home and was received with kindness. Poor, tired mothers, they need our prayers, our love and our sympathy.

Church Loyalty.

S. A. COTTON, ENFIELD AND HALIFAX.

With the church, as with any other organization, its progress depends on the fidelity of its membership.

It is a painful fact that large numbers of our people do not seem to appreciate the importance of their solemn vows taken at the altars of the church when they pledged their love and service as well as their means. Vows which, if faithfully kept, would promote their own spirituality and greatly increase the efficiency of the church in its blessed mission among men.

God has constituted and ordained the church to reveal the Christ to lost men. How important the mission! What great responsibilities rest upon the church! Responsibilities sufficient for the energies of all the people, and yet too many are ready to forsake the altars of their church on the least provocation. The disloyal member is the burden of pastors and official boards. He is the one man who cannot be depended on; certainly not when duty and the life of the church seem to conflict with his own narrow conceptions of things. Such a man can go to church on the Sabbath day, or he can remain at home. He feels no obligation to be in his place. He pays his assessments, if it is convenient, otherwise his conscience does not trouble him. Sacrifice, for the sake of the church, does not enter his thoughts. If the pastor suits him he pays his assessment, if the pastor has plowed too deep into his life of selfishness he decines to pay his vows. But there are always those who can be depended on to sustain the church. They are the faithful few—the champions of righteousness in every community—men and women who have pleasure in serving the church for the sake of its traditions and because they love the Saviour who bought it with His own precious blood. May their number steadily increase.

REV. J. E. HOLDEN, P. C.

Through request, I send the following statement about our church at this place. I want to emphasize the fact that we are not dead by any means. But that we are living at all seems almost miraculous. But few know how dark the shadows and deep the waters crossed. But thanks to Him who said, "The gates of hell should not prevail against his church," we feel that there is a better day for us, and the east is bright with the dawning. We are a unit in our purposes and "the people have a mind to work." There are no old feuds between families that the writer has learned of, and every membership seems friendly with every other, and all in good spirits. We are going to make a mighty effort to pay off a debt on our parsonage this year, raise the assessment in full, add many new-born members to our church and grow in grace ourselves. To this end we ask the prayers and sympathy of every reader. Personally, I am thankful my lot has fallen here. I ought to have said I expect a number of new subscribers to the Advocate, too.

How to Raise the Collections.

REV. W. C. MERRITT, CONWAY CIRCUIT.

On account of brevity, this article must be suggestive rather than exhaustive. It is intended as an exhortation to the pastors, instead of the individual membership.

1. Begin early in the year. By this course the church becomes convinced that the pastor is in earnest, and that this feature of the work is of very great importance. The pastor who succeeds in making his flock feel that he means to succeed has made a good start indeed. As a general thing more can be accomplished by repeated efforts, and a little at a time, than can be done by a single effort. The brother who contributes in the early part of the year is just as liable to contribute again at the close of the year, as the one who does not. Giving is contagious; and we believe this applies as to frequency as well as otherwise. The possibility of bad health, short crops, and unsold products, should warn the pastor that it is unsafe to wait, and, therefore, his only safety is to work now. With faith in God, confidence in the membership, and determination and tact, we believe it is possible for nearly every pastor in the Conference to raise all missionary claims during the first half of the Conference year. If you have been waiting, wait no longer. Begin today. Set your mental machinery to work on some plan this very hour! The fight is on, and Satan will deter you if he can. Few things would please him better than for you to fail.

2. Earnestness should characterize our every movement. A merely mechanical effort is a foredoomed failure; and, it ought to be. Men do not succeed that way in anything now. Inclination begets opportunity. Then approach your subject as though you had no thought of failure. Let there be certainty in your eye, and assurance in the tone of your voice. Doubts invite failure.

3. Furnish your people with plenty of literature. The young, especially, will be quickened to effort by it.

4. Be a praying pastor. Talk to God about it on your knees in your closet; and talk to your constituency about it in their homes, their stores, their fields, and wherever you have opportunity.

"What Shall the Harvest Be?"

REV. W. W. ROSE, WELDON STATION.

We know, in part, what it was for 1903, what shall it be in 1904? In 1903 there were received into our church in the Warrenton District 373 persons on profession of faith. By an examination of the minutes for the past ten years, we find that this was not the worst year nor the best year for the ingathering of souls.

In 1902 there were 489 persons received on profession of faith, while in 1898 there were only 215 received. In these figures we find cause for thanksgiving. God is still with us, and we should be encouraged. The pillar of fire and the cloud still guide us. They also prompt us to ask the question, Can we not do better than this for this year?

With twenty-two preachers in the active work, (10 others preaching occasionally), 7,311 members, and 585 officers and teachers in the Sunday-schools, can we not lead more than 373 people to Christ in twelve months' time? With the large resources at our command I do not believe that we are measuring up to our responsibility on this District. With the thousands in our borders unsaved, holding as we such a commanding position among the people, I believe we can do better than we are doing, and God expects us to do it.

But the question comes: How can we do more successful work in winning men to Christ? It would be proper here to discuss the place of prayer, to speak of the importance of the preaching of the fundamental truths of the Bible by men who heartily believe them and who have experienced their saving power in their own lives, and to exhort our people to repent of their sins in order to prepare the way for the coming of our Lord; but I am commanded to be brief.

There are three things, however, that I must stress.

First of all, we must give the Holy Spirit his rightful place in this work. We must rely chiefly upon Him and seek for power of Him.

Although the Master had had the apostles in training for three years, yet He commanded them to remain in Jerusalem till they were endued with power from on high.

When this baptism came they were ready for service.

The Christian worker needs not only to "have the spirit," but to be "filled with the Spirit." This filling with the Spirit is to be repeated in the lives of God's servants. We are not filled once for all. The power which was given us yesterday will not do for today's work. See Acts ii. and iv., when Peter and his associates were not only filled on the Day of Pentecost but again and again as power was needed.

Second. It is very important for us as a church to keep before us prominently our mission. Our chief work is to save souls. It is very important to build churches and parsonages, to make full collections and to engage in works of charity, but we should let nothing overshadow this supreme work of the church.

Chas. Wesley could write:

"'Tis all my business here below
To cry, "Behold the Lamb."

The early Methodist preachers were men of one work, and this accounts, in part, for their marvelous success. Conditions are different now and we must do work that they did not do, but we should make every thing else secondary to the church's noblest work, the bringing of men to Christ.

Not only is it important that the ministry take this view of her work but the whole church needs to accept this as her supreme mission.

Our Sunday-school workers need to know that God expects them to be soul winners, and not simply teachers of the facts and doctrines of the Bible.

Third. Personal work in winning men to Christ must have a larger place in our plans to save them.

We need to adapt ourselves to the changed conditions about us. This is the day of personal work in political and business circles. We must go to men with the gospel. When we have opened the church and put a preacher in the pulpit, if men will not come and accept our Lord's gospel, the gospel must be carried to them, and, in a certain sense "compel them to come in."

May the Great Head of the Church give us many hundred souls this year as seals to our work as a church.

Our Boys and Girls

Middleton, N. C., Feb. 21, 1904.

Dear Advocate:—It has been some time since I have written you a letter. Mamma and I have been on a visit to Virginia, and I want to tell the little orphans something about my trip. While there I visited Fortress Monroe, where President Davis was imprisoned, and the National Soldiers' Home near Hampton. It is quite a large place. Has nice buildings and beautiful grounds. The soldiers are blest to have such a nice place in which to spend the remainder of their lives. I also visited the yard of the Shipbuilding and Drydock Company at Newport News. They employ between six and seven thousand men and pay them off for their week's work in twenty-five minutes. I went on board the new battleship Missouri and saw the large twelve-inch guns. Capt. Cowles, commander of the ship, married President Roosevelt's sister.

Will close for fear of the waste-basket. I enclose twenty-five cents for the Orphanage.

Dear Advocate:—I am a little girl nine years old. Papa takes the Advocate and I enjoy reading the children's page. I do not go to Sunday-school for it is not near enough.

I will answer David Britton's question: It was Zaccheus that climbed the sycamore tree, and he climbed it to see Jesus.

Now I will ask one: Who was it that wished not that the Lord was departed from him?

Dear Advocate:—I have just finished reading the little folks letters and enjoyed them very much.

Papa takes the Advocate and I always read the letters before I read anything else.

I go to school, and have to walk about a mile. I lost several days on account of snow and bad weather. The ground is covered with snow now.

Our school will close in April. We are practicing for the closing day.

We have a new pastor this year—Rev. W. B. Humble. We like him and his family very much.

I enclose ten cents for the Orphans.

Dear Advocate:—We are two little sisters and our ages are twelve and nine years old. We go to Sunday-school every Sunday we can. Our superintendent is Mr. J. J. Hays, and our pastor is Rev. B. C. Thomson, and we all like him fine.

We will answer Mamie Hunley's question: Elijah went to heaven without dying.

Now we will ask one: Who carried away the iron gate?

We will close. Please find enclosed ten cents for the orphans.

Dear Advocate:—I am a little girl nine years old. This is my first letter to the Advocate. My papa is a preacher and of course we enjoy the Advocate. I enjoy Brother Jenkins' writing about the Orphanage. I am going to try to make something for the orphans this year. We came here from Battleboro. I hated to leave Battleboro, but the people here have been very nice to us, and I think we will like to live here.

I saw a letter from Julia Wetherington. I visited her once and I hope I can go to see her again, as I had a very pleasant time.

Much success to the Advocate.

Southern made shoes are finding ready sale in the Southern, Southwestern and Middle States, and are growing more and more in favor.

An order, for a large Southern shoe store, was placed by the manufacturer, from its Boston office, a few days ago, for $11,500, the product of the Ninth Street factory of Geo. D. Witt Shoe Co., Lynchburg, Virginia, for the popular brands of "Dixie Girl" and "Roxie Ward" shoes.

This dealer buys for three large shoe stores and will sell, in the course of a year, from $30,000 to $40,000 of the Ninth Street Factory shoes.

No language can make a stronger argument for the splendid value of this line of goods, than the above facts.

The cuts of these two ladies' shoes, may be seen weekly in this paper, and it will pay you to read the advertisements setting forth the advantages over other rival brands.

The "Dixie Girl," the best shoe on earth at $1.50 retail, and the "Roxie Ward," the equal of any $2.50 shoe for $2.00, are pet names in the South.

The name "Americus," stands for the best $3.50 man's fine shoe sold in the South, which is also advertised in this paper and deserves your careful consideration.

Ask your dealer to show you these specimens of art in footwear; noted for perfection in fit—beautiful in style—absolutely solid leather made.

Our own District Secretary, Mrs. R. H. Whitaker reports gains in numbers and finances on the Raleigh District. Her full report will be published later.

Last week in noticing the regular meeting of the Edenton Street Auxiliary, an omission was made of the fact that the honor of life-membership was conferred on Mrs. J. W. Evans and Mrs. B. F. Dixon.

Mrs. Grace Scott, who has given years of faithful service to the China Inland mission work, is now in this country. She has been recently in Atlanta; and as she passes through our State on her way to Virginia, the Union Missionary organization of Raleigh hopes to have her in our city for a day or two. She is represented as a woman of fine address and peculiar grace and power as she delivers her message from the people hungering for the gospel in the far East.

A few weeks ago there came a letter from Mrs. E. M. Garner, Dover, Craven County, enclosing an article she wrote on "Patience Under Affliction;" and while there is not room for it in our column, we would like to endorse fully the sweet spirit of resignation, and the unfaltering trust it contains.

She has been a "shut in" for many months, and would enjoy letters—will not some of our sisters write to her occasionally, giving her news of their church work, etc.?

No doubt every Auxiliary followed "Aunt Lucy's" suggestion, and at its March meeting elected a delegate and an alternate to the Annual Meeting at Elizabeth City, April 20-25. Let loyalty to her and her suggestion go still farther: allow nothing to prevent the delegate, or delegates, from attending the meeting.

The Auxiliary that gladly provides a fund for the traveling expense and sends its delegate "rejoicing on her way," will find it money well spent, and will receive "an hundred fold" increase of missionary intelligence and enthusiasm when the delegate returns with all the new plans and purposes for the year's work, and imparts the zeal, interest and inspiration which association with her sisters in the Annual Meeting always creates.

Surely we should take fresh courage and "press with vigor on," as, week by week, we hear the glad song of rejoicing and thanksgiving over success and victory, here and there, in our great missionary cause.

Hear the joyful refrain from Rockingham, the banner District of our Conference Society:

Dear Mrs. Dixon:—The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Rockingham District has held its first District Meeting, and it has been such a success, I want to tell you about it.

Our Secretary, Miss Emma Page, has been one of the best and most faithful Secretaries in our Conference Society.

Though this is the first District Meeting she has held, she has not failed to do her duty to each Society; but by visiting each one, and keeping close personal oversight of them, she has constantly built up the work, until we think we have the best District, and know we have the best District Secretary in the whole Conference Society.

We reached Biscoe on Friday morning, March 4th, and found the most cordial of welcomes awaiting us. Biscoe is a small town, but I never have seen people with larger hearts, or people who more gladly opened their homes to delegates and visitors.

Friday evening Mrs. Frank Page, who is President of the Biscoe Society, and to whom we owe much of the success of our meeting, opened her hospitable home, and gave a most delightful reception to the delegates, visitors and ladies of the village.

The first meeting convened at 10 o'clock on Saturday morning. Miss Emma Page was in the chair. The devotional exercises were led by Miss Mary Pescud, our beloved Missionary to Brazil, and were very impressive and helpful.

After the opening exercises, Miss Emma Page arose and assured us of our warm welcome. The address was responded to by Mrs. Miller, of Raleigh, one of the visitors, in behalf of visitors and delegates.

Reports were then called for. Ten out of the fifteen Societies in the District were represented. Most of the Societies had good reports, and many had grown both in membership and contributions.

The little Society at Star deserved to be called the "Banner Society," for having only four members, the contributions amounted to seventeen dollars.

Aberdeen and Biscoe both deserved great credit for having raised larger amounts than any of the others.

Miss Emma Page conducted the opening exercises of the afternoon session. Her talk was searching and strong, and such an one as will stay with us and make us better women.

A paper on the "Importance of Juvenile Work" was read by this writer. [I am sure it was a good one.—Mrs. D.]

Mrs. Walter Steele, of Rockingham, gave us a very helpful talk.

The remainder of the afternoon was given to Miss Mary Pescud. She talked to us of our work in Brazil, and as she told of the faithfulness of our workers there, our hearts were touched, and we determined to be more faithful in our efforts at home.

Sunday morning at 11 o'clock Rev. G. A. Oglesby gave us one of his best missionary sermons. As we followed his words, we realized the fatherhood of God as never before, and felt the great love He has for His children.

Sunday evening Miss Mary Pescud again spoke to us, and presented the great need of the gospel in Brazil. We felt the need and longed to send the Blessed Word to those who know it not. When Miss Mary asked for sixty dollars for a scholarship in her school, the women gladly responded, and in a few minutes, very quietly, the money was raised. The scholarship is to be called the Emma Page Scholarship. This money will be raised from year to year as it is needed.

I might add much, but even then I could not tell all the heart to heart talks, the songs and prayers, the new ties of friendship and the many things that made our first District Meeting one long to be remembered.

Home Missions in the Warrenton District.

The Woman's Home Mission Society has five Adult Auxiliaries and one Juvenile in the Warrenton District, with an aggregate membership of 146. These are at Henderson, Warrenton, Littleton, Weldon, Windsor and Milwaukee, on the Conway Circuit.

Each of the Adult Auxiliaries reports boxes sent to our Orphanage, and most of them have taken an orphan to clothe regularly.

They report through our Conference journal having raised during the last Conference year, $480. One Auxiliary in a church, the total membership of which is only 160, has 40 members, with an average of $6.00 per member raised and paid to the local and connectional work during the fiscal year just ended.

It is the purpose of the Home Mission Auxiliary to take the place of the "Local Aid Society," and when this is done the pastors report much helpful service.

The Conference Home Mission Society within the last five years has granted about $200 to parsonages on the Warrenton District, and at the last annual meeting $150 was granted by the General Board.

These are the dry statistics, but they do not count the many ways in which help is rendered both in the local and connectional work. Would that we could claim an Auxiliary on every charge.

MRS. IDA T. WILKINS,
District Secretary.

This is my home District, for Warren is my beloved native county, and these "dry statistics" are beautiful poems to my ears. I feel that all the Districts will join me in joyful congratulations to Mrs. Wilkins and her faithful co-laborers, also, in the earnest hope that this may prove to be the dawn of the day when the Home Mission Society may claim every woman in the District as a member and a worker.

Weldon Auxiliary.

Mrs. Wilkins is too modest to tell that the Auxiliary averaging $6.00 per member is her own—Weldon. The little city on the Roanoke must feel very grateful to these elect ladies for their many good works. I trust their brethren at the bar, behind the desk, in the counting-room, in the press-room, give them hearty sympathy and active co-operation.

A Word to the Brethren of the Pulpit.

Fremont's good pastor has gladdened our hearts with his kind words, and we thank him sincerely. The sympathy and co-operation of the brethren are always gratefully appreciated for the women of the Home Mission Society know that they should be their "towers of strength."

Will not others write of the work in their charges?

Miss Elizabeth Davis, Deaconess.

Warren County has the proud privilege of having given a daughter to the first class of Deaconesses ordained in the M. E. Church, South—Miss Elizabeth Davis. In her errands of mercy she is daily proving herself a living and loving "Sister of Jesus."

This seems a charmed name, for Warren County has, also, given a lovely Elizabeth Davis to the Foreign work, but the pleasure of telling of her belongs to my sister in charge of the W. F. M. S. column.

The Presiding Elder of the Warrenton District.

All Home Mission women rejoice with the fortunate people who have Rev. G. F. Smith as their District Bishop. He is a firm believer in the Woman's Home Mission Society, and will instruct his ministers who may not fully understand its work and worth. He is the originator of this admirable issue of our Conference organ, and we here tender our sincere thanks.

Delegate from Brooklyn Auxiliary, Raleigh.

At the latest meeting of the Brooklyn Auxiliary, Miss Fannie Jenkins was elected Delegate to the Annual Meeting at Selma, April 27 to May 1. A happy selection, for Miss Jenkins will prove an able and faithful representative.

A Welcome Communication.

"We have three H. M. Societies on Fremont Circuit, with a membership of 42. They are all doing good work, but I write especially of the Fremont Society because I know more of it. There are 22 members in the Senior department, and a Mite Brigade or junior department with 34 members.

At their recent meeting Mrs. J. B. Exum was elected President, Mrs. C. C. Aycock, First Vice-President; Mrs. J. L. Hare, Second Vice-President; Mrs. W. M. Darden, Third Vice-President, and Miss Ellen Cutchen, Secretary and Treasurer.

The Third Vice-President has charge of the Mite Brigade, and the little tots may prepare to do some exercising under the guidance of sister Darden. They are practicing now to give a public entertainment, and judging the future by the past, the church will be packed to hear the recitations and songs of the children.

The Seniors have recently given an entertainment to a crowded house, and it was as enjoyable a program as you could get up anywhere. The proceeds were $22.75.

In their monthly meetings they follow the program given in "Our Homes," and spend part of the time in asking and answering the questions in the course of study. I give this fact because I learn that no other Society in the Conference is taking this course of study, and I commend the example to all.

The report for the fiscal year just closed, they tell me, is the best in their history. The dues have been applied as the law directs. Brevard School has been remembered and local interests have been greatly strengthened. A loyal and a royal Society.

I should state that the success of this work is largely due to the untiring labors of Mrs. C. C. Aycock, the retiring President.

Truly,
D. L. EARNHARDT.

I believe that there is no away, that no love, no life, goes ever from us; it goes as He went, that it may come again, deeper and closer and surer, to be with us always, even to the end of the world.—Geo. MacDonald.

WILL IT PAY?

We present to our readers this week the Warrenton District Edition of the Raleigh Christian Advocate.

Rev. G. F. Smith, the Presiding Elder, has labored strenuously in making this edition possible. The preachers and some of the laymen of the District have exerted themselves nobly in the preparation of thoughtful, timely articles which must be of great value to the attentive reader. The management of the Advocate has gone to considerable expense in making this edition worthy of the great section of North Carolina Methodism to whose interests it is dedicated.

The question is, Will it pay? Will the financial and mental expenditure yield a spiritual profit to the preachers and laymen and lay women and boys and girls within the bounds of Warrenton District? We must remember that spiritual life is the main objective point of all church effort. Christ died to make spiritual life possible. Such high appraisal by the Son of God must make it the pearl of great price in the estimation of a praying, working church.

Will it pay? Yes. There can be no doubt of it in the light of the following considerations:

The church paper, as a vehicle of church intelligence increases church love—that is, love for the church which in the present accommodated sense, means love for God. It is an age-old principle that knowledge is one of the foundation stones of love. We cannot love that about which we know nothing. The more we know a lovable thing the more we love that thing. Love is the fountain head of all spirituality. So it can be plainly seen, without the use of any formal syllogism, that the church paper, as a vehicle of church intelligence, is an eminent contributor to the spirituality of the church. The Raleigh Christian Advocate gives the news of the church. Look especially on our ninth page and see if this is not true. It furnishes knowledge of Christian doctrine and Christian activity. Read the many excellent articles furnished by our best men and women. It is simply impossible for any Methodist to assimilate the knowledge furnished by the Advocate without gaining a constantly increasing spiritual robustness. Take your most indifferent church member and place in his hands the Bible and the church paper, and you open the way for him into a place of large spiritual power. A paper-reading church makes a Bible-practicing church, and vice versa. When will our people ever learn this?

The church paper introduces the reader to spiritual companions. Read the first few verses of the First Psalm and then you will be better able to appreciate the significance of the foregoing statement. It is simply impossible to maintain our spiritual life unless we maintain a spiritual companionship. We may have spiritual companions in the flesh. This is good. But what will it amount to as long as we maintain the companionship of worldly worthless thoughts, expressed in the cold type of book and newspaper? We may be forced to have unspiritual companions in the flesh and yet be able to overcome the adverse influence by mingling in the company of good thoughts. No one can take the Raleigh Christian Advocate and associate for one Sunday afternoon for instance with the various writers represented in the columns without rising on Monday morning with a clearer spiritual sky. It is our effort to place in the columns of the Raleigh Christian Advocate no reading matter that is not calculated to mentally instruct and morally strengthen. So in the item of companionship the Advocate is a blessing to the spiritual life.

The church paper is the messenger of Christ in the home. It is the assistant to your preacher. It preaches in type the very gospel which he preaches in spoken words: "My word shall not return unto me void." This is eternally true, and it applies to the word preached through the church paper. The reason why there is such spiritual barrenness in some families lies in the fact that the influence of the preached word heard in the morning is nullified by the worldliness preached by secular papers during the remainder of the day. If the preached word heard in churches were only buttressed by the preached word read in the home, what a spiritual force would enter into the life of the church!

The Advocate this week will go out freighted with an unusual amount of good reading matter, furnished mainly by the soldiers of the Cross in Warrenton District. It will reach hundreds of people who do not take their church paper. Many of them, we trust, will conclude to retain the visitor in their homes. If they should not thus conclude, we feel assured that this one edition will accomplish a vast amount of good. "It will pay."

The Ideal Steward.

REV. R. L. DAVIS, BERTIE CIRCUIT.

He is first of all a man of solid piety. He is not carried about with every wind of doctrine. He has stability. You can count upon him. His piety reveals itself in his every act. He avails himself of all the means of grace suggested in the General Rules and others offered by the church. Thus he is a Sunday-school member; takes part in prayer-meetings; holds family prayers daily; active in all movements for the salvation of souls, and a strong supporter of his pastor in every good word and work. The golden rule is his motto.

Again, the ideal steward is a student. He understands God's Word as taught and interpreted by our church. He studies our theology; reads our literature; keeps himself posted on the present day history of our church by use of our Advocates and other organs, and patronizes Methodist institutions. Thus he loves our doctrine and discipline, and is ready at any time to preach the one and defend the other. A spirit of charity permeates his life.

The ideal steward possesses both natural and acquired ability. He is partly born and partly made. He is the product of Divine operation and human co-operation. God has given him personal magnetism and mother-wit. Men follow his leadership and they don't know why. Often they follow it and don't know it. He is tactful—a born diplomat.

To these endowments he has added the following acquirements: Promptness, liberality, energy and broad-mindedness. The model steward is found at every post of duty ready for action. His pocket-book has been converted. Not like that traditional brother who wanted to take his out before he was immersed. He looks after the office of steward and the preacher's interest with the same energy he conducts his own successful business. And, above all, does not get out of humor with every man who does not agree with him. The rule or ruin steward is a long way from the ideal.

The Part of the Laity in Revivals.

REV. B C. ALLRED, WARREN CIRCUIT.

The success of a revival depends very largely upon the laity. I have never known a revival of much power in which the laymen did not take an active part. The preacher can not have a revival independent of them. They must be his coworkers and many a meeting fails utterly, because the laymen fail to do their part. The very presence of the members adds much to the success of a meeting. Let the preacher go to his church Monday and find the pews well filled and he gathers inspiration at once. He can preach better; he can sing better, and he can pray better; and their presence also shows to the unsaved that there is something real in religion. A skeptical lady said to me on one occasion: "If there is anything in religion, why don't the members of the church attend these meetings more and show more interest in the salvation of sinners?" Just a word from a neighbor has been the means of many a man's salvation. Another way by which laymen can aid in a revival is prayer. A few consecrated men and women who go to God in prayer are worth more in a revival than a house full of prayerless, wordly minded members. On one occasion I had held several meetings with only a few conversions, and a good man who had attended them would come to me at the close of each meeting with this encouragement: "I think we will have a good meeting at our church. At last I asked him why he thought so, and he said: "We are told to ask and that it shall be given, and there has not been a day since our last meeting that I have not prayed to God to give us a good meeting this year, and I believe He will do it." We had a fine meeting at his church from the first service and many were gathered into the fold. May God impress upon the minds of the laity of this district, that upon them largely depends the success of the meetings this year.

Hobgood Circuit.

REV. D. B. PARKER, P. C.

Hobgood Circuit was formed in 1898, being a part of the Scotland Neck and Williamston and Hamilton Circuits and Tarboro Mission. It consists of four churches—Hobgood, Palmyra, Williams Chapel, and Epworth.

Two of these, Hobgood and Palmyra, are in Halifax County, one, W. Chapel in Martin County and one, Epworth in Edgecombe County. The membership has increased from 86 to 135. A parsonage valued at $800, and a church costing $700, have been built. On these there is a debt of $500.

The charge has gradually increased in membership and financial ability. There are no large or rapidly growing towns in its territory, hence we cannot expect such rapid growth as in more populous centres. Agriculture being the chief industry, we have almost a permanent citizenship, identified in interest with the upbuilding of the material and spiritual interests of the community. We think the future of this field is promising.

Dr. J. J. Tigert will preach the annual sermon at the approaching Commencement of Converse College.

The editorial in last week's Nashville Advocate, entitled "Spiritual Selfishness," is a diamond of the first water.

The Central Methodist, Louisville, Ky., has begun its thirty-eighth annual volume. The Central is one of our newsiest exchanges.

The Board of Education, M. E. Church, South, will hold its annual meeting at the Publishing House, Nashville, Tenn., on April 27.

The stewards of McKendree Church have been offered $115,000 for the site of McKendree Church, but they have decided not to sell.

Instead of "13,000" as the population of Warrenton District, read "130,000." This mistake of our own appears in Rev. G. F. Smith's article.

By the appointment of Rev. C. H. Greer to Pinar del Rio, the occupation by Methodism of every provincial capital in Cuba, has been made complete.

Rev. F. L. Wiseman, so pleasantly remembered by our last General Conference, has a congregation of over 6,000 at Birmingham Mission every Sunday.

Dr. Parkhurst, editor of Zion's Herald, Boston, prophecies that the approaching General Conference of the M. E. Church will restore the time limit.

We are glad to note in the last Nashville that its efforts for new subscribers are being rewarded with success. Many new subscribers have been enrolled lately.

The W. F. M. Society Conference for the Rockingham District raised sixty dollars to establish the "Emma Page Scholarship" in Miss Mary Pescud's school in Brazil.

Rev. J. H. Shore is assisting Rev. R. F. Bumpas in a series of meetings at Edenton Street Church this week. Brother Shore preached his first sermon on last Monday night. It was strong, spiritual, and evangelical. We look for a good meeting at Edenton Street.

Bishop Galloway was the principal speaker of the day on the occasion of the celebration of Founders' Day at Tulane University. His subject was "Twentieth Century Patriotism."

One of our Southern Methodist exhanges has a way of speaking laconically and wisely. It, in its last issue, says that it appreciates the many compliments, but that just now it is greatly in need of money.

Bishop Hoss will deliver, at an early date in Memphis, Tenn., a lecture on Paul's letter to the Ephesians. He dedicated Carondelet Street Church, St. Louis, on Sunday, March 13.

The Burlington News has a long article on "Our Friend, Geo. W. Anthony." All the good things said concerning Brother Anthony are deserved. He is one of our best and most useful laymen.

The contract for the interior work and the interior fittings of the Methodist Orphanage has been given. Work will be pushed forward with rapidity, and just as soon as this is completed within, the chairs and furnishings will be put in.

We sympathize deeply with Rev. and Mrs. G. R. Rood in the loss by death of their little boy, Ralph WaldoRood, who died at the age of eighteen months on March 16th. The body was buried at Cary. The funeral service was conducted by Dr. W. H. Moore and Rev. G. B. Starling.

The Warrenton Record says that Rev. J. H. Shore did some faithful and effective preaching in the meeting at Warrenton. The meeting was brought to an earlier close than was expected on account of Brother Shore's being called to Franklinton to officiate at the funeral of one of his members.

We clip the following from the Greensville Reflector: Last night's union services in the Presbyterian Church were well attended and very interesting. Rev. Mr. Hornaday preached from the text, "As many as are led by the spirit of God, they are the sons of God." There were several requests for prayer.

It was our pleasure to fill the appointment of Rev. G. R. Rood at Pleasant Grove on the Millbrook Circuit last Sunday. It is always a pleasure to ride behind the fine horse of Mr. Ed. House. We met a large and appreciative congregation and were privileged to spend a pleasant hour in the home of Mr. H. W. House.

Mrs. W. J. Lumsden, of Elizabeth City, N. C., desires all delegates to the Conference of the W. F. M. Society of the North Carolina Conference which meets in Elizabeth City in April, to send her their names so that homes may be assigned to them. She desires the names also of the District Secretaries who expect to attend.

Lieutenant-Governor W. D. Turner, being a Methodist by inheritance and profession, is always interested in the Raleigh Christian Advocate. We very highly appreciated his call at the office when he was in Raleigh last week. As lawyer and public official, he has a great many friends all over the State who greatly admire his qualities of head and heart.

We take pleasure in presenting to our readers this week the pictures of most of the preachers of Warrenton District. We regret that the late arrival of some of the photographs prevented us from grouping all of them as we desired. The Presiding Elder was very active in securing for us the photos of the preachers. We retaliate by printing his handsome face on the front page—something that he was not expecting. But our readers will not suffer.

The literary societies of Trinity College have arranged to hold an inter-society debate May 6th. The subject for debate will be: "Resolved, That the history of labor unionism for the past twenty years has shown a predominating tendency favorable to the best interests of the United States." The Columbian Society will be represented by Messrs. E. F. Lee and C. J. Harrell; the Hesperian Society by Messrs. E. O. Cole and C. R. Warren.

Publisher's Column

THE WARRENTON DISTRICT SPECIAL.

Several weeks ago, Rev. G. F. Smith, P. E., requested us to get out a special edition of the Advocate for the Warrenton District. This we have been glad to do, and we hope that we may issue a special edition for each District in the Conference during the year, if the Presiding Elders and preachers so desire.

Of course, it entails upon us extra labor and expense, but we feel confident that every department of work in each District will be helped by a special edition.

We publish extra copies of the Warrenton District Special this week, and we trust that every Methodist family in the Warrenton District may be visited by a copy.

We feel sure that every preacher in the District will make extra effort to send in a large number of new subscribers through the issuance of this special edition.

THE CAMPAIGN FOR NEW SUBSCRIBERS.

The Conference has requested each District to furnish 150 new subscribers by May 1, 1904. The report for each District will be made weekly in this column. Wilmington and Elizabeth City keep their places at the bottom. Watch out for them next week. The campaign is moving forward nicely. We expect Warrenton District to send in three hundred as a result of the special issue. The preachers and laymen are working hard. We thank them one and all.

NORTH CAROLINA EPWORTH LEAGUE CONFERENCE
DEVOTIONAL CHARITABLE LITERARY EVANGELICAL
EDITED BY REV. M. B. ANDERSON.

I Will Think About It.

He who labors personally to win souls to Christ often hears the statement, "I will think about it." This is but another way of saying "not now." We should show the person that he has already all the information he needs to come to an intelligent decision, and that thinking about it will bring him no nearer to Christ than now. All he needs to know is that he is lost and that Christ is the only Savior. These two things he knows already, and all that remains for him to do is to turn with hearty repentance and true faith to Christ. Show him that all the thinking he can do will not make decision any easier, and that a continued rejection of Christ will surely make it harder. One moment of decision accomplishes more than thirty or forty years of thinking about becoming a Christian.

Never tell a man to go home and think about becoming a Christian. Bring him face to face with the fact that he is a lost sinner, and urge his accentance of Christ then and there. People make a great mistake in thinking they can be saved when they please. They can be saved only when God chooses to save them. Now is God's time, not tomorrow.

In the Right Spirit.

How often we block our way in almost every useful endeavor by the spirit exhibited in the very act. How few of us lend a helping hand in a way that makes the recipient feel that he has conferred on us a great favor by allowing us to do him a kindness. In the main, we make him feel that it is a condescension on our part, and that we are conferring a great favor on him until he wishes he had never accepted anything at our hands.

How much good we might do if we had less of self and more of Christ. From the pulpit down often so much of self is seen that men are made to feel resentful toward all so-called Christian effort. Men sometimes think of us as hirelings laboring with hope of reward, rather than ambassadors of the Christ, impelled by the spirit of loving service. We sometimes speak of the glorious truths of the Gospel in such a way as to make the impression that we have no personal experience of those truths in our own souls.

Let the love of the Master, in all its persuasiveness, be manifested in every word and act of our being. Let every Epworthian see to it that he is filled with the spirit of the Master, and that, at least, in part, the motive which filled our Savior, that of lifting up fallen humanity, be the mainspring of all Christian endeavor. Let us seek the praise of the Master, not that of men. Let us fear lest after we have labored and toiled we shall be among them to whom the Lord shall say on "that day," "Depart ye workers of iniquity for I know you not." I am persuaded that much of our work for the Master is carnal, and if so, where is our reward?

A Difference.

It would be laughable if it were not so pitiable: the weak comparisons some draw between one man's public effort and another's. Mere whims of capricious minds are often the standard, and not a reasonable sensible estimate.

One man's voice and manner are more pleasing to us than another's, and these are made the bases of comparison by the ignorant, regardless of the thoughts expressed. Airy nothingness and shere nonsense if pleasingly said are complimented by them while sensible utterances are discounted if voice or manner is not so pleasing.

Let Epworthians who participate in meetings strive first to find something to say worth saying, and then make their delivery as attractive as possible.

No Time for Individuals.

Julia Ward Howe once wrote to an eminent Senator of the United States in behalf of a man who was suffering great injustice. He replied: "I am so much taken up with plans for the benefit of the race that I have no time for individuals." She pasted this into her album, with this comment: "When last heard from our Maker had not reached this altitude." "If we have no interest in individuals," says one commenting on this connection, "then we have no real interest in Christ, and he who waits till he can save many souls will never save one."—Selected.

Sunday School

Lesson for March 27, 1904.

Review.

Golden Text.—And Jesus went about all Galilee, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing all manner of sickness. (Matt. 4:23.)

1. The Boyhood of Jesus.—An ideal boyhood is portrayed in the words of Luke concerning Jesus, which tells us that Jesus increased in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and man. Let us direct the attention of every growing boy to the example of Jesus Christ as the one perfect pattern.

2. The Preaching of John the Baptist.—The great burden of John's message was a call to repentance. To every class of people he made the same appeal, urging them to forsake their sins, and bring forth fruits meet for repentance. The world needs to-day the same earnest call as was uttered by John the Baptist.

3. The Baptism and Temptation of Jesus.—From the baptism of Jesus we learn the lesson of implicit obedience to our heavenly Father's will. From his temptation we learn the blessed truth that he, having been tempted in all points like as we are, yet without sin, knows how to sympathize with us perfectly in every time of trial.

4. Jesus Rejected at Nazareth.—The rejection of Jesus at Nazareth is a warning against the peril of knowing Jesus as an historical character without accepting him as our personal Saviour. There are many at the present day who are treating the Saviour with as great contumely as those who thrust him out of the city of Nazareth.

5. Jesus Calls Four Disciples.—It was an exalted privilege which Andrew, Peter, James and John enjoyed, namely, that of being the personal disciples of Christ. We also have a high responsibility, for we are all called to be fishers of men. May God enable us rightly to win souls for the Master.

6. A Sabbath in Capernaum.—We may regard the Sabbath which Jesus spent in Capernaum as furnishing an indication of how Jesus spent all his Sabbaths. We may find in it also an illustration of the way in which we ought to spend all our Sabbaths.

7. Jesus Forgives Sin.—Sin is a universal malady. Jesus is the great Physician, who stands ready to heal our souls, if we come to him in faith, believing, as did the paralytic of old.

8. Jesus and the Sabbath.—In this lesson we have further light upon the way in which the Sabbath should be observed. Jesus emphasizes the need of being in the right spirit, and lays down as a universal principle that it is lawful to do well on the Sabbath.

9. Hearers and Doers of the Word.—The culmination of the Sermon on the Mount is found in the practical teaching that, to be saved, we must be doers as well as hearers of the Word.

10. Jesus Calms the Storm.—There is a beautiful suggestion in this incident. Human life is full of storms, but Jesus can still the fiercest tempest that ever beat upon a human soul, and bring us at last into a haven of peace, if we will only entrust ourselves to his care.

11. Death of John the Baptist.—History is full of instances of marvelous fortitude in duty. The death of John the Baptist furnishes a shining illustration of devotion to righteousness, which should nerve and stimulate us all to noble endeavor.

12. Jesus Feeds the Five Thousand.—It was a wondrous act of power to feed the multitude as Jesus did, while he was here upon the earth. But still more wonderful is his abiding provision for the needs of all humanity, to whom he offers himself as the true Bread of Life.

It is impossible for that man to despair who remembers that his Helper is omnipotent.—Jeremy Taylor.

CANCER CURED BY BLOOD BALM.—ALL SKIN AND BLOOD DISEASES CURED.

Mrs. M. L. Adams, Fredonia, Ala., took Botanic Blood Balm which effectually cured an eating cancer of the nose and face. The sores healed up perfectly. Many doctors had given up her case as hopeless. Hundreds of cases of cancer, eating sores, suppurating swellings, etc., have been cured by Blood Balm. Among others, Mrs. B. M. Guerney, Warrior Stand, Ala. Her nose and lip were raw as beef, with offensive discharge from the eating sore. Doctors advised cutting, but it failed. Blood Balm healed the sores, and Mrs. Guerney is as well as ever. Botanic Blood Balm also cures eczema, itching humors, scabs, and scales, bone pains, ulcers, offensive pimples, blood poison, carbuncles, scrofula, risings and bumps on the skin and all blood troubles. Druggists, $1 per large bottle. Sample of Botanic Blood Balm free and prepaid by writing Blood Balm Co., Atlanta, Ga. Describe trouble and special medical advice sent in sealed letter. It is certainly worth while investigating such a remarkable remedy, as Blood Balm cures the most awful, worst and most deep-seated blood diseases.

Gastritis,
So Pronounced by Physicians, Cured by Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy.

Huntersville, N. C., May 15, 1902.

Two years ago I was completely run down. I suffered from indigestion all the time, with gas on the stomach, and the trouble was pronounced gastritis. I had no appetite for anything, and felt no inclination to eat. This brought on nervous prostration, and the least excitement brought on a nervous spell and I could hardly control myself. I could not get any natural sleep as a result of this nervousness. I was under medical treatment for four years, and was not even benefited.

I then determined to try Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy, bought one-half dozen bottles and I commenced to improve when on the fourth bottle. I was much stronger, slept much better, did not have those nervous spells nearly so often, and knew that my general health was building up. My appetite was improved and I began to enjoy eating and what I ate agreed with me. With all my ailments I had neuralgia of the bowels, which caused me intense suffering. After I took six bottles of the Remedy I found I was certainly mending, and bought six more. Before I had finished the dozen bottles the neuralgia of the bowels was completely cured. I took in all a dozen and a half bottles, which restored me to good health. I feel that I owe my life to Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy. I was not able even to keep house, but had to employ help for everything; I was run down so that I felt that life was no pleasure in a certain sense. Now I am able to attend to all my household duties, and feel that I am some good, once more, to my family.

If any one has indigestion or nervous prostration, my advice is take Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy, and if one will only take enough to build up the system, it will surely cure.

The Christian Life: Its Relation to Education.

REV. J. M. RHODES, PRESIDENT LITTLETON FEMALE COLLEGE.

We cannot overestimate the importance of the spiritual life as an integral part of a girl's education. There is a force of Christian character that comes of growth and development, and that can come in no other way. A school can turn a bright young girl into a gay butterfly or into a cultured, thoughtful, womanly woman; the latter is difficult work and requires time, tact, and much effort. It also makes daily communion with God a necessity.

The conviction grows on me that there should be a very decided and intense spiritual life in every school. The advantages of it are very decided; they are many. The disadvantages come only of poor judgment and misguided religious enthusiasm. With a conservative and well-balanced management nothing but good can come of an intense religious life in school; and the good results that may be the outcome of such a life are incalculable.

There is no other period in life when young people so readily imbibe error. A true and earnest spiritual life in school helps greatly in the work of forming correct views, correct views of God, of the Bible, of life and love. There is no other time when the young are so much in need of such guiding and moulding influences as will shape their lives aright. The Christ life kept warm and ardent supplies just this need and does it as nothing else can.

One of the most considerable advantages that come as the result of an earnest and decided Christian life in school is elevation of purpose; high aims make high character and both are the direct results of an earnest and consistent Christian life. One who is held up to the level of high things and in close daily touch with the best qualities of the spiritual life for a few years during her formative period learns to live upon a high plane and is not easily satisfied with a lower life.

Fullness and broadness are thus developed. One of the prejudices against religion in our schools has been born of the erroneous conception that it begets narrowness; this is a great mistake. Narrowness can not come of living close to Christ. If an earnest Christian is narrow the contraction comes not of his spiritual life but from some other source.

A large part of the error that creeps into church life comes from two classes almost exclusively: people that have not been educated or those who have been educated in schools that were without Christ. One is never narrow by the aid of the Christ life; he may be in spite of it.

My observation and experience have both taught me that the worldliness of a worldly school has a much more baneful influence upon a young girl than that of a worldly home; hence our strenuous and endless endeavors to reach for the highest and best, and to have our pupils live as far away from the world and as near to Christ as possible.

There is not a greater need in the church today than that of trained Christian workers and there is no place where this work can be so successfully done as in the Christian school. There is therefore the closest relation existing between the Christian life and our educational work.

The Preacher and the Parsonage.

REV. J. G. JOHNSON, GARYSBURG, N. C.

Of the one hundred and sixty-six charges in the North Carolina Conference there are thirty-three, with several districts, which do not have a parsonage. The Warrenton District, with nineteen of its twenty charges, has parsonages. This is a good district, and is taking good care of all of its preachers but one.

To provide, equip, and care for the preacher's home is an important item in our church life and work. Parsonage conditions often affect very seriously the usefulness of the preacher in his work as preacher and pastor.

A building which does not properly protect from the cold, scantily furnished, with inside walls broken and dirty, the outside and surroundings with a tumbled-down appearance, no spare room where the preacher can be alone for study and meditation, and in an isolated location where the wife and children do not have proper protection in his absence, are conditions which do not help and inspire the preacher to his best service, especially when he first moves in.

Questions of location are often difficult. A house is not so easily shifted from place to place as was Abraham's tent. Responsibility, however, for these and some other things often rests largely with the preacher. Only men and women of extraordinary zeal and faithfulness will exercise themselves in this work when the preacher who is to be helped is indifferent and renders no assistance. That the preacher is called to minister in spiritual things does not excuse his neglect of these essentials on the material side.

In every permanently established charge are to be found a number of godly men and women, who, with the leadership of an enterprising preacher and a faithful wife, will provide, keep clean and in good repair the home of the preacher.

We do not need fine buildings, with rich and costly furnishings, but the parsonage should stand in the community a model of comfort, neatness, and cleanliness, inside and outside.

Consecration.

REV B. F. TAYLOR, BATTLEBORO AND WHITAKER'S CIRCUIT.

According to Mr. Webster's definition of the word, consecration means an act or ceremony of separating from a common to a sacred use, or dedicating a person or thing to the service and worship of God.

All truly consecrated persons will act in practical obedience to the will of God. Christ was truly and thoroughly consecrated to his Father's will which was clearly shown in his intercessory prayer in Gethsemane, "Not my will, but thine be done, O Lord." And through this perfect obedience to God, Christ achieved the grand victory over all enemies and became our Savior forever. Therefore perfect obedience to the will of God is necessary in order for us to be a disciple of Christ. (Luke 9:23.) If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily, and follow me. Self-denial is the great underlying element in consecration to the service of God.

Consecration also requires us to separate the evil from the good and practice only the good and do the right, therefore Christ says in Mat. 6.24: "No man can serve two masters; for either he will hate the one and love the other, or else he will hold to the one and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and mammon."

When all our people become thoroughly consecrated to God and His service, then men will become convinced that we are the people of God and not of the world. A consecrated man will shun the very appearance of evil, and come out from among them, and "be separate, saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing, and I will receive you." (1 Cor. 6:17.)

No truly consecrated man to the service of God will go around with the fumes of intoxicating liquors on his breath, and a deck of cards in his pocket, especially in the presence of his mother, wife or children, nor anywhere else as to that. Neither will he be a frequenter of the ball-room, gambling dens, or places of ill-fame. Nor will he carry the poison of hatred, wrath, strife, heresies, envyings and drunkenness in his heart or appetite. But the truly consecrated man will bear the fruits of the Spirit, which are love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faithmeekness, temperance: against such there is no law.

All our churches and church property should be consecrated solely to the service of God. We have no right to desecrate them by using them for any other purpose. All Methodists should use our Methodistic principles for the glory of God. Therefore, let us cherish them in our hearts, practice them in our homes, churches and communities. Then we will be better able to teach the "transgerssor thy ways and sinners shall be converted unto thee."

"What became of the little kitten you had here?" asked a lady visitor of the small girl.

"Why, haven't you heard?"

"No; was it drowned?"

"No."

"Lost?"

"No."

"Poisoned?"

"No."

"Then whatever did become of it?" said the lady.

"It growed up into a cat," was her reply.

Gardening at Last, Etc.

The first seeds were put in the ground in our garden to-day, March 17. Spring salad, collards and mustard, beets, English peas and lettuce were sowed and silver skinned onions planted; Irish potatoes also; cabbages will follow. Our salad onions are promising. By the by, we had a funny thing to happen yesterday. Some of our onions were cooked in the field. We were burning the leaves near the garden to kill the potato bugs, when lo, the fire got among those ordoriferous esculants, as Dr. Ivey would say, and cooked them limp and loud. The leaves had blown in from the woods.

We are feasting on hogs jaw and turnip salad now. If we just had the butter milk we would be feasting on the food of the gods. But our bovine kind of the feminine gender are not yielding much of the lacteal fluid, so oleaginous matter for the festive board is very scarce. A fresh cow would do as good as a dose of medicine.

A Word to the Working Sunday Schools.

Of the large number of our Sunday-schools that have promised to support an orphan, by sending us $5.00 per month, not one-third of them have paid anything this year. Some of them have not paid up yet for last year. If they would pay monthly or quarterly it would greatly help us. That would relieve us largely of our current expenses. These have to be met monthly. Our store bills must be promptly met. It is best for the schools to pay as they go also. They will enjoy it more. Those that pay most enjoy it most, and are most blessed. Lumberton is at the head of the list $9.31 this month, Grifton next. Brothers Pitman and Kean never tire of telling how much good it does them. So many of our schools, some of our strongest, are losing this blessing. Will not the Superintendents give them a chance? Organize, brethren.

Elizabeth City.

Elizabeth City is a hustling town. The suppression of the whiskey traffic does not seem to have impeded its progress. The improvements are marked, since I was there last. The Methodist Church is keeping time in the forward march. Our preachers there are the men to keep it to the front. D. H. Tuttle and H. M. North are a team. They will do things if they have to pull off their coats to do it. The building of City Roads was a move in the right direction. I have long advocated that method. There ought not to be any city mission churches. Let the large ones divide and set up for themselves at once. It will help the old church. Five talks on that Sunday made it a little lively for this Orphan Boy.

Sister Fearing, who keeps the best boarding house in town, kindly cared for me during my stay, except a night, a spent in the sweet home of Bro. W. J. Woodley. "Betsy" is a coming city. The railroad will be in operation soon.

The Washington District Conference.

The Washington District Conference will be held at Aurora, N. C., from May 11th to 16th, inclusive. The opening sermon will be preached at 11 o'clock, Wednesday morning, May 11th, by Rev. T. E. Thompson, of Washington, N. C.

Monday, May 16th, will be devoted entirely to Missions, and practical questions regarding this cause in our District will be discussed.

Committees of examination: For license, D. L. Earnhardt, W. Y. Everton and J. M. Benson; for orders and recommendation, W. S. Rone, R. C. Craven and W. H. Kirton.

The pastors will please prepare brief, written reports of their charges on subjects named in the Discipline, and have their Quarterly Conference records present for inspection.

The duration of the Conference, as indicated, is made necessary because the boat returns from Aurora to Washington only Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, and goes to Aurora only Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. To return Thursday would mean no District Conference. To return Saturday would mean to remain in Washington all day Sunday, or travel on a Sunday train, which is a deliberate desecration of the Sabbath. Hence the brethren of the District north and west of Washington will please arrange to arrive there Tuesday evening, May 10th, take the boat for Aurora Wednesday morning, and remain there till Tuesday morning, May 17. Let us all come together with one mind to confer in a spirit of prayer and love for the glory of God and the good of mankind.

MOSES.—Bro. Thomas W. Moses, son of Rev. T. C. Moses, late of the North Carolina Conference, was born August 5, 1855, departed this life February 15, 1904. Brother Moses was converted when eleven years of age, and joined the Methodist church, to which, and its great Head he was faithful until death. Brother Moses served his church in the capacity of Steward for a number of years before his death, and was a most faithful official servant of his church.

In his community he was one of the leaders in every good work. His was a most lovable Christian character, sweet-spirited and true. His friends were legion, for he had no enemies. As a husband and father he was as near a model as we find. As a Sunday-school teacher he was wide awake and devoted to his class. Truly a good man has gone. He will be most sadly missed in his community and church, but he has left the world richer because he has lived. He leaves a grief-stricken wife, four sorrowing children, and a host of friends to mourn their loss. We laid him to rest in the cemetery at Goldston, with the services of our church and the honors of the Masonic Fraternity, to await the sound of the trumpet which shall awake the dead. May heaven's richest blessings rest upon these sorrowing ones.

J. C. HUMBLE.

BRUTON.—Emma Kerans Bruton, youngest child of Titus Kerans, Pekin, N. C., was born July 24, 1878, was married to Marvin Bruton of Wadeville, N. C., January 14, 1903, and died February 11, 1904. Converted at the early age of twelve years, she connected herself with the M. E. Church, South, and lived a faithful Christian life till the day of her death. Gentle, kind and lovable in her nature and disposition, she drew a large circle of friends around her. Her nature was one that seemed to think no evil, and was the embodiment of patience. Having been married but little over a year, she and her young husband looked forward to a life of happiness. But how soon earthly hopes are blasted! While sitting near the fire, holding in her arms her two months' old baby, her clothing caught fire, and before the fire could be smothered, had so burned her that she died in a short while. Though horrible the means of her death, the end was peace, saying just before she died, "she would soon be at rest." May the comforting Spirit of a pitying Father sustain the grief-stricken husband and aged father, and overshadow in tenderness the motherless babe, and bring them all together in the "beautiful home of the soul."

Her former pastor.

J. W. HOYLE.

MOORE.—Mrs. Nettie L. Moore, wife of C. A. Moore, was born October 20, 1868, and died February 26, 1904, aged 35 years, 4 months, and 6 days. Sister Moore professed faith in Christ and joined the M. E. Church, South, at an early age, and in that relation lived a very consistent and devoted Christian. She enshrined herself not only in the hearts of her husband and children, but in the hearts of all who knew her.

She lived only a few days after she was taken with that fatal disease—pneumonia; but she laid down this life of pain and suffering bravely, and took up heaven's rest, to join her beautiful voice in the angelic anthems. "Her sun is gone down while it is yet day," and she reflected the true light from a Christly character, in sweetness, gentleness,, piety and love. She was very much devoted to her husband and children, self-sacrificing, willing, almost unconsciously, but with the spirit of true devotion, to lay down her life for those near and dear to her. Perfectly resigned to the will of our Heavenly Father, death had no fear, no dread. She met it bravely, peacefully, and triumphantly. The righteous beamlets that radiated from her life will linger about the loved ones in years to come. She leaves a grief-stricken husband, Charles A. Moore, and three little boys, to mourn their loss. It is a sore grief to them. May the blessing of God, in this sad hour, rest upon them. She was the daughter of Mr. G. G. and Mrs. Betty Moore, and sister of Mrs. Walter Reade and Mrs. Joseph Reade, and Miss Lizzie Moore, and Mr. Marion Moore, and Mr. Junius Moore.

ALL THE WAY.

DAVIS. — Miss Mollie Sharp, daughter of Van B. and Martha A. Sharpe, was born April 30, 1884, in Tarboro, N. C. When 16 years of age she joined the Methodist Church at Whitakers, N. C., under the pastorate of Rev. E. E. Rose, during a meeting conducted by Rev. E. C. Glenn. On the 26th of February, 1903, when only eighteen years of age, she married R. J. Davis, of Durham. On Saturday night, the 13th of February of this year she was called hence by the angel of death. This was a short married life, yet it was one filled with the richest joy and sweetest happiness. For devotedly and tenderly did the husband love and minister to her while she richly recompensed him by bringing sunshine and cheerfulness into his life. Indeed did she so continually give light and gladness to the life of others that she had earned for herself the name of "Our Little Sunshine."

Mrs. Davis was an earnest and devoted Christian, and in the church at Whitakers, had been a most faithful and helpful worker, and promised to be an equally efficient worker in the church, Main Street Methodist, which she had selected as her ecclesiastical home in Durham, had not death called her from the labors of the church militant to the blessedness and rewards of the church triumphant. By her cheerfulness and helpfulness she had rapidly made friends for herself while in Durham. They deeply mourn her going from them and will greatly miss her, and their sympathies go out to the widowed mother, now bereft of her only daughter and to the young husband, the light of whose light has gone out.

The funeral services were held at the family home on Sunday afternoon by Rev. W. L. Cunninggim and the interment was in Maplewood cemetery. Capt. J. H. Exum, her uncle, and Mrs. Watson, her cousin, both of Whitakers, attended the funeral services. W. L. C.

PASCHAL.—Mrs. Sallie F. Paschal nee Foust, wife of Mr. L. F. Paschal and daughter of the late Dr. H. M. Foust, of Randolph County, was born December 7, 1861, and died at her home in Goldston, February 23, 1904. Sister Paschal was converted to God and joined the Methodist church at the age of eleven years, in a meeting held by Rev. T. C. Moses, assisted by Rev. I. N. Mann, at Concord church in Randolph County. From that day she never gave any one room to doubt her faith in God or her loyalty to her church. To say that she was a Methodist does not express it, she was wedded to her church with a devotion that was beautiful. Her community will miss her most sadly. As a neighbor she was kind, thoughtful of others' welfore, sympathetic and always obliging. She loved to sacrifice that she might supply others' needs. She always loved her pastor and was a friend to his family. Her place in the community cannot be filled by another. Her church feels the stroke most keenly. She never missed a Sunday morning preaching service when she was able to attend church, and her presence was an inspiration to the preacher. She rejoiced to see the church prosper. She had taught the infant class in the Sunday-school for some time before her death, and she was always there when it was possible for her to go. She loved her class with a motherly love which led her through rough weather when not physically able to go, and made it her chief delight to teach and simplify the Word of God so that their young minds might grasp the truth. She was a mother to the motherless, and through the greatness of her love had taken a little orphan girl into her home, and into her heart, and was training her mind and heart for God. As a wife she was devoted and true, as a mother, affectionate and kind. During her illness she often said: "I want to get well that I may do more good," but as often said: "I am not afraid to die." After repeating the Lord's prayer with this writer during her illness, she said: "I am not afraid to die; there is not a cloud, not even a shadow, in the way."

She leaves a husband, one daughter, two sisters, one brother, and a host of friends to mourn their loss. We laid her remains to rest in the cemetery at Goldston, beside her daughter, in the presence of a large concourse of people to await the trump of God.

May heaven's richest blessings abide with the sorrowing ones.

Bible Reading.

REV. B. C. THOMPSON, HARRELLSVILLE CIRCUIT.

When we first cultivate the mind we ought to read the Bible, for as one has rightly said: "When we study the writings of men, it is well if, after much pains and labor, we find some particles of truth among a great deal of error; when we read the Scripture all we meet with is truth." In order that the first impression made on our minds be true, we should study God's Word and when we have grown to maturity the principle will be indelibly printed on our minds.

Then being filled with the Word of God, and with the spirit, we will be apt to deal largely with the truths gotten by reading God's Word. The Bible reveals to us the character and intellect of our Creator and Judge. By its careful study, the way of salvation is opened up for us, and it is there that God shows us the final destiny of man.

The Bible is adapted to every variety of taste, and it becomes the practical guide of all who study it carefully.

It has taken hold of the world as no other book ever has.

Nothing is more conducive to spiritual life than Bible reading.

We are taught to "Search the Scriptures; for in them ye think ye have eternal life."

We know that it has been the life of every reformation and when you see people interested in reading God's Word, great revivals are sure to spring up and many souls saved.

There is no book so well adapted to our improvement as the Bible.

It not only shows the way of all progress, but it incites us to go forward. It opens before us a path leading up and still onward, and if we read and follow its teachings, the angels will cheer us, and all that is good will lend us a helping hand. By reading the Bible we learn the best way of living, the noblest way of suffering and the most comfortable way of dying.

Let us study God's Word, using it as a matchless temple where we delight to contemplate the beauty, the symmetry and the magnificence of the structure and to increase our awe and excite our devotion to the God there proclaimed. The cheerless gloom which had brooded over the understanding of man would never have been chased away but for the beams of supernatural revelation. And as the Scriptures are manna given us from heaven, to feed us in the desert of this world, let us study it more carefully and be drawn closer to God ourselves, and by the light shining from our own lives draw others to Christ.

Roanoke Circuit.

REV. W. B. HUMBLE, P. C.

Again I take pleasure in writing a few words from Roanoke Circuit to the Special Edition of the Advocate for the Warrenton District. We are very pleasantly situated this year, are making some progress despite the unfavorable weather. We have a loyal people to serve whose delight it is to serve their church. Our Sunday-school work is far in advance of what it was the first of the year, and is increasing in interest, we are glad to say. We are expecting an enjoyable day Easter Sunday; we expect to have an Easter entertainment at Mount Tabor, the collection to go to the Orphanage.

The Parsonage Committee met yesterday and arranged to complete the parsonage as early as possible. The parsonage is located at Aurelian Springs—a nice healthy place—and will be a credit to the circuit when completed.

We are expecting a good year. Our motto is: Glorious revivals and collections in full.

Brethren, pray for us.

WHAT IS LIFE?

In the last analysis nobody knows, but we do know that it is under strict law. Abuse that law even slightly, pain results. Irregular living means derangement of the organs, resulting in Constipation, Headache or Liver trouble. Dr. King's New Life Pills quickly readjusts this. It's gentle, yet thorough. Only 25 cents at all druggists.

Being all fashioned of the same dust
Let us be merciful as well as just.
—H. W. Longfellow.

'The Negro is a Man.'
REV. W. S. ARMISTEAD
VS.
PROF. CHARLES CARROLL.
Some three years ago, as the reading public knows, Prof. Carroll published a book, "The Negro is a Beast; or, In the Image of God," in the book he goes to work and proves, by perverting the Bible, that the Negro is a beast.
This subject has been outraged from time to time by like arguments from different people, generally the ungodly.
Prof. Carroll by his wholesale onslaught, makes all these attempts insignificant. He says there is no soul where there is any other blood than Caucasian. He perverts the Scripture, arrays himself against churches and sects, and sets at naught the plain teachings of the Book that has been sacred in all ages.
Rev. Armistead feels it his sacred duty to defend the Bible and refute this outrage committed against the Negro.
For this purpose he has had under consideration for two years a book with the above-mentioned title, "The Negro is a Man." This book proves that the Negro has like relations to God as other races of the human family. It is a complete answer in every way to Prof. Carroll's argument. This book is now ready for the public. It is easy to see it will meet with ready sale.

THE WORLD AS WE SEE IT.

The Democratic members of Congress seem determined to have a Senate investigation of the Postoffice Department. The resolutions to this effect have been allowed to sleep in the Committee rooms. But notice has been given that a new resolution will be offered which if not adopted will at least occasion a lengthy debate. The excitement caused in the House by the report of the Fourth Assistant Postmaster General, in which incriminating reference was made to various Congressmen has by no means died out.

The failure of Sully, the would-be-king of the cotton market, brings into prominence the fact that every success has its dangers and may sprout failures somewhere. Sully's attempt to "corner cotton and bull the market undoubtedly helped to place millions in the pockets of Southern farmers, but it also brought financial ruin to many. The South is richer by millions than it was at this time last year, but the South has been hit hard by an unprecedentedly large wave of gambling mania. There are few towns of any consequence in the South in which the gambling spirit is not now stronger than ever before.

The Committee on Privileges and Elections will not make a report of their findings on the recent investigation of Mormonism. A sub-committee has been appointed to go to Utah and make the most thorough investigation of the Mormon Church, especially in its relations to the United States Government. This sub-committee will not make its investigations until after the Presidential campaign. The Republican members of the committee desire this on the plea that an investigation before the Presidential election will be influenced by political considerations. The Democratic members are willing to this provided that there be a bona-fide investigation after the Presidential election. The testimony recently offered by President Smith and others leave no room for doubt that no political party can hereafter afford to ignore the question. The menace of Mormonism is rapidly becoming an italicized idea in the minds of the American people.

That the city of St. Louis is still under the domination of the "World of Graft" is very evident from the experience of that city in conducting the primary elections on March 12. The election was for delegates to the State Convention which is to determine whether Folk or Hawes shall be the nominee. Of course the Hawes delegates were elected. Folk has always stood for law and order, and his adherents in the election were simply the victims of thug force which the police seemed determined not to restrain. We are sorry for the city of St. Louis. We are sorry for Folk. We are sorry for the whole nation. It seems that with all our boasted municipal machinery a great city cannot free itself from the dominion of thugs and thieves.

General Nelson A Miles has written a letter advising the National Prohibition party not to hold its convention until after the meeting of the political conventions. He bases his advice on the thesis that it is better to wait and give a chance for one of the great national political parties to espouse those principles which are in harmony with the principles of the National Prohibition party. In such an event prohibitionists will have an opportunity to advance temperance interests and other great interests at the same time.

It is hardly probable that the advice of General Miles will be taken, inasmuch as it is practically granted by all that no political party will dare to issue a direct, clear cut pronunciamento on the question of temperance.

One of the best evidences of the fact that North Carolina is a progressive State is the interest taken by the State in its health conditions. We have just received the Ninth Biennial Report of the North Carolina Board of Health for 1901-1902.

It is interesting to know that during these two years there were 1,814 cases of small pox in 55 counties in North Carolina, and that out of these there were only 48 deaths—21 white, and 21 colored.

The report of the sanitary conditions of the public buildings and institutions was in the main favorable. We cannot but feel, however, that the recommendation that the Senate and House of Representatives chambers be ventilated by keeping fires in the open fire places was very mild and incomplete, and that the real conditions demand the recommendation that there be a complete rearrangement and renovation of the capitol. Those who have been in the building during a session of the Legislature can appreciate the situation.

It is remembered by our readers that a bench warrant was issued for the arrest of V. E. McBee and K. S. Finch on the charge of conspiring to damage the piece of property known as the Atlantic and North Carolina Railroad. Mr. Finch was not in the State at the time, but Mr. McBee was arrested and, after a hearing before Chief Justice Clark, was placed under a bond of $2,000 for his appearance before the Superior Court which meets in Raleigh this week. The next day Judge Simonton dissolved the Receivership and the road was placed in the hands of the former officials. We do not see, how, in the light of the facts brought out, either Judge Clark or Judge Simonton could have done otherwise. The action of Messrs. McBee and Finch was foolish and very reprehensible.

Last week Mr. Finch came to Raleigh to answer before Judge Clark. Mr. Finch claimed that he had done nothing which could justify the charge of conspiracy. The hearing was had last Friday and Saturday. Mr. Finch was placed under the same bond as that of Mr. McBee for his appearance before the Superior Court in Raleigh this week. During the hearing Mr. Finch really took a very inconspicuous part as defendant. Most of the time was consumed in airing the charge and the answer to it that Governor Aycock agreed to stop the proceedings in the civil courts if the Federal Court should promptly dissolve the receivership. Governor Aycock denied the charge. There was warm feeling displayed on both sides.

It is the consensus of opinion that it would be wise to lease the Atlantic and North Carolina Railroad on good terms. The people are becoming very tired over the wrangle.

The ability of some of our Northern journalistic neighbors to "jump at a conclusion" not warranted by the general facts is finely illustrated in their discussions of the peonage question. To read these papers one not acquainted with the facts would judge that the South, loth to give up slavery, smarting under defeat in the great Civil Conflict, and inflamed by lust for filthy lucre, is establishing a regular system of peonage. Peonage in its last analysis is nothing but securing in the name of quasi-law labor for which no financial compensation is granted. That peonage is practiced here and there in certain Southern States is granted. We are sorry that it is the fact. But practical peonage has its true home in New York and other large cities, where human flesh, brains, brawn, and soul, are bought and sold with a heartless mercenary rapacity which is sufficient to shock every true heart, North or South. "Shinny on your own side" is an exhortation very applicable to our over-zealous Northern friends who at times are wonderful humanitarians at long range—from their own short comings.
