Dear Advocate:—I am a little girl seven years old. I go to Sunday-school every Sunday. Every-day school will soon start. My teacher is Miss Maggie Holloway. I will close for this time.

Your unknown friend,
GRACE OSBORNE.

Conway, N. C., Sept. 4, 1904.

Dear Advocate:—I am a little girl thirteen years old. I go to Sunday-school most every Sunday. Mrs. H. L. Lassiter is my teacher, and I like her very much. Mr. B. O. Blythe is our Superintendent. Rev. W. C. Merritt is our pastor, and I like him fine. This is his last year with us. I do hate it.

My papa takes the Advocate, and I enjoy reading the little girls' and boys' letters.

I will close with best wishes to all. Now I will ask a question: Who was the oldest man?

LUCY LASSITER.

Practical Jokes Among Animals.

BY J. MAYNE BALTIMORE.

Do birds, animals, etc., ever play practical jokes, and do they possess any sense of humor? These questions might be answered in the affirmative.

A wealthy gentleman living in San Francisco, Cal., has a small private menagerie in his large, handsome grounds. This collection of animals is principally for the amusement and pleasure of the gentleman's little girl and boy. In one large, airy cage were kept two magpies, a parrot, a crow, and a little squirrel (chipmunk). As a usual thing, they all dwelt together in a certain degree of harmony. They were, however, continually playing practical jokes among themselves. Everybody knows what natural thieves the magpies are. These birds will covertly pilfer everything that may be carried away. After stealing all sorts of little articles, the magpies will carefully secrete them somewhere. They are like the Western wood rat in their propensities. Apparently they steal just ont of pure mischief. The two magpies in the large cage were up to all sorts of pranks. Generally these tricks were played at the expense of the old crow. The latter had a habit of burying a part of his food. All that he could not devour at one time the crow hid away for future use. And now his troubles began. The magpies would stealthily watch the crow and discover where he cached his stores. Then when old Corvus was dozing away on his perch or not observing, the magpies would sneak over, dig up the food, carry it away, and secrete it elsewhere in the earth or in some nook or corner. Now when the crow looked for what he had buried, he could not find it. Then the two thievish magpies would have their fun. They would slyly watch the crow and enjoy his puzzled disconfiture. He would stride around, searching with a wise, mystified air. All this would set the scoundrelly magpies screaming and chattering in glee.

One day the wary old crow nodded with his eyes half open, and that was the way he caught the two thieves. He instantly retaliated by giving the rascals a good, sound thrashing. After that, there was no end of sport. Both magpies had to sleep, and while they snoozed the crow got even. He would dig up and carry away what the magpies had carefully hidden. Then the magpies would look puzzled, and the old crow would have his quiet chuckle off in one corner. So from day to day this went on.

This sport helped to demoralize the chipmunk. At first the little fellow seemed honest enough, but finally yielded to bad examples and took to stealing. He didn't take sides, but pilfered from the other three.

Crows and magpies are very fond of bright, brilliant things, and, to add to the sport, the children often tossed such little articles into the big cage. This only increased the general piracy, in which Mr. Chipmunk took a lively part.

Now all this was extremely funny for the parrot. From her high perch Polly watched the proceedings, sometimes with the gravity of a judge. It was much too far below her dignity to participate in such stealings. However, occasionally Polly would chatter, chuckle, and scream like a fiend at the four arch-conspirators, when the game grew very warm. And so the quartet war waged on.

Practical jokes generally end badly. So they did in this cage. War was finally declared between the magpies and the crow, and the chipmunk was also drawn into the brawl. From fun they fell to fighting over the thieving reprisals, until the three birds had lost nearly half of their plumage. Nor did the hapless little squirrel escape unscathed. Finally the gentleman was forced to separate the belligerants in the interest of a common peace. The magpies were placed in a cage with some Guinea pigs and white mice, while the old crow was thrown in exile among a flock of wild ducks and quails. Among their new associates the crow and the magpies had no encouragement to further practice practical jokes; while the chipmunk, having no companion but dignified old Polly, ceased from his pilfering.

CANCER CURED WITHOUT THE USE OF THE KNIFE.

Miss Alice Kidd of Caroline Co., Va., says she came to the Kellam Cancer Hospital of Richmond, Va., in June, 1900, for treatment of cancer in her right breast; after a few weeks there the cancer came out and breast healed nicely, when she came home and her health has been better ever since.

Three Strong Testimonial Commending Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy for Rheumatism.

Lowell, N. C., July 2, 1901.

A few years ago I was afflicted with rheumatism, which I think was caused by indigestion. For about 10 years I was confined to my bed two or three weeks every spring and fall, when I would be so bad off I could not move a muscle in my body. I tried several different doctors but they failed to do me any good. During these attacks my head was shaved, and mustard and fly plasters were applied to my head, back, shoulders and feet, but that treatment did it no good. Some friends in Charlotte advised me to try Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy. I bought half dozen bottles and took it. Finding I was getting better, I continued it until I took two dozen bottles, which made a permanent cure of me, as I have not had any symptoms of the trouble since. I consider Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy the finest medicine that is sold today. I have recommended it to several, and it gave satisfaction in every case. Before using Mrs. Person's Remedy my usual weight was from 135 to 145 pounds. Now I weigh 170 and my general health is good. JNO. C. RANKIN.

President Spencer Mountain Mills.
Lowell, N. C.

OILS CURE CANCER.

March 18, 1904.

Dr. D. M. Bye, Dallas, Texas.

Dear Sir:—I am very sorry I did not let you know sooner. My Cancer has been well ever since the middle of October and there is no sign of a break-out at all.

With all the gratitude I can command, I will give you my sincere thanks.

MARTHA W. WOOSLEY.
Point, Texas.
Age, 75 years.

There is absolutely no need of the knife or burning plaster, no need of pain or disfigurement. The Combination Oil Cure for cancers is soothing and balmy, safe and sure. Write for free book to the Originator's Office, Dr. D. M. Bye Co., Box 462, Dallas, Texas.

SPEND YOUR VACATIONS IN WESTERN NORTH CAROLINA.

In the summer the glorious mountains of Western North Carolina have no equal—the "Land of the Sky" and the beautiful "Sapphire Country" a natural paradise.

At all times of the year a pleasant spot, full of life, of color and enjoyment; rich with possibilities for health and recreation.

For temperature and climate, it is unexcelled. A record of the temperature kept at Sapphire for the past four years shows it to be an average of 69 degrees for the entire summer.

Lake Toxaway—elevation 3,000 feet. Asheville, N. C., and Hot Springs, N. C., at this season are especially attractive.

Summer Tourist Tickets now on sale.

Ask any agent of the Southern Railway for Summer Home folder—descriptive of the many delightful resorts reached by the Southern Railway, or address,

T. E. GREEN, C. T. A.,
Raleigh, N. C.

SPECIAL RATES TO HOT SPRINGS, ARK.

The Seaboard announces special summer excursion rate of $30.60 to Hot Springs, Ark., and return, tickets on sale every Wednesday and Saturday, up to and including September 29th, final limit, sixty days from date of sale, with the privilege of extension.

The Seaboard offers a very attractive route, and full information can be secured by application to Mr. C. H. Gattis, Traveling Passenger Agent.

KRIEG ENGRAVING COMPANY. ENGRAVERS, ELECTROTYPERS, STEREOTYPERS. COPPER, HALF TONE AND ZINC ETCHERS. ALL IS FURNISH SYS. ATLANTA, GA.

THE KEELEY INSTITUTE GREENSBORO, N.C. For the treatment of THE LIQUOR, OPIUM, MORPHINE and other Drug Addictions. The Tobacco Habit, Nerve Exhaustion

BLYMYER CHURCH BELLS

Please mention this paper.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY TOURS.

to the
"SAPPHIRE COUNTRY"

September 10-17-24, 1904.

Rates shown below cover entire Tour. Limit nine days.

FROM

Charlotte	$24.85
Columbia	27.45
Danville	29.45
Greensboro	27.90
RALEIGH	30.55
Salisbury	26.45
Spartanburg	22.45

The above rates include railroad transportation, seven days board at one of the Toxaway Co.'s Hotels, and hack ride from Lake Toxaway to Sapphire Inn or Fairfield Inn and return.

The Sapphire Country abounds in exquisitely picturesque wood, lake and mountain scenes.

Excellent Boating and Fishing.

For detailed information in reference to the above tours call on or address.

T. E. GREEN, C. T. A.,
Raleigh, N. C.

POSITIONS GUARANTEED. May pay tuition out of salary after course is completed and position is secured. Indorsed by business men from Maine to California. For 160-page catalog, address J. F. DRAUGHON, Pres., either place,

DRAUGHON'S PRACTICAL BUSINESS Colleges.

Columbia, S. C. Nashville, Tenn.

Atlanta, Ga.; Montgomery, Ala.; Ft. Worth, Texas; Oklahoma City, O. T.; Galveston, Texas; Little Rock, Ark.; Ft. Scott, Kans.; Shreveport, La.; St. Louis, Mo.; Kansas City, Mo. After July 1st, 1904.

Incorporated. $300,000.00 capital. Established 1889. 14 bankers on board of directors. National reputation. Our diploma represents in business circles what Yale's and Harvard's represent in literary circles. No vacation; enter any time. Part car fare paid; cheap board. Write today.

HOME STUDY. BOOKKEEPING, SHORTHAND, PENMANSHIP, etc., taught by mail. Money refunded if not satisfied with course. Write for prices of home study courses.

CONVERSE COLLEGE AND MUSIC CONSERVATORY A HIGH GRADE COLLEGE FOR WOMEN SPARTANBURG, S.C.

Founded in 1889. Plant worth $250,000.00. Splendid location, delightful climate; 35-acre grounds; 6 buildings; steam heat; electric lights; perfect sanitary equipment; rooms single, double or ensuite. Thorough college and conservatory courses; 14 officers, 22 teachers; $7,000.00 pipe organ; 34 practice rooms; Music Festival every spring.

For handsome catalogue and full information, address

ROBT. P. PELL, Litt. D., Prest.

A Red Cedar PAIL LASTS A LIFETIME.

Did you ever stop to consider how many buckets you buy during ten years.

A Genuine RED CEDAR Pail

Lasts not only 10 years, but 7 times 10 years. Over 160,000 sold during 1903.

RED CEDAR purifies water and keeps it fresh longer than anything else.

THERE ARE DIFFERENT KINDS of cedar pails. Insist on the RED CEDAR, it is the right kind.

Prewitt-Spurr Manufacturing Co., Sole Manufacturers, NASHVILLE, TENNESSEE.

GINSENG $25,000.00 made from half acre. Easily grown in Garden or Farm. Roots and seeds for sale. Send 4c. for postage and get booklet E11., telling all about it. McDowell Ginseng Garden, Joplin, Mo.

Woman's Foreign Missionary Society

Please send all communications for this Department to Miss Daisy Bailey Waitt, Raleigh, N. C.

Officers of the W. F. M. S. of the N. C. Conference, June, 1903-'04.

President—Mrs. Lucy A. Cunninggim, Greensboro, N. C.
Vice-President—Mrs. R. A. Willis, Littleton, N. C.
Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. F. D. Swindell, Goldsboro, N. C.
Recording Secretary—Miss Blanche Fentress, Wilmington, N. C.
Treasurer—Mrs. B. B. Adams, Four Oaks, N. C.
Superintendent and Treasurer Juvenile Work—Mrs. L. M. Hendren, New Berne, N. C.

United Study of Missions.

At the International Conference of Woman's Boards held in 1901, a committee of five was appointed to outline a course of united study on missions. This committee stood for each of the following churches: Methodist, Baptist, Presbyterian, Congregational and Protestant Episcopal.

The books adopted by them for this course are: Via Christi, by Louise Manning Hodgkins; Lux Christi, an Outline Study of India, by Caroline Atwater Mason; Rex Christus, an Outline Study of China, by Dr. Arthur Smith; Dux Christus, an Outline Study of Japan, by Dr. William Elliott Gupps; and Christus Liberator, an Outline Study of Africa, just now ready for delivery. Any of these books may be obtained from the Secretary of the Board.

While the various studies have been published in the order given, and were intended to follow each other in order, any one of them will form the basis of twelve or more thoroughly interesting meetings. They deal with subjects vital to mission work, and, with the helps given each month in the Woman's Missionary Advocate, cannot fail to awaken interest in all who read them. Those auxiliaries which have failed to adopt this course of study are missing much genuine pleasure and information. An exchange says: "The great success of the plan of United Study of Missions is shown by the fact that since September, 1901, the publishers have sold upward of one hundred and twenty thousand copies, and forty Boards are using them."

There is no better time to begin a course of study than the fall months when every one is rested by the summer holidays, and the attendance is increasing. Get your books now and outline your work for the next year.

Dear Mrs. Dixon:—Perhaps some account of our little Society at Anderson Church may interest some of the workers in this vast field of Woman's Work, and may encourage some who like ourselves work under disadvantages.

Though one of the smallest, if not the smallest, Society in the Conference, we are a vigorous little plant. Even now after two years work we number only ten, but it is seldom that a member is absent from our meetings.

When first organized we met in the church with a small attendance and no gain of members. The excuse given by some for not coming was they could not get to the meetings. So we decided to meet at the homes of the members and find the plan works admirably.

At our first meeting we gained one new members and a subscriber to the Missionary Advocate.

Our meeting for August on the third Sunday was a precious occasion. Every member save one (detained by sickness) was present. The day was very warm and all with one exception had some miles to travel, but so much interest was manifested that two hours slipped around unconsciously and some of the members remarked a whole day would not be too long. We gained one new member.

The Annual Report and the Missionary Advocate, which is read by every one, gave us much to think of and talk about. After reading the report of last year's work and the good results from our small offerings, the Doxology was sung.

The plan for work this year was discussed, and an estimate of amount to be raised by pledge taken. I feel assured we will be able to do as well as last year and I hope better.

We are so anxious to have all the sisters in the church become interested and join us, and are trying to devise some means of reaching them. The social feature is not without good results.

As our meetings must be on Sunday we have never attempted serving light refreshments, but may have an all day or lawn meeting some time.

Our meetings are rather informal. The study part of our programme, and all take part willingly, and the day of meeting are looked forward to with anticipation.

If only all our sisters could realize the blessing to them in this work, for them individually, they would not be long in obeying the command, "Go teach," or send the Word to our heathen sisters.

We have a little band of "Bright Jewels" who are enthusiastic workers and some day you may hear from them.

MRS. A. K. HARDY.

OLD MEN AND WOMEN DO BLESS HIM.

Thousands of people come or send every year to Dr. D. M. Bye for his Balmy Oil to cure them of cancer and other malignant diseases. Out of this number a great many very old people whose ages range from seventy to one hundred years, on account of distance and infirmities of age, send for home treatment. A free book is sent, telling what they say of the treatment. Address Dr. D. M. Bye Company, Box 462, Dallas, Tex.

(If not afflicted, cut this out and send it to some suffering one.)

FITS STOPPED FREE. Permanently Cured by DR KLINE'S GREAT NERVE RESTORER

No Fits after first day's use. Consultation, personal or by mail; treatise and $2 TRIAL BOTTLE FREE to Fit patients who pay expressage only on delivery. Permanent Cure, not only temporary relief, for all Nervous Disorders, Epilepsy, Spasms, St. Vitus' Dance, Debility, Exhaustion. DR. R. H. KLINE, Ld. 931 Arch Street, Philadelphia. Founded 1871.

..Dobbin & Ferrall.. (AT TUCKER'S STORE) Raleigh, N. C.

BRIDAL OUTFITS.

We are fully prepared to furnish a complete Trousseau. Every detail absolutely correct. No better materials can be furnished anywhere, and our dress makers are the best in the world—a broad statement but fully true. It is far better to have the customers come to our store making the trip to Raleigh. Write us if you cannot come in person. You will be given perfect attention.

Our Prices are Lower Than Other Stores.

DOBBIN & FERRALL 123 and 125 Fayetteville St.

When writing advertisers, please mention this paper.

Woman's Home Mission Society

Please send all communications for this Department to Mrs. R. O. BURTON, Raleigh, N. C.

Officers of W. H. M. S. of the N. C. Conference.

President—Mrs. J. E. Underwood, Elizabeth City.
First Vice-President—Mrs. V. Royster, Raleigh.
Second Vice-President—Mrs. K. P. Black, Littleton.
Third Vice-President—Mrs. J. A. Spiers, Selma.
Recording Secretary—Mrs. C. P. Jerome, West Durham.
Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. S. H. Scott, New Bern.
Treasurer—Mrs. E. L. Prince, Wilmington.
Superintendent of Supplies—Mrs. Ivan Proctor, Raleigh.
Superintendent of Literature and Press Work—Mrs. R. O. Burton.

An Appeal to the W. H. M. Society.

Out on the border land far away,
I hear a voice which seems to say,
"Come and help us harvest souls."
"Come and help," the echo rolls.

"We've left our homes and many friends,
We'll work for Jesus till life ends,
To seek and save to earth He came—
We now bear tidings in His name.

"O'er untrod soil our pathway lies,
The Christ we preach our want supplies;
But souls are dying every day,
O come and help us on our way!

"In sheltered homes, safe and secure,
You know not what we oft endure;
The way is long and hard and cold—
'O come and help,' the echoes roll.

"But tho' the way be hard and long,
'Lo, I am with you,' is our song.
Nor would we lay our burdens down,
E'en to receive an earthly crown.

"O come and help us while you may,
Let souls be brought to Christ today;
This earthly life will soon be past,
Then we'll receive our crown at last."

MRS. E. M. ANDERSON.
Durham, N. C.

We are pleased to welcome Mrs. Anderson here and rejoice that she is using her talents for the advancement of our work. Her graceful lines will be read with interest and admiration; they were prepared for Trinity Auxilary, Durham, and Mrs. S. I. Harrell kindly sent them for our column.

Brevard School Especially Dear to the Methodists of North Carolina.

TO ALL OUR AUXILIARIES:

From time to time we have called the attention of the Woman's Home Mission Society to the Brevard Industrial School, designed to help the girls of our State obtain a good education and industrial training. Some of the Auxiliaries have responded liberally. Perhaps they would like to increase their donation. We especially appeal to those who as yet have taken no part in the school.

PRESSING NEEDS.

The building is being completed and the outlook for pupils for the coming year is encouraging, but the co-operation of all Methodists is urged.

After completion more furniture will be necessary: in the library, or reading room, two good sized tables, chairs, book cases and books; in the sewing room, two good Singer sewing machine and six small tables about one yard long.

ALL METHODISTS SHOULD HELP.

As loyal Methodists we are anxious for the school to succeed and accomplish best results. In order to do this it must be well equipped.

Therefore, let everyone aid in the noble work by sending in contributions (large and small will be gratefully received), and we will soon have an institution that will prove a blessing to the State and an honor to the Church.

QUESTIONS CHRISTIANS SHOULD ASK.

Dear reader, as you scan these lines, will you not lift your heart to God as His steward and ask, "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do? What shall I render unto thee for all thy benefits, thy mercies, to me?"

SEND TO CONFERENCE TREASURER.

Contributions will be published, unless otherwise requested, and should be sent to Mrs. E. L. Prince, 211 South Fifth Street, Wilmington, N. C. MRS. S. H. SCOTT.

A Coincidence.

It is a happy coincidence that this poem and Mrs. Scott's earnest appeal for Brevard came for the same issue. May the words of both spread far and wide, sink deep into many hearts and speedily bring forth much fine fruit.

The Record Books.

The new Record Books for Auxiliary Treasurer have been issued, price 20 cents each, and should be ordered of Mrs. R. W. MacDonell, General Secretary, Nashville, Tenn., or through the "Standing Offer" in Our Home. They are very helpful, indeed, necessary, and we hope will be used in every Auxiliary.

NOTICE!

I want every man and woman in the United States interested, either for themselves or friends, in the cure of Opium and Whiskey habits to have one of my books on these diseases. Address Dr. B. M. WOOLLEY, Atlanta, Ga., Box 389, and one will be sent you free.

Stops Chills Painkiller (PERRY DAVIS') Cures Cramps

IN USE FOR 20 YEARS ELIXIR BABEK

The Quick and Sure Cure for MALARIA, CHILLS, FEVER AND LA GRIPPE.

It is a powerful tonic and appetizer. Will cure that tired feeling, Pains in Back, Limbs and Head. Is a purely vegetable compound, and contains NO QUININE OR ARSENIC. Prepared by Kloczowski & Co., Washington, D. C. Price 50cts.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S HYMNAL NO. 2

Should be considered by every Epworth League and Sunday School in which a new songbook is needed. It is unquestionably the best book to use after the Young People's Hymnal (No. 1). . . . . .

SAMPLE COPY.

Round or shaped notes, 30cts. by mail $3.60 per dozen; by express or freight, $25 per 100. Words only, by mail, $1 25 per dozen; by express $9 per 100 We pay freight on orders for 100 or more copies. Address all orders to . . . . . .

Southern Methodist Book Depository, E. B. LIPSCOMB, SEC. AND TREAS., STAUNTON, VA.

Editorial

A GRAVE PERIL TO WOMANS'S EDUCATION.

It is to be hoped that the new Greensbor Female College will set a higher standard of scholarship that the majority of women's colleges in the State have attained.

There is a deplorable tendency toward the commercial spirit, even in colleges that have the support of the churches in their work. For instance, young women are encouraged, beyond all reason, to hasten to prepare themselves for a business career. By spending a few months at almost any one of our schools, they may receive a certificate in some special department. This is not so bad for the girl whose opportunities and means are straitly limited; but the fact deserves serious consideration that increasingly large numbers of young women with ample means and every other encouragement to higher effort, are content to be specialists in exceedingly limited fields of service, and the trouble lies, it seems to me, in the policy that we are pursuing in our educational methods. In order to get patronage, we try to offer in many of our colleges everything that may be obtained in a commercial school; and the evil effect is enhanced by the the fact that many young women would rather have a certificate from an institution of recognized literary standing than from a merely commercial institution.

The quetsion arises, Is it the best that church schools can do to hold up before the young women of the church such a low ideal? Does it not make the church a partner to the commercializing of the young people of the State? And ought there not be set in operation influences strong enough to correct this very tendency?

Last May, at an honored institution for women, the platform was almost crowded with young ladies who were going to take certificates in special departments. Of these, a number had equipped themselves for a purely business career. There were only two full graduates who received diplomas. Now the young ladies who received certificates, it is reasonable to suppose, did not intend to return to pursue their studies further; and yet they felt themselves almost, if not quite, the equals of the young ladies who had completed the full course.

If we would look calmly upon some of the results that flow from such a policy, I believe we would call a halt before we go too far to retrace our steps. It may be safely asserted that the young woman with ambition to excell in the marts of trade, has a blunted sense of domestic responsibility and felicity. Her ruling passion is not home-making, but money-making, and she is willing to sacrifice possible positions of power and prominence in the future for a consideration of dollars and cents in the present. If later, she becomes persuaded to undertake the responsibilities of a domestic life, she is obviously ill-fitted for the position. We must train home-makers for the future generation. Making a living is the easiest, and therefore the last thing to be considered. It would be better for our young women to equip themselves for the highest possible positions in church, in State, and in society; later to shine in such spheres of influence as they might thus climb into and be content for the present to have less money to spend. They should refuse to be unequal competitors with men in trade, and aspire to reign queens over theirb rothers and husbands in every estate. It has been stated that the reason why a large number of young men are slow to marry is that they are not earning enough to support a family, and their earnings are meagre because they must compete with women who will work at their sides for a much smaller wage than the men would otherwise command.

There is another tendency that our church colleges ought to strive hard to arrest, and that is, the tendency toward inhospitality. It has been remarked that in one of the strongholds of Methodism in our State it is exceedingly difficult to get entertainment for a body of delegates to a conference—and this because of the scarcity of servants! Is it going to be revealed that our boasted Southern hospitality depended upon a horde of black folk, who were once our slaves? We must produce a generation of young women who can converse intelligently upon any current topic and who can also prepare a good dinner with a cheerful and willing heart without fretting over it as poor Martha did. It ought to be noted that between the polite idleness of Mary and the exasperated effort of Martha, there is a happy medium. It is a hopeful sign that many schools are beginning to realize that large numbers of young women are dependent upon them for all the training they receive in domestic arts.

Greensbor Female College has been second to none in equipping young women for service, and more, perhaps, than any other institution of like grade, it has succeeded in impressing upon its students the duty of service. Her graduates have borne the torch of learning into the great dark places of our State. They have illuminated society wherever they have gone with a high Christian ideal. They have made the best mothers that are to be found in the nation, and created the sweetest homes.

It is not misplacing confidence to look to this institution to put a determined hand upon the rudder of the educational ship that is so perilously near the rocks, and guide it into a wide and deep channel that leads to the open sea.

J. M. C.

A CLOG IN THE LEAGUE WHEELS.

In conversation with one of the most successful League presidents in our Conference, some days ago, I was told that the most serious hindrance to successful League organization and activity was the lack of educated leaders. By educated leaders was meant, not young people who had an average education, but young men and women who had pursued such studies as would arouse in them an interest in such work as the League proposes to do.

Now it seems to me, that the young people themselves are not entirely to blame for this state of affairs. There are men in every congregation who are able to give their sons and daughters a finished education and who should insist upon the pursuit of such an attainment on the part of their children. The fact, on the contrary, is that the young are either allowed to do as they please or the father is so greedy of gain that he will not invest in their mental development, and even claims from them large contributions to his source of revenue. The man who follows this course is guilty of burying his talent and deserves the severest condemnation that may be administered upon him by an intelligent society. Think of the incalculable force that is locked up by his thus holding the truth in unrighteousness!

When we scoff at Christian education and thorough equipment, we ought to contemplate, with a degre of shame, the crippled condition of the higher interests that require our attention. As the colleges are just now opening, I beg you fathers to consider this matter and select a school for your boy that will train him to be an effective soldier of the Cross. And do not squander your means and palsy high instincts by fitting him to make money and to "care for none of these things."

The Christian college should deal tenderly with a student who is an honest doubter and is struggling toward truth and God. "Honest doubters," however, are rarely found. The wilful, selfish, blatant skeptic in a Christian college should receive the treatment accorded to a certain skeptic of this kind who had the temerity to "tackle" the late Master of Balliol. Jowett, after taking the measure of the young skeptic's intellectual bore, said: "Find God within twenty-four hours, or pack your things and leave."

DEATH OF TWO YOUNG EDUCATORS.

Methodism, the cause of Christian education, and the whole State were greatly bereaved last week in the death of two young men, who had rendered faithful and distinguished service in the field of education. They wielded far more than an ordinary influence, and their loss is painfully felt.

Prof. E. P. Mangum, son of the late Dr. A. W. Mangum, and for the last eight years, Superintendent of the Wilson Public Schools, died in Rex Hospital on Sunday morning, September 4th. Professor Mangum had been a member of the M. E. Church since early childhood. For the last six years he had been Superintendent of the Sunday-school at Wilson. He was always faithful to his church and was a large factor in Christian work in the town of Wilson. He was one of the brightest lights in the educational field of the State, having conscientiously made teaching a profession.

On Monday morning, September 5, Rev. J. F. Bivins, Headmaster of Trinity Park School, fell from the rear end of a train which was nearing Durham, and was almost instantly killed. He had been married only a few days before to Miss Fannie Carr of Durham, and they were returning from their bridal trip. It was, indeed, a very sad death. Professor Bivins was one of the brightest of the State's young educators, having, as Headmaster of Trinity Park School, established a most enviable reputation. He was an able preacher, and was popular with his students and with all with whom he came in contact.

We bow in sorrow over the loss of these two young servants of the church and the State, and extend with thousands our heartfelt sympathies to the bereaved.

OFFER EXTENDED.

To all who renew their subscription between now and October 1, we will send a beautiful souvenir in the shape of the Marked New Testament—a handy little volume clearly printed, durably bound and with significant and valuable verses, conveniently marked so as to attract the eye. This is one of the most valuable souvenirs we have yet sent out. The renewal must be for a year.

We would say that all the Testaments will be delivered by October 1. Those who have not received their Testaments will understand that they will receive them by October 1.

In two late numbers of the Outlook, Mr. George Kenan, the war correspondent for the Outlook in the Far East, gives some surprising information in regard to the military conditions that exist in Japan. At Kure, the Japanese maintain a naval station where fifteen thousand men are employed making canon, battleships and every conceivable variety of projectile. Every man that goes into the navy is thoroughly trained for his position. The significance of this statement is appreciated when it is pointed out that even the stokers are drilled in their difficult work by being set to shoveling rocks about the size of lumps of coal into a furnace arranged for practice work.

There are two large schools in Japan for the instruction and training of naval officers. One is situated at Tokio, the other at Yetajima. The former is "a place of instruction for officers, who, after graduating from Yetajima, have had several years of sea duty." At Yetajima there are five hundred students. Among the requirements in the entrance examinations, English is a sine qua non. The object lesson method of teaching is extensively employed, every lecture room being supplied with just the objects the instructor wishes to speak about. None of the athletic sports so much enjoyed by naval students in this country are allowed in the Japanese school. A peculiar kind of wrestling contest gives a suple quickness of movement to the body and hardens the muscles. A noisy sort of sword play is another form of recreation, and a contest over a pole furnishes the future admirals with something more violent than foot-ball and strikingly more akin to boarding an enemy's ship.

Methodist Mention

State.

Do not forget to send us an account of your meeting.

Rutherford College has opened with the largest matriculation in its history.

We rejoice to hear of so many gracious meetings in different parts of the Conference.

A handsome new pipe organ has been received at Wilson for use in the beautiful new Methodist church.

Dr. A. D. Betts has lately been visited by his son, Rev. W. A. Betts, of the South Carolina Conference.

Less than three months until Conference. It hardly seems more than three months since we met at Goldsboro.

The Asheville District will hold an Epworth League Conference in Haywood Street Church, Asheville, September 20-22.

Dr. E. A. Yates delivered an address before the students of Louisburg Female College on last Friday evening. There is a large attendance on this institution.

Rev. J. M. Benson, P. C. Nashville Circuit, writes that he has held two of his meetings, with the result that the church has been greatly revived with ten accessions.

The opening of Trinity College and Trinity Park School is reported to be the best in the history of these institutions. The dormitory room of the latter is already crowded.

As will be seen from an article on the fourth page, two of our preachers, with their families, of Rocky Mount, have been greatly bereaved. Brothers Rone and Bundy have the deepest sympathies of all their brethren and friends.

We have received a copy of the Church Messenger, an interesting publication edited by Rev. L. A. Falls, pastor of Brevard Street Church, Charlotte, N. C. The new church will be a very handsome structure.

The corner-stone of the new building of Centenary Church, Greensboro, was laid with imposing ceremonies on last Thursday. The new church will be very handsome. This church was organized December 28, 1886, with fourteen members.

Rev. J. C. Humble, P. C. Littleton Circuit, reports that four of his six meetings have been held, resulting in one hundred and eleven conversions and fifty-three additions to the church. Two more to hold yet. A new church nearly closed in, and everything in fine shape.

Elizabeth City District, North Carolina Conference, has decided to establish its school. Rev. A. J. Parker, appointed agent to carry forward this work, has secured $3,500 in addition to which Elizabeth City pledges $5,000. This assures the building of the school.—Exchange.

The following note comes from Rev. R. H. Broome, P. C. Carthage Circuit: "Beginning on the fouth Sunday in August, I protracted our Carthage meeting till the first Sunday night. There was scarcely any demonstration of interest, excepting good attendance. One was reclaimed and two were converted, but there were no accessions."

The Executive Committee of Trinity College has elected Atwell C. McIntosh, of Taylorsville, N. C., Professor in the Law Department. Prof. J. A. Bivins, of Charlotte, was also elected Headmaster of Trinity Park Hill School to fill the vacancy by the death of his brother, Prof. J. F. Bivins. Services in memory of Prof. J. F. Bivins was held in Craven Memorial Hall at Trinity College, Sunday morning, September 11th. These services were conducted by President Kilgo, and they took the place of the usual opening sermon before the students.

Prof. George S. Wills, at one time an instructor of English in the State University, but for several years past of the faculty of Western Maryland College, has accepted the chair of English in the Greensboro Female College. Prof. Wills is a graduate of the University of North Carolina and of Harvard, and occupies a high place in his profession.—Exchange.

Rev. S. E. Mercer in deep water: Rev. S. E. Mercer came very near meeting with a fatal accident while crossing Lumber River at the new bridge. The water was unusually high, and he not being acquainted with the stream, drove in too far. Fortunately, by the timely arrival of a colored man, he succeeded in getting out alive, but wet.—Richmond Headlight.

The meeting at the Methodist church continues to grow in interest and the congregations at the evening services are large. Evangelist Comann attacks sin with telling effect at every service, and his powerful appeals to the sinners are not without results. The morning service at 10 o'clock, and the evening service at 8, will continue through the week and the public is cordially invited to attend.—Kinston Free Press.

Rev. Jas. H. Frizzelle, P. C. Pittsboro Circuit, reports as follows: "We had a very fine meeting at Brown's Chapel. Forty-five conversions, twenty-four accessions, and three infants baptized, and a fine communion service. Rev. J. H. Hornaday, of Greenville Station, was with us. Our people were simply delighted with him. We are closing up our fourth year, and will go to Conference with the best report we have carried up from here."

The directors of the Elizabeth City High School, to show their appreciation of the services of Rev. A. J. Parker, agent for the school during August, gave him a ticket to the World's Fair. We met him and his good wife in St. Louis and they were highly enjoying themselves. They are now visiting relatives in Denver, Colorado. On their return, they will spend a few days in Dublin, Indiana. They expect to return to Manteo October 1st.

Connectional.

The Danville Methodist, one of our brightest exchanges, has entered upon its thirteenth year.

The Missouri Conference is taking preliminary steps to provide for its own entertainment hereafter.

The Epworth Era, in its issue of August 25th, begins its eleventh volume. It constantly grows better.

Rev. C. A. Tagne, of the Japan Mission Conference, will not be able to return to his work on account of failing health.

The Holston and Tennessee brethren are still agitating the question of a great Methodist University for women in Nashville, Tenn.

The last issue of the Alabama Christian Advocate reported nearly five hundred accessions to the church in the two Alabama Conferences.

In the amount per capita given to Foreign and Domestic Missions, the German Mission Conference stands first with $1.35. North Carolina stands twenty-first with 34 cents.

Rev. J. R. Andews, pastor of Salem, Va., contemplates issuing a monthly congregational paper called Our Church Work, to be a medium of exchange between him and his large membership.

The number of Southern Methodist preachers now prosecuting the study course in the correspondence school at Nashville has increased to 350. This is an increase of one hundred over last year.

The Michigan Christian Advocate is not far from the point in the following: "In our churches we ought to raise about twice as much money as we do, and talk about getting money about one-half as much as we do. Perhaps, if we magnified Christ more, and put less stress on the collections and the salary, church revenues would increase."

General Notes

A Spanish Endeavor society of forty-six members has finished its first year very successfully, in New York City.

In the Southern States there are 27,000,000 people, and 17,000,000 of them are living under absolute prohibition.

Rev. Robert Strange, D. D., will be consecrated Bishop Coadjutor of East Carolina on All Saints Day, November 1, 1904.

The Protestant Episcopal Church year closes with August. Reports show 5,983 congregations and 765,000 communicants.

Rev. S. C. Swallow, who heads the Prohibition ticket, is the editor of the Pennsylvania Methodist, and resides at Harrisburg, Pa.

Mr. Robert Davies, a wealthy shipholder, has given $675,000 to the Welsh Methodist Missionary Society for the development of its mission work in the hill countries of India.

The International Epworth League Convention meets in Denver in 1905. Secretary E. M. Randall, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, has already begun to lay plans to have his League worthily represented.

The dying words of President Paul Kruger are worth quoting as an evidence of the victory of Christian faith. On his deathbed Mr. Kruger said: "I no longer hate the English. It is a pity there was a war, but I believe that everything will come out right in the end."

The Methodist Episcopal Church, South, of Statesboro, Ga., has passed resolutions unanimously calling upon every participant in the lynching of Reed and Cato last month to resign membership in the church unless "a public confession of wrong be made with expression of penitence and contrition."

The Columbian University at Washington, D. C., formally assumed the name George Washington University, on September 1. Although General Washington was not great as a scholar, the inspiration of his name should be greatly felt for good by the students who in future years may gather at that University.

The preliminary program for the convention of the Religious Education Association, which is to be held in Boston in March, is well under way. It is of a character to impress everyone who has seen it with the splendid results which are certain to come from so excellent a line of subjects presented by the men who have been selected to speak.

While in St. Louis, we had the privilege of being much in the office of the St. Louis Christian Advocate. Dr. C. C. Woods makes a royal host. He is an able preacher as well as editor. Dr. Palmore was in attendance on the Missouri Conference, but returned in time for us to catch a little more than a glimpse of him. Dr. Palmore and Dr. Woods are making a great paper.

The report of the Chief Secretary of the World's Fourth Sunday School Convention, held in Jerusalem in April of this year, shows a total of 260,905 Protestant Sabbath-schools, and 23,442,998 scholars in Europe, Asia, Africa, North and South America, and the various islands to which this institution has penetrated. The United States leads with 139,817 Sunday-schools, 1,419,807 teachers, and 11,493,591 enrolled scholars.

The reader will note that the Southern Special for the St. Louis Exposition which leaves Raleigh on September 20, and will carry a large party over one of the most attractive routes in the country will start from Goldsboro on Tuesday afternoon, September 20th, and will make connection at Selma with the Atlantic Coast Line and with the S. A. L. at Raleigh. This is a fine chance to visit the Exposition. Write at once to T. A. Green, C. T. A., Raleigh, N. C.

NORTH CAROLINA EPWORTH LEAGUE CONFERENCE
DEVOTIONAL CHARITABLE LITERARY EVANGELICAL
FOR CHRIST AND THE CHURCH
EDITED BY REV. H. B. ANDERSON.

Is It Worth While?

Is it worth while to save men? Then cause them to "Remember their Creator in the days of their youth." The most "convenient season" for conversion is in childhood before one reaches manhood or womanhood. There are many reasons for this, as one who thinks may readily see; only one of which, however, is within the purview of this article.

It is said that ninety-six per cent of the converts now in the churches were converted during the period of adolescence, or at least, before they reached the age of twenty-five years. And only four per cent are converted between the ages of twenty-five and fifty years. At the age of sixteen, or rather from twelve to eighteen, is the time of greatest susceptibility to divine impressions, and of most frequent conversions.

The above figures should not be ignored. They tell us what has happened, what is happening, and what will happen. They give us what the insurance companies would call the table of conversion—"expectancy." The vast business of life insurance is built upon the "expectancy" of human life; millions and millions of dollars are safe and vast corporations rest securely upon this expectancy. The only safe thing to do in reference to eternity is to seek the Lord early, for that is conversion—expectancy. Then is the time to labor to brings individuals to Christ. There is a disposition upon the part of young people to listen and yield to invitation of the gospel. They are in the most favorable condition possible for yielding to divine impressions. Then if parents, Sunday-school teachers, League companions, and pastors will do their duty with wisdom, patient sympathy, and affection, young people will yield themselves to Christ.

But let this age pass and the gulf between them and their Redeemer widens with accelerated rapidity. And as age advances, conversion, "expectancy" rapidly sinks until it is practically at zero. If ninety-six per cent of conversions are between the ages of twelve and eighteen then the greatest part of our effort to win to Christ should be devoted to that part of human life.

As the young are most successful, other things being equal, in winning the young to Christ, it is easily seen how important a well-trained League is during revival effort. In a four years' tenure of a pastorate like ours three years of the time may largely be spent in the training and development of League workers, with the hope of making the fourth year a year of ingathering. You will then not only save to the church many who might otherwise go astray, but you have developed workers whose worth to the future church is incalculable, while they help to make your pastorate an eminent success.

Is it worth your while to labor for such results? Will such an investment pay? Then organize and develop an Epworth League.

Hints for Leaders.

Rev. Francis E. Clark in a pamphlet to leaders of Christian Endeavor meetings quotes the following from E. A. Robinson in the Golden Rule:

1. Be prompt in opening and closing the prayer meeting.
2. Try to speak so that all may hear.
3. Stand, rather than sit, while reading the Scriptures, and offering prayer. (Methodists should kneel for the latter.)
4. If possible, select hymns that bear on the subject of the meeting.
5. Use only a short Scripture selection (four to six verses).
6. Always announce the subject of the meeting.
7. Try to add a word of your own to the Scripture reading.
8. Be brief in opening, and, when necessary, remind others that they should be brief also.
9. Always repeat the number of the hymn that is called for.
10. Pray for the meeting before you come, and remember it in prayer after it is over, and the Lord will bless it to His glory and to the good of all present.

Notes.

Texas alone has 20,000 Leaguers They want the International Conference for 1907.

* * *

A call has been made to the Alabama Leagues to support one of their number who has gone as a missionary to Cuba.

* * *

Asheville District League Conference will meet in Haywood Street Methodist Church, Asheville, N. C., September 20-22.

* * *

Dr. Alonzo Monk's Leaguers have presented him with $150, with which to purchase a horse. Who can make Dr. Monk believe the League is a failure?

* * *

Greensboro Female College will open October 5th. It will be well for members of the Epworth League who contemplate going to a first-class female college this fall, to correspond with the president, Mrs. Lucy Robertson.

SKIN PARASITES.

Live and multiply in the skin of the sufferer from Tetter, Itch, Ring Worm and similar skin diseases. It is horrible for one to be fed upon in this manner. Fortunately the sufferer is no longer helpless. One box of Tetterine will destroy the germs and restore the skin to a perfectly healthy condition. Physicians prescribe and druggists endorse it. If you have a friend suffering from such troubles tell him of Tetterine. 50 cents at druggists or by mail from J. T. Shuptrine, Savannah, Ga.

Positions GUARANTEED BY A $5,000 BANK DEPOSIT
Railroad Fare Paid. 500 R'R'R Courses Offered. Board at Cost. Write Quick
GEORGIA-ALABAMA BUSINESS COLLEGE, Macon, Ga.

TEACHERS WANTED.
We have a large number of applications for teachers for rural and graded schools, six to ten month terms; salaries up to $75.00 per month. Also for private schools, governesses, etc. Full particulars upon application.
The Southern Educational Bureau, Established 1901. RALEIGH, N. C. References given and required.

HICKS' CAPUDINE CURES ALL HEADACHES.
IT'S LIQUID. The perfect remedy for Colds, Indigestion, Periodic Pains, Brain Fag, etc. Prevents Train Nausea and Sick Headache. Braces the nerves. It's Harmless. Trial bottle 10c.

Smithdeal Business College
Broad & 9th Sts., RICHMOND, VA.
Commercial, Stenographic, Telegraphic and Eng. Depts. Ladies & gentlemen. No vacations. "It is the leading Business College south of the Potomac River."—PHILA. STENOGRAPHER. "When I reached Richmond, I inquired of several business men for the best Business College in the city, and, without exception, they all recommended Smithdeal's as the best."—W. E. ROSS, LAW STENOGRAPHER, Richmond. Bookkeeping, Shorthand, Writing, taught by mail.

World's Fair, St. Louis
EXTRAORDINARILY LOW RATES,
September 6—13—20 and 21, 1904.

On above-mentioned dates the Southern Railway announces very low round-trip Coach excursion rates to St. Louis. These tickets will be good in all regular Coaches, and on all trains on dates shown. Tickets good 10 days.

Rate from

Goldsboro	$20.00	Salisbury	$17.00
Selma	20.00	Charlotte	18.30
Raleigh	18.50	Statesville	17.00
Durham	17.00	Marion	16.20
Greensboro	17.00	Asheville	15.40
Sanford	20.40	Hendersonville	15.85

Tickets sold at the above rates not good in Sleeping Cars; for other rates see notices elsewhere.

For full information, World's Fair maps, literature, etc., call on or address any Agent Southern Railway.
R. L. VERNON, Trav. Pass. Agt., Charlotte, N. C. J. H. WOOD, Dist. Pass. Agt., Asheville, N. C.
S. H. HARDWICK, Pass. Traf. Mgr. W. H. TAYLOE, Gen. Pass. Agt. Washington, D. C.

WORLD'S FAIR RATES
VIA
Seaboard Air Line Railway
TO ST. LOUIS, MO., AND RETURN.

On account of the World's Fair, St. Louis, Mo., the Seaboard Air Line Railway, in connection with the C. & O. Route via Richmond and the N. C. & St. L. Route via Atlanta, will sell round trip tickets to St. Louis, Mo., at greatly reduced rates from all stations.

Rates from principal points as follows:

	Season Tickets	60 Day Tickets	15 Day Tickets
Charlotte via Atlanta	$36.10	$30.10	$24.65
Durham via Richmond	34.10	28.40	23.30
Durham via Atlanta	38.75	32.30	26.30
Henderson via Richmond	34.10	28.40	23.30
Henderson via Atlanta	38.75	32.30	26.30
Maxton via Atlanta	38.65	32.25	26.25
Raleigh via Richmond	35.60	29.90	24.80
Raleigh via Atlanta	38.75	32.30	26.30
Hamlet via Richmond	37.60	31.90	26.25
Hamlet via Atlanta	37.60	31.90	26.25
Wilmington via Richmond	38.65	32.25	26.25
Wilmington via Atlanta	38.65	32.25	26.25

LIMIT OF TICKETS—SEASON TICKETS.
Good to leave St. Louis up to December 15, 1904, will be sold daily commencing April 25th.

SIXTY DAY TICKETS.
Good to leave St. Louis up to and including 60 days from date of sale. Will be sold daily commencing April 25th.

FIFTEEN DAY TICKETS.
Good to return up to and including 15 days from date of sale, commencing April 25th, and continuing during the Exposition.

COACH EXCURSION TICKETS.
On May 9th and 23rd, 10-day coach excursion tickets will be sold at very low rates from Raleigh $18.50 via Richmond and $20.80 via Atlanta. Tickets not good in Parlor Sleeping Cars. Tickets good to leave St. Louis including ten days from date of sale.

MILITARY COMPANIES.
Special low rates for Military Companies and Bands.
Quickest schedule, direct routes, first-class coaches and Pullman Sleeping and Dining Car Service.
For further information, call on or address us. Same will be cheerfully furnished.
C. H. GATTIS, T. P. A., Raleigh, N. C. H. A. MORSON, C. P. & T. A., Raleigh, N. C.

When writing advertisers please mention this paper.

Sunday School

Lesson for September 18, 1904.

Israel Reproved.

Amos 5:4-15.

Golden Text: Seek the Lord, and ye shall live. Amos 5:6.

A Character Study of Amos.—Amos, one of the so-called minor prophets, is a striking figure in the annals of Old Testament prophecy. He is described as a herdsman of Tekoa, a village situated on a high hill, about twelve miles south of Jerusalem. He seems to have been a man in humble life, called to perform an important ministry as a prophet of righteousness. Besides caring for his flock of sheep, he seems also to have derived his support in part from his work as a "dresser" of sycomore trees. The sycomore (not the same as the sycamore of our own land) was a tree bearing a fig-like fruit, sweet but watery, which was eaten only by the poor. The dressing of the fruit was a process whereby it was pinched, scratched or punctured to hasten its ripening.

Amos was evidently a man of deep feeling, of devout spirit, and of great zeal. He was not lacking in courage, for he dared to rebuke royalty itself, and drew down upon himself the wrath of Amaziah, the priest of Bethel, because of his condemnation of Jeroboam, the king of Israel.

The Prophecy of Amos.—The entire book of Amos may be read at a single sitting, and it will be well, especially for the older students, to take a bird's-eye view of the whole of the prophecy.

A careful analysis shows the book of Amos to consist of three well-marked divisions. The first two chapters contain predictions of woe upon the nations that surrounded Israel. Damascus, the Philistines, Tyre, Edom, the Ammonites, Moab, Judah, and finally Israel herself are arraigned for their wickedness. The next four chapters (3-6) are devoted to a stern condemnation of the sins of Israel, mingled at times with words of tender invitation to the people to forsake their evil ways and return unto the Lord. The last three chapters of the book (chaps. 7-9) contain a series of visions, interrupted by Amaziah's charge of conspiracy against Amos.

The Reproof of Israel.—The verses selected for our study are typical of the whole trend of the prophecy of Amos. Though Amos lived about a hundred years after Elijah, we see that many of the same evils which characterized the reign of Ahab flourished under Jeroboam II. Injustice and oppression were still rife in the land. Intemperance was one of the glaring iniquities of the time. The judges were corrupt, and the people were given to all manner of sin.

In the midst of such conditions Amos raised his voice in vigorous protest, and uttered his earnest entreaty to the people to seek the Lord that they might live.

The Modern Application.—Unfortunately we do not have to seek very far in our own country in this twentieth century to find many of the same evils which Amos pictured as existing among the Israelites. In various parts of our fair land we may find vice, oppression, injustice and intemperance rivaling anything that existed in Israel in the days of Amos.

There is a loud call for prophets of righteousness, laymen as well as ministers of the Gospel, who shall raise their voices in determined protest against the conditions of evil which prevail, and shall use all their influence to counteract and overcome them.

Lessons Taught by Amos.—1. Men and women in humble life may be God's prophets of righteousness. Endowment for spiritual service is a matter entirely apart from material wealth.

2. Laymen are often called to perform services, which are as valuable to humanity, and as important in God's eyes as any that can be rendered by ordained ministers of the Word.

3. Reproof and invitation should go hand in hand. While we warn evil-doers to flee from their evil ways, let us also invite them to return unto the Lord, who will abundantly pardon all their misdoings.

4. Intemperance is ever a root of evil. It was so in the days of Amos, and it will continue to be so, as long as men persist in using the intoxicating cup.

MORE RIOTS.

Disturbances of strikers are not nearly as grave as an individual disorder of the system. Overwork, loss of sleep, nervous tension will be followed by utter collapse, unless a reliable remedy is immediately employed. There's nothing so efficient to cure disorders of the Liver or Kidneys as Electric Bitters. It's a wonderful tonic, and effective nervine and the greatest all around medicine for run-down systems. It dispels Nervousness, Rheumatism and Neuralgia and expels Malaria germs. Only 50 cents, and sastisfaction guaranteed by all druggists.

SPECIAL THROUGH TRAIN TO ST. LOUIS PERSONALLY CONDUCTED SEPTEMBER 20TH VIA SOUTHERN RAILWAY.

The Southern Railway announces a personally conducted special train to the World's Fair, leaving Goldsboro 1.35 p. m., Tuesday, September 20th; Selma 2.25 p. m.; Raleigh, 3.25; p. m.; Durham, 4.22 p. m., Burlington, 5.45 p. m.; Greensboro, 7.22 p. m.; Salisbury, 8.50 p. m.; Statesville, 9.32 p. m.; Hickory, 10.25 p. m.; Morganton, 11.00 p. m.; arriving St. Louis 7.32 a. m., Thursday 22nd.

This train will be composed of day coaches and Pullman Sleeping Cars. The route will be via Asheville, Knoxville and Louisville, through the grand and scenic mountain regions of Western North Carolina, East Tennessee and the beautiful blue grass section of Kentucky.

Following round trip rates from points named; proportionately low rates apply from all other stations:

Fifteen-day tickets from Goldsboro, $26.25; Selma, $26.25; Clayton, $25.30; Raleigh, $24.80; Durham, $23.30; Greensboro, $23.30; Oxford, 23.30; Henderson, $23.30; Salisbury, $23.30, Morganton, $23.30.

Ten day coach excursion tickets: Goldsboro, $20.00; Selma, $20.00; Clayton, $19.50; Raleigh, $18.50; Durham, $17.00; Greensboro, $17.00; Oxford, 17.00; Henderson, $17.00; Salisbury, $17.00; Charlotte, $18.30; Statesville, $17.00; Morganton, $17.00.

Pullman double berth from Goldsboro, $6.00; Raleigh, $6.00; Durham, $5.50; Greensboro, $5.00; Salisbury, $5.00; Asheville, $4.00.

Two people can occupy double berth at these rates.

Coach excursion tickets not good in Pullman Sleeping Cars.

A competent representative of the Southern Railway will accompany the train through to St. Louis and do everything possible for the comfort and pleasure of the party.

For any other information and for Pullman reservations, address
T. E. GREEN, C. T. A., Raleigh, N. C.
R. L. VERNON, T. P. A., Charlotte, N. C.

Some of the New and Fashionable Dress Goods for Fall

Write us for samples of anything you have in mind, stating color, kind of cloth and about what price you wish to pay.

Remember, we prepay express or freight charges on all orders of $5.00 and over mailed to the house.

NOELVTY MOHAIRS, 42 in. wide, in brown, navy, royal and black mixtures, 75c. yard.

MOHAIR SILICIANS, 40 in. wide, in the new fall shades, 50c. yard.

NEW CASSIMERE SUITINGS, neat checks and invisible plaids, very stylish for walking suits and separate skirts, 50c. yard.

BROADCLOTHS, 50 in. wide, all wool, extra finish, in twenty-five different shades, as well as black, $1.00.

RAINPROOF SUITINGS, 54 in. wide, in stylish designs, $1.25 and $1.50 yard.

MILLER & RHOADS
Richmond, Va.

I CURE CANCER.

Have you Cancer? Have you been given up as hopelessly incurable by everybody? I can still cure you. At least, I have cured others who were thought to have but a few days to live, and why not cure you? No knife. No plaster. No caustics. No sloughing oils. No injection of acids. No blood drawn. No pain. I can cure internal cancer just as readily as external. You can be cured by my "Home Treatment" at your own homes for less than one-fourth the cost of "Personal Treatment," but if you have been humbugged till you have lost faith in the honesty or ability of any one to handle this disease successfully, come to me, and I will cure you or no pay. And when I cure you you stayed cured. It does not reappear in a few months. I will put money in the bank to back up that assertion. You will be absolutely, wholly and perfectly cured. The chances are ten to one if anything else is the matter with you, you will be cured of that too. You can be cured a great deal quicker, and more cheaply, if you have never permitted your body to be operated on or experimented with by others before I take your case, still if you do not believe it, go ahead and try, but remember me when they have failed. Will you not write me a full description of your case and let me tell you what I can do for you. Address
Dr. Scott Mason, Dry Bridge, Va.

RATES TO ST. LOUIS WORLD'S FAIR.

Tickets to be Sold at Very Low Rates via Southern Railway.

For the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, to be held at St. Louis, Mo., May until November, 1904, the Southern Railway announces the following forms of excursion tickets, effective April 25th:

Season excursion tickets, good to return until December 15, 1904, sold daily at rate of $35.60 from Raleigh.

Sixty day excursion ticket, good returning sixty (60) days in addition to date of sale, final date in no case to exceed December 15, 1904, sold daily at rate of $29.90 from Raleigh.

Fifteen-day excursion tickets, good returning fifteen (15) days in addition to date of sale, sold daily at rate of $24.80 from Raleigh.

Ten day special coach excursion tickets—see notices elsewhere.

Reduced rate tickets as above will be sold from other stations on the Southern Railway at proportionate rates.

On all one way and round trip tickets, reading to points beyond St. Louis, a stop-over of ten days will be permitted at St. Louis on payment of a fee of $1.00 and deposit of ticket.

The Southern Railway will operate through sleeping car daily, leaving Greensboro, N. C., 7.20 p. m., May and November for St. Louis via Asheville, Knoxville and Louisville.

For full information, literature, etc., call on or address any agent of the Southern Railway.
T. E. GREEN, City Ticket Agent. Raleigh, N. C.

DON'T
give your child old greasy Castor Oil. Give CAS-TO-RINE. Tastes as good as maple syrup. Fifteen cents per bottle at all dealers.

Raleigh Marble Works

Monuments
Ship Monumental work to all parts of the State. Delivered to your depot at same price as at shop. Special attention paid to finish and lettering.
Only Best of Stock Used.
Write for new catalogue.
COOPER BROS., Proprietors, RALEIGH, N. C.

$3.50 will buy a pair Americus Shoes In 18 Styles
Men's fine custom-made work.
The Greatest Selling Shoe in America for $3.50

For sale by all up-to-date dealers. Pair "Americus" would be an appropriate present for a friend.
Geo. D. Witt Shoe Co.
Manufacturers
LYNCHBURG, VA.

BLAKESLEE GASOLINE ENGINES
ARE BEST FOR Cotton Ginning
"I can only speak of the engine bought of you last Fall in the highest terms. * * * We find her to move with the regularity of a clock, a thing that we think very essential in making a good sample of cotton. As for safety, we think it far surpasses steam, and perhaps not more dangerous than water. It seems very simple and easy to learn. * * * and believe it to be only a question of time when they will take the place of steam engines."
Rev. J. W. BURTON, L. E. of the M. E. Church, South.
Send for catalogue X, stating power requirements.
White-Blakeslee Mfg. Co.
Birmingham, Ala.

H. STEINMETZ.
FLORIST.
Cut Flowers, Designs. Plants of all kinds.
PHONES 113. RALEIGH, N. C.

Secular News

STATE.

Several of the striking seniors of the A. & M. College have re-entered.

The Supreme Court is hearing cases on appeal from the Third District this week.

There is quite a contest in Wake County over the chairmanship of the Democratic Executive Committee.

The Junior Order United American Mechanics are holding a street carnival in Wilmington this week.

At the Democratic primaries held in Wake County last Saturday, the so-called reform ticket was victorious.

Of 53 applicants who applied to the Supreme Court for license to practice law, 46 passed. Five negroes applied and three passed.

Mr. Odell, of Concord; Mr. Morgan, of Scotland County, and Mr. Duke, of Durham, among the wealthiest men in the State, are candidates for the Legislature.

A motion to dismiss the suit of J. P. Cuyler for a receiver for the Atlantic and North Carolina Railroad will be made before Judge Thos. R. Purnell next Tuesday.

The Socialists of Forsyth County met at Vienna, Friday. Nine townships were represented, and there were about 50 delegates present. A county and legislative ticket was nominated.

The Confederate Reunion, held at Asheville last week was said to be the greatest gathering of ex-Confederates in this State since Johnston's surrender to Sherman. It is estimated that over three thousand veterans were present.

When a train loaded with the first regiment of North Carolina soldiers stopped at Reidsville Monday morning en route home from the army maneuvers at Manassas several of the men left the car and proceeded to loot some of the near-by stores.

George H. Brown, Jr., forwarded his resignation as Superior Court Judge for the First District, to Governor Aycock last week. He was nominated by the late State Democratic Convention as Associate Justice of the North Carolina Supreme Court.

The monument erected on the West Winston graded school lot by the pupils of the Winston graded school in honor of the late Dr. Calvin H. Wiley, the first State Superintendent of Public Instruction, was unveiled Friday. Superintendent Joyner made an address.

One of the most shocking accidents in the history of Southern railroads occurred shortly after 1 o'clock Friday morning, when the Seaboard Air Line passenger train, No. 41, plunged into a trestle two miles north of Catawba Junction, 25 miles south of Monroe. Four persons were instantly killed and not a soul of the ill-fated train escaped injury. To increase the horror of the occurrance, an extra freight engine which had been running behind the passenger train plunged into the wreck before the living passengers could extricate themselves. The dead are: Engineer Edward Barksdale of the extra freight; Fireman Edward Roberts of the passenger train; Mrs. T. F. Black, passenger, formerly of Asheville, and a native of Kentucky; Mrs. Thomas McManus, wife of the Superintendent of the Bell Telephone Company, of Wilmington, N. C. Twenty-eight persons in all were injured.

GENERAL.

Russians expect a big battle in the neighborhood of Mukden.

People in Tokio are still celebrating the Japanese victory.

An anti-Mormon political movement has been started in Utah.

There are many spectators at the military manoeuvers at Manassas.

A peculiar and unknown disease has attacked cattle in Campbell county, Va.

The Weather Bureau reports a general deterioration in the condition of cotton.

John Alexander Dowie, alias Elijah III., advocated the intermarriage of blacks and whites.

Ex-Governor Taylor, of Tennessee, was married; he was divorced from his second wife a few months ago.

The Japanese before Port Arthur are said to be getting ready for another assault upon the fortress.

A strong anti-Russian sentiment is developing among the Chinese in Manchuria with the advance of the Japanese army.

About 500 Democratic editors from all parts of the country attended a banquet at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York City Monday night.

The Pope received a delegation of 1,500 French pilgrims, the first to visit Rome since the trouble between France and the Vatican occurred.

The Treasury Department is sending checks for prize money to the officers and men of Admiral Dewey's fleet who won the victory at Manila Bay.

Nearly all of the members of the Cabinet and some of the assistant secretaries are absent from their posts of duty and engaged in political work.

Thomas E. Watson, Populist candidate for President, made an address at the Labor Day celebration in Kansas City. The holiday was observed in all parts of the country.

The report of General Kuropatkin that the whole of his army arrived at Mukden without the loss of a gun relieved the anxiety which had been felt in St. Petersburg for the safety of the Russian army.

A tabulation of the Vermont returns compared with those of 1900, shows a net Republican loss of 444, and a net Democratic loss of 1,029. The next Legislature will be more completely controlled by the Republicans than for many years.

The Methodist Episcopal Church of Statesboro, Ga., passed resolutions denouncing the recent lynching near that place. The meeting first proposed to expel all church members who took part in the lynching, but later passed resolutions asking resignations. If certain resignations are not forthcoming in answer to the resolutions the names will be called and expulsions will follow.

WORKING OVERTIME.

Eight hour laws are ignored by those tireless, little workers—Dr. King's New Life Pills. Millions are always at work, night and day, curing Indigestion, Biliousness, Constipation, Sick Headache and all Stomach, Liver and Bowell troubles. Easy, pleasant, safe, sure. Only 25 cents at all druggists.

It is gratifying to be informed that the plastering of Greensboro Female College consists of wood, or fibrous cement, that dries rapidly after being applied to the walls and ceiling, thus rendering dry and safe rooms for the occupants at the beginning of the fall session. It is also a pleasure to note that the outlook of the fall patronage is reported to be very encouraging.

Be true to thy friend. Never speak of his faults to another, to show thy own discrimination, but open them all to him with candor and true gentleness. Forgive all his errors and his sins, be they ever so many, but do not excuse the slightest deviation from rectitude. Never forbear to dissent from a false opinion or a wrong practice, from mistaken motives of kindness; nor seek thus to have thy own weaknesses sustained; for these things cannot be done without injury to the soul.—Mrs. Child.

It is not the best things—that is, the things which we call best—that make men; it is not the pleasant things; it is not the calm experience of life. It is life's rugged experiences, its tempests, its trials. The discipline of life is here good and there evil, here trouble and there joy, here rudeness and there smoothness, one working with the other; and the alternations of the one and the other, which necessitate adaptations, constitute a part of that education which makes a man a man, in distinction from an animal, which has no education. The successful man invariably bears on his brow the marks of the struggles which he has had to undergo.—Selected.

Let not soft slumber close your eyes,
Before you've recollected thrice
The train of action through the day.
Where have my feet chose out their way?
What have I learnt, where'er I've been.
From all I've heard, from all I've seen?
What know I more that's worth the knowing?
What have I done that's worth the doing?

—Isaac Watts.

GO TO ST. LOUIS VIA C. & O. ROUTE.

Now is the time to see the great World's Fair at St. Louis, Mo. Delightful weather and the Exposition complete in all it's beauty. An opportunity not to be missed and never to be forgotten.

See that your tickets read via the C. & O. and Big Four Railways. Shortest, quickest and best route, with fast vestibuled train service.

ACID IRON MINERAL

Registered A-I-M Trade Mark

Is a great natural remedy of wonderful curative power mined from a natural deposit. It cures all diseases, involving inflammation, by purifying the blood and directly healing the irritated parts. Try it on an external sore and watch its magic healing. It acts in exactly the same way on all internal inflammation, such as Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Rheumatism, Kidney Disease, Stomach and Bowel Troubles. Numerous testimonials that it cures when all other remedies fail.

No equal for diseases peculiar to women. Tones up the entire system Four weeks treatment, only 50 cents If your druggist cannot supply you, write to

"Cured me completely of bladder trouble." Mrs. Nading, Winston, N. C. "For sores A. I. M., is worth its weight in gold." J. H. Davis, Beaufort, S. C. (Blood Poison.) "By use of A. I. M. I was cured in a few weeks." J. P. Wingard, Branchville, S. C.

ACID IRON MINERAL CO., J. H. Garat, Gen. Mgr., Salem, Va.
P. H. Haltiwanger, Pres., Columbia, S. C.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC COMPANY.

..."SUNSET ROUTE."...

Lowest Rates and Through Service to California. Ask About Them.
Through the Rice and Oil Belt.

4 Daily Trains from New Orleans to Points in Louisiana; 3 to Texas; 2 to California and Mexico.

Best Trains, Best Service; Best Everything.

OIL BURNING LOCOMOTIVES.

Through Pullman Tourist Car from Washington, Atlanta, Montgomery and Intermediate points to California, Tri-Weekly.

No trouble to answer questions.

J. F. VAN RENSSELAER, General Agent. ATLANTA, GA.
R. O. BEAN, T. P. A.,

As down in the sunless retreats of the ocean
Sweet flowers are springing no mortal can see.
So deep in my soul the still prayer of devotion,
Unheard by the world, rises silent to Thee.

—Thomas Moore.

"Take time to speak a loving word
Where loving words are seldom heard;
And it will linger in the mind,
And gather others of its kind,
Till loving words will echo where Erstwhile the heart was poor and bare;
And somewhere on thy heavenward track
Their music will come echoing back,
And flood thy soul with melody—
Such is love's immortality."

We are His witnesses. Can we decide where He most needs our testimony?—Anna Shipton.

A NOTRE DAME LADY.

I will send free, with full instructions, some of this simple preparation for the cure of Leucorhœa, Ulceration, Displacements, Falling of the Womb, Scanty or Painful Periods, Tumors or Growths, Hot Flashes, Desire to Cry, Creeping feeling up the Spine, Pain in the Back, and all Female Troubles, to all sending address. To mothers of suffering daughters I will explain a Successful Home Treatment. If you decide to continue it will only cost about 12 cents a week to guarantee a cure. Tell other sufferers of it, that is all I ask. If you are interested, write now and tell your suffering friends of it. Address, Mrs. M. Summers, Box 28 Notre Dame, Ind.

Situations. Address WILBUR R. SMITH, LEXINGTON, KY. FOR CIRCULAR OF THE "Cheapest and best College."
COMMERCIAL COLLEGE OF KY. UNIVERSITY
Refers to thousands of successful graduates. Cost to complete full Business Course, including Tuition, Books and Board, about $200. Phonography, Type-Writing and Telegraphy taught. Address WILBUR R. SMITH, Lexington, Ky.

Wanted at Once.

A lady who understands music, to teach in a public school. Price $80. Apply to

H. S. MILLER, BUXTON, N. C.

ROYALTY PAID on SONG POEMS, and Musical Compositions. We arrange and popularize. PIONEER PUB. CO. 625 Baltimore Bldg., CHICAGO, ILL.

Methodist Orphanage

OFFICERS:

REV. J. W. JENKINS, - Superintendent
MRS. J. W. JENKINS, - - Matron
MISS LUCY M. REEKS, Teacher

☞Send money to the Superintendent by Check, Post Office or Express Money Order, or Registered letter.

Encouraging.

The collections in July and August did not run as low as they did last year. We hope it will not decline in September. These are the hard months for collections. The old money crop has given out, and the new crop has not yet come in.

Receipts up to September.

Johnsons Chapel, $10.00; return of over-paid freight, S. A. L. Ry., $1.53; Oaky Grove Sunday-school, $5.00; City Roads Sunday-school, $5.00; Lumberton Sunday-school, $10.00; Parkers Sunday-school, ...; First Church Sunday-school Elizabeth City, $33.00.

Donations in kind: Box of fine fish from Mr. E. B. Moore; three sacks guano from Caraleigh Phosphate Mills.

Loud Wishes.

I used to say to the Matron, that she could wish louder than any person I ever knew. She had wished so often for things, and they had come so quickly. So I wished for some guano in the last Advocate and before it reached me, the guano was here. But I never have been able to wish loud enough to get that striking calender clock. I will change the wish now. Will not some one send a calender clock for our new chapel, without the striker? Then some one else can send us a striking clock without the calender for the Matron's room.

There are many other wishes in the air, but I will not tell them now. Just send us anything that is wishable. A thousand dollar check is a very wishable thing. A hundred is better than nothing.

Our Friends Not Much on Memorials.

The other Orphanages have a great many memorial buildings and legacies. We have had but few of either. The Catharine Page Chapel, the Rev. and Mrs. Jeffrey H. Robbins Library, and some windows are all of the former, and that of Brother Sedbury of Fayetteville, and Brother Cross of Alabama, are all. There are so many nice chances here. Rooms from $2,000 down to $400; rooms to furnish from $250 down to $40; windows $4.00 and $2.00.

Five thousand dollars will build and furnish a magnificent memorial cottage, and twenty-five thousand will endow it. Wouldn't that be splendid?

By the by, I dreamed that friends had given us the money to build the "Old Preachers' Home." But alas! it was but a dream. It will be reality some of these times.

Garner.

Caught at home on Sunday last, we ran down to Garner, and worshipped with the friends there. Brother Starling, G. B., gave us one of his red-hot sermons. His good meeting at dear old Ebenezer had primed him for it—which the good Garner people seemed to enjoy. George has an aim in preaching, and drives for it. May he never miss his aim. Garner is growing some. But it needs a cotton factory to make it what it ought to be. The children, Nash, Paul, Malinda, and Bessie—our little Sunshine—enjoyed the little outing very much. The ride whetted our appetites for the good dinner that awaited us at home. May Garner's shadow never grow less. That is a goodly people. We got in two short talks for the Orphanage. We will expect the Sunday-schools on the Cary Circuit to support an orphan.

Sunday-School Again.

It would be a nice thing for the strong Sunday-schools in the cities and towns, that have been heard from this year, to send us dues up to date. It would help our finances very much. Give us a lift, beloved.

Some Sunday-schools are making up the amount to put a bed in the new building. Send us fifteen dollars if you wish to get on the roll. Individuals as well as Sunday-schools can get on that roll. It is cheap—only $15.00. Send check, P. O. money order, or registered letter.

Dottings.

All our children are home again. We are glad to have them. We are not so lonesome, you know.

There has been no death among our live stock this week.

Our ruta bagas are looking well.

The Purple Tops and Southern Prizes are coming up nicely since the showers came. We had almost given up all hope of ever seeing them above ground. We will put in our Seven Tops this week. The ground has been too hard for us up to the last rain.

The pea crop is poor. What is the reason why our land will not bring cornfield peas? Is it too rich or too poor? I put guano under them one year, and somebody said it was too rich. I put nothing the next year, and they did not get higher than my finger. They then said they needed manure. I put manure this year. But the peas are not there.

MORPHINE

OPIUM, WHISKEY AND ALL DRUG HABITS

CURED WITHOUT PAIN AT YOUR HOME.

If you are addicted to these habits you think you will quit it. You won't; you can't unaided, but you can be cured and restored to your former health and vigor without pain or the loss of an hour from business at a moderate cost. The medicine builds up your health, restores the nervous system to its normal condition; you feel like a different person from the beginning of treatment, LEAVING OFF THE OPIATES AFTER THE FIRST DOSE. You will soon be convinced and fully satisfied in your own mind that you will be cured.

Mr. T. M. Brown, of DeQueen, Ark., says: "Over seven years ago I was cured of the opium habit by your medicine, and have continued in the very best of health since."

Dr. W. M. Tunstall, of Lovingston, Va., says: "I am glad to say that I firmly believe that I am entirely and permanently cured of the Drink Habit, as I have never even so much as wanted a drink in any form since I took your eradicator, now eighteen months ago. It was the best dollars I ever invested."

Mrs. Virginia Townsend, of Shreveport, La., writes: "No more opium. I have taken no other remedy than yours, and I make no mistake when I say my health is better now than it ever was in my life, and I owe it to you and your remedy. It has been twelve years since I was cured by your treatment."

For full particulars, address Dr. B. M. Woolley, 300 Lowndes Building, Atlanta, Ga., who will send you his book on these diseases FREE.

BOYS! BOYS! BOYS! DIXIE! DIXIE! DIXIE!

The season is approaching when boys will need shoes, and as the best may be had for the asking, why not ask your dealer to show you the "Dixie Boy"? Absolutely solid, all-leather-made, and the only shoe that will stand the rough, kicking boy.

Try a pair and be convinced that this statement is correct. Read advertisement in this paper.

If your dealer can't furnish you, advise us by postal card and we will tell you where you can find them.

GEO. D. WITT SHOE CO., Manufacturers.
Lynchburg, Va.

Quarterly Meetings.

WARRENTON DISTRICT.

G. F. Smith, P. E., Littleton, N. C.

THIRD ROUND.

Northampton, New Hope, Sept. 17, 18
Bertie, Ebenezer, Sept. 24, 25
Williamston and Hamilton, Williamston, Oct. 1, 2
Rich Square, Pinner's, Oct. 8, 9
Hobgood, Williams Chapel, Oct. 15, 16

FOURTH ROUND.

Enfield and Halifax, Enfield, Aug. 21, 22
Harrellsville, Harrellsville, Aug. 27, 28
Scotland Neck, Sept. 4, 5
Conway, Providence, Sept. 10, 11.
Murfreesboro, Sept. 11, 12
Northampton, New Hope, Sept. 17, 18
Bertie, Ebenezer, Sept. 24, 25
Williamston and Hamilton, Williamston, October 1, 2
Rich Square, Pinners, Oct. 8, 9
Battleboro and Whitakers, Whitakers, Oct. 15, 16
Hobgood, Williams Chapel, 22, 23
Warren, Shady Grove, Oct. 29, 30
Warrenton, Warrenton, Oct. 30, 31
Littleton, Littleton, Nov. 5, 6
Weldon, Nov. 6, 7
Garysburg, Seaboard, Nov. 5
Roanoke Circuit, Smiths, Nov. 12, 13
Roanoke Rapids, Rosemary, Nov. 13, 14
Ridgeway, Union, Nov. 19, 20
Henderson, Nov. 27, 28

NEW BERN DISTRICT.

F. D. Swindell, P. E., Goldsboro, N. C

FOURTH ROUND.

Mt. Olive and Faison, Mt. Olive, Sept. 17, 18
Jones' Circuit, Lee's Chapel, Sept. 24, 25
Goldsboro, Thompson's, Oct. 1, 2
St. Paul, Oct. 2
Craven Circuit, Asbury, 8, 9
Centenary, Oct. 9
Pmulico, Haybero, Oct. 15, 16
Oriental, Oriental, Oct. 16, 17

WILMINGTON DISTRICT.

R. B. John, P. E., Wilmington, N. C.

Onslow, Swanboro, September 3, 4
Scott's Hill, Acorn Branch, September 3, 4
New River, Turkey Creek, September 4
Burgaw, September 10, 11
Grace, September 13

ELIZABETH CITY DISTRICT.

J. E. Underwood, P. E., E. City, N. C.

FOURTH ROUND.

Hatteras, Trent, Sept. 10, 11
Hertford, Centre Hill, Sept. 17, 18
Perquimans, Oak Grove, Sept. 24, 25
Pasquotank, Newbegun, Sept. 25, 26
Camden, McBride's, Oct. 1, 2
North Gates, Sunday, Oct. 8, 9
Gates Harrells, Oct. 15, 16
Kitty Hawk, Currituck Inlet, Oct. 22, 23
Currituck, Ebenezer, Oct. 23, 24
Moyock, Perkins Chapel, Oct. 29, 30
Dare, Mann's Harbor, Nov. 5, 6
Roanoke Island, Nov. 6, 7
Elizabeth City, First Church, Nov. 13
Elizabeth City Road, Nov. 13
Columbia, Nov. 19, 20
Pantego and Belhaven, Nov. 25
Roper, Nov 26, 27
Plymouth, Nov. 27

WASHINGTON DISTRICT.

J. D. Bundy, P. E., Rocky Mount, N. C.

FOURTH ROUND.

Robesonville, Mt. Zion, Sept. 3, 4
Washington, Sept. 11, 12
Nashville, Sharon, Sept. 17, 18
Farmville, Farmville, Oct. 2, 3
Aurora, Oct. 8, 9
Swan Quarter, Swan Quarter, Oct. 12
Fairfield, Oct. 13
Mattemuskeet, Nebraska, Oct. 15 16
Bethel, Bethel, Oct. 22, 23
Tarboro, (night) Oct. 23
Ocracoke and Portsmouth, Ocracoke, Oct. 29, 30
Greenville, (morning) Nov. 2
Grimesland and Vanceboro, Shilmerdine, November 6, 7
Spring Hope, Hornes, Nov. 12, 13
Wilson Station, (night) Nov. 13
Wilson Circuit, (Ledge Street) Nov. 14
Fremont, Fremont, Nov. 15
Rock Mount, Nov. 16
Bath, Bath, Nov. 19, 20
South Rocky Mount and Marvin, Nov. 22
South Edgecombe, Elm City, Nov. 27, 28

ROCKINGHAM DISTRICT.

John N. Cole, P. E., Rockingham, N. C.

FOURTH ROUND.

Roberdel, Roberdel, Sept. 3, 4
Rockingham Station, Sept. 4, 5
Lumberton, Barker's, Sept. 10, 11
St. John and Gibson, St. John, Sept. 15, 16
Laurenburg, Sept. 18, 17
Richmond, Steele's Mill, Sept. 24, 25
Maxton and Caledonia, Oct. 1, 2
Hamlet, Hamlet, Oct. 8, 9
Rowland, Rowland, Oct. 15, 16
Robeson, Asbury, Oct. 22, 23
Mt. Gilead, Wadeville, Oct. 29, 30
Montgomery, Capeside, Nov. 5, 6
Red Springs, Red Springs, Nov. 12, 13
Pekin, Concord, Nov. 19, 20
Aberdeen, Aberdeen, Nov. 25, 27

RALEIGH DISTRICT.

W. H. Moore, P. E., Pittsboro, N. C.

FOURTH ROUND.

Franklinton, Grove Hill, September 10, 11
Clayton, Elizabeth, September 17, 18
Oxford Circuit, September 24, 25
Central, October 1, 2
Brooklyn, October 2, 3
Milbrook, October 8, 9
Granville, October 15, 16
Wakefield, October 20
Kenley, October 22, 23
Cary, October 29, 30
Epworth, October 30
Oxford Station, November 5, 6
Youngsville, November 12, 13
Louisburg, November 19, 20
Tar River, Plank Chapel, November 26, 27

DURHAM DISTRICT.

J. T. Gibbs, P. E., Durham, N. C.

East Burlington, Graham and Haw River, at Haw River, August 27, 28
Mt. Tirzah Circuit, September 3, 4

FOURTH ROUND.

Trinity Church, Sept. 11, at 11 a. m.
Carr Church and Branson, at Carr, Sept. 11 at night
Chapel Hill, Sept. 17, 18
Durham, McManen, Sept. 24, 25
Mangum Street, Sept. 25, at night
Leasburg, Salem, Oct. 1, 2
Hillsboro, Cedar Grove, Oct. 8, 9
Roxboro, Concord, Oct. 15, 16
Milton, New Hope, Oct. 22, 23
Yanceyville, Bethel, Oct. 29, 30
Mt. Tirzah Circuit, Nov. 5, 6
Burlington, Front Street, Nov. 13, 14
East Burlington, Graham and Haw River, Nov. 13, at night
Burlington, Shiloah, Nov. 18
Alamance, Phillips Chapel, Nov. 19, 20
Main Street, Nov. 27, at 11 a. m.
West Durham, Nov. 27, at night

FAYETTEVILLE DISTRICT.

J. B. Hurley, P. E., Fayetteville, N. C.

THIRD ROUND.

Goldstone Maroneys, August 27, 28
Sampson, Bethel, September 3, 4
Fayetteville, Hay Street, September 10, 11

FOURTH ROUND.

Dunn, Sept. 25, 26.
Cokesbury, Cokesbury, Oct. 1, 2
Elise, Tyrs, Oct. 7
Carthage, Oct. 8, 9
Haw River, Bynum's, Oct. 14
Pittsboro, Zion, Oct. 15, 16
Siler City, Oct. 22, 23
Goldston, Oct. 23, 24
Jonesboro, Hoplar Springs, Oct. 28
Sanford, Oct. 29, 30
Hope Mills, Nov. 5, 6
Newton Grove, Nov. 11
Duke, Benson, Nov. 12, 13
Buckhorn, Cokesbury, Oct. 18
Lillington, Nov. 19, 20
Sampson, Nov. 25
Fayetteville, Hay Street, Nov. 27
Fayetteville, Hoit's Hill, Nov. 27

XANTHINE

HAIR RESTORATIVE.

BEST IN THE WORLD FOR THIRTY YEARS, AND ALWAYS WILL BE.

(1874, June 25. From J. W. Lockwood, Cashier National Bank of Virginia, Richmond.)

"I have used on my hair about one-third of a bottle of the XANTHINE, and the result has been its restoration to its original color."

(1901, Aug. 9. From Rev. S. B. Hyman, D. D., Dardanelle, Ark.)

"I have never had anything to really prove satisfactory before. My wife has used it also with equal satisfaction."

PRICE $1. We prepay charges on all orders sent direct to us. Write us for circulars. XANTHINE CO., Richmond, Va.

LIBERTY MILLS

PRODUCES DAILY 4,000 BARRELS OF

Pure Soft Wheat Flour

AND THERE IS HEALTH AND STRENGTH IN EVERY POUND.

Ask Your Grocer.

LIBERTY MILLS, Nashville, Tenn.

Shepard's Lung Food.

A 50 cent bottle of Shepard's Lung Food FREE to any one wishing to test its efficacy in treatment of Asthma, Bronchitis, Colds, Coughs, La Grippe, Consumption, or any affections of the throat or lungs. Indispensable for public speakers.

Send name and address of your druggist and we will send you 50c. to pay him for one bottle of Lung Food. $100 reward for a case which it will not cure.

THE LUNG FOOD CHEMICAL CO., Wilmington, N. C.

Marriages

HEMPHILL—McINTOSH.— On the 21st of August, 1904, at the parsonage in Elise, N. C., Watson Hemphill and Rosa McIntosh, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony J. W. Hoyle officiating.

Obituaries

Obituaries containing not more than one hundred and fifty words are inserted free of charge. Those sending obituaries containing over one hundred and fifty words are requested to send with the obituary one cent for every word in excess. Unless this rule is observed the obituary must be cut down to the proper limit.

JENKINS.—"Aunt Winnie" Jenkins was born April 4, 1815, and died June 13, 1904, aged 89 years, 2 months, and 9 days. She was the oldest of our Carthage members—a whole-hearted Methodist, converted, probably, under Rev. J. B. Martin's ministry in her eighteenth year. Her devotion to pastor and family, church, and cemetery, was constant and beautiful. Born and reared in Carthage, she was the last of her generation, surviving her only brother some sixteen years.

Her fatal illness, which continued seven weeks, was patiently and submissively borne; she met death triumphantly, and her many friends believe that,

"Where the weary are at rest,
She is gathered into God."

R. H. BROOM, Pastor.

STUBBLEFIELD.—Mrs. Adeline Stubblefield (nee Siddle) was born June 23, 1839, died August 14, 1904.

She was one of eight children. All have preceded her to the home beyond save two sisters and one brother.

She has been a consistent member of the Methodist Church for many years.

It was a great shock to her dear husband, sisters, brother, and friends when in a moment she threw up her hands and said to her husband: "Oh, I am so sick," and fainted away.

There ended a Christian life of a pure and noble woman.

She was void of selfishness, for she lived for others, and no one doubts as to where she is now.

In a moment she fell on sleep and went to her eternal reward.

She did not have time for parting words, no farewells, yet we feel that her life warrants the hope of meeting her in the sweet by and by.

The dear husband and bereft ones have our depest sympathy.

J. H. McCRACKEN.

RICKS.—On the 7th day of August, 1904, at his home in Nashville, N. C., Bro. George Ricks departed this ilfe, in the eightieth year of his age. Brother Ricks was converted and joined the Methodist Church when about eighteen years old, and spent about 62 years in the service of his Lord. In his death the church and community suffer an irreparable loss. Truly a good and useful man has gone from us. For a year or more before he died he was a great sufferer at times, but manifested a spirit of patience and resignation. As a man and citizen he was honest and upright—the very soul of honor—full of integrity. As a Christian, his religion was real. He possessed the utmost confidence of all who knew him He filled the office of steward, trustee, Sunday-school Superintendent, class leader, and exhorter, and eternity will disclose the good done by this true servant of God, during his useful life. He was a man of more than ordinary information, was a constant reader of the Word. It was his delight to be in a revival of religion, and was a great help to the preacher. His earnest and soul-stirring prayers will long linger in the memory of this writer. He lived in an atmosphere of prayer. He erected a family altar several years ago, and kept it up as long as he was strong enough to do so. The last words he was heard to utter were: "Let us pray." His home was the preacher's home. It was my privilege to visit him often during his sickness, and I ever found him ready to express gratitude to God for His goodness. He loved God, and the greatest delight of his soul was to work in the cause of his Master. Ripe in age and experience, and rich in good works, he has gone to his reward, entered upon the life more abundant. His companion preceded him a few years to heaven. Nine children—four sons and five daughters—survive him, to whom he has left a rich heritage in the faithful training given them. It was beautiful to see the devotion of his two single daughters who lived with him, ministering to his every need with such tenderness and love. May the God whom he delighted to serve comfort them in their sorrow. We thank God for his pure, useful Christian life. Though dead, he yet speaketh. His memory will be a blessing.

J. M. BENSON.

PARKER.—It was a bright, beautiful day. The home of J. W. Parker and wife, Alice, of Farmville, N. C., was filled with the sunshine of gladness. Little Vira Lee was given a thrice-cordial welcome, and she at once became the idol of every heart.

As the opening of the tender bud, touched by the first rays of the spring-tide sun, so little Vira Lee came to this home on the 28th of February, 1904, effulgent with the sunlight of love and joy.

But, alas! not for long; for the Master hand touched this tender bud of only a few months, and on July 22, 1904, after an illness of several weeks, He took her to Himself, who said: "Suffer the little children to come unto me."

That she is dead, she is just away,
With a cheery smile and a wave of the hand.
She has wandered into an unknown land,
And left us dreaming how very fair
It needs must be, since she lingers there.

L. E. SAWYER.

Resolutions of Respect.

Whereas, on the third day of June, 1904, it pleased our Heavenly Father to remove from the church on earth to the church in heaven G. W. Pollard, a beloved member of this Quarterly Conference, Garysburg Circuit,

Resolved 1. That as a Quarterly Conference we feel most keenly the loss of this dear brother who was ever true and faithful, but humbly yielded to the Father's will.

2. That we extend to the bereaved family our sympathy in this, their sorrow, trusting that the Father of love and goodness may comfort and sustain them.

3. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, a copy to the Raleigh Christian Advocate for publication, and a copy recorded with the proceedings of this Quarterly Conference.

J. G. JOHNSON.
R. L. REESE.
J. G. L. CROCKER.

Whereas, our Heavenly Father has called from labor to reward Bro. G. S. Cole, who, for a number of years, was a faithful member of Jonesboro M. E. Sunday-school; therefore be it Resolved 1. That while yielding with deep humility to the hand of an all-wise providence, we can but lament the death of one, who by his kindness and loyalty, had impressed us as a true follower of Christ.

2. That in his death the Sunday-school has lost a most faithful and loyal member, and a devout Christian.

3. That his life should inspire us to a more perfect service and greater sacrifice in our efforts to further Christ's kingdom on earth.

4. That we extend our deepest sympathy to the bereaved wife and relatives, and pray that they may be resigned to the will of Him who doeth all things well.

5. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the wife of the deceased: also recorded in the minutes of our Sunday-school, and a copy be sent to the Raleigh Christian Advocate for publication.

G. W. AVENT,
PARMER DALRYMPLE,
MRS. S. A. CHOFFIN,
Committee.

Whereas, Miss Winnie Jenkins, at the advanced age of eighty-nine years, one of the charter members of the Aid Society of the M. E. Church, South, Carthage, N. C., has been called to her eternal reward; and

Whereas, her removal entails great loss, both in noble example and wise counsel and material aid, upon our Society; therefore

Resolved 1. That we humbly submit to our Father's all-wise and ever-gracious purpose and providence, praying that we who are left behind may so emulate her superior virtues as ever to keep alive the memory of her long and useful life.

2. That we will earnestly endeavor to conserve her excellent graces in the enhancement of our own efficiency and usefulness individually, and the enlargement of our Society's sphere of doing good.

3. That this paper be spread on our Society record and furnished the Raleigh Christian Advocate, of which she was a devoted reader almost till the last, for publication.

MRS. W. T. JONES.
MRS. J. E. WADDILL.
MRS. R. H. BROOM.

THE KING OF BLOOD PURIFIERS SSS

No remedy ever yet discovered has met with such popular favor as S. S. S. The people everywhere indorse it, and there are few homes where S. S. S. for the blood is not known and used. It is superior in many ways to the ordinary blood medicines. In the first place S. S. S. is a guaranteed purely vegetable compound, made exclusively of medicinal roots selected for their wonderful purifying and tonic properties that act upon the blood, purging it of impurities and restoring it to a healthy, natural condition. At the same time, under its tonic effects the general system improves, the sluggish organs are toned up, and renewed strength and vigor and better health is the result. No bad after-effects follow the use of S. S. S., as so often happens with blood medicines containing strong minerals, which derange the stomach and digestion and in other ways damage the system. For diseases of the blood, such as Chronic Sores, Rheumatism, Catarrh, Scrofula, Boils and Pimples, Eczema, Tetter, Blood Poisons, and other troubles due to impure or bad condition of the blood, no remedy acts so promptly and thoroughly as S. S. S. It reaches deep-seated, long-standing cases, upon which the ordinary potash and sarsaparilla compounds have no effect. Even where there is an hereditary predisposition to disease, S. S. S will search out and remove from the blood the fixed poison and build up the health; it enriches and purifies weak, thin blood and stimulates the circulation. Pure blood is essential to health. You can exist without good blood, but can never be robust and strong; for every organ, tissue and nerve in the body looks to the blood for nourishment, and unless this vital fluid is kept in a pure, healthy state, the rest of the body suffers and the system soon breaks down. Nature has provided in S. S. S. a remedy for diseases of the blood which long experience and a thorough test have proven superior to all others, and the acknowledged "King of Blood Purifiers."

ALWAYS KEEPS S. S. S. ON HAND.

Monticello, Ark., May 21, 1903.

Gentlemen:—For about twelve years I have been using your S. S. S. as a household remedy. I have taken it as a tonic and appetizer, and believe there is none better. I have used it for my children at various times for little skin eruptions, boils and poisons caused by playing with weeds. S. S. S. is my standard, never mind what is the matter. If I use a bottle of S. S. S. it tones up the system, cleanses the blood and makes me well again. As an all-round family medicine I consider S. S. S. the best remedy of the kind that have I ever used, and generally keep it on hand as a family remedy. MRS. V. C. WHITTINGTON.

OUR MEDICAL DEPARTMENT, in charge of graduated physicians, is an important part of our business, maintained for the benefit of those who need advice or special information in regard to their case. Write us, and our physicians will advise you without charge.

THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

CROSS & LINEHAN CO.,

NEW TUCKER BUILDING.)
234-236 Favetteville St., RALEIGH, N. C.

LET US SHOW YOU WHAT THE FULL MEANING OF BARGAIN-GIVING MEANS IN . . . . . .

CLOTHING

AND GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS.

OUR NEW SPRING STOCK NOW READY FOR YOUR INSPECTION.

Cross & Linehan Co.,
Leading Clothiers.

THE

Park Region Mutual Hail Insurance Association

Insures Growing Crops of all Kinds

Against Loss or Damage by Hail Storms.

This is an old reliable company, with a large membership in this State. We paid three hundred losses last year in North Carolina. We can give you safe protection. We are the : : : : : : : : : : : :

Only Old Reliable, Time-Tested Company Doing this Line of Business in North Carolina.

For information, or for names of parties who have been paid losses by us

Address THE PARK REGION MUTUAL HAIL INSURANCE ASSOCIATION,
Room 2, Pullen Bldg. — RALEIGH, N. C.

RELIABLE AGENTS WANTED.

IT SAVED HIS LEG.

P. A. Danforth, of La Grange, Ga., suffered for six months with a frightful running sore on his leg; but writes that Bucklen's Arnica Salve wholly cured it in five days. For Ulcers, Wounds, Piles, it's the best salve in the world. Cure guaranteed. Only 25 cents. Sold by druggists.

VERY LOW RATES Announced Via
SOUTHERN RAILWAY.

Very low rates announced via Southern Railway from points on its lines for the following special occasions:

Austin, Texas.—National Baptist Convention (Colored), September 14-19, 1904.

Baltimore, Md.—National Convention Fraternal Order of Eagles, September 12-17, 1904.

Chattanooga, Tenn.—International Association of Fire Engineers, September 13-16, 1904.

Richmond, Va.—Grand Fountain United Order True Reformers, September 6-13, 1904.

Los Angeles and San Francisco, Cal.—Triennial Conclave, Knights Templar, September 5-9, 1904; Sovereign Grand Lodge I. O. O. F., September 19-25, 1904.

St. Louis, Mo.—Louisiana Purchase Expositions, May-November, 1904.

Rates for the above occasions open to the public.

Tickets will be sold to these points from all stations on Southern Railway.

Detailed information can be had upon application to any Ticket Agent of the Southern Railway, or agents of connecting lines, or by addressing the undersigned:

R. L. VERNON, T. P. A.,
Charlotte, N. C.
J. H. WOOD, T. P. A.,
Asheville, N. C.
S. H. HARDWICK,
Pass. Traffic Manager,
Washington, D. C.
W. H. TAYLOE,
General Pass. Agent.
Washington, D. C.

TRAGEDY AVERTED.

"Just in the nick of time our little boy was saved," writes Mrs. W. Watkins, of Pleasant City, Ohio. "Pneumonia had played sad havoc with him and a terrible cough set in besides. Doctors treated him, but he grew worse every day. At length we tried Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, and our darling was saved. He's now sound and well." Everybody ought to know it's the only sure cure for Coughs, Colds and all Lung diseases. Guaranteed by all druggists. Price 50 cents and $1.00. Trial bottles free.

WOOL.

If you have wool to sell, for cash, to exchange for goods, or to be manufactured, ship it to the CHATHAM MANUFACTURING COMPANY, ELKIN, N. C., and you will not regret it. They pay the highest market price and make the best goods you can get. Their blankets at all the leading expositions have been awarded GOLD MEDALS as the finest made in America.

WRITE THEM FOR SAMPLES.

When writing advertisers please mention this paper.

PIANOS AND ORGANS

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.

A. D. JONES & CO.
Southern Factory Distributors for the World's Famous

KIMBALL

WE Loan you the money to buy them.
WE Give free trials.
WE Pay the freight.
WE Save you 25 per cent.
WE Add nothing to the principal when sold on

EASY PAYMENTS.

Write for our latest piano and and organ catalogue and full particulars.

A. D. JONES & CO.,
208 South Elm Street,
GREENSBORO, N. C.

SOUTHERN DENTAL COLLEGE, ATLANTA, GEORGIA.

If you are interested in obtaining a dental education, write for free catalogue of full instruction.

Address DR. S. W. FOSTER, DEAN, 100 NORTH BUTLER STREET, ATLANTA, GEORGIA

Normal and Collegiate Institute FOR Young Women,

FALL TERM opens September 21, 1904. ASHEVILLE, NORTH CAROLINA.

1. A Normal course for thorough training of teachers under instructors from best normal schools.
2. A Commercial Course, including Stenography, Typewriting, Bookkeeping, etc.
3. A Course of Domestic Science, including (a) Scientific Cooking, (b) Draughting, Cutting, Fitting, and Making of Garments.
4. An admirable Musical Department has been provided under trained and experienced teachers.
5. Systematic study of the Bible in all Departments.
6. Terms for Board and Tuition in any of the Departments, $50 per term, or $100 per year.

For Catalogue, address REV. THOMAS LAWRENCE, D. D., ASHEVILLE, N. C.

Greensboro Female College,

GREENSBORO, N. C.

1838 1904

New building, with new equipment and every modern convenience; unsurpassed in beauty and healthfulness of location.

Literary, Scientific, Classical and Business Courses.

SCHOOL OF MUSIC, ART AND EXPRESSION.

Full corps of able and experienced specialists in charge of every department

For further information apply to LUCY H. ROBERTSON, President.

Littleton Female College.

This institution, with a patronage of more than 200 pupils from five different States, covering an area of 1000 miles in diameter, desires immediate correspondence with any young lady who wishes to go off to school. A postal card or letter will bring immediate reply and interesting information.

The 23d Annual Session will begin on Wednesday. Sept. 14, 1904.

J. M. RHODES, PRESIDENT, Littleton, N. C.

NEW BERN MILITARY AGADEMY

NEW BERN, N. C.

Largest and best equipped Boarding School in Eastern Carolina. Several thousand dollars being spent in buildings and equipments. Electric Lights, Bath Rooms, Water-Works, Foot-ball, Boat Racing, Base-ball. Faculty of nineteen Specialists (including lecture faculty.)

CAROLINA BUSINESS COLLEGE, NEW BERN, N. C.

Every graduate holding a position. Positions guaranteed. Railroad fare paid. Large and loyal student body our best advertisement. Special Rates for July.

Write at once for beautifully illustrated catalogue.

S. J. HOLLADAY, President.

LOUISBURG COLLEGE. The 102d Year Begins Sept. 7, 1904.

AN ABLE AND THOROUGHLY INTERESTED FACULTY.

The number of students limited; securing to each Thorough Instruction; Careful Individual Training, under refining Home Influence. SPACIOUS GROUNDS FOR OUTDOOR ATHLETICS.

For Catalogue address,

M. S. DAVIS, A. M., President,
LOUISBURG, N. C.

....Chesapeake and Ohio Railway....

World's Fair Scenic Route
TO
St. Louis, Missouri.

SHORTEST, QUICKEST and BEST ROUTE. Vestibuled, Electric-Lighted Trains with Pullman Sleepers and Dining Cars.
Through tickets from North Carolina with direct connections.

SPECIAL RATES FOR SEASON, SIXTY OR FIFTEEN DAY TICKETS.
Fifteen day tickets from Raleigh, N. C., $24.80.
Sleeping car accommodations engaged upon application.

SPECIAL COACH EXCURSIONS
On authorized dates, tickets good for ten days at rate of $18.50. Correspondingly low rates from other stations. Special accommodations arranged for parties. Stop-overs permitted within limit at C. & O. celebrated mountain resorts.

USE THE C. & O. ROUTE and purchase your tickets accordingly.
For coach excursion dates, reservations and other information, address
W. O. WARTHEN, D. P. A., C. & O. Railway,
Richmond, Va.

Elizabeth College and Conservatory of Music

CHARLOTTE, NORTH CAROLINA.

A HIGH GRADE COLLEGE FOR YOUNG WOMEN.

Only University-trained and experienced teachers at the head of Departments—$250,000 College Plant—Fire-proof Buildings—20-Acre Campus—Ideal Suburban Site overlooking city—Boarding Students limited to one hundred.

We can make it to Your Interest to come to Elizabeth. For Illustrated Catalogue and full information, address

CHARLES B. KING, President.

Gold Dust.

Those who bring sunshine to the lives of others cannot keep it from themselves.—James M. Barrie.

"I would rather be able to appreciate things I can not have, than to have things I am not able to appreciate."

Failure after long preserverance is much grander than never to have a striving good enough to be called a failure.—George Eliot.

Look inwards, for you always have a lasting fountain of happiness at home that will always bubble up if you will but dig for it.—Marcus Aurelius.

Cherish ideals as the traveler cherishes the north star, and keep the guiding light pure and bright and high above the horizon.—Newell Dwight Hillis.

Contentment comes neither by culture nor by wishing; it is a reconciliation with one's lot, growing out of an inward superiority to our surroundings.—J. K. McLean.

Compass happiness, since happiness alone is victory. What you make of life, it will be to you. Take it up bravely, bear it on joyfully, lay it down triumphantly.—Gail Hamilton.

Make friends with your trials, as though you were always to live together, and you will find that when you cease to take thought for your own deliverance, God will take thought for you.—Francis de Sales.

"I believe in the sacredness of the human body, this transient dwelling-place of a living soul, and so I deem it the duty of every man and woman to keep his or her body beautiful through right thinking and right living."—P. Gerhardt.

"If you are an invalid, do your best to get well; but, if you must remain an invalid, still strive for the unselfishness and serenity which are the best possessions of health. There are no sublimer victories than some that are won on sick-beds."—P. Gerhardt.

"Believe in yourself, believe in humanity, believe in the success of your undertakings. Fear nothing and no one. Love your work. Work, hope, trust. Keep in touch with today. Teach yourself to be practical and up-to-date and sensible. You cannot fail."

If one admires the patience, gentleness, sweetness and unfailing energy of another; if he finds himself renewed and invigorated and inspired by such contact—why does he not himself so live that he may bring the same renewal and inspiration to others?—Lilian Whiting.

Just to be good, to keep life pure from degrading elements, to make it constantly helpful in little ways to those who are touched by it, to keep one's spirit always sweet and avoid all manner of petty anger and irritability—that is an idea as noble as it is difficult.—Edward Howard Griggs.

A single gentle rain makes the grass many shades greener. So our prospects brighten on the influx of better thoughts. We should be blessed if we lived in the present always and took advantage of every accident that befell us, like the grass which confesses the influence of the slightest dew that falls on it, and did not spend our time in atoning for neglect of past opportunities, which we call doing our duty.—Thoreau.

The spirit of simplicity is a great magician. It softens asperities, bridges chasms, draws together hands and hearts. The forms which it takes in the world are infinite in number; but never does it seem to us more admirable than when it shows itself across the fatal barriers of position, interest, or prejudice, overcoming the greatest obstacles, permitting those whom everything seems to separate to understand one another, esteem one another, love one another. This is the true social cement that goes into the building of a people.—Charles Wagner.

PERSONALLY CONDUCTED TOUR TO WORLD'S FAIR, ST. LOUIS, MO., TUESDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1904, VIA SEABOARD AIR LINE RAILWAY.

The Seaboard Air Line Railway announces a very attractive personally conducted tour to the World's Fair on Tuesday, October 4th, which will be in charge of Mr. C. H. Gattis, Traveling Passenger Agent, from all points on its line and connections within the State. Arrangements are being made for special train consisting of Pullman Drawing Room Sleeping Cars and Vestibule, high back day coaches to run through from Raleigh, Wilmington and Charlotte to St. Louis without change.

The route selected is one of the most attractive in the South, via Atlanta, Chattanooga and Nashville, the route of the "Dixie Flyer," passing the battlefields between Atlanta and Chattanooga, around Lookout Mountains and through the beautiful farming country of Kentucky.

Rates from Raleigh, 15 day limit, $24.80, 10 days $18.50; from Wilmington, 15 days $26.25, 10 days $20.40; from Charlotte, 15 days $24.65, 10 days $18.30. Rate for double berth in Pullman $6, two can occupy berth, making charge just half.

Leave Raleigh 4 p. m., Wilmington 3.20 p. m., and Charlotte 7.25 p. m., Tuesday afternoon, October 4th.

All arrangements will be made for hotel accommodations at Inside Inn, Exposition grounds. Pullmans will be provided for return trip and everything will be done for the comfort and pleasure of those who avail themselves of this opportunity to visit the greatest World's Fair ever held.

For rates from other points, schedules, Pullman reservations, pamphlets of the trip, address the undersigned. C. H. GATTIS, T. P. A., Raleigh, N. C.

King's Business College

(INCORPORATED.)

CAPITAL STOCK $30,000.

We give the world's best and most modern Business Education. Our Colleges are the most helpful schools in America. KING'S means THOROUGH in everything pertaining to Business Education. Railroad fare paid. Positions guaranteed, backed by a written contract. Individual Instruction No Vacation. Enter Any Time.

Write for our College Journal and offers—they will point you to the road that leads to success. Address,

KING'S BUSINESS COLLEGE,
Raleigh, N. C., or Charlotte, N. C.

Save YOUR Money!

Put it where it will not only be safe but also earn more money for you by investing in

Building and Loan Stock

Heretofore only those living in large towns had an opportunity to do this, but now it is offered to all by a home institution, organized under the building and loan laws of North Carolina.

THE SOUTHERN MUTUAL HOME AND REAL ESTATE COMPANY, with its home office at No. 14½ Princess street, Wilmington, N. C.

MUTUAL STOCK.

Face value $100 per share, payments $1.00 per share monthly. Loans to the full face value of the stock on eligible real estate security—in town or country—in a reasonable time. Most liberal terms.

GUARANTEED "PAID UP STOCK"—CLASS A.

Sold at $75.00 a share, redeemable in five years from date of issue at face value, $100 per share. Redeemable at any time for amount paid, and fair interest, specified in the certificate. Holder can secure loans on easy terms if desired.

GUARANTEED "INSTALMENT STOCK"—CLASS B.

Face value $100, paid for in monthly instalments, $1.45 per share; maturity in five years, and redemption at that time at face value guaranteed, making a 6 per cent investment.

LOCAL BRANCHES AND AGENCIES.

Whenever desired "local branches" will be organized, giving members almost entire control of funds subscribed. Agents wanted where not sufficient members to organize a Local Branch.

If you want to buy a home or save money to educate your children, lay up something for your old age, or give your boys a start in life, you will make no mistake in subscribing for as many shares of stock as you can safely carry. If you want further information write

Home Office, 14 1-2 Princess Street, Wilmington, N. C.,

M. C. HAMMOND, Manager,
P. O. Box 242.

Or see any of the agents named below:

J. W. Norman, Lenksville.
B. C. Glass, Maxton.
J. M. Creech, Warsaw.
T. F. Riddick, Belhaven
C. C. Teague, Fremont.
R. L. Culbreth, Dunn.
S. Biggs, Hamlet.
J. W. Sims, Stony Point.
J. M. Avery, Collettsville.
G. A. Jones, Snow Hill.
S. W. Venable, Jr., Wilson.

W. C. Holland, Fayetteville.
A. E. Morgan, Goldsboro.
W. J. Teague, Ashboro.
G. W. Taylor, Jacksonville.
E. D. Osborne, Southern Pines.
T. D. Maness, Concord.
A. S. Cooley, Rowland.
G. W. Capps, Gastonia.
John D. Croft, Asheville.
D. H. Parker, Speed.
S. R. Jones, Wilbar.

Newstead Avenue Hotel and Restaurant

Meals 25 cents. Lodging $1.00 per Day or $6.00 per Week. Lodging with Board (3 Meals) $8.75 per Week.

Gas and Electric Lights. Everything New and Modern. Baths Free.

Take Laclede Car West at Union Station and Transfer to Taylor Avenue Line North to corner of Newstead and Lee Avenues, Direct route to WORLD'S FAIR on Taylor Avenue Line, and Down Town on Lee Avenue Line from the Door of the Hotel. ☞To any person bringing a party of Eleven ENTERTAINMENT FREE as long as party remains. Write to

REV. I. T. STAFFORD, Manager.

4139 North Newstead Ave. 'Phone, Tyler 453 St. Louis.

65 VALUABLE PREMIUMS WITH

CHEEK & NEAL'S PORTO RICO COFFEE

Makes a good cup of coffee. The best and strongest popular priced package Coffee sold. You not only get good coffee, but your choice of 65 Valuable Premiums is given for the signatures found on each package. Put up by

CHEEK & NEAL COFFEE CO., Nashville, Tenn.

See Large Premium List in every package. Save the signatures.

LIBRARY OF THE COLLEGE OF NORTH CAROLINA

Reading Room Trinity College.

Raleigh Christian Advocate

FIFTIETH YEAR. ORGAN OF THE NORTH CAROLINA CONFERENCE. NUMBER 34.

RALEIGH, N. C., WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 21, 1904.

Editorial

THE MENACE OF THE "UNWRITTEN LAW."

There is among the various laws which, like avenging angels, safeguard our moral, social, and political interests, a grisly, terrible shape that now and then arises to slay that which it should defend. The avenging sword cuts with keen edge into that authority, whether moral or civil, which is the basis of all law. While this shape, holding in one hand a sword and in the other the unbalanced scales of justice, riots in unbridled license, Anarchy biding its time, waits patiently in the distance.

The "Unwritten Law" is the great menace to Christian civilization and forms one of its gravest perils. We do not refer to that unwritten law, which, on account of human limitations or other cause, has not been formulated and codified, but which nevertheless may be a true child of that authority which begets only legitimate and humane posterity. Such an unwritten law there may be, and doubtless is. We refer to that unwritten law, which in open, flagrant defiance of formulated positive law essays to perform its work of vindication and protection. What it would vindicate and protect is enmeshed among the very heart-strings of humanity, but its method dulls the edge of justice, overturns the foundations of authority and opens the flood-gates for that torrent which never rolls but to devastate.

The "Unwritten Law" is a bold usurper. It is an iconoclast of the most cruel kind. It lifts its bold front against authority of the State and the solidified sentiment and judgment of generations of the wise and good.

It is found in the domain of business, where in its unholy greed for filthy lucre, it shivers into fragments that decalogue which it wets with tears before the church altar. In the name of business it robs, cheats, defrauds, pauperizes, and damns. According to its prosaic, every-day ethics, everything is fair in that war in which the strong are arrayed against the weak to prove the doctrine of the survival of the fittest, the "fittest" being those who can accumulate the greatest number of dollars.

It is in the domain of politics. It glorifies election laws and exalts to the skies the priceless right of the freeman to vote as he pleases. Yet it winks at the most unblushing corruption, and justifies under what it calls "peculiar circumstances" the utter debauchery of the ballot box.

It is in our social life. It justifies in open court the crime for which the criminal has been arraigned by the officers of the written law. In the name of justice it tears the keys from the hands of the jailor. In the name of justice it batters down the prison doors. In the name of justice it robs the State of its own prisoner. In the name of justice it laughs at the law of the State. In the name of justice, it exhausts the inventions of cruelty in wreaking its beastly, devilish vengeance on a brute who with all his brutishness is subject only to the law of God and his country.

The "Unwritten Law" is to be reckoned with. It is smooth, specious and plausible, but it is deadly. It wears a mask of comeliness, but beneath are the raw-head and bloody bones.

It is but a truism to say that the best plan for disarming and rendering powerless the "Unwritten Law" is to administer promptly and completely the "Written Law." In order that this may be done, the exponents, protectors and vindicators of the "Written Law" must give forth no uncertain sound. No lawyer and other legal officer, either in defence or prosecution, by direct statement or intimation, should dare to defend that which the law of his country condemns. We were surprised to hear noted lawyers a few days ago, in a celebrated case, in pleading for the defendants, say that there is a crime for which the criminal should be shot down like a dog, law or no law. When the exponents of the "Written Law" speak thus, how can we wonder that the spirit of lawlessness is increasing throughout the land? All honor to the presiding Judge, who, in his charge, rebuked the sentiment which supports the "Unwritten Law," and pleaded for the vindication of the "Written Law" of his country.

The moral and religious influence of the country must be exerted against the baleful "Unwritten Law." This influence is powerful. That pastor of Statesboro, Georgia, who sent to every prominent religious paper in the land a letter condemnatory of the action of the devilish mob which burned at the stake those devilish negro brutes, did a wise and effective thing. The Methodist Church at Statesboro did still better, when it laid its heavy disciplinary hand upon those members who belonged to this mob.

We repeat: the "Unwritten Law" must be dealt with, or it will deal terribly with the hopes and interests of our Christian civilization. Among the menaces to Church and State the "Unwritten Law" looms dark and terrible. Let us meet our peril with calm judgment, earnest exhortation, fervent prayer, and with that adherence to law which is one of the prime conditions of freedom and righteousness.

THE MISS ABBOTT AFFAIR.

A Miss Abbott, of Cincinnati, taught in a mission school near Lenoir, N. C. During her vacation she conversed with a reporter of a Cincinnati paper, and in the conversation gave some instances of ignorance and destitution in the section in which she taught. The reporter described as general what Miss Abbott gave as exceptional instances, and really painted an awful picture of of the section. The people were represented as never having heard of George Washington or the Fourth of July, as living on dirt floors, as never having seen a piano, and as having to go thirty-five miles to hear preaching. All of which, of course, was supremely absurd.

The paper containing the write up found its way to Lenoir. It was published in one of the papers there, and, of course, aroused great indignation against Miss Abbott. When she returned to her school a few days ago, she found the feeling against her decidedly bitter. Her plea that she had been made the victim of a sensational and untruthful reporter was unavailing. After a clash between a few of her friends and the faction against her, she left the section last week.

This leads us to make a few observations.

People should be very careful in their conversations with unprincipled newspaper reporters. Such reporters, being on the hunt for news will create their game if they cannot stalk the real article. They generally add horns and cloven hoofs.

Newspapers should be very careful how they publish articles whose authorship and general truthfulness are unknown. The editor of the Lenoir paper republished the article in question with the best of motives. But it is the consensus of opinion among the best people of Caldwell County that the editor made a mistake. There would have been no trouble had this paper not reproduced the article.

Our people are too sensitive altogether. The reflections made against them cannot hurt anybody. Resentment does not do any good in the way of vindication, and only gives their real enemies an opportunity of increasing their capital of hate.

There is not more destitution and ignorance in Caldwell County and any other section in North Carolina than can be found in any State of the Union. All talk about North Carolina's being in any special sense missionary ground is absurd, and the less notice taken of such talk, the better.

THE DANGER IN SPECIALIZING.

This is the time of the year when the question of collections is uppermost in the minds of our preachers. It seems to be a foregone conclusion that the itinerant preacher must be God's tax-gatherer. Some preachers enjoy taking private and public collections. Others do not. We would warn the latter against yielding to their disinclination. To a majority of them their trial will develop them and prove a distinct means of grace. The great Georgia preacher, Simon P. Richardson, started out in his ministerial life with his heart set against taking up a collection, and, for several years, he did not take up any. He never succeeded much in winning souls until he threw away his pride and conquered his prejudice and became a prince among God's tax-gatherers.

The great danger with us as Methodists is not in specializing—that is in calling especial attention to any one interest. This must be done. But the danger is in specializing so that the concentration of interest and effort on one cause means a decrease of interest and effort in another direction.

A special effort has been made within the last few years to develop the missionary conscience and liberality of our Southern Methodist people. This is altogether commendable. We are afraid, though, that the cause of foreign missions has been emphasized at the expense of domestic missions. If this be the case, the situation is extremely unfortunate. No cause among all the collections should be emphasized at the expense of another. All the causes are vital, not excepting the Conference paper. Let all receive adequate attention.

Mr. A. A. Kern, son of our Dr. Jno. A. Kern, of the Baltimore Conference, has been elected professor of English at Millsaps College, Mississippi. Mr. Kern is a graduate of Randolph-Macon College and of Vanderbilt University, and for the last several years has been a student at Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, Md., for his Ph. D., degree.

Contributions

Mr. Crumpler Again.

In his book of Discipline, Mr. Crumpler says: "I was tried under the charge of immorality for breaking the glorious doctrines of Methodism when asked not to do so by a Methodist preacher." In his correction of my statement, he tells us he was acquitted. According to his own statements the committee of trial did not find him guilty of "preaching the glorious doctrines of Methodism."

This reminds me of an incident reported to have occurred at the close of the trial. As Mr. Crumpler was passing along the street a gentleman accosted him, saying, "Well, Mr. Crumpler, I hear that they have been trying you for preaching the Gospel." "Yes, yes, bless the Lord," said Mr. Crumpler. "And I understand they did not find you guilty." The apparent inference created a laugh at Mr. Crumpler's expense.

He states correctly when he said he was acquitted. But does that necessarily establish his innocence? Is the verdict of a jury incontestible proof of the guilt or innocence of the accused? Are juries infallible?

Who does not well know the frequent miscarriages of justice under the jury system? Many a criminal has gone unpunished because the jury failed to convict. The verdict of "not guilty" only means that in the mind of the jury the evidence was not sufficient to prove the guilt.

In the case of Mr. Crumpler, two out of five of the trial committee said he was guilty. The other three voted to acquit upon a construction of the law, which, if accepted as correct, would make the law practically useless. They defined the bounds of a circuit, or charge, to be the boundaries, or bounds surrounding the property deeded to the Methodist church. (See Mr. Crumpler's letter in the issue of August 10th.) With this definition of the law, as Mr. Crumpler's meeting was not held on the church grounds, they said he was not guilty.

Who does not see that if that construction of the law is correct, then any Methodist preacher could put up a tent just outside of the grounds of any of our churches and hold his meeting, and there is no law to prevent him. What good, or sense, was there on the part of the General Conference in inserting paragraph 301 in the Discipline? The preachers already had a right to control the services in the churches, and if the paragraph means what the three said it means, it was silly, as well as useless, legislation to enact the law. But I know that that was not the intent of the General Conference, for I heard the discussion over it as it was before that body, and voted for its passage.

If their construction was correct, then some of our preachers have six, some eight pastoral charges, and yet they have no members living within the bounds of their pastoral charges, for it is a very rare thing to find any one living on property deeded to the church, except the preachers themselves.

The incorrectness, and even absurdity, of the construction of the law by these three is apparent. If they had have construed the Discipline properly they would have had to vote for conviction instead of acquittal. Mr. Crumpler must have thought the place he was to hold the meeting was in Mr. Starling's Circuit, or else why did he write to him about it? Mr. Starling believed it was in the bounds of his charge or he would not have forbidden him to hold it.

Mr. Tripp and the two brethren he took with him after he had at first waited on Mr. Crumpler thought it was in the bounds of Mr. Starling's charge, or else they would not have taken the case in hand, for they could have had nothing against him. The investigating committee thought it was, or they never would have ordered the trial.

From the reports that came to me of the trial, the verdict of the committee was a surprise.

In view of these facts, and in view of the spirit and attitude of Mr. Crumpler during the disciplinary processes preceding the trial as given by one in a position to know, I made the statement that he wilfully and deliberately violated the Discipline. I would be glad to know that my conclusion is incorrect and unjust to Mr. Crumpler. I do not wish to believe evil things of any one, much less one who claims for himself so spotless and exalted Christian character that he has not sinned for years. But the facts force me to my conclusion that he knew he was violating the law of his church when he held the meeting.

His attempt at correcting me seems a shrewd move to call attention from the real fact at issue, namely, that he says he was tried for preaching the glorious doctrines of Methodism, when all the facts connected with the trial, together with the "charge and specifications," prove that he was tried for a violation of paragraph 301 of the Discipline. Did he make the incorrect statement in the Discipline because he could not really understand the cause of his trial, or because he wanted to create sympathy for himself and prejudice against the church?

F. D. SWINDELL.

Beaufort, N. C., August 24, 1904.

The New Greensboro Female College.

This term may not at first glance seem a welcome one to the college friends of "old G. F. C." But it is needless to say that the new college retains all that is best of the old, but the improvements will be so many and so noticeable as to suggest the above caption.

In the first place, the building will be virtually a new one. The plan is new and the work is being done under the supervision of a competent architect, in accordance with the most approved, modern ideas. One difficulty with which the old college had to contend was that it could not offer to the pupils all the modern conveniences which were provided in other institutions. This will be overcome in the new. The building will be elegantly equipped with every convenience necessary to health and comfort. It will be heated by steam, and provided with an abundance of bath rooms, lavatories, etc.

The college will share fully in the educational spirit that is abroad in the land. Not only will the building be erected in accordance with the most approved plans, but its work will also be planned in accordance with the soundest educational theories of modern times. It will in the future, as well as in the past, always seek at all times to do thorough, honest work.

Much of the criticism of modern education is unjust, but there is no doubt that a large amount of it is not without foundation. That there are instances in which pupils, at one school or another, are given a superficial training and sent out, wholly unprepared for the demands of life, cannot be questioned.

Greensboro Female College stands for thorough, honest work in every department. It realizes that it is of primary importance that its pupils be well grounded in the English language, and with that end in view, have secured the services of Prof. George S. Wills, who will have charge of that department. The record of Prof. Wills as a teacher, and his excellent equipment for the work which he will undertake, insures the fact that the college will at once stand in the very front rank in this respect.

The fine arts, so necessary in education of our young women, will also receive especial attention. The art studio is under the direction of Miss Elizabeth Porter, a teacher of many years' experience, who received her principal training in "the New York Art League" and Paris. Every department, from drawing, from cast and studies, from nature, to the latest decorative art are taught by her in the most thorough and artistic manner.

Signor Carlo Mora, the director of music, is a pianist of extraordinary ability, and has been associated throughout his musical career with some of the greatest musical celebrities of the world, having presented Madame Nordica in her first appearance before a London audience. He is also a master of the pipe organ and was chosen to play the grand organ at the opening of the Centennial Exposition. Many of his pupils have been among the most successful and brilliant concert players of America.

The school of expression, under the charge of Miss Blanche E. Shattuck, of Boston, is based on the course as taught in Dr. Currie's School of Expression, of which Miss Shattuck is a graduate, both of the general and teacher's courses. As a specialist in this department, Miss Shattuck is unsurpassed, her interpretation of various branches of literature being most highly finished in its rendition.

While presenting these new advantages, the fact that all was best in the old, that can, will be retained, goes without saying, and every branch of learning recognized as desirable will be embodied in the course.

Above all, the influence of the college will be such as to develop the pupils into noble Christian women. To develop a well-rounded character will ever be the aim of Greensboro Female College. The very fact that Mrs. Lucy H. Robertson, who has been associated with the institution for many years, remains with it is a guaranty that the college will continue to offer to its pupils the advantages of a cultured, Christian home.

There is the opportunity for individual contact and personal interest, impossible among very large student bodies, which insures what is after alll, of the most importance in all educational effort, the development of Christian character.

Sincerely, NANNIE LEE SMITH.

Joseph F. Bivins: To His Memory.

Last Tuesday, September 6, 1904, we laid to rest the body of Prof. J. F. Bivins, headmaster of Trinity Park School. He sleeps in the beautiful cemetery on a hill overlooking the town of Albemarle, N. C., his boyhood home and the home of his mother. The host of people of all classes, the city's business prince and the farm's plain toiler, the college professor and the rustic worker that gathered to add a tear, each one, to the flowing river, speak of the large share he had in the affections of men and the depths to which he had cast the anchor of his life into the sea of humanity's need.

To the mother who nursed him in his tender years, to Trinity College that fed his mental aspiration, comes great honor in the princely life he lived; to the young bride whose mourning mingles with that of his mother and brothers, there comes the joy that the man whose heart she had won was worthy of a place by the side of the purest woman.

There had grown up an informal, yet clearly defined circle of men in our loved State, whose dreams and ideals and hopes and yearnings were one. In this circle, Joe Bivins, as we familiarly called him, was a prince, and we looked to him for leadership. We saw the swelling tide of his pure soul fast rising. We looked forward to seeing him at Trinity college commencements, at our church conferences and wherever the revolving changes of life might throw us together.

Now he is gone, we feel our leader has fallen. The tie was like that between Jonathan and David, or Tennyson and Hallam. We feel the loss deeply.

"But thou and I have shaken hands,
'Till growing winters lay me low;
My paths are in the fields I know,
And thine in undiscovered lands."

The lessons of his life are worthy of record; they are the lessons of a man worthy of imitation and may be held up as an example to the boys of North Carolina. God gave him great talents and he used them as a sacred trust, and were as clean when he gave them up to God in his death as when they lay dormant in the babe on his mother's bosom. Large endowment is a call to service commensurate with the gift; happy the man who measures up to the requirements. We are sure our friend did this.

Purity was one of the facts in his character that should appeal to all. With much force and great beauty, Prof. Plato Durham said in his funeral eulogy: "You sent him to us at Trinity College a pure boy; we bring him back to you in his casket a pure man." He was never unclean in his life. He never soiled his soul by impure thought and vulgar words and sensual conduct. His life contradicts the false ideal that a young man must "sow wild oats" and afterward return to God. He carried out the true doctrine that the whole of life should be pure and devoted to high ends.

There is much more in this than a casual thought would reveal. The man who has devoted years of his life to sin must, when he begins to strive to do right, necessarily expend much energy in resistance which he needs for constructive work. He establishes a dual life, and in the contest between the higher and lower elements in his nature he loses much force he needs for building the best character. The river that sweeps along a granite-walled channel has free flow and comes with all its force on the wheel; the one that flows along a channel into which mud and filth have come, must lose power in overcoming these obstructions and reaches the wheel with lessened force. The pure life offers no bar to the great pressure of the infinite flood upon it. There are no losses in such a life as this, no steps to retrace, no weakened energies to be revitalized. It was said: "When the spotless robe of the judicial ermine fell on John Jay, it touched nothing less pure than itself." When the church put the hand on consecration on the head of J. F. Bivins he was as ready to receive it as the smiling babe the kiss of its mother.

He combined as a teacher the unusual power of being both simple and authoritative. He was a boy among the students, and they felt his sympathy; they also knew the presence of the man and gave that deference which is not forced, but which an innate royal soul commands.

"Ille regit dictis animos, et pectora mulcet." He was tender without being weak; he was strong without being tyrannical. Phillips Brooks said there must be a man behind the sermon. All felt that in the sympathetic life of Prof. J. F. Bivins there were the granite fibers of the true man. He was among the "foremost in the regal class."

He went through that period of soul ferment and doubt that is common to men who think. Questions arose in his mind and he followed truth fearlessly to triumph. He gave himself to the truth, and however much of the cherished beliefs of other ages was swept away by its imperial march, he preferred to obey its orders rather than the dictates of men. It is refreshing to meet a man large enough to be a heretic if the expansion of ideas demands one. Jesus Christ would not be bound by what the Pharisee and Scribe taught, "We ought to obey God rather than men." Joe Bivins cared nothing for the new simply to be novel; he was too honest to be bound to the past because it was old.

"He fought his doubts and gathered strength.
He would not make his judgment blind,
He faced the spectres of the mind
And laid them; thus he came at length

To find a stronger faith his own;
And power was with him in the night,
Which makes the darkness and the light,
And dwells not in the light alone."

He showed us that scholarship, that fearless criticism, that honest investigation are not opposed to holiness of life. He was a scholar, he looked into science and philosophy; but he was a reverent follower of the Christ. He knelt at His altar and gave allegiance to Him as divine, and worthy all his homage. He preached for the writer twice in July; his sermons were marked by love, by devotion and reverence. The crowning virtue of his life was consecration to our Saviour. Some one said of Clerk Maxwell: "He made faith in goodness easy to other men." We can say the same of our friend.

"I, from the influence of thy looks, receive Access in every virtue."

His ambition was to be of service; our Master gave this as life's highest ideal. Professor Bivins was no happier than when rendering some service to others. A negro barber in Durham said that his presence in the barber shop made him feel that there was something for a negro to live for. Many hearts feel a personal loss, all who knew him feel that a real friend is gone. He dealt honestly with men. He faltered not to tell the rich of their sins; he was ready to aid the poorest; he was no sycophant at the feet of the great, nor demagogue to flatter the poor. He was a man. "He stood four square to every wind that blew." He was a manly man. As a school man, he dealt fairly with his fellow-teachers in his State. He would not build up Trinity Park School by disparaging other schools. He met men face to face and stabbed no man in the dark. His life increases our faith in the possibility of human nature. His manhood would have led him to the summit; but God saw best for him to take up his march through the eternal world and to gaze on the face of the "King in his beauty." He is a "mighty marcher on the sun road."

His death, his sudden taking off, is a baptism of sorrow. Our limited knowledge fails to pierce through the wall and to know the reason why. To be taken in the midst of the joys of newly-wedded love, to be taken just as he was ready to begin thew ork of a new scholastic year, to go away just on the threshold of a life of such wondrous promise, just as his power as a teacher had grasped deeply the lives of so many young men and women of promise, just as his tongue had caught the music of eternal harmony—these we do not understand. "Now I know in part."

We do know this death gives a baptism of sorrow to us all, and sorrow is the plectrum that strikes the deepest and sweetest music from the soul. The sudden death of President McKinley welded a nation, and made us feel the unity of our country. At the grave of those we love we lose antipathies. In the death of our Brother Bivins many souls are moved to deeper consecration, and in our tears we realize the brotherhood of man.

"For off thou art, but ever nigh;
I have thee still, and I rejoice;
I prosper, circled with thy voice;
I shall not lose thee tho' I die."

North Carolina has recently lost some of its noblest sons. In the death of the late lamented I. E. Avery passed the hand that yielded the most facile pen; in the death of Professor J. F. Bivins we have lost one of our men of greatest promise.

J. A. B. FRY.

Tambuurines.

I found the Salvation Army on Main Street with drum and tambourine and banjo, carrying the war into Africa. That is what I like about the Salvation Army. It comes to close quarters with the foe. It doesn't wait to "draw" a crowd, it goes to the crowd. I have always given it my hearty support. I used to vex Dr. Barbee's righteous soul when I was pastor of McKendree in Nashville by commending the Salvation Army, and sometimes preaching on the street myself. He thought I degraded the Church. So did others. The editor of the Advocate took a crack at me. I think most of the connectional men around the hub very cordially condemned me. Nashville is a great racing centre, and at certain seasons of the year there are a great many race men there. They congregate about the Maxwell Hotel and the Turf Exchange. I tried to get them to come to church, and not having much success in that, I resolved to go to them. So I had a box placed on the side-walk in front of the Turf Exchange, mounted it for a pulpit, and began to sing a hymn. A crowd soon collected and I explained to them that I was going to preach there. After a word of prayer, I read my text: "Wherefore seeing we are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses, let us run the race that is set before us." Just as I read my text a drunken man in the crowd staggered up in front of me, his hat on the back of his head, his hands in his pockets, and bracing himself, asked me if I was for Grover Cleveland. I said: "My friend this is not a political meeting. I am going to preach the Gospel. You keep quiet." He repeated his question, and I my remonstrance. A policeman stepped up to take him away, but I stopped him, and said: "Captain, I am the pastor of McKendree church. I haven't seen that man there. I have come here to preach to just such as he. He'll be quiet. Let him stay." The officer desisted and the man became as quiet as a lamb. I preached on the Christian race, never uttered a word of censure about the Nashville races, but made use of some of the rules and regulations of the track in illustration of my theme. The service closed with the benediction. Everything was orderly and dignified—an open-air Gospel service. The members of the Sanhedrin, however, censured me severely for it. One even quoted Scripture on me: "He shall not cry, nor lift up, nor cause his voice to be heard in the street."

Two or three years after that, I was on my way to Toronto to arrange for the International Epworth League Conference. While traveling through Ohio a gentleman came up to me on the train, and said: "If I am not mistaken your name is Steel." "It is," I said. "Did you ever preach in Nashville, Tennessee?" "Yes, sir, for four years as pastor of McKendree church." "Do you remember preaching once to the racing fraternity in front of the Maxwell Hotel?" "I do," I replied. "Do you remember being interrupted at the beginning by a drunken man?" "Very well." "Well, Mr. Steel, my name is So and So. I want to tell you about that meeting. I was one of the race men you preached to that day. I was raised by a good Presbyterian mother, but when I grew to be a man, I fell into bad habits, became a lover of the track, and had not been inside of a church for twenty years. When the crowd began to gather around you, I said to a friend, 'Well, let's go over there and see what is up?' When you read your text I nudged my friend and said, 'We had better get away now; he is going to shell the woods?' Just then the drunken man interrupted you, and I said, 'Hold on, let's see that through.' And when you wouldn't let the policeman take the drunken man away, I said to my friend, 'Let's stay; I want to hear that man talk.' I heard your sermon, and I want to tell you that I have not been to a horse race since. I quit that day, and have been running the race you talked about ever since. I am a member of the church, and owe my salvation to your preaching on the street that day and to your tender treatment of the drunken man."

Now that amply paid me for all the criticisms of the hierarchy. And if Dr. Hoss reports me as violating the Scriptures in my zeal, I am sure that man's old mother in heaven will intercede to have my fault overlooked since it saved her boy. The Salvation Army is right in taking the Gospel to the non-church going multitudes. The regular pastors have their hands full in the church, but when they can go out into the highways of sin, they ought to do so. The dignity of McKendree church indeed! Did Jesus confine his ministry to the precincts of the temple? Did not multitudes follow him through the crowded streets of Capernaum? Did he not lift up his voice in the street of Nain and raise the widow's son? Did he not lift up his voice in the street of Jericho and heal the blind men? The whole ministry of Jesus was a protest against that formalism that would limit usefulness to certain times and places. And whatever the prophecy meant that he should not "cause his voice to be heard in the street," it did not mean that he would not proclaim the Gospel anywhere and everywhere that opportunity offered.—Dr. S. A. Steel, in Work.

The Field

FURNISHING THE NEW G. F. C.

Report 5.

We are nearing the end. Have you read the names from time to time? These are some of the people who make the world go. They have given G. F. College a shove. Every name means thirty-five dollars—a few of them fifty dollars. Those at fifty are to furnish a few of the larger rooms.

Previously reported—51.

Miss Josie Griffin, Woodlawn, N. C.

A Sherrod, in memory of his wife, Mary Temperance, High Point.

The donations direct, and their value, from High Point, are as follows:

A. J. Rickel, one library table, $20.00.
Kerns Furniture Co., one dining table, $10.00.
Smith Furniture Co., one sideboard, $25.00.
Continental Furniture Co., one dresser, $15.00.
Tate Furniture Co., one dresser, $18.00.
Miss Nellie Dundas, one office chair, $6.00.
M. J. Wrenn, one dresser, $20.00.
Piedmont Table Co., one library table, $20.00.
Lindsay Chair Co., six office chairs, $12.00.
Myrtle Desk Co., one office desk, $40.00.
Globe-Home Furniture Co., one dresser, $40.00,
High Point Bed Spring Co., one bed, $15.00.

Southern Chair Co., one dressing stand for each girl matriculated on and before October 5th, 50 cents each.

The orders have been placed for the furniture at such low rates, through those desiring to aid the College, that fifty-three dollars worth of furniture at ordinary prices has been secured for thirty-five dollars. The two beds, dresser, table, chairs, wash-stand and set, window shade, etc., make the room all one could wish. Those taking part in this work have rejoiced in the opportunity to aid. To all my grateful thanks are extended.

M. T. PLYLER.

The Straits Circuit.

Springfield, though not the oldest church on this charge, is becoming a centre of religious life. Our people there are aggressive, and in the church work they are showing symptoms of financial health and spiritual betterment. In short, that church is living and growing. All demands for money are promptly met. The house of worship recently has been varnished inside and other improvements are soon to follow. The Sunday-school is doing splendidly for a country congregation. The Raleigh Christian Advocate comes there and is read.

I hesitate to speak personally. But I cannot close this note without mention of the revival series which, without pulpit help, I have been conducting at Springfield. This is admittedly the best meeting of the kind in the history of Springfield church. The spiritual tide ran high. Many sought and found God's pardoning love. I do not know the number of those thus turned to God. There were added to the church thirteen persons who are "being saved." The church in its inner life has been greatly helped and strengthened. Why these good results? It is the outcome of confident prayer and the simple Gospel message. We all, both preacher and people, have been 'renewed in the spirit of our minds." I cannot tell the joy that twenty-four consecutive efforts to speak to a crowded house the good Word of God have produced in me. May not the yoke of Christ work easy?

E. K. CREEL.

Teacher Wanted.

I wish to correspond with a lady teacher. I want a teacher for a term of eight months, at a salary of $40.00 per month. Her board and laundry will cost her $8.00 per month.

W. E. HOCUTT.

South Mills, N. C.

Memoir of J. M. Rice.

James Marshall Rice, the son of William and Sallie Rice, was born near Ashland, in Caswell County, N. C., on November 16, 1862, and died May 30, 1904. His boyhood days were spent near the well-known "Camp Springs" church. Here he attended church and Sunday-school and had the love and admiration of all who knew him. It was at this church in his early life that he gave his heart to God and from then on through life he had every evidence that God's will had become his will and God's purpose his purpose, and the love and loyalty which he ever manifested toward his church and his God showed forth in living valor in his own life the sentiment of St. Paul when he said: "It is not I that liveth, but Christ that liveth in me."

Soon after Brother Rice was licensed to preach he was admitted on trial at Concord, N. C., in the Western North Carolina Conference in the year 1890. In this Conference he served the following charges: 1891, Reddies River Mission; 1892, Sparta Circuit; 1893, Creston Circuit, and in 1894, Mount Airy Circuit. He was ordained deacon by Bishop Hendrix, at Winston, N. C., in 1892, and ordained Elder by Bishop Wilson at Statesville, N. C., in 1894. At the close of this year (1894) he was transferred to the North Carolina Conference and served the following charges: In 1895, 1896 and 1897, the Burlington Circuit; in 1899 and 1900, the Warrenton Circuit. It was on this work that his health gave way. He was given the Warrenton Circuit the third year, but was unable to return on account of a nervous prostration which rendered him unable to ever preach again.

The year in which Brother Rice was transferred to this Conference he was united in marriage to Miss Mamie E. Matlock on December 25, 1895. To this union there were given four bright children—Jessie, Katie, Grace and John, all of whom, with the grief-stricken wife, are still living. He has three living brothers and two sisters—George, Tom, William, Bettie and Liza.

Brother Rice attended school at what is now known as "Old Trinity," but was unable to finish his course on account of his failing health. His academic and college education and college education was quite limited, but he was, so to speak, a self-educator and thus reading and studying he attained preaching qualities which are said by many to have been far above the average. He possessed a very bright intellect which gave him a clear insight into human nature causing him to condemn sin fearlessly and boldly after the manner of him who walked into the temple with a cord in his hand and said: "Ye have made my Father's house a den of thieves." His pulpit ministration possessed such practical and close discriminating qualities that it always deeply impressed the thinking people and his natural magnetism attracted to him a host of warm friends wherever he went who loved and admired until the end. His connection with the Conference was short, but he gave evidence of deep and earnest consideration and entered joyfully into this loved employment as long as he was able. The great energy and undying perseverance of nature, of heart, body and soul swept him through life at a rapid rate, causing him to be old and broken down in life long before his time. Some one has truthfully said at forty-one he had lived a hundred years measured by the lives of many. In the year 1901, Brother Rice was superannated and retained this relation until his death.

He never grumbled or complained at his lot in life, but was submissive to the Lord's will from the first of his afflictions until the very last hour in death. Here he became very conscious that the change would soon take place and that he was nearing the holy ranks. On Sunday he called his wife to his side and said: "What a bright day this will be for me to go to heaven." Monday morning following the call came, but not unexpected, and he fell asleep safe in the arms of Jesus.

"Silently, peacefully, angels have borne him
Into the beautiful mansions above,
Free from earth's toilings forever;
Safe in the arms of the God he loved."

S. F. NICKS.

The Problem Solved at Last.

What problem? Why, the problem why more men do not attend church.

And what is the solution? It is simply this: The men and women who being members of the church profess to be the servants of Christ, and yet do not faithfully obey their Lord's command to go out and compel them to come in that his house may be full.

That is the chief reason. The membership of the churches do not diligently and persistently and repeatedly hunt up the non-churchgoers, and kindly, courteously, invite them to go with them, and keep on doing so.

The following incident, narrated in The Christian Herald, is proof of the correctness of the above declaration:

A business man was on his way to the prayer-meeting. His work had detained him so long that his dinner had been hastily eaten, and yet he was late for service. The sound of music floated down the street, and as the church came into view he quickened his steps.

On the pavement he hurriedly passed a stranger, who was gazing curiously up at the open windows. Acting on a sudden impulse, he turned back.

"This is our prayer-meeting evening. Will you go in with me?"

The stranger hesitated a moment.

"Why, yes," he answered.

Prayer-meeting ended, and the two went out together.

"I was very glad to have your company tonight," said the business man, as he parted from his new acquaintance, after finding out his name and where he lived. "May I call for you next Wednesday?"

The man, without much enthusiasm, replied that he "didn't care" if he did.

He called, and followed it up on succeeding Wednesdays, taking care to introduce the stranger to other men of the congregation.

That was the starting point. Prayer-meeting led to church services. The stranger finally, with his family, united with that congregation. He has become an active and efficient church worker.

"Do you know," he said to his first friend, recently, "do you know, I had lived in our city for seven years before I met you. I had not been in the city three days before grocers and dairymen had hunted me up: within three weeks the politicians had learned my political preferences. Yet in all those years you were the first man who ever said, 'Come, let us go into the house of the Lord.'"—Religious Telescope.

Mr. Spurgeon had a dream. He thought he went up to the gates of heaven, and there he saw a great company of men marching through the gates of the city. On inquiring who they were that received such plaudits of welcome, he was told that they were the apostles and their successors. "But," said Mr. Spurgeon, "I never was an apostle nor a martyr." Soon there was another vast procession that passed through the gates; then he was informed that that vast multitude, led by Zaccheus and Mary Magdalene, were the sinners that had confessed the name of Jesus. The great preacher said that in his dream he exclaimed to the angels, "Thank God, I can enter heaven with the sinners."

Learn life and summon up your grit
And concentrate your powers;
Let all the best that's in you sit
Crowned king, through all life's hours.

Thus with your purpose strong meet life;
Find place and do your best,
And then a halo in the strife
With guide to sweet success.

At the recent Salvation Army jubilee in London King Edward, Lord Rosebery, the Bishop of Hereford, Ambassador Choate, and other distinguished men were present, saying appreciative and encouraging words. The time for sneering at this great and serious effort to apply Christianity to the world's needs was never present to the intelligent; it is evident to all that it is not now.

The Family

God Knows, and That's Enough for Me.*

BY LAURENCE F. DEUTZMAN.

He knows the trials that you bear,
The hunger that you have for death,
And knows indeed your sad lone care,
Yes, bear in mind with every breath;
He knows it all, and let that be
A solace and enough for thee!

Now for what purpose are you here?
So little seems in future store,
And Life's vast prospect one too drear
(Your loved ones having gone before.)
Are there no things we cannot see?
He knows it all . . . . aye, more than thee!

Is there no one whom future days
Will bring to sue for all your gain
Of love and fond affection's rays,
Unused, now felt a constant pain?
Ah, know you this? How can that be!
I say, there's such a one for thee!

You wish that better time would come?
For you have lived so long a time!
Oh, God—how short the seasons run.
Yet do you their great length repine!
Assuredly some day you'll see,
That they are far too short for thee.

Oh, who can know and who can say,
The course and purposes of it all?
And if mayhap no other way
Should ever help thee bear withal,
Reflect . . . . Then say, "What e'er may be,
God knows and that's enough for me!"

And, meanwhile, what is there to do,
Awaiting for what Life may bring?
Are you to mope and be so blue
That heart at last will fear to sing?
Believe. That's no the way to be,
And it shows lack of trust to me.

Then sing—although the aching void
Seems stronger than the part you play,
And soon you'll find with loving word,
New happiness in Life's long day.
And kindness constantly dispersed
With sunshine will thy heart 'most burst!

If these be merely words in rhyme,
Let trial prove them so to thee.
But I believe some future time
Will see my thought proved verity.
So, once again, please say, with me,
"God knows and that's enough for me!"

*Written to a dear friend on the occasion of the death of a brother.

Prayer.

I cannot tell why there should come to me
A thought of someone miles and miles away
In swift insistence on the memory,
Unless there be a need that I should pray.

He goes his way, I mine; we seldom meet
To talk of plans or changes, day by day,
Of pain or pleasure, triumph or defeat,
Or of the special reasons why 'tis time to pray.

We are too busy even to spare thought
For days together of some friends away;
Perhaps God does it for us, and we ought
To read His signal as a call to pray.

Perhaps, just then, my friend has fiercer fight,
A more appalling weakness, a decay
Of courage, darkness, some lost sense of right—
And so, in case he needs my prayer, I pray.

Friend, do the same for me! If I intrude
Unasked upon you, on some crowded day,
Give me a moment's prayer, as interlude;
Be very sure I need it, therefore pray.

For Parents to Ponder.

A recent number of The Woman's Journal discusses in an earnest editorial an article that was published not long ago in the New York Evening Post on "Depraved Children." The subject is one which may well be taken serious cognizance of by every thoughtful person in the land. A great and growing danger menaces this country, whose boastfully sung glory is her "freedom" and her "bravery." That danger is the tendency in her children of retrogression from freedom to mere license and from bravery to ugly boldness, which finds its root in irreverence.

The writer in the New York Evening Post makes this statement, which, however it may hurt us, we dare not contest:

"We are ever anxious for the physical comfort of the little ones. Tenement laws seek to provide clean and wholesome lodgings—philanthropy busies itself in clothing them—the state is earnestly active in building schools—the church sets apart hours and days and willing men and women to provide for their spiritual wants; but there is a mass of well-clothed, well-sheltered children who are clean neither in thought nor speech, and lack reverence for any law human or divine, who seem to be beyond all these influences."

It takes but little leaven to leaven the whole lump and those who best know the average American child can testify to the alarming prevalence of this contagious "mass," from the strata of society called "poor" up to the wealthy classes.

The Woman's Journal says:

"The rude manners, disobedience, and general lawlessness of many American children are a cause of astonishment to foreigners of all nationalities. They are a cause of grief and concern to Americans themselves. The trouble seems to be growing worse. What is to be done about it? Revolutions never go backward. We cannot return to the rigid system of repression and iron parental rule which made the young lives of our grandparents miserable, and which still crushes down the children in most foreign countries so that they cannot compare with American children in energy or initiative. But the pendulum has now swung to the other extreme. The writer in the Evening Post has drawn the picture in somewhat dark colors, but there is a great deal of truth in it. What is to be done?"

It seems as if the colors for the picture could hardly be dark enough. The longer we study the question and the deeper we probe to find the causes which have filled our streets with this horde of "depraved children," the more alarm we feel, since we see how deeply rooted and multiplied these causes are. It would take a book to enumerate and explain them and the book would be an exhaustive study of the past century in the changes that have come upon American life and habit. When a piece of clean grass sod is cut out of a lawn and the space left open to wind and weather it is not grass that comes to fill the gap, but a crop of weeds. In the splendid developments of the century passed many an ugly hole has been gashed in the beautiful sod of our national characteristics. We have an alarming crop of noisome weeds, among them the "depraved children." Homes,—old-fashioned, strictly-ordered, roomy, ancestral homes, have given place to "suites," "apartments," hotel-life, flat-life, boarding house life. With the home has fled the nursery. Babies share and share alike with the life of the grown-ups,—eat at the same tables, keep the same hours, witness all that goes on in the adult affairs of the family, share in the conversations and propose to live the seemingly untrammeled adult life. Indeed, babies and children—as we knew them fifty years ago—are not. Something else has gone with them. Gone the old homes, gone the young children, gone the patriarchs and household saints—the grandmother in her insignia of cap and gown, the grandfathers, white-haired and wise, gone from the heart of the home and the corner by the hearth. The babies rush to be young men and women, the youth shuns old age and—flouts it. Yes. Just that—whether in its approach upon himself or whether in the burdensome presence of non-self-supporting old age in his home.

The Sabbath Day.—ah, how has its goodly green been cut in upon! Street-cars, splendid dinners, splendid toilets, company, pleasure excursions, newspapers, novels, late rising, loafing,—these and worse ills, invade the old-time, sweet, solemn, stern observance of the Sabbath Day.

We would take courteous issue with the statement quoted above anent the making "miserable" the "young lives of our grandparents." Stern discipline need not make miserable. It is the selfish rebellion against it that hurts.

All this summer we have been watching the life of a little girl of six—a very typical, American child on whose fair record the word "depraved" may even now be written. Disobedient, untruthful, sly, bold,—and even immodest—this little one is growing. Stern discipline would be her salvation, administered with love. The strength the child uses every day running wild, escaping from irregularly imposed commands, rebelling against sporadic rebukes, could well be harnessed to a regular, systematic, stern program of daily tasks which would develop and fill the hungry little mind and perchance save from future hurt the eager little body. Why should children run loose all day because they are not going to school? A child of six may well begin the life she ought to be leading at sixteen and twenty-six if she is to reap a white character at sixty. The "sampler" of our grandmothers was an aid to virtue, that the modern sewing school has not replaced. The child referred to above could well have "studied her book," sewed, weeded, dusted, prepared fruits and vegetables, sat still beside her mother for brief periods of sensible conversation. But it was play, play, play, all day long, with many a deserved (?) punishment for things that harmless holy work would have prevented.

The truth is we have degraded our American children by a lapse into foolish sentimentality and criminal carelessness concerning them. We are afraid of the "rod;" we are in such a rush to "get there" that we turn them on the streets for fathering and mothering; they are so "cute" in their mimicry of grown-up's dress and ways that we un-child them as it were; we are so young and foolish when we marry that we do not know how to teach and counsel them and the church, the school, the reformatories are trying to do our work for us. They never can.

Ah, you "depraved child!" You will meet us one of these days at a bar of judgment and cry out to us for your soul-loss! You will rebuke us and what can we say?

Mrs. Browning's matchless plea for the toiling child-slaves was never more needed than today. We need another plea for the unchildish child of the unhomelike home. The little one seems to stand before us and say:

"—how long,
O cruel nation,
Will you stand to move the world, on a child's heart,—
Stifle down with a mailed heel its palpitation,
And tread onward to your throne amid the mart?"

Mrs. Browning's neglected little toilers knew no other words of prayer "Except 'Our Father.'" Does the average "depraved child" of today know even so much as that?—Ram's Horn.

Honest Christians.

The man who is not just as honest in trading as he is in praying is not a Christian. It is not possible to be a sinner in business and a saint in religion. The thief in the board of trade is a hypocrite in the church. We do not believe that all successful business men are dishonest. It is a satisfaction to believe that in every department of trade and commerce there are men whose principles are as pure as gold. There are merchants, bankers, mechanics, farmers, and professional men everywhere who live as uprightly in their business transactions as they do in their domestic relations. There are men who would prefer poverty to ill-gotten wealth. Granted that a man might gain money by lying, what kind of reward is it, after all? Riches gained at the expense of conscience are like corroding acids; they eat away the foundations of life, and leave their possessor poor indeed. It never pays to lie. It matters not what the motive may be, the loss is always greater than the gain. Exemption from punishment or disgrace is a poor compensation for a tarnished conscience. Masses of wealth have no power to confer lasting joys. Titles, wealth, learning, honor and fame are trifles compared with a clear conscience.—The Angelus.

Our Boys and Girls

Hobucken, N. C., August 16, 1904.

Dear Advocate:—I am a little girl eleven years old. My papa takes the Advocate and I enjoy reading the little boys' and girls' letters. I go to Sunday-school every Sunday, and my teacher is Miss Mamie Sadler. I like her very much. I also go to every-day school.

Enclosed find five cents for the Orphanage.

ANNIE EMORY.

Middleton, N. C., Aug. 4, 1904.

Dear Advocate:—I am glad to know that Marie Bailey, Mollye Stephenson, Florence Hundnell nad Lota Leigh Draughon have decided to raise a dollar for the orphans by Christmas. Some day I hope we will know each other, and as we grow older become Christian workers. I hope many of the little boys and girls will join us in this work.

My birth-day was a few Sundays ago. I am ten years of age.

You will find enclosed ten cents for the orphans.

Your little friend.

LILLIAN BURNS.

Ocracoke, N. C., Aug. 14, 1904.

Dear Advocate:—I will write for my first time. I am a girl thirteen years of age. My cousin takes the Advocate and I enjoy reading the little boys' and girls' letters so much that I thought I would like to join them.

I like to go to Sunday-school very much. My teacher's name is Mrs. Howard, and I like her fine.

I will close by answering Maggie Dickinson's question: Rachel was the mother of Joseph.

Enclosed find five cents for the orphans.

Your friend.

NINA GIBBS.

Willeyton, N. C., Sept. 11, 1904.

Dear Advocate:—I am a little girl thirteen years old. My papa takes the Advocate and I like to read it very much, especially the children's page. Our pastor is Rev. W. H. Brown. This is his first year with us, and we all like him very much.

I go to Sunday-school every Sunday I can; my superintendent is Mr. H. B. Cross, and he is a very good man. My teacher is Mrs. H. B. Cross. I like her very much; she is so good and kind.

I must close, with best wishes to the orphans.

Your friend.

EVA M. SMITH.

P. S.—I hope to see my letter in print.

The Sunbeams' Excursion.

When the three little Sunbeams made up their minds to do anything they generally did it.

One evening they told their father they wanted to see a little of the world, and that they thought he might give his consent for them to go on an evening excursion; he hesitated a moment, but at last said: "Well, you can go to-morrow night, but no more this summer, as the season is nearly over and I'll need you this coming winter I fear, for it promises to be a stormy one."

Little Sunbeam, the youngest sister, saw old Mother Glowworm and asked her to furnish the light; so the old lady saw Pappy Lightningbug and persuaded him to let about 500 of his children sit on the upper deck, while at their feet would be just as many young Glowworms.

"Now, I have fixed that up for our search-light, and I've done my part I think Slant Sunbeam ought to see about music," said Little Sunbeam.

Slant was a bright one, and had no trouble. Uncle Mosquito offered to send a detachment to hum things, but Slant said when any humming was to be done, she would get her active and brilliant young cousins Wingey Hummingbird and Restless Hummingbird. No! she wanted music. So she secured some bright-throated Larks, a lot of Wrens, their friend, Robin Redbreast, and a host of other ones. Then Katy Did and Cricket offered their services, which were gratefully accepted.

So the next evening at 7.30 o'clock they started. It was not a big boat they were on, but it was an odd one.

My, but the boat was crowded. The Sunbeam girls had no idea they had so many friends; but there they were, each eager to contribute his share to make the affair a success.

Let us see if we really can tell who were there. Well, the Bee family, including old Queen Honeycomb and King Wax, brought on board loads of honey for their part. Then the twenty-five sisters Bovines came along with milk. Old Mr. Orchard sent his sons Peach, Apple, Pear, Apricot, Plum, Crabapple, Quince, Cheery and their sisters Damson, Grape, Huckleberry, Blackberry, Raspberry, Melon and Canteloupe.

Along came young Mr. Buckwheat, and hanging on each arm were the Misses Wheat and Corn.

"Don't want any policemen aboard!" yelled out old Mr. Sunray, as he pushed Captain Thousandlegs and Lieutenant Tumblebug off the boat.

"This is a swell-up affair," said Daddy Frog as he sat on the lower deck talking to Wriggle Tadpole.

The boat was soon in the stream, and such a jolly crowd you never saw.

"Where do you want to land, young ladies?" asked Captain Bob White, of the Misses Sunbeam.

"Why, Captain, stop at Sleepy-town Wharf," they answered.

"Oh, my," they answered.

"Oh, my," cried Boatswain Snail, "that's a long ways off."

"Go to bed, now," yelled Mrs. Maltycat, "you always were slippery."

"Toot for a landing, Mate Owl," sang out the Captain, and in less time than it takes to tell it, they were tied up at the wharf.

Only one accident occurred on the trip down, and that was old Daddy Longlegs fell overboard, and if Master Turtle hadn't gone after him he might have drowned. Still it was three days afterward before he got home. He said Mr. Turtle's automobile was the slowest one on record.

At the wharf they were met by Mayor Cordiality, who took them up the main street to Queen Moon's palace. And such a reception as they had! The supper tables were loaded with the best their chef, Jack Frost, could get. There were mist cakes and dew trimmings; then came snow-white puddings, all frosted over; snowballs, with and without flavor; mint sticks and lemon drops. Everything they wanted, in fact.

Queen Moon ordered on an illumination, and in a twinkling everything was brilliantly bright. The Pleiades came down, and sang, and the Great and Little Bear danced; while the Big Dipper went over the Milky Way and secured a Little Dipper full.

Morning soon broke, and such scampering to get back to the boat. Steam was soon up and the tired crowd were rapidly nearing their old home, for Daddy Sun was on the bank yelling to his daughters, Sunbeams, to hurry up to their work.

It was a grand time. Don't you think so? Don't my little pets wish they had been on that excursion?—"Uncle Bob," in Baltimore Methodist.

The great Commission is more than a permission.

How Many Can You Guess?

Why is bread like the sun? Because when it rises it is light.

Which was the largest island before Australia was discovered? Australia.

What trade should be recommended for a short person? Grocer (grow, sir).

Why is the letter A the best remedy for a deaf woman? Because it makes her hear.

When is money wet? When it is dew (due) in the morning and missed (mist) in the evening.

If Rider Haggard had been Lew Wallace, who would "She" have been? She would have "Ben Hur."

If the alphabet were invited out to supper, which of the letters would get there late? All those letters which come after "t."

Which is the most dangerous season of the year to walk in the woods, and why? In the spring, because the trees shoot, the flowers have pistils, and the bulrush is (bull rushes) out.

What is the difference between the Prince of Whales, an orphan, a baldheaded old man, and the gorilla? The first is an heir apparent, the second has ne'er a parent, the third has no hair apparent, and the fourth has a hairy parent.—Great Thoughts.

A Humorous Horse.

In the summer of 1896 Lieutenant Forsyth—now Captain Forsyth—of the regular army of the cavalry department, rented our house, we reserving a suite of rooms for our personal use. His troop was then stationed at Yellow Stone Park, and had been for several years. He was an entertaining talker, especially when referring to his army life; was always conservative in expression. He frequently gave us scraps of his army experiences. One day he said to me: "Mr. Osborn, I believe there are some horses possessed of a sense of humor." Said we had a little pony horse who was one day eating hay at the end of the rack in the open campus. He had an old bull dog who bore the name of a great statesman, Jefferson Davis—abbreviated to Jeff—who was sitting on his haunches, with eyes closed, as is the habit of all old dogs. Forsyth said he was reclining hard-by, when he observed the pony occasionally ceased eating and take a survey of old Jeff in his seemingly blissful attitude. Finally the pony seemed to realize that it was up to him to have a little fun by giving a little expression to his horse humor. When he reached down with open mouth, grabbed Jeff by the back of the neck, gave him about three hearty shakes, dropped him suddenly, and promptly resumed eating hay, as innocently as if nothing had happened. It was needless to remark that Jeff was surprisingly and severely shocked. He alertly looked about in every direction to discover from whence came the assault, but from his dog-point of view failed to reach a reasonable solution of the whyfore of the attack, but reasoning with canine sense, he promptly recognized the propriety and wisdom of a change of base. And the sooner that change was made the better would fare his dog-being, as the incident was liable to be repeated at any moment, so not scrupulous upon the order of his going, he tottered away to a retired point of the grounds. Forsyth said he thought, as Jeff retreated, looking apprehensively to right and left, he could see a smile creep over the face of the pony, at Jeff's discomfiture, and the success of his enterprise. He doubtless may have thought that Jeff had no business so near his presence, thereby intruding upon the society of his horseship, and that he would give him a little hint of his own approval of his impertinence a little chastisement of his audacity to dare move in the same social circle as himself. There doubtless was some pro and con reasoning going on by both parties.—Wm. A. Osborn, in Wesleyan Advocate.

Brazil has been making a great stride in Christian Endeavor, and now reports forty-five societies, with more than fifteen hundred members. One eminent lawyer, Dr. Antonio Teixeiro da Silva, has abandoned his profession to preach the Gospel and organize societies of Christian Endeavor.

A true saint never needs to seek persecution.

The only way to insure happiness is to deserve it.

A good thinker knows better than to worship his tools.

SURE OF ITS VICTIMS.

Dr. D. M. Bye, of Indianapolis, Ind., the great cancer specialist, who has cured over six thousand cases of cancer within the last ten years with soothing, balmy oils, says that one time he selected a list of five hundred names of persons who had written to him relative to taking treatment, but who, from some cause, had neglected to do so, and wrote to them several months later inquiring after their condition. To his surprise and grief he learned that nearly 20 per cent had died within five months from the time they had written their letters of inquiry. If left to itself cancer is always cure of its victim. Book sent free, giving particulars and prices of Oils. Address Dr. D. M. Bye Co., Box 462, Dallas, Texas.

A GROWING CITY.

The city of Lynchburg, Va., has, within recent years, made astonishing growth in its commercial importance. For a quarter of a century it has been a prominent wholesale shoe market, but during the last few years the development in that line of business has been astonishing. Out of 150 cities in the United States having a population greater than Lynchburg, there are only half a dozen cities which do a greater shoe business. The leading shoe house of Lynchburg is the Craddock-Terry Co., makers of the widely known brands of Southern Belle, Autograph and Southern Girl shoes. The sales of the Craddocy-Terry Co., during August, aggregated $358,617.15. Lynchburg's shoe business has grown from $300,000 a year, fifteen years ago, to more than $6,000,000 a year now and is developing more rapidly than ever. The gain in the Craddock-Terry business during August, over the same months of a year ago, was over $150,000. This progressive house has forged to the front as the leading shoe house of the South. Thirty-five traveling salesmen cover every part of the Southern States and a large portion of the middle States. The high class of goods made by this concern has established its reputation and laid the foundation for great development in the future. The Southland Shoe Factory, owned by the Craddock-Terry Co., is regarded with pride by the Lynchburg people. Its product exceeds 2,000 pairs of shoes per day.

Shepard's
Lung Food.

A 50 cent bottle of Shepard's Lung Food FREE to any one wishing to test its efficacy in treatment of ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, COLDS, COUGHS, LA GRIPPE, CONSUMPTION, or any affections of the throat or lungs. Indispensable for public speakers.

Send name and address of your druggist and we will send you 50c. to pay him for one bottle of Lung Food. $100 reward for a case which it will not cure.

THE LUNG FOOD CHEMICAL CO.
Wilmington, N. C.

Womans Foreign Missionary Society

Please send all communications for this Department to Mrs. B. F. Dixon, Raleigh, N. C.

Officers of the W. F. M. S. of the N. C. Conference, June, 1903-'04.

President—Mrs. Lucy A. Cunninggim, Greensboro, N. C.
Vice-President—Mrs. R. A. Willis, Littleton, N. C.
Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. F. D. Swindell, Goldsboro, N. C.
Recording Secretary—Miss Blanche Fentress, Wilmington, N. C.
Treasurer—Mrs. B. B. Adams, Four Oaks, N. C.
Superintendent and Treasurer Juevnile Work—Mrs. L. M. Hendren, New Berne, N. C.

A Vote of Thanks.

Miss Daisy Baily Waitt gave her time and thought to the supervision of this column in a most satisfactory manner for the past three months; no doubt all our sisters have enjoyed the "fruit of her labors," and unite in extending to her their grateful thanks.

She made many valuable suggestions in the prosecution of our work, chief among which we would emphasize that to the Auxiliary Corresponding Secretaries. Has there been a response to her request for items of news from the Auxiliary reports?

Greeting.

To the sisters of the Foreign and Home Mission Societies, here is a happy greeting, after an absence of nearly three months! During this interim there have been the changing scenes from illness to restored health; from city water to the sparkling, health-giving draughts from the mineral springs of "old Cleveland;" from the heat and dust of the city to the cool, clear atmosphere of the mountains, whose ozone has such wonderful regenerating power.

The companionship of old friends beloved rendered these changes more pleasant and beneficial; and we return to our duties with fresh strength and interest. Now let us get down to real, earnest work in all of our missionary enterprises.

District Secretaries.

In writing the above words, there arose, in imagination, a panorama of varied scenes, all marked with strenuous effort. In what department of our work is there not a demand, either direct or remote, for the service of the District Secretary?

As she is conversant with all the Auxiliaries in her District, we appeal to each one to suggest to her Presidents the necessity of their sending to our column, through the Corresponding Secretary, if thought best, some news from the work and condition of each Auxiliary.

How many District Meetings have been held? Let us have notices of these—when, and at what place they are to be held, etc.

The Woman's Missionary Advocate.

There is a sense of pride, as well as of appreciation, as we enjoy the monthly visits of our organ. We are proud of its success, as we recognize its growth from time to time.

A thorough study of its contents each month cannot fail to make the reader more intelligent and more enthusiastic in missionary work and workers, at home and abroad; and we suggest to the Auxiliary agents an extra effort to put this valuable periodical in every home possible.

The remarks of Mrs. Kate T. Decherd will be endorsed by every reader of our Advocate: "I enjoy the Woman's Missionary Advocate, and read every word in it, from cover to cover; some articles I read two and three times. I think the May number one of the best. The article one page 427, 'What Can I Do for Missions,' is fine; and one on page 429, 'The Philosophy of Effectual Prayer,' to me is worth the fifty cents paid for the magazine for one year."

Among the many interesting and instructive articles in August and September numbers, there was peculiar pleasure in reading, "The Symphony of Prayer," by Bishop Hendricks, and "The Transfiguring of Our Lives," by J. R. Miller.

The September number should find the "right-of-way" to the heart and appreciation of every member of our North Carolina Conference Society, for the lovely face of our own Elizabeth Davis adorns the first cover. How appropriate that her picture is placed immediately below the motto: "She hath done what she could!"

CHESTERFIELDIAN MANNERS.

Mr. W. C. Cantrell, of Louisville, Ky., pays his compliments to Tetterine as follows: "I take off my hat to a 50 cent box of Tetterine. It has cured me of a skin disease, which doctors in seven States failed to cure." If you have any skin diseases try a box of Tetterine, and you will be as appreciative as Mr. Cantrell. It is infallible in its effects, fragrant and effective.

Fifty cents a box at druggists, or by mail from the manufacturer.

J. T. SHUPTRINE,
Savannah, Ga.

"DIXIE GIRL—ROXIE WARD."

By the way! If you are not getting satisfactory results in the shoes you have been wearing why not ask your dealer to show you a pair of the "Dixie Girl" or "Roxie Ward?"

Every lady ought to have two pairs of shoes for fall and winter—the "Dixie Girl," retailed everywhere for $1.50, the equal of any shoe on the market at $2.00, for her every-day shoe; and a pair of "Roxie Ward," at $2.00; the equal of and $2.50 shoe, for her Sunday or dress shoe.

Both may be had of your dealer. If your dealer can't furnish you, advise us by postal card and we will tell you where you can find them.

Read advertisement in this paper.

GEO. D. WITT SHOE CO.,
Manufacturers, Lynchburg, Va.

FITS STOPPED FREE.
Permanently Cured by DR KLINE'S GREAT NERVE RESTORER

No Fits after first day's use. Consultation, personal or by mail; treatise and $2 TRIAL BOTTLE FREE to Fit patients who pay expressage only on delivery. Permanent Cure, not only temporary relief, for all Nervous Disorders, Epilepsy, Spasms, St. Vitus' Dance, Debility, Exhaustion. DR. R. H. KLINE, Ld. 931 Arch Street, Philadelphia. Founded 1871.

..Dobbin & Ferrall..
(AT TUCKER'S STORE)
Raleigh, N. C.

BRIDAL OUTFITS.

We are fully prepared to furnish a complete Trousseau. Every detail absolutely correct. No better materials can be furnished anywhere, and our dress makers are the best in the world—a broad statement but fully true. It is far better to have the customers come to our store making the trip to Raleigh. Write us if you cannot come in person. You will be given perfect attention. . . . . .

Our Prices are Lower Than Other Stores.

DOBBIN & FERRALL
123 and 125 Fayetteville St.

Woman's Home Mission Society

Please send all communications for this Department to Mrs. R. O. Burton, Raleigh, N. C.

Officers of W. H. M. S. of the N. C. Conference.

President—Mrs. J. E. Underwood, Elizabeth City.
First Vice-President—Mrs. V. Royster, Raleigh.
Second Vice-President—Mrs. K. P. Black, Littleton.
Third Vice-President—Mrs. J. A. Spiers, Selma.
Recording Secretary—Mrs. C. P. Jerome, West Durham.
Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. S. H. Scott, New Bern.
Treasurer—Mrs. E. L. Prince, Wilmington.
Superintendent of Supplies—Mrs. Ivan Proctor, Raleigh.
Superintendent of Literature and Press Work—Mrs. R. O. Burton.

The Week of Prayer.

The time appointed for this gracious season is October 10th to 16th, and it will soon be here. The programs have been sent to the Auxiliaries, and, as usual, are comprehensive and complete, testifying to the intelligence and piety of the committee which prepared them. The subjects arranged for each day, if studied carefully, will give full information of every branch of our work, and the devotional exercises will give sweeter patience and brighter faith, thus increasing our spiritual strength. I urge every Auxiliary to observe the week, carrying out the exercises as far as possible, and I hope to receive many welcome accounts of the services. I earnestly hope the collections will be large, for there is great need of funds in several departments.

A Severe Loss.

I am sorry to tell you of a recent heavy loss at the Sue Bennett Memorial School. One of the cottages has been burned. And it was occupied by a large family; the children to be educated there. Every heart must sympathize with that ambitious, self-sacrificing mother in her disappointment. Oh that the gifts during Prayer Week could be large enough to warrant the rebuilding at once! What an incentive to redouble our efforts and treble our offerings!

Thirsting for Knowledge.

During vacation two fine girls painted the inside of the Brevard building, and two or three young men the outside. They are working their way through school and have given good jobs. They put to shame the lack of appreciation sometimes shown by more favored sons and daughters, and make us rejoice anew in our fine mountain material. May their noble efforts be crowned with highest success.

Deaconess Candidates.

These glad words have recently come from our General Secretary: "The Committee on Deaconesses have recommended nine young women to enter the Training School this year as deaconess candidates from the Baltimore, Indian Mission, North Georgia, Alabama Mission and South Carolina Conferences. Where is the North Carolina candidate? We rejoice in our sister who enters the Scarritt School this fall to be trained for the foreign fields, but we long to have another there for the Home work.

An Urgent Call.

There are only five available scholarships in the Scarritt School. How shall we provide for the other four necesary for these Deaconesses? Is there not some one who, unable to go herself, will gladly pay the expenses of one of these young women, making her a happy substitute? In a short while the double sacrifice would, doubtless, yield a large harvest of richest blessings.

From the Homer Toberman Deaconess Home.

The latest news from the able superintendent, Mrs. C. Price Brown, is most cheering. It is growing in favor with every one, already proving that it is a blessing to the church and to the city. Most of the rooms are furnished, and everyone of the eight inmates is a Christian. Miss Maria Elliott has charge of the Chinese Night School, with helpers for each night from the different churches, and the school is growing and improving. A children's sewing class is succeeding finely, and through this many mothers will be benefited. Does it not enthuse you to think of this? I feel that every member rejoices in her share in it.

A Way to Help Both the Work and Ourselves.

The third edition of the "Life and Work of Lucinda B. Helm" is now ready. The price is $1.00, and after paying expenses, the proceeds go to the general work. Our Board Secretary, Mrs. R. W. MacDonell, of Nashville, Tenn., desires to sell four hundred copies within two months. I hope many will order. Every Auxiliary should own a copy, or have the use of one. The style is delightful (Mrs. Alexander does honor to the subject and to herself), and the history of one heroic leader arouses the sensibilities, inspires the soul and opens the heart.

BETTER THAN SPANKING.

Spanking does not cure children of urine difficulties. If it did there would be few children that would do it. There is a constitutional cause for this. Mrs. M. Summers, Box 228, Notre Dame, Ind., will send her home treatment to any mother. She asks no money. Write her to-day if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child. The chances are it can't help it

---

IN USE FOR 20 YEARS
ELIXIR BABEK
The Quick and Sure Cure for
MALARIA, CHILLS, FEVER AND LA GRIPPE.
It is a powerful tonic and appetizer.
Will cure that tired feeling, Pains in Back, Limbs and Head. Is a purely vegetable compound, and contains NO QUININE OR ARSENIC. Prepared by Kloczewski & Co., Washington, D. C.
Price 50cts.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S HYMNAL NO. 2

Should be considered by every Epworth League and Sunday School in which a new songbook is needed. It is unquestionably the best book to use after the Young People's Hymnal (No. 1). . . . . .

SAMPLE COPY.

Round or shaped notes, 30cts. by mail $3.60 per dozen; by express or freight, $25 per 100. Words only, by mail, $1 25 per dozen; by express $9 per 100. We pay freight on orders for 100 or more copies. Address all orders to . . . . . .

Southern Methodist Book Depository,
E. B. LIPSCOMB, Sec. and Treas.,
STAUNTON, VA.

Raleigh Christian Advocate.

ORGAN OF THE

North Carolina Conference, M. E. Church, South.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY AT No. 106 W. MARTIN STREET.

THOMAS N. IVEY, - - - - - - - - Editor.

Subscription Rates.—One year, $1.50; six months, 75 cents. Preachers of the North Carolina Conference who act as agents receive the paper free of charge. All other preachers, and widows of preachers, $1.00 a year.

Business.—Watch the label. It shows the date up to which the subscription has been paid. Change in label serves as a receipt. Regular receipt will be sent when requested. When the address is ordered changed, both old and new address must be given. Address all letters, and make all checks and money orders payable, to the Raleigh Advocate Co.

Manuscripts.—All matter for publication to be returned to the writer must be accompanied by proper postage. Matter for the Editor and matter for the printer must not be on the same sheet. Obituaries must not contain over 150 words, nor contain poetry. One cent a word will be charged for all obituary matter over 150 words.

Advertising.—The RALEIGH CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE is a fine advertising medium. Rates will be promptly furnished on application.

THE EXPOSITION.

[BY THE EDITOR.]

In my last, I was speaking about the different kinds of people seen on the Exposition grounds. When you see one wandering around by himself, you can generally detect a lonesome look on his face. There is no sight so cheering as that of a familiar face. There is no feeling so lonesome as that which comes from the consciousness that in all the surging throngs around you there is not a single one you know. A man came to the Exposition on last Thursday from a point nearly four hundred miles away. He changed his sixty dollars into nickles and dimes to insure himself against losing his all, spent $10.10 during the day in little nothings, got very lonesome amidst the howling of Pike barkers and clash of competing bands, went into a restaurant to get a beefsteak, and on being charged twenty-five cents for a lilliputian portion thereof, experienced his climax in lonesomeness, and the next morning he was at his home again. He told his friends at home that he had seen nearly everything that was worth seeing except a few houses up on the hills.

Speaking of restaurants, I would say that their name on the grounds is legion. I am sorry to say, however, that the prices charged are a great many sizes too big for the variety and quantity of the food. I have nothing to say against the quality. You can get anything you want from pumpkin pie to frog legs.

If it were not for losing too much time, it would pay any one in dollars and cents to go down town for his meals. You can get twice as much for your money down town. There is a first-class restaurant at 921 Olive Street where you can get for twenty-five cents what you would have to pay fifty or sixty cents for on the Exposition grounds. The best restaurants I have found on the Exposition grounds are those which are marked by a flag with the picture of a red steer. There are nine of these restaurants. They do not put on any airs. You are left to take care of yourself, but you get the real article at a moderate price. If you should ask me what the cost of your meals, wholesome and ample, would be per day, I would say "seventy-five cents." Of course you can get the same food exactly for $1.50 per day.

SUNDAY AT THE FAIR

Comparatively, it is as quiet as a graveyard. The noise of the spieler is hushed. The gates are practically hermetically sealed. A large contingent of visitors go to the down-town churches. Some go on excursions either down the river, or out into the country. Others frequent the parks where beer floweth like water and the shout of the base ball player is heard. I know something of New Orleans, San Francisco, Chicago, and Denver, but in open, defiant violation of the Sabbath day St. Louis is far ahead. Of course there is something wrong with the city government. The dominant party in St. Louis and the State of Missouri is too strong. If I were a citizen of Missouri I would vote for Folk, but I would pray for a legislature so nearly evenly balanced politically that good laws and the enforcement of them would be insured.

The Exposition management is to be commended for adhering strictly to the agreement not to open the gates on Sunday. Last week one of the shows on the Pike, taking advantage of a legal technicality, announced that it would thereafter be open on Sunday. A special gate was made. At the protest of the fair officials, this show snapped its fingers, evidently thinking it had what is called a "cinch". I have just read that the Fair officials have loosened the knot and broken the buckle of this bold enterprise by prohibiting people from travelling on the Sabbath the only thoroughfare leading to the show—The Tyrolean Alps. The visitor to the Exposition would miss but little in letting this show severely alone.

A BEAUTIFUL CORNER OF THE GROUNDS

If you grow weary of the great buildings with their sights and sounds, of the long vistas where the statuary gleams and the human currents unceasingly roll, of the tens of thousands of glowing electric lights, and the thundering cascades, just go for a few hours to that part of the grounds which you enter through the Inside Inn gates. There the ground breaks into graceful swells. The grass is like emerald and the huge trees look down benignly and the contrast of their whispering leaves among which the birds sing and the brazen noises of the great thoroughfares is pleasant in the extreme. It looks like some mountain watering place. Here is the majority of the State buildings, built in various styles of architecture. Really the most interesting sights are seen in these State buildings. Objects of great historical interest are in these buildings. The Mississippi building is very restful to the eye. It is a replica of Beauvoir, the home of Jefferson Davis—a typical ante-bellum home of the Southern planter. On its broad porticoes you may close your eyes and almost see the great cotton fields whitening away in the distance or catch the gleam of a distant river and the blue shimmer of the Great Gulf miles and miles away. In this corner is the true Plaisance of the Exposition, the place where are born the suggestions of a dolce far niente among the maddening Babels of Twentieth Century progress.

THE EXPOSITION'S PROPHECY FOR WOMANHOOD

I have said that this Exposition may be used as a kind of gauge by which to measure the world's progress for the last decade. The measurement shows a great many things in which woman should rejoice. There is no Woman's Building at St. Louis Exposition. She is now a man—in some respects. She is no longer set apart in a glass case as a delicate, scented rara avis. She takes her rightful place as a distinct factor in the "federation of mankind, the Parliament of the world." So for the same reason that no judicious commencement speaker at a woman's college dares to deliver an address on "Woman," the management of the Exposition has not provided a Woman's Building. Every building is hers and in every single one of them may be found monuments to her worth, the signs of her progress, and prophecies of many glad days.

Electricity is revolutionizing the whole earth. The star-eyed spirit has come as a ministering angel to woman. A voice at the Exposition tells her that the "jocund day" of her liberation from the thralldom of the cook is standing "tiptoe on the misty mountain top."

Now let me explain. No house hereafter need be without dust pipes. Just turn a switch and all the dust and every cob web will be drawn down those pipes into the cellar as irresistibly as a summer maiden is drawn to a soda fountain on a hot day. The dishwasher is here manipulated by Queen Electricity. There is now a dining table cook stove. The stove is no longer to sit in the Plutonian realm of the kitchen where the sable greasy cross-eyed goddess of wrath presides, but on the table in the dining room. No culinary odors will mingle with the scent of the roses nodding in their crystal home in the centre of the table. Electricity cooks the meal in a few minutes, uncorks the bottle of coffee, and tells just how much to use. No servants are around. Drudgery has been banished. Let every woman who wishes to take a peep into her Paradise just ten years ahead, visit this Exposition. She will go back to her home with new ideas and a new song in her mouth.

ORDER ON THE GROUNDS.

And the tender, sympathetic heart of woman is in evidence at this Exposition. As you turn westward from the grand union depot you will see displayed in a prominent place a sign directing every unprotected woman where to go in order to find sympathy, protection, and employment. This sign may be seen at different places all over the city. Lecherous sharks are thus evaded in hundreds of instances. There are more of these sharks than pickpockets. In fact, the grounds seem to be comparatively free of the latter. I have not yet heard of anyone's being robbed. There are no gambling devices allowed on the grounds. When I remember the saturnalia of gambling and thieving on the Fair Ground at Raleigh last October and think of the absence of this on the Exposition grounds here, I cannot help feeling that our State Fair can, with a little systematic precaution, get rid of its disgrace on the Midway. It is due the State that this should be done.

The sanitary conditions of the grounds are kept in perfect order. No filth or refuse is allowed to remain in any building or thoroughfare. As I sat on one of the porches of a building a few days ago, I saw two men engaged in removing every visible scrap of refuse. They told me that they were then on their fourth round, and it was then about 2 o'clock p. m. Men are detailed in every building for this purpose.

The perfect system used on the grounds may be illustrated by what I saw the other morning. There had been a heavy rain the night before and mud had been washed over many passage ways along the more uneven parts of the grounds. Hundreds of workmen were busy early in the morning removing this mud.

In every building there is a supply for every legitimate need. Settees are numerous. The thirsty one by dropping a penny into a slot may obtain in any part of the grounds a glass of clear ice cold water from the Ozark mountains. If you grow weary you may hire a wheeled chair pushed by a guide on a bicycle attached to the chair. Most of those who push these chairs are students who are working their way through college. They are uniformly polite, intelligent, and efficient. The Jefferson Guards, of whom there are hundreds, are always around to repress any disorder or give information to the visitor. It is very evident that the Exposition is in the hands of officials who know their business. I have seen no evidences of looseness and incompetency.

THE GOVERNMENT BUILDING.

"Uncle Sam" has done his part by the St Louis Exposition—nothing more, nothing less than he has done at other Expositions. This Exposition is emphatically one of processes, and therefore the Government Building contains an exhibit far different from that seen at Chicago and Buffalo. The building itself is not striking or elaborate. On entering you are impressed with the absence of the ornamental. Nothing but the bare rafters and the roof meets your eye as you look upward. The system of the U. S. Mail Service is shown in all its completeness. The articles, many of them, which have found their way to the Dead Letter Office, are conspicuously displayed in glass cases. These objects are very interesting. They include a large board a foot wide and two feet long on which is written a very tender love letter; letters written on collars and cuffs; a live rattlesnake, horned toads and centipedes; a dead infant; and a collection of dainty baby clothes.

Of course there was a large crowd around the section which contained the force making money. The processes are very interesting and should not be passed by. The fish display was larger and more elaborate than any I had seen at a former Exposition.

Methodist Mention

STATE.

Rev. J. O. Guthrie reports that the new church at Princeton will be finished by the middle of October.

Hon. T. J. Jarvis will deliver the address on Benefactor's Day in Craven Memorial Hall, Trinity College.

Rev. N. L. Seabolt, P. C. Millbrook Circuit, left this week for Aurora, N. C., where he will assist Rev. J. M. Lowder in a meeting.

Not fewer than one hundred and fifty persons professed conversion at the late meeting conducted in Statesville by Rev. E. C. Glenn.

Prof. H. B. Craven, formerly a member of the faculty of Greensboro Female College, has accepted the position of Principal in the Graded School of Wilson, N. C.

Rev. S. A. Stuart, one of the faculty of Trinity Park High School for the past two years, will leave September 27th, for New Haven, Conn., to enter the Yale Divinity School.

The editor of the Richmond Headlight speaks in high praise of a sermon preached by Rev. J. H. Hall, at Rockingham, on the second Sunday in this month, from Ephesus 4:31-32.

Dr. F. D. Swindell, we are glad to say, has recovered from his recent sickness. He and his family have returned from their summer stay at Beaufort to Goldsboro, his present address.

The reply of Dr. Swindell to Rev. A. J. Crumpler which appears in this issue, should have appeared several weeks ago. On account of the absence of the editor, there has been a delay in publication.

Rev. Albert S. Barnes, pastor Methodist Church at Clinton, arrived in Southport yesterday, and is the guest of Rev. E. McWhorter. He will deliver a lecture each evening this week to the local Epworth League on the Study of Missions.—Southport Standard.

Mr. Jos. G. Brown, President Citizens National Bank, Raleigh, N. C., made a most favorable impression by his speech, delivered before the Bankers' Convention in New York last week. That speech was eloquent and convincing. Brother Brown generally manages to capture the meeting on all occasions.

Our meeting at Chatham Church closed Friday evening. Rev. Thomas White, a minister in the Christian Church now on a vacation from Porto Rico, preached twice for us. There were ten conversions and eight accessions. The church is in fine condition. We have two more meetings to hold.—Jas. H. Frizelle, P. C., Pittsboro Circuit.

We have received from Rev. J. W. Bryan, president, the programme of New Bern District Sunday-school Conference to be held at Newport, September 27-29. He requests those schools which have not already done so to elect delegates and provide for their attendance; also that delegates send their names at once to W. S. Bell, Newport, N. C.

Dr. J. C. Kilgo will dedicate Macedonia Church, Brooklyn and Macedonia Charge, on the first Sunday in October. All former pastors are invited to be present. Rev. N. L. Seabolt, P. C., is looking forward to a great occasion. He says that much credit is due Rev. M. M. McFarland, for the faithful service which made the new church possible.

Rev. T. A. Sikes, formerly of Charlotte, who was recently called as pastor of the Methodist Church here on account of the death of Dr. J. Sanford, who had been pastor of this church for near four years, has made a deep impression on our people. In his short stay here he has made many friends who will do all possible to secure his services for another conference year.—Siler City cor. Charlotte News.

His friends will regret to learn that Mr. Richard Webb's health has failed, and he has been obliged to give up his work in Central College, Mo., and is now traveling in Colorado. Prof. W. A. Webb, whose place his brother was supplying while he pursued his studies in the University of Berlin, has been recalled to take up his work at Central. Mr. Webb has been in Germany for fifteen months, and did not expect to return before next summer.

The following note is from Rev. W. F. Craven: A good revival meeting at Pleasant Grove on our work last week. Several professions, a good part of our members quickened and strengthened. Six new members were added. Rev. H. M. Jackson, of Pantego and Bell Haven, did the preaching. His sermons were a blessing to us. They were profitable for doctrine, for reproof of sin, and for instruction in righteousness. The spirit of God accompanied them.

Mr. J. S. Spencer, one of the most prominent official members of Tryon Street Church, Charlotte, died at his home in that city last Friday, September 9th. His death was very sudden and unexpected. His health had not been good for some time, and he had spent a few weeks at Blowing Rock recently, returning home some two weeks before his death. He was sitting in his chair when the summons came, and expired before he could be laid upon the bed.—North Carolina Christian Advocate.

Rev. C. O. DuRant writes: I have recently closed meetings at Mizpah and Midway. At Mizpeh, we had ten professions and reclamations, and at Midway forty-six. We did not have a large number to join at either church. I think the larger part of the work was among those who had been converted before. At St. Paul's the Methodists and Baptists united in a meeting, and we had a good many conversions and reclamations, and about an equal number joined each church. We had a good meeting.

* * *

CONNECTIONAL.

The lay membership of the Missouri Conference is now 44,708, an increase for the present year of 1,372.

Rev. L. F. Beaty, of the Sunday-school Department, who has been so long and so dangerously ill, is now so far recovered as to be in his office again.

Dr. S. S. Keener announces the gift of $1,000 from Mrs. McLeroy to the Endowment Fund for the widows and orphans of Louisiana Methodist preachers.

Dr. S. C. Rankin, editor of the Texas Christian Advocate, went as a delegate to the Texas State Convention recently, as, under the circumstances, he had a right to do.

Dr. Ley, editor of the Florida Christian Advocate, who has been recuperating at a Sanatorium in Michigan, is about ready we are glad to learn, to resume his editorial duties.

Dr. W. R. Lambuth expected to sail from Brazil to England on September 6th or 11th. He will spend a few weeks in London and return home about the middle of October.

John J. Tigert, Jr., son of our Dr. J. J. Tigert, sails for England September 27th, to enter Oxford University on one of the Rhodes Scholarships, which he won in competitive examination.

The Baltimore Southern Methodist has nearly 5,000 subscribers. This is remarkable, since the paper was established as the organ of the Baltimore Conference only a few months ago. The Baltimore-Richmond Advocate has received nearly 1,200 new subscribers within the last few months.

We understand that Bishop Candler and Dr. J. S. Frazer spent Sunday, September 4th, in Pensacola in the interest of the endowment fund of the Southern University and the Alabama Conference Female College. They secured in Pensacola and Brewton about $1,200.—Alabama Christian Advocate.

General Notes

October 21 will be Congregational Day at the World's Fair. Addresses will be delivered by Justice David J. Brewer, Dr. N. D. Hillis, Dr. C. E. Jefferson, and Dr. Lyman Abbott.

After an unsuccessful fight against the packers, lasting nearly two months, the butcher workmen have at last acknowledged themselves beaten, and are returning to work as rapidly as they are reinstated.

Bishop Smith, of the African Methodist Episcopal Church, sailed from New York, September 3rd, to take charge of the missionary work of his denomination in South Africa, where he has already traveled extensively.

The Board of Managers of the Protestant Episcopal Missionary Society has received two gifts—one of $10,000 and another of $5,000—from communicants in Pennsylvania. The former of these gifts is the largest single donation the Board has received in a number of years.

It has been announced that there are five Wesleyan ministers who own stock in breweries. Such a state of things would not be tolerated a moment in any Methodist Church of the United States or Canada. The British Wesleyan Conference has gone on record against this practice.

The Rev. G. Campbell Morgan says very decisively: "Show me a church that is not evangelistic, and does not go forth with the evangel of Jesus Christ, and I will show you a crowd, but not a Church; a company of souls that are seeking their own heaven, but will not find it."

Dr. Edmund James James has resigned the presidency of the Northwestern University, which he has successfully filled for two and a half years, to accept the presidency of the University of Illinois at Urbana. Prior to his election to the Northwestern he was a professor in the University of Chicago.

A Jewish year book just issued for the period from September 10, 1904, to September 29, 1905, the Jewish year 5665, contains statistics showing the Hebrew population of the world is now 10,932,777. Of this number Russia has 5,189,401; Austria-Hungary, 2,076,378 and the United States, 1,253,218. Germany comes next with 586,948, and then Turkey with 466,351. Of the 600,000 Jews credited to the State of New York, about 500,000 are residents of New York city.

OFFER EXTENDED.

To all who renew their subscription between now and October 1, we will send a beautiful souvenir in the shape of the Marked New Testament—a handy little volume clearly printed, durably bound and with significant and valuable verses, conveniently marked so as to attract the eye. This is one of the most valuable souvenirs we have yet sent out. The renewal must be for a year.

We would say that all the Testaments will be delivered by October 1. Those who have not received their Testaments will understand that they will receive them by October 1.

The name of Rev. J. W. Jenkins should have appeared last week in the list of those who have paid Brotherhood assessments, 18, 19 and 20. The name of Judge W. R. Allen, should have appeared in the list of laymen who have paid all assessments.

Perhaps the most newsy announcement to the people of the Baltimore Conference that has come to them this summer is the fact just given out that Calvary Church, Baltimore, has been sold to the University of Maryland for $9,000. The sale was at the unanimous request of the congregation, when the offer was made. The congregation had long removed far from the church, and the sale is considered the beginning of a better day for Calvary and Southern Methodism in Baltimore.—Exchange.

NORTH CAROLINA EPWORTH LEAGUE
DEVOTIONAL, CHARITABLE, LITERARY, EVANGELICAL
CONFERENCE
EDITED BY REV. H. B. ANDERSON.

St. John Epworth League, No. 6335.

Goldsboro, N. C., Sept. 13, 1904.

On Monday evening, Febrnary 15, 1904, a little band of sixteen young people assembled at St. John M. E. Church and organized themselves into an Epworth League. Seven months have elapsed since that time, and we now have an enrollment of thirty-six active members and one associate member. This may seem a rather poor record to some but, nevertheless, when we consider the many disadvantages we have labored under, and the numerous difficulties we have overcome, we must think it is a very remarkable record indeed.

Especially are we confirmed in this belief when we are daily receiving applications for membership, and our old members are proving at every meeting their increasing interest. In fact, I venture the assertion that never before in the history of this church has there been such an enlivened awakening of interest among the young people in any religious work as now.

We are, I think, past the critical stage, and have now only to look forward and work to the end that we may become the strongest and most influential Chapter in the "Old North State." Perhaps this is a very high "castle in air" for us to attempt to build. However, this is our intention, and only very hard work on the part of other Chapters can prevent us.

Our officers and committees are certainly in earnest, and are giving much time and attention to their work. Every meeting proves more interesting than the one preceding it.

Now, fellow Leaguers, of the fifty odd Chapters in this Conference, why is it that we cannot in some way get in touch with each other in this grand work? Really it seems to us that the editor of the League columns in the Advocate is, to use his own words, "as lonely as a single sparrow on a house-top."

Why can't we make these columns a medium through which every Chapter in the Conference can be reached and kept in touch with the work of other Chapters? Why is it we cannot make them a bond of union between these Chapters? I am sure this is the wish of him who edits these columns.

After reading Dr. Ivey's splendid article in the Advocate of August 17, I could not refrain from asking these questions: Are we to suffer the stinging reproach to remain over us that the Epworth League in this Conference is a "waif among us," and "its wondering and weeping and shivering and begging is pathetic in the extreme?" Surely not. Think over the matter, brethren, and send in a short article for publication in the League columns telling us of your progress in your own League, and do so at once. Let us also begin now to remove the stain from the League in this Conference.

It is true that we are "going to succeed in the North Carolina Conference," because God is with us; but let's hasten to do our part.

Why is it we have no District or Conference League Rallies? Are we to continue long in this state of apparent lethargy? Our sister Conferences, in this and other States, have these meetings where all the Leagues in the District or Conference are represented. Again I ask, why it is that we cannot have these assemblies? Certainly it cannot be said of us that it is impossible to do these things. What is it a thorough "Tar Heel" cannot do?

Several months ago our League here at St. John's challenged the various other Chapters in the Conference to support a League missionary in the field, and took steps toward the collection of the amount designated as our share. In behalf of our League, I again make that challenge and hope to be immediately taken up by every Chapter in the Conference. Correspond with the editor of these columns in regard to this matter, and do it now. Why wait even another week?

Lend us your help and let's hasten the day when it can be truthfully said that we are advancing rapidly and will soon reach the height of perfecting in this Conference.

Yours for work,
LESLIE L. JOHNSON,
Third Vice-President.

Notes.]

Dr. Du Bose reports the California State League an eminent success.

* * *

We are arranging to hold a League Conference in connection with the Sunday-school Conference at Newport. Let every League send delegates. As many as will go, the better the results. Let us have a full attendance.

* * *

The editors of the Era promises to make each number a magazine number if the church will give them 20,000 subscribers. Let the agents roll up the number of subscribers, while they may take advantage of the special club rate of 65 cents.

* * *

We are glad to publish the names of officers of the Nashville (N. C.) League so kindly furnished by Rev. J. M. Benson, the pastor. He reports the interest as increasing with every meeting. This seems the rule whenever the League has the sympathetic co-operation of the pastor.

* * *

The officers of the Nashville (N. C). League, the organization of which was reported in these columns a few weeks ago, are as follows:

W. G. Dozier, President.
L. T. Vaughn, First Vice-President.
C. C. Cockrell, Second Vice-President.
W. J. Bachelor, Third Vice-President.
Louise Sells, Secretary.
Prof. A. P. Koonce, Treasurer.
Mrs. J. M. Benson, Corresponding Secretary.
Miss Flora Ross and Miss Pattie Smith, Era Agents.

Cramps, Colic, Dysentery, All Cured by PainKiller (PERRY DAVIS')

Dropsy CURED Gives Quick Relief.
Removes all swelling in 8 to 20 days; effects a permanent cure in 30 to 60 days. Trial treatment given free. Nothing can be fairer. Write Dr. H. H. Green's Sons, Specialists, Box B Atlanta, Ga.

HICKS' CAPUDINE CURES ALL HEADACHES.
IT'S LIQUID.
The perfect remedy for Colds, Indigestion, Periodic Pains, Brain Fag, etc. Prevents Train Nausea and Sick Headache. Braces the nerves. It's Harmless. Trial bottle 10c.

Smithdeal Business College
Broad & 9th Sts., RICHMOND, VA.
Commercial, Stenographic, Telegraphic and Eng. Depts. Ladies & gentlemen. No vacations. "It is the leading Business College south of the Potomac River."—PHILA. STENOGRAPHER. "When I reached Richmond, I inquired of several business men for the best Business College in the city, and, without exception, they all recommended Smithdeal's as the best."—W. E. ROSS, LAW STENOGRAPHER, Richmond. Bookkeeping, Shorthand, Writing, taught by mail.

World's Fair, St. Louis
EXTRAORDINARILY LOW RATES,
September 6—13—20 and 21, 1904.

On above-mentioned dates the Southern Railway announces very low round-trip Coach excursion rates to St. Louis. These tickets will be good in all regular Coaches, and on all trains on dates shown. Tickets good 10 days.

Rate from

Goldsboro	$20.00	Salisbury	$17.00
Selma	20.00	Charlotte	18.30
Raleigh	18.50	Statesville	17.00
Durham	17.00	Marion	16.20
Greensboro	17.00	Asheville	15.40
Sanford	20.40	Hendersonville	15.85

Tickets sold at the above rates not good in Sleeping Cars; for other rates see notices elsewhere.

For full information, World's Fair maps, literature, etc., call on or address any Agent Southern Railway.
R. L. VERNON, Trav. Pass. Agt., Charlotte, N. C.
J. H. WOOD, Dist. Pass. Agt., Asheville, N. C.
S. H. HARDWICK, Pass. Traf. Mgr.
W. H. TAYLOE, Gen. Pass. Agt. Washington, D. C.

WORLD'S FAIR RATES
VIA
Seaboard Air Line Railway
TO ST. LOUIS, MO., AND RETURN.

On account of the World's Fair, St. Louis, Mo., the Seaboard Air Line Railway, in connection with the C. & O. Route via Richmond and the N. C. & St. L. Route via Atlanta, will sell round trip tickets to St. Louis, Mo., at greatly reduced rates from all stations.

Rates from principal points as follows:

	Season Tickets	60 Day Tickets	15 Day Tickets
Charlotte via Atlanta	$36.10	$30.10	$24.65
Durham via Richmond	34.10	28.40	23.30
Durham via Atlanta	38.75	32.30	26.30
Henderson via Richmond	34.10	28.40	23.30
Henderson via Atlanta	38.75	32.30	26.30
Maxton via Atlanta	38.65	32.25	26.25
Raleigh via Richmond	35.60	29.90	24.80
Raleigh via Atlanta	38.75	32.30	26.30
Hamlet via Richmond	37.60	31.90	26.25
Hamlet via Atlanta	37.60	31.90	26.25
Wilmington via Richmond	38.65	32.25	26.25
Wilmington via Atlanta	38.65	32.25	26.25

LIMIT OF TICKETS—SEASON TICKETS.

Good to leave St. Louis up to December 15, 1904, will be sold daily commencing April 25th.

SIXTY DAY TICKETS.

Good to leave St. Louis up to and including 60 days from date of sale. Will be sold daily commencing April 25th.

FIFTEEN DAY TICKETS.

Good to return up to and including 15 days from date of sale, commencing April 25th, and continuing during the Exposition.

COACH EXCURSION TICKETS.

On May 9th and 23rd, 10-day coach excursion tickets will be sold at very low rates from Raleigh $18.50 via Richmond and $20.80 via Atlanta. Tickets not good in Parlor Sleeping Cars. Tickets good to leave St. Louis including ten days from date of sale.

MILITARY COMPANIES.

Special low rates for Military Companies and Bands.

Quickest schedule, direct routes, first-class coaches and Pullman Sleeping and Dining Car Service.

For further information, call on or address us. Same will be cheerfully furnished.

C. H. GATTIS, T. P. A., Raleigh, N. C.
H. A. MORSON, C. P. & T. A., Raleigh, N. C.

When writing advertisers please mention this paper.

Sunday School

Lesson for September 25, 1904.

Review.

Golden Text: The Lord is merciful and gracious. (Psalms 103:8.)

1. The Kingdom Divided.—The evil results of headstrong action are conspicuously illustrated in the division between Israel and Judah, which was due primarily to the rash conduct of Rehoboam in treating the people of the northern part of his kingdom so harshly that rebellion was only the natural outcome.

2. Jeroboam's Idolatry.—Idolatry was the wicked expedient which Jeroboam adopted, with the design of preventing any reunion between the kingdoms of Israel and Judah. How much of disaster this act of Jeroboam brought upon the people of Israel can never be fully estimated.

3. —Asa's Good Reign.—It is refreshing to read of the good life of King Asa. Though he was far from perfect, yet his general record was such that he will always be remembered as one of the good kings of Judah. His goodness was not unrewarded, for the Lord prospered him greatly.

4. Jehosphaphat's Reform.—The story of Jehoshaphat's reign is a tonic for those who are discouraged over evil conditions. Jehoshaphat was a reformer whose faithfulness to Jehovah, and whose efforts to promote the knowledge and the worship of the true God of Israel are worthy of highest praise.

5. Omri and Ahab.—Like father, like son, is a principle that finds a marked illustration in the case of Omri and Ahab, both of whom are conspicuous for the way in which they made Israel to sin.

6. God Taking Care of Elijah.—Marvelously did God care for His faithful prophet both by the brook Cherith and in the home of the widow of Zarephath. With equal care and tenderness does our heavenly Father still watch over all His children.

7. Obadiah and Elijah.—Obadiah is a conspicuous illustration of fidelity to God under a most unfavorable invironment. There is a touch of heroism in his brave rescue of a hundred priests of the Lord from the murderous hands of Jezebel. Well for us all will it be, if, like him, we can say, "I fear the Lord from my youth."

8. Elijah on Mount Carmel.—Perhaps the most dramatic scene in all the Old Testament is this in which Elijah stands alone on Mt. Carmel in opposition to the four hundred and fifty priests of Baal. It is a majestic attitude which this rugged prophet of the Lord assumes, and he here proves as it has often been proved before and since that "one with God is a majority."

9. Elijah Discouraged.—In the picture of Elijah under the juniper tree we see an illustration of the perfect humaneness of this prophet, who so short a time before had defied practically the whole kingdom of Israel. It is well that the sacred narrative has preserved for us a picture of Elijah in his weakness, for we are thus enabled the better to understand him in his strength.

10.—God does not allow his servants to remain under a sense of overpowering discouragement. So when we are depressed, let us listen attentively for the still small voice, and we may hear our divine Protector saying unto us, "Fear not."

11. Elijah Taken Up Into Heaven.—The manner of Elijah's departure from this earth reminds us of Enoch, who walked with God, and who was not, for God took him. There is a sublimity in Elijah's translation from earth to heaven, which is in perfect accord with the sublime character of his earthly career as a prophet of the most High.

12. Israel Reproved.—The herdsman of Tekoa stands before us in this lesson as the bearer of the divine message of warning and of invitation. Humble in his station of life, he was yet a most effective servant of Jehovah. So there is always room for the lowly to work in the Master's vineyard.

SKIN DISEASES

Altoona, Pa., June 20, 1903.
I was afflicted with Tetter in bad shape. It would appear in blotches as large as my hand, a yellowish color, and scale off. You can imagine how offensive it was. For twelve years I was afflicted with this trouble. At night it was a case of scratch and many times no rest at all. Seeing the good the medicine was doing a friend who was taking it for Eczema, I commenced it, and as a result the eruption began to dry up and disappear, and to-day I am practically a well man. Only two tiny spots are left on the elbow and shin, where once the whole body was affected. I have every confidence in the medicine, and feel sure that in a short time these two remaining spots will disappear. S. S. S. is certainly a great blood purifier, and has done me a world of good. I am grateful for what it has accomplished, and trust that what I have said will lead others who are similarly afflicted to take the remedy and obtain the same good results that I have.
125 East Fifth Ave. JOHN F. LEAR.

While washes, soaps, salves and powders relieve temporarily, they do not reach the real cause of the disease. The blood must be purified before the cure is permanent. S.S.S. contains no potash, arsenic or mineral of any description, but is guaranteed purely vegetable. Send for our book on the skin and its diseases, which is mailed free. Our physicians will cheerfully advise without charge any who write us about their case.

SSS
The Swift Specific Company, Atlanta, Ga.

THE COUNTRY IS RINGING WITH THE PRAISES OF THE "Southland Belle" Shoes
FAMOUS BECAUSE MERITORIOUS.
THE BEST IN AMERICA FOR $1.50
TAKE NO SUBSTITUTE.
IF YOUR DEALER DOES NOT CARRY THEM, A POSTAL CARD TO US WILL TELL YOU WHERE YOU CAN GET THEM.
CRADDOCK-TERRY CO.
LEADING SHOE MANUFACTURERS OF THE SOUTH.
LYNCHBURG--------VA.

GO TO ST. LOUIS VIA C. & O. ROUTE.

Now is the time to see the great World's Fair at St. Louis, Mo. Delightful weather and the Exposition complete in all it's beauty. An opportunity not to be missed and never to be forgotten.

See that your tickets read via the C. & O. and Big Four Railways. Shortest, quickest and best route, with fast vestibuled train service.

Some of the New and Fashionable Dress Goods for Fall

Write us for samples of anything you have in mind, stating color, kind of cloth and about what price you wish to pay.

Remember, we prepay express or freight charges on all orders of $5.00 and over mailed to the house.

NOVELTY MOHAIRS, 42 in. wide, in brown, navy, royal and black mixtures, 75c. yard.

MOHAIR SILICIANS, 40 in. wide, in the new fall shades, 50c. yard.

NEW CASSIMERE SUITINGS, neat checks and invisible plaids, very stylish for walking suits and separate skirts, 50c. yard.

BROADCLOTHS, 50 in. wide, all wool, extra finish, in twenty-five different shades, as well as black, $1.00.

RAINPROOF SUITINGS, 54 in. wide, in stylish designs, $1.25 and $1.50 yard.

MILLER & RHOADS
Richmond, Va.

I CURE CANCER.

Have you Cancer? Have you been given up as hopelessly incurable by everybody? I can still cure you. At least, I have cured others who were thought to have but a few days to live, and why not cure you? No knife. No plaster. No caustics. No slonghing gits. No injection of acids. No blood drawn. No pain. I can cure internal cancer just as readily as external. You can be cured by my "Home Treatment" at your own homes for less than one-fourth the cost of "Personal Treatment" but if you have been humbugged till you have lost faith in the honesty or ability of any one to handle this disease successfully, come to me, and I will cure you or no pay. And when I cure you you stayed cured. It does not reappear in a few months. I will put money in the bank to back up that assertion. You will be absolutely, wholly and perfectly cured. The chances are ten to one if anything else is the matter with you, you will be cured of that too. You can be cured a great deal quicker, and more cheaply, if you have never permitted your body to be operated on or experimented with by others before I take your case, still if you do not believe it, go ahead and try, but remember me when they have failed. Will you not write me a full description of your case and let me tell you what I can do for you. Address
Dr. Scott Mason,
Dry Bridge, Va.

RATES TO ST. LOUIS WORLD'S FAIR.

Tickets to be Sold at Very Low Rates via Southern Railway.

For the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, to be held at St. Louis, Mo., May until November, 1904, the Southern Railway announces the following forms of excursion tickets, effective April 25th:

Season excursion tickets, good to return until December 15, 1904, sold daily at rate of $35.60 from Raleigh.

Sixty day excursion ticket, good returning sixty (60) days in addition to date of sale, final date in no case to exceed December 15, 1904, sold daily at rate of $29.90 from Raleigh.

Fifteen-day excursion tickets, good returning fifteen (15) days in addition to date of sale, sold daily at rate of $24.80 from Raleigh.

Ten day special coach excursion tickets—see notices elsewhere.

Reduced rate tickets as above will be sold from other stations on the Southern Railway at proportionate rates.

On all one way and round trip tickets, reading to points beyond St. Louis, a stop-over of ten days will be permitted at St. Louis on payment of a fee of $1.00 and deposit of ticket.

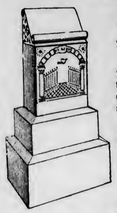
The Southern Railway will operate through sleeping car daily, leaving Greensboro, N. C., 7.20 p. m., May and November for St. Louis via Asheville, Knoxville and Louisville.

For full information, literature, etc., call on or address any agent of the Southern Railway.

T. E. GREEN,
City Ticket Agent,
Raleigh, N. C.

DON'T
give your child old greasy Castor Oil. Give CAS-TO-RINE. Tastes as good as maple syrup. Fifteen cents per bottle at all dealers.

Raleigh Marble Works



Monuments
Ship Monumental work to all parts of the State. Delivered to your depot at same price as at shop. Special attention paid to finish and lettering.
Only Best of Stock Used.
Write for new catalogue.
COOPER BROS., Proprietors,
RALEIGH, N. C.

$2.00 will buy a pair
RoxieWard Women's Shoes
Made by Southern Girls and Boys
The equal of any $2.50 shoe on the market
TAKE NO OTHER

Your dealer should keep the best, and the best is "ROXIE WARD."

GEO. D. WITT SHOE CO.
Manufacturers
LYNCHBURG, VA.

ARE BEST FOR Cotton Ginning

"I can only speak of the engine bought of you last Fall in the highest terms * * * We find her to move with the regularity of a clock, a thing that we think very essential in making a good sample of cotton. As for safety, we think it far surpasses steam, and perhaps not more dangerous than water. It seems very simple and easy to learn * * * and believe it to be only a question of time when they will take the place of steam engines."
Rev. J. W. BURTON,
L. E. of the M. E. Church, South.
Send for catalogue N, stating power requirements.
White-Blakeslee Mfg. Co.
Birmingham, Ala.

H. STEINMETZ.
FLORIST.
Cut Flowers, Designs. Plants of all kinds.
PHONE 113. RALEIGH, N. C.

Secular News

STATE.

The Winston-Salem Fair will be held October 4th, 5th, 6th and 7th.

The Republicans of Wake County have called their convention for October 1st.

A call for a meeting of hard yarn manufacturers has been issued to meet in Charlotte on the 27th inst.

Greensboro Female College, in its handsome new buildings, will open on the fifth of October. The outlook is for a large attendance.

Capt. W. H. Day who suffered a severe stroke of paralysis at his home in Raleigh, some four months ago, is again able to be out.

Considerable damage was done to crops last Wednesday by a severe wind storm which swept over the State. It amounted to a regular cyclone in some places.

Oak Ridge Institute has the finest opening ever known there. Its capacity is likely to be thoroughly tested this year. Over two hundred boys registered the first week.

Mr. Charles J. Bingham, a Confederate veteran, died at the Soldiers' Home on Sunday, and his remains were taken to Salisbury Monday morning for burial.

The trial of the White brothers for the killing of Mr. Sherrill for the seduction of their dead brother's daughter resulted in a verdict of murder in the second degree.

The East Carolina Truck Growers' Association will memorialize the State Agricultural Department to establish a soil test farm in the extreme southeastern section of the State.

A special term of court has been ordered for Cleveland County to try the negro Clark, who killed the chief of police of Shelby two weeks ago. Clark was badly wounded, but he is recovering. The court will be held the first week in October.

Gen. Julian S. Carr has accepted an invitation to be the orator of the occasion of the unveiling of a monument to the Confederate veterans, on October 29th at Tarboro, N. C. The monument is to be erected by the William Dorsey Pender Chapter of the Daughters fo the Confederacy.

The committee of ex-Confederate veterans, composed of Edward J. Hale, W. A. Montgomery, A. C. Avery and H. A. London, has been appointed to memorialize the Legislature to erect tablets in memory of North Carolina dead on the battlefields of Bethel, Gettysburg, Chickamanga and Appomattox.

The Wake Democratic primaries resulted in the renomination of the present incumbents in the courthouse. Mr. J. C. Ellington was nominated for the Senate; Alex. B. Stronach, R. E. Sentelle and Percy J. Olive were nominated for the House; Len H. Adams, W. F. Utley, J. T. Broughton, S. W. Terrell and J. T. Edwards were nominated for county commissions as the reform or "anti-machine" candidates.

Statesville Landmark: Not since the Civil War has a Presidential campaign been so devoid of interest or excitement as the present one. In years agone we began campaigns in North Carolina in Presidential years by the first of July and by the middle of September the campaign was at its height. This year, however, we have adopted the sensible plan of waiting until September to begin, and as a consequence, politics will excite little interest until next month.

The Baptist Orphanage at Thomasville is passing through an epidemic of typhoid fever. Tuesday morning there were seventeen cases at the infirmary, five of whom are convalescent. Seven others were discharged, making a total of twenty-four cases of typhoid fever to date.

Lessee Howland has begun the improvement of the Atlantic and North Carolina Railroad. He is buying 100,000 ties to make the road safe until the new rail is laid. He will begin laying heavy rail in February at the rate of fifteen miles per month. It will require nearly a year to get all done, as 250,000 ties will be required.

GENERAL.

New Pacific liners are equipped with large canvas swimming tanks.

Ainu girls of Japan spoil their good looks by tattooing mustaches on their face.

Statistics show that the average number of persons to a family in the United States is 4.7.

One of a number of homing pigeons sent up from Nantes, France, boarded a ship 1,000 miles at sea.

A new Swiss watch contains a tiny hard rubber phonograph plate which calls out the hours loud enough to be heard 20 feet away.

There are still in use at Versailles cast iron water pipes dating from 1664 to 1688. The total length of these pipes is 15½ miles.

There are 44,000 hotels in the United States, representing an invested capital of over $6,000,000,000. These establishments employ 3,500,000 persons.

In Armenia children are not allowed to play with dolls. It is feared that if this were permitted the little ones would learn to worship them as idols.

The most frequented lake in Europe is the Lake of Lucerne; last year 20 steamboats plied on it and carried 1,520,000 passengers and over a thousand tons of baggage and freight.

To manufacture tobacco grown in Canada a factory is about to be opened in Winnipeg. Experts say that the Canadian tobacco is hardly distinguishable from the Havana product.

The Japanese system of letters is called Iroha, from the names of the first three letters, "i," "ro" and "ha," on precisely the same principle as that which gives to our own system the title "alphabet."

New York has the only fish hospital in the world. It has its surgeons and its physicians, its wards and its operating tables. It is located in the Aquarium and it investigates and treats fish diseases.

Co-operative stores play a perceptible part in supplying the necessaries of life to the industrial classes in Germany, though they have not attained so large a development as in England, where they originated.

The statues erected to Buddha are the largest of their kind in the world. There are several statues in the far east of more than heroic proportions, although the most remarkable of these is the famous Kyaepin, 100 feet tall.

An English thief was arrested the other day whose method was to induce little boys to take off their shoes in order to run a race, and leave him in charge of the shoes. When they returned, breathless, he and the shoes were gone.

If the entire production of coal in the United States during 1903 were loaded on freight cars with a capacity of 30 tons each the trains containing it would encircle the globe at the equator about three and one-third times.

The insurance companies have quoted 50 per cent additional for insuring the life of Prince Obolenski, who has succeeded to the post of governor general of Finland in the room of the late Gen. Bobrikoff, killed by an assassin.

A scientific engineer has constructed a refrigerating machine for freight cars, which forms an integral part of the car and does away entirely with the necessity of constantly refilling the refrigerating chamber with ice during its journey.

No red Indians were ever more callous to pain than the aborigines of Australia. Old Australian settlers are fond of telling a famous story of a tribal chief who walked 60 miles with a spear sticking clear through his body before he could get help to pull it out.

The treasurer of the United States on May 6, 1903, redeemed two half-cent pieces. This is the first time in the history of the country that any such coins have been presented for redemption. It is more than a century since the first half-cent piece was coined, and it is nearly 50 years since the government discontinued minting them.

The Forsaken Christ.

There are some features of Christ's death the deep significance of which is evidently overlooked by many who are familiar with the Bible story of the Cross. One feature which is intensely significant is the truth that Christ, as a substitutionary representative of sinners, experienced a sense of being forsaken by His Father. It is evident that that experience covered a period of three hours, during which darkness mantled the land.

That experience was typical. It typified the truth that sinners are spiritually separated from God. There is no vital union between God and the sinner, and Christ's experience on the cross was a practical illustration of this solemn truth. The Father withdrew Himself from Christ, leaving Him to endure a sense of awful loneliness, of spiritual desolation, of soul forsakenness, like unto that which the sinner feels when he realizes his true condition. The cross of Christ says that sinners are alienated from God, that they are vitally separated from God, and are in gross spiritual darkness.

Such is the lesson which comes from the cross. Christ, as the sinner's representative, was in darkness during the time of His being forsaken by God. It was when He emerged from that darkness that He again enjoyed the light of His Father's face and a sense of blessed union with Him. Separation from God is spiritual death. A union of soul with God is spiritual and eternal life; and that union is not effected until the soul submits itself to God through faith in the Christ who, on the cross, took the sinner's place.—Exchange.

The Fullness of Life.

The processions of the seasons pass on. The constellations march through space. Days die in serenity and are born in splendor. The universe lavishes its largest for your delight; yet, of the infinite that it gives, how little you take in, how much less you assimilates. In what poverty you abide! What scanty measure you give out! In what perception or faculty or emotion do you rise to the supreme fullness of life? You are haunted with the consciousness of what you miss—of what you have never reached. What dulls and deadens and irritates you this moment? Something—a petty or mean little something, doubtless; yet it is mighty enough to undermine resolves, to defraud you of the highest and finest essence of life; more—to rob you of possessions of your highest and sweetest self. Nor is the victim scarcely ever wholly to blame. The most exquisite flavor of daily existence eludes us chiefly thorugh the lack of of a prevailing and pervading courtesy in our constant intercourse with each other—through a careless lack of tender consideration for the temperamental differences and infirmaties which exist in all. . . . This lack of courtesy, of sympathetic kindness in little things, is surely the bane of average life. We see it, fel it, suffer from it everywhere. It is as culpably palpable in thch ighest council of the nation as it is in the humblest household.—Mary Clemmer Ames.

Life, Death and Love.

A woman lay with closed eyes and quiet breath waiting to welcome an angel whose presence seemed to overshadow the white-curtained room. A man knelt beside the bed, the woman's hand pressed close in his against cheek, while his lips moved as if in prayer.

In the room were Life, Death and Love.

"What have you given her?" questioned Death of Life.

"I brought her my best gifts," answered Life; "youth, health, beauty, joy and Love."

"Has Love brought her good gifts?" again asked Death.

Said Love, with wistful eyes: "I brought her brave, bright hours, sunshine, and laughter, happiness and glory in living, and then a heavy cross. The sunshine she shed all about her, even with the fading of Life's glory; the cross hidden deep in her soul cast out self, and made a new radiance and beauty there."

"Let her come to me," said Death. "Life had much to give, but peace and rest are not Life to bestow. Love would give all, but must reckon with the human heart. I will crown, and glorify, and bless her."

Life fled from the quiet room with a sigh, and one whispered, tender word; but Love lingered, brave even in the full presence of Death.

"What of him?" said Love, pointing to the kneeling figure.

"He made the cross?" Death asked.

"Yes," said Love, weeping.

"We must teach him," said Death, "what he could not learn from Life."—L. M. S., in The Outlook.

WORKING OVERTIME.

Eight hour laws are ignored by those tireless, little workers—Dr. King's New Life Pills. Millions are always at work, night and day, curing Indigestion, Biliousness, Constipation, Sick Headache and all Stomach, Liver and Bowell troubles. Easy, pleasant, safe, sure. Only 25 cents at all druggists.

Look Out

FOR THE DATES OF

The Great State Fair

AT RALEIGH, N. C.

Grand Educational, Agricultural and Industrial displays. Finest display of Cattle, Sheep, Swine, Horses, Poultry, and Pet Stock ever seen in North Carolina.
Magnificent show of Labor-saving Farm Machinery.

Midway Packed with Good, Clean

Shows and Attractions.

October 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22.

ASHLEY HORNE, President.
J. E. POGUE, Secretary.
CLAUDE B. DENSON, Treas.

Text Cards for Home Decoration

on higher finished ivory and dark ground cards, all with silk cord to hang; require no frames. Agents wanted everywhere; liberal discount. GOSPEL PUBLISHING HOUSE, 54 W. 22d St., New York, Room 26.

ROYALTY PAID and Musical Compositions. We arrange and popularize.
—ON—
SONG POEMS, PIONEER PUB. CO.
625 Baltimore Bldg., CHICAGO, ILL.

Methodist Orphanage

OFFICERS:

REV. J. W. JENKINS, - Superintendent
MRS. J. W. JENKINS, - - - Matron
MISS LUCY M. REEKS, Teacher

Send money to the Superintendent by Check, Post Office or Express Money Order, or Registered letter.

Encouraging.

Brother Nicks, of the Burlington Circuit, has taken the Orphanage collection. Brother Stanfield writes that he will take it soon. If they continue at this rate, more than a baker's dozen in the whole Conference will take it this year. Have our preachers really taken the Methodist Orphanage to their hearts? What say you, brethren. if each circuit would just prepare to support an orphan next year, how it would make the orphan's heart sing! Had five applications for blanks to-day and three filled out blanks. They come almost every day. Sometimes in troops.

Receipts up to September.

Red Springs Sunday-school for September, $2.50; Ormond's, second quarter, $7.50; Smithfield Sunday-school, $5.00; Gibson Sunday-school, $2.50; St. John's Sunday-school, $2.50; Roper Sunday-school, $5.00; Pittsboro, $1.50; Rich Square Circuit, for September, $5.00; Burlington, $1.35; East Burlington, $2.40; Burlington Circuit, $12.50; Mr. J. A. Albritton, $5.00; Mrs. C. A. Smithwick, $5.00; Miss E. M. Smithwick, $2.00; Western Union Telegraph Co., Goldsboro, $3.00; Junior Aid Society of P. E. Church, Ridgeway, .50.

Donations in Kind.—Box of clothes from Mrs. T. H. Pritchard, Scotland Neck.

Burlington.

It was pleasant to mingle again with the friends at Burlington. The Sunday-school of Main Street M. E. Church has so faithfully cared for our little Bettie McGirk that we have a warm side for Burlington. So, it was seemingly that we should give them an account of her. They seemed pleased. We ran in upon a goodly congregation at 11 a. m. there. They were not expecting the Orphanage man. But Caviness is always respectful to gray hairs. I worshipped with my young Brother Lance at East Burlington at night. That was a good congregation of good-looking people. I was glad to see so many boys and girls out; and they behaved so nicely. We shall expect that charge—East Burlington, Graham and Haw River—to support an orphan. Brother Lance will work it up. He was kind to the old man.

Is the Church Ready to Advance?

Is the M. E. Church ready for an advance movement all along the line? It does not seem so from the way they respond to the propositions that have been made. Greensboro Female College called on its friends to come forward and furnish it, and they fell in line, and hundreds of dollars have been pledged for that purpose. Only three rooms have been taken in the main building at the Orphanage. Churches and Sunday schools were called upon to provide for the children, but they are silent as the grave. Persons have been pleaded with to open their hearts and send us five dollars a month to support an orphan. But not one cent has been sent us on such a pledge. Will that magnificent building stand here empty for years because of the apathy of our Methodist people? So many children are begging to come!

We are fixing up our strawberries.

Dots.

Our acorns are most ripe.

* * *

We have sowed our annual clover and our winter turnips are coming up.

* * *

Wonder if anybody will send us any fruit trees this fall? We can find room for a few choice ones.

* * *

Apples—red ones—are hanging on the trees all around here. Orphans love red apples. That is, they like them. Pears are ripe, too. They could worry down a few of them.

* * *

Our sweet potato crop is poor. Southern Wake and Johnston and Harnett are good potato counties. Leave them at Crowder & Rand's or the Young Hardware Store. They will 'phone us.

McClure's for October.

McClure's for October is timely in the best sense. It reads vigorously and intelligently some of the important lessons of the hour. In its serious articles McClure's does not deal with the cursory and the superficial, but with the vital, fundamental thing, and interprets its real meaning and application. It is impressing itself tremendously on the life and thought of the day by its weighty and authoritative way of doing things. In the dramatic story of Governor LaFollette and the fierce political war which is rending the State of Wisconsin, Lincoln Steffens has found material, not only for a stirring story, but for the presentation of facts and principles of the gravest significance to the Republic. The fight here, as elsewhere, he finds, is for self-government, representative of all the people. He keenly analyzes the opposing forces and defines the issues. In sharp contrast to this sordid history of "Enemies of the Republic," and the disturbing stories of civic and commercial disgrace which McClure's has published recently, appears an inspiring sketch of George William Curtis—"Friend of the Republic" the editor well styles him—by Carl Schurz. Here is a most attractive picture of the finest type of the American gentleman, the ideal citizen, written by one who knew and appreciated his great worth. It affords a welcome glimpse of the other side of the shield.

The climax of Ida M. Tarbell's monumental "History of the Standard Oil Company" is reached in a chapter of "Conclusions." In convincing array she presents the facts she has unearthed concerning the great trust, with such infinite pains and remorseless thoroughness. Facing this unrighteous and illegal fact she puts the quetsion squarely, "What are we going to do about it? For it is our business." Miss Tarbell has condensed and summarized her whole great history into this one luminous chapter. John La Farge disensses five great works of Rubens in this selection of "One Hundred Masterpieces of Painting," under the classification of "Triumphs."

TRAGEDY AVERTED.

"Just in the nick of time our little boy was saved," writes Mrs. W. Watkins, of Pleasant City, Ohio. "Pneumonia had played sad havoc with him and a terrible cough set in besides. Doctors treated him, but he grew worse every day. At length we tried Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, and our darling was saved. He's now sound and well." Everybody ought to know it's the only sure cure for Coughs, Colds and all Lung diseases. Guaranteed by all druggists. Price 50 cents and $1.00. Trial bottles free.

Mamie: "What is biology?"
Gladys: "I suppose it's the science of shopping."

Quarterly Meetings.

WARRENTON DISTRICT.

G. F. Smith, P. E., Littleton, N. C.

THIRD ROUND.

Northampton, New Hope, Sept. 17, 18
Bertie, Ebenezer, Sept. 24, 25
Williamston and Hamilton, Williamston, Oct. 1, 2
Rich Square, Pinner's, Oct. 8, 9
Hobgood, Williams Chapel, Oct. 15, 16

FOURTH ROUND.

Enfield and Halifax, Enfield, Aug. 21, 22
Harrellsville, Harrellsville, Aug. 27, 28
Scotland Neck, Sept. 4, 5
Conway, Providence, Sept. 10, 11.
Murfreesboro, Sept. 11, 12
Northampton, New Hope, Sept. 17, 18
Bertie, Ebenezer, Sept. 24, 25
Williamston and Hamilton, Williamston, October 1, 2
Rich Square, Pinners, Oct. 8, 9
Battleboro and Whitakers, Whitakers, Oct. 15, 16
Hobgood, Williams Chapel, 22, 23
Warren, Shady Grove, Oct. 29, 30
Warrenton, Warrenton, Oct. 30, 31
Littleton, Littleton, Nov. 3, 4
Weldon, Nov. 6, 7
Garysburg, Seaboard, Nov. 5
Roanoke Circuit, Smiths, Nov. 12, 13
Roanoke Rapids, Rosemary, Nov. 13, 14
Ridgeway, Union, Nov. 19, 20
Henderson, Nov. 27, 28

ELIZABETH CITY DISTRICT.

J. E. Underwood, P. E., E. City, N C

FOURTH ROUND.

Hatteras, Trent, Sept. 10, 11
Hertford, Centre Hill, Sept. 17, 18
Perquimans, Oak Grove, Sept. 24, 25
Pasquotank, Newbegun, Sept. 25, 26
Camden, McBride's, Oct. 1, 2
North Gates, Savage, Oct. 8, 9
Gates Harrells Oct. 15, 16
Kitty Hawk, Currituck Inlet, Oct. 22, 23
Currituck, Ebenezer, Oct. 23, 24
Moyock, Perkins Chapel, Oct. 29, 30
Dare, Mann's Harbor, Nov. 5, 6
Roanoke Island, Nov. 6, 7
Elizabeth City, First Church, Nov. 13
Elizabeth City Road, Nov. 13
Columbia, nov. 19, 20
Pantego and Belhaven, Nov. 25
Roper, Nov 26, 27
Plymouth, Nov. 27

WASHINGTON DISTRICT.

J. D. Bundy, P. E., Rocky Mount, N. C.

FOURTH HOUND.

Robesonville, Mt Zion, Sept. 3, 4
Washington, Sept. 11, 12
Nashville, Sharon, Sept. 17, 18
Farmville, Farmville, Oct. 2, 3
Aurora, Oct. 8, 9
Swan Quarter, Swan Quarter, Oct. 12
Fairfield, Oct. 13
Mattemuskeet, Nebraska, Oct. 15 16
Bethel, Bethel, Oct. 22, 23
Tarboro, (night) Oct. 23
Ocracoke and Portsmouth, Ocracoke, Oct. 29, 30
Greenville, (morning) Nov. 6
Grimesland and Vanceboro, Shilmerdine, November 6, 7
Spring Hope, Hornes, Nov. 12, 13
Wilson Station, (night) Nov. 13
Wilson Circuit, (Ledge Street) Nov. 14
Fremont, Fremont Nov. 15
Rock Mount, Nov. 16
Bath, Bath, Nov. 19, 20
South Rocky Mount and Marvin, Nov. 22
South Edgecombe, Elm City, Nov. 27, 28

ROCKINGHAM DISTRICT.

John N. Cole, P. E., Rockingham, N. C.

FOURTH ROUND.

Roberdel, Roberdel, sept. 3, 4
Rockingham Station, Sept. 4, 5
Lumberton, Barker's, Sept. 10, 11
St. John and Gibson, St. John, Sept. 15, 16
Laurenburg, Sept. 16, 17
Richmond, Steele's Mill, Sept. 24, 25
Maxton and Caledonia, Oct. 1, 2
Hamlet, Hamlet, Oct. 8, 9
Rowland, Rowland, Oct. 15, 16
Robeson, Asbury, Oct. 22, 23
Mt. Gilead, Wadeville, Oct. 29, 30
Montgomery, Capeside, Nov. 5, 6
Red Springs, Red Springs, Nov. 12, 13
Pekin, Concord, Nov. 19, 20
Aberdeen, Aberdeen, Nov. 26, 27

RALEIGH DISTRICT.

W. H. Moore, P. E., Pittsboro, N. C.

FOURTH ROUND.

Franklinton, Grove Hill, September 10, 11
Clayton, Elizabeth, September 17, 18
Oxford Circuit, September 24, 25
Central, October 1, 2
Brooklyn, October 2, 3
Milbrook, October 8, 9
Granville, October 15, 16
Wakefield, October 20
Kenley, October 22, 23
Cary, October 29, 30
Epworth, October 30
Oxford Station, November 5, 6
Youngsville, November 12, 13
Louisburg, November 19, 20
Tar River Plank Chapel, November 26, 27

NEW BERN DISTRICT.

F. D. Swindell, P. E., Goldsboro, N. C

FOURTH ROUND.

Mt. Olive and Faison, Mt. Olive, Sept. 17, 18
Jones' Circuit, Lee's, Sept. 24, 25
Goldsboro, Thompson's, Oct. 1, 2
St. Paul, Oct. 2
Centenary, Oct. 9, 10
Pamlico, Bayboro Oct. 15, 16
Oriental, Oriental, Oct. 16, 17
Hookerton, Rainbow, Oct. 22, 23
Grifton, Grifton, Oct. 23, 24
Dover, Oct. 29 30
Kinston, Oct. 30
Snow Hill Circuit, Jerusalem, Nov. 5, 6
Craven, Asbury, Nov. 11
Carteret, Harlow, Nov. 12, 13
Beaufort, Nov. 15, 14
Atlantic, Wit, Nov. 15, 16
Straits, Tabernacle, Nov. 19, 20
Morehead, Nov. 20
LaGrange Circuit, Nov. 26
St. John, Nov. 25
Mt. Olive Circuit, Smiths, Nov. 26, 27

DURHAM DISTRICT.

J. T. Gibbs, P. E., Durham, N. C.

East Burlington, Graham and Haw River, at Haw River, August 27, 28
Mt. Tirzah Circuit, September 3, 4

FOURTH ROUND.

Trinity Church, Sept. 11, at 11 a. m.
Carr Church and Branson, at Carr, Sept. 11 at night
Chapel Hill, Sept. 17, 18
Durham McManen, Sept. 24, 25
Mangum Street, Sept. 25, at night
Leasburg, Salem, Oct. 1, 2
Hillsboro, Cedar Grove, Oct. 8, 9
Roxboro, Concord, Oct. 15, 16
Milton, New Hope, Oct. 22, 23
Yanceyville, Bethel Oct. 29, 30
Mt Tirzah Circuit, Nov. 5, 6
Burlington, Front Street, Nov. 13, 14
East Burlington, Graham and Haw River, Nov. 13, at night
Burlington, Shiloah, Nov. 18
Alamance, Phillips Chapel, Nov. 19, 20
Main Street, Nov. 27, at 11 a. m.
West Durham, Nov. 27, at night

FAYETTEVILLE DISTRICT.

J. B. Hurley, P. E., Fayetteville, N. C.

THIRD ROUND.

Goldstone Maxoneya, August 27, 28
Sampson, Bethel, September 3, 4
Fayetteville, Hay Street, September 10, 11

FOURTH ROUND.

Dunn, Sept. 25, 26.
Cokesbury, Cokesbury, Oct. 1, 2
Elise, Tyrn, Oct. 7
Carthage, Oct. 8, 9
Haw River, Bynum's, Oct. 14
Pittsboro, Zion, Oct. 15, 16
Siler City, Oct. 22, 23
Goldston, Oct. 23, 24
Jonesboro, Hopier springs, Oct. 28
Sanford, Oct. 29, 30
Hope Mills, Nov 5, 6
Newton Grove, Nov. 11
Duke, Benson, Nov. 12, 13
Buckhorn, Cokesbury, Oct. 18
Lillington, Nov. 19, 20
Sampson, Nov. 23
Fayetteville, Hay Street, Nov. 27
Fayetteville, Holt's Hill, Nov. 27

WILMINGTON DISTRICT.

R. B. John, P. E., Wilmington, N. C.

FOURTH ROUND.

Onslow, Swanboro, September 3, 4
Scott's Hill, Acorn Branch, September 3, 4
New River, Turkey Creek, September 4
Burgaw, September 10, 11
Fifth Street, Sept. 18
Market Street, Sept. 18
Town Creek, Zion, Sept. 21
Grace, September 25
Clinton, Keener, Oct. 1, 2
Bladen Circuit, Antioch, Oct. 7
Elizabeth, Wesley's, Oct. 8, 9
Magnolia, Carleton, Oct. 15, 16
Carver's Creek, Shiloah, Oct. 21
Whiteville, Cerro Gordo Oct. 22, 23
Shallotte, Village, Oct. 28
Waccomow, Bethel, Oct. 29, 30
Burgaw, Burgaw, Nov. 4
Kenansville, Warsaw, Nov. 5, 6
Onslow, Tabernacle, Nov. 9
Jackson and Richlands, Richlands, Nov. 10
Southport, Nov. 13
New River, Sneed's Ferry, Nov. 18
Scott's Hill, Scott's Hill, Nov. 19, 20
Bladen Street, Nov. 27.

DO YOU WANT A TEACHER?

The Educational Bureau, Raleigh, N. C., has recently secured the names of a large number of good teachers open to engagement. Write fully as to your needs. It charges you nothing.

XANTHINE HAIR RESTORATIVE.

BEST IN THE WORLD FOR THIRTY YEARS, AND ALWAYS WILL BE.

(1874, June 25. From J. W. Lockwood, Cashier National Bank of Virginia, Richmond.)

"I have used on my hair about one-third of a bottle of the XANTHINE, and the result has been its restoration to its original color."

(1901, Aug. 9. From Rev. S. B. Hyman, D. D., Bardanelle, Ark.)

"I have never had anything to really prove satisfactory before. My wife has used it also with equal satisfaction."

PRICE $1. We prepay charges on all orders sent direct to us. Write us for circulars. XANTHINE CO., Richmond, Va.

GINSENG $25,000.00 made from half acre. Easily grown in Garden or Farm. Roots and seeds for sale. Send 4c. for postage and get booklet E11., telling all about it.
McDowell Ginseng Garden, Joplin, Mo.

THE KEELEY INSTITUTE GREENSBORO, N.C.

For the treatment of THE LIQUOR, OPIUM, MORPHINE and other Drug Addictions. The Tobacco Habit, Nerve Exhaustion

BLYMYER CHURCH BELLS

Please mention this paper.

A Plea for the Bible.

BY DAVID J. BREWER,
Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States.

[It is a most significant fact that almost without exception the foremost men of America are Christians. One of the ablest is Justice Brewer, of the Supreme Court, for whose address reproduced below we are indebted to Professor White of the Bible Training School, New York City.]

A lawyer in the pulpit may seem out of place, and perhaps a preacher on the bench would be out of place, but it occurs to me that if there were more Gospel on the bench and perhaps more Law in the pulpit it might be better for us all.

No nation is better than its sacred book. In that book are expressed its highest ideals of life, and no nation ever rises above those ideals; neither does any individual rise above the level of his ideals. The fact is, the great lack is that none of us ever comes up to the level of his ideals. Each one of us has bright visions of a life noble, pure and useful, which we would wish to live, and yet how far short we all come of those ideals. Take the Turks, for instance. The Koran is their sacred book, and there are many precepts inculcated therein for highest living, but how far do the Turks come of realizing those ideals?

So in China. The writings of Confucius may be called the sacred book of the Chinese, and surely in those writings there are many things which we can all read with profit. His Golden Rule is not like ours. His is negative while ours is affirmative. "Do not do to others that which you would not have them do to you." Our is, "Do unto others that which you would have them do unto you." The great Chinese leader, whom General Grant declared to be one of the three greatest men he met in his travels around the world, is credited with having said he did not see there was much difference between the Golden Rule of Christ and that of Confucius, but there is a world-wide difference. You may live up to the demands of Confucius and pass unnoticed all suffering and sorrow. You can pass by the man in the pit and thus not do him any direct injury, yet you are avoiding doing what you would have him do to you. The Golden Rule steps in and says:: Do what you would have done to you. You must help wherever there is sorrow.

No nation has a sacred book comparable with ours. Above all the writings of Confucius, above the Koran, in the richness and loftiness and purity of its teaching is this Bible that we believe in. It is our Nation's sacred Book, yet does this Nation come up to the level of its teaching and mold its life in all things by pure and lofty precepts of this Book? I do not mean that as a nation we should have a State religion, or that by secular means we support any form of Christianity. But I do mean to say that this American nation, from its first settlement at Jamestown to the present hour, is based upon and permeated by the principles of this Book. The very first charters that were issued have as one of the reasons for their issue, that the Chritsian religion might be carried into this new continent, and all through our national life, from its beginning to the present time, there has been a constanf recognition of the Bible as our sacred Book. So it is that we are regarded among the nations of the world as a Christian nation. We do not, any more than any other nation, come up to the level of our ideas as expressed in this Book. While other nations are Chritsian nations, and this Bible is their sacred Book, it is true, comparing nation with nation, that those nations in which this Book is free, in which its principles reach through the great body of thep ople, surpass those nations in which the Bible is a closed Book or only partially understood. In other words, the more this Bible enters into the national life, the grander and purer and better becomes that life.

Well, how shall it be done?

One way, of course, is by circulating copies of the Bible everywhere, and if it were possible to put into the hand of every citizen of this Republic, or dweller in this country, a copy of the Bible, it would be a great blessing. For it is one of the beautiful things, the helpful features of this Book, that anyone of any intelligence can read it and find that which comforts and cheers and strengthens for life's duties. The language of most of it is so simple and clear that there are passages in it that are obscure, that puzzle even the wisest and call for the greatest study by the most learned, but for all that if you put the Book as it is in every man's hand you have made more than a beginning. I always admired the wisdom of that colored preacher who was unlearned (and many of them are not learned), in his exposition of the parts of the Bible that he read. Every once in a while he would come upon a passage that he could not explain because he did not understand it; and his invariable rule was when he came to such a passage, to say: "Brethren and sisters, this is a mystery, a great mystery. Let us look it boldly in the face and pass on." So when you find a great mystery, as you do find passages here and there that trouble you, look it boldly in the face and pass on to those you can easily understand.

But there is omething more than putting the Book into every man's hand. We have an illustration in the political campaign which is to-day commencing. Do the men that are launching that campaign sit in their offices and simply send out a few speeches here and there? Are they content even with circulating thousands and thousands of pages of campaign literature? They send out orators and speakers to awaken enthusiasm and get the people to read the documents that are sent. The truth is, mankind is inert, I might almost say, lazy, and from the mere fact that you put into the hands of one a book it does not follow that he will read it. You have to do something to draw his attention to its value and impress upon him that there is in that book something which means the best for him and his country. And so about Bible teachers. By sending out those competent to explain and expound and illustrate the Bible, it not only becomes visible as a book everywhere, but becomes potent as a force in the land. And the one that does this, who is engaged in bringing this Book, so potent in its influence upon the nation as a nation, home to the people of the nation is a patriot.

We are too apt to look upon the soldier as the single embodiment of patriotism. When we see the boys marching beneath the Star Spangled Banner to the tune of "Columbia," and think of them going into peril on the battlefield of the country, we say they are patriots. So they are, but the man who carries the Bible from place to place and brings its truth home as a power to people, to the circle in which he moves, is also a patriot. He is doing for his country that which will be far more for its enduring glory than all the victories won upon the battlefield; and if it were possible for any organization, or number of organizations, to so take this Bible and send it through this land until its teachings and precepts should be brought home and wrought into the life of every citizen of the nation, the results would be grander than all the victories won in all the wars since the beginning of time. The Bible means something more than even patriotism. It is the one Book, which more than all others comes to the toiling and burdened ones with words of comfort and cheer. "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest," are words that have cheered and strengthened unknown multitudes of the toiling and burdened ones of earth.

MORE RIOTS.

Disturbances of strikers are not nearly as grave as an individual disorder of the system. Overwork, loss of sleep, nervous tension will be followed by utter collapse, unless a reliable remedy is immediately employed. There's nothing so efficient to cure disorders of the Liver or Kidneys as Electric Bitters. It's a wonderful tonic, and effective nervine and the greatest all around medicine for run-down systems. It dispels Nervousness, Rheumatism and Neuralgia and expels Malaria germs. Only 50 cents, and sastisfaction guaranteed by all druggists.

The Gastonia Cotton Manufacturing Company.

Gastonia, N. C., July 1, 1901.

About two years ago I was confined to my bed with inflammatory rheumatism for several weeks, and no treatment I tried afforded any relief. I was affected in my arms, legs, neck and different parts of my body. I was not able to walk at all, and when I would get out of bed the pain was indescribable. After finding the doctor's treatment did me no good, I concluded to try Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy. After using half dozen bottles I was able to walk with crutches. I was soon able then to walk without crutches. I continued the Remedy until I used eighteen bottles, which made a perfect cure, and I have been well ever since. I cannot recommend Mrs. Person's Remedy too highly. It is a wonderful medicine.

R. W. GRAY.

POSITIONS GUARANTEED. May pay tuition out of salary after course is completed and position is secured. Indorsed by business men from Maine to California. For 160-page catalog, address J. F. DRAUGHON, Pres., either place,

DRAUGHON'S PRACTICAL BUSINESS Colleges.

Columbia, S. C. Nashville, Tenn.

Atlanta, Ga.; Montgomery, Ala.; Ft. Worth Texas; Oklahoma City, O. T.; Galveston, Texas; Little Rock, Ark.; Ft. Scott, Kans.; Shreveport, La.; St. Louis, Mo.; Kansas City, Mo. After July 1st, 1904.

Incorporated. $300,000.00 capital. Established 1859. 14 bankers on board of directors. National reputation. Our diploma represents in business circles what Yale's and Harvard's represent in literary circles. No vacation; enter any time. Part car fare paid; clean board. Write to-day.

HOME STUDY. BOOKKEEPING, SHORTHAND, PENMANSHIP, etc., taught by mail. Money refunded if not satisfied with course. Write for prices of home study courses.

CONVERSE COLLEGE
AND MUSIC CONSERVATORY
A HIGH GRADE COLLEGE FOR WOMEN
SPARTANBURG, S. C.

Founded in 1889. Plant worth $250,000.00. Splendid location, delightful climate; Modern economical buildings; steam heat; electric lights; perfect sanitary equipment; rooms single, double or ensuite. Thorough college and conservatory courses; 14 officers, 22 teachers; $7,000.00 pipe organ; 34 practice rooms; Music Festival every spring.

For handsome catalogue and full information, address

ROBT. P. PELL, Litt. D., Prest.

WRIGLEY ENGRAVING COMPANY
ENGRAVERS, ELECTROTYPERS, STEREOTYPERS,
COPPER, HALF TONE AND ZINC ETCHINGS,
ATLANTA, GA.

When writing advertisers, please mention this paper.

CROSS & LINEHAN CO.,
NEW TUCKER BUILDING.)
234-236 Favetteville St., RALEIGH, N. C.

LET US SHOW YOU WHAT THE FULL MEANING OF BARGAIN-GIVING MEANS IN . . . . . .

CLOTHING
AND GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS.

OUR NEW SPRING STOCK NOW READY FOR YOUR INSPECTION.

Cross & Linehan Co.,
Leading Clothiers.

THE
Park Region Mutual Hail Insurance Association

Insures Growing Crops of all Kinds
Against Loss or Damage by Hail Storms.

This is an old reliable company, with a large membership in this State. We paid three hundred losses last year in North Carolina. We can give you safe protection. We are the : : : : : : : : :

Only Old Reliable, Time-Tested Company Doing this Line of Business in North Carolina.

For information, or for names of parties who have been paid losses by us

Address THE PARK REGION MUTUAL HAIL INSURANCE ASSOCIATION,
Room 2, Pullen Bldg. RALEIGH, N. C.
RELIABLE AGENTS WANTED.

Obituaries

Obituaries containing not more than one hundred and fifty words are inserted free of charge. Those sending obituaries containing over one hundred and fifty words are requested to send with the obituary one cent for every word in excess. Unless this rule is observed the obituary must be cut down to the proper limit

HUTCHINGS. — The announcement of the death of Miss Julia Hutchings was a shock even to her most intimate friends. They knew she had at times suffered severely for many years, but there were no alarming symptoms to suggest the approaching end.

At the age of sixty-six, on June 20, 1904, about 5 o'clock, in the afternoon, she fell sweetly asleep in Jesus. Although the summons came suddenly, she was prepared, for she lived in constant readiness to meet her Lord.

She loved and trusted Jesus and the thought of Him filled her life with sweetness, but now it is sweeter for His face to see and in His presence rest.

When she was eleven years old she gave her heart to Christ, and served Him faithfully fifty-five years.

She was a true, loyal member of Edenton Street Methodist Church, and when her health would permit, was delighted to attend public worship.

For many years she was an active worker in the Sunday-school and the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of which she was Corresponding Secretary a long time.

She was of a retiring disposition, and it was in the home circle that her character shone brightest. In her the poor and helpless and suffering found a sympathizing friend. She never spoke unkindly of anyone.

The entire community sympathizes with the bereaved brothers and sisters. But her sister, Miss Narcissa Hutchings, will miss her most, for she was her almost constant companion.

Only another who has passed through a similar experience can understand her feeling of loneliness and sadness. But they will meet again, and will be more to each other in heaven than on earth.

"She has not quite left us, our friend who has passed
Through the shadow of death to the sunlight above.
A thousand sweet memories are holding her fast
To the places she blessed with her presence and love."

G. F. SMITH.

RIDDICK.—On the morning of August 7, 1904, the cause of Christ on earth lost an earnest and intelligent worker in the person of Mrs. Callie Wilkinson Riddick, wife of T. W. Riddick. Her membership was at Epworth Church, Hobgood Circuit, where she joined under the ministry of the writer in 1892. Her life was one of "faith and works," faith being at its best in the hour of her falling asleep in Jesus. She was a good and affectionate wife, kind and helpful neighbor, but excelled in devotion to her church, and extension of Christ's kingdom. Life can have no higher aim than to live for Christ's cause. Phil. 1:21. She was in the 34th year of her age, was born August 21, 1870. "It matters not how long we live, but how." Better solid service for a short life than shallow, half-hearted service for a long one. Another sheaf of mine is gathered to God's garner. May the husband and other loved one find comforting grace, till we all meet in heaven.

"It is for us, in reverent submission, to say, 'Even so, Father, for so it seemed good in Thy sight,' and to wait for the reason of the stroke, until the time when from the mouth of every sepulcher the great stone shall be rolled away. . . . .

"But we are not left to hints and suggestions. We are Christians. Life and immortality have been brought to light. 'Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, which according to His abundant mercy hath begotten us again unto a lively hope, by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead.'

"Immortality is not a dismal perhaps. There is the vacant tomb of Joseph of Arimathea, and 'if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with Him.'"

D. H. TUTTLE.

IT SAVED HIS LEG.

P. A. Danforth, of La Grange, Ga., suffered for six months with a frightful running sore on his leg; but writes that Bucklen's Arnica Salve wholly cured it in five days. For Ulcers, Wounds, Piles, it's the best salve in the world. Cure guaranteed. Only 25 cents. Sold by druggists.

Love's old method is good enough for modern needs.

WOOL.

If you have wool to sell for cash, to exchange for goods, or to be manufactured, ship it to the CHATHAM MANUFACTURING COMPANY, ELKIN, N. C., and you will not regret it. They pay the highest market price and make the best goods you can get. Their blankets at all the leading expositions have been awarded GOLD MEDALS as the finest made in America.

WRITE THEM FOR SAMPLES.

PIANOS AND ORGANS

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.

A. D. JONES & CO.
Southern Factory Distributors for the World's Famous

KIMBALL

WE Loan you the money to buy them.
WE Give free trials.
WE Pay the freight.
WE Save you 25 per cent.
WE Add nothing to the principal when sold on

EASY PAYMENTS.

Write for our latest piano and and organ catalogue and full particulars.

A. D. JONES & CO.,
208 South Elm Street,
GREENSBORO, N. C.

SOUTHERN DENTAL COLLEGE, ATLANTA, GEORGIA.
If you are interested in obtaining a dental education, write for free catalogue of full instruction.
ADDRESS DR. S. W. FOSTER, DEAN, 100 NORTH BUTLER STREET, ATLANTA, GEORGIA

BABY EASE
BABY EASE—the world's best baby medicine—is a prompt, safe, sure and harmless remedy for all sorts of stomach and bowel troubles of babies and children. Keep it always on hand—you can rely upon it.
At all good drug stores, 25c.
Manufactured by BABY EASE CO., MACON, GA.

Normal and Collegiate Institute FOR Young Women,
FALL TERM opens September 21, 1904. ASHEVILLE, NORTH CAROLINA.
1. A Normal course for thorough training of teachers under instructors from best normal schools.
2. A Commercial Course, including Stenography, Typewriting, Bookkeeping, etc.
3. A Course of Domestic Science, including (a) Scientific Cooking, (b) Draughting, Cutting, Fitting, and Making of Garments.
4. An admirable Musical Department has been provided under trained and experienced teachers.
5. Systematic study of the Bible in all Departments.
6. Terms for Board and Tuition in any of the Departments, $50 per term, or $100 per year.
For Catalogue, address REV. THOMAS LAWRENCE, D. D., ASHEVILLE, N. C.

NEW BERN MILITARY AGADEMY
NEW BERN, N. C.
Largest and best equipped Boarding School in Eastern Carolina. Several thousand dollars being spent in buildings and equipments. Electric Lights, Bath Rooms, Water-Works, Foot-ball, Boat Racing, Base-ball. Faculty of nineteen Specialists (including lecture faculty.)

CAROLINA BUSINESS COLLEGE, NEW BERN, N. C.
Every graduate holding a position. Positions guaranteed. Railroad fare paid. Large and loyal student body our best advertisement. Special Rates for July.
Write at once for beautifully illustrated catalogue.
S. J. HOLLADAY, President.

LOUISBURG COLLEGE. The 102d Year Begins Sept. 7, 1904.
AN ABLE AND THOROUGHLY INTERESTED FACULTY.
The number of students limited; securing to each Thorough Instruction; Careful Individual Training, under refining Home Influence. SPACIOUS GROUNDS FOR OUTDOOR ATHLETICS.
For Catalogue address,
M. S. DAVIS, A. M., President,
LOUISBURG, N. C.

....Chesapeake and Ohio Railway....
World's Fair Scenic Route
TO
St. Louis, Missouri.
SHORTEST, QUICKEST and BEST ROUTE. Vestibuled, Electric-Lighted Trains with Pullman Sleepers and Dining Cars.
Through tickets from North Carolina with direct connections.
SPECIAL RATES FOR SEASON, SIXTY OR FIFTEEN DAY TICKETS.
Fifteen day tickets from Raleigh, N. C., $24.80.
Sleeping car accommodations engaged upon application.
SPECIAL COACH EXCURSIONS
On authorized dates, tickets good for ten days at rate of $18.50. Correspondingly low rates from other stations. Special accommodations arranged for parties. Stop-overs permitted within limit at C. & O. celebrated mountain resorts.
USE THE C. & O. ROUTE and purchase your tickets accordingly.
For coach excursion dates, reservations and other information, address
W. O. WARTHEN, D. P. A., C. & O. Railway,
Richmond, Va.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC COMPANY.
..."SUNSET ROUTE."...
Lowest Rates and Through Service to California. Ask About Them.
Through the Rice and Oil Belt.
4 Daily Trains from New Orleans to Points in Louisiana; 3 to Texas; 2 to California and Mexico.
Best Trains, Best Service; Best Everything.
OIL BURNING LOCOMOTIVES.
Through Pullman Tourist Car from Washington, Atlanta, Montgomery and Intermediate points to California, Tri-Weekly.
No trouble to answer questions.
J. F. VAN RENSSELAER, General Agent. R. O. BEAN, T. P. A.,
ATLANTA, GA.

The Solitary Boarder.

Every summer boarding-house has its solitary boarder, two or three of them, maybe, for two or three solitaries do not make a group, more's the pity. She is plain, perhaps, or deaf, or prim, or it is only shyness that keeps her solitary. Whatever the reason, she is aside from the pleasant current of vacation life. No one dislikes her, but no one feels any responsibility for her. She is not asked to join excursions; she does not stand up to the piano for the Sunday night song; the groups of comfortable matrons on the piazza do not draw their chairs nearer to make room for hers. She exchanges a word or two with her neighbors at the dining-table, but for the rest of the day she is alone in that forlornest fashion, "alone in a crowd." Her fortnight's stay over, she drifts away, unnoticed as she came. And yet—how eagerly that fortnight may have been anticipated! How much more it might have brought of cheer and courage if to the refreshment of outdoor life could have been added the variety and stimulus of human companionship. A few little courtesies from fell-boarders, too trifling to have taxed their own leisure, might have doubled her enjoyment. There could hardly be conditions in which so small an expenditure of self-denial might yield so large a service to another. "And thereby some have entertained angels unawares."—The Congregationalist.

Scotch Ecclesiastical Chaos.

Scotch opinion on the recent decision of the English house of lords in favor of the Free church against the United Free Church of Scotland was not available for the article in Public Opinion, August 11th. Since that time, however, Scotch and English exchanges have reached us and we are able to give the views of the organs of public opinion in the region most affected by the decision. The Glasgow Herald has "no hesitation in saying that it is positively monstrous situation:"

The union is presumably indissoluble; dissolution is inconceivable. Even if the link were broken, it is evident as an essential condition of enjoying the use of any part of the property, have to foreswear open-mindedness about the establishment principle, profess true-blue Calvinism, and one knows not what else. The question, then, resolves itself into one of compromise on very peculiar lines. It is unnecessary to say anything here about the spirit in which the subject of compromise should be approached, for we are well assured that the leaders on both sides are so alive to the gravity of the situation that they will absolutely ban recrimination. But given a disposition on either side to be amicable and divide the subjects in medio in a common-sense manner, it is necessary to face the fact that legally the United Free Church cannot hold any of the property which the Free Church might conceivably be willing to hand over.

A leader in the Scotsman, strongly defending the minority, concludes:

The judgment of the house of lords in the church appeal case can be likened only to an earthquake shock. It will move to its foundations the social and ecclesiastical structure of Scotland; and there is reason to believe that it will come most unexpectedly, as well as with the most paralyzing effects, upon those who are most immediately and most unpleasantly affected by it. It has now been laid down, or rather reaffirmed, as an unquestionable axiom of law, that "a body of Christians" do not, by calling themselves a church, escape from the duty of dealing with the property and funds placed under their charge on the same principles as apply to the administration of other trust funds. If, at their own instance and on their own authority, a majority of them alter, in essentials, the foundations of the institution, and the objects for which the trust was established, they part with their right to be considered the body to whom the name and the property rightly belong; and this rule of law and justice is not affected by the size of the majority:

The question now is, what is to be done about it? After saying that the majority are the victims of an almost unexampled miscarriage of justice, the British Weekly adds:

The church is bound to take practical steps for the recovery of her possessions. The best and happiest solution of the difficulty by far would be if the minority and the majority agreed upon an act to be passed through parliament. The minority are able to enforce terms which will amply satisfy their requirements, and the re-establishment of peace on friendly terms with the other consequences of this action opens up the best prospect we have ever seen of a real union between the Presbyterians of Scotland. It is, however, essential to remember that no settlement can be arrived at which interferes with the great principle of spiritual independence. There can be no compromise on any point where principle is involved.

Full of Glory.

William Dean Howells, the "dean of American letters," says that when his talented daughter Mildred was a child, she looked up suddenly from her breakfast one bright morning and said:

"Father, I am full of glory."

"What do you mean?" said Mr. Howells.

"Why," said the little girl, "a sunbeam just got on my spoon and I have swallowed it."

Comic and Curious.

A little girl's father had a round bald spot. Kissing him at bed-time not long ago, she said. "Stoop down, popsy! I want to kiss the place where the lining shows."

* * *

Tourist: "I say, guide, what does that memorial stone commemorate?"

Guide: "I put it there. It was upon that spot a tourist once gave me five francs."

* * *

Mrs. Newriche: "And who is this by?"

Picture Dealer: "That is a chromo, madam."

Mrs. Newriche: "Oh, yes, of course it is. Now that you mention it, I recognize his style."

* * *

First Little Girl: "And isn't your cat afraid of mice?"

Second Little Girl: "Oh, no; not a single bit."

First Little Girl: "That's queer. And she's a lady cat, too, isn't she?"

* * *

"Some scientist has made the discovery that every one is born left-handed."

"Well, I can go even further than that. I maintain that everyone is born with a predisposition to say, 'I done it.'"

* * *

Teacher: "What are the three personal pronouns?"

Pupil: "He, she, and it."

Teacher: "Give an example of their use."

Pupil: "Husband, wife and baby."

* * *

"One of our readers," says an English newspaper, "sends us a curious instance of physical agility which he culled from a serial story. The passage runs as follows: 'The stranger grunted, and I noticed that he smiled faintly, for the first time, but just at that moment he turned, and, catching sight of my back through the half-opened door, started slightly.'"

"Have you ever done anything for the church?" asked the Rev. Mr. Goodley.

"Have I!" replied Mr. Pompous. "My dear sir. It has always had my moral support. I say a good word for the Lord whenever I get a chance.

* * *

"Josiah," said Mrs. Chugwater, "when one of the big battleships runs aground, how do they get it off."

"They pull it off with a tug of war," answered Mrs. Chugwater; "I should think you'd know enough to know that."

* * *

The Sumner (Mo.) Star says a man called at the home of a farmer friend near Sumner the other day, and, finding a little boy in the yard, asked where his father was. The little fellow replied: "Papa's out in the pig-pen. You can tell him—he's got a hat on."

* * *

The orator of the corner store was giving forth his views of a popular Congressman whose death had been chronicled in the evening paper. "I tell you," he said gloomily, "he's going to be a loss to all that have known him or known of him. He has died, as he has lived, unanimously regretted."

* * *

Willie: "I met our new minister on my way to Sunday-school, mamma, and he asked me if I ever played marbles on Sunday."

Mother: "Hm! And what did you say to that?"

Willie: "I said, 'Get thee behind me, Satan!' and walked right off and left him."

* * *

Singleton: "Dr. Pellet is certainly the most absent-minded man I ever saw."

Wederly: "Is that so?"

Singleton: "Yes; he was married last week, and during the ceremony, when he should have placed a ring on the bride's finger, he actually felt her pulse and asked her to put out her tongue."

* * *

"What is the matter with our cherished infant?" inquired Mr. Blykins, as a series of prolonged yells reached his ears.

"Why, he's lost his temper, and he's standing in bed, clutching the foot rail of the brass bedstead with both hands, shouting at the top of his voice."

"Let him alone. He'll be a great political orator one of these days. He thinks he's on the rear platform of a train."

* * *

At a recent debate among the members of a Philadelphia literary society on the question, 'Should Capital Punishment Be Abolished?' a speaker in the negative took the position that as the general sense of justice of mankind for centuries had justified the death penalty for great crimes, therefore those of this generation ought not to abolish it. "for," said he, "if hanging was good enough for my father, it is good enough for me."

DO YOU WANT A TEACHER?

The Educational Bureau, Raleigh, N. C., has recently secured the names of a large number of good teachers open to engagement. Write fully as to your needs. It charges you nothing.

King's Business College.

(INCORPORATED.)

CAPITAL STOCK $30,000.

We give the world's best and most modern Business Education. Our Colleges are the most helpful schools in America. KING'S means THOUROUGH in everything pertaining to Business Education. Railroad fare paid. Positions guaranteed, backed by a written contract. Individual Instruction No Vacation. Enter Any Time.

Write for our College Journal and offers—they will point you to the road that leads to success. Address,

KING'S BUSINESS COLLEGE,
Raleigh, N. C., or Charlotte, N. C.

Knowledge.

When the heads of our greatest Colleges select the Stieff piano, wouldn't it be well for you to profit by THEIR KNOWLEDGE and EXPERIENCE?

Besides, the Stieff piano is a Southern product manufactured by a southern man and sold direct.

Brenau Conservatory, Gainesville, Ga., has 50; Elizabeth College, Charlotte, has 20; Converse College, Spartanburg, S. C., has 36; Baptist Female University Raleigh, N. C., has 31; Salem Academy, Salem, N. C., has 10; Limestone College, Gaffaney, has 6; Statesvilie Female College, Statesville, N. C., has 6; Presbyterian College, Charlotte, has 4; Winthrop Normal College, Rock Hill, S. C., has 4; and colleges all over the South use them; the greater colleges use them exclusively. Write for book of suggestions.

Southern Warerooms, 211–213 N. Tryon St., Charlotte, N. C.
C. H. Wilmoth, Mgr.

PERSONALLY CONDUCTED TOUR TO WORLD'S FAIR, ST. LOUIS, MO., TUESDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1904, VIA SEABOARD AIR LINE RAILWAY.

The Seaboard Air Line Railway announces a very attractive personally conducted tour to the World's Fair on Tuesday, October 4th, which will be in charge of Mr. C. H. Gattis, Traveling Passenger Agent, from all points on its line and connections within the State. Arrangements are being made for special train consisting of Pullman Drawing Room Sleeping Cars and Vestibule, high back day coaches to run through from Raleigh, Wilmington and Charlotte to St. Louis without change.

The route selected is one of the most attractive in the South, via Atlanta, Chattanooga and Nashville, the route of the "Dixie Flyer," passing the battlefields between Atlanta and Chattanooga, around Lookout Mountains and through the beautiful farming country of Kentucky.

Rates from Raleigh, 15 day limit, $24.80, 10 days $18.50; from Wilmington, 15 days $26.25, 10 days $20.40; from Charlotte, 15 days $24.65, 10 days $18.30. Rate for double berth in Pullman $6, two can occupy berth, making charge just half.

Leave Raleigh 4 p. m., Wilmington 3.20 p. m., and Charlotte 7.25 p. m., Tuesday afternoon, October 4th.

All arrangements will be made for hotel accommodations at Inside Inn, Exposition grounds. Pullmans will be provided for return trip and everything will be done for the comfort and pleasure of those who avail themselves of this opportunity to visit the greatest World's Fair ever held.

For rates from other points, schedules, Pullman reservations, pamphlets of the trip, address the undersigned. C. H. GATTIS, T. P. A.,
Raleigh, N. C.

LIBRARY OF TRINITY COLLEGE NO. CAROLINA

Reading Room Trinity College

Raleigh Christian Advocate

FIFTIETH YEAR. ORGAN OF THE NORTH CAROLINA CONFERENCE. NUMBER 35.

RALEIGH, N. C., WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 28, 1904.

Editorial

RELAXATION'S DEADLY UNDERTOW.

The very word "relaxation," has a pleasing sound. It carries with it the idea of rest. It is associated with the lull that comes after the carnage of the battle. It brings the murmur of gentle waters, the whisper of cooling winds, and the glint of peaceful stars. It woos us with fine visions. It shows us the silver lining of the cloud. Its cornucopia is always full of life's best things.

Relaxation is a good thing. It is the slumber of energy. It is the reawakening of power. It is the garner house of vitality. It is the seed sowing when the soil is fecund and gentle mists mixed with sunshine enswathe the secret chambers of growth. Nature enjoys her relaxation and seemingly smiles in memory of the time when God worked as only God can work and then rested. She therefore tells man to pause occasionally in his toiling with body and brain and spirit, and promises him rest and restoration.

It is a pleasant voyage which one may make on the summer sea of relaxation. The winds are favorable and the safe harbor is always in sight. But it is a sad fact which cannot be too often emphasized that there is a deadly undertow which sucks downward and deathward and fills its hungry maw with strangled possibilities.

How sweet it is to the tired body with strained muscles to stretch itself on a soft bed and, wrapped in slumber, to absorb new energy as the bursting seed absorbs the dew! Yet in the very high hour of relaxation, somewhere between midnight and morning, when vitality has withdrawn its keen-eyed watchmen, the undertow manifests its most deadly power, and just "before the dawning" the wing of Death brushes nearest the cheek of mortality and the majority of human lives sink into the darkness of death.

All this has its analagon in the mental and spiritual life. When the brain has finished its task and the soul has reached its goal, the threshold of a brighter, stronger day of toil is in view. But danger is always nigh. The undertow is at work.

How awfully this truth was taught on last Saturday morning when two splendid trains on one of the roads of a great trunk system crashed into each other and destroyed scores of human lives and maimed scores whose lives were not lost! The conductor and engineer had run the train successfully for twenty years. They knew the road. They were on time. They had never had an accident. The sunshine was so bright. The wine of life flowed so freely through nature, and in the souls of those men and women and children who laughed and chatted while the September landscapes glided by. The conductor and engineer had reached the goal of success attested by an experience of twenty years. The spirit of relaxation was upon them. They forgot that they were to pass the other train at a certain place and they went on to bring about one of the most serious collisions known in the South. The deadly undertow of relaxation had done its work.

The one who claims to have reached the very highest point in his spiritual climbing feels that he has reached the point of absolute safety. But he is mistaken. He has just begun to face the deadly peril of relaxation. The next day so often finds him torn and bleeding at the foot of the supernal heights. To change the figure, relaxation's deadly undertow has done its work. "And the last state of that man was worse than the first."

The wreck on the great moral ocean does not so often occur between the starting point and the harbor as in the still waters of the harbor itself. It is so easy for the captain to rest after the still waters have been reached. It is so easy for him to loosen the bands of rigid discipline. It is so easy then for the deadly undertow to get in its work even when anchor chains are rattling and welcoming salutes load the air. This explains why so many men and women suffer moral shipwreck after they have reached middle life. They feel that they have reached the harbor with a full freight of heroic endeavor and well won victories, and a mature, seasoned character, but they forget the undertow which is always within the bar in the shape of that terrible enemy which is always watching for the complacent soul that has eased its watchful tension.

The most critical time for the Methodist itinerant is when he is ready to go to Conference and make the report of his year's work. He has been under high pressure during the year. He has been faithful and energetic in the discharge of his lofty, strenuous duties. He has prayed and watched. And now the Conference time has come. The harbor is sighted. Let him enjoy his relaxation, but let him look out for its undertow. If he does not watch, he will be less prayerful, less charitable, less happy in his communion with God than at any other time during the year. And this means that he will have for his next year's voyage a vessel more suited to the dry dock than a contest with waves and winds on the high seas.

Our hearts can know no resting,
Except in Thee;
Our barks the waves are breasting
On life's rough sea;
Body and soul and spirit are daily worn with care,
Tho "covert of Thy wing is sought—the needed rest is there;
And though the toil cease only
When life is won;
In Thee our rest remaineth,
O Christ, the Son.

The Tenth Annual Report of the Board of Education has been issued. The Secretary, Rev. J. D. Hammond, will send a copy of this report to any one on application. It shows that the value of buildings and grounds is $6,384,882, an increase in the past year of $671,450; the endowment amounts to $2,998,084, increase, $135,170; number of students, 16,981, increase, 5,320; teachers, 1,066, increase, 307. We have one university, twenty-two colleges, and one hundred and fifty-one secondary schools. This includes the mission schools of both Mission Boards.

An Episcopal Church organ says that the Archbishop of Canterbury "is as much the official head of Protestantism as his holiness the Pope is of the Church of Rome." Yet many a Methodist camp-meeting will proceed in complete ignorance of any such headship, and many churches will not even know that his grace is on a visit to America.

RITUALISM FROM A NEW STANDPOINT.

"Why men do not attend church," is a question much discussed by Edward Bok, editor of the Ladies Home Journal. The reasons adduced by Mr. Bok are in the main very familiar to the reading public. Some of these reasons are satisfactory and some are not. In the October number of the Home Journal, however, Mr. Bok treats from a new view-point the non-attendance of men upon church service. (Mr. Bok says "services," and we wish that he would stop it.) We give his statements for what they are worth. It is our opinion that he is on a hot trail after something real. He says:

"It can be put down here as a safe prediction that the more elaborate the church services shall be made, the smaller will be the attendance of men. It is a pronounced characteristic of men, as a sex, that their idea of religion is associated with almost primitive simplicity. The average man "has no use," to employ his own phrase, for the trappings of religious services. Men will not stand for "fuss and feathers" in any phase of their secular lives, much less in their religious worship. There is very little fuss about a man as a rule. His whole nature, by his very business training, is direct. His main idea is always to get to "the point." Whenever a preacher has successfully attracted men to his church it has always been in a church where the service or ritual was kept as simple as it was possible to make it. "Keep the ritual simple," was Phillips Brooks's watchword. Mr. Beecher's emphatic veto was always forthcoming at any suggested elaborations in the church services. 'Men don't care for such things,' was his terse explanation. It is the opinion of many men, even of those who attend religious services, that the church is failing to see its mistake in this tendency to elaboration of service. 'It may be all right for women,' is often heard. 'But excuse me.'"

Without saying anything against the new order of service in the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, we would observe that now we have in our service all the ritualism that the most pronounced ritualist could desire. If there is anything in Mr. Bok's argument, there is an emphasized reason why more attention should be paid to the solidities, chief of which is the sermon. Let this be vascular, strong, and supreme, and there will always be men at our church service.

One of our ministers preached a sermon on Forgiveness a few Sundays ago. It was a plain, practical, evangelical sermon, without any frills and flounces. At the conclusion of the sermon two prominent members of the church who had been "at outs," met in front of the pulpit, shook hands with each other, and "made up." This is the way God honors His gospel when it is preached aright. There is no sense in hunting for abstruse, scholastic themes to discuss before a congregation as long as the Devil, in any shape, is in the heart of the church or the people around.

The third Sunday in October has been set aside by the Board of Missions and the Sunday-school Board as Rally Day for Foreign Missions in the Sunday-school. Programmes will be sent free of charge on application to G. W. Cain, 346 Public Square, Nashville, Tenn.

Contributions

Memoir of Rev. Z. T. Harrison.*

*Read at the Memorial Services at the Rockingham District Conference.

Zachariah T. Harrison was born in Rockingham County, N. C., May 10, 1849, and died at Roberdell, N. C., May 21, 1904. He was the youngest son of James and Mary Harrison. There were eleven children, and all were converted, in early life, and joined the M. E. Church, South. His father died in 1850 and left this large family when Z. T. Harrison was only nine months old; hence, the family training devolved on his mother, who early erected a family altar. She was a good woman, full of faith and generally cheerful, having one aim in view—the faithful discharge of duty and the proper training of her children.

Bro. Z. T. Harrison was converted at the age of thirteen years; after this event, he took part in family worship, which was thenceforward conducted alternately by mother, sister and brother. His family was in the middle walks of life, and being poor, the subject of this sketch did not enjoy the benefits of a liberal education. At the close of the war, he was thirsting for knowledge, feeling that the hand of God was resting upon him, and that he must preach the Gospel. The way was dark, but on one Sunday night in Leaksville, N. C., under the ministry of Rev. S. D. Peeler, preaching from the text, "Here am I, Lord, send me," he trembled, wept and prayed, feeling that God was speaking to him, and before he slept that night the question was settled.

The following week, the Messrs. Smith, who were at that time conducting a high school in Leaksville, offered him his tuition as long as he would attend their school. He accepted this kindness with gratitude, and attended this school for two years. From this time until he was twenty-two years old, he worked on the farm, taught school, and devoted his spare moments to the reading of good books.

He preferred living in the M. E. Church, South, but thinking the government oppressive, finally decided to enter the M. P. Church, of which many of his relatives were members.

He was licensed to preach on the 9th of March, 1871, and at the close of the year joined the M. P. Conference, and served the following charges: 1872-1873, Pigeon River Circuit; 1874-1876, Albemarle Circuit. At this, however, his health having failed, he took no work for 1877, but returned to his mother's home, as he thought, to die; but his health was so largely restored by March that he was able to take charge of Forsyth Circuit, whose pastor's health had failed. In 1878-1879, he served the Granville Circuit. During this term of service, for sufficient reasons, he decided to apply for admission into the North Carolina Annual Conference. In 1880, he served as a supply in our Conference and was formally received at its next session. He served in our church the following charges: In 1881, Coharie Mission; 1882-1883, Bladen Circuit; 1884, Clear Creek Circuit; 1885, Brunswick Circuit; 1886, Nashville Circuit; 1887, Swan Quarter Circuit; 1888-1890, Halifax Circuit; 1891-1893, Bertie Circuit; 1894, Garysburg Circuit; 1895-1896, Northhampton Circuit; 1897-1898, Carthage Circuit; 1899-1900, Robeson Circuit; 1901-1903, Red Springs Circuit; 1904, Roberdell Circuit.

Brother Harrison was twice married. In November, 1876, he was married to Miss Hattie L. Coghill, with whom he lived happily till November 26, 1885, when the death angel entered his home and dimmed its light. To this union were born four children, three of whom survive him. In 1886 he was married to Miss Mary C. Johnston, of Nash County, N. C., daughter of Rev. Jeremiah Johnston, who proved to be an helpmeet indeed. To this union were born six children, all of whom, with their mother, survive him.

With the training above indicated, Brother Harrison grew up a pious youth; he was humorous, cheerful and conscientious; he loved his fellow-men. As a husband, he was kind, affectionate and gentle, careful for all the interests of home, looking after the comfort and welfare of his dependents; as a father, he was loving, tender and positive; as a friend, he was true and confiding; he appreciated a favor, and never forgot a friend or a service rendered him. He was a good preacher, plain, practical and earnest; the love of souls burned in his heart, and the desire for their salvation was the inspiration of his life. He was a zealous and brave soldier of the cross. Many years ago, I heard him say: "I do not measure my religion so much by my feelings, but by what I am doing for Christ."

He recognized the fact that Christianity was more than sentiment; that its vital principle was doing the works of Christ in the spirit of Him who said, "I came to seek and to save that which was lost," and his ministry was honored of God in the conversion of many souls.

He said to me a few weeks before his death that he felt like his work on Roberdell Circuit was somewhat of an experiment, it being made up largely by mill population, but that he had determined to throw his whole soul into the work. Such was his purpose while the last enemy was stealthily approaching. He had made a fine impression upon those to whom he had been able to minister to the point where his inner life could be felt, and where his love for the Master and His people could be recognized in his life. During his long illness his sufferings were severe, but no murmur escaped his lips, he was cheerful and patient, and his sufferings were borne with Christian fortitude. He bade his wife be cheerful.

Writing to his sister some weeks before his death, he said to her: "If I get off, you will know where to find me." Brother Harrison lived well, and died well. His body rests in Eastside Cemetery at Rockingham, N. C., awaiting the resurrection of the just, when he shall live again.

Now, brother, rest thee from thy toils and cares,
No more shall stirring conflicts start thy fears;
Thy labors done, in Rock of Ages hide,
Lay all thy weapons at death's river-side.
Thy Master calls, the way will not be dark.
Obey the summons, fare ye well, but hark,
What voices, these I hear, they come from afar.
Look now thro' rented vail, the gate's ajar;
Thro' streaming light of the eternal day,
A band of angels makes their hurried way.
They'll bear thee to thy blissful home above,
Forever safe, rest in eternal love.

CHAS. O. DURANT.

A Sense of Sin.

C. F. SHERRILL.

A sense of sin is a creation of Christianity. In pagan lands sin gets in its deadly work, and men have no awful sense of it. Paul had such a sense of sin. So had Christ. Over Jerusalem He wept. By the grave of Lazarus He shed tears, when He saw how sin had brought physical as well as moral death into the world. On Calvary His heart broke. An abhorence of sin measures the majesty of a soul. None are so near Christ as those who see, in the light of God's holiness, sin as He sees it. "The pure in heart see God;" and with a record of soul from its pollution they see the awfulness of sin. These two visions go together: a vision of God's unstained purity and of sin's awful ruin. In this sense Isaiah was a true seer. So was Bunyan. So was he who had the vision on Patmos.

* * *

How awful would be a sense of sin without a sense of grace. It is the splendor and sheen of divine love that makes sin so dark and loathsome. Were there no sense of grace, the sense of sin would produce despair in the soul. "Abandon hope" may not be above the gates of hell. It is the soul of all who enter the abode of "the damned cast out."

Grace streams from the heavens. It runs like a mighty river through all the plains of Scripture. It pours from Calvary in a thousand streams of light. All who will may be saved. The way of Bunyan's Christian at the Cross may be the way of every soul.

* * *

But few look on sin as something permanent in their lives. Some day they will lay it aside. It is only for a time. So the consumptive thinks of consumption. A light estimate of this dread disease is no cure for it. Neglect consumption, and life is gone. Neglect sin, and the soul is dead.

* * *

Frost at first does not appear to do its deadly work. It is when the sun is up that the ruin is seen. So of sin in the heart. The fair outward form may hide for a time the foul inward work. The light of the Great Day will reveal the ruin.

* * *

The greatest thing in God is love. The strongest thing in the universe is law. The darkest thing in man is sin.

* * *

God said of finished creation, "It is good." Christ on the cross said of the Atonement, "It is finished." Sin spoiled what was divinely good and lost the first Eden. Sin makes the cross of none effect and closes the gates of the Eden home.

* * *

Sin reigns with ruin and havoc; but not with undisputed sway. Christ on the cross forever cries out against it. The voice of God in the conscience is a witness against it. Reason says it is irrational and suicidal. History is one long and continuous testimony of its ruinous reign. The Bible is a protest against its deceptiveness and brutality. The voice of each and all is that sin is the defiance of God and the ruin of man. It exists in the universe not under the smile and protection of God. It came among us by a misuse of the free will of man; and by the same means it is perpetuated. The devil commits no murder, swears no oath, blasts no life, and ruins no character except by human hands and lips. Every foul sin has a human author, though a devil stands in the rear.

The Glory of a Young Man's Life.

This is the glory of a young man's life. Do not dare to live without some clear intention toward which your living shall be bent. Mean to be something with all your might. Do not add act to act and day to day in perfect thoughtlessness, never asking yourself whither the growing line is leading. But at the same time do not dare to be so absorbed in your own life, so wrapped up in listening to the sound of your own hurrying wheels, that all this vast pathetic music, made up of the mingled joy and sorrow of your fellow-men, shall not find out your heart and claim it, and make you rejoice to give yourself up for them. And yet, all the while, keep the upward windows open. Do not dare to think that a child of God can worthily serve God's other children unless he does both in the love and fear of God their Father. Be sure that ambition and charity will both grow mean unless they are both inspired and exalted by religion. Energy, love and faith—these make the perfect man. And Christ, who is the perfectness of all of them, gives them all three to any young man who, at the very outset of his life, gives himself to Him. If there is a young man here who generously wants to live a whole life, wants to complete himself on every side, to him Christ the Lord stands ready to give these three, energy, love and faith, and to train them in Him all together, till they make in him the perfect man.—Phillips Brooks.

Repentance does not consist in austerities and penances, but begins in the love of God.—Luther.

It is not success, but obedience, that is the measure and conditions of a Christian's joy.—Rev. James Millar.

The Grace of Sympathy.

One of the most beautiful of the graces that have their root in the human heart is the Christ-like bond of sympathy. It is old as human need and wonderful in its constant power to soothe and heal.

Deep and sweet was the friendship of David and Jonathan and full of the fellowship which makes prosperous days joyous with mutual happiness and days of sorrow thrill with the depths of soul-stirring sympathy.

What bonds of mutual interest drew Christ to the little home at Bethany! What joy was in His coming! What regret tinged with sorrow each departure brought to the little circle! But when Lazarus had died deeper, stronger than before were the ties that bound them. They were bound now by a common sorrow—for "Jesus loved Martha and her sister and Lazarus," and there follows that shortest and most significant of verses, "Jesus wept"—wept in sympathy for the sorrow that He knew would ere long be replaced by joy, in the life of the brother who should be raised from the dead.

Over and over again in His life and His words our Savior commended this grace of sympathy to His followers. Passing here and there through this world of care and trouble and sorrow, we have all known some saintly soul who carried always in one hand a candle, kept alight with the warm fire of a sympathetic heart. Into many dark corners it shed its rays, revealing hidden needs and griefs, and pouring over them the healing balm of a wondrous sympathy.

Beautiful as we all think such a life, and even with a yearning in such hearts to follow closely in its footsteps, to many the grace of sympathy is a hidden talent, locked close in a warm heart. To draw it out, and offer it in spoken word or act, seems almost impossible to some natures. With this shyness, and perhaps as it foundation, is the belief that nothing one could offer would avail in the depth of sorrow we see before us.

What a mistake this is no one knows better than those who have passed over the fiery paths of trial and suffering.

The simplest sentence that carries a note of sympathy with it, a written word of consolation, the soft pressure of a child's hand, or the firmer grasp of an older friend, are each in turn a comfort beyond anything the act would suggest. The fellow feeling in trouble carries one at least for the moment out of that lonely barren waste, in the centre of which sorrow seems to place us. To be alone with our sorrow is the hardest side of any bereavement.

There are a few gifted people in this world whose pens express almost without effort the tenderest thoughts of their hearts for a stricken one. Such notes are a God-send, carrying comfort silently, and asking in the first sad hours for no answering word. But there are many whose hearts are full of sympathy, but to whom words do not come easily. Such a woman, speaking of a poor neighbor who had lost her only son, said: "I thought, suppose it had been my boy, and I could not say a word, but I went in and put my arms about her and we cried together." One is sure those tears soothed away, ta least for the moment, part of the ache from the poor sorrowing mother's heart.

Sorrow is an education. Much that has seemed unknown ground becomes familiar when we have passed over it ourselves. A simple custom which has gained way these last few years is that of sending or taking one's calling card, with a word of sympathy written upon it, to the home of an acquaintance who has suffered bereavement. Except in the case of very near friends, these cards are earlier messengers of sympathy than callers may be, and long before one has seen all the friends who come in time the little missives of sympathy have told of an ever-widening circle of tender-hearted and loving friends whose hearts are full of sympathy.

"Bear ye one another's burdens" is a command old as the burden. "Ye that are strong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak" is a companion thought. How short a time it often requires for the strong and the weak to change places The hand that has upheld you today, the strong-hearted friend with the cheerful face and the ready word, may be bowed down with grief tomorrow. What more blessed privilege does the Heavenly Father put in our hands than that of comforting those who in their turn have comforted us, while to the comforted and the comforter sound the words of heavenly benediction.

"Blessed be God, even the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of mercies and the God of all comfort; who comforteth us in all our tribulations, that we may be able to comfort them which are in any trouble, by the comfort wherewith we are comforted of God."—Constance Conrad, in American Messenger.

In Perfect Peace.

The life of Christian is not freed from pain, but out of the pain comes rich blessing. The crown of thorns must be worn by the Master's friends who follow Him faithfully, but the thorns burst into sweet flowers as the light of heaven's morning touches them.

"God hath not promised,
Skies ever blue,
Flower-strewn pathways,
Always for you.
God hath not promised
Sun without rain,
Joy without sorrow,
Peace without pain.
But God hath promised
Strength from above,
Unfailing sympathy,
Undying love."

"Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on thee." There is music in these words of the old Hebrew prophet. Why can we get the music into our lives? Why do we not all have this perfect peace in our hearts? Why do we lose the quiet and the calm of our spirits so easily in the world's distractions and troubles? Let us see if we cannot learn the secret of peace which lies in the prophet's words. The secret is in two parts.

One is that the keeping is God's not ours. We cannot keep ourselves in peace. There is a majestic power in self-control, and we should seek to have that power. Not to be master of our own life is to be pitiably weak. We should learn to control our feelings, our emotions, our appetities, our passions, our desires, our temper, our speech. He that ruleth his own spirit is the greatest of conquerors, greater than he that captureth a city. No doubt perfect self-mastery has much to do with keeping the heart quiet in danger, calm and undisturbed in sudden trial. But this is not the real secret of peace. Our self-control reaches but a little way. One may have it and remain unmoved in the face of the most disturbing experiences, and yet not have the peace of God. Someone asks a question and then answers it. Here is the question:

"How shall I quiet my heart? How shall I keep still?
How shall I hush its tremulous start at tidings of good or ill?
How shall I gather and hold contentment and peace and rest,
Wrapping their sweetness, fold on fold, over my troubled breast?"
—James R. Miller.

At Esopus.

By invitation of Hon. Josephus Daniels, of the News and Observer, I joined the editors last Thursday on a visit to Judge Parker, the Democratic nominee for President of the United States, the highest position in the world.

There were editors present from almost every part of the United States; men of all ages and sizes, intellectually as well as otherwise.

I was delighted to meet the North Carolina delegation—R. T. Gray, of Raleigh, who was on the Advocate staff thirty years ago; Mr. Webster, of Webster's Weekly, and Hon. H. A. London, of the Legislature of 1902. These, and many more, of whom North Carolina has a just right to be proud.

It delights my heart to see pure, godly men leading in political matters. The time was—not long ago—when drunkenness and profanity was common in North Carolina politicians, but thank God to-day that sort is not wanted, and we find Senators Simmons and Overman side by side with the preachers in the cause of prohibition.

What a change!

Of course I saw and heard Judge Parker. He is very handsome. I never saw a handsomer man; and if he is not a good man, I'm no mind-reader, and that you know is my profession.

His voice was as beautiful and musical as his face; his neighbors love him and delight to do him honor. When I was introduced to him, I said: "Judge, I'm a Methodist preacher from North Carolina; we don't pray out of a book, but after February 4th, next, when you pray for the President of the United States, etc., we Methodist of the South will say, amen." "Good, good, good," said the Judge, with his face shining like the happy man that he is.

When I was introduced to his wife, I repeated to her what I had told the Judge. Laughingly, she said: "I think the amen belongs to the Methodists."

Joe Daniels was lionized by the biggest men in editorial work in the United States, and he was all smiles. I could not but help to offer a prayer for his good old Methodist mother who, by faith and prayer, raised three little orphan boys and placed them all among the first men of the "Old North State."

"He that worketh with wise men shall be wise."

Would that all our boys and young men could see this truth.

Odds and Ends.

On his hands—"I noticed that you were hoeing your garden yesterday. What were you raising?"

"Blisters, mostly."—Exchange.

* * *

She (at the musicale): "That piece she is playing is very difficult."

He (bored): "I wish it was impossible."—Boston Herald.

* * *

Noice: "I won't take that horse!"

Stableman: "Why not?"

Noice: "He hasn't any name to hang on by."—Eliegende Blatter.

* * *

Singleton: "How did you come to fall in love with your wife?"

Littleton: "I married her for her money, and afterward discovered that she possessed twice as much as she claimed to have."—Puck.

* * *

Dawkins: "And was it very hot in India?"

Jawkins: "Hot! Simply melting. Why, one of our fellows stayed out too long in the sun one day, and had to be labled back to his bungalow."—Washington Mirror.

* * *

Taking Down a Bachelor.—Joseph Jefferson believes in early marriages. At Yale recently, he advised a group of juniors to marry just as soon as they could afford it. Then he went on:

"I abominate bachelors. The older they grow, the more conceited they grow. I took one down a peg, though, the other day.

"He was talking about this woman he had known and that woman he had known, and all these women, it seemed, had married.

"'Why, you,' I said, 'are in danger of getting left. Why don't you, too, get married, before it is too late?'

"'Oh, said the bachelor, with a chuckle, 'there are still plenty of good fish in the sea.'

"'But the bait,' said I—'isn't there danger of the bait becoming stale?'"—Selected.

The Field

Sunday-School Missionary Society.

The spirit of missions is still young among us. Five of our young people are in school now preparing for work in the foreign fields. Our Sunday-school Missionary Societies are active, enthusiastic, progressive. Last Sunday was the regular monthly meeting of the Brown's Chapel Society. Programme: Special prayer, missionary songs, a short talk from the pastor, and "Nearer My God to Thee," pantomimed by Miss Hattie Bradshaw from Alamance Circuit. I have never seen a congregation more impressed, as they listened, or rather watched, in breathless silence this talented, though deaf and dumb young woman. She seemed to enter fully into the spirit of the occasion and to be truly glad to take some part in the glorious work committed to us. She was indeed an inspiration to us.

After the calling of the roll and the payment of dues, which amounted to $5.77, on motion of Theo. H. Perry, the roll was recalled and a large number pledged themselves to pay just double per month what they have been paying.

This Society is in charge of Bro. Marvin Lindsay and an aggressive corps of officers.

I am convinced that if faithfully used the Sunday-school Missionary Society will solve the problem of a deficit in our mission funds, and will develop a missionary conscience that will save us from having to resort to questionable methods of getting missionary money.

JAS. H. FRIZELLE.

Statement of W. F. M. S., Second Quarter-June-September-1904.

Dues—
Auxiliaries	$476.18
Bright Jewels	125.61
Total		$601.79
Pledge—
Auxiliaries	74.37
Thank Offerings	36.02
Buds and Blossoms	2.25
Mite Boxes	2.04
Life Members	3.00
Bright Jewels	82.61
Total		200.29
Scholarships		25.00
Remitted Mrs. McTyeire		827.08
Missionary Candiate Fund—
Balance forward	86.46
Current Quarter	35.31
Total	121.77
Remitted Miss Lamb	75.00
Balance on Hand		46.77
Conference Expense Fund—
Balance Overdrawn	1.37
Current Quarter	60.13
	58.76
Expense for Quarter	53.05
Balance on Hand		5.71
Balance in Bank		52.48

MRS. B. B. ADAMS, Treas.
Four Oaks, N. C., September 20, 1904.

The Cyclone.

On Wednesday morning, just after 6 o'clock on the 4th inst., we were aroused to find ourselves in the track of a cyclone. After a moment's excitement we were able to take an inventory of the damages. The first thing calling attention was our new church, completely wrecked, two tenant houses were destroyed, one of them occupied; a darky's house next to the parsonage was taken from the blocks and very badly damaged; also the colored church was completely demolished and quite a good many out-houses were destroyed. The main track was not more than one hundred and fifty yards wide, but it destroyed nearly all the timber as well as the crops in its track.

We are hurt worst over our church, which was new. We have been using it just about a year. We will have a struggle to rebuild, as we had already strained every effort to put it here, but it must be rebuilt.

Perhaps the strangest thing was the parsonage escaped without injury other than the stove chimney was blown off, as it was in line with the church, and only about forty yards from the church. Why it was not damaged, we are not able to see. No one was hurt, of which we were very thankful.

We are hoping good things from Newton Grove Circuit this year.

Yours fraternally,
R. A. BRUTON.

Newton Grove, N. C., Sept. 23, 1904.

"The Mothers are with You."

An intelligent mother writes to me: "I felt so grateful for what you wrote on the subject of tobacco. The habit is so disgustingly filthy that I simply cannot understand its use by our preachers. Can a man, who cannot give up an unclean habit, be an example for our children? I want to teach my four children due reverence for the ministry. I must do this. I must also teach them not to defile their bodies. Now just see in what dilemma a Christian mother is placed. So continue to urge cleanliness. The mothers are with you." A. D. BETTS.

John Wesley's Silver Plate.

The effects of John Wesley's high thinking are still evident, but his plain living is more likely to be lost sight of. He gave liberally to the needy, and often denied himself that he might assist some poor invalid.

In 1776 the Government issued the following circular to John Wesley:

"Reverend Sir:—As the Commissioners cannot doubt that you have plate for which you have hitherto neglected to make an entry, they have directed me to send you a copy of the Lords' Order, and to inform you that they expect that you will forwith mark the entry of all your plate, such entry to bear date from the commencement of the plate duty, or from such time as you have served, used, had, or kept any quantity of silver plate chargeable by the Act of Parliament, as in default thereof the Board will be obliged to signify your refusal to their lordships.

"N. B.—An immediate answer is desired."

"Sir:—I have two silver spoons at London, and two at Bristol; this is all the plate which I have at present, and I shall not buy any more while so many around me want bread.

"I am, sir, your most humble servant,
"JOHN WESLEY."

Gold Dust.

The men and women that are lifting the world upward and onward are those who encourage more than criticise.—Elizabeth Harrison.

* * *

"Good and reserved natures should remember that though not infrequently flowers may be found beneath the snow, it is chilly work to dig for them, and few care to take the trouble."

* * *

"It is better to endure all the frowns and anger of the greatest on earth, than to have an uneasy conscience within our breast. Oh, let the bird in the soul be always kept singing whatsoever one may suffer."

* * *

The years
Have taught some sweet, some bitter lessons, none
Wiser than this, to spend in all things else,
But of old friends to be most miserly.
—Lowell.

* * *

I look upon that man as happy, who, when there is a question of success, looks into his work for a reply; not into the market, not into opinion, not into patronage. Work is victory. You want but one verdict; if you have your own, you are secure of the rest!—Emerson.

* * *

I ought not to pronounce judgment on a fellow creature until I know all that enters into his life; until I can measure all the forces of temptation and resistance; until I can give full weight of all the facts in the case. In other words, I am never in a position to judge another.—Hamilton W. Mabie.

* * *

"Talk happiness; the world is sad enough
Without your woes. No path is wholly rough;
Look for the places that are smooth and clear,
And speak of these to rest the weary ear
Of earth, so hurt by one continuous strain
Of human disontent and grief and pain."

* * *

You will find it less easy to uproot faults than to choke them by gaining virtues. Do not think of your faults, still less of others' faults. In every person who comes near you look for what is good and strong; honor that; rejoice in it; and as you can, try to imitate it, and your faults will drop off like dead leaves, when their time comes.—Ruskin.

* * *

To live in love is to live an everlasting youth. Whoever enters old age by this royal road will find the last of life to be very best of life. Instead of finding himself descending the hills of life, he will find it up-hill all the way, into clearer air. There the vision reaches further; here the sunsets are more golden and the twilight lasts longer.—Mrs. Mary A. Livermore.

* * *

To hold one's self in readiness for opportunity, to keep the serene, confident, hopeful and joyful energy of mind, is to magnetize it and draw privileges and power toward one. The concern is not whether opportunity will present itself, but as to whether we will be ready for the opportunity. It comes not to doubt and denial and disbelief. It comes to sunny expectation, eager purpose and to noble and generous aspiration.—Lilian Whiting.

* * *

This question then is ours—are we doing our part in the growth of the race? In the current of life are we moving forward? Do our years mark milestones in humanity's struggle towards perfection? Is the God within us so much more unrolled, when our development has reached its highest point? Can we transmit to our children a better heritage of brain and soul than our fathers left to us? Has the race through us gained some little in the direction of the law of love? If we have done our part in this struggle our lives have not been in vain.—David Starr Jordan.

* * *

So live that your afterself—the man you ought to be—may in his time be possible and actual. Far away in the twenties, the thirties of the twentieth century, he is waiting his turn. His body, his brain, his soul are in your boyish hands. He cannot help himself. What will you leave for him? Will it be a brain unspoiled by lust or dissipation, a mind trained to think and act, a nervous system true as a dial in its response to the truth about you? Will you, boy of the twentieth century, let him come as a man among men in his time, or will you throw away his inheritance before he has had the chance to touch it? Will you let him come, taking your place, gaining through your experience, hallowed through your joys, building on them his own, or will you fling his hope away, decreeing, wanton-like, that the man you might have been shall never be?—David Starr Jordan, in "Call of the Twentieth Century."

The President of Greensboro Female College requests that all students reach the College on the evening of October 4th, as it will require that time to place the furniture in the building after it is turned over this week by the contractor.

The Insurance Press has looked into the causes why men default. In the South, according to the Insurance Press, card playing does the most harm.

The Family

Bret Harte's Last Poem.

In Harper's for October, Bret Harte's last poem, found after his death, is printed for the first time. It was written at the time of the death of Queen Victoria. The poem is reprinted in full.

"When your men bowed heads together
With hushed lips,
And the globe swung out with gladness
To eclipse.

When your drums from the equator
To the pole
Carried round it an unending
Funeral roll;

When your capitals from Norway
To the Cape
Through their streets and from their houses
Trailed their crape.
Still the sun awoke to gladness
As of old,
And the stars their midnight beauty
Still unrolled;

For the glory born of goodness
Never dies.
And its flag is not half-masted
In the skies."

Self-Dependence.

Weary of myself and sick of asking
What I am, and what I ought to be,
At this vessel's prow I stand, which bears me
Forwards, forwards, o'er the starlit sea.

And a look of passionate desire
O'er the sea and to the stars I send:
"Ye who from my childhood up have calm'd me
Calm me, ah, compose me to the end!

Ah, once more," I cried, "ye stars, ye waters,
On my heart mighty charm renew:
Still, still, let me, as I gaze upon you,
Feel my soul becoming vast like you!"

From the intense, clear, star-sown vault of heaven,
Over the lit sea's unquiet way,
In the rustling night-air came the answer:
"Wouldst thou BE as these are? LIVE as they.

Unaffrighted by the silence round them,
Undistracted by the sights they see,
These demand not that the things without them
Yield them love, amusement, sympathy.

And with joy the stars perform their shining,
And the sea its long moon-silver'd roll;
For self-poised they live, nor pine with noting
All the fever of some differing soul.

Bounded by themselves, and unregardful
In what state God's other works may be,
In their own tasks all their powers pouring,
These attain the mighty life you see."

O air-born voice! long since, severely clear,
A cry like thine in mine heart I hear:
"Resolve to be thyself; and know that he Who finds himself loses his misery!"
—Matthew Arnold.

A Noblewoman's Wandering Boy.

At the recent Bible Conference at Winona Lake, Indiana, there were present a considerable group of rescue mission workers from the large cities of the country. Among the number was Rev. W. M. Bruce, Superintendent of the Hope Rescue Mission, of Louisville, Ky. I was introduced to Mr. Bruce by a mutual friend on one of the shady walks at Winona, and as an illustration of the wonderful and beautiful conversions which occur constantly at rescue missions, he related the following life story:

I have charge of Hope Rescue Mission of Louisville, Ky. Our mission combines the features of a good many other places, yet it is different from any other. We take a man, no matter what his antecedents have been, and if he evinces a desire to become a Christian, we apply to him through his physical necessities, following Christ's suggestion:

"For I was a hungered, and ye gave me meat; I was thirsty, and ye gave me drink; I was a stranger, and ye took me in; Naked and ye clothed me: I was sick and ye visited me: I was in prison, and ye came unto me."

Thus we lead him to embrace Christianity and start him in the world again as a self-supporting member of society. In winter each Saturday night we give a free supper and the chapel is crowded with homeless, hungry men. We feed first, then pour out the Gospel message. There have been over 2,000 tramps, bums, and outcasts in the last six years, whose trend of life has been changed from sin to righteousness.

It was a cold, stormy night in November when a man, very poorly clad, and bearing every sign of dissipation, came in, but there was something about him that indicated his superiority to the ordinary tramp. He appeared to have had no food for a long time, and after the sermon I went and spoke to him and asked him if he did not desire to become a Christian. His reply at the time was, "That is impossible for me." I pleaded with him for a while, but I could make no further impression. I was strongly drawn to him and we took it upon our hearts to pray for him daily, Mrs. Bruce and I, especially. I hunted him up and found that he was employed to clean out the spittoons, scrub the floors and prepare the free lunch in one of the lowest dives in Louisville, where the depraved negroes and white men consorted together. I also ascertained that he was a man of excellent education. He was a graduate of one of the leading universities of Germany. He spoke fluently seven languages.

I met him frequently, but said little about Christianity for some time, as I came to the conclusion that I must first reach him by personal friendship. I told him whenever he needed a friend or a home either temporary or permanent I would be pleased to furnish it, for I could see that he was fast losing his health. I often spoke to him of the necessity of making preparation to meet his end.

It was about six or eight months after my first interview that he came to the mission one morning and told me that he had been thinking very deeply about Christianity. I told him that was not strange for he had been the subject of our earnest prayers and that doubtless someone else was praying for him also. That seemed to touch him and I expected then he would reveal something of his antecedents, but he did not do so. He did, however, kneel with me in the office that morning and prayed God for pardon. When he arose he said he believed God had forgiven his sins and he would take Jesus now as a Saviour. He entered our mission home and remained with us two or three weeks. His health was failing very rapidly and by my advice he went to the hospital. While there Mrs. Bruce and I visited him every day, and his testimony as to his salvation grew brighter day by day. He often would say, "How good God is to forgive my sins. I've got a Friend now in whom I can trust." I gave him a Testament with large print and he would ask me to mark or suggest passages for him to read. When Mrs. Bruce visited him he would have her read and always wanted us to pray with him daily. He said he was also praying for other men whom he knew were living in sin and when they visited him in the hospital he pleaded with them to forsake their evil ways. I know two men that I believe were converted through his testimonies in the hospital

He grew rapidly weaker and the doctors told me he had not long to live. I felt it my duty to tell him, yet I shrank from the task. But I sat down and said, "Fred, the doctors tell me you are a very sick man." "I know it," he replied. "They say there is no certainty of your getting well and it may not be long before you leave us." I asked him to tell me where his relatives were, and who they were, that I might write to them. He then told of an uncle, a wealthy merchant of Baltimore, and of his cousins there, and said, "Find out whether mother is still alive or not." He told who she was and disclosed the fact that she was a titled lady in Bremen, Germany, and that he was an only son, entitled to the privileges of the nobility.

I wrote his cousins, against whom he had sinned again and again, that he had become a Christian man. They didn't wait for the mail, but wired money to give him every luxury in the hospital, and to bury him should he die.

Mrs. Bruce spoke also of writing to his mother. He started to write her of his conversion and also of his nearness to death. He wrote one and one-half pages and Mrs. Bruce completed the letter at his dictation. Then he prayed that he might live till he heard from her. Two days before he died he said he wished his people would forgive him, and I wrote them and asked them to send a message of forgiveness, if they felt so inclined. He died, however, before the letter was received in reply, and we buried him from the mission. The room was filled with denizens of the red-light district. Rev. W. W. Hamilton, of the McFerran Memorial Baptist Church, preached the funeral sermon. Just as he was about to commence the sermon a telegraph boy entered the mission with a telegram for me. I opened and read. It said, "Ease the sufferer's mind. All is forgiven. Love from myself," and then followed the names of all of a large family.

About a week after his death a letter from his mother came and she expressed great joy at knowledge of his conversion and said she had been praying for him ever since he was born. The letter was full of beautiful language, expressing how she had sought him all over the world and had never ceased to pray for his salvation.

We return to his mother the Testament he had used in the hospital and a lock of his hair and the rosebud in the buttonhole of the shroud.

After several letters had passed between Mrs. Bruce and herself, she wrote that she had purchased a picture in Berlin which she was sending and hoped it would find a place in our sitting-room. On Easter morning it came. The subject was, "The Resurrection." Under the picture in German, "He whom thou seekest is not here; he is risen." The idea was that she had been seeking her boy and though she could not find him in this world she would find him in the world above.—Ram's Horn.

A Good Pledge.

1. I will speak no unkind or harsh word of anyone.

2. I will repeat no unkind remarks I hear of anyone and discourage others as much as possible from saying unkind things.

3. I will judge my neighbor leniently, remembering that my own faults are probably far greater.

4. I will never say one thing to others and yet think quite differently; this is hypocrisy.

5. I will make no injurious remarks on the failings of others, remembering these words: "Consider thyself, lest thou also be tempted."

6. I will put the best construction on the motives and actions of all my neighbors.

7. I will act unselfishly, peaceably, and forgivingly, obeying my Master's command, "Love one another."—Exchange.

Let us do our duty in our shop or our kitchen, the market, the street, the office, the school, the home, just as faithfully as if we stood in the front rank of some great battle and we knew that victory for mankind depended on our bravery, strength and skill. When we do that, the humblest of us will be serving in that great army which achieves the welfare of the world.—Theodore Parker.

"As I walked by myself
I talked with myself,
And myself said this unto me:
Make friends with thyself,
Be true to thyself,
And thyself thy good angels shall be."

Our Boys and Girls

The Lost Lamb.

Storm upon the mountain,
Night upon its throne!
And the little snow-white lamb,
Left alone, alone!
Storm upon the mountain,
Rainy torrents beating,
And the little snow-white lamb,
Bleating, ever bleating!

Down the glen the shepherd
Drives his flock afar;
Through the murky mist and cloud,
Shines no beacon star.
Fast he hurries onward,
Never hears the moan
Of the pretty snow-white lamb,
Left alone, alone!

At the shepherd's doorway
Stands his little son;
Sees the sheep come trooping home,
Counts them one by one;
Counts them full and fairly—
Trace he findeth none
Of the little snow-white lamb,
Left alone, alone!

Up the glen he races,
Breasts the bitter wind,
Scours across the plain and leaves
Wood and wold behind;—
Storm upon the mountain,
Night upon its throne,—
There he finds the little lamb,
Left alone, alone!

Struggling, panting, sobbing,
Kneeling on the ground,
Round the pretty creature's neck
Both his arms are wound;
Soon within his bosom,
All its bleatings done,
Home he bears the little lamb,
Left alone, alone!

Oh! the happy faces,
By the shepherd's fire!
High without the tempest roars,
But the laugh rings higher.
Young and old together
Make that joy their own—
In their midst the little lamb,
Left alone, alone!

—Thomas Westwood.

Between Two Trains.

"It won't be possible, will it mother?" Minna asked, wistfully.

"I don't see how we can manage it, my dear," Mrs. Hart replied. "Your father's salary is certainly not enough to allow us to send you to a boarding school, and the money we have earned by sewing is almost nothing."

Minna's eyes filled with tears. She walked over to the window and gazed out at the stretch of railroad lying directly before it. Ever since she could remember, Minna had lived in three little rooms adjoining the station-house at Grosvenor, fifteen miles out of Topeka, on a great western railroad. Her father was station master, telegraph operator and baggage-master in one; for Grosvenor was an unimportant town and few trains stopped there.

Minna knew as much about the trains which passed and repassed her home as did her father. When a very small child she had learned the exact minute that each was due, and would run out on the platform to wave her hand.

From the very beginning she grew to be so fearless about the trains that her parents were often worried for her safety. Once, when only eight years old, she had darted across the track in front of an eastbound express, and had been almost struck by another train coming in the opposite direction. Her mother's face was pale as her father ran forward and lifted her out of danger. Later she said:

"If ever you are caught between two trains, Minna, lie flat down between them. The wheels of a car are narrower than the body, and if you hold your skirts tightly, so that they cannot catch in the wheels, no harm can come to you."

A love of adventure lighted up Minna's eyes. "Wouldn't it be fun," she exclaimed, "to lie there on purpose and have those two great things rushing and thundering over you!"

But her parents, in alarm, had made her promise never to attempt such a thing.

Now that Minna was fourteen, she was as fearless as ever; but she had lost her interest in the trains, and had grown very fond of reading and study. Last year she had finished the course at the only school in Grosvenor, and this summer she and her mother had taken in sewing, in the hope of earning enough money to send her to a certain boarding school in Topeka.

"But it's no use," the girl said, as she turned from the window. "As you say, mother, our sewing will not bring enough for a year at boarding school."

Just then Mr. Hart came in. "Well, now," he said, lightly, as if to cheer his daughter, "the president of the road is to be here to-morrow. Perhaps, if Minna asks him, he will give me a better position with a fine, large salary."

"Oh, papa, do you really think he might?" cried Minna, catching at the straw of hope with an eagerness which made Mr. Hart immediately regret his words.

"Papa, is only teasing, dear," her mother said. Then, with interest in her voice, "Why is the president coming, Jack?"

"We are going to side-track his private car while the 4.20 goes by," Mr. Hart explained. "He wants to stop at Green Glen, and it's most convenient to let the express pass him here."

"The Missouri limited passes at the same time," said Minna.

"Yes, but that's on the other track," said her father, "so it doesn't bother us. They'll have to wait here about twenty minutes," he added.

"Perhaps the president will take us through his cars," said Minna, hopefully. It had been one of the dreams of her life to see the inside of the president's "traveling palace."

"Well, I think he ought to, when you're one of his station masters," she protested, as her parents laughed again.

Her father put his arms about her, and bent to kiss her cheek. "You think your father should be a person of some importance to the president of the road, even if he is only the station-master of a hole-in-the ground like Grosvenor, don't you, little girl?" he asked. "I shouldn't wonder if Patton didn't come out of his car at all," he continued.

In this Minna's father was mistaken. No sooner had the president's private train drawn up on the side-tracks by the coal yard, the next day, than the whole family alighted for the fresh air. President Patton was a tall, fine-looking man. Minna gazed at him with awe, even after she had seen him shake hands with her father, and stand talking with him in the friendliest manner possible.

But Minna fell in love at once with President Patton's beautiful young wife and her two children, whom no one could have seen without liking. The oldest was a sweet-faced girl of ten; and her brother was a cute little fellow not over three years of age. He was dressed in white piqué kilts, and a broad-brimmed straw hat, and had golden hair which curled up all around his face. Minna stood beside her mother at the station door and watched the two children racing up and down the platform on the other side of the track with longing eyes.

After a few minutes Mr. and Mrs. Patton began to walk towards the village with Minna's father. Their daughter stopped playing with her brother and ran after them, calling to him to follow. Minna gazed after the party, wondering to see how fondly the little girl clung to the beautiful lady's arm. Evidently she stood no more in awe of her than Minna did of her own mother. No one noticed that the baby boy had stayed behind.

All too soon for Minna, the shrill whistle of the 4.30, beyond the bend, announced the ending of the president's visit. In the opposite direction the Missouri Limited could be seen coming over a straight stretch of track, and Minna watched the president's party turn to come back, just as the engine of the 4.30 rounded the curve.

The next instant Mrs. Patton uttered a shriek, and Minna saw the president and her father run wildly toward the railroad. Her eyes followed instantly along the gleaming rails. Running gleefully along the space between the two tracks, and all unconscious of his danger, was the baby boy.

At his mother's cry, the child raised his head and saw the train, then almost upon him. He turned to run across the other track, down which the Missouri Limited was thundering. In another section the slight form of the girl had sprung across the track. Before the baby could set foot on the first rail, Minna's arm caught him from behind and pulled him back, and own to the ground.

There was a scorching breath from the engines, as the daylight seemed suddenly cut off from the prostrate children; then a storm of wind and dust and cinders. Terrified, the baby screamed and struggled, but the slender arms held him close. For herself, Minna was not frightened. It never occurred to her that she was doing anything brave.

All this took but a moment. The deafening roar ceased as suddenly as it had begun; the daylight burst upon them; the president of the road was raising Minna with one strong arm and clasping his son in the other.

The great man's face was pale, and his hands trembled; but Minna did not notice this. Her only thought was of the little boy. "He is not hurt, she said, eagerly. "He only screamed from fright."

"I tought I was being runned over," explained the little fellow, now half smothered with kisses in his mother's arms.

And suddenly Minna found that her father was holding her very close to the coat of his blue uniform, and that two big tears were rolling down his cheeks.

"Oh, oh, oh!" she cried. "Were you frightened for me? Why, there was no danger!" Then she left her father's arms and flew across the track to her mother, who sunk upon a bench, weeping.

By this time a crowd from the village had been attracted to the spot. The story was being told and retold. Men were pressing about Minna's father and the president, shaking hands. Women were elbowing and craning for a peep at the little golden-haired hero of the hour, who nestled shyly from them in his mother's arms.

Then the people came trooping across to where Minna and her mother sat. She was confused and half angry. They made such a fuss about nothing. She was relieved when, all at once, the crowd broke and moved back; but her relief was short lived; for there was the president gazing down at them.

Minna gave him one imploring look. Surely, he would not talk about heroism and undying gratitude, and make her feel foolish, as the rest were doing.

And the president did not. He simply took Mrs. Hart's hand in a hearty grasp that spoke volumes, and said: "I want to become acquainted with your little daughter. Mayn't we have her for a day or so?" Then he turned to Minna. "Wouldn't you like a trip to Topeka?" he said.

Not a detail of that trip in the palace car, or of the days spent in the president's wonderful home in Topeka. It was all like one happy dream from the moment the beautiful lady took her in her arms and kissed her, to the time when she found herself sitting beside the president while waiting for the train that would take her home, and telling him about her ambitions for an education.

"But I know now that it will be impossible for me to go to boarding school," she said.

"Oh, I'm not sure about that," said Mr. Patton. "I'm pretty good at guessing future events, and I feel sure, somehow, that your parents will be able to send you to boarding school this year. And, later, when you have passed through college, Mrs. Patton and I will be very proud of you, and we'll come and see you get your diploma."

And everything turned out as the president of the road had predicted. —Youth.

For Asthma use CHENEY'S EXPECTORANT.

Music.

Cannot be exclusive to any nationality. No matter whether the ear belongs to an American, German, Frenchman, Spaniard, Russian, Japanese, Chinaman, etc., etc., music has the same charm, and with nearly all nations the piano is the universal instrument used. There is an individuality about the Stieff piano that makes it a favorite with all who hear it, no matter what language the hearer uses.

Sometimes our competitors use bad language about our queenly pianos because we sell direct, but that should have no bearing if if you wish an artistic piano at a reasonable price.

Write for book of suggestions.

Chas. M. Stieff, Southern warerooms, 211–213 N. Tryon St., Charlotte, N. C.

C. H. Wilmoth, Mgr.

CONVERSE COLLEGE
AND MUSIC CONSERVATORY
A HIGH GRADE COLLEGE FOR WOMEN
SPARTANBURG, S. C.

Founded in 1889. Plant worth $250,000.00. Splendid location, delightful climate; 55-acre grounds; 6 buildings; steam heat; electric lights; perfect sanitary equipment; rooms single, double or ensuite. Thorough college and conservatory courses; 14 officers, 22 teachers; $7,000.00 pipe organ; 34 practice rooms; Music Festival every spring.

● For handsome catalogue and full information, address

ROBT. P. PELL, Litt. D., Prest.

GO TO ST. LOUIS VIA C. & O. ROUTE.

Now is the time to see the great World's Fair at St. Louis, Mo. Delightful weather and the Exposition complete in all it's beauty. An opportunity not to be missed and never to be forgotten.

See that your tickets read via the C. & O. and Big Four Railways. Shortest, quickest and best route, with fast vestibuled train service.

Womans Foreign Missionary Society

Please send all communications for this Department to Mrs. B. F. Dixon, Raleigh, N. C.

Officers of the W. F. M. S. of the N. C. Conference, June, 1903-'04.

President—Mrs. Lucy A. Cunninggim, Greensboro, N. C.
Vice-President—Mrs. R. A. Willis, Littleton, N. C.
Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. F. D. Swindell, Goldsboro, N. C.
Recording Secretary—Miss Blanche Fentress, Wilmington, N. C.
Treasurer—Mrs. B. B. Adams, Four Oaks, N. C.
Superintendent and Treasurer Juvenile Work—Mrs. L. M. Hendren, New Berne, N. C.

A Valued Friend.

The visit of Mrs. M. L. Morris to Raleigh gives her friends great pleasure. Her sisters in the mission ary work, especially, enjoy her presence in their meetings.

A "Note" from the "Desk."

In our Woman's Advocate for September we find the following: "Recent news from our foreign stations left all well and the work prospering. The June remittances enabled our Treasurer to meet the appropriations for the July quarter. The missionaries to go to China will sail the last of August."

Appeal for News.

Only one report from a District Secretary this week, and none from the Auxiliary officers.

There are about one hundred and fifty—perhaps more—auxiliaries in the North Carolina Conference Society, and this column in the Christian Advocate is allowed them for the benefit of their work—for an interchange of thought and plans in the prosecution of the various departments of our work, and for an expose of the amount and quality of work accomplished in the auxiliaries.

There can be no doubt that a little attention given to the matter of sending items of news to this column, in the monthly meetings, would bring about the result hoped for in its use; and would give, each week, something interesting for our readers.

May we not hope that this appeal for news of our work will fall into "good ground," and "bring forth fruit and hundred fold"?

Second Quarterly Report.

Our thanks are due Mrs. R. H. Whitaker, our Secretary of the Raleigh District, for remembering our column, and sending in a short report of the work done during the past quarter.

We hope the other District Secretaries will follow her example—we want to hear from every one, that a correct status of our progress may be ascertained.

"There are twenty-one Societies in the Woman's Foreign Missionary work, in the Raleigh District, eight of which are Bright Jewel Bands.

Only four of the Bands sent in reports for the quarter; and two of the adult societies failed to send in theirs. I guess the Lady Managers of the Bands did not return from their summer outing in time to send reports.

We will have to work all the harder during the next two quarters, to make up for lost time, and to come up to our last year's report.

The amount reported this quarter is $140.59.

The District Meeting for the Raleigh District will be held in Louisburg—the date will be given in our column later.

Each Auxiliary—adult, young people and juvenile—must elect a delegate, and insist on attendance. I hope every Society will be represented, and have a good report. If so, we will have a good meeting, and a good time.

MRS. R. H. WHITAKER,
District Secretary.

District Meetings.

While it is known that the District Secretary is expected to arrange for and conduct the District Meeting, it must be remembered that the Auxiliaries have a share in the responsibility for the success or failure of the meeting. The Secretary is almost completely handicapped when the auxiliaries do not work in harmony with her plans—do not encourage her with their enthusiasm for success—do not open their doors to her for the entertainment of the meeting.

How often, in our Annual Meetings, when this subject is under discussion, do we hear some District Secretary say: "I haven't held a meeting this year—there has been no invitation from any of the auxiliaries, and I find it difficult to decide on a suitable place for holding the meeting."

What a relief and pleasure it is to the Secretary when one of her Auxiliaries, without any suggestion, lets her know that the members will be glad—are anxious—for the District Meeting to be held with them.

How many auxiliaries of this kind are in our Conference Society?

"May their number increase"!

ONLY ONE PRESCRIPTION.

Dr. M. S. Fielder writes: "I know Tetterine to be a radical cure for tetter, salt rheum, eczema and all kindred diseases of the skin and scalp. I never prescribe anything else in all skin troubles." The explanation of Dr. Fielder's policy is, that he never fails to cure such diseases when he uses Tetterine.

50 cents a box at druggists or by mail from J. T. Shuptrine, Savvannah, Ga.

Gastonia, N. C., July 1, 1901.

Last year I was taken with muscular rheumatism in my right arm and shoulder. I could not use it at all without great pain. After suffering several weeks, hoping all the time it would get well, I concluded to try Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy, as so many of my friends urged me to do so. I bought half dozen bottles, commenced to improve on the second, and the six bottles cured me completely, and I have never been troubled with it since. I have the utmost faith in Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy. MRS. JNO. F. LOVE.

..Dobbin & Ferrall..
(AT TUCKER'S STORE)
Raleigh, N. C.

BRIDAL OUTFITS.

We are fully prepared to furnish a complete Trousseau. Every detail absolutely correct. No better materials can be furnished anywhere, and our dress makers are the best in the world—a broad statement but fully true. It is far better to have the customers come to our store making the trip to Raleigh. Write us if you cannot come in person. You will be given perfect attention. . . . . .

Our Prices are Lower Than Other Stores.

DOBBIN & FERRALL
123 and 125 Fayetteville St.

Woman's Home Mission Society

Please send all communications for this Department to Mrs. R. O. Burton, Raleigh, N. C.

Officers of W. H. M. S. of the N. C. Conference.

President—Mrs. J. E. Underwood, Elizabeth City.
First Vice-President—Mrs. V. Royster, Raleigh.
Second Vice-President—Mrs. K. P. Black, Littleton.
Third Vice-President—Mrs. J. A. Spiers, Selma.
Recording Secretary—Mrs. C. P. Jerome, West Durham.
Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. S. H. Scott, New Bern.
Treasurer—Mrs. E. L. Prince, Wilmington.
Superintendent of Supplies—Mrs. Ivan Proctor, Raleigh.
Superintendent of Literature and Press Work—Mrs. R. O. Burton.

Winston Auxiliary.

Mrs. Maggie Matthews, President.
Mrs. H. B. Knox, Recording Secretary.
Mrs. B. G. Williams, Corresponding Secretary.
Miss Mary Faison, Treasurer.

Manteo Auxiliary.

Miss Ruth Evans, President.
Miss Maria Midgett, Third Vice-President.
Miss Dollie Ward, Recording Secretary.
Miss Hattie Taylor, Corresponding Secretary.
Miss Roberta Dickens, Treasurer.

Doubly Happy.

It is a rare privilege to publish two new auxiliaries simultaneously, and we welcome these sisters with joy. May their efforts in the great cause of Missions be richly blessed and may we ere long claim Home Mission workers in every community in our beloved State, from Manteo to Murphy.

District Meeting.

A meeting of the Woman's Home Mission Society of Warrenton District will be held in Weldon, N. C., October 7-10, inclusive. Rev. L. L. Nash, D. D., will preach on Sunday at 11 o'clock. Each auxiliary on the District is urged to send a delegate, and all visitors will be welcomed. All who are interested and will come, send names to Mrs. C. J. Owens, Weldon, N. C.

The place and the District are presages of a successful meeting, for the hospitality of Weldon is proverbial, and the earnest and intelligent Home Mission members there, led by one of our finest Secretaries, will arrange a program both edifying and entertaining.

Glad Tidings.

Our Treasurer has sent me good news from Aberdeen. Through their pastor, Rev. G. A. Ogleshy, the generous members have contributed fifty dollars to our Brevard School—a gracious reply to our beloved Corresponding Secretary's earnest appeal, and one that rejoices our hearts. We thank these sympathetic and consecrated Christians and believe their gifts will surely be "twice blessed." We are especially glad for them to have a share in our Mountain School. Rockingham is a Banner District in Foreign Missions, and as the most successful members are usually the same in both Societies, it follows that we may hope to see a flourishing Home Mission Auxiliary there in the near future.

The Eighteenth Annual Report—All Should Read.

The 18th annual report is a very attractive publication abounding in interesting and important information. The pictures of the new deaconesses, the school buildings, rescue homes and deaconess homes add very greatly to its appearance.

We hope it will be not only circulated but read and studied by our membership.

PARSONAGES.

We quote from the report of the Parsonage Department, as homes for our preachers is a subject of universal interest:

"Through this department 150 parsonages have been aided to the amount of $13,122.96; of this number 106 were aided by the Conference Societies to the amount of $8,497.96; and 44 were given $4,625.06 by the Board.

In the North Carolina Conference parsonages were aided as follows: by the Conference Society: Bath, $45.00; Hobgood, $45.00; Aurelian Springs, $50.00; Brooklyn (Raleigh) $100.

The following were aided by the Board: Roanoke Rapids, $75.00; Comcils Station, $75.00, and Aurelian Springs, $75.00. Making a total of $165.00."

UNITED COMMENDATION.

We are sure these brethren who have been helped in their efforts to build homes for their families feel like commending the wisdom of the Board in appropriating so large a portion of the Connectional dues to parsonage building. Let the good work go on until no preacher in Southern Methodism shall have to pay rent for a home.

MRS. J. E. UNDERWOOD.

Our readers will greatly enjoy this practical and pertinent article from our gifted President.

For LaGrippe and Influenza use CHENEY'S EXPECTORANT.

IN USE FOR 20 YEARS
ELIXIR BABEK
The Quick and Sure Cure for
MALARIA, CHILLS, FEVER AND LA GRIPPE.
It is a powerful tonic and appetizer.
Will cure that tired feeling, Pains in Back, Limbs and Head. Is a purely vegetable compound, and contains NO QUININE OR NARCOTIC. Prepared by Kloczowski & Co., Washington, D. C.
Price 50cts.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S HYMNAL NO. 2

Should be considered by every Epworth League and Sunday School in which a new songbook is needed It is unquestionably the best book to use after the Young People's Hymnal (No. 1). . . . . .

SAMPLE COPY.

Round or shaped notes, 30cts. by mail $3.60 per dozen; by express or freight, $25 per 100. Words only, by mail, $1 25 per dozen; by express $9 per 100. We pay freight on orders for 100 or more copies. Address all orders to . . . . . .

Southern Methodist Book Depository,
E. B. LIPSCOMB, Sec. and Treas.,
STAUNTON, VA.

When writing advertisers, please mention this paper.

Raleigh Christian Advocate.

ORGAN OF THE
North Carolina Conference, M. E. Church, South.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY AT No. 106 W. MARTIN STREET.

THOMAS N. IVEY, - - - - - - - Editor.

Subscription Rates.—One year, $1.50; six months, 75 cents. Preachers of the North Carolina Conference who act as agents receive the paper free of charge. All other preachers, and widows of preachers, $1.00 a year.

Business.—Watch the label. It shows the date up to which the subscription has been paid. Change in label serves as a receipt. Regular receipt will be sent when requested. When the address is ordered changed, both old and new address must be given. Address all letters, and make all checks and money orders payable, to the Raleigh Advocate Co.

Manuscripts.—All matter for publication to be returned to the writer must be accompanied by proper postage. Matter for the Editor and matter for the printer must not be on the same sheet. Obituaries must not contain over 150 words, nor contain poetry. One cent a word will be charged for all obituary matter over 150 words.

Advertising.—The RALEIGH CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE is a fine advertising medium. Rates will be promptly furnished on application.

AT THE EXPOSITION.

[BY THE EDITOR.]

One very pleasant feature which differentiates the Louisiana Purchase Exposition from the Columbian Exposition of eleven years ago is the very ample assistance given by nature herself in the case of the latter in the beautification of the surroundings and provision for the comfort of the visitor. At Chicago the ground was level and unrelieved by hill or tree. The grounds of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition afford views from slopes and hilltops, and there are spots where one can almost hear in the mingled rustle of oaken boughs and twitter of birds the silvern pipes of Pan.

I was walking from the Intra-Mural Station to the Art Building when I passed one of these idyllic nooks. To my rear was the Virginia Building, a replica of Monticello. To my right, sitting solitary in his glory, was a spieler, indulging in a megaphonic chant. At my feet lay the St. Louis Plaza as fair as Fontainbleaux and a-hum with the noises of thousands of voices. To my left was a grove of ancient oaks shading a slope as green as emerald. Underneath one of the trees was one who, forgetful of the bustling life around him, was reading a book which he had probably brought from home. The book and the man seemed to say to an observant and covetous observer, "Et ambo in Arcadia."

PAINTING AND SCULPTURE.

There are four buildings devoted to fine art—one for sculpture, and the remainder for painting. The sculpture is about what was seen at Chicago. There are many and new paintings, and the buildings are always crowded. The finest piece of work I saw was in the Japan section. It was in carved ivory and represented a fisherman with a long fishing pole which was not separate from the main figure. The pole is always in vibration. The further end has a small crook which is not as large as a pin. It is difficult to tell which is the more wonderful in this exquisite piece of work, the mechanical or artistic genius.

In designating my favorite among the pictures, I may be exposing the crudeness of my taste. This fact, however, does not prevent me from telling what impressed me most. It was "The maiden in a field of poppies." The charm in this painting is the marvelous reproduction on canvas of the bars of sunlight on the girl's body. The likeness is so perfect that you can with ease imagine that you are looking at the real sunlight. This picture is in the United States section. I was very much impressed with "The Prodigal Daughter" which is in the British section.

The art displayed in the ornamentation of the buildings does no special credit to the Exposition. The figures are massive and tawdry and seem to have been made on a very cheap scale.

It is worth a trip to the Exposition to stand on the portico steps of Festival Hall and take a look through the vista which opens before you. Festival Hall is in a circular shape with a massive dome. Sweeping from either side and forming a semi-circle is the colonnade representing the States now embracing the section acquired through the Louisiana Purchase. Each wing of the stately colonnade terminates in a small circular shaped temple with a dome. You descend from each building by massive steps to a broad terrace from which you descend to a third terrace at the foot of which is a broad sheet of water stretching longitudinally to St. Louis Plaza, at the end of which is a stately monument. The lagoon is spanned by beautiful bridges. To stand on the first terrace, when the nine cascades are pouring over green and white electric jets and see the thousands upon thousands of lights which illuminate the great buildings flanking the St. Louis Plaza, while the lights on Festival Hall and the colonnades turn alternately from green to red, is a sight which the eye never tires of beholding. It is a color display which eclipses everything that I have seen at any Exposition.

LIGHTS IN GENERAL.

The St. Louis Exposition shows a wonderful advancement in electric lighting. Within the last decade there have been discovered no less than four new lights. It must be remembered that the incandescent and arc lights were the first—that is in electricity. The electric display at Chicago was a great show, but it was nothing compared to the electric display at St. Louis. The Hewitt-Cooper light is made by passing electricity through a tube of mercurized vapor. It is white in color. Photographers are beginning to discard the sky-light and are now using the Hewitt-Cooper light which enables the photographer to take pictures at night. A very familiar sight on the grounds at St. Louis is a little tent illumined at night by two long tubes of the Hewitt-Cooper light. Inside the photographer is using this light in taking pictures.

Some of the readers of the Advocate have heard of an instrument called the telautograph. It enables one to write a message in his ordinary hand at one end of the line, and the message is reproduced to the crossing of a "t" and the dotting of an "i" at the other end. I saw the wonderful working of this instrument, and am no longer a skeptic. But the telautograph is having a hard time of it. Certain corporations, whose interests are threatened by it, prevented its being placed in a prominent place at the Exposition, and it is seen by but few.

The radium display at the Exposition does not amount to much, and that, too, for a very good reason. There is very little of it. I predict that at the next great Exposition the radium display will astonish the world.

THE PHILIPPINE EXHIBIT.

From a national standpoint, one of the biggest things at the Exposition is the Philippine exhibit. It covers twenty-seven acres. But size is not a mark of the bigness. Neither is it the natural beauty of the location where are found trees, hills, lakes and bridges. To one who seeks for information, and not entertainment, the Philippine exhibit will prove a mine of wealth. It shows how a civilized nation has taken a semi-barbarous nation and converted it in a few years into people with desires and instincts, and exploits that prophesy a wonderful national advancement.

The educational story of the Filipinos is exceedingly interesting. More people in the islands speak English to-day, after three years of American rule, than spoke Spanish in the four hundred years of Spanish rule. Six years ago there were less than eight hundred schools in the islands. Now there are 2,900 schools, with over 200,000 pupils. The exhibits of the textile schools would do great credit to any civilized nation. Think of the Filipinos making a microseismograph, a delicate instrument to record the tremor of earthquakes and thus give warning of them! I saw a very fine machine gun which was made entirely by Filipino mechanics. Miss Zamora, a Filipino graduate, teaches a model school within the grounds. There are several tribes represented on the grounds—the Moros, the Igorrotes, the Negritos, and the Visayans. The Negritos are almost dwarfs and with the Igorrotes touch the lowest point in the scale of civilization.

The Filipinos make themselves at home on the Exposition grounds. I saw several in one of the art buildings, and was impressed with the fact that they alone of all the men in the building took off their hats.

If an anti-expansionist does not wish to revise his doctrine, he had better take only a cursory view of the Philippine exhibit. For if he studies the exhibit, he will inevitably reach the conclusion that the assumption by the American people of sovereignty over the Philippines was a providential step in the great march of Christian civilization.

THE PIKE.

Yes, I must say something about the Pike. There is attached to it a certain opprobrium which is not deserved. There are on the Pike a number of very poor if not immoral shows, but the majority of the attractions have nothing in them to offend the taste or the conscience. Many of the managers act as if they had a reputation to preserve. They have gone to a vast expense. Some of the buildings are marvels of art and every comfort of the patron is provided for. All the shows on the Pike require for their operation more than 6,000 persons and 1,500 horses. Water is used in some of the shows to a surprising extent. Waterfalls, cascades, and canals are in evidence.

The following are worth seeing: The Ferris wheel, carrying one 280 feet into the air and giving an enchanting view of the grounds and the city of St. Louis. When it is remembered that $100,000 is required to move and reconstruct this wheel, an idea of its mammoth proportions may be gained. A Trip to the North Pole, taking the gazer from New York to the Arctic regions and giving as fine a color display of the aurora as I have ever seen. It seems as if you see the real ocean and the real icebergs. The Galveston Flood, giving by means of electricity, water, and the cyclorama, a realistic production of the Galveston horror. "The Battle Abbey," giving realistic cycloramic views of the battles of New Orleans, Buena Vista, Gettysburg, etc. The Scenic Railway, which gives one a sensation of the most rapid motion along a winding route. "Creation," which carries one along a tortuous line on both sides of which are beautiful views, presenting many illusions, and finally showing by means of electricity, water, and moving scenes the creation of the world in six days. Cummins Indian Congress. In this you see some wonderful riding by Cossacks, different Indian tribes, and cowboys. The Temple of Mirth, full of innocent fun, made by the help of different kinds of morrors. One of the most popular entertainments on the grounds is what is known as the Anglo-Boer War. In this there is real fighting as far as men, guns, horses, and noise are concerned. Some of the participators in the real Anglo-Boer War are engaged in this show. Among them are Generals Cronje and Viljoen. A great many men and horses are engaged in the reproduction of the battles of Colenso and Pardeburg. Be sure to see the Hale Fire Fighters. This company has gone to great expense in showing real scenes in the work of firemen. Real firemen, real engines, and real horses are used. The whole exhibit is not only entertaining but instructive. Two of the world's champions are in this show. In a little over four second they run fifty yards and screw the nozzle to the hose. The horses show a marvelous training.

To those who wish to take in the Pike, and we see no reason why they should not, we heartily recommend the above-named shows.

After having studied for over ten days the St. Louis Exposition, we would say to all who can spare the time and money, Go. You will find that it is a wise investment, provided you go to learn. The exceedingly blase will doubtless turn aside with a weary air. But remember that there are thousands of things at the Exposition which they have never seen, and never will see, though they explore the crowded capitals of every civilized nation.

We do not believe that this is the last of the great Expositions. The familiar saying that Expositions are playing out is based upon a false idea. As long as the world "spins forward in its grooves of change," so long must there be occasions to measure concretely the stadia of progress. The world is richer to-day because of the Expositions of the past. The world will be richer because of the St. Louis Exposition.

Methodist Mention

STATE.

Rev. G. E. Eaves, who has been serving as assistant pastor of the Tryon Street charge, Charlotte, has been transferred to the Missouri Conference and stationed at Louisiana. He will leave for his new charge about the 26th inst.—North Carolina Chritsian Advocate.

J. T. Stanford, P. C. of Rich Square Circuit, writes: "I have just closed a very fine meeting at Lewiston. Quite a number of conversions. Seven were received into the church. I also have the names of some others who will join. Bro. B. C. Thompson preached for me twice during the meeting."

Bishop Duncan has authorized the announcement that the Western North Carolina Conference will convene in Charlotte on Thursday, November 10, instead of Wednesday, November 9, as heretofore announced. The change was made to permit preachers and delegates to vote before going to Conference.

In the awful wreck on the Southern Railroad near New Market, Tenn., on last Saturday, Mr. Melville P. Gannt, of Cleveland County, lost his life. He was a most worthy layman of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and his life was filled with good deeds. The relatives of the deceased have the deepest sympathies of the Advocate.

The Methodist meeting at Roberdel is in progress, this week, and reports therefrom are very encouraging. Brother Kilgore, the pastor, seems to be greatly loved by his people. The meeting will continue through next Sunday. The pastor has been assisted by Rev. J. N. Cole, the Presiding Elder; Rev. J. H. Hall, and J. W. Leak, of Rockingham.—Richmond Headlight.

Rev. and Mrs. J. D. Bundy desire to express publicly through the Raleigh Chritsian Advocate their heartfelt appreciation of the many warm messages of sympathy received from brothren and friends all over the State on the occasion of their recent sad bereavement. Each sympathizer is hereby assured that his or her great kindness went home to the hearts of the bereaved and will never be forgotten.

The last North Carolina Christian Advocate contained a long letter from Miss M. P. Abbott in which she explained the situation in Caldwell County which resulted in giving up her place as teacher. As we see it she is much more "sinned against than sinning." Her blunder was in allowing herself to fall into the toils of a designing sensational female reporter who distorted facts to suit her own sweet will.

Last Sunday evening a 3 o'clock the beautiful little church at Holly Springs was crowded to its utmost capacity. Rev. T. A. Smoot, of Fayetteville, preached an able and appropriate sermon dedicating for the worship of God, this house, an offering of the people of this section. Handsome communion service, silver and gold-lined was presented to the church by the Yarrell family. This is the second church that Rev. T. H. Sutton has had dedicated since he has been serving this charge.—Williamston Enterprise.

Rev. A. S. Barnes, of Clinton, who delivered a series of lectures on missions before the Epworth League of Trinity Methodist Church, returned home last Monday. Mr. Barnes is a most pleasing and able speaker, and impresses every one with his thorough earnestness and Christian charity. His lectures were all of a high order and will doubtless be of permanent benefit to the young people of the community. On last Sunday he delivered two very excellent sermons to the Methodist congregation. He will be remembered with much gratitude.—Southport Standard.

CONNECTIONAL.

The circulation of the Baltimore Methodist has passed the 5,000 mark.

Bishop Hoss and family are expected to move into the Episcopal residence in Dallas, Texas, about October 15.

Mr. William M. Key, brother of Bishop Key, died in Atlanta on the 13th and was buried in Columbus, Ga., the next day.

President Dickey, of Emory College, has secured Dr. Buckley, editor of the Christian Advocate, New York, to deliver the third series of lectures on the Quillian foundation.

Rev. P. L. Cobb, formerly of the Holston Conference, and Rev. R. E. Dickenson, of the Tennessee Conference, are co-editors of the Bulletin, published bi-monthly at Monterey, Mexico.

Dr. E. B. Craighead, who succeeds Dr. Alderman as President of Tulane University, at New Orleans, is an alumnus of Vanderbilt University. He was once a member of the faculty of Wofford College.

Rev. Dr. W. E. Vaughan, editor of the Pacific Methodist Advocate, has been devoting a month or two to traveling through Montana, Oregon, Utah, Washington, and Arizona, in the interest of this paper.

The Tennessee Conference session has been postponed from October 5th to October 19th. Bishop Duncan listened to solicitations from the good people of Gallatin, who are confronted with the cook problem.

Bishop Candler is making an appeal for $700 to buy property at Cayo Smith just inside the entrance to Santiago harbor. He says that if the M. E. Church, South, can obtain possession of this property great things can be done.

During the session of the Pacific Conference, Bishop Morrison will lay the corner-stone of our prospective handsome church at Berkeley, the seat of the University of California. It is to cost $20,000. Rev. J. C. Wooten is the pastor.

Rev. D. W. Carter writes to Bishop Candler, that the opening of the Candler College, Havana, Rev. E. E. Clements, president, is the best in the history of the institution, forty per cent increase over the opening of last year.—Wesleyan Advocate.

The report of the Committee on Temperance of the Kentucky Conference contains the following recommendation: Whereas, the use of tobacco is injurious to nerve and mind and is not a wholesome example for the young, be it respectfully requested of our ministers that they refrain from the use of the same.

Nine young women, who offer themselves as deaconess candidates, have been accepted by the committee and will enter the Searritt Bible Training School as soon as scholarships are provided, there being only five scholarships available at present. These young women come from Baltimore, Indian Mission, North Georgia, Alabama, Missouri and South Carolina Conferences.

The Texas Methodist Orphanage, located at Waco, is doing a great work. During this year one hundred and thirty children have come under his care. The school for this term has started off well. One of the fifth-grade pupils recently took the prize in a fairy-story contest given by the Inter Ocean of Chicago. The health of the inmates of the home is excellent.—Nashville Christian Advocate.

The twenty-second annual report of the Board of Church Extension for the year ending March, 31, 1904, has been distributed. During the year this Board has extended aid to 119 churches, giving them $32,090 and lending them $47,980. The Conference Boards have aided 381 churches with donations to the amount of $43,530. The collections for church extension on the assessments reached $92,192.12, an increase of $14,361.32 over the collections of any past year, but still leave a large deficiency, the assessment having been $125,000.

General Notes

Nearly four hundred new missionaries have entered China since the closing of the Boxer disturbances.

The Southern Baptist Convention has decided to expend $15,000 for the moral and religious development of the negroes.

Robert E. Peary announced in New York last week that he would make another attempt for the pole beginning next summer.

Evangelical Christianity spent last year more than $19,000,000 for Foreign Missions. Most of this, or over $13,000,000, were given by England and the United States.

By the will of the late William Weightman, of Philadelphia, his only surviving child, Mrs. Anne M. Walker, a widow, is left the entire estate, valued at $50,000,000. She thus becomes one of the wealthiest women in the world.

Last Sunday, before an immense concourse in Zion City, John Alexander Dowie, self-styled Elijah III, dressed in gorgeous robes, proclaimed himself First Apostle of Jesus Christ on earth and High Priest of the Christian Catholic Church. There is but one step more for him to take.

The Madison County grand jury investigating the recent lynching in Huntsville brought in its final report Monday night. They brought in all twenty-six indictments and recommended the impeachment of the sheriff of Madison County, the mayor and the chief of police of the city of Huntsville.

The Interparliamentary Conference, composed of representatives of fifteen parliaments of the world, held their twelfth session recently, in connection with the great World's Fair at St. Louis, Mo., and unanimously requested that a second session of the famous Hague Peace Conference may be called in order to advance the cause of universal peace through international arbitration.

We have received from Dr. Edwin B. Forebee, of the Central Hospital, Raleigh, a most interesting and valuable pamphlet, entitled "Scope, Diagnosis and Treatment of Neurasthenia." Dr. Forebee treats the subject from the standpoint of a wide-awake, scientific physician. The pamphlet is interesting reading to a layman. We feel sure that it is of great value to the medical profession.

We note with pleasure the enlargement of the Raleigh Times. With the enlargement there has been a notable addition of features which must add greatly to the value of the Times as one of the State's foremost papers. Mr. J. C. Caddell, who follows no beaten track of editorial management, but always catches and rivets the thought of thinking people, continues as editor. Mr. Maxwell Gorman, one of our first men in journalism, has been elected managing editor, and the Times is to be congratulated.

WILL YOU WRITE TO US?

The North Carolina Methodist Handbook for 1905 will contain a most interesting and valuable Historical Department. There will be a number of articles, entitled "My First Conference," and written by preachers who joined the Conference in different years. The Handbook is the only publication which is preserving the history of Methodism in North Carolina, and the Historical Department for 1905 will be unusually rich.

As far as we can learn there is now living no preacher who joined Conference in any of the following years: 1837, 1838, 1839, 1840, 1841, 1842, 1844, 1846, 1847, 1848, 1850, 1851, and 1853. There may be some layman who knows something of at least one of these Conferences. If so, we would be glad to hear from him at once. The favor will be appreciated.

NORTH CAROLINA EPWORTH LEAGUE

DEVOTIONAL. CHARITABLE. CONFERENCE. LITERARY. EVANGELICAL.

EDITED BY REV. H. B. ANDERSON.

League Requisites.

We are often asked, "Where can we get literature necessary to the organization and running of an Epworth League?"

At the first we had to depend on the Northern and Canadian publishing houses for all but a most meagre supply of literature. But now our own central office at Nashville, under the efficient management of Drs. DuBose and Parker, are issuing all that one needs to have for the organization and conduct both of a Junior and Senior League.

It is impossible in one short article, because of the space allowed us in the Advocate, to give but a meager mention of the literature now ready for circulation among the Leagues.

FOR ORGANIZATION.

The Central office has a leaflet, "How to Start a League," and the Epworth League Handbook by Dr. DuBose. The latter is full of suggestions and hints both as to the organization and conduct of a Chapter. In this little Handbook among other things, is set forth the duties of the officers and department work. The author is very clear as to a systematic conduct of a Reading Course, Bible Circles, Methods, Libraries and Reading Rooms, League Socials, etc. One Chapter is devoted to Connectional Meetings, State League, Annual and District Conference Leagues, City and County Unions, International Conferences and Reports.

CHRISTIAN CULTURE COURSES

It may not be advisable for one Chapter to undertake all that is suggested at once; but let each Chapter determine for itself which, and how much, it will undertake. October is the time to begin these courses. They comprise the following:

(1) The League Devotional Studies.
(2) Bible Circle Classes.
(3) League Institute Studies.
(4) League Reading Course.
(5) A Supplemental Reading Course.

A leaflet may be had that sets forth the purposes and ends of these several departments.

The plan of these courses is simple, direct and thorough. The busiest young man or woman will find that only a part of the leisure moments of life will be sufficient to get a very comprehensive knowledge.

A Missionary Institute.

Under the auspices of Trinity Epworth League, Southport, Rev. Albert S. Barnes, Missionary Secretary of the Wilmington District, conducted a Missionary Study, beginning Wednesday 14th and continuing every evening through the week. The local League made good preparation for the study, in special music, well-written essays and carefully selected readings on the vital question of the hour.

Mr. Barnes' lectures each evening were interesting and instructive, having that enthusiasm born of conviction and devotion to the greatest enterprise of the ages—world-wide evangelization.

These addresses were listened to attentively by a large number of young people and older members of the congregation.

It is earnestly desired and believed that the results of this study will be the inspiration to ever-increasing fidelity and that holy action which the church demands. Educative and spiritual, how could they fail to bear fruit, especially upon the minds and hearts of those "in the dew of their youth?"

VICE-PRESIDENT.

Notes.

We would call attention of all the Juniors to the Junior's Topic Quarterly. It impresses us as being very helpful in more ways than one.

* * *

We have been kindly favored this week by "Vice-President," with a report of the Missionary Institute held under the auspices of one of the livest Leagues in our entire connection.

* * *

If you have any Juniors to be transferred to membership in the Senior Leagues, do not fail to send to Nashville, Tenn., for the beautiful certificate of transfer. It is printed in two colors and will be highly prized by parties receiving it.

PAINLESS AND POTENT.—CANCER AT CORNER OF LEFT EYE CURED IN TWO MONTHS.

December 29, 1903.

Dr. D. M. Bye Co., Dallas, Texas.

Gentlemen:—The Cancer is cured, I am happy to say, and my friends join me in expressing their gratifications for the cure. They think it is a cure final and effectual and with myself admire your skill and praise the wonderful Oil Cure that you have discovered, which is painless and sure to cure if applied in time. Mine was of five years' duration and was increasing in size. It caused me many restless months of anxiety and despair, thinking of a loathsome and painful Cancer to take my life out in such manner. But I persevered in the treatment. My prayer is that the good Lord may enable you to cure many others. I shall direct to you all whom I may meet that have Cancers.

With best wishes for your success, I am,

Most truly yours,
D. G. HARVARD,
Arredondo, Florida.

There is absolutely no need of the knife or burning plaster, no need of pain or disfigurement. The Combination Oil Cure for cancers is soothing and balmy, safe and sure. Write for free book to the Originator's Office, Dr. D. M. Co., Box 462, Dallas, Texas.

RECOMMENDS THE KELLAM HOSPITAL, WHERE CANCERS ARE CURED WITHOUT THE USE OF THE KNIFE.

While in Richmond attending to the duties devolving upon me as member of the House of Delegates I had occasion to examine into and know the workings of the Kellam Cancer Hospital. I believe that Institution is doing as much to relieve the sufferings of mankind as any other one Institution in the State, and is worthy the confidence of those suffering from Cancer and like ailments.

C. A. HEERMANS.

HICKS' CAPUDINE CURES ALL HEADACHES.

The perfect remedy for Colds, Indigestion, Periodic Pains, Brain Fag, etc. Prevents Train Nausea and Sick Headache. Braces the nerves. It's Harmless. Trial bottle 10c.

IT'S LIQUID.

65 VALUABLE PREMIUMS WITH CHEEK & NEAL'S PORTO RICO COFFEE

Makes a good cup of coffee. The best and strongest popular priced package Coffee sold. You not only get good coffee, but your choice of 65 Valuable Premiums is given for the signatures found on each package. Put up by

CHEEK & NEAL COFFEE CO., Nashville, Tenn.

See Large Premium List in every package. Save the signatures.

World's Fair, St. Louis

EXTRAORDINARILY LOW RATES,

September 6—13—20 and 21, 1904.

On above-mentioned dates the Southern Railway announces very low round-trip Coach excursion rates to St. Louis. These tickets will be good in all regular Coaches, and on all trains on dates shown. Tickets good 10 days.

Rate from

Goldsboro	$20.00	Salisbury	$17.00
Selma	20.00	Charlotte	18.30
Raleigh	18.50	Statesville	17.00
Durham	17.00	Marion	16.20
Greensboro	17.00	Asheville	15.40
Sanford	20.40	Hendersonville	15.85

Tickets sold at the above rates not good in Sleeping Cars; for other rates see notices elsewhere.

For full information, World's Fair maps, literature, etc., call on or address any Agent Southern Railway,

R. L. VERNON, Trav. Pass. Agt., Charlotte, N. C.
J. H. WOOD, Dist. Pass. Agt., Asheville, N. C.
S. H. HARDWICK, Pass. Traf. Mgr.
W. H. TAYLOE, Gen. Pass. Agt. Washington, D. C.

WORLD'S FAIR RATES

VIA

Seaboard Air Line Railway

TO ST. LOUIS, MO., AND RETURN.

On account of the World's Fair, St. Louis, Mo., the Seaboard Air Line Railway, in connection with the C. & O. Route via Richmond and the N. C. & St. L. Route via Atlanta, will sell round trip tickets to St. Louis, Mo., at greatly reduced rates from all stations.

Rates from principal points as follows:

	Season Tickets	60 Day Tickets	15 Day Tickets
Charlotte via Atlanta	$36.10	$30.10	$24.65
Durham via Richmond	34.10	28.40	23.30
Durham via Atlanta	38.75	32.30	26.30
Henderson via Richmond	34.10	28.40	23.30
Henderson via Atlanta	38.75	32.30	26.30
Maxton via Atlanta	38.65	32.25	26.25
Raleigh via Richmond	35.60	29.90	24.80
Raleigh via Atlanta	38.75	32.30	26.30
Hamlet via Richmond	37.60	31.90	26.25
Hamlet via Atlanta	37.60	31.90	26.25
Wilmington via Richmond	38.65	32.25	26.25
Wilmington via Atlanta	38.65	32.25	26.25

LIMIT OF TICKETS—SEASON TICKETS.

Good to leave St. Louis up to December 15, 1904, will be sold daily commencing April 25th.

SIXTY DAY TICKETS.

Good to leave St. Louis up to and including 60 days from date of sale. Will be sold daily commencing April 25th.

FIFTEEN DAY TICKETS.

Good to return up to and including 15 days from date of sale, commencing April 25th, and continuing during the Exposition.

COACH EXCURSION TICKETS.

On May 9th and 23rd, 10-day coach excursion tickets will be sold at very low rates from Raleigh $18.50 via Richmond and $20.80 via Atlanta. Tickets not good in Parlor Sleeping Cars. Tickets good to leave St. Louis including ten days from date of sale.

MILITARY COMPANIES.

Special low rates for Military Companies and Bands.

Quickest schedule, direct routes, first-class coaches and Pullman Sleeping and Dining Car Service.

For further information, call on or address us. Same will be cheerfully furnished.

C. H. GATTIS, T. P. A., Raleigh, N. C.
H. A. MORSON, C. P. & T. A., Raleigh, N. C.

When writing advertisers please mention this paper.

Sunday School

Lesson for October 2, 1904.

Elisha Succeeds Elijah.

(2 Kings 2:12-22.)

Golden Text: Let a double portion of thy spirit be upon me. (2 Kings 2, 9.)

Time—Eighth century B. C. Place—By Jordan.

Call of Elisha.—When Elijah was in Horeb, during his season of depression (Lesson X, 1 Kings 19:9-18) God gave him a threefold commission: to anoint Hazael king over Syria and Jehu king over Israel, and to call Elisha, the son of Shaphat, of Abel-meholah, as his own successor in the prophet office. Obedient to his commission, Elijah seems to have proceeded at once to Elisha's home, supposed to be the modern Ain Helweh, in the northern part of the Jordan valley; and there finds the young man at work in one of the rich fields of his father's heritage. Elijah, crossing the field to where Elisha stood, threw his mantle upon the shoulders of the young man; then, without a word having passed between them, the prophet passed on. Elisha understood the situation at once. He was called to be a son to the prophet and his successor. But this meant the leaving of home and inheritance. He hesitated, but only for a moment. To show with what ardor and thoroughness he responded to the call Elisha offered sacrifice of the oxen he was guiding; and, having dutifully taken leave of his parents, "he arose, and went after Elijah, and ministered unto him." (1 Kings 18121.)

Succession of Elisha.—The recognition of Elisha as Elijah's successor followed upon his return from the desert, whither he had gone with Elijah, who then passed into the heavens. (Lesson XI, 2 Kings 2: 1-11.) Elijah had bidden Elisha make some last request, and Elisha had asked for an elder son's recognition and authority. Such a boon could only be conferred by God. But if God should vouchsafe the young man the open vision at the time of the elder prophet's ascension, then the boon was conferred. Such vision was granted, and Elisha, taking with him the master's cloak—his most characteristic and almost only possession—returned to Jordan, where, the waters parting at his word, his succession was authenticated openly. Upon returning to Jericho the sons of the prophets acknowledged his succession saying, "The spirit of Elijah doth rest on Elisha." (2 Kings 2:12, ff.)

Elisha as Teacher.—Verses 16-18. In these verses Elisha makes his first appearance as teacher. The students naturally inquired for Elijah. Elisha told them the story of the prophet's translation. To them such an issue seemed unbelievable; Elijah must have died as all men die, and his body would be found if searched for; or else he may be lost in the wilderness. So they say to Elisha, "Look now, here are half a hundred stalwart and fearless men; let them we pray thee, seek thy master. It may be that, under the Spirit of Jehovah, he has wandered in the desert, and is in peril; let them find him, dead or alive." Elisha alone knew how hopeless was such a quest. It was in vain that he tried to dissuade them. They persisted, until Elisha, having exhausted every resource of expostulation and entreaty, and beginning to feel that his own motives were suspected, said, "Very well, send." Out went the fifty strong men, searching everywhere in the wilderness three days and nights, finding nothing and returning to Jericho empty-handed. To whom the prophet, in mild rebuke, said, "Did not I say unto you, Go not?" In some respects it was well for Elisha's influence that these men persisted. His story may have seemed plausible, but certainly the details were unusual and savored of the preternatural. Moreover, he was himself Elijah's successor, the chief beneficiary of Elijah's disappearance. The sons of the prophets were human; to them Elisha should have been as eager for the search as they. His reluctance was not above suspicion. By the search the young men were at least persuaded that Elijah had actually disappeared, and with this they were apparently satisfied. In an inquiring age and to inquiring spirits personal testimony is not always conclusive. What is needed is knowledge born of experience. One must have consideration for doubt which, on the face of it, is natural and sincere. The Christ who offered the wound prints in hands and feet and the riven side to inquiring Thomas does not disdain the search of any honest soul for peculiar and stated personal experiences of His truth.

Elisha as Wonder-Worker.—19-22. Elisha's public career as prophet opens with an act of beneficence. Jericho, where for the time he was staying, was a flourishing city, the home of a large school of the prophets. From a very early period it was known as the "City of Palms," and in Gen. 13:10 the country in which it is situated is compared to "the garden of the Lord." But the spring from which abundant water supply might be obtained was "naught"—that is, unwholesome—and chiefly because of it "the land miscarrieth." To heal the spring would be a benefaction and a lasting memorial of the beneficent power of the prophetic order. Elisha called for a water vessel hitherto unused, and for salt to put therein; then going to the spring he cast the salt into it, saying, "Thus saith the Lord, I have healed these waters; there shall not be from thence any more death or barren land." And the spring was healed from that day. As there is but one spring in the neighborhood of Jericho, the modern Ain es Sultan, this is, in all probability, the same which existed in Elisha's time, and which he healed. In comparing the career of the two prophets, how typical their first appearance! Elijah opens his with the dramatic appearance before Ahab and the doom of drought; Elisha begins his with the healing of the spring on which the fertility and bounty of the land was mainly dependent.

TRAGEDY AVERTED.

"Just in the nick of time our little boy was saved," writes Mrs. W. Watkins, of Pleasant City, Ohio. "Pneumonia had played sad havoc with him and a terrible cough set in besides. Doctors treated him, but he grew worse every day. At length we tried Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, and our darling was saved. He's now sound and well." Everybody ought to know it's the only sure cure for Coughs, Colds and all Lung diseases. Guaranteed by all druggists. Price 50 cents and $1.00. Trial bottles free.

Shepard's Lung Food.

A 50 cent bottle of Shepard's Lung Food FREE to any one wishing to test its efficacy in treatment of ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, COLDS, COUGHS, LA GRIPPE, CONSUMPTION, or any affections of the throat or lungs. Indispensable for public speakers.

Send name and address of your druggist and we will send you 50c. to pay him for one bottle of Lung Food. $100 reward for a case which it will not cure.

THE LUNG FOOD CHEMICAL CO., Wilmington, N. C.

Some of the New and Fashionable Dress Goods for Fall

Write us for samples of anything you have in mind, stating color, kind of cloth and about what price you wish to pay.

Remember, we prepay express or freight charges on all orders of $5.00 and over mailed to the house.

NOELVTY MOHAIRS, 42 in. wide, in brown, navy, royal and black mixtures, 75c. yard.

MOHAIR SILICIANS, 40 in. wide, in the new fall shades, 50c. yard.

NEW CASSIMERE SUITINGS, neat checks and invisible plaids, very stylish for walking suits and separate skirts, 50c. yard.

BROADCLOTHS, 50 in. wide, all wool, extra finish, in twenty-five different shades, as well as black, $1.00.

RAINPROOF SUITINGS, 54 in. wide, in stylish designs, $1.25 and $1.50 yard.

MILLER & RHOADS
Richmond, Va.

I CURE CANCER.

Have you Cancer? Have you been given up as hopelessly incurable by everybody? I can still cure you. At least, I have cured others who were thought to have but a few days to live, and why not cure you? No knife. No plaster. No caustics. No sloughing oils. No injection of acids. No blood drawn. No pain. I can cure internal cancer just as readily as external. You can be cured by my "Home Treatment" at your own homes for less than one-fourth the cost of "Personal Treatment;" but if you have been humbugged till you have lost faith in the honesty or ability of any one to handle this disease successfully, come to me, and I will cure you or no pay. And when I cure you you stayed cured. It does not reappear in a few months. I will put money in the bank to back up that assertion. You will be absolutely, wholly and perfectly cured. The chances are ten to one if anything else is the matter with you, you will be cured of that too. You can be cured a great deal quicker, and more cheaply, if you have never permitted your body to be operated on or experimented with by others before I take your case, still if you do not believe it, go ahead and try, but remember me when they have failed. Will you not write me a full description of your case and let me tell you what I can do for you. Address

Dr. Scott Mason,
Dry Bridge, Va.

RATES TO ST. LOUIS WORLD'S FAIR.

Tickets to be Sold at Very Low Rates via Southern Railway.

For the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, to be held at St. Louis, Mo., May until November, 1904, the Southern Railway announces the following forms of excursion tickets, effective April 25th:

Season excursion tickets, good to return until December 15, 1904, sold daily at rate of $35.60 from Raleigh.

Sixty day excursion ticket, good returning sixty (60) days in addition to date of sale, final date in no case to exceed December 15, 1904, sold daily at rate of $29.90 from Raleigh.

Fifteen-day excursion tickets, good returning fifteen (15) days in addition to date of sale, sold daily at rate of $24.80 from Raleigh.

Ten day special coach excursion tickets—see notices elsewhere.

Reduced rate tickets as above will be sold from other stations on the Southern Railway at proportionate rates.

On all one way and round trip tickets, reading to points beyond St. Louis, a stop-over of ten days will be permitted at St. Louis on payment of a fee of $1.00 and deposit of ticket.

The Southern Railway will operate through sleeping car daily, leaving Greensboro, N. C., 7.20 p. m., May and November for St. Louis via Asheville, Knoxville and Louisville.

For full information, literature, etc., call on or address any agent of the Southern Railway.

T. E. GREEN,
City Ticket Agent,
Raleigh, N. C.

DON'T

give your child old greasy Castor Oil. Give CAS-TO-RINE. Tastes as good as maple syrup. Fifteen cents per bottle at all dealers.

Raleigh Marble Works

Monuments

Ship Monumental work to all parts of the State Delivered to your depot at same price as at shop. Special attention paid to finish and lettering.

Only Best of Stock Used.

Write for new catalogue.

COOPER BROS., Proprietors,
RALEIGH, N. C.

$1.50 will buy a pair Dixie Girl Women's Shoes

Made by Dixie Girls

BEST SHOE ON EARTH FOR PRICE

Hard to find a dealer without them. If so, write us, and we will tell you where to find them.

Geo. D. Witt Shoe Co.
Makers
LYNCHBURG, VA.

"I can only speak of the engine bought of you last Fall in the highest terms * * * We find her to move with the regularity of a clock, a thing that we think very essential in making a good sample of cotton. As for safety, we think it far surpasses steam, and perhaps not more dangerous than water. It seems very simple and easy to learn * * * and believe it to be only a question of time when they will take the place of steam engines."

Rev. J. W. BURTON,
L. E. of the M. E. Church, South.

Send for catalogue X, stating power requirements.

White-Blakeslee Mfg. Co.
Birmingham, Ala.

H. STEINMETZ.
FLORIST.

Cut Flowers, Designs.
Plants of all kinds.

PHONES 113. RALEIGH, N. C.

Secular News

STATE.

Buie's Creek Academy opens with an enrollment sixty larger than ever before.

The cotton yarn spinners of the Southern States are in session at Charlotte.

Hon. B. R. Lacy, State Treasurer, is unable to enter the campaign owing to ill health.

The Republicans of the Third Congressional District have nominated Judge W. S. O'B. Robinson, of Goldsboro, for Congress.

Hon. Thos. Watson, Populist candidate for President, will speak at Newton, October 3rd. This is his only appointment in North Carolina.

The Durham building, on South Tryon street, Charlotte, was gutted by a fire of unknown origin late Wednesday night. The loss is estimated at about $90,000.

The Wilmington, Southport and Little River Transportation Company has closed a deal for a fast passenger steamer to be used between Wilmington and Southport.

Professor Foust, superintendent of the Goldsboro graded schools, has resigned. He resigned to accept the county superintendency of public schools of Guilford County.

A mass-meeting of the citizens regardless of past party affiliations, has been called to meet in Raleigh next Saturday to place a ticket in the field against the regular Democratic ticket nominated at a recent primary.

The Wake County Savings Bank was organized Monday night at a meeting of a number of Raleigh's best known business men, and it is expected that the institution will be open for business some time the latter part of October.

At a meeting of A. & N. C. Railway stockholders last week, Mr. J. W. Grainger, of Kinston, was elected president at a salary of $100 a year; Dr. J. Broadhurst, of Goldsboro, secretary and treasurer, at a salary of $300 a year.

State Chairman Rollins has appointed Mr. Fred A. Hull, of Asheville, secretary of the Republican State Committee in place of Mr. R. H. McNeill, the latter's law practice in Washington preventing him giving his full time to the campaign.

The Alamance County Fair is one of a series of five to be held in the State. They are arranged as follows: Burlington, September 27-30; Winston-Salem, October 3-7; Greensboro, October 11-14; Raleigh, October 17-21; Charlotte, October 25-28.

A suit involving the validity of $40,000 of bonds issued by the county of Onslow to aid in building the Wilmington, Onslow and East Carolina Railroad, now the Wilmington-New Bern branch of the Atlantic Coast Line, has been instituted in Wilmington in the United States Circuit Court.

The Board of Managers of the North Carolina Reunion at Greensboro have decided to postpone the second Reunion of Non-Resident Native North Carolinians until 1905. The chief reason for taking this step is that this is a political year, which would prevent the attendance of many prominent men who would otherwise be glad to attend.

As a result of the selling of Peruna in the prohibition town of Brevard six true bills of indictment have been found by the grand jury of Transylvania County against druggists and shop-keepers of Brevard, the charge being that every bottle of Peruna sold was nothing more or less than so much liquor, and that the dealers in the stuff were guilty under the law.

Twenty-three of the thirty-two seniors who rebelled against the rules and left the A. & M. College have been reinstated. All the others will probably return except three whom the faculty decline to receive. The class now numbers thirty-one. The reinstated cadets have the same offices of trust and honor they held before. The affair has terminated in the most desirable manner possible and the effect on the discipline of the college is very marked.

At 7.15 o'clock on the morning of September 23rd, the boiler in the gin department of the Mammoth Cotton Mill, Edwin No. 3, at Dukes, on the Cape Fear and Northern Railroad, about 25 miles from Raleigh, exploded with terrific violence, partially wrecking the engine room, instantly killing three white men, one of whom was the superintendent of the mill, and one negro. Another negro was scalded so badly that he will die. Several persons were thrown down by the shock of the explosion, but their injuries are not serious.

GENERAL.

The ministers of Augusta, Ga., have inaugurated a pulpit crusade on the whiskey business of that city.

A cablegram announces the sudden death in London of Dr. Samuel Ives Curtis, senior professor of the Chicago Theological Seminary, and a leading Presbyterian churchman of the West.

The friends of Rev. William Aiken Kelly, pastor of the Grace Methodist Church, in North August, Ga., are very much alarmed over his unexplained absence from the city and his family. It is feared he has met with some serious mishap.

A special train conveying the archbishop of Canterbury from Bar Harbor, Me., to Washington, was wrecked on the Boston and Albany division of the New York Central Railroad near East Brookfield, Mass., September 23rd. The archbishop was not injured.

By the blowing out of a steam fitting in a boiler at the steel mill of the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company at Ensley, Ala., Cyrus Leck, Jr., aged 19, a white employee, and John Thomas, a colored laborer, were scalded to death by escaping steam.

Fast freight No. 24, on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, struck a wagon loaded with 750 pounds of dynamite at the crossing at North Branch, W. Va., four miles east of Cumberland, Md., on the afternoon of the 23rd. Two persons were killed and nine were injured, three of them seriously.

WORKING OVERTIME.

Eight hour laws are ignored by those tireless, little workers—Dr. King's New Life Pills. Millions are always at work, night and day, curing Indigestion, Biliousness, Constipation, Sick Headache and all Stomach, Liver and Bowell troubles. Easy, pleasant, safe, sure. Only 25 cents at all druggists.

Situations. Address WILBUR R. SMITH, LEXINGTON, KY.
FOR CIRCULAR OF THE "Cheapest and best College."
COMMERCIAL COLLEGE OF KY. UNIVERSITY
Refers to thousands of successful graduates. Cost to complete Full Business Course, including Tuition, Books and Board, about $90. Phonography, Type-Writing and Telegraphy taught. Address WILBUR R. SMITH, Lexington, Ky.

For Whooping Cough use CHENEY'S EXPECTORANT.

INHERITED SCROFULA

When a child I had a very severe attack of Diphtheria, which came near proving fatal. Upon recovery the glands of the neck were very much enlarged, and after the free use of iodine, the right one was reduced to its normal size, but the left one continued to grow—very slowly at first, until it was about the size of a goose egg, which began to press on the windpipe, causing difficult breathing, and became very painful. An incision was made and a large quantity of pus discharged. The gland was removed, or as much as could with safety be taken out. For ten years I wore a little piece of cloth about an inch long in my neck to keep the place open. During this time I had to have it cut open by the doctor every time I took cold or the opening clogged. In the Spring or early Summer of 1884 I was persuaded by my wife to use S. S. S., which I did, strictly in accordance with directions. I took twenty-six large bottles, and was entirely cured, for I have not suffered since that time. B. S. RAGLAND.
Royal Bag Mfg. Co., Charleston. S. C.

Only a constitutional remedy can reach an hereditary disease like Scrofula. When the blood is restored to a normal condition and the scrofulous deposits are carried off there is a gradual return to health. S.S.S. is well known as a blood purifier and tonic. It is the only guaranteed, strictly vegetable remedy sold. If you have any signs of Scrofula, write us and our physicians will advise you free

SSS

The Swift Specific Company, Atlanta, Ga.

Look Out

FOR THE DATES OF

The Great State Fair

AT RALEIGH, N. C.

Grand Educational, Agricultural and Industrial displays. Finest display of Cattle, Sheep, Swine, Horses, Poultry, and Pet Stock ever seen in North Carolina.
Magnificent show of Labor-saving Farm Machinery.
Midway Packed with Good, Clean Shows and Attractions.
October 17, 18, 19, 20. 21, 22.
ASHLEY HORNE, President.
J. E. POGUE, Secretary.
CLAUDE B. DENSON, Treas.

Lowest Kind of Rates.

California & Northwest

From Sept. 15th to Oct. 15th. 1904.

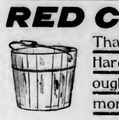
Cheap one-way and round-trip tickets on various dates to Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico and Indian Territory. Through tickets from all points. Write me, J. F. Van Rensselaer, Gen. Agt. Southern Pacific and Union Pacific Railroad Companies, 13 Peachtree St., Atlanta, Ga. G. W. Ely, T. P. A., E. O. Bean, T. P. A.

Positions GUARANTEED $5,000 BANK DEPOSIT
Railroad Fare Paid. 500 FREE Courses Offered. Board Cost. Write Quick.
GEORGIA-ALABAMA BUSINESS COLLEGE Macon, Ga.

King's Business College
(INCORPORATED.)
CAPITAL STOCK $30,000.

We give the world's best and most modern Business Education. Our Colleges are the most helpful schools in America. KING'S means THOROUGH in everything pertaining to Business Education. Railroad fare paid. Positions guaranteed, backed by a written contract. Individual Instruction No Vacation. Enter Any Time.
Write for our College Journal and offers—they will point you to the road that leads to success. Address,
KING'S BUSINESS COLLEGE,
Raleigh, N. C., or Charlotte, N. C.

THIS IS A RED CEDAR PAIL..



That has seen twenty-two years of Hard Service and having been thoroughly repaired is now ready for 22 more.

MANUFACTURED ONLY BY
PREWITT-SPURR MFG. COMPANY,
NASHVILLE, TENNESSEE.
If your supply house does not carry them in stock, write us giving name of your Supply House.

The Best Buggy on Earth for the Money.
A $55 Top Buggy for $28.35.
Two Years' Guarantee.
Catalogue Free.
From Factory to Consumer. Try us and get Something Reliable.
GREAT MONEY SAVERS.
SPLIT HICKORY SPOKES.

COLUMBUS QUEEN $49.50 ON 30 DAYS FREE TRIAL.
The Ohio Vehicle and Harness Company,
Office and Factory, 861-67 Mt. Vernon Avenue, Columbus, Ohio.

Several North Carolinians were either injured or killed in the wreck on the Southern Railroad near Knoxville, Tenn.

Methodist Orphanage

OFFICERS:
REV. J. W. JENKINS, - Superintendent
MRS. J. W. JENKINS, - Matron
MISS LUCY M. REEKS, Teacher

Send money to the Superintendent by Check, Post Office or Express Money Order, or Registered letter.

Those Windows Once More.

Let all who wish to take a window do so by the middle of October, as we wish to send off the list to have the tablets made.

When Will we Get In?

Can't tell. When you get in a slow coach, you have to get there when you can. But you are there all the same when you do get there.

We expect to get in in the sweet bye and bye. Having waited so long, we will be so glad. Let patience have her perfect work.

They are Coming.

The White Oak Sunday-school, on the Bertie Circuit, sends $15.00 for a bed. So, also, does the Whiteville Sunday-school. The ball is set in motion. May it roll rapidly. Only two more and another dormitory will be furnished. Goldston and Rich Square Sunday-schools and the Little People's Aid Society at Airlee, are on the roll. Who will be the next? Send along the cash.

If I were Rich.

"If I had the money, I would make things whiz around here," said our dear friend and former family physician, Dr. J. F. Jerman, of Ridgeway, N. C., on a recent visit to the Orphanage. And he would do it. Wish he had it. We can bear a great deal of criticism when such men as he—the noblest and the best—approve. Come again, Doctor, you do us good.

One things delights us—those whom come, see and approve. Come to see us, friends.

Receipts up to September 26.

Whiteville Sunday-school, for bed, $15.00; White Oak Sunday, for bed, $15.00; White Oak Sunday-school, General Fund, $2.10; Stem, General Fund, $1.50; Carthage, General Fund, $6.24; Roxboro, General Fund, $5.00; Lillington, General Fund, $3.35.

Donations in Kind.—One bedstead, one bureau and one washstand.

Clothes from W. H. M. Society of Edenton Street Church.

Our finances are very low. If our Sunday-schools that are in arrears would only pay up, the stress would be greatly relieved. If those who have subscribed would do the same, it would greatly help.

Have You Heard?

Have you head of any one that wants to give us a thousand dollars to give our Old Preachers' Home a start off? Tell them to communicate with me. Have you heard of any rich man or woman who wants to put a memorial cottage here in memory of some loved ones now on the shore? Direct them to me. There are beautiful grounds waiting here. Five thousand dollars will build and equip it. It would be a grand thing. Have you heard of anyone who wanted one of our rooms to make it a memorial room? There are plenty of them. Some one might furnish a room in memoriam.

Wonder if any cotton mill is going to give us any sheeting to help furnish our main building. The winter is coming; it is bed-quilt time.

Pleasant Grove—Central.

A little jaunt into the Pleasant Grove country last Sunday and two little talks to that goodly people did us good, and we hope, did the cause no harm. Brother Rood edified us with an earnest missionary sermon. We, Little, Francis, Frank and I, enjoyed a bountiful dinner with that prosperous farmer, Brother Goodwin, and his most interesting family. We will not soon forget that big dish of stewed chicken. It was good.

At night we went to Central church to hear our friend of many years, Rev. F. A. Bishop. But he was imprudent enough to ask the Orphanage man to preach. Ye city pastors, if you don't want an old fellow to preach, you would better not ask him; they are quick on trigger.

"Too much money in that building." Granted. What then? Take it out? That would be too costly. Cheaper to let it stay, eh?

The applications continue to come in fast. The preparations continue to come in slow. Maybe they will change sides when the church wakes up.

Persimmons are blushing among the leaves and locusts are flapping on the trees, and our boys' mouths are watering. Well, my verse breaks down.

Deafness Can Be Cured

I Have Made the Most Marvelous Discovery for the Positive Cure of Deafness and Head Noises and I Give the Secret Free.

With This Wonderful, Mysterious Power I Have Made People Deaf for Years Hear the Tick of a Watch in a Few Minutes.

Send Me No Money—Simply Write Me About Your Case and I Send You the Secret by Return Mail Absolutely Free.

After years of research along the lines of the deeper scientific mysteries of the occult and invisible of Nature-forces I have found the cause and cure of deafness and head noises, and I have been enabled by this same mysterious knowledge and power to give to many unfortunate and suffering persons perfect hearing again; and I say to those who have thrown away their money on cheap apparatus, salves, air-pumps, washes, douches and the list of innumerable trash that is offered the public through flaming advertisements, I can and will cure you and cure you to stay cured. I ask no money. My treatment method is one that is so simple it can be used in your own home. You can investigate fully, absolutely free and you pay for it only after you are thoroughly convinced that it will cure you, as it has thousands of others. It seems to make no difference with this marvelous new method how long you have been deaf nor what caused your deafness, this new treatment will restore your hearing quickly and permanently. No matter how many remedies have failed you —no matter how many doctors have pronounced your case hopeless, this new magic method of treatment will cure you. I prove this to your entire satisfaction before you pay a cent for it. Write to-day and I will send you full information absolutely free by return mail. Address Dr. Guy Clifford Powell, 902 Auditorium Building, Peoria, Ill. Remember, send no money—simply your name and address. You will receive an immediate answer and full information by return mail.

I Have Demonstrated That Deafness Can Be Cured—Dr. Guy Clifford Powell.

Text Cards for Home Decoration

on higher finished ivory and dark ground cards, all with silk cord to hang; require no frames. Agents wanted everywhere; liberal discount. GOSPEL PUBLISHING HOUSE, 64 W. 22d St., New York, Room 26.

A Notre Dame Lady's Appeal.

To all knowing sufferers of rheumatism whether muscular or of the joints, sciatica, lumbagos, backache, pains in the kidneys or neuralgia pains, to write to her for a home treatment which has repeatedly cured all of these tortures. She feels it her duty to send it to all sufferers FREE. You cure yourself at home as thousands will testify—no change of climate being necessary. This simple discovery banishes uric acid from the blood, loosens the stiffened joints, purifies the blood, and brightens the eyes, giving elasticity and tone to the whole system. If the above interests you, for proof address Mrs. M. Summers, Box 283, Notre Dame Ind.

ROYALTY PAID ON SONG POEMS, and Musical Compositions. We arrange and popularize. PIONEER PUB. CO., 625 Baltimore Bldg., CHICAGO, ILL.

Quarterly Meetings.

WARRENTON DISTRICT.

G. F. Smith, P. E., Littleton, N. C.

THIRD ROUND.

Northampton, New Hope, Sept. 17, 18
Bertie, Ebenezer, Sept. 24, 25
Williamston and Hamilton, Williamston, Oct. 1, 2
Rich Square, Pinner's, Oct. 8, 9
Hobgood, Williams Chapel, Oct. 15, 16

FOURTH ROUND.

Enfield and Halifax, Enfield, Aug. 21, 22
Harrellville, Harrellville, Aug. 27, 28
Scotland Neck, sept. 4, 5
Conway, Providence, Sept, 10, 11.
Murfreesboro, Sept. 11, 12
Northampton, New Hope, Sept. 17, 18
Bertie, Ebenezer, sept. 24, 25
Williamston and Hamilton, Williamston, October 1, 2
Rich Square, Pinners, Oct. 8, 9
Battleboro and Whitakers, Whitakers, Oct. 15, 16
Hobgood, Williams Chapel, Oct. 22, 23
Warren. Shady Grove, Oct. 29, 30
Warrenton, Warrenton, Oct. 30, 31
Littleton, Littleton, Nov. 3, 4
Weldon, Nov. 6, 7
Garysburg, Seaboard, Nov. 6
Roanoke Circuit, Smiths, Nov. 12, 13
Roanoke Rapids, Rosemary, Nov. 13, 14
Ridgeway, Union, Nov. 19, 20
Henderson, Nov. 27, 28

ELIZABETH CITY DISTRICT.

J. E. Underwood, P. E., E. City, N. C.

FOURTH ROUND.

Hatteras, Trent, Sept. 10, 11
Hertford, Centre Hill, Sept. 17, 18
Perquimans, Oak Grove, Sept. 24, 25
Pasquotank, Newbegun, Sept. 25, 26
Camden, McBride's, Oct. 1, 2
North Gates, Savage, Oct. 8, 9
Gates Harrells, Oct. 15, 16
Kitty Hawk, Currituck Inlet, Oct. 22, 23
Currituck, Ebenezer, Oct. 23, 24
Moyock, Perkins Chapel, Oct. 29, 30
Dare, Manu's Harbor, Nov. 5, 6
Roanoke Island, Nov. 6, 7
Elizabeth City, First Church, Nov. 13
Elizabeth City Road, Nov. 13
Columbia, Nov. 19, 20
Pantego and Belhaven, Nov. 25
Roper, Nov. 26, 27
Plymouth, Nov. 27

WASHINGTON DISTRICT.

J. D. Bundy, P. E., Rocky Mount, N. C.

FOURTH ROUND.

Robesonville, Mt. Zion, Sept. 3, 4
Washington, Sept. 11, 12
Nashville, Sharon, Sept. 17, 18
Farmville, Farmville, Oct. 2, 3
Aurora, Oct. 8, 9
Swan Quarter, Swan Quarter, Oct. 12
Fairfield, Oct. 13
Mattemuskeet, Nebraska, Oct. 15 16
Bethel, Bethel, Oct. 22, 23
Tarboro, (night) Oct. 23
Ocracoke and Portsmouth, Ocracoke, Oct. 29, 30
Greenville, (morning) Nov. 6
Grimesland and Vanceboro, Shitmerdine, November 6, 7
Spring Hope, Hernes, Nov. 12, 13
Wilson Station, (night) Nov. 13
Wilson Circuit, (Ledge Street) Nov. 14
Fremont, Fremont, Nov. 15
Rock Mount, Nov. 16
Bath, Bath, Nov. 19, 20
South Rocky Mount and Marvin, Nov. 22
South Edgecombe, Elm City, Nov. 27, 28

ROCKINGHAM DISTRICT.

John N. Cole, P. E., Rockingham, N. C.

FOURTH ROUND.

Roberdel, Roberdel sept 3, 4
Rockingham Station, sept. 4, 5
Lumberton, Barker's, Sept. 10, 11
St. John and Gibson, St. John, Sept. 15, 16
Laurenburg, Sept. 16, 17
Richmond, Steele's Mill, Sept. 24, 25
Maxton and Caledonia, Oct. 1, 2
Hamlet, Ham et, Oct. 8, 9
Rowland, Rowland, Oct. 15, 16
Robeson, Asbury, Oct. 22, 23
Mt. Gilead, Wadeville, Oct. 29, 30
Montgomery, Capeside, Nov. 5, 6
Red springs, Red Springs, Nov. 12, 13
Pekin, Concord, Nov. 19, 20
Aberdeen, Aberdeen, Nov. 26, 27

RALEIGH DISTRICT.

W. H. Moore, P. E., Pittsboro, N. C.

FOURTH ROUND.

Franklinton, Grove Hill, September 10, 11
Clayton, Elizabeth, September 17, 18
Oxford Circuit, September 24, 25
Central, October 1, 2
Brooklyn, October 2, 3
Milbrook, October 8, 9
Granville, October 15, 16
Wakefield, October 20
Kenley, October 22, 23
Cary, October 29, 30
Epworth, October 30
Oxford Station, November 5, 6
Youngsville, November 12, 13
Louisburg, November 19, 20
Tar River Plank Chapel, November 26, 27

NEW BERN DISTRICT.

F. D. Swindell, P. E., Goldsboro, N. C

FOURTH ROUND.

Mt. Olive and Faison, Mt. Olive, Sept. 17, 18
Jones' Circuit, Lee's, Sept. 24, 25
Goldsboro, Thompson's, Oct. 1, 2
St. Paul, Oct. 2
Centenary, Oct. 9, 10
Pamlico, Bayboro, Oct. 15, 16
Oriental, Oriental, Oct. 16, 17
Hookerton, Rainbow, Oct. 22, 23
Grifton, Grifton, Oct. 23, 24
Dover, Oct. 29 30
Kinston, Oct. 30
Snow Hill Circuit, Jerusalem, Nov. 5, 6
Craven, Asbury, Nov. 11
Carteret, Harlow, Nov. 12, 13
Beaufort, Nov. 13, 14
Atlantic, Wit, Nov. 15, 16
Straits, Tabernacle, Nov. 19, 20
Morehead, Nov. 20
Lagrange Circuit, Nov. 23
St. John, Nov. 25
Mt. Olive Circuit, Smiths, Nov. 26, 27

DURHAM DISTRICT.

J. T. Gibbs, P. E., Durham, N. C.

East Burlington, Graham and Haw River, at Haw River, August 27, 28
Mt. Tirzah Circuit, September 3, 4

FOURTH ROUND.

Trinity Church, Sept. 11, at 11 a. m.
Carr Church and Branson, at Carr, Sept. 11 at night
Chapel Hill, Sept. 17, 18
Durham, McManen, Sept. 24, 25
Mangum Street, Sept. 25, at night
Leasburg, Salem, Oct. 1, 2
Hillsboro, Cedar Grove, Oct. 8, 9
Roxboro, Concord, Oct. 15, 16
Milton, New Hope, Oct. 22, 23
Yanceyville, Bethel, Oct. 29, 30
Mt. Tirzah Circuit, Nov. 5, 6
Burlington, Front Street, Nov. 13, 14
East Burlington, Graham and Haw River, Nov. 13, at night
Burlington, Shiloah, Nov. 18
Alamance, Phillips Chapel, Nov. 19, 20
Main Street, Nov. 27, at 11 a. m.
West Durham, Nov. 27, at night

FAYETTEVILLE DISTRICT.

J. B. Hurley, P. E., Fayetteville, N. C.

THIRD ROUND.

Goldstone Maroneys, August 27, 28
Sampson, Bethel, September 3, 4
Fayetteville, Hay Street, September 10, 11

FOURTH ROUND.

Dunn, Sept. 25, 26.
Cokesbury, Cokesbury, Oct. 1, 2
Elise, Tyra, Oct. 7
Carthage, Oct. 8, 9
Haw River, Bynum's, Oct. 14
Pittsboro, Zion, Oct. 15, 16
Siler City, Oct. 22, 23
Goldston, Oct. 23, 24
Jonesboro, Poplar springs, Oct. 28
Sanford, Oct. 29, 30
Hope Mills, Nov. 5, 6
Newton Grove, Nov. 11
Duke, Benson, Nov. 12, 13
Buckhorn, Cokesbury, Oct. 18
Lillington, Nov. 19, 20
Sampson, Nov. 25
Fayetteville, Hay Street, Nov. 27)
Fayetteville, Hoit's still, Nov. 27

WILMINGTON DISTRICT.

S. B. John, P. E., Wilmington, N. C.

FOURTH ROUND.

Onslow, Swanboro, September 3, 4
Scott's Hill, Acorn Branch, September 3, 4
New River, Turkey Creek, September 4
Burgaw, September 10, 11
Fifth Street, Sept. 18
Market Street, sept. 18
Town Creek, Zion, Sept. 21
Grace, September 25
Clinton, Keener, Oct. 1, 2
Bladen Circuit, Antioch, Oct. 7
Elizabeth, Wesley's, Oct. 8, 9
Magnolia, Carleton, Oct. 15, 16
Carver's Creek, Shiloah, Oct. 21
Whiteville, Cerro Gordo, Oct. 22, 23
Shallotte, Village, Oct. 28
Waccamaw, Bethel, Oct. 29, 30
Burgaw, Burgaw, Nov. 4
Kenansville, Warsaw, Nov. 5, 6
Onslow, Tabernacle, Nov. 9
Jackson and Richlands, Richlands, Nov. 10
Southport, Nov. 13
New River, Sneed's Ferry, Nov. 18
Scott's Hill, Scott's Hill, Nov. 19, 20
Bladen Street, Nov. 27

CHILD'S ILLS AND DOCTOR'S BILLS Painkiller PERRY DAVIS CURES THEM ALL

DO YOU WANT A TEACHER?

The Educational Bureau, Raleigh, N. C., has recently secured the names of a large number of good teachers open to engagement. Write fully as to your needs. It charges you nothing.

XANTHINE HAIR RESTORATIVE.

Everybody that is anybody is now using XANTHINE.

You don't know what first-class hair is until you have tried it. It seconds nature. Not a dye. The same for any color hair—but absolutely NEVER FAILS to restore ORIGINAL color to any gray hair. Stops itching almost instantly; prevents dandruff; puts the hair in elegant condition every way.
Circulars gladly sent showing highest testimonials. Price $1 a bottle. Express prepaid on orders sent direct to us. Address
XANTHINE CO., Richmond, Va.

Marriages

GEROCK—SIMMONS.—Zeb. V. Gerock and Estella B. Simmons, on the 14th of September, 1904, at Aunt Rachel Simmons, three miles from Pollocksville, D. C. Geddie officiating.

Obituaries

Obituaries containing not more than one hundred and fifty words are inserted free of charge. Those sending obituaries containing over one hundred and fifty words are requested to send with the obituary one cent for every word in excess. Unless this rule is observed the obituary must be cut down to the proper limit.

LINDSAY—Mrs. Dalila Isabella Lindsay was born the 5th of August, 1836, and died September 15, 1904. A husband and three children preceded her to the spirit land. Three sons are left behind. Sister Lindsay professed religion when young and lived a consistent Christian for more than fifty years.

She was a great sufferer for two years or more. When the end came it found her ready. Truly a mother in Israel has gone. May God bless her sons and their families.

JAS. H. FRIZELLE, P. C.

JORDAN.—Departed this life September 14, 1904, aged seventy-seven, Martha A., wife of Lambert M. Jordan.

Mrs. Jordan was one of the oldest members of the M. E. Church at Cedar Grove. She has been an invalid for many years. A good woman, kind neighbor, loving wife, mother and friend has gone from our midst. Our tenderest sympathy goes out to the aged husband, three daughters and the many relatives and friends who mourn their loss.

A FRIEND.

BOYETTE.—Mrs. Jessie L. Boyette, wife of J. A. Boyette, was born June 24, 1873, and died June 14, 1904. She never united herself with any church, but professed her faith in Christ a few years before her death and lived a consistent life.

She was an affectionate wife, a good mother and kind neighbor, and loved by all who knew her. Her funeral service was conducted by this writer, assisted by the Baptist minister, Rev. A. T. Howell. We believe that she is in the land of eternal rest. May God comfort the bereaved.

P. D. WOODALL.

WHITEHURST.—In the afternoon of July 22, 1904, after some four years of gradual wearing away, Oliver C. Whitehurst, then in his eighty-first year, peacefully passed to his reward. He was the oldest Methodist of this ancient Methodist community, and a life-long worker in the church. To his untiring effort and skilful management is due, in no small measure, the splendid church edifice where the Straits people now worship. He was also a leader in school affairs. Good schools have been taught here under his leadership.

Simple in life, temperate in habit, living with nature and with nature's God, he quietly did his duty as a father, as a citizen, as a Christian. It is strange, then, that in passing through the shadow his spirit seemed but to cast off a garment, worn and useless, and gather about it the white robes of "more and fuller life?"

E. K. CREEL.

HANCOCK.—On July 22, 1904, stricken down in life's early morning, even in the seventeenth year of her age, Miss Annie Hancock, daughter of Robert and Mary Hancock, disappeared from earth. This left darkness in the heart of that home and gladness about the community where the star of her life has shown so brightly. Though gone from our horizon, does it not still shine in the land of sweet peace? May it not yet be viewed from fields now hid from mortal ken? Is this not the Christian hope? Was she not a Christian? About a year before her untimely death, under the ministry of Rev. F. E. Dixon, she turned her face prayerfully to Jesus Christ, became a member of our church, and, depatring, has left the assurance that though she sits no longer in the congregation or in the family circle she still does live with Him in glory everlasting. Though tender in years, her life was bedecked with strong traits of Christian character. There was sweetness in her face, brightness in her eyes, sunshine in her soul. She had taken into her disposition something of the song of the mocking bird and of the fragrance of the wild rose. She was a student under the tuition of the writer last winter. With a high ideal and strong purpose, she set herself in the pursuit of knowledge. In this the best thing was growth. Her mental faculties were awake in healthful exercise and rapid development. She made the most of her opportunities and, but for the premature death, would have gone to Greensboro Female College at an early date.

For her father and mother, for her two sisters and three brothers who were thus cast from the clear day of an unbroken family circle into the dark night of sorrow, our church and community joins me in sympathy and prayer.

God who loves us is not dead; and we, whom He loves, can never die.

E. K. CREEL.

"ADAMS.—Charles H. Adams, aged 74 years, was born in Luffborough, England, and when two and a half years old left the old country with his mother, brother and sister for America. The vessel was wrecked, mother and sister were lost, himself and brother being saved by a couple of brave sailors and brought to Boston. The two brothers were then sent back to England and placed in an Orphans' Home until their father learned of the dreadful disaster and of his children's whereabouts.

Finally, they returned to America and located at Portsmouth, N. H., at which placed he remained a number of years. There he chose a companion and shortly afterwards moved to Canada. He lived there several years. In 1868 he had the misfortune of losing his wife. But during the next year he married a Miss Harriet Miller, a lady of a very prominent family. They moved to Ohio, back again to Canada; but owing to his wife's ill health, they decided to come South. In the fall of 1897 they purchased a small farm in the vicinity of Nixonton."

Brother Adams held his membership at Hall's Creek M. E. Church, South, and was a highly respected gentleman and Christian.

His patience was beautiful. No murmur was heard, when we even wondered how a man could stand so much. Cancer was the cause of his death. With this awful human affliction, as long as he could sit or stand, he read the Bible and kept up his family altar. His Godly example has been a source of blessing to many.

He leaves a broken-hearted widow, who, during his long period of suffering, was ever by his side. He leaves two children, Mrs. Henry Summers, of South Dakota, and Mrs. Henry Campbell, of Grand Rapids Michigan. But he has left to his loved ones a priceless legacy—an eternal hope, and an example which, if followed, will bring them all to the enjoyment of a heavenly inheritance that is incorruptible and fadeth not away.

That part of this obituary in quotation was written by a friend of the family and one of our best and truest young Christian ladies, Miss Johnie Lane, of Nixonton, N. C.

W. F. JONES.

Resolutions of Respect.

The following resolutions were passed by the Fourth Quarterly Conference of the Roberdel Circuit, Rockingham District, North Carolina Conference:

Whereas, God in His providence, has removed from among us by death our dear pastor, Rev. Z. T. Harrison, who had endeared himself to us very greatly, and who was filling the charge so faithfully and efficiently up to the time he became disabled; and,

Whereas, we feel that we have lost a true pastor and friend and the church a true servant in his death; therefore be it

Resolved, that we tender to the bereaved family of the deceased our deepest sympathy in this their greatest trial, and that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the Raleigh Chritsian Advocate and to our county papers for publication; also a copy be forwarded to Sister Harrison and children.

Respectfully submitted,
GEO. M. RAINWATER,
C. H. KEY,
Committee.

September 3, 1904.

At a meeting of the Board of Stewards of the M. E. Church, South, Wilson, N. C., convened in regular session, September 6, 1904, the following resolutions were adopted by a rising vote:

Whereas, God our Father, did, on August 27, 1904, take unto Himself our venerable brother, T. B. Gilliam, for seventy years a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and for many years past, and at his death, an official thereof; now, therefore, be it Resolved 1. That we have reason to believe he was a man in whom there was no guile.

2. That while we mourn his departure, we do rejoice in some knowledge of his open life and character.

3. That by virtue of his helpful example and faithful service our church is richer in experience and stronger in influence for good.

4. That we do deeply sympathize with those who were nearest him, and beg to assure them that we too shall miss his encouraging words and unselfish love.

5. That these resolutions be spread upon our record, a copy be forwarded to his family, and copies be furnished the Raleigh Christian Advocate and our own town papers for publication.

JNO. F. BURTON,
Chairman.
E. A. DARDEN, Secretary.

Resolutions of respect to the memory of Mr. Ernest P. Mangum:

Whereas, it has pleased our heavenly Father in His wise providence to remove from our midst our beloved superintendent and brother, Ernest P. Mangum; therefore be it

Resolved 1. That, while bowing with deep humility to the hand of God, we cannot but deeply lament the death of one so dear to us all.

2. That the heartfelt sympathy of the Sunday-school be extended to his bereaved widow and family in this their sad affliction.

3. That his Christian example of fidelity to the great trust for which he so untiringly labored, and which he deeply loved, shall be an inspiration to us all and stimulate us to greater zeal and sacrifice.

4. That the officers and members of the Sunday-school attend the memorial services to be held in his memory on Sunday, the 11th inst., and that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family of the deceased and published in the Raleigh Christian Advocate.

J. T. MOORE,
Chairman.
S. W. VENABLE,
MISS C. QUARLES,
Committee.

Resolutions adopted by Newland Sunday-school:

Whereas, it has pleased almighty God, in His all-wise providence, to remove by death our beloved friend and class-mate, Emily Britt, from our Sunday-school here below to the Sunday-school above; therefore be it

Resolved 1. That we bow in humble submission to the will of Him who doeth all things well, yet we can but feel keenly the loss of the sweet presence with us.

2. That we hereby express to the bereaved parents of our little friend our deep sympathy and prayers in this their sore affliction and point them to Him who doeth all things well.

3. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, a copy to the Raleigh Christian Advocate and a copy be spread upon the minutes of our Sunday-school.

Respectfully submitted
MAUD O. WILLIAMS,
LILLIAN B. FOSTER,
MARY C. EMPLE,
Committee.

Whereas, our heavenly Father, in His infinite wisdom, has seen fit to remove from our midst our beloved co-worker and First Vice-President, Miss May Rone; and,

Whereas, the young Ladies' Altar Circle of the Methodist Church at Rocky Mount wish to put on record our appreciation of her worth; therefore be it

Resolved. That in the death of May the church and Society have lost a faithful and zealous member and our community a true Christian.

2. That while our hearts are filled with grief and sorrow, we bow in humble submission to the will of Him who doeth all things well.

3. That we extend to the bereaved family our deepest sympathy, and pray that they may have grace sufficient in this time of sore affliction.

4. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, published in the Raleigh Christian Advocate and Rocky Mount Record and spread upon the minutes of our Society.

MISS ROSA HART,
MISS ALICE LANCASTER,
MISS ANNIE MARRIOTT,
Committee.

MORE RIOTS.

Disturbances of strikers are not nearly as grave as an individual disorder of the system. Overwork, loss of sleep, nervous tension will be followed by utter collapse, unless a reliable remedy is immediately employed. There's nothing so efficient to cure disorders of the Liver or Kidneys as Electrie Bitters. It's a wonderful tonic, and effective nervine and the greatest all around medicine for run-down systems. It dispels Nervousness, Rheumatism and Neuralgia and expels Malaria germs Only 50 cents, and sastisfaction guaranteed by all druggists.

POSITIONS GUARANTEED. May pay tuition out of salary after course is completed and position is secured. Indorsed by business men from Maine to California. For 100-page catalog, address J. F. DRAUGHON, Pres., either place,

DRAUGHON'S PRACTICAL BUSINESS Colleges.

Columbia, S. C. Nashville, Tenn.

Atlanta, Ga.; Montgomery, Ala.; Ft. Worth Texas; Oklahoma City, O. T.; Galveston, Texas; Little Rock, Ark.; Ft. Scott, Kans.; Shreveport, La.; St. Louis, Mo.; Kansas City, Mo. After July 1st, 1904.

Incorporated. $303,000.00 capital. Established 1889. 11 bankers on board of directors. National reputation. Our diploma represents in business circles what Yale's and Harvard's represent in literary circles. No vacation; enter any time. Part car fare paid; cheap board. Write to-day.

HOME STUDY. BOOKKEEPING, SHORTHAND, PENMANSHIP, etc., taught by mail. Money refunded if not satisfied with course. Write for prices of home study courses.

WRIGLEY ENGRAVING COMPANY. ENGRAVERS, ELECTROTYPERS, STEREOTYPERS. COPPER, HALF TONE AND ZINC ETCHING. ALL KINDS OF ATLANTA, GA.

CROSS & LINEHAN CO.,
NEW TUCKER BUILDING.)
234-236 Fayetteville St., RALEIGH, N. C.

LET US SHOW YOU WHAT THE FULL MEANING OF BARGAIN-GIVING MEANS IN . . . . . .

CLOTHING
AND GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS.

OUR NEW SPRING STOCK NOW READY FOR YOUR INSPECTION.

Cross & Linehan Co.,
Leading Clothiers.

IT SAVED HIS LEG.

P. A. Danforth, of La Grange, Ga., suffered for six months with a frightful running sore on his leg; but writes that Bucklen's Arnica Salve wholly cured it in five days. For Ulcers, Wounds, Piles, it's the best salve in the world. Cure guaranteed. Only 25 cents. Sold by druggists.

LIBERTY MILLS

PRODUCES DAILY 4,000 BARRELS OF Pure Soft Wheat Flour

AND THERE IS HEALTH AND STRENGTH IN EVERY POUND.

Ask Your Grocer.

LIBERTY MILLS, Nashville, Tenn.

THE KEELEY INSTITUTE
GREENSBORO, N.C.
For the treatment of THE LIQUOR, OPIUM, MORPHINE and other Drug Addictions. The Tobacco Habit, Nerve Exhaustion

BLYMYER CHURCH BELLS.
Please mention this paper

PIANOS AND ORGANS
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.
A. D. JONES & CO
Southern Factory Distributors for the World's Famous
KIMBALL

WE Loan you the money to buy them.
WE Give free trials.
WE Pay the freight.
WE Save you 25 per cent.
WE Add nothing to the principal when sold on
EASY PAYMENTS.

Write for our latest piano and and organ catalogue and full particulars.

A. D. JONES & CO.,
208 South Elm Street,
GREENSBORO, N. C.

For Croup use CHENEY'S EXPECTORANT.

WOOL.

If you have wool to sell for cash, to exchange for goods, or to be manufactured, ship it to the CHATHAM MANUFACTURING COMPANY, ELKIN, N. C., and you will not regret it. They pay the highest market price and make the best goods you can get. Their blankets at all the leading expositions have been awarded GOLD MEDALS as the finest made in America.

WRITE THEM FOR SAMPLES.

SOUTHERN DENTAL COLLEGE, ATLANTA, GEORGIA.
If you are interested in obtaining a dental education, write for free catalogue of full instruction.
ADDRESS DR. S. W. FOSTER, DEAN, 100 NORTH BUTLER STREET, ATLANTA, GEORGIA

ACID IRON MINERAL

Registered A-I-M Trade Mark.

Is a great natural remedy of wonderful curative power mined from a natural deposit. It cures all diseases, involving inflammation, by purifying the blood and directly healing the irritated parts. Try it on an external sore and watch its magic healing. It acts in exactly the same way on all internal inflammation, such as Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Rheumatism, Kidney Disease, Stomach and Bowel Troubles. Numerous testimonials that it cures when all other remedies fail.

No equal for diseases peculiar to women. Tones up the entire system Four weeks treatment, only 50 cents If your druggist cannot supply you, write to

"Cured me completely of bladder trouble." Mrs. Nading, Winston, N. C. "For sores A. I. M., is worth its weight in gold." J. H. Davis, Beaufort, N. C. (Blood Poison.) "By use of A. I. M. I was cured in a few weeks." J. F. Wingard, Branchville, S. C.

ACID IRON MINERAL CO., J. H. Garst, Gen. Mgr., Salem, Va.
P. H. HALTIWANGER, Pres., Columbia, S. C.

NEW BERN MILITARY AGADEMY
NEW BERN, N. C.
Largest and best equipped Boarding School in Eastern Carolina. Several thousand dollars being spent in buildings and equipments. Electric Lights, Bath rooms, Water-Works, Foot-ball, Boat Racing, Base-ball. Faculty of nineteen Specialists (including lecture faculty.)

CAROLINA BUSINESS COLLEGE, NEW BERN, N. C.
Every graduate holding a position. Positions guaranteed. Railroad fare paid. Large and royal student body. Our best advertisement. Special Rates for July.
Write at once for beautifully illustrated catalogue.
S. J. HOLLADAY, President.

LOUISBURG COLLEGE. The 102d Year Begins Sept. 7, 1904.
AN ABLE AND THOROUGHLY INTERESTED FACULTY.
The number of students limited; securing to each Thorough Instruction; Careful Individual Training, under refining Home Influence. SPACIOUS GROUNDS FOR OUTDOOR ATHLETICS.
For Catalogue address,
M. S. DAVIS, A. M., President,
LOUISBURG, N. C.

....Chesapeake and Ohio Railway....
World's Fair Scenic Route
TO
St. Louis, Missouri.
SHORTEST, QUICKEST and BEST ROUTE. Vestibuled, Electric-Lighted Trains with Pullman Sleepers and Dining Cars.
Through tickets from North Carolina with direct connections.
SPECIAL RATES FOR SEASON, SIXTY OR FIFTEEN DAY TICKETS.
Fifteen day tickets from Raleigh, N. C., $24.80.
Sleeping car accommodations engaged upon application.
SPECIAL COACH EXCURSIONS
On authorized dates, tickets good for ten days at rate of $18.50. Correspondingly low rates from other stations. Special accommodations arranged for parties. Stop-overs permitted within limit at C. & O. celebrated mountain resorts.
USE THE C. & O. ROUTE and purchase your tickets accordingly.
For coach excursion dates, reservations and other information, address
W. O. WARTHEN, D. P. A., C. & O. Railway,
Richmond, Va.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC COMPANY.
..."SUNSET ROUTE."...
Lowest Rates and Through Service to California. Ask About Them.
Through the Rice and Oil Belt.
4 Daily Trains from New Orleans to Points in Louisiana; 3 to Texas; 2 to California and Mexico.
Best Trains, Best Service; Best Everything.
OIL BURNING LOCOMOTIVES.
Through Pullman Tourist Car from Washington, Atlanta, Montgomery and Intermediate points to California, Tri-Weekly.
No trouble to answer questions.
J. F. VAN RENSSELAER, General Agent. R. O. BRAN, T. P. A.,
ATLANTA, GA.

WE WANT YOUR MONEY!

BUT not until you can say "Here is the dollar. You deserve it," not until we Have Earned it, not until you are Willing to send it to us, not until you want to send it to us, not until you are Satisfied to pay it, not until we Have Proven to You that we have what we claim, not until VITAE-ORE HAS DONE FOR YOU WHAT YOU WANT IT TO DO FOR YOU. Until then you pay us Nothing. After that you will be willing to pay, glad to Pay, as hundreds of the readers of this paper, yea even thousands, have been willing and glad to pay. YOU ARE TO BE THE JUDGE. We leave it to you entirely for you to decide. If you can say that we, and Vitae-Ore, have earned your money, we want your money, as we say at the top, but NOT OTHERWISE. How can you refuse to give this most remarkable of all remarkable remedies—a natural, curing and healing mineral ore—a trial on the terms of such a LIBERAL OFFER? If you need medicinal treatment of any kind, if you are sick and ailing, if anyone in your family is ailing, poorly, worn out, sickly, it is actually a sin and a shame if you do not send for Vitae-Ore upon the terms of this thirty-day trial offer. Read the offer! Read it again and again! Send for the medicine! Do it to-day! Each day lost makes a case older, obstinate, harder, hurts you more, pains you more. We take all the risk; you have nothing to lose.

WE WILL SEND TO ALL

Subscribers or readers of RALEIGH CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE a full-sized $1.00 package of VITAE-ORE by mail, POSTPAID, sufficient for one month's treatment, to be paid for within one month's time after receipt, if the receiver can truthfully say that its use has done him or her more good than all the drugs and doses of quacks or good doctors or patent medicines he or she has ever used. Read this over again carefully, and understand that we ask our pay only when it has done you good and not before. If not, no money is wanted! WE TAKE ALL THE RISK; YOU HAVE NOTHING TO LOSE. If it does not benefit you, you pay us nothing. We give you thirty days' time to try the medicine, thirty days to see results before you need to pay us one cent, and you do not pay the one cent unless you do see the results YOU ARE TO BE THE JUDGE! We know Vitae Ore and are willing to take the risk.

Vitae-Ore is a natural, hard, adamantine, rock-like substance—mineral—Ore—mined from the ground like gold and silver in the neighborhood of a once powerful, but now extinct, mineral spring. It requires twenty years for oxidization by exposure to the air, when it sticks down like lime, and is then of medicinal value. It contains free iron, free sulphur, and free magnesium, three properties which are most essential for the retention of health in the human system, and one package—one ounce—of the ORE, when mixed with a quart of water, will equal in medicinal strength and curative value 800 gallons of the most powerful mineral water drank fresh from the springs. It is a geological discovery, in which there is nothing added or taken from. It is the marvel of the century for curing disease as thousands testify, and as no one, answering this, writing for a package, will deny after using. VITAE-ORE has cured more chronic, obstinate, pronounced incurable cases than any other known medicine, and will reach such cases with a more rapid and powerful curative action than any medicine, combination of medicines, or doctors' prescriptions which it is possible to procure.

Vitae-Ore will do the same for you as it has for hundreds of readers of RALEIGH CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, if you will give it a trial. Send for a $1 package at our risk. You have nothing to lose but the stamp to answer this announcement. We want no one's money whom Vitae Ore can not benefit. You are to be the judge! Can anything be more fair? What sensible person, no matter how prejudiced he or she may be, who desires a cure and is willing to pay for it would hesitate to try Vitae Ore on this liberal offer? One package is usually sufficient to cure ordinary cases; two or three for chronic, obstinate cases. We mean just what we say in this announcement, and will do just what we agree. Write today for a package at our risk and expense, giving age and ailments and mention RALEIGH CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, so we may know that you are entitled to this liberal offer.

A SERMON FOR DOUBTERS.

Preached by the Rev. John F. Balls, of Douglasville, Georgia, From His Own Personal Experience with this Remarkable Mineral Discovery

You Who Need, Read and Heed.

For several years past I have been suffering from a complication of diseases—Catarrh, Kidney Trouble, Indigestion, and sometimes acute constipation, Lumbago, and Nervous Prostration. I had pains in my back for thirteen months; my nervous system was shattered; I could not sleep well at night; what I ate did not agree with me; was all run down, so much so that my good brethren of the North Georgia Conference M. E. church, So'h, said that I must rest and placed me on the superannuated list. It was then that I learned of Vitæ Ore. After using this mineral remedy for three months I can sleep like a child; my food is properly digested; my nervous system very much improved; my back has not hurt me for two months past; Catarrh is nearly gone; Constipation a thing of the past, and my general health is better than in many years. I had tried physicians and numerous remedies, but found only temporary relief after months of trial. Under a good God I attribute my present portion of health to Vitæ Ore and I speak its praise, because it is the bridge which is carrying me over to the land of complete health. To all who are ailing I say, take Vitæ Ore, regain your lost health, and go on, rejoicing along life's journey.

REV. JNO. F. BALLS,
Douglasville, Ga. (Of the North Georgia Annual Conference, M.E. Church, So'h.)

What CATARRH Is:

Many of the troubles and disorders which VITÆ ORE is advertised to cure may be traced to a Catarrhal condition of some part or the body. Most people connect the word Catarrh only with a disorder of the head or throat, but such inference is not correct.

Catarrh, as defined by Webster, is an inflammatory affection of any mucous membrane, any condition in which there are congestion, swelling, morbid action or any alteration in the quantity and quality of mucous secreted. It can consequently be present in any part of the body where there is a mucous membrane, the head, nose, throat, stomach, intestines, bowels, bladder, kidneys and generative organs, and as a clot of dust will impair the workings of the finest watch, so a catarrhal condition of any organ will enfeeble its power, prevent the proper functional activity and capacity, and result in a complication of ills of many names and symptoms, treated in many different ways, but no cure is possible unless the Catarrhal condition, the primary cause, is checked and removed.

To successfully treat catarrh of any part it is necessary to use medicaments which possess the power of allaying inflammation, arresting morbid action and of purifying diseased mucous.

VITÆ ORE will positively cure Catarrh of any organ or part of the body, need for the different conditions in the several ways prescribed in our printed directions. It is a natural astringent, presenting qualities as such which it seems impossible to duplicate in any manufactured or artificial product and immediately allays all inflammation, stops all morbid or irregular action on the membrane, eradicates all catarrhal conditions and places each organ in a natural, normal, healthy condition, so as to faithfully perform its individual function and restores the entire system to a state of entire and perfect health.

Its action is certain, and results sure. It can be relied upon to reach every case more promptly and effectively than any treatment, combination of remedies or doctor's prescription that can be procured and cure completely as well as permanently. Patients afflicted with catarrh of any part should not delay treatment, as delay means a spread of the disease to other parts, a more aggravated condition from month to month and more difficulty in effecting a cure. VITÆ ORE has cured thousands upon thousands of cases, as the multitude of testimonials in our indexes shows, many of them in which the patient was at such a stage that hope was given up, recalling them from the shadow of the grave.

A Certain and Never Failing Cure for Rheumatism,

Bright's Disease and Dropsy.
LaGrippe,
Blood Poisoning,
Sores and Ulcers,
Malarial Fever,
Nervous Prostration and Anaemia,
Liver, Kidney and Bladder Troubles,
Catarrh of any part,
Female Complaints,
Stomach and
Bowel Disorders.
General Debility.

Trial Package Entirely Cured.

Mrs. J. F. Morris Tells of Wonderful Results.

I cannot express my gratitude for the great and lasting good that Vitæ Ore has done me. I had been taking medicine ever since October, 1902, when I was first stricken down with my disease, a complication of Liver, Kidney and Bladder disorders. I took several different kinds of patent medicines, but none of them did me any good. My husband then called a doctor. He came a few times and then dismissed the case. He then called in two more doctors, the best this country affords, and one of them treated me two or three months, but he only gave me temporary relief. I dragged along all last year, never feeling like myself. In the fall I grew worse and again went to my physician and he treated me about 8 weeks. I was almost ready to give up. I did not know how near death's door I was until a neighbor told me after I began to get better. Some one of my neighbors advised me to send for some Vitæ Ore on trial, but I told my husband not to bother with it, as I thought nothing could help me. He sent for the treatment without my consent, and I now consider it the greatest favor he ever did for me. One month's trial package has saved my life. I think I can safely say I that I would have been in my grave today had it not been for this Vitæ Ore. I have only taken the one trial package, but I feel that I am entirely well. When I commenced its use I weighed 98 pounds, but now I weigh 110 pounds. I would not be without Vitæ Ore. I would not give this medicine for all the medicine in the world. I am willing to do all I can to help its cause.

MRS J. F. MORRIS, Stevens, Tex.

Middle Aged and Elderly People Should Use It.

As old age approaches the necessity for such a tonic as Vitæ Ore becomes each year more and more manifest. As is generally known, all through life there is a slow, steady accumulation of calcareous deposits in the system, marking the transition from the soft, gelatinous condition of infancy to the hard, osseous condition of old age. These calcareous deposits naturally interfere with the functions of the vital organs. In early life these deposits are thrown off, but age has not the power to do so unless assisted by some outside stimulant. Vitæ Ore is just the ideal stimulant for middle-aged elderly people. It enriches the blood, with the necessary hemantinic properties, drives all foreign matter from the circulation and prolongs vigor and activity in both men and women to a ripe old age.

Not a Penny Unless Benefited!

This offer will challenge the attention and consideration, and afterward the gratitude of every living person who desires better health or who suffers pains, ills and diseases which have defied the medical world and grown worse with age. We care not for your skepticism, but ask only your investigation, and at our expense, regardless of what ills you have, by sending to us for a package. ADDRESS,

THEO. NOEL CO. S. W. DEPARTMENT Vitæ Ore Building Chicago.

LIBRARY OF TRINITY COLLEGE NO. CAROLINA

Reading Room Trinity College

Raleigh Christian Advocate

FIFTIETH YEAR. ORGAN OF THE NORTH CAROLINA CONFERENCE. NUMBER 36.

RALEIGH, N. C., WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 5, 1904.

Editorial

THE "CLUTCH" IN AMERICAN LIFE.

We do not mean the visible "clutch," when a man who feels it knows exactly who has clutched him, but we mean the invisible "clutch," when the man knows exactly what or who has clutched him or hit him. And this kind is making Americans a "peculiar people."

We have just been reading of a little side-play in the great political drama of 1900, in which a State that had gone Democratic in 1896 gave the Republicans in 1900 a majority of 10,000. The little side-play was this: The chief man of the town was a "doubtful." Just before the election he found the Chairman of the National Committee of the hitherto weaker party writing to him in confidence. Our "doubtful" suddenly found himself elected to the deaconship of his church—an office to which he had long aspired. He was at once importuned to give a county picnic in celebration of his great success in matters ecclesiastical. The pic-nic was a success. On the pic-nic grounds the people fairly swarmed. By "accident" there happened to pass by the candidate for Congress in that District. This candidate "happened" to have with him two fine orators. The politicians, of course, were invited to make a few remarks. Our "doubtful," all doubt and hesitation thrown to the winds, announced his return to this political fold. The old man did not know what had hit him, and the managers were glad. The party that had been defeated in 1896 elected its men this time, and that by ten thousand majority. This is a fine illustration of the "invisible clutch" in the political world.

Are you reading in Everybody's Magazine Thomas W. Lawson's series of articles on "Frenzied Finance?" If not, you are missing something. In words that hiss and sting, he tells how men can take stock worth $39,000,000 and declare on it in one night a practical dividend of 38,000,000 dollars—a dividend, which is not called a dividend, but which goes all the same into the coffers of living men. Mr. Lawson in his bold, quick, luminous disclosures throws the rays of a great searchlight on the hidden wheels of that machine which, while making golden dollars out of mist and moonshine for the hidden few, grinds into powder the struggling, mystified many. It is a long way from a counting room on Wall Street, to the lowly home of the day laborer, yet Mr. Lawson shows that it is not too long for the strong hand of a keen, conscienceless financier to reach through the whole distance and clutch the cooing baby in its cradle. Mr. Lawson most powerfully illustrates the "invisible clutch" in the domain of finance.

The workman wringing the perspiration from his brow and doffing his overalls, passes the grocery store on his homeward way. He stops to get provisions. He learns that flour has advanced suddenly. He knows not why, and he does not care to inquire, but the "invisible clutch" is upon him. Its nerve force is generated a thousand miles away, perhaps in a little office where a man sees that it is possible for him to make a million in an hour.

Yes, this is a land of invisible wires and wheels within wheels. The fact is, a most dangerous symptom in the diagnosis of our body politic. It means the frenzied rioting of Power which never stops to think of whom it may crush. It means the weakening of the spirit of true government in which every man is supposed to be invested with the ability to protect himself and survive. It means the puppetism of American manhood, and the degradation of American freedom.

The "hidden hand" whether moving before the altar of the church or out among the great masses of toiling, suffering humanity is always a menace to all that is good and true. "More light" is our one logical prayer—not only light from above for the darkness of the soul, but that light which reveals to every human agent his true motive and the true motive of every man within whose sphere of influence he may move. This, and this alone, is in accordance with the spirit of Him who came as the Light of the World.

LET NOT THE RIGHT ARM ROB THE LEFT.

The two Arms took advantage of the Master's noonday rest one day to engage in a conversation respecting themselves.

Right Arm said to Left Arm: "Why are you so small, while I am so large? See how my muscles stand out. Yours are hardly larger than the handle of the hammer over there."

Left Arm replied: "You have part of me. If the Master had used me as much as he has used you, you could not have robbed me of my own. It is in bad taste for the robber to taunt his victim."

"Yes," replied Right Arm, "but you should remember that it is all to the advantage of the Master. What you have lost and I have gained is added to the strength of the Master."

"You are wrong," said the Master. "I am no stronger than I was when I began. Right Arm has no just reason for boasting of its strength."

Haec fabula docet: That the preacher who puts his extra strength into, say, foreign and domestic missions collections and succeeds in raising them, while the other collections are neglected, has no reason for feeling especially elated. For he has added nothing to the general strength of the church. What Right Arm has gained, Left Arm has lost, and the church is in a sense where it was before. The interests of our beneficiaries, church extension, education, the conference organ, Orphanage, and other causes, cannot be neglected even to the advantage of such an important enterprise as missions. All are equally vital when it comes to supporting them.

We have often wondered why, for instance, some preachers take special pleasure in reporting missionary collections in full, while only a small per cent of the other collections has been paid; or that the Bishop's collection is in full while the missionary collections are not in full.

We cannot understand how some preachers can feel that they have no time to work for the Conference organ and that they can make a good report when they have done nothing for this interest. Surely, there is no better way to advance the spiritual interests of their people, increase their intelligence, liberality, and energy than by getting them to read their church paper. Is this true? Ask preachers who have tried. They are the proper ones to answer. Their answer is sufficient to cause the preacher who habitually neglects the Conference organ to realize that he has made the gravest mistake in his whole ministry.

GREENSBORO FEMALE COLLEGE.

In a few days this institution will have opened its doors once more to the womanhood of our State. It is but a trite prophecy that the opening will be full of encouragement to the many friends of the College.

Success is deserved and expected for the following reasons:

1. The College has made a most heroic struggle for existence under circumstances which would have appalled almost any other people than ours.

2. Success has crowned the efforts of the friends of the institution which is about ready to open in a larger and better equipped building.

3. The Faculty for the following year represents the best and highest scholarship and training ability.

The slight delay in opening is attributable to unforeseen circumstances, and will in the long run, work no detriment, as it will insure more perfect arrangements in the heating plant.

Now is the time for Methodism to signalize her devotion to the cause of the education of her girls by sending those girls to Greensboro Female College by the opening day.

AFTER THE WRONG MAN.

The following card has been received from Rev. G. T. Simmons:

Youngsville, N. C., Sept. 30, 1904.

My Dear Dr. Ivey:—You state in this week's Advocate that the presidency of the United States is the highest position in the world. I beg to differ. I am holding a higher position, and, if I know myself, wouldn't swap.

GEO. T. SIMMONS.

You are right, Brother Simmons, in all points save one, and that one is where you ascribe to us a statement which we never made. We never were at Esopus. We never met Judge Parker. We never made any statement as to the Presidency. You must get after our rotund J. V. Williams. He is the author of the communication, "At Esopus" published in last week's Advocate. For some reason his name was not published with the communication.

Right here, it is well for us to make two statements:

1. All that we write appears on the editorial pages.

2. We do not assume responsibility for all the views, opinions, and doctrines of our correspondents.

As far as J. V. Williams is concerned, he is able to take care of himself.

The editor of the Central Methodist, in closing his notes on the recent session of the Kentucky Conference, says: "Before closing these notes we might make mention of the fact that only once during the entire Conference did we see a preacher in the neighborhood of the church smoking a cigar." We wonder if the same may be said by a writer in closing his notes on the next annual session of the North Carolina Conference.

Contributions

Georgia Letter.

BY GEORGE G. SMITH.

I have been reading again the Acts of the Apostles and endeavoring to see whether there is to be found in these days any reproduction of the events then accorded or anything corresponding to them. I have just read that graphic account of the healing of the man at the beautiful gate and the subsequent events, the arrest of the apostles and their arrangement before the priests and the Sadducees, and I find in it the Hostility of Rationalists to Vital Christianity, as exhibited then and reproduced now. The heart of the world undergoes no change, the antagonism to the good has not abated with the lapse of centuries, the Sadducees are reproduced in all lands, and have the same spirit that belonged to them in the days of the apostle. They were not grossly immoral men; they were not avowed atheists or even agnostics; they professed to believe in Jehovah; they believed in the church, as an institution, and were loyal to it; they believed in the moral code provided it did not conflict with their temper or their traditions. They did not believe in immorality or in the supernatural. They had bitterly antagonized the Lord and had never ceased their persecutions until they had secured his crucifixion and had seen the sepulchre sealed, and they were now enraged when they found that the men who had been with him came boldly forward and declared that the crucified one was living and exalted at the right hand of God, a Prince and a Saviour; and he had given them miraculous powers. They were boldly proclaiming as a truth that Christ was king, and thousands followed them and they had dared in the very temple itself to proclaim this fact, and but recently had worked a pretended miracle, which the idiotic people believed to be genuine, and were boldly promising the people a life immortal. They must be arrested and this fanaticism must be checked.

There was one way and only one to do this, and that was by decided, and if need be, violent measures. These men must be arrested and imprisoned and threatened.

We read this account as if it were ancient history with which we are unconcerned. The Sadducees, we say, are a long time dead. Persecution is out of date. Men are free to say what they think, and no one forbids them, but alas! the facts are "that the Sadducees still live, and men are not any more free to speak what they think now, without penalty, than they were in those days." The Sadducees, of the days of the Apostles, were simply the rationalists of the present day. They were not licentious nor grossly immoral. They were devoted to the church as a civil institution, but the doctrines of the Apostles, and before them of Jesus Christ, were to be opposed by all means in their power as irrational and dangerous. There are in every community scores and hundreds who sympathize with the Sadducees in all their views. You many advocate the existence of God and they will not say nay. You may advance the obligations of morality and benevolence and they will not say nay. You may have nominal connection with a church and they will not object. It is only when you stress the doctrines, of vital religion, that they find you are an enthusiast, a crank, impracticable, and decidedly an uncomfortable preacher. These Sadducees are in Sessions. Presbyteries, and Official Boards. They are deacons pronounced outside of it. The world will love its own and will use every agency to cast odium on these who antagonize it. Those who think by preaching the full truth that they will secure its favors, will find themselves sadly mistaken. There is only one way to do to secure it, and that is to fall in with its views and advocate them. It will laud you, caress you, and reward you, if you do that, but if you do not, you may prepare for its malediction. Universal popularity is a sure sign of unfaithfulness to God—who suppose that the public press, the boards of trust of public institutions, that men in power are going to approve the course of those who are pronounced in their advocacy of vital godliness and of the supernatural, are much mistaken.

With the knowledge that this is to be the result, what must the true man of God do?

Why, he has but one thing to do. He must obey God rather than man.

The subservience of the ministry to the world is its deepest shame. The man who is so afraid of losing public favor, or so anxious to secure it that he forgets he has a message from heaven, is unworthy of his place.

It is simply impossible to make Christian truth palatable to the natural man. It is not contrary to reason, but it is above it, and it deals in mysteries too profound for explanation. The supernatural birth of Jesus Christ, His miraculous power, His infallible wisdom, his resurrection, His atonement and his ascension, are all of them mysteries, but they are inseparable from Christianity, and they are the power of God. Preached boldly, they always bring conviction to the people, but not often popular favor to the preacher.

The preachers are not put in dungeons now; they are simply driven from their pastorates and subjected to the censures of those whom they displease. There never was a time when the man who proclaims the truth, and does not strive to secure the favor of the world was more needed than now, and there never was a time when he was less in demand. The Sadducees are here, and the spirit of the Sadducees is here, but thank God there are men like Peter and John here too, and they have no fear of being put in the hold and scourged in the dungeons. They believe in God and they hear His voice and obey it.

Macon, Ga.

Letter from Brazil.

Collegio Americano.
Petropolis, Brazil,
August 30, 1904.

Dear Dr. Ivey:—I hope that the above heading will become very familiar to you and the readers of the Advocate before the year is over. As you will easily see, it means "the American College at Petropolis," and is my station in this mission field.

Most of you know that it is a girls' boarding school, and that Petropolis is the city founded by Dom Pedro II., up in the mountains near Rio, to escape the heat of that city during the summer months, which here fall in December, January, February, and March! It is indeed "beautiful for situation," and as many, if not all, of the diplomats accredited to this country make this their home during the entire year, it is a city of beautiful homes and many outward evidences of wealth. The President's summer palace is here; but it is not so large, nor are the grounds so extensive, as our own Governor's Mansion.

Our school is located on the outskirts of the city, not far from the palaces of the Papal Nunico and the Italian Minister. It was built for a handsome private residence, half-way up a rather high and steep hill, upon a plateau leveled in the hillside, and is a very handsome place, and well adapted to school purposes, some changes having been made when purchased by our Board. It is so high up that city water cannot reach us, so our supply comes from a private source, and is forced up into the great tank under the roof by a hydraulic ram—which sometimes breaks—and then we begin to realize what a precious thing water is!

The house consists of two stories, the ground floor being devoted to the school-rooms, music-rooms, etc., and the upper floor used for living-rooms. Our boarding department is larger than ever before, except once, and our enrollment is greater than it has ever been at this time. So we feel much encouraged, and hope that the dark days through which the school has passed were only the harbinger of the dawn, and that we are entering upon an epoch of brilliant success.

Our pupils are very good girls—take them on an average! A number are members of the church; and members of Christ also, we trust. We have one pupil teacher who has a very fair knowledge of English, and would be much benefited by a course of study in the States, if the way should open, a year or two hence.

The principal of the school is Miss E. B. Perkinson, of Missouri, who has been on the field about ten years, having made one visit home in that time, attending the meeting of the Woman's Board in Asheville during her furlough, and thus being known to a number of our workers in the North Carolina Conference. She and I are the only Americans connected with the school, and having worked together before during my first year in Brazil, are already prepared to work shoulder to shoulder, and eye to eye, here.

Conference was held here just as our school opened, about the first of August. No Bishop could be with us, but we were blessed by the presence of Dr. Lambuth. The closing act of the Conference—done the morning after the appointments were read—was the laying of the corner-stone of our new church—the old house, one which was bought and remodeled, having been declared unsafe. We hope to have it finished and occupied by the middle of November. The enclosure was beautified by bamboos and flags, and the crowd that assembled seemed much impressed with the services. Pray that this may be indeed a temple of the Lord, hallowed by His presence and honored by being the birth-place of many souls for the kingdom of heaven. The people here treat us kindly, and during Conference, so many came to our meetings that the Bishop here issued a command to his flock to stay away from us, which, of course, only attracted more attention to us. It is a sign that the waters are stirred when opposition is excited.

Pray that we may act in all things as our Master would have us do, and that He may use us greatly in the building up of His kingdom, here in beautiful Brazil, that needs only the light of the Gospel to bloom more gloriously than the rose.

Your fellow-servant and sister,
MARY T. PESCUD.

Facts About the Bible Cause.

Last winter the American Bible Society was confronted with a financial crisis, brought on specially by the failure of legacies, which have heretofore been a chief means of sustaining the work. But through the prompt and liberal response of many individuals, churches and local societies, the immediate danger was averted and the work which was threatened with injurious curtailment has gone on. For this general and widespread help, and the help which it brought, we are very thankful.

But the legacies continue to fail us, and are much smaller this year than last, so that, although the gifts after living are larger, the receipts upon the whole are considerably behind those of a year ago. Thus again the work is endangered.

On the other hand, its opportunities were never so inviting. Doors on many sides stand wide open, and calls loud and many are coming up, not only for the continued prosecution of the work, but the large extension of its operations.

The history of the last year teaches us plainly that the American Bible Society can no more, as in times past, depend upon legacies to sustain this work. They are always an uncertain source of income; and this work is too important in itself, and too many interests depends upon it, for it to be left to doubtful contingency of friends at their death remembering it in their wills. Henceforth we must look to the regular gifts of the living, and especially the systematic contributions of the churches, to provide the means for disseminating God's living word.

Recent experience convinces us, too, that our Christian people are willing to give to this cause when they hear its wants and have the opportunity presented. And many Conferences, as well as other branches of the church, are moving up to a higher standard in their gifts to it. Will not the North Carolina Conference, always liberal and responsive toward any good work, take its place this year in the front ranks of the supporters of this blessed work?

T. H. LAW, Field Agent.

False Sentiment the Bane of Penal Law.

The Late Charlton T. Lewis, LL. D., President National Prison Association, New York City.

In framing the laws and administering the government, there can be but one universal aim in view: to promote the good of the community as a whole. This simple rule is the test of merit and success in every act of legislation and of administration.

But in the domain of penal law we find another principle in control. No body of laws has ever been framed for the treatment of criminals, with the good of the community as the avowed end in view. The system is founded on a cruder idea, inconsistent with the scientific character of legislation for other interests.

No standard of justice can be applied to sentences for crime. No two codes agree as to the relative guilt of offenses. The differences are so wide as to show that any such standard is unattainable.

For example, the longest sentence for bigamy in one State is one year, in another twenty-one years; a perjurer in one can only be fined, in another shut up for five years, and in still another for life. In Kentucky incest is punished more than four times as severely as perjury, but across the river, in Indiana, perjury is more than four times as heinous as incest. For burglary, under mitigating circumstances, a fine of $10 is imposed in New Jersey, but in Alabama the burglar is imprisoned a year, and in other States for many years. Such illustrations are multiplied upon every page of our penal laws. Nor are these extraordinary discrepancies corrected in practice by the courts. The actual records of the prisons show that the average sentence passed for perjury is ten times as long in Florida as in Maine; that for incest is fifteen times as long in Louisiana as in Pennsylvania; that for rape is seventeen times as long in New Mexico and twelve times as long in Texas as in Louisiana; that for robbery is twelve times as long in Alabama as in Delaware, and nineteen times as long in Arizona as in California. If the purpose of penal law is to do justice, which of the States attains it?

Thus the notion of retributive justive in penal law is a mockery and a delusion. There is no semblance to comparative equity in such awards. The difficulty is not in the lack of intelligence or of righteous purpose in the framers of the laws or in the courts. It is the impossibility of the task they undertake. There is no measure of guilt known to the human mind.

Conscientious, careful and humane as judges almost always are in this duty, yet in multitudes of instances sentences are passed of surprising severity or mildness, because of some characteristic or some passing mood of the judge himself. Two neighboring courts often differ enormously in their sentences for like offenses under like circumstances; and even the same court varies in its views of duty. Whichever way we turn, the attempt to punish as befits the offense, results in multiplied absurdities.

What can scientific method do for the reform of penal law? The first step must be to select the end to be sought. This is evidently the good of the community. In dealing with crime, as in every other work of government, the welfare of the whole body of citizens is the purpose to aim at the protection of civil order and of the rights of person and property; in short, the elimination of crime.

How then shall it deal with thee riminal? The answer is obvious. If a man is such in nature or habit that he cannot be a member of a free society, and that his fellows are not secure while he is free, he must be removed. I shall not now discuss the best way to remove him. Let us admit, for the present, that we have no better place to dispose of him than in a prison. Then let him be confined. But for how long? Plainly, the only and sufficient reason for confining him is that he cannot be in liberty consistently with the safety of the community. Then he must of course be kept in prison as long as this reason holds good. Let him be imprisoned until he gives satisfactory evidence that he can be released without danger to the rights of his fellows.

Every habitual criminal, every criminal by inheritance and natural bent who cannot be brought into harmony with law and civil order by social influences, must be secluded until his character is changed. If this cannot be brought about, he must remain the ward of the State, supporting himself as far as possible by enforced labor while he lives.

On the other hand, since there is no good reason for imprisoning a man except for the protection of society, no man should be consigned to prison until it is shown that he cannot be at large with safety to others. This simple principle would narrowly limit the use of jails. We are prodigal of them now and hold in confinement many thousands without the only justification possible. What then shall be done with the multitude of casual offenders who throng our courts? The question is to be decided upon the same principle—the welfare of the community. Experience shows that the system of imprisonment of minor offenders for short terms is but a gigantic measure for the manufacture of criminals. Our county jails everywhere are the schools and colleges of crime. In the light of social science, it were better for the world if every one of them were destroyed than that this work should be continued. But, as houses of detention, properly constructed and widely used, they might be made useful aids in our jurisprudence.

The true method of dealing with first offenders is indicated by the wonderful success of the probation laws in some States. When a person has broken the law and shows a tendency to bad associations and habits, but is not confirmed in crime, let him be placed under the protection and guardianship of the community, exercised by competent agents, and encouraged by the strongest motives to lead an orderly life. Under the probation laws he must report constantly to his probation officer, and is kept under scrutiny, so that any irregularity will be followed by arrest and imprisonment for the original offense. The motive is found strong enough, in a vast majority of instances, to inspire a fixed purpose and secure an honest life; and thus multitudes who, by making them "jail-birds," would have permanently reinforced the criminal class, are saved to society.

These laws are the most important and valuable experiment ever tried in penal science. But they are only an experiment, pointing the way to further and larger successes in the same direction. They teach us that freedom, not confinement, is the natural state of man, and the only condition under which influences for reformation can have their full efficiency. They indicate that a well-organized community would itself be the guardian and probation officer of its erring members; and that the ideal of civilization would include the compassing of such weak and halting persons with most natures, would prove so potent that the recruits of the criminal class would be few. It is in the vast extension of the principle of probation and in bringing to its support the powers of social life, under the guidance of a strong and intelligent public opinion, that the greatest improvement in penal law is to be expected.

Probation will doubtless prove by experience to be inapplicable to some cases, though these will surely be but a small fraction of the vast body of offenders. For these exceptions we have as yet nothing better than the system of reformatory discipline in confinement, which has already, in many States, begun to take the place of the slavery to which convicts are traditionally subjected. The principle of the indeterminate sentence once admitted, it becomes the duty of the State, when offenders in freedom would be dangerous to society and to themselves, to hold them safely imprisoned; but under all the influences which can be brought to bear upon their minds and characters, to fit them for release. Here again success depends mainly upon the strength of motive to which appeal can be made. And in nearly every case the principle of the indeterminate sentence affords of itself the strongest motive possible. From the first day the prisoner has freedom in sight, to be earned by himself. If he resolutely submits to discipline, forms regular habits of industry and obedience and reconstruct his life on the basis of honest citizenship, the door of his prison will open, and the world will be before him as his success becomes established.

Go Forward.

N. H. D. WILSON.

Rev. Julius Magath, born a Hebrew, now set apart by the two Georgia Conferences in the providence of God as a missionary to the Jews, has an exceedingly important article in the last "Go Forward." He calls the attention of the church to certain great facts.

(1) There are 1,127,268 Jews in the United States, and they are increasing rapidly.

(2) There is almost total neglect of them by the church, especially in the South.

(3) They need Christ. Many are totally without a religion. All need the regenerating and sanctifying of the Gospel.

(4) Finally, from his own experience, he believes that properly approached, they gladly hear. Let the church awake and lovingly lead the Nation to its Messiah.

In the same issue, Rev. C. G. Hounshell gives an account of "A Glorious Revival" in Korea. Beginning in the hearts of the missionaries with much searching of motive and purpose and growing into prayer, it spreads throughout the Chakol Church, Seoul. Many were reached. They sought and received pardon, made public confession and restitution and manifested in every way clear-cut conversion. Men and women and children, lowly and educated, sought and found Christ.

We sometimes ask whether the "heathen" make good Christians. One of them at least, reported in the "Go Forward" by Rev. J. F. Flores, sets a worthy example to those from birth "Christians." Senora Josefa de Ramirez, a Mexican widow in the bounds of the Marfa Mexican Mission, afflicted in many ways, blind for eighteen years, subsisting on aid from the county, out of her pittance saved her mites until she laid by ten dollars. This she gave toward a Bible school in connection with "Instituto Laurens," at Monterey, Mexico, to prepare young Mexican brethren for the ministry. Oh that such a spirit pervaded the whole church!

If one reads the record which Mrs. W. H. Park, Soochow, China, gives of her work for three days, he will never doubt that the missionaries certainly have "plenty to do." These and other articles and items make the September "Go Forward" an instructive and inspiring periodical. It is a great pity that it is not in every Methodist home.

The just man is the happiest man. His life glides on as peaceably as thou ndisturbed waters of a clear rivulet slowly flowing through meadows enamled with flowers. As they do, the just man marks his paces by benefits, and leaves after him felicity, plenty and joy; as they also, he is thirsted after, desired, cherished and regretted. Wherever he goes hearts seem flying to atten upon his steps. The father shows him to his son, and dies content to see him so well replaced, like unto the rays of the sun, which after a gloomy storm, break out to recreate with their presence, and animate by their warmth the languid and lifeless fields. The just brings everywhere along with him happiness and comfort.—Great Thoughts.

There is nothing more emphasized in Gospel than that "Whosoever shall confess me before men, him will I confess before my Father and the holy angels. But if any man deny me before men, him will I deny." "Ye are my witnesses," said Christ, and that means, literally, "my martyrs." The words are the same. Every Christian is a potential martyr, that is to say, may find himself in circumstances when he must choose between the faith he professes and death; and this world is not so changed yet but that they may who really confess Christ have to suffer for it.—James Stalker.

The Field

Cheering Words.

Arapahoe, N. C., September 27, 1904.

I will try to write a few words for the Advocate. It is harvest time now with the farmers, and I wonder if our brethren are thinking or praying for the harvesting of poor fallen humanity. Are all of our folks going through their neighborhood speaking some comforting word to those who are in need of such words of affection. There are those who are out of the church whom some one could use their idle moments in convincing that there is a reality in the church of God. Then there are those who are in the church who are poor, who haven't had the advantages of life to be as nicely dressed as the more prosperous classes of people, and a great many of these poor people are held down by the church members of this higher class. I think we need more of the spirit of the poet in our midst when he said: Sacrifice is gold in Heaven. Help a little, help to lift each fallen brother. Help just a little. There are some men who watch their brothers, and if they don't do justly in their dealings with their fellowmen they then and there make a remark similar to this: I told you so. I heard him pray last Sunday in Sunday-school, and he cried like a whipped child, and I knew it was put on. Our people ought to make up and go to praying, and not only to praying, but to working for the one who died on Calvary. Let us live more for each other in the future than we have in the past. Awake ye who sleep, for the Savior is coming again to gather His jewels.

I will close. May God bless and receive us all in Heaven by and by. I remain,

HILARY BOWDEN.

Some Good Meetings.

We closed our last protracted services the fourth Saturday in August. We began with the hope that interest might increase as the meetings progressed, and so it was.

The brethren who assisted us gave us good sermons, and in each case the congregation seemed pleased with the preaching.

At Union, Bro. W. F. Galloway, of Hatteras, did all of the preaching, and the preaching was good. Our people expressed themselves as being highly pleased, and the services were very interesting from the beginning. The church was revived and many evidences of permanent good stand out yet. Many of our people expressed themselves as never having enjoyed a meeting more.

At Newbegun the pastor did the most of the preaching, though we were glad to see and have with us Professor Hornaday, of Trinity Park School, and Rev. A. J. Parker. These brethren brought with them the blessing of cheer and interest in the Master's work.

Rev. L. B. Jones was with us at Halls Creek, and from the words of kindness we heard we do not feel that we are saying too much for our people when we say that they were highly pleased with his services.

At Mt. Herman Bro. W. E. Hocutt was present and did the preaching, to the satisfaction and delight of his many friends there. Brother Hocutt was pastor of this circuit a few years ago, and still has a very warm place in the hearts of these people. They love Brother Hocutt—we all love him. His work during the week resulted in the conversion of many souls. All our meetings have been a great success in many ways, souls have been saved and church members reclaimed.

We are closing our year's work with as few regrets as we ever closed a year's work. Our finance is in good shape. We have paid off the district parsonage debt of $90, raised many other smaller claims, painted two churches, have all our Conference collections secured, and a goodly number of additions to the church on profession of faith. The circuit is in good condition throughout. In fact, this is one of the best circuits in the Conference. We have some over 350 members and no kickers, and very few anti-missionaries, both of whom are much feared when found in large flocks.

There has been an increase of over 300 per cent in the number of family altars on this work this year.

The preacher whose lot it may be to serve this people next year may expect to find a good people to serve. I hope the Elder has me in mind for this place.

We all love our Elder, and feel sure that he will endeavor to do the best for us all when he comes face to face with the Bishop.

W. F. JONES.

A Message.

Through the courtesy of his brethren of the church press, the Epworth League Secretary and editor has the privilege of addressing the pastors and League workers in this general and effective way. The League has greatly improved and prospered during the past year. The statistics of the Annual Conference have yet to be compiled, but we are confident that they will show that the League has fully held its own. Great advance has been made in our plans and great improvements in all our League literature. The Reading Courses for Senior, Intermediate and Junior Leagues have been carefully and successfully selected. The League Bible Circle Studies, which are pronounced by competent critics to be the best work yet done for the young people of the churches, enters its second year greatly enlarged in its scope and improved.

The Epworth Era, now printing a splendid Magazine Edition of twenty-four and thirty-two pages, is growing in favor and circulation as never before. The editor's motto: "A paper equal to the best, and a successful competitor of the popular magazines of the day, "is meeting with a response from every quarter. This note is written to ask all our people, young and old, to send us for samples of this literature, as well as for samples of the Epworth Era. They will be mailed to you without cost, post free. The League has entered upon a new and prophetic era of activity and success. Our wish is to interest all our people in its plans and fellowships. It has brought to the church a new impulse of life and testimony. Let us hear from you. A postal card will secure samples of all helps and booklets, and a sample copy of the Epworth Era.

Faithfully,

H. M. DuBOSE.
General Secretary.

Nashville, Tenn.

Meetings.

We are just at the close of our second meeting since we last wrote you. This completes our protracted services for the year.

Our first of the two above-mentioned was at Hebron, the smallest church on the charge, it having then only forty-nine members. There were three conversions and three accessions to the church. The writer did all of the preaching.

The second was at Savages, and it was a glorious meeting. There were some fifteen or twenty conversions and a goodly number of backsliders reclaimed. The church is in a far better condition now than it has been for some time. Fifteen gave their names for membership in our church.

During this meeting Brother Underwood preached three strong sermons for us, and Brother Parker, of Whalleyville, Va., preached one.

Our fourth quarterly conference was held on Friday during the meeting, and though the salaries were not up in full the stewards assured us that they would be. The other collections are almost up at present.

We expect to carry a good report to Conference.

W. H. BROWN, P. C.

Elise Circuit.

We have just closed the last one of our six meetings.

Our meeting for Tyre began the first Sunday in September, closing the following Friday, the visible results being some twenty conversions, fourteen accessions, the church revived, and the salary and collections all pledged.

The second Sunday and the week following was our meeting at Mt. Carmel. It was a time long to be remembered by us all, because of the outpouring of the Holy Spirit, and souls being born into the kingdom of God. We added eight to our church, and sent several to our sister churches.

We commenced the meeting at Pleasant Hill the third Sunday, and closed Tuesday night after the fourth Sunday. Brother Broom, of Carthage Circuit, came to our assistance the first Monday of the meeting, and preached, to the edification of all who heard him, till Friday evening. The Word was accompanied by the power of the Holy Ghost, and both young and old were happily converted. Some thirty conversions and twenty-seven accessions. We have had good meetings at all the churches, but the last resulting in the greatest ingathering.

We are now on the "home stretch" to bring up the finances of the work.

J. W. HOYLE.

Hemp, N. C., October 1, 1904.

Youngsville Circuit.

Youngsville, N. C., Sept. 26, 1904.

I have held five meetings on Youngsville Circuit. The first was held at Youngsville, in the spring and summer, beginning at 11 o'clock, fifth Sunday in May, and running through the 6th of June. Rev. Mr. Justice, of the Missionary Baptist Church, preached for me once, and Rev. Mr. Foster, of the Christian Church, twice. Except that a very few of the saints expressed a desire for a closer walk with God, there was no visible interest. Brother Justice has since held a week's meeting in the Baptist Church, with like results. During my other four meetings several, perhaps half dozen or more, knelt for prayer, in the congregation, none of whom made a profession of salvation. Twenty-five presented themselves at the altar, twenty-three of whom professed to be saved. Rev. Mr. Morris, Missionary Baptist, preached once at Leah's. While on my way to the last of these meetings, first Sunday in September, wife was taken sick and had to be brought home the following Saturday on an ambulance, hence this meeting closed before I intended it should. Wife is now nearly well, having escaped what we feared typhoid fever. One more meeting yet to hold. Conference collections considerably behind, but ahead of the report to Annual Conference last year. I am laboring and praying for one hundred per cent.

Sincerely,

GEO. T. SIMMONS.

Trinity College Notes.

Trinity College, Durham, N. C., Sept. 30, 1904.

Monday, October 3rd, will be observed as a holiday, the day having been designated as Benefactors' Day. An announcement of all gifts to the College during the past year will be made. The institution has been the recipient of a great many gifts since last Benefactors' Day. It has been the custom to invite some distinguished speaker to deliver an address on this occasion. Hon. T. J. Jarvis will deliver the address this year. These exercises have been of very great interest and the one this year is looked forward to with very great pleasure. The Glee Club will furnish music for the occasion. The exercises will be held in Craven Memorial Hall, beginning at 8 o'clock.

The Debating Council is making arrangements for the Inter-Collegiate debates for the year. At least one of the debates will be held in Durham.

The committee on public lectures has arranged to have at least one public lecture each month. These lectures are given in Craven Memorial Hall, and the public is invited to attend. The first lecture will be delivered by President Kilgo.

The Family

Post-Vacation Song.

BY R. WALTER WRIGHT.

(Stanley said of Glave: "He greeted hard labor with a fierce joy.")

It is not for the joy of the holiday,
I would eagerly, longingly wait,
That the dreary routine of my life I might lay
By some beautiful magic gate;
To mingle with laughter and music and play,
In the swift yacht of pleasure to glide,
To sit by the cool splashing fountain, and say,
"This, this is the bliss I'm denied."

It is not for the summer resort that I sigh,
With its rest and its languorous shade,
To watch through the leaves lazy clouds passing by,
And the soft summer evenings fade,
And oarless, to drift on a warm, silent lake,
Where the mild, mellow moonlight gleams,
And be rocked to sleep in the gentle wake
Of a passing ship of dreams.

It is not for a trip to some far-away shore,
By ten thousand travelers sought,
For its works of art, and its deeds of yore,
With classic memories fraught.
Not to gaze on the glories of mountain heights,
On the beauties of river and glen;
Not to feast my eyes on all glorious sights
Which have thrilled the hearts of men.

For each morn brings a day, new, glad, and rare,
From the haven of restful sleep;
And with bracing breeze from the bay of prayer
To the ocean of Duty I sweep.
It is not for the far or the strange that I ask,
The ennui of life to destroy—
In the hard, true work of my daily task,
Is my fullest and fiercest joy.

—Christian Guardian.

Ten Commandments for the Mother.

1. Be healthy.
2. Be joyful.
3. Be beautiful.
4. Be gentle and placid.
5. Be firm without severity.
6. Do not stint with your mother love. Tenderness is not effeminacy. And just because life often is cold and hard and cruel, a sunny, bright, glad childhood is a blessing for the whole life.
7. Discipline as life disciplines. It does not scold, it does not plead, it does not fly into a passion. It simply teaches that every deep has its adequate effect.
8. Do not laugh at the little sorrows and pains of child life. Nothing wounds a child more than to find ridicule where it looked for sympathy.
9. In illness and anger protect, nurse, cherish, and cheer as much as in your power. And do not weaken your vitality by giving way to anguish and sorrowing. What can be done must be done as well as possible.
10. Do not forget the happiness of having a child include the duty of smoothing his way in the world—of endowing him with health, gladness, courage, vigor; of finally letting him live his own life freely and in his own way. Your say you have had in advance, for your sorrowing was happiness and your sacrificing joy.—Translated for Harper's Bazaar from Die Illustrirte Frauenzeitung.

A Child of God.

There was a ripple of excitement all through the orphan asylum, for a great lady had come in her carriage to take little Jane home with her.

Jane herself was bewildered with the thought. The kind matron led her down the wide stairway, and as she passed the hall door she saw the shining carriage, the fine horses, the liveried servants, and it seemed life a dream.

"I hope she is glad to go," said the great lady in her gentle tone. "Do you want to go home with me and be my child, my dear?"

"I don't know," said Jane, timidly.

"But I am going to give you beautiful clothes and a gold ring and a box of candy, and books and dolls and blocks and a swing. Now, do you want to go?"

"I don't know," said the child, still frightened.

"You shall have a little room of your own, with a beautiful bed and table and chair; you shall have a bird in a cage and a little dog with a silver collar. Don't you want to go with me, Jane?"

There was a moment's silence, and then the little one said, anxiously "But what am I to do for all this?"

The lady burst into tears. "Only to love me and be my little child," she said, and she folded the little girl in her arms.

God finds us orphaned and desolate and defiled with sin, and poor and naked and blind. He adopts us into His family, and gives us all that we need in this life, with care and protection, and His own name and forgiveness and the companionship of the Holy Spirit, and an inheritance in glory; and all that he asks is return is that we should love Him and be His children.—Children's Record.

The Small Things of Dress.

There are men who spend $100 or less per year for their clothes and always look well dressed. There are men who spend ten times as much for their clothes and never look well dressed. The secret of good dressing is attention to the small things. An expensive suit, supplemented with soiled linen and unpolished shoes, looks shabby. A comparatively cheap suit, set off with shining shoes and immaculate collar and cuffs, gives the wearer the appearance of being well groomed. Old trousers carefully pressed and cleaned look better than newer trousers which are soiled and baggy. A spotless last year's hat looks better than a this year's tile which has upon it all this year's dirt. To appear well dressed costs pains rather than money. Personal neatness has a commercial as well as an esthetic value. An employer does not like to have about his men who look unkempt and seedy. They make it appear that he either will not or cannot pay good wages or salaries—that he is either close-fisted or unprosperous—and thereby his business is injured. Other things equal, the young clerk or book-keeper or salesman who, no matter how small his pay, always keeps himself looking clean and well dressed, is the one who will be selected for promotion. Clothes don't make the man. They have helped in the making of many men.—Chicago Tribune.

Difficult Questions in Christian Warfare.

BY REV. F. B. MEYER.

"The first three years of my Christian profession I was enthusiastic, loyal and sincere in God's service, but for the last few years I have backslidden and have found myself weak where I thought I was strong. How shall I be able to overcome my fleshly lusts?"

A young man asks this question. This is no doubt one of the reasons why we have been sent into the world. The soul is central between the spirit which communicates to the unseen and eternal, and the body which communicates with the earthly and temporal. And the true quality of our soul is shown by the selection we make. Either the soul lends itself to the influences of the unseen and eternal world—becomes permeated by the spirit, or it opens itself to the full tide of influences that sets in from the world of sense and passion.

My friend laments that he has fallen under the power of the flesh. Why is this? It is quite likely that he is truly regenerate and is a child of God, but his mistake lies in the fact that he is trying to combat the power of his nature by his own resolutions, by the display of his own energy, by even fasting and flagellation of his body. None of these, as the Apostle says, will really help us. "Handle not, nor taste, nor touch. * * * having indeed a show of wisdom in will-worship, and humility and severity to the body; but are not of any value against the indulgence of the flesh." (Col. 2:20-23.)

What my friend really needs is to realize that in the purpose of God he is in the risen and victorious Christ, who says: "Fear not, I have overcome." Our Lord overcame, not for Himself alone, but for us all. The results of His glorious victory are, so to speak, stored in His ascended nature, and await our appropriation. When, therefore, temptation comes, my friend should say first: "I am in the Risen Christ," and secondly, "The Risen Christ is in me." By an act of faith in the prompting and power of the Holy Spirit, he should at once derive from Christ grace to help keep, and even more, that he should take into himself, Christ as his purity, power and keeper. The law of the Spirit of life in Christ will make him free from the law of sin and death. (Rom. 8:1-11.)

* * *

"Considering that Christ always spoke of death as a sleep, is it right to think that at death a complete state of unconsciousness supervenes preparatory to our entrance into new conditions of life?"

It is quite clear that our Lord did not view death as a sleep. Remember that He told the dying thief that they would be together in Paradise. The obvious meaning of those words is that they should be as sentient, conscious, and as able to hold intercourse with each other in the latter hours of that day as they were in the former—then, in Paradise, as now on the Cross. The distinct statement of Peter that our Lord went to preach to the spirits in prison, that though He was put to death in the flesh, He was quickened in the spirit, implies beyond question that at the moment of death the spirit enters upon another and further ministry (I. Peter 3:18,19). We need not quote again the words of Paul in Philippians 1:23, except that to one who loved Christ as Paul did, it would have been impossible to say that a state of unconsciousness was preferable to converse with our Lord which life on this earth permitted.

The fact that death is compared to sleep is quite consistent with these facts. What part of our nature does sleep touch? Certainly not the spirit or the soul. Our dreams indicate that the trains of thought of which we are conscious in our waking hours are still pursued, indeed some of us have discovered by repeated experience that the materials given to the mind before we sleep become elaborated during the hours of slumber into clear and coherent conclusions. Sleep affects the body only, as death does. But in death, as in sleep, the moral and spiritual nature of man is more keenly alert than ever before.

Two ladies entered a cable car in Edinburgh at an hour of the day when seats are a possibility. One was an elegant dowager in regal magnificence of attire; the other was evidently her daughter.

"Shall I pay the fare, mamma? I have my purse with me," said the younger lady, sweetly.

"Oh, no, I'll pay. I have plenty of change."

Thereupon she leaned sideways and commenced the intricate and hampered process of searching her rich draperies for her pocket. After a minute or two of fumbling, during which her face grew an apoplectic red, she exclaimed, tragically:

"Laura, what shall I do?" I've been robbed. My purse is gone—my pocket is entirely empty?"

"Perhaps, madam," said the gentleman by her side, into whose coat pocket she had thrust her hand—"perhaps if you search your own pocket instead of mine you will be more likely to find your purse."—Exchange.

Towne: "That was a brave act of Urban's—rushing into the water to save a woman from drowning."

Suburb: "Brave fiddlesticks! It was merely an act of selfishness on his part."

Towne: "Why, how can you say that?"

Suburb: "The woman he rescued was a cook that had been with him for six months."—Chicago News.

Prof. E. C. Brooks, formerly the able Secretary of the Public School Loan Fund, has been elected Superintendent of the Goldsboro Graded Schools. Professor Brooks has entered upon his new duties.

Our Boys and Girls

Our Heroes.

Here's a hand to the boy who has courage
To do what he knows to be right.
When he falls in the way of temptation
He has a hard battle to fight.
Who strives against self and his comrades,
Will find a most powerful foe;
All honor to him if he conquers.
A cheer for the boy who says, "No!"

There's many a battle fought daily
The world knows nothing about;
There's many a brave little soldier
Whose strength puts a legion to rout.
And he who fights sin single-handed
Is more of a hero, I say,
Than he who leads soldiers to battle,
And conquers by arms in the fray.

Be steadfast, my boy, when you're tempted,
To do what you know to be right;
Stand firm by the colors of manhood,
And you will o'ercome in the fight.
"The Right" be your battle-cry ever
In waging the warfare of life;
And God, who knows who are heroes,
Will give you the strength for the strife.

Wanschese, N. C.

Dear Advocate:—I am a little boy five years old. My papa takes the Advocate. I go to Sunday-school nearly every Sunday. I haven't ever been to any school yet, but I can read and spell in my first reader. I have one little brother; his name is Moody Meadows.

I will ask a question: Who washed the disciples feet?

Your little friend,
JULIAN E. BAUM.

Shallotte, N. C., Sept. 12, 1904.

Dear Advocate:—I am a little boy not quite five years old. I can't read yet, but I love to hear papa and mamma read the little girls' and boys' letters.

I go to Sunday-school nearly every Sunday. Miss Mary Rourk is my teacher. I don't know which loves her best, sister or myself. I know I love her all I can. I can repeat the twenty-third psalm.

Enclosed find five cents for the Orphanage.

WALDO EMERSON SWAIN.

Truth, N. C., Sept. 22, 1904.

Dear Advocate:—Would you like to have a new member to join your band of little folks? I am a girl thirteen years of age. I go to Sunday-school every Sunday that I can. My teacher's name is Mr. Marvin Ragland, and I like him fine. Our superintendent is Mr. J. D. McIver, and our pastor is Rev. G. W. Starling. This is first year with us, and we like him very well.

My papa takes the Advocate and I enjoy reading the boys' and girls' letters very much.

I will close by asking a question: Who was the first person ever buried?

Your unknown friend,
NERAH PIPKINS.

Altamahaw, N. C., R. F. D. No. 1.

Dear Advocate:—We are two little girls, eight and ten years old. Our mother has been dead eight years. But we have a good step-mother, and she takes your paper and we certainly do enjoy reading the boys' and girls' letters. We go to Sunday-school most every Sunday. Our superintendent is Mr. T. J. Gwyn, and we certainly do love him. Our pastor's name is Rev. S. F. Nicks, and we love him and Mrs. Nicks also. Mr. Nicks held his meeting at Shiloh the fifth Sunday in July. We had a glorious meeting. Rev. Mr. Hoyle, from Durham, assisted him and did some fine preaching.

Hoping to see this in print, we will close for this time.

Your little friends,
KATIE and SUSIE FAUCETTE.

P. S.—Enclosed please find ten cents for the Orphanage.

Truth, N. C., Sept. 22, 1904.

Dear Advocate:—I am a little boy ten years old. I go to Sunday-school most every Sunday. Our every-day schoool has closed now. Mr. Clarence Judd was my teacher. My Sunday-school teacher is Mr. R. O. Buchanan.

Papa takes the Advocate and I like to read the little folks' letters very much.

I have four sisters and two brothers.

I will ask a quetsion: Who was the wisest man?

I will close with much love to the orphans and Dr. Ivey.

Your little friend,
CARSON PIPKINS.

Clayton, N. C., Sept. 24, 1904.

Dear Advocate:—I will write for my first time. I am a little girl ten years old. Mamma takes the Advocate and I enjoy reading the little boys' and girls' letters so much I thought I would write a short letter. I go to Sunday-school when I can. We live so far from any Sunday-school I canot go often. I go to church often. Our pastor is Mr. G. W. Fisher. Mr. W. L. Stancil is my teacher. We all like him very much. He is so kind to his little scholars. He gave a prize to the one that got the most head-marks in spelling last winter and I got it. I am going to try to get it this winter.

Hoping to see my letter in print, I will close with much love to the Advocate.

Your little friend,
ERDINE BARNES.

Snead's Ferry, N. C., Sept. 23, 1904.

Dear Advocate:—I am a little girl thirteen years of age. I surely love to read the Advocate, also the letters on the children's page. We have preaching every first Sunday. Our pastor is Rev. J. M. Marlowe, and we like him very much. My mother and father are both living and they are mightily sweet and I love them. I have four brothers and two sisters living and a brother dead. I have a pet hen; she is as sweet as she can be, and she minds nearly every word I say to her. She has had chickens five times and laid over one hundred eggs.

Now I will ask a question: Who was the strongest man?

Will some one of the little cousins send me the songs, "Why Did They Dig Ma's Grave so Deep," and "Mamma Kissed Me in a Dream Last Night."

Your friend,
SADIE PEARL MOORE.

P. S.—I hope to see my letter in print.

Stem, N. C., Sept., 1904.

Dear Advocate:—I was requested by the superintendent of our Sunday-school to write to the children's department, so I will do the best I can. I will write what I can about faith.

What faith is: It is the substance of things honed for, the evidence of things not seen. By faith we understand that the world was framed by God, so that things which are seen were made of things which do not appear. Without faith we cannot please God, for he that cometh to God must believe that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek Him and a comforter to them that evidently follow Him. By faith Noah, being warned of God of things not seen as yet, moving with fear, prepared an ark to the saving of his house, by which he condemned the world and became the heir of righteousness. If we have faith in God, if we ask anything according to His will He heareth us. These things I have written to those that believe in God.

Respectfully,
ETHEL BULLOCK.

P. S.—Enclosed you will find $1.50 for the Orphans' Home from Stem Sunday-school.

A Live Express Package.

BY MAY EVE.

Part I.

It was different from the other packages, and the face of the boy was as different as the package. He was a manly young man of about seventeen years. It was not exactly the careless face of a boy—there was a resolute look about it that gave the appearance of being older. But the package was a live package with a chain and collar about its neck; when the expressman took it in charge he had to handle it with care, for it did not seem to value his attentions, but cast wistful glances behind. Yet it was a gentle creature withal, but seemed to feel that its rights were infringed upon. Dennis Hair (for that was the name of the boy) gave only one stroke to the shaggy, black fur, then took his hand away quickly.

"I feel sorry for that young fellow," I heard the expressman say to a young man in the office; "he puts a good face on it, but I can see how he hates giving up that dog."

"I know it," said the other; "but Dennis is a good-hearted fellow. Little Norman Blake, the boy who lost his eyes in the fire, has been with him all summer. He is some kin to them; I don't know what. But that dog, Pedro, would take care of him just as if he were his nurse. The little boy cried as if his heart would break when he bade the dog good-bye. It is just like Dennis to send him to the little fellow."

The expressman leaned over and stroked Pedro's shaggy mane, but the dog only shook off his hand and kept looking back toward the door.

Part II.

Years had passed. In the company sitting upon the beach that summer day there was something strange yet familiar in the faces of the group. There was the bronzed face of a man of about thirty years or thereabouts, and with him a little boy, whom he called "Dennis," of about eight years, who was playing with some other little boys upon the beach.

Norman Blake, tall now, but very slight, had been brought to the seashore by his mother, hoping that it might bring back the color to his white face. Pedro was his faithful attendant.

Presently there was a commotion in the crowd. "Child lost!" was echoed from group to group. Then I was sure I had seen the gentleman with the bronzed face before. The look upon the face of the boy Dennis, of years gone by, had come back in a thousandfold increase of strength and tenderness.

"Dennis! Dennis!"

There was a speck upon the water and a splashing sound in the distance. The gentleman with the bronzed face had thrown off his coat and swum out in the water; but faithfully the big dog was making the strokes for the shore. Upon the beach the father clasped the dripping boy in his embrace, and Pedro stood by wagging his tail and barking for very gladness of heart.

PART III.

On another day in another express office a live package was carried with a tag upon his collar, "To Dennis Hair, Jr.," for blind Norman Blake had gone to the land where there is no night and Pedro was sent in grateful acknowledgement to the son of his old master. And verily our old friend Dennis had had his reward.—Epworth Era.

Some Funny Places for Ears.

A wise man's eyes are in his head, and his ears also, but these latter organs in some animals are placed quite otherwise. Fishes, for example, have both ears in their head, and also structures in the skin of the body which helps them to perceive any movements in the water. A dark line, easily seen along either side of a fish's body, is the seat of such organs.

If you examine a lobster or prawn, you will find two pairs of horns, or feelers sticking out of his head, one pair being large, another small. Lodged in each feeler is a little bag opening to the outside, which enables the creature to hear.

There is a little shrimp, the opossum shrimp, which has an ear imbedded in each side flap of his tail, quite the wrong end for it. Shell fish, such as mussels and cockles, are blessed with a single fleshy foot which stick out from the under side of the body, and is used to shove the animal along. Two little bag-like ears are contained in this, so that the creature can listen to his own footsteps, so to speak.

Flies and other sorts of insects carry one pair of feelers on the head, and there is reason to think that these enable their possessor not only to feel, but also to smell and hear. Such things as grasshoppers go in for a pair of ears contained in two out of their six legs, and these are constructed to appreciate the "chirping" noise we hear in the country during the summer time.

And we may surmose that Mother Grasshopper has to box her unruly offspring's ears by smiting his legs. —Selected.

Little Flaxen-hair: "Papa, it's raining."

Papa (somewhat annoyed by work in hand): "Well, let it rain."

Little Flaxen-hair(timidly): "I was going to."

For Asthma use CHENEY'S EXPECTORANT.

Look Out

FOR THE DATES OF

The Great State Fair

AT RALEIGH, N. C.

Grand Educational, Agricultural and Industrial displays. Finest display of Cattle, Sheep, Swine, Horses, Poultry, and Pet Stock ever seen in North Carolina.
Magnificent show of Labor-saving Farm Machinery.

Midway Packed with Good, Clean

Shows and Attractions.

October 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22.

ASHLEY HORNE, President.
J. E. POGUE, Secretary.
CLAUDE B. DENSON, Treas.

Lowest Kind of Rates.

California & Northwest

From Sept. 15th to Oct. 15th. 1904.

Cheap one-way and round-trip tickets on various dates to Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico and Indian Territory. Through tickets from all points. Write me. J. F. Van Rensselaer, Gen. Agt. Southern Pacific and Union Pacific Railroad Companies, 13 Peachtree St., Atlanta, Ga. G. W. Ely, T. P. A., R. O. Bean, T. P. A.

Woman's Foreign Missionary Society

Please send all communications for this Department to Mrs. B. F. Dixon, Raleigh, N. C.

Officers of the W. F. M. S. of the N. C. Conference, June, 1903-'04.

President—Mrs. Lucy A. Cunninggim, Greensboro, N. C.
Vice-President—Mrs. R. A. Willis, Littleton, N. C.
Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. F. D. Swindell, Goldsboro, N. C.
Recording Secretary—Miss Blanche Fentress, Wilmington, N. C.
Treasurer—Mrs. B. B. Adams, Four Oaks, N. C.
Superintendent and Treasurer Juvenile Work—Mrs. L. M. Hendren, New Berne, N. C.

Lady Managers.

It has been some time since there has been a report in our column from any of our Bright Jewel Bands.

There are forty-eight Bands in our Conference Society, and if the Lady Manager of each one would send us a report of her work once during they ear, each week's paper would contain something of our juvenile work.

Woman's Missionary Union.

On last Monday afternoon at the Presbyterian church there was a large attendance upon the first fall meeting of the above organization, which, as the name indicates, is composed of members from the Missionary Societies of all the churches of the city.

There was an address by Rev. L. C. Vass, a missionary from the Presbyterian church to Africa; also an interesting talk by Miss Heck, who has, for many years, led in the missionary movements of our city.

"Notes" from Mrs. Swindell.

How many of our Auxiliary Presidents are reading carefully these notes from the Board meeting, and from our Conference work, and culling from them the important points that they will have to adjust in their immediate Auxiliary plans?

Every year the field of conquest broadens, and there must be a corresponding breadth to our efforts, to our responsibilities, to our loyalty and to our liberality.

Outside our pledge, there must be provision for the expenses of our Miss Lamb in the Scarritt Training School, and the S. C. Trucheart Lectureship in that chool.

When the amounts necessary for these are apportioned to the Districts and Auxiliaries, the increase of amount to such Society will be small; but the alert President will be taking note of all these things and preparing the mind and heart of her members for a glad response to every call.

Interesting Items from Parker's.

Dear Mrs. Dixon:—Although our Society at Parker's has been silent some time, yet we have not been idle, and are yet alive. We feel we must let you know what we are doing.

We meet on fourth Saturday afternoons, at the homes of some of the members, and we find this pleasant; and, too, we have a better attendance than when we meet at the church.

At our meeting in August our President proposed that we have a public meeting; so it was agreed that we would hold it on the third Sunday afternoon in September.

An appropriate program was arranged, consisting of music, recitations, readings and an address by our pastor, all of which was well rendered.

We hope there were seed sown from which we shall reap a great blessing, and many more be influenced to join us in helping forward the Master's cause.

To show our efforts were not in vain, at our regular monthly meeting, we had eight new members enrolled, and our pledge money nearly all in sight. Is this not encouraging?

MRS. R. T. SAVAGE,
Corresponding Secretary.

Yes, taking in that number of new members at one time, accompanied by the promise of liberal contributions, is surely a token of renewed interest, and should encourage the holding of public meetings.

There is not enough attention paid to the importance of these meetings. Hear one of the by-laws of our Auxiliary Societies: "Once each quarter, if practical, a public meeting shall be held, when reports of the work shall be read, addresses given, and every effort made to increase general missionary intelligence and zeal, as well as earnestness in the special work of the Society."

If there is an Auxiliary in our Conference Society that adheres strictly to this by-law, and holds a public meeting "once every quarter," no mention has been made of it; but there are many who hold this meeting once a year, and always find great good resulting.

Let us, as nearly as possible, conduct our Missionary Auxiliaries and their work squarely by our "rules and regulations," for they were conceived and formulated by the quickened, consecrated talent of our Godly leaders, and, when closely followed, will surely lead to substantial progress and final success.

A THING WORTH KNOWING.

No need of cutting off a woman's breast or a man's cheek or nose in a vain attempt to cure cancer. No need of applying burning plasters to the flesh and torturing those already weak from suffering. Soothing, balmy, aromatic oils give safe, speedy and certain cure. The most horrible forms of cancer of the face, breast, womb, mouth, stomach; large tumors, ugly ulcers, fistula, catarrh, terrible skin diseases, etc., are all successfully treated by the application of various forms of simple oils. Send for a book, mailed free, giving particulars and prices of Oils. Address, Dr. D. M. Bye Co., Box 462, Dallas, Texas.

Illustrated. Address WILBUR R. SMITH, LEXINGTON, KY. FOR CIRCULAR OF THE "Cheapest and best College."

COMMERCIAL COLLEGE OF KY. UNIVERSITY

Refers to thousands of successful graduates. Cost, to complete Full Business Course, including Tuition, Books and Board, about $50. Phonography, Type-Writing and Telegraphy taught. Address WILBUR R. SMITH, Lexington, Ky.

..Dobbin & Ferrall..
(AT TUCKER'S STORE)
Raleigh, N. C.

BRIDAL OUTFITS.

We are fully prepared to furnish a complete Trousseau. Every detail absolutely correct. No better materials can be furnished anywhere, and our dress makers are the best in the world—a broad statement but fully true. It is far better to have the customers come to our store making the trip to Raleigh. Write us if you cannot come in person. You will be given perfect attention. . . . . .

Our Prices are Lower Than Other Stores.

DOBBIN & FERRALL
123 and 125 Fayetteville St.

When writing advertisers, please mention this paper.

Woman's Home Mission Society

Please send all communications for this Department to Mrs. R. O. Burton, Raleigh, N. C.

Officers of W. H. M. S. of the N. C. Conference.

President—Mrs. J. E. Underwood, Elizabeth City.
First Vice-President—Mrs. V. Royster, Raleigh.
Second Vice-President—Mrs. K. P. Black, Littleton.
Third Vice-President—Mrs. J. A. Spiers, Selma.
Recording Secretary—Mrs. C. P. Jerome, West Durham.
Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. S. H. Scott, New Bern.
Treasurer—Mrs. E. L. Prince, Wilmington.
Superintendent of Supplies—Mrs. Ivan Proctor, Raleigh.
Superintendent of Literature and Press Work—Mrs. R. O. Burton.

Programme for Week of Prayer, October 10-16, 1904.

Let earnest prayer be made that members, workers, and officers of the Woman's Home Mission Society may receive anointing for service during this season; also that large gifts may come to the general treasury. On each day take collection, enroll new members and secure subscribers to "Our Homes."

MONDAY, OCTOBER 10.

Topic: "The United States as a Mission Field." (Reference book: "Under Our Flag," Guernsey.)
Hymn.
Prayer.
Scripture: "True Worshippers." (John iv. 23, 24.)
Papers: "Immigration." "City Problems." "Our Mountain and Mining Population."
Prayer. (Pray definitely that the church may realize the great need of diligence in this field "white unto the harvest.")

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 11.

Topic: "Need and Opportunity of Mission Work in the South." (References: "Problems of the Present South," by Edgar Gardner Murphy; Dr. Lambuth's paper, "The Problems of the Home Field," in August number of Our Homes.)
Hymn.
Prayer.
Scripture: "Definite Prayer." (Mark x. 51; Luke xviii. 41.)
Papers: "Our Factory Populations and Child Labor Laws." "Our Negro Problem and How It Shall Be Solved." "How Shall We Meet the Growing City Slums?"
Prayer. (Pray that each member of the Society may be thoroughly quickened to a sense of personal responsibility.)

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 12

Topic: "The Connectional Work of the Society." (References: Eighteenth Annual Report; Our Homes: "Life of Lucinda B. Helm.")
Hymn.
Prayer.
Scripture: "The Power of United Prayer." (Matt. xviii. 19, 20.)
Papers: "Christian Education the Need of the Mountains: What Have We Done to Secure It?" "What Results May We Expect from Work Among Foreigners?" "What Have We Done for the Rescue of Fallen Women?" "Parsonages and Supplies." "How Shall We Secure the Necessary Funds for Our Connectional Work?"
Prayer. (Pray for each phase of Home Missions work, and that souls may be converted through every department.)

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 13

Topic: "The Need and Opportunity for Mission Work in Our Own Locality."
Prayer.
Hymn.
Scripture:: "The Boldness of God's Friends." (Luke ii. 5, 8.)
Papers: "The Character of Work Which Lies Within the Province of the Auxiliary." "How Far Shall the Parsonage be Furnished and Cared For?" "How Can the Pastor be Aided in Building Up the Membership and Spiritual Interests of the Church?"
Prayer. (Pray that Auxiliaries may be helpful to pastors in every phase of local work.)

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 14

Topic: "What Does the Woman's Home Mission Society Need to Enable It to Meet Its Responsibility?"
Hymn.
Prayer.
Scripture: "The Key to the Pocket." (Mal. iii. 8-10.)
Papers: "Money—What Shall I Render Unto the Lord for all Benefits?" "Trained Workers—Need and Value of Trained Workers as Deaconesses, Missionaries and Teacher." "An Enthusiastic Membership Inspired and Educated by Home Mission Literature."
Prayer. (Pray for workers who are willing to be trained; ask Him for gold and silver for the work, and pray earnestly that our women may be constrained to enter this work because of a holy enthusiasm.)

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 15.

Topic: "How Can an Individual Member Promote the Life and Work of the Auxiliary?"
Prayer.
Hymn.
Scripture: "Working Orders of the Woman's Home Mission Society." (2 Cor. vi. 1-10.)
Papers: "Personal Consecration and Its Practical Exercise:" "The Responsibility of Each Member for the Attendance, the Orderly Conduct and the Interest of the Monthly Meeting; "The Need of Personal Study of Home Mission Literature."
Prayer. (Pray that members, workers, and officers may receive anointing for service at this hour.)

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 16.

Let this be a day when the burden of prayer shall be that "He will send forth laborers into His harvest."

Morning Service.—Request the pastor to preach a sermon in the interest of the Work.

Evening Service.—When pastors are willing, hold a public service.

Anthem.
Hymn.
Prayer.
Scripture Lesson: Matt. ix. 37, 38.
Hymn.
Address: "The Work of the Woman's Home Mission Society."
Prayer.
Benediction.

I am glad to give the readers of the Advocate the fine program for our Prayer Week, that they may see the careful and capable planning of our leaders. I urge all Auxiliaries to observe the week and, as far as possible, follow the program. May it prove a season of refreshing and give new impetus to the great cause of missions.

For LaGrippe and Influenza use CHENEY'S EXPECTORANT.

Furnish one good reference, if you don't want to remit with order, and we will express this beautiful lamp, prove its matchless power of superb, soft, white light. Get supplied with chimneys or shades which break, heat and imperfect air-hole globes. Imperfects as to light and a mantle which will last six months with just ordinary care. Permitted by National Board of Underwriters, making it absolutely safe; simplest construction and each lamp accompanied by directions that a child can read and operate. Tank holds two pints gasoline. No dirt, no wicks, no odor, no smoke. The best reading light, next to sunlight. You can't afford to be without one more in your home. POSITIVELY GUARANTEED OR MONEY REFUNDED. Each $3.75. Double Lamp $5.50.

STANDARD GAS LAMP CO., Dept. N
Established 1899. 141 Ontario St., Chicago, Ill.

Raleigh Christian Advocate.

ORGAN OF THE
North Carolina Conference, M. E. Church, South.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY AT No. 108 W. MARTIN STREET.

THOMAS N. IVEY, - - - - - - Editor.

Subscription Rates.—One year, $1.50; six months, 75 cents. Preachers of the North Carolina Conference who act as agents receive the paper free of charge. All other preachers, and widows of preachers, $1.00 a year.

Business.—Watch the label. It shows the date up to which the subscription has been paid. Change in label serves as a receipt. Regular receipt will be sent when requested. When the address is ordered changed, both old and new address must be given. Address all letters, and make all checks and money orders payable, to the Raleigh Advocate Co.

Manuscripts.—All matter for publication to be returned to the writer must be accompanied by proper postage. Matter for the Editor and matter for the printer must not be on the same sheet. Obituaries must not contain over 150 words, nor contain poetry. One cent a word will be charged for all obituary matter over 150 words.

Advertising.—The RALEIGH CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE is a fine advertising medium. Rates will be promptly furnished on application.

The World As We See It.

Senator George Frisbie Hoar, who died after a lingering illness at his home at Worcester, Mass., on the 30th ultimo, had political and religious beliefs not held by many of our readers, yet in whatever attitude he stood as a private member of the Unitarian Church or as one of the great columnar forces in the political world, he impressed people with the fact that he was a true, good man. The character of such a man is a legacy to the nation. All who knew him must bear testimony to this fact.

Some funny things are happening these days in the name of law. Chief of Police Westbrook, of a town in Georgia, has been justified by the court in cowhiding Rev. L. G. Broughton publicly on the streets. The chief, according to press reports, was found guilty of drunkenness while on duty, and of loitering in barrooms, but was justified by the "peculiar circumstances" in making an assault on the Reverend L. G. Broughton. This is one of the most peculiar verdicts we have heard of in some time. What is the matter down in Georgia anyway?

There is one fact which should estop those who have advocated the lease of the A. & N. C. R. R. from throwing rocks at Cuyler, Finch, McBee & Co., and that is that if it had not been for these much-discussed and abused individuals the road would not now be leased. This fact, however, will not prevent the acquiescence of the general public in the verdict given by Judge Purnell on last Thursday when he decided that the same gentlemen and their counsel are not entitled to any fee from the State. Judge Purnell is right in assuming that for him to decide otherwise would be to establish a precedent which would fill the courts with corporation litigation.

To those who are impressed with the fact that the American people are living at a very rapid rate, and who claim justly that such speed is inimical to the physical well-being of man, the dictum of life-insurance experts a few days ago in New York city is somewhat surprising. These experts say that the average American of today lives to be about five years older than the American of fifty years ago, and that the race is producing larger, stronger, finer men and women. "Public Opinion" attributes this increase in the span of life and in the size and vitality of men and women to the fact that the consumption of meat is diminishing and that of vegetables increasing. In 1850 every 100 Americans consumed 94 sheep; in 1900, only 50 sheep. In 1850, 118 hogs were consumed to every 100 persons; in 1900, only 43 hogs. In 1850, every 100 persons consumed 25 beeves; in 1900, 20 beeves. In 1880, the supply of eggs was 920 dozen for every 100 persons; in 1900, 1,700 dozen. In the same period the supply of dairy products increased by more than three-fold. Yet taking all meat products there has been a decrease of 36 per cent in 50 years. The figures for the same period show an increase in the consumption of vegetables. Now the interesting question is this: If a nervous, rapidly-living people can increase the span of life and the size of men and women by eating less meat and more vegetables, how much more would the span of life and the size of men and women be increased by the same people living in a conservative way?

The St. Louis Christian Advocate gives an account of an amusingly strange thing that happened on the World's Fair grounds a few days ago. A great peach company was giving a free sample of fruit to those who had the patience to bide his turn in the line. Many of the 5,000 who were in line waited two hours to get a peach. They could have gotten peaches in the city for almost nothing, and the wonders of the Exposition were inviting the weary watchers. Yet human nature had to be human nature. The appetite for a "free thing" was strong and triumphant.

"At peep of dawn white stretch his tents
As far as eye may see.
Pasture and hayrack, field and fence
Have donned his livery."

This is what J. C. McNeill, of the Charlotte Observer, one of the State's ablest writers and withal a true poet, says of the Frost King. The fine lines were written, we imagine, last week when the trees shivered in the chill twilight and the haze on the western horizon gave way to the winter opalescence, while coldly blinking stars gave suggestions of interiors made warm and ruddy by the first fires of Autumn. Now when the haze is in the west again, and the cicadas sing, and the soda fountain gushes and sings, we could wish that Mr. McNeill would tune his lyre and chant the "Rout of the Frost King on October Heights."

The question of cotton is very interesting just at present. There are two classes of people who are eagerly wondering what the yield will be as compared with last year. One class is longing for an increased yield, for this will mean a decreased price. The other class is longing for a decreased yield (in every section except its own) for this means an increased price. The latter class will take some comfort in the fact that according to the monthly report published in the Journal of Commerce, the condition of cotton has declined 7.5 points during the month of September, being now 69.9 as against 69.8 in September last year. It is not within the province of a religious paper to give advice on the prospective price of crops, but we will venture the reminder that, in our opinion, it will not be well to rely too much on the reports which would indicate a short crop.

Public interest clusters around two points in the Eastern war zone—Port Arthur and Mukden, the ancient city of the Manchus. It must be confessed that one element of this interest is the curiosity to know what is actually happening around these two places. The Japs are unusually secretive. We get but little news from Tokio. The Russians are by no means taciturn. In fact, they are quite talkative. But ever since they began to call retreats "retirements," and defeats "victories," we have been compelled to accept all dispatches from St. Petersburg with a large number of grains of "salt." It is said that the besieged Russians at Port Arthur have plenty of ammunition, plenty of food, and that the place cannot be taken. General Stoessel is reported as advising the Czar that the place can hold out at least six months longer. We believe that the true situation is this: Both ammunition and food are about exhausted. The Japs have taken almost the last defences. In a very short time the Russian ships will be compelled to make a fruitless and fatal sortie, and then the most strongly fortified place on the globe, with one exception, will be taken. It seems that General Stoessel is determined to sacrifice every man, woman and child rather than surrender.

* * *

There is a still greater mystery hovering over Mukden. The Russians in great force, are intrenched there. One day there is report of a great battle. The next day the report is denied. One day we hear that General Kuropatkin has no other idea than of retreating 350 miles to Harbin. The next day we hear that he has determined to show the real prowess of the Russian army by giving battle to General Oku. It is probable that General Kuropatkin has already evacuated Mukden and that the decisive battle will be fought in some pass north of that city. It seems utterly incredible that the Russian army may be able to reach Harbin. They must fight before they ever see that city. It is our opinion that ever since the Russian fleet made that ill-fated sortie from that Port Arthur, Japan has had Russia whipped. The battle of Liao Yang simply emphasized the weakness of Russia. Russia is just beginning to realize what a power Japan is, but the realization has come too late. The idea of Russia's moving enough troops over her one line of railroad to defeat the great armies of Japan is simply unthinkable. Yet many on this side of the war say that the war has only begun, and that in the end Japan will be crushed.

NOTICE.

Some of the contestants for the prize offered by the North Carolina Methodist Handbook for the most artistic (floral) parsonage front, have already sent in the photos. Some who announced their decision to enter the contest have not sent in their photos. Will they please write us at once and let us know when we shall hear from them. This contest is going to be a very valuable and interesting feature of the next Handbook.

An Associated Press dispatch states that a Southern Methodist Church at Hobart, Oklahoma, has established a precedent in returning an excess of fire insurance. The insurance company allowed the church $1,300 for repairs; but the church found that the repairs cost only $1,000, and returned the remaining $300.—Exchange.

We are not one whit surprised that the above took place. But we are surprised that the Associated Press published the incident. It is in the habit of publishing only what is derogatory to the church—for such is the only real sensational news—the kind which the people call for.

Bishop Grafton represents the extreme high-church section of the Protestant Episcopal Church, and is seeking union with the Orthodox Greek Catholic Church. In his communication to Antonius he stated that "the church in the United States of North America has appointed a commission, consisting of ten Bishops and several learned and respected men, both clerical and secular; the object of the commission is to work out the problem of the relations of our church to foreign churches (commission of ecclesiastical relations with foreign churches).

Benefactors' Day was observed with appropriate ceremonies on last Monday. Hon. T. J. Jarvis delivered the address in the evening in Craven Memorial Hall. It was just such an address as is always expected of the old Roman—practical, earnest, and able. The College library and the museum have received valuable additions during the year. Not counting the amounts given by the two Conferences, the whole amount given to Trinity College during the year was $121,640.

There is only one way by which more power can be obtained, and that is by waiting on the Lord in confidence, in obedience, and in patience. In this attitude of heart we shall change our strength, daily getting new strength, and getting new strength, and getting more—perhaps consciously—until the day of testing comes, and find that in the time of stillness we have been endued with "more power."—Rev. W. Y. Fullerton.

Methodist Mention

STATE.

We can now peep over the fence of October and see Conference.

The best representative a preacher can have in the Bishop's cabinet is the year's record for hard, faithful work.

Remember that the most important item in your Conference report is the announcement that souls have been saved.

It is a good policy for our preachers in getting up their Conference collections to put their feelings into their pockets.

The whole State is well pleased at the election of Mr. J. W. Grainger, of Kinston, to the presidency of the A. & N. C. R. R. He is a great force both in Church and State.

Dr. J. C. Kilgo dedicated the new church at Macedonia, Rev. N. L. Seabolt, P. C., on last Sunday. He preached in Brooklyn Church at night.

Rev. J. E. Underwood, P. E., writes that things are in good shape throughout the Elizabeth City District. Hundreds have been converted and the finances were never in better shape.

Rev. R. B. Hines, of Mt. Airy, N. C., writes us that he is now engaged in evangelistic work, and wishes to spend some time in meetings in the bounds of our Conference, beginning the 9th or 16th of October. Any brother needing his help should write him at once.

We deeply regret to learn of the death of Rev. Jas. F. Triplett, son of Rev. T. L. Triplett, of the W. N. C. Conference. He died of consumption at Pueblo, Colorado, last week. John was a faithful Methodist preacher, and he has received a bright crown. Our sympathies to the bereaved.

Rev. A. J. Parker and wife, Rev. N. M. Watson and wife, Rev. R. C. Craven and wife, Rev. W. L. Cuninggim, wife and sister, have up to date represented North Carolina Methodism at the St. Louis Exposition. By the way, the congregation which, while able to do so, has failed to send its preacher to the Exposition, has made a mistake. It is not too late. The Exposition will not close until December 1.

Rev. R. H. Whitaker has returned from Wilson and Johnston counties, where he held revival services at two churches and received seventeen new members into his churches. He was engaged in the services seventeen days, preaching sometimes three times a day to large congregations. Though the cotton fields were white, the people were so deeply interested that thy came and brought their dinner.—Raleigh Evening Times.

Rev. T. J. Dailey writes: "I have held meetings at Fletchers, Philadelphia and Harrells, resulting in gracious revivals at the two latter. There were twenty-one accessions at Philadelphia, and nineteen at Harrells—three heads of families. Rev. C. L. Read assisted at Fletchers and Rev. M. H. Tuttle at Philadelphia. Both did good and faithful preaching, and greatly endeared themselves to our people. We have commenced work on a new brick church at Gatesville, and hope to have it ready for use by the first of next January. You see we are making progress."

We publish the following deserved words from the Troy Examiner: "We have never heard a better and more impressive talk than Hon. R. N. Page gave us Sunday evening in conducting the services at the M. E. Church, for Rev. G. A. Oglesby, who was not able to be present. We doubt whether any district can boast of such a Congressman in all respects. Oh that all the members were half so spiritually minded! In fact he and all of his noble brothers are rare exceptions to the rule: 'The more of this world's goods a man has, the less he cares about religion.'"

"Virginia Dare," a poem by Dr. W. H. Moore, will appear from the press of Edwards & Broughton. It is an extended poem of great merit. Dr. R. H. Whitaker has determined to issue in book form his very interesting articles published for a year or more in the News and Observer. We bespeak for both publications a large patronage. They can stand on their own merits, and will prove a valuable addition to North Carolina bibliography.

Miss Reeks, the accomplished and beloved teacher at the Methodist Orphanage cheered the office on last Monday by bringing to see us the following orphans, who were on the roll of honor: Bessie Faucette, Mabelle Bradsher, Lily Dill, Cassie Bright, Bessie Vernon, Mabel Bailey, Francis McGirt, Bettie McGirt, Joe Nash, Wade Ashley, Benny Ashley, Frank Weber and Charlie Gay. These are good, bright children, and show that they are well cared for. When will our people make it possible for us to have 200 of them in the Orphanage?

* * *

CONNECTIONAL.

The Scarritt Bible and Training School opened Thursday morning with the largest enrollment in the school's history.

The morning addresses by Bishop Hendrix at his Annual Conferences, on "Ministerial Friendship" are doing great good.

The recent movement to unite Trinity and St. James, in Richmond, has failed. The congregations could not agree on a plan agreeable to each.

Bishop E. E. Hoss dedicated the new church at Monteagle recently. It is called "Morton Memorial," in honor of Dr. David Morton, and is built of red sandstone.

Alabama Methodism has sustained a great loss in the death of two of her honored ministers—Rev. J. L. Skipper, who passed away September 15 at Dothan, and Rev. S. H. Cox, at Citronelle, September 16.

Dr. G. B. Winton, editor of the Nashville Christian Advocate, writes entertainingly of a recent visit he made to Franklin, one of our choicest mountain towns. Dr. Winton "sees things," and wields a facile pen.

"Upper Currents" is a new publication, published at Gainesville, Tex., and edited by Rev. J. Marvin Nichols. It is dedicated to those who pine for regions "beyond the valley where the clouds swing low." It is, therefore, an admirable publication for "shut in's," and has a great mission to perform.

The magazine number of the Epworth Era is indeed a beauty. It is filled from first to last page with choice reading matter and fine illustrations. Dr. Du Bose is bending every energy toward making the Era a great paper, and we rejoice to know that he is having such great success in his endeavors. Let the Church rally to the Era.

Rev. W. Aiken Kelly, of the South Carolina Conference, and stationed in North Augusta, has disappeared. Brother Aiken has been in wretched health for some time, and mental aberration is the cause of his disappearance. It is feared that he has wandered off and is either ill, or that he has been accidentally killed in some way.—Southern Christian Advocate.

Messrs. Godbey and Thornburg have disposed of their interest in the Arkansas Methodist to Drs. J. A. Anderson and A. C. Millar, an arrangement that has been ratified by the Publishing Committee. The new editors will assume control October 1. Both are able ministers and vigorous writers, as the files of this Advocate attest. They enter upon this work with admirable equipment and bringing to it the good will of a very large circle of friends. Dr. Anderson is a member of the Arkansas Conference and at present pastor of the Church at Conway.—Nashville Christian Advocate.

General Notes

Four hundred missionaries have entered China since the closing of the Boxer troubles.

Rev. George Albert Snyder has been installed as President of Catawba College, Newton, N. C.

Mrs. Bishop Merrill was run over by a delivery wagon in Chicago a few days ago and severely injured.

The Christian Register, the best Unitarian organ that comes to our desk, declares that "not one prominent scientist is today known as an agnostic."

Gipsy Smith has completed his tour of revival services in South Africa and is on his way back to England. The winter will be spent in mission work in various parts of England.

The death of Dr. E. Winchester Donald, the successor of Phillips Brooks as rector of Trinity Episcopal Church, Boston, removes a clergyman of high personal character, great vigor, and marked preaching ability.

It has been estimated that the number of people converted in the Torrey-Alexander meeting during the last two years exceeds 60,000. In Great Britain during the last two months 33,000 persons have publicly professed faith in Christ.

The St. Louis Young Men's Christian Association has organized a World's Fair Bureau, through which it is prepared to furnish reliable accommodations at reasonable rates in hotels, boarding houses, and splendid private homes.

Rev. A. J. McKelway, who for some time, has been editor of the Charlotte News, has accepted a position as one of the Secretaries of the National Child Labor Committee with headquarters in New York. Mr. J. D. Eggleston, Jr., takes Mr. McKelway's place as editor of the News.

A large party of missionaries sailed from San Francisco by the steamship Korea September 20. They were Bishop and Mrs. James W. Bashford, en route to the episcopal residence in Shanghai, China; Bishop M. C. Harris, en route to his field in Japan; Miss Caroline E. Maddock, of Chicago.

The New York Tribune says: "Dr. Frank W. Gunsaulus, head of Armour Institute and pastor of the People's Church, Chicago, is said to be favorably considered by many Methodist ministers of Chicago and Evanston as a successor to Dr. James in the presidency of Northwestern University.

Dr. Campbell Morgan has finally taken leave of America for his new field of labor, Westminster Chapel, London. He has promised to return for the Northfield Conference next summer. By special request, his last address was "The Hidden Years at Nazareth."

At the dinner held ten days ago in New York of distinguished chemists from foreign lands, Sir William Ramsay, the noted scientist, said: "I do not suppose there is one-tenth of an ounce of radium in the whole world. If you can imagine getting that amount of radium together, it would supply more energy than 250 tons of dynamite."

Dr. Jesse Bowman Young states that Cincinnati has furnished more Bishops to the Methodist Episcopal Church than any other city in the United States. The list foots up sixteen—Morris, Hamline, Simpson, Clark, Thomson, Kingsley, Foster, Wiley, Merrill, Ninde, Walden, Joyce, Cranston, Moore, Hamilton, and Hartzell.—Epworth Herald.

The overtures of the Wesleyan Methodist Church, in the Old Country, for union with the Methodist New Connexion Church, have not been accepted. Politely but firmly the Annual Committee of the latter church has declined to stay its negotiations with the Bible Christians and United Methodist Free Churches for a union between it and them, and those negotiations will probably now be pressed to completion.

NORTH CAROLINA EPWORTH LEAGUE CONFERENCE
DEVOTIONAL CHARITABLE LITERARY EVANGELICAL
EDITED BY REV. H B ANDERSON.

The Fourth Department.

There is no department more liberally supplied with literature than this department. The central office has issued a handbook setting forth the place of missions in the Epworth League, how to organize for committee work, and what to do after you have organized. It offers suggestions regarding a library, and gives many other valuable hints and suggestions. The Central Office will furnish a general catalogue of missionary books, also a separate catalogue of Missionary Campaign Libraries.

In the institute series is "a brief history of church missions" as we have projected them. Those Leagues reading this pamphlet will have a sufficient knowledge of our mission fields.

THE ERA AGENT.

This important adjunct of the League will find it advantageous to write for a 28 x 40 inch poster advertising the Epworth Era, in the centre of which is a reprint of the front cover page of a magazine number. It is very attractive, and would, no doubt, be helpful in securing subscribers. He should also have the Epworth Era tract for distribution, and the receipt book of the things taught. Intellectual and spiritual benefits may thus be gained at very small cost of time, labor and money.

THE SECOND VICE PRESIDENT.

You will find Miss Mabel Wheeler's manual of plans, helps and suggestions for the Charity and Help Department very interesting, entertaining and helpful.

The following is the suggestive table of contents: (1) The Purpose of the Charity and Help Department: (2) Practical Charity: (3) Good Samaritan Works; (4) Means to be Used by the Chairman.

READING COURSE

I mention this course, consisting each year of four interesting, instructive and helpful books, to emphasize the "Manual," the use of which, in connection with the books read, will aid greatly in their correct analysis, and in learning how to read books to profit. Our younger readers should by all means read the books of this course with the Manual in hand. In this connection I would also call attention to the Bible Circle Studies issued quarterly. This pamphlet should be kept in your Bibles and consulted often during your reading. After completing the reading course, upon application (a printed form of which may be secured from Dr. DuBose) signed by the Third Vice-President, a beautiful diploma, printed on parchment will be issued to the applicant from the Central Office.

Notes.

The Epworth League has held two exceptionally interesting meetings. The Tird Vice-President, concurring the idea that the object of the League was misconceived, held a meeting in which each department president or a member of that committee explained the workings of the department, and the Fourth Vice-President secured the services of Dr. Butler, a returned missionary from Brazil, to address the League. Many of the Leaguers expressed themselves as well pleased with the address and declared that their interest in missions had been deepened.

* * *

It was with profound regret that we were compelled, owing to a misunderstanding with the President of the District Sunday-school Conference, to call in our appointment of a District League Conference for last week. It is just that I should say Brother Bryan was not in the least blamable. The Chapters indicated their readiness for a Conference and we will see to it that they are not disappointed next year, the Lord willing.

* * *

By this writing, Brother Creel, of Straits Circuit, no doubt, has organized his young people into a League. One who knows has informed us that Brother Creel has splendid material, and plenty of it for a first-class League.

* * *

In our next issue we will give the most of our space to a paper on "Our Influence and How We Exert It," read by Mrs. H. B. Anderson before the St. John Epworth League, September 19, with the hope that it may prove profitable reading to other Epworthians.

ANOTHER PATIENT SPEAKS.

I came to the hospital with a cancer on my face that had been troubling me seven years I was there six weeks and the cancer was taken out and the place entirely healed. Dr. Kellam can do all he claims. —Geo. W.Reek, Richmond, Va.

KELLAM CANCER HOSPITAL,
Richmond, Va.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S HYMNAL NO. 2

Should be considered by every Epworth League and Sunday School in which a new songbook is needed. It is unquestionably the best book to use after the Young People's Hymnal (No. 1). . . . . .

SAMPLE COPY.

Round or shaped notes, 30cts., by mail $3.60 per dozen; by express or freight, $25 per 100. Words only, by mail, $1 25 per dozen; by express $9 per 100. We pay freight on orders for 100 or more copies. Address all orders to . . . . . .

Southern Methodist Book Depository,
E. B. LIPSCOMB, SEC. AND TREAS.,
STAUNTON, VA.

LADIES Interested in easily raising church money would do well to write the PETER NEY-RICHARDSON Co., Wholesale Druggists, Louisville, Ky. All we want is the advertising. Write us.

Dropsy CURED Gives Quick Relief.
Removes all swelling in 8 to 20 days; effects a permanent cure in 30 to 60 days. Trial treatment given free. Nothing can be fairer. Write Dr. H. H. [illegible]'s Sons, Specialists, Box [illegible] Atlanta Ga.

HICKS' CAPUDINE CURES ALL HEADACHES.
IT'S LIQUID.
The perfect remedy for Colds, Indigestion, Periodic Pains, Brain Fag, etc. Prevents Train Nausea and Sick Headache. Braces the nerves. It's Harmless. Trial bottle 10c.

BABY EASE
Warm weather brings danger to babies. Keep a bottle of Baby Ease—the world's best baby medicine—on hand. It is the safe, sure, harmless remedy for all summer bowel and stomach troubles.
At all good drug stores, 25 cents.
Manufactured by BABY EASE CO., MACON, GA.

World's Fair, St. Louis
EXTRAORDINARILY LOW RATES,
October 4-6-11-13-18-20-25 and 28, 1904.

On above-mentioned dates the Southern Railway announces very low round-trip Coach excursion rates to St. Louis. These tickets will be good in all regular Coaches, and on all trains on dates shown. Tickets good 10 days.

Rate from

Goldsboro	$20.00	Salisbury	$17.00
Selma	20.00	Charlotte	18.30
Raleigh	18.50	Statesville	17.00
Durham	17.00	Marion	16.20
Greensboro	17.00	Asheville	15.40
Sanford	20.40	Hendersonville	15.85

Tickets sold at the above rates not good in Sleeping Cars; for other rates see notices elsewhere.

For full information, World's Fair maps, literature, etc., call on or address any Agent Southern Railway.

R. L. VERNON, Trav. Pass. Agt., Charlotte, N. C.
T. E. GREEN, C. T. A., Raleigh, N. C.
S. H. HARDWICK, Pass. Traf. Mgr.
W. H. TAYLOE, Gen. Pass. Agt. Washington, D. C.

WORLD'S FAIR RATES
VIA
Seaboard Air Line Railway
TO ST. LOUIS, MO., AND RETURN.

On account of the World's Fair, St. Louis, Mo., the Seaboard Air Line Railway, in connection with the C. & O. Route via Richmond and the N. C. & St. L. Route via Atlanta, will sell round trip tickets to St. Louis, Mo., at greatly reduced rates from all stations.

Rates from principal points as follows:

	Season Tickets	60 Day Tickets	15 Day Tickets
Charlotte via Atlanta	$36.10	$30.10	$24.65
Durham via Richmond	34.10	28.40	23.30
Durham via Atlanta	38.75	32.30	26.30
Henderson via Richmond	34.10	28.40	23.30
Henderson via Atlanta	38.75	32.30	26.30
Maxton via Atlanta	38.65	32.25	26.25
Raleigh via Richmond	35.60	29.90	24.80
Raleigh via Atlanta	38.75	32.30	26.30
Hamlet via Richmond	37.60	31.90	26.25
Hamlet via Atlanta	37.60	31.90	26.25
Wilmington via Richmond	38.65	32.25	26.25
Wilmington via Atlanta	38.65	32.25	26.25

LIMIT OF TICKETS—SEASON TICKETS.

Good to leave St. Louis up to December 15, 1904, will be sold daily commencing April 25th.

SIXTY DAY TICKETS.

Good to leave St. Louis up to and including 60 days from date of sale. Will be sold daily commencing April 25th.

FIFTEEN DAY TICKETS.

Good to return up to and including 15 days from date of sale, commencing April 25th, and continuing during the Exposition.

COACH EXCURSION TICKETS.

On May 9th and 23rd, 10-day coach excursion tickets will be sold at very low rates from Raleigh $18.50 via Richmond and $20.80 via Atlanta. Tickets not good in Parlor Sleeping Cars. Tickets good to leave St. Louis including ten days from date of sale.

MILITARY COMPANIES.

Special low rates for Military Companies and Bands.

Quickest schedule, direct routes, first-class coaches and Pullman Sleeping and Dining Car Service.

For further information, call on or address us. Same will be cheerfully furnished.

C. H. GATTIS, T. P. A., Raleigh, N. C.
H. A. MORSON, C. P. & T. A., Raleigh, N. C

When writing advertisers please mention this paper.

Sunday School

Lesson for October 9, 1904.

The Widow's Oil Increased.

(2 Kings 4: 1-7.)

Golden Text: Trust in the Lord and do good; so shalt thou dwell in the land, and verily thou shalt be fed. (Psalms 37:3.)

No exact date can be given for the incident which claims our attention in this lesson. The spirit of the gracious act of power by which Elisha brought relief to a distressed soul is characteristic of the prophet's whole career. The miracle Elisha here performed was akin to the healing of the waters of Jericho. Though on the one hand a whole community was blessed, while on the other, only one humble family was benefited, the same spirit of kindness permeated both miracles.

A Necessitous Case.—The trouble which afflicted the poor Israelitish widow was indeed a grievous one. Her husband had died in debt, and in true Oriental fashion the creditor had come and threatened to take her two sons into bondage. This procedure on the part of the creditor was in perfect accordance with the customs of the East, and he was acting within what were considered his legal rights in taking this step to satisfy the debt.

In her distress the poor widow bethought herself of the man of God, and to him she came, telling her trouble, and asking for his help to escape the peril which threatened her home.

Miraculous Relief.—In answer to the widow's petition, Elisha caused a miracle to be performed which reminds us of the story of the widow of Zarepath, whose cruse of oil was miraculously replenished, day by day, so that the prophet Elijah as well as herself might be sustained through the days of famine. So in the present case Elisha by divinely given power caused the widow's pot of oil to be multiplied, so that her debt was paid with the proceeds of the oil, and she had something left besides.

Some Practical Teachings.—This incident brings to us some practical teachings, which may help us in our daily lives. Among them are the following:

1. In time of trouble let us seek the companionship of God's people. In her distress the poor widow turned to the man of God and found relief. So we may often find just the help we need in time of trouble, if we will but turn to some earnest man or woman, who like the prophet Elisha is a friend of God.

2. There is work which even the children may do in carrying out God's commands. The widow's sons helped by carrying the vessels into which the oil was stored. There are many ways in which the boys and girls in our homes to-day may aid in advancing the cause of Christ. Moreover there is a very plain and homely lesson here. It is this, that real blessing comes to the boy who simply helps his mother.

3. The abundance of the divine supply for our every time of need is illustrated in the bountiful supply of oil which was provided. God is always generous toward those who put their trust in him, and always gives enough and to spare, if we will but obey His word.

A THOUGHTFUL MAN.

M. M. Austin, of Winchester, Ind., knew what to do in the hour of need. His wife had such an unusual case of stomach and liver trouble, physicians could not help her. He thought of and tried Dr. King's New Life Pills and she got relief at once and was finally cured. Only 25 cents at all druggists.

Mamma: "Willie, shut the window screen. You're letting the flies in." Willie: "Well, you've got to let some of 'em in." Mamma: "Why?" Willie: "'Cause if you don't let 'em in how are they goin' to get on the fly-paper?"

A young gentleman who is so unfortunate as to have a slight impediment in his speech recently returned to the old homestead in Connecticut to spend a vacation. His mother remarked to him while at table:

"Really, Tom, you seem to stammer more since you went to New York than you used to down here in Stonington."

"C-c-certainly, m-mother; I h-have to s-s-stammer m-more, because y-you s-see, N-New Y-York's a l-l-larger place!"

Bridget (reading laboriously: "Hov you seen this, Pat? It says here when a mon loses wan av his sinses, his other sinses get more devoluped. F'r instans, a blind mon gets more sinse av hearin', an touch, an—"

Pat:: "Shure, an' it's quite thrue; Oi've noticed it meself. Whin a mon has wan leg shorter than the other, begorra the other leg's longer. isn't it, now?"

TAINTED BLOOD

Columbus, Ohio, May 19, 1903.

Some four years ago I was suffering from impure blood and a general run-down condition of the system. I had no appetite, was losing flesh, and had an all-gone tired feeling that made me miserable. I began the use of S. S. S., and after taking seven or eight bottles my skin was cleared of all eruptions and took on a ruddy, healthy glow that assured me that my blood had been restored to its normal, healthy condition. My appetite was restored, as I could eat anything put before me, and as I regained my appetite I increased in weight, and that "tired feeling" which worried me so much disappeared, and I was once again my old self.

I heartily recommend S. S. S. as the best blood purifier and tonic made, and strongly advise its use to all those in need of such medicine. VICTOR STUBBINS.
Cor. Barthman and Washington Aves.

Wheeling, W. V., May 28, 1903.

My system was run down and my joints ached and pained me considerably. I had used S. S. S. before and knew what it was, so I purchased a bottle of it and have taken several bottles and the aches and pains are gone, my blood has been cleansed and my general health built up. I can testify to it as a blood purifier and tonic. JOHN C. STEIN.
1533 Market St.

SSS

If you have any symptoms of disordered blood write us and our physicians will advise you free.

Our book on blood and skin diseases sent free.

The Swift Specific Company, Atlanta, Ga.

GO TO ST. LOUIS VIA C. & O. ROUTE.

Now is the time to see the great World's Fair at St. Louis, Mo. Delightful weather and the Exposition complete in all it's beauty. An opportunity not to be missed and never to be forgotten.

See that your tickets read via the C. & O. and Big Four Railways. Shortest, quickest and best route, with fast vestibuled train service.

BLYMYER CHURCH BELL FOUNDRY

Please mention this paper.

Some of the New and Fashionable Dress Goods for Fall

Write us for samples of anything you have in mind, stating color, kind of cloth and about what price you wish to pay.

Remember, we prepay express or freight charges on all orders of $5.00 and over mailed to the house.

NOELVTY MOHAIRS, 42 in. wide, in brown, navy, royal and black mixtures, 75c. yard.

MOHAIR SILICIANS, 40 in. wide, in the new fall shades, 50c. yard.

NEW CASSIMERE SUITINGS, neat checks and invisible plaids, very stylish for walking suits and separate skirts, 50c. yard.

BROADCLOTHS, 50 in. wide, all wool, extra finish, in twenty-five different shades, as well as black, $1.00.

RAINPROOF SUITINGS, 54 in. wide, in stylish designs, $1.25 and $1.50 yard.

MILLER & RHOADS
Richmond, Va.

I CURE CANCER.

Have you Cancer? Have you been given up as hopelessly incurable by everybody? I can still cure you. At least, I have cured others who were thought to have but a few days to live, and why not cure you? No knife. No plaster. No caustics. No sloughing oils. No injection of acids. No blood drawn. No pain. I can cure internal cancer just as readily as external. You can be cured by my "Home Treatment" at your own homes for less than one-fourth the cost of "Personal Treatment;" but if you have been humbugged till you have lost faith in the honesty or ability of any one to handle this disease successfully, come to me, and I will cure you or no pay. And when I cure you you stayed cured. It does not reappear in a few months. I will put money in the bank to back up that assertion. You will be absolutely, wholly and perfectly cured. The chances are ten to one if anything else is the matter with you, you will be cured of that too. You can be cured a great deal quicker, and more cheaply, if you have never permitted your body to be operated on or experimented with by others before I take your case, still if you do not believe it, go ahead and try, but remember me when they have failed. Will you not write me a full description of your case and let me tell you what I can do for you. Address

Dr. Scott Mason,
Dry Bridge, Va.

DO YOU WANT A TEACHER?

The Educational Bureau, Raleigh, N. C., has recently secured the names of a large number of good teachers open to engagement. Write fully as to your needs. It charges you nothing.

XANTHINE HAIR RESTORATIVE.

Everybody that is anybody is now using XANTHINE.

You don't know what first-class hair is until you have tried it. It seconds nature. Not a dye. The same for any color hair—but absolutely NEVER FAILS to restore ORIGINAL color to any gray hair. Stops itching almost instantly; prevents dandruff; puts the hair in elegant condition every way.

Circulars gladly sent showing highest testimonials. Price $1 a bottle. Express prepaid on orders sent direct to us. Address
XANTHINE CO., Richmond, Va.

Shepard's Lung Food.

A 50 cent bottle of Shepard's Lung Food FREE to any one wishing to test its efficacy in treatment of ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, COLDS, COUGHS, LA GRIPPE, CONSUMPTION, or any affections of the throat or lungs. Indispensable for public speakers.

Send name and address of your druggist and we will send you 50c. to pay him for one bottle of Lung Food. $100 reward for a case which it will not cure.

THE LUNG FOOD CHEMICAL CO.,
Wilmington, N. C.

H. STEINMETZ.
FLORIST.
Cut Flowers, Designs.
Plants of all kinds.
PHONES 113. RALEIGH, N. C.

DON'T
give your child old greasy Castor Oil. Give CAS-TO-RINE. Tastes as good as maple syrup. Fifteen cents per bottle at all dealers.

Raleigh Marble Works

Monuments

Ship Monumental work to all parts of the State. Delivered to your depot at same price as at shop.

Special attention paid to finish and lettering.

Only Best of Stock Used.

Write for new catalogue.

COOPER BROS., Proprietors,
RALEIGH, N. C.

DIXIE BOY SHOE

BUILT ON HONOR TO WEAR

There are Ten Million (10,000,000) boys in America who ought to wear "DIXIE BOY" Shoes. Why? Because "Dixie Boy" is ALL SOLID LEATHER MADE

DO IT NOW

Ask your Dealer next time for "Dixie Boy," and get the best.

Geo. D. Witt Shoe Co.
Makers of fine Shoes
Lynchburg, Va.

"I can only speak of the engine bought of you last fall in the highest terms * * * We find her to move with the regularity of a clock, a thing that we think very essential in making a good sample of cotton. As for safety, we think it far surpasses steam, and perhaps not more dangerous than water. It seems very simple and easy to learn * * * and believe it to be only a question of time when they will take the place of steam engines."
Rev. J. W. BURTON,
L. E. of the M. E. Church, South.

Send for catalogue N, stating power requirements.

White-Blakeslee Mfg. Co.
Birmingham, Ala.

Secular News

STATE.

Fayetteville's prospects for getting a government building are good.

Governor Aycock made a series of educational addresses in Maine last week.

Appeals from the Fifth District are being argued before the Supreme Court this week.

Work has begun on the president's mansion at Chapel Hill. The building will cost $5,000.

The mass-meeting called to meet in Raleigh last Saturday, met and put out a full county ticket.

Hickory has doubled her population in four years. It is one of the fastest growing towns in the country.

The first deposit made in the Scotland County savings bank was made by a colored woman, who deposited $50.

Dr. Thomas Hogg, an aged and prominent citizen of Raleigh, was run over last Friday by a shifting engine and killed.

The Alamance County Fair has begun in Burlington with the Layton Carnival Company as the principal attraction.

The new Asheville auditorium was formally opened Thursday night of last week. It is one of the handsomest in the State.

Work on the Greenville waterworks is rapidly progressing. Foundations have been prepared for the pumping station and the stand pipe.

A farmer returning home from Henderson, where he had sold a load of cotton, was held up by three men and robbed of three hundred dollars.

An engine on the Norfolk and Southern Railroad ran into a draw bridge near Elizabeth City, a few days ago and fell into the Perquimans River.

The trustees of the fund raised for a bust of Isaac Erwin Avery, late city editor of the Charlotte Observer, have awarded the contract to Professor Carl Bentheim.

Postmaster Bailey, of the Raleigh postoffice, who is paymaster for the rural free delivery carriers in all parts of the State, says there are now exactly 693 in active service.

The committee appointed to look for evidence to substantiate the claim of North Carolina as to her war record, report that they have ample evidence to prove all her claims.

Mrs. Francis Adams, a seamstress of this city, who is 79 years old, and spent all her life in Raleigh, just enjoyed the privilege of seeing the city market for the first time last week. It was erected almost 50 years ago.

Kinston has almost a prodigy in Master Billy Bond, Jr., who is probably the smallest butcher in the whole country. Master Billy is 12 years old and weighs only 72 pounds, yet it is said it is a common things for him, entirely alone, to rope, kill and butcher cattle weighing 600 to 800 pounds.

At the regular monthly meeting of the board of directors of the Seaboard Air Line Railway, held in New York, last Wednesday, John Skelton Williams and J. W. Middendorf resigned as directors. C. A. Conant and N. S. Meldrum were elected. No successor to Mr. Williams was chosen as chairman of the board. Mr. Williams and Mr. Warfield remain members of the voting trust and are the only members remaining of the original trust.

Other deaths bring the total number of fatalities, on account of the awful railroad collision near Knoxville last Saturday week, up to nearly seventy. Four North Carolinians are among the dead: W. T. Ellis, Ore Hill; J. R. Plummer, Chapel Hill; M. P. Gannt, Shelby, and Mrs. Green, Sylva.

The Howland Improvement Company, which now holds a lease on the A. & N. C. R. R., in order provide against any one else getting killed as did the soldiers belonging to the Durham military company while returning from the State encampment, are causing the covers to be removed from over the bridges on that road, and the structures are being replaced by modern steel bridges.

Salisbury Sun: The Southern railway south of Washington has just put on its first installment of new passenger engines of the Pacific type, each one weighing 350,000 pounds or 175 tons. They have six drivers, two trailers and two pairs of pony trucks, each driver being 72 inches in diameter. These monster locomotives are 71 feet long and carry a steam pressure of 221 pounds more than ordinary engines. When pushed they can go one hundred miles an hour, but are only expected to make that high rate of speed on special occasions.

GENERAL.

There are 300 American educational and philanthropic institutions in the Turkish empire.

Ambassador Choate is regarded as the wittiest and most brilliant conversationalist among the diplomats in London.

The Duke of Sutherland has closed on one of his estates in Scotland a road over which the public had enjoyed rights of way for 300 years.

Former President Steyn and his wife have received permission to return to South Africa in December. They will occupy a farm near Bloemfontein.

It is said that the New York city transportation companies collected 1,000,000,000 five-cent pieces last year. This means that $50,000,000 was collected from passengers.

Sadyk Bey Onchaky Zade, a Turk from Smyrna, has applied for membership in the New York Stock Exchange. He is a heavy dealer in cotton in Asia Minor and Egypt.

Russian soldiers now prisoners of war in Japan include Jews and Poles, and these men are said to be desirous of staying in Japan after the war and becoming citizens of that country.

Investigation by the Secretary of the Interior showed that in 1902 there were in existence in the United States about 1,100 American bison or buffalo, Canada 600 wild buffalo and 69 in captivity.

The Tacoma smelter, controlled by D. O. Mills and associates, is making $24,000 a month by saving precious metals that have heretofore been carried away in smoke from its furnaces. The smoke is passed through a cooler and then strained through light canvas. The result is a harvest of gold, silver, copper, etc.

In an account by a Japanese officer of the first fights on land near the Yalu he records that the men could not keep their European-fashioned boots on their feet, so that most of them preferred to slide their unaccustomed footgear over their shoulders, wading through the icy mud in their bare feet.

For Whooping Cough use CHENEY'S EXPECTORANT.

Everything God gives you to do, you must do as well as you can, and that is the best possible preparation for what He may want you to do next.—George Macdonald.

The effective life and the receptive life are one, no sweep of aim that does some work for our God but harvests also some more of the truth of God and sweeps it into the treasury of the life.—Phillips Brooks.

Do not let us complain over the place in which we are compelled to serve. The Lord hath made us, and the whole plan of our life is so arranged as to bring to their most perfect development the faculties with which we have been endowed. Let us only be concerned that we run not counter to His plans.—The Presbyterian.

Most boys need licking, and all need loving.

DEAR MADAM: Please Read My Free Offer

Words of Wisdom to Sufferers from a Lady of Notre Dame, Indiana.

I send free of charge to every sufferer this great Woman Remedy, with full instructions, description of my past sufferings and how I permanently cured myself.

You Can Cure Yourself at Home Without the Aid of a Physician.

It costs nothing to try this remedy once, and if you desire to continue its use, it will cost you only twelve cents a week. It does not interfere with your work or occupation. I have nothing to sell. Tell other sufferers of it; that is all I ask. It cures everybody, young or old.

If you feel bearing down pains as from approaching danger, pain in the back and bowels, creeping feeling in the spine, a desire to cry, hot flashes and faintness, or if you are suffering from any so-called female complaint, then write to Mrs. M. Summers, Notre Dame, Ind., for her free treatment and full instructions. Like myself thousands have been cured by it. I send it in a plain envelope.

Mothers and Daughters will learn of a simple family remedy, which quickly and thoroughly cures female complaints of every nature. It saves worry and expense and the unpleasantness of having to reveal your condition to others. Vigor, health and happiness result from its use.

Wherever you live I can refer you to well-known ladies in your neighborhood, who know, and will testify that this family remedy cures all troubles peculiar to their sex, strengthens the whole system and makes healthy and strong women. Write to-day, as this offer may not be made again.

MRS. M. SUMMERS, BOX 233, NOTRE DAME, IND., U. S. A.

LOUISIANA

A Land of Promise

is open for you. Grasp this opportunity to reap the reward of industry in fertile Louisana—the richest alluvial soil in America. A Land of Perpetual Springtime and Flowers.

Don't Waste Time, Money and Efforts on a Poor Farm.

This company has a large tract of land in the famous Red River Valley, Avoyelles Parish, La., only 6½ miles from Marksville, the county seat. It will be divided into small plantations, and sold on very easy terms—cleared ready for the plow, or with timber standing.

FREE TRANSPORTATION

To All Intending Buyers.

Buy some of this splendid land. It is a rich alluvial formation of virgin top soil from 15 to 30 feet deep. It is no unusual thing for the crops here to yield a profit in one year equal to the original cost of the farm

COTTON, CORN, RICE AND SUGAR CANE

Pay From $25 to $100 Per Acre.

Do Your Acres Pay You as Well Now?

Transportation facilities are unusually good. A RAILROAD IS NOW BEING CONSTRUCTED THROUGH THE HEART OF THE PROPERTY, which connects with trunk lines covering the north, south, east and west. The Shreveport and Red River Valley R. R passes through part of the tract, and branches of the Texas and Pacific R. R. are on the south and west. Thus a convenient and profitable market is provided for all crops.

To Investigate is to be Convinced.

WANTED: Good, Live, Responsible AGENTS to handle this property.

For further particulars call or write

Land Department Louisiana Construction Co.,

Suite 1004-1008 West End Trust Building, Philadelphia, Pa.

ROYAL-PALM NURSERIES

An immense horticultural establishment devoted to the introduction and growth of nursery trees and plants in endless variety, especially adapted to the South and to the Tropics. Write for annual descriptive catalogue covering following subjects under separate departments: Tropical Fruit, Plants and Trees; Semi-Tropical ditto; Economical, Medicinal and Useful Trees and Plants; Bamboos and Grasses; Aquatics; Conifers; Palms and Cycads, Ferns and Selaginellas; Foliage and Decorative Plants; Tropical Flowering Plants and Shrubs; Hardy and Half-Hardy ditto; Tropical and Sub-Tropical Vines and Creepers; Hardy and Half-Hardy ditto; Tuberous, Bulbous and Herbaceous Plants; Tropical Shade Trees, and Hardy Half-Hardy Shade Trees; Succulents and Epiphytes.

Now is the time to get your plants for the home during the Autumn months. Send at once for catalogue and make an early selection. Notice discount under par. 8 on page 3, which enables you to get plants at remarkably low rates. We have new special low express rates to all parts of the South.

Reasoner Bros., Oneco, Florida.

Methodist Orphanage

OFFICERS:

REV. J. W. JENKINS, - Superintendent
MRS. J. W. JENKINS, - - Matron
MISS LUCY M. REEKS, Teacher

Send money to the Superintendent by Check, Post Office or Express Money Order, or Registered letter.

Game.

We have got the grandest little 'simmon tree you ever saw. It is about as large around as a boy's wrist, and about as tall as Brother Stanford's head, and it is bending under the weight of large, golden fruit. Do you reckon it is doing its best for our benefit? It is growing on our land, too. May the number be multiplied a thousand fold! Every boy says, amen! and every girl chimes in, so mote it be!

Our Artisans.

Our Gustavus is at work in the blacksmith's shop learning his father's trade, and he'll learn it, too. Gus is a mechanical genius.

Our O'Berry is taking drawing lessons. And my! how he can draw. It is simply wonderful how he takes to it. He'll make his mark if he has a chance. But they are not all the smart boys we have.

Receipts up to October 1st.

Epworth, up to November, $2.00; Clayton, $7.77; Cary Sunday-school, $2.74; Miss Lilly Jones, $5.00; a friend, Smithfield, $1.00; Laurinburg Sunday-school, July, August and September, $15.00; Plank Chapel, Tar River Circuit, $2.50; Trinity, Tar River Circuit, $2.50; Ebenezer, Tar River Circuit, $1.36; Kittrell, Tar River Circuit, $1.10.

Clayton.

From the very first, friends in Clayton have been liberal to the baby institution. Somehow, we love those who love us. So I am always glad to go to Clayton. They always treat me kindly. Little Warren inquired after Lillie Warren—the butter-milk-giving cow. He is a dear little boy. An orphan was provided for by Warren's father, and the Sunday-school will join Four Oaks and Elizabeth and Mount Zion and Corrinth to support an orphan.

So the Clayton circuit will be put down on our list. The work is growing. It is a great pleasure to preach to an appreciative people. There were good congregations morning and night. Fisher is doing solid work. He is a solid man. They said, come again. We like that. It makes one feel good.

Speaking of Thanksgiving.

When it comes at a good time, and there is nothing in the way, it brings us in about a thousand dollars a year. That will pay the full expenses of ten orphans. There are some, members of the Methodist church, that ought not to think of giving the Methodist Orphanage less than a $100 a year. But as long as our brethren in the ministry treat it with such little concern, they will or cannot feel its importance. I do not know of an orphanage in the world that proposes to be run in the way. The people will give just as much, or more on Thanksgiving Day, after having given in the regular collection, as if they had not given at all. Thank-offerings are intended to be extra.

Dear friends, don't let this beguile you into thinking that you have done your duty to these needy ones, when you have given a Thanksgiving dime.

A Word to the Wanting Ones.

Three children were accepted this evening at a meeting of the Executive Committee, 27th September, viz.: Fannie Coppersmith, of Elizabeth City; Charlie Ross Ashley, of Ashpole, and Bessie Hutchins, of Mount Airy. The rest of the applications will be acted upon soon and placed on file until we get into our main building. We will let them know when to come. Meanwhile, let the friends go on providing for them. Not only for their support, but also for school-rooms and sleeping apartments. Only one dormitory has been furnished and five beds for another. Who will furnish the other two beds for the second dormitory. Nothing has been yet for the dining-room.

Who will send me $3.00 to pay for a desk in the school-room? Boys and girls, here is a good chance.

Thanksgiving—A Snare.

It seems that most of the brethren are waiting for Thanksgiving Day to come to lift their Orphanage collections. If that is all you are going to do, beloved, the advance movement all along the line will not be made this year. If that is depended upon to raise funds upon which to run the Orphanage, it will prove a snare. You will preach an eloquent Thanksgiving sermon on that day, and at its close say: "We will now take up a small collection for the Orphanage." It will be a penny collection. If a man has a nickle in his pocket, he will toss it in with a heart swelling with gratitude. Not a Methodist church in the State will give one hundred dollars. Five-sixths of the circuit churches will not give a penny. They will not have a chance.

A GREAT SENSATION.

There was a big sensation in Leesville, Ind., when W. H. Brown of that place, who was expected to die, had his life saved by Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. He writes: "I endured insufferable agonies from Asthma, but your New Discovery gave me immediate relief and soon thereafter effected a complete cure. Similar cures of Consumption, Pneumonia, Bronchitis and Grip are numerous. It's the peerless remedy for all throat and lung troubles. Price 50 cents and $1.00. Guaranteed by all druggists. Trial bottles free.

CECILIAN BARGAINS.

One $275 Cecilian for $225.
Two $250 Cecilians for $175.

These instruments are new. We want to close them out. They represent the biggest values ever offered in piano players.

Write at once if you want to secure one of these bargains.

STIEFF,

MANUFACTURER OF THE PIANO WITH THE SWEET TONE,

BALTIMORE, MD.

Southern Warerooms,

211-213 N. Tryon St., Charlotte, N. C.

C. H. Wilmoth, Mgr.

In 1900 Oklahoma contained only two towns having more than 3,500 inhabitants, and these contained from 10,000 up to 25,000. At least 75,000 have been added to her population since June, 1900. Since that time five counties have been organized, with a total population of 130,000. These estimates make the present population more than 600,000.

STOPS CHILLS CURES COLDS Painkiller (Perry Davis) SOLD OVER 60 YEARS

Quarterly Meetings.

WARRENTON DISTRICT.

G. F. Smith, P. E., Littleton, N. C.

THIRD ROUND.

Northampton, New Hope, Sept. 17, 18
Bertie, Ebenezer, Sept. 24, 25
Williamston and Hamilton, Williamston, Oct. 1, 2
Rich Square, Pinner's, Oct. 8, 9
Hobgood, Williams Chapel, Oct. 15, 16

FOURTH ROUND.

Enfield and Halifax, Enfield, Aug 21, 22
Harrellsville, Harrellsville, Aug. 27, 28
Scotland Neck, Sept. 4, 5
Conway, Providence Sept. 10, 11.
Murfreesboro, Sept. 11, 12
Northampton, New Hope, Sept. 17, 18
Bertie, Ebenezer, Sept 24, 25
Williamston and Hamilton, Williamston, October 1, 2
Rich quare, Pinners, Oct. 8, 9
Battleboro and Whitakers, Whitakers, Oct. 15, 16
Hobgood, Williams Chapel, Oct. 22, 23
Warren. sbnay Grove, Oct. 29, 30
Warrenton, Warrenton, Oct. 30, 31
Littleton, Littleton, Nov. 5, 6
Weldon, Nov. 6 7
Garysburg, seaboard, Nov. 5
Roanoke Circuit, Smiths, Nov. 12, 13
Roanoke Rapids, Rosemary, Nov. 13, 14
Ridgeway, Unity, Nov. 19, 20
Henderson, Nov. 27, 28

ELIZABETH CITY DISTRICT.

J. E. Underwood, P. E., E. City, N C

FOURTH ROUND.

Hatteras, Trent, Sept. 10, 11
Hertford, Centre Hill, Sept. 17, 18
Perquimans, Oak Grove, Sept. 24, 25
Pasquotank, Newbegun, Sept. 25, 26
Camden, McBride's, Oct. 1, 2
North Gates, Savage, Oct. 8, 9
Gates Harrells, Oct. 15, 16
Kitty Hawk, Currituck Inlet, Oct. 22, 23
Currituck, Ebenezer, Oct. 23, 24
Moyock, Perkins Chapel, Oct. 29, 30
Dare, Mann's Harbor. Nov. 5, 6
Roanoke Island, Nov. 6, 7
Elizabeth City, First Church, Nov. 13
Elizabeth City Road, Nov. 13
Columbia, Nov. 19, 20
Pantego and Belham, Nov. 25
Roper, Nov 26, 27
Plymouth, Nov. 27

WASHINGTON DISTRICT.

J. D. Bundy, P. E., Rocky Mount, N. C.

FOURTH ROUND.

Robesonville, Mt. Zion, Sept. 3, 4
Washington, Sept. 11, 12
Nashville, Sharon, Sept. 17, 18
Farmville, Farmville, Oct. 2, 3
Aurora, Oct. 8, 9
Swan Quarter, Swan Quarter, Oct. 12
Fairfield, Oct. 14
Mattamuskeet, Nebraska, Oct. 15 16
Bethel, Bethel, Oct. 22, 23
Tarboro, (night) Oct. 23
Ocracoke and Portsmouth, Ocracoke, Oct. 29, 30
Greenville, (morning) Nov. 6
Grimesland and Vanceboro, Shilmerdine, November 6, 7
Spring Hope, Hornes, Nov. 12, 13
Wilson Station, (night) Nov. 13
Wilson Circuit, (Lodge Street) Nov. 14
Fremont, Fremont Nov. 15
Rock Mount, Nov. 16
Bath, Bath, Nov. 19, 20
South Rocky Mount and Marvin, Nov. 22
South Edgecombe, Elm City, Nov. 27, 28

ROCKINGHAM DISTRICT.

John N. Cole, P. E., Rockingham, N. C.

FOURTH ROUND.

Roberdel, Roberdel, Sept. 3, 4
Rockingham Station, Sept. 4, 5
Lumberton, Barker's, Sept. 10, 11
St. John and Gibson, St. John, Sept. 15, 16
Laurenburg Sept. 16, 17
Richmond, Steele's Mill, Sept. 24, 25
Maxton and Caledonia, Oct. 1, 2
Hamlet, Ham et, Oct. 8, 9
Rowland, Rowland, Oct. 15, 16
Robeson, Asbury, Oct. 22, 23
Mt. Gilead, Wadeville, Oct. 29, 30
Montgomery, Capeisle, Nov. 5, 6
Red Springs, Red Springs, Nov. 12, 13
Pekin, Concord, Nov. 20
Aberdeen, Aberdeen, Nov. 26, 27

RALEIGH DISTRICT.

W. H. Moore, P. E., Pittsboro, N. C.

FOURTH ROUND.

Franklinton, Grove Hill, September 10, 11
Clayton, Elizabeth, September 17, 18
Oxford Circuit, September 24, 25
Central, October 1, 2
Brooklyn, October 2, 3
Milbrook, Pleasant Grove, October 8, 9
Granville, October 15, 16
Wakefield, October 20
Kenley, October 22, 23
Cary, October 29, 30
Epworth, October 30
Oxford Station, November 5, 6
Youngsville, November 12, 13
Louisburg, November 19, 20
Tar River Plank Chapel, November 26, 27

NEW BERN DISTRICT.

F. D. Swindell, P. E., Goldsboro, N. C

FOURTH ROUND.

Mt. Olive and Falson, Mt. Olive, Sept. 17, 18
Jones' Circuit, Lee's, Sept. 24, 25
Goldsboro, Thompson's, Oct. 1, 2
St. Paul, Oct. 2
Centenary, Oct. 9, 10
Pamlico, Bayboro Oct. 15, 16
Oriental, Oriental, Oct. 16, 17
Hookerton, Rainbow, Oct. 22, 23
Grifton Grifton, Oct. 23, 24
Dover, Oct. 29 30
Kinston, Oct. 30
Snow Hill Circuit, Jerusalem, Nov. 5, 6
Craven, Asbury, Nov. 11
Carteret, Harlow Nov. 12, 13
Beaufort, Nov. 13, 14
Atlantic, Wh, Nov. 15, 16
Straits, Tabernacle, Nov. 19, 20
Morehead, Nov. 20
LaGrange Circuit, Nov. 23,
St. John, Nov. 25
Mt. Olive Circuit, Smiths, Nov. 26, 27

DURHAM DISTRICT.

J. T. Gibbs, P. E., Durham N. C.

East Burlington, Graham and Haw River, at Haw River, August 27, 28
Mt. Tirzah Circuit, September 3, 4

FOURTH ROUND.

Trinity Church, Sept. 11, at 11 a. m.
Carr Church and Branson, at Carr, Sept. 11 at night
Chapel Hill, Sept 17, 18
Durham McMannen, Sept. 24, 25
Mangum Street, Sept. 25 at night
Leasburg, Salem, Oct. 1, 2
Hillsboro, Cedar Grove, Oct. 8, 9
Roxboro, Concord, Oct. 15, 16
Milton, New Hope, Oct. 22, 23
Yanceyville, Bethel Oct. 29, 30
Mt Tirzah Circuit, Nov. 5, 6
Burlington, Front Street, Nov. 13, 14
East Burlington, Graham and Haw River, Nov. 13, at night
Burlington, Shiloah, Nov. 18
Alamance, Phillips Chapel, Nov. 19, 20
Main Street, Nov. 27, at 11 a. m.
West Durham, Nov. 27, at night

FAYETTEVILLE DISTRICT.

J. S. Hurley, P. E., Fayetteville, N. C.

THIRD ROUND.

Goldstone Marconeys, August 27, 28
Sampson, Bethel, September 3, 4
Fayetteville, Hay Street, September 10, 11

FOURTH ROUND.

Dunn, Sept. 25, 26.
Cokesbury, Cokesbury, Oct. 1, 2
Elise, Lyra. Oct. 7
Carthage. Oct. 8, 9
Haw river, Bynum's, Oct. 14
Pittsboro, Zion, Oct. 15, 16
Siler City, Oct. 22, 23
Goldston, Oct. 23, 24
Jonesboro, Poplar springs, Oct. 28
Sanford, Oct. 29, 30
Hope Mills, Nov. 5, 6
Newton Grove, Nov. 11
Duke, Benson, Nov. 12, 13
Buckhorn, Cokesbury, Oct. 18
Lillington, Nov. 19, 20
Sampson, Nov. 25
Fayetteville, Hay Street, Nov. 27
Fayetteville, Holt's still, Nov. 27

WILMINGTON DISTRICT.

R. B. John, P. E., Wilmington, N. C.

FOURTH ROUND.

Onslow, Swanboro, September 3, 4
Scott's Hill, Acorn Branch, September 3, 4
New River, Turkey Creek, September 4
Burgaw, September 10, 11
Fifth street, Sept. 18
Market Street, Sept. 18
Town Creek, Zion, Sept. 21
Grace, September 25
Clinton, Keener, Oct. 1, 2
Bladen Circuit, Antioch, Oct. 7
Elizabeth, Wesley's, Oct. 8, 9
Magnolia Circuit, Oct. 15, 16
Carver's Creek, Shiloah, Oct. 21
Whiteville, Cerro Gordo Oct. 22, 23
Shallotte Village, Oct. 28
Waccamaw, Bethel, Oct. 29, 30
Burgaw, Burgaw, Nov. 4
Kenansville Warsaw Nov. 5, 6
Onslow, Tabernacle, Nov. 9
Jackson and Richlands, Richlands, Nov 10
Southport, Nov. 13
New River, Sneed's Ferry, Nov. 18
Scott's Hill, Scott's Hill, Nov. 19, 20
Bladen Street, Nov. 27.

WOOL.

If you have wool to sell for cash, to exchange for goods, or to be manufactured, ship it to the CHATHAM MANUFACTURING COMPANY, ELKIN, N. C., and you will not regret it. They pay the highest market price and make the best goods you can get. Their blankets at all the leading expositions have been awarded GOLD MEDALS as the finest made in America.

WRITE THEM FOR SAMPLES.

ROYALTY PAID ON SONG POEMS, and Musical Compositions. We arrange and popularize. PIONEER PUB. CO.' 625 Baltimore Bldg., CHICAGO, ILL.

Obituaries

Obituaries containng not more than one hundred and fifty words are inserted free of charge. Those sending obituaries containing over one hundred and fifty words are requested to send with the obituary one cent for every word in excess. Unless this rule is observed the obituary must be cut down to the proper limit

EMORY.—Sarah T. Emory was born February 24, 1854, and died at her home in Belhaven, July 29, 1904. She had been in declining health for a year or more, and for the last few weeks of her life was confined to the bed. She joined our church at Bethlehem, on the Bath Circuit, under the ministry of Rev. W. E. Hocut. From that day to the end of her life she lived a devoted life. When not prevented from doing so by ill health, she was in her place in the church, and was among the very first to contribute to the cause of Christ. She suffered very greatly a short while before the end came, but her hope in God was strong. She loved God and the preacher and all things that pertained to the Master's kingdom. May the Lord be gracious to her husband and young son who are left behind to mourn their loss, and may they meet her in the better world above. J. M. JACKSON.

BARNES.—Mrs. Nettie Pitman Barnes was born February 29, 1868. She joined the M. E. Church, South, in girlhood as a seeker of religion; she was happily converted to God at Olivet Church in the summer of 1888. She was happily married to Mr. K. M. Barnes, January 29, 1890. From this marriage three children were born, one boy and two girls. She died September 23, 1904, happy in the faith of Jesus. We buried her mortal remains from Spring Hill Baptist Church September 24, 1904.

The above are the facts and dates about which srystallize one of the richest and best Christian lives it has ever been my privilege to know. Sister Barnes was not simply nominal in anything that she engaged in. Activity was the dominant characteristic in her life everywhere. When she joined the church as a seeker her purpose was not simply to get her name on the church roll, but to seek till she found pardon in Jesus. In pursuance of this purpose she was always at the altar for prayer when opportunity was given, till she realized the blessedness of a redeemed and regenerated nature in a most powerful conversion. Such was her experience at that time that she never questioned the genuineness of her conversion. From that time on she was just as active in trying to lead others to Christ as she had been in seeking Him for herself. Her life was a consecrated one.

She took great interest in the salvation of those about her. In the last conversation I had with her she named several persons, whom she was anxious to see converted. In meetings she was an active worker in the congregation with sinners and at the altar with penitents.

Her religious experience was rich, full and satisfying. While she made no great profession of perfect holiness, or sanctification in empty words, her life constantly manifested the spirit of Christ. She could truly say, "To me to live is Christ, but to die is gain." To do good and glorify God was her was her supreme object in life.

Her faith, patience and resignation in her long sickness were simply beautiful. Whatever was God's will was hers without a murmur. Her Bible and her Saviour was her constant companions. No wonder that her faith was strong and unshaken to the end. She gave her three children a parting blessing, told them to meet her in heaven, and bade them goodbye. Then with a few parting words to her husband, brothers and sisters, her spirit went back to God, and she is not for God took her.

She leaves an aged mother, a husband and three children, six sisters, three brothers and a host of friends and relatives to mourn their loss. It is their loss, but her eternal gain. They mourn not as they that have no hope. She left the sure testimony as to her whereabouts. "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord." God bless the bereaved ones.

J. M. ASHBY.

ATWATER.—Matthew Atwater, son of Rev. Wilson Atwater, was born in Orange County, N. C., April 28, 1825, and died May 17, 1904. He was thrice married; first, to Miss Emily Snipes, daughter of Rev. William Snipes, of Chatham County, N. C., October 8, 1846. To this union there were born two sons and five daughters. Mrs. Atwater died July 14, 1862, and he was again married to Miss Martha Snipes, daughter of Alfred Snipes, of Orange County, July 9, 1865. She lived with him until June 19, 1887, when she departed this life, leaving to him three sons and three daughters.

On the 23rd day of February, 1888, Mr. Atwater was married to Miss Mary C. Smith, daughter of Peter Smith, of Guilford County, N. C., who died December 20, 1903, leaving no issue.

Matthew Atwater was a philosopher, and looked upon everything from a philosophic viewpoint. His father was a local Methodist preacher of no mean ability, and of extraordinary faith in God. His mother was an Irish lady and from this happy combination he inherited a propension to religion and a mind that was remarkable for depth, breadth and acumen. Whatever he did, whether for religion, business or pleasure, he did it scientifically and vigorously. His motto through life was to know the right and do it, though earth and hell opposed. He made some mistakes. Certainly. Who, that has ever accomplished anything, has not? But he made few enemies, because everyone who came in touch with him became impressed that he was doing what he thought to be right.

Something over fifty years ago he bought a tract of land six miles west of his father's home and camped in the forest for thirty days until he could build a rude log cabin, covered with rough oaken clap-boards, which was to be the home of his family until he should become able to build a better house, it being his life-long rule to use such things as he had until he could afford better. To this humble home he brought his young wife. And here "he established a family altar and there offered daily sacrifice; and as his children grew up he taught them the way of salvation, and one by one they embraced Christ as their Saviour. And at a family reunion a few years ago it was stated that among the children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren of mature age," (numbering, I think, about eighty), "there was not one who was not a professed Christian."

There have been few better neighbors than was the subject of this sketch. He always held himself in readiness to do a kind turn to those who needed it. "He seemed to take a special pleasure in carrng for and helping the poor; and if that is lending to the Lord, he must have had a considerable amount set down to his credit." And he was able to help the poor, for the very good reason that his habits of industry and economy, coupled with his sound judgement, had brought financial success.

As a citizen, Mr. Atwater took keen interest in all things that pertained to the welfare of his government. He was intensely and intelligently patriotic. Twice was he chosen to represent Orange County in the Legislature, and was defeated once by a bare majority of seven votes; and only because of his opposition to the liquor traffic. His massive brain, cool head and Irish wit made him a formidable antagonist on the hustings.

But, notwithstanding the busy life, and the varied duties, time was always found to do the work of the church. For many years he bore an official relation to the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, faithfully attending to the work intrusted to him by his church, liberally supplying her needs of the means that God had put into his hands.

He loved his home; his family; his neighbors, friends and enemies; his country; his church; his God, and served them all to the extent of his ability. What more can be said of man?

ROBT. W. BAILHY.

Resolutions of Respect.

Whereas, it has pleased Almighty God to remove from our midst Prof. E. P. Mangum, the beloved superintendent of our city schools; and,

Whereas, we, the teachers, desire to testify our high appreciation of his character, both as a citizen and as an instructor, and wish to record our loss in his death; now, therefore, be it

Resolved 1. That while we bow in humble submission to God's will, yet we feel keenly the loss of our faithful friend and zealous co-worker.

2. That his death is a loss not only to us and our schools that have had the benefit of his wise instruction and noble example, but to the cause of education throughout our beloved State.

3. That we sympathize with those most deeply afflicted, to whom his love was so strong and tender, and by whom he is so sadly missed, and we commend them to the Father of all comfort and the God of all mercy.

4. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the city papers and the Raleigh Christian Advocate for publication.

M. A. TOMLINSON,
T. BARNES,
M. A. HEARNE,
Committee.

Whereas, God in His wisdom has taken from among us Prof. J. F. Bivins, who had from the organization of the Main Street Epworth League been its president, we desire to give expression to our appreciation of his labors among us.

Prof. Bivins may truly be called the founder of this League. Largely through his influence it was organized in the spring of 1902. And while there have been many faithful members who have taken a lively interest in the League and lent a helping hand to its various enerprises, yet Prof. Bivins was indeed the mainspring of its life and usefulness. He thought for it and planned for it, as he did for his own school work. No one will doubt but that it was much upon his mind, and its continuous weal found a large place in the burden of his prayers.

It was largely due to his inspiring personality, as well as to his wisdom, in conducting its meetings that the League was so largely attended, and had such a strong, helping influence upon the young people of Main Street Church, the Colleee and the Park School. The growth of the League has been phenomenal. It is not too much to say that this rapid growth was largely due to the enthusiasm, the energy, and the deep devotional spirit which Prof. Bivins projected into the life of this institution of the church.

We miss him. He loved us and was faithful to us. As a League, we trust that his spirit of fidelity and true Christian love may ever be the watch-words of our organization.

We wish to express our resignation to the will of God; for we accept his sudden taking away as a work of the Lord, in whose hands are the issues of life and death. He walked with us and was faithful for thirty years; "and he was not for God took him;" and we believe that he now enjoys the riches of the infinite life with God.

Our sympathies go out to the stricken loved ones. We pray God who alone can comfort to comfort their hearts. And we commit unto them the twenty-seventh verse of the fourteenth chapter of St. John, which Prof. Bivins loved so much, and quoted: "Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you: not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid."

MISS MAUDE WILKERSON,
W. V. McRAE,
S. J. KILPATRICK,
Committee.

The Rev. Joseph Francis Bivins was an honored and much beloved member of the quarterly conference of Main Street Methodist Church, South, Durham, N. C., and we, the members of this quarterly conference desire to express, and to place on record on the minutes of this conference our admiration of his character and love for him as a man and our appreciation of his service to this church.

He loved the church. Her altars were held sacred by him. No reproach was ever laid at her door by any word or act of his. Far otherwise; he lived and labored for her welfare. He was the loved and efficient teacher of a large class in the Sunday-school, the enthusiastic and success-inspiring president of the Epworth League. He cheerfully responded to every invitation to the prayer-meetings and temperance meetings, for the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society; and on every occasion gladly wrought for the upbuilding and extension of the kingdom of Christ in the world. No labor for the church was too heavy; the best that was in him he joyously laid on her altars, and everywhere that he wrought he brought things to pass. He delighted to see persons converted and rejoiced in their development and strengthening in the Christian life.

He loved men because he loved God. His heart beat a loyal response to the will of the Lord. He thought, spoke, acted, "lived" in tune with the Infinite. He was a consecrated man; his indeed was a lighted lamp, one whose rays were thrown afar giving glory and honors to his Lord.

We loved him for his work, for he "was truly one of God's workmen in the world." We loved him as a man. His virtues shall ever be sacredly cherished in our memories. Therefore be it

Resolved 1. That with deep grief we have heard of his death, and while in submission we bow to our heavenly Father's will, yet we record the fact that the church has lost a valuable worker, the community a good citizen, the State a great educator, and all of us a sincere friend, who was indeed a man of God.

2. That we hereby tender our sincerest sympathies to his wife, his mother and brothers, all of whom are so sorely bereaved in his death and pray that God, our heavenly Father, may gracious sustain and comfort them in their great grief.

3. That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the pages of the minutes of the conference; that a copy be sent to his mother and brothers, and another to his wife, and that other copies be sent to the Herald and the Sun, of this city, and the Christian Advocate of Raleigh, with the request that they beg ublished.

W. L. CUNNINGGIM,
R. L. FLOWERS,
W. H. McCABE,
Committee.

Durham, N. C.

The October "Cosmopolitan" presents, as usual, a vast variety of matters of timely interest in its table of contents. To P. O'Connor—the valiant "T. P."—has the latest word to say on the political outlook in Ireland. His long association with the cause of Home Rule enables him to give a masterly, concise review of the present situation and immediate future of the Emerald Isle.

The world is now beginning to realize that when the next international struggle takes place Turkey and Persia will be the upper and nether mill-stones. The edge of India, Asia Minor or the newly German-colonized lands of Mesopotamia will probly be the scene of the clash. Therefore to every student of world-politics the vast enterprises of Russia, England and Germany to reach central Asia by rail are matters of very great interest and importance. Josiah M. Ward contributes a very clear paper on this subject entitled, "Shorter Routes to India," accompanied bya map. Another article of importanee is Governor Brodie's "Reclaiming the Arid West." The chief executive of Arizona makes many startling statements as to the benefits to be derived by a proper system of irrigation in the now arid lands of the West. Rafford Pyke has a most witty essay on "The Pursuit of Man" in which he gives his views of George Bernard Shaw's theories on courtship. The other articles in the number include "Continental Cafe," by Herman Knickerbocker Viele; "Lisbon the Fair," by H. C. Chatfield-Taylor, and "Will Marconi Supplant the Cables?" by P. T. McGrath. The fiction list contains such noted names as Clara Morris, Alfred Sutro, T. W. Hanshew,, Tom Masson and William T. Hornaday.

The editor, John Brisben Walker, contributes the opening chapter of a new serial, "A Modern 'Swiss Family Robinson,'" which tells the story of the shipwreck of a Pacific steamer and how the passengers lived three years on an island and were finally rescued. Anyone who reads the opening chapter will soon perceive that the castaways are on the island promises some remarkable developments. Robert Clark, Jr., has a sketch of the work of W. R. Stubbs in breaking up the corrupt Republican State ring ing Kansas.

For Croup use CHENEY'S EXPECTORANT.

Text Cards for Home Decoration

on higher finished ivory and dark ground cards, all with silk cord to hang; require no frames. Agents wanted everywhere; liberal discount. GOSPEL PUBLISHING HOUSE, 54 W. 22d St., New York, Room 28.

MAKES A CLEAN SWEEP.

There's nothing like doing a thing thoroughly. Of all the Salves you ever heard of, Bucklen's Arnica Salve is the best. It sweeps away and cures Burns, Sores, Bruises, Cuts, Boils, Ulcers, Skin Eruptions and Piles. It's only 25 cents, and guaranteed to give satisfaction by all druggists.

POSITIONS GUARANTEED. May pay tuition out of salary after course is completed and position is secured. Indorsed by business men from Maine to California. For 160-page catalog, address J. F. DRAUGHON, Pres., either place,

DRAUGHON'S PRACTICAL BUSINESS Colleges,

Columbia, S. C. Nashville, Tenn.

Atlanta, Ga.; Montgomery, Ala.; Ft. Worth Texas; Oklahoma City, O. T.; Galveston, Texas; Little Rock, Ark.; Ft. Scott, Kans.; Shreveport, La.; St. Louis, Mo.; Kansas City, Mo. After July 1st, 1904.

Incorporated, $300,000.00 capital. Established 1859. 14 bankers on board of directors. National reputation. Our diploma represents in business circles what Yale's and Harvard's represent in literary circles. No vacation; enter any time. Part car fare paid; cheap board. Write to-day.

HOME STUDY. BOOKKEEPING, SHORTHAND, PENMANSHIP, etc., taught by mail. Money refunded if not satisfied with course. Write for prices of home study courses.

CROSS & LINEHAN CO.,
NEW TUCKER BUILDING.)
234-236 Favetteville St., RALEIGH, N. C.

LET US SHOW YOU WHAT THE FULL MEANING OF BARGAIN-GIVING MEANS IN . . . . . .

CLOTHING
AND GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS.

OUR NEW SPRING STOCK NOW READY FOR YOUR INSPECTION.

Cross & Linehan Co.,
Leading Clothiers.

PIANOS AND ORGANS

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.

A. D. JONES & CO

Southern Factory Distributors for the World's Famous

KIMBALL

WE Loan you the money to buy them.
WE Give free trials.
WE Pay the freight.
WE Save you 25 per cent.
WE Add nothing to the principal when sold on

EASY PAYMENTS.

Write for our latest piano and and organ catalogue and full particulars.

A. D. JONES & CO.,
208 South Elm Street,
GREENSBORO, N. C.

Here is a bit of missionary life from Tsuchiura, Japan: "Imagine me," says the missionary, "sitting on the floor, with a little table three feet square and a foot high, and a little charcoal fire with an oven on it, on one side. I was giving a cooking lesson to six Japanese ladies." The lesson was on stuffing and baking mackerel and on making sponge cake. After the lesson in cooking came a Bible lesson. What was the missionary's reward? Three of the women of the cooking class have already become Christians!

"AND THE CAT CAME BACK."

That is the story of tetter cured by other medicines; not so when Tetterine does the work. B. H. Tatner, of McDonald Mills, Ga., writes: "Tetterine is the only remedy I ever sold that would cure tetter so it would not return. Sold six dozen boxes in a year and guaranteed every box. I have never had to return the money for a single box. One sold a box to a man who had had tetter for fifty-two years; two boxes cured him sound and well." Fifty cents a box at druggists or from

J. T. SHUPTRINE, Mfg.,
Savannah, Ga.

The Best! The Best! Rheumatism.

Labatory Mills,
Lincolnton, N. C., July 23, 1900.

A year ago last March I was taken with muscular rheumatism in my right arm, and the pain was so severe the physicians would have to resort to hypodermic inoetions of morphine in the arm, to give me relief. I was unable to dress myself or comb my hair, in fact, I could not raise my arm to my head. I had heard of Mrs. Joe Person's wonderful Remedy and determined to try it. It did me so much good, I was glad when the time came to take it. I took eight bottles and it made a perfect cure of me. I recommend it to everybody, and I cannot say too much for it. It will CURE, so try it.

MRS. L. J. RHYNE.

THE KEELEY INSTITUTE
GREENSBORO, N.C.
For the treatment of THE LIQUOR, OPIUM, MORPHINE and other Drug Addictions. The Tobacco Habit, Nerve Exhaustion

....Chesapeake and Ohio Railway....
World's Fair Scenic Route
TO
St. Louis, Missouri.

SHORTEST, QUICKEST and BEST ROUTE. Vestibuled, Electric-Lighted Trains with Pullman Sleepers and Dining Cars.
Through tickets from North Carolina with direct connections.
SPECIAL RATES FOR SEASON, SIXTY OR FIFTEEN DAY TICKETS.
Fifteen day tickets from Raleigh, N. C., $24.80.
Sleeping car accommodations engaged upon application.
SPECIAL COACH EXCURSIONS
On authorized dates, tickets good for ten days at rate of $18.50. Correspondingly low rates from other stations. Special accommodations arranged for parties. Stop-overs permitted within limit at C. & O. celebrated mountain resorts.
USE THE C. & O. ROUTE and purchase your tickets accordingly.
For coach excursion dates, reservations and other information, address
W. O. WARTHEN, D. P. A., C. & O. Railway.
Richmond, Va.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC COMPANY.
..."SUNSET ROUTE."...

Lowest Rates and Through Service to California. Ask About Them.
Through the Rice and Oil Belt.
4 Daily Trains from New Orleans to Points in Lonisiana; 3 to Texas; 2 to California and Mexico.
Best Trains, Best Service; Best Everything.
OIL BURNING LOCOMOTIVES.
Through Pullman Tourist Car from Washington, Atlanta, Montgomery and Intermediate points to California, Tri-Weekly.
No trouble to answer questions.
J. F. VAN RENSSELAER, General Agent. R. O. BEAN, T. P. A.,
ATLANTA, GA.

Gold Dust.

Life is not so short but there is always time for courtesy.—Emerson.

* * *

"The loyal soul cannot be silent in a world where the enemies of truth are busy.

* * *

If you want to do something for God, you need not be disappointed for want of opportunity.

* * *

"They do say that what the world is suffering for is not so much precept as a few shining examples.

* * *

The truth with some people is that they are talking of Christian perfection before they have begun to practice it.

* * *

If God made the world you need not fear that He can't take care of so small a part of it as yourself.—Rev Edward Taylor.

* * *

You will glorify Christ by darning stockings and mending the socks of the little ones quite as surely as by washing His feet with tears.—Spurgeon.

* * *

"Think before you speak. The ones we wound by unkind speech are most often those whose intimate relation with us affords us opportunity for the sudden thrust."

* * *

The purest lives I have known have not been those carefully screened from the world, but which, coming up in it, have kept themselves unspotted. The sweetest and truest have grown and ripened under conditions, you would say, most hostile, but which have been wrought into the means of a grandly elevated faith and life.—J. F. W. Ware.

Though to-day may not fulfill
All thy hopes, have patience still;
For perchance to-morrow's sun
Sees thy happier day begun.
—P. Gerhardt.

A QUICK CURE For Coughs, Colds Allen's Lung Balsam

A Remedy For

EPILEPSY

Out of the deep sympathy for those sufferers who are afflicted with epilepsy, we wish to give the following information:

Our son suffered from this dreadful disease from childhood and had the attacks daily, and often as high as eight and ten times a day. All medicines and doctors were of no use—his case was considered hopeless. The more medicine he used the worse he became. Somewhat over two years ago we heard of a doctor who had, after thirty years of hard study, found a cure. As hopeless as our case was, we decided to try this doctor. One of our ministers from there wrote us that he was personally acquainted with the doctor, and knew of the most incurable cases, some of which were of thirty and forty years' standing, which had received help, and had been enabled to enjoy good health thereafter. We put our boy under treatment, and at once were aware of a change for the better. The first five weeks he had but one spell a week, then followed weeks in which he had none; the last two spells which he had occurred two years ago, and otherwise his health is bettered. Thanks to God! Any further information will be cheerfully given to anyone who may inquire.

REV. K. K. IRMSCHER, City Missionary and editor of Our Visitor, 668 Olive St., St. Paul, Minn

A MONEY MAKER.

Why remain poor when you can get rich. I have invented a useful little thing that sells for one dollar at sight. The material can be found in every house. Any one can make it in ten minutes. Send me fifteen two cent stamps or thirty cents silver—I will send you full directions for making them. After making them if you should fail to find ready sale for them, send all you have to me and I will send you one dollar cash for each one. I mean just what I say. Write today. Prompt attention to all letters.

J. K. BUTTS,
Wilmington, N. C.

Fine Wood Flooring

Parquet Floors and Specialties. Moore's Floor Wax. Moore's patentitests Send for FREE illustrated CATALOGUE.
E. B. MOORE & CO.
77 Wabash ave., Chicago

ROBBED THE GRAVE.

A startling incident is narated by John Oliver, of Philadelphia, as follows: "I was in an awful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite, growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Then I was advised to use Electric Bitters; to my great joy, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50 cents, guaranteed, at all druggists.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY PERSONALLY CONDUCTED TOUR TO WORLD'S FAIR, ST. LOUIS, MO., TUESDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1904, VIA SOUTHERN RAILWAY.

The Southern Railway announces a personally conducted tour to the World's Fair, leaving Goldsboro 1.35 p. m., Tuesday, October 11th; Selma, 2.25 p. m.; Raleigh, 3.25 p. m.; Durham, 4.22 p. m.; Burlington, 5.45 p. m.; Greensboro, 7.22 p. m.; Salisbury, 8.50 p. m.; Statesville, 9.32 p. m.; Hickory, 10.25 , p. m; Morganton 11.00 p. m.; arriving St. Louis 7.32 a. m., Thursday, the 13th.

This train will be composed of day coaches and Pullman Sleeping Cars, and the route will be via Asheville, Knoxville and Louisville, through the grand and scenic mountain regions of Western North Carolina, East Tennessee and the beautiful blue grass section of Kentucky.

Following round trip rates from points named; proportionately low rates apply from all other stations:

Fifteen-day tickets from Goldsboro, $26.25; Selma, $26.25; Clayton, $25.30; Raleigh, $24.80; Durham, $23.30; Greensboro, $23.30; Oxford, $23.30; Henderson, $23.30; Salisbury, $23.30; Charlotte, $24.65; Statesville, $23.30; Morganton, $23.30.

Ten-day coach excursion tickets: Goldsboro, $20.00; Selma, $20.00; Clayton, $19.50; Raleigh, $18.50; Durham, $17.00; Greensboro, $17.00; Oxford, $17.00; Henderson, $17.00; Salisbury, $17.00; Charlotte, $18.30; Statesville, $17.00; Morganton, $17.

Pullman double berth from Goldsboro, $6.00; Raleigh, $6.00; Durham, $5.50; Greensboro, $5.00; Salisbury, $5.00; Asheville, $4.00.

Two people can occupy double berth at these rates.

Coach excursion tickets not good in Pullman sleeping cars.

A competent representative of the Southern Railway will accompany the train through to St. Louis and do everything possible for the comfort and pleasure of the party.

For any other information and for Pullman reservations, address

T. E. GREEN, C. T. A.,
Raleigh, N. C.
R. L. VERNON, T. P. A.,
Charlotte, N. C.

21,245 UNIQUE

21,245 Sunday-school Superintendents and workers were asked by us to name the most practical songs used by them The result is the most Unique and Incomparably the finest collection of songs for sunday-schools and Praise services ever issued.

THE VOICE OF PRAISE beautifully bound in full cloth (Vellum de Luxe) $25 a hundred; 32cts. singly by mail. Send for free descriptive pamphlet,or for complete returnable sample. We pay the postage.

Hall-Mack Co., 1018-20 Arch St., Phila. 156 Fifth Ave., N. Y.

Xmas Music and Supplies

Send 10 cts. For our full Sample Packet containing two beautiful Christmas Services and our new Cantata, also our 96 page Catalogue giving illustrations and full descriptions of Xmas Cards, Booklets, Calendars, Candy Boxes & innumerable Xmas Novelties, besides our full line of Sunday-school supplies. MacCALLA & Co., Inc., 218 Dock St., Phila., Pa.

King's Business College

(INCORPORATED.)

CAPITAL STOCK $30,000.

We give the world's best and most modern Business Education. Our Colleges are the most helpful schools in America. KING'S means THOROUGH in everything pertaining to Business Education. Railroad fare paid. Positions guaranteed, backed by a written contract. Individual Instruction No Vacation. Enter Any Time.

Write for our College Journal and offers—they will point you to the road that leads to success. Address,

KING'S BUSINESS COLLEGE,
Raleigh, N. C., or Charlotte, N. C.

THE WORKS OF E. P. ROE

IN 18 OCTAVO VOLUMES

Substantially bound in Cloth, Gold lettering, etc.., for only $10.00. Terms, $1.00 on delivery of the entire EIGHTEEN VOLUMES, and the balance at the rate of TWENTY-FIVE CENTS PER WEEK, payable every FOUR WEEKS. We prepay all carriage charges. . . . .

Of all the story writers, none are more intensely interested or more Christian and moral in in their teaching, than the works of this beautiful writer, the REV. E. P. ROE, a Presbyterian minister. We are very desirous of securing the services of ministers, teachers and ladies to work during their leisure hours, exhibiting samples of this work to their friends and others. You can add to your salary very Materially by Little Effort. We pay a liberal commission, and furnish you, Free of all Cost, a complete outfit. Send in your name name TODAY—not tomorrow, BUT SEND A POSTAL CARD NOW, TODAY, and we will send full particulars at once. . . .

P. F. COLLIER & SON

25-27 WILLIAM ST., NORFOLK, VA.

Bulington Route

COLONISTS RATES TO THE NORTHWEST AND CALIFORNIA

One Way Rates From September 15th to October 15th, 1904.

FROM / TO	Puget Sound Country, Portland District	California, San Francisco, Los Angeles, etc.	Butte-Helena District	Spokane District.
RALEIGH	$50.25	$48.25	$47.00	$47.75

The Burlington and its immediate connections, the Northern Pacific and Great Northern Roads form direct lines to the Northwest via St Paul or Billings.

Daily Through Chair Cars on the "Burlington-Northern Pacific Express," St. Louis to the Puget Sound via Billings, Montana—the short line and time saver

TO CALIFORNIA, colonist tickets are good in the Burlington's daily through tourist sleepers. Personally conducted excursions every Wednesday from St. Louis and Chicago to San Francisco and Los Angeles via Denver, Scenic Colorado, Salt Lake City.

Two St. Louis-Denver Trains Daily.
Three St. Louis-St. Paul Trains Daily.

"The Burlington-Northern Pacific Express Daily, St. Louis to Seattle Via Billings."

Describe your proposed trip and let us advise you the least cost and the best way to go. Call upon or address

J. N. MERRILL, Gen. Southern Agent, Atlanta Ga.

When writing advertisers please mention this paper.

LIBRARY OF TRINITY COLLEGE NORTH CAROLINA

Reading Room

Raleigh Christian Advocate

FIFTIETH YEAR. ORGAN OF THE NORTH CAROLINA CONFERENCE. NUMBER 37.

RALEIGH, N. C., WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 12, 1904.

Editorial

EVANGELISTIC TALENT.

The expression, "evangelistic talent," has in some way won its way into popular favor. We believe that the expression is of modern origin. Away back in the days of the Fathers, or even of the rough riders of Methodism, its use would have wrinkled many a brow through the internal force of gray matter striving to solve a great mystery.

But now it is different. The expression has become not only familiar but popular. It is on the lips of the preacher who bemoans the lack of what it stands for in his own unfortunate self, or envies in a mild Christian sense the fortunate cleric or layman who possesses it. The columns of newspapers are filled with explanations of the fact (?) that evangelistic talent has been denied to some and given so generously to others. Many a discussion there is around fireside and study table over the unspeakable wonder that God should have given so richly to laymen who has never heard a call to preach what He had denied to those who have felt the "Divine touch," and have been commissioned to go out as master workers into the whitening harvest fields.

Really, we do not like the expression. We do not believe that it should have a place in ecclesiastical or spiritual parlance. It is anti-Scriptural. It is a mask for carelessness, laziness, inefficiency and a host of other weaknesses. It is filled with dynamite.

Because it calls for an acceptance of the following conclusions we must repudiate it:

1. Some men are divinely called to preach only a part of the Gospel. A is to preach that part of the Gospel which is adapted to the work of calling sinners to repentance—that work for which he has a special talent. B is to preach that part of the Gospel which is adapted to the work of comforting and strengthening the saints—the work for which he has a special talent For surely one is called to do that for which he has been mentally and spiritually endowed.

We cannot believe that the Gospel may thus be parcelled out. It cannot be severed and made into hemispheres. It means "glad tidings." It is "glad tidings" for the sinner who is shown a way of escape from sin into the perfect liberty of righteousness. It is glad tidings for the child of God. As he goes onward, new vistas of higher life open before him, new powers are given, new hope is born, new promises are vouchsafed while the shining goal far away among the hills of immortality ever beckons him on. No man can preach glad tidings to the sinner without preaching glad tidings to the Christian, and vice-versa.

2. The preacher who is especially gifted in calling sinners to repentance has an equipment entirely different from that possessed by the preacher whose "gift" is in comforting the saints. If not, why should the talent of the one be called evangelistic? If it is the same equipment, why cannot a preacher be as effective in calling sinners to repentance as in cultivating and developing the Christian graces of the children of God?

It is the same equipment, and he can be as effective in one role as the other. What kind of mental power is needed in the one that is not needed in the other? What acquired ability is necessary in the one and not in the other. How much of the Holy Spirit is given to the one and not to the other? Is the difference in degree or quality?

No, all the members of God's great army of preachers need and may receive the same kind of armor and the same kind of weapons. The destinction which brands one preacher as peculiarly evangelistic is unwarranted, and it is dangerous to the interests of Christ's kingdom to foster a sentiment which will allow any man called of God to preach the Gospel to excuse his failure to call sinners to repentance with the plea that he has not the "evangelistic" talent. If there be such a thing, it belongs to every preacher. Some preachers say that they do not have the evangelistic or "revival" gift. They may have it and yet have not the faith to exercise it. If they do not have it, it may be because they lack the "gift" of the Holy Ghost.

One Sabbath evening, we walked foot sore and weary into a church around which rolled the indescribable murmurs of a great city of more than a million souls. We dropped into a pew and waited for the appearance of the preacher. After an inspiring preliminary service, unmarked by any deadening routine of song and prayer, the preacher stepped on the platform. He had no grace of form to boast of. His voice had no resonant melody. He knew none of the graces of rhetoric and his delivery had a halting and oftentimes stumbling gait. He took a plain old-fashioned text which was associated in our mind with scenes of camp-meeting days, when the awful light of Horeb's fire and the radiance that clothed the blessed form on Hermon's summit shot blazing rays into the heart of saint and sinner. The preacher had not gone far into his sermon before we felt conscious that we and the whole congregation were in the grip of a mighty supernatural force which tugged at the heart-strings and wooed the will with indescribable magic. Years have passed since that night. Dwight L. Moody has joined the upper throng and is doubtless telling to angels the wonders of redeeming grace. We often think of him. We strive to analyze his "gift" which was utilized as powerfully in calling sinners to repentance as in helping the child of God along the upward way. That "gift" which every preacher of Christ's gospel is privileged to possess was a cluster of diamonds beautiful in the eye of God and men: an artless simplicity that shamed pride, an awful earnestness that had the warmth of the judgment fires, and a childlike leaning on the strong arm of the Invisible One whose shining garments ever brush the form of the lowliest preacher who, constrained by the love of Christ, tells the story of redeeming love. The same "gift" every preacher is besought to accept and use. He should use it not only during set revival seasons, but when Sabbath after Sabbath he stands before his people; not only in the house of God, but by the fireside and among the surging currents of humanity. For there is no respect of persons with a loving Father, and there are no limitations of divine power bestowed on the preacher who has the "gift," whether it be exercised at the bedside of the dying saint or right under the banner of eternal love planted at the gates of perdition.

DEATH IN A DIET OF NEGATIVES.

Every now and then there is started a little sheet with a big name, announcing that it has made the wonderful discovery that there is no God, and proposing to build up an organization free from cant, prejudice, and ignorance, and filled with the spirit of true freedom. We have in mind now a little sheet started about three months ago, which comes occasionally to this office, and offers what it considers strong inducements for us to throw away our mythology and superstition and emerge into the light of the noonday sun.

It would be well for the promoters and editors of such sheets to remember the history of the Investigator. It was started in Boston nearly three centuries ago for the purpose of destroying Christianity. The Investigator died a few days ago. It perished simply from inanition. It found a diet of negatives, spiced with spleen, not sufficiently nutritious to support life.

The Interior thus discusses the death of the Investigator: "The Investigator is dead! And ninety-nine out of every hundred who read the announcement will ask, "What was the Investigator Where was it published? What did it investigate? What did it die of?" So passes truly the glories of "this world." Older Christians may remember that the Investigator was founded in Boston seventy or more years ago to kill off the Christian religion. For sixty years it has constantly asserted that the religious press was "dying." And now it is dead.

While the columns of our religious newspapers are filled with articles in which the writers deplore the lack of what is called evangelistic talent in the ministry, the ranks of the laity are bestirred with unusual energy in the direction of supplying this want. Gideon's Band—an organization composed of traveling men who are desirous of working practically for Christ, is a very notable expression of the prevailing sentiment that the laity must come to the help of the ministry in the great work of evangelizing the world. Another notable expression of the same sentiment is the evangelical campaign carried on in the city of Atlanta by the Business Men's Gospel Union. This important work is being carried on, not by the ministry, not by lay evangelistis, but by the most substantial business men of Atlanta. The city has been divided into nine districts. Over these nine districts Dr. Wilbur Chapman, of New York City, has jurisdiction. Great good has already been done, and the effect of this campaign on the cause of Christ in Atlanta cannot be duly estimated. Such practical interest of the business life of any city in the great work of extending the kingdom of Christ is a very significant and valuable factor in the spiritual assets of any town or city. Would that this movement could be repeated in every town and city in the land.

BENEFACTOR'S DAY AT TRINITY COLLEGE

ABSTRACT OF ANNUAL ADDRESS BY HON. THOMAS J. JARVIS. OCTOBER 3, 1904.

To be a benefactor is a noble thing, and yet it is a nobility in which all might enter if they would. The size and form of the benefaction do not alone determine its value. The ability and the spirit of the benefactor enter into the act. The widow's mite and the rich man's princely gift—each has its place, does its work, has its reward. The authorities of this institution have done well and wisely in setting apart a day to be given to studying, to thinking, to talking, to reading about benefactors in general and about those who contributed so well to this institution in particular, I am glad to be with you here today and to participate in these exercises. I trust that this day—a Benefactors' Day—will continue to exist and become a part of the life and history of this institution. I doubt if in any day you young gentlemen spend in this college there shall begin so much to grow into your life that which you will carry about with you into the duties of life as in the day that each year you spend in these exercises. Hence, I say, I trust it will ever be kept alive, to commemorate those who helped to build this institution and that it shall become a part of the life and history of the institution. I had the honor and the pleasure of delivering the address at the laying of the corner stone of the first building erected upon these beautiful grounds. That was a little less than fourteen years ago. I read that address over a few days ago. There is nothing in it I would modify, but much I would repeat here this evening if time allowed. Then I appealed to the humble Methodists of the State, to the well-to-do Methodists of the State, to the rich Methodists of the State, to bring their contributions to the erection and equipment of suitable buildings here, and I appeal to the Methodists of North Carolina everywhere to help use these buildings, and, gathering around this institution, here upon this beautiful spot, let us erect a college that will be an honor to the State and a glory to the Methodism of North Carolina.

I come after an absence of fourteen years, and I see that marvelous changes have been wrought. These beautiful grounds were then but an old field. There was not a building upon them. The only semblance of a building was the walls of the Main building that were just out of the ground, and round them were heaps of material. There was a splendid audience there. They had the address in the open air and departed to their homes. I come now and I see these grounds have been beautified. Upon them stand more than twenty buildings dedicated to the work of educating the sons and daughters of North Carolina. I find more than four hundred of the young men of North Carolina—those who are presently to assume the responsibilities of citizenship and the duties of citizenship—here being prepared for their work. I find more than thirty gentlemen—professors, teachers, officers, engaged in the work of instruction and administration. It is a marvelous change, I say, to have taken place here within so short a time. I come, young gentlemen, I come Trustees, I come citizens of North Carolina and the adjoining States, to rejoice with you in the great prosperity that has come to this institution. Ah, more! I come to pay my tribute to the men who have contributed to it. I come as a citizen of North Carolina, I come as an American citizen, I come with all the earnestness that is within me—I come to join you and every other honest, upright, thinking individual in our State—I say I have come to thank the men who have contributed of their means to bring all of these things to pass which have taken place since I was here before.

The question of benefactions and benefactors, as I said in the beginning, is one in which all may take a part if they will, and while we rejoice and pay honor and tribute to the men who have given so largely of their means, we should not forget those who have contributed smaller sums, nor should we forget those who stood by this institution in its darker days. I had the honor once of being a trustee of Trinity College. I wasa trustee of the college in its dark days, when it was oppressed with debt, when its patronage was small, and, while we rejoice now in its prosperity, we should not forget the Cravens, the Carrs, the Odells, the Grays, and other patriotic Methodists who stood by Trinity in its dark days. To remember them is only to show a still higher appreciation of those we speak of now. The gentlemen who have contributed of their means to the building up of Trinity College and bringing it to its present high state of prosperity have put in motion forces that shall live on and on until time shall be no more. The hundreds of young men who come to this institution every year, who receive its training, participate in its college work and go out into the world to lift up humanity, to bless society, to raise the State to be glorious in the nation—I say the men who have builded this institution here have put in motion forces that shall go on and on blessing humanity, lifting up society, and making the people better through all the ages. Monuments builded of granite crumble, monuments builded of brass corrode, but the Dukes have builded here a monument which neither time nor corrosion shall touch. They have builded here a monument that shall live in the hearts and in the memories and in the affections of the thousands of young men who go out from these walls so long as time shall last.

Young gentlemen, I desire to say a word particularly to you. I am certainly very much obliged to Dr. Kilgo for the kind words he spoke of me. I only wish that I was in fact and in truth worthy of them, but still it is no presumption for me to say that I have had at least a small measure of success in life, and I will be pardoned for saying that I have been a hard worker through all my life. I scarcely ever have seen the day when I could sit down and say that I had nothing to do; so when I speak to you this evening a word, I desire that you shall remember that it comes from one who has had some opportunity from experience and observation. I assume that every student of Trinity College is here because he wants to learn how to be something, how to do something. I want to say to you that your days at Trinity College are simply days of preparation. The best soldier when the conflict comes is the best drilled soldier. These are our days for drilling, for training. The human mind is a curious piece of machinery. Now just what mind is nobody knows. Writers of mental philosophy will undertake to tell us what it is. Still nobody has told us yet. If I were to fall here dead upon this rostrum in the presence of this audience something would have gone out of me—something that is invisible, intangible. Some call it mind; some soul. The nearest approach I have come to learning what it is is what the Bible tells me: "And the Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul." Yet, although the soul is indescribable, intangible, invisible, it can be trained and it needs training, and that's what you are here for. It is the drill day with you. Now let me tell you, I have not come here to make anything but a plain, practical address, because I desire to leave with you young men some thoughts that will be helpful to you. The best man when the conflicts of life come is the best trained man. The mind that can weigh and balance and see in all the conflicts of life will ordinarily arrive at the safest and wisest conclusion. I want to urge that while you are here at Trinity you shall not be neglectful of this opportunity you have of getting the heart trained, of getting the mind trained, so that when the times comes to go away from here you will be able to enter duty as trained soldiers, as drilled soldiers. And success in life will largely depend upon the way you discharge your duties here. And when you assume the responsibilities of life I would have you carry one motto and one guiding star; I would have you follow that constantly and forever. That is entitled Dignity of Service. This story is told in the history of the blind king of Bohemia. During his reign war came upon his country. He determined to go into camp and to share the hardships of camp life with his army. News came to him that his soldiers were being driven back, that defeat was staring him in the face, that his army was on the retreat. Orders were given to saddle his horse; he commanded that the reins be tied to the saddle of the guide, then the command was given to ride to the front. As the blind king went to the front he carried in his hand the kingly standard, and as the standard unfurled they saw written there "I serve." It kindled enthusiasm in the army and they followed the king bearing the standard "I serve," and went on to the fight and into it and under that standard they swept the field and victory perched upon their banners. I would have you, young gentlemen, when you go into the duties of life, go there to serve. If fortune bring you great wealth, do as the benefactors of this institution—make that fortune serve humanity. If you become professional men, if you enter the law, have but one idea, and that is that "I serve." If you become a physician have the idea of service, if you become a politician, have but the simple thought of service to your country, and the man that goes into life with the determination to serve humanity, God, and his country, can never be anything but a successful man.

I want to repeat, that if you want to be successful, be servants. Service is always honorable, and no man's life can be a failure who gives that life to service. No matter what department of life you enter, let us remember that great responsibilities rest upon us. I would have you, young gentlemen, I would have you not be content with simple success. Remember that you are trained here at this institution to achieve the highest success. This institution is not yet grown. There is still a growth for it. When you leave its walls and go out into the busy bustle of life, be loyal to this institution. I said in the beginning that since I was here fourteen years ago these buildings have been erected, all these professors have been gathered here, and these hundreds of young men have been gathered, yet I am here to say that the institution, the buildings, the work, have simply begun. We need more buildings here; we need more professors here; we need more young men here. There is a great work yet for it to do, and I repeat the appeal I made here fourteen years ago, to the well-to-do, to the rich, to all who are willing, to all who are able everywhere in North Carolina, to send their sons here and let us increase the opportunities and the power of this institution for good. The Methodists of North Carolina ought not to leave a few men to do the work of building here a great institution. Instead of twenty odd buildings we need more than fifty. Instead of thirty-three profressors we need sixty-three—because North Carolina needs it, the Southern people need it, the United States needs it. There are hundreds of young men all over this country of yours now deprived of the benefits of education who ought to be here. The Methodists of North Carolina can build here, and, splendid as this institution is, by their liberality it can be made doubly so.

I had on more than one occasion the opportunity to ascend the Amazon River, standing upon the deck of a great steamer. The river is so broad that as we entered it we could see the shore on neither side—it is three hundred miles wide. The thought came to me as we went up the river, "Where is the source of all the water in this river?" I learned that all along the east slope of the Andes is a spring here and a spring there, and bubbling up from the earth they supply the water of this mighty river. They are so small in the beginning that with a stamp of the foot you could put them out, and yet, coming together from every direction along the east slope of the Andes Mountains, they make a river so magnificent that all the navies of the world could be floated upon it and fight a battle, and then not be in sight of each other. The Methodists of North Carolina, if they have the spirit to do for this institution what they may do, if they will but take the spirit of those who have given so liberaly already, if they will but catch that spirit, imitating the spirit of their Master as well as that of these benefactors and send littles here from the mountains and from the seashores, all gathered together may be able and sufficient to build here a great institution of learning that shall be the greatest honor to the Southern Methodist Church in all this great country of ours. And I take it that every student when he goes away from here will go to help in this great work. Young gentlemen, be benefactors. Serve your country, serve your college, serve your God, serve humanity. Do not be content with just medium success, but go for the very best there is in life. To accomplish the grandest results, you must the most work for your country and your God and humanity.

As one enters the beautiful bay of Rio de Janciro, on the left we see Sugar Loaf mountain. There it is different from what it is in our country. There the mountains make right down to the ocean, and as you enter the harbor, at the water's edge rises Sugar Loaf mountain and towers thousands of feet high. As one wends his way up the broad harbor and enters the city he sees a great bay stretching out for fifteen miles, and all around it are great towering mountains, three thousand feet high. There is a road running from the very heart of the city, gradually ascending to the very top of the mountain. A party on one occasion a few years ago undertook to go from the city up to the summit. They were lifted at first up the inclined plane on the top of the Sierra. Then they started on the long tramp. Presently they came to the reservoir. That was a thousand feet high above the level of the sea. There were beautiful gardens, ever-blossoming flowers, magnificent scenery up there, out yonder the ocean, here beneath the city. Some said, "This is beautiful enough for me; I'll go no further, I am content." Others said, "No! I am told that beyond there are still more magnificent scenes, and part of the company struggled on and came to Pineras, and there were great overhanging arching trees, and beneath them refreshment tables and rich viands and refreshments served there, and all around them it was beautiful and glorious. This was two thousand feet high and there was magnificent scenery, as far as the eye could sweep there were mountains piled still higher—the bay stretching away from yonder shore. Many said I will stay here and be content with this magnificent scenery and refreshments. Part said, "No! higher up are grander scenes." They came to the Devil's Bridge. There on one side were mountains and on the other a chasm extending fifteen hundred feet below. Many said, "I'll not risk it." A few went on. They reached the summit, three thousand feet above the sea level. There were the great swelling Organ mountains with fingers pointing to the heavens. As they stood taking in that magnificent scene, as far as the eye could look toward the east there was the great swelling ocean, there was the city, there were the mountains. While they stood there simply entranced with that beautiful scenery the sun set. There is no twilight in the tropics; suddenly the moon rose and threw a silver sheen over the city and the bay, and the southern cross appeared in the heavens. So grand and beautiful was the scene that one almost felt that all he had to do was to reach out and touch the southern cross and swing over from earth to heaven.

Young gentlemen, when you have left this institution, some of you will say, "I know enough, I have arrived at the reservoir, the world is beautiful enough, I have accomplished enough, I have graduated, I know it all, I care not for any more," and sit down and do nothing. Young gentlemen. On! On! Up the ascent of life there is yet more to be learned, yet grander scenes. Presently you will come to Pineros. You will have accumulated wealth, you will be sated with the comforts of life and say "I have accomplished enough in life, I'll rest." I want to say to you, On! and On! there are still grander scenes The more accomplished in life for God and humanity and country, the more there is in it to take out of it. And presently you will come to the difficulties of life—to the Devil's Point. Don't let these difficulties hinder you from growing and doing and working and striving to accomplish all in life that can be accomplished. I sincerely trust that trustees, and faculty, and students of Trinity College in the providence of God may each one arrive at the very summit of the heights of life.

Raising the Flag.

W. H. MOORE, D. D.

Written for use of the Class of 1904-05 Trinity College, N. C.

The bugle makes its call
On me, on you, on all,
Once more to raise
The ensign of the free;
Symbol of liberty
It hence shall ever be
And happy days.

Our mother makes her call,
On us in line to fall
This blessed day;
And o'er our heads unfurl
This banner to the world
As foe of every churl—
Our hope and stay.

Then let us raise it high,
And be our battle cry
Freedom to think
The higher thoughts of God;
And leaning on His rod,
Long as we tread His sod,
Pure knowledge drink.

From mountains to the sea,
Our eyes we fix on thee,
Flag of the free;
Unfettered be each fold,
And kind thy message bold,
Till with thy story told,
All shall love thee.

Rev. Jonathan Sandford.

BY FLORENCE SANDFORD BROWN.

On March 30, 1834, near the town of Rockingham, Richmond County, was born my father, Jonathan Sandford, eldest son of Noah and Sallie Sandford, of good old English Quaker stock on the father's side, and live Irish on the other.

The dear mother loved and cherished this dear eldest son as best she could, and showed him how to love God and his fellow man, but the children came fast, and the mother, frail at best, left them alone before manhood came, and he, the oldest of seven, did his best to help the one dear sister take mother's place in the desolate home.

The struggle was hard in those pioneer days, for the carelessness of others had made the father feel the pinch of poverty, but by the time he was sixteen we find him teaching school, some of his pupils being years older than himself.

This occupation he kept up for fourteen years, and always thought he would like to do so again, but, being soundly converted to God, he felt the call to preach the Gospel, and though he resisted awhile, he finally gave heed to the voice of the Master, and entered the ranks of the army of the living God.

He first served as a local supply in the South Carolina Conference, being licensed to preach at Clio, S. C., in the spring of 1859, by Rev. A. M. Chreitzberg, D. D., P. E., and Rev. J. W. Murray, P. C.

In 1869 he entered the regular work, and that year had nearly three hundred converts, of whom two hundred and fifteen joined the Methodist Church.

The next year, at the earnest solicitation of Rev. W. S. Black, of sainted memory, he entered the North Carolina Conference, and remained an active, earnest, loving worker in the same until on June 19, 1904, the Master said: "It is enough—come up higher."

Of this work let others testify. I only know the father; suffice it to say that last summer while I was visiting him, and he, surrounded by books and papers, was at his loved employ of preparing to preach to his people, said: "Daughter I am too old now for pride and vanity, so I want to tell you that there is not a man in the regular work with the record that I have for converts and members brought into our church. I have kept this record for myself alone—never published it." And he told me the number, but I carelessly forgot it. He had promised to write the story of his long, eventful life, and I depended on that, but he was always too busy with the present to do so.

Though a frail man in his young life, he told me that, with the exception of a month of fever in 1895, he had not failed a duty for sickness in fifty years, until he broke his ankle last February.

In all these years he was the same loving, cheerful, sunshiny, friend, brother, husband, father, never heeding the shadows except to be drawn nearer to Christ.

He had hard places to fill, never an easy Circuit, and often times sickness and sorrow at home; but his faith never failed, even when two dear sons, his only ones, were taken away in one week. He only said, "They are taken from evil to come."

To me he was father, friend and playmate, in one. Fear of him, I had none, neither did any one else, but love, reverence and honor as long as life shall last.

In early manhood he married a bright-eyed Scotch Yankee girl, who came South on a visit to a sister, and captured his heart to hold it forever—Miss Eliza McQuiston, of Pawtucket, R. I.

This dear wife and two daughters were all the immediate family left him, when, as he stood in his pulpit and prayed for his kind people, the voice came, bidding him lay down his burden and rest.

All that kind hands and loving hearts could do was done for him, but to no avail, and in two hours his spirit had gone to his Maker.

We needed no farewell to know that all was well with him, and he died as he had prayed to do "In the harness."

On June 21st, we laid him to rest in Lumberton Cemetery, near the graves of his daughter and her husband, Rev. J. G. Finlayson, and as his friends sang over him, "Servant Of God Well Done," we knew his work was well done, and he deserved the "Rest that remains for the people of God."

Ashpole, N. C., September 27, 1904.

Hints to Hinder Satan.

D. H. TUTTLE.

1. When a new babe comes to a home in your pastoral charge mail to the parents at once a good tract on the duty and benefits of infant baptism. With a pencil call attention on margin to the ceremony as laid down in book of Discipline. Enter name with date of birth in your pocket memorandum.

2. In making your round of pastoral visits have a tract to leave, instead of your card, at homes when the family are all out. It may appear a little out of style to "devotees of etiquette," but it will please Him who hath called you to the work of the ministry, and will make the visit count for good, though you did not see the family. Carry tracts for the "shut ins." Work wisely.

3. Keep your library at work as well as yourself. Your pastoral visiting will discover some home, or some one in a home that will be greatly helped by a visit from some book in your library—you will think of the book while speaking with the one who needs it. The outing will do the book good. Three of my books have just returned from such an outing and look refreshed. They carried large lives, large thoughts filled with fervent love to smaller lives that will be stirred to larger and wiser service. God's people need to keep everything about them at work for God all in time. Let no truth be idle.

D. H. TUTTLE.

Edenton, Sept. 28, 1904.

The Field

Camden Circuit Revivals and Progress of the Work.

Dear Dr. Ivey:—We are now closing up our fourth year on Camden Circuit. During these four years we have added to the church 289 members. The salary has been increased from $420 to $750; the Conference collections from $127 to $351. In addition to this, we have paid off all the old church debts, and they were numerous, and the circuit is now free from debt and ready to still increase the salary more. The spiritual life of our people has advanced equal to the financial part. From year to year we have been blessed with gracious revivals over the entire charge. Still there are many unsaved people, and some, too, have black-slidden in spite of all we have been able to do.

Our revivals this year have been meetings of great spiritual power. Bro. E. C. Glenn held two meetings for me, and the work was thorough and the fruit abides. Brother Glenn is without doubt one of the very best revivalists I have ever heard. The last meeting he held for me was at Wesleys, and we had sixty additions to the church as a result.

Bro. W. F. Galloway helped us one week. He was faithful and earnest, and we trust much good was done.

We expect to go to Conference with a full report. It is hard to say good-by, for we are to part with some of the best of God's saints. When we came here to this town there were three barrooms, the whiskey sentiment was strong, but on the 2nd of August we voted the town dry—only two voting "wet." There isn't a "bar" in the county.

Yours in Christ,

W. E. HOCUTT.

South Mills, N. C.

Battleboro and Whitaker.

Dear Dr. Ivey:—I have concluded to write you another short letter about our work down here in Edgecombe and Nash Counties. This is one of the prettiest, most productive and fertile sections in North Carolina.

Our parsonage is located at Battleboro, the hustling little town on the Wilmington and Weldon Railroad, eight miles northeast of Rocky Mount. We have three stirring, thriving, energetic merchants doing a good business. The firm of T. P. Braswell & Son here does the largest mercantile business in the eastern part of the State. We have a large cotton-seed oil mill here, with Mr. Mack Braswell as president, who is one of the most successful business men in the State, that is doing an extensive paying business.

Whitaker is also a thriving and prosperous town just four miles from here by rail. It is noted for its good-looking, hospitable and congenial people. They are also quite an enterprising people along many lines and seem to succeed in all their undertakings. Here we held our first meeting in June, which resulted in the quickening of the church and with some marked spiritual progress. There was only one accession to the church.

I began my meeting at Central Cross, in Halifax County, the third Sunday in August. Bro. J. T. Stanford assisted me there and gave us some good Gospel sermons. He is a good worker in a meeting. There were twenty-four professions and eighteen accessions to the church. This church is located in a thickly settled, thriving section of Halifax County, and bids fair to soon become a strong, prosperous church. I have already more than doubled the membership this year.

The second Sunday in September I began at McTyeire church and continued eight days with no ministerial help. We were blessed with a fairly good revival in the church and seven professions and six accessions.

The third Sunday I began at Battleboro and continued eight days. Bro. B. C. Thompson assisted me here and preached eight good, strong, forceful sermons. The Lord was with us and blessed us with nineteen professions and fourteen accessions to the church. Our Episcopal brethren held their meeting at the same time, but we had large and very attentive congregations. For all of which we praise the Lord.

We are not quite up on finances yet, but I see no just reason why all the collections should not be paid this year in full, and I am hopeful that they will be.

I, for one, Dr. Ivey, think the way men support the cause of Christ with their means is a fair index to the spiritual condition of the soul. Oftentimes some people call themselves Christians, and yet are untrue to their church obligations; they fairly and clearly obligated to help support the institutions of the church and think it right to fail to do so.

A man contracts with a laborer for a certain amount for the year, and he pays him by the month, and when he does the work he don't think of telling him he won't pay him; yet some treat the church of the living God worse. They obligate to support the kingdom of God, and even wait twelve months sometimes and then want to compromise by paying a part and not the whole amount.

There is a civil law that requires him to pay the laborer; therefore, for fear of this, he pays him. He that does this and then won't pay the little amount he is due to his Lord's cause shows plainly that he fears the law of man more than the law of God. I am in favor of making some change in our financial law of the church at our new General Conference.

I believe our people here are going to pay all their assessments this year for both the support of the ministry and Conference collections.

Success to the Advocate and the church at large. I am,

Yours sincerely,

R. F. TAYLOR.

It Has Come.

Well, it has come, but not gone, and from all appearances it will be a good while before it is gone. I refer to a most generous pounding that we have just passed through. Mr. Editor, if you ever intend to come to see us—and I sincerely trust you will—now is the time to come. We heard, softly sung, the first stanza of "Blest Be the Tie," and upon opening the door, there was a regular stampede for the inside of the house. They marched through to the dining-room, packages of all sizes in hand, and so piled them on the table until we fancied we could almost hear it groan with its load. I think something of everything nice to eat could be seen, even to a large pumpkin and a bottle of medicine—I presume for the indigestion which will follow. This pounding was by our church at Hope Mills. This church is not yet a year old, but has one hundred members, and many faithful ones. May God richly reward them a hundred fold and enable us to render them better and more faithful service. This is but one of the many tokens of love during the year. Truly we have a goodly heritage.

We have but recently moved into one of the nicest, most comfortable and convenient new parsonages imaginable. It is just all right. I have every reason to be thankful.

Have held three revivals, resulting, visibly, in over two hundred conversions and 122 accessions on profession. Have also received twenty-six by certificate. "Let everything that hath breath praise the Lord."

Have one more meeting to hold at Parkton, a new field, where we purpose classifying soon and building. This has been a dull year in all mill towns—especially ours—three out of five mills having closed down, but our people have done their best under the circumstances.

Pardon this long letter, as I just wanted to state these things.

Truly for Christ, E. R. WELCH.

Henderson Station.

Dear Doctor Ivey:—You will please allow me space in the Advocate to say a few words about Henderson Station and Mission. As this is to be the seat of the next session of the North Carolina Annual Conference, it may be of interest to the brethren to hear from us; and I trust it will not be considered as presumptuous, or egotistic in me to say a few words about my work.

We have just closed a protracted meeting of two week's continuance that resulted in a genuine revival of religion in the church and the happy conversion of several precious souls. The congregations grew in numbers and interest from the beginning to the end of the meeting. We had one of the best communion services yesterday it has ever been my privilege to hold. The church was packed with a large, serious and attentive audience, and the Spirit of the Lord was present to comfort and bless the church. The service last night was solemn and impressive; and we closed the protracted meetings at the flood-tide of religious fevor and interest. Many expressed regret at closing the meeting. But there are many other pressing duties claiming my time and attention now.

Rev. R. D. Daniel, my assistant here, who serves the mission connected with this charge, was taken with typhoid fever about the 1st of July and was sick in our home here for two months. He went to his home in Orange County nearly four weeks ago, and has not been able to return to work yet. So I have had to do his work and mine too the best I could. We held a good meeting at North Henderson Cotton Mills in the spring and received a number of valuable members into the church, and organized a good Epworth League there, which has been doing good work ever since. We have organized a League at the station which is starting off well.

Our church at the Harriet Cotton Mills was burned just before I came here, and we have just about completed a new church here; a much better building than the one destroyed. I expect to hold a meeting there next week. We reorganized our Sunday-school there last Sunday, which had scattered for the want of a church. There were sixty scholars enrolled, and the prospect is bright for successful work there. We hope to get some help to finish paying for this church from our Church Extension Board at Conference.

Methodism in Henderson is on the up-grade. We hope to be able to make a good showing at Conference. We are securing homes for the members, and through the help of a committee of elect ladies, will soon be ready to prepare our directory. We will do all we can to make the brethren comfortable.

The Presiding Elders will confer a favor on us by forwarding me the names of lay delegates, applicants for admission, and for orders, at their earliest convenience. Henderson will do her best to give the Conference pleasant entertainment. The brethren who have been Conference hosts know that it is a labor of love to care for the body.

L. L. NASH.

Henderson, N. C., October 3, 1904.

Notice.

The Charlotte Observer and the Charlotte Evening Chronicle will publish full daily reports of the proceedings of the Western North Carolina Conference which will be held in Charlotte next month. The reports for both papers will be furnished by Miss Mamie Bays. Either paper will be sent to any address by mail, or delivered to anyone attending Conference for twenty-five cents for the Conference week. Subscriptions may be sent at any time from now until Conference meets to Miss Bays, or given to her, or handed in at the office upon the arrival of the delegates.

I believe that there is no way, that no love, no life, goes ever from us: it goes as He went, that it may come again, deeper and closer and surer, to be with us always even unto the end of the world.—George Macdonald.

Trinity College Notes.

The Jr. O. U. A. M., of Durham, West Durham and East Durham have appointed a committee to make arrangements for presenting flags and Bibles to both Trinity College and Trinity Park School. It is proposed to have several prominent members and officials of the organization to speak on the occasion. As soon as the program and day of presentation are decided upon an announcement will be made.

The Debate Council has arranged to have an inter-collegiate debate with Randolph-Macon College. This debate will be held in Ashland, Va., some time in the spring. Other debates will be arranged.

President Kilgo is away from the College for a few days. On Thursday he delivered the address at the laying of the corner-stone of a school building at Elizabeth City. After delivering other addresses in the Eastern part of the State, he will go to Richmond, Va., to fill engagements. He will return to Durham the first of the week.

S. B. Underwood, Jr., and A. R. McPhail have been appointed assistant librarians.

A College debate will he held Saturday evening, October 15th. One speaker from each of the three upper classes has been selected to represent the two societies.

Durham, N. C., October 6, 1904.

Aurora Circuit.

Dear Dr. Ivey:—We commenced a meeting at Durham's Creek, on this circuit, the second Sunday in August. Rev. L. S. Etheridge, of the Pamlico Circuit, helped me four days, and did very efficient work. We had a good meeting. Six young people were received into the church. The church was strengthened.

The last week in August found us at Campbell's Creek in a meeting, it being the occasion of our quarterly meeting. Our Presiding Elder, Rev. J. E. Bandy, remained over and gave us two days more than usual of very efficient help. Although he (Bundy) now moves around in the capacity of Presiding Elder, he soon showed us that he had not forgotten his former skill in handling the Gospel net. We closed here with a good deal of interest being manifested, and ten bright young people added to the church. The best meeting they have had for years, they say.

The 18th of September we commenced at Warren's Chapel. The next day Rev. N. L. Seabolt, from Raleigh, came to help us and remained about a week. He is a former pastor of this church, and the people are very much in love with him. We had a great meeting; the best they ever had, they say. Eternity above will tell what has been done in the blessed Saviour's name. Fourteen were added to the church. Others will join doubtless. Let me say here, that we resorted to no new fangled method. Penitents were invited to the altar. Those that think the old-time Gospel and Methodist usage has lost its hold on the people ought to have been there to have seen many of those penitents crying for mercy—then rejoicing in Christ. We left over a dozen penitents at the altar. The meeting ought to have lasted longer, but malaria, ever the bane of Eastern North Carolina, had taken possession of me. So I had to stop and wrestle with the chills for a few days. Brother Seabolt had to return home also, so we had to close.

Financially, things are moving on the up-grade. When we finish the work contemplated here at Aurora, we will have spent over three hundred dollars on the church and parsonage. Indeed, Aurora is building up. New houses are going up here and there; the noise of the saw and hammer is heard in the land. Real estate is high.

The Raleigh and Pamlico Railroad is to pass by here. They are arranging to commence grading here. The Old Dominion's steamboats lie at our wharf, or rather stop here every day, so Doctor, when we have the outlet by land and water we will surely be "out of the woods." Aurora will then be a station (it could be one now), and not have any malaria. Bishop Candler says it is strange that there is no malaria on stations; and so it is. But it must be so, for we never hear of it on stations, I believe, and never see the preachers fearing malaria on stations. So let the ambitious station hunter paste it on the inside of his hat that Aurora will some day be a station.

J. M. LOWDER.

Buy and Help.

I have for sale the following second-hand books, to be sold for preachers' widows:

One set Matthew Henry's Commentary (six volumes). Good as new. Six dollars.

One set Biblical Museum (eight volumes). Almost good as new. Five dollars.

One set Whedon's Commentary (thirteen volumes). Bought last year. Nine dollars.

One set Wesley's Sermons (four volumes). Sheep binding. Two dollars.

One set Wesley's Sermons (two volumes). Cloth. Bought in 1903. One dollar and sixty cents.

The Revival and the Pastor, by Peck. Fifty cents.

Letters on Baptism. Thirty-five cents.

Clews to Holy Writ. Fifty cents.

"Life and Times of Jesse Lee." Sixty cents

Ten volumes Spurgeon's Sermons. Bought in 1904. New.

D. H. TUTTLE.

Elizabeth City, N. C., October 7, 1904.

Will You Pay Your Preacher This Year?

BY J. V. WILLIAMS.

It is now nearing the close of the Conference year, and if the preacher is to be paid, some good work must be done at once.

By reference to the Conference Journal, it will be seen that many of our most faithful and devout preachers are not paid in full.

This ought not to be.

The amount allowed—or assessed—for the support of the preacher and his family, is generally very small—much smaller than professional men get in other callings. In fact, the pay of the preacher today, is not as good as the mechanic.

Why is this?

A church whose membership is worth two to three hundred thousand dollars will pay their pastor $500.

I know a church (won't say where) whose membership is worth at least $300,000, who paid their preacher last year less than $400.

One member of that church is worth $100,000. You ask "was the preacher any good"?

Yes, a noble young man. A college graduate who could have made $1,000 easily at secular business.

Everywhere I go they are talking about deadness in the church. No spiritual life, and the services of the church seem to be only formal. Is there any wonder when the membership of a church don't think enough of their pastor to pay him his just dues.

And this is not all. A rich church member who will see his pastor leave for Conference in distress because he has not paid his proportion to the church is a sinner of the deepest die.

There can be no righteousness without right living.

I called on a dear pastor some time ago. He was away out in the gum swamp in the winter time preaching, and having a revival—his wife was running the sewing machine, and was happy.

She said: "I kept husband out of the itinerancy for a while, but with a deeper consecration I changed my mind, and told him we would trust the Lord and go into the work. We don't get a living out of the church, and I take in sewing to clothe my children, but I'm so happy to think that we can serve the blessed Lord in this way."

At the week-day prayermeeting she was there with all the children, and when she led the singing, I felt the presence of the Holy Spirit.

God honors this sort.

Now, that Circuit (I think), has more than 500 members, and could easily pay their preacher $1,000 a year.

They ought to do it.

If that preacher's wife could leave off work on that sewing machine, and spend her time visiting and talking salvation, what a great help she would be!

God bless the noble women, preachers wives, who are still the victems of a cold, dead, sinful church!

Dear Steward, I started out to say a word to you. The year is nearly out, and if you are going to collect that money get a move on you at once. Many of you can't spend many days going from house to house to collect the preacher's money, and right here is where the rub comes.

You have no system.

Make out your statements against all the members, and get two good women for collectors, put them in a buggy and let them collect that money.

If you attended to your affairs like you do God's church you would be a beggar. The church would not be much worse off, but you would.

One word more. Many of our rich men don't "tote fair" in paying to the church. "As God has prospered you," is the Bible rule.

I insist on making the assessments proportionate to a man's worth.

When a steward at New Bern years ago, I talked proportion so much that they called me "Old Proportion."

New Bern is on the up grade, thank God. They are building a $50,000 church, but you won't see Adams at Conference with a "hangdog" expression on his face because he has not got his money. Let us all pray fo rthe stewards and collectors during October and November.

Currituck Circuit.

I have not written you anything for publication from my charge in some time. I hope you will find space for these few lines about our work, lying close by the great Atlantic.

We have held all our meetings for the present year, which accomplished much good, and as a visible result, twenty-three have been added to the church. We have built (this year) a nice church, costing fifteen hundred dollars, and repaired another at a cost of four hundred and fifty dollars; paid a debt on another of one hundred and seventy-five dollars, and have our new parsonage closed in, which we hope to have finished and ready for the new preacher for 1905.

I am closing up my third year on this charge, and while there are some discouraging features that confront us, there are many encouraging ones, and when we take a retrospective glance of our work, the past three years, we take courage and press onward.

The three years spent here in many respects have been pleasant ones. I have seen the cause of the Lord prosper in our lands. There have been during this time eighty-nine members added to the church, we have raised for building, repairing and furnishing churches and parsonages about two thousand and five hundred dollars, besides Conference collections, and pastor and P. E. salaries.

I have some faithful members, who have stood by their pastor, and I wish to express through the Advocate my appreciation of their support, imploring Heaven's blessings upon them.

I believe the work to be in a good, prosperous condition from a financial standpoint; and think there is some improvement along spiritual lines; and when properly developed, will be one of the best charges in the North Carolina Conference.

For all this, we give God the praise and glory.

W. A. PILAND, P. C.

God is light. God is a sun. Paul says: "God hath shined in our hearts to give the light." Just as the sun shines its beautiful, life-giving light on and into our earth, so God shines into our heart the light of His glory, of His love. Our heart is meant to have that light filling and gladdening it all the day. It can have it, because it is written: "Thy sun shall no more go down forever." God's love shines on us without ceasing.—Andrew Murray.

Our Boys and Girls

No Boy Knows.

There are many things that boys may know—
Why this and that are thus and so;
Who made the world in the dark and lit
The great sun up to lighten it.
Boys know new things every day—
When they study or when they play,
When they idle or sow and reap—
But no boy knows when he goes to sleep.

Boys who listen—or should, at least—
May know that the round old earth rolls east;
And know that the ice and the snow and the rain,
Ever repeating their parts again,
Are all just water the sunbeams first
Sop from the earth in their endless thirst
And pour again till the low streams leap—
But no boys knows when he goes to sleep.

A boy may know what a long glad while
It has been to him since the dawn's first smile,
When forth he fared in the realm divine
Of brook-laced woodland and spun sunshine;
He may know each call of his turant mates
And the paths they went, and the pasture gates
Of the 'cross lots home through the dusk so deep—
But no boy knows when he goes to sleep.

—Selected.

Commandments of the Home-Maker.

1. Make your household one harmonious whole, no matter how small the scale.

2. Use only what you can comfortably afford in good quality and ample quantity.

3. Let your home appear bright and sunny. It is not easy to be unpleasant in a cheerful room.

4. Treat your servants wisely and kindly, and it will be impossible for them to either impose or oppose.

5. A certain formality is necessary to save every-day life from triviality and freedom from looseness.

7. Do not forget that "society" is the death of home life—hospitality its flower.

8. Know how to talk and how to listen, how to entertain and how to amuse.

9. Have many interests and no studies.

10. Do not forget—your home should not only be a well-conducted dormitory and boarding place, but truly a home, the centre and focus of all interests, pleasure and happiness for everybody connected with it. —Harper's Bazaar.

A New Game.

Percy Saunders had come up to Perryville to spend a week. He had been there just twelve hours, having come the night before, and he had already been classified and pigeonholed by the Goodrich twins, his country cousins, whom he was visiting. He couldn't climb a tree; he couldn't swim; he threw a ball like a girl; the delights, of using a sling were unknown to him; and—he had to go to bed at half-past seven! As he was a year older than the twins, who were eight, this last was too much.

After breakfast the three boys went out to the barn, where the twins ran up ladders and walked the narrow cross-beams thirty feet above the floor as unconcerned as if they were on the ground.

Percy caught his breath. "Oh, I wish I could do that! I'd love to do all those things, but mamma won't let me because it makes me dizzy."

"Oh, it's easy! See me fly!" And Albert took a flying leap of fifteen feet into the hay, followed by his brother.

Then they compared muscles, and found that Percy's were "awfully flabby." Their own were like iron. But showing off soon palled on all three of the boys, and they began to wonder what they could play.

"I made up a game, the other day," said Percy, in the slow, sober tones that had struck the twins as so curious. They chattered as fast and as shrilly as monkeys themselves in spite of their mother's hourly protests.

"Did you?" said Albert.

"Out of your own head?" said Herbert.

"Oh, it's easy. I often make 'em up," said Percy, delighted to have made an impression on these athletic boys, who could do so many things which he could not, although he was so much older.

"Tell us how you play it," said the twins together, eager for some novelty.

"Well, it's a kind of tag. I'll be it, and I'll start to run after you just the same as I would in tag." As he spoke, the twins, who had been lying in the hay, jumped to their feet and ran out of the barn. "Hold on!" said Percy. "I must tell you something about it, first. As I run after you I holler out a letter of the alphabet, like C, and then if you think of an animal whose name begins with C, and shout it, I can't tag you; but if you don't shout, then I tag you, and you're it, and must run after the others and holler out a letter. It must be some animal, or, if you choose, you can call out flowers. But it must be either animals or flowers or countries or fruits; you mustn't mix 'em up in the same game. Now start, and I'll follow."

"I hope he says the same letter again, because I've got a fine animal all ready," said Herbert to Albert.

The boys had not run fifty feet before they found that, whatever else Percy could not do, he certainly could run. He was almost upon Herbert before he shouted, and then he yelled "C!" as before.

Herbert waited until Percy reached out his hand to tag, and then he shouted, "Seal!"

"Tag!" said Percy, with a burst of laughter.

"That's not fair," said Herbert. "I said 'seal' before you touched me."

"But 'seal' doesn't begin with a 'C;' it begins with an 'S,'" said Percy soberly.

"How about sealing? Isn't that c-e-i-l-i-n-g?"

"The plaster one is, but hunting the animal isn't," said Percy, with authority.

"He's right, Bert," said Al, who had run up. "You're it."

"Very well," said Bert. "Ready!"

And the two fled before him. He pursued Percy, who ran fleetly out into the road. After a long chase, Percy stubbed his toe, and Herbert gained enough on him to call out "G."

"Gnu," yelled Percy. But with a derisive laugh, Herbert closed on him and tagged him.

"I didn't say N; I said "G."

"And I said gnu—g-n-u," said Percy, simply.

"Say, a fellow needn't ever get caught if he spells that way," said Bert, angrily. "G-p-o-n-y—pony. That's easy." But Al came up and declared that Percy was right.

They played the game for over an hour. Sometimes even Percy did not think fast enough or run fast enough to avoid being it, and after awhile they gave variety to the game by changing to flowers; and there they rather got the best of Percy, who was not familiar with as many varieties as the country boys were. Bert made many laughable mistakes in spelling, and Al gave "phlox" as an F flower.

At last, when they grew tired of the sport, they all went up in the hayloft together. The twins helped Percy up the ladder. The tumbled into the hay.

"You're all right," said Al. "You can run fine, and that's a splendid game."

"And you can spell fine," said Bert.

"I'd rather be able to climb a tree like you fellows, than spell any word I ever saw," said Percy, modestly.

"Come on out, then, and we'll teach you," said the twins in unison.—St. Nicholas.

What Alma Learned.

Alma was helping mamma set the table. "What shall I do next, mamma?" she asked.

"Fill the salt-cellar, please," answered mamma.

Alma hastened into the kitchen, and soon returned with the salt-cellar all filled. "Thank you, dear," said mamma. "Now, that you have done this for me, I will tell you something about salt."

"That will be very nice," said Alma, curling herself in a chair near her.

"Well, all need salt so much that God put it for us in everp part of the world; and it is believed that the quantity of salt in the ocean is three million cubic miles. The Greeks, who very, very many years ago were the wisest people that there were, gave salt its name. There was a little change in the spelling of the second, which was the same as saying that sea was Mr. Sea, and salt was Mrs. Salt. We speak of everything not alive as it, but other people, like the Greeks, speak of everything, whether alive or not, as he or she."

"Well, she was good, fresh salt that I just brought in," laughed Alma.

"How can you speak of salt being fresh?" asked mamma.

"Mean that it is not old; but please go on with this nice story."

"But all salt is so old that we know nothing of the people who used to mine it—the rock salt, I mean—although their tools have been found just as they left them. Spain has one of the most wonderful salt mines in the world. It is a great hill, which is nearly all salt. The men mine it from the outside, cutting steps into it to reach to the top. The salt is ground and washed, and is then ready to sell. In Peru there are such large blocks of salt that the people build their houses on them. Some of this is red.

"Does all salt come from mines?" asked Alma.

"Oh, no; much comes from salt springs, and can you guess where the rest comes from?"

"From the dear ocean," said Alma, with the eyes sparkling as she remembered the happy days she had passed near its shores.

"Yes," said mamma, "people take the ocean water and place it in the sun, which draws up all the water, leaving the salt."

"I suppose that Mr. Sun makes pretty clouds out of the water that he draws up," said Alma, "and then sends it back to us in little showers on hot days. But why isn't the rain salt?"

"You will have to get some one who knows more than I do to answer that question," replied her mamma, with a smile. "Sometimes the people get the salt by freezing sea-water. The water will form into ice, that floats in the little waters that holds the salt. This brine is then placed where its water will evaporate, leaving the salt."

"I think the sea-water must be very kind," laughed Alma. "It will give us salt if we give it too much cold. But how do thye get salt from the springs?"

"In nearly the same way. I once saw some salt works in New York State. Since the brine springs flow through the ground, they often take in other things besides salt, so the men first take from the spring-water nearly everything that it gets from the iron and lime through which it flowed. It is then placed in vats, so that the sun will draw up all the water. These vats are sometimes in sheds, whose roofs can be moved so as to give the sun a good chance to reach it. But there is papa coming up the walk, so we must now be having out salt fo rour dinner instead of for our story."—The Watchword.

A True Cat Story.

A Wakefield family who reside in Magnolia during the summer, when they removed to Magnolia last June took with them their pet cat, but pussy did not like the roar and dash of old ocean, but sighed for her home by the placid waters of "Lake Quannapowitt." She disappeared, and was not seen again all summer. The family returned to their Wakefield home about the middle of September. They had been at home about two weeks, when one morning the daughter of the house was in the basement and heard a cat mew, and lo! at the window was her darling pet! It could not be; where did she come from? It must be a strange cat closely resembling "Peanuts" (so called because of her fondness for the article).

"Well," said the mother, "there is one sure test. 'Don,' the house dog, will know his old playmate." Don was called, and the recognition was mutual; they both seem delighted to meet again. It was evident the cat had traveled all the way from Magnolia to Wakefield, through the woods of Magnolia, Manchester, Beverly, over Beverly Bridge, Salem Streets, Peabody, Lynnfield, found Wakefield—how did she know it to be Wakefield?—and hid up at her old home near the lake. I never saw a creature so delighted to find her young mistress and the other members of the family. What guided her over the many miles. Was it animal instinct?—Our Dumb Animal.

For Asthma use CHENEY'S EXPECTORANT.

Look Out

FOR THE DATES OF

The Great State Fair

AT RALEIGH, N. C.

Grand Educational, Agricultural and Industrial displays. Finest display of Cattle, Sheep, Swine, Horses, Poultry, and Pet Stock ever seen in North Carolina.
Magnificent show of Labor-saving Farm Machinery.
Midway Packed with Good, Clean
Shows and Attractions.
October 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22.
ASHLEY HORNE, President.
J. E. POGUE, Secretary.
CLAUDE B. DENSON, Treas.

Lowest Kind of Rates.

California & Northwest

From Sept. 15th to Oct. 15th. 1904.

Cheap one-way and round-trip tickets on various dates to Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico and Indian Territory. Through tickets from all points. Write me. J. F. Van Rensselaer, Gen. Agt. Southern Pacific and Union Pacific Railroad Companies, 13 Peachtree St., Atlanta, Ga. G. W. Ely, T. P. A., R. O. Bean, T. P. A.

Womans Foreign Missionary Society

Please send all communications for this Department to Mrs. B. F. Dixon, Raleigh, N. C.

Officers of the W. F. M. S. of the N. C. Conference, June, 1903-'04.

President—Mrs. Lucy A. Cunninggim, Greensboro, N. C.
Vice-President—Mrs. R. A. Willis, Littleton, N. C.
Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. F. D. Swindell, Goldsboro, N. C.
Recording Secretary—Miss Blanche Fentress, Wilmington, N. C.
Treasurer—Mrs. B. B. Adams, Four Oaks, N. C.
Superintendent and Treasurer Juvenile Work—Mrs. L. M. Hendren, New Berne, N. C.

Additional Board Notes.

Our membership last year was increased 2,490.

The receipts for the same period were $132,143.37, nearly $20,000 increase over the year before.

Since the organization of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, twenty-six years ago, the receipts have been over $1,700,000.

These "facts and figures" should encourage every member of our Societies to be "diligent in business," that there be no falling away in any future reports, but rather, a steady increase from year to year.

May love for our Saviour, a determination to follow His commands, and an intense desire for the salvation of mankind stimulate us to constant, earnest effort.

Miss Pescud.

In last week's Raleigh Advocate there is an interesting article from her pen, which we know will interest every member of our Conference Society.

We regret that there is not room in our column for her occasional letters. She is our very own—we are interested in all her work—"for her our prayers ascend;" and there is always pleasure when her letters come to the "home land," and contain accounts of her well-being and success in the great work she has espoused.

Woman's Missionary Advocate.

In the September number there was one little item, which, though small, contained, "between the lines," pages of unwritten mental effort, solicitude, and entreaty. Read it: "The twenty-fifth volume of the Woman's Missionary Advocate is doing its best to keep up with this progressive missionary age, and it asks the encouragement of the whole Church."

Now, my sisters, it is in your power to show your appreciation of the valuable services rendered by our organ, and to give the encouragement asked, which means, "Send in, not only your subscriptions, but contributions to its columns," whenever there is anything in the Conference Society and Auxiliary work that is calculated to interest and enthuse.

There is many a Moses in our missionary work who needs an Aaron and Hur to hold up the hands and "steady them until the going down of the sun."

Raleigh District Meeting.

Mrs. R. H. Whitaker, District Secretary, speaks to members of her Auxiliaries. Give close attention to her announcement, and "govern yourselves accordingly."

"The District Meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Raleigh District will convene in Louisburg, October 29-30.

"Elect your delegates. I hope every Society—adult, young woman's, golden links and juvenile—will be represented and have a good report. The Lady Managers of the Bright Jewel Bands are earnestly requested to attend also.

"Please send the names of delegates and visitors who will attend the meeting to Mrs. T. B. Wilder, Louisburg, N. C.

"MRS. R. H. WHITAKER,
"District Secretary."

Edenton Street Auxiliary.

The regular monthly meeting of this Society was held last Monday afternoon, a large number of members being in attendance.

Mrs. R. O. Burton was elected delegate and Mrs. B. F. Dixon alternate to the District Meeting to be held in Louisburg, October 29-30.

At a former meeting, Mrs. N. G. Whitfield was appointed to fill the office of Corresponding Secretary, made vacant by the death of our lamented sister, Miss Julia Hutchings.

This Society is striving to keep abreast with the spirit of enterprise and progress, essential to intelligence and success in the missionary cause. It has a Study Circle, whose regular meetings are much enjoyed; and it is now making an effort to have a first-class library.

Among the first contributions to this laudable enterprise, are the Life and Letters of Laura Askew Haygood, and the Biography of Mrs. McGavock, First Corresponding Secretary of the Board.

Mrs. N. G. Whitfield was elected librarian.

Miss Janie Brown, agent for Woman's Missionary Advocate, reported several renewals to this important factor in the "light and life" of Auxiliaries.

A THOUGHTFUL MAN.

M. M. Austin, of Winchester, Ind., knew what to do in the hour of need. His wife had such an unusual case of stomach and liver trouble, physicians could not help her. He thought of and tried Dr. Kine's New Life Pills and she got relief at once and was finally cured. Only 25 cents at all druggists.

Positions GUARANTEED BY A $5,000 BANK DEPOSIT
Railroad Fare Paid. 500 FREE Courses Offered. Board at Cost. Write Quick
GEORGIA-ALABAMA BUSINESS COLLEGE, Macon, Ga.

..Dobbin & Ferrall..
(AT TUCKER'S STORE)
Raleigh, N. C.

BRIDAL OUTFITS.

We are fully prepared to furnish a complete Trousseau. Every detail absolutely correct. No better materials can be furnished anywhere, and our dress makers are the best in the world—a broad statement but fully true. It is far better to have the customers come to our store making the trip to Raleigh. Write us if you cannot come in person. You will be given perfect attention. . . . . .
Our Prices are Lower Than Other Stores.

DOBBIN & FERRALL
123 and 125 Fayetteville St.

THE KEELEY INSTITUTE GREENSBORO, N.C.
For the treatment of THE LIQUOR, OPIUM, MORPHINE and other Drug Addictions. The Tobbacco Habit, Nerve Exhaustion

Woman's Home Mission Society

Please send all communications for this Department to Mrs. R. O. Burton, Raleigh, N. C.

Officers of W. H. M. S. of the N. C. Conference.

President—Mrs. J. E. Underwood, Elizabeth City.
First Vice-President—Mrs. V. Royster, Raleigh.
Second Vice-President—Mrs. K. P. Black, Littleton.
Third Vice-President—Mrs. J. A. Spiers, Selma.
Recording Secretary—Mrs. C. P. Jerome, West Durham.
Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. S. H. Scott, New Bern.
Treasurer—Mrs. E. L. Prince, Wilmington.
Superintendent of Supplies—Mrs. Ivan Proctor, Raleigh.
Superintendent of Literature and Press Work—Mrs. R. O. Burton.

Parsonages Then and Now.

"When I read Brother North's recent articles on 'Parsonages,' a comparisons of conditions in my own experience came to my mind. The first: The 'new preacher,' a gray-haired warrior, had just been sent to our charge and had moved into his hired house. This was in a town which had been included in a circuit, but was a station, with no preacher's home. It was a bleak December day. The clouds were lowering and snowflakes hovered in the air when I knocked at the door to ask if I could be of service.

"Some of us had already gathered the few articles of furniture which had belonged to the circuit parsonage but had fallen to our lot in the division. These had been drifting around wherever the preceding preacher, a young man, and unmarried, had boarded. Among them was the bedstead Brother North described.

"This new preacher had a family and must keep house, although his children were motherless. The only house to be obtained was a little three-roomed cottage for the rent of which he was to pay one hundred dollars out of a salary (if all were collected) of six hundred dollars. A few things were added to the stock of furniture with which we tried to make it habitable; there was no water on the lot; the chimneys smoked and the winds whistled. We who were interested did the best we could, but oh! this comfortless view that met my sight!

"The preacher had come a long distance; freight charges were high, and the most valuable of his belongings were the books which were to furnish material for the spiritual food for his flock. He brought little to add to the comfort of a home, and the 'Ladies' Aid Society' was again called on.

The preacher bravely took up his round of duties, nor laid them down till he again received moving orders. Was it any wonder when these came, at the end of the first year, that both preacher and people were willing?

"The bright little girl who gave joy to the old man's heart has been taken to the Master's fold; he has gone to his reward and will move no more, but the manly boy of the parsonage has joined the itinerant ranks and is 'moving' in his father's place.

NOW.

"The other scene is a recent one. It is the same town, but a comfortable seven-roomed house, newly painted and entirely paid for, stands on the church lot. The long, broad porches leading out into the shady, well-kept lawn, give promise of rest and comfort. It is evening and the house is ablaze with lovely electric lights, turned on for the first time. The glow of Japanese lanterns lights the yard, alive with boys and girls who are holding an outdoor fete.

"Inside is a happy mother who presides over a comfortably furnished home with grace and love. The preacher and father is a 'four year' man and goes to Conference with the words: 'All paid in full, Bishop,' ready to be spoken.

"Are these imaginary pictures? Indeed, no. They are actual occurrences. The first, alas! is still often seen; the second to be desired in every charge.

"What has brought about the change? An informed and enlightened conscience as to the duty of the church in this particular, awakened chiefly by a live, active Home Mission Society. The spirit which gave birth to, and still dominates this organization, now pervades this whole church. A few must lead, of course, but they meet with hearty co-operation and liberal response. The bettered condition is so evident that it commends itself to all.

"Brother, do you want this ideal parsonage on your charge? Then organize and work with the Home Mission Society. We can do nothing without you but 'Come and go with us and we will do thee good.'"

This telling article, written by one of our best workers, will be read with much interest, and I trust, will be the means of accomplishing much good.

MORPHINE
OPIUM, WHISKEY AND ALL DRUG HABITS
CURED WITHOUT PAIN AT YOUR HOME.

If you are addicted to these habits you think you will quit it. You won't; you can't unaided, but you can be cured and restored to your former health and vigor without pain or the loss of an hour from business at a moderate cost. The medicine builds up your health, restores the nervous system to its normal condition; you feel like a different person from the beginning of treatment. LEAVING OFF THE OPIATES AFTER THE FIRST DOSE. You will soon be convinced and fully satisfied in your own mind that you will be cured.

Mr. T. M. Brown, of UcQueen, Ark., says: "Over seven years ago I was cured of the opium habit by your medicine, and have continued in the very best of health since."

Dr. W. M. Tunstall, of Lovingston, Va., says: "I am glad to say that I firmly believe that I am entirely and permanently cured of the Drink Habit, as I have never even so much as wanted a drink in any form since I took your eradicator, now eighteen months ago. It was the best dollars I ever invested."

Mrs. Virginia Townsend, of Shreveport, La., writes: "No more opium. I have taken no other remedy than yours, and I make no mistake when I say my health is better now than it ever was in my life, and I owe it to you and your remedy. It has been twelve years since I was cured by your treatment."

For full particulars, address DR. B. M. WOOLLEY, 309 Lowndes Building, Atlanta, Ga., who will send you his book on these diseases FREE.

Funny Stories

May be told you by agents trying to sell other makes of piano in reference to the great colleges adopting the STIEFF PIANOS. That is the very time to write these colleges and hear what their presidents and teachers have to say about the Artistic Stieff. These colleges use the Stieff piano in preference to others, because of its beautiful singing tone, perfect action, wonderful durability and the interest and love for the beautiful in music it inspires in the students. Sold direct, saves all in-between profit in the home.

Investigate. Southern warerooms, 211-213 N. Tryon St. Charlotte, N. C.
C. H. Wilmoth, Mgr.

Raleigh Christian Advocate.

ORGAN OF THE

North Carolina Conference, M. E. Church, South.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY AT No. 106 W. MARTIN STREET.

THOMAS N. IVEY, - - - - - - - Editor.

Subscription Rates.—One year, $1.50; six months, 75 cents. Preachers of the North Carolina Conference who act as agents receive the paper free of charge. All other preachers, and widows of preachers, $1.00 a year.

Business.—Watch the label. It shows the date up to which the subscription has been paid. Change in label serves as a receipt. Regular receipt will be sent when requested. When the address is ordered changed, both old and new address must be given. Address all letters, and make all checks and money orders payable, to the Raleigh Advocate Co.

Manuscripts.—All matter for publication to be returned to the writer must be accompanied by proper postage. Matter for the Editor and matter for the printer must not be on the same sheet. Obituaries must not contain over 150 words, nor contain poetry. One cent a word will be charged for all obituary matter over 150 words.

Advertising.—The RALEIGH CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE is a fine advertising medium. Rates will be promptly furnished on application.

The World As We See It.

For a long time Western North Carolina has been in a fit of depression on account of the obsolescence of the petrified man. The location of his exhumation was so near to Asheville that this proud and progressive city felt somewhat elated over its nearness to such a wonderful historic spot. But the day came when the petrified man was no more. He was simply a figment of the faker—a carefully compounded and configurated plaster of paris eidolon of the "human form divine." But now our sister mountain city rejoices once more. One of her citizens has been robbed of diamonds amounting to $10,000. There is no rejoicing, of course, course over this fact, but over the eclat. It is not every city that may become the birth-place of a sensation in the shape of a robbery of diamonds so numerous and valuable.

Without intending any disrespect to Judge Peebles, we must say that in one respect at least he is very much like "Happy Hooligan." The Judge seems to be having a plethora of trouble. It seems that in refusing to appoint to the clerkship of Warren County our former friend and journalistic brother, Rodwell, Judge Peebles has done the disappointed applicant a great injustice in proclaiming that said applicant had been a defaulter as former sheriff of the county. The numerous friends of Mr. Rodwell, in Warren County, are eagerly testifying that Mr. Rodwell has never been a defaulter, but that on the contrary, he enjoys the reputation of being as honest and upright a man as can be found in the State of North Carolina. Judge Peebles has it in his power now to show his fairness and magnaminity by correcting his mistake as publicly as it was made, and in other ways making such amends as will satisfy Mr. Rodwell, who is a reasonable man.

It is a matter of congratulation that North Carolinians, who have been represented as typically backward in making claims and defending them, should have been so successful through their able representatives in vindicating their old claim, which was so dramatically denied by Judge Christian, of Virginia, several months ago, that North Carolina was "First at Bethel and Last at Appomattox." Major H. C. London, Judge Montgomery, Mayor A. M. Powell, Capt. W. T. Jenkins, and M. W. J. Peele have done their work well. Major London has been requested to prepare an article entitled, "Last at Appomattox." The ability to vindicate this time-honored claim is a valuable possession for North Carolina, and we trust that Major London's article will have a wide reading. Self-depreciation in matters historical has been for a long time the bane of North Carolina. We are glad to see that this spirit is rapidly giving way to a spirit of self-appreciation which, without including boastfulness, takes in and fosters a worthy and legitimate patriotism and independence.

There are several reasons why the public eye should be turned with interest on the triennial convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church which met last Wednesday in the city of Boston. Thre are several questions to meet earnest consideration. Among these is the divorce question. The last convention in San Francisco voted down the proposed canon which forbids the clergy to remarry any person, innocent or guilty, divorced, even for the Bible cause, during the lifetime of the other party. The fact that this canon is even more stringent than the law laid down by Christ himself, had much to do in causing the defeat of this canon. It is up, however, again in Boston, and many eyes are watching to see what the ninety Bishops in the Upper House, and the five hundred and forty-two members in the House of Deputies, will do with this very important question. It is too much to expect that the canon will be adopted. Whether the promoters of this proposed rule be radical or not, it is nothing but just to say that the Protestant Episcopal Church has been a mighty power in safe-guarding the marriage institution and the sanctity of the home.

It is one of the glaring incongruities of present day life that the head of the nation which is now engaged in one of the greatest wars of modern times should have been the moving spirit in the establishment of the international peace tribunal at the Hague. It is an incongruity no less glaring that the ruler who is supposed to stand for a national war-like spirit, and to be favorable to a policy of general conquest, should have been selected a few days ago to call another peace conference at the Hague. But this is a funny world. And we must have strong faith in the supremacy of righteous principles. The interplay of international forces on the huge platform of so-called peace is nothing but a howling comedy which exists the risibilities of half the Christian world and the sorrow of the other half. Let the play go on, however. We would not have it stopped. President Roosevelt, the Czar of Russia, and all the other minor and major actors will change the comedy into golden drama in which the silver notes of peace, that is peace, will rise above all discordant sounds. Let us hope and pray that out of the peace conference to be called by the ruler of this great nation, will come that which will gladden the hearts of the civilized world.

It is not strange that there should be now running through the great heart of the people of North Carolina a feeling of intense sorrow. North Carolina is mourning the death of one of her favorite sons and greatest men. Gen. Matthew Whitaker Ransom, born in Warren County, N. C., on October 8, 1826, died on last Saturday morning at 1 o'clock at his home near Garysburg, N. C. His death was sudden. He was in good health up to the hour of his death. Gen. Ransom, up to 1895, had occupied for many years a very prominent place in the public affairs, both of his State and Nation. For over twenty-five years he represented North Carolina in the Senate of the United States. In that body he exerted a commanding influence. He had superior gifts as an orator, yet his talents were of the diplomatic kind, and his political victories were won not when he stood upon the hustings or on the floor of the United State's Senate, but in those retired places where he had an opportunity of standing face to face with his fellow-eitizen and shedding upon him the sunshine of a genial kindly soul. Gen. Ransom made only one speech of a commanding order on the floor of the United States Senate, yet that one speech will live long after the white banner of sectional peace has been planted in every State of the Union. His influence still lives in Washington City, and there are many hearts outside of his native State that will be filled with gloom when they hear that Matthew W. Ransom is no more. Gen. Ransom had his limitations. We would not exhibit him as a paragon, yet in this dark hour when a great State is mourning for her favorite son, we would obscure the defects and display the virtues. Of the latter, Gen. Ransom had many. It required a true, brave soul, when facing the eternal shadows, to say to the son gathered around his bedside: "Boys, do right; God bless your mother." These were his last words. May he rest in peace, while the Comforter administers balm to the bleeding hearts of the widow and her children.

We see more than a glint of sunshine through the tree tops when one of North Carolina's representative daily papers becomes broad enough to say good things in behalf of a political antogonist. Mr. Thomas Watson, Populist nominee for the Presidency of the United States, undoubtedly made a great speech a few days ago at Newton. According to the regular canon of political criticism, Mr. Watson very naturally might have expect a fusillade from the enemy's breastworks. This has been the rule and custom in Southern latitudes, but the correspondent of the Charlotte Observer was bright enough to know a good thing on sight, and brave enough to write the truth in his daily report to the paper. We might say that the Charlotte Observer was broad and progressive enough to print this report without fear or favor. The people of North Carolina have been so accustomed to have men and speeches blackened or white-washed according to the political will of the one who happened to hold the brush, that it is positively refreshing for newspapers to contain brave, unvarnished unprejudiced reports even of a political enemy's speech. The sun is mounting higher. May we soon bask in the full flood of the noon-day.

It is more of a regret than a criticism that the material progress of the country has been so much larger proportionately than the rate of increase in the equipment and transportation facilities of our railroads that a great many seemingly avoidable accidents have occurred. But from what we read a better day is coming. Our railroads seem determined to spare no expense in making the equipment of their lines to quadrate with the material prosperity of the country. The Southern Railroad is busy at work in making a second track between Washington and Atlanta. Much of this second track has already been constructed. The Atlantic Coast Line is constructing a second track between Richmond and Petersburg. We have no doubt that the Seaboard Air Line, which is second to no railroad in energy and progress, will soon be engaged in double-tracking between Washington and Jacksonville. The Manufacturers' Record gives a glowing account of material progress in the South during the third quarter of this year. There have been placed in cotton mills in this time 119,804 new spindles. These have required an investment of about $2,396,080, of which amount about $580,000 represents the investment in new mills. The spindleage reported is as follows by States: Alabama, 2,200; Arkansas, 2,500: Georgia, 30,000; Kentucky, 3,456; Mississippi, 6,600; North Carolina, 38,500; South Carolina, 16,548. It can be seen that in the number of new spindles put in during the third quarter of 1904, North Carolina leads all other States by eight thousand five hundred.

An unexpected and very unusual turn has taken place in the affairs of the Russo-Japanese war. The Russians have actually assumed the aggressive, and have advanced against the Japanese, driving them from a strategic point, and, according to Mukden dispatches, forcing them to the old battlefied near Liao Yang. What this means is a matter of conjecture. In St. Petersburg the people are rejoicing that the days of their defeat are over. In other circles the opinion is expressed that the Japanese are simply decoying the Russians to a stage of action more advantageous to the Japanese. We will know the truth, probably, in a few days. Very little news of an authentic kind comes from Port Authur. It is said, though, that now the beseiged have provisions to last them a whole year and that there are now nearly 50,000 soldiers in the garrison.

Methodist Mention

STATE.

The reports of good meetings are very cheering.

The man that wins the race generally carries the most dust.

We trust that the brethren will not be too busy in their meetings to send us a report of them.

The Park School Gazette, issued by Trinity Park School, contains a very touching memorial of Rev. J. F. Bivins.

Dr. Jno. R. Brooks has returned from his Western trip and will be in Reidsville until his Conference at Charlotte.

From what we have heard there will be an unusually large number of preachers at Henderson to report "everything in full."

The Methodist Quarterly, the organ of the M. E. Church, South, Greenville, N. C., and published by Rev. J. A. Hornaday, is doing good work.

The North Carolina Conference will convene at Henderson on November 30th—three weeks after the Western North Carolina Conference at Charlotte.

Rev. R. F. Bumpas, of Edenton Street, Raleigh, is making his Wednesday evening prayer-meetings very interesting with a series of talks on the Twelve Apostles.

Dr. J. C. Kilgo made the address at the laying of the corner-stone of the Albemarle High School at Elizabeth City last week. We hope to have a full account of the exercises.

Mr. Wiley Barnes, a most worthy Methodist layman, and father of Rev. A. S. Barnes, P. C. of the Clinton Circuit, died at his home near Fremont a few days ago. The bereaved have our sympathies.

Trinity College is arranging for regular monthly lectures to the students on popular themes, to be delivered in Craven Memorial Hall. he first lecture will be delivered by Dr. Jno. C. Kilgo, president of the College.

A subscriber wishes to know where he can obtain the best helps for a Sunday-school teacher. We would advise him to write by all means to Dr. James Atkins or Dr. H. M. Hamill, Nashville, Tenn. Our Publishing House carries the helps in stock.

Our friend and brother, R. T. Gray, Esq., of Raleigh, who was once the editor of the Raleigh Christian Advocate, has our sympathies in the loss by death of his mother, who, full of years and good works, passed to her reward on last Wednesday.

The next Handbook will show in some fine fine electrotypes what some of the "Mistresses of the Manse" in the two Conferences are doing in the way of beautifying the home. This will be a valuable feature of the Handbook. Who will get the prizes?

Rev. C. L. Read sends us the following note from Edenton: "We have just closed a very gracious revival here that resulted in much benefit to the church, and the conversion of ten souls. Bro. D. H. Tuttle did the preaching, which was of a very high order, and was accompanied by the presence and power of the Spirit. Our people consider it the best meeting they have had for ten years."

J. A. Dailey, P. C. Milton Circuit, writes: "We have just held our annual Sunday-school conference and rally at New Hope which was attended with marked success. The day was an ideal one and the crowd immense. The children equipped themselves admirably in their recitations, while the singing by the various schools was inspiring. It is said by many that this was the most successful conference ever held on Milton Circuit, and can but result in lasting good to the Sunday-school cause."

We learn from an exchange that the Methodists at Rockingham are preparing to have a new parsonage. The old building has been sold and removed to an adjoining lot, and will be occupied by the pastor and his family until the new building is ready for occupancy.

We learn that the church at Hamlet will be built as soon as a competent contractor can be secured. Rev. W. T. Usry is rapidly collecting the $2,500 subscribed, and it is expected that before many months this important centre will have an adequate house of worship.

* * *

CONNECTIONAL.

Bishop and Mrs. Granbery have gone to the World's Fair, and while there will be located at the Inside Inn.—Hanover Herald.

Bishop W. W. Duncan was recently tendered a social reception in Savannah, Ga. On September 27th he preached the dedication sermon of the new Williamston College at Greenwood.

Mrs. Sledd, wife of Prof. Andrew Sledd, and only daughter of Bishop Candler, has been added to the editorial staff of the Florida Christian Advocate. She will have charge of the Home Mission department of that paper.

There were four Conference editors at the late session of the Southwest Missouri Conference. There were eight connectional officers at the St. Louis Conference. And yet very often at our North Carolina Conference, there is not a single connectional officer, and only one little scrub editor. Missouri Methodism should divide with us.

Bishop Hoss lately visited Blarney Castle in Ireland. In writing of the Blarney Stone and describing the unusual exertions made by some in kissing the stone, he uses the following characteristic words: "I was nowise inclined to see what success I might have in the same direction. When I was aetatis twenty-five, I might have looked at the matter differently, but nowadays I never do a fool thing which so many other persons are willing to do for me."

The Book Committee was disappointed in the hope of beginning work on the new Publishing House in midsummer. The tenants of the residence now occupying the site were unable to give possession till the 1st of October, which is "moving day" in Nashville. The contract has now been let for the foundation. The residence will be removed at once and the foundation laid before winter. In the spring the building will be proceeded with as rapidly as possible.—Nashville Christian Advocate.

The financial exhibit of the Virginia Conference Orphanage (Methodist), at Richmond, which was recently stated by Rev. J. T. Mastin, superintendent, makes a showing that is greatly to the credit of the institution as well as to its Methodist supporters in the bounds of the Virginia Conference. The debt has been very materially reduced during this year, there remaining only about $3,000 unpaid. The Sunday-schools of the Conference have raised $3,414.71, the church at large, $1,800 and the trustees $2,000, making a total of about $7,100 paid on the debt.—Lynchburg Advance.

YOU WILL BE WELCOME.

The Raleigh Christian Advocate has an abiding interest in the welfare of its subscribers and extends to those who expect to attend the State Fair a hearty invitation to visit the "Advocate Corner" in Floral Hall, receive a warm welcome, and make themselves "at home." An Advocate representative will be found ready to receive them.

All truly wise thoughts have been thought already thousands of times; but, to make them truly ours, we must think them truly over again honestly, till they take root in our personal experience.—Goethe.

General Notes

In the number of successful applicants for the Rhodes scholarships there are several minister's sons.

Japan has sent a Japanese Christian missionary to Korea, thus taking its place among missionary nations.

The superannuation fund of Canadian Methodism amounts to $282,726, and yields a little over 5 per cent interest.

A few days ago twenty-three young men were ordained and sent out to the foreign mission field by our British Wesleyan brethren.

The Government of Japan has recently placed the Methodist Theological School on the same footing as other schools, regardless of the class of studies.

The Protestant Episcopal Church has purchased property costing $5,000 in the suburbs of Havana, Cuba, and has enlarged its school at Matanzas.

The endowment of the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute amounts to $1,030,553.28. The valuation of the personal and real property is $686,379.29.

There are in the United 147,000 clergymen, who minister to the spiritual welfare of 28,689,028 church members, who in turn maintain 184,000 churches.

Mrs. Horace Bushnell, who lives in Hartford, is now in her one hundredth year. This, however, does not deter her from receiving callers and entertaining them with a grace and charm which age cannot diminish.

Helen Keller, that most remarkable young woman, has had October 18th set apart for her at the St. Louis Fair. It will be called Helen Keller Day, and is the first time in the history of any American fair that any special day has been set apart for an individual.

The Baptist Orphanage at Thomasville has been afflicted with quite a scourge of typhoid fever. At one time there were twenty little patients in the hospital. Only two deaths. It is to be hoped that the situation will soon be relieved. Then the institution will be safer than ever for the trial through which it has passed.

The Presbyterian churches in the North show a net increase in membership for the year of 24,431, and an annual average contribution of seventeen dollars for each member. This is the largest average of all denominations in the United States, except the Episcopal church, which gives a little more than nineteen dollars a member.

What the Church Paper Does.

It gives all the news of importance occurring within the church.

It advocates and promotes the interest and activities of the various institutions and enterprises of the church.

It gives you the best thoughts of the best thinkers in the church.

It gives you a general view of all important events in universal Christendom.

It affords a mass of entertaining and instructive literature, stories, etc., for the family circle and for young people.

It furnishes the best missionary news of the world.

It discusses the live questions of the day and topics in church life, as well as current events in general.

It keeps its readers on the best periodical literature and books in the market.

It gives the history of the world, transactions and events, for every day in the year, in condensed form. That page alone is worth many times the cost of the paper, especially to busy people, who like their news boiled down.

In short, it is indispensable to the church member who is loyal and aggressive, and to the wide-awake, intelligent, progressive Christian.—Evangelical Messenger.

NORTH CAROLINA EPWORTH LEAGUE
DEVOTIONAL CHARITABLE CONFERENCE LITERARY EVANGELICAL
EDITED BY REV. H. B. ANDERSON.

Our Influence and How We Exert It.

Our influence! What is influence? It is that subtle force that issues from one's real self. It may be said to be the atmosphere which issues from, and surrounds, the individual. The sun gushes forth light ineffable, and heat unquenchable, because it is light and heat. Pomegranates and spices fill the house with sweet odors; the atmosphere becomes laden with that aroma, the absence of which destroys their identity. They would not be without the aroma they exhale. So with man. He is a "force bearer, a force producer" of his very essence and nature. As he journeys forth he exhales influences of his very being. It is this that gives weight to his words and acts. It is the man himself going out in words and deeds. Scientists call this "his magnetic circle." Artists express the same idea by the halo of light emitting from the divine head. Literature also recognizes the same idea. Bunyan, in his sublime allegory, makes Apolyon's nostrils emit flames. Edward Everett declared that Daniel Webster's eyes emitted sparks during his greatest speech. It is said by another: "No doubt if we had tests fine enough we would find each man's personality the centre of out-reaching influences of which he may indeed be as utterly unconscious as he is of the contagions of disease from his body. If light is in him he shines; if darkness rules he shades; if his heart is full of love he warms; if frozen with selfishness he chills; if corrupt he poisons; if pure-hearted he cleanses."

The influence of the summer sun puts songs in the throats of the birds and causes the flowers to unfold their petals and shed forth fragrance, lading the air with sweet perfumes; but that is not half so wonderful as the going forth of the human heart glowing with ten thousand effects as it moves through life. The soul of man, like the sun, has its own atmosphere with which it warms and transforms into beauty, or curses, chills and blights.

At times we find a soul all aglow with its own light and power infusing the same into a score or more of his fellows; they catch his enthusiasm, and in turn infuse it into others until the whole community reflects the image of one masterful soul. The influence of one great personality permeats the entire community.

When a certain atmosphere pervades an assembly, whether it originates from an individual, or a number of individuals, it is said the character or influence of the assembly is this or that. There is a sense in which character and influence are synonymous. The very presence of a great character exerts an influence whether he wills it or not; and the character of the man determines the value of his influence.

Ones pretentions may be one thing and his character and influence may be quite another. But it is character that counts—what one is; not what he professes to be.

Centuries ago King Saul sent soldiers to arrest a seer who had publicly indicted him for out-breaking sins. When the soldiers entered the prophet's presence they were so profoundly affected by the majesty of his character that they forgot their lord's command, and asked to become the good man's protector. Likewise a second squad of soldiers came to arrest him, and they remained to befriend him. Then the king himself, in great anger, rushed from his palace to seek the place where the man of God was teaching the people; he came under the influence of the prophet and began to prophesy, until the people, in great amazement, asked is, "Saul also among the prophets?"

We are here reminded of a similar incident in New Testament history. The Pharisees sent soldiers to arrest a public teacher. They returned without him, and when asked, "Why have ye not brought him," replied; "Never man spake like this man." Later this same teacher is a prisoner, and although Pilate is surrounded by a legion of soldiers to protect him, his heart trembles in his presence.

King Agrippa, seated on his throne, trembles in the presence of a man bound with chains who is able to forget himself in his great desire to do another good.

Carlyle tells of a mob in Paris who faced a belching cannon and spiked it, only to be stopped, further down the street by an old gray-haired man who simply bared his head and beckoned for silence.

It is said that when Julius Caesar was a young man he was captured by pirates and chained to the oars as a galley slave. That night he ate with the caption, the second day he was made first mate, and he soon won the hearts of the sailors, put the captain in irons, and shortly afterward sailed the ship as a prize into a Roman port.

Some seem to think that by boasting they have prestige. A man may ape a character greater than himself, and imitate a virtue he does not possess; but there is a vast difference between a real character and one initiated by another; between a real virtue and one that is copied. Only a small fraction of a great man's character can manifest itself in speech. Character is inexpressibly finer and larger than words; hence one who assumes a character that he is not fails to exert any moral influence, becomes the butt of ridicule, and at the same time contemptible in the eyes of right-thinking men.

It is one's character that gives worth and weight to his words and works. Sheer weight of personality alone accounts for a man's influence. Emerson says: "What you are speaks so loud I cannot hear what you say." Samuel's moral energy all compact restrained others and transformed them.

In New Orleans, at the intersection of Camp and Pylanea Streets, is the statue of a woman who was reared in poverty. She began life as a milk-maid and never rose above the occupation of a baker. She was known to the masses only by her given name, Margaret. Her statue, known as Margaret's statue, is the figure of a coarse-featured, ill-shapen woman with a little child standing by her side. Why is this woman's memory perpetuated in marble? She was one whom the people loved to honor because of her personal worth of character and the good influence she exerted in consequence.

Sometimes the public are slow to recognize one's value, but a man of real worth can afford to wait patiently until his nobility is recognized. I would here give emphasis to the fact that neither poverty nor ignorance is a barrier to the exercise of the influence of a noble soul. In London there was a poor ignorant apple woman who divided her fare and poor tenement with orphan boys. She gave them an ash box to sleep in because she had no better to offer them. During forty-two years she mothered and reared twenty of these orphans, giving them a home, bed and food, and taught them all she knew. Some she helped to obtain scant knowledge of trades and inspired them to hope for better things. Others she helped to reach Canada and the United States where they improved their fortunes and become good citizens. In her poverty-disfigured garret, made more wretched by want, her life was a blossom event in London's history. Social reform felt the mighty weight of her influence. Like a broken vase, the perfume of her life will sweeten literature and society a thousand years to come.

Lord Shaftesbury, simply as a peer, might soon be forgotten, but there was that in him that will keep his memory fresh in the minds of men, and his influence will be felt in England in innumerable reforms for ages yet unborn. When his funeral cortege passed through Pall Mall and Trafalgar squares, on its way to Westminster Abbey, the streets for a mile and a half were thronged with innumerable thousands. He was honored in his death by the presence of more people than are the crowned heads of England.

Why this display of affection for a peer? Why the perpetuation in literature of the memory of a poverty-stricken, ignorant apple woman? Why preserve the form of a coarse-featured, ill-shapen woman in marble? Because of the true worth of soul that exhaled influences that could not be circumscribed to the narrow limits of a small community.

If individuals can exercise such a wonderful influence for good because of personal worth, what may hinder a mighty influence from issuing from the association of noble young men and women in League work with high aspirations and unselfish devotion to the cause of Christ? Nothing but the lack of real worth.

A NOTRE DAME LADY.

I will send free, with full instructions, some of this simple preparation for the cure of Leucorhoea, Ulceration, Displacements, Falling of the Womb, Scanty or Painful Periods, Tumors or Growths, Hot Flashes, Desire to Cry, Creeping feeling up the Spine, Pain in the Back, and all Female Troubles, to all sending address. To mothers of suffering daughters I will explain a Successful Home Treatment. If you decide to continue it will only cost about 12 cents a week to guarantee a cure. Tell other sufferers of it, that is all I ask. If you are interested, write now and tell your suffering friends of it. Address, Mrs. M. Summers, Box 238 Notre Dame, Ind.

LADIES Interested in easily raising church money would do well to write the PETER NEAT-RICHARDSON CO., Wholesale Druggists, Louisville, Ky. All we want is the advertising. Write us.

65 VALUABLE PREMIUMS WITH CHEEK & NEAL'S PORTO RICO COFFEE

Makes a good cup of coffee. The best and strongest popular priced package Coffee sold. You not only get good coffee, but your choice of 65 Valuable Premiums is given for the signatures found on each package. Put up by

CHEEK & NEAL COFFEE CO., Nashville, Tenn.

See Large Premium List in every package. Save the signatures.

WORLD'S FAIR RATES

VIA

Seaboard Air Line Railway

TO ST. LOUIS, MO., AND RETURN.

On account of the World's Fair, St. Louis, Mo., the Seaboard Air Line Railway, in connection with the C. & O. Route via Richmond and the N. C. & St. L. Route via Atlanta, will sell round trip tickets to St. Louis, Mo., at greatly reduced rates from all stations.

Rates from principal points as follows:

	Season Tickets	60 Day Tickets	15 Day Tickets
Charlotte via Atlanta	$36.10	$30.10	$24.65
Durham via Richmond	34.10	28.40	23.30
Durham via Atlanta	38.75	32.30	26.30
Henderson via Richmond	34.10	28.40	23.30
Henderson via Atlanta	38.75	32.30	26.30
Maxton via Atlanta	38.65	32.25	26.25
Raleigh via Richmond	35.60	29.90	24.80
Raleigh via Atlanta	38.75	32.30	26.30
Hamlet via Richmond	37.60	31.90	26.25
Hamlet via Atlanta	37.60	31.90	26.25
Wilmington via Richmond	38.65	32.25	26.25
Wilmington via Atlanta	38.65	32.25	26.25

LIMIT OF TICKETS—SEASON TICKETS.

Good to leave St. Louis up to December 15, 1904, will be sold daily commencing April 25th.

SIXTY DAY TICKETS.

Good to leave St. Louis up to and including 60 days from date of sale. Will be sold daily commencing April 25th.

FIFTEEN DAY TICKETS.

Good to return up to and including 15 days from date of sale, commencing April 25th, and continuing during the Exposition.

COACH EXCURSION TICKETS.

On May 9th and 23rd, 10-day coach excursion tickets will be sold at very low rates from Raleigh $18.50 via Richmond and $20.80 via Atlanta. Tickets not good in Parlor Sleeping Cars. Tickets good to leave St. Louis including ten days from date of sale.

MILITARY COMPANIES.

Special low rates for Military Companies and Bands.

Quickest schedule, direct routes, first-class coaches and Pullman Sleeping and Dining Car Service.

For further information, call on or address us. Same will be cheerfully furnished.

C. H. GATTIS, T. P. A., Raleigh, N. C.
H. A. MORSON, C. P. & T. A., Raleigh, N. C.

When writing advertisers please mention this paper.

Sunday School

Lesson for October 16, 1904.

Elisha and the Shunammite.

(2 Kings 4:25-37.)

Golden Text.—The gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord. (Romans 6:23.)

The story of the Shunammite woman is one of the idylls of Scripture It gives us a picture of home life and social conditions which is valuable both as a means in understanding the environment in which Elisha lived, and as suggestive of what the spirit of every home should be at the present time.

The Prophet's Chamber.—Hospitality was one of the striking characteristics of the home in Shunem, where Elisha, the man of God, always felt himself at ease. Not content, however, with extending the ordinary hospitality which is prevalent in the East, the woman of Shunem and her husband made for their guest a prophet's chamber, which was duly furnished and set apart for Elisha's special use.

A Home Greatly Blessed.—In return for the kindness which he had experienced Elisha desired to show the Shunammite some special favor. First, he offered to speak for her to the king or the captain of the host, but with quiet decision she replied, "I dwell among mine own people." Then, having been reminded by Gehazi of the lack of children in this home, he promised to the Shunammite the advent of a son, which promise was in due time fulfilled.

A Sore Bereavement.—Years had now passed away, and the Shunammite's son had grown up to be quite a lad, when one day he was overcome while out in the field and carried to his home where he died on his mother's knees.

It is at this point that our lesson to-day takes up the Scripture narrative. We see the fond mother in her sore distress turning to the same source for help as did the poor widow, whose sons were about to be taken from her into bondage.

A Life Restored.—Not in vain did the Shunammite turn to the man of God at the very moment of her bereavement. Elisha responded immediately to her call, and by the divine blessing he was enabled to restore the dead boy to life.

The Heart of the Lesson.—1. There should be a prophet's chamber in every home. In other words, there should always be room for the representatives of our Master's kingdom within our dwelling, and though we may not be able literally to follow the example of the Shunammite in setting a room apart, we should always cherish the same hospitable spirit which she showed toward every sincere servant of the Lord.

2. God who is the giver is also the restorer of life. It was through the divine power that Elisha brought back the Shunammite's son to life. Let us note, too, that this power was given to Elisha simply in answer to prayer.

3. The great spiritual teaching of our lesson is summed up in the Golden Text. There is hope even for those who are spiritually dead that they may be quickened into life by the redeeming power of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. For, thanks be unto our Father in heaven, the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord.

Thoughtful Thanksgiving.

The Arabs have a custom of thanking God that it is no worse. If one loses an eye, he thanks God that it was not both eyes; if he loses a hand, he thanks God it was not both hands; if he breaks his leg, he thanks God it was not his neck. Dr. Johnson used to say that a habit of looking at the best side of every event is better than a thousand pounds a year. When Fenelon's library was on fire, "God be praised," he exclaimed, "that it is not the dwelling of some poor man!" This is the true spirit of thanksgiving, one of the most beautiful traits that can possess the heart.—Exchange.

TORMENTING RHEUMATISM

Columbus, Ohio, May 20, 1903.

Six years ago I had a severe attack of Inflammatory Rheumatism. I was laid up in bed for six months, and the doctors I had did me no good. They changed medicines every week and nothing they prescribed seemed to help me. Finally I began the use of S. S. S. My knee and elbow joints were swollen terribly, and at one time my joints were so swollen and painful that I could not close them when opened. I was so bad that I could not move knee or foot. I was getting discouraged, you may be sure, when I began S. S. S., but as I saw it was helping me I continued it, and to-day I am a sound well man and have never had a return of the disease. S. S. S. purified my blood and cured me of this severe case of Rheumatism after everything else had failed. I have recommended it to others with good results.

R. H. CHAPMAN.
1355 Mt. Vernon Ave.

The poisonous acids that produce the inflammation and pain are absorbed into the blood and Rheumatism can never be conquered till these are neutralized and filtered out of the blood and system. S. S. S. goes directly into the circulation and attacks the disease itself. It purifies and restores the blood to a healthy, vigorous condition. It contains no potash, alkali or other strong minerals, but is guaranteed entirely vegetable. Write us and our physicians will advise without any charge whatever. Our book on Rheumatism sent free.

SSS

The Swift Specific Company, Atlanta, Ga.

GO TO ST. LOUIS VIA C. & O. ROUTE.

Now is the time to see the great World's Fair at St. Louis, Mo. Delightful weather and the Exposition complete in all it's beauty. An opportunity not to be missed and never to be forgotten.

See that your tickets read via the C. & O. and Big Four Railways. Shortest, quickest and best route, with fast vestibuled train service.

Raleigh Marble Works

Monuments

Ship Monumental work to all parts of the State. Delivered to your depot at same price as at shop. Special attention paid to finish and lettering.

Only Best of Stock Used.

Write for new catalogue.

COOPER BROS., Proprietors, RALEIGH, N. C.

For LaGrippe and Influenza use CHENEY'S EXPECTORANT.

$3.50 will buy a pair Americus Shoes

In 18 Styles

Men's fine custom-made work.

The Greatest Selling Shoe in America for $3.50

For sale by all up-to-date dealers. Pair "Americus" would be an appropriate present for a friend.

Geo. D. Witt Shoe Co.
Manufacturers
LYNCHBURG, VA.

I CURE CANCER.

Have you Cancer? Have you been given up as hopelessly incurable by everybody? I can still cure you. At least, I have cured others who were thought to have but a few days to live, and why not cure you? No knife. No plaster. No caustics. No slouging oils. No injection of acids. No blood drawn. No pain. I can cure inte nal cancer just as readily as external. You can be cured by my "Home Treatment" at your own homes for less than one-fourth the cost of "Personal Treatment;" but if you have been humbugged till you have lost faith in the honesty or ability of any one to handle this disease successfully, come to me, and I will cure you or no pay. And when I cure you you stayed cured. It does not reappear in a few months. I will put money in the bank to back up that assertion. You will be absolutely, wholly and perfectly cured. The chances are ten to one if anything else is the matter with you, you will be cured of that too. You can be cured a great deal quicker, and more cheaply, if you have never permitted your body to be operated on or experimented with by others before I take your case, still if you do not believe it, go ahead a d try, but remember me when they have failed. Will you not write me a full description of your case and let me tell you what I can do for you. Address

Dr. Scott Mason,
Dry Bridge, Va.

DO YOU WANT A TEACHER?

The Educational Bureau, Raleigh, N. C., has recently secured the names of a large number of good teachers open to engagement. Write fully as to your needs. It charges you nothing.

XANTHINE HAIR RESTORATIVE.

Everybody that is anybody is now using XANTHINE.

You don't know what first-class hair is until you have tried it. It seconds nature. Not a dye. The same for any color hair—but absolutely NEVER FAILS to restore ORIGINAL color to any gray hair. Stops itching almost instantly; prevents dandruff; puts the hair in elegant condition every way.

Circulars gladly sent showing highest testimonials. Price $1 a bottle. Express prepaid on orders sent direct to us. Address XANTHINE CO., Richmond, Va.

Shepard's Lung Food.

A 50 cent bottle of Shepard's Lung Food FREE to any one wishing to test its efficacy in treatment of ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, COLDS, COUGHS, LA GRIPPE, CONSUMPTION, or any affections of the throat or lungs. Indispensable for public speakers.

Send name and address of your druggist and we will send you 50c. to pay him for one bottle of Lung Food. $100 reward for a case which it will not cure.

THE LUNG FOOD CHEMICAL CO., Wilmington, N. C.

H. STEINMETZ. FLORIST.

Cut Flowers, Designs. Plants of all kinds.

PHONE 113. RALEIGH, N. C.

DON'T

give your child old greasy Castor Oil. Give CAS-TO-RINE. Tastes as good as maple syrup. Fifteen cents per bottle at all dealers.

For Your New Dress

We'll be glad to send you samples of anything in our lines of Dress Fabrics.

Cassimere Suitings, Broadcloths, Covert Cloths, Plain Mohairs, Crepes, Voiles, Tweeds, Meltons, Rainproof Suitings, Fancy Mohairs, Eolleines.

Our Stock of Dress Trimmings

is the largest and most varied we've ever carried, embracing the newest and most up-to-date kinds.

Write for our new catalogues of INFANTS' FURNISHINGS and LACE CURTAINS, also for sample books of new White Goods. Sent free. Enclose this ad.

We prepay express charges on all orders of $5.00 and over mailed to the house from the Virginias and Carolinas.

Miller & Rhoads,
Richmond, Va.

A Red Cedar PAIL LASTS A LIFETIME.

Did you ever stop to consider how many buckets you buy during ten years.

A Genuine RED CEDAR Pail

Lasts not only 10 years, but 7 times 10 years. Over 160,000 sold during 1903.

RED CEDAR purifies water and keeps it fresh longer than anything else.

THERE ARE DIFFERENT KINDS of cedar pails. Insist on the RED CEDAR, it is the right kind.

Prewitt-purr Manufacturing Co.,
Sole Manufacturers,
NASHVILLE, TENNESSEE.

BLAKESLEE GASOLINE ENGINES ARE BEST FOR Cotton Ginning

"I can only speak of the engine bought of you last Fall in the highest terms * * * We find her to us with the regularity of a clock, a thing that we think very essential in making a good sample of cotton. As for safety, we think it far surpasses steam, and perhaps not more dangerous than water. It seems very simple and easy to learn * * * and believe it to be only a question of time when they will take the place of steam engines."

Rev. J. W. BURTON,
L. E. (The M. E. Church, South.

Send for catalogue X, stating power requirements.

White-Blakeslee Mfg. Co.
Birmingham, Ala.

Secular News

STATE.

The conspiracy case against V. E. McBee and K. S. Finch has been nol prossed.

Rev. Geo. A. Snyder has been inaugurated president of Catawba College at Newton, N. C.

The Waccamaw Land & Lumber Company recently purchased 171,120 acres of land in Brunswick County at a cost of $357,000.

Hon. Hoke Smith, of Georgia, addressed a large audience in Charlotte, N. C., on the issues of the campaign last Monday night.

The persimmons trees are loaded this year. It is said this means an unusual number of marriages, and a very cold winter.—Raleigh Times.

The farmers of Scotland County are considerably put out over the price of cotton. Not a few of them are inclined to hold and take chances on a better price later on.

The residence of John A. Stewart, of Asheville, was entered Wednesday night and $10,000 worth of diamonds stolen. The property was insured.

During the races at the Forsyth County Fair, Mary Dell, of Roanoke, driven by Mr. Nicholson, broke the record for North Carolina tracks, going a mile in 2:14¾.

The State Normal and Industrial College at Greensboro was opened Thursday with an attendance of 500. This is the largest first day enrollment in the history of the institution.

The Republican Executive Committee has put up L. D. Mendenhall, of Randleman, Randolph County, as a candidate for Congress in the Seventh District, against Hon. R. N. Page.

State Chairman A. C. Shuford and Committeeman J. B. Lloyd have issued an address to former Populists of the State calling on them to support the Watson electoral ticket soon to be announced.

Governor Aycock will make campaign speeches in West Virginia, October 24-25; Indiana, 26-29; Connecticut, October 31, November 1; New Jersey, November 2-3, and Maryland, November 5.

Prof. D. H. Hill, Raleigh, is to prepare a review of all 1904 North Carolina books for the State Literary and Historical Association, 18th. If you know of any new book by a North Carolinian, drop him a postal.

The ten Sub-Alliances of the Farmers' Alliance, which have been organized in Mecklenburg County, will meet in the county court-house, October 13th. The meeting will be for the purpose of organizing a County Alliance. State Lecturer Cates, of the Alliance, has been busy for some time in Mecklenburg, and now nearly every township in the county has an organization.

A GREAT SENSATION.

There was a big sensation in Leesville, Ind., when W. H. Brown of that place, who was expected to die, had his life saved by Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. He writes: "I endured insufferable agonies from Asthma, but your New Discovery gave me immediate relief and soon thereafter effected a complete cure. Similar cures of Consumption, Pneumonia, Bronchitis and Grip are numerous. It's the peerless remedy for all throat and lung troubles. Price 50 cents and $1.00. Guaranteed by all druggists. Trial bottles free.

GENERAL.

Bradstreet reports trade conditions favorable.

Japan is preparing for a long war with Russia.

The new battleship Georgia will be launched next Thursday.

Carl Schurz writes a letter declaring for Parker and Davis.

Sir Wm. Vernon Harcourt died suddenly in Oxford, England.

Fire in a lumber yard at Johnson City, Tenn., caused a loss of $200,000.

Manchester, England, is to receive cotton cargoes direct from New Orleans.

Advices from Mukden report that both armies are quiet but the scouts are active.

The total attendance at the St. Louis World's Fair to date was given at 12,515,511.

The United States will not intervene in Congo State affairs at the present time.

Joseph Chamberlain reopened his fiscal campaign with a speech at Luton, England.

The National Convention of the Daughters of the Confederacy began in St. Louis.

Leading Filipinos at a banquet in Manila expressed a desire for national independence.

General Stoessel says the Japanese lost 10,000 men in their latest assault on Port Arthur.

A British steamer carrying provisions to Port Arthur has been seized by the Japanese.

President Roosevelt is said to be supremely confident of the result of the election next month.

The Navy Department is planning an elaborate scheme of communications by wireless telegraphy.

Frederick Auguste Bartholdi, sculptor of the Statute of Liberty in New York Bay, died in Paris.

Valley Falls Manufacturing Company, of Spartanburg, S. C., has been placed in the hands of a receiver.

A negro was nominated for Congress in Georgia for the first time since the era of Reconstruction.

The Alabama Cotton Products Co., handling exclusively round-lap bales, has been forced into bankruptcy.

The treasurer of the Democratic National Committee appeals for contributions for the campaign fund.

Cotton is opening rapidly in all sections, and a large percentage of the crop has been already gathered.

Minister John Barrett denies that there is friction between the United States and the Panama Government.

Elections of State and county officers, members of the Legislature, judges and solicitors, were held in every county in Georgia Wednesday. There was practically no opposition to the Democratic candidates for State officers, nor for county judges and attorneys.

NOTICE!

I want every man and woman in the United States interested, either for themselves or friends, in the cure of Opium and Whiskey habits to have one of my books on these diseases. Address Dr. B. M. WOOLLEY, Atlanta, Ga., Box 389, and one will be sent you free.

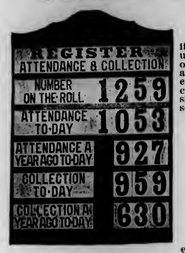
Cancer Hospital.

We want every man and woman in the United States to know what we are doing—We are curing Cancers, Tumors and Chronic Sores without the use of knife and are endorsed by the Senate and Legislature of Virginia. If you are seeking a cure come here and you will get it.

The Kellam Cancer Hospital,
Richmond, Va.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES.

Acme Register Board.



We have prepared a board similar to accompanying illustration, to supply a demand where schools desire to use an attendance register. This Register Board is made of wood. Size, 30 inches high, 21 inches wide, ⅝ inch thick and contains 6 spaces to hold cards or figures. We designed the board for announcing the record of attendance and collection, although it may be used for any purpose desired. We furnish without extra charge cards to be inserted in the several spaces containing the following:

Register of Attendance and Collection.
Number on the Roll.
Attendance To-Day.
Attendance a Year Ago To-Day.
Record Attendance.
Record Collection.
Collection To-Day.
Collection a Year Ago To-Day.
Collection Last Sunday.
Attendance Last Sunday.
Hymns.
Psalms.

Also 6 each of figures 1 to 0, inclusive. Price $3.00. Delivery extra.

Big Catalogue of Sunday School Supplies Free.
GOODENOUGH AND WOGLOM CO., 122 Nassau St. N. Y.

The Highsmith Hospital

(INCORPORATED.)

A General Hospital, centrally located on Green Street. J. F. Highsmith, M. D., Surgeon and Specialist in the diseases of women. Assistants; J. Vance McGeogan, M. D., Surgeon; J. A. McKethan, M. D., Specialist in the diseases of the eye, ear, nose and throat.

Modern appliances throughout; elevator, electric and gas light; water, heat, hot and cold shower baths and telephone service on every floor; electric call bells in all rooms; sound-deadening rubber treads and linoleum on stairways and halls, operating room second to none, well equipped chemical and microscopic laboratory with Static X-Ray Electric Machine in connection, giving unsurpassed facilities for treatment of the most difficult surgical cases.

Nurses' Home and Training School, under the supervision of Miss Maude Robertson, graduate of The Massachusetts General, of Boston, Mass., the McLean, of Waverly, Mass., and the Sloan Maternity, of New York, and recently head nurse of the surgical department of the Philadelphia Hospital.

The Cochran Annex, complete in furnishing and equipment, with endowed beds for both white and colored.

Domestic and Culinary Department under skilled housekeeper, faultless in sanitation, cleanliness and convenience.

For further information address

J. F. HIGHSMITH, M. D., Fayetteville, N. C.

Bibles and Testaments...

Our new line of Bibles and Testaments is now on sale. Testaments from 5c net up. Bibles as cheap as 15 cents net. Dainty gift Testaments in flexible leather, 29c, with overlapping edges, 40c. Postage 3c.

The same with Psalms, 25 cents and 45 cents; postage 4 cents. In large type 55 cents; larger type 90 cents.

A fine line of Teachers Bibles, $1.35 to $7.00.

Family and Pulpit Bibles

Twentieth Century New Testament net $1.00; Red Letter New Testament, $1.00, post-paid. Send for Catalogue and descriptive price list.

Southern Methodist Book Depository,
E. B. LIPSCOMB, Sec. AND TREAS.,
STAUNTON, VA.

Xmas Music and Supplies.

Send 10 cts. For our full Sample Packet containing two beautiful Christmas Services and our new Cantata, also our 96 page Catalogue giving illustrations and full descriptions of Xmas Cards, Booklets, Calendars, Candy Boxes & innumerable Xmas Novelties besides our full line of Sunday-school supplies. MACCALLA & CO., INC., 2 8 Dock St., Phila., Pa.

Text Cards for Home Decoration

on higher finished ivory and dark ground cards, all with silk cord to hang; require no frames. Agents wanted everywhere; liberal discount. GOSPEL PUBLISHING HOUSE, 64 W. 23d St., New York, Room 26.

WANTED.

Position as matron in hospital or hotel. Good reference. Address MISS L., care of Raleigh Advocate.

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE NORTH CAROLINA CONFERENCE

THE Barnes Clothing Store

IN HENDERSON, N. C.,

Sends you Greeting. We expect you with us on November 30th, and extend an invitation to one and all to make our place of business your headquarters. We have a fine assortment of

CLOTHING

AND GENTLEMEN'S FURNISHINGS . . .

of every kind. We are specially prepared to supply our preachers with clerical suits, and will favor them with bargains, if they will call to see us.

If you will send us your measure, and inform us what kind of suit you want, we will have it ready for you when you come to Conference. If we do not suit you it will cost you nothing. We will make it to your interest to give us a call, as we are making special arrangements to supply your needs at the lowest possible figure.

BARNES CLOTHING STORE,
HENDERSON, N. C.

Scholarship Free

FOR ONE MONTH. CLIP AND SEND OR PRESENT THIS NOTICE FOR PARTICULARS.

150 Page Illustrated Catalogue Free.

DRAUGHON'S PRACTICAL BUSINESS Colleges

RALEIGH, COR. MARTIN AND WILMINGTON. St. Louis, Mo.; Shreveport, La.; Atlanta, Ga.; Knoxville, Tenn.; Paducah, Ky.; Kansas City, Mo.; Fort Worth, Tex.; Nashville, Tenn.; Columbia, S. C.; Little Rock, Ark.; Ft. Scott, Kas.; Montgomery, Ala.; Galveston, Tex.; Oklahoma City, O. T.

Methodist Orphanage

OFFICERS:

REV. J. W. JENKINS, - Superintendent
MRS. J. W. JENKINS, - - Matron
MISS LUCY M. REEKS, Teacher

☞Send money to the Superintendent by Check, Post Office or Express Money Order, or Registered letter.

That Piano for Our Chapel.

The Catharine Page Chapel is now ready for service. We shall need a musical instrument. We prefer a piano; though a chapel organ would be better than nothing.

How our children would sing if they just had a good instrument. Send it in by Christmas, so that they may sing around our Christmas tree.

Come out then and hear Charlie and Lon sing a duet, and little Mary sing a solo, and Wade and Cassie and Malinda sing a triplet, and Warren, Willimena and Jimmie and Margaret sing a quartet. And the whole institution a grand chorus. My, what a time! How can we do without a piano!

Going Round and Round.

I left home Wednesday 28th ult., to look in upon the New Bern district Sunday-school Conference at Newport. I found it in full blast. One day had been put in. Good reports were in the air. The interest increased to the end. How could it be otherwise with J. W. Bryant in the chair, and Y. T. Ormond at the secretary's table, with Dr. Swindell overlooking, and Giles, J. H. M., as host. The Orphanage man wedged in a word between the acts of a compressed program. The only drawback was the small attendance. Friday morning I shipped for Kinston. Spent the day and night with dear friends, did some business, and added a nice sum to my subscription list Spent Saturday in New Bern—dined with a friend. Did some business. Added to my funds there. Returned to Newport, and talked to the Sunday-school, preached twice, and got home Monday evening. It was pleasant to lodge with Giles and family. I had a nice home during Conference, with Mr. Cicero Mann.

Finances Improving.

Bro. J. W. Grainger, of Kinston, furnishes a dormitory. Bro. J. W. Bryant, of Goldsboro, pledged Elm Street Sunday-school for a bed and paid half of it. So, also, my friend, Mr. Ashly Horn, of Clayton, furnishes a bed. That gives us three dormitories. Mr. J. P. Leak one, Mr. J. W. Granger one, and Siler City Sunday-school, Rich Square Sunday-school, Little Peoples' Aid Society, Airlie; White Oak Sunday-school, Whiteville Sunday-school, Mr. Horne, and Elm Street Sunday-school on each, making seven beds, filling a dormitory. Then Mrs. Proctor and her "lend a hand helpers," the parlor, and the Little girls of Smithfield an office. And sister Martin almost a bed room suit, and some bed quilts constitute the gifts to our furniture. Bro. J. H. M. Giles, one of our most faithful pastors, will take the collection all round his circuit.

How many more pastors will take it. Give the folks a chance, brethren. Don't be afraid. Twont hurt you.

Books—Our Library.

The "Jeffrey Robbins Library" is now ready for the furniture. Elastic shelves will be put in it, and all necessary furniture.

Send them in transportation prepaid. Send us good books for children and young people. Some for our teachers and employees. Don't send patent office reports, nor dime novels, nor learned books on theology, or law or medicine, or pedagogy, or science. I doubt whether our children would enjoy the Koran or the Zend Avesto or the Institutes of Mena, or the works of Confucius.

Nice pictures will be gladly received. But we have no room for those pretty girls in the fashion books. Mr. Casaubon's "Mythology of all Religions," would not be very interesting to Frank or Lon. Wade or Frances might peep into it, for curiosity's sake. Don't send them with the backs torn off. We want live books for live boys and girls.

Receipts up to October 8.

Princeton Sunday-school, $12.00; Elm Street Sunday-school, Goldsboro, for bed, $7.50; First Church Sunday-school, Elizabeth City, $5.00; Mount Pleasant Church and Sunday-school, Richmond, $17.50; Saint Pauls Sunday-school, $14.45; Warrenton Sunday-school, to September 30, $15.00; Lumberton Sunday-school $10.09; Parkers Sunday-school, October, $5.00; Gibson Sunday-school, $2.50; Saint Johns Sunday-school, $2.50; Red Springs Sunday-school, $2.50; New Land Sunday-school, $15.00; W. H. Weatherington, on subs., $5.00; Carteret Circuit, $6.83; John Farleno, $1.00; J. A. Meadows, on subs, $25.00; J. A. Meadows, donation, $25.00; Clayton on subs., $4.00; Mrs. G. P. Markham, $2.00; Mrs. T. J. Adams, on subs., $2.50; J. C. Burt, on subs., to 20th Cen. Educational, $2.50; Miss May Foy, .50; Mrs. Whitfield, on subs. per Mr. J. G. Brown, $2.00.

Donations in kind: Box of scuppernongs from Mrs. B. G. Utley, Apex; a quilt from Mrs. Perkins of Newport, and two quilts from Mrs. W. D. Newman, of Newman.

Lumbago Get Instant Relief RUB ON Painkiller (Perry Davis)

SPECIAL TRAIN SERVICE ON ACCOUNT OF THE NORTH CAROLINA STATE FAIR, RALEIGH, N. C., OCTOBER 17-22, 1904.

The Southern Railway will operate for the accommodation of its patrons the following extra trains on Wednesday and Thursday, October 19th and 20th:

Trains leave Greensboro 7.00 a. m., arrive Raleigh 10.20 a. m.

Leave Oxford 7.40 a. m., arive Raleigh 10.00 a. m.

Leave Morehead City (leave Goldsboro) 9.00 a. m., arrive Raleigh 11.00 a. m.

These trains will stop at all stations for passengers.

Special trains leave Raleigh returning—

For Greensboro, 5.30 p. m.

For Oxford, 5.30 p. m.

For Morehead City, 5.30 p. m.

Norfolk and Western train No. 38 will be held at Durham until 6.30 p. m. on October 19th and 20th to connect with special trains leaving Raleigh 5.30 p. m.

Train No. 136 will be held here until 5.00 p. m. on October 18th, 19th and 20th for accommodation of patrons from the east.

This splendidly arranged extra service, together with regular trains, which will be provided with extra cars, will afford ample accommodation for those wishing to attend the Fair.

Low rate round-trip tickets on sale from all points within the State of North Carolina, including Norfolk, Richmond, Danville, Lynchburg and intermediate points, on sale October 14th to 21st, inclusive, and for trains arriving Raleigh before noon the 22nd, final limit October 24th.

For further information call on any agent of the Southern Railway or write

T. E. GREEN, C. T. A.,
Raleigh, N. C.

"The size of your offering does not depend upon what you take out of your pocket, but upon what you leave in it."

For Whooping Cough use CHENEY'S EXPECTORANT.

BLYMYER CHURCH Write to Cincinnati Bell Foundry Co., Cincinnati, O.

Please mention this paper.

Quarterly Meetings.

WARRENTON DISTRICT.

G. F. Smith, P. E., Littleton, N. C.

THIRD ROUND.

Northampton, New Hope, Sept. 17, 18
Bertie, Ebenezer, Sept. 24, 25
Williamston and Hamilton, Williamston, Oct. 1, 2
Rich Square, Pinner's, Oct. 8, 9
Hobgood, Williams Chapel, Oct. 15, 16

FOURTH ROUND.

Enfield and Halifax, Enfield, Aug. 21, 22
Harrellsville, Harrellsville, Aug. 27, 28
Scotland Neck, Sept. 4, 5
Conway, Providence Sept. 10, 11.
Murfreesboro, Sept. 11, 12
Northampton, New Hope, Sept. 17, 18
Bertie, Ebenezer, Sept. 24, 25
Williamston and Hamilton, Williamston, October 1, 2
Rich Square, Pinners, Oct. 8, 9
Battleboro and Whitakers, Whitakers, Oct. 15, 16
Hobgood, Williams Chapel, Oct. 22, 23
Warren, Shady Grove, Oct. 29, 30
Warrenton, Warrenton, Oct. 30, 31
Littleton, Littleton, Nov. 3, 4
Weldon, Nov. 6, 7
Garysburg, Seaboard, Nov. 5
Roanoke Circuit, Smiths, Nov. 12, 13
Roanoke Rapids, Rosemary, Nov. 13, 14
Ridgeway, Union, Nov. 19, 20
Henderson, Nov. 27, 28

ELIZABETH CITY DISTRICT.

J. E. Underwood, P. E., E. City, N. C

FOURTH ROUND.

Hatteras, Trent, Sept. 10, 11
Hertford, Centre Hill, Sept. 17, 18
Perquimans, Oak Grove, Sept. 24, 25
Pasquotank, Newbegun, Sept. 25, 26
Camden, McBride's, Oct. 1, 2
North Gates, Savage, Oct. 8, 9
Gates Harrells, Oct. 15, 16
Kitty Hawk, Currituck Inlet, Oct. 22, 23
Currituck, Ebenezer, Oct. 23, 24
Moyock, Perkins Chapel, Oct. 29, 30
Dare, Mann's Harbor, Nov. 5, 6
Roanoke Island, Nov. 6, 7
Elizabeth City, First Church, Nov. 13
Elizabeth City Road, Nov. 13
Columbia, Nov. 19, 20
Pantego and Belhaven, Nov. 25
Roper, Nov 26, 27
Plymouth, Nov. 27

WASHINGTON DISTRICT.

J. D. Bundy, P. E., Rocky Mount, N. C.

FOURTH ROUND.

Robesonville, Mt. Zion, Sept. 3, 4
Washington, Sept. 11, 12
Nashville, Sharon, Sept. 17, 18
Farmville, Farmville, Oct. 2, 3
Aurora, Oct. 8, 9
Swan Quarter, Swan Quarter, Oct. 12
Fairfield, Oct. 14
Mattamuskeet, Nebraska, Oct. 15 16
Bethel, Bethel, Oct. 22, 23
Tarboro, (night) Oct. 23
Ocracoke and Portsmouth, Ocracoke, Oct. 29, 30
Greenville, (morning) Nov. 6
Grimesland and Vanceboro, Shilmerdine, November 6, 7
Spring Hope, Hornes, Nov. 12, 13
Wilson Station, (night) Nov. 13
Wilson Circuit, (Ledge Street) Nov. 14
Fremont, Fremont Nov. 15
Rock Mount, Nov. 16
Bath, Bath, Nov. 19, 20
South Rocky Mount and Marvin, Nov. 22
South Edgecombe, Elm City, Nov. 27, 28

ROCKINGHAM DISTRICT.

John N. Cole, P. E., Rockingham, N. C.

FOURTH ROUND.

Roberdel, Roberdel, Sept. 3, 4
Rockingham Station, Sept. 4, 5
Lumberton, Parker's, Sept. 10, 11
St. John and Gibson, St. John, Sept. 15, 16
Laurenburg, Sept. 16, 17
Richmond, Steele's Mill, Sept. 24, 25
Maxton and Caledonia, Oct. 1, 2
Hamlet, Hamlet, Oct. 8, 9
Rowland, Rowland, Oct. 15, 16
Robeson, Asbury, Oct. 22, 23
Mt. Gilead, Wadeville, Oct. 29, 30
Montgomery, Capelsie, Nov. 5, 6
Red Springs, Red Springs, Nov. 12, 13
Pekin, Concord, Nov. 19, 20
Aberdeen, Aberdeen, Nov. 26, 27

RALEIGH DISTRICT.

W. H. Moore, P. E., Pittsboro, N. C.

FOURTH ROUND.

Franklinton, Grove Hill, September 10, 11
Clayton, Elizabeth, September 17, 18
Oxford Circuit, September 24, 25
Central, October 1, 2
Brooklyn, October 2, 3
Milbrook, Pleasant Grove, October 8, 9
Granville, October 15, 16
Wakefield, October 20
Kenley, October 22, 23
Cary, October 29, 30
Epworth, October 30
Oxford Station, November 5, 6
Youngsville, November 12, 13
Louisburg, November 19, 20
Tar River Plank Chapel, November 26, 27

NEW BERN DISTRICT.

F. D. Swindell, P. E., Goldsboro, N. C

FOURTH ROUND.

Mt. Olive and Faison, Mt. Olive, Sept. 17, 18
Jones' Circuit, Lee's, Sept. 24, 25
Goldsboro, Thompson's, Oct. 1, 2
St. Paul, Oct. 2
Centenary, Oct. 9, 10
Pamlico, Bayboro, Oct. 15, 16
Oriental, Oriental, Oct. 16, 17
Hookerton, Rainbow, Oct. 22, 23
Grifton, Grifton, Oct. 23, 24
Dover, Oct. 29 30
Kinston, Oct. 30
Snow Hill Circuit, Jerusalem, Nov. 5, 6
Craven, Asbury, Nov. 11
Carteret, Harlow, Nov. 12, 13
Beaufort, Nov. 13, 14
Atlantic, Wit, Nov. 15, 16
Straits, Tabernacle, Nov. 19, 20
Morehead, Nov. 20
LaGrange Circuit, Nov. 21
St. John, Nov. 25
Mt. Olive Circuit, Smiths, Nov. 26, 27

DURHAM DISTRICT.

J. T. Gibbs, P. E., Durham N. C.

East Burlington, Graham and Haw River, at Haw River, August 27, 28
Mt. Tirzah Circuit, September 3, 4

FOURTH ROUND.

Trinity Church, Sept. 11, at 11 a. m.
Carr Church and Branson, at Carr, Sept. 11 at night
Chapel Hill, Sept. 17, 18
Durham, McMannen, Sept. 24, 25
Mangum Street, Sept. 25, at night
Leasburg, Salem, Oct. 1, 2
Hillsboro, Cedar Grove, Oct. 8, 9
Roxboro, Concord, Oct. 15, 16
Milton, New Hope, Oct. 22, 23
Yanceyville, Bethel Oct. 29, 30
Mt Tirzah Circuit, Nov. 5, 6
Burlington, Front Street, Nov. 13, 14
East Burlington, Graham and Haw River, Nov. 13, at night
Burlington, Shiloah, Nov. 18
Alamance, Phillips Chapel, Nov. 19, 20
Main Street, Nov. 27, at 11 a. m.
West Durham, Nov. 27, at night

FAYETTEVILLE DISTRICT.

J. S. Hurley, P. E., Fayetteville, N. C.

THIRD ROUND.

Goldstone Maroneys, August 27, 28
Sampson, Bethel, September 3, 4
Fayetteville, Hay Street, September 10, 11

FOURTH ROUND.

Dunn, Sept. 25, 26.
Cokesbury, Cokesbury, Oct. 1, 2
Elise, Tyrs. Oct. 7
Carthage, Oct. 8, 9
Haw River, Hyman's, Oct. 14
Pittsboro, Zion, Oct. 15, 16
Siler City, Oct. 22, 23
Goldston, Oct. 23, 24
Jonesboro, Hoplar springs, Oct. 28
Sanford, Oct. 29, 30
Hope Mills, Nov. 5, 6
Newton Grove, Nov. 11
Duke, Benson, Nov. 12, 13
Buckhorn, Cokesbury, Oct. 16
Lillington, Nov. 19, 20
Sampson, Nov. 25
Fayetteville, Hay Street, Nov. 27
Fayetteville, Holt's Hill, Nov. 27

WILMINGTON DISTRICT.

R. B. John, P. E., Wilmington, N. C.

FOURTH ROUND.

Onslow, Swanboro, September 3, 4
Scott's Hill, Acorn Branch, September 3, 4
New River, Turkey Creek, September 4
Burgaw, September 10, 11
Fifth Street, Sept. 18
Market Street, Sept. 18
Town Creek, Zion, Sept. 21
Grace, September 25
Clinton, Keener, Oct. 1, 2
Bladen Circuit, Antioch, Oct. 7
Elizabeth, Wesley's, Oct 8, 9
Magnolia Carleton, Oct. 15, 16
Carver's Creek, Shiloah, Oct. 21
Whiteville, Cerro Gordo Oct. 22, 23
Shallotte, Village, Oct. 28
Waccomaw, Bethel, Oct. 29, 30
Burgaw, Burgaw, Nov. 4
Kenansville, Warsaw, Nov. 5, 6
Onslow, Tabernacle, Nov. 9
Jackson and Richlands, Richlands, Nov 10
Southport, Nov. 13
New River, Sneed's Ferry, Nov. 18
Scott's Hill, Scott's Hill, Nov. 19, 20
Bladen Street, Nov. 27.

WOOL.

If you have wool to sell for cash, to exchange for goods, or to be manufactured, ship it to the CHATHAM MANUFACTURING COMPANY, ELKIN, N. C., and you will not regret it. They pay the highest market price and make the best goods you can get. Their blankets at all the leading expositions have been awarded GOLD MEDALS as the finest made in America.

WRITE THEM FOR SAMPLES.

ROYALTY PAID and Musical Compositions. We arrange and popularize. SONG POEMS, PIONEER PUB. CO.' 626 Baltimore Bldg., CHICAGO, ILL.

Marriages

SIKES—ROUGHTON.—On September 28, 1904, 8.30 p. m., in the M. E. Church, Columbia, N. C., Lenwood Sikes to Hattie Roughton, Rev. Wm. P. Constable officiating.

SWINDELL — SWINDELL.—At the residence of the bride's father, Mr. L. H. Swindell, Swan Quarter, N. C., September 26, 1904, Mr. Hiram A. Swindell, of Moils Point, N. C., to Miss Iredell Swindell, Rev. W. Y. Everton officiating.

HOWARD — SPENCER.— Married in the M. E. Church, South, Ocracoke, N. C., September 21, 1904, Mr. W. Hindman Howard and Miss Marion Spencer, both of Ocracoke, R. R. Grant officiating.

Obituaries

Obituaries containg not more than one hundred and fifty words are inserted free of charge. Those sending obituaries containing over one hundred and fifty words are requested to send with the obituary one cent for every word in excess. Unless this rule is observed the obituary must be cut down to the proper limit

POWELL.—Robert Ballard Powell, Jr., son of Mr. R. B. Powell and Mrs. Annie B. Powell, was born in the town of Henderson, N. C., August 4, 1903, and died July 22, 1904, aged eleven months and eighteen days.

Little Robert was a bright, beautiful child, and his affectionate parents looked forward with hope to his growing up to comfort and cheer their lives; but our merciful heavenly Father saw best to remove him from the trials of this life to that better life beyond.

He is greatly missed in his home here, but his parents have the blessed assurance that he is safe in heaven. He cannot come to them, but they can go to him. He was dedicated to God in baptism by the writer sometime before the Lord took him. May our Father comfort his loving parents with His continued blessings.

L. L. NASH.

ROPER.—Sister Caroline Roper was about thirty-six years old at her death, which occurred a few weeks ago. In early life she was married to R. D. Roper. She leaves two children and husband to mourn their loss.

Her neighbors all loved her, and her memory is, and will ever be, a precious heritage. She was ever ready to help when in her power to do good to any with whom she was thrown in contact. Those who knew her best loved her most.

She loved her church and her prescence was given with all the aid she could render to God's cause. From the day of her conversion to the day of her death she showed her love to Christ and His people. She showed an abiding interest in the preacher and his family. It was her chief joy to do something for them to make their stay a pleasure while on this circuit.

Her devotion to her husband was ideal, while her love for her children was that which marks a true and faithful mother. Her husband's health has not been good for some years and all that a loving wife could to was done to share his burdens. His life was made happy, though in afflictions, by the tender care of a good wife.

We are all deeply grieved at the loss of so true a friend and Christian.

A father, three sisters and two brothers survive her of her immediate family and upon these, with her husband and two children, we pray God's blessings.

Believing that she is at rest, we shall strive to meet her in the better world.

MRS. ADA WALTON.
Wecksville, N. C., Aug. 31, 1904.

HOWARD.—The subject of the following sketch, Capt. James W. Howard, was born at Ocracoke, N. C., March 26, 1839, and died at the same place September 9, 1904.

Captain Howard's early life was spent in the usual way of the people of his section, and he continued fishing with one or two intermissions till about 1883 when the Hatteras Inlet Life Saving Station was built. After the completion of this station, Captain Howard was made its first keeper and remained its keeper till April 10, 1903, when he was forced to give it up on account of feeble health.

He has left his impress upon those who were in the service with him as well as upon the community at large. All who knew him knew that God was honored in his life. Hatteras Inlet Station was a home for all the servants of God whose wanderings through the earth took them that way. He loved to turn the Station into a church and have the Word read and expounded and to have all join in singing the songs of Zion. He joined the M. E. Church, South, in 1869, under the ministry of Rev. Geo. E. Wyche, and has been one of its most faithful members ever since. His religious life seemed to brighten as he grew older and the sweet experiences that had helped him all along the journey deepened as he drew near the end. When the journey was coming to a close we all saw that he looked at death "as nothing more than a dream," and that he was perfectly willing to lie down and "rest under the shade" until Jesus should bid him arise.

He was married to Miss Zelphia Williams, of Ocracoke, January 21, 1861. They had twelve children born to them, but all of them except three preceeded their father to the better land.

May those that are here so live that there will "be a happy meeting over yonder."

R. R. GRANT.

Resolutions of Respect.

Whereas, Christian education is essential to the highest type of Christian citizenship, and

Whereas, no school in North Carolina offers a more finished scholarship, and greater educational advantages, than Trinity College and Trinity Park School.

Resolved 1. That we record with pleasure the matriculation of ten new boys from Robeson County into the above institutions.

2. That we pledge our fidelity and patronage to these institutions.

3. That we deplore the untimely death of Prof. J. F. Bivins, Headmaster of Trinity Park School, and pray that the Board of Trustees may be Divinely guided in the selection of a wise and worthy successor.

4. That these resolutions be recorded upon the minutes of this Conference, and that a copy of them be furnished the Raleigh Christian Advocate for publication.

W. H. HUMPHREY.

Signed by Z. PARIS.

Resolutions of respect passed by the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Laurinburg Methodist Church on the death of Mrs. Pattie E. Overby, which occurred at her home in Laurinburg, N. C., on August 27th:

Whereas, in view of the loss sustained by our Missionary Society; therefore be it

Resolved 1. That we express our appreciation of her pure Christian character and the desire which she had for the extension of her Lord's kingdom, for while feeble health kept her at home she always gave to its aid and her heart was ever open to the needs of the work.

2. That we extend to the bereaved family and friends our deepest sympathy.

3. That this testimonial of our heartfelt sorrow he sent to the family of our deceased sister, recorded in the minutes of our Society and sent to the Raleigh Christian Advocate for publication.

MRS. C. W. NORTH,
MRS. G. D. WRIGHT,
MISS MINNIE SMITH,
Committee.

Resolutions of respect adopted by Mangum Street Methodist Church, Durham, N. C.:

Whereas, our Heavenly Father, in His allwise providence, has entered the portals of our church for the first time and transferred from its membership here to His great church in heaven our beloved sister, Mrs. Z. T. Dickie; therefore be it

Resolved 1. That in her death our church has lost an earnest, sincere and conscientious member, who was untiring in all her efforts to promote the welfare of her church and to establish her Father's kingdom on earth, the community a devoted friend and her family a loving and affectionate wife and mother.

2. That while we deeply mourn the loss of a life so pure, yet we bow in humble submission to the will of our Father who doeth all things well and that we extend our love and heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family whose home has been torn asunder.

3. That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the church, a copy furnished the family of the deceased and other copies to the Herald and Sun of this city and the Christian Advocate of Raleigh with a request for publication.

MISS SUSIE McFARLAND,
MRS. C. W. EZZELL,
MISS EMMA DOWDEE,
Committee.

Durham, N. C.

EUREKA.

Eureka Springs, Ark.,
March 15, 1904.

Dr. J. T. Shuptrine:—Enclosed find 50 cents in stamps for a box of Tetterine. I sent for a box over a year ago. It took a place off my face that I feared was Cancer. I send for another box. It is the only remedy I ever had that did any good.

Respectfully,
MRS. W. E. PENN.

Unexcelled for all skin diseases. All druggists, or postpaid from the manufacturer at 50 cents per box.

J. T. SHUPTRINE,
Savannah, Ga.

MAKES A CLEAN SWEEP.

There's nothing like doing a thing thoroughly. Of all the Salves you ever heard of, Bucklen's Arnica Salve is the best. It sweeps away and cures Burns, Sores, Bruises, Cuts, Boils, Ulcers, Skin Eruptions and Piles. It's only 25 cents, and guaranteed to give satisfaction by all druggists.

LIBERTY MILLS

PRODUCES DAILY 4,000 BARRELS OF Pure Soft Wheat Flour

AND THERE IS HEALTH AND STRENGTH IN EVERY POUND.

Ask Your Grocer.

LIBERTY MILLS, Nashville, Tenn.

A MONEY MAKER.

Why remain poor when you can get rich. I have invented a useful little thing that sells for one dollar at sight. The material can be found in every house. Any one can make it in ten minutes. Send me fifteen two cent stamps or thirty cents silver—I will send you full directions for making them. After making them if you should fail to find ready sale for them, send all you have to me and I will send you one dollar cash for each one. I mean just what I say. Write today. Prompt attention to all letters.

J. K. BUTTS,
Wilmington, N. C.

Fine Wood Flooring

Parquet Floors and Specialties. Moore's Floor Wax. Moore's patent Resists. Send for FREE illustrated CATALOGUE.

E. B. MOORE & CO.
7 Wabash ave., Ch'cago

WRIGLEY ENGRAVING COMPANY.
ENGRAVERS, ELECTROTYPERS, STEREOTYPERS,
COPPER, ZINC, HALF TONE AND ZINC ETCHING.
ALL PROCESS WORK.
ATLANTA, GA.

CROSS & LINEHAN CO.,
NEW TUCKER BUILDING.)
234-236 Favetteville St., RALEIGH, N. C.

LET US SHOW YOU WHAT THE FULL MEANING OF BARGAIN-GIVING MEANS IN . . . . . .

CLOTHING
AND GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS.

OUR NEW SPRING STOCK NOW READY FOR YOUR INSPECTION.

Cross & Linehan Co.,
Leading Clothiers.

IS DR. D. M. BYE A FRAUD?—WHAT MRS. WILLIAMS SAYS ABOUT HIM.

Dallas, Tex., Dec. 31, 1903.
Dr. D. M. Bye, Indianapolis, Ind.

Dear Sir:—This testimonial is sent hoping it may be of use to some and to my friends or their neighbors in the different States in which I have lived. So many die after long and exeruciating suffering and so few recover, that I had little hope when I was told without doubt I had a Cancer. Friends wished me to try Dr. D. M. Bye, who said he could cure cancer, and without pain. I thought this a bare faced fraud. However, should I prove him such, I could report him to the postal authorities and do the world some good, if not myself. After writing to several whose testimonials I had read, I had to admit there was something in it. I had had the cancer two and a half years, and the best specialist in this section said my time was short in which a cure was possible. You referred me to the Dallas, Tex., office and I got a month's treatment. Before my mouth was up, my cancer was gone, not only to my joy, but to that of all who knew me. Besides, as one expressed it, "Now we will know what to do."

The medicine also made me feel better, although I had doctored much before. Dr. D. M. Bye's discovery is grand. He must be one of the happiest men in the world, enjoying the happiness and blessing he has brought to many, and will bring to thousands more. I will do all I can to spread the good tidings.

But I must add this warning: Before using this medicine, I got medicine from Kansas City, purporting to be the same, and it and the directions were very, very unsatisfactory. Dr. D. M. Bye, Indianapolis, Ind., and the Dr. D. M. Bye Company, Dallas, Texas, are the only places to trust.

ANNA M. WILLAMS,
Katy, Texas.

There is absolutely no need of the knife or burning plaster, no need of pain or disfigurement. The Combination Oil Cure for cancers is soothing and balmy, safe and sure. Write for free book to the Originator's Office, Dr. D. M. Bye Co., Box 462, Dallas, Texas.

IF YOUR CHILD IS SUFFERING WHY DO YOU NOT USE MRS. JOE PERSON'S REMEDY?

When my little boy was one year old scrofula broke out on him. The glands of his neck were enlarged, and his chest and shoulders were so swollen that they were in a puff, and his neck in front was swollen so it was even with his chin. I was advised to try Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy, and I put him on it at once. At that time he was so weak he couldn't raise his head, and was emaciated almost to a skeleton; he had lost all of his flesh and was so helpless and weak he couldn't help himself at all. We saw a change for the better as soon as we put him on the Remedy; he looked brighter out of his eyes, and as we continued it we could see he was rapidly gaining strength and flesh. After he had taken it three weeks the place on his neck broke and discharged a great deal. I then applied the Wash, and the discharge was so great I would have to change the cloths and apply the Wash five or six times a day. It broke in three places, one under his chin, one under his collar-bone, and one under his jaw-bone. They continued to discharge for three months, and we could see he was fast gaining health in every way. When the sores would pain him he would fret, then I would know they were hurting him, and I would apply the Wash, which always soothed and quieted him. I continued the Remedy and used the Wash freely for three months, when the sores were perfectly cured. We continued the Remedy a long time to be sure of a cure. He is now six years old and the picture of health. I have no idea he could have lived had we not heard of Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy. It was a God-send to us, as it saved our little boy.

MRS. J. B. MAXWELL.
Laurinburg, N. C., May 30, 1902.

Bro. L. W. Barnes, of Henderson, N. C., advertises his clothing store in this issue of the Advocate, and is making a special arrangement to supply the members of the Conference with clothes to suit them at the lowest possible figure. We speak for him the kindly consideration of the brethren. Henderson is looking forward with pleasure to the session of the Conference, and will do everything to make our stay in their thriving town pleasant.

Tammas walked home with the minister after service last Sunday and the latter complained of exhaustion. "Tired out, eh?" said Tammas. "Yes," sighed the reverend, "completely done up, mentally and physically. I actually strained my back getting up this morning's sermon." "Oh," said Tammas, musingly, "you must be very near the bottom of the barrel!"—Exchange.

ROBBED THE GRAVE.

A startling incident is narated by John Oliver, of Philadelphia, as follows: "I was in an awful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite, growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Then I was advised to use Electric Bitters; to my great joy, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50 cents, guaranteed, at all druggists.

PIANOS AND ORGANS

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.

A. D. JONES & CO.

Southern Factory Distributers for the World's Famous

KIMBALL

WE Loan you the money to buy them.
WE Give free trials.
WE Pay the freight.
WE Save you 25 per cent.
WE Add nothing to the principal when sold on

EASY PAYMENTS.

Write for our latest piano and and organ catalogue and full particulars.

A. D. JONES & CO.,
208 South Elm Street,
GREENSBORO, N. C.

HICKS CAPUDINE CURES ALL HEADACHES.

IT'S LIQUID. The perfect remedy for Colds, Indigestion, Periodic Pains, Brain Fag, etc. Prevents Train Nausea and Sick Headache. Braces the nerves. It's Harmless. Trial bottle 10c.

Bulington Route

COLONISTS RATES TO THE NORTHWEST AND CALIFORNIA

One Way Rates From September 15th to October 15th, 1904.

FROM / TO	Puget Sound Country, Portland District	California, San Francisco, Los Angeles, etc.	Butte-Helena District	Spokane District.
RALEIGH	$50.25	$48.25	$47.00	$47.75

The Burlington and its immediate connections, the Northern Pacific and Great Northern Roads form direct lines to the Northwest via St. Paul or Billings.

Daily Through Chair Cars on the "Burlington-Northern Pacific Express," St. Louis to the Puget Sound via Billings, Montana—the short line and time saver

TO CALIFORNIA, colonist tickets are good in the Burlington's daily through tourist sleepers. Personally conducted excursions every Wednesday from St. Louis and Chicago to San Francisco and Los Angeles via Denver, Scenic Colorado, Salt Lake City.

Two St. Louis-Denver Trains Daily.
Three St. Louis-St. Paul Trains Daily.

"The Burlington-Northern Pacific Express Daily, St. Louis to Seattle Via Billings."

Describe your proposed trip and let us advise you the least cost and the best way to go. Call upon or address

J. N. MERRILL, Gen. Southern Agent, Atlanta Ga.

....Chesapeake and Ohio Railway....
World's Fair Scenic Route
TO
St. Louis, Missouri.

SHORTEST, QUICKEST and BEST ROUTE. Vestibuled, Electric-Lighted Trains with Pullman Sleepers and Dining Cars.
Through tickets from North Carolina with direct connections.
SPECIAL RATES FOR SEASON, SIXTY OR FIFTEEN DAY TICKETS.
Fifteen day tickets from Raleigh, N. C., $24.80.
Sleeping car accommodations engaged upon application.
SPECIAL COACH EXCURSIONS
On authorized dates, tickets good for ten days at rate of $18.50. Correspondingly low rates from other stations. Special accommodatio s arranged for parties. Stop-overs permitted within limit at C. & O. celebrated mountain resorts.
USE THE C. & O. ROUTE and purchase your tickets accordingly.
For coach excursion dates, reservations and other information, address
W. O. WARTHEN, D. P. A., C. & O. Railway, Richmond, Va.

World's Fair, St. Louis

EXTRAORDINARILY LOW RATES,

October 4-6-11-13-18-20-25 and 28, 1904.

On above-mentioned dates the Southern Railway announces very low round-trip Coach excursion rates to St. Louis. These tickets will be good in all regular Coaches, and on all trains on dates shown. Tickets good 10 days.

Rate from
Goldsboro	$20.00	Salisbury	$17.00
Selma	20.00	Charlotte	18.30
Raleigh	18.50	Statesville	17.00
Durham	17.00	Marion	16.20
Greensboro	17.00	Asheville	15.40
Sanford	20.40	Hendersonville	15.85

Tickets sold at the above rates not good in Sleeping Cars; for other rates see notices elsewhere.

For full information, World's Fair maps, literature, etc., call on or address any Agent Southern Railway.

R. L. VERNON, Trav. Pass. Agt., Charlotte, N. C.
T. E. GREEN, C. T. A., Raleigh, N. C.
S. H. HARDWICK, Pass. Traf. Mgr. W. H. TAYLOE, Gen. Pass. Agt. Washington, D. C.

Training for Young Farmers.

The popular course for young farmers in the North Carolina A. & M. College, Raleigh, N. C., known as the short course in dairying and agriculture, opens this year, January 4, 1905, and continues for ten weeks, closing March 10, 1905.

On account of many improvements in the line of work introduced, the work will be far more interesting and important than before. A new course in farm engineering that will be given in connection with the other studies will add much to the importance of the work. This study will embrace rural architecture, and farm machinery, and special stress wil be placed upon designing barns, houses, silos, etc.

Another course that will be added is that of Farm Management, which will include a discussion of the management of the farm in various details.

A third new course that will be offered will be the cotton course, which will include cotton growing, judging, breeding and soil management in all of its phases. It is believed that the cotton course will be especially important to the young farmers in our State, and it should receive the attendance of every young cotton farmer that can get away from home during the winter months.

No entrance examination is required in these winter courses and no tuition is charged at all. Practical courses are hereby open to all who desire to better themselves in the various lines of agriculture. The total cost for ten weeks, including board, room, light, fuel, etc., is but $30.00. Young men contemplating attending should send in their application at once to C. W. Burkett, Professor of Agriculture, West Raleigh, N. C., as all students are registered in advance of the opening date.

Dottings.

We greatly sympathize with our friends of the Baptist Orphanage at Thomasville in their terrible struggle with the typhoid fever. May the good Lord spare those dear little orphans.

The article in the last Advocate headed, "Wanting Ones," should have been "Waiting Ones." Mistakes will happen in the best of families. Who will make me a present of a writing machine? One that will run by itself. Are there any auto-type-writers?" I wish I had one for Dr. Ivey's sake.

(Also the printers, Brother.)

I was mistaken about Berry's taking lessons in drawing. He teaches himself. He seems to know more about it than anyone else here. Wish you could see his drawing of our main building.

We give our friends a cordial invitation to come to see us when you come to the Fair. If you have a $1.00 bill for us, bring it along; or any other little thing.

As there is a law against burying in the city of Albany, the bishop had to have a special act of Legislature to be buried in the Cathedral. He was successful in having the act pass the law-makers, but his friends were astounded and worried when they read its text. It began with the usual verbiage. The ending was something like this:

"We do grant that Bishop Doane be buried within the precincts of the Cathedral at Albany. This act to take effect immediately."—Lippincott's.

DANGEROUS COLDS, HEAVY COUGHS, Speedily Cured by Allen's Lung Balsam

For Croup use CHENEY'S EXPECTORANT.

NO MONEY NEEDED

All you need is to send to us for 12 copies of THE AMERICAN ILLUSTRATED METHODIST MAGAZINE. Sell them to friends at price of 15c a copy, return the $1.80 collected, and we will send you by return mail, absolutely free, our beautiful Holman Teachers' Bible, bound in morocco, helps, maps, 32 full page illustrations, 4000 questions and answers on Old and New Testaments. You will be delighted with it, as all our customers are.

☞Our magazine was never more attractive and popular; it sells quickly.

Pastors and S. S. Teachers may order Bible for examination to be returned at our expense if not earned.

THE METHODIST PUB. CO.,
1112 Locust St., St. Louis, Mo.

Raleigh and Cape Fear Railroad TIME TABLE.

Effect 12:01 A. M., Sunday, October 9, 1904.

SOUTH BOUND TRAINS. Daily, ex. S. Second-Class 101	SOUTH BOUND TRAINS. Daily, ex. S. First-Class 105	STATIONS.	NOR. BOUND TRAINS. Daily, ex. S. First-Class 104	NOR. BOUND TRAINS. Daily, ex. S. Second-Class 102
A. M.	P. M.	Lv.	A. M.	P. M.
7 20	4 15	.....Raleigh.....	9 45	6 35
7 35	4 25	S.....Caraleigh Mills..	9 35	5 20
7 45	4 30	F.....*Sylvania.....	9 30	5 10
7 54	4 39	F.....† Barnes	9 20	5 04
8 00	4 45	F.....Hobby	9 14	4 57
8 15	4 52	M.....†McCULLERS.....	9 10	4 52
8 25	4 56	F.....Banks.....	8 58	4 25
8 30	4 59	F.....Austins	8 55	4 21
8 50	5 07	S...†Willow Springs...	8 50	4 15
9 05	5 16	M...† JOHNSON MILL	8 40	4 03
9 15	5 17	F.....† Cardenas.....	8 38	4 00
9 20	5 22	S...C. F. & N. Junction	8 33	3 55
9 35	5 26	S...† Fuquay Springs.	8 30	3 52
9 40	5 31	F.....Buckhorn	8 20	3 35
9 45	5 36	F.....Rawls	8 17	3 30
10 00	5 45	S.....† Chalybeate.....	8 10	3 20
10 05	5 50	S.....Bradley	8 00	3 01
10 15	6 00	F.....*Smith Mill.....	7 55	2 55
10 25	6 10	.....Lillington	7 45	2 45
		Ar.	Lv.

JOHN A. MILLS,
President and Gen. Manager.

RATES TO STATE FAIR VIA THE RALEIGH AND CAPE FEAR RAILROAD.

On account of the North Carolina State Fair, the Raleigh and Cape Fear Railway Company will sell round trip tickets to Raleigh, N. C., from the different stations at the following rates, tickets being on sale from the 18th to the 22nd, good to return on any train up to and including last train of Monday, October 24th:

Lillington Station, $1.00; Cape Fear, $1.00; Smith Mill, 35 cents; Bradley, 90 cents; Chalybeate Springs, 80 cents; Rawles, 75 cents; Buckhorn, 65 cents; Cardenas, 65 cents; Willow Springs, 55 cents; Austin, 45 cents; Banks, 40 cents; McCullers, 35 cents; Hobby, 30 cents; Barnes, 25 cents; Sylvania, 20 cents; Caraleigh Mills, 15 cents.

Trains due to leave Lillington Station at 7.45 a. m. and 2.45 p. m., and reach Raleigh at 9.45 a. m. and 5.35 p. m.

Trains due to leave Raleigh at 7.20 a. m. and 4.15 p. m., with the exception of Wednesday and Thursday, on which days the afternoon train will wait at Raleigh until 5.15 for the accommodation of visitors to the Fair.

Train and Fair tickets will be on sale at stations where we have agents; and passengers will please purchase same from agents before getting on train.

JOHN A. MILLS,
Pres. and Gen. Mgr.
Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 8, 1904.

King's Business College.
(INCORPORATED.)
CAPITAL STOCK $30,000.

We give the world's best and most modern Business Education. Our Colleges are the most helpful schools in America. KING'S means THOUROUGH in everything pertaining to Business Education. Railroad fare paid. Positions guaranteed, backed by a written contract. Individual Instruction. No Vacation. Enter Any Time.

Write for our College Journal and offers—they will point you to the road that leads to success. Address,

KING'S BUSINESS COLLEGE,
Raleigh, N. C., or Charlotte, N. C.

LOUISIANA

A Land of Promise

is open for you. Grasp this opportunity to reap the reward of industry in fertile Louisana—the richest alluvial soil in America. A Land of Perpetual Springtime and Flowers.

Don't Waste Time, Money and Efforts on a Poor Farm.

This company has a large tract of land in the famous Red River Valley, Avoyelles Parish, La., only 6½ miles from Marksville, the county seat. It will be divided into small plantations, and sold on very easy terms—cleared ready for the plow, or with timber standing.

FREE TRANSPORTATION

To All Intending Buyers.

Buy some of this splendid land. It is a rich alluvial formation of virgin top soil from 15 to 30 feet deep. It is no unusual thing for the crops here to yield a profit in one year equal to the original cost of the farm

COTTON, CORN, RICE AND SUGAR CANE

Pay From $25 to $100 Per Acre.

Do Your Acres Pay You as Well Now?

Transportation facilities are unusually good. A RAILROAD IS NOW BEING CONSTRUCTED THROUGH THE HEART OF THE PROPERTY, which connects with trunk lines covering the north, south, east and west. The Shreveport and Red River Valley R. R. passes through part of the tract, and branches of the Texas and Pacific R. R. are on the south and west. Thus a convenient and profitable market is provided for all crops.

To Investigate is to be Convinced.

WANTED: Good, Live, Responsible AGENTS to handle this property.

For further particulars call or write

Land Department Louisiana Construction Co.,

Suite 1004-1008 West End Trust Building, Philadelphia, Pa.

ACID IRON MINERAL

Registered A-I-M Trade Mark

Is a great natural remedy of wonderful curative power mined from a natural deposit. It cures all diseases, involving inflammation, by purifying the blood and directly healing the irritated parts. Try it on an external sore and watch its magic healing. It acts in exactly the same way on all internal inflammation, such as Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Rheumatism, Kidney Disease, Stomach and Bowel Troubles. Numerous testimonials that it cures when all other remedies fail.

No equal for diseases peculiar to women. Tones up the entire system Four weeks treatment, only 50 cents If your druggist cannot supply you, write to

"Cured me completely of bladder trouble." Mrs. Nading, Winston, N. C. "For sores A. I. M., is worth its weight in gold." J. H. Davis, Beaufort, S. C. (Blood Poison.) "By use of A. I. M. I was cured in a few weeks." J. F. Wingard, Branchville, S. C.

ACID IRON MINERAL CO., J. H. Garst, Gen. Mgr., Salem, Va.
P. H. HALTIWANGER, Pres., Columbia, S. C.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC COMPANY.

..."SUNSET ROUTE."...

Lowest Rates and Through Service to California. Ask About Them. Through the Rice and Oil Belt.

4 Daily Trains from New Orleans to Points in Louisiana; 3 to Texas; 2 to California and Mexico.

Best Trains, Best Service; Best Everything.

OIL BURNING LOCOMOTIVES.

Through Pullman Tourist Car from Washington, Atlanta, Montgomery and Intermediate points to California, Tri-Weekly.

No trouble to answer questions

J. F. VAN RENSSELAER, General Agent. ATLANTA, GA.
R. O. BEAN, T. P. A.,

When writing advertisers, pleasemention this paper.

Reading Room Trinity College

Raleigh Christian Advocate

FIFTIETH YEAR. ORGAN OF THE NORTH CAROLINA CONFERENCE. NUMBER 38.

RALEIGH, N. C., WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 19, 1904.

ARE SIMPLE PLEASURES POSSIBLE?

The author of "The Simple Life" has come to America, and everybody is interested in him. Not a few are surprised that a Protestant pastor in Paris should have a message for the world. With easy generalization we have been accustomed to say, "Can any good come out of Paris?" But there is a better Paris, as there is a better America, and its virile preacher has called us to think of the value and power and beauty of simplicity.

Mr. Wagner summons us to the enjoyment of simple pleasures. The call is timely, for we are tending too rapidly in the other direction. When young girls of sixteen in the high school are expected to wear ball dresses, and the boys of the same tender age to wear dress suits for the class functions; when it is required that the escorts call for the young ladies in carriages and with handsome bouquets, while fluttering mammas wait for the return until 1 o'clock in the morning,—a little suggestion of the delight of simple pleasures is not out of place.

Perhaps it may be necessary occasionally, as a matter of solemn duty, to give and to attend great social functions, in which one is crowded, and received, and pushed, and entertained, and pushed again, and sent home. But we may have a great many simple pleasures in between, and a very gracious Christian spirit may be shown in them.

It is a serious mistake to suppose that one must go away from home in order to have a good time. The home is the place for simple pleasures. About the only recipe needed is the elimination of all selfishness and the substitution of abounding good humor. It is extraordinary how the disagreeables of the day will disappear in the process. The husband will lock up the cares and annoyances of business in his safe with the cash-box and ledger. The wife will conceal the domestic mishaps,—the awful tragedy of the breaking of the cut glass dish or the shameful neglect in the matter of sweeping,—and the children, remembering that father and mother are tired, will bring only the bright and funny happenings of the school to be talked over in the family circle. Of course there are times when all the family must know the trials that shall bind them together in sympathy, but a conspiracy of silence about petty worries is altogether to be commended.

A home should be a temple of good humor, and, if so, the dining-room should be its inner shrine. Why should we not have the stalled ox and the peace and merriment also? There are families where the meal is the time for the venting of bad humors, and the airing of all grievances, and the settling of all disputes. It is, of course, a most convenient opportunity. Every one is present, and no one can well escape. But it is a desecration. The family meal should be the feast of the peace offering.

And there are so many simple pleasures open to us in the occasion of family festivals. The Germans make more of the many holidays of the year than we,—and they are right. Of course, the great days of Thanksgiving and Christmas are coming, but there are other days as well, with opportunities of plenty of fun, without any destructiveness or stupidity. And there are the birthdays and the wedding days and the family anniversaries. No need to spend much money. Simple festivities are the best. Little presents carry as much love as costly gifts. Nothing can be better than the basket made at school, or the piece of beaten brass, the worked handkerchief, or the gathered bouquet.

We might have so much pleasure with the children. It is their birthright, too. They delight in frolic. Lambs frisk and kittens play and children laugh and run naturally. And the rest of us keep young as we laugh with them. An old gentleman, still young in spite of his three-quarters of a century, said, after he had been sporting with some little folk: "I like to amuse children. It is so cheap. They require so little to delight them." And children enter easily into the conspiracy of pleasure. If we will only let them have the opportunity, they will enjoy the delight of giving even more than that of receiving, as our Master, with exquisite insight, has taught us.

By a little expansion of our home and family life, there are at our hands also so many simple pleasures in hospitality. It is counted a grace in the New Testament to be "given to hospitality." Yet how many people dread it nowadays! We will allow our social leaders to set the fashion for us, and we dare not invite a few friends to spend the evening without entertaining them and feeding them after the prescribed manner. Of course, if the lady has not a sufficient number of cups and saucers and plates of the same pattern, without any nicks in them, and an equal number of solid silver spoons, she cannot think of inviting her friends. Such little companies of hearty good cheer as Dickens writes of would not be good form. Many an evening party in a modest home has been carefully discussed and finally abandoned with a sigh, because "we could not serve the refreshments properly." Or the little dinner is given up, because it cannot be done in the best style. So the fear of unkind criticism prevents those simple pleasures which might be enjoyed in the company of a few congenial friends.

Even more difficult than the refreshment bugbear is often the entertainment bugbear. What shall we do with our guests? Of course, the easiest way is to give them some pasteboards, and let them amuse themselves. That is doubtless why card-playing is so very popular. Its prevalence is not a high tribute to our intelligence, to say the least of it. There was an old art of entertaining, of which one reads in books, called "conversation." It seems as if it used to be amusement enough for a dozen friends to talk. Are there not high thoughts and light thoughts, have we not wit and wisdom enough so that we may pass an evening together pleasantly?

The Indians of the far northwest have the curious custom of burning blankets as a mark of social magnificence. A chief will sometimes invite his friends to the burning of hundreds of blankets. Then every aspirant for social distinction will seek in eager rivalry to burn as many blankets as he can possibly secure. They, indeed, are savages, and could not be expected to enjoy simple pleasures. Why burn blankets at all? It would be far more comfortable in the cold northwest to use them for wraps, and the surplus blankets might be given to those who were shivering without. But among Indians it is absolutely necessary to observe the social conventions.

Surely the Christian view of pleasure is that it shall be simple, healthy, sincere. Probably, if we had a complete life of Jesus, we should find that in the home of Joseph and in the village life of Nazareth he enjoyed, with others, the simple, innocent pleasures of childhood and of youth. We may be sure that he did not go to the marriage feast to mar its joy. In his earnest words concerned with great interests our Lord does not give us much direction about our pleasures. But he clearly assumes them. And it is not a little significant that the only word he has to say about our feasts is that we shall not be selfish in them. In the midst of our pleasures, he would have us remember those who are denied the opportunity of even simplest pleasure, and would have us share with them.—Sunday-School Times.

September 25th, at a meeting held by the Department of Religion in Festival Hall, of the St. Louis Exposition, Rabbi Hirsch, of Chicago, said: "Whenever any nation ceases to recognize or observe the Sabbath, that nation has passed the period of its usefulness, and is on the decline. The Sabbath is, and has been, the working man's salvation. We may differ on the manner of its observance, but its essential importance and its divine mission in the universal scheme of things cannot be ignored."

A great bereavement has befallen our beloved church. One of its grandest and most influential men—Dr. Samuel F. Upham, of Drew Theological Seminary—has left us for the Beyond. For a considerable period he has battled against serious maladies. It seemed some weeks ago that the time for his departure was impending. Then he raillied and became convalescent. The church and his great body of comrades repoiced in believing that he was on the road to permanent recovery, and would soon be able to resume his class-room duties. His sudden relapse and death is a great shock to all.—Exchange.

"Well, I shall give no money for missions to a country where people can embroider like that." This utterance by a woman gazing on Japanese art exhibits at the St. Louis Fair is the most shallow remark about missions that Rev. F. S. Hatch has heard since he returned to America. He will hear others. Mr. Hatch, who has just passed through Japan en route to this country from India, says in Life and Light for Woman (October) that if Japan wins the war, changes in the mission work within the empire will surely come and may involve important modifications in policy of administration.

One of the great masters was asked how he accomplished such masterpieces, and he replied that he dreamed dreams and saw visions and then went to his task. A new vision of God is absolutely essential if we make 1904 better than 1903 was. If we seanctify ourselves we shall have a new purpose, a purpose filled with the spirit of God. We shall have a new consecration.—J. E. Brereton.

Contributions

THE CHURCH CONFERENCE.

A Neglected Wheel in the Machinery of Our Methodism.

BY T. B. ELDRIDGE.

"All the members of the . . . . . shall come together once a month, or on circuits at least every three months at every appointment, to hold a church conference."

The foregoing is from the Discipline of our church. I am not informed as to the number of the section. In the copy at hand, it is section 88, but my copy is a back number. And that brings me at once to what I have in mind to say, viz.: That many of our people have come to regard the church conference as a back number. I have been told of a city charge in the North Carolina Conference in which during a pastorate of four years a church conference was never held. I know of one in which two church conferences were held during a quadrennium. After attending what was supposed to be a church conference not long ago I was not surprised to hear a young layman complain because the inofficial member has no voice in the affairs of the church. Theoretically, there was no ground for the complaint; but that is as far as I can go in asserting that the objection was out of order.

Let any one who holds the opinion of my young friend read the chapter on "Church Conferences" in the Discipline. I would quote from it but for the fact that I would trespass too much upon valuable space. Dr. Atkins, in his little treatise on the polity of our church, says:

"This conference is very much like a family meeting in which all interests of the household may be freely discussed and all local interests looked after, and is invaluable in quickening the spiritual life of the church."

Another quotation may contain information for some of our people. Dr. Boswell, in his "Short History of Methodism," makes this observation upon the church conference:

"The conference is not confined to routine work. It may originate work and devise plans for strengthening and building up the church in the community. It may be made a great power for good."

Now, an observation as to church conferences, so far as my personal knowledge of them is concerned. Referring to what has been said about the infrequency of church conferences in some of our charges, it is not surprising to me that some of our members have come to regard the official board as everything and themselves as bench-warmers. This view does an unintentional injustice to our stewards and others who bear the burdens of the church, but the mistake is not inexcusable. Suppose a church conference is never called except when the financial pinch comes on at the end of the year, and that after a statement and an exhortation to pay up arrears are made the congregation is dismissed, it should not be thought surprising if members take the view of the young layman whose complaint has been mentioned.

I have no knowledge or experience that would warrant me in saying that members of the church would take more interest in its affairs if they were called into family council as the discipline directs, but my belief that they would is so strong that it would please me greatly to see the experiment tried in one of our leading churches, beginning the month following the Annual Conference and continued persistently for a year.

New Bern District Sunday-School Conference.

The New District Sunday-school Conference convened at Newport on the evening of September 27th, at 8 o'clock, and continued on through the 29th, the president, J. W. Bryan, presiding.

The attendance was not so large as it should have been, yet it was encouraging and the interest manifested by those present was great and showed that they were present for profit and better equipment for the work.

The spirit of the conference was fine and the discussions of a high order, and the one idea emphasized throughout the session was that the work of the Supnday-school is to bring the scholars to Christ, and to this end a better equipment and greater efficiency on the part of the teachers were urged.

The reports from the schools indicated progress, but the fact remains that a number of our schools are yet in a crude condition and are failing to accomplish much for the lack of efficient teachers and a proper conception of the purpose of the Sunday-school. What we need is a strong, active man in the field as Sunday-school Secretary. This is an important matter, and our Conference cannot afford longer to ignore it.

The conference started off well with an able and interesting address by Rev. G. T. Adams upon "The Value of a Child." Bro. G. V. Richardson was kept away on account of the sickness of his mother, but his place was well filled by Rev. D. C. Geddie, in an address on "Teaching Temperance in the Sunday-school."

The address of Rev. R. H. Willis upon "The Relation of the Sunday-school to Missions," was an able and forcible presentation of this phase of Sunday-school work.

The address at the closing session of the conference were delivered by Bro. D. T. Edwards upon "The Educational Value of the Sunday-school," and Rev. F. D. Swindell, D. D., upon "The Sunday-school as a Spiritual Force." Both of these addresses were very fine and much enjoyed by the conference.

Prof. S. M. Smith, General Secretary of the North Carolina International Sunday-school Association, was with us and added much to the interest of the conference by his very interesting discussion of important Sunday-school questions and his conduct of round table topics.

Bro. J. W. Jenkins was also with us, and I hope awakened a deeper interest on the part of the schools in the Orphanage.

The people of Newport entertained us royally, and each delegate felt that he had been assigned to the best home.

Y. T. ORMOND, Secretary.

A Plan for Systematic Missionary Training in the Epworth League.

BY JOHN W. SHACKFORD.

The Epworth League came into being in response to the need and demand of the young people of the church for some opportunity for practical Christian activity. But Christian activity must have a missionary side, else it becomes selfish and unchristian. The Epworth League needs the missionary objective to call forth its best energies and to develop its highest life. While there was no provision in the original form of the Epworth League Constitution for the missionary work, in no line has the League made such advances as in this. Since 1898 a Sub-Committee on Missions has had charge of missions in the League. But in view of the development of this work, and in order to provide more adequately for its control and promotion, the General Epworth League Board at its meeting in May, 1904, established "the Department of Missionary Work" in the League.

One of the specific provisions of the new form of constitution is regarding Mission Study Classes. The constitution provision reads: "The Department of Missionary Work shall provide for Mission Study Classes."

Why should not every League Chapter in Southern Methodism organize a class for the systematic study of missions? Missionary talks in the monthly meetings and general missionary reading have an important place in the work of the League, but nothing can take the place of the Study Class, with its group of four, six, eight or more who really study missions.

Missionary zeal is contagious. Missionary interest rarely springs up in the whole congregation at once. It generally comes from some centre of life—from one or a few burning souls who have the real missionary life. The missionary work in many Leagues is lagging for want of earnest leaders. The little group for prayer and study is the place to develop such leaders. We want the whole League to burn with fire and the place to kindle it is in the Study Class. Let no Missionary Committee be satisfied, or think that its work is complete, until a Mission Study Class is organized. If no others can be enlisted let the committee constitute the class.

Under the new provision for missionary organization in the League the study classes will use a different book from the mission book in the League Reading Course, which is not, as a rule, adapted to use as a text-book. "Sunrise in the Sunrise Kingdom," an outline of missionary work in Japan, by Rev. John H. De Forrest, D. D., missionary of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, has been adopted by the Epworth League as the official mission study book for 1904-1905. It will also be used by the Study Classes of most of the young people's societies of America. This book has been prepared with special reference to meeting the needs of Study Classes in young people's societies.

Our eyes are now turned toward the East, and toward Japan in particular. The Epworth Leagues are fortunate in having at this time such a book for their study. The author, from a long and intimate acquaintance with the Japanese people, has, in the language of Charles Cuthbert Hall, given to us a "first-hand knowledge of facts tempered with sympathetic appreciation of their meaning."

There will be special supervision of the mission study work from the Central Missionary Office, and an effort will be made this year to keep in touch with the Study Class teachers. The following suggestions are offered to Chapters desiring to organize classes:

1. October 30th is Mission Study Rally Day. Make the meeting on this day as strong and as attractive as possible. Present the reasons for the systematic study of missions and the plans for the tudy course of the year. Members should be enlisted for the class at this meeting, and, if possible, the class organized at once.

2. The Era of October 13th will be a Mission Study number. Sample copies of this issue will be sent free to any address.

3. Special helps for leaders will be furnished to all classes enrolled. The helps are full of suggestions and make it comparatively easy for an inexperienced leader to conduct a successful class. Arrangements have also been made to provide fresh missionary letters, one for each lesson, to all Study Classes enrolled.

The Mission Study Text-Books are sold at fifty cents in cloth and thirty-five cents in paper. All orders for "Sunrise in the Sunrise Kingdom" should be directed to Smith & Lamar, Agents, Nashville, Tenn.

Applications for enrollment cards, report cards, special helps, and correspondence regarding mission study should be addressed to Mr. John W. Shackford, Methodist Mission Rooms, Nashville, Tenn.

Thoughts from Thackeray.

The little ills of life are the hardest to bear, as we all very well know.

We view the world with our own eyes, each of us; and we make from within us the world we see.

The truest honor is the manly confession of wrong; and the best courage to avoid temptation.

Hearts as brave and resolute as ever beat in the breast of any wit or poet, sicken and break daily in the vain endeavor and unavailing struggle against life's difficulty.

Every star above shines by itself; and each individual heart of ours goes on brightening with its own hopes, burning with it sown desires and quivering with its own pain.

Pleasant Memories.

By Rev. W. A. Betts, in Southern Christirn Advocate.

"Doctor Deems was my first pastor—he was the 'circuit rider' on a Wayne County, North Carolina, country circuit when I was three years old. I remember his visits, old-time buggy, with the iron seat behind for the 'nigger boy' to sit on."—H. W. F., in Southern Christian Advocate, June 2, 1904.

In 1860, when but a child and accustomed with my elder brother Henry to kneel at mother's side for engaging in our morning and evening prayers, the good Doctor Deems was my Presiding Elder. My honored father was stationed at Smithville (now Southport), N. C., as preacher in charge. The Doctor was a loved and frequent guest at the parsonage, and so won upon the heart of the writer that he asked permission to the petitions of his prayers, "Lord, bless Uncle Deems." The request was granted, and two little lads kept up the sincere form of words in supplication many years.

In 1880 the writer visited New York city and next day after his arrival hastened to call upon the venerable pastor of The Church of The Strangers. The servant answering the door bell was instructed to inform the Doctor that a friend of other days desired to meet him. Upon his coming into the study where the visitor had been ushered, the Doctor was greeted with the inquiry, "Do you recollect, in the Old North State, a little child who begged permission of his mother, in behalf of himself and brother, to say in their prayers, 'God bless Uncle Deems?' Mother had told him of it in the years agone, and he instantly asked in reply: "Is this Henry or Willie?" It was passing strange that in the years that had elapsed the memory of such an incident should have remained. But the treasures of the heart are wonderfully well kept. The writer will never forget the face of the young man who spoke encouragingly and instructively to him when, under conviction for sin, as a child he was seeking the Savior.

Piedmont, S. C.

International Peace Congress at Boston.

The great congress has ended, a congress of some thirteen hundred delegates gathered together from all quarters of the globe to discuss the greatest issue that confronts our civilization—war. This, the thirteenth congress, was the second meeting on American soil, and certainly no more fitting place could here be found than in Boston. Up to date in all things, modern, whether material, aesthetic, or educative, it is rich in such historic interest as stirs the patriotic pluse of its every citizen. The birthplace of the Peace Society idea, it is among the leaders of that new patriotism which He taught, who, a Jew indeed, was one in such broad brotherhood of truest patriotism as became the Son of Man.

October 3 the churches gave over to the peace propaganda. Tremont Temple, seating five thousand five hundred, was filled to its utmost capacity for a mass-meeting in the afternoon. At night the Symphony Hall, seating some two thousand five hundred, besides its chorus of four hundred voices, was filled for consecration service. The Bishop of Hereford, England, and Dr. Edward Everett Hale took part in the service; but it was chiefly musical, by the Handel and Hadyn Societies—music rapt, enravishing.

On Monday, to the great Tremont Temple audience, John Hay—as these people love to call him—Secretary of State, bade, in the name of the republic, warm welcome to the congress—such thing as never has been in any land before. Plainly, but eloquently, he spoke out his own personal convictions regarding war, and pledged, in the President's name, the Government of the United States to do all in its power to further the federation of the world. It was a remarkable speech. And the chancelries of the world will con it with amazement and care. Already the Government has shown its attitude to the question by paying the expenses of the Interparliamentary Union, fifty thousand dollars, for the gathering at St. Louis to discuss the question. Secretary Hay's words were further endorsation of the republic's attitude.

All day on Tuesday work went forward in committee or open assembly. And at night the Hon. Oscar S. Straus, ex-Minister to Turkey and member of The Hague Court, presided over a meeting to consider "The Work and Influence of The Hague Tribunal." At the same hour, in Park Street Church, Dr. F. E. Clark, father of the Christian Endeavor movement, presided over a mass-meeting of Endeavorers, and hitched his splendid team on to his triumphal chariot of Peace. Henceforth the Christian Endeavor movement is to form a universal brotherhood pledged against war. At that meeting Charles Wagner, author of "The Simple Life," launched out in scathing denuciation of militarism. He did it, too, in English, learned, he said, specially for these congress meetings.

Wednesday night in the Temple was a marvellous meeting. Presidents of Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce, bankers and merchants, men of affairs and great economists, in glowing words, made plain that the commercial world is awaking to the fact that war anywhere is detrimental to the truest business interests everywhere.

At Fanueil Hall, at the same time, the great labor leaders, from both the Old World and the New, eloquently emphasized the self-same things, whilst at Park Street Church the authoress of "Lay Down Your Arms"—the book that is said chiefly to have influenced the Czar in calling The Hague tribunal—the Baroness Von Suttner—and others spoke of "The duty of women in the peace crusade."

And thus throughout the week the work has gone on, participated in by Jew and Gentile, ecclesiastic and socialist, Hindu and Chinese, members of all churches and of none. It has gone on touching thousands who little dreamt that the programme of the erstwhile visionary Peace Societies is already being wrought out into practical politics by some of the ablest and most stremous souls of both hemispheres.

A team from the Congress will probably be in Toronto on the 17th, 18th and 19th inst., consisting of Mr. Wm. Byles, ex-M. P., of England, his wife, Mrs. Byles ,one of the most eloquent women speakers in the Old Country; Dr. Gavin Clark, also an M. P.; Dr. Darby, secretary of the great English Peace Society; and Dr. Trueblood, secretary of the American Peace Society.—Christian Guardian.

Shakespeare and the Bible.

The following curious parallels between Shakespeare and the Bible have been noted:

Bible:: "But though I be rude in speech" (2 Cor. xi., 6). Othello: "Rude am I in speech."

Bible: "Consume thine eyes, and grieve thine heart" (I. Sam., ii., 23). Macbeth: "Show his eyes, and grieve his heart."

Bible: "Thou hast brought me into the dust of death" (Psa., xxii., 15). Macbeth: "Lighted fools the way to dusty death."

Bible: "Look not upon me, because I am black, because the sun hath looked upon me" (Sol., Song i., 6). Merchant of Venice: "Mistake me not for my complexion; the shadowy livery of the burning sun."

Bible: "Opened Job his mouth, and cursed his day * * * let it not be joined unto the days of the year; let it not come into the number of the months" (Job. iii., 1, 6). Macbeth: "May this accursed hour stand, aye, accursed in the calendar."—Alliance News.

The common problem, yours, mine, every one's,
Is not fancy what were fair in life
Provided it could be, but, finding first
What may be, then, find how to make it fair
Up to our means, a very different thing!
My business i snot to remake myself,
But make the absolute best of what God made.
—Robert Browning.

Soul Food

As we must spend time in cultivating our earthly friendships if we are to have their blessings, so we must spend time in cultivating the companionship of Christ.—Henry Drummond.

* * *

The great Light, which is Christ, is like the star which hung over the Magi—fit to blaze in the heavens, and yet stooping to the lowly task of guiding three poor men along a muddy road on earth.—A. McLaren.

* * *

"'Disappointments Gilded,
Silver Linings Discovered.
Old Bessings Revived.
Faith, Hope, Charity, free to all.
Miss Alice Kennedy, Brightside.'"

* * *

The noblest contribution which any man can make for the benefit of posterity is that of a good character. The richest bequest which any man can leave to the youth of his native land, is that of a shinning, spotless example.—R. C. Winthrop.

* * *

No energy of the flesh, no activity of church life, can excuse us from the first and constant duty of seeking unto God by prayer and supplication for that divine annointing of the Holy Spirit which alone can qualify us for service and make our work effective. Every promise and providence of God is calling to us to-day to take time to pray.—Selected.

* * *

Every one of us casts a shadow. There hangs about us a sort of penumbra—a strange, indefinable something—which we call personal influence, which has its effect on every other life on which it falls. It goes with us wherever we go. It is not something we can have when we will, as we lay aside a garment. It something that always pours out from our life, like light from a lamp, like heat from flame, like perfume from a flower.—J. R. Miller.

* * *

Many of our lives are like the trees in orchards and forests, all over the land, in early April days, waiting for the warm sunshine and gentle rains to call out their foilage and fruits; we need the warm south wind of God's love and of the Holy Spirit to woo the blessed possibilities that are sleeping in our lives. We need Easter in our hearts, a resurrection which shall cause us to arise and shine and put on our beautiful garments.—J. R. Miller, D. D.

* * *

A handful of corn was planted in the top of the mountain, and the fruit thereof shakes like Lebanon. Men of our own time have borne much fruit. They were not brilliant men in a worldly sense, but they were consecrated men, and thousands of souls shall rise up and call them blessed. Men of brilliant talents and splendid education could be named who have not been greatly useful. The world is not much better on account of their lives. They did not walk with God. Let him who is ambitious to bring forth much fruit and continue to bring forth fruit in old age draw near to God.

* * *

God is the God of the commonplace man. Jacob was perhaps the meanest man of Old Testament history; he began his life by driving a hard bargain with his brother in necessity; then cheated his blind father on his deathbed; then made his first prayer a bargain: "If God be with me, and will keep me in this way that I go, and will give me bread to eat and raiment to put on, so that I come again to my father's house in peace, then shall the Lord be my God." And God was his God, and through long years of disciplining sorrow, conquered the meanness in him and delivered him from it and brought him out, in his old age into a peaceful and triumphant manhood. God is the God of even the mean and the despicable.—Abbott.

The Field

Fourth Quarterly Conference.

The Fourth Quarterly Conference for Maxton and Caledonia being in session Saturday, October 1st, passed the following resolutions:

1. That during the four years of his pastorate on this charge, Rev. N. H. D. Wilson has proved himself a most faithful pastor and preacher. While reluctantly submitting to church precedent, we highly commend Brother Wilson to that charge to which he shall be sent by the Annual Conference, as one who does not confine his work to the pulpit, but who strives constantly to build up every part of the church work, and as one who in season, and out of season, zealously labors to upbuild in every way the cause of Christ.

2. That we have in Mrs. Wilson his wife, one whose work in the church cannot be estimated, whose usefulness cannot be surpassed, and whose church zeal is untiring. We cannot but congratulate, in advance, that church and Sunday-school which have the benefit of her services next year.

3. That these resolutions be placed upon the minutes of this Quarterly Conference, and a copy of them, be sent to the Raleigh Christian Advocate, with a request that they be published.

B. C. GLASS, Sec.

Maxton, N. C., October 10, 1904.

City Road.

Dear Dr. Ivey:—We closed our meeting at City Road a week since. The pastor did the preaching for the first week. Bro. R. L. Davis was with us during the next and gave us some plain, powerful Gospel sermons. The people heard him gladly. Twelve were added to the church on profession of faith and five by letter. This is the second meeting for this church during the year. The first was held in March.

City Road is growing in membership and I believe in power and grace. I have a loyal people to serve. I see a useful and a glorious future for them if they continue in the same spirit in which they have begun. There is among them a high type of piety. The financial claims will be more than fully met. We have been supporting an orphan through the Sunday-school for seven months, and shall continue to do so. We have been using, a beautiful thirteen hundred dollar pipe organ since July. It is paid for except a few dollars.

Elizabeth City and community are in a prosperous condition, notwithstanding so many reports to the contrary. And we are to have a dry town at least one year longer.

Methodism in Eastern Carolina rejoiced greatly on last Thursday to see the corner store laid for the Albemarle High School building. Dr. Kilgo was with us and delivered an address full of hope and inspiration. Prof. J. J. Scarborough has charge of this school, and he has easily taken a high stand among the people.

With best wishes for your success, I am,

Sincerely. H. M. NORTH.

October 10, 1904.

Opening of Greensboro Female College

The opening of Greensboro Female College last Wednesday was most encouraging and gratifying to the many friends of that institution, and also a deserved fruition of the earnest labors and sacrifices of those most immediately connected with the great work of rebuilding.

The large enrollment, reaching beyond the hundred mark on the first day, is sufficient evidence that this old and honored institution has not lost its hold upon the affection and confidence of the church, but shows plainly that it has a large and loyal constituency who will not desert it, but are determined to see it re-established as a nursery for the training and development of the young womanhood of the church. The large patronage is likewise a justification of the faith and devotion of the alumnae and other friends who resolved that the grand old school must live and continue the work which for nearly two generations has given it an honorable position among the schools of the State. Our Methodist people may feel sure that, in committing their daughters to Greensboro Female College, with its high standards and ideals of education for girls, as evidenced by its broad curriculum, its corps of able and accomplished teachers in every department, together with its ample provision in the new and elegant building for both health and comfort, they are making a wise and safe choice in giving to their daughters the superior advantages afforded in this historic school, now taking on new life and vigor.

An Important Question.

For two or three years we have been pressing the claims of the cause of missions with the motto, "Missionary Assessments in Full." Steadily the contributions have increased until one district paid in full in 1902 and three in 1903. It is not strange that some thoughtful men are beginning to ask, "Is this stress fair to the other collections?" Are not they of equal importance?" The writer has never allowed himself to neglect any of the collections committed to him; they are all alike sacred. But is it true that this campaign has injured the causes other than missions? Let us search the records.

Two years ago the Elizabeth City District led in this movement. With an enthusiastic Presiding Elder and an efficient secretary, it paid its assessments on missions in full. Did the other collections suffer? Not in the least. Indeed, they made greater gain than ever. So much so that, as had been foreseen by the missionary leaders, it was possible last year to raise the cry, "Every collection in full this year." And last year the district came within a very little of reaching this second great stage of success. Likewise last year the Presiding Elders of the Rochingham and Wilmington Districts entered enthusiastically on the campaign for missionary assessments in full. They wrought so faithfully and so wisely that success crowned their efforts. Did their work and their success injure the other causes? These districts paid more for every other collection than had ever done in their history. A study in detail is full of suggestion which may well be considered by those who see great danger to education, or church extension, or the claimants in this movement.

Let us compare the returns for education and for the claimants in these districts with the similar returns in those districts which either declined to enter on the campaign or did not prosecute it successfully. Elizabeth City came within $17.00 of its Conference claimants assessment; Rockingham within $47.00, and Wilmington within $111.00; while Durham lacked $47.00; New Bern $104.00; Warrenton, $112.00; Raleigh, $118.00; Washington $126.00 and Fayetteville $139.00. For education, Elizabeth City lacked $12.00, Rockingham $53.00 and Wilmington $160.00, while Durham needed $97.00, Fayetteville $177.00, Warrenton $197.00, Raleigh $224.00, New Bern $286, and Washington $319.00. Or, if we make inquiry as to the gain or loss on these collections: On the collection for Conference claimants, Elizabeth City gained $111.00, Rockingham, $72.00, and Wilmington $144.00, while the Raleigh, Durham and New Bern Districts reported less than in 1902 and the others made very small gains· Washington $16.00, Warrenton $19.00, and Fayetteville $32.00. On the collection for education the same contrast appears. Elizabeth City gained $103.00, Rockingham $87.00, and Wilmington $132.00, while Raleigh, Durham and Washington fell backward and Warrenton gained $7.00, New Bern $33.00, and Fayetteville $89.00.

But if equal emphasis had been laid on all, would not all have been raised in full? It is impossible to awaken zeal and enthusiasm in a task which the people, and even the preachers, consider a forgone failure. Our people needed to be taught thir ability. When convinced on weak charges that it was possible to raise the missionary assessments in full, they raised them, and in many cases then found they could do more and raised all. The same is true of districts. The Elizabeth City District confidently expects to pay everything in full this year, and we, of the Rockingham District, are almost confident. I have not heard from Wilmington. In neither of these districts could this have been accomplished but for the enthusiasm and knowledge of power which came from the missionary campaign. One Presiding Elder a year or two ago felt it wrong to join in the campaign for "Missionary Assessments in Full," but began with "Every Collection in Full." He worked hard and almost succeeded, but failed. The district has never done as well again. The other Presiding Elders did not work harder, did not make greater advance that year, but they succeeded. The next year, encouraged, they took up the larger task with power.

Let no one mistake the meaning of the movement. All our work is sacred, all missionary. Wise leaders must see that no cause suffers. But in this campaign, with its system, its enthusiasm and its watch-words, no injury has come to any of these sacred causes. Good, only good, and great good, has come to all of them.

N. H. D. WILSON.

Hillsboro Circuit.

Dear Dr. Ivey:—As I never see anything in the Advocate from Hillsboro, I thought I would beg a little space for a few lines, as I am in the habit of getting in a few words about once a year; so allow me to say in the outset that it looks to me that the preachers ought to write more anyway; but on approaching one or two on the subject, they would reply that they had nothing to write about.

Brother Yearby is movin· on nicely up here. He begins his last meeting at Walnut Gove today. Don't know much about his success in the country. We had a series of meetings here in town which we hope resulted in good to the church. So far as the preaching was concerned, it was good enough for me; but some people think if the pastors don't get help from some great big preachers we can't have any meeting.

Well, we don't seem to have meetings as we used to. How I do long to be in one of those old-time big meetings like we had when I was a boy. Why, we used to have them at school-houses, under brush arbors and straw pens then you know. Yes, and we have seen men and women make the woods ring with shouts. I can almost see the old preacher as he takes his text and closes the old Bible and preaches those soul-stirring sermons. But those days are past away, never to return. But I like this off-handed preaching just the same.

Some folks say Christianity is increasing; times getting better all the time; but somehow I fail to see things that way. Wish I could. I think sometimes we Methodist put more stress on missions and such things than we do on religion; and I was somewhat taken with a remark a preacher made at one of our District Conferences, that if we would get people converted we wouldn't have much trouble about missions; but some of the preachers cried him down quick, and at that same Conference the main question was—how are your collections, and not how many converts have you had. But I had better stop or I'll have some of the Presiding Elders on me.

W. C. NOBLE.

The Salvation Army, under the direction of Commander Booth-Tucker, of the United States, will establish in the big cities companies of workers to be known as the Drunkards' Brigades. They will hunt up, especially at night, men and women who have become too inebriated to look out after themselves. The brigades will be armed with litters, and the drunkards gathered in, if they are unable to walk, will be carried on the litters to the Army's citadels.

The Family

Outdoors.

You don't know how I love to be
Outdoors.
There is so much for me to see
Outdoors.
Indoors is good enough for sleep,
To mope or pine, to cry or weep;
But for the rest—please let me keep
Outdoors.

Sunshine can sink into your heart
Outdoors.
The sluggish blood takes a fresh start
Outdoors.
You can fill your lungs with the fresh, free air.
Forget all trouble and fret and care;
And your life is one sweet, grateful prayer
Outdoors.

—Edwin C. Litsey, in Farm Journal.

Simple Faith Richly Rewarded.

BY C. W. STEPHENSON.

Recently it was the writer's privilege to take a trip one hundred and thirty miles north to a pretty village nestling among the maples and other trees of northern and central Michigan. Day after day one particularly happy and contented man was seen driving about. He was seen so often that inquiry was made. The answer given is in what follows:

That man is Mr. D. His family lives just a little way down the street, and it is a family with a most pathetic history. Some twenty or more years ago Mr. D. married an innocent girl whose parents were farmers. She was wholly without experience or knowledge of the world. He was a fast young man, with whom she had been acquainted but a short time. After their marriage, he took her to a neighboring State, where he had lucrative employment. He was competent, skilled, and earned enough to support his family in luxury; but he had fallen under the cruel power of the drink habit, and so went down and down to the awful depths of drunkenness. That meant home neglected, work neglected, self-respect gone, poverty and wretchedness, the ever certain results of this dire habit. The poor wife struggled on bravely and uncomplainingly. One child after another came until there were ten of them, the eldest not yet having attained to the full bloom of young womanhood. The children were in rags, the larder empty, the wife's heart breaking and the husband but a faint suggestion of the strong young man of former years. Time after time the suggestion had come to the struggling wife, Why not leave him? Why stay here and remain the forced mother of so many unfortunate children? Where could she go? What could she do? There seemed no answer to these questions.

The time came when she must do something. Forbearance had ceased to be a virtue. She would go back to the old home, the old farm, to the father and mother heart and hearth! How she managed to make that long and sad journey with a babe in her arms, and nine others of different ages clinging to her for support and comfort, is not ours to tell. It is a pleasure to relate that the old home opened wide its doors. The father and mother, heart of the now aged parents, welcomed the sorrow-burdened daughter and all her children, and once more there was comfort and plenty if not luxury. Once more there was rest if not peace.

The stupid husband did not seem to care. If possible, he sank but deeper into his degradation and vices. There were no letters exchanged. He knew his wife had gone back to the old home, and he was coldly indifferent.

One bright summer day there came to the old farm, where the children were at play about the yard, in the sand among the flowers with the dogs and cats, a man, a young man, driving one horse, and purchasing rags. He was a member of the Salvation Army. He purchased the rags of the aged mother, paid her, and all the time looking at the children. Finally he said:

"Woman, you have a good many children for one your age, and I don't see how you manage to care for them all. You don't seem strong yourself."

"They are not my children. They are my daughter's." She put her apron to her face and went bitterly for a time. Then, recovering herself, she told all the piteous story, and ended it with bitterest reproaches upon the husband who had proven so much of a curse to them all. The young man was moved, and said:

"Maybe you are too hard on your son-in-law. Maybe he needs a friend. Maybe if you were to pray for him God would touch his heart. There is One who can save to the uttermost."

"It's no use to pray for him. He's too far gone. I hope we shall never see him nor hear from him again. He has caused us trouble enough!"

"Well, it may be you are right. It is hard, and I am sorry for you. But I feel that I ought to pray for that man, and I guess I will." The rag buyer went away, and they never saw him again, nor thought much about him. A few weeks later that long degraded husband put in his appearance, a sober, clean man. They at first repelled him, scorned him, did not believe in him. But he told his simple story, as best he could, how one day a strange feeling came over him, how he was made to see his old and wasted life, how the hopeless future loomed black and threatening, how all his wasted years passed before his vision, and a voice seemed to speak to him calling away from the old life to a newer and better one, and how the change had come. Now, he wanted once more to be united with his family, wanted to provide for them and be a father to them. After much pleading he was partially believed, and then as he proved his better life, that confidence grew, and he was once more restored to love and trust. When questioned as to the time of this change, these better promptings, it was learned that it coincided with the time of the visit of the rag buyer, that nameless young man who felt "prompted to pray" for the one he had never seen.

To-day that is a happy, united family. The man is a sober, industrious man. Peace and plenty reign there. The father still works in the neighboring State, but is home at stated periods, and the welcome he gets is a most hearty one, and the wife and children are proud of the husband and father. Truly God's arm is not shortened that it cannot save, nor is His ear heavy that it cannot hear.—Ram's Horn.

An Excellent Fashion.

It is an exceedingly good thing that the fashion of decorating rooms with a multitude of articles of value or alleged prettiness is passing away and there is a distinct tendency to do away with cumbering the house with useless articles. Most of our readers have probably been entertained in households that illustrated the former fashion. When you were ushered to your bedroom and the door was shut, you had a strong temptation to sweep the bric-a-brac from the mantel and the bureau and throw it, with the cardboard, paper and worsted decorations, out of the window. You could not lay down your hair-brush on the bureau without removing baskets or photographs or china, and the longer you looked at the whole dreadful array the more doubtful you became whether the vision of useless bric-a-brac would not pursue you all night and you were glad to blow out the lamp and secure darkness. And yet it is for just these things that people used to spend their time and money and then women would break down nervously through the strain of dusting and caring for them. Good riddance to the fashions that compelled one to clutter up his house in these ways! We have learned that instead of decorating our houses with pretty and useful things, the useful things should be so beautiful that we do not need things simply for beauty. This is a lesson that has several applications.—The Watchman.

Thoughts for the Thoughtful.

If thou doill, the joy fades, not the pains:
If well, the pain doth fade, the joy remains.
—George Herbert.

* * *

Tribulation is the price we pay for the crown and the robe and the palm.—Bishop Hurst.

* * *

The flower of contentment does not require any particular soil, and blooms the twelve months through.

* * *

If we were to keep a record of all the good things the Lord gives us we should be as busy as the recording angel.

* * *

So long as we love we serve; so long as we are loved by others I would almost say that we are indispensable; and no man is useless while he has a friend.—Robert Louis Stevenson.

* * *

He knows the bitter, weary way.
The needless striving by the way.
The souls that weep, the souls that pray—
He knows!

He knows: O heart take up the cross.
And know earth's treasures are but dross.
And He will prove as gain our loss!
He knows!

—Martin Longfellow.

* * *

Heaven assures us that "the merciful man doeth good to his own soul." He who is forgiving and affectionate with his fellow-man is not only a blessing to his fellow, but becomes a blessing to himself as well.

* * *

The Christian who enjoys ten thousand blessings from to-day, and yet feels no special gratitude for them, would do well to examine his heart most closely in order to see whether he is really in the faith or not.—Wesleyan Advocate.

* * *

Exercise faith and it will grow. If conscious of weak faith, do not be discouraged, but try a more perfect obedience and a more active service. Trusting increases trust. Confidence is a general that leads one forward in life's conflict to victory.

* * *

Everlasting arms of love
Are beneath, around, above:
God it is who bears us on,
His the arm we lean upon.
He, our ever-present guide,
Faithful is, whate'er betide;
Gladly, then, we journey on,
With His arm to lean upon.

* * *

The temper of the mind in which we meet the hundred and one tiny circumstances of every hour determines our happiness or unhappiness far more than does the detail of what those circumstances are. We cannot choose the circumstances, but we can choose the temper.—Lucy H. M. Soulsby.

Do not be troubled because you have not great virtues. God made a million spears of grass where He made no tree. The earth is fringed and carpeted, not with forests, but with grasses. Only have enough of little virtues and common fidelities, and you need no mourn because you are neither a hero nor a saint.

At times the best way to progress is to stand still. An ocean steamer, caught in a fog in a dangerous channel, wisely drops its anchor and waits. To every life comes times when it should simply stand still and wait. To go backward is needless; to go forward is rash. Just to be still and see what God will do is often highest faithfulness, and it is always the hardest duty. Waiting is a severer test of faith than working.

Silently the work of our lives goes on. It proceeds without intermission and all that has been done is the undestructive for that which is to be done. Young man and maiden, take heed to the work of your hands. You do not leave behind you because you forget it. It passes away from you apparently, but it does not pass away in reality. Every stroke, every single element abides, and there is nothing that grows so fast as character.

Our Boys and Girls

Gossip Town.

Have you ever heard of Gossip Town,
On the shores of Falsehood Bay,
Where old Dame Rumor, with rustling gown,
Is going the live-long day?
It isn't far to Gossip Town,
For people who want to go;
The Idleness Train will take you down
In just an hour or so.

The Thoughtless Road is a popular route,
And most folks start that way;
But it's steep down grade, if you don't look out
You'll land in Falsehood Bay.
You glide through the Valley of Vicious Talk,
And into the Tunnel of Hate:
Then, crossing the Add-to Bridge, you walk
Right into the city gate.

—Selected.

How Bob Found a Home.

Bob crawled out of the old sugar hogshead in which he had spent the night, stretched his cramped limbs, and began to cast about for his breakfast, for he realized that there was an imperative "want advertisement" hidden under his ragged jacket. There was a certain barrel in an alley where the employes of a big laundry were won't to bestow the remains of their cold lunches, but that was several blocks away. Then there was a restaurant where he had a "cinch" with one of the waiters, who used to give him a bag of broken victuals now and then. But he had been out of favor with him ever since an unlucky snow-ball, aimed at a passing vehicle, had hit the waiter in the ear. Bob leaned against the wall with his hands in his pockets and shoulders up to his ears, apparently watching the proceedings of a lost cur on the opposite side of the street, but really studying up a scheme for securing at least an overripe apple or two from the Italian fruit vendor on the corner. Just then he heard his name called.

"Bob! oh, Bob! look here."

It was Nannie O'Brien, at the head of a group of ragged children, all talking at once. Her blue eyes were dancing.

"Here's a big banana, an' you can have half of it, Bob. Jimmy swined it from the wagon when the man wasn't lookin'. Hes got some more, too."

"Gee, Nan! Gimmie it, quick. I'm hungrier'n a bear. I was just figgerin' how I c'd hold up that dago over there fer an apple or sunthin'."

Half a banana does not go a long ways toward filling an empty stomash, especially if its owner has sunned and dined but sparingly the day before. Bob moved a little way from the group of which Jimmie was the centre. He was no hero, but just a common boy, and he felt that he would be unequal to the task of again dividing his banana should the supply fail to go round. If he had not done so perhaps there would have been no story to tell, for it was this turn that brought him face to face with Miss Gowan. Miss Gowan was a deaconess whose special business that morning had been to look after a family of motherless children down on DeKoven Street.

Something—it might have been the hungry look with which Bob regarded his banana before he took the first bite—made her pause. Bob knew a deaconess by sight. Hadn't one of them taken care of Si Walsh's mother when she was sick last winter, and told Si's father where he could get a job? And hadn't any number of good things come to pass in Tim Stratey's home since one of "them wimmen wi' the white bunnit'strings" had been going there? So Bob was prepared to meet Miss Gowan's advances cordially and answer her questions truthfully—more especially as no equivocation occurred to him that was half as sympathy-compelling as the plain facts. His mother was dead since last winter. His father "didn't work." The deaconess respected his reticence on the subject and forbore to press the question of paternal responsibility. Bob on his own confession was a "skipper-out." He hadn't slept in a house for six weeks. His food he "picked up."

Would he like to go to a good home in the country, where were a lot of other children, if the deaconess could arrange it? But the "lot of other children" roused Bob's suspicions.

"Aw—it's a 'Sylum or Reform School, or sunthin'" he demurred, edging off.

"No; it's not a Reform School. You're not shut up at all. It's just a big, beautiful home where a great many boys and girls who haven't any other home can live. Sometimes after awhile they go to real homes with a father and mother of their own. There's enough to eat, and a place under the trees to play, and a bathtub almost big enough to go swimming in—"

"Did yer say I c'd go?" inquired Bob, evidently growing interested.

"I'm not sure, but I think it could be arranged. I was expecting to take two other children who have been provided for by their friends. So I think they could take you."

So Bob hesitatingly consented to allow it to be "arranged." A week later saw him a member of the big "family," and DeKoven Street knew him no more.

It was hard to give up the lawless freedom of the street Arab——he was a little bewildered by the new code of ethics that forbade "swiping" and made lying a disgrace, even if you were not caught at it. But on the whole Bob decided that it "would do." He liked the certainty of three meals a day, the comfortable bed, and the sense that in some small degree at least he "belonged somewhere." In short, Bob was soon making a good record for himself, both at home and at school.

A few months later an opportunity came for Bob to try his chances in a country home with a prospect of being adopted into the family. He shall tell the sequel in his own words. This is a letter received from him by the deaconess mother of the big flock at the "Home, spelled with a capital H:"

My Dear Friend:—I will try and write you a letter to let you know that I am well, and I like my new home very much. I have a new suit of clothes and three new shirts. I have a papa and mamma and a sister Dora. I have a new can and a new knife. I have forty-three cents. My new papa works every day. He is a very kind man. We have a cow. I have a wagon and a ball. How are all the children? How is Johnny Wallace and Tom Scott getting along? Now, I wil clothes for this time.

From your loving friend,

BOB.

P. S.—I have a new necktie and a Sunday hat.—Children's Advocate.

Grandmother's Birthday.

It is charged by some foreigners who visit this country that Americans are less deferential to the aged than are the people of other countries. It is certain that we might learn something from the simple peasants of the Tyrol in regard to giving to the aged the loving and dutiful homage to which their declining years entitle them. An exchange gives the following from a private letter:

"The morning of our arrival we were awakened by the sound of a violin and flutes under the window, and, hurrying down, we found the little house adorned as for a feast—garlands over the door and wreathing the high chair which was set in state.

"The table was ready covered with gifts, brought by the young people whose music we had heard. The whole neighborhood were kinsfolk, and these gifts came from uncles and cousins in every far off degree. They were very simple, for the donors are poor—knitted gloves, a shawl, a basket of flowers, jars of fruit, loaves of bread; but upon all some little message of love was pinned.

"'Is there a bride in the house?' I asked of my landlord.

"'Ach, nein!' he said. 'We do not make such a bother about our young people. It is our grandmother's birthday.'

"The grandmother, in her spectacles, white apron and high velvet cap, was a heroine all day, sitting in state to receive visits, and dealing out slices from a sweet loaf to all who came. I could not but remember certain grandmothers at home, just as much loved as she, probably, but whose dull, sad lives were brightened by any such pleasure as this, and I thought that we could learn much from these poor mountaineers."—Youth Companion.

Bridle the Tongue.

When I was a lad, there arose a very uncalled for difficulty between two brethren. There was class meeting every Sunday, and if a member missed three consecutive meetings, he was called to account. One Sunday the snow lay deep on the ground, and one brother was absent. "One that was present said: "If Brother ..... has not enough religion to come to class meeting such a day as this, I don't think he has enough to take him over the river Jordan." The absent brother heard of it, and was inordinately incensed, and replied roughly. It became so bad, that they had a church trial, and the absent brother was excluded. He moved far off into another State, and after years, he came back, but would not speak to the other brother, who offered to shake hands. He died in that condition so far as I could hear. Both have been dead many years, and we hope they rest together in heaven.

A word fitly spoken is very good; but silence is sometimes just as good. One inadvertent sentence may have caused a brother's destruction. The above are all facts. How sad! Brethren, let us be very careful in the utterance of our words; for it may be that a word may cause trouble and ruin.

James is good authority on the use of the tongue; but another said, "Let your yea be yea, and your nay be nay."—Exchange.

A Repentant Cat.

A country cat of my acquaintance was much disturbed and excited by the introduction of a tame chipmunk into the household where formerly she had reigned supreme. It was impressed upon her in the most strenuous manner that the intruder should not be molested, and for a few weeks she acquiesced sullenly in its unwelcome presence. Nature, however, has not intended that cats and chipmunks should dwell in amity together. One unlucky afternoon the tiny creature darted tantalizingly across the room. There was a flash, of pursuits, a faint, thin shriek, a dead squirrel lying limp and blood-stained on the carpet. Retribution followed swiftly. The cat was punished, reproached, held over its victim, and finally thrust angrily and ignominiously from the house. She disappeared for two days, and her mistress was beginning to repent her severity, when, on the third morning, she returned, bearing in her mouth a little live chipmunk which she intended, apparently, should take the place of the one she had murdered.—Agnes Repplier.

Are Birds Judges of Music?

It may well be doubted if birds are musical connoisseurs, or have anything like human appreciation of their own or of each other's songs. My reason for thinking so is this: I have heard a bobolink with a defective instrument so that its song was broken and inarticulate in parts, and yet it sang with as much apparent joy and abandon as any of its fellows. I have also heard a hermit thrush with a similar defect or impediment, and yet it, too, appeared to sing entirely to its own satisfaction.

It would be very interesting to know if these poor singers found mates as readily as their more gifted brothers. If they did, the Darwinian theory of "sexual relation" in such matters, according to which the finer songster would carry off the female, would fall to the ground. Yet it is certain that it is during the mating and breeding season that these "song combats" occur, and the favor of the female would seem to be the matter in dispute. Whether or not it be expressive of actual jealousy or rivalry, we have no other words to apply to it.—John Burroughs, in Harper's Magazine.

A Beautiful Blunder.

It was Children's Day. The white robed primary class sat on the rostrum. As described by the Christian Endeavor World, the main features of the day were recitations of Scripture, a sermon by the pastor from a text given by the primary class, an offering for missions.

Four little boys presented the texts as follows:

"My text is what Jesus said," announced Harold; "Come unto me."

"Mine is a mercy text," said Georgie; "Be kind."

Janie, with a clear voice, quoted as his, "Watch ye."

Tiny Robbie, present at a church service for the first time, forgot the lines he held in his dimpled hand as a reminder of his text, and, carried away by the presence of so many children, he laughed aloud in his joy. As he rose to present his text, he also rose to the occasion; and, waving his small hand, enthusiastically cried, "Consider—consider—the—little children, how—they—grwo!"

The effect was electrical. Both pastor and people also arose to the occasion. The pastor preached on the little children of heathen lands, and the audience responded with a generous offering form issions.—Selected.

For Asthma use CHENEY'S EXPECTORANT.

A HAPPY DRUGGIST.

Mr. W. R. Fountain, of North Carolina says, "I have been selling Tetterine for years, and it comes nearer giving satisfaction than any remedy I have ever sold." Cures all forms of skin diseases.

If your druggist hasn't it, send 50 cents for one box to J. T. Shuptrine, Savannah, Ga.

Situations. Address WILBUR R. SMITH, LEXINGTON, KY. FOR CIRCULAR OF THE "Cheapest and best College."

COMMERCIAL COLLEGE OF KY. UNIVERSITY

Prepares to thousands of successful graduates. Cost to complete Full Business Course, including Tuition, Books and Board, about $90. Phonography, Type-Writing and Telegraphy taught. Address WILBUR R. SMITH, Lexington, Ky.

Womans Foreign Missionary Society

Please send all communications for this Department to Mrs. B. F. Dixon, Raleigh, N. C.

Officers of the W. F. M. S. of the N. C. Conference, June, 1903-'04.

President—Mrs. Lucy A. Cunninggim, Greensboro, N. C.
Vice-President—Mrs. R. A. Willis, Littleton, N. C.
Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. F. D. Swindell, Goldsboro, N. C.
Recording Secretary—Miss Blanche Fentress, Wilmington, N. C.
Treasurer—Mrs. B. B. Adams, Four Oaks, N. C.
Superintendent and Treasurer Juvenile Work—Mrs. L. M. Hendren, New Berne, N. C.

Let our sisters of the Raleigh District keep the date—October 29, 30—of the District Meeting in mind; and pray for the presence and blessing of the Holy Spirit on that occasion.

The Home Mission Society of Edenton Street Church, is having fine meetings every afternoon this week, in conducting the "week of prayer" services. Although a month in advance, our sisters of the Foreign Societies should be planning and praying for their daily meetings of prayer.

By the absence of any items of news from our Auxiliaries, Lady Managers and others from whom we had hoped to hear this week, we may safely conclude that the seed sown during the past weeks is quietly, but surely, germinating, and in a short time will fill our column with an opulent harvest.

An article from the pen of Rev. H. W. Pope, entitled "Saving Souls Through Others," will be enjoyed by those interested in mission work. Read these selections from it: In time of war, when men are drafted for military service, it is customary for those who can not go in person, to send a substitute. The military wars of this nation, we trust, are all over; but another war is on, and the Captain of our salvation has issued a call for help. His aim is the conquest of the world, and his command is, "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature."

Of course we cannot all go to heathen lands and preach the Gospel, but if we cannot go, ought we not try to send a substitute? The writer knows a man who at one time was supporting twelve different missionaries in various parts of the world. His business was raising flowers for the market, but it was a great satisfaction to him to think that though he could not devote much time to Christian work, he was practically preaching the Gospel in a dozen different lands and languages.

I was once preaching in a Connecticutt city on a very stormy afternoon. The congregation was necessarily small as the rain poured down in torrents.

In the course of the sermon I said that any Christian, with a little sacrifice and a good deal of prayer, could easily have a representative in a foreign field. Not a regular missionary such as the boards send out, but one of those native preachers who has been trained in the schools of the missionaries, and who can be supported for twenty-five or thirty dollars a year.

He can know his name and where he works, and once or twice a year he can hear concerning his work. When he retires at night he can have the satisfaction of knowing that his substitute, on the other side of the globe, is just beginning his work for the day, and that in this way he is really working twenty-four hours a day for the Master.

I made no appeal for money or missions, but two men in the congregation were so impressed with the idea of having a substitute, that they gave me each a check for the amount, and the next year they renewed the investment.

The next place I visited, I threw out the same suggestion, and two others brought me money for a worker. One of them was a young lady who had saved up the money to attend a national Christian Endeavor Convention.

When she found that this amount would support a man a whole year in India, she decided that she would not go to the convention, but would take a substitute instead.

She did so; and her society decided that they would send a delegate to the convention and pay all expenses, and looking around for a suitable person, they selected her as their delegate. In this way she attended the convention, and had a substitute to preach for her a whole year besides.

A young man, who was working for twenty dollars a month, took a substitute in India. He was so pleased that he took another in China, and then one in Africa.

He went on hiring substitutes until he had six, I think, and counting their time at twelve hours per day, he was working eighty-four hours for the Lord. He also interested other people in the same work, and persuaded forty-four of them to take a substitute.

In other words, this farmer lad, twenty-three years old, was the means of putting fifty workers in the foreign field, their salaries paid a year in advance.

It is easy enough to sing, "O, for a thousand tongues to sing, my great Redeemer's praise," but this young man hustled around and secured the tongues; and at that rate, he will have more than a thousand tongues to sing the Redeemer's praise before he dies. He is a missionary society within himself.

Most missionary boards have under their care native converts who have given their lives to the ministry of the Gospel. Some are Bible readers, who go from house to house, reading and explaining the Word of God. Others are evangelists. Others, still, are pastors of churches. Twenty-five dollars a year will support a Bible reader, and fifty dollars will maintain a pastor or evangelist.

A THOUGHTFUL MAN.

M. M. Austin, of Winchester, Ind., knew what to do in the hour of need. His wife had such an unusual case of stomach and liver trouble, physicians could not help her. He thought of and tried Dr. King's New Life Pills and she got relief at once and was finally cured. Only 25 cents at all druggists.

..Dobbin & Ferrall..

(AT TUCKER'S STORE)

Raleigh, N. C.

BRIDAL OUTFITS.

We are fully prepared to furnish a complete Trousseau. Every detail absolutely correct. No better materials can be furnished anywhere, and our dress makers are the best in the world—a broad statement but fully true. It is far better to have the customers come to our store making the trip to Raleigh. Write us if you cannot come in person. You will be given perfect attention. . . . . .

Our Prices are Lower Than Other Stores.

DOBBIN & FERRALL

123 and 125 Fayetteville St.

Woman's Home Mission Society

Please send all communications for this Department to Mrs. R. O. BURTON, Raleigh, N. C.

Officers of W. H. M. S. of the N. C. Conference.

President—Mrs. J. E. Underwood, Elizabeth City.
First Vice-President—Mrs. V. Royster, Raleigh.
Second Vice-President—Mrs. K. P. Black, Littleton.
Third Vice-President—Mrs. J. A. Spiers, Selma.
Recording Secretary—Mrs. C. P. Jerome, West Durham.
Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. S. H. Scott, New Bern.
Treasurer—Mrs. E. L. Prince, Wilmington.
Superintendent of Supplies—Mrs. Ivan Proctor, Raleigh.
Superintendent of Literature and Press Work—Mrs. R. O. Burton.

Corresponding Secretary's Report for Second Quarter.

Adult members 823; juvenile members, 76; meetings held during quarter, 64; average attendance during quarter, 247; members added to Baby Roll, 8; subscribers to Our Homes, 232; taking Home Mission Reading Course, 27; adult mite-boxes in use, 39; baby mite-boxes in use, 149; pledged to tithing, 20; boxes supplies sent off, 1; papers and leaflets distributed, 617; visits made to sick and strangers, 815; cottage prayer meetings held, 15; garments in good order distributed, 240; needy assisted, 98; auxiliaries contributing to connectional enterprises, 1; auxiliaries sending no reports, 11.

MRS. S. H. SCOTT,
Conference Cor. Sec.

Treasurer's Report for Second Quarter.

Raleigh District.—Adult dues, $36.50; juvenile dues, $4.20; baby roll membership, $.75; mite-box brigade, $1.35; baby mite-boxes, $1.27; Conference expense fund, $4.00.—$48.07.

Durham District.—Dues $6.95; Conference expense fund, $1.50.—$8.45.

Warrenton District.—Adult dues, $21.25; Brevard School, $17.00; Mite-Box Brigade, $9.80; Adult Mite-Box, $.15; Baby Mite-Boxes, $2.59; Conference Expense Fund, $.45.—$51.24.

New Bern District.—Juvenile Dues, $1.00; Adult Dues, $34.40; Baby Roll membership, $.50; Baby Mite Boxes, $5.20.—$41.10.

Wilmington District.—Dues, $33.49; Brevard School, $36.46; Mite-Box Brigade, $1.85; Conference Expense Fund, $2.00.—$73.80.

Washington District.—Dues, $12.65; Baby Roll membership, $2.51; Mite-Box Brigade, $5.89; Baby Mite-Boxes, $.25.—$21.30.

Elizabeth City District.—Dues, $17.60; Baby Roll membership, $1.05; Mite-Box Brigade, $2.20; Baby Mite-Boxes, $.45; Conference Expense Fund, $1.20.—$22.50.

Total from Auxiliaries, $266.46; from Mr. Humble for Brevard School, $10.00. Grand total, $276.46.

MRS. E. L. PRINCE,
Conference Treasurer.

Leading Auxiliaries of Second Quarter.

Lake Landing sent largest amount to Conference Treasurer.

Kinston contributed largest amount to local work, also made the largest number of visits and distributed most literature.

Wilmington gained the largest increase of members—15.

New Bern added largest number of subscribers to Our Homes—8.

LaGrange had the best average attendance, but that of Lake Landing almost equalled it, while Wilmington's was also fine, the average being 51.

Congratulations.

Hearty congratulations are extended to these auxiliaries for their fine records; it is especially gratifying to note that Kinston is distinguished in three points, while Lake Landing and Wilmington each gained honor in two. May the blessed service continue, and may all our members be stirred to redoubled effort.

Sincere Regrets.

But along with our rejoicings there are regrets because of the auxiliaries which sent no reports. Our Corresponding Secretary failed to hear from 11, while our Treasurer writes that 14 neglected to report to her. Sister officers, why is this? I cannot believe that it is lack of interest in the business of our King. I beg you not to allow this to occur again. In case of sickness, or other interruptions that come to us all at times, get some other members to take your places; let us not fail to be the faithful, intelligent and responsible women this work requires.

"You Can't Cheat God."

Ned took his cousin Grace to keep him company while he worked at a job he had to perform.

"I don't think you are doing your work very well," she said. "It looks to me as though you were slighting it."

"That's all right," laughed Ned. "What I'm doing will be all covered up, you know."

"But isn't that cheating?"

"Maybe 'tis, after a fashion," answered Ned; "but it isn't like most cheating, you know."

"That's not the way to look at it," said Grace. "If it's cheating, it's cheating; you know that. You can't excuse it because it isn't the worst kind of cheating."

"But the man don't know about it," said Ned.

"He may not," said Grace," soberly, "but God will. You can't cheat God."

Ned stopped work, and went to thinking. Presently he said: "You're right. I'm glad you said that, Grace. I'm going to begin over. There shan't be any cheating this time.

Ned undid what he had begun, and began again—began right—and I am sure he felt better. I hope he will always remember that no one can cheat God.—Herald and Presbyter.

A GREAT SENSATION.

There was a big sensation in Leesville, Ind., when W. H. Brown of that place, who was expected to die, had his life saved by Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. He writes: "I endured insufferable agonies from Asthma, but your New Discovery gave me immediate relief and soon thereafter effected a complete cure. Similar cures of Consumption, Pneumonia, Bronchitis and Grip are numerous. It's the peerless remedy for all throat and lung troubles. Price 50 cents and $1.00. Guaranteed by all druggists. Trial bottles free.

A beautiful Bible in reach of all

NO MONEY NEEDED

All you need is to send to us for 12 copies of THE AMERICAN ILLUSTRATED METHODIST MAGAZINE. Sell them to friends at price of 15c a copy, return the $1.80 collected, and we will send you by return mail, absolutely free, our beautiful Holman Teachers' Bible, bound in morocco, helps, maps, 32 full page illustrations, 4000 questions and answers on Old and New Testaments. You will be delighted with it, as all our customers are.

Our magazine was never more attractive and popular; it sells quickly. Pastors and S. S. Teachers may order Bible for examination to be returned at our expense if not earned.

THE METHODIST PUB. CO., 1142 Locust St., St. Louis, Mo.

Raleigh Christian Advocate.

ORGAN OF THE
North Carolina Conference, M. E. Church, South.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY AT No. 108 W. MARTIN STREET.

THOMAS N. IVEY, - - - - - - - Editor.

Subscription Rates.—One year, $1.50; six months, 75 cents. Preachers of the North Carolina Conference who act as agents receive the paper free of charge. All other preachers, and widows of preachers, $1.00 a year.

Business.—Watch the label. It shows the date up to which the subscription has been paid. Change in label serves as a receipt. Regular receipt will be sent when requested. When the address is ordered changed, both old and new address must be given. Address all letters, and make all checks and money orders payable, to the Raleigh Advocate Co.

Manuscripts.—All matter for publication to be returned to the writer must be accompanied by proper postage. Matter for the Editor and matter for the printer must not be on the same sheet. Obituaries must not contain over 150 words, nor contain poetry. One cent a word will be charged for all obituary matter over 150 words.

Advertising.—The RALEIGH CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE is a fine advertising medium. Rates will be promptly furnished on application.

The World As We See It.

Niagara can no longer claim the supremacy of a waterfall. The Commissioner of Mines from the Republic of Argentina says that the Iguaza on the boundary between Brazil and Argentena, is the largest waterfall in the world. It is sixty feet higher than Nigara Falls, and the stream is twice as large as the Niagara River, pouring 28,000,000 feet of water per minute over a precipice 210 feet high. The stream at the falls is 13,123 feet wide.

The Atlantic and North Carolina Railroad now sells tickets to Beaufort, N. C. It also issues through bills of lading for freight to and from Beaufort. The Howland Improvement Company, lessee of the Atlantic and North Carolina Railroad, is certainly proving a benefactor to the State in many ways. Beaufort, though only a few miles across the water from Morehead City, has been a town apart. The town has suffered considerably on account of not being able to obtain satisfactory freight rates. Now it will be different. We prophesy that the new arrangement will put new life into the old town.

No matter what criticism may be brought against the present administration for the way in which the Panama Canal enterprise has come into possession of the United States, it is a matter of pleasure to all loyal and progressive citizens that work on the canal is progressing in a satisfactory manner. Surveying parties are at work in the vicinity of Colon preparing for an inner harbor. The lines of the French Company are being straightened, reservoirs are being constructed, and sewerage systems are being prepared. Steam shovels, lumber and railroad ties have been purchased. Over twelve hundred laborers are at work. Very soon the Isthmus from ocean to ocean will be a scene of activity which will cheer the heart of the civilized world.

Bishop H. C. Potter, at the Triennial Convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church in Boston, made a speech on industrial problems, and claimed that the complete democratization of the church is necessary, as caste in the church means the alienation of working people. The problem is an old one. There is hardly a city patsor who has not dreamed of it by day and wrestled with it at night. To destroy caste, a professional fraternaization has proven worse than ineffective, as the sensitiveness of human nature recoils at anything that looks like patronage. Bishop Potter is right in saying that the democratization of the church must come before the Gospel can be triumphant. He essayed to solve the liquor problem in New York City by suggesting, fostering, and dedicating the Subway Tavern. Now will he suggest some plan by which the democratization of the church may take place?

The North Carolina State Fair is in full blast this week. The attendance is all that could be desired. This popular institution seems to be in the heart of the people all over the State. It is difficult to understand why some people cannot see that there is a necessity for such an institution. It is necessary to show to the people of the State the measurement of progress in the different lines of industry and endeavor. A State Fair is something like a cemetery in that both show in the way in which they are kept the appreciation of the people—in the case of the former, of the material life of the State, and in the case of the latter, of the dead who have been laid away. It is a very poor State that does not support a fair.

There has loomed up lately before the eyes of the American people a very interesting personage. His name is Robert La Follette, Governor of Wisconsin. His character is singularly interesting. He is a man in politics who swears to his own hurt and changes not. He is honest to the core. He makes a fair fighter and a firm friend. His history for the last decade or more reads like a romance. His honesty and high purpose have brought to him several political defeats and many victories. He estranged this year what is known as the stalwart element of his party. This element, disregarding the State ticket of which La Follette is the head, put out a ticket of its own. The matter came up before the Supreme Court, which has given La Follette another victory in the decision rendered a few days ago that the La Follette ticket is the one that represents the party. The public will watch with deep interest the outcome of La Follette's fight with the wild beasts at Enhesus.

The whole world was interested, if not startled, last week by the announcement that General Kuropatkin of the Russian Manchurian army had assumed the aggressive and had moved three columns of his great army against the Japanese army between Mukden and Liao Yang. This aggressive movement was inspired by several conditions and circumstances. First, the Russian army had been considerably reinforced since its retreat to Mukden. Secondly, the Russian soldiers, their pride being stung by a succession of Japanese victories, determined to force the issue and gain at least one victory. Thirdly, there was, undoubterly, some pressure from St. Petersburg on General Kuropatkin to free Manchuria from Japanese domination and hasten to the relief of Port Arthur.

* * *

The advance of the Russian army was ill-advised and terminated fatally for the Russian army. For six successive days the Russian divisions were hurled against the Japanese, only to be hurled back in a complete rout. In these battles, the Russians lost probably as many as 40,000 men. The Japanese loss was much smaller. The latest news is to the effect that General Kuropatkin will make good his retreat . It seems, difficult to believe, however, that he can save his army which has suffered so disastrously. The Japanese having been reinforced lately, are in much better condition for following up their last victory than when they retired as victors from the battlefield of Liao Yang. When Port Arthur falls, there will be still stronger reinforcement of the Japanese army.

* * *

It seems now as if the nations must interfere in the name of humanity to stop this war. The Japanese have evinced their superiority from the beginning, both on sea and land. They have not lost a single fight. They have acquired that for which they went to war. They have both Korea and Manchuria. Russia is already badly whipped, and, as we see it, there is no possible chance for her. For Russia to continue to send her armies to Manchuria is to send them to certain slaughter—slaughter such as the world has never seen. The Japanese are trained fighters. They shoot with remarkable precision. They know warfare from beginning to end. They are acquainted with the most modern methods. It has been demonstrated that an inferior force of Japanese can whip a superior force of Russians on the latter's own ground. The Russian soldier is simply a puppet moved by a force in St. Petersburg. This force cares nothing, it seems, for the slaughter of Russian soldiers. Such scenes as were enacted last week in the battle of Mukden sickens the whole world. It seems that the civilized nations of the world must intervene.

SOME NEW LITERATURE.

Rev. James W. Shearer, of Delaware, New Jersey, is the arthor of The Harmonized and Subject Reference Testament. It is the King Jane's version and a harmonized edition. It is well supplied with maps and other helps. From the somewhat limited perusal of the volume, we are prepared to say that it will prove of great benefit to students of the New Testament. The author shows a commendable knowledge not only of the New Testament, but of the principles of teaching. The book is printed by the Subject Reference Company, Delaware, New Jersey. Price, $1.50.

* * *

Dr. Louis Albert Banks, as a writer of books, has an enviable reputation. His latest work, "The Religious Life of Famous Americans," and published by the American Tract Society, will prove a worthy addition to our American religious literature. In pleasing style, Dr. Banks treats the religious views of a large number of public men, beginning with Abraham Lincoln and closing with Benjamin Harrison. In this volume, Dr. Banks dissipates many erroneous opinions concerning some of our great men. The whole work will prove stimulating and spiritually healthful to the reader who seeks to grow in grace. Price, $1.25.

* * *

The publishing firm of Hinds & Noble, New York City, have lately published two books which will prove interesting and valuable to every person whose duties call them to the platform or pulpit. One is "How to Use the Voice in Reading or Speaking," by Ed. Arnherst Ott, Principal of the Drake School of Oratory. Price, $1.25. The other is "How to Attract and Hold an Audience," by J. Berg Esenmein, A. M., Lit. D., Professor of the English Language and Literature in the Pennsylvania Military College. Price, $1.00. Both books should be read by every preacher, lawyer, and teacher.

O God, Thou knowest what is the battle with each one. Wilt Thou help every one of us to gain victories in his own place and over his own nature? May we not be weary in well-doing; may none of us feel as though it were too long a strife, or too hard too bear.

The effective life and the receptive life are one. No sweep of arm that does some work for God, but harvests, also some more of the truth of God, and sweeps it into the treasury of life—Phillips Brooks.

As one who lived far inland day by day,
And knew in legend only or in dream
The open Deep, yet ere he passed away
Went down at last by rill and widening stream,
And, tottering to a cliff, beheld the Sea,
And woke to life's more luminous lost sweep
And in his one hour asked regretfully
To slumber there beside that alien Deep—
So I, God grant, who sometimes hear above
Earth's din the Sea, and through this restless sleep
Have caught thin momentary echoes of Life's better things, and my poor broken dreams
Of Beauty known, shall some day yet with love
Of wider visions follow Hope's thin streams,
And ere the twilight falls shall humbly creep,
By many paths where many sorrows wend,
Out to the last lone headland, and there sleep
By my belated Ocean, in the end!

—Arthur Stringer, in Ainslee's.

Methodist Mention

STATE.

The Era's business for the month just closed is the largest ever done in September.

Sheriff B.G. Credle, of New Bern, was in appreciated visitor on yesterday. He speaks in glowing terms of New Bern Methodism.

Rev. D. H. Comann, of Lenoir, a member of the Western North Carolina Conference, is conducting revival services in Durham, and according to the Durham Sun, is preaching some effective sermons.

The members of Main Street Church, Durham, with their accustomed generosity, gave Rev. W. L. Cunninggim and wife a trip to the World's Fair. The pastor and his wife and sister very much enjoyed the trip.

Signor Carlo Mora, Professor of Music in Greensboro Female College, has been elected organist of West Market Street Church in this city. He succeeds Mrs. John S. Michaux, who has filled that position admirably for several years past.—N. C. Christian Advocate.

If you need our Methodist literature send to the Southern Methodist Book Depository, Staunton, Va. This firm is the regular representative of the Nashville Publishing House and offers splendid bargains. It was endorsed by our Conference at Goldsboro. Read their ad. in this issue.

Rev. R. E. Hunt, P. C., South Rocky Mount, writes: "Closed a meeting at South Rocky Mount last Tuesday night. Brother Bundy led me; in fact, did most of the preaching. As a result, there were about eight or nine professions and four accessions. I hope the church was revived."

Rev. M. L. Hooper, a worthy local preacher, called to see us last week. He is a traveling salesman, but he manages to do a great deal of effective work in revival services. He is earnest, able and consecrated, and is willing to help any brother who may need him in a meeting. His home is in Charlotte, N. C.

We clip this from the Goldsboro Argus: "The revival services at the St. John Church is growing in interest and attendance. The pastor, Rev. H. B. Anderson, is conducting the services, and is preaching some soul-stirring sermons that are sure to result in much good. He is an earnest, faithful worker, and is exerting every possible effort in trying to lead sinners to repentance and point out to them the road that leads to life eternal."

Arrangements have been made to have an inter-society debate at Trinity College December 17th. Preliminary contests will be held in each Society to select speakers for the debate. The question is: Resolved, "That the franchise laws of the Southern States should not by their terms or method of execution provide means for discrimination between the races, but that they should exclude from the right of suffrage all persons of both races who cannot read and write."

The worthy patriarch in North Carolina Methodism, G. W. T. Averitt, who is seventy-nine years old, and who has been taking the Advocate since it started away back in the 50's, sends his renewal and adds these pathetic words: "I have been begging the good Lord to take me out of this world and let me be at rest. But He is not ready yet, and He knows best. I am willing to do His will. I reckon this is the last letter you will ever have to try to read from me. The dear old Advocate gets better and better all the while. I hope to see you in heaven. May God bless you and the dear old Advocate and all its readers. So good-bye." May God bless this dear old saint and give him many more days, and may his last days be the brightest.

CONNECTIONAL.

A cablegram from Dr. W. R. Lambuth to the Mission Rooms says that he will sail for home the 12th.

Bishop Galloway writes from Japan that the work of missions was never more promising than at present.

Dallas, Texas, will ask for the next International League Conference. It is the turn of South to have it.

The Arkansas Methodist of the present week reports six hundred and eighteen converts from different parts of the State.

The new editors of the Arkansas Methodist, in fitting up their new editorial offices, have provided a bath tub for their visiting "brethering."

Rev. John M. Moore, of the Joint Hymnal Commission, writes the Texas Advocate that the new hymn book cannot appear before April 1, 1905.

Rev. P. L. Cobb, well-known in North Carolina, has been changed from Monterey to the City of Mexico by Bishop Candler. The best success go with him. His good work in Holston abides.

The Young Men's Christian Association will endeavor to establish work along the line of the Panama Canal to reach the army of young men that will be employed thereon. It will also try to found an association in the city of Panama.

Bishop Keener has returned to the city from his summer home at Ocean Springs. We have not had an opportunity of seeing him or learning of his health, but we judge by the steadiness with which he holds his pen that he has gained strength during his sojourn on the coast.—New Orleans Advocate.

Union Station Methodist Church, of Richmond, Va., is celebrating this week the fiftieth year of its organization. The exercises will last from October 2 to 9, and the ex-pastors, five of whom are living, will be present and take part in the program. Dr. J. C. Kilgo will speak on Sunday. Rev. R. N. Maxey is pastor, and is pushing the work very energetically.—Baltimore-Richmond Christian Advocate

Dr. Burrows, of the Midland Methodist, is by all past tokens, a meek and reasonable man, but the bow is too much bent at times, and it cannot stand the strain. This explains why he inveighed so earnestly in the last issue of his paper against the member of a choir, who was guilty lately of tuning his old fiddle while the guileless preacher was reading the Scripture lesson; also against the fellow, who, probably during the same service, used the heating register for a cuspidore. You may depend on Dr. Burrows for crying out against the Philistines.

The last issue of the Western Christian Advocate, published at Ardmore, Ind. T., contains accounts in the regular news letter from its Conference territory of ten gracious revivals. The number of conversions is not given in every case, but probably aggregates two hundred and fifty to three hundred. No Conference in the connection surpasses the Indian Mission in vigor, progressiveness, evangelistic power, and zeal. Much is being done in it for the promotion of work among the young people, and its membership includes several of the most ardent advocates of the League.

If one should give me a dish of sand and tell me there were particles of iron in it, I might look for them with my eyes and search for them with my clumsy fingers, and be unable to detect them; but let me take a magnet and sweep through it, and how it would draw to itself the most invisible particles by the mere power of attraction! The unthankful heart, like my finger in the sand, discovers no mercies; but let the thankful heart sweep through the day, as the magnet finds the iron, so it will find in every hour some heavenly blessings, only the iron in God's sand is gold.—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

General Notes

The third Eucharistic Congress of the Catholic Church in the United States met last week in New York.

American Mormon missionaries have been expelled from Hungary on the ground that their doctrine is hostile to the best interests of both church and State.

The China Inland Mission is an undenominational enterprise, now thirty-six years old. On a single day recently the mission had thirty-six recruits for stations in Central China.

The Young Men's Christian Association is making steady progress and is increasing in usefulness. Last year there was an increase of seventy-seven Associations and of over 23,000 members.

The first presbytery of the Associated Reformed Presbyterian Church, in session at Steele Creek, N. C., has voted against the proposition to unite with the United Presbyterian Church. The vote stood 36 to 34.

The first direct telegraphic communication between the United States and Alaska has been established by the completion of the lines of the Postal Telegraph Company to Juneau, Sitka, Haines Mission, and Skagway, Alaska.

The Rev. R. J. Campbell, M. A., successor in City Temple, London, to Dr. Joseph Parker, adds to his duties as preacher in the world's foremost pulpit the editorship, just assumed, of a new monthly English magazine, the Young Man.

The inauguration of William E. Huntington, S. T. D., as president of Boston University, will take place on Wednesday, October 26, at 10 a. m., in Tremont Temple, Botson. Among the speakers will be Hon. John L. Bates, Governor of Massachusetts.

The Congregationalist says: "President Harper, of the University of Chicago, has been decorated by the Emperor of Germany. He may hereafter wear the order of the Red Eagle of the second-class. Not to be in the first-class must be galling to the Chicago Napoleon of education."

Dowie has parted company with his choirmaster because the latter dared to consult a physician when Elijah's hands had failed to restore him after a spell of illness. The prophet declared illness was only a new kind of sin. Dowie had evidently not yet diagnosed this kind.—Exchange.

The Anglican Bishop of Korea, Dr. Corfe, has resigned, assigning as the chief reason of his action inability to learn the Korean language. He does not any longer desire to impede the progress of the work among the Koreans hence his resignation. We look upon this as being in every sense a noble and Christian thing to do.

Chancellor James R. Day, of Syracuse University, announces the gift from Lyman C. Smith, of Syracuse, N. Y., of an additional building for the Lyman Cornelius Smith College of Applied Science. Mr. Smith four years ago established the school, giving $750,000. The gift adds a model factory building for mining and engineering, and a mechanical laboratory at a cost of more than $100,000.

The American Anti-Saloon League is to hold its annual convention at Columbus, Ohio, this year. The dates are November 16-18, inclusive. The following is a partial list of the talent already engaged for the meeting: Bishop Luther B. Wilson, of Chattanooga, President of the League; Rev. George R. Stuart, of Tennessee; Congressman Charles E. Littlefield, of Maine; Rev. Louis Albert Banks, D. D., of New York; Rev. E. S. Chapman, D. D., of California; Hon. John G. Wooley, of Chicago; Rev. G. W. Young, D. D., of Kentucky, and Rev. Howard H. Russell, D. D., of New York.

NORTH CAROLINA EPWORTH LEAGUE
ALL FOR CHRIST
DEVOTIONAL, CHARITABLE, LITERARY, EVANGELICAL
CONFERENCE
EDITED BY REV. H. B. ANDERSON.

"Our Loftier Brothers, but One in Blood."

The men and women who have best served their day and generation have been those of simple faith and unswerving loyalty to Him who is King of Kings and Lord of Lords, those whose minds have dwelt on the everlasting verities, and the perennial freshness of immortal hope. The day is done when religion is called the delusion of the weak and ignorant, while "the waxfaring man, though a fool, may walk therein."

Ask the critics, both secular and religious, the greatest book ever written, and the majority will answer that holy anthem, that sublime epic, "Paradise Lost," whose author, John Milton, like that of another English bard, Robert Browning, "believed in the soul and was very sure of God."

Benjamin Franklin, at the time when evening shadows gathered about him, said among his last utterances: "Of this Jesus of Nazareth, I have to say, the system of morals he left us are among the best things the world ever knew."

Dr. Benjamin Rush, the great medical scientist, the leading physiologist and anatomist of his day, has left this record of his faith: "The only true and perfect religion is Christianity."

William Gladstone, the greatest intellect of his day, amid the turbulent factions of an eventful life, had that peace which comes to the man whose mind is staid on God. Every Sabbath he went, as a devout worshipper, to the house of the Lord, and, sometimes, at the invitation of the rector, read prayers to the people.

Lord Cairn, the greatest legal adviser of England, followed close in the footsteps of the Master as he spent his vacations preaching the unsearchable riches to the poor, who dwelt amid the barren heaths of his native Scotland.

Of those women who have added lustre to the world's store-house of fame, all, with a few lamentable exceptions—a woman's life "without religion is like a flower without perfume"—have, like Mary of old, poured the alabaster box of love and faith at the feet of the Saviour.

Like soft summer airs and the perfume of evening flowers, the lofty genius of Elizabeth Barrett Browning, steals upon us as we read the noble strains of poetry that came from her pen.

She dwelt apart with God, and had sweet converse with them in the secret place of the Most High. Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, Helen Hunt Jackson were deeply religious, and their writings are imbued with the light of that heavenly home where beyon "these voices there is a peace."

Emma Willard, who was one of the few women that received votes for a place in the Hall of Fame, whose peculiar glory lay in giving impulse to female education, and all those benefactions which shed lustre upon the sacred precincts of home had a profound reverence for religion.

With those in high altitudes of thought, who breathe God's free air, and see His golden light—with all on earth who have been true and sweet and worthy—let Leaguers of fewer gifts walk in the fragrant way that leads to joy supernal.

Notes.

We will be glad to have reports of organizations of new Leagues. What are you doing in this line, brethren? How many new Chapters will you report from your charges at Conference?

* * *

How much have you collected for the League Missionary? Please let the Treasurer or the Fourth Vice-President report to me at once.

* * *

How many Chapters have elected a fourth or missionary Vice-President?

* * *

Drs. Du Bose and Parker have shown by the magazine numbers of the Era the class of paper they will give our young people every week if they show their appreciation of their efforts by a sufficient number of subscribers. Now is the time to push the canvass, as nearly everybody has money. Let the Era agents now push the canvass. All they have to do is to show a magazine number and tell the prospective subscriber that the editors will give such an issue each week as soon as a sufficient number of subscribers have been secured. By a faithful canvass on the part of the agents the required number ought to be secured by December 1st.

* * *

We are pleased to give our readers an article in this issue from the facile pen of the Third Vice-President of the Trinity Chapter, Southport, N. C., "Our Liftier Brothers, But One in Blood." This article gives us some idea of the class of work being done in the third department of that Chapter, since this is one of the papers read at a meeting of that Chapter and was highly appreciated by the members.

THE EXPERIENCE OF ELDER WILSON.—HOW HE WAS CURED OF A BAD CANCER OF THE NOSE AND FACE.

An extract from a letter dated March 17, 1904. * * * I sought the advice of the Dr. D. M. Bye Co., applied their treatment as directed and now in March, 1904, I am well. I am now within a few years of eighty years of age and have no interest in making this statement save the well being of suffering humanity. I cheerfully recommend their treatment to all afflicted.

Elder W. S. Wilson, Seagoville, Tex.

There is absolutely no need of the knife or burning plaster, no need of pain or disfigurement. The Combination Oil Cure for cancers is soothing and balmy, safe and sure. Write for free book to the Originator's Office, Dr. D. M. Bye Co., Box 462, Dallas, Texas.

Text Cards for Home Decoration

on higher finished ivory and dark ground cards, all with silk cord to hang; require no frames. Agents wanted everywhere; liberal discount. GOSPEL PUBLISHING HOUSE, 51 W. 224 St., New York, Room 26.

A MONEY MAKER.

Why remain poor when you can get rich. I have invented a useful little thing that sells for one dollar at sight. The material can be found in every house. Any one can make it in ten minutes. Send me fifteen two cent stamps or thirty cents silver—I will send you full directions for making them. After making them if you should fail to find ready sale for them, send all you have to me and I will send you one dollar each for each one I mean just what I say. Write today. Prompt attention to all letters.
J. K. BUTTS,
Wilmington, N. C.

LOUISIANA

A Land of Promise

is open for you. Grasp this opportunity to reap the reward of industry in fertile Louisiana—the richest alluvial soil in America. A Land of Perpetual Springtime and Flowers.

Don't Waste Time, Money and Efforts on a Poor Farm

This company has a large tract of land in the famous Red River Valley, Avoyelles Parish, La., only 1¼ miles from Marksville, the county seat. It will be divided in to small plantations, and sold on very easy terms—cleared ready for the plow, or with timber standing.

FREE TRANSPORTATION

To All Intending Buyers.

Buy some of this splendid land. It is a rich alluvial formation with virgin top soil from 15 to 30 feet deep. It is no unusual thing for the crops here to yield a profit in one year equal to the original cost of the farm

COTTON, CORN, RICE AND SUGAR CANE

Pay From $25 to $100 Per Acre.

Do Your Acres Pay You as Well Now?

Transportation facilities are unusually good. A RAILROAD IS NOW BEING CONSTRUCTED THROUGH THE HEART OF THE PROPERTY, which connects with trunk lines covering the north, south, east and west. The Shreveport and Red River Valley R. R passes through part of the tract and branches of the Texas and Pacific R. R. are on the south and west. This is a convenient and profitable market is provided for all crops.

To Investigate is to be Convinced.

WANTED: Good, Live, Responsible AGENTS to handle this property.

For further particulars call or write

Land Department Louisiana Construction Co.,

Suite 1004-1008 West End Trust Building, Philadelphia, Pa.

WORLD'S FAIR RATES

VIA

Seaboard Air Line Railway

TO ST. LOUIS, MO., AND RETURN.

On account of the World's Fair, St. Louis, Mo., the Seaboard Air Line Railway, in connection with the C. & O. Route via Richmond and the N. C. & St. L. Route via Atlanta, will sell round trip tickets to St. Louis, Mo., at greatly reduced rates from all stations.

Rates from principal points as follows:

	Season Tickets	60 Day Tickets	15 Day Tickets
Charlotte via Atlanta	$36.10	$30.10	$24.65
Durham via Richmond	38.75	32.30	26.30
Durham via Atlanta	34.10	28.40	23.30
Henderson via Richmond	38.75	32.30	26.30
Henderson via Atlanta	34.10	28.40	23.30
Maxton via Atlanta	38.65	32.25	26.25
Raleigh via Richmond	35.60	29.90	24.80
Raleigh via Atlanta	38.75	32.30	26.30
Hamlet via Richmond	37.60	31.90	26.25
Hamlet via Atlanta	37.60	31.90	26.25
Wilmington via Richmond	38.65	32.25	26.25
Wilmington via Atlanta	38.65	32.25	26.25

LIMIT OF TICKETS—SEASON TICKETS.

Good to leave St. Louis up to December 15, 1904, will be sold daily commencing April 25th.

SIXTY DAY TICKETS.

Good to leave St. Louis up to and including 60 days from date of sale. Will be sold daily commencing April 25th.

FIFTEEN DAY TICKETS.

Good to return up to and including 15 days from date of sale, commencing April 25th, and continuing during the Exposition.

COACH EXCURSION TICKETS.

On May 9th and 23rd, 10-day coach excursion tickets will be sold at very low rates from Raleigh $18.50 via Richmond and $20.80 via Atlanta. Tickets not good in Parlor Sleeping Cars. Tickets good to leave St. Louis including ten days from date of sale.

MILITARY COMPANIES.

Special low rates for Military Companies and Bands.

Quickest schedule, direct routes, first-class coaches and Pullman Sleeping and Dining Car Service.

For further information, call on or address us. Same will be cheerfully furnished.

C. H. GATTIS, T. P. A., Raleigh, N. C.
H. A. MORSON, C. P. & T. A., Raleigh, N. C.

When writing advertisers please mention this paper.

Sunday School

Lesson for October 23, 1904.

Elisha and Naaman.

(2 Kings 5:1-14.)

Golden Text: Heal me, O Lord, and I shall be healed; save me, and I shall be saved. (Jeremiah 17:14.)

The story of Naaman the Syrian is one of the most suggestive incidents recorded in connection with the life of Elisha, and will be found well adapted for conveying lessons of spiritual value to classes of all ages.

Naaman was a great man in the land of Syria, but he was a leper. Though no particulars are given concerning the kind of leprosy with which he was afflicted, nor the length of time he had had the disease, we know that the mere fact of having that dread disease was sufficient to cause Naaman the utmost anxiety.

The Work of a Little Maid.—Too much emphasis cannot be laid upon the part that was played by the little Hebrew maid in directing Naaman to the source whence he might obtain relief from the awful disease with which he was afflicted. She stands as an example of fidelity and helpfulness that will always be worthy of emulation.

A Helpless Sovereign.—The part which the king of Israel plays in this narrative is extremely suggestive. Always suspicious of his Syrian neighbor, he looks upon the letter which Naaman brought from the king of Syria as the probable excuse for a quarrel. Yet had he been in close touch with Elisha the prophet he would have had no anxiety, but would have turned to him immediately for the divine help which was needed to cure Naaman of his leprosy.

A Simple Cure.—The story of Elisha's dealing with Naaman is dramatic in the extreme. Never had the Syrian general experienced such treatment before, and at first he hotly resented the reception which he had received at the hands of the prophet, and despised the directions which Elisha had given for his cure.

Cooler and calmer heads, however, advised a trial of the means which had been prescribed, and when Naaman washed in the Jordan seven times his leprosy departed from him.

Important Truths.—1. Sin is a disease of which even leprosy with all its loathsomeness gives but a faint picture.

2. The only cure for sin is the divine remedy provided by and through the Lord Jesus Christ. Implicit obedience to Christ is the only way of finding pardon for sin. Only the blood of the Redeemer can cleanse us from guilt.

3. However humble our station we may ofttimes direct others to the way of salvation. Boys and girls may often be used as the instruments in God's hands of bringing precious souls to a saving knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.

"A fifty-thousand-dollar schoolhouse," says the Woman's Home Companion, "had been burned to the ground. The tax-payers groaned, for the building was not fully insured. A small boy, looking on the ruins, wept bitterly. 'Why, my little man,' exlained a sympathetic bystander. 'you must have been very fond of your school' 'Tisn't that,' howled the boy; 'but I left a nickel in my desk, and I'll never be able to find it in that mess!'"

There was a landlord on a hill
Who knew just what to do,
He took two feathers and a bone
And made a chicken stew.

My wife and I, we both ate some.
And lots of folks beside;
And what we didn't eat at night
We had next morning fried.

BOILS AND ERUPTIONS

Have been suffering from Impure Blood for many years, having Boils and other Eruptions. Having heard of S. S. S. I decided to try it, and am glad to say that it has done me a great deal of good. I intend to continue to use it, as I believe it to be the best Blood Medicine on the market.
Cleveland, Tenn. W. K. DEVERS.

For over fifteen years I have suffered more or less from Impure Blood. About a year ago I had a boil appear on my leg below the knee, which was followed by three more on my neck. I saw S. S. S. advertised and decided to try it. After taking three bottles all Boils disappeared and I have not been troubled any since.
GEO. G. FERTIG.
114 W. Jefferson St., Louisville, Ky.

Newark, Ohio, May 23, 1903.
From childhood I had been bothered with bad blood, skin eruptions and boils. I had boils ranging from five to twenty in number each season. The burning accompanying the eruption was terrible. S. S. S. seemed to be just the medicine needed in my case. It drove out all impurities and bad blood, giving me permanent relief from the skin eruption and boils. This has been ten years ago, and I have never had a return of the disease.
MRS. J. D. ATHERTON.

SSS Write for our book on blood and skin diseases. Medical advice or any special information about your case will cost you nothing.
The Swift Specific Company, Atlanta, Ga.

Raleigh Marble Works

Monuments

Ship Monumental work to all parts of the State. Delivered to your depot at same price as at shop.
Special attention paid to finish and lettering.
Only Best of Stock Used.
Write for new catalogue.
COOPER BROS., Proprietors,
RALEIGH, N. C.

For LaGrippe and Influenza use CHENEY'S EXPECTORANT.

GO TO ST. LOUIS VIA C. & O. ROUTE.

Now is the time to see the great World's Fair at St. Louis, Mo. Delightful weather and the Exposition complete in all it's beauty. An opportunity not to be missed and never to be forgotten.

See that your tickets read via the C. & O. and Big Four Railways. Shortest, quickest and best route, with fast vestibuled train service.

WOOL.

If you have wool to sell for cash, to exchange for goods, or to be manufactured, ship it to the CHATHAM MANUFACTURING COMPANY, ELKIN, N. C., and you will not regret it. They pay the highest market price and make the best goods you can get. Their blankets at all the leading expositions have been awarded GOLD MEDALS as the finest made in America.
WRITE THEM FOR SAMPLES.

$2.00 will buy a pair

Roxie Ward Women's Shoes

Made by Southern Girls and Boys
The equal of any $2.50 shoe on the market
TAKE NO OTHER

Your dealer should keep the best, and the best is "ROXIE WARD."

GEO. D. WITT SHOE CO.
Manufacturers
LYNCHBURG, VA.

DO YOU WANT A TEACHER?

The Educational Bureau, Raleigh, N. C., has recently secured the names of a large number of good teachers open to engagement. Write fully as to your needs. It charges you nothing.

XANTHINE HAIR RESTORATIVE.

Everybody that is anybody is now using XANTHINE.

You don't know what first-class hair is until you have tried it. It seconds nature. Not a dye. The same for any color hair—but absolutely NEVER FAILS to restore ORIGINAL color to any gray hair. Stops itching almost instantly; prevents dandruff; puts the hair in elegant condition every way.
Circulars gladly sent showing highest testimonials. Price $1 a bottle. Express prepaid on orders sent direct to us. Address
XANTHINE CO., Richmond, Va.

Shepard's Lung Food.

A 50 cent bottle of Shepard's Lung Food FREE to any one wishing to test its efficacy in treatment of ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, COLDS, COUGHS, LA GRIPPE, CONSUMPTION, or any affections of the throat or lungs. Indispensable for public speakers.
Send name and address of your druggist and we will send you 50c. to pay him for one bottle of Lung Food. $100 reward for a case which it will not cure.
THE LUNG FOOD CHEMICAL CO.,
Wilmington, N. C.

THE KEELEY INSTITUTE GREENSBORO, N.C.
For the treatment of THE LIQUOR, OPIUM, MORPHINE and other Drug Addictions. The Tobacco Habit, Nerve Exhaustion

H. STEINMETZ. FLORIST.

Cut Flowers, Designs. Plants of all kinds.
PHONE 113. RALEIGH, N. C.

DON'T

give your child old greasy Castor Oil. Give CAS-TO-RINE. Tastes as good as maple syrup. Fifteen cents per bottle at all dealers.

For Your New Dress

We'll be glad to send you samples of anything in our lines of Dress Fabrics.

Cassimere Suitings, Broadcloths, Covert Cloths, Plain Mohairs, Crepes, Voiles, Tweeds, Mellons, Rainproof Suitings, Fancy Mohairs, Eolliennes.

Our Stock of Dress Trimmings

is the largest and most varied we've ever carried, embracing the newest and most up-to-date kinds.

Write for our new catalogues of INFANTS' FURNISHINGS and LACE CURTAINS, also for sample books of new White Goods. Sent free. Enclose this ad.

We prepay express charges on all orders of $5.00 and over mailed to the house from the Virginias and Carolinas.

Miller & Rhoads,
Richmond, Va.

Money saved is money made
$2.50 BUYS A PAIR OF
Autograph SHOES
THE EQUAL OF ANY $3.00 SHOE

IF YOUR DEALER DOES NOT CARRY THEM A POSTAL CARD TO US WILL TELL YOU WHERE YOU CAN GET THEM.
CRADDOCK-TERRY CO.
LYNCHBURG, VA.

ARE BEST FOR Cotton Ginning

"I can only speak of the engine bought of you last Fall in the highest terms. * * * We find her to move with the regularity of a clock, a thing that we think very essential in making a good sample of cotton. As for safety, we think it far surpasses steam, and perhaps not more dangerous than water. It seems very simple and easy to learn * * * and believe it to be only a question of time when they will take the place of steam engines."
Rev. J. W. BURTON,
L. E. (The M. E. Church, South.
Send for catalogue X, stating power requirements.
White-Blakeslee Mfg. Co.
Birmingham, Ala.

Secular News

STATE.

The State Fair is being well attended.

Appeals are being heard this week in the Supreme Court from the Eighth District.

The present drouth is one of the most severe that Western North Carolina has ever experienced.

The rural free delivery postal routes increase constantly. There are now 738 in North Carolina.

Judge G. W. Ward, appointed to succeed Judge Brown on the Superior Court bench, held his first court in Bladen County last week.

State Treasurer Lacy, who is a great sufferer from asthma and has suffered much recently, has gone to Arizona in the hope of obtaining relief.

On account of the prevalence of diphtheria in Goldsboro the State Convention of the Daughters of the Confederacy, which was to meet in that city, will meet in Fayetteville on the 26th.

It is learned from the hail insurance agents that this year ten times as much property has been destroyed by hail as was thus destroyed last year. In fact, it is said that the past summer was the worst ever known for hail storms in at least two-thirds

The sales on the tobacco market in Raleigh the past week have brought a good average price, this being $12 on the hundred. Over 100,000 pounds were sold and the best grade brought $40 a hundred. Finer grades of tobacco are expected later.

President Watson and Secretary Lawrence are now busy in their preparations for the Cumberland County fair, which takes place November 2, 3, and 4. The big crops of the year, the special premiums and the purses for racing, all combine to make the outlook encouraging for a fine fair.

The continued drought is giving the Southern Railway officials no little concern. The streams that supply the water tanks on the Murphy branch are very low, and one of the officials is quoted as saying that if the drought continues much longer several of the streams are sure to fail and the situation become extremely serious.

Tarboro Cor. Post: Hon. Thomas E. Watson, the presidential aspirant of the Populist Party, has also cancelled his engagement to speak here the 27th, and will remain at national headquarters in Chicago where he will make several speeches and endeavor to capture a large faction of the Bryan and Hearst following, of which he is very hopeful.

General Ransom was the largest farmer in the State and raised immense crops of cotton. He was all his life a farmer but after his retirement from public life he greatly increased his holdings, buying more land and increasing his farming operations. His life was insured for 850,000 and it said his estate is worth $1,000,000, but this may be an overestimate.

Three policemen and several citizens captured a freight car thief in Raleigh Monday after a chase of four blocks. The man's name is John Sterling, and after his capture he implicated Walter B. Jenkins and John O'Donald. The man is wanted in Virginia for the offence, to serve sixteen months in jail. The Southern has lost over $100,000 through larceny of freight cars this year.

The United States Supreme Court Monday denied the motion of counsel on behalf of the State of North Carolina for a rehearing in the case of the State of South Dakota vs. the State of North Carolina, decided during the last term of the court favorably to South Dakota. The case involved the validity of North Carolina's guaranty of certain railroad bonds donated to South Dakota for the benefit of the University of South Dakota. The court ordered the sale of the bonds, and Monday's action renders that decision final. The decision has the effect of validating other North Carolina bonds of similar character.

For Croup use CHENEY'S EXPECTORANT.

Cancer Hospital.

We want every man and woman in the United States to know what we are doing.—We are curing Cancers, Tumors and Chronic Sores without the use of knife and are endorsed by the Senate and Legislature of Virginia. If you are seeking a cure come here and you will get it.

The Kellam Cancer Hospital,
Richmond, Va.

ROYALTY PAID and Musical Compositions. We arrange and popularize.
SONG POEMS, PIONEER PUB. CO. 625 Baltimore Bldg., CHICAGO, ILL.

Mrs
MRs
MrS

Joe
JOe
JoE

Person's PErson's PeRson's PerSon's PersOn's PersoN's Person'S

Remedy
REmedy
ReMedy
RemEdy
RemeDy
RemedY

Raleigh and Cape Fear Railroad
TIME TABLE.
Effect 12:01 A. M., Sunday, October 9, 1904.

SOUTH BOUND TRAINS.				NOR. BOUND TRAINS.
Daily, ex. S.				Daily, ex. S.
Second-Class	First-Class	STATIONS.		First-Class	Second-Class
101	105			104	102
A. M.	P. M.	Lv.	Ar.	A. M.	P. M.
7 20	4 15	.....	Raleigh	9 45	5 35
7 35	4 25	S.	Caraleigh Mills ..	9 35	5 20
7 45	4 30	F.	†Sylvania	9 30	5 13
7 54	4 39	F.	Farmer	9 20	5 04
8 00	4 45	F.	Hobby	9 14	4 57
8 15	4 52	M.	McCULLERS ..	9 10	4 52
8 25	4 56	F.	Banks	8 58	4 23
8 30	4 59	F.	Austin	8 55	4 21
8 50	5 07	S.	†Willow Spring ..	8 10	4 15
9 05	5 15	M.	† JOHNSON MILL	8 40	4 01
9 15	5 17	P.	† Cardenas	8 38	4 00
9 20	5 24	S.	C. F. & N. Junction	8 33	3 55
9 35	5 26	S.	† Fuquay Springs.	8 30	3 52
9 40	5 31	F.	Buckhorn	8 20	3 35
9 45	5 36	F.	Rawls	8 17	3 20
10 00	5 45	S.	† Chalybeate	8 10	8 20
10 05	5 50	S.	Bradley	8 00	3 01
10 15	6 00	F.	* Smith Mill	7 55	2 55
10 15	6 10	.....	Lillington	7 45	2 45
			Lv.	Ar.

JOHN A. MILLS,
President and Gen. Manager.

Six lives were lost and nearly a score of persons were injured and the lives of more than 100 others were endangered in an early morning tenement house fire in the Williamsburg section of Brooklyn Monday.

AN INTERESTING BIT OF HISTORY

"The Original Four."

About ten years ago in Greensboro, N. C., were made the small beginnings of a business which has grown to be one of the largest in the State and which has stamped the impress of its influence indelibly upon the history of fire insurance in North Carolina. When the first of the Greensboro Fire Insurance Companies was organized the Managers adopted plans and policies differing from those of any other companies operating in the State, and with such success that they derived a greater profit from the business than the older companies, and at the same time were able to reduce the cost of insurance to the public twenty per cent. This was the occasion of a series of pitched battles, or rather combined attacks by the other companies upon the Greensboro companies covering a period of eight years.

It is an interesting fact that every time the combination of opposing companies opened up hostilities anew, as happened on an average every two years, there arose from the "wreck and carnage" a new Greensboro Fire Insurance Company, until there are now four of these companies, all under the same management, with a combined surplus to policy-holders of over a half million dollars, and a premium income of over $150,000.00 per annum. They are the Southern Stock-Mutual Insurance Company, of which B. D. Heath is President; the Underwriters of Greensboro, of which J. Van Lindley is President; the Home Insurance Company of Greensboro, of which R. L. Holt is President, and the Southern Underwriters, of which D. A. Tompkins is President. These constitute "The Original Four," and A. W. McAlister is Secretary and Manager of the four companies.

It is due entirely to the position taken by these companies that rates are twenty-five per cent lower in North Carolina than in any other Southern State, and in their resistance against increased rates which has resulted in annual saving to the people of the State of over $250,000. they were absolutely alone, without the co-operation of any other company, domestic or foreign.

They have instituted a number of reforms in underwriting, liberal in their character to the insured, which have since been adopted by the South-Eastern Tariff Association. The Greensboro companies were the first to recognize that the hazard of a building in process of construction is no greater than it is after it is occupied, and eliminated the extra charge for permission to complete a building in process of construction.

They were also first to recognize that there is no greater hazard in the temporary vacancy of a dwelling during the absence of the owner occupying it than there is when occupied, and to eliminate the extra charge therefor. The South-Eastern Tariff Association adopted these same regulations several months after they were promulgated by the Greensboro companies.

With such a record as this, property owners will do no more than simple justice, and will promote their own interests at that, when they see to it that their property is insured in these companies. "The Original Four," nowhere else.—The Greensboro Telegram.

CHURCH MONEY EASILY RAISED by our method. For the sake of the advertising, it gives us, we let you have all the profit. For particulars address PEYSER-NEAT-RICHARDSON Co. Wholesale Drugs, Louisville, Ky

DOLL'S FACTORY TO POCKET WATCHES, DIAMONDS, JEWELRY

FACTORY PRICE $4.75 RETAILS FOR $15.00

GOOD FOR ONE DOLLAR OFF IF SIGNED WITH YOUR NAME!

Name .....

Address .....

That will make the net cost $3.75 just this once—for this Gun Metal full jewelled watch—gold hands. It shows the phases of the moon, the days, the months, etc., and is one of DOLL'S choicest offers. Other good things in new catalog No. 6. Lots of information, illustrations and "Factory to Pocket" prices. Worth sending a stamp to get it.

W. F. Doll Mfg. Co.

Dept. A7 175 Broadway, Upstairs

Near Cortlandt. Tel. 3434—Cort. Estab. 1876. Reference, The Oriental Bank, New York.

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE NORTH CAROLINA CONFERENCE

THE Barnes Clothing Store

IN HENDERSON, N. C.,

Sends you Greeting. We expect you with us on November 30th, and extend an invitation to one and all to make our place of business your headquarters. We have a fine assortment of

CLOTHING

AND GENTLEMEN'S FURNISHINGS . . .

of every kind. We are specially prepared to supply our preachers with clerical suits, and will favor them with bargains, if they will call to see us.

If you will send us your measure, and inform us what kind of suit you want, we will have it ready for you when you come to Conference. If we do not suit you it will cost you nothing. We will make it to your interest to give us a call, as we are making special arrangements to supply your needs at the lowest possible figure.

BARNES CLOTHING STORE,
HENDERSON, N. C.

Scholarship Free

FOR ONE MONTH. CLIP AND SEND OR PRESENT THIS NOTICE FOR PARTICULARS.

150 Page Illustrated Catalogue Free.

DRAUGHON'S PRACTICAL BUSINESS Colleges

RALEIGH, N. C.

St. Louis, Mo.	Shreveport, La.
Atlanta, Ga.	Knoxville, Tenn.
Paducah, Ky.	Kansas City, Mo.
Fort Worth, Tex.	Nashville, Tenn.
Columbia, S. C.	Little Rock, Ark.
Ft. Scott, Kas.	Montgomery, Ala.
Galveston, Tex.	Oklahoma City, O. T.

WANTED.

Position as matron in hospital or hotel. Good references. Address MISS L., care of Raleigh Advocate.

Methodist Orphanage

OFFICERS:

REV. J. W. JENKINS, - Superintendent
MRS. J. W. JENKINS, - - Matron
MISS LUCY M. REEKS, Teacher

Send money to the Superintendent by Check, Post Office or Express Money Order, or Registered letter.

Receipts up to October 15.

Wilson, $37.06; W. E. Warren on subs., $5.00; Grifton S. S., for two months, $12.80, (this school has paid $78.30 within the last year); City Roads S. S., $5.00; Smithfield S. S., $5.00; Mrs. J. W. Hoyle, on subs., $5.00; Epworth S. S., $1.00; Oak Grove S. S., Roxboro Ct., $6.00.

Donations in kind:

One box fish from E. B. Moore; clothes from Epworth League of Edenton Street Church.

Wilson.

Wilson has been a live town all its life. But never so live as today. It has city airs. The whistles of many factories wake the sleeper at the cock-crowing. The new Methodist Church is a gem. When all the electric lights are on at night, it presents a fairy scene. It was a pleasure to talk for a few minutes to the Sunday-school that first proposed to support an orphan. We greatly missed that accomplished scholar and Christian gentleman, Prof. Ernest Mangum, who made the motion to do it. Our Captain Anderson is worthily filling his place as Superintendent. Two talks to the church filled out the day. Bro. Tyer is successfully filling out his fourth year, and seems to be in great favor with every body. I lodged with my friends of long years, Bro. J. C. Hadly. He has such a nice family in such a sweet home. The Orphanage has no better friend than he and his.

An Oversight.

"The Methodists of North Carolina have opened their institution for orphans at Raleigh, N. C. Their building is large enough to accommodate two hundred orphans. They have not adopted the cottage system, but have put all the eggs in one basket, so to speak."—Our Monthly of the Thornwell Orphanage, Clinton, S. C.

Now that is too bad, Brother Jacobs. Your most excellent Monthly has been giving us great pleasure for nearly four years, and you have just found out that we are in existence.

We are a lusty, live, kicking, crowing, growing baby, four years old. We adopted the group cottage plan, and have no idea of abandoning it. We have built a magnificent administration building. The basement for cooking, dining, heating and storage, and bath rooms. The first floor for chapel, library, study, girls industrial, offices, matron's room and parlor. The second and third for educational purposes.

While we had to have a central building, we thought it best to put up a good one, and we have it. We will not have to alter it, add to it, for many years to come. We have eight school rooms on each floor, capable of accommodating thirty children each, with a hat and cloak room for each, and faculty room on each floor. Five hundred children can be taught in it. It will cost, with the heating plant, about $35,000. We have been keeping house so far in a cottage capable of housing forty children. We will occupy the extra school rooms in our Central building as dormitories until our rich men get ready to put up our cottages. They will do it some of these times.

Other Extracts from Our Monthly.

"It costs us sixty dollars a year to provide board and clothing for an orphan for the year. Do you not want to be at charges for one of these orphans for the ensuing year? Think of it, an orphan child all your own!—dependent on you! Surely, that carries God's blessing with it."

"For the first time in the history of the Orphanage, the donations for the support of the children have reached the goodly sum of $20,000. This has given us about $90 for each pupil under our care."

That is what we mean when we say $60 will support an orphan a year. The whole cost here is $100 a year. We have but thirty-two here. The Thornwell has two hundred. When we have that many it will not cost more than $90 per capita here, everything included.

That Racking Cough Positively Cured by Allen's Lung Balsam

PERSONALLY CONDUCTED TOUR TO THE WORLD'S FAIR, NOVEMBER 10, 1904, VIA SEABOARD AIR LINE RAILWAY.

The Seaboard Air Line Railway announces their last personally conducted tour to the World's Fair on Thursday, November 10th, leaving Raleigh at 4.00 p. m., Wilmington at 3.20 p. m., Charlotte at 7.25 p. m. Connection will be made from all other points in the State. Through service will be arranged from Wilmington, Charlotte, and Raleigh.

This is the last special train of the season to the World's Fair, and special low rates will apply from all points on the Seaboard and its connections.

This party will be in charge of a representative of the Seaboard, who will look after the comfort and pleasure of the party and arrange for them to get located at hotels, or boarding houses where the party may desire to stop in St. Louis.

The route selected is one of the prettiest in the South, i. e., via Atlanta, Chattanooga, Nashville, and Cairo, Ill.

For circulars and pamphlets, apply to

C. H. GATTIS, T. P. A.,
Raleigh, N. C.

Special Offer

Christmas Music.

This Depository has just received a fine assortment of Christmas services, and until November 20th, will upon receipt of 10c in stamps, send postpaid to any one five of these attractive services as samples. These services are very tastefully gotten up and nearly all contain attractive recitations, which are worth double the money whether you use the music or not.

The regular price of these services is 5c per copy. This offer is good until Nov. 20th only; after that services will be sent at 8c per copy postpaid. Do not ask for free samples, but send us 10c at once and receive five of the most attractive samples ever offered. Address all orders to

Southern Methodist Book Depository,
STAUNTON, VA.

Saw Mills

1500 ft. 1 in. boards per hour with 16 H. P. is the record of our Light 25 ft. Saw Mills Small Mills for farmers and Large Mills for lumbermen. Also Engines, Boilers, Shingle Mills, Edgers, Grist Mills, e c. Write for Catalogue K. Address Salem Iron Works, Winston-Salem, N. C.

The big battleship Georgia was successfully launched Wednesday at the Bath (Me.) Iron Works.

For Whooping Cough use CHENEY'S EXPECTORANT.

BLYMYER CHURCH BELLS. CATALOGUE FREE. THE BLYMYER MFG. CO. CINCINNATI, O.

Please mention this paper

Quarterly Meetings.

WARRENTON DISTRICT.

G. F. Smith, P. E., Littleton, N. C.

THIRD ROUND.

Northampton, New Hope, Sept. 17, 18
Bertie, Ebenezer, Sept. 24, 25
Williamston and Hamilton, Williamston, Oct. 1, 2
Rich Square, Pinner's, Oct. 8, 9
Hobgood, Williams Chapel, Oct. 15, 16

FOURTH ROUND.

Enfield and Halifax, Enfield, Aug 21, 22
Harrellsville, Harrellsville, Aug. 27, 28
Scotland Neck, sept. 4, 5
Conway, Providence Sept. 10, 11.
Murfreesboro, sept. 11, 12
Northampton, New Hope, Sept. 17, 18
Bertie, Ebenezer, sept 24, 25
Williamston and Hamilton, Williamston, October 1, 2
Rich Square, Pinners, Oct. 8, 9
Battleboro and Whitakers, Whitakers, Oct. 15, 16
Hobgood, Williams Chapel, 22, 23
Warren, Shady Grove, Oct. 29, 30
Warrenton, Warrenton, Oct. 30, 31
Littleton, Littleton, Nov. 3, 4
Weldon, Nov. 6 7
Garysburg, Seaboard, Nov 5
Roanoke Circuit, Combs, Nov. 12, 13
Roanoke Rapids, Rosemary, Nov. 13, 14
Ridgeway, Unity, Nov. 19, 20
Henderson, Nov. 27, 28

ELIZABETH CITY DISTRICT.

J. E. Underwood, P. E., E. City, N. C

FOURTH ROUND.

Hatteras, Trent, Sept. 10, 11
Hertford, Centre Hill, Sept. 17, 18
Perquimans, Oak Grove, Sept. 24, 25
Pasquotank, Newbegun, Sept. 25, 26
Camden, McBride's, Oct. 1, 2
North Gates, Sarage, Oct. 8, 9
Gates Harrells Oct. 15, 16
Kitty Hawk, Currituck Inlet, Oct. 22, 23
Currituck, Ebenezer, Oct. 23, 24
Moyock, Perkins Chapel, Oct. 29, 30
Dare, Manns Harbor Nov. 5, 6
Roanoke Island Nov. 6, 7
Elizabeth City, First Church, Nov. 13
Elizabeth City Road, Nov. 13
Columbia, Nov. 19, 20
Pantego and Belhaven, Nov. 25
Roper, Nov 26, 27
Plymouth, Nov. 27

WASHINGTON DISTRICT.

J. D. Bundy, P. E., Rocky Mount, N. C.

FOURTH ROUND.

Robersonville, Mt Zion. Sept. 3, 4
Washington, Sept. 11, 12
Nashville, Sharon, Sept. 17, 18
Farmville, Farmville, Oct. 2, 3
Aurora, Oct. 8, 9
Swan Quarter, Swan Quarter, Oct. 12
Fairfield, Oct. 14
Matteonskeet, Nebraska, Oct. 15 16
Bethel, Bethel, Oct. 22, 23
Tarboro, (night) Oct. 23
Ocracoke and Portsmouth, Ocracoke, Oct. 29, 30
Greenville, (morning) Nov 6
Grimesland and Vanceboro, Smithfield, November 6, 7
Spring Hope, Hornes, Nov. 12, 13
Wilson Station, (night) Nov. 13
Wilson Circuit, (Ledge Street) Nov. 14
Fremont, Fremont Nov. 15
Rock Mount, Nov. 16
Bath, Bath, Nov. 19, 20
South Rocky Mount and Marvin, Nov. 22
South Edgecombe, Elm City, Nov. 27, 28

ROCKINGHAM DISTRICT.

John N. Cole, P. E., Rockingham, N. C.

FOURTH ROUND.

Roberdel, Roberdel, Sept. 3, 4
Rockingham Station, Sept. 4, 5
Lumberton, Barker's, Sept. 10, 11
St. John and Gibson, St. John, Sept. 15, 16
Laurenburg Sept. 16, 17
Richmond, Steele's Mill, Sept. 24, 25
Maxton and Caledonia, Oct. 1, 2
Hamlet, Ham et, Oct. 8 9
Rowland, Rowland, Oct. 15 16
Robeson, Asbury Oct. 22, 23
Mt. Gilead, Wadeville, Oct. 29 30
Montgomery, Ophir, Nov. 5, 6
Red Springs Red Springs, Nov. 12, 13
Pekin, Concord, Nov. 19, 20
Aberdeen, Aberdeen, Nov. 26, 27

RALEIGH DISTRICT.

W. H. Moore, P. E., Pittsboro, N. C

FOURTH ROUND.

Franklinton, Grove Hill, September 10, 11
Clayton, Elizabeth, September 17, 18
Oxford Circuit, September 24, 25
Central, October 1, 2
Brooklyn, October 2, 3
Milbrook, Pleasant Grove, October 8, 9
Granville, October 15, 16
Wakefield, October 20
Kenley October 22, 23
Cary, October 29, 30
Epworth, October 30
Oxford Station, November 5, 6
Youngsville, November 12, 13
Louisburg, November 19, 20
Tar River Flank Chapel, Novembe

NEW BERN DISTRICT.

F. D. Swindell, P. E., Plymouth, N. C

FOURTH ROUND.

Mt. Olive and Faison, Mt. Olive, Sept. 17, 18
Jones' Circuit, Lee's, Sept. 24, 25
Goldsboro, Thompson's, Oct. 1, 2
St. Paul, Oct. 2
Centenary, Oct. 9, 10
Pamlico, Bayboro Oct. 15, 16
Oriental, Oriental, Oct. 16, 17
Hookerton, Ralnbow, Oct. 22, 23
Grifton Grifton, Oct. 24, 24
Dover, Oct. 29 30
Kinston, Oct. 30
Snow Hill Circuit, Jerusalem, Nov. 5, 6
Craven, Asbury, Nov. 11
Carteret, Harlow Nov. 12, 13
Beaufort, Nov. 13, 14
Atlantic, Wilt, Nov. 15, 16
Straits Tabernacle, Nov. 19, 20
Morehead, Nov. 20
LaGrange Circuit, Nov. 24
St. John Nov. 25
Mt. Olive Circuit, Smiths, Nov. 26, 27

DURHAM DISTRICT.

H. T. Gibbs P. E., Durham N. C.

East Burlington, Graham and Haw River, at Haw River, August 27, 28
Mt. Tirzah Circuit, September 3, 4

FOURTH ROUND.

Trinity Church, Sept. 11, at 11 a. m.
Carr Church and Branson, at Carr, Sept. 11 at night
Chapel Hill, Sept 17, 18
Durham McManen, Sept. 24, 25
Mangum Street, Sept 25 at night
Leasburg, Salem, Oct. 1, 2
Hillsboro, Cedar Grove, Oct. 8, 9
Roxboro, Concord, Oct. 15, 16
Milton, New Hope Oct. 22, 23
Yanceyville, Bethel Oct. 29 30
Mt Tirzah Circuit, Nov. 5, 6
Burlington, Front Street Nov. 13, 14
East Burlington, Graham and Haw River, Nov. 13, at night
Burlington, Shiloah, Nov. 18
Alamance, Phillips Chapel, Nov. 19, 20
Main Street, Nov. 27, at 11 a. m.
West Durham, Nov. 27, at night

FAYETTEVILLE DISTRICT.

J. B. Hurley, P. E., Fayetteville, N. C.

THIRD ROUND.

Goldstone Marcneys, August 27, 28
Sampson, Bethel, September 3, 4
Fayetteville, Hay Street, September 10, 11

FOURTH ROUND.

Dunn, Sept. 25, 26.
Cokesbury, Cokesbury, Oct. 1, 2
Elise, Tyra Oct. 7
Carthage Oct. 8, 9
Hawriver, Bynum's, Oct. 14
Pittsboro, Zion, Oct. 15, 16
Siler City, Oct. 22, 23
Goldston, Oct. 23, 24
Jonesboro, Bopiar Springs, Oct. 28
Sanford, 29, 30
Hope Mills, Nov 5, 6
Newton Grove, Nov. 11
Duke, Benson, Nov. 12, 13
Buckhorn, Cokesbury, Oct. 18
Lillington, Nov. 19 20
Sampson, Andrews Chapel, Nov. 25
Fayetteville, Hay Street, Nov. 27
Fayetteville, Haitz's Mill, Nov. 27

WILMINGTON DISTRICT.

R. B. John, P. E., Wilmington, N. C.

FOURTH ROUND.

Onslow, Swanboro, September 3, 4
Scott's Hill, Acorn Branch September 3, 4
New River, Turkey Creek, September 4
Bryan, September 10, 11
Fifth Street, Sept. 18
Market Street, Sept. 18
Town Creek, Zion, Sept. 21
Grace, September 25
Clinton, Keener, Oct. 1, 2
Bladen Circuit, Antioch, Oct. 7
Elizabeth, Wesley's, Oct 8, 9
Magnolia Chapel ton, Oct. 15, 16
Carver's Creek, Shiloah, Oct. 21
Whiteville, Cerro Gordo Oct. 22, 23
Shallotte Village, Oct. 28
Waccamaw, Bethel, Oct. 29, 30
Burgaw, Burgaw, Nov. 4
Kenansville Warsaw Nov. 5, 6
Lumlow, Tabernacle Nov. 9
Jackson and Richlands, Richlands, Nov 10
Southport, Nov. 3
New River, Steel's Ferry, Nov. 18
Scott's Hill, Scott's Hill, Nov. 19, 20
Bladen Street, Nov. 27

21,245 UNIQUE

21,245 Sunday-school Superintendents and workers were asked by us to name the most practical songs used by them. The result is the most Unique and Incomparably the finest collection of songs for Sunday-school and Praise services ever issued.

THE VOICE OF PRAISE

beautifully bound in full cloth (Vellum de Luxe) 225x hundred; 32cts. singly by mail.

Send for free descriptive pamphlet or for complete returnable sample. We pay the postage.

Hall-Mack Co., 1018-20 Arch St., Phila. 156 Fifth Ave., N. Y.

Dropsy CURED Gives Quick Relief.

Removes all swelling in 8 to 20 days; effects a permanent cure in 30 to 60 days. Trial treatment given free. Nothing can be fairer. Write Dr. H. H. Green's Sons, Specialists, Box B Atlanta, Ga.

When writing advertisers please mention this paper.

Obituaries

Obituaries containing not more than one hundred and fifty words are inserted free of charge. Those sending obituaries containing over one hundred and fifty words are requested to send with the obituary one cent for every word in excess. Unless this rule is observed the obituary must be cut down to the proper limit

GODLEY.—The infant daughter of W. L. and R. Godley died at Aurora, N. C., October 4, 1904, at three-months-old and was buried by the writer at the family burying ground by the writer the next day. The delicate little flower did not remain in this world long, but she was here enough to elicit parental love. Her mission was short, but she has accomplished it and gone to rest. Weep not fond parents, for she is not lost, but only gone before.

J. M. LOWDER.

BENNETT.—Roy, the bright little son George W., and Sallie L. Bennett died near Aurora, N. C., July 14, 1904, age two years and nine months. It was hard indeed for the parents to give him up, but when God calls we must obey. Although little Roy's stay was short in this world, he remained long enough to be a blessing to his parents. We trust they will try to meet him in the home of the good, where the angels sing glory to God. The Lord comfort the bereaved.

J. M. LOWDER.

HALL.—Louis Glenn, the bright little son of William H. and Carrie Hall, died at Aurora, N. C., September 13, 1904, having lived about sixteen months to bless this Christian home; our kind Heavenly Father then plucked the beautiful tender bud and planted it in a more genial clime, where it will bloom to fade no more. It was hard for the parents to give him up, but they have confidence in God and are resigned to His will. Weep not fond parents, but put your trust in the Saviour who said: "Suffer little children to come unto me."

J. M. LOWDER.

HOLLOWELL.—R. W. Hollowell has fallen on sleep. One of earth's noblemen has gone to join the ranks of the immortal in the eternal city. Heaven is richer and the world poorer by his departure. This good man was born April 22, 1832, and died at his home near Sladesville, N. C., August 30, 1904.

For several years Brother Hollowell was a faithful steward in the church at Sladesville, N. C. He was a man who loved the church of God. His time, money and talent were freely spent to sustain the kingdom of Christ. Brother Hollowell was a man of tireless energy and perseverance. In war and peace he was brave and true. His home-life was beautiful; wife and children upon him trusted implicitly in his judgment, and loved him with a great love. He leaves behind him the priceless legacy of a good name. He was true to his God, true to his friends, true to his home. He was a living demonstration of the power of Christ to make a strong, faithful, clean man. He lived well—he died right.

May consoling and sustaining grace be vouchsafed to the bereaved family.

W. Y. EVERTON.

GREEN.—McGilbrey Green was born in Georgetown, S. C., March 31, 1870. About ten years ago he moved to Wilmington, N. C., and four years later came to Edenton, where he accepted a position as lumber inspector with the Branning Manufacturing Company. Later he held a similar position in Columbia and in Belhaven.

On December 18, 1899, Brother Green was married to Miss Irena Brinkley, of Edenton, the cremony being performed by the writer of this sketch. To them were born two bright little girls, Eliza Brinkley and Elizabeth, who still live to cheer the heart of their sorrowing mother in these dark days.

In November, 1903, Brother Green's health began to fail. In June, this year, he went to Asheville, hoping there to regain his strength, but in vain. In September he returned to Edenton, and a few days later he pased away to his eternal reward. His body was laid to rest in Beaver Hill cemetery.

Besides his wife and two children, he leaves a mother, Mrs. E. Green, two brothers, Ernest L. and Richard B. Green; two sisters, Mrs. W. E. Powell and Miss Ellen Green, all living in Wilmington, to mourn his loss.

Brother Green professed faith in Christ while living in Wilmington, and was received into the Grace Street M. E. Church, South, by Rev. R. A. Willis. Through life he remained a consistent and loyal member of the church. It was not the privilege of this writer to be with him during his sickness. In other days, however, he knew him intimately, and is persuaded that when the end came he was found ready to go. In his home, in the social circle, in business affairs, he lived as a Christian ought to live. May our kind heavenly Father tenderly care for the loved ones left behind, and may the time of separation end some day in a happy reunion above.

R. H. WILLIS.

JONES.—Benjamin L. Jones, son of Rev. John Jones and Susan Bell Jones was born in Beaufort, N. C., June 18, 1838. The father, Rev. John Jones, was, for many years, a faithful member of the North Carolina Conference, and one of the best men I ever knew. God was honored in that home with daily service. The divine authority was supreme.

In that Christian home B. L. Jones was reared. He was converted at 17 years of age. In 1855, at Macedonia Church, under the ministry of Rev. W. F. Clegg, he made a complete surrender to his Lord. That transaction was then settled for all time.

In 1862, he enlisted in the Confederate army, and was a member of Company D, sixty-seventh regiment, N. C. infantry, serving until the close of the war. Amidst the various difficulties of camp life, he was loyal to his Lord, and returned to his home the same true, pure Bennie Jones as when he first enlisted.

February 18, 1868, he was happily married to Miss Orphie N. Gibbs. To them four children were born. Only one of the four still lives, H. C. Jones, of Beaufort, N. C. May the mantle of his father fall upon him.

From an intimate association I knew Brother Jones well, and loved him truly. He was a successful business man and accumulated good property.

He loved the Lord. He loved the church. He showed his love by obedience to his Lord and in his devotion to the church. He was a true, pure, manly man. I never heard Brother Jones utter a sentence, as I remember, that could not be spoken in any circle. As a husband, he was ever thoughtful, tender and devoted; as a father, companionable to his children, while no sisters ever had a more devoted brother or kindred a more gentle kinsman.

He had the confidence of the citizens of his town and of the business world where he was known. His word was truly his bond.

Gentle and tender as a woman in his social life. Brave as the bravest in the discharge of duty. As unyielding as well tempered steel in moral obligation. Stern integrity was the spinal column of his character.

Yes, the stricken widow, the only living son, the sorrowing sisters and very many dear ones are truly bereaved. The church is bereaved. Beaufort has met with a sad loss.

After a short illness, on the 16th day of June, 1904, his Lord summoned him from the toils of earth into the mansions above. Living as he did, he was ready when the chariot came and he simply stepped out from earth to be borne into "that building not made with hands, eternal in the heavens."

On his birthday, sixty-six years, his mortal remains were laid in their last resting place while a large throng of loved friends turned away to realize a large vacancy had been made in their life.

May great grace abound to the stricken ones.

F. A. BISHOP.

BRIDGES.—Mrs. Emily Evans Bridges was born at Ore Hill, Chatham County, N. C., June 26, 1829, and was married to Joseph M. Bridges, June 7, 1853, and died June 11, 1904.

Sister Bridges was in feeble health for several years, but being a woman of great energy and will force, she kept up and going most of the time until two years before her death, when she was compelled by extreme feebleness to give up all active life, and stayed in doors until her Master called her from this earthly house to her eternal home. She had been an acceptable member of the church for more than forty years, and although she could not attend her church much in her latter days, she did not cease to look after the comfort of her pastor, and give her means to the support of the church. The day before her death she partook of the Lord's Supper, administered by Brother Durant, and joined him in singing her favorite hymn, "How Firm a Foundation Ye Saints of the Lord."

Sister Bridges will be missed in Hamlet, where she lived from the beginning of the existence of the place, until the day of her death. She will be missed by her only living daughter, and her grandchildren whom she loved devotedly and cared for so tenderly. May God comfort and bless the bereaved ones.

J. E. T.

HUNLEY.—Hattie, the oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Hunley, was born December 24, 1899, and died of typhoid fever at the A. C. L. Hospital in South Rocky Mount, N. C., August 21, 1904.

In her death a bright and lovable girl was taken from our community, one who is missed not only by the loved ones and young companions, but by every one in the community. She had won the hearts of every one by her sweet disposition and kindness of heart.

In the home she is especially missed. For everal years there has been a great deal of sickness there, and Hattie took many of the household duties off her mother's over-burdened shoulders, and in doing so made sacrifices that older people would hesitate to make. And she made them without a murmur. On several occasions, when her mother would insist on her going out and enjoying the companionship of her young friends, she remarked: "No, mamma, I don't care to. I had rather stay here and help you all I can."

Hattie was a faithful attendant at Sunday-school whenever her duties at home would admit. She was not a member of the church, nor had she ever made an open confession of Christ, but in her life of self-sacrifice at home and in the community she lived the Christ life and confessed the meek and lowly Jesus in her every-day walk and conversation. Surely she has heard the "well done," for did not the Saviour say: "Blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God?"

May God bless the stricken family and bring them the comfort which alone can be given by a sympathetic heavenly Father.

ROBT. E. HUNT, P. C.

MAKES A CLEAN SWEEP.

There's nothing like doing a thing thoroughly. Of all the Salves you ever heard of, Bucklen's Arnica Salve is the best. It sweeps away and cures Burns, Sores, Bruises, Cuts, Boils, Ulcers, Skin Eruptions and Piles. It's only 25 cents, and guaranteed to give satisfaction by all druggists.

Fine Wood Flooring

Parquet Floors and Specialties. Moore's Floor Wax. Moore's patentRests Send for FREEIllustrated CATALOGUE. E. B. MOORE & CO. 7 Wabash ave, Chicago

WRIGLEY ENGRAVING COMPANY ENGRAVERS, ELECTROTYPERS, STEREOTYPERS, COPPER HALF TONE AND ZINC ETCHINGS. ALL FORMS OF STYLE. ATLANTA, GA.

Lowest Kind of Rates.

California & Northwest

From Sept. 15th to Oct. 15th. 1904.

Cheap one-way and round-trip tickets on various dates to Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico and Indian Territory. Through tickets from all points. Write me. J. F. Van Rensselaer, Gen. Agt. Southern Pacific and Union Pacific Railroad Companies, 13 Peachtree St., Atlanta, Ga. G. W. Ely, T. P. A., R. O. Beall, T. P. A.

CROSS & LINEHAN CO.,

NEW TUCKER BUILDING.)

234-236 Favetteville St., RALEIGH, N. C.

LET US SHOW YOU WHAT THE FULL MEANING OF BARGAIN-GIVING MEANS IN . . . . . .

CLOTHING

AND GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS.

OUR NEW SPRING STOCK NOW READY FOR YOUR INSPECTION.

Cross & Linehan Co.,

Leading Clothiers.

A Literary Hasty Pudding.

The curiosities of literature have been celebrated and made famous in many volumes devoted to no other end. The sorrows of authors have been told by the immortals. The wit of bright, particular geniuses has brought wealth to authors and publishers. It is known that the rarest wit, the truest eloquence, the most helpful wisdom, all come with a degree of spontaneity that must give them always, in the statement, a paragraphical aspect. It has occurred to us that if the witty, wise, and pathetic phrases that grace the daily literature of our country were gathered into a body they would make each day a volume of surpassing interest. This suggestion had led us to gather a few of such unusual things and put them under this head.

* * *

The world is hungry for love. It is not hungry for great poets, great soldiers, great inventors, but is longing for great lovers.

* * *

An old fellows was asked the difference between a Methodist and a Presbyterian. "Well," he replied after some deliberation, "a Methodist knows he's got religion, but is afraid he'll lose it; and the Presbyterian knows he cannot lose it, but is scared to death for fear he hasn't got it."—President Hulley, at Chautauqua.

* * *

Trouble will come. Even if you do not hunt for it, it is sure to hunt for and and find you, sooner or later. In many cases persons hunt, and do not find. They have "bad luck;" "it was not a good day for game;" "the wind was in the wrong direction," etc. Not so with those who hunt for trouble. They always find, and often find more than enough.

* * *

A play was given sometime ago in London in which a politician, who had won his way by dropping gold sovereigns into the contribution box on Sundays, became a boodler, as we should say, and was rebuked by the spirits of dead statesmen, who stepped out of their frames in the lordly mansion he had bought with his boodle. One spectator left the pit in high dudgeon. "I don't say there ain't no sperruts, and all that," he remarked; "but that a man should drup a suvring into the contribution, that ain't in 'uman natur'!"

* * *

In Japan's exhibit we see a group of three monkeys; one of them has a paw over his eyes, another has his paws over his ears, and the other has a paw over his mouth. The story of the three monkeys is used in Japanese homes to teach the children that they should not see, hear, or speak anything bad. In one of the carvings the monkeys are represented as having a rough and tumble frolic; but in it all they manage to keep one pair of eyes and ears and one mouth covered. Children should know that it is possible to have a jolly time and yet not see, hear, or speak bad things.

* * *

This is said to have been the principle of one of the great predatory families of Teviotdale, "Thou shalt want ere I want." Maccaulay, in his essay on Warren Hatsings, says that that "maker of empire" "seems to have laid it down as a fundamental proposition which could not be disputed that, when he had not as many laes of rupees as the public service required, he should take them from anybody who had." Warren Hastings seems to have been a modern "trust" all alone—a trust before the trusts, so to say. But he was not the first. Old Queen Jezebel was ahead of him by some millenniums.

Life at best is a struggle. The sea over which we sail to the "morning land" is swept by many a fierce storm. It is certain that each heart knoweth its own bitterness. There are stubborn enemies with whom we have to contend; tempests of temptation that sweep our path with all but irresistible furv· nights of darkness, when every star is hidden from our longing eyes; times of shipwreck that leave us with empty hands on the sad shore. We must climb with weary feet many a rugged path. But, in spite of all this, life is not a losing fight to the soul that will have the victory and the crown.

Whatever harms love harms missions. Hence it is perfectly plain that the warlke spirit, if it takes possession of a people and animates their thought and feeling, is distinctly fatal to the missionary motive. The breaking of the race into warring groups, or groups pledged to the spirit and aim of war, is ruinous to the missionary work.

"But you are not always bothered with poor light, are you?" inquired the complaint at the gas office. "O, no, not always," replied the quiet citizen. "Ah, I thought so; it's only at certain times that you notice it, eh?" "Yes, only after dark."

ROBBED THE GRAVE.

A startling incident is narated by John Oliver, of Philadelphia, as follows: "I was in an awful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite, growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Then I was advised to use Electric Bitters; to my great joy, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50 cents, guaranteed, at all druggists.

PIANOS AND ORGANS

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.

A. D. JONES & CO.

Southern Factory Distributors for the World's Famous

KIMBALL

WE Loan you the money to buy them.

WE Give free trials.

WE Pay the freight.

WE Save you 25 per cent.

WE Add nothing to the principal when sold on

EASY PAYMENTS.

Write for our latest piano and and organ catalogue and full particulars.

A. D. JONES & CO., 208 South Elm Street, GREENSBORO, N. C.

When Chilled to the Bone Painkiller (Perry Davis) is needed to prevent colds and to ward off Disease

HICKS' CAPUDINE CURES ALL HEADACHES. The perfect remedy for Colds, Indigestion, Periodic Pains, Brain Fag, etc. Prevents Train Nausea and Sick Headache. Braces the nerves. It's Liquid. It's Harmless. Trial bottle 10c.

Bulington Route

COLONISTS RATES TO THE NORTHWEST AND CALIFORNIA

One Way Rates From September 15th to October 15th, 1904.

FROM	TO Puget Sound Country, Portland District	California, San Francisco, Los Angeles, etc.	Butte-Helena District	Spokane District.
RALEIGH	$50.25	$48.25	$47.00	$47.75

The Burlington and its immediate connections, the Northern Pacific and Great Northern Roads form direct lines to the Northwest via St. Paul or Billings.

Daily Through Chair Cars on the "Burlington-Northern Pacific Express," St. Louis to the Puget Sound via Billings, Montana—the short line and time saver

TO CALIFORNIA, colonist tickets are good in the Burlington's daily through tourist sleepers. Personally conducted excursions every Wednesday from St. Louis and Chicago to San Francisco and Los Angeles via Denver, Scenic Colorado, Salt Lake City.

Two St. Louis-Denver Trains Daily.
Three St. Louis-St. Paul Trains Daily.

"The Burlington-Northern Pacific Express Daily, St. Louis to Seattle Via Billings."

Describe your proposed trip and let us advise you the least cost and the best way to go. Call upon or address

J. N. MERRRILL, Gen. Southern Agent, Atlanta Ga.

.... Chesapeake and Ohio Railway ....

World's Fair Scenic Route TO St. Louis, Missouri.

SHORTEST, QUICKEST and BEST ROUTE. Vestibuled, Electric-Lighted Trains with Pullman Sleepers and Dining Cars.

Through tickets from North Carolina with direct connections.

SPECIAL RATES FOR SEASON, SIXTY OR FIFTEEN DAY TICKETS.

Fifteen day tickets from Raleigh, N. C., $24.80.

Sleeping car accommodations engaged upon application.

SPECIAL COACH EXCURSIONS

On authorized dates, tickets good for ten days at rate of $18.50. Correspondingly low rates from other stations. Special accommodations arranged for parties. Stop-overs permitted within limit at C. & O. celebrated mountain resorts.

USE THE C. & O. ROUTE and purchase your tickets accordingly. For coach excursion dates, reservations and other information, address

W. O. WARTHEN, D. P. A., C. & O. Railway, Richmond, Va.

World's Fair, St. Louis

EXTRAORDINARILY LOW RATES,

October 4-6-11-13-18-20-25 and 28, 1904.

On above-mentioned dates the Southern Railway announces very low round-trip Coach excursion rates to St. Louis. These tickets will be good in all regular Coaches, and on all trains on dates shown. Tickets good 10 days.

Rate from
Goldsboro	$20.00	Salisbury	$17.00
Selma	20.00	Charlotte	18.30
Raleigh	18.50	Statesville	17.00
Durham	17.00	Marion	16.20
Greensboro	17.00	Asheville	15.40
Sanford	20.40	Hendersonville	15.85

Tickets sold at the above rates not good in Sleeping Cars; for other rates see notices elsewhere.

For full information, World's Fair maps, literature, etc., call on or address any Agent Southern Railway.

R. L. VERNON, Trav. Pass. Agt., Charlotte, N. C. T. E. GREEN, C. T. A., Raleigh, N. C.

S. H. HARDWICK, Pass. Traf. Mgr. W. H. TAYLOE, Gen. Pass. Agt. Washington, D. C.

Cupid on the Ferris Wheel.

The winged God of Love seems to be working overtime at the Ferris Wheel this season. Almost simultaneous with the opening of the Wheel at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition came the announcement of a wedding upon it. Since then the management have been besieged by couples wanting to get married in the Great Ferris Wheel.

Over a score of weddings have taken place, some of which have had many novel and interesting features. One couple, the bride from Sunny Kansas and the groom from picturesque Oklahoma, rode their spotted horses into one of the large cars of the Wheel and were married on horseback when the car reached its highest point. Another couple insisted upon being married on top of a car, so a platform was built on the roof by the obliging management especially to accommodate them. One day two requests came in for use of the wedding car at the same hour and a double wedding was arranged to the satisfaction of all concerned.

Some of the correspondence with these victims of Cupid's darts is unique and interesting. One woman who seems to be the "man of the house" wrote as follows: "Have bin divorsed over 4 years Have Diverse Papers My Husband To Be his Name Is Mr. Blank He is a widewer His Wife has Bin Dead 4 years I suppose you would have to have this Information pleas Answer soon."

Not the desire for notoriety but romantic considerations have caused the planning of many of these Ferris Wheel weddings. One sweet lassie first met her sweetheart in a Ferris Wheel Car. Another couple who planned at the last minute that business engagements would not permit them to leave St. Louis were married on the Wheel because as the bride said, "A trip around the Ferris Wheel is almost the same as a trip around the world."

The bride was right, too, for while revolving around the Ferris Wheel at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition the principal achitectural features and landscape gardening of the entire world may be seen combined in a panorama of unequalled splendor. To view all the sights that may be seen from the Ferris Wheel one would have to take a trip around the world if these wonders had not been brought together and combined in a fifty million dollar panorama in the Forest or Ivory City as the St. Louis Fair is sometimes caled.

To see the unrivaled beauties of this Ivory City in a short space of time, and without undue exertion, a trip upon the great Ferris Wheel is absolutely necessary. Every visitor should get a map of the grounds and take a trip around the Ferris Wheel the very first thing when they arrive at the St. Louis Fair.

It will save time, money and much weariness of body if everyone will take the wheel trip and plan their Exposition sight-seeing from its lofty heights.

Few will doubt the correctness of The American Illustrated Methodist Magazine in advocating the union of the two great Episcopal Methodisms of America. We wish the magazine success in its efforts and take pleasure in calling attention to the ad. of the publishers in this issue of our paper.

The savage Igorrotes at St. Louis have given up dog meat and are clamoring for chicken. Some Methodist missionary has been working to good advantage.—The Washington Post.

Some people hang outside like icicles from the roof of the church, and then complain that the church is cold.—Chicago Tribune.

Aunt Salena: "But I can't see how war's goin' to raise the price o' wheat." Uncle Silas: "You can't. Why, don't you s'pose all them war correspondents have got to be fed?"

Sad will be the day for any man when he becomes absolutely contented with the life he is living, with the thoughts he is thinking and the deeds that he is doing—when there is not forever beating at the doors of his soul some great desire to do something larger which he knows that he was meant and made to do because he is a child of God.—Phillips Brooks.

BETTER THAN SPANKING.

Spanking does not cure children of urine difficulties. If it did there would be few children that would do it. There is a constitutional cause for this. Mrs. M. Summers, Box 238, Notre Dame, Ind., will send her home treatment to any mother. She asks no money. Write her to-day if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child. The chances are it can't help it

Christmas Gift!

Sounds early, don't it? but Christmas will be here before you realize it.

We will give a piano as a Christmas present to some one who don't own an upright piano.

An opportunity requires you to register your name at our warerooms 211 & 213 North Tryon St., Charlotte N. C., or mail us your name and address with 4 cents in stamps for return of number; and we will register your name for you.

Only one member of a family allowed to register and no one who has an upright piano in the family.

If you purchase a piano from us before December 25th, and you should hold the duplicate number drawn, we will take back the piano you have bought, refund money paid and deliver gift piano. Remember piano is absolutely free—only question asked, "have you an upright piano in your home?"

Registration begins Oct. 15th and closes Dec. 22nd.—Watch further announcements.

Chas. M. Stieff Manufacturer of the piano with the sweet tone.
Southern warerooms 211-213 N. Tryon St. C. H. Wilmoth, Mgr. Charlotte, N. C.

15 CENTS TO JAN. 1, 1905

AND YOUR MONEY BACK

IF YOU ARE NOT SATISFIED

The Progressive Farmer, Raleigh, N. C.—"biggest, brightest and best farm and home weekly in the South"—will be sent to any subscriber or reader of THE CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE every week from now till Jan. 1, 1905, for only - - - - -

15 CENTS!

JUST HALF OUR REGULAR RATES.

And any man's money back if he is not satisfied. This is the offer we make and we make it because we believe if you read our paper from now till January, you will never again be willing to keep house without it If - - -

THE PROGRESSIVE FARMER.

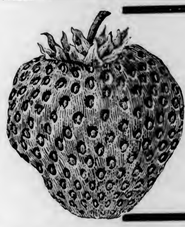
Doesn't Now Reach Your Home send us 15 cents by next mail and get the paper the rest of the year. - - - - - - - - -

Poe, Burkett & Kilgore, Editors
RALEIGH, N. C.

King's Business College.
(INCORPORATED.)
CAPITAL STOCK - - $30,000.
Learn Bookkeeping, Shorthand, Touch Typewriting, Penmanship and English. Not in a month—this cannot be done. Not free—you cannot get something for nothing, but if merit appeals, we can convince you that KING'S is the best. Established and results of 20 years experience.
Reference: Every bank and leading business concern in Raleigh or Charlotte.
Write for our College Journal and offers we are now making. Address,
KING'S BUSINESS COLLEGE,
Raleigh, N. C., or Charlotte, N. C.

BABY EASE
BABY EASE—the world's best baby medicine—is a prompt, safe, sure and harmless remedy for all sorts of stomach and bowel troubles of babies and children. Keep it always on hand—you can rely upon it.
At all good drug stores, 25c.
Manufactured by BABY EASE CO., MACON, GA.

SERMONS BY THE DEVIL.
By Rev. W. S. Harris.
A new and marvelous book; nothing else like it in the World; calls men out of the dark path, and shows them the right way—304 pages, 36 wonderful illustrations. Retail price only $1.50. Quickest seller ever issued. Agents reporting 10 to 20 orders per day. Send only 10c in stamps for Outfit. Big commission. Don't miss it if you want to make money.
Hudgins Publishing Co., Atlanta, Ga.



Save Half in Fruit Trees
Wholesale Rates to Farmers.
Choicest stock of Fruit Trees in the country. All the large, improved Peaches affording luscious fruit from May to November. All the superb apples and pears covering the whole year. Mammoth delicious plums, cherries, grapes, figs, asparagus, rhubarb, etc. Largest shippers of
STRAWBERRY PLANTS in the World
All trees, etc., delivered FREE. 130 page manual, telling how to grow all kinds of Fruit, Free to buyers.
Write now for catalogue for fall planting. Mention this paper.
CONTINENTAL PLANT CO., Kittrell, N. C.

The Highsmith Hospital
(INCORPORATED.)
A General Hospital, centrally located on Green Street. J. F. Highsmith, M. D., Surgeon and Specialist in the diseases of women. Assistants: J. Vance McGeorgan, M. D., Surgeon; J. A. McKethan, M. D., Specialist in the diseases of the eye, ear, nose and throat.
Modern appliances throughout; elevator, electric and gas light; water, heat, hot and cold shower baths and telephone service on every floor; electric call bells in all rooms; sound-deadening rubber treads and linoleum on stairways and halls, operating room second to none, well equipped chemical and microscopic laboratory with Static X-Ray Electric Machine in connection, giving unsurpassed facilities for treatment of the most difficult surgical cases.
Nurses' Home and Training School, under the supervision of Miss Maude Robertson, graduate of The Massachusetts General, of Boston, Mass., the McLean, of Waverly, Mass., and the Sloan Maternity, of New York, and recently head nurse of the surgical department of the Philadelphia Hospital.
The Cochran Annex, complete in furnishing and equipment, with endowed beds for both white and colored.
Domestic and Culinary Department under skilled housekeeper, faultless in sanitation, cleanliness and convenience.
For further information address
J. F. HIGHSMITH, M. D., Fayetteville, N. C.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC COMPANY.
..."SUNSET ROUTE."...
Lowest Rates and Through Service to California. Ask About Them. Through the Rice and Oil Belt.
4 Daily Trains from New Orleans to Points in Louisiana; 3 to Texas; 2 to California and Mexico.
Best Trains, Best Service; Best Everything.
OIL BURNING LOCOMOTIVES.
Through Pullman Tourist Car from Washington, Atlanta, Montgomery and Intermediate points to California, Tri-Weekly.
No trouble to answer questions
J. F. VAN RENSSELAER, General Agent. R. O. BEAN, T. P. A., ATLANTA, GA.

When writing advertisers, please mention this paper.

Raleigh Christian Advocate

FIFTIETH YEAR. ORGAN OF THE NORTH CAROLINA CONFERENCE. NUMBER 39.

RALEIGH, N. C., WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 26, 1904.

Reading Room Trinity College

Editorial

EXHORT.

In these latter days when there is a passion for an original reconstruction of methods of sermonizing and of expression of thought, there is danger of our neglecting a very vital part of every true sermon, and that is the exhortation. We are sorry that a false sentiment has rooted out of the sermon the old-time exhortation.

No solicitor or promoter in business life dares to neglect the exhortation. He may explain, exhibit, and convince, but unless he ask his patron to buy or trade, there will be no purchase in many a case. The same is true with the preacher. He may preach never so strongly and eloquently, but if he fails to exhort the hearer to apply to his own life the principles enunciated, the sermon will fail of its potential effect. Christ did exhort. So did Paul. So did all soul-savers.

The obsolescence of the old-time exhortation has helped to bring about the death of the custom of giving the the hearer at the close of the sermon an opportunity of confessing Christ. The sermon, in many cases, has degenerated into the lecture or essay. Let us make it the evangelical instrument and agent which God designs it to be.

OUR THREE PREACHERS.

There is a certain sermon which is preached to us about this time every year. Not a word is spoken. Not a gesture is made. Yet the sermon is beautiful, strong, and convincing. Its truths are expressed in color tones. Orange, olive, green and crimson melt into a picture whose beauty is an eloquence in which the devout soul may hear the voice of God Himself.

The sermon is preached by three maple trees which stand in the yard of our neighbor across the street. For five successive years we have watched them. They seem to be invested with the charm of a rare personality.

It seems such a short time since the bare boughs were shivering in icy gales. Then all at once we received an invitation to their celebration of spring-tide. There was an enthusiastic jubilation. Every arboreal hall and chamber was adorned with a myriad of trembling, glinting, smiling, rippling banners of green.

During the sultry days of summer, the refreshing greenery charmed and soothed us. When in it, at nightfall and at morning's hour, we heard the sparrow's voice, we imagined that its sweetness was caught from the voice of our three friends.

Only a few days ago we noticed that streaks of crimson ran in ragged serrated lines across their graceful forms. It seemed to us that wounded summer, in passing over, had sprinkled our neighbors with blood-spots.

Now those trees are a blaze of glory. No crimson now, but only orange melting into the palest gold. Seen against the violet of the October sky, and pierced with the quivering lances of the dying sun, the living picture draped by God Himself tells truths too deep for words.

As we look at our trees, robed in their autumnal splendor, we cannot but think of many of the readers of this paper—those who are in the "sere and yellow leaf." The spring-time and summer of their life are far behind them. Shut in their rooms, or feebly walking around the house, they, like the October trees, are watching for the last leaf to fall. Like the trees, they may be most beautiful in the final scene. Though the "outward man perisheth," yet the "inner man" may be so renewed by the Spirit that they be decorated with all the banners of heavenly beauty and spiritual victory. May this be the experience of all our aged readers and those whom the frost of Life's October has not yet touched.

IS IT TRUE?

A few weeks ago we pushed out a little specimen of our editorial handiwork in the shape of the statement that the record of a faithful year's work is the best representative a preacher has in the Bishop's cabinet. This little specimen has been displayed among the wares of several of our religions exchanges, and we must believe that it represents truth. This "best representative" always speaks eloquently and forcibly. It is never blinded by sophism. It is never intimidated by adverse circumstances. It is no respecter of persons.

Of course, it sometimes happens that the "best representative" does not carry its point. Its purpose is thwarted, and there is a sore heart behind the scene.

It is according to the genius of our Episcopal Methodism that the preacher takes his appointment from the Bishop; that the Bishop derives his information as to the fitness or unfitness of the preacher from the Presiding Elder; that the Presiding Elder in making his statements to the Bishop should be plain and unprejudiced, having an eye single only to the interests of the kingdom. It is by no means unnatural that in this machinery—by no means complex—there should be at times a misplacement. It is an earthly institution. The wheels and belts are human. Should the Bishop disdain to use the information of the Presiding Elders, or should the Presiding Elders misjudge or yield to feeling rather than to judgment, the "best representative," of course, will not successfully "represent," and there is, seemingly, a cruel miscarriage of the itinerant purpose.

But we are glad to say that for this to happen is an exception to the rule which we stated, and that the exception might be multiplied many times, and yet fail to destroy the rule.

If any preacher who reads this thinks that in his case the exception, and not the rule, is applying, let him keep up that hard, faithful work until the rule shall apply as it will, and must. The "unnecessary sacrifice" plays a large and glorious part in the extension of the kingdom, and the richest development may be in the soul of the one who cheerfully and loyally makes the sacrifice for Jesus' sake.

The Surgeon General of the army has concurred in the recommendation of General Grant that John J. Smith, a member of the United States Army Hospital Corps, stationed at Fort Motte, N. Y., who is said to have married a negress, be discharged from the army "for the good of the service."

THE SILENT CAMPAIGN.

We are in the midst of it. There is no sound of guns nor marching of squadrons, but the mighty contest is real.

Let no one think that because the Legislature has passed a temperance law, and that so many towns have prohibited the sale of whiskey or modified it in the shape of dispensaries that we can fold our arms and rest in the belief that the victory has been gained. The victory has not been gained. Far from it. It becomes every man, woman, and child who is an enemy to intoxicating spirits as a beverage to be on the alert.

The following plans of action should be worked incessantly night and day:

(1) No enemy or neutral friend should be placed in an official position that can affect adversely the enactment or application of national, State or municipal law. No matter of what party the candidate may be, if he is hostile to healthy positive temperance laws, do not vote for him.

(2) Use your influence in securing obedience to the temperance laws already in force. You cannot secure perfect obedience to any law this side of the millennium. No one expects this. But if our government means anything, it means that any good law may be enforced to the extent that the infraction becomes the exception and not the rule. In such enforcement of law, every temperance worker has much to do. We are glad to see the activity in this direction displayed in Fayetteville and Durham. In these towns there will be but little chance to preach the time-worn doctrine, "Prohibition does not prohibit."

(3) While the civil law is doing its work, let the moral law be developed and strengthened in the hearts of the young. Let our boys and girls be taught from the very beginning that to drink intoxicating liquor is a violation not only of the law of the State or town, but of God himself; that it is eternally wrong; that it is a sin which will damn the very soul. Let us not make the mistake of assuming that the civil law is, in the long run, adequate. This mistake will be fatal. We must depend primarily on the conscience after all. Our rising generation should be taught at home, in the school, and from the pulpit that we must "touch not, taste not, handle not," not merely because we cannot, but because we must not.

The "American Boy" furnishes quite a list of names that the sons of ministers make up the larger number of the world's great men. The following are enumerated among them: Agassiz, Hallam, Jonathan Edwards, Whatley, Parkhurst, Bancroft, the Wesleys, Beechers and Spurgeons, Cowper, Coleridge, Tennyson, Lowell, Holmes, Emerson, Charles Kingsley, Matthew Arnold, Dean Stanley, Macaulay, Thackeray, Sir Christopher Wren, Sir Joshua Reynolds, Swift, Sterne, Hazlitt, Presidents Cleveland and Arthur, Peter Stuyvesant, Adoniram Judson, Timothy Dwight, Henry Clay, Fritz Green Halleck, Morse, the inventor; Justices Field and Brewer, Senator Dolliver, and others.

It cost Alabama $6,500 to try the accused in the Huntsville lynching cases.

Contributions

Loss or Gain?

BY MRS. E. JOHNSON.

"For whosoever will save his life shall lose it; but whosoever will lose his life for my sake, the same shall save it."—Luke ix. 24.

He has lost his life, you tell me,
The glow, and glimmer, and sheen,
As we cross this narrow neck of land
With the shifting sands, between
The sea of birth and the ocean of death—
A dream in the midst of a dream.

He has lost the spirit of morning,
The mirth, and carol, and song,
And the frolic joy of youthful years
That rolls our world along,
Where the race is not alone to the swift,
Nor the battle to the strong.

He has missed the spirit of noontide,
The triumph of strength and strife,
The loud applause when Ambition crowns
Her darlings with new life;
And Envy bows with fangs half drawn;
And the "clapping of tongues" is rife.

He has missed the glamour of morning;
He has missed the triumphs of noon;
And the night is coming soon,
And he's lost the quiet honors
And joys of the afternoon.

He has missed, O yes, perchance some joy,
In frolic mirth some zest,
In the whispered words, at the evening dance,
Of a love but half in jest,
He has missed the trembling undertone
Of the gay world's very best.

He has missed the triumphs of noontide,
When life is in its flower,
Where Fame awaits with a laurel wreath,
And Wealth from her height of power;
But the laurel wreath is a wreath of thorns,
And the height but a prison tower.

And though alone in the morning,
'Twas at the Gates of the Day,
And the beams of light swept upward,
Around him, ray or ray,
And touched the nearer hill-tops,
And the mountains far away.

And wrapped in a golden glory
Each tower, and spire, and height,
As it swept down the ages,
One glorious blaze of light,
And heaven's morning rose again
Triumphant over night.

He has missed the triumphs of noontide,
Oh, that the blind might see!
For the tide of life swept through him,
A river deep and free,
And bore inflowing streamlets
Of soul-life to the sea.

And Hermes' soul was his soul;
And he walked where Buddha trod;
And climbed the mount of vision,
Where Moses talked with God;
And shared with saints and martyrs
The scorn and stripe and rod.

And still the flood-tide deepens
Around, below, above,
As down the coming centuries,
The path of truth and love,
Slow sweeps the long procession
Upward to God above.

And soul with soul is blended,
And sage, with slave and clod.
Slow-laboring, climbs where he climbed,
Slow follows where he trod,
Up to the Mount of Vision,
Up to the heights of God.

—Christian Guardian.

An Achievement of the Spiritual Life.

BY SAMUEL E. HERRICK, D. D.

The conviction of immortality is an achievement. It comes not as the result of philosophizing, nor is it a conclusion based upon testimony. That one historic man has reappeared in a post-mortem personality, saying, "Because I live ye shall live also," furnishes a starting point for faith; and perhaps to multitudes a sufficient standing ground for lifelong assurance. Such are to be congratulated. But I am not sure that they are not also to be commiserated if they get no further.

For there surely is something beyond this. The fifteenth chapter of First Corinthians is not Paul's high watermark in this matter. That is rather to be found in almost the last letter he wrote: "I know whom I have believed." This is his establishment in present living relations with his living Lord. There is unquestionably a position in which the conviction of life's continuity has little or nothing to do with anything that is merely historic. All the deaths of all the ages are nothing to it. The soul stands in a timeless relation with the eternal God and says "I" and "Thou" with Him, in conscious community life.

No perpetual reiteration of the Easter facts satisfies it. The ocular reappearance falls back among elementary things—important in their time and place, to be sure, but scarcely thought of amid another order of facts which are subjective and experimental. The ever clearer revelation of immortality stands in an ever higher realization of life. Christ is characterized by St. Paul as He who "brought life and immortality to light." There is profound significance in the logical order of the words. It is by first revealing life that He proceeds to the relation of immortality. Immortality only becomes a clear and strong conviction as life rises into its true significance. Life considered or experienced as mere existence—earth-born, earth-fed, to earth returning; touched and moved only through the senses; filling its round of waking, eating, toiling, sleeping—such life, I say, carries with it no conviction of immortality, but rather the reverse.

But life, as it rises out of this mere brutish and sensuous round; life as it becomes filled and graced with qualities that are social and humane; life as it is enriched with domestic affections and conscious of the law of mutual sacrifice; life as it comes to the knowledge of its own spiritual worth and power, springing over all time-bounds and finding itself in sympathy and union with all other noble life that has been, or is, or shall be; life devoted to great ends or spent in holy ministries—such life, I say, does carry with it the assurance also of immortality.

But life as Christ conceived it, lived it, and so "brought it to light," transcended even this. It was life consciously in the Father's house, and that Father the living God; life under conscious filial relations with God. Here is something beyond the mere conscious ness of spiritual dignity and worth; higher than the order of human and social relationships. It is the native, inherent attribute of childhood to rest in its filial relationship as dowered in equity with all paternal wealth and worth, all the paternal power and grace. Not simply what the father has, but what he is and can be; that is the child's conscious possession. And when this mutual relation exists—as Christ avers that it does exist—between God and the human soul, the conviction of its utter incorruptibility and deathlessness presents itself with self-evidencing power.

I can never forget an hour that I passed many years ago by the graves of Charles Kingsley and his wife, in the little church-yard at Eversley. The argument for immortality from the persistency of mutual love rose upon me as I had never felt its force before. That that nobly-mated pair were not sleeping together under the sod, but were consciously together in God's house, I felt most certain as I took in that epitaph of three words, "Amavimus; amamus; amabimus!" Was ever so mighty an argument so compactly put? Given love's real existence, it must go on.

Then what must we say when, taking the promise of Christ's assurance—the great central message of His Gospel—we have come into the consciousness that such a personal bond exists between the living oul and the living God Himself? What must we say when life itself has come to be summed up for us in this one fact, the love of God?

What must we say when all other facts have dwarfed and dwindled for us into nothing more than life's accidents and accessories—this, the one essential, all-embracing, all-sufficient experience; when in the solitude of your own personality you can say with God Himself, "Amavimus, amamus?" The Spirit of God Himself whispers with your spirit , "Amabimus." The conviction is complete, beyond any assurance of logic. There are centainties beyond those of syllogism, in which we stand with the apostle and say: 'We know that, if our earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved, we have a building of God, a house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens." "The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God: and if children, then heirs of God"—not simply of His properties, but of God Himself—"and joint heirs with Christ." We are conquerors of death through the might of deathless love, and are "persuaded that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ our Lord."

This, upon the whole, is the state of my present and growing conviction of immortality.—The Congregationalist.

North Carolinians in Brazil.

WALTER E. LARRUTH.

The North Carolina Conference did a noble thing for missions when it sent W. B. Lee to Brazil. An annual conference is an excellent training school, especially its circuit work. And as for a gift, what greater can the home church make than that of a Methodist itinerant and his wife for the ministry in the regions beyond?

Brother and Sister Lee seem to be perfectly at home in the language. He speaks more like a native than any of our missionaries; at least, this is the consensus of opinion on the field. He has the intonation, uses the colloquial phrases—in other words, has imbibed—what shall I call it—the flavor, perhaps, of the Portuguese tongue. He shrugs his shoulders, works his mouth and gesticulates like a Brazilian. To have all this pantomime without the language is to make one appear ridiculous, but given a familiarity with the niceties of idoiom, shades of meaning, etc., and it actually seems to re-enforce speech that has become enervated in the tropics.

Our brother and his wife got their hold upon the language in the remoter interior where they lived for several years. There they heard nothing but Portugese. Dr. and Mrs. Wainright learned Japanese in this way during their stay at Oita on a distant island west of the Inland Sea, and it is the ideal situation for the absorption and assimilation of a strange tongue. A spoken language is not to be acquired by pulling it to pieces, neither by building it up out of disconnected parts, but by appropriation bodily.

Mrs. Lee is a good housekeeper. How I did enjoy a seat at her table. As we bowed around the board and thanked God for mercies so bountifully received from the giver of every good and perfect gift, my mind ran back to the friends in North Carolina, and I heartily wished some of you could have been with us to share the rice, the fejin (beans), and a cup of Brazilian coffee. We had more than this, but these are native products.

Try as best they can, however, it is exceedingly difficult for missionaries to make ends meet. Lard costs fifteen cents per pound; flour from eight to ten dollars a barrel—sometimes twelve dollars; butter fifty cents; cotton goods which sells in the United States for four cents, costs here twenty-five cents, and shoes seven to ten dollars a pair. Mrs. Lee had to pay twenty dollars duty on a set of chinaware for which she paid fifteen dollars at Wanamaker's before leaving New York.

Rents are no exception. While the Board of Missions provides rent, it is often inadequate and the missionaries have to supplement out of their depleted purses. The house occupied by our brother and his wife is one-story, and has only five rooms, besides the kitchen, and they are forced to pay four hundred dollars a year, or 10 per cent on four thousand dollars. A gift of $3,000 to the Board would enable it to build a substantial parsonage and thus save $400 a year. Will not some one do this for Brother and Sister Lee? In addition to the waste in rental, it has often been the case in Brazil that a Roman Catholic landlord has forced us out of doors. We are thus subject to whims or increasing prejudice of the people.

As for Juiz de Fora, I must say that the sentiment which prevails among the better class is decidely tolerant as regards the presence of our missionary force. Such missionaries as the Lees, the Lander, the Tillys and Dr. and Mrs. Tarboux have made it possible through their own patient, tactful treatment of those who at first were almost bitter enemies. A consistent Christian life will often tell more powerfully than much preaching, and we have nowhere better illustrations of the power of the Spirit of God in maintaining such a life than in those same earnest workers.

Granbery Colege has done much for this community. Its presence and influence for good is recognized by the citizens of the town of every class and religious belief. One significant indication of its recognition is the stimulus given to the Roman Catholic institutions. We are stirring up the priesthood, and I trust to better things. Brother Lee teaches in Granbery and has its work and interests very much at heart. The recent opening was unprecedented in hopefulness. Sixty-nine boys had matriculated when I left last week and there were more to follow. Seventeen of these are studying for the ministry. We need ten scholarships at $100 each to aid those boys who are poor. One made his own trousers while I was there—a good job, too. Another is cobbling shoes and working his way. Will not ten friends of Christian education in Brazil send me at Nashville, Tenn., at once, one hundred dollars each to help these boys?

Fayetteville Circuit.

Dear Dr. Ivey:—You will please allow me space in the Advocate to say a few words about the Fayetteville circuit. It reminds me of the boy's coat which was made out of his father's old one, but it was warm just the same. This is a new work formed out of old ones. However, our people are no less loyal than before the change. Here we have some as consecrated loyal Methodists as are found anywhere; yet it is true, there are some I'm sorry to say who have rather lost their grip, but we are praying to the good Father to bring them into favor with Himself again; and when we stand on the plains of judgment God grant that we may be permitted to see marshalled there the Fayetteville circuit, with her robe washed in the blood of the Lamb.

Doctor, I desire to thank my good Father for preserving my health and strength. Not a single appointment missed by this writer on account of sickness during this year. Sixteen years ago I gave my heart to God. I assisted in my first meeting before I united with the church a few days after my conversion. I have been a public worker in revival meetings ever since. Of course I've been in some gracious meetings; but I don't think I have ever passed through a year's grander and more productive meeting than I have had this year. When I say we have had some good revivals on our work, I mean the real thing.

We had a very good meeting at Campbellton and St. Andrews, though not the revival at either place that we desired to see. However, I think the churches were spiritually warmed and six were added to the church. St. Andrews is one of the old historic places where Methodists have congregated to worship God for over sixty years. Here we have a small membership on account of a sparsely settled community, but I'm glad to say some of these are faithful to the little church.

Bro. L. B. Patishall, a local preacher of our church, assisted me in our meetings at the above-mentioned places, and did the preaching well. I think there is a great future for Brother Patishall.

Bro. H. C. Mouzon, of South Carolina, assisted me at Camp Ground. Here is another old historic spot of Methodism. Brother Mouzon did some of his best work here. The meeting lasted for twelve days, resulting in seventy-four conversions, about 50 per cent of which already belonged to the churches; sixteen accessions to our church and several to the Presbyterian. Here we have some faithful Methodists. They, like a great many others on the work, know just how to take care of not only the preacher, but the Presiding Elder also. As I see it, the future for Camp Ground is bright. The good sisters have organized the principal part of the church (and I hope all will be soon) into a Church Aid Society, to raise money to paint the church inside and out. They have already added to its beauty, as well as to its comfort, a new carpet in the pulpit chancel and aisles.

We began our last protracted meeting at Holt's Hill the 3rd instant, and closed the 16th. It will be remembered that this is where we had such sions and reclamations, with seventy-three accessions and reclamations, with seenty-three accessions to our church; but this year goes ahead of that. Bro. J. C. Humble, of Goldston circuit, assisted me here, and all who know John knows I had good help. He was with us nine days. The other five days I had no pulpit help. This was the finest revival that I was ever in, taking everything into consideration. Souls were saved at every service for fourteen days, and at the last service thirteen professed faith. Sunday, the 9th instant, we held three services, resulting in fifty-eight conversions. There were in all conversions and reclamations 198—seventy-eight joined our church on the 16th. Bear in mind here is where we are building a $1,500 church. Hope some one will read this who will send us a nice contribution to help us finish it. Here we have over two hundred Methodists without a house to worship in. We are now worshipping in the Presbyterian church. Any amount will be highly appreciated. Send to writer.

I am acquainted with quite a number of mill towns, but here is the finest opening I know of anywhere. Here we have one of the finest Sunday-schools in the State. One of the most consecrated men in the South, Rev. B. P. Robinson, is the superintendent. Ben knows how to take care of a Sunday-school. Bro. J. M. Bulla, now in Trinity Park, was our superintendent here for quite awhile and did the work well.

Our last District Conference licensed three candidates to preach the Gospel from this congregation. We are going to Conference if life lasts with all collections in full.

With best wishes to the Advocate, and hoping to see your face again, Doctor, in a few days at Henderson, I am,

Yours in His name,
CHAS. A. JONES.

October 17, 1904.

When Columbus sailed from Spain he was afloat on a trackless sea. When Lewis and Clark started on their exploring expedition they plunged into an unknown wilderness. But the Christian has a chart, pointing straight to the promised land. Just as the cross-roads in the east have their sign-boards directing to the adjacent towns, so the Bible is studded with guide-posts for daily direction. "Trust in the Lord, and do good;" "Avoid every appearance of evil;" "Seek first the kingdom of God;" "If sinners entice thee, consent thou not;" "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ." It is the only book that brings life and immortality to light through the Gospel.

Soul Food

So long as we love, we serve; so long as we are loved by others, I would almost say we are indispensable; and no man is useless while he has a friend.—Robert Louis Stevenson.

* * *

"I don't believe in deceivin' folks, but if you've had hard thoughts you ain't obliged to own 'em up; take 'em to the Lord in prayer, the hymn says, and then don't go on havin' 'em."—Rebecca.

* * *

So now I have learned my lesson,
And brighter the pathway appears;
I darken no more the to-morrow
With forecasts of sorrow and tears.
I know that my Father is guiding
My feet to a glorious clime,
And sweetly I'll finish the journey
By only one step at a time.

—Mrs. Eva W. Malone.

* * *

"Heaven's gate is shut to him who comes alone," sings Whittier. We must lend a hand to others before we can enter into its glories. When I was a child, a dear old servant of ours used to say, when I had given her any help in my small way, "Ah, my dear, a little help is worth a deal o' pity." And that proverb has often pointed the way ever since."—Marian Pritchard.

* * *

Our best gift is this day that is ahead of us,—to-day. Yesterday some things went wrong. We would live it differently if we could live it over, so we think,—but we cannot. Yet each morning a new, clean day is given to us. As we kneel in morning prayer and ask forgiveness for the stains of yesterday, we may find strength to keep the new gift as unspotted as when it came from the Father of Lights. There will be temptation in this new day; but there need be no sin. "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me."

* * *

"'And if you do marry, Christopher,' she went on, harping fitfully on her favorite string, 'remember that keeping in love is as much the profession for a man as it is the art for a woman, and that love feeds on little delicacies rather than on meat and drink. Don't forget the little things, dear, and the big ones will take care of themselves. I have seen much of men and manners in my life, and they have taught me that it is the small failings, not big faults, which are deadliest to love. Why, I've seen a romantic passion survive shame, treachery, even blows, and another wither out of existence before the first touch of bad breeding. "A man's table manners are a part of his morality," your great-grandfather Bolvair used to say.'"—Ellen Glasgow, in "Deliverance."

* * *

Two persons pushing in the same direction will accomplish more than one person. That is evident enough, but a great deal more would be accomplished if we all acted on it. Said a young minister: "I never make any effort to listen to a preacher who cannot interest me in spite of myself." There would be a dark outlook ahead for that young man as a preacher if his congregation followed his rule. It is well for him, as it is for every preacher, to determine to interest his audience in spite of themselves. But it is just as much a duty for him, when he is part of the audience, to determine to be interested whether the preacher is interesting or not. There will be double the result from any sermon if listener and speaker push together. Even a Phillips Brooks of a Paul or Tarsus can do more with the congregation that is actively with him, than with the congregation that waits to be interested. Are you a drag upon your preacher, or an inspiration?—S. S. Times.

An Oregon inventor claims to have discovered an arrangement by which telephone talkers can see each other.

The Field

In Memoriam—Mrs. Martha Atwater.

BY W. H. MOORE.

Thy sun has set; life's days is past;
The night of death is here;
Its shadows thick on thee are cast,
And cover now thy bier.

A soul like thine can never die,
Its heritage is life—
That crowned life—in regions high
Above this mortal strife!

Peaceful in life, a peaceful end,
Has brought thee to thy goal;
And men their prayers for blessings send,
To rest in peace thy soul!

Rest thee, then, in God's embrace—
Thy lot with Him be cast;
The earth was not a kindred place,
Thou'st found it at the last!

Roanoke Circuit.

Dear Advocate:—We have written nothing in some time, so now we will write a few lines. We have just closed our last meeting. The Lord has graciously blessed our labors this year. We began our meetings the third Sunday in August at Ebenezer, which was held a week, resulting in ten conversions and reclamations and six accessions, and the church greatly blessed.

On the fourth Sunday we went to Smith's, where we had a gracious revival, resulting in the conversion and reclamation of seveenteen souls, fourteen accessions and the church greatly revived. The young ladies of that church have decided to get an organ and have gone to work to that end and are progressing finely.

At Tabor we began the first Sunday in September. Brother Stainback, of Weldon, very kindly yielded to our earnest invitation and came to our help in the time of great need, and preached two very strong sermons on Sunday, and expected to preach Monday, but owing to the hard rain there was no service and he returned home in the evening, and Bro. C. A. Jones came to our help, according to promise, and took charge, Tuesday morning. He remained with us to the close the following Sunday evening. We had one of the greatest meetings this community has ever known. Brother Jones is truly a great preacher. He sways his audience and carries men and women captive for the Lord. Some of our people say they will go farther and pay more to hear C. A. than to hear Sam P. Surely, he did a great work for the Lord here. There were as many as seventy-five conversions and reclamations and thirty accessions. The greatest work was the reviving and putting new life in the church.

Next we went to Pierces, but owing to bad weather and the extreme busy season, we had no visible success. We hope some good was done.

Next and last, we went to New Hope the fourth Sunday in September and opened the service with a large congregation and a Conference collection. Brother Langston came to us Tuesday, expecting to spend some days. He was in poor health when he came, and on Thursday morning he was called home to the bedside of his sick wife, and he was taken sick about the same time, and was sick some days. We are glad to know they are both much improved. Brother Langston preached four strong and greatly appreciated sermons, and did much good, though his stay was short.

We continued the service at eleven and at night until Friday, after which we had night service only, except at eleven o'clock Sunday, conducted by Brother Fulghem. We closed on Saturday evening with the baptizing and receiving of fifteen into the church; three received before, making eighteen in all. Thirty-one conversions and reclamations! There are more to join at nearly every church.

We had with us during the meeting at New Hope, Sister May E. Morecock, who is said to be the oldest member of the M. E. Church, South, in the Warrenton District. She is a wonderful old lady. She has just passed her ninety-third birthday, and attended her church every service, I think as long as we had day service. Sister Morecock is happy in the Lord all the day long, and is just waiting and working till her Lord shall come. Her testimony in the exnerience meetings was great. It truly was a great meeting.

We are now working hard on the Conference collections, and by hard work and help of the Lord, we expect to come out.

We hope to do much for the Advocate before Conference. W. B. HUMBLE.

October 14, 1904.

Buckhorn Circuit Summary.

Six meetings held. Thirty-nine received on profession of faith and twenty-two by certificate. Sixty-one new subscribers to the Raleigh Advocate. Four of the six church buildings very much improved. The Missionary and Conference collections paid in full and a little over. Our face is toward the sunrise as we look forward to the roll-call at Henderson. The Lord has been very good to us. To Him, the good people here, my predecessors on this work, and the brethren who have helped us this year, be all the glory.

Sincerely, G. W. STARLING.

October 24, 1904.

Trinity College Notes.

The first lecture of the series arranged by the Faculty Lecture Committee will be delivered this evening in the Y. M. C. A. Hall by President Kilgo. The subject of the lecture will be "A Generation of Great Men." It is the plan of the committee to have at least one lecture each month. To all these the general public is cordially invited.

Thursday was given as a holiday to enable the students to attend the State Fair at Raleigh. A large number of the students took advantage of the opportunity.

Mr. A. C. McIntosh, of the Law Department, has moved his family to Durham.

Col. G. W. Flowers, of Taylorsville, a member of the Board of Trustees of Trinity College, has moved to Durham.

President Kilgo has an engagement to preach in Wilson next Sunday.

The Y. M. C. A. has arranged a number of special courses to be given under the auspices of this organization. Each Monday evening Prof. Durham conducts a conference on personal work.

Each Sunday afternoon Dr. W. I. Cranford conducts a conference on Harmony of the Gospels.

Professor Merritt is conducting a course of study in the Acts and Epistles.

A mission study class will also be conducted by a competent leader, probably Mr. Hinohara.

Trinity College, Durham, N. C., Oct. 21, 1904.

Carthage Circuit.

The general condition of this charge is good. Hindrances have, to some extent, been overcome, and we are going forward. Revival meetings have been held, and forty have been received on profession of faith. Finances are assuming fine shape; and, while our gain on the Conference collections last year was nearly 50 per cent, we hope to do even better this year.

Rev. J. B. Hurley, our beloved Presiding Elder, held our fourth quarterly meeting last Saturday and Sunday. He did excellent service, favoring our people with strong sermons, and looking carefully after all church interests. He is steadily growing in favor, and the entire Fayetteville District is developing under his skilful management.

During Rev. J. H. Hornaday's pastorate here fifteen years ago four of the six churches now composing the Elisc Circuit were detached to form the new Smyrna Circuit; the parsonage was built by Rev. L. S. Etheridge at Elise, a new town on the Charlotte and Durham Railway. The circuit, in its present shape, is only three years old. It was my pleasure, recently, to spend five days with the pastor, Rev. J. W. Hoyle, in a gracious revival at Pleasant Hill, four miles from Elise. This is his first year there, and yet signal success is crowning his efforts. Think of one hundred souls being added on profession of faith, of three new church buildings in sight and two more being planned, and of all the finances, contrary to custom, coming up in full! Methodism is alive and thriving in western Moore County. Many heads of families, and even some aged persons, have been received this year. Brother Hoyle can preach a good sermon and then go out and draw the plans and erect a church building. He has won the hearty co-operation of a willing, generous people.

R. H. BROOME, P. C.

What's the Matter with Simmons?

Dear Bro. Ivey:—I see my very dear brother, Geo. T. Simmons, is off again. How in the world could anyone take my plain, gum-swamp writing for the gilt-edge style of Dr. Ivey! I feel flattered; don't you?

There must be something the matter with Brother Simmons' head—the inside I mean. But I'm afraid to write much concerning Brother George ever since he wallopped me so for writing about the fire-baptized nonsense in Bladen County.

That "Esopus" communication, I felt sure, was the one thing that nobody would object to; so you may imagine how I was taken back when Brother Simmons sat down on me.

When I got license to preach I felt mighty cheap. You could have bought me for a copper. I didn't feel even as great as a nigger preacher, and somehow I've not got altogether over that low-down feeling yet.

The thing seems to have worked different with Brother Simmons. He regards being a preacher as "higher" than anything in the world. There are many "great" men spoken of in the Bible, but prophets and apostles are spoken of as good, or righteous—not "great."

I met a preacher some time ago who had just been "doctored" by a little school in Western North Carolina.

"How do you feel now," I asked.

"Altogether different," he replied.

"Thought so," said I.

"O, I mean that I feel humbler," said he.

The school has been feeling humbler, too, ever since.

Preaching the Gospel is a glorious calling, but we should not forget that, like Paul, we are to "glory in the cross."

Fraternally, J. V. WILLIAMS.

Poison Ivy.

When one is poisoned with poison ivy, sometimes called poison oak, those who know say that all the drugs in the world are of no use in preventing a bad case of poisoning, unless one begins to do something as soon as the tell-tale itching begins. When the pustules break open one is almost sure to be in for three days or a week of suffering. It is well to have a little bottle of the extract of grindelia in the house all the time. Ten cents worth is enough. You can get it at any drug store. Rub it on the affected parts every five minutes until the trouble is averted, and be sure to lose no time in beginning!—Detroit News-Tribune.

The announcement has been made of the plan of the International Sunday-school Lessons for the years 1906 to 1912. Beginning with January, 1906, "The Words and Works of Jesus from Matthew, Mark, and Luke," run through the entire year to December 31st. Then for the second year, 1907, we have, January to December, "Stories of the Patriarchs and Judges, from Genesis to Samuel."

The Family

Put in Your Bible.

Here is a handy table, furnished by the Christian World, which it would be well to cut out or copy for reference in your Bible studies:

A day's journey was about twenty-three and one-fifth miles.

Sabbath day's journey was about an English mile.

A cubit was nearly twenty-two inches.

A hand's breadth is equal to three and five-eighths is equal to one inch.

A finer breadth is equal to one inch.

A shekel of silver was about fifty cents.

A shekel of gold was $8.

A talent of silver was $538.30.

A talent of gold was $13,809.

A piece of silver, or a penny, was thirteen cents.

A farthing was three cents.

A mite was less than a quarter of a cent.

A gerap was one cent.

An ephah, or bath, contained seven gallons and five pints.

A hin was a gallon and two points.

An omer was six pints.

The Boy's Peril.

The feebleness of parental authority is one of the sore spots in American civilization. Cases are not a few in which the child rules the parent, or in which the parent carries his point only by compromises, by bribes, or in which obedience, if rendered at all, is grudging, reluctant and surly. Not that we stand for a parental policy which absolutely excludes the child from the domestic council in which his character and destiny are involved. He may sit as a silent member without the right to vote, and be heard only upon invitation and in a submissive mood. The family in which the child has the last and decisive say is a fatally bad place for the child to live.

But at no point is it quite so unfortunate for a boy to have the casting vote as in the matter of deciding upon the school in which he is to be educated. It stands to common reason that an uneducated and immature lad is not capable of determining the merits of schools. If the matter is left to him he will almost certainly choose the school that his chum is to attend, or one that is famous for games of his choice, or from some other motive equally frivolous. Is it proper under such conditions to leave to a boy the settlement of questions which involve the serious items of companionship, ideals, and religion? Surely to these grave problems ought to be brought the most sober consideration. And yet a spoiled boy is often made the judge. Moreover the power to choose the school carries the right to criticise and desert it upon a change of mind. It is not the boy who is sent to a school who forsakes it under impulsive whims, but rather the self-important lad who, having chosen the school, feels at liberty to reject it when he feels like it. Many schools find it hard to retain their scholars and that on the ground that the boys are allowed to have their own way about things.

The boy who selects his school reserves the right to do as he pleases after he gets there. He will determine what studies he will take, what teacher he prefers to be under, and when he will quit his class or that as his caprices may suggest.

The boy that goes off to school in this independent way expects to be run on a financial suitable to his independent habits. He has only to notify the "governor" what his needs are and the helpless and vexed father has no recourse except to respond according to orders. How the money goes. How fast the appeals roll in and the dollars roll out. Why not? The boy was master at the start any why shall he not be so afterwards?

The boy has not been discovered up to this day who selected a school on the simple ground that the standards were higher, the discipline more decided and the regulations more strict than those of other schools. It is not natural that a boy will study to find hard things to do.

Let the boy understand that school work is real. The truth must be put into him that he is not prepared for life until he has had proper educational training. Let him be sent to school—not allowed to go, but sent, and that under a contract between his parents or guardian, and the head of the school. This has the smack of business and will go far to make a boy be a good student.—W. E. H., in Baptist Argus.

The Preacher.

Your pastor is back from his vacation and is pushing things churchly.

While he has been away there has been the usual talk about "the devil never taking a vacation," etc., etc.

Well.

Preachers cannot escape criticism. They do not expect to escape. But—

Did you ever try to put yourself in your pastor's place? We are talking now about the city pastor with a big church.

Do you think two sermons a week, however good they may be, is his whole stunt? Do you realize that he is at the beck and call of a regiment of people day and night?

His church is made up of all kinds of persons. It requires the tact and ability of a general to fuse them all into one spirit. There is more or less friction. There are misunderstandings and prejudices and jealousies and back biting. The church militant is not composed entirely of saints. The pastor who holds his place year after year must have executive ability of a high order, and many sleepless nights.

He must visit the sick, bury the dead, comfort the bereaved, encourage the despondent, lift up the fallen, find places for the unemployed and keep an eye on the choir, elders, deacons, ushers and janitor. To hundreds he must be guide, philosopher and friend.

Morever, he must keep in touch with the progress of things. He must be up-to-date in every particular. An old fogy preacher in a city pulpit will last about as long as a snow-ball in July. Where and when he gets time to read and study and think and write is a mystery.

And it is this man worn to a frazzle to whom you begrudge a vacation.

But now that he has come back refreshed in body and soul, enthusiastic for the future of "the cause," be careful that you do not put your petty burdens on his shoulders. Help him. Speak a good word about the sermons. See that he gets credit for his manifold labors.

Give your preacher a chance.—Kansas City World.

Nervous Prostration as a Fine Art.

The splendid gains of civilization have been accompanied by tragic and pathetic losses. To-day life is interesting as it never has been before. By the railway, the steamboat, the telegraph, the newspaper, the whole world is welded into a common brotherhood; and the man in New York is not content unless he knows something of what the men in Tokio are doing. Assuredly modern life is interesting,—but it is not quiet. It interests the mind, but it does not rest the spirit. Perhaps there never has been so much noise in the world as there is to-day; certainly the stress and strain of life were never before spread over so wide an area. The result is that many,—and these not the weakest and the worst, but often the strongest and the best,—are fainting beneath their burdens.

There are some who, humanly speaking, cannot help themselves. There are others whose physical ruin is, in large measure, their own fault. If they can fairly be called victims at all, they are the victims of their own good nature or stupidity. The malady known as nervous prostration is appallingly common. It attacks the strong, robust, and eager man, as well as the nervous and susceptible woman; but no one who has seen the unhappy victims of its assaults can deny that it attacks many who ought to have been impervious to its attacks, had they used the common sense which God has given them, or availed themselves of the opportunities for rest, refreshment, and recreation, which in many cases were scattered plentifully enough about their lives. It almost looks as if the unhappy sufferers had deliberately aimed to place themselves in the position in which they now are, and had cultivated nervous prostration as if it had been a fine art.

Of course the statement has only to be put thus baldly for the absurdity of it to be self-evident. The disease is a ghastly one. In its power to dull the intellect, to paralyze the moral energies, to cripple the spiritual power, to darken the outlook upon life and God, to envelop the spirit with gloom, and to inspire the sufferer with morbid and suicidal thoughts, it is an affection from which the bravest might well shrink back in terror. But, at the same time, many a man, and perhaps still more, many a woman, lives as if he or she were positively courting its oncoming. They do, —sometimes, indeed, thoughtlessly, but often enough deliberately and with their eyes fully open to all the horrible possibilities,—the very things which are bound, in the long run, to reduce them to nervous wrecks.

For a man has not lived to much purpose if he has not learned that all life is governed by laws, and that his health and his usefulness depend upon obedience to those laws. It matters not what the reason for the disobedience may be; often the sin may seem venial enough. But disobedience must be punished, and the wages of sin is prostration, and often death. Many men burden themselves with unnecessary duties. Imaging themselves to be indipensable to a certain piece of work, they wilfully refuse to avail themselves of the useful help which could easily be had, and work on single-handed or with inadequate assistance until their own power of work is ruined. Then they learn, what they ought to have known all the time, that they were not indispensable. Women yield to the exacting demands of a too frivolous society, thinking that they can only refuse those demands on the penalty of social extinction; and then the nervous affections creep insidiously on, till the woman is a wreck, and the social extinction which she dreaded, and to avoid which she sacrificed everything, becomes a fact.—Sunday School Times.

Wise Words.

Bishop Wilson, though not in robust health physically, writes to the editor of the Baltimore Southern Methodist a letter of encouragement which is good to the use of edifying. We borrow from it the following wise words: "Do not worry yourself with controversy. It rarely pays. Great issues sometimes demand it. In the narrow circles of active life it is waste of time and sometimes an imposition upon the people to cover pages with discussion of things that they understand as well as you do. Let them have all facts and do the concluding themselves. It is, too, so hard for men—even good men—in controversy to keep the law of charity. Some of our papers in the last few years have read as though the thirteenth chapter of First Corinthians had been left out when their Bibles were printed. Let us never forget that nothing else will profit if that be wanting. There is no entrance into the kingdom of heaven without it. I have yet many things to say, but my hand and your patience are about exhausted. May you prosper! God is in heaven; and, if the world is not all right, He will see to it that it moves in that direction and that it will at last attain to righteousness. Rest in that assurance and work for it."

It is no use fixing the eye on the compass if the hand is not on the wheel.

Our Boys and Girls

Goldsboro, N. C., October 6, 1904.

Dear Advocate:—I am a little girl of twelve. My mother and father are both dead, and I reside at the Odd Fellows' Orphan Home. Your paper comes to the Home and I read it. I love especially to read the little boys' and girls' letters. This is my first letter, and I hope it will not reach the waste-basket.

I will close, with love to all the little boys and girls.

Your little friend,
FANNIE ROSE.

Raleigh, N. C.

Dear Advocate:—This is my first letter to the Advocate. I am a little girl ten years old.

I like to read the boys' and girls' letters very much.

My mother and father are both dead. I like to stay at the Orphanage.

I will answer Eva Lassiter's question: Joseph had eleven brothers.

I will ask a question: Who tempted Jesus.

I must close.

Your little friend,
BESSIE FAUCETTE.

Wilmington, N. C., Oct. 12, 1904.

Dear Advocate:—I am a little girl four and a half years old. I like to have my mamma and papa read the little boys' and girls' letters to me from the Advocate.

I have one little baby sister three months old. We help mamma keep house. I also have a little playmate named Gladys who comes every day. We have a good time playing dolls and making mud pies.

Papa gave me five cents and I'm going to send it to the orphans. I'm so sorry for them because they have no mamma and papa to give to them.

This is my first letter, and I'm afraid it will get in the waste-basket if I don't stop. Good-bye.

RUTH ELENE WOMBLE.

October, 1904.

Mr. Editor:—Please allow me a short space in your columns as I wish to say a few words concerning our pastor.

Mamma takes the Advocate and I enjoy reading it very much. She is a member of the Methodist church—has been for many years—and she taught me to love Jesus and how to win His love. I joined the church, September 27, 1903, under the ministry of Rev. Y. E. Wright, who is still our beloved pastor. I just think he is one of the best preachers the Conference affords. I love him because I feel he has been instrumental in bringing my soul to Christ. We all hope he will be sent to us another year.

We are anticipating a grand series of meetings at Union church, beginning the third Sunday in October, and we hope it will be a successful one.

I spent a few days very pleasantly with Brother Wright during a meeting at one of our churches called Northeast. I enjoyed being with him very much. May God's richest blessings ever dwell with him and family until we meet where sorrow comes no more, is the prayer of a sincere friend.

EDNA S. DEAL.

Laurinburg, N. C., Octo, 10, 1904.

My Dear Advocate:—I am going to Caledonia school. I study spelling, arithmetic, geography, fifth reader, grammar, and history.

Our pastor's name is Rev. N. H. D. Wilson. This is his last year. My Sunday-school teacher's name is cousin Nealy Jones. Kate McIntyre and I are desk-mates. We are in the same class. My teacher's name is Miss Laura Oglesby. We all love her very much. This is her second session. We live in the country three miles from Laurinburg. It is a sandy country. I love to live in the country best of all. I have four cats and one little one. Their names are Gold, Spot, Blackey, Pretty and May. When Miss Laura staid at our house sheh ad a little cat named Randolph, and we called it Ranny. When Miss Laura would come home from school she would be sitting in the window waiting for Miss Laura to pet her. She would go to sleep in Miss Laura's chair. She died while Miss Laura was in Lynchburg. I have a pet dog and a pet calf. The dog's name is Mack. He is the fattest dog I ever saw. He is so fat he has to sit down to eat. Every day when I come home from school he comes to meet me. Sometimes I go huckleberry hunting. I like to go because there are so many wild flowers. I love pinks the best, and Miss Laura loves violets the best.

Please put my letter in the Advocate.

Your friend,
NANNY ADELINE JONES.

Laurinburg, N. C., Oct. 10, 1904.

My Dear Advocate:—I live in the country near Laurinburg. I go to school. My studies are spelling, arithmetic, geography, Holmes' fifth reader, grammar and United States history.

I am twelve years. In the summer we have a good time wading in the branch and going in bathing. There is a big branch between the schoolhouse and my home. My teacher's name is Miss Laura Oglesby.

Carrie McIntyre and I are deskmates. We study the same book.

Nearly everybody around here has mail boxes.

I have been picking some cotton every evening when we go home from school. There is a library in the school-room. There are fifteen scholars coming to school and there are fifteen desks. They are new desks; we only got them last year, and we think we are going to have a new school-house if Miss Laura can get it built. Our school-house is painted white inside. The top of it is brown. Miss Laura had it painted last year when she came to teach us. We have a pretty yard to build a new school-house on. There are several oak and hickory nut trees. There is one large flower bed and three little ones. Nearly all the flowers died in the summer because we went away and left them, but we are going to have some more in bloom in the spring.

Please put my letter in the Advocate.

Your friend,
SALLIE JAY KENDALL.

The King of Italy and the Peasant.

Here is a little story of the young King of Italy, which is being printed in the Italian papers, and which is worth reproducing. The king was staying in the country at his palace Raccorrigi. He is little known to the people there, for in his walks about the neighborhood he always strives to preserve his incognitio. Hence come some curious adventures. One day, while out tramping, he got very thirsty, and, seeing a woman milking a cow in a field near by, he went up to her and asked her for a glass of milk.

"I can't give any of this," said the woman; "but, if you'll mind the cow, I'll go to the house and get you some."

So the king minded the cow till the woman returned with a glass of cool milk. Then he asked her where all the farm hands had gone.

"Oh, they're always running away now to try to see the king," answered the woman.

"And why do you not go? Don't you want to see the king?"

"Someone must stay and look after things."

"Well, little mother," smiled the guest, "you see the king without running away from your work."

"You're joking!" exclaimed the woman, who could not believe that a monarch could be so quietly dressed. But, when the king put a gold coin into her hand, she fell on her knees, while he continued his walk, laughing over the incident.—Woman's Home Companion.

The Happy Schoolboy.

Will Shakespeare tells a little tale
About a boy who always whined
When schooltime came, and whom a snail
In speed could leave a block behind;
Who'd rather stay at home and play,
And sit around and mope and dream;
But, then, you know, in William's day
They didn't have a foot-ball team.

Now'days the boys look forward to
The morning when the bell disturbs
The autumn air; there's no boo-hoo
At thought of parsing Latin verbs.
J. Caesar's bridge can't make them fret,
Nor crafty Euclid's hardest scheme;
For after school will they not get
A chance to make the foot-ball team?

Vacation time is full of joy;
But Jim's not sorry it has passed.
This year he's not a little boy;
He's twelve pounds heavier than last.
With small-like speed does he approach
The school? Not much; he's full of steam;
Perhaps he can persuade the coach
To put him on the foot-ball team.
—Cincinnati Commereial-Tribune.

The Brush Brigade.

Not long ago I heard a mother tell her boys that intimate and constant acquaintance with brushes goes a great way toward making a gentleman.

The remark struck me, and I asked how many brushes one needs to be familiar with.

"Tell her, boys," said their mother; and the merry fellows shouted:

"One to brush our hair we need,
And one to polish our boots,
One to clean our nails indeed,
And one to dust our suits,
And one to give our hats a switching,
To make us all look very bewitching."

And that's the song of the Brush Brigade.

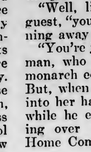
"Willie always twists everything they have to remember into a jingle, and then they don't forget it," said the mother smiling, as the brigade went off in a vivacious procession to practice on their brushes.

"Tramps went out, but gentlemen came back," said the clever little mother, when they came in again, presenting each of the brush-improved four with an apple turn-over for his lunch-box.

"Cleanliness is next to godliness, and dirt is an abomination," said grandmother from her corner.

"It runs in the family." I heard one of the boys say as they put on their coats. "I guess gran brought up her boys to brush just as mother serves us. Never mind; all her boys are gentlemen clear through, and I s'pose we'll be the same if we stick to the brushes."—Wide Awake.

A MATTER OF HEALTH
ROYAL



BAKING POWDER
Absolutely Pure
HAS NO SUBSTITUTE

For Tired Little Folks.

"Auntie, please tell me something nice to do. I'm tired of Sabbath. It's too late to go out, and it's too early for the lamp, and the wrong time for everything."

"Well, let me see," said auntie. "Can you tell me of any one in the Bible whose name begins with A?"

"Yes; Adam."

"I'll tell you a B," said auntie; "Benjamin. Now a C."

"Cain."

"Right," said Aunt Sarah.

"Let me tell D," said Joe, hearing our talk; "Daniel."

And so we went through all the letters of the alphabet, and before we thought of it we were called for supper, the house was lighted, and we had a fine time. Try it.—Lessons for the Little Ones.

An Intelligent Cat.

"I have a cat that can read," declared a lady. "At any rate, she knows when a letter comes for her."

"A letter?" exclaimed her friend in astonishment.

"Yes, a letter. If you don't believe it, I will prove it to you. Just wait a moment while I direct one." She left the room, and presently returned with a sealed envelope, addressed, Miss Pussy, No. ....., Blank Street, City." This letter was duly posted.

The next morning the postman came, and soon afterwards the servant entered with a bundle of letters, among which was that for Miss Pussy. Placing them near her feline highness on the floor, Pussy's mistress said: "Now, Pussy, pick out your letter." Surprisingly enough, Pussy at once showed an interest, and in a moment had pushed aside with her paws the envelope addressed to her.

"Wait a moment," said the mistress, "and she'll open it." Scarcely had she said this when Miss Pussy tore open the envelope, and in a moment was literally devouring its contents—catnips!—Buffalo Enquirer.

OIL CURE FOR CANCER.

Dr. D. M. Bye has discovered a combination of oils that readily cure cancer, catarrh, tumors and malignant skin diseases. He has cured thousands of persons within the last ten years, over one hundred of whom were physicians. Readers having friends afflicted should cut this out and send it to them. Book sent free, giving particulars and prices of Oils. Address the home office, Dr. D. M. Bye Co., Box 462, Dallas, Texas.

A living loving Christian—true of tongue, honest of heart, pure of conduct, and yet lovable in daily life, is the most unanswerable argument for Christianity.—Rev. T. L. Cuyler, D. D.

Woman's Foreign Missionary Society

Please send all communications for this Department to Mrs. B. F. Dixon, Raleigh, N. C.

Officers of the W. F. M. S. of the N. C. Conference, June, 1903-'04.

President—Mrs. Lucy A. Cunninggim, Greensboro, N. C.
Vice-President—Mrs. R. A. Willis, Littleton, N. C.
Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. F. D. Swindell, Goldsboro, N. C.
Recording Secretary—Miss Blanche Fentress, Wilmington, N. C.
Treasurer—Mrs. B. B. Adams, Four Oaks, N. C.
Superintendent and Treasurer Juvenile Work—Mrs. L. M. Hendren, New Berne, N. C.

How many District Meetings, in the North Carolina Conference Society, have been held; and how many more will be held during this beautiful autumnal weather?

Our Conference Society can boast of nine as efficient and faithful District Secretaries as can be found in the missionary organization anywhere. Let us hear from you, dear sisters, about your plans, your work and your meetings.

How many new Auxiliaries, Golden Links societies and Bright Jewel Bands have been organized during the past two quarters?

The organization of new societies is absolutely necessary to the prosperity of our cause.

In the twenty-sixth annual report we learn that the work in the stations we occupy in China, Korea, Brazil, Mexico and Cuba, is flourishing—the minds of the people, some of them from the best classes, are being enlightened; souls are being brought "out of darkness into the marvellous light and glorious liberty of the children of God," everywhere there are manifest tokens of God's pleasure in, and blessings upon, the work—all of which fills the heart with thanks and praise.

To keep our work, not only in this glorious condition, but enable it to move forward in the ever increasing bounds of usefulness, there is an imperative demand for increase of workers and funds at home, and recruits sent out to the ranks of laborers abroad.

Hence, there must be industry and faithfulness on the part of those to whom we look for the lengthening of our cords and the strengthening of our stakes.

If the duty of each one, in all our home work, is fully recognized and faithfully performed, the present "critical situation"—a great promising field with scarcity of funds and laborers—will resolve itself into one of certain and absolute success.

Raleigh District Meeting.

Although the substance of the following notice has appeared in our column before, we take pleasure in noticing the request of Mrs. T. B. Wilder, of Louisburg:

The meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Raleigh District will be held in Louisburg on Saturday and Sunday, October 29th and 30th.

It will be necessary to come to Louisburg on Friday to be in time for the opening services on Saturday morning.

It is desired that every auxiliary in the District be represented.

Corresponding Secretaries are asked to send the names of the delegates and visitors, who will attend, to Mrs. Thomas B. Wilder, Corresponding Secretary, Louisburg, N. C.

Not Afraid But Not Ready.

In the following pathetic little incident written by Rev. T. Wilkinson, there is the principle of soul-winning, which should give us all great concern:

It was in a city within the bounds of Northwest Iowa Conference. The pastor of the First Methodist Church was called to visit a dying man.

On entering the room he found a young man on whose brow he saw the stamp of death.

"Are you ready for the change?" asked the man of God.

"I am not afraid to die, but I am not ready."

"How is this?" said the pastor; "not afraid, yet not ready? I do not understand."

"I will tell you," said the dying man. "Six months ago I was converted, when sick in a hospital. The young people of the church visited and prayed with me, and I gave myself to Christ. I know I belong to Christ now, but I do not feel ready to die—I have not won one soul for Him who saved me, and if I die now, I shall go into His presence with empty hands. Oh, if I could live another six months, or only six weeks, I would try to win at least one soul."

Just then an aged man entered the room. He was the young man's father, who had been away from home, and had just returned. On coming up to the bed he saw his son was slipping away to the unknown. He knelt beside the bed. The young man threw his arms around his neck, and cried, "Oh, father, will you promise me, now I am dying, to meet me in Heaven?" He commenced to pray for his father's conversion. His prayer was a prayer of soul agony. God heard. The father's heart was broken. He, for the first time, began to pray for himself. The minister prayed. Light came, peace came, joy came into the father's heart. He arose a saved man.

In a few minutes the young man entered the presence of his Lord not "with empty hands." He had won a soul for Jesus, and was now ready to go with the King's messenger.

A GREAT SENSATION.

There was a big sensation in Leesville, Ind., when W. H. Brown of that place, who was expected to die, had his life saved by Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. He writes: "I endured insufferable agonies from Asthma, but your New Discovery gave me immediate relief and soon thereafter effected a complete cure. Similar cures of Consumption, Pneumonia, Bronchitis and Grip are numerous. It's the peerless remedy for all throat and lung troubles. Price 50 cents and $1.00. Guaranteed by all druggists. Trial bottles free.

..Dobbin & Ferrall..
(AT TUCKER'S STORE)
Raleigh, N. C.

BRIDAL OUTFITS.

We are fully prepared to furnish a complete Trousseau. Every detail absolutely correct. No better materials can be furnished anywhere, and our dress makers are the best in the world—a broad statement but fully true. It is far better to have the customers come to our store making the trip to Raleigh. Write us if you cannot come in person. You will be given perfect attention. . . . . .
Our Prices are Lower Than Other Stores.

DOBBIN & FERRALL
123 and 125 Fayetteville St.

Woman's Home Mission Society

Please send all communications for this Department to Mrs. R. O. BURTON, Raleigh, N. C.

Officers of W. H. M. S. of the N. C. Conference.

President—Mrs. J. E. Underwood, Elizabeth City.
First Vice-President—Mrs. V. Royster, Raleigh.
Second Vice-President—Mrs. K. P. Black, Littleton.
Third Vice-President—Mrs. J. A. Spiers, Selma.
Recording Secretary—Mrs. C. P. Jerome, West Durham.
Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. S. H. Scott, New Bern.
Treasurer—Mrs. E. L. Prince, Wilmington.
Superintendent of Supplies—Mrs. Ivan Proctor, Raleigh.
Superintendent of Literature and Press Work—Mrs. R. O. Burton.

Our Reading Course.

First Year.—Bible Study: "Harmony of the Gospel," Burton and Stevenson, price 75 cents. "Life of Christ," Stalker, 60 cents. Help recommended: Torrey's "How to Study the Bible;" 50 cents.

Home Mission Study: Annual Report;" "Our Homes;" "Deaconesses in Europe and Their Lessons in America," Jane Bancroft Robinson, 90 cents. "Friendly Visiting Among the Poor," May E. Richmond, 85 cents.

Second Year.—Bible Study: Acts, Epistles and Revelations, with the use of helps in Teacher's Bible. "Life of Paul," Stalker, 55 cents. Help recommended: Torrey's "How to Bring Men to Christ," 50 cents.

Home Mission Study: Annual Report; "Our Homes;" "Child Labor, Willoughby and DeGraffenried, 75 cents. "Jesus Christ and the Social Question," Peabody, $1.25.

Third Year.—Bible Study: The Old Testament from Genesis to Ruth, with the use of helps in Teacher's Bibles. "Outlines of an Introduction to the Old Testament," Beardsley, $1.20. "How to Pray," Torrey, 75 cents.

Home Mission Study: Annual Report; "Our Homes;" Under One Flag," Alice M. Guernsey, cloth, 50 cents; paper, 30 cents. "The Leaven in a Great City," Lillian W. Betts, $1.75.

Reading Course for Young People.

First Year: "Life and Work of Lucinda B. Helm." Arabella W. Alexander, $1.00. "The Workers in the East." W. A. Wyckoff, $1.25.

Second Year: "Out of Mulberry Street," Jacob Riis, $1.00. "The Workers in the West, W. A. Wyckoff, $1.50.

There could hardly be finer food for the mental and spiritual development than this Reading Course, and I urge all Auxiliaries to study it conscientiously. We desire to be well equipped for our high work, hence must gather information, and with all mental advancement, there should be a corresponding spiritual strengthening.

A Library in Every Auxiliary.

Let this be our ambition, and, if we try earnestly, it will become a reality. Elect a librarian to receive and take care of the books generous members may give, and let her also bring a special box for extra pennies, nickels, dimes, etc., and one may feel disposed to give. It will be surprising, perhaps, encouraging, certainly, to see the interest shown, and in a short time the box will contain an amount sufficient to order a book. Our library of Edenton Street Auxiliary has for its beautiful beginning "The Life of Lucinda B. Helm," presented by one of our most faithful and useful members, Mrs. Ivan Proctor. May it prove a high and holy inspiration to every member.

A THOUGHTFUL MAN.

M. M. Austin, of Winchester, Ind., knew what to do in the hour of need. His wife had such an unusual case of stomach and liver trouble, physicians could not help her. He thought of and tried Dr. King's New Life Pills and she got relief at once and was finally cured. Only 25 cents at all druggists.

For Your New Dress

We'll be glad to send you samples of anything in our lines of Dress Fabrics.

Cassimere Suitings, Broadcloths, Covert Cloths, Plain Mohairs, Crepes, Voiles, Tweeds, Meltons, Rainproof Suitings, Fancy Mohairs, Eolliennes.

Our Stock of Dress Trimmings is the largest and most varied we've ever carried, embracing the newest and most up-to-date Kinds.

Write for our new catalogues of INFANTS' FURNISHINGS and LACE CURTAINS, also for sample books of new White Goods. Sent free. Enclose this ad.

We prepay express charges on all orders of $5.00 and over mailed to the house from the Virginias and Carolinas.

Miller & Rhoads,
Richmond, Va.

LIBERTY MILLS

PRODUCES DAILY 4,000 BARRELS OF
Pure Soft Wheat Flour
AND THERE IS HEALTH AND STRENGTH IN EVERY POUND.
Ask Your Grocer.
LIBERTY MILLS, Nashville, Tenn.

Positions GUARANTEED BY A $5,000 BANK DEPOSIT
Railroad Fare Paid. 500 FREE Courses Offered. Partial Cost. Write Quick GEORGIA-FLORIDA ...

A MONEY MAKER.

Why remain poor when you can get rich. I have invented a useful little thing that sells for one dollar at sight. The material can be found in every house. Any one can make it in ten minutes. Send me fifteen two cent stamps or thirty cents silver—I will send you full directions for making them. After making them if you should fail to find ready sale for them, send all you have to me and I will send you one dollar cash for each one. I mean just what I say. Write today. Prompt attention to all letters.
J. K. BUTTS,
Wilmington, N. C.

THE KEELEY INSTITUTE
GREENSBORO, N. C.
For the treatment of THE LIQUOR, OPIUM, MORPHINE and other Drug Addictions. The Tobacco Habit, Nerve Exhaustion

Raleigh Christian Advocate.

ORGAN OF THE

North Carolina Conference, M. E. Church, South.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY AT No. 106 W. MARTIN STREET.

THOMAS N. IVEY, - - - - - - Editor.

Subscription Rates.—One year, $1.50; six months, 75 cents. Preachers of the North Carolina Conference who act as agents receive the paper free of charge. All other preachers, and widows of preachers, $1.00 a year.

Business.—Watch the label. It shows the date up to which the subscription has been paid. Change in label serves as a receipt. Regular receipt will be sent when requested. When the address is ordered changed, both old and new address must be given. Address all letters, and make all checks and money orders payable, to the Raleigh Advocate Co.

Manuscripts.—All matter for publication to be returned to the writer must be accompanied by proper postage. Matter for the Editor and matter for the printer must not be on the same sheet. Obituaries must not contain over 150 words, nor contain poetry. One cent a word will be charged for all obituary matter over 150 words.

Advertising.—The RALEIGH CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE is a fine advertising medium. Rates will be promptly furnished on application.

The World As We See It.

General Corbin has recently made himself conspicuous by his published remarks on the subject of the marriage of officers, claiming that no officer who does not receive a certain salary should enter the married state. General Corbin, in the November Cosmopolitan, arraigns the National Guard as at present organized. He says that the United States is a war-like nation.

The Mormons are ever alert and progressive in colonizing new territory. This fact makes them a very dangerous element to deal with. They have furnished nearly 340,000 acres of land in the State of Tabasco, Mexico, furnishing room for a thousand families. Five hundred are ready to take up homesteads on the property. We may hope that after the election Congress will resume its investigation of the polygamy question in Utah. Neither party is willing to do anything in this matter until the Mormons shall have deposited their votes.

Mr. Thomas W. Lawson continues in the October Everybody's his famous story, "Frenzied Finance." Not having space to get his article in the reading part of the Magazine, he spends about $2,000 in utilizing the advertising department. Mr. Lawson says that he thanks God that he can vote for Roosevelt, but claims that the "System" will undoubtedly elect Parker in avenging the insult given, the newspapers say, by the President in "kicking Standard Oil out of the White House." Mr. Lawson promises some important disclosures, and says that his articles will run for a year or more.

The American Bible Society for the last few years has been under a financial strain due to the falling off in the number of bequests. Very urgent appeals have been made through the United States for more liberal contributions for this important interest. We are glad to know from the figures just received that these appeals have met a most encouraging response. The total receipts for the year ending March 31, 1904, were $496,194.34; of this amount, $133,455.32 was given by the living. Legacies amounted to $81,828.12. The work of circulating the Bible in the Philippines is progressing in a very satisfactory manner.

Our readers may have seen in the magazines an interesting account of the Monorail track. This track has only one rail from which the car is suspended. Great things are claimed for the Monorail. It is claimed by the inventor, Howard H. Tunis, that a speed of 120 miles per hour may be obtained. It is predicted that the Monorail will revolutionizze travel in all sections. The cost of constructing the track and running the car is considerably less than in the case of the two rail track and the old trolley car. What makes the Monorail interesting to us is the fact that Mr. O. L. Tunis, of Elizabeth City, who is a cousin of the inventor, is interesting himself in a Monorail line in Bertie County. A road is now being constructed between Baltimore and Washington which will use the Monorail. We await with deep interest the development of this enterprise.

Since 1894, when the Inter-State Commerce Commission began to keep statistics of fatal casualties, seventy-eight thousand one hundred and fifty-two persons have been killed on railroads in the United States. The number has increased year by year. The increase, however, is smaller than the rate of increase in population. In 1904, 9,984 lives were lost. The large number of deaths in late years is due to the increase of population of traffic,and competition in the matter of speed. There is a law providing for safety appliances on freight and passenger trains. We presume that negligence in enforcing this law is responsible to some extent for the large number of deaths.

After a somewhat stormy encounter with the divorce question, the House of Deputies of the Triennial Convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church has passed, by a large majority, a compromise canon on the remarriage of divorced persons. The compromise permits the remarriage of the innocent person in a divorce for the cause of infidelity, but provides that no remarriage shall be allowed within one year after a decree has been issued by a civil court. Of course the compromise must be ratified by the House of Bishops. This is perhaps as far as any church should go in its legislation on the divorce question. To go farther would be to go beyond the limit marked by Christ Himself, and would inevitably defeat the true purpose of all anti-divorce legislation.

The Johnston County exhibit at the State Fair was most creditable in every respect. It only suggests the necessity of having the different counties of the State represented in order that the State Fair may be a truly agricultural Fair and successful in every respect. The amusement element of the Fair has been unduly exploited for the last several years, and consequently there has been an unwise strengthening of the sentiment that the prime condition of having a successful Fair is the presence of a great number of amusements. The amusement feature is by no means to be ignored, yet it must be remembered that the true function of a State Fair is to show the progress the State is making in its various forms of life and activity. Hence, we think that the management of the Fair should begin a movement for having special county exhibits. Competition will thus be aroused and the best that the State has will be on exhibition. People will come to the Fair feeling that they will not only be entertained, but that they will come in contact with the real solidity of our State life. The recent State Fair, measured by the usual rule, was a great success. The management is to be congratulated. It was nothing but right that Mr. Ashley Horne, at the meeting on the 20th, should have been re-elected president, and that Mr. Joseph E. Pogue should have been re-elected secretary and treasurer.

The Baltic fleet, contrary to the expectations of the civilized world, has actually set sail for the Far East by way of the Suez Canal. Its passage through the North Sea was marked by an incident which has excited every civilized nation and precipated a crisis which has in it elements very hostile to the peace interests of the world. On last Friday night the Baltic fleet opened fire on a fleet of English fishing vessels operating in the North Sea about two hundred miles from the city of Hull. Over two hundred shots were fired, and every Russian vessel took a part. Two fishermen were killed and one traveler sunk. The fishermen were seized with consternation and left the scene as soon as possible. The Mayor of Hull, on learning the news, at once telegraphed to London. Immediately there was intense excitement all over England. A message demanding an apology and reparation has been sent to St. Petersburg, but up to this writing, no reply has been sent. No one seems to know why the Russian fleet should have been guilty of this flagrant, unparalleled outrage. There are three theories advanced. First, that Russia wishes to precipitate a war with England in order that she may secure France and Germany as allies on her present war with Japan. Second, that, the Russian ships, unduly excited by the appearance of the fishing boats which they took for Japanese torpedo boats, were in their terror led to firing upon the fishing fleet. Third, that the officers and sailors of the Russian ships were intoxicated and desired to have a little "lark." The first theory is hardly tenable, as Russia knows well that it would be fatal to her interests to engage in a war with Engand at present. The other two theories are doubtless correct. The Russians were undoubtedly elated over their departure on their long trip. No doubt many of them were intoxicated with ardent spirits, and were not able to distinguish at first innocent fishing boats from Japanese torpedo boats. All that saved the fishing fleet was the habitual poor marksmanship of the Russians. England is highly excited. Russia will apologize and offer an indemnity, but this will not satisfy England. The commanders and officers of the Russian ships must be punished in some way for their lack of discernment and for their rash foolishness. The true state of affairs has been hidden from the Russian people. The St. Petersburg papers only announce that in passing through the North Sea there was a collison with a fishing fleet, and that two boats of the latter were sunk.

AFTER BUILDING AND FURNISHING, BEAUTIFY.

Dr. C. Alphonso Smith, in his remarkably able address before the State Historical and Literary Association in Raleigh last week, claimed that one of the defects in the typical American is his lack of feeling for the beautiful. He congratulated the State on the recent organization of Woman's Clubs for the purpose of beautifying school buildings and school surroundings.

What these clubs are doing for school-houses, the editor of the North Carolina Methodist Handbook is attempting to do for the Methodist parsonages of the State. He was reared in a parsonage. He is prepared to appreciate the significance and value of the work that is being done by the Woman's Home Mission Society in the line of furnishing suitable homes for the preacher and his family. The home, after having been built and furnished, should be beautified. There should be trees, shrubs, vines, and flowers. While the preacher before the great congregation proclaims the eternal veritics, the parsonage should proclaim through its appeal to the aesthetic sense the gospel of beauty. Aesthetics and Morals are two twin roses which feed and beautify each other.

This is an era of church and parsonage building in North Carolina. Why not make it an era also of parsonage beautification? The editor of the North Carolina Methodist Handbook has been asking this question, and has, for his part, answered it by offering prizes for the most artistically ornamented parsonage front, the ornamentation to be floral. The contestants for the prize, who have sent in photographs, represent both Conferences. A committee will pass upon these photographs. The first prize is worth $12.50; the second, $7.50; the third, $5.00. The pictures of the parsonages represented in the contest will appear in the Handbook for 1905 which will be issued January 1. We trust that this movement will be followed by a regular revival of parsonage beautification.

Porto Rico's 1,007 public schools opened with 60,000 pupils enrolled. In the first school year during American occupation there were 800 schools with 25,000 pupils.

Methodist Mention

STATE.

Only five weeks from to-day.

The fine revivals being reported cheer the heart of Methodism.

Rev. M. H. Tuttle, of Hertford, was visiting relatives in Caldwell County last week.

Rev. J. T. Brogden, a worthy local preacher of Goldsboro, did us the kindness to pay his respects last week.

We would be glad to get the Advocate for August 17th and September 14th. We are out of these issues.

The Methodists of the Charlotte District have sold their district parsonage at Monroe and will buy or build at Charlotte.

November is generally a fine month for pastoral work. Yet happy is the preacher who is not under the necessity of being rushed during November.

Rev. M. M. McFarland, P. C. Alamance Circuit, attended the Fair last week. He is looking well, and bears the marks of a year's faithful work.

We were able to obtain only a glimpse of Rev. Plato Durham in the Fair crowd last week. He seems to be fully recovered from his late spell of sickness.

The following worthy laymen, the last being of the Baptist church, paid their respects to the Advocate last week: J. S. Kerr, P. R. King and Wm. G. Riddick.

The stately form of Dr. L. L. Nash was seen in the great throng of visitors to the State Fair last week. He is preparing in a very thoughtful, systematic way for the entertainment of the Conference.

The North Carolina Christian Advocate, ever progressive, has made some very taking improvements in type and the arrangement of departments. We notice the same in the Central Christian Advocate.

Rev. W. D. Sasser, Kenansville Circuit, writes: "I have done more work this year than in any year before, and the Lord has been with us, giving us good meetings and success in extending the work in all lines."

Rev. K. D. Holmes, Roxboro Circuit, and wife have the sympathetic congratulations of their many brethren and friends over the recovery of their two children who were very sick at the same time of typhoid fever.

Rev. D. C. Geddie, Trenton Circuit, writes: "Have held a fine meeting at Oak Grove, three miles from Pollocksville. Twelve accessions and some back-sliders reclaimed. Rev. E. H. Davis preached twice and Rev. C. P. Snow three times."

Rev. G. T. Adams, who called to see us last week, reports that his new church at New Bern will soon be finished. He is enthused, as he has a right to be, over his wonderful Wednesday evening prayer-meetings. He began a protracted meeting on last Sunday.

Rev. G. W. Starling came up to Raleigh from Fuquay Springs on last Monday and paid his respects to the Advocate. He has done a hard year's work, as his fine report at Conference and his letter in this issue, will show. He has sown down his charge with the Advocate. This helps to explain his success.

Rev. M. Bradshaw passed through Raleigh on last Saturday. He was returning from Jonesboro where he attended the funeral of his nephew, a fifteen-year-old son of Mrs. Betty Partridge. Bro. Bradshaw does not seem to be in the least nervous over the approaching change in his work. Quite a handsome Sunday-school room has been added to his church at Goldsboro since last Conference.

Rev. B. H. Black, of Ocracoke, was among our visitors on last Tuesday. The sea air agrees with him. He has been visiting Mrs. K. P. Black and other relatives.

Rev. J. E. Holden, the pastor, is holding a meeting in the Methodist church this week. The meeting commenced Monday night and will continue every night through the week. Mr. Holden being absent Tuesday night, Rev. Mr. Parker, of Hobgood, preached, and those who heard him were well pleased.—Scotland Neck Commonwealth.

We met Rev. C. P. Jerome, of West Durham charge, on the Fair grounds last week. He no longer wears a beard, and looks very much like Church (F. L.) We leave the matter to be settled privately by the two brethren. Brother Jerome, like a kind, thoughtful man, brought his wife along to see the sights. Dr. Nash was equally kind and thoughtful.

The Advocate acknowledges with thanks the folowing invitation: "Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Cotten requests the honor of your presence at the marriage of her daughter, Mary Jenkins, to Mr. Frederick Lee Shockley, Wednesday evening, November second, nineteen hundred and four, at five-thirty o'clock, Siant James Methodist Episcopal Church, Tarboro, North Carolina."

Rev. W. W. Rose, pastor of Weldon Station, announces his intention of asking the approaching Conference to appoint him to the principalship of Central Academy, Littleton, N. C. Brother Rose has made a model pastor, and we are sure that he will make a model principal. No parent need hesitate in placing his boy under W. W. Rose. The Academy will be ready to open by January 4, 1905, and the prospects for a fine opening are excellent.

The friends of Brother Church in Georgia will be glad to hear that he is doing successful work in North Carolina. He is serving the Winfall Circuit, and has been blessed with a most gracious revival, having received as a part of the great revival one hundred and thirty-six members into the church on profession of faith. Brother Church always pushes his work. He had good success while a member of the North Carolina Georgia Conference.—Wesleyan Christian Advocate.

For some time the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of West Market Street Church, this city, has been supporting Miss Helen Richardson, one of our representatives in the China mission. Miss Richardson is at home now on leave, after fourteen years in China, and, on invitation, came last week to spend a few days with us, attending the Greensboro District Meeting on Saturday, and making an address at West Market Street Church on Sunday morning and at Spring Garden Street Church in the afternoon.—North Carolina Christian Advocate.

Notice.

To Preachers of North Carolina Conference:

I desire to get copies of the Journals of the sessions of the North Carolina Conference for the years 1898 and 1899. Anyone who can supply either or both of these will please write me, naming price of the Journals. I will appreciate this.

Those who have extra copies of the Journal for 1903 may find sale for them at the session of the Conference, as the supply in the hands of the Secretary has run short.

Very truly yours,

W. L. CUNINGGIM.

Boarding.

Mrs. J. B. Ley, wife of the editor of the Florida Christian Advocate, will take a few select boarders for the winter. Central location, large rooms, Christian home. Terms reasonable. Address, Mrs. J. B. Ley, Drawer 521, Tallahassee, Florida.

A man's country is not a certain area of land, of mountains, rivers and woods, but it is principle; and patriotism is loyalty to that principle. —George William Curtis.

General Notes

The Columbus, Ga., Y. M. C. A. has four hundred members.

Statistics show that the average number of persons to a family in the United States is 4.7.

The Young Men's Christian Association's Week of Prayer will begin on Sunday November 13th.

The International Sunday-school Convention will be held in Toronto, Canada, June 23-27, 1905.

The largest Presbyterian Sunday-school is that of Bethany church, Philadelphia, with a membership of 5,076.

A recent article in Christian Work sets down profanity as one of the common vices most characteristic of Americans.

The Methodist Protestant Church now claims 1,557 ministers, 185,445 members, and church property valued at $6,327,334.

The statement is made that the Anti-Saloon League of Virginia has closed about 900 saloons during the past year. That is good.

About two thousand members of the Brotherhood of Saint Andrew assembled in Philadelphia last week for the nineteenth annual convention of the organization.

The religious census of Germany reports almost two-thirds of the people Protestants, slightly over one-third Roman Catholics, with less than 6,000 registered as not Christian.

Bishop Merrill's "Digest of Methodist Law," which has long been a standard book of reference in the church, has been rewritten and brought down to date by the author.

The nursery feature connected with Broad Street Church, Knoxville, is a decided success. Mothers attend worship while their babies are taken care of in the ladies' parlors.

The death of Rev. Dr. Vincil, on Wednesday, October 12th, at his home, 3756 Cooke Avenue, St. Louis, removes one of the most interesting men from the fraternal, the religious and the social life of Missouri.

There was a Sunday-school Mass Meeting in the Academy of Music in Raleigh on last Sunday afternoon. The program was very interesting. Dr. A. H. Moment, pastor of the Presbyterian church, Raleigh, made a stirring address.

Methodism of Greater New York is rejoicing over the completion of the Methodist Episcopal Hospital at Brooklyn. The endowment fund has reached $300,000, and the facilities of the institution have been greatly enlarged.

Mr. William E. Johnson had a very interesting paper in the Cautauquan on "Railway Temperance Regulations," showing that from 75,000 to 100,000 new men employed every year on American railroads were obliged to promise to be total abstainers in their work.

The religious census of London, recently made by the London Daily News, shows that 474 persons, out of a possible 1,000, attended church, if the census be accepted as trustworthy. Not a bad showing for the metropolis of the world. The total population of the whole of London is 6,240,366.

Harvard University had during the past year 5,066 students and 534 instructors; Columbia, in New York City, 4,512 and 576; Chicago, 4,463 and 347; Cornell, 3,457 and 393, and Yale, 2,975 and 325. In such crowds of students the individual student and his particular needs are almost lost sight of.

A striking evidence of the missionary revival which is spreading through the Methodist churches of England was witnessed recently in Exeter Hall, London. At the service about one hundred missionaries and other Christian workers took leave of the home church for various stations throughout the world.

NORTH CAROLINA EPWORTH LEAGUE
LOOK FOR CHRIST ON HIS THRONE
DEVOTIONAL CHARITABLE CONFERENCE LITERARY EVANGELICAL
EDITED BY REV. H. B ANDERSON.

Our Business.

Such is the life of members of the church that it is hard to convince the sinner of his need of a Savior. The Epworthian should so live that his life will be a constant rebuke to sin. And this does not mean that his religion should be long faced and his life doleful. No one has a greater right to be happy than a child of God. But in all our hours of pleasure as well as of sorrow one thing should be made clear: that we never lose sight of the fact that we are the children of God and that to us Christ is "all in all" and that all we do is for Christ, that we may show the world its need of Christ.

Our business is so to live and act as to convince those we come in touch with that their greatest need is Christ, and to awaken in them a desire for salvation.

God Resists the Sinner.

God makes the way of transgressors hard in order that the sinner may weary of it and turn his feet into the path of righteousness. "Behold I will hedge up thy way with thorns and I will make a wall against thee."

As surely as all things work together for good to them that love God so surely does God work against a sinner. The same love that prompts Him to send blessings to the righteous leads Him to send hindrances and warnings to the sinner. The sinner who is lost eternally must fight his way down to hell resisted at every step by a loving, Heavenly Father. He must finally trample under foot the son of God and count the blood of the covenant wherewith he is to be sanctified an unholy thing.

Assurance.

There need be no uncertainty about one's religious life if he will note the difference between the witness of the spirit and his religious emotions. The spirit that convicts of sin also convinces of salvation. An emotional outburst comes and goes, but the witness of the spirit abides, and is by no means affected by sorrow or joy or any other mood of the emotional nature.

And because a Christian is not given to ecstatic moods we must not think he has no assurance of salvation. If he serves God steadfastly and faithfully from principle he no doubt has a quiet and abiding assurance that he is a child of God, and I am persuaded that he may be more safely trusted under pressure than his fellow-Christian whose heart and temperament are such that he is given to fervent outbursts of pious emotions.

The Joy of a Cheerful Disposition.

So many people are gloomy. They have dyspepsia; their food disagrees with them; they take a melancholy view of life; things go wrong with them; they grumble and growl until a sour nature is cultivated. Such people are to be pitied. They are unhappy themselves and they make those unhappy also with whom they associate. There is no necessity for this state of things. If you are sick, then diet yourself, take proper exercise, observe the ordinary laws of affliction is such that you cannot realize health and try to get well. If your gain perfect health, then bring yourself into such loving acquaintance with God that He will give you grace to bear your complaint with something like cheerful submission. Some of the brightest and apparently happiest people whom we have ever known have been those whose health was broken and whose lives were shut in from the world of activity. A gloomy disposition is usually the result of a self-centered and brooding sort of habit. It is just as easy to cultivate and to acquire a bright and cheerful disposition. And that sort of a habit makes one happy and it contributes to length of life. No man, and especially no woman, ought to permit a whine to engraft itself in her voice, or wrinkles to come prematurely into her face. A cheerful voice, a sunny face, a sweet spirit make life worth living. The birds neither murmur nor repine. They scratch and chirp and sing all the day long. God provides for them. And He has made infinitely better provision for us. To murmur and complain is a sin against the goodness of our Heavenly Father. It is better to smile than to cry; it is better to rejoice than to weep; it is better to look up than to be cast down; and it is better to sing than to lament. Thrice happy is the man or the woman who makes it a point to cultivate a cheerful disposition.—Texas Advocate.

For LaGrippe and Influenza use CHENEY'S EXPECTORANT.

Cancer Hospital.

We want every man and woman in the United States to know what we are doing —We are curing Cancers, Tumors and Chronic Sores without the use of knife and are endorsed by the Senate and Legislature of Virginia. If you are seeking a cure come here and you will get it.

The Kellam Cancer Hospital,
Richmond, Va.

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE NORTH CAROLINA CONFERENCE

THE Barnes Clothing Store

IN HENDERSON, N. C.,

Sends you Greeting. We expect you with us on November 30th, and extend an invitation to one and all to make our place of business your headquarters. We have a fine assortment of

CLOTHING

AND GENTLEMEN'S FURNISHINGS . . .

of every kind. We are specially prepared to supply our preachers with clerical suits, and will favor them with bargains, if they will call to see us.

If you will send us your measure, and inform us what kind of suit you want, we will have it ready for you when you come to Conference. If we do not suit you it will cost you nothing. We will make it to your interest to give us a call, as we are making special arrangements to supply your needs at the lowest possible figure.

BARNES CLOTHING STORE,
HENDERSON, N. C.

A Notre Dame Lady's Appeal.

To all knowing sufferers of rheumatism whether muscular or of the joints, sciatica, lumbago, backache, pains in the kidneys or neuralgia pains, to write to her for a home treatment which has repeatedly cured all of these tortures. She feels it her duty to send it to all sufferers FREE. You cure yourself at home as thousands will testify—no change of climate being necessary. This simple discovery banishes uric acid from the blood, loosens the stiffened joints, purifies the blood, and brightens the eyes, giving elasticity and tone to the whole system. If the above interests you, for proof address Mrs. M Summers, Box 238, Notre Dame Ind.

Shepard's Lung Food.

A 50 cent bottle of Shepard's Lung Food FREE to any one wishing to test its efficacy in treatment of ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, COLDS, COUGHS, LA GRIPPE, CONSUMPTION, or any affections of the throat or lungs. Indispensable for public speakers.

Send name and address of your druggist and we will send you 50c. to pay him for one bottle of Lung Food. $100 reward for a case which it will not cure.

THE LUNG FOOD CHEMICAL CO.,
Wilmington, N. C.

DO YOU WANT A TEACHER?

The Educational Bureau, Raleigh, N. C., has recently secured the names of a large number of good teachers open to engagement. Write fully as to your needs. It charges you nothing.

XANTHINE HAIR RESTORATIVE.

Everybody that is anybody is now using

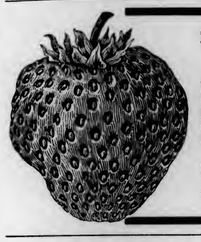
XANTHINE.

You don't know what first-class hair is until you have tried it. It seconds nature. Not a dye. The same for any color hair—but absolutely NEVER FAILS to restore ORIGINAL color to any gray hair. Stops itching almost instantly; prevents dandruff; puts the hair in elegant condition every way.

Circulars gladly sent showing highest testimonials. Price $1 a bottle. Express prepaid on orders sent direct to us. Address XANTHINE CO., Richmond, Va

Text Cards for Home Decoration

on higher finished ivory and dark ground cards, all with silk cord to hang; require no frames. Agents wanted everywhere; liberal discount. GOSPEL PUBLISHING HOUSE, 54 W. 22d St., New York, Room 29.



Save Half in Fruit Trees

Wholesale Rates to Farmers.

Choicest stock of Fruit Trees in the country. All the large, Improved Peaches affording luscious fruit from May to November. All the superb apples and pears covering the whole year. Mammoth delicious plums, cherries, grapes, figs, asparagus, rhubarb, etc. Largest shippers of

STRAWBERRY PLANTS in the World

All trees, etc., delivered FREE. 130 page manuel, telling how to grow all kinds of Fruit, Free to buyers.

Write now for catalogue for fall planting. Mention this paper.

CONTINENTAL PLANT CO., Kittrell, N. C.

WORLD'S FAIR RATES

VIA

Seaboard Air Line Railway

TO ST. LOUIS, MO., AND RETURN.

On account of the World's Fair, St. Louis, Mo., the Seaboard Air Line Railway, in connection with the C. & O. Route via Richmond and the N. C. & St. L. Route via Atlanta, will sell round trip tickets to St. Louis, Mo., at greatly reduced rates from all stations.

Rates from principal points as follows:

	Season Tickets	60 Day Tickets	15 Day Tickets
Charlotte via Atlanta	$36.10	$30.10	$24.65
Durham via Richmond	34.10	28.40	23.30
Durham via Atlanta	38.75	32.30	26.30
Henderson via Richmond	34.10	28.40	23.30
Henderson via Atlanta	38.75	32.30	26.30
Maxton via Atlanta	38.65	32.25	26.25
Raleigh via Richmond	35.60	29.90	24.80
Raleigh via Atlanta	38.75	32.30	26.30
Hamlet via Richmond	37.60	31.90	26.25
Hamlet via Atlanta	37.60	31.90	26.25
Wilmington via Richmond	38.65	32.25	26.25
Wilmington via Atlanta	38.65	32.25	26.25

LIMIT OF TICKETS—SEASON TICKETS.

Good to leave St. Louis up to December 15, 1904, will be sold daily commencing April 25th.

SIXTY DAY TICKETS.

Good to leave St. Louis up to and including 60 days from date of sale. Will be sold daily commencing April 25th.

FIFTEEN DAY TICKETS.

Good to return up to and including 15 days from date of sale, commencing April 25th, and continuing during the Exposition.

COACH EXCURSION TICKETS.

On May 9th and 23rd, 10-day coach excursion tickets will be sold at very low rates from Raleigh $18.50 via Richmond and $20.80 via Atlanta. Tickets not good in Parlor Sleeping Cars. Tickets good to leave St. Louis including ten days from date of sale.

MILITARY COMPANIES.

Special low rates for Military Companies and Bands.

Quickest schedule, direct routes, first-class coaches and Pullman Sleeping and Dining Car Service.

For further information, call on or address us. Same will be cheerfully furnished.

C. H. GATTIS, T. P. A., Raleigh, N. C.
H. A. MORSON, C. P. & T. A., Raleigh, N. C.

When writing advertisers please mention this paper.

Sunday School

Lesson for October 30, 1904.

Elisha at Dothan.

2 Kings 6:8-23.

Time—Ninth century B. C. Place—Israel.

The Mystery.—The story of Naaman hints at predatory raids on Israel by Syria; the present story indicates a more serious and formal invasion of Israel by Syria. There is no certainty in the matter of dates, but most commentators place the incident in the reign of Jehoram of Israel, when Ben-hadad was ruling Syria. In this campaign the Syrian king appears to have been directing in person. To his astonishment every plan made in secret council to entrap the Israelites was divulged and defeated. So "his heart was sore troubled," and he charged treachery upon his own men. His comrades, however, had another explanation. "Elisha, the prophet that is in Israel, telleth the king of Israel the words that thou speakest in thy bedchamber." The words hint at Elisha's extended reputation and at a widespread belief in his power of working wonders. The king accents the explanation and orders the capture of Elisha.

At Dothan.—Elisha is reported to be at Dothan, which has been identified with a place about a dozen miles north of Samaria, on the highroad to Damascus. Hither the Syrian army is brought and the place invested. The investment takes place by night. In the morning the servant of the prophet, having "risen early and gone forth," finds a host compassing the city both with horses and chariots. The hopelessness of escape appals him. He brings word to his master, and exclaims, "Alas, how shall we do?" To which the prophet calmly says, "Fear not: for they that are with us are more than they that are with them." Then the prophet prayed, "Jehovah, I pray Thee, open his eyes, that he may see." And Jehovah opened the eyes of the young man, and he saw; and, behold, the mountain was full of horses and chariots of fire round about Elisha.

Good for Evil.—The rest of the story is not less wonderful. In answer to prayer the army of the Syrians was smitten with confusion of sense and sight. In this condition, and apparently without recognizing him, Elisha led them to the capital, where the king of Israel was encamped with his army. To Jehoram they were legitimate prey to be devoured at once by the sword. "My father," he says to Elisha, "shall I smite them? shall I smite them?" But the spirit of Elisha was of noble temper. With a magnanimity and trust in the inherent power of righteousness and love to work out the interests of righteousness and love, which with all our boasted advance in civilization we do not yet seem to have achieved, Elisha crowned his bloodless conquest with a deed of brotherly kindness. "Set bread and water before them," he commanded, "that they may eat and drink, and return to their master." It was done; and "the bands of Syria came no more into the land of Israel."

Unseen Realities.—The open vision of the lad at Dothan, as Dean Farrar says, has been full of comfort to millions. It is a picture commentary on an oft-recurring theme in Scripture: "The angel of the Lord encampeth round about them that fear Him, and delivereth them" (Psa. 34: 7); "He shall give His angels charge over thee, to keep thee in all thy ways" (Psa. 91: 11); "And I will encamp about Mine house because of the army, because of him that passeth by, and because of him that returneth: and no oppressor shall pass through them any more; for now I have seen with Mine eyes" (Zech. 9: 8); "The angel of His presence saved them: in His love and in His pity He redeemed them; and He bare them and carried them all the days of old" (Isa. 63: 9). With what serenity have God's people in all ages been possessed in the strength and comfort of such a conviction! They were not exempt from trial or hardship; they had their share, some of them a full share, of persecution, want, pain, weakness, oppression, and reviling, but in it all and through it all they had the peace of God, which passeth understanding, and which kept their hearts and minds in the joy and patience of Jesus Christ. Nothing can permanently daunt the spirit sustained by this conviction. The man who believes in God and who trusts implicitly His promises is sure of two things: first, that in the struggle of life he is inviolable and invulnerable until his work is done; and secondly, that when he does die he passes to the bliss of the Father's welcome and the King's guerdon of praise. It is related of Felix of Nola that once when flying from his enemies he took refuge in a cave. Scarcely had he entered it before a spider began to spin its web over the fissure. The pursuer, passing by, saw the spider's web, and did not look into the cave. The saint, as he came out into safety, remarked, "Where God is, a spider's web is as a wall; where He is not, a wall is but as a spider's web." There are worse perils than the danger to life. A man will die some time. His worst foes are those of his own heart, the insistent and tireless enemies of justice, truth, purity, the life of righteousness. The stain and degradation of sin abide. Sin hurts and harms both in this life and in that which is to come. Well for the man who in this fight is panoplied in God. The vision of the hosts to aid him, unseen by other eyes, will be as shield and buckler to him. In the hour of direst need the upward look, the unspoken prayer, will bring to his side the armies of heaven, conquering and to conquer. Faber has written the truth in ringing phrase:

"But right is right, since God is God;
And right the day must win;
To doubt would be disloyalty.
To falter would be sin!"

And of the felicity of such trust:

"Thrice blest is he to whom is given
The instinct that can tell
That God is on the field, when He Is most invisible."

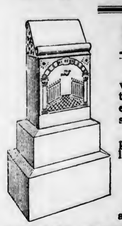
For Asthma use CHENEY'S EXPECTORANT.

Raleigh Marble Works



Monuments

Ship Monumental work to all parts of the State Delivered to your depot at same price as at shop.

Special attention paid to finish and lettering.

Only Best of Stock Used.

Write for new catalogue.

COOPER BROS., Proprietors,
RALEIGH, N. C.

ROYALTY PAID and Musical Compositions. We arrange and popularize. ON SONG POEMS, PIONEER PUB. CO. 625 Baltimore Bldg., CHICAGO, ILL.

DREAD OF HUMANITY

I am compelled by a sense of gratitude to tell you the great good your remedy has done me in a case of Contagious Blood Poison. Among other symptoms I was severely afflicted with Rheumatism, and got almost past going. The disease got a firm hold upon my system; my blood was thoroughly poisoned with the virus. I lost in weight, was run down, had sore throat, eruptions, splotches and other evidences of the disease. I was truly in a bad shape when I began the use of S. S. S., but the persistent use of it brought me out of my trouble safe and sound, and I have the courage to publicly testify to the virtues of your great blood remedy, S. S. S., and to recommend it to all blood-poison sufferers, sincerely believing if it is taken according to directions, and given a fair trial, it will thoroughly eliminate every particle of the virus. JAMES CURRAN.
Stark Hotel, Greensburg, Pa.

Painful swellings in the groins, red eruptions upon the skin, sores in the mouth and loss of hair and eyebrows, are some of the symptoms of this vile disease. S. S. S. is an antidote for the awful virus that attacks and destroys even the bones. S. S. S. contains no Mercury, Potash or other mineral ingredient. We offer $1,000 for proof that it is not absolutely vegetable. Home treatment book giving the symptoms and other interesting and valuable information about this disease, mailed free. Our physicians advise free those who write us.

SSS

The Swift Specific Company, Atlanta, Ga.

WOOL.

If you have wool to sell for cash, to exchange for goods, or to be manufactured, ship it to the CHATHAM MANUFACTURING COMPANY, ELKIN, N. C., and you will not regret it. They pay the highest market price and make the best goods you can get. Their blankets at all the leading expositions have been awarded GOLD MEDALS as the finest made in America.

WRITE THEM FOR SAMPLES.

NO MONEY NEEDED

All you need is to send to us for 12 copies of THE AMERICAN ILLUSTRATED METHODIST MAGAZINE. Sell them to friends at price of 15c a copy, return the $1.80 collected, and we will send you by return mail, absolutely free, our beautiful Holman Teachers' Bible, bound in morocco, helps, maps, 32 full page illustrations, 4000 questions and answers on Old and New Testaments. You will be delighted with it, as all our customers are.

☞Our magazine was never more attractive and popular; it sells quickly.

Pastors and S. S. Teachers may order Bible for examination to be returned at our expense if not earned.

THE METHODIST PUB. CO.,
112 Locust St., St. Louis, Mo.

H. STEINMETZ.

FLORIST.

Cut Flowers, Designs. Plants of all kinds.

PHONE 173. RALEIGH, N. C.

DON'T

give your child old greasy Castor Oil. Give CAS-TO-RINE. Tastes as good as maple syrup. Fifteen cents per bottle at all dealers.

$1.50 will buy a pair Dixie Girl Women's Shoes

Made by Dixie Girls

BEST SHOE ON EARTH FOR PRICE

Hard to find a dealer without them. If so, write us, and we will tell you where to find them.

Geo. D. Witt Shoe Co.
Makers
LYNCHBURG, VA.

"I can only speak of the engine bought of you last Fall in the highest terms * * * We find her to move with the regularity of a clock, a thing that we think very essential in making a good sample of cotton. As for safety, we think it far surpasses steam, and perhaps not more dangerous than water. It seems very simple and easy to learn * * * and believe it to be only a question of time when they will take the place of steam engines."
Rev. J. W. BURTON,
P. E. (The M. E. Church, South.

Send for catalogue X, stating power requirements.

White-Blakeslee Mfg. Co.
Birmingham, Ala.

Raleigh and Cape Fear Railroad

TIME TABLE.

Effect 12:01 A. M., Sunday, October 9, 1904.

NORTH BOUND TRAINS.					NOR. BOUND TRAINS.
Daily, ex. S.					Daily, ex. S.
Second-Class	First-Class		STATIONS.		First-Class	Second-Class
101	105		Lv.	Ar.	104	102
A. M.	P. M.			A. M.	P. M.
7 20	4 15		.....Raleigh.....	9 45	5 85
7 35	4 28		S.....Caraleigh Mills..	9 35	5 20
7 45	4 80		F.....*Sylvola.....	9 30	5 13
7 51	4 36		F.....† Barnes.....	9 20	5 04
8 00	4 45		F.....Hobby.....	9 14	4 57
8 15	4 52		M.....†McCULLERS....	9 10	4 52
8 25	4 56		F.....Banks.....	8 58	4 23
8 30	4 59		F.....Austin.....	8 55	4 21
8 80	5 07		S.....†Willow Springs..	8 50	4 15
8 95	5 15		M.....† JOHNSON MILL	8 40	4 04
9 05	5 17		F.....† Cardenas.....	8 38	4 00
9 20	5 22		S...C. F. & N. Junction	8 33	3 85
9 35	5 20		S.....† Fuquay Springs..	8 39	3 82
9 40	5 31		F.....Buckhorn.....	8 20	3 32
9 45	5 38		F.....Rawls.....	8 17	3 20
10 00	5 45		S.....† Chalybeate.....	8 10	3 20
10 05	5 50		S.....Bradley.....	8 00	3 01
10 15	6 00		F.....* Smith Mill.....	7 55	2 55
10 55	6 10		F.....Lillington.....	7 45	2 40
			Ar.	Lv.

JOHN A. MILLS,
President and Gen. Manager.

Secular News

STATE.

There are two lady rural-delivery carriers in North Carolina.

There was a record-breaking attendance upon the State Fair in Raleigh last week.

Dr. A. J. McKelway, who has been for some time editor of the Charlotte News, has resigned.

The Charlotte Chronicle claims that the population of Charlotte, including the suburbs, is now 40,000.

High Point is to be thoroughly paved in the near future at the expense of the city to be later collected from the tax payers.

Charity and Children says that there is no improvement in the typhoid fever situation at the Baptist Orphanage at Thomasville.

The force of colored men employed by the Southern Railway Company on its big coal chute at the Spencer yards went on a strike unceremoniously Saturday night.

Mr. T. K. Bruner, secretary of the State Board of Agriculture, has returned from St. Louis, where he has served as commissioner in charge of the special agricultural exhibits.

Engineer Fogus of Spencer, was severely injured the night of the 24th at the Spencer round house by an accidental fall from his engine which he was preparing to take out

The State Agricultural Society, in annual session in Raleigh last week, re-elected by a rising vote, Ashley Horne president, Joseph E. Pogue secretary, and Claude B. Denson treasurer.

The drought in Buncombe County and other sections of western North Carolina is becoming more severe every day. Well have gone dry and people are forced to haul water from nearby streams.

Second Lieutenant William D. Pritchard, son of Judge Jeter Pritchard, of this State, killed a brother officer and then killed himself in the Philippines. It is said he was temporarily insane.

A few days ago the sheriff of Polk County took to the penitentiary a 14-year-old boy, who had been sentenced for train wrecking. He had placed an iron spike on the track and this wrecked the train.

The Union Guano Company of Winston-Salem, organized by Winston-Salem capitalists and incorporated under the laws of North Carolina, will establish two large independent fertilizer plants, one in Winston-Salem and the other in Norfolk, Va.

Passenger train, No. 14, from Asheville to Spartanburg, ran over the end of the first safety track on Saluda mountain at 9 o'clock Sunday morning a week, the engine and tender falling over a distance of 15 feet. The engineer and fireman escaped injury by jumping.

The program has been issued by Guilford Battle Chapter for the annual State conference of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution in North Carolina to be held at the Smith Memorial Building in Greensboro November 1st, 2nd, and 3d.

Mr. John McLaurin, for more than 20 years editor of the North Carolina Presbyterian and now deputy register of deeds of New Hanover County, suffered a stroke of paralysis early Monday morning at his home in Wilmington, and his condition is regarded as critical.

After having been delayed for several weeks on account of an epidemic of diphtheria, the session of the graded school at Goldsboro commenced Monday morning. The session has been called two or three times before, but the slim attendance caused the superintendent and board of directors to postpone until the disease had somewhat abated in the community.

Arousing the Interest in Mexico.

There has been inaugurated in the city of Saltillo, Mexico, by the Rev. William Wallace, former President of the National Sunday-school Association, a Teachers' Saturday Night Normal Class. Superintendents of public schools, the president of the Confederation of Sunday-schools and to the Young People's Societies, together with various professors in State normal and missional schools of higher learning, have contributed much toward keeping up, without an interruption, the interest of the class for over two years.

Mrs. Mary Foster Brymer's second visit to Mexico riveted the bands connecting that country with the International organized work. Her platform address and black-board methods are being reproduced all over the country, and her power of physical endurance, her winning, wholesome presence, and her suggestive style, left their indelible impress upon the hearts of the hundreds of Sunday-school workers who were permitted to come into contact with her.

The Presbyterian Sunday-school Quarterly, with a subscription list of over three thousand, and published in Spanish, has introduced a primary and intermediate department, the pictures, suggestive questions, and methods being prepared by Mrs. M. F. Campbell, a missionary who is especially successful in primary work.

An Awakening in the Episcopal Church.

The Episcopal Church has always advocated home Bible study. The Lectionary in the Prayer-book of the Church of England has for centuries appointed daily Scripture readings for church and family use. It is gratifying, therefore, to note the publication of The Church Home Department Quarterly (15 cents a year) for the fourth quarter of the Christian year,—that is, from the thirteenth Sunday after Trinity to the beginning of Advent, 1904. There are many Home Departments in the Church of England in Canada and in the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States, and they will rejoice that at last they have their own attractive publication issued by the Church Record Sunday-school Publication House, Confederation Life Building, Toronto, Ontario.

Undoubtedly the article in the November "Cosmopolitan" which will attract the most general discussion is General Corbin's account of the "Third Battle of Bull Run," as he terms the recent military maneuvers near Manassas, Virginia. General Corbin declares that the United States "never has been a peaceful nation," and intimates that reliance upon the National Guard as at present organized is like leaning on a broken reed. He advocates a change to United States volunteers, under the control of the Federal government. Another article which will be read with a great deal of general interest is on "The Tendencies of the American Stage," by Daniel Frohman. Richard Le Gallienne contributes a most interesting feature to the number. In the well-known meter of the Rubaiyat he has written a powerful argument entitled "Omar Repentant," against the evil of drink. No temperance sermon or pamphlet will make the impression conveyed by these musical quatrains. Lovers of the automobile will read Verner Z. Reed's "To the Sahara by Automobile" with pleasure, while devotees of sport are further entertained with Charles R. Flint's "Upland Shooting." Dulany Hunter has a beautifully illustrated historical article, "The Daughters of Louis XV." John Brisben Walker discusses "The West Point of the Future," and shows how the military academy may have a powerful and uplifting influence upon the business life of the country. "The Great Industries of the United States" series is continued with "The Manufacture of Silk."

I do not know when or how it may please God to give you the quiet of mind that you need; but I tell you that I believe it is to be had: and in the meantime you must go on doing your work, trusting in God even for this.—George Macdonald.

He who fails bravely has not truly failed, but is himself also a conqueror.—Richard Watson Gilder.

For Croup use CHENEY'S EXPECTORANT.

Neuralgic Pain ? Rheumatic Pain ? Instantly Relieved by Painkiller (Perry Davis)

Special Offer

Christmas Music.

This Depository has just received a fine assortment of Christmas services, and until November 20th, will upon receipt of 10c in stamps, send postpaid to any one five of these attractive services as samples. These services are very tastefully gotten up and nearly all contain attractive recitations, which are worth double the money whether you use the music or not.

The regular price of these services is 5c per copy. This offer is good until Nov. 20th only; after that services will be sent at 5c per copy postpaid. Do not ask for free samples, but send us 10c at once and receive five of the most attractive samples ever offered. Address all orders to

Southern Methodist Book Depository,
STAUNTON, VA.

65 VALUABLE PREMIUMS WITH CHEEK & NEAL'S PORTO RICO COFFEE

Makes a good cup of coffee. The best and strongest popular priced package Coffee sold. You not only get good coffee, but your choice of 65 Valuable Premiums is given for the signatures found on each package. Put up by

CHEEK & NEAL COFFEE CO., Nashville, Tenn.

See Large Premium List in every package. Save the signatures.

THIS IS A
RED CEDAR PAIL..

That has seen twenty-two years of Hard Service and having been thoroughly repaired is now ready for 22 more.

MANUFACTURED ONLY BY
PREWITT-SPURR MFG. COMPANY,
NASHVILLE, TENNESSEE.
If your supply house does not carry them in stock, write us giving name of your Supply House.

ACID IRON MINERAL

Registered A-I-M Trade Mark

Is a great natural remedy of wonderful curative power mined from a natural deposit. It cures all diseases, involving inflammation, by purifying the blood and directly healing the irritated parts. Try it on an external sore and watch its magic healing. It acts in exactly the same way on all internal inflammation, such as Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Rheumatism, Kidney Disease, Stomach and Bowel Troubles. Numerous testimonials that it cures when all other remedies fail.

No equal for diseases peculiar to women. Tones up the entire system. Four weeks treatment, only 50 cents. If your druggist cannot supply you, write to

"Cured me completely of bladder trouble." Mrs. Nading, Winston, N. C.
"For sores A. I. M., is worth its weight in gold." J. H. Davis, Beaufort, S. C. (Blood Poison.) "By use of A. I. M. I was cured in a few weeks." J. P. Wingard, Branchville, S. C.

ACID IRON MINERAL CO., J. H. Garst, Gen. Mgr., Salem, Va.
P. H. Haltiwanger, Pres., Columbia, S. C.

Frisco System
Chicago & Eastern Illinois R. R.
FRISCO SYSTEM

Double Daily Trains
BETWEEN
St. Louis AND Chicago
MORNING AND EVENING.

From LaSalle Street, Station Chicago..... 9:50 a. m.—9:10 p. m.
From Union Station (Merchants Bridge) St. Louis..... 9.30 a. m.—9:16 p. m.

Morning or evening connection at both termini with lines diverging.
Equipment entirely new and modern throughout.
A DOUBLE TRACK RAILWAY.
Equipped with practical and approved safety appliances.
Substantially constructed.

Methodist Orphanage

OFFICERS:
REV. J. W. JENKINS, - Superintendent
MRS. J. W. JENKINS, - - Matron
MISS LUCY M. REEKS, Teacher

☞Send money to the Superintendent by Check, Post Office or Express Money Order, or Registered letter.

The Fair.

The Fair has come and gone. Our folks went one day (Thursday) and we saw the folks. They were there. We had a few to come out to see us. We appreciated their visits very much. One brother said: "Why you ought to be proud of this building." I answered, "I am so proud of it now, I don't know what to do. I am doing my best to keep from being too proud, sir."

Receipts up to October 24.

Prof. W. H. Rhodes on subs., $5.00; Haw River Circuit on support of orphan for September and October, viz., Bynum S. S., $2.00; Mann's Chapel S. S., $3.00; Merritts Chapel S. S., $1.00; Mount Pleasant S. S., $3.00; Willie Snipes, $.25. Rich Square Circuit S. S., support of orphan, $5.00; Raeford S. S., $.76; Mrs. H. L. Bledsoe, $1.00.

Dontations in kind: Two quilts from Rich Square by Mrs. M. W. Spray and Mrs. Alma Baugham; clothing, W. H. M. S., Wilmington; clothing, W. H. M. S., Weldon; clothing W. H. M. S., Hertford; fish, from E. B. Moore, Washington; $5.00 on clothing from W. H. M. S., Smithfield; clothing from Aid Society, Washington.

Sick.

I was taken with a pain in the head while talking to the good people of Wilson, which soon descended to my neck and shoulders, thence down my spinal column to my lumber regions. For several days the "old rhematicks," as Mr. Jim Leak used to say, played fantastic tricks along that high-way, to my deep interest, but not to my amusement. I tried to manage my own case. But the old saying, that a "lawyer who pleads his own cause, has a fool for his client," is as true as to the doctors. I failed to manage the case satisfactorily. So the Doctors McGee, father and son, were called in. Young Jim made the attack and the elder Jim finished him up. When the McGees attack disease it has to get from under.

I am on my feet again and am doing business at the old stand.

Our Lillie is Gone.

Yesterday evening our Lillie Dill, our oldest child, left us to enter Greensboro Female College. Lucky Lillie. From the Orphanage to the College. Lucky College—to get such a girl. Lucky Orphanage—to send out such a girl as its first representative. It was said when she came here, "There is a woman in her. Will you give her a chance?" We gave her a chance. We are not disappointed in her. That dearest of all the women's societies—the W. H. M. S., gives her a further chance. We send her on a great big, good girl. The woman will be seen later on. She is to work her way as far as she can. The W. H. M. Societies, individually, contributed the needed funds to supplement her earnings, and the Weldon Society furnish her clothes. They furnished these while she was here. We consider this an auspicious beginning. Lillie has been faithful and true. A great help to us—a real comfort. Everybody on the premises respects and loves Lillie. It was like sending away to school our own daughter, with this thought to sadden us: She will never come back as ours. She goes to make her way in the world. But she knows that she has friends, and she will make more. We could not restrain our tears—and, as we looked to catch the last glimpse of her departing form, we could but whisper, God bless our Lillie! While we were all sorry to part with Lillie and sad to see the circle of the "big five" broken, we are glad that four remain. Our Frances, and our Mabel, and our Cassie, and our Bessie V., are worthy comrades. We expect to be just as sad when they go. Lou Sivills will now be one of the big girls. Then in line will come Malinda, and soon after Lola and Bettie, then Corrie and little Mary (Grand Ma), and Bessie F., "The little girl with the golden curl on her forehead;" Mabel, little Margaret and wee tot Willie, and so on—with many to follow. Then our dear boys will soon be going, and we shall hate to part with them.

I scarcely need say that we are indebted to Mrs. Ivan Proctor for this, more than good luck. Blessings on the dear women of the church.

Who among the preachers is organizing his Sunday-schools in the Orphanage work. There is a rich mine here. Work it brother.

"Just to be good, to keep life pure from degrading elements, to make it constantly helpful in little ways to those who are touched by it, to keep one's spirit always sweet and avoid all manner of petty anger and irritability—that is an idea as noble as it is difficult.—Edward Howard Griggs.

Deep Seated Coughs Cured by Allen's Lung Balsam

WANTED.
A lady to teach a six or eight months School at Maribel, Pamlico County. Good salary and pleasant surroundings. Address J. L. FENTRESS, MARIBEL, N. C.

Good Top Buggies $28.25
Two Years' Guarantee.
Columbus Queen $49.50
Up 30 Days' Free Trial.
Catalogue Free. - - - - - TRY US.
Office and Factory, 861-867 Mt. Vernon Ave., OHIO VEHICLE AND HARNESS CO., COLUMBUS, OHIO.

Great 60 Day

Sale of NEW and 2nd hand pianos and organs.

Special low prices on 2nd hand instruments to make room for our magnificent new styles.

We have many different make 2nd hand pianos and organs, taken in exchange as partial payments on the artistic Stieff, all of which have been carefully overhauled and all represent good values for prices asked. Write for list giving full description. Take first and second choice and and send your order at once to insure securing your choice.

Chas. M. Stieff,
Southern Warerooms
Charlotte, N. C.
211—213 N. Tryon St.
C. H. Wilmoth, Mgr.

The Russian force at Port Arthur now numbers 5,000 men; the town is full of wounded.

For Whooping Cough use CHENEY'S EXPECTORANT.

BLYMYER CHURCH
Please mention this paper.

Quarterly Meetings.

WARRENTON DISTRICT.
G. F. Smith, P. E., Littleton, N. C.

THIRD ROUND.
Northampton, New Hope, Sept. 17, 18
Bertie, Ebenezer, Sept. 24, 25
Williamston and Hamilton, Williamston, Oct. 1, 2
Rich Square, Pinner's, Oct. 8, 9
Hobgood, Williams Chapel, Oct. 15, 16

FOURTH ROUND.
Enfield and Halifax, Enfield, Aug 21, 22
Harrellsville, Harrellsville, Aug. 27, 28
Scotland Neck, Sept. 4, 5
Conway, Providence Sept, 10, 11.
Murfreesboro, Sept. 11, 12
Northampton, New Hope, Sept. 17, 18
Bertie, Ebenezer, Sept 24, 25
Williamston and Hamilton, Williamston, October 1, 2
Rich Square, Pinners, Oct. 8, 9
Battleboro and Whitakers, Whitakers, Oct. 15, 16
Hobgood, Williams Chapel, 22, 23
Warren, Shady Grove, Oct. 29, 30
Warrenton, Warrenton, Oct. 30, 31
Littleton, Littleton, Nov. 3, 4
Weldon, Nov. 6 7
Garysburg, Seaboard, Nov. 5
Roanoke Circuit, Smiths, Nov. 12, 13
Roanoke Rapids, Rosemary, Nov. 13, 14
Ridgeway, Union, Nov. 19, 20
Henderson, Nov. 27, 28

ELIZABETH CITY DISTRICT.
J. E. Underwood, P. E., E. City, N C

FOURTH ROUND.
Hatteras, Trent, Sept. 10, 11
Hertford, Centre Hill, Sept. 17, 18
Perquimans, Oak Grove, Sept. 24, 25
Pasquotank, Newbegun, Sept. 25, 26
Camden, McBride's, Oct. 1, 2
North Gates, Savage, Oct. 5, 9
Gates Harrells Oct. 15, 16
Kitty Hawk, Currituck Inlet, Oct. 22, 23
Currituck, Ebeneezer, Oct. 23, 24
Moyock, Perkins Chapel, Oct. 29, 30
Dare, Manns Harbor Nov. 5, 6
Roanoke Island, Nov. 6, 7
Elizabeth City, First Church, Nov. 13
Elizabeth City Road, Nov. 13
Columbia, Nov. 19, 20
Pantego and Belhaven, Nov. 25
Roper, Nov 26, 27
Plymouth, Nov. 27

WASHINGTON DISTRICT.
J. D. Bundy, P. E., Rocky Mount, N. C.

FOURTH ROUND.
Robesonville, Mt Zion, Sept. 3, 4
Washington, Sept. 11, 12
Washtville, Sharon, Sept. 17, 18
Farmville, Farmville, Oct. 2, 3
Aurora, Oct. 8, 9
Swan Quarter, Swan Quarter, Oct. 12
Fairfield, Oct. 13
Mattemuskeet, Nebraska, Oct. 15 16
Bethel, Bethel, Oct. 22, 23
Tarboro, (night) Oct. 23
Ocracoke and Portsmouth, Ocracoke, Oct. 29, 30
Greenville, (morning) Nov. 6
Grimesland and Vanceboro, Skinnerdine, November 6, 7
Spring Hope, Hornes, Nov. 12, 13
Wilson station, (night) Nov. 13
Wilson Circuit, (Lodge Street) Nov. 14
Fremont, Fremont Nov. 15
Rock Mount, Nov. 16
Bath, Bath, Nov. 19, 20
South Rocky Mount and Marvin, Nov. 22
South Edgecombe, Elm City, Nov. 27, 28

ROCKINGHAM DISTRICT.
John N. Cole, P. E., Rockingham, N. C.

FOURTH ROUND.
Roberdel, Roberdel, Sept. 3, 4
Rockingham station, Sept. 4, 5
Lumberton, Barker's, Sept. 10, 11
St. John and Gibson, St. John, Sept. 15, 16
Laurenburg Sept. 16, 17
Richmond, Steele's Mill, Sept. 24, 25
Maxton and Caledonia, Oct. 1, 2
Hamlet, Hamlet, Oct. 8, 9
Rowland, Rowland, Oct. 15 16
Robeson, Asbury, Oct. 22, 23
Mt. Gilead, Wadeville, Oct. 29 30
Montgomery, Capelsie, Nov. 5, 6
Red springs, Red springs, Nov. 12, 13
Pekin, Concord, Nov. 19, 20
Aberdeen, Aberdeen, Nov. 26, 27

RALEIGH DISTRICT.
W. H. Moore, P. E., Pittsboro, N. C.

FOURTH ROUND.
Franklinton, Grove Hill, September 10, 11
Clayton, Elizabeth, September 17, 18
Oxford Circuit, September 24, 25
Central, October 1, 2
Brooklyn, October 2, 3
Milbrook, Pleasant Grove, October 8, 9
Granville, October 15, 16
Wakefield, October 29
Kenley October 22, 23
Cary, October 29, 30
Epworth, October 30
Oxford station, November 5, 6
Youngsville, November 12, 13
Louisburg, November 19, 20
Tar River Plank Chapel, Novembe

NEW BERN DISTRICT.
F. D. Swindell, P. E., Goldsboro, N. C

FOURTH ROUND.
Mt. Olive and Faison, Mt. Olive, Sept. 17, 18
Jones' Circuit, Lee's, Sept. 24, 25
Goldsboro, Thompson's, Oct. 1, 2
St. Paul, Oct. 2
Centenary, Oct. 9, 10
Pamlico, Bayboro Oct. 15, 16
Oriental, Oriental, Oct. 16, 17
Hookerton, Rainbow, Oct. 22, 23
Grifton Grifton, Oct. 23, 24
Dover, Oct. 29 30
Kinston, Oct. 30
Snow Hill Circuit, Jerusalem, Nov. 5, 6
Craven, Asbury, Nov. 11
Carteret, Harlow Nov. 12, 13
Beaufort, Nov. 13, 14
Atlantic, Wit, Nov. 15, 16
Straits Tabernacle, Nov. 19, 20
Morehead, Nov. 20
LaGrange Circuit, Nov. 23
St. John, Nov. 25
Mt. Olive Circuit, Smiths, Nov. 26, 27

DURHAM DISTRICT.
J. T. Gibbs, P. E., Durham, N. C.

East Burlington, Graham and Haw River, at Haw River, August 27, 28
Mt. Tirzah Circuit, September 3, 4

FOURTH ROUND.
Trinity Church, Sept. 11, at 11 a. m.
Carr Church and Branson, at Carr, Sept. 11 at night
Chapel Hill, Sept. 17, 18
Durham McManen, Sept. 24, 25
Maugum Street, Sept. 25 at night
Leasburg, Salem, Oct. 1, 2
Hillsboro, Cedar Grove, Oct. 8, 9
Roxboro, Concord, Oct. 15, 16
Milton, New Hope, Oct. 22, 23
Yanceyville, Bethel Oct. 29, 30
Mt. Tirzah Circuit, Nov. 5, 6
Burlington, Front Street Nov. 13, 14
East Burlington, Graham and Haw River, Nov. 13, at night
Burlington, Shiloah, Nov. 13
Alamance, Phillips Chapel, Nov. 19, 20
Main Street, Nov. 27, at 11 a. m.
West Durham, Nov. 27, at night

FAYETTEVILLE DISTRICT.
J. B. Hurley, P. E., Fayetteville, N. C.

THIRD ROUND.
Goldstone Maroneys, August 27, 28
Sampson, Bethel, September 3, 4
Fayetteville, Hay Street, September 10, 11

FOURTH ROUND.
Dunn, Sept. 25, 26.
Cokesbury, Cokesbury, Oct. 1, 2
Elise, Fyrs. Oct. 7
Carthage, Oct. 8, 9
Haw River, Bynum's, Oct. 14
Pittsboro, Zion, Oct, 15, 16
Siler City, Oct. 22, 23
Goldston, Oct. 23, 24
Jonesboro, Poplar springs, Oct. 28
Sanford, Oct. 29, 30
Hope Mills, Nov 5, 6
Newton Grove, Nov. 11
Duke, Benson, Nov. 12, 13
Buckhorn, Cokesbury, Oct. 18
Lillington, Nov. 19 20
Sampson, Andrews Chapel, Nov. 25
Fayetteville, Hay Street, Nov. 27
Fayetteville, Hoft's still, Nov. 27

WILMINGTON DISTRICT.
S. B. John, P. E., Wilmington, N. C.

FOURTH ROUND.
Onslow, Swanboro, September 3, 4
Scott's Hill, Acorn Branch, September 3, 4
New River, Turkey Creek, September 4
Burgaw, September 10, 11
Fifth Street, Sept. 18
Market Street, Sept. 18
Town Creek Zion, Sept. 21
Grace, September 25
Clinton, Keener, Oct. 1, 2
Bladen Circuit, Antioch, Oct. 7
Elizabeth, Wesley's, Oct. 8, 9
Magnolia Cs Jetou, Oct. 15, 16
Carro's Creek, Shiloah, Oct. 21
Whiteville, Cerro Gordo Oct. 22, 23
Shallotte Village, Oct. 28
Waccamaw, Bethel, Oct. 29, 30
Burgaw, Burgaw, Nov. 4
Kenansville Warsaw Nov. 5, 6
Onslow, Tabernacle Nov. 9
Jackson and Richlands, Richlands, Nov 10
Southport, Nov. 3
New River, Sneed's Ferry, Nov. 18
Scott's Hill, Scott's Hill, Nov. 19, 20
Bladen Street, Nov. 27

Scholarship Free
FOR ONE MONTH. CLIP AND SEND OR PRESENT THIS NOTICE FOR PARTICULARS.
☞ 150 Page Illustrated Catalogue Free. ☜
DRAUGHON'S PRACTICAL BUSINESS Colleges
RALEIGH, N. C.
St. Louis, Mo. Shreveport, La.
Atlanta, Ga. Knoxville, Tenn.
Paducah, Ky. Kansas City, Mo.
Fort Worth, Tex. Nashville, Tenn.
Columbia, S. C. Little Rock, Ark.
Ft. Scott, Kas. Montgomery, Ala.
Galveston, Tex. Oklahoma City, O. T.

Saw Mills
1500 ft. 1 in. boards per hour with 16 H. P. is the record of our Light 25 ft. Saw Mills. Small Mills for farmers and Large Mills for lumbermen. Also Engines, Boilers Shingle Mills, Edgers, Grist Mills, etc. Write for Catalogue K. Address salem Iron Works, Winston-Salem, N. C.

When writing advertisers please mention this paper.

Marriages

SPENCER—HARVEY.—At the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. Kate Harvey, in Kinston, N. C., October 4, 1904, by Rev. E. H. Davis. Mr. Thomas W. Spencer, of Hyde County, and Miss Bettie Harvey, of Kinston.

cKINNE — HART.—Miss Addie McKinne, daughter of D. E. and Mrs. Bettie McKinne, to Capt. Edgar L. Hart, of Wilmington, N. C., in the Methodist church at Princeton, N. C., on October 5th, by Rev. J. O. Guthrie.

BIDDLE—JONES.—On August 9, 1904, Miss Lillie E. Jones, of Norfolk, Va., and Mr. Robt. Biddle, of Norfolk, Va., at the residence of the bride's brother, W. F. Jones, of Elizabeth City, N. C., were married, Rev. J. E. Underwood, P. E., and Rev. W. F. Jones officiating.

Obituaries

Obituaries containg not more than one hundred and fifty words are inserted free of charge. Those sending obituaries containing over one hundred and fifty words are requested to send with the obituary one cent for every word in excess. Unless this rule is observed the obituary must be cut down to the proper limit.

ELEANOR.—In Edgecombe County, N. C., near Whitaker, on the morning of July 3, 1904, the angel of death visited the home of Leroy and Nannie Eleanor and tore from them their only child, little Julian Eure, aged nine months and two days. He was sick some time before he died, and all was done that human skill can do, but God wanted the little sufferer to live with him. He was the life of the home; the fond parents almost idolized the dear little babe, but they yield submissively to God's will. While they mourn for their darling, they remember that he is waiting for them at the golden gate, and that when God sees best, He will take them to live with him who is "safe in the arms of Jesus."

MABLE BRITT.

SMITH.—Mrs. Kate Smith, wife of William J. Smith, Rowland, N. C., and sister of Rev. J. E. Thompson, of our Conference, was born August 30, 1842; married to Mr. Smith, her second husband, April 29, 1888. She died at her home in Rowland, N. C., September 12, 1904. She was converted at old Bethesda Church under the ministry of Rev. J. B. Martin, and united with the Methodist Church, remaining a consistent member more than fifty years to the day of her death. She loved her church and loved its founder. We miss her very much in our congregation.

She left a sure testimony of her abode. "Blessed are the dead that die in the Lord." God bless the bereaved.

J. W. BRADLEY, P. C.

VINSON—Young D. Vinson was born February 13, 1871, married to Miss Laura Vick Eason on the 22d day of July, 1900; joined the Methodist Church, South, at Selma, under the ministry of Rev. K. D. Holmes some two years ago, and died October 5, 1904.

He leaves a tender and devoted wife, two small children, a brother, mother and three sisters.

Brother Vinson was a good man, true to his friends, his church, his family and his God.

He was patient in affliction and suffering. None of these things moved him nor did I ever hear one word of complaint from his lips.

He was charitable to the faults of others. I never heard him criticize any one adversely, nor did I ever hear any one speak disparingly of him. May God's blessings rest on those he has left behind.

J. O. GUTHRIE.

Smithfield Herald will please copy.

BOLING.—At the close of a beautiful Sabbath, September 25, 1904, Mrs. Julia A.. wife of Mr. J. W. Boling, went from this to a heavenly home.

She was sixty-four years old, having joined the Methodist church in chilhood, and remained a faithful member of same until death.

In her death the community has sustained an irreparable loss. Her neighbors all loved her, and her memory will ever be a precious heritage. She was ever ready to help when in her power to do good to any with whom she came in contact. Those who knew her best loved her most. She leaves a husband and two children (both married). Her devotion to her husband was ideal. She was his joy and comfort; and her love for her children was that which marks a good and faithful mother. May they look to the God of all grace for comfort; and may we all strive to meet her on that beautiful shore.

Her fond niece,
JULIA BERTHA LAWRENCE.

GOODMAN.—Jessie Page Goodman, infant daughter of Jas. O. and Sallie J. Goodman, of Roberdel, N. C., was born September 14, 1903, and died July 12, 1904, aged ten months and eight days.

Little Jessie was a very bright, sweet babe, and was the joy of the household, but God, who gave her, saw fit to remove her from among us and take her to Himself in heaven. Thus the parents and older children of this home have a new tie to bind their hearts to the good world. They have our sympathy in this their time of sorrow, and we earnestly pray God to give them grace to sustain them here and help them to endure this loss, and also prepare them for a reunion with their loved one beyond the last river, where sorrow and sighing will never come.

"Hope looks beyond the bounds of time
When what we now deplore
Shall rise in full immortal prime
And bloom to fade no more."

PASTOR.

ROGERS.—Fodie Y. Rogers was born December 2, 1873, near Rowland, N. C., and married April 15, 1891, to Mr. R. L. Rogers, and died at her home in Rowland, N. C., September 18, 1904. These dates mark the limits of a lovely and beautiful character. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. B. Thompson, and was favored with kindly influences, both social and religious, from her early infancy. In her fourteenth year she openly accepted Christ as a personal Saviour and united with the Methodist church, South. She had much yet to live for. Her husband, a young business man of a most exemplary character, an official member of the Methodist church, measured up to the ideal of his devoted wife. They were so congenial. Five beautiful children (from eleven years down to eleven months of age), one brother, five sisters and a fond father and true devoted husband survive to mourn their irreparable loss. Amid such delightful surroundings of home life it was but natural that she should desire to live to train her children for usefulness here and heaven in the end. God's mysteries are past finding out. Despite the best trained nursing and medical skill, without shrinking or dread, she fell on sleep in Jesus at 4 o'clock on Sunday. Her spirit, doubtless, winged its way to the place where partings ne'er break up and Sabbaths have no end.

Heaven's smiles be with her sad and lonely husband and teach him how to be both father and mother for the little ones.

J. W. BRADLEY,
Patsor.

GILLAM.—Thomas Bland Gillam, son of Reuben and Elizabeth Gillam, was born in Virginia, December 14, 1820, and died at the home of his only daughter, Mrs. J. T. Wiggins, in Wilson, N. C., August 20, 1904, being eighty-three years, eight months and six days old.

Brother Gillam grew up to manhood with a well framed body, a good academic education and graduated from Randolph -Macon College. His early life was governed by pious parents, and he imbibed from them the principles of right doing which never left him.

He was converted at the age of fourteen and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church in which he lived and labored for nearly seventy years. He was an intelligent Methodist, devoted to his church, always present at its services when possible, ready to serve in any and every capacity, and was a faithful, useful steward for a great many years and until his death.

He was particularly a faithful man, faithful to any and everything committed to him. His motto seems to have been—first, faithful and then successful.

Brother Gillam retired from business before I knew him and was then receiving every attention and kindness possible in the elegant home of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Wiggins, his son-in-law and daughter, and never did an old man receive more tender kindness than they gave Brother Gillam.

He was a Bible student throughout his religious life. He read much of it every day and carried a copy in his pocket. He knew much Scripture—could repeat some twenty chapters, besides multitudes of paragraphs and verses. His sight and hearing being impaired for several months before he died, he would sit for hours at a time and quote the Bible and tell me what comfort and strength he received thereby.

He was ripe in his Christian experience, and ready for the exchange of worlds, saying often how happy he would be.

His walk and conversation among these people for so many years has left an influence for good. He was a modest, unassuming man, a devoted follower of Christ, a great believer in his church, constantly doing good, and as far as possible to all men. His life and example will long be felt here. When it was told that "Uncle" Gillam was dead, many were the sad hearts in Wilson. He lived a long, happy and useful life, and died as quietly as a babe goes to sleep. "Blesed are the dead which die in the Lord."

ANDREW P. TYER.

CARROLL.—Mrs. Agnes Estelle Carroll was born March 5, 1865, and died at her home in Warsaw, N. C., September 13, 1904. One of the most choice characters that I have ever met thus went to her reward on the 13th of September.

In her maidenhood her face, sweet and open, mirrored her character. In girlhood she gave her heart to her Lord and herself to the M. E. Church, South. She lived a life fruitful of experience in serving her Lord.

On the 5th of June, 1888, she was married to Mr. Chas. F. Carroll, which was a most happy union, and to them were born four lovely children—two girls and two boys. For several years they have been living in their beautiful home in Warsaw, N. C., and for three years that I have been her pastor every interest

MAKES A CLEAN SWEEP.

There's nothing like doing a thing thoroughly. Of all the Salves you ever heard of, Bucklen's Arnica Salve is the best. It sweeps away and cures Burns, Sores, Bruises, Cuts, Boils, Ulcers, Skin Eruptions and Piles. It's only 25 cents, and guaranteed to give satisfaction by all druggists.

Fine Wood Flooring

Parquet Floors and Specialties. Moore's Floor Wax. Moore's patentItests Send for FREEIllustrated CATALOGUE. E. B. MOORE & CO. 7 Wabash ave., Chicago

Lowest Kind of Rates.

California & Northwest

From Sept. 15th to Oct. 15th. 1904.

Cheap one-way and round-trip tickets on various dates to Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico and Indian Territory. Through tickets from all points. Write me, J. F. Van Rensselaer, Gen. Agt. Southern Pacific and Union Pacific Railroad Companies, 18 Peachtree St., Atlanta, Ga. G. W. Ely, T. P. A., R. O. Bean, T. P. A.

CROSS & LINEHAN CO.,
NEW TUCKER BUILDING.)
234-236 Favetteville St., RALEIGH, N. C.

LET US SHOW YOU WHAT THE FULL MEANING OF BARGAIN-GIVING MEANS IN . . . . . .

CLOTHING
AND GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS

OUR NEW SPRING STOCK NOW RRADY FOR YOUR INSPECTION.

Cross & Linehan Co.,
Leading Clothiers.

of the church was near and dear to her heart. She loved her Lord and His church. She was indeed a helpmeet to her thoughtful husband, one in whom he found a wise counselor in all questions with which he had to deal. She possessed a sunny disposition and into many poor and sad homes did she carry the Gospel cheer. Indeed was she a devoted wife and a fond mother. She leaves four children who share the inexpressible grief of their heart-broken father. Just before she breathed her last she called her children to her bedside and tenderly counseled each one, and to the baby boy (four years old), she said: "Mamma is going to leave her baby boy. Mind papa and Annie (the oldest daughter). Be a good boy, make a preacher and meet mamma in heaven." Then without a movement, she fell asleep.

"Asleep in Jesus! blessed sleep,
From which none ever wakes to weep."

The prayers and love of a host of friends follow the lonely husband in his toils and duties and for his home. This he had just beautified by refurnishing with attractive and beautiful furniture. She lived but six weeks to enjoy this, but now in the celestial home all is lovely, beautiful and well.

"Far from the world, O Lord, I flee,
From strife and tumult far;
From scenes where Satan wages still
His most successful war.

"The calm retreat, the silent shade,
With prayer and praise agree;
And seem by thy sweet bounty made
For those who follow thee."

W. D. SASSER.

Resolutions of Respect.

Forasmuch as it hath pleased God in His all-wise providence to remove from our midst our beloved sister, Mrs. Emily Bridges; therefore be it Resolved 1. That our church has suffered the loss of one of its oldest, most beloved and most useful members.

2. That we bow submissively to Him who doeth all things well.

3. That we record our thanks to the giver of all good for her godly life, her countless deeds of charity and her triumphant death.

4. That we extend our sympathies to her sorely bereaved daughter and grand-children.

5. That these resolutions be recorded in the minutes of our Ladies' Aid Society, a copy sent to her daughter, Mrs. J. B. Goodwin and a copy forwarded to the Raleigh Christian Advocate for publication.

MRS. A. S. COWAN,
MRS. E. N. LOVE,
MRS. J. F. BISHOP,
Committee.

ROBBED THE GRAVE.

A startling incident is narated by John Oliver, of Philadelphia, as follows: "I was in an awful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite, growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Then I was advised to use Electric Bitters; to my great joy, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50 cents, guaranteed, at all druggists.

OAK RIDGE INSTITUTE.

This institution is having the largest attendance ever known there. Practically every boarding-house is filled, and the attendance for the year is expected to reach three hundred.

CHURCH MONEY EASILY RAISED For Bazaars and Fairs, we have a money-raising proposition that never fails. We get the advertising, you get the money. Address Peter-Neat-Richardson Co Wholesale Drugs, Louisville, Ky

PERSONALLY CONDUCTED TOUR TO THE WORLD'S FAIR, NOVEMBER 10, 1904, VIA SEABOARD AIR LINE RAILWAY.

The Seaboard Air Line Railway announces their last personally conducted tour to the World's Fair on Thursday, November 10th, leaving Raleigh at 4.00 p. m., Wilmington at 3.20 p. m., Charlotte at 7.25 p. m. Connection will be made from all other points in the State. Through service will be arranged from Wilmington, Charlotte, and Raleigh.

This is the last special train of the season to the World's Fair, and special low rates will apply from all points on the Seaboard and its connections.

This party will be in charge of a representative of the Seaboard, who will look after the comfort and pleasure of the party and arrange for them to get located at hotels, or boarding houses where the party may desire to stop in St. Louis.

The route selected is one of the prettiest in the South, i. e., via Atlanta, Chattanooga, Nashville, and Cairo, Ill.

For circulars and pamphlets, apply to

C. H. GATTIS, T. P. A.,
Raleigh, N. C.

GO TO ST. LOUIS VIA C. & O. ROUTE.

Now is the time to see the great World's Fair at St. Louis, Mo. Delightful weather and the Exposition complete in all it's beauty. An opportunity not to be missed and never to be forgotten.

See that your tickets read via the C. & O. and Big Four Railways. Shortest, quickest and best route, with fast vestibuled train service.

PIANOS AND ORGANS

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.

A. D. JONES & CO.
Southern Factory Distributors for the World's Famous

KIMBALL

WE Loan you the money to buy them.
WE Give free trials.
WE Pay the freight.
WE Save you 25 per cent.
WE Add nothing to the principal when sold on

EASY PAYMENTS.

Write for our latest piano and and organ catalogue and full particulars.

A. D. JONES & CO.,
208 South Elm Street,
GREENSBORO, N. C.

When writing advertisers, please mention this paper.

HICKS' CAPUDINE CURES ALL HEADACHES.
IT'S LIQUID. The perfect remedy for Colds, Indigestion, Periodic Pains, Brain Fag, etc. Prevents Train Nausea and Sick Headache. Braces the nerves. It's Harmless. Trial bottle 10c.

The Highsmith Hospital

(INCORPORATED.)

A General Hospital, centrally located on Green Street. J. F. Highsmith, M. D., Surgeon and Specialist in the diseases of women. Assistants: J. Vance McGeehan, M. D., Surgeon; J. A. McKethan, M. D., Specialist in the diseases of the eye, ear, nose and throat.

Modern appliances throughout; elevator, electric and gas light; water, heat, hot and cold shower baths and telephone service on every floor; electric call bells in all rooms; sound-deadening rubber treads and linoleum on stairways and halls, operating room second to none, well equipped chemical and microscopic laboratory with Static X-Ray Electric Machine in connection, giving unsurpassed facilities for treatment of the most difficult surgical cases.

Nurses' Home and Training School, under the supervision of Miss Maude Robertson, graduate of The Massachusetts General, of Boston, Mass., the McLean, of Waverly, Mass., and the Sloan Maternity, of New York, and recently head nurse of the surgical department of the Philadelphia Hospital.

The Cochran Annex, complete in furnishing and equipment, with endowed beds for both white and colored.

Domestic and Culinary Department under skilled housekeeper, faultless in sanitation, cleanliness and convenience.

For further information address

J. F. HIGHSMITH, M. D., Fayetteville, N. C.

SERMONS BY THE DEVIL.

By Rev. W. S. Harris.

A new and marvelous book; nothing else like it in the World; calls men out of the dark path and shows them the right way;—304 pages, 36 wonderful illustrations. Retail price only $1.50. Quickest seller ever issued. Agents reporting 10 to 20 orders per day. Send only 10c in stamps for Outfit. Big commission. Don't miss it if you want to make money.

Hudgins Publishing Co., Atlanta, Ga.

.... Chesapeake and Ohio Railway ....
World's Fair Scenic Route
TO
St. Louis, Missouri.

SHORTEST, QUICKEST and BEST ROUTE. Vestibuled, Electric-Lighted Trains with Pullman Sleepers and Dining Cars.
Through tickets from North Carolina with direct connections.
SPECIAL RATES FOR SEASON, SIXTY OR FIFTEEN DAY TICKETS.
Fifteen day tickets from Raleigh, N. C., $24.80.
Sleeping car accommodations engaged upon application.
SPECIAL COACH EXCURSIONS
On authorized dates, tickets good for ten days at rate of $18.50. Correspondingly low rates from other stations. Special accommodations arranged for parties. Stop-overs permitted within limit at C. & O. celebrated mountain resorts.
USE THE C. & O. ROUTE and purchase your tickets accordingly.
For coach excursion dates, reservations and other information, address
W. O. WARTHEN, D. P. A., C. & O. Railway.
Richmond, Va.

World's Fair, St. Louis

EXTRAORDINARILY LOW RATES,

October 4-6-11-13-18-20-25 and 28, 1904.

On above-mentioned dates the Southern Railway announces very low round-trip Coach excursion rates to St. Louis. These tickets will be good in all regular Coaches, and on all trains on dates shown. Tickets good 10 days.

Rate from

Goldsboro	$20.00	Salisbury	$17.00
Selma	20.00	Charlotte	18.30
Raleigh	18.50	Statesville	17.00
Durham	17.00	Marion	16.20
Greensboro	17.00	Asheville	15.40
Sanford	20.40	Hendersonville	15.85

Tickets sold at the above rates not good in Sleeping Cars; for other rates see notices elsewhere.

For full information, World's Fair maps, literature, etc., call on or address any Agent Southern Railway.

R. L. VERNON, Trav. Pass. Agt., Charlotte, N. C.
T. E. GREEN, C. T. A., Raleigh, N. C.
S. H. HARDWICK, Pass. Traf. Mgr.
W. H. TAYLOE, Gen. Pass. Agt. Washington, D. C.

McClure's for November.

McClure's for November is fairly athrill with the keenest interest in the world of men and things of to-day. In both article and story, it is not only pleasing but hewn close to the line of life. Indeed, McClure's seems to become constantly richer, more varied and more brilliant, as this number is well in evidence. Three great political articles especially distinguished the number at this time, and make most important contributions to the literature of the compaign. Vivid pen pictures of the two leading candidates are presented—Parker by ex-President Cleveland, Roosevelt by Senator Lodge; the first by the man whose own experience best qualifies him to speak with authority on the Presidency, the second a most interesting and searching glimpse of the real Roosevelt through the eyes of his long-time friend and political adviser. More new light, a sensational revelation, in fact, is shed by Ray Stannard Baker's researches into the records of the two candidates on the labor question. Though candidates and party managers are dumb, their records speak for them, and tell a story every voter will want to read—a story as interesting as it is important. Mr. Baker's rare power of vivifying facts never showed to greater advantage.

Stewart Edward White begins a new serial, "The Rawhide," like his other stories, full of the free air of the wilderness, poignant with its color and immensity. He has chosen for his present setting the wonderful desert of Arizona, and out of the long monotony of the simple lives of its people he evolves dramatic possibilities which promise a great story. His description of the desert, its meaning and its influence, in this first instalment shows him the master artist here, as in the forest and the mountains. It is illustrated by Maxfield Parrish.

The November number of "The Twentieth Century Home" is a superbly illustrated magazine, and its contents, for interest and variety, are on a par with the artistic side of this new and popular periodical. Some prominent features are "Some Fancy-Dress Balls in London," "Electricity as an Aid to Housekeeping," "Women Who Toil," and "The Homes of George Eliot." This is not taking into account the fiction, which includes a charmingly illustrated story by Florence Wilkinson entitled "The Gipsy Queen," as well as stories by Howard Markle Hoke, Tom Masson and Harriet Prescott Spofford. "The Twentieth Century Home" is primarily a magazine for women with large interests in life, who endeavor to make something of themselves, and therefore it gives considerable attention to means of commercial activity within and outside the home. This month we note at least four articles of this nature, "Why Women Fail in Business," by Elizabeth M. Gilmer; "Is Work Inimical to Beauty?" by Mrs. Wilson Woodrow; "Artistic Bookbinding for Women," and "A Woman's Farm." The desire of every woman for personal details is gratified by sketches of Mr. and Mrs. William Faversham in their Surrey home, and Julia Cooley, the extraordinary child-poet, now only eleven years of age, but already occupying a place on library shelves. Richard Le Gallienne has written a very sympathetic and appreciative account of her personality and work, while Elia W. Peattie does the same for Rose Cecil O'Neill, the popular illustrator. The useful and home-helping departments are up to their usual high standard.

Dr. H. W. Wiley will resume his tests with food preservatives on his "poison squad" on November 1st.

Salisbury Sun: The dream for more than three decades of the descendants of Rowan County Confederate Veterans has been the dedication of a monument in Salisbury to the heroes in gray—living and dead—of the county. The dream was realized when the magnificent monument, designed two years ago, arrived in Salisbury Saturday afternoon from Paris.

PERFECT TORMENT.

Any reader of this paper who suffers from any form of skin diseases, and is tormented with burning, itching, cutaneous affections of any kind, can secure immediate relief and cure by using Tetterine. Ioc for all skin diseases.

Your druggist, or by mail, postpaid, 50 cents.

J. T. SHUPTRINE,
Savannah, Ga.

Don't Let Your Baby Suffer

When it Can So Easily be Cured.

Selma, N. C., August 20, 1904.

Last March my baby—10 months old—had a very bad breaking out The trouble would first come in little clear blisters and become regular sores. The doctor said it was a blood impurity, and treated it three or four weeks but it still grew worse, until a neighbor of mine advised me to try Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy, which I did. He began to heal from the first, and before he had taken two bottles he was ENTIRELY WELL. I cheerfully recommend it for all skin diseases,

MRS. A JONES.

10 CENTS TO JAN. 1, 1905

AND YOUR MONEY BACK

IF YOU ARE NOT SATISFIED

The Progressive Farmer, Raleigh, N. C.—"biggest, brightest and best farm and home weekly in the South"—will be sent to any subscriber or reader of THE CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE every week from now till Jan. 1, 1905, for only - - - - -

10 CENTS!

JUST HALF OUR REGULAR RATES.

And any man's money back if he is not satisfied. This is the offer we make, and we make it because we believe if you read our paper from now till January, you will never again be willing to keep house without it If - - -

THE PROGRESSIVE FARMER.

Doesn't Now Reach Your Home send us 10 cents by next mail and get the paper the rest of the year. - - - - - - -

Poe, Burkett & Kilgore, Editors

RALEIGH, N. C.

King's Business College

(INCORPORATED.)

CAPITAL STOCK - - $30,000.

Learn Bookkeeping, Shorthand, Touch Typewriting, Penmanship and English. Not in a month—this cannot be done. Not free—you cannot get something for nothing, but if merit appeals, we can convince you that KING'S is the best. Established and results of 20 years experience.

References: Every bank and leading business concern in Raleigh or Charlotte. Write for our College Journal and offers we are now making. Address,

KING'S BUSINESS COLLEGE,
Raleigh, N. C., or Charlotte, N. C.

LOUISIANA

A Land of Promise

is open for you. Grasp this opportunity to reap the reward of industry in fertile Louisana—the richest alluvial soil in America. A Land of Perpetual Springtime and Flowers.

Don't Waste Time, Money and Efforts on a Poor Farm.

This company has a large tract of land in the famous Red River Valley, Avoyelles Parish, La., only 1½ miles from Marksville, the county seat. It will be divided into small plantations, and sold on very easy terms—cleared ready for the plow, or with timber standing.

FREE TRANSPORTATION

To All Intending Buyers.

Buy some of this splendid land. It is a rich alluvial formation with virgin top soil from 15 to 30 feet deep. It is no unusual thing for the crops here to yield a profit in one year equal to the original cost of the farm.

COTTON, CORN, RICE AND SUGAR CANE

Pay From $25 to $100 Per Acre.

Do Your Acres Pay You as Well Now?

Transportation facilities are unusually good. A RAILROAD IS NOW BEING CONSTRUCTED THROUGH THE HEART OF THE PROPERTY, which connects with trunk lines covering the north, south, east and west The Shreveport and Red River Valley R. R. passes through part of the tract, and branches of the Texas and Pacific R. R. are on the south and west. Thus a convenient and profitable market is provided for all crops.

To Investigate is to be Convinced.

WANTED: Good, Live, Responsible AGENTS to handle this property.

For further particulars call or write

Land Department Louisiana Construction Co.,

Suite 1004-1008 West End Trust Building, Philadelphia, Pa.

The Grim Reaper

PNEUMONIA

claims thousands of lives every year. This terrible malady is admitted by the medical profession as the most dangerous and quickly fatal disease known. Skilled physicians are baffled by it and many admit that their efforts to cure have always resulted in failure.

GOWAN'S PNEUMONIA CURE

is the only known specific for this fearful disease. It is applied externally, giving immediate relief, allays fever, scatters congestion and effects quick and permanent cure. Hundreds of people have voluntarily testified to its wonderful effectiveness where all other remedies failed. Its value cannot be measured in money.

Sold by Druggists, $1 a Bottle.

Mr. W. T. Carter, Traveling Auditor So. Ry., says: "I consider Gowan's Pneumonia Cure one of mankind's greatest blessings. My 17-year-old son was extremely ill with Pneumonia; your Cure was used and in 3 days all fever had left; on the fifth day he wanted to get out of bed."

Mr. J. W. Hollingsworth, a well known merchant of Louisburg, N. C., says: "Gowan's Pneumonia Cure saved the life of one member of my family and cured another of Pneumonia."

If your druggist cannot supply you, write to

Gowan Medical Co., Durham, N. C.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC COMPANY.

..."SUNSET ROUTE."...

Lowest Rates and Through Service to California. Ask About Them. Through the Rice and Oil Belt.

4 Daily Trains from New Orleans to Points in Louisiana; 3 to Texas; 2 to California and Mexico.

Best Trains, Best Service; Best Everything.

OIL BURNING LOCOMOTIVES.

Through Pullman Tourist Car from Washington, Atlanta, Montgomery and Intermediate points to California, Tri-Weekly.

No trouble to answer questions

J. F. VAN RENSSELAER, General Agent. ATLANTA, GA.

R. O. BEAN, T. P. A.,

Reading Room

Raleigh Christian Advocate

FIFTIETH YEAR. ORGAN OF THE NORTH CAROLINA CONFERENCE. NUMBER 40

RALEIGH, N. C., WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 2, 1904.

Editorial

THE DUTY OF BECOMING USELESS.

In a late article in the Sunday School Times, written by Robert E. Speer, is found this statement: "Our highest duty is to make ourselves useless." Mr. Speer received the idea from H. Clay Trumbull under the following circumstances, described in Mr. Speer's own words: "I remember a few years ago I had letters and telegrams from the Sunday-school Times asking me to come and see them on a business matter. I was shown into Dr. Trumbull's office, and for nearly an hour I enjoyed the privilege of an interview. Delighted, but fearful that I might wear out my welcome, I drew from my pocket the telegram, and handing it to him, said: "You sent for me; you wanted to see me on business." He read the telegram, and from beneath his bushy black eyebrows, gave me a curious glance, and said: "I was writing an editorial the other day on 'The Duty of Becoming Useless.'" I interrupted him and said: "You mean, 'The Duty of Becoming Useful.'" I saw by the look on his face that he had some thought in his mind that I had not grasped, so I sat and listened, as he gave me the purport of that editorial. Then handing me the telegram, he said: "I am going to die some day, and I am trying to make myself useless."

Mr. Trumbull meant that he was trying to live so that his death might not interrupt the work in which he was engaged. So he was training his son and his son-in-law to take up the duties which death would require him to give up.

There is a great deal in this startling, seemingly heterodox thought. It is our duty not only to perform well the duties which have been placed in our hands, but to so perform them that the performance of those duties may not be interrupted at death, but may pass for performance into other hands. We wonder if this double responsibility is properly appreciated? The usual idea is that our responsibility ends with the simple performance of the duties of life. How few realize that we are to see it that those duties may pass safely from our hands into the hands of others.

This thought is the basis of life insurance. Every one who has the physical sustenance of human beings to provide for is under a moral obligation to take advantage of that which, after the death of the provider, takes his place. Every sound life insurance company offers the substitute, and no one should be slow in accepting it by taking out a policy.

The principle is used in many of the best business houses. We are acquainted with a bank president who is so well equipped as a business man that he is competent to manage any large banking institution in the metropolis. His policy is to make his employes, from cashier down, interchange duties occasionally so that any of them may be able to take the place of another in case he should be absent. Each employe is taught to become useless as occasion may demand. We presume that the same is true in a large number of business houses.

The preacher who holds on as long as possible to the old stewards without utilizing new material as opportunity may allow; or who asks to lead in prayer only those who have been praying in public for a long time, and never "breaks in" a new man is certainly making a mistake the germ of which is a failure to teach his people in a practical way the duty of becoming useless. Death and other removing occasions will come and there is a gap which is hard to fill which in a mute pleading way sometimes calls during long years for the one who made himself useful and whose place cannot be filled.

The same is true of every Sunday-school. There should always be a superintendent and teachers in training, so that when the old sloughs off, the new flesh may take its place.

There is a great deal in the old exhortation, "carpe diem"—"seize the present," which means that we should keep our eyes and hearts on the present duty. But there is every whit as much in "vide futurum," which may mean, "use the present so that the future, as far as continuity of personal usefulness is concerned, may take the place of the present." Be useful constantly, energetically, enthusiastically, and with the idea that your work may go on after the tired hands shall have relaxed their grasp. Thus will you prepare for that uselessness which is the badge of a well spent life.

The North Carolina Board of Health has issued a very valuable pamphlet entitled, "Causes and Prevention of Consumption," and this pamphlet should be very widely circulated, and if necessary, forced on the attention of the people. After giving some very important facts on the subject of consumption in general way, the pamphlet gives some specific rules of conduct for the prevention of the disease. The main rule is this: The sputum of a consumptive should always be destroyed before it can dry and assume the form of dust. This brings us to the reflection that all the specific rules may be obeyed, and yet, if a town or city has no regular effective way of allaying dust on the streets, the disease will thrive in spite of all the warning of the physicians and the precaution of the friends and relatives of the patients. The necessity of keeping the streets sprinkled has never yet been fully appreciated by our towns and cities. The idea seems to be that sprinkling should be done in July and August to temper the atmosphere. The real benefit of street sprinkling is keeping down the dust which is more irritating than heat and far more dangerous.

The second Sunday in December was set apart by vote to present in all our city churches the proposition of the St. Louis Christian Advocate to give one dollar on each subscription to the widows and orphans and superannuates.

Our Mission Board has authorized the opening of a new preaching appointment at Jovallanos, Cuba. The new work is among the best and most prosperous people of the town, and will be in charge of Rev. F. Diaz, of Colon, Cuba.

The union evangelistic meetings in the several churches in Atlanta have gone forward during the past week with increasing crowds attending the services, and with deepening spiritual results.

The Christian in Politics.

"We are asked whether Christians should be politicians. We reply by asking another question: Should politicians be Christians?" That significant sentence, quoted from a pamphlet by Herbert Spencer's uncle, in a recent article in The British Weekly, to our mind puts the whole case in a nutshell. Christian men ought to be politicians, because politicians ought to be Christian men. Unless Christian men go into politics, politicians will not be Christian men. We are complaining to-day—and we certainly have ample, and more than ample, reasons for complaint—of the low moral standards obtaining in public life. We ought to do something more than complain. We ought to do our best to remedy the evil. And we can never do our best to remedy the evil till we take our individual share in public business, and add the increment of our own highest principle and utmost rectitude of conduct to the sum total of the forces that make for righteousness in the Commonwealth.

In this free country every man counts one. He has a share in the responsibility—he cannot shirk that, though he may shirk the consequent duty—of carrying on the business of the country. It is the responsibility of a unit only, it is true, but the country is governed by units in aggregation. A vote is the net result of a man's conscientious convictions and highest judgment and best information, embodying his will as to how the country should be governed, and cast for the measures and the men most approving themselves to him. A vote, therefore, represents a man's manhood, it represents him and the best there is in him, in active effort for his country's weal. The more thoughtful and observant and conscientious a man is, the more valuable his vote is to his country, and the more imperative it is that he should use it. In war it is the man behind the gun that does the work; in politics it is the man behind the vote. It is becoming more and more the chief point in the training of an army that each man should be an accurate marksman, so that in actual battle he may shoot to kill; it is becoming more and more a point in the training of a self-governing people that the individual voter should be high-principled, well-informed, and well-balanced, so that he may aim straight, and place his ballot where it will do most good for the country generally.

These are days to arouse Christian men to make their influence felt. There is sore need of a revolution, a revolution in which the best elements of our communities, rather than those not the best, should be most active in our political meetings, and most potential in all the movements which control our public life. And the only possible way to bring this about is for the best people, the men from Christian churches and Christian homes, to take the place which is theirs by every right, and assume the responsibility they have in too many cases sought to evade, and do their duty as citizens and as men. The need of the country is that clean, strong men, men of conscience, character and courage, should throw themselves more and more into the very vortex of politics. We have such men. We have many such men. We have more of such men, thank God, than of any other. But their weight is not what it ought to be in our public life, because they have not been aroused and impassioned to throw that weight into the scale, as it might and ought to be thrown. "We are asked whether Christians should be politicians. We reply by asking another question: Should politicians be Christians?" The conclusion is irresistible.

From October 1, 1903, to October 1, 1904, 2,370 new subscribers went on the mailing list of the Wesleyan Christian Advocate, the North Georgia Conference sending 1,330, the South Georgia Conference sending 786; the balance came from outside the State.

FROM NORFOLK TO DENVER VIA WORLD'S FAIR.

BY REV. A. J. PARKER.

My last Quarterly Conference granted me a month's rest. About that time, at the request of our District Conference, my Presiding Elder detached me from my work for a month and appointed me financial agent for the Albemarle High School, in Elizabeth City, N. C. Rev. C. R. Taylor had charge of the station in my absence. At the close of my month's work, the Board of Directors voted me a complimentary trip to the World's Fair.

With a month's rest, and some one to fill the pulpit in my absence, and my expenses paid, I made preparations to see the Fair. August 30th, at 7.40 p. m., wife and I left Norfolk on the Norfolk and Western train bound for St. Louis. When morning dawned we found ourselves in the heart of the Blue Ridge Mountains. The day was dark and a fog covered the mountains, so we could see only the dim outline of the great hills. The train hurried on through the fertile valley, beyond the Blue Ridge. Almost before we realized it, we found ourselves climbing the Alleghanies. The mist had cleared away and the day was fine. Our route was through the immense coal fields of West Virginia. Coke ovens and mining fixtures were on every hand. Millions of tons of coal are taken from these hills every year. Is the supply inexhaustible, or will the day come when we will have to substitute something else? A short stop at Columbus, Ohio, just long enough to wash off the smut and the dirt, for the weather was warm and dry, and we were off again. This time it was a Vandalia train. All the morning we were passing through the great corn fields of Indiana and Illinois. At 2.30 p. m., we stepped off the train in the Union Depot in St. Louis. Such crowds of men and women! Everybody had started, it seemed, in the opposite direction, and all wanted to ask a question at the Information Bureau. It is wonderful how the railroads can handle such immense crowds of people and so few get hurt.

Before night-fall, we had secured a nice room and settled down for business. For five days we did our best to see the Fair. The exhibits are fine. The half has not been told. To think of a single building that covers twenty acres of ground —room enough to raise 150 barrels of corn. I shall not undertake a description of the Exposition. To appreciate it one must see it. What a pity to tear these great buildings down! They look as though they ought to stand for years to come.

From St. Louis, we turned our faces westward, and continued the journey. Boarding a train on the Chicago and Alton Road, at 9.45 p. m., we spent the night on the train, and reached Kansas City about breakfast time. Here we changed cars, had a few hours to wait, and an opportunity to see something of the city. At 10.50, we resumed our journey, this time over the Southern Pacific. The country through which we passed was full of interest. Our line of travel lay along the Kaw River valley. Judging from the amount of water in the river, it was a peaceable and well-behaved stream, not larger than one of North Carolina's small creeks. But one does not go far before he discovers the marks of terrible floods. A gentleman boarded the train at a little station, and took a seat in front of me. I plied him with questions, and he seemed willing to answer. He informed me that the deep gullies which were to be seen on either side, partially filled with water, were the effects of the terrible flood of two years ago. He showed me where his own house had once stood, and gave me an account of the narrow escape of himself and family from the angry waters. I suppose the valley was fifteen miles wide at this point. For more than one hundred miles the marks remained. Even the cities have not yet obliterated its trail. Lower Topeka still has houses in ruins as a reminder of the awful flood. Finally, we emerged from the valley and came out on the broad, rolling prairie lands of Kansas. Great fields of corn, as far as the eye could see, stretched away in every direction, and as best I was able to judge, there was a good crop. The farmers were busy cutting and stacking alfalfa for winter use. There was every appearance of thrift, buildings were nicely painted and flowers bloomed in plenty. Soon night came down and shut out the light, and we enjoyed a nap. We awoke in the morning amid very different surroundings. We found ourselves in Eastern Colorado. My watch was one hour too fast. This was the second time I had to turn it back to be in keeping with my surroundings. Here we were, watching the sun rise over this desolate looking country, when it had been shining on North Carolina for two hours. Nearly two hundred miles of this region stretches itself out before we reach Denver. The only sign of life was the numerous colonies of prairie dogs and an occasional coyote, skulking behind a bunch of cattle that were feeding on the short buffalo grass which grows on this arid land. Neighbors live from ten to thirty miles apart, while here and there three or four houses would be bunched together. Often as I looked from the car window, over what seemed to be an endless stretch of land, not a house, bush or any living thing could I see—not even an English sparrow nor a grasshopper.

As we neared Denver, things took on a different appearance. Patches of growing stuff were to be seen on every hand. The ranchmen were busy getting ready for winter, which is near at hand. The farmers do not depend on the clouds to water their crops, but upon a system of irrigating ditches, some of which must be more than a hundred miles in length. The big ditch began up in the mountains and was gradually brought down to the plains. If a hill was encountered, they cut through it; if a valley, they either boxed up this big ditch and put it on a trestle or a high embankment. From this one big ditch many small ones convey the water to the fields. After a ride of more than twenty-three hundred miles, we reached Denver, the metropolis of the Middle West.

IN AND AROUND DENVER, AND THE RETURN HOME.

Situated at the junction of the South Platte River and Cherry Creek, with the Rocky Mountains in full view on the west, Pike's Peak on the south and the rolling prairie on the east, with her numerous parks, artificial lakes and public buildings, Denver is a picturesque city. It has about 175,000 inhabitants and more than five hundred miles of streets. The largest smelters in the world are here. About fifteen miles west of Denver is the town of Golden that was at one time the capitol of the State and marks the place where gold was first discovered in Colorado.

A run of fifty miles over the Colorado and Southern Railroad, up Clear Creek valley, brought us to Silver Plume, ten thousand feet above the sea level. The scenery along this route is the best I ever saw. It is wild in the extreme. Between Georgetown and Silver Plume the grade is so steep and crooked one can look back from the car window and see five tracks and four bridges. Old Mother Grundy, with her head three thousand feet above us, seemed to be standing guard over our passing train, while Hanging Rock, which was as tall, seemed to threaten to crush us as we passed beneath its dark form. At Silver Plume there were a large number of burros, ready saddled, awaiting a rider. Climbing on foot was hard work, and I really felt like riding, but fearing that some officer would catch me for cruelty to animals, I did not try it. Clear Creek valley is full of people, and every fellow seems to have a hole in the side of some hill from which he is constantly adding to the world's supply of precious metals. I saw a snow storm on September 16th, and plenty of snow on Gray's peaks.

One afternoon while in Denver, I had the pleasure of spending an hour or two walking through the Globe smelter. There were great baking ovens for the rock after it had been ground to powder by ponderous machines. From here it was taken to a place where it was melted and the mixed metals, lead, copper, gold and silver were separated from the rock and moulded into lead "pigs" weighing one hundred and twenty pounds each, and worth from fifteen to fifty dollars apiece. The first man I met, I asked him some questions about his work. He replied in a foreign language. My second and third effort resulted likewise. It was all Dutch to me.

On Sunday morning I attended the Galilee Baptist Church. The pastor is a born Englishman who has religion. The services was spiritual and full of enthusiasm. That church has produced seven missionaries within the past two years, most of whom are in China. At night, I went to the Trinity Methodist Church and heard Dr. Warner, the new Presiding Elder. The service was very formal. There was a lack of spiritual fervor. The building was one of the largest and best-equipped I was ever in. The choir had room for more than a hundred persons. The organ was an immense affair, presided over by a man who seemed to know his business. They paid a salary of $3,000 to the pastor last year, $700 for a private secretary to the pastor, $500 to the organist, and I do not know how much to special singers. Their Annual Conference had been held just one week, and this church, with all its fine equipment, was left to be supplied. In conversation with some of the city pastors, I found that the removal of the time limit in thier judgment had hurt the church.

Denver has no Sabbath. Of course there are thousands of people in the city who are strict observers of the Sabbath, but as a people, it is ignored. Business, recreation and dissipation have the right of way. On my way to church Sunday morning, I saw men engaged in their usual avocations. One man was building a fence around his yard. Another was clearing the street of fallen leaves in front of his home. Another was watering his lawn. Another was selling groceries. Saloons were wide open. Clothing stores were doing good business. Automobile parties, with fishing tackle, were out for a day's fishing. Some returned home with gun and game in the afternoon. In fact, every fellow who wanted to do so opened his place of business on Sunday. At night I passed the doors of a theatre. People were crowding in. When I got to church there was plenty of room. That large, well-equipped building, with a new Presiding Elder (and it had been announced in the papers he would preach that night), was not a fourth full, although it was a moonlight night and as beautiful and pleasant as it well could be. The congregation was seventy-five per cent women. All day Sunday the street cars were crowded with people hurrying to some vaudeville, matinee, park, or some other place of recreation or dissipation. I fear if the Christians of our Southland do not pay more attention to the demands of the Sabbath, that the day is not far distant when this Western Sabbath desecration will be upon us in full force. What mean these Sunday excursions? Sunday mails? Sunday travel on business? We are opening the door. Let us take God's Word as our guide and see to it that we keep the Sabbath ourselves, and then we will be in a position to compel the other fellow to keep it too. The preacher who travels on a Sunday train is in poor plight to preach to others about keeping God's holy day.

On our way back home we stopped off at Dublin, Ind., where eighteen years ago I was a school boy. We spent several days in the home of Mr. A. Langston, who was formerly of Hertford County, N. C. He went West years ago and married. He has raised a nice family of boys, and is getting along well in the world. He has recently built him a new circular barn eighty feet in diameter. To me it was rather a curiosity. The roof is self-supporting, without even wind beam or a post to keep it from falling. The town of Dublin has changed some. The old school building remains the same. The boys and girls of eighteen years ago are scattered. Of my class, three are preachers, some are physicians, some are teachers, some railroad men and some, I fear, have not amounted to very much. I found a few familiar faces that still remain around the old town. On Sunday morning I visited the Sunday-school in the Methodist church, and took a seat in the class of which I was a member in the days that are gone. Only one of the old class remains. I had the pleasure of preaching to them at 11 o'clock. I found Brother Waters, the pastor, an enthusiastic missionary worker. The charge paid the pastor $600 and furnished him a parsonage, and he informed me the charge was supporting three native pastors in the foreign field. I said nothing, but I could not help feeling that his congregation was doing more than many of ours, who, to my knowledge, have better opportunities. Here, as in Denver, the men were absent. How times have changed since I was there! On Sunday afternoon the young people of the town usually have a base-ball game.

On Sunday night I preached for the Quakers at Hopewell church. This, to me, was a novel experience. The Quakers of Northampton County, where I was born, would not permit a hymn-book or organ in their church—not even a hymn to be sung—if they could prevent it, and the idea of a "hired" preacher was ridiculed. But here at Hopewell I found it all. The pastor insisted on my preaching, and never said a word about whether the Spirit moved me or not.

I also visited the city schools in Cambridge City, Ind. Here I saw a negro boy and a white boy studying out of the same book. I felt like introducing a "Jim Crow" law then and there, but as I was a visitor, I said nothing about it. The superintendent insisted that I should make a short address, which I did, taking for my subject, Sir Walter Raleigh and Roanoke Island. On my way back to Norfolk, we had to wait one whole afternoon in Columbus, Ohio, for our train. We spent the time in seeing the city. The first place at which we stopped was the penitentiary. It is a walled city within a city. There is not much done in the way of work, except manufacturing, and usually this some iron product. The uniform worn is a gray woollen suit with a small black stripe down the leg of the trousers. The guide took us past the chair in which seventeen men had been electrocuted. The chair and apparatus looked very substantial, but none of the party seemed anixous to take a seat in it. We saw the cell where General Johnson was confined during the Civil War, and the place where the tunnel was, through which he and his men escaped. The prisoners, in the main, seemed to be well fed and cared for. As I came out, and was standing on the porch of the large stone building which constitutes the entrance, I saw a prisoner on the outside without a guard. I stepped up to what I supposed was a uniformed officer and inquired if that was usual. He said it was. I remarked: "I should think he would skip." "Why," he says, "man, I am a life prisoner, myself." He then showed me several, he said fifteen or twenty, on the outside where there was no guard, at work, as porters, messenger boys, guides and the like. It seemed strange to me, but there it was. I suppose the negro population of Ohio is less than 3 per cent, and yet of the fourteen hundred and eighty-six prisoners in the institution, 27 per cent of them are negroes. I could not help but think that their peculiar social advantages, in that great State, had not had the desired effect. One lady bought a gold souvenir of one of the prisoners on the inside. After she had gotten out, she discovered that it was brass. She was making complaint to one of the guides on the outside, who called her attention to the fact that she had bought it in the penitentiary of a thief. She went away feeling that prison life had not reformed that man.

We next visited the State Hospital for the Insane, but arrived too late in the day to see much of this great institution. By the kindness of one Mr. Baron, a Georgian by birth, we saw the eleven hundred insane march into their supper. The sill measure of this one building is more than a mile and a half in length.

We returned to the station, ate our supper and were soon hurrying toward the east. After a stay of one month and two days, we returned to Roanoke Island to take up our work among as loyal and big-hearted people as any Methodist preacher serves.

"Let Us Do Evil That Good May Come."

REV. W. A. BETTS.

Mr. Editor:—The above heresy, like a fretting sore, is eating its way into the body politic and threatens to corrupt most wofully our American civilization. The infection is rapidly doing its direful work. Cases are of too frequent occurrence to regard the stage as simply sporadic; it is epidemic and the situation demands that vigorous and effective treatment be applied for repressing the frightful contagion—a leprosy malignant indeed.

In his espistle to the Roman (3:8) the Apostle Paul characterizes clearly and with drastic severity condemns the all too prevalent custom to-day of seeking to accomplish desirable ends by the use of wrong means. The shockingly common practice of wreaking vengeance upon a culprit by infuriated friends of the injured party, ignoring the solemn warnings of Holy Writ and despising the mandates of civil government, must cease among us, else we are destined to speedily become anarchists of a most despicable type, inviting self-destruction. The serious cartoonist of our times might appropriately portray for our admonition the disastrous drama of the Kilkenny cats, with the humor left out.

The condition that confronts us calls for careful and devout consideration of the duty of the hour. It is a momentous matter by every token. In the present-day method of taking the law into its own hands by an aroused and passionate populace, there is an awful peril seen only by our sanest and conservative citizens. Many of them have spoken out, but their voices erving in the wilderness of our unrestrained wrath have been unheeded, unheard—while arrogating to ourselves the authority of divinity, saying, "Vengeance is mine; I will repay."

Repeat with earnest emphasis your own trumpet notes of warning, Mr. Editor, and still urge the press and pulpit of the land to action in suppressing the unlawful and destructive policy so prevalent of doing evil that good may come.

Prompt measures are required, not words alone, forasmuch as the civic and moral institutions ureared by our fathers (under divine direction, let us believe) are tottering to their ruin.

Oliver Goldsmith, in his "Vicar of Wakefield," pertinently says: "In all human institutions a smaller evil is allowed to procure a greater good; as, in politics, a province may be given away to secure a kingdom; in medicine, a limb may be lopped off to preserve the body; but in religion, the law is written and inflexible, never to do evil. And this law, my child, is right; for otherwise, if we commit a smaller evil to procure a greater good, certain guilt would be thus incurred, in the expectation of contingent advantage; and though the advantage should certainly follow, yet the interval between commission and advantage, which is allowed to be guilty, may be that in which we are called away to answer for the things we have done, and the volume of human actions is closed forever."

May not there be infused, therefore, a modicum of the "written" law of religion into politics with profit? Salt, confessedly, is good, and it has not, in this climate surely, yet loss its saltness. The difficulty chiefly lies in getting it applied directly to the spot where its antiseptic effect is needed.

Nothing short of personal, partisan effort in seeking out and saving our well-meaning, but sadly deluded fellow-citizens from their manifest error, will meet the case. It is the Master's method. An ardent office-seeker will spend months and much money on a still-hunt campaign and button-hole every voter diligently in the interest of his candidacy. A like zeal and pertinacity in the cause herein advocated would accomplish beneficent results beyond a doubt.

Let the true patriot, then, as a guardian of his country's welfare, strive in every practicable way to secure the arrest of any current sentiment that prompts to wicked action among mankind by ceaselessly inculcating motives that are pure and true. He may not longer, like Cain, insolently exclaim, "Am I my brother's keeper?" and hope to escape the penalty of his criminal neglect. It were to encourage the accumulation of a flood that will inevitably inundate his own best interests. Herein operates a universal and righteous law of social ethics, namely, in saving others we save ourselves.

California Letter.

Dear Dr. Ivey:—I have just been changed from Lakeport, Cal., to Wheatland, Cal.; so I hope you will see to it that the Raleigh Advocate finds us there. No other paper can take its place; its the link that binds us still to our "first love" (the North Carolina Conference). We read it and live over the past, and with old friends of other days. As a paper, the Raleigh is inferior to no other of the Advocate family; but to us, it is also a kind of love-letter from home.

Fifteen years ago we turned our face Westward, and started for the front. Here we have found friends, but churches, pointed the lost to a better life, and in it all have spent many precious hours in living and laboring for God and the church. Yet, we talk and think of home, and about Conference times—even sigh for the privilege of taking once more an appointment in the North Carolina Conference.

Thanking you for your kindness for sending us the "Old Raleigh" in the past, and believing you will still do so, I remain, as ever,

Your brother, W. F. COFFIN.

A Few Shams.

Is our religion too clamorous, or are we growing old? We tired of shouting when a boy. Too much fuss for the outcome of it. "Shallow brooks make the more babbling," used to say my good old mother. Father said: "The worst wheel in the wagon makes the most noise." Jesus said: "Not every one that sayeth, Lord, Lord, shall enter the kingdom." Doing a thing is better than promising to do it, and it is modest not to boast of a thing even after it is done. And, as to delighting to serve God, the best proof o fthat is keeping at it.

Some preachers are anxions to keep in the papers. The reporters tell, as Conferences come on, how certain important churches are seeking the Rev. A. How do newspaper reporters get such secrets? Who could guess? If the reverend leaves town a day, the paper tells it. How does the paper keep so well posted. Who could guess? There is a sketch of Rev. A.'s last Sunday morning sermon in the paper. But the paper had no reporter at the church. Strange, isn't it? "Do not sound a trumpet before thee, as the hypocrites." Does that avoly to preaching as well as to giving alms? But there is a modern maxim: "He that bloweth not his own horn, for him shall not the horn be blown."

At the close of one of his eloquent sermons, Rev. A. steps to the chancel to receive the congratulations of his people. He observes this as an afterlude to his order of worship. The pressure of kid gloves and the compliments of elegant ladies are very grateful to him. This thing is not put down in our order of worship, even among the things that are optional. Is it spiritually healthy? What if fulsome compliments should become more pleasing to the preacher than the tears of penitents and the groanings of true contrition?—Arkansas Methodist.

Our Boys and Girls

Almost a Man.

I don't wear dresses any more—
  See my coat and breeches,
Cuffs and collar; pockets, too,
  Made with many stitches.
I must have a watch and chain,
A silk umbrella and a cane.
No more kilts and skirts for me.
I'm a big boy, don't you see

You can give away my dresses,
  And my other baby clothes.
Give away my horse with rockers;
  I want one that really goes:—
But two nice goats, I guess, will do!
And I want a carriage, too;
No more chairs hitched up for me.
I'm too big for that, you see!

I think I'll give my picture books
  To little sister Mary;
I'll go to school and learn to read
  In the big dictionary;
Or, maybe, in g'ography,
Or, 'rithmetic, or history;
They're just about the size for me.
For I'm a big boy, you see?
—Selected.

Such a Little Thing.

Margaret was in despair when she found that her brother had not mailed her letter three days before. He thought he had it safe with all the rest, but that very morning she had found it between the lining of his coat and the pocket, and now it was too late to hope that the caterer could fill her order. It did not improve her temper to be told that she had promised to mend the coat three weeks before, but Tom would hardly have been a boy if he had not reminded her of that when she scolded about the letter.

"Don't cry," consoled Aunt Agnes; "we'll get along somehow."

"That's what you always say," wept Margaret, "but it won't do in this case. Those boys and girls are used to all sorts of elegance, and I wanted to show them that I know how to entertain, too. I can never get my order to the city in time for the morning train to-morrow, and the whole thing will be a failure."

"Nonsense!" said Aunt Frances. "We have a whole day to get ready in, and you will say to-morrow that we can do better than any city caterer."

"I suppose we will have to make some preparation," said Margaret, with a heavy frown. "I wish I had never invited them, but every one else has entertained, and I must, too. Thank goodness, they'll only be here from ten till four."

That was a busy day in the Croft kitchen. Mrs. Croft made cake. Margaret decocrated the old house with flowers and vines, and Aunt Agnes attended to countless duties everywhere. By 4 o'clock a row of good things stood upon the pantry shelf, and everything was in readiness for the finishing touches in the morning. Margaret was still in a bad humor, and predicted failure for the modest little picnic on the next day. She had graduated with a city class of boys and girls, and each one had given a picnic or party for the rest during the senior year in high school. Margaret had looked forward all winter to the time when she could entertain with a picnic on her father's lawn, followed by a trip on the river, back of the house, in the new steam launches a city company had placed there, but all her hopes were dashed to the ground when her letter ordering the lunch from the city had not been mailed, and the launches had all been engaged for the day by another picnic party. Altogether, she felt very much abused, and almost wished it might rain too hard for the class to come.

"What a delightful place!" cried one and all as Margaret welcomed the class under the big elm trees. Instead of the new dress made for the occasion, she wore a simple frock, and was glad of it when she saw the sensible clothes of her guests. "Let us help get the dinner," they proposed, as Aunt Agnes began setting the table out of doors.

In a short time the whole party was as merry and as busy as bees. The boys donned aprons, and made salad, and the girls helped with every task till the long table fairly groaned with good things. Then Mr. and Mrs. Croft, the guests, Aunt Agnes, and all the little ones, sat down to eat together. Instead of a force of trained waiters, as Margaret had planned, every one helped, and fun reigned. Back and forth, from kitchen to lawn they scurried, and some of the boys took pieces of cake or chicken in their hands as they did errands, so hungry did the country air make them. The home-made cake and ice cream vanished like magic, and long and loud were the compliments the feast received.

"The best dinner I ever had," sighed one boy, looking regretfully at an unfinished piece of cake. "Margaret, you have treated us royally. Our little endeavors are far in the shade after to-day."

"I must tell you that it isn't my fault," said Margaret, with glowing cheeks. "I felt very badly at not being able to have the lunch sent from the city."

"From the city?" groaned the guests; "we are tired of everything from the city!"

So Margaret learned an important lesson that beautiful summer day. She found out that money does not always buy happiness, and that well-bred young people never criticised their entertainers. Often when I see young girls fretting because they can only give simple parties and picnics, I wish they might realize that simple pleasures are, after all, the most appropriate for boys and girls. The dainty refreshments, home-grown flowers, and hearty welcome are worth as much in their way, and often more, than the hired orchestra, elaborate menu, and hot-house roses. Never to go beyond one's means is a safe rule in entertaining and in everything else. Good sense and good cheer go hand in hand, and the young folks who know this are the happiest.—Hilda Richmond, in Religious Telescope.

Cheepy, the Squirrel.

"Fred, do come and see Cheepy. For once I have found him quiet," called Ethel.

Cheepy, you will like to know at once, was a dear little English squirrel. His coat was of reddish brown and his waisteoat a soft white. Ethel often wondered of which Cheepy was the most proud, his soft white waisteoat or his busy tail, that he wore as a plume.

"Hello, Cheepy!" cried Fred, running up, "will you have a nut this morning?"

"Thank you," looked Cheepy's bright little eyes, as he sat up nibbling the nut held between his forepaws.

"He is not always as lively as usual, is he, Fred? Do you think he likes to have food brought to him? Wouldn't he rather go to market for himself?"

"I think he would enjoy nothing better than scampering up and down trees and leaping from one to another, only pausing to gather nuts as he went. Squirrels are such lively, active little things, you know, Ethel."

"They are thrifty, too, aren't they, storing up food for the winter?"

"And, then, think of the feasts they have when they wake up from time to time during their long naps," said Fred. "Perhaps Cheepy would invite his relatives to dine with him."

"Has he many relatives, Fred?" asked Ethel.

"Oh, yes; his family is a large one and they are very sociable little folks, especially the flying squirrels."

"Flying squirrels," said Ethel, in surprise. "I did not know that squirrels can fly. Are they as large as Cheepy?"

"No; they are only four or five inches in length. Big-eyed, graceful little sprites they are, and how they do enjoy sailing through the air!

"They seem to have sailing parties. A hundred or more of them travel together, and it is a pleasure just to watch their enjoyment of the trip."

"But how do they fly?" asked Ethel.

"They have a deep fold a skin, like a fringe, along each side of their bodies. It connects the fore and hind feet, and when the squirrels jump the folds stretch out and support them in the air."

"It must be fun to go visiting that way," said Ethel, "especially if papa squirrel and mamma squirrel and all the children squirrels catch hands."

"Then think of the homeward journey and of getting six or seven baby squirrels into bed. That many live in one nest, Ethel. Comfortable nests the squirrels have, too, as you would believe of such thrifty and careful housekeepers. But would you have thought that when the little ones grow up they crowd the nest so that the old folks have to leave?"

Ethel thought it was sad for the old squirrels to be forced out of their own home, but Fred told her that they like to build new nests, and then the little ones will have to do the same work when they grow up; that is, if they live long enough, so they all have the same experiences.—Selected.

Once Bit, Twice Shy.

"Many happy returns of the day, darling!"

Erica opened her eyes and sat up in bed wide-awake.

"Oh," she cried, "is this really my birthday, after all?"

"Here's a present from Uncle Jack."

Erica opened the basket and gave a surprised scream, for out tumbled a fat, white terrier puppy.

"I think we must call him 'Bounce,'" said the mother. "He rolls about just like a ball."

All Erica's other presents were quite put in the shade of her live toy, and she and the puppy became devoted playmates.

One day, after lunch, she had been giving Bounce biscuits, which rapidly disappeared, and he still begged for more. She was alone in the dining-room, and looked anxiously round to see what could be found. Her eye fell upon the mustard pot.

"O, Bouncy, dear?" she cried, "you shall have a treat! Here's something lovely. Come, I will feed you." And suiting the action to the words, she thrust a spoonful of mustard into puppy's mouth.

The next instant the whole household was alarmed by piercing screams and howls proceeding from the dining-room. Round and round rushed poor Bounce, burnt and terrified, as though he had gone mad, and down on the floor sat Erica, still grasping the fatal spoon, tears of alarm running down her face.

"She has been feeding the dog with mustard," said her father, unable to control his laughter, as he caught up the poor howling puppy and wiped away at its mouth, which was literally smeared inside and out. "Oh, baby, baby, how could you be so cruel?"

"Jam," wailed Erica—"nice jam, and he didn't like it! I won't give him any more."

Poor little Bounce! It was "once bit, twice shy." For many a day he remembered how his little mistress had fed him with a spoon, and often when her arms were tightly clasped around his fat body he trembled lest some other dreadful experience awaited him.

But Erica had hurt him from ignorance and tried hard to atone for her mistake.—Child's Companion.

The Cocoon.

They were playing in the garden
When the baby chanced to spy
A little silken roll of white
Tucked in the wall close by.
The ruthless baby fingers
Would have torn it from its bed.
Wise little brother Ronald
With reverent accent said,
"No, no, don't touch it, baby;
For, when he went to sleep,
He thought the heavenly Father
Safe care of him would keep."
—Adelaide Denning Newton, in Christian Register.

Trouble plus worry will not give less worry. There is no rule in arithmetic by which two factors can be added together and a diminished result obtained.

DISASTROUS WRECKS.

Carelessness is responsible for many a railway wreck and the same causes are making human wrecks of sufferers from Throat and Lung troubles. But since the advent of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, even the worst cases can be cured, and hopeless resignation is no longer necessary. Mrs. Lois Cragg, of Dorchester, Mass., is one of many whose life was saved by Dr. King's New Discovery. This great remedy is guaranteed for all Throat and Lung diseases by all druggists. Price 50 cents and $1.00. Trial bottles free.

Life is not so short but there is always time for courtesy.—Emerson.

CARING for your health, and studying simple, everyday economy, you will see to it that no baking powder but the Royal enters your kitchen. The low-grade, cheap powders contain alum and lime and injuriously affect the stomach and kidneys.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

Womans Foreign Missionary Society

Please send all communications for this Department to Mrs. B. F. Dixon, Raleigh, N. C.

Officers of the W. F. M. S. of the N. C. Conference, June, 1903-'04.

President—Mrs. Lucy A. Cunninggim, Greensboro, N. C
Vice-President—Mrs. R. A. Willis, Littleton, N. C.
Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. F. D. Swindell, Goldsboro, N. C.
Recording Secretary—Miss Blanche Fentress, Wilmington, N. C.
Treasurer—Mrs. B. B. Adams, Four Oaks, N. C.
Superintendent and Treasurer Juevnile Work—Mrs. I. M. Hendren, New Berne, N. C.

Week of Prayer.

Mrs. Swindell, our Conference Corresponding Secretary, has arranged a program for the daily services of prayer week from the one in our Woman's Advocate, making such additions and changes as she thought would be best.

This program, with her article on the importance of the week of prayer, should have appeared in last week's Advocate, but came too late for publication.

We trust all the Auxiliaries will use this program, and listen carefully to Mrs. Swindell's excellent advice. Only one change will have to be made, and that is in the date:

The Week of Prayer of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the North Carolina Conference begins Tuesday, November 1, 1904, 3 o'clock, p. m.

Meetings are to be held every afternoon up to and including Friday.

The Auxiliaries that find it more convenient can observe Thanksgiving week. The others are requested to use the first instead of the last week in November.

We regard this as one of the most important meetings of the year, and so we appeal to each number of every auxiliary to let nothing preventable hinder your daily attendance upon these meetings.

The good accomplished by this Week of Prayer is incomputable. 'Tis a Pentecost; for, while praying for others, a reflex blessing comes down upon our own souls, and our spiritual strength is renewed, our armor is burnished, and we go out from these meetings freshly panoplied for war—war with the enemy of souls—with the tempter who fails not to use every opportunity to obstruct the path of missionary workers. But thanks to Him who giveth us the victory, the conquest is easy to her whose soul has had an infilling of the Spirit during this blessed week.

This meeting at the altar to join in one common prayer—this communion of soul with soul, this union of interest and work, gives a warmth and glow to the heart that isolated effort lacks.

Is there one among us who does not need this?

God help us to be diligent attendants of and participants in these meetings for prayer and thanksgiving.

PROGRAM.

Tuesday, November 1, 1904, 3 p. m.—Hymn, "Try Us, O God, and Search the Ground."

Responsive Bible Reading.

(To provide for this the members should bring their copies of the Woman's Missionary Advocate to the meeting.)

Doxology: "Praise God from whom all blessings flow."

Prayer. Hymn 667: "O'er the Gloomy Hills of Darkness." Let some one previously appointed read this hymn, that all may comprehend the full meaning, and turn their thoughts to the contrast between the lives and opportunity of Christian women and those in heathen and papal countries.

Voluntary Remarks.—Bring out your blessings and look them in the face. Show them to your friends and co-workers, and speak a word that may bring soul nearer soul; in the moments of your deepest humility, words may be spoken in which lurk, unknown to yourself, a quickening power of inspiration that shall transform another life.

A study of the work of our Woman's Board in China and Korea as conducted at the present time. It would be well for the leader to make definite preparation for this study by appointing, previously, those who are to take part. Let one be prepared to speak briefly of the influence of the Russo-Japanese war on China and Korea.

Special prayer for soldiers and their families of both armies.

While members are presenting their offspring, sing, "He Leadeth Me."

Closing prayer of thanks.

Wednesday.—Hymn 572. Prayer. Scripture lesson, Psalm 100; 1st John 4:7-21. In the Psalm we are told to serve the Lord with gladness. Too many of us "serve Him in mournful numbers, with sighs and tears. This makes our religion repulsive to those we most desire to win.

In the lesson found in John we may find the remedy for all sadness and grief and for all discouragements. When perfect love has cast out fear, then shall we enter into his gates with thanksgiving, and even the heathen afar off will share our gifts.

Pray for our work in Brazil, Mexico and Cuba, and especially for our own missionaries, Miss Mary Posend and Miss Elizabeth Davis.

As these are all papal countries, the same conditions exist in regard to the people's knowledge of the Bible, and of experimental religion as unfolded by its teachings.

Brief talks may be prepared on such topics as the leader may suggest: Letters from missionaries, suitable recitations, short articles or clippings, or an invited address. Silent prayer for a moment, and while kneeling sing:

"Lord, if at thy command
The word of life we sow,
Watered by thy almighty hand,
The seed shall surely grow."

Thursday.—Scripture lesson, Haggai, ii. We, of the Foreign Missionary Society may claim the same promises as those recorded in this portion of Scripture. God is still shaking the nations, but the shaking opens doors for the Gospel in hearts and in nations. Hymn 666. Prayer. Pray for China; for Korea; for the speedy ending of the war in the Far East, and for the opening of the closed missionary stations in Korea, especially that of the Lucy Cuninggim Home and School at Wonsan. Use Missionary Drill. Hymn 732. Prayer. Doxology.

Friday.—Scripture lesson. Hymn. Prayer. Pray for the Indians—especially pray for the school at Anadarko, and for Brother Methvin, the missionary in charge. Remarks. A reading. Hymn. Prayer. Pray for all our sixty-eight missionaries. Let this be a thanksgiving prayer, closing with the Lord's prayer. Doxology.

Sunday.—Either the morning or evening hour to be used. Sermon by the pastor. Thank offerings.

STOPS CHILLS CURES COLDS
Painkiller (Perry Davis)
SOLD OVER 60 YEARS

Text Cards for Home Decoration on higher finished ivory and dark ground cards, all with silk cord to hang; require no frames. Agents wanted everywhere; liberal discount. GOSPEL PUBLISHING HOUSE, 54 W. 22d St., New York, Room 26.

Woman's Home Mission Society

Please send all communications for this Department to Mrs. R. O. Burton, Raleigh, N. C.

Officers of W. H. M. S. of the N. C. Conference.

President—Mrs. J. E. Underwood, Elizabeth City.
First Vice-President—Mrs. V. Royster, Raleigh.
Second Vice-President—Mrs. K. P. Black, Littleton.
Third Vice-President—Mrs. J. A. Spiers, Selma.
Recording Secretary—Mrs. C. P. Jerome, West Durham.
Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. S. H. Scott, New Bern.
Treasurer—Mrs. E. L. Prince, Wilmington.
Superintendent of Supplies—Mrs. Ivan Proctor, Raleigh.
Superintendent of Literature and Press Work—Mrs. R. O. Burton.

The Woman's Home Mission Society at Sunbury.

It is true that "silence is golden," and could it be reduced to coin, our Auxiliary of Philadelphia Church might turn over a snug little sum to the Treasurer. But alas! it cannot be coined.

I have decided to break the monotony somehow, and convince ourselves, and the community, that our work is of so much importance it is worth while to make much ado about it and call public attention to it.

Our monthly meetings are held regularly on the third Sabbath afternoons, the devotional part being an important feature.

We have a faithful, efficient President, Mrs. Lucy H. Costen, who is untiring in her efforts to waken interest in all of our members. The devotional exercises of our meetings, too, are very near her heart.

We have twenty members, with an average attendance of fifteen. Though few in number, I trust we are strong in zeal. Our members are prompt in the payment of dues.

We clothe an orphan in the Oxford Asylum, besides dispensing various other charities. The mite-boxes, too, are in evidence, with good results.

We held open session on the 17th instant. The afternoon was taken up according to program, consisting of music, readings and an essay, which added much to the enjoyment of the occasion. The audience was smaller than hoped for, but the meeting was full of interest.

In these days of many conventions it is indeed well, in gathering of workers in the Lord's vineyard, to realize the fact that with the great commission under which we labor there is this promise: "Lo I am with you always." Claiming His presence and blessings whenever we thus meet, zeal will become greater and love more abundant.

MRS. GEO. J. COSTEN,
Corresponding Secretary.

A Cordial Welcome.

We are delighted to receive this interesting article from Mrs. Costen, and cordially welcome her to our column, sincerely hoping that she will frequently send contributions, which are valued for their intrinsic worth, for the news they bring from a fine and useful Auxiliary and for the excellent example they are to others.

From New Bern.

The Auxiliary of Centenary Church held its annual reception in the church parlors Wednesday evening, October 5, 1904.

The Committee on Decorations had beautified the rooms with palms, ferns and cut flowers, the prevailing colors being white and green. The soft, delicate lights blended harmoniously with the surroundings. The guests were received by the officers of the Society, and delightfully entertained with music, both vocal and instrumental, excellently rendered by Misses Dewey and Sadler.

"The round table" constituted an interesting feature of the occasion. Several engaged in the contest—the prize, a copy of "The Life of Lucinda B. Helm," being won by Mrs. Virginia Harrison. Elegant refreshments were served.

Our Society now numbers one hundred and twenty-five members, and is doing good work. We receive the Bulletins and thank you very much.

Sincerely,
MRS. J. A. MEADOWS.

WHO WILL FOLLOW.

I am glad to share with our readers this entertaining letter from one of the best officers of one of our finest Auxiliaries. The charming New Bern reception is a most attractive model for others to follow, and I hope to receive news to that effect.

It is very important to carefully consider the social side in all lines of work, for the influence is great and far-reaching. We believe that our King would have all His followers happy, indeed, buoyant in their perfect confidence and peaceful joy.

A Privilege that Brings a Double Blessing.

With the coming of winter, the necessity for boxes of supplies becomes urgent. Let all Auxiliaries that possibly can help the families of our ministers on meagre salaries, thus rejoicing their hearts and increasing their own happiness and usefulness, write at once to Mrs. J. H. Yarborough and find where this beautiful work is most needed.

NOT A SICK DAY SINCE.

I was taken severely sick with kidney trouble. I tried all sorts of medicines, none of which relieved me. One day I saw an ad. of your Electric Bitters and determined to try that. After taking a few doses I felt relieved, and soon thereafter was entirely cured, and have not seen a sick day since. Neighbors of mine have been cured of Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Liver and Kidney troubles and General Debility." This is what B. F. Bass, of Fremont, N. C., writes. Only 50 cents at all druggists.

For Your New Dress

We'll be glad to send you samples of anything in our lines of Dress Fabrics.

Cassimere Suitings, Broadcloths, Covert Cloths, Plain Mohairs, Crepes, Voiles, Tweeds, Mellons, Rubproof Suitings, Fancy Mohairs, Eolienes.

Our Stock of Dress Trimmings is the largest and most varied we've ever carried, embracing the newest and most up-to-date kinds.

Write for our new catalogues of INFANTS FURNISHINGS and LACE CURTAINS, also for sample books of new White Goods. Sent free. Enclose this ad.

We prepay express charges on all orders of $5.00 and over mailed to the house from the Virginias and Carolinas.

Miller & Rhoads,
Richmond, Va.

THE KEELEY INSTITUTE
GREENSBORO, N.C.
For the treatment of THE LIQUOR, OPIUM, MORPHINE and other Drug Addictions. The Tobacco Habit, Nerve Exhaustion

Raleigh Christian Advocate.

ORGAN OF THE
North Carolina Conference, M. E. Church, South.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY AT No. 106 W. MARTIN STREET.

THOMAS N. IVEY, - - - - - - - Editor.

Subscription Rates.—One year, $1.50; six months, 75 cents. Preachers of the North Carolina Conference who act as agents receive the paper free of charge. All other preachers, and widows of preachers, $1.00 a year.

Business.—Watch the label. It shows the date up to which the subscription has been paid. Change in label serves as a receipt. Regular receipt will be sent when requested. When the address is ordered changed, both old and new address must be given. Address all letters, and make all checks and money orders payable, to the Raleigh Advocate Co.

Manuscripts.—All matter for publication to be returned to the writer must be accompanied by proper postage. Matter for the Editor and matter for the printer must not be on the same sheet. Obituaries must not contain over 150 words, nor contain poetry. One cent a word will be charged for all obituary matter over 150 words.

Advertising.—The RALEIGH CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE is a fine advertising medium. Rates will be promptly furnished on application.

The World As We See It.

One of the best and most practical articles written by Mr. Clarence Poe, editor of The Progressive Farmer, appears in the November World's Work. It is entitled, "The Rich Kingdom of Cotton." In this article Mr. Poe shows the result of what must have been a very discriminating study of cotton from the standpoint of a practical student of agricultural and textile subjects. The article is finely illustrated and forms one of the most interesting and valuable parts of the November issue. The farmer and the student of affairs will find Mr. Poe's article very helpful.

The man and the circular. The estimate of each as an enthusing, enlightening, and convincing power has been more than ordinarily illustrated in the current political campaign. The "cyclone campaign" in which some commanding speaker, breathless, excited, and perspiring, appears before a dozen different audiences in as many hours has become one of the features of the political arena. The earnest efforts made to induce Judge Parker and Mr. Cleveland to make at least one speech utter the same note as that which comes from the "cyclone campaign"—that the circular may be a good thing, but that the man is better.

The opinion of George Kennan on any international subject deserves attention. Mr. Kennan is no sentimentalist, but views things as they are, and is brave enough to record his judgment when necessary. The latest article from his pen is, "Which is the Civilized Power?" He answers the question in favor of Japan. Mr. Kennan is now in the Far East. He knows Russia from the Baltic to the Pacific. He is well qualified for speaking on the subject. He gives Japan the advantage in the following points: Mental and moral culture, enlightment and toleration in religious faith, law, judicial procedure, freedom, individual and national integrity, modesty, morality, and humanity. In the light of the facts disclosed by Mr. Kennan, it is easy to see that the fear of the yellow peril is vastly exaggerated. Gradually new light is being thrown upon Japan and Japanese character.

There is one department of scientific research which does not receive very much attention from the people at large. It looks dry and dusty and has a funereal smell, yet it has played an important part in the onward march of historical truth and is pregnant with vast possibilities. We refer to archeology. Prof. Robert W. Rogers, D. D., F. R. G. S., of Drew Theological Seminary, has the following to say concerning the question of the relation of archeology to Biblical study: "Modern archeological research is today giving greater confidence in great sweeps of Old Testament history that were so shadowy and so unreal that no man not gifted with a splendid imagination really ever thought of them and appreciated them. It sometimes completely dissolves and removes a difficulty. Illustrations are numerous, but perhaps this one will serve from the book of Isaiah. In that books are references to a certain Assyrian king, Sargon, but nobody could find that name anywhere as the name of a king, nor as the name of a man in the ancient history of Assyria. Archeological research has removed the difficulty by producing scores of inscriptions concerning the same king, Sargon, and one of them alluding to the very campaign mentioned in the Book of Isaiah.

The impression has gone abroad that North Carolina did not make a very creditable impression at the World's Fair through her exhibits. The exhibits were not, in fact, very numerous, elaborate or showy, but it appears that North Carolina has received an unusual number of awards—seventy-eight in all. Among the awards are five grand prizes, ten or twelve gold medals, as many silver medals, and the remainder bronze medals. The grand prizes have been given on tobacco, mining exhibits, and forestry. All this must be very gratifying to all North Carolinians. The interesting query is suggested: If North Carolina can do so well with only a small appropriation, and half of a display, what could she do with an adequate appropriation and a corresponding display?

We take the following from the November S. S. Magazine: T. B. Eldridge, of the Morning Post, Raleigh, N. C., a full course Circle graduate, has in the Edenton Street Sunday School of Raleigh, a fine Bible class for men known as the Norman Class. It was so named in memory of Rev. W. C. Norman. During the summer months, the most favorable time, the class has more than doubled in numbers, and the interest and membership are steadily increasing. Mr. Eldridge began with the question and answer method, but as the class increased was forced to use largely the lecture method. Questions from the class, however, are always invited and frequently asked. Mr. Eldridge is a Bible student and fine teacher, and the class is to be congratulated.

REV. H. E. TRIPP, P. C.
Goldsboro Circuit, N. C. Conference.

It is not surprising to us that the Outlook should be in favor of the re-establishment of the canteen in the United States army. But it is surprising to us that the Outlook should base its judgment on the report of Brigadier General Burton, who says that the "abolition of the canteen leads to sickness, desertion and other crimes as well as to impair discipline." For it is not difficult to obtain from General Miles and a thousand other worthy officers that the abolition of the canteen was a good thing for the army. The Outlook thinks that we should have the canteen in the interest of temperance and the general moral welfare of the soldier. This is the argument used in favor of the saloon and other immoral agencies and institutions in thousands of towns and cities all over the land. We have for a long time believed that we have no moral right to do evil that good may come. We have no reason to change our mind in the case of the canteen. Let it remain abolished, as we believe it will.

Pikeville Church, Goldsboro Circuit, N. C. Conference. Built 1904, at a cost of $1,500.

Pine Forest Church, Goldsboro Circuit, N. C. Conference. Built 1904 at a cost of $1,200.

Goldsboro Circuit and Its Progress.

The Goldsboro Circuit is in a healthy and growing condition under the pastorate of Rev. H. E. Tripp, who is closing up his third year. The Sunday-school interest, the finances, and the spiritual state of the church have all made gratifying progress.

Two new churches, cuts of which are seen in this issue of the Advocate, have been built and paid for.

These churches are monuments to the faith and untiring energy of the pastor. He has accomplished more than I thought possible, for the outlook was not favorable to the extent of the success he has had. A man less popular and less determined could not have succeeded so well. These churches, we think, will add much to the success of Methodism on that charge.

Brother Tripp is a man of good judgment, of tact and discretion, and an unusually good pastor and hold strongly the confidence and love of his people, and they are solicitors for his return to them for the fourth year.

F. D. SWINDELL, P. E.

Methodist Mention

STATE.

Rev. G. W. Fisher paid the Advocate a call last Monday, and reported a very fine meting just closed at Clayton.

The Fayetteville Observer says that Rev. D. H. Comann is assisting Rev. T. A. Smoot in a meeting at Fayetteville.

Presiding Elder Cole has preached some able sermons in the Methodist church since the protracted services began. He has been assisting the pastor, Rev. J. H. Hall.—Anglo-Saxon.

We have received from Mr. Henderson Cole a neat little pamphlet on Johnson County. Brother Cole was manager of the Johnson County exhibit at the last State Fair. The exhibit was very fine and has been widely and highly commended.

The Trustees of Greensboro Female College met the building committee last week, and found that gratifying progress had been made with the work. Everything will be put in shape for a full report to the approaching Annual Conferences.

Rev. W. H. Puckett, who aided us in a meeting at Creedmoor Baptist Church several weeks ago, proved himself to be a man of God. There were over fifteen professions as a result of the meeting. The church was greatly revived.—Oxford Ledger.

The pastor, Rev. S. T. Moyle, will preach to the Junior Order of Sanford and Jonesboro and to the Daughters of Liberty of this place, in the Methodist Church next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The public is invited to attend.—Sanford Express.

We clip from the St. Louis Christian Advocate the following concerning one who is well known to North Carolina Methodists: Rev. Olin Boggess, pastor of Cape Girardeau, who was unable to attend the annual Conference because of recent illness, has been restored to health and able to do the diligent work characteristic of him.

Rev. D. N. Caviness, of Burlington, preached a very fine, forceful and practical sermon to the Junior Order at the M. E. Church last Sunday at 3 o'clock, p. m. His sermon was based on II Peter 1:5-8. Quite a large number of Juniors were in attendance from the Burlington and Haw River Councils and a few from others.—Alamance Gleaner.

Rev. E. R. Welch, Hope Mills, writes: "The printer made me say in my recent letter 'three (3) revivals, 122 accessions.' I said six (6) and 122 accessions. Please make the correction. I report now that it is seven (7) and 126 accessions. We recently held a good meeting at Parkton. Organized with 24 members, and are pushing our new church as rapidly as possible. At present have a nice lot and half enough to build. I am working hard to close up in good shape."

The revival services which have been in progress at the First Methodist Church for the past two weeks will continue for one week longer at least and possibly after this. At the services yesterday morning there were twenty-two persons received into the church upon profession of faith and baptism and two by letter. The missionary rally by the Sunday-school children last night, was one of the most successful from every standpoint, that the church has ever held.—Elizabeth City Economist.

The Woman's Foreign Missionary Conference of the M. E. Church, South, of Raleigh District, assembled last Friday at the Methodist Church, Louisburg. In the evening a reception was tendered the visiting ladies by the local society at the Methodist parsonage. About twenty-five delegates were present and they received a hearty welcome at the hands of Louisburg hosts. The sessions of the Conference extended through Sunday, closing on Sunday evening with a sermon by Rev. G. A. Oglesby, of Montgomery County.

The Reidsville Review says that Dr. J. R. Brooks has returned to Reidsville and will reside with his son, Dr. E. H. Brooks, until the session of the Western North Carolina Conference, which meets in Charlotte in November. Since the death of Mrs. Brooks he has been residing with his oldest son, Dr. W. H. Brooks, at Fort Washington, who is stationed there as a surgeon in the United States Army. The past month or so he visited in Missouri and Kentucky, the Exposition, and the Missouri, Southwest Missouri, the St. Louis and the Louisville annual conferences, in the interest of some of his books.

The "Rally Day" exercises in Edenton Street Sunday-school on last Sunday were successful in every respect. The Sunday-school room was crowded. It was beautifully decorated with autumn flowers and leaves. The music, both vocal and instrumental, was of the best. The address of Dr. Battle's on "Why Should the Old Folks Attend the Sunday-school?" was practical and to the point. Rev. R. F. Bunnas followed up the exercises by an impressive sermon to the children at 11 o'clock. Bro. Joseph G. Brown, who was elected Superintendent by the last quarterly Conference, has thrown his whole heart into his work, and you may look for great things from Edenton Street Sunday-school.

Central Academy, an ad. of which appears elsewhere in this paper, is located immediately on the S. A. L. road in Warren County, near Littleton, N. C., on a 700-acre farm, in a beautiful grove of about fifteen acres. We heartily commend the institution to our friends and predict for it a very successful career. There seems to be a very large opening for just such a school. One of the large rooms on the second floor of the Library building has been fitted up for the law library and the books have been moved in. Orders have been placed for a large number of books for this department. It is the intention of the college authorities to make this departmental library a very complete one. Already during the college year there have been some very important additions made.

* * *

CONNECTIONAL.

Bishop Candler preached every night last week in a revival tent meeting in Inman Park.

The Book Committee has changed the close of the fiscal year from March 31 to December 31.

Emory College opened well, her number of students exceeding that of her last year's opening.

The Louisville Conference has followed the Kentucky in having a "cashier" to receive all funds.

It is especially gratifying to learn through the Mission Rooms of the prosperity of our work in Japan.

Bishop C. B. Galloway is expected to return from his visit to China and Japan about the first of December.

The Baltimore Southern Methodist has nearly 6,000 subscribers. The paper was started only a few months ago.

We thank Dr. W. B. Palmore for complimentary tickets to the Jerusalem exhibit at the World's Fair, St. Louis.

The Arkansas Methodist, under Brothers Anderson and Miller looks "fine" in its new dress. We note other improvements.

In last week's issue of the Central there were calls for eight or ten preachers in the bounds of our two Kentucky Conferences.

Bishop Wilson has authorized a change in the date of the meeting of the Annual Conference from November 9th to November 16th.

Rev. G. C. Rankin, the editor of the Texas Christian Advocate, and his wife have been taking in the sights of the great Fair in St. Louis.

The first edition of the Quillian Lectures by Bishop Hendrix has been exhausted. The Publishing House is making preparations to issue a second edition.

General Notes

Richmond, Va., was selected for the Episcopal General Convention of 1907 by the convention in Boston.

Rev. Albion W. Knight, for ten years past rector of St. Philip's Church, Atlanta, Ga., has been elected Bishop of Cuba.

The King of Spain has issued a decree forbidding labor on Sunday, and ordering shops and places of amusement to be closed on that day.

The per capita circulation of money in the United States on August 1st was estimated at $31.16. It has never been so large in the history of the country.

Mrs. Jemima Luke, whose hymn, "I think when I read that sweet story of Old," is sung in every Christian home, is living in England, past her ninetieth year.

The public schools of New York City opened the fall term recently with an enrollment of six hundred thousand children. They represent nearly every nation on earth.

World's Fair judges to-day gave Grand Prize (highest award) to Funk & Wagnalls for their Standard Dictionary, and Gold Medal for their Literary Digest and reference works.

At Leatherhead, England, the place where Mr. John Wesley preached his last sermon, February 23, 17919, the Wesleyan Methodists will erect a memorial to our honored founder. The building will be a Memorial Hall to cost about $10,000.

The Right Hon. James Bryce, Member of Parliament for Aberdeen, and author of "The American Commonwealth," began a course of seven public lectures last Monday at Columbia University on "The Law in Its Relations to History."

The New York Christian Advocate thinks that Mrs. Berrington, of Cardington, England, is entitled to the unique distinction of being considered the oldest Methodist in the world. She was 104 years old last July. She still attends church.

Eva Booth will succeed Commander Booth Tucker at the head of the Salvation Army Drunkard Brigade. The first company in the country was organized at Pittsburg. Four soldiers with stretchers gathered in helpless "drunks" and took them to the barracks for physical and religious treatment.

A call has been issued for a Baptist Evangelization Convention to be held in St. Louis in May, 1905. This convention is to be composed of delegates from all Baptist Churches in the United States and Canada, and has for its primary object the discussion of the best methods of carrying on evangelistic work.

The International Reform Bureau is starting a movement to induce Britain to nullify the Anglo-Chinese treaty obligations which compel China to tolerate the opium triffic. It is thought that the opening of the whole Chinese question, which is sure to follow the present war, will make the time opportune for such a movement. And surely every patriotic British subject will hope for its success.

Since George Muller founded his Orphan Homes in Bristol, England, sixty-three years ago, $5,712,395 have been given for their maintenance, and $2,088,065 for other charitable and religious objects connected with these institutions, all of which was raised "as the result of prayer to God, without any one having been personally applied to for anything." The income last year was nearly $200,000, and three hundred and eight orphans were received.

Notice to Preachers.

Please hand me at Conference any of my little books you cannot sell, and oblige,

Yours forever,

A. D. BETTS.

Lillington, N. C.

NORTH CAROLINA EPWORTH LEAGUE

DEVOTIONAL, CHARITABLE, CONFERENCE, LITERARY, EVANGELICAL

EDITED BY REV. H. B. ANDERSON.

We take pleasure in printing in this issue of the Advocate the report of the General Secretary. It reaches us at a time when other things are pressing for attention, and much that is pertinent to us is lost in the rush of Conference work.

Reader, if you are a pastor and have no League, kindly permit me to call your attention specially to the third paragraph; and, if you have not circulated the Era, to the sixth paragraph.

All who are interested in the growth and development of Methodism should read the second paragraph. And the entire report is good to edifying. Let all read all of it.

Report of the General Secretary of the Epworth League.

To the Bishops and Members of the ..... Conference.

Dear Fathers and Brethren:—It gives me great pleasure to be able to report to you that the fiscal year which closed on April 30, 1904, was financially and otherwise the most prosperous in the history of the Epworth League. The General Minutes showed a substantial increase in the number of League Chapters and a very gratifying increase in the League membership. The Book Agents' report, to be submitted to you at your present sitting, will make the very satisfactory showing that the Erworth Era, during last year, paid the entire expense of its publication and had a small balance to its credit.

The spirit of the League remains one of steadfast loyalty to the church, its doctrines and its authority. Many hundreds of League Chapters, composed as they are of our choicest young men and young women, have developed into ideal conditions of activity and service, being centers of consecrated living, testimony, and ministry. It is my profound and thankful belief that, without exception, our nearly four thousand active Chapters are fully "justifying their existence" by reason of loyalty and good works. It is true that in many of these much more might be done, much higher standards of zeal and service might be maintained; but the church that possesses even an organized sentiment of faith and obedience in the shape of an Epworth League is richer for it in its spiritual life.

The question for all pastors to ask concerning the Epworth League is this: "If, for any reason, I have not organized my young people into an Erworth League, what can I do for them, what am I doing for them in the way of their systematic training in righteousness and good works?" The Epworth League describes a something that must be undertaken, in one form or another, by the faithful pastor. Is it not better to exhaust every means to do it in the way prescribed by the church? It is a question of losing or saving our young people.

The activity of the League in missionary study and giving in works of charity and in general co-operation with the pastor, increases and becomes each year more and more a settled policy of our young people.

I call attention of the Conference to the "Epworth League Culture Courses," which have been before the League now for a full year. The success of the plans involved in these courses has been considerable. Especially is an investigation of the "Bible Circle" studies invited. Our success with this particular department of the "Culture Courses" leads us to hope that we have hit upon a plan by which all our young people may be brought to take up a systematic study of the Holy Scriptures. Our literary and reading courses for the coming year will contain selections for Senior, Intermediate, and Junior readers. The circulation of high-grade literature with a positive religious flavor through this means has become a matter of moment. Last year it amounted to six thousand volumes, read by twenty to thirty thousand members of the League. The far-reaching effects of this work must be studied to be understood. We fully expect to circulate ten thousand volumes next year.

The claims of the Epworth Era are earnestly urged upon our pastors. A very large number of our pastors do not read the League paper. To this fact more than to any other is traceable, as we believe, the difficulty which we experience in extending the League work in some quarters. The Magazine Era, issued once a month, is a pledge of what we hope to make the weekly Era in the near future. It is the purpose of the editor to make a paper that will, in its literary and religious spirit and otherwise, fully represent the dignity of our cause and the needs of our young people. We aspire to make a periodical which will equal the best, and which will fully connete with the popular foreign literature which has almost completely taken the literary command of our church homes. We must make such a periodical as this or surrender the literary and religious beliefs of our young people to the care and leadership of alien teachers. Are our pastors ready to make such a surrender? Are they ready to see their young people furnished with literature from the hands of strangers. If we do not give our young people a great, popular paper, somebody else will. When we surrender this right, or even this necessity to others, we surrender the gate of the castle. If we have help, we will make such a paper of the Era. We are ready to do it now; but it can be done only when we get a response from our pastors and young people equal to the greatness of the design.

The General Erworth League Board, under the authority granted it by the book of Discipline, has elected the Rev. Fitzgerald S. Parker, D. D., of the Louisiana Conference, and son of the late Bishop Linus Parker, to be the General Secretary's assistant. Dr. Parker has entered faithfully and zealously on the discharge of his duty, and is bringing helpful skill and experience to the General Office.

Respectfully submitted,

H. M. DUBOSE.

A RUNAWAY BICYCLE

Terminated with an ugly cut on the leg of J. B. Orner, Franklin Grove, Ill. It developed a stubborn ulcer unyielding to doctors and remedies for four years. Then Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured. It's just as good for Burns, Scalds, Skin Eruptions and Piles. Twenty-five cents at all druggists.

A QUICK CURE For Coughs, Colds — Allen's Lung Balsam

Shepard's Lung Food.

A 50 cent bottle of Shepard's Lung Food FREE to any one wishing to test its efficacy in treatment of ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, COLDS, COUGHS, LA GRIPPE, CONSUMPTION, or any affections of the throat or lungs. Indispensable for public speakers.

Send name and address of your druggist and we will send you 50c. to pay him or one bottle of Lung Food. $100 reward for a case which it will not cure.

THE LUNG FOOD CHEMICAL CO., Wilmington, N. C.

Dropsy CURED Gives Quick Relief.

Removes all swelling in 8 to 20 days; effects a permanent cure in 30 to 60 days. Trial treatment given free. Nothing can be fairer. Write Dr. H. H. Green's Sons, Specialists, Box ... Atlanta, Ga.

WRIGLEY ENGRAVING COMPANY.

ENGRAVERS, ELECTROTYPERS, STEREOTYPERS.

COPPER, HALF TONE AND ZINC ETCHES.

ALLEN & FORSYTH STS. ATLANTA, GA.

Save Half in Fruit Trees

Wholesale Rates to Farmers.

Choicest stock of Fruit Trees in the country. All the large, Improved Peaches affording luscious fruit from May to November. All the supe-b apples and pears covering the whole year. Mammoth delicious plums, cherries, grapes, figs, asparagus, rhubarb, etc. Largest shippers of

STRAWBERRY PLANTS in the World

All trees, etc., delivered FREE 130 page manuel, telling how to grow all kinds of Fruit, Free to buyers.

Write now for catalogue for fall planting. Mention this paper.

CONTINENTAL PLANT CO., Kittrell, N. C.

WORLD'S FAIR RATES

VIA

Seaboard Air Line Railway

TO ST. LOUIS, MO., AND RETURN.

On account of the World's Fair, St. Louis, Mo., the Seaboard Air Line Railway, in connection with the C. & O. Route via Richmond and the N. C. & St. L. Route via Atlanta, will sell round trip tickets to St. Louis, Mo., at greatly reduced rates from all stations.

Rates from principal points as follows:

	Season Tickets	60 Day Tickets	15 Day Tickets
Charlotte via Atlanta	$36.10	$30.10	$24.65
Durham via Richmond	34.10	28.40	23.30
Durham via Atlanta	38.75	32.30	26.30
Henderson via Richmond	34.10	28.40	23.30
Henderson via Atlanta	38.75	32.30	26.30
Maxton via Atlanta	38.65	32.25	26.25
Raleigh via Richmond	35.60	29.90	24.80
Raleigh via Atlanta	38.75	32.30	26.30
Hamlet via Richmond	37.60	31.90	26.25
Hamlet via Atlanta	37.60	31.90	26.25
Wilmington via Richmond	38.65	32.25	26.25
Wilmington via Atlanta	38.65	32.25	26.25

LIMIT OF TICKETS—SEASON TICKETS.

Good to leave St. Louis up to December 15, 1904, will be sold daily commencing April 25th.

SIXTY DAY TICKETS.

Good to leave St. Louis up to and including 60 days from date of sale. Will be sold daily commencing April 25th.

FIFTEEN DAY TICKETS.

Good to return up to and including 15 days from date of sale, commencing April 25th, and continuing during the Exposition.

COACH EXCURSION TICKETS.

On May 9th and 23rd, 10-day coach excursion tickets will be sold at very low rates from Raleigh $18.50 via Richmond and $20.80 via Atlanta. Tickets not good in Parlor Sleeping Cars. Tickets good to leave St. Louis including ten days from date of sale.

MILITARY COMPANIES.

Special low rates for Military Companies and Bands.

Quickest schedule, direct routes, first-class coaches and Pullman Sleeping and Dining Car Service.

For further information, call on or address us. Same will be cheerfully furnished.

C. H. GATTIS, T. P. A., Raleigh, N. C.

H. A. MORSON, C. P. & T. A., Raleigh, N. C.

When writing advertisers please mention this paper.

Lowest Kind of Rates.

California & Northwest

From Sept. 15th to Oct. 15th. 1904.

Cheap one-way and round-trip tickets on various dates to Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico and Indian Territory. Through tickets from all points. Write me. J. F. Van Rensselaer, Gen. Agt. Southern Pacific and Union Pacific Railroad Companies, 13 Peachtree St., Atlanta, Ga. G. W. Ely, T. P. A., R. O. Bean, T. P. A.

Sunday School

Lesson for November 6, 1904.

Joash, the Boy King.

2 Kings 11:1-16.

Golden Text. When the righteous are in authority, the people rejoice. Prov. 29:2.

Judah had fallen upon troublous times when Joash was born. His father was Ahaziah, king of Judah, and his mother was Zibiah of Beersheba.

Ahaziah was the son of Jehoram, who was the son of king Jehoshaphat. The last named, though remembered as a good king, committed a sad mistake in marrying his son Jehoram to Athaliah, the daughter of Ahab and Jezebel, for Athaliah inherited all the bad qualities of her mother, who has been described as the Lady Macbeth of Israel's history.

Athaliah's Doings.—Jehoram died after a short reign and his son Ahaziah likewise died after a reign of but a single year. Thereupon Athaliah seized the throne, and to make her place secure, slew, as she thought, all the royal offspring, the fact that she was thus murdering her own grandchildren apparently having not the slightest effect in restraining her thirst for power.

A Woman's Strategy.—Athaliah's fell ambition was frustrated, by the cunning of another woman, Jehosheba, the sister of Ahaziah, who rescued Joash, the infant son of the late king, and hid him safely away, so that he was not slain. Either Athaliah must have been unaware of the existence of Joash, or else she was led to believe that he was included in the slaughter which had been carried out under her orders.

Jehoiada's Plan.—The priest in charge of the temple at this time was Jehoiada, and when Joash had reached his seventh year, Jehoiada devised and carried out a plan for ending the tyranny of Athaliah and exalting the young boy king to his proper station.

Tyrants, though feared, are never loved, and it proved easy to enlist the troops of the royal guard in support of the plan to elevate Joash to the throne. The details of this plan are given in the text of our lesson and need not be recreated here. Suffice it to say that the arrangements made by Jehoiada were carried out, and with armed guards about him, and amid the acclaim of the people, Joash was crowned and anointed king.

Athaliah Slain.—The fate of Athaliah is briefly but dramatically told. Hearing the tumult of the people, she came forth to the temple, expecting to awe the multitude by her approach. But her influence was gone, her cries of "Treason! Treason!" fell upon deaf ears, and she was slain as she fled from the temple by way of the entrance to the royal stables.

Some Practical Lessons.—1. Tyranny is never secure. Even the murderous precautions of Athaliah failed to secure the object which she sought, and sooner or later a like failure awaits every attempt at illgotten power.

2. The book of "the testimony," that is, God's law, was a conspicuous feature in the coronation of Joash. It should also have the pre-eminent place in every important undertaking of our life.

3. An unholy alliance may result in a long train of evil. The marriage of Ahab with Jezebel brought a long series of misfortunes to both Israel and Judah. Christians today are often tempted to make an unholy alliance with the world. Let us beware of entangling associations which may not only wreck our own usefulness but bring sorrow and misery to many others.

Dilly Dally.

Dilly Dally was almost seven years old. See if you can guess how he came to have such a funny name.

"Oh, Dilly Dally! Where are you? Run quickly with this pail to the grocer's, and get this full of molasses, and don't spill a bit. I want it for—well, no matter; I want it."

That molasses was for molasses candy. His mother had just remembered that it was his birthday.

Dilly took it and ran out of the door. He was quick enough at starting. His troubles came afterwards. In the hedge by the garden gate he spied a yellow-breast, and heard a sweet note that made him stop and see what the leaves hid. That took a minute.

"Oh, I must hurry," he said, and started again; but this time Mister Toad hopped out again in a friendly way to make him linger.

A dozen things stopped him. He had to play a game of marbles with some boys he knew. He saw a balloon up in the sky and watched it till it was a speck like a black pin's-head.

It was almost dark when he came in sight of home.

"Oh, Dilly Dally!" said his mother, "where have you been all this time? It was your party, and all the little boys and girls I sent for had to go home, it grew so late. I had to cut the cake to give them all a piece, and there wasn't anybody to play games or anything. It was too bad!"

Wasn't it? Dilly thought so. A boy's birthday party without any boy to it!

"Oh, Dilly Dally!" sai dhis mother, sorrowfully, "why don't you earn a better name?"

Dilly Dally says he is going to. How do you suppose he is going to do it?—Sunbeam.

For Asthma use CHENEY'S EXPECTORANT.

CHRISTMAS SERVICES and Cantatas for CHRISTMAS HOSANNAS—CHRISTMAS BELLS. Two new services for the S. S. containing new features not found in others, 5c per doz. Enclose 10c for samples.

FREE A Catalogue of Exciting Cantatas for the S. S. and Choir, also specimen pages. GEO. F. BOSCHE & CO.: Chicago, 50 Michigan Ave. New York, 22 S. William St.

BLAKESLEE GASOLINE ENGINES

ARE BEST FOR Cotton Ginning

"I can only speak of the engine be ought of you last Fall in the highest terms * * * We find her to move with the regularity of a clock, a thing that we think very essential in making a good sample of cotton. As for safety, we think it far surpasses steam, and perhaps not more dangerous than water. It seems very simple and easy to learn * * * and believe it to be only a question of time when they will take the place of steam engines."

Rev. J. W. BURTON, L. E. of the M. E. Church, South.

Send for catalogue N, stating power requirements.

White-Blakeslee Mfg. Co. Birmingham, Ala.

ROYALTY PAID on SONG POEMS, and Musical Compositions. We arrange and popularize. PIONEER PUB. CO. 625 Baltimore Bldg. CHICAGO, ILL.

ITCHING ECZEMA

In July, 1883, I began to break out with Eczema on my head, legs and arms, and began treatment with local doctors, but did not get much relief. They said the disease had become chronic. I then quit them and tried various ointments and soaps for another two years, but as soon as cold weather came I was as bad off as ever, so I finally decided to let medicine alone, and for twelve or thirteen years did nothing towards curing the Eczema, except bathing. This seemed to do about as much good as anything I had tried.

During the time I lost about one-half of my hair. I began S. S. S. doubtful of a cure, because the disease had run so long, but soon discovered your medicine was doing me good, and continued to take it. I used seven bottles, when I was completely cured, not having a single spot on my body, which before was almost completely covered. F. C. NORFOLK. 1017 Hackberry St., Ottumwa, Ia.

The head, feet and hands are usually the parts affected, though the disease appears on other parts of the body. While external applications allay the itching and burning temporarily, it is the acids thrown off by the blood that cause the irritation and eruptions upon the skin. The acids must be neutralized and the system cleansed of all humors and poisons before the cure is permanent. S. S. S. is guaranteed entirely free of Potash, Arsenic and other mineals. Book on the skin and its diseases sent free. Medical advice furnished free.

SSS

The Swift Specific Company, Atlanta, Ga.

WOOL.

If you have wool to sell for cash, to exchange for goods, or to be manufactured, ship it to the CHATHAM MANUFACTURING COMPANY, ELKIN, N. C., and you will not regret it. They pay the highest market price and make the best goods you can get. Their blankets at all the leading expositions have been awarded GOLD MEDALS as the finest made in America.

WRITE THEM FOR SAMPLES.

A beautiful Bible in reach of all

NO MONEY NEEDED

All you need is to send to us for 12 copies of THE AMERICAN ILLUSTRATED METHODIST MAGAZINE. Sell them to friends at price of 15c a copy, return the $1.80 collected, and we will send you by return mail, absolutely free, our beautiful Holman Teachers' Bible, bound in morocco, helps, maps, 32 full page illustrations, 4000 questions, and answers on Old and New Testaments. You will be delighted with it, as all our customers are.

☞Our magazine was never more up and easy to learn ☜ Pastors and S. S. Teachers may order Bible for examination to be returned at our expense if not cerved.

THE METHODIST PUB. CO. 1142 LOCUST ST., St. Louis, Mo.

H. STEINMETZ. FLORIST.

Cut Flowers, Designs. Plants of all kinds.

PHONE 113. RALEIGH, N. C.

DON'T

give your child old greasy Castor Oil. Give CAS-TO-RINE. Tastes as good as maple syrup. Fifteen cents per bottle at all dealers.

DIXIE BOY SHOE

BUILT ON HONOR TO WEAR

There are Ten Million (10,000,000) boys in America who ought to wear "DIXIE BOY" Shoes. Why? Because "Dixie Boy" is ALL SOLID LEATHER MADE

DO IT NOW

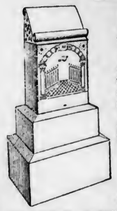
Ask your Dealer next time for "Dixie Boy," and get the best.

Geo. D. WITT Shoe Co.

Makers of fine Shoes

Lynchburg, Va.

Raleigh Marble Works



Monuments

Ship Monumental work to all parts of the State. Delivered to your depot at same price as at shop. Special attention paid to finish and lettering.

Only Best of Stock Used.

Write for new catalogue.

COOPER BROS., Proprietors, RALEIGH, N. C.

Raleigh and Cape Fear Railroad

TIME TABLE.

Effect 12:01 A. M., Sunday, October 9, 1904.

SOUTH BOUND TRAINS. Daily, ex. S. Second-Class	SOUTH BOUND TRAINS. Daily, ex. S. First-Class	STATIONS.	NOR. BOUND TRAINS. Daily, ex. S. First-Class	NOR. BOUND TRAINS. Daily, ex. S. Second-Class
101	105		104	102
A. M.	P. M.	Lv. Raleigh Ar.	A. M.	P. M.
7 20	4 15	..... Caraleigh Mills	9 45	5 55
7 35	4 25	F ..... Sylvania	9 30	5 20
7 45	4 30	F ..... Barnes	9 20	5 04
7 51	4 38	F ..... Hobby	9 14	4 57
8 03	4 50	M ..... McCULLERS	9 10	4 52
8 15	4 52	F ..... Banks	8 58	4 25
8 25	4 59	F ..... Austin	8 55	4 21
8 30	5 05	S ..... Willow Springs	8 10	4 15
8 50	5 07	M ..... JOHNSON MILL	8 40	4 03
9 05	5 15	F ..... Cardenas	8 38	4 00
9 20	5 24	S ..... C. F. & N. Junction	8 33	3 55
9 35	5 26	S ..... Fuquay Springs	8 30	3 52
9 40	5 31	F ..... Buckhorn	8 20	3 35
9 45	5 36	F ..... Rawls	8 17	3 30
10 00	5 45	S ..... Chalybeate	8 10	3 20
10 05	5 50	S ..... Bradley	8 00	3 01
10 15	6 00	F ..... Smith Mill	7 55	2 55
10 25	6 10	..... Lillington	7 45	2 45
		Ar. Lv.

JOHN A. MILLS, President and Gen. Manager.

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE NORTH CAROLINA CONFERENCE

THE

Barnes Clothing Store

IN HENDERSON, N. C.,

Sends you Greeting. We expect you with us on November 30th, and extend an invitation to one and all to make our place of business your headquarters.

We have a fine assortment of

CLOTHING

AND GENTLEMEN'S FURNISHINGS . . .

of every kind. We are specially prepared to supply our preachers with clerical suits, and will favor them with bargains, if they will call to see us.

If you will send us your measure, and inform us what kind of suit you want, we will have it ready for you when you come to Conference. If we do not suit you it will cost you nothing. We will make it to your interest to give us a call, as we are making special arrangements to supply your needs at the lowest possible figure.

BARNES CLOTHING STORE,
HENDERSON, N. C.

Christmas Gift!

Sounds early, don't it? but Christmas will be here before you realize it.

We will give a piano as a Christmas present to some one who don't own an upright piano.

An opportunity requires you to register your name at our warerooms 211 & 213 North Tryon St., Charlotte N. C., or mail us your name and address with 4 cents in stamps for return of number; and we will register your name for you.

Only one member of a family allowed to register and no one who has an upright piano in the family.

If you purchase a piano from us before December 25th, and you should hold the duplicate number drawn, we will take back the piano you have bought, refund money paid and deliver gift piano. Remember piano is absolutely free—only question asked, "have you an upright piano in your home?"

Registration begins Oct. 15th and closes Dec. 22nd.—Watch further announcements.

Manufacturer of the piano with the sweet tone.

Chas. M. Stieff

Southern warerooms 211-213 N. Tryon St., C. H. Wilmoth, Mgr. Charlotte, N. C.

DO YOU WANT A TEACHER?

The Educational Bureau, Raleigh, N. C., has recently secured the names of a large number of good teachers open to engagement. Write fully as to your needs. It charges you nothing.

Cancer Hospital.

We want every man and woman in the United States to know what we are doing —We are curing Cancers, Tumors and Chronic Sores without the use of knife and are endorsed by the Senate and Legis ature of Virginia. If you are seeking a cure come here and you will get it.

The Kellam Cancer Hospital,
Richmond, Va.

XANTHINE
HAIR RESTORATIVE.

Discovered by Prof. Hertz, a noted German Chemist.

Never fails to restore the natural color to any gray hair. Prevents dandruff and promotes growth. Price $1.00 per bottle.

TRY THE XANTHINE DYSPEPSIA TABLETS

and you will find them superior to anything you have ever used Price 50 cts. per box. We pay charges on all orders addressed to

XANTHINE CO.,
Richmond, Va.

Write us for circulars.

Fine Wood Flooring

Parquet Floors and Specialties.
Moore's Floor Wax.
Moore's patent Tests
Send for FREE illustrated CATALOGUE.

E. B. MOORE & CO.
77 Wabash ave., Chicago

..Dobbin & Ferrall..

(AT TUCKER'S STORE)

Raleigh, N. C.

BRIDAL OUTFITS.

We are fully prepared to furnish a complete Trousseau. Every detail absolutely correct. No better materials can be furnished anywhere, and our dress makers are the best in the world—a broad statement but fully true. It is far better to have the customers come to our store making the trip to Raleigh. Write us if you cannot come in person. You will be given perfect attention. . . . . .

Our Prices are Lower Than Other Stores.

DOBBIN & FERRALL
123 and 125 Fayetteville St.

Special Offer

Christmas Music.

This Depository has just received a fine assortment of Christmas services, and until November 30th, will upon receipt of 10c in stamps, send postpaid to any one five of these attractive services as samples. These services are very tastefully gotten up and nearly all contain attractive recitations, which are worth double the money whether you use the music or not.

The regular price of these services is 5c per copy. This offer is good until Nov. 20th only; after that services will be sent at 5c per copy postpaid. Do not ask for free samples, but send us 10c at once and receive five of the most attractive samples ever offered. Address all orders to

Southern Methodist Book Depository,
STAUNTON, VA.

THE COUNTRY IS RINGING WITH THE PRAISES OF THE

"Southland Belle" Shoes

FAMOUS BECAUSE MERITORIOUS.
THE BEST IN AMERICA FOR $1.50
TAKE NO SUBSTITUTE.

IF YOUR DEALER DOES NOT CARRY THEM, A POSTAL CARD TO US WILL TELL YOU WHERE YOU CAN GET THEM.

CRADDOCK-TERRY CO.
LEADING SHOE MANUFACTURERS OF THE SOUTH.
LYNCHBURG----------VA.

King's Business College.

(INCORPORATED.)

CAPITAL STOCK - - $30,000.

Learn Bookkeeping, Shorthand, Touch Typewriting, Penmanship and English. Not in a month—this cannot be done. Not free—you cannot get something for nothing, but if merit appeals, we can convince you that KING'S is the best. Established and results of 20 years experience.

Reference: Every bank and leading business concern in Raleigh or Charlotte. Write for our College Journal and offers we are now making. Address,

KING'S BUSINESS COLLEGE,
Raleigh, N. C., or Charlotte, N. C.

GOWAN'S PNEUMONIA CURE

Cures Throat and Lung Affections.

Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Congested Lungs, etc., should be treated at once as such affections are very liable, if neglected, to develop into Pneumonia or Consumption. Gowan's Pneumonia Cure is a safe, speedy and certain cure for all such conditions and the only known reliable remedy for Pneumonia. It is applied externally, gives immediate relief and effects a prompt and permanent cure.

Sold by all Good Druggists, $1 per bottle

Mr. M. M. Anstey, T. F. & P. A., Atlanta & West Point R. R., Atlanta, Ga., says: "I have used Gowan's Pneumonia Cure in my family and do not hesitate to say that for coughs, colds and croup, it has no equal. I would not feel safe without a bottle of it within easy reach."

Mr. E. H. Lea, Agent So. Ry., Richmond, Va., says: "I have used Gowan's Pneumonia Cure in my family with most gratifying results, especially for chest colds and coughs. I find it a most excellent remedy."

If your druggist cannot supply you, write to

Gowan Medical Co., Durham, N. C.

BABY EASE

Warm weather brings danger to babies. Keep a bottle of Baby Ease—the world's best baby medicine—on hand. It is the safe, sure, harmless remedy for all summer bowel and stomach troubles.

At all good drug stores, 25 cents.

Manufactured by BABY EASE CO., MACON, GA.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC COMPANY.

..."SUNSET ROUTE."...

Lowest Rates and Through Service to California. Ask About Them. Through the Rice and Oil Belt.

4 Daily Trains from New Orleans to Points in Louisiana; 3 to Texas; 2 to California and Mexico.

Best Trains, Best Service; Best Everything.

OIL BURNING LOCOMOTIVES.

Through Pullman Tourist Car from Washington, Atlanta, Montgomery and Intermediate points to California, Tri-Weekly.

No trouble to answer questions

J. F. VAN RENSSELAER, General Agent. R. O. BEAN, T. P. A., ATLANTA, GA.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL SUPPLIES.

High Hat.

Made of wood for collecting money for any purpose in the Sunday-school. Size 2½ inches high, 2¾ inches in diameter. Will hold 75 pieces of coin. Price $2.00 per 100 express extra. Also made in black polish at $4.50 per hundred.

Sunday-School Badge

A gold plated enamelled pin with the words "Sunday School Reward" and the Holy Bible and the Lamp of Knowledge on. Price 25c each, 20c each by half dozen lots. 15c. each by dozen lots. Postage 10c per dozen extra

Fish. Made of cardboard, assorted colors used to award scholars for bringing in new scholars, or given for attendance and deportment The scholar having the longe t string of fish at the end of a stated period gets the prize. Very effectual. Price 60c. per hundred, or by mail 75c per 100. Big catalogue of Sunday-School Supplies free.

GOODENOUGH & WOGLOM CO., 122 Nassau St., New York.

CENTRAL ACADEMY

LITTLETON, N. C.

A Christian Home School for Boys and Young Men. Spring Term begins Jan. 4th, 1905. Charges very low. For further information address

REV. W. W. ROSE, Principal.

When writing advertisers, pleasemention this paper.

Methodist Orphanage

OFFICERS:

REV. J. W. JENKINS, - Superintendent
MRS. J. W. JENKINS, - - Matron
MISS LUCY M. REEKS, Teacher

Send money to the Superintendent by Check, Post Office or Express Money Order, or Registered letter.

Receipts up to October 31.

Stantonsburg S. S., for 1904, $30; Miss Rany of Germanton, $1.00; Tar River Circuit: Plank Chapel S. S., $2.70; Trinity S. S., $1.25; Ebenezer S. S., $1.45; Kittrell S. S., $1.25. Miss Fannie B. Jenkins, $1.00; Wilson S. S., per Mr. J. G. Brown, $15; Mr. A. S. Thompson on annual dues, $10.00.

Donations in kind: Ten dollars from W. H. M. Society, Kinston, for Nash box's clothes; one bed quilt from sister W. T. Sturdivant, of Merry Oaks; clothing W. H. M. Society of Windsor; clothing W. H. M. Society of Beaufort; clothing from Methodist ladies and little girls of Red Springs; one shoulder of meat from J. C. Bledsoe.

Thanksgiving.

Before this is in print, the annual Thanksgiving proclamations, both of the President and the Governor, will have been made.

Will not our brethren give us the biggest amount that ever has been given? The times are propitious. The farmers are in good condition, wages are high and the merchants are happy. Everybody has so much to be thankful for. Most of the pastors refused to take the collection for the Orphanage that they ordered. They saw fit to risk all on Thanksgiving. Now, brethren, show us that your second thought was best. Make a big day of it, and send in the cash by the hand full. Don't turn it over to joint board—send it in the right direction. Send it on Friday, and I will be able to report it at Conference.

A Word About Blanks.

Many blanks are returned to us without being properly filled out. The Executive Committee are very particular about this matter, and properly so. What is the use of having rules, if you do not observe them. No one sends a stamp to pay the postage on them. It is troublesome to have to send so many back, and then postage must be paid the second time. Look to it brethren. See that they are all right before you return them.

Some return them scratched. Especially in the surrender clause. We never consider a scratched blank for a moment. They go to the waste basket as quick as they can get there. All have to enter here in the same way. Through the same door. Do you understand? Sic semper.

The Orphanage at Conference.

During the present Conference year, one forward step was taken at the Rockingham District Conference. Hon. R. N. Page, of Biscoe, president of our Board of Trustees, was appointed by the Presiding Elder, Bro. John N. Cole, to address the Conference on the Orphanage work. It was so well received, that the Conference unanimously requested him to repeat it at the next session of our annual Conference to be held at Henderson. Of course the Conference will respect that request, and give Brother Page a hearing. Will not the committee on public worship see that an hour is set apart for that purpose? Let them also appoint some live preacher to follow him. One that has the work on his heart. Then throw the subject open for a free discussion. Ways and means must be provided to fill our new building, and to support scores of orphan children.

TETTERINE.

Is a prompt and effective cure for tetter, ring worm, ground itch, eczema, erysipelas, infant sore head, chaps, chafe, sun burn, insect bites and all forms of cutaneous affections. Why suffer from this annoying disease, when a 50 cent box of Tetterine will relieve you?

Ask your druggist for it or mail 50 cents to J. T. Shuptrine, Savannah, Ga.

The Teachers' Reading Course.

Circulars explaining this course are being sent out, and names of subscribers are coming in daily. Sometimes requests for fuller information come, and such requests are cheerfully answered.

To the readers of the Advocate the following explanation is offered:

The Course consists of ten paper-bound books upon these subjects in the public school:

Nature Study; Civics; Biography and History; Literature; Hygiene; School Government.

THE COST OF THE COURSE

If you are already a subscriber to The Progressive Farmer, or if you have access to it, you need send the Secretary only one dollar for the books, and twenty-five cents for the membership fee.

If you do not already have an opportunity to read this paper, your subscription to it will cost you an additional seventy-five cents—a special rate given to Reading Circle members.

Thus, it will be seen that the maximum cost is two dollars; the minimum cost, one dollar and a quarter.

In the Progressive Farmer there appears every week a column supplementing the book of the course that is being studied. Already four articles have been written on the subject of "The Discovery of America," giving information not in the book itself. Questions on the book will be given and these may be answered and sent to the Secretary to be graded and returned. Any questions that may be asked about the subject under discussion will be answered through the newspaper columns. Reference books will also be given.

All communications should be addressed to the Secretary, Miss Ada V. Womble, Raleigh.

He: "That bull terrier of yours has a speaking countenance, hasn't he?"

She: "Do you think so?"

He: "Yes, it says to me plainly as words could, 'Beware of the dog!'"
—Kansas City Journal.

DOESN'T RESPECT OLD AGE.

It's shameful when youth fails to show proper respect for old age, but just the contrary in the case of Dr. King's New Life Pills. They cut off maladies no matter how severe and irrespective of old age. Dyspepsia, Jaundice, Fever, Constipation all yield to this perfect Pill. Twenty-five cents at all druggists.

YOU HAVE NO FRIENDS

In any town or community but what will be greatly interested in a household remedy that is now being used extensively throughout the United States as a complete and permanent cure for catarrh of the mucous membranes, dyspepsia, constipation, and all diseases of the liver, kidneys and bladder. Only one dose a day is necessary. Write at once to the Vernal Remedy Company, Le Roy, N. Y., as they have so much confidence in this remedy that they will cheerfully send you free of charge a trial bottle Vernal Palmettona (Palmetto Berry Wine,) so that you can quickly convince yourself the wonderful results to be obtained from its use. Sold by druggists everywhere, but don't hesitate to write for free trial bottle and booklet.

For Whooping Cough use CHENEY'S EXPECTORANT.

CANCER

Permanent Cure Guaranteed, without knife, X-Ray, Arsenic or Acids; no inconvenience. Write for book.

Southern Cancer Sanatorium
1520 E. Monument St. Baltimore, Md.

THE LARGEST SALE OF ANY ONE BRAND IN THE UNITED STATES.

Sauers

FLAVORING EXTRACTS

BEST BY TEST.
AT YOUR GROCER
10c and 25c.

21,245
UNIQUE

21,245 Sunday-school Superintendents and workers were asked by us to name the most practical songs used by them The result is the most Unique and Incomparably the finest collection of songs for Sunday-schools and Praise services ever issued.

THE VOICE OF PRAISE

beautifully bound in full cloth (Vellum de Luxe) $25 a hundred; 30cts. singly by mail. Send for free descriptive pamphlet, or for complete returnable sample. We pay the postage.

Hall-Mack Co. 1018-20 Arch St., Phila. 156 Fifth Ave., N. Y.

Saw Mills

1500 ft. 1 in. boards per hour with 16 H. P. is the record of our Light 25 ft. Saw Mills. Small Mills for farmers and Large Mills for lumbermen. Also Engines, Boilers, Shingle Mills Edgers, Grist Mills, etc. Write for Catalogue K Address Salem Iron Works, Winston-Salem, N. C.

BLYMYER CHURCH BELLS

Please mention this paper.

I WANT one thousand old Coins and Confederate money. I will pay spot cash for them. Write G. F. PETERSON & CO., Ingold, N. C.

Quarterly Meetings.

WARRENTON DISTRICT.

G. F. Smith, P. E., Littleton, N. C.

FOURTH ROUND.

Littleton, Littleton, Nov. 3, 4
Weldon, Nov. 6 7
Garysburg, Seaboard, Nov. 5
Roanoke Circuit, Smiths, Nov. 12, 13
Roanoke Rapids, Rosemary, Nov. 13, 14
Ridgeway, Union, Nov. 19, 20
Henderson, Nov. 27, 28

ELIZABETH CITY DISTRICT.

J. E. Underwood, P. E., E. City, N. C.

FOURTH ROUND.

Dare, Mann's Harbor, Nov. 5, 6
Roanoke Island, Nov. 6, 7
Elizabeth City, First Church, Nov. 13
Elizabeth City Road, Nov. 13
Columbia, Nov. 19, 20
Pantego and Belhan, Nov. 25
Roper, Nov. 26, 27
Plymouth, Nov. 27

WASHINGTON DISTRICT.

J. D. Bundy, P. E., Rocky Mount, N. C.

FOURTH ROUND.

Greenville, (morning) Nov. 6
Grimesland and Vanceboro, Shilmerdine, November 6, 7
Spring Hope, Hornes, Nov. 12, 13
Wilson Station, (night) Nov. 13
Wilson Circuit, (Lodge Street) Nov. 14
Fremont, Fremont Nov. 15
Rock Mount, Nov. 16
Bath, Bath, Nov. 19, 20
South Rocky Mount and Marvin, Nov. 22
South Edgecombe, Elm City, Nov. 27, 28

ROCKINGHAM DISTRICT.

John N. Cole, P. E., Rockingham, N. C.

FOURTH ROUND.

Montgomery, Capelsio, Nov. 5, 6
Red springs Red springs, Nov. 12, 13
Pekin, Concord, Nov. 19, 20
Aberdeen, Aberdeen, Nov. 26, 27

RALEIGH DISTRICT.

W. H. Moore, P. E., Pittsboro, N. C.

FOURTH ROUND.

Oxford Station, November 5, 6
Youngsville, November 12, 13
Louisburg, November 19, 20
Tar River Plank Chapel, Novembe

NEW BERN DISTRICT.

F. D. Swindell, P. E., Goldsboro, N. C

FOURTH ROUND.

Snow Hill Circuit, Jerusalem, Nov. 5, 6
Craven, Asbury, Nov. 11
Carteret, Harlow Nov. 12, 13
Beaufort, Nov. 13, 14
Atlantic, Wil, Nov. 15, 16
Straits Tabernacle, Nov. 19, 20
Morehead, Nov. 20
LaGrange Circuit, Nov. 23
St. John Nov. 25
Mt. Olive Circuit, Smiths, Nov. 26, 27

DURHAM DISTRICT.

J. T. Gibbs, P. E., Durham, N. C.

FOURTH ROUND.

Mt Tirzah Circuit, Nov. 5, 6
Burlington, Front Street Nov. 13, 14
East Burlington, Graham and Haw River, Nov. 13, at night
Burling on, Shiloah, Nov. 13
Alamance, Pailips Chapel, Nov. 19, 20
Main Street, Nov. 27, at 11 a. m.
West Durham, Nov. 27, at night

FAYETTEVILLE DISTRICT.

J. S. Hurley, P. E., Fayetteville, N. C.

FOURTH ROUND.

Hope Mills, Nov 5, 6
Newton Grove, Nov. 11
Duke, Benson, Nov. 12, 13
Burkhorn, Cokesbury, Oct. 18
Lillington, Nov. 19 20
Sampson, Andrews Chapel, Nov. 25
Fayetteville, Hay Street, Nov. 27
Fayetteville, Hoffs Hill, Nov. 27

WILMINGTON DISTRICT.

R. B. John, P. E., Wilmington, N. C.

FOURTH ROUND.

Burgaw, Burgaw, Nov. 4
Kenansville Warsaw, Nov. 5, 6
Onslow, Tabernacle Nov. 9
Jackson and Richlands, Richlands, Nov. 10
Southport, Nov. 3
New River, Sneed's Ferry, Nov. 18
Scott's Hill, Scott's Hill, Nov. 19, 20
Bladen Street, Nov. 27

Scholarship Free

FOR ONE MONTH. CLIP AND SEND OR PRESENT THIS NOTICE FOR PARTICULARS.

150 Page Illustrated Catalogue Free.

DRAUGHON'S PRACTICAL BUSINESS Colleges

RALEIGH, N. C.

St. Louis, Mo. Shreveport, La.
Atlanta, Ga. Knoxville, Tenn.
Paducah, Ky. Kansas City, Mo.
Fort Worth, Tex. Nashville, Tenn.
Columbia, S. C. Little Rock, Ark.
Ft. Scott, Kas. Montgomery, Ala.
Galveston, Tex. Oklahoma City, O. T.

The Fast Trains

To California are run over the Union Pacific. Via Omaha 16 hours quicker to San Francisco than any other line. No change of roads, no detours, "The Overland Route" all the way Be sure your ticket reads over the Union Pacific. Inquire of

J. H LOTHROP, C. A.,
903 Olive St., St. Louis, Mo.

Five Points.

Almost like a pag: from the "Arabian Nights" is the story of The excellence of Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy.

It makes pure b'ood Is why it cures all those Diseases That Physicians name and classify.

Thousands have been cured, Many of whom were l fe-long, Sufferers. It will do the same for you.

To go through life without it Is positively cr minal when this Remedy Is within your easy reach.

If you need a Remedy, why not Try the Best. This is a Square dea'er. Convince yours.lf and pass it on to others. Sold by a'l druggists. Manufactured only by Mrs J. e Person, Charlotte, N. C.

Marriages

BRADSHAW—HOWARD—Mr. J. T. Bradshaw and Miss A. C. Howary were married in Leasburg, N. C., the 18th instant, at 6.30 p. m., Rev. M. C. Thomas officiating.

FORSYTHE — DENNIS. — At Thurman, N. C., October 19, 1904, at 4 p. m., Mr. Geo. H. Forsythe, of Nevada, Mo., to Miss Bertha Dennis, of Thurman, N. C., J. H. M. Giles officiating.

COBLE—ROGERS.—At Swansboro, N. C., in the M. E. Church, South, October 20, 1904, Albert H. Coble, of Kinston, N. C., to Miss Zula Rogers, of Swansboro, D. C. Geddie officiating.

MASON—CROSS. — Married in the Methodist church at Sunbury, N. C., October 25, 1904, Mr. C. B. Mason, of Elizabeth City, N. C., and Miss Lillian Lee Cross, of Sunbury, N. C., Rev. T. J. Dailey officiating.

WALKER — LOFTEN.—At the residence of Mr. E. D. Walker, in Pender County, N. C., October 27, 1904, Mr. George W. Walker, of Burgaw Township, to Miss Blanche M. Lofton, of Kinston, Rev. C. C. Brothers officiating.

UTLEY—SLEDGE.—At Weldon, N. C., October 19, 1904, Mr. Egbert G. Utley and Miss Ethel B. Sledge were united in marriage, J. E. Holden, being a near relative of groom, officiating, with consent of the pastor, Rev. W. W. Rose.

MELVIN—BENNETT.—On October 23, 1904, at the home of the bride's father, Mr. D. F. Melvin, of Cypress Creek, N. C., Miss Lena Melvin, of Cypress Creek, to Mr. L. L. Bennett, of Parkersburg, N. C., A. J. Groves officiating.

Obituaries

Obituaries containing not more than one hundred and fifty words are inserted free of charge. Those sending obituaries containing over one hundred and fifty words are requested to send with the obituary one cent for every word in excess. Unless this rule is observed the obituary must be cut down to the proper limit.

BREECE.—Sister Johnnie (Blackman) Breece was born 1839 and died the 27th of September, 1904.

Sister Breece was one of those deeply pious women who was a faithful church-goer, but for several years has not been able to attend church.

Sister Breece spent her latter days very much in solitude, as her husband and only child had both died before her. The old homestead is now deserted, but she is no longer lonely, for she joins the company of the redeemed in her Father's home.

R. A. BRUTON.

HERRING.—Clara May, the little daughter of Bro. J. Fletcher Herring and wife, in the Burgaw Circuit, died of gastric fever, September 26, 1904, aged two years, three months and thirteen days.

Clara May was quite a favorite with all who knew her—bright, happy and affectionate. It was a severe trial to the loved ones to part from her; but faith in the wisdom of God sustains them, and they, in their sorrow, submit to His will. She is one more link that binds them to the sweet beyond. By the grace of God, and steadfast faith in Christ, we will meet the loved ones over there, after awhile.

C. C. BROTHERS.

ATWATER.—Martha Cassander Warren Atwater was born in Wake County, N. C., near old Soap Stone church, August 10, 1824, and died at the home of her youngest son, James B. Atwater, of Bynum, N. C., Wednesday, September 21, 1904, at the advanced age of four score years.

In her seventeenth year she was happily married to Jehiel Atwater, of Orange County. To this union were born six sons and six daughters, six of whom, Edward W., Rufus H., J. Nathaniel and James B. Atwater and Mrs. C. W. Bynum and Mrs. J. W. Jenkins now live.

There are seventeen grandchildren and fifteen great-grandchildren now living.

To an extraordinary degree, Martha Warren was an affectionate and obedient daughter. As a wife, she was faithful, helpful and inspiring. Few children, perhaps, have been blessed with a mother in whom was greater love, tenderness, patience and firmness. As a friend and neighbor, she was helpful to the extent of her ability, and hundreds there are who, to-day, rise up and bless her memory.

I do not recall that I have seen a woman in whom I thought were more nearly met all the excellencies enumerated in the description of the "Worthy Woman" in the thirty-first chapter of the Proverbs.

In early life Mrs. Atwater joined the Methodist church, and to the end of her life she was faithful and constant in her devotions; and by her pure, noble life inspired in all her acquaintance a desire to be righteous. Her presence in the congregation was always an inspiration to her pastor.

And she, being dead, yet speaketh in the noble, stalwart, Christian characters of her descendants.

ROBERT W. BAILEY.

LYNCH.—Died, near Mebane, N. C., August 26, 1904, Mrs. Wanita Hamlet Lynch, beloved wife of Mr. Len. Lynch.

Mrs. Lynch was born in Chatham County, N. C., the 26th day of August, 1877. She leaves a husband and two sons. She was confined to her bed for nearly nine months and bore her suffering with true Christian fortitude. As a mother, she was affectionate; as a wife, she was devoted, loyal; as a friend and neighbor, she was kind and thoughtful.

When thirteen years of age she united with the church of her choice, and exemplified thereafter, in her daily life, the Christian graces of the Gospel. It was the writer's pleasure and privilege to visit her often a short time before her death, to talk and pray with her; the sweet memories of those visits are often recalled and can never be forgotten. Mrs. Lynch's implicit faith and confidence in her Saviour, whom she loved to dearly, was beautiful, while conscious of her weakness, and sinfulness, and unworthiness, and dependence upon God for salvation. She never doubted God's love for her, and felt confident "that if our earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved, we have a building of God, an house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens."

Mrs. Lynch was conscious all the time, knew that she was going to die, but was ready, resigned, and remarked to me, "I have put everything in God's hands, I am ready, and I will soon be with my Saviour."

Truly a good woman, a great woman, has gone to her reward. "Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of His saints."

R. W. HINES.

For LaGrippe and Influenza use CHENEY'S EXPECTORANT.

DEAR MADAM: Please Read My Free Offer

Words of Wisdom to Sufferers from a Lady of Notre Dame, Indiana.

I send free of charge to every sufferer this great Woman Remedy, with full instructions, description of my past sufferings and how I permanently cured myself.

You Can Cure Yourself at Home Without the Aid of a Physician.

It costs nothing to try this remedy once, and if you desire to continue its use, it will cost you only twelve cents a week. It does not interfere with your work or occupation. I have nothing to sell. Tell other sufferers of it; that is all I ask. It cures everybody, young or old.

If you feel bearing down pains as from approaching danger, pain in the back and bowels, creeping sensation in the spine, a desire to cry, hot flashes and faintness, or if you are suffering from any so-called female complaint, then write to Mrs. M. Summers, Notre Dame, Ind., for her free treatment and full instructions. Like myself thousands have been cured by it. I send it in a plain envelope.

Mothers and Daughters will learn of a simple family remedy, which quickly and thoroughly cures female complaints of every nature. It saves worry and expense and the unpleasantness of having to reveal your condition to others. Vigor, health and happiness result from its use.

Wherever you live I can refer you to well-known ladies in your neighborhood, who know and will testify that this family remedy cures all troubles peculiar to their sex, strengthens the whole system and makes healthy and strong women. Write to-day, as this offer may not be made again.

MRS. M. SUMMERS, BOX 233, NOTRE DAME, IND., U. S. A.

BUNCO

Patent Applied For. Copyright, 1904.

THE GREAT GAME

At once takes command of the brain and gives a new pleasure one can't shake off. Bunco unmistakably outlives everything in the game line and means a prominent reputation in your community. It's fairly alive with endless new situations and amusing combinations. Easy to learn and keenly interesting to both the young and the old. Anybody can play it—successfully played at progressive parties, as well as individual tables. 115 Cards.

None of the objections of playing cards. Pure social fun.

Your dealer sells Bunco for 50 cents, or order direct from us, 50 cents, postage paid.

Makers of Bird Center Etiquette. A card game from original drawings by John T. McCutcheon. All dealers, or 50 cents, prepaid.

HOME GAME CO., 92 Dearborn Street, CHICAGO

CROSS & LINEHAN CO.,
NEW TUCKER BUILDING.)
234-236 Favetteville St., RALEIGH, N. C.

LET US SHOW YOU WHAT THE FULL MEANING OF BARGAIN-GIVING MEANS IN . . . . . .

CLOTHING
AND GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS.

OUR NEW SPRING STOCK NOW READY FOR YOUR INSPECTION.

Cross & Linehan Co.,
Leading Clothiers.

Frisco System
Chicago & Eastern Illinois R. R.
FRISCO SYSTEM

Double Daily Trains
BETWEEN
St. Louis AND Chicago
MORNING AND EVENING.

From LaSalle Street, Station Chicago ..... 9:50 a. m.—9:10 p. m.
From Union Station (Merchants Bridge) St. Louis ..... 9:30 a. m.—9:46 p. m.

Morning or evening connection at both termini with lines diverging.
Equipment entirely new and modern throughout.
A DOUBLE TRACK RAILWAY.
Equipped with practical and approved safety appliances.
Substantially constructed.

Resolutions of Respect.

Inasmuch as it has pleased our Heavenly Father to remove from earth, one of our former and beloved members, Miss May Rone; therefore be it

Resolved 1. That we, the members of the Emerson Literary Society of Greensboro Female College, have lost one of our most loyal and devoted members.

2. That we extend our deepest sympathy to the bereaved family and large circle of friends.

3. That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the Society, that a copy be sent to the North Carolina Christian Advocate, to the Raleigh Christian Advocate, to the College Message and a copy to the family.

ELLEN THOMPSON,
HELEN CHAFFIN,
CORNELIA CLEGG,
Committee.

Resolutions of respect to the memory of Mr. Ernest P. Mangum:

Whereas, it has pleased our Heavenly Father, in His wise providence, to remove from our midst our beloved superintendent and brother, Ernest P. Mangum; therefore be it

Resolved 1. That, while bowing with deep humility to the hand of God, we cannot but deeply lament the death of one so dear to us all.

2. That the heartfelt sympathy of the Sunday-school be extended to his bereaved widow and family in this their sad affliction.

3. That his Christian example of fidelity to the great trust for which he so untiringly labored, and which he so deeply loved, shall be an inspiration to us all and stimulate us to greater zeal and sacrifice.

4. That the officers and members of the Sunday-school attend the memorial services to be held in his memory on Sunday, the 11th instant, and that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family of the deceased and published in the Raleigh Christian Advocate.

JNO. Y. MOORE,
S. W. VENABLE, JR.,
(MISS) CALLIE QUARLES,
Committee.

Wilson, N. C., Sept. 10, 1904.

Resolutions of respect passed by the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Church, Troy, N. C., on the death of Mrs. Cammie Pemberton, which occurred September 30, 1904:

Whereas, our Heavenly Father, in His all-wise providence, has for the first time entered the portals of our Society, and called from membership here to that above, our beloved sister; therefore, in view of the great loss sustained thereby, be it

Resolved 1. That in her death our Society has lost an earnest, sincere and faithful member—one who was always willing to aid, and her heart was ever open to the needs of the work.

2. That while we greatly mourn the loss of so faithful a member, yet we know our Heavenly Father doeth all things well, and we bow in humble submission to His divine will, and that we extend our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family, whose home has been tourn asunder.

3. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family of the deceased, a copy be spread on the minutes of the Society, and other copies sent to the Raleigh Christian Advocate and the Examiner with request ofr publication.

MRS. J. C. BRUTON,
MRS. J. G. TOMLINSON,
INA SMITHERMAN,
Committee.

For Croup use CHENEY'S EXPECTORANT.

LADIES Interested in easily raising church money would do well to write the PETER NEAT-RICHARDSON CO., Wholesale Druggists, Louisville, Ky. All we want is the advertising. Write us.

PERSONALLY CONDUCTED TOUR TO THE WORLD'S FAIR, NOVEMBER 10, 1904, VIA SEABOARD AIR LINE RAILWAY.

The Seaboard Air Line Railway announces their last personally conducted tour to the World's Fair on Thursday, November 10th, leaving Raleigh at 4.00 p. m., Wilmington at 3.20 p. m., Charlotte at 7.25 p. m. Connection will be made from all other points in the State. Through service will be arranged from Wilmington, Charlotte, and Raleigh.

This is the last special train of the season to the World's Fair, and special low rates will apply from all points on the Seaboard and its connections.

This party will be in charge of a representative of the Seaboard, who will look after the comfort and pleasure of the party and arrange for them to get located at hotels, or boarding houses where the party may desire to stop in St. Louis.

The route selected is one of the prettiest in the South, i. e., via Atlanta, Chattanooga, Nashville, and Cairo, Ill.

For circulars and pamphlets, apply to

C. H. GATTIS, T. P. A.,
Raleigh, N. C.

GO TO ST. LOUIS VIA C. & O. ROUTE.

Now is the time to see the great World's Fair at St. Louis, Mo. Delightful weather and the Exposition complete in all it's beauty. An opportunity not to be missed and never to be forgotten.

See that your tickets read via the C. & O. and Big Four Railways. Shortest, quickest and best route, with fast vestibuled train service.

PIANOS AND ORGANS

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.

A. D. JONES & CO.
Southern Factory Distributors for the World's Famous

KIMBALL

WE Loan you the money to buy them.
WE Give free trials.
WE Pay the freight.
WE Save you 25 per cent.
WE Add nothing to the principal when sold on

EASY PAYMENTS.

Write for our latest piano and and organ catalogue and full particulars.

A. D. JONES & CO.,
208 South Elm Street,
GREENSBORO, N. C.

When writing advertisers please mention this paper.

HICKS' CAPUDINE CURES ALL HEADACHES.
IT'S LIQUID.
The perfect remedy for Colds, Indigestion, Periodic Pains, Brain Fag, etc. Prevents Train Nausea and Sick Headache. Braces the nerves. It's Harmless. Trial bottle 10c.

The Highsmith Hospital
(INCORPORATED.)

A General Hospital, centrally located on Green Street. J. F. Highsmith, M. D., Surgeon and Specialist in the diseases of women. Assistants: J. Vance McGeegan, M. D., Surgeon; J. A. McKethan, M. D., Specialist in the diseases of the eye, ear, nose and throat.

Modern appliances throughout; elevator, electric and gas light; water, heat, hot and cold shower baths and telephone service on every floor; electric call bells in all rooms; sound-deadening rubber treads and linoleum on stairways and halls, operating room second to none, well equipped chemical and microscopic laboratory with Static X-Ray Electric Machine in connection, giving unsurpassed facilities for treatment of the most difficult surgical cases.

Nurses' Home and Training School, under the supervision of Miss Maude Robertson, graduate of The Massachusetts General, of Boston, Mass., the McLean, of Waverly, Mass., and the Sloan Maternity, of New York, and recently head nurse of the surgical department of the Philadelphia Hospital.

The Cochran Annex, complete in furnishing and equipment, with endowed beds for both white and colored.

Domestic and Culinary Department under skilled housekeeper, faultless in sanitation, cleanliness and convenience.

For further information address

J. F. HIGHSMITH, M. D., Fayetteville, N. C.

SERMONS BY THE DEVIL.

By Rev. W. S. Harris.

A new and marvelous book; nothing else like it in the World; calls men out of the dark path, and shows them the right way;—301 pages, 36 wonderful illustrations. Retail price only $1.00. Quickest seller ever issued. Agents reporting 10 to 20 orders per day. Send only 10c in stamps for Outfit. Big commission. Don't miss it if you want to make money.

Hudgins Publishing Co., Atlanta, Ga.

....Chesapeake and Ohio Railway....
World's Fair Scenic Route
TO
St. Louis, Missouri.

SHORTEST, QUICKEST and BEST ROUTE. Vestibuled, Electric-Lighted Trains with Pullman Sleepers and Dining Cars.
Through tickets from North Carolina with direct connections.
SPECIAL RATES FOR SEASON, SIXTY OR FIFTEEN DAY TICKETS.
Fifteen day tickets from Raleigh, N. C., $24.80.
Sleeping car accommodations engaged upon application.
SPECIAL COACH EXCURSIONS
On authorized dates, tickets good for ten days at rate of $18.50. Correspondingly low rates from other stations. Special accommodations arranged for parties. Stop-overs permitted within limit at C. & O. celebrated mountain resorts.
USE THE C. & O. ROUTE and purchase your tickets accordingly.
For coach excursion dates, reservations and other information, address
W. O. WARTHEN, D. P. A., C. & O. Railway,
Richmond, Va.

World's Fair, St. Louis
EXTRAORDINARILY LOW RATES,
October 4-6-11-13-18-20-25 and 28, 1904.

On above-mentioned dates the Southern Railway announces very low round-trip Coach excursion rates to St. Louis. These tickets will be good in all regular Coaches, and on all trains on dates shown. Tickets good 10 days.

Rate from
Goldsboro	$20.00	Salisbury	$17.00
Selma	20.00	Charlotte	18.30
Raleigh	18.50	Statesville	17.00
Durham	17.00	Marion	16.20
Greensboro	17.00	Asheville	15.40
Sanford	20.40	Hendersonville	15.85

Tickets sold at the above rates not good in Sleeping Cars; for other rates see notices elsewhere.

For full information, World's Fair maps, literature, etc., call on or address any Agent Southern Railway.

R. L. VERNON, Trav. Pass. Agt., Charlotte, N. C.
T. E. GREEN, C. T. A., Raleigh, N. C.
S. H. HARDWICK, Pass. Traf. Mgr.
W. H. TAYLOE, Gen. Pass. Agt., Washington, D. C.

A SIN AND A SHAME

YOUR FAMILY DOCTOR

may tell you that your case is incurable, that medical science is unable to help you, that all you can expect is temporary or slight RELIEF. Well, let HIM think so. He is certainly entitled to HIS OPINION. You need not think so unless YOU WISH TO. Many people whose testimony appears in the books, pamphlets and literature of the THEO. NOEL COMPANY were told that their cases were hopeless, helpless, impossible, incurable, past all recovery, yet—READ THEIR TESTIMONY.

Many were told that they had but a few short years—some but months—to live, yet—READ THEIR TESTIMONY. There are more things in HEAVEN and EARTH than are dreamed of in the Doctor's philosophy, and Vitæ-Ore is one of them.

IF YOU

Need it and do not send for it, it is actually a sin and a shame. It is OFFERED TO YOU FREELY, unreservedly, genuinely; YOU HAVE BUT TO ASK for it. There are no strings tied to the offer, no questions to answer, no documents to sign, no references or past history to give. Getting it is simple as A B C. You just SAY THAT YOU WANT IT, that you need it, that you will use it, AND IT IS SENT TO YOU. It must be good, or it could not be sent out in this way. YOU KNOW IT MUST BE GOOD; that it IS GOOD. You have seen it advertised too often, seen it endorsed too many times, heard it highly spoken of too frequently, not to know that it IS GOOD, that it is SENT OUT FREELY as it is advertised, that it does what is claimed for it. Now if you need it, WHY DON'T YOU SEND FOR IT TO-DAY? With this knowledge before you, how can you delay, wait or refuse? What is your excuse? YOU ARE TO BE THE JUDGE! It is a SIN AND A SHAME if you need it and don't send for it. Do it to-day. Read our Special Offer.

AS A BEACON LIGHT

VITAE-ORE points the way for storm-tossed sufferers to a haven of Health and Comfort. If you have been drifting in a sea of sickness and disease, towards the rocks and shoals of Chronic Invalidism, port your helm ere it be too late, take heed of the message of hope and safety which it flashes to you; STOP DRIFTING about in a helpless, undecided manner, first on one course and then another, but begin the proper treatment immediately and reach the goal you are seeking by the route so MANY HAVE TRAVELED WITH SUCCESS.

Every person who has used Vitae - Ore is willing to act as a Pilot for you, each knows the way from having followed it. Attend their advice. FOLLOW THE LIGHT and be cured with Nature's Remedy as they have been.

We Will Send to All

Subscribers or readers of this paper, a full-sized $1.00 package of Vitæ-Ore by mail, postpaid, sufficient for one month's treatment, to be paid for within one month's time after receipt, if the receiver can truthfully say that its use has done him or her more good than all the drugs and doses of quacks or good doctors or patent medicines he or she has ever used. Read this over again carefully, and understand that we ask our pay only when it has done you good, and not before. If not, no money is wanted! We take all the risk, you have nothing to lose. If it does not benefit you you pay us nothing. We give you thirty days' time to try the medicine, thirty days to see results before you need pay us one cent, and you do not pay the one cent unless you do see the results. You are to be the judge! We know Vitæ-Ore and

We Are Willing to Take All the Risk.

CURED OF INDIGESTION

BACKACHE AND HEART FLUTTERING.

I have received a great and lasting benefit from using Vitæ-Ore. Before I had taken it for a a full month it had done me more good than anything else I had used during my long spell of sickness, and I had used other treatments for a long time. It has relieved me of Rheumatism, Chronic indigestion, Backache and Heart Fluttering. Nothing I eat now disagrees with me and my weight has increased considerably. When I began using Vitæ-Ore I was much emaciated and weighed only about 110 or 115 pounds and I now weigh about 150. I feel as though I was a living advertisement of the power of this remedy. Many of my friends have used Vitæ-Ore and they all join me in praising it.

MRS. LULA G. WALTERS,
La Grange, N. C.

From the Earth's Veins to Your Veins

WHAT VITÆ-ORE IS:

Vitæ-Ore is a natural, hard, adamantine, rock-like substance—mineral—ORE—mined from the ground like gold and silver in the neighborhood of a once powerful, but now extinct mineral spring. It requires twenty years for oxidization by exposure to the air, when it slacks down like lime and is then of medicinal value. It contains free iron, free sulphur and free magnesium, three properties which are most essential for the retention of health in the human system, and one package—one ounce of the ORE, when mixed with a quart of water, will equal in medicinal strength and curative value 80 gallons of the most powerful mineral water drank fresh at the springs. It is a geological discovery, to which nothing is added and from which nothing is taken. It is the marvel of the century for curing such diseases as

Rheumatism, Bright's Disease, Blood Poisoning, Heart Trouble, Dropsy, Catarrh and Throat Affections, Liver, Kidney and Bladder Ailments, Stomach and Female Disorders, La Grippe, Malarial Fever, Nervous Prostration, and General Debility, as thousands testify, and as no one, answering this, writing for a package, will deny after using. VITÆ-ORE has cured more chronic, obstinate, pronounced incurable cases than any other known medicine and will reach such cases with a more rapid and powerful curative action than any medicine, combination of medicines, or doctor's prescription which it is possible to procure.

Vitæ-Ore will do the same for you as it has done for hundreds of readers of this paper if you will give it a trial. Send for a $1.00 package at our risk. You have nothing to lose but the stamp to answer this announcement. We want no one's money whom Vitæ-Ore cannot benefit. You are to be the judge! Can anything be more fair? What sensible person, no matter how prejudiced he or she may be, who desires a cure and is willing to pay for it, would hesitate try Vitæ-Ore on this liberal offer? One package is usually sufficient to cure ordinary cases; two or three for chronic, obstinate cases. We mean just what we say in this announcement, and will do just as we agree. Write to-day for a package at our risk and expense, giving your age and ailments, and mention this paper, so we may know that you are entitled to this liberal offer.

NOT A PENNY WANTED UNLESS YOU ARE BENEFITED!

CURED OF RHEUMATISM

BY A TWO MONTH'S TREATMENT AT THE AGE OF 80.

About two years ago I had an attack of Rheumatism in my shoulder, which caused me considerable pain in my neck, and my arms were badly swollen even to the ends of my fingers.

The pain passed to my other shoulder and I suffered so terribly I could hardly turn over in my bed and could not put on my clothes without great difficulty. I was troubled in this way for some time, until I saw the Vitæ-Ore advertisement, "You Are to Be the Judge." It attracted my attention and I read it and read the testimonials of people who had used Vitæ-Ore, and I came to the conclusion that it exactly suited my case and decided to try a package. Before I had used the entire package I felt much improved, and as I wanted to make a perfect cure entirely sure I sent for and used another package, Vitæ-Ore cured me, for which I am very thankful. I will do all I can to make it known and advertise it. This photograph was taken on my eightieth anniversary.

O. F. BUELL,
Menominee, Mich.

☞This offer will challenge the attention and consideration, and afterward the gratitude of every living person who desires better health or who suffers pains, ills and diseases which have defied the medical world and grown worse with age. We care not for your skepticism, but ask only your personal investigation, and at our expense, regardless of what ills you have, by sending to us for a package. ADDRESS

THEO. NOEL CO. R. C. Dept., Vitæ-Ore Bldg. CHICAGO, ILL.

LIBRARY OF TRINITY COLLEGE NO. CAROLINA

Reading Room Duke University

Raleigh Christian Advocate

FIFTIETH YEAR. ORGAN OF THE NORTH CAROLINA CONFERENCE. NUMBER 41.

RALEIGH, N. C., WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 9, 1904.

Editorial

THE MAN OF DIGNITY AND THE "HUSTLER."

It is well-known that Judge Parker, who by this time should be a familiar figure in American life, set himself stoutly in the earlier days of his campaign against the efforts of the party managers to induce him to "take the stump," as did Mr. Bryan and other former candidates. Judge Parker yielded, however, a few days ago, and enlivened to an almost riotous extent the hitherto easy and uneventful flow of the political stream.

Judge Parker, in the first part of the campaign, was the man of dignity; then he became what is known in dear old rough American parlance as a "hustler." The "grand, gloomy, and peculiar" in him changed to a breezy, robust activity which is very dear to the modern practical heart.

In considering Judge Parker's metamorphosis, effected spectacularly, in the midst of red lights, we are moved to propound this question: Are we not as a people losing our sense of the meaning of the word "dignity." Its root is the Latin "dignus," meaning "worthy." To be dignified, then, in the true sense, is to be worthy of approbation or of honors and rewards. It is a quality of mind or heart. It is a possession of character. But according to the accepted definition, dignity inheres in a relation, in a pose, in apparel, in a far away stare, in abstention from certain activity. It has lost its character as a moral quality and has become something that can be doffed or donned as easily as is a suit of clothes.

Why should a Presidential candidate consider it undignified to stand before his fellow-citizens and use the tongue that he uses in talking to his wife and children? Why should the preacher consider it beneath his dignity to wear a short coat or ride a bicycle, or crack a joke? Why should the proprietor of a large business consider it an infringement of his dignity to take off his coat and give an extra push to a barrel of molasses that is being rolled into the warehouse? In doing these things there can be no loss of dignity unless there is a loss of those moral elements which help to form the assets of character. We all know that in these things there is no loss of the latter kind, yet such acts are commonly called undignified. It is clear that we have a spurious, sentimental, "sissyish" idea of dignity. This idea has no place among a people who shout so loudly at times that all men are born free and equal. It should don its royal purple, and step down from its throne.

The man who is dignified according to the modern acceptation of the term is rarely a "hustler." We like this word. We like what it stands for. It breathes the air of independence and activity. It inspheres the spirit of confident resoureefulness. It preaches the doctrine of "get there." The hustler is a man who does not think of himself more than he ought to think, who sits on no dais, who pulls off his coat when necessary, who looks upon no service to man or beast as ignoble, who looks the world squarely in the face, and who feels that he has a right to use in any honorable way and everywhere the faculties which God has given him. We like to think of Gladstone and his axe, and our admiration of the "old man eloquent" would be enhanced if we were only certain that if it had been necessary he would have been willing to use that axe in splitting wood with which to cook his breakfast. We like to think of Dr. Sam Steele preaching on the street corner to men whom he could not get to church, of Dr. Jno. R. Brooks actually selling books, of Bishop Candler preaching in a little old tent, of Bishop Hoss taking subscriptions for his church paper, and of the scores of preachers who are not ashamed to wear out shoe leather, if necessary, in promoting the slightest interest of the church. These are "hustlers" all.

But, as we have said, it is difficult to be dignified and a "hustler" at the same time. Judge Parker, by his latter hustling, received thousands of votes that he would not have received had he maintained that dignified pose of silence. "Hustling" is strained muscles, throbbing brain, and masterful purpose. It is a descent into the arena where real men and women live, where duty pleads, where the symbol gives way to the thing symbolized, and mere externalities are lost sight of in the holy ambition to materialize high ideals, and accomplish grand purposes.

"Hustling" is death to the pose, the languid air, bleached hands, mild-dewed respectability, false prudence, and worm-eaten canons of conduct. The "hustler" is called a plebeian, but he is the only true patrician in the federation of humanity. Let us have more of him in church, in State, and in the domain of ordinary activities.

A POINT FOR PARENTS.

There are more Methodist homes represented in the different schools of the State than in any previous year.

It is only a few weeks since the trunk was packed and the good-bye given. Returning letters have told of comfortable rooms, kind friends, competent instructors, and other necessary equipments.

But there is one point which we fear has not been considered by many parents. It is the question of the spiritual oversight and protection of the boy or girl.

Now is a good time to prayerfully and practically ponder the truth, enunciated by Christ himself: "Man shall not live by bread alone." It will not be sufficient for that boy or girl merely to be warmly clothed, wholesomely fed, comfortably housed, and thoroughly taught. "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and His righteousness." That boy or girl should have spiritual culture and development. It cannot always be had within the walls of the institution. It must come from the church service, the prayer-meeting, the Sunday-school, the Epworth League, and the warm grasp of Christian friends.

Parent, under no circumstances, should you depend on your boy or girl hunting up the pastor, the Sunday-school superintendent and other Christian leaders. The young are usually timid and are not generally disposed to introduce themselves to strangers.

You can do a very important work for your boy or girl by writing a note to the pastor of the church where their educational institution is located, or to the Sunday-school superintendent, or to the President of the Enworth League, and ask them to look after the spiritual interests of that boy or girl. These Chritsian leaders will be only too glad to obey your request. They will thank you for letting them know what your boy or girl is in reach. Write. Do not delay.

"ROUNDING UP."

This is an expression taken from a custom incident to the great grazing sections in the "wild and woolly West." Those who understand its significance will have no difficulty in seeing its applicability to the work of a Methodist itinerant preacher just before Conference.

In "rounding up" the preacher should keep before his mind two ideas—the material and the spiritual. These two ideas are cognate. The separation of them would be as fatal as would have been the severance of the ligament binding together the Siamese twins.

In "rounding up," every interest should receive faithful attention. We dare not discriminate and say, "This interest is more important than that interest. No interest can be worked too faithfully or receive too much emphasis. We have never known the reverse of this statement advocated in Methodism. Yet it is known by every one that some interests may not receive sufficient emphasis.

Parsonages and churches should be left in good condition. This means among other things that parsonages and churches should be insured.

Now as to the spiritual. No preacher should approach the end of the Conference year without the consciousness that he has made a faithful effort to win souls to Christ, and that the souls he has won, as babes in Christ, should be wisely mothered. It is a fearful thing to be instrumental in bringing souls into the kingdom and then leave them to the mercy of the Devil; or, to change the figure somewhat, to catch for Christ a string of fish and leave them to spoil on the bank. Be sure that the new convert is receiving wise attention.

The obligation resting upon the preacher to discharge faithfully all his duties in "rounding up" is no more serious and pressing than that resting upon the layman to do his part. Have I paid my preacher? have I given to the extent of my ability to the various causes? am I praying for my preacher and his success? am I doing with my might whatever my hands find to do in strengthening the members and in otherwise extending the kingdom? These are some of the questions which every church member should prayerfully ask with special seriousness just before Conference.

Dr. Ira Landrith, Secretary of the Religious Education Association, has resigned his position, and will return to his former home in this city. He has accepted the position of regent of Belmont College.

The Prince and Princess of Wales participated in the exercises of dedicating the Wesleyan Mission City Road, London. This mission has grown from a small chapel in a side street to a magnificent suite of buildings costing nearly $1,000,000.

Contributions

By Damascus Gate.

Oft-times, when the days are weary, and the pulse of life is low,
When the wheels of toil, in their dusty course drive heavily and slow,
When the meaning of all seems blurred, and the joy of seeking palls,
Oft-times in my desert places a miracle befalls.
Is it a trick o' the blood, a clearing dot in the brain?
Sudden the far-off shower, unguessed, has filled the choking stream,
Some rift in the gray horizon let through a crimson beam,
Once more for me the sky is blue; I quaff the wine of the air,
And taste the fierce tang of the sea, and find the wild rose fair.
Once more I walk the allotted round with unreluctant feet,
And daily bread has flavor, and love and labor are sweet.

O! once in centuries olden, before Damascus Gate
Journeyed one with holden eyes, and a dreary heart of hate;
When a glory shone round about him, and in one wondrous hour
He had passed from death to life. Then knowledge and grace and power
And a new word filled his lips; and joy and courage and love
Were born henceforth in his heart, with the vision that fell from above,
And still when the days are bitter, and life is clogged with care,
And the heart is salt with unshed tears, and tender with despair,
An angel stirs the stagnant soul, and lo! there is healing there.
Once more my soul is loosened, and life and labor sweet:
Once more in the tangled West the pattern shines complete:
And I know that the self-same grace on my soul has been outpoured—
My spirit, by Damascus Gate, has heard the voice of its Lord.

DIVIDE THE BURDEN.

Advantage in Having Two Necks in the Same Yoke.

BY T. B. ELDRIDGE.

There are no two opinions about the care of the business affairs of the church (if that conveys the idea) being a burden. My attention has been directed recently to burdens and yokes. I get a good idea from Drummond. It is that a yoke is a means of bearing a burden. It is not my purpose to argue how that applies to a certain passage of Scripture where the yoke and the burden are brought together in the same verse. I shall try to make it apply to the affairs—the business affairs, as I have said—of the church.

Almost without exception the Official Board tries to carry the burden alone. It does itself an injustice. When the church conference was engrafted upon our polity it seems to have been the intention to divide, or to distribute, the responsibilities so the congregation would carry its share. The General Conference appears to have constructed a double yoke designed to enable the Official Board and the congregation to pull together. The advantages of this arrangement are manifest to my mind, though there are those who take a different view of the matter, or have never thought of it at all. In consequence of the failure to see the matter in the light that the General Conference intended, we see the Official Boards in our churches trying to hold up one end of the yoke and carry the whole burden themselves.

One result of this method of doing business is to impress the unofficial member with the idea that he has nothing to do with the affairs of the church. In practice, the idea is well founded, although in theory it is wide of the mark. To my mind the theory is wise and good, and I believe the results would be most salutary if the theory were put into practice. I have heard of a church where the practice conformed to the theory, but have never known one. I would like to see a church with the Official Board and the Church Conference working in the same yoke.

The Attractiveness of the Ministry to College Men.

(Charles F. Thwing, L.L.D., president of Western Reserve Universsty.

Phillips Brooks speaking to Harvard students in 1886 on the ministry as a profession, said: (Life and Letters of Phillips Brooks, Vol. II., page 803—"I must tell you it is the noblest and most glorious calling to which a man can give himself.") Taking this remark as a text, I wish to write to college men, and in particular to college men of the abler sort, upon certain elements of the attractiveness of the ministry.

(1) The ministry promotes the intellectual breadth of the minister. No other profession so worthily draws its strength and inspiration from every part of the universe. It is debtor to the whole world. It urges one to a knowledge of all things. Whether the ministry is in greater debt to Nature or to literature may be a question, but it is certainly vastly indebted to each. Nothing is foreign to it which relates to man. Several of the greatest preachers of the time present and past have been students of the law. They have declared that their legal studies contributed to the worth of their work in the pulpit and pastorate. The law is in many respects a broadening profession, in other respects narrowing. The profession of medicine is primarily a study of the morbid conditions of the human body and mind. Secondarily it relates to all humanity. But the ministry unites whatever of breadth there may be in both the legal and the medical professions. It represents a study of men as men in body, mind and soul. It also represents the study of man as man; it touches the individual, it touches humanity. It touches every element of the individual and the race.

(2) The ministry also promotes intellectual depth. The themes of the ministers are the profoundest; they quicken the deepest thinking. The ministry touches upon the character of God, upon the revelation of God to man, upon the possibility of man's knowledge of God and upon the degree of man's knowledge of God. The ministry is also concerned with the qualities and elements of the human mind, with the relation of the intellectual to the emotional faculty, of the emotional to the volitional faculty, of the volitional to the intellectual. The conscience, the imagination, the affections, every faculty of the human constitution he should know. His theme is the profoundest touching the nature of the individual. He also considers the deepest problems of society, as well as the individual. He treats of the great questions of philosophy, of theology, of ethics, of science, of education, as well as of religion. His labors for the pulpit and in the parish cause him to think and to think as deeply as he is able, upon the deepest concerns.

(3) A third element regarding the attractiveness of the ministry to young college men relates to its practical character. This reason has special force when united to the preceding reasons. The ministry is a most fitting union of the practical and the theoretical. A certain part of the minister's work discipline's the intellect, and a certain part disciplines administrative talent. In the morning of each day he is a student; he is at his desk; he is among his books. In the afternoon of each day he is a man of affairs, on the streets, in the shop, and in the home. He meets men and associates with them under the most diverse and characteristic conditions. He stands by the side of the criminal in the jail and sits at the bedside of the dying saint. He shares in the joy of the wedding, he tries to offer consolation to those who sit in the shadow of death. He is an intimate associate of the young, even if he be old. He is an intimate associate of the old while he is young. The despairing he is to cheer, and to the ambitious he offers a word of warning. To the erring he ventures a suggestion of guidance, and he is the commander of those who ought to obey him. Financial, benevolent, social, as well as spiritual, work of the church is his. He visits from house to house, speaking to "the woman at the well." He stands in the pulpit speaking to hundreds or thousands. No work is to him remote. His work varies according as he is a pastor in the metropolis or in the mountain or prairie village. But all that relates to humanity, relates to him, and whatever relates to him relates to humanity. The worth of this universal service becomes properly appreciated only when considered in relation to the preceding elements of attractiveness. For many scholarly employments tend to withdraw their followers from life's practical concerns. The tendency, too, of many forms of business is antagonistic to scholary pursuits. In the ministry these and all opposing elements are united and tend at once to develop the intellectual and practical in human character.

(4) A further element of attractiveness relates to what may be called the reflex spiritual influence of the profession. This influence is an influence upon the character of the minister himself. As he thinks and writes upon the highest themes, he represents the highest type of man. As he considers intellectual subjects of the widest breadth and greatest depth, he finds his own intellect developing and broadening. As his work is practical, it makes him a great man with men. The ministry gives at once that intellectual strength which the study and practice of the law develops, and also that knowledge of men which the practice of medicine offers. It also gives that richest possession of what we like to call divine power which qualifies and ennobles the character of man.

(5) The fifth element of attractiveness in the profession relates to its public influence. Outside of his own church and pulpit, in the city or town of his residence, and it may be in the whole State, or the whole nation, he is a conspicuous citizen. The entire community organized or unorganized is indebted to the clergyman for his influence in promoting the welfare of the whole body of the people. If he is a practical educator, as in many cases indeed he is, he must heed the interests of education. If he is not a special philanthropist, he surely is devoted to philanthropy. If he is not a legislator or a judge, he is deeply interested in making interpretations and executions of just law.

(6) The sixth element in the attractiveness of the ministry to the college man includes the opportunities which it offers for the cultivation of literature. The literary fertility of the clerical far exceeds that of any other profession. The number of volumes written by ministers is far larger than composed by lawyers or doctors. This remark is true not only in respect to technical works, but also true in respect to works belonging to literature proper. The clergymen sketched in Dr. Sprague's volumes produced nearly six thousand separate publications, an average of five publications to each. Although no clergyman to-day approaches the voluminousness of Increase Mather, whose name is attached to almost four hundred publicatons—and it is well for the world that no clergyman does approach him—yet every minister is usually an author. The reason of the condition lies in no small degree in the fact that the work of the clergyman trains him to a literary life. Writing is no small share of his business. His appeals to life is made through the address; he is at once a thinker and rhetorician.

It may be said in this place that the literary productiveness of the Congregational and Unitarian ministers exceeds the productiveness of the ministry of other churches. The education belonging to these clergymen has been as good as that obtaining among the clergymen of any other church, and is superior to that obtaining in most churches. This education directly tends to promote literary activity. The traditions of these churches are in favor of a high type of literature.

(7) A further element of attractiveness in this great calling relates to the ministry as an essential force in the progress of Christianity: It is not to be denied that Christianity would advance if the ministry were abolished. But it is certainly true that if leaders are important in any undertaking, the ministry is necessary for the advance of the Christian religion. In his great speech in the Girard College case, Mr. Webster asks: "And where was Christianity ever received, were its truth ever poured into the human heart, where did its waters springing up into everlasting life ever burst forth except in the track of a Christian ministry? Did we ever hear of an instance, does history record an instance of any part of the globe Christianized by lay preachers, or lay teachers? And descending from kingdoms and empires to cities and countries, to parishes and villages, do we not all know, that wherever Christianity has been carried and where it has been taught by human agency, that agency was the ministers of the Gospel? It is all idle and a mockery to pretend that any man has respect for the Christian religion who yet derides, reproaches, and stigmatizes all its ministers and teachers."

(8) The eighth reason which I shall venture to suggest for the worthiness of the ministry as a calling for college men is this: All that there is good in a man is most easily used in the ministry. Whatever a man has, whatever a man is, the ministry demands. If he be a gentleman distinguished for the graces, society will command the qualities. If he be a gentleman distinguished for graciousness, humanity in its need will summon the best of these comprehensive and supreme qualities. If he be a thinker and a scholar, his intellectual power and resources can be poured out without limit. If he be a great citizen, humanity will call upon him for correspondingly great services. If in his being he be an average man, all there is in him can be employed. If he be more or less than an average man, whatever he possesses will act be found in any respect useless. Every hour of his working day can be used to advantage, and every whole day of his working week should represent a positive increment for the betterment of man. Every week of his church year should embody a mighty condition of human helpfulness, and every year in his whole clerical career should show a community high in purpose, able in conditions, and rich in all that constitutes the highest wealth of a community. His whole career, too, be it spent in one or many parishes, be it long or brief, should prove to be an inspiration to high endeavor, an incarnation in the individual and an embodiment in society of noblest purposes.

Nervous Prostration and the Golden Mean.

How much ought one to think of preserving his health, and how much ought one to disregard health in pushing forward in the Lord's business? Advice on either side of this question is liable to be misunderstoood, or wrongly taken advantage of, according to one's personal inclination. Yet the question is one that faces every conscientious and zealous Christian in this strenuous age, and it must be answered, consciously or unconsciously, by every worker in the Kingdom.

The editorial on the danger and sin of nervous prostration which appeared here a few weeks ago has called forth varied comments from readers of The Sunday School Times. Some have said, with an unmistakable sense of pride, though with a grave face, that they were great offenders in that particular form of sin. Others are undoubtedly making the editorial the occasion of easing off their consciences in doing less than they ought to do. A clear-thinking Yankee reader of The Sunday School Times has written a bit of personal experience, and raised a question, in a letter that is worth studying. She writes:

"Without wishing to appear hypocritical, may I say something apropos of that good editorial on 'Nervous Prostration?' Our church is beautiful as to edifice, fortunate in its pastor, and endowed and endued with harmoniously working members. Last winter one member undertook to escape nervous prostration likely to occur through extra church work. Outdoor life and outside interests were on one side of the scale, and the beckoning influence of a sanitarium on the other. The sanitarium was avoided, a richer Christian experience was obtained, and some small church duties accomplished. Of course, the house wasn't quite so clean, and the sewing didn't all do itself; but the family was happier, and Christ seemed nearer

"There is a golden mean, but we don't all seem able to find it. And the needs seem so many. Of course, in every church there are those who absolutely cannot leave home; but aren't there many who could spare more time, even a brief period in any one day, to get out on more particular church work? I appreciate that editorial highly, but I don't want any lay or laid-down member to hide behind it."

Nor does the editor. It would seem safe to say that the congregations in which the people—and this means pastor and laymen alike—are so excessively devoted to church work as to be on the verge of nervous prostration, are in a minority. The man or woman does not live who can afford to be without some definite, regular occupation in the spiritual work of the church. In creating mankind God made no exceptions to this rule. Therefore if nervous prostration seems to be facing one, let that one make up his mind, to begin with, that it is not likely to be his religious activity that is the cause.

The trouble may not lie at all in the amount of work done, but rather in bad management of the work. A different adjustment of the crowding duties of the day has worked wonders for more than one distracted plodder. A half-an-hour earlier start in the morning may mean two or three hours' greater efficiency before bedtime. Concentration may be the needed remedy,—consecration at play as well as at work. And the setting apart of a certain time every day to certain important duties, in a place where uninterrupted attention may be given to them, may be another needed help.

If, after ordering one's life in these respects so that every ounce of power is giving its ounce of result, and none is wasted or misapplied, the pressure of work still seems too great for the physical and mental system to endure and retain its tone, there may be still another hitch in the machinery to be remedied before it is decided to reduce the work. Are we doing any worrying along with our work? A pound of worry wears out human machinery quicker than a ton of work. If overwork may be wrong, worry is always a sin, in God's kingdom. It may be gloriously right to work the body until the wheels of this human machine stop with a crash; but it is never right nor necessary to worry. Worry says one of two things: either "this state of affairs is beyond God's control," or "God has topped caring for me." Is it strange that the child of God who begins to think in that direction should go to pieces in nervous prostration? Rather call it spiritual prostration, and turn from it with every power of faith and prayer that the Father of love has placed at your command.

Only when one has organized himself into a prayerful committee of investigation on these points and demonstrated to his enlightened conscience that worry is not admitted, and that his work is properly administered, has he any reason to consider doing less than God seems to have called him to do. And even then, if it is plain that we should do less, let us try to make the reduction from our secular activities rather than from our work that is directly in connection with the kingdom. To imply that there is any difference between "secular" and "religious" is not to suggest that one's whole life and every activity is not to be consecrated. The distinction would seem to be a well-recognized one.

Yet there is such a thing as "religious dissipation," and a life of that sort is unbalanced and lacking in real power for God. No one can accept every opportunity for church work that is proffered. "The duty of refusing to do good" is as binding as every other duty, and conflicts with none. It looks as though the person mentioned in the Massachusetts reader's letter had decided wisely and righteously in the change of plans which resulted in declining the invitation of the sanitarium. One who, in considering her duty in this thing, recognizes the temptation to shirk under plea of "overwork," is by that very fact safeguarded.

As between the sin of over-work and the sin of under-work, the judgment of both the world and heaven would seem to be more lenient toward the former. "Work, for the night is coming," and do not be afraid of over-work, is pretty safe counsel for most of us to give ourselves. And there is no need of erring on either side, if we are willing to seek light daily from the Father of light, so that we may say, "According to the grace of God which was given unto me, as a wise master-builder, I laid a foundation."—Exchange.

"A Neglected Wheel" Again.

BY JOHN F. FOARD.

I read many articles in your paper with great pleasure, but none more timely than one in the last issue—"A Neglected Wheel in the Machinery of Our Methodism," by T. B. Eldridge, which constrains me to offer a remedy!

Why refer to the Discipline when so few families keep one? The old rule was for the officials at least to buy a new one every quadrennial when changes were made. Now, some officials never see one unless on occasions when the pastor reads from one during public worship. Our Presbyterian brethren sees to it that their Confession of Faith and Shorter Catechism are taught in each family and Sunday-school of their communion. Other Protestant churches are as faithful in regard to their denominational literature, and the Romish Church has grown to its enormous proportions by indoctrinating their children and converts by its own books! We do more than any of them to convert the world, but less to house and retain our members; for the reason, our standard works are not seen or read by our people. I have often thought, while witnessing, after a revival, the reception of members, that it would pay to give every new member a copy of a new or latest edition of our Discipline! Yes, pay spiritually and temporally, in time and eternity. If so, let our next General Conference make a rule to that effect; then our pastors would have less trouble with wayward members and raising claims.

Is the suggestion not worth a trial?

What noble soul can stop to be happy when there is so much to do—darkness to be illuminated, wrongs to be righted, barriers to man's larger life to be broken away? Spurn as a bribe from the pit all happiness that comes from the closed eye or ear, and the hardened heart. "I wasn't made to be happy," said Charlotte Corday; "I had too keen a sense of human injustice and human misery for that." In such a world as this the Christ life must be a life of pain, but of pain infinitely beyond all passive peace and pleasure, because our souls see and feel that it is divine. Do not stop, then, to haggle about wages or happiness; God will look after that. But be God's volunteers and crusaders, bent on rescuing His earth, which is the true Holy Land, from the forces of evil.—Bowne.

Some prayers are lead. They fall directly to the earth. There is not even a hearing for them. These are the prayers madew ithout thought or meaning. If our prayers are not worth our own attention, we can be sure they are not worth God's attention. Our National Government sets a watch at its gates that no helpless, insane, or incompetent person come in at them. We need to set a watch over our lips that no senseless or insane or incompetent prayers go out through them. If we transferred some of our anxiety that the Lord should hear us into watchfulness that we hear and heed ourselves what we pray, we might often face our greatest difficulty.—Sunday School Times.

The Field

Fayetteville District;—A Word as to the Bible Cause Collection.

Having just reviewed the reports of the pasters to the Fayetteville District Conference last July, I was impressed with the increased amount raised for the Bible cause.

One full report for 1903 was $68.68, representing the greatest gain of the districts, with three charges marked blank. With an earnest effort on the part of every pastor we would easily increase thee ollection to $100. If ten charges report $8179 at the middle of they ear, eighteen charges ought to report nearly twice as much to theAnnual Conference.

Brethren of the Fayetteville District, the American Bible Society, now eighty-eight years old, has a definite, praise-worthy object, "to encourage a wide distribution of the Holy Scriptures;" let us all diligently and generously help prosecute this noble design.

R. H. BROOM.

Carthage, N. C., November 3, 1905.

Littleton Circuit.

I believe I have not written anything for the Advocate this year. Well, we are not dead and not asleep very soundly. I feel we have been able to accomplish something, by divine grace, in four years.

In 1900, the work paid the P. C. $669.66, and paid 67 per cent of the collections. With the exception of a very small deficit in 1901, the charge has paid out on salaries and collections every year since, and will do so again this year. The salary for P. C. has been increased from $720 to $800.

Calvary Church, in the country, has been painted and repaired in general, and the building Committee hope to have the foundation laid for our new brick church in Littleton before winter. When completed this will cost from six to eight thousand dollars.

The entire indebtedness on the parsonage, which amounted to $375 in 1900, has been paid.

There have been a few over two hundred additions to the church: and I believe the spiritual state of the charge has been improved.

Littleton charge is one of the most pleasant in the North Carolina Conference. In healthfulness, culture and loyalty it cannot be surpassed anywhere. The parsonage, being located in Littleton, is in the midst of culture and refinement, and educational advantages unsurpassed. The immediate community around the parsonage is well nigh ideal. The four years spent here have been years of pleasantness and profit. There are many advantages here which are rare to preachers and their families. Happy the man whom the Lord chooses for Littleton Circuit at our next Conference.

The charge has suffered in the loss of some of its best and truest men and women in the past four years. Among the old members, God has translated Uncle Tom Bobbitt, S. Johnston, Miss Mary Beckham, Mrs. G. D. Newsom, and recently, our dear Brother Shearin. All except the last one, near and beyond the seventieth mile post.

We will have a net loss in membership this year, notwithstanding the fact that thirty-five have been added to the church. A great many young ladies come to the college, and are converted and join the church, and go home to enrich other charges. But we would not have it otherwise. God's richest blessings on them every one. Littleton Female College is a great institution, when measured by righteous standards. To have any conception of the magnitude of her labors, the extent of her influence, the expansion of her fields, the thoroughness of her work, and the deep consecration and spirituality of her life, it is only necessary to live for a few years under her shadow. Considerably over two hundred girls are already enrolled, and buildings are now being projected looking toward the accommodation of the next hundred. But I must stop. You will not want me to wait a whole year any more before writing, I am sure.

We are all a unit down here on one appointment—yes, on two—the editor of the Advocate and the P. E. for the District.

H. A. HUMBLE.

Bertie Circuit.

Dr. Ivey:—I want to notify the folks through the Advocate columns that Bertie is all right. All financial claims this year will be fully met; also the work will show a net increase in membership. Two of our meetings this year were quite fruitful. The Holy Spirit wrought in our midst and souls were saved. Twenty-three joined on profession of faith. The other two meetings were seemingly failures; largely because the church members wouldn't come to church. I feel like exhorting some, that church members go to church. As sure as you are editor, God is charging some members with the sin of negligence who pay no attention to this revival in their own church. Indeed, many make light of it, and go their way; one to his farm and another to his merchandise. But God will call them to give an account. Church members need to learn that the Christian's business on earth is to serve God and advance His kingdom, and that the farming and merchandising are only contingent. "Seek first the kingdom of God and His righteousness," said our Saviour. I think He is pretty good authority; but some say that is old and it won't do in these days of commerce and business. Well, maybe not. But I am sure it will do in those days—in those days when God comes to make up his jewels. And by the help of the Lord I am going to live it. Yes, and preach it, too. Too often there is a disposition on the part of us ministers to excuse and make excuses for these worldly-minded church members who serve self rather than Christ and look after business all the time and after the salvation of the souls never. But, brethren, God won't excuse them—we ought not.

Our Windsor people are now agitating buying and building. I am sure that no Methodist church in North Carolina is so poorly located. It is just 150 yards from the river, only two negro cabins nearer, and all the town in the opposite direction. The church is a half mile from the centre of the town, and just inside the limits. Methodism is suffering from this state of affairs. I believe now that our people appreciate the situation, and they will relieve it by buying a suitable lot and either moving or building. It would be a sin for them not to.

For the past six months we have been doing missionary work at Aulander where I hope to see a church erected soon. There is much work in Bertie for Methodism to do. It is the Lord's work and is not being done.

Yours, etc., R. L. DAVIS.

An Urgent Appeal.

This is an appeal to the ministers, laymen and sisters of the North Carolina Conference to assist us in completing a church we have begun to build on Greenville Sound, in Scott's Hill Circuit. We have an organization there of twenty very loyal, royal and faithful members, and they have gone to the extent of their financial ability. I know of no place in the North Carolina Conference where a church is more greatly needed. The church is very desirably located—can be easily reached by all of the people of both Wrightsville and Greenville Sounds. It will cost $800, and it will take $250 more to complete it. We earnestly ask 250 friends of the kingdom of our Lord to send us one dollar each. If you will do this, we will have the church ready for occupancy by the first Sunday in January, 1905. Send the money at once, dear friends, and the Lord will greatly bless you. The Episcopal brethren have kindly given us the use of their church at Wrightsville this year, which, of course, we very much appreciate.

Send to Rev. Y. E. Wright, Scott's Hill, N. C., or John T. Hawkins, Wilmington, N. C., in care of Harden's Pharmacy.

Furnishing the New G. F. C.—Report Five.

The following rooms have been taken since my last report:

Mrs. W. E. Cuningham, Fort Mill, S. C., in memory of her niece, May Belle Rone.

Raleigh Alumnae one.

Mrs. J. S. Carr, four rooms, to be known as the Chinese, Japan, Brazil and Cuba rooms.

Milton Chair Factory, one dozen dining-room chairs.

For rooms already taken, the following have remitted:

F. B. Barden, W. W. Martin, Miss Lilliam Lee Cross, John W. Ward, I. F. Craven, Miss Susa Gibson, Mrs. Mary Exum, Mrs. Marion Cobb, Mrs. E. G. Fletcher, Mrs. Lou McK. Roper, W. T. Lyon, B. B. Adams, Mrs. A. G. Headen, Mrs. A. K. Odom, Mrs. J. M. Stancill, A. W. E. Capel, E. H. Kochtitzky, Miss S. P. Jones, Miss Marie Kramer, Miss Lizzie Carver, Miss Lillie Jones, Z. W. Lyon, Miss Josie Griffin, Mrs. W. E. Cuningham, Miss E. T. Brown, B. F. D. Albritton, Mrs. T. B. Gibson.

The furniture is in the College and, I am informed, is giving great satisfaction. Better than all else, there are young women there to use it. The donors have rendered a needed and noble service.

Will those who have not yet sent their funds, please keep the matter in mind and remit when due? I will need the money to meet the bills.

All friends—and they are legion—are now rejoicing in the fine outlook for Greensboro Female College. Let this be but the beginning of great things in the coming years.

M. T. PLYLER.

Littleton Female College's Great Opening.

Litteton Female College has had the largest opening in her history, having matriculated thus far 216 pupils, which is a larger number than was matriculated during the whole of last year.

The heating and lighting plant, now nearly completed, is one of the best owned by any Southern school. It includes a 600 light generator of the Westinghouse driven by a forty-horse power Eclipse engine.

The heating plant is the Evans-Almirall system of hot-water, the one in use at the University of North Carolina and at Trinity College, and is believed to be the best system of heat in the world.

Ocracoke.

Dear Advocate:—Did you ever hear of the biggest pounding of the year coming on what you might say the home stretch for Conference? Well, that is what has happened to us. Recently, on a beautiful Wednesday evening, just before dark, we saw at our front gate an approaching crowd that for the moment somewhat excited us. We didn't know whether it was Cox's army or the Russians. We soon found, however, that it was neither. It was a band of alms-givers, messengers of good tidings, an army bringing peace and plenty instead of one looking for—I liked to have said—spoils, but that wouldn't be harmonious. You don't find spoils at Methodist parsonages except just after the ponding party leaves.

These Ocracoke and Portsmouth Methodists are loyal to their preacher. They see that he has something to eat and something to spend.

When Bishop Candler calls for my report at Henderson I expect to respond, salary in full and an advance in other collections.

The rally day services, both at Portsmouth and Ocracoke, were creditable and collections good.

Brother Bunday has just left us, and did some good preaching while here.

R. R. GRANT.

The Family

The Artist.

There came an unknown artist, sweet and shy,
Into old Nature's studio one day.
April was sketching there, and June and May;
With careless glance they passed the stranger by,
But Nature kindly bade her come and try
Her skill among them; so, without delay,
She set to work; and first she sketched a gray
And cheerless landscape, with a frowning sky;
Then with deft brush she laid fresh colors on—
Crimson and gold and green and russet-brown—
And over all the living sunlight shone.
"Who art thou?" cried the students, looking down
Upon her work, which put their own to shame.
Blushing, she murmured, "Autumn is my name."

—Frank Roe Bachelder, in Lippincott's.

Misunderstood Children.

Great as have been the achievements through the study of chemistry, those which come from a knowledge of psychology have been equally as great to the home, society and the vast institutional world by which civilization is fostered and protected. The study of the inner working of the human mind in the past fifty years has almost revolutionized the school-room. It is true that we sometimes see an ox-cart with solid wheels sawed from the pine logs laboriously working its way through the mountain districts of Tennessee and Arkansas, but the majority of us are impatient if we speed over the continent in luxurious cars at a rate less than thirty miles an hour. It is true, also, that now and then we find a school whose pedagogical methods correspond to the ox-cart and the solid wheel, but as a rule the science of education has learned to base curriculums of schools and the method of the class-rooms upon psychological facts as firmly established as are the facts of chemistry. No wise superintendent tolerates the practices of fifty years ago any more than does the well-informed physician countenance the medical treatment of that era. We know now that most of the so-called "dull' children are dull of comprehension from defective organs of speech or sight or hearing. We know that many misunderstood children have been accused of obstinacy, wilfulness or indifference, who were merely children whose physical organs are not in the right condition. So closely has psychology related the body to the mind, so closely do they show their interdependence.

I had at one time in my kindergarten a little girl whose conduct taxed me sorely; she was in general an obedient and lovable child, but her hand work seemed to me to be inexcusably careless and to show indifference, almost a defiance, to the directions given for it; both she and I shed many tears over the conflicts which had inevitably to rise from the necessity of the work being undone and done over again. Suddenly it occurred to me that the child must have defective eye-sight or she could not make such repeated blunders. I walked home with her after kindergarten and suggested to the mother that she be taken to an oculist for the testing of her eyes. The mother resented the implication that her child was in any way defective. I urged the matter of, at least, testing the eyesight, and at last, won the promise from the mother that she would take the child to the oculist the next day.

The following day the same mother came to me with tears in her eyes and said: "The doctor tells me that my little child would have lost her eyesight entirely in six months' time had the present strain on her eyes continued." Then she added, almost a sob in her voice: "And I have scolded her so many times for carelessness." I know of another child who was called "old stupid" by her family until she was nearly grown, when the discovery was made that for years she had been hard of hearing. Examples similar to these can be multiplied almost without limit, and yet it was not thought necessary to test the sense organs of a child until the psychologist proved that all thought development for clear mental imagery and that all clear mental images were the result of accurate sense impressions. I did not stop to-day to speak of the enormous value of this relation of body and mind as proved in the matter of fatigue, and the poison of blood; organs of a child until the psychologist proved that is created by physical fatigue, and the reaction of the same upon the mental activities. A number of other valuable facts have been discovered concerning the study of the body in order that the mind and its operations may be as free as possible, and yet this is but the beginning of psychology. It has, however, as I said before, done much to change the school-room program. Family life has not, however, kept pace with school life in the application of psychological principles in the unfolding of a child's powers and the training of those same powers to the service of humanity.—Elizabeth Harrison.

Sending the Heart Before.

A new sense of reality in the world beyond the grave comes to all of us when for the first time we can think of one who has been intimate in our interests as having gone there and sat down in the intimacy of its interests, which have been so foreign to us and so far away. Heaven has at once an association with us. We have a relation there. One name is known in its mysterious streets, and so its streets become less mysterious and remote to us. It is somewhat as when a mother in some little country village sends her boy to the great city, and at once feels familiar with the great city, because somewhere, lost amid its hurrying thousands, her boy is now. She talks of it with a kind affection, as if it were almost her home, because it is the home of one she loves. She catches every mention of it as if it were a message meant for her. To go there is the constant dream of her life, and she feels as if when she got there she would know at once the streets in which her heart has had its home so long.

So when a dear friend dies and goes to heaven, heaven at once catches and naturalizes into itself our love for him. We read about it as if we knew it, and when we think of going there ourselves, we think of it as going home, because our heart has had its home there so long.

"Day after day we think what she is doing
In those bright realms of air;
Year after year her tender steps pursuing,
Behold her grown more fair.

"Thus do we walk with her and keep unbroken
The bond which nature gives,
Thinking that our remembrance, though unspoken,
May reach her where she lives."

—Phillips Brooks.

Two Miles of Sociability.

"Sociability is all right," admitted Bugbee, "for those that have time. I'm too busy a man to indulge. A fellow that's driven all day by business hasn't a minute to be sociable."

"Let's see about that," persisted Wixham. "You still take your constitutional from Massachusetts Avenue to the office every morning, don't you?"

"Bound to; I'd be too nervous to sleep. There's the rub; if I took time to cultivate my fellow-man, as you urge, I'd have to give up that walk."

"I'll prove that you can get the walk and the sociability too. First, you'll meet the man mowing the lawn on the Commonwealth Avenue Parkway. You can manage to say: 'The top o' the morning to you!' as you pass. He's a jovial Irishman, and his pithy reply will keep you chuckling to yourself until you come to the cabmen in front of the Vendome.

"You take off your hat, as though you might be going to wipe your forehead, or maybe make a salute, and you say in a hearty tone: 'Aren't you lucky dogs to be able to ride everywhere, while common people like me have to walk?' See if they don't warm right up to you. You'll still be rolling their juicy retort under your tongue when you come to the old man who scrubs the bases of the monuments of William Lloyd Garrison and Alexander Hamilton, every morning. You sing out as though you had known him all your life: 'Keep 'em looking like Spotless Town, eh?' and then stop and ask him, confidential like, why he does it. You'll laugh at his reply.

"As you cross Charles Street buy two peaches for a nickel of the salted-peanut and fruit man and pass a cheery time o' day. Wave your hand to the children in the swan boats in the Public Garden, feed thed oves and squirrels on the Common, jolly the newsboys at Park Street; and let me know how it comes out."

"Say, Wixham," the glum man who hadn't time to be sociable, informed his friend, as eager as a school boy, when they met for lunch: "I had two miles of sociability and got to the office on time. That's a great recipe of yours. Say, the old codger said he doesn't know why he scrubs Garrison and Hamilton, but s'posed it is just to plaze the boss."—John F. Cowan, in The Interior.

Ocean Waves.

Ocean waves do not run "mountain high," although sometimes to a person tossed about in a tempest, they seem to do so. Lieutenant Paris, of the French navy, says a writer in the London Illustrated Graphic, in observing four thousand waves under different conditions of sea, found that with a rough sea the average height of the waves was about twenty-five and one-half feet, and the average length a trifle over four hundred and eighty-five feet.

In a smooth, calm sea, the average billow was found to be only five feet high, and two hundred and three feet long. In a heavy sea he found the average velocity of the waves was nearly fifty-six feet a second, while in a calm sea the waves move with an average speed of thirty-five feet a second.

Lieutenant Paris found the height of waves to vary in different seas. In the region of the Atlantic trade winds he places the average height of waves at a little less than six and one-quarter feet, and in the region of the west winds in the South Atlantic at an average of a little over fourteen feet, while in the Southern Indian Ocean the average is a fraction over seventeen feet. In the Indian trade winds the height is only a fraction over nine feet, and in the seas of China and Japan the average height is ten feet.

The greatest average length is found in the region of the west winds in the South Atlantic, and the shortest seas are in the region of the Atlantic trade winds.—Selected.

The Blessing of Thoughtful People.

What a pleasure it is in our journeyings to come across thoughtful people! Not long ago, while traveling in a railroad coach, a young and rather uncouth boy sat opposite me. A man sitting near, in taking out his purse, dropped a small piece of paper, such as is placed between visiting cards, from his purse. Instantly the young man, eager to be of service, leaned over, picked up the paper, and handed it to the man, who graciously accepted it, as though it were something he really wished to preserve. The fine sensibilities of this man, illustrated by this small act of thoughtfulness, were indelibly stamped upon my mind. How natural it would have been to have responded to the little act of service by remarking: "Oh, it is of no consequence," thus humiliating the boy and discouraging further thoughts of gallantry that might occur to him.

When we realize that these small acts of consideration give one a clear insight into our real selves, how worth while it seems for us to make an effort to be thoughtful of others' feelings. We never can estimate how far-reaching the influence of our actions may be. Just one act of thoughtfulness may help to mould a young life.—Elizabeth Lee.

Our Boys and Girls

Never Out of Sight.

I know a little saying
That is altogether true;
My little boy, my little girl,
The saying is for you.
'Tis this, O blue and black eyes,
And gray—so deep and bright—
No child in all this careless world
Is ever out of sight.

No matter whether field or glen,
Or city's crowded way,
Or pleasure's laugh or labor's hum,
Entice your feet to stray;
Some one is always watching you,
And whether wrong or right,
No child in all this busy world
Is ever out of sight.

Some one is always watching you,
And marking what you do,
To see if all your childhood's acts
Are honest, brave and true;
And watchful more than mortal kind,
God's angels pure and white,
In gladness or in sorrowing,
Are keeping you in sight.

Oh, bear in mind, my little one,
And let your mark be high!
You do whatever thing you do,
Beneath some seeing eye;
Oh, bear in mind, my little one,
And keep your good name bright,
No child upon the round, round earth,
Is ever out of sight.

—Selected.

Some Queer Animals.

BE ALICE MAY DOUGLAS.

Willie was wiping off the blackboard with a sponge.

"I'd like to know what that funny thing is," said Jennie, who had been in school for a few days only.

"Let's ask the teacher," said May. "She knows, of course."

"That is a sponge," said Miss Williams, who had overheard the question.

"Yes, I knew it was a sponge, cause I have seen mamma use them. But what is a sponge?" asked Jennie bashfully.

"Not a great deal is known about the origin of sponges," said Miss Williams. "It used to be thought that sponges belonged to a family of animals that became extinct—that is, stopped living and growing a long, long time ago, the same as the big animals that some scientific men have found buried deep in the earth."

"But sponges aren't animals, are they?" asked May. "They don't have any feet or mouth or—or anything like animals have."

"Yes. They are classed as animals by those who have studied such things very deeply," said Miss Williams. "But they are so different from all other animals that they make a family by themselves."

"Well, that's a queer-looking thing to ever have been an animal," said Willie, holding up the sponge.

"The living matter is removed long before we see the sponges," said Miss Williams, "and it is only the skeleton that comes to us in the shape of the sponge that we use for so many different purposes."

"Where do these queer animals live?" asked Jennie.

"Under water," answered Miss Williams.

"But there are not any in the lake back of the schoolhouse," said Willie.

"No, there are not any there, though there are sponges found in many of the rivers and lakes of America, as well as in Europe, Asia, and Africa, but none in Australia. But the sponges in common use are found in salt water. The softest and best sponge and the variety that brings the highest price is the Turkey or Levant sponge. This, with several other varieties, is found along the coast and around the islands of the Mediterranean Sea. Several kinds of bath sponges are found along the northern coast of Cuba, though not so plentifully as in other places, on the coast of Australia and in the North Pacific and South Atlantic and Indian Oceans, so you see that people in almost all parts of the world can get sponges."

"How do they live in the water, Miss Williams?" asked May. "Do they swim around, like fish, or do they live in shells, like oysters and lobsters?"

"They are attached to rocks and other objects at the bottom of the sea."

"How do people fish them up?" asked Willie.

"Different means are used, according to the depth of the water and the people who use them. In the Mediterranean several men go out in a boat. While part of the crew remain in the boat, others take a large stone in their arms and jump overboard with it. It causes them to sink to the bottom in the same way that a sinker of lead causes your fishing lines to sink. The divers, as they are called, have a rope tied to the stone; and when they want to come up, they pull on the rope, and the men in the boat pull them up. A diver cannot stay under water more than three minutes, and there are very few who can stay as long as that. When he reaches the bottom he pulls the sponges off the rocks within reach as quickly as he can and puts them into a net that is tied about his waist. In other places, where the water is shallow, they are loosened and hooked up by a harpoon. This is a sort of three-tined fork with a long handle attached. Sometimes when one is not long enough, two are lashed together. There is generally but one man in the boat with a boy to steer, and a stone which has been dipped in oil is thrown a yard or so ahead. The oil, scattering over the water, makes the surface smooth, so that the sponges can be seen. In Greece the sponge fishermen use a piece of zinc, round and hollow like a piece of stovepipe and with a piece of thick glass filling one end. They place this in the water by the side of the boat, the end with the glass in it beneath the surface of the water. By looking through this they can see the bottom through a great many feet of water. In very deep water the sponges are brought up by dredges. These are usually iron frames about six yards wide and one yard high. At the back of this frame is fastened a net of camel's hair cords about as large as one's finger. The dredge is drawn along the bottom by chains attached to a schooner or sailing vessel. It scrapes the sponges from the bottom and into the net."

"Well, I guess I know a lot more than I did when I began to go to school," said little Jennie, "and I'll tell mamma all that I have learned about sponges."—The Childrens Visitor.

The Picture Gallery.

Edith had been ill with fever for several weeks, and now that she was growing better she found the days very long and lonely, and she was so tired of lying in bed and looking at the same things in the room! This afternoon she counted the roses on the wall paper and looked at the pictures until she was very tired and wanted some one to come and see her. She had no little brothers and sisters, and mamma was busy and could come in for only a little while.

Suddenly the door opened and Cousin Miriam came in, carrying a long package in her hand. Cousin Miriam had graduated in the spring from a big university, and a picture of her in her cap and gown was on the little table by Edith's bed. Edith loved to look at it and think that when she should go to college she would wear a cap with a tassel and a gown with long sleeves.

Cousin Miriam was always bright and cheerful. She soon smoothed the pillows and made the little invalid more comfortable. Then she found two pairs of scissors, gave one pair to Edith and kept a pair. As she got her package and sat down by the bed, she said she had come to stay all the afternoon and had brought a wonderful new game to play. Edith clapped her hands and laughed with delight, for Cousin Miriam's games were always fine.

They opened the package, and first there was a big square of black paper, then some old magazines, a bottle of paste, and a box of tiny little tacks that do not make holes in the wall.

Then Cousin Miriam told Edith to find some pictures and cut them out of the books, and she would cut out pieces of black paper a little larger than the pictures, and they would paste the pictures on the paper.

In just a moment they were at work, and Edith soon had lots of pictures cut out. They were the little King of Spain, the King and Queen of England, our own President, the new battle ship Maine, some pretty horses and dogs, some dear little white-and-black kittens, and some little Chinese boys and girls, besides many other pictures.

My, how fast they worked! Very soon they had them mounted on the pieces of black paper, and they looked just like the pictures in the windows at the bookstores down town. Cousin Miriam then put them up on the wall by the bed with the little tacks, and Edith had a regular picture gallery to look at during the long days. When she was well and strong again, she told Cousin Miriam that she was going to tell all her little friends about the picture gallery game.—Julia Barrett, in Youth's Companion.

Gentlemen.

A few years ago a gentleman, going through the crowded part of the city of Glasgow, noticed a pale-faced little bootblack waiting for a job. Touched by the delicate look of the child, he thought he would give him the blacking of his boots to do. Accordingly he gave the little fellow the signal. The boy at once crept lamely toward the gentleman, and as he pulled himself along was nimbly supplanted by another bootblack, who was immediately at the gentleman's feet and ready to begin.

"What's this for?" said the gentleman to the intruder, somewhat angrily.

"It's a' richt," said the newcomer, brightly. "Jamie's jist a wee while oot o' the hospital, and the rest o' us takes turns aboot o' brushin' for him."

Jamie smiled pleasantly by way of assuring the gentleman that his comrade's story was true.

The gentleman was so gratified by this act of brotherly kindness that he gave Jamie's friend a whole shilling for his work, telling him to give a sixpence to Jamie and to keep the other sixpence himself.

"Na, na, sir," quickly replied this little hero, giving the shilling to Jamie and hurrying from the spot. "Na, na, sir; nane o' us ever takes ony o' Jamie's siller."—Exchange.

To Save Time.

Good-bye, papa, and don't forget
The things I wanted you to do;
And send a doctor for my doll,
Her cold has made her very blue.
And if you think you haven't time,
Why, please remember what I say:
You needn't earn my bread for me—
I'll get along on bread to-day.

—Harper's Bazaar.

It is
ROYAL Baking Powder
that makes the
Delicious Biscuit,
Griddle Cake
and Doughnut

Wise and Otherwise.

School Teacher: "What little boy can tell me where is the home of the swallow?"

Bobby: "I kin, please."

School Teacher: "Well, Bobby?"

Bobby: "The home of the swallow is in the stummick."—Christian Work.

* * *

Edith: "Papa is going to give us a check for a wedding present."

Edward: "Then we'll have the ceremony at 11 o'clock in the morning."

Edith: "Why not in the afternoon?"

Eward: "Well, the banks close at 3, my dear."

* * *

He pointed out to a newly arrived Paddy the grandeur of the Niagara with the words, "There, now! isn't it wonderful?"

"Wontherful?"

"Why, to see all that water come thundering over those rocks!"

"Faith, Oi can't see anything wontherful in that—what is there to hinder it from coming over?"

* * *

Angry mother: "Now, Bobby, don't don't let me speak to you again!"

Bobby (helplessly): "How can I prevent you, mamma?"

"De man dat devotes hisse'f to fault-findin'," said Uncle Eben, "turns out many a fine job o' work dat doesn't give satisfaction to nobody."—Washington Star.

* * *

Hawkins: "That picket-pocket they caught is really a very intelligent fellow."

Sampson: "No doubt of it. He proved that by his ability to locate a lady's pocket."—Judge.

* * *

Mrs. Hogan: "Phwat does yes ould mon do, Mrs. Casey?"

Mrs. Casey: "Shure, he's a doimond cutter."

Mrs. Hogan: "Yes don't name it!"

Mrs. Casey: "Yis, he cuts th' grass off the baschall grounds."—Chicago Daily News.

DISASTROUS WRECKS.

Carelessness is responsible for many a railway wreck and the same causes are making human wrecks of sufferers from Throat and Lung troubles. But since the advent of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, even the worst cases can be cured, and hopeless resignation is no longer necessary. Mrs. Lois Cragg, of Dorchester, Mass., is one of many whose life was saved by Dr. King's New Discovery. This great remedy is guaranteed for all Throat and Lung diseases by all druggists. Price 50 cents and $1.00. Trial bottles free.

I feel and grieve; but, by the grace of God, I fret at nothing.—John Wesley.

Womans Foreign Missionary Society

Please send all communications for this Department to Mrs. B. F. Dixon, Raleigh, N. C.

Officers of the W. F. M. S. of the N. C. Conference, June, 1903-'04.

President—Mrs. Lucy A. Cunninggim, Greensboro, N. C
Vice-President—Mrs. R. A. Willis, Littleton, N. C.
Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. F. D. Swindell, Goldsboro, N. C.
Recording Secretary—Miss Blanche Fentress, Wilmington, N. C.
Treasurer—Mrs. B. B. Adams, Four Oaks, N. C.
Superintendent and Treasurer Juvnile Work—Mrs. L. M. Hendren, New Berne, N. C.

Notice.

Read this important note from Mrs. Swindell, and "do thy diligence" to meet its demand, not only promptly, but gladly:

To the members of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the North Carolina Conference:

You are urgently requested to raise the money for our missionary candidate who is now at the Scarritt Bible and Training School, Kansas City, and forward the same, as soon as possible, to our Conference Treasurer, Mrs. B. B. Adams, Four Oaks, N. C.

MRS. F. D. SWINDELL,
Conference Corresponding Secretary.

Main Street Auxiliary, Durham.

Our genial and faithful Secretary of the Durham District, Mrs. W. H. McCabe, is the first to respond to our request for news from the different Districts. Mrs. Gibbons, the efficient Secretary of the Wilmington District, will have something to say to us next week.

Mrs. J. W. Allen, President of Main Street Auxilary, Durham, kindly contributes the following:

By request, I send you a short report of our Society, which was organized about fifteen years ago, by Mrs. R. F. Bumpas, when Mr. Bumpas was pastor of Main Street Church.

For a number of years interest has been manifested in the usual work, and success of the organization.

Six of our members have entered into the records of the righteous, during the fifteen years.

We hold our meetings on the afternoon of the first Monday in each month. We are encouraged by a good average attendance of the members; and oftentime several visitors are gladly welcomed.

We usually follow the program as laid down in our Missionary Advocate, and read leaflets and papers on missionary topics. We review the foreign fields, where our missionaries are located, and the work they are engaged in. We speak of the Scarritt school—the training that is given to the pupils, and the different teachers who instruct so wisely the different courses of study. The "missionary Drill" is often read and enjoyed as a matter of information to all.

We inquire at every meeting if there are any sick, afflicted, or bereaved in the congregation—if so, we visit them to cheer and comfort. We also visit the strangers who attend our church, and those who have recently become members of the church we give an invitation to attend our meetings.

I am glad to say our ladies go from house to house, and do the work of the good Samaritan beautifully.

Our Auxiliary is a live one of at least sixty-five consecrated women.

The dues and pledges are promptly met. The officers are earnest, thoughtful, zealous workers.

We held a Silver Tea to celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the General Board.

We hold the usual public meetings every year, and are now preparing for our Week of Prayer, beginning November 6th. Wednesday of that week we have arranged a memorial service to our dear, honored dead. Friday we close the services with a consecration meeting.

Mr. Hinohara, a Japanese student at Trinity College, frequently comes to our meetings, and makes very interesting talks. He is a very intelligent, consecrated, Christian young gentleman, and has been the promoter to greater zeal and earnestness in our striving to work to send the Gospel to heathen countries. Mr. Kugimya (now of Japan), when at the College, attended our meetings quite often, also, and proved, by his bright, lively faith in Christ, a great inspiration to our members. The late lamented Prof. J. F. Bivins was an honorary member of our Auxiliary. He often presided at our public meetings, and would deliver most beautiful, soul-stirring addresses. He encouraged us to labor on to send the light and warmth of God's love to the benighted ones over the islands and seas, till all nations should know the story of the cross.

Our heart's desire—yea, our earnest prayer, is for every member of Main Street Church to unite with us in our missionary work; to read our missionary literature of the General Board; to ponder and realize the responsibilities and duties resting upon them as Christian women.

If each one of us would persevere and use energy, we would enlist every available woman in our church to become a worker in this noble cause.

"Rescue the perishing" is a work for us all to do, a place for all to fill. Love for God and humanity will direct what to do, where to go, what to say. May our watchword ever be "Go Forward" when He bids us go.

Lumbago
Get Instant Relief RUB ON
Painkiller (Perry Davis)

This Fur Scarf,
$7.50

RIVER MINK Scarf, lined with satin, three tails on each end.
A splendid quality fur at a very little price.
Muff to match it for $5.00.
If, after receiving the fur, it doesn't suit you, return it to us in good condition and we'll refund the money.
Write us for samples of Dress Goods.

Write for our new Catalogues of INFANTS' FURNISHINGS, LACE CURTAINS and CHRISTMAS BOOKS.
You'd better write for these things to-day.
We prepay charges on all orders of $5.00 and over.

Miller & Rhoads
Richmond, Va.

CANCER
Permanent Cure Guaranteed, without knife, X-Ray, Arsenic or Acids; no inconvenience. Write for book.
Southern Cancer Sanatorium
1520 E. Monument St. Baltimore, Md.

THE LARGEST SALE OF ANY ONE BRAND IN THE UNITED STATES.
Sauers
FLAVORING EXTRACTS
BEST BY TEST.
AT YOUR GROCER
10c and 25c.

Woman's Home Mission Society

Please send all communications for this Department to Mrs. R. O. BURTON, Raleigh, N. C.

Officers of W. H. M. S. of the N. C. Conference.

President—Mrs. J. E. Underwood, Elizabeth City.
First Vice-President—Mrs. V. Royster, Raleigh.
Second Vice-President—Mrs. K. P. Black, Littleton.
Third Vice-President—Mrs. J. A. Spiers, Selma.
Recording Secretary—Mrs. C. P. Jerome, West Durham.
Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. S. H. Scott, New Bern.
Treasurer—Mrs. E. L. Prince, Wilmington.
Superintendent of Supplies—Mrs. Ivan Proctor, Raleigh.
Superintendent of Literature and Press Work—Mrs. R. O. Burton.

For the W. H. M. S. Society.

O what are we doing, dear sisters,
For the lands not so far away,
Where many are groping in darkness—
Are we helping any, I pray?

Are we pointing others to Jesus,
The Saviour who lives above?
Are we giving our time, or our money,
To help send the news of His love?

Do we pray for the spread of His Gospel,
Do we pray for His kingdom to come,
Do we pray for those who are laboring,
While we are sitting at home?

Have we faith that our prayers will be answered,
Have we faith in the work being done?
Do we believe God will bless every effort,
That we make for the cause of His Son?

Then sisters, O let us take courage,
And remember God seeth it all;
He will help us enlarge His kingdom,
E'en tho' our efforts seem small.

MRS. E. M. ANDERSON.
Durham, N. C.

I am sure these plain questions, asked in rhyme, must have come to many of us during our Prayer Week services—how did we answer them? I trust the reports will show large thank-offerings. They are much needed, for our great work grows apace, and we must not allow it to languish for want of funds. We, and all that we have, belong to our Lord—can we dare withhold His own?

How Many Auxiliaries Have Raised the Extra Dollar per Member?

I would urge the importance of this. The Board asks it of us because of the many and pressings demands; as on-half the amount of dues collected is kept in each Conference, our connectional enterprises must suffer unless we raise the extra dollar per member. Our schools have opened finely, the first month showing a larger enrollment than of any previous year in their history. We love all our enterprises and are loyal to them, especially our own Brevard; let us gladly redouble our efforts and see to it that in every Auxiliary dues are paid in full, the extra amount asked for raised—and as much more as we can possibly collect. We will soon begin our fourth and last quarter of this fiscal year, and it behooves us to improve these remaining months.

Educational Needs.

Last year the cost of maintaining the educational institutions of the Woman's Home Mission Society was $19,183.11. This outlay covered only the salaries of the workers and necessary repairs on buildings. The income from fees was only $8,015.75. Is it surprising that again and again comes the call from the Board for this extra dollar per member? I give you these figures that you may clearly see the needs for my reminding you of what devolves upon us. Would that I knew how to make a clear clarion call that would be heard and heeded to the end of our borders—and beyond!

Needs of Christian Education.

In the daily papers the stories of sorrow and suffering, often the saddest effects of ignorance, force upon us with startling reality the need of missionary teachers and the Christians must find and send them out. The growing cosmopolitanism of our large cities increases the need, for in these are frequently found the educated, without Christianity. In Chicago alone, on a recent Sunday, there were meetings or services of fifty-eight different religions and cults, among them a company of Sunworshippers!

Ahoskie Auxiliary.

We are glad to welcome this new band of fifteen helpers; may they grow in numbers and consecration and zeal, proving a great blessing to our beloved Society. Again, we congratulate our successful District Secretary, Mrs. Ida T. Wilkins. Let me present the officers:

Mrs. B. C. Thomnson, President.
Mrs. Emma Downs, First Vice-President.
Mrs. J. J. Hayes, Second Vice-President.
Miss Willie Baker, Third Vice-President.
Mrs. E. J. Gerock, Treasurer.
Miss Addie Baker, Recording Secretary.
Mrs. R. J. Haggard, Corresponding Secretary.
Mrs. A. E. Garrett, Agent "Our Homes."

Prayer Week Services.

I am looking for accounts of our blessed Week of Prayer. I trust it was a time of refreshing throughout the Conference. The fine program was comprehensive and complete, full of information and rich in spiritual nourishment; may the lessons linger with us, uplifting and strengthening through many days. Sisters, write me or tell in your county papers of the gracious season. How many Auxiliaries have published articles in secular papers? Please be sure to write me this month; also report to me the use of Bulletins in your regular meetings.

NOT A SICK DAY SINCE.

I was taken severely sick with kidney trouble. I tried all sorts of medicines, none of which relieved me. One day I saw an ad. of your Electric Bitters and determined to try that. After taking a few doses I felt relieved, and soon thereafter was entirely cured, and have not seen a sick day since. Neighbors of mine have been cured of Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Liver and Kidney troubles and General Debility." This is what B. F. Bass, of Fremont, N. C., writes. Only 50 cents at all druggists.

Text Cards for Home Decoration
on higher finished ivory and dark ground cards, all with silk cord to hang; require no frames. Agents wanted everywhere; liberal discount. GOSPEL PUBLISHING HOUSE, 54 W. 22d St., New York, Room 26.

THE KEELEY INSTITUTE
GREENSBORO, N.C.
For the treatment of THE LIQUOR, OPIUM, MORPHINE and other Drug Addictions. The Tobbacco Habit, Nerve Exhaustion

Raleigh Christian Advocate.

ORGAN OF THE
North Carolina Conference, M. E. Church, South.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY AT No. 108 W. MARTIN STREET.

THOMAS N. IVEY, - - - - - - - Editor.

Subscription Rates.—One year, $1.50; six months, 75 cents. Preachers of the North Carolina Conference who act as agents receive the paper free of charge. All other preachers, and widows of preachers, $1.00 a year.

Business.—Watch the label. It shows the date up to which the subscription has been paid. Change in label serves as a receipt. Regular receipt will be sent when requested. When the address is ordered changed, both old and new address must be given. Address all letters, and make all checks and money orders payable, to the Raleigh Advocate Co.

Manuscripts.—All matter for publication to be returned to the writer must be accompanied by proper postage. Matter for the Editor and matter for the printer must not be on the same sheet. Obituaries must not contain over 150 words, nor contain poetry. One cent a word will be charged for all obituary matter over 150 words.

Advertising.—The RALEIGH CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE is a fine advertising medium. Rates will be promptly furnished on application.

The World As We See It.

Not very much has been said of New York's subway line which was opened a few days ago. But it means a great deal not only for New York City, but for the world in general. The subway was completed at a cost of $35,000,000, and is now municipal property. Its chief benefit in the form of revenue will be very great. The many trains are very much crowded. Another benefit of the subway will be in the fact that it will enable a great many areas, which are not now habitable, to be thickly populated.

If Bishop Potter bases his advocacy of the subway tavern on the idea that anything in the form of a substitute of a saloon must still dispense intoxicating drinks, the experience of the coffee saloon in Califrnia is sufficient to dispel that idea. Eight years ago a coffee club was established in San Diego as a substitute for the saloon. In this club no intoxicating liquors of any kind have been sold. The club pays its own way, and has a daily attendance of a large number of men, half of whom were frequenters of a saloon before the opening of the club.

The coroner's inquest at Hull, England, discovers that George Henry Smith and William Leggett were, at about 12.30 a. m., on October 22, while out fishing with trawls, aboard the British steam trawler Crane, with board of trade marks exhibited and regulation lights burning, killed by shots fired without warning or provocation from certain Russian war vessels, at a distance of about a quarter of a mile. It seems from the finding that no charge of murder is preferred. This is on account of the diplomatic negotiations pending between England and Russia. The testimony will be considered in the investigation by the General Commission, which has been appointed and which will begin its work in a few days. The Baltic fleet has left Vigo, but it is assumed that all the officers implicated in the North Sea incident have been left behind.

That was a horrible catastrophe at Winston-Salem on the morning of November 2nd. The wall of a reservoir contiguous to one of the main streets, burst at about 5 o'clock in the morning and poured a great torrent of water through the street, which acted as a channel. It is stated that nine met their death and that quite a number sustained serious injuries. The wall which gave way was fully thirty feet high. Mingled with our feelings of sympathy for the bereaved and the city of Winston-Salem, is the reflection that a great many accidents might be averted through a little municipal precaution and oversight. This old reservoir has for a long time been a standing menace to life and property, but the fact, it seems, has not been fully appreciated until now, after lives have been lost, bodies injured and property destroyed.

Mr. Thomas W. Lawson, of Boston, who has been most unmercifully scoring the Standard Oil Company, is represented as feeling unusually complacent since he has forced from the Standard Oil Company, for the first time in its history, a public denial of the many charges brought against it. Whatever may be said of Mr. Lawson and his articles, it is certain that he is beginning to make his influence felt and feared. His articles have added nearly 400,000 subscribers to Everybody's Magazine in which they are appearing. This fact is significant and cannot be laughed down.

It is commonly remarked that those composing a jury in any murder case in North Carolina are, as a rule, not marked by any appearance of more than ordinary intelligence. In fact, it is said that the most unintelligent men are selected for jurymen. Beyond a quiet a stolid attention given to the evidence and the speakers, there is generally no sign of individuality or strength of character. The incident which occurred a few days ago in a murder trial in the State of Virginia, when a juryman called for the testimony of a witness whom neither side has seemed willing to present, is not only novel, but refreshing to those who have been depressed by the thought that our jury laws need revision. It is certain that when a man is placed on trial for his life the best and most intelligent men should be selected—men who have an opinion and a will, and who will speak out when occasion demands it.

It is a matter of regret to many of both parties that in the last days of the Presidential campaign that has just closed that Judge Parker and Mr. Roosevelt should have indulged in such personal asperities. Governor Odell also took a part in preferring serious charges against Judge Parker, charging that the latter, while in official life, was in collusion with the trusts. Many of Judge Parker's friends feel that he made a mistake in charging that President Roosevelt and the Republican managers had perniciously exploited Mr. Cortelyou's intimate knowledge of the inner workings of the great corporations by appointing him manager of the campaign. Mr. Roosevelt replied on last Friday, in a characteristic fashion, using words too heated for a Chief Magistrate. The incident, whatever may be the outcome, has marred a hitherto very pleasant campaign. It is time for personal hostilities to sink out of sight in small or great campaigns.

WILL YOU NOT REMEMBER?

(1) That the Raleigh Christian Advocate depends largely for its very existence on the amounts collected from you by the preachers and paid at Conference.

(2) That the preachers are straining every nerve to make at Conference this year such an Advocate exhibit as they have never made before.

(3) That they are hard-worked men and that you can assist them greatly by not waiting for them to approach you, but by handing them or sending them the amount you are due the Advocate either on past subscription or renewal. Do not wait for them.

(4) That we are hoping to hear at Conference from every subscriber who owes the Advocate anything or whose renewal is due.

Will you remember all this in a practical way and rejoice the "Old Raleigh at Conference? We believe that you will.

DEATH OF REV. N. M. JURNEY.

Rev. N. M. Jurney died at his home at Mount Olive on last Sunday night. This news will bring sorrow to the thousands of his friends and ministerial brethren all over the State, who had not even heard of his sickness. He was in the very prime of life, and his physical appearance gave no indication of any approaching breakdown.

The deceased was for many years a member of the North Carolina Conference. He was a man of preaching ability, and had very fine social qualities. He had a warm, impulsive heart, and those who could not always commend his judgment loved him for his many noble qualities. A few years ago he located, and since that time he has been living at Mount Olive and has been engaged in the teaching business, in which he was very successful.

The deceased loved his church and Conference. His was a familiar figure at our annual gatherings. We shall miss him. The Craven Memorial Hall will remain as one of his monuments. The bereaved family have our sympathies. A suitable memoir will appear.

Attention!

Preachers, delegates, and others expecting to attend the North Carolina Conference at Henderson will read very carefully:

Reduced rates to the session of the Conference will be given over the A. C. L., S. A. L., Southern and Atlantic and North Carolina Railways under the following restrictions:

(1) Tickets will be sold from all points in the State, including Norfolk, Portsmouth, Suffolk, Boykins and Danville, Va.

(2) Tickets will be on sale as early as Monday, November 28th.

(3) Tickets will be sold to preachers, delegates and others officially connected with the Conference and their wives and families.

(4) Such persons buying tickets will be charged full first-class fare going, but be sure when you purchase the ticket to secure from the agent certificate of purchase filled out on the "standard form of certificate," which all agents are supplied with.

(5) When you reach the Conference deliver this certificate to the Secretary for his endorsement so that when you present the endorsed certificate to W. W. Morris, agent at Southern Railway station at Henderson, he will endorse your certificate so that you can get at the S. A. L. or Southern stations a return ticket at one-third the regular rate, plus twenty-five (25) cents, provided the first fare to Henderson was not less than seventy-five cents.

(6) At least fifty or more persons holding properly receipted certificates of the standard form must have been in attendance upon the Conference before the special reduced rate will be granted for return passage to any one.

(7) Tickets over the Norfolk and Southern and boat lines will be sold to Norfolk on the same conditions, except that you will not need to get a certificate from the agent when you purchase your ticket.

(8) Tickets returning from the seat of the Conference must be purchased not later than the 10th of December.

Please give special attention to these restrictions, as there will be no means by which your failure to do so may be corrected.

Very truly yours,

W. L. CUNINGGIM,
Secretary of N. C. Conference.

Durham, N. C., November 4, 1904.

Announcement.

The Conference Historical Society will meet in the Methodist Church of Henderson, Tuesday night, November 29th. The address will be by Rev. A. D. Betts, D. D., on "My Recollections of the North Carolina Conference."

W. H. WILSON, President.

Methodist Mention

STATE.

News of good meetings all around.

Bishop W. W. Duncan will preach in Wilson on the third Sunday in November.

The North Carolina Conference will meet in Henderson three weeks from to-day.

Rev. A. L. Ormond, Kittrells, writes that the parsonage has been lately painted and furnished.

Read carefully the statement made by Rev. W. L. Cuninggim, secretary, concerning rates to Henderson.

The Western North Carolina Conference convenes in Charlotte to-morrow, Bishop W. W. Duncan presiding.

Rev. R. H. Broom writes that Center Church, on Carthage Circuit, will be dedicated on Friday before the fourth Sunday in this month.

We appreciate the following invitation: "Rev. and Mrs. W. W. Bays, at home, to the Western North Carolina Conference, Friday, November 11th, 4 to 7 p. m., 501 North Poplar Street, Charlotte, N. C."

Rev. J. O. Guthrie, Selma Circuit, reports that he had a most successful day at Selma on last Sunday. He received seven members into the church, which makes more than thirty received at Selma during the year.

Rev. W. C. Merritt filled his appointments at Sharon M. E. Church on Saturday and Sunday. The work of repairing the church is rapidly going on, and ere long, it will again be ready for full, earnest work.—Windsor Ledger.

Rev. G. T. Adams writes that he is in the midst of a gracious revival in New Bern. He is assisted by the church. On last Sunday twenty-seven were received into the church. At night, there were seventy-five professions at the altar. God is wonderfully stirring up the people.

Prof. William H. Glasson, Ph. D., Professor of Political Economy in Trinity College, has our thanks for his pamphlet, "A Costly Pension Law, Act of June 27, 1890." Dr. Glasson, in this pamphlet, discusses an economic subject from the standpoint of a scholar.

A series of revival meetings are being held in the M. E. Church at Chadbourn this week by the pastor, Rev. J. T. Draper. He is assisted in the work by Rev. Geo. B. Webster, pastor of Bladen Street M. E. Church, Wilmington. The meeting will continue until the end of this week.—Clarkton Express.

We have the following from Rev. L. B. Jones, Plymouth: "We are in the midst of a series of meetings which we are hopeful will result in a glorious revival. Rev. W. P. Constable is doing the preaching. His sermons are pointed and uplifting. We hope to give a full account of our year's work later.

The debate with Randolph-Macon will be held in Ashland, Va., February 22nd. The question is: "Resolved, that all nominations for important municipal, county, State and National offices should be made by direct vote of legalized primaries rather than by party conventions." Trinity has the negative side.

We regret to learn of the death of Rev. J. F. Smoot, for a long time a member of the North Carolina Conference before its division, and at the time of his death one of the oldest members of the Western North Carolina Conference. He was a man of spiritual integrity, and was very useful as a preacher. His latter years were marked by affection, but his interest in the church and his faith in Christ never weakened. His character is a noble legacy left to his daughter and four sons, one of whom is Rev. T. A. Smoot, of the North Carolina Conference. All the bereaved ones have our sympathy.

We are informed that the matter of uniting the Mizpah and Midway Methodists, by building a church at some point between the depot bridge and the fork of the road, is being discussed. Should this be done, it is probable the parsonage of the Richmond Circuit will be built near the church.—Richmond Headlight.

Rev. E. E. Rose, of Jackson, preached to his Pleasant Grove flock last Sunday morning. His people are deeply saddened at the fact that he will not be returned to this charge another Conference year. Few men have ever had the hold upon the affections of the people that he has enjoyed since he came to this field four years ago.—Roanoke-Chowan Times.

We beg to express our acknowledgement of the receipt of a very valuable pamphlet containing a paper on "The Educational Significance of Modern Language Study in the Secondary School," by John Christian Ransmeier, Ph. D., Professor of German in Trinity College. In this paper Dr. Ransmeier contributes something valuable to educational literature, and reflects credit on himself and his institution.

Rev. D. H. Tuttle writes as follows from Elizabeth City: "My third year here is closing up with full reports on all collections. Have had a very helpful revival season recently in which I was assisted part of the time by Rev. F. I. Church, who preached vigorously with plainness and power. Preached a week by myself. About thirty conversions, and twenty-five joined on profession of faith. Old troubles between God's children gave way to peace. Have recently organized a Senior Epworth League that starts off well."

* * *

CONNECTIONAL.

The Sunday-school of First Church, Opelika, reports an enrollment of 1,267. This is about double the membership of this church.

Twenty-seven orphans in the South Georgia Conference Orphanage are being clothed by the Epworth Leagues of that Conference.

Rev. G. B. Winton, editor of the Nashville Advocate, has been visiting the Louisiana Purchase Exposition at St. Louis, and writes entertainingly of his trip.

The Methodist and Presbyterians of Inman Park and Atlanta are holding union services in a tent located near both churches. For the past week Bishop Candler has been doing the preaching.

Pacific Conference, M. E. Church, South, reported a gain of nearly eight hundred more members than the California Conference, M. E. Church, in the same territory—the former a net gain of 400, the later a loss of 387.

The Holston Conference's Historical Society has ordered published the second volume of the History of Methodism in the Holston Conference. The first volume is in the third edition. Dr. Richard N. Price is the author.

Dr. S. M. Hosmer, President of the Southern University, and Dr. J. S. Frazer, presiding elder of the Montgomery District, are making a canvass through Southeast Alabama in the interest of the endowment fund of the two Alabama Conference colleges.

Prof. J. W. Kilpatrick, A. M., Professor of Natural History, Mineralogy and Geology in Central College, was stricken with paralysis Thursday noon, October 20th, and died that night about midnight. He was fifty years of age, and has filled his chair at Central College for twenty-four years.

Dr. Atkins, our Sunday-school Secretary and Editor, was "raised" in the Holston, and has been "going up and down" in our land all his life; but his address on Thursday night of the Conference, at the anniversary of the Sunday-school Board, was universally conceded to be the best and strongest address he has ever delivered before the Holston Conference.—Cor. Holston Conference.

The increase in the collection for domestic missions in the Louisville Conference last year was $1,226.99. This enabled the Board to pay all the appropriations in full.

The Methodist Churches of Norfolk and vicinity are co-operating in building a small church at Cape Henry, a summer resort, half way between Norfolk and Virginia Beach.

Ralph Rogers, eighteen years of age, a junior in Wofford College and son of Rev. W. A. Rogers, of the South Carolina Conference, accidentally killed himself Sunday, October 16.

Martin Female College, located at Pulaski, Tenn., one of the best school buildings in the South, was completely destroyed by fire at 11 o'clock on the morning of October 19.

Grace Church, Dallas, received last year 430 members, and this year 215, making a total of 645. Seventy of these were received at the great Stuart meeting, which has just been closed.

Dr. W. R. Lambuth, after a trip of several months visiting the missions in Brazil, returning via England, reached Nashville Friday evening, the 21st, leaving next morning for the seat of the Tennessee Conference.

The sudden death of Rev. H. B. Cockrell of the St. Louis Conference, editor of the American Illustrated Magazine, on Saturday, the 23rd, was one of the saddest and most unexpected in the history of St. Louis Methodism.

The movement for the consolidation of the Publishing Houses and for the combination of the several benevolent societies of the Methodist Episcopal Church, which was favored by the recent General Conference, will now be in the hands of commissions appointed by the Bishops. The Commission on Publishing Houses, in union with the Book Committee, has power to act. We are not quite clear as to the prerogatives of the other commission.—Nashville Christian Advocate.

The report has gone abroad that ex-Lieutenant-Governor James H. Tillman would enter the ministry of the Methodist church. The report is so utterly absurd that we did not think it necessary to correct it. But as some of our brother editors of church papers in other Conferences seem to take the matter seriously we take occasion to say that Colonel Tillman is a member of the Presbyterian church—he has no idea of entering the ministry.—Southern Christian Advocate.

On September 7 the doors of Epworth University, at Oklahoma City, Okla., were thrown open to students. Students who had been coming in for a day or two and people from the city filled the audience room. The university opens under very favorable auspices. In the few months since his appointment President McSwain has not only succeeded in bringing together a faculty of trained and experienced teachers, men who have been connected with some of the strongest schools in the country, but he has made a fine impression upon the community by the thoroughness with which his plans have been worked out and his capacity for mastering the details of a situation.

Mark Guy Pearse, the English preacher, remarked on his return to England: "I never saw a woman in any public house in Canada or the States; I never saw on any table, or even in the dining cars, or in the hotels a glass of beer, wine, or spirits. I never saw a drunken man until I reached an English port." This was not because these sights are not to be seen sometimes among us, but it is a good thing for our people accustomed to pessimistic anti-saloon oratory once in a while to be made to remember that we are not in all things quite so bad as some other people.—Pittsburg Christian Advocate.

Roman Catholics in New York City recently held a congress in the interest of their church, which was termed the "Eucharistic Congress." The sentiment of the meeting was that all other churches but the Roman Catholic were "human fabrications." The Congress was attended with much pomp and display and much parading in public.

NORTH CAROLINA EPWORTH LEAGUE CONFERENCE
DEVOTIONAL, CHARITABLE, LITERARY, EVANGELICAL
EDITED BY REV. N. B. ANDERSON.

Mission Study Class.

The General Epworth League Board, at its meeting in Waco, Texas, May last, created the Department of Missionary Work. Provision was then made for the organization of Mission Study Classes in the League under the care of a Fourth or Mission Vice-President. Prominence is thus given to the great work of the church—the evangelization of the world.

It is to be hoped that every League Chapter in the North Carolina Conference, that has not done so, will at the earliest convenience elect a Fourth Vice-President, and organize a class for the systematic study of missions, and set apart one meeting each month for missionary talks. These talks, and general missionary reading, have a very important place in the work of the League; but there is nothing that can take the place of a study class, with its group of four or more, who are really making a study of missions and whose interest is so awakened as to cause them to pray as they study. With such a missionary committee the work of missions will not lag. No Missionary Committee should be satisfied until they have organized a Missionary Study Class, if others cannot be enlisted, of their own number.

A very comprehensive course, adapted to our young people's societies, is offered that will be found most interesting reading.

The text-book adopted for next year is Sunrise in the Sunrise Kingdom. It is an outline of missionary work in Japan by Rev. John H. DeForrest. Not only has this book been adopted by the Epworth League, but most of the young people's societies of America have also adopted it.

It has been claimed, by those who are in position to know, that Japan is the key to the religious situation in the East. All eyes are turned to Japan, and we deem ourselves fortunate in having offered to our League such a book for their study as Sunrise in the Sunrise Kingdom.

Arrangements have been made with the Mission Rooms at Nashville on which special helps will be given that will make it comparatively easy for an unexperienced leader to successfully conduct a class, and we are also informed that fresh missionary letters, one for each lesson, will be sent to all study classes enrolled at Nashville.

Application for enrollment cards, report cards, special helps, and general information regarding the mission study should be addressed to Mr. John W. Shackford, Methodist Mission Rooms, Nashville, Tenn.

And the Mission Study Text Books may be had of Smith & Lamar, Agents, Nashville, Tenn., as low as thirty-five cents per copy.

The Missionary Committee

Miss Lela Clark, in her pamphlet, "The Missionary Committee," has this quotation:

"Information plus consecration minus selfishness plus activity—by every Christian equals successful missionary effort."

She makes David Parks answer the question: "Who shall compose the missionary committee?" And he answers the question well under seven divisions.

There are other valuable hints and suggestions. Every Chapter ought to be "sown down" in this leaflet, and also Bishop Galloway's, "The Epworth League and Missions."

The Handbook for the Department of Missionary Work.

We again call attention to this Handbook, not because we regard it as superior to all other handbooks, but because we recognize the value of such helps to our Chapters and to our inexperienced officers; and, also, that we may, if possible, quicken interest in the Fourth Department, by making it appear that the work in this Department is no more difficult than work in other departments of the League. When we first turn our attention to this department great difficulties arise which soon disappear when we begin the study of the literature and methods that the church has placed in easy reach of the Missionary Committee. The Handbook in question, though small, and costs only five cents, is replete with helps, suggestions and references to other helps. Send to Mission Rooms or the League Office for this Handbook and a package of missionary literature (free), and begin at once to develop the Chapter in knowledge of and zeal for the world's evangelization.

Remember that "all for Christ" means "Christ for all," not merely for us.

Notes.

The Publishing House agents announce that the Reading Courses for the Junior and Senior Leagues are now ready for distribution at $1.00 in paper and $1.40 in cloth for the Senior Course, and $1.25 each (in cloth) for the Intermediate and Junior Courses.

* * *

Have you elected your Fourth Vice-President and organized your Missionary Study Class?

* * *

There are two Missionary Campaign Libraries—numbered one and two. If you want to add these excellent books to your library, order of G. W. Cain, Nashville, Tenn.

* * *

Brother pastor, did you read the third paragraph of Dr. DuBose's annual report, printed in these columns last week? If so, did you answer his questions to your complete satisfaction?

* * *

Texas Leagues will ask at Denver next year for the International League Conference for 1907. Here is one vote for Texas.

A RUNAWAY BICYCLE

Terminated with an ugly cut on the leg of J. B. Orner, Franklin Grove, Ill. It developed a stubborn ulcer unyielding to doctors and remedies for four years. Then Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured. It's just as good for Burns, Scalds, Skin Eruptions and Piles. Twenty-five cents at all druggists.

Positions GUARANTEED BY A $5,000 BANK DEPOSIT
Railroad Fare Paid. 500 FREE Courses Offered. Board at Cost. Write Quick
GEORGIA-ALABAMA BUSINESS COLLEGE, Macon, Ga.

DANGEROUS COLDS, HEAVY COUGHS, Speedily Cured by Allen's Lung Balsam

Shepard's Lung Food.

A 50 cent bottle of Shepard's Lung Food FREE to any one wishing to test its efficacy in treatment of ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, COLDS, COUGHS, LA GRIPPE, CONSUMPTION, or any affections of the throat or lungs. Indispensable for public speakers.
Send name and address of your druggist and we will send you 50c. to pay him for one bottle of Lung Food. $100 reward for a case which it will not cure.
THE LUNG FOOD CHEMICAL CO., Wilmington, N. C.

Saw Mills

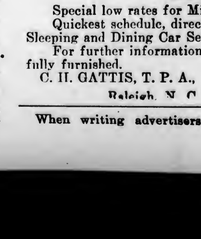
1500 ft., 1 in. boards per hour with 16 H. P. is the record of our Light 25 ft. Saw Mills. Small Mills for farmers and Large Mills for lumbermen. Also Engines, Boilers, Shingle Mills Edgers, Grist Mills, etc. Write for Catalogue K
Address Salem Iron Works, Winston-Salem, N. C.

Lowest Kind of Rates.

California & Northwest
From Sept. 15th to Oct. 15th. 1904.

Cheap one-way and round-trip tickets on various dates to Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico and Indian Territory. Through tickets from all points. Write me. J. F. Van Rensselaer, Gen. Agt. Southern Pacific and Union Pacific Railroad Companies, 13 Peachtree St., Atlanta, Ga. G. W. Ely, T. P. A., R. O. Bean, T. P. A.

WRIGLEY ENGRAVING COMPANY
ENGRAVERS, ELECTROTYPERS, STEREOTYPERS.
COPPER, HALF TONE AND ZINC ETCHINGS.
ALA. & PEACHTREE STS. ATLANTA, GA.



Save Half in Fruit Trees

Wholesale Rates to Farmers.

Choicest stock of Fruit Trees in the country. All the large, Improved Peaches affording luscious fruit from May to November. All the super-b apples and pears covering the whole year. Mammoth delicious plums, cherries, grapes, figs, asparagus, rhubarb, etc. Largest shippers of STRAWBERRY PLANTS in the World.
All trees, etc., delivered FREE. 130 page manual, telling how to grow all kinds of Fruit, Free to buyers.
Write now for catalogue for fall planting. Mention this paper.
CONTINENTAL PLANT CO., Kittrell, N. C.

WORLD'S FAIR RATES
VIA
Seaboard Air Line Railway
TO ST. LOUIS, MO., AND RETURN.

On account of the World's Fair, St. Louis, Mo., the Seaboard Air Line Railway, in connection with the C. & O. Route via Richmond and the N. C. & St. L. Route via Atlanta, will sell round trip tickets to St. Louis, Mo., at greatly reduced rates from all stations.
Rates from principal points as follows:

	Season Tickets	60 Day Tickets	15 Day Tickets
Charlotte via Atlanta	$36.10	$30.10	$24.65
Durham via Richmond	34.10	28.40	23.30
Durham via Atlanta	38.75	32.30	26.30
Henderson via Richmond	34.10	28.40	23.30
Henderson via Atlanta	38.75	32.30	26.30
Maxton via Atlanta	38.65	32.25	26.25
Raleigh via Richmond	35.60	29.90	24.80
Raleigh via Atlanta	38.75	32.30	26.30
Hamlet via Richmond	37.60	31.90	26.25
Hamlet via Atlanta	37.60	31.90	26.25
Wilmington via Richmond	38.65	32.25	26.25
Wilmington via Atlanta	38.65	32.25	26.25

LIMIT OF TICKETS—SEASON TICKETS.
Good to leave St. Louis up to December 15, 1904, will be sold daily commencing April 25th.
SIXTY DAY TICKETS.
Good to leave St. Louis up to and including 60 days from date of sale. Will be sold daily commencing April 25th.
FIFTEEN DAY TICKETS.
Good to return up to and including 15 days from date of sale, commencing April 25th, and continuing during the Exposition.
COACH EXCURSION TICKETS.
On May 9th and 23rd, 10-day coach excursion tickets will be sold at very low rates from Raleigh $18.50 via Richmond and $20.80 via Atlanta. Tickets not good in Parlor Sleeping Cars. Tickets good to leave St. Louis including ten days from date of sale.
MILITARY COMPANIES.
Special low rates for Military Companies and Bands.
Quickest schedule, direct routes, first-class coaches and Pullman Sleeping and Dining Car Service.
For further information, call on or address us. Same will be cheerfully furnished.
C. H. GATTIS, T. P. A., Raleigh, N. C.
H. A. MORSON, C. P. & T. A., Raleigh, N. C.

When writing advertisers please mention this paper.

Sunday School

Lesson for November 13, 1904.

Joash Repairs the Temple.

2 Kings 12:4-15.

Golden Text.—We will not forsake the house of our God. Nehemiah 10:39.

It was entirely in accordance with the training of Joash that he should desire to repair the breaches in the temple caused both by age and by utter neglect. As a child he had lived in one of the chambers of the temple, and its dilapidated condition had undoubtedly been impressed upon his mind by his daily contact with it.

Furthermore the book of the testimony had figured laregly in the coronation ceremony, and this must have furnished a strong stimulus to the youthful king to show the utmost honor to the house of the Lord God. Likewise the influence of Jehoiada, the priest under whose care Joash had been brought up from childhood, would naturally be exerted to effect a revival of the worship of Jehovah and a restoration of the temple to its former wonted beauty.

Ecclesiastical Delay. — Though Joash early gave instructions to the priests to gather funds for the repair of the Lord's house, yet years passed and still the work was not done.

Various reasons have been assigned for this delay on the part of the priests. It is not necessary to suppose, as some have done, that the priests actually embezzled the money. Yet on the other hand it is hard to acquit them of great remissness in this matter, for they had explicit instructions and full authority to proceed with the work, and the subsequent action of Joash shows that he considered them greatly at fault.

Royal Vigor.—When Joash in the twenty-third year of his reign found that the repairs to the temple were still waiting to be made, he took drastic action. The dilatory priests were relieved from the duty of soliciting further contributions, and instead of relying upon their efforts, a box or chest was placed in the temple by Jehoiada, and the people as they entered the temple made what offerings they pleased toward the restoration of the sacred edifice. When any considerable amount had accumulated in the chest, then the king's scribe and the high priest came up and took the money and put it in bags, which were duly marked with the weight which each contained.

Faithful Financiers.—Under the new impulse given to the work by king Joash the repairs upon the temple went steadily forward. Masons and carpenters and the other artisans engaged in the work wrought faithfully each at his own appointed task. Moreover, those in charge of the workmen showed their fidelity, for we are told that no reckoning was made with the men into whose hands the money was delivered to be bestowed on the workmen, "for they dealt faithfully."

Timely Suggestions.—1. In his zeal for the restoration of the Lord's house to a proper condition, Joash stands as a splendid example to all young men.

2. Giving is a part of worship. Our homage to the Lord is not complete unless we have given of our substance for the support of his church and the spread of his kingdom.

3. Faithful financiers are a blessing to every community. Laxness in money affairs is a blot on any man's character and a disgrace to any institution. The church of God should set an example to the world of the utmost accuracy and fidelity in the handling of the money entrusted to its care.

God's promises are ever on the ascending scale. One leads up to another, fuller and more blessed than itself. In Mesopotamia, God said: "I will show thee the land." At Bethel: "This is the land." In Canaan: "I will give thee all the land, and children innumerable as the grains of sand." It is thus that God allures us to saintliness. Not giving us anything till we have dared to act—that he may test us. Not giving everything at first—that he may not overwhelm us. And always keeping in hand an infinite reserve of blessing.—F. B. Meyer.

Why is our attitude at our work so destitute of practical enthusiasm? Because we too are not lifting our eyes to the hills. We are looking for nothing but little things, and therefore we see nowhere any threshold or field worthy of God. How can the sense that the living God is near to our life, that he is interested in it and willing to help it, survive in us, if our life be full of petty things? Absorption in trifles, attention only to the meaner aspects of life, is killing more faith than is killed by aggressive unbelief.—George Adam Smith.

Come what may to the dearest ones we have on earth, God and his upholding grace will be there, and he cares for them more than even we can do. An earnest commendation to his love will avail them more than all our fretting.—H. L. S. Lear.

There's so much bad in the best of us,
And so much good in the worst of us,
That it scarcely behooves any of us
To talk about the rest of us!
—Robert Louis Stevenson.

For Asthma use CHENEY'S EXPECTORANT.

CHRISTMAS SERVICES and Cantatas for Sing S. S. and Church Choir.
CHRISTMAS HOSANNAS—CHRISTMAS BELLS. Two new services for the S. S. containing new features not found in others. 5c per doz. Enclose 10c for samples.
FREE A Catalogue describing 20 Cantatas for the S. S. and Choir, also specimen pages.
GEO. F. ROSCHE & CO. {Chicago, 56 Michigan Ave. / New York, 22 N. William St.

BLAKESLEE GASOLINE ENGINES
ARE BEST FOR Cotton Ginning
"I can only speak of the engine bought of you last Fall in the highest terms * * *. We find her to move with the regularity of a clock, a thing that we think very essential in making a good sample of cotton. As for safety, we think it far surpasses steam, as I perhaps not more dangerous than water. It seems very simple and easy to learn * * * and believe it to be only a question of time when they will take the place of steam engines."
Rev. J. W. BURTON,
L. E. of the M. E. Church, South.
Send for catalogue N, stating power requirements.
White-BlaKeslee Mfg. Co.
Birmingham, Ala.

DON'T
give your child old, greasy Castor Oil. Give CAS-TO-RINE. Tastes as good as maple syrup. Fifteen cents per bottle at all dealers.

OFFENSIVE CATARRH

I suffered for a long time with a bad case of Catarrh, and took a great deal of medicine without any benefit.
I had a continual headache, my cheeks had grown purple, my nose was always stopped up, my breath had a sickening and disgusting odor, and I coughed incessantly.
I heard of your S. S. S. and wrote you. I commenced to use it, and after taking several bottles I was cured and have never since had the slightest symptom of the disease. Miss MARY L. STORM.
Cor. 7th & Felix Sts., St. Joseph, Mo.

Wheeling, W. Va., May 29, 1903.
I had Nasal Catarrh for years for which I used S. S. S. with very gratifying results. I tried local applications for some time, and getting no permanent relief I came to the conclusion that the seat of the trouble was in the blood. Knowing S. S. S. to be a good blood medicine I began its use, and after using it for some little while it did away entirely with the offensive mucus in the nostrils, and I did not have to hawk and spit, especially in the morning, to dislodge the catarrhal matter.
1627 South St. FRED H. PRESSY.

The filthy secretions and foul mucus that are continually dropping back into the throat, find their way into the stomach and are absorbed into the blood. Catarrh then becomes constitutional, and the only way to get rid of it is through the blood. Write us if you have Catarrh, and our physicians will advise you without charge.
SSS
The Swift Specific Company, Atlanta, Ga.

WOOL.

If you have wool to sell for cash, to exchange for goods, or to be manufactured, ship it to the CHATHAM MANUFACTURING COMPANY, ELKIN, N. C., and you will not regret it. They pay the highest market price and make the best goods you can get. Their blankets at all the leading expositions have been awarded GOLD MEDALS as the finest made in America.
WRITE THEM FOR SAMPLES.

A beautiful Bible in reach of all
NO MONEY NEEDED
All you need is to send to us for 12 copies of THE AMERICAN ILLUSTRATED METHODIST MAGAZINE. Sell them to friends at price of 15c a copy, return the $1.80 collected, and we will send you by return mail, absolutely free, our beautiful Holman Teachers' Bible, bound in morocco, helps, maps, 32 full page illustrations, 4000 questions and answers on Old and New Testaments. You will be delighted with it, as all our customers are.
☞Our magazine was never more attractive and popular; it sells quickly.
Pastors and S. S. Teachers may order Bible for examination to be returned at our expense if not earned.
THE METHODIST PUB. CO.,
112 Locust St., St. Louis, Mo.

H. STEINMETZ.
FLORIST.
Cut Flowers, Designs.
Plants of all kinds.
PHONE 113. RALEIGH, N. C.

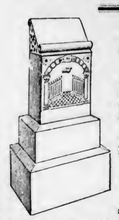
XANTHINE HAIR RESTORATIVE.

Discovered by Prof. Hertz, a noted German Chemist.
Never fails to restore the natural color to any gray hair. Prevents dandruff and promotes growth. Price $1.00 per bottle.
TRY THE XANTHINE DYSPEPSIA TABLETS and you will find them superior to anything you have ever used. Price 50 cts. per box. We pay charges on all orders addressed to XANTHINE CO., Richmond, Va.
Write us for circulars.

$1.50 will buy a pair Dixie Girl Women's Shoes
Made by Dixie Girls
BEST SHOE ON EARTH FOR PRICE

Hard to find a dealer without them. If so, write us, and we will tell you where to find them.
Geo. D. Witt Shoe Co.
Makers
LYNCHBURG, VA.

Raleigh Marble Works



Monuments
Ship Monumental work to all parts of the State delivered to your depot at same price as at shop.
Special attention paid to finish and lettering.
Only Best of Stock Used.
Write for new catalogue.
COOPER BROS., Proprietors,
RALEIGH, N. C.

Raleigh and Cape Fear Railroad

TIME TABLE.

Effect 12:01 A. M., Sunday, October 9, 1904

SOU'N BOUND TRAINS. Daily, ex. S. Second-Class	SOU'N BOUND TRAINS. Daily, ex. S. First-Class	STATIONS.	NOR. BOUND TRAINS. Daily, ex. S. First-Class	NOR. BOUND TRAINS. Daily, ex. S. Second-Class
101	105		104	102
A. M.	P. M.	Lv.	A. M.	P. M.
7 20	4 15	..... Raleigh	9 45	5 35
7 35	4 26	..... Carai-igs Mills	9 28	5 20
7 45	4 00	..... Sylvia	9 20	5 13
7 54	4 35	F. ..... † Barnes	9 20	5 01
8 04	4 45	F. ..... Hobby	9 14	4 57
8 5	4 52	M. ..... McCULLERS	9 10	4 52
8 25	4 56	F. ..... Banks	8 58	4 25
8 30	4 59	F. ..... Austin	8 55	4 21
8 50	5 07	S. ..... † Willow Springs	8 40	4 15
9 05	5 15	M. ..... † JOHNSON MILL	8 40	4 01
9 5	5 17	P. ..... † Cardenas	8 38	4 00
9 20	5 22	S. ..... C. F. & N. Junction	8 33	3 55
9 35	5 26	S. ..... † Fuquay Springs	8 30	3 52
9 40	5 31	F. ..... Buckhorn	8 20	3 38
9 45	5 36	F. ..... Rawls	8 7	3 20
10 00	5 45	S. ..... † Chalk beats	8 10	3 20
10 05	5 50	S. ..... Bradley	8 00	3 01
10 15	6 00	F. ..... * Smith Mill	7 55	2 55
10 15	6 10	..... Lillington	7 45	2 45
		Ar.	Lv.

JOHN A. MILLS,
President and Gen. Manager.

Secular News

STATE.

Raleigh News and Observer: North Carolina people will contribute more to the care of orphans than to any other cause. More than five thousand dollars have been sent to the Baptist Orphanage in response to the appeal since the typhoid fever scourge. "Yesterday I had a check of twenty dollars from a Jewess," said Mr. Archibald Johnson.

Says the Winston-Salem Sentinel: Though a dry month the leaf sales on the Winston-Salem market in October showed a good increase over the same month last year. With a "season" the new crop will come in rapidly. The average of eight cents a pound made last month is regarded as excellent in view of the fact that the offerings were common.

In the presence of six bishops, more than a score of priests and a vast congregation, that taxed beautiful St. James Church to its full seating capacity, Rev. Robt. Strange, D. D., was Tuesday consecrated bishop coadjutator of East Carolina. It was one of the most interesting and impressive church services ever conducted in Wilmington, and the immense audience, which was present, represented all denominations.

The following from the Wilmington Messenger is very interesting: "No doubt that the statement is a surprise to most North Carolinians that the cotton mills of our State consume ninety-seven per cent of her raw production. It is said the crop of the State this year will be between half a million and six hundred thousand bales. With the rapid growth of the milling industry in the State, we will soon have to draw on the production of other States or greatly increase our own."

Raleigh News and Observer: The date set for the North Carolina Day in the public schools of the State has been fixed for Friday, the 23rd of December, and and in future the last Friday before Christmas will be the regular date for these distinctive exercises. The subject this year will be "The Pamlico Section." Superintendent Joyner has been busy arranging the program, which is now in the hands of the printer, and will be ready for distribution in pamphlet form, it is hoped, not later than November 10th.

Oxford Ledger: The Inter-State Tobacco Growers' Protective Association of Virginia and North Carolina published Monday, through The Southern Tobacconist and Modern Farmer, the scale of prices for farmers' tobacco, which was adopted at a meeting of the Association Sales Executive Committee held a few days ago. There are now nearly 3,000 members of the Inter-State Association, and these farmers are pledged, it is said, to hold their crops for the prices agreed upon by the Sales-Executive Committee. These prices are comparatively high.

At the meeting of the State Literary and Historical Association in Raleigh a few days ago, these officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Hon. R. W. Winston, of Durham; First Vice-President, Hon. A. C. Avery, of Morganton; Second Vice-President, Gen. W. R. Cox, of Edgecombe; Third Vice-President, Mrs. Lindsay Patterson, of Winston; Secretary-Treasurer, Clarence H. Poe, of Raleigh. Resolutions were adopted urging the building of a fire proof building by the State to preserve its valuable books, papers and relics, pledging continued aid to rural free libraries and endorsing the starting of local historical associations.

Cold Olds: Farmers say that more cotton has been picked in the last fifty days than at any time before since that crop began to be a great feature in North Carolina. The amount of work done has certainly been remarkable and there have been more white pickers than ever before, particularly women and children.

Thos. J. Jarvis has been Governor of his State and a Senator of the United States. But when the circle of his influence diminishes, he wisely adapts himself to his limitations, and does with his might what his hands find to do—in the present instance it is serving as chairman of the board of trustees of the graded school in his town. This is a North Carolina way. Nathaniel Macon, Badger and Mangum, if we remember aright, were active in forwarding neighborhood and local interests after their retirement from public life at Washington.—Charlotte Chronicle.

Col. Olds: In an interview with Dr. Tait Butler, the State Venterian, regarding the extension of the territory in North Carolina free from the cattle ticks, says: "It really looks as if he will get a big increase in the free territory. Of course he cannot tell definitely until the reports from the inspectors come in. A Federal inspector is now in the State at work, and so far has inspected the counties of Wilkes, Surry, Catawba, Lincoln, Gaston and southern Burke. It seems that we are to get most of these exempted. This is a matter of very great importance to cattle growers. If the latter will take hold of matters and really have faith in what we are trying to teach them about the tick and its deadly work and about its effect as regards prices of cattle and possibility of shipping the latter out of the State, a vast enlargement of the free territory could be quickly made. Here is Wake County, for example; there are ticks on not over a tenth of the farms. Every year cattle die from tick fever here, and yet no attention of any importance is paid to it."

GENERAL.

Guatemala is on the verge of another revolution.

Pope Pius is steadily recovering from his recent attack of gout.

The third general assault by the Japanese on Port Arthur has begun.

The Emperor of Japan celebrated his fifty-third birthday anniversary.

The Liberals won a sweeping victory in the Canadian general elections.

Ten miners were killed by a fall of 1,400 feet into a shaft at Nanticoke, Pa.

The Russian inquiry into the North Sea incident is in progress at Vigo, Spain.

President Roosevelt has issued his Thanksgiving proclamation for Thursday, November 24th.

The Baptist ministers, at a meeting in Richmond, Va., adopted resolutions denouncing lynching.

It is reported that Great Britain will ask Admiral Dewey to serve on the Anglo-Russian commission.

Engineers in 240 Illinois colleries went on strike and a lockout of 50,000 miners is expected to follow.

The body of ex-President Paul Kruger was put on a ship at Rotterdam and will be taken to South Africa.

The Datto Ali, the rebellious Moro leader in the Philippines, is making overtures for his surrender to General Wood.

A war panic prevailed in London for a time, but it was allayed by an official statement from the foreign office.

Russians report their killed, wounded and missing in the fighting from October 9th to 18th as 800 officers and 45,000 men.

Ex-Mayor McCue, of Charlottesville, Va., was found guilty of the murder of his wife, and sentenced to be hanged. He appealed.

Roy Knabenshue, of Toledo, made his second ascent from the World's Fair aeronautic course in Baldwin's airship, the California Arrow.

The Anglo-Russian negotiations are proceeding satisfactorily, but nothing has been definitely decided yet as to place of meeting, etc.

Dowie has given orders to his 3,000 Zion City adherents that all must vote for Deneen, Republican, for Governor, as well as Roosevelt for President.

Judge Parker has expressed high appreciation of the part William Jennings Bryan has taken in the present compaign and sent him a telegram to this effect.

We have seen the Bible offered in this issue of our paper for the sale of twelve copies of The American Illustrated Methodist Magazine, and pronounce it a splendid proposition.

MORPHINE

OPIUM, WHISKEY AND ALL DRUG HABITS

CURED WITHOUT PAIN AT YOUR HOME.

If you are addicted to these habits you think you will quit it. You won't; you can't unaided, but you can be cured and restored to your former health and vigor without pain or the loss of an hour from business at a moderate cost. The medicine builds up your health, restores the nervous system to its normal condition; you feel like a different person from the beginning of treatment. LEAVING OFF THE OPIATES AFTER THE FIRST DOSE. You will soon be convinced and fully satisfied in your own mind that you will be cured.

Mr. T. M. Brown, of DeQueen, Ark., says: "Over seven years ago I was cured of the opium habit by your medicine, and have continued in the very best of health since."

Dr. W. M. Tunstall, of Lovingston, Va., says: "I am glad to say that I firmly believe that I am entirely and permanently cured of the Drink Habit, as I have never even so much as wanted a drink in any form since I took your eradicator, now eighteen months ago. It was the best dollars I ever invested."

Mrs. Virginia Townsend, of Shreveport, La., writes: "No more opium. I have taken no other remedy than yours, and I make no mistake when I say my health is better now than it ever was in my life, and I owe it to you and your remedy. It has been twelve years since I was cured by your treatment."

For full particulars, address DR. B. M. WOOLLEY, 309 Lowndes Building, Atlanta, Ga., who will send you his book on these diseases FREE.

LIBERTY MILLS

PRODUCES DAILY
4,000
BARRELS OF
Pure Soft Wheat Flour
AND THERE IS HEALTH AND STRENGTH IN EVERY POUND.
Ask Your Grocer.
LIBERTY MILLS,
Nashville, Tenn.

When writing advertisers please mention this paper.

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE NORTH CAROLINA CONFERENCE

THE Barnes Clothing Store

IN HENDERSON, N. C.,

Sends you Greeting. We expect you with us on November 30th, and extend an invitation to one and all to make our place of business your headquarters. We have a fine assortment of

CLOTHING

AND GENTLEMEN'S FURNISHINGS . . .

of every kind. We are specially prepared to supply our preachers with clerical suits, and will favor them with bargains, if they will call to see us.

If you will send us your measure, and inform us what kind of suit you want, we will have it ready for you when you come to Conference. If we do not suit you it will cost you nothing. We will make it to your interest to give us a call, as we are making special arrangements to supply your needs at the lowest possible figure.

BARNES CLOTHING STORE,
HENDERSON, N. C.

Special Offer

Christmas Music.

This Depository has just received a fine assortment of Christmas services, and until November 20th, will upon receipt of 10c in stamps, send postpaid to any one five of these attractive services as samples. These services are very tastefully gotten up and nearly all contain attractive recitations, which are worth double the money whether you use the music or not.

The regular price of these services is 5c per copy. This offer is good until Nov. 20th only; after that services will be sent at 5c per copy postpaid. Do not ask for free samples, but send us 10c at once and receive five of the most attractive samples ever offered. Address all orders to

Southern Methodist Book Depository,
STAUNTON, VA.

Great 60 Day

Sale of NEW and 2nd hand pianos and organs.

Special low prices on 2nd hand instruments to make room for our magnificent new styles.

We have many different make 2nd hand pianos and organs, taken in exchange as partial payments on the artistic Stieff, all of which have been carefully overhauled and all represent good values for prices asked. Write for list giving full description. Take first and second choice and and send your order at once to insure securing your choice.

Chas. M. Stieff,
Southern Warerooms
Charlotte, N. C.
211—213 N. Tryon St.
C. H. Wilmoth, Mgr.

Methodist Orphanage

OFFICERS:
REV. J. W. JENKINS, - Superintendent
MRS. J. W. JENKINS, - Matron
MISS LUCY M. REEKS, Teacher

☞Send money to the Superintendent by Check, Post Office or Express Money Order, or Registered letter.

Receipts up to November.

Raeford Sunday-school, monthly collection, $2.25.

Kittrell church, North Gates Circuit, $18.10.

Hebron church, North Gates Circuit, $5.55.

Roper Sunday-school, for September and October, $10.00.

Riverdale Sunday-school, on furnishing a room, $21.00.

Donations in Kind.—Barrel of vegetables, Joel and William Cheatham, Henderson, N. C. God bless theb oys. May they live to honor the good name that they bear.

Friends Increasing.

Now and then we get a letter from a brother saying we are taking the collection. One friend quarters the support of two orphans.

Once in awhile a new Sunday-school sends us a collection and says we are going to take a monthly collection for the Orphanage.

Riverdale Sunday-school will furnish our sewing (not servant's) room by sending us $25.00—$22.00 is already in hand. Riverdale is on the Carteret Circuit.

Sometimes they write: "Come to see us, and tell us something about the Orphanage. We don't know what it is, nor where it is. Let us know how you are getting along and what you are doing." So many schools would be all the better for sending us a monthly collection.

An Exciting Time.

Berry and LeRoy and Ross caught a rabbit—a regular Mollie cotton tail—to-day. This is the fourth year that they have had rabbit gums, and this is the second that they have caught. I am sure that they have had enough gums to catch all the old Mollie hares in Wake County.

Are the children in orphanages like these? When one gets a thing every other one wants the same thing, or something like it. A boy gets a hoop to roll. All must have hoops if they have to break a bucket or tear down a tub to get it. If one has a tom-walker, all must have tom-walkers—each one higher than the others. If one makes a trap to catch our English sparrows, all must have a trap.

The rabbit gum fever is raging just now; and all have gums. We have had frost, and of course all the rabbits are fat. We shall have one at breakfast in the morning.

Thanksgiving Proclamation.

Have you read the Thanksgiving Proclamation? Does it not say: "Remember the orphan and the poor and needy." When you are enjoying your good things, remember those who have them not. We are not raising any turkeys here. Not even a goose or a duck—and the hen crop is over. Our pigs are not quite ready for the knife.

Brethren, have Thankgiving in every congregation. Have a big time of it. Take the collection whether you have service or not. Appoint a bright girl or boy, or both, to go around and collect it. They will enjoy it, and so will the people. Ask them to give as God has prospered them. We give great thanks here. God has been so good to us! Not a case of serious sickness in our little family this year. Then the people have been so good to us. Oh give thanks unto the Lord!

Another Request.

Will not our ministerial brethren ascertain how much their Sunday-schools will do for the Orphanage by the month, or for the year coming, and let us know at Conference, or before, whether they will support an orphan, or a half, or a third, or a fourth, or a fifth, or a sixth, or whether they will take a monthly collection or not?

Will not the Sunday-schools please send their contributions to me? Don't send the money to Conference by the preacher. You will get things mixed, and it will take me a half year to get them straight. I have a special book for the Sunday-schools. Help me to keep them straight.

Several of our strongest schools have not been heard from this year. Will they not let us hear from them right away? It would brighten up things here in the financial line very much. Do I hear them answering?

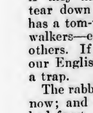
NOTICE!

I want every man and woman in the United States interested, either for themselves or friends, in the cure of Opium and Whiskey habits to have one of my books on these diseases. Address Dr. B. M. WOOLLEY, Atlanta, Ga., Box 389, and one will be sent you free.

CARBUNCLE CURED.

Three years my system was in such a condition that I had a succession of boils—in all, sixteen. They were mostly between my shoulders and on the neck, though I had one near my right eye. As fast as one would get well another would come and they troubled me and caused me to SUFFER all the summer. Finally, they developed into a large carbuncle on my right shoulder, as large around as the top of a teacup. My whole arm was affected and caused me great suffering. I had to carry my arm on a pillow. It was September when the carbuncle came and for six weeks it had to be dressed three times a day. Knowing the trouble came from blood I bought a box of MRS. JOE PERSON'S REMEDY and took half a dozen bottles before I stopped, and it cured me. By the time I took the six bottles, my carbuncle was well and I have never had a touch of the trouble since.

MRS. E. Z. TAYLOR.
Hookerton, N. C., now of High Point, N. C., Aug. 16, 1904.



A
Red Cedar
PAIL
LASTS A LIFETIME.

Did you ever stop to consider how many buckets you buy during ten years.

A Genuine
RED CEDAR
Pail

Lasts not only 10 years, but 7 times 10 years. Over 160,000 sold during 1903.

RED CEDAR purifies water and keeps it fresh longer than anything else.

THERE ARE DIFFERENT KINDS of cedar pails. Insist on the RED CEDAR, it is the right kind.

Prewitt-Spurr Manufacturing Co,
Sole Manufacturers,
NASHVILLE, TENNESSEE.

When writing advertisers, please mention this paper.

The Durham Hosiery Mill is trying the experiment of working colored help. A mill has been fitted up with several machines, the old furniture factory being occupied, and negroes are doing the work. The experimental mill began work September 1st. If successful, this will be the only hosiery mill in the United States in which colored help will do all the work. It is contemplated by the management that if the experiment proved successful three hundred and fifty machines will be installed in the colored cotton mill and manufacture about two thousand dozen hose per day. For the present, however, only a limited number of machines will be used. This step was taken by the hosiery mill because, it is claimed, that it is almost impossible to get white help, at least all that is needed. The large mill of this company is pushed to its utmost to fill orders, and finally the colored help idea was sprung. Mr. Julian S. Carr, Jr., is president of the Durham Hosiery Mill, and he hopes in time to make the colored mill as large as the old one.

For LaGrippe and Influenza use CHENEY'S EXPECTORANT.

$800 to $1,800 a year in the Railway Mail, Postal and other lines of government service. We prepare by mail for examination. Nearly 20,000 appointments last year. For particulars address, CIVIL SERVICE SCHOOL, 914 Walnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.

GINSENG $25,000.00 made from half acre. Easily grown in Garden or Farm. Roots and seeds for sale. Send 4c for postage and get booklet E. H., telling all about it. McDOWELL GINSENG GARDEN, JOPLIN, MO.

BLYMYER CHURCH BELLS Write for Catalogue and Prices. Blymyer Bell Foundry Co., Cincinnati, O.

Please mention this paper.

Quarterly Meetings.

WARRENTON DISTRICT.
G. F. Smith, P. E., Littleton, N. C.
FOURTH ROUND.

Littleton, Littleton, Nov. 3, 4
Weldon, Nov. 6, 7
Garysburg, Seaboard, Nov. 5
Roanoke Circuit, Smiths, Nov. 12, 13
Roanoke Rapids, Rosemary, Nov. 13, 14
Ridgeway, Union, Nov. 19, 20
Henderson, Nov. 27, 28

ELIZABETH CITY DISTRICT.
J. E. Underwood, P. E., E. City, N C.
FOURTH ROUND.

Dare, Mann's Harbor, Nov. 5, 6
Roanoke Island, Nov. 6, 7
Elizabeth City, First Church, Nov. 13
Elizabeth City Road, Nov. 13
Columbia, Nov. 19, 20
Pantego and Belham, Nov. 25
Roper, Nov 26, 27
Plymouth, Nov. 27

WASHINGTON DISTRICT.
J. D. Bundy, P. E., Rocky Mount, N. C.
FOURTH HOUND.

Greenville, (morning) Nov. 6
Grimesland and Vanceboro, Shilmerdine, November 6, 7
Spring Hope, Hornes, Nov. 12, 13
Wilson Station, (night) Nov. 13
Wilson Circuit, (Lodge Street) Nov. 14
Fremont, Fremont, Nov. 15
Rock Mount, Nov. 16
Bath, Bath, Nov. 19, 20
South Rocky Mount and Marvin, Nov. 22
South Edgecombe, Elm City, Nov. 27, 28

ROCKINGHAM DISTRICT.
John N. Cole, P. E., Rockingham, N. C.
FOURTH ROUND.

Montgomery, Capelsie, Nov. 5, 6
Red Springs, Red Springs, Nov. 12, 13
Pekin, Concord, Nov. 19, 20
Aberdeen, Aberdeen, Nov. 26, 27

RALEIGH DISTRICT.
W. H. Moore, P. E., Pittsboro, N. C.
FOURTH ROUND.

Oxford Station, November 5, 6
Youngsville, November 12, 13
Louisburg, November 19, 20
Tar River Plank Chapel, Novembe

NEW BERN DISTRICT.
F. D. Swindell, P. E., Goldsboro, N. C
FOURTH ROUND.

Snow Hill Circuit, Jerusalem, Nov. 5, 6
Craven, Asbury, Nov. 11
Carteret, Harlow, Nov. 12, 13
Beaufort, Nov. 13, 14
Atlantic, Wit, Nov. 15, 16
Straits, Tabernacle, Nov. 19, 20
Morehead, Nov. 20
LaGrange Circuit, Nov. 23
St. John, Nov. 25
Mt. Olive Circuit, Smiths, Nov. 26, 27

DURHAM DISTRICT.
J. T. Gibbs, P. E., Durham, N. C.
FOURTH ROUND.

Mt Tirzah Circuit, Nov. 5, 6
Burlington, Front Street Nov. 13, 14
East Burlington, Graham and Haw River, Nov. 13, at night
Burlington, Shiloah, Nov. 18
Alamance, Phillips Chapel, Nov. 19, 20
Main Street, Nov. 27, at 11 a. m.
West Durham, Nov. 27, at night

FAYETTEVILLE DISTRICT.
J. S. Hurley, P. E., Fayetteville, N. C.
FOURTH ROUND.

Hope Mills, Nov. 5, 6
Newton Grove, Nov. 11
Duke, Benson, Nov. 12, 13
Buckhorn, Cokesbury, Oct. 18
Lillington, Nov. 19 20
Sampson, Andrews Chapel, Nov. 25
Fayetteville, Hay Street, Nov. 27
Fayetteville, Holt's Hill, Nov. 27

WILMINGTON DISTRICT.
R. B. John, P. E., Wilmington, N. C.
FOURTH ROUND.

Burgaw, Burgaw, Nov. 4
Kenansville Warsaw Nov. 5, 6
Onslow, Tabernacle, Nov. 9
Jackson and Richlands, Richlands, Nov 10
Southport, Nov. 3
New River, Sneed's Ferry, Nov. 18
Scott's Hill, Scott's Hill, Nov. 19, 20
Bladen Street, Nov. 27

Scholarship Free

FOR ONE MONTH. CLIP AND SEND OR PRESENT THIS NOTICE FOR PARTICULARS.

☞ 150 Page Illustrated Catalogue Free. ☜

DRAUGHON'S PRACTICAL BUSINESS Colleges

RALEIGH, N. C.

St. Louis, Mo. — Shreveport, La.
Atlanta, Ga. — Knoxville, Tenn.
Paducah, Ky. — Kansas City, Mo.
Fort Worth, Tex. — Nashville, Tenn.
Columbia, S. C. — Little Rock, Ark.
Ft. Scott, Kas. — Montgomery, Ala.
Galveston, Tex. — Oklahoma City, O. T.

The Fast Trains

To California are run over the Union Pacific. Via Omaha 16 hours quicker to San Francisco than any other line. No change of roads, no detours, "The Overland Route" all the way. Be sure your ticket reads over the Union Pacific. Inquire of

J. H. LOTHROP, C. A.,
903 Olive St., St. Louis, Mo.

Five Points.

☞Almost like a pag: from the "Arabian Nights" is the story of The excellence of Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy.

☞It makes pure b'ood Is why it cures all those Diseases That Physicians name and classify.

☞Thousands have been cured, Many of whom were l fe-long, Sufferers. It will do the same for you.

☞To go through life without it Is positively cr minal when this Remedy Is within your easy reach.

☞If you need a Remedy, why not Try the Best. This is a Square dealer. Convince yours.lf and pass it on to others. Sold by all druggists. Manufactured only by Mrs Joe Person, Charlotte, N. C.

Marriages

LAWSON—NEAL.—At the residence of the bride's father, Mr. Graham Neal, Sunday, October 16, 1904, Mr. Curtis L. Lawson and Miss Lucy Neal, B. H. Black officiating.

WOMBLE—PASCHAL.—At the residence of the bride's father, Goldston, N. C., October 12, 1904, A. Marvin Womble, of Winston, and Miss Emma Paschal, Rev. J. C. Humble officiating.

SMITH — MATHIAS. — At the home of the bride's parents, in Gates County, N. C., on October 26, 1904, Mr. J. Marvin Smith, of Greenburg, N. C., was united in marriage to Miss Minnie Mathias, Rev. W. H. Brown officiating.

ELLIOTT—MYRICK.—At Calvary church, near Littleton, N. C., October 19, 1904, Mr. John Pool Elliott, of Norfolk, Va., and Miss Myrtice Pierce Myrick, daughter of Mr. T. W. Myrick, of Halifax County, N. C., H. A. Humble officiating.

BROTHERS — FRANKLIN.—At Parker's Church, Gates County, N. C., on October 27, 1904, Mr. N. B. Brothers, of Nansemond County, Va., was united in marriage to Miss Cora Mae Franklin, of Gates County, N. C., Rev. W. H. Brown officiating.

Obituaries

Obituaries containg not more than one hundred and fifty words are inserted free of charge. Those sending obituaries containing over one hundred and fifty words are requested to send with the obituary one cent for every word in excess. Unless this rule is observed the obituary must be cut down to the proper limit.

MORRISON.—B. Frank Morrison, one of the best men in Harnett County, was born September 24, 1868, and died suddenly at his home October 29, 1904, leaving a wife and six children. A. D. BETTS.

FUSSELL.—On October 25th the death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Fussell, Jr., and bore to heaven their baby girl, Mary Henry, aged one year, one month and eighteen days. Though her illness was of short duration, she suffered intensely, and as the little life ebbed away we could but say, "God doeth all things well." Oh! How it hurt our hearts to see the lid of the casket close over the little form we loved so dearly; lips we never more shall press and know that we shall never again hear that sweet voice say bye, bye. Yet God needed one more flower to adorn His home and we must give her to Him cheerfully. May the thought that they have a jewel up in heaven comfort the bereaved parents. AUNT IDA.

PERRY.—Miss Pattie Perry, daughter of Mr. E. B. Perry, Sr., and Mrs. Sallie Burgess Perry, departed this life September 29, 1904, in Washington, D. C., and was buried in the cemetery in Littleton, N. C., September 30, the funeral services being held at the Methodist church.

Truly one of earth's sweetest and noblest characters has left us. She being converted in early life and joining the Methodist church, held fast "the beginning of her confidence steadfast unto the end."

To her father and mother she was a treasure, to her brothers and sisters an ideal. Bright, sunny, hopeful, she spread light and joy around her.

The end came unexpectedly to her loved ones, but those who knew her know that the summons found her ready to depart, and look forward to a happy meeting on the other shore. May a kind Father bind up all the broken hearts with gentlest cords of consolation. H. A. HUMBLE.

WHITE.—Earle Randolph, son of Charlie and Ella White, died in Belhaven, N. C., October 8, 1904, aged two years, four months and one day. Earle was a bright little boy, the light and joy of the home; but he has gone from that home and from the fond embrace of his loving parents. God took him to Himself, for of such is the Master's kingdom. Surely God's ways are past finding out, but the bereaved ones can trust in His wisdom. Their faith will enable them to say: "The Lord gave and the Lord hath taken away; blessed be the name of the Lord."

May the consolations of our holy religion bring comfort to the sorrowing parents, and enable them to say:

"Yes, Master, Thou mayest take my own,
For it is thine;
Safe in the house not made with hands
'Tis thine and mine."

H. M. JACKSON.

SHEARIN. — Nathaniel Harris Shearin was born in Warren County, N. C., November 30, 1844, moved to Littleton, N. C., in 1873, was married to Miss Sarah Bobbitt, December, 1871, and died October 6, 1904.

Brother Shearin was converted under the ministry of that grand saint, Dr. Burton, and joined the M. E. Church, South, in Littleton, in 1874, thus giving forty valuable years of service to the church.

In this age of hypocrisy, deceit and dishonesty, his character was like a city set on a hill. Pure in heart, devout in spirit, lofty in ideals, noble in mind, generous in thought, quiet in demeanor, faithful in duty, tender in feeling, honest and upright in dealings, he was righteous in character and saintly in life.

Indeed he was one of the most saintly men I ever knew. No more godly man has lived among us, and none have left a cleaner record or sweeter aroma behind them. He was deeply loved and highly respected by all who knew him. I suppose he died without an enemy. He was the standard of piety among us. No boasting sinner ever compared his life with N. H. Shearin's. There was something about him too sacred, too Christly for such comparison. As a consequence, his life became a constant rebuke to impurity, hypocrisy, deceit and dishonesty, and a constant inspiration to their opposites.

There was much suffering in his life, and he had many rough places to pass, and difficult obstacles to overcome, yet with faith in God he kept the sunny side of his nature toward his friends, and allowed nothing to separate him from his duty, to his Lord and his church. He was for many years a faithful steward in his church, and the man on whom the preacher depended to lead his prayer-meetings and care for the souls of his flock in his absence.

Without frills, he was a type of the old-fashioned Methodist, dealing with his Lord on high planes of honesty. He partook of his spirit and glory and lived the life of the righteous and died the death of the blessed.

He leaves a wife and three children to mourn their loss here, but enriched by the legacy of his great character, through divine grace, to be united with him in the great beyond. H. A. HUMBLE.

For Whooping Cough use CHENEY'S EXPECTORANT.

A NOTRE DAME LADY.

I will send free, with full instructions, a sure cure of this simple preparation for the cure of Leucorrhoea, Ulceration, Displacements, Falling of the Womb, Scanty or Painful Periods, Tumors or Growths, Hot Flashes, Desire to Cry, Creeping feeling up the Spine, Pain in the Back, and all Female Troubles, to all sending address. To mothers of suffering daughters I will explain a Successful Home Treatment. If you decide to continue it will only cost about 12 cents a week to guarantee a cure. Tell other sufferers of it, that is all I ask. If you are interested write now and tell your sufferi g friends of it. Address, Mrs. M. Summers, Box 238 Notre Dame, Ind.

Cancer Hospital.

We want every man and woman in the United States to know what we are doing.—We are curing Cancers, Tumors and Chronic Sores without the use of knife and are endorsed by the Senate and Legislature of Virginia. If you are seeking a cure come here and you will get it.

The Kellam Cancer Hospital,
Richmond, Va.

RELIABLE ORGANS $32 RELIABLE PIANOS $173
ONE CENT INVESTED IN A POSTAL CARD AND MAILED TO ME WILL TELL YOU ALL ABOUT THEM. CIRCULARS FREE. H. W. ALLEGER, ESTABLISHED 30 YRS. WASHINGTON N.J.

..Dobbin & Ferrall..
(AT TUCKER'S STORE)
Raleigh, N. C.

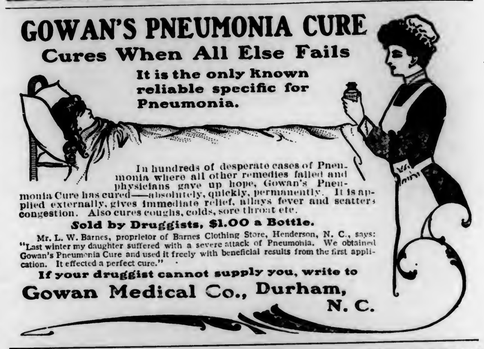
BRIDAL OUTFITS.

We are fully prepared to furnish a complete Trousseau. Every detail absolutely correct. No better materials can be furnished anywhere, and our dress makers are the best in the world—a broad statement but fully true. It is far better to have the customers come to our store making the trip to Raleigh. Write us if you cannot come in person. You will be given perfect attention. . . . . .

Our Prices are Lower Than Other Stores.

DOBBIN & FERRALL
123 and 125 Fayetteville St.

GOWAN'S PNEUMONIA CURE
Cures When All Else Fails
It is the only known reliable specific for Pneumonia.



In hundreds of desperate cases of Pneumonia where all other remedies failed and physicians gave up hope, Gowan's Pneumonia Cure has cured—absolutely, quickly, permanently. It is applied externally, gives immediate relief, allays fever and scatters congestion. Also cures coughs, colds, sore throat etc.

Sold by Druggists, $1.00 a Bottle.

Mr. L. W. Barnes, proprietor of Barnes Clothing Store, Henderson, N. C., says: "Last winter my daughter suffered with a severe attack of Pneumonia. We obtained Gowan's Pneumonia Cure and used it freely with beneficial results from the first application. It effected a perfect cure."

If your druggist cannot supply you, write to
Gowan Medical Co., Durham, N. C.

CROSS & LINEHAN CO.,
NEW TUCKER BUILDING.)
234-236 Favetteville St., RALEIGH, N. C.

LET US SHOW YOU WHAT THE FULL MEANING OF BARGAIN-GIVING MEANS IN . . . . . .

CLOTHING
AND GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS.

OUR NEW SPRING STOCK NOW READY FOR YOUR INSPECTION.

Cross & Linehan Co.,
Leading Clothiers.

Frisco System
Chicago & Eastern Illinois R. R.
FRISCO SYSTEM

Double Daily Trains
BETWEEN
St. Louis AND Chicago
MORNING AND EVENING.

From LaSalle Street, Station Chicago ..... 9:50 a. m.—9:10 p. m.
From Union Station (Merchants Bridge) St. Louis ..... 9.30 a. m.—9:46 p. m.

Morning or evening connection at both termini with lines diverging.
Equipment entirely new and modern throughout.
A DOUBLE TRACK RAILWAY.
Equipped with practical and approved safety appliances.
Substantially constructed.

Resolutions of Respect.

Whereas, our Heavenly Father, in His infinite wisdom, hath been pleased to remove from Cedar Grove Sunday-school Missionary Society, Mrs. M. Kate Stroud; and,

Whereas, we desire to express our appreciation and esteem of her beautiful character and faithful service in our midst; therefore be it

Resolved 1. That we bow in humble submission to Him that doeth all things well, for the Lord seeth the ripe fruit and gathereth it.

2. That while we lament her departure, we rejoice in the fact that she was truly a follower of Christ and one whose example we will strive to emulate.

3. That we, as a Sunday-school, extend our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved sons and daughters to whom she wished to be a bright and shining light, and trust that the Father's love, which passeth all understanding, may comfort and sustain them.

4. That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of our Society and one be sent to the Raleigh Christian Advocate for publication.

MRS. T. S. HARRIS,
MRS. L. E. GATTIS,
Committee.

Resolutions of respect passed by McKendree Methodist Sunday-school:

Whereas, it has pleased Almighty God to remove from our midst, Miss Katie B. Sugg, a beloved teacher of our Sunday-school; and,

Whereas, we, the members, desire to testify our high appreciation of her character and wish to record our loss in her death; now therefore be it

Resolved 1. That while we bow in humble submission to God's will, yet we feel keenly the loss of our faithful friend and zealous co-worker.

2. That we sympathize with those most deeply afflicted, to whom her love was so strong and tender, and by whom she is so sadly missed.

3. That she will be missed not only in our Sunday-school, but also in our Epworth League, of which she was an active member.

4. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the Raleigh Christian Advocate for publication, one to the bereaved family, and one be spread upon the minutes of the Sunday-school.

MRS. LUCY CHERRY,
MISS MAY LANCASTER,
MISS LILLIE JENKINS,
R. G. HART,
T. F. CHERRY,
Committee.

Whereas, God in His all-wise providence has seen fit to remove by death our beloved brother and co-laborer in our Missionary Society, Mr. Haywood Edward, who died the 27th of July; therefore be it Resolved 1. That while the Hookerton Missionary Society has lost one of its best members, our community one of its most valuable citizens, we bow in submission to the divine will.

2. That we extend to the sorrowing wife and family our tenderest sympathy and commend them to God, who is too wise to err and too good to be unkind.

3. That a copy of these resolutions be sent the bereaved family, a copy to be written on the minutes of our Society and a copy be sent the Raleigh Christian Advocate for publication.

Respectfully submitted,
MISS PALMETTA TAYLOR,
MRS. G. W. HART,
MRS. G. C. EDWARDS,
Committee.

For Croup use CHENEY'S EXPECTORANT.

CHURCH MONEY EASILY RAISED by our method. For the sake of the advertising, it gives us, we let you have all the profit. For particulars address PETER-NEAT-RICHARDSON Co. Wholesale Drugs, Louisville, Ky

PERSONALLY CONDUCTED TOUR TO THE WORLD'S FAIR, NOVEMBER 10, 1904, VIA SEABOARD AIR LINE RAILWAY.

The Seaboard Air Line Railway announces their last personally conducted tour to the World's Fair on Thursday, November 10th, leaving Raleigh at 4.00 p. m., Wilmington at 3.20 p. m., Charlotte at 7.25 p. m. Connection will be made from all other points in the State. Through service will be arranged from Wilmington, Charlotte, and Raleigh.

This is the last special train of the season to the World's Fair, and special low rates will apply from all points on the Seaboard and its connections.

This party will be in charge of a representative of the Seaboard, who will look after the comfort and pleasure of the party and arrange for them to get located at hotels, or boarding houses where the party may desire to stop in St. Louis.

The route selected is one of the prettiest in the South, i. e., via Atlanta, Chattanooga, Nashville, and Cairo, Ill.

For circulars and pamphlets, apply to

C. H. GATTIS, T. P. A.,
Raleigh, N. C.

GO TO ST. LOUIS VIA C. & O. ROUTE.

Now is the time to see the great World's Fair at St. Louis, Mo. Delightful weather and the Exposition complete in all it's beauty. An opportunity not to be missed and never to be forgotten.

See that your tickets read via the C. & O. and Big Four Railways. Shortest, quickest and best route, with fast vestibuled train service.

PIANOS AND ORGANS
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.
A. D. JONES & CO.
Southern Factory
Distributors for the World's Famous
KIMBALL
WE Loan you the money to buy them.
WE Give free trials.
WE Pay the freight.
WE Save you 35 per cent.
WE Add nothing to the principal when sold on
EASY PAYMENTS.
Write for our latest piano and and organ catalogue and full particulars.
A. D. JONES & CO.,
208 South Elm Street,
GREENSBORO, N. C.

When writing advertisers please mention this paper.

HICKS' CAPUDINE CURES ALL HEADACHES.
IT'S LIQUID. The perfect remedy for Colds, Indigestion, Periodic Pains, Brain Fag, etc. Prevents Train Nausea and Sick Headache. Braces the nerves. It's Harmless. Trial bottle 10c.

The Highsmith Hospital
(INCORPORATED.)

A General Hospital, centrally located on Green Street. J. F. Highsmith, M. D., Surgeon and Specialist in the diseases of women. Assistants: J. Vance McGougan, M. D., Surgeon; J. A. McKethan, M. D., Specialist in the diseases of the eye, ear, nose and throat.

Modern appliances throughout; elevator, electric and gas light; water, heat, hot and cold shower baths and telephone service on every floor; electric call bells in all rooms; sound-deadening rubber treads and linoleum on stairways and halls, operating room second to none, well equipped chemical and microscopic laboratory with Static X-Ray Electric Machine in connection, giving unsurpassed facilities for treatment of the most difficult surgical cases.

Nurses' Home and Training School, under the supervision of Miss Maude Robertson, graduate of The Massachusetts General, of Boston, Mass., the McLean, of Waverly, Mass., and the Sloan Maternity, of New York, and recently head nurse of the surgical department of the Philadelphia Hospital.

The Cochran Annex, complete in furnishing and equipment, with endowed beds for both white and colored.

Domestic and Culinary Department under skilled housekeeper, faultless in sanitation, cleanliness and convenience.

For further information address

J. F. HIGHSMITH, M. D., Fayetteville, N. C.

65 VALUABLE PREMIUMS WITH
CHEEK & NEAL'S PORTO RICO COFFEE
Makes a good cup of coffee. The best and strongest popular priced package Coffee sold. You not only get good coffee, but your choice of 65 Valuable Premiums is given for the signatures found on each package. Put up by
CHEEK & NEAL COFFEE CO., Nashville, Tenn.
See Large Premium List in every package. Save the signatures.

.... Chesapeake and Ohio Railway ....
World's Fair Scenic Route
TO
St. Louis, Missouri.

SHORTEST, QUICKEST and BEST ROUTE. Vestibuled, Electric-Lighted Trains with Pullman Sleepers and Dining Cars.
Through tickets from North Carolina with direct connections.
SPECIAL RATES FOR SEASON, SIXTY OR FIFTEEN DAY TICKETS.
Fifteen day tickets from Raleigh, N. C., $24.80.
Sleeping car accommodations engaged upon application.
SPECIAL COACH EXCURSIONS
On authorized dates, tickets good for ten days at rate of $18.50. Correspondingly low rates from other stations. Special accommodations arranged for parties. Stop-overs permitted within limit at C. & O. celebrated mountain resorts.
USE THE C. & O. ROUTE and purchase your tickets accordingly.
For coach excursion dates, reservations and other information, address
W. O. WARTHEN, D. P. A., C. & O. Railway,
Richmond, Va.

World's Fair, St. Louis
EXTRAORDINARILY LOW RATES,
November 3, 5, 8, 10, 12, 15, 17, 19, 22, 24, 26, 29

On above-mentioned dates the Southern Railway announces very low round-trip Coach excursion rates to St. Louis. These tickets will be good in all regular Coaches, and on all trains on dates shown. Tickets good 10 days.

Rate from
Goldsboro	$20.00	Salisbury	$17.00
Selma	20.00	Charlotte	18.30
Raleigh	18.50	Statesville	17.00
Durham	17.00	Marion	16.20
Greensboro	17.00	Asheville	15.40
Sanford	20.40	Hendersonville	15.85

Tickets sold at the above rates not good in Sleeping Cars; for other rates see notices elsewhere.

For full information, World's Fair maps, literature, etc., call on or address any Agent Southern Railway.

R. L. VERNON, Trav. Pass. Agt., Charlotte, N. C.
T. E. GREEN, C. T. A., Raleigh, N. C.
S. H. HARDWICK, Pass. Traf. Mgr.
W. H. TAYLOE, Gen. Pass. Agt. Washington, D. C.

Myra Kelly's Tales.

"Little Citizens" is the title given by McClure-Phillips to the book in which are collected the stories of school life east of the Bowery, by Myra Kelly, which have been appearing in McClure's Magazine the last year or so. Miss Kelly has certainly discovered a new field, and developed admirably the humor that there is in it. Eva Gonorrowsky, Morris Mogliewski, Patrick Brennan, Nathan Spiderwitz and their companions make plenty of fun with their antics, and their dialect is certainly the most extraordinary literature has yet encountered. As gathered in the volume, the stories give a very interesting peep into the life of the East Side tenement classes, and one sees the pathos as well as the humor of it.

We are indebted to the Enniss Publishing Company, of Raleigh, N. C., for a copy of Turner's N. C. Almanac for 1905, an old and valuable publication. A reliable State Almanac, astronomically calculated for the State and which gives all of our State officers and institutions, all of our Courts, State and Federal; and all matters pertaining to the Courts; the most important statistical information concerning the growth of the State, farm and honshold, and medical receipts for home use, with much miscellaneous matter, is in need in every family, and by all business men for reference during the coming year; and no publication is so full, complete and reliable as the Old Standard State Almanac. Be sure you get one and hang it up by your fireside. The price is only 10 cents. To be had of merchants and postmasters throughout the State, and Enniss Publishing Co., Raleigh, N. C.

To lovers of good fruit everywhere, whether of watermelons by the light of a crescent moon, June apples scarce overripe and yet o'er the fence, of cheer up cherries of the juicy, sugary California prune, these few remarks are dedicated. We hope you may come out to California, and while basking beneath our vine and fig tree, eat of our seedless grapes and munch our California-Smyrna figs from overhead.

To E. J. Wickson, author of "California Fruits," Elwood Cooper, Chas. H. Allen, Volney Rattan, H. P. Stabler, W. P. Lyon, Philo Hersey, A. Block, W. R. Radcliff, Mrs. B. R. Follett, Mrs. K. M. Tileston, Mrs. S. B. Hankins, Mrs. A. E. Gibson, Mrs. C. Goodwin, W. W. W., Housekeeper, Mrs. Weisendanger, Mrs. H. A. Lee, Miss Emma Riehl, Mrs. E. C. Hatch, Miss Mabel Follett, Mrs. C. P. Taft, Mrs. Dr. Greenleaf, Miss Cooper, Mrs. Alice Richardson and other authorities, thanks are tendered for ideas taken and recipes submitted.

DOESN'T RESPECT OLD AGE.

It's shameful when youth fails to show proper respect for old age, but just the contrary in the case of Dr. King's New Life Pills. They cut off maladies no matter how severe and irrespective of old age. Dyspepsia, Jaundice, Fever, Constipation all yield to this perfect Pill. Twenty-five cents at all druggists.

THE C. F. SAUER CO.'S great victory. Sauer's Flavoring Extracts have just been given the highest award and medal by the World's Fair judges. THE C. F. SAUER CO. are pioneers in the Extracts business, and have made this brand—Sauer's Extracts— famous all over the country, for uniform quality, absolute purity and fine flavor. They have received six highest awards and medals, and the sales of these goods exceed that of any other two brands combined in the United States.

Secretary Hay has made public the text of the note he sent several days ago to Representatives of the United States accredited to foreign powers sigmatory to the acts of The Hague conference in 1889. The note requests the American Representatives to propose the holding of a second Hague conference to the powers to which they are accredited, and asks that it be learned when and where the foreign powers desire to have the conference.

The great Japanese and Russian armies along the Shakhe River, Manchuria, are confronting each other under conditions which are regarded as almost certain to lead to a engagement soon.

The United States Supreme Court dismissed the complaint against the Southern Railway Company, alleging disparity in freight rates at Danville and Lynchburg, Va.

SOME OF YOUR NEIGHBORS

will probably be quick to take advantage of the offer which is being made by the Vernal Remedy Company, of Le Roy, N. Y., to send free of charge to every reader of the Raleigh Christian Advocate who writes for it, a trial bottle of Vernal Palmettona (Palmetto Berry Wine), the household remedy that is attracting the attention of physicians and the public at large, for reason that it is the best specific known for the quick and permanent cure of all diseases of the stomach, liver, bowels, and urinary organs. The proprietors want everyone to try the remedy before investing any money, so that all can convince themselves that it is the greatest restorative and tonic in the world. Better send today and check your disease at once, for if you wait a week or two it may be too late. Only one dose a day is necessary.

A New Cure For The Kidneys,

BLADDER, RHEUMATISM,

Bright's Disease, Dropsy, Gravel, Backache, General Weakness, Nervous. Urinary, Liver and Stomach Troubles.

3 Remedies Free.

The Pape Medicine Co. will send by prepaid mail, to any sufferer, whether man or woman, a complete test course of their three new remedies that instantly relieve and quickly cure all forms of Kidney, Bladder, Urinary Diseases, Rheumatism and their complications. No money is wanted—just write and tell them where to send them.

What The Free Package Contains.

One large course of Formula A.—Reconstructs the broken-up tissue, revitalizes the muscular fiber, revives the texture, removes obstructions that clog the process of eliminating waste matter, cleanses all the pores, builds up and strengthens the weak and feeble Kidneys, re-establishing complete, natural, healthy function.

One large course of Formula B.—Strains out of the blood and system uric acid and other kidney poison, the cause of Rheumatism. Urine is neutralized. Mucous, catarrhal accumulation passes off and out. The bladder is healed, inflammation and irritation subside. Retention, Frequency (especially at night), pain fnl and all urinary difficulties are permanently overcome. Gravel and granular deposits are dissolved, the urinary passages are restored to a healthy condition. And a large course of Formula C—to immediately arrest the undermining consequent upon Kidney Diseases. Regulates the Liver, Stomach and digestion, relaxes constipated Bowels, purifies the Blood, nourishes tissue, bone, muscle and spine. Aches and pains are instantly relieved. Is unfailing in toning the general system. Infuses life and vigor into every vital organ and strength all over the entire body. This is the most exhaustive, thorough and complete treatment ever formulated for the cure of these destructive diseases. There is not one sufferer in the whole world who can afford to leave these remedies untried. Write to the PAPE MEDICINE CO., 8 E. 4th St., Cincinnati, O., telling where to send them, and the complete test course of each of the Formulæ, A, B and C, will be forwarded by prepaid mail without one cent of expense to you.

A BEAUTIFUL COMPLEXION

Is a necessity for ladies and desirable for men. If troubled with disfigurements in the form of inflamed itching patches, ugly pimples or any other cutaneous trouble, beautify your complexion with Tetterine. One box will do the work. Fragrant, harmles, effective. 50 cents per box at Druggists or by mail from

J. T. SHUPTRINE, Mfg.,
Savannah, Ga.

Coal miners in West Virginia are on strike.

20c. THIS COUPON 20c.
...IS GOOD FOR...

If presented in part payment for a bottle of LAXO, which is purely a vetegable compound and "Takes the Place of Calomel." price 35c. Cut this out, present it to your druggist and if he does not have LAXO mail it to us and we will send it to you.
THE LAXO CO., Durham, N. C.

BLACKBOARDS

For Schools, Sunday Schools Churches.

Any quality, shipped anywhere promptly All kinds school furniture and supplies. Write for particulars, Best Goods, Lowest Prices.

CHAS. J. PARKER, Mgr.
Raleigh, N. C.

King's Business College

(INCORPORATED.)

CAPITAL STOCK - - $30,000.

Learn Bookkeeping, Shorthand, Touch Typewriting, Penmanship and English. Not in a month—this cannot be done. Not free—you cannot get something for nothing, but if merit appeals, we can convince you that KING'S is the best. Established and results of 20 years experience.
Reference: Every bank and leading business concern in Raleigh or Charlotte.
Write for our College Journal and offers we are now making. —Address,
KING'S BUSINESS COLLEGE,
Raleigh, N. C., or Charlotte, N. C.

ACID IRON MINERAL

Registered A-I-M Trade Mark.

Is a great natural remedy of wonderful curative power mined from a natural deposit. It cures all diseases, involving inflammation, by purifying the blood and directly healing the irritated parts. Try it on an external sore and watch its magic healing. It acts in exactly the same way on all internal inflammation, such as Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Rheumatism, Kidney Disease, Stomach and Bowel Troubles. Numerous testimonials that it cures when all other remedies fail.

No equal for diseases peculiar to women. Tones up the entire system
Four weeks treatment, only 50 cents
If your druggist cannot supply you, write to

"Cured me completely of bladder trouble." Mrs. Nading, Winston, N. C.
"For sores A. I. M. is worth its weight in gold." J. H. Davis, Beaufort, S. C.
(Blood Poison.) "By use of A. I. M. I was cured in a few weeks." J. P. Wingard, Branchville, S. C.

ACID IRON MINERAL CO., J. H. Garst, Gen. Mgr., Salem, Va.
P. H. HALTIWANGER, Pres., Columbia, S. C.

CENTRAL ACADEMY

LITTLETON, N. C.

A Christian Home School for Boys and Young Men. Spring Term begins Jan. 4th, 1905. Charges very low. For further information address

REV. W. W. ROSE, Principal.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC COMPANY.

..."SUNSET ROUTE."...

Lowest Rates and Through Service to California. Ask About Them. Through the Rice and Oil Belt.

4 Daily Trains from New Orleans to Points in Louisiana; 3 to Texas; 2 to California and Mexico.

Best Trains, Best Service; Best Everything.

OIL BURNING LOCOMOTIVES.

Through Pullman Tourist Car from Washington, Atlanta, Montgomery and Intermediate points to California, Tri-Weekly.

No trouble to answer questions.

J. F. VAN RENSSELAER, General Agent. ATLANTA, GA.
R. O. BEAN, T. P. A.,

A PARODY.

On to the Golden Gate
In comfort all the way
Let any one gainsay:
Burn oil to keep you clean
Unhealthy smoke
Reminds you no more,
Nor the cinders in your eye galore,
Exhaust your patience and pleasant mien.
Remember the
UNION PACIFIC to all points
Louisiana, Texas, Mexico and California.

Special rates to Louisiana, Texas, New Mexico and Arizona in November and December.

Information cheerfully given.

J. F. VAN RENSSLAER, Gen. Agent
13 Peachtree St., Atlanta, Ga.

LIBRARY OF TRINITY COLLEGE N. CAROLINA

Reading Room Trinity College

Raleigh Christian Advocate

FIFTIETH YEAR. ORGAN OF THE NORTH CAROLINA CONFERENCE NUMBER 42.

RALEIGH, N. C., WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 16, 1904.

Editorial

THE WESTERN NORTH CAROLINA CONFERENCE.

It is only an invisible line which the separates the two Conferences in North Carolina. Consequently there is always an eager interest on the part of every North Carolina Methodist in the affairs of both Conferences. The invisible line exists only in name. It divides the organizations but not the hearts. It is interesting to me to meet up here in the highlands men who decades ago served charges away down in the flat lands of Eastern Carolina—charges with whose people and conditions I am well acquainted.

It seemed natural to see Bishop Duncan in the chair. He presides with the old-time dignity. His face wears that same expression, which makes you wonder at times whether it means seriousness or is only the advance guard of a witticism. The Bishop's hair is whiter than it was when, at a District Conference in Mooresville, he struck terror into my heart as I contemplated making my first report as a Methodist preacher. It seems to me that he preaches and speaks with more animation and fervor than he did then. No one can see him preside for one session of the Conferenee and prophesy an early superannuation. There is one fact which impresses one who half-way knows the Bishop. It is that beneath all his bright sarcasm, vigorous insistence on punctuality and decorum, there is a heart exceedingly tender. It may be truly said of him that he loves his fellow man.

The Western North Carolina men are as a rule full of physical and spiritual vigor. They speak readily and with force. It seems to me that they are more emotional than the brethren of the North Carolina Conference. We heard shouting at Monroe two years ago. We have never heard any at any session of the North Carolina Conferenee. This brings us to the reflection that there is more confusion in the Western North Carolina Conferenee than in our own. The brethren in the former Conference are harder to manage. The excess of vitality calls for a more strenuous disciplinary enforcement. The announcements at the close of the daily session remind one of the Chicago wheat pit. Why do not the brethren pattern after their Eastern brethren in having the Secretary to read out all the announcements.

I was glad to see that a large class of young men was received on trial—sixteen in all, I think. This makes me feel good after contemplating for several years the large number of "supplies" in our own Conference. There is undoubtedly among those who are now being received on trial an educational trend. The faet is being recognized that a call to preach means a call to prepare to preach.

"Collections and salaries in full" was a familiar expression in the reports of the preachers. From what I heard I would judge that the increase in membership this year will be most gratifying. Numerous revivals and many accessions were reported. The assessments on Foreign Missions were more than paid. There was a deficit in Domestic Missions collections. It appears to me that all the commendable zeal and energy displayed in securing a surplus for Foreign Missions should be used in securing at least a full collection for Domestic Missions. The needs in the latter case, are, to say the least, as pressing and vital as in the former.

Bishop Cheshire, of the Protestant Episcopal Church, appeared before the Conference and made a stirring report on the divorce question. He was very attentively heard, and the matter was placed in the hands of a special committee whose report we hope to give our readers through these columns.

A pleasing feature of the Conference was the dedication of Trinity Church, which is one of the handsomest churches, not only in the city of Charlotte, but in the whole State. This church was begun in 1898, and was completed at a cost of about $25,000. It is a very handsome structure. The auditorium is ample and the acoustic properties are fine. On Sunday morning Bishop Duncan preached the dedicatory sermon.

The number of visitors was the smallest I have known at this Conference. It was my pleasure to hear on Sunday night a strong missionary sermon by Dr. Seth Ward, Assistant Missionary Secretary.

From the reports at this writing I judge that the Western North Carolina Conference is opposed to the consideration of the question of the consolidation of the two papers. Ever since the re-establishment of the Raleigh Christian Advocate in 1899, on account of conditions which no longer exist, there has been a disposition on the part of some to criticize the North Carolina Conference as desiring to hold off from the Western North Carolina in the common interests of the church. The North Carolina Conference at its last session appointed a Commission to confer with a similar Commission to be appointed by the Western North Carolina Conference to consider the question of consolidating the two papers. The movement was started after the Raleigh Christian Advocate had reached a point of wonderful success. It now has between 7,000 and 8,000 subscribers, over 2,000 more than the consolidated paper had at Greensboro. But the late Western North Carolina Conference opposed any consolidation, as it had a right to do. Our Conference has done all it can do. The Western Conference has expressed its preference. Both Conferences have every reason to be content and there will be nothing but the best of feeling between them. But hereafter the charge cannot be made that it is the North Carolina Conference which is opposed to the consolidation of our connectional interests.

The Conference was saddened by the fact that Rev. H. L. Adkins, one of its best men, and during the past year Presiding Elder of the Salisbury District, had been compelled to give up his work and go out to Arizona for his health. A collection of nearly $500 was raised on Saturday for him and his family. It is to be hoped that he may soon regain his health, and have many years of activity among the brethren who esteem him so highly.

Bishop Duncan, during the Conference, expressed himself as decidedly opposed to the plan of placing as "second men" on charges those who are mere figure heads, and who do but little preaching. How this conviction affected the appointments I do not know, as this is written before the reading of the appointments.

The following are some of the figures given in the General Minutes for the year 1904:

Number of local preachers, 186.
Number of members, 78,790.
Gain in members, 683.
Infants baptized, 1,593.
Adults baptized, 1,826.
Number of Epworth Leagues, 94.
Number of Sunday-schools, 741.
Number of Sunday-school teachers, 4,963.
Number of Sunday-school scholars enrolled this year, 58,464.
Amount necessary for Conference claimants, $6,500.00.
Amounted collected for Conference claimants, $5,611.92.
Amount contributed for missions—Foreign, $15,611.12; Domestic, $8,376.90.
Amount contributed for church extension, $4,451.13.
Amount contributed for Bible Society, $906.91.
Amount contributed for support of Presiding Elders, $13,814.27.
Amount contributed for support of preachers in charge, $105,948.68.
Amount contributed for support of Bishops, $2,183.63.
Number of societies, 856.
Number of houses of worship, 752½.
Value of houses of worship, $1,137,953.
Indebtedness on houses of worship, $34,179.31.
Number of pastoral charges, 200.
Number of parsonages, 161.
Value of parsonages, $209,536.
Indebtedness on parsonages, $18,204.
Number of districts, 11.
Number of district parsonages, 8.
Value of district parsonages, $21,500.
Indebtedness on district parsonages, $4,500.
Number of churches damaged this year, 1.
Amount of damage, $650.
Insurance carried, $316,400.
Premiums paid, $1,844.53.
Collections on losses, $710.
Amount contributed for education, $5,975.78.

Dr. William Osler, who is one of the most eminent physicians this country has produced, and who has been appointed lately Regius Professor of Medicine in Oxford College, England, has excited the theological world by his statement in a recent lecture to the Harvard students that practical indifference on the subject of immortality is the quite common attitude of mind and "that the question has not the slightest influence in the settlement of the grave social and national problems which confront the race to-day.

Dr. Osler is a believer in the doctrine of immortality, yet it takes only a little knowledge for any one to see that in his view, as above stated, the eminent physician has missed his mark. There is nothing woven so closely in every department of thought and activity as immortality.

It is said that not a single railroad passenger in England was killed last year. The record for this country is 9,000.

Contributions

Some Earlier Scenes in My Ministry—No. 1.

REV. E. A. WRIGHT.

To the Raleigh Chritsian Advocate:—For a long time I have been thinking I would write for the "Old Raleigh Christian Advocate" a series of articles, giving from memory, an account of my early ministerial work in Wayne, Lenoir, Wilson and other Eastern counties of the "Old North State," commencing in 1875 and running up to 1883; so I send to you the following for publication:

As I have come to that period of life when "the frost that never melts" has come down upon my head, and I am pilgrimaging along, on a limping hip, down already on the "sun-set side of hill of life," and will soon be bid to take passage on that "ship drifting with the dead to shores where all is dumb," I thought it would not be amiss in me to put on record some of my early ministerial work, or, in other words, a short review of my early ministerial life.

When in 1875 I was licensed as a local preacher by the Quarterly Conference of the "old M. E. Church, South," of the town of Goldsboro, N. C., I promised the Quarterly Conference to be "no drone in the Lord's vineyard," but, on the contrary, to go out into Wayne County and look up places destitude of Methodism and try, as best I could, to establish Methodist churches in all such places. Commencing first at Daniel's schoolhouse in 1876, holding a regular monthly appointment there until the fall of that year, and then with Rev. A. J. Finlayson, in September, holding a series of revival services for two weeks, resulting in the establishment of a church, with thirty or thirty-five members, which, in a short while, cultimated in the building of the church now culminated in building of the church now stand-Chapel." We took into membership there old man Barney Daniel and his family, and Mr. Daniel being the owner of the land, gave the acre upon which it stands, or upon which it was standing ten years ago, when I left Goldsboro, N. C. Brother Daniel also contributed a handsome sum of money in the erection of the building. When I last saw it, it was one of the handsomest churches of our denomination in Wayne County. Brother Daniel, being dead, yet speaketh to our people in this splendid donation to our beloved Methodism. Long may this church stand to be a memorial to his memory, and may hundreds of the people living in that section, in ages to come, find a spiritual home in Barney Daniel's Chapel, nestled among the oaks and hickories on that ridge nearly opposite the old home. This church was the outcome of the first Methodist seed sown by this humble scribe in that neighborhood.

The next place I took an appointment (monthly) was at "Piney Grove" school-house, six or seven miles further east, in the Park's, Moses', Ivey's, and Sutton's neighborhood. Here I kept up a regular monthly appointment until October, 1877, and then in that year Brother Finlayson and myself held a revival there, which resulted in about forty conversions, and from this sprang the present "Piney Grove Church," one of the largest Methodist churches, I am informed, in Wayne County. The last I heard of it, it had nearly two hundred members. At this point was built also a fine church building, called "Piney Grove Church." It is located in one of the richest sections of Wayne County—the section bordering on the rich "huckleberry section" of Lenoir County. This church is located near the now famous "Seven Springs," at the foot of "Sapona Hills," near the banks of "old Neuse." This church stands as an evidence of the unbounded liberality of the Moses, the Parks, the Iveys and the Suttons, and here, I hope, it will stand "until the last click of the clock of time," as a monument, more lasting than iron and granite, to be a "trysting place" of generations of men and women, boys and maidens, who are to come upon the stage of action, as long as time shall roll. I thank God to-day that here, too, I planted the first Methodist seed sown in that neighborhood, after the close of the war between the States. In those days, which have made an indelible stamping upon memory's tablet, Bro. A. J. Finlayson and myself went, as it were, hand in hand, heart to heart, as co-workers in the Lord's vineyard—he, as I called him, my "Paul," and I, as he called me, his "Timothy." When he was called to take passage on that "ship drifting with the dead to shores where all is dumb;" to that undiscovered country whence no traveler has ever returned, I preached, before a large concourse of people, perhaps a thousand, his funeral sermon from the text: "Know ye not that a prince has, this day, fallen in Israel." And at the succeeding District Conference, as chairman of the Committee on Memoirs, among the many good things I wrote concerning this sainted "man of God," who, perhaps, did the most, the best, the furthermost reaching and the noblest work in the vineyard of the Lord than any local preacher within the bounds of Wayne County, N. C., I used in closing that memoir, the following verse of one of our grand old hymns:

"Soldier of Christ, well done
Rest from thy loved employ;
The battle's fought, the victory's won,
Enter thy Master's joy."

(To be Continued.)

The Missionary Training School.

WALTER R. LAMBUTH.

The General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, held in Dallas, Texas, in 1902, authorized a system of city missions in the following terms: "The Board of Missions shall be authorized to organize, with the endorsement of the Annual Conference, and in co-operation with the Annual Conference Board of Missions, a system of city missions. These city missions shall in all cases co-operate as far as possible with the Church Extension Board and with the Woman's Home Mission Board."

In pursuance of the foregoing, a draft of a plan of city missions was submitted to the Board of Missions at its annual meeting in St. Louis, May, 1904, by the Secretaries and was adopted. This plan provided for the development and training of a corps of city missionaries and required at the same time that the Secretaries should make a careful study of the field in relation to conditions among our city, factory, mining, and rural populations. The results of their inquiries to be published in our church papers.

At the annual meeting of the Board of Missions in Waco, Texas, in May last, another step was taken authorizing the establishment of a Missionary Training School in the following terms:

"Resolved, that the Secretaries be authorized to arrange for a training school, or school of methods, to be opened in the months of January, February and March, and that our candidates for work in the foreign fields, as far as possible, be required to attend."

EUGENE R. HENDRIX,
CHARLES B. GALLOWAY.

It will hardly be necessary to emphasize the need of this provision the Board has so wisely made. We have been for fifty years sending men to the foreign field without any special instruction as to the character of work they were expected to do, the equipment required, the care of their health (often in a trying climate), the problems to be solved, and the policy to be pursued in the light of the experience of other Boards and of missionary effort during at least a century of modern missions. The writer himself was sent to the field with scant knowledge of book-keeping and absolutely none of architecture. And yet, during the first ten years he had to act as Treasurer of the Mission, later on a superintendent of two missions—China and Japan—at different times; and had to build two churches, three residences, one hospital and three school-buildings. There is scarcely a missionary who remains on the field for a decade without having at some time or other, to build, to translate, to nurse the sick, to keep accounts, to establish schools, to teach the Word, and to have the care of several native churches. Careful instruction both by lectures and in conferences upon the part of our Bishops and the Secretaries of our Board who have first hand knowledge of the needs of the field and the demands made upon the outgoing missionary cannot fail of being beneficial. The case should be put in even stronger terms. Such instruction has become absolutely necessary if we would keep our working force up to the highest state of efficiency.

That which is true of our foreign missionaries applies with equal force to the heroic men who are appointed to our Domestic Missions. With the most meager provision financially, and almost without equipment, many of them go to posts of difficulty under conditions which try men's souls and which are scarcely less exacting than those in the regions beyond. We have thirteen hundred of these men in our church at home. If only a few could be relieved annually by their presiding elders, for four weeks even, the heartening and inspiration which might come through Bible study, and even daily conference with each other, and with a few presiding elders of experience who might meet with them, must surely result in some spiritual uplift and in valuable light thrown upon the problems of missions among factory people, in mining districts, among foreigners within our borders, and in behalf of those so difficult to reach in our cities. If some laymen could furnish us with a small fund, it would be a pleasure to place at least two new books in the hands of each of these hard-worked and hard-pressed men, as an addition to their library when they go out from the Training School. It is probable that not one hundred of the thirteen hundred have been able to buy two new books a year for the past five years. The supreme problem of missions at home is not so much the mission church as it is the man in charge of the mission church. Give him the inspiration and equipment and the question of self-supporting, self-propagating church will be solved.

Our Training School will open January 4th, in McKendree Church, Nashville, Tenn. The month of January to be devoted largely to Foreign Missions and February to Home Missions. Three of our Bishops who have been in charge of foreign fields will deliver addresses, in addition to the more didactic work by members of the Theological faculty of the Vanderbilt University, a number of connectional officers, some of our returned missionaries, Dr. John F. Goucher, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and Dr. S. H. Chester, Secretary of the Presbyterian Board, and a number of others.

There will be neither recitation nor examination. But original papers on subjects will be requested and an earnest, through-going and prayerful study of the great missionary questions of the day sought for. The matriculation fee of one dollar and a tuition fee of five dollars for the entire term will be required to meet the current expenses of the school. A scholarship of $25.00 ought to cover these items of expense and board and lodging for four weeks. It is to be hoped that a number of annual conferences and individuals will follow the example of the Tennessee Conference Board of Missions which has provided through voluntary pledges ten scholarships for one month.

Bishop Hendrix has rightly styled this a "School of Methods." We purpose to meet in one of the historic churches of Methodism. It is eminently appropriate that we should centre this movement in a church which has been for years a hive of activity, for we shall come together to study church methods; the English Bible from a devotional standpoint and how to impart its truths, and with the supreme object of qualifying our students for Christian service. May this also prove to be under the leadership of the Holy Spirit "a school of prayer and of power."

Ingersoll's Testimony.

On one occasion, Mr. Ingersoll was announced to deliver a lecture in the city of Pittsburg upon the subject, "The Foundations of the Christian Faith." There happened to be living in the city of Pittsburg at that time a lawyer who had been a schoolmate and friend of Mr. Ingersoll. When he had graduated he had started in his life's profession with bright promises, and had married a lovely girl. Two children had come into their home, and then there fastened upon him that awful habit of drink, which was dragging him down to the very lowest depths of hell. It broke up his home, it sent his children into the street, took the roses from the cheeks of his wife, took from him his good name, character, and friends. It left him one night lying in an alley in New York City, poor, friendless, hungry, sick, and alone.

There came to this man a slum-worker. He was taken to a house, where he was washed, put to bed, and in the morning he was fed. This slum-worker pleaded with him that he would change his mode of living. The young man lifted his hand to heaven and said: "By the help of Almighty God, I will make one more effort: this time it is heaven or hell, life or death for me. For God's sake, for my own sake, I will change." He never drank another drop, he brought his children in, and he painted the roses again on the cheeks of his wife, and then went down again to the city of Pittsburg, where he was practicing his profession. When he read in the newspapers that Mr. Ingersoll was to speak, he wrote him a little note something like this:

"My Dear Old Friend:—I see that to-night you are to deliver a lecture against Christianity and the Bible. Perhaps you know some of my history since we parted; perhaps you know that I disgraced my home and family; perhaps you know I lost my character, and all that a man can hold dear in this world almost. You may know that I went down and down until I was a poor, despised outcast, and when I thought there was none to help and none to save, there came one in the name of Jesus, who told me of His power to help; of His loving kindness and His tender sympathy, and through the story of the Cross of Christ I turned to Him. I brought my wife back home, and gathered my children together again, and we are happy now, and I am doing what good I can.

"And now, old friend, would you stand to-night before the people of Pittsburg and tell them what you have to say against the religion that will come down to the lowest depths of hell, and find me and help me up and make my life happy and clothe my children and give me back my home and friends—will you tell them what you have to say against a religion like that?"

Mr. Ingersoll read that letter before his audience, and said: "Ladies and gentlemen, I have nothing to say against a religion that will do this for a man. I am here to talk about a religion that will do this for a man. I am here to talk about a religion that is being preached by the preachers."

You can find fault with the church, but let me say that there stands One supreme—and that is the character of the Son of God. His name shall be called Wonderful, because no man has ever dared to point his finger at the character of Christ and find any fault with Him.—Episcopal Recorder.

Conference of Theological Students.

To Students for the Ministry of all Denominations.

Dear Brethren:—The professors and students of Union Theological Seminary in Virginia extend to you a cordial invitation to attend the Biennial Eastern Conference of the American and Canadian Young Men's Christian Associations of the Theological Seminaries which is to be held at this institution, in Richmond, Va., on the 2nd, 3rd and 4th of December, 1904. The last conference at Princeton brought together a large number of delegates from about thirty seminaries of different denominations east of the Alleghany Mountains, and they testify with one accord not only to the spiritual uplift which they received personally from participation in the conference, but also to the increased efficiency of the organization for Christian work in their several institutions. It is hoped, and believed, that under the blessing of God, this year's conference will be no less fruitful of good to the delegates who attend and to the institutions which they represent.

The delegates will be our guests during the sessions of the conference. Arrangements have been made for lodging them in the Seminary buildings and serving their meals on the Seminary grounds, thus securing thorough commingling and acquaintanceship and promoting Christian fellowship which is one of the ends aimed at by the conference and also one of the surest means of effecting the other important objects contemplated in our organization.

We shall take pleasure in meeting as many of you as possible on your arrival at the railway station of Richmond on December 1st and 2nd, but, in case any of you should not find us there, please take any electric car going up town from any station, ask the conductor how to reach the intersection of First and Broad Streets, and transfer there to the Lakeside cars, which will bring you to the Seminary campus.

The program, so far as arranged, is as follows, though it may be subjected to some slight alterations before the actual opening of the conference:

Friday, December 2nd, 3.30 p. m.—Devotional Exercises in the Seminary Chapel.

Address of Welcome by the President of the Seminary.

Address by Mr. Robert E. Speer.

8.00 p. m.—Address: "The Spiritual Life of the Theological Student," by Rev. J. Ross Stevenson, D. D., pastor of Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, New York.

Address: "The Pastor as a Missionary," by Mr. John R. Mott.

Saturday, December 3rd, 9.00 a. m.—Devotional Exercises, Seminary Chapel. The remainder of the forenoon and afternoon will be occupied with four conferences, beginning, respectively, at 9.30 and 10.30 a. m., and 3.00 and 4.00 p. m.

8.00 p. m.—Address: Speaker not yet determined; probably Dr. D. Clay Lilley on Colored Evangelization.

Sunday, December 4th, 11.00 a. m.—Addresses in the city churches.

3.00 p. m.—Missionary Conference led by Mr. Harlan P. Beach.

Student Volunteer Conference.

Prayer Service.

8.15 p. m.—Address: Africa, by Rev. W. R. Hotchkiss.

Adoption of Policy.

Farewell.

In addition to the above program, we expect addresses from Rev. Floyd B. Thompkins, D. D., pastor of Philip Brooks' Church, Philadelphia, and Mr. Lester McLean.

There is promise of blessing in such addresses and conferences as those here indicated, and we trust that we may all come together in the spirit of prayer and with the expectancy of faith.

Fraternally yours,

W. W. MOORE,
T. C. JOHNSON,
W. E. HILL,
W. N. SHOLL,
R. H. McCASLIN,
H. H. HUDSON,
R. C. DEAL,
F. D. VIEHE,

For the Faculty and Students of Union Theological Seminary, Richmond, Va.

Just to be good, to keep life pure from degrading element, to make it constantly helpful in little ways to those who are touched by it, to keep one's spirit always sweet and avoid all manner of petty anger and irritability—that is, an ideal as noble as it is difficult.—Edward Howard Griggs.

Soul Food

And the lilies ever seemed
Like altars bright to heaven,
Where the angels knelt and dreamed.

* * *

It is only when to-morrow's burden is added to the burden of to-day that the weight is more than a man can bear.—Geo. MacDonald.

* * *

The kingdom of God, how glorious also in its aim! For this is nothing less than the full realization of the perfect will of the perfect God, so that the human become one with the divine. In that large and abundant life, full and complete, we shall live, yet not we, but Christ shall live in us.—Selected.

* * *

It is only a poor sort of happiness that could ever come by caring very much about our own pleasures. We can only have the highest happiness, such as goes along with being a great man, by having wide thoughts and much feeling for the rest of the world as well as ourselves.—George Eliot.

* * *

While we sit brooding over our troubles and the hardships of our lot, the great world goes tranquilly on, the infinite sky hangs over us, the everlasting order abides, and "God is where he was." Can we not forget or endure our pestering "insect miseries" for a little while in the presence of the eternal laws and eternal powers?—Charles G. Ames.

* * *

To those whose hope is in heaven, everything becomes a means of discipline,—an instrument of strengthening their cheerful acceptance of their Father's will. Their irksome tasks, privations, sickness, heaviness of heart, unkindness of others, and all the sorrows which their Father allots them in this world, are so many means of conforming them to their Saviour's image. Then doth everything which God doeth with them seem to them "very good," even because He doth it.—Rev. E. B. Pusey.

* * *

When we turn away from some duty or some fellow-creature, saying that our hearts are too sick and sore with some great yearning of our own, we may often sever the line on which a divine message was coming to us. We shut out the man, and we shut out the angel who had sent him on to the open door. . . . . There is a plan working in our lives; and if we keep our hearts quiet and our eyes open, it all "works together;" and, if we don't, it all fights together, and goes on fighting till it comes right, somehow, somewhere.—Annie Keary.

* * *

Many and many of these men whom we see plodding on in their dusty ways are traveling with visions in their souls. Nobody knows it but themselves and God. Once, years ago, they saw a light. They knew, if only for a moment, what companionships, what attainments, they were made for. That light has never faded. It is the soul of good things which they are doing in the world to-day. It makes them sure when other men think their faith is gone. It will be with them till the end, until they come to all it prophesies.—Phillips Brooks.

* * *

All formal religions are efforts to escape spirituality. It matters not what the form is—ritual, idols or doctrine, the essence is all the same—they are devices to escape spiritual worship. There is nothing a man will not do to evade spirituality. The supreme factor in arriving at spiritual knowledge is not theology, it is consecration.—Henry Drummond.

* * *

Life is a burden; bear it;
Life is a duty; dare it;
Life is a thorn crown; wear it;
Though it break your heart in twain;
Though the burden crush you down;
Close your lips, and hide your pain,
First the cross, and then, the crown.

—Father Ryan.

The Field

Conference Reports—A Word to the Preachers.

1. In making your report to the Annual Conference, please use the yellow slip, being careful to state thereon in plain figures all items of cash, checks, and receipts enclosed in the envelope with your Report.

2. Get checks on Raleigh, Wilmington, Richmond, Norfolk, Baltimore, New York, or Philadelphia wherever possible, and save the cost of exchange charged on local checks.

3. The total amount on the yellow slip and on outside of envelope should agree. Verify your figures before turning in your Report.

4. Original receipts and vouchers should be enclosed in every instance. The Board has no authority to allow credit for items not covered by cash, check, draft, or original receipt, or duplicate receipt in case original is lost or mislaid.

5. Have your Report ready the first day of Conference, and deposit same in the box promptly at the opening session. The sooner these Reports are in, the quicker the Joint Board can finish its labors and submit its Report to the Conference.

These plain and simple directions, if followed, will very much lessen the labors of the Joint Board, relieve the brethren of needless annoyance, save the Conference needless cost, and promote the convenience of all concerned.

Q. K. NIMOCKS,
Treasurer Joint Board Finance.

Men and Places.

Allow me space for a few words. I have been deprived of the pleasure of a people I could call mine to serve as pastor this year. No one but those who have had a similar experience knows how I have felt. The true preacher and pastor can never be satisfied in any other work than that of the ministry. My throat still gives me trouble. I hoped to be able to take a charge at the approaching Conference, but every time I attempt to preach I find I cannot hold out. What can I do? Oh, brethren and friends, pray for me that I may be restored and be made able to take my charge as in days past, for I am so anxious to do so. I have been in the bounds of Bethel Circuit several times this year, and preached a number of sermons to those I served last. It gives me pleasure to say that I also heard Rev. W. H. Kirton preach several sermons and he is a strong man, and is making full proof of his ministry. He is a transfer among us, but those whose lot it is to secure his services may be sure they have one of our best preachers. He has had a great deal of sickness in his family this year, but notwithstanding he has been kept at home much of his time, he informs me his collections are in sight.

I have also been in Mt. Olive and Tarboro, and hear the people speak well of their preachers.

It was my sad privilege to attend the funeral of our dear brother Jurney last Tuesday, and it was a scene to be long remembered when the church was filled to overflowing and the casket was laden with beautiful flowers in token of the high esteem in which that good man was held, and when the thirteen-year-old son of the deceased stood up, hand on casket, and said: "This is my father, the last words he spoke to me were: 'Nat, meet me in heaven,' and I intend by the grace of God to meet him." There was not a dry eye in the church.

I remained over, and Wednesday went out with Bro. F. E. Dixon to visit a sick brother, Bro. Dan Kornegay, who we found improving, though yet quite unwell, of typhoid fever, and in the afternoon I was pleased to preach to an appreciative audience which had assembled to engage in the protracted services which were being conducted by Brother Dixon at Smith's Chapel. Let me say that Brother Dixon is one of our preachers whose health has been poor and is not physically able to do so much work as many, but he is a man of as kindly a disposition as any man among us. I have learned to love him and his dear family this year, having been thrown with them often.

I have lived in Goldsboro this year, and of course have been with Brothers Bradshaw and Anderson right much. These are true men and faithful to their work. Brother Bradshaw's four years is up, and he will receive another charge at Conference. We are sorry to give him up.

Excuse the length of this scribble.

Yours fraternally,
J. J. BARKER.

Pelham Circuit.

Dear Dr. Ivey:—We are closing up the best year we have had in Conference. All of our churches have been graciously revived, and many souls have been converted and brought into the church.

The general state of the church is better than at any time since I have been here. A deep brotherly spirit pervades the whole work.

Bros. J. A. Dailey and M. D. Giles helped me in two meetings, and they both did some good preaching, and we feel they have sown seed that will yield an abundant harvest.

We have no better people in our Conference than we have in this work, and we feel that our lot has been cast in goodly land.

The graded school at this place, with Prof. J. C. Gibbs superintendent, has grown far beyond our expectations. The trustees have just added to the already accomplished faculty, Miss Eunice Gibbs, daughter of our beloved Presiding Elder, Dr. Gibbs.

These four Christian teachers are a great blessing to our community and to our church in every way.

We hope to bring everything up in full at Conference. Hope to see you soon.

Yours fraternally,
J. H. McCRACKEN.

Grimesland and Vanceboro Circuit.

We are now on the homestretch, and it will only be a few weeks before I shall hand in my report at Conference. In a great many respects I can truthfully say: "Well, Bishop, I have had a good year."

Brother Bundy, our beloved Presiding Elder, held my last Quarterly Conference, and dedicated our church at Shelmerdine, on November 6 and 7. And now I am holding a very interesting meeting here.

It is the last one for the year. In all I have held nine meetings, and had no minister to help me, except Brother Hornaday was with me at Ayden, and preached some very fine gospel sermons, indeed. All of our people there were perfectly delighted with him. Then Brother Powell, a worthy local preacher on this circuit, has rendered some valuable assistance. He is a true, good man.

There have been about 70 conversions, and 40 additions on profession of faith, and the names of 25 more to join.

All reports will show a considerable advance in finances for all objects this year. The people have been very kind and hospitable to us this year, and I can never forget them.

With best wishes to you and the Advocate, I remain,

Yours,
B. E. STANFIELD, P. C.

Presiding Elders Take Notice.

Will the Presiding Elders of the North Carolina Conference please to send me the names of the delegates and alternates from the various districts to the Annual Conference? Also the post-office address of each delegate and alternate.

Very truly yours,
W. L. CUNINGGIM.
Durham, N. C.

Trinity College Notes.

The Columbian and Heysperian Literary Societies have arranged to have an inter-society debate to be held in Craven Memorial Hall, December 17th. The Columbian Society will be represented by Messrs. S. B. Underwood and J. A. Morgan, and the Hesperian Society by Messrs. J. T. Jerome and C. R. Warren, alternate L. T. Singleton. The subject for debate is

Resolved, "That the franchise laws of the Southern States should not by their terms or methods of execution provide means for discrimination between the races, but that they should exclude from the right of suffrage all persons of both races who cannot read and write."

The preliminary debate to select representatives for the debate to be held with Randolph-Macon will be held Saturday evening, December 10th. Sixteen men have entered the contest.

An arrangement has been recently made between Watts Hospital and Trinity College and Trinity Park School whereby any student of the College and School, upon the payment of a fee of one dollar, may be guaranteed for one year all necessary hospital treatment in case of illness. This treatment consists of medicine, bed, board, and nurse. The physician is to be selected and paid by the student himself. The prescribed number of students has paid the fee, and the arrangement is now in effect. Watts Hospital, which will thus serve the College as an infirmary, is located on grounds adjoining Trinity Park. It was built and endowed by Mr. George W. Watts, a well known citizen of Durham, and the valuation of the hospital property and its endowment amounts to sixty thousand dollars. The institution is well equipped, and is provided with a staff of experienced nurses. The liberal policy of the Hospital trustees thus enables Trinity College to offer exceptional facilities for the proper care of the sick among the students.

President Kilgo and Prof. J. A. Bivens are in Charlotte attending the session of the Western North Carolina Conference, and also the meeting of the North Carolina Library Association. Dr. Kilgo and Professor Bivins are both on the program to speak before this organization.

Professor Durham is also attending the Conference in Charlotte.

Dr. Few has returned from New Orleans where he represented Trinity College at the meeting of the Association of Colleges and Preparatory Schools of the Southern States.

Note from Greenville.

Wednesday afternoon, November 9th, about 5 o'clock, quite a number of the ladies of the Methodist Church congregated in front of the home of their pastor. Presently, a cart loaded with numberous bundles and packages of all descriptions, with a colored man in charge, stopped in front of the parsonage gate. The waiting ladies quietly approached the cart, loaded themselves with bundles and packages from the cart, gave orders to the colored man to carry the heavy articles in, then they filed through the gate and into the parsonage dining-room, where they deposited their packages in great heaps on tables and floor. Then it was that the bewildered but fortunate pastor and his family woke up to the pleasant fact that the dear, good sisters of the church had planned and executed a first-class "pounding" without so much as a hint of their purpose reaching the parsonage in advance of them.

Since we came to Greenville, now almost a year ago, the people have been exceedingly kind to us. Almost every day some token of their appreciation has reached us, and now just before the Conference year comes to a close, the climax is reached, and our pantry is well supplied with almost every description of high grade groceries. We wish to assure every one who has shown us kindness that it is sincerely appreciated. Our deliberate opinion is, that Greenville is the most pleasant charge in the North Carolina Conference, hence we believe we will come back next year.

Rev. J. D. Bundy, our justly popular Presiding Elder, was with us last Sunday morning, and preached grandly. Our people are delighted with him.

Sincerely, J. A. HORNADAY.

The Family

At My Loom.

I'm tired, Master tired:
My loom is of fashion old, and long disused.
My thread but broken ends and brittle flax.
And yet, of this, oh, Master, must I weave
A fair, unblemished length of goodly cloth.
I sit alone in the gloom,
And drive the slow, unwilling shuttle endlessly,
For so Thou hast commanded me.
But oh, my Master, when Thou drawest forth
This pattern, wet with scalding tears,
And seeming dark and dull to me,
Wilt Thou not find it fair
And fit for Thy high uses—there?
I may not know; Thou dost not tell:
I only know that Thou hast set me here.
With darkened windows, fast-shut doors,
And bid me weave as but I may.
And so, alone, and sore afraid,
I send the shuttle swift across,
And back again, and on and on!
I see no rythmic warp,
No rimed woof of pattern fair,
I only know that I must weave.
Dear Lord, I weave therein my broken hopes,
My deep desire to know and do Thy will,
My passions pent within my breast
Like raging beasts confined close.
There gleams my youth, a golden thread
Soon spent, like dawn's recurring glow;
My riper years, so soon to fade;
And now with weary hand, and fainting heart
I weave the thin, gray thread of age,
Still in the dark and still alone.
I'm tired, Master; hearest Thou?
—Julia Neely Finch.

Smile

The young woman had been working in an effort to meet a trying situation. She was perplexed, and scarcely knew which way to turn. In her anxiety a friend of former years called at the office. Formal greetings were exchanged, and after a few moments the caller said:

"Miss Brown, will you do something for me?"

"Why, certainly, if I can," was the reply.

"Smile."

The worried look immediately left the face, and the humor of the situation was at once apparent, and it was also contagious. During the remainder of the day, when the duties were exacting and close application brought back the wrinkles, the request of that friend came again to mind—"Smile!"

I am not sure but this would be a capital motto to put over our desks. It would make the work easier, and certainly it would make people near by happier.

A young woman of my acquaintance went to room with an elderly couple, who at once nicknamed her "Sunshine." During all the time of her stay there, if doubts came up, or angry thoughts came into her mind, her beautiful nickname served to banish the clouds, and sunshine came back again. It was the contagion of cheerfulness which brightened the day for all round.

Over the desk of another friend of mine hangs this motto: "Don't Worry, But Work." And here is another cheerful worker, who always goes at her task with a bright face. Work is hard, but how much harder it is under a threatening cloud—and the clouds are not all in the heavens, either. Indeed, the most depressing ones are sometimes in our own faces. "Smile!"—Baptist Union.

The Old Farmer's View of It.

A few days ago we came across a story in an English paper which left its impression upon us. An old farmer came in from the country to make a short visit on his son, a recently graduated physician. The father had helped the boy through college and medical school at considerable sacrifice, and was naturally interested in knowing how he was succeeding.

"Well, how are you getting along, my boy?" he asked.

"Sorry to say, I'm not getting along at all," was the boy's disconsolate answer. "Business doesn't seem to be coming my way very fast, and it's hard work keeping up."

The old man's face fell, and it was evident that he was grievously disappointed. But that afternoon he went with his son to the free dispensary and clinic where the young man had an appointment. For several hours, an intensely interested spectator, the father watched the son as he prescribed for and operated upon a long line of waiting patients. When it was all over, he turned to his boy and remarked:

"I though you said that you didn't have anything to do?"

"O, well, this, of course; but it doesn't bring me in anything—there's no money in it."

"Well," said the old man, with enthusiasm glowing in all his features, "if I could do as much good in a month as you have been enabled to do here this afternoon in a few hours, I should count myself supremely happy. Never mind the money. You just keep right on doing as you are. I'll go back to the farm and make money enough for both of us."

We rather liked the old farmer's view of the thing, and his program might be taken up by many more who, lacking great opportunities of being philanthropic themselves, might help somebody else who is in a position to do it to "keep right on" without worrying.—Selected.

The Battleground of the Disagreeable.

A great many of us waste energy in consideration of whether we like or do not like our necessary work. By the time we have sputtered a bit over the question of taste, and roundly scolded Providence because we cannot do what we enjoy, the first freshness of ability to accomplish results is gone. It would be absurd, of course, to expect that any one should like what she dislikes merely because it has to be done, but liking or disliking is, after all, not the question. If the work is ours, the real question is to get it done as quickly and as well as possible. Many people think of the former, like the servant girl who never sweeps behind doors, and whose washed dishes bear traces of grease and egg; but real people take a pride in doing disagreeable tasks as they ought to be done. And they have their reward in character, if not always in immediate satisfaction. Nor does satisfaction always fail. The sense of mastery is not to be despised as an element of content. To lie down conqueror after a day of drudgery is something well worth while. In this connection we may quote the words of the hard-working sister in "Ellen Glasgow's Deliverance." "When it comes to doing a thing in this work," returned the little woman, removing a speck of dust from the cream with the point of the spoon, "I don't ask myself whether I like it or not, but what's the best way to get it done. I've spent sixty years doing things I wasn't fond of, and I don't reckon I'm any the less happy for having done 'em well."—Boston Congregationalist.

"Inasmuch as Ye Did it Not."

"Master, I have this day broken no law of the ten—have hurt no one. Is it enough?"

"Child, there stood one by thy side burdened with heavy tasks of lowly, earthly labor. For a little help, a little easing of the burden, he looked to thee. Thou hadst time and strength."

"Master, I did not see."

"Thine eyes were turned within. There was an ignorant one crying from out of his darkness, 'Will none teach me?' I have given thee knowledge."

"Master, I did not hear."

"Thine ear was dull. There came a guest to seek thy converse, a human friend in quest of fellowship. I marked thy sigh, thy frown. Why was thy heart not glad?"

"I was reading. I hate to be disturbed, to be called from great thoughts to trifling talk."

"The children would have had thee a few moments in their play. Without thee they went wrong—how far wrong thou wilt know. It is too late."

"Child's play? But I was searching for a hidden truth of spiritual import."

"Thou didst not turn aside to lift that lame one who had fallen by the way."

"I was in haste to do what I had planned. I meant to help him when I should return."

"Another lifted him. And shall I question further?"—Push.

Finding the Grain of Gold.

To discover what makes our neighbor disagreeable is easy enough: to realize his or her capacity to be vexatious or annoying does not require genius or inspiration. "The northeast side" of human nature is a sadly prevailing one, but it is a fascinating bit of psychological study to discover where the vulnerable side lies and see it grow yielding and able to give and receive pleasure through what we have done to thaw the ice and mellow the hard and sacrificed crust which kept back the living motion of the feathered and perhaps sorely wounded spirit hidden away below and within.

To be ready to say that we dislike those whom fortune makes our companions, and to shrug our shoulders and pass on, is common enough; to find out that the plain face can light up with keen intelligence, the cold, limp hand at last respond to our grasp with an affectionate pressure, and the emotionless voice say, "I have missed you more than I can say," is much like finding a grain of gold in some desert place, and discovering that it leads to a mine.

Just now my mind has been strongly awakened to the breadth and height of such possibilities, and it seems not an unreasonable addition to the category of our endless duties to our neighbors to cultivate this power to bring out the best there is in their natures and give them opportunity for exercise, to breathe on half-dying spirits such warmth of interest and expectation of good that they shall respond to our joy and their own resurrection from loneliness and doubt.—C., in New York Post.

Entranced.

The wind has hushed its whisperings in rapt forgetfulness,
The brook, reluctant, lingers there, as loath to move along
The dainty little ruby-throat neglects to preen her dress,
And all because a bobolink has lost himself in song!

Let us do as the Christ said: Give ourselves for others; deny ourselves that those who need may have a share in the good which has been given to us. Thus by giving we shall first know the joy of having, and we shall truly join in the chorus that sounded over Bethlehem on the first Christmas morning. Our deeds of help will have more music in them than cathedral chimes in the tower, or cathedral carols in the choir, and from humble homes and happy hearts will sound the antiphony of the angels' song. Bring holly and mistletoe, hemlock and cedar; festoon the walls with vines of smilax, soft and green and tender; scatter flowers; light tapers on Christmas trees; put greens on Christmas graves; fill house and street and earth and heaven with shouts of exultation!—Bishop Vincent.

Why should'st thou fill to-day with sorrow
About to-morrow,
My heart?
One watches all with care most true,
Doubt not that He will give thee too
Thy part.
—Paul Fleming.

Let us only be patient; and let God our Father teach His own lesson in His own way. Let us try to learn it well and learn it quickly; but do not let us fancy that He will ring the school bell and send us to play before our lesson is learned.—Kingsley.

Our Boys and Girls

Goldsboro N. C., Nov. 4, 1904.

Dear Advocate:—I am a little girl cleven years old. I stay at the Orphan's Home, and I like to stay here very well. I am in the fourth grade. I have two brothers here. My Sunday-school teacher is Miss Mea Raney, and I like her very well.

I will close, hoping to find my letter in print.

Your friend,
LULA PHILLIPS.

Tulls, N. C., Oct. 31, 1904.

Dear Advocate:—I am a little girl twelve years old. I go to Sunday-school when I can. My teacher's name is Mrs. Walker. Our Superintendent is Mr. Simmons. Our pastor is Rev. J. Y. Old. We all like him very much. I am going to school now. My teacher's name is Miss Annie Clark. My father takes the Advocate.

Now, I must close, with best wishes for the orphans.

NELLIE BAXTER.

Cerro Gordo, N. C., Nov. 4, 1904.

My Dear Advocate:—I'm a little girl nine years old, and go to school every day. I study spelling, reading, arithmetic, grammar, geography, history and physiology.

My teacher is named Mrs. Lee Powell, and my desk mate is Aliee Hawly. I go to Sunday-school regularly.

Mrs. Lewis teaches my class.

Our pastor is Rev. J. T. Draper. Our Presiding Elder is Mr. John. He was to see us a few weeks ago.

I will close.

Your friend,
AGNES GRIFFEN.

Red Springs, N. C., Oct. 28, 1904.

Dear Advocate:—This is my first letter to the Advocate. I am a little girl eleven years old. I like to read the little boys and girls letters very much.

My father and mother are both living.

I have a little sister. Her name is Polly. She is so sweet.

I will answer Eva Lassiter's question: Joseph had eleven brothers.

I will ask a question: Who tempted Jesus.

Your little friend,
SUSIE POWELL.

Goldsboro, N. C., Nov. 4, 1904.

Dear Advocate:—I will try to write a few lines to let you hear from me. I am thirteen years old. I stay at the orphan home in Goldsboro, and I like to stay there. It is a nice place, and I like the officers.

I am in the sixth grade. I like my teacher. Her name is Miss Florence Mayerberg. She is a nice teacher. My Sunday-school teacher is Mrs. Brinson.

I have two brothers and one sister here, and mamma has got one little sister with her.

I will close, hoping to find my letter in print.

Yours truly,
ELIZABETH MARKHAM.

Wilmington, N. C., Oct. 28, 1904.

Dear Advocate:—This is my first letter to the Advocate. Father takes the Advocate, and I enjoy reading the little girls and boys letters. I live in the country. I go to school every day. My teacher is Mr. E. S. Edwards, and I like him very much. We have preaching every first Sunday. Our preacher is Rev. Y. E. Wright. We all like him very much, and hope he will come back next year. We do not have a Sunday-school out here. I wish we did.

As this is my first letter I will not make it too long. I will close, hoping to see this in print.

Your unknown friend,
LOTTIE KERR.

Arapahoe, N. C., Nov. 6, 1904.

Dear Advocate:—I am a little girl twelve years old. I go to Sunday-school every Sunday that I can. My teacher's name is Mrs. R. Harrison. Our Superintendent is Uncle J. A. Johnson, and our pastor is Rev. F. S. Becton.

My mama is living but papa is dead. I have two brothers and four sisters. My mamma takes the Advocate, and I enjoy reading the little folks letters most. I will close by asking if any one knows the song of "Helping Just a Little," please put it in the Advocate.

With best wishes to the Orphanage. Your little friend,
BESSIE M. BAMDEN.

Middleburg, N. C.

Dear Advocate:—As my last letter escaped the waste basket, I will try to write again.

I go to Sunday-school every Sunday I can. My teacher is cousin Billie Rowland. I like him fine. He is such a good teacher. Our Bible class teacher is Mr. Crocker. He is also a fine teacher.

I live three miles from the church, so it isn't so I can be there every time when the roll is called.

I am going to Middleburg Graded School this year. I like it very well, but would like it much better if I didn't have two miles and a half to walk. My teacher is cousin Hattie Rowland. I like her fine.

Find inclosed 10 cents for the Orphanage.

Yours sincerely,
BERTHA A. PASCHALL.

Lumberton, N. C., Nov. 3, 1904.

Dear Advocate:—It is raining today, so I decided to write at last to the Advocate. The woods are so pretty here, especially in the spring and they are pretty in the autumn, too, but I like spring best because when I go flower hunting I am always sure to be rewarded with violets. But there are many fall flowers, too, such as Black-eyed Susies, Snakeroot flowers and many others. In spring my favorite place to walk in the woods is a wide path which is very grassy, and mossy. Where the path comes to an end there is positively a carpet of high moss, flowers and huckle berry bushes. Now is not that a contrast to the hot, dusty city, with its crowds of busy people? I have never lived in the city, and perhaps would feel different if I had, but it seems an advantage to live in the country. I went to school early in the winter last year, but am afraid I can't start till January this year. I go to Sunday-school almost every Sunday. My cousin was my teacher, but he has gone to college, so I have no regular teacher now. Our patsor's name is Mr. Paris, and our Superintendent is Mr. Pitman. At Sunday-school we get the Visitor, and I wrote a letter to that. It appeared, but I wrote another one, and I suppose it went where this is apt to go—to the waste basket. I have two little sisters, who are younger than myself. The youngest one has a kitten that she calls Moley, because it is slick like a mole. My brother and myself are always saying to her.

Mrs. Moley
You are sholey
Quite unholy.

I will close with best wishes to the Advocate and its readers.

ANNA LOIS BOONE.

P. S.—I am eleven years old.

Boy Philosophy.

An incident occurred in a city school-room where boys and girls, from ten to thirteen years old, were practicing gymnastics.

"Which will jump better, the boys or the girls?" I asked. The experiment proved skill on both sides.

"Which ought to jump better, the boy or the girl?" I questioned.

"The boy," was the prompt response.

"And why?" I continued.

"Because boys are always jumping. All their games are jumping games. Girls just sit in the house and read a book."

"Then tell me something that girls can do better than boys."

"They can cook," was the ready reply. "They can sew," came next.

A third boy, with freckled face and merry eyes, added demurely. "Two girls can stay mad at each other longer than two boys can."

The situation was interesting. The girls assented to the statement, and the boys, upon further questioning, explained in boy fashion.

"Well, you see how 'tis. Boys like to go with a lot, and a girl likes to go with one. When one girl gets mad with another girl, she goes off with her girl friend and talks it over and they keep talking it over and that makes it worse still, and then they don't speak to the girl that they're mad at, and the girls take sides and talk it over and keep it up: and sometimes they stay mad for weeks."

Being in pursuit of the boys' theory, I made no comment on choice of terms. The word "mad" was evidently understood by all parties.

"How is it that the boys make up so quickly?" I pursued.

"Well, you see, we said that boys like to play with a lot; and perhaps the two boys that are mad with each other are on the same side in a base ball game, and the captain says to 'em, 'You two fellows make up or you get out!] Then they make up. 'Or, maybe,' the speaker continued earnestly, 'the fellow you're mad at is on the base, and when you're running to the base you call to him to get out of the way; and then you have spoken and made up. Even if you have been figthing you have to shake hands when the fight is over.'

"Is this the rule of the game?" I asked gravely.

"Yes," the boys assented "Always."

"And do you learn, at the same time, not to show when you are vexed?"

"Well, boys learn pretty soon. They have to. Suppose you are walking down the street with some boys and one of them says to you, 'Is that your grandfather's collar you're wearing?' Another one says, 'How many years have you wore that hat?' and another says, 'Where are you going to put the next batch of freckles?' There isn't room for them now.' If you just laugh they will stop, but if you show that you're mad they keep on, and so you learn to laugh and not show when you are teased."

The replies were suggestive, to say the least I warmly recommend the girls to adopt the policy of the boys, thinking of the various committees and clubs in which the power to work a "lot" was demanded of women. How good it would be if the girl's training developed in her the power which the boy acquires! "You make up or you get out," says the boy captain, briefly. He recognizes that the success of the game depends upon co-operation and good fellowship. But so it is in other games in which the players have not learned this vital lesson. Is not our failure sometimes traceable to this very lack? The question is worth discussing.

The boys have given me food for meditation. I was grateful to them. One more question I asked, with my thought upon the school curriculum. The question was addressed to the boys and girls:

"If you had to select some one to live with, which would you choose, a person who was able to laugh when he was vexed, or the other one who never fails in arithmetic?"

The answer was unanimous, no contrary minds: Oh! the one who laughs when he is tested and doesn't show that he is mad."—Congregationalist.

No Yellow Specks,

No lumps of alkali, are left in the biscuit or cake when raised with Royal Baking Powder. The food is made light, sweet and wholesome. Royal should take the place of cream of tartar and soda and saleratus and sour milk in making all quickly risen food.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

TWO LETTERS THAT TELL THE TALE.

Williamston, N. C., March 1, 1904.
Mrs. Joe Person, Charlotte, N. C.

Dear Madam:—Has your Remedy ever been introduced in Davie County? Now, I have a friend there who needs your medicine, and if you are not too busy I want you to write to her about it, Mrs. ....., and try to induce her to use it. Nearly twelve month ago I was troubled with bilious colic and dumb chills, and also general weakness, when a friend induced me to try your Remedy. I used one-half dozen bottles, and a cure was the result. I do not mean it gave "temporary relief," but a permanent cure.

Yours truly,
J. F. CARTER.

Williamston, N. C., April 8, 1904.
Mrs. Joe Person:—Yours of recent date came duly to hand. In reply would say I have no objection to your publishing my letter, if you think it will help you in any way. Your Remedy is all right, and I wish for it a sale of a million bottles among suffering humanity, and if there is anything I can do to help bring that about, I shall consider the opportunity a privilege. Is there any argument against one's experience? Surely not. Well, your Remedy did for me what the M. D.'s and other medicines failed to do, so I can conscientiously recommend it, and will not hesitate to speak of its merits to my friends. Wishing for your success in your work, I am,

Respectfully yours,
J. F. CARTER.

The Methodist Publishing Company, St. Louis, Mo., will do exactly what they say. If you sell the magazines you will get a beautiful Bible, as offered in our paper this week.

Womans Foreign Missionary Society

Please send all communications for this Department to Mrs. B. F. Dixon, Raleigh, N. C.

Officers of the W. F. M. S. of the N, C. Conference, June, 1903-'04.

President—Mrs. Lucy A. Cunninggim, Greensboro, N. C
Vice-President—Mrs. R. A. Willis, Littleton, N. C.
Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. F. D. Swindell, Goldsboro, N. C.
Recording Secretary—Miss Blanche Fentress, Wilmington, N. C.
Treasurer—Mrs. B. B. Adams, Four Oaks, N. C.
Superintendent and Treasurer Juevnile Work—Mrs. L. M. Hendren, New Berne, N. C.

We hope our sisters will send us accounts of their Week of Prayer service.

Give unto the Lord the glory due unto His name: bring an offering and come unto His courts"—let this inspired passage from God's word be in your mind, dear sisters, as you attend your daily prayer service.

At the last meeting of the Woman's Board, the Secretary was instructed to prepare a card for the transfer of members from one auxiliary to another, to be used as a Church letter, or letter of introduction, when they remove to a new home. These cards are now ready, and may be obtained from the Secretary, Mrs. S. C. Trucheart, Nashville, Tenn.

The above was clipped from our Woman's Advocate, and we think it a good arrangement. Each Auxiliary should get a supply and use them when its members move from one place to another.

Raleigh District Meeting.

We are glad to give our readers an occount of this good meeting. It is an affliction indeed, when illness prevents attendance upon such an occasion. We congratulate our District Secretary, Mrs. R. H. Whitaker, upon her success.

The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Raleigh District recently held its annual meeting in Louisburg.

On the evening of the 28th of October the meeting was inaugurated by a splendid reception at the Methodist parsonage, given by the ladies of the Auxiliary to the visiting delegates.

This was a most elegant function, lasting from 8 to 11 o'clock, every moment of which time was greatly injoyed by the large company present.

The Society met Saturday morning, the 29th, in the Methodist church. The devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. L. E. Massey. Mrs. R. H. Whitaker, District Secretary, being in the chair.

The roll was called, and the following delegates responded: Central Auxiliary, Raleigh, Miss Bettie Ruth; Franklinton, Mrs. A. M. Person; Salem, Miss Lottie Barnes; Banks, Miss Pearl Floyd; Louisburg, Mrs. M. C. Pleasants; Edenton Street Young Woman's Auxiliary, Raleigh, Miss Celestia Smith; Oxford Bright Jewels, Misses Lillian Minor and Myrtle Shamberger; Franklinton Bright Jewels, Miss B. R. Staunton; Salem Bright Jewels, Miss Lottie Barnes; Louisburg Bright Jewels, Miss Josephine Parnell.

Miss Beckwith, of the Louisburg Female College, in a very graceful manner, made a beautiful address of welcome, which was most fittingly responded to by Mrs. A. M. Person, of Franklinton.

The District Secretary read her annual address, which was followed by reports from the delegates—all of which were very good, showing improvement upon those of last year.

The Franklinton Golden Link's delegate, finding at the last moment she could not attend the meeting, sent a very fine report. They will support a pupil in Miss Peseud's school in Brazil.

Four interesting papers were read by Mrs. R. R. Harris, Miss Bettie Ruth, Mrs. Person and Miss May Jones.

Some very interetsing talks were made with reference to the reading and study of missionary literature, and the advantage of circulating libraries in the Auxiliaries.

Miss Lottie Barnes, who is expecting to go as a missionary to South America, and who for three years has been in Moody's Training School, endeared herself to all present by her talk and prayer at the closing up of the meeting in the evening.

Rev. L. S. Massey, the pastor of the Louisburg church, preached an able and very inspiring sermon on Sunday morning to a large congregation.

At night, the crowning feature of the occasion was presented by Miss Mabel Davis, Lady Manager of the Louisburg Bright Jewels, in a program that was charming all the way through, consisting of fifteen numbers, every one of which, including the address of welcome by Miss Ada Mayo, and the response by Miss Lillian Minor, of Oxford, was bright and sparkling; indeed, there was nothing on the program that did not please the audience and intensify the ardor of the young missionaries.

Of course a collection came in its place, and ten dollars were raised.

At the close of the entertainment, Miss Barnes gave a very earnest and entertaining talk to the children, which was enjoyed by both old and young.

The Louisburg people did all they could to make the District Meeting a success, and they succeeded.

The next meeting will go to Bank's Chapel, Granville County.

When Chilled to the Bone
Painkiller (Perry Davis)
Is needed to prevent colds and to ward off Disease

This Fur Scarf, $7.50

RIVER MINK Scarf, lined with satin, three tails on each end. A splendid quality fur at a very little price. Muff to match it for $5.00. If, after receiving the fur, it doesn't suit you, return it to us in good condition and we'll refund the money. Write us for samples of Dress Goods.

Write for our new Catalogues of INFANTS' FURNISHINGS, LACE CURTAINS and CHRISTMAS BOOKS.

You'd better write for these things to-day.

We prepay charges on all orders of $5.00 and over.

Miller & Rhoads
Richmond, Va.

Saw Mills

1500 ft. 1 in. boards per hour with 16 H. P. is the record of our Light 2c ft. Saw Mills. Small Mills for farmers and Large Mills for lumbermen. Also Engines, Boilers, Shingle Mills Edgers, Grist Mills, etc. Write for Catalogue K Address Salem Iron Works, Winston-Salem, N. C.

When writing advertisers please mention this paper.

Woman's Home Mission Society

Please send all communications for this Department to Mrs. R. O. BURTON, Raleigh, N. C.

Officers of W. H. M. S. of the N. C. Conference.

President—Mrs. J. E. Underwood, Elizabeth City.
First Vice-President—Mrs. V. Royster, Raleigh.
Second Vice-President—Mrs. K. P. Black, Littleton.
Third Vice-President—Mrs. J. A. Spiers, Selma.
Recording Secretary—Mrs. C. P. Jerome, West Durham.
Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. S. H. Scott, New Bern
Treasurer—Mrs. E. L. Prince, Wilmington.
Superintendent of Supplies—Mrs. Ivan Proctor, Raleigh.
Superintendent of Literature and Press Work—Mrs. R. O. Burton.

Our Supply Department.

The eighteenth annual report gives the following statements regarding this most useful department: "This year 192 boxes have been sent to preachers, 373 to orphanages and 112 to mission schools, making a total of 683, valued at $19,339.18."

This department is growing in interest and favor under the wise management of our consecrated Superintendent, Mrs. J. H. Yarborough.

The above report does not include the boxes sent from our own Conference. Our Superintendent, Mrs. I. M. Proctor, reported twenty-nine boxes sent to our Methodist Orphanage, valued at $232.02. She stated that many of the boxes were not valued by the donors, thus making it impossible for her to do so correctly.

When we decided to take up this work for the Orphanage, we memorialized the Board to allow us to report it through the Supply Department. Many other Conferences have made the same arrangement.

We desire to ask the Auxiliaries to value their boxes—many are now sending winter clothing. Let the Corresponding Secretaries of the Auxiliaries write postals to our Superintendent at Raleigh, giving the values in plain figures, that she may make a correct report to our Conference Society and to the Board. The value of boxes should also be included in the reports to Conference Secretary and Conference Treasurer.

MRS. J. E. UNDERWOOD.

FURTHER EMPHASIS

I am glad of this reminder from our President, and urge the Corresponding Secretaries to read carefully and follow her instructions. There are two strong reasons for this, viz.: That our entire work may be known, and that our faithful Conference Superintendent of Supplies may be helped and encouraged in the fine work, of which we all know she may be called the inspiration in our Conference. Many of you must regret that the North Carolina Conference is left out in the record of this department because our Superintendent was unable to make a correct report.

I would, also, emphasize the fact that this Orphanage work is connectional, and, consequently, one of the regular channels through which our best efforts can be exercised. But is it necessary to say this? Our beloved Orphanage lies close to the hearts of us all, and we take delight in helping it.

OUR MOUNTAIN SCHOOL

Our President, ever alert and watchful of the highest interests of the Home Mission Society, sends, also, this clipping from the North Carolina Advocate, adding fervently: "Let us stand by Brevard!"

"We learn with pleasure of the good opening of the Brevard Industrial School. There are twenty-two girls in the home, which, with the teachers, are all that can be accommodated until the rooms on the fourth floor are furnished.

"There are seventeen dressers and seventeen washstands needed, and pillows and bed-clothes for seventeen beds. (They have the bedsteads, springs and mattresses.)

"If the Auxiliaries of the Home Mission Society will get up boxes of bed-clothes (barrels are better for packing), and even churches and Aid Societies where there are no Auxiliaries, they can do much in helping on this good work, and in helping others get a blessing themselves.

"Let all Methodists consider the needs of this worthy cause and lend a helping hand, and we will soon have the building finished and paid for. Now, this means you; please do something. Since last report: From Aberdeen Circuit, North Carolina Conference, $50. All contributions of money to be sent to Mrs. F. E. Ross, Greensboro, N. C. All barrels of supplies to be shipped to Prof. E. E. Bishop, Brevard, N. C."

MAY ALL METHODISTS TAKE THIS APPEAL TO HEART

Not only should every Home Mission woman hear and heed this, but we long to touch the ear and hold the heart of every Methodist in the State. I cannot say which will be the happier, the givers or the receivers, if these good gifts are speedily sent in. There cannot be a right-thinking person who does not rejoice in the establishment of this Christian school, so long and so sorely needed in our beautiful land of the sky—let us all rally to it and place it upon a solid and sure foundation.

NOT A SICK DAY SINCE.

I was taken severely sick with kidney trouble. I tried all sorts of medicines, none of which relieved me. One day I saw an ad. of your Electric Bitters and determined to try that. After taking a few doses I felt relieved, and soon thereafter was entirely cured, and have not seen a sick day since. Neighbors of mine have been cured of Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Liver and Kidney troubles and General Debility." This is what B. F. Bass, of Fremont, N. C., writes. Only 50 cents at all druggists.

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE NORTH CAROLINA CONFERENCE

THE Barnes Clothing Store

IN HENDERSON, N. C.,

Sends you Greeting. We expect you with us on November 30th, and extend an invitation to one and all to make our place of business your headquarters.

We have a fine assortment of

CLOTHING

AND GENTLEMEN'S FURNISHINGS . . .

of every kind. We are specially prepared to supply our preachers with clerical suits, and will favor them with bargains, if they will call to see us.

If you will send us your measure, and inform us what kind of suit you want, we will have it ready for you when you come to Conference. If we do not suit you it will cost you nothing. We will make it to your interest to give us a call, as we are making special arrangements to supply your needs at the lowest possible figure.

BARNES CLOTHING STORE,
HENDERSON, N. C.

CANCER
Permanent Cure Guaranteed, without knife, X-Ray, Arsenic or Acids; no inconvenience. Write for book.
Southern Cancer Sanatorium
1520 E. Monument St. Baltimore, Md.

Raleigh Christian Advocate.

ORGAN OF THE
North Carolina Conference, M. E. Church, South.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY AT No. 106 W. MARTIN STREET.

THOMAS N. IVEY, - - - - - - Editor.

Subscription Rates.—One year, $1.50; six months, 75 cents. Preachers of the North Carolina Conference who act as agents receive the paper free of charge. All other preachers, and widows of preachers, $1.00 a year.

Business.—Watch the label. It shows the date up to which the subscription has been paid. Change in label serves as a receipt. Regular receipt will be sent when requested. When the address is ordered changed, both old and new address must be given. Address all letters, and make all checks and money orders payable, to the Raleigh Advocate Co.

Manuscripts.—All matter for publication to be returned to the writer must be accompanied by proper postage. Matter for the Editor and matter for the printer must not be on the same sheet. Obituaries must not contain over 150 words, nor contain poetry. One cent a word will be charged for all obituary matter over 150 words.

Advertising.—The RALEIGH CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE is a fine advertising medium. Rates will be promptly furnished on application.

The World As We See It.

The storm of last Saturday and Sunday was in some respects more destructive to telegraph wires and traffic interests than was the great blizzard of 1888. The snowfall, while not heavy, was phenomenally early—the earliest that we remember in this latitude, with one exception, and that was the snow in Raleigh the last of October, 1903. In some places the sleet was very heavy, breaking telegraph wires in many places.

A very interesting and significant visit to North Carolina was that made by Senator Aldrich and other Northern gentlemen last week. They inspected Beaufort harbor with a view to determining the practicability of the Inland Waterway Scheme inaugurated and indomitably pressed by Congressman Small. The result of the visit is not known, but as Senator Aldrich is the Chairman of the Finance Committee of the United States Senate, it is the hope of many that the Inland Waterway project may become a reality. Mr. Howland, lessee of the A. and N. C. R. R., is very much interested in the development of Eastern North Carolina, and it is to him, that the State is indebted for the visit of Senator Aldrich.

J. Edward Addicks, of Delaware, has made himself notorious by his unblushing efforts to have himself elected to the United States Senate by any means, fair or foul. So corrupt has he been in the means employed that his name has become the synonym of all that is venal. He has disrupted his own party in Delaware. It is very fortunate that after the victory of the Republican party in Delaware, Addicks will hardly have enough strength to be elected. A deadlock is probable, and it is likely that the Democrats will unite with the Republicans in electing a good regular Republican to the Senate to succeed Senator Ball. Twenty-seven votes will be necessary to elect a United States Senator in Delaware. The next Legislature will stand as follows: Democrats, 21; Addicks Republicans, 22; Regular, or anti-Addicks Republicans, 9. The whole nation is interested in the results.

It is now known that General Kuroki, one of the ablest of the Japanese Generals, and the worthy hero of Liaoyang, was killed on October 5. The fact that the news is just now getting to the public illustrates the wonderful secretiveness of the Japanese. The news from Port Arthur for the last week has been very meagre. There is hardly any doubt that the city has practically fallen and is now in the hands of the Japanese. The latter are taking their time, and the fall of Port Arthur will be both dramatic and decisive. The two armies are still facing each other on the Shakhe river. Both positions are strongly fortified. The Baltic fleet is said to have reached Cape Verd. The war expenses of Japan so far are estimated at about $450,000,000. It is proposed to provide for the war by increased taxation, by retrenchment in administrative expenses, by the suspension of public works, and by loans.

Squire Bailes is in trouble. And who is Squire Bailes? He is a South Carolina Notary Public of York Count, who by varied, judicious, and extensive advertising had built up a matrimonial business which gave him a good living. Runaway couples hied themselves as instinctively to Squire Bailes as they did in the days of the famous blacksmith of Old England. But Squire Bailes is in trouble. Governor Heywood has revoked the commission of Squire Bailes as Notary Public. "Othello's occupation is gone." This reminds us of a good Baptist preacher who, in a legitimate way, had built up quite a reputation as a tier of matrimonial knots far from the presence of fathers and mothers. It was our misfortune to get some of his trade on a certain occasion. He was so disappointed that he directed his deacon who kept the hotel to send for him at any cost the next time a runaway couple to be married should strike the town. The deacon was a practical joker. The time came. The pastor was sent for. Breathless and excited he had proceeded far in the service before he looked at the face of the bride and groom. When he did look he saw two faces as black as the ace of spades. The preacher collapsed.

The national election is over. Theodore Roosevelt was elected by a majority in the electoral and popular vote unparalleled in the history of the nation. Mr. Roosevelt's popular majority is nearly 2,000,000,000, receiving nearly two-thirds of the electoral vote. Congress will have an unusually large Republican majority. The solid South is at last broken. Missouri, while electing a Democratic Governor, Mr. Folk, went Republican by a large majority. Wisconsin and Massachusetts elected Democratic Governors, but will give their electoral votes to Roosevelt and will help to swell the Republican majority in Congress. North Carolina elected the Democratic ticket by a reduced majority—probably 45,000. There will be a few more Republicans in the Legislature than were there two years ago. It is conceded that, taken all in all, the national Democratic party has received the most overwhelming defeat in its history. The Republicans were as much surprised at their majorities as were the Democrats. The latter are still dazed, and are hardly able as yet to project plans for the future. Among these plans will be one to nominate four years from now a man well known, aggressive, and standing for something radical. The American people will never elect an extemporized candidate, no matter how good a man he may be. They will never elect a man with a personality incapable of gripping the public heart. On abstract principles, it is good that the Solid South has been broken. The South's solidity—which means that the South is willing to swallow any candidate and any platform presented by a hidden hand in Washington or New York city—has become a national joke at the South's expense, and there are thousands of men down here who chafe under it.

A conference of fifteen or twenty representatives of various denominations, including one from each of the theological schools, called by Mr. John R. Mott, the leader of the evangelistic work of the Young Men's Christian Association in colleges, was held in Chicago last week to consider thep roblem of enlisting more students for the Christian ministry.

The new buildings of the Presbyterian Theological Seminary, at Louisville, have been completed and dedicated. The dining hall has been beautifully furnished, and will serve as a place for social gatherings for the Presbyterians of that city.

WILL YOU NOT REMEMBER?

(1) That the Raleigh Christian Advocate depends largely for its very existence on the amounts collected from you by the preachers and paid at Conference.

(2) That the preachers are straining every nerve to make at Conference this year such an Advocate exhibit as they have never made before.

(3) That they are hard-worked men and that you can assist them greatly by not waiting for them to approach you, but by handing them or sending them the amount you are due the Advocate either on past subscription or renewal. Do not wait for them.

(4) That we are hoping to hear at Conference from every subscriber who owes the Advocate anything or whose renewal is due.

Will you remember all this in a practical way and rejoice the "Old Raleigh at Conference? We believe that you will.

Attention!

Preachers, delegates, and others expecting to attend the North Carolina Conference at Henderson will read very carefully:

Reduced rates to the session of the Conference will be given over the A. C. L., S. A. L., Southern and Atlantic and North Carolina Railways under the following restrictions:

(1) Tickets will be sold from all points in the State, including Norfolk, Portsmouth, Suffolk, Boykins and Danville, Va.

(2) Tickets will be on sale as early as Monday, November 28th.

(3) Tickets will be sold to preachers, delegates and others officially connected with the Conference and their wives and families.

(4) Such persons buying tickets will be charged full first-class fare going, but be sure when you purchase the ticket to secure from the agent certificate of purchase filled out on the "standard form of certificate," which all agents are supplied with.

(5) When you reach the Conference deliver this certificate to the Secretary for his endorsement so that when you present the endorsed certificate to W. W. Morris, agent at Southern Railway station at Henderson, he will endorse your certificate so that you can get at the S. A. L. or Southern stations a return ticket at one-third the regular rate, plus twenty-five (25) cents, provided the first fare to Henderson was not less than seventy-five cents.

(6) At least fifty or more persons holding properly receipted certificates of the standard form must have been in attendance upon the Conference before the special reduced rate will be granted for return passage to any one.

(7) Tickets over the Norfolk and Southern and boat lines will be sold to Norfolk on the same conditions, except that you will not need to get a certificate from the agent when you purchase your ticket.

(8) Tickets returning from the seat of the Conference must be purchased not later than the 10th of December.

Please give special attention to these restrictions, as there will be no means by which your failure to do so may be corrected.

Very truly yours,

W. L. CUNINGGIM.
Secretary of N. C. Conference.
Durham, N. C., November 4, 1904.

The Presbyterian Synods of Tennessee and South Carolina have voted in favor of the proposed University in Nashville.

Methodist Mention

STATE.

Two weeks from today.

Those who so kindly sent us the issue of August 17, will please accept our thanks.

The memorial services this year will be unusually solemn. Death, the Reaper, keeps busy.

Bishop Candler will deliver an address at the missionary anniversary at Henderson. A treat is in store for those who hear.

Will the Annual Paradox face us at Henderson? Read the directions given by Bro. Q. K. Nimocks in this issue. Those reports. How carefully they should be made out!

Rev. J. E. Abernethy, of Waynesville, recently delivered a course of lectures before the students of Grant University at Athens, Tenn.

Rev. Euclid McWhorter made a visit to Mt. Olive last week, and did some preaching which is highly commended by the Mt. Olive Tribune.

The women of the South Georgia Conference Woman's Foreign Missionary Society are supporting sixteen missionaries in the foreign field.

Rev. L. S. Massey and wife, of Louisburg, spent a night and part of two days in Raleigh last week. They paid the Advocate a very pleasant call.

The reception given by Dr. and Mrs. W. H. Bays on last Friday evening was one of the most pleasant features of the Western North Carolina Conference.

Dr. J. F. Miller, of Goldsboro, President of the Raleigh Advocate Company, was in Raleigh on last Tuesday to attend the marriage of his son, Dr. R. B. Miller, to Miss Rosa Battle, of Raleigh.

Rev. A. W. Price writes that he is closing his year with fine results, and that he is doing all that he can for the Advocate. Of course. Fine results and work for the Advocate always go together.

Mr. W. L. Parsons delivered an excellent address to the Methodist Sunday-school, last Sunday night. His theme was the contest between the Prophets of Baal and the prophet Elijah to bring rain.—Richmond Headlight.

Rev. S. T. Moyle, P. C. Sanford Circuit, will preach the sermon at the dedication of Centre Church, Carthage Circuit, on the 25th inst. Rev. R. H. Broom, P. C., will dedicate Ingram Branch Church on Carthage Circuit on Sunday, November 27th.

The Mt. Airy News has the following to say of one who is among the valued correspondents of the "Old Raleigh": "Rev. F. L. Townsend closes his year's work here with the services here next Sunday morning. He requests his members to all be present on that occasion. There may be more brilliant men in the W. N. C. Conference than Mr. Townsend, but there are few men who are so well rounded in character, both educated in the books and the ways of men. He is a power for good wherever he may go."

The South Atlantic Quarterly for October contains a number of articles of more than usual interest. The table of contents is: "The Task of the Critic," by the Editor; "A Plea for Light," Carl Kelsey; "The Decline of Self-Ownership," Dr. Frank C. Woodard; "The Poetry of Bayard Taylor—An Appreciation," Edward Reinhold Rogers; "The Educational Significance of Modern Language Study in the Secondary Schools," Dr. John C. Ransmeier; "Massachusetts and the New England Confederation," Helen Henry Hodge; "A Costly Pension Law—Acts of June 27, 1890," William H. Glasson; "National Supervision of Negro Education," Carl Holliday; "A Revival of Interest in North Carolina History," by the Editor; "An Author's Fight for His Opinions," John Raper Ormond.

CONNECTIONAL.

The Mid Year meeting for Holston convenes at Asheville, N. C., this year.

The Alabama Methodist Orphanage received more than $1,200 as a result of the observance of Orphans' Home Day.

The New Orleans Picayune published the picture of Bishop Keener for that of Senator Hoar, the day after the death of the latter.

Work is progressing rapidly on the site of the new Publishing House. The Agents expect to get the foundation completed this year.

Bishop Galloway states that in spite of the war the past year has been by far the most successful in the history of our work in Japan.

The Baltimore Southern Methodits is only six months old, and has over 6,000 subscribers to its credit. This is something remarkable in Southern Methodism.

Mrs. J. B. Cobb, Field Secretary of the Woman's Board of Foreign Missions, left Nashville last Wednesday for a trip to Mexico to visit the enterprises of the Board in that country.

According to the Southern Christian Advocate, the Charleston Orphan Home has become the recipient of a donation of $100,000 in bonds—$86,000 city of Charleston 4 per cent bonds, and $14,000 city of Columbia bonds.

The second edition of "Great Revivals and the Great Republic," by Bishop Candler, is now passing through the press. The first edition has been exhausted in about four months, and the book seems to grow in popularity as it sells.

Representatives of the Canadian Methodist, Congregational and Presbyterian Churches, will meet in Toronto next month to discuss the matter of amalgamation and seek to frame a plan of action that will bring about their union.

We are sincerely glad to note a cheerful tone in our church papers with reference to the general situation and we are also glad that some if not all of them are increasing their subscription list, and also improving in their make up mechanical and moral. In some the improvement is quite noticeable, as in the case of the Arkansas Methodist, the Raleigh Christian Advocate and others.—St. Louis Christian Advocate.

A Request.

Preachers of the North Carolina Conference who have kindly taken some of my books to sell, or have collected from others who have bought from me, will please hand any money they have for me to Bro. D. H. Tuttle, who has kindly consented to receive it for me at Conference. And if they have books which they have not sold and which they think they cannot sell, they will please carry them to Henderson and deliver them to Brother Tuttle. By so doing they will greatly oblidge their friend,

JOHN R. BROOKS.
Reidsville, N. C., Nov. 7, 1904.

Lillington Circuit.

We have had profitable meetings. We had the help of Bro. D. McNeill, local elder, for two weeks, Bro. J. M. Culbreth one week, and Bro. J. W. Leak, of Rockingham, three weeks. About forty professed conversion. Several professed to be reclaimed. Eleven have joined our church. Others will. Many are yet unsaved. I beg the reader to pray that I may see many more saved.

A. D. BETTS.

Notice.

The Presiding Elders will please meet in Henderson on Tuesday evening, the 29th inst., at 7.30 p. m. The place of meeting will be designated on arrival.

W. H. MOORE.

Notice.

The class for admission on trial will please meet the Committee in the Methodist Church in Henderson at 3 o'clock p. m., Tuesday, November 29, 1904.

G. T. ADAMS, Chairman.

General Notes

The Congregational Church in the United States has eight women ministers.

The Wesleyan mission, in City Road, London, has grown from a modest chapel to buildings worth $1,000,000.

From October, 1903, to October, 1904, the trustees of the Peabody Educational fund expended in the South $80,000. Of this amount Georgia received $6,200.

By a vote of ninety-six to fifty-two the South Carolina Synod has agreed to the removal of Columbia Seminary to Atlanta, to be merged into the Atlanta University.

The Congregationalist says: "Cambridge, Mass., refuses to have as teacher in her public schools a man who was the guilty party where a divorce was secured for infidelity."

A Jewish yearbook just issued for the period from September 10, 1904, to September 29, 1905, the Jewish year 5665, contains statistics showing that the Hebrew population of the world is now 10,932,777.

The International Convention of the Disciples of Christ called together in St. Louis over ten thousand delegates. Nearly nine thousand of them participated in the observance of the Lord's Supper in the Coliseum.

The Church of the Holy Communion, of New York City, has connected with it an orphanage for babies, which is one of the few such institutions in the metropolis. A new building to cost $10,000 has been designed, and will be speedily erected.

Rev. Dr. John Watson, otherwise known as "Ian Maclaren," has intimated to the Sefton Park Presbyterian Church, Liverpool, England, that he will in September, 1905, resign his pastorate, which he will then have held for twenty-five years.

According to the Michigan Advocate, Dr. Thirkield, one of the connectional officers of the Methodist Episcopal Church, is of the opinion that prejudice against the negro is greater in the North today than at any time since their emancipation.

Special services have been held in old John Street Methodist Episcopal Church, in New York City, to commemorate the one hundred and thirty-sixth anniversary of the founding of Methodism in that city. Bishop Foss preached the sermon for the occasion. The original church, built by Philip Embury, stood on the site now occupied by the modern edifice.

The General Conference of the Protestant Methodists decided to submit to the Annual Conference the proposition to unite with the Primitive Methodists on the following basis of agreement—acceptance of all that is common in the Books of Discipline of the two churches, equal representation in church courts, and the adoption of the system of appointments in the primitive body. The Methodist Protestants have 184,000 members and the Primitive Methodists 7,000.

Our worthy State Treasurer, Hon. B. R. Lacy, who is sojourning awhile in Arizona, in the interest of his health, is setting a worthy example to all young and older men. The following is taken from the Arizona Bulletin of November 4: "The Presbyterian Church was crowded on last Sunday night with people eager to hear Hon. B. R. Lacy, whom The Bulletin had announced as the occupant of the pulpit. Many had heard and enjoyed him from the political platform and were anxious to hear him speak from the pulpit. They were not disappointed, for he delivered an excellent and a broad-minded sermon. He has no patience with 'buttoned up' religion. Mr. Lacy has gained the admiration of all our people, and has already become a great favorite as a public speaker."

NORTH CAROLINA
EPWORTH LEAGUE
DEVOTIONAL CHARITABLE CONFERENCE LITERARY EVANGELICAL

EDITED BY REV. H. B. ANDERSON.

No Trouble.

The Baltimore Methodist says the debts on the churches of that city are melting away under the warm stream of generosity that flows from the pockets of the lovers of the Lord.

There is never any trouble to be apprehended along the line of church finances among a people who love the Lord. But when you have a church full of worlding they spend their money for the things of the world—things they love—and look at you as oppressive tax-collectors whenever you ask them for a tithe of the amount they have spent selfishly for worldly things. A man who will spend five dollars on one spree, and refuse to pay one dollar for the cause that lies so near the Master's heart, if he cannot be made to see the error of his way and induced to amend his life, ought to be, with as little ceremony as possible, cast out of the synagogue. A man spends his money for the things he loves.

The Care of Young Converts.

The season or revival effort has just recently closed. Many may, perhaps, have joined the church. But we have not done our full duty by getting people converted (?) and into the church. Suppose a mother were to treat her new-born babe as we treat the babes in Christ? How many children do you suppose she would rear?

We should use every legitimate means to induce our converts to join our church. They are the fruits of our ministry, and we are entitled to them.

As Leaguers, who love the church, we should not only, by personal effort, labor for the conviction and conversion of those over whom we may exert an influence, but when once converted, we should strive to bring them into the church—our church. Our ministers often are lax at this point. They seem to think their work done when they have secured the conversion of the individual. Our people (as I have said once before in these columns), in their effort to be broad, have become latitudinarians, hence they neglect the very important matter of "stringing the fish."

The importance of the work of Epworthians at this point cannot be over-estimated. They can be eminently useful to the church of their choice in inducing the young converts to join our church. We have been too generous with the fruits of our labor. All along we have led other denominations. We rarely ever get members from the meetings of others, but there is scarcely ever a successful meeting held by our ministers that other churches do not "enter into their labors" and "reap the reward of their doings."

But this is not all. We have not done our duty when we have gotten the converts in our church. Here our work has been more sadly neglected than at either of the other points named. We forget that the new member is but a babe in spiritual things and must be nourished and developed into strong, useful men and women. The minister, of course, must do his part; he must feed them on food that is convenient for them. But as Leaguers who come into more frequent personal contact with them, see their needs and know their qualifications for work better than the minister, and are, therefore, better prepared, if we are what we ought to be, to nourish and develop them into works in the vineyard of the Lord.

Nothing so develops Christians as some definite work. Let us find out the aptitude of the converts and assign them to that for which they are qualified, and advance them to new fields as they become filled for other spheres of duty and privilege. Work is the secret of growth. We have let thousands of our young church members die because we have given them nothing to accomplish for the Master.

Let the Leagues take charge of all young converts and patiently train and develop them into intelligent workers in the church of Jesus Christ. Put them into immediate contact with good companionable associates: the church papers; some good, helpful books; and, above all, interest them in the study of the Bible. Thus we shall soon have robust and stalwart Christians who, in turn, will take their places as workers.

A Good League.

The Brookwood (Ala.) League, though a small one, may justly lay claim to the appellation of a "good League."

With a membership of only twenty-five, fifteen are taking the institute studies, sixteen are pursuing the reading course and twelve subscribe to the Epworth Era. Its special work this year is a contribution of twenty dollars to Cuban missions.

Notes.

Have you ever noticed how much of Christ's life was spent in doing kind things.

* * *

Speaking of entire sanctification—who has attained unto it more thoroughly than one who has been called into the ministry of intercession, and who is daily making "supplication, prayers and intercession, with thanksgiving, for all men?"

* * *

The Era editors and League column editors of other Advocates scan the League columns of the "Old Raleigh" for Chapter news. Of late, there has been a dearth of news from our Chapters and, of course, it has been with difficulty that other editors have filled their columns, and the New Orleans League editor has been forced out of business and has "shut up shop." Why are our Chapter secretaries so careless about sending us items of interest? They surely are not conversant with the above facts, or they would be more careful to send us news of what their Chapters are doing. Lest the Era itself should suffer from your neglect, send us some news at once.

* * *

What have you done toward the support of the League missionary? Be sure the Leagues of North Carolina Conference will have a representative in the foreign field next year. Have you given anything to his support?

That Racking Cough Positively Cured by Allen's Lung Balsam

A RUNAWAY BICYCLE

Terminated with an ugly cut on the leg of J. B. Orner, Franklin Grove, Ill. It developed a stubborn ulcer unyielding to doctors and remedies for four years. Then Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured. It's just as good for Burns, Scalds, Skin Eruptions and Piles. Twenty-five cents at all druggists.

There is no success in all this world which is so to be dreaded as the success of getting away from God's purpose for us.—Robert E. Speer.

He who would be a great soul in the future must be a great soul now. —R. W. Emerson.

WRIGLEY ENGRAVING COMPANY
ENGRAVERS ELECTROTYPERS STEREOTYPERS
COPPER, HALF TONE AND ZINC ETCHINGS
ATLANTA, GA.

DON'T

give your child old, greasy Castor Oil. Give CAS-TO-RINE. Tastes as good as maple syrup. Fifteen cents per bottle at all dealers.

A PARODY.

On to the Golden Gate
In comfort all the way
Let any one gainsay:
Burn oil to keep you clean
Unhealthy smoke
Reminds you no more,
Nor the cinders in your eye galore,
Exhaust your patience and pleasant mien.
Remember the
UNION PACIFIC to all points
Louisiana, Texas, Mexico and California.

Special rates to Louisiana, Texas, New Mexico and Arizona in November and December.

Information cheerfully given.

J. F. VAN RENSSLAER, Gen. Agent
13 Peachtree St., Atlanta, Ga.

WORLD'S FAIR RATES

VIA

Seaboard Air Line Railway

TO ST. LOUIS, MO., AND RETURN.

On account of the World's Fair, St. Louis, Mo., the Seaboard Air Line Railway, in connection with the C. & O. Route via Richmond and the N. C. & St. L. Route via Atlanta, will sell round trip tickets to St. Louis, Mo., at greatly reduced rates from all stations.

Rates from principal points as follows:

	Season Tickets	60 Day Tickets	15 Day Tickets
Charlotte via Atlanta	$36.10	$30.10	$24.65
Durham via Richmond	34.10	28.40	23.30
Durham via Atlanta	38.75	32.30	26.30
Henderson via Richmond	34.10	28.40	23.30
Henderson via Atlanta	38.75	32.30	26.30
Maxton via Atlanta	38.65	32.25	26.25
Raleigh via Richmond	35.60	29.90	24.80
Raleigh via Atlanta	38.75	32.30	26.30
Hamlet via Richmond	37.60	31.90	26.25
Hamlet via Atlanta	37.60	31.90	26.25
Wilmington via Richmond	38.65	32.25	26.25
Wilmington via Atlanta	38.65	32.25	26.25

LIMIT OF TICKETS—SEASON TICKETS.

Good to leave St. Louis up to December 15, 1904, will be sold daily commencing April 25th.

SIXTY DAY TICKETS.

Good to leave St. Louis up to and including 60 days from date of sale. Will be sold daily commencing April 25th.

FIFTEEN DAY TICKETS.

Good to return up to and including 15 days from date of sale, commencing April 25th, and continuing during the Exposition.

COACH EXCURSION TICKETS.

On May 9th and 23rd, 10-day coach excursion tickets will be sold at very low rates from Raleigh $18.50 via Richmond and $20.80 via Atlanta. Tickets not good in Parlor Sleeping Cars. Tickets good to leave St. Louis including ten days from date of sale.

MILITARY COMPANIES.

Special low rates for Military Companies and Bands.

Quickest schedule, direct routes, first-class coaches and Pullman Sleeping and Dining Car Service.

For further information, call on or address us. Same will be cheerfully furnished.

C. H. GATTIS, T. P. A., Raleigh, N. C.
H. A. MORSON, C. P. & T. A., Raleigh, N. C.

Sunday School

Lesson for November 20, 1904.

Isaiah's Message to Judah.

(Isaiah 1:1-9, 16-20.)

Golden Text: Cease to do evil; learn to do well. (Isa. 1:16, 17.)

In order to a thorough understanding of this lesson, the historical situation of both Judah and Israel should be studied. This is portrayed in 2 Chronicles, chaps. 26, 27 and 28. Light is also thrown upon the prevailing conditions in 2 Kings 14: 21-26 and 15:1-9.

The occasion upon which Isaiah uttered the words which have been selected for our study was at the time of some great invasion of Judah either by Syria or Assyria. This invasion followed a season of great prosperity upon the part of both the northern and the southern kingdoms, and the blow to Judah was as severe as it was unexpected.

The Prophet Isaiah.—Isaiah was the son of Amoz (not to be confounded with the prophet Amos). He prophesied in the regins of Uzziah (also called Azariah), Jotham, Ahaz and Hezekiah, kings of Judah. The sixth chapter of Isaiah gives a striking account of his call to the prophetic office, although some are inclined to think that this followed his actual induction into the role of a prophet and was designed rather to deepen his spiritual life than to mark the beginning of his prophetic career. Isiah lived in Jerusalem. Jewish tradition affirms that he was martyred by Manassch, his body being sawn asunder, and some have supposed that Hebrews 11:37 refers to the manner of his death.

A Sinful Nation.—The picture of the moral condition of the people of Judah, which is given us in the opening verses of Isaiah's prophecy, is one of unrelieved darkness. They are described, as a sinful nation, a people laden with iniquity, a seed of evil-doers, and children that deal corruptly. The whole body is said to be unsound. From the sole of the foot even unto the head there is nothing but wounds and bruises and putrifying sores.

The reason for this moral unsoundness is found to some extent at least in the national conquests which had been made by Uzziah. The people had become intoxicated by success and the rich plunder secured from their beaten enemies had been a source of great demoralization.

A Desolate Country.—National impiety was soon followed by national disaster. The Syrians had made incursions into Judah and carried great numbers of captives to Damascus. Pekah, the king of Israel, joined with the Syrians in the attack upon Judah. On the south the Philistines had invaded the land, while Tiglath-pileser, the Assyrian usurper, had likewise made incursions into the land of Judah.

A vivid picture is given by Isaiah of the condition of the land. He says to the people, "Your country is desolate, your cities burned with fire; your land, strangers devour it in your presence, and it is desolate. . . . and the daughter of Zion is left as a cottage in a vineyard, as a lodge in a garden of cucumbers, as a besieged city."

A Gracious Invitation.—Isaiah's counsel to his people under the above conditions is well worthy of note. He does not advise the raising of larger armies, an increase of armament or any other military measures. He presents the call of God to a life of righteousness. He urges that deeds of kindness and of mercy replace the sinful doings of the past. Finally he utters those words of gracious invitation, which have ever sounded sweetly in the ears of all humanity: "Come now, and let us reason together, saith the Lord: though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool."

The Present Application.—Isaiah's mesage to Judah is also a message for our own times. All around us there are people sunk in iniquities as dark as those of Isaiah's day. Let us present to all the gracious invitation to repentance which fell from the lips of the prophet, and let us take to ourselves the injunction, "Cease to do evil: learn to do well."

Home Courtesies.

In the close relations of members of the same household and the constant contact through long association, there is apt to be a lack of the friendly greetings and delicate attentions which are given to visitors and strangers in the household. Children are commonly not trained to sweet courtesies in their treatment of parents and one another. Husband and wife do not preserve their first gracious care of each other. But thoughtful and loving little services sweeten home life and pour the oil of joy over daily experiences. When a husband or son is prompt and helpful in placing her chair for her at table, what woman does not feel happier? An act of courtesy cultivates in its performer more appreciation and attachment. The spirit which prompts little attentions and the habit which preserves them will banish hard feelings, sharp words and alienations that naturally and easily come in times of difference of judgment or conflict of interest.—The Watchman.

For Asthma use CHENEY'S EXPECTORANT.

CHRISTMAS SERVICES and Cantatas for the S. S. and Church Choir.
CHRISTMAS HOSANNAS—CHRISTMAS BELLS.
Two new services for the S. S. containing new features not found in others. 5c per doz. Enclose 10c for samples.
FREE A Catalogue describing 20 Cantatas for the S. S. and Choir, also specimen pages.
GEO. F. BOSCHE & CO. | Chicago, 56 Michigan Ave. | New York, 22 N. William St.

RELIABLE ORGANS $32 RELIABLE PIANOS $173
ONE CENT INVESTED IN A POSTAL CARD AND MAILED TO ME WILL TELL YOU ALL ABOUT THEM.
CIRCULARS FREE. H. W. ALLEGER, ESTABLISHED 30 YRS. WASHINGTON, N. J.

Special Offer
Christmas Music.

This Depository has just received a fine assortment of Christmas services, and until November 20th, will upon receipt of 10c in stamps, send postpaid to any one five of these attractive services as samples. These services are very tastefully gotten up and nearly all contain attractive recitations, which are worth double the money whether you use the music or not.

The regular price of these services is 5c per copy. This offer is good until Nov. 20th only; after that services will be sent at 5c per copy postpaid. Do not ask for free samples, but send us 10c at once and receive five of the most attractive samples ever offered. Address all orders to

Southern Methodist Book Depository,
STAUNTON, VA.

CHRONIC SORES

Wheeling, W. Va., May 28, 1903.

Some years ago while at work, I fell over a truck and severely injured both of my shins. My blood became poisoned as a result, and the doctor told me I would have running sores for life, and that if they were healed up the result would be fatal. Under this discouraging report I left off their treatment and resorted to the use of S. S. S. Its effects were prompt and gratifying. It took only a short while for the medicine to entirely cure up the sores, and I am not dead as the doctors intimated, nor have the sores ever broke out again. Some 12 years have elapsed since what I have described occurred. Having been so signally benefitted by its use I can heartily recommend it as the one great blood purifier.

JOHN W. FUNDIS.
Care Schmulback Brewing Co.

Chronic sores start often from a pimple, scratch, bruise or boil, and while salves, washes and powders are beneficial, the unhealthy matter in the blood must be driven out or the sore will continue to eat and spread. S. S. S. reaches these old sores through the blood, removes all impurities and poisons, builds up the entire system and strengthens the circulation. S. S. S. is a blood purifier and tonic combined. Contains no mineral whatever but is guaranteed purely vegetable. If you have an old sore write us and our physicians will advise without charge. Book on diseases of the Blood free.

SSS

The Swift Specific Company, Atlanta, Ga.

XANTHINE HAIR RESTORATIVE.

Discovered by Prof. Hertz, a noted German Chemist.
Never fails to restore the natural color to any gray hair. Prevents dandruff and promotes growth. Price $1.00 per bottle.

TRY THE XANTHINE DYSPEPSIA TABLETS

and you will find them superior to anything you have ever used. Price 50 cts. per box. We pay charges on all orders addressed to XANTHINE CO., Richmond, Va.

Write us for circulars.

Southern Girl SHOES.

THE BEST SHOE IN AMERICA FOR $2.00

TAKE NO SUBSTITUTE

IF YOUR DEALER DOES NOT CARRY THEM, A POSTAL CARD TO US WILL TELL YOU WHERE YOU CAN GET THEM.

CRADDOCK-TERRY CO.
LEADING SHOE MANUFACTURERS OF THE SOUTH.
LYNCHBURG — VA.

WOOL.

If you have wool to sell for cash, to exchange for goods, or to be manufactured, ship it to the CHATHAM MANUFACTURING COMPANY, ELKIN, N. C., and you will not regret it. They pay the highest market price and make the best goods you can get. Their blankets at all the leading expositions have been awarded GOLD MEDALS as the finest made in America.

WRITE THEM FOR SAMPLES.

A beautiful Bible in reach of all

NO MONEY NEEDED

All you need is to send to us for 12 copies of THE AMERICAN ILLUSTRATED METHODIST MAGAZINE. Sell them to friends at price of 10c a copy, return the $1.20 collected, and we will send you by return mail, absolutely free, our beautiful Holman Teachers' Bible, bound in morocco, helps, maps, 32 full page illustrations, 4000 questions and answers, on Old and New Testaments. You will be delighted with it, as all our customers are.

Our magazine was never more attractive and popular; it sells quickly. Pastors and S. S. Teachers may order Bible for examination to be returned at our expense if not earned. 10c at once and receive five of the most attractive samples ever offered. Address all orders to

THE METHODIST PUB. CO.
112 Locust St., St. Louis, Mo.

H. STEINMETZ.
FLORIST.

Cut Flowers, Designs. Plants of all kinds.

PHONE 213. RALEIGH, N. C.

Raleigh Marble Works

Monuments

Ship Monumental work to all parts of the State. Delivered to your depot at same price as at shop. Special attention paid to finish and lettering.

Only Best of Stock Used.

Write for new catalogue.

COOPER BROS., Proprietors,
RALEIGH, N. C.

Raleigh and Cape Fear Railroad

TIME TABLE.

Effect 12:01 A. M., Sunday, October 9, 1904.

SOUTH BOUND TRAINS. Daily, ex. S. Second-Class	First-Class	STATIONS.	NOR. BOUND TRAINS. Daily, ex. S. First-Class	Second-Class
101	105		104	102
A. M.	P. M.	Lv.	A. M.	P. M.
7 20	4 15	..... Raleigh ..... Ar.	9 45	5 35
7 35	4 25	S..... Carateigh Mills	9 35	5 20
7 45	4 80	F..... *Sylvania	9 20	5 03
7 54	4 39	F..... † Barnes	9 10	4 57
8 00	4 45	F..... Hobby	9 11	4 47
8 15	4 52	M..... McCULLERS	9 10	4 02
8 25	4 56	F..... Banks	8 58	4 25
8 30	4 59	F..... Austin	8 55	4 21
8 50	5 07	S..... † Willow Springs	8 40	4 15
8 50	5 07	M..... † JOHNSON MILL	8 40	4 03
9 05	5 15	P..... † Cardenas	8 38	4 00
9 15	5 17	S..... C. F. & N. Junction	8 33	3 55
9 20	5 22	S..... † Fuquay Springs	8 30	3 52
9 35	5 26	S..... † Buckhorn	8 20	3 38
9 40	5 31	F..... Rawin	8 17	3 20
9 45	5 30	F..... † Chalybeate	8 10	3 09
10 00	5 45	S..... Bradley	8 00	3 01
10 08	5 50	S..... * Smith Mill	7 55	2 55
10 15	6 00	F..... Lillington	7 45	2 40
10 55	6 10	..... Ar. ..... Lv.

JOHN A. MILLS,
President and Gen. Manager.

NORTH CAROLINA ELECTION RESULTS.

I.—The Legislature.

The North Carolina election last week resulted in a majority of about 45,000 for the Democratic State ticket; and of the ten Congressmen, all are Democrats save E. Spencer Blackburn, the Republican candidate who seems to have been elected in the Eighth District. The Democratic majority in the Legislature will be about the same as two years ago. Says the Raleigh News and Observer:

"With but a few counties and Senatorial districts not yet decided, the composition of the two Houses of the General Assembly of 1905 is known.

"There will be but a small change from the vote in the last General Assembly. In the Senate there are forty-three Democrats, five Republicans, and the Thirty-fourth District in doubt. If it sends Democrats, as it did last session, and this is the indication, there will be forty-five Democrats and five Republicans. In the House there are ninety-seven Democrats, twenty Republicans, with three counties in doubt, two of these returning Democrats the last session and one a Republican, the counties being Brunswick, Graham and Macon."

II.—Chairman Simmons' Claims.

Senator Simmons yesterday, talking of the result as it would affect the next Legislature, said that without doubt the Democrats would have the same majority they had two years ago in the Lower House—seventy-eight—there being apparently twenty-one Republicans elected out of 120. "We carried," said he, "nine of the thirteen counties of the Tenth Congressional District—McDowell, Rutherford, Buncombe, Haywood, Transylvania, Clay, Macon, Graham and probably Jackson. We lost Polk, but that is the only county the Republicans have carried that they did not carry two years ago in the Tenth, while we have carried Clay, Macon and McDowell that we did not carry in 1902. We have carried Transylvania, too, and Yancey, that elected a Democrat by only seven majority two years ago, seems to have given Mr. Byrd a majority of 200 or more. In the Eighth we have lost two—Stanly and Caldwell. That is the only change there. In the east we seem to have lost Brunswick.

"As to the Senate, up to the Twenty-eighth District, we do not lose a man. They get the Senator from that district, Stokes and Surry. They also get the Twenty-ninth, Yadkin, Davie and Wilkes. We get the Thirtieth, Thirty-first, Thirty-second, and Thirty-third. I think they have elected the two Senators from the Thirty-fourth—Alexander, Caldwell, Burke and McDowell—although we may have one of the two. They have carried the Thirty-fifth—Alleghany, Ashe and Watauga, and also the Thirty-sixth, Madison, Mitchell and Yancey. We carry the Thirty-seventh and Thirty-eighth. The Thirty-ninth is very close. They carried it before by about 225. I think we have it. That is composed of Macon, Clay, Graham and Cherokee.

"The Republicans certainly have not over seven Senators at best, and I don't think they have over five. Last time they had six."—Raleigh Post.

III.—Chairman Rollins' Statement.

"We have made heavy gains in every county in North Carolina, and we have every reason to feel gratified," said Chairman Rollins of the Republican State Executive Committee in reply to inquiry by a Charlotte Observer reporter last week. "Four years ago Aycock carried the State by 60,354 majority, two years ago Boddingfield carried the State by 67,631 majority, while in this election we reduced the majority to about 35,000. In other words, we succeeded in cutting down the Democratic vote over 32,600, while the Republicans have increased their vote from 68,209 two years ago to about 90,000 in this election. Two years hence we propose to carry North Carolina, and we are going to begin organizing now for that purpose."

"How many members have you elected to the General Assembly?"

"We have elected thirty members, which is an increase of nine over two years ago, and there are fifteen other counties that are Democratic by less than 300 majority which should have gone Republican. Yes, Judge Ewart is defeated by 1,000 majority. We made a strong, aggressive fight in this district, but the odds were too much against us. I have just received a telegram stating that Mr. Blackburn has been elected to Congress from the Eighth District by over 1,000 majority. He made an unprecedented fight and won a splendid victory."

"How many negroes voted in this election?"

"Very few; in fact, the colored people took but tlittle interest in the campaign, and I don't think 1,000 voted in the State, and of those that did vote more than one-half of them voted the Democratic ticket."

IV.—Officers Elected and Other Notes.

The Democratic State ticket elected Tuesday is as follows:

Governor—Robert B. Glenn.

Lieutenant-Governor—Francis D. Winston.

Secretary of State—J. Bryan Grimes.

Auditor—B. F. Dixon.

Treasurer—B. R. Lacy.

Attorney-General—Robt. D. Gilmer.

Superintendent Public Instruction—J. Y. Joyner.

Commissioner of Labor and Printing—H. B. Varner.

Corporation Commissioner—S. L. Rogers.

Associate Justices Supreme Court—W. A. Hoke and Geo. H. Brown, Jr.

Judge Superior Court—First District—Geo. W. Ward.

Following the the new Congressmen-elect:

First District—John H. Small.
Second District—Claude Kitchin.
Thir District—Charles R. Thomas.
Fourth District—Edward W. Pou.
Fifth District—W. W. Kitchin.
Sixth District—Gibert B. Patterson.
Seventh—Robert N. Page.
Eighth District—E. S. Blackburn.
Ninth District—E. Y. Webb.
Tenth District—J. M. Gudger, Jr.

The surprise of the camraign was a Republican majority of 75 to 100 in Stanly. For years and years that county has been reliably Democratic by 500 to 600.

The Tenth Congressional District, the only one except the Eighth in which there was any doubt, appears to have given Gudger, Democrat, 1,000 majority or more.

The Democratic majority in New Hanover is about 1,200. In Brunswick the Democrats were split over the Watts law, but all the nominees were elected, except Curtis for the House, who was defeated by Taylor, Republican, and McKeithan, Democrat, for treasurer, who was defeated by Stanfield, Republican.

A man named Newman, at Mills Springs, Polk County, Tuesday afternoon, shot and killed his brother-in-law, named Holbert, as the result of a drunken quarrel. Newman and Holbert quarreled, whereupon Newman left his companion, and, going to his home, got a shotgun.

Governor Aycock has appointed Jas. J. Webb, of Clevland County, Judge of the Twelfth District to succeed Judge W. A. Hoke, who resigned on account of his nomination and election to the Supreme Court bench, and he appoints Mr. Heriot Clarkson, of Charlotte, solicitor, to fill the vacancy made by the appointment of Mr. Webb as judge.

Two Democratic election judges at Goldfield, Col., were killed by a Republican deputy sheriff, who had been ordered to leave the polling place, and Democratic election officials, including a woman, were attacked and beaten by Peabody deputies.

Analysis of the returns shows that the sweeping Republican victory in Indiana is largely due to Silver Democrats, who knifed Parker. For every Gold Democrat who returned to the fold about ten Silver Democrats voted for Roosevelt.

The preliminary estimate of average yield per acre of tobacco is 819 pounds, as compared with the final estimate of 786.3 pounds in 1903, 797.3 pounds in 1902, and a six-year average of 730.7. The average as to quality is 89.5 per cent as compared with 85.9 per cent one year ago.

Some profess to believe that the near future may witness contest for supremacy within the Democratic organization, the principals in which contest will be Mr. Bryan and Mr. Parker, both defeated candidates for the Presidency.

Judge Parker says he is going to return to the law business.

DISASTROUS WRECKS.

Carelessness is responsible for many a railway wreck and the same causes are making human wrecks of sufferers from Throat and Lung troubles. But since the advent of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, even the worst cases can be cured, and hopeless resignation is no longer necessary. Mrs. Lois Cragg, of Dorchester, Mass., is one of many whose life was saved by Dr. King's New Discovery. This great remedy is guaranteed for all Throat and Lung diseases by all druggists. Price 50 cents and $1.00. Trial bottles free.

The Christmas Delineator.

The December Delineator, with its message of good cheer and helpfulness, will be welcomed in every home. The fashion pages are unusually attractive, illustrating and describing the very latest modes in a way to make their construction during the busy festive season a pleasure instead of a task, and the literary and pictorial features are of rare excellence. A selection of Love Songs from the Wagner Operas, reduced into English by Richard de Gallienne and beautifully illustrated in colors by J. C. Leyendecker, occupies a prominent place, and a chapter in the Composers' Series, relating the Romance of Wagner and Cosima, is an interesting supplement to the lyrics. A very clever paper entitled "The Court Circles of the Republic," describing some unique phases of Washington social life is from an unnamed contributor, who is said to write from the inner circles of society. There are short stories from the pens of F. Hopkinson Smith, Robert Grant, Alice Brown, Mary Stewart Cutting and Elmore Elliot Peake, and such interesting writers as Julia Magruder, L. Frank Baum, and Grace MacGowan Cooke hold the attention of the children. Many Christmas suggestions are given in needlework and the Cookery pages are redolent of the Christmas feast. In addition, there are the regular departments of the magazine, with many special articles on topics relating to woman's interests within and without the home.

For Whooping Cough use CHENEY'S EXPECTORANT.

Text Cards for Home Decoration

on higher finished ivory and dark ground cards, all with silk cord to hang; require no frames. Agents wanted everywhere; liberal discount. GOSPEL PUBLISHING HOUSE, 54 W. 22d St., New York, Room 26.

DOLL'S FACTORY TO POCKET DIAMONDS GUARANTEED

RETAIL PRICE $22.00 OUR FACTORY PRICE $9.75

GOOD FOR FIFTY CENTS OFF IF SIGNED WITH YOUR NAME!

Name .....

Address .....

That will make the price $9.25 just ONCE for this genuine solitaire diamond 14K solid gold ring—Tiffany setting. Worth $24.00 anywhere. A beautiful Christmas present.—Sent postpaid and guaranteed on receipt of price. Send for catalogue A. I. full of Christmas presents at half prices or less—"Factory to Pocket."

W. F. DOLL MFG. CO.,
175 Broadway, New York.

References: American Exchange National Bank, New York.

BETTER THAN SPANKING.

Spanking does not cure children of nine difficulties. If it did there would be few children that would do it. There is a constitutional cause for this. Mrs. M. Summers, Box 295, Notre Dame, Ind., will send her home treatment to any mother. She asks no money. Write her to-day if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child. The chances are it can't help it Important Announcement.

The present low rates of the Company will be used until the end of the year.

After that time a somewhat higher rate will be charged.

Now is the time to send in your application and avoid the rush at the end of the year.

If you have no application blank on hand drop us a postal and receive one immediately.

Don't fail to take advantage of this opportunity.

American Ministers Life Ins. Co., Richmond, Va.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC COMPANY.

..."SUNSET ROUTE."...

Lowest Rates and Through Service to California. Ask About Them. Through the Rice and Oil Belt.

4 Daily Trains from New Orleans to Points in Louisiana; 3 to Texas; 2 to California and Mexico.

Best Trains, Best Service; Best Everything.

OIL BURNING LOCOMOTIVES.

Through Pullman Tourist Car from Washington, Atlanta, Montgomery and Intermediate points to California, Tri-Weekly.

No trouble to answer questions

J. F. VAN RENSSELAER, General Agent. R. O. BERN, T. P. A., ATLANTA, Ga.

Methodist Orphanage

OFFICERS:

REV. J. W. JENKINS, - Superintendent
MRS. J. W. JENKINS, - - Matron
MISS LUCY M. REEKS, Teacher

☞Send money to the Superintendent by Check, Post Office or Express Money Order or Registered letter.

Thanksgiving—A Word from the Executive Committee.

To the ministers and members and friends of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, within the bounds of the North Carolina Conference:

Beloved, will you not remember us in Thanksgiving on the 24th of this month. These are prosperous times. God has greatly blessed you. You have so much to be thankful for. The completion of our Main building is an additional cause for thanksgiving for the Methodists of our Conference. Its doors will be thrown open to the needy orphans among us by the time you meet for worship on that glad day.

This struggling young institution greatly needs your aid. Open wide your hearts, loosen your purse strings, give largely. No penny collections will meet our wants. God calls to the church, "Forward." Have a big rally. Talk it to the people. Inspire the preachers to preach on it. To set forth its claims. To stir up the people. Let us have such a Thanksgiving as we have never had. Everybody will give to this cause. Give them a chance.

Friends, if there is no public service at your church, and you have no chance to give, send along a check, a money order, or registered letter, or put a good bill in a letter and send it along. That would be a mean thief indeed that would steal money sent to the orphans. It will do you good to give. It will do us good to receive. God will smile, Heaven will be propitious, and the needy orphans will rejoice and give thanks.

J. W. JENKINS, Chairman.
For the Executive Committee.

At the Home Church.

A telegram from Bro. Merritt, of Conway, informing me that a funeral in his work would block my way, doomed me to stay at home Sunday. The hour of 11 o'clock found me at the home church. The startling intelligence, "No preacher," precipitated a crisis. It was Jenkins, or nobody. There was a good congregation. So he took in the situation and did the best he could. Our little Bettie said on our arrival home: "You preached a right good sermon." That was encouraging to a young hopeful. Brooklyn is coming, under the hard-worked faithful pastor. If the Board of Missions would give us $50 more and the church here would give us $50 more, with a comfortable parsonage, our preacher ought to be in a comfortable condition as to support. This is the church where the orphanage furnishes "bench warmers."

Bre'r Rabbit Come Again.

The boys are largely engaged in the rabbit business. They have caught three since our last report. If the bad boys around here would keep off of our land and quit stealing the boys' guns, and not hunt on the land with dogs and gun on Sunday, they might do good business.

My! what an idea—steal an orphan's gun, and kill his rabbits!—on Sunday!

The right idea. Bro. D. H. Tuttle does not send an application for an orphan, now, that he does not provide for its support. We could take a large number on those terms. They must be indigent, and over six and under fourteen years.

One more word to the Sunday-schools.

We say from our hearts: bless the Sunday-schools. They are our smoke house, our corn crib, our commissariat, just as the W. H. M. Society is our clothing store.

Now if they would only send us the amounts due, it would greatly help our finances. Send it to the Superintendent, if you wish to get credit for it in the Advocate.

Receipts up to November 14.

Parkers S. S., for November, $5; Red Springs S. S., for November, $2.50; Lumberton S. S., $10.00; Mr. L. R. Hamer on note 20th century, etc., $5.00; Miss Marie Hamer, on note 20th century, $5.00; Miss Lizzie Strickland, $1.00; Weldon S. S., $10.

Donations in kind: Clothes for little girl, from Mrs. Worth's S. S. class; clothes from W. H. M. Society, Fremont; clothes from W. H. M. Society, Warrenton; clothes for little girl, from Mrs. J. L. Everett, of Rockingham; bedstead, springs, and mattress, by Mrs. Dawn, of Raleigh.

The Orphanage and the Western North Carolina Conference.

At the last session of Conference a resolution was passed kindly inviting the W. N. C. Conference to unite, or co-operate with us in the orphanage work, and the Executive Committee was constituted a committee to transmit that resolution to the W. N. C. Conference and to meet a like committee from that Conference to arrange for such union or co-operation on satisfactory terms to each, to be submitted to their respective Conferences for consideration.

Whether that Conference will accept the offer and appoint the committee remains to be seen. The chairman of the Executive Committee was directed to transmit the resolution. It was out today, Nov. 15.

It was also stated to the Conference that we could accommodate their orphans in our new building now. That we would take an orphan for every $100 they would send. That would cover all expenses—feeding, clothing, and educating.

WE WANT TO SEND YOU

free and prepaid, a bottle of Vernal Palmettona (Palmetto Berry Wine). Every reader of the The Raleigh Advocate will appreciate this offer as soon as they have given this wonderful remedy a trial. It quickly relieves and cures the diseased and inflamed condition of the mucous membranes throughout the body. Every stomach trouble yields to its influence and it promptly cures indigestion, dyspepsia, flatulency and catarrh. Vernal Palmettona cures constipation, clears the liver and kidneys, relieves inflammation and cures them of disease. Inflammation of the bladder and urinary passages is withdrawn and quickly cured. Do not hesitate to write to the Vernal Remedy Company, Le Roy N. Y., and they will send by return mail a trial bottle and booklet. Sold by druggists everywhere.

21,245 UNIQUE

21,245 Sunday-school Superintendents and workers were asked by us to name the most practical songs used by them. The result is the most Unique and Incomparably the finest collection of songs for sunday-schools and Praise services ever issued.

THE VOICE OF PRAISE

beautifully bound in full cloth (Vellum de Luxe) $25 a hundred; 32cts. singly by mail. Send for free descriptive pamphlet, or for complete returnable sample. We pay the postage.

Hall-Mack Co., 1018-20 Arch St., Phila. 156 Fifth Ave., N. Y.

THE LARGEST SALE OF ANY ONE BRAND IN THE UNITED STATES.

Sauer's FLAVORING EXTRACTS

BEST BY TEST.
AT YOUR GROCER
10c and 25c.

For LaGrippe and Influenza use CHENEY'S EXPECTORANT.

Register for STIEFF'S

CHRISTMAS PIANO

when you are in Charlotte, or send 4 cents in stamps for return of number and let us register for you.

Read Carefully

so you will fully understand who gets this piano On our books, opposite name, is duplicate of number given or sent to person registered. On Dec. 24th, four business men will see that these duplicates go into a box, are thoroughly shaken and a little child blind-folded will take out one number. The person holding the original will receive the piano, provided they do not own an upright piano. If you buy from us and should hold number drawn, we refund money. If you buy elsewhere, your ticket is void. Write at once.

ONLY ONE MEMBER OF A HOME WHERE THERE IS NO UPRIGHT PIANO, CAN REGISTER.

See former Ad.

Chas. M. Stieff

Manufacturer of the Piano with the Sweet Tone.

SOUTHERN WAREROOMS, 211-213 Tryon St., Charlotte, N. C.
C. H. WILMOTH, Manager.
(Mention this paper.)

Cancer Hospital.

We want every man and woman in the United States to know what we are doing.—We are curing Cancers, Tumors and Chronic Sores without the use of knife and are endorsed by the Senate and Legislature of Virginia. If you are seeking a cure come here and you will get it.

The Kellam Cancer Hospital, Richmond, Va.

BLACKBOARDS

For Schools, Sunday Schools Churches.

Any quality, shipped anywhere promptly All kinds school furniture and supplies. Write for particulars, Best Goods, Lowest Prices.

CHAS. J. PARKER, Mgr. Raleigh, N. C.

$800 to $1,800 a year in the Railway Mail, Postal, and other lines of government service. We prepare by mail for examination. Nearly 20,000 appointments last year. For particulars address, CIVIL SERVICE SCHOOL, 914 Walnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.

GINSENG $25,000.00 made from half acre. Easily grown in Garden or Farm. Roots and seeds for sale. Send 4c for postage and get booklet E. H., telling all about it. MCDOWELL GINSENG GARDEN, JOPLIN, MO.

BLYMYER CHURCH BELLS. Unlike other bells. Write for Catalogue. Please mention this paper.

Quarterly Meetings.

WARRENTON DISTRICT.
G. F. Smith, P. E., Littleton, N. C.
FOURTH ROUND.

Littleton, Littleton, Nov. 3, 4
Weldon, Nov. 6, 7
Garysburg, Seaboard, Nov. 5
Roanoke Circ'l 1, Smiths, Nov. 12, 13
Roanoke Rapids, Rosemary, Nov. 13, 14
Ridgeway, Union, Nov. 19, 20
Henderson, Nov. 27, 28

ELIZABETH CITY DISTRICT.
J. E. Underwood, P. E., E. City, N. C.
FOURTH ROUND.

Dare, Mann's Harbor, Nov. 5, 6
Roanoke Island, Nov. 6, 7
Elizabeth City, First Church, Nov. 13
Elizabeth City Road, Nov. 13
Columbia, Nov. 19, 20
Pantego and Belhaven, Nov. 25
Roper, Nov 26, 27
Plymouth, Nov. 27

WASHINGTON DISTRICT.
J. D. Bundy, P. E., Rocky Mount, N. C.
FOURTH ROUND.

Greenville, (morning) Nov. 6
Grimesland and Vanceboro, Shilmerdine, November 6, 7
Spring Hope, Hornes, Nov. 12, 13
Wilson Station, (night) Nov. 13
Wilson Circuit, (Ledge Street) Nov. 14
Fremont, Fremont Nov. 15
Rock Mount, Nov. 16
Bath, Bath, Nov. 19, 20
South Rocky Mount and Marvin, Nov. 22
South Edgecombe, Elm City, Nov. 27, 28

ROCKINGHAM DISTRICT.
John N. Cole, P. E., Rockingham, N. C.
FOURTH ROUND.

Montgomery, Capelsie, Nov. 5, 6
Red Springs Rep Springs, Nov. 12, 13
Pekin, Concord, Nov. 19, 20
Aberdeen, Aberdeen, Nov. 26, 27

RALEIGH DISTRICT.
W. H. Moore, P. E., Pittsboro, N. C.
FOURTH ROUND.

Oxford Station, November 5 6
Youngsville, November 12, 13
Louisburg, November 19, 20
Tar River Plank Chapel, Novembe

NEW BERN DISTRICT.
F. D. Swindell, P. E., Goldsboro, N. C
FOURTH ROUND.

Snow Hill Circuit, Jerusalem, Nov. 5, 6
Craven, Asbury, Nov. 11
Carteret, Harlow, Nov. 12, 13
Beaufort, Nov. 13, 14
Atlantic, Wit, Nov. 15, 16
Straits, Tabernacle, Nov. 19, 20
Morehead, Nov. 20
LaGrange Circuit, Nov. 23
St. John, Nov. 25
Mt. Olive Circuit, Smiths, Nov. 26, 27

DURHAM DISTRICT.
J. T. Gibbs, P. E., Durham N. C.
FOURTH ROUND.

Mt. Tirzah Circuit, Nov. 5, 6
Burlington, Front Street, Nov. 13, 14
East Burlington, Graham and Haw River, Nov. 13, at night
Burlington, Shiloah, Nov. 18
Alamance, Phillips Chapel, Nov. 19, 20
Main Street, Nov. 27, at 11 a. m.
West Durham, Nov. 27, at night

FAYETTEVILLE DISTRICT.
J. B. Hurley, P. E., Fayetteville, N. C.
FOURTH ROUND.

Hope Mills, Nov 5, 6
Newton Grove, Nov. 11
Duke, Benson, Nov. 12, 13
Buckhorn, Cokesbury, Oct. 18
Lillington, Nov. 19, 20
Sampson, Andrews Chapel, Nov. 25
Fayetteville, Hay Street, Nov. 27
Fayetteville, Holt's Hill, Nov. 27

WILMINGTON DISTRICT.
R. B. John, P. E., Wilmington, N. C.
FOURTH ROUND.

Burgaw, Burgaw, Nov. 4
Kenansville Warsaw Nov. 5, 6
Onslow, Tabernacle, Nov. 9
Jackson and Richlands, Richlands, Nov 10
Southport, Nov. 3
New River, Sneed's Ferry, Nov. 18
Scott's Hill, Scott's Hill, Nov. 19, 20
Bladen Street, Nov. 27

Scholarship Free

FOR ONE MONTH. CLIP AND SEND OI PRESENT THIS NOTICE FOR PARTICULARS.

☞ 150 Page Illustrated Catalogue Free. ☜

DRAUGHON'S PRACTICAL BUSINESS Colleges

RALEIGH, N. C.

St. Louis, Mo. Shreveport, La.
Atlanta, Ga. Knoxville, Tenn.
Paducah, Ky. Kansas City, Mo.
Fort Worth, Tex. Nashville, Tenn.
Columbia, S. C. Little Rock, Ark.
Ft. Scott, Kas. Montgomery, Ala.
Galveston, Tex. Oklahoma City, O. T.

The Fast Trains

To California are run over the Union Pacific. Via Omaha 16 hours quicker to San Francisco than any other line. No change of roads, no detours, "The Overland Route" all the way. Be sure your ticket reads over the Union Pacific. Inquire of

J. H. LOTHROP, C. A.,
903 Olive St., St. Louis, Mo.

Dropsy CURED Gives Quick Relief.

Removes all swelling in 8 to 20 days; effects a permanent cure in 30 to 60 days. Trial treatment given free. Nothing can be fairer Write Dr. H. H. Green's Sons, Specialists, Box B Atlanta, Ga.

Marriages

FLOYD—FLOYD.—At the home of Mrs. Mattie Floyd, by Rev. J. M. Ashby, on the 25th of October, 1904, Mr. H. G. Floyd and Beulah V. Floyd.

MASON — HILL. —At Atlantic, N. C., in the Methodist Church, September 17, 1904, Mr. Ralph Mason to Miss Bessie Hill. Thos. W. Mansfield officiating.

WILLIS — GASKILL. — In the Methodist Church at Wit, N. C., on October 19, 1904, Mr. James B. Willis to Miss Frances Gaskill, Thos. W. Mansfield officiating.

BREEDLOVE—RICE.—On November 1st, at the home of the bride near Oxford, N. C., Mr. L. G. Breedlove, to Miss Rebecca Rice. Rev. W. H. Puckett officiating.

GOOCH — HUNT. — October 4, 1904, in Salem Church, near Oxford, N. C., Mr. Joseph H. Gooch, of Stem, N. C., to Miss Sudie Hunt. Rev. W. H. Puckett officiating.

STEWART—MEUSE.—In Carthage, N. C., at the bride's residence, October 27, 1904, Mr. Neill Stewart and Miss Janie Meuse, both of Moore County. R. H. Broom officiating.

WHITAKER—CASH.—On October 26th, at the home of the bride near Tally Ho, N. C., Mr. Hal Whitaker, of Stem, N. C., to Miss Zula Cash. Rev. W. H. Puckett officiating.

ROWLAND—PARHAM—On October 18th, at the home of the bride, near Oxford, N. C., Mr. J. M. Rowland, of Middleburg, N. C., to Miss Emma Blanche Parham, Rev. W. H. Puckett officiating.

PALMER—TWITTY. — At the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. Robt. Twitty, Warrenton, N. C., on 20th day of October, 1904, Mr. J. D. Palmer and Miss Annie S. Twitty. Rev. C. W. Robinson officiating.

HAYE—MIXON—At Cove Point, Beaufort County, N. C., September 19, 1904, at the residence of the bride's father, C. W. Mixon, Esq., Mr. Harvey Hale to Miss Mattie Mixon, Rev. J. M. Lowder officiating.

Obituaries

Obituaries containng not more than one hundred and fifty words are inserted free of charge. Those sending obituaries containing over one hundred and fifty words are requested to send with the obituary one cent for every word in excess. Unless this rule is observed the obituary must be cut down to the proper limit

WOOD.—Thomas Alva, son of Thomas W. and Sarah Elizabeth Wood, of Wilmington, N. C., was released from the sufferings and dangers of this life and taken to the bosom of the Savior, October 18, 1904, aged 7 years, 3 months and 5 days. He was a child of a loving, affectionate spirit and entwined himself very closely around the heart of those nearest to him. May the bleeding hearts of parents and grand parents bow in true submissions to the will of a kind Heavenly Father.

A. G. HANKINS.

MOORE.—Little Ruth, the sweet daughter of brother and sister M. W. and Susan Moore, died October 6, 1904, near Aurora, N. C., at a little more than twelve months of age. She was a sweet little child, and her parents found it trying to their faith to give her up. But in this dark hour they put their trust in Him that does all things well. The loss of the parents is the infinite gain of the child. Let us, dear brother and sister, strive to meet our little one in Heaven, where we will never say good-bye.

J. M. LOWDER, Pastor.

O'NEAL.—C. T. O'Neal was born at Ocracoke, July 14, 1849, and died at the same place September 26, 1904. I have learned from best authority that he has always been a kind-hearted man. He was a kind husband and an indulgent father. He left a widow and ten living children. He was never a member of any church, but during his last sickness he prayed much, and before his death he said "it was all right."

God bless the widow and children. May they give their hearts to God and meet their father on the celestial shore.

R. R. GRANT.

DAWSON.—William Dawson was born August 30, 1836. Died, at his home, at Stedman, May 26, 1904. He leaves a tender and devoted wife and an adopted son, who, with his family, share tenderly the wife's sorrows.

Brother Dawson was a good man, true to his friends, his church, his family and his God. He was patient in affliction and suffering, never uttering one word of complaint.

Having long been a consistent member of the Methodist Church and a regular attendant of Sunday-school, he will be greatly missed.

May God's blessings rest on those he has left behind.

A FRIEND.

KEMP. — Alexander Strange Kemp, of Elizabethtown, N. C., was born November 30, 1871, and died August 14, 1904.

His death was caused by a burn received June 2, 1904. This accident occurred in Wilmington, and he was at once taken to the Walker Hospital in Wilmington. He remained there for treatment until his spirit passed beyond the vail.

Brother Kemp made a profession of religion in the early part of his sickness. He had always lived a strictly moral and upright life, and after his conversion he rejoiced because of the love of God which was shed abroad in his heart by the Holy Ghost which was given unto him. He was a great sufferer, but rejoiced in the hope of the glory of God.

He leaves a mother, two sisters and one brother. The devotion of the Kemp family for each other is something beautiful. May God comfort and strengthen their hearts in this and all other visitations of his providence.

W. E. BROWN, P. C.
November 2, 1904.

BRAND.—Mrs. Antje Brand, nee Visser, was born November 26, 1813, in North Holland, and died October 1, 1904, at 10.30 a. m., near Havelock, N. C., in the home of her son, Hon. John Buys—lacking less than two months of being 91 years of age. Sister Brand was twice married, the first time to Mr. John Buys, of Holland, March 21, 1844, who died May 28, 1869. The second time to Mr. Cornelius Brand, of Holland also, who died in 1895, and in 1896 Mrs. Brand came to Chicago, Ill., U. S. A., to live and die with her son, Hon. John Buys, taking her church certificate with her and depositing with the Dutch Reform Church of America in Chicago, where she found her people had nothing but a barn in which to worship, gave her own means to build a house for the Dutch Reformed Church of America—her honorable son being the contractor. Mrs. Brand was received into full connection of the Dutch Reformed Church at Keromenie, North Holland, while young, we have not the date, but it was about 1826, we suppose. She has been faithful to her profession. No wonder that she died in great peace. She was connected with the elite of Holland—had in her possession the historic and famous Headdress of Holland, which must have cost hundreds of dollars. It is the first and only one that this writer ever saw, and is now in the possession of her highly esteemed and honorable son, Hon. John Buys. Let me say to all of the relatives: prepare to met her in heaven. Peace to her sweet memory.

J. H. M. GILES, P. C.
Newport, N. C.

BELL.—Joseph Elijah Bell, the son of Mr. W. S. Bell, Jr., and Charity E. Bell, of Newport, N. C., was born April 15, 1864, and died trusting in his Saviour August 28, 1904.

The subject of this sketsh was married to Miss Eulalia Perry for-

..Dobbin & Ferrall..
(AT TUCKER'S STORE)
Raleigh, N. C.

BRIDAL OUTFITS.

We are fully prepared to furnish a complete Trousseau. Every detail absolutely correct. No better materials can be furnished anywhere, and our dress makers are the best in the world—a broad statement but fully true. It is far better to have the customers come to our store making the trip to Raleigh. Write us if you cannot come in person. You will be given perfect attention. . . . . .

Our Prices are Lower Than Other Stores.

DOBBIN & FERRALL
123 and 125 Fayetteville St.

DOESN'T RESPECT OLD AGE.

It's shameful when youth fails to show proper respect for old age, but just the contrary in the case of Dr. King's New Life Pills. They cut off maladies no matter how severe and irrespective of old age. Dyspepsia, Jaundice, Fever, Constipation all yield to this perfect Pill. Twenty-five cents at all druggists.

Sore Throat, Coughs, Colds
Not promptly treated, often end in Pneumonia or Consumption.

Gowan's Pneumonia Cure is a very quick and effective remedy for sore throat, coughs, colds, congested lungs, etc. It allays fever and inflammation, scatters congestion and relieves all pain. It is the only known specific for Pneumonia and has cured thousands of desperate cases where all else failed. Used externally.

Sold by Druggists, $1.00 a Bottle.

Mr. W. B. Bagwell, a well known business man of Durham, N. C., says: "My little niece had been sick for months with inflamed chest, protracted cough and congested lungs and had become very much emaciated. From the first application of Gowan's Pneumonia Cure she began to improve and in a few days was romping over the house. I think Gowan's Pneumonia Cure is a wonderful remedy and advise every one troubled with throat, chest or lung ailments to try it."

Dr. George F. Brock, a prominent physician of Brock, N. C., says: "Some time ago I received a bottle of Gowan's Pneumonia Cure. After trying it in a case of congested lungs, it gives me pleasure to state that it gave entire satisfaction."

If your druggist cannot supply you, write to
Gowan Medical Co., Durham, N. C.

CROSS & LINEHAN CO.,
NEW TUCKER BUILDING.)
234-236 Fayetteville St., RALEIGH, N. C.

LET US SHOW YOU WHAT THE FULL MEANING OF BARGAIN-GIVING MEANS IN . . . . . .

CLOTHING
AND GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS.

OUR NEW SPRING STOCK NOW READY FOR YOUR INSPECTION.

Cross & Linehan Co.,
Leading Clothiers.

Frisco System
Chicago & Eastern Illinois R. R.
FRISCO SYSTEM

Double Daily Trains
BETWEEN
St. Louis AND Chicago
MORNING AND EVENING.

From LaSalle Street, Station Chicago..... 9:50 a. m.—9:10 p. m.
From Union Station (Merchants Bridge) St. Louis..... 9:30 a. m.—9:46 p. m.

Morning or evening connection at both termini with lines diverging.
Equipment entirely new and modern throughout.
A DOUBLE TRACK RAILWAY.
Equipped with practical and approved safety appliances.
Substantially constructed.

merly of Raleigh, N. C., March 1, 1896. She proved a helpmate indeed. Bro. Bell professed faith in Christ and joined the M. E. church, South, at Newport, October 10, 1901, under the ministry of this scribe.

For two years he seemed to walk an upright and godly life. Then in the hour of great temptation—while wicked persons seemed to rejoice at his fall, the Lord reward them—he fell into sin. Yet we are glad to say that we believe he was soundly reclaimed about one month or more before his death. He became an almost incessant student of the Bible. He knew his end was nigh. The last words to his pastor were: "I'm trusting only in Jesus for salvation." He was much beloved, had many friends. He leaves a father, Bro. W. S. Bell, Jr., a leading merchant of this place; a step-mother, two brothers and a sister to mourn their loss, which we believe is his eternal gain. We may all say in the language of the poet:

"A gasp, a breath—
And life's begun;
A breath, a gasp—
And life is done.
"Great tests, great sins,
And earth is run;
Great strength, great good,
And heaven's won."

"Let every thought, and work, and word,
To Thee be ever given;
Then life shall be Thy service, Lord,
And death the gate to heaven."

J. H. M. GILES, P. C.,
Newport, N. C.
Nov. 4, 1904.

HAYES.—Mrs. Margaret Hayes was born December 22, 1831, and departed this life at her home in Gatesville, N. C., October 22, 1904. She joined the M. E. Church, South, in early life, and was one of our most faithful members. She loved the church and took a deep interest in her church and preacher. For twenty years, when there was a change in preachers, she was at the parsonage to greet and welcome the new preacher and his family on their arrival. She was truly a good woman, kind and obliging, ever ready to help those who were in distress and to nurse and wait upon the sick. She left no dying testimony, as she died suddenly, but we have every reason to believe that she was ready. The lovely October day had just closed, and the evening shadows were falling about her little home, when the death angel, with noiseless tread, slipped in and quietly bore her pure spirit off to the better home above.

She leaves one son, a noble and pious young man, several step-children and a host of friends to mourn her departure, but they know where to find her, and may they all live so as to meet her in that blessed abode where patring is no more.

T. J. DAILEY.

JACKSON. — Sister Nancy E. Jackson was born January 16, 1830, and died September 23, 1904.

Sister Jackson professed religion in early life, and for forty-eight years has been faithful. She was twice married—the last time to Mr. Wiley C. Jackson, who, with several children, lament her death. She will be very much missed at Wesley's Chapel, her church and in her home where she was loved as a wife and a mother.

Bro. B. B. Holder preached the funeral, under whose ministry she professed faith nearly fifty years ago.

The preacher, as well as the neighbors, will miss her hearty welcome when they visit that home. She had not been in good health for some years, but for the last few months she suffered very much, but was prepared to suffer without a murmur.

R. A. BRUTON, P. C.

CHURCH MONEY EASILY RAISED For Bazaars and Fairs, we have a money-raising proposition that never fails. We get the advertising, you get the money. Address Peter-Neat-Richardson Co. Wholesale Drugs, Louisville, Ky

WINTER IN COLORADO.

You own physician will tell you what the dry mountain air of Colorado as an elixir of life stands pre-eminent. Always rigorous and stimulating, the crisp atmosphere of Colorado is at its best in winter. To accommodate winter tourists to the Rockies, the Union Pacific has put in effect from Chicago a round trip rate of $47.20 and from St. Louis a round trip rate of $39.20, with proportionate reductions from all points within its immediate territory. Tickets on sale every day until May 1st, 1905, with return limit June 1st, 1905. Be sure your ticket reads over the Union Pacific, the popular route to Colorado. For full information inquire of J. F. Van Rensselaer, 13 Peach Tree Street, Atlanta, Ga.

GO TO ST. LOUIS VIA C. & O. ROUTE.

Now is the time to see the great World's Fair at St. Louis, Mo. Delightful weather and the Exposition complete in all it's beauty. An opportunity not to be missed and never to be forgotten.

See that your tickets read via the C. & O. and Big Four Railways. Shortest, quickest and best route, with fast vestibuled train service.

PIANOS AND ORGANS
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.
A. D. JONES & CO.
Southern Factory Distributors for the World's Famous
KIMBALL

WE Loan you the money to buy them.
WE Give free trials.
WE Pay the freight.
WE Save you 25 per cent.
WE Add nothing to the principal when sold on
EASY PAYMENTS.

Write for our latest piano and and organ catalogue and full particulars.

A. D. JONES & CO.,
208 South Elm Street,
GREENSBORO, N. C.

THE KEELEY INSTITUTE
GREENSBORO, N.C.
For the treatment of THE LIQUOR, OPIUM, MORPHINE and other Drug Addictions. The Tobacco Habit, Nerve Exhaustion

For Croup use CHENEY'S EXPECTORANT.

HICKS' CAPUDINE
CURES ALL HEADACHES.
IT'S LIQUID.
The perfect remedy for Colds, Indigestion, Periodic Pains, Brain Fag, etc. Prevents Train Nausea and Sick Headache. Braces the nerves. It's Harmless. Trial bottle 10c.

The Highsmith Hospital
(INCORPORATED.)

A General Hospital, centrally located on Green Street. J. F. Highsmith, M. D., Surgeon and Specialist in the diseases of women. Assistants: J. Vance McGeogan, M. D., Surgeon; J. A. McKethan, M. D., Specialist in the diseases of the eye, ear, nose and throat.

Modern appliances throughout; elevator, electric and gas light; water, heat, hot and cold shower baths and telephone service on every floor; electric call bells in all rooms; sound-deadening rubber treads and linoleum on stairways and halls, operating room second to none, well equipped chemical and microscopic laboratory with Static X-Ray Electric Machine in connection, giving unsurpassed facilities for treatment of the most difficult surgical cases.

Nurses' Home and Training School, under the supervision of Miss Maude Robertson, graduate of The Massachusetts General, of Boston, Mass., the McLean, of Waverly, Mass., and the Sloan Maternity, of New York, and recently head nurse of the surgical department of the Philadelphia Hospital.

The Cochran Annex, complete in furnishing and equipment, with endowed beds for both white and colored.

Domestic and Culinary Department under skilled housekeeper, faultless in sanitation, cleanliness and convenience.

For further information address

J. F. HIGHSMITH, M. D., Fayetteville, N. C.

BABY EASE
BABY EASE—the world's best baby medicine—is a prompt, safe, sure and harmless remedy for all sorts of stomach and bowel troubles of babies and children. Keep it always on hand—you can rely upon it.
At all good drug stores, 25c.
Manufactured by BABY EASE CO., MACON, GA.

.... Chesapeake and Ohio Railway ....
World's Fair Scenic Route
TO
St. Louis, Missouri.

SHORTEST, QUICKEST and BEST ROUTE. Vestibuled, Electric-Lighted Trains with Pullman Sleepers and Dining Cars.
Through tickets from North Carolina with direct connections.
SPECIAL RATES FOR SEASON, SIXTY OR FIFTEEN DAY TICKETS.
Fifteen day tickets from Raleigh, N. C., $24.80.
Sleeping car accommodations engaged upon application.
SPECIAL COACH EXCURSIONS
On authorized dates, tickets good for ten days at rate of $18.50. Correspondingly low rates from other stations. Special accommodations arranged for parties. Stop-overs permitted within limit at C. & O. celebrated mountain resorts.
USE THE C. & O. ROUTE and purchase your tickets accordingly.
For coach excursion dates, reservations and other information, address
W. O. WARTHEN, D. P. A., C. & O. Railway,
Richmond, Va.

World's Fair, St. Louis
EXTRAORDINARILY LOW RATES,
November 3, 5, 8, 10, 12, 15, 17, 19, 22, 24, 26, 29

On above-mentioned dates the Southern Railway announces very low round-trip Coach excursion rates to St. Louis. These tickets will be good in all regular Coaches, and on all trains on dates shown. Tickets good 10 days.

Rate from
Goldsboro	$20.00	Salisbury	$17.00
Selma	20.00	Charlotte	18.30
Raleigh	18.50	Statesville	17.00
Durham	17.00	Marion	16.20
Greensboro	17.00	Asheville	15.40
Sanford	20.40	Hendersonville	15.85

Tickets sold at the above rates not good in Sleeping Cars; for other rates see notices elsewhere.
For full information, World's Fair maps, literature, etc., call on or address any Agent Southern Railway.
R. L. VERNON, Trav. Pass. Agt., Charlotte, N. C.
T. E. GREEN, C. T. A., Raleigh, N. C.
S. H. HARDWICK, Pass. Traf. Mgr. W. H. TAYLOE, Gen. Pass. Agt. Washington, D. C.

Appointments of the Western North Carolina Conference.

CHARLOTTE DISTRICT.

J. E. Thompson, Presiding Elder.
Tryon Street, T. F. Marr.
Epworth, E. E. Williamson.
Trinity, J. A. B. Fry and W. W. Bays.
Brevard, L. A. Falls.
Calvary, D. L. Reid.
Dilworth, C. M. Short.
Hoskins and Highland Park, W. L. Nicholson.
Ansonville, W. S. Hales.
Clear Creek, E. G. Pusey.
Derita, J. H. Brandle.
Lilesville, A. E. Wiley.
Matthews, R. G. Tuttle.
Monroe station, W. R. Ware.
Monroe circuit, F. W. Bradley.
Morven, M. T. Steele.
Pineville, C. M. Pickens.
Polkton, J. C. Mock.
Wadesboro, M. A. Smith.
Waxhaw, M. E. Stacey.
Weddington, M. H. Hoyle.
Chaplain U. S. Navy, W. E. Edmondson.
Student Yale Divinity School, S. A. Stewart.

ASHEVILLE DISTRICT.

A. W. Plyler, Presiding Elder.
Central, Frank Siler.
Haywood Street, A. T. Bell.
North Asheville, G. W. Crutchfield.
Bethel, J. W. Moore.
Swannanoa, L. B. Abernethy.
Weaverville station, L. H. Parker.
Weaverville circuit, T. R. Wolf.
Marshall, W. P. Lyda.
Hot Springs, none.
Hendersonville station, D. M. Litaker.
Hendersonville circuit, W. H. Perry.
Bald Creek, C. A. Drum.
Burnsville, R. W. York.
Cane Creek, J. J. Brooks.
Old Fort, C. H. Neal.
Riverside, A. E. Harrison.
Ivey, J. B. Hyder.
Bethel, J. W. Moore.

FRANKLIN DISTRICT.

J. E. Woosley, Presiding Elder.
Andrews, J. A. Sronce.
Bryson City and Elmond, F. B. Nobett.
Dillsboro and Sylva, T. C. Jordan.
Franklin station, F. L. Townsend.
Franklin circuit, J. H. Moore.
Glenville, A. G. Loftin.
Hiawassee, C. H. Curtis.
Hayesville, E. Myers.
Macon, L. P. Bogle.
Murphy station, D. P. Tate.
Webster, V. L. Marsh.
Whittier and Cherokee, J. J. Edwards.
Robbinsville, R. L. Doggett.
Murphy circuit, S. E. Richardson.

GREENSBORO CIRCUIT.

S. B. Turrentine, Presiding Elder.
West Market Street, G. H. Detwiler.
Centenary, Ira Erwin.
Spring Garden, Harold Turner.
Walnut station, J. A. Bowles.
Asheboro, W. L. Grissom.
East Greensboro, P. J. Carraway.
West Greensboro, J. J. Renn and J. C. Troy.
Reidsville, L. W. Crawford.
Wentworth, A. S. Raper.
Ruffin, J. F. England.
Pleasant Garden, J. T. Stover.
Liberty, P. L. Groome.
Coleridge, J. J. Eaves.
Ramseur, C. A. Wood.
Asheboro station, W. L. Sherrill.
Asheboro circuit, to be supplied.
Uwharrie, B. F. Fincher.
Randleman, E. P. Green.
Randolph, Albert Sherrill.
West Randolph, C. H. Caviness.
High Point, Washington Street, W. M. Bagby and G. H. Crowell.
South Main Street, G. F. Kirby.
Editor N. C. Christian Advocate, H. M. Blair.
Professor Trinity College, P. T. Durham.

MORGANTON DISTRICT.

J. H. West, Presiding Elder.
Morganton station, R. D. Sherrill.
Morganton circuit, W. G. Mallonee.
Connelly Springs, J. O. Shelley and R. S. Abernathy.
Table Rock, N. M. Modlin.
Bakersville station, R. H. Penland.
Elk Park, W. A. Newell.
Spruce Pine, D. R. Proffitt.
North Catawba, D. S. Richardson.
Marion, D. F. Carver.
McDowell circuit, C. P. Goode.
Thermal City, L. E. Peeler.
Rutherfordton, J. D. Arnold.
Forest City, W. O. Goode.
Henrietta and Caroleen, N. R. Richardson.
Broad River, R. F. Bryant.
Green River, J. D. Gibson.
Cliffside, J. B. Carpenter.
Student Vanderbilt University, J. T. Erwin.

MT. AIRY DISTRICT.

J. A. Cook, Presiding Elder.
Mt. Airy, T. E. Wineeoff.
Mt. Airy circuit, W. L. Dawson.
Rockford circuit, J. W. Long.
Pilot Mountain, J. M. Rowland.
Pilot Mountain circuit, W. L. Hutchins.
Yadkinville circuit, J. W. Jacobs.
Elkin station, H. C. Sprinkle.
Jonesville circuit, T. H. Stimpson.
Wilkesboro, R. L. Owenby.
North Wilkesboro, W. F. Elliott.
Wilkes circuit, B. F. Hargett.
Sparta circuit, W. T. Garner.
Laurel Springs circuit, T. J. Houck.
Jefferson circuit, Seymour Taylor.
Hilton circuit, S. W. Brown.
Creston circuit, N. B. Dagenhardt.
Boone circuit and Blowing Rock.
W. R. Albright.
Watauga, O. P. Ader.

SALISBURY DISTRICT.

D. Atkins, Presiding Elder.
Main Street, J. A. J. Farrington.
Holmes Memorial and North Main, J. B. Craven.
Salisbury circuit, J. P. Davis.
Lexington, J. N. Huggins.
Missionary, A. L. Coburn.
Spencer, J. E. Gay.
Woodleaf, J. P. Lanning and J. D. Rankin.
Linwood, S. T. Barber.
Gold Hill, J. C. Postell.
New London, S. L. McIntosh.
Salem, P. W. Tucker.
Albemarle, D. V. Price and C. M. Gentry.
Albemarle circuit, J. C. Keever.
Norwood, G. G. Harley.
Cottonville, T. T. Salyer.
Concord, Central, C. K. McIntosh.
Epworth, B. F. Carpenter.
Forest Hill, G. T. Rowe.
Concord circuit, W. V. Honeycutt.
Mt. Pleasant, T. E. Ware.
China Grove, A. L. Aycock.
Jackson Hill, J. W. Strider.

SHELBY DISTRICT.

R. M. Hoyle, Presiding Elder.
Shelby, G. D. Herman.
Shelby circuit, B. A. York.
Gastonia, Main Street, E. L. Bain.
West End and Ozark, G. A. Ross.
King's Mountain, M. H. Vestal.
Elbethel and Salem, M. B. Clegg.
Belwood, W. P. McGhee and A. G. Gantt.
Polkville, J. W. Ingle.
Cherryville, J. B. Tabor.
Lincolnton, R. M. Courtney.
Lincolnton circuit, B. E. Wilson.
Stanley Creek circuit, E. W. Fox.
Mt. Holly, E. N. Crowder.
Lowesville, W. M. Boring.
South Fork, J. F. Armstrong.
McAdensville, G. W. Calahan.
Lowell, J. H. Bennett.
Bessemer City, T. S. Ellington.
Rock Springs, J. W. Clegg.

STATESVILLE DISTRICT.

J. H. Weaver, Presiding Elder.
Statesville, First church, H. K. Boyer; West End, J. M. Downum.
Statesville circuit, R. M. Taylor and James Wilson.
Alexander circuit, E. J. Poe.
Stoney Point, T. E. Weaver.
Catawba, R. S. Howie.
Newton, W. F. Womble.
Maiden, H. H. Robbins.
Iredell, T. B. Johnson.
Hickory, Parker Holmes.
Caldwell, P. L. Terrell.
Granite Falls and Rhodhiss, W. R. Evans.
Lenoir, L. T. Mann.
Lenoir circuit, L. T. Cordell and D. H. Coman.
Mooresville, T. J. Rodgers.
Mooresville circuit, W. S. Cherry.
Mt. Zion, W. H. Willis.
President Davenport College, C. C. Weaver.
Clarksburg, W. O. Rudisill.
Troutman, A. J. Burrus.

WAYNESVILLE DISTRICT.

C. F. Sherrill, Presiding Elder.
Waynesville, J. E. Abernethy.
Clyde, W. E. Abernethy.
Canton, W. A. Thomas.
Canton circuit, D. C. Ballard.
Jonathan, C. E. Steadman.
Haywood circuit, D. C. Battle.
Sulphur Springs, J. H. Brendle.
Spring Creek, Z. V. Cordell.
Mills River, J. W. Kennedy.
Leicester, J. W. Campbell.
Brevard circuit, J. A. Sharp.
Brevard, C. P. Moore.
Sunday-school Editor, James Atkins.

WINSTON DISTRICT.

J. R. Scroggs, Presiding Elder.
Winston, Centenary, H. F. Chreitzberg; Burkhead, T. W. Watts; Grace, J. H. Barnhardt; Southside and Salem, W. Y. Scales.
Forsyth, J. F. Totten.
Lewisville, A. R. Bell.
Walkertown, H. H. Jordan.
Thomasville, C. M. Campbell and R. P. Eubanks.
Kernersville, T. A. Sikes.
Davidson, P. E. Parker.
Summerfield, J. F. Kirk.
Stokesdale, B. F. Edwards.
Leaksville, A. L. Stanford.
Madison, W. M. Robbins.
Stoneville and Mayodan, C. R. Kanipe.
Danbury, J. T. Rutledge and J. H. Robertson.
Mocksville, J. P. Rogers.
Farmington, M. L. Smith.
Spray, W. M. Boyles.
Advance, W. M. Curtis.
Davie, J. M. Price.
Cooleemee, H. C. Byrum.

TRANSFERRED.

J. S. Ragan to Kentucky Conference; G. T. Eaves, to Missouri Conference; A. R. Surratt, to North Carolina Conference and C. C. Thompson, to Pacific Conference.

EATEN BY MICROBES.

This expression exactly describes the condition of the skin when attacked by many forms of skin diseases. It is a horrid idea, but perfectly true. To eradicate these disease germs and restore a healthy skin, use Tetterine, an infallible cure for tetter, ring-worm, itch and all forms of skin diseases. Fifty cents per box at all druggists, or by mail from

J. T. SHUPTRINE, Mfr.,
Savannah, Ga.

King's Business College.
(INCORPORATED.)
CAPITAL STOCK - - $30,000
Learn Bookkeeping, Shorthand, Touch Typewriting, Penmanship and English. Not in a month—this cannot be done. Not free—you cannot get something for nothing but if merit appeals, we can convince you that KING'S is the best. Established and results of 20 years experience.
Reference: Every bank and leading business concern in Raleigh or Charlotte.
Write for our College Journal and offers we are now making. Address,
KING'S BUSINESS COLLEGE,
Raleigh, N. C., or Charlotte, N. C.

CENTRAL ACADEMY
LITTLETON, N. C.
A Christian Home School for Boys and Young Men. Spring Term begins Jan. 4th, 1905. Charges very low. For further information address
REV. W. W. ROSE, Principal

SPECIAL HOLIDAY OFFER
ON
SEWING MACHINES.
Write for Particulars.
Also Bargains in - - - -
Pianos, Organs,
Washing Machines, Wagons, Farm Implements, Hay Presses, Wire Fences, Pea Hullers, &c, &c. No General Catalogue. Write for what you want.
T. B. PARKER, S. B. A.
RALEIGH, N. C.

WHEN YOU WISH TO BUY BOOKS..... Save Money
By writing us for catalogue and prices. We carry constantly in stock the books of all leading publishers, and are prepared to fill orders on short notice at lowest prices. Books, Christmas Cards, Diaries, Blank Books, Fountain Pens, Stationery, etc, e.c. - - - - -
Write for Catalogue to
SMITH & LAMAR, Agts.
296 Elm St., - DALLAS, TEX.
27 N. Summer St., 30-36 Public Square, Nashville, Tenn.
The Largest Book Stores In the... South.....

Raleigh Christian Advocate

FIFTIETH YEAR. ORGAN OF THE NORTH CAROLINA CONFERENCE. NUMBER 43.

RALEIGH, N. C., WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 23, 1904.

Randolph Library College

Editorial

A CHRIST-CENTRED THANKSGIVING.

We use this heading, because the older we grow the more firmly we are convinced that much of our thanksgiving is self-centered.

It is astonishing that the powers and faculties granted to us by God for reaching out after Him and growing into His image should be used so often in burning incense to Self. The very Christian graces are ruthlessly pulled from their places in the temple of righteousness and made into altar stairs up which Self mounts to the shrine of Indulgence.

What a grand capacity and agent of the soul is faith! Yet Christ himself was tempted in the wilderness to use faith as a base agent in the exploitation of faithless presumption and in satisfying an illegitimate desire to pluck prematurely the flower of His Father's Providence. There are many who yield to the temptation in converting faith into a blind unreasoning trust which loses sight of the fact that we are "workers together with God." They are told to take no anxious thought for to-morrow. Their obedience consists in taking no thought whatever. They accept the doctrine that the grace of God is sufficient and they practice it in their own way by expecting God to give the "daily bread" prayed for as He gave manna in the wilderness or by throwing away the very life-prolonging and health-producing minerals and herbs with which God has stocked the earth. It is nothing but Faith revolving around Self as a centre.

Thanksgiving as an act is nothing but the soul's expression of gratitude for benefits received. The spirit or motive which prompts the act is constant because the reception of benefits is constant. But thanksgiving, whether an act or state, is purely unselfish. It ever looks toward Christ, the Unspeakable Gift. Like the wise men of old it carries in its hands gifts of "gold, and frankincense, and myrrh."

It is sad that both the spirit and act of thanksgiving have been made to turn inward on Self and pour at Self's feet the gifts of "gold and frankincense and myrrh." A day set apart theoretically for thanksgiving, but practically for stuffing the stomach with heavy dinners which are an abomination to the Lord as well as to good digestion, or for taking rod and gun and revelling for a day in pleasures which are purely sensuous if not selfish, is surely not a day of Christ-centered thanksgiving. It is altogether self-centered.

As we write these words, we stand on the threshold of another Thanksgiving Day. Have we the spirit of thanksgiving? Do we wish to express it? If so, the spirit must find its true expression in a gift which will not fall short of the hands of Christ. He is the Living Christ, and we may find Him. Gladden His heart by making for Him a clean and beautiful place in the heart's chamber. He wishes to occupy the throne. Gladden Him by casting out idols. He is sitting by thousands of firesides or in the shadows of thousands of rooms of pain and sorrow. He is in the slums, the jails and penitentiaries, the haunts of poverty. He is trudging the dusty highways. He is standing with pitying eyes over the breaking heart wherever that heart may be. Gladden His heart by taking the "cup of cold water" which has not lost its refreshing coolness through all the rolling centuries, and placing it in the hands of as many of His "little ones" as possible. Thus only can Gratitude lay at His feet the real treasures. Thus only can your thanksgiving be Christ-centered. Thus only can you reach the heart of the Great Giver of Gifts.

A BOOK OF VERSE BY A NORTH CAROLINA PREACHER.

Dr. W. H. Moore, Presiding Elder of the Raleigh District, North Carolina Conference, has just issued from the press of Edwards & Broughton his story in verse of "Virginia Dare," the first white child of English parentage born on the American continent. The story is well told. There are some variations from the historic narrative, but the line of authentic events is very closely followed, and there is no liberty taken that is not legitimate.

The verse is well constructed and flows rhythmically. The metre limps in astonishingly few places. We undertake to say that the intelligent, appreciative reader who begins the perusal of this story of "Virginia Dare" will be so charmed with the narrative and the rhythmical flow that he will be tempted not to close the book until he has finished it.

It is a book which has a rightful place in the purely literary works of the State. It should be used as a reader in our schools. The verbiage is Anglo-Saxon, and mainly monosyllabic.

Dr. Moore is the only member of the North Carolina Conference, as far as we know, to bring out a volume of poems. He has laid more than Methodism under obligations to him. The members of the North Carolina Conference should be the first to procure a copy, which costs only 50 cents. The volume is beautifully printed, with gray covers and silver ornamentation.

Causes for Thanksgiving.

I believe in Thanksgiving Day, and think every true American should observe and honor it.

1. Because we are still alive, we might have been summoned hence, like so many others. But God has yet spared us. Laus Deo!

2. Because we are Christians, and not heathens, nor pagans. We are not "aliens from the commonwealth of Israel," but "fellow-citizens with the saints, and of the household of God." A great thing, surely.

3. Because we live in the twentieth century, and not in any previous century. It is the best century the world ever saw, by long odds. Better "fifty years" now and here, "than a cycle of Cathay!" We are at last beginning to "think clear and see straight," as to all matters of human concern, and shall do this more and more as the years roll onward.

4. Because we are Americans. It was a good thing to be a Greek in the days of Pericles, or a Roman in the days of Caesar, or a Frenchman in the days of the great Napoleon; but who would not infinitely rather be an American in the days of Roosevelt? The Anglo-Saxon is going to dominate this world, and we are going to dominate him in the near future if not now. The American is the coming man, and is going to be the best man the race has produced. Let us help to make and keep him so!

5. Because we are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. It is the best church the world ever saw—most helpful to human kind. It has its faults, but they are not many nor great, while its virtues are multiplied and enormous. Its humanity is incalculable, its piety inextinguishable, its missionary zeal immense and increasing. It has set its heart to capture the whole world for Jesus, sooner or later, and it will do it. Let us be thankful for its ministers, its members, its churches, its missionaries—for all that it is, and all that it aims to be. And in the words of tiny Tim, in one of Dickens's best books, "May God bless us all, every one!"—General James F. Rusling, in the Pittsburg Christian Advocate.

Suppose that the Christian life, in its daily manifestation, should come to be marked and known by simplicity and happiness. Suppose that the followers of Jesus should really escape from bondage to the evil spirits of avarice and luxury which infect and torment so much of our complicated tangled, artificial modern life. Suppose that, instead of increasing their wants and their desires; intead of loading themselves down on life's journey with so many bags and parcels and boxes of superfluous luggage and bric-a-brac that they are forced to sit down by the roadside and gasp for breath; instead of wearing themselves out in the dusty ways of competition and vain show, or embittering their hearts because they cannot succeed in getting into the weary race of wealth and fashion—suppose, instead of all this, they should turn to quiet ways, lowly pleasures, pure and simple joys, "plain living and high thinking." Suppose they should truly find and clearly show their happiness in the knowledge that God loves them, and Christ died for them, and heaven is sure, and so set their hearts free to rejoice in life's common mercies, the light of the sun, the blue of the sky, the splendor of the sea, the peace of the everlasting hills, the songs of the birds, the sweetness of flowers, the wholesome savor of good food, the delight of action and motion, the refreshment of sleep, the charm of music, the blessing of human love and friendship—rejoice in all these without fear or misgiving, because they come from God, and because Christ has sanctified them all by His presence and touch.—Rev. Henry Van Dyke, D. D.

Philip of Macedon kept a servant whose duty was to say, to him every morning, "Philip, remember you must die."—Selected.

Contributions

Religious Work in the Cities.

BY REV. D. ATKINS.

There are two distinct theories of work in cities. One is to have one, two, three, or more very large churches, according to the size of the city, with a number of small churches, called mission churches, supported by mission boards, or by grants from the large, wealthy churches. The other is to provide a sufficnt number of churches about equal in size, strength and equipments, each strong enough to suport a first-class pastor. The former theory is most common in practice; the latter is by far the best.

Very large churches are not conducive to the best work. In ordinary cases, a membership of four or five hundred are amply able to support a pastor. They also constitute an inspiring audience, and are about as many as can well be organized into a working force. Houses of worship should be built with reference to an audience of such size, and, while neat and tasteful, should be plain and unpretentious, and moderate in price. It should be a religious work-shop rather than a temple or cathedral. There is much money wasted on some of our finest churches. It is not to the glory of God as much as it is to the gratification of a luxurious taste. The great, rich, central metropolitan church is a misfit in Methodism or any form of Christianity in earnest. Very large salaries are also very much out of place in Methodism. A comfortable, economical living, with a little laid up in store, is all our portion, and this is far better for all concerned than salaries which smack of luxuary. As prosperity smiles on the South, and wealth increases and cities grow, we should restudy our lessons of simplicity, and of our own will keep within proper bounds.

With few exceptions, there is very little need of any city missions. There are enough Methodists in any ordinary city in the South to support all the ministry needed. The reason why this does not seem so is that the members are not properly distributed. There is one church of seven or eight hundred members containing the wealth of the city, and it is very easy for them to pay a large salary, and many incidentals. There is a large congregation and fine preaching. It is more comfortable to belong to this church, the social standing is higher, and it really costs less than membership in one of the smaller churches. This church could well spare two or three hundred members. There are three or four other churches in town, but they are all small and weak; some of them are mission chapels. Not many people of means attend these. The social caste is not quite so high—some say they would not allow their children to go there to Sunday-school. Some members of the great church live much nearer one of the small churches, and some even pass by the small church to get to the great one. Now, let these three or four hundred who can well be spared from the great church be distributed according to their locality among the small ones, and they all will become self-supporting, will be able to have first-class pastors, and will be toned up every way. There will be then five strong churches, five strong men, all practically equal, able to co-operate, instead of one strong church, overgrown, unwieldly, undeveloped, and three or four weak, struggling churches, with inexperienced pastors between whom and the great pastor there is little in common, and real co-operation between these churches and the great one an impossibility. The answer will be made to this that our people prefer the great church, and you cannot drive them out into the smaller churches; they will leave the denomination. You cannot drive people, should not attempt it. In some cases pastors encourage them not to leave. There are cases in which members have resolved to join the small church near by, and the pastor of the great church has persuaded them out of it, telling them they cannot afford to do so on account of their children. Let us hope there are few such pastors in the pulpits of Southern Methodism.

Just now we are doing much to instill into our people a missionary spirit, and not without success. If we can make them missionary in the matter of giving their money to the cause of Foreign Missions, we can surely inspire them with that degree of missionary spirit sufficient to place them where they can do the most good, giving themselves and their money to the kingdom at home. There are very few Methodists who would refuse to go into a second or third church if the duty were properly presented. When it becomes possible to divide and build up a new church, let enough go to make it a strong church at once, even at the risk of weakening the old church. It will open a new opportunity to the old church and afford an incentive for more diligent and strenuous work to fill up the ranks thinned by the division. It will also develop the liberality of the church as nothing else will. In some cases help from the Mission Board may be necessary until a start is made, but it is very rare that a church should remain a mission many years.

All the churches of a city of the same denomination should have some strong organic bond of union and co-operation, such as a City Mission Board or City Church Extension Society. This organization should equally or proportionately represent all the churches, and should have some well-defined and important function, such as fixing boundary lines for pastoral charges, instituting mission Sunday-schools, inaugurating and locating new church enterprises, establishing and supporting night schools, hospitals, and any institutional work necessary, and should employ deaconesses and city missionaries to labor under its direction for the benefit of all the churches. This strong bond of union between the churches is very important in any city of two or more churches.

One of the most serious problems of the work in cities is how to conserve and utilize the young life of the church. Most of the conversions should take place in the Sunday-school among the small children. The children should be formed into groups for personal oversight and leadership, and trained to religious activity from the start. In some cities the young people seem indifferent to Christian work. It is mistakenly said sometimes that their conversion was not genuine. Rather should we say that they have not been led into that kind of devoted and consecrated life which makes them Christlike.

With increase of wealth and increase of pleasure and worldiness, there is a corresponding increase of responsibility on the pastors placed in charge of our city work. It is easy to win favor and have smooth sailing, but not so easy to discharge obligations and present every man in his charge perfect in Christ Jesus.

The conditions demand able preaching. The preaching of the Gospel is the last resort. If that fails, all fails. But it must be the preaching of the Gospel, a prophet's message from men who bear the burden of the word of the Lord, who can wield the truth as the mighty sword of the Spirit.—Nashville Advocate.

Pauline Hill Brooks.

BY JNO. N. COLE.

The religious and the secular press have announced the death of this good woman. The end came on the 29th July last at the residence of her brother-in-law, Mr. M. S. Davis, Louisburg, N. C. She was in her sixtieth year. Louisburg was the place of her nativity. It was the home of her ancestors for many generations. Here she was reared in the traditions of a family of long and honorable standing. For the Lord began several generations ahead to produce the virtues that appeared in her life. She was the great-granddaughter of John King, Methodist pioneer preacher, a mighty man in his day, who had much to do in laying the foundations of Methodism and of Christian civilization in this country. She was the great-grand-niece of the celebrated Green Hill, minister, patriot, planter, treasurer of the Commonwealth of North Carolina in 1776. She was the daughter of the late Col. Daniel S. Hill and his wife Susan Irwin Hill. The home of her youth was of noble rank that had a high social setting in a community of exceptional wealth and culture. Here her chilhood was spent, and here she passed into womanhood in the midst of a life as pure and sweet and strengthening as was ever upon the earth. Rarely has a human spirit had a fairer morning or moved amidst scenes that were happier or more inspiring; and rarely has a young heart chosen for itself so many of the excellent virtues. In that early hour, and in the beauty and freshness of her young life, she chose Jesus for her Lord and Saviour and asked that his glorious image might be stamped upon the unworked tablet of her heart. And faithful and true was the dear Lord in the answer He gave to her prayer. Her girlhood was innocent, unselfish, gentle, full of kindness, full of love. The young life in its opening glory revealed the pure atmosphere and the sweet light in which it had found its being. It was natural, and it was the beautiful that in after years when her task seemed finished in the places where God had appointed her to serve, she should return to these scenes of her childhood to end her labors where she had made her beginning, and to sleep at last with her fathers.

In 1879, she was married to Rev. Dr. John R. Brooks, student, author, minister of Christ, and a member of the North Carolina Conference, M. E. Church, South. Never was a minister more happily mated. It was my privilege and heaven's kindness to me to become acquainted with Doctor and Mrs. Brooks about twenty years ago. Our acquaintance soon ripened into a friendship that has brought me great gain. Plutarch said of his brother Timon: "Though fortune has on many occasions been favorable to me, yet I have no obligations to her so great as the enjoyment of my brother's invariable friendship and kindness."

After the same manner I can say that there have come to me few blessings that have so enriched my life as the friendship of Doctor and Mrs. Brooks.

Of Mrs. Brooks, it may be said that she possessed almost every qualification for a life of large and effective usefulness in the kingdom of God. She was an instrument prepared of the Lord. "We are His workmanship created in Christ Jesus unto good works." It was after that pattern and bearing the works of divine workmanship that Mrs. Brooks was fashioned. The Lord gave her an attractive personality. She had all the marks of that true refinement that is essential to all high service. She had an intellect that was always sane in its processes of thought and that always held her to the path of wisdom. She had a heart that found its happiness in doing good. Doing good was the passion of her soul—it was the bright dream of her life. Ah! what kinship she had to her Lord! "Created in Christ Jesus unto good works!" This was the Corinthian pillar in her character. Her mind was always active in plans for doing good. She thought upon her Lord's business, and was never happier than when her Lord opened to her some door of usefulness and of mercy. In the fields in which her husband was appointed to work, she was always his helpmate and co-leader of the hosts of Israel. The good women in every community where she lived found in her true leadership and the loftiest inspiration to service. I never saw her when I was not impressed that she was under the constraint of the love of Christ. Her one business was to do good. In her home, in the Sunday-school, in the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, in the Woman's Home Missionary Society, in the Rescue Work, in visiting the sick and in helping the poor, she found the appropriate service and the fields white unto the harvest that her soul loved. In the sacred precincts of her own heart she kept nothing that was dark or ugly or sinful; Satan held no seat there. She was incapable of revenge. She had no bitterness toward any human spirit. Her heart forgave a wrong before forgiveness was asked. She could not hate anybody. She thought no evil. The blessed Christ walked in the garden of her soul. He was its keeper. Truth was the light of it. Love was the law of its life, and all things sweet and beautiful grew there.

When I think of Mrs. Brooks, I think of the beautiful things, I think of the things that are pure and of the things that are just, and of the things that are lovely and of good report. Her name calls me at once out of the world of coarse and rude things into that world of refinement and grace where God's elect dwell and where nothing that defileth shall enter. Men would never think evil thoughts, there would never be another ugly thing to mar the life of men if they could always be in the presence of such spirits as she was. Her pure spirit forbade the approach of sin. When she was present the leprosy of sin dwelt without the camp.

Ah, how uplifting have been the hours that I have spent in her presence! What discourse of heavenly things, what interchange of thoughts and plans about the Lord's kingdom! What social pastimes that brought rest to tired workers and that inspired to larger service! What strengthening fellowship was in those happy hours! How real heaven was and how true the truth was when I heard of either from her lips.

Her removal from the tasks of earth is a distinct loss to the ranks of God's workers here. We can but believe that the dear Lord has advanced her to higher service in the principality of the skies.

I do not wonder that the evening with her was clear and full of the peace of God, and that the voice that called her awakened no fear because it was the voice of her Lord.

Anti-Saloon League of Bertie.

There will be a convention of the Anti-Saloon Leaguers of Bertie County, held in the courthouse at Windsor, December 13, 1904, at 12 o'clock.

At this convention there will be speaking by some prominent temperance worker, the election of delegates to the State Anti-Saloon League Convention to be held at Raleigh in January and the election of officers for the year 1905. If you are a temperance man, let nothing deter you from coming. It is very important that we keep our League in tack and in working condition. The Legislature is soon to meet. We want to be prepared to throw all of our influence on the side of any possible temperance legislation. Thorough organization alone will bring this about. The Liquor Dealers' Association is at work. We must be. We have elected through the Democratic organizations our choice for Representative. Now let's back him up. If you have not joined the League, this will be your opportunity. I ask all pastors of churches in Bertie County to read this notice to their Bertie congregations, and set them the good example of coming to the convention. Let us take courage from our victories in the past and press forward the cause of temperance in the future. For this is to advance the kingdom of God.

Yours in faith, R. L. DAVIS,
President of Bertie County Anti-Saloon League.
Windsor, N. C., Nov. 14, 1904.

What the religion of Christ desires of us is, not that we should alter the outward form of our life, but that we should infuse a new spirit into it, even the Spirit of Christ. It is not that we should renounce the business or occupation or profession formerly ours, but that we should carry it on henceforth, realizing it to be a way in which God is with us, by which He is leading us, through which He will bring us to a promised heritage at the last.—Andrew Bruce Davidson.

The Dartmouth College Decision, by Chief Justice Marshall.

It is the peculiar function of the Supreme Court of the United States to interpret the Constitution and to guard it from encroachment of both National and State legislation. During the thirty-four years of his judicial career, Chief Justice Marshall gave to the Constitution the liberal powers which were necessary to its durability.

In 1818 an Act of the Legislature of New Hampshire, altering the charter of Dartmouth College was, on an appeal, taken to the Supreme Court, declared null and void; that the College was an eleemosynary corporation with immunity from legislative or municipal disturbance. Upon this decision the present college system of the United States has been endowed and built up.

THE TRUSTEES OF DARTMOUTH COLLEGE VS WOODWARD.

(Syllabus.)

The charter granted by the British crown to the trustees of Dartmouth College, in New Hampshire, in the year 1769, is a contract within the meaning of that clause of the Constitution of the United States, Art. 1, Sec. 10, which declares, that no State shall make any law impairing the obligation of contracts. The charter was not dissolved by the revolution.

An Act of the State Legislature of New Hampshire, altering the charter, without the consent of the corporation, in a material respect, is an Act impairing the obligation of the charter, and is unconstitutional and void.

Under its charter, Dartmouth College was a private, and not a public, corporation. That a corporation is established for purposes of general charity, or for education generally, does not, per se, make it a public corporation, liable to the control of the Legislature.

EXTRACT FROM OPINION OF COURT

It require no argument to prove that the circumstances of this case constitute a contract. An application is made to the crown for a charter to incoporate a religious and literary institution. In the application, it is stated that large contributions have been made for the object, which will be conferred on the corporation as soon as it shall be created. The charter is granted, and on its faith the property is conveyed. Surely in this transaction every ingredient of a complete and legitimate contract is to be found.

The points for consideration are:

1. Is this contract protected by the Constitution of the United States?

2. Is it impaired by the acts under which the defendant holds?

1. On the first point it has been argued, that the word "contract," in its broadest sense, would comprehend the political relations between the government and its citizens, would extend to offices held within a State for State purposes, and to many of those laws concerning civil institutions, which must change with circumstances, and be modified by ordinary legislation, which deeply concerns the public, and which, to preserve good government, the public judgment must control. That even marriage is a contract, and its obligations are affected by the laws respecting divorces. That the clause in the Constitution, if construed in its greatest latitude, would prohibit these laws. Taken in its broadest, unlimited sense, the clause would be an unprofitable and vexatious interference with the internal concerns of a State, would unnecessarily and unwisely embarrass its legislation, and render immutable those civil institutions which are established for purposes of internal government, and which, to subserve those purposes, ought to vary with varying circumstances. That as the framers of the Constitution could never have intended to insert in that instrument a provision so unnecessary, so mischievous, and so repugnant to its general spirit, the term "contract" must be understood in a more limited sense. That it must be understood as intended to guard against a power of at least doubtful utility, and abuse of which had been extensively felt; and to restrain the Legislature in future from violating the right to property. That anterior to the formation of the Constitution, a course of legislation had prevailed in many, if not all, of the States, which weakened the confidence of man in man, and embarrassed all transactions between individuals, by dispensing with a faithful performance of engagements. To correct this mischief, by restraining the power which produced it, the State Legislatures were forbidden "to pass any law impairing the obligation of contracts," that is, of contracts respecting property, under which some individual could claim a right to something beneficial to himself; and that since the clause in the Constitution must in construction receive some limitation, it may be confined, and ought to be confined, to cases of this description; to cases within the mischief it was intended to remedy.

On the effect of this law, two opinions cannot be entertained. Between acting directly, and acting through the agencies of trustees, and overseers, no essential difference is perceived. The whole power of governing the college is transferred from trustees appointed according to the will of the founder, expressed in the charter, to the executive of New Hampshire. The management and application of the funds of this eleemosynary institution, which are placed by the donors in the hands of trustees named in the charter and empowered to perpetuate themselves are placed by this act under the control of the government of the State. The will of the State is substituted for the will of the donors, in every essential operation of the college. This is not an immaterial change. The founders of the college contracted, not merely for the perpetual application of the funds which they gave, to the objects for which those funds were given; they contracted also to secure that application by the constitution of the corporation. They contracted for a system which should, as far as human foresight can provide, retain forever the government of the literary institution they had formed, in the hands of persons approved by themselves. This system is totally changed. The charter of 1769 exists on longer. It is reorganized, and reorganized in such a manner as to convert a literary institution, moulded according to the will of its founders, and placed under the control of private literary men, into a machine entirely subservient to the will of the government.

This may be for the advantage of this college in particular and may be for the advantage of literature in general, but it is not according to the will of the donors, and is subsersive of that contract on the faith of which their property was given.

Watchfulness.

ERNEST BURHAM.

It is now the time of the year to be watchful. We are getting in our money now, and if we don't mind some of us will let it slip for some very foolish thing, as gambling, drinking, and other evil things; but it is a very foolish thing to work hard all the year, and just as soon as you get in your money, that you have worked so hard for, go and spend it for those foolish things. But I hope there are not many that will do that way this fall; but of course, there are some that will.

The devil is going to tempt us, but let us be strong and watchful, and yield not to the temptations of the evil spirit.

And there are other things that we might do if we do not watch, as using profanity, smoking and chewing tobacco, etc. I don't know as there is so much harm in smoking and chewing tobacco, but there is some harm in it. It will not do anybody much good, and let us save that much, and use it for some good purpose. Let us watch and pray so that we may receive a blessing in the eternal life to come.

The memory of the past is only worth preserving as a motive to the future.—Sunday School Times.

The Field

Conway Circuit.

"Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven." This is the reason for the appearance of this letter.

If other charges "have whereof to glory," Conway certainly has not less. And here are some of the facts of which is born what we believe a "pardonable pride."

By a rearrangement of circuits in 1902, one of the churches, Concord, with a membership of about 110, was given to an adjoining circuit, leaving four churches on this charge and bringing the work within easier reach of the pastor. The former arrangement was exceedingly difficult.

Nothwithstanding the loss of one church, and the removal by death and otherwise of many members of the remaining four churches, the total amount of money raised for all purposes during the three years immediately preceding the present (i. e., 1901, 1902, 1903) is considerably more than double that raised during the three years next preceding (i. e., 1898, 1899 and 1900). One church alone in 1903 raised more for the collections than did the whole circuit (five churches) in 1900. During these years our assessments for the various Conference collections have been raised, and a little added for good measure. The assessments had not been raised for nine years preceding 1901.

While charity has not been chained at home, she has not neglected home; for we have now a splendid new parsonage, fairly well furnished, where nearly any preacher with a family smaller than Susannah Wesley's might bestow his loved ones in tolerable comfort. The parsonage property four years ago was valued at about $300, now at $1,900, an increase due, not to advance of values, but to the value of advances.

And again, Conway has a bright prospect of a new church of modern pattern, a delight to the eye and adequate to the needs of the place. The subscriptions to the building fund are now not far below the requirements, and we are enjoying the hope of a new house to worship in early in the new year. For this prospect, as well as for the parsonage, already finished, occupied and paid for with the exception of a very few dollars, we are indebted to the untiring zeal of our present pastor, Rev. W. C. Merritt. As this is his fourth and last year with us, we give him our most hearty "God bless you," as he goes up to Conference to learn what people he is next to serve.

And yet, notwithstanding the unusual activity in repairing and improving the old churches, and the burden of building a new one, our pastor expects to receive his salary in full for the present year, as for the last three years he has received the full amount, and more.

"Last but not least," the accessions to church membership on profession of faith during the last four years have averaged about twenty-three a year.

If the liberality of a people in contributing to the financial support of the church is even a fairly good index of the State of their spiritual health —the pulse-beat, from which we may judge as to the condition of the heart; if "by their fruits ye shall know them," then it seems as if the people of Conway Circuit had been receiving and assimilating a liberal supply of wholesome spiritual food, and grown stronger because of it.

Yet we boast not but in the Lord: we are unprofitable servants. D. H. REED, M. D.

Conway, N. C., November 13, 1904.

Bladen Circuit.

We closed a good meeting at Beattie's Bridge last week which was our last for this year. The church was revived, a goodly number were converted, and fifteen added to the church on profession of faith. Our people there have planned to build a church and will begin the work right away. The progress of our work here has been impeded by our not having a suitable place to worship in. We have had gracious revivals at several of our appointments this year, while at others it seemed to be only seed-sowing. Rev. D. H. Coman, of Lenoir, N. C., preached ten days for us at Bethlehem. Our people there were edified and strengthened by his preaching. Brother Coman needs no commendation from me, but I would like to say this—he is the finest Bible expositor from a spiritual standpoint that I have heard. Rev. D. G. McDuffie and J. H. Johnson helped me at Center and Live Oak, doing faithful work. In many respects this has been the best of our four year's work on Bladen Circuit.

Under the divine providence that has so kindly overshadowed us we have made some material progress during these four years, though we have not grown much numerically. We have added ninety to the church on profession of faith, yet have made a net gain of only one. This large falling off is due to three causes: revision of the church register, enforcement of the discipline, and our people moving away. Our people at Antioch have built a new church complete, which is one of the prettiest and best furnished country churches I have seen. Our people at Center have ceiled their church, and those at Bethel have moved their church from a place where it had almost run down to where the congregations have increased several hundred per cent, and the membership has nearly doubled in the last two years. Prior to 1902 the circuit had never paid over 50 per cent of the Conference collections. That year we paid all of the assessment for missions and 50 per cent on all others. In 1903, we paid all the collections in full with a small surplus on missions. This year we will pay all in full, with an increased surplus.

The preacher that is read out for Bladen Circuit at Henderson need have no fears, if he is not afraid to work, for we have here as good, kind, clever people as you will find anywhere. They have been almost continually giving us some substantial token of appreciation, such as $5.00 in cash by Bethlehem stewards, a large quarter of fine beef, pigs, hams, chickens, smaller sums of money, etc., etc.

Several weeks ago the good women of Bethlehem and Deen's Chapel presented my wife with a purse to buy a dress.

To say that we are devoutly grateful to our Heavenly Father and these good people for this kindness but feebly expresses our feelings.

Our work here among these good people, while hard, often-times over-taxing our strength, has been very pleasant, and our association and work with them will always have a pleasant place in our memory. A. J. GROVES.

Trinity College Notes.

Mr. J. W. Bailey, of Raleigh, editor of the Biblical Recorder, will deliver a lecture in Craven Memorial Hall, Friday evening, November 18th. The subject of the lecture will be "Political Readjustment of the South. This is the second of the series of lectures arranged for by the Committee of the Faculty. Mr. Bailey's coming is looked forward to with pleasure and the public is cordially invited to hear him.

Mr. A. L. Phillips, of Richmond, Va., Secretary of the Sunday School Board of the Presbyterian church, delivered a most interesting address in the Y. M. C. A. Hall last evening on "The Opportunities of the Southern College Man."

Bishop Wallace W. Duncan, of Spartanburg, S. C., is spending a few days at the Park as the guest of President Kilgo. Bishop Duncan is a great favorite with the College and community, and he is always a welcome visitor to Trinity Park.

President Kilgo and Professor Plato T. Durham have recently returned from the sessions of the Western North Carolina Conference at Charlotte.

The library has recently received a number of new books which have been published this fall for the various departments of the college. Other consignments of book are expected in a short time.

During the present week there have been a large number of visitors to the Trinity campus and buildings from among those in attendance at the sessions of the Presbyterian Synod, which is this year being held in Durham. The College Library has been the centre of attraction.

Trinity College, Durham, N. C., Nov. 17, 1904.

South Mills.

Dear Dr. Ivey:—It is now two weeks to Conference, but my work is already about finished. Conference collections practically all in hand. I have already doubled the amount for the Advocate and will collect much more.

Through the kindness of Dr. J. L. Lister and W. A. Foster, I was enabled to see the great World's Fair at St. Louis. I think ten days in this Fair is worth two or three years in college. One can learn much as he passes through those large buildings if he will look and think.

Last Sunday I made my last trip to Wesley's at Old Trap. The day was very rainy, but a good congregation met us, and God was with us too. It was hard to say good-bye to those good people. May God ever bless them. When I was leaving, Bro. J. D. Perkins handed me $21.25 to buy me a suit for Conference. More would have been given but for the rain that kept several away. Such kindness can never be forgotten. I also received a very fine China cup and saucer, the gift of Miss Clara Burgess.

There is a stock company being formed at Old Trap to build a $1,200 academy. About all the stock has been taken.

Doctor, you see we are on the up-grade, and old Camden Circuit is forging to the front.

Yours in Christ, W. E. HOCUTT.

Morehead City.

On last Sunday we closed a series of meetings which had lasted two weeks. Brother Earp, of Beaufort, was with us one day and preached two good sermons. The rest of the preaching was done by the pastor. As a partial result of the meeting, twelve persons were received into the church Sunday night on profession of faith. In all, we have received into the church this year on profession of faith nineteen and by certificate eleven.

Our finances are in good shape. The collections will all be paid in full, with the missionary assessment overpaid. The collection at the missionary rally day service held a few weeks ago amounted to $80.

The Harry North School is in prosperous condition. There have been enrolled this fall 143 pupils. An extra teacher has recently been employed, there being now five teachers giving their whole time to the work. The friends and patrons of the school are very much pleased with the work being done. R. H. WILLIS.

L. F. C. Notes.

Littleton Female College will soon witness the completion of its heating and lighting plant which will be one of the best owned by any Southern school. The generator is a 37½ K. W., of the Westinghouse type, driven by a forty-horse power Eclipse engine.

The heating plant is the Evans-Almirall system of hot-water heat which is believed to be the best system in the world. It is the one in use at the University of North Carolina and at Trinity College.

The matriculation of the college has already extended beyond that of the whole of last year, the number having matriculated thus far being 216.

Never indulge inordinate desires for an earthly good. Experience has taught me to fear the gratification of any ardent desire, unless I have first been brought to yield my own will entirely.—Mary Lyon.

Tar River Circuit.

Dear Advocate:—I have been thinking for some time I would write you a few things about the Tar River Circuit. The spiritual interest of the charge, I am sure, has been progressing for some time, and during the revival season the church was much quickened and many souls were regenerated, and the visible result of the meetings is, eighteen have been added to the church on profession and two by certificate. To Him be all the praise and glory.

Rev. W. H. Puckett gave us valuable service at Trinity by preaching some fine sermons. Rev. L. S. Massey preached two excellent sermons at Ebenezer which all enjoyed and much good was accomplished. Dr. L. L. Nash preached two able and soul-stirring sermons at Plank Chapel, and our beloved Presiding Elder, Dr. W. H. Moore, gave us one of his strong, instructive sermons at this point. Rev. J. W. Holmes, of the Protestant church, gave us valuable aid at Kittrell. We are very thankful to all these brethren for their valuable help and assure them we were much benefitted by their coming.

We want to thank the people for their kind consideration of us and their love for us in contributing to our pantry during the year, and I feel that the Trinity congregation needs special notice in this regard; on our return they gave us a heavy pounding and very few times since has the preacher left them for home without some contribution and some times his buggy loaded.

I want to say further that the material interest of the church has been making progress also. We have spent $115.00 improving the parsonage this year, repairing the inside, furnishing some necessary things, painting inside of parlor and painting the outside, also the fence, giving the place a much more pleasing and attractive appearance as well as giving the occupants the necessary comforts.

We have also repaired Ebenezer church, making it much larger and much more desirable in every way, and the members of this congregation are to be congratulated and deserve credit.

Besides all other things, our four Sunday-schools are caring for Charles Ross Ashley, one of the orphans, and the work is doing much more for the Orphanage that the Superintendent knows not of yet, but will know soon. On the whole, the good people of this charge have done well, and we are sure they will continue, for they love their church and her interests.

Begging you to pardon us for taking so much of your space, and wishing you much prosperity, I am, A. L. ORMOND.

A Commendation.

Resolutions of appreciation, adopted by the Board of Stewards of Goldsboro Circuit, New Bern District, N. C. Conference, November, 1904.

Wheras, the Conference year is nearing its close when thef ull time limit of four years, allotted by our church, will have been served so faithfully for a second term by our beloved Presiding Elder, Rev. F. D. Swindell, whose acceptable service, coupled with his genial spirit has won a place in our affections that time cannot effacc, and we know that he cannot be returned to us as our Presiding Elder; therefore be it

Resolved 1. That we, the Board of Stewards of Goldsboro Circuit, wish here to express for the people we represent as well as outsiders, our highest esteem for him as a truly meek, polite, cheerful Christion gentleman, going about doing good, carrying joy and sunshine in many homes, making glad many a burdened heart as well as performing so faithfully and well every duty assigned him, and that no interest of our church has suffered or been neglected by him.

2. That we regret our separation, but rejoice because we have thus been twice honored with such association and so noble and gallant a leader, and we pray that his services will be rewarded by an appointment to as worthy people as we, and will love him as we do, and his place will be supplied by one who will carry our banner triumphantly, and with it the sincere love and confidence of our District.

3. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the Raleigh Christian Advocate for publication, and that the Goldsboro Argus copy the same.

Signed in behalf of the Board of Stewards.

R. W. EDGERTON,
Chairman and Secretary.

The Family

A Song for Thanksgiving.

A song for Thanksgiving! Weve garnered the wheat,
We've gathered the vintage all purple and sweet;
To-day we may feast, for the reaping is done,
The crowns of fulfillment our labors have won!

And over the land, in the blessing of God,
The banners of peace wave in beauty abroad;
In freedom of conscience the home is seenre;
What the fathers bequeathed to the children is sure.

Thank God for the schools where the little ones throng,
For their sweet, silvery voices in story and song;
Thank God for the promise of hope in their eyes
To serve Him when they to our places shall rise!

Thank God for the Gospel that carries afar
The tidings once gleaming in Bethlehem's star!
Thank God that the desert grows bright with the rose,
As o'er its waste spaces life's glad river flows!

A song for Thanksgiving! To Him be the praise
Who has pledged to His people full strength for their days
A song for Thanksgiving! We honor the name
Of the Triune Jehovah, through ages the same!

—Margaret E. Sangster.

"God Reigns and All is Well!"

"God's in His heaven—all's right with the world."—Robert Browning.

I

God reigns and all is well!
No sparrow falls, no flower lives its day
Without His loving care that guards alway.
Who shall His wonders tell?

II.

God reigns and all is well!
The stream of living water ever flows.
The wilderness shall blossom as the rose.
Love conquers death and hell.

III.

God reigns and all is well!
His love accepts His children's sacrifice.
To blend with angel-tones our praises rise.
Our songs of triumph swell.

IV.

God reigns and all is well!
None asks in vain for help to bear the cross.
The poverty of life, the pain and loss.
The solemn passing-bell.

V.

Of youthful hopes, their knell
Rings in our hearts; yet love and mercy sweet
In benediction make our lives complete.
God reigns and all is well!

—Martha A. Kidder, in The Living Church.

Thanksgiving Catechism.

Here is a Thanksgiving catechism, with the answers to the questions appended:

1. When was the first Thanksgiving proclamation in this country?

2. Who makes the Thanksgiving proclamation?

3. How is it done?

4. What is done with the proclamation when it has been thus written and signed?

5. What do the different Governors of the States do when they have received their copies of the President's proclamation?

6. Who signed the first Thanksgiving proclamation ever issued by a President?

1. November 19, 1621; made by Governor Bradford to the Pilgrim fathers. He announced that since they had just gathered abundant harvests of grain and the cold weather had sent plenty of game to their forests, December 13, 1621, would be observed throughout the Plymouth colony as a day of thanksgiving.

2. The President of the United States.

3. The President writes it out with his own hand, trying to put in as much of the spirit of the day as possible. This is not an easy task. He must avoid repeating expressions that have been used by preceding Presidents, and yet he must cover the same ground that they covered.

When he has finished writing it out it is copied and this copy is sent to the State Department. One of the clerks who is a good penman writes the proclamation artistically on parchment. The parchment is then sent back to the White House, and the President signs it. After that it is taken back to the State Department, where the Secretary of State adds his name. Then the great seal of the State Department is affixed.

In order to put the great seal on the proclamation a note from the President is necessary, in which he says: "I hereby authorize and direct the Secretary of State to cause the seal of the United States to be affixed to my Thanksgiving proclamation, dated this day and signed by me, and for so doing this shall be his warrant."

4. A great many clerks in the State Department are then ordered to make as many copies of the proclamation as there are Governors of States and Territories. These copies are written by hand on long sheets of blue paper. The State Department never uses the typewriter or any other means except artistic handwriting for making copies of official correspondence.

5. They then write special proclamations of their own, announcing to the people of their States the fact that the President has fixed on such and such a day for the observance of thanksgiving, worship, and festivities.

6. George Washington, in 1782.—Boston Herald.

The Commercial Value of a Good Mother.

Boys recommend their mothers, we sometimes say, but mothers also recommend their sons. His mother's character, in a place where she is known, is a valuable part of the stock-in-trade of a boy just entering upon business. A striking instance of this has come to our knowledge in a most unexpected quarter—the liquor trade. A boy from the country applied for a position in a liquor-store in Boston, and would have entered upon the work had not his mother objected. The proprietors made an effort to get her to withdraw her objection, and wrote as follows:

"We employ some fifty-odd men, and have not a single man who is not steady, upright and industrious. We are even stricter and more particular than we would be if engaged in any other business, and, unless your determination is fixed, we would like you to come to Boston and see us. The fact that your son has a mother that is interested in and watching over him is one of the strongest recommendations he could have for us."

This is much better testimony to the commercial value of a good mother than it is to the business which handles such dangerous goods that it is forced to insist that its servants shall be as unlike as possible to its customers.—Congregationalist.

A Sunday Meditation.

The ringing bells call me to Thy house, O Lord, on this day set apart for thy worship.

All days are thine, O Lord, and in all the ways of life, and in all places, I may truly adore thee.

But on this day, and in thy house, where thy people assemble in thy name to honor thee and to hear thy Word, there are treasures of grace and strength and peace for all the other days and for all the other duties of life.

Therefore, O Lord, hear thy servant, who now goes forth for this blessed season of public devotion and instruction.

I surrender myself to thee; I leave behind me all worldly cares and studies; I go to thy house to join with thy people in loving and reverent devotion, and as we shall together praise thy name, hear thy Word, plead thy promises, and consecrate ourselves to thy constant service, do thou pour out upon us, O Holy Father, thy blessed Holy Spirit, through Jesus Christ our Lord.—Bishop Vincent.

Our Boys and Girls

Jack Frost.

He's taken a nip at the salvia bush,
Its flower is turned to black;
He blew a breath on the hollyhocks,
Their bloom will never come back.
He danced in the meadow all night long
And turned it a rusty brown,
And now do you see, he's touched the trees,
And the leaves are straying down.

He softly covers the window panes
With sketches rich and rare
As ever with dainty paint and brush
An artist could picture there.
And so, though the merry birds are flown,
The song of the stream is lost,
And summer is hiding far away,
We'll try to forgive Jack Frost.

—Sydney Dare.

The Little Brown Bowl.

PHILA BUTLER BOWMAN.

Once there was a little brown bowl that stayed always in a great closet among many other bowls.

There were big bowls and little bowls, bowls with beautiful gold bands, and bowls over whose sides clamored rosebuds so beautifully painted that they looked as though they were growing. There was a bowl that wore violets all around its brim, like a little girl wearing violets on her hat. And there was one broad, shallow bowl tinted with such colors as are in the sky when the sun is going down, and on this bowl was the prettiest little shepherdess! She wore a broad hat and a blue dress, and her eyes and lips always laughed.

So it can be seen that there were bowls of every description, only that all were beautiful except the little brown bowl, which could never be anything but a plain, thick little brown bowl, with not even a daisy to wear. She was so shy among all her beautiful companions that she did not often speak; but one day, when the maid, who took care of the china, set a pretty little pitcher so close to her that it touched, she gathered courage to ask why the shepherdess always smiled, and why all the other bowls were taken out of the closet at times and then brought back again, but she was always left.

The little pitcher told the little brown bowl that the shepherdess smiled because she was happy; for every morning she was carried to the big, sunny breakfast room, where Clarita ate her bread and milk from the shepherdess bowl.

Then the little brown bowl grew bolder, and said, so loudly that everybody heard, "And why don't they come and get me sometimes, as they get the shepherdess bowl, and the violet bowl, and the rest?"

And the little pitcher answered—for I have said the little pitcher was always kind—"They have not needed you yet. Perhaps some day you may be needed. Then the maid will come and get you."

"And shall I see Clarita then?" cried the little brown bowl, in great happiness. But before the little pitcher could answer, such a laugh arose from the mouths of all the bowls that they rattled on the closet shelves and the maid said: "How the wind blows!"

"Ah," cried the rosebud bowl, "you foolish thing, you will always stay on the closet shelf! You are too ugly ever to be needed. Do you see the big rosebuds on my sides? Clarita loves them. Once I sat for an hour on a little table and held bonbons for her."

"And I," said the gold-banded bowl, "have been near her at dinner, and held water where she dipped her rosy fingers." And the gold-banded bowl laughed scornfully. "But she loves beautiful things. She would never look at you."

"No, indeed," said the violet bowl. "I wonder that you were ever put here. Once, long ago, for an hour, I was carried to Clarita's own room and held violets for her."

"Yes, and you were upset," cried a tall vase, "which showed that you were never meant to hold flowers. I wonder at Clarita's ever taking you."

But the little brown bowl sat quite still and very sad. She knew, at last, why for so long she had stayed in the closet, never taken out, and never needed. If only she, too, could have been beautiful! And she wished she might go away and never come back, since she could never be loved and never be of any use.

She must have wished it aloud, in her sadness of heart, for the shepherdess bowl, to whom all the others always listened, spoke to her very gently: "Do not grieve, little brown bowl. Clarita loves beautiful things, but she loves useful things, and, if she ever sees you, she will love you. Only be patient and wait."

And the little brown bowl grew very quiet. Her life had never been a very bright one. She had wished, sometimes, that she might be needed and used, as all the others seemed to be; but she had never known what it was to be unhappy.

Today, for the first time, she had been pained by rude, unfriendly words; but today she had learned to hope, and it was the best thing the little brown bowl had ever known.

So the days came and went. Each morning the shepherdess bowl was carried away and came back, looking brighter than before; and one by one the violet bowl and the rosebud bowl and the gold-banded bowl were taken out, and brought back—I am sorry to say—haughty and vain, and saying scornful and unkind things to the little brown bowl.

There came one morning when the maid came in and hastily set the little pitcher down; and the little pitcher, who always heard what was going on, was quite breathless with eagerness.

It was Clarita's birthday, she said, and Clarita was eight years old, and eight beautiful hyacinths were lying by her place at table; and Clarita, as soon as she saw them, would surely be looking for something to hold them.

"Oh, dear," sighed the shepherdess bowl. "Perhaps, if I were not so shallow, she might take me, since she loves me. Think of the joy of holding Clarita's birthday flowers!"

"Are the hyacinths purple?" asked the violet bowl. "Indeed, I stand a good chance, with my lovely shape and color, of being chosen at once."

"You, indeed!" cried the tall vase. "None of you are fit to hold flowers. It would be well for you to be taught your place. As for this pert violet bowl, after the disgrace she has suffered, trying to hold flowers, one would as soon expect Clarita to choose that ugly, silent little brown bowl in the corner!"

But no one answered; for just then the door swung open, and the little brown bowl saw, for the first time, a little girl with sunny hair, lovelier than she had ever dreamed.

Her lips wore a smile happier than that of the shepherdess, and her eyes were deep, like pools of quiet water.

She held her flowers lovingly and looked eagerly among the bowls, seeking something, touched the rosebud bowl for a moment, and then—the little brown bowl fairly trembled with joy, for Clarita was looking straight at her, and crying out: "O, here is the dearest little brown bowl, mamma, just right for my flowers! It is so deep and so strong, and too heavy to upset. Why did I never find you before, little brown bowl! You shall hold flowers for me all summer!"

Long days afterward the little brown bowl, filled, as she always was now, with flowers, found herself on Clarita's breakfast table, close to the shepherdess bowl.

"Dear shepherdess bowl," she whispered, "I love you, because you were kind to me when I needed you."

And the shepherdess bowl whispered back softly: "I told you it was better to be able to hold beautiful things than to be beautiful outside."

And the shepherdess smiled more brightly than ever before.—The Churchman.

How Alice Found Her Mamma.

Alice was a doll. So her mamma was a little girl, of course—a little girl named Lina. Now there was to be held, in the old city of Salem, a big three days' fair, and Lina's mamma was to help at one of the tables. She took her little daughter with her, and the child spent whole days, only going home for her dinners.

You must know that in those days, the beautiful dolls, with poreclain heads, glass eyes and real hair, were not at all common, as they are now. Sometimes some fortunate little maiden would have an aunt or a generous-minded uncle, who traveled a great deal, and who would bring her one from the far-away city of Paris—but such dolls were not often seen.

On the very first day of the fair Lina was watching some ladies arrange the table that stood next to her mother's and right in the centre they placed a beautiful doll, the loveliest doll that she had ever seen! She had long flaxen haid and blue eyes, and her lovely head would turn, and each day she was dressed in a charming new gown.

Lina loved dollies more even than most little girls do, and from the moment she first saw this one, it seemed to her as if there were nothing else in the whole fair worth looking at. She used to stand by that table by the hour, and gaze at the lovely doll child, and wonder and wonder how it would seem to own such a dolly as that.

One day she was dressed in a dainty white dress, all tucked and ruffled; another day she wore a black and white Japanese silk all trimmed with rows of cherry velvet; and this dress was made real little girl style, "all buttoned up and down" behind, with wee cherry-colored buttons; and on that day she carried a little jumprope in her hand, as if she were just going out to play. On the third day she was dressed in blue poplin, trimmed with a narrow white silk fringe, and she had a charming little blue parasol, just to match, that would open and shut. A red-lined seal-skin sack and cap were displayed as belonging to her, and other pretty hats.

Each day she grew to be more wonderful and more entirely delightful to the little girl who stood by the table and looked with longing eyes.

The dolly stood in her place till the very end of the fair, and almost everybody who came to look at her, saw also the little girl with the eager face, and many people wished that she might have the doll which she evidently so much admired.

Now, it so happened that the lady who did have the doll was a dear friend of the little girl's mother, and she had watched the quiet, upturned face many times while the fair was going on. Her own children were all grown up, and did not care to play with dolls at all, so perhaps you can guess what she did with this beautiful creature, all nicely put up, with her whole wardrobe, her jumprope and sun-shade, in a large, dark green box!

On New Year's morning, which came only a few days after the fair had closed, Lina heard her mother calling her—and the dear mother voice had a great deal of love and gladness in it as it said:

"Come, little daughter, come into the sitting-room; there's is something here for you!"

Quickly the child ran, and there on the sofa lay a large, dark green box, plainly marked with her name. Her mother left the room, so that Lina was all alone with the big box—I think she may have peeped through the crack of the door, for I am quite sure she would have wanted to see her lassie's face when she lifted the cover.

Well, the cover was lifted, and there, inside, lay the beautiful doll—the very one that Lina had loved so at the fair, and thought she should never see again—there she lay, and she was her very own now, her own to keep!

She named her Alice, and she loved her just as a little mamma should love her child—and she kept her, how long do you think? She kept her till she was a grown-up woman, and had a little golden-haired girl of her own! And now, this little golden-haired girl plays with Alice.

Some other day I am going to tell you how Lina went to housekeeping, with Alice for her child.—Selected.

FREE

SEND FOR IT.

A new "Royal Baker and Pastry Cook." A collection of the best practical receipts for every day American cookery. Revised edition, with ample notes, comments and directions. Ask for the new edition.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

THOUSANDS OF CHILDREN

Suffer untold agonies from ring worm, ground itch, eczema, scalp eruptions and other itching diseases of the skin. Their parents can relieve these helpless little ones promptly by the use of Tetterine, 50 cents per box, all druggists or by mail from the manufacturer, J. T. Shuptrine, Savannah, Ga.

Whatever you wish to accomplish, be willing to do, and to commence your work at once, right where you find yourself, and decide that you do not want anything better to begin with than the conditions that surround you, for God is with you.—Raja Yoga.

Woman's Foreign Missionary Society

Please send all communications for this Department to Mrs. B. F. Dixon, Raleigh, N. C.

Officers of the W. F. M. S. of the N. C. Conference, June, 1903-'04.

President—Mrs. Lucy A. Cunninggim, Greensboro, N. C
Vice-President—Mrs. R. A. Willis, Littleton, N. C.
Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. F. D. Swindell, Goldsboro, N. C.
Recording Secretary—Miss Blanche Fentress, Wilmington, N. C.
Treasurer—Mrs. B. B. Adams, Four Oaks, N. C.
Superintendent and Treasurer Juevnile Work—Mrs. L. M. Hendren, New Berne, N. C.

"The earth is full of the goodness of the Lord—let us come before His presence with thanksgiving—bring an offering, and come into His courts."

Week of Prayer is being observed this week in Edenton Street Auxiliary. A large number of members are in attendance every afternoon. We are glad to note an increase in interest and offerings.

The Secretaries of the Durham, Wilmington, Warrenton and Elizabeth City District have our sincere thanks for their kind responses to our call for news from their work—it is all encouraging news, so far, and will be given to our readers as we have room.

Perhaps some of the members of our missionary auxiliaries do not realize the magnitude of their work and office. Read the following selection:

O ye members of the Woman's Foreign Misionary Society, be glad and joyous! You are laborers in the vineyard of the Lord; you are co-workers with God; you are shepherds to gather into the fold those that are far astray; you are watchmen on the towers of Zion; you are pilots on the trackless sea of ignorance; you have been commissioned to enlist soldiers for the campaign against sin and idolatry; you have been appointed by the High Architect of the universe to be a master builder for the temples of the Holy Spirit; you have been called to be embassadors for the King! More than these, you are the Lord's treasurers, His stewards.

Here is a letter to you, dear Bright Jewels—be sure to hear and heed the wise council of your faithful leader, Mrs. L. M. Hendren:

"Dear Jewels: It is only about a month before the Christmas season will be with us again. I hope you are planning for an entertainment in the interest of our work.

"In celebrating the advent of the Savior of mankind, how appropriate that those who are enjoying the glorious results of this grand and wonderful advent, should seek to share its blessings with those in ignorance of the provisions made for their salvation!

Children in heathen lands know nothing of the joys of Christmas time, and to you children in this happy favored land, their sad condition should appeal with special power, and awaken in your hearts a willing response to do what you can to give them the light of the Gospel.

"By sending to 'The Lorenze Pub. Co., Dayton, O.,' you can secure a program called 'World Wide Christmas,' containing many beautiful, inspiring songs and appropriate recitations, at fifty-five cents per dozen copies.

"Attend to this at once, and by your efforts cause the children in heathen lands to hear with you the glad strain that once pealed in the plains of Bethlehem.

"Lovingly,
"AUNT LIZZIE."

The following letter from the beloved Secretary of the Wilmington District, Mrs. James Gibbons, will be enjoyed by our readers:

"Dear Mrs. Dixon: I hope the women of the Wilmington District are becoming more zealous and interested in missionary work—which means growing in grace—as last year's reports showed a decided increase, both in membership and collections.

The summer reports are never very good, so those for the last quarter were not encouraging; but I trust the auxiliaries in my District will buckle on the armor of faith and good works, by attending the meetings regularly, and bringing in full collections for all purposes, now that the heated term is over, and all are at home again. I shall write to all my Corresponding Secretaries of auxiliaries and Lady Managers of juvenile work, asking them to send you frequently items of interest connected with their work, for our column in the Advocate. I will endeavor to give you something of the District work every quarter.

"You heard through Mrs. E. L. Prince, President of Grace Church Auxiliary of our annual District Meeting; also something of the Society. I hope she will give you another item soon. Grace auxiliary, and the Bright Jewel Band of that church, are in a flourishing condition.

"We organized a Bright Jewel Band at Fifth Street Church, Wilmington, last quarter, thirty-nine members enrolled.

"I will organize a Golden Link Society in this little town (Wallace, N. C.), in the near future.

"The small auxiliaries in the District seem to take great interest in the missionary work, and will, I hope, let you hear from them during the year.

"My heart is in this work, and I pray that many names may be added to the list of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society during this year. Yours sincerely,

"IDA E. GIBBONS."

DOESN'T RESPECT OLD AGE.

It's shameful when youth fails to show proper respect for old age, but just the contrary in the case of Dr. King's New Life Pills. They cut off maladies no matter how severe and irrespective of old age. Dyspepsia, Jaundice, Fever, Constipation all yield to this perfect Pill. Twenty-five cents at all druggists.

This Fur Scarf, $7.50

RIVER MINK Scarf, lined with satin, three tails on each end.
A splendid quality for at a very little price.
Muff to match it for $5.00.
If, after receiving the fur, it doesn't suit you, return it to us in good condition and we'll refund the money.
Write us for samples of Dress Goods.

Write for our new Catalogues of INFANTS' FURNISHINGS, LACE CURTAINS and CHRISTMAS BOOKS.

You'd better write for these things to-day.
We prepay charges on all orders of $5.00 and over.

Miller & Rhoads
Richmond, Va.

Woman's Home Mission Society

Please send all communications for this Department to MRS. R. O. BURTON, Raleigh, N. C.

Officers of W. H. M. S. of the N. C. Conference.

President—Mrs. J. E. Underwood, Elizabeth City.
First Vice-President—Mrs. V. Royster, Raleigh.
Second Vice-President—Mrs. K. P. Black, Littleton.
Third Vice-President—Mrs. J. A. Spiers, Selma.
Recording Secretary—Mrs. C. P. Jerome, West Durham.
Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. S. H. Scott, New Bern.
Treasurer—Mrs. E. L. Prince, Wilmington.
Superintendent of Supplies—Mrs. Ivan Proctor, Raleigh.
Superintendent of Literature and Press Work—Mrs. R. O. Burton.

Manteo Auxiliary.

Again I have been cheered by a charming letter from one of our young women, Miss Hattie S. Taylor, Corresponding Secretary of the Manteo Auxilary. I will share a portion of it with our readers:

"We have a flourishing Missionary Society here. The President, Miss Ruth Evans, is a fine, energetic young girl.

"We have had only two regular meetings, and I suppose our members number twenty-five. We are working to send in a fine report by December 1st.

"The Week of Prayer was observed and very well attended. The leaflets read were enjoyed by all. Miss Dicken, our Treasurer, is the same good church worker she was when you knew her.

"Our band is just starting out, and we want the prayers of all the officers, I am

"Most sincerely yours,
"HATTIE S. TAYLOR."

I feel that the prayers of our entire Society will ascend for these enthusiastic young women, and I believe their faithful efforts will be greatly blessed.

An Item From Ahoskie.

I find that the youngest of our Band, Ahoskie, organized with 15 members, five of whom subscribed at once for Our Home, and with the subscriptions sent an order for the Wolff Record Books. This wise beginning augurs well, and, I doubt not, we will soon be receiving good reports.

Latest News From "Our Home."

The subscription list of the organ of our Society now numbers 10,068, an increase of 801 since April. May the time soon come when this excellent paper shall be in every Methodist home throughout our connection!

The Week of Prayer and Self-Denial as Held by Windsor Auxiliary.

Miss Helen Gillam, the efficient Corresponding Secretary of Windsor, writes of the growing interest in her Auxiliary, shown in the best possible way, viz.: the increase in membership. Their pastor preached an excellent Home Mission sermon at the close of Prayer Week, and I publish below the fine program of the last day, which services, she added, the President, Mrs. H. V. Dunstan, made very impressive:

PROGRAMME.

Hymn 342, "Must Jesus Bear the Cross Alone"?
Prayer, by Mrs. R. L. Davis.
Scripture lesson, St. Matthew, chap. 9.
Reception of three new members.
Hymn 489, "Hark the Voice of Jesus Calling, 'Who Will Go and Work Today?'"
Selection from "Our Home," read by Mrs. M. F. Gillam.
Solo, by Miss Maud Gurley.
Recitation, by Miss Helen E. Gillam.
Hymn 540, "Jesus, I My Cross Have Taken."
Reading, "How Persis Green could make an offering," by Miss Mac Nicholls.
Paper, "How the Woman's Home Mission Society Helps the Pastor," by Miss Helen E. Gillam.
Sentence Prayer, led by Mrs. H. V. Dunstan.
Collection for the week, $11.00.
These beautiful exercises show careful planning, and the generous offering tells of self-denial and consecration.

QUERY.

"The Board appropriated fixed sums for each department of the work. These sums comply as nearly as possible with the estimates from the field. They are made on the basis that each auxiliary will raise a sum corresponding to its membership over and above dues. When auxiliaries insist on directing their donations to cover some phases of the work not included in the estimate from the field, will they tell us how we are expected to meet these obligations?"

This is to remind us of the confusion, indeed, consternation, that would result if many auxiliaries were to take up work outside of that arranged by the Board, and without their advice and consent. I cannot believe that one would willingly infringe upon the laws. Let us, then, study them carefully and know thoroughly, and continue to rejoice in our careful, conscientious, consecrated leaders.

A Repeated Request.

I hope all Auxiliary Corresponding Secretaries will send their reports to our Conference Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Scott, that she may have a full report for Conference. Also that all will write me of every article published in secular papers, as well as report the use of Bulletins in the regular meetings.

A Notre Dame Lady's Appeal.

To all knowing sufferers of rheumatism whether muscular or of the joints, sciatica, lumbagos, backache, pains in the kidneys or neuralgia pains, to write to her for a home treatment which has repeatedly cured all of these tortures. She feels it her duty to send it to all sufferers FREE. You cure yourself at home as thousands will testify—no change of climate being necessary. This simple discovery banishes uric acid from the blood, loosens the stiffened joints, purifies the blood, and brightens the eyes, giving elasticity and tone to the whole system. If the above interests you, for proof address Mrs. M Summers, Box 285, Notre Dame Ind.

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE NORTH CAROLINA CONFERENCE

THE Barnes Clothing Store

IN HENDERSON, N. C.,

Sends you Greeting. We expect you with us on November 30th, and extend an invitation to one and all to make our place of business your headquarters.
We have a fine assortment of

CLOTHING

AND GENTLEMEN'S FURNISHINGS . . .

of every kind. We are specially prepared to supply our preachers with clerical suits, and will favor them with bargains, if they will call to see us.
If you will send us your measure, and inform us what kind of suit you want, we will have it ready for you when you come to Conference. If we do not suit you it will cost you nothing. We will make it to your interest to give us a call, as we are making special arrangements to supply your needs at the lowest possible figure.

BARNES CLOTHING STORE,
HENDERSON, N. C.

Raleigh Christian Advocate.

ORGAN OF THE

North Carolina Conference, M. E. Church, South.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY AT No. 108 W. MARTIN STREET.

THOMAS N. IVEY, - - - - - - - - Editor.

Subscription Rates.—One year, $1.50; six months, 75 cents. Preachers of the North Carolina Conference who act as agents receive the paper free of charge. All other preachers, and widows of preachers, $1.00 a year.

Business.—Watch the label. It shows the date up to which the subscription has been paid. Change in label serves as a receipt. Regular receipt will be sent when requested. When the address is ordered changed, both old and new address must be given. Address all letters, and make all checks and money orders payable, to the Raleigh Advocate Co.

Manuscripts.—All matter for publication to be returned to the writer must be accompanied by proper postage. Matter for the Editor and matter for the printer must not be on the same sheet. Obituaries must not contain over 150 words, nor contain poetry. One cent a word will be charged for all obituary matter over 150 words.

Advertising.—The RALEIGH CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE is a fine advertising medium. Rates will be promptly furnished on application.

The World As We See It.

Judge Parker, having resigned his office in the New York Court of Appeals before election, and having failed to be elected to the office of President of the United States, has opened a law office in New York City. Judge Parker may not have occasion to demonstrate his ability as President of the United States, but he can demonstrate his ability to make an honorable record for hard work as an American citizen.

The American Cotton Manufacturer figures that the cotton crop of the South will bring into the hands of the planters $27,500,000 over all expenses. What to do with this large surplus is the question with the Southern people. The Manufacturer advises against the multiplication of mills, and contends for an expansion of export trade and investment in knitting mills, shoe, corset, and lace factories, curtain and embroidery mills, braid manufacturing plants, and a great many other enterprises.

"There is nothing succeeds like success." A man that is down draws very few friends. The man who stands firm on his feet can draw more friends than he can utilize. These reflections to us are very pathetic as we think of the good things that are now being said of a man in our State who deserves all the good things said of him, but who, a few years ago, when things looked dark, would have given a great deal for the encomiums of the men who are now great friends and admirers, but were then as silent as the grave.

The personality of a man is a great factor in his structure of success. It has a force which mounts above that of creed, party, and ancestry. The plank in the Republican platform which elected Mr. Roosevelt by such an overwhelming majority was the personality of Mr. Roosevelt himself. It was the personality of William L. Douglas, the Democratic Governor-elect of Massachusetts which fought against seemingly invincible political conditions and finally overcame them. Governor Douglas had no prestige, no eloquence, no money to throw away on scouring voters, but he had something stronger—a personality which gripped the hearts of even his political foemen. When personality is the synonym of strong, rock-ribbed, God-centered character it is a thing invincible.

The Morning Post in discussing the unrighteousness of the Legislative act which rendered the so-called towns of Williams and Shore exempt from the provisions of the Watts Law, announces its determination to speak out hereafter when such things shall be attempted. In doing so, the Morning Post will be performing the function of a true newspaper, at the same time, aiding in one of the best ways the cause of temperance. The Post is right in warning the people that during the next Legislature attempts will be made to duplicate and carry out the Shore-Williams programme. May such attempts be futile. The Post is in error, however, in saying that it was the only newspaper to cry out two years ago against what was done in exempting Shore and Williams from the provisions of the Watts Law. The Advocate spoke of, and denounced the deed, and cited it as one of the evidences that the Watts Law would have been passed if there had been no temperance movement, whatever, in the State.

Superintendent of Public Instruction, Hon. E. Y. Joyner, makes a very encouraging report on the progress of education in North Carolina during 1904. It shows that the grand total of receipts for educational purposes during 1904 was $1,901,237.29 against $1,384,222.13 for 1903—a gain of $317,051.16 for 1904. The grand total of disbursements was $1,870,780.77 as compared with $665,319.16 for 1903. The value of school property increased from $1 632,349 in 1903 to $1,908,675 in 1904. There has been during the year a gratifying growth in the matter of enrollment and attendance, school funds, salaries of teachers, consolidation of districts, length of school term, and number of new buildings.

If we may believe certain press dispatches of post-election date, President Roosevelt is going somewhat out of his way to placate the South. Such an act on the part of the President gives the South an excellent opportunity of showing that it is capable of a sane construction of the Presidential motive. The President is capable of doing without the South's good-will and votes. It makes very little difference with him, as far as personal welfare is concerned, whether he is loved or hated by the South. The fact that, under these circumstances, he craves the good-will of the South, is greatly to his credit. Let not the South belittle itself by crying out that the President is trying to regain Southern favor for political or personal reasons. Now is the time for the South to show a sound head and heart.

Should the Legislature of North Carolina at its coming session repeat the experience of former sessions in opening wider the divorce gate, it will do so under the protest of almost every religious body in the State. The Episcopal Convention, the Western North Carolina Conference, and the Synod of North Carolina have spoken the mind of the Protestant Episcopal Church, the Southern Methodist Episcopal Church, and the Southern Presbyterian Church in the State on the subject of divorce. The North Carolina Conference and the Baptist Convention will doubtless be as outspoken in condemnation of loose divorce laws. Yet we would not be at all surprised to hear some man proclaim in the legislative halls that the Bible is out-of-date on the question of divorce. We heard such a proclamation two years ago, and we will continue to hear it until moral public opinion shall express itself more emphatically at the ballot-box.

There are not lacking thinkers of wide observation who firmly believe that in no past period of the nation's history have men so generally attended church as now. They maintain that we are now on the threshold, if not in the midst, of a general religious awakening. The following facts are used in the conclusion formed. After the distinctively religious period in our early history when colleges were established, these came a "religious ebb-tide." During the first two decades of the history of Princeton over fifty per cent of the students had entered the ministry. When the college reopened in 1780, nearly all the students had been affected by French infidelity. In 1782, there were only two students who professed Christianity. From the opening of the century to about 1810, there was a religious renaissance followed by a decade of transition. During the next thirty years came the great revivals, and then followed twenty-five years of adaptation to new science and thought. Since that time there has been a higher trend.

The indications are that a very fierce attack on Port Arthur will be made in a few days. The Japanese are erecting fortifications as if they themselves should in time be the beseiged. The torpedo boat which ran a few days ago into Chefoo harbor, and blew herself up was not the only boat that left Port Arthur. Two other torpedo boats left at the same time and were destroyed by the Japanese. The operations on the Shakke river are a little livelier than usual. It is said that the Japanese have captured the Russian trenches. Important news will doubtless be given to the world in a few days.

Attention!

Preachers, delegates, and others expecting to attend the North Carolina Conference at Henderson will read very carefully:

Reduced rates to the session of the Conference will be given over the A. C. L., S. A. L., Southern and Atlantic and North Carolina Railways under the following restrictions:

(1) Tickets will be sold from all points in the State, including Norfolk, Portsmouth, Suffolk, Boykins and Danville, Va.

(2) Tickets will be on sale as early as Monday, November 28th.

(3) Tickets will be sold to preachers, delegates and others officially connected with the Conference and their wives and families.

(4) Such persons buying tickets will be charged full first-class fare going, but be sure when you purchase the ticket to secure from the agent certificate of purchase filled out on the "standard form of certificate," which all agents are supplied with.

(5) When you reach the Conference deliver this certificate to the Secretary for his endorsement so that when you present the endorsed certificate to W. W. Morris, agent at Southern Railway station at Henderson, he will endorse your certificate so that you can get at the S. A. L. or Southern stations a return ticket at one-third the regular rate, plus twenty-five (25) cents, provided the first fare to Henderson was not less than seventy-five cents.

(6) At least fifty or more persons holding properly receipted certificates of the standard form must have been in attendance upon the Conference before the special reduced rate will be granted for return passage to any one.

(7) Tickets over the Norfolk and Southern and boat lines will be sold to Norfolk on the same conditions, except that you will not need to get a certificate from the agent when you purchase your ticket.

(8) Tickets returning from the seat of the Conference must be purchased not later than the 10th of December.

Please give special attention to these restrictions, as there will be no means by which your failure to do so may be corrected.

Very truly yours,

W. L. CUNINGGIM.
Secretary of N. C. Conference.

Durham, N. C., November 4, 1904.

Notice.

The Presiding Elders will please meet in Henderson on Tuesday evening, the 29th inst., at 7.30 p. m. The place of meeting will be designated on arrival.

W. H. MOORE.

Notice.

The class for admission on trial will please meet the Committee in the Methodist Church in Henderson at 3 o'clock p. m., Tuesday, November 29, 1904.

G. T. ADAMS, Chairman.

Methodist Mention

STATE.

Read carefully the Conferences notices in this issue.

Rev. J. B. Hurley, P. E. of Fayetteville District, spent last Monday in Raleigh.

The brethren are giving every indication that they are doing some hard work.

Littleton Female College has now an enrollment greater than the whole of last year. There are 216 matriculates.

Rev. A. J. Parker reports that on last Sunday a very severe storm struck the Banks and washed away seven houses at Chicamacomico.

Be sure to arrive at Henderson in time to hear the address before the Historical Society by Dr. A. D. Betts. It will be interesting and spiritual.

Happy is the preacher in the North Carolina Conference who has no special reason for caring whether next Sunday be fair or rainy. Yet we fear that his name is not legion.

Rev. J. E. Underwood writes that the building of the Albemarle High School at Elizabeth City will be the handsomest school building in Eastern North Carolina. We hope to have a cut of it soon.

Rev. J. H. Shore writes that there is a great deal of sickness in his congregations. He is going to make a report at the Conference which will not only show all collections in full, but will make every friend of our Orphanage rejoice.

The congregation of the Methodist church, along with their zealous pastor, Rev. F. M. Shamburger, are to be warmly congratulated upon the cancellation of a debt of $5,500 upon the beautiful house of worship, which can now be dedicated.—Oxford Ledger.

We have received the following note from that true servant of Christ, Rev. J. A. Lee, of Louisburg: "During the summer and early fall my health had so much improved that I was much cheered with the prospect of taking pastoral work for next year. But as cold weather has arrived, my throat and bronchial affection are in such bad condition that my physician has positively forbidden me to take work, or even to preach at all. I would be glad to meet the brethren at Conference but cannot go. I have strong faith in God and love for my brethren."

The following comes from Rev. F. B. McCall, of East Durham: "A generous pounding in January, two gracious revivals in the summer and collections all in full at Conference, comprise the principal events of this, my fourth year, on Carr church and Branson charge. In our two revivals about fifty souls were converted and fifty-nine names have been added to our church roll during they ear. During the past few years I have been the recipient of some highly appreciated presents which place me under special obligations to the donors. The Lord reward them."

* * *

CONNECTIONAL.

The Western North Carolina Conference contributed $960.61 for the American Bible Society.

The new Methodist Hymnal is in press, and will be ready for distribution early in the spring.

Bishop Hendrix preached in Sixth Street Church, Brooklyn, last Sunday morning, a week ago.

The last Wesleyan Christian Advocate contained a strong sermon from Bishop Candler on "The Ten Virgins."

Bishop Galloway, returning from the Orient, landed in Vancouver November 8th. After a brief visit home, he will visit some of the Annual Conferences during their autumn sessions to present the great interests of our work in the East.

The Board of Directors of the Mississippi Orphans' Home will move the Home from Water Valley to Jackson.

The Board of Church Extension of the M. E. Church has collected and disbursed by loan and grant over $8,000,000. It has helped to build 13,914 houses of worship.

The Virginia Conference was in session last week and adjourned on last Monday. This is something new for the Virginians. They generally linger for over a week.

Judge E. H. East, long one of the most prominent lay figures of Methodism in Nashville, died at his country home on November 12th, at the age of seventy-four. His health had been impaired for several years and his death was not unexpected.

Bishop H. C. Morrison has reached his home in New Orleans after a western trip occupying three months. He reports that all the Conferences are making substantial progress, but he modestly omits any mention of his own work or the many evidences of favor which attended his visitation.

"A sight never before witnessed in Atlanta was presented to-day, when during the principal hours most of the business houses were closed, and an air of Sunday quiet pervaded the principal streets, the greater part of the city's business men taking part in the prayer services, which were held in the opera houses and central churches."—Alabama Advocate.

"Our" Bishop Wilson is now holding the Virginia Annual Conference at Lynchburg, Va., which met on the 10th. From Lynchburg he will go to Alabama to hold the Alabama Conference, and afterwards to hold his other Conferences and to attend to other work. He does not expect to get home again till after Christmas.—Baltimore Southern Methodist.

NOTICE.

The stockholders of the Methodist Orphanage are requested to be present at an adjourned meeting at 3 o'clock, Thursday, December 1st, Henderson, N. C.

Class of First Year.

The class of the first year will meet in Henderson at the place named in the Directory, Tuesday morning, November 29, at 9.30 o'clock.

R. H. WILLIS, Chairman.

Class of Second Year.

The class of the second year will please meet the committee at 4 p. m., Tuesday, November 29.

N. M. WATSON, Chairman.

Class of Third Year.

The class of the third year will meet the examining committee in Henderson at the place designated in the Conference directory, promptly at 12 o'clock Tuesday, November 29th.

R. C. BRAMAN, Chairman.

Class of Fourth Year.

The class of the fourth year will meet at 9.30 a. m., Tuesday, November 29, at place designated in directory.

E. H. DAVIS, Chairman.

The Rev. Dr. Torrey and Mr. Alexander have completed their mission at Cardiff, Wales, and opened up at Liverpool on Sunday week. A tabernacle to seat 12,000 people had been erected, but fully 20,000 people are said to have come to the opening service. The choir numbers over three thousand, and there are eight hundred trained workers to assist in the meetings. Dr. Torrey continues to be somewhat severely criticized in some quarters for his extremely conservative attitude in the matter of Biblical interpretation, as well as for some of his methods in his meetings, but, all things considered, he is received with wonderful unanimity.

General Notes

James Bellows McGregor, of Northville, N. H., is believed to be the oldest mason in the United States. Recently he celebrated his one hundred and third birthday.

The St. Louis Exposition receipts for September aggregated $2,008,700.55. The total receipts since the opening have been $22,673,721.19, and the disbursements $21,843,467.60.

The present orange crop of Florida is estimated for the entire State at 2,000,000 boxes. These will easily net to the growers $2,500,000, and another $500,000 to the railroads in Florida.

A course of training covering two years will be given at the Catholic University, Washington City, to prepare priests for the conversion of Protestants and non-Catholics to Romanism.

The increase of money in circulation in the United States during the month of October was $21,449,174. It is now about $31 for each person, a gain of over fifty per cent in the last ten years.

The congregation of which Rev. Robert J. Burdette is pastor, in Los Angeles, has rented the Haggard Pavilion for religious services. This is one of the largest public halls in California, and has been used for prize fights.

United States Senator Proctor, of Vermont, announced last week that he would give $10,000 in cash and the house in Rutland in which he was born, valued at $10,000, for the establishment of a home for indigent and worthy public-school teachers who have passed the age of usefulness.

Robert E. Speer, one of the Presbyterian missionary secretaries, is the author of a striking work, "Missions and Modern History," in which some of the great world movements of the nineteenth century are considered in their relation to missions.

Helen Keller drew the largest throng to see her last week at St. Louis Fair that has gathered in a single assembly since the Exposition opened. She is one of the great personages of this country, both because of what she has done, what she is, and the gospel of altruism and optimism which she preaches.

Rev. A. A. Fulton, of Canton, China, has within two years baptized more than a thousand adults and received them into the Presbyterian churches of the mission of which he has charge. As reported in the General Assembly Minutes of this year, he received and baptized 568 last year alone. His churches have a membership of 2,051.

"Poor's Manual," the authoritative compendium of the railways of the United States, is about to appear. It reports the total mileage of our railroas January 1, 1904, as 206,876, an increase of 7,191 for the year. The mileage of trains was 999,983,566. The number of passengers carried was 696,949,925, yielding $429,705,287. For carrying 1,306,628,858 tons of freight, the roads received $1,344,150,719. The net earnings per mile were $8,696. The ratio of operating expenses to earnings was 68.96 per cent, which was higher than for any year since 1897, when it was 69.74 per cent.

The report of the Missioner of Education for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1904, just made public at Washington by the Secretary of the Interior, shows that 16,009,361 pupils, or twenty per cent of the entire population of the country, attended the public schools during that year. As compared with the previous six years, this percentage shows a slight decrease in the number of pupils as compared with total population. The total cost of the public school system is given as $251,457,625, an increase of $16,000,000 over the previous year. It amounts to $31.15 per capita of the total population, and $22.75 per capita per pupil.

NORTH CAROLINA EPWORTH LEAGUE CONFERENCE
DEVOTIONAL CHARITABLE LITERARY EVANGELICAL
EDITED BY REV. H. B. ANDERSON.

The Junior League.

In looking over the field the pastor, as a rule, looks for Senior League timber, and when he does not find this ready to hand, he seems to forget that, perhaps, there is a lot of undergrowth that might be grubbed up out of the low lands and transplanted in the Junior League Department of the garden of God. And when these plants have outgrown this department we would have an indigenous growth out of which to compose Senior Leagues, and not exotics gathered from comparatively foreign soil. For, as far as the history and workings of our church are concerned, the average young man and young woman, of the church, knows almost as little as the worldling.

The fact of the business is, we should interest ourselves earlier in the young people. Let us reverse the order of things. Let us organize a Junior League first and put it in charge of an intelligent, consecrated, godly woman, and then make a move upon the laddies and lassies, the young men and young women, and organize them into a Senior League. Had this been our order from the beginning, by this time our Conference would have been full of healthy, active, aggressive Senior Leagues, constantly fed by members who have been trained in the Junior ranks.

In many places where Senior Leagues would not thrive because of worldliness of our young people, a Junior League under the fostering care of an intelligent woman of decount piety, is our only salvation. Let us no more neglect the Juniors than a mother would neglect her babe, for out of them must come our future church.

If it be objected that an ideal League cannot be successfully operated, it should be remembered that we must not expect perfection at once, of our young people, who have had no training. As compared with the Sunday-school the League has advanced by leaps and bounds toward perfection. After a hundred and more years of history we are now only playing at Sunday-school. And as for the financial management, who does not know that stewards who attempt to manage their own business as they do church finances would bankrupt themselves in less than six months. For any man who knows how the church and Sunday-schools have been managed for the last century, up to date, to object to the League because it is not from the very first a perfect organization, seems to us to be wanting an excuse for not taking hold of it. Is such hypocrisy sin?

* * *

Notes.

Rev. D. H. Tuttle reports the organization of an Epworth League in his church that starts off well.

* * *

So many young men think they will be green if they do not learn the ways of the world. You ought to thank God that you know nothing of the corruptions of life. It is a blessed greenness. Life is too short for the cultivation of evil. You need all the time you have at command to cultivate goodness. Remember that you will never have to reap wild oats if you do not sow them.

The man who lives only for himself is dead while he lives; and the man who lives for others lives after death. How will posterity think of you, as a dead live man; or a live dead man. "He being dead yet speaketh."

* * *

All around us are multitudes of young people who are indifferent and careless in regard to personal religion. The church does not grip them. They perhaps attend the public services of our churches, but thta is as far as they go. Unless the League influences them they may be lost.

* * *

We speak of "Woman's work for women." "Young people's work for young people," ought to be a phrase as familiar. We are all co-workers together with Him, and our best work is with those of our own sex and age. Let the phrase "young people's work for young people" become a most familiar phrase, one that is on the lips of all—old as well as young.

* * *

By the time this issue of the Advocate reaches the majority of its readers Thanksgiving dinner will have been eaten. I wonder how many of our Leaguers have remembered the orphans and Father Jenkins in a substantial way.

* * *

The General Epworth League Board of Canada decided upon an "Increase Campaign" somewhat similar to that which has been carried on for some time by the Christian Endeavor Society. The purpose is to induce their members to do something out of the ordinary to bring into the active and associate membership of their young people's societies those who are at present outside. Let us have something of the kind among our Chapter members. It would be a good thing also if such an idea would take possession of our preachers. Let us have next year an "Increase Campaign" for Chapters.

* * *

The State League Conference of Alabama ordered that a Thanksgiving service be held in every chapter and a collection be taken for the Alabama Methodist Orphanage. This too while they are collecting $1,400 for Cuban mission work.

* * *

Order is said to be heaven's first law. Order is there because one supreme will is law. Heaven is heaven because all do the will of one supreme Being. Hell is disorder and confusion because all do their own will. There is weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth. The nearest place to hell is the family in which there is no governmenttal head; but each member is a law unto himself or herself. The League recognizes the pastor as its head.

* * *

Those who send "items of interest" to the League columns of the Texas Advocate write as though they had a deep and abiding interest in League matters. They had their Alamo, and have forgotten how to be dead in earnest.

For Croup use CHENEY'S EXPECTORANT.

A RUNAWAY BICYCLE

Terminated with an ugly cut on the leg of J. B. Orner, Franklin Grove, Ill. It developed a stubborn ulcer unyielding to doctors and remedies for four years. Then Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured. It's just as good for Burns, Scalds, Skin Eruptions and Piles. Twenty-five cents at all druggists.

WRIGLEY ENGRAVING COMPANY.
ENGRAVERS, ELECTROTYPERS, STEREOTYPERS.
COPPER, HALF TONE AND ZINC ETCHINGS.
ATLANTA, GA.

CANCER
Permanent Cure Guaranteed, without knife, X-Ray, Arsenic or Acids; no inconvenience. Write for book.
Southern Cancer Sanatorium
1520 E. Monument St. Baltimore, Md.

Positions GUARANTEED BY A $5,000 BANK DEPOSIT
Railroad Fare Paid. 500 FREE Courses Offered. Board at Cost. Write Quick
GEORGIA-ALABAMA BUSINESS COLLEGE, Macon, Ga.

DON'T
give your child old, greasy Castor Oil. Give CAS-TO-RINE. Tastes as good as maple syrup. Fifteen cents per bottle at all dealers.

Text Cards for Home Decoration
on higher finished ivory and dark ground cards, all with silk cord to hang; require no frames. Agents wanted everywhere; liberal discount. GOSPEL PUBLISHING HOUSE, 54 W. 22d St., New York, Room 26.

WHEN YOU WISH TO BUY BOOKS..... Save Money
By writing us for catalogue and prices. We carry constantly in stock the books of all leading publishers, and are prepared to fill orders on short notice at lowest prices. Books, Christmas Cards, Diaries, Blank Books, Fountain Pens, Stationery, etc., etc. - - - - -
Write for Catalogue to
SMITH & LAMAR, Agts.
296 Elm St., - DALLAS, TEX.
27 N. Summer St., 80-36 Public Square, Nashville, Tenn.
The Largest Book Stores In the.... South....

WORLD'S FAIR RATES
VIA
Seaboard Air Line Railway
TO ST. LOUIS, MO., AND RETURN.

On account of the World's Fair, St. Louis, Mo., the Seaboard Air Line Railway, in connection with the C. & O. Route via Richmond and the N. C. & St. L. Route via Atlanta, will sell round trip tickets to St. Louis, Mo., at greatly reduced rates from all stations.

Rates from principal points as follows:

	Season Tickets	60 Day Tickets	15 Day Tickets
Charlotte via Atlanta	$36.10	$30.10	$24.65
Durham via Richmond	34.10	28.40	23.30
Durham via Atlanta	38.75	32.30	26.30
Henderson via Richmond	34.10	28.40	23.30
Henderson via Atlanta	38.75	32.30	26.30
Maxton via Atlanta	38.65	32.25	26.25
Raleigh via Richmond	35.60	29.90	24.80
Raleigh via Atlanta	38.75	32.30	26.30
Hamlet via Richmond	37.60	31.90	26.25
Hamlet via Atlanta	37.60	31.90	26.25
Wilmington via Richmond	38.65	32.25	26.25
Wilmington via Atlanta	38.65	32.25	26.25

LIMIT OF TICKETS—SEASON TICKETS.
Good to leave St. Louis up to December 15, 1904, will be sold daily commencing April 25th.
SIXTY DAY TICKETS.
Good to leave St. Louis up to and including 60 days from date of sale. Will be sold daily commencing April 25th.
FIFTEEN DAY TICKETS.
Good to return up to and including 15 days from date of sale, commencing April 25th, and continuing during the Exposition.
COACH EXCURSION TICKETS.
On May 9th and 23rd, 10-day coach excursion tickets will be sold at very low rates from Raleigh $18.50 via Richmond and $20.80 via Atlanta. Tickets not good in Parlor Sleeping Cars. Tickets good to leave St. Louis including ten days from date of sale.
MILITARY COMPANIES.
Special low rates for Military Companies and Bands.
Quickest schedule, direct routes, first-class coaches and Pullman Sleeping and Dining Car Service.
For further information, call on or address us. Same will be cheerfully furnished.
C. H. GATTIS, T. P. A., Raleigh, N. C.
H. A. MORSON, C. P. & T. A., Raleigh, N. C.

Sunday School

Lesson for November 27, 1904.

World's Temperance Lesson.

Isaiah 28:1-13.

Golden Text: They also have erred through wine, and through strong drink are out of the way. Isa. 28:7.

This being the fourth Sunday of November, which has been set apart for several years by the English Sunday-school leaders as Temperance Sunday, the International Committee has selected a lesson on the subject of temperance, which will be studied all over the Christian world.

Israel and Assyria.—At the time when Isaiah uttered the words which form the subject of our study today, the kingdom of Israel was engaged in a life and death struggle with the Assyrian foe. The fall of Samaria was fast approaching, and a few years later the extinction of the northern kingdom would be complete.

A Voice from the Watchtower.—It was under the conditions outlined above that the prophet Isaiah, looing out from Jerusalem, as from a watchtower, over the northern kingdom, uttered his words of warning and remonstrance.

The imagery which the prophet uses is striking and effective. Samaria is spoken of as "the crown of pride, whose glorious beauty is a fading flower." The nation of Israel is styled "the drunkards of Ephraim," because Ephraim was the leading tribe. The dire prediction is made that the crown of pride of the drunkards of Ephraim shall be trodden under foot. How well this prophecy was fulfilled is but too sadly attested in the pages of history, both sacred and profane.

Isaiah's Warning to Judah.—Using the condition of the northern kingdom as an illustration of the results of evil of all kinds, and especially of the evil of intemperance, Isaiah utters an earnest word of rebuke to the people of Judah, who seem to have been tempted to the same excesses of indulgence as their northern neighbors and kinsmen.

Though the people taunted him because he was ever repeating precept upon precept, and line upon line, he continued faithfully to warn them of their besetting sins, and to assure them, that if they continued obdurate, the voice of the prophet would be succeeded by the tongue of the Assyrian conqueror into whose hands they should fall backward and be broken and snared and taken.

Modern Conditions.—Some of the conditions which Isaiah faced in olden times may be discerned in the present day.

There are ministers and teachers of today who have been led astray through strong drink. There are Christian men, occupying high places in the religious world, who have erred in vision and stumbled in judgment respecting the great problem of the proper attitude toward strong drink and the best means of checking the ravages of intemperance.

The True Remedy.—The only way in which to deal with a thing which is confessedly evil is to extinguish it. The only sure way to crush intemperance is to extinguish the love of strong drink, which is the very root of this great evil.

There are many hopeful signs in the battle against intemperance. The liquor traffic is being curtailed and restricted by the operation of economic laws as well as by the adoption of prohibition as a governing principle in an ever-increasing number of localities.

So let us press forward bravely in the fight, assured that God is on the side of temperance, and that in the end it will gain the victory.

Dandy and the Axe.

Dandy was a little dog, who lived with his mistress in a New York apartment flat, up two flights of stairs. They indulged in the luxury of an open-wood fire in cool weather, and Dandy was the errand boy, who brought wood from the cellar when necessary.

One day Mrs. Scott, his mistress, discovered she had no wood, so she said, "Dandy, go down cellar and bring me a stick of wood." He usually brought one stick at a time, and traveled up and down stairs until the wood-box was replenished.

Away went Dandy, as gay as a lark, but only to appear in a few minutes with a very doleful air, and without any wood.

"Why, Dandy," said Mrs. Scott, "did you hear me? I said bring up some wood."

Downstairs went the little dog a second time, and soon Mrs. Scott heard a noise as of something being pulled or dragged across the cellar floor. Going herself to investigate, she found the little dog at the foot of the cellar stairs with the axe, the handle of which was in his mouth, and he was trying his best to carry it upstairs to show there was no wood cut. This is a true story, and is vouched for.—Christian Endeavor World.

There are no good manners except from a kind heart. If the kind heart is wanting, it must be simulated in any sort of pretence at polite behavior. If it is present and in evidence, then little lapses from conventional standards will disturb nobody.—Selected.

For Asthma use CHENEY'S EXPECTORANT.

RELIABLE ORGANS $32 RELIABLE PIANOS $173
ONE CENT INVESTED IN A POSTAL CARD AND MAILED TO ME WILL TELL YOU ALL ABOUT THEM.
CIRCULARS FREE. H. W. ALLEGER, ESTABLISHED 30 YRS. WASHINGTON, N. J.

Special Offer
Christmas Music.
This Depository has just received a fine assortment of Christmas services, and until November 20th, will upon receipt of 10c in stamps, send postpaid to any one five of these attractive services as samples. These services are very tastefully gotten up and nearly all contain attractive recitations, which are worth double the money whether you use the music or not.
The regular price of these services is 5c per copy. This offer is good until Nov. 20th only; after that services will be sent at 5c per copy postpaid. Do not ask for free samples, but send us 10c at once and receive five of the most attractive samples ever offered. Address all orders to
Southern Methodist Book Depository,
STAUNTON, VA.

When writing advertisers please mention this paper.

NAGGING PAINS
Newport News, Va., July 23, 1903.
Last summer while recovering from illness of fever, I had a severe attack of Inflammatory Rheumatism in the knees, from which I was unable to leave my room for several months. I was treated by two doctors and also tried different kinds of linaments and medicines which seemed to relieve me from pain for awhile, but at the same time I was not any nearer getting well. One day while reading a paper I saw an advertisement of S. S. S. for Rheumatism. I decided to give it a trial, which I did at once. After I had taken three bottles I felt a great deal better, and I still continued to take it regularly until I was entirely cured. I now feel better than for years, and I cheerfully recommend S. S. S. to any one suffering from Rheumatism.
613 32d St. CHAS. E. GILDERSLEEVE.
Rheumatism is caused by uric acid or some other acid poison in the blood, which when deposited in the muscles and joints, produce the sharp, cutting pains and the stiffness and soreness peculiar to this disease. S. S. S. goes directly into the circulation, all irritating substances are neutralized and filtered out of the system, the blood is made pure and the general health is built up under the purifying and tonic effects of the vegetable remedy. Write for our special book on Rheumatism which is sent free. Our physicians will advise without charge all who will write us about their case.
SSS
The Swift Specific Company, Atlanta, Ga.

XANTHINE HAIR RESTORATIVE.
Discovered by Prof. Hertz, a noted German Chemist.
Never fails to restore the natural color to any gray hair. Prevents dandruff and promotes growth. Price $1.00 per bottle.
TRY THE XANTHINE DYSPEPSIA TABLETS
and you will find them superior to anything you have ever used. Price 50 cts. per box. We pay charges on all orders addressed to XANTHINE CO., Richmond, Va.
Write us for circulars.

LIBERTY MILLS

PRODUCES DAILY 4,000 BARRELS OF
Pure Soft Wheat Flour
AND THERE IS HEALTH AND STRENGTH IN EVERY POUND.
Ask Your Grocer.
LIBERTY MILLS, Nashville, Tenn.

WOOL.

If you have wool to sell for cash, to exchange for goods, or to be manufactured, ship it to the CHATHAM MANUFACTURING COMPANY, ELKIN, N. C., and you will not regret it. They pay the highest market price and make the best goods you can get. Their blankets at all the leading expositions have been awarded GOLD MEDALS as the finest made in America.
WRITE THEM FOR SAMPLES.

NO MONEY NEEDED
All you need is to send to us for 12 copies of THE AMERICAN ILLUSTRATED METHODIST MAGAZINE. Sell them to friends at price of 15c a copy, return the $1.80 collected, and we will send you by return mail, absolutely free, our beautiful Holman Teachers' Bible, bound in morocco, helps, maps, 32 full page illustrations, 4000 questions and answers on Old and New Testaments. You will be delighted with it, as all our customers are.
☞Our magazine was never more attractive and popular; it sells quickly. Pastors and S. S. Teachers may order Bible for examination to be returned at our expense if not earned.
THE METHODIST PUB. CO.,
112 Locust St., St. Louis, Mo.

H. STEINMETZ. FLORIST.
Cut Flowers, Designs. Plants of all kinds.
PHONE 113. RALEIGH, N. C.

Raleigh Marble Works

Monuments
Ship Monumental work to all parts of the State. Delivered to your depot at same price as at shop.
Special attention paid to finish and lettering.
Only Best of Stock Used.
Write for new catalogue.
COOPER BROS., Proprietors, RALEIGH, N. C.

Raleigh and Cape Fear Railroad

TIME TABLE.

Effect 12:01 A. M., Sunday, October 9, 1904.

SOUTH BOUND TRAINS.			STATIONS.	NOR. BOUND TRAINS.
Daily, ex. S.				Daily, ex. S.
Second-Class	First-Class			First-Class	Second-Class
101	105	Lv.		104	102
A. M.	P. M.	Ar.		A. M.	P. M.
7 20	4 15		Raleigh	9 45	5 35
7 35	4 25	S	Carsleigh Mills	9 35	5 20
7 45	4 30	F	*Sprinola	9 30	5 13
7 54	4 39	F	† Barnes	9 20	5 04
8 00	4 45	F	Hobby	9 14	4 57
8 15	4 52	M	WILLIAMSTON	9 10	4 52
8 25	4 56	F	Banks	8 58	4 25
8 39	4 09	F	Austin	8 55	4 21
8 50	5 07	S	† Willow Springs	8 50	4 15
9 05	5 15	M	† JOHNSON MILL	8 40	4 03
9 15	5 17	F	† Cardenas	8 38	4 00
9 20	5 22	S	C. F. & N. Junction	8 33	3 55
9 35	5 26	S	† Fuquay Springs	8 30	3 52
9 40	5 31	F	Buckhorn	8 20	3 35
9 45	5 36	F	Rawls	8 17	3 20
10 00	5 45	S	† Chalybeate	8 10	3 20
10 06	5 50	S	Bradley	8 00	3 01
10 15	6 00	F	*Smith Mill	7 55	2 55
10 25	6 10		Lillington	7 45	2 45
		Ar.		Lv.

JOHN A. MILLS, President and Gen. Manager.

Secular News

STATE.

The ten thousand dollar Sprunt annex to the James Walker Memorial Hospital in Wilmington will be completed and ready for occupancy by Christmas.

R. J. Pickleimer, a prominent and wealthy merchant of Brevard, was convicted in the Federal Court recently of permitting the operation of an illicit distillery near that town.

The British steamer Anglo-Canadian sailed from Wilmington for Liverpool with the largest cargo of cotton that has been cleared from that port the present season. She carries 15,783 bales, valued at $840,000.

W. C. Newland, Esq., Democratic candidate in the Eighth Congressional District against Spencer Blackburn, has declined to concede the latter's election until the official count of the district shall have been announced.

It is claimed that Thomas W. Dewey, late defaulting cashier of New Bern, is living in peace and quietude in San Antonio, Texas, engaged in work as a chemist and sailing under the high sounding name of Thaddeus Von Weber.

Work on the new railroad from Conway to Marion, S. C., which is part of the proposed line west to Sumter and east to Southport, N. C., is progressing rapidly. Mr. F. A. Burroughs, the president, is losing no time in the building of the road.

The Winston-Salem tag machine, was chartered in Raleigh for the manufacture of tobacco tags. The company has applications now pending in the patent office at Washington. The principal incorporators are Maslin Davis and W. E. L. Martin.

Unknown persons broke into the store of the Middleburg Supply Co., at Middleburg, and cut the hinges off the safe, but failed to get in. Evidently they were frightened off as they left a small saw, a large steel bar, a hammer, a file and another instrument of steel which they were using.

The State Superintendent of Public Instruction has approved, and warrants on State Treasury have been issued for, the State's share in a number of rural school libraries. There are included one each in Brunswick, Mitchell and Caswell counties, also appropriations for two supplementary libraries in Richmond County and one in Durham County.

A beautiful granite memorial to Col. William Washington and the Marquis of Bretegny and their Virginia and North Carolina cavalary, is about completed and ready for shipment to Guilford Battle Ground. It will be erected east of Spring Vale on the top of the steep hill, where these cavalrymen made their fierce and successful charge through the ranks of the Highlanders.

A partly successful attempt to wreck the rolling stock of a railroad was made near Asheville, when Raze Love, a negro, 18 or 20 years old, uncoupled three loaded cars of the Bee Tree Railroad, loosened the brakes and started them on a wild run down the Craggy Mountain. The Bee Tree road runs from Swannanoa station, five miles into the mountains, and was built for the purpose of getting chestnut wood to the works of the United States Leather Company at Old Fort. Love had been employed by the company, but was discharged and attempted to take revenge.

GENERAL.

The Indian government has offered a prize of $165 to all officers who pass an examination in the Thibetan language.

In the French army soldiers are allowed to have gardens in any spare barrack ground and grow vegetables, which help out their rations.

Among the various "public utilities" owned by Yarmouth, Eng., is a music hall, out of which the municipality made nearly $4,000 last year.

A Paris correspondent says that mules' brains make very good eating and are frequently used instead of calves' brains in Parisian restaurants.

A recent mechanical wonder is a telegraphic instrument that sends 1,000 words a minute. A human operator can transmit 50 words a minute.

Sir Jervoise Clarke, of Australia, owns the largest sheep ranch in the world, and 50,000,000 sheep wander over the thousands of miles of pasture land.

The consumption of spirits per head of the population in Great Britain was 0.99 proof gallon, as compared with 1.03 proof gallons in 1902-3.

Along the banks of some of the California rivers has been found a kind of weed known as tula, which is said to be better than cork for life-preservers.

Hitherto San Francisco has prohibited the erection of buildings to a height greater than 201 feet. Now an ordinance has been passed permitting a hight of 221 feet.

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers is agitating the abolition of or a change in the present system of mail cranes. Several engineers have been struck and killed recently by the device.

A vast body of pure white clay has been found four miles east of Boulder, Col., which makes excellent porcelain. A local clay company will utilize the product in the manufacture of white, cream and granite bricks.

The steamship Argyl brought from Honolulu to San Francisco the other day the first shipment of island frogs—100 dozen. The demand of San Francisco gourmets for frog legs has exhausted the local supply.

A student of the population of the anthracite region of Pennsylvania reports that there are 630,000 people inhabiting that section, of which 430,000 are foreign born. Of this latter number over 50,000 cannot read or write.

DISASTROUS WRECKS.

Carelessness is responsible for many a railway wreck and the same causes are making human wrecks of sufferers from Throat and Lung troubles. But since the advent of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, even the worst cases can be cured, and hopeless resignation is no longer necessary. Mrs. Lois Cragg, of Dorchester, Mass., is one of many whose life was saved by Dr. King's New Discovery. This great remedy is guaranteed for all Throat and Lung diseases by all druggists. Price 50 cents and $1.00. Trial bottles free.

The American Illustrated Methodist Magazine, St. Louis, Mo., is now five years and six months old. It has an attractive cover and is filled with wholesome reading matter. It stresses the union or federation of the two great Methodist bodies of America on some fair basis.

The advertisement of the publishers in this issue of our paper offers a very attractive proposition.

A North Carolinian in Korea.

Rev. J. Robert Moose writes from Seoul, Korea: "The past quarter has been full of work, and I trust that it has not been all in vain that I have labored. I have been able to spend sixty days in country work, traveling 901 miles. During one of these trips I was in Kang-wao Province for more than twenty days. This is a part of our work that has not been visited much by a missionary, and has not had the attention of a native that it really demands. The outlook in many places was hopeful at the time of our last visit to them. In fact, it was our first visit to a number of places, no missionary ever having been in those regions before. Brother Gerdine was with me on this trip, and to say that I enjoyed having him is but to state it in the mildest form. I am fully persuaded that no man can do the best work on these long trips when entirely alone, as I must so often go. I think that wherever possible we should have our men go out "by twos," as the Master sent them out in His time. I am sure that if this work can be properly followed up, in a few years we shall have many strong churches in that part of our district. I organized at three new places on this trip, baptizing about twenty persons and taking on others as probationers. I could have baptized many times the number that I did, but I am more and more convinced that it is a sad mistake to baptize too soon after they first make a profession of faith in Jesus. Many evil results have come to our work from this very cause. We are now getting a hold on some of the men, and a good number of boys are attending the services regularly. I have recently bought a lot in the southeastern part of the city and want to begin the erection of a chapel on it just as soon as the rainy season is over—which is now on in good earnest—so that we shall soon move the work from our residence compound to this part of the city. I think the Presbyterians have a small chapel something like a quarter of a mile from where we shall build; but there is no reason for our being in each other's way in the least, as the field is large and the people are many thousands more than we shall be able to reach for years to come."

Judge Parker has opened a law office in New York City.

The Australian government has adopted a nickel-in-the-slot machine which is quite novel. When a stamp cannot be bought conveniently a person can drop a letter, along with a penny, in a box, and the legend "One penny paid" will be stamped on the envelope.

The St. Louis Exposition proves that the inventions and discoveries which are doing most to change the world are radium, the submarine boat, wireless telegraphy, the aeroplane, the automobile and the gas producer—a simple machine to replace coal for manufacturing uses.

Neuralgic Pain Rheumatic Pain Instantly Relieved by Painkiller (Perry Davis)

Atlantic & North Carolina R. R.

(Howland Improvement Company Lessee.)

Schedule in effect October 23, 1904.

EASTBOUND.

Station.	No. 3.	No. 5.
Leave Goldsboro	3.30 p. m.	8.00 a. m.
" LaGrange	3.59 "	8.38 "
" Kinston	4.22 "	8.48 "
" Dover	4.43 "	9.18 "
" Cove	5.00 "	9.30 "
" Tuscarora	5.12 "	9.50 "
Arrive New Bern	5.40 "	10.40 "

Station.	No. 7 (Accom.)
Leave New Berne	5.50 p. m.
" Riverdale	6.15 "
" Havelock	6.30 "
" Newport	6.58 "
Arrive Morehead City	7.20 "

Station.	No. 4.	No. 8. (Accom.)
Leave Morehead City	7.11 a. m.	5.30 a. m.
" Newport	7.54 "	6.29 "
" Havelock	8.08 "	7.00 "
" Riverdale	8.21 "	7.30 "
Arrive New Bern	8.45 "	8.05 "

Station.	No. 6
Leave New Bern	6.30 p. m.
" Tuscarora	6.56 "
" Cove	7.00 "
" Dover	7.17 "
" Kinston	7.37 "
" LaGrange	7.57 "
Arrive Goldsboro	8.30 "

Trains 3, 4, 5 and 6 run daily.
Trains 7 and 8 run daily except Sunday.
CONNECTIONS.—At Goldsboro, with Southern Railway and Atlantic Coast Line. At Kinston and Newbern, with Atlantic Coast Line.

R. P. FOSTER, General Manager. E. A. NIEL, Traffic Manager, Goldsboro, N. C.

SPECIAL HOLIDAY OFFER
ON
SEWING MACHINES.

Write for Particulars.
Also Bargains in - - -

Pianos, Organs,

Washing Machines, Wagons, Farm Implements, Hay Presses, Wire Fences, Pea Hullers, &c., &c. No General Catalogue. Write for what you want.

T. B. PARKER, S. B. A.
RALEIGH, N. C.

..Christmas Holiday Rates..
1904-1905.
ATLANTIC COAST LINE
—ANNOUNCE RATE OF—
One and One-Third First-Class Fares
(MINIMUM RATE 50 CENTS.)
Tickets will be Placed on Sale Dec. 23, 24, 25, 31, and Jan'y 1, 1905.
Final Limit returning to January 4th, 1905.
The teachers and students of colleges, on presentation and surrender of certificates signed by Superintendents, Presidents or Principals, tickets may be sold at the above rate, December 17th to 21th, inclusive, with final limit returning to January 8th, 1905.
For full information, call on ticket agents, or address
H. M. EMERSON, Traffic Manager. W. J. CRAIG, G. P. A., WILMINGTON, N. C.

Methodist Orphanage

OFFICERS:
REV. J. W. JENKINS, - Superintendent
MRS. J. W. JENKINS, - - Matron
MISS LUCY M. REEKS, Teacher

Send money to the Superintendent by Check, Post Office or Express Money Order, or Registered letter.

Good News.

The furniture is being put in our new building. Now is the time to help. Only six rooms taken. Windows once more. We will hold up the making of the tablets until after Conference. Send two or four dollars by the preacher. They will be ordered immediately after Conference. Put your name here.

Appreciated Visitors.

The visit of Sister Brannon, the President of the Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Western North Carolina Conference and her friend, Mr. Hannah, was highly appreciated last week. They expressed themselves as highly pleased. Come again, friends.

We were delighted to have some of the teachers and quite a number of the pupils from the Institution for the Blind to visit us this week. They promised to come again.

Full Reports.

It is greatly to be desired to publish full reports in the Conference journal from all the charges. Those hitherto published have been very defective. I give receipts for all moneys sent me. I have now sent out receipts for the amounts raised by me in public collections. Brethren, if there is any mistake, let me know immediately. Of course I receive money that I do not know where it comes from. Would the pastors kindly inquire if there are persons holding receipts in their congregations? I would like for every church to have full credit for what it has done. So also the Sunday-schools and the W. H. M. S. Societies. They have our receipts.

Orphanage Money at Conference.

Report all money for the Orphanage that you carry to the Conference to the Joint Board, except the Sunday-school money. Don't take that at all, please. We shall never keep things straight if you do. Tell them to send it to the Superintendent. He keeps the books. Get up all the receipts on your work and put them in with your reports, that the full amount that your work has paid may appear in the journal. The superintendents or the secretaries of Sunday-schools have the receipts for what they have paid. But do not expect it to appear in the Advocate. Please report all that is paid you. We shall need every cent. Don't forget, brothers. Will you not collect all subscriptions also. It would greatly help us. Will not all who have subscribed to send it in?

Hints—Items.

Do you wish to send a box to the Orphanage on Thanksgiving Day? Start the ball to rolling; a little boy or girl may do it. Keep it rolling. Roll it all around. Let everybody know. Give everybody a chance. Get a nice box. Fill it well. Nail it up tight. Direct it plainly. Pay the freight and let it come.

Yelping is in the air. The voice of the turkey is in the land. 'Tis the voice of the female. But just as good, so far as it goes; just send enough of them. The fact is, a young Shanghai rooster or Langshang or Plymouth Rock will make a good substitute. In fact, a good fat goose or two, or a half dozen ducks, will make a dish smell high. Don't forget the cranberries or some huckleberries—Sampson blues. Canned peaches are toothsome.

Receipts up to November 19.

Miss Marie and J. L. Bailey and others, $2.00.

Mr. J. W. Grainger, to furnish dormitory, $100.

Riverdale Sunday-school, on furnishing sewing room, $3.00.

Wilson Sunday-school, for treasurer, $25.00.

Mr. C. R. Thompson, 50 cents.

City Roads Sunday-school, November, $5.00.

Massey's Sunday-school, $2.90.

Kinston Sunday-school, for 1904, $60.00.

Union Sunday-school, Bertie Circuit, $2.00.

Salem church, on subscription, $2.25.

Donations in Kind.—Clothes for a little boy, W. H. M. S., Selma; books from a friend, Raleigh.

Thanksgivings from the Bible.

Psalm 67: God be merciful unto us and bless us and cause his face to shine upon us. Selah. That thy way may be known upon earth, thy saving health among all nations. Let all the people praise thee. O let the nations be glad and sing for joy, for thou shalt judge the people righteously and govern the nations upon earth. Selah. Let the people praise thee, O God, let all the people praise thee. Then shall the earth yield her increase: and God, even our own God, shall bless us. God shall bless us; and all the ends of the earth shall fear him. Psalm 103: Bless the Lord, O my soul; and all that is within me, bless his holy name. Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all his benefits. Second Thess. 5: 16-17-18: Rejoice ever more. Pray without ceasing. In everything give thanks, for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you. O give thanks unto the Lord for his mercy endureth forever.

HAVE YOU A TONGUE?

When you consult a physician, he first asks to see your tongue. It shows at a glance if you are bilious, and if your stomach, liver and bowels are acting as they should. Save the expense of consulting a physician, and send today to the Vernal Remedy Company, Le Roy, N. Y., and you will receive free, of charge, a trial bottle of that wonderful household remedy, Vernal Palmettona (Palmetto Berry Wine) which will surely and quickly cure you of all diseases which are brought on by an unhealthy condition of the stomach, liver, kidneys and blood. Your druggist can supply you, but the proprietors wish to have every reader of the Raleigh Christian Advocate first try a bottle so as to become thoroughly convinced of the wonderful benefits to be received.

FAST FORGING FORWARD.

Idaho is one of the best watered States in America. People are moving there because hot winds and destructive storms are unknown and because its matchless climate generates physical and mental vigor and guarantees good health. Idaho has rapidly grown in popularity during the past five years and settlers in its irrigated valleys have met with more than ordinary success. This fact has induced a large influx of eastern capital in the State with the result that its growth has been rapid. If you have in mind a change for the general improvement of your condition in life, or if you are seeking a climate beneficial to health, Idaho will meet these requirements. The easiest—in fact the only direct route to Idaho points is via the Union Pacific. This road runs two trains daily from Omaha and two trains daily from Chicago and Kansas City to all points in Idaho, Montana and the great Northwest. For full particulars and descriptive information inquire of J. F. Van Rennselaer, 13 Peachtree St., Atlanta, Ga.

For LaGrippe and Influenza use CHENEY'S EXPECTORANT.

Register for STIEFF'S
CHRISTMAS PIANO
when you are in Charlotte, or send 4 cents in stamps for return of number and let us register for you.
Read Carefully
so you will fully understand who gets this piano. On our books, opposite name, is duplicate of number given or sent to person registered. On Dec. 24th, four business men will see that these duplicates go into a box, are thoroughly shaken and a little child blind-folded will take out one number. The person holding the original will receive the piano, provided they do not own an upright piano. If you buy from us and should hold number drawn, we refund money. If you buy elsewhere, your ticket is void. Write at once.
ONLY ONE MEMBER OF A HOME WHERE THERE IS NO UPRIGHT PIANO, CAN REGISTER.
See former Ad.
Chas. M. Stieff
Manufacturer of the Piano with the Sweet Tone.
SOUTHERN WAREROOMS, 211-213 Tryon St., Charlotte, N. C.
C. H. WILMOTH, Manager.
(Mention this paper.)

Cancer Hospital.

We want every man and woman in the United States to know what we are doing—We are curing Cancers, Tumors and Chronic Sores without the use of knife and are endorsed by the Senate and Legislature of Virginia. If you are seeking a cure come here and you will get it.
The Kellam Cancer Hospital,
Richmond, Va.

Arrest It—$50 Reward.

Upon receipt of 10 cents, a small sample bottle of Ec-zine will be sent to every reader of the Raleigh Christian Advocate who is suffering with any kind of skin disease or eruption—Eczema, Blind or Bleeding Piles, Blood Poison, Fever Sores, Cancer, Rheumatic Pains, or any other Germ disease or sore of any name or nature.
$50 reward will be paid for any case of Eczema that is not promptly cured with Ec-zine. Ec-zine will heal any sore or cure the worst skin and make it look like velvet. Thousands cured daily. Never mind what you have tried; forget the failures made by other remedies, and send for sample of Ec-zine which always gives relief and permanent cure. A $1.00 bottle often cures the worst cases. If your druggist does not have Ec-zine send direct to us. The Ec-zine Company, M. Kupermeier, Sales Agent, 112 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

Good Top Buggies $28.25
Two Years' Guarantee.
Columbus Queen $49.50
On 30 Days' Free Trial.
Catalogue Free. - - - - TRY US.
Office and Factory, 861-867 Mt. Vernon Ave., OHIO VEHICLE AND HARNESS CO., COLUMBUS, OHIO.

Quarterly Meetings.

WARRENTON DISTRICT.
G. F. Smith, P. E., Littleton, N. C.
FOURTH ROUND.

Littleton, Littleton, Nov. 3, 4
Weldon, Nov. 6, 7
Garysburg, Seaboard, Nov. 5
Roanoke Circuit, Smiths, Nov. 12, 13
Roanoke Rapids, Rosemary, Nov. 13, 14
Ridgeway, Union, Nov. 19, 20
Henderson, Nov. 27, 28

ELIZABETH CITY DISTRICT.
J. E. Underwood, P. E., E. City, N. C.
FOURTH ROUND.

Dare, Mann's Harbor, Nov. 5, 6
Roanoke Island, Nov. 6, 7
Elizabeth City, First Church, Nov. 13
Elizabeth City Road, Nov. 13
Columbia, Nov. 19, 20
Pantego and Belhaven, Nov. 25
Roper, Nov 26, 27
Plymouth, Nov. 27

WASHINGTON DISTRICT.
J. D. Bundy, P. E., Rocky Mount, N. C.
FOURTH ROUND.

Greenville, (morning) Nov. 6
Grimesland and Vanceboro, Shilmerdine, November 5, 7
Spring Hope, Hornes, Nov. 12, 13
Wilson Station, (night) Nov. 13
Wilson Circuit, (Lodge Street) Nov. 14
Fremont, Fremont Nov. 15
Rock Mount, Nov. 16
Bath, Bath, Nov. 19, 20
South Rocky Mount and Marvin, Nov. 22
South Edgecombe, Elm City, Nov. 27, 28

ROCKINGHAM DISTRICT.
John N. Cole, P. E., Rockingham, N. C.
FOURTH ROUND.

Montgomery, Capeisle, Nov. 5, 6
Red Springs, Red Springs, Nov. 12, 13
Pekin, Concord, Nov. 19, 20
Aberdeen, Aberdeen, Nov. 26, 27

RALEIGH DISTRICT.
W. H. Moore, P. E., Pittsboro, N. C.
FOURTH ROUND.

Oxford Station, November 5, 6
Youngsville, November 12, 13
Louisburg, November 19, 20
Tar River Plank Chapel, Novembe

NEW BERN DISTRICT.
F. D. Swindell, P. E., Goldsboro, N. C
FOURTH ROUND.

Snow Hill Circuit, Jerusalem, Nov. 5, 6
Craven, Asbury, Nov. 11
Carteret, Harlow, Nov. 12, 13
Beaufort, Nov. 13, 14
Atlantic, Wit, Nov. 15, 16
Straits, Tabernacle, Nov. 19, 20
Morehead, Nov. 20
LaGrange Circuit, Nov. 23
St. John, Nov. 25
Mt. Olive Circuit, Smiths, Nov. 26, 27

DURHAM DISTRICT.
J. T. Gibbs, P. E., Durham, N. C.
FOURTH ROUND.

Mt. Tirzah Circuit, Nov. 5, 6
Burlington, Front Street, Nov. 13, 14
East Burlington, Graham and Haw River, Nov. 13, at night
Burlington, Shiloah, Nov. 18
Alamance, Phillips Chapel, Nov. 19, 20
Main Street, Nov. 27, at 11 a. m.
West Durham, Nov. 27, at night

FAYETTEVILLE DISTRICT.
J. S. Hurley, P. E., Fayetteville, N. C.
FOURTH ROUND.

Hope Mills, Nov 5, 6
Newton Grove, Nov. 11
Duke, Benson, Nov. 12, 13
Buckhorn, Cokesbury, Oct. 18
Lillington, Nov. 19, 20
Saunpson, Andrews Chapel, Nov. 25
Fayetteville, Hay Street, Nov. 27
Fayetteville, Holt's Hill, Nov: 27

WILMINGTON DISTRICT.
R. R. John, P. E., Wilmington, N. C.
FOURTH ROUND.

Burgaw, Burgaw, Nov. 4
Kenansville, Warsaw, Nov. 5, 6
Onslow, Tabernacle, Nov. 5
Jackson and Richlands, Richlands, Nov. 10
Southport, Nov. 13
New River, Sneed's Ferry, Nov. 18
Scott's Hill, Scott's Hill, Nov. 19, 20
Bladen Street, Nov. 27

Scholarship Free

FOR ONE MONTH. CLIP AND SEND OI PRESENT THIS NOTICE FOR PARTIOULARS.
150 Page Illustrated Catalogue Free.
DRAUGHON'S PRACTICAL BUSINESS Colleges
RALEIGH, N. C.

St. Louis, Mo.	Shreveport, La.
Atlanta, Ga.	Knoxville, Tenn.
Paducah, Ky.	Kansas City, Mo.
Fort Worth, Tex.	Nashville, Tenn.
Columbia, S. C.	Little Rock, Ark.
Ft. Scott, Kas.	Montgomery, Ala.
Galveston, Tex.	Oklahoma City, O. T.

The Fast Trains

To California are run over the Union Pacific. Via Omaha 16 hours quicker to San Francisco than any other line. No change of roads, no detours, "The Overland Route" all the way. Be sure your ticket reads over the Union Pacific. Inquire of
J. H. LOTHROP, C. A.,
903 Olive St., St. Louis, Mo.

THE LARGEST SALE OF ANY ONE BRAND IN THE UNITED STATES.
Sauers
FLAVORING EXTRACTS
BEST BY TEST.
AT YOUR GROCER
10c and 25c.

The Outlook in China.

In a recent letter Rev. Arthur D. Peill (London Missionary Society, T'sang Chou, North China), says:

"Things have changed since 1900, and the people are willing now to listen, and no longer ridicule and cavil as they did. The door that leads to these people's hearts is standing open, but the laborers are few. 'Pray ye the Lord of the harvest,' is the cry on the lips of us all. Will you not join us in this prayer, and do what you can to get it answered?

"My first assistant, Huang Shu T'ang, has been to Tien-tsin and Paoting-fu, and he returns with heart on fire, full of praise for what his eyes have seen—new schools in Tien-tsin, industrial schools, medical college run by the Chinese themselves, public reading rooms, where all sorts of Chinese newspaper, etc., may be seen and read for a fee of 20 cash (say, 2d.), a new desire for learning abroad, Christian truth even in English 'readers' from Japan, encouraging edicts from the Empress, large growth in the church in Pating-fu, and substantial progress there toward self-support. All this and more besides has made his heart right glad. Perhaps he takes a rosy view; but then the rosy view is the right one. Disappointments will no doubt surely come; but Christ is leading on, and our place is with him in the forefront, looking forward to certain victory, while we know that even the seeming disaster will be over-ruled for good, and that Satan and all his legions are subservient, even in rebellion, to Him whose name we bear.

"Since 'the foolishness' of 1900, Buddhism in this region has markedly declined. In recent journeys Mr. Murray has seen fine temples in decay, and even being pulled to pieces and their bricks and stone built into private houses. It is rare to see a well-kept temple, and even priests are scarce.

"One of our preachers returning from a great annual 'temple fair,' which has been the headquarters of the incense trade in this region for many years, reports the general conviction that both trade and fair are dwindling, and though he still saw many signs of superstition, yet devotees were said to be fewer every year.

"Men went about there on hands and knees, with saddles and bridles, like donkeys; or cut pieces out of their thighs as large as the palm of one's hand, quite regardless of streaming blood. Some of these were under vows in regard to illness of parents, and did it to get them cured. Some were bumping their heads on the ground at every pace they went, others at every ten, with a man to mark the intervals. But even in this stronghold of rampant Buddhism there was interest in Christianity."—Selected.

McClure's for December.

McClure's Magazine for December fairly radiates the spirit of Christmas. There is good cheer, pleasant entertainment, the beauty and joy of life shining out of its pages; and underlying all this there is compelling seriousness and importance. The magazine seems to grow constantly richer, more varied, more brilliant, more authoritative—all qualities well reflected in this number. That rare combination of illuminating serious article and absorbing story is effected by Ray Stanard Baker in his story of the Garment Workers' strike, "The Rise of the Tailors." Mr. Baker discusses the whole question of the "open shop," the very crux of the labor problem, with discriminating analysis, while he recites the dramatic narrative of "democracy on its way up" in New York's East Side. What will be a revelation of tremendous significance to most readers are the hard facts, sustained by incontrovertible figures and comment, found in an article on "The Increase of Lawlessness in the United States," by S. S. McClure. Mr. McClure sees the worst, but hopes for the best. In the midst of depressing conditions of misgovernment, corruption and lawlessness, he finds at work "the pioneers of a new righteousness which shall become a new passion—the love of country," when we shall have obedience to the law because it is the law. His statement of the case is powerful and convincing.

The position of distinction held by McClure's in story as well as article is well sustained by the fiction of the number. James Hopper leads with "A Jumble in Divinity," which for charm of style and quality of sentiment can hardly be excelled as a Christmas story. There are more stories that appeal to our primal sense of what is beautiful and tender to our better instincts and tastes, with a moving force. George Madden Martin's "God Rest You, Merry Christmas," Marion Hill's "His Journey to the Gates," Janet Reminton's "The Way Wonderful," Herman Knickerbocker Viele's "The Money Meter," are about the people and things we all know, real and homely and familiar, feeling what we have felt and drawing our warmest sympathy. Mrs. Martin's is a Christmas story, which reflects the season and its meaning. Then there are more of the masterly studies of men and things in the rough, of that great America which lies far west of Hoboken, as as artistically perfect expressions of the unfamiliar as are these other stories of the ordinary. Rex E. Beach describes a terrible contest of two miners with cold and hunger and distance in the Arctic circle, "The Test," in which mind defeats matter. Stewart Edward White continues his serial, "The Rawhide," and carries us with unbroken interest into the mysteries of "the round-up" and "the trail" in the Arizona desert. O. Henry has a delightfully humorous sketch of the matrimonial adventures of two retired miners in "The Ransom of Mack." A collection of thrilling stories, condensed under one title, is found in "Notes from a Trainer's Book," by Samuel Hopkins Adams.

John La Farge continues his discussion of the Masterpieces of Painting under the alluring head of "Allegories." George W. Alger writes a most comprehensive and comprehending review of Ida M. Tarbell's marvelous "History of the Standard Oil Company," just published by McClure, Phillips & Co. These are poems. "The Dream Child," by Florence Wilkinson, and a "Ballade of the Brave," by Richard Burton, which round out to completeness this most attractive magazine.

Darkness Rather Than Light.

Even Spain has now come to a wise determination to stop the influx into that priest-ridden land of the monastic exiles from other countries, and it certainly would seem that the decision has not been arrived at any too soon. No fewer than 6,000 monks and friars have found a refuge in Spain from the Philippines, and before that immigration there were more than 40,528 priests and monks and 28,549 nuns, in addition to a huge army of "secular clergy" in the country. As Rome's strongest foundation is ignorance, it is therefore not surprising to find that, despite legislation in favor of compulsory education, out of a population of about 17,000,000 in Spain, 12,000,000 can neither read nor write.—Selected.

For Whooping Cough use CHENEY'S EXPECTORANT.

When writing advertisers, please mention this paper.

King's Business College

(INCORPORATED.)

CAPITAL STOCK - - $30,000.

Learn Bookkeeping, Shorthand, Touch Typewriting, Penmanship and English. Not in a month—this cannot be done. Not free—you cannot get something for nothing but if merit appeals, we can convince you that KING'S is the best. Established and results of 20 years experience.

Reference: Every bank and leading business concern in Raleigh or Charlotte.

Write for our College Journal and offers we are now making. Address,

KING'S BUSINESS COLLEGE,
Raleigh, N. C., or Charlotte, N. C.

CENTRAL ACADEMY

LITTLETON, N. C.

A Christian Home School for Boys and Young Men. Spring Term begins Jan. 4th, 1905. Charges very low. For further information address

REV. W. W. ROSE, Principal.

DOES YOUR SCHOOL NEED THEM?

DURING the past three years, more than 50,000 children in the public schools of North Carolina have had new patent desks furnished them. Were yours among the number? If not, now is the time to buy. Prices satisfactory and terms will be made to suit. We furnish all kinds of

BLACKBOARDS

FOR SCHOOLS, SUNDAY-SCHOOLS AND CHURCHES.

Everything guaranteed to be satisfactory and prices the lowest, quality considered. Write for circular matter.

Chas. J. Parker, RALEIGH, N. C.

Registered A-I-M Trade Mark

ACID IRON MINERAL

Is a great natural remedy of wonderful curative power mined from a natural deposit. It cures all diseases, involving inflammation, by purifying the blood and directly healing the irritated parts. Try it on an external sore and watch its magic healing. It acts in exactly the same way on all internal inflammation, such as Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Rheumatism, Kidney Disease, Stomach and Bowel Troubles. Numerous testimonials that it cures when all other remedies fail.

No equal for diseases peculiar to women. Tones up the entire system. Four weeks treatment, only 50 cents. If your druggist cannot supply you, write to "Cured me completely of bladder trouble." Mrs. Nadling, Winston, N. C.

"For sores A. I. M., is worth its weight in gold." J. H. Davis, Beaufort, S. C.
(Blood Poison.) "By use of A. I. M. I was cured in a few weeks." J. P. Wingard, Branchville, S. C.

ACID IRON MINERAL CO., J. H. Garst, Gen. Mgr., Salem, Va.
P. H. HALTIWANGER, Pres., Columbia, S. C.

THIS IS A

RED CEDAR PAIL..

That has seen twenty-two years of Hard Service and having been thoroughly repaired is now ready for 22 more.

MANUFACTURED ONLY BY

PREWITT-SPURR MFG. COMPANY,

NASHVILLE, TENNESSEE.

If your supply house does not carry them in stock, write us giving name of your Supply House.

Reading Room [illegible] College

Raleigh Christian Advocate

Organ of the North Carolina Conference

FIFTIETH YEAR | RALEIGH, N. C., WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 30, 1904. | NUMBER 44

BISHOP WARREN A. GANDLER.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SOUTH.

President of the North Carolina Conference in its Sixty-Eighth Annual Session, November 30, 1904, Henderson, N. C.

GATCHEL & MANNING, PHILA.

Contributions

HISTORICAL INCIDENTS.

Fifth Street Methodist Church, Wilmington, N. C.

BY J. W. HEWITT.

In the year 1847, at Front Street M. E. Church, during the pastorate of Rev. A. M. Chreitzburg, of the South Carolina Conference, of which Wilmington was then a part, a few of its members then living in the south end of town conceived the idea of joining together and building a church that would be more convenient to their homes; to this end prayer-meetings were held in many of their homes and work began, assisted by the pastor and others, among whom were Wm. Sutton, John C. Millis, Frank D. Smaw, Edward Hawkins and Isaac Hawkins. Soon a revival sprang up and God's manifestation was seen and felt in that whole section of town. An unoccupied house was then secured from Jas. Casidy, Esq., himself a Methodist, on Castle Street, between Second and Third Streets, and regular meetings were held afterwards.

The next year, 1848, the Rev. Mr. Chreitzburg was sent back to Front Street station and Rev. W. C. Parsons was sent as his colleague in the work at the south of town. In 1849, Rev. Wm. Crook and Rev. S. H. Brown were sent, and old Fifth Street Church was built. The contract was given to a Mr. Milmore.

A little incident may not be out of place here. While the rafters of the church were being placed in position, a well-known citizen, whom we will call Capt. G—, was passing by, and with a loud, sonorous voice, as was his custom, called to an old colored woman who was passing—she having a deep interest in the building, "What are they building there?" She answered: "Dat is de Metidist church." Oh yes, that is the Dry Pond Poor Bockra nigger church, he said in derision; and she replied: "You nebber mind bout dat—dat church buildin' on a solid rock."

In 1850, Rev. H. A. C. Walker and Rev. J. T. Munds were sent—the preachers alternating—and Fifth Street Church was soon known for its spirituality. Well do we recollect a sermon by J. T. Munds from this simple text: "For Jesus sake." I have not words to express the feeling in the church produced by that sermon. From the building of the church until it was torn away its spirituality was at high-water mark, and we seldom worshipped here without seeing God's presence manifested in some way. It was during a series of meetings held by the two churches that this writer was converted under the pastorate of Wm. H. Bobbitt, in the month of January, 1852. He was assisted by a Mr. Adams from a Northern Conference. Every night the meetings were held and kept up for several weeks—a short sermon at 7.30 o'clock, and in an hour the altar and front benches would be crowded with penitents. After these were converted, the preacher would announce another text—say about 11 o'clock—and again would the altar be crowded with earnest seekers, and we seldom got back home before 1 o'clock in the morning. Yet it did not seem very tiresome; soul-saving was the business of the church; "to heaven" was the watch-word. Scores and hundreds were converted to God, among them many young men. So plain and pointed was the preaching that some would get offended and leave the church; but the Spirit was doing His work. Some of the hardest cases were converted and became prominent and useful members of the church.

From this manifestation of God's presence, old Fifth Street Church commenced her spiritual record at home and abroad. Among our most earnest workers we might mention Brothers Sutton, Smaw, Millis and the Hawkins brothers; a power for good were these men. What a help and encouragement to the young convert; especially the young men. Often would the young men, under the leadership of Brother Smaw, repair to the woods in warm weather, and under a large spreading pine hold a short service before the preaching hour on Sunday morning. What a glorious time we would have. These fathers have all passed over the river and are resting under the shade of the trees. May we emulate their example, and so live that when our time shall come our children may have reason to call us blessed.

We had congregational singing, led by two young men full of the Holy Ghost—the Garman brothers. We used the Methodist Hymn Book, and had no organ or choir. On Sunday morning, while the congregation was waiting for the preacher to make his appearance, how it filled the heart with joy to hear such singing as we had; how soul-refreshing the hymn;

"How happy are they, who their Saviour obey
And have laid up their treasures above;
Tongue cannot express the sweet comfort and peace
Of a soul in its earliest love."

Old-time religion was good neough for us. We have now a more beautiful church to worship in; but the Lord forbid that we should ever forget the old landmarks and our captain at the helm who has guided us through so many years in safety; and bearing in mind the motto that was placed over the pulpit in 1856 by T. Page Ricaud: "Come thou with us, and we will do thee good." May we extend this blessed invitation to all wayfaring ones that may come within her walls.

How well we remember Brother Tuttle's experience meetings on Sunday afternoon. So popular were they that they would draw large crowds from every point of the city. The old sea captains in port—what a pleasure to listen to their experience while in mid-ocean during a storm, and how God had protected them and saved them by appealing to Him for help! Very often would sinners be converted at these meetings—and no wonder.

Truly the old colored woman's reply to Capt. G— was based on a firm foundation. For fifty-two years we have watched the eventful course of Fifth Street Church with more than anxious care. It is true, her spiritual sky has not always been cloudless; we have seen dark and murky clouds hang over her spiritual horizon many times; and as many times have we seen the promises of God verified. "In the sixth trouble I will be with you, and in the seventh I will not forsake, and upon this rock I will build my church and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." Allow an old member to give his recollections of his church home and to appeal to all his brethren and sisters to be faithful and put their trust in the promises of God.

After the transfer of the North Carolina territory from the South Carolina Conference in the year 1850, the following preachers have served Fifth Street Church:

L. S. Burkhead, Wm. H. Bobbitt, Abraham Weaver, T. P. Richard, J. W. Tucker, J. E. Mann, T. W. Guthrie, Joseph Wheeler, Jas. W. Wheeler, J. W. Thomas, S. D. Peeler, J. W. Robothom, Samuel Pearse, Frank H. Wood, A. A. Boshamer, N. N. Conoly, Jas. Wilson, J. T. Gibbs, J. M. Rhodes, B. R. Hall, Wm. I. Hull, D. H. Tuttle, R. C. Beaman, L. L. Nash, Wm. L. Cuninggim, J. H. Hall, F. M. Shamburger, A. McCullen.

We are sorry we have not the data to write an accurate account of the work of all these faithful servants of God, but suffice it to say, under the circumstances, and the many vicissitudes through which the church has passed, it has prospered under their ministry and the good seed sown is still producing fruit.

We cannot change the world, taking out all its thorns, making its tasks easy and its burdens light, modulating all its discords into harmonies, transforming its ugliness into beauty; but we can have our own hearts renewed by the grace of God, and thus the world will be made over for us. A new heart makes all things new. A heart of love will find love elsewhere.—Miller.

Letter from Brazil.

My Dear Friends and Coworkers in the North Carolina Conference:—Many times have I desired to send you a written message through the Advocate, but with many others who labor in the field abroad, having the time filled with work especially assigned to me, have had to quiet my heart and conscience by an earnest prayer in behalf of those who by loving sacrifices make it possible for me to work for Jesus in a foreign land. I feel sure that the editor will give me space for a letter to you.

As a Brazil missionary, you must let me talk of Brazil, and of course that special station which I love most and know best is at present my post of duty—Collegio Americano Fluminense in Rio de Janeiro.

To me, the school and the children are most interesting, and you may enjoy some things which I can tell you about them.

God has blessed us wonderfully this year and our hearts praise Him daily for His loving kindness and tender mercies.

At Conference in Piracicaba, 1903, Bishop Wilson appointed me to Rio, as directress of the school, in order to give Miss Glenn more time for her work as Secretary of Missions. Since then we have labored together in perfect harmony, and the Lord has prospered His work in our hands.

The school had passed through great trials just before my coming; in one year there had been two cases of yellow fever in the home; at that time both home and school were in the same building; many pupils had been lost because of the break in the school term, and the school had necessarily gotten into debt. At the beginning of the year we had 135 pupils; up to date there have been 150 enrolled and the regular attendance is 132. This includes the parochial school at the church, and under supervision of the missionaries in Rio. The debt is gradually decreasing, and by the end of the year we trust that every cent will have been paid. New pupils are continually asking for admission into our school, and the patrons are pleased with the instruction which their children receive.

These children, as a whole, are good, obedient, and unusually intelligent. Some speak French and English; and one, our most advanced pupil, speaks German fluently. They come from homes of different grades—rich and poor, clean and filthy, educated, and illiterate, and Catholic and Protestant.

To me, they are beautiful, but especially when their faces are lighted with a live interest as they listen to the Words of Life. You cannot find in the United States a class in any Sunday-school who show a more profound respect for the Bible, or who love and listen more eagerly to understand its precious truths, than the children who are taught in our school. Few have Bibles in their homes, and the greater part of them hear the Book condemned by the priests, but they love the stories all the same; and more than this, they can tell them to others. The tiny ones in the first grade know many of the incidents in Christ's life, and in their own baby language will tell you what Jesus means for us to learn from them.

I wish to tell you of a little girl who, during the past quarter, sold a number of New Testaments. She selected some with bright bindings and brought them to school, offered them at low prices to her school-mates, who, in several instances, bought them with their pin money, and in many cases covered them with paper to keep them clean and new.

Another thing of interest is their love for the hymns. How they do love to sing, and when it is raining so that they cannot play out of doors, their chief amusement is to form a line and march around the building singing with all their hearts, and to the top of their voice, some hymn such as "The Banner of the Cross," or "Onward Christian Soldiers." The little ones like best of all, I believe, "At the Cross," "Jesus Loves Me," and "Come to the Saviour."

They never get tired of songs. They sing in the morning at the opening of the school; they sing at recess, and they sing at the close of school, but even so are always delighted when the teacher permits them to sing at an odd hour.

We have a promise that God's Word shall not return unto Him void, and this has been exemplified in our midst the past few months. The most of the children who enter our schools become captivated at once by the Bible lessons, which they have every day, and go home to tell what they have learned. Many times their messages cause them to be taken out of our school, as has been done thousands of times; but there are instances where the whole family becomes interested and find their way to the church and Sunday-school through these little messengers.

A little girl of ten years of age became very much interested last year in the Bible; she and her little sister told all they knew to their mother and father, persuaded them to let them have a nice Bible of her own, to permit them to become members of the "Christ's Jewels Society" and Sunday-school, and at last to come to church with her. When I tell you that on the second Sunday in September, that this child, Stella Marques, stood before the altar to be received into the church you will rejoice with me. By her side stood a strong man of thirty-five, her father, who had come with her seeking the way to eternal life. This is not all. A few weeks afterward the mother took the same step, and now that is a happy, Christian home.

A little child shall lead them. So, dear friends, the good work goes on in Brazil. The seed is carried by the children into many a home, and God only can count the result of their sowing. The harvest ripens and is garnered into His great store-house.

I know that the Catholic religion is not regarded with such horror by the home workers as is that of China and India, but is void of the true spirit of Christ and is dead in sin of the deepest dye.

When our beloved Dr. Lambuth, a few months ago, spoke to our school and told them of the sin and ignorance of the children of China and Japan, explaining clearly their form of idolatrous worship, one of our older pupils, who has recently joined the church, said: "The Doctor does not know how exactly he is describing Catholicism." It is really heart-rending to see and feel these things about your own door, and yet not be able to bring about a change at once. It is impossible for these people to say that they have Jesus and the Bible and do not need our dull and unattractive faith. We must by our lives prove to them that our religion is superior to theirs, and it requires the patience which only God can give. But a brighter day is dawning for this land, and let us continue to work with our hearts and hands to win the people for Jesus Christ.

There are thousands who stand among the best men and women, who, disgusted with the frightful sham of religion offered them by the infamous priests, are looking for something else and yearning for the peace and rest of soul which only Christ can give.

Pray for Brazil more earnestly than ever, especially remember Collegio Americano Fluminense.

Thank God for one more North Carolina young woman who feels that the Father wants her to work in Brazil. May His richest blessings attend her and all her fellow-students in their preparation for this service. The field is large; the work is great; the Master is calling for skilled workers. Are you ready; will you come? Young women who seek happiness—"in His presence is fulness of joy; at His right hand there are pleasures forever more."

For you, I pray, Eph. 3:14-21, the great apostle's prayer for the Ephesian elders.

Pray that I may faithfully represent Him, whose I am and whom I serve.

Yours in Christ's service,

ELIZABETH S. DAVIS.

Rio de Janeiro, October 29, 1904.

Teachers and Teaching—The Greatest Need of Our Sunday-Schools and the Way Provided for Meeting It.

BY TEEBEE.

In his new book on Sunday-school teacher training, Dr. Hamill asserts that to the question, "What is the hardest thing you have to do?" the uniform answer of superintendents is, "To get teachers." A short time ago the writer had an opportunity to test the matter. He was present in a Sunday-school County Convention where the superintendents present were requested to respond to this question: "What is the greatest need of your school?" One of the speakers was distressed because he had nobody in his school who could sing, although he had both an organ and an organist. All the rest acknowledged that the teacher was their greatest need. The answer took the form that the need was competent, consecrated teachers. One school, that I thought was so modern and progressive that it would hardly admit the need of anything, joined in the chorus. When one of the superintendents was asked what he thought about making a few teachers that would measure up to the needs of his school he was overwhelmed with astonishment. There was no reason why he should have been surprised at the question, for the Sunday-school of the present day is brought face to face with this problem.

Undoubtedly, as has been said, the teaching is the weakest point in the Sunday-school; the teacher is often better than his work. The teaching suffers almost invariably in comparison with secular teaching. There is no reason why it should be so. Borrowing another idea from Dr. Hamill—there are few born teachers, but everybody can learn to teach. The foremost Sunday-school workers in America have recognized the fact for some time and have given a great deal of thought to the problem of helping those who have the natural intelligence and spiritual gifts for teaching to prepare themselves for what our church calls "a great life-work." Various attempts have been made to supply the need with such success that in some States of the Union teachers' diplomas are issued by hundreds every year. Now the churches are taking up the matter of teacher training. The Southern Methodist Church was the first to take the matter in hand with a prescribed course of study suited to the needs of its own schools and its own teachers; and to the present time its system is the best that has been brought forward. By authority of the General Coference we have a course of study embracing knowledge of the art of teaching, the doctrines and polity of our church, and a long range and short range acquaintance with the Bible and its books; all under the direction of a specialist in Sunday-school teacher training. The books are simple and their contents are mastered easily. As reward for conscientious effort to obtain a working knowledge of the subjects taught in the books, the Sunday-school Board issues a diploma.

In the North Carolina Conference, with nearly five thousand teachers in our Sunday-schools, not more than two or three have completed the course and taken diplomas. If we are not in the rear of the procession we are so near it that we might venture to contest for the honor, such as it is. No Sunday-school teacher who possesses the natural and spiritual gifts for his work should be content with his preparation for his work until he has embraced the opportunity which our church offers him to become proficient in his calling. Quoting Dr. Hamill once more: "The time must come when the untrained teacher will be without excuse or standing." If all our preachers and superintendents were alive to the need of their schools, which implies something more than a recognition of the need, that time would come in a year or two at the most.

This brings me to the question that astonished the superintendent in the convention. It is well recognized that the way to supply the need of competent teachers is to train young people in the schools for the work of teaching. Let our most promising young men and women be formed into classes and taught in the things that make teachers. Let the best qualified person in the school be set over the class as leader or teacher, and let the class pursue the course of study to graduation. This is the plan that is being pursued in many schools in other parts of the country, but if there is a teacher training class in the North Carolina Conference the writer is not aware of it.

As I understand it, the plans of the Sunday-school Board contemplate raising up teacher training specialists for the work in each of our Annual Conferences. I do not know any enterprise in which the North Carolina Conference could engage with more assurance of return for the effort.

Rev. N. M. Jurney.

BY J. V. WILLIAMS.

The mail bring me the information that my own dear friend, Brother Jurney, is no longer among the living. How strange it seems!

Only a few weeks ago he was with me in New York. Little did I think when we parted, that I should see his face no more in this life.

It is now about thirty years since I first saw him. It was love at first sight, and that deep love has grown with the years.

It was his first year in the Conference. He was stationed at old Person Street Church, Raleigh, and I had made Raleigh my home.

I never shall forget the look which he gave me when we first shook hands. He seemed to read my every thought. He said at once: "I want you to come around and board at the same house with me, and room with me. I want a companion." I readily consented, and we became welded together from that day.

What a year of joy that was! A revival broke out in his church which ran for about three months, I think. How many souls were converted there I do not remember, but it was the greatest revival I ever saw. We remodeled the church. Took the roof off, and the weatherboarding off, and greatly enlarged it, and continued the meeting while the work was going on.

We were accustomed to have a meeting every day at 3 p. m. and the sound of many hammers and saws did not disturb us. Souls would be converted at almost every meeting. Church was generally crowded, and many turned away.

Bishop Marvin came to Raleigh and dedicated the church when it was finished, and stated that it was the most remarkable revival of which he had ever heard.

Happy days! Happy preacher! Happy people!

Brother Jurney traveled in the Conference 25 years. He built and repaired many churches.

Craven Memorial Hall at Trinity College stands also as a memorial to Brother Jurney. It was a work of love. He loved the memory of Dr. Craven, and love always means sacrifice.

Since he left the traveling connection nearly five years ago, we have had many heart to heart talks. Early this year he told me that he was thinking of arranging his business so as to return to the itinerancy. He loved to preach, and he loved God's house.

His home life was just lovely. I have never seen a happier wife or more devoted husband. The great love Sister Jurney bore for her dear loving husband was like one continual sunbeam in that household. It was heaven to be under their roof, and I have spent many days there in the last five years. "God is love," and He wants us to love. God bless Sister Jurney and Braxton and Nathaniel and Neva. He will not fail in His promise to be a "husband and father."

The Lord greatly bless his dear sisters and brothers whom he loved so tenderly. Now with a heavy heart, and tearful eyes, let me say farewell, my dear loving and best friend, till we meet again over Jordan.

167 Reade Street New York, November 10, 1904.

The religious census of London shows that 474 persons, out of a possible 1,000, attended church. The total population of London is 6,240,366.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SOUTH, HENDERSON, N. C.

Trinity College Notes.

The Outlook for this week contains an interesting article by Dr. Edwin Mims on "Five Years of General Robert E. Lee's Life." This is based on the recently published "Recollections and Letters of Robert E. Lee" by his son, R. E. Lee.

Bishop Warren A. Candler, of Atlanta, Ga., will spend next Sunday in Durham, and will preach in Main Street Methodist Church in the morning. Bishop Candler delivered the Avera Biblical lectures a few years ago, and the college community is glad of the opportunity to hear him again.

President Kilgo preached the Thanksgiving sermon at Main Street Church.

Mr. J. W. Bailey of Raleigh, editor of the Biblical Recorder, delivered a lecture before a large audience in Craven Memorial Hall on "Political Readjustment in the South." In matter and literary finish, Mr. Bailey's address was of unusual quality, evidenced by the considerable attention given to it in the newspaper press. Among the metropolitan papers, the New York Evening Post deemed it worthy of an extended favorable editorial notice.

The next lecture of the series will be delivered by Dr. W. H. Glasson, Professor of Political Economy and Social Science in Trinity College.

A debate with Emory College will be held in Craven Memorial Hall, Durham, sometime in the spring.

A track meet was held in Hanes Athletic Field Wednesday afternoon. More than usual interest has been manifested in this form of sport.

Trinity College, Durham, N. C., Nov. 25, 1904.

The Year's Work.

Dear Dr. Ivey:—I herewith enclose report of my work for the Conference year now closing. In a humble way I have helped twenty of our brethren in as many meetings, with the following results:

One thousand two hundred and seventy-five conversions—of these, 785 joined our church and 304 joined other churches. Out of the 1,275 converts, 1,089 joined the church and 186 joined no church so far as I know. Of backslidden in the church, 975 seemed to be definitely reclaimed. Add the conversion and reclamations together and we have 2,250 saved during the year. In many instances the quickening of the church meant as much as the conversion and reclamations. I am quite sure these figures are safe, as it is our rule to under, rather than over-estimate results.

My wife goes with me and is a help-meet indeed.

Our work is hard and very trying, but we are happy in it because we are where God wants us at present. We are always glad to say a word for the Advocate.

Yours kindly, E. C. GLENN.

Battleboro and Whitaker.

Dear Dr. Ivey:—I am now closing up my first year on this charge. I think I can truthfully say this is in many respects is my best year in the Conference.

I am serving a kind, lovable and hospitable people. They are continually showing their expressions of appreciation by their many acts of kindness to us in various ways. On my return home to-day I found that we had been very kindly remembered for Thanksgiving Day with two very fine turkeys. May God bless the donors with a rich legacy of His divine grace. I desire to take this occasion to return my sincere thanks to our good people for the most delightful trip tendered me to the World's Fair at St. Louis. Wife and I boarded the train here at Battleboro, October 25th, and joined Mrs. J. H. Exum, Jr., and daughter, Mary Blount, at Whitakers, for St. Louis via Richmond and Cincinnati over the great C. and O. and Big Four route, reaching St. Louis at 6.30 o'clock. The beautiful scenery along the C. and O. through the mountains of West Virginia is beyond description. We were perfectly charmed with the magnificence and beauty of the grand Shenandoah Valley which lay out before us to our right inundated here and there with little hills and rills, thickly wooded with various kinds of oak whose foliage was of golden yellow artistically tinted with crimson. We rode for several miles gazing upon this beautiful handiwork of Nature, and were made to declare that nothing surpasses the beauty and arrangement of God. The first thing that attracted our attention when we arrived at St. Louis was the magnitude of that great mammoth depot, covering twelve acres of ground, with its most systematic arrangement.

If the World's Fair does not prove a success financially, it certainly has in our humble judgment surpassed everything else of its kind in beauty and artistical arrangement. And as to what we saw there time and space do not permit me to tell.

After spending five days there on the Exposition grounds, we turned our faces homeward, where I have entered actively with renewed vigor upon my ministerial duties, making final preparations for Conference.

God has been with us during the year and is with us in the close. Finances are coming up well, and the spiritual condition of the charge is still improving. I have just received a prominent man of our town into the church who is now very ill in one of the hospitals at Baltimore. Let us pray that God may restore him back in health to his family.

On yesterday evening, Monday, November 21st, I buried at McTyeire Church the first one of our flock that has died during this year—Sister Helen Bryant, aged fifty-four years, a woman of fine Christian character, who was greatly beloved and highly esteemed by all who knew her. May the blessings of God comfort the bereaved children and relatives.

The dear old Advocate will be remembered by us very pleasantly at the Conference.

Fraternally, R. F. TAYLOR.

Reminiscential.

Dear Brother Ivey:—I am, through your generosity, a reader of the Raleigh Advocate, and am as anxious to get it as I am to get our own paper, because I have, although born in Norfolk County, Va., have spent most of my seventy-eight years in the good Old North State, and a good part of my evangelistic work has been done in Eastern N. C., and I am so well acquainted with the good people there that incidents published in your paper, as I read them, give me a great deal of pleasure. And especially some things connected with my work there, in and around Raleigh, that occurred when I was pastor there from 1883 to 1887, and I feel that the work done there and then by my poor efforts has not been lost, and I was melted to tears and my soul made to rejoice when I read in your paper during the last several months about what has been done in improvements at Brooklyn, Macedonia, and Tucker's Grove. I was sent to that work by the Conference at Statesville in November, 1883, twenty-one years ago. I found the Brooklyn church outside the corporate limits of the city with seventeen members; Macedonia, five miles from the city with seven members, and better known at that time as Ram Cat; Cool Spring three miles northeast of the city with but very few members. Found ten names on the book who had been dead more than five years.

We had a glorious revival at Brooklyn that lasted seven weeks, ending on the night of the cyclone in March, 1884. At its close we had about seventy members. We had ministerial help with only three sermons by our clergy—Brother David Shively—whom, for his wonderful singing powers, none who attended will ever forget. He was as much one of the instruments in the work as Bro. John Pullen, who forgot I was a Methodist, and walked out there—near two miles there and back—for most of the time during the seven weeks. God bless him and John Porter, and a score of more who helped in the work, and Bro. George Poe, gone, I trust, to the celestial world, for he was one of the mainsprings to the work.

Had glorious revivals at Macedonia and at Cool Springs and added many members at both places. Built an elegant $800 church at Macedonia and dedicated it with no debt on it.

Found this Cool Spring church not in the best place, and by the generosity of Mr. Rufus Tucker, gave us a lot called Tucker's Grove, got ten or more wagons, and in one day moved Cool Springs Church there, called in volunteers on Tuesday, and put up the church, and on the next Sunday preached in it, with the new benches, they all had made for Cool Spring before we moved it.

Now, what prompted me to give this little history of this work was I saw they, the good people of Macedonia, had grown till that one was too small, and thus a new and splendid one had been built in the place of the old one, and Dr. Kilgo had been there and dedicated it. Also the Tuckers Grove had been remodelled, and great good was being done there. I do not write this to boast of anything that I have done, but to glory to God in highest for the prayers that have gone on there.

I staid with them four years, and left 242 members, and feel that some time next year I would be glad to come and preach for them one or two weeks or more.

Yours in the bonds of Christian affection.

JNO. F. BUTT.

Commendatory.

The following resolutions were adopted at the fourth Quarterly Conference of Centenary M. E. Church, New Bern, N. C.:

Regretting that, by the expiration of the four years as allowed by the laws of our church, our Presiding Elder, Dr. F. D. Swindell, must be removed; therefore be it Resolved 1. That we, the Quarterly Conference of Centenary Church, express our deep sense of appreciation of his faithful services among us both in his able, Scriptural and inspiring ministry of the word, and in his wise oversight and rulings in all our deliberations.

2. That we will earnestly pray that God's blessings may still abundantly rest upon his labors, owning them to the salvation of souls and to the building up of the cause of Christ among those whom he may serve to whom we commend him for their love and support.

3. That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the record book and a copy be sent to Dr. Swindell, and one to the Raleigh Christian Advocate.

A Word About Central Academy.

Dear Dr. Ivey:—Will you kindly give me space in your columns to correct an erroneous impression which has gone out in regard to the present Central Academy. The idea is prevalent that our school is industrial. This is a mistake. It is a home school where the young men who can pay the moderate expenses here charged can get a good high school education. We hope that it will be understood that it is not an industrial school, and does not aim to give industrial education.

A limited number of young men can reduce their expenses by doing some work, but it is not an industrial school. We wish to thank the many friends who have written kind words to us. We are indeed grateful.

Sincerely, W. W. ROSE.

Carthage Circuit—A Dedication.

Friday, November 25, 1904, was a fine day; and, though the county court was in session and many of the farmers were busy sowing grain, a large congregation of devout, attentive people came out to witness the dedication of Center church—a church made possible by the liberality of Bro. Hugh Jackson and others during Rev. A. McCullen's pastorate.

Sister Eliza J. Jackson and other friends recently carpeted the pulpit, chancel and aisles.

Rev. Sam. T. Moyle preached a strong, forceful sermon from Joshua 24:15. He also assisted with the sacrament of the Lord's supper in the afternoon. Brother Moyle's services both edified and delighted our people; they felt, "it is good to be here." A fine spiritual feeling was manifest. Center made a thank-offering of $17.58 to the Orphanage, and paid the full amount of the Conference collections.

R. H. BROOM, P. C.

Aweary.

(Composed in the room of one who lay silently awaiting the signal, while death stood not far away from the door.)

Soul, sad soul, art thou weary, art thou distressed?
Does life seem a burden, art thou by the world oppressed?
Know'st thou not whom to seek?
Know'st thou not where to go?
Weary soul look to thy Saviour,
Cling to Him forevermore.

Heart, heavy heart, seems this life but one long night?
Long'st thou ever to depart to that land where all is light?
Know'st thou not His hand protects thee?
Seest thou not His light above?
Weary soul, the Saviour calls thee,
Rejoice in His unceasing love.

Love, blessed love, reaching beyond all earthly heights,
That pure celestial love in which the burdened soul delights.
Feel'st thou not His arms about thee?
Hear'st thou not His soothing voice?
Mortal, know thy Saviour loves thee,
In that love evermore rejoice.

Joy, perfect joy, for all earthly cares are past,
In the quiet, blessed spirit-land; at home, blest home at last.
Hear'st thou not the angels singing?
Hear'st thou not the harp's sweet sound?
Soul, unite with white-robed angels
Who God's golden throne surround.

EMERALD.

Wayside Ministries.

The song sung at morning worship,

"Oh, the good we all may do,
As the days are going by."

kept ringing in the ears of a deaconess, as she hastened on her errands of love, to those whose lives had been less favored than hers.

She had gone but a few blocks when a woman across the street beckoned to her, and came hurrying to meet her. In her hand she held a slip of paper upon which was written the street and number of several "Homes of Refuge" for wayward girls. She was not familiar with that part of the city, and could not read the names of the streets or numbers. As the deaconness turned to conduct the woman to the nearest address, she told how she had been seeking, day and night, for a wayward daughter of sixteen years, until she was weary and discouraged. She said, "Oh, if I only knew that she was in some of these places of shelter, I would be satisfied."

The deaconess sought to comfort her by telling her of One who loved the wayward daughter even more tenderly than any mother could, and urged her to do as that other mother did so many years ago, bring her daughter to Him "who is not willing that any should perish."

After doing what she could for the broken-hearted mother, the deaconess hurried back to the street where she intended to call, but discovered the sign of mourning hanging from the door of a house that she had frequently visited, and knew that Mamie had gone to that land where the inhabitants never say, "I am sick." Here was another mother's heart to be comforted.

The next hour was spent reading to an aged couple whose failing sight prevented them reading for themselves. When she had finished, the old woman said, "You don't know how much pleasure it gives us to to have some one come in to read and pray with us, for we have so many lonely hours now." As the deaconess closed the door behind her the words of the morning hymn flashed into her mind again,

"There are lonely hearts to cherish,
As the days are going by."

She had only gone a few steps when a little girl came tripping up, saying, "Teacher, are you comin' to our house? My mamma is sick."

"Why, Nellie, I'm sorry! I hadn't thought of going, but if mamma is sick, I'll have to go." She learned from the mother that she had been ill three weeks, the husband was away in the country seeking work, and there was no one to care for her and do the work but a girl of ten years. After doing what she could for the comfort of the mother and children, and promising to send a nurse, the deaconess turned homeward, reflecting how differently her morning had been spent from what she had planned. She had made only one call on her list that she had written before starting out, but the Master had his own plans for her, and the other visits could wait until the afternoon. The refrain of the song came again, "Going by, going by." Yes, truly—

"The world is full of sighs,
Full of sad and weeping eyes."

The days are rapidly going by, and the King's business requireth haste.

Where Heaven Can Be Found.

A pastor had preached an eloquent sermon about heaven. A wealthy member of his church met him the next day, and said, "Doctor, you told us a great many grand and beautiful things about heaven yesterday, but you didn't tell us where it is."

"Ah," said the pastor, "I am glad of the opportunity of doing so this morning. I have just come from the hill-top yonder. In that cottage there is a member of our church. She is sick in bed with fever. Her two little children are sick in the other bed, and she has not a bit of coal or a stick of wood, or flour or sugar or any bread.

"Now, if you will go down town and buy fifty dollars' worth of things—nice provisions—and send them to her, and then go and say, 'My sister, I have brought you these provisions in the name of our Lord and Savior'; ask for a Bible, and read the twenty-third Psalm, and then get down on your knees and pray, you will see heaven before you get through."—The Ram's Horn.

The California Conference of the M. E. Church shows a decrease of 387 in members and probationers this year as compared with last year.—Wesleyan Christian Advocate.

Our Boys and Girls

George, N. C., Nov. 19, 1904.

Dear Advocate:—I am a little girl eleven years of age. We have a very interesting Sunday-school and Missionary Society at Pinner's. It was our missionary Rally day, but the weather was so bad none of us could go. It was snowing very fast yesterday. I saw Uncle Jenkins last summer at onference. I would like very much to go to the Orphanage.

Your friend,
MAGGIE L. LASSITER.

George, N. C., Nov. 19, 1904.

Dear Advocate:—I am a little girl eight years old. I like to go to school very much. I study arithmetic, geography, grammar, fourth reader, spelling, history. My teacher's name is Mr. White, from Ohio. I like him very much. I go to Sunday-school. Mamma is my teacher. I have a pet kitty.

I will close by asking a question: What prophet succeeded Elijah?

JOSIE LASSITER.

McCullers, N. C., Nov. 13, 1904.

Dear Advocate:—I am a little boy five years old. I have never been to school, and have to get brother or mamma to write for me. I like to go to church and Sunday-school. One of my grand-fathers was a Methodist minister, and of course I'm a Methodist boy.

My papa is a farmer. I send five cents to the Orphanage.

Your little friend.
JONATHAN H. BRADY.

Roscoe, N. C., Nov. 15, 1904.

Dear Advocate:—This is my first letter to the Advocate. I am a little girl eleven years old.

Papa takes the Advocate and I like to read the little girls' and boys' pieces.

I don't guess we will have an everyday school this winter. I guess we will have a Christmas tree this Christmas.

I will ask a question: Who was put into the furnace of fire? I will close.

Your friend.
CARA DURHAM.

Laurinburg, N. C., 1904.

Dear Advocate:—I am a little girl seven years of age. I go to school to Miss Laura Oglesby, and I like her fine. My studies are spelling, arithmetic, third reader and geography. I have two grandpas. I go to see my Grandpa Jones most every Saturday.

Our pastor is Rev. N. H. D. Wilson. I have three sisters besides myself.

I will close for fear of the waste-basket. I am,

Your friend,
GUSSIE JONES.

Corapeake, N. C., Nov. 18, 1904.

Dear Advocate:—I am a little twelve-year-old. I study arithmetic, spelling, reading, geography, English.

I go to Sunday-school, and my teacher's name is Miss Issie Parker. She is a sweet teacher. I love her. Our preacher is Mr. W. H. Brown. I have a little sister, and her name is Audrey. She goes to school every day, and I go also. Her teacher's name is Miss Willie Harrell, and my teacher's name is Miss May Bailey.

My mother and father are both living. My little brother is named Guy Jackson.

I will ask a question: Which is the longest verse in the Bible?

Your little friend,
ETHEL JACKSON.

Timberlake, N. C., Nov. 20, 1904.

Dear Advocate:—I will write for my second time. I am a little boy twelve years old. My grandpa takes the Advocate and I like to read the little boys' and girls' letters. I go to school every day, and my teacher is Miss Nellie Montague. I like her fine. Our pastor is Rev. M. D. Giles, and we like him.

Now I will ask a question: How many books are there in the Old Testament?

I will close, with love and best wishes to the Orphanage.

ROSSIE NOELL.

McCullers, N. C.,
R. F. D. No. 1, Nov. 13, 1904.

Dear Advocate:—I am a little boy ten years old. My mother and father are both living. I have one brother and two sisters living, and twin brothers dead.

My grandma takes the Advocate and I enjoy reading the boys' and girls' page. I go to Sunday-school every Sunday that I can. I go to preaching every first Sunday. Our pastor is Rev. G. W. Fisher.

I will close by asking a question: Who was Elijah's servant?

I send five cents to the Orphanage.

Yours truly.
EARLE CRESWELL BRADY.

Elizabeth City, N. C.,
R. F. D. No. 4.

Dear Advocate:—As I have never written to your paper, I decided that I would do so. I am a little girl fifteen years of age. My father takes your paper and I enjoy reading the little children's page.

Mr. E. B. Granger is our superintendent, and I have the sweetest teacher—her name is Mrs. Fannie Brothers.

I will ask a question: What was Noah's sons name?

If this is in print, I will write again.

Very respectfully.
SUSIE H. WILLIAMS.

Vass, N. C., Nov. 21, 1904.

Dear Advocate:—This is my first letter to the Advocate. I am a little boy six years old. I have two little brothers and one little sister. Her name is Clara. I go to Sunday-school nearly every Sunday. Mr. A. Cameron is our superintendent and Miss Rachel Cameron is my teacher. I go to school at Vass. Miss Florence Leslie is my teacher. I like her very much. I stay with my Aunt Sue Cameron while I am going to school.

I will close now, and hope my letter will escape the waste-basket.

Love for the little orphans.

Your little friend,
HAMPTON THOMAS.

Laurinburg, N. C., Nov., 1904.

Dear Advocate:—I am a little girl seven years of age. I go to school at Caledonia. My teacher's name is Miss Laura Oglesby. I like her very much. I study spelling, arithemtic, third reader and geography. Dora Kendall and I are desk-mates.

Our pastor's name is Rev. N. H. D. Wilson.

We had lots of flowers last year, but they have all died. Dora and I are good friends. Kate and Carrie are my first cousins. They come to see me every Saturday.

With best wishes to the orphans, I will close. This is my first letter; so good-bye for this time.

Your friend,
JENNIE JONES.

Wilson, N. C., Nov. 14, 1904.

Dear Advocate:—My papa takes your paper. I enjoy reading it.

This is the second time I have written. As the old waste basket did not catch it before, I will write again. Our pastor is Rev. D. A. Watkins. We all like him fine. I hope he will be on this circuit next year.

I do not go to school now. It has closed, but surely I wish it would have continued longer.

My every-day school hasn't started yet, but I guess it will start soon.

I will ask a question: Who killed John the Baptist?

I will close, with best wishes to the Orphanage.

Your friend,
ADDIE PEARSON.

P. S.—I will enclose 10 cents for the Orphanage. A. P.

Royal Baking-Powder-Risen

foods—light, delicate hot-biscuit, hot rolls, doughnuts, puddings and crusts—are not only anti-dyspeptic in themselves, but aid the digestion of other foods with which they assimilate in the stomach—the joint, the game, the entree—important parts of every meal.

Royal Baking Powder makes the food finer flavored, more tasty, more healthful.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

Wilmington, N. C., Nov. 11, 1904.

Dear Advocate:—I thought I would write a little letter as I am not doing anything else just now. I am a little girl ten years old. My mother is dead and I live with my grandfather and grandmother, Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Bellbro. I go to Sunday-school and every-day school. I am in the fourth grade. My teacher is Miss Sophia Hines. I study spelling, reading, geography, arithmetic, history and drawing. I like my teacher fine. My Sunday-school teacher is Mrs. Berry. I like her, too. I have nine dolls and five cats. I have a lot of toys of all kinds. I haven't any brothers or sisters, but I have a half brother and sister.

Well, I will close. Enclosed you will find ten cents for the orphans.

Your little friend,
MARY LILY BOUSHEE.

Troy, N. C., Nov. 23, 1904.

Dear Advocate:—I have written once before, and as my letter escaped the waste-basket, I will write again. I go to school every day. I like my teacher very well. I also attend Sunday-school. My teacher is Miss Jessie Smitherman. I like her fine. I have two brothers and one sister older than myself, and one sister younger.

Mamma takes the Advocate, and I enjoy reading the little folks' letters very much. The boys will have to hurry up, for the girls are about to get ahead writing.

What are the little cousins expecting Santa Claus to bring them? I do not know what he will bring me. I hope it will be something nice.

I will answer Susie Powell's question: Who tempted Jesus? Satan.

Now I will ask one: What is the fifth commandment?

I will close, hoping to see my letter in print, and with best wishes to the orphans.

Your little friend,
NANNIE LEWIS.

Elizabeth City, N. C.,
R. F. D. No. 4.

Dear Advocate:—I have written to your paper once before and will make an attempt to write again. I am a little girl thirteen years of age. My father takes your paper, and I enjoy reading the little folks' corner very much.

My father and mother are both living.

The free school has started. My teacher's name is Miss Luna Jarvis. I study six books. Sue Williams is my desk-mate.

Rev. Mr. Hocutt, our pastor, will have to leave us this year. He has served us for four years. I hope we will get another one as good as he was to us.

Mr. E. B. Granger is our superintendent. My Sunday school teacher is Mrs. Fannie Brothers. I like her splendid.

I will ask a question: How old was Joash when he was crowned?

Iwill close, hoping to see this in print.

Yours truly.
MARY E. TEMPLE.

The Dog and the Bell.

A young man who lived in a cottage in Yorkshire, England, had a splendid mastiff dog, called Ponto, who was allowed to roam about just as he pleased all over the house. His favorite place, however, was in the study under his master's writing-table.

When Mr. Davis was away from home, as was often the case, Ponto, much to his disgust, was chained up in the yard. From this treatment he did all he could to keep away.

On one occasion his master went for a few days' visit to a neighbor, leaving the usual orders about the dog. In vain, however, did the servants search high and low for Ponto; nowhere was he to be found, and they gave up the search in despair.

In the evening, when the two maid servants were sitting quietly at work in the kitchen, they suddenly heard the small handbell in the study ring violently.

They started up in alarm, and each wanted the other to go and see what was the matter; but neither of them dared, and they sat still.

Presently the bell pealed again, and curiosity proving greater than their fears, they went to the study door. There they paused again, but hearing the bell once more, they turned the handle and peeped in.

What was their surprise to find Ponto sitting on his haunches, with the bell in his mouth. He had evidently seen his master use the bell to summon attendance, and finding himself shut in, he thought he would try if a little bell-ringing on his own account would not get him out of his prison.—Weekly Welcome.

To begin and end with God takes from every day its burden.—J. P. Lange.

Womans Foreign Missionary Society

Please send all communications for this Department to Mrs. B. F. Dixon, Raleigh, N. C.

Officers of the W. F. M. S. of the N. C. Conference, June, 1903-'04.

President—Mrs. Lucy A. Cunninggim, Greensboro, N. C
Vice-President—Mrs. R. A. Willis, Littleton, N. C.
Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. F. D. Swindell, Goldsboro, N. C.
Recording Secretary—Miss Blanche Fentress, Wilmington, N. C.
Treasurer—Mrs. B. B. Adams, Four Oaks, N. C.
Superintendent and Treasurer Juevnile Work—Mrs. L. M. Hendren, New Berne, N. C.

Dear Mrs. Dixon: The last meeting of our Woman's Foreign Missionary Society for this Conference year was held on last Sunday at the home of our faithful and efficient President, Mrs. L. L. Williams. We had a good attendance and the devotional exercises were spiritual and very much enjoyed by every one present. We have a little band of twenty-one members. Though small, yet we are a live band of missionary workers. This is our week of prayer, and it is encouraging and edifying to see the interest some of the young members take in these services.

We were all pleased to hear the pastor say on last Sunday that he never served a charge where there was a greater missionary spirit than there is on the Gates Circuit.

Yours sincerely,
MRS. T. J. DAILY.

Gatesville, N. C., Nov. 24, 1904.

We regret that the "notes from the Week of Prayer service" of the Edenton Street Auxiliary were not sent in time for this issue. We are glad to report, however, good attendance, a lively interest, and liberal offerings.

Rockingham, the banner District of our Conference Society, has been heard from, and we are assured that its fifteen societies and its District Secretary are all living.

Although the amount of work they are doing was not given, their past record is a guarantee of a fine report, when we meet in Louisburg in the spring, and of their retaining their place at the head of the column.

The sum of one thousand dollars a year is the ambition of this District of enterprising, faithful women; and under the ladership of a woman who can manage successfully the missionary work in her District, and, at the same time, teach the Bible to one hundred girls in a college remote to her home field, this laudable ambition will soon be attained.

We are told the greatest trouble in this District is finding Lady Managers for the Bright Jewel Bands. The children are eager to work, but very few women are willing to undertake the duty of leading them. We trust there will be a quickening of the conscience among those good women on this important part of our work. "Feed my lambs," was an imperative command, and upon its faithful obedience, depends the future prosperity of all church work.

When the time arrives for the election of officers in some of our auxiliaries, how often is it found difficult to secure those of the members who are willing to take an office in the auxiliary and carry on its work gladly, faithfully!

It gives us pleasure to call the attention of our readers to an "object lesson" in this matter—to give a few items of news from an auxiliary where one energetic woman is the President, Corresponding Secretary, and Treasurer.

There is no such thing as failure in the work, when it is carried on by such a resolute, consecrated leader—may the number of such loyal workers in our Society be increased!

This letter is from Manteo, Elizabeth City District:

Dear Mrs. Dixon: I have been requested by our District Secretary, Mrs. S. S. Hardison, to write you something about our Society for the Raleigh Advocate. Our Society has never been heard from through any of our papers.

We were organized the 16th of July, 1896, by Rev. G. A. Oglesby, then our Presiding Elder, with thirteen members, and five subscribers to the Woman's Missionary Advocate.

Our number has increased from time to time, but we have been able to keep only twenty-one enrolled. When we would lose a member by death or removal, there was always a new one to take the place, thus keeping our number on roll twenty-one.

We have recently lost one of our members by death, Mrs. Mary Ward, a very good woman.

I am sorry that more of our women do not join our Society, and subscribe to the Advocate, and read more. It is a valuable paper, and a member of the Society ought not to be without it; for unless we read and study we cannot be intelligent in our work. I have insisted on our members reading and studying more, but they say they have too many other duties.

We meet the second Sunday in each month. In the summer we hold our meetings in the church; in the winter, at some member's home.

Last week we observed the Week of Prayer.

We have our pledge—$25.00—in full, and nearly all of the contingent fund.

In our first annual report, we reported $16.31; now we report between $50.00 and $60.00. (Good!)

Our membership now is seventeen, and only five or six ever attend the monthly meetings.

We follow the program in the Advocate, and I try to make the meetings as interesting as possible. I only wish the members would take a more active part in the work; we would have such a nice Society, and I would be relieved of some of the responsibility.

Our Society is very anxious to have the Annual Meeting of the W. F. M. S. meet with us—it would help us so much. What do you think about it? Though our town is small, it is growing. We have twice entertained very nicely the District Conference of our church in Elizabeth City District, and had plenty of room.

Could we have the Annual Meeting next after Louisburg?

Very respectfully,
HELEN EVANS.

Pres., Cor. Sec. and Treas.

Having so recently held its annual session in the Elizabeth City District, it is not probable that the Conference Society can meet, very soon, with this live little auxiliary in the growing town of Manteo; but we do not know what is in the future, and we hope our sister will attend the annual meeting at Louisburg and enter her plea for Manteo.

DOESN'T RESPECT OLD AGE.

It's shameful when youth fails to show proper respect for old age, but just the contrary in the case of Dr. King's New Life Pills. They cut off maladies no matter how severe and irrespective of old age. Dyspepsia, Jaundice, Fever, Constipation all yield to this perfect Pill. Twenty-five cents at all druggists.

It is not time you want, but fire. . . . . Who would not cry out to God, Or make my life how short I care not, so that it can have the fire in it for an hour!—Phillips Brooks.

Woman's Home Mission Society

Please send all communications for this Department to Mrs. R. O. Burton, Raleigh, N. C.

Officers of W. H. M. S. of the N. C. Conference.

President—Mrs. J. E. Underwood, Elizabeth City.
First Vice-President—Mrs. V. Royster, Raleigh.
Second Vice-President—Mrs. K. P. Black, Littleton.
Third Vice-President—Mrs. J. A. Spiers, Selma.
Recording Secretary—Mrs. C. P. Jerome, West Durham.
Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. S. H. Scott, New Bern.
Treasurer—Mrs. E. L. Prince, Wilmington.
Superintendent of Supplies—Mrs. Ivan Proctor, Raleigh.
Superintendent of Literature and Press Work—Mrs. R. O. Burton.

Thanksgiving.

I trust every Home Mission woman realized the truth of these beautiful words during the blessed Thanksgiving season: "Every day is a Thanksgiving day, every morning a blessing of strength, every evening a bundle of mercies, every night a benediction of peace, for each of God's children."

Life Saving Service.

The following notice has recently appeared in several of the leading daily papers:

"A wealthy New York society girl is reported to have passed a 100 per cent examination and enrolled as a member of the volunteer life saving service of the United States."

We know of many hundred girls and women who have for years been engaged in a volunteer life-saving service in our own and other countries. They are not rich in houses and lands, nor are many of them prominent socially albeit they are daughters of a King. The world knows them only as City Missionaries and Deaconnesses. No crosses of honor nor medals of gold are bestowed upon them for bravery and faithfulness. Yet they have wrought nobly, rescuing thousands from the dark waters of sin and despair, and in God's beautiful afterwhile great will be their reward.

INFLUENCE AND RESPONSIBILITIES.

We do not know the motives that influenced this young lady from New York—whether the noble desire to save human life, the love of adventure characteristic of youth, the wish to depart from the beaten track of the conventional society girl and give play to her own individuality, the strenuosity of the age said to be rapidly developing under our stirring President and his allies—but whatever they were, this question comes: If she had been surrounded by Home Mission influences, might not she, too, have decided to exercise her splendid strength and eager spirit in City Mission work?

Sisters, it devolves upon us to look squarely and steadfastly at these things and determine to measure up to our responsibilities in this matter of influence.

The White Door.

This is the name given by the children of a crowded east-side neighborhood of New York City to the Gospel Settlement Home there, located six years ago by Mrs. Sarah J. Bird. It is called the one white spot in a weary waste of wretchedness, where families of seven, ten, even twelve, are found living in one or two small rooms, the squalor and evil almost incomprehensible. So great is the preponderance of the foreign element this section is described as a "large slice of foreign missionary field lifted and left on our doorstep."

The Settlement is open to these people at all hours, the girls taught domestic work, "The Shirt Waist Club" and "Collar Club" being especially popular. There is, also, a "History Club" for boys, which teaches American history, reverence for our institutions, and a comprehension of the duties and privileges of citizenship. Last year the average attendance was 794 a week. It is truly "a great door and effectual."

Opportunities.

Opportunities do not come with their values stamped upon them. Every one must be challenged. A day dawns, quite like other days; in it a single hour comes, quite like other hours; but in that day and in that hour the chance of a lifetime faces us. To face every opportunity of life thoughtfully and ask its meaning bravely and earnestly is the only way to meet the supreme opportunities when they come, whether open-faced or disguised.—Malthie D. Babcock.

Perseverance.

Again I ask all auxiliaries which have published anything bearing upon our Home Mission work to please write me. (I would greatly appreciate copies of the papers). I, also, ask those which have never written me of the use of the Bulletins to please do so at once. I must send in my report early in December, and very much desire it to be a fine one.

DISASTROUS WRECKS.

Carelessness is responsible for many a railway wreck and the same causes are making human wrecks of sufferers from Throat and Lung troubles. But since the advent of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, even the worst cases can be cured, and hopeless resignation is no longer necessary. Mrs. Lois Cragg, of Dorchester, Mass., is one of many whose life was saved by Dr. King's New Discovery. This great remedy is guaranteed for all Throat and Lung diseases by all druggists. Price 50 cents and $1.00. Trial bottles free.

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE NORTH CAROLINA CONFERENCE

THE
Barnes Clothing Store
IN HENDERSON, N. C.,

Sends you Greeting. We expect you with us on November 30th, and extend an invitation to one and all to make our place of business your headquarters.

We have a fine assortment of

CLOTHING

AND GENTLEMEN'S FURNISHINGS . . .

of every kind. We are specially prepared to supply our preachers with clerical suits, and will favor them with bargains, if they will call in see us.

If you will send us your measure, and inform us what kind of suit you want, we will have it ready for you when you come to Conference. If we do not suit you it will cost you nothing. We will make it to your interest to give us a call, as we are making special arrangements to supply your needs at the lowest possible figure.

BARNES CLOTHING STORE,
HENDERSON, N. C.

Cancer Hospital.

We want every man and woman in the United States to know what we are doing—We are curing Cancers, Tumors and Chronic Sores without the use of knife and are endorsed by the Senate and Legislature of Virginia. If you are seeking a cure come here and you will get it.

The Kellam Cancer Hospital,
Richmond, Va.

Raleigh Christian Advocate.

ORGAN OF THE
North Carolina Conference, M. E. Church, South.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY AT No. 106 W. MARTIN STREET.

THOMAS N. IVEY, - - - - - - - Editor.

Subscription Rates.—One year, $1.50; six months, 75 cents. Preachers of the North Carolina Conference who act as agents receive the paper free of charge. All other preachers, and widows of preachers, $1.00 a year.

Business.—Watch the label. It shows the date up to which the subscription has been paid. Change in label serves as a receipt. Regular receipt will be sent when requested. When the address is ordered changed, both old and new address must be given. Address all letters, and make all checks and money orders payable, to the Raleigh Advocate Co.

Manuscripts.—All matter for publication to be returned to the writer must be accompanied by proper postage. Matter for the Editor and matter for the printer must not be on the same sheet. Obituaries must not contain over 150 words, nor contain poetry. One cent a word will be charged for all obituary matter over 150 words.

Advertising.—The RALEIGH CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE is a fine advertising medium. Rates will be promptly furnished on application.

The World As We See It.

THE CALL OF THE MENTALLY UNFORTUNATE.

Above the call for money to develop material resources, to build a State capitol commensurate with the dignity of our great commonwealth, to lengthen school terms and build better school houses, rises a call which is ringing with terrible clearness and insistence just now. It comes from hundreds of mentally unfortunate persons, who are suffering because they cannot be treated in the Hospitals furnished by the State. These Hospitals have not the money with which to take care of these persons.

This matter has been weighing for a long time on the minds and hearts of Superintendents McKee and Murphy. A committee was appointed last spring to take the matter under advisement and to see what can be done to relieve the situation.

Last week the committee reported. The State of North Carolina will be asked at the coming session of the Legislature either to make appropriations sufficient fo rthe needs of the insane or to enable the counties to take care of them. The State should do one or the other—by all means the former. It would be bad policy to throw the care of the insane upon the counties. Every intelligent person should know this. It is just as bad for the State to pursue a niggardly policy in its appropriations for the same purpose.

An appropriation of $500,000 will be necessary for the two Hospitals. The State is able to make this appropriation. The State should do so.

ANOTHER CONFERENCE SESSION.

Another Conference session. How quickly it has slipped upon us! It seems only a few weeks since we met at Goldsboro, and now another roll call has been made at Henderson. The Conferences are truly milestones whose marking is both plain and solemn; telling us that we are very rapidly nearing the "far country."

Each annual session only strengthens the bond of affection which binds us together. How dear these brethren whom we meet year after year are becoming to us. When one drops out to take his place with the glorified, it seems almost like a family loss, and the vacant seat holds a pathos which is a child of two worlds.

The brethren come up to Henderson this year to make, some of them, the best report they have ever made at Conference. Happy conversions, full collections, new churches and parsonages will be mentioned. Right here we should be reminded that good reports will be made by some who will have few accessions and partial collections to report. The Conference will not hear the other items whispered only in the ear of God—agonizing prayer for Israel, struggling with poverty, with sickness, with indifference and with persecution, and a rough road travelled faithfully and uncomplainingly for "Jesus' sake." As we do not forget those who labor in the sunshine belt, let us not forget those who labor below it. All will have their reward, but we must believe that the latter will receive tenderer treatment at the hands of the King.

As Henderson will extend her warmest welcome to the Conference, may the Conference prove a very rich blessing to Henderson. A close walk with God by every preacher and delegate during the session will be worth more to Henderson than the financial outlay of merchant princes. May the spiritual outlay be rich and generous.

We extend a cordial welcome to Bishop Candler who has the full confidence of every member of the Conference. That he will do his best under the most trying circumstances, no one doubts. His strong sermons and meaty talks of last Conference are pleasant memories. May his memories of us continue to be as pleasant.

BROTHER BAILEY AND THE AUTOMATON.

When the editor of the Recorder suffers from an engorged liver, or thinks that it is about time for him to prove his orthodoxy in the faith "once delivered to the saints" by taking a few whacks at other denominations, he sometimes wanders very far afield.

In last week's issue of the Recorder, he made a wide detour in order to let the Western North Carolina Conference feel the touch of his soothing hand.

Brother Bailey evidently does not like the way in which affairs were conducted by Bishop Duncan and the Western brethren during the last session of the Conference. Bishop Duncan made a speech before reading the appointments (the reporter threw in a few strong remarks which Brother Bailey attributed to the Bishop. Happy reporter!) and Brother Carraway offered a prayer. Whereupon there is in the Recorder a disgorgement, of the following verbal color and consistency:

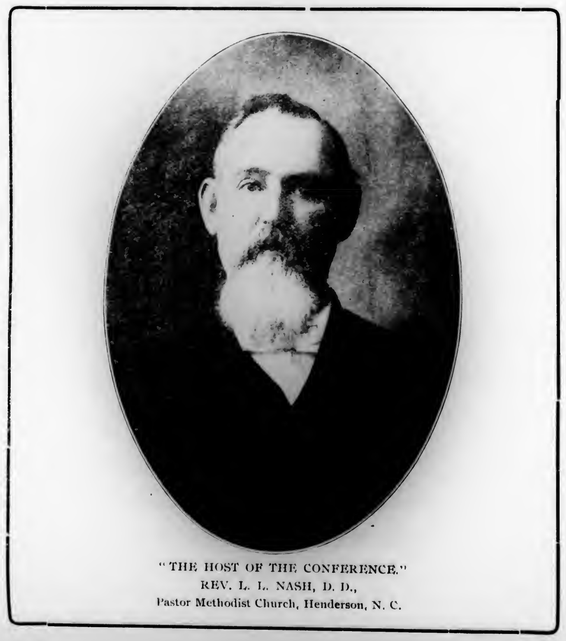
"We need hardly suggest that the palpable efforts to get the brethren in a humor to accept their disappointments, the abuse of the men that were to obtain the best places (its object being to pacify the others); the talk about the Presiding Elders' strenuous efforts to get good places for their men, and the remark about politics—well let us say nothing against it all, for it is none of our business, but let us remember it for consolation. There is at least a worse way than the worst Baptist way.

After this oracular reproof of Bishop Duncan and his crowd, we would naturally expect the dignified reprover to forbear, but he adds: "There is, of course, a touch of heroism in the Methodist system now and then, but that even at its best is the heroism of an automaton—a man with a collar round his neck."

We are glad that the Methodist system is accorded at least a "touch" of heroism, though it be only "now and then." We are glad that it is the man instead of the "automyton" that wears the collar (the latter couldn't stand it). But we may be allowed to say this: When we see Baptist preachers (splendid men too), waiting month after month for a call and Baptist congregations waiting month after month in the vain effort either to get rid of the incumbent or to be in a position to call a man, we feel sure that those preachers and congregations would be mighty glad to own one of the collars Brother Bailey writes about. It would be well for him to keep a few in his office to use as premiums.

Every devout professing Christian is pained at the comparatively small number of conversions. Dr. Theodore Cuyler, in answer to the question, "Why are there not more conversions?" has suggested something worth considering. He says:

"I am convinced that one reason is that—with happy exceptions—there has been a decline of direct, pointed, faithful and persuasive preaching to the unconverted. Too many discourses are addressed to nobody in particular; preaching to Christians has been relatively overdone, and preaching to the impenitent underdone. I do not mean denunciations that only irritate, or mere exhortations that are often a mere waste of breath. I mean that the preachers should so hold up the ugliness and doom of sin before the sinner's eye that he should feel his own guiltiness, and so present Jesus Christ that that sinner should flee to Him as the only Saviour. 'Warn them for Me,' is God's solemn injunction to every minister; he has therefore no more right to cap Sinai or conceal hell than he has to hide the sin-atoning cross of Calvary."



"THE HOST OF THE CONFERENCE."
REV. L. L. NASH, D. D.,
Pastor Methodist Church, Henderson, N. C.

Methodist Mention

STATE.

Bishop Duncan visited Trinity Park last week, and was the guest of President Kilgo.

Let us all pray that the cause of Domestic Missions shall not lag in the procession of connectional interests.

Our readers will be glad to read in this week's issue the interesting letter from Miss Elizabeth Davis, of Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.

You need not fear that our sessions at Henderson will be dull. Bishop Candler will be there. He never fails to add to the interest of an occasion.

A good rule for every one, especially during the sojourn at Henderson: If discussing any one in conversation, say nothing unless you can say something good.

Rev. R. F. Bumpas preached a special sermon to the Junior Order American Mechanics on last Sunday night. Rev. W. L. Cuninggim did the same for the Odd Fellows.

Bishop Candler, en route to Henderson, spent last Sunday in Durham, and preached at Main Street in the morning. While in Durham he was the guest of President Kilgo.

The preachers of the North Carolina Conference have been hardworked men during the year, and especially during the last few weeks. The time spent at Conference will be a period of relaxation—for some. Relaxation has its perils. Have sufficient grace to escape them.

Rev. Mr. Kilgore filled his last appointment for the Conference year here last Sunday. Mr. Kilfore has labored earnestly in the Lord's vineyard. He has greatly revived our church, and won many friends. If he fails to return to this charge, he has our sympathies in his broad field of labor.—Richmond Headlight.

The Seaboard Medical Association of Virginia and North Carolina will meet in Washington, N. C., December 6-8. Dr. M. Bolton, of Rich Square, is President of this strong and influential body. He is a worthy Methodist steward of twenty years standing. He is an able representaive of his profession and is loyal to his church duties.

Rev. D. L. Earnhart, Fremont Circuit, writes: "I am indebted to generous friends and neighbors for a Thanksgiving pounding of good proportions. How the heart is cheered by such expressions of appreciation! Of course it is the cause and not the man, the labor and not the laborer, still I am glad to be identified with a cause that constrains people to be good and to do good. God bless the friends, everyone, and may He give a double portion to some whose hearts were here, but who could not come."

Last week while the funeral procession was conveying the remains of the late Mr. J. H. Higgs to the burying grounds, near Smith's church, Presiding Elder G. F. Smith was accidentally overturned in Chocayotte creek, near Tilghman's cross roads, and was thrown into the cold waters of the stream. The creek was much swollen on account of the rain storm the day before, and the buggy in which the Presiding Elder was riding got into a washout and turned over. Mr. Smith was at once assisted from the water by those nearest to him at the time of the accident.—Roanoke News.

Next Sunday closes the pastorate of Rev. L. E. Thompson at the Methodist Church in this city. His congregation are unanimous for his return, for he has labored among his people as few pastors have and accomplished untold good in Washington. He and his estimable family have made many friends here, and if the Bishop should see fit to remove them they would carry with them only well wishes from our people, and if they are returned to Washington the news would be hailed with pleasure. He is a most worthy embassador for Christ.—Gazette-Messenger.

CONNECTIONAL.

There are no supernumerary preachers in the West Texas Conference.

The increase of membership in the Virginia Conference for 1904 was 1,740.

In the number of students taking the Correspondence Course, the Virginia Conference stands first with thirty-five—South Carolina and Memphis have thirty-two each.

Bishop Candler reports a great meeting at Santa Clara, Cuba, where Brother Sewell is located. A large number were converted and about fifty were received as candidates.

Dr. Walker Lewis, so well and widely known in Georgia and throughout Southern Methodism as to that, has been transferred from First Church, Little Rock, to Central Church, Kansas City.

At the recent session of the Holston Conference the Committee on Conference Relations took a notable step in the right direction in its care as to recommendations for the supernumerary relation.

The Southern Methodist Publishing House has issued Prof. A. B. Cooke's book of essays, "Work and Life." It has been put into the Epworth-League Reading Course by the Epworth League Board.

Dr. C. B. Riddick of the First Church, Birmingham, Ala., after fifty years in the itinerant service, will ask, at the approaching session of the North Alabama Conference, a location. He will return to California.

Bishop Charles Galloway says that since the war with Russia the Japanese are making searching inquiry into the Christian religion, and the churches are well filled. He says that no obstruction is thrown in the way of the missionaries in Japan. He says that there is also a Christian awakening in China.

The late Western North Carolina Conference adopted resolutions looking to bringing up the circulation of the North Carolina Christian Advocate by May 1, 1905. The plan used by the Raleigh Christian Advocate this year is to be used. Each District is to furnish a certain number of new subscribers.

Work is progressing on the new Publishing House building. The foundation will be finished this year, but it will be at least eighteen months before the building will be ready for occupancy.

The increase in the collection for domestic missions in the Louisville Conference last year was $1,226.99. This enabled the Board to pay all the appropriations in full.

Rev. W. L. Grissom, D. D., pastor of Ashcboro and West Lee Street, Greensboro, N. C., was a welcome visitor to our office one day last week. He spent several days in Spartanburg, gathering material from old manuscripts and records in the archives of the South Carolina Society, for his forthcoming history of North Carolina Methodism. The first volume of his history is about ready for the press.—Southern Christian Advocate.

The Hon. John C. Hendrix, one of the leading citizen of Brooklyn, where he had been postmaster, President of the Board of Education, and member of Congress, died November 8. He was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and a brother of Bishop Hendrix, of Kansas City. At the private funeral service on Friday, Dr. W. W. Bowdish spoke of his honesty of view and integrity of action that gave him true leadership in whatever activity he was engaged.—New York Advocate.

Dr. W. R. Lambuth delivered an interesting lecture on the Wesleyan Forward Movement at McKendree Church on Thursday night of last week. While in London recently Dr. Lambuth made a study of his work, and the best methods will be introduced into our Church. In the interest of this movement a night school for church workers will be instituted at McKendree Church on January 4 of next year, and will continue through January and February.—Midland Methodist.

General Notes

The Greensboro Record says: "The Salvation Army has established permanent headquarters in Greensboro.

On November 8th, the first election known as the Brice Law, was held in Cherokee County. The result showed the defeat o fthe dispensary four to one.

General Lew Wallace, known the country over as the author of "Ben Hur: A Tale of the Christ," is reported dying at his home in Crawfordsville, Ind.

The separation of Church and State in France is now practically completed. The French people have spoken, and the old regime of papal meddling has passed forever.

On the first of December Charlotte will open her hospitable doors to the delegates of the First Annual Convention of the Young Women's Christian Association of the Carolinas.

Bishop Isaiah B. Scott, missionary bishop for Africa, sailed from New York on the steamer Lucania, Saturday, November 19th, on his way to Monrovia, Liberia, which is to be his episcopal residence.

The Glen Alpine Springs Hotel, a fifty-room three-story building and 300 acres of land adjoining in the South Mountain section of this county, has been purchased as a Presbyterian mission school.

The Hague Tribunal met on November 21st to arbitrate the differences between Japan England, France and Germany, as to the tax levied by the Japanese Government on the buildings situated in the foreign concessions.

Rev. William Dawson, of London, has conducted recently a series of evangelistic sermons in Plymouth Church, Brooklyn. Dr. Dawson preached every night, except Saturday night. Then he read an original story.

Forty-one years ago the first newspaper was published in the empire of Japan. Now there are more than 1,500. Of these, twenty are published in Tokio—one of which is edited by Japanese and published in English.

Eight Cumberland Presbyterian ministers went into the Methodist Church last year, and three Methodist ministers went into the Cumberland Presbyterian Church. The doctrinal differences between the two denominations are so slight that the transition from one to the other is easy.

Commander Booth-Tucker returns to London, after being in charge of the Salvation Army in the United States for eight years and a half. In this time the Army in this country has increased from 2,035 to 3,773; the number of social institutions has risen from twenty-five to 267.

The Rev. Frank D. Gamewell, of the Missionary Society, spoke before the Secretary of State at Washington, D. C., in favor of a request that the United States Government should make efforts to induce Great Britain to release China from treaty compulsion to tolerate the opium traffic.

A General Conference of Missionaries in South Africa, which met at Johannesburg in August, by resolution, declared that it considered the establishment of a native church to be the end and aim of Christian missions, and that the church there should be African in character; and that it would welcome an increased measure of self-government in the Transvaal.

The unveiling of the statue of Frederick the Great in Washington City last week was an important event. The statue was the gift of Emperor William of Germany to the United States. It was a replica in bronze of the famous original in the palace at Potsdam. President Roosevelt made a notable speech which was well received.

Show the Word Its Need of Him.

When Ole Bull came to this country he found an old friend of his in Philadelphia. After going over reminiscences of the past Bull distributed tickets to his friends, and asked them to attend his concert. His old friend declared that he had no ear for music and would not be there. Bull determined that his friend should hear him. Under a pretence of having some work done on his violin he called on him and asked if he had a skilled workman who could make the repair. The work was soon done and Bull making as though he needed to test his violin tuned it and began to play. Soon all work in the office was suspended and men from the workship crowded about the door, and all were attentively listening. Even his friend who had no ear for music laid down his papers, and when Bull ceased to play urged him to continue, declaring that he did not know until that moment that he had any appreciation of music.

The world does not know it has any need of a Savior. It is my business, it is your business, as Christians, to show them their need, as Ole Bull showed his friend that he had an ear for music.

Oh, that every Epworthian were moved with an unquenchable desire to show others their need of a Savior and to lead them to Him. May God arouse the whole church to this consciousness and create in them a consuming desire to lead men to Christ.

An Important Matter.

We are on the even of a new Conference year. Many of us may be removed to new fields of labor where the League has been neglected; or, perhaps, we have failed, this year, to do our duty in this important department of church work. Whatever the past may have and hold for, or against, us, let us number among the first duties and privileges of the new year the organization of our young people into Epworth League Chapters. These are our training schools for the practical application of our theories.

After over a hundred years of existence the church is waking up to the need of trained workers for the Sunday-school. To what degree the League idea is responsible for the suggestion I do not know; but in the evolution of things we have come to put into practise, in our church life, the theory that every virtue is a matter of training; and that every vice is the result of a lack of training. The Spartan was brave because of the training he received at his mother's knee.

We all know that the tendency of all things natural, moral, and spiritual, is to degeneracy, waste, death, when neglected. The fruit that under the care of the gardener is beautiful to the eye, and pleasant to the taste, when neglected, wastes and becomes distasteful. The domestic pigeon with its beautiful plumage deprived of the care of man degenerates into a monotonous dull drab color. The unpracticed eye is uncertain, and the unused eye soon suffers the loss of sight.

The present condition of the church at large is that of unskilled labor. Many otherwise intelligent and cultured are woefully ignorant of God's word, and of the operations of the church. Many of those actually engaged in church work do it in such a haphazard way the wonder is that as much is accomplished as is. The work of the church is laid aside upon the most frivolous excuse, and everything is postponed until the last moment. Sunday-school lessons are neglected until within an hour or two of the school session. Congregations make no preparation of heart for reception of the great truths of the Word; but rush into the presence of God as the horse rushes into battle.

We have largely reversed God's order of things, putting first what He places last, and last what He puts first. He says "seek ye first the kingdom of God and His righteousness." "Bring into mine house the first fruits of thine increase." "Lay by you in store on the first day of the week as God has prospered you." The prophet of old demanded the first cake even when there seemed to be but one. Just one instance will illustrate the point. God demands the "first fruits of thine increase." Yet one or two rainy Sundays at the end of the Conference year entails a shortage in collections and salaries at places.

The Epworth League thoroughly organized means a correction of the loose, slip-shod methods that now inhere in many branches of church work. It is here the young are taught system. It is here they learn to put religious meetings, and church obligations on the calendar among other important engagements. First of all, they learn that the evening on which the League is held is "League Evening," and that it has first claim on them—it is always a "previous engagement"—and has the right of way over everything else. Other things with a true Epworthian are subsequent measures. Nothing but a more important church meeting has precedence with him.

Their study of the Bible and religious literature, including discipline and church polity, makes them intelligent Christians and church members.

The League also cultivates the social life of its members, lifting it above the standards of the world. While it elevates and purifies the social life of its members, it also intensifies their pleasures. There is less shadow and more substance in the pleasures provided for the League than are found in worldly pleasures. There is no longer any need of the cry "we must give our young people some privileges," which means to allow them indulgence in worldly pleasures until they become infatuated with them, and are lost to God and His church.

Beginning with the Juniors, taking them through the course of training provided in the Junior League, which is both profitable and pleasant, then through the Senior League with its delightful studies, and elevating pleasures, they begin to know something of the privileges and responsibilities of church membership.

Should you select from this number your teachers, stewards, trustees and other officers you have intelligent and pious officials who will continue the same faithful systematic management of the church that they learned in the League. Can you imagine the advtange of all this to the church?

A RUNAWAY BICYCLE

Terminated with an ugly cut on the leg of J. B. Orner, Franklin Grove, Ill. It developed a stubborn ulcer unyielding to doctors and remedies for four years. Then Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured. It's just as good for Burns, Scalds, Skin Eruptions and Piles. Twenty-five cents at all druggists.

CANCER
Permanent Cure Guaranteed, without knife, X-Ray, Arsenic or Acids; no inconvenience. Write for book.
Southern Cancer Sanatorium
1520 E. Monument St. Baltimore, Md.

Dropsy CURED
Gives Quick Relief.
Removes all swelling in 8 to 20 days; effects a permanent cure in 30 to 60 days. Trial treatment given free. Nothing can be fairer. Write Dr. H. H. Green's Sons, Specialists, Box B Atlanta, Ga.

WRIGLEY ENGRAVING COMPANY
ENGRAVERS, ELECTROTYPERS, STEREOTYPERS,
COPPER HALF TONE AND LINE ETCHING.
ATLANTA, GA.

DON'T
give your child old greasy Castor Oil. Give CAS-TO-RINE. Tastes as good as maple syrup. Fifteen cents per bottle at all dealers.

Text Cards for Home Decoration
on higher finished ivory and dark ground cards, all with silk cord to hang; require no frames. Agents wanted everywhere; liberal discount. GOSPEL PUBLISHING HOUSE, 54 W. 22d St., New York, Room 28.

WHEN YOU WISH TO BUY BOOKS..... Save Money
By writing us for catalogue and prices. We carry constantly in stock the books of all leading publishers, and are prepared to fill orders on short notice at lowest prices. Books, Christmas Cards, Diaries, Blank Books, Fountain Pens, Stationery, etc, etc.
WRITE FOR CATALOGUE TO
SMITH & LAMAR, Agents,
296 ELM STREET, DALLAS, TEX.
237 N. SUMMER ST., 340-346 PUBLIC SQ., NASHVILLE, TENN.
The Largest Book Stores In the.... South....

WORLD'S FAIR RATES
VIA
Seaboard Air Line Railway
TO ST. LOUIS, MO., AND RETURN.

On account of the World's Fair, St. Louis, Mo., the Seaboard Air Line Railway, in connection with the C. & O. Route via Richmond and the N. C. & St. L. Route via Atlanta, will sell round trip tickets to St. Louis, Mo., at greatly reduced rates from all stations.

Rates from principal points as follows:

	Season Tickets	60 Day Tickets	15 Day Tickets
Charlotte via Atlanta	$36.10	$30.10	$24.65
Durham via Richmond	34.10	28.40	23.30
Durham via Atlanta	38.75	32.30	26.30
Henderson via Richmond	34.10	28.40	23.30
Henderson via Atlanta	38.75	32.30	26.30
Maxton via Atlanta	38.65	32.25	26.25
Raleigh via Richmond	35.60	29.90	24.80
Raleigh via Atlanta	38.75	32.30	26.30
Hamlet via Richmond	37.60	31.90	26.25
Hamlet via Atlanta	37.60	31.90	26.25
Wilmington via Richmond	38.65	32.25	26.25
Wilmington via Atlanta	38.65	32.25	26.25

LIMIT OF TICKETS—SEASON TICKETS.
Good to leave St. Louis up to December 15, 1904, will be sold daily commencing April 25th.
SIXTY DAY TICKETS.
Good to leave St. Louis up to and including 60 days from date of sale. Will be sold daily commencing April 25th.
FIFTEEN DAY TICKETS.
Good to return up to and including 15 days from date of sale, commencing April 25th, and continuing during the Exposition.
COACH EXCURSION TICKETS.
On May 9th and 23rd, 10-day coach excursion tickets will be sold at very low rates from Raleigh $18.50 via Richmond and $20.80 via Atlanta. Tickets not good in Parlor Sleeping Cars. Tickets good to leave St. Louis including ten days from date of sale.
MILITARY COMPANIES.
Special low rates for Military Companies and Bands.
Quickest schedule, direct routes, first-class coaches and Pullman Sleeping and Dining Car Service.
For further information, call on or address us. Same will be cheerfully furnished.
C. H. GATTIS, T. P. A., Raleigh, N. C.
H. A. MORSON, C. P. & T. A., Raleigh, N. C.

Sunday School

Lesson for December 4, 1904.

Hezekiah Reopens the Temple.—2 Chron. 29:18-31.

Time—Eighth century B. C. Place—Judah.

Judah Demoralized.—Rightly to appreciate Hezekiah's character and work one must recall the condition of things into which he was born. For at least the generation covering the reigns of his predecessors, Jotham and Ahaz, the nation had gone completely over to the excess of heathenism, the worship of Jehovah was almost under ban. "Golden and silver statues glittered throughout Judea. Soothsayers came from the far East; wizards, familiar spirits, ghosts were consulted even by the most outwardly religious. Altars were planted in the corner of the streets, and the venerable altar of David in the Temple was displaced for the more splendid one framed after the model of one which Ahaz himself had seen and fancied in Damascus. The treasures of the temple were made over into ornaments for the new cult, and toward the close of the king's reign the great doors of the temple were shut up, the sacred lamps were not lighted nor incense offered inside, and the whole interior was left to decay and neglect. Correspondingly the political importance of Judea had dwindled away. Israel, in alliance with Syra, had deprived her of several dependencies, and had retaken from her Elath, the favorite seaport of Jehoshaphat and Uzziah. Jerusalem had been threatened; a usurper was to be established on the throne of David. The problem before Hezekiah when he came to the throne was actually that of redeeming the national existence. The character and extent of his service was such that in generous and pardonable emphasis he is declared by the historian to have been the best of all the kings of Judea; there was "after him none like him among the kings of Judah, nor any that was before him." (2 Kings 18. 5.)

The Reformation. — Hezekiah's penetration is seen in that he made the solution of the problem turn upon the religious, and not the political, regeneration of the people. The first thing to which he gave himself after his accession to the throne was the reformation of the popular worship. "He opened the doors of the house of the Lord and repaired them." He called the Levites together and ordered a thorough renovation of the entire house. The work was undertaken with great heartiness; in two weeks the building was in order and the king notified of its readiness. All the furniture of the temple—its altars, its table of show bread, the great laver, the lamps, basins, and other equipment of the house—had been renewed; seven bullocks and a like number of rams, of lambs, and of he-goats had been prepared for offering; the great temple choir and orchestra had been reorganized; evidently instructions had been given to prepare a service the splendor and impressiveness of which would compel the attention of the nation. On the day appointed the king arranged a royal pageant. "He arose early and gathered the princes of the city" —the elite of the nation—"and went up to the house of the Lord." One can well imagine the intensity of the popular interest. Such a procession for such a purpose must have revived in the heart of every adult thrilling memories of the noblest traditions of the nation. The service was conducted with great and impressive ceremony. As the smoke of the multiplied burnt offerings ascended all the congregation worshiped, the singers sang, and the trumpeters sounded. It is expressly noted that the music included the hymns familiar from established usage; they sang "praises unto the Lord with the words of David and of Asaph, the seer." The effect was overwhelming "They sang praises with gladness, and they bowed their heads and worshiped." When opportunity was given to the people to bring sacrifices and thank offerings "the priests were too few" to dispose of the animals offered. So the Levites did help them till the work was ended. While the whole thing had been "done suddenly," the impression was widespread and hopeful. "The king rejoiced and all the people," and, as in an instant, a change noticeable, notable, and hopeful had passed upon the spirit of Judah.

The New Era.—Hezekiah's reform began with the rehabilitation of the old worship. Other things followed. The celebration of the Passover festival was renewed with greater splendor than ever before, and invitations were sent to the people of the northern kingdom to join in the festival. A general crusade was inaugurated against the images and altars and high places throughout the kingdom, and so thoroughgoing was Hezekiah's zeal for purity of worship that he ordered the destruction of "the brazen serpent that Moses had made," because it had become an object of superstitious reverence among the people. The order of the temple worship became an object of special care to the king. He made provision for an improved musical service, and for the selection of the choicest men to serve as priests and Levites, who were supported by generous gifts from both court and people. Gradually the old prestige of the nation was restored. Old dependencies were retaken and new ones added; the city was refortified and re-embellished, and it is to Hezekiah's reign the city owed its source of water supply, which in time of siege was in constant peril.

For Asthma use CHENEY'S EXPECTORANT.

RELIABLE ORGANS $32 RELIABLE PIANOS $173
ONE CENT INVESTED IN A POSTAL CARD AND MAILED TO ME WILL TELL YOU ALL ABOUT THEM.
CIRCULARS FREE. H. W. ALLEGER, ESTABLISHED 30 YRS. WASHINGTON N. J.

Special Offer
Christmas Music.
This Depository has just received a fine assortment of Christmas services, and until November 20th, will upon receipt of 10c in stamps, send postpaid to any one five of these attractive services as samples. These services are very tastefully gotten up and nearly all contain attractive recitations, which are worth double the money whether you use the music or not.
The regular price of these services is 5c per copy. This offer is good until Nov 20th only; after that services will be sent at 5c per copy postpaid. Do not ask for free samples, but send us 10c at once and receive five of the most attractive samples ever offered. Address all orders to
Southern Methodist Book Depository,
STAUNTON, VA.

When writing advertisers please mention this paper.

MALARIA IN THE SYSTEM
Holly Springs, Miss., March 24, 1905.
While building railroads in Tennessee some twelve years ago a number of hands contracted fever and various forms of blood and skin diseases. I carried S. S. S. in my commissary and gave it to my hands with most gratifying results. I can recommend S. S. S. as the finest preparation for Malaria, chills and fever, as well as all blood and skin diseases. W. I. McGOWAN.

I suffered greatly from Boils, which would break out on different parts of my body. I saw S. S. S. advertised and after using about three bottles I was cured, and for the last three years have had no trouble whatever. A. W. ZEBER.
217 Read St., Evansville, Ind.

I began using your S. S. S. probably ten years ago for Malaria and blood troubles, and it proved so good that I have continued ever since using it as a family remedy. It is a pleasure for me to recommend S. S. S. for the benefit of others who are needing a first rate blood purifier, tonic and cure for Malaria.
Arkansas City, Ark. C. C. HEMINGWAY.

Boils, abscesses, sores, dark or yellow splotches and debility are some of the symptoms of this miserable disease. S. S. S. counteracts and removes from the blood all impurities and poisons and builds up the entire system. It is guaranteed a purely vegetable remedy. Write for medical advice, or any special information about case.
SSS
The Swift Specific Company, Atlanta, Ga.

WOOL.

If you have wool to sell for cash, to exchange for goods, or to be manufactured, ship it to the CHATHAM MANUFACTURING COMPANY, ELKIN, N. C., and you will not regret it. They pay the highest market price and make the best goods you can get. Their blankets at all the leading expositions have been awarded GOLD MEDALS as the finest made in America.
WRITE THEM FOR SAMPLES.

A beautiful Bible in reach of all
NO MONEY NEEDED
All you need is to send to us for 12 copies of THE AMERICAN ILLUSTRATED METHODIST MAGAZINE. Sell them to friends at price of 15c a copy, return the $1.80 collected, and we will send you by return mail, absolutely free, our beautiful Holman Teachers' Bible, bound in morocco, helps, maps, 32 full page illustrations, 4000 questions and answers on Old and New Testaments. You will be delighted with it, as all our customers are.
☞Our magazine was never more attractive and popular; it sells quickly.
Pastors and S. S. Teachers may order Bible for examination to be returned at our expense if not earned.
THE METHODIST PUB. CO.,
112 Locust St., St. Louis, Mo.

H. STEINMETZ.
FLORIST.
Cut Flowers, Designs. Plants of all kinds.
PHONE 113. RALEIGH, N. C.

THE LARGEST SALE OF ANY ONE BRAND IN THE UNITED STATES.
Sauers FLAVORING EXTRACTS
BEST BY TEST.
AT YOUR GROCER
10c and 25c.

Raleigh Marble Works

Monuments
Ship Monumental work to all parts of the State. Delivered to your depot at same price as at shop. Special attention paid to finish and lettering.
Only Best of Stock Used.
Write for new catalogue.
COOPER BROS., Proprietors,
RALEIGH, N. C.

Atlantic & North Carolina R. R.

(Howland Improvement Company Lessee.)
Schedule in effect October 23, 1904.

EAST-BOUND.

Station.	No 3.	No. 5.
Leave Goldsboro	3.30 p. m.	8.00 a. m.
" LaGrange	3.50 "	8.26 "
" Kinston	4.22 "	8.48 "
" Dover	4.43 "	9.13 "
" Cove	5.00 "	9.30 "
" Tuscarora	5.12 "	9.50 "
Arrive New Bern	5.40 "	10.40 "

Station.		No. 7 (Accom.)
Leave New Berne	5.50 p. m.	12.30 p. m.
" Riverdale	6.15 "	1.12 "
" Havelock	6.30 "	1.40 "
" Newport	6.53 "	2.18 "
Arrive Morehead Cit	7.20 "	2.55 "

WESTBOUND.

Station.	No. 4.	No. 8. (Accom.)
Leave Morehead City	7.11 a. m.	5.20 a. m.
" Newport	7.54 "	6.28 "
" Havelock	8.08 "	7.00 "
" Riverdale	8.21 "	7.30 "
Arrive New Bern	8.45 "	8.05 "

Station.	No. 4	No. 6
Leave New Bern	9.00 a. m.	6.30 p. m.
" Tuscarora	9.20 "	6.50 "
" Cove	9.30 "	7.00 "
" Dover	9.42 "	7.17 "
" Kinston	10.12 "	7.57 "
" LaGrange	10.32 "	8.7 "
Arrive Goldsboro	11.05 "	8.30 "

Trains 3, 4, 5 and 6 run daily.
Trains 7 and 8 run daily except Sunday.
CONNECTIONS.—At Goldsboro, with Southern Railway and Atlantic Coast Line. At Kinston and Newbern, with Atlantic Coast Line.
R. P. FOSTER, General Manager.
F. A. NIEL, Traffic Manager, Goldsboro, N. C.

Raleigh and Cape Fear Railroad

TIME TABLE.
Effect 12:01 A. M., Sunday, October 9, 1904.

SOUTH BOUND TRAINS. Daily, ex. S. Second-Class	First-Class	STATIONS.	NOR. BOUND TRAINS. Daily, ex. S. First-Class	Second-Class
101	105		104	102
A. M.	P. M.	Lv.	A. M.	P. M.
7 20	4 15	Raleigh	9 45	5 35
7 35	4 25	Carsleigh Mills	9 35	5 20
7 45	4 30	Sylvania	9 30	5 15
7 54	4 39	Barnes	9 20	5 06
8 00	4 45	Hobby	9 14	4 57
8 5	4 52	McCULLERS	9 10	4 52
8 25	4 56	Banks	8 58	4 23
8 30	4 59	Austin	8 55	4 21
8 50	5 07	Willow Springs	8 10	4 15
9 05	5 18	JOHNSON MILL	8 40	4 03
9 15	5 17	Cardenas	8 38	4 00
9 20	5 22	C. F. & N. Junction	8 33	3 55
9 35	5 26	Fuquay Springs	8 30	3 52
9 40	5 31	Buckhorn	8 20	3 38
9 45	5 36	Rawls	8 17	3 20
10 00	5 45	Chalybeate	8 10	3 20
10 05	5 50	Bradley	8 00	3 01
10 15	6 00	Smith Mill	7 55	2 55
10 15	6 10	Lillington	7 45	2 45
		Ar. Lv.

JOHN A. MILLS, President and Gen. Manager.

University of Virginia 12, University of North Carolina 11. Virginia made two touchdowns and kicked both goals. Carolina scored two touchdowns, but missed the first goal. That, in brief, tells the story of the great annual foot ball game between the two Universities at Richmond Thanksgiving Day.

PERFECT PEACE

After months of torment, is the boon which comes to a poor sufferer from Tetter, Ring Worm or other severe itching skin diseases, after the use of a box of Tetterine, the infallible cure for all skin diseases; fragrant, harmless, effective; used by physicians in their practice. Endorsed by druggists.

Only 50 cents a box at druggists, or by mail postpaid from the manufacturer, J. T. Shuptrine, Savannah, Ga.

SPECIAL EXCURSION TO HAVANA, CUBA.

Do not miss this opportunity to visit this beautiful and attractive island, as it will afford, not only the opportunity for you to make a delightful trip, but to the manufacturer of the South, will offer the additional opportunity to investigate the possibilities of Cuba with the view of developing their business in that country.

A personally conducted, special excursion to Havana, Cuba, January 4, 1905, from Washington, D. C., Richmond and Norfolk, Va., and intermediate points in the States of Virginia, North and South Carolina, will connect with the Peninsular and Occidental Steamship Company's steamer leaving Port Tampa, Fla., on the night of January 5, 1905.

The party will be limited to 150 persons, therefore reservations should be made promptly, in order to secure proper accommodations on the steamship "Olivette," the most commodious ship of the Peninsular and Occidental Steamship Company, which will convey the party to Havana.

Tickets will be limited for return passage on any steamer leaving Havana until January 19, 1905, with privilege of stopovers at any point in the State of Florida, south of Jacksonville, within final limit of ticket, which will be January 22, 1905.

The rate, $45.40 from Raleigh, N. C., for the round trip includes meals and stateroom on the steamship.

Mr. A. W. Fritot will meet the party in Jacksonville and accompany them to Havana. Mr. Fritot speaks Spanish fluently and will place himself at the disposal of the party, furnishing any information desired.

Make up your party and go, and should you desire any other information, books, pamphlets, etc., on Cuba, or "What to say in Spanish and how to say it," address,

W. J. CRAIG, Gen'l Pass. Agent, Wilmington, N. C.
H. M. EMERSON, Traffic Manager.

Col. Olds: Governor Aycock says the people of the State were never more prosperous. In a very practical way the fine condition of the farmers in this county was spoken of to-day by the Register of Deeds, who said the cancellation of mortgages by farmers was by far greater than ever before, among the number of mortgages being many old ones. The farmers are buying lands and the sales of country lands are much greater than ever before.

The statement that Senator Ransom, who owned 12,000 acres of land, was the largest land-owner in North Carolina is erroneous. The Laurinburg Exchange points out that Mr. John F. McNair, of Laurinburg, owns 24,000 acres of land in one body in the counties of Robeson and Scotland.

The result of the election in North Carolina shows that the Republicans have two more members of the Legislature than they had in the last one, gaining one Senator and one Representative.

Representatives of Wake Forest were awarded the silver loving cup, given by the Raleigh Chamber of Commerce, in the debate with Richmond College, Virginia, held in Raleigh last Thursday.

For Croup use CHENEY'S EXPECTORANT.

$145 Cash

buys a new slightly shopworn Upright piano, guaranteed for five years, with stool and scarf if ordered within ten days.

$165 Cash

buys a new Upright piano, guaranteed for ten years, with stool and scarf if ordered within ten days.

We want to see who reads our adds is the object of this ten day offer.

The pianos offered are not "Stieffs."

Order at once.

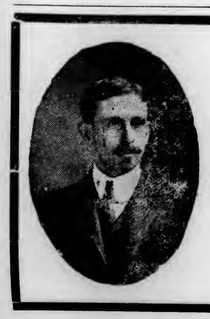
Chas. M. Stieff,

Manufacturer of the piano with the sweet tone.

Southern Warerooms 211–213 N. Tryon St. Charlotte, N. C.

C. H. WILMOTH, MGR.

(Mention this Paper)



THE BIGGS TREATMENT

Under this treatment the patient is cured by natural agencies. No medicines are used. The Biggs treatment embraces everything that is curative; nothing that impairs or destroys vitality.

Hundreds of sick people have been restored to health by this method. Many of them had been pronounced "incurable," but, nevertheless, they are now well. If you are interested in the cure of disease, write me for free literature, which explains my method. I will also send numerous testimonials from well-known people whom I have cured. Do not postpone the matter—you may forget it. Write to-day.

ANDREW C. BIGGS,
218 East Washington Street,
GREENSBORO, N. C.

DEAR MADAM: Please Read My Free Offer

Words of Wisdom to Sufferers from a Lady of Notre Dame, Indiana.

I send free of charge to every sufferer this great Woman Remedy, with full instructions, description of my past sufferings and how I permanently cured myself.

You Can Cure Yourself at Home Without the Aid of a Physician.

It costs nothing to try this remedy once, and if you desire to continue its use, it will cost you only twelve cents a week. It does not interfere with your work or occupation. I have nothing to sell. Tell other sufferers of it; that is all I ask. It cures everybody, young or old.

If you feel bearing down pains as from approaching danger, pain in the back and bowels, creeping feeling in the spine, a desire to cry, hot flashes and faintness, or if you are suffering from any so-called female complaint, then write to Mrs. M. Summers, Notre Dame, Ind., for her free treatment and full instructions. Like myself thousands have been cured by it. I send it in a plain envelope.

Mothers and Daughters will learn of a simple family remedy, which quickly and thoroughly cures female complaints of every nature. It saves worry and expense and the unpleasantness of having to reveal your condition to others. Vigor, health and happiness result from its use.

Wherever you live I can refer you to well-known ladies in your neighborhood, who know and will testify that this family remedy cures all troubles peculiar to their sex, strengthens the whole system and makes healthy and strong women. Write to-day, as this offer may not be made again.

MRS. M. SUMMERS, BOX 233, NOTRE DAME, IND., U. S. A.

King's Business College.

(INCORPORATED.)

CAPITAL STOCK - - $30,000.

Learn Bookkeeping, Shorthand, Touch Typewriting, Penmanship and English. Not in a month—this cannot be done. Not free—you cannot get something for nothing but if merit appeals, we can convince you that KING'S is the best. Established and results of 20 years experience.

Reference: Every bank and leading business concern in Raleigh or Charlotte. Write for our College Journal and offers we are now making. Address,

KING'S BUSINESS COLLEGE,
Raleigh, N. C., or Charlotte, N. C.

THE NATIONAL LIFE INSURANCE CO., OF VERMONT,

is one of the oldest and strongest doing business.
Has large assets invested in North Carolina for the Protection of its North Carolina Policyholders.

It complies with all state laws and comes as near being a practical North Carolina company as any doing Business.
We are prepared to offer special accommodations to insurers.
We especially call the attention of the Ministers of the North Carolina Conference to its many advantages and liberal features

First Class agents always wanted and welcomed.
We will be represented at the approaching Conference at Henderson.

SHEETS & GUTHRIE, GENERAL MANAGERS,
RALEIGH, N. C.

SPECIAL HOLIDAY OFFER ON SEWING MACHINES.

Write for Particulars.
Also Bargains in - - - -

Pianos, Organs,

Washing Machines, Wagons, Farm Implements, Hay Presses, Wire Fences, Pea Hullers, &c., &c. No General Catalogue. Write for what you want.

T. B. PARKER, S. B. A.
RALEIGH, N. C.

..Christmas Holiday Rates..
1904-1905.
ATLANTIC COAST LINE

—ANNOUNCE RATE OF—

One and One-Third First-Class Fares

(MINIMUM RATE 50 CENTS.)

Tickets will be Placed on Sale Dec. 23, 24, 25, 31, and Jan'y 1, 1905.

Final Limit returning to January 4th, 1905.

The teachers and students of colleges, on presentation and surrender of certificates signed by Superintendents, Presidents or Principals, tickets may be sold at the above rate, December 17th to 24th, inclusive, with final limit returning to January 8th, 1905.

For full information, call on ticket agents, or address

H. M. EMERSON, Traffic Manager. W. J. CRAIG, G. P. A., WILMINGTON, N. C.

Methodist Orphanage

OFFICERS:

REV. J. W. JENKINS, - Superintendent
MRS. J. W. JENKINS, - - Matron
MISS LUCY M. REEKS, Teacher

Send money to the Superintendent by Check, Post Office or Express Money Order, or Registered letter.

Encouraging.

The fact that we took our Thanksgiving dinner in our Main building and held our Thanksgiving service in it, and wife and myself, and four of the boys and four of the girls slept in it Thanksgiving night, should greatly encourage our friends.

The seven beds have been put in the dormitories furnished by Mr. J. P. Leak and Mr. J. W. Grainger, each, and they will soon be put in the one furnished by Siler City, Rich Square, White Oak, Whiteville and Elm Street, Goldsboro, Sunday-schools, and the Little Peoples' Aid Society of Airlie, and Mr. Ashley Horn.

Will not other Sunday-schools and individuals send us $15.00 to furnish other beds.

Thanksgiving at the Orphanage.

Blessings on the good women of Raleigh, and the dear girls too. Sisters Proctor, Bumpass, and Brown, Misses Jamie Brown and Sissie Hutchins and Jessie Bumpass and Jennie Proctor, brought out a bountiful Thanksgiving dinner, and served it to perfection. Several of the brethren—Jos. G. Brown, Andrew H. Green, W. J. Young, Jr., and Josephus Daniels, witnessed the performance, with seeming satisfaction. The young Proctor and Daniels boys enlivened the occasion with their presence. Quite a number of ladies looked on. It was a most enjoyable occasion. It was the first in our new dining room. We shall never forget it. After the feast was over, we repaired to the Chapel and had a short Thanksgiving service. The first in the Catharine Page Chapel. We never had a better day. There is true Christianity in this world!

A Word to the Conference.

Dear Brethren: Our Main building, large and commodious, is now ready for occupancy. What will you do with it? A large number of children are anxiously waiting to enter it. To fill it at an early day will require united, earnest effort. The plan formerly used to develop the strength of the church hitherto has only partially succeeded. It was, to take a collection in every congregation, and to get every Sunday-school to take a monthly collection for the Orphanage. Not one-tenth of the Circuits have taken the collections, so far as I know; and not one-tenth of the Sunday-schools are taking monthly collections. If the pastors would give but a very small portion of their time to this great and important work, this plan would be efficient. Instead of being in the way of their work, it would help it.

Almost the unanimous reports from Sunday-schools is that it does them good. The truth is, those congregations that give most to help the orphans, give most to support the church. The testimony is, that it increases all the benevolent collections. But the plan will fail, if not worked. Will the Conference adopt a better one? Surely it will devise some plan that they will work. Thanksgiving offerings will not supply the means to run a great Orphanage. Some two hundred children can be housed here, now. Brethren, will you furnish the money to support them. The 649 Sunday-schools can support one hundred of them. Will the churches support the other hundred?

Receipts up to November 27.

Nashville pub. coll., $17.64; Nashville Bright Jewels, $.76; Smithfield S. S., $5.00; Mr. E. B. McCullers on support of orphan, $60.00; Fifth St. S. S., $30.00; Gibson S. S., $2.50; St. Johns S. S., $2.50; Edenton S. S., $20.50; Carthage S. S., $10.94; Aberdeen S. S., support of orphan 1904, $60.00; Stem S. S., Thanksgiving, $6.00; Clayton S. S., $5.00; Smithfield S. S., Class No. 1, $2.60; Elizabeth, Clayton Circuit, Thanksgiving, $8.66; Mt. Zion, Clayton Circuit, Thanksgiving, $1.02; Oaky Grove, Millbrook Circuit, Thanksgiving, $2.00; Miss Berta Woodall, Thanksgiving, $5.00; Mr. G. W. Alley, Thanksgiving, $2.00; Miss Helen Garrett, Thanksgiving, $5.00; Mrs. Sarah S. Bunch, Thanksgiving, $5.00; A. B. Stronach, Thanksgiving, $1.00; Siler City, Thanksgiving, $15.50; Newland S. S., Thanksgiving, $10.00; Mrs. Jas. A. King, Thanksgiving, $2.00; Children's Praise Circle, Halifax, Thanksgiving, $2.95; Mrs. G. B. Lee, Thanksgiving, $1.00; J. E. Nicholson for little Ross, Thanksgiving, $1.00; Mr. E. P. Dixon, Thanksgiving, $5.00; Miss Lucy M. Recks, Thanksgiving, $1.00; Miss Fannie B. Jenkins, Thanksgiving, $2.50; Brooklyn, Thanksgiving, $1.80; Trinity Church, Charlotte, Thanksgiving, $11.69; Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Spiers, Thanksgiving, $10.00; Hendersonville, Thanksgiving, $4.00; Kinston, Thanksgiving, $25.00; Aberdeen, Thanksgiving, $28.00; Whiteville, Thanksgiving, $17.35; Biscoe, Thanksgiving, $60.00; Trinity Church, Durham, Thanksgiving, $18.00; Mrs. Margaret Strayhorn, Thanksgiving, $3.00; Burlington, Thanksgiving, $9.19; Mocksville, Thanksgiving, $9.63; ladies of Lumberton, window, Thanksgiving, $4.00; young men of Lumberton, bed, Thanksgiving, $15; Littleton S. S., Thanksgiving, $10.00; Mr. J. R. Love on subs., $10.00; Granville Circuit, $19.17; Littleton, per Treasurer, Thanksgiving, $31.06.

Donations in kind:

Box of clothes from W. H. M. S., Weldon; box of clothes from W. H. M. S., New Bern; box of sundries, Edenton; box of sundries, Rich Square S. S.; one quilt from Miss Spivey and Weaver, Rich Square; box clothes from Mrs. Bettie Partridge, Jonesboro; one barrel of apples from Crowder & Rand, Raleigh; sundry dry goods from Dobbin & Ferrall, Raleigh; sack of sweet potatoes from Mr. A. H. Green, Raleigh; four pairs of hose from Mrs. Abbie Best, Wilson; one barrel of apples from W. A. Linnehan, Raleigh; two barrels pumpkins, T. A. Sharpe, Aberdeen; one bunch of bananas from Masters Josephus, Worth Bagley and Jonathan Worth Bagley; box of shoes from Gibson Co., Gibson; sack of peanuts from W. R. Cooper, Wilmington; box of clothes from Mrs. F. R. Johnston, Plymouth.

THERE IS NO DISEASE ON EARTH

but what can be cured if treated in time, and the proper remedy is used. Medical authorities have known for a long time that the berry of the Saw Palmetto is one of the best remedial agents known. Vernal Palmettona (Palmetto Berry Wine) is made from a combination of Palmetto berries and seven other vegetable drugs of well-known curative properties, and the remedy is meeting with a hitherto unheard of success in the cure of all diseases of the stomach, kidneys, liver and bladder, and the minor ailments that are brought on by diseases of the mucous membrane and impure blood. This remedy works in harmony with nature, and the Vernal Remedy Company, of Le Roy, N. Y., will cheerfully send you, free of charge, a trial bottle and booklet. Do not send any money, as they wish to convince you first that the remedy is all or more than they claim for it. It is also sold by druggists everywhere.

STOPS CHILLS CURES COLDS
Painkiller (Perry Davis)
SOLD OVER 60 YEARS

For LaGrippe and Influenza use CHENEY'S EXPECTORANT.

Christmas and Standard Books

Send 2c. in Stamps for Our New Book Catalogue, 80 Pages.

Our Book Department is the largest and most complete of its kind in the entire South.

We mention a few of our Standard and Religious Classics. Over 250 titles in this edition. Handsome bindings.

Our Price, 25c.
Postage 5c. Each.

Abbe Constantin.
Abide in Christ.
Black Rock.
Courtship of Miles Standish.
Evangeline.
In His Steps.
Imitation of Christ.
Kept For the Master's Use.
Light of Asia.
Little Lame Prince, The.
Marmion.
Mosses From An Old Manse.
Paradise Lost.
Reveries of a Bachelor.
Rip Van Winkle.
Scarlet Letter.
Silas Marner.
Sentimental Journey, A.
Tales From Shakespeare.
The Shepherd Psalm.
Tom Brown's School days.
Vicar of Wakefield.
Window In Thrums.

Write us for samples of anything you wish in the way of Dry Goods.

Miller & Rhoads, Richmond, Va.

The Harmonized and Subject Reference New Testament.

BY REV. JAMES W. SHEARER.

"Very valuable arrangement of the text to give a clear, comprehensive view of our Lord's life and teachings, such as has not been before presented."—Dr. F. E. Clark, C. E. World.

"You have done the world a service in this work."—Dr. R. D. Wilson, Princeton Theological Seminary.

"A dollar book worth a hundred."—World Evangel, St. Louis.

"One of the best and most important ever prepared. There are several maps well prepared."—Herald Presbyter.

The Old Book, in modern print, made into a local, topical, harmonized and subject reference edition, by cross reference of numbered paragraphs with headings, arranged according to time, place, harmony and traced journeys.

Each number marks the same subject in all four Gospels. Reviewers declare it "unique," "graphic," "ingenious," "original," "satisfactory," "supplements revisers," "adds much-needed help," "fills a long-felt want," etc

REDUCED FOR CHRISTMAS PRESENTS, 662 page, new indexes. Sent postpaid cloth, on receipt of price, $1.00. gilt, $1.25. Address Author, or

THE SUBJECT REFERENCE CO., DELAWARE, NEW JERSEY.

HIGH RATES TO AGENTS.

Saw Mills

1500 ft. 1 in boards per hour with 16 H. P. is the record of our Light 25 ft. Saw Mills. Small Mills for farmers and Large Mills for lumbermen. Also Engines, Boilers, Shingle Mills, Edgers, Grist Mills, etc. Write for Catalogue & Address Salem Iron Works, Winston-Salem, N. C.

BLACKBOARDS

For Schools, Sunday Schools Churches.

Any quality, shipped anywhere promptly. All kinds school furniture and supplies. Write for particulars. Best Goods, Lowest Prices.

CHAS. J. PARKER, Mgr.
Raleigh, N. C.

SOUTHERN Shorthand & Business UNIVERSITY
NORFOLK AND PORTSMOUTH, VIRGINIA.

3,000 pupils educated at these schools during the past eight years, $1.000 offered to any graduate who has not secured a position.

Courses: Business, Shorthand, English, Telegraphy. Send for illustrated catalogue.

J. M. KESSLER, President.

DE LOACH P'T is the Original and Simplest Variable Friction Feed.

DE LOACH SAW MILLS

Avoid imitators and infringers and buy the genuine. Catalogue free of Mills, 4 H. P. and up. Shingle, Planing, Lath and Corn Mills, four Stroke Hay Presses, Water Wheels. We pay the freight.

DE LOACH MILL MFG. CO., Box 982 Atlanta, Ga.

DRAUGHON'S Practical Business Colleges,

Estab. 16 YEARS. Incorporated $300,000.00. SIXTEEN bankers on Board of Directors.

Cor. Martin and Wilmington,

BIG 15 BIGGEST Best CATALOG Tells The Rest

RALEIGH ATLANTA ST. LOUIS PADUCAH FT. SCOTT COLUMBIA FT. WORTH NASHVILLE KNOXVILLE GALVESTON SHREVEPORT

Colleges IN 12 States Can You Name Them?

KANSAS CITY LITTLE ROCK MONTGOMERY OKLAHOMA CITY

Endorsed by business men from Me. to Cal. Our diploma represents in business what Yale's and Harvard's represent in literary circles.

POSITIONS. Secure position or to refund money; or may contract to pay tuition out of salary. Over 6,000 students each year. No vacation; enter any time. DAY and NIGHT session.

SPECIAL rate if you call or write. SOON for "Proposition B." Catalog FREE. We teach BY MAIL successfully or REFUND money.

Money saved is money made
$2.50 BUYS A PAIR OF Autograph SHOES
THE EQUAL OF ANY $3.00 SHOE

IF YOUR DEALER DOES NOT CARRY THEM A POSTAL CARD TO US WILL TELL YOU WHERE YOU CAN GET THEM.
CRADDOCK-TERRY CO.
LYNCHBURG, VA.

Arrest It—$50 Reward.

Upon receipt of 10 cents, a small sample bottle of Ec-zine will be sent to every reader of the Raleigh Christian Advocate who is suffering with any kind of skin disease or eruption—Eczema, Blind or Bleeding Piles, Blood Poison, Fever Sores, Cancer, Rheumatic Pains, or any other Germ disease or sore of any name or nature.

$50 reward will be paid for any case of Eczema that is not promptly cured with Ec-zine. Ec-zine will heal any sore or cure the worst skin and make it look like velvet. Thousands cured daily. Never mind what you have tried; forget the failures made by other remedies, and send for sample of Ec-zine which always gives relief and permanent cure. A $1.00 bottle often cures the worst cases. If your druggist does not have Ec-zine send direct to us. The Ec-zine Company, M. Kupermeier, Sales Agent, 112 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

The Fact That XANTHINE Hair Restorative is the best Hair Tonic is proven by the thousands of people that will use no other BEST BY TEST.

XANTHINE Company, Richmond, Va.

We prepay charges on all orders. Send for Circulars.

GOVERNMENT POSITIONS

25,566 Appointments were made to Civil Service places during the year ending June 30, 1904. Excellent opportunities for young people. Thousands have been appointed, prepared BY MAIL for the examinations. Letters from hundreds of our Civil Service Catalogue examinees prove that they owe their success in the Government service to the fact that they owe their positions to our course of training. Specimen questions, recently used by the Government. Those interested may write us for free catalogue.

COLUMBIAN CORRESPONDENCE COLLEGE,
223-25 Pa. Ave. S. E. Washington, D. C.

THE KEELEY INSTITUTE GREENSBORO, N. C.

For the treatment of THE LIQUOR, OPIUM, MORPHINE and other Drug Addictions. The Tobacco Habit. Nervo Exhaustion

Marriages

McGEE—CAPPS.—In Wilmington, N. C., November 17th, Mr. Corbitt Hugh McGee and Miss Julia Capps. Rev. A. McCullen officiating.

DAVIS— FLEET. — Married in Wilmington, N. C., November 16th, in Fifth Street Methodist Church, Mr. James Love Davis and Miss Edna Louise Fleet, Rev. A. McCullen officiating.

WALTERS — JOHNSON. — On November 8, 1904, at the home of Mr. H. Johnson, Mr. Maston Walters and Miss Cattie Johnson were united in matrimony, Rev. J. M. Ashby officiating.

TURNER — YOUNG. — In Flat Rock Baptist Church, Franklin County, N. C., Mr. Numa Fletcher Turner and Miss Kate Lorinne Young, Rev. A. L. Ormand performing the ceremony.

HOWELL—JONES.—Married by Rev. F. A. Bishop, November 16, 1904, at the residence of Mrs. L. D. Jones, mother of the bride, Mr. Henry Clarence Howell to Miss Adnah Williams Jones. All of Raleigh, N. C.

WILSON—HORTON.— Married in Warren County, N. C., November 16th, 1904, at the residence of Mr. J. F. P. Horton, father of the bride, Mr. James E. Wilson and Miss Viola D. Horton. Rev. L. M. Chaffin, officiating.

Obituaries

Obituaries containing not more than one hundred and fifty words are inserted free of charge. Those sending obituaries containing over one hundred and fifty words are requested to send with the obituary one cent for every word in excess. Unless this rule is observed the obituary must be cut down to the proper limit

HARRISON.—D. H. Harrison was born March 13, 1838, and died November 19, 1904, aged 66 years, 8 months and 6 days. He joined the M. E. Church, South, at Shady Grove over twenty years ago, under the ministry of Rev. W. H. Puckett, and remained a member till death. On March 12, 1856, when 18 years of age, he married Miss Mary Ballard, who now mourns her loss. During the last four years, three of his daughters and three of his grandchildren have died. He leaves no children, but nine grandchildren. God's blessing on the bereaved.

D. C. GEDDIE.

DICKENS.—Sister Hally Young, wife of O. F. Dickens, deceased, after nearly a year of confinement to her bed, died at the home of her son-in-law, R. W. Carter, October 19, 1904. She was nearly seventy-eight years old.

Sister Dickens had been a member of the M. E. Church, South, at Ebenezer, Roanoke Circuit, for many years. It was the privilege of the writer to visit her some during her illness, and it was a blessing to talk with her for she was truly a mother in Israel—a woman who always lived for God and the right. She was not able to get to her church this year, but she loved her church. She leaves five boys and two girls to mourn their loss. Two girls have preceded her to the glory land.

May the Lord bless the bereaved ones and help them to meet their mother in heaven.

W. B. HUMBLE.

November 21, 1904.

TEMPLE.—John Andrew Temple was born October 29, 1883, and died October 25, 1904, at his father's home, Afton, Warren County, N. C. He was converted and joined the church at Providence, Warren Circuit, under the ministry of Rev. T. J. Daily, in the fall of 1895, and ever afterwards lived a faithful, Christian life. His sickness was long and painful, but he bore it without a murmur. He was the friend of everybody, and everyone who knew him was his friend. I have no idea that John Andrew Temple had an enemy in the world. He loved his church and all her interests. He was always glad when the time came to go to dear old Providence, and since the evening of the 26th of October, all that was mortal of this dear young man sleeps in her cemetery near the spot where he firts found Christ. For Johnnie to die was gain. His rest is sweet.

Dear parents, sisters and brother, it is well with your loved one now. He can never come to you, but you can go to him. That will be a happy meeting!

"Just gone within the veil, where we shall follow.
Not far before us, hardly out of sight—
We down beneath him in this lovely hollow,
And he far up on yonder sunny height.
Gone to begin a new and happier story,
His bitterer tale of earth now told and done;
These outer shadows for that inward glory
Exchanged forever—O thrice blessed one!"

B. C. ALLRED.

PARTRIDGE—John J. Partridge, son of the late John J. Partridge and Bettie Bradshaw Partridge, was born August 31, 1890, and departed this life October 20, 1904, aged fourteen years, one month and twenty days.

His father went to heaven when John was only four weeks old, thus leaving the responsibility of training the boy to his devoted mother, who availed herself of every opportunity to make her baby boy just such a man as his sainted father would have had him be.

John was endowed with many noble traits of character and was fast developing into a most promising young manhood. He was a pupil of the writer most of the present year and he is sure that he knew John as thoroughly as any one, and can truthfully say he never knew a more thoroughly upright boy than John Partridge.

He was the very soul of honor, perfectly frank, open and sincere in all his dealing with others, and spurned anything that was little. In consequence of these fine traits of character, he was an unusual favorite with all with whom he came in contact. In school he shirked no responsibility and never gave his teachers any trouble and was always the most popular boy in school. He made a public profession of trust in Christ during the past summer, and at a time when there was no excitement or no special pressure brought to bear upon him to cause this step on his part. It was like him to see the necessity of faith in Christ, and then to, publicly; acknowledge it without any hesitancy.

He did not stop to question what others might think, but came to the conclusion that he ought to surrender to Christ, and then he had manliness to act upon his own convictions.

He was at school, on the rostrum, and working an example at the blackboard when he was stricken down without a moment's warning, with a spasm, or something like it, and never regained consciousness.

He had the best medical attention and all that loving hands could do, but to no avail. He lingered on from 9.30 Tuesday morning until Thursday morning at 4 a. m., when God took him out of his sufferings and bade him rest on the banks of sweet deliverance. His death was one of peculiar sadness to his mother. He had grown up by her side and was not only a great help to her, but more of a companion, and a great comfort to her as well as the object of her special love and tenderest care. Friday morning we laid

NOT A SICK DAY SINCE.

I was taken severely sick with kidney trouble. I tried all sorts of medicines, none of which relieved me. One day I saw an ad. of your Electric Bitters and determined to try that. After taking a few doses I felt relieved, and soon thereafter was entirely cured, and have not seen a sick day since. Neighbors of mine have been cured of Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Liver and Kidney troubles and General Debility." This is what B. F. Bass, of Fremont, N. C., writes. Only 50 cents at all druggists.

..Dobbin & Ferrall..
(AT TUCKER'S STORE)
Raleigh, N. C.

BRIDAL OUTFITS.

We are fully prepared to furnish a complete Trousseau. Every detail absolutely correct. No better materials can be furnished anywhere, and our dress makers are the best in the world—a broad statement but fully true. It is far better to have the customers come to our store making the trip to Raleigh. Write us if you cannot come in person. You will be given perfect attention. . . . . .

Our Prices are Lower Than Other Stores.

DOBBIN & FERRALL
123 and 125 Fayetteville St.

The Grim Reaper
PNEUMONIA
claims thousands of lives every year. This terrible malady is admitted by the medical profession as the most dangerous and quickly fatal disease known. Skilled physicians are baffled by it and many admit that their efforts to cure have always resulted in failure.

GOWAN'S PNEUMONIA CURE
is the only known specific for this fearful disease. It is applied externally, gives immediate relief, allays fever, scatters congestion and effects quick and permanent cure. Hundreds of people have voluntarily testified to its wonderful efficiveness where all other remedies failed. Its value cannot be measured in money.

Sold by Druggists, $1 a Bottle.

Mr. W. T. Carter, Travelling Auditor So. Ry., says: "I consider Gowan's Pneumonia Cure one of mankind's greatest blessings. My 17-year-old son was extremely ill with Pneumonia; your Cure was used and in 3 days all fever had left; on the fifth day he wanted to get out of bed."

Mr. J. W. Hollingsworth, a well known merchant of Louisburg, N. C., says: "Gowan's Pneumonia Cure saved the life of one member of my family and cured another of Pneumonia."

If your druggist cannot supply you, write to
Gowan Medical Co., Durham, N. C.

CROSS & LINEHAN CO.,
NEW TUCKER BUILDING.)
234-236 Favetteville St., RALEIGH, N. C.

LET US SHOW YOU WHAT THE FULL MEANING OF BARGAIN-GIVING MEANS IN . . . . . .

CLOTHING
AND GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS.

OUR NEW SPRING STOCK NOW READY FOR YOUR INSPECTION.

Cross & Linehan Co.,
Leading Clothiers.

Frisco System
Chicago & Eastern Illinois R. R.
FRISCO SYSTEM

Double Daily Trains
BETWEEN
St. Louis AND Chicago
MORNING AND EVENING.

From LaSalle Street, Station Chicago..... 9:50 a. m.—9:10 p. m.
From Union Station (Merchants Bridge) St. Louis..... 9:30 a. m.—9:16 p. m.

Morning or evening connection at both termini with lines diverging.
Equipment entirely new and modern throughout.
A DOUBLE TRACK RAILWAY.
Equipped with practical and approved safety appliances.
Substantially constructed.

his little body in the Jonesboro cemetery, followed by a great concourse of sorrowing relatives and friends, beside his father, thus to await the resurrection morn when he, no doubt, will come forth, and with his father hurry to meet his Lord in the air.

He leaves a heart-broken mother, two brothers and one sister, to mourn his departure. May this dispensation of God's providence draw all the sorrowing ones "closer to His precious bleeding side," and may they lean on Christ in the dark hour and so live through life that they may be permitted to join son and brother again in the home of the good.

E. POPE.

HEFLIN.—Mrs. Lulu B. Heflin, wife of Louis Heflin, and daughter of Simeon and Margaret Bowling, of Durham, N. C., was born December 28, 1870, and departed this life September 29, 1904, in Durham, N. C., in her thirty-fourth year.

Some years ago Mrs. Heflin moved to Texas where she identified herself with the Methodist church and lived a most exemplary and useful life. Her health failing, she returned to North Carolina to die amid the friends of her youth, and comforted by the tender ministries of her devoted father and mother and loving brothers and sisters.

After a painful and lingering illness, borne with most beautiful Christian resignation, she fell on sleep Thursday evening, September 29, 1904. Her death was simply a languishing into life. Without fear, without haste, as one preparing for a fondly anticipated journey, she bade her weeping loved ones goodbye, put her hand in the hand of her Guide, closed her eyes, and opened them in heaven.

She was refined by the discipline of pain, made beautiful by the ministry of suffering, and when death came she welcomed him as the messenger of God who had come to conduct her to the banqueting house of the King. Conscious to the last, her final word was a note of joy and triumph as the house of clay fell in ruins at the feet of the unfettered spirit that waited within the crumbling walls to go home to be with Jesus.

She leaves a household composed of husband and seven children, made desolate by her departure. Mother, father, three brothers and four sisters survive her, each one of whom has promised to meet her in "the land that is fairer than day." May that promise hold them as the tie of God unto life's last hour.

R. C. B.

CHESSON.—On October 24, 1904, John B. Chesson, of Washington County, passed suddenly from his earthly home to his eternal reward, at the age of sixty-seven years, seven months and nineteen days.

He had been in failing health for most of the year, but his host of friends had no thought that the end was so near. The news of his death was a shock. Almost the entire community stopped and turned with tears and sighs to mingle with the family in their deep sorrow. They shared with them in the pain and loss, for he had a warm place in many hearts. He was well and widely known. He had served his county in the official capacity of sheriff for four years and in an important office of the Federal Government for thirteen years. In these trusts he proved himself capable and devoted to duty. He was well-known in his views and convictions also, for he was positive in his nature. But he was best known in his kindness as a neighbor and in his devotion to his family. He was beautifully tender and attentive to his loved ones in the home. The sudden loss of one so dear produces pain that cannot be imagined or realized except by experience. Divine grace alone can heal such wounds.

Brother Chesson was converted in September, 1895, under the ministry of Revs. W. A. Forbes and W. C. Merritt, and joined the Methodist church, of which he remained a member until his death. He read his church paper closely, supported his church and taught his children to do the same. A short time before his death he insisted that he would die soon, but he assured his loved ones that he had no fears of death. He said to his pastor, "It is all right, I shall be at rest."

He loved to visit the sick, comfort the sorowing and help the needy. Many acts like these, from a sympathetic heart, adorned his life. He was sunny and cheerful in the sickroom and in the social circle.

He was first married to Eliza J. Rea, December 9, 1863.

Three children were born to this union, two of whom are living. His second marriage was to Eleanor A. Tarkenton, November 19, 1874. To this union eight children were born. Four are living.

May our Heavenly Father comfort the sorrowing ones and make the family circle complete in heaven.

W. F. CRAVEN.

CHURCH MONEY EASILY RAISED by our method. For the sake of the advertising, it gives us, we let you have all the profit. For particulars address PETER-NEAT-RICHARDSON Co. Wholesale Drugs, Louisville, Ky

GO TO ST. LOUIS VIA C. & O. ROUTE.

Now is the time to see the great World's Fair at St. Louis, Mo. Delightful weather and the Exposition complete in all it's beauty. An opportunity not to be missed and never to be forgotten.

See that your tickets read via the C. & O. and Big Four Railways. Shortest, quickest and best route, with fast vestibuled train service.

PIANOS AND ORGANS
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.
A. D. JONES & CO.
Southern Factory Distributors for the World's Famous
KIMBALL

WE Loan you the money to buy them.
WE Give free trials.
WE Pay the freight.
WE Save you 25 per cent.
WE Add nothing to the principal when sold on
EASY PAYMENTS.
Write for our latest piano and and organ catalogue and full particulars.

A. D. JONES & CO.,
208 South Elm Street,
GREENSBORO, N. C.

When writing advertisers please mention this paper.

HICKS' CAPUDINE CURES ALL HEADACHES.
IT'S LIQUID.
The perfect remedy for Colds, Indigestion, Periodic Pains, Brain Fag, etc. Prevents Train Nausea and Sick Headache. Braces the nerves. It's Harmless. Trial bottle 10c.

CENTRAL ACADEMY
LITTLETON, N. C.
A Christian Home School for Boys and Young Men. Spring Term begins Jan. 4th, 1905. Charges very low. For further information address
REV. W. W. ROSE, Principal.

The Highsmith Hospital
(INCORPORATED.)
A General Hospital, centrally located on Green Street. J. F. Highsmith, M. D., Surgeon and Specialist in the diseases of women. Assistants: J. Vance McGeogan, M. D., Surgeon; J. A. McKethan, M. D., Specialist in the diseases of the eye, ear, nose and throat.

Modern appliances throughout; elevator, electric and gas light; water, heat, hot and cold shower baths and telephone service on every floor; electric call bells in all rooms; sound-deadening rubber treads and linoleum on stairways and halls, operating room second to none, well equipped chemical and microscopic laboratory with Static X-Ray Electric Machine in connection, giving unsurpassed facilities for treatment of the most difficult surgical cases.

Nurses' Home and Training School, under the supervision of Miss Maude Robertson, graduate of The Massachusetts General, of Boston, Mass., the McLean, of Waverly, Mass., and the Sloan Maternity, of New York, and recently head nurse of the surgical department of the Philadelphia Hospital.

The Cochran Annex, complete in furnishing and equipment, with endowed beds for both white and colored.

Domestic and Culinary Department under skilled housekeeper, faultless in sanitation, cleanliness and convenience.

For further information address
J. F. HIGHSMITH, M. D., Fayetteville, N. C.

....Chesapeake and Ohio Railway....
World's Fair Scenic Route
TO
St. Louis, Missouri.

SHORTEST, QUICKEST and BEST ROUTE. Vestibuled, Electric-Lighted Trains with Pullman Sleepers and Dining Cars.
Through tickets from North Carolina with direct connections.
SPECIAL RATES FOR SEASON, SIXTY OR FIFTEEN DAY TICKETS.
Fifteen day tickets from Raleigh, N. C., $24.80.
Sleeping car accommodations engaged upon application.
SPECIAL COACH EXCURSIONS
On authorized dates, tickets good for ten days at rate of $18.50. Correspondingly low rates from other stations. Special accommodations arranged for parties. Stop-overs permitted within limit at C. & O. celebrated mountain resorts.
USE THE C. & O. ROUTE and purchase your tickets accordingly. For coach excursion dates, reservations and other information, address
W. O. WARTHEN, D. P. A., C. & O. Railway, Richmond, Va.

World's Fair, St. Louis
EXTRAORDINARILY LOW RATES,
November 3, 5, 8, 10, 12, 15, 17, 19, 22, 24, 26, 29

On above-mentioned dates the Southern Railway announces very low round-trip Coach excursion rates to St. Louis. These tickets will be good in all regular Coaches, and on all trains on dates shown. Tickets good 10 days.

Rate from
Goldsboro	$20.00	Salisbury	$17.00
Selma	20.00	Charlotte	18.30
Raleigh	18.50	Statesville	17.00
Durham	17.00	Marion	16.20
Greensboro	17.00	Asheville	15.40
Sanford	20.40	Hendersonville	15.85

Tickets sold at the above rates not good in Sleeping Cars; for other rates see notices elsewhere.

For full information, World's Fair maps, literature, etc., call on or address any Agent Southern Railway.

R. L. VERNON, Trav. Pass. Agt., Charlotte, N. C.
T. E. GREEN, C. T. A., Raleigh, N. C.
S. H. HARDWICK, Pass. Traf. Mgr. W. H. TAYLOE, Gen. Pass. Agt. Washington, D. C.

TENN. MILL CO. Estill Springs, Tenn.

Manufacturers of High Grade Flour, Meal, Feeds, etc.

The Largest and Best Equipped Mill South of the Ohio River.

We Manufacture the famous

NELLIE KING
Fancy Patent Flour.

Try this and you will use no other.

Now for the Winter Courses.

It is only slightly over a month when the Winter Course in Agriculture and Dairying will be opened at the A. & M. College. These courses are intended only for farmers. There are no entrance examinations. There is no tuition. Everything is free to the farmers of the State, except board, room and fuel. The total cost for these for the ten weeks is but thirty dollars. If you wish to study your work; understand the soil and how to fertilize and improve it; how to breed and feed animals; how to make butter; how to judge farm animals and farm crops; and to study the various details for practical work on the farm; you ought to spend ten weeks at the Farmers' College. You can readily get away from home during the winter months, and meeting with other farmers and talking with them about our farm problems, immense good will come to you and to the agriculture of the State. You had better arrange early for this course. Talk with a friend or two and see if you all can't come.

If you have any questions write Prof. C. W. Burkett, West Raleigh, N. C., and receive full particulars. Let's all off to the Winter Course.

Hugh S. Thompson, former Governor of South Carolina, died at his residence in New York Sunday night. He was born in Charleston, S. C., in 1836. In recent years he was comptroller of the New York Life Insurance Company. Thompson was elected Governor of South Carolina in 1882. He was Comptroller of the Currency under Cleveland's administration, and after his retirement from office in Washington went to New York. He was critically ill for several days prior to his death.

A QUICK CURE For Coughs, Colds Allen's Lung Balsam

The Clerk of the House of Representatives has finished the compilation of a list of the members of the House in the Fifty-ninth Congress, which shows that the Republicans will have the surprising majority of 118. This is the largest majority the Republicans have ever had in the House, although they had nearly as much—115—in the Forty-third Congress, and 112 in the Fifty-fourth Congress. The Democrats, however, had a larger majority in the Fifty-second Congress.

Col. W. C. P. Breckinridge, who suffered a stroke of apoplexy a few days ago, died Saturday night at his home at Lexington. Col. Breckinridge was born in Lexington, August 28, 1837. He was noted as a lawyer and orator and served five terms in Congress. During his last term he became involved in a scandal with a woman and his usefulness as a public man was destroyed.

The game of foot-ball between Yale and Harvard, won by the former, was witnessed by 32,000 people.

For Whooping Cough use CHENEY'S EXPECTORANT.

21,245
UNIQUE

21,245 Sunday-school Superintendents and workers were asked by us to name the most practical songs used by them. The result is the most Unique and Incomparably the finest collection of songs for Sunday-schools and Praise services ever issued.

THE VOICE OF PRAISE

beautifully bound in full cloth (Vellum de Luxe) $25 a hundred; 30cts. singly by mail. Send for free descriptive pamphlet or for complete returnable sample. We pay the postage.

Hall-Mack Co., 1018-20 Arch St. Phila. 156 Fifth Ave., N. Y.

DOES YOUR SCHOOL NEED THEM?

DURING the past three years, more than 50,000 children in the public schools of North Carolina have had new patent desks furnished them. Were yours among the number? If not, now is the time to buy. Prices satisfactory and terms will be made to suit. We furnish all kinds of

BLACKBOARDS

FOR SCHOOLS, SUNDAY-SCHOOLS AND CHURCHES.

Everything guaranteed to be satisfactory and prices the lowest, quality considered. Write for circular matter.

Chas. J. Parker, RALEIGH, N. C.

$800 to $1,800 a year in the Railway Mail, Postal, and other lines of government service. We prepare by mail for examination. Nearly 20,000 appointments last year. For particulars address, CIVIL SERVICE SCHOOL, 914 Walnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.

BLYMYER CHURCH BELLS.

Please mention this paper.

When writing advertisers, please mention this paper.

TRINITY COLLEGE NO. CAROLINA Reading Room

Raleigh Christian Advocate

FIFTIETH YEAR. ORGAN OF THE NORTH CAROLINA CONFERENCE. NUMBER 44.

RALEIGH, N. C., WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 7, 1904.

THE NORTH CAROLINA CONFERENCE

IN ITS SIXTY-EIGHTH ANNUAL SESSION, HENDERSON, N. C.

REPORTED BY S. L. ADAMS.

The sixty-eighth annual session of the North Carolina Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, convened at Henderson, N. C., Wednesday, November 30, 1904, at 9.30 o'clock a. m., the opening devotional exercises being conducted by Bishop W. A. Candler, who read selections from the 9th and 10th chapters of St. Luke, and made appropriate comment. His remarks defining spiritual heroism were inspiring and helpful.

Hymn No. 221, was heartily sung, and a feeling prayer offered by the Bishop, who then called upon Rev. W. L. Cuninggim, the Secretary of the last Conference, to call the roll, which showed a large attendance for the first day's session, 133 members responding.

On motion, Rev. W. L. Cuninggim was chosen Secretary of the Conference, an honor he has received at twelve preceding Annual Conferences consecutively.

The hours for meeting were fixed at 9.30 a. m., with adjournment at 1 p. m.

Resolutions of fraternal greetings from the other denominations of Henderson were read, and on motion of Rev. E. A. Yates, D. D., the Secretary was instructed to make suitable response to each.

On motion, a special committee on the divorce evil was appointed, which was as follows: Rev. E. A. Yates, D. D., Rev. R. F. Bumpas, and Hon. L. L. Smith.

Speaking of divorce the Bishop said: "Do not let the impression get abroad that the Methodist church is just now waking up on this question. It is one of long standing with us. I am glad to see some people who have been doing nothing are now coming to the front on the question.

It can't be emphasized too much. We want to go back to God's laws and we must go there or go to destruction. The Methodists have been in favor of the Bible position a long time."

Report from the Publishing House at Nashville was read and referred to the proper committee. It showed a gratifying increase in sales of literature, and a prosperous condition generally.

Encouraging reports were also presented and referred from the general boards or Foreign Missions, Sunday Schools, Education and from the General Secretary of the Epworth League interest, and the Director of the Correspondence School.

Rev. W. R. Lambuth, D. D., Secretary of the Foreign Mission Board, was introduced to the Conference, and delivered a very interesting outline of the great progress being made in the Foreign Mission field.

The annual report of the Board of Trustees of Trinity College, was presented and read by Dr. John C. Kilgo, the president, and same referred to the Board of Education.

The report of Greensboro Female College was presented by Secretary of the Conference at the requeste of Rev. A. P. Tyer, and referred to the proper committee.

The following committees were announced:

Books and Periodicals—Clerical: W. H. Puckett, N. C. Yearby, E. M. Snipes, J. W. Bradley, W. A. Jenkins, J. H. M. Giles, W. S. Rouse, E. E. Rose, A. J. Parker. Lay: M. Mial, A. J. Thompson, C. W. Bynum, H. M. John, C. H. Johnson, W. L. Arendell, W. K. Jacobson, J. T. Flythe, J. A. Kramer.

Conference Relations—F. A. Bishop, M. T. Plyler, E. Pope, J. H. Hall, C. C. Brothers, D. C. Geddie, D. L. Earnhardt, B. C. Allred, D. H. Tuttle.

Church Property—Clerical: G. B. Starling, J. B. Thompson, R. W. Bailey, Z. Paris, W. D. Sasser, P. Greening, W. Y. Everton, R. L. Davis, F. L. Church. Lay: M. S. Davis, S. S. Lankford, R. F. Wrenn, W. F. Gibson, J. A. Drew, E. F. Carraway, Wiley Brown, Dr. M. Bolton, J. M. Cross.

District Conference Records.—J. M. Culbreth, M. D. Giles, J. C. Humble, W. F. Sanford, W. E. Brown, C. C. Sell, R. C. Craven, H. A. Humble, W. F. Craven.

Memoirs.—J. C. Kilgo, S. F. Nicks, F. D. Swindell, C. O. DuRant, L. L. Nash.

Bible Cause.—M. M. McFarland, G. D. Langston, A. D. Betts, J. P. Pate, Y. E. Wright, T. P. Bonner, B. H. Black, L. M. Chaffin, S. T. Moyle.

Trustees of the Orphanage.—J. W. Jenkins, President, Raleigh; J. G. Brown, Secretary and Treasurer, Raleigh; L. B. Bynum, J. N. Cole, R. T. Gray; T. N. Ivey, J. S. Wynne, W. E. Springer, E. J. Parish, W. R. Allen, F. A. Woodward, L. L. Smith, R. N. Page, J. A. Long, W. B. Boyd. The Orphanage Executive Committee is R. T. Gray, J. S. Wynne, L. B. Bynum, T. N. Ivey and J. G. Brown.

Sabbath Observance.—T. A. Smoot, G. T. Adams, K. D. Holmes, J. W. Potter, R. A. Willis.

Temperance.—Clerical: J. H. Shore, Rufus Bradley, J. H. Frizzelle, R. A. Willis, E. H. McWhorter, E. H. Davis, J. A. Hornaday, G. D. Langston, H. M. North. Lay: T. R. Hood, W. R. Hambrick, B. Cole, R. T. Poole, R. H. Beery, G. V. Richardson, J. C. L. Davenport, Dr. D. B. Zollicoffer, L. L. Smith.

Conference adjourned at one o'clock.

MEETING OF HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

The Conference Historical Society held a brief meeting Tuesday evening before Conference, at which time Rev. A. D. Betts, D. D., was expected to speak on "Recollections of the North Carolina Conference;" but he failed to reach Henderson in time, owing to a belated train. The following were elected officers of the Society:

President.—L. S. Massey.

Vice-President.—W. W. Rose.

Secretary.—R. W. Bailey.

SECOND DAY.

The Conference reassembled at 9.45 Thursday morning, Bishop Candler in the chair. The opening worship was conducted by Rev. E. A. Yates, D. D., who read selections from the 12th chapter of Romans.

The minutes of the first day's session by the Secretary were found correct and approved

Rev. L. L. Nash, D. D., read a letter addressed to the body, from Mr. F. C. Toppleman, General Manager of the Home Telephone Company, offering the use of its long-distance lines free, to members of the Conference during the session, and the Conference accepted the courtesy by vote and requested Dr. Nash to write Mr. Toppleman a letter of thanks.

The arrival of the following lay delegates who were not present the first day, was announced: W. F. Gibson, Rockingham District; John F. Bruton and T. M. Anderson, of Wilson; Dr. D. B. Zollicoffer and J. T. Flythe, of Warrenton, and L. L. Smith, of Elizabeth City.

Report of the General Board of Church Extension was read and referred to committee.

Rev. J. M. Rhodes, president of Littleton Female College, presented and read report of the Trustees of that Institution, which was referred to committee.

A communication was read from a committee representing the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of North Carolina upon the subject of divorce, and same was referred to the special committee on the subject appointed the first day of the Conference.

The Bishop called question 20, and the several Presiding Elders passed the usual examination of character, and submitted reports which were in part as follows:

Rev. W. H. Moore, Raleigh District: Have had a close unremitting year's work, revivals on many of the charges; a number of conversions and accessions to the church, though net gain on the district is small, owing to revision of the church records, which ought to have been done several years ago. Preachers on the District have done a good year's work.

Rev. J. B. Hurley, Fayetteville District: Good revivals in nearly all the churches, about 1,000 conversions, with between seven and eight hundred accessions. Net increase about five hundred. There has been an increase in salaries paid the pastors, fourteen of the charges paid out in full. Hay Street increased pastor's salary $300. Domestic Mission collection paid in full, and on the whole a wonderful advance in the old district.

Rev. J. N. Cole, Rockingham District: Found the district in good condition, owing to the faithful work of my predecessor. The pastors have done an excellent year's work. Some 800 or 900 professions, with about four hundred and fifty accessions. Many persons converted in the numerous revival meetings on the district uniting with churches of other denominations. There was an increase in salaries at several points. Two elegant churches have been erected, the one at Rowland at a cost of $2,000. A large portion of the money subscribed for commodious brick church at Hamlet. One new parsonage built. Conference collections paid in full. The district abounds in noble laymen who love the church. It has been a delightful year's work.

Rev. R. B. John, Wilmington District: Good revivals on many of our charges, a meeting held in nearly every church on the district during the

(Continued on Page 4.)

Contributions

A Chaplin for Penitentiary.

BY J. V. WILLIAMS.

It is customary for State prisons in these days of advanced religion, as well as advanced thought generally, to appoint a chaplain to serve the poor fallen men, who have been brought to prison through sin. If one will take the time to look into the matter, it will be found that the rule is now, that all up-to-date large prisons, whether city or State, are supplied with the gospel.

Imagine my surprise when in Raleigh some time ago, to find that our State's Prison has no chaplain, and that the only gospel services held there was by the ministry of Raleigh, who volunteer to preach from Sabbath to Sabbath for the prisoners, without any remuneration from the State, or any body else. They pay their own expenses in addition to giving their services. Is this right?

Unquestionably, the prison should have religious services, and as all others who serve that State are paid for their work why not pay the preacher for his work?

Again, it would be money well spent, as many poor criminals would find the better life and return to their families Christian men, instead of remaining thieves, and soon finding their way back to the State's Prison for a further cost to the State.

If He saved the dying thief why can't He save the living thief?

I know many men of beautiful Christian characters who were once in prison.

Our penitentiary at Raleigh should have a chaplain, and the State should pay him at least $1,000 per annum.

Granbery.

My Dear Doctor Ivey:

If it be agreeable to you, I shall count it a privilege to correspond with your readers occasionally, bringing to their attention the great interests of the Church here in the "Land of the Southern Cross."

Here we are at work, two hours and a quarter to the east of Washington, and astride the Tropic of Capricorn. The grave of our first martyr, James W. Voger, lies in the city of S. Paulo, right on this Tropic.

Ours is the only country that our church occupies, south of the Equator, out of sight of the pole star, with the seasons all inverted and Christmas the longest, hottest day of the year.

Our other missionaries lose sight of their native land; but we down here give up land and stars. A lonely feeling comes o'er the heart, when we look up to the eternal stars and find that those we knew the best are gone from sight. Still, we labor on, and the cause goes forward.

I am on Brazilian soil now for the third time, and what I find of most importance in the present epoch of our history here, is the Granbery.

This is our central school plant in Brazil. It has led a quiet life of usefulness and progress during these fourteen years. It has made many friends; has had patrons from eight out of the twenty States that form the great Republic; and enjoys a good reputation for instruction and moral training.

Its prime work, its fundamental aim, is to prepare young men for the ministry of the Word in Brazil, for apostolic labors in this priest-ridden land.

Mr. Wishard, in his book, shows that the evangelization of any country must be done by a native ministry. What would Luther have done in Scotland, or Knox in Italy? Moody and Tolstoi could never have swapped places or countries. Sam Jones with an interpreter would make a poor show in Brazil.

The great work of the foreign missionary is like that of the Master, to train and inspire a group of apostolic messengers and send them forth to proclaim, as heralds of the cross, the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

A sense of the importance of the Granbery, thus grows upon us all here; and we are planning and working to make it more efficient in the evangelization of this people.

We now have the School of the Prophets well organized, with a course of study running through five years. We have four professors and sixteen students in the Theological Department; and we hope and pray and labor that these promising young men may be used of God for a great and noble work in the cause of Christ.

Besides this school the Granbery has a gymnasium, a preparatory department, a school of dentistry, and one of pharmacy.

Of these I will write at another time.

Yours very truly,

J. M. LANDER.

Juiz de Fora, Brazil, Oct. 18, 1904.

Archaeological Discoveries.

BY M. B. CHAPMAN, D.D., IN EPWORTH ERA.

In the ruins of Susa the French explorers a few years ago had the good fortune to discover a block of black diorite, nearly eight feet high, upon which was engraved the long-sought-for code of Hammurabi, who was a contemporary of Abraham, and ruled not only over Babylonia, but over Canaan as well. Hammurabi was the founder of the Babylonian empire, and reigned from 2287 to 2232 B. C. He was the Amraphel of Genesis xiv., and united under his rule all the cities of Babylonia, and became the true founder of what is known as the Old Babylonian Empire. He rebuilt cities and canals, and erected many splendid temples and other public buildings, which he adorned with costly works of art.

Hammurabi's most important work was the code of laws, which remained the basis of Babylonian and Assyrian law until the fall of both empires. The monument discovered at Susa contained originally about 3,600 lines of writing, divided into forty-nine columns; but five columns on the front have been erased by some Elamite king, probably Sutruk Nahunte (about 1100 B. C.), who served the stela of Naram-Sin in a similar manner. The writing is a very beautiful type of the best archaic script, a kind of black letter cuneiform, long used by kings of royal inscriptions after the cursive writing was invented.

Hammurabi has been called the Babylonian Moses, for the reason that he promulgated a code of laws which in some respects is remarkably like the Mosaic code of the Hebrews. The comparison between the Pentateuchal codes and the Babylonian codes shows how close the resemblance is between them. It is possible that Abraham, a contemporary and subject of Hammurabi, and living in Ur, near Babylon, might have known these laws and carried them with him to Palestine. Archaeological discovery has also made it clear that similar campaigns had already taken place centuries perviously, and that Canaan was at the time subject to Babylonia. Babylonia was at this particular period under the suzerainty of Elam and divided into two kingdoms, Hammurabi reigning in the North, while Eri-Aku of Larsa, the Ellasar of Genesis, governed in the South.

The supreme interest which attaches to the Hammurabi code is not only from the circumstance that it is the oldest system of laws known to us, but from the further circumstance that without doubt it exercised a deep influence upon the later Hebrew code. In process of time, when the laws were written and codified in Exodus, Deuteronomy, and Leviticus, it is natural that some of them should be the same as the Babylonian code with which Israel was so long familiar. It is entirely possible that Hammurabi's code was familiar to the communities inhabiting Canaan, and may have been the very laws used by them in settling disputes and punishing offenders.

A distinguished writer says: "The code of Hammurabi is one of the most important monuments of the human race." The code casts a strong side light upon the Babylonian life of the period when it was compiled, and thus constitutes one of the most valuable monuments spared to us from the old Semitic world. It defines the rights and duties of husband and wife, master and slave, of merchants, gardeners, tenants, shepherds—of all the classes which made up the population of the Babylonian Empire. As in the case of the later Hebrew code, the principle of retaliation determined the penalty for injury done another; it was an eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth, and a limb for a limb.

For more than two thousand years after its compilation this code of laws was in force in the Assyrian and Babylonian Empires, and even after the lapse of time it was used as a text-book in the schools of the Mesopotamian lands. "As the oldest body of laws in existence," says an eminent Assyrian scholar, "it marks a great epoch in the world's history, and must henceforth form the starting point for the systematic study of of historic jurisprudence."

What Hour is Best for Sunday-Schools?

Practical Sunday-school workers from a dozen States and provinces have recently written to the Editor telling what hour on Sunday they believe to be the best hour for holding the regular session of the school. The subject was brought up some weeks ago by an Ohio worker, who expressed his hope that The Sunday-school Times would exert its inuence in "making more general the convening of those engaged in teaching and studying God's Word at the morning hours of the Sabbath day,"—that is, at an hour before the morning preaching service. He strongly opposed the noon hour, and quoted Marion Lawrance as calling it "the most intolerable hour for convening a Sunday-school." The Editor invited readers to express their preferences as based on their experience, and as a result a pageful of interesting testimony was published in last week's issue. Not all the letters received could appear; but the selections published fairly represented the differing views and expreinces.

A summary reveals some interesting facts. It shows, for one thing, that local conditions are an important factor in settling the question for each school. And varying local conditions had pretty general representation, for Sunday-schools were heard from in Illinois, Pennsylvania, New York, Texas, Minnesota, Arkansas, Ontario, Massachusetts, Maryland, Manitoba, British Columbia, and North Carolina.

The number favoring the morning hour, before the preaching service, exactly equaled the number favoring the afternoon hour. Each of these hours had more than twice as many advocates as the noon hour. While more cities were heard from than towns and villages, the fact that more than one-third of all the Sunday-schools reporting were country Sunday-schools makes the discussion a representative one.

Of the few Sunday-schools favoring the noon hour, exactly half of the number were country schools, and half were city schools. Of those favoring the morning hour, the country schools were slightly in the majority. Of those favoring the afternoon, all were city schools. Here is a brief statement of the pros and cons urged by Sunday-school workers in city and country for and against all three hours:

Noon:—Advantages: The largest attendance will be secured, and members and visitors can be won from the congregation; in the country, dairying work and other farm chores preclude the early morning hour, and the distance to be traveled puts two trips a day out of the question.

Disadvantages: People are tired and children are uneasy after church; two services in succession are against the laws of health, and the noon hour is the usual dinner hour, therefore unwise; the Sunday-school is too important to be tacked on to any other service.

Morning:—Advantages: Minds and bodies are brighter and fresher, and all are at their maximum of efficiency; better teachers can be secured (as the best teachers are the busiest people, who want their afternoons for rest, and they ought to have them); children are less restless than later; more children will attend the preaching service; more people will attend the evening service.

Disadvantages: People like to sleep late, and won't get up for early session; service is likely to be hurried on account of church; farm chores in the country make it impossible to attend; it was tried in one city, and attendance fell off nearly one-half; children have no time for finishing touches on the lesson, which is usually prepared on Sunday or not at all; snowy roads of the morning are likely to be cleared by the afternoon.

Afternoon:—Advantages: The Sunday-school is given a session independent of any other, as it ought to have; the tired mothers are given an afternoon of rest; the noon meal is not interfered with; the childrens' attention is not diverted by weariness or hunger; snowy roads are likely to be more cleared in the afternoon than early morning; it keeps young people from concerts, theaters, and other places of amusement in the city; leaves no excuse for tardiness.

Disadvantages: Children are dull and sleepy then; too much to expect country people to make the long trip to the church twice on Sunday; gives people an excuse for not attending evening church; prevents parents and children from spending Sunday afternoons together,—about the only time they have for this; people are tired out after having attended morning service; fails to secure the best teachers, for the busy people who teach ought to have their Sunday afternoon for rest.

Here is a wide range to choose from; for every reason in favor of any hour one can find a counter-reason against it. But to Sunday-school workers generally, with the single exception of those in country districts where great distances must be driven to and from church, the Editor of The Sunday School Times unhesitatingly commends the afternoon as the desirable time for the Sunday-school session. The Bible teaching service of the church is the most important service of the church. It is not likely to be at its best if held immediately before or after another service. And while the object of the Sunday-school is by no means merely to take children off their mothers' hands, it is true that the long Sunday afternoon with no school is likely to prove Satan's opportunity for many a young person,—and older one too. The objections to the afternoon session cited by some of the workers would seem to be outweighed by its positive advantages. The persons who may be drawn from the congregation into the noon hour school are likely to be transients, and a Sunday-school's efficiency and influence are not reckoned by its number of visitors. The freshness of body and mind that is claimed for the morning hour does not seem to have departed by half past two o'clock on week-days sufficiently to shut down the public schools or places of business.

Mr. Lawrance's knowledge of conditions and ideals in the Sunday-school field is not exceeded, if equaled, by any other living worker. He believes in the afternoon hour as the best. The late Dr. H. Clay Trumbull knew the Sunday-school field of North America from ocean to ocean; his convictions were unequivocal, and matured by his lifetime experiences. He believed in the afternoon hour.—Sunday School Times.

The Missionary Training School.

The establishment of the Missionary Training School is the result of a purpose on the part of the Board of Missions to meet a threefold need in the Church. First, there is the need of training a corps of city missionaries. The General Conference convened in Dallas, Tex., 1902, authorized the development of a system of city missions in these terms: "The Board of Missions shall be authorized to organize, with the indorsement of the Annual Conference, and in co-operation with the Annual Conference Board of Missions, a system of city missions." In pursuance of this act of the General Conference, the Board of Missions, at its annual session in St. Louis, Mo., 1903, drafted a plan of city missions, one item of which is as follows: "Provision shall be made by the Secretaries of the Board of Missions for the development and training of a corps of city missionaries, provided acceptance for service shall be subject to the approval of the Committee on Candidates, as in the case of candidates for missionary work on the foreign field." Thus it became of vital importance that a school be established at once in which to train the city missionaries.

Secondly, there has been a growing need in recent years for a central training school in order to provide suitable courses of study for missionary candidates for the foreign field. This matter was the subject of prolonged and careful consideration by the Secretaries and the Board of Missions, with the result that, at the annual meeting of the Board in Waco, Tex., 1904, the following resolution to establish the Training School was adopted:

Resolved, That the Secretaries be authorized to arrange for a training class, or school of methods, to be opened in the months of January, February, and March; and that our candidates for work in foreign fields, as far as possible, be required to attend.

EUGENE R. HENDRIX.
CHARLES B. GALLOWAY.

The third need of the Church for a training school is that of providing courses of reading and of study adapted to the wants of home missionaries on circuits, and of other Christian workers. In the development of home missions attention has been given hitherto rather to the financial side of the work than to the training and equipment of the missionaries themselves. The Southern Methodist Church has over thirteen hundred home missionaries. They are a heroic band, serving the Church in places that test the souls of men; still they bravely toil on with small salaries with scant recognition, often seeing their families stinted even of the necessities of life. And yet their greatest hardship is not physical need, but intellectual and spiritual impoverishment. It is with an earnest desire to meet these needs of our home, as well as those of our foreign, missionaries that the Board of Missions has established the Training School.

While the school is organized primarily for missionaries, it will furnish courses specially adapted for Sunday-school teachers, Epworth League workers, and persons engaged in other kinds of Christian service.

The Training School is not a rival of other institutions of the Church. On the other hand, it is intended to be a feeder to both the Scarritt Bible and Training School and the Vanderbilt Theological Seminary. The hearty co-operation of the Vanderbilt Faculty has been tendered the school, several of its members being on the teaching force.

THE BIBLE TEACHERS' CLASS.

Every Monday evening the Bible Teachers' Class will be conducted by H. M. Hamill, of the Sunday School Department. The object of this class is twofold: first, to give the students experience in teaching the Bible in the homes, under the direction of an expert Bible scholar and teacher; and secondly, to render direct evangelistic service in behalf of the unchurched of the city. Thus while the students are studying both the subject and method of teaching, they will be engaged in the most important of all work—preaching and teaching the gospel in the homes of the people, with the aim of leading them to Christ.

THE DEVOTIONAL HOUR.

There will be no more important hour in the entire programme of the school than that set apart for a purely devotional service every Wednesday evening throughout the session. The exercises will be in charge of Dean Wilbur F. Tillett, who will deliver a series of short addresses extending through the term. The general subject of this series will be: "What Is the Christian Life and Religion?" The supreme object of these meetings will be the enrichment of the spiritual life.

PRACTICAL INVESTIGATIONS.

Several hours each week will be given to practical investigation under the direction of a trained leader. Those students who are specially interested in city evangelization will have ample opportunity to study at first hand some of the important social and religious problems of a typical Southern city. Other original investigations will be conducted by the school, such as a study of the rural Church, of factory work, etc., and the results will be reported to the students from time to time.

The Gospel's Golden Age.

Winkelman, artist and critic, residing in Rome, spent an hour each day meditating his Italian felicity. These musings gave fined edge to his chisel, and a defter touch to his pencil, which inspiration expressed itself in marble minstrelsy and glowing canvas. Multitudes have lived in the Eternal City unmoved by the serene, azure sky arching them, fanned by silken breezes, amid the peaceful ruins of a classic antiquity, unmindful of their happy environment, uninspired by the mute eloquence of crumbling sculpture, and the speaking silence of sunny skies and Campanian landscapes.

How many, born in America, heirs to its varied attractions of zone, rivers, mountains, meads, prairies, resplendent with towns and cities, resonant with the hum of industry symphonic with anvil choruses, the entrancing song of birds and wave of gorgeous plumage, affluent in homes of peace, barns bursting with plenty, fertile in soils and golden in products, living in a land of liberty, classic with colleges and academic groves, consecrated in shrines, billowed with heroic graves, with freedom's constellated banner fanned by Atlantic breezes and kissed by Pacific zephyrs—"God o'erhead and heart within"—without a grateful heart to the Giver of all Good!

Myriads reek not the mercies to which they are native. They live and die strangers to their American birthright and boon. Many travel far abroad, vainly seeking what they have left behind.

Paradise is where one is not—always ahead of the emigrant. The soul has its climate and carries with it its own temperature. We require not so much a larger revenue as we do a knowledge of how rich we are.

The autumnal bee, with the honey of the hive on its nose, takes this enrichment as the lure of distant flowers, and flies far a-field in search of a golden sweet left stored at home. Night overtakes it in the futile chase, the twilight dews congeal on its weary wings, and, a victim to its greed, it falls to the frozen furrow to die.

So we see men journeying far in the winter of their discontent, seeking the sweets they have left at home, more from fancied flowers or blossoms already plundered of their nectar, instead of staying by the store already gathered by manhood's earlier toil. With the home hive dripping with the honey of prosperity, they leave the overflowing comb in search of an ever-retreating lure.

The race for the bag of gold at the foot of the rainbow is no fable, but a parable. "He that loveth silver shall not be satisfied with silver, nor he that hath abundance with increase." He was wise who, seeing the world so stocked with luxuries beyond his purse, thanked God there were so many things he could do without.

Paul had found the word-key that turns every bolt in the lock of life when he swung to his girdle, "I have learned in whatever state I am therewith to be content."

No man ever found the spring-source of perennial joy in worldly delights—broken and leaky cisterns.

"Hope springs eternal in the human breast;
Man never is, but always to be, blest."

Satisfaction is a celestial boon; contentment is a terrestrial grace.

All other beings than man are in the enjoyment of perfect happiness. To them memory brings no regrets; hope is shadowed by no fears. The past is buried in oblivion; the future is impenetrably veiled. The ephemera sport in a sunbeam and sing their hosanna on the verg of the tomb. "Dum-driven cattle" pass browsing to the slaughter-pen, without a premonition of their martyrdom to human hunger. Man is laid in the cradle with a cry, oscillates between a smile and a tear, and goes to the grave with a groan. But he "Can make his life sublime,

And, departing, leave behind him
Footprints on the sands of time."

He is under discipline in a gymnasium of effort, in an arena of achievement, and can make or mar his destiny. Always afflicted, he would be sullen and despondent; always prosperous, would be giddy and insolent. Pains and pleasures, joys and sorrows are so mingled in his cup as to give room for business and domestic felicity, and, at the same time refine him for an "inheritance with the saints in light."

To him is given supporting grace, enabling him to rejoice in afflictions, to take chastisement as rectoral, and to look forward for the righting of every wrong, the redress of every grievance, the supply of every rational want, and compensation for every woe. Eternity is the measure of his cycle, and immortality his glorified opportunity. Everywhere is God. In His "presence is fullness of joy." There are trials and triumphs.

"There are briers besetting every path,
That call for patient care;
There is a cross in every lot,
And an earnest need for prayer;
And the lowly heart that trusts in Thee
Is happy everywhere."

THE NORTH CAROLINA CONFERENCE.

(Continued from Page 1.)

year. About 400 to 500 accessions; much church building done, some six or seven new edifices being completed, four of them at new places. The district parsonage debt has been paid. Missionary collections paid in full. Preachers salaries increased.

Rev. F. D. Swindell, New Bern District: Closing up fourth year on the district and the eighth year within its bounds, and realize with feelings of regret that must soon part with the fine body of Methodists on the New Bern District. Work on the district for the year has been very good, generally; the erection of new church is reported from the church at New Bern which will cost $65,00 or $70,000; church at Goldsboro improved, Sunday-school rooms built at expenditure of about $12,000. Two new churches built on Goldsboro Circuit. New parsonage erected at Hookerton. Mission collections paid in full and over. Advance in other collections, but not in full. Pastor's salaries increased. Three hundred and seven accessions on the district, 71 reported from the church at New Bern. District in good condition and advancing.

Rev. J. D. Bundy, Washington District: Fine revivals on most of the charges; 400 accessions, with net gains of 300; one parsonage built; two churches dedicated, one being presented by a lumber company near Vanceboro. Seven charges pay up in full. Amount paid per capita compares well with other districts, our district being overassessed probably. Good progress being made on the district.

Rev. G. F. Smith, Warrenton District: Eighteen of the twenty charges pay up in full, an increase of $400 in Conference collections, an increase of $700 in preacher's salaries. Five hundred and thirty-seven joined on profession of faith. Four new churches built, several parsonage debts paid; 300 new subscribers to Raleigh Christian Advocate secured. Good meetings, profitable year, a true, loyal and consecrated membership, and both preachers and people have wrought well.

Rev. J. E. Underwood, Elizabeth City District: Several new churches built, one at a cost of $1,800; 734 accessions. Several parsonage and church debts paid and the district parsonage debt wiped out. All Conference collections paid in full and some over. All salaries paid except three on the coast, where the people suffered greatly from storms. Circulation of the Christian Advocate increased 200.

Rev. J. T. Gibbs, D. D., Durham District: Good revivals during the year. Twice as many conversions reported as last year, increase in membership about 300—and that too after revising the rolls. Good financial report; about half the pastors receiving increased salaries. Conference collections all up, and some overpaid. A large sum raised for church building.

The names of Revs. J. H. Page, J. M. Rice, Z. T. Harrison, J. Sanford and J. F. Bivins, were referred to the committee on memoirs.

The following names were referred to Committee on Conference Relations for the superannuated relation:

M. C. Thomas, W. S. Davis, J. C. Crisp, T. J. Gattis, J. A. Lee, J. E. Bristowe, J. E. Thomas, M. D. Hix, Samuel Leffers.

And the following for the Supernumerary relation:

R. W. Townsend, C. R. Taylor, J. J. Barker, F. E. Dixon, M. H. Tuttle.

Revs. S. B. Turrentine, J. J. Renn, and A. R. Surratt, of the Western North Carolina Conference, were introduced to the body.

In answer to question 1, the following were admitted on trial: Benj. E. Stanfield, of the Washington District; Wm. Thomas Usry, of Rockingham; Robert D. Daniel, of Warrenton; Enoch W. Hoyle, of Durham; Andrew W. Price, of Elizabeth City.

Question 8 was called: "What travelling preachers are elected Deacons?" Answer: Wm. H. Brown and James H. Buffaloe.

Wm. E. Nicholson was discontinued at his own request.

Question 2, "who remain on trial?" was raised, and the following were called severally, submitted annual reports, and having passed the usual examination of character, and the required course of study, were advanced to the class of the second year:

C. M. Lance, S. F. Nicks, Jno. W. Hoyle, Wm. R. Royall, N. A. Royall, D. A Futrell, Chas. A. Jones, Geo. B. Webster, Robert E. Hunt, Louis E. Sawyer.

The following were continued in the class of the first year: Wm. O. Davis, Robert E. Porter, James E. Saunders.

Conference adjourned at 1.10 p. m.

THIRD DAY'S SESSION.

Conference was called to order by Bishop Candler, who requested Rev. J. E. Underwood to lead in the morning devotional exercises.

The minutes of yesterday's session were read by the Secretary, and found correctly recorded.

Call of question 5, "Who are readmitted?" was taken up, and the roll of districts showed there were no applicants for readmission.

In answer to question 7, "Who are the Deacons of one year?" J. M. Culbreth, E. M. Snipes, Wm. P. Constable, Wm. Towe, N. C. Yearby, and Wm. A. Piland submitted annual reports, and were advanced to the fourth year.

Wm. H. Brown and Wm. A. Jenkins were continued in the class of the third year.

Rev. E. A. Yates, D. D., chairman of the special committee on divorce laws, submitted the following report, which was adopted:

Dear Fathers and Brethren: The committee appointed by you to take into consideration the evils of the present divorce laws of our State, beg leave to report the following:

Your committee has considered a paper addressed to this body, and referred by you to your committee, from the Protestant Episcopal Convention of North Carolina, upon the subject of divorce. And we beg to assure our brethren that we are now, and ever have been, opposed to the unscriptural laws now upon the statute books of our State upon the subjects of divorce; and we deplore the evils—dreadful and cumulative—which are resultant from these lax laws.

The M. E. Church, South, in North Carolina, from the time of its organization down to the present time, has given forth no uncertain sound, nor manifested any lax principles in action upon the subject of divorce—holding it to be a deadly sin to divorce a wife or husband and to marry another—except for the one and only scriptural cause.

Your committee have also considered the fact that other denominations of Christians in the State have recently taken action looking to the memorializing of the Legislature of the State to amend the divorce laws, by repealing all laws and parts of laws which permit the grant of a divorce for any cause whatsoever other than the one scriptural cause. Moral law is a thing to be discovered and not manufactured. It has God for its author, because it is eternal truth. It is the duty of the law-maker therefore to learn what God's will is concerning any matter before it is enacted into law. His word reveals His will through His Son Jesus Christ; and He has made it too plain for doubt that the State has no right to divorce husband and wife for any cause other than the one mentioned by Christ Himself.

To even mention all the evils resulting from loose divorce laws would consume more space and time than is necessary. That which stands in the forefront, is, that divorce of husband and wife breaks up and destroys the Christian home. The Christian home is earth's only vestibule to heaven. It is the best model of government. It presents the best theory of human obedience and the best school of the law. It gives us the best glimpse of the philosophy of the atonement, and is the cor-

(Continued on Page 8.)

Seeking the Manager.

BY HELEN STRONG THOMPSON.

He sat alone upon the veranda of a pleasant Southern home slowly counting and recounting a basin of beans. Tall, misshapen, "half-witted booby," he was called, the butt of the village boys, unloved, ill-treated, rebuffed by all, taught by none, this thirty-years'-old boy; yet his one absorbing passion was love of a little child.

A click of the wicket-gate, and a child of five summers, with large, solemn dark eyes and sunny hair, bounded up the steps singing in childish treble—

"Hark, the herald angels sing."

The child-man listened eagerly, his face beaming, as he fondly stroked the boy's hair.

"What's coming, little 'un?"

"Jeems, I have something nice to tell you," the child gravely enunciated. "This is Christmas Eve. You and I must go and find Jesus. He is born to-night in a manger. I know the place, because the star will show the way, and the shepherds down on the plains will leave their sheep and go with us."

"Did the angel tell you?" asked the man anxiously.

"Yes, when I was sleeping. He often comes to tell me things. We must take a present to Jesus. Grandpa gave me a gold piece. I will take that, because it must be gold, and mammy will give me cinnamon; and you have myrrh in the garden. These will smell sweet when burned for incense. That is what the wise men had, and we must have it, too."

"Yes, we must do it, too," echoed the child-man.

"Now you must take a nap, Jeems, and so will I. When the stars are shining I will tap on your window, and you must come out. Then we will find Jesus."

"You reckon we can find the way?"

"The star will show the way," replied the child with lustrous eyes. "It is sure to be there."

* * * * * * *

In the warm Southern sky the moon had not yet risen, but the stars, one by one, a countless host, made cheer and brightness, and little Philip, absorbed in his thoughts of Bethlehem's story, called and tapped at Jeems' window without a fear. It was soon raised, and the tall, uncouth figure stepped out.

"Have you the myrrh, Jeems?"

"Yes, the myrrh."

"Do you see the star, how bright it is, Jeems?" pointing to Venus. "Now we will follow that star as soon as we get to the plain. It's the right road, I'm sure it is."

The child was greatly excited and trembled visibly, while he gripped his treasure close, the frankincense and gold.

Around the big hill, through the quiet village, then clearing the stile, they soon came into the open country and walked rapidly toward the star. The stillness of the atmosphere lent its aid to a tender awe enveloping both, and they walked in silence over the soft turf. Suddenly the boy stopped.

"Hark!" said he, "the stars are talking."

"What do they speak, Philip?"

"I cannot tell yet. I'm tired, and it seems far. I don't seem to see the star now."

"It's there, over the house yonder,—don't you see, little one? And that's where David lives."

"What David?"

"Why, little David. His father is Mr. Judah."

"Then it's the very place, Jeems. Don't you know, the story says it was the house of David, son of Judah?" said the boy. "But it's growing lighter, Jeems. I can see the star." The child leaned wearily against his companion.

Suddenly, away off to the north, streaks of light darted from the horizon, rose-colored and illumined. Then light deepened, soft and white. Things in shadow came out into distinctness. The whole field was illumined. Voices in the distance of those returning from the village church were clearly chanting:

"Fear not, for behold I bring you good tidings of great joy."

With ecstacy, Philip whispered:

"It is the angels! Hark!"

"For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord," sang the chorus of happy voices in the far moors.

"And ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger."

Still the shooting of colored lights, dim forms in the distance, and many voices singing joyfully:

"Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will to men."

"That is Gabriel!" said Philip confidently.

"What did he say?" asked Jeems.

"Jesus is born. He said we would find Him in a manger. But where are the shepherds? They must have gone before. That's the house, for the angel sang it."

The tired child stumbled and fell in his excitement, but Jeems lifted him up to his shoulder, and thus, gaily laughing, they hurried on.

* * * * * * *

Putting down his burden at the door of an humble log-cabin, they both knocked for admittance. The door was quickly opened by a kindly-faced man, who had but now left the plains where he had folded his sheep for the night. The child-man rushed in and dropped to a seat, but the boy pressed forward to the middle of the room, his face shining with hidden fire. Placing his hand on the treasure-gift, he looked up eagerly with parted lips from which no sound came.

"What do you want, my little man?" asked the man, perplexed.

A motherly woman arose from the shadowy corner of the fire-place. As Philip drew near into the fire-light, his face grew large and more luminous. Stepping fearlessly to her side, he asked:

"Is this the house of David?"

"Yes, David lives here, honey?"

"The son of Judah?"

"That's my name, boy."

"Then the angel said Jesus was born here, and that we would find Him in a manger. The star showed us the way," said the child, trembling. "Here are our presents," beginning eagerly to open his basket.

The woman dropped on her knees beside Philip, folding her arms about him.

"You blessed infant! Where have you come from?" she asked.

"Show us where you have laid Him," said the boy, gently pushing the woman from him. Sobbing, she made no answer.

"You don't mean he isn't here?" crying out sharply, the tender mouth quivering.

"Dear boy, I wish he were, I wish he were! There was a babe here, but he went away," moaned the woman.

"Hush!" said the shepherd gently, stooping to take the child's hand.

"Who told you this story of Jesus?"

"Grandpa, the book and the angels."

"Well, son, I am a shepherd, warming and resting by this fire. I am soon going where Jesus is, and you shall go with me."

"Jeems must go too; he loves Jesus and he heard Gabriel sing the song."

"Yes, Jeems shall go too, but first let me tell you both a story. Sit near the fire and rest, while you listen; and wife, bring hot milk for these waiting lambs."

Obediently, the child sat down, fastening his expectant gaze upon the man, as in gentle, simple guise he repeated the story of nineteen hundred years agone. Each listen with pensive air to these tidings. Gradually a new light lit the pale face of the child-man. Once or twice he asked a question which would have amazed those who knew him as the idiot. At last he rose and straightened himself to his full height. In confused sense he was himself, stupid, misshapen, grotesque, but another had been laughed at, spit upon, even Jesus, his Saviour, his brother! Jeems felt at home with him. No one else ever had loved him, save little Philip. He hardly dared to speak to any one. But Jesus, this Saviour—now he might tell Him all, for He died a cruel death for him yesterday! Christ was indeed born for him.

But Philip was fast succumbing to the chill of disappointment and exhaustion. His breast was heaving with sobs. The kind shepherd had said that Jesus had gone into heaven, yet with a child's persistency, he clung to the happy vision of his imagination.

"He will come, Jeems, because the angel tells the truth. It is not too late yet. See! it isn't morning," he said, as he turned once more to the shepherd, gazing at him through his tears.

Something in his unshaken faith pierced the man's heart. An inspired thought came to him. He took the child determinedly in his arms.

"Come!" he said. "The Lord of heaven has told us that in every little naked, starving child we may touch the hand of Jesus to-night, and that what we give them, he will take as our gift to Him."

"Do you hear that, Jeems? We shall find Jesus to-night," exultingly.

"Yes, laddie, I have found him already right here in this poor heart," answered the child-man.

Phili looked at him wonderfully, and whispered to the shepherd:

"He's all right now, isn't he?"

The man nodded. There was silence in the room, save for the woman's sobs, and as the man walked to the door with his precious burden, she wrapped the child in a warm camlet cloak.

The moon had set, and the night had fallen dark and chill, as the shepherd strode with long strides across the field to the door of a lonely, wretched hut. As they stepped in, the wail of a sick child greeted them, lying on a straw in a trough, wrapped in rags. A young mother crouched on the dirt floor almost naked, her form gaunt with starvation and misery, her eyes heavy with bitterness.

"Have you any food?" asked the shepherd.

"Nothing, and baby is starving. I can't make food!" cried the mother.

"Laddie," said the man, "if you leave your gifts here, Jesus takes them as given to Him because of the love."

"It's the same love, is it?" The voice quavered, yet had a brave ring.

"The very same."

"Then here it is."

Setting down the basket, the child raised his little arms as if reaching out to some Unseen Presence, kissed his hand with a radiant smile, and said:

"Here is the gold, frankincense, and myrrh, Jesus, and the love is all here waiting."

* * * * * * *

"Has anything ever equaled the gift of this child?" said the shepherd, as he laid the sleeping boy in his astonished father's arms in the gray of the dawning. "Surely the morning stars have a new song now."

"Then sang at his birth," said the father, exultingly, as he listened to the thrilling story of the child's faith. "Of such is the kingdom of heaven, and their angels do continually behold the face of our Father."—S. S. Times.

The Ten-Thousand-Dollar Man.

Two prominent business men met the other day, and a brief conversation took place which contained, in essence, a whole volume of advice to young men. "I am looking," one of them said, "for a man to whom I can pay a salary of more than ten thousand dollars. I know plenty of ten-thousand-dollar men, but I want one who will be worth more than that. Do you know of anyone?"

"No," the second replied, promptly: "I do not. I only wish that I did."

That was all. It was the experience, and evidently from their tones the constant experience, of two men whose work offered exceptional opportunities. Here was no question of a man fighting his way to promotion—the position was seeking the man; and the man worthy the trust and responsibility could not be found. It was simply another illustration of the old proverb, "There is always room at the top."

"No room"—it is true enough frequently. There is no room for lazy or half-hearted workers; no room for the one who thinks little things "don't count," nor for the one who is bored by his duties and anxious to steal every possible minute from them. But for the alert, honest, clean young man, who makes his employer's interest his own, and puts into his work not only the time stipulated in his agreement, but his whole character—for such a man doors will always open. There is no trade or profession in the world that has not need of him.—Forward.

The Sorrowing Mother.

Last night I dreamed he came to me;
I held him close and wept and said:
"My little child, where have you been?
I was afraid that you were dead."
Then I awoke. It almost seemed
As though my arms could feel him yet.
I had been sobbing in my sleep;
My tears had made the pillow wet.

Sometimes I wake at night to find
That I am out of bed,
As though I heard him calling me;
Then with a pang comes memory:
How can we reach the dead?

I cannot think of him at all
As the bright angel he must be,
But only as my little child
Who may be needing me.

Do not make him grow too wise,
Angels—ye who know;
I am dull and slow to learn,
Toiling here below.

Do not fill his heart too full
With your heavenly joy,
Lest the mother's place be lost
With her little boy.

One night when I was half awake,
I thought he called me, clear and sweet,
And then I heard across the floor
The patter of his little feet.

Last night the air was mild;
The moon was clear, though late,
And somehow then it did not seem
So very hard to wait.
There seemed so much to learn,
So much for me to do,
Before my lessons here were done
And I was ready too.

One night when I had wept till I could weep
No more, I dreamed he came to me in sleep;
He was not sick nor sad, as he had seemed
On almost every night when I had dreamed;
But full of life and flushed with health, and glad.
He took my hand and said: "What makes you sad?"

It has been raining all the afternoon.
These mild, gray days should bring the blossoms soon.
I like these gentle rains, they seem so kind,
Like tears that leave no bitterness behind.

Those may dare to doubt who have
Their loved ones here below:
For me, I do not now believe,
I do not hope—I know.
—Katherine Pyle, in Harper's Bazaar.

What a good Master do we serve that allows us time for sleep and furnishes us with conveniences for it and makes it refreshing and reviving to us! By this it appears that the Lord is for the body, and it is a good reason why we should present our bodies to Him as living sacrifices and glorify Him with them.—Matthew Henry.

Music is the only sensual qualification which mankind may indulge in to excess without injury to their moral or religious feelings.—Addison.

Our Boys and Girls

"God Careth for You."

Little children, all the day,
In your study, in your play,
Storms or sunshine, all the way
"He careth for you!"

When among the pillows white,
Sweetly sleeping till the light,
Through the dangers of the night,
"He careth for you!"

If before your eyes shall wake
Leave of earth your soul shall take,
Still, dear one, for Jesus' sake,
"He careth for you!"
—Linnie Hawley Drake.

A Pair of Shoes.

One summer day a dozen years ago a twelve-year-old boy was seated behind a small desk in the anteroom of a New York morning newspaper office. He was one of the regular force of office boys. One of these had the day before gone away, a fact which had in some mysterious way been noised abroad, and during the day a score of other boys had been in to apply for the place. None of them had been engaged.

Shortly before six o'clock another boy appeared, about the age of the one who sat in the room. "I heard you want to get another office boy," said the new-comer.

The boy in the chair looked the other over carefully without replying. The applicant was a clean, manly-looking little fellow, with frank, blue eyes. The office boy went into the inner room, and then the assistant editor appeared. "What's your name?" he asked briskly.

"Walter Simmons, sir," answered the boy.

The man rapidly questioned him further and looked at a his letters of recommendation. In a moment the boy was engaged.

"You'll go on the night force," said the editor. "Begin to-night at six o'clock—you'll get off somewhere around two. There'll be a couple of the old boys here to tell you what to do."

"Yes, sir," answered the boy, moving toward the door.

As he stepped from behind the desk the editor noticed that he was barefooted. Here, where are your shoes?" said the man. "You'll have to hurry if you've got to go home after them." The boy looked down and hesitated. Then he glanced up at the man and said: "I haven't any shoes, sir."

"No shoes? Well we can't have a bare-footed office boy. Can't you get some?"

Again the boy hesitated. "I'll try my best, sir," he said, with a slight tremor in his voice.

"All right. Turn up here at six with shoes one, and the place is yours; otherwise we'll have to get some one else," and the editor hurried away.

The boy walked slowly out to the head of the stairs. He paused here, and gazed wistfully back into the ante-room. Then, catching the eye of the boy inside, he turned and ran down the steps.

"Hi, there! Hold on, kid!" came a voice from the head of the stairs. He turned on the first landing and saw the other boy looking down at him.

"What's the reason you ain't got any shoes?" asked the office boy.

"All worn out and thrown away. I've been out of work a month, and my mother's sick.

"Got any stockings?"

"Yes; one pair," and he gazed down at his bare legs below his short trousers.

"Well, you must be about my size. I have a pair of shoes I might lend to you for a week, till you draw your pay. What's ye say to that?"

"You wouldn't ask if you knew how much I want the place."

"Well, you skip home and get the stockings. Come right back and wait there where you are. You'll have to hustle if you get back by six."

Walter certainly did "hustle;" he was back several minutes before six, and stood panting on the landing, half afraid that the other would not keep his word. The next moment his new-found friend looked down at him.

"Sit right down there," said the office boy. "Put on the stockings, and I'll be along at six."

Walter did as he was told, and as everybody went up and down by the elvators, he was not disturbed. In a few minutes the office boy came, sat down beside him, and began taking off his shoes. "This is the only pair I've got," he explained. "Nothing very stylish about them; but if they'll do on my feet, they'll do on yours. They cost a dollar, anyhow, and you want to be careful of them—no skating on the floor or kicking the desk legs. Try that one."

"That fits all right," answered Walter.

"Well, get 'em both on quick. My name is Tom Bennett, and I live at 989 Roosevelt Street. There's a bakery in the basement that's open all night. The boss knows me. When you get off at two, you go round there and leave the shoes with him. I'll tell him you're coming. See that you don't fail, 'cause if you do I'll be out of a job myself to-morrow. I got your name and your address from Mr. Hunt; and if the shoes ain't at the bake shop in the morning, I'll be looking for you." He stuffed his own stockings into his pocket and went down the stairs in his bare feet. The other went up and began his duties.

For a week this arrangement was kept up. Tom found his shoes each morning at the baker's and each evening the exchange was made on the landing. At the end of this time Walter was able to get himself a pair, and the partnership in footgear came to an end. But the friendship so oddly begun has never ended, and both boys proved to be capable of rising to better things. Tom is now in the business office and Walter is a reporter.—Youth's Companion.

A Bright Little Dog.

There are imitations everywhere, but the dog whose doings are recorded in Popular Science News was possibly one of the best canine mimics on record. His name was Scott and he was a puppy newly introduced into a certain family circle. In a neighboring house lived Rab, a dog that had grown to an age of dignity and responsibility.

At first the older dog ignored the puppy, which in appearance was almost an exact picture of himself. Then the two became firm friends. Scott was an attendant on Rab's every movement. They ate together, slept together and hunted together.

They were also as one in barking at passing teams. Now barking at teams was forbidden and brought many whippings, but the temptation was strong and the master and mistress were not always present. The sight of the hose-cart whirling past, one day, with rattle and clatter, was a challenge no high-spirited dog could resist. It gave Rab an opportunity to show his young friend how close to a flying hose-cart it is possible to run with impunity. Alas, for his pride! He ran an inch too near, or the cart swerved slightly, and the wheel passed over one of Rab's paws. Although the injury was scientifically treated, Rab was ever after forced to go on three legs and hold the injured paw suspended.

Scott noticed Rab's changed method of locomotion and, like the thorough courtier he was, immediately adopted the new gait. He was so clever in his imitation that it was difficult to tell which dog went lame from necessity and which limped because he thought it was desirable and graceful. Close observation, however, showed that Scott's shapely paw lacked the helpless hang of the older dog's wounded member and that the saucy cock of his ears was at variance with the mournful hang of Rab's.

Scott was a consistent cheat, always holding up the same paw that Rab did and never forgetting his voluntary lameness except on occasions of great excitement, when he was in too great a hurry, having four legs, to confine himself to the use of three.—Selected.

Flour, Butter and Eggs

Do not be deluded by the deceptive claim of economy for the cheap baking powders. Instead of saving, their use results in a wastefulness of the most serious kind.

First, there is the loss of an occasional baking. Flour, butter and eggs cost too much to risk spoiling them with an inferior baking powder. Royal's work is uniformly perfect, and materials are never wasted where it is used.

In the second place, the adulterants which are used to cheapen the cost of many baking powders have a harmful effect upon the health. No prudent person will risk an attack of indigestion to save a few cents on baking powder. Royal Baking Powder is absolutely pure and wholesome, actually adding anti-dyspeptic qualities to the food.

Thus the use of the Royal is doubly economical.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

The Boy Who Dares.

When I was a boy in my native town there was a boy in the same town who would "never take a dare," and who was always daring to do all sorts of fool-hardy things on his own account. I remember that he used to dare to stand on the railroad track until the engine was almost upon him, and he would dare to climb away out on the branches of the tallest trees. He would dare to walk on the tops of high walls of unfinished buildings. He would dare to do even sillier things than those I have mentioned, for I remember that once when the other boys dared him to do it, he walked the entire length of the main street of the town wearing an enormously large hoop-skirt, while he had a tin pan on his head for a hat.

Of course a boy like this would dare to do things that were not only silly, but he would dare to do things that were wrong and that were a source of annoyance and trouble to others. One day he dared bring a dead mouse to school and throw it over on the girls' side of the room during the session of the school. Of course there was a wild scramble for the tops of their seats on the part of the girls, who did not know that the mouse was dead. This threw the school into an uproar and the boy who threw the mouse dared to tell a lie and declare that some one else threw it. The proof against him was overwhelming and he received the whipping he deserved.

I have never known one of these "never-take-a-dare" boys to do anything really brave and heroic. Standing on a railroad track until the train is almost upon one is not the act of a brave nor of a sensible boy. It is not proof of either physical or moral courage. The man or the boy who rushes in front of an advancing train to save a child from death is a real hero, because the deed is inspired by a desire to save another at the risk of one's own life; but to deliberately place one's life in jeopardy merely to "take up a dare" is as silly a deed as a boy can perform.

The boy who dares to do a thing of this kind will some time dare to smoke and drink, and he is quite sure to be a boy who has such a full confidence in his ability to take care of himself that he will go where he pleases and do as he pleases with impunity. It is doing the boy who dares to do anything and everything no injustice to say that he is a fool, but unfortunately for him he belongs to the class of fools of whom it has been written, that "the follies of the fool are known to the world, but are hidden from himself."

The boy who rushes into danger merely to "show off," or because he will not "take a dare," is not nearly so wise or brave as the boy who, seeing danger, does not overlook nor rush into it unless it is necessary to do so.—American Boy.

A STRONG ENDORSEMENT.

Dr. C. L. S. Cawthon, Andalusia, Ala., declares "Tetterine is superior to any remedy known to me for eczema and stubborn skin diseases." Many other physicians unite in this testimony. It has accomplished wonders in their practice. It is amazing that anyone would suffer with itching, burning skin diseases when relief might be had infallibly from the use of a 50 cent box of Tetterine.

Your druggist or by mail from the manufacturer. J. T. Shuptrine. Savannah, Ga.

A commanding love has made a homely face beautiful with aspiration and self-sacrifice. What may we not expect when the Spirit of God, without measure, breaks through a physical nature moulded to the perfection of grace and harmony?—S. S. Helker.

Womans Foreign Missionary Society

Please send all communications for this Department to Mrs. B. F. Dixon, Raleigh, N. C.

Officers of the W. F. M. S. of the N. C. Conference, June, 1903-'04.

President—Mrs. Lucy A. Cunninggim, Greensboro, N. C
Vice-President—Mrs. R. A. Willis, Littleton, N. C.
Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. F. D. Swindell, Goldsboro, N. C.
Recording Secretary—Miss Blanche Fentress, Wilmington, N. C.
Treasurer—Mrs. B. B. Adams, Four Oaks, N. C.
Superintendent and Treasurer Juvenile Work—Mrs. L. M. Hendren, New Berne, N. C.

Mrs. B. B. Adams, the talented Treasurer of our Conference Society, is at the Wilson Sanatorium; but we know her friends—their name is legion—will rejoice to know she is now convalescent after weeks of illness.

This is the message she sends to the auxiliary treasurers: "Please say to the treasurers not to get weary in waiting for me to send their receipts—their reports are being piled up at Four Oaks, and I hope to go home in a few weeks and attend to them.

All her friends, especially her sisters and co-workers in the missionary cause, are glad to know that Mrs. F. D. Swindell, our efficient Corresponding Secretary of the Conference Society, is in the city, a guest of Mrs. R. F. Bumpas.

We hope to have "the light of her countenance," as well as her wise counsel, at our next missionary meeting.

The following clipping will be good news to those who are interested in the prosperity of the foreign mission work:

The late millionaire philanthropist of St. Louis, Richard M. Scroggs, in his will just filed, makes specific bequests of $481,000. Large amounts are left to the Southern Methodist Church for foreign missions.

To W. R. Lambuth, Secretary of the Board of Missions of Nashville, $5,000 are left for a girls' school in Hiroshima, Japan; Bishop E. R. Hendricks will get $5,000 for missions; and the same sums are left to Bishop E. Hoss, Bishop Candler of Atlanta, Bishops Galloway and Wilson for the same purpose.

Here is something interesting from the Weldon F. M. Society:

Dear Mrs. Dixon:—We have just closed our Week of Prayer services, which were both pleasant and profitable.

Meetings were held on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons at the homes of some of the members, and conducted by different ladies.

The program as given in the Advocate was followed up till Thanksgiving night, when a public Thanksgiving service was held at the church. This consisted of "Praise God from whom all blessings flow;" the 100th Psalm as a Scripture lesson was read by the President, Mrs. Ovid Pierce, and prayer by the pastor; a recitation by 24 little boys and girls; a historical sketch of the Society and an excellent paper on Thanksgiving were read.

These were interspersed with good music by the choir, and followed by a short talk by the pastor, Brother Rose.

Our Society was organized by Mrs. L. H. Cunninggim, March 18, 1889, with forty members. We now have thirty-four members, but only twelve of these are of those who first joined. One of these is Mrs. Mary E. Morecock, who is ninety-three years old, and has been a member since the Society was first organized.

We have raised, since organization, $1,000; have made five life members, and hope to have a good report at our next Annual Meeting.

Our offering for this Week of Prayer is about $20.

We also have a Bright Jewel Band which was organized by Rev. W. L. Cuninggim, during his pastorate here. They now number fifty, and have raised $660 since organization.

Yours sincerely,
SECRETARY.

The beloved Secretary of the Warrenton District, Mrs. K. P. Black, reports a hopeful outlook for the year's work in her District.

Her health has not been good, and she, no doubt, has been hindered in her accustomed attention to the work, but she writes cheerfully:

"I think the work on the entire District is moving on slowly but surely toward a successful closing of our year's work.

I feel sure the women and children of the Warrenton District are going to meet their obligations, and send a good report to Louisbury next spring.

The most of the Pledge has been arranged for, and I hope we will over pay the assessment.

The Warrenton Bright Jewels are hard at work, and under the leadership of Mrs. Chambliss and Miss Virginia Graham, they promise a fine report.

My own faithful auxiliaries—Adult, Young Woman's and Bright Jewels—of Littleton, are doing their part well. I look for nothing but success from the Littleton College workers. Everything pertaining to the church, and the advancement of Christ's kingdom is safe in the hands of that Institution."

Mrs. Black promises us a definite report of her work next quarter.

We are expecting something from the Secretaries of the Washington, New Bern and Fayetteville Districts. We feel sure they will not disappoint us.

Which is Worse.

A little girl came to her mother with the question: "Which is worse—to tell a lie or to steal?"

The mother, taken by surprise, replied that they were both so bad that she could not say which was the worse.

"Well," said the little one, "I've been thinking a good deal about it, and I think it is worse to lie than to steal. If you steal a thing, you can take it back, unless you've eaten it; and if you've eaten it, you can pay for it. But"—and there was a look of awe in the child's face—"a lie is forever."—Selected.

We can only give what we have. Happiness, grief, gayety, sadness, are by nature contagious. Bring your health and your strength to the weak and sickly, and so you will be of use to them. Give them not your weakness, but your energy—so you will revive and lift them up. Life alone can rekindle life.—Amiel.

REVOLUTION IMMINENT.

A sure sign of approaching revolt and serious trouble in your system is nervousness, sleeplessness, or stomach upsets. Electric Bitters will quickly dismember the troublesome causes. It never fails to tone the stomach, regulate the Kidneys and Bowels, stimulate the Liver, and clarify the blood. Run down systems benefit particularly and all the usual attending aches vanish under its searching and thorough effectiveness. Electric Bitters is only 50c., and that is returned if it don't give perfect satisfaction. Guaranteed by druggists.

Woman's Home Mission Society

Please send all communications for this Department to Mrs. R. O. BURTON, Raleigh, N. C.

Officers of W. H. M. S. of the N. C. Conference.

President—Mrs. J. E. Underwood, Elizabeth City.
First Vice-President—Mrs. V. Royster, Raleigh.
Second Vice-President—Mrs. K. P. Black, Littleton.
Third Vice-President—Mrs. J. A. Spiers, Selma.
Recording Secretary—Mrs. C. P. Jerome, West Durham.
Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. S. H. Scott, New Bern.
Treasurer—Mrs. E. L. Prince, Wilmington.
Superintendent of Supplies—Mrs. Ivan Proctor, Raleigh.
Superintendent of Literature and Press Work—Mrs. R. O. Burton.

A Beautiful Message from Our Beloved President.

I have just received from our General Secretary, Mrs. R. W. MacDonell, this letter which I feel will be gladly welcomed, although a call to greater effort, and greater self-denial. Let us heed it and work with new determination and joyful gratitude this fourth and last quarter of our fiscal year.

We must rally to our Board, and see that they are enabled to meet every obligation. May every auxiliary send in by next March this happy report for the year: "Paid in full all dues, Conference expense fund. The extra dollar per member,"—and, if possible, add "and more besides"!

Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 24, 1904.

Dear Sisters:—On this glad Thanksgiving Day our hearts turn to you, and we would send a message of love and cheer. We are sure you follow the work of the Woman's Home Mission Society with earnest prayer and holy zeal. This work appeals to heaven-born instincts and brings out all that is noblest in our women. For this reason, if there were no others, we would rejoice to see a larger number of our Methodist women engaged in it. But the salvation of our own nation and the evangelization of those nations which know not the Christ make it imperative that our forces increase. Will you not therefore make an effort to double your numbers before the close of the fiscal year, February 28th? If each auxiliary make such an effort, we can do valiant things for God and country, for an increased membership means a larger working force, more united prayer, and an enlarged treasury. These are the tools we must use, for all progress depends upon the working force, who dare not go unbacked by an earnest, praying band, and there must be money to meet necessary expenses.

Last April the Board appropriated $35,500 as absolutely necessary for the maintenance of the work this year. Our present monthly pay roll calls for $2,646.11, which does not include our parsonage grants, printing bills, insurance, repairs and buildings. You know the law of the Society, given us by the General Conference, requires that half of the membership dues must be held subject to each Conference's demands for parsonages. Our present membership is 37,933, and granting that each pays her dues in full, we can count on but $18,966 with which to meet the appropriation.

You will therefore see that we must have recourse to some mode besides dues for raising the necessary money. The Board therefore asks that each auxiliary raise a sum corresponding to its membership over and above dues. If there are one hundred members in your auxiliary, let an extra $100 be forwarded for the general work; and if the membership be less, the same rule may work. This does not restrict or force any individual to the giving of a dollar extra. It simply makes clear the sum necessary from each auxiliary. May we not urge that this be done before the last of February?

We trust that while the burden of our connectional work should press hard upon your hearts, that you are not unmindful of the local interests of your church. Our services must be available for the sick and dying, the stranger in our midst, and our pastors must find us live helpers in the spiritual affairs of the church. To this end we pray that you may realize that he has "chosen you and ordained you, that ye should go and bring forth fruit."—(John xv. 16.)

Yours in Christian service,
MISS BELLE H. BENNETT,
President.
MRS. R. W. MacDONELL,
General Secretary.

A FRIGHTENED HORSE.

Running like mad down the street dumping the occupants, or a hundred other accidents, are every day occurrences. It behooves everybody to have a reliable Salve handy, and there's none as good as Bucklen's Arnica Salve. Burns, Cuts, Sores, Eczema and Piles, disappear quickly under its soothing effect. 25c, at all druggists.

Nervous Dyspepsia can be cured if one will try the Right Thing.

I was down with Nervous Dyspepsia for eight years. When I was taken I weighed 185 pounds, and it reduced me to 118. I could not touch solid food. I believe if I had taken solid food it would have killed me, and I had to live on sweets and the lightest kind of diet.

I had severe nervous spells nearly every day and would have doctors to treat me, but they did not do me one particle of good, not even to relieve me.

I was so weak that for three months I was not able to walk across the room. I had rather die than to suffer it over again, and I felt that I was in a worse condition than anyone who ever lived.

Mrs. Joe Person and my wife persuaded me to use Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy.

I bought a dozen bottles and it was three months before I felt any relief at all. Then I commenced to improve right along.

I took 35 bottles and it cured me.

It has been two years since I was cured, and I have never had a touch of the trouble since, and can eat anything under the sun, and as much of it as I want.

If anyone will stick to Mrs. Person's Remedy long enough to build up the system, I know it will cure the most aggravated case of dyspepsia or nervousness that can be found.

B. M. MEDLIN.
Creedmore, Granville Co., N. C., R. F. D. No. 1, Aug. 1, 1904.

Ganger Hospital.

We want every man and woman in the United States to know what we are doing.—We are curing Cancers, Tumors and Chronic Sores without the use of knife and are endorsed by the Senate and Legislature of Virginia. If you are seeking a cure come here and you will get it.

The Kellam Cancer Hospital,
Richmond, Va.

Positions GUARANTEED BY A $5,000 BANK DEPOSIT
Railroad Fare Paid. 500 FREE Courses Offered.
Bardstat Coll. Write O[illegible]

DON'T

give your child old greasy Castor Oil. Give CAS-TO-RINE. Tastes as good as maple syrup. Fifteen cents per bottle at all dealers.

Raleigh Christian Advocate.

ORGAN OF THE

North Carolina Conference, M. E. Church, South.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY AT No. 108 W. MARTIN STREET.

THOMAS N. IVEY, - - - - - - - Editor.

Subscription Rates.—One year, $1.50; six months, 75 cents. Preachers of the North Carolina Conference who act as agents receive the paper free of charge. All other preachers, and widows of preachers, $1.00 a year.

Business.—Watch the label. It shows the date up to which the subscription has been paid. Change in label serves as a receipt. Regular receipt will be sent when requested. When the address is ordered changed, both old and new address must be given. Address all letters, and make all checks and money orders payable, to the Raleigh Advocate Co.

Manuscripts.—All matter for publication to be returned to the writer must be accompanied by proper postage. Matter for the Editor and matter for the printer must not be on the same sheet. Obituaries must not contain over 150 words, nor contain poetry. One cent a word will be charged for all obituary matter over 150 words.

Advertising.—The RALEIGH CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE is a fine advertising medium. Rates will be promptly furnished on application.

THE NORTH CAROLINA CONFERENCE.

(Continued from Page 4.)

ner stone of Christian civilization. Let not man dare to lay his violent hand upon this holy arrangement of heaven, by tearing apart what God has joined together. Therefore.

1. Resolved, That with pleasure this Conference reiterates its oft-published convictions upon this subject, and joins heartily with our sister denominations in bringing about the results so devoutly to be wished.

2. Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed to act in union with others, or separately, in bringing this matter to the attention of the Legislature.

3. Resolved, That all our ministers set their faces like a flint against the remarriage of divorced persons.

(Signed) E. A. Yates, R. F. Bumpas, L. L. Smith, committee.

Bishop Candler called question 10: "What travelling preachers are elected elders?" and Geo. R. Rood, Chas. L. Read and James W. Bradley, passed the usual examination of character, made their annual reports, and were elected to elders orders.

Wm. F. Jones was continued in the class of the fourth year.

In answer to question 10, the following local preachers were elected to deacon's orders: Samuel F. Nicks, Wm. Thomas Usry, Valerius A. Royall, Robert D. Daniel, Wm. B. Humble, Edwin W. Read.

Andrew W. Price, of Elizabeth City, a local preacher, was elected to elders orders under call of question 14.

The orders of Rev. A. R. Morgan, an elder of the M. E. Church were, by vote of the Conference, recognized.

At 11 o'clock, William Henry Brown, and James H. Buffaloe were admitted into full connection, the Bishop propounding to each the usual questions which being answered satisfactorily, he solemnly charged them to make full proof of their ministry saying among other wise things:

"These brethren have come to-day to be received into full connection in our church. We can't emphasize too much the first thing to be considered—namely, faith in Christ. Along with this goes the certainty as to their call to the ministry and unfeigned faith in the truth of the Scriptures. This modern idea that is being disseminated which professes an unfeigned faith in Christ aside from faith in Scriptures.

"If you have not this unfeigned faith in truth of Scriptures you may be fit for some other profession in life; you may be fit to wear glasses before it is necessary, but you are not fit to preach the Gospel to common white folks.

"I say positively that the man who is rationalizing is without fruit; he is barren. What Jesus Christ taught and St. Paul taught will do us to hold to; hold to faith in God and your ministry will be in proportion to your faith in God—not in proportion to your faith in God—not in proportion to your faith in men, but in God.

"If you are a busy Methodist preacher you won't have time to run off after these new theories. And I am glad that a reaction has set in concerning these new theories. It has begun in Germany and Dr. Patton, Prof. Beecher and other scholars in this country have formed a society for the defence of the truth of the Scriptures. This reaction has begun, and it has not begun any too soon, and it will result in something.

"Keep out of debt. Be a gentleman in a seedy coat that is paid for rather than be a gentleman in a new coat and be in debt for it.

"Just here I want to say something to the laymen. I can't get you laymen up here, but I am not going to lecture these two brethren against going in debt and not say anything to you about the way you pay your preachers. In many instances the meagre salaries you pay your preachers are often in a large measure the cause of so many debts being charged against the ministry. You pay them a meagre salary; and then when they are gone and leave debts behind them you talk about them. If God has called you to this ministry, hold it in high esteem. I have a pity for any preacher who is always going around talking about what he left to become a preacher. No matter what a preacher leaves behind him, he gains infinitely more than he leaves.

"You have heard of the young preacher who was always talking about how much he had left—his all—to come into the ministry. An old shoemaker heard him, and he answered him thus: 'Yes, and I left three good 'awls in Great Britain when I came to America to preach the Gospel.'

"Be all-round preachers, my young brethren. Be preachers and be pastors. I know some preachers claim pastoral work is not agreeable to them, and that they have no taste for visiting. If you have no taste for it, acquire it. Some people have to acquire a taste for olives, and a man who can acquire a taste for olives, can acquire a taste for pastoral visiting.

"Be punctual in all your work and never keep any one waiting on you.

"If you are faithful and true, you need have nothing to fear. If you are faithful and true, you will come more than conquerors."

On motion, Rev. A. D. Betts, D. D., was requested to deliver, Saturday evening, the historical address he was prevented from making before the Historical Society Tuesday night.

Saturday, at 11 o'clock, was fixed as a special order hour to hear and discuss the report of Committee on Conference Orphanage.

Benj. E. Stanfield, a local preacher for four years, and at this session admitted into the traveling connection on trial, was elected to elders' orders.

Rev. J. D. Hammond, D. D., General Secretary of the Board of Education, and Rev. T. H. Law, D. D., representing the American Bible Society, were introduced to the Conference, and Dr. Hammond made a brief address urging greater liberality for educational interests, and made an appeal for the colored Methodist church recently burned in Georgia. A collection was taken for same amounting to $418.55.

Conference adjourned a few minutes past 1 o'clock, with benediction by Rev. J. D. Hammond, D. D.

FOURTH DAY'S SESSION.

Conference opened with morning worship, conducted by Rev. G. A. Oglesby. After the reading of yesterday's minutes by Secretary Cuninggim, which were found correct and approved, Bishop Candler announced the appointment of the following Committee on Divorce Laws: Rev. E. A. Yates, D. D., Rev. W. H. Moore, D. D., and ex-Gov. Thos. J. Jarvis.

The arrival of Messrs. Millard Mial and W. M. Hinton, who were lay delegates from the Raleigh and Elizabeth City Districts, respectively, was announced.

Rev. J. J. Tigert, D. D., of Nashville, Tenn., Book Editor, was introduced to the Conference, and made an encouraging report of his work.

On motion, Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, was fixed as the hour for holding memorial service of the five preachers who have died since the last Conference.

Rev. James Atkins, D. D., Sunday School Editor, addressed the Conference regarding Sunday-school literature, and reported an increasing circulation of the periodicals, and the Sunday-school work generally, in a flourishing condition.

Question 20 was resumed and the preachers on the Raleigh, Durham and Fayetteville Districts, made their annual reports, which showed gratifying progress in all lines of church work.

Rev. T. N. Ivey, D. D., presented and read his annual report, showing an enrollment of 1,563 new subscribers, and an increase in revenue from advertising patronage. Same was referred to proper committee.

At 11 o'clock, the report of the Committee on Conference Orphanage was read by Rev. J. H. McCracken, and discussed by Hon. Robt. N. Page, Chairman of the Board of Trustees, and others, and same was adopted unanimously.

Rev. H. M. Hamill, D. D., of Nashville; Rev. W. L. Grissom, of the Western North Carolina Conference; Rev. Mr. Dixon, of the Henderson M. P. Church; Rev. J. D. Larkin, of the Henderson Church, and Prof. J. A. Bivins, of Trinity Park School, were introduced to the Conference.

Conference adjourned at 1 o'clock, with benediction by Rev. James Atkins, D. D.

Saturday evening, at 7.30 o'clock, Rev. A. D. Betts, D. D., delivered an interesting speech, reminiscent in character, to a large audience. The anniversary meeting of the Boards of Mission, Education, Church Extension and Sunday-schools, held in the afternoons and evenings during the Conference, were well attended, and strong and inspiring addresses made by Bishop Candler, Dr. J. J. Tigert, Dr. H. M. Hamill, Dr. James Atkins, and others.

The weather, which was very pleasant up until Saturday, became very inclement on the morning of that day, and continued until the close of the session, but the attendance at the churches on Sunday, particularly at the Conference room, and at the M. P. Church, was very large.

The Bishop preached an able, clear and convincing sermon Sunday at 11 o'clock from Psalms 51:8-10, and also from passages in the prophecies of Nehemiah and Habakkuk bearing on the same line of thought.

The Bishop prefaced his sermon with remarks as to what he termed "cathedral music," which he said had no place in the Methodist Church. He announced hymn No. 458, and asked that no tune under forty years of age be used.

At the close of the Bishop's sermon, the following class of deacons were ordained:

Samuel F. Nicks, Wm. T. Usry, V. A. Royall, R. D. Daniel, Wm. B. Humble, and Edwin W. Read.

At night, in the Conference room, Rev. J. J. Tigert, D. D., discoursed, in an instructive manner, from 1st John 4:10-11, after which the following elders were ordained:

Geo. R. Rood, Joseph E. Holden, Charles L. Read, and James W. Bradley.

The memorial service in the Conference room was largely attended. Dr. Kilgo presided, and memoirs were read of the fallen brethren.

MONDAY MORNING.

Conference was called to order at 9.30 a. m. by Bishop Candler, who requested Rev. A. J. Parker to conduct the devotional exercises. The reading of the Journal showed minutes of previous day's session to have been correctly recorded. The Bishop resumed and finished call of Question 20, and on motion, Conference voted to hold an afternoon session, at which Dr. Kilgo presided. Reports from the various Boards and Committees were submitted, and after discussion, adopted. At 6 p. m., the Bishop announced the appointments.

General Notes

The Baptists of Virginia have set out to raise $250,000 in five years for their schools.

The work of the Church Extension Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church is indicated by the fact that, out of 28,000 church buildings in this country, the Society has helped build 13,944.

Bishop Brent, of Manila, is credited with this remark: "The Methodists raise the people out of the mud; the Baptists wash them; the Congregationalist iron them, and the Episcopalians starch them."

According to dispatches from our American Vice Consul General at Teheran, Persia, the murderers of Rev. B. W. Labaree, the martyred Presbyterian missionary attached to the Urumiah Station, have been arrested and executed.

Columbia University concluded the celebration of its one hundred and fiftieth anniversary by the conferring of thirty-three degrees upon as many alumni. Eleven memorial professorships were established and men fill vacancies.

A missionary of the Presbyterian Church (South) in China says that many of the Chinese Government and private schools now close on Sunday—not to keep the Sabbath holy, but because they see, as some of our people do not, man's need of a rest day.

The definite decision of Rev. Dr. John Watson (Ian Maclaren) to retire from Sefton Park Church, Liverpool, and not to accept any other pastorate, has called forth many expressions of regret. Dr. Watson will devote his time to literary work, it is said.

The Baptist World Congress has at last been fixed to meet in London, England, on July 10 to 17, 1905, both days inclusive. Such a gathering will be unique in the history of the denomination. The Rev. Dr. Alexander Maclaren, whose health has greatly improved during recent months, has consented to act as president of the Congress.

Mr. John R. Mott, a layman, is a member of the General Missionary Committee of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He is known everywhere as a leader of young people in colleges and universities. Zion's Herald speaks of him as a man who "knows things, is splendidly balanced, has no personal schemes, and is profoundly interested in bringing in the kingdom."

The November meeting of the Boston Methodist Social Union was a reception and banquet to the members of the General Missionary Committee, including the bishops, the missionaries, and visiting editors of church papers. About nine hundred people were present, and addresses were delivered by Bishops Thoburn, McDowell and McCabe, and Governor Bates.

A considerable agitation has been caused among the leaders of the Roman Catholic Church in this country by the withdrawal from the church of Mary Gwendolin Caldwell. This lady had given 300,000 to found a college of divinity in the Catholic University at Washington City, and one of the buildings had been named for her. She has become dissatisfied with the management of church affairs, hence her withdrawal.

By a decision of the United States Supreme Court in the case of the will of the late Daniel G. Fayerweather, a big New York leather merchant, $2,500,000 is to go to colleges. The beneficiary colleges are: Bowdoin, Dartmouth, Williams, Amherst, Wesleyan, Yale, Columbia, Union, Theological, Hamilton, Rochester, Cornell, Lafayette, Lincoln, Virginia, Hampton, Marietta, Adelbert, Wabash and Park.

Andrew S. Draper, LL. D., Superintendent of Public Instruction in New York, condemns foot-ball in strong terms. He says of it: "Foot-ball, as played now, is a sport which induces professionalism, encourages real battle rather than open manliness, is too expensive, and breeds loafing, gambling and drinking. The sport, he asserted, does not make for educated effectiveness and sound living, and should be purged of its attendant evils."

The American Missionary Association began work twenty years ago in the Southern mountains. It now has under its supervision in the South two theological seminaries, forty-seven normal and graded schools, 511 instructors, and 15,404 pupils. Under the same supervision are 140 ministers and missionaries, 11,526 church members, 18,800 Sunday-school scholars. The total amount raised for church purposes last year was $45,548.

Gypsy Smith was given an enthusiastic reception in Exeter Hall, London, on his return from his mission tour in South Africa, the hall not being large enough to hold all who desired to see and hear him. Rev. F. B. Meyer presided at the meeting, and Revs. G. Campbell Morgan, Thomas Spurgeon and Thomas Law spoke. His daughter, Zillah, was a great help to him in his work in South Africa. Mr. Smith will begin a mission at Woolwich at once.

The Rev. Dr. G. Campbell Morgan has begun his pastorate at Westminster Chapel, London, under very favorable auspices. The Rev. J. H. Jowett, M. A., was the preacher at the recognition services, the Revs. Dr. Goodrich, Dr. Robertson Nicoll, C. Sylvester Horne, M. A., and J. Gregory Mantle speaking at the evening meeting. The audiences were very large. The Rev. Albert Swift, of Dulwich, is to be associated with Dr. Campbell Morgan in the pastorate. No guarantee of salary was made; financially, the church is by no means strong.

The Congregationalist, of Boston, gives some interesting statistics regarding the ministers of the denomination within the United States. The average Congregational minister dies at the age of sixty-seven, after thirty-six years of ministerial service. Of the 321 such men who died in the five years beginning with 1874, men who entered the ministry between 1835 and 1840, 80 per cent had a college education and 69 per cent were graduates of theological schools. Of the whole period from 1875 to 1903, in which 2,631 Congregational ministers entered into rest, it appeared in the year-book that the percentage of theological graduates was practically the same, but the proportion of college graduates dropped to 73 per cent. Even the latter figure is a pretty high one when compared with some other denominations.

CONFERENCE NOTES.

The memorial service on Sunday afternoon was unusually solemn and impressive.

The Orphanage received a check for $1,000 from that big-hearted Methodist, Mr. S. C. Vann.

An unusually large number of accessions to the Church was reported, but look out for the Annual Paradox.

Five young men were admitted on trial. They come in good time. We wish that the class had been larger.

There was an unusually large number of laymen at Conference. It was good to hear the Orphanage speech of Hon. R. N. Page.

The address of Prof. H. M. Hamill on Saturday afternoon deepened the impression that he is one of the best Sunday-school men in the world.

The divorce question was dealt with by the Conference in no uncertain terms. Be sure to read the resolution which will be published in the Advocate.

We were glad to see at Conference Rev. J. L. Cuninggim, who is doing so much in the way of the Correspondence School. This school is doing great good.

Bishop Candler said that the salaries paid to preachers in the North Carolina Conference are smaller than in any other Conference of Southern Methodism.

And so the next Conference will be held at Wilson. It will be a delight to taste of the hospitality of that royal people and worship in that beautiful new church.

Dr. W. R. Lambuth, our Missionary Secretary, paid us a short call, but managed to say some very stirring, hopeful things to the Conference. His whole heart is in his work.

It was a pleasant experience to enjoy the whole-souled hospitality of the parsonage in which Dr. Nash and his most excellent wife found their highest pleasure in making all their guests feel comfortable and at home.

On account of missing connection in Raleigh, Dr. A. D. Betts was prevented from delivering his educational address before the Historical Society on Tuesday evening. But he delivered the address on Saturday evening, and it was one of the most interesting occasions of the Conference.

Dr. L. L. Nash proved himself to be a most satisfactory host of the Conference. Big-brained, truly consecrated, and warm-hearted, he has a host of friends among the Methodists among whom he has labored so long. The good he has done in his useful ministry can never be rightly measured this side of eternity.

We did not see a preacher or delegate who in speaking of the hospitality of the people of Henderson, did not express the highest appreciation of the same. All the Christian denominations threw open their doors and hearts and the Conference will have only happy memories of the progressive hospitable town of Henderson.

The Presiding Elders reported over 4,500 accessions to the church this year. The reports in every respect were most gratifying. Fayetteville District reported over two hundred new subscribers to the Advocate; Warrenton District, about 300; Elizabeth City District, over 200. There will be another campaign for new subscribers after January 1.

Bishop Candler succeeded in deepening the impression made at Goldsboro that he stands in the front rank of American preachers, and that as a presiding officer, he has few equals. His personality is a very strong one, and his sermons and talks based on sanctified good sense, seasoned with irresistible wit, and delivered with eloquent power, will never be forgotten by the Conference.

The Conference at this session lost the following preachers from the pastorate: Rev. W. W. Rose, who takes the principalship of Central Academy; Rev. M. H. Tuttle, who is placed, on account of ill health, on the supernumerary list; Rev. L. B. Jones, who has gone to Montana; J. T. Stanford, who will spend a year at Vanderbilt. All these brethren are sterling preachers, and we trust that in their new relation they will enjoy the richest blessings of God.

We were glad to have with us three connectional officers: Drs. Hammond, Atkins and Tigert. These brethren added to the interest and effectiveness of the Conference. We heard from Dr. Tigert on Sunday night a great sermon—mentally stimulating and spiritually uplifting. He truly deals with the "solidities." Dr. Hammond's stay was brief, but he delivered a helpful address, as did Dr. Atkins, who on Sunday morning preached one of his best sermons in the Methodist Protestant Church.

When the name of G. F. Smith, Presiding Elder of the Warrenton District, was called, Dr. Nash answered: "Nothing against Brother Smith, unless the quotation 'woe be unto you when all men shall speak well of you' be applied in his case." After Brother Smith's report Bishop Candler remarked: "That's a mighty good report, and I don't wonder that all men speak well of him. I expect a good deal of that excellent report is due to the large number of church members who read the Raleigh Christian Advocate."

Music washes away from the soul the dust of every-day life.—Auerbach.

NORTH CAROLINA
EPWORTH LEAGUE
DEVOTIONAL CHARITABLE CONFERENCE LITERARY EVANGELICAL
EDITED BY REV. H. B. ANDERSON.

Our Young People Can Save the World.

Young people must be the prime objective in the world's evangelization, for usually before or during adolescence if ever, the foundations of a Christian life are laid, the student life is determined and the trend for greatest usefulness established.

If for thirty consecutive years all the young people in the world between ten and twenty-three years of age could be reached by Christian teaching, the world's evangelization would be accomplished. Five successive generations of young people, from ten to seventeen years of age, during the years when most responsive to the claims of religion, would have been under the influence of Gospel truth, and five successive generations, between sixteen and twenty-three years of age, the second period most determinative of a religious life, would have had similar influence. Within these two periods nearly every person assumes the personal relation to religion which he makes final. The vast majority of those who are now twenty-two years old, of whom probably less than two per cent would ever be converted under the most favorable conditions, will have passed to their final account in thirty years, and the world would be occupied by those who had faced the responsibility of accepting or rejecting Christ, at the most favorable periods of their lives and the world would be evangelized.

Young people are not discriminated against in the outworking of God's purpose. They receive from Christ the commission to "go," which is never withheld from those who "come." As they necessarily constitute the chief subjects of the world's evangelization they must largely furnish the agents and accessories for its accomplishment. Their number would of itself make them an important fateor in this great work, but their quality is more important than their quantity. They are acquisitive and of an age when, if ever, they will enthrone God and lay the foundations of devotion and liberality. They most readily acquire strange languages, are enthusiastic, aggressive and courageous, rarely pessimistic, have endurance and invulnerableness. They are the part of the army who are most easily mobilized, for they are not as yet articulated with society and high enterprise appeals to their spirit. They are flexible and easily adapted to changing conditions. They furnish the very material for a successful propoganda and offer the rational field for recruiting the agents and developing its supporters.

If the leaders are to be truly great, their training must be commenced when young that they may discover their apitudes, develop their endowments, gather detailed and comprehensive knowledge, acquire skill and be adjusted to their mission. It is more than a coincidence that during adolescence when men and women are more responsive to the call of God, they are also most available as agents and most teachable, and then, if ever, the habits of devotion and liberality can be established. Every one is commissioned to be Christ's witness "to the uttermost parts of the world." The burden of proof is with each one to show how he is justified in not being personally at the front. If that is clear, he is under positive requirement to be at the front representatively so far as possible. To hold the life-line is as important and obligatory as to go into the breakers.—Rev. J. F. Goucher, D. D.

Notes.

Let us plan a forward movement for another year.

* * *

It seems that the mantle of D. L. Moody has fallen on R. A. Torrey, who is called to a world-wide evangelism.

* * *

St. John (Goldsboro, N. C.) League, which now numbers forty-five members, held the most enthusiastic meeting of its history last Monday evening.

* * *

From the Christian Endeavor ranks more than one hundred and seventy-five thousand young people came into the church last year. This speaks well for the spiritual life of that movement. It is a thing greatly to be desired that from each League Chapter a report of convertions shall be sounded out, as the result of personal effort of its members. Dear fellow Leaguer, will your Chapter report any conversions at our approaching Conference?

O Lord God, in whose presence there is no darkness, for Thou dwellest forever in unapproachable light, keep and defend us and all Thy saints, in soul and body, during the coming night and in all the darkness of this mortal life. May we rest in the assurance of Thy favor; in the peace of a good conscience; in the hope of a better life; in the faith of Thy providence and protection; and in the love of Thy Spirit. And when the night is past, may we rise on again to be diligent in our several callings, working the work of God while the day lasts, remembering that the night cometh in which no man can work. And whether we wake or sleep, may we live together with Christ. Amen.

Our own faults and failures would supply, one would think, sufficient pangs of penitence to occupy that part of conscience which is devoted to lament over shortcomings. Few of us have reached that happy state of perfection in which we can give over repentance. We have to watch our own conduct, guard against temptation, and, when overcome, confess our sins to our Heavenly Father with heartfelt sorrow. Conscience holds a rod to check us when erring and to drive us in the right way, should the kindly impulse of duty fail to allure us; and when we reject the rod, conscience becomes a scourge to punish us with remorse for disobedience. This is task enough for conscience.—Independent.

A COSTLY MISTAKE.

Blunders are sometimes very expensive. Occasionally life itself is the price of a mistake, but you'll never be wrong if you take Dr. King's New Life Pills for Dyspepsia Dizziness, Headache, Liver or Bowel troubles. They are gentle yet thorough. 25c., at all druggists.

A NOTRE DAME LADY.

I will send free, with full instructions, some of this simple preparation for the cure of Leucorhœa, Ulceration, Displacements Falling of the Womb, Scanty or Painful Periods Tumors or Growths, Hot Flashes, Desire to Cry, Creeping feeling up the Spine, Pain in the Back, and all Female Troubles, to all sending address. To mothers of suffering daughters I will explain a Successful Home Treatment. If you decide to continue it will only cost about 12 cents a week to guarantee a cure. Tell other sufferers of it, that is all I ask. If you are interested, write now and tell your suffering friends of it. Address, Mrs. M. Summers, Box 238 Notre Dame, Ind.

SOUTHERN Shorthand & Business UNIVERSITY
NORFOLK AND PORTSMOUTH, VIRGINIA.
3,000 pupils educated at these schools during the past eight years, $1,000 offered to any graduate who has not secured a position.
Courses: Business, Shorthand, English, Telegraphy. Send for illustrated catalogue.
J. M. HESSLER, President.

BLACKBOARDS
For Schools, Sunday Schools Churches.
Any quality, shipped anywhere promptly. All kinds school furniture and supplies. Write for particulars, Best Goods, Lowest Prices.
CHAS. J. PARKER, Mgr. Raleigh, N. C.

There's Proof of Its Goodness in Every Cup of PORTO RICO COFFEE
That's Not All
65 VALUABLE PREMIUMS See New List in Each Package FREE.
CHEEK & NEAL COFFEE COMPANY, Nashville Tenn.

WHEN YOU WISH TO BUY BOOKS..... Save Money
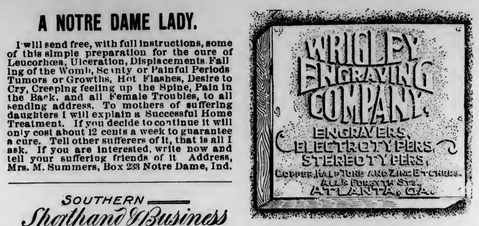
By writing us for catalogue and prices. We carry constantly in stock the books of all leading publishers, and are prepared to fill orders on short notice at lowest prices. Books, Christmas Cards, Diaries, Blank Books, Fountain Pens, Stationery, etc, etc.
WRITE FOR CATALOGUE TO
SMITH & LAMAR, Agents,
296 ELM STREET, DALLAS, TEX.
The Largest Book Stores In the.... South.....
237 N. SUMMER ST.. 340-346 PUBLIC SQ.. NASHVILLE, TENN.



The Fact That
XANTHINE
Hair Restorative
Is the best Hair Tonic is proven by the thousands of people that will use no other BEST BY TEST.
XANTHINE Company,
Richmond, Va.
We prepay charges on all orders. Send for Circulars.

THE BIGGS TREATMENT
Under this treatment the patient is cured by natural agencies. No medicines are used. The Biggs treatment embraces everything that is curative; nothing that impairs or destroys vitality.
Hundreds of sick people have been restored to health by this method. Many of them had been pronounced "incurable," but, nevertheless, they are now well. If you are interested in the cure of disease, write me for free literature, which explains my method. I will also send numerous testimonials from well-known people whom I have cured. Do not postpone the matter—you may forget it. Write to-day.
ANDREW C. BIGGS,
218 East Washington Street,
GREENSBORO, N. C.

..Christmas Holiday Rates..
1904-1905.
ATLANTIC COAST LINE
—ANNOUNCE RATE OF—
One and One-Third First-Class Fares
(MINIMUM RATE 50 CENTS.)
Tickets will be Placed on Sale Dec. 23, 24, 25, 31, and Jan'y 1, 1905.
Final Limit returning to January 4th, 1905.
The teachers and students of colleges, on presentation and surrender of certificates signed by Superintendents, Presidents or Principals, tickets may be sold at the above rate, December 17th to 24th, inclusive, with final limit returning to January 8th, 1905.
For full information, call on ticket agents, or address
H. M. EMERSON, Traffic Manager. W. J. CRAIG, G. P. A., WILMINGTON, N. C.

A Frightened Protector.

BY BESSIE R. HOOVER.

"There may be Indians in these woods right now," said Jack," as he and Beth were walking by a small patch of oaks. Beth was taking her family of dolls for an airing, and Jack was pushing the cart.

Beth knew that there had been no Indians in the neighborhood for twenty years; her father had told her so. But Jack said that they might have come back again.

It was a cold, cloudy afternoon in early winter. No snow had fallen yet, but the ground was frozen, and the air was keen. The withered oak leaves that still hung on the trees rustled mournfully, and the fallen leaves that hid the path along the edge of the woods seemed to crackle strangely as the cart wheels passed over them.

"Let's walk to the end of the woods, and maybe we'll see an Indian," said Jack, who delighted to bother Beth. He was ten, two years older than his little playmate, and he had read many stories about Indians.

"All right," replied Beth, not yet really afraid.

"They are apt to come creeping through the woods, just at night," he continued, "hunting for children. And maybe they steal little girls and carry them away to the big pine forest, and never let them go home again—I don't know."

Beth began to feel that there might possibly be something in what Jack said.

"Indians might be hiding in these woods even now," added Jack.

Beth looked fearfully into the gathering gloom of the dreadful woods, and longed to run home. The thought of Jack and her family in the cart alone restrained her.

The sun was sinking, and great streaks of red were painted against the cold sky. Every stump along the road cast a somber shadow, and the evergreen hedge on the opposite side of the way stretched darkly mysterious. Even their own homes in the distance looked strange and seemed to be miles away. And the last rays of the winter sun crept into those dreary woods, as though in search of the treacherous red-skins.

"But don't you worry, Beth," said Jack, when he saw that she was becoming frightened; "the Indians won't get you while I'm along. I'll keep 'em off. I'm not afraid of anything. I'm your protector."

It was nearly dark when they reached the end of the woods and turned toward home. Beth took her smallest doll from the cart and carried her, for she felt that Angelina must be stiff with fear.

Jack was telling a long Indian story that he had been reading; Beth listened uneasily and pressed Angelina to her rapidly beating heart, for who knew what minute an Indian might pounce upon them? She did not mean to give up her smallest child, whatever happened.

The dry oak leaves still rustled and crackled as though they, too, believed and were thrilled by Jack's wild tale—when, suddenly, there was a breaking of branches, and a dark form came bounding through the woods, straight toward the children.

Beth, white with fear, grabbed Rose Lillian, the twins, and Esther May from the cart, and held them with Angelina in her protecting arms.

Jack gave one look at the awful thing that was coming toward them, then turned and ran for home as fast as he could.

"Jackie, oh Jackie, come back!" cried Beth, but Jack did not stop.

Then brave little Beth put her family back in the doll cart and went on to the awful thing, for it was only Dixie, Jack's old pony, that had gotten loose, and hearing Jack's voice had started toward him.

When the danger was over Jack came back, for his cowardice was great.

"I was only fooling about the Indians, Beth," said Jack, in a queer voice. It was hard for him to own up.

Then he pushed the doll cart and let Beth ride the pony home, which was a great sacrifice on his part.

"Jackie is sorry that he frightened me, or he wouldn't let me ride Dixie," thought generous Beth.

About Lamps.

To fill a burning lamp is a work of idiocy. Almost as much so is it to leave a burning lamp with the flame turned low down. Explosions have often followed such carelessness. Beside that, if left that way in a sleeping room, the fumes of the lamp are most irritating and unhealthy. Night tapers have been introduced for this purpose. The wick, after it once burns evenly, should not be trimmed with the scissors. Turn it up even with the top of the tube, and rub it lightly with soft cloth or paper or an old tooth brush. Then see that no bits of charred wick or matches have fallen into the cavities of a Rochester lamp, as they may flame up and dangerously heat the oil. When the lamp is first lighted, the wick, particularly in cold weather, must be turned up slowly, or it will smoke or break the chimney.—Good Housekeeping.

A life without industry is guilt, and industry without intellect is brutalooms and whirling spindles begins tality. All the busy world of flying in the quiet thought of some scholar cloistered in his closet.—Ruskin.

The sun is the flag of life. Considering what the sun does I do not wonder that men worship it.—Rev. W. M. Reed.

For Asthma use CHENEY'S EXPECTORANT.

RELIABLE ORGANS $32 RELIABLE PIANOS $173
ONE CENT INVESTED IN A POSTAL CARD AND MAILED TO ME WILL TELL YOU ALL ABOUT THEM.
CIRCULARS FREE. H.W. ALLEGER, ESTABLISHED 30 YRS. WASHINGTON N.J.

Special Offer
Christmas Music.
This Depository has just received a fine assortment of Christmas services, and until November 20th, will upon receipt of 10c in stamps, send postpaid to any one five of these attractive services as samples. These services are very tastefully gotten up and nearly all contain attractive recitations, which are worth double the money whether you use the music or not.
The regular price of these services is 5c per copy. This offer is good until Nov. 20th only; after that services will be sent at 5c per copy postpaid. Do not ask for free samples, but send us 10c at once and receive five of the most attractive samples ever offered. Address all orders to
Southern Methodist Book Depository,
STAUNTON, VA.

THE KEELEY INSTITUTE
GREENSBORO, N.C.
For the treatment of THE LIQUOR, OPIUM, MORPHINE and other Drug Addictions. The Tobacco Habit, Nerve Exhaustion

A BAD DISORDER
In the fall of 1895 I contracted that fearful disease, Blood Poison. It gained such headway that I was forced to resign my position and seek relief at Hot Springs. After spending all the means I had I went to Memphis. In less than three weeks I was in a hospital, and after nine weeks of suffering I was discharged as cured. In less than a month every bone in my body seemed to be affected and felt as if they would break at the least exertion. Again I was compelled to resign, and I returned to the hospital for a seven weeks stay. When I came out I was advised to try farming. When I first went on the farm I prevailed on the only firm who handled drugs to get me one dozen bottles of S. S. S. At that time both of my hands were broken out with blisters and I was covered with boils and sores. In the meantime my druggist had gotten two dozen bottles of S. S. S. for me and I began its use, and after taking the thirteenth bottle not a sore or boil was visible. R. B. POWELL. East 9th St., Little Rock, Ark.

Of all human diseases, Contagious Blood Poison is the most hideous and hateful. The victim is tortured with eating ulcers, sores and abscesses, unsightly blotches, eruptions and other symptoms of the miserable disease. S. S. S. has been used successfully for nearly fifty years for Contagious Blood Poison. It contains no mercury, potash or other mineral. Our home treatment book gives all the symptoms of this disease. Medical advice free.
SSS
The Swift Specific Company, Atlanta, Ga.

DRAUGHON'S Practical Business Colleges
Estab. 16 YEARS. Incorporated $300,000.00. SIXTEEN bankers on Board of Directors.
Cor. Martin and Wilmington,

BIG 15 BIGGEST Best CATALOG Tells The Rest
RALEIGH ATLANTA ST. LOUIS PADUCAH FT. SCOTT COLUMBIA FT. WORTH NASHVILLE KNOXVILLE GALVESTON SHREVEPORT KANSAS CITY LITTLE ROCK SINTGOMERY OKLAHOMA CITY
Colleges IN 12 States Can You Name Them?

Endorsed by business men from Me. to Cal. Our diploma represents in business what Yale's and Harvard's represent in literary circles.
POSITIONS. secure position or to refund money; or may contract to pay tuition out of salary. Over 6,000 students each year. No vacation; enter any time. DAY and NIGHT session. SPECIAL rate if you call or write SOON for "Proposition B." Catalog FREE. We teach BY MAIL successfully or REFUND money.

NO MONEY NEEDED
All you need is to send to us for 12 copies of THE AMERICAN ILLUSTRATED METHODIST MAGAZINE. Sell them to friends at price of 15c a copy, return the $1.80 collected, and we will send you by return mail, absolutely free, our beautiful Holman Teachers' Bible, bound in morocco, helps, maps, 32 full page illustrations, 4000 questions and answers on Old and New Testaments. You will be delighted with it, as all our customers are.
☞Our magazine was never more attractive and popular; it sells quickly. Pastors and S. S. Teachers may order Bible for examination to be returned at our expense if not earned.
THE METHODIST PUB. CO.,
113 Locust St., St. Louis, Mo.

H. STEINMETZ.
FLORIST.
Cut Flowers, Designs. Plants of all kinds.
PHONE 113. RALEIGH, N. C.

THE LARGEST SALE OF ANY ONE BRAND IN THE UNITED STATES
Sauers
FLAVORING EXTRACTS
BEST BY TEST.
AT YOUR GROCER
10c and 25c.

Raleigh Marble Works

Monuments
Ship Monumental work to all parts of the State. Delivered to your depot at same price as at shop. Special attention paid to finish and lettering.
Only Best of Stock Used.
Write for new catalogue.
COOPER BROS., Proprietors,
RALEIGH, N. C.

Atlantic & North Carolina R. R.
(Howland Improvement Company Lessee.)
Schedule in effect October 23, 1904.

EAST-BOUND.

Station.	No. 3.	No. 5.
Leave Goldsboro	3.30 p. m.	8.00 a. m.
" LaGrange	3 59 "	8.26 "
" Kinston	4.22 "	8.48 "
" Dover	4 43 "	9.18 "
" Cove	5.00 "	9 30 "
" Tuscarora	5.12 "	9 50 "
Arrive New Bern	5.40 "	10.40 "

Station.		No. 7 (Accom.)
Leave New Berne	5 50 p. m.	12.30 p. m.
" Riverdale	6 15 "	1.12 "
" Havelock	6 39 "	1.40 "
" Newport	6 51 "	2 19 "
Arrive Morehead Cit	7.20 "	2.55 "

WESTBOUND.

Station.	No. 4.	No. 8. (Accom.)
Leave Morehead City	7.11 a. m.	5.20 p. m.
" Newport	7.54 "	6.28 "
" Havelock	8 08 "	7.00 "
" Riverdale	8.21 "	7.30 "
Arrive New Bern	8 45 "	8.05 "

Station.		No. 6
Leave New Bern	9.00 a. m.	6 30 p. m.
" Tuscarora	9.20 "	6.50 "
" Cove	9.30 "	7.00 "
" Dover	9.42 "	7.17 "
" Kinston	10 12 "	7.37 "
" LaGrange	10.32 "	7 57 "
Arrive Goldsboro	11.05 "	8.30 "

Trains 3, 4, 5 and 6 run daily.
Trains 7 and 8 run daily except Sunday.
CONNECTIONS.—At Goldsboro, with Southern Railway and Atlantic Coast Line. At Kinston and Newbern, with Atlantic Coast Line.
R. P. FOSTER, Gene.al Manager. F. A. NIEL, Traffic Manager, Goldsboro, N. C.

Raleigh and Cape Fear Railroad
TIME TABLE.
Effect 12:01 A. M., Sunday, October 9, 1904.

SOUTH BOUND TRAINS.			NOR. BOUND TRAINS.
Daily, ex. S.		STATIONS.	Daily, ex. S.
Second-Class	First-Class		First-Class	Second-Class
101	105		104	102
A. M.	P. M.	Lv. Ar.	A. M.	P. M.
7 20	4 17	Raleigh	9 45	5 35
7 35	4 25	S. Raleigh Mills	9 35	5 20
7 45	4 30	F. Wyrain	9 30	5 13
7 54	4 39	F. Barnes	9 20	5 04
8 00	4 45	F. Hobby	9 14	4 57
8 15	4 52	M. McCULLERS	9 10	4 52
8 25	4 56	F. Banks	8 58	4 23
8 30	4 59	F. Austin	8 55	4 41
8 50	5 07	S. Willow Springs	8 40	4 15
9 05	5 15	M. JOHNSON MILL	8 40	4 03
9 15	5 17	P. Cardenas	8 38	4 00
9 20	5 22	S. C. F. & N. Junction	8 33	3 55
9 35	5 28	S. Fuquay Springs	8 30	3 52
9 40	5 31	F. Buckhorn	8 20	3 38
9 45	5 36	F. Rawls	8 17	3 20
10 00	5 45	S. Chalybeate	8 10	3 20
10 06	5 50	S. Bradley	8 00	3 01
10 15	6 00	F. Smith Mill	7 55	2 53
10 25	6 10	Lillington	7 45	2 45
		Ar. Lv.

JOHN A. MILLS,
President and Gen. Manager.

Use NELLIE KING,

The Queen of High Grade Patent Flours

This fine Flour is manufactured from pure, soft, winter wheat in the very heart of the Famous Wheat Section of Middle Tennessee. For sale by all dealers.

TENNESSEE MILL CO., Estill Springs, Tenn.

Wilmington dispatch, 2nd: The largest cotton cargo ever shipped from this port is aboard the British steamer Anglo-Saxon, which sails tomorrow for Liverpool. The cargo consists of 17,228 bales valued at $860,000 and is consigned by Messrs. Alexander Sprunt & Son. The record heretofore was 17,038 bales.

Governor Aycock will recommend the appointment of a State historian; he opposes the proposed enlargement of the State Capitol.

DANGEROUS COLDS, HEAVY COUGHS, Speedily Cured by Allen's Lung Balsam

SPECIAL EXCURSION TO HAVANA, CUBA.

Do not miss this opportunity to visit this beautiful and attractive island, as it will afford, not only the opportunity for you to make a delightful trip, but to the manufacturer of the South, will offer the additional opportunity to investigate the possibilities of Cuba with the view of developing their business in that country.

A personally conducted, special excursion to Havana, Cuba, January 4, 1905, from Washington, D. C., Richmond and Norfolk, Va., and intermediate points in the States of Virginia, North and South Carolina, will connect with the Peninsular and Occidental Steamship Company's steamer leaving Port Tampa, Fla., on the night of January 5, 1905.

The party will be limited to 150 persons, therefore reservations should be made promptly, in order to secure proper accommodations on the steamship "Olivette," the most commodious ship of the Peninsular and Occidental Steamship Company, which will convey the party to Havana.

Tickets will be limited for return passage on any steamer leaving Havana until January 19, 1905, with privilege of stopovers at any point in the State of Florida, south of Jacksonville, within final limit of ticket, which will be January 22, 1905.

The rate, $45.40 from Raleigh, N. C., for the round trip includes meals and stateroom on the steamship.

Mr. A. W. Fritot will meet the party in Jacksonville and accompany them to Havana. Mr. Fritot speaks Spanish fluently and will place himself at the disposal of the party, furnishing any information desired.

Make up your party and go, and should you desire any other information, books, pamphlets, etc., on Cuba, or "What to say in Spanish and how to say it," address,

W. J. CRAIG, Gen'l Pass. Agent, Wilmington, N. C.
H. M. EMERSON, Traffic Manager.

THEY GIVE MEDICINE AWAY.

The Pape Medicine Co., 8 E. 4th St., Cincinnati, Ohio, are sending absolutely free a complete and thorough test treatment of their three new remedies, that instantly relieve and quickly cure all forms of Kidney and Bladder trouble, Rheumatism and all other uric acid diseases. There never was anything like it. There is not one sufferer in the whole world who can afford to leave these remedies untried. Just write and tell them where to send the treatment and it will come to you without one cent of expense whatever. Read their splendid offer in this paper.

Queen Alexandra of England celebrated her sixtieth birthday at Sandringham.

The Japanese estimate that 90 per cent of the work necessary to the capture of Port Arthur has been accomplished.

A derogatory remark about Joan of Arc by a college professor started students' demonstrations, challenges for duel and debate in the Chamber in France.

Lewis Nixon will undertake to build a new navy for the Russian Government.

Morganton Herald: Messrs. R. T. Claywell and F. B. Brittain are still wearing straw hats and will continue to wear them till Christmas. They agreed in the campaign to do this if Roosevelt was elected.

It is stated sentiment in Congress is strongly against tariff revision.

For Croup use CHENEY'S EXPECTORANT.

A New Cure For The

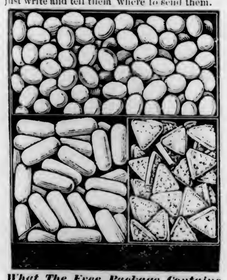
Kidneys,

BLADDER, RHEUMATISM,

Bright's Disease, Dropsy, Gravel, Backache, General Weakness, Nervous, Urinary, Liver and Stomach Troubles.

3 Remedies Free.

The Pape Medicine Co will send by prepaid mail, to any sufferer, whether men or women, a complete test course of their three new remedies that instantly relieve and quickly cure all forms of Kidney, Bladder, Urinary Diseases, Rheumatism and their complications. No money is wanted—just write and tell them where to send them.



What The Free Package Contains.

One large cutex of Uricanda A.—Reconstructs the broken-up tissue, revitalizes the muscular fiber, revives the texture, removes obstructions, thus aiding the process of eliminating waste matter, cleanses all the pores, builds up and strengthens the weak and feeble Kidneys, re-establishing complete, natural, healthy function.

One large cutex of Uricanda B.—Drains out of the blood and system uric acid and other Kidney poison, the cause of Rheumatism. Urine is now retained. Mucous, catarrhal accumulation passes off and out. The bladder is healed, inflammation and irritation subside. Retention, Frequency (especially at night), painful and all urinary difficulties are permanently overcome. Gravel and granular deposits are dissolved, the urinary passages are restored to a healthy condition. And a large cutex of Uricanda C—to immediately arrest the undermining consequent upon Kidney diseases. Regulates the Liver, Stomach and Digestion, relieves constipated Bowels, purifies the Blood, nourishes tissue, bone, muscle and spine. Aches and pains are instantly relieved. Is amazing in toning the general system. Infuses life and vigor into every vital organ and strength all over the entire body. This is the most exhaustive, thorough and complete treatment ever formulated for the cure of these destructive diseases. There is not one sufferer in the whole world who can afford to leave these remedies untried. Write to the PAPE MEDICINE CO., 8 E. 4th St., Cincinnati, O., telling where to send them, and the complete 3 at course of each of the Formulæ, A, B and C, will be forwarded by prepaid mail without one cent of expense to you.

Representatives of the seven churches holding the Presbyterian faith in America agreed upon a definite plan of federation.

It is believed that the opposing armies in Manchuria have relaxed for the winter and that with the opening of spring there may be a terrible contest that may terminate the war.

HEALTH IS YOUR HERITAGE.

If you feel sick, depressed, irritated; if food disagrees with you; if you are constipated, suffer from Catarrh, or get tired with the least exertion, you are not getting out of life what you are entitled to. There is no reason why you should not be restored to a life of perfect health and usefulness. There is a cure for you, and it won't cost a cent to try it. The Vernal Remedy Company have so much confidence in their superb remedy, Vernal Palmettona (Palmetto Berry Wine), that they are willing to send, free and prepaid, to any reader of the Christian Advocate a trial bottle. You can try and test it absolutely free of all charge. The remedy is also sold by druggists everywhere. We advise every reader to take advantage of this generous offer, and write to-day to the Vernal Remedy Company, Le Roy, N. Y.

Have You Poultry? Use

S. P. S. Multum Ovum the greatest of all Egg Producers and preventive for Cholera and Roup.

S. P. S. Roup Cure the only sure cure for Roup.

S. P. S. Chick Food, a mixture of grains, seed, bone and animal matter.

S. P. S. Hen Food and S. P. S. Morning Mash will keep your hens healthy and insure eggs.

We handle Incubators, Brooders, Poultry Supplies, "Everything for the Poultryman."

Southern Poultry Supply Co.
910 E. St. N. W. Washington, D. C.

"SERMONS BY THE DEVIL"

HAVE YOU READ IT? It exposes the "Scheme and Traps" of Satan, Puts "Truth" in a new light. Write, at once, if you wish, for our liberal terms to agents.

C. H. ROBINSON & CO., Publishers,
Box G, Charlotte, N. C.

Christmas Cards.

We make a specialty of Christmas Cards in packets. Choice designs selected from our Christmas importations. The daintiest greeting one can send at Christmas is a beautiful card.

A 25 cts.—25 Beautiful Cards.
B 30 cts.—10 Holly Cards and Booklet.
C 23 cts.—20 Exquisite designs, heavily
D 55 cts.—7 Artistic Booklets, (embossed
E 75 cts.—50 Handsome Embossed Cards.
F 35 cts.—15 Dainty Folding Cards.
G 32 cts.—10 Artistic Folders and Novelty
H 50 cts.—15 Dainty Folded Cards and
I $1.00.—50 Post Cards. [Booklet.

Send for 96 page catalogue of Sunday School and holiday supplies.

MacCalla & Co., Inc., 218 Dock St., Phil. Pa.

A Red Cedar PAIL LASTS A LIFETIME.

Did you ever stop to consider how many buckets you buy during ten years.

A Genuine

RED CEDAR

Pail

Lasts not only 10 years, but 7 times 10 years. Over 160,000 sold during 1903.

RED CEDAR purifies water and keeps it fresh longer than anything else.

THERE ARE DIFFERENT KINDS of cedar pails. Insist on the RED CEDAR, it is the right kind.

Prewitt-Spurr Manufacturing Co.
Sole Manufacturers,
NASHVILLE, TENNESSEE.

BLYMYER CHURCH BELLS

Please mention this paper.

HICKS' CAPUDINE CURES ALL HEADACHES.

IT'S LIQUID.

The perfect remedy for Colds, Indigestion, Periodic Pains, Brain Fag, etc. Prevents Train Nausea and Sick Headache. Energizes the nerves. It's Purpose. Trial bottle 10c.

King's Business College

(INCORPORATED.)

CAPITAL STOCK - - $30,000.

Learn Bookkeeping, Shorthand, Touch Typewriting, Penmanship and English. Not in a month—this cannot be done. Not free—you cannot get something for nothing but if merit appeals, we can convince you that KING'S is the best. Established and results of 20 years experience.

Reference: Every bank and leading business concern in Raleigh or Charlotte. Write for our College Journal and offers we are now making. Address,

KING'S BUSINESS COLLEGE,
Raleigh, N. C., or Charlotte, N. C.

SPECIAL HOLIDAY OFFER

ON

SEWING MACHINES.

Write for Particulars.
Also Bargains in - - - -

Pianos, Organs,

Washing Machines, Wagons, Farm Implements, Hay Presses, Wire Fences, Pea Hu lers, &c , &c. No General Catalogue. Write for what you want.

T. B. PARKER, S. B. A.

RALEIGH, N. C.

APPOINTMENTS.

North Carolina Conference.

RALEIGH DISTRICT.—W. H. Moore, Presiding Elder.
Edenton Street, R. F. Bumpas.
Central, F. A. Bishop.
Brooklyn and Macedonia, G. W. Starling.
Epworth, C. L. Read.
Cary, G. B. Starling.
Clayton, G. W. Fisher.
Smithfield, N. E. Coltrane.
Selma, J. O. Guthrie.
Kenley, to be supplied by R. H. Whitaker.
Wakefield Mission, supplied by F. F. Eure.
Millbrook, G. R. Rood.
Youngsville, G. T. Simmons.
Franklinton, J. H. Shore.
Louisburg, L. S. Massey.
Tar River, A. L. Ormond.
Granville, J. D. Pegram.
Oxford Station, F. M. Shamburger.
Oxford Circuit, W. H. Puckett.
Editor Raleigh Christian Advocate, T. N. Ivey.
Methodist Orphanage, J. W. Jenkins, Superintendent.

DURHAM DISTRICT.—J. T. Gibbs, Presiding Elder.
Trinity, R. C. Beaman.
Main Street, T. A. Smoot.
Carr Church, M. D. Giles.
Branson, to be supplied.
West Durham and Cuninggim, J. H. McCracken.
Mangum Street, E. M. Hoyle.
Durham Circuit, J. B. Thompson.
Chapel Hill, M. T. Plyler.
Hillsboro, N. C. Yearby.
Mt. Tirzah, W. H. Kirton.
Leasburg, Rufus Bradley.
Roxboro, K. D. Holmes.
Milton, J. A. Daily.
Yanceyville, E. Pope.
Burlington Station, D. N. Caviness.
Burlington Circuit, S. F. Nix.
East Burlington, Graham and Haw River, C. M. Lance.
Alamance, M. M. McFarland.
Trinity College, J. C. Kilgo, President; E. A. Yates, Lectureship.

FAYETTEVILLE DISTRICT.—J. B. Burley, Presiding Elder.
Hay Street, D. H. Tuttle.
Fayetteville Circuit, C. A. Jones.
Hope Mills, E. R. Welch.
Cokesbury, L. H. Joyner.
Sampson, D. A. Watkins.
Buckhorn, J. H. Buffaloe.
Dunn, E. M. Snipes.
Duke Mission, W. A. Forbes.
Newton Grove, N. H. Guyton.
Pittsboro, C. P. Jerome.
Haw River, R. W. Bailey.
Goldston, C. O. Durant.
Siler City, T. A. Sikes.
Carthage, R. H. Broom.
Elise, J. W. Hoyle.
Sanford, J. H. Frizzelle.
Jonesboro, J. C. Humble.
Lillington, supplied by L. B. Pattishall.
Bladen, C. C. Brothers.

ROCKINGHAM DISTRICT.—J. N. Cole, Presiding Elder.
Rockingham, John H. Hall.
Roberdel Circuit, A. J. Groves.
Richmond, N. L. Seabolt.
Mount Gilead, S. T. Moyle.
Pekin, W. A. Jenkins.
Montgomery, R. A. Bruton.
Aberdeen, G. A. Oglesby.
Hamlet, W. T. Usry.
St. John and Gibson, F. B. McCall.
Laurinburg, R. A. Willis.
Maxton and Caledonia, E. H. Mc-Whorter.
Red Springs, S. E. Mercer.
Rowland, J. W. Bradley.
Lumberton, Zadok Paris.
Robeson, J. M. Ashby.
Elizabeth, to be supplied.
Troy, W. R. Royall.

WILMINGTON DISTRICT.—M. Bradshaw, Presiding Elder.
Wilmington Grace Street, N. M. Watson.
Wilmington Fifth Street, A. McCullen.
Wilmington Bladen Street, G. B. Webster.
Wilmington, Market, J. M. Culbreth.
Scotts Hill, Y. E. Wright.
Onslow, D. C. Geddie.
Jacksonville and Richlands, R. R. Grant.
Magnolia, J. W. Martin.
Kenansville, V. A. Royall.
Burgaw, W. F. Sanford.
Clinton, A. S. Barnes.
Whiteville and Chadbourn, J. T. Draper.
Columbus, C. W. Smith.
Carver's Creek, J. J. Porter.
Waccamaw, T. J. Browning.
Shallotte, to be supplied.
Town Creek, supplied by E. L. Sawyer.
Southport, W. D. Sasser.
New River, supplied by J. M. Marlowe.

NEW BERN DISTRICT.—E. H. Davis, Presiding Elder.
Centenary, G. T. Adams.
St. Paul's, Goldsboro, W. L. Cuninggim.
St John, Goldsboro, A. R. Surratt.
Goldsboro Circuit, H. E. Tripp.
Mt. Olive Circuit, supplied by B. F. Deloatch.
Mt. Olive and Faison, J. W. Potter.
LaGrange, J. E. Saunders.
Hookerton, J. P. Pate.
Snow Hill, J. M. Benson.
Kinston, R. B. John.
Dover, supplied by J. M. Carroway.
F. E. Dixon, supernumerary.
Grifton, Philip Greening.
Craven, W. H. Townsend.
Jones, supplied by F. S. Becton.
Pamlico, L. S. Etheridge.
Oriental, W. E. Brown.
Carteret, W. A. Piland.
Morehead City, R. H. Willis.
Beaufort, H. M. Eure.
Atlantic, supplied by E. W. Read.
Straits, to be supplied.
Missionary Secretary, R. H. Willis.
Ocracoke and Portsmouth, to be supplied.

WASHINGTON DISTRICT.—J. D. Bundy, Presiding Elder.
Washington Station, L. E. Thompson.
Bath, supplied by W. F. Galloway.
Aurora, J. M. Lowder.
Swan Quarter, W. Y. Everton.
Matamuskeet, W. O. Davis.
Fairfield, T. P. Bonner.
Greenville, J. A. Hornaday.
Farmville, L. E. Sawyer.
Grimesland and Vanceboro, B. E. Stanfield.
Bethel, E. C. Sell.
Tarboro, R. C. Craven.
Robersonville, J. B. Holder.
Elm City, J. L. Rumley.
Rocky Mount, W. S. Rone.
South Rocky Mount and Marvin, R. E. Hunt.
Nashville, H. G. Stancy.
Spring Hope, A. D. Betts.
Wilson Station, F. D. Swindell.
Fremont, D. L. Ernhardt.
Wilson Circuit, supplied by T. H. Bain.

WARRENTON DISTRICT.—G. F. Smith, Presiding Elder.
Warrenton, C. W. Robinson.
Warren, B. C. Allred.
Ridgeway, L. M. Chaffin.
Henderson and Mission, L. L. Nash and R. D. Daniel.
Littleton, G. B. Perry.
Weldon, H. A. Humble.
Roanoke Rapids and Rosemary, G. D. Langston.
Roanoke, to be supplied by W. B. Humble.
Enfield and Halifax, H. B. Anderson.
Battleboro and Whitakers, R. F. Taylor.
Scotland Neck, J. E. Holden.
Hobgood, D. B. Parker.
Williamston and Hamilton, E. E. Rose.
Garysburg, J. G. Johnson.
Northampton, T. H. Sutton.
Rich Square, B. C. Thompson.
Conway, W. F. Craven.
Murfreesboro, P. D. Woodall.
Harrellsville, J. H. M. Giles.
Bertie, W. C. Merritt.
Littleton Female College, J. M. Rhodes, President.
Central Academy, W. W. Rose, Principal.
Student, Vanderbilt University, J. T. Stanford.

ELIZABETH CITY DISTRICT.—J. E. Underwood, Presiding Elder.
First Church, A. P. Tyer.
City Road, H. M. North.
City Mission, to be supplied.
Pasquotank Circuit, W. F. Jones.
Camden, R. L. Davis.
Moyock, supplied by L. B. Jones.
Currituck, J. Y. Old.
North Gates, W. H. Brown.
Gates, T. J. Dailey.
Perquimans, F. L. Church.
Hertford, N. H. D. Wilson; M. H. Tuttle Supernumerary.
Edenton, Evans and Center Hill, W. E. Hocutt.
Plymouth, B. H. Black.
Roper, S. A. Cotton.
Pantego and Belhaven, H. M. Jackson.
Dare, William Towe.
Roanoke Island, A. J. Parker, C. R. Taylor, supernumerary.
Kitty Hawk, A. W. Price.
Kennekeet and Hatteras, D. A. Futrell.
Columbia, W. P. Constable.
Director Correspondence School at Vanderbilt University, J. L. Cuninggim.
Student Vanderbilt University, R. E. Porter.

For LaGrippe and Influenza use CHENEY'S EXPECTORANT.

Christmas and Standard Books

Send 2c. in Stamps for Our New Book Catalogue, 80 Pages.

Our Book Department is the largest and most complete of its kind in the entire South.

We mention a few of our Standard and Religious Classics. Over 250 titles in this edition. Handsome bindings.

Our Price, 25c.

Postage 5c. Each.

Abbe Constantin.	Reveries of a Bachelor.
Abide in Christ.	Rip Van Winkle.
Black Rock.	Scarlet Letter.
Court ship of Miles Standish.	Silas Marner.
Evangeline.	Sentimental Journey. A.
In His Steps.	Tales From Shakespeare.
Imitation of Christ.	The Shepherd Psalm.
Kept For the Master's Use.	Tom Brown's School days.
Light of Asia.	Vicar of Wakefield.
Little Lame Prince, The.	Window in Thrums.
Marmion.
Moses From An Old Manse.
Paradise Lost.

Write us for samples of anything you wish in the way of Dry Goods.

Miller & Rhoads, Richmond, Va.

The Harmonized and Subject Reference New Testament.

BY REV. JAMES W. SHEARER.

"Very valuable arrangement of the text to give a clear, comprehensive view of our Lord's life and teachings, such as has not been before presented."—Dr. F. E. Clark, C. E. World.

"You have done the world a service in this work."—Dr. R. D. Wilson, Princeton Theological Seminary.

"A dollar book worth a hundred."—World Evangel, St. Louis.

"One of the best and most important ever prepared. There are several maps well prepared."—Herald Presbyter.

The Old Book, in modern print, made into a local, topical, harmonized and subject reference edition, by cross reference of numbered paragraphs with headings, arranged according to time, place, harmony and traced journeys.

Each number marks the same subject in all four Gospels. Reviewers declare it "unique," "graphic," "ingenious," "original," "satisfactory," "supplements revisers," "adds much-needed help," "fills a long-felt want," etc

REDUCED FOR CHRISTMAS PRESENTS, 662 page, new indexes. Neat postpaid cloth, on receipt of price, $1.00. gilt, $1.25. Address Author, or

THE SUBJECT REFERENCE CO., DELAWARE, NEW JERSEY.

☞ BEST RATES TO AGENTS.

When writing advertisers, please mention this paper.

FIGHT WILL BE BITTER.

Those who will persist in closing their ears against the continual recommendation of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, will have a long and bitter fight with their troubles, if not ended earlier by fatal termination. Read what T. R. Beall of Beall, Miss., has to say: "Last fall my wife had every symptom of consumption. She took Dr. King's New Discovery after everything else had failed. Improvement came at once and four bottles entirely cured her." Guaranteed by all druggists. Price 50c., and $1.00. Trial bottles free.

Arrest It—$50 Reward.

Upon receipt of 10 cents, a small sample bottle of Ec-zine will be sent to every reader of the Raleigh Christian Advocate who is suffering with any kind of skin disease or eruption—Eczema, Blind or Bleeding Piles, Blood Poison, Fever Sores, Cancer, Rheumatic Pains, or any other Germ disease or sore of any name or nature.

$50 reward will be paid for any case of Eczema that is not promptly cured with Ec-zine. Ec-zine will heal any sore or cure the worst skin and make it look like velvet. Thousands cured daily. Never mind what you have tried; forget the failures made by other remedies, and send for sample of Ec-zine which always gives relief and permanent cure. A $1.00 bottle often cures the worst cases. If your druggist does not have Ec-zine send direct to us. The Ec-zine Company, M. Kupermeier, Sales Agent, 112 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

Register for Stieff's Christmas Piano when your are in Charlotte, or send four cents in stamps for return of number, and let us register for you. UNLESS the FOUR CENTS is enclosed your name will not be registered.

Read last week's ad.

The number and name of person holding the lucky number will be published in our ad. in all papers printing our advertisements.

SPECIAL CHRISTMAS BARGAIN until Christmas. Write for catalogue, etc.

CHAS. M. STIEFF,

Manufacturer of the piano with the sweet tone.

Southern Warerooms 211-213 N. Tryon St., Charlotte, N. C.

C. H. WILMOT, Mg'r.
(Mention this Paper.)

Christmas Holiday Excursion Rates

VIA

Southern Railway.

1904-1905.

Account Christmas and New Year Holidays, Southern Railway will sell tickets at extremely low rates.

Dates of sale of tickets to the general public, December 23, 24, 25 and 31, 1904, and January 1, 1905, with final limit January 4, 1905.

Dates of sale of tickets to students and teachers, upon presentation of Certificate signed by the Superintendent, Principal or President of Schools and Colleges, December 17 to 24, inclusive, with final return limit January 8, 1905.

For information as to Rates, Schedules, Sleeping Car Accommodations, etc., ask any agent, or

R. L. VERNON, T. P. A., Charlotte, N. C.
J. H. WOOD, D. P. A., Asheville, N. C.
S. H. HARDWICK, P. T. M.
W. H. TAYLOE, G. P. A., Washington, D. C.

Marriages

JONES—SUTTON—At the Methodist Church, in La Grange, by Rev. F. D. Swindell, Mr. James E. Jones and Miss Ida Sutton.

GUY—ROBINSON.—At the residence of the bride's father, near Parkersburg, N. C., November 23, 1904, Miss Malisa Maud Guy to Mr. Troy Robinson, all of Bladen County, A. J. Groves performing the ceremony.

Obituaries

Obituaries containing not more than one hundred and fifty words are inserted free of charge. Those sending obituaries containing over one hundred and fifty words are requested to send with the obituary one cent for every word in excess. Unless this rule is observed the obituary must be cut down to the proper limit.

SPRUILL.—John Patrick Spruill, a young man about thirty-three years of age, was killed by an accident at the Carolina Shingle Company's mills on the morning of November 11, 1904. He was a member of the Methodist church at Bonnerton, the place where the accident took place. He was called away without a moment's warning. We trust he was saved. He was a very ingenious and useful man; also kind and obliging to all. He leaves a wife and two little boys to mourn for him. Look to the Lord for consolation, loved ones.

J. M. LOWDER, Pastor.

WHITEHURST.—Mrs. Sallie H. Whitchurst (nee Rouse) died near Aurora, N. C., November 23, 1904. Had she lived until December 18th, following, she would have completed her sixty-fifth year. In her early life she joined the Disciple Church. About eighteen years ago she joined the Methodist church and remained a faithful member until death. She was not demonstrative, but always bore the name of being a good woman.

Sister Whitchurst was three times married—first, to William Litchworth, by whom she had two daughters; second, to Henry Brantley, by whom she had one son. Her three children survive her. Her last husband preceded her to the spirit land only a few months.

Weep not for this mother in Israel, dear ones; your loss is her gain.

J. M. LOWDER, Pastor.

MOORE.—Mrs. Sarah Elizabeth Moore (nee Hankins), wife of the late W. M. D. Moore, of the North Carolina Conference, died in peace with God and man November 22, 1904, in the 90th year of her life, in Summerville, N. C., and was buried in the church-yard near by. She was truly converted and joined the M. E. Church in childhood, and has been a faithful, consistent member ever since. She was a woman of deep piety and unyielding faith in God, upon whose promises she depended with abiding confidence. She exemplified that "charity that never faileth, that suffereth long and is kind." In her life of holiness and resignation to the will of God shone forth the spirit of Christ which is so beautiful and attractive. She outlived her generation, and but few who read this notice will remember her. Bro. A. D. Betts, of the North Carolina Conference, and Sister Bailey, the widow of one of our old ministers, will rejoice to know she is freed from the pain and infirmities of extreme age and is safe in the home of the blessed. The weekly visit of the Advocate, through the kindness of the editor, gave her great pleasure. Her mind was well stored with a knowledge of the Word of God, which she was ever ready to impart to others for admonition, consolation or gentle reproof as was required. She lived the life of the righteous, and her death was triumphant.

A. J. HANKINS.

YOUNG.—Capt. Joseph J. Young, son of Elijah and Sallie Young, was born in Wake County, N. C., January 1, 1832, and died at his home in Johnston County, October 3, 1904.

His parents were devoted members of the Baptist church. He was converted in early life. In 1896 he joined the Methodist church under the ministry of Rev. M. M. McFarland, and was faithful till death. He was noted for his upright life and Christian character. His health had been failing for sometime, but he was able to attend quarterly meeting at Elizabeth about two weeks before his death. This was the last church service he attended and the last time he partook of the sacrament of the Lord's Supper. We knew his health was declining, but little did we think that he would be so soon transplanted from the church militant into the church triumphant.

At the beginning of the Civil War he volunteered and entered the 26th Regiment of North Carolina Troops. Governor Vance appointed him quartermaster, which position he filled with credit till the war ended.

August, 1863, he was married to Miss Ferebee Raud, daughter of Maj. Raud, of Wake. This union was short. October 2, 1867, he was married to Miss Mary Sandal Turner. To this union were born four sons and five daughters. One son died in infancy. He leaves a devoted wife, three sons, five daughters and several grand-children to mourn their loss.

May all the loved ones meet him in heaven.

G. W. FISHER.

Resolutions of Respect.

Death has again invaded our ranks and another name is stricken from our roll to be added to the roll of the immortals who study God's truth and contemplate His glory in the eternal city.

On Wednesday night, November 2, Mrs. Alice Erwin Chamberlain, wife of Mr. H. B. Chamberlain, and a member of the Home Department of Trinity Sunday-school, fell on sleep. The summons to meet her Lord came suddenly, but she went forth to greet Him in the strength of a faith that failed not as the shadows fell about her. God called her at high noon, when the sacred ties of love, and home, and motherhood bound her to earth and time. But God makes no mistakes, and we bow submissively to His will, saying, "Even so Father, for so it seemed good in Thy sight."

Of our dear departed sister, we may truthfully say:

"Thy day without a cloud hath passed
And thou wert lovely to the last:
Extinguished, not decayed!
As stars that shoot along the sky
Shine brightest as they fall from high."

Therefore be it

Resolved 1. That in the death of Mrs. Chamberlain the Home Department of Trinity Sunday-school has lost a faithful and devoted member.

2. That we extend to the bereaved husband and his stricken fireside our tenderest Christian sympathies, and pray that the God of all comfort may be with them in the day of their great loss.

3. That these resolutions be spread on the record book of Trinity Sunday-school and a copy of the same be furnished to family, the city papers and the Raleigh Christian Advocate for publication.

R. C. BEAMAN, Chairman.
MRS. T. J. LAMBE,
MRS. H. A. FOUSHEE,
Committee.

Lumbago Get Instant Relief RUB ON Painkiller (Perry Davis)

CANCER
Permanent Cure Guaranteed, without knife, X-Ray, Arsenic or Acids; no inconvenience. Write for book.
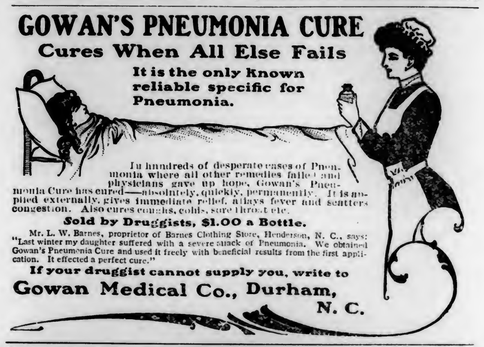
Southern Cancer Sanatorium
1520 E. Monument St. Baltimore, Md.

GOVERNMENT POSITIONS
25,566 Appointments were made to Civil Service places during the year ending June 30, 1903. Excellent opportunities for young people. Thousands of those whom we have prepared BY MAIL for the examinations have been appointed. Our Civil Service Catalogue contains letters from hundreds of persons in the Government service who state that they owe their positions to our course of training; also contains questions recently used by the Government. These are sent free on request.
COLUMBIAN CORRESPONDENCE COLLEGE,
223-25 Pa. Ave. S. E. Washington, D. C.

..Dobbin & Ferrall..
(AT TUCKER'S STORE)
Raleigh, N. C.
BRIDAL OUTFITS.
We are fully prepared to furnish a complete Trousseau. Every detail absolutely correct. No better materials can be furnished anywhere, and our dress makers are the best in the world—a broad statement but fully true. It is far better to have the customers come to our store making the trip to Raleigh. Write us if you cannot come in person. You will be given perfect attention.
Our Prices are Lower Than Other Stores.
DOBBIN & FERRALL
123 and 125 Fayetteville St.

GOWAN'S PNEUMONIA CURE
Cures When All Else Fails
It is the only known reliable specific for Pneumonia.



In hundreds of desperate cases of Pneumonia where all other remedies failed and physicians gave up hope, Gowan's Pneumonia Cure has cured—absolutely, quickly, permanently. It is applied externally, gives immediate relief, always fever and scatters congestion. Also cures coughs, colds, sore throat, etc.
Sold by Druggists, $1.00 a Bottle.
Mr. L. W. Barnes, proprietor of Barnes Clothing Store, Henderson, N. C., says: "Last winter my daughter suffered with a severe attack of Pneumonia. We obtained Gowan's Pneumonia Cure and used it freely with beneficial results from the first application. It effected a perfect cure."
If your druggist cannot supply you, write to
Gowan Medical Co., Durham, N. C.

CROSS & LINEHAN CO.,
NEW TUCKER BUILDING.)
234-236 Favetteville St., RALEIGH, N. C.
LET US SHOW YOU WHAT THE FULL MEANING OF BARGAIN-GIVING MEANS IN . . . . . .
CLOTHING
AND GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS.
OUR NEW SPRING STOCK NOW READY FOR YOUR INSPECTION.
Cross & Linehan Co.,
Leading Clothiers.

Frisco System
Chicago & Eastern Illinois R. R.
FRISCO SYSTEM
Double Daily Trains
BETWEEN
St. Louis AND Chicago
MORNING AND EVENING.
From LaSalle Street, Station Chicago..... 9:50 a. m.—9:10 p. m.
From Union Station (Merchants Bridge) St. Louis..... 9:30 a. m.—9:36 p. m.
Morning or evening connection at both termini with lines diverging.
Equipment entirely new and modern throughout.
A DOUBLE TRACK RAILWAY.
Equipped with practical and approved safety appliances.
Substantially constructed.

What it Costs.

Taking the lowest possible view of it, whiskey-drinking does not pay.

The story is told of a successful business man with a salary of $7,500, who believed that good fellowship, no less than the necessity of business, required that he should drink with his customers. But at the end of each year he discovered that he was saving no money. After paying his living expenses, there was nothing left.

Then he decided to keep an accurate expense account. Without changing his bibulous habits, he put down the price of every drink. At the end of thirty days he was amazed to find that he had spent $300 for liquors. The little memorandum book showed precisely what he had spent over the bar, in "treating the house," wine suppers, cabs when treating "bums," etc.

He quit.

The motive in his case was not the highest in the world, but it was effective.

Mr. Workingman, if you drink, have you ever counted the actual cost in dollars and cents? Saloon-keepers say their largest support comes from men of labor. Is that true? It is stated on "good authority that from one-third to one-half the wages of workingmen in this country go over the bar. Is that true? If so, how much are you contributing? If one-third to one-half of your wages goes to the saloon proprietor, you are spending proportionately as much as the man who spent $300 a month. Can you afford that?

Keep an expense account for a month. Figure up how much you are taking from your wife and children to give to the wife and children of the saloon man. The amount will probably surprise you.—Des Moines Daily News.

Taking Care of Them Herself.

"Yes'm, she's pretty well, mother is," said the old man, pausing with his foot on the wagon wheel to answer an inquiry concerning his wife; "pretty well, if only 'twan't for worryin' about the children. 'Lizabeth's up to Conway this season, and mother's all the time afraid she'll be took sick away from home. Samuel's got a good place at Tanfield, and he's doin' well, too, but his boardin' place is across the river. Sometimes he goes by ferryboat and sometimes he goes by skiff, and mother, she can't get over the feelin' that he's likely to be drowned. The two younger ones in home yet, but she's anxious about the time John'll be wantin' to strike out for himself, and she's always been afraid we'd never raise Car'line. No'm, there's nothin' special the matter with any of 'em now, and the truck garden has done fine this year. Mother hain't had a touch of her rheumatism all summer, and she'd be pretty well off if 'twasn't for worryin'. Christian? Bless you, yes, this forty year! She ain't afraid but what the Lord will take care of her and all the rest of the world, but seems like she ain't got faith yet to b'lieve He's to be trusted with the children."—Wellspring.

Magazine Notes.

The Christmas number of "The Twentieth Century Home" derives an unusual degree of interest from both the subject-matter and the illustrations. Havelock Ellis, the famous English investigator, contributes a profusely illustrated paper on "Spanish Dancing," and Elbert Hubbard gives a most sympathetic account of "The Home Life of the Brownings." Thorndike Colton has taken an ever-popular theme in "Some Royal Love-Matches." Of especial interest and value to women are "The Making of My Lady's Handkerchief," by S. H. M. Byrns; "Christmas Giving," by Elizabeth M. Gilmer; "Some Memories of Old Quilts," by E. C. Wood; "Women as Economists," by Rafford Pyke, and "The Homeless Woman of Forty," by Mrs. Wilson Woodrow. Grace Corniche has another instalment of "Florinda's Dinners," a series that is a new and original departure in the way of cooking-recipes. Parents will find much useful information in "Home Exercise for Growing Children," by Watson L. Savage, M. D. Among the interesting personalities described are Mrs. Alice Barber Stephens, the illustrator, and Mme. Rejane, the greatest of living French comediennes, now on a visit to this country. The fiction is contributed by Maud Stepney Rawson, Frances Courtenay Baylor, Rose Cecil O'Neill and Tom Masson. On the whole the number is exceedingly well balanced and maintains the high place this new periodical has already obtained among the magazines of the month.

* * *

The December (Christmas) number of "The Cosmopolitan" comes to us in a beautiful and appropriate cover which is but the index of an especially attractive contents. Besides five complete and one continued story, we turn to one illustrated article after another to note that each discusses a matter of real timely and vital importance to both the men and women of America. The contents include, "The Present Upheaval in France," by David Graham Phillips; "The Passing of the Home in Great American Cities," by Charlotte Perkins Gilman; "The Chase of the Wild Red Deer on Exmoor Forest," by Clifford Cordley; "The Passing of the Steam Age," by Lewis Nixon; "Some Churches and Their Problems," by A Minister's Wife; "The Theatrical Syndicate," condemned and defended respectively by David Belasco and Marc Klaw; "Racial Types of Beauty," by Gertrude Lynch; "Canning and Preserving," by Frederic Williams. The fiction is contributed by Eliza Calvert Hall, A. M. Williamson—coauthor of "The Lightning Conductor"—Herbert Shipman, Homer Bassford, Jeanne Olive Loizeaux and John Brisben Walker. James Whitcomb Riley has a two-page Christmas poem. The whole number is superbly illustrated.

Emerson on the Sea.

On the seashore the play of the Atlantic with the coast! What wealth is here! Every wave is a fortune. One thinks of Etzlers and great projectors who will yet turn all this waste strength to account. What strength and fecudity from the sea-monsters, hugest of animals, to the primary forms of which it is the immense cradle, and the phosphorescent infusories,—it is one vast rolling bed of life, and every sparkle is a fish. What freedom and grace with all this might! The seeing so excellent a spectacle is a certificate to the mind that all imaginable good shall yet be realized. The sea is the chemist that dissolves the mountain and the rock; pulverizes old continents, and builds new,—forever redistributing the solid matter of the globe; and performs an amaiagous office in perpetual new transplanting of the races of men over the surface, the exodus of nations. We may well yield us for a time to its lessons. But the nomad instinct, as I said, persists to drive us to fresh fields and pastures new. Indeed the variety of our moods has an answering variety in the face of the world, and the sea drives us back to the hills.—Ralph Waldo Emerson, in the Atlantic.

CHURCH MONEY EASILY RAISED
For Bazaars and Fairs, we have a money-raising proposition that never fails. We get the advertising, you get the money. Address Peter-Sent-Richardson Co. Wholesale Drugs, Louisville, Ky

For Whooping Cough use CHENEY'S EXPECTORANT.

Saw Mills
1500 ft. 1 in. boards per hour with 16 H. P. Is the record of our Light 25 ft. Saw Mills. Small Mills for farmers and Large Mills for lumbermen. Also Engines, Rollers, Shingle Mills Edgers, Grist Mills, etc. Write for Catalogue K Address Salem Iron Works. Winston-Salem, N. C.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY CHRISTMAS HOLIDAY EXCURSION FARES—1904-1905.

On account of the Christmas Holidays the Southern Railway announces the sale of round trip tickets from all stations on these lines, to points within the territory east of the Mississippi and south of the Ohio and Potomac Rivers.

Rate: One and one-third first-class standard one way fares for the round trip.

Tickets will be sold December 23, 24, 25 and 31, 1904, and January 1, 1905, with final limit January 4, 1905.

Holidays rates for students and teachers:

Tickets will be sold to teachers and students of universities and colleges and seminaries on presentation and surrender of certificates signed by the Superintendent, Principal or President thereof on December 17 to 24, inclusive, with final limit January 8, 1905.

For rates, schedules, etc., call on any agent of the Southern Railway or address.

T. E. GREEN, C. T. A.,
Raleigh, N. C.

LIBERTY MILLS

PRODUCES DAILY 4,000 BARRELS OF Pure Soft Wheat Flour
AND THERE IS HEALTH AND STRENGTH IN EVERY POUND.
Ask Your Grocer.
LIBERTY MILLS, Nashville, Tenn.

DE LOACH PAT is the Original and Simplest Variable Friction Feed.
SAW MILLS
Avoid imitators and infringers and buy the genuine. Catalogue free of Mills, 1 H. P. and up. Shingle, Planing, Lath and Corn Mills, four Stroke Hay Presses, Water Wheels. We pay the freight.
DE LOACH MILL MFG. CO., Box 982 Atlanta, Ga.

When writing advertisers please mention this paper.

CENTRAL ACADEMY
LITTLETON, N. C.
A Christian Home School for Boys and Young Men. Spring Term begins Jan. 4th, 1905. Charges very low. For further information address
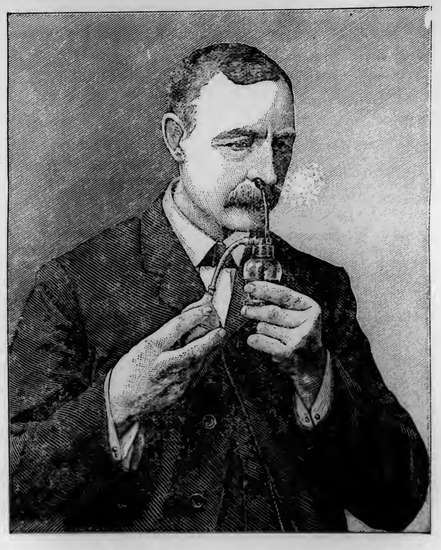
REV. W. W. ROSE, Principal.

The Highsmith Hospital
(INCORPORATED.)
A General Hospital, centrally located on Green Street. J. F. Highsmith, M. D., Surgeon and Specialist in the diseases of women. Assistants: J. Vance McGeorgan, M. D., Surgeon; J. A. McKethan, M. D., Specialist in the diseases of the eye, ear, nose and throat.
Modern appliances throughout; elevator, electric and gas light; water, heat, hot and cold shower baths and telephone service on every floor; electric call bells in all rooms; sound-deadening rubber treads and linoleum on stairways and halls, operating room second to none, well equipped chemical and microscopic laboratory with Static X-Ray Electric Machine in connection, giving unsurpassed facilities for treatment of the most difficult surgical cases.
Nurses' Home and Training School, under the supervision of Miss Maude Robertson, graduate of The Massachusetts General, of Boston, Mass., the McLean, of Waverly, Mass., and the Sloan Maternity, of New York, and recently head nurse of the surgical department of the Philadelphia Hospital.
The Cochran Annex, complete in furnishing and equipment, with endowed beds for both white and colored.
Domestic and Culinary Department under skilled housekeeper, faultless in sanitation, cleanliness and convenience.
For further information address
J. F. HIGHSMITH, M. D., Fayetteville, N. C.

ACID IRON MINERAL
Registered A-I-M Trade Mark
Is a great natural remedy of wonderful curative power mined from a natural deposit. It cures all diseases, involving inflammation, by purifying the blood and directly healing the irritated parts. Try it on an external sore and watch its magic healing. It acts in exactly the same way on all internal inflammation, such as Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Rheumatism, Kidney Disease, Stomach and Bowel Troubles. Numerous testimonials that it cures when all other remedies fail.
No equal for diseases peculiar to women. Tones up the entire system
Four weeks treatment, only 50 cents
If your druggist cannot supply you, write to
"Cured me completely of bladder trouble." Mrs. Nading, Winston, N. C.
"For sores A. I. M., is worth its weight in gold." J. H. Davis, Beaufort, S. C.
"By use of A. I. M. I was cured in a few weeks." J. P. Wingard, Branchville, S. C.
ACID IRON MINERAL CO., J. H. Garst, Gen. Mgr., Salem, Va.
P. H. HALTIWANGER, Pres., Columbia, S. C.

Catarrh Head Colds.



La Grippe, Asthma, Partial Deafness. Pains, Roaring and Buzzing in the Head, immediately relieved and promptly cured with

E. J. Worst's Spray Medicator

AND

LIQUID SPRAY.

MAILED ON FIVE DAY'S TRIAL FREE.

I care nothing for your skepticism or past experience, but do ask the privilege of sending you this famous treatment at my expense on trial free, if you are in need of it.

Diseases that have defied medical skill for years, and grown worse with age, yield quickly and promptly to this marvelous liquid spray.

There are good shoes and bad shoes, good eggs and bad eggs, and both seem somewhat alike until used.

Of course talk is cheap, but what would be the use to send my Spray treatment on trial free at my expense, if it is not as I represent it? I can't afford to do it.

I don't want to say too much, because I want to agreeably surprise you. The treatment in your hands is worth vastly more than all the statements I can make here.

OUR SPECIAL OFFER.

I will mail any reader of the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE who will name their ailment, one of my Spray Medicators and four drahms LIQUID SPRAY suited to their disease on FIVE days trial free. If it gives satisfaction, send me $2.00 (which is two-fifths price), if not satisfactory, return it at the expired time, which will only cost you 12 cents postage, and you will not owe me a penny. No one can ask a better offer.

If you have Rheumatism or Kidney trouble mention it, and I will include free, a sample treatment of Australian Life Tablets. This remedy acts upon the Uric Acid poison in the plasma of the blood, and quickly relieves and permanently cures these diseases.

Physicians Use Them.

Hundreds of Physicians Use the Spray Medicator and Recommend Them to Their Patrons.

If you have a COLD, try it.
If you have a COUGH, try it.
If you have BRONCHITIS, try it.
If you have CATARRH, try it.
If you have SORE THROAT, try it.
If you have HAY FEVER or ASTHMA, try it.

If you have Buzzing or Roaring in the head try it. If you have Headache, try it. If you are partially Deaf from the closing of any of the tubes leading to the inner ear, try it. Hundreds have reported immediate good results and permanent cures.

Order from the following Directions:

LIQUID SPRAY No. 2 is a positive cure for Catarrh of the nose and throat, Head Colds, LaGrippe and Tonsilitis.

LIQUID SPRAY No. 4, a valuable anti-spasmodic treatment and relief of the attacks of Asthma and other spasmodic affections.

LIQUID SPRAY No 5 is a healing antiseptic treatment for all irritable and persistent Coughs and Tuberculosis (consumption) of the throat and lungs, should be used regularly and persistently.

LIQUID SPRAY No. 6 is an anticeptic, cleansing, alternative remedy, especially prepared for Catarrhal affections of the middle ear, resulting in deafness, and of particular advantage in dry catarrh.

REMEMBER—I mail the Spray Medicator with medicine complete to any reader of the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE on the special offer made above. No better treatment has ever been offered to the American people. Agents wanted.

Address, E. J. WORST,

No. 17 Main Street, Ashland, Ohio.

Reading Room Trinity College

Raleigh Christian Advocate

FIFTIETH YEAR. ORGAN OF THE NORTH CAROLINA CONFERENCE. NUMBER 45.

RALEIGH, N. C., WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 14, 1904.

THE CONFERENCE YEAR AS WE LOOK BACKWARD.

It is little over a week since the appointments were read at Henderson and the Conference of 1904 adjourned sine die.

We are so little removed from that adjournment that it is somewhat difficult to obtain a clear perspective, especially since we have not in hand the full Conference data as we will have them in the Journal.

Yet, even now, we may look backward over the year and form those conclusions which may bring joy or sorrow.

We believe that we are justified in saying that the sixty-eighth session of the North Carolina Conference was in some respects the best we have had in quite a number of years. The attendance was large. There was nothing to mar the harmony. Only in the last hours was there anything like the asperity of debate. The reports of the year's work were very gratifying. The preachers looked well fed, well dressed, and happy. Some of them had passed through the deep waters during the year, yet in their faces could be seen the light which comes from the fires on Resignation's altar. Others bore the marks of conflict with the enemies encountered by every true man who essays to do his duty.

Speaking of debate, there was less talking by the preachers and delegates than we have ever known as a member of the Conference. This fact did not add any element of strength to the Conference. Methodist preachers must talk—talk freely and fully, for it is only then that they keep up the swing and stride of progress and the glow of manly independence. If we were criticising the Conference, we would say that there was too little discussion of questions on the part of the preachers and delegates. Our laymen should take an active part on the floor of the Conference. Only once did we hear the voice of a layman on the floor.

Among the elements which proved conducive to the success of the Conference was the open, free-hearted hospitality shown every member and visitor. How could it be otherwise with such a wise experienced host as Dr. L. L. Nash and Presiding Elder Smith and such a warm-hearted people as are found in progressive Henderson.

It is to be regretted that the business of the latter part of the session was conducted in such a rush. We know of one brother who came near being left without an appointment on account of the crowding final duties. It was no fault of the Bishop and his Cabinet, either. In fact it was no fault of the Conference. How could a fault be ascribed to the latter in the face of such an emphatic testimonial in the shape of votes for one who has now received this testimonial for the fourth time. He bears only goodwill to the brethren who pushed him so closely in the race. He has not forgotten how to be magnanimous.

The session at Henderson will be regarded as the "red-letter" variety, for one very significant reason: There was a net increase in membership of over 1,200. The Annual Paradox made itself conspicuous this time by its absence. We felt as we listened to those magnificent reports from the Presiding Elders, in which reports were embodied the accounts of glorious revivals and numerous accessions, that surely the end of the reign of King Paradox had come. And we were not mistaken. Nearly 5,000 were received into the church in the North Carolina Conference during the year. Of course there were many losses by death, certificate and otherwise. We have now 97 local preachers, and 68,847 members. There were 945 infants, and 2,380 adults baptized in the different charges.

The sum of $132,815.57 was contributed for ministerial support—$15,928.22 more than was contributed for the year 1903. Deducting from the sum total the amount paid to Bishops, we have an average of over $750 for each travelling preacher in the Conference. Bishop Candler said that the salaries paid to preachers in the North Carolina Conferences are smaller than in any other Conference of Southern Methodism, and he is right, but the figures show that the North Carolina Conference, at least, is making a great improvement in this respect. There is much to be done. The Board of Stewards in every charge should, in making the assessments for 1905, remember the fact so emphatically expressed by the Bishop, and provide for their preacher a larger salary.

The sum of $13,373.75 was contributed for foreign missions; $10,465.75 for domestic missions. For 1903, $13,340.75 was contributed for foreign missions, and $10,191.42 for domestic missions. Only $307.23 more for missions in 1904 than in 1903. This increase is too small for the increase in the material growth of the church.

The increase in the number of Sunday-schools was only 12; in number of scholars, 1,640.

There was no increase in number of Epworth Leagues, the number being 66 for both years. We are extremely sorry to say that there was a decrease of 222 in the number of Epworth League members, a record, we daresay, no other Conference in Southern Methodism has.

The amount contributed for the American Bible Society was almost double that contributed for 1903. This is a good record. It shows that our people are growing in the appreciation of the fact that the Bible is the foundation stone of all our hopes.

The Conference is at last coming into the realization that the Orphanage is one of its most sacred possessions. The success of this enterprise is almost phenomenal. When its present Superintendent, Rev. J. W. Jenkins, first mentioned the matter to the Conference, and the initial steps were taken, very few thought that the enterprise would amount to anything. But what great things God hath wrought! We have now two buildings—one, the handsomest in the whole State. The property is valued at over $60,000. The people are looking upon it as an object for their constant contributions. The support of two hundred orphans has been a vexing question for the management. But the Conference settled this question by making an assessment of ten per cent on the preacher's salary. Thus the support of the orphans is placed upon a permanent basis. The voluntary contributions were greater for 1904 than in any preceding year.

The Schools made most gratifying reports. Trinity College and Trinity Park High School, which are the direct property of the North Carolina Conference, with the affiliated schools, Littleton Female College and Louisburg Female College reported increased patronage for the year. The Conference made an assessment of $2,000 for Greensboro Female College, which has arisen from its ashes and is now enjoying a fine patronage. Central Academy, with Rev. W. W. Rose as Principal, is just entering upon its career, as is also Albemarle High School. These schools are destined to play an important part in the educational work of North Carolina Methodism.

The Raleigh Christian Advocate reported a successful year. The Directors at their meeting on Saturday afternoon declared a dividend for the stockholders, probably leaving a sum for the reduction of standing indebtedness. The Raleigh Christian Advocate now has over 7,200 subscribers. The Conference has made provision for increasing this to 8,000 by May 1. The Advocate is fortunate in having as agents preachers who believe in the Advocate and are willing to work for it. In doing this they realize that they are building up the interest of the whole church on their charges. It is the exception for a bad report to be made by a preacher who is active in circulating the Conference organ. The Conference organ contains news that is contained in no other paper in the world. No member of the church who aspires to be intelligent and progressive in church work can afford to be without it.

Bishop Candler's impress on the Conference was strong and will be lasting. We expressed in last week's paper our estimate of him as a preacher and executive.

We have many reasons for believing that God has smiled upon the work of the North Carolina Conference for the year 1904. May the present Conference year be marked by still greater success.

A WONDERFUL THING IN NORTH CAROLINA METHODISM.

Perhaps the most wonderful thing in North Carolina Methodism is the remarkable experience of Rev. Christopher Thomas who died in New Bern in the year 1830. Thousands of Methodists all over the State have heard of his dream and the way it was realized. The thrilling history gives a staggering blow to materialism. Dr. Leroy M. Lee, who knew the Rev. Christopher Thomas and was an eye witness of his experience from the time that the latter left Lynchburg until his eyes were closed in death, wrote years ago a book on the dream. The North Carolina Methodist Handbook has compressed within its first twenty-five pages the whole story. We advance no theories. We simply give the facts. The reader may explain the wonderful chain of circumstances as he may. But we want all Methodists to read it. It is something that should not fade from the annals of North Carolina Methodism.

Thousands will be pained to hear of the death of Rev. J. D. Barbee, which occurred at Nashville, on the evening of the 6th instant. Death occurred from the giving away of the valves of the heart, after an illness of only a few hours. He was at the time presiding elder of the Nashville district, and formerly for fifteen years senior Book Agent of the Church. He was aged 72 and had been a minister for more than half a century.—Exchange.

Contributions

A Harvest of Love.

BY M. R. S. IN EPWORTH ERA.

The Conference year was fast drawing to its close, and as the pastor of the ——— Methodist Church sat in front of the grate in his cozy study he watched the flames darting up brightly and compared them to the joyous hopes he had had at first; then he watched the blazes as they died down into a blackened mass, and sadly likened these to those hopes which had in a like manner faded. Just one year ago he had come to this town and entered joyfully into the work assigned him. The church he had entered had many members, but there was no active life, and from the first the people seemed prejudiced against him.

In appearance the pastor was not more prepossessing than the average man, and perhaps his manner did seem a trifle cold and distant to the people who for four years had been accustomed to a jovial and rather elderly gentleman. Possibly his manners were not especially winning, but he was an earnest, conscientious man, and his sermons were full of truths, deep reasoning, and resolution, if not of fiery eloquence.

This evening, as he leaned back in his easy-chair, he reviewed his efforts of the past year. He was forced to confess to himself that, so far as he could see, his year's work had been a failure. He had tried to do his part faithfully and well, but he could feel that the people were not in sympathy with him. Still he did not feel like giving up, for he was young, strong, and hopeful. Where he could now see nothing but failure, he was yet anxious to make a success.

The few remaining days of the year passed by, and Conference met. The minister was sent back to the same field of labor. When he heard this he uttered one silent prayer of thanksgiving and another for strength and guidance. So he went back to his work. During the first year he had tried to get the older members to work earnestly for the Master, but he had not met with much success. To be sure, there were the Woman's Missionary and Aid Societies, but they did not do much active work, and seemed to take little, if any, interest in the minister's plans. They complained, saying: "He is too cold, too young, and not theological enough."

After the preacher resumed his charge he was sorely puzzled, and tried to devise various plans for rousing the enthusiasm of his members. He knew full well that he had not succeeded in winning his people's love and respect, and he realized that without this there would be no valuable work done for the Lord. How should he now begin? Often he prayed to his Father to show him the way, and at last the prayer was answered.

One day there was brought to his door a little girl who was poorly clad. Her clothing and pinched features indicated that poverty and distress had claimed her for their own. The preacher was told a pitiable story of how her father and sister had died a few weeks before, and how that, as the mother and little girl were coming to that place to secure work, the mother also had died. By her mother's advice she had been brought to the Methodist preacher's home, sure that here she would receive help. The pastor assisted in procuring money enough to bury the mother, and decided to keep the child awhile. She was so bright and had such loving little ways that she soon endeared herself to the pastor and his wife. As he was talking one night with his wife about the existing condition of the church, the child looked up into his face, and, opening wide her great eyes, she exclaimed: "What! doesn't every one love you?" As the minister slowly shook his head, she looked incredulous, and finally said: "Not even the young people?" The pastor quickly jumped up and began to pace the floor. The By her mother's advice she had been brought to him. Hastily kissing his wife and the child, he left the room, went to his study, and thought for a long time. Yes, that would be the right plan. He must get the young people to work with him, and then perhaps the older ones would fall into line. Kneeling down, he communed for a long time with his Saviour, and at last rose from his prayer strengthened.

The next Sunday, instead of having the review of the Sunday-school lesson, he asked the superintendent to let him speak to the school. Then he asked the intermediate scholars to meet him at the church at 3 o'clock. At the appointed time many were present, and a Junior League was organized.

During the following week the pastor called on as many young ladies and men as possible, and dropped a card to others, earnestly asking them to help him organize the Senior League the following Sunday evening. Only a few came at first; but when these saw how earnest the pastor was and how interesting the work they soon persuaded others to join, and the League was soon in good working order.

A few months later a reading circle was formed, and it was here that the young people first learned to love their minister. After the lesson was over a social time was always enjoyed. Never had they even dreamed that this man who had at first seemed so distant and cold could be so full of life and enter so heartily into their plans, nor could any one tell or enjoy a good story or joke better than he. In this circle, where he seemed to be perfectly at ease, they found out that he was not only intelligent and earnest, but lively and humorous when occasion demanded.

Quickly the year passed, bringing both joys and sorrows. In the course of time the minister found that the older members of the church began to rely on him and come for advice and sympathy. Gradually their former attitude toward him changed. His sermons were less criticised and were taken more to heart, and he was gladly welcomed whenever he called on them. These changes were slow in coming, but were permanent.

Again was it almost time for Conference. On the evening of his birthday the pastor was seated in the comfortable parlor with his wife and adopted child. After a while conversation lagged, and each seemed busy with his own thoughts. The minister mentally began summing up his year's work and planning to make the next year a soul-saving period. He was not so sad as he was a year ago, for, although much was yet to be done, still something had been accomplished for the Master. Occasionally he glanced curiously at his wife, who seemed so restless, and then at the little girl, whose eyes were unusually bright. He wondered a little why they could not keep still.

Soon the mystery was solved. The pastor heard the tramping of many feet, a murmur of many voices, and soon a loud ring at the door. His wife's face broke into smiles, as she heard the noise and hastened to let the visitors in. The merry throng entered and gathered around the minister, whose astonishment was boundless. The surprise had been well kept. The young folks' birthday present to their beloved pastor was a handsome copy of the "Sistine Madonna." He fully appreciated their kindness, but valued most of all their love and respect, for he realized that this would enable him to get them to work for their Master. The evening was pleasantly spent, and was a memorable one to all; and if the minister lives to see as many happy birthdays as his friends wished him, he will live to be at least three score and ten.

"The New Evangelism."

"The new evangelism!" What is it? In this day of discovery and scientific surprises your correspondent awaited with keenest interest the arrival of Rev. Dr. W. J. Dawson, of Highbury Quadrant Church, London, whose coming had been widely advertised, and who, with the shibboleth of a "new evangelism," conducted what was styled "a mission by voice and pen," in old Plymouth Church. The meetings began on Sunday, November 13th, and concluded last Sunday, the 20th.

The scheme for these special services included a sermon each evening by Dr. Dawson, a whole page of the Brooklyn Eagle each afternoon devoted to a stenographic report of the sermon of the previous evening, and a special newspaper discussion by Dr. Hillis and other distinguished gentlemen of the nation, on such familiar subjects as "The Sanctity of the Sabbath," "The Peril of Moral Illiteracy," "Christ and the Working Classes," and other phases of the social problem.

You can imagine, Mr. Editor, that the church people in this part of Greater Gotham were filled with sympathetic expectancy, and sincerely prayed for the greatest success of these evangelistic services. It is my purpose to endeavor to give you, as you have requested, a fair and unprejudiced account of these interesting meetings. Unfortunately, the opening Sunday was the day of that ferocious storm which swept the North Atlantic coast. All of the church congregations were greatly depleted, and, of course, the audiences at Plymouth Church were much reduced.

In presenting Dr. Dawson to his congregation on that first Sunday, Dr. Hillis assured his distinguished visitor of an affectionate welcome, in the spirit of which the people manifestly participated. Dr. Hillis, in this introductory address, said:

"For some of us the old evangelism has lost its power. Many of you have felt, as I certainly have, that a great gulf has been digged between culture and evangelistic fervor. Our generation has known but one man in whom the two things were blended—Henry Drummond. Prof. Drummond was a scientist, a theistic evolutionist, but first of all, and above all, he was an evangelist. In him culture and fervor were united in ideal relations. He had the intellect of the scholar; he had also the flaming heart of an Apostle. And now that Drummond has gone, we have all longed for a man who would preach the great simplicities and embody evangelism plus reasonableness; and this without any of the appeals to fear, without emphasis of a barbarous mediævalism or a dead philosophy. And I trust that Mr. Dawson will not object to my saying that the explanation of the warm welcome given him by the multitudes in our country has been the fact that he has struck a new evangelistic note, and struck it true and firm."

Dr. Dawson, as he arose, spoke feelingly of the cordial welcome extended to him, and then said:

"If, during this week, we may have in our midst, in this service, the quickening power of the Holy Spirit as I pray, if our own hearts can catch anew the evangelistic fire and the propaganda spirit of Christianity, and if, above all, we may have the joy of seeing in these services men and women consecrating themselves to Jesus Christ and His service, I shall feel that this week is the greatest week of my life. My own church in London is praying for this service this morning. Before I thus begin the first address which I have planned, may I ask every one here during this day—during all this week—to pray for these services? 'More things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of;' and where a whole church prays, through the weakest word that may be spoken from the pulpit there pulsates the divine power, not explicable on human grounds; and it is for that gift of divine power that I pray this morning, and I invite you to pray for it during the week."

This "new evangelistic note," when struck by Dr. Dawson, sounded so sweetly familiar to me that I said to myself, this may be a new evangelism to some people, but so far it is strangely like the "old, old story that I have loved so long."

The sermon which followed was on the theme, "Our Duty to the Bystander," from the text, "But because of the people which stand by I said it, that they may believe that Thou hast sent me." (John 2: 42.) The sermon had the right ring, and was full of Gospel tidings, the climax of which was reached in this strong, true statement:

"Of all these vast populations around us to-day, of the million and three hundred thousand people in Brooklyn, there is not one who is not a saint in embryo; who has not a little bit of the spiritual fibre that might make an Apostle, and every lost soul is an accusation against the church, and every ruined life is ruined through the apostasy of the church. 'It is not the will of your Father,' said Jesus, 'that one of these little ones should perish.' Whose will is it, then? Why, yours and mine, when we go upon our blind, selfish way and forget the bystander."

On Sunday night the sermon created much interest. The theme was: "The Unavoidable Christ." A political leader listened to the sermon and remarked: "It is one of the most remarkable sermons ever preached in Plymouth Church, and, for that matter, in any church." This enthusiastic comment was truly justified by the sermon itself.

For the sake of Christian workers who are interested in the best methods of evangelistic work, I will give to you in detail an account of the service of Tuesday evening. The meeting opened with a Gospel hymn led by a precentor and a piano. The music was not hearty; it lacked rallying power. Dr. Dawson read four requests for prayer which he had received through the day, and the audience was led in prayer by Dr. Hillis. A young woman sang, "O Jesus, Thou Art Standing." The pastor made the announcements, and especially urged the people to buy copies of the Eagle and send to their friends.

The time for the sermon had now come. Dr. Dawson is physically robust, of average stature, with black hair and bristling mustache and swarthy complexion. He wears clerical clothes. He has a good voice, the upper tones of which he uses more than the lower register. His subject was, "The Ministry of Night." It was the story of Nicodemus' interview with Jesus. The preacher's manner was deliberate and earnest, but not vociferous. He used a manuscript, turning his notes page by page, though he passed easily into pure extemporaneous utterance, sustaining the fine literary quality of his phrases; but the most impressive things he said were read from his notes. His style was simple, but his thought was strong, and his sentences were piquant and often epigrammatic. There was, however, nothing unusual about this sermon. It was useful, but not unique; prepared, but not persuasive; Scriptural, but not soulful; sincere, but not sympathetic. The sermon received the respect of the head, but not the response of the heart. It did not create any throb in the soul of the listener. Any cultured, earnest preacher would not be filled with despair as he listened. Indeed, I think it is only fair to say that just as effective work is being done by thousands of consecrated men in the pulpits of this country. This is not said in disparagement of the good man from abroad, but for the encouragement of many devout men, who, without fame or notoriety, are faithfully preaching a convincing and compelling Gospel. After the sermon, "I Need Thee Every Hour" was sung; and then, as the audience was seated for a silent prayer, Dr. Dawson asked any persons to rise who desired prayers, or who wished to commence a Christian life, but there was no response.

The house was about two-thirds full. Most of the people were above middle life—many with silvery hair. There were many clergymen, but not many young people. It was a clear moonlight night. The meetings were exploited in the papers and advertised on the fenders of the street cars. I write you these particulars that your readers at a distance may see and hear through the medium of your correspondent. It would give me infinitely more pleasure to be able to tell you that multitudes thronged the church and that hundreds were inquiring, "What must we do to be saved?"

There was a larger audience on Thursday evening, and an increase of interest. The theme of Dr. Dawson's sermon was "The Last Step." It was an elaboration of the Scripture, "And He went a little further," which refers to our Lord leaving His disciples at the edge of the olive grove while He went into His Gethsemane. The sermon was personal, pointed, suggestive, searching, appealing. In these addresses there is not the slightest tendency toward uneasy liberalism or the use of any uncertain terminology, and no apologetic explanation or defence of the Scriptures. It is the old-fashioned, orthodox, natural, and confident Gospel. The speaker said this last step made Jesus the world's Redeemer. Only those who go a little further become heroes. How few church people are willing to take the last step of self-denial! A step further, and Jesus found God. Sometimes the step is in the dark, but some men do not get hold of God's hand until they reach out in the night. Go a little further, and doubt your doubts. When you come to die it will avail you nothing that you almost took the last step.

Such truths as these constituted this wholesome sermon; if unbelievers were not awakend, Christians were warned and inspired. In response to an invitation for people to stand who wished prayers for themselves or for others, about a dozen persons arose.

Dr. Dawson preached to crowded houses on Sunday, and on Monday night delivered an address on evangelism, and left on Tuesday morning for London. The interest in the meetings increased nightly, but because of the impersonal character of the services it is impossible to tell how many persons have accepted Christ as their Saviour as a result of this endeavor.

Your New England readers are perhaps familiar with Dr. Dawson's address, which he has delivered on several occasions, in which he defined the "New Evangelism;" but after careful observation during this eight days' meeting, I am gratified to say that the "new evangelism," so called, seems to me to be only the old evangelism anew. It is new only to those who are hearing it or applying it for the first time. To Methodists the doctrines and methods are familiar, and the spirit and purpose are identical with the purpose and spirit so fruitfully employed by us for a hundred and fifty years. If there is anything new in this present evangelism that is its weakness, and all in it that is old is its strength.

completely "culture and evangelistic power;" it successfully avoids "barbarous mediævalism or dead philosophy." All announcements of a "new evangelism" to-day are only the tardy discovery and application of mighty secrets which were revealed decades ago to the Wesleys, Whitfield and Jonathan Edwards.

These meetings were instructive and entertaining, but they lacked response from those who needed salvation. Perhaps the failure to use specific methods was one reason for the absence of immediate results. An altar or prayer, an inquiry-room, a company of trained workers, an after-meeting for testimony and personal touch—all of these seemed to be needed. Perhaps there were many persons who might have desired to accept Christ who did not know how. It will not do to discount the emotions in the religious life; "for with the heart man believeth unto righteousness." Christ makes His appeal to the heart; and any "mission" or revival service in which the heart-throb of the preacher and his church is not heard is not apt to be the occasion when wandering men will cry out: "What must I do to be saved?" A noted preacher in the pulpit, and the long-distance, rapid-firing artillery of even a whole page of a daily paper, should be considered merely as incidental accessories to any great evangelistic influence. There is no substitute for heart examination, sorrow for sin, importuning and intercessory prayer, and wrestling with God. Dr. Dawson's best sermons, and those which more strongly gripped his audiences, were those in which he appealed directly to the emotions of his hearers.

The pastors of Highbury Quadrant Church and Plymouth Church are both sincere, able, godly men. These meetings were held with an earnest desire to improve the spiritual condition of this city. The Word of God was faithfully expounded, and we may be sure that in so far as this undertaking has reached the level of worthiness, it will receive the blessing of Christ and bring forth fruit.—Zion's Herald.

A Mother's Letter to a Young Minister.

My Dear Son:—Thank you for sending me a copy of your sermon before the class in homiletics. You exercised good judgment in making it simple and brief. The commendatory words of the professor were kind and encouraging. I hope you will always try to make your presentation of truth as simple as possible. There is not only virtue, but sublimity in simplicity. And no one appreciates the power and beauty of plain, transparent speech more than the most highly cultured man. And, of course, the unlearned are delighted to find that they, uneducated as they are, can understand the words of the preacher.

As to brevity, how times have changed! I remember when few sermons were shorter than an hour and a half, and I have heard sermons, and enjoyed them, too, which were much longer than that. But let a minister preach such long sermons in these days, and his congregations would speedily dwindle.

I suppose there are occasions when a minister is justified in preaching an hour, such as ordination services or great anniversaries, but a pastor who preaches twice each Sunday to the same congregation should not go beyond thirty-five or forty minutes. Knowing the limitations of his time, he will address himself more directly to the argument, devoting less time to unnecessary introduction and elaboration.

I have heard that the students at Cornell much prefer the fifteen-minute talks Sunday afternoons to the longer discourses of the morning, when famous men come to preach the university sermons in Sage Chapel. They say the short addresses are more direct and practical. And I confess I have often derived greater benefit from the brief homilies of our pastor on Wednesday evenings than from some of his more elaborate efforts.

This is a hurried age. Alas, that it is so! But it is so, and preachers are wise who, having a message to deliver, remember Luther's motto: "Stand up manfully; speak up cheerfully; leave off speedily."

I remember the chapel talks I used to hear when I was in the G—— Seminary. Each one was a sermon, and each sermon was a message, yet no one of them was over ten minutes in length.

I wonder if sermons should not be built on the plan of the heavenly city, whose length and breadth and height were equal? Please do not think I am trying to force upon you a mechanical idea of your pulpit work.

I fancy that some preachers have a notion that each sermon must be about so long. Under such a delusion they labor to stretch out a line of thought which has already ended, and resort to "padding" to do it. Or they suddenly drop a thought, which if pressed a little further, might lead some hearer to the point of self-surrender.

I think I observed an example of the error not long ago. A stranger was occupying our pulpit. His sermon was a strong one and delivered with great earnestness. The people were deeply interested and looked to a fitting conclusion in a final proposition, a "summing up" and an appeal, when suddenly he closed the Bible and led in final prayer. I do not know why he ended so abruptly, so prematurely, unless the ringing of the bell in the City Hall tower across the square warned him that 12 o'clock would set the people to thinking about dinner. Five minutes more and the sermon would have been like a finished temple, but he failed to put the roof on.

Did I speak of "building a sermon?" I prefer a sermon that has grown, rather than one that has been built. (Am I wicked to criticise so much?) Some sermons impress me as having been made by a mechanical process. I can almost tell where this and that part came from—not plagiarism, but honest work, only lacking in organic unity. Others seem more the result of a living process. They come from the inner life of the preacher. He has gotten them by evolution rather than by accretion.

Dear son, I covet for you "the best gifts." I want you to be the highest type of a preacher, not that you may fare the better in worldly advantages, but that you may the more faithfully and fruitfully represent to the needy sons of men the gospel of spirit and of life.

Once religion meant to me something to put on. But God is nearer to me than when I first believed, and now I think of religion—our religion—as something, a force, to be put into human life, and to be wrought out by the right use of every faculty.

I pray for you daily, never asking anything for myself that I do not ask more for you; never thanking Him for anything without thanking Him most of all that He counted you worthy to be called into the ministry. Your affectionate Mother.—Western Christian Advocate.

The Field

Nathaniel M. Jurney.

Rev. Nathaniel M. Jurney was born in Surry County, N. C., January 11, 1848.

He died at Mt. Olive, November 6, 1904.

When he was twelve years of age his father moved to Olin, N. C., and there he grew to manhood.

His father was a physician and a local preacher in the Methodist Church, a man of gifts, of deep piety, and of generous nature which showed itself in kindness to the needy and suffering.

His mother, a noble Christian woman, died when he was young, but not before she impressed an unfading influence for good on her son, and her memory was a sacred and revered thing with him, a precious ointment pouring its benign fragrance into his life, and holding him, amid all the experiences through which he passed, firmly to his faith in God, and to his unwavering purpose to meet her in heaven.

He was converted in early life and joined the church of his parents.

He was educated at Trinity College, working his own way to an education, and graduated in four years, and we are told, with honors. His college days were happy days with him. His genial and frank nature, his open-heartedness and sociability won him many friends among his school fellows. He took an active interest in the literary and religious work of the college.

During this period he was brought in close relationship with Dr. Craven who showed a personal interest in the warm-hearted, earnest student, and the Doctor's influence, advice, and great life did much toward inspiring his pupil to develop his life and character after a high standard. An abiding friendship grew up between them, which Brother Jurney cherished as one of the most sacred experiences of his life.

He was graduated at the commencement in 1874, and at the session of the North Carolina Conference in Raleigh the same year he was admitted on trial. His first appointment was Person Street, Raleigh. That year the church was blessed with a great revival and a large accession of members. He continued in active relationship, serving many important charges until 1900, when he was located at his own request. In 1886, he was married to Miss Belle Sabiston of Beaufort, N. C. He could not have been more fortunate in his marriage. She was just the woman for him. With a sunny nature, warm-hearted, industrious, tactful and deeply religious, she made his home a happy one. She shared with him cheerfully the experiences of the itinerancy and helped him in his work. To them have been given four children, one now dead.

The two sons are both members of the Methodist Church, and give promise of becoming worthy and useful men.

The youngest, a daughter, is yet too young to realize her great loss.

Brother Jurney was a very devoted husband and father, and enjoyed greatly the companionship of his wife and children, and constantly sought their welfare. And they loved him with a beautiful affection. It was a touching scene that melted many to tears when standing by the coffin of his father in the church, his younger son, Nat., said to the congregation: "This is my father, and by the grace of God I will meet him in heaven."

Brother Jurney was a zealous friend of Trinity College. He served as financial agent of the College in his early ministry, and has been for years a valued trustees. It was largely through his efforts that the Craven Memorial Hall was built, and it stands a beautiful and lasting monument to his zeal and fidelity. He located at the Conference at New Bern in 1900, but has continued to preach as opportunity offered.

He was a man of kind and sympathetic nature, and the revealments of eternity will manifest many a kind and charitable act that none but the recipients knew of.

He was a man of large natural gifts and his sermons were often delivered with a power and pathos that instructed and moved and delighted the hearers. At Mt. Olive where he lived, no preacher could attract larger audiences than he.

He was firm and strong in his attachments, and had many friends who feel, as does the writer, a sense of personal loss in his death.

The large concourse of people at his funeral, and the many tear-filled eyes, told of the esteem in which he was held in the community.

A brave, strong man with many excellencies of character has fallen, and he will be missed. We trust he has joined the sainted mother, whom he so often said he wanted to meet in heaven.

F. D. SWINDELL.

A Layman's Impression of the Conference.

If you have space in the Advocate, I want to write a few lines; I want to say, my wife and self attended four days session of the Conference, and would have staid longer but for the inclement weather; we enjoyed the Conference very much, as this was our first, and especially did we enjoy meeting our former pastors and friends.

Some we did not see at all. But we want to say how much we enjoyed Bishop Candler's sermon Sunday morning, and also the other ones. We also enjoyed the Bishop's wit. Tar River Circuit is glad to have the Bishop send Brother Ormond back to us for another year, at least.

Our ex-pastor, Bro. R. H. Broom, stopped over at Kittrell from Conference, and spent two days with his sheep, and to see if they had been fed, and what with. Brother Broom preached to us Wednesday night, and gave us one among his best sermons. We enjoyed it and his visit very much.

Brother Ormond has gone to see his mother, but he will not miss filling any preaching appointment.

Thanking you for the space for these few lines in the Advocate, I remain

Yours in the faith,

V. V. HESTER.

Kittrell, N. C., Dec. 8, 1904.

A Note.

Please note in the column for the Orphanage the following, which was reported in whole to the Conference, with the names of each church and its contribution which is as follows: Charity, $8.07; Kenansville, $3.25; Friendship, $2.03; Warsaw, $1.23. Total, $14.58.

This was taken up on Thanksgiving day, and the churches want it published.

Truly,

W. D. SASSER.

Trinity College Notes.

Trinity College, Durham, N. C., Dec. 8, 1904.

Mr. S. F. Mordecai, Dean of the Law Department at Trinity College, is spending this week at Cambridge, Mass., visiting the Law School of Harvard University. He will go from there to Columbia University and then to the University of Pennsylvania. He is on a tour visiting the principal law schools of the country. He will be away from the college for several days.

It is a source of gratification to the College community that Rev. T. A. Smoot has been sent as pastor to Main Street Church, in Durham. A large number from the College community attend services at this church. Mr. Smoot is a graduate of Trinity College, class '95, and he has been a very successful minister.

Rev. W. L. Cuninggim who has greatly endeared himself to the College community, has been stationed at Goldsboro, and the people of that city are to be congratulated.

Hon. James H. Southgate, President of the Board of Trustees, in his report to the two Conferences of the State said: "During the academic year which ended June 8, there were matriculated in the two schools 403 students, 237 in College classes, and 166 in the Trinity Park School. The present academic year began September 7, and to date there have been matriculated in college classes 241, and in the Trinity Park School 190, total 431. At the corresponding date of the previous year there were matriculated 375 students. There are in the faculty of this College 23 teachers, and in the faculty of the Park School there are 6 teachers. There are in the two schools 33 teachers and officers. The academic departments of the College now offer 171 courses of study.

During the summer your Executive Committee organized a Law Department, with a faculty of three teachers. The plan of this new department contemplates the addition of another teacher, who will be added at some future time. The departments of History and Economy offer courses in the Department of Law.

Tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock, in Craven Memorial Hall, will occur the installation of Prof. J. A. Bivins as Headmaster of the Trinity Park School. Addresses will be made by Rev. T. F. Marr, D. D., of Charlotte, President Kilgo, Prof. F. S. Aldridge, of Trinity Park School, Mr. J. P. Frizzelle for the graduates ,and by Headmaster Bivins. The public is cordially invited.

Glints of Gold.

Old friends, old scenes will lovelier be
As more of heaven in each we see.
His, not mine, are the gifts; and only so far can
I make them,
Mine, as in giving, I add my heart to whatever is given. —Longfellow.

The still sweet influence of a life of prayer
Quickens their hearts who never bow the knee.
So come fresh draughts of living inland air
To weary, homesick men far out at sea.
Acquaint thyself with God, O man, and lo!
His light shall, like a garment, round thee flow.
—Alice Cary.

It is not easy with a mind like ours
To bid the pleadings of self-love be still,
Resign our own, and seek our Maker's will.
Self-love dismissed, 'tis then we live indeed—
In her embrace, death, only death, is found.
Come, then; one noble effort, and succeed;
Cast off the chain of self with which thy soul is bound. —Cowper.

God gives us love. Sometimes to love
He lends us; but when love is grown
To ripeness, that on which it throve
Falls off, and love is left alone.
God's ways seem dark; but, soon or late,
They touch the shining hills of day:
The evil cannot brook delay,
The good can well afford to wait.
—Whittier.

At Christmas time next year.
Who knows what changing fortunes may be near?
Take courage then! For night shall turn to day,
From brightening skies the clouds must roll away,
And faith and hope and love shall all be here
At Christmas time next year.
—Helen M. Winslow.

Just live thy life in full content,
Do all thy best with what is sent,
Thou but receivest what was meant
Just live thy life.
Just live thy life. Be not in fear.
The strength of wrong shall disappear.
And right is ever drawing near.
Just live thy life.
Just live thy life. Seem what thou art.
Nor from simplicity depart,
And peace shall come upon thy heart.
Just live thy life.
—J. L. Stockton, in Boston Transcript.

At a most reasonable cost of $17,500 the trustees of the Wesley Memorial Hospital have purchased a lot, 150x190, on the corner of Auburn Avenue and Courtland Street, Atlanta, with a large house on it that can be easily and cheaply converted into a hospital.

Woman's work in Brazil is prospering above the ordinary. The new school in Bello Horizonte, "Beautiful Horizon," which opened two months ago, is meeting with great success. Miss Mattie Watts, of the Louisville Conference Society, and Miss Howell, of the Western North Carolina Conference Society, have charge of this new enterprise.

The Family

BAD BOOK-KEEPING.

Some Notes About Borrowing Books.

The statement that the borrower is servant to the lender, does not apply in the case of the book-borrower. He is nobody's servant; and while it would doubtless be wrong to suggest that a majority of book-borrowers are dishonest, it is certainly true that a great many of them have memories which are inconveniently short, and others are careless, that is, they cease to care what becomes of a borrowed book after they have read or used it. It is not only the great libraries and the second-hand bookstores that constantly lose books, but most private libraries have vacant spaces and broken sets through the fault of borrowers and forgetful friends.

When I was a senior in Williams College, more than fifty years ago, and my library was confined to the books needful to a student, my experience of borrowers began. A lower-class man asked one day for the loan of Anthon's Classical Dictionary. It was a large and valuable book of Reference, by Prof. Charles Anthon, of Columbia College, and of course was very useful to a student of the classics. As I was engaged in other departments, the absence of the book was not noted for some months, but when the time drew near for me to graduate, I asked for the return of the volume, which was promised, but I graduated without receiving it. When I went to teach, I wrote to the borrower, but he never replied. He became himself a teacher, and established a school in New Jersey, and several years after I ventured to remind him again that he had my dictionary. He replied, that he thought I had given it to him, and that as he found it very useful in his profession, he was sure that I would let him keep it, and keep it he did so long as he lived. He is dead now and the dictionary is out of date.

I was repeating this story to a friend of the late Rev. Dr. Howard Crosby, the other day, and he told of an incident in Dr. Crosby's experience not unlike my own. He missed a volume from a valuable set of books of reference. A careful search failed to reveal the absent volume, but one day at a friend's house, while waiting in his library, he was struck with the appearance of an odd volume of the same set among the other books. Upon looking into it he found his name written on the front page, and was therefore sure that it was his lost volume, though he could not imagine how it came to his friend's bookshelf, and the friend could not tell how he came by it. Probably the benevolent loser labaled the case, "unconscious kleptomania."

While I was a student in Union Theological Seminary, there was a bookseller in Nassau Street, with whom the students did much trading, and his shop became quite a resort for young theologues. It happened that one day a student who was much better off in worldly goods than the majority of them, paid a visit to the Nassau Street book store, and became so interested in the contents of the shelves, that he spent several hours in looking over the books. At length, having finished his inspection he took up a volume of Schleiermacher's works, then newly published, and sought the bookseller. He came upon him suddenly, and promptly asked the price. To this the man replied, much to the student's amazement: "Oh, you don't want that book!" "What do you mean?" said the student. "I mean what I say; I know your kind, you come and spend a morning here, and then ask some fool question about a set of books, and after you have gone I miss a volume or two. You can go right along." The student was justly indignant, but he kept his temper, and only said, "You have made a serious mistake, sir, but I will give you a chance to correct it, and apologize to me. If you will send that set of books to my house with the bill and a suitable note, I will pay their price to the bearer." The shop-keeper evidently regarded this as a "bluff," for he never sent the books. He had reason to know his mistake, however, by the loss of trade with those who heard the tale and dealt no more with him. The man whom he insulted, became in after years himself a publisher of books and periodicals, and it is quite certain that he had no more dealings with that bookseller than the Jews had with the Samaritans. I have no doubt that the bookseller had suffered in the way which he narrated, but he was a bad judge of mankind, and evidently a poor business man, or he would have sent the books home with a profound apology and gained a customer and probably a friend.

The meanest sort of borrowing is that which is often inflicted upon public libraries and more rarely upon private individuals. There are men so mean that they will cut out the plates from valuable illustrated books, either for their own use, or to sell them to book lovers who make "extended" copies of important works by inserting manifold plates and pictures. I have two volumes in my library that have been thus robbed; the pictures are gone and even some parts of the text, but I have no suspicion or imagination of the mutilator. Whoever he was, I would far rather he would have stolen the entire volumes, for these crippled books are like chronic invalids in my library among a lot of sound and healthy volumes. Mr. James Lenox, who founded the great library in this city, which has been consolidated with the Astor and other collections to form the City Library, used to be criticised for the strict rules which he made for the use or exhibition of his books when they were a private collection or but he was probably right in not allowing books to be taken out or even used in the library without the presence of an attendant, and in requiring the personal introduction of those who wished to view or consult his books. He knew the ways of borrowers, and his principles of book-keeping were sound. Since his death, under careful public inspection, the library has become a most largely used, and largely useful institution. There is nothing easier to borrow than a book, unless it be a wheel-barrow, and few things that seem more difficult to remember to return. Even schoolboys have coarse rhymes which they scrawl on the blank leaves of their lesson books, like the following which has come down inscribed in the books of those who were boys a hundred years ago:

Steal not this book, my honest (?) friend.
For fear the gallows should be your end,
And in the judgement of God should say,
Where is that book you stole away?

AUGUSTUS.

A Minister's Virtue.

A certain pastor had reached middle life and his prime of power and usefulness. Yet he died. As his body was carried reverently and lovingly from the large and beautiful church just completed, everyone thought of how his pastoral life had been characterized by steady and fruitful growth. Growth: that was characteristic of him. It was accounted for by the roots of his character. Peter speaks of them in his Second Letter: "Add to your faith virtue," he says, "and to virtue other things."

This pastor had a faith profound, sound, simple and sincere. It was profound, touching the deepest veritics of human and divine nature; sound, because he received it from godly parents, worked it out from the Scriptures and tested it by wide study; simple, because the chief things in it were the few great things that really matter; and sincere, because it was of the heart as well as of the head, not an atom of it that he did not preach and try to live daily. This faith of his held strongly and lived faithfully, was the foundation of his character. To that faith he added virtue.

Virtue means two things. First it means cleanness. He was clean. The man was like his manner, his inner habits like his outer habit, like his dress and address all and always clean-cut. In college he was that rare thing, a clean young man. He loathed coarse, low, vulgar things. An unconscious look of nauseated disgust spread over his face when he heard an improper story or a low joke. He turned resolutely toward clean, fine, high things. In a virile young man such as he was, athlete, full of high spirits, that meant relentless warfare against the animal in him. It meant self-conquest, the spirit ruling the brute. And that meant, as self-discipline always does, power. Without self-discipline the most gifted nature is weak and uncertain and early declines. He was beautiful in the sight of men and angels, and of God, and he had power.

But virtue means also manliness, virility, strength, courage. You could not know this man without feeling, under his habitual courtesy, gentleness and refinement, a strong virility. You were sure that on fitting occasion he could be stern, indignant, even rough, could strike out from the shoulder at a man or half-a-dozen men, if that would serve God and men. Hypocrites, sneaks, dead-beats, evil minded brutes, must have felt fear of him. What a soldier he would have made; what a frontiersman! What a power for manliness he must have been to the young men he once tutored in a college! But he was needed in his city church. No place on earth needs pure, self-controlled and virile manhood more than the seats of our highest civilization. We are in peril of weakness and emasculation through our refinements. Luxuries make us lazy in life eternal. The peace that makes money-getting easy and life comfortable is sometimes reckoned a higher good than it really is. We tend to sacrifice truth, honesty of purpose, speech and behavior, to love of quiet comfort. Such men as this minister, whose virtue of cleanness was beautiful and strong, whose virtue of manhood was strong and beautiful, are the salt and saviours of our society.

And they are greatly needed in the church. In front of the golden temple of Solomon, on either side of the entrance, toward two strong and beautiful columns of bronze, more than fifty feet in height and adorned with exquisite art. They were named Jachin and Boaz. Strength and Beauty. They adorned and guarded the door of the house of the Lord. And such, towering, strong, beautiful, an ornament and a guardian of God's house, was this pastor. What a protecter of the weak he was, as such men always are; clean and cleansing, strong and strengthening, pure and pitiful, true and tender. Happy the church with such a minister. Happy such a minister of a church.

But Peter's words were not addressed especially to ministers. The pastor needs no virtue that other men do not need. Such men, Jachin and Boaz men, men rooted in such faith and such virtue, are needed in every home, in every school, in every session, diaconate and board of church trustees, and everywhere else! And when God, through the pen of transformed Peter, tells us to add virtue to our faith, He, who is able to make Peters out of Simons, can and will make us men of virtue if we try, in faith, to do our part.

THE GIFTS OF RICHARD M. SCRUGGS.

Richard M. Scruggs was a princely layman of St. Louis Methodism. He had the riches of earth and the riches of heaven. He died sometime ago and left the following legacies: the sum of $25,000 each to the St. Louis Provident Association, Central College at Fayette, Mo., and the Bethesda of St. Louis; $10,000 to Cook Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, South; $10,000 to the Virginia Presbyterian Orphans Home at Lynchburg; $5,000 each to Bishops E. R. Hendrix, Chas. B. Galloway, A. W. Wilson, E. E. Hoss, and W. A. Candler for foreign missions; $5,000 each to W. A. Lambuth, Missionary Society of the M. E. Church, South; The Girls Industrial Home at St. Louis, the Assembly Home and School at Fredericksburg, Va., the St. Louis Conference, and $2,500 for the school of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Fredericktown, Mo.

Thus Richard M. Scruggs will continue to live and bless humanity for the years to come.

Our Boys and Girls

The Yellow Leaves.

The yellow leaves are falling,
They flutter on the breeze,
And tenderly are calling:
"Good-bye, good-bye, dear trees!"

The yellow leaves are falling,
They tumble from on high,
And turn to murmur softly:
"Good-bye, good-bye, dear sky!"

The yellow leaves are falling,
They scatter one by one,
And turn again to whisper:
"Good-bye, good-bye, dear sun!"

The yellow leaves have fallen,
And seared and dead they lie;
The brown earth holds them closely,
"Good-bye, dear leaves, good-bye!"
—Constance M. Lowe, in Cassell's Little Folks.

The One-Talent Girl.

"I wish I had a million dollars," sighed Marion.

Her father glanced from his paper to the sweet, flushed face. He laid down his paper. "What would you do if you had a million dollars?"

"I've been reading about Miss Helen Gould and the good she has done. I would build an orphan's home and educate poor children," she answered.

"Marion, have you ever read the parable of the ten talents?"

"Why, yes, father."

"Who did the most good?"

"The one with the most talents, of course. He had something to do with," answered Marion.

"What did the man with one talent do?"

"Hid it."

"That is true to-day. The men with money are doing much good. Most of them, like Miss Helen Gould, have nobly done their part, and the men with one talent look on, envy, and let their own talent rust," her father earnestly said.

Marion was sixteen, and an earnest, thoughtful girl. "You mean"—she began, and then hesitated.

"Just what I said, Marion. You are wishing for a million dollars. If you had it, you would educate the poor. Last night Mrs. Brewster brought your mother's dress home. You were in the parlor, at the piano. Little Mamie ran to the door and eagerly drank in every note. The poor mother sighed and wished she could afford to give the child lessons. You have been studying music under splendid teachers for six years. Are you hiding your talent, Marion?"

"I have been, papa, but I am going to dig it up this very day," she answered. She ruffled him tenderly on the head and left the room.

Mrs. Brewster was at the sewing machine, and Mamie sat before a table. She had an open book before her, and was moving her hands as if at a piano. There was a low knock at the door, and Mrs. Brewster looked around. "Come in, Miss Marion. Mamie, give Miss Marion that chair. She has been playing that table is a piano ever since she heard you play last night."

"Does she love music?"

"O, yes. She can play a little by ear, and doesn't know anything about music," the mother answered. And then Marion heard a little sigh.

"Will you let me give her lessons?" asked Marion.

"I'd like to, Miss Marion, but I can't spare the money."

"O, I don't mean that way. I want to give her the lessons without any money," cried Marion. "I've studied music for six years, and I think I can teach her."

Tears came to the widow's eyes. "You don't know what that means to us, Miss Marion. I want Mamie to have every advantage, and God will bless you. I can't thank you enough. Mamie, do you hear? Miss Marion is going to give you lessons."

Marion slipped out as quickly as possible. Thanks always embarrassed her. There were to be sacrifices, she soon found. She must miss walks with her girl friends. Sometimes she didn't feel well; but she persevered, and little Mamie learned fast.

Marion's girl friends were surprised when she began teaching Mamie. They knew her father's income did not require her aid.

Finally Stella Lawton, Marion's closest girl friend, found out the secret from the little dressmaker. She told the other girls. "And Marion never said a word about its being free."

When they spoke to Marion about it, she quietly told of the talk she had had with her father.

"I've been wondering what I could do. I don't even know what my one talent is," sighed Stella.

"There is your elocution training, Stella. Granny Wilson will be so glad if you would read to her. Your articulation is so clear that she could understand you well. You see, since father opened my eyes I have seen opportunities I didn't see before," Marion answered.

"What can I do?" questioned Bessie Morris.

Marion thought for a minute. "When I had pneumonia last winter mother said she would feel safe when she left you with me. You could help nurse the little child at Mrs. Baker's.'

Bessie's clear laugh rang out. "I've been thinking, too. I sat up there last night," she answered.

Marion's father came in the gate and straight across the lawn to the girls. "What are you magpies chattering about?" he asked.

They told him.

"I haven't decided yet, Mr. Barr. What can I do?" asked Grace Russell.

"If I had your beautiful voice, I could find what to do, Grace. The children at the Orphans' Home need training, and any lonely home would be brightened when you had sung some sweet song. There are many places where a beautiful voice may be used. Mother is calling me. I must go; but let me say, dear girls, that you are gathering sheaves for the great harvest. Every good deed or kind word spoken, or I might say, every talent spent lifts your own and some other heart closer to God," she said, softly.—M. A. Bullock, in Children's Visitor.

The Adopted Kitten.

"Oh, mamma, mayn't I stay home from school and 'muse Nellie this morning, 'cause she feels so bad?" Susie cried, rushing into the breakfast room.

Mamma didn't hear at first.

She was rocking baby and giving three-year-old Robbie his breakfast, and directing Minnie about her lunch, so perhaps it was no wonder Susie had to pull her arm and repeat the question.

"It's Nellie Wilson, mamma. The poor-house man is coming over for her this morning, 'cause she hasn't anywhere to go now; her mamma and papa are dead, and Nellie's 'fraid. May be I won't ever have another chance."

"The poor little thing. Yes, I suppose so."

Susie was dragging the forlorn little figure in shabby black out to the brush-pile where Furry-purry had hidden her kittens.

"She don't mind our looking at 'em," she said eagerly, reaching under the brush for one.

"It's the boys and dogs she hid 'em from. Look, aren't they pretty? 'Most big enough to drink milk for themselves now."

Home Made

Have your cake, muffins, and tea biscuit home-made. They will be fresher, cleaner, more tasty and wholesome.

Royal Baking Powder helps the housewife to produce at home, quickly and economically, fine and tasty cake, the raised hot-biscuit, puddings, the frosted layer-cake, crisp cookies, crullers, crusts and muffins, with which the ready-made food found at the bake-shop or grocery does not compare.

Royal is the greatest of bake-day helps.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

But presently, with loving pats and soft caresses, they restored the treasures to her and scampered off to the barn to hunt eggs.

Into all the usual nooks and corners they peered, then scrambled up on the hay papa had bought three days before, and Susie cuddled down into it, making believe she was a bird and trying to chirp.

But suddenly Nellie asked: "Why, Susie, did you bring one of the kittens out? I hear a mewing."

They scrambled over to the other side and listened again. "She's got a hole away down in the hay. Kitty! Kitty!"

"It's lost," she said, "and it's so little and crying for its mother. Can't we get it out?"

"Why, it can't see out of its eyes, they are so full of dust," Nellie said, pityingly. "And how thin it is, and so rough! It looks as if she was 'most starved to death."

And Susie exclaimed: "Why-ee, it isn't one of our kitties at all!"

"Why, Susie! Whose is it, then?"

"I don't know. But it's litter than Furry's-purry's, and bluer; and hers are so plump, and this looks as if it never had anything to eat. It's most like hers, but it ain't. Let's go and show it to mamma."

Mamma looked at it curiously. "No, it's not Furry-purry's—looks as if it were Maltese. Found it in the hay, you say? Then it must be Mr. Dean's cat had her nest in the haystack, and he loaded it in with the hay without knowing it."

"Take it to Furry-purry. She may take it for one of her own and take care of it. That is the only thing we can do," mamma said.

Susie carried the kitten tenderly out on the steps and called: "Furry-purry! Kitty! Kitty!"

The little girls followed and peeped under the brushpile, presently returning to report that Furry-purry had taken the waif to her bosom, was nursing it, and gently washing the dust out of the blinded eyes with her soft tongue as if it were her very own. "She's just 'dopted it," Susie said. "I didn't know cats were so good."

"Mammas have tender hearts," smiled papa. "Hello, here's Davis from the poor-house! What does he want here?"

Nellie knew. The light faded from her eyes, a great sob rose in her throat.

Mamma saw the big tears flooding her eyes again, and gathered the forlorn little figure in her arms. "He has come for this motherless little girl," she said, with a queer little shake in her voice.

"But we can't be outdone in Christianity by a cat. Please go tell him he can't have her. We'll take care of her."

"Well," he said, "all she will eat and wear won't cost very much, and the work mainly comes on you. Just as you say, only don't work yourself to death."

"She will help and teach Minnie and Susie to be more helpful," said mamma. "And anyway we can't be outdone by Furry-purry."—Selected.

The Boy Who Succeeded.

Thirty years ago in a poor schoolhouse in a back district a boy at the foot of the class unexpectedly spelled a word that had passed down the entire class.

"Go up head," said the master, "and see that you stay there. You can if you work hard."

The boy looked down his nose, and made no answer. But the next day he did not miss a word in the spelling. The brighter scholars in the class knew every word in the lesson, hoping there might be a chance to get ahead. But there was not a single one. Dave stayed at the head. He had been an indifferent speller before, but now he knew every word.

"Dave, how do you get your lessons so well now?" said the master.

"I learn every word in the lesson, and get mother to hear them at night. Then I go over them every morning before I come to school. And I go over them again at my seat before the class is called up."

FIGHT WILL BE BITTER.

Those who will persist in closing their ears against the continual recommendation of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, will have a long and bitter fight with their troubles, if not ended earlier by fatal termination. Read what T. R. Beall of Beall, Miss., has to say: "Last fall my wife had every symptom of consumption. She took Dr. King's New Discovery after everything else had failed. Improvement came at once and four bottles entirely cured her." Guaranteed by all druggists. Price 50c., and $1.00. Trial bottles free.

Woman's Foreign Missionary Society

Please send all communications for this Department to Mrs. B. F. Dixon, Raleigh, N. C.

Officers of the W. F. M. S. of the N. C. Conference, June, 1903-'04.

President—Mrs. Lucy A. Cunninggim, Greensboro, N. C.
Vice-President—Mrs. R. A. Willis, Littleton, N. C.
Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. F. D. Swindell, Goldsboro, N. C.
Recording Secretary—Miss Blanche Fentress, Wilmington, N. C.
Treasurer—Mrs. B. B. Adams, Four Oaks, N. C.
Superintendent and Treasurer Juvenile Work—Mrs. L. M. Hendren, New Berne, N. C.

The attention of the subscribers of the Woman's Missionary Advocate is called to the fact that many subscriptions will expire in December; and there is an earnest appeal for speedy renewals.

We trust the members of our Conference Society will turn at once to the labels on the last number of their Woman's Missionary Advocate, and allow no lapse to occur in their subscriptions.

Rev. George R. Loehr, of Shanghai, China, in a letter to the Woman's Advocate, pays a high compliment to the characters and work of the faithful women who are laboring there and elsewhere in the foreign field.

After speaking of their great success in the school work, and in bringing large numbers of the children and the women into a knowledge of the Christ, he says: "With their sympathies, prayers and presence they have wonderfully assisted the pastors in the preaching services, and have in all things been true yoke fellows. Would that their numbers were multiplied a thousand fold in China! Permit me to congratulate the members of the Woman's Board on the splendid success attending their efforts to give the gospel to women and children in heathen lands."

These words should encourage us to greater diligence in our work at home that we may give more abundant means for the support of these faithful women; and 'continuing instant in prayer,' to plead for the reinforcement they need in the ranks of foreign workers."

No doubt all our readers enjoyed the letter from our Elizabeth Davis, which recently appeared in the Raleigh Advocate.

In it there was expressed a tender appreciation of the efforts of those who make it possible for her to remain in the work so dear to her heart.

There is a request, too, in Miss Davis's letter, that earnest prayer be made for Brazil, and especially for the school in which she is laboring—Collegio Americano Fluminense.

Let us keep in daily remembrance, her closing entreaty:

"Pray that I may faithfully represent Him whose I am and whom I serve."

The Corresponding Secretaries of the auxiliaries were requested some time ago, to send in reports of their work for our column. We are glad to have this kind response from Hertford:

Dear Mrs. Dixon:—I watch our page in the Advocate each week for news from the different auxiliaries; but it seems as if the greater part of the Corresponding Secretaries have been waiting, as I have, for others to do the writing.

Our Society is not quite two years old, and has a membership of only ten, but we are all interested in the work.

Our beloved President, though having passed the seventy-fifth milestone in her pathway of life, being such a consecrated and zealous worker herself, inspires us to press forward in the work of aiding our missionaries in heathen lands, to proclaim the wonderful Light and Salvation of the Son of God, to those who sit in darkness.

We raised ten dollars last year on the pledge, and are hoping to do more this year.

Our members live in the country some distance apart, but seven attended the Week of Prayer, which we enjoyed, and we hope all were helped thereby. We raised a small thank-offering of two dollars and ten cents.

Nine members use seven copies of the Woman's Missionary Advocate.

We hold our meetings the first Sunday afternoons, at the home of some of the members. They are well attended and enjoyed by the members.

We have two honorary members, a committee to visit the sick; have commenced to use a birth-day box for incidental expense.

I think there would be more enthusiasm in our societies, if our District Secretaries would hold meetings each year.

Sincerely yours,
MRS. J. P. WINSLOW,
Corresponding Secretary.

Our fluent Recording Secretary, Mrs. Burton, furnishes the following abridged account of Week of Prayer service in the Edenton Street auxiliary:

The blessed season was a time of refreshing, and the recollection of it will remain with us, giving, we trust, a new store of strength.

The daily attendance was good, and marked interest was shown in the exercises. The fine program was carried out, and much information of the work gathered; while the discussions gave a clear insight into its progress, its difficulties, its needs.

Many testified to a personal sense of God's goodness. Mrs. Battis speaking with eloquent emphasis on this, and on the great blessing that comes from the interchange of soul-experience between Christians, most effective in much desired class-meeting.

There were articles bearing upon all the fields which the Woman's F. M. Society has been privileged to enter, and I regret that the lack of time and space forbids a detailed account.

Many members took part willingly, gladly—a happy and encouraging sign.

I can make special mention only of Mrs. Royster's admirable paper on "Brazil;" the delightful one on "Mexico," by Mrs. Bumpas; and the "Early History of Missions" by Mrs. Massey, her review stirring enthusiasm for the brave Christians, who showed the same inspiration and consecration that characterize the missionaries of the present term.

The hymns of praise were sweet and comforting. Mrs. Fab. Brown, one of our most earnest and successful church workers, kindly assisting in the music.

The earnest prayers of our dear sisters will linger with us, and help us to give our best to this work, which surely bears the seal of God's approval.

MRS. R. O. BURTON,
Secretary.

A COSTLY MISTAKE.

Blunders are sometimes very expensive. Ossacionally life itself is the price of a mistake, but you'll never be wrong if you take Dr. King's New Life Pills for Dyspepsia, Dizziness, Headache, Liver or Bowel troubles. They are gentle yet thorough. 25c., at all druggists.

Good teaching is essential to good Sunday-school work.

Woman's Home Mission Society

Please send all communications for this Department to Mrs. R. O. Burton, Raleigh, N. C.

Officers of W. H. M. S. of the N. C. Conference.

President—Mrs. J. E. Underwood, Elizabeth City.
First Vice-President—Mrs. V. Royster, Raleigh.
Second Vice-President—Mrs. K. P. Black, Littleton.
Third Vice-President—Mrs. J. A. Spiers, Selma.
Recording Secretary—Mrs. C. P. Jerome, West Durham.
Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. S. H. Scott, New Bern.
Treasurer—Mrs. E. L. Prince, Wilmington.
Superintendent of Supplies—Mrs. Ivan Proctor, Raleigh.
Superintendent of Literature and Press Work—Mrs. R. O. Burton.

Report of Conference Third Vice President for Second Quarter.

Wilmington.—Grace Church Auxiliary: Baby Roll members, 6; Mite-box brigade members, 32.—4 added during quarter. Amount collected from Brigade Boxes, $1.85.

MRS. M. L. STOVER,
3rd Vice Pres.

Windsor.—Baby Roll Members, 13. Collected from Baby Mite-Boxes, $2.24. Mite-Box Brigade members, 19—four added during quarter. Amount from dues and Brigade Boxes, $9.50.

MRS. R. L. DAVIS,
3rd Vice-Pres.

Winfall.—Baby Roll members, 5. Collected from Baby Mite-Boxes, .45.

MISS MATTIE WHITE,
3rd Vice-Pres.

Beaufort.—Baby Roll members, 8. Elizabeth City, 1st Church.—Baby Roll members, 4—two added during quarter. Collected from dues and from Baby Mite-Boxes, $1.45. Mite-Box Brigade members, 19—four added during quarter. Amount from dues and Brigade Boxes, $2.05.

MRS. W. M. HINTON,
3rd Vice-Pres.

Belhaven.—Baby Roll members, 4. Amount from dues and Baby-Mite Boxes, $1.81. Mite-Box Brigade members, 7—four added during quarter. Amount from dues and and Brigade Boxes, $2.84.

MRS. M. M. WOODARD,
3rd Vice-Pres.

New Bern.—Baby Roll members, 121—nine added during quarter. Amount from dues and Baby-Mite Boxes, $14.19. Raised for local work, $12.31. Total amount, $26.50.

MRS. VIRGINIA HARRISON,
3rd Vice-Pres.

Selma.—Baby Roll members, 11—two added during quarter. Amount collected, $1.01.

MRS. C. B. ELLIS,
Third Vice-President.

Durham.—Trinity Auxiliary: Baby Roll members, 8. Amount collected, $2.00.

MRS. M. A. CLOSS,
Third Vice- President.

Lake Landing.—Baby Roll members, 4. Amount collected, $2.51. Mite-box Brigade members, 14. Amount collected, $5.89.

MRS. J. L. MANN,
Third Vice-President.

Warrenton.—Baby Roll members, 18. Amount collected, 25.

MRS. JERRY DRAPER,
Third Vice-President.

Smithfield.—Baby Roll members, 11—one added during quarter. Amount collected, 25 cents.

MRS. W. H. AUSTIN,
Third Vice-President.

Raleigh.—Edenton Street: Baby Roll members, 18—6 added during quarter. Amount collected, $1.15. Mite-box Brigade members, 27—2 added during quarter. Amount collected, 45 cents.

MRS. CELESTE SMITH,
Third Vice-President.

This report from our fine Conference Third Vice-President, Mrs. J. A. Spiers, has been unavoidably delayed, but it will be none the less welcome, for there is nothing more charming than news from our little ones. We congratulate Mrs. Spiers and her faithful co-workers, whom we are pleased to present to our readers.

Little Florine's Picture.

I doubt not, every Brigade would like to own a picture of this lovely little girl. Write to Mrs. S. H. Scott, New Bern, and she will supply all that ask.

From Weldon Auxiliary.

Mrs. Owen's letter, as usual, brings good cheer, for it continues the story of a fine year's work by these fine workers. I will give a portion of it:

"We observed the Week of Prayer, and all who attended the exercises enjoyed them and, I am sure, were greatly benefited. Our efficient President, Mrs. Lee Johnson, held a consecration service at Church on Sunday afternoon, which drew us all nearer to the Savior and nearer to each other—it was a sweet and refreshing time. One day we met at the beautiful home of a faithful member who lives out of town. She had her carriage to make several trips for the ladies. Was not that lovely? On that occasion five new members joined. The collections amounted to $14.00.

Just before Thanksgiving we sent our orphan girl a box of nice winter clothing, valued at $24.00. The one sent her in the spring was valued at $18.00. We are very proud of our little girl, and feel a deep interest in her. Mrs. Wilkins wrote her a kind, motherly letter, which, I am sure, she appreciated.

We have helped three needy families, made 102 visits to the sick, contributed $25.00 to Brevard, raised $208.80 for local work, and sent to Conference Treasurer, $85.65.

We have 46 members, but the work of the Auxiliary is done by about 25.

We have some gentlemen on our roll, and there are several factory ladies who cannot attend. But it is a faithful little band, and with such consecrated leaders as Mrs. Wilkins and Mrs. Johnson we are sure of success.

We are glad to use the Bulletins regularly.

Yours sincerely,
MRS. C. J. OWEN.

REVOLUTION IMMINENT.

A sure sign of approaching revolt and serious trouble in your system is nervousness, sleeplessness, or stomach upsets. Electric Bitters will quickly dismember the troublesome causes. It never fails to tone the stomach, regulate the Kidneys and Bowels, stimulate the Liver, and clarify the blood. Run down systems benefit particularly and all the usual attending aches vanish under its searching and thorough effectiveness. Electric Bitters is only 50c., and that is returned if it don't give perfect satisfaction. Guaranteed by druggists.

Cancer Hospital.

We want every man and woman in the United States to know what we are doing.—We are curing Cancers, Tumors and Chronic Sores without the use of knife and are endorsed by the Senate and Legislature of Virginia. If you are seeking a cure come here and you will get it.

The Kellam Cancer Hospital,
Richmond, Va.

DON'T

give your child old greasy Castor Oil. Give CAS-TO-RINE. Tastes as good as maple syrup. Fifteen cents per bottle at all dealers.

Raleigh Christian Advocate.

ORGAN OF THE
North Carolina Conference, M. E. Church, South.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY AT No. 108 W. MARTIN STREET.

THOMAS N. IVEY, - - - - - - - Editor.

Subscription Rates.—One year, $1.50; six months, 75 cents. Preachers of the North Carolina Conference who act as agents receive the paper free of charge. All other preachers, and widows of preachers, $1.00 a year.

Business.—Watch the label. It shows the date up to which the subscription has been paid. Change in label serves as a receipt. Regular receipt will be sent when requested. When the address is ordered changed, both old and new address must be given. Address all letters, and make all checks and money orders payable, to the Raleigh Advocate Co.

Manuscripts.—All matter for publication to be returned to the writer must be accompanied by proper postage. Matter for the Editor and matter for the printer must not be on the same sheet. Obituaries must not contain over 150 words, nor contain poetry. One cent a word will be charged for all obituary matter over 150 words.

Advertising.—The RALEIGH CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE is a fine advertising medium. Rates will be promptly furnished on application.

The World As We See It.

By every token Richmond County is determined to relieve itself of the odium of the liquor traffic. The new board of County Commissioners has taken very bold and drastic action. On December 7th this new board passed a resolution declaring that no license to retail liquor in the town of Rockingham should be issued after January 1, 1905. We trust that the County Commissioners will have the manliness to stand by this resolution and enforce it. Truly the spirit of temperance is marching on.

Poor Mrs. Chadwick! She is truly experiencing the truth that the way of the transgressor is hard. Without condoning in the least the series of incidents which formed the chain of her crime, we are tempted to mitigate the offence of a woman who by mere promises could effect loans from experienced bankers who are now bewailing their folly. Think of a banker lending money in large sums to a woman who merely promised that in return therefor he should be made the trustee of a large fortune which was in unsecured paper!

Some of the larger secular papers are having a great deal to say about a "great revival of religion on a new line." Mr. Hillis has lately tried the new line. Mr. Dawson, of London, did his best in helping Mr. Hillis to carry out his plan, but the whole thing failed. The truth of the business is that there can be no revival of religion "on new lines." The old plan of preaching the old gospel and inviting sinners to repentance is the only one that has succeeded or can succeed.

The meeting of the Seaboard Medical Association at Washington, N. C., last week was a very interesting one. The meeting of a body of physicians is always a very interesting one. Physicians, holding in their hands as they do, the physical interest of the man should have the respect and the moral and practical support of every true citizen. Some very interesing papers were presented at this meeting. Among those who read papers and delivered addresses were the following noted physicians: Drs. Charles R. Grandy, S. M. Crowell, Southgate Leigh, Albert Anderson, B. M. Baker, Hubert A. Royster and T. Edwin Baird.

On last Thursday afternoon, one week, at 4 o'clock, the great engines of the World's Fair ceased their throbbing, the wheels ceased to turn, and the doors of the great buildings were closed. At 12 o'clock that night the thousands of electric lights faded into a dull glow, and then left the buildings wrapped in darkness. The World's Fair was over. Many felt the sadness of the passing. Since it is over, it well to fix in our minds certain facts. The gross expenditures of the World's Fair at St. Louis were $44,500,000—nearly twice as much as were the expenditures of the World's Fair at Chicago. The receipts of the former were $25,000,000. The total attendance during 187 days 18,767,457. The attendance at Chicago during 179 days was 27,539,521. The largest monthly attendance at Chicago was in October—nearly 8,000,000. The largest monthly attendance at St. Louis was in September, and was nearly 4,000,000. All expenses were paid at the St. Louis Fair, though a dividend will hardly be declared. From all standpoints it was a magnificent success.

The President has been criticized for giving a public denial to the story in a Boston paper that his children had chased to the point of exhaustion the dressed Thanksgiving turkey which had been sent to the White House. But the President does things according to his own notion. Besides, with thousands of others, he believes that the time has come when newspaper reporters should be taught that a man's private affairs are his own, and that if his children chase through the paternal grounds a turkey which had been killed and dressed a hundred miles away—why, it is his own affair.

The seventy-fourth Convention of the Missionary Baptist Church in North Carolina, met in Elizabeth City on December 7th. The attendance was large. The interest was very great. The reports presented showed conclusively that this great church is doing its part in extending th Kingdom of Christ in this Commonwealth. The Baptist University for Women, free from debt and enjoying a very large patronage,is a monument to the educational zeal and spirit of the Baptists in North Carolina. The denomination is united and the fruits of the work are manifest in every part of the State.

The prophesy made last spring that cotton would continue to bring a high price throughout the present season has failed. In the last week or so there has been a remarkable slump in prices. The price for the last few days has been less than eight cents. Various theories are advanced to explain the slump. The farmers are advised by those who profess to know the situation, to hold their cotton for ten cents per pound. It is claimed that only about 6,200,000 bales of the present crop have been sold and that therefore the cotton growers have the whole situation in their hands, and that it is not the amount of cotton that has been put on the market that has depressed prices but the big crop that is in sight.

We are indebted to Senator L. S. Overman for a copy of "The Jefferson Bible" which has been lately printed according to an act of Congress. Why Congress provided for the publication of this work we are not able to see. The motive surely was not religious, for Congress knows the Constitution, which does not allow the government to propagate directly religious truth. The motive was not a desire to honor Mr. Jefferson, for he needs no honor. Even if he had been in need of an extra honor, the publication of a book which represents only a compilation of the moral sayings of Jesus—a compilation which any one with fair literary ability could have easily made, would hardly add to the honor of a man who drafted the Constitution of the United States.

The President's message to Congress, on account of peculiar conditions, has excited unusual interest. It is very practical and comprehensive, and possesses the merit of not leaving untouched any vital question of the hour. The following are the main expressions and recommendations: Wake-workers have a right to organize, but not to commit violence upon any who do not support their organizations or the enemies of those organizations. The increasing number of accidents upon our railroads, calls for government action. The Inter-State Commerce Commission should have the power to revise rates and regulations. There should be severe child-labor and factory inspection laws. Married women should not work in factories. The tri-ecntennial celebration of the settlement at Jamestown, Va., at Hampton Roads in 1907, is commended for consideration. There should be the enactment of a law against bribery and corruption in Federal elections. The maintenance of full naval and military strength is recommended. Our people must keep steadily before their minds the fact that the justification of our stay in the Philippines must result from the good we are able to do in the Islands.

The editor of the Biblical Recorder in his remarks about the editor of the Advocate, in connection with the report of the last session of the Western North Carolina Conference, departed from his rule of never hitting below the belt by stating that the editor of the Advocate impugned the honor of the editor of the Recorder and sneered at the Baptists, and failing to tell his readers what the editor of the Advocate did say when he was committing the offences just named. This is not like Brother Bailey. If he had printed our remarks his readers would have seen as he by this time must have seen that the editor of the Advocate wrote not a single word or sentence that could be justly construed as an impeachment of the honor of the Recorder's editor or as a sneer at the Baptists. The editor of the Recorder practically dubbed every Methodist preacher as a "man who wears a collar." We did not deny the "entitlement" but simply ascribed to Baptist preachers without congregations, and Baptist Congregations with preachers the excellent taste of being mighty willing to wear the same collar. Brother Bailey surely could not object to this. Of course his latter words about meeting us in our "lair" and making us envy the brother in the Bishop's hands, was merely jocular. The editor of the Recorder could not seriously play the role of a swashbuckler or a Bombastes Furioso.

We cheerfully give publicly to Bro. Bailey the benefit of his after statement that his idea was more to reproduce the reporter's account than to make any comment, and that in making the "collar statement" he did not design to use it in any offensive sense. In the meanwhile all is serene in the Advocate office, and the signs of the moon do not point to any ecclesiastical race insurrection raised by the Recorder and the Advocate.

THE "OLD RALEIGH" AS A CHRISTMAS PRESENT.

"What can I give as a Christmas present?" Answer, "The Old Raleigh." It is equivalent to fifty-one presents, for it is made every week during the year, with the exception of Christmas week.

Have you in the community one who needs the paper and is unable to take it?

Have you a neighbor whom you wish to help in mind and soul?

Have you a son, a daughter, or another relative near or remote, who would be weekly benefited by the visit of the church paper?

If so, now is your chance to make a Christmas present that means something. We will let you have the Advocate as a Christmas present for some one at bare cost.

Send us one dollar with the name and address of the one to whom you wish to send the paper. We will send the paper for one year and promptly stop the paper at the end of the year. We will send to the recipient of the gift a beautiful card containing your greetings.

Send in your order at once.

NOTICE.

The District Stewards for the Raleigh District will please meet in the Sunday-school room, Edenton Street Church, January 3, 1905, at 10 o'clock a. m.

W. H. MOORE, P. E.

Methodist Mention

STATE.

The Institute for Domestic Missions will be held in Nashville, Tenn., February 1-28.

You cannot send a nicer Christmas present than "Virginia Dare," by Dr. W. H. Moore. Read the advertisement in this issue.

Messrs. A. P. Davis and G. H. Pickard, two worthy laymen of Carthage Circuit, made us a pleasant visit on last Friday.

The mid-year meeting for the Holston Conference will be held in connection with the missionary meeting at Asheville, N. C., in May.

Superintendent J. W. Jenkins is feeling happy over the large Orphanage receipts at Conference, and the bright outlook for a successful year.

Mr. C. P. Bynum, of Bynums, made us a pleasant visit on last Monday. He is one of the jurors at the present session of the Federal Court in Raleigh.

Rev. Amos B. Haltom who was transferred from the North Carolina Conference to the Memphis Conference, has been stationed at Henderson, Tennessee.

City Road Church, Elizabeth City, will give a Christmas entertainment on the evening of December 26, and the proceeds will be given to the Methodist Orphanage.

Rev. G. F. Smith, P. E. Warrenton District, spent last Monday night in Raleigh. We were glad to see him in the office of the Advocate. He is planning for a busy, successful year.

Rev. R. B. Clark, who for a number of years did fine work in the North Carolina Conference as a supply, has taken a half interest in Trinity High School. We wish him and the school great success.

Rev. D. P. Goode, a wooden legged Confederate soldier and a worthy local preacher of the M. E. Church, South, will be an applicant for the position of Assistant Door-keeper of the State Senate. He occupied this position with great faithfulness and efficiency two years ago.

All the people of Clayton will rejoice to know that Rev. G. W. Fisher, who has so acceptably filled the pulpit of the Methodist Church here for the past three years, will remain at Clayton as pastor of the church another year, he having been returned by the Conference at Henderson to fill out the four years pastorate.—Clayton Cor. Smithfield Herald.

The people of Smithfield are glad with one accord that the Conference returned Rev. N. E. Coltrane. He has been here for two years now and has constantly grown in the esteem and affection of all our people, irrespective of denomination. He is a consecrated man of God, bold and fearless in the pulpit, kind and attentive in his ministrations to his people, and a friend and neighbor to all.—Smithfield Herald.

Revs. M. Culbreth and N. L. Seaboit will leave Raleigh in a few days for their new field of labor —Market Street Church, Wilmington, and Richmond Circuit, respectively. Both these brethren leave behind them the record of faithful, valuable work and a host of friends. The new pastors, Rev. C. L. Read appointed to Epworth, and Rev. G. W. Starling appointed to Brooklyn, will arrive in Raleigh in a few days.

The inauguration of Prof. J. A. Bivins as Principal of Trinity Park School on last Friday evening in Craven Memorial was an occasion of great interest. President J. C. Kilgo represented the College; Dr. T. F. Marr, the Board of Trustees; Prof. F. S. Aldridge, the Trinity Park School; and Mr. J. P. Frizelle, the graduates. The addresses including those of Professor Bivins, were excellent. The school is in a very flourishing condition.

The editor of the Biblical Recorder in the last issue indulged in a savage explosion of bad humor at the expense of Rev. G. R. Rood, who according to the Recorder was guilty of saying in his annual report at Henderson: "They are preaching that anybody who practices infant baptism is either an ignoramus or un-Christian. They say it is Roman Catholicism. I did not preach a sermon on the subject, but I threw out some hints." Whereupon the editor of the Recorder exploded in the following innuendo: "We dimly suspect that this Mr. Rood was once a Baptist minister, and ran ashore, and took to the magic lantern business, winding up in the Methodist haven." The editor of the Recorder will feel sorry for this outburst. Mr. Rood is a faithful young Methodist preacher, who feels that he has all he can do in his own church without attempting to regulate other churches. He has always belonged to the Methodist Church, having been in the ministry only a few years in which he has given full proof of his ministry. As for the statement of the Recorder that "as for us Baptists, we are going to advocate New Testatment Believers Bantism until all the denominations see the light, abandon the pride of outworn opinion, and come over to us," we have nothing to say. If this is the hope of the Recorder, all right. The delusion is a harmless one. But it is another and more serious thing to pillory an innocent man before the public, especially when he has no chance to defend himself.

* * *

CONNECTIONAL.

The Arkansas Conference reports a net gain in membership of over 808.

Bishop Hargrove, who has been ill for several weeks, is reported to be in a critical condition.

The statistics of the North Alabama Conference show a net gain of more than 2,000 in membership.

Four thousand have been added on profession of faith, and a net gain of 2,500 in members in the South Georgia Conference.

Ground has been broken for the new building of the Columbia College. Mr. F. H. Hyatt, the prime mover in the new college enterprise, threw the first spade of earth.

Missionaries of both the Parent and the Woman's Board have returned to their stations at Songdo and the interior of Korea. They had been forced to remain at Seoul for some time, owing to disturbances caused by the war.

Sunday, December 11, has been set aside by the Indian Mission Conference as Epworth University Day. On this day the preachers are planning to present the claims of the University and to raise the educational collection.

Rev. and Mrs. W. B. Nance, who have spent more than a year at home, left Nashville November 25 for a short visit in Lewisburg and Union City, Tenn., and a few points in Texas. They will sail for Soochow, China, December 28.

Col. William R. Denny died Sunday at the residence of his son, Dr. Collins Denny. The funeral services were conducted by Dr. John A. Kern at the residence of Dr. Denny, Sunday afternoon, and the remains were conveyed to Winchester, Va., Colonel Denny's former home.

The desirability and the possibility of starting an Institutional Church was under discussion at a late meeting of the New Orleans pastors. There has been need for such a Church for a long time, and the laity of our Church in New Orleans should promptly provide the money for it.

The Missionary Training School is constantly growing in favor, and the outlook is very favorable for a prosperous opening. Three Annual Conferences through their Mission Boards have undertaken to meet the expenses of men attending the Training School. The Tennessee Conference will pay the expenses of ten men; the Memphis Conference, eight; the North Carolina Conference, five; and others will come at their own expense.

General Notes

Dr. Alexander McLaren has consented to act as President of the Baptist World Congress, to be held in London next July.

Chancellor E. Benjamin Andrews, of the University of Nebraska, has been elected President of the National Association of University Presidents.

Newspaper guessing contests are held by the attorney-general to be lotteries, and the post-office department is directed to exclude from the mails newspapers in which they appear.

Methodism in Rome has inaugurated a system of caring for the children of working women at a charge of about one cent a day. A daily attendance of about one hundred children is reported.

It is said that Vice-President elect Fairbanks is a graduate of Ohio Wesleyan University, at Delaware, Ohio. While in school he helped to pay for his tuition by chopping wood and doing other chores.

The New York Christian Advocate thinks that Mrs. Berrington, of Cardington, England, is entitled to the unique distinction of being the oldest Methodist in the world. She was 104 years old last July. She still attends church.

The whole Christian world will hear with deep sorrow of the serious illness of Mr. Ira D. Sankey. About two years ago he became blind, and now his health has become so precarious that his family have taken him to the South for the winter.

The Gospel mission to the prisoners of the Tombs has been carrying the Gospel to the Tombs prisoners for nearly forty years. It is thoroughly evangelical and undenominational and very economically managed.

The Thanksgiving number of the Toronto Christian Guardian is also the seventy-fifth anniversary number of that periodical. The first editor was the famous Egerton Ryerson, who was a prominent figure in Canadian Methodism for nearly fifty years.

Gifts for missions for the year just ended in the Methodist Episcopal Church amount to $50,000 more than those of the pervious year. This permits of additional appropriations for repairing property in the foreign field and for increasing the work in American cities.

In London, England, there are 153,538 men who attend the services of the different Free Churches to 213,901 women, while in the Established Church there are 153,375 men to 292,720 women. Each one may form his own inference from these facts—as to whether the service of the Free Churches appeals more strongly to the men or the service of the Established Church to the women.

The International Committee of the Young Men's Christian Association has issued a booklet, "Salient Points," which shows the standing of the Association in North America. The report shows 1,815 Associations, against 1,736 last year; a membership of 373,502, against 350,455 a year ago, with 1,893 employed officers, an increase of 164 during the year. The budget for the home field was $153,796, and for the foreign field, $87,233, an increase of $8,830 in the two items over last year.

Two eminent men have recently given striking testimony of the worth of foreign missionaries. Rev. John Watson, of Liverpool, contrasted the home workers with foreign workers in these words: "We second-rate fellows here at home are the militia; a very respectable lot of hard-working men, but just militia! They are the fighting line—theirs are the medals with the bars—they are our Victoria Cross men!" The other testimony is from Rev. Endicott Peabody, who introduced Bishop Brent at Harvard: "I have much to do with boys, and I would rather have one of my boys becomes a foreign missionary than President. The work of missionaries is the grandest in the whole world, and the missionaries are the heroes of modern times."

NORTH CAROLINA EPWORTH LEAGUE CONFERENCE
DEVOTIONAL CHARITABLE LITERARY EVANGELICAL
EDITED BY REV. H. B. ANDERSON.

The Importance of Doing Your Best.

Anything that is worth doing at all is worth doing well, is an adage whose truth ought to apply to everything undertaken by mankind. In God's esteem there is no unimportant work in any field of industry. Honorable work in any line is worthy of praise when conscientiously rendered. Sometimes we erect artificial standards for certain vocations and thereby discriminate against other fields of labor. We look upon some of them as more honorable and respectable than others, and we are occasionally disposed to look with an air of disdain upon what we are pleased to term menial service. Such distinctions are not of God, but of man. True, some callings are more desirable than others, for reasons not necessary to mention; but honest toil ought to be and is respectable everywhere. Not long since we were standing on a street corner, and a young man in rough garb came up and spoke to us, and he was holding in his hand a pair of ice-tongs. On inquiry he was a stout young fellow whom we had met some time before as a delegate to a district conference in the interior of the State. He had come to the city, and wanted employment. A diligent search failed to bring him the job which was in keeping with his tastes and aptitude, so he took the next thing that presented itself, which was a position on an ice-wagon. To this he was giving his best energy till he could get something more in accord with his wish. He did exactly right, and his honest and faithful service in that capacity will bring to him something more remunerative and a little more desirable in the near future. The woman who does your week's washing, the man who acts as scavenger upon your streets, the carpenter who does you good work on your house, the man whom you pay to hoe your cotton, the servant who does your cooking—these people are doing a noble service, and in the sight of God they are as honorable as Sir Isaac Newton with his telescope mapping out the heavens. Fidelity in any position is the test of merit, and the man who is faithful is worthy of all praise. When you do your best in any service, you are a nobleman according to the gospel standard. To take any other view of the case is unworthy and contemptible. Only unfaithfulness ought to bar a man from social recognition, and nothing else. It is so with God, and it ought to be so with men. Do your best in any sphere, and there is a place for you in this life and in the life to come.—Texas Advocate.

What Thomas Missed.

Let those who neglect the weekly prayer-meeting read the following:

Will disciples who don't go to prayer-meetings kindly read John 20:19-28? Here an account is given of the first Christian prayer and conference meeting.

The ratio of attendance was much greater than is usual now, as all the disciples—Judas having gone to his own place—were present, excepting Thomas. He was absent, and apparently not excused. Perhaps it rained, or possibly he had an important business engagement; he may not have felt very well or after a tiresome day, may have felt the need of physical relaxation. At any rate, he was absent; and he missed a great deal.

In the first place, he missed seeing Jesus. For the Master came to that first prayer-meeting and spoke at it.

In the second place, Thomas missed the mysterious gift of the Holy Ghost which those present received from the Saviour.

In the third place, he lost his faith in Christianity. When the disciples next meet him he had blossomed out into a full-fledged agnostic. He flatly refused to accept their united testimony, and declared that nothing short of full scientific proof could ever convince him of the resurrection. What a price to pay for neglecting to go to one prayer-meeting!

But it is substantially what the Christian of nowadays loses if he absents himself from the more intimate meetings of Christ's disciples. He, too, misses the visions of Jesus, the unction of the Spirit and the assurance of faith.

Alcoholic Liquor.

Stupefies and besots.—Bismarck.

That beverage, the sin of sins.—Southey.

The devil in solution.—Sir Wilfrid Lawson.

Liquid fire and distilled damnation.—Robert Hall.

I consider all intoxicating spirits bad spirits.—Sir Astley Cooper.

Every crime has its origin more or less in drinking.—Judge Gurney.

Grape juice has killed more than grapeshot.—C. H. Spurgeon.

While you have the drink you have the drunkard.—George W. Bain.

Drink is the mother of want and the nurse of crime.—Lord Brougham.

Drink is the greatest obstacle to the diffusion of education.—John Bright.

Drink is the terrible enemy whom England has to fear.—Prince Leopold.

What Christianity is Worth.

Did you ever seriously ask yourself what Christianity is worth to you—to you, personally, whether you have openly numbered yourself among its followers or not? What is it worth to you to have been born in a land like this, with the education, the freedom, the hopes, the outlook which only that one thing has made possible? What has it been worth to you to be trained in a home where honor, integrity and a stainless name are counted above purchase? What have the teachings, the restraints, the sanctions of Christianity been worth to you in the formation of character, in the ideals of life it has given you, in the hopes that, dimly or clearly, reach to earth's boundary and beyond? What would you take in exchange for all these things, if by the barter every vestige of their influence must pass out of your life, your history, and your soul?

It is well for every one to take account of stock occasionally, and some quiet day, when you are counting up your possessions, ask yourself these questions and see what answer they will bring. Then when you have honestly set your value upon them, hold to it in word and deed. If the church stands for the things you approve, support it; if there is a Word of God, consult it; if Christ is indeed the Lord, give Him your allegiance, and let no carping voices sway you.—Wellspring.

When Chilled to the Bone
Painkiller (Perry Davis)
is needed to prevent colds and to ward off Disease.

Mansfield Female College, Mansfild, Ohio,
T. S. SLIGH, President.

Sept. 3, 1904.

Chas. M. Stieff, Baltimore, Md.

My Dear Sir:—The ten New Stieff Pianos you shipped me for use in Mansfield Female College on August 11th, are now in place in the College. The Stieff Grand is a beauty, as is also the rosewood polished Case Upright. The seven dull finished Case Pianos suit me exactly, and they are very much admired by all who see and use them.

I am sure I shall use the Stieff Piano exclusively from now on.

Very truly yours,

T. S. SLIGH, President.

Chas. M. Stieff,
Manufacturer of the Piano with the sweet tone.
SOUTHERN WAREROOMS,
211-213 N. Tryon St.,
CHARLOTTE, N. C.
C. H. WILMOTH, Mgr.

DE LOACH PAT is the Original and Simplest Variable Friction Feed.
SAW MILLS
Avoid imitators and infringers and buy the genuine. Catalogue free of Mills, 4 H. P. and up. Shingle, Planing, Lath and Corn Mills, four Stroke Hay Presses, Water Wheels. We pay the freight.
DE LOACH MILL MFG. CO., Box 982 Atlanta, Ga.

When writing advertisers please mention this paper

WRIGLEY ENGRAVING COMPANY
ENGRAVERS, ELECTROTYPERS, STEREOTYPERS,
COPPER HALF TONE AND ZINC ETCHERS.
ALL 2 PRINTING SO.
ATLANTA, GA.

The Fact That
XANTHINE
Hair Restorative
is the best Hair Tonic is proven by the thousands of people that will use no other BEST BY TEST.
XANTHINE Company,
Richmond, Va.
We prepay charges on all orders. Send for Circulars.

Have You Poultry? Use
S. P. S. Multum Ovum the greatest of all Egg Producers and preventive for Cholera and Roup.
S. P. S. Roup Cure the only sure cure for Roup.
S. P. S. Chick Food, a mixture of grains, seed, bone and animal matter.
S. P. S. Hen Food and S. P. S. Morning Mash will keep your hens healthy and insure eggs.

We handle Incubators, Brooders, Poultry Supplies, "Everything for the Poultryman."
Southern Poultry Supply Co.
910 E. St. N. W. Washington, D. C.

SOUTHERN Shorthand & Business UNIVERSITY
NORFOLK AND PORTSMOUTH, VIRGINIA.
3,000 pupils educated at these schools during the past eight years, $1,000 offered to any graduate who has not secured a position.
Courses: Business, Shorthand, English, Telegraphy. Send for illustrated catalogue.
J. M. RESSLER, President.

THE BIGGS TREATMENT
Under this treatment the patient is cured by natural agencies. No medicines are used. The Biggs treatment embraces everything that is curative; nothing that impairs or destroys vitality.
Hundreds of sick people have been restored to health by this method. Many of them had been pronounced "incurable," but, nevertheless, they are now well. If you are interested in the cure of disease, write me for free literature, which explains my method. I will also send numerous testimonials from well-known people whom I have cured. Do not postpone the matter—you may forget it. Write to-day.
ANDREW C. BIGGS,
218 East Washington Street,
GREENSBORO, N. C.

..Christmas Holiday Rates..
1904-1905.
ATLANTIC COAST LINE
—ANNOUNCE RATE OF—
One and One-Third First-Class Fares
(MINIMUM RATE 50 CENTS.)
Tickets will be Placed on Sale Dec. 23, 24, 25, 31, and Jan'y 1, 1905.
Final Limit returning to January 4th, 1905.
The teachers and students of colleges, on presentation and surrender of certificates signed by Superintendents, Presidents or Principals, tickets may be sold at the above rate, December 17th to 21th, inclusive, with final limit returning to January 8th, 1905.
For full information, call on ticket agents, or address
H. M. EMERSON, Traffic Manager. W. J. CRAIG, G. P. A., WILMINGTON, N. C.

Sunday School

Lesson for December 18, 1904.

Review.

Golden Text: Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and Him only shalt thou serve. (Luke 4:8.)

1. Elisha Succeeds Elijah.—The beginning of a long and useful career was described in this lesson, in which we were told how the mantle of Elijah fell upon Elisha. The importance of commencing aright whatever service we render to God thus receives a strong emphasis.

2. The Widow's Oil Increased.—This incident gives us a most attractive insight into the character of the prophet Elisha and shows the kindly qualities of that servant of God which made him beloved among the people.

3. Elisha and the Shunammite.—This lesson throws a beautiful light upon home-life in ancient times. It is an idyll of domestic life and presents a picture that is exceedingly attractive. The principal teaching to be gleaned is that of the blessing which the presence of the man of God brought to the Shunammite in the time of her sore bereavement.

4. Elisha and Naaman.—This story of the Syrian captain and the little Jewish maid is one of those Scripture narratives which never lose their charm and which carry with them a constant suggestion of helplessness. Naaman learned that it was only by humble obedience to the prophetic bidding that he could secure the cleansing which he needed. So if we are to be cleansed from sin, we too must become as little children.

5. Elisha at Dothan.—We have here a lesson which unfolds before us the splendid protection with which God surrounds his servants in every time of need. If only our eyes were opened, as were those of the young man who was with Elisha, we should often see ourselves surrounded by heavenly guardians.

6. Joash, the Boy King.—There is a tragedy told in this lesson. It is the story of the fate of Athaliah. Yet the violent death which she met was but the necessary sequence to the life of blood which she had led.

7. Joash Repairs the Temple.—The piety of a youthful king is the prominent feature in this lesson, though we must not overlook the fidelity of those who superintended the restoration of the temple, of whom the record is made that they dealt faithfully.

8. Isaiah's Message to Judah.—Isaiah's message was one of solemn warning. Yet there is also the invitation of divine love, which, if the people had but heeded it, should have sufficed to bring them back to the path of duty.

9. World's Temperance Sunday.—Very appropriately was the World's Temperance Lesson selected this year from the prophecy of Isaiah, for we are at that period in the history of the Israelites when Isaiah lived, and we can the better understand the full meaning of the warning which he uttered against the sin of intemperance.

10. Hezekiah Reopens the Temple.—We have in this lesson the story of an ancient revival of religion. Hezekiah, like Joash, was but a young man, when he undertook this important task, but he carried it to a successful completion, and has set a worthy example for every young man to follow.

11. Captivity of the Ten Tribes.—This lesson is but the natural sequel to those we have studied which show the steady moral declension of the people of Israel. Captivity is the logical outcome of idolatry whether it be the Baal worship of the Israelites or the modern worship of mammon. In either case the soul is fettered, and bitter indeed is the bondage under which it rests.

A little girl was called to court one day to be a witness. She was so small that the lawyers thought she might not know what an oath was. So they asked her some questions.

"Do you understand the nature of an oath?" asked a lawyer.

"Yes, sir," said the little girl.

"What is it?" "It is a swear."

"What do you mean when you say, 'It is a swear'?"

"Well, it is that I have to tell the truth."

"If you don't tell the truth, what then?"

"That would be a sin."

"What is a sin?"

"A bad mark from God."

They let the child tell what she knew, and they all believed her.—Selected.

Being laid and drest for sleep, close not thy eyes
Up with thy curtains; give thy soul the wing
In some good thoughts; so when the day shall rise,
And thou unrak'st thy fire, these sparks will bring
New flames; besides, where these lodge vain heats mourn
And die; that bush, where God is, shall not burn.
—Henry Vaughan.

For Asthma use CHENEY'S EXPECTORANT.

Special Offer
Christmas
Music.
This Depository has just received a fine assortment of Christmas services, and until November 20th, will upon receipt of 10c in stamps, send postpaid to any one five of these attractive services as samples. These services are very tastefully gotten up and nearly all contain attractive recitations, which are worth double the money whether you use the music or not.
The regular price of these services is 5c per copy. This offer is good until Nov. 20th only; after that services will be sent at 5c per copy postpaid. Do not ask for free samples, but send us 10c at once and receive five of the most attractive samples ever offered. Address all orders to
Southern Methodist Book Depository,
STAUNTON, VA.

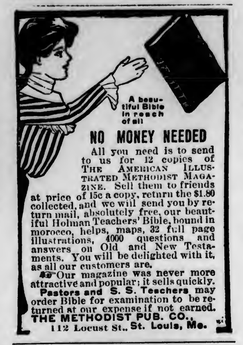
THE KEELEY INSTITUTE
GREENSBORO, N.C.
For the treatment of THE LIQUOR, OPIUM, MORPHINE and other Drug Addictions. The Tobacco Habit, Nerve Exhaustion

Saw Mills
1500 ft. 1 in. boards per hour with 16 H. P. is the record of our Light 25 ft. Saw Mills. Small Mills for farmers and Large Mills for lumbermen. Also Engines, Boilers, Shingle Mills Edgers, Grist Mills, etc. Write for Catalogue K Address Salem Iron Works, Winston-Salem, N. C.

CANCER
Permanent Cure Guaranteed, without knife, X-Ray, Arsenic or Acids; no inconvenience. Write for book.
Southern Cancer Sanatorium
1520 E. Monument St. Baltimore, Md.

SKIN DISEASES
Altoona, Pa., June 20, 1903.
I was afflicted with Tetter in bad shape It would appear in blotches as large as my hand, a yellowish color, and scale off You can imagine how offensive it was For twelve years I was afflicted with this trouble. At night it was a case of scratch and many times no rest at all. Seeing the good the medicine was doing a friend who was taking it for Eczema, I commenced it, and as a result the eruption began to dry up and disappear, and to-day I am practically a well man. Only two tiny spots are left on the elbow and shin, where once the whole body was affected. I have every confidence in the medicine, and feel sure that in a short time these two remaining spots will disappear. S. S. S. is certainly a great blood purifier, and has done me a world of good. I am grateful for what it has accomplished, and trust that what I have said will lead others who are similarly afflicted to take the remedy and obtain the same good results that I have.
125 East Fifth Ave. JOHN F. LEAR.
While washes, soaps, salves and powders relieve temporarily, they do not reach the real cause of the disease. The blood must be purified before the cure is permanent. S.S.S. contains no potash, arsenic or mineral of any description, but is guaranteed purely vegetable. Send for our book on the skin and its diseases, which is mailed free. Our physicians will cheerfully advise without charge any who write us about their case.
SSS
The Swift Specific Company, Atlanta, Ga.

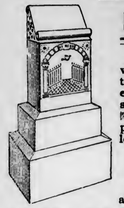
DRAUGHON'S Practical Business Colleges,
Estab. 16 YEARS. Incorporated $300,000.00.
SIXTEEN bankers on Board of Directors.
Cor. Martin and Wilmington,
BIG 15 BIGGEST Best CATALOG Tells The Rest
RALEIGH ATLANTA ST. LOUIS PADUCAH FT. SCOTT COLUMBIA FT. WORTH NASHVILLE KNOXVILLE GALVESTON SHREVEPORT
Colleges IN 12 States Can You Name Them?
KANSAS CITY LITTLE ROCK MONTGOMERY OKLAHOMA CITY
Endorsed by business men from Me. to Cal. Our diploma represents in business what Yale's and Harvard's represent in literary circles.
POSITIONS. Written contract given to secure position or to refund money; or may contract to pay tuition out of salary. Over 6,000 students each year. No vacation; enter any time. DAY and NIGHT session. SPECIAL rate if you call or write SOON for "Proposition B." Catalog FREE. We teach BY MAIL successfully or REFUND money.



A beautiful Bible in reach of all
NO MONEY NEEDED
All you need is to send to us for 12 copies of THE AMERICAN ILLUSTRATED METHODIST MAGAZINE. Sell them to friends at price of 10c a copy, return the $1.20 collected, and we will send you by return mail, absolutely free, our beautiful Holman Teachers' Bible, bound in morocco, helps, maps, 32 full page illustrations, 4000 questions and answers on Old and New Testaments. You will be delighted with it, as all our customers are.
Our magazine was never more attractive and popular; it sells quickly.
Pastors and S. S. Teachers may order Bible for examination to be returned at our expense if not earned.
THE METHODIST PUB. CO.,
112 Locust St., St. Louis, Mo.

H. STEINMETZ.
FLORIST.
Cut Flowers, Designs. Plants of all kinds.
PHONES 113. RALEIGH, N. C.

THE LARGEST SALE OF ANY ONE BRAND IN THE UNITED STATES
Sauer's
FLAVORING EXTRACTS
BEST BY TEST.
AT YOUR GROCER
10c and 25c.

Raleigh Marble Works


Monuments
Ship Monumental work to all parts of the State. Delivered to your depot at same price as at shop.
Special attention paid to finish and lettering.
Only Best of Stock Used.
Write for new catalogue.
COOPER BROS., Proprietors,
RALEIGH, N. C.

Atlantic & North Carolina R. R.

(Howland Improvement Company Lessee.)
Schedule in effect October 23, 1904.

EAST-BOUND.

Station.	No. 3.	No. 5.
Leave Goldsboro	3.30 p. m.	8.00 a. m.
" LaGrange	3.59 "	8.28 "
" Kinston	4.22 "	8.48 "
" Dover	4.45 "	9.18 "
" Cove	5.00 "	9.30 "
" Tuscarora	5.12 "	9.50 "
Arrive New Bern	5.40 "	10.40 "

Station.		No. 7 (Accom.)
Leave New Berne	6.50 p. m.	12.30 p. m.
" Riverdale	6.16 "	1.12 "
" Havelock	6.30 "	1.40 "
" Newport	6.55 "	2.19 "
Arrive Morehead City	7.20 "	2.55 "

WESTBOUND.

Station.	No. 4.	No. 8. (Accom.)
Leave Morehead City	7.11 a. m.	5.20 a. m.
" Newport	7.56 "	6.28 "
" Havelock	8.08 "	7.00 "
" Riverdale	8.21 "	7.30 "
Arrive New Bern	8.45 "	8.05 "

Station.	No. 6
Leave New Bern	6.30 p. m.
" Tuscarora	6.50 "
" Cove	7.00 "
" Dover	7.17 "
" Kinston	7.37 "
" LaGrange	7.57 "
Arrive Goldsboro	8.30 "

Trains 3, 4, 5 and 6 run daily.
Trains 7 and 8 run daily except Sunday.
CONNECTIONS.—At Goldsboro, with Southern Railway and Atlantic Coast Line. At Kinston and Newbern, with Atlantic Coast Line.
R. P. FOSTER, General Manager. F. A. NIEL, Traffic Manager, Goldsboro, N. C.

Raleigh and Cape Fear Railroad
TIME TABLE.
Effect 12:01 A. M., Sunday, October 9, 1904.

SOUTH BOUND TRAINS. Daily, ex. S. Second-Class	First-Class	STATIONS.	NOR. BOUND TRAINS. Daily, ex. S. First-Class	Second-Class
101	105		104	102
A. M.	P. M.	Lv.	A. M.	P. M.
7 20	4 15	Raleigh	9 45	5 35
7 35	4 25	Carraleigh Mills	9 35	5 20
7 45	4 30	Spring Hill	9 30	5 15
7 54	4 39	Harnes	9 20	5 04
8 00	4 45	Hobby	9 14	4 57
8 15	4 52	McCULLERS	9 10	4 52
8 25	4 56	Banks	8 58	4 25
8 30	4 59	Austin	8 55	4 21
8 50	5 07	Willow Springs	8 40	4 15
9 05	5 15	JOHNSON MILL	8 40	4 05
9 15	5 17	Cardenas	8 38	4 00
9 20	5 22	C. F. & N. Junction	8 33	3 55
9 35	5 30	Fuquay Springs	8 30	3 52
9 40	5 31	Buckhorn	8 20	3 35
9 45	5 36	Rawls	8 17	3 20
10 00	5 45	Chalybeate	8 10	3 20
10 05	5 50	Bradley	8 00	3 01
10 15	6 00	Smith Mill	7 55	2 55
10 25	6 10	Lillington	7 45	2 45
		Ar. Lv.

Secular News

GENERAL.

It is expected this Congress will pass the Statehood bill.

The armored cruiser Tennessee was launched at Philadelphia.

The Russians at Port Arthur still have two lines of defense left.

During the last fiscal year 812,870 immigrants arrived, a decrease of 44,176.

The Anti-Mormon party in Utah is reported to be developing much strength.

An armistice of six hours was arranged at Port Arthur for the burial of the dead.

Ex-Postmaster-General James N. Tyner is dead of paralysis, aged seventy-eight years.

According to Secretary Shaw, the Government deficiency the last fiscal year was $42,770,572.

Republican leaders in the House say there will be no ship-subsidy legislation this Congress.

The total attendance at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition was 18,741,073, with 203,101 on the closing day.

Representatives who visited the Isthmus of Panama report the work on the canal is progressing satisfactorily.

President Roosevelt has not yet shown his hand in the effort to reduce the South's representation in Congress.

It is intimated that Japan will accept the President's invitation to attend another peace conference at The Hague.

If an extra session of Congress to revise the tariff be decided upon, it is thought it will not be called before next fall.

President Roosevelt will go South in the spring to attend the reunion of Rough Riders at San Antonio, Texas.

The Russian battleship Poltava has been sunk and the battleship Retvizan seriously damaged by Japanese at Port Arthur.

Ex-Judge Alton B. Parker argued his first case before the Court of Appeals at Albany since his retirement from the bench.

M. W. Potter, cashier of banks at Davishoro, Glenwood and Helena, Ga., who has disappeared, is short in his accounts $15,000.

Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick, the reputed owner of millions, failing to obtain $15,000 bail, was locked up in the Tombs in New York.

Senator Platt introduced in the Senate a bill to reduce the representation of the Southern States in the House of Representatives.

The House Committee on Industrial Arts and Exposition disapproved of holding an industrial exposition at Jamestown, Va.

The Japanese are reported to have been repulsed with great loss in their efforts to turn General Rennenkampff's flank near Mukden.

Secretary Taft and President Amador announced a full settlement of the differences between the United States and the Republic of Panama.

B. B. Hughes, aged twenty-two years; his wife, Eva, about the same age, and two daughters, Emily and Hattie, nineteen and fifteen years old, constituting an entire family, were murdered at Trenton, Edgefield County, S. C.

The nomination of William D. Crum, a negro, was again sent to the Senate for confirmation as Collector of Customs at Charleston, S. C.

The official vote of South Carolina for President follows: Parker, 52,863; Roosevelt, 271; Debs, Socialist-Democrat, 22; Watson, Populist, one.

Census Director North says the issuance of incomplete reports on cotton crops by his bureau prepares those interested for the fuller returns.

Caleb Powers, twice convicted of complicity in the assassination of Governor Goebel at Frankfort, Ky., was granted a new trial by the Kentucky Court of Appeals.

Representative Cockran, of New York, offered a bill providing for the appointment of a commission to ascertain the amount of money spent on National campaigns.

The annual report of Secretary of the Navy Morton declares for a large navy, argues in favor of the battleship and advocates the appointment of two vice-admirals.

A joint resolution introduced in the Senate provides for a commission to investigate collection and expenditure of money by National committees in the interest of Presidential candidates.

Dr. Henry K. Pancoast, of the University of Pennsylvania, has succeeded in changing the color of a negro's skin to white by use of X-rays and then back again to brown by the use of Finsen light.

Amid scenes of uncontrolled excitement and frenzied haste to sell securities, the New York Stock Exchange Thursday witnessed the most sensational decline in prices that it has known since the Northern Pacific panic of May 9, 1901. Stocks dropped from 6 to 11 points.

The Next General Assembly.

The General Assembly of North Carolina will meet at noon on the first Wednesday after the first Monday in January, which will be the 4th day of January. The election of a Speaker of the House of Representatives will be the first important act of that body. Thus far we have heard of only four aspirants for that position, and they are ex-Judge A. W. Graham, of Granville County; O. H. Guion, Esq., of Craven; B. B. Winborne, Esq., of Hertford, and Major W. P. Wood, of Randolph. There may be others, not yet mentioned.

There is not much legislation needed, and probably the less there is the better. With almost every Legislature there is more danger of too much legislation than fear of too little. Now, that our State has so excellent a corporation law, that is a law under which corporations may be organized, no bill ought to be passed incorporating any company that can be incorporated under our general incorporation law. Heretofore too much time in all our Legislatures has been consumed in the consideration of bills to incorporate all kinds of companies. Let the next Legislature institute a reform in this respect, and devote its entire time to the consideration of measures of a public character and that will benefit all the people. One thing that the Legislature will not do, and that is take any backward step in temperance reform. The opposition made their campaign chiefly against the Watts law, and the people have sustained that law by a large majority. —Chatham Record.

For Whooping Cough use CHENEY'S EXPECTORANT.

Port Arthur stands, but the Russian ships in her harbor are at the mercy of the Japanese, who have taken one of the commanding points of the fortress. The policy of the Japanese is now to starve out the Russian garrison.

Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick seems to have made good her claim to fame as one of the most colossal frauds of the time. It appears that by forging Andrew Carnegie's name to the amount of $15,000,000 she has wrecked a strong bank and ruined a number of individuals. She is now in jail.

Monday's papers bring news of an ominous uprising of the people of Russia at St. Petersburg in an anti-government demonstration. It is spoken of as a riot greater than any since 1901.

The armies before Mukden are in the grip of cold weather.

Cancer Cured Without Disfigurement

January 14, 1904.

Dr. D. M. Bye Co., Dallas, Texas.:

GENTLEMEN:—I wish to express my lasting gratitude to you for making a cure of the Cancer on my face. I began treatment on June 15, 1903, and by August 1 it was out and had filled nearly level with the sound flesh. It then shortly healed over, and has never given me a moment's trouble since. I know that it is well, and can heartily recommend the Dr. D. M. Bye Combination Oil Cure to any one suffering from cancer as I did.

May God bless you in your work, is the sincere wish of your friend,

E. R. MERRELL, Hubbard, Texas.

There is absolutely no need of the knife or burning plaster, no need of pain or disfigurement. The Combination Oil Cure for Cancers is soothing and balmy, safe and sure. Write for free book to the Originator's office, Dr. D. M. Bye Co., Box 462, Dallas, Tex.

Quarterly Meetings.

WARRENTON DITTRICT.

G. F. Smith, P. E., Littleton, N. C.

FIRST ROUND.

Littleton, Littleton, Dec. 18
Roanoke Rapids and Rosemary, Roanoke Rapids, Dec. 24, 25
Weldon, Dec 25, 26
Warrenton Macon, Dec. 31, Jan. 1
Northampton, Rehoboth, Jan. 7, 8
Rich Square Rich Square, Jan. 8, 9
Conway, Bethany, Jan. 10
Murfreesboro, Jan. 11
Bertie, Windsor, Jan 13
Harrellsville, Powellsville, Jan. 14, 15
Garysburg, Garysburg, Jan. 19
Ridgeway, Ridgeway, Jan. 21, 22
Enfield and Halifax, Halifax, Jan. 29, 30
Battleboro and Whitakers, McTyris, Jan 31
Bobwood, Bobwood Feb 4, 5
Scotland Neck, Feb 5, 6
Williamston and Hamilton, Williamston, Feb. 7
Warren, Providence, Feb 11, 12
Roanoke, Tabor, Feb 18, 19
Henderson, Feb. 26, 27

DURHAM DISTRICT.

J. T. Gibbs, P. E., Durham, N. C.

FIRST ROUND.

Durham, Branson, Dec. 11, a. m
Leasburg, at Leasburg, Dec. 12
Milton, at Milton, Dec 13
Durham, Mangum Street, December 18, 19
Carr Church, Dec. 25, 26
Durham Ch., Duke's, Dec 31, Jan. 1
West Durham, an. 1, at night
Hillsboro, Hillsboro Jan 8, 9
Durham, Trinity Church, Jan. 16, 17
District Stewards' meeting at Trinity Church, Durham, at 11 a. m., Tuesday, Dec. 20.

RALEIGH DISTRICT.

W. H Moore, P. E.

FIRST ROUND.

Central, Jan 1, 2
Brooklyn at night Jan 1
Youngsville, Youngsville, Jan. 7, 8
Millbrook, Millbrook, Jan 14, 15
Clayton, Clayton, Jan. 21, 22
Franklinton, Franklinton, Jan. 28, 29
Edenton Street, Feb. 4, 5
Louisburg, Feb 11, 12
Oxford Circuit, Feb. 18, 19
Granville, Feb. 25, 26
Oxford Station, March 4, 5

ROCKINGHAM DISTRICT.

John N. Cole, P. E., Rockingham, N. C.

FIRST ROUND.

Rockingham Station, Jan. 1, 2.
Hamlet, Old Hundred, Jan. 3
St. John and Gibson, Gibson, Jan. 4
Laurinburg Station, Jan. 4 (7:30 p. m.)
Maxton and Caledonia, Maxton, Jan. 5
Rowland, Rowland, Jan 7, 8
Robeson Trinity, Jan. 8, 9
Elizabeth, Jan. 11
Lumberton Jan. 12
Roberdel, Roberdel Jan. 13
Aberdeen, Biscoe Jan 14, 15
Richmond, Mizpah Jan. 18
Red Springs, Hasford Jan. 21, 22
Montgomery, Shiloah, Jan. 27
Troy, Troy, Jan. 27 (7:30 p. m.)
Mt. Gilead, Mt. Gilead, Jan. 28-29
Pekin Concord, Jan. 30

The District Stewards will please meet in the pastor's study in the Methodist Church, Rockingham, N. C., Dec. 29, 8:30 p. m. And all Stewards are requested to call on every member of their respective churches and receive the offering on pastor's salary for the first quarter, according to the law of the Discipline.

WASHINGTON DISTRICT.

J. D. Bundy, P. E., Rocky Mount, N. C.

FIRST ROUND,

Fremont, Eureka, Dec, 31 and Jan. 1,
Tarboro, Jan. 3
Aurora, Durham Creek, Jan. 7, 8
Grimesland and Vanceboro, Ayden, Jan, 14, 15
Wilson Station, Jan. 22
Wilson Circuit, Lodge Street, Jan. 23
Rocky Mount, Jan. 25
Elm City, Elm City, Jan 29 30
South Rocky Mount and Marvin, Feb. 1
Bethel, Bethel Feb. 4, 5
Farmville, Farmville Feb. 11, 12
Greenville, Feb. 19, 20
Robersonville, Robersonville, Feb. 21
Washington, Feb 24
Bath, Asbury, Feb. 25, 26
Spring Hope, Spring Hope, March 4, 5
Nashville, Nashville, March 6
Swan Quarter, Swan Quarter, March 12, 13
Fairfield, March 15
Mattamuskeet, Englhard, March 18, 19

The District Stewards will please meet in the Tarboro Methodist Church at 10:30 a. m. Tuesday, Jan. 3

ELIZABETH CITY DISTRICT.

J. E. Underwood, P. E., Elizabeth City, N. C.

FIRST ROUND.

Pasquotank Circuit, at Hall's Creek, Dec. 25, 26
Elizabeth City, City Road Dec 25,
Edenton, Evans' and Centre Hill, at Edenton, Jan. 1, 2
Hertford Station, Jan. 8, 9
N. Gates Kittrell, Jan. 14, 15
Dare Circuit, Jan. 21
Roanoke Island, Jan. 22, 23
Hatteras, Jan. 28 29
Kitty Hawk, Jan. 25
Perquimans Circuit at Winfall, Feb. 4, 5
Camden Circuit, at Nashs's Feb. 7
Carrituck Circuit, at Asbury, Feb. 18 19
Elizabeth City First Church, Feb. 22
Moyock Circuit Feb. 23
Roper Feb. 25, 26
Plymouth, Feb. 26, 27
Gates, March 5, 6
Pantego March 12 13
Columbia March 18, 19

BETTER THAN SPANKING.

Spanking does not cure children of urine difficulties. If it did there would be few children that would do it. There is a constitutional cause for this. Mrs M. Summers, Box 238, Notre Dame, Ind., will send her home treatment to any mother. She asks no money. Write her to-day if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child. The chances are it can't help it

BLACKBOARDS

For Schools, Sunday Schools Churches.

Any quality, shipped anywhere promptly All kinds school furniture and supplies. Write for particulars, Best Goods, Lowest Prices.

CHAS. J. PARKER, Mgr.
Raleigh, N. C.

THE COUNTRY IS RINGING WITH THE PRAISES OF THE "Southland Belle" Shoes

FAMOUS BECAUSE MERITORIOUS. THE BEST IN AMERICA FOR $1.50

TAKE NO SUBSTITUTE. IF YOUR DEALER DOES NOT CARRY THEM, A POSTAL CARD TO US WILL TELL YOU WHERE YOU CAN GET THEM.

CRADDOCK-TERRY CO. LEADING SHOE MANUFACTURERS OF THE SOUTH.

LYNCHBURG-------VA.

Christmas Cards.

We make a specialty of Christmas Cards in packets. Choice designs selected from our Christmas importations. The daintiest greeting one can send at Christmas is a beautiful card.

A 25 cts.—25 Beautiful Cards.
B 30 cts.—10 Holly Cards and Booklet.
C 23 cts.—20 Exquisite designs, heavily
D 55 cts.—7 Artistic Booklets, [embossed
E 75 cts.—50 Handsome Embossed Cards.
F 35 cts.—15 Dainty Folding Cards.
G 33 cts.—10 Artistic Folders and Novelty
H 50 cts.—15 Dainty Folded Cards and
I $1.00.—50 Post Cards. [Booklet.

Send for 96 page catalogue of Sunday School and holiday supplies.

MacCalla & Co., Inc., 218 Dock St., Phil. Pa.

Methodist Orphanage

OFFICERS:

REV. J. W. JENKINS, - Superintendent
MRS. J. W. JENKINS, - - Matron
MISS LUCY M. REEKS, Teacher

Send money to the Superintendent by Check, Post Office or Express Money Order, or Registered letter.

Furnishing the New Building.

A collection and subscription were taken for the furnishing of our Main building at Henderson at Conference. Some $420.00 were paid and subscribed. It will take $1,000 to meet our immediate necessities. Who will take a room? Tar River Circuit takes a school room. We want funds especially for the dining room, the cook room, and the laundry.

Who will help us?

Very Important.

The doors of our Main building are now open for the reception of indigent orphan children. They must be over 6 years old. Girls under 14, and boys under 13 years old. Send for blanks. Don't scratch them. Have the preacher in charge, the Superintendent of the Sunday-school, and a Steward of the nearest church sign them. They are the committee.

As we wish to distribute them, the Executive Committee decided to take but two from a family, for the present.

If there are more than two applications from the same family, we will file them, and see what can be done later.

It would be nice for the pastor to see if his church or churches and Sunday-schools, or school, will not provide for the support of the orphans they send.

The Orphanage at Conference.

The Orphanage never had such a time at Conference. The Old Mother has taken the Baby to her heart. It has been a boy up to this time, and his name was Johnny. But it is a girl now, and her name is Alma. Not Alma Mater, but Alma Infans. But is going to be Alma Mater some of these times.

First, we had such a meeting of the Board of Trustees as we never had before. They showed a deeper interest. They were simply enthusiastic. They devised a sensible plan for its support, feasable and easy of execution. If there is a finer Board in the world, I don't know it.

Second, the Committee was more largely attended, and far more interest was shown by it with Col. Jno. F. Bruton as Chairman, and an able set of ministers and laymen we had a right to expect wise action, and it was taken.

Third, the Conference. Both preachers and lay delegates—all showed more interest than I have ever known. After a short, practicle talk by the President of the Board of Trustees, Hon. R. N. Page, the Conference unanimously adopted the plan divised by the Board, viz.: To make an assessment upon the churches for an amount equal to ten per cent, upon the salary for the support of the ministry.

Fourth, the people—men, women and children, all, were anxious to hear from and to do something for it.

Then I received more money there than ever before at a Conference. So, also, did the Joint Board of Finance.

Receipts up to November 30.

Littleton, Thanksgiving to J. G. B., $21.06; J. W. Jenkins, Thanksgiving, $10.00; Mrs. J. W. Jenkins, Thanksgiving, $5.00; Master Geo. T. Jenkins, Thanksgiving, $1.00; teachers and scholars at Moore schoolhouse, Thanksgiving, $.25; Main St., Durham, Thanksgiving, $240.00; Sanford Circuit, Thanksgiving, $25; Dr. W. H. Nicholson, Thanksgiving, $10.00; Roberdell S. S., little girls, Thanksgiving, $1.75; Fayetteville, Thanksgiving, $4.09; Louisburg, Thanksgiving, $22.63; Julia Jenning Ricks, Thanksgiving, $1.00; Central Church, Asheville, Thanksgiving, $6.00; Garysburg, Thanksgiving, $7.25; Carthage Circuit: Carthage, Thanksgiving, $27.84; Center, Thanksgiving, $7.58; Cool Springs, Thanksgiving, $4.58; W. H. Jackson, $5.00; Thomas G. Cole, $5.00; Murfreesboro, Thanksgiving, $25.84; Juvenile H. M. S., Smithfield, in full on office, $18.00; Morehead City S. S., last quarter, $15.00; Henderson, Thanksgiving, $24.63; Mr. D. G. Watkins (Baptist) and friend, Thanksgiving, $2.05; Main St., Durham, Thanksgiving $11.73; Main St., Durham, S. S., on support of an orphan, $19.17; R. H. Knight Marion, Rocky Mt., on support of an orphan, $2.00; Chadbourn, Thanksgiving, $3.65; Raeford S. S., $2.75; Grace Church, Wilmington, Thanksgiving, $42.00; Laurinburg S. S., $10.00.

Donations in kind:

Box goods and one potatoes, by C. M. Vaughan; barrel potatoes from Helen and Gracie Moore; clothes from W. H. M. Society, Sunbury; box sundries, M. E. Church, Murfreesboro; furnishings for two beds, Aid Society.

Items.

That thousand-dollar check handed in the Joint Board, was a most inspiring item. If a few more would follow suit, that five thousand-dollar debt would soon be lifted. May their number be multiplied! If our rich men and women would put a few thousand in this Institution, it would be a blessing to them as well as to us. What a blessing it would be, if other towns would do as well as noble little Franklinton.

The Orphanage sends thanks to all the dear women and men and children who gave them such a bountiful Thanksgiving. Going on yet. And sends greetings for Christmas. The roosters are already crowing for it.

The Sunday-schools AGAIN.

Will not all the Sunday-schools settle up in full by the first of January next?

"Don't be afraid to ask for large things." An extract from a letter from Hon. R. N. Page, House of Representatives, Washington, D. C.

Christmas is a fine time for large giving.

Send it in beloved, dead-headed.

For Croup use CHENEY'S EXPECTORANT.

Virginia Dare

A POEM

BY REV. W. H. MOORE.

The very thing you are looking for as a Christmas or New Year's gift to a friend.

Price 50 Cents.

Order of the author,

PITTSBORO, N. C,

Cabbage Plants

All varieties. Hardy. Grown in open air. $1.50 per 1,000; 5,000 for $6.25; 10,000 for $10.00. Write

F. W. TOWLES,
Martins Point P. O., S. C.

NOTICE!

I want every man and woman in the United States interested, either for themselves or friends, in the cure of Opium and Whiskey habits to have one of my books on these diseases. Address Dr. B. M. WOOLLEY, Atlanta, Ga., Box 389, and one will be sent you free.

The True Relation of the Women of the State to a Great North Carolina Business Now in its Infancy.

Of all the various lines of business which make up our commercial life there is none that is of such vital interest to women as that of life insurance. The history of the world will never record a greater achievement in the line of organized benevolence than the great business of life insurance. The chief beneficiaries of this business, whose protecting arm is now thrown around the whole civilized world, are the women and children, and its blessings have been so manifold and its utility so well established that the man who does not avail himself of the protection which it affords for those who are dependent upon him is coming to be regarded as shiftless, if not criminal. With the progress of education the time is coming when hostility to life insurance will become a badge of ignorance.

It is an astonishing fact that one of the most serious obstacles to the extension of the business of life insurance is the prejudice of good women who entertain a sentiment against it, a sentiment which does more credit to their hearts than to their heads. A man who has a wife and children dependent upon him for their support, and who runs the risk of this support being taken away from them at any time by his death, and who does not protect them from such a calamity through the great beneficent co-operative agency of life insurance, is either unthinking or unfeeling, and no woman should make herself a party to such shiftlessness and folly by a sentimental opposition to life insurance.

In North Carolina there is a life insurance company which can give the same absolute protection which can be had through the policies of the great metropolitan companies. Its business is on the old line legal reserve plan with a surplus to policyholders of over $230,000.00. Every dollar received by this company for life insurance premiums is invested in North Carolina and not a dollar leaves the State. In no other way can the resources of the State be so successfully husbanded and its wealth and prosperity increased as by fostering such institutions as these instead of sending our money abroad for things which we can buy just as profitably at home. This company is the Southern Loan and Trust Company, of Greensboro, N. C., which has made a remarkable financial record and which is rapidly becoming one of the strongest financial institutions in the South. Correspondence is invited with any one desiring to apply for life insurance, or to enter the field of life insurance soliciting.—Woman's Thanksgiving edition News and Observer.

FIGURES DO NOT LIE

neither do the thousands of people who are sending testimonial letters, gratefully explaining the surprising benefits which they have derived from that household remedy which is now attracting much attention everywhere, Vernal Palmettona (Palmetto Berry Wine). Every reader of the Christian Advocate can receive a trial bottle absolutely free of charge by writing at once to the Vernal Remedy Company, Le Roy, N. Y. If you are suffering from the many complaints caused by impure blood, and if you wish to restore yourself to a perfect condition of health, and be freed from catarrh, rheumatism, backache, constipation, and the many other diseases that are caused by an unhealthy condition of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bladder. Only one dose a day of this wonderful remedy is necessary to effect a quick and permanent cure. Sold by leading druggists everywhere.

When writing advertisers, please mention this paper.

Christmas and Standard Books

Send 2c. in Stamps for Our New Book Catalogue, 80 Pages.

Our Book Department is the largest and most complete of its kind in the entire South.

We mention a few of our Standard and Religious Classics. Over 250 titles in this edition. Handsome bindings.

Our Price, 25c.
Postage 5c. Each.

Abbe Constantin.
Abide in Christ.
Black Rock.
Courtship of Miles Standish.
Evangeline.
In His Steps.
Imitation of Christ.
Kept For the Master's Use.
Light of Asia.
Little Lame Prince, The.
Marmion.
Mosses From An Old Manse.
Paradise Lost.
Reveries of a Bachelor.
Rip Van Winkle.
Scarlet Letter.
Silas Marner.
Sentimental Journey, A.
Tales From Shakespeare.
The Shepherd Psalm.
Tom Brown's School days.
Vicar of Wakefield.
Window In Thrums.

Write us for samples of anything you wish in the way of Dry Goods.

Miller & Rhoads, Richmond, Va.

SPECIAL EXCURSION TO HAVANA, CUBA.

Do not miss this opportunity to visit this beautiful and attractive island, as it will afford, not only the opportunity for you to make a delightful trip, but to the manufacturer of the South, will offer the additional opportunity to investigate the possibilities of Cuba with the view of developing their business in that country.

A personally conducted, special excursion to Havana, Cuba, January 4, 1905, from Washington, D. C., Richmond and Norfolk, Va., and intermediate points in the States of Virginia, North and South Carolina, will connect with the Peninsular and Occidental Steamship Company's steamer leaving Port Tampa, Fla., on the night of January 5, 1905.

The party will be limited to 150 persons, therefore reservations should be made promptly, in order to secure proper accommodations on the steamship "Olivette," the most commodious ship of the Peninsular and Occidental Steamship Company, which will convey the party to Havana.

Tickets will be limited for return passage on any steamer leaving Havana until January 19, 1905, with privilege of stopovers at any point in the State of Florida, south of Jacksonville, within final limit of ticket, which will be January 22, 1905.

The rate, $45.40 from Raleigh, N. C., for the round trip includes meals and stateroom on the steamship.

Mr. A. W. Fritot will meet the party in Jacksonville and accompany them to Havana. Mr. Fritot speaks Spanish fluently and will place himself at the disposal of the party, furnishing any information desired.

Make up your party and go, and should you desire any other information, books, pamphlets, etc., on Cuba, or "What to say in Spanish and how to say it," address,

W. J. CRAIG, Gen'l Pass. Agent,
Wilmington, N. C.
H. M. EMERSON, Traffic Manager.

Arrest It—$50 Reward.

Upon receipt of 10 cents, a small sample bottle of Ec-zine will be sent to every reader of the Raleigh Christian Advocate who is suffering with any kind of skin disease or eruption—Eczema, Blind or Bleeding Piles, Blood Poison, Fever Sores, Cancer, Rheumatic Pains, or any other Germ disease or sore of any name or nature.

$50 reward will be paid for any case of Eczema that is not promptly cured with Ec-zine. Ec-zine will heal any sore or cure the worst skin and make it look like velvet. Thousands cured daily. Never mind what you have tried; forget the failures made by other remedies, and send for sample of Ec-zine which always gives relief and permanent cure. A $1.00 bottle often cures the worst cases. If your druggist does not have Ec-zine send direct to us. The Ec-zine Company, M. Kupermeier, Sales Agent, 112 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

North Carolina Methodist Handbook.

WHAT IT IS.

A book of 175 pages, printed in good, clear type suited to dim eyes, and on good, white book and half-tone paper capable of taking the finest electrotypes. It is bound in heavy eighty pound cover paper which insures durability. It is suitable for the centre table as well as for the office or study.

Its Object.—To furnish the Methodists of North Carolina a compendium of Methodist history and biography; a statement of Methodist doctrine and discipline with which every Methodist should be acquainted; a reference book for the year in which may be found those facts and figures which are so often needed and are found in no other publication; in short, a publication to increase the information, strengthen the faith, and deepen the church loyalty of the Methodists of North Carolina.

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

General.—(1) The Remarkable Dream of Rev. Christopher Thomas.

(2) Special article by Bishop O. P. Fitzgerald.

(3) Special article by Bishop E. R. Hendrix.

(4) A Brief Statement of Methodist Doctrine.

(5) Some Every Day Questions on the Discipline.

(6) What It Is to Be a Methodist.

Historical and Biographical.—(1) "My First Conference"—a series of sketches by Revs. R. W. Pickens, C. M. Anderson, P. J. Carraway, A. D. Betts, M. C. Thomas, G. W. Callahan, J. W. Jenkins, and W. H. Moore.

(2) Milestones in North North Carolina Methodism.

(a) The First Methodist Preacher in North Carolina

(b) The First Methodist Society in North Carolina.

(c) The First Annual Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church in North Carolina.

(d) The First Great Methodist Revival in North Carolina.

(e) The First Session o fthe North Carolina Conference in 1838.

(3) The Dead of the two Conferences in 1904.

Statistical—Official Boards, Committees, etc., of the two Conferences in North Carolina.

Roll of Itinerant Preachers.

Roll of Local Preachers.

Roll of Sunday School Superintendents.

Tables showing what each Conference has done each year for the last ten years in the Support of the Ministry, Foreign Missions, Domestic Missions, Church Extension, Conference Claimants, Education, Church and Parsonage building, Sunday-schools and Epworth League. In short, a miniature file of the Journals of both Conferences for the last ten years.

Maps showing by means of squares the percentage paid by each Conference for the last ten years for the assessed interests of the church.

A Resume of Woman's Work in North Carolina Methodism.

Our Orphanage.

Our Schools.

District Conference Directory for 1905.

Methodist Chronology for 1904.

Methodist Episcopal Church, South.—Bishops, Connectional Officers, and Boards.

Religious Papers.

General Statistics.

General Church Statistics.—Methodist Episcopal Church.

Table of Denominational Statistics in the United States.

Table of Denominational Statistics in North Carolina.

North Carolina.—Calendar for 1905.

State Government.

Schools and Hospitals.

Railroads and Factories.

Educational Statistics.

Miscellaneous Statistics and Tables.

Practical.—Tables, Rules, Recipes, etc., needed by the business man, the farmer, housekeeper, etc.

Illustrations.—The Handbook for 1905 is more profusely illustrated than any previous issue. Three prizes were offered for the most artistically decorated parsonage front. The Handbook for 1905 contains cuts of the parsonages taking the prizes. The other cuts are those of faces, churches, schools, dwellings, and scenery. Only the best engravings are used.

Its Past.—This Handbook has been published annually for the last four years. Every issue has been an improvement on the preceding one. It has circulated in nearly every State in the Union. Orders have come from as far West as New Mexico. Bishop Duncan says that every Methodist family in North Carolina should have it. Bishop Hargrove says that it is "admirable." Dr. James Atkins says: "I hope that the pastors of both Conferences will agree with me in this to the extent of making a very thorough going canvass in order, if possible, to put one in every home in the Old North State." The Nashville Christian Advocate says: "It will be a source of valuable information to every North Carolina Methodist." The St. Louis Christian Advocate congratulates us on the good work of the Handbook. The Midland Methodist says: "It is packed full of important information, going even beyond the Holston Annual in its exhibit of ecclesiastical data."

It is commended by Bishops, connectional officers, presiding elders, editors, preachers and laymen.

It is a book which contains more than ten dollars worth of information, and is sold for only 25 cents, single copy.

A liberal discount offered on orders of six or more.

Address,

THOS. N. IVEY.
Editor Raleigh Christian Advocate.
Raleigh, N. C.

"It Won't Come Off."

On my way down town the other morning I saw a man cleaning the brass sign-plate at the doorway of a large store. He was rubbing it very hard, yet seemed to be making the brass very little brighter, and I stopped a moment to watch him. He noticed my interest, and between rubs gave me an explanation of the difficulty.

"It's been left so long" he said, "that the black won't come off. It seems to be there to stay."

As I passed on, these words went with me. The man was right, and what he had said was just as true of people as it was of brass plates. We form habits of various kinds which soon take a firm hold of us, gaining in power the longer we let them continue. Then, if they are not wise habits, the time comes when we wish to break them, and rid ourselves of their influence; but we find that, like the black on the brass plate, they have been left so long they "won't come off."

I passed the store again later in the day, and say that the man's hard rubbing had eventually had some effect, although the brass was even yet not wholly clean. And so, too, I thought our lives can be cleaned of bad habits, although not easily. But the brass plate would have been better if it had never been allowed to tarnish, and we will be better and wiser if we never let bad habits gain a hold on us.—The King's Own.

That Racking Cough
Positively Cured by Allen's Lung Balsam

For LaGrippe and Influenza use CHENEY'S EXPECTORANT.

ENDOWMENT
is all that is necessary to start a million-dollar library on the Globe-Wernicke plan of "Elastic" construction.
FOR SALE BY
ROYALL & BORDEN FURNITURE CO.
Cor. Wilmington & Hargett Sts., Raleigh.

..Dobbin & Ferrall..
(AT TUCKER'S STORE)
123-125 Fayetteville St.,
Raleigh, N. C.
OURS IS A
Big Holiday Store
UNTIL CHRISTMAS
Carrying such comprehensive stocks of all lines suitable for . . . . . .
CHRISTMAS GIFTS
that it will repay your coming personally to make your purchases. If not able to come, write and we will give your order prompt attention.
DOBBIN & FERRALL
123 and 125 Fayetteville St.

Sore Throat, Coughs, Colds
Not promptly treated, often end in Pneumonia or Consumption.
Gowan's Pneumonia Cure is a very quick and effective remedy for sore throat, coughs, colds, congested lungs, etc. It allays fever and inflammation, scatters congestion and relieves all pain. It is the only known specific for Pneumonia and has cured thousands of desperate cases where all else failed. Used externally.
Sold by Druggists, $1.00 a Bottle.
Mr. W. B Bagwell, a well known business man of Durham, N. C., says: "My little niece had been sick for months with inflamed chest, protracted cough and congested lungs and had become very much emaciated. From the first application of Gowan's Pneumonia Cure she began to improve and in a few days was romping over the house. I think Gowan's Pneumonia Cure is a wonderful remedy and advise every one troubled with throat, chest or lung ailments to try it."
Dr. George F. Brock, a prominent physician of Brock, N. C., says: "Some time ago I received a bottle of Gowan's Pneumonia Cure. After trying it in a case of congested lungs, it gives me pleasure to state that it gave entire satisfaction."
If your druggist cannot supply you, write to
Gowan Medical Co., Durham, N. C.

CROSS & LINEHAN CO.,
NEW TUCKER BUILDING.)
234-236 Fayetteville St., RALEIGH, N. C.
LET US SHOW YOU WHAT THE FULL MEANING OF BARGAIN-GIVING MEANS IN . . . . . .
CLOTHING
AND GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS
OUR NEW SPRING STOCK NOW READY FOR YOUR INSPECTION.
Cross & Linehan Co.,
Leading Clothiers.

Frisco System
Chicago & Eastern Illinois R. R.
FRISCO SYSTEM
Double Daily Trains
BETWEEN
St. Louis AND Chicago
MORNING AND EVENING.
From LaSalle Street, Station Chicago..... 9:50 a. m.—9:10 p. m.
From Union Station (Merchants Bridge) St. Louis..... 9:30 a. m.—9:16 p. m.
Morning or evening connection at both termini with lines diverging.
Equipment entirely new and modern throughout.
A DOUBLE TRACK RAILWAY.
Equipped with practical and approved safety appliances.
Substantially constructed.

Useful Pussy.

Down along Front street and South street, in the wholesale flour district, pussy is a distinct asset of business. The keener the cat, the fewer holes there are in the sacks, for the rat, with his small ally the mouse, is the distinct enemy of the exportation of flour in sacks. If he can bite a hole in the bottom of a sack, he has done a good day's work, according to the ethics of ratdom. Pussy, therefore, is almost a member of the firm. When the other members go out to luncheon, pussy can be seen sitting on the top step at the street door with "eyes right." A whole line of them, in fact, are invariably on hand, all sitting on top steps and all with "eyes right." They are waiting and looking for the cats' meat man. Pussy eats every day at noon when the other partners go out.—New York Post.

A Small Patriot.

A country's defenders are not all among those who march away to war, for many serve at home. The following anecdote tells of a small boy in Revolutionary times, who bravely did his best.

Luke Varnum lived in a small village among the Green Mountains. He was fifteen years old, and was lame in his left foot. So when every other boy and every man, old and young, shouldered his firelock and marched off to join General Stark and fight the Hessians at Bennington, Luke was left behind. He limped out and held the stirrup for Lieutenant Chittenden to mount, and then he had to stay at home with the babies and women.

The company had gone an hour and a half, more or less, when three men galloped up on horseback. Luke went down to the rails to see who they were.

"Is anybody here?" asked one of them.

"Yes," said Luke, "I'm here."

"I see that," said the man, laughing. "What I mean is, is there anybody here who can set a shoe?"

"I think I can," said Luke. "I often tend the fires for Jonas. I can blow the bellows, and I can hold a horse's foot. Anyway, I will start up the fire."

So Luke went into the forge and built a fire. He hunted up half a dozen nails, and even made two more. When the shoe was fast he said, "Tell Jonas that I lit up the forge and put on the shoe."

"We will tell him," said the colonel, laughing; and he rode on.

But one of the other horsemen tarried a minute and said, "Boy, no ten men who left you to-day have served the country as you have done. That is Colonel Warner."

And when we read how Colonel Warner led up his regiment just in time to save the day at Bennington, we can think of Luke Varnum, who helped his country in no small way.—Southern Presbyterian.

A quiet hour spent with God at the beginning of the day is the best beginning for the toils and cares of active business. A brief season of prayer, looking above for the wisdom and grace and strength, and seeking for an outpouring of the Holy Spirit, helps us to carry our religion into the business of the day. It brings joy and peace within the heart. And as we place all our concerns in the care and keeping of the Lord, faithfully striving to do His will, we have a joyful trust that, however dark or discouraging events may appear, our Father's hand is guiding everything, and will give the wisest direction to all our toils. —Philadelphia Methodist.

LADIES Interested in easily raising church money would do well to write the PETER NEAT-RICHARDSON Co., Wholesale Druggists, Louisville, Ky. All we want is the advertising. Write us.

Deafness Can Be Cured
I Have Made the Most Marvelous Discovery for the Positive Cure of Deafness and Head Noises and I Give the Secret Free.
With this Wonderful, Mysterious Power I Have Made People Deaf for Years Hear the Tick of Watch in a Few Minutes.
Send Me No Money—Simply Write Me About Your Case and I Send You the Secret by Return Mail Absolutely Free.
After years of research along the lines of the deeper scientific mysteries of the occult and invisible of Nature-forces I have found the cause and cure of deafness and head noises, and I have been enabled by this same mysterious knowledge and power to give to many unfortunate and suffering persons perfect hearing again: and I say to those who have thrown away their money on cheap apparatus, salves, air pumps, washes douches, and the list of innumerable trash that is offered the public through flaming advertisements, I can and will cure you to stay cured. I ask no money. My treatment method is one that is so simple it can be used in your own home. You can investigate fully absolutely free and you pay for it only after you are thoroughly convinced that it will cure you, as it has others. It seems to make no difference with this marvelous method how long you have been deaf, nor what caused your deafness, this new treatment will restore your hearing quickly and permanently. No matter how many remedies have failed you—no matter how many doctors have pronounced your case hopeless, this new magic method of treatment will cure you. I prove this to your entire satisfaction before you pay a cent for it. Write to-day and I will send you full information absolutely free by return mail. Address Dr. Guy Clifford Powell, 1670 Auditorium Building, Peoria, Ill. Remember, send no money—simply your name and address. You will receive an immediate answer and full information by return mail.

I Have Demonstrated that Deafness Can Be Cured—Dr. Guy Clifford Powell.

Christmas Holiday Excursion Rates
VIA
Southern Railway.
1904-1905.
Account Christmas and New Year Holidays, Southern Railway will sell tickets at extremely low rates.
Dates of sale of tickets to the general public, December 23, 24, 25 and 31, 1904, and January 1, 1905, with final limit January 4, 1905.
Dates of sale of tickets to students and teachers, upon presentation of Certificate signed by the Superintendent, Principal or President of Schools and Colleges, December 17 to 24, inclusive, with final return limit January 8, 1905.
For information as to Rates, Schedules, Sleeping Car Accommodations, etc., ask any agent, or
R. L. VERNON, T. P. A., Charlotte, N. C.
J. H. WOOD, D. P. A., Asheville, N. C.
S. H. HARDWICK, P. T. M.
W. H. TAYLOE, G. P. A., Washington, D. C.

When writing advertisers, please mention this paper.

9 FOOT COTTON STALKS IN VIRGINIA.
Among the many strong evidences of the great value of "Cerealite" we cut the following from the Graphic, the local paper of Franklin, Va. The only other Fertilizer used under the cotton was "Home Fertilizer."
From the Franklin, Va., Graphic: "Mr. Albert Sidney Johnson, who is not only a good peanut buyer, but an expert farmer; for this latter fact is fully demonstrated by an exhibition of his cotton crop at the Graphic office this week. There were two stalks, one 9 feet high, with 60 bolls, the other 5 feet 10 inches, with 155 bolls, many additional blooms on either stalk. Who can beat this? The Fertilizer used was 'Cerealite Top-Dressing,' one bag, 167 pounds to the acre." Write for circulars. For sale by Home Fertilizer Chemical Works, 932 N. Calvert St., Baltimore, Md.

CENTRAL ACADEMY
LITTLETON, N. C.
A Christian Home School for Boys and Young Men. Spring Term begins Jan. 4th, 1905. Charges very low. For further information address
REV. W. W. ROSE, Principal.

The Highsmith Hospital
(INCORPORATED.)
A General Hospital, centrally located on Green Street. J. F. Highsmith, M. D., Surgeon and Specialist in the diseases of women. Assistants: J. Vance McGougan, M. D., Surgeon; J. A. McKethan, M. D., Specialist in the diseases of the eye, ear, nose and throat.
Modern appliances throughout; elevator, electric and gas light; water, heat, hot and cold shower baths and telephone service on every floor; electric call bells in all rooms; sound-deadening rubber treads and linoleum on stairways and halls, operating room second to none, well equipped chemical and microscopic laboratory with Static X-Ray Electric Machine in connection, giving unsurpassed facilities for treatment of the most difficult surgical cases.
Nurses' Home and Training School, under the supervision of Miss Maude Robertson, graduate of The Massachusetts General, of Boston, Mass., Miss McLean, of Waverly, Mass., and the Sloan Maternity, of New York, and recently head nurse of the surgical department of the Philadelphia Hospital.
The Cochran Annex, complete in furnishing and equipment, with endowed beds for both white and colored.
Domestic and Culinary Department under skilled housekeeper, faultless in sanitation, cleanliness and convenience.
For further information address
J. F. HIGHSMITH, M. D., Fayetteville, N. C.

10 cts. a copy—$1.00 a year
McCLURE'S MAGAZINE
is "the cleanest, most stimulating, maliest general magazine for the family," says one of the million who read it every month. It is without question "The Best at any Price." Great features are promised for next year—six or more whole novels, interesting short stories in every number, continued stories, beautiful pictures in colors, and articles by such famous writers as Ida M. Tarbell, Lincoln Steffens, Ray Stannard Baker, John La Farge, William Allen White, and Charles Wagner. Get all of it right into your home by taking advantage of this SPECIAL OFFER.—Send $1.00 before January 31, 1905 for a subscription for the year 1905, and we will send you free the November and December numbers of 1904—fourteen months for $1.00, or the price of twelve. Address McCLURE'S, 48-59 East 23d Street, New York City. Write for agents' terms.

The Harmonized and Subject Reference New Testament.
BY REV. JAMES W. SHEARER.
"Very valuable arrangement of the text to give a clear, comprehensive view of our Lord's life and teachings, such as has not been before presented."—Dr. F. E. Clark, C. E. World.
"You have done the world a service in this work."—Dr. R. D. Wilson, Princeton Theological Seminary.
"A dollar book worth a hundred."—World Evangel, St. Louis.
"One of the best and most important ever prepared. There are several maps well prepared."—Herald Presbyter.
The Old Book, in modern print, made into a local, topical, harmonized and subject reference edition, by cross reference of numbered paragraphs with headings, arranged according to time, place, harmony and traced journeys.
Each number marks the same subject in all four Gospels. Reviewers declare it "unique," "graphic," "ingenious," "original," "satisfactory," "supplements revisers," "adds much-needed help." "fills a long-felt want," etc
REDUCED FOR CHRISTMAS PRESENTS, 662 pages, new indexes. Neat postpaid cloth, on receipt of price, $1.00. gilt, $1.35. Address Author, of
THE SUBJECT REFERENCE CO., DELAWARE, NEW JERSEY.
BEST RATES TO AGENTS.

Dropsy CURED Gives Quick Relief.
Removes all swelling in 8 to 20 days; effects a permanent cure in 30 to 60 days. Trial treatment given free. Nothing can be fairer. Write Dr. S. H. Green's Sons, Specialists, Box 6 Atlanta, Ga.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY CHRISTMAS HOLIDAY EXCURSION FARES—1904-1905.
On account of the Christmas Holidays the Southern Railway announces the sale of round trip tickets from all stations on these lines, to points within the territory east of the Mississippi and south of the Ohio and Potomac Rivers.
Rate: One and one-third first-class standard one way fares for the round trip.
Tickets will be sold December 23, 24, 25 and 31, 1904, and January 1, 1905, with final limit January 4, 1905.
Holidays rates for students and teachers:
Tickets will be sold to teachers and students of universities and colleges and seminaries on presentation and surrender of certificates signed by the Superintendent, Principal or President thereof on December 17 to 24, inclusive, with final limit January 8, 1905.
For rates, schedules, etc., call on any agent of the Southern Railway or address.
T. E. GREEN, C. T. A., Raleigh, N. C.

BLYMYER CHURCH BELLS
Please mention this paper.

Farmers Mass Meeting.

A mass meeting of the farmers of Wake County is called to meet at the court house in Raleigh on Saturday, the 17th inst., to take in consideration the present low prices at which cotton is selling and to devise some way by which the farmers can procure better prices for the remainder of the crop.

Georgia, Texas, and all the cotton growing States are taking similar action. Let every cotton farmer in the county who desires to see cotton bring a better price attend this meeting.

Kipling on Automobiles.

Mr. Kipling's letter contributed to A. B. Filson Young's book, "The Complete Motorist" (McClure-Phillips), is really a remarkable document and worthy all the discussion it has created in the public press. "I like motoring because I have suffered for its sake," he begins, and goes on: "The men to reverence, to admire, to write odes and erect statues to are those Prometheuses and Ixions, maniacs you used to call us, who chase the inchoate idea to fixity up and down the King's highway. Yes, I have suffered, as I now see in the cause of humanity." Speaking of utility: "I can catch me a train anywhere within fifteen miles when I please, and not when the Jenny's hind leg or Jack's cough is better; and if I visit, I do so as a free agent, making my own arrangements for coming and going. But the chief end of my car is the discovery of England. To me it is still a marvel that if I want Petrole in a hurry I must either pass the place where Sir John Lade lived or the garden where Jack Cade was killed. In England the dead twelve-coffin deep clutch hold of my wheels at every turn, till I sometimes wonder that the very earth does not bleed." On the moral aspect: "Have you noticed how the motor is the most efficient Temperance Advocate and the only Educational Act at present forced in Great Britain. The car demands of her driver, a certain standard of education, a capacity of unflickering attention; and absolute sobriety. There are on the twenty odd miles which divide me from the nearest town westward thirty-one or thirty-seven pubs, in front of which I used to find at least two unattended horses. Now there are fewer beasts outside, and those within are not so sodden. What has wrought this change in our midst—tracts, blue ribbons? It is the Car, the Unexpected Car around the corner."

All progress of strong hearts is by action and reaction. Human life is too weak to be an incessant eagle flight toward the Sun of Righteousness. Wings will be sometimes folded because they are wings. . . . The earthly struggle must be enduring—that is all. There must be no surrender; we can't expect much of victory here. — Samuel Chapman Armstrong.

Each day is a new life and an abridgment of the whole. I will so live as if I accounted every day my first and my last: as if I began to live but then and should live no more afterwards.—Joseph Hall.

He shall be as the lightof the morning, when the sun riseth, a morning without clouds.

A FRIGHTENED HORSE.

Running like mad down the street dumping the occupants, or a hundred other accidents, are every day occurrences. It behooves everybody to have a reliable Salve handy, and there's none as good as Bucklen's Arnica Salve. Burns, Cuts, Sores, Eczema and Piles, disappear quickly under its soothing effect. 25c. at all druggists.

SKIN PARASITES

Live and multiply in the skin of the sufferer from Tetter, Itch, Ring Worm and similar skin diseases. It is horrible for one to be fed upon in this manner. Fortunately the sufferer is no longer helpless. One box of Tetterine will destroy the germs and restore the skin to a perfectly healthy condition. Physicians prescribe and druggists endorse it. If you have a friend suffering from such troubles tell him of Tetterine. Fifty cents at druggists, or by mail from

J. T. SHUPTRINE,
Savannah, Ga.

Has no Friend of Yours Advised You to Take

Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy.

About two years ago I was taken with an incessant aching and burning of the stomach, which produced inflammation. Nothing would stay on my stomach, neither food, milk or even water. I would vomit everything almost as soon as I would swallow it. Finally I became so weakened I had to take to my bed, and would often have violent attacks of colic. Three doctors treated me and pronounced my trouble indigestion. Their treatment did me no good whatever. Everything I swallowed disagreed with me, and I could not retain a thing I ate. Finally a friend begged me to try Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy—and I was willing to try anything. On the third dose I knew it agreed with me, and was doing me good. In a week's time I could retain light diet, like crackers, milk and rice. At that time I had been confined to my bed seven weeks—so weak I was not able to sit up at all. In a month's time I could eat anything I wanted—ham, cabbage, potatoes—anything. Of course, as my general health was built up and I could eat, I got strong, and when I had taken six bottles I was WELL, and have never had a touch of indigestion since.

Mrs. Person's Remedy will cure nervousness when nothing else will. I wish I could write as strong as I feel about it, but I cannot say enough in its praise, for the good it has done for me.

MRS. R. G. JOHNSON.
Fort Mill, S. C., April 8, 1904.

Excursion to Havana, Cuba, Jan. 4th.

The Seaboard announces a very low rate of one fare plus two dollars for the round trip from all points in Virginia, North and South Carolina, including Washington, D. C., to Havana, Cuba, and return. Rates, including meals and state-room on steamship between Port Tampa and Havana and return.

Tickets will be sold January 4th from North Carolina points, and are good returning on any steamer up to and including January 19th, with final limit of ticket January 22, 1905. Stop-overs will be permitted at any point south of Jacksonville.

This party will be limited to 150 persons, and reservations should be made promptly in order to secure accommodations on the steamship "Olivette," one of the most handsome ships of the Peninsular and Occidental Steamship Company, which will convey the party to Havana. The party will be personally conducted by Mr. A. W. Fritot from Jacksonville, who will meet them in Jacksonville and accompany them to Havana. Mr. Fritot speaks Spanish fluently, and will give special attention to the party.

The rate from Raleigh will be $45.40 for the round trip, including meals and state-room berth.

For further information, apply to
C. H. GATTIS, T. P. A.,
Raleigh, N. C.
H. A. MORSON, C. P. and T. A.,
Raleigh, N. C.

King's Business College.
(INCORPORATED.)
CAPITAL STOCK - - $30,000.
Learn Bookkeeping, Shorthand, Touch Typewriting, Penmanship and English. Not in a month—this cannot be done. Not free—you cannot get something for nothing but if merit appeals, we can convince you that KING'S is the best. Established and results of 20 years experience.
Reference: Every bank and leading business concern in Raleigh or Charlotte.
Write for our College Journal and offers we are now making. Address,
KING'S BUSINESS COLLEGE,
Raleigh, N. C., or Charlotte, N. C.

HICKS' CAPUDINE CURES ALL HEADACHES.
IT'S LIQUID.
The perfect remedy for Colds, Indigestion, Periodic Pains, Brain Fag, etc. Prevents Train Nausea and Sick Headache. Braces the nerves. It's harmless. Trial bottle 10c.

A Southern Pacific Greeting.

Oh! how lovely it is to ride
In a palace car so dignified,
Lounging around in luxurious ease,
Building your castles as you please,
Unmolested; no fumes to choke,
Rain of cinders or grime of smoke;
Now-a-days people appreciate
Every comfort, small and great.
Reason compels us to understand
Southern Pacific is best in the land.

To Louisiana, Texas, Mexico and California. Special Homeseekers' rates to Louisiana, Texas, New Mexico and Arazona in December. Information cheerfully given.

J. F. VAN RENSSELAER,
13 Peachtree St., ATLANTA, GA.

25c CELATONE 25c
The new remedy for Headaches, Neuralgia, Nervousness, etc. Contains no Chloral, Morphine, Cocaine, or other harmful drugs.
"It makes you forget the pain."
For sale by your druggist at 25 cents per bottle (6 doses) or sent upon receipt of price.
W. H. KING DRUG CO., Prop.
RALEIGH, N. C.

THROUGH TRAIN SERVICE TO CALIFORNIA
And all Principal Points West
VIA
Union Pacific
SHORTEST ROUTE FASTEST TIME
SMOOTHEST TRACK
ELECTRIC LIGHTED TRAINS DAILY
ENQUIRE AT
J. F. VAN RENSSLAER
13 PEACHTREE ST.
ATLANTA, GA.

Fruit Trees.
Old Reliable Greensboro Nurseries, John A. Young, owner. We also raise fine Poland China and Mammoth Black Hogs, and fine Jersey Cattle. Agents wanted.
Address
John A. Young,
GREENSBORO, N. C.

1,000 AGENTS WANTED
—TO SELL—
"SERMONS BY THE DEVIL."
Book sells at sight. Write to-day for most liberal terms. Outfit free. Address
C. H. ROBINSON & CO., Publishers,
Box G, CHARLOTTE, N. C.

Do You Eat Cabbage?
If so send to me for immediate shipments of plants for early headers. I have now ready for delivery, 150,000 plants of the best varieties known to the truck business. They are grown in open air on the South Carolina sea coast, and will stand very severe cold without injury. Price $1.50 per thousand. Special rates for 5,000 and over. Send remittance by registered letter, or money order, or plants are shipped C. O. D. if desired. For early gardens prepare to send now. Supply was exhausted last year.
L. C. BEHLING,
Meggetts, S. C.
Teleg. & Express Office.

Cabbage Plants
Grown in the open air. Will stand any cold. Count guaranteed. Guaranteed headers. Seed grown by best seed houses in the business. I have now an unlimited supply. Any variety. Sold the largest half of the plants for cabbage crop in Virginia and North Carolina last year. Will give references if desired to anyone that used them last year.
Prices $1.50 per thousand in small lots f. o b Meggetts, S. C. Express rates about 20c. per thousand and less. In large lots, (over ten thousand) $1 25 per thousand.
I give coupons with each order guaranteeing count, and offering special inducements to all purchasers.
E. L. CUMMINGS,
MEGGETTS, S. C.

Cabbage Plants for Sale.
The largest, hardiest, earliest and best known varieties. Succession and Large Type Wakefield. $1.50 per $1 000; in lots of 5,000 or over, $1.75; 10,000 or over, $1.00 per 1,000. Specia prices on large lots. Address
N. H. BLITCH, Meggetts, S. C.

Raleigh Christian Advocate

Organ of the North Carolina Conference

FIFTIETH YEAR | RALEIGH, N. C., WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 21, 1904. | NUMBER 46

Reading Room Trinity College

AT BETHLEHEM.

So many hills arising, green and gray,
On earth's large round, and that one hill to say:
"I was His bearing place!" On earth's widest breast
So many maids! And she—of all most blest—
Heavily mounting Bethlehem, to be
His mother!—holy maid of Galilee!
Hill with the olives and the little town!
If rivers from their crystal founts flow down,
If 'twas the dawn which did day's gold unbar,
Ye were beginnings of the best we are,
The most we see, the highest that we know,
The lifting heavenward of man's life below.

—Edwin Arnold.

GATCHEL & MANNING, PHILA.

Contributions

Scenes in My Early Ministry.—No. 2.

BY REV. E. A. WRIGHT.

We, who were old enough to be Confederates, all remember well the awful dark days of Reconstruction through which we, of our beloved Southland, had to pass, from the end of the war between the States up to the year 1879, and which went on even down to later date; we remember that everything pertaining to the "land of Dixie" went awry, very bad; and, too, that all these things affected our political, religious and social life; how even all our churches, of every denomination, were affected by the poverty and distress brought upon our land by these dreadful Reconstruction days, and how dark the prospects lay out before us; that not even a star of hope threw a ray of light across the dark clouds that hung over the horizon, and, to a large extent, this was sadly true of our beloved Methodism all over our down-trodden land, and especially so (as I believe) in Eastern Carolina, the "dark belt of our good Old North State." It was during these troublesome times that I was commissioned, in the old M. E. Church, South, at Goldsboro, N. C., by the Quarterly Conference, as a minister of the gospel, and, under this commission, which I esteemed highly, I resolved to go out into the highways and hedges, and, to the best of my ability, scatter Methodist seed wherever I might go. In the spring of 1878, the auxiliary of the American Bible Society, located in the town of Goldsboro, of which, if memory serves me right, Dr. John F. Miller was president, I was appointed colporteur of said auxiliary for Wayne County, with a monthly salary of $25.00 for a period of six months, and was instructed to canvass the whole county; to sell as many Bibles and Testaments as possible, and was further instructed, if I found any without a copy of God's Word too poor to purchase, I was authorized to present such with a cheap copy of the Bible or Testament as they might select. In making these donations I was to exercise my best judgment. Under these instructions I went out on this canvass, and many a Bible did I sell and not a few did I give away to the destitute poor. On this canvass, by permission from the Board, I carried Rand & McNalley's map of the United States with a map of North Carolina on the reverse side. These maps I sold at $1.50 and $2.00 per copy, and I think I sold on this round at least 400 copies of these excellent maps. Dr. Miller who was, at that time, a large practitioner in Wayne County, remarked to me, after the canvass was over, that "he could track me in every nook and corner of the county where he practiced by the Bibles and maps I had sold." He said "he could trace me through all homes I had visited by these foot prints—these Bibles and maps. When on this canvass, as I got into the township of Pikeville, I fell in with Bro. Needham J. Smith and his estimable family, not far out from Pikeville village. At this home I made headquarters while canvassing Pikeville township. One night, while sitting around the hearthstone, he asked me to make a monthly appointment at his school-house, located about one-half mile from his residence. He further told me if I would do this, that he would come to Goldsboro once a month for me and bring me out to his home. I did as requested, and, if memory be not at fault, made an appointment at said school-house for the fourth Sunday of every month from then on until the end of that year. I began in April, and on the fourth Sunday in August, by request of Brother Smith, I announced a series of meetings to be held there, commencing the Saturday before the fourth Sunday in September. By his request, I wrote to Bro. A. J. Finlayson to come to Brother Smith's at the time appointed and assist me in these meetings. This request, Brother Finlayson gladly complied with; so on the Saturday designated he met me at Brother Smith's residence. Shortly after I commenced preaching at this school-house, Brother Smith organized a Sunday-school, and, when the revival opened, he had a very flourishing school at this place. Before our meeting commenced, Brother Smith and the neighbors built a large brush arbor in front of the school-house—an arbor that would seat several hundred. The meetings commenced at the time appointed and continued for two weeks—morning and night. Brother Finlayson preached the morning sermon and I the night sermon. The people came in multitudes—came flocking to that consecrated spot like doves to their windows. Many a time—

"Heaven came down, our souls to greet,
And glory crowned the mercy seat."

We had at these meetings upward of seventy conversions, at least sixty of whom joined the Methodist Church.

Brother Smith gave here an acre for a church building, and he and his neighbors joined in and built a church which they named "Mount Carmel." This church still stands there a lasting memorial to the liberality of Bro. Needham J. Smith and his neighbors.

Bro. A. J. Finlayson and myself worked together like "Damon and Pythias." He was a power in prayer and song, and was a persuasive preacher. One, no matter how hard in sin he was, could withstand the powerful appeal of Brother Finlayson. He delighted in the old-time revival hymns and, likewise, so did I. His favorite song was:

"Father, I stretch my hands to Thee,
No other help I know;"

while mine was the "Fountain."

"There is a fountain filled with blood."

In some future article I will give to your readers accounts of other, and perhaps better, meetings in which Brother Finlayson and myself co-operated. He was the first captain under whom I served in the army—the army of Dixie land, and I learned to love and honor him there, and this love and honor was unbroken until he was called up yonder, and I hope some sweet day to meet and greet him on the shores of eternal deliverance. God's heroes die, but the work goes on, and thus it will continue to go on until the last click of the clock of time.

Birmingham, Ala., Dec. 13, 1904.

Rev. Jonathan Sanford, D. D.

The Rev. Jonathan Sanford, D. D., was born in Richmond County, N. C., March 30, 1834. He reached the close of a long and useful life June 19, 1904, at Siler City, N. C.

He was born of parentage that constituted him a man of good fibre.

His paternal ancestors were Quakers from England. His mother was of Scotch-Irish, an O'Bryan. From these diverse sources he inherited a strain of blood that made of him a man of pious tendencies, strong in character and unbending in integrity, who would rather suffer than not be right.

He was the oldest of seven children, and grew up taught to be industrious and helpful.

His parents were in limited circumstances, and because of this, his educational advantages were meager, having altogether two years in school. He must have been both studious and apt, for at the age of seventeen he became a teacher, and continued to teach for fourteen years.

At the age of twenty-three, he was converted under the preaching of Rev. Peter Doub. His conversion was clear, and marked a definite turning point in his life.

Shortly after his conversion he felt a call to preach, but for a time he resisted the call. At length he yielded, and was licensed at Clio, South Carolina, by Rev. A. M. Chrietsburg, P. E., in 1859. For ten years he served as a local preacher. During that period he preached annually an average of one hundred sermons.

At the Conference of 1869, he took work as a supply. God blessed his ministry in the conversion of three hundred souls, and 215 joined the Methodist Church.

Through the influence of Rev. W. S. Black, he applied for admission on trial in the North Carolina Conference, at the session at Fayetteville, 1872, and was appointed to the Ansonville Circuit.

From that time to his death, though never a strong man physically, he served with scarcely the loss of an appointment till the first of this year, when he was disabled for a while by an accident.

Trained in the school of labor and self-reliance, he was fitted for the responsible work to which he was called, capable of service, of enduring hardships, and of bravely meeting discouragements and difficulties.

He was loyal to the itinerant policy of the church, and went unmurmuringly to whatever charge he was sent, with one exception, and then he was returned to a charge on which he had waged a heroic battle against the liquor traffic and had created antagonism, and hesitated to enter the fight again. His appointments were sometimes inferior to what his ability and usefulness indicated he should have, but he went bravely to them. His religious life was positive and aggressive.

He knew Christ in the forgiveness of sins, in the witness of the Spirit, and in His abiding presence. His surrender was complete, and Jesus was to him both Lord and Saviour.

Both in the pulpit and in his private life he could be recognized as a man who knew the Lord. As a preacher, he was strong, clear, forcible and Scriptural. He made no attempt at ornate and oratorical discourse, nor was there any effort at sensational or novel preaching. He had a serious message from God to man, and he delivered that message in earnestness, and God set the seal of approval on it and believers were edified and sinners converted. By the world's standard, he could hardly be called successful, for he never reached the high places of the church, but if soul-winning makes one a success, then Dr. Sanford was eminently successful, for beyond two thousand were won to Christ through him. And in the Book it is written: "They that turn many to righteousness shall shine as the stars forever and ever."

Dr. Sanford was happily married in his early life to Miss Eliza McQuiston, of Pawtucket, R. I. Theirs was the true marriage of heart and hand, and together they walked loving hand in hand, bearing together life's burdens and sorrows and sharing together its joys. Hence, his home-life was attractive. He was ever the thoughtful husband, and the kind, but firm father, ruling well his household, and holding ever the utmost affection of his wife and children. His widow and two daughters remain, feeling keenly their loss, but submitting with resignation to the will of God.

He came to the end of life's journey at a ripe age, and in the full enjoyment of his mental faculties and his ministry abiding in usefulness.

He was stricken in the pulpit on Sunday morning while in the act of prayer, and from the place of petition in the earthly sanctuary, he was translated to the place of praise, in the temple not built with hands.

One hour held in the grasp of an eager yearning for souls, breathing out his soul in behalf of men, the next hour mingling with the redeemed and happy multitude who have passed from prayer to praise and are forever with the Lord.

He has finished his course with joy, and the ministry committed to him by the Lord Jesus Christ, and now amid the enrapturing visions of the land he longed to see, he joins with the white clad host in exultant songs of rejoicing and praise.

F. D. SWINDELL.

Goldsboro, N. C., Dec. 10, 1904.

Ten minutes spent in His society every day, aye, two minutes, if it be face to face and heart to heart, will make the whole day different.—Henry Drummond.

[illegible]ing Hindrances to the Revival Out of the Way.

Rev. W. P. Thirkield, D.D., Corresponding Secretary Freedman's Aid and Southern Education Society.

It was my first Quarterly Conference. Official [illegible]embers had come from all the four points of [illegible]e circuit to Germantown, Cincinnati Conference. We were waiting for the presiding elder, [illegible]ho was late. A messenger came and startled and [illegible]mfounded us with the announcement that ca[illegible]mity had befallen him, that our presiding elder [illegible]ad been arrested and placed in jail in Dayton. [illegible]e was afterwards thoroughly vindicated. But [illegible]hat did not help us in that dark hour. The [illegible]ormal questions in the conference were soon [illegible]over. The young pastor then said: "For the [illegible]everal months of my pastorate I have carried a [illegible]heavy burden. I can bear it, but the church can[illegible]not. Two members of this church, brothers-in-[illegible]laws, here present as members of this board, hate each other and are at war one with the other. Their families are divided, their children are suffering. It is the scandal of the church. Ungodly people in this community mock at us. The pastor's efforts and prayers to bring them together have not availed. It stands in the way of all spiritual progress and power in this church. Now, brethren, this hour of darkness may be made bright if these members will forgive and clasp hands. This is not the time to discuss the merits of the case. It is the hour for prayer, for mercy and forgiveness. Let us pray that this breach may be healed."

How we did pray! We arose from our knees and then plead for reconciliation. But hard-faced and stubborn, these enemies faced each other unsoftened, unsubdued. Again the word, "Let us pray," brought us to our knees, and we agonized in prayer. We arose. They seemed to relent a little and began to discuss the merits and demerits of the case. Declining to allow this, the pastor, after tearful exhortation, again called all to prayer. Soon the fountain of the great deeps in all was broken up. A wave of love and sympathy swept all hearts. The hard, cold hands of the brothers-in-law reached out and grasped each the other. Then in loving forgiveness they embraced. We all shouted and sang the doxology. The victory of that hour thrilled the membership. The love-feast the next morning was memorable. At the night service, one bowed at the altar and was converted. The pastor announced that the revival services would be continued. The entire town and community were stirred as in the days of Allen Thompson, twenty years before. The wave of revival power swept over the entire circuit. Hundreds were converted, and all because this dissension in the church and hindrance to the Lord's work was swept out of the way.

Methodism and Evangelism.

Rev. W. H. Hickman, A.M., D.D., President of Trustees' Chautauqua, Jamestown, N. Y.

Real Methodism is aggresive evangelism. The song of real Methodism is not "hold the forts," but "take the forts." There is a field and responsibility for real Methodism to-day as never before. But there is a Methodism—popular in some localities, painfully esthetical, formal and contented—that is a withered branch, a barren tree, a paralyzed arm. There is a growing conviction that this kind is to-day a creeping paralysis to episcopal Methodism. Our defense against this type is not found in our up-to-date churches, our ritualism and organizations, but in and by the spirit of evangelism. "The letter killeth; the spirit giveth life." Where the spirit of the Lord is there are liberty and life.

Every minister of the Gospel, especially Methodist ministers, should be evangelistic in spirit. Nine-tenths of the responsibility in the local church, for aggressive evangelism, is in the pastor. "Like priest, like people." When the priests are clothed with righteousness, the saints shout for joy. I have known a certain representative Methodist Episcopal Church for thirty years. In that time, three ministers have changed the spirit and type of Methodism in that church, and its power in that city.

One man was of the platform, popular reform type, expository in method, with a quiet, but intense Christian zeal. He gathered many people into the church—some of them worldly-minded prominent men. He filled his church and made it a power.

The next man was intellectual, cultured, zealous, just as intense, but carefully avoided the evangelistic type of Methodism. He was a teacher of new-found theories of Christian democracy. His prayer meetings were either commentaries on some new book, interspersed with well-chosen songs, and one or two prayers from men or women long since schooled in public speech; or new and strange expositions of familiar Scriptures, making them apply to aggregate rather than individuals. He was popular, but nobody was saved. The church was directed in channels of art and Christian ethics, and grew smaller from year to year. The needs of the wage-worker, the poor and neglected, were nearly always held up in beautiful theories, and yet not one of this class was saved by his ministry. Between him and this class was a gulf fixed.

The next pastor was an educated, consecrated, single-minded Gospel preacher. In coming into that formal, esthetical atmosphere, there was such a contrast that it seemed for a time he would have a short pastorate. In leading his prayer-meetings, it was common for him to look strangely at some brother who repeated in good faith teachings he had received from his former pastor. By dint of conviction, broad and evangelistic teaching, he won his way, and changed the current of thought of his membership, making his prayer-meetings devotional, his congregations larger, and his church a greater power in the town. He held revivals, sometimes with help, sometime alone; and many have been saved.

My duties call me in a wide range among the States, and I believe the greatest need of the hour is a wide-spread, intelligent, intense, aggressive, Scriptural evangelism, appealing to the heart and to the head; but it must begin with the pastor.

The Unsatisfactoriness of Recent Revival Efforts.

Rev. D. W. C. Huntington, D.D., Chancellor Nebraska Wesleyan University.

That much of recent revival effort has proved unsatisfactory in its results needs little proof. We give an opinion as to some of the causes:

1. We have unconsciously dishonored the Holy Spirit. (1) By treating Him as an impersonal influence rather than as the personal God. (2) We have attempted to plan his work, rather than have him plan ours. (3) We have relied upon men and measures and tactics, rather than upon him. (4) We have attributed to his direct agency much that has been but psychological and pathological phenomena.

2. We have been too often content with resemblances to revival, when there has been little or no revival in fact. We have stopped with an awakened religious sentiment and feeling, and have not sufficiently insisted upon right voluntary states.

3. We have often treated men as if they were in danger of being lost, while the Bible treats them as lost already. We have been trying to save them from hell, while Jesus Christ is seeking to save them from sin.

4. In our altar services prayer has been offered and directions have been given that were apparently suggested by the promptings of human sympathy, rather than by a holy concern for the honor of God. We have thus frittered away the conviction of sin which the Holy Spirit has wrought.

5. Have our motives in laboring for revival always been such as could receive the approval of God? Have we sought converts in order to save the churches, rather than to save souls? Has there been such a pressure upon ministers to establish a reputation among the churches as successful revivalists, that they have thought the counting and reporting of converts a necessity to themselves? Has there been no revival effort conducted for the purpose of reaching the point of building a new church, paying off a debt, or increasing a pastor's salary?

6. Revival work has been done too exclusively in the church building. Home evangelization, neighborly calls for religious conversation, appointments to meet husband and wife together for talks upon personal religion, have been needed. These should be conducted the year through.

7. If we have not had too many evangelists in number, we have had some who have not given sufficient evidence of having been called to that work. The responsibilities of all ministers are great; those of the evangelist are greater than the average. The professional evangelist should be called to God of that specific work. It is not good evidence of such a call that he has failed as a pastor. His divine call is not sufficiently indicated by an ability to sing well, or to enthuse a prayer service. Of all Christian workers he most needs to be commendably able in public address, level in head, courteous in manners, and infinitely distant from fun-making, cheap story-telling and "pious bosh."

8. Revival efforts which have swelled our church records with the names of those who have known only a season of awakened religious feeling, stopping short of real self-surrender to Christ, are the greatest embarrassment of many of our churches.

Do We Want a Revival?

There are a great many factors that enter into a revival—time, conditions, preparation and co-operation, but the deepest and most essential is the earnest, beseeching, unyielding and inflexible desire for a revival. The history of the great revivals of former days shows that the ministry and the laity became so deeply interested that the atmosphere of the whole church life was vibrant with holy inspiration and tremulous with the fear and hatred of sin. The people not only prayed about the matter at their family altars, but conversed with their neighbors in places of business. There was a seriousness which crept into the faces of men, an elevation of sentiment into the sermon, a new faith into the pulpit, a new energy, a new intensity into the pew; the prayer-meeting rooms were filled, the circles of prayer were like an endless chain among believers, and one mighty revival impulse controlled the whole church. Are there such signs among us? We do not discount plans, but we think it apparent that the revival we want must be preceded by an intense desire for the salvation of the people.

Will the church stand by the pastor while he preaches a series of plain, earnest, heart-searching sermons? Will they follow him in such an undertaking? It is probable that some, as in the time of Christ, would go away. "Will ye also go away?" was the anxious question Christ once was compelled to ask his nearest disciples. Pastors find that the people too often want "popular" sermons—sermons that strike the popular wave of the hour. They yield to this demand, and come dangerously near converting their pulpits into a forum. The whole church should stand close to the pastor when he is putting forth special effort to promote evangelistic conditions.

The church needs a baptism of the sense of the supernatural. The ministry has been spending a good deal of time on the social, the semi-political, the economic problems of society, and given much instruction and enriched the knowledge and strengthened the civic conscience of the church and community, but the evangelistic element in the pulpit has been left too much to one side. Will the church members sustain the effort to promote the new aggressive spirit of soul-winning in the church? Will they come out to the service? Will they follow the prayerful leadership of the pastor? Will they pray with and for him? We believe many of them will do so. The class-leaders, the stewards, the Sunday-school workers, the Epworth Leaguers can all surely be depended upon. The pastor is and must be the leader.

The Field

A Pounding.

Dear Dr. Ivey:—Did a crowd of people, of all ages, sizes, and sex, ever come on you unawares and pound you?

Well, if you never had any experience on the subject, you know nothing about it. On Friday evening, December 16, 1904, while I was quietly sitting with my wife and brother, D. D. Daniel, in the cosy sitting room of our comfortable parsonage home, in the good town of Henderson, in the good old State of North Carolina, there came suddenly upon me, of malice aforethought, and without warning, a large crowd of men and women, bearing bundles of all sizes and sorts, and filled the room to overflowing. There was everything good to eat, and in such abundance, that I feel rich enough to entertain the North Carolina Conference single-handed and alone. It was indeed a surprise party, and they came so suddenly, and left so soon, that I hardly had time to thank the generous donors. The fact is, I was dumb before the multitude of good people, and so grateful for the donation and for the Spirit that prompted it that I could only feel a sense of love for them that words could not express. I am inclined to the opinion that I have the best appointment in the North Carolina Conference; and from all I have heard from the brethren who attended the Conference, there are many of my opinion. But I take occasion to serve notice on the brethren that they are one and all forbidden to look this way for three years, unless they get in a strait for some one to entertain them in an inimitable fashion for a week, and then we may let them come and view the land and get a sample of its good things and go on their way rejoicing.

We had a good year last year, but expect a far more successful one this year. May God help me to give this generous people the best service of my life; for they have shown their love for their pastor by a generous increase in salary as well as by the kindly and helpful expression of interest in the event above-described. I ask all my brethren of the North Carolina Conference to say amen to this petition. God bless Henderson!

L. L. NASH.

Henderson, N. C., December 16, 1904.

Trinity Notes.

College exercises will be suspended Thursday afternoon, December 22, and will be resumed Wednesday, January 4th. The mid-year examinations begin Thursday, January 19th, and will end February 1st.

Saturday evening at 8 o'clock in Craven Memorial Hall there will be held the annual debate between the Columbian and Hesperian Literary Societies. The Columbian Society will be represented by J. A. Morgan and S. B. Underwood; the Hesperian by W. G. Jerome and C. R. Warren.

The December number of the Archive is a Christmas number. The cover is a very attractive one, and the whole issue reflects great credit on the Archive staff. The table of contents is: Peace on Earth (poem), A. G. Moore; Some Christmas Stories, Edna Clyde Kilgo; The Christ (poem), C. T. Hancock; Her Christmas Gift, Robert Monroe; Under the Mistletoe (poem), A. G. Moore; The Four Bachelors, H. E. Spence; The Snow (poem), N. S. Ogburn, Jr.; Christmas in the Air, S. B. Underwood; "The Sin of David," A. B. Duke; Please (poem), F. W. Obarr; Christmas Scenes, A. G. Moore.

The Young Men's Christian Association is raising a sum of money to send as a Christmas gift to Mr. Kugimiya, a Japanese student who graduated at Trinity College in June, 1903. Mr. Kugimiya is no wdoing a great work in Japan. He is not supported by any missionary organization and this gift is an expression of the appreciation of the College community of the great work he is doing.

The class of 1900 has donated to the library an excellent statue of Minerva. All the parts of the statue are now here, and it is placed in the balcony of the library. This gift is very highly appreciated.

Trinity College, Durham, N. C., Dec. 16, 1904.

Another Pounding.

Dear Advocate:—Please let me report the first "pounding" of the new Conference year. When I returned from Conference I found good things enough piled up in the parsonage to make anybody's heart glad. My people overpaid the salary last year and gave this old-fashioned pounding extra. So the occupants of the parsonage are feeling good. And I may say also that my people not only overpaid salaries the past Conference year, but paid up an old debt of $300.00 which had stood for seven years or more. The Woman's Home Mission Society came to our help and donated one-third of this amount, and they never made a better donation. By their aid we were able to take up this old paper that has been a thorn in the flesh so long, and are now planning for greater things this year. These people here are but a small band of overshadowed Methodists, but they are good grit. Some pages in the history of our church, for which the church is not responsible, make one's heart ache. But there are better days for us here. Pray for us and expect better things in the future. We can never forget the Woman's Home Missionary Society for the aid they gave us.

Yours truly, J. E. HOLDEN.

Scotland Neck, N. C., December 12, 1904.

P. S.—Brother Smith is in great favor here. We all love him. J. E. H.

A Deserved Tribute.

After three years' residence here as pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church, Rev. W. W. Rose, last Saturday, moved his family to Littleton where they will now make their home.

In all the history of Methodism in Weldon no pastor served his people more faithfully than Rev. W. W. Rose, and in leaving this community he and his excellent family carry with them the best wishes of the people at large and the love and esteem of his congregation.

Mr. Rose retires from the active ministry to enter a great and inviting field, that of training boys and young men for the duties and responsibilities of life. And for this work, all who know him believe that he is splendidly fitted and equipped. Mr. Rose is a man of big heart and believes in Christian education. As principal of Central Academy, which is an off shoot of Littleton Female College, he will begin the work under the most favorable conditions and no one who knows him will for a moment doubt that he will enter into the work with zeal, energy and determination to make the school a success. Our best wishes go with him and his to his new home among such splendid people as they will find in the delightful town of Littleton.—Roanoke News.

Resolutions of Gratitude.

Whereas, in accordance with the rule of limitation of the M. E. Church, South, our beloved pastor, Rev. B. C. Thompson, and wife, can no longer remain in our midst; and,

Whereas, we, the members and friends of Ahoskie M. E. Church, desire to express to them our sincere thanks and appreciation for their faithful service, kind interest and noble example while among us; therefore be it

Resolved 1. That while we bow in submission to the mandates of the higher powers, yet we feel keenly our loss.

2. That we commend them to our Heavenly Father and to the are and love of those to whom they are sent.

3. That they carry with them to their new field of labor our prayers for a continuation of God's blessings upon them; and we ask an interest in their prayers that we may be able to continue the good work which they have begun here.

4. That we diligently strive to reach the high standard of Christian living which they have taught us by precept and example.

5. That a copy of these resolutions be read at our Thanksgiving service and a copy sent to the Raleigh Christian Advocate for publication.

MRS. A. E. GARRETT,
MRS. J. C. WILLIAMS,
MRS. E. J. GEROCK,
Committee.

Ahoskie, N. C., November 23, 1904.

A Notice.

Dear Brother Ivey:—Will you kindly announce to the brethren of the North Carolina Conference that by the permission of my presiding elder, Bro. J. H. Weaver, I offer them my services to assist them in revival work during the year. I have found the winter months the best of the year for this work for many reasons.

I expect, for my services, a thankoffering from the people at close of services. If I can, by the blessing of the Lord, serve you, command me at Lenoir, N. C.

In the service, D. H. COMANN.

Lenoir, N .C., December 8, 1904.

The Free Church of Scotland.

The Pittsburg Christian Advocate has a very clear statement of the situation in Scotland: "The Free Church of Scotland seems determined to press to the utmost its advantage gained in the late decision in its favor by the land lords. It has but few ministers and churches, and is quite unable to man and direct the vast property and machinery given it by the decision, but its representatives will brook no delay and listen to no compromise. They demand that the United Free Church shall turn over to them the property and interests involved at once." The United Free Church attempted to arrest the progress of the transfer of the property by bringing an action in the lower court, but the lower court could find no way to set aside the action of the House of Lords. The situation is ridiculous in the extreme. Here are a few defunct, disgruntled, back-actioned, old seedlings, having a title to all the church property, but no equipment to carry on the work of the church. On the contrary, there is a well-equipped ministry and a live, active, aggressive membership, dispossessed of all their property. This condition of affairs seems strange in a country where the common law has such a large place in the system of jurisprudence.

Jesus Christ has opened to us the kingdom of heaven, and now, if we who ought to be princes are beggars only, hungry, ill-clad useless to God and man, for us there is not pity, but sterner words of reproof than any other can know. Beside us, poor, earthly, selfish, shriveled as we are, God sees the man we might be in Christ Jesus, rich with the gifts of God, strong with His strength, full of grace and truth—the Christ-like man into which God is ever seeking to transform us. It is by God's offers and by our opportunities that we shall be judged and by which we shall be condemned.—Mark Guy Pearse.

CONFERENCE APPORTIONMENTS FOR 1905.

Districts.	Bishops.	Conference Claimants.	For. Missions	Domestic Missions.	Church Extension.	Education.	Fathe and Lane.	Del. to Gen. Conference.
Raleigh	207	764	1,429	1,288	676	869	72	115
Durham	274	765	1,760	1,311	682	880	71	115
Fayetteville	215	610	1,511	1,124	522	700	57	90
Rockingham	213	650	1,604	1,194	558	760	54	95
Wilmington	227	641	1,439	1,074	611	988	63	100
New Berne	269	746	1,959	1,417	670	951	69	115
Washington	265	781	1,960	1,417	705	870	73	115
Warrenton	268	767	1,790	1,311	688	880	71	115
Eliza. City	271	776	1,775	1,312	700	880	72	115

The Family

At Night.

Sometimes when Dark had spread for me her robe of rest,
And Silence guarded by;
The night-bird, Sleep, would startle from her nest,
Stirred by the baby's cry.

When night is deepest now, again and yet again,
I lie with wide eyes wet,
It was his little cry which waked me then;
His silence wakes me yet.
—Edmund Vance Cooke, in Lippincott's.

Some Mother's Child.

At home or away, in alley or street,
Wherever I chance in this wild world to meet
A girl that is thoughtless, a boy that is wild,
My heart echoes softly, "It is some mother's child."

And when I see those o'er whom long years have rolled,
Whose hearts have grown hardened, whose spirits are cold,
Be it woman all fallen, or man all defiled,

A voice whispers sadly, "Ah! some mother's child."
No matter how far from the right she hath strayed,
No matter what inroads dishonor hath made,
No matter what elements cankered the pearl,
Though tarnished and sullied, she is "some mother's girl."

Uo matter how wayward his footsteps have been,
No matter how deep he is sunken in sin,
No matter how low in his standard of joy,
Though guilty and loathsome, he is "some mother's boy."

That head hath been pillowed on tenderest breast,
That form hath been wept o'er, those lips have been pressed,
That soul hath been prayed for in tones sweet and mild,
For her sake, deal gently with "some mother's child."
—By Francis L. Keeler.

Knell of the "Rube."

The "countryman" promises to become extinct in the United States. The "rube" is to follow the mastodon, and Indian the buffalo. The generation that comes after us will find it had to understand some of the present day jokes. Already quite as many city folk buy gold bricks in the country as country folk do in the city. In fact, the biggest and brightest gold bricks find their market in town. A city bred man is about as apt to tangle himself up in a street-car fender as Uncle Silas, and not all the people that blow out the gas come from the tall timbers.

The rural population is getting urbanated. Most country people can now walk the streets without getting sore feet. Its interesting to trace the reasons for all this.

Perhaps the most potent reason is the growth of population and the multiplication of towns. It is a hard matter for a man to get so deep in the woods that he is not always rubbing elbows and swapping news and opinions with other men. Then there are the railroad, the trolley and the migratory habits of man. It is becoming easier day by day for city people to visit country people and for country people to come to town. The railroad is a mighty engine for mixing different kinds of people.

Also, there is the newspaper. There are few dwellers in the rural districts who do not take a weekly paper and a growing part take a daily. The telegraph, printing press and fast mail all conspire to make it difficult for a man to get away from the world. The country weeklies in most instances are conscientiously put together by their editors, and although the news is not always to-days, it is not so very far behind time. They usually contain a good amount of news. The countryman is apt to take his paper very seriously and he will read it through. He reads it with deliberation, lets it soak in, digests it and then rehearses the contents in discussion with his neighbors. No skimming of head-lines at the breakfast table or the supper table for him. A city man traveling through the country is liable to be rudely shocked by the number of well-informed persons he meets.

The school-house fosters the demand for information, and school-houses are becoming more numerous. The post-office and country store are local clearing houses for news, and post-offices and daily mails are spreading to every cross-road in the land, and country stores are increasing as country people increase their consumption of manufactured goods. And rural free delivery is putting a daily paper at the farm-house door before the ink is dry.

Better cut ready-made clothing and better made shoes and hats are going on the shelves of the country store. Rural maidens read the fashion notes and the aids to beauty, and the girls with a home-made look are becoming scarcer. —Washington Star.

Riding and Walking.

A dry goods man who lives far up on the Harlem Railroad, and who is in business with his father, came out of the Grand Central depot one morning recently with a fellow-commuter. As they were about to cross the street a well-liveried cab dashed by, and from the window a stylishly dressed man bowed effusively to this "junior" dry goods man.

"Who is that?" inquired his friend.

"He is one of our department heads," replied the junior.

"What!" exclaimed the fellow-commuter. "I should think you, rather than he, would ride in a cab to the office."

"No," said the junior, "the clerks ride in a cab, and I have to take a trolley car."

"Yes," continued his friend, "and the old gentleman walks."

And sure enough, at the very same time the "old man" could be seen walking briskly down Fifth Avenue to his successful establishment, where a merciful and kind Providence watches over and directs the business policy, assisted by the cab-driving department heads.—New York Post.

"Stirring Up the Animals."

A recent writer in one of the magazines calls attention to a commonplace, but to him, significent sign he saw in one of the zoological gardens. "Don't stir up the animals."

Come to think about it, that sign applies elsewhere as much so as in an animal garden. This for the reason that men themselves have somewhat of the animal nature. When you stir up the animals you attract attention to yourself—a very dangerous sort of thing to do. You are safe among animals as long as their attention is directed elsewhere.

I have myself noticed that the men who bring things to pass do not stir up the animals. They do not attract so much attention to themselves. They keep attention riveted elsewhere—on the individual, on the institution and not on the "I" or the "Me." It is dangerous for a man when he puts himself over and about the enterprise he represents. He is in a good way of stirring up the animals—that which sign-boards by experienced animal keepers warn against.

This explains, in a measure, why so much opposition to a candidate for an office develops about election time. He stirs up the animals and attention is directed toward him. After election and the enterprises and institutions of government again come into view, attention is riveted on these, the individuals elected or not elected, fall out of view—and the animals get quiet and are quite content. If you wish to get along with safety and security; bring things to pass, really accomplish somewhat in this world that abides, is permanent and makes for good and the right, "don't stir up the animals."—Christian Sun.

How to Banish Trouble.

Hannah Whitall Smith once kne wa woman who carried a heavy burden that was driving sleep away and undermining her health. She has told the following incident of how it was banished:

"One day when it seemed especially heavy, she noticed lying near on the table a little tract called 'Hannah's Faith.' Attracted by the title, she picked it up and began to read it, little knowing that it was to create a revolution in her whole experience.

"The story was of a poor woman who had been carried triumphantly through a life of unusual sorrow. She was giving the history of her life to a kind visitor on one occasion, and at the close the visitor said feelingly: 'O, Hannah, I do not see how you could bear so much sorrow!'

"'I did not bear it,' was the quick reply: 'the Lord bore it for me.'

"'Yes, said the visitor, 'that is the right way. We must take our troubles to the Lord.'

"'Yes,' replied Hannah, 'but we must do more than that; we must leave them there. Most people,' she continued, 'do take their burdens to Him, but they bring them away again, and are just as worried and as unhappy as ever. But I take mine and I leave them with Him, and I come away and forget them. If the worry comes back, I take it to Him again; and I do this over and over until at last I just forget that I have any worries and am at perfect rest.'"—Selected.

She Saved His Children.

An English preacher tells this true story of a mother's noble service in watching over children, the children of a rum-seller. She couldn't keep her husband out of the business, but she saved his children of the midst of the fire of temptation:

A wayside inn, with father and mother and ever so many children. A busy little inn this was, with many coming and going and plenty of hard work. Not a very likely post as an outpost of the temperance army. But so it really was. Not quite the place, either, the mother would have chosen for her children, who were very dear to her. But there she was, and there they were, too; so she resolved to make the best of it she could, and the first thing was that on their table nothing that could hurt should ever be found. It was always a temperance table, and all the children were temperance children. The result was, they grew up lifelong teetotalers. And out of that little inn came quite a small army of temperance workers. By the by each got a home of his own, and they are teaching their children the same true lesson and good habits. I know the way into one of these homes. There is the mother, a splendid mother: all the children in the Sabbath School, mission workers, and lovers of the Saviour. Each one puts away some of his modest pocket money to help others. This is one of the happiest, sweetest, bonniest homes you need wish to see, and all the work of a woman who, though living in a wayside inn, loved and kept her children away from the great destroyer of child joy.

You see sisters and mothers can do much more than anybody else to make the world good and happy if they will try.—The Classmate.

"Too Much By and By."

A Chinese laundryman made complaint against a young man whose bill had not been paid. "What is your charge against this young man, John?" The aggrieved Celestial said: "He too muchee by and by."

Plenty of young men, comments The Field, are "too muchee by and by." Have a purpose and fulfill it now. Most men never use a tithe of the power they possess. Thousands of our talents are wrapped up in napkins. Unwrap them quickly and put them out of usury. The world has need of them. Men sin as much and as disastrously by choosing not to do, as by choosing to do. Manfully purpose to pull against the stream of evil; in thinking we are doing no harm by lying on our oars, we are floating down towards the edge of ruin's cataract.—Selected.

Our Boys and Girls

For Our Boys and Girls.

Keep summer-time in your hearts, my dears,
Though the winter days are here,
And the clouds are low, and the rain comes down,
And the days seem dark and drear.

Keep summer-time in your hearts, little ones;
Let them ever be warm and true,
And your faces bright, with a happy light,
As you do what you have to do.

Keep summer-time in your heart, my dears,
Though your lessons are hard and long,
Just do your best, your very best,
And fill up your days with a song.

Keep summer-time in your hearts, my dears,
Though you hover around the fire,
And the world is white with the ice and the snow,
And of cold bleak days you tire.

Keep summer-time in your hearts, my dears,
Let the weather be what it will;
For Santa Claus will soon be here,
And he loves little children still.

MRS. E. M. ANDERSON.

Durham, N. C.

Middleton, N. C., Nov. 29, 1904.

Dear Advocate:—In the summer I suggested that the Cousins should raise a dollar for the orphans by Christmas. I send mine to Uncle Jenkins to-day, and hope the others will do likewise.

Your little friend,
LILLIAN BURRUS.

Snow Hill, N. C., Dec. 1, 1904.

Dear Advocate:—I thought I would write a little letter and tell you that my papa takes the Advocate and I enjoy reading the letters. I have not seen any for some time, so I wrote.

I will ask a question: Who was it that lived nine hundred and sixty years?

I study Johnson's arithmetic, geography, reading, grammar and spelling.

Good-bye, with best wishes.

EARL T. SELL.

Cardenas, N. C., Nov. 27, 1904.

Dear Advocate:—I am a little girl nine years old. I go to Sunday-school every Sunday that I can. I also go to every-day school. My teacher is W. F. Smith, and my superintendent is Mr. O. Bradley. I like him very much. We have preaching every fourth Sunday.

This is my first letter to the Advocate.

I will close for this time, hoping it will not reach the waste-basket.

Your little friend,
IMA ALSWORTH.

R .F. D. No. 1.

R. F. D. No. 4,
Elizabeth City, N. C.

Dear Advocate:—I am a little girl nine years old. As this is my first attempt to write to you, I hope to see my letter in print. My papa takes the Advocate. I go to Sunday-school, and I like my teacher; her name is Miss Bettie Jones. I go to school and study four books. My teacher's name is Miss Addie Smith.

I will ask a question: Where is the shortest chapter and the middle chapter in the Bible?

Yours truly,
LILLIAN M. BRITE.

Pittsboro, N. C., Dec. 2, 1904.

Dear Advocate:—I have never written to the Advocate, so I thought I would write to-day. I love to go to school and I study hard. I also go to Sunday-school. My teacher is Mrs. B. Nooe. Our preacher has been here four years, so we will have to have another one next year, and we hate very much for Mr. Frizzell to leave us.

I will ask a question: Who was taken to heaven without dying?

I will close. Enclosed find five cents for the Orphanage.

Your friend,
NORWOOD EUBANKS.

R. F. D. 4,
Elizabeth Ctiy, N. C., Dec. 5, 1904.

Dear Advocate:—I am a little twelve year old. I have never written to your paper, so I thought I would write. I go to school and my teacher is Miss Wood. I go to Sunday-school, and my teacher is Miss Bettie Jones. I like her very much. My father and mother are both living. Our superintendent is E. B. Granger.

I will close by asking a question: Which is the shortest chapter in the Bible?

Yours truly,
CARRIE L. BRITE.

Lumberton, N. C., Dec. 5, 1904.

Dear Advocate:—This is my first letter to the Advocate, and I like to read the little boys' and girls' letters. I am a little boy nine years old. I go to school at Barker's. Miss Bettie Gibson is my teacher, and we all like her; she is so kind to us. I go to Sunday-school every Sunday. My mamma is my teacher: our superintendent is Uncle Sandy Inmond. Our pastor is Rev. Z. Paris. We hope he will come back next year.

I will ask a question: Who was Abraham's wife?

I will close, with best wishes to the Advocate.

Your little friend,
RUFFIN BUNDY POWERS.

Carthage, N. C., Dec. 2, 1904.

Dear Advocate:—I am a little nine year old boy. I go to Sunday-school every Sunday I can. My teacher is Miss Cherry, and I like her fine. She is a very fine teacher.

Mamma takes the Advocate and I like to read the little boys' and girls' letters.

I will also answer the fifth commandment: Honor thy father and thy mother that thy days may be long upon the land which thy Lord giveth thee.

I will also ask a question: Who was the oldest man?

I will close, hoping to see my letter in print. With best wishes to the orphans. I will also send ten cents to the orphans.

Your little friend,
TROY GILMORE.

Cardenas, N. C., Nov. 27, 1904.

Dear Advocate:—I am a little girl twelve years of age. I go to Sunday-school every Sunday that I can. I also go to every-day school. My teacher's name is Mr. W. F. Smith, and my every-day school teacher's name is Mr. W. M. Pearson.

I will ask a question: How many times is frying pan spoken of in the Bible?

This is my first letter to the Advocate. I have five brothers and three sisters. I like to read the little boys' and girls' letters very much. My papa and mamma are both living.

I will close and not write so much for my first time. With best wishes to the Orphans. I hope my letter will not get to the waste-basket.

Yours truly,
LIZZIE ALSWORTH.

R. D. D. No. 1.

R. F. D. No. 4,
Elizabeth City, N. C., Dec. 8, 1904.

Dear Advocate:—I have never written to your paper, so I thought I would write. I am a little girl eleven years old. I go to Sunday-school every Sunday I can, and my teacher's name is Mr. Fred. Brothers. I go to every-day school also, and my teacher's name is Miss Luna Jarvis. My papa and mamma are both living. I have two little brothers younger than myself. My papa is a farmer. My grandma lives with us. My desk-mate is Alma Brite. My studies are fourth reader, arithmetic, geography, spelling and grammar.

I will close by asking a question: How old was Noah when he died?

If this is in print, I will write again.

Very truly yours,
HELEN WILLIAMS.

Wit, N. C., Dec. 12, 1904.

Dear Advocate:—I am a little girl ten years old. My father was drowned in the August storm over four years ago. I have a little sister named Lydia, but she is blind and can't play very much with me. I live most of the time with Uncle Wallace Willis, and he takes the Advocate. I love to read the children's letters. We have a nice Sunday-school. My teacher is Mrs. Amanda Rose. Our preacher last year was Mr. T. W. Mansfield. I liked him very much. I hope we will like our new preacher, Mr. E. W. Reid, but we have not seen him yet.

I will answer Josie Lassiter's question, what prophet succeeded Elijah? Elisha.

Enclosed find ten cents for the orphans.

Your friend,
EUNICE E. ROSE.

Windsor, N. C., Nov. 25, 1904.

Dear Advocate:—As this is my first letter to the Advocate, I hope it will not reach the waste-basket.

Rev. R. L. Davis is our pastor and he is a very good preacher. His wife has charge of our Florine McEachern Mite-Box Brigade. We raised $8.95 this quarter.

Mr. R. W. Askew has been our Sunday-school superintendent ever since I can remember. I live near the church and love to go to Sunday-school. Miss Helen Gillam is my school teacher, and also Sunday-school teacher.

I go to Rosefield school and study arithmetic, history, grammar, spelling and geography.

I have a sister and two brothers, but I am the oldest child.

I will close or my letter will be too long.

ELEANOR A. SAUNDERS.

Snow Hill, N. C., Dec. 1, 1904.

Dear Advocate:—I thought I would write to you. I am a little boy nine years of age, and I go to school every day I can. There is no school this week to go to, and I am sorry. I study at school manual geography, history, grammar, Sanford's arithmetic and a new kind of spelling book.

I hope to see my letter in print if it escapes the waste-basket.

I will answer Annie Westbrook's question: Elijah was fed by the ravens.

I have two little brothers younger than myself and one little sister named Kathleen.

Papa preaches here at this church the second Sunday of every month. I go to Sunday-school every Sunday I can.

I will ask a question: How old was Moses when he died? Please somebody answer this.

Your friend,
ALLEN MANSEY SELL.

The Old Reliable

ROYAL

BAKING POWDER

ABSOLUTELY PURE

There is no substitute

Whitakers, N. C., Dec. 10, 1904.

Dear Advocate:—I am one of the little girls who promised to make a dollar for the orphans by Christmas. Enclosed you will find that amount, which my little brother, Ernest Burwell and I, earned all by ourselves. I thought I would tell the little cousins how we earned it, but it has taken us so long, and we have done so many different things, that I have forgotten some of them, and it would take too much space to tell it any way, for you know it takes a hundred pennies to make a dollar, and we earned most of it a penny at a time. While we were making this money we would talk about the dear little orphans, and in that way we have learned to love them very much. I hope to see a great many letters in the Advocate saying they have raised a dollar for the orphans, for I know they will appreciate it.

With best wishes for the Advocate and love for the orphans, I am.

Your little friend,
LOTA LEIGH DRAUGHON.

A Fresh Start.

"Are you sure you can go home alone, Eddie?"

"If you'll show me the way, uncle, I can."

Eddie was in a large city for the first time, and Uncle Howard was afraid to have him go from the office to the house by himself, but Eddie was sure he could, and the two went to the door, where uncle pointed out the way clearly. It was not far, and there was only one turn.

The boy started off on a run, but in his great haste he made the wrong turn after all, and soon found that he was not on the street leading home at all, for he could not see the house after making the turn, as he should.

"Well," said the little boy to himself, stopping to think, "I can see the way I came, anyhow, and I'll run back to the office and get uncle to start me over again. I know how to get back there."

He ran back and got a fresh start. This time, being more careful, he made the right turn.

Wise little Eddie! When one sees he is wrong, no matter in what way, the thing to do is not to go on wrong a single step, but to turn back and make a fresh start. It is easier to run back, if one has not gone far, and it is better to ask the one who knows the way than to try to find it oneself.

When we have done wrong God is the one to seek. He will set us right.—Selected.

REVOLUTION IMMINENT.

A sure sign of approaching revolt and serious trouble in your system is nervousness, sleeplessness, or stomach upsets. Electric Bitters will quickly dismember the troublesome causes. It never fails to tone the stomach, regulate the Kidneys and Bowels, stimulate the Liver, and clarify the blood. Run down systems benefit particularly and all the usual attending aches vanish under its searching and thorough effectiveness. Electric Bitters is only 50c., and that is returned if it don't give perfect satisfaction. Guaranteed by druggists.

Womans Foreign Missionary Society

Please send all communications for this Department to Mrs. B. F. Dixon, Raleigh, N. C.

Officers of the W. F. M. S. of the N. C. Conference, June, 1903-'04.

President—Mrs. Lucy A. Cunninggim, Greensboro, N. C.
Vice-President—Mrs. R. A. Willis, Littleton, N. C.
Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. F. D. Swindell, Goldsboro, N. C.
Recording Secretary—Miss Blanche Fentress, Wilmington, N. C.
Treasurer—Mrs. B. B. Adams, Four Oaks, N. C.
Superintendent and Treasurer Juvenile Work—Mrs. L. M. Hendren, New Berne, N. C.

"All praise to the eternal Lord,
Clothed in the garb of flesh and blood;
Choosing a manger for thy throne,
While worlds on worlds are thine alone!
Were earth a thousand times more fair,
Beset with gold and jewels rare,
She yet were far too poor to be
A narrow cradle, Lord, for thee.
Ah, blessed Jesus, holy child,
Make thee a bed soft, undefiled
Within my heart, that it may be
A quiet chamber, kept for thee."

A letter written and mailed in October to Mrs. J. A. Simpson, District Secretary of the Fayetteville District, has been returned after a journey to the "dead letter" office. Perhaps this accounts for no tidings of the missionary work on that District.

Edenton Street Auxiliary held its regular monthly meeting (postponed one week) last Monday afternoon, and was conducted by Mrs. R. H. Whitaker, First Vice-President of the Society.

While inclement weather precluded a full attendance of members, some of the "faithful few" were present, and there was a good, enjoyable meeting.

When this item of the program was reached: "Revise your list, that the Society may begin the new year of 1905 with only the names of those who are true members—viz., those who pay the dews, ten cents a month," it was encouraging and refreshing to hear the reply of our efficient Treasurer, Mrs. Royster. She said: "There is not a name on our roll that will have to be erased. While there are some who do not attend our meetings, there is not one who does not pay her dues cheerfully, promptly when she is called upon to do so."

This proves a healthy state of affairs in the Society.

If, at the closing of the fiscal year, our hearts are filled with anxious care about the final reports of our auxiliaries—about their meeting squarely all the demands upon them; about the hinderance to all forward movements of our work, if they fail to do so—how must it be with our missionaries in foreign fields, who are enduring the separation from home and friends, the arduous labors which the work demands, and, perchance, many privations and discomforts, when there is doubt about their receiving from us the financial aid they so much need!

Now, my dear sisters, we have one more quarter in which to make good any deficiency that exists in our contributions. Each member and officer in our missionary societies know just how much must be raised—let us be more industrious during the present quarter than we have been in the past, that there be no lack in funds, as the various calls are made.

Here is a letter from the Washington District, whose District Secretary, Mrs. J. L. Horn, is numbered among the most successful of our workers:

Dear Mrs. Dixon:—I have not been unmindful of your request to the District Secretaries, but the close of the second quarter of our missionary year found me with so little to report concerning the work, I delayed my letter longer.

The third quarter has just closed, and my report gone in to Mrs. Swindell.

The summer months seem to engender so much lethargy and seeming indifference, that it is pleasant to record for the Washington District an increase of fifty dollars in collections over the same quarter last year.

Most of the auxiliaries on the District are faithful to the demands made on them; but I long to see the time when the women of our missionary societies will "abound in liberality."

I confidently expect every auxiliary in the District to measure up to her full responsibility, on the matter of assessments.

Which will be the "banner" auxiliary, remains to be seen. Let each strive so to be.

Very sincerely,
MRS. J. L. HORNE,
District Secretary.

Our sister touched the "key note" of our financial deficit when she spoke of the "lethargy and seeming indifference" engendered by the heat of summer.

If we would put into the second quarter—from the first of June to first of September—all the energy and enthusiasm we evince in the other quarters, there would be no financial deficit, and no vain regret over what "might have been."

"At the last annual meeting of the General Board of Missions of our church, which was held in Waco, Texas, an appropriation was made for the support of a mission among the Jews. Rev. Julius Magath, a Hebrew Christian, was appointed the missionary for that most interesting people. Dr. Walter Lambuth kindly brought him into the office of the Woman's Missionary Advocate, and he was invited to write of his work for our magazine.

Our blessed Savior was a Jew, and, though rejected by His own people, shall we not make some effort to help them see that our Christ is the true Christ—and receive Him as their Savior?"

The above is a clipping which will be interesting to all those who appreciate the true missionary spirit.

It would be well for all workers in the missionary cause to examine themselves closely and see what they are doing for the conversion of this interesting class of people.

If the Woman's Mission Societies can do nothing more, their most earnest prayers may ascend for the quickening power of the Holy Spirit in the minds and hearts of these people, who were, aforetime, God's own chosen race.

FIGHT WILL BE BITTER.

Those who will persist in closing their ears against the continual recommendation of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, will have a long and bitter fight with their troubles, if not ended earlier by fatal termination. Read what T. R. Beall of Beall, Miss., has to say: "Last fall my wife had every symptom of consumption. She took Dr. King's New Discovery after everything else had failed. Improvement came at once and four bottles entirely cured her." Guaranteed by all druggists. Price 50c., and $1.00. Trial bottles free.

When writing advertisers, please mention this paper.

Woman's Home Mission Society

Please send all communications for this Department to Mrs. R. O. Burton, Raleigh, N. C.

Officers of W. H. M. S. of the N. C. Conference.

President—Mrs. J. E. Underwood, Elizabeth City.
First Vice-President—Mrs. V. Royster, Raleigh.
Second Vice-President—Mrs. K. P. Black, Littleton
Third Vice-President—Mrs. J. A. Spiers, Selma.
Recording Secretary—Mrs. C. P. Jerome, West Durham.
Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. S. H. Scott, New Bern.
Treasurer—Mrs. E. L. Prince, Wilmington.
Superintendent of Supplies—Mrs. Ivan Proctor, Raleigh.
Superintendent of Literature and Press Work—Mrs. R. O. Burton.

Report of Conference Third Vice-Presidents for Quarter Ending November 30th.

Moyeton, — Stantonsburg Auxiliary.—No Baby Roll. Mite-box Brigade members, 18. Amount collected, $3.78.

MRS. LENA THOMPSON,
Third Vice-President.

Windsor.—Baby Roll members, 13. Amount collected, $2.10. Brigade members, 19. Amount collected, $8.95. Total, $11.05.

MRS. R. L. DAVIS,
Third Vice-President.

Winfall.—Baby Roll members, 5. Amount collected, $.31.

MISS MATTIE WHITE,
Third Vice-President.

New Bern.—Baby Roll members, 123—two added during quarter. Amount collected from boxes and membership, $8.54. Amount raised for local work, $2.34. Total, $10.88.

MRS. VIRGINIA HARRISON,
Third Vice-President.

Read Carefully.

I desire to request the Auxiliary Third Vice-Presidents to be more prompt in sending me their reports. It is impossible for me to send in a correct one unless they do their parts. This quarter, on account of sickness in my family, I have been unable to send postal reminders, and, in consequence, only five have written to me and only four sent reports. I know it is hard to remember everything now, but, sisters, is it right to forget, or neglect, this work?

There is so much encouragement to me in a good report, and I am sure of at least one each quarter, for Mrs. R. L. Davis never fails, notwithstanding the fact that heart and hands are always full of maternal cares and domestic duties. Windsor has the best report and a wonderful Third Vice-President.

We are glad to welcome a new Brigade this quarter—Moyeton—and Mrs. Lena Thompson is in charge of it. She is a G. F. C. girl, and I am sure will uphold the record the women of that grand old College have made.

Mrs. Virginia Harrison, of New Bern, and Miss Mattie White, of Winfall, never fail in promptness, and I thank them most earnestly.

There are numbers of ladies in this Department who are faithful, and I feel sure there are good reasons for their failure to report this quarter.

I have on hand mite-boxes and certificates. Call on me whenever they are needed. And if there is a Third Vice-President who would more fully understand what is required of her, I will be glad to give her all the information I can.

Cordially,
MRS. J. A. SPIERS.
Conference Third Vice-President.
Selma, N. C.

From Edenton Street Auxiliary, Raleigh.

I take especial pleasure in welcoming to our column Mrs. V. Royster, one of our finest members, equally faithful and equally successful in both Foreign and Home Societies, whether serving as Secretary or Treasurer. Her notes have been delayed, but they will prove none the less interesting.

"The Week of Prayer of the Home Mission Society was held from October 10th to 16th, and was more largely attended than any since our organization.

The program arranged by the Board Committee was carried out in full, and there were interesting discussions as to our special work at the Orphanage, our box of supplies for the Indian Territory, and local enterprises undertaken by the auxiliary.

Mrs. W. H. Pemberton, Corresponding Secretary of the Little Rock Conference, met with us several times, and aided us with her wise counsel and rich experience.

Mrs. Duncan, Mrs. Albright and Miss Nina Green contributed beautiful music, which we greatly appreciated. And last, but not least, we had with us at every meeting the Matron, Mrs. J. W. Jenkins, or Miss Reeks, the Teacher, and some of the young girls, from our Orphanage. Their presence was a mutual blessing, and we are glad to say, several are members of the Home Mission Society at Brooklyn Church.

At a later date I hope to give in figures the work of our auxiliary this year, which has been a happy and successful one."

MRS. V. ROYSTER,
Secretary.

A COSTLY MISTAKE.

Blunders are sometimes very expensive. Ossacionally life itself is the price of a mistake, but you'll never be wrong if you take Dr. King's New Life Pills for Dyspepsia, Dizziness, Headache, Liver or Bowel troubles. They are gentle yet thorough. 25c., at all druggists.

Excursion to Havana, Cuba, Jan. 4th.

The Seaboard announces a very low rate of one fare plus two dollars for the round trip from all points in Virginia, North and South Carolina, including Washington, D. C., to Havana, Cuba, and return. Rates, including meals and state-room on steamship between Port Tampa and Havana and return.

Tickets will be sold January 4th from North Carolina points, and are good returning on any steamer up to and including January 19th, with final limit of ticket January 22, 1905. Stop-overs will be permitted at any point south of Jacksonville.

This party will be limited to 150 persons, and reservations should be made promptly in order to secure accommodations on the steamship "Olivette," one of the most handsome ships of the Peninsular and Occidental Steamship Company, which will convey the party to Havana. The party will be personally conducted by Mr. A. W. Fritot from Jacksonville, who will meet them in Jacksonville and accompany them to Havana. Mr. Fritot speaks Spanish fluently, and will give special attention to the party.

The rate from Raleigh will be $45.40 for the round trip, including meals and state-room berth.

For further information, apply to

C. H. GATTIS, T. P. A.,
Raleigh, N. C.

H. A. MORSON, C. P. and T. A.,
Raleigh, N. C.

DR LOACH PAT is the Original and Simplest Variable Friction Feed.

SAW MILLS

Avoid imitators and infringers and buy the genuine. Catalogue free of Mills, 4 H. P. and up. Shingle, Planing, Lath and Corn Mills, four Stroke Hay Presses, Water Wheels. We pay the freight.

DE LOACH MILL MFG. CO., Box 982 Atlanta, Ga.

Raleigh Christian Advocate.

ORGAN OF THE
North Carolina Conference, M. E. Church, South.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY AT No. 106 W. MARTIN STREET.

THOMAS N. IVEY. - - - - - - - Editor.

Subscription Rates.—One year, $1.50; six months, 75 cents. Preachers of the North Carolina Conference who act as agents receive the paper free of charge. All other preachers, and widows of preachers, $1.00 a year.

Business.—Watch the label. It shows the date up to which the subscription has been paid. Change in label serves as a receipt. Regular receipt will be sent when requested. When the address is ordered changed, both old and new address must be given. Address all letters, and make all checks and money orders payable, to the Raleigh Advocate Co.

Manuscripts.—All matter for publication to be returned to the writer must be accompanied by proper postage. Matter for the Editor and matter for the printer must not be on the same sheet. Obituaries must not contain over 150 words, nor contain poetry. One cent a word will be charged for all obituary matter over 150 words.

Advertising.—The RALEIGH CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE is a fine advertising medium. Rates will be promptly furnished on application.

Editorial

SOMETHING TO BE KEPT IN MIND AT THE FIRST MEETINGS OF THE BOARD OF STEWARDS.

Every Board of Stewards in fixing the salary of the preacher should not lose sight of this one fact: It takes one dollar and thirty cents to buy now what was bought ten years ago for one dollar. The producer does not mind this very much as he has abundant recourse. He can get thirty cents more for his product now than he could get ten years ago. The salaried man is the one who feels the pinch. The law of supply and demand does not assist him as readily as it does the producer. The salaried man receives the same and must pay more for living expenses.

Brother Steward, your preacher is a salaried man. Can you afford to keep his salary at the figures of ten years ago, when you know that it takes nearly one-third more for him to live now than it did ten years ago.

Your business sense acknowledges the economic fact stated at the beginning of this article. May we not trust your spirit of Christian justice and generosity to apply the remedy? Increase your preacher's salary. You will lose nothing and gain much.

THE NEW PRESIDING ELDERS.

The Fifth Wheel (falsely so-called) will be aided in its revolutions this year in the North Carolina Conference by two men, who, doubtless up to the last hour of the Conference at Henderson considered themselves elected to the pastorate. But the Bishop had been thinking, and his thoughts resulted in the creation of two new Presiding Elders. We do not congratulate them. The Presiding Eldership is a position which calls for the very hardest work. Its responsibilities make fearful requisitions on heart, brain, and nerves. These new elders have our sympathies and prayers, but we doubt not that they will do their work cheerfully and successfully.

Rev. E. H. Davis, P. E., of the New Bern District, is a scholar gifted with hard common sense. We knew him in college, and he was regarded as the brightest man in his class. As a preacher, he is didactic, always giving his hearers something suitable for mental mastication and spiritual assimilation. Rather frail looking in body, he has tough physical fibre, and will prove his powers of adaptation by acquiring the typical girth of the Elder, and proving himself a mighty man at the out-of-doors dinner on Sundays at the Quarterly Meetings. That he will administer wisely and successfully the affairs of New Bern District, no one who knows him will doubt.

Rev. M. Bradshaw, the P. E. of Wilmington District, is another college mate. He was known as the orator of the Hesperian Society. There was always attention when Mike Bradshaw spoke. We never heard him preach, but they say that his sermon is as clear-cut as a cameo. He, too, is gifted with common sense, never obtruding himself and his views, but always ready to do his best in the performance of known duty. Like Davis, he has no material rotundity to boast of, but the potential elements are there, and Providence permitting, we expect to see him, by the Ides of November, possessed of all the physical emoluments of the "Elder." The saints of the Wilmington District may consider themselves in good hands.

THE STATUS OF THE WAR.

It is a sad picture which the authentic reports of the war in the East force upon the sensitive reader.

The Russian and Japanese armies lie facing each other on the Shakhe river in Manchuria. The cold is intense. Starvation stares in the face Kuropatkin's army. The one line of railroad is barely able to supply the Russians with food. The Japanese being nearer the base of supplies are not in such dire straits.

The garrison at Port Arthur is still successfully holding out against the besiegers. The Japanese by capturing 203 Meter Hill were enabled to make the harbor a graveyard for the Russian fleet. The last ship has been abandoned on account of injuries received. Only the torpedo boats remain intact. The Japanese fleet have raised the blockade and are now at Sasebo for repairs so as to be able to meet the Baltic fleet on its arrival into eastern waters.

Russia's case seems hopeless in Manchuria. With her fleet destroyed, with her Port Arthur garrison awaiting certain extermination, with her army in Manchuria far away from base and simply lying inert as a prey for Oyama who has no idea of waiting until spring for a decisive blow, it seems certain that the second year of the war will be as disastrous for Russia as the first.

A great peril faces Russia at home. There is prevalent a strong anti-war spirit which has in the last week caused revolutionary scenes in Moscow and St. Petersburg.

FACTS AND FIGURES FOR THE FUTURE.

It is a fact, which is only too painfully patent that Southern Methodism, is too careless in preserving records. There is many a blank page in the record of our experience as a Church because records have not been preserved. There is only one man who, as far as we know, has attempted to write the history of North Carolina Methodism. The success achieved by this historian, Rev. W. L. Grissom, in the face of difficulties springing from lack of definite records, is remarkable, as will be shown by the first volume soon to be issued.

The editor of the Advocate has a design in publishing annually the North Carolina Methodist Handbook. There is no recreation in its compilation. There is no money in it. The receipts barely pay the expenses. One of the purposes is not only to set in proper order the past and present history of Methodism in North Carolina, but to furnish that which years to come will furnish rich and luminous material for the historian.

The plain volume which, representing much toil, comes forth annually about the first of January, and is sold for the nominal price of twenty-five cents, will be a gold mine twenty-five years hence. Happy the man who will be found to have the file in his possession.

Read the Table of Contents and see how much we have placed in the Biographical and Historical Department in the Handbook for 1905. Nothing like it has ever been found in Southern Methodism. Read the interesting reminiscenses written by the older brethren of the Conference, and extending back to the middle of the last century. Read the Milestones of North Carolina Methodism and see if as much historical material can be found so succinctly recorded in any other publication. Every Methodist should not only read this Department but lay up its facts as a sacred treasure. It will be called for in time.

You cannot wrong the least disciple without wounding the great Master.—Ram's Horn.

THE WHAT AND WHY OF THE "SIMPLE LIFE."

Rev. Charles Wagner, hailing from France, has lately visited our shores. He is a man of some reputation in his own country. We presume that he is a pious, consecrated preacher, and a thinker of ability. He came to this country as the apostle of "The Simple Life." This is a neat, attractive expression. Mr. Wagner was greeted publicly by the President in a warm, appreciative speech, and he at once burst into a full-blown fad. Long haired men and short-haired women, and wild-eyed delvers in the mines of social theories, made Mr. Wagner their divinity on whom they lavished all the obsequious tribute exacted by Oscar Wilde and Paderewski years ago. Sunday editions of newspapers parade in their "serious" columns "The Simple Life."

Now we have nothing to say against Mr. Wagner and his "Simple Life." He, we have no doubt, as we have said, is a good and able man. Furthermore we candidly confess that we have not read his book. It doubtless contains a great many good things, just as does many another book written by abler and less able men and women. But we would like to throw in one or two semi-warnings.

The first is in the shape of a suggestion that the first buddings of a tendency to form "Simple Life Clubs" should be pinched into lifelessness. This is Clubdom's own era, and we cannot say that the fact means any progress toward the Golden Age. But let us not have any "Simple Life Clubs" unless they be made havens for "simple minded" people.

Then, it would be well to have a clear idea of what kind of simplicity there should be in life. If Mr. Wagner has furnished such an idea, we have not been so informed. If he means that diet, and clothing, and habits and recreations should be simple, then he is affirming not only what is contained in the New Testament from Matthew to Revelation, but a plain canon of common sense. But if he means that life in its deepest, truest sense is a simple thing, whose duties lie on the common level, whose aspirations never mount above the zone of listless, contented being, and whose purposes are reduced to a minimum in quantity and to a placid inspidity in quality, then we have no use for the "Simple Life."

Life in it struest sense is the most complex thing in existence. It is a harp of a thousand strings; it is a machine of a thousand wheels; it is a landscape broken by towering mountains and seemingly interminable plains; it is a journey with many devious paths and bisected roads. Out of its very complexities, paradoxes, and mysteries, the most glorious strength is born to him, who with the God-spirit within grapples duty and destiny with simple manliness and faith.

Let us have no "Simple Life" which decreases the area of duty and clips the wings of high purpose. Let us have that "Simple Life" which threads the labyrinth of true life with simple faith in self and God.

In 1886 the number of parsonages in Southern Methodism was 2,030; value of parsonages, $247,280. In 1904 the total number of parsonages is 4,216; value of parsonages, $5,164,915. Of these the Woman's Home Mission Society has helped 1,527 to the amount of $141,510.36—that is, the Woman's Home Mission Society has helped over one-third of the parsonages in the church in these eighteen years.—Mrs. Chapman.

The American Tract Society is now in the eightieth year of its activity. It has issued 8,588 distinct publications, and is now publishing six periodicals in three different languages. The Society reports a large number of donations to colored schools and churches in the South.

A class of eleven were received on trial, and twelve into full connection at the N. Alabama Conference. True enough "the Lord buries His workmen, but carries on His work." In that class of eleven there are some who have had rare opportunities for equipment.

Methodist Mention

STATE.

Asheville has refused to relicense the distillers within her borders.

As far as we can learn, the preachers who were changed at Conference are moving very promptly to their fields of work.

The faces of a dozen women prominently engaged in missionary work in the North Carolina Conference will appear in the Handbook.

Rev. C. W. Robinson was summoned from the recent Conference by a telegram telling of the death of his brother at Bennettsville, S. C.

To those who have ordered the Handbook, we would say that the same will be issued from the press about January 1st, and will be sent at once.

Rev. C. L. Read, new pastor of Epworth Church, reached Raleigh on last Saturday and on the next day preached to the satisfaction of good-sized congregations.

Central Academy is offering a splendid opportunity to young men desiring to go off to school after Christmas. If you are interested, write to Rev. W .W. Rose, Principal, Littleton, N. C.

The Rev. J. M. Lowder filled his appointment here Sunday, and we are glad to have him with us another year. He has been a faithful pastor to his charge and one who is beloved by all.—Bonnerton Cor. Washington Progress.

Rev. Hilary Humble, of the North Carolina Conference, who is visiting his father at this place, preached one of the best sermons that we have heard in a long time in the Front Street Methodist Church last Sunday morning.—Burlington News.

The names of those who have won prizes for the parsonage fronts will be announced in the Handbook. The pictures of the parsonages will appear in the Handbook. We trust that this is the beginning of a revival in the beautification of the parsonage in the North Carolina Conference.

Rev. D. C. Geddie writes that Jones Circuit paid about $1,400 for all objects last Conference year, and that he has secured about $650 in cash and subscriptions for the new parsonage. He was well treated by the Jones Circuit people. They presented him with a nice Conference suit.

One of the most beautiful calendars we have yet seen is that of Vanderbilt University, giving exquisite views of the grounds and different buildings. It is a fine piece of artistic work. Smith & Lamar, Agents. Price, 50 cents. We hereby acknowledge our appreciation of the one sent to the Advocate.

Rev. J. H. Frizzelle, the new pastor of the Methodist Church, preached his first sermons here last Sunday morning and night. He made a good impression upon those who heard him. Mr. Frizelle expects to move his family from Pittsboro to this place this week and will occupy the parsonage.—Sanford Express.

We acknowledge receipt of the following announcement: "Mrs. Benjamin R. Hall requests the honor of your presence at the marriage of her daughter, Ethel Stacey, to Mr. William Bert Sedberry. Tuesday evening, December twenty-seventh, nineteen hundred and four, at eight o'clock, 239 Russell Street, Fayetteville, North Carolina."

Rev. R. H. Willis, Missionary Secretary, writes us that the report of the Treasurer of the Board of Missions shows that $13,618.33 and $11,012.38 were paid for Foreign and Domestic Missions, respectively, during last Conference year, instead of $13,373.75 and $10,465.75, as appears in the regular reports. According to this, the gain for last year was $1,098.51 over the preceding year instead of $307.23, as published last week in the Advocate.

Rev. M. D. Giles and family expect to leave to-morrow for East Durham, where they will reside in the future. Mr. Giles having been appointed to Carr church at that place by the recent Conference at Henderson. During the four years that Mr. Giles has been on the Mt. Tirzah Circuit, both he and his family have made many warm friends among the people of Person County, all of whom wish for them the greatest measure of blessings that this life can afford. While his departure is regretted, the Mt. Tirzah Circuit it to be congratulated that they are to have such an excellent pastor in the person of Rev. W. H. Kirton.—Roxboro Courier.

Mr. Tuttle is one of the most aggressive ministers in the city, and ever since he has been here has waged a vigorous war against the liquor traffic. His unrelenting zeal was at last crowned with success, and one year ago, the first of next month, the saloons were all closed. In conversation with a representative of the Economist, Mr. Tuttle stated that he would have liked to remain here, but that he was perfectly willing to go wherever the Bishop decided he should go, and that his new place was very acceptable to him. One reason being that it placed him nearer to his aged mother. Mr. Tuttle is greatly beloved by the congregation and it is with extreme reluctance that his departure is noted. There will be a large congregation out to hear his farewell sermon to-morrow night.—Elizabeth City Economist.

* * *

CONNECTIONAL.

The Methodist Church in the State of Georgia has 175,000 members.

At the session of the late North Texas Conference $16,400 was raised for Southwestern University.

A friend whose name is not given, made a present of $5,000 to Trinity Episcopal Church in Columbia, S. C., on last Sunday.

Women of the Louisville Conference Missionary Societies have three missionaries in the field, viz., Miss Mattie Watts, Clara Fullerton, and Alice Griffith.

It is officially declared through the advice of American Minister Allen that missionaries in Korea may safely return to their work. This will be good news to anxious friends at home.

A layman of Jasper has recently given $2,000 to the Alabama Methodist Orphanage, at Summerfield. One-half of this amount is payable in five annual payments, and the balance at the end of five years.

A layman in Georgia challenges Georgia Methodism's liberality. He says if Atlanta will give as a Christmas offering $12,500 to the Wesley Memorial Hospital, he will put under the institution $12,500 more.

The Tennessee Conference raised $250 for ten scholarships to the Missionary Training School, to be held at McKendree Church. The Memphis Conference appropriated $200 for eight scholarships and will pick their men.

Three hundred and seventy-five now represent the enrollment at Wofford. Of this number, 225 are in the college and 150 in the fitting school. Last year at this time the number was 307. Hence there is a remarkable net gain of 68.

Bishop Galloway delivered stirring addresses at the North Georgia and North Alabama Conferences on the "Eastern Question." He declares that the Empress Dowager has entered the line of progress and has agreed to enforce the edicts of the Emperor of 1887.

Palmore College is one of a chain of seven schools belonging to the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. These schools are under the same management and have an annual enrollment of about three thousand students. They are situated in Laredo, Saltillo, San Luis Potosi, Mexico City, Guadalajara, Durango and Chihuahua.—Woman's Missionary Advocate.

General Notes

The Methodist Episcopal Church closes its missionary year without debt, and with $20,000 on hand.

Bishop Moore believes Japan, with its 47,000,000 people, will take the helm in the Orient. The public school system in Japan is comparable with that of Massachusetts.

The Kentucky Court of Appeals has reversed the decision of the Circuit Court in the case of Caleb Powers, now in jail for complicity in the murder of William Goebel. This gives Powers a new trial.

During the year just closing the Lutheran Church in North America contributed for Home and Foreign Missions, for orphans, for education, and for the care of the sick, the sum of $1,684,895.56.

Father Cornelius Van de Ven has been consecrated Bishop of Natchitoches, La. He is a native of Holland, and came to America in 1890. He is perhaps the youngest Catholic bishop in the United States.

Miss Helen Gould has just completed a 6,000-mile trip in the West, during which she has visited some twenty railroad and city Young Men's Christian Associations, and shaken hands with over 20,000 railroad men.

United States Attorney-General Moody has just given an interesting ruling that stamp guessing contests, so much in evidence of late, as a species of gambling, and shuts all such enterprises out from a use of Uncle Sam's postal service.

The next triennial International Sunday-school Convention will meet in Toronto, June 23 to 27, 1905. A meeting of local Sunday-school workers has already been held to begin the planning for the entertainment of the Convention.

The Southern Presbyterian, which has heretofore been published in Clinton, S. C., will be removed to Atlanta, Ga., and will be published by Rev. T. E. Converse, D. D., who for many years was on the editorial staff of the Christian Observer, of Louisville, Ky.

Mr. F. W. H. Meyers, the prominent English essayist, after reviewing the work of the Society of Psychical Research, declares his belief that it is scientifically demonstrated that those whom we call dead are alive, and that they can communicate with us under proper conditions.

Pastor Charles Wagner has finished his lecturing and preaching tour in the United States and has returned to Paris. He will build a new church home for his congregation there, to be called The Home of the Soul, in which undertaking he expects many liberal contributions from the people of this continent.

The author of the favorite hyman, "God be with you till we meet again," Rev. J. E. Rankin, died in Cleveland, Ohio, November 28th. He was formerly president of Howard University, Washington, D. C., and for many years pastor of the Metropolitan Congregational Church in that city.

It seems that a well-to-do farmer in Indiana joked some Methodist women who wanted something for the church by saying that they could have all the corn on his farm that they would husk in a day. They took his joke in earnest, and went out and stripped the husks from forty bushels.—Michigan Christian Advocate.

Seen from the outside, France seems to be almost exclusively a Roman Catholic country. Of its 38,000,000 inhabitants, only 700,000 are Protestants and 80,000 Jews. Most of the remaining 37,000,000 are nominally Roman Catholic, but millions, especially in the great industrial towns, have broken more or less openly with the church, and a deep hatred of the religious orders exist.

NORTH CAROLINA EPWORTH LEAGUE CONFERENCE
DEVOTIONAL CHARITABLE LITERARY EVANGELICAL
EDITED BY REV. H. B. ANDERSON.

"The Bethlehem Christ."

(Matt 2:1-12, Dec. 25, 1904.)

REV. CHAS. C. SELECMAN.

This one chapter contains all that Matthew records of the Infancy. Mark and John tell us nothing and Luke very little. This is in striking contrast to those spurious gospels afterwards published by men who record childish stories about what the boy Jesus did and said. Men of culture and mature judgment recognize in the simple, natural records of the four Evangelists, a note of magnificent superiority. What a charm there is about this Bethlehem story! How the children love to hear it and the older people too find it more wonderfully sweet the oftener it is told. Rousseau says: "If the apostles or anyone else had invented Christ, the inventor would be more wonderful than the Hero."

1. The Group About Jesus.—I think it is Stalker who calls attention to the representative company that gather about the child, Jesus. (a) Shepherds hear the angelic announcement and say "come to another, let us now go to Bethlehem." Luke 2:8-1,20. The shepherds may be said to represent the great body of "common people" that hear Jesus gladly.

2. Wise Men.—They found Christ not by angelic guidance, but by following a star. The devout wisdom of the world has ever been attracted to Jesus. Let scholarship look where it will, into the heavens above, or the earth beneath or into the history of man, the footsteps of Jehovah appear along the shining pathways of the heavens, in the dark mysterious subways of earth, and in the philosophy of human history. While the voice of the wise man of one century cries, "O, my God, I read thy thoughts after Thee," echoing back over hundreds of years comes the voice of another saying: "I am nearer to God, when in my closet on my knees, than when in my observatory gazing into the heavens." Jesus is ever the teacher of teachers through a teacher of Israel Nicodemus must come to Jesus for light on life's most profound lessons.

3. Simeon and Anna met the babe in the temple on the eighth day when he was to be "presented to the Lord." Simeon "came in the spirit" into the temple, and when Jesus was brought in he received him into his arms and "blessed God." Luke 2:22-32. Anna coming up at that very hour gave "thanks." It must have been a beautiful picture, these two old people rejoicing over the advent of Jesus, the Savior, for whom they had long been looking. They may be said to represent that class of simple, reverent worshippers that love the courts of the Lord's house and whose chief joy is a new vision of the world's Redeemer.

4. Herod.—Now come the enemies of the Lord. Jesus is not only attracting the love and adoration of men; he is an object of the hatred of evil men. The wise men sought Him that they might worship Him. Herod sought "to destroy Him." Herod said he desired to worship Christ—he lied. "Can men say worship when they mean destroy. They say it every day. There is a possibility of destroying Christ under the guise of worshipping Him." Herod, like Pharoah, sought to guarantee his own future by a cruel blow at childhood. Dr. Joseph Parker says: "I am struck by the wisdom that sees in childhood a growing power, and that directs its attention to the early rise of nations. Do not sneer at the boys, they will be your successors."

5. His Star.—Pass a ray of light through a prism, and it is separated into seven prismatic colors. The light of the star of Bethlehem, falling upon a human heart, may be manifest in seven ways.

How to Read the Bible.

To some the Bible is uninteresting and unprofitable because they read too fast. Amongst the insects which subsist on the sweet sap of flowers there are two different classes. One is remarkable for its imposing plumage, which shows in the sunbeams like the dust of gems; and as you watch its jaunty dance from flower to flower you cannot help admiring its graceful activity, for it is plainly getting over a great deal of ground. But in the same field there is another worker, straightforward flight may not have arrested your eye. His fluttering neighbor darts here and there, and sips elegantly wherever he can find a drop of ready nectar; but this dingy plodder makes a point of alighting everywhere; wherever and whenever he alights he either finds honey or makes it. To which do you belong, the butterflies or the bees? Do you search the Scriptures, or skim them? Let me urge you to store your minds carefully with Bible truths while your memory is young and fresh. As the bee lays up a winter store for his body, so must you stock your minds and hearts.—C. H. Spurgeon in Christian Advocate.

Summary of Foreign Missions.

The annual statement of the work of Foreign Missionary Societies, published by the American Board, shows an increase for the year of $2,000,000 in the income of English and American societies. The numbers show totals for the two nationalities together of 5,771 stations, 16,-61 missionaries, 75,281 native workers, 1,397,047 communicants, 1,127,-853 pupils under instruction, and a total native constituency of 3,613,-391. The American societies have 6,991 stations and outstations, 1,617 men and 2,638 women workers, 20,-901 native laborers, 506,600 communicants, 250,573 under instruction and 43,723 added last year. The Sandwich Islands disappear from the list of missionary countries, their own churches having resumed the responsibility for mission work there, and the Philippine Islands are added to it.—Woman's Missionary Advocate.

We are all weavers weaving into character day by day the events as they come into our loves. We cannot understand why some days must be sad and sorrowful, while others are full of happiness and joy—we cannot see how these events are blending and harmonizing in our lives. We are told that in many factories the weaver sits at his loom day after day weaving, according to a pattern given him, yet does not see the result of his labor until his work is finished, cut from the loom and spread out before him. Then he understands how a bright thread here and a dark one there have been woven into a most beautiful piece of tapestry. Just so, day by day, we weave our characters according to the pattern and example of our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ. When our labor is ended and we view our lives as a finished piece of work, we shall be able to understand how the bright and dark days, the happy and sad events have been woven into one beautiful whole.

Neuralgic Pain! Rheumatic Pain! Instantly Relieved by Painkiller (Perry Davis)

NERVOUS PROSTRATION CAN BE CURED IF ONE WILL TRY THE RIGHT THING.

I was down with nervous dyspepsia for eight years. When I was taken I weighed 185 pounds, and it reduced me to 118. I could not touch solid food. I believe if I had taken solid food it would have killed me, and I had to live on sweets and lightest kind of diet.

I had severe nervous spells nearly every day and would have doctors to treat me, but they did not do me one particle of good—not even to relieve me.

I was so weak that for three months I was not able to walk across the room. I had rather die than to suffer it over again, and I felt that I was in a worse condition than any one who ever lived.

Mrs. Joe Person and my wife persuaded me to use Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy.

I bought a dozen bottles and it was three months before I felt any relief at all. Then I commenced to improve right along.

I took thirty-five bottles and it cured me.

It has been two years since I was cured, and I never have had a touch of the trouble since, and can eat anything under the sun, and as much of it as I want.

If anyone will stick to Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy long enough to build up the system, I know it will cure the most aggravated case of dyspepsia and nervousness that can be found.

B. M. MEDLIN.
Creedmore, Greenville County, N. C., R. F. D. No. 1, Aug. 1, 1904.

WRIGLEY ENGRAVING COMPANY
ENGRAVERS ELECTROTYPERS STEREOTYPERS
COPPER, HALF TONE AND ZINC ETCHING
ILLUSTRATIVE SYS.
ATLANTA, GA.

The Fact That
XANTHINE
Hair Restorative
is the best Hair Tonic is proven by the thousands of people that will use no other BEST BY TEST.
XANTHINE Company,
Richmond, Va.
We prepay charges on all orders.
Send for Circulars.

Have You Poultry? Use
S. P. S. Mul-tum Oyum the greatest of all Egg Producers and preventive for Cholera and Roup.
S. P. S. Roup Cure the only sure cure for Roup.
S. P. S. Chick Food, a mixture of grains, seed, bone and animal matter.
S. P. S. Hen Food and S. P. S. Morning Mash will keep your hens healthy and insure eggs.

We handle Incubators, Brooders, Poultry Supplies, "Everything for the Poultryman."
Southern Poultry Supply Co.
910 E. St. N. W. Washington, D. C.

SOUTHERN Shorthand & Business UNIVERSITY
NORFOLK AND PORTSMOUTH, VIRGINIA.
3,000 pupils educated at these schools during the past eight years, $1,000 offered to any graduate who has not secured a position.
Courses: Business, Shorthand, English. Telegraphy. Send for illustrated catalogue.
J. M. KESSLER, President.

THE BIGGS TREATMENT
Under this treatment the patient is cured by natural agencies. No medicines are used. The Biggs treatment embraces everything that is curative; nothing that impairs or destroys vitality.
Hundreds of sick people have been restored to health by this method. Many of them had been pronounced "incurable," but, nevertheless, they are now well. If you are interested in the cure of disease, write me for free literature, which explains my method. I will also send numerous testimonials from well-known people whom I have cured. Do not postpone the matter—you may forget it. Write to-day.
ANDREW C. BIGGS,
218 East Washington Street,
GREENSBORO, N. C.

..Christmas Holiday Rates..
1904-1905.
ATLANTIC COAST LINE
—ANNOUNCE RATE OF—
One and One-Third First-Class Fares
(MINIMUM RATE 50 CENTS.)
Tickets will be Placed on Sale Dec. 23, 24, 25, 31, and Jan'y 1, 1905.
Final Limit returning to January 4th, 1905.
The teachers and students of colleges, on presentation and surrender of certificates signed by Superintendents, Presidents or Principals, tickets may be sold at the above rate, December 17th to 20th, inclusive, with final limit returning to January 8th, 1905.
For full information, call on ticket agents, or address
H. M. EMERSON, Traffic Manager. W. J. CRAIG, G. P. A., WILMINGTON, N. C.

Sunday School

Lesson for December 25, 1904.

The Prince of Peace.

(Isaiah 9:1-7.)

A Christmas Lesson.

(Read Luke 2:1-20.)

Golden Text: His name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, The Mighty God, The Everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace. (Isa. 9:6.)

The lesson suggested for our study to-day is a two-fold one. First we have one of the most striking Messianic prophecies of the Old Testament, as given in the words of Isaiah, and then we have the narrative of the fulfillment of that prophecy as related by the evangelist Luke.

The Prophecy of Isaiah.—The historical situation under which Isaiah exercised his prophetic ministry is familiar from our recent studies in the history of Judah. It seems most probable that this prophecy was uttered by the prophet at his home in Jerusalem during the reign of Ahaz, the father of Hezekiah.

Ahaz was the wicked father of a good son. To understand the background of history to Isaiah's prophetic message we must remember that Ahaz "made molten images to Baal, introduced the moral abminations of the heathen worship, cut in pieces the vessels of the house of God, and gave the sacred vessels as a bribe to the king of Assyria, shut up the temple, built heathen altars in every corner of Jerusalem and burned his children in the fire as human sacrifices."

The result of this course of action on the part of Ahaz was the desolation of his country. The Assyrians came and overran the land, and utter ruin seemed to threaten the entire nation.

It was in the midst of such circumstances that Isaiah delivered his message, assuring the people that though they were at present sitting in great darkness they should soon see a great light.

The Promised Messiah.—The most glorious part of Isaiah's prophecy, however, was not the assurance of escape from the Assyrian yoke, but the declaration of the coming Messiah, whose characteristics as indicated in the words of the prophet betokened a more than human deliverer.

It is a magnificent description of the coming Messiah which we have in the last two verses of our lesson. Handel has given a splendid musical interpretation to these words in his matchless oratorio, "The Messiah." We cannot exhaust their meaning, for the more we study them, the deeper becomes their significance. Truly indeed is the name of Jesus called Wonderful, Counsellor, The Mighty God, The Everlasting Father, and The Prince of Peace.

The Prince of Peace.—Of all the appellations used by Isaiah, in the verse just quoted concerning the coming Messiah, the one that has most endeared itself to the heart of Christendom is that of the Prince of Peace, and at this Christmas season of the year it is well to emphasize the thought that our Lord and Saviour is the Prince whose coming brings peace to the weary and sin-sick soul, and whose teachings shall eventually bring peace to all the world.

Some Christmas Thoughts.—We shall do well in this lesson to compare prophet with evangelist, and to see how the glorious predictions of Isaiah find their fulfillment in the record of Luke.

Christ came to bring joy and light and peace to the world. So we keep Christmas best when we remember others and strive to bring blessings into the lives of those around us.

An appropriate beatitude for the Christmas season is the saying of the Lord Jesus himself: "It is more blessed to give than to receive."

For Asthma use CHENEY'S EXPECTORANT.

THE KEELEY INSTITUTE
GREENSBORO, N.C.
For the treatment of THE LIQUOR, OPIUM, MORPHINE and other Drug Addictions. The Tobacco Habit, Nervous Exhaustion

Saw Mills
1500 ft. 1 in boards per hour with 16 H. P. is the record of our Light 25 ft. Saw Mills. Small Mills for tanners and Large Mills for lumbermen. Also Engines, Boilers, Shingle Mills, Edgers, Grist Mills, etc. Write for Catalogue K. Address Salem Iron Works, Winston-Salem, N. C.

CANCER
Permanent Cure Guaranteed, without knife, X-Ray, Arsenic or Acids; no inconvenience. Write for book.
Southern Cancer Sanatorium
1520 E. Monument St. Baltimore, Md.

Do You Eat Cabbage?
If so send to me for immediate shipments of plants for early headers. I have now ready for delivery, 150,000 plants of the best varieties known to the truck business. They are grown in open air on the South Carolina sea coast, and will stand very severe cold without injury. Price $1.50 per thousand. Special rates for 5,000 and over. Send remittance by registered letter, or money order, or plants are shipped C. O. D. if desired. For early gardens prepare to send now. Supply was exhausted last year.
L. C. BEHLING,
Meggetts, S. C.
Teleg. & Express Office.

French Heels and Rheumatism.
"There's another of those women with broken-down feet," said the shoe-store man as he walked back to the case for a particular shape of shoe. "Didn't you know there was an epidemic of that sort of thing? No! Well, there is, and the French heel is to blame for it. There's a whole lot of women who think they have rheumatism in their feet, but they haven't. It's simply a case of the arch of the foot being broken down. They wore French heels that threw their heels up in the air, and the next season they went to the low heels. The change threw the bones of the instep out of place, and now when they walk the bones cause them pain.
"I have fixed up any number of feet for them. Some of them have been to springs, where they treat rheumatism, and some of them even to Europe. When they come in here to buy shoes they speak incidentally about their troubles, and generally a silver plate and a shoe that will hold the bones in place will fix them up.
"Often I can tell what is the matter with a woman's foot just by seeing her walk. You see that shoe, all worn off at the side? And this one, worn at the toe? Well, that is because the women have tried to ease the pressure on those broken-down bones. A foot that is formed right and that is in perfect health will wear the shoe evenly across the sole. If women only knew what was the matter with their feet, the doctors would miss a lot of fees for treatments for rheumatism."—Exchange.

INHERITED SCROFULA
When a child I had a very severe attack of Diphtheria, which came near proving fatal. Upon recovery the glands of the neck were very much enlarged, and after the free use of iodine, the right one was reduced to its normal size, but the left one continued to grow—very slowly at first, until it was about the size of a goose egg, which began to press on the windpipe, causing difficult breathing, and became very painful. An incision was made and a large quantity of pus discharged. The gland was removed, or as much as could with safety be taken out. For ten years I wore a little piece of cloth about an inch long in my neck to keep the place open. During this time I had to have it cut open by the doctor every time I took cold or the opening clogged. In the Spring or early Summer of 1884 I was persuaded by my wife to use S. S. S., which I did, strictly in accordance with directions. I took twenty-six large bottles, and was entirely cured, for I have not suffered since that time.
B. S. RAGLAND.
Royal Bag Mfg. Co., Charleston S. C.
Only a constitutional remedy can reach an hereditary disease like Scrofula. When the blood is restored to a normal condition and the scrofulous deposits are carried off there is a gradual return to health. S.S.S. is well known as a blood purifier and tonic. It is the only guaranteed, strictly vegetable remedy sold. If you have any signs of Scrofula, write us and our physicians will advise you free
SSS
The Swift Specific Company, Atlanta, Ga.

DRAUGHON'S Practical Business Colleges,
Estab. 16 YEARS. Incorporated $300,000.00. SIXTEEN bankers on Board of Directors.
Cor. Martin and Wilmington,
BIG 15 BIGGEST Best CATALOG Tells The Rest
RALEIGH ATLANTA ST. LOUIS PADUCAH FT. SCOTT COLUMBIA FT. WORTH NASHVILLE KNOXVILLE GALVESTON SHREVEPORT
Colleges IN 12 States Can You Name Them?
KANSAS CITY & LITTLE ROCK MONTGOMERY & OKLAHOMA CITY
Endorsed by business men from Me. to Cal. Our diploma represents in business what Yale's and Harvard's represent in literary circles.
POSITIONS. Written contract given to secure position or to refund money; or may contract to pay tuition out of salary. Over 6,000 students each year. No vacation; enter any time. DAY and NIGHT session. SPECIAL rate if you call or write SOON for "Proposition B." Catalog FREE. We teach BY MAIL successfully or REFUND money.

NO MONEY NEEDED
All you need is to send to us for 12 copies of THE AMERICAN ILLUSTRATED METHODIST MAGAZINE. Sell them to friends at price of 15c a copy, return the $1.80 collected, and we will send you by return mail, absolutely free, our beautiful Holman Teachers' Bible, bound in morocco, helps, maps, 32 full page illustrations, 4000 questions and answers on Old and New Testaments. You will be delighted with it, as all our customers are.
☞Our magazine was never more attractive and popular; it sells quickly. Pastors and S. S. Teachers may order Bible for examination to be returned at our expense if not earned.
THE METHODIST PUB. CO.,
112 Locust St., St. Louis, Mo.

H. STEINMETZ.
FLORIST.
Cut Flowers, Designs. Plants of all kinds.
PHONES 113. RALEIGH, N. C.

THE LARGEST SALE OF ANY ONE BRAND IN THE UNITED STATES.
Sauers FLAVORING EXTRACTS
BEST BY TEST.
AT YOUR GROCER
10c and 25c.

Raleigh Marble Works

Monuments
Ship Monumental work to all parts of the State. Delivered to your depot at same price as at shop.
Special attention paid to finish and lettering.
Only Best of Stock Used.
Write for new catalogue.
COOPER BROS., Proprietors,
RALEIGH, N. C.

Atlantic & North Carolina R. R.

(Howland Improvement Company Lessee.)

Schedule in effect October 23, 1904.

EAST-BOUND.

Station.	No. 3.	No. 5.
Leave Goldsboro	3.30 p. m.	8.00 a. m.
" LaGrange	3.50 "	8.26 "
" Kinston	4.22 "	8.46 "
" Dover	4.43 "	9.13 "
" Cove	5.00 "	9.30 "
" Tuscarora	5.12 "	9.50 "
Arrive New Bern	5.40 "	10.40 "

Station.		No. 7 (Accom.)
Leave New Berne	5.50 p. m.	12.30 p. m.
" Riverdale	6.15 "	1.12 "
" Havelock	6.30 "	1.40 "
" Newport	6.53 "	2.19 "
Arrive More head City	7.30 "	2.55 "

WESTBOUND.

Station.	No. 4.	No. 8. (Accom.)
Leave Morehead City	7.11 a. m.	5.20 a. m.
" Newport	7.54 "	6.26 "
" Havelock	8.08 "	7.00 "
" Riverdale	8.21 "	7.30 "
Arrive New Bern	8.45 "	8.05 "

Station.	No. 6
Leave New Bern	6.30 p. m.
" Tuscarora	6.50 "
" Cove	7.00 "
" Dover	7.17 "
" Kinston	7.37 "
" LaGrange	7.57 "
Arrive Goldsboro	8.30 "

Trains 3, 4, 5 and 6 run daily.
Trains 7 and 8 run daily except Sunday.
CONNECTIONS.—At Goldsboro, with Southern Railway and Atlantic Coast Line. At Kinston and Newbern, with Atlantic Coast Line.
R. P. FOSTER, General Manager. E. A. NIEL, Traffic Manager, Goldsboro, N. C.

Raleigh and Cape Fear Railroad

TIME TABLE.

Effect 12:01 A. M., Sunday, October 9, 1904.

SOUTH BOUND TRAINS. Daily, ex. S. Second Class	First Class	STATIONS.	NOR. BOUND TRAINS. Daily, ex. S. First Class	Second Class
	101		104	102
A. M.	P. M.	Lv. Raleigh Ar.	A. M.	P. M.
7 20	4 15		9 45	5 35
7 35	4 25	S. Cayleigh Mills	9 35	5 29
7 45	4 30	F. *Sylvola	9 30	5 13
7 54	4 39	F. Barnes	9 20	5 04
8 00	4 45	F. Hobby	9 14	4 57
8 15	4 52	M. McCULLERS	9 10	4 52
8 25	4 56	F. Banks	8 59	4 23
8 30	4 59	F. Austin	8 55	4 21
8 50	5 07	S. *Willow Springs	8 50	4 15
9 05	5 15	M. JOHNSON MILL	8 40	4 03
9 15	5 17	F. Cardenas	8 33	4 00
9 20	5 22	S. C. F. & N. Junction	8 33	3 55
9 35	5 28	S. Fuquay Springs	8 30	3 52
9 40	5 31	F. Buckhorn	8 20	3 35
9 45	5 36	F. Rawls	8 17	3 30
10 00	5 45	S. Chalybeate	8 10	3 20
10 05	5 50	S. Bradley	8 00	3 01
10 15	6 00	F. *Smith Mill	7 55	2 55
10 25	6 10	Lillington Ar.	7 45	2 45
		Lv.

JOHN A. MILLS, President and Gen. Manager.

Table of Contents of North Carolina Methodist Handbook.

General.—(1) The Remarkable Dream of Rev. Christopher Thomas.
(2) Special article by Bishop O. P. Fitzgerald.
(3) Special article by Bishop E. R. Hendrix.
(4) A Brief Statement of Methodist Doctrine.
(5) Some Every Day Questions on the Discipline.
(6) What It is to Be a Methodist.
Historical and Biographical.—(1) "My First Conference"—a series of sketches by Revs. R. W. Pickens, C. M. Anderson, P. J. Carraway, A. D. Betts, M. C. Thomas, G. W. Callahan, J. W. Jenkins, and W. H Moore.
(2) Milestones in North Carolina Methodism.
(a) The First Methodist Preacher in North Carolina.
(b) The First Methodist Society in North Carolina.
(c) The First Annual Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church in North Carolina.
(d) The First Great Methodist Revival in North Carolina.
(e) The First Session of the North Carolina Conference in 1828.
(3) The Dead of the Two Conferences in 1904.
Statistical.—Official Boards, Committees, etc., of the two Conferences in North Carolina.
Roll of Itinerant Preachers.
Roll of Local Preachers.
Roll of Sunday-school Superintendents.
Tables showing what each Conference has done each year for the last ten years in the Support of the Ministry, Foreign Missions, Domestic Missions, Church Extension, Conference Claimants, Education, Church and Parsonage building, Sunday-schools and Epworth League. In short, a miniature file of the Journals of both Conferences for the last ten years.
Maps showing by means of squares the percentage paid by each Conference for the last ten years for the assessed interests of the church.
A Resume of Woman's Work in North Carolina Methodism.
Our Orphanage.
Our Schools.
District Conference Directory for 1905.
Methodist Chronology for 1904.
Methodist Episcopal Church, South.—Bishops, Connectional Officers, and Boards.
Religious Papers.
General Statistics.
General Church Statistics.—Methodist Episcopal Church.
Table of Denominational Statistics in the United States.
Table of Denominational Statistics in North Carolina.
North Carolina.—Calendar for 1905.
State Government.
Schools and Hospitals.
Railroads and Factories.
Educational Statistics.
Miscellaneous Statistics and Tables.
Practical.—Tables, Rules, Recipes, etc., needed by the business man, the farmer, housekeeper, etc.
Illustrations.—The Handbook for 1905 is more profusely illustrated than any previous issue. Three prizes were offered for the most artistically decorated parsonage front. The Handbook for 1905 contains cuts of the parsonages taking the prizes. The other cuts are those of faces, churches, schools, dwellings, and scenery. Only the best engravings are used.

One of the saddest accidents of the year occurred Saturday night, 10th, when John H. Gore, Jr., law partner of ex-Gov. D. L. Russell, and his brother-in-law, John Brewer, of Franklin, Va., about 18 years old, were drowned in Cape Fear River, five miles below Wilmington. A canoe in which they were returning to a steam launch up the river was capsized by a squall. Two other companions in a ducking canoe were unable to rescue the men on account of the storm. The bodies were recovered Monday.

Asheville has refused to license distilleries for 1905.

A Notre Dame Lady's Appeal.

To all knowing sufferers of rheumatism whether muscular or of the joints, sciatica, lumbagos, backache, pains in the kidneys or neuralgia pains, to write to her for a home treatment which has repeatedly cured all of these tortures. She feels it her duty to send it to all sufferers FREE. You cure yourself at home as thousands will testify—no change of climate being necessary. This simple discovery banishes uric acid from the blood, loosens the stiffened joints, purifies the blood, and brightens the eyes, giving elasticity and tone to the whole system. If the above interests you, for proof address Mrs. M Summers, Box 233, Notre Dame Ind.

Prof. Wilbur Smith, Lexington, Ky., honored by banking and official positions is serving his 28th year as President of the famous and honored Commercial College of Kentucky University.

Thousands of his successful graduates have received the diploma under seal from Kentucky University, the wealth of which is nearly $1,000,000. Read hand adv., and for circulars address W. R. Smith, Lexington, Ky.

YOU HAVE NO FRIENDS

in any town or community but what will be greatly interested in a household remedy that is now being used extensively throughout the United States as a complete and permanent cure for catarrh of the mucous membranes, dyspepsia, constipation, and all diseases of the liver, kidneys and bladder. Only one dose a day is necessary. Write at once to the Vernal Remedy Company, Le Roy, N. Y., as they have so much confidence in this remedy that they will cheerfully send you free of charge a trial bottle of Vernal Palmettona (Palmetto Berry Wine), so that you can quickly convince yourself of the wonderful results to be obtained from its use. Sold by druggists everywhere, but don't hesitate to write for free trial bottle and booklet.

Quarterly Meetings.

FAYETTEVILLE D STRICT.
J. B. Hurley, P. E.
FIRST ROUND.

Dunn, Dec. 18, 19
Sanford, Dec. 20
Buckhorn. Dec. 21
Jonesboro, Jan. 1
Pittsboro, Jan. 6-8
Haw River, Mann's Chapel, Jan. 7
Goldston, Jan. 8, 9
Siler City, Jan. 10
Elise, Tabernacle, Jan. 11
Carthage, Jan. 12
Fayetteville Circuit, Camp Ground, Jan. 14, 15
Fayetteville, Hay Street, Jan. 15
Hope Mills, Jan. 18
Duke, Elevation, Jan. 20
Newton Grove, Jan. 21, 22
Cokesbury, Bethany, Jan. 26
Bladen. Jan. 27
Sampson, Andrews Chapel, Jan. 28, 29
Lillington, Parker's Grove, Feb. 3
District Stewards will meet in Steel Street Methodist Church, Sanford, N. C., December 30, 1904, at 7:30 p. m. Let every member of the board be present.

WILMINGTON DISTRICT.
M. Bradshaw, P. E., Wilmington, N. C.
FIRST ROUND.

Market Street. Dec. 11
Bladen Street, Dec. 11
Fifth Street, Dec. 18
Grace, Jan. 1
Magnolia, Providence, Jan. 7, 8
Southport, Jan. 15 16
Clinton, Clinton, Jan. 21, 22
Kenansville Kenansville, Jan. 28, 29
Burgaw, Rocky Point, Feb. 4, 5
Onslow, Mayesville, Feb. 11, 12
New River, Turkey Ct. (Q. C. 2 p. m.) Feb. 13
Jacksonville and Richlands, Richlands, February 18, 19
Waccamaw, Shiloh, Feb. 25, 26
Whiteville (Q. C. 2 p. M. 27) Feb. 26. 27
Carver's Circuit, Council, Feb. 28
Scott's Hill, Prospect, March 4, 5
Town Creek, Bethel. March 10
Shallotte and Camp, March 11, 12
Columbus, March 18, 19

WASHINGTON DISTRICT.
J. D. Bundy, P. E., Rocky Mount, N. C.
FIRST ROUND,

Fremont, Eureka, Dec. 31 and Jan. 1,
Tarboro, Jan. 3
Aurora, Durham Creek, Jan 7, 8
Grimesland and Vanceboro, Ayden, Jan, 14, 15
Grantville, Jan. 22. 24
Roanoke, Jan. 24
Rocky Mount. Jan. 25
Elm City 8m City, Jan 29 30
North Rocky Mount and Marvin, Feb.
Bethel, Bethel Feb. 4, 5
Farmville, Farmville, Feb. 11, 12
Wilson Station, Feb. 19

Cabbage Plants and Sea Island Cotton Seed.

Cabbage Plants for sale, and now ready for delivery. Early Jersey Wakefield and Charleston Large Type Wakefield are the two earliest sharphead varieties, and head in rotation as named Succession, Augusta Tucker and Short Stem Flat Dutch, the 3 best flat head varieties, and head in rotation as named. Terms: Single thousand, $1.50; 5,000 and over, $1.25 per 1,000; 10,000 and over, $1.00 per 1,000. Prices: Cash with order; or plants sent C. O. D., purchasers paying return charges on money. Our plant beds occupy 6 acres on South Carolina Sea Coast, and we understand growing them in the open air; tough and hardy; they will stand severe cold without injury. Plants crated for shipment weigh 20 lbs. per M., and we have special low rates for prompt transportation by Southern Express Co. I know of other plants you can buy cheaper than mine. I sell good plants. No cheap "cut-rate" plants sent from my farm. I guarantee those that I ship to be true to type and name, and grown from high grade seeds purchased from two of the most reliable seed houses in the United States. I will refund purchase price to any dissatisfied customer at end of season.

Our Cotton Seed. Lint of our Long Staple variety of Sea Island Cotton sold this year in Charleston on December 2 at 32 cents per pound. Seed $1.25 per bushel; lots of ten bushels and over $1.00 per bushel.

My Specialty: Prompt Shipment, True varieties and Satisfied Customers. I have been in the plant business for thirty five years.

Wm. C. GERATY, The Cabbage Plant Man, Post & Telegraph Office. Young's Island, S. C.

Wilson Circuit, Wilson, Feb. 10
Washington. Feb. 24
Bath, Asbury, Feb. 25, 26
Spring Hope, Spring Hope, March 4, 5
Nashville, Nashville, March 6
Swan Quarter, Swan Quarter, March 12, 13
Fairfield, March 15
Mattamuskeet, Engelhard, March 18, 19
The District Stewards will please meet in the Tarboro Methodist Church at 10:30 a. m. Tuesday, Jan. 3

NEW BERNE DISTRICT.
E. H. Davis, P. E., Kinston, N. C.
FIRST ROUND.

Kinston, Dec 10. 11
New Berne, Centenary, Dec. 18, 19
Grifton Circuit, Sharon, Dec. 24. 25
Goldsboro Circuit. Salem, Dec. 31, Jan. 1
Goldsboro, St. Paul, Jan. 1, 2
Mount Olive Circuit, Smiths, Jan. 7, 8
Mount Olive and Faison, Jan. 8, 9
Jones, Map e Grove, Jan. 15, 16
Craven, Epworth, Jan. 16, 17
Hookerton, Ormonds, Jan. 21, 22
Snow Hill, Snow Hill, Jan. 22, 23
Dover, Kinston, Jan. 27
LaGrange, LaGrange, Jan. 28, 29
Goldsboro, St. Johns, Feb. 1
Pamlico, Barnes, Feb. 4, 5
Oriental, Feb. 5, 6
Carteret, Newport, Feb. 11, 12
Beaufort, Feb. 13, 19
Morehead, Feb. 19, 20
Ocracoke, Feb. 21, 22
Atlantic, Wth. Feb. 23
Straits, Summerfield, Feb. 25, 26
The Dist ict Stewards will please meet in the Methodist Church in Kinston Wednesday, January 11, at 11 a. m.

WARRENTON DITRI T.
G. F. Smith, P E, Litt'eton, N C
FIRST ROUND.

L'ttleton, Littleton, Dec. 18
Roanoke Rapids and Rosemary, Roanoke Rapids, Dec. 24, 25
Weldon, Dec 25, 26
Warrenton, Macon, Dec. 31, Jan. 1
Northampton, Rehaboth, Jan. 7, 8
Rich Square, Rich Square, Jan. 8, 9
Conway, Bethany, Jan. 10
Murfreesboro, Jan. 11
Bertie, Windsor, Jan 13
Harrellsville, Powellsville, Jan. 14, 15
Garysburg, Garysburg, Jan. 19
Ridgeway, Ridgeway, Jan. 21, 22
Enfield and Halifax, Halifax, Jan. 29, 30
Battleboro and Whitakers, McTyrie, Jan 31
Hobgood, Hobgood Feb 4, 5
Scotland Neck, Feb 5, 6
Williamston and Hamilton, Williamston, Feb. 7
Warren, Providence, Feb 11, 12
Roanoke, Tabor, Feb. 18, 19
Henderson, Feb. 26, 27

DURHAM DISTRICT.
J. T. Gibbs, P.E., Durham, N. C.
FIRST ROUND.

Durham, Branson Street, Jan. 1, a. m
Leasburg, at Leasburg, Dec. 12
Milton, at Milton, Dec 13
Durham, Mangum Street, December 18, 19
Carr Church, Dec. 25, 26
Newton Grove, Jan. 21, 22
West Durham, Jan. 1, at night
Hillsboro Ct., Hillsboro, Jan 8, 9
Durham, Trinity Church, Jan. 16, 17
District Stewards' meeting at Trinity Church, Durham, at 11 a. m., Tuesday, Dec. 20

RALEIGH DISTRICT.
W. H. Moore, P. E.
FIRST ROUND.

Central, Jan 1, 2
Brooklyn, at night Jan. 1
Youngsville, Youngsville, Jan. 7, 8
Millbrook, Millbrook, Jan 14, 15
Clayton, Clayton, Jan. 21, 22
Franklinton, Franklinton, Jan. 28, 29
Edenton Street, Feb. 4, 5
Louisburg, Feb 11, 12
Oxford Circuit, Feb, 18, 19
Granville, Feb. 25, 26
Oxford Station, March 4, 5

ROCKINGHAM DISTRICT.
John B. Cole, P. E., Rockingham, N. C.
FIRST ROUND.

Rockingham Station, Jan. 1, 2.
Hamlet, Old Hundred, Jan. 3
St John and Gibson, Gibson, Jan 4
Laurinburg Station, Jan. 4 (7:30 p. m.)
Maxton and Caledonia, Maxton, Jan. 5
Rowland, Rowland, Jan 7, 8
Robeson. Trinity, Jan. 8, 9
Elizabeth, Jan. 11
Lumberton Jan. 12
Roberdel, Roberdel Jan. 13
Aberdeen, Bisco Jan 14, 15
Richmond, Mizpeh. Jan. 18
Red Springs, Reeford. Jan. 21, 22
Montgomery, Shiloah, Jan. 27
Troy, Troy, Jan. 27 (7:30 p. m.)
Mt. Gilead, Mt. Gilead, Jan. 28-29
Pekin Concord. Jan. 30
The District Stewards will please meet in the pastor's study in the Methodist Church, Rockingham, N. C., Dec 29, 8:30 p. m. And all Stewards are requested to call on every member of their respective churches and receive the offering on pastor's salary for the first quarter, according to the law of the Discipline.

ELIZABETH CITY DISTRI T.
J. E. Underwood, P. E., Elizabeth City, N. C.
FIRST ROUND.

Pasquotank Circuit, at Hall's Creek, Dec. 25, 26
Elizabeth City, City Road, Dec 25
Edenton, Evans' and Centre Hill, at Edenton, Jan. 1, 2
Hertford Station, Jan. 8, 9
N. Gates, Kittrell, Jan. 14, 15
Dare Circuit, Jan. 21
Roanoke Island, Jan. 22, 23
Hatteras, Jan. 28 29
Kitty Hawk, Jan. 29
Perquimans Circuit at Winfall, Feb. 4, 5
Camden Circuit, at Nashe's Feb. 17
Currituck Circuit, at Asbury, Feb, 18, 19
Elizabeth City, First Church, Feb. 22
Gates, March 5, 6
Pantego March 12 13
Columbia March 18, 19

For Whooping Cough use CHENEY'S EXPECTORANT.

WANTED Men and Women to sell a SELF-WRINGING FLOOR MOP.
Sells Itself. Pays $3 to $8 Daily.
Will give exclusive sale of county to right party. T. G. JOHNSON.
Temple Court Bldg., ATLANTA, GA.

BLACKBOARDS
For Schools, Sunday Schools Churches.
Any quality, shipped any where promptly All kinds school furniture and supplies. Write for particulars, Best Goods, Lowest Prices.
CHAS. J. PARKER, Mgr.
Raleigh, N. C.

LIBERTY MILLS

PRODUCES DAILY 4,000 BARRELS OF
Pure Soft Wheat Flour
AND THERE IS HEALTH AND STRENGTH IN EVERY POUND.
Ask Your Grocer.
LIBERTY MILLS,
Nashville, Tenn.

Address WILBUR R. SMITH, LEXINGTON, KY.
"Cheapest and best College"
COMMERCIAL COLLEGE OF KY. UNIVERSITY
Refers to thousands of successful graduates. Cost to complete Full Business Course, including Tuition, Board and Room, about $100. Phonography, Type-Writing and Telegraphy taught. Address WILBUR R. SMITH, Lexington, Ky.

Positions GUARANTEED BY A $5,000 BANK DEPOSIT
Scholarships Paid, $50
Day and Night Courses Offered.
Practical Work. Write for Catalogue.
GEORGIA-ALABAMA BUSINESS COLLEGE, Macon, Ga.

Methodist Orphanage

OFFICERS:
REV. J. W. JENKINS, - Superintendent
MRS. J. W. JENKINS, - - Matron
MISS LUCY M. REEKS, Teacher

Send money to the Superintendent by Check, Post Office or Express Money Order, or Registered letter.

The Dormitories.

Three dormitories are furnished and three beds for the fourth. It will require four more. Who will give them? Fifteen dollars a bed. We shall need them soon. Let us hear from the friends. Bro. J. J. Wolfendon, of New Bern, takes one.

I have said it—repeat it—stand by it—and defend it—that liberality is about to break out all over our Conference, like the measles. I am sure there will be a move all along the line in 1905. Fall in, one and all.

The chickens are crowing for Christmas. The girls are dreaming of dolls. The boys are listening for horns. And—and—all are looking for boxes. The music of sleigh bells is in the air.

Our Visitors.

Quite a number of friends have visited us recently. Rev. R. H. Willis, Bro. W. L. Arendell and Brother Lane called on their way to Conference, and Rev. A. S. Barnes, wife and son, with Mrs. E. C. Duncan, Mrs. Barnes' sister, and Rev. W. H. Townsend after Conference. Call again, friends.

A very interesting one indeed was Dr. F. R. Harris, of Henderson, a member of the Methodist Protestant Church, who came to see our institution, and to tell me that he would support an orphan year by year, at an expense of $75.00 per year. Mr. R. N. Page had already informed me of it. He married the daughter of Rev. Jessie H. Page, of precious memory. Isn't that nice? Many more may be taken. Who will follow suit?

Endowment.

The question of the endowment of the Orphanage was raised and briefly discussed at the last meeting of the Trustees, but no new plan was adopted. Why not adopt the George M. Lindsey plan, viz., To give a thousand dollars to the Orphanage; the interest of which is to go to the feeding and clothing of an orphan. If you have not the money, give your bond, and bind your property for it. So that if you do not pay it in your life time, it will be paid at your death. Interest to be paid annually, while you live. Brother Lindsey sent a check to Conference for the first year's interest. If one hundred friends would do that, it would give us a handsome endowment to begin with. Can it not be done in the next twelve months. Think of it friends.

The Sunday-Schools and the New Plan.

To those who are enquiring as to the effect of the new plan for raising funds for the support of the Institution, will have upon the Sunday-schools that are now supporting one or more children, I would say, that it is not intended to affect that at all. It will do great good to the schools as well as to the Orphanage, to get them all to contribute monthly. But if you cannot raise the assessment without counting that in, do it. A goodly number of the churches raised a good deal more than that last Conference year. Franklinton raised more than ten times that amount and Main Street Durham more than three times as much. The only argument made against the plan was that it might diminish our collections for this cause rather than increase them. Let it have full swing, brethren. The assessment will help the do-nothing churches.

Christmas.

Christmas is always a great time at the Orphanage. The friends fill our mouths with good things and a right merry time we have. But few children in all the land have a better time than these. Good people vie with each other to make them happy.

They greatly appreciate this kindness. They take it as coming from the great Father of us all. The boxes are already arriving. They will come in troops by and by.

I say again, that the railroads and express companies will dead-head them, if you will apply to headquarters through the local agents. It will save the Orphanage right much money. Sometimes the transportation charges are heavy—about half the worth of the goods.

A suggestion: Don't send us baby shoes, over shoes, caps, dresses, socks, or any other baby fixings. We have no babies here, and are not expecting any. Do not send fine quilts nor fine clothing. Send things for use and not for looks. Good, substantial things.

The Library.

Our Jeffrey Robbins Library is now open. The shelves are comparatively empty. Books are nice Christmas presents. Patent Office reports never were interesting reading to me. I don't think that orphan children would like them. We have nice book cases—shabby books would not look nice in them.

Christmas would be a nice time to send that piano along for the "Catharine Page" Chapel.

A calendar clock, whether it strikes or not, will be almost a necessity for our chapel.

A big striking clock in the hall would make music for the whole building.

A big bell, like the farmers have, would ring up the whole affair, and be heard from afar.

Turkeys, pigs, geese, ducks, partridges, chickens, etc., etc., are always in good taste.

Receipts Up to December 5.

Public collection at Conference, $178.55; Dixon, Donald, Agnes and Mary Phillips, Florida, $1.00; Lewisville, W. N. C. C., Thanksgiving, $5.00; Statesville, First Church and West End, Thanksgiving, $5.00; Apex, Thanksgiving, $2.10; Wadesboro, Thanksgiving, $5.00; Lemon Springs, Thanksgiving, $3.66; Orphan's Society, Wallace, $7.70; Lumberton S. S., $10.00; Winfall, $5.00; White Oak, Bertie Circuit, S. S., $6.62; Red Springs S. S., $2.50; Elm St. S. S., Goldsboro, on bed, $7.50; little Lillian Burrus, $1.00; Mrs. H. F. Berd, $1.00; Parkers S. S., $5.00; Littleton Circuit, $18.00; Littleton, Thanksgiving, $1.25; Goldston Circuit, Thanksgiving, $16.10; Selma, Thanksgiving, $2.50; Leasburg Circuit, Thanksgiving, $7.73; Oxford Circuit, Thanksgiving, $9.00; Hillsboro Circuit, Thanksgiving, $6.00; H. N. Brown, on subs., $5.00; Junior League, $2.00; Jonesboro Circuit, $7.10; Trinity, Camden Circuit, $6.00; Wesley's Chapel, Camden Circuit, $7.00; Main Street, Durham, Thanksgiving, $1.60; Warren Circuit, $5.00; Tar River Circuit: Plank Chapel, support of orphan, $1.50; Kittrell, support of orphan, $1.25; Trinity, support of orphan, $1.25; Ebenezer, support of orphan, $2.96; Clarissa Bonnybel Evans, window, $2.00; West Greensboro, Thanksgiving, $14.00; Roxboro Circuit, $73.80; Garysburg, $12.79; Swansboro, $7.00; Pittsboro S. S., $4.20; George M. Lindsay on bond supt. of orphan, $60.00; Roanoke Rapids, $1.50; Whiteville S. S., $6.19; Kings Mountain, Thanksgiving, $2.61; Newton, Thanksgiving, $8.40; Capt. T. M. Anderson, on subs., $5.00; Miss Ola Patrick, Thanksgiving, $5.00, her Sunday-school class, $2.25; Elise, $2.50; Franklinton S. S., $10.00; Rowland Circuit, $18.00; Holly Springs, $10.00; other churches on Buckhorn Circuit, $19.00; Louisburg, Thanksgiving, $.50; Phillips Chapel, Alamance Circuit, $2.20; Swepsonville, Alamance Circuit, $4.00; Miss Sue Webb, Thanksgiving, $1.00; First Church, Elizabeth City, for support of two orphans one year, $120.00; Roper City, $17.15; Aurora, $13.00; Miss Sallie Swindell, window, $4.00; Hertford, on subs., $15.00; Hertford, general fund, $15.00; Dover, $2.00; Snow Hill, $9.00; Hope Mills, $5.00; J. J. Wolfendon, for bed, $15.00; Miss Mary Council, Populi, $1.00; East Burlington, Graham and Haw River, $2.11; Spring Hope, $22.00; Rockingham, $44.37.

Donations in kind:

Five boxes groceries, Washington; one sack flour, Mrs. Mary Barringer; one quilt, Miss Frye, Carthage; box of clothes, Miss Alice B. Wright, Wilson; box of clothes and two barrels of potatoes, Lumberton; box of books from Mrs. Filyaw, Wilmington; box of goods, Chadbourn; box of clothes, Mrs. Georgia Partin, Enfield; box of sundries, Salisbury; three bags of Irish potatoes, D. H. Dixon, Goldsboro; two quilts, Mrs. Bettie Bert Grant; box sundries and one barrel potatoes, Orphanage Society, Wallace; barrel of clothes and two pillows, Manteo; box of boy's caps, Cross & Linehan, Raleigh; box of groceries and apples, Sparta.

For Croup use CHENEY'S EXPECTORANT.

Money for Farmers!

6 PER CENT. DIVIDEND EVERY WEEK FROM AN INVESTMENT WITHIN REACH OF ALL!

Josh Billings once delivered himself as follows:

"He who by farmin' wood get rich,
Must rake an' ho an' dig an' sich;
Work hard all day, sleep hard all nite,
Save ev'ry sent an' not git tite."

Farming, nowadays, however, is not a matter of main strength and awkwardness, as it was when Josh wrote these lines: "He who by farming would get rich," in the twentieth century must read the best farm literature, post himself as to the best methods adopted by the most progressive farmers, and bring science and skill to his aid, and for this purpose there's nothing better than a good farm paper.

Listen to what Mr. Ashley Horne, President of the State Fair, says: "I have other investments that pay 6 per cent annually, but my dollar in The Progressive Farmer pays me 6 per cent. every week that comes."

J. M. Parris, of Jackson county, N. C., says: "By adopting many valuable suggestions made by the various writers for The Progressive Farmer, I have been enabled to greatly improve my farm and stock by increased production and valuation of farm and stock. I have made over $100 for each $1 paid out for your paper. I am sure that it was one of the best investments I ever made."

You cannot farm during 1905 without this "biggest, brightest, and best Southern farm weekly," and you should at once accept our Remarkable Special Offer.

We have made arrangements by which we are enabled to make the following club offer:

The Progressive Farmer..... $1.00
Raleigh Advocate $1.50

Both One Year for $2.00.

The only condition is, that you must be a new subscriber to one or both papers. This is imperative. Address all orders to

The Christian Advocate,
Raleigh, N. C.

When writing advertisers, please mention this paper.

Deep Seated Coughs Cured by Allen's Lung Balsam

Christmas and Standard Books

Send 2c. in Stamps for Our New Book Catalogue, 80 Pages.

Our Book Department is the largest and most complete of its kind in the entire South.

We mention a few of our Standard and Religious Classics. Over 250 titles in this edition. Handsome bindings.

Our Price, 25c.
Postage 5c. Each.

Abbe Constantin.
Abide in Christ.
Black Rock.
Court ship of Miles Standish.
Evangeline.
In His Steps.
Imitation of Christ.
Kept For the Master's Use.
Light of Asia.
Little Lame Prince, The.
Marmion.
Mosses From An Old Manse.
Paradise Lost.
Reveries of a Bachelor.
Rip Van Winkle.
Scarlet Letter.
Silas Marner.
Sentimental Journey, A.
Tales From Shakespeare.
The Shepherd Psalm.
Tom Brown's School days.
Vicar of Wakefield.
Window In Thrums.

Write us for samples of anything you wish in the way of Dry Goods.

Miller & Rhoads, Richmond, Va.

SPECIAL EXCURSION TO HAVANA, CUBA.

Do not miss this opportunity to visit this beautiful and attractive island, as it will afford, not only the opportunity for you to make a delightful trip, but to the manufacturer of the South, will offer the additional opportunity to investigate the possibilities of Cuba with the view of developing their business in that country.

A personally conducted, special excursion to Havana, Cuba, January 4, 1905, from Washington, D. C., Richmond and Norfolk, Va., and intermediate points in the States of Virginia, North and South Carolina, will connect with the Peninsular and Occidental Steamship Company's steamer leaving Port Tampa, Fla., on the night of January 5, 1905.

The party will be limited to 150 persons, therefore reservations should be made promptly, in order to secure proper accommodations on the steamship "Olivette," the most commodious ship of the Peninsular and Occidental Steamship Company, which will convey the party to Havana.

Tickets will be limited for return passage on any steamer leaving Havana until January 19, 1905, with privilege of stopovers at any point in the State of Florida south of Jacksonville, within final limit of ticket, which will be January 22, 1905.

The rate, $15.40 from Raleigh, N. C., for the round trip includes meals and stateroom on the steamship.

Mr. A. W. Fritot will meet the party in Jacksonville and accompany them to Havana. Mr. Fritot speaks Spanish fluently and will place himself at the disposal of the party, furnishing any information desired.

Make up your party and go, and should you desire any other information, books, pamphlets, etc., on Cuba, or "What to say in Spanish and how to say it," address,

W. J. CRAIG, Gen'l Pass. Agent,
Wilmington, N. C.
H. M. EMERSON, Traffic Manager.

Arrest It—$50 Reward.

Upon receipt of 10 cents, a small sample bottle of Ec-zine will be sent to every reader of the Raleigh Christian Advocate who is suffering with any kind of skin disease or eruption—Eczema, Blind or Bleeding Piles, Blood Poison, Fever Sores, Cancer, Rheumatic Pains, or any other Germ disease or sore of any name or nature.

$50 reward will be paid for any case of Eczema that is not promptly cured with Ec-zine. Ec-zine will heal any sore or cure the worst skin and make it look like velvet. Thousands cured daily. Never mind what you have tried; forget the failures made by other remedies, and send for sample of Ec-zine which always gives relief and permanent cure. A $1.00 bottle often cures the worst cases. If your druggist does not have Ec-zine send direct to us. The Ec-zine Company, M. Kupermeier, Sales Agent, 112 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

Marriages

HAWKINS—BETTS. — At the home of the bride's parents in Belhaven, N. C., November 30, 1904, Mr. A. W. Hawkins to Miss Maggie M. Betts, H. M. Jackson officiating.

MINTZ — TART. — At the residence of Samuel Russ, November 23, 1904, Mr. Harry L. Mintz to Miss Mintra C. Tart. All of Brunswick County, N. C. Rev. N. H. Guyton officiating.

Obituaries

Obituaries containing not more than one hundred and fifty words are inserted free of charge. Those sending obituaries containing over one hundred and fifty words are requested to send with the obituary one cent for every word in excess. Unless this rule is observed the obituary must be cut down to the proper limit.

JONES.—Died in Harnett County, August 26, 1904, R. H. Jones, aged 36 years. He leaves a mother, three brothers and three sisters. Robert was a consistent member of the Methodist Church, South. We knew him well, have never seen a more Christlike person live.

DAVID McNEILL.

PERRY.—Mrs. Mary A. Perry, a member of Shiloh M. E. Church, South, Youngsville Circuit, a young wife, and the daughter of Mr. Lawrence and Mrs. Sue P. Alford, died at her home in Franklin County, on November 14, 1904, after a short but severe illness. To the bereaved ones the writer extends his sympathy.

PASTOR.

BEST.—Miss Sallie Lou Best, who had been active in church, Sunday-school and mission work for a long number of years, departed this life November 14, 1904, after a long, tedious and painful illness, at the age of 27 years. There is a vacant chair at home and a deeply felt vacancy among the workers of Shiloh Church, Youngsville Circuit. "She was never known in childhood, youth or womanhood to deviate in the least from strict veracity and filial obedience." When such a character leaves this world heaven seems to drop nearer and its ties become stronger and sweeter. Should we grieve at a translation so resplendent? Could we see beyond the veil, doubtless the mourning of her loved ones would be turned into joy, as they beheld her, infinitely happy, with extended hand, entreating them to fill her place in church and community. Sympathetically.

PASTOR.

SWINDELL. — Sister Julietta Swindell, wife of F. W. Swindell, was born August 18, 1850, and after a short illness, died in Belhaven, N. C., where she had lived for the past few years, May 5, 1904.

She leaves a husband and two daughters, Mrs. Jas. Cone and Miss Amie Swindell, to mourn the loss of a wife and mother. She embraced religion and joined the Methodist Church while in young womanhood, in Hyde County, N. C., and was true to all the claims of the Christian life and to those the church of her choice made of her. The impress of her godly life is seen in the Christian character of her two daughters she has left behind. She was a faithful and joyous participant in all the work of the church. Truly she was a good woman, leading a life, following which one would walk in this world like a child of God should walk. There were no uncertainties in her experiences—she knew Him whom she believed. We thank God for such Christian lives; they are the inspiration to others who are endeavoring to run the race set before them. May the blessings of God ever abide upon the stricken ones and bring them to the better world above, where they may say:

"Joy, joy, forever,
My task is done,
The gates are passed,
And Heaven is won."

H. M. JACKSON.

LAWS.—Miss Lizzie Laws was born in Orange County, April 16, 1881. When a girl fifteen years old she gave herself to God, joined the M. E. Church, South, and lived a consecrated Christian.

For some years her health was poor, and last summer she had a severe illness which brought her down to death's very door, but she did not fear or draw back, for she knew whom she had believed and was persuaded that He was able to keep that which she had committed unto Him. But God gave her a new lease on life, and with the approach of fall she began to prepare to go to Trinity Park School. Her sisters did not approve of her going, for they did not think her health and strength equal to the work, but she wanted to prepare herself for greater usefulness and felt if she died there she would die satisfied. She was getting on nicely until November 17th, when, without any warning, she was stricken with paralysis. She was not able to speak after she was taken, but gave her loved ones to understand that all was well. Monday night, four days after she was taken, she fell on sleep and awoke in eternity. Her remains were interred in the cemetery at Little River Church in Orange County, surrounded by a host of loved ones and friends.

Miss Lizzie will be greatly missed by us all, and while we mourn her loss, we are not as those without hope, for her pure life was such a life that will live forever. May God richly bless her father, sisters and other loved ones, and help them to be faithful till the end, as she was.

N. C. YEARBY.

Resolutions of Respect.

As members of Concord Church, Roxboro Circuit, Durham District, we desire to express our love for our departed sister, Mrs. Nannie E. Paylor, and to record our estimate of her virtues; therefore be it Resolved 1. That in the death of Sister Paylor the community loses one of its purest types of Christian womanhood, and our church and Sunday-school a loyal, consistent and valuable member.

2. That, though conscious of our loss, we bow in humble submission to the will of God.

3. That we extend to the bereaved family our heartfelt sympathy and pray God to be their comforter in sorrow and salvation in the life to come.

4. That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon our church minutes, a copy be sent to the bereaved family, and one to the Advocate, and Person County Courier, for publication.

(Signed)
D. L. MORTON,
MISS ALICE BROOKS,
MRS. C. T. WOOD,
MRS. J. H. HESTER,
C. T. WOOD,
Committee.

Office of the Board of Education of Hyde County.—Special Session. December 5, 1904.

Whereas, it has been made to appear to the Board that Joseph M. Watson, late Superintendent of Public Schools for Hyde County, has died since the last adjournment of this Board, and

Whereas, the members of this Board are deeply sensible that the cause of education has suffered an irreparable loss in his death, and

Whereas, this Board feels impelled to give expression to its own sense of the loss to this Board of his services and of his counsel as well as the loss to the public generally in the death of one who was so thoroughly enthusiastic in the building up of the public schools of the county and the State; now, therefore be it

Resolved 1. That in the death of the late J. M. Watson, Superintendent of Public Schools for Hyde County, the county and the State has lost a high-minded, progressive, useful public citizen.

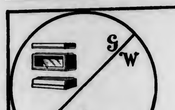
2. That the cause of education in Hyde County and in North Carolina has lost the services of a zealous, enthusiastic, conscientious and competent official.

3. That this Board has lost an intelligent, honest and thoroughly efficient Secretary.

4. That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of this Board, a copy be sent to the Raleigh Christian Advocate, the News and Observer, Washington Progress, and a copy to the family of the deceased.

CHAIRMAN COUNTY BOARD OF EDUCATION.
M. S. CREDLE.
Z. T. FORTESCUE.
W. P. BURRUS.
S. J. BECKWITH, Secretary.

For LaGrippe and Influenza use CHENEY'S EXPECTORANT.



ENDOWMENT

is all that is necessary to start a million-dollar library on the Globe-Wernicke plan of "Elastic" construction.

FOR SALE BY
ROYALL & BORDEN FURNITURE CO.
Cor. Wilmington & Hargett Sts., Raleigh.

..Dobbin & Ferrall..
(AT TUCKER'S STORE)
123-125 Fayetteville St.,
Raleigh, N. C.

OURS IS A
Big Holiday Store
UNTIL CHRISTMAS

Carrying such comprehensive stocks of all lines suitable for . . . . . .

CHRISTMAS GIFTS

that it will repay your coming personally to make your purchases. If not able to come, write and we will give your order prompt attention.

DOBBIN & FERRALL
123 and 125 Fayetteville St.

GOWAN'S PNEUMONIA CURE
Cures Throat and Lung Affections.

Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Congested Lungs, etc., should be treated at once as such affections are very liable, if neglected, to develop into Pneumonia or Consumption. Gowan's Pneumonia Cure is a safe, speedy and certain cure for all such conditions and the only known reliable remedy for Pneumonia. It is applied externally, gives immediate relief and effects a prompt and permanent cure.

Sold by all Good Druggists, $1 per bottle

Mr. M. M. Ansley, T. F. & P. A., Atlanta & West Point R. R., Atlanta, Ga., says: "I have used Gowan's Pneumonia Cure in my family and do not hesitate to say that for coughs, colds and croup, it has no equal. I would not feel safe without a bottle of it within easy reach."

Mr. E. H. Lea, Agent So. Ry., Richmond, Va., says: "I have used Gowan's Pneumonia Cure in my family with most gratifying results, especially for chest colds and coughs. I find it a most excellent remedy."

If your druggist cannot supply you, write to
Gowan Medical Co., Durham, N. C.

CROSS & LINEHAN CO.,
NEW TUCKER BUILDING.)
234-236 Favetteville St., RALEIGH, N. C.

LET US SHOW YOU WHAT THE FULL MEANING OF BARGAIN-GIVING MEANS IN . . . . . .

CLOTHING
AND GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS.

OUR NEW SPRING STOCK NOW READY FOR YOUR INSPECTION.

Cross & Linehan Co.,
Leading Clothiers.

Frisco System
Chicago & Eastern Illinois R. R.
FRISCO SYSTEM

Double Daily Trains
BETWEEN
St. Louis AND Chicago
MORNING AND EVENING.

From LaSalle Street, Station Chicago..... 9:50 a. m.—9:10 p. m.
From Union Station (Merchants Bridge) St. Louis..... 9:30 a. m.—9:40 p. m.

Morning or evening connection at both termini with lines diverging.
Equipment entirely new and modern throughout.
A DOUBLE TRACK RAILWAY.
Equipped with practical and approved safety appliances.
Substantially constructed.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of this Board, a copy be sent to the Raleigh Christian Advocate, the News and Observer, Washington Progress, and a copy to the family of the deceased.

CHAIRMAN COUNTY BOARD OF EDUCATION.
M. S. CREDLE.
Z. T. FORTESCUE.
W. P. BURRUS.
S. J. BECKWITH, Secretary.

How to Train Boys.

The experience of one mother in the rearing of her children cannot be very helpful to others, because temperament of children, and environment and conditions are never the same. Therefore, the "experience meeting" of mothers will be less helpful in home-making than receipts for making a cake. For making a cake, the recipe is simple and any housewife can get the ingredients and the result will be the same in any environment. But with children, the ingredients, so to speak, can never be alike in any two families, or, for that matter, even among children in the same family. But there is some similarity between cake-making and rearing children. At times both need to be stirred and well baked.

My girls were all boys and I know nothing that can be helpful to young mother who have girls, or both sexes, in the family. Lefta widow with three boys, all under seven years of age, the responsibility of rearing them weighed heavily upon me, and I felt all unequal to the duty, and sought and obtained direction and guidance from the God of the widow and the fatherless. Whatever of success rewarded my efforts, was due to a sincere desire on my part to bring up my boys "in the nurture and admonition of the Lord." Before they were old enough to walk I committed them to His care and sought in the Word the directions that would cause them "to remember their Creator in the days of their youth." I believed them—and believe as truly now—that the only safety is in teaching children from their earliest infancy to "seek first the kingdom of God and His rightcousness." Without divine aid, we may not hope to rear them so that they will acknowledge Him in all their ways and build their characters upon the only foundation that will stand amid the storms and temptations of youth and manhood. I felt that mere man-made admonitions, preached into the hearts of sons, would not be sufficient for them, and it was my daily prayer to see them put their trust and faith in the Saviour of mankind. But, though seeking to let them grow up in an atmosphere of dependence upon Providence, even for daily bread, I never felt that religion—the chiefest thing in life—was to drive out joy and happiness and cheerfulness, but to heighten them.

I would advise the young mothers to seek the directions of the Father of us all and then to give themselves to their children. By this, I mean, let nothing come between them and the keeping. Be with them as much as possible, find the highest happiness in their infant prattle, take deep interest in their play and sports, let them see and feel that you love them more than life, and kneed yourself in their hearts by becoming absorbed in whatever brings gladness into their lives, and to find your truest happiness in what gives them happiness. This does not imply that they are to have their own way, to be spoiled by indulgence, or for a mother to do for them what they ought to do for themselves. I think it is here that mothers err most—doing for their children the things they ought to be taught to do for themselves. They should be taught obedience and compelled to obey no matter how difficult it is to enforce it. It is easy to evade this duty, which is essential to development of character. Obedience, truthfulness and industry are the trinity of graces that should be cultivated with most diligence.

When boys are old enough to go to school, they are old enough to have daily tasks. Work is the best training they can get—regular work that puts responsibility upon the boys. In my own experience, it was necessary that my boys early understand the value of a dollar but if a mother has abundance of money she should still require the boy to have regular duties, not too heavy for his years, but enough to develop his character and a correct idea of how money comes. One of the worst things that can come to a boy is to have unlimited spending money It is a good thing for him to earn all he spends for his own pleasure It is equally important to see to it that he has time to play, for if his tasks at home deny him time to play with his schoolmates, his work will become irksome and he will feel that he is not treated justly No child should have the slightest ground ever to feel that he is denied the rights that belong to childhood, and plenty of time to play is an inherent right, and it is almost a crime to deny a child this right.

Boys must feel that home is the place for them, and they will not feel this if they are constrained at home. In my home my three boys knew that they and their friends were always welcome and that nothing was too good for them. They should not be restrained too much in their sports or expected not to make a noise. Romping and playing are natural to them, and in proper lines, should be encouraged.—Mary C. Daniels, Wilson, N. C., in Thanksgiving Number of News and Observer.

A FRIGHTENED HORSE,

Running like mad down the street dumping the occupants, or a hundred other accidents, are every day occurrences. It behooves everybody to have a reliable Salve handy, and there's none as good as Bucklen's Arnica Salve. Burns, Cuts, Sores, Eczema and Piles, disappear quickly under its soothing effect. 25c, at all druggists.

CHRISTMAS HOLIDAY RATES, SEASON 1904-1905.

The Atlantic and North Carolina Railroad have authorized sale of round-trip tickets at special excursion rates during the holidays.

Tickets will be sold to teachers and students, presenting certificate signed by the superintendent, principal or president of the various institutions of learning, December 17th to 21st, inclusive, 1904, with final limit January 8, 1905.

Tickets will be sold to the general public on December 23, 25, 31, 1904, and January 1, 1905, with final limit January 4, 1905.

These rates apply to all points in the States of North Carolina, Virginia, South Carolina and Georgia.

CHESTERFIELDIAN MANNERS

Mr. W. C. Cantrell, of Louisville, Ky., pays his compliments to Tetterine as follows: "I take off my hat to a 50 cent box of Tetterine. It has cured me of a skin disease, which doctors in seven States failed to cure." If you have any skin diseases try a box of Tetterine, and you will be as appreciative as Mr. Cantrell. It is infallible in its effects, fragrant and effective.

50 cents a box at druggists or by mail from the manufacturer, J. T. Shuptrine, Savannah, Ga.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY CHRISTMAS HOLIDAY EXCURSION FARES—1904-1905.

On account of the Christmas Holidays the Southern Railway announces the sale of round trip tickets from all stations on these lines, to points within the territory east of the Mississippi and south of the Ohio and Potomac Rivers.

Rate: One and one-third first-class standard one way fares for the round trip.

Tickets will be sold December 23, 24, 25 and 31, 1904, and January 1, 1905, with final limit January 4, 1905.

Holidays rates for students and teachers:

Tickets will be sold to teachers and students of universities and colleges and seminaries on presentation and surrender of certificates signed by the Superintendent, Principal or President thereof on December 17 to 24, inclusive, with final limit January 8, 1905.

For rates, schedules, etc., call on any agent of the Southern Railway or address.

T. E. GREEN, C. T. A.,
Raleigh, N. C.

BLYMYER CHURCH BELL FOUNDRY
BELLS OTHER THAN BLYMYER BELLS DO NOT GIVE SATISFACTION
Please mention this paper.

The Harmonized and Subject Reference New Testament.
BY REV. JAMES W. SHEARER.

"Very valuable arrangement of the text to give a clear, comprehensive view of our Lord's life and teachings, such as has not been before presented."—Dr. F. E. Clark, C. E. World.

"You have done the world a service in this work."—Dr. R. D. Wilson, Princeton Theological Seminary.

"A dollar book worth a hundred."—World Evangel, St. Louis.

"One of the best and most important ever prepared. There are several maps well prepared."—Herald Presbyter.

The Old Book, in modern print, made into a local, topical, harmonized and subject reference edition, by cross reference of numbered paragraphs with headings, arranged according to time, place, harmony and traced journeys.

Each number marks the same subject in all four Gospels. Reviewers declare it "unique," "graphic," "ingenious," "original," "satisfactory," "supplements revisers," "adds much-needed help," "fills a long-felt want," etc

REDUCED FOR CHRISTMAS PRESENTS, 662 pages, new indexes. Neat postpaid cloth, on receipt of price, $1.00. gilt, $1.25. Address Author of
THE SUBJECT REFERENCE CO.,
DELAWARE, NEW JERSEY.
BEST RATES TO AGENTS.

Fruit Trees.
Old Reliable Greensboro Nurseries, John A. Young, owner. We also raise fine Poland China and Mammoth Black Hogs, and fine Jersey Cattle. Agents wanted. Address
John A. Young,
GREENSBORO, N. C.

Cancers Cured.
We want every man and woman in the United States to know what we are doing.—We are curing Cancers, Tumors and Chronic Sores without the use of knife and are endorsed by the Senate and Legislature of Virginia. If you are seeking a cure come here and you will get it.
The Kellam Cancer Hospital,
Richmond, Va.

9 FOOT COTTON STALKS IN VIRGINIA.
Among the many strong evidences of the great value of "Cerealite" we cut the following from the Graphic, the local paper of Franklin, Va. The only other Fertilizer used under the cotton was "Home Fertilizer."
From the Franklin, Va., Graphic: "Mr. Albert Sidney Johnson, who is not only a good peanut buyer, but an expert farmer; for this latter fact is fully demonstrated by an exhibition of his cotton crop at the Graphic office this week. There were two stalks, one 9 feet high, with 60 bolls, the other 5 feet 10 inches, with 125 bolls, many additional blooms on either stalk. Who can beat this? The Fertilizer used was 'Cerealite Top-dressing,' one bag, 167 pounds to the acre." Write for circulars. For sale by Home Fertilizer Chemical Works, 923 N. Calvert St., Baltimore, Md.

CENTRAL ACADEMY
LITTLETON, N. C.
A Christian Home School for Boys and Young Men. Spring Term begins Jan. 4th, 1905. Charges very low. For further information address
REV. W. W. ROSE, Principal.

The Highsmith Hospital
(INCORPORATED.)
A General Hospital, centrally located on Green Street.
J. F. Highsmith, M. D., Surgeon and Specialist in the diseases of women. Assistants: J. Vance McGougan, M. D., Surgeon; J. A. McKethan, M. D., Specialist in the diseases of the eye, ear, nose and throat.

Modern appliances throughout; elevator, electric and gas light; water, heat, hot and cold shower baths and telephone service on every floor; electric call bells in all rooms; sound-deadening rubber treads and linoleum on stairways and halls, operating room second to none, well equipped chemical and microscopic laboratory with Static X-Ray Electric Machine in connection, giving unsurpassed facilities for treatment of the most difficult surgical cases.

Nurses' Home and Training School, under the supervision of Miss Maude Robertson, graduate of The Massachusetts General, of Boston, Mass., the McLean, of Waverly, Mass., and the Sloan Maternity, of New York, and recently head nurse of the surgical department of the Philadelphia Hospital.

The Cochran Annex, complete in furnishing and equipment, with endowed beds for both white and colored.

Domestic and Culinary Department under skilled housekeeper, faultless in sanitation, cleanliness and convenience.

For further information address
J. F. HIGHSMITH, M. D., Fayetteville, N. C.

Use NELLIE KING,

The Queen of High Grade Patent Flours

This fine Flour is manufactured from pure, soft, winter wheat in the very heart of the Famous Wheat Section of Middle Tennessee. For sale by all dealers.

TENNESSEE MILL CO., Estill Springs, Tenn.

Assessments for Warrenton District.

Enfield and Halifax.—Bishops, $9; F. M., $61; D. M., $46; Conf. C., 27; Ch. Ex., $24; Education, $30; P. and L., $3; Gen. Conf. Ex., $4; P. E., $52.

Northampton.—Bishops, $18; F. M., $115; D. M., $85; Conf. C., $50; Ch. Ex., $45; Education, $56; P. and L., $4; Gen. Conf. Ex., $7; P. E. 98.

Warrenton.—Bishops, $18; F. M., 115; D. M., $86; Conf. C., $51; Ch. Ex. $45; Education, $56; P. and L., $5; Gen. Conf. Ex., $7; P. E. 99.

Littleton.—Bishops, $18; F. M., $115; D. M., $85; Conf. C., $50; Ch. Ex., $45; Education, $56; P. and L., $4; Gen. Conf. Ex., $7; P. E., $98.

Rich Square.—Bishops, $13; F. M., $86; D. M., $64; Conf. C., $37; Ch. Ex., $34; Education, $42; P. and L., $3; Gen. Conf. Ex., $6; P. E., $73.

Conway.—Bishops, $14; F. M., $101; D. M., $75; Conf. C., $43; Ch. Ex., $39; Education, $49; P. and L., $4; Gen. Conf. Ex., $7; P. E., $85.

Murfreesboro.—Bishops, $11; F. M., $71; D. M., $53; Conf. C., $31; Ch. Ex., $28; Education, $35; P. and L., $3; Gen. Conf. Ex., $5; P. E., $61.

Harrellsville.—Bishops, $13; F. M., $86; D. M., $64; Conf. C., $37; Ch. Ex., $34; Education, $42; P. and L., $3; Gen. Conf. Ex., $6; P. E., $73.

Bertie.—Bishops, $14; F. M., $101; D. M., $75; Conf. C., $43; Ch. Ex., $39; Education, $49; P. and L., $4; Gen. Conf. Ex., $7; P. E., $85.

Williamston and Hamilton.—Bishops, $13; F. M., $86; D. M., $64; Conf. C., $37; Ch. Ex., $34; Education, $42; P. and L., $3; Gen. Conf. Ex., $6; P. E., $73.

Battleboro and Whitaker.—Bishops, $11; F. M., $71; D. M., $53; Conf. C., $31; Ch. Ex., $28; Education, $35; P. and L., $3; Gen. Conf. Ex., $5; P. E., $61.

Roanoke Rapids and Rosemary.—Bishops, $10; F. M., $64; D. M., $48; Conf. C., $28; Ch. Ex., $25; Education, $31; P. and L., $3; Gen. Conf. Ex., $4; P. E., $54.

Weldon.—Bishops, $17; F. M., $115; D. M., $86; Conf. C., $50; Ch. Ex., $45; Education, $56; P. and L., $4; Gen. Conf. Ex., $7; P. E., $98.

Roanoke.—Bishops, $11; F. M., $71; D. M., $53; Conf. C., $31; Ch. Ex., $28; Education, $35; P. and L., $3; Gen. Conf. Ex., $5; P. E., $61.

Hobgood.—Bishops, $5; F. M., $34; D. M., $25; Conf. C., $15; Ch. Ex., $13; Education, $17; P. and L., $2; Gen. Conf. Ex., $2; P. E., $29.

Scotland Neck.—Bishops, $4; F. M., $29; D. M., $22; Conf. C., $12; Ch. Ex., $11; Education, $14; P. and L., $1; Gen. Conf. Ex., $2; P. E., $25.

Henderson.—Bishops, $20; F. M., $129; D. M., $96; Conf. C., $56; Ch. Ex., $49; Education, $63; P. and L., $6; Gen. Conf. Ex., $8; P. E., $109.

Warren.—Bishops, $16; F. M., $102; D. M., $76; Conf. C., $44; Ch. Ex., $40; Education, $50; P. and L., $4; Gen. Conf. Ex., $7; P. E., $87.

Ridgeway.—Bishops, $18; F. M., $118; D. M., $88; Conf. C., $52; Ch. Ex., $46; Education, $57; P. and L., $4; Gen. Conf. Ex., $7; P. E., $100.

Garysburg.—Bishops, $15; F. M., $93; D. M., $68; Conf. C., $42; Ch. Ex., $36; Education, $44; P. and L., $5; Gen. Conf. Ex., $6; P. E., $79.

Each charge is required to raise for the Orphanage an amount equal to ten per cent of the pastor's salary.

G. F. SMITH, P. E.

E. A. THORNE, Secretary.

CHURCH MONEY EASILY RAISED by our method. For the sake of the advertising, it gives us, we let you have all the profit. For particulars address PEYER-NEAT-RICHARDSON Co. Wholesale Drugs, Louisville, Ky

Georgia saw mill men report great improvement in demand for lumber and have raised the price for coast-wise stock for 1905 one dollar per thousand feet.

Dr. Hunter, the boll weevil expert of the United States Department of Agriculture, was among those who addressed the cotton convention at Shreveport, La., and said the pest has caused a damage of $80,000,000.

FREE MEDICAL BOOKS TO THE SICK.

Dr. J. Newton Hathaway, of Atlanta, the author of eight valuable medical books on as many different diseases of the body, has just announced that he will send any one of the books free of charge to those afflicted. As Dr. Hathaway is the recognized authority on Chronic Diseases in this country, you can readily appreciate the value these b oks will be to you. His idea in sending them out free is to further acquain t those afflicted with his successful method of treati g the Chronic Diseases of men and women. His treatment for these diseases is based on 25 years of close study, during which time he has been connected with some of the leading hospitals of the world, where he was in position to study every form of the different diseases. He has been established in Atlanta for nearly eighteen years, and this alone is sufficient to convince the most skeptical of his reliability, without taking into consideration some of the marvelous cures he has effected.

Simply mention your disease and the right book will be immediately sent you. 1 Diseases of the vital organs; 2. Throat and lung troubles; 3. Female diseases; 4. Stricture; 5. Varicocele; 6. Blood poison; 7. Kidney, bladder and rheumatism; 8. Nervous debility If you do not suffer yourself, send him the name of some one that does. The address is J. NEWTON HATHAWAY, M. D., 84 Inman Building, Atlanta, Ga.

Stieff's Christmas Piano to be Donated Next Saturday Night.

Rev. Father Francis, Mr. W. C. Dowd, editor of the News, and Geo. Crater, business manager of the Observer, will see that all numbers are placed in a box and the first taken out by a child, blindfolded, gives holder of original an upright piano.

Books containing numbers will be locked in the office at 6 o'clock Saturday evening, December 24th, and no one allowed in office except above gentlemen until after contest is decided.

Name of party holding number will appear in these columns week following Christmas.

Stieff,

Manufacturer of the Piano with the sweet tone.

SOUTHERN WAREROOMS,

211-213 Tryon St.,

Charlotte, N. C.

C. H. Wilmoth, Manager.

CELATONE

"The Medicine that Makes You Forget the Pain."

For Headaches, Neuralgia, etc. Contains no Morphine, Chloral, Cocaine or other Narcotic Drugs.

FOR SALE BY YOUR DRUGGIST.

25c. Per Bottle.

King's Business College

(INCORPORATED.)

CAPITAL STOCK - - $30,000.

Learn Bookkeeping, Shorthand, Touch Typewriting, Penmanship and English. Not in a month—this cannot be done. Not free—you cannot get something for nothing but if merit appeals, we can convince you that KING'S is the best. Established and results of 20 years experience.

Reference: Every bank and leading business concern in Raleigh or Charlotte. Write for our College Journal and offers we are now making. Address,

KING'S BUSINESS COLLEGE,

Raleigh, N. C., or Charlotte, N. C.

HICKS' CAPUDINE CURES ALL HEADACHES.

IT'S LIQUID.

The perfect remedy for Colds, Indigestion, Periodic Pains, Brain Fag, etc. Prevents Train Nausea and Sick Headache. Braces the nerves. It's Harmless. Trial bottle 10c.

ACID IRON MINERAL

Registered A-I-M Trade Mark

Is a great natural remedy of wonderful curative power mined from a natural deposit. It cures all diseases, involving inflammation, by purifying the blood and directly healing the irritated parts Try it on an external sore and watch its magic healing. It acts in exactly the same way on all internal inflammation, such as Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Rheumatism, Kidney Disease, Stomach and Bowel Troubles. Numerous testimonials that it cures when all other remedies fail.

No equal for diseases peculiar to women. Tones up the entire system Four weeks treatment, or ly 50 cents If your druggist cannot supply you, write to

"Cured me completely of bladder trouble." Mrs. Nading, Winston, N. C. "For sores A. I. M., is worth its weight in gold." J. H. Davis, Beaufort, S. C. (Blood Poison.) "By use of A. I. M. I was cured in a few weeks." J. P. Wingard, Branchville, S. C.

ACID IRON MINERAL CO., J. H. Garst, Gen. Mgr., Salem, Va.

P. H. HALTIWANGER, Pres., Columbia, S. C.

THIS IS A

RED CEDAR PAIL..

That has seen twenty-two years of Hard Service and having been thoroughly repaired is now ready for 22 more.

MANUFACTURED ONLY BY

PREWITT-SPURR MFG. COMPANY,

NASHVILLE, TENNESSEE.

If your supply house does not carry them in stock, write us giving name of your Supply House.

There's Proof of Its Goodness in Every Cup of

PORTO RICO COFFEE

That's Not All

65 VALUABLE PREMIUMS See New List in Each Package FREE.

CHEEK & NEAL COFFEE COMPANY, Nashville, Tenn.

Cabbage Plants

Grown in the open air. Will stand any cold. Count guaranteed. Guaranteed headers. Seed grown by best seed houses in the business. I have now an unlimited supply. Any variety. Sold the largest half of the plants for cabbage crop in Virginia and North Carolina last year. Will give references if desired to anyone that used them last year.

Prices: in lots less than 5,000 $1 50 per thousand; less than 10,000 $1.25; large lots $1.00 per thousand, f. o b. Meggets, S C. Express rates about 20c. per thousand and less

I give coupons with each order guaranteeing count, and offering special inducements to all purchasers.

E. L. CUMMINGS,

MEGGETTS, S. C.

Charlotte business men subscribe one hundred thousand dollars for the erection of a hotel.

Virginia Dare

A POEM

BY REV. W. H. MOORE.

The very thing you are looking for as a Christmas or New Year's gift to a friend.

Price 50 Cents.

Order of the author,

PITTSBORO, N. C,

Cabbage Plants

All varieties. Hardy. Grown in open air. $1.50 per 1,000; 5,000 for $6.25; 10,000 for $10 00. Write

F. W. TOWLES,

Martins Point P. O., S. C.

When writing advertisers, please mention this paper.

ISSUE NOT PUBLISHED

END OF YEAR

NCDA&H

END

OF REEL