There could be no mistake about her being a fairy, even if she did happen to be the size of a little girl, for she had a fairy's golden curls and skimmed over the grass on the tips of her toes as if she were flying. She wore a soft fairylike frock with ruffles and she had a wreath of flowers in her hair.

"Look, Ted, she is bringing May flowers!" Helen whispered. The fairy had a basketful of the first wild violets and dandelions.

"She is going to trim the Maypole!" cried Ted.

It was true. From one streamer to the next the little stranger went, stopping at each one to take a tiny bouquet from her basket and fasten it to the end of the ribbon. She did not notice that the rest of the children from the primary class were arriving at the park, and Ted and Helen motioned to the first ones to join them in their hiding place among the trees.

"The fairy of the May is out there," Helen explained to them, "and we don't want to frighten her."

The boys were inclined to laugh, but when they saw the fairy with their own eyes they did not know what to think.

"There is an extra ribbon for her," Helen said, "and we don't know how it happened to be there."

But just then the children heard a loud crash of music from the hurdy-gurdy that was going to play for them at the party that afternoon.

"Come, children," called Miss Donald, who had arrived too, "we will take hold of the streamers and dance round the Maypole in time to the music." So the children flocked round her eagerly, but the fairy of the May had disappeared.

"What pretty little bouquets of flowers, and how thoughtful of you to trim the Maypole with them!" said Miss Donald when she saw the violets and dandelions. "Did the little girls of the class make them?"

"Oh, no, we didn't make them, Miss Donald," answered Helen; "the fairy brought them and pinned one to each ribbon."

"That is her ribbon," Ted said, pointing to the extra pink streamer that hung down by the Maypole.

"We watched her putting the flowers on," added Helen.

"I had never seen a fairy before," Ted said soberly.

"Edward Fairchild, what do you mean?" asked Miss Donald. "Of all the children in our primary class you are the very last one to see fairies!"

"There she is now," cried Ted, "hiding behind that bush. Can you see her?"

Miss Donald went over to see the fairy for herself—softly so as not to make her fly away—and the fairy seemed to like her, for she did not even try to run. In a very few moments Miss Donald came back and the fairy with her. The fairy's hair was blown out like a gold crown about her head, and her ruffles were as soft as wings, and her sunny face was all laughter.

"She is a fairy, a good fairy," Miss Donald explained to the wondering children. "She and her mother picked all these lovely flowers for our party because where they used to live there are always flowers on the Maypoles."

Now she lives in the little house at the entrance to the park, for her father is the new gatekeeper. She saw our Maypole and wanted to help with our good time."

Ted gallantly led Joan, the fairy, to her pink ribbon. The hurdy-gurdy began to play, and the children were ready to wind up their streamers.

But Helen wanted to ask a question first. "How did it happen that there was an extra ribbon on the Maypole for Joan?" she asked Miss Donald. "Do you suppose it was the real fairies that put it there?"—Youth's Companion.

Girls Beware.

Little Alice: "Why do you grease the chicken's heads, mama?"

Mama: "To kill the lice, darling."

Little Alice (after a moment's hesitation): "Well then, I'm going to stay away from Bill."

—Trinity Archive.

WEAVER PIANOS

"Oh, Promise Me."

MOONLIGHT, soft breezes of summer and the magic of an old love song! What a wealth of memories are stirred.

It is in such music that the voice of the Weaver Piano comes into its own, because its soft, singing tones bring out every subtle shade of the melody.

And when the mood changes, the Weaver is ready. Its crashing chords can thunder and roll with mighty volume; it responds to the brilliant technique of the expert.

Back of the superb tone quality of the Weaver lies the experience of fifty years devoted to the building of musical instruments. The conscientious effort of skilled artisans to make perfect pianos. The unstinted use of the finest materials obtainable.

Hear this piano played. Examine it in every detail. Then you will begin to realize why it has received the enthusiastic endorsement of the world's leading professional musicians and music lovers.

Catalog on request

WEAVER PIANO CO., Inc.

Factory and General Offices: York, Pa.

Weaver, York and Livingston Pianos and Player Pianos

BOILS Old Sores, Cuts and Burns have been healed since 1820 with

Gray's Ointment

Sold by all druggists. Write for sample to W. F. Gray & Co., 710 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

Kill All Flies! THEY SPREAD DISEASE

Placed anywhere, DAISY FLY KILLER attracts and kills all flies. Nest, clean, ornamental, convenient and cheap. Lasts all season. Made of metal, can't spill or tip over; will not soil or injure anything. Guaranteed.

DAISY FLY KILLER at your dealer or 5 by EXPRESS, prepaid, $1.25.

HAROLD SOMERS, 150 De Kalb Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Individual Cups

Over 40,000 churches use the Thomas Service. Clean and sanitary. Write now for Catalog and Special Trial Offer.

Thomas Communion Service Co. Box 141 Lima, Ohio.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM

REMOVES DANDRUFF STOPS HAIR FALLING

Has been used with success for more than 40 years

RESTORES COLOR AND BEAUTY TO GRAY AND FADED HAIR

60¢ & $1.00 at all druggists

HISCOX CHEMICAL WORKS PATCHOQUE, N. Y.

When washing hair, always use Floresten Shampoo

ART GLASS for Churches and Residences

Memorial Windows

Catalog and Special Designs free on request

F. J. COLEDGE & SONS ATLANTA, Ga.

HYMN BOARDS

of the very best quality supplied at very reasonable cost by

LAMAR & BARTON Nashville, Dallas, Richmond San Francisco

HYMNS 234
65 38
189
PSALTER 12

WOMAN'S PAGE

(Continued from page eight)

counties met in a group meeting. A most cordial welcome was extended to visitors by the ladies of Windsor auxiliary and their pastor, Rev. B. F. Boone.

After the devotional exercises and the address of welcome the greater part of the morning session was spent in the discussion and organization of the county units.

A most tempting lunch was served by Windsor auxiliary.

The afternoon session was made very interesting by the presentation of "What a Missionary Society Should Be." This was followed by an outline of "What a Missionary Society Should Be," by Miss Amma Graham, our district secretary.

Then Miss May Edla Smith in her usual pleasing and impressive manner gave us a very inspiring talk. She stressed the need of individual consecration and made an earnest appeal for willing workers. A special feature of the program was the special music rendered by members of the Windsor auxiliary.

Each one felt as she left that it had indeed been a pleasant and profitable day, and much inspiration had been gained which we could carry back to our auxiliaries. Mrs. Alvah Early, Rec. Sec.

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORK

(Continued from page nine)

Kate Whisnant, Mrs. W. J. Wolfe. Junior Organization and Administration, Miss Virginia Jenkins, instructor—Mrs. J. A. Anthony, Mrs. W. A. Abernethy, Mrs. Clara Buchanan, Mrs. M. P. Coley, Miss Clara Bell Lever, Mrs. Rush Thompson, Miss Vivian Wolfe.

Primary Organization and Administration, Miss Marie McDonald, instructor—Miss Bessie Clark, Mrs. F. D. Edwards, Miss Mary Gidney, Miss Verta Hendricks, Mrs. J. H. Hull, Mrs. R. Hambrick, Miss Lizzie May Lee, Mrs. L. L. Outen, Miss Eunice Roberts, Miss Ruth Roberts, Mrs. F. R. Sanders, Miss Ola Whisnant.

When prayers have been denied, the denials were not losses, but gains. The refusal was not in anger but in tender mercy and loving kindness. Ah! if we know, how glad and grateful we should be that many an appeal has been refused and many a request denied!—J. G. Bowran.

In Elevating Your Daughter's Ideals

In building her moral character, in encouraging and shaping the development of her intellectuality and mental capacity, in developing her physique—consider the advantages of the efficiency of

QUEENS COLLEGE

A college of Christian ideals, modern equipment, beautiful plant. Faculty consists of two Ph.D.'s, four M.A.'s, and a number of other highly trained specialists. For catalogue address, Rev. Wm. H. FRAZER, D. D., President, Box 300, Charlotte, N. C.

GREENSBORO COLLEGE

The A-Grade Woman's College of the Two Methodist Conferences of North Carolina

Rated by State Department of Education as Class A.

Chartered 1838. Confers the degree of A. B. in the literary department and B. M. in the music department.

In addition to our regular classical course, special attention is called to the departments of Home Economics, Expression, Art, Education, Sunday School Teacher Training, Piano Pedagogy, and to our complete School of Music.

Modern New $50,000.00 Dormitory completed 1918. Conservatory of Music costing about $170,000 completed 1922.

Fall Semester begins September 5, 1923. For further information apply to DR. S. B. TURRENTINE, President, Greensboro, N. C.

PEACE INSTITUTE

RALEIGH, NORTH CAROLINA

For Young Women Established 1857

College Courses. Preparatory Courses for Standard College Requirements. Diplomas in Piano, Voice, Art, Expression and Home Economics. Commercial-Secretarial Course. Teacher Training Course. Specialists in all departments.

LULA B. WYNNE HALL, HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

MARY OWEN GRAHAM, President

1802

1923

LOUISBURG COLLEGE

A Junior College for Young Women With a Standard Preparatory Course of Four Years Property of North Carolina Conference

Faculty of specially trained, consecrated Christian teachers.

Health Record Unsurpassed. Home-like Atmosphere. Social Life Carefully Guarded. Athletics.

In addition to the regular college courses, Classical and General, attention is called to the departments of Art, Business, Education, Expression, Home Economics, Music (Piano, Voice, Violin, Theory, etc.), and Religious Education.

Rates as low as consistent with good service. Send for free Catalogue and Book of Views. For further information write

A. W. MOHN, PRESIDENT, LOUISBURG, N. C.

Do You Love the Companionship of a Log Fire?

GOOD FOOD

After a day of study and recreation

Then you'll enjoy Life at the Mission Building

Dates Available: For Guests July 1 to 25 Aug. 27 to Sept. 30

Board of Missions Training School, July 28 to August 10 Travels Meeting of Laymen, August 12-15
Southern Epworth League, August 15-16

We will operate during September provided a sufficient number register by August 15th.

For rates write W. M. CASSETTY, Jr., P. O. Box 510, Nashville, Tenn.

After July 1st, Manager of the Mission Building, Lake Junaluska, N. C.

LOG FIRE AT MISSION BLDG.

MRS. S.F. BARRETT IN CHARGE

PRESIDING ELDERS APPOINTMENTS

Western North Carolina Conference

ASHEVILLE DISTRICT H. C. Sprinkle, P. E. THIRD ROUND

June Summer School Trinity College..6-15 Mars Hill, Bright Hope, 11 ..16-17 Elk Mountain, 7:30 ..17 Weaverville Station, 8 ..18 Spring Creek, Baldwins, 11.....23-24

July Leicester, Grace, 11 ..30 & 1 Black Mountain, 7:30 ..1 Central, 11 ..7-8 Hot Springs, Antioch, 11 ..14-15 Marshall, 7:30 ..15 Sandymush, Big Sandy, 11 ..21-22 Weaverville Ct., Pleasant Grv, 11, 28-29 West Asheville, 7:30 ..29

August Henderson, Fruitland, 11 & 7:30...4-5 East Biltmore, 11 ..5 Chestnut St., 7:30 ..6 Rosman, Rosman, 11 & 7:30...11-12 Brevard, 11 ..12

CHARLOTTE DISTRICT J. B. Craven, P. E., 413 Central Ave., Charlotte, N. C.

June Thrift-Moores, Pleasant Grove, 2...10 S. S. Institute, 3 ..10 Polkton, Mt. Vernon, 11 & 3 ..16-17 Peachland, Hopewell, 3 & 11...16-17 Wadesboro, 8 ..17 Prospect, Bethlehem, 11 ..23-24 Chadwick, 8 ..24

GREENSBORO DISTRICT W. F. Wombie, P. E., 508 Summit Ave., Greensboro, N. C. THIRD ROUND

June Coleridge, Mt. Olivet ..9-10 Ramseur-Frankl'v. Ramseur, night 10 Uwharrie, Union ..16-17 New Hope, Eleazer, 3 ..16-17 Ashboro, night ..17 Wentworth, Bethlehem ..23-24 Reidsville, night ..24

July Pleas. Garden, Rehobeth, 11&3, 30 & 1 Spring Garden, 11 ..1

MARION DISTRICT Z. Paris, P. E., Marion, N. C. THIRD ROUND

June Marion Ct., Pleasant Grove, 11...17 Marion Mills, Marion Mills, 7:30...17 Mill Springs, Lebanon, 11 ..23-24 North McDowell, N. Catawba, 2...27 Micaville, 11 ..30

July Spruce Pine, 11 ..1 Bald Cre & Bald Creek, 11 ..7 Burnsville, 11 ..8

MOUNT AIRY DISTRICT J. H. West, P.E., Box 422, 1t. Airy, N.C. THIRD ROUND

June Stokesdale, Glencoe ..16-17 Summerfield, Center ..17-18 Mt. Airy Ct., Beulah ..23-24 West Davie, Callahan, 3 ..30

July Yadkinville, Center ..30 & 1 Danbur ..7-8 Sandy Ridge, 3 ..8 Ararat, Carter's Chapel ..14-15

NORTH WILKESBORO DISTRICT J. W. Williams, P. E., Jefferson, N. C. SECOND ROUND

June Avery, Mt. Zion ..16-17 Elk Park, Newland ..23-24 The district conference will be held at North Wilkesboro May 30-31, with the opening sermon May 29, at 7:30 p. m.

SALISBURY DISTRICT T. F. Marr, P. E., Salisbury, N. C. THIRD ROUND

June Mt. Pleasant, Mt. Pleasant, 11...9-10 Kerr St., 7:30 ..10 Norwood Ct., 11 ..16-17 Norwood, 7:30 ..17 Harmony, Concord, 11 ..24 Westford, 7:30 ..24

July Spencer, Central, 11 ..1 China Grove, 7:30 ..1 The district conference will be held at Gold Hill July 6-8.

SHELBY DISTRICT H. H. Jordan, P. E., Gastonia, N. C. THIRD ROUND

June Lincoln Ct., 11 ..16-17 Trinity, 7:30 ..17 Lowesville, New Hope, 11 ..23-24 Stanly, Trinity, 2:30 ..24 Ranlo, 7:30 ..24

July Dallas, Hardin, 11 ..1 Cramerton, 7:30 ..1 Bessemer, 11 ..8 King's Mt., 7:30 ..8 Franklin Ave., 7:30 ..11 Belmont, Main St., 11 ..15 Belmont, Park St., 7:30 ..15

STATESVILLE DISTRICT D. M. Litaker, P.E., 240 Walnut Street, Statesville, N. C. THIRD ROUND

June Statesville, Broad St., 11 & 8...17-18 Mooresville, Broad St., 8 ..17 Mooresville, Central, 11 ..25 Mooresville, Jones Mem., 3 ..25

July South Lenoir, Harpers, 11 ..1 Lenoir Ct., Laurel, 3 ..1 Hudson, Whitnel, 8 ..1

WAYNESVILLE DISTRICT R. S. Howie, P. E., Waynesville, N. C. THIRD ROUND

June Judson Ct., Maple Springs, 11...9 Webster Ct., Webster, 11 ..10 Sylva Station, 8 ..10 Fine's Creek Ct., Cataloochee, 11...16 Haywood Ct., Fincher's Chapel 11..17 Jonathan Sta., Hemphill, 11. ..24 Junaluska-Clyde Ct., Maple Grv, 4..24 Robbinsville Ct., Trinity, 11...30

July Andrews Station, 11 ..1 Murphy Ct., 4 ..1 Hiwassee Ct., Martin's Creek, 11.. 7 Hayesville Ct., Tusquitie, 11...8 Murphy Station, 8 ..8 Shoal Creek Ct., Raven's Ford, 11..15 Bryson-Whittier Ct., Ela, 4 ..15 Franklin Ct., River View, 11...21 Macon Ct., Maiden's Chapel, 11...22 Franklin Sta., Carson's Chpl, 4...22 Glenville Ct., Glenville, 11 ..28 Highlands Ct., Dryman's Chpl, 11..29

WINSTON-SALEM DISTRICT W. A. Newell, P. E., 1084 West Fourth Street, Winston-Salem, N. C. THIRD ROUND

June Thomasville Ct., Pleasant Hill, 11..9-10 Thomasville Main St., Main St.,ngt.10 Oak Ridge, Oak Ridge, 11...17 Kernersville, Bunker Hill, 3...17 Walkertown, Walkertown, night ..17 Lewisville, Concord, 11 ..23-24 Lexington, Lexington, night ..24

North Carolina Conference

ELIZABETH CITY DISTRICT C. E. Culbreth, P.E., Elizabeth City, N.C. THIRD ROUND

June Perquimans, Winfall ..9-10 Hertford, night ..10 Edenton, 11 ..10 Currituck, Hebron ..16-17 Belhaven & Pantego, Belhaven..23-24

July Pasquotank, Mt. Hermon...30 & 1

FAYETTEVILLE DISTRICT R. H. Willis, P. E., Fayetteville, N. C. THIRD ROUND

June Hay Street, morning ..10 Person St. & Calvary, Gardner's Chapel, p. m. ..10 Bladen, Center ..16-17 Marners, Spring Hill ..23-24 Fayetteville, St. Andrews ..22-24 Parkton, Marvin ..27 Pittsboro, Chatham ..29

July Siler City, Hickory Mountain..30 & 1 Buckhorn, Merry Oaks ..6 Haw River, Ebenezer ..7-8 Newton Grove, Maple Grove...14-15 Duke, Angier, night ..15 Dunn ..18 Hemp, Mt. Carmel ..20 Glendon, Carabonton ..21-22 Carthage, Doubs ..22-23 Jonesboro, Memphis ..28-29 Sanford ..29-30

August Goldston, Maronie ..4-5 Elizabeth, Wesley's Chapel ..8 Stedman, Bethabara ..10-12 Roseboro, Hall's ..11-12

NEW BERN DISTRICT F. M. Shamburger, P.E., New Bern, N.C. THIRD ROUND

June New Bern, Centenary, 11 ..17 New Bern, Riverside, night ..17 Straits Ct., Harker's Island, 11...19 Goldsboro Ct., Pine Forest, 11..23-24 Elm St. & Pikeville, Elm St., night 24 Bridgeton Ct., Reelsboro, 11 ..28 Pamlico Ct., Alliance, 11 ..29

July Grifton Ct., Grifton, 11...30 & 1 Snow Hill Ct., Tabernacle, 11...3 Hookerton Ct., Rainbow, 11 ..4 Kinston, Queen St., night ..4 Kinston, Caswell St., night ..5 Jones Ct., Shady Grove, 11 ..6-8 Newport Ct., Harelock, 11 ..10 La Grange Ct., Seven Spgs, 11...12 Mt. Olive Ct., Providence, 11...14-15 Mt. Olive & Calypso, Calypso, ngt 13-15 Beaufort, 11 ..22 Morehead City, night ..22 St. Paul, Goldsboro, 11 ..29 St. John, Goldsboro, night ..29

RALEIGH DISTRICT J. C. Wooten, P. E. THIRD ROUND

June Cary, Fuquay Springs, 11 ..10 Garner, Holland's, 11 ..16 Oxford Ct., Bethel, 11 ..16-17 Oxford, 8 ..17 Millbrook, Oakey Grove, 11 ..23 Kenley, Buckhorn, 11 ..23-24 Selma, 8 ..24

July Granville, Calvary, 11 ..30 & 1 Tar River, Ebenezer, 11 ..7-8 Central, 8 ..11 Youngsville, Bunn, 11 ..14-15 Louisburg, 8 ..15 Edenton St., 8 ..18 Creedmoor, Grove Hill, 11 ..21-22 Jenkins Memorial, 8 ..24 Clayton, 8 ..25 Four Oaks, Sanders, 11 ..28 Benson, 11 ..29 Smithfield, 8 ..29

August Princeton, Fellowship, 11 ..26

WASHINGTON DISTRICT S. A. Cotton, P. E., Washington, N. C. THIRD ROUND

June Elm City ..16-17 Wilson, First Church ..17 Rocky Mt. Ct., 3 ..18 Rocky Mt., Cralk St., night ..18 McKendry Ct., McKendry ..23-24 Tarboro, night ..24 Ayden, night ..25 Grimesland, Simpson, 11 ..26

July Robersonville, Stokes ..1 Bethel, night ..1 Fremont, 11 ..5 Stantonsburg, night ..5 Calvary, Barefoot's Chapel, 11...15 Bailey ..15-16 Aurora, Warrens, 11 ..18 South Rocky Mt., night ..20 Springhope ..21-22 Nashville, night ..22 Rocky Mt., First Ch., night ..23 Vanceboro ..28-29

August Swan Quarter, Sladesville ..4-5 Mattamuskeet Ct., 11 ..6 Fairfield, night ..7 Bath Ct. ..11-12 Washington, night ..12 Greenville, 11 ..19-20 Farmville, night ..19

ROCKINGHAM DISTRICT J. H. Shore, P. E., Rockingham, N. C. THIRD ROUND

June Lumberton Ct., Pine Grove ..15 Robeson, McKendree ..16-17 Vass, Johnson's Grov. ..23-24 Biscoe, Candor ..29 Montgomery, Flint Hill ..30

July Troy ..1-2 West End, Pleasant Hill ..7-8 Aberdeen ..8-9 Raeford, Parker's ..14-15 Red Springs ..15-16 Caledonia, Caledonia ..20 Rowland, Asbury ..21-22 Maxton ..28-29

WELDON DISTRICT S. E. Mercer, P. E., Weldon, N. C. THIRD ROUND

June Summer School Trinity College...10

(All preachers urged to attend.) Warrenton Ct., Warren Plains, 11..16 Littleton Station, 11 ..17 Halifax Ct., Calvary Church, 3:30..17 Northna Ct., Zion Church, 11 ..23-24 Battle' o and Whitakers, Mc-Tiere's, 11 ..30

WILMINGTON DISTRICT J. M. Daniel, P. E., 519 Grace Street, Wilmington, N. C. THIRD ROUND

June Wallace-Rose Hill, Wallace, a.m...9-10 Wilmington, Epworth, p.m...10 Jacksonville-Richlands, Haw Branch, a.m. ....16-17 Burgaw, Zion, a.m. ....23 Wilmington Ct., Federal Pt., a.m...24 Wilmington, Fifth Ave., p.m...24 Swansboro, Stella, a.m. ....29

July Maysville, Belgrade, a.m...30 & 1 Southport, Southport, a.m...8 Carver's Creek, Bladen Spgs., a.m...13 Hallsboro, Wannanish, a.m. ....14-15 Whiteville, Whiteville, p.m. ....15 Chadbourn, Cerro Gordo, a.m...20 Old Dock, Bethel, a.m...21-22 Tabor, Clarendon, p.m. ....22 Scott's Hill, Union, a.m. ....26 Town Creek, Piney Grove, a.m...27 Shallotte, Union, a.m. ....28-29 Wilmington, Castle St., p.m...29

District conference will convene at Swansboro on June 26, 1923. Opening sermon at 8 p. m. Business sessions 9 o'clock, 27-28. Delegates will get off at Jacksonville. All visitors will notify Rev. T. W. Siler, Swansboro.

Practical training in bookkeeping, shorthand, typewriting, banking, accounting and penmanship in the Greensboro Commercial School, Greensboro, N. C., will assure you of a well paying position. Students are enrolling weekly. Write for Catalog.

Advertisement for Nujol. Headaches Are Usually Due to Constipation. When you are constipated, not enough of Nature's lubricating liquid is produced in the bowel to keep the food waste soft and moving. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it acts like this natural lubricant and thus secures regular bowel movements by Nature's own method—lubrication. Nujol is a lubricant—not a medicine or laxative—so cannot gripe. Try it today. Nujol A LUBRICANT—NOT A LAXATIVE Manfr's Tents, Awnings, Paulins, Gospel Tents a specialty. We rent Tents, Oldest Tent Company in the South.

M. D. SMITH
TENT AND
AWNING CO., 136 1/2 Marjetta St., Atlanta, Ga.

School Desks, Opera Chairs, Folding Chairs, Kindergarten Chairs, Church Pews, School Supplies, Blackboards

Southern Desk Co., Hickory, N. C.

Church Furniture
WORK OF THE HIGHEST QUALITY AT REASONABLE PRICES

Write for Catalogue
BUDDE & WEIS MFG. CO.
JACKSON, TENNESSEE

Sure Relief

BELL-ANS FOR INDIGESTION 25 CENTS

6 BELL-ANS Hot water Sure Relief

BELL-ANS FOR INDIGESTION

Take

Calotabs
TRADE MARK REG

for the liver

Beware of imitations. Demand the genuine in 10c and 35c packages bearing above trade mark.

World's Best Roofing at Factory Prices

"Reo" Cluster Metal Shingles, V-Crimp, Corrugated, Standing Seam, Painted or Galvanized Roofings, Sidings, Wallboard, Paints, etc., direct to you at Rock-Bottom Factory Prices. Positively greatest offer ever made.

Edwards "Reo" Metal Shingles
cost less; outlast three ordinary roofs. No painting or repairs. Guaranteed rot, fire, rust, lightning proof. Send for samples and free roofing book.

Edwards Ready Made Buildings
Send for the Edwards Catalog of "Superior" Ready-Made Buildings, showing a complete line of houses, bungalows, barns, wood garages, poultry houses, etc., all at money-saving factory prices. These buildings are not merely "ready-cut" but actually ready built, and represent a wonderful money-saving.

READY MADE

Let Edwards Save You Money

Be Sure to State Which Books You Want—Roofing and Free Samples; Ready-Made Buildings; or Metal Garages. Postal or letter brings one or more of them FREE.

Free Roofing Book
Get our wonderfully low prices and free samples. We sell direct to you and save you all in-between roofing profits. Ask for Book No. 2272

LOW PRICED GARAGES
Lowest prices on Ready-Made Fire-Proof Steel Garages. Set up any place. Send postal for Garage Book showing styles.

FREE Samples & Roofing Book

THE EDWARDS MFG. CO., 2323-2373 Pike St., Cincinnati, O.

OUR ORPHANAGE WORK
(Continued from page eleven.)

ing place. Our children gave two plays which were enjoyed by the Rotarians.

* * * *

I want to ask that the friends of the Methodist Orphanage unite in earnest prayer that a way may be opened for the erection of more buildings on the Orphanage campus. It seems heartless to stand still when the orphan's cry is heard throughout the bounds of the conference. Something must be done at once if we are to measure up to our high and holy mission. We need several buildings NOW. Dear friends, may I urge you to join me in earnest prayer that God may open the way for us to secure these needed buildings!

* * * *

The Orphanage commencement is drawing near. The nineteenth of June has been set for the annual meeting of the board of trustees, at which time the senior class will graduate. We have fourteen in the class and twelve of them are planning to go to college, and the other two members expect to specialize by taking short courses. Through the generosity of Bro. S. C. Vann and a number of organized Sunday school classes our high school boys and girls will have the privilege of attending college.

* * * *

Last week's newspaper carried an interesting item to the effect that Mr. Holt, of Burlington, is going to donate a new building for St. Mary's College. This is a commendable gift and will serve a great purpose. There is no better way to invest money than by putting it where it will build Christian character. There are many Methodists in our conference who might donate buildings to the Methodist Orphanage and help to relieve the pressure which we are now experiencing. I trust that these suggestions will be taken seriously and that prompt action will follow.

* * * *

At the urgent invitation of the pastor of Princeton and the presiding elder of the Raleigh district, our singing class gave a sacred concert at Princeton on Thursday of the Raleigh district conference. A large and appreciative audience greeted him. Through the kindness of Bro. W. W. Peele and the friends of Edenton Street and Central churches, our children were conveyed to and from Princeton. In the afternoon our baseball team played the Princeton team and won a great victory, 21 to 1. Many of the preachers and delegates witnessed the game. Success and victory, with honor, are being instilled into the minds and hearts of our boys and girls.

* * * *

The executive committee shares the feeling with the superintendent that we must enlarge our Orphanage so that we may better meet the demands which the conference is making upon us. There has been but one dormitory built within ten years. Some other buildings have been erected, but just one for the accommodation of children. Many of our preachers and laymen are beginning to feel impatient because we are not making larger provision for the admission of children who ought to be trained under our care. Every year scores and scores are being turned away and left adrift in the world. We are not measuring up to our duty toward those who have a right to look to us for succor and home. It is sincerely hoped that some plan may be devised at our annual meeting of the board of trustees by which we may make provision for the hundreds of children who are looking to us for all that fatherhood and motherhood imply. Shall we continue to turn a deaf ear to those distressing appeals? God forbid!

N. C. State College of Agriculture and Engineering
SUMMER SESSION JUNE 12th to JULY 25th

Courses for Teachers holding standard State Certificates, and for graduates of Standard High Schools. Courses giving College Credit for graduates of Standard High Schools. Cotton Classing courses. Catalogue upon application. Number limited to 1050. Apply for Reservation at once to

W. W. WITHERS, Director :: :: Raleigh, North Carolina

BINGHAM MILITARY SCHOOL
ASHEVILLE, N. C.—"The Land of the Sky"

Has stood the tests of 130 years. Buildings one-story brick—for safety, sanitation and service. Each pupil carefully studied. Small classes allow individual attention. Ideal school life, of the simpler type, directed by men of ability and experience. R. O. T. C. Unit under U. S. Army officer. All forms of athletics.

COL. R. BINGHAM, Supt. Emeritus. COL. S. R. McKEE, Supt.

Blue Ridge School For Boys
HENDERSONVILLE, N. C.

A select home school on Accredited List, offering to a limited number of boys, from 9 to 20 years old, a more intensive system of training than public schools can give. Ideally located in healthful, invigorating climate, conducive to study. Each boy's personality carefully studied and directed by efficient teaching staff composed of virile, patriotic men with successful teaching careers. A teacher for every seven or eight boys insures individual attention in studies. Boys taught HOW TO STUDY. All branches of athletics directed and supervised by able instructors.

High moral tone; cultured, homelike environments; parental discipline. Total charge for session, September 18 to June 4, $650. Summer term, July and August. For catalog, address

J. R. SANDIFER, Headmaster, Hendersonville, N. C.

FASSIFERN
A HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Is situated on a plateau over two thousand feet above sea level and completely surrounded by the majestic Appalachian mountains, in the city of Hendersonville, N. C., far-famed for its year-round delightful and health-giving climate. Fassifern offers thorough preparatory courses both for entrance to colleges of highest rank and professional work. Teachers have A. B. and M. A. degrees from the following colleges and universities: Columbia University; Smith, Wellesley and Goucher Colleges; Tulane University. Next session opens September 26, 1923.

MISS KATE C. SHIPP, Principal :: HENDERSONVILLE, N. C.

At the Close of a Beautiful Life

When the last opportunity presents itself to pay homage and respect—it is well to remember that the perpetuation of that memory, the commemoration of that life, should befittingly bear testimony of its best characteristics; should appropriately portray as well as perpetuate the qualities that were so beautiful in life.

Specify Winnsboro Blue Granite

Its flawless beauty, massive strength, rugged durability and striking contrasts appropriately perpetuate the memory of life's greatest virtues.

Monuments Maintain Memories

Winnsboro Granite Corporation
Kion, S. C.

IN MEMORIAM

JAMISON—Mrs. Louisiana Jamison, wife of S. C. Jamison, would have been 70 years old July 23, but at Long's Sanitorium, Statesville, N. C., on April 13, 1923, her spirit took its flight.

Rev. W. E. Poovey conducted the funeral service at Pleasant Hill church, near Nebo, N. C., where she had been a loyal member for over 40 years, and her body was placed in the church cemetery. A husband, eight children, twenty grandchildren, a sister, a brother (J. O. Roberts of Nebo, N. C.,) and a host of friends are left bereaved. May God's grace be abounding in this time of need.

P. H. Brittain, P. C.

WILLIAMS—Mrs. Daisy Mae Williams died May 10, 1923, and was laid to rest in the cemetery at Fairmont, N. C.

Sister Williams suffered much during the last six months of her life. She wanted to get well. Everything was done for her that could be done, but she could not live. She was not afraid to die, but she wanted to live for her children. She loved her children and wanted to stay with them and work and live for them but she could not—it was not her Master's will. May the God of love keep them and may mother and children meet in heaven.

Sister Williams was a member of Trinity Methodist church, Fairmont, N. C. While she could not attend the services during the last few months of her life she loved the church; she did not forget the church and she did not forget to pray.

May the Lord keep the husband and children and may the family be reunited in heaven. W. F. Trawick.

PITMAN—R. O. Pitman was born December 22, 1850, and died May, 1, 1923.

Brother Pitman was a man of influence and highly esteemed for his integrity. He was never married, but was a citizen of great value, and held the confidence of all those who knew him. He was a friend of the poor, a loyal supporter of the church and a devout Christian.

The last days of Brother Pitman were days of ill health; he at times suffered much. But he was patient in his suffering. In his darkest hours there could be seen in his face a tranquil expression which told of true submission. He believed in the Lord Jesus and with a strong, unshaken faith he followed Him fearing no evil even in the valley and shadow of death.

He will be greatly missed in this community. His life has been spent in usefulness. Relatives and friends of the departed, we commend you to Him who doeth all things well and with whom there is no mistake.

W. F. Trawick.

SETTLEMIRE—Mrs. Stella Culbreth Settlemire was born at Providence, near Henrietta, January 14, 1895; died April 11, 1923; daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Culbreth. She was married to D. F. Settlemire June 18, 1911. Only one child came to bless her life, a son—Frank. She gave her heart to God at the age of nine and joined the Methodist church. Her ideals were high. She was tested and tried as a Christian and came out conqueror at the end. Always planning for the future of her little boy, whose love for her was devotion, his grief and sorrow at her funeral was such as to make the hearts of strong men go out in sympathy to the dear little boy only eleven years of age, who stood by the open grave and called to the little silent mother looking so calm in the beautiful gray casket.

But the best thought is, she was ready, submissive, calm and quiet as she told them she would soon be going. She left her little son, Frank, in the care of her sister, Mrs. Christy, with means to educate him. She also leaves a young brother and another sister, Mrs. Wilson.

May God's richest blessing ever attend the little son, and guide him to a noble manhood. She was buried at Providence, a large crowd attending her funeral services, conducted by her pastor.

J. C. Postelle.

DABBS—George M. Dabbs died May 2, 1923. He was born May 27, 1866. He was first married to Miss Annie Hasty. To this union two children were born. November 10, 1898, he was married to Mrs. Addie Bowman Funderbunk. To this union one son was born. Brother Dabbs was a member of Poplar Hill church. He was regarded as one of the best of men. The funeral service was conducted at the home by the writer, assisted by Revs. W. B. Davis, L. H. Griffith and R. F. Mock. He was buried in the cemetery at Poplar Hill church.

D. C. Ballard.

SHOOK—Ernest Paul, son of C. M. and Jennie Shook, was born September 15, 1914, and died May 16, 1923, being eight years, eight months and one day old. He spoke to some of the family concerning his death and said he was going to heaven to be with George, a brother who passed away a few weeks ago. A grief-stricken father and mother, four brothers and seven sisters survive him. The good Shepherd has taken one of his lambs to the fold. Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord.

R. L. Melton.

WALTERS—John Wesley Walters passed away May 11, 1923, at the age of 53 years, two months and 15 days. He was converted when about 30 years old and joined the Methodist church at Newton. He married Ella Carter in August, 1896, and they had five children, four of whom are living. Besides he has a living daughter, Mrs. Baker, by a former marriage. Brother Walters was a loyal church member, always wanted to do his full share of everything. He was a conscientious Christian and seemed always to be afraid of doing something wrong. He is gone, but it will take a long time to forget such a good man. He was laid to rest by loving hands in Taylorsville cemetery, the funeral being conducted by his pastor, Rev. A. R. Bell.

A Friend.

MATHESON—Mrs. R. P. Matheson was born November 18, 1840, and died April 12, 1923, at the age of 82 years and four months. She was the daughter of Rev. Alfred Carson and was married to R. P. Matheson September 15, 1859. Seven children were born to them but only two live today, Walter C. Matheson and Mrs. H. P. Feimster. Sister Matheson was converted in early girlhood and joined the Methodist church and was a faithful member all her life. She was a painstaking, loyal wife and mother, always teaching never to say any harm of anybody. Everybody loved her. We are missing her sadly, but look forward to the great reunion at God's right hand. The funeral service was conducted by her pastor, Rev. A. R. Bell, and Rev. L. L. Moore, M. D.

A Friend.

COSTON—Mrs. Franta Coston, wife of Mr. Henry L. Coston, was born in Henderson county, N. C., September 20, 1887, and after a short illness of pneumonia died May 4, 1923. Her maiden name was Justus. She married Mr. Henry L. Coston March 22, 1906. To this union were born seven children, all living.

Mrs. Coston has been an acceptable member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, for many years. She professed religion in early girlhood and was faithful to the end. She told her mother she stayed ready for the summons. She was a good woman, a kind, affectionate wife and mother. She took delight in having her children attend church services. She was always ready to lend a helping hand to those in need and suffering. Her doors were always open to her preacher. She will be missed in her home and community. A good wife and loving mother is gone, and rests with the saints in the better world where sickness, sorrow, pain and death are feared no more. May the Master's love be with the bereaved, and may this mother's prayers go with her children all the way through. She leaves a husband, seven children, a mother, two sisters, four brothers, and a host of friends to follow on.

Her body was laid to rest at Edneyville church in the presence of a large congregation, and the grave was covered with beautiful flowers. We extend our deepest sympathy to her family and loved ones in their great bereavement.

C. F. Tate, Pastor.

NORTH CAROLINA STATE COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE AND ENGINEERING

STATE COLLEGE STATION RALEIGH, N. C.

Technical Education at State College prepares its graduates for personal success and for leadership in industrial progress. The college offers

FOUR YEAR COURSES IN:

- Agriculture—Including General Agriculture and Specialized Courses in Farm Crops, Agricultural Engineering, Animal Husbandry and Dairying, Biology, Horticulture, Poultry Science, Soils, Veterinary Medicine, Vocational Education.
- Chemistry, Agricultural Chemistry, Textile Chemistry and Dyeing.
- Civil Engineering, Architecture and Highway Engineering.
- Electrical Engineering.
- Mechanical Engineering.
- Textile—Textile Engineering, Textile Manufacturing, Textile Chemistry and Dyeing.
- Agricultural Economics, Business Administration, Rural Life.
- General Science, Physics, Biology.

TWO YEAR COURSES IN:

Agriculture, Mechanic Arts, Textile Manufacturing.

One Year Course in Auto Mechanics.

Winter Course in Agriculture for Farmers.

Summer Session for Teachers, for College Entrance and for College Credit.

Excellent equipment in all departments.

Session 1923-1924 begins September 4.

Entrance requirements for Freshman Class, 15 units—English, 3; History, 2; Mathematics, 2½; Science, 1; Elective, 6½.

For catalog, illustrated circulars, and entrance blanks, write E. B. OWEN, Registrar.

A Sure Job---A Better Job And Better Equipped To Hold It

While young, with your future ahead of you, why not make it a brighter future and prepare yourself for greater ability and greater responsibility, before your productive ability wanes and your opportunity is past. There is always a position awaiting in the business world for the efficient trained business man or woman. Our graduates after a thorough course in the many phases of business always find thru our employment bureau a dignified and remunerative position awaiting with brilliant opportunity for advancement.

No matter what your former education and experience may have been you will find that a few months training in the will fit you to accept and ably fill by reason of thoroughness a position of greater opportunity and larger salary. An institution with such standing and reputation as the Georgia-Alabama Business College does more to advance the business interests of its graduates than can be done by any amount of family or personal influence. Ours is a unique business college, training you in the fundamentals, such as writing, spelling, arithmetic, etc., as well as in higher branches of bookkeeping, accounting, banking, commercial law, typewriting and shorthand, etc. Thousands of successful graduates attest the value of our course. They will gladly tell you what a G. A. B. C. training has done for them; and we will gladly show you how the same training can place you in a better position and fit you to hold it and advance in it to a greater future. Our well equipped modern building and our large corps of capable, experienced teachers and our unique business courses combine to make one of the most efficient schools in America. The terms are easy and tuition fees very reasonable.

Georgia-Alabama Business College

On receipt of a postcard we will gladly send you a catalogue giving details and a volume of testimonials from our graduates.

Address: Department A-9

Georgia-Alabama Business College

EUGENE ANDERSON, President
MACON, GA.

(Branch School located at Atlanta, Ga.)

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE LIBRARY
DURHAM, N. C.

NORTH CAROLINA Christian Advocate

Volume LXVIII

GREENSBORO, N. C., THURSDAY, JUNE 14, 1923

No. 24

EDITORIAL ~ PARAGRAPHS

The apostolic church fasted in the upper room. The present day church feasts in the basement room. Overfeasting may bring on indigestion.

* * * *

It has been said that one boy in the school room is worth six in the pool room. That number might be multiplied by six, for the relative quality of the two is like to that of a work shop and a bucket shop.

* * * *

“The microscope, certainly not less clearly than the telescope, reveals the glory of God.” And yet quite a few can see God’s glory only through a telescope. Their gaze must be fixed on some distant star. It may be distant in space, it may be distant in years. To these the bygone centuries are full of light. The lives of martyrs, prophets, apostles and statesmen adorn the annals of the race, but the present day is drab. The manifested glory of God is confined to the far off past or the far off future according to those who fix their gaze afar. Why not, in magnifying objects out yonder also magnify the things about us? With the telescope bring also into service the microscope and learn to duly appreciate God’s glories at our feet. Hannah was a pious, industrious mother, but there are mothers today just as pious and industrious as Hannah, the mother of Samuel. Motherhood reveals its unspeakable glories in every age. So does manhood. So does God’s grace. We only need to be able to see and appreciate these.

* * * *

Have you noted the neglected and even deserted shrine? It may have been an unpretentious country church where the sincere worshippers from the surrounding farms gathered to hear the gospel message. It may have been a pretentious place of worship in the city and a mighty force in the kingdom of righteousness. But now all is changed. The little country meeting house has been abandoned. It is rapidly falling to decay. The city church has been overrun by commerce or the alien has taken the place in the community but not in the church of those who were accustomed to worship there. But these pathetic objects which were once places of prayer and filled with praise find a counterpart in the lives of those who have abandoned prayer and cease to worship God. It may be tender and devout youth who rejoiced to walk in the gardens of dreams and of God, but has now turned from the paths of innocency and of praise. Manhood busy and practical may slaughter early ideals and at the same time become sordid and profane. It may be an instance of old age where love has perished and religious values have failed. But it matters not whether the tragedy overtakes youth, middle life or old age, it is the tragedy of the neglected and abandoned shrine, where silence has taken the place of song, and wickedness or worldliness has entrenched itself in the decaying house of worship. It is pathetic to see a house of worship fall into decay, it is unspeakably tragic for an immortal soul which was once a holy place become common and profane.

The professor in Greek gets $3,000 salary and the football coach in the same college receives $12,000. This discrepancy can be explained in that 50,000 cheer a football game while not a solitary mortal cheers a Greek recitation. Nevertheless, it is a striking instance of misplaced values. For Homer’s Iliad is of infinitely greater worth than any story of the Olympic games. The glories of ancient Greece rest upon art and literature and not upon athletics. Modern colleges are in grave danger of becoming huge athletic associations. What a pity!

* * * *

Paul tells Timothy that “God hath not given unto us the spirit of fear, but of power and of love and of a sound mind.” If that be true, and it is, what about those who are mentally unbalanced, not insane, but given to over-emphasis, under emphasis and mental lopsidedness. These persons without mental balance and without love, but filled with fear, are not of God, according to St. Paul. Yet these very people claim to be especially appointed by the God of all wisdom for the particular task of saving the church and the world. Paul met them in his day, they have annoyed every generation, and the crop at the present time is especially large. Like the poor they are always with us, only the points of emphasis change. Let us pray to be delivered from all who are filled with fear but are without love and a sound mind.

* * * *

Every reader who is the mother of a boy or who was once a boy himself is aware of a boy’s strange infatuation for his first pocket knife. With this instrument in his hands he subdues kingdoms. No bush or tree in his pathway is allowed to escape. And if he should meet a bear the trusted new pocket knife would do its deadly work and set the young hero on a pedestal of fame. Or so it seems to the happy owner of his first barlow blade. Why then should not Borham’s little story find a response in numerous hearts? Here is the story:

“In early days,” my host explained, “we used to live not far from here. It was a lonely place and a hard life; and it had joys and sorrows of its own. The greatest of its joys was the birth of Don, our first-born; and the greatest of our sorrows was his death. He was only five when we buried him.”

“Yes,” added his wife, brushing a tear from her eye, “and we buried him with a broken penknife in his hand. A swagman who had sheltered for the night in one of the outbuildings had given it to him before leaving in the morning, and Don thought it the most wonderful thing he had ever possessed. He was working away with it from morning to night. He would not trust it out of his sight. He had it in his hand, when, a few days afterwards, he was taken ill. He clung to it all through his sickness. If he dropped it in his sleep, he asked for it as soon as he woke. He raved about it in his delirium. And it was firmly clasped in his hand when he died. We had not the heart to take it from him, and so he went down to his grave still holding it.”

REV. S. E. RICHARDSON IS DEAD

In the early afternoon of Tuesday, June 12, Rev. S. E. Richardson, pastor of the China Grove charge, Western North Carolina conference, answered the final call. Death resulted from diabetes hastened, perhaps, by a carbuncle from which he had suffered for two weeks or more. He was at the time of his death in the High Point hospital, where he had gone several days before for treatment.

The funeral services were held in China Grove Thursday at 2 o'clock and were conducted by Dr. T. F. Marr, presiding elder of the Salisbury district, assisted by other ministers who attended the services. Interment was in Chestnut Hill cemetery, Salisbury.

Brother Richardson was 59 years of age and a native of Union county, a county that has contributed a large number of her sons to the Methodist ministry and to every other important field of service in North Carolina and in the regions beyond. His native place was near Waxhaw, and his father was an honored and influential citizen of that section known far and near as "Esquire Richardson."

At the conference held in Main Street church, Gastonia, in 1901, Rev. S. E. Richardson was admitted on trial with W. M. Biles, J. J. Eads, B. F. Fincher, W. O. Goode, E. P. Green, A. G. Loftin, J. T. Ratledge, P. W. Tucker and C. C. Weaver.

His first charge was Jonesville in the Mt. Airy district, where he remained three years, 1902, 1903, 1904. His pastoral charges from that date are as follows: 1905, Murphy circuit; 1906, 1907, 1908, 1909, Cliffside; 1910, 1911, Carraway Memorial; 1912, 1913, Prospect circuit; 1914, 1915, 1916, 1917, East Spencer and North Main; 1918, 1919, 1920, New London; 1921, 1922, and 1923 to the date of his death, China Grove.

It will be noted that this faithful itinerant Methodist preacher had staying qualities. In a ministry of more than twenty years he served only eight different pastoral charges. He was one of God's elect servants who encountered obstacles without a murmur and kept at his day's work with a spirit of devotion that was worthy of praise. He was not brilliant, but he was an itinerant Methodist preacher who did his work faithfully and well both as pastor and in the pulpit.

In the early part of his itinerant ministry Miss Selina Phillips of North Wilkesboro joined her life and fortunes with this Methodist preacher and like a brave, true woman met the responsibilities of a minister's wife. Five children were born to them.

To the stricken wife and the fatherless children we extend our tenderest sympathies.

THE CHURCH AND THE WORKING MAN

To tell what is wrong with the church as it is related to the working man appears to be a favorite pastime with writers quite a few. These scribblers seem to make a special appeal to the Literary Digest, widely known for its straw vote on prohibition and for the publication of fanciful articles on religious topics.

In a recent issue the Literary Digest carried an extended explanation of the church's fault at this point. The gist of the whole matter was that the church cares more for creased trousers than it does for overalls.

Whether this charge applies to other sections of the country or not, we will not attempt to answer. But we declare with emphasis and are in possession of the facts to prove that such a charge cannot be truthfully applied to the church in North Carolina. We speak especially of the Methodist church because more fully informed as to it, but believe that the same truth applies to all other churches in the state.

In practically every section of the state where there is a Methodist constituency with which to begin has been established a Methodist church and in those sections not already preempted by other churches the Methodist preacher has gone preaching and organizing churches regardless of the occupations of the people. We have churches in the larger towns made up largely of industrial workers and some churches that have comparatively few of the so-called working people. They are all working people, but these special writers call them by another name. This separation that is noted in some instances in the large towns is primarily a question of geography. But in the smaller towns and villages capital and labor worship together in the same church. The officials of the church are composed of each class. In many instances owners and managers of great industrial plants are teachers of immense Sunday school classes composed of both the rich and the poor. On the other hand, some of the most loyal and devoted members and officials of the church belong to labor unions. There is no prejudice on the part of the church against labor or in favor of capital. And in this state labor is not prejudiced against the church unless it has been done in rare instances by writers and speakers who have grossly misrepresented the church.

Practically the entire ministry of the Methodist church in North Carolina has come from the ranks of the laboring people. And these men have not forgotten the source of their origin. But they are at the same time followers of the Master who was not bound by social or industrial distinctions.

If a capitalist or labor leader in an attempt to serve selfish ends should undertake to tell the average gospel minister how he should preach that man would soon find his head in a hornet's nest. Neither labor nor capital as we know them in industrial conflict ever attempt to control the church in North Carolina and all this talk and writing about the church being allied with the one or the other is just so much "bunk."

We are in possession of the facts to substantiate the foregoing declarations. It is no pipe dream nor declarations based upon the assertions of some man claiming to be an expert whose word should be taken as the language of "holy writ."

"NOT MORE BISHOPS, BUT MORE BISHOP"

Bishop Joseph F. Berry of the Methodist Episcopal church claims to be the first man in his church who advocated the area system of Episcopal Administration, which has become the established policy of the Northern church and we may add of the Southern church, not under the term "area" in our church, for we employ the term "episcopal district," but the system is practically the same.

A late utterance of Bishop Berry on this subject makes interesting reading. Bishop Berry says:

"Employing the word Area reminds me that I was probably the first man in our church to publicly and persistently advocate the Area system of episcopal administration. So far as I know the first article ever written definitely outlining the idea was my editorial in the Michigan Christian Advocate. That was in 1888, as the New York General Conference was approaching. The article was entitled 'Not More Bishops, But More Bishop.' When the Epworth Herald was started, the paper advocated a definite district for each bishop, and that propaganda was kept for fourteen years. I suppose, however, that the most influential newspaper propagandist of this innovation was Zion's Herald, of Boston. A series of editorials upon this subject appeared in its columns prior to the Minneapolis General Conference, which were widely commented upon and were influential in crystallizing opinion among the delegates. At the request of Dr. Parkhurst I wrote those editorials.

"My first speech after I entered the Board of Bishops was on this subject. That evening I overheard two of the venerable members of the board talking about my maiden effort. They agreed that probably I was a nice young brother, but sadly lacking in common sense. All of the older bishops but one opposed the innovation at that time. Bishop McDowell became an early and influential advocate of the measure, and as soon as he entered the board, Bishop Anderson joined our forces. Dr. Edgar Blake, now Bishop Blake, and Mr. John A. Patten of Chattanooga, later exerted large influence in bringing about the adoption of the new system by the General Conference."

WOODROW WILSON TODAY

Carson C. Hathaway in the May issue of the National Magazine gives a brief vivid pen sketch of Woodrow Wilson, old and worn, whose "face is lined and his hair is thin and white." This sketch of Hathaway's ends with the following suggestive paragraphs:

"Washington is so accustomed to famous men, senators and diplomats are so constantly in evidence, that the captains and the kings come and go unnoticed. But the coming of Woodrow Wilson, even into a theatre gathering, creates a never-failing surge of emotion. He seems to bring an inevitable challenge, 'Lest we forget!' Because of his presence there arise memories of the past, memories of the most stirring scenes which the world has ever witnessed, scenes in which he took an all important part.

"There are thousands of Washingtonians who do not agree with some of Mr. Wilson's ideas on international co-operation—but if anyone should ask, 'Who is the most popular man in Washington today?' there is only one answer."

AN INCIDENT AT THE RAILWAY STATION

"Goodbye, daddy." The voice was that of a little brown-eyed boy as the "Piedmont Limited" pulled out from Charlotte last Monday afternoon. "Goodbye, sweetheart," replied the father in tender and vibrant tones as he climbed upon the platform of his Pullman car. Then brushing a tear from his eye, the father said to the writer of these lines, "I would have taken him with me but he has not been right well, and then as I will be in New York only two days he could not enjoy such a hurried trip. I tell you what, I hate to leave that youngster."

The confession was made by an eminently successful business man, who is also a devoted father and a husband who glorifies his marriage vows.

At this little incident of the railway station the cynic will sneer and the hard, practical man of affairs will laugh. But all true parents and those who are able to appreciate the finer things of life, those very things that enrich our civilization, will understand.

CHANGES IN EDITORS OF CONFERENCE ORGANS

Dr. George B. Winton has resigned as editor of the St. Louis Christian Advocate and becomes pastor of the Broadway Methodist church, Paducah, Ky. Rev. Charles O. Ransford, who has been associated with Dr. Winton in the editorial work of the St. Louis Christian Advocate, takes the place made vacant by the resignation of Dr. Winton.

Rev. Charles A. Powers, pastor at Point Pleasant, West Virginia, has been elected editor of the Methodist Advocate-Herald, the official organ of the Western Virginia conference. R. P. Bell, who has been serving as editor for some time, continues as business manager.

At the last session of the Baltimore conference in March Dr. Carlton D. Harris retired as editor of the Baltimore Southern Methodist so that he might give his entire time to the pastorate. Rev. Selwyn K. Cockrell, pastor of the Arlington church, Baltimore, was chosen to succeed him.

These recent changes among the conference organs has been followed by the death of Dr. T. N. Ivey, editor of the Christian Advocate. All of which marks this as a time of change in the editorial ranks of the church.

The Christian Guardian among other things says of Dr. T. N. Ivey: "He was a member of the Commission on Unification and a consistent advocate of Methodist union. He visited Canada some years ago and seemed always to be specially interested in the work of the church within our Dominion. Fraternal delegates from our church to the south always received from him an especially warm welcome. He was a man of quiet, unassuming manners and scholarly habits, and yet of strong and far-reaching influence. He will be very greatly missed."

PEOPLE AND THINGS

Western North Carolina Conference, Winston-Salem, October 17.

North Carolina Conference, Elizabeth City, November 14.

Rev. W. L. Sherrill entered the Charlotte sanatorium last week for treatment. Latest reports are that he is improving rapidly.

President W. P. Few delivered the annual address at the close of the city schools in Winston-Salem last Friday evening, June 8.

Mrs. C. A. Johnson, who recently underwent an operation in a Raleigh hospital, is now out of the hospital and is spending a few weeks recuperating in the mountains of western North Carolina.

Dr. and Mrs. A. W. Nonce of Canton, N. C., has given two beautiful collection plates to Wooters, which is his old home church. The congregation hereby expresses its appreciation of the gift.

Rev. C. A. Johnson, pastor of the Kennekeet charge, has recently closed a ten days' meeting at Evans church. Rev. C. B. Culbreth, presiding elder, did the preaching.

Rev. W. B. Humble has repaired Perkins church on the Moyock circuit. Brother Humble has shown commendable zeal in this enterprise and now rejoices in the good success which has attended his efforts.

Dr. J. A. Kearns, known to all old Vanderbilt students in the Divinity School, is now spending several weeks with Rev. J. M. Ormond, his son-in-law, at Trinity College. Dr. Kearns is well and remarkably vigorous for one of his years.

Rev. R. D. Sherrill, who was paralyzed about 18 months ago, walks now without a cane, drives his car, cultivates his garden and feels like he might again some time in the future enter the active ministry. He is now on his farm near Statesville.

At 8 o'clock Saturday morning, June 9, 1923, in Rosemary, N. C., at Mr. Hurley H. King's residence, his sister, Miss Viola Belle King, of Roanoke Rapids, N. C., and Dr. Samuel Edward Teague, of Goldsboro, N. C., were happily married, the bride's pastor, Rev. R. H. Broom, officiating.

Rev. J. R. Warren preached a sermon on "Temperance and Good Citizenship" at Bethlehem church, Buford township, yesterday afternoon. A large congregation assembled and at the conclusion of services 47 persons signed pledge cards for total abstinence. Mr. Warren will preach at Midway next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.—Enquirer.

Mr. T. E. Garrison and Miss Sadie Pitts were married last Monday at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. O. Pitts, of Glen Alpine, Rev. R. C. Goforth officiating. The young couple are influential workers in the church. Miss Pitts was organist and Centenary treasurer, Mr. Garrison a steward. They will be at home in Glen Alpine after June 15th.

Miss Edna Tyre of Greensboro and Mr. J. Merrill Parker of St. Louis were married last Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock at the home of Mr. William Tyre, the bride's brother, on Keogh street, Greensboro. Rev. L. B. Hayes, pastor of Park Place church, performed the ceremony. The young couple left immediately after the ceremony for New York and other points north.

Rev. T. A. Sikes and family are this week in Hertford, N. C., where Mr. Earl H. Sikes, the oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Sikes, will next Saturday wed Miss Katherine McMullen Newby. The marriage will be in the Methodist church at Hertford at 11 o'clock a. m., the father of the bridegroom officiating. The Advocate extends congratulations and good wishes to the happy young couple.

On Wednesday morning, June 6, at eight o'clock the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Hobbs, Corapeake, N. C., was the scene of a lovely marriage when their daughter, Josie Rhodema, became the bride of Mr. Clarence Ray Myers of Coleraine, N. C. The bride's brother, Rev. A. J. Hobbs of Wilmington, N. C., performed the ceremony. Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Myers left for a northern trip, after which they will make their home in Coleraine, N. C.

"Mrs. W. E. Williams invites you to be present at the marriage of her daughter, Elizabeth, to Reverend M. Gladstone Ervin on Tuesday morning, June the thirteenth at ten o'clock, West Durham Methodist Episcopal Church, South."

"Mr. and Mrs. James W. Jordan request the honor of your presence at the marriage of their daughter, Annie Belle, to Mr. Loyd Henry McCall on Monday evening, eighteenth of June, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-three, at half after eight o'clock, Hickory Grove Methodist church, Hickory Grove Road, Charlotte, N. C."

Rev. J. H. West, presiding elder of the Mt. Airy district, on his way from Hickory to Mt. Airy, spent a few hours between trains in the Advocate office last Tuesday afternoon. He reports that Rev. J. A. Cook has four new church buildings on hand, the work on the church at Central, Mt. Airy, is being carried forward, and that this is really an era of church building in his district.

One hundred and twenty young men and women, representing every section of North Carolina, and most of the Southern States, received the degree of Bachelor of Arts at the final day of the Trinity College commencement. Ten received the Master's degree. Presentation of degrees and honors followed the address by Faucet of Brown University. Each member of the class was given a Holy Bible from the college. The class exceeds by 34 any previous class ever turned out at Trinity.

The Main Street congregation, Gastonia, last Sunday morning held the first session of the Sunday school in the new building, which is the last word in modern equipments for Sunday school work. The building is furnished with 12 pianos, which is only suggestive of how completely every need of the Sunday school has been provided for. The mammoth swimming pool of tile in every part has cost more than $10,000. The roof garden covers the entire structure. The total cost of the building is approximately $150,000.

Rev. Albert Sherrill and his people at Stanly Creek have repaired and enlarged the old church and now they have an attractive church auditorium and five Sunday school class rooms. The church which to all appearances is new was formally opened last Sunday. It was also "home coming" day for that church. A large congregation assembled for the services of the day. Dinner was served in the grove and after dinner Rev. M. T. Hinshaw, president of Rutherford College, delivered an address on education. Brother Sherrill with a practically new church, a garden that speaks of vegetables in abundance for the summer and a lot filled with choice chickens is well fixed for the coming months. This is his second pastorate at Stanley Creek. We enjoyed our stay at the parsonage.

Ice cream, abundant in quantity, and delicious in quality, that was what Rev. Saul Erastus Mercer, presiding elder of the Weldon district, served in a most gracious manner to a company of his friends last Friday afternoon on the lawn of his home in Durham. The cordial greetings extended by Mrs. Mercer combined with the shade of the friendly oaks contributed greatly to the occasion. This was one of the delightful episodes of the Trinity summer school. Those who enjoyed the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Mercer were Revs. Rufus Bradley, H. B. Porter, J. T. Draper, T. G. Vickers, J. L. Midgette, S. T. Barber, E. L. Hillman, B. P. Robinson, Wm. Towe, B. F. Boone, M. Y. Self, L. C. Larkin, all of Weldon district, C. B. Culbreth, J. M. Wright, J. M. Ormond, B. B. Slaughter, Mike Bradshaw, T. W. Perry, E. B. Craven, A. W. Plyler.

Rev. N. H. D. Wilson of First church, Elizabeth City, has been assisting Rev. A. W. Price of Manteo, in a meeting. Friday night, June 8th, after the last service when the congregation had dispersed, the two preachers slipped around to the residence of Capt. Bennie O'Neal, where it was planned to have a very quiet wedding. But the secret could not be held, and when Brother Price arrived he found a good part of his congregation waiting for him. So with house full and yard full of friends and well wishers the beloved pastor of Manteo was married to one of the best beloved ladies of his church, Miss Elizabeth O'Neal. There has been some thought that such a turn might come and the good ladies have been fixing the parsonage inside and out. Friends of the "Bishop of the Banks" will heartily wish him and his bride a long and happy life.

The Epworth League forces of Western North Carolina are at Charlotte in full force this week.

Rev. W. M. Heckard last Sunday began a revival meeting in his new Trinity church, Gastonia. Prof. and Mrs. F. C. Todd are in charge of the music. Great times are expected in this meeting.

There were seven accessions to Burkhead Methodist church at the morning service Sunday, three on profession of faith and four by transfer from other churches. The pastor, Rev. J. S. Hiatt, preached a special sermon to the children. Timely illustrations were given and the message was greatly enjoyed by the entire congregation. The pastor announced that a new disease had broken out in Winston-Salem and that it was affecting all of the churches. The title given the new disease was "Sunday Rolling." It was explained that many members are out auto riding instead of attending Sunday schools and divine worship.—Sentinel.

STANDING OF DISTRICTS

It has not been possible for us to give an accurate standing in the recent contest for new subscribers and renewals to the Advocate because of the fact that it requires a great deal of time to make proper changes and entries. We are giving below the gross standing of each district and conference, but the contest was on a percentage basis and this had not been worked out at the time of going to press. The business manager is absent in the eastern part of the state. As soon as he returns he will have the percentage worked out by a disinterested party and the results published in next week's issue of the Advocate. The net results of the campaign are as follows, and we deeply appreciate the work of our friends and assure them that we stand ready to serve them whenever the opportunity may arise:

Western North Carolina Conference.		New	R'wls
Asheville District	476	270
Charlotte	43	410
Greensboro	43	502
Marion	123	432
Mount Airy	49	295
North Wilkesboro	9	111
Salisbury	54	199
Shelby	36	389
Statesville	164	570
Waynesville	7	134
Winston-Salem	20	293
Totals Western N. C. Conference	1053	3605
Total new and renewals		4658
Asheville district ahead.
North Carolina Conference.
Durham District	53	319
Elizabeth City	84	253
Fayetteville	101	354
New Bern	40	138
Raleigh	50	222
Rockingham	25	359
Washington	32	253
Weldon	27	229
Wilmington	29	154
Totals N. C. Conference	441	2281
Total new and renewals		2722
Fayetteville district ahead.
Miscellaneous	1	46
Grand total new and renewals	1495	5932
Total		7427
Western N. C. Conference ahead.

REV. MARCUS L. TUTTLE APPOINTED TO DANBURY

Please announce that Marcus Tuttle of Lenoir, N. C., who graduated at Trinity College last week, has been appointed pastor of Danbury charge till conference.

Rev. D. V. Howell, owing to affliction following nervous breakdown, had to be relieved of any pastoral responsibilities, hence necessity of above appointment.

Brother Tuttle will fill all appointments on the charge next Sunday. J. H. West.

WE HAVE EVANGELIZED; NOW LET US CHRISTIANIZE

By Dr. Elmer T. Clark.

When Christ gave the so-called Great Commission to the Church he laid down the fundamental platform for all the legitimate activities of the kingdom on earth. The entire program of Christianity consists in going into all the world, preaching the gospel to every creature, and teaching them to observe all things that Christ has commanded. When the gospel has been preached to all men everywhere, and when all men everywhere taught to observe, and do observe, the ideals of Christ, then the kingdom will be at hand. It will not come until that has been done.

We have gone about the first part of that program with commendable zeal, but we have sadly neglected the second part. The church has not been negligent in preaching the gospel to every creature, but she has been extremely negligent in teaching the people to observe the commands of Christ. We have evangelized the whole world, but we have not Christianized any part of it. From the standpoint of proclaiming the gospel to those who do not know it, the task of world evangelization will soon be completed, for there will soon be no section of the earth where the gospel is not heard.

So we face another task, which is not a new one, but a neglected section of the great duty committed to us by Christ. It is the task of world Christianization. We must make this gospel which has been so assiduously preached lay hold on and control the entire social order and all of its activities and relations. This is the one supreme and outstanding challenge to the church and the Christian forces of this day. Any forward movement or any plan which may be projected for the extension of the kingdom, whether it be by educational, missionary, or other agencies of the church, must be projected from this angle and with this object in view. This truth is realized by the wisest missionaries on the field and the wisest leaders at home, and one of the most promising signs of the present situation is that their policies are being thus shaped.

Education Is Now Paramount.

Any forward movement in the ranks of the Christians in these days must be on the basis and with the full recognition of this fundamental mission of the church in this country. If it be projected on any other basis, if an appeal be made to the world on any other platform, the movement will be superficial and doomed to failure. It will plunge directly across the entire current of Christian and international thinking and thus fail to electrify big souls and secure the support of big men.

This is especially true in the realm of Christian education. The very essence of world Christianization is the spread of Christian culture. The greatest duty of the church, as it faces the problem of taking the world and its social order for Christ, is educating the people in Christian principles.

This fact is fully appreciative by the missionary forces, and they have so ordered their program that the biggest missionary institution on earth, whether it be in the home field or across the seas, is the Christian school. When we speak of the great missionary enterprises the mind of the well-informed man reverts immediately to Robert College, to the Surian Protestant College at Beirut, to the Hiroshima Girls' School, and to the Kwansai Gakuin.

This is a fundamental policy in furthering the work of civilization, for the new democratic movement which is sweeping the world will not of itself usher in an immediate millennium of peace and good will. Mexico, China, and Russia are democracies; but because their democracy rests upon populations in which seventy-five to ninety per cent of the people are illiterate, these nations, so far from being civilized and peaceful, in reality menace the world. No democracy can succeed until individual people have been brought to a point of culture where they can bear the responsibilities of government, and we may easily see the risk which men will incur if they apply a theoretical system of democracy to a world in which more than half of the people cannot read or write a single word in any language.

And so the present democratic movement, which we cannot and would not frustrate, will end in disaster unless the church has the courage and aggressiveness to spread Christian culture everywhere. If the social order is to be Christian, it must rest on a firm Christian intellectual foundation. The old order of force entrenched itself behind a perverted biology and a distorted evolutionary theory. If the new order of love is to stand, it likewise must secure an intellectual basis. It is the province of the church to provide this basis, and the method by which it is to be provided cannot be educating the few, but by inclining the minds of all the people.

In the process of taking the world for Christ, the time has come when we must make the message we have preached permeate the social order and control all departments of human life. This means that as we have stressed evangelism in the past we must stress education in the future. This does not by any means imply that the evangelistic impulse will be lacking or that we may turn aside from the work of saving men. It does mean, however, that Christian education must in the future loom larger in our plans than it has ever appeared before; it must become more and more the leading agency through which we will save the souls of men and extend the kingdom of heaven throughout all the earth.

Its Larger Meaning.

Of course, Christian education means to the church infinitely more than the operation of its own schools and colleges. Avowedly and distinctly Christian institutions of learning conducted under the auspices of the church are certainly necessary. But it is none the less necessary to make sure that the elements of Christian education are carried by the church into those tax-supported institutions which, in the nature of the case, cannot show such a distinctly Christian character officially. Greater and greater grows the influence of these universities; more intense must become the work of the church in connection with them. Fundamentally Christian education must run the entire course of life and embrace all the elements of Christian culture. It will transform the thought of the church and make every local congregation a teaching, no less than a preaching, agency. It will involve a thorough policy of coalition and co-operation between such agencies as the board of education, the Sunday school, young peoples' societies, and the local congregation. It must perfect a plan of operation whereby children will be pointed from the cradle to the Christian college. It is a mistake to approach a twenty-year old youth, who has been reared in a home where there was little appreciation of education, perhaps, and under the influence of an idea that success is to be estimated in financial terms, and then present to him for the first time in his life the claims of Christian education.

The larger idea of Christian education will no doubt involve a considerable overhauling within the Christian college itself. Its main reason for existence is to be Christian, and when it falters in this respect it has forfeited its chief motive in life. It must not, indeed, be turned into an agency of propaganda for religion; its supreme test must always be an educational test. But, on our interpretation, the broader principles of Christianity are a fundamental part of the truest education and they must always be kept in the forefront. It is a cause of gratification that they are today receiving in the Christian colleges a better application and emphasis than ever before.

While the college must not be considered as an agency of propaganda, it is legitimate for the church to expect a large and conscious service from it. This service is the production for the church of leaders trained for its social and educational task. We need here to stop and take an appraisal. Is the service which our church schools render to the church, over and above that which may be rendered by the state school, commensurate with their opportunity or even with the demands they now make of the church? Is the graduate of a Christian school necessarily a better Christian, or even a better church worker, than the graduate of a state school? Will he make a better director of religious education in his congregation or be better equipped to serve as an official or administrator in the congregation to which he belongs? It should be so that each and every graduate of a church school is, by virtue of the fact, a trained expert in religious education and church administration, ready to step at once into his congregation and revolutionize it from the standpoint of education, outlook, and vision. With this aim in view the policies, methods, and curricula of our Christian colleges should be arranged.

Thus by the training of such workers, by a system of propaganda which will keep education constantly before the church by transforming the local congregation into a teaching agency, by directing the minds of all children to the Christian college so that they naturally incline to it from childhood, and by co-operation between all the agencies working among Christians to the same general end, the church may be in a position to undertake the Christianization of the social order by direct influence upon the very people who will tomorrow make the social order.

OFFICIAL REPORT OF THE SPRING MEETING OF THE COLLEGE OF BISHOPS

During three days and for some time on a fourth and fifth day the College of Bishops held the spring meeting in Nashville, Tenn. Except Bishops Hendrix and Beauchamp, all the members were present. Bishop Hendrix was kept at home by indisposition, and the serious sickness in Europe of the son of Bishop Beauchamp prevented him from attending.

The meeting was somewhat notable, because not a single legal decision came before the College. Most of the time was taken up with the consideration of the conditions and needs of the church. The college was cheered by reports from many parts of the church of successful revival meetings. If the general statement made to the bishops can be relied upon, and if there should be no great losses by death or removal from our territory, the year should be marked by a notable increase in our membership.

The college issued two addresses to the church, which were published immediately after their adoption.

From the Southern Methodist Press Association a communication was received asking that Good Literature Sunday be observed in all our churches on January 27, 1924, and the college approved the suggestion.

Hon. C. B. Ames, because of a change of residence, resigned as a member of the Constitutional Commission, and Hon. W. G. M. Thomas was elected to fill the vacancy.

From the Board of Education, the Sunday School Board, and the trustees of Barnes Hospital reports were received, and the work of those activities was carefully discussed.

The College of Bishops approved the plan for the superannuate endowment fund and heartily agreed to co-operate in carrying out this plan.

The General Conference authorized the appointment of a commission, now popularly called the Commission on Comity. This commission has been charged to co-operate with a similar commission from the Methodist Episcopal church to make any possible adjustment that may save friction between the churches. The commission met in Cincinnati last February, and shortly thereafter its action was given to the papers. The report from this commission was brought to the attention of the College of Bishops, and the commission was assured of the appreciation of the college of its labors.

Rev. Dr. W. A. Shelton of Emory University was elected the fraternal delegate to the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

The following books were selected as the post-graduate reading course: Gwaltkin's "Early Church History," Mackintosh's "The Originality of the Christian Message," Illingworth's "Personality, Human and Divine," Robertson's "The Glory of the Ministry."

A letter from the Secretary of War was received, and Bishop McMurry was appointed to attend a convention of the chaplains to be held in Washington City. The college had the pleasure of meeting in joint session with the bishops of the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church to discuss some features of the educational work of our colored brethren.

A special memorial meeting was held on a fifth day, and the memoirs of Bishops Kilgo and Waterhouse were read and adopted.

Invitations for the fall meeting were received from five cities, and it was agreed to hold the fall meeting in San Antonio, Texas, December 14 to 17. Collins Denny, Secretary.

NORTH CAROLINA CONFERENCE CENTENARY TREASURER'S RECORDS IN GOOD SHAPE

Prompted by the reports of an unfortunate business situation and ill health of Mr. D. H. Dixon, former conference Centenary treasurer for the North Carolina conference, frequent questions are coming to me relative to the status of Centenary funds in the North Carolina conference. For the sake of Brother Dixon, and for the satisfaction of those who are interested in the safety of the Centenary funds, I am glad to make the statement that Mr. Robertson, our Centenary auditor, has gone over the North Carolina conference treasurer's books and finds no discrepancy. The report of Mr. Robertson gives the amount paid by each church in the North Carolina conference. The total of these amounts correspond with the total amount turned into the hands of Col. John Edgerton, general Centenary treasurer, up to May 16th, 1923.

I take this opportunity to say that Bro. D. H. Dixon has rendered a very fine service to the cause of the Centenary in handling the funds of the great North Carolina conference for these past years.

Mr. S. Wade Marr, Tucker Building, Raleigh, N. C., has been appointed conference Centenary treasurer for the North Carolina conference, and in the future the Centenary funds will be handled by Mr. Marr.

R. M. Courtney,
Centenary Field Secretary.

REV. GEORGE DALLAS LANGSTON

After great suffering through years of helpless invalidism, this faithful servant of God passed to his eternal reward April 27th, 1923, and of him it may be most truthfully said: "He was a good man, and full of the Holy Spirit and of faith," and through him many were added unto the Lord.

Brother Langston was the son of Uriah Langston of Wayne county, and was born near Goldsboro, N. C., May 16, 1846. He was the grandson of Capt. Uriah Langston, captain in the Revolutionary War under Nathaniel Green. He entered the Confederate army when a mere boy, and was fourth sergeant in Company I when only 17 years of age. At 18 he joined Company I, North Carolina Calvary, Seventh regiment, serving until he surrendered with General Lee at Appamattox. On January 9, 1868, he was married to Miss Sallie Gibbs of Aurora, N. C., who in great loneliness survives him, for she was indeed the companion of his youth, sharing with him all the joys and sorrows of the way, and lighting up the shadows of life's evening with a beautiful and enriching fellowship. To this happy union six children were born, Mrs. E. R. Thomas and Mrs. F. S. Thomas, both of Durham, N. C., Mrs. H. J. Elmore of Rocky Mount, N. C., W. H. and Col. John D. Langston of Goldsboro, N. C., and Miss Sophronia, a most lovely Christian character who preceded him to the better land several years ago.

In 1868, the year of his marriage, Brother Langston was licensed to exhort; in 1876 he joined the honored ranks of the local ministry, where he rendered most effective service. In 1890 he was sent as a supply to Hatteras and Ocracoke, and in 1891 was admitted on trial into the North Carolina conference. During his twenty-one years as an itinerant preacher he wore the white flower of a blameless life, living above suspicion and without reproach, going cheerfully, gaily wherever he was sent with the profound conviction that he was called of God to preach the gospel of His grace to all men. With unchallenged fidelity he served the following charges, in every one of which his ministry was abundantly fruitful in sinners converted and the body of Christ edified: Swan Quarter, two years; Manteo and Wanchese, four years; Bladen Street, Wilmington, one year; West Durham, four years; Mount Olive and Faison, one year; Roanoke Rapids, two years; Graham and Haw River, one year; Southport, two years; North and South Henderson, one year. Such is the record—an exhorter eight years, fourteen years in the local ranks, and twenty-one years an itinerant—forty-three in all. No blare of trumpets, no limelight, no waving of banners—just a man of God going his quiet way, with the message of salvation on his consecrated lips, the truth of which has become concrete in the beauty of his own transfigured life, seeking to make the world a better and a safer place for his fellow-pilgrims as he passes through it.

A paragraph in a letter written by one of his beloved daughters may well find a place in this memoir, as it strikingly illustrates the kind of man he was, the depth of his convictions, the tenacity of his moral purpose, his unflinching fidelity to a lofty ideal: "He was," she writes, "one of the six men who first espoused the cause of prohibition in N. C. These men were known as 'cranks,' and were persecuted as all pioneers of any reform are and will be. Their emblem was a tiny gold pin in the form of a crank. Many, many times his life was threatened by the whisky forces, but he always said he would never die until he saw North Carolina dry. He lived to see a dry United States, and it was the greatest joy of his life."

It was when he was in the field as a lecturer for the temperance forces, a feeble and despised folk in those days, that the writer first met him and learned to love him. He was still comparatively young, and his speeches had in them the enthusiasm of impassioned youth, and were eloquent with the eloquence of one who believes. A friendship was formed then that lived and deepened through the changing years, and he who pens these lines is consciously poorer now that he is gone.

The writer was Brother Langston's presiding elder in a time and under conditions that tried the souls of men. In those trying hours he never faltered, he never sounded a false note, he rang true in every critical situation, and out of a veritable maelstrom he came an uncompromised ambassador of Jesus Christ, one who never lowered the standard of his Lord that "thrift might follow fawning."

Broken in health, believing that his work was done, no longer able to go out and come in as the loving shepherd of the flock, he took the superannuate relation, in which relation he continued for several years, a helpless paralytic, unknown to many of the younger members of the conference, but on every one of whom he lavished the love of a loyal Methodist preacher the placidity of whose white soul no envious thought ever ruffled. For nearly a year our dear brother was utterly speechless, unable to communicate with members of his own household only by signs which watchful love could alone interpret; but on April 27th, in his modest little home in West Durham, where he had suffered so long and so patiently, death unloosed his once tuneful tongue, he stepped into the King's waiting chariot and went up to join the choir invisible in the everlasting song of Moses and the Lamb.

Noble knight of the Cross, humble Methodist preacher, devoted husband and father, friend un-failing, Christian gentleman of the old school, hail and farewell till we meet again our Father's house.

R. C. B.

DEGREES AND HONORS AT TRINITY

Bachelor of Arts.

Mary Georgia Airheart, Clara Wooten Barrett, Priscilla Dixon Barrett, Henry Belk, William Wade Blacaney, Floyd Jackson Boling, Katherine Marie Brown, Thomas Banks Bradley, Mike Bradshaw, Jr., Leo Samuel Brady, John Elbert Bridgers, Jr., Floyd Augustus Brigman, Eugene Clyde Brooks, Jr., Julia Johnson Butler, Helen Loraine Cantrell, Lizzie Grey Chandler, Jane Christenbury, Lois Evelyn Claytor, Donald Hayes Conley, Eugene Carson Crawford, Louise Crowder, Sara Oneida Dashiell, Robert Lee Davis, Jr., Percy Freno Dilling, Catherine Maddry Dowdee, Clyde Harshaw Dula, Austin Lafayette Elliott, Joseph Wood Ellis, William Andrew Ellison, Jr., McKinley Gladstone Ervin, Annie Louise Garriss, Edwin Patterson Gibson, Adelaide Belle Graham, Robert Lee Gray, Jr., Womble Quay Grigg, William Carr Guthrie, Florence Catherine Harris, Blake Baker Harrison, Robert Bronson Hartsfield, Herminia Ursula Haynes, Clara Barton Henley, Blanche Elizabeth Hester, Malcolm Davis Hix, Hunter Rives Holloway, Bryce Roswell Holt, Aura Chaffin Holton, Cucille Idalia Howell, Lessie Webb Hunt, Elbert Allred Ivey, Jay Loyd Jackson, Jefferson Deems Johnson, Jr., Rufus Sidney Jones, Zebulon Vance Jones, Charles Edward Jordan, Homer Maxwell Keever, Walter Richard Kelly, Pattie Knight, Annie Marguerite Land, William Hall Lander, Kenneth William Litaker, Elizabeth Brandon Lumpkin, Levi Rufus Maness, Carmen Erselle Mangum, Katie Deliah Mangum, Edwin Carlyle Markham, Isabel Martin, Lucille Lee Massey, Emily Mathis, Ione McClure, Alvin Walter McDougale, Flora Marie Meredith, Lucille Merritt, Virginia Lee Merritt, Lawrence Dailey Moore, Thomas Gill Neal, Myrtle Julia Norton, Allene Marie Parrish, John

Glenn Pennington, Helen Marion Perkinson, Walker McNeely Price, Harry William Primakoff, Rhodney Bailey Reade, James Quinton Reynolds, Oddis Albert Robinson, Rosa Belle Rogers, Sophia Elizabeth Ryman, Rufus William Sanders, Otis Gladstone Sawyer, Byron Shankle, Daniel Monroe Sharpe, John Loyd Sharpe, Frank Carlyle Sherrill, Jr., Eleanor Chunn Simpson, Culver Hagood Smith, Gertie Reid Smith, William Herbert Smith, George Thomas Speed, Henry Call Sprinkle, Moses Lyon Stadiem, Lillie Mae Stanford, Alta Ruth Stone, Hugh Loyd Stone, Janadus Doane Stott, Jane Caroline Sullivan, Carroll Erwin Summers, Sara Margaret Tabor, Waller Littlepage Taylor, Jr., Hazel Elizabeth Thompson, Walter William Turrentine, Marcus Quarles Tuttle, Lucy Waller Umstead, Charles Lovell Vick, Daniel Thomas Wallace, Ralph Link Warren, Guion Gladstone Whitehurst, Minerva Ruth Wilkerson, Thomas Ira Wilson, Laura Fleming Winston, Elodia Yancey.

Master of Arts.

Maude Dillard Bass, Doctor Thomas Ferrell, George Dewey Harmon,* Joseph Weinstein Hathcock, Evelyn Jones Hawks, Mary Elizabeth Latta, Madge Theora Nichols, Henry Carson West, Richard Haygood Wilson, Numa Francis Wilkerson.

*Degree conferred in absentia.

Honors in Graduating Class.

Summa cum laude—Aura Chaffin Holton.

Magna cum laude—John Elbert Bridgers, Jr., Donald Hayes Conley, Blake Baker Harrison, Herminia Ursula Haynes, Jay Loyd Jackson, Annie Marguerite Land, Levi Rufus Maness, Lucille Merritt, Rhodney Bailey Reade, Sophia Elizabeth Ryman, Henry Call Sprinkle, Jr., Elodia Yancey.

Honors in Departments.

Highest honors in Biblical Literature and Religious Education—Flora Marie Meredith.

Honors in Biblical Literature and Religious Education—Mike Bradshaw, Jr., Julia Johnson Butler, McKinley Gladstone, Homer Maxwell Keever, Guion Gladstone Whitehurst.

Honors in Chemistry—William Andrew Ellison, Jr., Moses Lyon Stadiem.

Honors in Economics—Thomas Banks Bradley, Blake Baker Harrison, Rhodney Bailey Reade.

Honors in Education—Donald Hayes Conley.

Highest honors in English—Aura Chaffin Holton.

Honors in English—John Elbert Bridgers, Jr., Allene Marie Parrish.

Honors in French—Annie Marguerite Land, Elizabeth Brandon Lumpkin, Carmen Erselle Mangum, Lucille Merritt, Hazel Elizabeth Thompson, Elodia Yancey.

Honors in German—Eleanor Chunn Simpson, Laura Fleming Winston.

Honors in History—Mary Georgia Airheart, Jane Christenbury, Herminia Ursula Haynes, Lessie Webb Hunt, William Hall Lander, Culver Hagood Smith.

Honors in Mathematics—Catherine Maddry Dowdee, Levi Rufus Maness.

Honors in Physics—Alvin Walter McDougale.

Freshman Honors.

Olin Ader, Annie Blair Anders, Whitford Smith Blakeney, Jr., Lucy Fleming Glasson, Evelyne Fitzgerald Hall, Edith Lucille Judd, Earl Puette McFee, William Cary Maxwell, Walter Brem Mayer, Clara Elizabeth Morris, John Anglin Ramsey, Elizabeth Hendren Roberts, Frank Gill Slaughter, William Freeman Twaddell.

Sophomore Honors.

William Speight Barnes, Julian Parks Boyd, William Rolfe Brown, Ora Texanna Deyton, Velma Deyton, James Joseph Farriss, Jr., Sidney Maxwell Kale, Lawrence Quincy Mumford, Ida Catherine Munyan, Annie Murnick, Sara Nachamson, Hazel Fern Reeves, Bessie Juanita Southerland, Lucius Stacy Weaver, James Arthur Wiggins, Jr.

It is not said that the character will develop in all its fullness in this life. That were a time too short for an evolution so magnificent. In this world only the cornless ear is seen; sometimes only the small yet still prophetic blade. The sneer at the godly man for his imperfections is ill judged. A blade is a small thing. At first it grows very near the earth. It is often soiled and crushed and down-trodden. But it is a living thing. The great dead stone beside it is more imposing; only it will never be anything else than a stone. But this small blade—it doth not yet appear what it shall be.—Drummond.

NORTH CAROLINA CHRISTIAN
ADVOCATE

Official Organ of the North Carolina and western North Carolina Conferences
Methodist Episcopal Church, South.
Established 1855.

Entered at the Postoffice at Greensboro,
N. C. as mail matter of the second class, acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided in section
1102, act of October 2, 1917, authorized
September 9, 1918.

Obituaries and Resolutions of one hundred words published free. All words above this number charged for at rate of 1 cent per word.

A. W. PLYLER ..... Editor
T. A. SIKES ..... Business Manager

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Year ..... $2.00
Six Months ..... 1.00
To all preachers of the Gospel, year 1.00

FIELD NEWS

DISTRICT CONFERENCE DIRECTORY

Rockingham, at Aberdeen...June 19-21
Salisbury, at Gold Hill.....July 6-8
Elizabeth City, at Mackey's
Ferry ..... July 17-18

* * * *

TO LENOIR

By Mary Rudisill.

The spot affords a fairy band,
And beauties cluster on the land;
The lowlands rise to mountain heights,
Presenting grandeur, beauty sights.

In winter cold her scepter sways,
Allowing rays of sun some ways;
The loving king for right aspires,
And speaks with balmy breath, "Build fires."

In summer mirth and warmth unite,
Ascending thrones to rule aright,
So fragrant airs the people breathe,
And love and joy together wreath.

A college finds a welcome spot,
And sways the name of Davenport,
So paramount upon a knoll,
Unfolding there the knowledge scroll.

All nature owns her magic show,
As winds perfuming learning blow,
With spicy lightness "Pour the noir,"
And fragrance lingers in Lenoir.

A WAYNE COUNTY SCHOOL MAK-ING GOOD

A short time prior to Christmas,
1921, a movement was begun at Patetown Academy, seven miles out from Goldsboro, to establish a Sunday school under the care of St. Paul Methodist church, whose pastor, Rev.
G. T. Adams, and several of the official board, among them Messrs. M. J.
Best, R. H. Stevens, G. C. Kornegay,
A. T. Griffin, R. H. McCrary, P. H.
Sasser, A. W. Gillett, W. D. Moore, together with Mrs. J. W. Daniel, Mrs.
Scott, Mrs. W. D. Moore, Miss Margaret Sasser of Goldsboro, and Miss Nannie Casey, teacher at Patetown, assisting and promoting the enterprise.

Mr. R. H. McCrary was elected its first superintendent, Mr. R. H. Stevens assistant superintendent, and Miss Nannie Casey secretary-treasurer. A great Christmas tree occasion was held on Old Christmas night, January 6, 1922. This might be said to be the inaugural of the enterprise. Since that time there have been but few Sundays that this school did not have a session.
There is an average attendance every Sunday of some 50 to 100 people and over.

Along with the school goes the gospel. On the second and fourth Sundays of every month after the school session Rev. W. O. Butler of Goldsboro, who is pastor in charge, preaches a short sermon. There is no Methodist church organization at Patetown at this time, but some candidates for membership have already been baptized and received into the church and enrolled at St. Paul's church.

BURKHEAD CHURCH, WINSTON-SALEM

This church was dedicated Sunday morning, May 26. Bishop Collins Denny preached the sermon and conducted the dedicatory service. Rev. J. S. Hiatt, the pastor, and his congregation began the construction of this building in March, 1922, the cornerstone was laid in July of the same year. In October the congregation moved into the basement, where services were held till April, 1923, when the main auditorium was first occupied. The building will take care of a Sunday school of 800. The value of building and grounds and furnishings is placed at $75,000. The leadership of Rev. J. S. Hiatt in this building enterprise has been superb.

SUNDAY SCHOOL DAY

Appropriate and attractive Sunday School Day exercises were creditably rendered in Savages M. E. church, North Gates circuit, the first Sunday afternoon. The choir was at its best and sang some splendid selections with Miss Rosa Baker as organist. The children spoke and sang excellent.

Owing to the absence of our pastor, Rev. J. O. Long, Mr. A. P. Godwin, attorney from Gates, gave us an excellent talk and emphasized religious training in the home and in the Sunday school. He quoted several passages from the tongue of that gifted man, Daniel Webster, which was appreciated by the large congregation present.

The splendid program was prepared by Mrs. J. H. Baker and Mrs. E. B. Speight.

SPRING HOPE

We have much to say, but will not take up your valuable space, for a few words will tell you that we are among a good, faithful people here at Spring Hope and enjoying the work with them. They have built on to and repaired our home till we have one of the prettiest and most convenient parsonage homes in the conference, at the cost of about $1500, with water-works and both installed, and house made new inside and out. They have spared nothing to make it comfortable for us.

The work seems to be forging ahead and new growth and life visible all over the work.

We expect to soon begin our meetings for the round of seven churches, which will take some time, but we have good, loyal men and women at each of them and a splendid class of young people who promise well for the future. W. E. Trotman.

DEDICATION OF SWAN QUARTER CHURCH, HYDE COUNTY

The Methodists and the people of Hyde county generally are looking forward to the 10th of June with great interest. That occasion will be the dedication of the Methodist church by Bishop Denny on the morning of the 10th at eleven o'clock. All former pastors are cordially invited to be present on this occasion and their former parishioners will be glad to see them.

This church was built by Rev. W. T. Phipps during his pastorate of the charge and is a neat brick building which is a credit to the place, and the people take great pride in it and are looking forward to the coming of Bishop Denny with much anticipation.

The bishop will also preach at Amity church on the Mattamuskeet circuit the same date at 8 o'clock that night and at Fairfield on Monday morning at 11 o'clock, thus giving our people on the three charges, and in all parts of the county, on the main land an opportunity to hear him.

This will be the first visit of one of our bishops to Hyde county since Bishop Granberry was present at a district conference at Amity church some thirty or more years ago. The preachers serving in Hyde county at the present time are W. P. Constable, Swan Quarter; J. J. Little, Mattamuskeet; D. A. Watkins, Fairfield; J. H. Nichols, Ocracoke.

HOLLY SPRINGS

It is really surprising to what extent some people will carry a thing, but one should not be alarmed at these Holly Springs people when it comes to good works. But in the face of all that I was as completely taken by surprise a few nights ago as I ever was in all my life. About 9 p. m. all of a sudden a number of auto horns began to blow. They were on the lawn at the front porch. I went to the door and asked what I had done. I do not know how many autos were there. So the people began to unload. I was still at a loss, and presently they began piling it on the porch with bags and bundles. I never have received nor seen anyone receive such a pounding as me and my family got that night.

Methodists, Baptists, Catholics, and I think every denomination that is represented in Holly Springs was present that night.

Long live these good people of Holly Springs. But what else could be expected of a people who have such pastors as these men of God who preach at Holly Springs? S. Salyer.

THE CHURCH AT BLOWING ROCK

Good and loyal Methodists who spend the summer at Blowing Rock or who go there for week-ends during the summer have often had their church pride punctured by the knowledge that three other denominations have better churches than we have, and by the further fact that men of talent go there and fill these pulpits on Sundays, preaching to interested congregations, while our own Methodists have to put up with once a month services by the pastor at Boone.

Last year while working there in a small Sunday school and church congregation the writer began thinking out a plan to remedy this. Just at this time Rev. W. L. Sherrill was thinking on the same line and mentioned the matter to Rev. G. C. Brinkman, the pastor, before I did, and while our plans differed they were to the same end, and the result was Brinkman and myself carried the matter to the mission board at the annual conference at Monroe, asking for a small donation to pay the expenses of such of our pastors as will take a week-end off and fill the pulpit there for a Sunday each, thus serving the Methodist colony at this resort, as well as the citizen membership.

In this effort we have been partially successful, and the effort has the endorsement of Bishop Collins Denny, who has promised to give us two Sundays in August, and a number of the pastors will hear from this writer soon, asking that they give us a day, have a small outing and serve an appreciative people. C. W. Hunt.

STRAITS CHARGE

The Ladies of Summerfield church organized a Ladies' Aid Society March 8th and elected officers as follows:

President—Mrs. J. B. Davis.
Vice President—Mrs. H. Hancock.
Secretary—Miss Carrie Whitehurst.
Treasurer—Mrs. R. E. L. Davis.

Only twelve members—little but loud. Since the 8th of March we have raised close to one hundred dollars, and last week my brethren promised to double all we can raise for the purpose of buying a new organ for the church. We want the prayers of all who are interested in our busy little band. C. Whitehurst.

MISS MIRIAM GOODWIN

Sunday, June 3rd, will go down as a memorable day in the history of the First Methodist church of Morganton. On that day the members in church conference unanimously decided to take Miss Miriam Goodwin as their special missionary in the foreign field.

Miss Goodwin sails in August to take up her work in Korea.

To the average reader the above has perhaps no special meaning, but to our church it has a great significance in the fact that Miss Goodwin was born in our community and therefore she is "our own." This church, supplementing the splendid Christian and missionary influence of her home has in a large way helped to shape this splendid Christian character who is now dedicating her life to the service of God in the foreign field.

We are proud of this and feel that God is good to us in this way showing us some tangible results of our labors. Miss Goodwin is a member of our Sunday school, joined our church at an early age and in her youth it was seen that God was moulding this young woman for some useful place in His vineyard, and she now goes to a place where the harvest is ripening and plentiful, but where the laborers are few.

Miss Goodwin has recently graduated from the North Carolina College, taking there such training work as would fit her for the task. She is an estimable young woman, of sterling qualities and is going into this work well equipped, as from childhood she has been reared in a home atmosphere where God reigns supreme and upon whose altars the missionary spirit is kept brightly burning.

We are grateful to God for His kindness in thus blessing our church through Miss Goodwin, and as we send her forth as our special missionary our prayers follow her, that God may richly bless this young life, give her strength and courage for the work before her so that through her God may be glorified and many of the benighted among whom she will labor may find through her the true light which is shed abroad in the world by our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ, and that by this light they will find their way to the Cross. A Member.

DEDICATION OF OAK GROVE, PERQUIMANS CIRCUIT

Sunday, June 3rd, was a red letter day at the rebuilt Oak Grove church on the Perquimans circuit, which was recently completed and is now a really handsome and useful church building.

At the morning hour the Sunday School Day exercises, beautiful and inspiring, were held, after which the church debt of about $1100 was raised.

Then followed such a dinner, for such a crowd from it seemed everywhere. Many former members and friends from Hertford, Elizabeth City and Norfolk were present.

At 2 p. m. Rev. T. M. Grant of Hertford made an inspiring address on the work of the church and Sunday school. At 3 p. m. Rev. H. E. Myers of Elizabeth City preached a strong spiritual sermon of dedication, and the new Oak Grove church was formally dedicated.

W. T. Phipps, P. C.

A FINE WORKERS' LIBRARY

Superintendent Moore of Sharon Sunday school is gradually building up a fine workers' library for his school. Beginning soon after the Standard Training School at Rocky Mount last September, he already has these books in it, and will add others from time to time:

1. "Organization and Administration of the Sunday School," Cunningham and North.
2. "The Methodist Church and Its Work," Tippy and Kern.
3. "Learning and Teaching," Sheridan and White.
4. "Life in the Making," Barclay, Brown and others.
5. "Training the Devotional Life," Kennedy and Meyer.
6. "The Program of the Christian Religion," Shackford.
7. "The Sunday School at Work in Town and Country," Brabham.
8. "Story-Worship Programs for the Church School Year," Stowell.
9. "Educating Through Story-Telling," Cather.
10. "Phunology," Harbin.

We recommend to other schools these books, which may be secured from our publishing house. Others which might well be added are: "Methods with Beginners," Danielson; "Methods for Primary Teachers," Lewis; "Junior Department Organization and Administration," Koontz; "The Religious Education of Adolescents," Richardson; "Leaders of Youth," Harris; "Handbook for Workers with Young People," Thompson; "Principles of Christian Service," Cope.

HELP THE NEEDY STUDENTS

I have decided to say a thing I have been waiting twenty years for somebody else to say, I hoped better than I could. But nobody has said it. I went to our recent district conference at Princeton cocked and primed to say it, but so many had things to say I could not get in. So I must get it out of my system or suffer serious consequences. It is this: The way most of our preachers are being educated makes our ministry cheap in the eyes of those, or many of them, we serve. What I mean is this—our boys go to Trinity or elsewhere, and have to wait on tables, cut hair, black shoes, or something else of similar grade to make ends meet. Then, whether right or wrong, they come to be considered just a bit beneath the students and others for whom they do this menial service. No use to try to polish this up; it's a fact, after all you can say for it. They graduate, the young minister and the student on whom he has waited during college life, and the former is sent to the student's home town or charge as his pastor. I need not enlarge on the situation, for it is so painful and embarrassing anybody can see it. The minister is at a discount hard to live down, for he is not considered an equal socially to begin with. I have seen this tragedy played, and it makes the heart sick. It is commendable in the minister to get his education that way if he is not able, but it is not commendable in a great big wealthy church like ours to allow such a case to be necessary. That boy will give our church possibly thirty or more years of his life for his board and clothes. Then in common justice can we not afford to give him the equipment for that service? I shall not be here to try to estimate the value of his service, but only pray that before he passes from the earth to come his rounds no more I may be gone. I think the world hardly yet appreciates his influence and his contribution to our well being. And do you think if this condition continues to exist there is a danger that our young folks will cease to answer the call to preach? Things have changed since the martyr days. I think the prospects of making money, building a comfortable home, and being prosperous, independent and happy did not appeal to our boys twenty years ago as today. Feeling something of the spirit of the age, and seeing others get high wages and have the comforts of life, he is beginning to ask why should the minister be singled out to live scantily, give his life away, then die a pauper? Then he begins to ask is the Methodist church is honest when it accepts such a condition.

Now to the point: I want to see these conditions changed. I want our young ministers, when they become the pastors of fellow students, to be appreciated as the social equal, and not the inferior who had to wash his dishes and pour his coffee during college days. How can this be done? Till a better plan can be worked out I believe we can form clubs to relieve the present conditions. Suppose we had a hundred men in the Raleigh district who would be willing to give $5.00 per year? That would put a ministerial student through Trinity College with what the college gives him. I know of two candidates in this district, and if we could double the number we could put them through. I am not talking about a loan fund—give it to them if they are worthy. He doesn't need a loan fund, for how under heaven is he going to pay back anything? A good man could be named in the district to handle the fund and the recipient. The ladies might form clubs and educate some of those bright, sweet girls of the orphanage. And I believe they will get more real happiness from this than from all the social clubs under the sun. My $5 is ready when somebody starts such a club. Men, let's do something. It brings the tears when I find a candidate for the ministry who is forced to work his way through college, for I know what he is up against. Let's equip him so he can stand up and look the world in the face unafraid. I want to live to see the day when our preachers will no longer have to hobble around on "permits" and passes, and beg hotels to give them off a few pennies because they are trying to preach. It makes our great church cheap, and the ministry cheap, and hinders the greatest work God has ever committed to men to do.

J. E. Holden.

FUTURE TIMBER SUPPLY IN FARMERS' WOODLOTS

Atlanta, Ga., June 11.—For its future supply of timber the South must look to the farmers' woodlots, says Roland Turner, general agricultural agent of the Southern Railway System, calling attention to the problem and the opportunity which "our vanishing forests" present to the Southern farmer.

The farmer's woodlot can be made to yield a steady cash income as well as to furnish lumber needed for the farm, says Mr. Turner, in urging careful management of woodlands which are on soil too rough or infertile for tillage, but which can be made to pay a profitable dividend by cutting out

MARTHA WASHINGTON COLLEGE

An ideal College for Young Women. Healthful surroundings. 2200 feet above sea-level, same as Asheville, N. C.

All literary teachers hold Master's or Doctor's Degrees. High standard faculty, professionally trained and experienced. All departments of high order. Curricula for majoring in English, History, Mathematics, Sciences, French, German, Spanish, Home Economics, Art, Piano, Pipe Organ, Voice, Violin. Conducted like a large home. Student "activities" a special feature. Address: JOSEPH AVENUE, President, Abingdon, Virginia.

1854

COLUMBIA COLLEGE
COLUMBIA, SOUTH CAROLINA

1923

One of the South's oldest Colleges for the Christian Education of Young Women. Standard Courses leading to B. A. and B. S. Degrees. Strong Departments in Music, Art, Home Economics, Expression. Christian Atmosphere. Magnificent Plant. Write for Literature.

J. CALDWELL GUILLES, President

THIRTEEN MILLION DOLLARS IN CHURCH VALUES

The value of property belonging to the Methodist Church in North Carolina exceeds $13,000,000. On this vast amount of property there is only $3,000,000 of insurance—less than one-fourth of its value protected.

Suppose you had stock in a furniture factory one-fourth protected from fire, what would you do? You would either sell, or hold the directors responsible.

See that your church officials protect your most valuable assets or you may be called upon to donate again to rebuild a church parsonage destroyed by fire.

Insure in The Methodist Mutual—owned and controlled by the two North Carolina Conferences

W. E. WEBB, Secretary

STATESVILLE, N. C.

the mature timber and protecting the young growth from injury by fire and other causes.

What can be done to make the woodlot pay is shown by the fact that in 1921 the farm woodlots of Maryland, where advanced forestry methods have been adopted, showed an average income of $2.75 per acre and each tract was cut over in such a manner that a new crop will follow the old.

As the South's largest consumers of wood as well as the owners of a large part of its present timber supply, farmers have a vital interest in forest preservation on their own farms and can make their wooded lands pay an income as well as to keep down their lumber bill, Mr. Turner concludes.

SHE EARNED $179.62 IN 17 WEEKS

Brooklyn Woman Finds New Way of Turning Idle Hours Into Useful Dollars.

Rochester, N. Y., Special.—The report that by means of a remarkable hand-knitting machine Mrs. E. Rosenbach, of Brooklyn, N. Y., has been earning an average of nearly eleven dollars a week in her spare hours at home, has been confirmed from the records of the Home Profit Hosiery Company of 863 Hudson Ave., this city. It has also been established that any number of other women are earning all the way from three to ten dollars a week in the same simple way.

This company has established a market for large quantities of woolen socks and wants to secure several hundred more home workers who have a few hours to spare each week.

The socks are knitted on a remarkable hand machine which is being furnished by the Home Profit people at a reduced price this month to stimulate the output of socks.

Those who wish to be the first in their localities to engage in this work should write for the extremely liberal offer which the Home Profit Hosiery Company is making. It is said that those who apply before July 1st will receive the benefit of this reduced price.

ALL HEALING SPRINGS

In the Brushy Mountains of N. C., 1400 feet elevation. Rates $12.50 to $17.50 per week. The place of "good eats," six miles west of Taylorsville, N. C., on State Highway No. 75, from Statesville, N. C., to Lenoir, N. C. Only 40 miles from Blowing Rock, N. C. The finest mineral water and the most ideal climate in the temperate zone. Two large comfortable buildings with or without bath. Rooms full of windows, or sleeping porches if desired. Capacity 125. The place for a real vacation. Fried chicken, country ham, the spice of life from the Brushy Mountains, with beans, potatoes and corn fresh from the farm, and milk, butter and real hen's eggs. In the mountains and at mineral spring. Hotel open June 1st. Write for particulars.

O. F. Pool, Proprietor,
Taylorsville, N. C.

EXPERT KODAK FINISHING

Developing and printing done by experts. Most beautiful work guaranteed at all times. Satisfaction or no charge. Developing 6 exposure rolls 10 cents, 10 and 12 exposure rolls 15 cents, film packs 20 cents per pack. Printing 1 5-8x2 1-2—3 cents, 2 1-4x3 1-4—4 cents, 2 1-2x4 1-4—5 cents, 3 1-4x5 1-2—6 cents. Quick delivery. Send one film to test our service.

LIGONS DRUG STORE,
Spartanburg, S. C.

"CHOICE SONGS NO. 3" NOW READY

Contains 16 beautiful specials, such as, "Seek to Scatter Sunshine," "Awake ye Saints, Awake," "O My Heart Will Be Happy," "On the Amen Line," "God then the U. S. A.," etc. Price 25c; 2 copies 40c. Or send 65c, and to above I will add "Choice Songs I and II" and that fine patriotic sheet song, "The U. S. A. for Me;" will also tell you how I preserve my eyesight without medicine or expense till now, far past 60, I read day and night without glasses. Two complete sets of above $1.

REV. L. L. PICKETT,
Wilmore, Ky.

WOMAN'S PAGE

N. C. CONFERENCE

Mrs. J. LeGrand Everett..... Editor
Rockingham, N. C.

W. N. C. CONFERENCE

Mrs. H. K. Boyer ..... Editor
Mt. Airy, N. C.

North Carolina Conference

KNOWING GOD THROUGH FELLOWSHIP

Every heart yearns for fellowship. The Father God walked and talked with the two children He first created, in the cool of the evening. God longed for the love of man when He so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son that whoso believeth in Him should not perish but have everlasting life. . . . It was in this last hour of tender, sacred fellowship that He said unto them with redoubled emphasis: "Verily, verily I say unto you, he that believeth on me the works that I do, he shall do also, and greater works than these shall he do because I go unto the Father." Have we so believed in and lived with our Lord that we have proven to ourselves and to others that in His name we have done greater works than He did while He lived on the earth? It is our blessed privilege.

Oh! how we need the quiet times to let God speak to us. You, His leaders, need far more than any of those around you the quiet hour where God may speak with you. Each day is full of work for God's chosen ones, but prayer is the greatest part of each day's work. The day came when Moses, the great lawgiver, heard God say: "My presence shall go with thee, and I will give thee rest."—Belle H. Bennett, Lambuth-Bennett Book of Remembrance.

WASHINGTON DISTRICT MEETING

The annual meeting of the Washington District Woman's Missionary Society, N. C. Conference, will be held in Nashville on the night of June 19 and the day following. All auxiliaries are requested to send delegates—adults, young people and Bright Jewels.

Miss Ida Hankins, one of our missionaries to Korea, is to be with us; also Miss Elizabeth Bass, a recent graduate of Scarritt, and a number of conference officers. A splendid program is being prepared and the Nashville church is extending a cordial invitation. Come and help make it a great day for the progress of our district.
Mrs. C. E. Blount, Sec.

LETTER FROM MISS ALICE GREEN

Our women are indebted to Miss Pulliam, secretary of the Durham district for the opportunity of reading the following most interesting letter:
Changchow, China,
April 4, 1923.

*** Last week was the most wonderful week I have had in China. Since Bishop Hay was here in December, we have had an Easter campaign on for the purpose of drawing the net and bringing the probationers into the church. Every church member was to bring in at least one, so we have been praying and working as a church and as individuals. Ten days before Easter we invited a young Chinese woman, a graduate of our Teachers' Bible and Training School at Nanking, to come and lead special meetings. This young woman's father is a high city official and opposed Christianity, so his daughter, Miss Wang, has been persecuted, but she has come through it all victorious. (Some time I hope to write her life. It is wonderful the way in which God has led her.) She came to us in the spirit of the Master, and I have never seen anyone used as God has used this young woman. She began her prayer and Bible study at 4 o'clock every morning. At 6:30 she led a prayer meeting in our home. The first morning there were only about eight of us, but it grew every day, until the last day people came from all over the city. These early prayer services gave us power for the other two services held in the church each day. When people get down to real prayer something is going to happen, so God has released His power, and it has come into our midst. Men, women, boys and girls have been born into the kingdom of God. God has laid His hand on young men and young women and called them into His ministry. No, we have never seen anything like it in China before.

There was a quietness among the people that only comes when the Holy Spirit is having His way. At one time the great audience was in tears, but quiet.

On Easter morning, counting the 14 babies who were brought for consecration, there were 98 baptized in our church. There would have been more than 100, but some were ill and couldn't be present. Quite a number more wanted to join on that day, but we felt they were not quite ready for the step. It was a day of great happiness all over the city. The other two churches together baptized over 60.

God is still working in our midst. Some of the older church members are on fire, as it were, with the message. The new converts are at work leading souls to Christ. Many are getting up at four o'clock to pray and to study their Bibles.

Two young women graduates from the government normal school have had definite calls to do evangelistic work. These girls are meeting with opposition from their home people, and they have asked for special prayer for their parents. They both, in the face of opposition, are making plans to enter the Nanking Bible school this autumn.

We believe that Changchow is coming to Christ, and that this revival is going to be far-reaching. "Our eyes have seen the glory of the coming of the Lord." He is in China. Please ask all the friends to be in prayer for us.
With love, from Alice Green.

NOTICE

The literature for third quarter, including Belle Bennett literature, has been delayed in coming to me. Some of it is here, and I look for the other every day. So hope to mail it out not later than June 6th. Please correct any mistakes I made in mailing list. When you write me state to what district your auxiliary belongs.

Mrs. W. F. Murphy,
Wallace, N. C.

WILMINGTON DISTRICT GROUP MEETING

The first group meeting of the Wilmington district was held in the Methodist church at Faison Friday, June 1, with Mrs. T. W. Lee, district secretary, presiding.

The program was a comprehensive one, and reflected the efficiency of the district secretary. Representatives from Duplin, Sampson, Pender and part of Hanover, comprising about half of the district, were present. Most of them gave good reports from their societies. There were some good speakers on the program, among whom were Mrs. Le Grand Everett of Rockingham, conference superintendent of mission study and publicity, and Mrs. Harvey Boney, conference corresponding secretary. The address of welcome was given by Mrs. W. D. Clifton of Faison, and the response by Miss Doxie Rouse of Clinton. Mrs. Jesse Fussell of Rose Hill, chairman of the Duplin county federation, discussed the work of the organization. Mrs. Chas. Carroll of Warsaw spoke on "Bright Jewels; Misses Elizabeth Forlay, Eunice Boney and Lucille Teachey gave a playlet illustrating life in Korea. Mrs. Boney gave a synopsis of the work, and Mrs. Everett stressed the importance of mission and Bible study. She also spoke of social service and inter-racial work, stressing our responsibility to the negro race. Mrs. Henry J. Faison gave a masterly discourse on stewardship. The feature of the program was the talk by Miss Ida Hankin, of Wilmington, returned missionary from Korea, in which she revealed the circumstances by which she became a missionary, and gave a brief sketch of Korean customs and the work the church is doing there, and showed a child dressed in native costume.

A very delightful feature of the occasion was the bountiful and delicious mid-day repast, served by the ladies of Faison. Mrs. C. Carroll.

Western North Carolina Conference

THE MONTHLY MISSIONARY MEETING

It may be true that the idea of what constitutes the ideal missionary meeting is not quite the same with us all, but by thinking into it a bit we may find there are ways and ways of assembling the parts of a program to make or mar the meeting.

The Programs.

I wonder if the majority of us realize the care, the work and the money that our programs cost. I wish every woman could have heard Mrs. Lipscomb's wonderful address at Monroe, "Building by Literature and Money." She told us something of how we get our literature, and gave us one expression which was delightfully expressive, "Give your literature a sympathetic handling." What did she mean? Did she mean that the president shall hurriedly glance at the program just when when it is time to start the meeting, and arriving there tired and fidgety give one leaflet to Mrs. Jones, another to Mrs. Blank, then these sisters spend the time during the devotionals trying to decipher the names of places in South America, Africa, or some other place, but fail to reach a satisfactory conclusion—and so state when they get up to read, but read every line of the leaflet in a monotonous tone, and look so forlorn while at it that—well, would Mrs. Lipscomb think that a sympathetic handling of that program? If the president had given out these leaflets and Sisters Jones and Blank had had a few days previous to the meeting in which to become familiar with them, they might have made their own, gotten the spirit of them, told them in their own way, and "looked pleasant" in the meantime, and been glad for another opportunity to take part in the program. Thus, by a wise and sympathetic handling of women, as well as of literature, we build.

Machinery—Does Yours Rattle?

I wonder if there are any missionary meetings so cluttered up with small local finances that they rattle as they run?

For instance: "Those last ice cream cones have not been paid for." Treasurer: "We have a few dollars on hand we made at the rummage sale."

President: "Is there a motion to pay for the cones out of the rummage sale money?" No motion. "Shall we discuss it?" and so forth.

Our work is now so organized with its local department, circles and various committees that procedure such as the above is relegated to the long ago—if yours is an up-to-date organization. If it is not, take it apart, reassemble it and start again.

Other Obligation.

Has your president a hobby? Deliver us! No cause, however good, but suffers in the hands of an advocate gone to seed on the subject. And to constantly hear money from the president's chair is not nearly so delightful as it is for the treasurer to work faithfully and quietly and tactfully among the members and bring up a good report. If any of the discussers wish to discuss, only on rare occasions, let it be done in the finance committee. Finances, to be sure, are vital to our work, and this, too, must be "handled sympathetically" so that we may really render a beautiful heart service in the very act of making our offerings.

The Heart of the Meeting.

Unless we get either information or inspiration from a meeting we have failed of the privilege which every meeting should offer. It all depends upon the spirit, the atmosphere, the "sympathetic handling" of wonderful means to a wonderful end.

METHODIST WOMEN ATTEND LUNCHEON

One of the largest attended mission study classes ever held in Charlotte was that of last Thursday and Friday when the Methodist ladies of the Tryon Street church gathered in the church parlor for the study of the interesting book, "Korea, the Miracle of Modern Missions," and this was followed by a delightfully planned luncheon.

The study class, taught by Miss Maud McKinnon, superintendent of mission study, began at 11:30 for the members of the Woman's Missionary Society and the luncheon was served to them at one o'clock, to which the members of the Business Woman's Missionary Society and the girls of the Sunday school between the ages of 15 and 19 were invited.

A very delightful and unique program was rendered during the luncheon hour at which time a number of three minute talks were given as follows: "Why Study Missions," by Mrs. W. W. Hagood; "Why Study Korea," by Rev. H. G. Hardin; "The Work of the Business Woman's Society," by Miss Blanche Mann; "Are the Girls Interested in Missions?" by Miss Helen Barnett. An added attraction to the program was the beautiful solo rendered by Mr. Earle Razor of the First Baptist church, accompanied by Miss Catherine Clinkscales.

At 2 o'clock the study class continued its reading of the book on Korea and another study session was also held on Friday.

FORMER PRESIDENT OF COLLEGE HONORED

A reunion of the class of 1911 was held at Greensboro College this week in honor of Mrs. Lucy H. Robertson, known and beloved throughout Southern Methodism, and who was former president of the college.

Mrs. D. A. Garrison of Gastonia attended the reunion, accompanying her being her sister, Mrs. C. A. Cannon of Concord.

Monday an elaborate six-course luncheon was given in the banquet hall of the O. Henry Hotel by Mrs. C. A. Cannon, honoring Mrs. Robertson. The decorations expressed the class colors both in silken draperies and in flowers. Close friends of the honoree and hostess composed the party.—Charlotte Observer.

We wish to congratulate Mrs. Cannon upon this expression of her love and appreciation of our beloved and honored conference president, Mrs. Robertson. Perhaps no woman in North Carolina has in the course of the years come in intimate touch with so many women as has Mrs. Robertson. For many years president of what was then Greensboro Female College, she touched the lives of hundreds of young women, many of whom are today leaders in their communities, and all of whom are stronger and finer for the influence and guidance of the president of their alma mater.

Also as president of our conference missionary society since its organiza-

(Continued on page thirteen.)

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORK

N. C. CONFERENCE

L. L. Gobbel .....Editor
Durham, N. C.

W. N. C. CONFERENCE

O. V. Woosley .....Editor
Lexington, N. C.

Western North Carolina Conference

THANK YOU

Fine recruits are continually being added to our Sunday School Day Honor Roll. Treasurer H. A. Dunham, Asheville, N. C., reports the following Sunday schools and offerings during the past week ending Wednesday, June 6:

Burkhead, Winston-Salem	....$17.18
Mt. Zion, Norwood Ct.	..... 4.50
Unley, Landis Ct.	..... 3.00
King's Mountain	..... 10.00
First Street, Albermarle	..... 5.50
Randalls, Norwood Ct.	..... 4.45
Cedar Grove, Norwood Ct.	..... 5.30

FINE WORK

Main Street, Gastonia, with Rev. W. A. Lambeth as pastor and Mr. J. H. Separk as superintendent, has the distinction of leading the conference in two Sunday school particulars: Fifty-two people took credit in the Leadership Training Course in the recent Standard Training School and this church gave $131.29 as a Sunday School Day offering. Both instances of fine work are greatly appreciated.

But Gastonia is not content with this fine record. Read what the pastor has to say in a recent letter received from him:

"Can't you send me, before Sunday, a printed copy of the 'Standards' for the Cradle Roll, Beginners, Primaries, Intermediates, Seniors, Young People and Adults? Something to post on the wall would be best; if so, send me the bill. If you haven't such a poster, any ordinary printed sheet will do.

We are going over into the new building next Sunday, keeping 'Seniors' only in the church. A separate assembling place for every department! And a separate superintendent!

All of our equipment is not yet in place, but the people are eager for some action. So action they are to have next Sunday."

BALD CREEK

Arising at four o'clock Saturday morning, June 2, I took an early train headed towards Bald Creek in the extreme western part of the state. On arrival at Marion two very profitable hours were spent with Rev. W. E. Poovey in consultation concerning his proposed new church. Things are going well at Marion. At about one o'clock the C. C. & O. train began its journey towards the climbing of the beautiful Blue Ridge and in the course of time discharged some of its passengers, your humble servant among them, at Kona, a little station almost hanging over the Toe River, where an accommodation train on the Black Mountain Railroad carried us to Burnsville, a distance of twelve beautiful miles. Burnsville is a pretty little place and is no longer isolated from the world, for progress has made itself felt, as shown by the construction towards the paving of streets, the laying of sidewalks and the buying of automobiles for use on the fine highways entering the town.

On arrival at Burnsville I fell in with my good friend, Rev. J. W. Groce, who hurried us out to the fine community center of Bald Creek, where on the following day an all-day circuit-wide Sunday school booster meeting was held, beginning with the holding of a typical Sunday school, followed by an address at eleven o'clock and after dinner on the grounds a general Sunday school institute was held in the afternoon. The day was full and profitable. The large crowd present seemed to be very much interested in the furtherance of Christian work. Brother Groce and his good wife are doing mighty fine work on the Bald Creek circuit. Two Sunday school rooms and new flooring covering the entire church have been placed in the Bald Creek church. The bill of lumber has been given for a new church at Riverside, a splendid community center half way between Bald Creek and Burnsville. Other signs of good work were manifest. Brother Groce is making himself felt in the community in every way and the people are rallying to his leadership. Bald Creek improves on acquaintance. Some of the finest people in the world live there.

DAUGHTERS OF WESLEY, HAMLET, N. C.

The Daughters of Wesley, an organized class of married women, was organized in 1921 with ten members. The membership now numbers eighty. Nearly all of the women have families and home duties. Many of them do their own house work and their regular attendance represents a real sacrifice. They are active in all lines of work. The three men standing are Rev. W. C. Martin, pastor of the church; Mr. L. E. Blanchard, superintendent of the Sunday school, and Mr. W. T. Reese, assistant superintendent. The officers of the class are Mrs. E. C. Cowan, president; Mrs. W. C. Terry, vice president; Mrs. O. D. Wilson, secretary and treasurer; Mrs. W. K. McNeill, assistant secretary and treasurer.

WILLIAMS & COMPANY

Rev. J. W. Williams, as presiding elder, and his fifteen preachers in the North Wilkesboro district, who are doing some fine business for the Lord, are a firm which I am pleased to call "Williams & Company." It was a distinct satisfaction to attend their recent district conference and to note the fine co-operation that exists among the members of the firm. Arising early one morning Miss Jenkins and I hurriedly traversed the eighty-five miles separating us from North Wilkesboro, spent five hours with the conference and returned to Lexington by candle light, thanks to the service of the Ford. Our work in the North Wilkesboro district is being wisely led and progress is being noted. The arrival of good roads is doing much to solve the situation. Some of these days we are going to see stronger charges in the baby district. It shall be our pleasure to go back into the North Wilkesboro district during the summer for some intensive Sunday school work.

ELEMENTARY WORK

Miss Virginia Jenkins, conference elementary superintendent, has given during the past several weeks most of her time to teaching in standard training schools, but in addition to this work two visits have served to put her in touch with actual Sunday school conditions. A very pleasant and satisfactory visit was made to West End, Gastonia, recently, where the building of an enlarged plant for the rapidly growing congregation was noted. Rev. D. W. Brown has arranged his building for Sunday school departments and therefore the small child will get what he should have a right to in his church.

Last Sunday Miss Jenkins visited our fine folks at Broad Street, Statesville, attending the Sunday school in the morning and meeting with Supt. R. C. Bunch and his elementary workers in the afternoon. Miss Jenkins reports the largest and best Sunday school in the history of Broad Street, the attendance having reached on a recent Sunday 556. Proper emphasis will at once be placed on standardizing the elementary work in this leading congregation.

North Carolina Conference

SHARON "ADVANCE" SCHOOL

Sharon Sunday school, North Rocky Mount circuit, Washington district, holds the distinction of being the first Sunday school in the North Carolina conference to become an "advanced" school under the official standard of efficiency of Program of Work "C." Your conference superintendent, on a visit to this school Sunday, June 3, checked it up and found that, due to the splendid work of its persevering superintendent, Mr. Paul C. Moore, and the co-operation of the pastor, teachers and pupils, it measures up completely under eight of the ten points of the standard, thus ranking as "Advanced," and lacks just two items in the other two points ranking as "Standard." These two items, namely, the organizing and enrolling of an Intermediate Wesley class and the securing of blackboards, will be attended to right soon, and the school will then have attained the highest rank under this Program of Work.

Some of the facts concerning this school are: Enrollment 202, with nine classes and a Cradle Roll and a Home department; five Wesley classes; Promotion Day observed annually; an hour and fifteen minutes weekly session, with program prepared in advance; Workers' Council in accordance with paragraph 389 of the Discipline; Graded Literature for Beginner and Primary classes, with the story method of teaching; nine separate class rooms; buildings and grounds in excellent condition, with small chairs for the little children; "Little Hymn Book" used; support given to orphanage, local charity and missions; every officer and teacher reading up-to-date books on Sunday school work; Decision Day observed in March, with 20 pupils making confession and 12 joining the church; Sunday School Day observed May 27; Fowler's record system for the school, with attendance averaging about 75 per cent of the enrollment.

NEW BUILDING—NEW PUPILS

There is a very close relationship between equipment and pupils. New buildings always bring new pupils to our Sunday schools and make old ones more regular in their attendance. For instance, Jarvis Memorial, Greenville, had over 800 pupils the first Sunday it went into its splendid new quarters, whereas it had an attendance of only about 500 before. Its average attendance since going into the new building has been over 600, according to Rev. V. P. Scoville, the pastor. Then, to return again to Sharon, North Rocky Mount circuit, marvelous strides have been made since moving into its new structure the first Sunday in January. Its average attendance then was barely 50 per cent; now it is 75 and sometimes 90, and many have been added to the enrollment.

It pays to build; and it pays to build adequately!

GOOD DAY AT SHADY GROVE

Leaving Scotland Neck Saturday morning, following the close of a splendid training school there Friday night, Miss Keene went via Weldon and Norlina to Warrenton, and on Sunday took part in an excellent Sunday School Day program at Shady Grove, Warren circuit. There was a large attendance, and Rev. J. T. Draper, the pastor, says it was a great day. Miss Keene has a way of presenting her cause that makes an impression usually productive of improvement in Sunday school work, especially with the little children. She takes up for the children, and the older folks rally to the children's champion.

(Continued on page thirteen.)

EPWORTH LEAGUE WORK

Rev. Daniel Lane, Stantonsburg, N. C.
G. C. Chalker, 1119 Realty Building,
Charlotte, N. C.

North Carolina Conference

DANIELS CHAPEL

At a special meeting of Daniels Chapel chapter, No. 9016, Epworth League, on Sunday evening, April 29, 1923, new officers were elected as follows:

- President—Miss Eleanor Daniels.
- Vice president and corresponding secretary—Wm. F. Parker.
- Secretary—Miss Lois Daniels.
- Treasurer—J. W. Brock.
- First Supt.—Miss Ruth Herring.
- Second Supt.—Miss Bertha Brown.
- Third Supt.—Wm. J. Daniels.
- Fourth Supt.—Mrs. S. C. Casey.
- Epworth Era Agent—Sammie Davis.

The president then called a council meeting for Tuesday evening, May 1st, to get the officers together and plan for the new year. Among other business taken up at this meeting the president was elected as a delegate to attend the annual conference at Morehead City, June 18-22, and a committee appointed to submit to the council a policy for the new year. Below is a copy of the policy which was accepted by the council:

Our Aim.

1. To have the four departments organized and active.
2. To conduct at least fifty-two helpful and interesting devotional meetings during the year.
3. To promote the spiritual life of individuals, keeping in mind our beautiful motto, "All for Christ."
4. To maintain the three covenants—Quiet Hour, Fellow Workers, and Christian Stewardship.
5. To visit and help the poor and sick, showing them that the league is interested in their welfare and salvation.
6. To have a business meeting every first Sunday night, and a council meeting each month.
7. To require all officers to submit their written report at the business meeting.
8. To encourage the reading of good literature, especially the Epworth Era and Christian Advocate.
9. To visit the county home as often as possible.
10. To aid the pastor and other church and Sunday school leaders in every possible way.
11. To encourage work of the younger leaguers.
12. To have a social each month, trying to have a different program at each.
13. To conduct a mission study class.
14. To advertise our meetings and welcome strangers to them.
15. To increase our membership.
16. To have 60 per cent regular attendance.
17. To observe anniversary day.
18. To have our league represented at the district conference and conference assembly.
19. To send a copy of this policy to the district secretary and one to the central office.

Our league is well organized and doing real good work, especially in caring for the sick, aged and shut-ins. We hope to be well represented at the Epworth League assembly at Morehead nad get some points that will make us do better.

W. F. Parker, Cor. Sec.

POLICY OF SENIOR LEAGUE OF GRACE CHURCH, WILMINGTON

1. To be a Standard Epworth League—100 per cent efficient.
2. To promote the spirit of Christian fellowship and to elevate the spiritual tone of our personal lives by Dr. Dan B. Brummitt of Chicago, speaker at the Morehead City Convention. Dr. Brummitt is editor of the Epworth Herald and a leader in Epworth League work in the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Dr. Ivan Lee Holt of St. Louis, to be heard in addresses at the Morehead City Convention.

conducting a devotional meeting each week throughout the year.

3. To endeavor through the ministry of love and sympathy and gifts of a material nature to relieve sorrow and suffering in the community.

4. To increase the interest of our young people in wholesome entertainment by providing a social activity each month, consisting of a literary feature and play out of doors, when practicable.

5. To have a missionary program each month, to conduct a mission study class, to meet our pledge of $400 to the African Special by personal pledge, and in every way possible to stimulate interest in and devotion to the Master's cause the world over.

6. To hold a business meeting monthly, preceded by a council meeting.

7. To assure the members of the Francis Asbury Epworth League of our abiding interest, to encourage and assist them at any and at any and all times.

8. To follow as nearly as may be thought advisable the program outlined in the Epworth Era and to observe special days in the League calendar as suggested by the Central Office.

9. To solemnly pledge ourselves to assist the pastor and the official board of the church in such way as may be requested, and to seek to make the league a vital force in the life of the church and community.

10. To adopt the following budget covering all obligations:

African Special .....	$400
Advertising .....	25
Delegates' fund .....	30
Miscellaneous .....	10
First Dept. ....	10
Second Dept. ....	100
Third Dept. ....	50
Fourth Dept. ....	25

Total .....

This amount to be covered by individual pledges, by annual dues, and by other means as the league may direct.

DURHAM DISTRICT INSTITUTE

Our institute, although the first held in the district, was very successful. While a number of the chapters were not represented, yet many chapters sent several delegates. The chief interest came from Durham itself, where a live city union, headed by Mr. C. E. Buckner, has kept the city leagues active. Roxboro and vicinity was the next best represented.

The institute was designed to arouse interest in and enthusiasm for the coming summer assembly at Morehead City, as well as to be a school in the problems of league work. Our conference treasurer, Mr. G. C. Cobb, and our conference superintendent of junior and intermediate work, Miss Edna Wilkins, were with us and took the leading part in the program. Rev. T. G. Vickers of Henderson, Rev. B. C. Thompson of Roxboro, and Prof. J. M. Ormand of Trinity College gave addresses. Others taking part in the program were M. T. Hipps, Miss Hazel Thompson, Mrs. Irene Blalock, L. V. Harris, G. C. Ervin, J. D. Stott, W. A. Kale, Miss Emily Mathis, Lee Davis, and Culver H. Smith, all local league leaders and principally Trinity College students. A pageant, "The Gift of Self," given by the Student Volunteer Band of Trinity College, was one of the features of the institute, and a poster exhibit contributed by the various chapters added to the interest of the occasion. The prize for the best exhibit went to the league of Carr church, Durham.

Under many handicaps the leagues of Durlam district have been making steady progress. The young people are getting interested in league work, and the older people are beginning to take notice and give support. Much credit is due to Miss Hazel Thompson, our district secretary, for her whole-souled enthusiasm in her efforts to bring the leagues up to the standard of efficiency. There are now about forty leagues in the district. Some of them have made remarkable records, others appear to be struggling for life. The aim is to make every league a force that means something in the cause of righteousness. It is the immediate aim, however, that every league be represented at the summer assembly June 19-23.

C. H. Smith,
District Reporter.

Western North Carolina Conference

TROUTMAN LEAGUE

Although our league has been handicapped a great deal by various things during the past winter season, we are now looking forward to the delightful season which is now presenting itself. We are hoping to do a greater work this year than ever before. Our league in fact has done a great work since we organized three years ago.

We held our regular business meeting in April and elected the following officers, who we feel sure have their whole heart and mind thrown into this work:

- President—Mrs. Mary Sherrill.
- Vice President—Ivy Ostwalt.
- Secretary—Jettie Sherrill.
- Treasurer—Foy Murdock.
- Supt. 1st Dept.—Lettie Perry.
- Supt. 2nd Dept.—Treva Lockey.
- Supt. 3rd Dept.—Stanford Brookshire.
- Supt. 4th Dept.—Myrtle Perry.

Cor. Sec.—Edith Kyles.
Era Agent—Ruth Clonager.
Junior Supt.—Mrs. Otho Whitener.
Our installation service was held Sunday night, May 27th, Rev. J. A. Peeler in charge.

On Saturday afternoon, June 2, the seniors and juniors were delightfully entertained at the home of Mr. Jim Ervin. All members gathered together at 4 o'clock and rode out to this beautiful country home, carrying with them a basket of eatables. But as we leaguers thought of passing by the church and cemetery where our dear friend and loyal leaguer, Beatrice Ervin, was laid to rest just seven months ago and who was our third Dept. Supt. at the time she was killed, we were prone to stop at this lonely spot and decorate this grave. Each of the girls carried flowers to the grave, while at the same time members of the Ladies' Aid Society carried flowers to the grave of the sister of Beatrice, Mrs. Loys Ervin Waugh, who died just a short time before Beatrice and who was a member of the Ladies' Aid at the time of her death.

After leaving the graves we continued on our way. The evening was spent very pleasantly by all, especially the younger ones, who were able to climb the hills. Supper was served at 6 o'clock. Shortly after we started home, feeling that we had spent the evening in a very profitable way, wishing for another similar occasion.

We are looking forward to and planning for the conference, which is to be held in Charlotte next week, and feel that much may be derived from this.

Edith Kyles,
Cor. Sec.

The Skin's Best Friend

Vanishes pimples, heals sores and eczema, stops rash, makes the skin soft, smooth and spotless.

TETTERINE

60c at your druggist's or from the
SHUPTRINE Co. : SAVANNAH, GA.

Nelson J. Miles is now making dates for spring and summer evangelistic services as choir leader, using Rode-heaver's Victory Songs. Pastors desiring his service may write him at Box 95, Dayton, Va.

DR. CHAS. W. MOSELEY

Diseases of Stomach
and Internal Medicine

Office, 229 S. Elm St. Residence, 438 S. Mendenhall St., Greensboro, N. C.
Office 604—Phones—Res. 1739.

FOR SALE

Twenty and one-half acres of land adjoining campus, two thousand feet from Rutherford College; ten-room house conveniently arranged, in first-class condition, electric lights good basement, barn, granary, garage, smokehouse, fine well and spring. Ten acres in cultivation, four acres in pasture, remainder in timber, good apple orchard. Fifteen minutes' walk to station, 12 minutes' walk to graded school. Terms reasonable. If interested write to or call T. E. Conrad, Connelly Springs, N. C.

Practical training in bookkeeping, shorthand, typewriting, banking, accounting and penmanship in the Greensboro Commercial School, Greensboro, N. C., will assure you of a well paying position. Students are enrolling weekly. Write for Catalog.

OUR ORPHANAGE WORK

METHODIST ORPHANAGE RALEIGH, N. C.

Hon. R. N. Page ..... President
A. S. Barnes ..... Superintendent
Mrs. Mattie Jenkins ..... Matron
Owned and maintained by the North Carolina Conference.

FORM OF BEQUEST

I do hereby will and bequeath to The Methodist Orphanage, Raleigh, N. C., contemplated by the charter under the Act of the General Assembly of North Carolina ..... (here designate the bequest) .....

THE CHILDREN'S HOME WINSTON-SALEM, N. C.

Rev. C. A. Wood ..... Superintendent

THE METHODIST ORPHANAGE

The board of trustees meets at the Orphanage next Tuesday morning. The one thing that ought to be uppermost in the minds of the trustees is how to provide additional room for the admission of more children. The situation that confronts us is becoming very acute. The pressure is simply terrific. The conference feels that the superintendent and the trustees should bestir themselves to relieve the pressings needs which is felt throughout the conference. Let us look to the great Head of the church for a solution of the difficult problem which has confronted us so long.

The Rev. H. I. Glass, the polished and wide-awake pastor of Central church, Raleigh, extended our singing class a warm welcome to his church on the first Sunday night. We are always glad to worship with the Central saints, because they make such big sacrifices for us. The Orphanage receives large contributions from the classes of the Sunday school, of which Bro. R. E. Prince is the successful superintendent. Brother Prince is one of our active trustees and counts it a joy to do whatever he can for the up-building of our Home. Our commencement sermon will be preached the third Sunday morning. Brother Glass will preach the sermon for us this year. We are glad that we shall have the privilege of worshipping again so soon with these true friends.

Smithfield is one of the most generous supporters of our Orphanage. Last year we received more than fifteen hundred dollars from the church, Sunday school, missionary society, Epworth League and individuals. It afforded me peculiar joy to be on hand the first Sunday morning with my singings class. The sacred concert was witnessed by a tremendous congregation. I was happy to see so many of my friends on that occasion. I spent four joyous years as pastor of these consecrated and forward looking people. It is one of the most delightful pastorates in the conference. Those people are not only loyal and generous, but are deeply spiritual. The Sunday school is thoroughly alive in every particular. Bro. T. R. Hood has been the beloved and successful superintendent thirty years. There is no man in the county that is more universally respected and loved than he. I had the pleasure of being his guest at dinner. It is a benediction to go into that Christian home even for a short while.

Brother Tuttle is in the midst of his third year's pastorate among those devoted people. He is ever alert and always about his Father's business. He has wrought wonders during these two and a half years. For forty years he has been one of the most militant preachers of our conference. He has advanced Methodism and the kingdom of God during these years. He has been a man of one work, and has given himself to the task of preaching the gospel with great zeal and positive convictions. When I get to writing about Smithfield I am in danger of wearying my readers because there is so much I would like to say about my many friends in Smithfield.

* * * *

That was a warm reception which we received at the hands of our Littleton friends when we arrived there Saturday night before the fourth Sunday in May. Mrs. Ransom, chairman of the entertainment committee, assigned us to lovely homes where we had every comfort. A great congregation welcomed us on Sunday morning. In the basence of Brother G. F. Smith, the beloved pastor, Brother Moore was master of ceremonies. He gave us a warm welcome to Littleton. The attention which was accorded our class was all that anyone could ask. The Baptists called in their services and worshipped with the Methodist congregation in the morning. Kind friends in Littleton conveyed us as far as Norlina on our way to Henderson, where we gave our sacred concert at the night hour. I can't express my appreciation to Mr. and Mrs. C. Stallings for the many courtesies shown me while I was their guest. We missed Brother Smith, who was in Greensboro attending commencement, and witnessing the graduation of his daughter. We have not visited any church that appreciated the concert more than our Methodist friends of Littleton.

* * * *

Rev. T. C. Vickers, the resourceful and talented young pastor of First church, Henderson, believes in the Methodist Orphanage with all his heart. He is showing his faith in the Orphanage by supporting one of our children. It was a brotherly invitation I received from him to take our class to his church. Though he had to be in Atlanta he had made all necessary preparation for our entertainment and comfort. Prof. Davidson, of the city high school, welcomed us in a few choice sentences. A capacity house witnessed the concert. Friends were complimentary in their remarks concerning our fine boys and girls. I had the pleasure of sharing the gracious hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Corbett. I have not visited any home where there was more consideration for their guest. Because of their many courtesies to me I was loth to leave on Monday morning. Henderson First church is giving us generous aid and will do even more now since our recent visit.

THE CHILDREN'S HOME

The old advertisement signs that so disfigured the landscape at the turn of our grounds toward Reynolda have at last been taken down and the red strip of bare clay that lies along the hollow is being doctored with Kudzu and grass.

The young peach orchard looks fine, but the late frost got all the peach blooms in our section.

A little further up the road is a clover field that The Home has a right to be proud of. A stand of clover almost knee deep before it turned a bloom, and a rich deep green that almost sings of milk and butter.

The boys who look after the cows are proud of their fine looking drove of cows. The cow barn is about the cleanest looking cow quarters possible, and the cows are washed and primped with an amount of care that seems to be growing in enthusiasm. Some of the boys were observed recently, after the cows had been showered with the hose, combing and curling the cow's tails with pocket combs, presumably their own.

There are a number of nice little pigs, too, in the pig lot. Two sets of them. There were three more, but a stray hungry dog killed and ate three.

There is only one pet rabbit left. She must be an exceedingly smart and wary old rabbit, for she has raised a number of little rabbits, which are as wild and shy as shadows, flitting here and there in the shrubbery, and survive the dangers that beset them—for a time at least, notwithstanding that hunters sometimes run their dogs into the edge of the grounds. Once or twice the chase has led into my back yard. But I am friendly toward the rabbits and do not like hounds, and the dogs are intelligent enough to reluctantly withdraw when they perceive that I am not going to stand for them to run rabbits around my yard. Like Jiggs, they can take a hint when Maggie reaches for a paving stone.

But my sentiments, of course, are not those of the boys. They enjoy gettings into the center of a pack of dogs. A crowd of little boys came swarming down the hill last fall to the musical cry of the hounds on the trail of a rabbit across the grounds. A man with the dogs fired at the heels of the rabbit regardless, it seemed to me, of the children. Possibly they were in no danger, but it looked like a cheeky proceeding to me and the rabbit.

The hunting trespass is, of course, only occasional, and in a measure accidental. The most unwelcome class of trespassers on the Home lands are those who slip into the Home woods. The boys discovered a liquor rendezvous—a bottle filled and waiting for some poor liquor slave, in a thicket beside a path. And automobile tracks that run up into a blind and overgrown road are not the road marks of visitors who have the good of society at heart.

One Sunday afternoon some of the young ladies going to walk ran across some men playing cards in the woods. Of course gambling isn't the worst thing in the world, but we should have the Home woods free from the class of people who do lawless things.

A good strong fence around the Home acres will do much to sift out the undesirable element that has a tendency to encroach on suburban property that is unprotected. It will also be a convenience to the little fellows in preserving the limits of Home bounds.

The fence is now a near possibility. The posts are in place and the fencing has been ordered. Freight orders, though, are no speedy processes these days.

Along the town-ward edge of the road, between our cottage and the corner, we are planning to plant a hedge, instead of the fence that we can afford at present. Though, as for that, an inconspicuous fence on the edge of the road would not trouble the eye viewing the wide grounds of The Home, because the grounds roll upward, and the eye naturally lifts to the strength of lawns and fields and groves and cottages above.

* * * *

Miss Ella Ivey, who has done such faithful and efficient work with the children of her grade and contributed so much to the happiness of the little boys in whose cottage she rooms, leaves this week for her home in Charlotte, where she spends only a few days before starting on a trip to Europe.

Miss Estelle Cherry, a sister of Miss Mabel, who teaches in our high school, comes to teach in Miss Ivey's place.

* * * *

The Louise Franklin Sunday school class of West End sent me a much appreciated check the other day to invest in books for the Home library.

The superintendent investigated the cost of steel shelving for the library room at the school building, but at the lowest prices offered was several hundred dollars, he decided to wait and have Mr. Binkley put up the shelves.

Doubtless he best part of our library will be the generous gift of books that Mrs. John Hanes has in waiting for us, a gift from her son, Mr. Ralph Hanes of New York—a thousand dollar contribution of new books.

Martha Mann Wood.

* * * *

The strip of ground skirting the road has been sown in soil improvement covering and is now a great carpet of oats and vetch.

Further up towards the superintendent's cottage has been planted in grass and a shade-enduring clover that is making a green show, even under the pines.

Margaret and I transplanted a bed of iris from the super-abundance in a border of our garden to a low point across the driveway in front of our cottage. The lilies never seemed to find out that they were moved, and flourished finely and made a pleasant spot of contrast of shapely blade and bloom to the new grass.

On the east side of our cottage, where the hill rolls up toward the boys' cottage, the flowers have been unusually pretty this spring. The cool weather has lengthened out the blooming season and given the plants a fine vigor of leaf and blossom.

Everyone stopped to admire the corner of blue iris by the stone steps. Two poppy plants grew up with the iris. I told Margaret that the poppies would have to open a lavender bloom to harmonize with the purple lilies. And to our surprise, the first that opened was a lovely soft lavender!

The poppy border grew such plants that we expected the blooms to be as big as saucers. They were not quite that large, but for a spread of gorgeous beauty they were the delight of everyone who saw them.

The boys, our neighbors a stone's throw up the hill, have a promising looking long flower border in front of their cottage, which they have industriously worked, planted and watered. But as it was just made this spring, of course it hasn't come into its full beauty yet. They have some fine looking pot flowers.

* * * *

The children are busily practicing for commencement. Our school closes later than usual this year, making up the three weeks we lost with the flu in the winter.

But the children do not mind the long school session. With but few exceptions they like the school time of the year.

We have two graduates of the high school this year, Rosinell Happerfield and Blanche Riddick.

SCHOOLS AND CHURCHES JOIN THE CLUB

That the superior quality of the pianos and the big saving in price effected by the Advocate Club are being appreciated by institutions as well as by individuals is shown by the fact that Secular Schools, Sunday Schools and Churches are joining the Club in goodly numbers. The following letter from a school trustee emphasizes one of the many good reasons. He writes: "The piano obtained through the Club is being used in the Musical Department of the School here and all are highly pleased with it. We feel that we saved from $75 to $125 by purchasing through the Club."

A Church official writes as follows: "I will say that the Church is pleased with the Club plan. The piano is first class material, workmanship and construction—fine tone, clear, soft and musical. It is an extra fine instrument for the price. The plan of payment is good, sound and satisfactory."

If you or your Church, Sunday School or Public School need a fine piano, by all means write for the Club's catalogue, prices and terms. Address the managers, Ludden & Bates, Advocate Piano Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga. (adv't.)

FOR SALE—THE McCLEES HOME Adjoining Trinity College campus, containing fourteen rooms, two baths, two basements; 75 feet front on 5th street, running 200 feet to 6th street. Apply to Thos. L. McClees or Prof. F. S. Aldridge, Trinity College Station, Durham, N. C.

Our Little Folks

PLANTING THE TREE

What do we plant when we plant the tree?

We plant the ship which will cross the sea;

We plant the mast to carry the sails; We plant the plank to withstand the gales;

The keel, the keelson, the beam, the knee;

We plant the ship when we plant the tree.

What do we plant when we plant the tree?

We plant the houses for you and me; We plant the rafters, the shingles, the floors;

We plant the studding, lath, the doors, The beams, the siding, all parts that be;

We plant the house when we plant the tree.

What do we plant when we plant the tree?

A thousand things that we daily see; We plant the spire that out-towers the crag;

We plant the staff for our country's flag;

We plant the shade from the hot sun free—

We plant all these when we plant the tree.

—Henry Abbey, in N. Y. Christian Advocate.

THE DISCONTENTED LITTLE SPRUCE TREE

(A Danish Legend.)

Once a discontented little spruce tree lived in a wood. The reason the little spruce tree was discontented was that it was covered from top to bottom with short, stiff little needles, though all the other trees in the wood were covered with leaves that fluttered in the wind and were never stiff and straight.

One day the little spruce tree said: "All the other trees in the wood have pretty leaves. I have only prickles. Nobody touches me. I wish I might have leaves like the others, only much prettier. I wish I might have leaves of shining gold."

When the spruce tree awoke in the morning, it was covered with leaves of gold that shone in the sunlight and brightened all the wood.

The little tree was so proud all that day that it wouldn't look at the trees with common green leaves. "No other tree has leaves like mine, and I am now the most important tree in the forest," it said in its heart. But that evening an old miser came with a huge empty sack and stole every gold leaf. Then he went away with his huge sack full of leaves and left the poor little tree naked and shivering in the moonlight.

"O," it said, "I wish I might have leaves of glass!"

The next morning when the little tree awoke it was covered with sparkling leaves of glass that shone like diamonds in the sun; and when the gentle winds came singing through the wood, the glass leaves made tinkling music. The little tree was then prouder than ever until a wild storm came and broke the leaves into tiny bits that soon covered the ground below.

The poor little naked tree wailed with grief. "Ah me," it said, "now I wish I had asked for common green leaves!"

When the little tree awoke the next morning, it was covered with the prettiest, softest green leaves that had ever been seen in the wood; but an old goat came along and ate every one of them, and the little tree was left bare again.

"O!" cried the little tree. "Why did I ask for gold or glass or green leaves? If only I had my old prickles back again, I should be so happy."

The next morning when the little tree awoke it was glad to find that the prickles had come back. All the dear little old straight prickles once more covered it from top to bottom. It had not realized before how comfortable the little prickles could be or how pretty they looked. But ever after that the little tree was contented with its prickles, no matter how straight and stiff they were. From that day to this no little spruce tree has ever been known to ask to have its leaves changed.—Frances Margaret Fox, in Youth's Companion.

THE BIRD THAT TOLD

Jay had been sent on an errand to Mrs. Green's, and when he got there Mrs. Green was not at home. A young lady asked him to wait in the living room while she emptied his basket; so Jay amused himself while she was gone by teasing a big, handsome parrot in a brass cage. Jay had never seen the parrot before, but it was such fun to hold a peanut near the bars and then when Polly reached a big claw for it to draw it back and eat it himself.

"Squawk!" Polly ruffled her feathers and made a plunge at the little boy, but of course the bars held her back.

"Pretty Polly!" said Jay with a grin. "I played a trick on you, didn't I?"

Presently the young lady came back and Jay took his basket and went home, forgetting all about Polly until several weeks later when his mother took him along to call on Mrs. Green.

"O, I'm so glad you brought Jay," said Mrs. Green when she saw him. "I have been wishing he would come over and see Aunt Emily's beautiful parrot. She is going home tomorrow, and this will be the last chance. Polly is so fond of children."

But when Polly saw Jay, she ruffled her feathers and gave a loud squawk instead of saying what Mrs. Green coaxed her to do. All in vain the cracker and the bit of meat she loved were given her. All she would do was to sulk.

"This certainly is very strange," said the lady who owned Polly. "She sometimes acts this way when children have teased her, but Polly never saw this little boy before. I am so ashamed of her bad manners." Then she turned to Jay and said: "Will you please excuse my naughty bird? She certainly must mistake you for some rude, bad boy."

For answer Jay ran to put his head in his mother's lap and sobbed out the story. "I was the rude, bad boy," he said. "I'm sorry."

Of course the lady forgave Jay when he said he was sorry; and though Polly could not be coaxed to say anything to him, the little boy went home forgiven and very much relieved. On the way he said: "Mamma, Johnny Snow is always talking about a little bird that tells on bad boys. Is Polly that bird?"

"Well," said his mother, "I don't know whether Johnny Snow ever saw Polly, but I do know that this particular bird told on one small boy."—Exchange.

GREENSBORO COLLEGE

The A-Grade Woman's College of the Two Methodist Conferences of North Carolina

Rated by State Department of Education as Class A.

Chartered 1838. Confers the degree of A. B. in the literary department and B. M. in the music department.

In addition to our regular classical course, special attention is called to the departments of Home Economics, Expression, Art, Education, Sunday School Teacher Training, Piano Pedagogy, and to our complete School of Music.

Modern New $50,000.00 Dormitory completed 1918. Conservatory of Music costing about $170,000 completed 1922.

Fall Semester begins September 5, 1923. For further information apply to DR. S. B. TURRENTINE, President, Greensboro, N. C.

WHERE GO TO COLLEGE?

There are three major considerations that determine the greatness, or the potential greatness, of an educational institution.

1. The Plant, including grounds, library, classrooms, laboratories, and apparatus.

2. The Faculty.

3. The Student body and its democratic standards.

In addition to the thirty-four buildings already on the campus, the State of North Carolina is this year putting $1,650,000 into new buildings and equipment. The library of 115,000 volumes is spending $24,000 annually for books and periodicals. Eight thousand volumes were received in 1922-1923, and one thousand and five magazines and learned journals were received on subscription.

The Faculty numbers 128 of the country's best scholars.

Speaking of the student body of the University, Mr. Sherwood Eddy, of Yale University, who has spent the major portion of his life studying in four continents, said, that with one exception, it was the most seriously thoughtful and democratic group of students he had ever known.

Registration for fall quarter, September 25, 26, 1923.

For further information address

The Secretary to the President

UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA, CHAPEL HILL, N. C.

RULES FOR MOTORING IN JAPAN

I suppose you folks over there in North Carolina are enjoying the springtime, riding around over the good roads in your automobiles—when you have time. We are enjoying peace and tranquility here in the Land of the Rising Sun, but just over border our sister has spilt ink on her apron again. Poor China! I think Ho-ti has gone out into the woods again, and his eldest son, Bo-bo, "a great lubberly boy, who being fond of playing with fire, as youngsters of his age commonly are," has let some sparks escape again. But I am not sure that the result will be "roast pig" this time.

Speaking of automobiles, let me give you a list of "police regulations issued to motorists in Japan." You might follow some of them with good results in America. Here they are:

1. You drive your automobile at the speed of eight knots per hour on the city roads and 12 knots per hour on the country roads.
2. In narrow place or road corner and bridge speed slowly.
3. When you see the policeman throwing up his hand you must not drive in front of him.
4. When you pass the corner and the bridge ring the horn.
5. When you get ahead of the passenger on foot or the cow or the horse, you must ring the horn.
6. When you meet the cow or the horse speed slowly and take the care to ring the horn and not be afraid of them. Drive slowly when you meet the horse or the cattle; do not make them afraid and carefully make the sound. If they afraid the sound you must escape a little while at the side of the road until they pass away.
7. When you drive the motor car do not leave the driver seat and take care lest unexpected trouble happen.
8. Do not drive the motor car when you get drunk and do not smoke on the driver seat.
9. When two cars are driving in the same road, if there is another car in front of yours or behind yours you must keep sixty yards away from him. If you go ahead of him ring horn and pass him.
10. When you cross the railway, wait until the other train and other cars pass through.
11. When anything matter with your car you go police station and tell him.
12. When you want to have a driver or exchange another, you must enclose driver's address, career and age.
13. SPECIAL NOTICE. You must never put overload on your automobile. The licensed capacity of your Ford car is five passengers—two in front and three in rear of house.

I. L. Shaver.

FRECKLES

Now is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots.

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as Othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of Othine—double strength—from any druggist and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than an ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

Would You Like to Go to Palestine, Egypt and Europe?

Rev. J. M. Rowland, editor Richmond Christian Advocate, will conduct a third tour starting early in June. Travel free from worry and get the most for the money.

Delightful party now forming. Reservations should be made early. Special Tour of Europe for young ladies, etc.

REV. J. M. ROWLAND

Editor Richmond Christian Advocate
P. O. Box 584, Richmond, Va.

You Cannot Afford to be without the Old Family Songs of the Gospel. Millions now in use. 83 songs, words and music, 12c. each in 100 lots, 161 songs, words and music 18c. each in 100 lots. Send 25c. for sample copies. We do not pay express charges on 50 or more books. Send cash with order.

E. A. K. HACKETT, Publisher, Fort Wayne, Indiana

Fishburne Military School

Waynesboro, Virginia
44th year. In Blue Ridge Mountains, 1300 ft. altitude. Four hours from Washington. Prepares for universities and business life. Small classes and individual attention secured through faculty of one teacher for every ten cadets. New $250,000 fire-proof buildings. Swimming pool and all athletics. Rate $600. Annual Spring Encampment. For catalog write Major Morgan H. R. O. T. C. Hodgins, Principal under U. S. War Dept.

DR. THOMAS NEAL IVEY

An Appreciation by James Monroe Downum.

A head of wisdom rare,
A heart sincere;
A soul of noble worth,
With naught of fear.

A hand of active toil
For others' good,
For God, and Church, and friends,
With genial mood.

A friend sincere to all
In all his way;
A helpful word to speak
For every day.

Soul filled with Love Divine,
As holy balm;
A face of quiet mien
And peaceful calm.

To every duty true,
To God and man;
Conformed in all his way
To Heaven's plan.

There passed a valued man,
More than we knew,
And to his worth we'd yield
The honors due.

No more his genial ways
Shall greet us here;
But life of richer strain
Awaits us there.

WOMAN'S PAGE

(Continued from page eight)

tion thirty-three years ago, Mrs. Robertson has led the Methodist hosts of women in paths of pleasantness and peace—yea more, she has led us ever on the upward way; "Forward, forever in the Master's name" has been her loud call to us, and inspired by such a leader to follow, not afar off, but closely, has been and is a joy to the hundreds who love and revere her.

The district meeting of the W. M. S. of the Mount Airy district will be held at Pilot Mountain June 19th and 20th. First session Tuesday evening, 19th, at 8 o'clock, and Wednesday a. m. at 9 o'clock, with picnic dinner served by the local society. All Y. P. and children's societies should elect delegates, and churches where there are no societies are requested to send representatives. Those who expect to reach Pilot Mountain on Tuesday evening to spend the night, please send names to Mrs. R. E. L. Flippin, Pilot Mountain.

We note that honors have been thrust upon Mrs. W. L. Nicholson, one of our capable missionary women of Hawthorne Lane church, Charlotte. She has recently made her debut into the journalistic field as editor of the North Carolina White Ribbon, organ of the W. C. T. U. We congratulate Mrs. Nicholson upon the opportunity for so fine a field and the W. C. T. U. upon their choice of editor.

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORK

(Continued from page nine)

MANY AT SUMMER SCHOOL

Many of our pastors are enrolled in the Sunday schools courses being offered in the Trinity Summer School for Preachers. Prof. H. E. Spence, of Trinity College, has a big class in "The Organization and Administration of the Sunday School," and Dr. C. G. Thompson, of Emory University, one in "Principles of Religious Teaching." In these classes also, in addition to sandlappers, are quite a number of our friend Woosley's hillbillies. Hillbillies and sandlappers alike are showing encouraging interest in the great Sunday school cause, and their attendance upon these Sunday school training classes is indicative of their determination to improve their own Sunday school organization and teaching and to train workers to carry on the work from Sunday to Sunday.

CHIEF OF THE HILLBILLIES

To us one of the delightful incidents of the closing of Trinity College and the opening of the Trinity Summer School for Preachers was the visit of our good friend and co-worker, Oscar V. Woosley, of Lexington, superintendent of Sunday school work of the Western North Carolina conference. He paid our office a visit, and together we discussed various topics of common interest. Under the wise leadership of this live wire, whom we have long known and genuinely admired and whose admirable qualities we like to emulate, the westerners—hillbillies, as our friend Woosley calls them—are making rapid strides in their Sunday school work; they are doing things. In fact, they have been doing things ever since Woosley took charge of the work about six years ago, and under his leadership they will make still greater progress as the months come and go. The fine way they are doing things is an inspiration to us, and we are always delighted to have an opportunity to discuss these things with this chief of the hillbillies.

TO GIVE CHIEF EMPHASIS

Rev. R. H. Willis, presiding elder of the Fayetteville district, is giving over the greater part of his third quarterly conferences to the interests of the Sunday school. Sunday school work is the one thing which will receive chief emphasis, and a special effort is being made to get all Sunday school officers and teachers particularly to attend. Workers of the Fayetteville district will do well to bear this in mind and be present at the next meeting of their quarterly conference.

SUPERINTENDENT GIBBONS

Mr. J. J. Gibbons has been named to succeed the late Mr. C. E. Weatherby as superintendent of our Sunday school at Faison. Mr. Gibbons, an energetic business man, is thoroughly interested in the work and has had considerable training and experience for it, and we venture to forecast good things for the school under his leadership.

FOUR TONS HAULED MILE FOR NICKEL BY SOUTHERN

Atlanta, Ga., June 11.—Five cents for handling one ton of freight four miles, or four tons one mile, was the average received by the Southern Railway System during 1922.

Figures which have just been compiled, covering the operations of the Southern for the year, show that 51,327,645 tons were handled an average distance of 176.52 miles.

The average amount received by the Southern for hauling a ton of freight this distance was $2.24, making the receipts from carrying one ton of freight one mile 1.26 cents—equivalent to carrying one ton four miles, or four tons one mile for a nickel.

These figures cover the receipts from every class of freight from sand to silk shirts and for all distances, from local hauls of a few miles to transcontinental shipments and exports and imports.

A GREAT VACATION FOR A DOLLAR

"Travels in the Old World," by Rev. J. M. Rowland, editor Richmond Christian Advocate, is the next thing to spending your vacation abroad. Special price during vacation months for one dollar; 438 pages of spice, thrills and laughs; rare illustrations. Order from Advocate Publishing Co., Box 584, Richmond, Va.

OAK RIDGE INSTITUTE OAK RIDGE, NORTH CAROLINA
T. E. Whitaker, President

Founded in 1852. Military. Courses thoroughly covering Literature, Science, Book-keeping, Short-hand, Typewriting, and Music. Eight buildings; electric lights, steam heat and shower baths. 350 acres in campus, athletic grounds, orchards, and farms. Beautiful lake nesting between hills covered with virgin forests. Healthful—1040 feet above sea level; accessible location near Greensboro. Sane, moral influences. Costs reasonable. $425 for the year. Fall session opens first Tuesday in September each year. Write for illustrated catalogue. Address OAK RIDGE INSTITUTE, Oak Ridge, N. C.

WOFFORD COLLEGE FITTING SCHOOL
SPARTANBURG, S. C.

Strictly preparatory. Prepares your boy for college on a college campus, under Christian influences.

Healthful climate. Closely supervised sports and studies. A member of the Southern Association. Conditions conducive to physical development, thorough work, and spiritual growth.

Rates reduced to actual cost, $289.00 for the year. Write for catalogue to

W. C. HERBERT, Head Master

1802

1923

LOUISBURG COLLEGE

A Junior College for Young Women
With a Standard Preparatory Course of Four Years
Property of North Carolina Conference

Faculty of specially trained, consecrated Christian teachers.

Health Record Unsurpassed. Home-like Atmosphere. Social Life Carefully Guarded. Athletics.

In addition to the regular college courses, Classical and General, attention is called to the departments of Art, Business, Education, Expression, Home Economics, Music (Piano, Voice, Violin, Theory, etc.), and Religious Education.

Rates as low as consistent with good service. Send for free Catalogue and Book of Views. For further information write

A. W. MOHN, PRESIDENT, LOUISBURG, N. C.

Don't Neglect

Falling Hair

It is extremely important to keep your hair and scalp clean and in healthy condition if you are to prevent dandruff and falling hair.

Caro-Co Coconut Oil Shampoo lathers quickly, is easy to wash out and keeps the scalp clean and healthy. Eradicates dandruff. Has a delightful fragrance, and leaves the hair fluffy and luxuriant. It will not stain light or gray hair.

You can possess the charm of beautiful hair by shampooing regularly with Caro-Co Coconut Oil Shampoo. It doesn't matter how lifeless, stringy or ugly the hair may be, it is made over to your liking,—soft and beautiful.

You will be delighted with Caro-Co Coconut Oil Shampoo. Price 50c for large bottle at all drug stores.

A liberal sample will be sent by parcel post on receipt of 10c, coin or stamps, which covers packing and postage.

CARO-CO LABORATORIES, Inc.
UNION, S. C.

PRESIDING ELDERS APPOINTMENTS

Western North Carolina Conference

ASHEVILLE DISTRICT H. C. Sprinkle, P. E. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for the Asheville District, including Summer School Trinity College, Mars Hill, Bright Hope, Elk Mountain, etc.

CHARLOTTE DISTRICT J. B. Craven, P. E., 413 Central Ave., Charlotte, N. C. FOURTH ROUND—IN PART

Table listing church appointments for the Charlotte District, including Polkton, Mt. Vernon, Peachland, Hopewell, Wadesboro, etc.

GREENSBORO DISTRICT W. F. Womble, P. E., 538 Summit Ave., Greensboro, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for the Greensboro District, including Uwharrie, Union, New Hope, Eleazer, etc.

MARION DISTRICT Z. Paris, P. E., Marion, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for the Marion District, including Marion Ct., Pleasant Grove, Marion Mills, etc.

MOUNT AIRY DISTRICT J. H. West, P. E., Box 422, Mt. Airy, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for the Mount Airy District, including Stokesdale, Glencoe, Summerfield, etc.

NORTH WILKESBORO DISTRICT J. W. Williams, P. E., Jefferson, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing church appointments for the North Wilkesboro District, including Avery, Mt. Zion, Elk Park, Newland, etc.

Table listing church appointments for North Wilkes, Union, N. Wilkesboro, Wilkes, Ferguson, etc.

SALISBURY DISTRICT T. F. Marr, P. E., Salisbury, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for the Salisbury District, including Norwood Ct., Harmony, Concord, Westford, etc.

SHELBY DISTRICT H. H. Jordan, P. E., Gastonia, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for the Shelby District, including Lincoln Ct., Trinity, Lowesville, Stanly, etc.

STATESVILLE DISTRICT D. M. Litaker, P. E., 240 Walnut Street, Statesville, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for the Statesville District, including Statesville, Broad St., Mooresville, etc.

WAYNESVILLE DISTRICT R. S. Howie, P. E., Waynesville, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for the Waynesville District, including Fine's Creek Ct., Haywood Ct., Jonathan Sta., etc.

WINSTON-SALEM DISTRICT W. A. Newell, P. E., 1084 West Fourth Street, Winston-Salem, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for the Winston-Salem District, including Oak Ridge, Kernersville, Walkertown, etc.

North Carolina Conference

ELIZABETH CITY DISTRICT C. E. Culbreth, P. E., Elizabeth City, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for the Elizabeth City District, including Currituck, Hebron, Belhaven, etc.

FAYETTEVILLE DISTRICT R. H. Willis, P. E., Fayetteville, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for the Fayetteville District, including Bladen, Center, Marners, etc.

Table listing church appointments for Duke, Angier, Dunn, Hemp, Mt. Carmel, etc.

NEW BERN DISTRICT F. M. Shamburger, P. E., New Bern, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for the New Bern District, including New Bern, Centenary, Straits Ct., etc.

RALEIGH DISTRICT J. C. Wooten, P. E. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for the Raleigh District, including Garner, Holland's, Oxford, Millbrook, etc.

WASHINGTON DISTRICT S. A. Cotton, P. E., Washington, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for the Washington District, including Elm City, Wilson, First Church, etc.

Table listing church appointments for Robersonville, Stokes, Bethel, Fremont, etc.

ROCKINGHAM DISTRICT J. H. Shore, P. E., Rockingham, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for the Rockingham District, including Lumberton Ct., Robeson, McKendree, etc.

Table listing church appointments for Rowland, Asbury, Maxton, St. Paul, Barker's, etc.

WELDON DISTRICT S. E. Mercer, P. E., Weldon, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for the Weldon District, including Warrenton Ct., Littleton Station, Halifax Ct., etc.

WILMINGTON DISTRICT J. M. Daniel, P. E., 519 Grace Street, Wilmington, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for the Wilmington District, including Branch, a.m., Burgaw, Zion, a.m., etc.

Forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark.—Phil. iii. 13, 14.

Advertisement for Oxford Teachers' Bibles, featuring an illustration of a family and text describing the benefits of the Bible.

SORES BOILS, CUTS and BURNS have been healed since 1820 with
Gray's Ointment
 Sold by all druggists. Write for sample to W. F. Gray & Co., 710 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

THE SALISBURY MARBLE CO.
 Salisbury, N. C.
Anything in... CEMETERY WORK
 Satisfaction our Motto
 A card will bring full information.

Man'rs Tents, Awnings, Paulins, Gospel Tents a specialty. We rent Tents, Oldest Tent Company in the South.

 M. D. SMITH
 TENT AND AWNING CO., 136 1/2 Marietta St., Atlanta, Ga.

JAMES M. McMICHAEL
 CHURCH ARCHITECT
 Charlotte, N. C.

School Desks, Opera Chairs, Folding Chairs, Kindergarten Chairs, Church Pews, School Supplies, Blackboards

 Southern Desk Co., Hickory, N. C.

CHURCH FURNITURE
 PEWS · PULPITS
 CHANCEL FURNITURE
 SUNDAY SCHOOL SEATING
 CATALOGUES ON REQUEST
 American Seating Company
 CHICAGO
 J. E. & E. H. REILLEY
 Sales Representatives
 220 Latta Arcade
 CHARLOTTE, N. C.

ATLANTA, GA.
ATLANTA TENT & AWNING CO.
 OUR PRICES ON QUALITY GOSPEL TENTS CANNOT BE EQUALLED - WRITE TODAY

GOSPEL TENTS

Why Take Laxatives?
 Discovery by Science Has Replaced Them.
 Pills and salts give temporary relief from constipation only at the expense of permanent injury, says an eminent authority.
 Science has found a newer, better way—a means as simple as Nature itself.
 In perfect health a natural lubricant keeps the food waste soft and moving. But when constipation exists this natural lubricant is not sufficient. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it acts like this natural lubricant and thus secures regular bowel movements by Nature's own method—lubrication.
 As Nujol is not a medicine or laxative, it cannot gripe and, like pure water, it is harmless and pleasant.
 Nujol is used in leading hospitals. Get a bottle from your druggist today.
 (adv.)

EMERGENCY PASTOR
 During 1884-87 I was pastor of a charge of which Maxton was a part. After finishing my term here I served about a dozen other good charges, but finding no better place than Maxton, I came back and served St. Paul's church here in Maxton as pastor another full term, ending with our last annual conference.
 On account of rheumatic trouble I was unable to undertake heavy work, and as suitable work could not be found for me, I had to ask for a place in the ranks of the superannuates. To an individual who had been active and very busy for forty years, save one, it seemed mighty blank and dreary to be out of a job. But seemingly by common consent I became "emergency pastor" of all the churches in and about Maxton, so it was not so bad after all to be a superannuate.
 On the first Sunday in May I preached for the Maxton Presbyterians at 11 o'clock in the morning, and in the afternoon of the same day I preached at Harmony school house, six miles in the country, "filling in" for Dr. Hill, who was in Richmond. Dr. Hill, who is now in his ninety-second year, and has been pastor of the Presbyterian church here in Maxton the past thirty-five years, is still active and is honored and loved by all the people of this section, regardless of denominational lines. As an expounder of the Bible Dr. Hill has no superior and few equals. On the morning of the first Sunday a great congregation turned out to hear the message from the lips of the "emergency pastor," and what they had to say about the message ought to satisfy any reasonable human being.
 In the afternoon of the first Sunday I preached to a well filled house at Harmony school house, "filling in" for Dr. Hill. Here again we were deeply gratified at the expressions of appreciation on the part of those to whom the message was delivered.
 A few days later a representative of the Maxton Presbyterian church handed me an envelope with ten crisp bills of "long green" enclosed, saying as he handed it to me that it was a slight token of the appreciation of the church of which he is a member. Only one trouble about these bills—they are so new and pretty I do not see how I can ever get the consent of my mind to spend them.
 The second Sunday in May I spent in Lumberton "filling in" for Dr. Beaman, who was absent from Lumberton to deliver one of his great messages to another fortunate congregation at the closing exercises of a school. Dr. Beaman is in the midst of his sixth year as pastor of Chestnut Street church, and whatever some of us may think about the wisdom or unwisdom of the change in our church law concerning the time limit for pastors, I am quite sure no interest of the kingdom of our Lord has suffered because of the departure from the old law in the case of Dr. Beaman. The membership of Chestnut Street church in Lumberton is not large in numbers, but it is composed of a class of people that makes it quite large in all other respects. No wonder Dr. Beaman delights in speaking of the good qualities of his people, and no wonder they take equal delight in speaking of their gifted pastor. It is a delight to the soul to preach to such a congregation. Were it not for the known fact that no one else could possibly fill his place with that congregation, it may be that some of us would find ourselves wishing Dr. Beaman would move on and let us have that delightful charge for a term of six years.
 Sunday night as I passed out of the church Bro. G. W. Whitfield, treasurer of the church, in shaking my hand left in it a check sufficiently large to purchase a spring suit, which I happen to stand in need of just now, though I had given no hint of such a need to that congregation.
 Sincerely, J. A. Hornaday.

Blue Ridge School For Boys
 HENDERSONVILLE, N. C.
 A select home school on Accredited List, offering to a limited number of boys, from 9 to 20 years old, a more intensive system of training than public schools can give. Ideally located in healthful, invigorating climate, conducive to study. Each boy's personality carefully studied and directed by efficient teaching staff composed of virile, patriotic men with successful teaching careers. A teacher for every seven or eight boys insures individual attention in studies. Boys taught HOW TO STUDY. All branches of athletics directed and supervised by able instructors.
 High moral tone; cultured, homelike environments; parental discipline. Total charge for session, September 18 to June 4, $650. Summer term, July and August. For catalog, address
 J. R. SANDIFER, Headmaster, Hendersonville, N. C.

THE STIEFF TONE
 is famous with three generations of music lovers. It has never been duplicated. It is the expression of a passion for perfection that has actuated three generations of piano makers.

 Chas. M. Stieff, Inc.,
 Charlotte, N. C.
 Please send catalogue and prices of Pianos.
 Name .....
 Address .....
STIEFF PETIT GRAND
 The smallest Grand Piano made that embodies all the essential qualities of the Concert Grand.
 CHAS. M. STIEFF, Inc.
 CHARLOTTE, N. C.

DAVENPORT COLLEGE
 FOR YOUNG WOMEN LENOIR, N. C.
 A three-year Junior College with a record of sixty-eight years of exceptional Academic work.
 Well Equipped, Conservative, but thoroughly abreast of the times.
 Fine Type of Student Life. A Safe Place for Young Women to study under close but sympathetic discipline.
 Moderate Expenses. The lowest cost commensurate with a High Type of Modern Instruction.
 A Registered Nurse constantly in attendance. A most healthful location, in the foothills of the Blue Ridge.
 Courses in the Regular Academic Department and Art, Music, Expression, Domestic Science, Domestic Art and Secretarial Courses.
 A four-year preparatory course on same campus and correlated with the college.
 For Catalogue and Views,
 Address PRESIDENT C. L. HORNADAY, LENOIR, N. C.

FOUNDED 1838 CHARTERED IN 1859
TRINITY COLLEGE
 DURHAM, N. C.
 A Southern College of liberal arts with an established national reputation for high standards, noble traditions, and progressive policies. Its large endowment fund makes possible its first-class equipment and large faculty of well trained and carefully chosen teachers. Student fees low. Comfortable, inexpensive rooms in carefully supervised hygienic dormitories.
 Classical and scientific courses leading to the bachelor's degree. Graduate courses in all departments. Schools of Engineering, Education, and Law.
 For catalogue and illustrated booklet, address
R. L. FLOWERS,
 Secretary to the Corporation.

IN MEMORIAM

Renew Your Health At Nature's Fountain

Without the Expense and Loss of Time Necessary for a Visit to the Spring

DEAL—Lawrence Rockwell Deal was killed suddenly May 17, 1923, by the discharge of a shotgun. He was in his fortieth year. On November 15, 1894, he was married to Lizzie Moore. To this union were born five children, all of whom are living. At about 16 years of age he professed faith in Christ and joined the A. R. P. church at New Sterling, later moving to Trinity Methodist church, where he remained a consistent member until his death. The funeral was conducted from the home the day following by his pastor, Rev. R. L. Melton, and the body laid to rest in the cemetery at Statesville. A Friend.

RUSSELL—Billie Martin Russell was born July 24, 1918; died April 29, 1922. Billie Martin was the second son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Russell of Canton, N. C., a child of unusual brightness and loved by all who knew him. Little Billie came to his tragic death while visiting at his grandfather's, his clothes catching fire while the grandparents were out of the house. He was rushed to an Asheville hospital and all done that it was possible to do, but he died as result of the burns. Young as was the child his last moments were conscious and beautiful indeed, for he talked of another home and begged his loved ones not to cry, so unselfish and thoughtful of others even in the jaws of death is indeed wonderful for mature saints much less for a little child.

The mother, although her very heart is yet bleeding over her loss, talks of Billie as waiting for her at the portals of another shore. Her interest in heaven is multiplied and instead of being rebellious toward God her faith is beautiful and her talk of the future life inspiring. In the language of the poet this mother expresses her faith in God and the future of her darling boy.

My Baby Still, Though Gone. "I have a little baby waiting for me On the beautiful banks of the crystal sea.

I know how patient he waits me there, For I see a smile light up his face so fair.

He has found his place in the white-robed throng,

He has joined with the choir in heaven's song;

And I can hear his voice ring out so clear,

So soothingly sweet to faith's listening ear.

"I have a little boy waiting for me On the beautiful banks of the crystal sea."

When the great Refiner has fitted me And I, too, shall stand beside the crystal sea;

When I, in the robes of righteousness dressed,

Shall come to the home of the pure and blessed,

O what a joyous reunion 'twill be, For my boy, still waiting, will welcome me.

J. O. Banks, Former Pastor.

TUTTLE—Mrs. Louretta Ward Tuttle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Ward, of Stokes county, died at her home near Leaksville October 29, 1922, age 54 years and three months. She was married to John G. Tuttle, of Walnut Cove, thirty-one years ago, and to this union were born twelve children, all of whom, together with her husband, two step-children, and six grand-children survive her. She is also survived by her mother, two sisters and four brothers. Early in life Sister Tuttle was converted and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, at Delta, in Stokes county, and later, upon moving to Rockingham county, she transferred her membership to Centenary church on the Mayodan charge, where it remained till her death. Her life was such that none who knew her could question her sincerity and deep piety.

During the last months of her life, although suffering greatly from a complication of diseases, yet she bore her sufferings uncomplainingly with much patience and fortitude. Her pastor, the writer, visited her several times during her last illness, and in talking

THE CRISIS

There comes a time in the life of practically every man and woman when their digestive or eliminative organs, or both, fail to respond to drugs prepared by human skill. In fact drugs seem to do them about as much harm as good for their systems rebel against all drugs. These are the cases which physicians call "stubborn" and "chronic" for the reason that they persist in spite of drug treatment. We do not refer to incurable diseases such as cancer and consumption, but to that larger class of functional disorders which we meet every day, where the organs of digestion and elimination are impaired.

For this class of cases our best physicians and our big city specialists send their wealthy patients to the mineral springs where, in the great majority of cases they are permanently restored or decidedly benefited. But what about the poor man who has not the money or the busy man or woman who cannot spare the time to spend several weeks or possibly months at a health resort? Shall circumstances deny them the restoration to health which Nature has provided? Read our answer in the coupon at the bottom of this page.

We have the utmost confidence in the Shivar Mineral Spring Water for it has made us thousands of friends in all parts of America and even in foreign countries, whose faces we have never seen. Yet we count them our friends for the with her she often would refer to her rich personal experience and her hope of heaven, and in doing so often her countenance would become radiant, indicating the joy that comes to those who are trusting in a Saviour's love. Just a little while before she went away, she very audibly sang some favorite songs, then closed her eyes, and as quietly and peacefully as a babe falls asleep in its mother's arms, she slipped away to be with Jesus.

Rev. W. L. Dawson, of Spray, in the absence of her pastor, conducted the funeral services, after which her remains were laid to rest in the cemetery at Stoneville to await the resurrection. May all the bereaved ones meet her in heaven.

W. M. Wall, Pastor.

MARTIN—George W. Martin, one of the best known and most highly esteemed citizens of Madison, N. C., passed away on May 16th at one o'clock in the afternoon. Brother Martin was a leader in church and educational activities.

Some few weeks ago Mr. Martin suffered a slight attack of paralysis from which he soon rallied. On May 15th, Shivar Spring Water has bound them to us by lasting gratitude.

We ask you to read their letters, a few samples of which we publish below for your benefit, and if you find among them any encouragement as to your own health do not hesitate to accept our offer which has no limits or conditions except those shown on the coupon.

INDIGESTION

I was suffering with indigestion, stomach and liver disorders and all its train of horrifying phenomena for several months. I had lived on milk, soft eggs, shredded wheat, a very insufficient diet for an active working man, and, of course, from disease and starvation was in a very low state of nervous vitality and general debility. I ordered ten gallons of your Mineral Water which I used continuously, reordering when necessary, and in four months gained twenty-nine pounds, was strong and perfectly well, and have worked practically every day since. It acts as a general renovator of the system. I prescribe it in my practice, and it has in every instance had the desired effects. It is essential to use this water in as large quantities as possible, for its properties are so happily blended and in such proportion that they will not disturb the most delicate system. It is purely Nature's remedy. A. L. A., M. D.

I feel it my duty to suffering humanity to make public announcement of the benefits I have derived from Shivar Spring Water. I have been a sufferer for the past twenty-five years from indigestion and dyspepsia. After one week's trial of Shivar Water I commenced to improve, and after drinking it for four weeks I gained fifteen pounds. I feel better and stronger than I have in twenty-five years. I strongly recommend this Water to any one with stomach trouble of any

Fill Out This Coupon and Mail It Today

Shivar Springs, Box 4T, Shelton, S. C. Gentlemen: I accept your offer and enclose herewith three dollars ($3.00) for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Spring Water. I agree to give it a fair trial in accordance with the instructions which you will send, and if I report no benefit therefrom you agree to refund the price of the water in full upon receipt of the two empty demijohns, which I agree to return within thirty days. Name P. O. Express Office Please write distinctly.

character. I am writing this voluntarily and trust it will fall in the hands of many who are so unfortunate as to be afflicted with indigestion and nervous dyspepsia. C. V. T.

DYSPEPSIA

For many years I suffered with stomach trouble as a direct result of asthma. I consulted the very best specialist in this country, and spent quite a large sum of money in my endeavor to get relief. However, I had about come to the conclusion that my case was hopeless, but by accident I happened to get hold of one of your booklets, and decided to try Shivar Spring Water. After drinking the water for about three weeks I was entirely relieved, and since that time have suffered but little inconvenience from my trouble. I cheerfully recommend the use of your Water to any one that may be suffering from stomach trouble. O. T. S.

It is a great pleasure to tell you that your Water has been a great benefit, I may say a great blessing, to me. My wife says it has helped me more than anything else I ever tried. I have been, for thirty years, a sufferer from stomach trouble. REV. E. H. R.

RHEUMATISM

I have tested your Spring Water in several cases of rheumatism, chronic indigestion, kidney and bladder troubles, and in nervous and sick headaches, and find that it has acted nicely in each case. It will purify the blood, relieve debility, stimulate the action of the liver, kidneys and bladder, aiding them in throwing off all poisonous matter. C. A. C., M. D.

I suffered with indigestion and kidney trouble, and a year ago was stricken with acute articular rheumatism; was helpless for months, and since using your Spring Water I am walking without any crutch and improving daily. Indigestion much relieved. I wish I could write Shivar Spring Water in the sky so that the world could become acquainted with it. MRS. T. K.

RENAL AND CYSTIC

I suffered for eight years with kidney trouble and inflammation of the bladder to the extent that I would have to get up during the night some five or six times. After using this water only a few days, I am entirely relieved and suffer no more effect of the trouble whatever. J. P. D.

My wife has had a bad kidney trouble for several years. She has been using the water only about three weeks and it has already made her a new woman. Her color is much improved, her appetite is all that she could wish for, her digestion seems to be perfect. We give Shivar Springs credit for it all. T. G. S.

early in the morning, he suffered the second stroke, from which he never regained consciousness, dying Wednesday morning at one o'clock.

Mr. Martin, who was 73 years old last March, was known and loved all over Rockingham and Stokes counties. He was affectionately called "Uncle George" by thousands of his friends. He knew most all the ministers of the Western North Carolina conference, especially the older ones, and they all called him Uncle George. For fifty or more years has been a consistent member of the Methodist Church, South, of Madison, N. C. He attended most all the annual and district conferences. For 32 years Mr. Martin was steward of his church. For the same length of time he was trustee of church and parsonage property. For 22 years he was district steward and recording steward. Besides his church activities Mr. Martin was chairman of the board of education for the county of Rockingham for 22 years. He was mayor of Madison for two successive terms. Besides all this Brother Martin was a successful business man. In so great affection did his church hold him that he was recently presented a gold-headed cane as a mark of esteem.

Surviving Brother Martin are his wife and one daughter, Miss Evelyn Martin of Madison, N. C., one sister, Mrs. R. P. Webster of Madison, and two brothers, H. T. Martin of Greensboro and R. A. Martin of Pelham.

The funeral was conducted from the Methodist church, Madison, of which he was a member. The pastor, Rev. J. P. Morris, assisted by the other ministers of the town, conducted a short service in the church, after which the funeral services were turned over to the Masons of Star Lodge, Madison, of which Mr. Martin was a member, Mr. Leon Cash of Winston-Salem having charge of the services at the grave.

It was estimated that there were over one thousand people at the funeral. The floral offering was very beautiful as well as profuse. We will miss Brother Martin, his wife and daughter will miss him most. To them we extend our sympathy. Brother Martin has gone to be with his Lord and the two daughters who have gone on before. We shall see him by and by. J. P. Morris, Pastor.

NORTH CAROLINA Christian Advocate

Volume LXVIII

GREENSBORO, N. C., THURSDAY, JUNE 21, 1923

No. 25

EDITORIAL ~ PARAGRAPHS

Darwin and monkeys have supplanted women and poodle-dogs as a keynote of popular outcry against the times. What will be next in this piddling with social, scientific and religious problems?

* * * *

Wherein is a man like a mule? In quite a number of respects, but especially in two: He cannot kick and pull at the same time, neither can he tell whether he kicks because he brays or brays because he kicks.

* * * *

"My gray gull lifts wings against the nightfall and takes the dim leagues with a fearless eye." That sentence is a tonic to faith and daring and gives wings to the imagination. But to fully appreciate it one must have stood at nightfall upon the beach and have gazed across the unmeasured waters as the waves lashed the shore and darkness settled upon the sea.

* * * *

That earth and the things of earth cannot satisfy the heart of man is a commonplace which needs fresh emphasis in these days that are given over largely to material comforts and to pleasures that are sensuous. A practical materialism is the greatest curse of the present age. The human spirit is restless and unsatisfied because these things of earth cannot satisfy.

"I sought earth's gold and gained more greed;
I sought earth's fame and found more need;
I sought earth's pleasures, at last found pain:
Who follows earth's phantoms follows in vain.

* * * *

"Let no man despise thy youth," wrote Paul to Timothy. How would it do to add, "Let no man despise thy gray hairs?" But St. Paul was writing to a mere lad and at the same time expressed his confidence in youth to serve in the kingdom of God. In fact, the kingdom of God is the kingdom of youth. The founder of the kingdom was a young man. Young men laid the foundations of American Methodism. We are now speaking from the viewpoint of the calendar. In the larger sense, the spirit of youth is at all times the measure of service and progress in the kingdom of God. The spirit of old age has no place in this ever growing and enlarging affair that has as its goal the redemption of the race.

* * * *

The city man and the farmer are unlike in some respects but in others they are alike. For instance, the city man boasted to his farmer friend:

"Thursday we autoed to the country club and golfed till dark, then trolled back to town and danced till morning."

To which the farmer not to be outdone replied:

"I've been havin' some time myself. Wednesday I muled to the cornfield and geehawed till sundown. Then I suppered till dark and piped till nine. Then I bedsteaded till 5 o'clock, then breakfasted till it was time to go mulin' again."

But when the city man and the farmer get a fortune they both move. The city man moves to the country and the country man moves to town. Strange, isn't it?

"In the solitude of Midian, Moses knew the call of his countrymen; Paul at Troas saw Europe's need visualized in a single man; Judson, in the shelter of a friendly haystack felt the heartbeat of India."

* * * *

To talk piously of stewardship and at the same time to cling tenaciously to his dollars, or to prate about treasures in heaven and at the same time grab all he can get down here, marks a man as an unholy pretender who deceives few by his pious prattle.

* * * *

We have nowhere seen a more timely and striking paragraph than the following by President Faunce of Brown University in the opening address of the Northern Baptist Convention. Hear what he says:

"The kingdom of God does not mean mere economic progress. It does not mean simply more comforts and conveniences in the home and the shop. It does not mean merely better wages or salaries or better clothes to wear. It does not mean pure food, porcelain bathtubs, fireless cookers and an automobile for every family. Civilization may be 'increased in goods' and yet remain 'poor and blind and naked.' What is the use of traveling at 70, or even 200, miles an hour, if we are as discontented at the end of the journey as we were at the beginning? What is the use of talking over wire—or without one—if we have really nothing to say? The promotion of comfort is not the creation of character. To every nation that is boasting of mere accumulation of material comforts God will say at some great crisis: 'Thou fool, thy soul is required of thee.'"

* * * *

Carter Glass, Julian S. Carr, Frank Page, Walter P. Stacey and N. H. D. Wilson received honorary degrees last week from the University of North Carolina. By a remarkable coincidence all of them are prominent Methodists and two of them, Stacey and Wilson, are sons of ministers. Senator Glass of Virginia never went to college. The other four received their college training at the university. Carter Glass, the father of the Federal Reserve banking laws, Julian S. Carr, public spirited and generous, Frank Page, road builder of North Carolina, W. P. Stacey, who in his youth has attained to great eminence in his profession, and N. H. D. Wilson, leader in his conference, are all worthy of the distinction conferred upon them by giving the four first the honorary degree LL. D. and the last D. D. At the same time the University of North Carolina has shown a due appreciation of men who, not in the realm of academic scholarship but out in the every day affairs of the world, have shown a willingness and capacity for large service. This saving common sense on the part of the university not only honors aright those who are worthy, but at the same time wins the whole-hearted loyalty of its sons, without which no institution can succeed as it ought. There is a great future before the university because it is wisely related, as the foregoing indicates, to its alumni and to the people of North Carolina.

THE WHOLE FAMILY TO CHURCH IN A FORD CAR

These summer days when town preachers are planning a vacation is a golden period for the country preacher and the country church. Although the weather is a bit warm the people in "God's great out of doors" look upon the good old summer time as the very best time of all the year to go to church, and they go in great numbers—men, women and children.

It used to be when some of us older people were young that the horses were so tired Sunday morning after the week's hard work on the farm that they could not be driven to church. Human kindness demanded that the horses should have one day's rest out of seven. But now the Ford car never gets tired and the hotter the weather the better it travels. So the whole family can get off to church in the Ford and enjoy the high privileges of the sanctuary.

In town after Sunday school the streets are full of cars taking the children home, and then in some cases the old folks go back for the 11 o'clock service. But there is none of that in the country, where everybody stays for preaching and the whole family gets home at one time after the day's services are over. It ought to be so in town.

Any and every preacher of the gospel should covet the privileges offered by these big congregations in the country. It is a matchless opportunity to preach the Word of God in simplicity and power to people who will remember the message. Frequently, in these congregations made up of grown people and children of all ages, some lusty youngster will "cry aloud and spare not," but none except a preacher whose nerves are unduly exposed minds a whit, for this self-same baby before a great many years will be a steward or preacher in some big city church.

The preacher who wants to give up a big country circuit to become the pastor of a little station in town or city has not even begun to cut his wisdom teeth. The man out on a big circuit has the biggest opportunity of any man in Methodism except possibly a presiding elder, whose work is largely in the country.

And the golden opportunities of these summer days when on Sundays and on week days during the big meeting the groves about the country churches are filled with automobiles which have brought the people to church by families should never pass unimproved. The preacher should render just such service as we have come to expect from a true prophet of God. The summer revival is not to be laughed at and discounted, but let it be magnified. It is better to have the second week in August set aside to get religion than have no time at all, as is the case in too many churches.

God's blessings on the country church, which is being called upon constantly to give members to the town and city churches. The country preacher may not have as big financial report as the city preacher, but he generally reports more received on profession of faith than anybody else, and this is what counts after all. All honor to the Methodist circuit rider.

EVEN NEW YORK IS ABOUT TO LEARN

The big New York dailies have made the discovery that New York is not the whole nation, not even half of it, and that no "wet" candidate can be nominated for the presidency. This removes Governor Smith as a presidential possibility. His being a Roman Catholic itself made his election impossible. Added to this is his attitude toward liquor which gives him no more showing for the presidency than the proverbial snowball has in the lower regions. Even the liquor propagandists, who under the harmless guise of wine and beer fought prohibition, are about to admit that this country is politically dry. Even the moisture of Tom Taggart of Indiana has been turned into the drouth of summer and he declares that the Democrats will not nominate a wet candidate. The Republicans have already said their candidate will be dry.

It will be a great discovery for them if the foreigners of New York, New Jersey, Maryland and of several of the big cities of this country outside of the states mentioned, can learn that the American people are not going to surrender prohibition at the dictates of such an un-American populace. If they do not enjoy our ways they should get back to Europe, which is willing to tolerate the curse of strong drink. But for us, we say away with it forever.

WHAT OUGHT MEN TO PREACH?

Jesus talked little about politics. To discuss economics was not his task. He refused to be controlled by the popular ideals of his time. His was a call of men back to God and a continual insistence upon clean hearts, free from hypocrisy and selfishness. He refused to administer on dead men's estates when overburdened with the world's sin and selfishness. Salvation from sin by the religious route was his task.

Hence a gospel minister has no business waving a national flag in the pulpit when his duty is to lift up the Cross of Christ. Typewriters, adding machines, yardsticks and such like should not be substituted for the Word of God. "Preach the word," and not business, is the Divine injunction. Depend not upon business methods and organized efficiency, but primarily upon an appeal to the spiritual nature of man. Prophets with a spiritual passion and not business men with methods have been the leaders and custodians of the kingdom of God in all ages.

When a preacher on Sunday in the pulpit gets to discussing science of which he knows practically nothing and fails to preach religion in which he should be an authority both from study and personal experience, that man ought to be deprived of his credentials. For the hungry sheep are looking to their shepherd to lead them out into green pastures, when he really fails to give them dry fodder. He is by such conduct feeding the flock on last year's bird-nests and no flock can fatten on such trash.

The Bible needs no defense. All it needs is to be preached with authority. For a man to defend the Bible when he ought to be preaching its truth is like reading to a patient an essay on how Mayo brothers built their hospital, when that man ought to be on their operating table. A sick man needs medicine and surgery and not a defense of these which to a sane man need no defense.

The question frequently arises what is wrong with the church? We answer, nothing except it sometimes needs a good dose of common sense and religion. But the church does not stand alone in this. All other institutions have their faults. But we are not willing on that account to send them to the scrap heap.

TAMPERING WITH THE MULTIPLICATION TABLE

Justice Edward T. Sanford of the United States Supreme Court in an address before the annual convention of International Optimists Clubs in Chattanooga, Tenn., last week among other things declared:

"We are in an age of excitement. No matter how we get it we must have a thrill. Tosome people life seems to be a continual vaudeville or movie show, dancing to the jazz band which is symbolic of the discord of today. Many of the old landmarks and institutions which in times passed we have accepted are now questioned. One prominent writer said recently that everything was being questioned today with the exception of the multiplication table, and I am not sure Einstein does not question that."

Why should the multiplication table stand, if the Decalogue has to go. Those fundamental principles of society which are the mudsills of society are just as essential to the social fabric as the multiplication table which is the mudsill of mathematics. The Golden Rule is even more important than the Rule of Three.

To modify the well established principles of mathematics appears absurd even to people who are ready to abolish, if possible, the tried and proven standards of morals. To learn the absurdity of such a procedure would be a long step forward for a good many people.

"TOMORROW ABOUT THIS TIME"

By Grace Livingston Hill.

"Tomorrow About This Time" will have a special appeal for fathers—a book which every father will enjoy immensely. It is the story of a man who sought to escape the responsibilities of fatherhood and how in later years he was made to realize how much of that joy, which is every father's due, he had missed through selfishness or personal desire.

Patterson Greeves, brilliant scholar, noted bacteriologist, honored in France for his feats of bravery and his noted discoveries along the line of his chosen profession, which had made it possible to save many lives during the war; late of Siberia where he had spent the time after the Armistice doing reconstructive work and making more noteworthy discoveries in science; returns to his childhood's home after many years hoping to find the rest and quiet he needs in which to write the book for which the scientific world was clamoring, only to find that his now nearly grown daughters, Alice and Athalie, are about to come to live with him. The girls are both strangers to him and to each other, for Alice is the daughter of his first wife, who died shortly after the child was born, while Athalie is the daughter of his second wife who proved herself unworthy and from whom Greeves obtained a divorce. Alice returns to her father after having been raised by her mother's parents, while Athalie is returned to him by a decree of the court. Athalia, a typical flapper and possessed of a sophistication far beyond her years, arrives first and thoroughly shocks her father by the boldness of her manners and the freedom of her speech. Greeves is filled with a wild desire to escape the burden of responsibility thus suddenly thrust upon him and looks forward with feelings of dread to the arrival of Alice. She, however, putting in an appearance a short time later, proves to be an entirely different type, sweet and unselfish and evidently anxious to win her father's love. J. B. Lippincott Company. Price $2.00.

BIBLICAL NAMES FOR CHILDREN

Parents have in the main shown commendable discrimination in the selection of Bible names for their children. Samuel, David, Paul, John, Mary, Ruth, Sarah and Martha have been among the favorite names. Haman, Judas, Jezebel and Rahab have with becoming persistency been rejected. Only an occasional colored child has been compelled to respond to the name of Ananias or Beelzebub.

Will some one tell us why parents except in rare instances have refused to name their daughters Eve. Is it because of the sound of the name or is there a lingering dislike for the mother of the race on account of the apple episode? Adam has fared a little better than his consort in the matter of namesakes, but he has nothing to brag about.

The selection of names for the children, whether Biblical or from other sources, indicate that parents have high and holy ambitions for their children.

"THE JESUS OF OUR FATHERS"

By John W. Good, Ph. D., Georgia State College for Women.

"The point of view of this monumental work is the point of view of the plain man who devoutly believes that the divine nature of the Christ as the Son of God was made continually evident and positive from the annunciation to the crucifixion in the New Testament Scriptures.

"The author has done the plain man who agrees with him a priceless service in this massive volume that contains the extraordinary collection of biblical references in support of the above thesis which he has spent life-time of patient industry in arranging in these well-defined relations.

"Scholars who have severed all the ties that once bound them to the traditional will find this book little to their liking. It is for that great army of men and women of true piety who walk in the old ways." The Macmillan Company, Publishers, New York.

PEOPLE AND THINGS

Western North Carolina Conference, Winston-Salem, October 17.

North Carolina Conference, Elizabeth City, November 14.

Bishop Denny, who is to dedicate the Epworth church, Concord, next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock, will preach Sunday evening in Central church, Concord.

Dr. A. F. Watkins, president of Millsap's College, Jackson, Miss., and secretary of the General Conference, has been to consult the Mayo brothers at Rochester, Minn., in regard to his health.

Rev. J. A. Russell of Four Oaks and Mr. Ira Medlin of Smithfield will assist Pastor E. M. Hall of the Benson church in a revival meeting, beginning on the 18th inst. Hope to report good results later.

The high school at the Children's Home, Winston-Salem, will this evening, Thursday, hold its first graduating exercises, as there has only recently been added the eleventh grade. Dr. J. H. Barnhardt of Greensboro will deliver the address.

By an oversight of the proofreader the age of Brother S. E. Richardson in last week's Advocate was put at 59, when it should have been 49 years of age. We regret this error and in behalf of accuracy hasten to make the correction.

"Mrs. Lula Hickman requests the honour of your presence at the marriage of her daughter, Jamie Nina, to Mr. Lawrence Crouch Thursday morning, the twenty-eighth of June, at ten o'clock, Methodist Episcopal Church, South, Granite Falls, North Carolina. Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Crouch will be at home after the fifth of July, Morganton, North Carolina."

"The Reverend and Mrs. Lee A. Falls request the honour of your presence at the marriage of their daughter, Terrissa Gertrude, to the Reverend Gilreath Gilderoy Adams on Thursday evening, the twenty-eighth of June, at seven o'clock at the Methodist church, Brevard, North Carolina. At home after the fourteenth of July, Norwood, North Carolina."

Rev. A. C. Kennedy, pastor of the Catawba charge, announces: "There will be a home coming Sunday, July 1st, at Concord church, Catawba charge. All former pastors and friends of the church are requested to be present and enjoy the day with friends. Both editor and business manager of the Advocate would also be gladly welcomed if they would attend on this occasion."

Did you people who attend the movies ever see a Roman Catholic priest or church, or a Jewish Rabbi and church that were not pictured with greatest respect, and did you ever see a Protestant minister who appeared on the screen who was not caricatured in some form? Yet Sunday school leaders and teachers and Protestant ministers are frequently devotees of the screen. Lovely state of affairs, isn't it?

Mr. Collins Denny, Jr., son of Bishop Collins Denny, of Richmond, was recently honored by being elected a member of the Raven Society at the University of Virginia, where he is a law student. The society is an honorary one, scholarship being the chief requisite for membership. Mr. Denny was a second lieutenant in the recent war and is a graduate of Princeton University. He has just concluded his second year in the law course of the University.—Richmond Christian Advocate.

An incident not on the published program occurred Sunday morning at the University when Dr. Plato Durham delivered the baccalaureate sermon. We will let an observant reporter who was "covering" the commencement for the News and Observer tell the story. Here is what he reported to have seen and heard: "As has been the custom at Chapel Hill for many commencements, the usual stray dog walked up on the rostrum during the preliminary services and made himself at home. This particular dog, a beautiful English setter, almost threw the congregation off its balance, when it circled rapidly around the platform as Dr. Patton read the Scripture lesson from Paul's Phillipic, containing an exhortation from the great apostle to his flock to 'beware of the dogs.'"

The good news comes from Raleigh that there will be no extra session of the legislature within six months. How would it do to have indefinite postponement?

In Lawrenceville, Va., Sunday afternoon, June 10, 1923, at one o'clock, Mr. Abner Nash of Rosemary, N. C., and Miss Fannie Louise Bain of Roanoke Rapids, N. C., were united in matrimony by Rev. J. W. Gee, of the Methodist church. The bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Bain, formerly resided in Greensboro.

Rev. A. B. Crumpler at an early date is to hold a tent meeting at Patetown Academy, seven miles out from Goldsboro. This is where the Goldsboro Methodists have been running a successful Sunday school, Rev. W. O. Butler has a regular preaching appointment and the intention is to organize a church after Brother Crumpler's tent meeting.

Rev. C. B. Culbreth writes: "You will note that I am holding a joint conference for Edenton, Roper and Plymouth at Mackeys July 19. And also all the down sound points at Manteo August 16, 17, 18, 19. At Gatesville we will hold a joint conference for the two charges in Gates county. At these group conferences we will put on a constructive program emphasizing the work of the Sunday school, the Epworth League, the woman's missionary work and evangelism. Some one fitted for the job will represent the Advocate."

It was our privilege last Sunday morning to worship with the people of First church, Salisbury, and in the absence of Dr. J. F. Kirk, who was at Kingston to speak to the Baraca-Philathea convention, to preach for the pastor. 'What a beautiful church those Salisbury Methodists have and the last of the indebtedness was paid off a little while ago. The congregation filled the church, the music added greatly to the service and it was a helpful hour. Senator Lee S. Overman and Col. T. H. Vanderford were both in their accustomed places. These with many other familiar faces caused the preacher of the hour to feel very much at home with the people of First church.

The joint commission on the Chapel Hill church met in the Hesperian Hall, Trinity College, Wednesday, June 13, and decided upon plans for the new church. The cost of the church will be approximately $200,000. Former students and friends of the University will be expected to contribute liberally to the building of this church which is to meet the growing needs of Methodist students at the University through the years to come. Rev. Walter Patten, the pastor, is to become leader of the campaign that is to reach the Methodist friends of the University in all sections of the state. The Centenary from its war fund, which is no longer needed for war work, has already appropriated $50,000 to the building of this new church. The Board of Church Extension will aid in the building and the Chapel Hill local church will do its part. From these various sources will come the funds needed for the church that is to be built at Chapel Hill.

The General Assembly of the Presbyterians at Indianapolis occupied an unusual amount of front-page space in the newspapers last month, for it was the scene of an interesting clash between what may be called the conservative wing and the liberal wing of the denomination. Mr. Bryan, the best-known layman of the Presbyterian church, was present and active on the side of those who believe that the church is in serious danger of drifting away from the true faith by accepting modern scientific ideas too readily. He was a candidate for moderator, but was defeated by a narrow margin. The assembly followed his lead in voting that every minister, every church member and every student at a Presbyterian theological school should take the total abstinence pledge, but it would not go so far as to deny any money from the educational funds of the church to any school or college that permitted the teaching of the evolutionary hypothesis. In place of that, it voted to "withhold official approval" from schools where a "materialistic evolutionary philosophy of life is taught." The assembly dealt with the case of the Rev. Harry E. Fossick, the New York clergyman against whom charges of unscriptural teaching had been brought, by instructing the New York Presbytery to see to it that the "preaching and teaching in the First Presbyterian church conform to the doctrines taught in the Confession of Faith."—Youth's Companion.

"Mrs. Leroy Lee Smith requests the honour of your presence at the marriage of her daughter, May Edla, to Mr. Charles Marion Earley Saturday morning, the thirtieth of June, at nine o'clock, Methodist Episcopal church, South, Gatesville, North Carolina."

Rev. J. Frank Armstrong pays the following tribute to the memory of Mr. W. H. Stone, a leading business man and church man of Concord, who died in Long's Sanitorium at Statesville on Tuesday of last week: "Mr. William Anderson Stone, known among his friends as 'Billy Stone,' is with us no more. His passing after an illness of a few weeks has shocked and pained his friends whom he numbered by the hundreds. Having been closely identified with the business and religious life of Concord for more than thirty years it is rather remarkable to find him as universally loved and esteemed as any man in the city. However, when we recall some of the elements that were so finely mixed in him we are not surprised that men high and low should rise up and say with unmistakable emphasis, 'Here is a man!' He was first of all a gentleman, but no less was he a well informed, enterprising, public spirited citizen, a conscientious happy home builder and a forward-going, efficient Christian. The Father of us all is marvelously sustaining his wife who was so beautifully devoted to him. Forest Hill church and western North Carolina Methodism will miss him, but the remembrance of his strong, manly face and generous deeds will make many of us a bit more determined to follow him along the path which he blazed for all men of high intentions and noble purposes."

THE ADVOCATE AND SOUTHERN PLANTER FOR THE PRICE OF THE ADVOCATE

During the remainder of June and the month of July the Advocate has arranged with the publishers of the Southern Planter, Richmond, Va., the oldest agricultural paper in America, to send to all new subscribers to the Advocate both the church organ and that excellent agricultural paper for $2.00 per year, the price of the Advocate. No subscription will be taken for less than 12 months and this offer only applies to new subscribers. This is a good opportunity to get the best farm paper published and the church paper for the price of one.

WHO WINS FREE TRIP TO JUNALUSKA

As was announced in last week's Advocate the Western North Carolina conference won the trip-at-large in the recent Advocate campaign to Lake Junaluska. If the presiding elders of that conference will decide who is to be the beneficiary of this trip we will correspond with that person and arrange the outing. We suggest that all the elders correspond with Rev. W. F. Womble concerning this matter.

The Asheville and Marion districts in the Western conference and the Fayetteville and Rockingham in the North Carolina won the district trips. The presiding elders of these districts and the lay leaders will call one other party to their assistance and decide who will go to Junaluska at the expense of the Advocate. We trust that this will be done at once and the parties selected notified so that arrangements of the trip can be completed.

MRS. J. J. GRAY PASSES

The body of Mrs. J. J. Gray was laid to rest in the cemetery at Webster on Monday, June 11, beside those of her father, a brother and a sister. Despite the rain a large number of friends gathered at the grave to sorrow with the stricken family. They were her childhood friends, and they stood with bowed heads and bereft hearts as the body was committed to the ground. Nobody is loved more in this section of Jackson county than Rev. J. J. Gray and his wife, and there is universal sympathy for him in this his great sorrow. Mrs. Gray lived for her home and the church, and both those institutions suffer immeasurably through her going. She wrought well, leaving a good record and a good testimony behind her, and there is strong hope that those who sorrow most at her loss will see her again where there is no more death. The funeral services were conducted by Revs. O. J. Jones, R. S. Howie and W. R. Yokley.

Otho J. Jones.

Fundamentalism AND Methodism

by BISHOP EDWIN D. MOUSON

Fundamentalism is a recent development chiefly among the Calvinistic churches of America. It has set itself up as the exponent and guardian and champion of orthodoxy. Unfortunately some good people among the Methodists, not knowing the genesis of this movement and not knowing much about theology, but knowing Jesus Christ and the supreme importance of Christian religion, have cast their lot with the Fundamentalists, having been misled into believing that the men who stand in places of influence and leadership in their own church have proved traitors to their trust.

My own conviction is that so contrary to the spirit of historic Methodism is the spirit of Fundamentalism that if Fundamentalism should succeed in capturing Methodism, Methodism would cease to be any longer the Methodism of John Wesley and our Methodist fathers. I purpose, therefore, to set down here my Methodist objections to the Fundamentalist Movement.

1. I object to its confusing things good with things bad. As someone has said, "The mixing of things is the great Bad." Well, Fundamentalism has got things badly mixed. The Fundamentalists assert that "there are nine basal Christian doctrines to which every one, if he is a Christian, will and must subscribe." These are as follows: (1) the Verbal Inspiration of the Bible, (2) the Trinity, (3) the Virgin Birth of Our Lord, (4) the Fall of Man, (5) Substitutionary Atonement, (6) the Physical Resurrection of Christ, (7) the New Birth, (8) Eternal Salvation and Damnation, and (9) the Physical Second Coming of Christ.

Now this is a confusion of things good and bad. Some of the doctrines set forth in this list are scriptural and some of them are not. And, anyhow, this is a pretty long creed to ram down a man's throat with the exhortation that he must believe it or be damned. There are some things in the above list that all orthodox Christians believe; there are some things which Methodists have never been called upon to believe; and there are some things which one cannot believe and remain a Methodist in his thinking and in his relation to the activities of his church.

The fundamentalists first started out with "prophetic conferences," in which they gave their chief attention to the discussion of the Physical Second Coming of Christ. It is this that has shaped the entire theology of the movement. For fundamentalism has its own theology. And the central principle—the principle which gives form and substance to all Fundamentalist thinking—is the doctrine of the Immanent, Physical, Second Coming of Christ.

Now I would speak with the greatest respect of many holy men in all ages of the church who have held to the premillenarian view of the Second Coming of our Lord. And one may be a premillenarian, or a post millenarian, or no millenarian at all, and at the same time be a faithful and useful member of the Methodist church. But this recent doctrine on the Second Coming is a new thing in the Christian church. There is no time to discuss it in this article. I will, however, say briefly three things: (1) Its conception of God out-Calvins John Calvin himself. In deed, it is a Mohammedan conception of God; (2) Its conception of Salvation is neither ethical nor spiritual, but mechanical—a doctrine of salvation by force; (3) Its teaching concerning the work of the church contrary to the teaching of the New Testament. It is a terrible mistake, they all say, for the church to try to convert the world. Denunciation of the church is one of the invariable marks of Fundamentalism.

At the present time our Fundamentalist friends seem to be giving more attention to insistence upon "the Verbal Inspiration of the Bible" than to any other matter. Now, in the inspiration and spiritual authority of the Holy Scriptures all Christians believe. We Methodists believe, according to our Article V, that the "Holy Scripture containeth all things necessary to salvation"; and, according to our Article VI, that "The Old Testament is not contrary to the New," but that while there are certain things in the Old Testament which "do not bind Christians," "yet notwithstanding, no Christian whatsoever is free from the obedience to the commandments which are called moral."

Now let it be carefully observed that Fundamentalist insistence upon what they are pleased to call "the Verbal Inspiration of the Bible," is necessary if they are to get out of the Bible their wholly Jewish and entire unChristian conception of the reign of Christ on earth. For the Old Testament must be taken literally if this is to be done. Just this was the mistake that the Scribes and Pharisees made in the days of Jesus—they looked for a temporal king who was to set up his throne in Jerusalem and make the Jews supreme all over the world. But the Jews had misread the prophecies, and so do our misguided friends, the Fundamentalists misread them—not profiting by the mistakes of the Jews and not understanding the mission of Jesus and the teachings of the Apostles.

Just now the Fundamentalists are tremendously exercised in asserting their claim that the Bible is final authority in scientific matters, particularly in geology and biology, as well as in matters of faith and practice. And they go so far as to assert with vehemence that if you do not agree with them you are an infidel. Well, I do not agree with them and I am an orthodox Methodist all the way from "prevenient grace" to "perfect love." Of one thing I am sure, certain well intentioned brethren are making Christian faith very difficult, and, if the Fundamentalist should have their way, impossible to our educated young people, and are driving away from Christ men and women whom Christ would not drive away. "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest," said Jesus. What burden is so heavy as the burden of truth sought and not found? What heart is so weary as the heart that longs for God and has missed the way? "Come unto me," Christ calls, "and I will give you rest."

"I came to Jesus as I was,
Weary and worn and sad;
I found in Him a resting place,
And He has made me glad."

This is why it grieves me to see well-meaning, but misguided men putting a stumbling block in the way of honest and sincere people who would come to Jesus—men and women whom Christ sorely need just at this hour in human history.

The trouble with this verbal dictation theory of the Bible is that it is not true, and it would be harmful and not helpful if it were true. Stop and think just one moment. On this theory, what version of the Scriptures shall a Christian read as being verbally infallible? Shall it be the original Hebrew and Greek? Or shall it be the Latin Version according to Roman Catholicism? Or shall it be Martin Luther's translation? Or shall it be our Authorized Version of A. D. 1611? Now John Wesley did not hold the verbal dictation theory—neither do we who have escaped from bondage to the "letter that killeth" and who understand what is meant when it is said that "the spirit giveth life."

Another theological doctrine insisted on as central by the Fundamentalists is "Substitutionary Atonement." Now when we come to speak of the Atonement made by Christ in His own precious blood, it behoves us to take off our shoes, for we stand on "holy ground." But as I understand our friends the Fundamentalists to use the words, "Substitutionary Atonement," they mean that the penalty that was due me on account of my sins fell on Christ—that violated law demanded a victim and that Christ was punished in my place. If this is what they mean, then this is the old Calvinistic doctrine over again in its naked form, and we Methodists are not Calvinists. And this is not my chief objection. My chief objection grows out of the fact that it is not theology that saves a man—it is Christ that saves. It is not a theory of the atonement that saves—"He is the propitiation for our sins"—He, Christ himself, not some theory, is the propitiation. And so, I say, our Fundamentalist brethren have mixed up "things bad" with "things good," and the bad things which I have just mentioned are among the characteristic things in their system. If, therefore, "the mixing of things is the great Bad," then we have a pretty bad "Bad."

2. I object to Fundamentalism because of its insistence on "creed" rather than on "faith" and "the Christian faith."

"Faith" is a personal word; it deals with personal relationships—the relation of one soul to another. "Faith" means personal trust in Jesus Christ. Out of this "personal trust" come the Christian life—the spirit of Jesus. "Now if any man have not the spirit of Christ, he is none of his." How seldom does one hear the Fundamentalists talk about these great themes at all. Rather do they insist that you must give intellectual assent to a written creed—the items of which I have named above. Now, I myself believe in creeds. The man who discounts theology; usually has a very crude theology of his own which he insists on having others accept. Christianity must come with a reasoned and reasonable presentation of the Faith if it is to conquer the world. But Methodism has always put its primary emphasis on Christian Experience and a Sainly Life rather than on an intellectual presentation of the facts and principles of our holy religion. Against the pure intellectualism of Fundamentalism, I protest.

One recalls in this connection the beautiful words of Ian Maclaren: "I believe in the Fatherhood of God; I believe in the words of Jesus; I believe in the clean heart; I believe in the service of love; I believe in the unworldly life; I believe in the Beatitudes; I promise to trust God and follow Christ, to forgive my enemies and to seek after the righteousness of God."

Let not Methodism depart from the principles of her founder; for when John Wesley laid stress on personal faith and a holy life he was giving us Christianity according to Christ and the New Testament.

3. I object to Fundamentalism because of its un-Christian intolerance.

Romanism was never more intolerant than is Fundamentalism. The cry of "heresy" is raised by the Fundamentalist against leading preachers and teachers not so much because these teachers and preachers are heretics according to Methodist doctrine, but because they are not willing to swallow the Fundamentalist creed, especially the three items in it named above as being highly objectionable. I raise the serious question: Shall Methodism permit an outside organization made up largely of representatives of other denominations to discount and set aside men who are faithful to that spiritual interpretation of Christianity which we have inherited from our fathers? The danger is more serious than some people imagine. For so little do men know about Methodism that they have permitted themselves to be misled by Fundamentalists into a movement certain, if not checked, to destroy our sacred inheritance.

The intolerance of Fundamentalism finds a parallel only in Roman Catholicism. Its methods remind one of the days of the Inquisition. The Fundamentalist Hierarchy have constituted themselves "inquisitors-general" for the Protestant churches of America. They do not have the power to torture men, but they do seek to deprive them of place and influence. Following the example of the Romanist they have, in effect, gotten up an "Index Expurgatorius" listing certain books as highly dangerous for the faithful to read.

I ask: Will Methodism be content to allow an extra-church organization to decide what the standards of Methodist orthodoxy are? Surely we will be warned in time. This modern inquisition is the saddest development in the life of the church in recent years.

4. I object to Fundamentalism because of its stress on the PURELY individualistic aspects of the gospel to the exclusion and denial of the social application of the teachings of Jesus.

Now for myself, I believe that the gospel of Christ is sufficient to save the world and that it was designed to save the world. I believe that finally the leaven is going to leaven the whole lump; I believe that the mustard seed will one day become a great tree in the branches of which every weary wing shall find rest. I believe that the spiritual principles of the gospel are abundantly able to accomplish this. I believe that it is the purpose of Christ that all our homes, our schools, and halls of legislature, and places of business—that all human institutions—should come under the influence of the gospel—and toward that end I labor day and night. I have no patience with the “dogmatic pessimism” of Fundamentalism—the doctrine that the world is getting worse and worse—that the preacher's one business is to save a few individual souls—that the worse the world gets the sooner Jesus will come again. I view with abhorrence the language used by a leading and representative Fundamentalist during the Great War: “As awful as conditions are across the sea, and as awful as they may become in our country, the darker the night gets, the lighter my heart gets.”

Just think of it—“The darker the night gets, the lighter my heart gets!” And so with the Fundamentalists, as another has put it, “Hopelessness becomes a mark of faith, and the discovery of a ground of encouragement.”

It is not to be wondered at, therefore, that our Fundamentalist friends have little interest in the educational and missionary work of the church. For in our educational and missionary work we are trying to save the world—to bring about the reign of Jesus Christ in human institutions and in human hearts, while our Fundamentalist brethren think only of the salvation of a few individuals, as individuals, not as members of society, hoping and believing that human society will soon become so corrupt that it will end in collapse and ruin. As opposed to all this, I pray every day:

“Our Father, which art in heaven,
Hallowed be Thy name—
Thy Kingdom come—
Thy Will be done—
On earth as it is in heaven.”

5. I object to Fundamentalism because of the methods of propaganda used by Fundamentalists.

So-called “Bible schools” are conducted in leading cities each year, and earnest and devout Christians are drawn into them without knowing the purpose of such “schools.” Good Methodists desire to learn all they can about the Bible; our people are hungry for the Word of the Lord. It must be confessed that our church has failed to a degree in its teaching function. And thus it comes about that when men of some ability come with well prepared lectures and a theological scheme arranged with all the simplicity and logic of Calvinism, our people are led to accept what they hear. Let it be freely granted that they hear much that is good. But they hear much that makes them uneasy; they have their minds filled with suspicion; they are urged to rally to the defense of the faith as against the infidelity of their own teachers and preachers. Now I object to such methods of propaganda. Let our Fundamentalist fellow Christians announce openly the purpose of these “schools.”

Another method is the appeal that is made to laymen. Our laymen are being told that our schools and colleges are full of heresy, that our preachers can no longer be trusted to preach the faith “once for all delivered unto the saints,” and that now the laymen themselves must rise up and save the church from heresy. Now, I believe in laymen. When I was a teacher of young preachers, I used to say to them that I would rather have the good opinion of a noble layman and the approval of a saintly mother in Israel than the applause of all the worldly minded scholars in the world. I do not believe that the final settlement of the fundamental questions of religion will be left to scientists and scholars; I believe that the faith is “delivered unto the saints.” I believe that the essential truths of Christianity are level to the understanding of simple and unlettered men. But let me urge our laymen not to distrust the leadership of the church. Your pastor and college professors are just about as trustworthy as the Fundamentalist brethren are, to say the least; and I am sure that they are much more to be relied upon than those men in our own denomination who are sowing suspicion and endeavoring to create discord while Christ and the church are calling for brotherly love and for a united attack on all the forces of iniquity.

6. Once more, I object to Fundamentalism because it is sowing dissension among the churches.

The spirit of Christ is the spirit of concord among Christians. “We know that we have passed from death unto life, because we love the brethren.”

Christ's High Priestly prayer for his disciples in all ages was, “that they be one, that the world may know that thou didst send me.” Never possibly in the history of the world was there greater need that we should pray that prayer—and ourselves seek to answer it. The outstanding feature of these post-war days is division—misunderstanding—suspicion. Governments have fallen to pieces, authorities have broken down, class has been arrayed against class. The love of Christ is the only thing that will save the world. Let the church of Jesus Christ show the way. Let us call no man “Master” but Christ. And let us call every man “Brother” who calls Jesus “Lord.” The time has come for some one to stand in the midst of the churches and cry out with the tenderness and passion of Saint John—“Little children, love one another.”

And this is the historic attitude of Methodism. What we need as Methodists is to go back and read our own history. Some of us seem to have forgotten John Wesley. Turn and read how Wesley said: “Is a man a believer in Jesus Christ, and is his life suitable to his profession? Are not the main, but the sole inquiries I make in order to his admission into our societies?” Read in his “Character of a Methodist”: “The distinguishing marks of a Methodist are not his opinions of any sort. Is thy heart right, as my heart is with thine? Dost thou love and serve God? It is enough. I give thee the right hand of fellowship.” This spirit of Christian catholicity Methodism inherited from her founder. And this is the spirit of the religion of the New Testament. Recall how Saint Paul summed up the essentials of Christian unity—“One Lord, one faith, one baptism.” “One Lord,” our Saviour Jesus Christ—therefore, we will call no man “Master,” for human masters divide. “One faith”—one common personal experience of salvation in Christ Jesus the Lord, for Christian faith unites. “One baptism”—one solemn ceremony of public profession of faith in Him, separating us forever from the world and making us members of his visible church. The things that really matter are not many; they are few.

Did Wesley's position grow out of the fact that he was uncertain in his own mind touching the fundamentals of the Christian faith? And does our historic Methodist position mean that we Methodists of today have no well defined theological positions? By no means—and never! But Wesley believed that a genuine experience of religion and a holy life, a life separated from the world, and consecrated to God, filled with the love of Jesus—that these would keep a man sound in his theology. And so do we Methodists believe today.

The one purpose of this paper is to call upon our Methodist people to rally to their own standards. Learn again what our Methodist “fundamentals” are, and turn a deaf ear to those who would—to use Saint Paul's words—“zealously seek you, that ye may seek them.”

LAYMEN'S CONFERENCE, LAKE JUNALUSKA, AUGUST 10-15

Perhaps the most constructive and far-reaching legislation of the last General Conference was that which had to do with the creation of the Board of Lay Activities. This organization comprises the General Board, the Conference Board, the District Board, the Charge Board, and the Church Board, and has for its object the utilization of all the forces of our church for Christian service.

A careful survey of the field discloses the fact that only about ten per cent of the members of our church are really active, that approximately twenty-five per cent make any worth-while contribution of money, and that only about forty per cent attend the regular worship services of the church. The plan and purpose of the Board of Lay Activities is to help create the necessary interest, enthusiasm, and consecration that will enable the local church, under the leadership of the pastor, to make use of these unused assets, and build our churches into mighty barriers against the forces of evil, and present to the world a constructive program of a positive Christianity.

The General Board has been working earnestly to this end, and in order to enable the various lay leaders, chairmen of committees, and other influential and leading laymen to become better acquainted with the plan and purpose of the new organization, it has made provision for holding a great Laymen's Conference at Lake Junaluska August 10-15. This conference will follow immediately after the meeting of the board on the 9th.

A program of unusual interest dealing with the broad phases of the work of the church as it relates more specifically to the laymen has been arranged. The specific and practical problems that have to do with the organization of the various boards and committees, and the duties of the various lay leaders, will be discussed and there will be an exchange of helpful experiences.

The subjects discussed will cover the following general fields:

Evangelism and Missions, with particular reference to enlisting the lay membership in personal evangelistic effort, especially through the Sunday school and special revival campaigns, and also the broader phases of the opportunity and responsibility of our church for missions to the entire world.

Social Service, with all its implication of the relation of the church to such questions as: the home, marriage and divorce, the motion picture, industrial relations, race relations, law obedience and law enforcement, community health programs, etc.

Christian Education, as it relates to the home, the school, the Sunday school, the week day religious school, the vacation Bible school, and our own Christian colleges and universities.

Christian Stewardship, in its recognition of God's authorship and ownership, and man's trusteeship of time, talent and money.

The Rural Church, and how the laymen can help to maintain these churches so as to help build constructively in the rural districts and continue to provide the leadership which comes from the country.

Christianity in International Relations. If we are ever to have peace in a distracted and distraught world, it will come only as the Christian church seeks to develop the spirit of good will among the nations of the world.

Bible Study. Last but by no means least, Bible study is fundamental to all Christian thinking and living.

Speakers. The messages on these topics will be brought by Bishop W. B. Beauchamp; Bishop E. D. Mouzon; Judge John H. Clarke, former justice of the Supreme Court of the United States; Dr. J. Stitt Wilson of Berkeley, California; Dr. C. M. McConnell of the Commission on Life Service, Methodist Episcopal Church, Chicago, Ill.; Dr. Henry Nelson Snyder, president Wofford College; Dr. Ernest C. Webb, Wesley Bible Chair, University of Texas, and others.

Open Forum. In addition to the above, an hour will be given each day to the discussion of such practical questions as: How to organize lay boards; how to organize the committees and get them to function; the value of the church conference; the laymen in their relation to the collection of the benevolences; the collection of the Centenary and Christian Education pledges; the laymen and the special effort for superannuate endowment; an adequate financial system for the local church; the use of lay speakers, etc. These discussions will be led by our own laymen.

Who should attend: Conference, district, associate district, charge and church lay leaders; chairmen of lay committees; superintendents of Sunday schools; presidents of boards of stewards; presiding elders; pastors.

This is by far the most important conference for laymen that will be held in the entire church this year. It is also equally important for those presiding elders and pastors who earnestly desire to see the lay forces of their districts and churches fully utilized. Not only is a cordial invitation extended to them to come, but they are urged to use every possible means to help secure the attendance of at least one layman from every charge.

Full information with reference to railroad rates, enrollment cards, hotel accommodations at Lake Junaluska, and a complete outline of the program can be had by applying to the Board of Lay Activities, Lambuth Building, Nashville, Tenn.

Almighty God, unto whom all hearts are open, all desires known, and from whom no secrets are hid; cleanse the thoughts of our hearts, by the inspiration of the Holy Spirit, that we may perfectly love thee, and worthily magnify the holy name, through Christ our Lord. Amen.—The Book of Common Prayer.

NORTH CAROLINA CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

Official Organ of the North Carolina and Western North Carolina Conferences Methodist Episcopal Church, South. Established 1855.

Entered at the Postoffice at Greensboro, N. C. as mail matter of the second class, acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided in section 1102, act of October 2, 1917, authorized September 9, 1918.

Obituaries and Resolutions of one hundred words published free. All words above this number charged for at rate of 1 cent per word.

A. W. PLYLER ..... Editor
T. A. SIKES ..... Business Manager

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Year .....$2.00
Six Months ..... 1.00
To all preachers of the Gospel, year 1.00

FIELD NEWS

DISTRICT CONFERENCE DIRECTORY

Rockingham, at Aberdeen.. June 19-21
Salisbury, at Gold Hill..... July 6-8
Elizabeth City, at Mackey's
Ferry ..... July 17-18

GOSPEL TENT MEETING AT PATE-TOWN

Rev. A. B. Crumpler, pastor of Glendon circuit, North Carolina conference, will conduct a revival meeting at Patetown Academy, seven miles out from Goldsboro, in Wayne county, under a tent. A large Sunday school is conducted there and 300 or more people are expected to attend and a real salvation meeting is in anticipation. W. O. Butler, P. C.

FROM SPRING CREEK CHARGE

We have just closed one of the most successful revivals ever held in our community and charge. Our older people say that they have never seen anything like it.

There were near seventy-five conversions and reclamations and thirty-three additions to our church. There are still others to join yet. The meeting lasted only ten days. We feel that God has never blessed us so much before.

We have a fine Sunday school and prayer meeting.

Brother Delp did the preaching. We desire to say that we have never had a man of the power that our pastor has. He is a real evangelist from every standpoint, and he has built the work up in the last nineteen months as it has not been for years.

We have learned that he has been having other good meetings on the charge.

Members of Poplar Gap Church.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE BOOK
COMMITTEE

The Book Committee held its annual meeting at Richmond, Va., on May 8, 9. There were present eleven of the thirteen members of the committee and the two publishing agents. The committee went carefully into all of the affairs of the publishing house and its branches at Dallas, Tex., Richmond, Va., and San Francisco, Cal.

The report of the agents showed that gratifying progress had been made during the year. A uniform accounting system for the several houses had been installed by Ernst & Ernst employed for that purpose. This has resulted already in the saving of some $5,000 per annum in office salaries.

The total assets of the house amounted to $2,262,000, an increase of $101,000. The total sales for the year ending February 28, 1923, were $2,187,297.97, which is an increase over the preceding year of $41,031.99. Excluding sales to the branch houses or interdepartmental sales, the increase was $26,118.33. This is a remarkable showing in view of the fact that the price of Uniform Sunday School Literature was reduced approximately sixteen per cent at the beginning of the year.

EPWORTH CHURCH, CONCORD, N. C.

Rev. M. A. Osborne, pastor. Bishop Collins Denny will dedicate this church next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock.

The following historical sketch of the church was prepared by C. H. Barrier, chairman of the board of trustees:

Epworth church was organized A. D. 1893 by a little band of Christians who both knew and loved God.

They worshiped for a time in a little school house on Pine street, and in 1894 Mr. J. W. Cannon gave them a lot on Valley street, upon which was erected a small frame church which was known as Bay's Chapel, so named in honor of Dr. W. W. Bays.

The church bore this name until 1896 when it was changed to Epworth at the suggestion of Dr. J. R. Scroggs, who was presiding elder of Salisbury district at this time.

The church grew in numbers as well as in power and usefulness and in 1907 the congregation, having outgrown its quarters, decided to abandon its Valley street property and seek a better location and build a modern church.

The committee, under the leadership of Rev. J. W. Long, who was pastor at the time, used splendid judgment by selecting the present location at the intersection of West Depot and N. Kerr streets. The congregation, not being able to finance the new project to completion, worshiped for a number of years with the walls unplastered and only rough storm sheeting for a floor. Finally, in 1911 the walls were plastered and in 1916 the present floor was laid and in 1919 modern pews were installed. All these years were years of struggle in matters of finance.

In 1921 the church was practically out of debt when the necessity arose for enlarged quarters for a rapidly growing Sunday school. This called for more money and work. The trustees saw the urgent need and borrowed the funds with which to provide the needed room, which was done at a cost of approximately $10,000.

Through the aid of the Board of Church Extension, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Cannon and other friends in Concord, this debt has now been canceled and the church will be dedicated by Bishop Collins Denny on Sunday, June 24, at 11 a. m. The above picture of our church speaks for the work that God hath wrought through his people at Epworth.

To Rev. J. W. Long belongs the honor for having started this new Epworth church, but all the pastors who have served the church have thrown themselves into the work and each did his part heroically.

Following is a list of pastors who have served the church:

Thos. W. Smith, 1894; J. R. Moose, 1895-96; W. P. McGee, 1897-98; Thos. W. Smith, 1899; R. G. Barrett, 1900; J. Homer Barnhardt, 1901-02; J. P. Davis, 1908; B. F. Carpenter, 1904-05; J. Walter Long, 1906-09; J. A. J. Farrington, 1910-11; G. G. Harley, 1912; A. L. Cobern, 1913-14; A. S. Raper, 1915-18; M. H. Vestal, 1919-1921; M. A. Osborne, 1922-23.

The increase in sales was distributed as follows: At Nashville, $40,522.89; at Richmond, $31,481.46; at Dallas there was a decrease of $30,982.36.

The advertising department of the house has been reorganized and enlarged.

The position of purchasing agent for all four houses has been established, and Mr. P. L. Turner, for years with the Dallas house, was chosen to fill the position, with office at Nashville. This step has already justified itself in considerable saving in purchases made and discounts secured.

The department of circulation has been established with Mr. H. H. Ahrens at its head.

As authorized by the annual meeting of the committee last year, a new factory building in Nashville is now being erected. When it is completed, which will be in the course of the next few months, and some additions made to the mechanical equipment, our plant will be an up-to-date and complete one.

A press name for books intended for a circulation more than denominational was decided upon, and the name "Cokesbury Press" was adopted.

A detailed report of the separate houses will be prepared and submitted to the several annual conferences.

The circulation of the Graded Sunday School Literature has largely increased during the year without materially affecting the volume of Uniform Literature sold.

An increase in circulation of all our papers for young people and of our literature generally is expected from campaigns in the several annual conferences and from the observance of Sunday, January 27, 1924, as "Good Literature Day" for the whole church. This has been officially designated by the College of Bishops at their recent session held in Nashville.

Quite a number of books and pamphlets have been published by our house during the year and, without exception, have sold in sufficient quantities to meet the cost of publication and in some instances have yielded and are yielding satisfactory profits.

The sum of $30,000 was appropriated for the benefit of the superannuated preachers and widows and orphans of preachers from the proceeds of the business for the year.

WEST END CIRCUIT

It may be that someone would like to know what is going on in the bounds of the West End circuit. I will say in the beginning we have not done all we might have done nor all we hoped to do.

From a material standpoint progress has been made. We have painted one church, we have placed an individual communion set in one, and we have raised several hundred dollars on our parsonage debt.

Two of our Sunday school, Marcus and Hoffman, have held Sunday School Day exercises. These exercises showed that we have some capable leaders and children. The contributions were very good.

We have held two revival services, the first at Hoffman, where Bro. J. H. shore did the preaching for us, and the second at West End, where Bro. J. A. Martin did the preaching. Both of these brethren did excellent preaching, which brought about what we hope will be lasting good. Our people will be glad to see these brethren come their way to preach again.

In the special Centenary campaign Hoffman church came very near making a clean sweep of her entire pledge. Not much was done at any of the other churches along this line.

On Sunday, May 27th, death entered the home of Bro. W. W. Hurley and claimed little Doris, who was just a little over two years of age. This was the first member out of a large family to be transplanted to the heavenly field, hence it was very hard for the family to bear it. But they are children of God and therefore could say, "Not my will but thine be done." On Monday the little body was laid to rest in the cemetery at West End underneath a mound of roses. May God's spirit comfort those who mourn.

W. H. Brown.

ALL SORTS OF GOOD THINGS AT MT. TIRZAH

Just a few lines from the Mt. Tirzah charge, so that the readers of the Advocate may know what we are doing here.

We are rejoicing these days over having our new church equipped with its Sunday school rooms and other conveniences. It is decidedly the best building in Helena. May God's blessings be upon every one who has a part in this place of worship. The good people of New Bethel are wide awake for a new church after this same plan. The building committee has been appointed, quite a number of logs have been cut and everything is running in "high gear." We hope to be able to put this in the hands of a contractor by the first of August. We see no reason why we should not be able to be in this new church before the persimmons are ripe. You will hear more from us on this subject later.

Here comes the climax. The good people of Mt. Zion and New Bethel of this charge were able to discern the need of a man clothed for comfort in midsummer, and they determined to give their pastor a suit of clothes fit for the occasion of the preachers' summer school. Brother John H. Jones, the Centenary treasurer and an all round good fellow, and Brother Ed Latta of New Bethel, who can always see far ahead and observe the needs of his pastor, with a determination like only a few men have, may live a long time and do many things out of the ordinary, but never can they bring a more pleasant surprise and set more cross currents to flowing than did they when they brought the unexpected news to this preacher. The unexpected has happened and the unusual will be one of the delightful memories of the years. Blessings on everyone who had a part in this delightful shock. The kind thoughtfulness shown and the abundant good will manifested is prized above silver and gold. These make the real wealth of the world. Thanks in abundant measure to every dear friend of these good churches.

J. C. Williams, P. C.

Name the farm, place a sign over the gate, use printed stationery and develop a reputation for your produce, says extension workers of the State College and Department of Agriculture.

PROGRESS AT POLKVILLE

Polkville circuit is moving along nicely. We have done some repairing at almost every church. Clover Hill has painted inside and out, put in a concrete floor in vestibule and recarpeted. Ceasar has recovered; also Lee's Chapel and Elliott's have recovered. Polkville has finished their Sunday school equipment and are now using it. Rehobeth, Elliott's and Polkville took stock in the training school at Shelby, Polkville having the largest attendance and receiving largest number of credits of any country church in the conference.

The prayer meeting and Epworth League at Polkville are going good. The league holds a service each Sunday evening, using not only the young folk, but also the children and adults.

We have material for a new church at Mt. Harmony and we hope to build at Lattinore some day.

The pastor will be sent to Junaluska in July. (The members want a vacation.)
E. M. Avett.

FROM A HAM OF MEAT TO A PAPER OF PINS

We did not intend writing, but our people have been so good to us since coming here I want to tell you about it.

The people of Scott's Hill, through the Ladies' Aid, gave us a warm welcome on our arrival with a warm house, supper on the table, and a nicely stocked pantry to begin with. They did not stop with this, for every few days since some good things from this and the other churches find their way to the parsonage.

While in Wilmington a few days ago Brother Rhodes, our good Sunday school superintendent at Rocky Point, asked me to drive around to a certain place, and when I did he loaded my Ford with good things he had started with from his Sunday school. It was one of the "old time kind" of poundings. It contained almost anything from a ham of meat to a paper of pins. Our pantry looks very much like a young grocery store. All these acts of kindness brings a feeling to us which we can not express. May He who is able reward them.

On the second Sunday in May the Sunday school at Union had their annual Children's Day. An interesting program was rendered by the school. Other schools will observe this day later. We are planning to remodel our church at Rocky Point. Six Sunday school rooms will be added and the main church greatly changed. Plans are in hand and funds are being raised.
E. W. Downum, P. C.

CHRISTIAN CITIZENSHIP CONFERENCE

The program built up by the executives of the National Reform Association for the Winona Lake Conference on World Problems to be held July 1-8, has been so developed that fully one hundred speakers of national prominence will have part in the discussions.

Among the features planned will be a great Fourth of July celebration, in which the representatives of many different nationalities will participate. It will include a parade, fireworks, the singing of patriotic songs, speeches by governors and other public officials, concluding with an address by William Jennings Bryan.

There will be other special days, such as Education Day on July 3rd, and Governor's Day on July 5th. Important conferences will be held each morning from 9 to 12 on such subjects as Civil Authority, Morals and Civics in the Public Schools, How to Obtain Patriotism Among Christian Nations, Democracy and Divine Authority, World Peace, The Basis of International Justice and Law.

The members of the conference will be invited to take part in these discussions, as one of the main purposes of the association is to make this occasion a real conference, and not a convention, in the ordinary sense.

APPRECIATION OF THE LATE REV. S. E. RICHARDSON

I was shocked when the last issue of the Advocate brought news of the death of Rev. S. E. Richardson. He was four years pastor of my home church, Oak Grove, then in the bounds of Cliffside circuit. I was licensed to preach while he was our pastor. I preached my first sermons under his direction. I loved him. He was a good, pure man, much loved by the people in our church and community. He gave me much good advice that has been of great worth to me in my ten years' ministry among the hills of Holston conference. I pause today to shed this tear at his going. I always kept a warm place in my heart for him. I am sorry I was not privileged to associate with him as a brother pastor. I am sure it was my loss. I came to Holston conference for my first charge. I have been here since, but I always kept informed as to Brother Richardson. He served some hard fields of labor, but he has gone home for the crown. I shall hope to meet him in a better world. Peace to his ashes.

I think of his wife and children today. I wonder what of their future. I sincerely trust they are well provided for in a material way. I pray that the day may come in our Methodism when those who have served her

Z. B. Randall.

RECEIVES A HICKORY MAUL ON SALARY

Last Sunday our Sunday school superintendent, E. N. Keever, put on Children's Day exercises at Asbury church. The program was the finest I ever saw. The Sunday school at Asbury is a real live one and our Macon county Sunday school convention is to meet there some time in July. We are getting along fairly well, making some impression; at least we judge so by the fact that we have received a good heavy hickory maul on salary. Yes, and we are using it on our woodpile. Here is a good place to stop. Anyhow, my little finger is torn up so I have to use my wrist as a base for my pen so that I can't half write.
W. I. Hughes.

EUROPE AS COMPARED WITH AMERICA

The following statement has been given out for publication by Charles J. Brand, a well known government expert, just returned from studying economic conditions in Europe:

Coming from America, where within a year I have made a trip of over 7,000 miles to the Pacific Coast and back during which I had seen only two drunken persons, I was naturally struck with the number of intoxicated persons one sees, the number of public houses, and with the extent to which almost everyone in Europe dedicates himself to drink.

The first sight that greeted us on the landing at Plymouth was four drunken stevedores, adding to an already well-finished job. The number of "pubs" is almost unnumbered, and I made it a point to go into some to see the character of the patrons. They were very generally of the poorer class, practically always including from one to several women. In the evening one almost invariably sees baby carriages and small children standing outside the pubs while their mother is drinking within.

Getting a drink of plain water is a ceremony throughout Europe. Wines, whiskey, ales and beer are always offered to you, but never water. In a large percentage of restaurants and cafes an extra charge is made for your meal if you do not take wine or liquor. In other words, the profit, particularly on champagne is so great that meals cannot be furnished at the same price if drinks are not also bought. Wherever one turns he is offered a drink.

The unsteady steps, red faces and redder noses that one sees everywhere leaves no doubt that alcohol is one of the most threatening dangers of all Europe. England spent in 1921, according to the best estimates, over $2,000,000,000 in drink; France about $1,500,000,000. I was unable to get any figures on Italy, but as she produced 850,000,000 gallons of wine alone her drink bill, when distilled liquor and beer are added, can readily be guessed. I had not doubt in my own mind but that these three nations spent between $4,000,000,000 and $5,000,000,000 a year on drink.

The importance which some European governments place on the liquor industry can be sensed when one realizes that prohibition Norway was forced by Spain and France to purchase 500,000 gallons of wines and liquor from each of these nations as a condition precedent to the renewal of her commercial treaty. Spain even forced poor Iceland—which had been prohibition for seven years and was very anxious to continue so—to take so large a quantity of wines and liquors that Iceland is reported to be suffering from almost general alcoholism.

The lever in each of these cases was the absolute necessity that these northern nations be able to sell their fish in order to sustain their people. The ultimatum apparently was "If you won't buy our liquor, we won't buy your fish."

WHY DRUGS FAIL

Many chronic diseases fail to respond to drug treatment, even in the hands of the best physicians, whereas acute diseases usually respond readily. When a disease has become chronic, drugs often seem to do as much harm as they do good, for the system rebels against them. It is just this class of cases which derive the greatest benefit from drinking Shivar, America's best stomach, liver and kidney water. If you suffer with chronic dyspepsia, indigestion, sick headache, rheumatism, kidney or liver disease, uric acid poisoning or other curable conditions due to impure blood do not hesitate to accept the Spring's liberal offer as printed below. Their records show that only two in a hundred, on the average, have reported "no benefit." This is a wonderful record from a truly wonderful Spring. Sign the following letter:

Shivar Springs,
Box 4H, Shelton, S. C.

Gentlemen:

I accept your offer and enclose herewith three dollars for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Water. I agree to give it a fair trial, in accordance with instructions contained in booklet you will send, and if I report no benefit you agree to refund the price of the water in full upon receipt of the two empty demijohns which I agree to return within a month.

Name .....
Address .....
Shipping Point .....
(Please write distinctly.)

Take Business Training at Home

We will train you just as thoroughly at your home as at our College. Write for big, FREE book, "Guide to Business Success." Draughton's Practical Business College, Dept. N. C., Nashville, Tenn.

DR. CHAS. W. MOSELEY

Diseases of Stomach and Internal Medicine

Office, 229 S. Elm St. Residence, 438 S. Mendenhall St., Greensboro, N. C. Office 604—Phones—Res. 1739.

RANDOLPH-MACON INSTITUTE, Danville, Virginia, for Girls. College preparatory and special course for those not wishing to go to college. Vocal and Instrumental Music, Art and Expression. Attractive home life. Gymnasium. Branch of the Randolph-Macon System. Rates $500. Catalogue. Address Chas. G. Evans, A. M., Principal, Box C.

Good-Bye Pimples!
Farewell eczema, rash and other annoying skin troubles.
TETTERINE
The skin's best friend. Leaves the skin soft, smooth and spotless.
60c at your druggist's or from the SHUPTRINE CO. :: SAVANNAH, GA.

Wanted! Ambitious Men and Women

We are receiving calls daily for men and women of character, ambition and business training, men and women who can accept and efficiently fill responsible positions; positions that give every opportunity for advancement; positions of high salaries; positions in banks, law offices, insurance, real estate, brokers' offices; positions with manufacturers, jobbers, retailers, in every imaginable type of business in the South.

Many of them we capably fill, others are yet vacant. The men and women who fill them need not be wealthy, nor even moderately well-to-do. They need not be young, nor need they be college or even high school graduates. All that is necessary is that they possess character, ambition and a business training.

The character and ambition they must possess, the business training we will furnish under the direction of the South's most efficient training corps and in one of the South's most efficient and best equipped business colleges. A training with unique courses in bookkeeping, stenography, typewriting, accounting, banking, business administration or our secretarial course. Such a training we will furnish in a few months time at little cost to you, and at terms to meet your own financial condition.

Thousands of Southern men and women have taken advantage of the opportunity and trained themselves for a higher calling, a better salary and a greater opportunity for advancement. Many who have accepted the positions we offer have risen to the top of the ladder, and are numbered among America's foremost and wealthiest business and professional men and women.

An institution with such standing and reputation as the Georgia-Alabama Business College does more to advance the business interests of its graduates than can be done by any amount of family or personal influence.

Consider your present status. Would you not like to improve your station in life, increase your income, attain financial independence and success? An opportunity awaits you, for positions are being constantly offered us that must be filled.

Write for our inspiring book, "Your Future—What Does It Hold in Store?" It is sent free on request, explains our offer in detail and points the way to a brighter future.

Address: Dept. B9, Georgia-Alabama Business College, Macon, Ga.

Bilious Attacks
Are Usually Due to Constipation

When you are constipated, not enough of Nature's lubricating liquid is produced in the bowel to keep the food waste soft and moving. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it acts like this natural lubricant and thus secures regular bowel movements by Nature's own method—lubrication.

Nujol is a lubricant—not a medicine or laxative—so cannot gripe. Try it today.

Nujol
A LUBRICANT—NOT A LAXATIVE

WOMAN'S PAGE

N. C. CONFERENCE

Mrs. J. LeGrand Everett.....Editor
Rockingham, N. C.

W. N. C. CONFERENCE

Mrs. H. K. Boyer .....Editor
Mt. Airy, N. C.

Western North Carolina Conference

WAYNESVILLE DISTRICT MEETING

The Woman's Missionary Societies of the Waynesville district met in annual session at Long's Chapel, Lake Junaluska, May 30. In many respects this was the best district meeting Waynesville district has ever held. Our new secretary, Mrs. Stentz, is such an enthusiastic missionary woman herself that she easily held us all when on the floor, and we came away feeling a new inspiration to do more as individuals and as societies. Notable was the delegations from Canton and Waynesville—twenty-one from Canton, fourteen from Waynesville. Two interesting demonstrations were given during the day—"A Missionary Clinic," given by Canton Adults, and "Opening the Doors of China" by Long's Chapel Juniors. We were fortunate in having three conference officers with us—Mrs. Dunham, Mrs. Weaver and Miss Hackney, who presented their respective fields of work. We were also fortunate to have Dr. Geo. R. Stewart introduced to the conference to add to the many interesting features of the day. The visitors were indebted to Long's Chapel for the delightful lunch served at the Southern Railway station.

The next annual meeting will be held at Canton.

Mrs. J. R. Stephens,
Rec. Sec.

MISSION STUDY CLASS HELD AN ALL-DAY MEETING

The mission study class held an all-day meeting in the ladies' parlor of the Methodist church Wednesday, May 16th. Twenty-two members assembled with their lunch at 10 o'clock, and took up the study of the trend of the races, with Mrs. Glenn Long as leader. Three chapters were taken up before the noon hour. Quite a bountiful lunch was then spread which was heartily enjoyed by all. At one o'clock the study was continued and the book finished. Mrs. G. A. Warlick gave an interesting talk on the book as a whole. Mesdames Shinn and R. P. Cochran gave readings. It was decided to take up a book on foreign missions, also a book of Bible study. The Study Circle adjourned and the regular missionary program was then given with Mrs. R. P. Cochran as leader. Papers on the living Christ in Korea were read by Mesdames Martin, Saunders and Harris. Interesting reports from annual conference were given by Mesdames Thurmond, Trolinger and Warlick. After close of the meeting refreshing ice tea, sandwiches and cake were served. Our pastor, Mr. Shinn, visited the afternoon session and added much to the meeting.

Mrs. C. L. Everhart.

WHY I HAVE FOUR MEETINGS EACH MONTH

Nearly every kind of cart has four wheels. It must have that many to carry on its work, and my missionary cart must have four wheels if it is to do all the work it should. My right front wheel is Bible study and the left front wheel, is mission study; they pull together and start my cart rolling. My right back wheel is the business meeting, and the left back wheel is the Voice Program, they "back up" the work with financial aid and the inspiration of work being done. It would be a calamity for almost any cart to try to run on one or two or three wheels, but especially for my missionary cart, which has to go around the world with salvation.

Even the world has four corners, and as I have to send the gospel to each point, I must be four cornered too! Many a weary traveler has found his way by the guidance of the North Star, and so I call my north the mission study class, as it guides and directs the way. In the east the sun rises, so I call my east the Bible study class, where the Son of Righteousness rises in many hearts. I think of the south as where gentle breezes blow, bringing comfort and relief, and so my south is my finances, that take both physical and spiritual aid. And then the west, where the sun sets when the day's work is done, my west is the Voice Program bringing welcome news of accomplishment.

I think of those societies which do not have four meetings a month and wonder which they are leaving out, north or south or east or west? As far as I am concerned, I hope as long as I live that I shall never be thus stunted, but that I shall ever be able to stretch out in a full fourfold capacity!—From the Louisiana Conference.

RELIGIOUS SERVICES AT ELLIS ISLAND

A most significant innovation has taken place at Ellis Island, the gateway to America. Regular religious services are now being held every Sunday. According to reports from the Home Mission Council, definite opportunities for worship through religious services have been made possible through the splendid co-operation of the present commissioner of immigration, Mr. Robert Todd. Every Sunday morning three types of religious services are held. At 8:15 o'clock the Roman Catholics have their mass; at 9:15 o'clock the Protestant service is held; and at 10:15 all Hebrew immigrants have an opportunity for worship, with a Rabbi presiding.

Imagine yourself at Ellis Island. It is Sunday. The detention rooms are crowded with men, women and children of all nationalities. Time hangs heavily. The official business has ceased for a much needed day of rest. Interviews of friends and relatives with detained immigrants are not possible. The organ in the Hall of Inspection begins to peal out a musical strain of religious devotion. The guards call out in the detention rooms in various languages: "Church, church, who wants to go to church?"

It is an impressive sight to see these immigrants from many lands assemble in the main inspection hall at Ellis Island and attend the Protestant service; to notice their real appreciation while they listen to the beautiful music of the organ and hear vested choir; to study their faces while the Scripture is read and a simple message concerning God and His love is given and translated by interpreters; and to observe their deep reverence when prayer is offered.

Thus the spiritual and mental comfort in a very definite way is given to every detained immigrant as he passes through Ellis Island. Many of them have great sorrows and disappointments to bear. They need the strengthening influences which only religion and a belief in God can bring. Besides, each one is also given the impression that the "Spirit of America" is fundamentally religious.—Survey.

THE DOUBLERS DOUBLING

Less than one-half of the women in the world have never heard the gospel or enjoyed one single benefit or blessing which comes with this message.

Less than one-fifth of the women and children of your church are interested enough in the Christless lives to take advantage of the opportunity which the missionary society affords for carrying the message to them.

Won't your society do its part toward speeding the messengers by doubling its membership? If you will join the Doublers write to the Organization Secretary, Lambuth Building, Nashville, Tenn., and tell her you are in, she will have some leaflets sent to you and will give you every possible help in reaching the goal.—June Bulletin.

North Carolina Conference

WOMANHOOD AND THE KINGDOM

The so-called world-wide movement for the liberation and uplift of woman is distinctly and insistently the result of the teachings of Jesus Christ and the operation of the Holy Spirit upon the hearts of men.

From the time when its divine Founder rebuked in scathing terms the teachings of the Scribes, Pharisees and hypocrites of Judaism, the dominant note of Christianity, even in its lowest forms, has been a note of liberty. A Christian civilization which does not generate and develop a spirit of individual, civil and religious liberty is impossible.—Bell H. Bennett, Lambuth-Bennett Book of Remembrance.

JULY 1ST

Another quarter, the second of 1923 has passed, and the time for reporting the work done in all the departments has rolled around again. July 1st is the day. Let all the presidents of auxiliaries take notice, call an executive meeting of officers, and see that every report is sent out on the right day to the proper conference officer, and that each report is accurate and fully made out—do not leave one single question on the report blanks unanswered—most of them require only one word or a number. It is just as important to the work of our organization that these reports should be accurate and full as it is to any other business that its inventory, taken at stated times, should be a full and true one. Remember also that this quarter we have three new ones to whom to report—Mrs. Lee Johnson of Weldon, conference superintendent of social service; Mrs. W. R. Royall of Laurinburg, district secretary of the Rockingham district, and Mrs. T. W. Lee of Rose Hill, district secretary of the Wilmington district. Please bear these changes in mind when making your reports. It should be remembered also that Mrs. W. F. Murphy of Wallace is our new conference superintendent of literature, who has charge of all program literature, except the Bulletin. Send her your president's name and address with the name of your auxiliary, so that her mailing list may be accurate, and you may receive all the literature so necessary to the successful planning and carrying out of your auxiliary programs for the monthly meetings.

NOTICE

Inquiries for council minutes are coming in. We hope to mail them early in July. There will be two copies for each adult auxiliary and one for each young people's auxiliary.

Mrs. W. F. Murphy, Supt.

A SUGGESTIONS TO PRESIDENTS

Our church requires her pastors to read and explain our church rules to their congregations at least once every year. Many of the women of our auxiliaries, and the young people's auxiliaries also, are entirely ignorant of the fact that the auxiliary of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, is organized under rules as binding upon us if we would be law-abiding as is any organization for business purposes. We are a business organization for the purpose of sending the gospel to those who have it not wherever they be, and all the departments of the society have their legitimate and necessary duties which are designed to contribute their special parts to the success of the whole. There are things we must do, and there are things we may not do, legitimately. Our suggestion is that every president, however large or small her auxiliary may be, read and explain the constitution and by-laws of our auxiliaries to her members at least once a year, and occasionally have a quiz on it, using the blackboard to emphasize certain points. The time is past when we should be satisfied only to pay our dues and perhaps an additional sum on the pledge. We need information for the inspiration we must have if we would measure up to the standard size auxiliary and auxiliary woman. The constitution and by-laws will be found in our conference minutes, a copy of which is sent free to every president. If you have misplaced yours, you may get one from our conference recording secretary, Mrs. E. M. Snipes, Oxford, N. C.

WELDON DISTRICT GROUP MEETING

The Vance-Warren Federation of the Weldon district will meet in Macon at 10:30 a. m., June 27th. Miss Amma Graham, secretary, is planning an interesting and instructive program, which includes among other good things an address by our Sallie Lou McKinnon. It is hoped and expected that all the auxiliaries will send full delegations.

DEGREES CONFERRED

Our women will be interested and pleased to know that at the recent commencement the degree of Doctor of Divinity was conferred upon Rev. N. H. D. Wilson of Elizabeth City and Doctor of Laws upon Mr. Frank Page of Aberdeen by the University of North Carolina. No worthier men could have been so honored, and we felicitate them while congratulating the university upon its choice.

ROCKINGHAM DISTRICT

As it has been quite a while since we have given out any report of the missionary work from Hebron church I will let you know what we are doing.

Our little society is now entering its third year of existence and is still wide awake. In the first months of the new year the "fu" became so prevalent in our midst January program was not given and February attendance was very small, but March and April have reached in attendance up to the average, perhaps beyond.

In February the report of the two past years' work was read, and then one of our most enthusiastic members read a paper on "What Our Society Hopes to Accomplish in 1923." One incentive for attendance she gave was, the lady member who has the largest number of absentees at the end of the year will be given some extra work in the society to do.

We hold our meetings monthly in the homes alphabetically. We then know when our time comes to entertain beforehand. There is more interest aroused on missions, as every member now takes the Voice or News except two, and they say they expect to take it soon. There is another strong feature of advancement in the society. When a member is called upon to perform some task, easy or difficult, the response is most hearty.

IN IMMEDIATE NEED OF CHURCH HOME

While in Japan we adopted the practice of calling for decisions at the close of each service and, during about one week of evening meetings, enrolled more than one hundred names in the various places where

(Continued on page thirteen.)

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORK

N. C. CONFERENCE

L. L. Gobbel .....Editor
Durham, N. C.

W. N. C. CONFERENCE

O. V. Woosley .....Editor
Lexington, N. C.

North Carolina Conference

SUMMER SCHOOL CREDITS

Forty-three certificates of credit were issued for Sunday school training work done in the Trinity Summer School for Preachers. Of this number 24 were for the course in "The Organization and Administration of the Sunday School," taught by Prof. H. E. Spence of Trinity, and 19 for "Principles of Religious Training," taught by Prof. C. G. Thompson of Emory University. Enrolled in these two classes were about 70, and quite a few of these who did not work for the credit have expressed their purpose of standing the examination at home and thus earning the certificate. Of the 43 certificates, 18 went to members of the Western North Carolina conference, 25 to the North Carolina. Following are the names of those earning certificates:

"Organization and Administration of the Sunday School," Prof. H. E. Spence, instructor—H. G. Allen, Walkertown; E. D. Ballard, Marion; J. W. Bennett, Rutherford College; R. H. Caudill, West Durham; John Cline, Winston-Salem; T. S. Coble, Youngsville; R. G. L. Edwards, Taber; J. R. Edwards, Bynum; Mrs. R. O. Miller, Albemarle; W. G. Farrar, Princeton; E. L. Hillman, Scotland Neck; W. B. Humble, Moyock; G. R. Jordan, Black Mountain; J. A. Martin, Mt. Gilead; W. C. Martin, Hamlet; Prof. I. B. McKay, Durham; E. Myers, Charlotte; W. E. Poovey, Marion; W. L. Scott, Ramseur; R. A. Smith, Lexington; E. L. Stack, Elizabeth City; J. C. Umberger, Concord; J. E. Woosley, Trinity; and M. B. Woosley, Salisbury.

"Principles of Religious Teaching," Prof. C. B. Thompson, instructor—O. P. Ader, Mt. Holly; W. T. Albright, Mt. Pleasant; J. W. Autry, Carrboro; J. W. Bradley, West Durham; D. A. Clarke, R. Kingham; G. M. Daniel, Graham; W. F. Elliott, Rutherford College; J. W. Ingle, Shelby; Chas. M. Lance, Faison; W. L. Maness, Fayetteville; Mrs. W. L. Maness, Fayetteville; D. A. Petty, Rockingham; B. B. Slaughter, Tarboro; C. T. Rogers, Snow Hill; L. T. Singleton, Rocky Mount; H. L. Stone, West Durham; F. T. Stough, Salisbury; T. G. Vickers, Henderson; and H. M. Wellman, Durham.

PROF. HERSEY E. SPENCE

To undertake to enumerate the many contributions of time, talent, and service to the Sunday school cause being made by Prof. Hersey Everett Spence, head of the department of Biblical literature and religious education of Trinity College and chairman of our conference Sunday school board, would require more space than is at our disposal. In addition to his regular college class work, devoted well-nigh exclusively to teaching courses dealing directly with principles, organization, administration, and methods of religious education, which, together with the courses taught by the other members of his department, will yield this year approximately 800 standard units of credit, he gives his services in a number of our standard training schools, teaches training classes, and is a constant source of inspiration and help in all our perplexities. Then, outside our own conference his influence is being felt. He has taught in standard training schools in several other conferences, and this summer he will be a member of the faculty of the great Junaluska Training School at Lake Junaluska, "the summer capital of Southern Methodism." Perhaps no man in the North Carolina conference, and but few in Southern Methodism, is doing more for the cause of religious education than he.

GIBSON GAINING GROUND

Gibson Sunday school, under the superintendency of Mr. Willie Gibson, is growing in numbers and usefulness. Since the non-standard training school held in this school about three months ago marked improvements have been made. Authentic information indicates that it is going about its business with a definiteness of purpose and a punctuality and promptness befitting its high purpose. With a church membership of 189, this school has an enrollment of 246, 181 being in the main school, 18 on the Cradle Roll, and 47 in the home department, with approximately a 65 per cent attendance. The pastor, Rev. A. J. Parker, is proud of the fine way things are moving along.

GOOD TRAINING PROGRAM

Edenton Street Sunday school, Raleigh, has set itself definitely and determinedly to the task of providing itself with training workers. Already since January 1 its workers have earned between 90 and 100 units of credit on the standard training course, and it is the purpose of Rev. W. W. Peele, the pastor, and Mr. Joseph G. Brown, the superintendent, to work toward an average of at least 100 each year. This school secured 43 credits from the standard training school held there in January and has followed up this good start with two training classes, taught by the pastor, and considerable individual work. From the two classes, each running through a period of about ten days and attended by 20 or 25 officers and teachers, 33 certificates were earned. Individual work added 12 or 15 units to the total. Supplementing this work the school is going to send two special representatives to Lake Junaluska July 12-26, and quite a number of others are planning to accompany them. Then, to afford a training opportunity for the young people of the school who desire it, a young people's training class, under Prof. N. C. Newbold, will be started this fall.

Through personal effort alone Mrs. W. W. Peele, teacher of a class of young women, Raleigh, has earned, since February 1, seven certificates of credit on the standard training course. Miss Eunice Blair, of the same Sunday school, has earned four in the same way, and the pastor, Rev. W. W. Peele, has found time to earn three. It can be done; these did it! And we are reminded,

"You can do anything you want to do if you only want to do it."

Not satisfied with just the seven certificates, Mrs. Peele is going to the Junaluska Training School and there earn two more. Miss Blair, Junior teacher, lacks just three units being a Gold Seal graduate, and will also go to Junaluska. Miss Vara Herring, superintendent of the Intermediate department, holder of three or four certificates, plans also to be among those taking advantage of this wonderful training opportunity.

CLASS AT ELIZABETH CITY

A splendid training class, which will yield a number of units of credit and make a fine contribution to the efficiency of the members of it, has been organized at Elizabeth City with Mrs. C. B. Culbreth, wife of the presiding elder, as teacher. Mrs. Culbreth is a most capable woman and has made a special study of Sunday school work, especially with Beginner children. She has been approved by the General Sunday School Board to teach "Beginner Organization and Administration" in standard training schools.

SANDFIDDLER OR HILLBILLIE?

My mistake, Friend Woosley; we should have put up our "No Trespassing" sign first. But since you beat us to it, and inasmuch as they say possession is two-thirds of the law, we will have to concede to you that the Right Reverend John W. Hoyle, Jr., formerly of Wilmington, but now of or near Asheville, is a Hillbillie—that is, if a Sandfiddler can turn Hillbillie in five or six months. We knew him as a Sandfiddler and Nashville listed him as a Sandfiddler "at the tail of the list with four credits." However, if he wants to be called a Hillbillie, that's his misfortune. My mistake!

TWO TRAINING CLASSES

Rev. O. I. Hinson has organized two Sunday school training classes on his charge, one at Hickory Mountain and the other at Siler City. He is showing his interest in the problem of securing trained workers by helping train them. Success to his splendid beginning!

Western North Carolina Conference

THANK YOU

During the past week the following Western North Carolina conference Sunday schools have observed Sunday School Day and have forwarded their offering to Treasurer H. A. Dunham, Asheville, N. C. One-fourth of all Sunday School Day receipts will be used by the district organization in the district from which they come. The other three-fourths will be wisely used in promoting our conference Sunday school work. To these, our connectional schools, we rise and bow with thanks just oozing out of our systems.

Woodfin, Asheville Ct. ....	$ 2.46
Sardis, Asheville Ct. ....	7.27
Morven, Morven Ct. ....	5.17
Antioch, Rural Hall Ct. ....	7.38
Rehobeth, Norwood Ct. ....	2.50
Macedonia, Linwood Ct. ....	4.50
Dallas .....	7.23
Mt. Zion Station .....	15.11
Cherryville .....	5.85
Rocky Springs, Alexander Ct. ...	3.33
Fairview, Todd Ct. ....	3.95
Balsam, Sylva-Dillsboro .....	2.50
Zion, Morganton Ct. ....	4.50
Harrison, Pineville Ct. ....	10.00
Mt. Pleasant, Mt. Pleasant Ct. ...	7.10
Kannapolis .....	11.35
Ansonville, Ansonville Ct. ....	6.96
Wesley Chapel, Weddington Ct. ...	2.68
Asbury, Macon Ct. ....	8.00

WESLEY FEDERATION

Prospects for the biggest and best Wesley Bible Class Federation ever held in the Western North Carolina conference get better every day. Programs are now being mailed out and in a few days big posters will go out to many of our leading churches advertising some of the reasons for attending our Federation. Special cars will start from Winston-Salem, Greensboro, Charlotte, Gastonia and from any other points where the travel would seem to justify. These special cars will merge into a special train which will start from Salisbury. Next week's Advocate will state the prices of round trip tickets from given points, said tickets being good till October 1. Lake Junaluska is the place, July 9, 10, 11, is the time and our Federation is the occasion. Get on your mark, get set and let's go!

THE JUNALUSKA SCHOOL

The Southern Methodist Sunday School Training School held each summer at Lake Junaluska is the best thing of its kind held in America. This school has been getting better each year. This year there are to be three two weeks terms instead of one as formerly. The first school opens July 12 and closes July 26 and will offer 19 courses. The second school opens July 27 and closes August 9 and will offer 14 courses. The third school begins August 10 and closes August 23 and will offer 11 courses. In all these schools just two courses will be offered twice, so you can see at a glance what a field of study is opened to those who want to elect just the work they want and need. One can take just two courses for credit at each school, two for two weeks, or six courses for the three schools, or six weeks. Since there are four lesson periods each day it is possible to attend four courses, two for credit and two for absorption. One will, however, find that two courses will give him plenty to do. Anyone who goes to Lake Junaluska and studies all the time ought to be spanked. God and man have made Lake Junaluska for recreation, study and worship. You will want to do all three.

MACEDONIA

I went to Macedonia last Sunday, not to help them, but let Macedonia help me. Macedonia is a leading church on the Linwood circuit and is located at Southmont, Davidson county. It was Sunday School Day and Rev. J. W. Campbell, pastor, and D. L. Crowell, superintendent, were present with ready hands and warm hearts for the large crowd present. Very properly the first thing done on this day was the holding of the regular Sunday school session, after which the special exercises took place at 11 o'clock. Macedonia is one church that built an additional Sunday school room and gave it to the small children while the men and women kept their places in the main church. Macedonia believes in its children and every day Macedonia is getting better. The folks like Brother Campbell very much as he works away in his steady and constructive fashion. I wish we had lots of Macedonias.

EPWORTH LEAGUERS

I'm just back from the Western North Carolina Conference Epworth League Conference held at Trinity church, Charlotte. It was simply grand to look in on 500 fine Christian young people as they worked away at their work. All of them were in the church too! The only people I saw on the outside of the church were Methodist preachers. The leagues of our conference are doing a great work. I wish it were possible for every person who thinks that our young people are worse than they used to be could go to a meeting where a body of them has a chance to do something. Young people are bad only where old people have not given them a chance to be good. Hurrah for our leaguers!

GROWING SOME

The following figures will give by districts some idea of our Western North Carolina conference growth in the past five years. Just three items of growth are given, but these three are probably more indicative of our growth than anything else that can be tangibly presented. The items presented are total five years' growth in church membership, five years' growth in Sunday school enrollment and growth per year during this period of pupils joining the church. First figures for total growth, second for percentage growth and last for present standing.

Asheville District.
G'wth Ch. Memb. ....	835	8.7	10,450
In S.S. Enrollment 1675	19.8		10,125
In pupils join'g Ch.	153	74.9	350
Charlotte District.
G'wth Ch. Memb. ....	2663	20.6	15,569
In S.S. Enrollment 4295	44.3		13,982
In pupils join'g Ch.	160	47.9	494

(Continued on page thirteen.)

EPWORTH LEAGUE WORK

Rev. Daniel Lane, Stantonsburg, N. C.
Rev. J. F. Armstrong, Concord, N. C.

Western North Carolina Conference

A WORD

Over my protest the committee on nominations placed my name before the conference for the office of editor of the Epworth League page. Having been elected I propose to give as much time and care to this work as circumstances will permit, but it will be impossible to fill our space with interesting, helpful matter unless the local chapters and league unions furnish me the "copy." If your chapter is doing anything tell the waiting world about it. If you are not doing anything stand up in the meeting and say, "Pray for us!"

If you are "dead" let me know. I shall be glad to assist you in the funeral arrangements! A good dog deserves a decent burial. The governor of a great American state a few days ago, upon the death of his faithful canine, ordered the flag lowered to half-mast. If you are determined to die in spite of your friends—well, don't do it without first telling your league editor.

Don't forget—it's tidings I want—good tidings if possible, but tidings nevertheless.

A perfectly good and handsome "chalker" was selected for this job last year. If he disappointed you in the least degree it was due to the fact that you enthusiastically gave him the "chalk" and withheld the "copy." Nuf sed. On with the news!

J. F. A.

THE CONFERENCE

The annual Epworth League conference has grown till in point of numbers, enthusiasm and solid helpfulness, especially to our younger people, it now surpasses any other church meeting held within our bounds, not perhaps excepting our great annual conference of preachers and mature laymen.

The meeting which adjourned in Charlotte Friday night of last week was attended by more than six hundred picked young people from every section of our conference.

The Platform Hours.

Dr. J. E. Abernethy, Dr. H. G. Hardin, both of Charlotte, Dr. W. A. Lambeth of Gastonia, and Dr. E. K. McLarty of High Point each delivered an inspiring message. Dr. Hardin substituted for Dr. Ashley Chappell of Central church, Asheville, who was detained on account of illness.

Pastors.

By far the largest number of pastors ever seen at a league conference in our state attended the whole or a part of the sessions. Perhaps, first and last, there were no less than 30 of these busy men who left their work to look in on what Dr. Goncher of Baltimore used to call "God's preferred class."

The School.

A faculty of 18 men and women selected because of their special fitness taught the entire body in Methods, Personal Work and Missions. These were Misses Sarah Green, Emily Mathis, Ruth Anthony, Henrietta Logan, Gertrude Falls, Cormen Blessing, Mrs. W. W. Edwards, Mrs. V. R. Patterson and the following preachers—J. R. Walker, J. F. Armstrong, G. T. Bond, L. B. Hayes, L. A. Falls, L. D. Thompson, E. P. Billups and J. O. Ervin.

Seals.

The committee on efficiency award for the first time awarded four gold seals. These went to Holt's Chapel, Greensboro district; Trinity church, Charlotte; Morganton and Ogburn Memorial, Forsyth circuit.

One blue seal was awarded to High Shoals, one green seal to Spring Garden and one red seal each to Hendersonville, Thomasville and Trinity, Charlotte, Intermediates.

FINANCE COMMITTEE

We, your committee on finance, recommend the following:

The importance of observing Anniversary Day and remitting the offering to the conference treasurer be stressed in accordance with the ruling by the General Epworth League Board, as the conference is permitted to use one-half of this offering in defraying conference expenses.

That each chapter make a budget at the beginning of each conference year, this budget to include the district and conference pledges.

That all local chapters be urged to report all money received to the conference treasurer.

We are pleased to note the treasurer has reported our missionary special pledge paid in full for the current year. According to past records this is the first time in the history of the conference that this pledge has been all paid. We especially urge you to keep up this good report, also put forth your every effort to increase the amount for conference work.

That we adopt a budget of $1500 to cover conference expenses for the year, same to be apportioned among the districts.

That each district secretary be allowed a drawing account of $25 for expenses during the year, and render itemized statement for amount actually spent at the end of each quarter. We further recommend that the junior and intermediate secretaries be allowed a drawing account of $15 for the year.

That all local chapters pay their missionary special and conference assessment pledges quarterly, this in order to facilitate the work of the treasurer and to meet expenses as we go.

We recommend that a budget of $1500 be apportioned among the districts as follows:

Asheville .....	$ 175
Charlotte .....	175
Statesville .....	175
Shelby .....	175
Greensboro .....	175
Winston-Salem .....	175
Salisbury .....	125
Marion .....	100
Waynesville .....	75
North Wilkesboro .....	75
Mt. Airy .....	75
Total .....	$1500

Respectfully submitted,
P. L. Plyler.

POLICY 1924

1. That on account of the obligation to the young people of our churches we set aside as our goal for this year four hundred leagues.

2. That each of the eleven districts in the conference hold at least one district institute this year.

3. That we adopt a budget of fifteen hundred dollars for the conference expense and to be apportioned among the districts.

4. One delegate for every fifteen members or a fraction to represent each chapter at the annual league conference, and the president in addition, also intermediate superintendent and one delegate and junior superintendent and all union presidents.

5. We urge that all chapters use the standard record books and report blanks issued by the central office, and that they return promptly the quarterly report to the district secretary.

6. That we endorse the action of the conference cabinet in their last session, when it was decided that all finances must be in the hands of the treasurer on or before May 30th to be included in the year's report.

7. That a special fund be created

For Troubled Nerves,

high blood pressure, dyspepsia, neuritis, investigate the new drugless methods now employed at DR. BIGGS' PRIVATE SANITARIUM, Asheville, North Carolina. A specialized treatment adopted to each individual. No tubercular cases accepted. Write for free booklet—interesting and instructive.

BINGHAM MILITARY SCHOOL

ASHEVILLE, N. C.—"The Land of the Sky"

Has stood the tests of 130 years. Buildings one-story brick—for safety, sanitation and service. Each pupil carefully studied. Small classes allow individual attention. Ideal school life, of the simpler type, directed by men of ability and experience. R. O. T. C. Unit under U. S. Army officer. All forms of athletics.

COL. R. BINGHAM, Supt. Emeritus. COL. S. R. McKEE, Supt.

THIRTEEN MILLION DOLLARS IN CHURCH VALUES

The value of property belonging to the Methodist Church in North Carolina exceeds $13,000,000. On this vast amount of property there is only $3,000,000 of insurance—less than one-fourth of its value protected.

Suppose you had stock in a furniture factory one-fourth protected from fire, what would you do? You would either sell, or hold the directors responsible.

See that your church officials protect your most valuable assets or you may be called upon to donate again to rebuild a church parsonage destroyed by fire.

Insure in The Methodist Mutual—owned and controlled by the two North Carolina Conferences.

W. E. WEBB, Secretary
STATESVILLE, N. C.

DAVENPORT COLLEGE

FOR YOUNG WOMEN LENOIR, N. C.

A three-year Junior College with a record of sixty-eight years of exceptional Academic work.

Well Equipped, Conservative, but thoroughly abreast of the times.

Fine Type of Student Life. A Safe Place for Young Women to study under close but sympathetic discipline.

Moderate Expenses. The lowest cost commensurate with a High Type of Modern Instruction.

A Registered Nurse constantly in attendance. A most healthful location, in the foothills of the Blue Ridge.

Courses in the Regular Academic Department and Art, Music, Expression, Domestic Science, Domestic Art and Secretarial Courses.

A four-year preparatory course on same campus and correlated with the college.

For Catalogue and Views,

Address PRESIDENT C. L. HORNADAY, LENOIR, N. C.

for helping worthy volunteers in their education, the fund not to exceed 10 per cent of the African special pledge.

Respectfully submitted,
M. S. Smith,
Grace Bradley,
Berryman Jones.

WOODINGTON LEAGUE

Woodington Epworth League was organized May 13, 1923, with the following officers elected:

- President—Miss Mary Koonce.
- Vice President—Archie Stroud.
- Secretary—Miss Mary Lanier.
- Treasurer—Robert Johnson.
- Era Agent—Miss Caro Lanier.
- Cor. Sec.—Miss Reba Loffin.
- First Supt.—Mrs. H. M. Johnson.
- Second Supt.—Miss Nannie Waller.
- Third Supt.—Miss Ruby Parker.
- Fourth Supt.—Miss Etta Johnson.

These young people look forward to the activities of league work with pleasure. Miss Mary Lanier.

One of the greatest needs of farmers in Stanley county is more legume hay, states County Agent O. H. Phillips after three years in the county. One farmer took this advice to heart and kept his livestock in better condition last winter than ever before with one-third less grain.

The club women of Beaufort county are contesting for membership and attendance records until November, when the losing clubs will tender the winners a nice luncheon, reports Miss Myrtle Keller, home agent. The luncheon will be based on the work done in nutrition during the summer.

MORPHINE and WHISKY HABITS successfully treated. Write for information. Correspondence confidential. 12th successful yr. WILLIAMS PRIVATE SANITARIUM, Greensboro, N. C.

Nelson J. Miles is now making dates for spring and summer evangelistic services as choir leader, using Rodeheaver's Victory Songs. Pastors desiring his service may write him at Box 95, Dayton, Va.

Practical training in bookkeeping, shorthand, typewriting, banking, accounting and penmanship in the Greensboro Commercial School, Greensboro, N. C., will assure you of a well paying position. Students are enrolling weekly. Write for Catalog.

OUR ORPHANAGE WORK

METHODIST ORPHANAGE RALEIGH, N. C.

Hon. R. N. Page ..... President
A. S. Barnes ..... Superintendent
Mrs. Mattie Jenkins ..... Matron
Owned and maintained by the North Carolina Conference.

FORM OF BEQUEST

I do hereby will and bequeath to The Methodist Orphanage, Raleigh, N. C., contemplated by the charter under the Act of the General Assembly of North Carolina ..... (here designate the bequest) .....

THE CHILDREN'S HOME WINSTON-SALEM, N. C.

Rev. C. A. Wood ..... Superintendent

THE METHODIST ORPHANAGE

OUR NEEDS

Swimming pool.
Seven passenger automobile.
Financial aid from all the churches and Sunday schools.

* * * *

Professor Withers, dean of the State College Summer School, invited our singing class to give a sacred concert before the teachers of the summer school. We gladly accepted the invitation and received a warm welcome. The concert was given in Pullen Memorial Hall before a large number of interested hearers.

* * * *

Some time ago the Rev. W. W. Peele extended our class a cordial invitation to visit Edenton Street church and give a sacred concert. Brother Peele is one of our truest friends and we were simply delighted to visit this great church that has made such wonderful progress under his masterful leadership. In behalf of the church Mr. Joseph G. Brown, that princely layman of our church, gave us a gracious welcome. It is a source of genuine joy to every layman of our church, and to the state generally, to know that Brother Brown has recovered from his recent illness. We have not given the concert anywhere to a more appreciative and responsive audience. The Edenton Street church through all of its departments is continually doing great things for our children. The church has taken our class to its great heart of love. Brother Brown expressed the feeling of the church toward the Orphanage when he declared with emphasis that the Methodist Orphanage stands next to Edenton Street in the interest and love of its membership. We feel happy and secure when we realize that we have such a host of devoted friends as the membership of Edenton Street.

* * * *

Oxford is one of the most cultured towns in the state. It can boast of a fine citizenship. The old Horner School, the Baptist College and Oxford Orphanage have brought the town prominently before the state. It was a genuine pleasure that our singing class experienced the second Sunday morning when we gave a sacred concert in the Methodist church. It was one of the most intelligent and interested audiences which we have appeared before. Bro. R. L. Brown, superintendent of the Oxford Orphanage, welcomed me to his home. It was a delightful fellowship I enjoyed in his hospitable home. Under the wise and Christian leadership of Brother Brown the orphanage is steadily going forward in every line of activity. The hundred thousand dollar hospital is rapidly going up. It is fireproof and modern in all of its designs. An up-to-date school building has been ordered by the Grand Lodge which will meet the needs of the school for many years to come. The Oxford Orphanage within itself justifies the existence of the great brotherhood that has brought into being this great home for the fatherless. Let me appeal to my brethren of this ancient order to stand unselfishly and enthusiastically by the Oxford Orphanage so that it may accomplish still greater things in the years to come.

Our Methodist friends in Oxford are giving our orphanage a whole-hearted support. They were pleased with our children and the concert. Brother Snipes is one of our best friends and gave us such a cordial welcome. He believes in our Home and never loses an opportunity to speak a good word for us. It was a source of much joy to me personally to meet so many of my old friends that I knew and loved during the three happy years I lived in Oxford. I must close before I make this note too long.

DON'T TAKE CHANCES

About one piano purchaser out of four gets perfect and permanent satisfaction from the instrument he buys. If you knew the Piano business you would understand why this is the case, for most pianos nowadays are made to sell and not to endure. The average piano looks good at first, and for a while sounds well, but after a few years it begins to show its poor workmanship and inferior materials by a thin or metallic tone.

Why take chances when the Advocate Piano Club absolutely insures your permanent satisfaction, and at a great saving in price? A guarantee of permanent satisfaction means nothing unless it is made by a permanent firm. Ludden & Bates, the Managers of the Club, are the oldest piano house in this section of America, and they have always guaranteed and given permanent satisfaction.

Their guarantee is as good as gold, that is why they were selected to conduct the Club.

Write for your copy of the Club catalogue and get acquainted with the greatest piano buying opportunity of the age. Address the Managers, Ludden & Bates, Advocate Piano Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga.

ALL HEALING SPRINGS

In the Brushy Mountains of N. C., 1400 feet elevation. Rates $12.50 to $17.50 per week. The place of "good eats," six miles west of Taylorsville, N. C., on State Highway No. 75, from Statesville, N. C., to Lenoir, N. C. Only 40 miles from Blowing Rock, N. C. The finest mineral water and the most ideal climate in the temperate zone. Two large comfortable buildings with or without bath. Rooms full of windows, or sleeping porches if desired. Capacity 125. The place for a real vacation. Fried chicken, country ham, the spice of life from the Brushy Mountains, with beans, potatoes and corn fresh from the farm, and milk, butter and real hen's eggs. In the mountains and at mineral spring. Hotel open June 1st. Write for particulars.

O. F. Pool, Proprietor,
Taylorsville, N. C.

FOR SALE

Twenty and one-half acres of land adjoining campus, two thousand feet from Rutherford College; ten-room house conveniently arranged, in first-class condition, electric lights good basement, barn, granary, garage, smokehouse, fine well and spring. Ten acres in cultivation, four acres in pasture, remainder in timber, good apple orchard. Fifteen minutes' walk to station, 12 minutes' walk to graded school. Terms reasonable. If interested write to or call T. E. Conrad, Connelly Springs, N. C.

FOR SALE—THE McCLEES HOME
Adjoining Trinity College campus, containing fourteen rooms, two baths, two basements; 75 feet front on 5th street, running 200 feet to 6th street. Apply to Thos. L. McClees or Prof. F. S. Aldridge, Trinity College Station, Durham, N. C.

The Centenary Emergency Campaign

With the beginning of this year an emergency call was made for the payment of Centenary pledges. Every mission of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, was facing a real emergency. Without a substantial payment on these pledges further advance could not be made. Those responsible for missionary administration felt that our loyal people would respond when the facts were made known to them.

It was not possible to reach all of the 17,000 congregations of our Church by direct appeal, but special speakers did reach about one thousand of these, and in addition, presiding elders, pastors and lay leaders reached most of the others.

The response from every part of the Church was such as to give hope that Centenary obligations will be met. In fact, more money has been collected since January than in the same period during the past two years. This is evidence that the pledge is still alive in the hearts of our people and that they are emerging from the period of financial depression which has been manifest everywhere.

In a recent report of Colonel John E. Edgerton, Treasurer, to the Centenary Commission he said:

"There is so much more to be thankful for and proud of than there is to be complained at or dissatisfied with that I am sure the Commission will make this an occasion of great rejoicing at the continuing triumphs of the greatest pioneer movement ever inaugurated among men. We are going forward with renewed determination and with every encouragement. Our people are responding marvelously and I have not a doubt that we are going to get our money."

The money received made it possible for the boards to meet the most pressing demands, although very many worthy calls could not be adequately met.

Our people are still loyal to the great mission of the Church, which is to make Jesus Christ known and loved throughout the world.

We assure the Church that the Centenary money is being used for this purpose and we rejoice that in every field the most gratifying results have been secured.

We are greatly indebted for the magnificent leadership and co-operation of our bishops, presiding elders, pastors and laymen in the emergency call, and they have made possible the success of the campaign.

W. G. CRAM,

Directing Secretary Missionary Centenary.

Our Little Folks

MAIN STREET

There's one little street
In one little town
That either goes up
Or else goes down.

It's a nice little town
And a nice little street,
And people who walk there
Nod as they meet.

And when it rains
They always use
Raincoats, umbrellas
And overshoes.

But they like it best
When the sun is out,
For then they dress up
And they walk about.

—Hazel Hall, in Youth's Companion.

A TRUE INDIAN STORY OF LONG AGO

Years ago, when the greater part of Indiana was a forest; when neighbors were few and travel difficult; when books were costly and highly treasured; when many of the authors of children's books written today were yet unborn, young people learned a great deal by listening to the conversation of older men and women; and fathers, especially, were more accustomed to tell their children thrilling tales of their own adventures than is the custom in this twentieth century. It was then I would listen to my father tell of the wolves that would come out of the forest at dusk, and attack the belated traveler. And the Indian stories—dozens of them; and the story of how he, as a young man, unmarried, was one of the "Bloody Three Hundred" that marched through the unbroken forests of Indiana, to Fort Dearborn (now Chicago), to fight Black Hawk, when that mighty chief was reported as bringing his tribe to scalp all the whites in the village. But they did not get Black Hawk, the cunning chief of the Sac Indians, for he had heard Colonel Russell's company was coming, and retreated.

On many a winter afternoon, "between the dark and the daylight, when the shadows began to lower," I would go into the sitting-room of the homestead, where I was sure of finding father sitting in his big, rockin-chair, at the left of the old-fashioned fireplace. For "what matter how the night behaved; what matter how the north wind raved; blow high, blow low, not all its snow could quench our hearth-fire's ruddy glow." The blazing logs on the big brass andirons lighted the room and made grotesque shadows on the wall and ceiling. Father loved the firelight, and so did I, for it brought forth stories from his well-stocked mind; and I always knew just where to find him at that hour, and would climb up on his lap, cuddle down into his arms, and, while we both gazed into the glowing fire, would ask for an Indian story.

"Well, which story do you want this time?" he would ask, and immediately would come the answer, "The one about the woman and her baby." Then he would begin what, to me, was his very best story, not only because his telling of it thrilled me, but because the incidents were true, having been narrated to him long before by the parties most interested. And this was the story:

On the outskirts of a little village in Indiana a small tribe of Indians had pitched their "tepees," and caused the hearts of the villagers to tremble with fear of what might happen. Doors and windows were kept bolted as much as possible, and the noise of children's play was hushed. Guns were kept loaded, and powder-horns full, ready for attack. But as day after day passed without loss of life, the women wearied of keeping doors closed during the warm, beautiful days of autumn, and the children longed for freedom to run and play at will.

So one afternoon, when a young mother and her beautiful baby boy were out in front of the cabin door alone, (the father still out in the field) two stalwart Indians suddenly stood before her. She dared not scream or they would scalp her, and, as one seized the baby, the other took hold of her arms and forced her to walk along with them. Oh! how she cried, but tears were of no avail.

On and on they went, the little mother nursing her precious baby at times as she walked, and the balmy air of the woods causing him to sleep soundly. Then an Indian would carry him, so the mother could walk faster. And so they journeyed until sunset, and the darkness of night came on. For herself she gave no thought; but oh! what would they do with her beautiful boy? Kill him before her eyes, or kill her and train him to be an Indian like themselves?

At last they reached the camp, where some of the tribe were already wrapped in their blankets and sleeping under the trees, with the light of the full moon shining upon them. Very soon they spread a blanket on the leaves for her, and she laid her tired body down and fell asleep, still clasping in her arms her darling boy.

It was after midnight when she awakened, to find a big warrior lying on each side, wrapped in his blankets, with his weapons beside him. It was their snoring that had aroused her. Oh! what should she do? To be caught trying to escape would be instant death, so she lay still and listened; all were sleeping soundly. She arose half-way, leaning on her elbow, and looked around. By the light of the moon she saw that all were asleep but herself. She sat up and listened. She knew just where she was and in what direction she had come. Dare she try to escape? It might be death if she remained, and she might reach home alive.

She lay down, and again arose. Something within impelled her to make the effort; so, clasping the baby in her arms, she knelt for a moment, then arose and cautiously looked around to be sure that all were sleeping. Yes, there was death stillness, save for the snoring of the older Indians. Very slowly, as if indifferent to her opportunity, she commenced her long walk; and very softly she stepped, looking back first to see if she roused any one. Oh! how thankful she was that her boy was a good baby and a good sleeper. On, and on, she went, faster and faster, over the path lately trodden. It seemed at times that her feet had wings, and she did not feel the weight of the baby, but fairly flew over the ground, the moonlight showing her the path and keeping her from falling into the hollows and over underbrush.

Now she is at the clearing; she can see the other skirt of woods in the distance, and beyond that is the village. Her heart sinks for a moment, as she wonders if she can reach it before dawn. Then, with renewed strength and courage, she hurries on. The last wood is reached and she stops to rest and nurse the baby. Then on into the heart of the dense forest, where she looks around for a hiding place, for the sky in the east is just beginning to lighten.

She knows the Indians are early risers, and will be on the warpath the moment she is missed. She is walking now, and almost ready to drop from fatigue; will she have strength to reach home? She looks around on either side, and away to the right is a long stretch of something black. She starts to go over. But what was that? She does not stop to listen, but hurries over to that long stretch of darkness, and behold! It was one of the monarchs of the forest that had fallen years before, for underbrush is growing up around it.

There is that sound again! It is the warwhoop in the far distance! It is coming near and nearer. With a prayer on her lips, and every nerve aglow, she creeps in between the trunk of the tree and the underbrush and, finding that the under side of the tree is hollow, she crawls into the opening she has made, unmindful of insects and snakes, knowing only that her life and that of her beautiful boy are hunted. Drawing the dead leaves up to the opening and completely hiding herself and him, she listens. There is that warwhoop again, and another! And another! There are three Indians in pursuit. Clasping her precious boy to her breast, she waits, and listens, and prays.

Presently there is another whoop very near—in this wood, and it is answered by another at the right and one at the left. They are forming a circle to catch her. And now she hears a great rustling of dead leaves and the crackling of dead branches on the ground, as one of the warriors runs, and, with a bound, leaps on the fallen tree, directly over the place where mother and baby lie. Instantly he gives a long, angry, blood-curdling warwhoop which will surely cause the baby to cry and betray his mother's hiding-place.

But what a kind arrangement of Providence it was that made the fragrant atmosphere of the woods so conducive to sleep! That precious baby did not awaken, but slept soundly in his mother's trembling arms. After calling again and again, the mad old warrior jumped down off the tree-trunk, and, with angry mutterings, retraced his steps. In a short time the warwhoops ceased, and the forest was still once more, save for the chirping and twittering of birds in their nests, which told that day was breaking. The Indians did not enter the village, because they supposed their captives had reached home and aroused the villagers, who would be prepared to attack them.

With the first rays of the morning sun darting through the dense forest and illuminating all nature, the baby awakened, totally unconscious of the fact that he had held his mother's life as well as his own in his little fat hands; no, in his voice, because if his voice had been heard, death would have followed.

Crawling out of the secret chamber, the mother cautiously began the walk homeward, which was quickly made, and where they were received with open arms and great rejoicing, by not only the husband and father, but by all the people of the village.—Alma Winston Wilson, in the Herald and Presbyterian.

"THE PIEDMONT LIMITED" NAME GIVEN NEW TRAIN

Washington, D. C., June 11.—"The Piedmont Limited" is the name selected for Nos. 33 and 34, the new trains between New Orleans and New York, inaugurated by the Southern Railway System in connection with the Pennsylvania, the West Point Route, and the Louisville and Nashville, on April 29.

Dr. Howard E. Rondthaler, president of Salem College, Winston-Salem, N. C., wins the $200 prize offered by the interested lines for the most appropriate name for this new service, having been the first to suggest this name. Since the offer of this prize was announced, 21,106 letters have been received by Passenger Traffic Manager W. H. Tayloe, of the Southern, containing approximately 63,000 suggestions, coming from every state of the Union, a surprisingly large number having been received from the Pacific Coast and New England.

"The Piedmont Limited" is considered a most appropriate name for Nos. 33 and 34, as between Montgomery and Washington they traverse the country along the eastern slope of the Blue Ridge, widely known as the Piedmont section. Thirty years ago this line was advertised and widely known as the Piedmont Air Line. Since its inauguration "The Piedmont Limited" has made an excellent on-time record and has proved very popular, its schedule being: Lv. New Orleans 5 p. m., Mobile 9:20 p. m., Atlanta, 8 a. m., Charlotte 4 p. m.; Ar. Baltimore 4:30 a. m., Philadelphia 6:55 a. m., New York 9:15 a. m.; Lv. New York 3:35 p. m., Washington 9:35 a. m.; Ar. Atlanta 4:05, New Orleans 7:20 a. m.

BOILS Old Sores, Cuts and Burns have been healed since 1820 with

Gray's Ointment

Sold by all druggists. Write for sample to W. F. Gray & Co., 710 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

Take

Calotabs
TRADE MARK REG

for the liver

Beware of imitations. Demand the genuine in 10c and 35c packages bearing above trade mark.

DAISY FLY KILLER

PLACED ANYWHERE ATTRACTS AND KILLS ALL FLIES. Neat, clean, ornamental, convenient, cheap. Lasts all season. Made of metal, can't spill or tip over; will not soil or injure anything. Guaranteed effective. Sold by dealers, or 6 by EXPRESS, prepaid, $1.25.

TAROLD SOMERS, 150 De Kalb Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

GOOD POSITIONS

Paying fine salaries can be had for ambitious young men and women who complete our commercial and stenographic courses.

Our aim this season is to enroll a very large number of such students who can be trained for high and responsible positions.

Won't you be one to enroll? A postal addressed to us will bring you our catalog. Write for it.

DRAUGHONS BUSINESS COLLEGE
Knoxville, Tenn.

COLLEGE OF WILLIAM AND MARY FOR MEN AND WOMEN

Supported by the State of Virginia for the benefit of all the people.

Regular DEGREE COURSE and SPECIAL COURSES in Teacher Training, Pre-Medicine, Pre-Engineering, Home Economics, Law, Business Administration, etc.

Healthful location; students under splendid moral influence; four churches, Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A., Sunday Schools, etc.

For particulars address

COLLEGE OF WILLIAM AND MARY
Williamsburg, Va.

H L Bridges, J. A. C. Chandler,
Registrar. President.

THE NORTH CAROLINA COLLEGE FOR WOMEN

An A-1 grade college maintained by the State of North Carolina for the education of its young women. Liberal courses leading to the usual degrees in Arts, Science and Music. Equipment modern, including furnished dormitories, library, laboratories, literary society halls, athletic grounds, etc. Fall term begins in September, Spring term in February, Summer term in June. For catalogue and other information, address

JULIUS I. FOUST, President
GREENSBORO, N. C.

Individual Cups

Over 40,000 churches use the Thomas Service. Clean and sanitary. Write now for Catalog and Special Trial Offer. Thomas Communion Service Co. Box 141 Lima, Ohio.

HYMN BOARDS
of the very best quality supplied at very reasonable cost by
LAMAR & BARTON
Nashville, Dallas, Richmond San Francisco

ART GLASS
for Churches and Residences
Memorial Windows
Catalog and Special Designs free on request
F. J. COOLEGGE & SONS
ATLANTA, Ga.

Sure Relief
BELL-ANS FOR INDIGESTION
25 CENTS
6 BELL-ANS Hot water Sure Relief
BELL-ANS FOR INDIGESTION

sure is strong
RED DEVIL LYE
for the outhouse
Look for the smiling red devil
You always know a can of genuine Red Devil Lye by the smiling red devil on the label. It stands for a lye that you can depend upon to do the hard, rough work. For twenty years it has been the standard for good lye. Ask your grocer for the can with the red devil label.
Write for Free Booklet
Wm. Schield Mfg. Co., St. Louis, Mo.
RED DEVIL LYE

WOMAN'S PAGE

(Continued from page eight)

the three of us, Bishop H. A. Boaz, Miss Mabel K. Howell and W. W. Pinson held services. This is a country where the people are supposed to be hard to reach. One evening I preached in the Matoga church, Hiroshima district, which has its home in a rented Japanese building—dingy, dark and uncomfortable. It was a rainy, disagreeable evening. The little room was full and many stood on the outside until the rain became too severe. At the close of the service, which was the first one at which I had made the call, seventeen out of an audience of about forty signed cards, promising to seek a knowledge of the Truth. Of course it was impossible for me to estimate the value of such commitment. However, I have just received a letter from Bro. I. L. Shaver, pastor of the Hiroshima circuit, in which he says: "I am glad to inform you that fifteen of the number that heard you at Matoga church, Hiroshima circuit, last fall have either been baptized or are preparing for baptism. Seven who were present that night have been received into the church, and eight are preparing for church membership." This congregation, when I was in Japan, was about to be turned out, it appears, by the landlord and set adrift for lack of a church building of their own. It is located in the immediate neighborhood of the amusement section of the city where, on the night I was there, the picture shows and theatres were in full blast, and vast groups could be seen under the glare of the electric lights. They should have a church immediately, and how are they to get it if the funds are not forthcoming?—W. W. Pinson, in World News.

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORK

(Continued from page nine)

Greensboro District.
G'wth Ch. Memb...	2743	25.0	12,775
In S. S. Enrollment	4628	45.0	14,940
In pupils join'g Ch.	336	104.0	690
Marion District.
G'wth Ch. Memb...	917	10.0	10,023
In S. S. Enrollment	1845	26.0	8,939
In pupils join'g Ch.	209	84.0	457
Mount Airy District.
G'wth Ch. Memb...	443	5.5	8,442
In S. S. Enrollment	2111	32.4	8,621
In pupils join'g Ch.	140	77.1	337
North Wilkesboro District.
G'wth Ch. Memb...	214	4.8	4,703
In S. S. Enrollment	556	10.0	3,245
In pupils join'g Ch.	113	233.3	161
Salisbury District.
G'wth Ch. Memb...	1324	12.1	12,468
In S. S. Enrollment	2095	20.1	12,028
In pupils join'g Ch.	305	77.6	708
Shelby District.
G'wth Ch. Memb...	3039	28.7	13,613
In S. S. Enrollment	5823	71.6	13,960
In pupils join'g Ch.	329	113.0	619
Statesville District.
G'wth Ch. Memb...	1366	10.5	14,411
In S. S. Enrollment	3186	30.5	13,618
In pupils join'g Ch.	216	66.0	544
Waynesville District.
G'wth Ch. Memb...	579	7.8	7,844
In S. S. Enrollment	1295	23.2	6,442
In pupils join'g Ch.	202	155.0	333
Winston-Salem District.
G'wth Ch. Memb...	1191	9.1	14,340
In S. S. Enrollment	3880	33.3	15,543
In pupils join'g Ch.	99	21.7	555

The old hog wallow is an expensive bath tub for all hogs and more especially the young pigs under four months of age. Young pigs are susceptible to parasites and filth born disease, say extension workers of the State College and Department of Agriculture.

The cabbage worm is the dread of every careful cook and housewife and causes much economic loss. Write the extension service at Raleigh for a copy of its C. 135, "Dusting Cabbage to Control Worms."

In Elevating Your Daughter's Ideals

In building her moral character, in encouraging and shaping the development of her intellectuality and mental capacity, in developing her physique—consider the advantages of the efficiency of

QUEENS COLLEGE

A college of Christian ideals, modern equipment, beautiful plant. Faculty consists of two Ph.D.'s, four M's A., and a number of other highly trained specialists. For catalogue address: Rev. Wm. H. FRAZER, D. D., President, Box 300, Charlotte, N. C.

FASSIFERN

A HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

is situated on a plateau over two thousand feet above sea level and completely surrounded by the majestic Appalachian mountains, in the city of Hendersonville, N. C., far-famed for its year-round delightful and health-giving climate.

Fassifern offers thorough preparatory courses both for entrance to colleges of highest rank and professional work. Teachers have A. B. and M. A. degrees from the following colleges and universities: Columbia University; Smith, Wellesley and Goucher Colleges; Tulane University. Next session opens September 26, 1923.

MISS KATE C. SHIPP, Principal :: HENDERSONVILLE, N. C.

GREENSBORO COLLEGE

The A-Grade Woman's College of the Two Methodist Conferences of North Carolina

Rated by State Department of Education as Class A.

Chartered 1838. Confers the degree of A. B. in the literary department and B. M. in the music department.

In addition to our regular classical course, special attention is called to the departments of Home Economics, Expression, Art, Education, Sunday School Teacher Training, Piano Pedagogy, and to our complete School of Music.

Modern New $50,000.00 Dormitory completed 1918. Conservatory of Music costing about $170,000 completed 1922.

Fall Semester begins September 5, 1923. For further information apply to DR. S. B. TURRENTINE, President, Greensboro, N. C.

1802

1923

LOUISBURG COLLEGE

A Junior College for Young Women
With a Standard Preparatory Course of Four Years
Property of North Carolina Conference

Faculty of specially trained, consecrated Christian teachers.

Health Record Unsurpassed. Home-like Atmosphere. Social Life Carefully Guarded. Athletics.

In addition to the regular college courses, Classical and General, attention is called to the departments of Art, Business, Education, Expression, Home Economics, Music (Piano, Voice, Violin, Theory, etc.), and Religious Education.

Rates as low as consistent with good service. Send for free Catalogue and Book of Views. For further information write

A. W. MOHN, PRESIDENT, LOUISBURG, N. C.

Beautiful, Soft, Luxuriant Hair

Made Over From Lifeless, Stringy, Ugly Hair

Just give it one good shampoo with Caro-Co Coconut Oil Shampoo and you will see the life and lustre, natural wave and color return to your hair.

Pure Caro-Co Coconut Oil Shampoo has a delightful fragrance. It lathers quickly and is easy to wash out. Eradicates dandruff,—keeps the scalp clean and healthy, and makes the hair fresh, soft and beautiful. It will not stain light or gray hair.

You will be delighted with Caro-Co Coconut Oil Shampoo. Price 50 cents for large bottle at all drug stores.

Write us for liberal sample which will be sent to your address on receipt of 10c coin or stamps to cover packing and postage.

CARO-CO LABORATORIES
(Incorporated.)
UNION, S. C.

PRESIDING ELDERS APPOINTMENTS

Western North Carolina Conference

ASHEVILLE DISTRICT H. C. Sprinkle, P. E. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Asheville District, including Spring Creek, Leicester, Black Mountain, Swannanoa, etc.

CHARLOTTE DISTRICT J. B. Craven, P. E., 413 Central Ave., Charlotte, N. C. FOURTH ROUND—IN PART

Table listing church appointments for Charlotte District, including Prospect, Chadwick, Matthews, Seversville, etc.

GREENSBORO DISTRICT W. F. Womble, P. E., 508 Summit Ave., Greensboro, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Greensboro District, including Wentworth, Reidsville, Pleas. Garden, etc.

MARION DISTRICT Z. Paris, P. E., Marion, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Marion District, including Mill Springs, North McDowell, Micaville, etc.

MOUNT AIRY DISTRICT J. H. West, P.E., Box 422, Mt. Airy, N.C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Mount Airy District, including Mt. Airy Ct., West Davie, Yadkinville, etc.

NORTH WILKESBORO DISTRICT J. W. Williams, P. E., Jefferson, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing church appointments for North Wilkesboro District, including Elk Park, Jefferson, Warrenville, etc.

SALISBURY DISTRICT T. F. Marr, P. E., Salisbury, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Salisbury District, including Harmony, Westford, Spencer, etc.

SHELBY DISTRICT H. H. Jordan, P. E., Gastonia, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Shelby District, including Lowesville, Stanly, Rano, etc.

STATESVILLE DISTRICT D. M. Litaker, P.E., 240 Walnut Street, Statesville, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Statesville District, including Mooresville, South Lenoir, Lenoir Ct., etc.

WAYNESVILLE DISTRICT R. S. Howie, P. E., Waynesville, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Waynesville District, including Jonathan Sta., Junaluska-Clyde Ct., Robbinsville, etc.

WINSTON-SALEM DISTRICT W. A. Newell, P. E., 1084 W. Fourth Street, Winston-Salem, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Winston-Salem District, including Lewisville, Lexington, Forsyth, etc.

North Carolina Conference

DURHAM DISTRICT M. T. Plyler, P. E., Durham, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Durham District, including Trinity, Memorial, Rougemont, etc.

ELIZABETH CITY DISTRICT C. B. Culbreth, P.E., Elizabeth City, N.C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Elizabeth City District, including Moyock, First Church, City Road, etc.

FAYETTEVILLE DISTRICT R. H. Willis, P. E., Fayetteville, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Fayetteville District, including Mamers, Fayetteville, Parkton, etc.

NEW BERN DISTRICT F. M. Shamburger, P.E., New Bern, N.C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for New Bern District, including Goldston, Elizabeth, Stedman, etc.

RALEIGH DISTRICT J. C. Wooten, P. E. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Raleigh District, including Grifton, Snow Hill, Hookerton, etc.

WASHINGTON DISTRICT S. A. Cotton, P. E., Washington, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Washington District, including Millbrook, Kenley, Seima, etc.

Table listing church appointments for Rockingham District, including Fremont, Stantonsburg, Calvary, etc.

WELDON DISTRICT S. E. Mercer, P. E., Weldon, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Weldon District, including Troy, West End, Aberdeen, etc.

WILMINGTON DISTRICT J. M. Daniel, P. E., 519 Grace Street, Wilmington, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Wilmington District, including Burgaw, Wilmington Ct., Swansboro, etc.

OXFORD COLLEGE OXFORD, N. C. Founded 1850

Oxford College offers: 1. A Preparatory Course of four years, accredited. 2. A Junior College Course of two years, based on fifteen units of High School work.

OXFORD COLLEGE OXFORD, N. C. Founded 1850

Oxford College offers: 3. A Teachers Course of one year, based on fifteen units. This entitles to Elementary Teachers' Certificate, Class "A." 4. Vocational courses—Home Economics, Commercial, Fine Arts, Pedagogy, Expression, Music.

School Desks,
Opera Chairs,
Folding Chairs
Kindergarten Chairs
Church Pews,
School Supplies,
Blackboards

Southern Desk Co., Hickory, N. C.

Man's Tents, Awnings, Paulins, Gospel Tents a specialty. We rent
Tents, Oldest Tent
Company in the South.

M. D. SMITH
TENT AND
AWNING CO., 136 1/2 Marietta St., Atlanta, Ga.

A Charm
Beautiful Hair

You can possess it by using Caro-Co Coconut Oil Shampoo.
Large bottle 50c at all dealers.

EXPERT KODAK FINISHING
Developing and printing done by experts. Most beautiful work guaranteed at all times. Satisfaction or no charge.
Developing 6 exposure rolls 10 cents, 10 and 12 exposure rolls 15 cents, film packs
20 cents per pack. Printing 1 5-8x2 1-2—
3 cents, 2 1-4x3 1-4—4 cents, 2 1-2x4 1-4—5 cents, 3 1-4x5 1-2—6 cents. Quick delivery. Send one film to test our service.

LIGONS DRUG STORE,
Spartanburg, S. C.

Methodist Benevolent Association
Gives Southern Methodist Men and Women Safe

Life Insurance At Actual Cost
J. H. SHUMAKER, Secy.
810 Broadway Nashville, Tenn

WESTERN NORTH CAROLINA
"The Land of the Sky"

MICHIGAN,
WISCONSIN,
MINNESOTA,
COLORADO,
UTAH, CALIFORNIA,
CANADA,
NEW ENGLAND,
and
Seashore Resorts

GREATLY REDUCED
SUMMER FARES
Now in Effect

via
Southern Railway System

From GREENSBORO AND OTHER POINTS
Send for Free Booklet

Convenient Schedules
Attractive Service

L. A. PEACOCK, C. T. A.
112 East Market Street,
Greensboro

MORNING SOLILOQUY
Rev. E. C. Sell.

'Tis morning, Darkness has gone,
Light has come,
Shining upon mountain, hilltop and dale.
I've something to do. Sloth,—let there be none;
I must think, speak, act, and in nothing fail.

'Tis morning. Whom shall I think of today?
I'll think of the God, who reigneth above;
Of man on earth—he has wandered away;
And of my duty to both, whom I love.

'Tis morning. What shall I think of today?
I'll think of the words that my Saviour taught,
The words of truth, of life—all must obey;
For these are the words to me He has brought.

'Tis morning. Whom shall I speak to today?
I'll speak to all whom I may haply meet,
In the road of life, and to them I'll say,
"Watch and pray, be ready your Lord to greet."

'Tis morning. Whither shall I go today?
Into the vineyard of the Lord I'll go;
He's calling me now—no time to delay;
Let me enter at once, and not say
"No."

DO YOU KNOW? WILL YOU GO?
Do you know that at Lake Junaluska this year three two-weeks terms of the Sunday school training school will be held? Do you know that this school is going to be the biggest (if you attend) in the history of the school? Do you know the following courses will be given?

First Term, July 12-26.
General Units: Pupil Study, Principles of Teaching, and The Sunday School; Specialization Units: Beginner Organization, Beginner Worship, Primary Organization, Primary Worship, Junior Lesson Materials, Junior Worship, Intermediate Senior Lesson
Materials, Intermediate-Senior Organization, Young People's Organization, Adult Psychology, Adult Organization, The Director of Religious Education, and Educational Tack of the Local Church; Select Unit: Missionary Education in the Church School; Graduate Units: The Real Jesus and His Message and Psychology of Religion.

Second Term, July 27-August 9
General Units: Pupil Study, Principles of Teaching, Life and Letters of Paul, and Program of Christian Religion; Specialization Units: Beginner, Primary, and Junior Pupil, Intermediate-Senior Psychology, Young People's Agencies, Young People's Lesson Materials, Religious Education of Adults, Rural Sunday School Management, and Curriculum of Religious Education; Select Unit: Missionary Message of the Bible.

Third Term, August 10-23.
General Units: Bible, Training the Devotional Life, and A Methodist Church and Its Work; Specialization
Units: Beginner and Primary Lesson Materials, Junior Organization, Intermediate-Senior Agencies, Young People's Psychology, Christian Service for Adults, and City Sunday School Management; Graduate Unit: Jesus, the Master Teacher.

It is a mark of distinction to be a reader of this paper. Don't fail to let our advertisers know it. When answering their ads, mention this paper.

N. C. State College of Agriculture and Engineering
SUMMER SESSION JUNE 12th to JULY 25th
Courses for Teachers holding standard State Certificates, and for graduates of Standard High Schools. Courses giving College Credit for graduates of Standard High Schools. Cotton Classing courses. Catalogue upon application. Number limited to 1050. Apply for Reservation at once to W. WITHERS, Director :: :: Raleigh, North Carolina

For Your Boy---
Intellectual, Moral and Physical Training

in a unique, unselfish school with an Unparalleled record for eighteen years.

THE DARLINGTON SCHOOL, Rome, Ga.
"Unselfishly Dedicated to Young Manhood"

An Accredited Christian School given by philanthropic men and women to our boys. No individual can derive monetary profit from the institution. Write for catalog.

C. R. WILCOX, President, Formerly Associate S. H. ASKEW, A. E., Master in Charge of Headmaster, McCallie School Dormitories
E. L. WRIGHT, A. B., Headmaster PAUL LYMAN, E. E., Director of Athletics

—A GOOD PLACE FOR YOUR BOY—
An efficient, strict, military school of high standards and excellent reputation, operated under wholesome Christian influences.

CARLISLE SCHOOL

A well equipped school. Large, efficient faculty; excellent, modern buildings; ample dormitories, infirmary, gymnasium, library. Two excellent preparatory courses. Total expenses for year including tuition and board, $362.50. For literature and application blank, address
W. C. DUNCAN, Headmaster, Bamberg, S. C.

THE STIEFF TONE
is famous with three generations of music lovers. It has never been duplicated. It is the expression of a passion for perfection that has actuated three generations of piano makers.

Chas. M. Stieff, Inc.,
Charlotte, N. C.

Please send catalogue and prices of Pianos.

Name .....

Address .....

STIEFF PETIT GRAND
The smallest Grand Piano made that embodies all the essential qualities of the Concert Grand.

CHAS. M. STIEFF, Inc.
CHARLOTTE, N. C.

FOUNDED 1838 CHARTERED IN 1859

TRINITY COLLEGE
DURHAM, N. C.

A Southern College of liberal arts with an established national reputation for high standards, noble traditions, and progressive policies.
Its large endowment fund makes possible its first-class equipment and large faculty of well trained and carefully chosen teachers. Student fees low. Comfortable, inexpensive rooms in carefully supervised hygienic dormitories.

Classical and scientific courses leading to the bachelor's degree.
Graduate courses in all departments. Schools of Engineering, Education, and Law.

For catalogue and illustrated booklet, address

R. L. FLOWERS,
Secretary to the Corporation.

IN MEMORIAM

SETZER—Mr. P. S. Setzer was born May 11, 1843, died April 20, 1923, age 79 years, 11 months and nine days. He married Miss Margaret E. Witherspoon December 28, 1871. There were born to this union nine children, seven survive, namely, Jacob E., Miles E. and John Setzer, Mrs. Sarah Little, Mrs. Lizzie Sigman, Mrs. Daisy Sigman and Mrs. Ida L. Loftin; one brother, Mr. William Setzer, 44 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. He was a faithful member of Bethlehem church, Catawba charge. His body was laid to rest in Bethlehem cemetery. A. C. Kennedy.

STEWART—Emma Belle Tucker was born March 17, 1858, and died April 20, 1923. She was married to R. C. Stewart on August 8, 1874, and from this union ten children were reared, nine of whom survive. She was converted in early life and united with the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, to which she remained a faithful member till death. It was Sister Stewart's lot to be a prolonged sufferer before her death, but she was patient in it all and looked after the duties of her Christian home under this handicap in a manner becoming to a Christian wife and mother. D. A. Lewis.

DICKENS—Millard F. Dickens died at his home in Fairmont, N. C., May 12, 1923.

Brother Dickens had been sick but a few days when the end came. It was known to his friends some days before his death that he could not live, hence his going was not unexpected. He was a member of the Methodist church of Fairmont, N. C., and he loved his church. As long as his health would permit he was at his place in the church on the Sabbath day. He enjoyed hearing the gospel. I believe that he loved his Lord, and I am sure that the Lord loved him.

His body was laid to rest in the cemetery at Firmont, N. C., while a great concourse of people looked on. May the Lord protect and keep his widow, family and friends. W. F. Trawick.

LEGGETT—James Robert Leggett was born September 25, 1878, and died May 4, 1923, at the age of 44 years, seven months and nine days.

The last illness of Brother Leggett lasted but a very short time. None of his family or friends thought of the end coming so soon. Before they could realize that he was so sick he had gone into the great eternity.

Brother Leggett was a member of Bethesda Methodist church and had been a member for a number of years.

In the afternoon of May 5 we laid his body to rest in the family cemetery near his home.

Now, to you, his family and friends, I commend you to the Lord Jesus, the great Giver of life. May He bless and keep you. W. F. Trawick.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

On April 11, 1923, God in His infinite wisdom called from the busy scenes of this earthly life into the joys of eternal bliss Dr. F. E. Asbury, our friend and co-worker.

We, the members of the Asheboro M. E. Sunday school, standing in the shadow of this loss and wishing to bear witness to his great usefulness, desire to put on record the following resolutions:

First, That although in the death of Dr. Asbury our Sunday school has lost a faithful and loyal member, we humbly submit to God's will and praise Him for the example of this consecrated life.

Second, That we extend to the bereaved family our deepest sympathy, feeling sure they are comforted in the knowledge that he has finished his task and has entered into his heavenly rest.

Third, That these resolutions be recorded in our minutes, a copy sent to the family and copies furnished the N. C. Christian Advocate and the Asheboro Courier for publication.

W. J. Scarborough,
Mrs. W. J. Moore,
Mrs. J. D. Ross,
Committee.

As the World Passes On the Memory of Her Life
Fades Into Oblivion

Is it true of your loved ones? Shall their virtues, their influence, their achievements be forgotten and lost to the world forever?

The Lasting Permanence of

Winnsboro Blue Granite

will insure a perpetuation of the memories we hold so dear. Its rugged strength, sparkling beauty and faultless color will befittingly commemorate the best qualities of the most beautiful lives.

Specify WINNSBORO BLUE GRANITE

Monuments
Maintain Memories

WINNSBORO
GRANITE CORP.
Rion, S. C.

MASTERS—Susan B., daughter of Mace Coleman Pendleton and Susan Ballenger Pendleton, was born in Salisbury, N. C., July 31, 1840, and died May 27, 1923. On December 17, 1867, she was married to George A. Masters, who preceded her to the grave by nearly nine years. Four of the five children born to this union live to mourn their mother's decease. Sister Masters united with the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, at Salisbury, N. C., in girlhood and she was ever a loyal and devoted member of the church of her choice. She lived a very beautiful Christian life, and was patient in prolonged and severe suffering before she went to be "forever with her Lord." D. A. Lewis.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

(By Brevard Methodist Sunday School)

By the passing away of our much loved friend, Mrs. J. A. Forsyth, a vacancy has occurred which cannot be filled, a personality whose presence was at all times an inspiration. It was a joy and an uplift when she came into the Sunday school room. Even since kept away by sickness her influence for good has been felt in every department of Sunday school work. Her high ideals and moral courage to live and speak her convictions in all the walks of life showed strength of character few people possess. As a teacher she was most faithful and consecrated, the embodiment of all the virtues in the making of a high-toned Christian woman. As a friend she was most sincere and true.

Resolved, That we, as members of the Sunday school, strive to imitate her noble example, which stands out as a beacon light beckoning us onward and upward to a better land.

Second, That we extend our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family. As member of the Sunday school we bow in humble submission to the will of Him who doeth all things well.

Third, That a copy of this memorial be sent to the family, a copy placed on the S. S. record, and one sent for publication.

Mrs. Laura W. Miller,
Mrs. Sarah Taylor,
Mrs. Welch Galloway,
Miss Della Gash.

On March 7, 1923, God in His infinite wisdom took from our midst the gentle spirit of one of our Sunday school members, C. C. Beatty.

He was an earnest, faithful member, zealous in all things for the advancement of the church, Sunday school and his entire community.

We miss his cheerful face and inspiring presence in our Sunday school and know that his place cannot be filled, but we feel that our loss is his gain. For we believe that he has gone to a fairer and richer field.

Therefore we, the members of Bethel Sunday school, feel that we want to publicly express our heartfelt sorrow in the loss of our beloved member. Therefore be it resolved:
First, That while we sorrow in his going away and our hearts are heavy because he will not meet with us again, we are comforted, knowing all is well with him.

Second, That we bow in humble submission to the will of our heavenly Father, giving thanks unto him for such a life as his and comforting ourselves with the thought that he doeth all things well.

Third, That we extend our heartfelt sympathy and love to the bereft widow in her dark and gloomy hours of bereavement and cherish with her the hope of seeing him again.

M. L. Keistler,
Mrs. Charles Gabriel,
O. F. Howard.

NULL—Susan Catherine Kale Null was born July 30, 1843; died March 23, 1923, age 79 years, seven months and 23 days; was married to John Sigmon Null October 20, 1869. Seven children were born to them, six sons and one daughter; ten grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. All her children preceded her to the grave except the two youngest sons, Zephy and Ivey, and all her brothers and sisters except one brother.

She joined the Methodist church at old Concord in girlhood and remained a consistent member until death. She was a sufferer for several years, but was meek and patient through it all.

A. C. Kennedy, P. C.

FORBES—Mrs. Mary Smith Forbes was born January 2, 1897, was converted and joined the Methodist church at Perkins chapel August 12, 1910, and on January 22, 1921, was happily married to Enoch D. Forbes, and died April 13, 1923.

Mrs. Forbes was the daughter of Mrs. Adelia Smith, who survives her, her father having passed over some years ago. Mrs. Forbes was one of the good Christian women of Perkins church, always ready for any service she might render her Lord and her church, a sweet Christian from childhood and loved by all who knew her. She leaves behind to mourn her loss a devoted husband, mother, several brothers and sisters along with a very great number of friends. The funeral was held at her home near Indian Town and she was buried in the family burying ground near her old home.

May the blessing of the good Lord rest upon and comfort the many bereaved ones. W. B. Humble.

FORBES—Mrs. Julia Forsythe was born in N. C., was called home a few days ago. She was reared in Charleston, S. C., but lived all her married life, which was more than 40 years, in the same home where she died. She was a woman of the strongest personality—endowed with superior ability and blessed with a mentality of which few possess. Doubtless no one has ever lived and labored in this community who has left such an indelible impression as has this good woman. She has had charge of the primary department of the Bervard Methodist Sunday school for long years, succeeding generations having been under her fostering care. She knew how to teach. The children were drawn to her both for the fact of her ability to instruct, and for her deep love and ardent devotion for them. Her place will be difficult to fill.

For the past three years her health was failing, having had repeated strokes of paralysis, which resulted in taking her at last. On the date of May 12, 1923, she peacefully slipped away to be with God.

She is survived by a husband and five children, and they have the assurance that they have had the best a mother could give, and now they can rest in a joyful hope that all was well when the summons came.

May the Comforter abide with the sorrowing ones forever.

Lee A. Falls.

WILLIAMS—Mrs. Mary (Barnard) Williams was born April 2, 1861, and departed this life May 10, 1923, age 62 years, one month and eight days. She was only ill one day and her death came as a great snock to her family and neighbors.

She was married to Robt. V. Williams December 14, 1882. To this union were born two children, a little girl which died in infancy, and a son, who is Dr. N. G. Williams of Canon, Ga. Mr. Williams is one of our best citizens, who now lives at Franklin, N. C.

Mrs. Williams professed faith in Christ when 19 years of age and joined the Methodist church and lived a beautiful, consecrated Christian life till her death.

Her body was laid to rest at Iotla, her home church. The funeral service was conducted by the writer.

R. E. Ward.

VICK—Mrs. G. W. Vick was born June 1, 1848, died in Rock Hill, S. C., April 1, 1923. She was the widow of Dr. J. W. Vick, a highly respected and beloved physician of Selma, N. C., who died in 1890. Sister Vick was a woman of the highest type of Christian religion. Her spiritual sky was always clear; no doubts lingered in her mind. She was the very embodiment of gentleness, kindness and sympathy. You had to look a long time to find any faults in her. Her influence for good was most powerful. Everybody that came in touch with her always felt that they ought to live a better life. There are many stars in her crown. The community, the family and the church have sustained a great loss. She leaves behind her three children, Mrs. Alex. Martin of Rock Hill, S. C., E. V. Vick of Goldsboro, N. C., and Dr. G. D. Vick of Selma, N. C. Her remains were brought to Selma and laid beside her husband in the presence of many sorrowing friends and loved ones to await the sound of the trumpet on the morning of the glorious resurrection.

G. B. Perry.

NORTH CAROLINA Christian Advocate

Volume LXVIII

GREENSBORO, N. C., THURSDAY, JUNE 28, 1923

No. 26

Western North Carolina Conference Wesley Bible Class Federation

HON. CLYDE R. HOEY

DR. WADE C. SMITH

DR. ASHLEY CHAPPELL

OUR EVENING SPEAKERS

Lake

July

Junaluska

9, 10, 11

PROGRAM FEATURES

In addition to our splendid evening speakers, Messrs. Hoey, Smith and Chappell, our Federation program will carry quite a number of other good features. The Junaluska double quartet will sing at each evening session and during the day sessions quite a number of volunteer male quartets from our own Sunday schools will enliven the proceedings. Mr. and Mrs. J. Dale Stentz will sing. In addition to general discussions eighteen leading speakers will discuss topics of vital interest to our Bible class leaders. Our program is a strong one.

THE WAY AND THE COST

The Southern Railway has agreed to run a special train to Lake Junaluska Monday, July 9, for the benefit of our delegates. Our "Junaluska Special" will be made up of cars starting from Winston-Salem, Greensboro, Charlotte and Gastonia. The Winston-Salem car will leave with train No. 9 at 9:05 a. m. and will connect with our special train at Barber Junction. The Greensboro car will leave with train No. 11 at 6:20 a. m. and will head the "Junaluska Special" at Salisbury. The Charlotte car will leave with train No. 16 at 8:20 a. m. and will connect with the special at Statesville. The Gastonia car will leave with the C. & N. W. train at 9:22 a. m. and will connect with the special at Newton. Guaranteed connection is promised on this train going and returning. Delegates from Shelby and environs should take train No. 36 and connect with the "Junaluska Special" at Marion. Those desiring to go by automobile will find the roads fine.

Round trip tickets on sale after July 1, certificate plan, good till September 2, will cost as follows: Albemarle $10.70, Asheboro $12.39, Charlotte $9.23, Concord $10.28, Gastonia $8.06, Greensboro $11.70, Hendersonville $2.60, Hickory $5.93, High Point $10.98, Lexington $9.95, Lincolnton $7.29, Madison $12.32, Marion $3.65, Monroe $10.57, Mooresville $8.52, Mount Airy $12.90, Murphy $5.28, Newton $6.44, North Wilkesboro $14.61, Norwood $11.24, Reidsville $13.02, Rutherfordton $5.01, Salisbury $9.03, Shelby $6.50, Statesville $7.65, Thomasville $10.55, Wadesboro $12.06, Winston-Salem $10.58. Certificates can be obtained from O. V. Woosley, Lexington, N. C.

OUR ANNUAL MEETING

The Wesley Bible Class Federation of the Western North Carolina Conference is composed of 650 organized Bible classes that have enrolled under the Methodist banner and have thus been chartered to do Christian service. These classes are bound together in a Conference Federation. For mutual helpfulness the Conference Federation holds an annual meeting to which come delegates and boosters from as many classes as care to participate. Four annual meetings have been held and each meeting has proven bigger and better than the preceding one. The fifth annual meeting will be held under the big auditorium at Lake Junaluska, the usual meeting place, beginning Monday evening, July 9, at eight o'clock, and will extend through the following Wednesday evening. The morning sessions will furnish discussions as to the best ways of making our classes effective in promoting righteousness and will be more or less informal. The evening sessions will be instructive and inspirational. Good music will feature all sessions. The afternoons will be reserved for recreational activities.

The officers of our Federation are: J. B. Ivey, Charlotte, president; George L. Hackney, Lexington, vice president; Mrs. E. O. Chandley, Asheville, recording secretary; Mrs. A. N. Perkins, Greensboro, corresponding secretary; E. F. Allen, Lenoir, treasurer; O. V. Woosley, Lexington, executive secretary.

BANNERS OFFERED

To the Wesley class numbering fifty or less enrollment registering the greatest amount of delegate mileage at the Federation, this being based on number of delegates and miles traveled, will be presented a beautiful silk Junaluska banner.

To the class with an enrollment of over fifty registering the greatest amount of delegate mileage will be presented another beautiful silk Junaluska banner. These banners have been prepared by the J. B. Ivey Co., Charlotte, N. C., and are things of beauty.

SHALL I GO TO LAKE JUNALUSKA?

Pro. It will be an interesting journey into the most beautiful section of our country. The nights are always cool, and the scenery always beautiful. I shall meet delightful companions. I shall make new friends. I shall broaden my mind. I shall intensify noble emotions as I sing and pray, listen and worship with a thousand and more kindred spirits. I shall hear some of the best speakers of our state. I shall listen to many of the foremost successful teachers and workers of our leading Bible classes. I shall become a better Christian, a better and more useful church and Sunday school worker. I shall receive an inspiration that will broaden, sweeten and bless my whole life.

Contra. I cannot afford the time and money to go to Lake Junaluska.

This may be a real reason, and there will be many who would like to go and cannot. But, on the other hand, there are many who may decide against attending this inspiring conference who could go if they would, and who would go if they realized the benefits they would receive.

In twenty years from now, in ten years from now, perhaps in one, it will not make the slightest difference to you, fellow worker, whether you put ten, twenty or thirty dollars into the bank, or spend it in rejuvenating your soul and body by going to this conference. No earthly difference, but it may mean an eternal and heavenly difference whether you go or not.

Then there is another argument that should go a long way in making your decision. It is that we go not for ourselves alone, but our going may mean a blessing to many more than will be present at the wonderful meetings at Lake Junaluska.

Your going, the reports you bring back, the new ideas you gain, the new enthusiasm you acquire may mean, and should mean, a quickening of your whole Sunday school. You cannot use a few dollars better than by using thus for others' sake.

Mention has not been made of the recreation hours, the ride on the beautiful lake, the fishing, the hikes, the many new friends you will make, the companionship of old friends, the many benefits your physical being will get from such an outing.

Why say more? J. B. Ivey.

OUR NAME

The Methodist church started in a Bible class. John Wesley, Charles Wesley and several other young collegemates, desiring to have more experiential religion than the Church of England offered, organized a Bible class for study and activity. Unwittingly these young fellows were organizing a greater organization, now the largest in Protestantism, the Methodist Church. To commemorate the beginning of Methodism as well as the great work it has and is doing we have the Wesley Bible class movement, a movement that now numbers 16,000 classes in Southern Methodism. Wesley was a great organizer, an organizer in the right direction for the best amount of good. We get our name from him, and do our work after his pattern.

"WHAT WE BELIEVE"

Dr. Franklin N. Parker, dean Candler School of Theology, Emory University, Georgia, is the author of an attractive volume just off the press and a book that merits a wide reading. This volume of 143 pages, published by Lamar and Barton, with an introduction by E. B. Chappell, D. D., and dedicated to Bishop Warren Aiken Candler, consists of Studies in Christian Doctrine.

The author in the preface to the book says:

"The purpose of this book is to supply a series of non-technical studies of the fundamental doctrines of our Christian faith for persons who have neither the time nor the inclination to make an extensive study of the subject. All Christians ought to have a definite idea of the things most surely believed among us. This is especially true in these times when there are so many religious fads and strange notions about religion.

"The Apostles' Creed is made the basis of our approach. It is the most ancient and universal formula of our faith. For a great number of Christians it constitutes the central part of the baptismal covenant and is used by many churches as a part of the public worship by the congregation. If anyone should ask 'What mean ye by these things?' we ought to fulfill the apostolic injunction 'to give answer to every man who asketh you a reason concerning the hope that is in you.'

"Such an answer ought to be biblical. The great facts come from the word of God. Our doctrines are based upon divine revelation and owe their authority to this fact, and Jesus Christ is the supreme fact in this revelation. It is life eternal to know God and Jesus Christ. For this reason Christian doctrine builds on and from the Bible. It is now and always true that there is a wonderful light in God's word. It is of the utmost importance that the Bible references in this book should be constantly used."

We hope at an early date to review this timely and inviting little book but in the meantime subscribe to the following:

"In the midst of much noise and confusion concerning the 'fundamentals of faith' it is reassuring to hear one clear voice sounding a note of certainty. Professor Parker is well known throughout the church as an able, devout thinker on theological subjects and is a famous preacher of the gospel. He has put into the small compass of these studies exactly what the average layman wants, and the average minister can read them with pleasure and profit. For a textbook for adult and young people's classes and Epworth Leagues, 'What We believe' has special value and adaptation."

A VISIT TO EASTERN NORTH CAROLINA

Business of a personal nature carried the business manager of the Advocate back to an old charge in eastern Carolina last week. He went primarily to perform the ceremony at the marriage of his son, but incidentally to visit old friends and to look upon that fine congregation at Hertford one more time. No man in North Carolina Methodism serves a finer congregation than does the Rev. Thos. M. Grant. The congregation to a man is always true to his preacher and faithful in their attendance upon divine worship. A much needed Sunday school equipment is just around the corner. It is expected that before the summer is gone that work on this new building will be under way.

Brother Grant is in his fourth year. Some congregation will get one of the best preachers in the conference next year and one of the best men to be found anywhere, and some preacher will get one of the most pleasant appointments in North Carolina Methodism.

The writer has the pleasure of trying to preach to that fine people on the third Sunday at eleven o'clock. It was a distinct pleasure to him. Many faces that he was accustomed to looking into twelve years ago were missing, but the young people have grown up and new ones have come in to fill up the gap.

There is one thing that is very noticeable in that section of the state. The state highways are not kept down there like they are in other sections of the state. In many places the counties have spent large sums of money in building good roads, but the state highways are almost impassable. The road authorities ought to go to work at once and put the roads in at least a passable condition.

During our stay in Hertford we were the guests in the hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Jessup. The former is postmaster and one of the most efficient that we have ever known.

WHY IGNORE THE SOUTH AND WEST?

President Harding has announced his list of appointments of the ten delegates from the United States to the International Congress Against Alcoholism, meeting in Copenhagen in August.

It is a surprising fact that not one of the ten delegates is from the territory south of the Potomac, and only one—ex-Congressman Volstead—from the territory west of the Mississippi. The entire delegation, with that one exception, is from the territory which, taken as a whole, is the wettest section of the United States. It would seem that the solidly prohibition section of the nation would contain some persons qualified to represent the United States at such a congress. It would seem that two of the greatest Protestant denominations of our country—the Southern Baptist and the Southern Methodist—both aggressively prohibition bodies, should have furnished at least one or two representatives for such a congress. It is the most sectional list of appointments which has ever been made to a conference of that kind.

INTERESTING DISTRICT CONFERENCE

The Rockingham district conference met in Page Memorial church, Aberdeen, last Wednesday morning, with Rev. John H. Shore, presiding elder, in the chair, and Rev. W. H. Brown at the secretary's desk. Rev. J. D. Bundy, pastor of the Rockingham church, preached the opening sermon on Tuesday night, and, of course, preached a helpful and thoughtful sermon.

Brother Shore is a master when it comes to dispatching business, and he always has everything planned so that there is no lost motion during a session of his conference. There was a large attendance. All the preachers being present and many of the charges had full delegations.

The pastors made reports of their work according to the requirements of the discipline. These reports all indicated that the preachers and people have been busy down in the Rockingham district during the year.

Brother Shore gave plenty of time for every interest of the church to be intelligently represented. It is a hard matter for a man to represent a great department of church work in five or ten minutes and the presiding elder of the Rockingham district realizes this fact, and tells the brethren to do the best they can by way of economizing time. He feels that all interests of the church are important enough to give a little time to their consideration.

One pleasing incident of the conference was when President Green, of Carolina College, took charge of affairs. Instead of making an address himself he introduced Rev. W. R. Royall, Mr. McKay McKinnon, a presbyterian elder, Mr. A. E. White, of the board of trustees, and Rev. E. F. Sullivan, pastor of the Baptist church at Maxton. These brethren all spoke in high praise of the work being done by the new president of Carolina. Mr. Sullivan told the conference that Maxton had raised $25,000 to be used in the erection of a dormitory. Brother Shore declared that the Presbyterians and Baptists had put Methodism in a hole and it was up to them to come across and build the dormitory. From all accounts it would seem that Carolina College has taken on new life and that there is a bright future ahead of that institution.

Brother Brown, the efficient secretary, has an account of the proceedings of the conference in another column.

OF INTEREST TO THE LAYMEN

The whole subject of lay activities was taken up during the recent preachers' institute at Trinity College at a meeting on June 14 of laymen from the North Carolina and Western North Carolina conferences together with a number of the preachers. Mr. G. L. Morelock was present by invitation and led in the discussions. After very earnest deliberation on the part of laymen and preachers two definite conclusions were reached:

(1) It was decided to ask the bishop and the conferences for two hours on Friday morning of the annual conference sessions at Winston-Salem and at Elizabeth City in order that the whole matter of lay activities may be presented to the preachers and to the lay leaders and associate lay leaders who will be urged to attend and be ready to report for the work that has been done in each district. This would not seem to be an unreasonable request now that the new legislation enacted on the subject at Hot Springs is to be put into effect and ought to usher in a better day for all our lay activities.

(2) It was also decided to urge every charge to send at least one representative to the great laymen's conference at Lake Junaluska, August 10-15. Where the delegate is not able to bear his own expenses it was suggested that it would pay the local church to do this because of the fresh impulse and the new ideas that its representative would bring back to the church from the great gathering at Junaluska. Let the presiding elders and the pastors through the use of minute men or otherwise get this to all our congregations.

W. P. Few,
Lay Leader N. C. Conference.
C. H. Ireland,
Lay Leader W. N. C. Conference.

CHOICE OF BOOKS BY EMINENT ENGLISHMEN

A writer in The Methodist Recorder of London recently interviewed three leading British Wesleyans as to the twelve books they would choose to have with them if they were left alone on a desert island for twelve months. The first of the three to be approached was Rev. Dinsdale T. Young, minister of Westminster Central Hall, London, and a former president of the British Wesleyan conference. Mr. Young, who is a passionate lover of books, found difficulty in limiting his choice to such a small number but finally selected the following list:

1. The Bible. 2. "Pilgrim's Progress." 3. "Grace Abounding." 4. Boswell's "Life of Johnson." 5. Lockhart's "Life of Scott." 6. Spurgeon's "Sermons." 7. Thomas Goodwin's "Ephesians." 8. Dean Vaughan's works. 9. Tennyson's poems. 10. Shakespeare. 11. Baxter's "Saint's Everlasting Rest." 12. Wesley's Journal.

The next person visited was Sir Robert W. Perks, one of the outstanding laymen among the sons of Wesley in Great Britain, who made his choice as follows:

1. The Bible. 2. The "Methodist Hymn Book." 3. Wesley's Journal. 4. Shakespeare. 5. "Dialogues of Plato," Jowett. 6. "Confessions of St. Augustine." 7. Rosebery's "Historical and Miscellaneous Essays." 8. Walter Scott's novels. 9. Emerson's works. 10. The "Oxford Survey of the British Empire." 11. Bryce's "American Commonwealth." 12. J. A. Symonds' "Renaissance in Italy."—Zion's Herald.

PEOPLE AND THINGS

Western North Carolina Conference, Winston-Salem, October 17.

North Carolina Conference, Elizabeth City, November 14.

Rev. J. A. Hornaday is serving the Red Springs charge while Rev. L. S. Massey, the pastor, is away on a protracted vacation. Brother Massey will be away for about three months, it is learned.

Revival services began at North Wilkesboro May 17. Rev. D. V. York is assisting Rev. H. T. Smathers, the pastor. Mr. J. W. Glance is the leader of song. Services are held each morning at 9 and evening at 8 o'clock.

"Mrs. Piety W. Jenkins announces the marriage of her granddaughter, Miss Cora Jenkins Moss, to Mr. Robert Newton Ledford on Saturday, June the twenty-third, nineteen hundred and twenty-three. At home, Brea, California."

Some friends of Rev. and Mrs. Euclid McWhorter, pastor of Page Memorial church, Aberdeen, slipped ten ten dollar bills in a Lake Junaluska program, and directed that the money be used in a vacation trip to the Methodist gathering grounds.

Mrs. F. L. Townsend has for sale a new edition of her book, "In the Nantahalas." Those who desire copies of this charming story of our own mountains can secure it from the author, Mrs. F. L. Townsend, Watt Street, Durham, N. C. The price remains $1.00.

Dr. Ashley Chappell, pastor of Central church, Asheville, who has been confined to his room with malarial fever, is up and about. This will be good news to the numerous friends that he has made since coming to North Carolina last fall.

On Wednesday, June 6, Mr. J. L. Brown of Bethel, N. C., and Miss Pattie Nixon of Tyner, N. C., were united in marriage by Rev. J. Vincent Knight, pastor of the Edenton Methodist church. The marriage took place in the Evans Methodist church in Chowan county.

Judge N. L. Eure returned last Saturday from Burlington, Vt., where he was a delegate to the annual meeting of the National Council Jr. O. U. A. M. The Council decided to build an orphanage in North Carolina. Mr. Eure reports a delightful trip notwithstanding the extremely hot weather in Vermont.

Rev. J. S. Hiatt, the pastor of Burkhead church, Winston-Salem, has just moved into a new parsonage on Patterson avenue. The ladies have furnished the house comfortably and the pastor of the new Burkhead church is well fixed in a new parsonage. Burkhead will hardly want a new preacher.

Rev. Burke Culpepper and Rev. John W. Robertson will begin a meeting at McComb, Miss., on July 1, to continue about three weeks. The services will be held in the tabernacle, which will seat about three thousand people. The meeting will be under the auspices of the Methodist church—New Orleans Advocate.

The executive secretary of the board of missions writes: "We are in receipt of the following letter from Rev. J. M. Terrell, North Carolina missionary, at Porto Alegre, Rio Grande do Sul, Brazil: 'We are now comfortably located in our new home and are beginning to understand just what is expected of us in the work here. I have three classes per day in Porto Alegre College, and am taking care of the work at two mission points in the city. The work here is in fine shape and from all appearances should make a fine showing in the reports at conference. At a meeting here the last week in March more than one hundred were enrolled as candidates for church membership.'"

On Wednesday, June 20th, at high noon, Mr. West W. Byrum and Miss Virginia Stephenson, both of Edenton, were united in marriage by Rev. J. Vincent Knight, pastor of the Methodist church. The marriage was celebrated in the church in the presence of a large company of friends of both bride and groom. Mrs. Byrum is the eldest daughter of Captain and Mrs. S. X. Stephenson of Edenton and is very popular in town and church circles. The groom is one of the successful business men of this section, and after their return from a western trip they will make their home in Edenton.

Rev. W. L. Sherrill, who a little while ago underwent a serious operation at a Charlotte sanatorium, expects to leave the hospital next week, but will remain in Charlotte for a few weeks while he regains his strength. His friends will rejoice to learn of his speedy and complete recovery.

A wire from Lee Davis brings this interesting message: "At the Epworth League Assembly held at Morehead City last week Durham district won the loving cup for the highest rating in league work. Miss Hazel Thompson, Roxboro, is district secretary. Memorial, Durham, made highest average, ninety-six and two-thirds, and becomes custodian of the cup. Carr and Trinity next places."

Dr. Harry M. North, pastor of the First church, Rocky Mount, last Sunday unlimbered his batteries upon the dancing crowd at Rocky Mount, some of whom were members of his own church. According to reports this conscientious pastor had reasons to speak plainly and emphatically. Rocky Mount, however, is not the only sinner in this respect. But we glory in the courage of a man who like North will beard the lion in his den. One pastor of that sort is worth more than a multitude of hirelings who flee because they are hirelings and care not for the sheep.

"If you divide the United States into four sections," says Irvin Cobb, "the South, the North, the mid-West and the West, you will find that the South has to her credit more writers than any other section," Living Southern authors, as they are listed in the New York Herald, include "Historians like Woodrow Wilson, Edward Dodd and John Spencer Bassett; critics like James Brander Matthews; poets like Olive Tilford Dargan, Cale Young Rice, John Gould Fletcher and Robert Loveman; novelists like James Branch Cabell, Willa Sibert Cather, Henry Sydnor Harrison, Mary Johnston, Cora May Harris, Amelie Rives Troubetzkoy, Geo. W. Cable and James Lane Allen, and short story writers like Irvin S. Cobb, Harry Stilwell Edwards and Octavius Roy Cohen. This roster of contemporary letters would be significantly amplified if the names of those who died but yesterday were added, authors like Walter Hines Page, Thomas Nelson Page, Madison Cawein, John Fox, Jr., Will N. Harbin, Charles Edgert Craddock and Ruth McEnery Stuart. The great Southern tradition in literature, established by William Gilmore Simms, Edgar Allen Poe, Sidney Lanier and Mark Twain, carries on."

SALISBURY DISTRICT CONFERENCE NOTICE

Salisbury district conference will convene at Gold Hill, N. C., on Friday, July 6, at 9 o'clock a. m., and we hope every delegate can be present at the opening session, and of course all the preachers will be here.

Program.

Opening session at nine o'clock.
Sermon at eleven o'clock by Rev. W. A. Rollins of Concord.

Dinner on the ground.
There will be an afternoon session and the Sunday schools and Epworth leagues will have the evening hour beginning at eight o'clock.

The regular hours will be observed on Saturday.
All preachers, delegates and visitors of the conference will please note the following schedule of trains (Yadkin railroad):

Daily and Sunday, southbound: Train No. 1 leaves Salisbury at 9:35 a. m., arrives at Gold Hill at 10:19 a. m.; Train No. 3 leaves Salisbury at 4:10 p. m., arrives at Gold Hill at 4:53 p. m.

Northbound trains daily and Sunday: Train No. 2 leaves Norwood at 5:45 a. m., arrives at Gold Hill at 6:56 a. m.; train No. 4 leaves Norwood at 4:25 p. m., arrives at Gold Hill at 5:40 p. m. Cars will meet all trains.

Jitney service: Jitney leaves Yadkin hotel in Salisbury at 8 a. m., arrives at Gold Hill at 8:53 a. m.; leaves Albemarle at 10:04 a. m., arrives at Gold Hill at 10:52 a. m.; leaves Salisbury at 1 p. m., arrives at Gold Hill at 1:35 p. m.; cars will meet jitney.

We have Western Union telegraph office and good roads to Gold Hill from most every direction and we hope every preacher, delegate and visitor of the conference will come and enjoy it with us. We will do our best to entertain you in the most pleasant way and we bid you all welcome. Come. Dr. T. F. Marr will preach for us Sunday.

Rev. D. P. Grant, Pastor.

Rev. and Mrs. R. C. Goforth of Glen Alpine announce the birth of their daughter, Mary Mitchell, on June 25, 1923.

Rev. W. E. Hauss has been appointed pastor of the China Grove circuit in place of Rev. S. E. Richardson, deceased. This notice comes to us from Dr. T. F. Marr, the presiding elder.

Rev. C. B. Culbreth, Presiding elder of the Elizabeth City district, requests us to announce that the district conference will convene at Mackey's Ferry July 17, at 3 o'clock p. m., and will continue through July 18-19.

Mrs. J. S. Carr, Jr., has given Trinity church, Durham, a $20,000 pipe organ. This is a memorial to her husband, J. S. Carr, Jr., who from his early manhood to the date of his death was an active member and official of that church.

Rev. Otho J. Jones, pastor at Sylva, is living in the light of his lucky star. The John McLain Bible class in the Sylva Sunday school and Mr. J. J. Hooker, judge of the Jackson county recorder's court, have given him a free trip to Washington, D. C. Those people at Sylva understood the fine art of treating their pastor just as he enjoys being dealt with.

CONFERENCE WELL ATTENDED AND INTERESTING

The Rockingham district conference which convened with the church at Aberdeen was a well attended and fine spirited conference. Rev. J. D. Bundy preached the opening sermon in which he called us back to an experimental religion, saying that if we lost our religious experience, as a church, we would be gone.

The report of the committee on the spiritual state of the church says: "The reports of the pastors generally indicate the solution of the spiritual problem in the district and a high state of spiritual life. Much consecration and growth in spiritual things has been reported, and a high note of optimism generally sounded."

Nelson Pate Edens and Luther Cecil McRae, two young men who expect to enter Trinity College in the fall, were licensed to preach. Michael Crawford Ellerbe was recommended to the annual conference for admission on trial. Several pastors reported young people in their charge looking toward the ministry.

In view of a possibility of our presiding elder being taken from us at the coming annual conference the conference passed the following:

Resolved, That this conference go on record as favoring and asking for the present arrangement as to presiding elder. The conference granted the president a two weeks' vacation to be taken at will.

On the first ballot the following were elected delegates to the annual conference: Fred W. Bynum, K. M. Barnes, A. Cameron, R. D. Phillips, J. C. Lentz, W. N. McKenzie, R. N. Page and J. H. Turner. Alternates elected were: Mrs. Frank Page, R. T. Pool, J. T. Myers and J. H. Thrower.

Maxton took the conference by storm when Prof. E. C. Green, president of Carolina College, took the floor. Mr. McCoy McKinnon, a Presbyterian elder, and Rev. E. F. Sullivan, pastor of the Baptist church, spoke of Maxton's love for and appreciation of and confidence in Professor Green and the college. They told us and showed us how the whole of Maxton, irrespective of denomination, had rallied to Carolina College.

Hon. R. N. Page reported the action of the trustees of our orphanage at their recent meeting, and the conference by a unanimous vote obligated to build one of the proposed cottages at the orphanage at a cost not to exceed twenty-five thousand dollars.

All of the business of the conference having been transacted it closed on its knees in prayer led by Dr. R. C. Beamon. W. H. Brown, Sec.

SALISBURY DISTRICT CONFERENCE

The Salisbury district conference will meet at Gold Hill July 6th at 9 a. m. The good people of Gold Hill will provide entertainment for all who come. A full delegation from each pastoral charge is expected.

A great meeting of Sunday school and Epworth League workers will be held Friday night. Dinner will be served on the ground.

J. F. Kirk, C. M. Pickens and J. C. Umberger have been appointed a committee on license, orders and recommendations. T. F. Marr.

PROGRAM OF THE GENERAL SUNDAY SCHOOL BOARD AT LAKE JUNALUSKA

The program that is being offered by the General Sunday School Board at Lake Junaluska this summer is of unusual interest to pastors and such persons as desire more advanced training in the field of religious education than can be had at the ordinary city or conference standard training school.

Provision has been made for three consecutive terms of the leadership school, the first term opening July 12 and closing July 26, the second term opening July 27 and closing August 9, and the third term opening August 10 and closing August 23. The carrying of the program over six weeks of time has a double value. It will enable those who desire a longer vacation to spend the entire six weeks profitably in pursuing their studies in the Standard Training Course. It will also enable such persons as cannot get their vacations set during the month of July, to take advantage of an August vacation by a visit to Junaluska. All three schools will be of the leadership type, and the program is so arranged that persons desiring to work off their specialization courses may have the privilege of doing so during the six weeks.

Special attention has been given this year to the selecting of certain courses with a direct bearing upon the work of the pastor. During the first term, in addition to the regular standard training units of a general nature, the following courses will be of exceptional value to pastors, superintendents, full or part-time employed workers in the field of religious education: The Educational Task of the Local Church, by Dr. Bower; The Director of Religious Education, by Mr. Hubbell; The Real Jesus and His Message, by Dr. Bland; The Psychology of Religion, by Dr. Bower. These two latter are graduate courses, applying on the Junaluska Leadership diploma. A select course will be offered on Mission Education in the Church School, which has for its purpose the training of a group of missionary leaders for the local church missionary education program.

During the second term the course on Curriculum of Religious Education by Dr. Winchester, and the special course by Mr. Harbin on Recreational Leadership, with special emphasis upon young people, will be of special value.

In the third term the course by Dr. Winchester on Jesus the Master Teacher, and the courses on Principles and Development of Religious Education and Christian Service for Adults will be courses of particular value to those mentioned above.

In addition to the regular program, there will be offered this year three advanced courses, each of which will be recognized for credit by the School of Theology of Southern Methodist University, a joint agreement having been entered into between the General Sunday School Board Training Section and the School of Theology of Southern Methodist University whereby our pastors and other leaders desiring work of an advanced nature, might secure the same in our own field and not have to go to Northern universities. A course in the History and Principles of Religious Education by Professor Harris, head of the Department of Religious Education at Emory University, a course on Organization and Administration of Religious Education in the Local Church by Dr. Cunningham, president of Scarritt, and the course on Human Nature and Christian Nature by Dr. Winchester, will make it exceedingly profitable to any man or woman who is seeking advanced work in the field of religious education; and we feel safe in making the assertion that in no institution in America can more practical help be secured than at Junaluska this summer.

Those desiring fuller information touching registration, conditions for credits, etc., will do well to address L. F. Sensabaugh, Director of Training Work, 810 Broadway, Nashville, Tenn.

LEADERSHIP OF CHURCH CALLED TO LAKE JUNALUSKA JULY 1-8

The annual Social Service Conference to be held at Lake Junaluska July 1-8, under the auspices of the General Conference Commission on Temperance and Social Service, of which Bishop Cannon, Jr., is chairman, promises to be one of the most significant gatherings of the kind ever held in Southern Methodism. It is the feeling of the commission that the time has come when our church must go to the bottom of many of the social and industrial problems which are so sorely vexing the world today and prepare itself to point the way toward Christian solutions. To that end the commission is inviting to Junaluska the leadership of the church, clerical and lay, and is preparing a thoroughgoing program relative to these questions.

Outstanding subjects to be studied will be "The Home and Family," including the questions of marriage and divorce and protection of women in industry; "Child Welfare," with special reference to legislation needed to conserve and protect childhood; "The Church and Industry," a most timely topic to which two days will be given; "Christian Race Relations," which will occupy a day, and "Prohibition and Law Enforcement," which will have another.

Some of America's outstanding authorities will lead the discussions on the several subjects. Divisive and explosive issues will not be shunned, but where there are radical differences of opinion, as in relation to industrial questions, fair representation will be given to all viewpoints. This guarantees that whatever else the conference may be, it will not lack variety and interest. The whole purpose will be not to put over a given viewpoint, but to get at the truth, if possible.

Among the leaders already promised or expected to take part may be mentioned Dr. T. W. Galloway, associate director of American Social Hygiene Association; Dr. John McDowell, social service secretary of the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A.; Rev. F. E. H. Johnson of the Federal Council of Churches; Dr. Ernest F. Tittle of Evanston, Ill.; George Berry, president of the American Typographical Union; Jerome Jones, southeastern representative of the American Federation of Labor; Kirby Page, sociologist and author; Marvin Davies, Atlanta manufacturer; Mrs. W. A. Newell, social service superintendent Woman's Missionary Council; Miss Mary Anderson, assistant secretary of labor; Bishop James Cannon, Jr.; Wayne B. Wheeler and Ernest H. Cherrington of the American Anti-Saloon League; Dr. W. W. Alexander and Mrs. Luke G. Johnson of the Commission on Inter-racial Cooperation, and Dr. Robert E. Speer, world-renowned missionary statesman.

It is not too much to expect that this conference will mark the beginning of a new power and vitality in the social message and ministry of our great church. Every man and woman in the church who is really interested in the vital issues of the times and who desires to hear them discussed frankly, authoritatively, and withal from the Christian viewpoint, should plan to attend this conference.

THE MASTER'S IDEA OF RELIGION

In a recent address at Baltimore Dr. Edward Leigh Pell said that he had no interest in any religion that was not a religion of loving relationships. "That," he insisted, "is the religion which Jesus offers us—a life of loving relationships; a life which we live through him with God as our Father and, as a natural consequence, with our fellowmen as our brothers.

"I cannot understand the man who can content himself with a religion that is a mere philosophy," continued Dr. Pell. "Nor can I understand how any man can be satisfied with a religion of service only—a religion that consists in nothing more than doing things for people. A religion that is a mere philosophy never gets us anywhere except into hot water—where so many of us are now. I never meet an intelligent young man—either minister or layman—who is in trouble over such questions as evolution or the supernatural, that was not led into it by mistaking the religion of Jesus for philosophy. When a man is thinking of religion as a philosophy almost everything that develops in the progress of modern intelligence frightens him out of his wits. Try religion as a life and these developments will no more disturb your faith than a baby's breath will blow out an evening star."

"Nor do I mean to make light of the part of service of religion. What I mean to say is that while the religion of Jesus includes service it is not a life of service. It is a life of love, and a life of love is not a life of service, but a life of service plus comradeship. We can no more live with God as our Father and with our fellowmen as our brothers without comradeship than we can run a stream without a fountainhead.

"Surely we have indulged in this foolish experiment long enough. We have tried it in our homes until the home is almost bankrupt. We know what happens when husband and wife decide that they no longer have time for spiritual comradeship and content themselves with trying to keep their love alive by simply working for each other. We may work our fingers to the bone for our loved ones and if we don't find a quiet hour now and then for spiritual comradeship with them our love will starve to death. And the same is true of our church life. We may wear out our lives in what we call Christian service, and if we don't take time for comradeship with God as well as with our fellowmen our love for both will starve to death.

"That is the secret of the distressing situation in many of our great city churches today. Let a people—no matter how good they may be—persist in this impossible experiment of living a life of love by service alone—by merely doing things for people—and they will inevitably lose their vision of God and become mere humanitarians in practice and desist in belief. We are waking up to the fact that we have got to find time for spiritual comradeship with our loved ones at home or the home is doomed; it is time we were waking up to the fact that we have got to find time for fellowship with God or the church is doomed.

"We are seeing strange things today," said Dr. Pell in closing. "We are witnessing the strange spectacle of ministers of Christ going over to the world's materialistic teachers and joining them in their superior sneer at the Master's own doctrine of fellowship with God. As a crusty old bachelor who has lived so far away from the world of love that he has lost his sense of its reality and laughs at mother love as sentimental nonsense, so the burnt-out man of God who has lived so far from the world of spirit that he has lost all sense of the reality of spirit and of the Great Spirit himself, is now laughing at what we call realizing God-living in vital, conscious touch with him as mystical nonsense. Friends, if we don't know God we have nothing but a dry bone to gnaw on. And we have nothing but a dry bone to offer to starving men." X.

SELECTIONS FROM THE DAIRY OF A CHRISTIAN FATHER

Jan. 29, 1894. Our first baby was born today. I feel like another man. My wife wanted it named for me, but I insisted he should be called Arthur, beginning the family with the first letter of the alphabet.

Feb. 1, 1894. The preacher called today, and urged that I should join the church before my boy ever knew me as an outsider. He pressed home on me the argument that I had new responsibilities since I am a father; I have been thinking a long time about taking this step, and so I promised to come out next Sunday.

Feb. 6, 1894. With fear and trembling I started having family prayers with my wife, even though the baby cried real loudly before I got through.

Sept. 2, 1896. Benjamin was born at 2 a. m. This evening I knelt by my wife's bed and we consecrated him to God from birth.

Oct. 15, 1899. Clara, a darling girl, arrived today. God help us to rear her right.

Dec. 1, 1899. Wife and I bundled up the babies and went to church long enough to have them baptized. Arthur wriggled badly, but Benjamin was almost uncontrollable. Only Clara behaved, although she is the youngest.

June 2, 1900. Began keeping Arthur to church after Sunday school. He wanted to go home very much, as usual, but I believe that children should be broken in young on attending church. My father did not do this for me, and I know how hard it is for me to keep going when I don't feel like it. If children get the habit early, they will surely be more likely to turn out well.

Nov. 25, 1901. Spent the evening reading Bible stories to Benjamin. He was particularly interested in Jacob and Benjamin.

Dec. 14, 1907. Clara wanted me to take her through the stores so she could see the Christmas things. I talked to her about giving as well as receiving. Her allowance for dish-washing and helping to sweep does not meet her expanding demands, and she has a hard time to see why she should give out of it. When she heard of the needy children in China and India this evening at the church, she was more reconciled to part with some of her own money in the collection.

Sept. 5, 1912. Took Arthur with me to the annual conference. I served as lay delegate to the Lay Association, and he was anxious to go along. Arthur was more interested in the preachers though. He had never seen so many together at one time.

Oct. 11, 1912. Benjamin came in today with a roll of one-dollar bills, the first big money he has ever earned by his unaided efforts. That boy has a money-sense, and I am afraid it will ruin him. I hoped to have him turn out to be a preacher, but he is not headed that way.

Dec. 4, 1912. Benjamin made another big haul of money for a boy sixteen years old. I talked tithing to him all evening. He is a sensible fellow, and realized that he could not have made his money without God's help, and promised to pay God his due share. I don't think he would have done it if he had not known that I was a tither myself. I am glad he has respect for his father. Some day he is going to be rich.

Feb. 9, 1915. Clara has been terribly under conviction during the revival meeting, and is so stubborn and timid that she will not yield. I am afraid she will get sick, if she does not pretty soon make her decision.

Feb. 10, 1915. Clara came to me tonight and said that if I would go forward with her to the altar, she would walk along. Of course I went! She got up radiant, and more beautiful than I have ever seen her.

Sept. 14, 1916. Arthur, Benjamin, and Clara, all started of to ——— Wesleyan University today. The house is awfully lonely without them. Clara is pretty young, but she graduated so early from high school, and the boys will be at college with her.

Feb. 3, 1917. Received a letter today from Arthur. He says he has decided to enter the ministry. Dr. Brown is holding a college revival meeting, and interviewing students. Well, Arthur will make a good one. I interpose no objections.

May 21, 1918. Benjamin writes that he is engaged to Helen Abernethy, daughter of the leading banker of Detroit. I will have to make a trip to college as soon as possible to meet her. Of course, he writes of her in glowing terms. I hope he hasn't made a mistake.

June 5, 1918. Met Helen Abernethy today. Clara speaks highly of her, as well as the rest of the girls. Found that she is secretary of the social service committee of the Y. W. C. A.

March 28, 1919. Clara wrote me today that she wanted to join the Student Volunteer Band for Foreign Missions. I was willing to have Arthur enter the ministry, but how can I give Clara up to go abroad? Our only daughter! Oh, God, help me not to stand against thy will. If it is thy will for her to go, I will keep out of the way, although my heart is bleeding.

March 29, 1919. Wrote Clara to consider carefully and prayerfully such a move, remembering her youthful years. Told her that she was responsible to God and not to us.

Sept. 5, 1920. Clara entered the Hospital Training School in preparation for work in the mission field.

Nov. 27, 1921. Spent Thanksgiving with Arthur and his church. His members flocked around us, and I cannot remember half their names. But everybody was cordial and had a kind word to say about their young preacher. Arthur is to be married in December, and the people already have the parsonage well stocked with a lot of necessities. They surely do love him down there.

Dec. 25, 1922. Benjamin and his wife had us come to their home for the holidays. He took us around today in his machine and showed us the places where he is financially interested. Among them were some church enterprises as well as business ventures. He is putting the Good Will Industries on a new basis of efficiency by providing a whole new line of machines. While he is liberal with his money, he also showed me where he is teaching English to a group of foreigners who meet at the Y. M. C. A. His wife is just as interested as he is, and their money is sure to be of great service.

Jan. 17, 1923. Clara and the doctor left Columbus today for New York. Arthur and his wife, Benjamin and his wife, and mother and I must have made a "scene" at the station when we said "good-bye." Mother particularly could not say a word, but could only cry. Clara has been such a comfort to her, and it is hard to see her husband start for Africa. This is our contribution. Our daughter.—Western Christian Advocate.

DEPARTMENT OF MUSIC AT GREENSBORO COLLEGE

The splendid showing made by the department of music in Greensboro College this year has been the topic of much favorable comment. The summary includes 296 selections, solos, movements from sonatas and concertos in the 24 recitals given, divided as follows: piano solos 188; on two pianos 13; piano and organ 3; vocal solos 53; violin solos 10; organ solos 24; readings 3; flute and piano 1; chorus 1; number of students playing piano solos 54; singing solos 10; playing violin solos 1; while the 145 composers were born in 25 countries or parts of the world. The 42 American composers were born in 18 states. The following pianists played during the year: Misses Mildred Godfrey, Spencer; Gladys Pouncey, China Grove; Lucile Johnson, Clinton; Thelma Maxwell, Whiteville; Virginia Lowrance, Catawba; Dixie Reaves, Raeford; Audrey Bruton, Mt. Gilead; Willie Faire Hemby, Matthews; Mary B. Thompson, Kannapolis; Murtis Maynard, Salisbury; Kathryn Cole, Fairmont; Louise Cunningham, Apex; Lucile Sherrod, High Point; Dorothy Waldrop, Hendersonville; Rachel Glover, Salisbury; Grace Johnson, Thomasville; Mary Jo Dickson, York, S. C.; Mildred Wilson, Marion; Ollie Mae Fentriss, Franklinville; Maud Cotton, Washington; Mary Scott Tucker, Raleigh; Bess Lewis, Whiteville; Elizabeth Richardson, La Follette, Tenn.; Magenta Lassiter, Fairmont; Lillian Hall, Lumber Bridge; Blanche Burrus, Weaver-ville; Louise Beal, Gastonia; Annyce Worsham, Ruffin; Louise Womble, Goldston; Nellie Bird Woods, Roxboro; Claire Watson, Sevens; Maude Hooker, Kinston; Zelda Barnes, Clayton; Ruth Hoyle, Cornelius; Mary Long Bryson City; Kathryn Jones, Sanford; Mabel Parker, Clinton; Agnes Edwards, Seaboard; Dorothy Mayes, Louis Allred, Bailey Watson, Elizabeth Simpson, Margaret Glenn Stockton, Carmell Ferguson, Emma Russell, Elizabeth Wilson, Allece Sapp, Cornelia Neal, Grace Curtis, Elizabeth Mann, Mildred Michaux, Lorna Mae Wilson, Margaret Barnhardt, and Ernestine Reynolds, Greensboro. The following have sung solos during the year: Misses Alma Wrenn, Siler City; Dixie Curtis, Liberty; Clarabel Morris, Asheboro; Lolita Ellis, Wilmington; Allece Sapp, Greensboro; Louise Beal, Gastonia; Dorothy Waldrop, Hendersonville; Martha Anderson, Williamston; Nell Smith, Jamestown; Alice Virginia Trice, Greensboro. One violinist, Miss Annie Lou Jackson, Greensboro, has appeared.

Director Church is planning for larger things the coming year. Already Percy Grainger is announced for a piano recital on Monday, December 17.

THE ASBURY-McKENDREE TABLE

On May 20th I went to Russellville, Ky., to preach the baccalaureate sermon for Logan College. In the afternoon the president of the college, Rev. A. P. Lyon, D. D., took me in his automobile to Lewisburg, Ky., where Rev. Virgil Elgin is in charge of our church. I preached to the congregation at Lewisburg at 3:30 o'clock, and had the privilege of looking, for the first time, upon a table that is of very great interest to Methodism.

The story of the table is as follows: Rev. Phillip Kennerly, a local preacher, gave the land on which Kennerly's Chapel was built. The church was named for the donor of the land. This local preacher, Rev. Phillip Kennerly, made a table to be used at the annual conference held by Bishop Francis Asbury and Bishop William McKendree, September 29-October 6, at Kennerly's Chapel. The church was located on or by a camp ground. Concerning this conference, Bishop Asbury says in his journal:

"Thursday, 29. We came upon the camp ground, where we are to hold our conference.

"Sabbath, October 2. I ordained about twenty deacons, and gave a sermon and an exhortation. Our encampment cook is Brother Douglass. We are two hours in the chapel, four hours at the preaching stand, and then come home. We sit six hours a day in conference. Poor bishops!—sick, lame, and in poverty. I had wished to visit Mississippi, but the injury received by Bishop McKendree being so great that it is yet doubtful whether he will so far recover as to be present at the South Carolina conference, I must decline going. I live in God.

"Thursday, 6. We closed our labors in great peace and love. The families have been kind to us, but we were much crowded. We have lost members from the society, and gained perhaps one preacher in the itinerancy in two years. The local ministry is enriched. May we expect more help? Ah, the labor is too hard, and the wages too low! We cannot, like the Quakers, take abroad when we get tired of home, and go feasting about from one rich friend's table to another's and bark or be dumb, as the fit may take us. Our discipline is too strict; we cannot leave four or five thousand congregations unsought, like the Church of England, the Presbyterian, Independent, and Baptist churches. Go, says the command; go into all the world—go the highways and hedges. Go out—seek them. Christ came seeking the lost sheep. Seek me out, says the parson; or advertise and offer a church and a good salary, and I will seek you. And is this all these pretenders can do? If we send but one traveling preacher into a four weeks' circuit, we aid him by the labor of our local ministry—good men, and some of them great men."

The old Kennerly's Chapel long since passed away, and the congregation has been worshipping at Lewisburg, and still bears the old name of Kennerly's Chapel, and the present congregation is the successor to the one worshipping in the old house.

I said to the pastor and congregation at Lewisburg that I would be very glad to have this table to place in our fire proof building, the Church Extension Building, at Louisville, Ky., as a memorial to the great and good men who used it in 1814. They have graciously sent the Bible, and it is now in the Church Extension Building. We will have it equipped with a proper plate bearing the historical facts connected with it, and doubt not many Methodists, as they come and go, will be glad to look upon and touch a trophy so ancient and so sacred.

W. F. McMurry.

THE NEW SUNDAY SCHOOL BUILDING

The new Sunday School building at Lake Junaluska is making satisfactory progress, and will be in condition to be used for the Sunday School Training School which opens July 12th.

The building is beautifully situated on the high ridge between the upper and lower lakes. It is immediately behind the Sunday school dormitories. Commanding as it does a very fine view of both the lakes, and of the mountains, it is considered by many as the very best situation at Lake Junaluska.

This year there will be three terms of two weeks each instead of one term of two weeks as heretofore. The first term will be July 12-26. Second term July 27-August 9. Third term August 10-29. This will give many the advantage of the training school who might not be able to attend the one term. J. B. Ivey.

SOMEBODY AND FLOWERS

By E. C. Durham.

There's a little brown cottage in the Old North State

Where somebody lives—
A real somebody, with a soul so great;
For attention to flowers she gives.

Her soul spreads out from that house too small
To contain such a soul as that—
Spreads out in flowers and fragrance to all
Who pass, each lifting his hat.

They know not her name, and neither do I,
But that lovely little home 'neath the oak
Is as certain of a soul to passerby
As fire is under the smoke.

It's another little home by the side of the road,
Where the throngs of men go by,
Which lifts the traveler's burdensome load,
And dries the tear from his eye.

O, women of souls, plant flowers by the way,
Until flowers abundant will speak
To the traveling world in this busy day,
Whose life is weary and weak.

NORTH CAROLINA CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

Official Organ of the North Carolina and Western North Carolina Conferences
Methodist Episcopal Church, South.
Established 1855.

Entered at the Postoffice at Greensboro,
N. C. as mail matter of the second class, acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided in section
1102, act of October 2, 1917, authorized
September 9, 1918.

Obituaries and Resolutions of one hundred words published free. All words above this number charged for at rate
of 1 cent per word.

A. W. PLYLER ..... Editor
T. A. SIKES ..... Business Manager

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Year .....$2.00
Six Months ..... 1.00
To all preachers of the Gospel, year 1.00

FIELD NEWS

DISTRICT CONFERENCE DIRECTORY

Sallsbury, at Gold Hill.....July 6-8
Elizabeth City, at Mackey's
Ferry ..... July 17-18

A REVIVAL—HOME COMING DAY

We are in the midst of a good revival at Park Street, and while much has been accomplished for the Master we believe greater things are to be done. Rev. J. W. Combs of Lincolnton is doing the preaching and it is well done. Pray for us.

Please announce that we will have a home coming picnic on Saturday, July 7, at Ebenezer Methodist church and all former pastors, members and all others are invited to come, and those who are not too far away to do so are asked to bring well filled baskets. The Advocate men are invited, and we are expecting Brother Sikes to be the main speaker. This will be a great time for those who have relatives buried at Ebenezer to come and look after the graves.

G. L. Wilkinson.

RECOMMENDS THE HUT

To all who are wondering what would be the best temporary housing arrangement for an overflow Sunday school until a sure-enough building according to modern plans and specifications can be erected, Graham Methodists would recommend the hut idea.

We have recently completed such a building here. There are four rooms, including a kitchen. One of the rooms, 30x48 feet, is equipped with portable partitions and junior-size furniture.
Here three departments of the Sunday school are well provided for. Also this room is so built with reference to the kitchen that in just a short time the floor can be cleared and arrangements made for social gatherings.
That the hut is both worth while and properly appreciated is attested by the uses to which already it is being put. In six weeks of service it has been used by the Alamance Standard

MRS. E. O. CHANDLEY
Rec. Sec. Wesley Federation

MRS. A. N. PERKINS
Cor. Sec. Wesley Federation

Training School, Trinity Alumni Association, the Graham Music Club—these besides the "house warming" given it by the congregation and one or two class gatherings. There are these splendid facts to keep in mind:
The hut didn't cost much; several needs felt for some time past have been supplied in the one building; the folks are pleased; and now the organizations of the church can go on growing and expanding until one day not many years hence a Sunday school building as it ought to be will be easily possible and a reality. We are proud of ourselves.

Also (a postscript) the preacher is proud of a splendid new suit, a gift from the Woman's Missionary Society. There came a note instructing him to get the best and the most of it for the money. So of course it is a "preacher" suit—and there is some pardonable pride in these parts.

G. M. Daniel.

STANLEY CREEK CHARGE

Since last year some time the Stanley Creek Methodist church has been in process of remodeling. Last winter the five Sunday school rooms were finished as to the carpenter work. Recently, under the direction of Bro. T.
J. Moss, chairman of the finance and painting committee, the painting has been done on the outside, the Sunday school rooms, in new part of the building, have been painted and the windows have been stained. We were aided in the painting very materially by Mr. R. F. Craige, who for the mills here gave us the paint to do all this painting. The church is duly grateful to him for this magnificent gift. With the exception of the seating the only other work necessary is the cement steps, the brick underpinning and the finishing of the other three Sunday school rooms, which will be done with paint or paper.

The above work was completed in time for our "home coming and opening day" on the 10th of June. On this day we had the very great pleasure of the Rev. A. W. Plyler's presence, who preached for us at 11 o'clock.
There was a representative congregation of people present to hear this preacher's great sermon. On account of the character of the service there were people there from far and wide, a dozen different towns and cities being represented. At the noon hour a great table about 50 feet long was laden with the best the land affords and all ate to the fullest enjoyment.
In the afternoon Rev. M. T. Hinshaw delivered a very fine address, which was heard by an interested congregation. We have not had anything better in a long time than that which Plyler and Hinshaw gave us, and we all want them to come back. Both were so delighted with their experiences that they said they would come again.
Today the painters begin the work of painting the inside of the church at Iron Station. The stewards are a committee having this work in hand and expect to have the work finished by the first Sunday in July, when our revival meeting begins, under the direction of Mrs. E. C. Steidley of Gastonia. This will be Mrs. Steidley's first meeting at this place and we are looking forward to it with high anticipations. In October of last year Mrs.

Steidley held a wonderful meeting at Stanley Creek, and again this year in February. The results of these meetings of a visible kind were manifest and are yet, but only eternity will make full revelation.

The work on the charge is making good progress in every way. The spiritual state of the church is good, the attendance on the preaching services were never better, the finances are better than at this time last year and the Sunday school attendance is the finest it has been for several years.
While there are discouragements, in the main there are many things to gladden the hearts of the pastor and the people.

A word as to our town so as to indicate the possibilities for our church in the immediate future. In a short time twelve new homes will have been finished during the six months of this year. A new bank building has been built, occupied by the bank, a new drug store and a fruit and confectionery store. The Loa Gingham mill has been finished and the looms are being placed and operated as fast as adjusted to the power. This will necessitate the erection of at least 50 more houses, the employment of about 200 more hands and an increase in our population of something like 500 people. With the dye works and the finishing department of this new mill and the new spinning mill placed in operation within the last two years, these mills now have a very large payroll. With faithful and efficient work in the near future this church can be developed to where it can support a preacher for full time.

Albert Sherrill.

A SUPERANNUATE VIEWPOINT

While on this superannuate shelf, in suffering I lie watching with joy our great Methodist army go by,
there are a few salient little things
I desire to say before leaving for our home forever to stay.

From boyhood I have been a delighted reader of our Advocates, South and North Carolina. For over a half century I have had intimate and profitable acquaintance with our fine North State Advocate; and I am free and glad to say that our paper is now stronger, brighter and more popular than ever in its excellent history. In meeting real gentlemen I have always found them clean, sturdy, well dressed, with good faces. And the clean, bright interesting face of the Advocate reminds me that in the mind and heart columns I will find helpful and soul uplifting reading. Our pastors cannot do better work than putting the Advocate in the homes of our Methodist people, especially country homes, before the meeting of our conference. Why not, busy pastors? The country people have the money if you have the faith.

From my good shelf and point of observation I find that our two conferences in the state are now strongly and fittingly presiding eldered. Bishop Denny has been wise and successful in finding and putting into our Methodist building in the state the best of presiding elder timber. And I am now just whispering a long distance message to the bishop that, in appointing elders for the Shelby and Marion districts at Winston-Salem, he make this beautiful exchange—put Paris on the Shelby and Jordan on the Marion district.

It may be in some cases (not my case) that superannuates are "forgotten men." But one lovely truth is, we do not forget the truths and the histories past and present of our great Methodist army the world over. We remember and we rejoice while we know that soon our names on the conference roll here below will be transferred to the glory roll above.

S. M. Davis.

DEEP RIVER CIRCUIT

West Bend Sunday school held their Children's Day services the third Sunday in June. The children all did their parts well and it was an inspiration to hear them sing "He Walks With Me." The talks by the pastor and Mr. John Trogdon were enjoyed very much. The writer felt like saying, "Backward, turn backward, oh time, on your way; make me a child again just for today."

After the exercises were over dinner was served on the ground and pictures were made of the group. As we turned our faces homeward we were forcibly reminded of that little song:
Day of purest pleasure treasured
when 'tis o'er

How its joys remind us of a brighter shore,

Where we all may gather and forever stay.

There through endless ages it will be Children's Day.

Mrs. J. A. Howell.

A GREAT VACATION FOR A DOLLAR

"Travels in the Old World," by Rev.
J. M. Rowland, editor Richmond Christian Advocate, is the next thing to spending your vacation abroad. Special price during vacation months for one dollar; 438 pages of spice, thrills and laughs; rare illustrations. Order from Advocate Publishing Co., Box 584, Richmond, Va.

GEO. L. HACKNEY
Vice President Wesley Federation

J. B. IVEY
President Wesley Federation

E. F. ALLEN
Treasurer Wesley Federation

ANNUAL MEETING WASHINGTON DISTRICT

The annual meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Washington district, met June 19th to 20th, at the M. E. church, Nashville, N. C.

Mrs. Blount, our district secretary, presided over the meeting. Largest attendance of delegates known. Services opened with hymn, after which Miss Ida Hankins of Sangdo, Korea, gave us a Bible reading and a short talk.

In the absence of Miss Lillie Duke, superintendent of young people's work, Miss Elizabeth Bass, in a most pleasing and affable manner entertained us. She began by telling us of four looks, inward, outward, upward, downward and last was overlooked, which she hoped we did not possess.

A vocal duet was rendered by Mrs. C. C. Cockrell and A. A. Ross.

A pageant was given by young people's Nashville auxiliary, Mrs. L. W. Boddie reading the story of Ruth and Naomi being a part of the pageant. The choruses rendered by children were especially good. Benediction was pronounced by Mrs. N. H. D. Wilson.

Wednesday morning, June 20th at nine-thirty, we reassembled with Mrs. Blount, our district secretary, presiding. A hymn was sung and prayer by Rev. E. C. Few, who gave us an impressive message, using fishing as his theme. And illustrated to us the good we might accomplish by being fishers of men, after which the sacrament was administered.

Mrs. F. L. Greathouse offered a message of welcome in a most cordial manner.

Mrs. O. B. Moss, of Spring Hope, accepts the address of welcome with many inspiring thoughts.

Greetings were given by Mrs. Blount, our district secretary, who told us we ranked among the first in the auxiliaries.

Two committees were appointed: Courtesy, Mrs. L. L. Davenport and Mrs. A. S. Vick of Nashville, N. C.; committee on resolutions, Mesdames J. B. Exum and W. C. Benson of Fremont.

Mrs. N. H. D. Wilson presented the junior work in a most interesting and affable manner and created new interest and renewals of old organizations. Farmville, Elm City, Fremont, Spring Hope and Greenville organizations were especially mentioned. We want to make special mention of little Rebecca Scovar's report of the Greenville auxiliary. Mrs. Blount gave report of junior work at Wilson. She said it was not as flourishing as she would like. We have seventeen junior divisions and twenty-six woman's auxiliaries in Washington district. Mrs. Wilson made special stress on the kind of literature we should allow our young lives to read. This is infinitely important.

Miss Vera Herring, district secretary of Raleigh, gave a short and interesting talk on having a goal and going to it, by having each member interested and a work to do and following the work mapped out by the council.

Miss Ida Hankins, of Sangdo, Korea, spoke to us on present day opportunities for life investment in Korea. She presented to us a little girl dressed as a Korean and she sang us a Bright Jewel song in their language. She told us the churches there are six in number. Education and religion are greatly on the increase. They have 1200 children in school where they only had 600 three years ago. After singing I Need Thee Every Hour and a prayer, Mrs. J. LeGrand Everett presented to us the life and work of Miss Belle Bennett, who committed her ways unto the Lord in order that her thoughts should be established. Her life is an inspiration and Scarritt Training School has proven this. Three hundred and eighty-nine graduates from Scarritt are now doing active mission work. A new Scarritt school is to be built as a memorial to Miss Bennett. The location has not been decided upon. Twenty-five thousand dollars has been pledged by our North Carolina conference to the Scarritt Training School to be paid within three years.

Discussions on where to hold our next district meeting. Ayden and Rocky Mount asked for same. We decided on Ayden, as they were in need of us.

A collection was taken to defray expenses of some delegates.

Mrs. Watson of Wilson sang at the noon hour "Give Me a Love That Knows No Tear."

Miss Elizabeth Bass talked to us about Paul, who was the first great missionary. Miss Bass expressed her gratefulness to Washington district because of sending her to Scarritt Training School. We feel well repaid when we look into her shining face, for you can see she is in daily contact with Jesus—and her heart and soul are in the work. All the morning business transacted, we adjourned for luncheon.

Wednesday afternoon: Mrs. Blount still presided over the meeting. Meeting opened by song by Miss Sadie Jenkins, then a Bible reading from Matthew by Mrs. G. T. Smith of Rocky Mount, president of Lambeth auxiliary, who made a few important remarks on the uses of our talents and standing firm for our real convictions.

Mrs. S. F. Austin, recording secretary, read the minutes of the meeting and they were approved.

Mrs. S. H. Scott of New Bern talked to us on our prayer special.

The junior department of Elm City gave a flourishing report of their auxiliary. Mrs. Trotman of Spring Hope presented a baby five weeks old for membership to Bright Jewel Band. A collection was taken and a life membership given the babe.

Rebecca Scovar of Greenville tells a missionary story entitled, "Tell Me Everything," which was well told and greatly enjoyed.

The reports from all the auxiliaries were especially good. All were represented except five. Sharon auxiliary at Red Oak gave a splendid report for a new organization.

Miss Elizabeth Bass tells in her own words what she intends to do in the mission field for the next three years.

Mrs. Lee Johnston from Weldon talked on social service. North Carolina is stated as leader. She tells her ways and means of promotion along the lines of social service. The Divine in the personality is what we are looking for. We are working for racial integrity. Give them justice. We are urged to appoint international committees in our organizations. Mrs. Johnston has portrayed this social service work in a very instructive manner.

Mrs. Roy Wilder of Spring Hope auxiliary talked to us on country co-operation and the difficulties in organizing in the country. Mrs. Blount appointed Miss Etta Lancaster of Edgecombe chairman of country organization; Mrs. Roy Wilder, chairman of Nash county.

Mrs. LeGrand Everett talked to us on mission and Bible study. She said we must have information to create interest, and the day is coming when we will be at a loss unless we are informed. Mrs. Everett laid stress on sending in the quarterly report. She asked that we be more explicit in our report. She urges standard mission study classes.

Mrs. Wilder read the resolutions from the Washington district written by a committee composed of Mesdames W. C. Benson, R. H. Moore and J. B. Exum.

All business transacted, Mrs. S. H. Scott held consecration services, and we were dismissed by sentence prayers.

Mrs. N. B. Dozier, Pres.

Mrs. S. S. Austin, Rec. Sec.

CONFERENCE FOR LAY WORKERS

We will hold at Lake Junaluska, N. C., from August 10th to 15th, a meeting for the purpose of giving an inspiration to the lay workers of the conferences. We will have some of the most forceful teachers in every line of church work to aid. This will not be a speaking fete, but will be a school to prepare our laymen to do the work that has been committed to them.

We hope that every church, as far as it is possible, will send a representative to Junaluska in order that we may be equipped and prepared for full organization of our work in our respective charges and not wait until the announcement of a new year to project our financial and social service plans.

We believe it will pay any church to bear the expenses of a delegate to this meeting, but in practically all of our churches there are a number of men who are interested in their church and who have sufficient material wealth to enable them to go as your representative without the congregation paying their expenses.

We hope, therefore, that the brethren of the conferences will give their active support and co-operation in the effort we are making now to get a full representation of our lay workers in the respective charges to attend the Junaluska conference so that at the annual conference we may have the work sufficiently organized to cause everything to be running along smoothly at the beginning of the new year.

C. H. Ireland,

Lay Leader W. N. C. Conf.

NEW GUIDE TO BIRTH STONES

- For laundresses, the soapstone.
- For diplomats, the boundary-stone.
- For architects, the corner-stone.
- For cooks, the pudding stone
- For Bolsheviks, the bloodstone.
- For sugar dealers, the sandstone.
- For taxi drivers, the milestone.
- For grouches, the bluestone.
- For Irishmen, the Glarney stone.
- For borrowers, the touchstone.
- For pedestrians, the paving stone.
- For stock brokers, the curbstone.
- For shoemakers, the cobblestone.
- For manicurists, the pumice stone.
- For tourists, the Yellowstone.
- For geniuses, the tombstone.
- For most of us, the grindstone.

—Watchman-Examiner.

EXPERT KODAK FINISHING

Developing and printing done by experts. Most beautiful work guaranteed at all times. Satisfaction or no charge. Developing 8 exposure rolls 10 cents, 10 and 12 exposure rolls 15 cents, film packs 20 cents per pack. Printing 1 5-8x2 1-2—3 cents, 2 1-4x3 1-4—4 cents, 2 1-2x4 1-4—5 cents, 3 1-4x5 1-2—6 cents. Quick delivery. Send one film to test our service.

LIGONS DRUG STORE,
Spartanburg, S. C.

FOR SALE—THE McCLEES HOME

Adjoining Trinity College campus, containing fourteen rooms, two baths, two basements; 75 feet front on 5th street, running 200 feet to 6th street. Apply to Thos. L. McClees or Prof. F. S. Aldridge, Trinity College Station, Durham, N. C.

FOR SALE

Twenty and one-half acres of land adjoining campus, two thousand feet from Rutherford College; ten-room house conveniently arranged, in first-class condition, electric lights good basement, barn, granary, garage, smokehouse, fine well and spring. Ten acres in cultivation, four acres in pasture, remainder in timber, good apple orchard. Fifteen minutes' walk to station, 12 minutes' walk to graded school. Terms reasonable. If interested write to or call T. E. Conrad, Connelly Springs, N. C.

ALL HEALING SPRINGS

In the Brushy Mountains of N. C., 1400 feet elevation. Rates $12.50 to $17.50 per week. The place of "good eats," six miles west of Taylorsville, N. C., on State Highway No. 75, from Statesville, N. C., to Lenoir, N. C. Only 40 miles from Blowing Rock, N. C. The finest mineral water and the most ideal climate in the temperate zone. Two large comfortable buildings with or without bath. Rooms full of windows, or sleeping porches if desired. Capacity 125. The place for a real vacation. Fried chicken, country ham, the spice of life from the Brushy Mountains, with beans, potatoes and corn fresh from the farm, and milk, butter and real hen's eggs. In the mountains and at mineral spring. Hotel open June 1st. Write for particulars.

O. F. Pool, Proprietor,
Taylorsville, N. C.

THE OLE SWIMMIN' HOLE, LAKE JUNALUSKA

WOMAN'S PAGE

N. C. CONFERENCE

Mrs. J. LeGrand Everett.....Editor
Rockingham, N. C.

W. N. C. CONFERENCE

Mrs. H. K. Boyer .....Editor
Mt. Airy, N. C.

North Carolina Conference

WOMANHOOD AND THE KINGDOM

Let one of the ladies in the smallest auxiliary of our Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, one quiet soul who throws her pennies with her heart into her work, compare her work and influence to a grain of wheat, a very little thing indeed. What could one poor, insignificant grain of wheat do in a great field? It is a plump, full grain, for a little deed done from sincere love to the Saviour is a perfect work. It is sown in rich earth ready for it. The Master watches it. By and by it grows and ripens, bearing many full grains, which in their turn fall, spring up again and scatter a large crop, and in time the single grain, the influence of a single human life, has brought forth fruit a thousandfold.—Lucinda B. Helm, Lambuth-Bennett Book of Remembrance.

JULY 1ST

Do not forget that this month closes the second quarter of 1923, and that all reports should be mailed promptly. And be sure that they are full and accurate. Don't take for granted that your secretary or superintendent knows anything at all about you or your auxiliary, but answer every question asked as fully and simply as if you had never reported before, taking particular care to give the name of your auxiliary—sometimes there are several in one church, and when there are several of our churches in one town there may be a half dozen auxiliaries, when it is almost impossible to keep them separate unless they are carefully designated by district and your own full name. These may seem of little importance to you, but they are of vast importance to the one to whom you report in helping her, in turn, to send on a full and accurate report of the work of her department. No blanks are provided for reporting except those in the corresponding secretary's record and report book. The price of this book is thirty-five cents and should be ordered from Literature Headquarters, Lambuth Building, Nashville, Tenn. There are in it blanks enough for two years for the reports of the auxiliary corresponding secretary to the district secretary, and for the auxiliary superintendent of social service and study and publicity to their respective conference superintendents. If you have not one of these books be sure to order one at once.

MRS. B. W. LIPSCOMB TO VISIT THE ORIENT

Council at its session in Mobile granted a six months leave of absence to Mrs. B. W. Lipscomb to visit the Orient at her own expense, provided she is able to nominate to the executive committee of the Council a suitable person to do part-time work in her office, the remuneration for this person to be met by Mrs. Lipscomb. Mrs. Lipscomb nominated Mrs. J. W. Perry, who was elected and will supply for Mrs. Lipscomb during the six months of her absence. Mrs. Lipscomb has made reservation on the Empress of Russia of the Canadian Pacific Steamship Co. and will sail from Vancouver July 12th. The women of the North Carolina Woman's Missionary Society remember Mrs. Lipscomb with affectionate interest, and will bid her God-speed in her voyage, hoping she will have an altogether delightful trip.

A WEDDING IN OUR FAMILY

The following wedding invitation has been received by many friends: "Mrs. Leroy Lee Smith requests the honor of your presence at the marriage of her daughter, May Edla, to Mr. Charles Marion Earley, Saturday morning, the thirteenth of June, at nine o'clock, Methodist Episcopal Church, South, Gatesville, North Carolina."

For the past three years Miss Smith has been the president of the Woman's Missionary Society of the North Carolina conference, during which time and the years previous when she filled other offices, she has greatly endeared herself to the women of the auxiliaries throughout the conference, who will be glad to know that this great happiness, which is the crowning event of every good woman's life, has come to her, and all our best wishes will follow her through the years.

FAYETTEVILLE DISTRICT MEETING AT SANFORD

The societies of the Fayetteville district met in annual session in Steele Street Methodist Episcopal Church, South, Wednesday evening, June 13, at 8 o'clock, worship being led by Rev. L. B. Jones. The address of the evening was made by Miss Sallie Lou McKinnon on "New China." She held the congregation to close attention as she told of the customs and many ways of the heathen in China. But it rejoiced our hearts when she told of the great number who were now worshipping the true and living God. She had with her a young Chinese lady who is a student at Wesleyan College, Macon, Ga., who, at Miss McKinnon's request, told us something of her life in Shanghai before she became a Christian. It brought tears to the eyes of many when she told of the many things she had to combat, and the persecutions she had to suffer to become a child of God, but in spite of all she remains true to Him. When her education is finished here she is going back to China and tell her people the old, old story of Jesus and His love.

Mrs. Lee Johnson of Weldon was with us on Thursday and addressed our conference on social service, which was very instructive, giving many a better understanding of this work than they had ever previously had.

Our Missionary News was represented and many good things said about it. Subscriptions were solicited.

We had a large number of delegates. Mrs. Emma L. Hunter, our district secretary, presided in her usual genial and pleasant way. She loves the work, and her whole soul is in it. Nothing fills her heart with more joy than to see every society in her district moving onward and upward and doing something worth while. She has assisted in organizing several new societies the past year—adult, young people's and children's. The reports from the auxiliaries were good, several showing marked advancement along many lines.

Luncheon was served in the basement of the church. Carthage was chosen as the place for our next year's meeting. Mrs. B. Cole.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas, God in his infinite wisdom removed from our midst on June 4, 1923, the spirit of our beloved friend and co-worker, Mrs. Hettie Osborn Cheatham, one of the most loyal and faithful members of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Methodist church; having been president of this society up to a short time before her death, when failing health necessitated her resigning this position.

In her removal we feel most keenly the loss of her influence and friendly co-operation; therefore be it resolved:

First, That we cherish her memory in the coming year and emulate her good example.

Second, That our hearts are saddened by her passing, and that we shall miss her ever cheerful help in carrying on our work.

Third, That while we bow in humble submission to our heavenly Father's will we wish to extend our love and sympathy to her loved ones and friends.

Fourth, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the bereaved family, the North Carolina Christian Advocate, Our Missionary News, The Public Ledger and a copy be recorded in our minutes.

Mrs. J. S. Rogers,
Mrs. J. P. Floyd,
Mrs. N. H. Cannady.

GROUP MEETING AT POLLOCKSVILLE

The second group meeting of the Wilmington district was held by Mrs. T. W. Lee at Pollocksville June 12th. Mrs. Harvey Boney, corresponding secretary of the North Carolina conference, made several interesting and inspiring talks. Mrs. S. H. Scott, vice president of the N. C. conference, talked most helpfully on stewardship. Mrs. Lee Johnson, social service superintendent of the N. C. conference, made a strong appeal for social service and inter-racial work. Mrs. T. A. Hearn, a missionary from China, delivered an interesting address on China. Mrs. L. E. Sawyer of Maysville was appointed chairman of Onslow and Jones counties. Mrs. Marine of Jacksonville is assistant chairman for these counties.

The ladies of the Methodist church at Pollocksville served a most delightful luncheon to the guests. Their hospitality was greatly appreciated.

Western North Carolina Conference

MT. AIRY DISTRICT CONFERENCE

Mount Airy district conference of the Woman's Missionary Society was held at Pilot Mountain June 19-20.

The conference opened Tuesday night with District Secretary Mrs. Woltz in the chair. Rev. J. H. Capps, pastor of the M. E. church, led the devotional, Mr. L. H. Seamans of Asbury College offering prayer.

Mrs. Lucy Robertson, the president of the Woman's Missionary Conference, addressed the delegation and very ably gave us a report of the Council meeting she had attended. Only those who have heard her know how to appreciate her reports.

We were then favored with a duet by Misses Viola Patterson and Ada Gordon of the Young People's Missionary Society of Pilot Mountain.

Mrs. Newell, one of our council officers, gave us some thrilling accounts of different missionary schools and institutes in the United States and Mexico.

Wednesday morning the devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. W. L. Dawson of Summerfield.

Mrs. Woltz gave her report for the district. Some of the things we noted were:

There were no new societies for the year organized; very few new members enrolled. Elkin and Mt. Airy have worked out some very successful plans of conducting their services. Some of the needs are:

1. More consecrated women for leaders.
2. More preachers and preachers' wives in sympathy with the missionary movement.
3. More subscribers to the Missionary Voice.
4. More Bible study and mission study classes.
5. A greater world vision of the missionary field.

The following is her report of the auxiliaries:

Adult auxiliaries 12, young people 5, children 4, baby 2, membership 485. Total amount sent to conference treasurer $2311.04; local work $1010.15; supplies sent and reported $269.65; total $3590.24.

Mrs. Woltz then had a heart to to heart talk in which she stressed the needs of the society financially, socially and spiritually.

Reports from the societies of Elkin, Boonville, Madison, Pine Hall, Summerfield, Pilot Mountain, Dobson, Walnut Cove and Mt. Airy were given. Some improvements over last year were noticed, and the weakest points of each society were noted. It seemed a conclusion that the weakest point of every society was the lack of consecration.

Mrs. Morris gave a report of the annual conference held at Monroe.

Mrs. Newell told us about the doubling campaign and how we might make it applicable to any society.

At this point we were favored with a solo by L. H. Seamans of Asbury College, a student volunteer for India. He sang from the depths of his heart and we hope that he influenced others to think more seriously of this high calling.

The junior missionary society gave us a demonstration, "A Missionary Clinic," illustrating the need of the real missionary spirit.

Open discussion was held as to the organization of new societies and re-functioning old ones.

We then adjourned to partake of a sumptuous dinner on the grounds, prepared by the ladies of the Pilot Mountain society and friends. The repast was one to be remembered for some time.

The afternoon session was opened by Mrs. Woltz and were led in prayer by Mr. Seamans.

Mrs. Robertson gave us an account of the Belle H. Bennett Scarritt Bible School Memorial Fund. She told us how Miss Bennett started from the bottom and gradually rose from conference president to Council president, and in her own way Mrs. Robertson told us how Miss Bennett felt the yearning for a school like Scarritt and how she prayed and worked until she succeeded in bringing to pass the foundation of Scarritt. She then showed us the necessity of the Greater Scarritt Movement, to train and prepare teachers and preachers to carry on the work of the church.

Mrs. Rachel Worth was introduced and gave an interesting talk on her experience as a tither, and what it had meant to her.

The young people's missionary society presented a play, "Aunt Tillie Learns to Tithe," demonstrating the need of tithing and the advantages.

After this Miss Howe, a native Chinese girl, told us of her experiences in her land and of her school experiences here in America. She very touchingly declared that they were awakening and wanted to bring great changes in their country.

Miss Madge Sills of Winston-Salem, who has traveled around the world and had opportunities of teaching for some of our missionaries on their furlough, gave us a very interesting report of the spirit in China, Japan, India, Korea and other countries, telling us of natives who gave their life for the cause of Christ.

Mrs. Woltz then took up the pledges of the district and $2035 was subscribed from the delegates present, and quite a few of the societies have not as yet reported. We are hoping to make it at least $2500.

The honor roll was stressed and each society urged to get on the honor roll.

Mrs. Newell gave a glimpse of social service and told us many ways we might make our social work lighter and more effective.

Plans for Week of Prayer and Harvest Day were discussed.

The following report from the committee on resolutions was submitted:

The committee on resolutions sub-

(Continued on page thirteen.)

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORK

N. C. CONFERENCE

L. L. Gobbel .....Editor
Durham, N. C.

W. N. C. CONFERENCE

O. V. Woosley .....Editor
Lexington, N. C.

Western North Carolina Conference

FIFTH ANNUAL FEDERATION OF WESLEY BIBLE CLASSES

Western North Carolina Conference
M. E. Church, South, Lake Junaluska, N. C., July 9, 10, 11
Program

Monday Evening, July 9

Mr. J. B. Ivey, presiding. Mrs. E. O. Chandley, timekeeper.
8:00—Worship in song, led by Mr. Andrew Hemphill.
8:10—Devotional service, led by Rev. W. A. Jenkins.
8:25—Reading of Federation Minutes, Mrs. E. O. Chandley.
8:30—Duet, Mr. and Mrs. J. Dale Stentz.
8:35—Greetings by Federation officers.
8:50—Selection by the Junaluska Quartet.
8:55—Address, Hon. Clyde R. Hoey.
9:35—Getting acquainted.

Tuesday Morning, July 10

Mr. W. B. Love, presiding. Mrs. J. B. Ivey, timekeeper.
9:00—Worship service, led by Rev. H. C. Sprinkle.
9:20—Special music, by various quartets.
9:40—Why Have a Federation? Mr. J. M. Todd.
10:00—The Value of a Good Class Organization, Mr. Dorman Thompson.
10:20—Discussion.
10:40—Special music.
10:55—Securing Attendance, Mr. J. Wilson Smith.
11:15—Discussion.
11:35—The Teacher of the Adult Class, Rev. W. A. Jenkins.
12:05—Discussion.
12:25—Announcements, posting class exhibits.
12:30—Picture of the Federation.
Morning program featured by volunteer male quartets.

Tuesday Afternoon, July 10

Sightseeing mountain climbing, bathing, boating, fishing, games and frolic.

Tuesday Evening, July 10

Mr. George L. Hackney, presiding. Mrs. A. N. Perkins, timekeeper.
8:00—Worship in song, led by Mr. Andrew Hemphill.
8:10—Devotional service, led by Rev. L. B. Hayes.
8:25—Play, Stuck-in-the-Road Sunday School, Asheville Young Ladies.
8:45—Address, Dr. Ashley Chappell.
9:25—Selection by the Junaluska Quartet.
9:30—Boat ride.

Wednesday Morning, July 11

Mr. A. M. West, presiding. Mrs. B. N. Mann, timekeeper.
9:00—Worship service, led by Rev. G. R. Jordan.
9:20—Special music.
9:30—Spicy one-minute verbal reports.
10:00—Class Activities, Miss Lucy Foreman.
10:30—Discussion.
10:50—Class Standards, Rev. W. C. Owen.
11:20—Discussion.
11:40—Special music.
11:50—Address, Little Jetts Telling Bible Stories, Dr. Wade C. Smith.
12:20—Report of Findings Committee.
12:30—Business session.
Music will feature the morning program.

Wednesday Afternoon, July 11
Same as afternoon before, except that there should be more of it.

Wednesday Evening, July 11

Mr. H. R. Dwire, presiding. Miss Virginia Jenkins, timekeeper.
8:00—Worship in song, led by Mr. Andrew Hemphill.
8:15—Devotional service, led by Rev. W. A. Lambeth.
8:30—Special music, Junaluska Quartet.
8:40—Address, Dr. Wade C. Smith.
9:20—Awarding of banners.
9:40—Adjournment.

Purpose of the Federation

To Widen Your Horizon,
Deepen Your Convictions,
Enlarge Your Sympathies,
Enrich Your Spiritual Life,
Fit You For Larger Service.

Who Ought to Attend

Presiding elders, pastors, Sunday school superintendents, teachers, Wesley Bible class officers, class members.

Rates

All persons holding identification certificates can secure from their ticket agent round trip ticket to Lake Junaluska for one and one-half rate. Get certificates from J. Dale Stentz, Lake Junaluska, N. C., or from O. V. Woosley, Lexington, N. C. Tickets good till October 1.

Room and board will be obtained at following special Federation prices:

Lakeside Lodge, Cherokee Inn, Epworth Lodge, Providence, $2.00 the day. Colonial Hotel, Coman Cottage, $2.50 the day. Terrace Hotel, two to room, $3.00 the day.

Entrance to Assembly Grounds for three days $1.00.

THANK YOU

We are very grateful to the following fine recruits to our Sunday School Day Honor Roll as given by Treasurer H. A. Dunham, Asheville, N. C.:

Main St., Belmont	$11.00
Bethlehem, Morganton Ct.	2.00
First Church, Lincolnton	25.00
New Hope, Broad River Ct.	1.51
Central, Shelby	75.00
Pisgah, Hiddenite Ct.	6:30
Park Ave., Salisbury	8.34
Advance, Advance Ct.	2.19
Fulton, Advance Ct.	1.00
Green St., Winston-Salem	6.25
Central, Davie Ct.	4.00
Rehobeth, Pleasant Garden Ct.	9.53
Jonas Ridge, Avery Ct.	2.50
Saluda	6.00
Siloam, Denton Ct.	2.25
Dellwood, Waynesville Ct.	12.50
Norwood	15.00

North Carolina Conference

WORK IN BLADEN COUNTY

In keeping with Presiding Elder Willis' purpose to emphasize Sunday school work at all of his third quarterly conferences and with our desire to be of the greatest possible service to all our schools, we found ourselves straight from the Trinity Summer School for Preachers into the heart of Bladen county. Spending Friday night, June 15, in Fayetteville with Presiding Elder Willis, we left early Saturday morning, after a short conference with Rev. H. A. Humble, over the highways of Cumberland and Bladen counties for Center church, Bladen circuit, near White Oak. At this conference special attention was given to the reports of the Sunday school superintendents, after which your conference superintendent made a Sunday school talk. In the afternoon, following the routine business of the conference, we turned our attention again to the Sunday schools and considered, in detail, the standard program of work for Sunday schools of the one-room type. Three of the schools, Center, Bethlehem and Live Oak, superintended by Messrs. J. R. Owen, R. A. Burney, and L. M. Edge, respectively, adopted the program and will work toward the standard set out in it. Rev. G. H. Biggs, the pastor, was present and took part in the discussions.

MORE WORK IN BLADEN

Spending Saturday night with the elder at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. McA. Council, we arose Sunday morning facing three engagements across the Cape Fear on the Elizabeth circuit. And before we could fill them the river had to be crossed, and there was no bridge—and, for a while, it looked as if there would be no boat. We were to "gather at the river" at 10 o'clock, and, thanks again to the elder's indispensable Ford, we succeeded in "gathering," over winding trails and through fields and meadows. At the river the elder and the writer parted company, the elder to continue work on the Bladen charge, the writer to talk Sunday schools at Purdeis, Wesley Chapel and Elizabethtown. We were met on the other side of the river by Rev. H. E. Lance, the pastor, and some of his people, and we went the round together—Purdeis at 11 o'clock, Wesley Chapel at 3 o'clock, and Elizabethtown at 8 o'clock. We found no large schools, but we did find a lively interest and a desire to improve.

OUR FAYETTEVILLE SCHOOL

While in Fayetteville we conferred with Rev. H. A. Humble, chairman of the board of managers of our Fayetteville Standard Training School, to be held in Hay Street church October 7-13. We held such a school there last October for the eastern half of the Fayetteville district, with splendid success, and we are expecting the one this fall to be even more successful.

A GOOD DISTRICT PROGRAM

Running true to form, Rev. J. H. Shore, presiding elder of the Rockingham district, gave an abundance of time to the interests of the Sunday school at the district conference at Aberdeen last Wednesday and Thursday, and the conference adopted a program looking to even greater progress in the Sunday schools of the district. The Rockingham district has made steady progress in recent years and has no notion of retrenchment. Some of the things to which the district committed itself, recommended by the Sunday school committee and discussed by Rev. J. A. Martin, chairman, Rev. J. H. Frizelle, secretary, and the writer, are:

(1) The adoption of the Standard Program of Work, with the request that every school secure the program and work toward the standard set forth in it.

(2) The holding of circuit institutes on circuits quarterly.

(3) Special attention to leadership training through training classes, non-standard training schools, the district standard training school at Maxton August 6-11, the great Junaluska training school, which begins July 12, and through correspondence.

(4) Every pastor taking for credit at least one of the standard training course units, or reading one of the books in the course.

(5) The election of Prof. Ernest J. Greene of Maxton as district Sunday school secretary, and Mrs. E. B. Ward of Rowland as district elementary superintendent.

All of these items were carefully considered and unanimously adopted. Special emphasis was given the big district school to be held at Maxton, and Presiding Elder Shore set 300 as the number of pastors, superintendents, other officers, teachers and prospective workers who should attend.

WEST FAYETTEVILLE SCHOOL

From Aberdeen we went Thursday afternoon to Jonesboro, where plans were perfected for a standard training school for the Sunday schools of the western half of the Fayetteville district. The decision to hold at Jonesboro such a school was made by the district conference in session at Sanford March 15, and the date was fixed as the week of October 14-9. The meeting at Jonesboro, attended by various leaders of the western half of the district, was for the purpose of selecting a board of managers and various committees and going into certain promotion details. Through this training school and the one at Fayetteville it is hoped to serve every school in the district.

LET'S GO TO JUNALUSKA!

The first term of the Junaluska Training School will be held July 12-26, and we are sure quite a number of our people will attend. We are eager, however, that great numbers take advantage of this great opportunity. We do not think we can go there in multitudes, but we should like to see every Sunday school, or all who can, send at least one representative. Courses in every department of Sunday school work will be given—Beginner, Primary, Junior, Intermediate, Senior, Young People, Adult, Administrative, and special. For the first time a course for directors of religious education will be offered. There will be something worth while for everybody—and the trip! Let's go to Junaluska!

If it's inconvenient to go July 12-26, there will be two other terms: July 17-August 9, and August 10-24.

STRAITS CHARGE

I'm writing to correct a mistake made in last week's paper concerning the Ladies' Aid Society of Summerfield church. It is my own dear brother, Robert B. Whitehurst, who promised to double all we can raise for the purpose of buying a new organ for the church. Carrie Whitehurst.

CHILDREN'S DAY AT WEST BEND

The West Bend Sunday school had their Children's Day exercises the third Sunday in June. The children did their parts well, and it was an inspiration to hear them sing. The talks by the pastor and Mr. J. Trogdon were very much enjoyed by all. After the exercises dinner was served on the ground and pictures made of the Sunday school.

The writer felt like saying, "Backward, turn backward, oh Time, on your way; make me a child again just for today." X.

COOL SPRINGS CHARGE

We are glad to report the progress of our Ladies' Aid Society at Clarksburg church since last September.

Under the guidance of our kind pastor, Rev. J. E. McSwain, and with the help and co-operation of our good people, we have in different ways raised about $105.

Since putting cement steps to the church we have carpeted the aisles, oiled the floor, bought new shades for some of the windows and installed gas lights (one a chandelier), which furnish a beautiful bright white light as good as electric light. We now also have a committee of five of our girl members soliciting funds to get new seats for our church who already have $200 promised. We hope to be able to put them in before winter, and hope to have our pastor back next year.

It is the earnest desire of our president and other members not only to be helpful in a monetary way, but to be the means of greater spiritual uplift in the church and community and promote efficiency in church work, acquire a knowledge of the needs of the church and parsonage, which in rural districts is more or less necessary, and withal backed by a desire to do something for our Master. We greatly appreciate the help we have had from outsiders and hope many others will join in and help us in the good work. We have twenty-five members at this writing. A Member.

EPWORTH LEAGUE WORK

Lee Davis, Raleigh, N. C.
Rev. J. F. Armstrong, Concord, N. C.

North Carolina Conference

A GREAT LEAGUE ASSEMBLY AT MOREHEAD CITY

Prayer, work, play and pep were the elements of the N. C. Epworth League Assembly at Morehead City last week, June 18-23, which formed the happy combination resulting in the greatest assembly yet. There was more work done, more inspiration broadcasted and more fun had by everybody than any league assembly heretofore held.

The total attendance of the assembly numbered nearly 300. The assembly was held at the Atlantic Hotel, Morehead City. Besides the regular classes which were given in Bible study and mission study and league methods, the young people heard two inspirational lectures each day, one in the morning and one at night. The addresses were for the most part given by Dr. Dan B. Brummitt of Chicago, and Dr. Ivan L. Holt of St. Louis. All the addresses were interesting, forceful and effective. Dr. Brummitt's unusual manner and witty sayings and illustrations made his lectures very impressive. Dr. Holt's lectures were also intensely inspiring to the leaguers. Both men soon won their way to the hearts of the young folks by their cordial and winsome way of associating with the leaguers.

An outstanding feature of the assembly was the ability of all, instructors and delegates, to work together while at work and play together while at play. Some social events of the assembly were boat trips to the beach and other places of interest. Especially attractive to the young people were moonlight strolls on the docks and waterfronts and moonlight boat-rides.

The schedule for each day began with a prayer meeting at 7:30 a. m. and ended by a happy goodnight at 11 p. m. All people of a nervous temperament are warned not to spend any time at the Atlantic Hotel during the week of the Epworth League Assembly at Morehead City, because the noise resulting from the yells and songs of the different districts as they were grouped in the dining room would drive a person of such a state of mind insane, so great was the vim and vigor of the leaguers assembled there. But let not the leaguers over the state get the impression that there was only play at the assembly. There was more genuine work done than ever before, and since the leaguers worked at the appointed time, they played more heartily when the time to play came.

The place of meeting of the assembly next year has not been decided as yet. That matter was left to the discretion of the board and will be announced later. The assembly expressed itself very favorably as desiring a whole-time executive secretary. One is expected to be appointed some time in the near future.

It was interesting to note the continued increase in the missionary pledges to the African special, and also the increase in the activity of the leaguers of the conference. The young people are showing themselves to be more and more Christian and eager to serve humanity. They are broadening and growing. We all hope for a greater and larger assembly next year. Let's all do our part during the year to make the leagues bigger and better. All together now for the league motto: "All for Christ."

LEAGUERS SEND NEWS TO LEE

Every league chapter is asked and urged to send news of itself for this page to that fellow, Lee Davis, Jr., Raleigh, N. C.

AS REPORTED BY LEE DAVIS

At the business meeting of the Epworth League Assembly Thursday night Rev. Thos. R. Grant, of Hertford, was elected president of the conference by a unanimous vote. Mr. Grant has been an active leader among the young people for a long time and his election met with warm approval.

The other officers elected by the assembly for the coming year were: Vice president, W. Z. Corbett of Wilmington; secretary, Miss Fannie Vann, Clinton; treasurer, C. Gehrman Cobb, Goldsboro; intermediate superintendent, Miss Edna Wilkins, Wilmington; junior superintendent, Miss Hazel Thompson, Roxboro; life service superintendent, Rev. J. M. Ormond, Trinity College, Durham; editor League Page in Advocate, Lee Davis, Raleigh.

The assembly gave Rev. F. S. Love, the retiring president, a rising vote of thanks and appreciation for the efficient work he has done for the leaguers during the last six years he has served as leader of the young people.

The stunts given by the different league districts afforded the crowd many laughs. The Rockingham district got the decision of the judges. The Raleigh district's presentation of Mrs. Gallagher and Mrs. Shean took second place.

"Building Gates."

Thirteen leaguers presented themselves for whole time Christian service of some kind as a life work. This closing meeting was a most impressive meeting. The whole assembly consecrated itself to a better life.

The assembly closed with an inspirational address by Dr. Ivan L. Holt. Special emphasis was laid on life service work for the young people. Dr. Holt made a strong appeal to the leaguers to answer the call to Christian service because of the great opportunity of noble service and the great need for laborers in the Christian field.

At the morning platform session Dr. Holt lectured on "Finding the Gates." He exhorted the young folks in an inspiring and effective manner to be ready for the opportunities that come their way. The young men and women who want to serve must be willing first, then they must be prepared to step in when the gates are opened to them. They must not be led aside by petty grievances and discouragements; they must see with the Christian's eye and feel with the Christ-like sympathy.

The league's policy committee advocated the appointment of a whole time executive secretary and it is hoped for in the near future.

LEAGUE ASSEMBLY ENDORSES DRAMATIC DEBATE

At the Epworth League Assembly in Morehead City last week the leaguers went on record as indorsing and enthusiastically supporting the work of two very active young men, members of the league, who are engaged in making a campaign for law enforcement over the state during the summer. These men are R. L. Davis, Jr., and W. A. Kale. They have arranged and prepared a dramatic debate on the query, "Anarchy or Patriotism—Which Shall Reign?" This debate is to be given in many towns and cities in this state. Already appointments have been made which cover a large portion of eastern North Carolina. This action of the assembly shows very clearly the spirit of the leaguers of the state—that they are intensely interested in the important questions of the day and that they are proving themselves to be loyal Christian citizens. May the prayers of all the leaguers go with these young men as they go into this great work.

Any leaguers, or other young people, who desire this debate to be given in their church should write to one of these men in care of the N. C. Anti-

Saloon League, Raleigh, N. C. The following resolution was passed by the Morehead Assembly:

Whereas, R. L. Davis, Jr., who has just graduated from Trinity College, and Rev. W. A. Kale, a student of Trinity College, have arranged to put on a dramatic debate this summer for the purpose of aiding the cause of obedience to law, with special reference to the enforcement of the Turlington Act and the Eighteenth Amendment; and whereas, we believe that the Epworth Leagues will add to their strength and usefulness by aiding this cause of Christian endeavor;

Therefore be it resolved, that this assembly gives its endorsement to this movement initiated by our active Epworth Leaguers and urges the leagues throughout the state to give their support to it and thus help to make this endeavor a success.

W. N. Vaughan,
C. Gehrman Cobb,
W. A. Cade,
H. I. Glass.

Western North Carolina Conference

W. N. C. LEAGUE CONFERENCE HELD IN CHARLOTTE

Five Hundred Fourteen Delegates Register—Meets in Greensboro Next Year.

Miss Sarah Green, graduate of Columbia University and instructor at Salem College, led the class in First Department Methods. Miss Emily Mathis, graduate of Trinity College and volunteer for Africa, conducted the Social Service class. The Third Department discussion was very successfully led by Mrs. W. W. Edwards, the "boss" of our "boss!" The Fourth Department leader, Miss Ruth Anthony, proved that youth is no handicap to an instructor at a league conference. Miss Henrietta Logan, pastor's assistant at Spencer Memorial, was in charge of the class of Junior Superintendents. Miss Gertrude Falls, who will soon win the degree of M. R. S., was the efficient leader of the Intermediate class.

Classes in personal work were conducted by Rev. J. R. Walker, Rev. J. F. Armstrong, Rev. G. T. Bond, Rev. L. B. Hayes, and Mrs. V. R. Patterson. Dr. Trumble's book, "Taking Men Alive," was the text used. "The Choice of a Career," by Evans and Brown, was taken by Rev. L. A. Falls, Rev. L. D. Thompson, Rev. E. P. Billups, Miss Cammen Blessing, Miss Sarah Green and Miss Gertrude Falls. Miss Blessing is our own missionary. She is dean of women at Paine College and is doing a great work among the negro young people.

Christian Culture Certificates.

The fact that 218 delegates did credit work proves that this conference will mean something in the renewed life of many chapters throughout the conference. Even those who did not get a certificate were drawn closer to our great Leader if they attended the testimony meeting each day. If you think the young people of today have all gone to the bow-wows, you should have heard the scores of earnest Epworthians declare their love and loyalty to God. Several young men were among the first to testify and to ask the prayers of those present that they might find their life work during the conference. The crowded altar on consecration night showed that many had heard God's call and were ready to answer.

Charlotte Presents Pageant.

Miss Snow Davis, third superintendent of the Charlotte Union, presented the beautiful pageant, "God's Flower Land."

On Wednesday evening stunts were put on by the various districts. They were all good, but Miss Sallie Crarroll led the Winston district in a Deestrick Skule which won the prize.

(Continued on page fifteen)

SORES BOILS, CUTS and BURNS have been healed since 1820 with
Gray's Ointment
Sold by all druggists. Write for sample to W. F. Gray & Co., 710 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

JAMES M. McMICHAEL
CHURCH ARCHITECT
Charlotte, N. C.

BARGAINS IN SONG BOOKS
Why pay a big price for song books for your church when you can get them from us for almost nothing? Our books, "Living Songs of Truth," "Song Revivals," "The Victor" and others that contain more than 175 songs each are now offered for sale at 15 cents per copy, $5 for fifty. These books are for use in church and other religious services. They have a fine collection of old and new songs. Formerly sold for 35 cents per copy. Order from The Hartford Music Company,
Hartford, Ark.

EPWORTH LODGE LAKE JUNALUSKA
Managed by Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Aldridge.
Write for prices and reservations.
Good eating—a specialty.

Itching Skin?
Soothe the irritation, reduce the inflammation and stop the skin trouble with
TETTERINE
The itching's best friend
50c at your druggist or from the SHUPTRINE CO., SAVANNAH, GA.

School Desks, Opera Chairs, Folding Chairs, Kindergarten Chairs, Church Pews, School Supplies, Blackboards

Southern Desk Co., Hickory, N. C.

OXFORD COLLEGE
OXFORD, N. C.
Founded 1850
Oxford College offers:
1. A Preparatory Course of four years, accredited.
2. A Junior College Course of two years, based on fifteen units of High School work. This course prepares for the efficient discharge of the duties of life and for entrance into the Junior Class of the Senior Colleges.
3. A Teachers Course of one year, based on fifteen units. This entitles to Elementary Teachers' Certificate, Class "A."
4. Vocational courses—Home Economics, Commercial, Fine Arts, Pedagogy, Expression, Music.
Apply for catalogue.
F. P. HOBGOOD

PRACTICAL WISDOM

Practical training in bookkeeping, shorthand, typewriting, banking, accounting and penmanship in the Greensboro Commercial School, Greensboro, N. C., will assure you of a well paying position. Students are enrolling weekly. Write for Catalog.

OUR ORPHANAGE WORK

METHODIST ORPHANAGE

RALEIGH, N. C.

Hon. R. N. Page ..... President
A. S. Barnes ..... Superintendent
Mrs. Mattie Jenkins ..... Matron
Owned and maintained by the North Carolina Conference.

FORM OF BEQUEST

I do hereby will and bequeath to The Methodist Orphanage, Raleigh, N. C., contemplated by the charter under the Act of the General Assembly of North Carolina (here designate the bequest) .....

THE CHILDREN'S HOME

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C.

Rev. C. A. Wood ..... Superintendent

THE CHILDREN'S HOME

Commencement is over, and everyone seems to be feeling a little sad and dull this morning after telling the teachers and visiting friends goodbye. After the busy whirl of examinations and practice for the play and graduating night program, the lull that follows leaves a vacant feeling for a moment while we pause on the threshold of new duties, to take a backward look that brings a tragic realization that friends depart and opportunities pass.

The children here like the school time of the year. It is a season of more varied interests—and shorter work periods. And in our little community the teachers add much to the pleasure of the home family life. The more friendly, interested wise grown-ups we have to associate with the stronger our mental and moral growth and the happier our work and play.

But of course teachers need vacations. Perhaps some day we can afford to employ the vacation and vocational teachers that will give us a teaching program throughout all the months of the year.

Just now the superintendent is wondering where the money is coming from for the fence wire that unloaded on the siding some days ago.

Wouldn't it be a pity if those with money to leave orphan children in institutional homes, could devise some way to pass the money without the usual lawsuit that covetous relatives manage to attract?

And if there was a new kind of calendar that had a fifth Sunday every month, and a sure arrangement for keeping the fifth Sunday contribution and the ten per cent assessment money to a friendly relationship only—and not wedded so often to become one and the same?

Our superintendent at least could sleep better and not see in his troubled dreams the dollar deficiency always chasing around at the heels of necessities and needed improvements.

"Charles," said the other day, "we surely ought to have a canning outfit before the beans and tomatoes get ripe." We have plenty of garden land to raise all the beans and tomatoes we could use summer and winter.

"Yes," he replied, "we should."
"What would one cost?" I wanted to know.

"Well," said he, "I have some prices that show I can get a canning outfit, hotel-size, for $125 or a little less, from a firm in Hickory."

We pay that much for canned tomatoes for winter supply, and it seems sensible to can our own supply. But it is one of the unreasonable features of economics that the poor who most need to save do not always have sufficient capital ahead to take advantage of the cheapest process.

Once I dropped in to see a neighbor who was busy doing her week's darning. I noticed that she had darned enormous darns in the heels of a pile of cheap socks. I said to her that it did not pay to spend hours darning holes in ten-cent socks.

"No," said she with a quiskal look at me out of her eyes, "but we women have to do a lot of work that doesn't pay."

Perhaps so, but I thought to myself that a little less smoothness to those darns might possibly expedite the purchase of new socks.

We have a darning machine at The Home that works faster than fingers, and I am hoping that some way or other that canning outfit will be acquired in time to use in canning the vegetables. Canning in the kitchen is an awfully hot and sweating process.

* * * *

Commencement this year had several things to make it a notable one to The Home. It was the first time the school had an auditorium suitable and convenient for practice and public entertainment, and we rejoiced in it after our outdoor makeshifts and dining room inconveniences.

But the most interesting new features to the young people was that the school had two graduates—the first to complete the high school work. When they stood up in their pretty white dresses to receive their diplomas it seemed a lovely prophecy of the larger opportunities for the children who should come up through faithful work to stand as these were standing, visible fruits of the wisdom and generous love that established a Children's Home, providing not only shelter and sustenance but also opportunities of training and education.

Rosinal and Blanche received many nice gifts from their friends as tokens of loving regard and congratulations. And the best is yet to be. Kind friends have agreed to make possible for both a college education. Rosinell has reservations at Greensboro College and Blanche at Davenport.

Commencement included two nights—a play which was remarkably well rendered, for amateurs, Thursday night, and the commencement exercises Friday night.

Dr. J. H. Barnhardt, pastor of West Market Street, Greensboro, delivered the address. His subject was the importance of making life worth while, and he spoke in such a bright and forceful and entertaining way that the smallest could understand and none of us could forget.

The superintendent spoke a few words of the plans and ideals and hopes of the institution.

The presentations of the diplomas to the graduates was by Mr. Robert Bradshaw, principal of the school.

Some sweet songs by the children and a charming drill, or folk dance, as it was down on the program, made up the rest of the evening's entertainment.

Martha Mann Wood.

THE METHODIST ORPHANAGE

Read what Dr. W. A. Withers, dean of State College, has to say about the sacred concert we gave on Sunday night and the play on Monday night:

* * * *

You and your associates and pupils have placed our school under very great obligation to you for the splendid concert which you gave us, and for the play so skillfully presented. If it is rated by the size of the crowd and the attendance on Monday, you have ample evidence of this, but still I wanted to write to you personally.

W. A. Withers.

* * * *

Last week the annual meeting of the board of trustees was held at the Methodist Orphanage. All the members were present but four and two of them were in distant states. In many respects it was the best meeting we have had in several years. The building program which was outlined a year ago is to go into immediate effect. This enlarged program will make room for at least one hundred more children. We shall have to go before the churches for financial aid in order to carry out the proposed plan. We have part of the money in hand, but not a sufficient amount to put the program across. The conference will gladly supply the balance needed. Let us all unite in one supreme effort and carry out this building program as early as possible.

THIRTEEN MILLION DOLLARS IN CHURCH VALUES

The value of property belonging to the Methodist Church in North Carolina exceeds $13,000,000. On this vast amount of property there is only $3,000,000 of insurance—less than one-fourth of its value protected.

Suppose you had stock in a furniture factory one-fourth protected from fire, what would you do? You would either sell, or hold the directors responsible.

See that your church officials protect your most valuable assets or you may be called upon to donate again to rebuild a church parsonage destroyed by fire.

Insure in The Methodist Mutual—owned and controlled by the two North Carolina Conferences.

W. E. WEBB, Secretary
STATESVILLE, N. C.

NORTH CAROLINA STATE COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE AND ENGINEERING

STATE COLLEGE STATION RALEIGH, N. C.

Technical Education at State College prepares its graduates for personal success and for leadership in industrial progress. The college offers

FOUR YEAR COURSES IN:

Agriculture—including General Agriculture and Specialized Courses in Farm Crops, Agricultural Engineering, Animal Husbandry and Dairying, Biology, Horticulture, Poultry Science, Soils, Veterinary Medicine, Vocational Education.
Chemistry, Agricultural Chemistry, Textile Chemistry and Dyeing.
Civil Engineering, Architecture and Highway Engineering.
Electrical Engineering.
Mechanical Engineering.
Textile—Textile Engineering, Textile Manufacturing, Textile Chemistry and Dyeing.
Agricultural Economics, Business Administration, Rural Life.
General Science, Physics, Biology.

TWO YEAR COURSES IN:

Agriculture, Mechanic Arts, Textile Manufacturing.

One Year Course in Auto Mechanics.

Winter Course in Agriculture for Farmers.

Summer Session for Teachers, for College Entrance and for College Credit.

Excellent equipment in all departments.

Session 1923-1924 begins September 4.

Entrance requirements for Freshman Class, 15 units—English, 3; History, 2;

Mathematics, 2½; Science, 1; Elective, 6½.

For catalog, illustrated circulars, and entrance blanks, write E. B. OWEN, Registrar.

Dear Readers:

I am glad of an opportunity to express through the Advocate my appreciation of the home in which I have had the privilege of living for the past twelve years.

As I now stand on the verge of manhood and take a retrospective view of the years spent at the Orphanage my heart fills with gratitude to the church for making such a home possible, and to Mr. Barnes and his co-workers for the care, the training and the love that I have received. Now as I go out into the busy world to find my place I shall ever feel that you are interested in me and I trust that my career may be such that it may never reflect anything but credit on the Methodist Orphanage.

Very truly, John Wortham.

* * * *

Dear Friends:

It is my sincere desire to thank you who have had any part at all in my training, for the many opportunities and privileges which you have made possible for me during the past five years. I wish to thank the people at large for the maintenance which they have rendered and the faculty for their steady building of my character since I came to the Methodist Orphanage. My sincere hope is that I may be able to live the life which has been taught by the officers, not only because I wish to do it, but also because it is my duty to uphold the good name of the Orphanage. Then I wish to thank my fellow brothers and sisters with whom I have lived all these years for the fellowship I have enjoyed with them, especially in the Epworth League and the Rose Literary Society in which I have served as an officer for the past year. Last but far from least I wish to thank Mr. Barnes and Mrs. Jenkins for the fatherly and motherly love throughout all the years of my stay here. If I carry the doctrines and truths which these and all have always held before me through life, I will never stray from the straight and narrow path.

I am sincerely,
Ralph Newton Thomas.

* * * *

Dear Friends:

It is with a sad heart I leave the home I have loved for nearly eleven years. My twin sister and I came to the home at the early age of seven. During these years we have learned to appreciate more and more the many blessings which have been bestowed upon us.

To "Miss Mattie" I wish to express my deepest gratitude for her motherly care she has shown me while here, and also to Mr. Barnes who has been a loving father to me. And I want also to express my gratitude to my teachers, Miss Gray and Miss MacDonald, who have labored so faithfully with me in my school and who have also helped me to keep in the narrow path, which shall help me some day to win a more wonderful prize than my diploma. And the years I have spent with Miss Mary Ferree have been an inspiration to me, and the memory of her shall always be with me in my hardest struggles, and I shall pause and think of her beautiful advice and help she gave me while in this beautiful home.

I shall never forget Miss Laura Breeze for her careful and tender service to me when ill, and Mrs. R. A. Burt, whose life has inspired me to higher aspirations and made me see only the beautiful things of life, and also my cottage matron, Miss Foster.

Last but not least I wish to thank Mr. B. W. O'Neal's Sunday school class of Oriental. During the last few years of my stay here it has been the greatest pleasure of my life to open a large box of beautiful clothes each season from this generous class of girls.

Again I wish to thank all interested in my spiritual welfare, and shall try to show my appreciation by living a true Christian life.

Sincerely,

Minnie Lee Swann.

Clean drinking water is essential for all livestock. Foul water is a good place to pick up disease.

America has always preferred to take her great men from the soil. Rarely has she bestowed her choice on those nourished where city pavements separate them from the mother of us all.—Calvin Coolidge.

Our Little Folks

SLIGHTLY MUDDLED

'Twas midnight on the ocean,
Not a street car was in sight;
The sun was shining brightly,
And it rained all day that night.

'Twas evening and the setting sun
Was rising in the west;
The little fishes in the trees
Were huddling in their nests.

'Twas a summer day in winter,
The snow was raining fast;
A barefoot boy with shoes on Stood sitting on the grass.

While the organ peeled potatoes
Lard was rendered by the choir,
While the sexton rang the dishrag
Someone set the church on fire.

"Holy smoke!" the preacher shouted;
And in the rain he lost his hair.
Now his head resembles heaven,
For there is no parting there.

—Selected.

THE LEAST LITTLE BADGER'S RIDE

When the Least Little Badger fell out of the back end of the cart the trouble began; that is, it began soon afterwards, but the fall was really the cause of it. The Least Little Badger was so sound asleep that he didn't know he was falling. He didn't even know when he struck the ground.

The four other Little Badgers who stayed in the cart were all asleep too; and Bettie Badger, their mother, who was drawing the little cart behind her by a rope of wild grapevine, didn't know until she reached home that one of her children was missing.

She had hurried to make up for lost time, for she had stopped to help Rabbit Longears out of a snare through which he had foolishly put his head. She had not wished to stop, for her errands had taken longer than she had planned, and the porridge was yet to be cooked for the children's supper; but no one with any kindness of heart would leave a poor rabbit caught fast in a snare.

As she lifted the Little Badgers out of the cart she counted them.

"One, that's Sniffy. Two, that's Tippy-toe. Three, Flippy. Four, Floppy. Why, that can't be all. Where is my tiny Wee-wee?"

She shook every one of them until they were awake. "What have you done with Wee-wee?" she asked.

But they only set up a dismal wail. They knew nothing of Wee-wee; they were only half awake; they wanted their supper, and they wanted to go to bed.

So Bettie Badger hurriedly fed them—though there was no hot porridge—popped them quickly into their little beds and started out to find the Least Little Badger.

"I came home by way of the white birch tree, the big rock and the little brook," Bettie remembered. "I shall be sure to find my Wee-wee somewhere along the road." But when Bettie Badger came to the white birch tree the Least Little Badger was nowhere in sight. But waddling along the little forest path came Prickly Porcupine.

"Have you seen my tiny, lost Wee-wee?" asked Bettie Badger.

"No," answered Prickly Porcupine. "You should take better care of your children."

Poor Bettie hurried on. But she was half blinded with tears. She missed her way and wandered far from the big rock and the little brook. Twilight came to the forest, and after that the moon rose, large and beautiful. Then Bettie came upon Wise Eyes, the owl.

"Have you seen my baby?" asked Bettie.

"Who? Whoo-oo?" asked Wise Eyes in his hoarse voice.

"My tiny Wee-wee" answered Bettie tearfully. "He is lost."

She cried so loud that she waked Billy Bluejay; his white and black feathers shone in the moonlight.

"Your Wee-wee lost?" he asked.

"Oh, yes, have you seen him?"

"It may be, or it may not," said Billy. "But come quickly, and we shall find out."

Off went Billy, and after him went Bettie Badger and Wise Eyes, the owl. "Faster," cried Billy, "if you want to get there in time!"

And faster they went.

What was that that loomed ahead with the moonlight shining on it? The big rock! Bettie was on the right path again.

"Slow down," ordered Billy Bluejay. "The little brook is just ahead and, if we keep on at this rate, we may go splashing into it. Now listen! I hope they haven't passed by."

Bettie listened. Wise Eyes listened too, with his head cocked to one side.

A patter of little feet could be heard and the faint sound of music.

"It's coming this way!" breathed Bettie. "What does it mean?"

"Keep your eyes open," whispered Billy.

The music came nearer and nearer. "Wind harps, carried from tree to tree by the night breezes," explained Billy.

Now the soft patter of little feet sounded like the fall of raindrops.

Bettie suddenly cried out with astonishment. Was she dreaming?

Round a clump of close-growing bushes came a strange little procession. Bunnies and bunnies and more bunnies; and at the head of them, leading them grandly and swinging his shining staff this way and that, came Rabbit Longears, whom Bettie Badger had that very day rescued from the snare.

"I must be dreaming!" murmured Bettie.

In the midst of the procession came a swaying hammock woven of green rushes and carried by four stout brown bunnies; and in the hammock, sitting straight up, with his eyes shining, holding in one paw a lot of lollipops that he nibbled happily, with the other waving the green-and-gold flag of the forest, was—could it be? Bettie rubbed her eyes and looked again.

"Who? Whoo-oo?" questioned Wise Eyes.

"Hush!" warned Billy Bluejay, suddenly covering Bettie's open mouth with his wing. "Don't speak, or you'll spoil it all. Let's follow them."

"It's Wee-wee in that hammock. I tell you it's my tiny Wee-wee!" said Bettie, all a-tremble with joy.

The procession swept past them like the wind, the Least Little Badger in their midst, and, try as she would, Bettie could not go fast enough to keep up with them.

Past the big rock once more they hurried, past the white birch tree, then along the winding road toward Bettie's house. Little white clouds scudded before the face of the moon, but it was still light enough for those who followed to see their way.

There were no bunnies to be seen when they reached Bettie's house, but the wind harps seemed to be playing in the tops of the trees overhead.

"Go in," said Billy Bluejay.

Bettie hurried in, and the others followed.

Across the room from corner to corner was hung the hammock woven of green rushes and in it, swaying back and forth, sat all five of the Little Badgers, eating lollipops.

"My Wee-wee!" cried Bettie and dashed across the room.

"Wait," said the Least Little Badger as her arms went around him. "Rabbit Longears said to tell you it was Bunnies' Mid-summer Carnival Night and that, if you hadn't saved him from the snare, they would not have been able to have any carnival at all, and so they wouldn't have found me and brought me home for you!"—Youth's Companion.

WORD PUZZLES

Guess this Word.

A stranger comes from foreign shores,
Perchance to seek relief;
Curtail him; you will find his tale
Unworthy of belief.
Curtail him again, you'll recognize
An old Arabian chief.

WHAT IS THIS?

Ever eating, every cloying,
Never finding full repast.
All devouring, all destroying
Till it eats the world at last.

QUIRIOUS QUERIES

What is the best way to make a coat last?

Why is there no such thing as a whole day?

Why is "A" like twelve o'clock?

What roof never keeps out the wet?

What is that which the cat has but no other animal has?

What river is ever without beginning and ending?

What is the difference between land and water?

The kind of a history examination in which all the seniors could make 100.

When did the war of 1812 occur?

Who invented the McCormick reaper?

What official position did Clay hold when he was secretary of state?

Who wrote Edison's sidelights on American history?

Who were the opponents in the Webster-Hayne debate?—Asbury College New Era.

THE ADVOCATE AND SOUTHERN PLANTER FOR THE PRICE OF THE ADVOCATE

During the remainder of June and the month of July the Advocate has arranged with the publishers of the Southern Planter, Richmond, Va., the oldest agricultural paper in America, to send to all new subscribers to the Advocate both the church organ and that excellent agricultural paper for $2.00 per year, the price of the Advocate. No subscription will be taken for less than 12 months and this offer only applies to new subscribers. This is a good opportunity to get the best farm paper published and the church paper for the price of one.

MARRIAGES

At the home of the bride in Smyrna, N. C., June 20, Mr. Walter Steward to Miss Alva Willis, H. M. Jackson officiating.

In the Methodist church, Southport, N. C., May 25, 1923, Mr. William G. Kemper of Washington, D. C., and Miss Irene Weeks of Southport, Rev. J. C. Whedbee officiating.

June 20, 1923, in the Methodist church, Southport, N. C., Mr. Robert Lee Dickens of Halifax, N. C., and Miss Elizabeth Davis of Southport, N. C., Rev. J. C. Whedbee officiating.

April 11, 1923, in Southport, N. C., Mr. William J. Smith and Miss Margaret Ludolph of New Jersey, Rev. J. C. Whedbee officiating.

FRECKLES

Now is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots.

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as Othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of Othine—double strength—from any druggist and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than an ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

CHURCH FURNITURE

PEWS · PULPITS
CHANCEL FURNITURE
SUNDAY SCHOOL SEATING
CATALOGUES ON REQUEST
American Seating Company
CHICAGO
J. E. & E. H. REILLEY
Sales Representatives
220 Latta Arcade
CHARLOTTE, N. C.

GOSPEL TENTS

OUR PRICES ON QUALITY GOSPEL TENTS CANNOT BE EQUALLED—WRITE TODAY—ATLANTA TENT & AWNING CO.
ATLANTA, GA.

THE SALISBURY MARBLE CO.
Salisbury, N. C.

Anything in...
CEMETERY WORK

Satisfaction our Motto
A card will bring full information.

Use
CARO-CO
COCOANUT OIL
SHAMPOO

Dizzy Spells
Are Usually Due to Constipation

When you are constipated, not enough of Nature's lubricating liquid is produced in the bowel to keep the food waste soft and moving. Doctor's prescribe Nujol because it acts like this natural lubricant and thus secures regular bowel movements by Nature's own method—lubrication.

Nujol is a lubricant—not a medicine or laxative—so cannot gripe. Try it today.

Nujol
REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.
A LUBRICANT—NOT A LAXATIVE

WOMAN'S PAGE

(Continued from page eight)

mit the following expression of appreciation:

1. To Rev. Mr. Capps, the pastor of this church, for many courtesies and kindness.

2. To Mrs. R. E. L. Flippen, president of the Pilot Mountain auxiliary, and to the ladies who so pleasantly entertained us.

3. To the ladies who prepared and served the dinner.

4. To Mrs. Robertson, our beloved president, who has served us so faithfully for 32 years.

5. To Mrs. Newell, council superintendent of social service.

6. To Miss Sills of Winston-Salem.

7. To Miss Howe, the Chinese girl.

8. To Mrs. Woltz, our district secretary, who has served 18 years, and to all who contributed to our entertainment, we extend our cordial thanks.

Mrs. J. W. Crews,
Mrs. J. P. Morris,
Mrs. Natt A. Pickett,
Committee on Resolutions.

Sixty delegates and visitors were registered Wednesday morning.

The conference adjourned to meet with Mt. Airy next year.

Respectfully submitted,
Myrtle O'Dell Harris,
Sec. of Dis. Conf.

SHELBY DISTRICT MEETING

The annual meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of Shelby district was held in Fallston on Thursday, May 31st, with a good attendance considering the threatening clouds of the early morning. Some were delayed thereby, but by noon there were nearly a hundred present.

The morning session was opened at 9:30 with devotions led by the pastor, Rev. D. H. Rhinehart. It was a great pleasure to have with us our presiding elder and seven other preachers in the district; and their interest in our work will insure greater interest among the members of their respective congregations. After the election of a secretary, Mrs. B. T. Morris, district secretary, gave an interesting report of the work of 1922, in the district, and urged greater consecration to our tasks, and closer co-operation in the months before us. She then conducted the institute on adult work, using as an outline the 1923 Honor Roll requirements. The presiding elder, Rev. H. H. Jordan, made an instructive and highly enjoyable talk on "What a Missionary Society Means to a Church."

Mrs. C. L. Steidley, in her characteristic manner, favored us with a vocal solo which was greatly appreciated. Mission study classes, ways of conducting them and the books that had been found helpful was presented by Mrs. W. R. Ford, of Belmont, and the discussion entered into in a general and informal way.

At 12 o'clock the meeting adjourned, and by gracious invitation from the women of the church everybody repaired to the adjacent grove, where a bountiful dinner was served, picnic fashion, and to which the large number present did ample justice.

The afternoon devotions were led by Mrs. Steidley, after which the Belle Bennett Memorial was clearly and forcefully presented by Mrs. W. W. Haygood, conference vice president. It was good to have her with us and her wise counsels, as well as her presentation of the memorial, will do us good.

Just before Mrs. W. P. Coley of Shelby began the institute on young people's work, Miss Annie Howell of Cherryville rendered in a beautiful voice "Somebody Did a Golden Deed, Was That Somebody You?" Resolutions on young people's work as presented at the annual meeting was read by Mrs. Coley, and much general information concerning this department given by means of questions and answers. Quite a number of members of the young people's society of Shelby, including two young men, were present, and rendered a short program, which was enjoyed greatly, and it was an inspiration to older ones to see the interest manifested by them.

Mrs. A. J. Owen, leader of the junior society of Bessemer City, was in charge of the junior institute, which was made very impressive by two recitations, "A Bag of Wishes" and "Missionary Pennies," beautifully carried out by some little folks from Bessemer City. In response to the question by Mrs. Morris as to where this meeting should be held next year, a Cherryville delegate quickly extended an invitation, which was accepted.

The following report of the committee on resolutions was read by the chairman:

We, the undersigned committee, desire to submit the following resolutions:

1st. We appreciate the cordial welcome given us by the ladies of this church.

2nd. We desire to thank our presiding elder, Mr. Jordan, for his splendid talk, and also the other ministers for their presence and co-operation.

3rd. We all enjoyed Mrs. Steidley's beautiful song and the sentiment it expressed.

4th. We consider it a special treat to have had Mrs. Hagood with us, and feel sure that her instructive talk will reap results.

5th. We feel that having had the young people with us has proven an inspiration to all.

6th. We all want to thank Mrs. Morris for her untiring efforts in promoting the missionary spirit in our district.

Last, but not least, we wish to extend our thanks to the good ladies of Fallston for the bountiful dinner which we all enjoyed so much.

Mrs. C. C. Cornwell,
Mrs. D. R. Mauney,
Mrs. Rush Thompson,
Mrs. A. H. Patterson.

This was followed by adjournment, when all joined hands and sang "Bless Be the Tie That Binds."

Bessie Clark, Sec.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas, on Tuesday morning, May 15, God in His wisdom and mercy has taken from our church and community one of our most beloved, faithful and efficient members of our board of stewards, Mr. R. K. Davenport; and, whereas, we, the board of stewards of the Mount Holly Methodist church, feel most keenly the great loss we have sustained; therefore be it resolved:

First, That although our hearts are filled with sorrow at his going, and we feel that his place cannot soon be filled, we nevertheless bow in humble submission to the great Head of the church, and acknowledge the unsearchable wisdom and love of our heavenly Father and yield our wills to His.

Second, That while we shall miss his visible presence among us, the memory of his fidelity to duty, his faithfulness to the church and Sunday school, his capacity for leadership and his ability to do good as a Christian gentleman will ever abide with us as an inspiration. He was willing to undertake any task no matter how hard if thereby he could be of service to his church and community. His wise counsel and advice will live on among us and will help us solve problems yet unmet.

Third, That we extend our deepest sympathy to his family and loved ones in their great bereavement.

Fourth, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, a copy to the North Carolina Christian Advocate and a copy be recorded in our church minutes.

C. P. Howard,
E. A. Thompson,
J. C. Albright,
Committee.

OAK RIDGE INSTITUTE, Oak Ridge, N. C.
T. E. Whitaker, President

Founded in 1852. Military. Courses thoroughly covering Literature, Science, Book-keeping, Short-hand, Typewriting, and Music. Eight buildings; electric lights, steam heat and shower baths. 350 acres in campus, athletic grounds, orchards, and farms. Beautiful lake nesting between hills covered with virgin forests. Healthful—1010 feet above sea level; accessible location near Greensboro. Same, moral influences. Costs reasonable. $125 for the year. Fall session opens first Tuesday in Sept. each year. Write for illustrated catalogue. Address Oak Ridge Institute, Oak Ridge, N. C.

BLUE RIDGE SCHOOL FOR BOYS
HENDERSONVILLE, N. C.

A select Home School for boys from 9 to 20 years old. Ideally located in healthful, invigorating climate conducive to study. A teacher for every 7 or 8 boys. Greater stress laid upon teaching correct methods of study. On accredited list. All branches of athletics. Total charge for session, Sept. 18 to June 4, $650. Summer term July and August. For Catalogue, address

J. R. SANDIFER, Headmaster, HENDERSONVILLE, N. C.

MARTHA WASHINGTON COLLEGE

An ideal College for Young Women. Healthful surroundings. 2200 feet above sea-level, same as Asheville, N. C.

All literary teachers hold Master's or Doctor's Degrees. High standard faculty, professionally trained and experienced. All departments of high order. Curricula for majoring in English, History, Mathematics, Sciences, French, German, Spanish, Home Economics, Art, Piano, Pipe Organ, Voice, Violin. Conducted like a large home. Student "activities" a special feature. Address: JOSEPH AVENUE, President, Abingdon, Virginia.

1854

COLUMBIA COLLEGE
COLUMBIA, SOUTH CAROLINA

1923

One of the South's oldest Colleges for the Christian Education of Young Women. Standard Courses leading to B. A. and B. S. Degrees. Strong Departments in Music, Art, Home Economics, Expression, Christian Atmosphere. Magnificent Plant. Write for literature.

J. CALDWELL GUILDS, President

GREENSBORO COLLEGE

The A-Grade Woman's College of the Two Methodist Conferences of North Carolina

Rated by State Department of Education as Class A.

Chartered 1838. Confers the degree of A. B. in the literary department and B. M. in the music department.

In addition to our regular classical course, special attention is called to the departments of Home Economics, Expression, Art, Education, Sunday School Teacher Training, Piano Pedagogy, and to our complete School of Music.

Modern New $50,000.00 Dormitory completed 1918. Conservatory of Music costing about $170,000 completed 1922.

Fall Semester begins September 5, 1923. For further information apply to DR. S. B. TURRENTINE, President, Greensboro, N. C.

For Your Boy--

Intellectual, Moral and Physical Training

in a unique, unselfish school with an Unparalleled record for eighteen years.

THE DARLINGTON SCHOOL, Rome, Ga.

"Unselfishly Dedicated to Young Manhood"

An Accredited Christian School given by philanthropic men and women to our boys. No individual can derive monetary profit from the institution. Write for catalog.

C. R. WILCOX, President, Formerly Associate S. H. ASKEW, A. B., Master in Charge of Headmaster, McCallie School Dormitories
E. L. WRIGHT, A. B., Headmaster PAUL LYMAN, E. E., Director of Athletics

1802

LOUISBURG COLLEGE

1923

A Junior College for Young Women
With a Standard Preparatory Course of Four Years
Property of North Carolina Conference

Faculty of specially trained, consecrated Christian teachers.

Health Record Unsurpassed. Home-like Atmosphere. Social Life Carefully Guarded. Athletics.

In addition to the regular college courses, Classical and General, attention is called to the departments of Art, Business, Education, Expression, Home Economics, Music (Piano, Voice, Violin, Theory, etc.), and Religious Education.

Rates as low as consistent with good service. Send for free Catalogue and Book of Views. For further information write

A. W. MOHN, PRESIDENT, LOUISBURG, N. C.

PRESIDING ELDERS APPOINTMENTS

Western North Carolina Conference

ASHEVILLE DISTRICT H. C. Sprinkle, P. E. THIRD ROUND

Table listing appointments for Asheville District, including dates and locations like Leicester, Grace, 11, and Black Mountain, 7:30.

CHARLOTTE DISTRICT J. B. Craven, P. E., 413 Central Ave., Charlotte, N. C. FOURTH ROUND—IN PART

Table listing appointments for Charlotte District, including dates and locations like Matthews, Matthews, 11, and Calvary, 8.

GREENSBORO DISTRICT W. F. Womble, P. E., 508 Summit Ave., Greensboro, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing appointments for Greensboro District, including dates and locations like Pleas. Garden, Rehobeth, 11&3, 30 & 1.

MARION DISTRICT Z. Paris, P. E., Marion, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing appointments for Marion District, including dates and locations like Micaville, 11.

MOUNT AIRY DISTRICT J. H. West, P.E., Box 422, Mt. Airy, N.C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing appointments for Mount Airy District, including dates and locations like West Davie, Callahan, 3, and Yadkinville, Center.

NORTH WILKESBORO DISTRICT J. W. Williams, P. E., Jefferson, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing appointments for North Wilkesboro District, including dates and locations like Jefferson, Mt. Zion, and Warrenville, Mill Creek.

SHELBY DISTRICT H. H. Jordan, P. E., Gastonia, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing appointments for Shelby District, including dates and locations like Dallas, Hardin, 11, and Cramerton, 7:30.

SALISBURY DISTRICT T. F. Marr, P. E., Salisbury, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing appointments for Salisbury District, including dates and locations like Spencer, Central, 11, and China Grove, 7:30.

STATESVILLE DISTRICT D. M. Litaker, P.E., 240 Walnut Street, Statesville, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing appointments for Statesville District, including dates and locations like South Lenoir, Harpers, 11, and Lenoir Ct., Laurel, 3.

WAYNESVILLE DISTRICT R. S. Howie, P. E., Waynesville, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing appointments for Waynesville District, including dates and locations like Robbinsville Ct., Trinity, 11, and Andrews Station, 11.

WINSTON-SALEM DISTRICT W. A. Newell, P. E., 1084 W. Fourth Street, Winston-Salem, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing appointments for Winston-Salem District, including dates and locations like Forsyth, Ogburn Memorial, 11, and Hanes-Clemmons, Hanes, ngt.

North Carolina Conference

DURHAM DISTRICT M. T. Plyler, P. E., Durham, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing appointments for Durham District, including dates and locations like Trinity, 11, and Memorial, 8.

ELIZABETH CITY DISTRICT C. B. Culbreth, P.E., Elizabeth City, N.C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing appointments for Elizabeth City District, including dates and locations like Person, Oak Grove, and Roxboro, 8.

ROCKINGHAM DISTRICT J. H. Shore, P. E., Rockingham, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing appointments for Rockingham District, including dates and locations like Moyoock, Perinks, and First Church.

Roanoke Island, Hatteras, Kennekeet, Stumpy Point, Kitty Hawk, Dare Ct., all at Manteo. 16-17-18-19

FAYETTEVILLE DISTRICT R. H. Willis, P. E., Fayetteville, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing appointments for Fayetteville District, including dates and locations like Pittsboro, Chatham, and Siler City, Hickory Mountain.

NEW BERN DISTRICT F. M. Shamburger, P.E., New Bern, N.C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing appointments for New Bern District, including dates and locations like Pamlico Ct., Alliance, 11, and Grifton Ct., Grifton.

RALEIGH DISTRICT J. C. Wooten, P. E. THIRD ROUND

Table listing appointments for Raleigh District, including dates and locations like Millbrook, Oakey Grove, and Kenley, Buckhorn.

WASHINGTON DISTRICT S. A. Cotton, P. E., Washington, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing appointments for Washington District, including dates and locations like Robersonville, Stokes, and Bethel, night.

ROCKINGHAM DISTRICT J. H. Shore, P. E., Rockingham, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing appointments for Rockingham District, including dates and locations like Biscoe, Candor, and Montgomery, Flint Hill.

WELDON DISTRICT S. E. Mercer, P. E., Weldon, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing appointments for Weldon District, including dates and locations like Tiers's, 11, and Enfield, 11.

WILMINGTON DISTRICT J. M. Daniel, P. E., 519 Grace Street, Wilmington, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing appointments for Wilmington District, including dates and locations like Swansboro, Stella, a.m., and Maysville, Belgrade, a.m.

CLIP THIS NOTICE

And save it as a reminder to write for your copy of the handsomely illustrated catalogue of the Advocate Piano Club.

DR. CHAS. W. MOSELEY Diseases of Stomach and Internal Medicine

Office, 229 S. Elm St. Residence, 438 S. Mendenhall St., Greensboro, N. C. Office 604—Phones—Res. 1739.

TENNESSEE MILITARY INSTITUTE

A school where orderliness, respect for government, and the desire to make good replace recklessness and the "don't care" attitude.

WHY DRUGS FAIL

Many chronic diseases fail to respond to drug treatment, even in the hands of the best physicians, whereas acute diseases usually respond readily. When a disease has become chronic, drugs often seem to do as much harm as they do good, for the system rebels against them. It is just this class of cases which derive the greatest benefit from drinking Shivar, America's best stomach, liver and kidney water. If you suffer with chronic dyspepsia, indigestion, sick headache, rheumatism, kidney or liver disease, uric acid poisoning or other curable conditions due to impure blood do not hesitate to accept the Spring's liberal offer as printed below. Their records show that only two in a hundred, on the average, have reported "no benefit." This is a wonderful record from a truly wonderful Spring. Sign the following letter:

Shivar Springs,
Box 4H, Shelton, S. C.

Gentlemen:

I accept your offer and enclose herewith three dollars for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Water. I agree to give it a fair trial, in accordance with instructions contained in booklet you will send, and if I report no benefit you agree to refund the price of the water in full upon receipt of the two empty demijohns which I agree to return within a month.

Name .....
Address .....
Shipping Point .....
(Please write distinctly.)

Manfr's Tents, Awnings, Paulins, Gospel Tents a specialty. We rent Tents, Oldest Tent Company in the South.
M. D. SMITH
TENT AND
AWNING CO., 136 1/2 Marietta St., Atlanta, Ga.

EPWORTH LEAGUE

(Continued from page ten)

Greensboro gave theirs Thursday afternoon at the picnic. It was in the form of a mock trial and Mr. Edwards was tried for talking too much. Of course he was found guilty.

On Thursday afternoon visitors were shown over the city and then taken to the Methodist picnic grounds at Big Springs. Mr. Faulkner's ice-cold lemonade reminded us of the sweet milk at the Morganton picnic. Sandwiches and "tormented" eggs didn't last long in that crowd. The women of Charlotte, with Mrs. Fite to round up the wherewith, did an amazing piece of work when they served seven hundred for lunch each day, to say nothing of the picnic lunch.

Over the Top With Our Finances.

P. L. Plyler, our most efficient treasurer, reported that we had overpaid our missionary special and with the money in the treasury he could pay every obligation of the conference. I say, "Hurrah for Plyler!" He asked to be released from this work to take charge of the Tar Heel Leaguer. The pledges for next year have not all been made yet, but we are expecting a large increase. We shall hear an equally good report from Treasurer Webster next year.

Officers for the New Year.

President, W. W. Edwards; vice president, B. L. Lunsford; corresponding secretary, Miss Cora Odom; recording secretary, Miss Louise Wilson; treasurer, D. L. Webster; editor Advocate Page, J. F. Armstrong; life service superintendent, L. A. Falls; assistant life service superintendent, Miss Emily Mathis; Junior superintendent, Mrs. Jennie M. James; Intermediate superintendent, Miss Gertrude Falls.

District secretaries — Asheville, Miss Dorothy Bates and Miss Ruth Kaylor; Charlotte, Mrs. C. V. Fite and Miss Kathleen Foard; Greensboro, Mr. R. G. Dawson and Miss Billie Webster; Marion, Mr. J. S. Rogers and Mrs. John Wood; Mt. Airy, Miss Clara Bell and Miss Elizabeth Long; Salisbury, Miss Johnnie Hobson and Mrs. J. F. Armstrong; Shelby, Rev. D. W. Brown and Mrs. Hattie Walters; Statesville, Mr. M. S. Smith and Mr. J. P. King; North Wilkesboro, Miss Ruth Colvard and Miss Ernestine Webster; Waynesville, Miss Edna Sronce and Mrs. Hilliard Hall; Winston, Mr. W. E. Church and Miss Powell.

NEW CHAPTER AT NORWOOD

Norwood has a brand new league that gives promise of fine things. We have not been able to secure a list of the officers.

The Norwood church has a live, intelligent set of young people and will doubtless push themselves into the front ranks before they begin to show age!

ECHO MEETINGS

We understand some remarkably interesting echo meetings have been held in the local chapters since our adjournment at Charlotte.

He or she would certainly be a "dummy" who could go through such a meeting and return to the chapter with "nothing to say."

TOO BAD, SISTER!

It is said some one overheard the following at the recent league conference:

Hostess daughter: "Well, I'll tell you I'm mad!"

Neighbor's daughter: "Why, what on earth is the matter now?"

Hostess daughter: "We asked for two young men and here I've been primping for a week and when our delegates came today, what do you think? Well, sir, one is a married man and the other brought his best girl with him, and she's stopping next door!"

BAILEY MILITARY INSTITUTE

GREENWOOD, S. C.

33rd Session Begins September 11th, 1923

In the healthful Piedmont section of South Carolina and in a city widely known for its superior moral and religious atmosphere. Strictly a standard preparatory school. Member of Southern Association. Sound classical and scientific courses prepare for college; strong commercial course prepares for business. Faculty made up of college graduates of established success in teaching and leading boys. Small classes. Close but sympathetic supervision. Excellent moral tone. All athletics. High standards of sportsmanship.

Place your boy at Bailey, and rest assured that his every interest will be safeguarded and promoted, and that there will be no let-up in the endeavor to make him a fine gentleman and a four-square man.

Send for catalog, and see what our patrons say of the school. Address

JOHN W. MOORE, Superintendent

THE STIEFF TONE

is famous with three generations of music lovers. It has never been duplicated. It is the expression of a passion for perfection that has actuated three generations of piano makers.

STIEFF PETIT GRAND

The smallest Grand Piano made that embodies all the essential qualities of the Concert Grand.

Chas. M. Stieff, Inc.,

Charlotte, N. C.

Please send catalogue and prices of Pianos.

Name .....

Address .....

CHAS. M. STIEFF, Inc.

CHARLOTTE, N. C.

DAVENPORT COLLEGE

FOR YOUNG WOMEN

LENOIR, N. C.

A three-year Junior College with a record of sixty-eight years of exceptional Academic work.

Well Equipped, Conservative, but thoroughly abreast of the times.

Fine Type of Student Life. A Safe Place for Young Women to study under close but sympathetic discipline.

Moderate Expenses. The lowest cost commensurate with a High Type of Modern Instruction.

A Registered Nurse constantly in attendance. A most healthful location, in the foothills of the Blue Ridge.

Courses in the Regular Academic Department and Art, Music, Expression, Domestic Science, Domestic Art and Secretarial Courses.

A four-year preparatory course on same campus and correlated with the college.

For Catalogue and Views,

Address PRESIDENT C. L. HORNADAY, LENOIR, N. C.

FOUNDED 1838

CHARTERED IN 1859

TRINITY COLLEGE

DURHAM, N. C.

A Southern College of liberal arts with an established national reputation for high standards, noble traditions, and progressive policies. Its large endowment fund makes possible its first-class equipment and large faculty of well trained and carefully chosen teachers. Student fees low. Comfortable, inexpensive rooms in carefully supervised hygienic dormitories.

Classical and scientific courses leading to the bachelor's degree. Graduate courses in all departments. Schools of Engineering, Education, and Law.

For catalogue and illustrated booklet, address

R. L. FLOWERS,

Secretary to the Corporation.

WESTERN NORTH CAROLINA

"The Land of the Sky"

MICHIGAN,
WISCONSIN,
MINNESOTA,
COLORADO,
UTAH, CALIFORNIA,
CANADA,
NEW ENGLAND,
and
Seashore Resorts

GREATLY REDUCED
SUMMER FARES
Now in Effect

via

Southern Railway System

From GREENSBORO AND OTHER POINTS

Send for Free Booklet

Convenient Schedules
Attractive Service

L. A. PEACOCK, C. T. A.
112 East Market Street,
Greensboro

IN MEMORIAM

FORSYTHE—Died at her late residence near Brevard, N. C., May 12, 1923, Mrs. Julia N. Forsythe, wife of J. Adger Forsythe, and daughter of the late Judge R. F. Graham of South Carolina. Born Monday, May 14, 1860; married Monday, May 14, 1877; buried Monday, May 14, 1923.

SIGMON—Afton Arthur Sigmon was born January 27, 1883, and died May 11, 1923. Brother Sigmon had the hand of affliction laid upon him in childhood and it was never his privilege to recover his health. His affliction forbade him many of the joys and privileges of life, but did not as is often the case develop in him a spirit of rebellion and discontent. In His wisdom God took him to that happy realm to which no affliction can ever come. D. A. Lewis.

WORTHY—Miss Annie Spencer was born in Hyde county in July, 1857. In 1885 she was happily married to S. B. Worthy of Jonesboro and had made her home here ever since. There were four children by this marriage, but all have gone except one son, James, and the husband and one sister are left to grieve her going. In 1886 Sister Worthy professed faith in Christ during the ministry of Rev. W. O. Hightower and became a member of the Methodist church, and was a loyal, consistent Christian until called home June 10th. For several years she had been mentally afflicted due to grief and sorrow over her loved ones who had been taken away. May the Lord bless the bereaved. B. E. Stanfield, P. C.

MANESS—Sister Sarah J. Maness, daughter of John Ritter, was born March 15, 1852, and died June 4, 1923. She was married to Wm. T. Maness January 30, 1873. To this union were born eleven children, nine of whom, together with her husband, thirty-four grandchildren and two great-grandchildren, survive her. Sister Maness was converted in early life and joined the Methodist church, to which she was always faithful. She was a good woman and left a clear, ringing testimony. Her last words were: "I am trusting the Lord." We buried her in the cemetery at Highfalls Methodist church in the presence of many sorrowing friends. A. B. Crumpler, P. C.

WICKER—Ruby Christine Wicker, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alton A. Wicker, of Pittsboro, N. C., fell asleep in death in the Central Carolina Hospital, Sanford, N. C., on Saturday, June 9, 1923, aged one year, nine months and eight days. Her illness was short but severe, and her death was a great shock to all. The little body was tenderly laid to rest at noon on Sunday, June 10th, in the cemetery at Jones' Chapel church. The happy little spirit rests with the Saviour who said, "Of such is the kingdom of heaven." The beautiful flowers were silent attestations of the profound sympathy of many hearts. "I take these little lambs," said He, "And lay them in my breast; Protection they shall find in me, In me be ever blest." E. C. Sell, Pastor.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Since God in His unerring wisdom has removed from us our sister, Mrs. E. T. Lewter, be it resolved:

First, We, the members of the Woman's Missionary Society of Severn M. E. church, have lost a true and faithful member, and while we realize that her going has left a vacant place in our society and church, yet we bow to the will of Him who doeth all things well.

Second, We extend to her family our loving sympathy and pray God's blessings upon them.

Third, A copy of these resolutions be sent to her family, to the Christian Advocate and Roanoke and Chowan Times and Northampton Progress for publication, and placed on our society record.

Mrs. J. B. Stephenson,
Mrs. H. W. Maddrey.

COX—Tabitha Mildred Ambrozin McLaughlin was born at Oak Ridge, Ga., December 1, 1853, and quietly and peacefully fell on sleep near Jonesboro May 17, 1923. In February, 1872, she was happily married to Dr. J. L. Cox of North Carolina and the next year the young couple came back to his home. There were 11 children, but only seven are living. In early life Sister Cox became a Christian and united with the Methodist church, and ever since she moved from Georgia she was a true-loyal and devoted member of Morris Chapel. She was a faithful Sunday school teacher and did a great work for God's cause in this line of work. May the Lord bless those who are so sorely bereaved. B. E. Stanfield, P. C.

RESOLUTIONS OF REPECT

Whereas, God in His wisdom and love saw fit to remove from our midst one of our beloved members, Estelle Foster, therefore be it resolved:

First, That the ladies of the Wesley Bible class wish to extend our deepest sympathy to the bereaved husband and point to Him whom she loved and served.

Second, While we miss her we rejoice in the hope that it is well with her and her reward is that of a faithful servant of God.

Third, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to her husband, a copy to the N. C. Christian Advocate and a copy be spread on the minutes of the class.

Mrs. E. P. Geohegan,
Mrs. P. H. Gwyn, Jr.,
Mary Stokes,
Grace Chance.

SWANN—Walter C. Swann of Pelham died on June 4th at the Edmonds Hospital, Danville, Va. Funeral services at Pelham church, conducted by his pastor, H. F. Starr. Brother Swann had been a member of Pelham church for 35 years. He loved his church, was true to his pastor and true to his God. He was 72 years of age. He never married. One brother, J. A. Swann, survives with other relatives. "Uncle Walter" as he was called by all who knew him best, was truly a good man. As long as his health would permit he was found in his place in the Sunday school and church services. His cheerful disposition and fatherly council made him friends wherever he was known. Dead, but yet speaketh. H. F. Starr.

BRYSON—Mrs. Tulla Grace Bryson, wife of J. B. Bryson of Cullasaja, N. C., departed this life May 23, 1923, in the 37th year of her age.

Mrs. Bryson has lived a beautiful Christian life since her conversion a number of years ago. She joined the Methodist church at Salem three years ago and has been a loyal member. She was a devoted wife and mother. She leaves a husband, seven children and a host of relatives and friends to mourn her going. To know her was to love her.

Her body was laid to rest at Salem church. The floral offerings were most beautiful and showed the affections of her many friends. We extend our sympathy to the bereaved family and pray that God may richly bless and comfort them. R. E. Ward, Pastor.

HASKETT—Louise Haskett, daughter of the late Wm. Haskett and Mrs. Carrie N. Haskett, was born at Southport October 27, 1877, and fell asleep in Jesus February 15, 1923. Miss Haskett was a communicant of the Methodist church from early girlhood, and when he body—beautiful in life even to the time when she lay in her last sleep—was beleaguered by lingering illness—this rare, unselfish spirit remembered Zion, and through long invalidism her days were marked by some kindly thing done for others in His name. When the great Shepherd called to Louise Haskett, "Come to me," the answer came, "It is well." As she passed into the beyond we caught again in our soul-life a glimpse of a supernal light streaming through an open door and heard a voice sweeter than mortal tongue can tell, "I am the resurrection and the life."

To the mother, sitting in the twilight of her years, serving and waiting; the sisters, Mrs. Clyde Newton and Mrs. Geneva Frazier, and many who loved her, the same Saviour speaks, "I will not leave you comfortless; I will come to you."

A MOTHER'S TRIBUTE

When first I looked into the face
Of this beloved child
My inmost soul was touched
By his eyes so sweet and mild.
I loved him for his spittless soul,
His heart that never had sinned,
A mind more dear than gold
Where vice had not crept in.
But the heavenly Father in His power
Took from me His gift so sweet,
Lest I should spoil the tender flower and fill his heart with vain conceit.
But while I'm sad and lonely
And my heart ache's with pain,
A soft voice whispers that my child
And I shall meet again.

The death angel entered our home on December 22, 1922, and took home to heaven our only little boy, Charles Franklin Marze, three years and three months of age. But God makes no mistakes and some day we hope to be reunited in that home not built by hands. His Mother.

ELLIOTT—W. A. Elliott, son of Spencer and Isabella Elliot, was born April 17, 1841, and died December 28, 1922. With the exception of the entire period of the Civil War, during which time he served with Company M, 21st North Carolina regiment, his life was spent in his native county. All of his younger life was spent on the farm near Greensboro, coming to Greensboro with his family to make his home in January, 1901.

On April 6, 1871, he married Miss Margaret Wooters, also of Guilford county, and in the providence of God they were permitted to live together for fifty years, Mrs. Elliott being the first member of the very happy family of six children and seven grandchildren to be called to her reward on June 10, 1921.

Mr. Elliott was practically an invalid since a few months prior to the death of his beloved companion, and yet every day of this time was spent in useful occupation—either in reading (this he was able to do without the use of glasses), attending church when his condition of health permitted and he could, until the very hour of his death discuss the latest current events, with his children and friends, much to their pleasure and instruction.

Mr. Elliott was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, since boyhood, holding his membership in the Pleasant Garden church until he came to Greensboro, when he placed it in the Centenary church, this city, where it was at the time of his death. His pastor, Rev. R. G. Tuttle, assisted by Revs. R. Murphy Williams, R. S. Arrowood and C. H. Nash, conducted his funeral and interment was made in the family plot in Green Hill cemetery. The floral offerings and many other acts of kindness shown to his family during the last sad rites attested, to a very great degree, the esteem in which this venerable gentleman was held.

His children are: W. H. Elliott, Mrs. C. M. McLean, Mrs. W. H. Sullivan, and Miss Emma F. Elliott of Greensboro; Mrs. Harry H. Bond of Sydney, Australia; Mrs. Charles Nelson Norman of Charlotte, N. C.

He is also survived by one brother and four sisters of Greensboro and one nephew and one niece of High Point, N. C.

At the time of his death he was Color Bearer for the Guilford County Camp of Confederate Veterans and a most loyal member of this fast thinking band of "boys of the sixties."

The writer was his next door neighbor about ten years, and a gate between our yards built by him made us nearer neighbors. As a neighbor he was very careful, watchful, just, kindly and generous in a quiet, unostentatious way. When the writer was sick and did not split his wood as usual he found that some one had quietly early in the morning, done the work—but said nothing about it. When he was sick and a neighbor did some little work for him in his garden he was very appreciative. When the neighbor's wife, always joined by the writer, remembered him on his birthdays and Christmas he was very grateful and appreciative. He was modest, humble and unobtrusive, independent and dignified, with a fear that the offered services of a neighbor might impose some inconvenience. He was very industrious, energetic and economical, working hard until disabled by age and infirmities. He belonged to the comparatively small class of whom it is truly said, "An honest man is the noblest work of God. In his religious life he was the humble, unostentatious, consistent Christian of simple faith. He "set his house in order" before his departure for the "house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens," and when the final call came his last words were, "Lord Jesus!" Chas. H. Nash.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

On the evening of March 27th God in His infinite love, wisdom and mercy called to Himself one of our beloved and faithful members, Miss Velna Haithcock. Mourning her loss so deeply we resolve:

First, That we, the Woman's Missionary Society of Pittsboro M. E. Church, South, bow in submission to the will of God as she did.

Second, That we strive to follow her example in cheerfulness of spirit and in bearing affliction with patience and resignation.

Third, That we extend our sympathy and love and prayers to her family in their loss.

Fourth, That a copy of these resolutions be spread on the minutes; that copies be sent to her family, to the Chatham Record and to the North Carolina Christian Advocate.

Respectfully submitted,

Mrs. W. P. Horton,
Mrs. W. M. Eubanks,
Committee.

WEST—Miss Hazel Duquid was born in Dover, N. C., September 13, 1899; died in Smithfield, N. C., May 20, 1923. She is the youngest child of Seth and Laura A. West. The mother living, father deceased. Brothers and sisters living are: Mrs. (Rev.) F. E. Dixon, Roberdel, N. C.; W. H., J. H. and S. L. West, Mrs. E. H. Parrott, Mrs. N. S. Richardson, Mrs. W. Y. Richardson and Misses Mabel and Gladys West, all of Dover, N. C. These, with many other relatives and friends are in sorrow because of her absence from their circle of the "dearly beloved."

She was converted and joined the Methodist church when nine years of age, and from that sacred hour seemed to realize the deep, spiritual meaning of the vows she had taken, and that she must give them clear and conscientious definition in her daily life. There are many witnesses that she did this in her childhood home and church, and the wider field of her labors as public school teacher. Amid life duties she moved quietly, meekly, in a faithful-to-duty, genial sort of way that won for her work and influence on entrance into the lives of her pupils. The last two years of her life were spent in Smithfield. Immediately upon coming she let it be known that she was a believer in Christ and ready to serve wherever needed. The Herald, a local paper, says:

"Since coming to our town she has been organist and secretary in the Senior-Intermediate department of the Sunday school and the young people of that department will miss her presence. With a most attractive personality, with a gentleness and thoughtfulness for others which was especially noticeable she made friends wherever she went. A life, though short in its span, that imparts such lessons is well worth living."

At the news of her death there were no mourners more deeply touched than the children she taught—not only those of the class of the year now closing, but those who looked forward to "Miss Hazel" as their teacher next year. Her largely attended funeral was held from the Methodist church in Dover, and the interment made at Bethany Methodist church, the old home church of her father, beside whose grave she awaits the family reunion.

"There beneath the sheltering trees,
She sleeps where the daisies nod,
And the clover hangs its head,
Where the wild birds come and the wild bees hum,
Above her quiet bed."

D. H. Tuttle.

Many a meandering discourse one hears, in which the preacher aims at nothing, and—hits it.—Whately.

NORTH CAROLINA Christian Advocate

Volume LXVIII

GREENSBORO, N. C., THURSDAY, JULY 5, 1923

No. 27

THE JUNALUSKA CROSS

This cross, erected by the Wesley Bible Classes of the Western North Carolina Conference, stands twenty-five feet high on the promontory overlooking Lake Junaluska. Its two hundred lights, showing from two sides, burn every night in the year.

EDITORIAL ~ PARAGRAPHS

The vacation season is at hand. Many of our people are planning to spend several weeks away from their homes. It so often happens that some of the very best church attendants at home forget to do so when on their vacation. It is a serious handicap to the spiritual life for a member of the church to fail to attend upon the worship of God when away from home. Even if you are in a community for a brief period of time let the Sabbath find you in a house of worship.

* * * *

While others are enjoying a vacation this summer the pastor and his family should not be overlooked. Almost every big business concern in the country provides for every member of their force to enjoy an outing—the most of them with pay. Some concerns pay the expenses of their employees. Every pastor in our church should be voted a vacation, and also given a purse sufficient to pay his expenses. It would be money well spent. One of our pastors a few days ago received a Junlauska program and neatly tucked away in that program were ten crisp ten dollar bills with instructions for the pastor and his wife to use them on a vacation at Lake Junaluska. It would be fine if all our congregations would do the same thing for their pastor and his wife.

The summer conferences opened at Lake Junaluska last Sunday morning, when Bishop James Cannon opened the Social Service Conference with a strong sermon. From now till the end of the season something that is worth while will be going on at the Lake every week. Methodists who possibly can should attend some of these conferences. Their spiritual life would be strengthened and they would be better equipped for church work during the remainder of the year.

* * * *

What will the revival season mean to you and to your church? The answer to this question depends upon what you mean to the special efforts that will be put forth for the salvation of lost men. A thorough preparation of yourself for the meeting will aid a great deal in its success. This should be a time for self-examination and rededication to the service of God. No member of the church has a right to leave all the work to the pastor or his assistant. Every member of the church should be a soul winner. If you have not tried it before try now and you will experience a new joy in your own life and the church and community will be better because of your life.

DANCING AT ROCKY MOUNT

Severe cases demand severe treatment. If the reports in the secular papers of a sermon delivered by Rev. Harry North in his church at Rocky Mount on the last Sunday in June are true, it would seem that things which took place at a dance in that city recently were revolting in the extreme. Brother North is anything but a sensationalist, and he would not deliver himself as he did if he had not been sure of his ground. He charged, among other things, that there was much drinking done at the dance by both men and women, and that when the day laborer was on his way to work early the next morning the dancers were seeking "dope" at cafes and drug stores to help them through the day and to get back to their homes. He pictured this procession as "a set of boys and girls with their clothes hanging about them like bath robes as they shouted in delirium to their fellows across the streets." We rejoice to know that Brother North had the courage of his convictions and spoke these words of truth and soberness. We know, because we know the man, that the sermon was not delivered in bitterness nor for the purpose of getting on the front page of the newspapers, but that it was delivered out of a soul that was filled with love for every person that was present at that orgy. The pain he experienced in the preparation and delivery of that message was that which our Lord felt when He said, "My soul is exceeding sorrowful."

MIDNIGHT MEDITATIONS

Sunday Night; Eleven Bells and All is Well

It has been a good day. Brother Sikes and I gave the Holy Communion to many good people kneeling around the altar—a sight and service that never fails to leave its urge of godliness. Yet, why will church people stay away on this day? I believe the average city church would die without the communion. Bishop Denny is right: we need education on this matter.

I gave the vows of church membership to one fine young girl of much christian promise. Her mother came in by letter and starts the New Way with the daughter—and it is a day for mothers.

I have eaten in the house of my friends; visited a happy saint in the hospital and heard her praise the Lord for an almost miraculous recovery. She and her nurse both believe in and live holiness. That room is a bit of heaven.

The children's ward where Dr. Cole and others are giving their free clinic is a pathetic but hopeful place. Most of them are having their little crippled legs straightened and they too seem happy. The race, which moves forward on the feet of little children, will have a surer progress after this work is done.

* * * *

The day has brought messages from three men I admire—E. C. Lindeman, the not lovable but lucid, makes a fine statement in the "Y" magazine about the True American; Branson, the discreetly brave writer from Chapel Hill, writing from Hamburg, says enlightening things about Europe, as he has been saying about North Carolina to her great profit in recent years; and Bruce Craven philosophizes with sagely wisdom—very sagely for one so young—under the caption of "Seeing North Carolina," but in reality he is in the Southwest and only sees the state by contrast. One paragraph should be repeated:

A neighbor of mine told me sometime ago that it was strange to him that I could travel about and see real things and then be content to live in Trinity; but there are reasons. Firstly, human nature is the same wherever you find it, whether in Trinity, Wall Street, El Paso, or Mexico, a farm house, or the palace of the king. All people drink water, eat bread, and want more money than they have, talk about their neighbors, and spend most of their energies worrying about things that never happen, and if they did happen, would amount to nothing. Secondly, the real things of life are few and open to all human beings, and they are mainly those things that center about home, with a reasonable amount of work. Some peace and rest, a few children, a nice dog or two, and some cats, and two bears—bear and forbear.

I quote him in retaliation for what he said when he heard me preach: "I enjoyed what I could understand of that." That thrust went between the joints of my armor; I had given elaborate and profound advice that day!

* * * *

And lastly, this has left a stinging memory: there is no sadder news today than the picture of thousands of those aliens from other lands who have spent their pitifully meager funds to cross the Atlantic, many crowding like cattle in the steerage, hoping for a financial foothold in this prosperous country, who cannot be admitted. They must go back to their poor and almost hopeless homes after coming within sight of the promised land. Yet I make no plea for unrestricted immigration. Such a policy would soon paralyze the country, and even the New Jerusalem has gates—twelve of them—but it is blessed to know they never shut on those who aspire to live in the Kingdom of the Good. Still stands the invitation, "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden." There is no Ellis Island to bar the passage to God's wide and roomy heaven. Many of the earth's ambitious poor will travel in the steerage but they will arrive and none shall say "Ye cannot enter here." Their spirits will disembark and possess the treasures of the Tearless Land beyond the sea.

"The land beyond the sea!

When will life's tasks be o'er?

When shall we reach that soft blue shore,
O'er the dark strait whose billows foam and roar?

When shall we come to thee,
Calm land beyond the sea?"

(Moral of all the above: It is easy to preach or write when one does not need to have a subject and is not strained to say something important.)

L. B. Hayes.

Greensboro, N. C.

THE WILMINGTON DISTRICT CONFERENCE

From the time Rev. B. O. Merritt announced the first hymn for the opening service till the doxology at the closing hour of the Wilmington District Conference, which convened at Swansboro on Tuesday night, June 26, there was not a dull moment—something of interest was going on all the time. Rev. J. W. Daniels, the popular and hard-working elder, was in the chair and had his hands on the workings of his conference every minute. He had prepared a program, but gave himself enough latitude to inject new matter as the occasion arose. Rev. L. E. Sawyer makes a good secretary and is of valuable assistance to his chief. There was no interest of the church but what received attention. The elder did not hurry any one. He had his preachers to make written reports of their work, and then called upon the laymen to speak to the reports. If these brethren are to be taken seriously, the people on the district, as a whole, are immensely pleased with their preachers. There is a great deal of hard work to be done in that territory, but there was no complaint made by a single preacher. All seemed to be happy in their work, and they are succeeding in getting results. Unless the signs of the times fail, in a short while the Wilmington will be one of the leading districts in Southern Methodism.

One or two items taken from reports is worth notice. Rev. McD. McLamb, who is serving the Old Dock Charge, a community that has not been in sympathy with infant baptism, reported that at one service he baptized fifteen babies and that there were others yet to be baptized.

The fact was brought out by the presiding elder that the district paid more money last year for all purposes than ever in her history.

Brother Daniels, in discussing some of the problems in the Wilmington District, gave out the information that in Brunswick County there are only three people to the square mile.

Brothers Courtney, representing the Centenary; Curtis, of Greensboro College; Gobbel, of the Sunday School work; Mrs. A. S. Barnes, representing the Methodist Orphanage, and the business manager of the Advocate, all received a cordial welcome and fine treatment at the hands of the elder and also entertainment committee. Just here I would like to advise Superintendent Barnes to send Sister Barnes to represent the Orphanage at all gatherings. She does it so much better than those who have been going. It's true that Mrs. Barnes, Gobbel and the writer had some thrilling experiences on our return, but it was a joy to be a traveling companion of those choice spirits.

Brother T. W. Siler and his committee on entertainment did well by everybody present. At the Tarrymore Hotel, under the care of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Pittman, were Revs. J. W. Daniels, W. A. Stanbury, R. M. Courtney, W. M. Curtis and his little daughter, Mrs. A. S. Barnes, and the writer. They were all well treated and are under many obligations to their hosts for their splendid hospitality.

Cpts. R. J. Jones, Richard Webb, and W. H. Hill, who own gasoline launches, invited the conference to be their guests on a trip across the sound to the life saving station. Of course the invitation was accepted, and the ride was one of the distinct pleasures of the district conference occasion.

Brother Sawyer is giving an account of the conference in another column.

NEW EDITOR CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

The book committee of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in session last week in the book rooms in Nashville, Tenn., elected as editor of the Christian Advocate, general organ of our church, Rev. Dr. E. F. Smith, formerly editor of the S. Louis Advocate. Dr. Smith succeeds the late Dr. Thomas N. Ivey, D. D., and comes to his new position assured that the church at large will give him a cordial welcome as editor of its paper. We are sure that he dist, and the North Carolina Christian Advocate extends to both the church and Dr. Smith will receive the support of every loyal Methodist's felicitations.

PEOPLE AND THINGS

Western North Carolina Conference, Winston-Salem, October 17.

North Carolina Conference, Elizabeth City, November 14.

Mrs. D. S. Richardson, wife of our pastor at Ansonville, returned home Saturday from the Charlotte Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital where she had been for three weeks, having had three operations. We rejoice to know that she is improved, but it will be some time before she is well.

The Advocate trips to Lake Junaluska fell to Dr. Ashley Chappell, of the Asheville district; Rev. J. B. Tabor, of the Marion; Rev. J. A. Martin, Rockingham, and Rev. B. E. Stanfield, Fayetteville. The presiding elders of the Western North Carolina Conference selected Rev. N. C. Williams, of Granite Falls, for the trip-at-large.

Rev. E. C. Sell, Goldston, N. C., writes under date of July 2nd: "Sunday School Day was observed at Meronie Church yesterday. An excellent program was rendered in an impressive manner. The attendance was large, the singing was inspiring, and everybody enjoyed the day. Our Sunday school at Meronie, under the superintendency of Brother T. B. Beal, is doing good work."

Mrs. D. M. Litaker, wife of the presiding elder of the Statesville district, has just returned from an auto trip of more than two thousand miles with her son, Oliver M. Litaker, of Charleston, W. Va. They started at Charleston and, crossing the states of Ohio and Pennsylvania, entered Canada at Niagara, visiting Toronto, Kingston, and the capital city of Ottawa. Thence they drove to Montreal and on down the broad St. Lawrence to the old French city of Quebec. The return trip was made by way of the Adirondacks and New York City. The roads were superb and sightseeing delightful.

Rev. W. L. Sherrill of Leaksville who has been at the Charlotte Sanatorium for several weeks past for surgical treatment is now able to leave the hospital, but his physician requires him to remain in Charlotte for further treatment and for absolute rest and freedom from care until September first at least. Brother Sherrill has been fortunate in securing Rev. N. R. Richardson of Mt. Pleasant to fill his Leaksville pulpit from July 15 to September 1. Brother Richardson is one of our best men and will do good work as a substitute for the pastor.

IN THE FAR EAST—THE DUTCH LIFE OF JAVA

By William C. Allen.

I have always considered that Denmark was the only country possessing government-owned railroads that were really worth while. Now I add Java to the very lean list. Maybe the self-possessed Danes and Hollanders govern politicians and officials better than other peoples. Be that as it may, the Javanese railways are finely adapted to the service of the country. The lines are narrow-gauged. Forty or sixty miles per hour are speeds frequently attained. The sort of "graft" practiced upon a long-suffering public, in some countries I know, is absent. Thus you can go into the restaurant cars during the day and get a very simple meal, of tea and coffee only. At certain hours regular meals are served at an exceedingly low tariff. In American money soup is 7 cents a plate, bread and butter 7 cents, coffee or tea 7 cents, a full-course luncheon 80 cents, and so forth. The language difficulties of foreigners are always overcome by polite officials or by the courteous interpretations of your Dutch, but English-speaking fellow-passengers. It is at strange stations, say after the tropical six o'clock sundown, that you have to gird on your traveller's armour. Before the train comes to a halt a host of shouting wild-eyed natives rush your compartment and, unless you fairly fight for your worldly possessions, will grab them and disappear in the motley crowd. You dare not trust to a possible sorting-out in the dark. One funny thing about the railways of Java is that the trains do not run at night. So, for instance, if you take an express from Batavia for Soerabaja—a 20 hours run—you stop at some city en route between about 7:30 p. m. and about 6 a. m. This is not a hardship because the hotels are excellent. The reason assigned for this is that the native crews fall asleep after night-fall.

My first experience with the Malay bath was on the Dutch ship going from Hongkong to Singapore. Afterward we came into full contact with it in Java. In hotels and private homes it essentially is the same. The houses of our missionary friends usually had the bath rooms in the rear of the houses where, close by the kitchen and storerooms, we would find them at the end of long porticoes. A typical bath room has no windows, light can only enter it over the ample door. There are few hooks whereon to hang your clothing. The floor and walls are made of concrete or stone. All is dark, soothing and cool after the bursting glare of the tropical sunlight. There is no bathtub, only a deep, concrete well about four feet square and on its thick wail is an enormous dipper. You plunge that simple implement into the water, lift it high above you and pour the vivifying fluid over head and shoulders. The effect is exceedingly stimulating; somehow it seems better than a shower. The water runs off of the very sloppy floor out into a drain. You recognize that the Malay bath, next to a limp mountain stream, is the best of all.

Dutch housewives in Java possess servants galore but servants and sorrows may easily intermingle. The native servants work little and, although they may be very loyal, infinite tact and patience is required in handling them. The range of wages is not large. The cooking is done in little pans and ovens over small braziers, each about the size of an ordinary jardiniere. Only one thing can be cooked at a time. These miniature stoves stand in rows on one side of the oftentimes windowless kitchens, on the floors, and over them squat the dusky cooks whilst watching them. Yet amidst these weird surroundings many an excellent meal is concocted which, when served, is supplemented with luscious fruits.

After tiffin—usually enjoyed at one o'clock—a missionary host, unless he saw evidences of going to our room, would smilingly say: "Mr. Allen, you will excuse us now, it is time to go to bed." So all members of the family would retire to their bedrooms and a midnight silence would settle on the house. The same process was observed in all hotels. By two o'clock, guttural voices or laughter ceased and quietude reigned supreme. But after four o'clock stirrings would be overheard. The deeply-shaded windows would evidence signs of life. Curtains would be drawn. Men and women in pajamas and bathrobes leisurely wandered to the bath.

The custom of going to bed in the afternoons, as practiced in Java, is a sensible one. It means escaping from the enervating heat, which obtains all the year in the early afternoon. It carries with it physical and mental relaxation. I seriously question if most white people could possibly live for a series of years in Java without it. By four o'clock, even if I did not sleep, I was equipped for work for the remainder of the day; whereas otherwise I would have been exhausted by that hour. The natives take all the rest they can and, as for the Chinese, they never seem to tire—they put to shame our effete European stock—they go on forever.

By five Dutch-Javanese life is in full swing once more. The time for recreation has arrived. Dutch ladies, gowned in easy fitting garments of flimsy fabrics and simple colors, appear on the scene. The fashionable shopping hour has arrived. The right calling hour is seven. Afternoon tea prepares our Dutch friends for valient service at the dinner table. This function is generally at eight o'clock, or may be much later. While speaking of table things we do not forget the coffee. It is a heavy black syrup offered in little pitchers. Very little is sufficient and the cup is then filled with water or milk, to suit the taste. If genuine American cream were only introduced, instead of boiled milk, the beverage would be ideal.

One of the notable institutions of Java is "Rydstafel," or Rice Toffle. What is Rice Toffle? It is a gastronomic wonder of the world. Its astonishing feature does not consist in the strangeness of the dish, or in its cookery, but in the fantastic mixture of a huge variety of things such as only a contemplative Dutchman could possibly evolve. In the hotel it is the great dish for tiffin. A typical Rice Toffle is heaped upon you as follows: Immediately after giving your order there bears down upon you a line of ten solemn-faced, turbaned, white-jacketed, unshop Malay waiters each armed with his contribution to your sure present joy and possible future sorrow. Some of these men carry several articles of diet, some only one. The first places an immensely deep soup-plate in front of you and into its depths you are expected to put as much boiled rice as you feel confident of mastering. Most Dutchmen take—as a foundation for their repast—enough rice to make an ordinary meal for commonplace men. Then follow the other waiters holding aloft a bewildering array of cooked or spiced things which the true epicure masses up, over and around the original basis of this extraordinary meal. The mound of rice is lost to view under beefsteak, cabbage, baked bananas, done-over meats, beans, all sorts of curried affairs, chicken, peanuts, fritters, fried eggs, to say nothing of the pickled things and what-not too numerous to mention. Some of the smaller dishes are very hot and burn your tongue. When this mountainous conglomeration has been heaped up the real Dutchman takes his huge spoon, and big fork, and mixes the component parts with the rice and then—he eats it! Foreigners who are not, so to speak, to the manor born generally do not indulge in all the ingredients composing Rice Toffle. But I confess that, with its almost mystic charm of rarely blissful seasoning, it is a delightful compound although you must, if careful to avoid unhappy consequences, approach it with caution and self-control!

An outstanding feature of life in Java is the social and business position of the Eurasians. While England and America have decided to consider the children of their own white men by dark-skinned mothers as social outcasts the Dutch of the East Indies have, on the contrary, decided to treat such peoples of mixed breeds as white persons and accord them the same social status granted the Hollanders of purest white blood. In other words, with the Dutch, a proportion of white blood makes its owner a white person—this being the reverse of what the Englishman or American grants. As a Dutch lady remarked to me, "Java is the paradise of half-casts." When we consider that white men have created a condition for their half-cast offspring, for which the latter are not responsible, it would seem as if the attitude of the Dutch toward this sad problem is one of equity and justice.

The history of the church has largely consisted in the biographies of its saints, and every great revival of religion has been the flame kindled round a flaming heart. Paul was impelled by his own love; the brethren in Rome were in a lower state as only reflecting his, and it ought to be the prerogative of every Christian to be a center and source of kindling influence rather than a mere recipient of it.—Alexander Maclaren.

Christ bids us "behold the fowls of the air," and says that "God feedeth them." Do they, then, stay at home, and do nothing, expecting crumbs of manna to drop from rich tables in the skies? Are they found, empty of all appetency, regardless of the changing year, and hanging ever upon miracles? What eager industry flutters in the spring around the plantation, gathering the bits and brakes scattered for them by winter's storm! What busy preparation, at autumn's first chill wind, wheels and musters overhead for the long flight over southern seas, the swift cheering on the slow, and the young wing supporting the old! And is not this truly called the feeding of the creatures by their Maker? Yes; only, "hat which he giveth them, they gather," by putting his skill within them, as well as spreading his affluence without.—James Martineau.

Random Shots.

I shot an arrow into the air, it fell in the distance, I knew not where, till a neighbor said that it killed his calf, and I had to pay him six and a half ($6.50). I bought some poison to slay some rats, and a neighbor swore that it killed his cats; and, rather than argue across the fence, I paid him four dollars and fifty cents ($4.50). One night I set sailing a toy balloon, and hoped it would soar till it reached the moon; but the candle fell out on a farmer's straw, and he said I must settle or go to law. And that is the way with the random shot; it never hits in the proper spot; and the joke you spring, that you think so smart, may leave a wound in some fellow's heart.—Emporia Gazette.

ARE METHODISTS WILLING TO FACE THE FACTS?

By Rev. C. T. Thrift.

"Brethren, as the man who wrote that report is absent, it will cause no embarrassment for me to ask this question, What do we mean when we say that our charges are in good condition?" The question was asked by one of our bishops who was presiding in a district conference. The pastor had stated in his report that his work was in good condition. It set me to thinking. Now, I have just read the message of our bishops in which I find this statement: "Your general superintendents, after carefully reviewing the work of our beloved church during the year just passed and taking minute account of the conditions prevalent throughout its borders, rejoice to inform you that its prosperity is very marked and its program most cheering." That has set me to thinking again. I rise to ask, What is meant by the marked prosperity of the church?

We must have some standard by which to judge. What was the purpose of Methodism? What was her goal? None other than to spread Scriptural holiness all over these lands. Then the question is, What measure of success has crowned our efforts? Is there any fairer way to try this out than to measure the life of our members by the General Rules of our church? Their significance is two-fold to us. In the first place, we say concerning them: "All of which we are taught by God to observe, even in his written word, which is the only rule, and the sufficient rule both of our faith and practice. And all these we know his Spirit writes on truly awakened hearts." In the second place, they are specific obligations which we have assumed.

The first rule is: "Doing no harm, by avoiding evil of every kind, especially that which is most generally practiced," such as:

1. "The taking of the name of God in vain." Is it not a sad fact that there is a great deal of profanity today among men and even women of the church? If statements from those who are in a position to know can be relied on, it is not an uncommon practice even among stewards in the church. A preacher hears less of it than other men, so his information is secondhand.

2. "The profaning the day of the Lord, either by doing ordinary work therein or by buying or selling." There are church members who run their places of business on Sunday, selling gasoline, soft drinks, and other things. Look at the church members who patronize those places on Sunday. Go to the golf links and the bathing resorts and see whether there are any church members there or not. Is it possible that those men and women and girls who are almost naked are members of the church? Many of them are.

3. "Drunkenness, or drinking spirituous liquors, unless in cases of necessity." The Methodist church has always stood for temperance. Now the nation is dry. Today, therefore, intemperance is not only a sign of a poor church member but also of a bad citizen. Are there not members of the church who are conniving at the smuggling, manufacture, and selling of spirituous liquors and drinking the stuff? How many stewards are fond of their "little toddy"?

4. "Fighting, quarreling, brawling; brother going to law with brother, returning evil for evil, railing for railing; the using many words in buying or selling." How many church members are in lawsuits against their brethren? Let us hope not very many. But there is quarreling and bitter enmity in many places.

5. "The buying or selling goods that have not paid the duty." What about tax dodging, especially on the part of those who are rich? Ask the tax assessor.

6. "The giving or taking things on usury—i. e., unlawful interest." This would apply not only to those who lend money at exorbitant rates of interest but to the one who profiteers in rents and other things.

7. "Uncharitable or unprofitable conversation." Measure the gossip, the smutty jokes and the silly twaddle by that standard.

8. "Doing to others as we would not they should do unto us."

9. "Doing what we know is not for the glory of God," as:

1) "The putting on of gold and costly apparel." Listen to what the Apostle Paul says about the matter. "In like manner also, that women adorn themselves in modest apparel, with shamefacedness and sobriety; not with braided hair, or gold, or pearls, or costly array; but (which becometh women professing godliness) with good works." (1 Tim. ii. 9-10.) It receives attention also at the hands of the Apostle Peter: "Whose adorning let it not be that outward adorning of plaiting the hair, and of wearing of gold, or of putting on apparel; but let it be the hidden man of the heart, in that which is not corruptible, even the ornament of a meek and quiet spirit, which is in the sight of God of great price." (1 Pet. iii. 3-4.) Now measure the way the women of the church have been dressing by that standard. Look at them at the bathing beaches, on the ballroom floor, on the street, and even at church. Their immodest dressing has made them the cynosure of all eyes. Only the blind did not see it. The costly dresses worn by some have kept many poor people away from God's house. Who could hazard a guess at the market value of the diamonds worn by our Southern Methodist women? Only the other day I heard a Methodist preacher's wife spoken of as "a walking jewelry store." There are Methodist women today who paint more than did the street women of a generation ago.

(2) "The taking such diversions as cannot be used in the name of the Lord Jesus." Dancing has always had a bad odor in Methodist circles. This has been affirmed over and over again. The word "revelings" in Galatians v. 21 puts dancing as much under the ban as murder and drunkenness. But look in yonder ballroom where the most indecent and vulgar dances are to be seen. Among the chaperones and patrons are some of the "leading members" of some of our "leading churches." It will not be surprising if we find a steward and his wife or perhaps the president of the missionary society among them. Among the dancers we will find not only members of the church, but even the sons and daughters of stewards and perhaps of the preacher too, and many of the members of the choir and not a few of the teachers of the Sunday school. Think of the drinking that is connected with the dance! Many a girl has been carried home drunk from such places. Think of the immorality and the shame that has followed in the wake of these dances!

Card playing has never been looked upon with favor by Methodists. "Have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness." (Eph. v. 11.) But go in any town today and just look at the number of Methodist women who are organizing bridge clubs and who play by the hour for prizes. Anywhere else it is called common gambling.

What about the indecent pictures that are being put on the screen, the product in the main of the most corrupt gang that can be found anywhere? Look at the vast number of church members—men, women and children—who devour this filth and offscouring of the world.

(3) "The singing those songs or reading those books which do not tend to the knowledge or love of God." It was at a church meeting some time ago. The opening song was not one of the old hymns that our fathers loved to sing, but instead "We are here." Of the making of books there is no end. But the quantity does not guarantee the quality. What are our people reading? In a meeting of a book club, composed largely, if not entirely, of church members, reviews were given of books which had been read. They were the "latest." The general verdict was: "This book is not fit to read." But I wonder if that will make the other members look elsewhere for something to read.

(4) "Softness or needless self-indulgence." Now, our church has never legislated on the tobacco question except a few years ago when it forbade the use of it to the preachers joining the conference after that time. But it seems to me that this clause on "needless self-indulgence" covers the tobacco question pretty well. The use of tobacco is a dirty habit; it is an enslaving habit; it is an injurious habit, for the textbooks that the children are studying set that forth very clearly; it is a costly habit. Now, the logic of the situation seems to me to be this: If it is wrong for a young preacher to use tobacco, it is wrong for an older one to use it. He is setting a bad example for his younger brother. If it is wrong for the pastor to use it, then it is wrong for the presiding elder to use it. I knew a layman who asked to be excused from entertaining the presiding elder because the elder used tobacco, and the layman did not want to have such an example before his boys. If it is wrong for the young preachers to use tobacco, it seems to me that it is wrong and a poor example for a bishop to use it. It seems to me that for the sake of consistency and the value of example every preacher should have given up the use of tobacco when the general conference passed that law. If it has no hold upon him, it would be easy; if he has been enslaved by it, he certainly ought to be set free from the habit. I think some of the western conferences have made a rule that no user of tobacco can serve on any board or committee of the conference. At some of the conferences the Sunday school room has looked filthy before Saturday night because of tobacco. At others I have seen the ground around the church nearly covered with cigar stumps and tobacco quids. But if it is wrong for the preacher to use tobacco, then it is wrong for the layman to use it. If it is wrong to use it, then it follows that it is wrong to raise it. I am no fanatic on the tobacco question. But stern logic drives to that conclusion after the general conference made that law. Yet the use of tobacco is on the increase, and even girls are becoming cigarette fiends. But will the use of tobacco stand the test of "needless self-indulgence?"

(5) "Laying up treasures upon earth." According to the teaching of the Master, there are some "rich fools" today. Sometimes they have not been very careful about how they made money, but they are exceedingly careful about holding on to it.

(6) "Borrowing without a probability of paying or taking up goods without the probability of paying for them." Ask the merchants how church members stand on the matter of paying their obligations for provisions and clothes.

Does this measuring by the General Rules indicate "prosperity?" But we are not yet done. Look at the divorced people; look at the "dope fiends"; look at those who are gambling in "futures"; look at the gambling on baseball and football even at our church institutions; look at the homes without any children or with only one child (the occupants practice what the landlord preaches, "No children wanted"). Ask any doctor about suicide and infanticide. These things confront us on every side.

We have not time to measure with the second rule. But here it is: "Doing good, by being in every kind merciful after their power, as they have opportunity, doing good of every possible sort, and, as far as possible, to all men." What about our sins of omission?

Here is the third rule: "Attending upon all the ordinances of God." Such are:

1. "The public worship of God; the ministry of the word, either read or expounded." Look at the small congregations which worship on Sunday or Wednesday night. The leaders of the church tell us that forty per cent of the members never darken the door of the church.

2. "The Supper of the Lord." Of those who attend church, many seldom or never commune.

3. "Family and private prayer." Very few families have family prayer. Many stewards will not lead in prayer.

4. "Searching the Scriptures." There is a woeful ignorance of the Bible even among those who have been in the church a long time.

5. "Fasting or abstinence." Do we ever hear anything about "fasting" in this "fast" age?

If our sins of omission were less, our sins of commission would also be less. But the results of this measuring will prepare the way for another statement. A large per cent of our membership say they have not been converted or know nothing about conversion. As for baptism of the Holy Spirit, they "have not so much as heard whether there be any Holy Spirit." One of the leading pastors in one of our leading conferences is quoted as saying that the enforcement of the General Rules would not leave a single member in his church. A preacher of large experience told me that in his judgment, three-fourths of our membership would fall before a moderate application of the General Rules.

Now if these things are so, and I am convinced that I speak forth the words of truth and soberness, what do we mean when we say that "our charge is in good condition" or that "the church is in a prosperous condition?" We cannot measure prosperity by handsome churches built and large salaries paid and money raised for missionary, educational and charitable enterprises. Are our people right here at home being saved from their sins and adorning the gospel by holy living? That is the true test.

Now let no man think that I am belittling the Methodist church. I believe that it will not suffer by comparison with any other branch of the church with which I am acquainted. Preachers of other denominations confess privately that the moral and spiritual condition with them is just as deplorable as I have described.

But what can we do about it? I do not believe that we will ever get out of the wilderness until we confess that we are in the wilderness. What we need is a leader with clear vision and sublime courage, who has a big heart and a strong mind, who hates sin in all its forms and does not fear even the devil himself. Any man who can awaken Methodism in this hour will deserve to rank with Wesley himself.

As a guide to holy living according to Methodist standards, I do not believe that anything better will be found than the General Rules. They are not out of date. If we could get the Methodist church to measure up to the standard, that in itself would be a great revival. I believe that it would be followed by the greatest ingathering of souls that the church has ever witnessed. If the standards of Methodism are good for the outer life, the standard doctrines of Methodism are good for the inner life. Suppose we could have a campaign of preaching on the universality of sin and the depravity of the human heart, the universality of the atonement and the marvelous love of God, repentance, justification by faith only, conversion or regeneration as a matter of experience and a force for life, the witness of the Spirit, the baptism of the Holy Ghost, holiness, or sanctification; suppose we had this in every church in Methodism; suppose every bishop, every presiding elder, and every pastor should preach these things for six months or a year; suppose that every church paper should ring the changes on these things likewise. I believe that we should see a mighty change in the standard of living among our people. What a glorious opportunity for our bishops to do some mighty preaching in the annual conferences and to challenge the pastors to follow their leadership to the awakening of Methodism throughout its borders! The condition is grave; the opportunity for great achievements is sublime. The call is for mighty leadership in spiritual things. God grant that a leader may not fail us in these times. But one of the most essential things is for every preacher and every layman to face the facts as to our real condition.

THE CHURCH'S RESPONSIBILITY TO THE COTTON MILL COMMUNITIES

By Rev. Frank Culbreth.

I should like to see the North Carolina conference become interested in cotton mill work, and manifest that interest in a real effort to at least develop an intelligent system that would fully cover and carry on this class of work. Our conference does not begin to realize its responsibility in the mill community. The Methodist church was born in a college but went at once to the factory. The Methodists of North Carolina do not begin to realize the possibilities of the cotton mill field. The leaders of our conference are not very intelligently informed as to the facts and conditions of cotton mill life, and there is not a single instance where one of them has given personal supervision to the work of a cotton mill church. North Carolina is rapidly becoming a manufacturing state and as yet the church has not given the problem a thought. No serious attention or consideration has been given to this class of our population. A small per cent of cotton mill churches has been on the mission board and as a rule these churches have not remained on the board as long as churches of some other classes have. We can defend the appropriations made at Chapel Hill, and a few other points on the ground of expediency and the returns they promised, but these cannot be regarded as mission points. But the work of the church in the cotton mill community is just as expedient, promises just as great returns, and is also truly a mission field.

You will find as great a variety of people in a cotton mill community as you will find in an ordinary city. The only way to know and understand the conditions that exist is to go into their homes, talk with them there, and on the streets, and at their work. You will be both surprised and astonished at what you see and hear. Some of them have all but no ideals of life, the loosest notions of morality, and their religion is hardly par with superstition. In a few instances you will find parents whose whole notion of parenthood is that children will pay dividends just as hogs and chickens will. I have been far more impressed with the pitiableness than with the hopelessness of the situation. I have found it in my heart to view the situation in the same light that Whittier viewed the squirrels' stealing his raspberries. These conditions cannot be successfully dealt with at long distance; at a secretary's desk, nor at headquarters. These are not problems in arithmetic to be solved at home and carried in on class. Real problems like these are not solved at all; they are worked out in actual life. There is no way to help these folks, or anybody else, separate and apart from actual life. We cannot make them Christ-like except through real life, the life that they may see and know. Any help or undertaking that does not teach in its beginning self-help, self-confidence, self-reliance will be an hindrance rather than a help to constructive work. In teaching these things we are dealing with causes. Hitherto we have treated symptoms and dealt with occasions. This constructive work, like religion, is a life proposition. Cotton mill people need some help and encouragement, but very little will be accomplished until they are taught to help themselves, and most of what the church has undertaken for them has been done with a spirit and in a manner to do just the opposite.

But there is another side, a much brighter side to mill life. Here are well kept homes and well regulated families; as near ideal in the family relations as can be found anywhere. Some of the finest, most beautiful and lovable characters to be found anywhere live in cotton mill communities. They are as truly devout consecrated Christians who love God and the church as the Methodist church has produced. Many of the cotton mill boys and girls are bright, apt and steady; talented, reliable and industrious. They are eager for an opportunity and if given an opportunity will make good anywhere. They are going through our schools and would like to go to college.

And there is another thing: mill people are used to team work. They work by machinery and in conjunction with scores of others. They know how to co-operate. They are accustomed to leadership, system and regularity, and hardly know how to move without them. They have a loyalty that is not surpassed by any people. A larger per cent of mill people are anxious to learn, to do, and to be than any class of folks I am acquainted with.

Cotton mill people are not so transient as has been generally supposed. A good per cent with fair treatment take root, improve their condition, and become most excellent and useful citizens. This fact makes it possible for a church to have a settled, permanent membership and thus overcome one of the greatest difficulties hitherto in doing church work among mill people.

So far as my personal knowledge goes, as a rule, the managers and officials of cotton mills are Christian gentlemen. They are humane and considerate of their help to a marked degree. They know better than any one else that the religious life of the people is of primary importance and the work of the church is an essential factor in the operation of the mill. They are very appreciative of the church's efforts, and are generally ready and anxious to co-operate with the church in any real constructive enterprise. The sympathy, co-operation, and general support of the management and the officials of the mill are essential to the success of the church. The measure of co-operation will measure the church's success or failure. They are usually hard-headed, cold business men. They think more of a religion of practice and experience than they do of a religion of theory.

I firmly believe that the denomination that takes hold of the cotton mill work in earnest and with consecrated intelligence today, and becomes proficient in really doing things and accomplishing will be largely the church of tomorrow in North Carolina, and will be a most important factor in the moral, social, business and religious life of our great state.

TSING MING

Miss Pearle Way.

We are having spring now. It is very important to know that it is spring, for this climate has a way of jumping around so that sometimes it just skips spring and goes right over into summer. But now the weather is bright, clear and cool; the skies are rarest blue and the earth is carpeted with golden mustard flowers and pink clover. On the hills wild azaleas are flaming and purple lilac is shedding its fragrance everywhere. Oh, it is lovely in China in the springtime! The black and white magpie chatters to the old goldfish in the pool in the temple courtyard and the whitethroats build nests in peach trees. Along the canal banks the farmers have banked their rice seedlings and the paddyfields are being prepared for the transplanting. Everywhere the fishermen have set their white sails against the wind and are off to fish in the moonlight. That's how we know it's spring.

Another mark of the tender season—the Chinese have shed some of their winter clothes. Weather in China is measured by so many coats; extremely cold weather may get to be seven coats cold and summer weather to the coolie may mean no coats. Just now it is about two coats cold, though at night it is three.

A better way of celebrating the Tsing Ming than garnishing the graves and burning ghost money has recently been inaugurated by the students. They have introduced the practice of planting trees and this year in the north of China, around Peking, thousands of trees were planted at the Tsing Ming season. China's great primeval forests have been exhausted for many centuries; her great plains and mountain sides are treeless, shrubless, bare and barren looking. But it need not be so, for China's soil is fertile and of how much greater benefit will this reformation be to the nation than refurbishing the past—the attempt to live in the present on the depleted past. The Chinese have too long dwelt in the past and it has brought their lower classes to poverty, ignorance, superstition, to a condition indescribable. This one thing, small and insignificant outwardly, may be an indication that she is coming to the realization that the future is more important than the past. And when China realizes that the present and the future must be cared for and the past left behind, she will be almost ready to claim the position in the present that was her glory in the past. Every missionary thinks the land and nation in which his activities lie are the greatest. I live in China and am not different.

I am teaching again this year in the night school at the Moore Memorial church. This school runs for four months and has an attendance of about two hundred and fifty, all boys and men. There are about fifteen on the faculty, seven of whom are foreigners and all of whom are college graduates, one of the Chinese members being a Ph. D. of Yale. I have a class twice a week in English conversation. There are eighteen enrolled and there are usually about sixteen present. It is quite interesting. To use a prohibition phrase, I am getting a real "kick" out of it. The men in this class are employed in foreign British and American business houses and are very quick and bright and have a very good knowledge of the English language. Many of these students are not Christians and of course every possible opportunity is utilized to present Christian doctrines.

Mission work, I think, is making steady progress in China. Many of the old barriers to its spread have been removed, and while there are now many new and different obstacles and problems their very presence points to progress. One hears of conversation every day. Just now a letter came to the office telling of an almost startling conversation. A girl in Changchow, a student in the normal school, in the midst of a recitation suddenly exclaimed, "I believe!" The most heartening indication of the strength and progress of Christianity in China is the launching of the Manchurian mission by the Chinese church—a project initiated and to be carried on by the Chinese of our church, a mission by the Chinese to the Chinese in Manchuria. This should mean and I believe will mean not only encouragement to the missionaries laboring in China, but a revitalizing of the spirit of the Chinese church.

teacher of mathematics, Weaver College, since 1921.

Thomas Oakley Deaderick

A. B., University of Tennessee, 1872, and A. M. later; B. L., Cumberland University, 1874; teacher of Latin and Greek at University of Tennessee, 1877-1888; student German universities of Berlin and Leipsig, 1888-1889; teacher of Latin and Greek, West Florida Seminary, 1889-1891; professor of Latin and French, Southwestern Presbyterian University, 1891-1913; student Chicago University, summers of 1904-1907; attended lectures, Columbia University, 1912; professor of ancient and modern languages, Weaver College, since 1916.

S. B. Shurchwell, Coach

Biology, Physics, Chemistry

Student University of Mississippi, 1915-1917 and 1919-1920; summer student, University of Mississippi, 1916 and 1920; student George Peabody College for Teachers, summer of 1923; principal Union High School, Miss., 1917-1918; principal Central High School, Pascagoula, Miss., 1920-1921; Science Department and coach of athletics, Weaver College, since 1922.

Miss Lucile Smith

English Composition and Literature Graduate Georgia State College for Women; student two years at University of Chicago; summer student University of Georgia, 1922; student Georgia State College for Women, 1923; for eight years teacher in public schools of Georgia. Teacher of English and History, Brevard Institute, 1920-1923.

Miss Mary T. Pescud, Librarian

Spanish and Portuguese

L. I., George Peabody College for Teachers; graduate Eaton and Burnett's Business College; special course, Scarritt Bible and Training School; student in Library Science and assistant in Library, North Carolina State College of Agriculture and Engineering; missionary teacher in Brazil, 1898-1915; reader of Spanish Portuguese, French and Italian in Censor Bureau, New York, during the war; librarian and teacher of Spanish and Portuguese, Lander College, 1921-23.

Arthur L. Manchester, Director of Music Department

Music Department

Piano, Voice, Theory, Harmony Graduate of Philadelphia Music Academy; student of Richard Zeckwer and F. J. Bussman, of Royal Conservatory, Milan, Italy; student of F. H. Tubbs, New York City; associate editor "The Etude," 1892-1896; editor "The Musician," 1896-1902; dean school of music, Converse College, and director South Atlantic States Music Festival 1904-1903; director Fine Arts Department, Southwestern University, 1913-1918; director Music Department, Hardin College, 1918-1920; composer, contributor to musical publications, conductor symphony orchestra, Elmira New York, 1920-1923.

To be supplied, Dietitian and Nurse Domestic Art and Home Economics Mrs. C. H. Trowbridge, Secretary and Treasurer

A. B., St Charles College; summer student in English, Monteagle, Tenn.; seven years teacher of English, Centenary Academy.

JUDGE VS. BISHOP

Bishop Mouzon in his paper published in last week's Advocate says: "John Wesley did not hold the verbal diction theory."

In his notes on the New Testament to chapter 2, verse 13, 1 Cor., after quoting these words, "Which also we speak in words taught by the Holy Spirit," Wesley says this: "Such are all the words of Scripture." That is plain language.

Mr. Wesley even changes the translation of the clause in 1 Cor. 2:13, "Comparing spiritual things with spiritual," so that it reads thus: "Explaining spiritual things by spiritual words."

The bishop does not know what version to read as verbally inspired or whether the original Greek or Hebrew or Latin. That is an age old question.

The Bishop should read that great book on Plenary Inspiration by Dr. Gaussen, professor of systematic theology Oratoire, Geneva. He meets this very question and says "the answer is easy." O. H. Allen.

WANTED

To rent a tent for a meeting of two or three weeks first part of August. Address at once: W. T. Albright, Mt. Pleasant, N. C.

CHOIR LEADER WANTED

Man or woman—ne who can sing and play—to help in revival work for two weeks, July 8 to 22. Work in country. Pay reasonable; not large. Write, giving references, name of your pastor, etc., in first letter.

E. D. Dodd, Middleburg, N. C.

STOP CHEATING YOUR FAMILY

You doubtless fully realize your duty to your family in making your home life attractive, entertaining, cultured and refined; and you have promised yourself that some day you will fill that vacant spot in the parlor with a splendid piano or self-player piano of the sweetest tone and highest quality, or that you will replace the old rattle-trap with a superb new instrument. But the days, the months, and possibly the years have silently crept by and still there is no good music in your home. In the meantime, home is not what it might be, for a home without a high-grade piano or self-player piano is seriously and hopelessly handicapped.

Why not stop cheating yourself and your family right now? You have only one life to live, here, why let procrastination steal your family's big opportunity for social, mental and spiritual advancement? Remember that a musical education is not simply a social accomplishment, but also gives mental exercise and spiritual development, and may prove a means of support in after years. Why not let the Advocate Piano Club solve the financial problem for you now as it has for some and is doing for hundreds of others? It was organized to overcome the very difficulties which confront you. Every thing has been provided for, no feature overlooked. Write for your copy of the Club's catalogue and full particulars today. Address the managers, Ludden & Bates, Advocate Piano Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

Take Business Training at Home

We will train you just as thoroughly at your home as at our College. Write for big, FREE book, "Guide to Business Success." Draughon's Practical Business College, Dept. N. C., Nashville, Tenn.

Church Furniture
WORK OF THE HIGHEST QUALITY
AT REASONABLE PRICES
Write for Catalogue
BUDDE & WEIS MFG. CO.
JACKSON, TENNESSEE

Kill All Flies! THEY SPREAD DISEASE

Placed anywhere, DAISY FLY KILLER attracts and kills all flies. Neat, clean, ornamental, convenient and cheap. Lasts all season. Made of metal, can't spill or tip over; will not soil or injure anything. Guaranteed.
DAISY FLY KILLER
at your dealer or
6 by EXPRESS, prepaid, $1.25.
HAROLD SOMERS, 150 De Kalb Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

DR. H. E. GOETZ SANITARIUM

Mental and Nervous Diseases
Select cases of morphinism and alcoholism treated by new and successful methods. Write for information. All correspondence confidential.
P. O. Box 487 Knoxville, Tenn.
Established 10 years

Best For Baby's Skin

Soothing, healing, antiseptic. Stops pimples, rash, hives, eczema—

TETTERINE

Used by mothers everywhere. Get at your druggist's or from the SHUPTRINE CO. :: :: SAVANNAH, GA.

EXPERT KODAK FINISHING

Developing and printing done by experts. Most beautiful work guaranteed at all times. Satisfaction or no charge. Developing 6 exposure rolls 10 cents, 10 and 12 exposure rolls 15 cents, film packs 20 cents per pack. Printing 1 5-8x2 1-2—3 cents, 2 1-4x3 1-4—4 cents, 2 1-2x4 1-4—5 cents, 3 1-4x5 1-2—6 cents. Quick delivery. Send one film to test our service.

LIGONS DRUG STORE, Spartanburg, S. C.

School Desks,
Opera Chairs,
Folding Chairs
Kindergarten Chairs
Church Pews,
School Supplies,
Blackboards

Southern Desk Co., Hickory, N. C.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM
REMOVES DANDRUFF
STOPS HAIR FALLING
It has been used with success for more than 40 years
RESTORES COLOR AND BEAUTY TO GRAY AND FADED HAIR
60¢ & $1.00 at all druggists
HISCOX CHEMICAL WORKS
PATCOGUE, N. Y.
When washing hair always use Foreston Shampoo

WEAVER COLLEGE

Denominational :: Co-Educational
WEAVERVILLE, N. C.

- || Tenth and Eleventh Grades in High School.
  - || Freshman and Sophomore Years of College Course.
  - || Lake and Forested Campus Nine Miles from Asheville.
  - || Modern Dormitories, Well-equipped Library and Laboratory.
  - || Athletics, Receptions, Literary Societies, Religious Activities.
  - || One Christian Teacher with Education and Experience to Every Fifteen Pupils.
  - || An Excellent Gateway from the Restrictions of a Good High School to the Responsibilities of Professional and Business Life.
- For Catalogue and Other Information address
C. H. TROWBRIDGE, President
WEAVERVILLE, NORTH CAROLINA

Do You Love the Companionship of a Log Fire?

After a day of study and recreation
Then you'll enjoy life at the Mission Building

LOG FIRE AT MISSION BLDG.
MRS. S. F. BARRETT IN CHARGE

Details Available: Board of Trustees of Weaver College, July 28 to August 10; Annual Meeting of Laymen, August 16-17; Sisters' Epworth League, August 16-18.
We will operate during September provided a sufficient number register by August 15th.
For rates write W. M. CASSETTY, Jr., P. O. Box 210, Nashville, Tenn.
After July 13th, Manager of the Mission Building, Lake Junaluska, N. C.

WOMAN'S PAGE

N. C. CONFERENCE

Mrs. J. LeGrand Everett, . . . . . Editor
Rockingham, N. C.

W. N. C. CONFERENCE

Mrs. H. K. Boyer . . . . . Editor
Mt. Airy, N. C.

Western North Carolina Conference

In presenting our woman's work at the Waynesville district conference a week or so ago at Franklin, I made some statements concerning the spiritual condition of our missionary societies and was quite surprised to find preachers so concerned about the condition. One pastor told me that the missionary society in his church did more harm than good spiritually. Many of them asked me to publish my statement on this subject to call the women of the church to attention. This is what I said:

By carefully reading the society columns in the daily papers, missionary items in our church organs and by a close and prayerful study of the needs of the women of the Waynesville district, I am convinced that the possibility for a forward movement rests in the spiritual condition of our membership. I am sure the women throughout Methodism need a new vision of Christ and a new conception of the meaning and function of a Methodist missionary society.

What is a missionary society anyway? Is it a band of women organized to meet once a month to talk over a bit of work accomplished and a bit about the great work to be accomplished and much more about other things which have nothing whatsoever to do with missionary work? Is it an organization to get up bazaars, raise money to build church houses, put carpets on the floors, collect dues and hurriedly and thoughtlessly send off a meager sum of money labelling it the "pledge of the society?" Does not this constitute the work of the missionary society in many places? I do not mean to minimize the work our women do in the department of local work—I would emphasize the fact that the primary aim which some of us seem to have forgotten is the evangelization of the world. The evangelization of China? Yes. Japan? Yes. Darkest Africa? Yes. But how about America? How about North Carolina? How about your own county, your own town and city, your own church, your next door neighbor? I come still closer. How about the circle of your own precious family? And yet closer—how about your own soul?

The missionary society which is fulfilling the great commission, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature," is a power both in the home church and in the foreign field in leading souls to Christ. The other commission of our Saviour, "As my Father has sent Me, even so send I you," is just as important. How did the Father send Christ? First of all, to reveal Himself to the world. This is the primary duty of the women of the missionary societies, but how can we reveal Christ if we do not know Him as our personal Saviour? May I yet more plainly say that no woman is consistent in being an officer in the society whose chief aim is to reveal Christ to the world and whose life is not consecrated to this aim in all of its duties and pleasures and who does not stand in her community as a light to our young people by her consistent Christian character and deportment.

In other words, we shall not be sane and consistent until the women of Southern Methodism realize the ridiculous inconsistency of making it possible for the secular paper to print in the same column an announcement of the brilliant bridge party and the meeting of a missionary society, the matron of the former being styled a brilliant leader of society, and of the latter a prominent leader of the church, and the home and the woman in each case being the same. Does the custom of the Methodist church in all the past—the preaching of her ministry, the action of her conferences, the decision of her bishops—stand for nothing? When the world is dying for a little bit of love and our young men and young women are facing these perilous times and are looking to us for guidance and training and leadership in the church and the home, the pity of it all is that the so-called Christian womanhood and motherhood of America, and I regret to say, of Southern Methodism can in any wise justify themselves in wasting their precious time in such frivolous pastime even if such things were not inconsistent with the spirit and loyalty of the church. When those who are honored with the offices of the missionary society shall descend to these things we are horrified.

My plea is for the deepening of the spiritual life of our women that our missionary societies may be a vital force in the church for the salvation of immortal souls. A force constantly functioning to that end, and during the revival season, a force that needs only the call of the pastor for each member of every missionary society to stand at "attention," ready for cottage prayer meetings, personal work, or at least with a consistent Christian life and not with an inconsistent, compromising life with the world that will speak so loud our voices for God cannot be heard.

Mrs. J. Dale Stentz,
Dis. Sec. Waynesville District.

How we wish that this plea of Mrs. Stentz for a deepening of the spiritual life of our women might find an active and immediate response in our societies.

ASHEVILLE DISTRICT MEETING

Interesting and profitable was the district meeting of the Woman's Missionary Societies of the Asheville district, which was held at Biltmore June 19th and 20th. Practically every society on the district was represented and the delegates brought good reports, showing that the societies had made progress the past year and that plans for a larger work have been made for this year.

The meeting was presided over by the district secretary, Mrs. V. L. Stone, and the first service at eleven o'clock a. m. was conducted by Mrs. E. H. Norwood of Brevard, who choosing for her subject "Fear," gave an inspiring talk stressing the fact that love casteth out all fear. Testimonies from those present as to God's goodness to them were given and many fervent prayers were offered.

After the regular organization the morning session adjourned for the splendid luncheon served by the ladies of the Biltmore church in the annex of the church.

At two o'clock, after an opening prayer, the report of the district secretary was given and was full of valuable suggestions for the advancement of the work. Mrs. Stone urged co-operation in bringing the Asheville district out in full in its financial obligations and especially stressed the importance of extra efforts to secure a place on the honor roll. The reports of delegates were given and the pledges for 1923 taken, and we trust that this year is to be the greatest year the Asheville district has ever known.

Miss Elizabeth Streeter, returned missionary from Mexico, was a valued visitor to the meeting, and the remainder of the afternoon was given to her in which to give information on her work in Mexico. Miss Streeter came to the platform on a crutch and said that she felt that nothing could be of greater interest in connection with her talk than to tell how it had been made necessary for her to use a crutch. She gave most vividly an account of her encounter with a mob of Mexican Catholics, as she and other Christians were going through the interior, carrying the gospel to those who have not yet heard it. How she was thrown from her burro into a stream of water, breaking her hip, and how for two nights and a day she laid by the roadside without medical attention, finally reaching the hospital after days of suffering. But notwithstanding all that God has spared her life and she is hoping after a furlough, to go back to Mexico and do all in her power to save the unsaved, and to further the cause of Christianity which is getting a stronghold in Mexico.

Tuesday evening's service was opened with a devotional service by Rev. H. C. Sprinkle, presiding elder of the Asheville district, following which special music was rendered by the choirs of Chestnut Street and Haywood Street churches. A beautiful pageant by the children of Chestnut Street society, under the direction of Mrs. John Crowell, was given and enjoyed. Mrs. H. A. Dunham, conference secretary, gave "Echoes of the Council" and was heard with interest.

Wednesday morning's devotional was led by Mrs. G. L. Steele of Hendersonville, and following a talk on "How the Adult Society May Sponsor the Young People's Society" was given by Mrs. W. R. Harris, conference recording secretary. Dr. O. J. Chandler, assistant pastor of Central church, Asheville, N. C., himself a Kentuckian and friend of Miss Belle H. Bennett, presented the Bennett Memorial, choosing as a foundation for his remarks the latter part of Matthew 16, 25: "Whosoever will lose his life for my sake shall find it." Mrs. H. A. Dunham told of the plans of the Council to memorialize Miss Bennett through the building of a Greater Scarritt and pledges for the Bennett Memorial were assumed by representatives of the district. Songs and recitations by the juniors from many of the societies of the district were enjoyed, after which Miss Amy Hackney, conference superintendent of children's work, presented the work of her department, illustrating with beautiful pansies her remarks, each of the five petals representing some vital department of the work, viz., mission study and Bible study, finances, social service, junior division and baby division.

Mrs. Whit Gaskins of West Asheville presented, in a forceful manner, "Bible and Mission Study."

In short but interesting talks "Social Service" was presented by Mrs. F. J. Bates of Chestnut Street church, "Stewardship" by Mrs. Carlock Hawk of Haywood Street, and "Week of Prayer Observance" by Mrs. W. N. Collings of Central church. Special features of the morning were the vocal solo by Mrs. McDowell and reading by Miss Edna Orr, both of Bethel church.

Miss Frances Auld gave a most delightful monologue which she had arranged from a playlet entitled, "How Aunt Tillie Learned to Tithe."

Luncheon was served at the church. The presence of a large number of preachers from the district was most inspiring, and from every standpoint the 1923 meeting is one of the best the district has ever held.

HERE AND THERE

We were glad to note in last week's page that Mrs. Everett was alert, and called the attention of her officers to the fact that reports were due July 1. We hope that her words were seeds sown in good ground and that we may hear the glad news that every officer in both conferences reported on time. Such unprecedented news would almost or quite cause a revival to "break out" among the conference officers. Fortunate that Mrs. Everett was not having a wedding in her family, because we might have missed her timely article.

Recently our Sunday school secretary, Mr. Woosley, had a piece of good news and actually said "Hallelujah!" Said it right out loud, and then we wanted to say Amen! but restrained ourselves. And Mr. Woosley better "watch out," for a too frequent repetition of these obsolete terms will mark us as antiquated and we will both lose our jobs. But if it should happen that every report was sent on time we would take a chance regardless. Officers, send us the news.

The minutes of the Monroe Annual Meeting are out, and we want to congratulate Mrs. Harris on this difficult work, which is a large service splendidly rendered.

North Carolina Conference

WOMANHOOD AND THE KINGDOM

In this world-wide movement of women, for women and by women, the significance is the NEW woman. NEW, because school room and college doors have been thrown wide open to her. . . . NEW, because the law has made it possible for her to receive, obtain, and hold property. . . . NEW, because the world has been opened to her. . . . NEW, because, above all, a trained mind and the open word of God have made the will of God a real and personal thing to her. . . . She hears God's voice speaking to her from that great throng of helpless industrial workers, one-half of whom are illiterate, as they grope and struggle like another blind giant, turning sightless eyes in mute appeal they know not whither.—Belle H. Bennett, Lambuth-Bennett Book of Remembrance.

A METHODIST HEROINE DIES

When Mrs. Daisy Kelley Lambuth died on May 24, one of the heroic women of Methodism passed on to the spiritual world. She was the daughter of Dr. D. C. Kelley, one of the great leaders in our church in his day.

Daisy Kelley was married to Walter Lambuth following his graduation in the Medical Department of Vanderbilt University in 1877, and they went to China. She entered with all her heart into the work, learned to love with a passion the Oriental people, and continued to love them, to pray for them, and to rejoice that her husband could minister to them, although for the last several years of his life it meant separation from him.—Nashville Advocate.

RECOMMENDATIONS TO CONFERENCES AND AUXILIARIES

The Belle H. Bennett Memorial Committee is recommending the following to the conference and auxiliaries:

1. The appointment of a memorial committee in each conference to make plans and carry forward the movement throughout the conference.

2. The appointment of a collector in each auxiliary to co-operate with the auxiliary treasurer in securing pledges and collecting funds.

3. That all certificates issued to auxiliaries or individuals within the bounds of a given conference shall be countersigned and issued by the treasurer of that conference upon the payment of any number of even shares, or for full payment of all shares subscribed.

New Literature.

A book of directions for conferences and auxiliaries will be prepared and issued by the Council memorial committee; also blanks for the auxiliary collector. As soon as these come from the press they will be mailed to the conferences through the regular channels.

Special leaflets featuring the memorial will be prepared for young people

(Continued on page fifteen)

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORK

N. C. CONFERENCE

L. L. Gobbel .....Editor
Durham, N. C.

W. N. C. CONFERENCE

O. V. Woosley .....Editor
Lexington, N. C.

Western North Carolina Conference

THANK YOU

So long as our Sunday schools stand by us as loyally and as liberally as the ones here presented there will be no doubt but that the Sunday school work in the Western North Carolina conference will grow and glow and go. During the past week the following Sunday schools have sent their offering to Mr. H. A. Dunham, Asheville, N. C., which offering was an incident in the rendering of a most excellent Sunday school program:

Hebron, Weddington Ct. ....	$ 1.50
Bogers, Concord Ct. ....	3.35
Stony Point .....	6.30
Park Place, Greensboro .....	26.23
Mills River, Mills River Ct. ....	15.66
Friendship, W. Greensboro Ct. ....	9.00
Kernersville .....	9.13
Mount Holly .....	9.00
New Hope, Morven Ct. ....	2.50
Ramseur .....	18.65
Hopewell, Randolph Ct. ....	6.00
Prospect, Thomasville Ct. ....	4.75
Summerfield, Summerfield Ct. ....	28.00
Liberty, Liberty Ct. ....	8.00

MOORESVILLE

A few Sundays ago it was my pleasure to attend the Sunday school and then at eleven o'clock to speak to the congregation at Central church, Mooresville, where Rev. L. B. Abernethy and Supt. Mort McKnight are leading in a constantly growing line of church work. During the past several weeks quite an addition has been added to the church, thus making room for an enlarged Sunday school. Brother Abernethy has done an outstanding piece of work in this building enterprise.

Beginning Sunday afternoon, September 2, Mooresville's first Co-operative Standard Training School for Methodist and Presbyterian Sunday school workers will be launched. In addition to a large attendance from Mooresville good delegations are expected from Statesville, Davidson-Fairview charge, Mount Zion Station, Mooresville circuit, Troutman circuit and Rock Springs circuit.

FAIRVIEW

There are quite a number of Fairviews in our conference, but none present a clearer scene of progress than Fairview, a fine country church, half way between Mooresville and Davidson College. It was my pleasure to attend Sunday school and speak to this congregation a few Sundays ago and to note an enlarged church plant containing seven new Sunday school rooms to take care of better Sunday school work. Rev. R. L. Foster, as pastor, and C. W. Thompson, as superintendent, make a mighty good team. Fairview will send a good delegation to our Mooresville Training School.

COTTON GROVE

Miss Virginia Jenkins, our Elementary superintendent, reports a most satisfactory visit to our hustling little congregation at Cotton Grove, a nice little chapel on the Linwood circuit, where Supt. Leroy Miller co-operates with Rev. J. W. Campbell, as pastor, in the furtherance of religious education. The occasion of Miss Jenkins's visit was the observance of Sunday School Day, which program was most effectively presented and at which she addressed the good sized congregation present. Miss Jenkins reports that Cotton Grove, a one-room church, uses Graded Lessons, has curtailed off corners for the small children, uses suitable song books and is working towards meeting the conditions of a One Room Church Program of Work. Cotton Grove makes our hearts glad.

A BIG DAY

Last Sunday was a big day. It was spent at Bethel, Cabarrus county, where an old church has been torn down and a large new brick church with ample room for all services of a membership of 400 can be accommodated. I was expecting a transformation at Bethel, but was not prepared to see the magnitude of the transformation. The work, begun by Rev. R. F. Honeycutt, is being earnestly pushed by the present pastor, Rev. R. E. Hunt, whose heart and soul are yearning for the completion of an enterprise well begun.

It was Sunday School Day at the time mentioned and a great concourse of people had gathered under the old arbor, of camp meeting fame, to celebrate in honor of religious education. The improvised stage was made most beautiful by wagon loads of God's wild flowers, Brown Eyed Susans predominating. Supt. R. A. Horton, a fine young man, and his committee of young ladies had prepared a most excellent program and the large audience present sat spellbound as the boys and girls effectively used their opportunity to speak to them. After dinner on the grounds your humble servant, in his second effort of the day, and Rev. J. H. Armbrust helped in the matter of raising funds for finishing the building half way completed. It was a great day and the boys and girls and men and women joined hands and hearts in the furtherance of God's work.

TWO OF A KIND

"We had a splendid little Sunday School Day exercise and got a good collection as you know. We have been having an average attendance of about 125 and we are planning a rally day for July 1st, at which time we are planning to have present 200 members. Our people are willing and ready to do anything we ask of them. The main thing that we need, as I see it, is for you to arrange for us to have a training school real soon and get us in shape to do some real constructive work. I will appreciate it if you would see what you can do for us and let me know how soon you could put on such a course at Rutherfordton. Spindale will join in with us and we can easily get a good crowd for you.

Howard, of Spindale, and I are planning to go to Junaluska this summer and I would like for you to send me any literature you might have on the courses given there this summer.

J. C. Cowan, Jr.

RECHECKING

During the past two weeks Miss Jenkins has been very busy in rechecking Elementary departments so that they may comply with the new ruling adopted by our church which makes the minimum rank of the departments correspond with the rank of the school. Heretofore there have been quite a number of "C" departments in "B" rank schools. This is no longer permissible.

Miss Jenkins has not yet completed her rechecking, but to date the following departments have qualified:

- Trinity, Charlotte, Beginners "B."
- West Market Street, Greensboro, Cradle Roll "A," Beginners "B."
- Spring Garden Street, Greensboro, Cradle Roll "A."
- First Church, Salisbury, Beginners "B."
- First Church, Lexington, Beginners "B."
- Centenary, Winston-Salem, Primary "B."

North Carolina Conference

STANDARD TRAINING SCHOOLS

At least five more standard training schools will be held in the North Carolina conference between now and November 1. This number have already been definitely scheduled, and one or two others are likely to be arranged. Some of these will cover a wide area of territory, and we are listing below those definitely decided upon so that Sunday school workers interested may begin now making whatever preparations necessary to attend:

1. Rockingham District School, Carolina College, Maxton, August 6-11. (For the entire district.)
2. Rocky Mount School, at Rocky Mount, September 23-30. (For Rocky Mount, Nashville, Tarboro, Battleboro, Whitakers, and so on.)
3. Fayetteville School, at Fayetteville, October 7-13. (For eastern half of Fayetteville district.)
4. West Fayetteville District School, at Jonesboro, October 14-20. (For western half of Fayetteville district.)
5. New Bern School, at New Bern, October 28-November 3.

Plans were projected for a district-wide school at Weldon July 1-6, but conditions in the district made necessary the postponement of this school to a future date. Announcements will be made later.

In addition to these standard schools a number of non-standard schools will be held in the various districts. Ten or twelve have been held already this year, and perhaps an equal number will be held this summer and fall.

DON'T FORGET JUNALUSKA

And don't forget Junaluska, the outstanding school for Southern Methodists in America. This great school, right here within the bounds of our own state, should draw representatives from a large number of our schools. To this school come annually hundreds of Sunday school workers from practically every conference in the entire connection.

And it's bigger than ever this year. Instead of one one-term of two weeks, this year there will be three two-weeks terms, the first beginning July 12 and the others following in succession. The first term perhaps will draw the largest number of workers, but those unable to attend the first will find an abundance of company at the others.

One may earn two certificates of credit on the standard training course by attending any one of the terms. Those attending all three terms may earn six certificates.

It's the outstanding training opportunity of the year. And it's more; it's a great recreational opportunity. In these hot days where may one find a more pleasant place than at Lake Junaluska, the "summer capital of Southern Methodism," in the mountains of western North Carolina?

The railroads are offering reduced rates. Write for information and for a reservation. Let's go!

SOME LIVE WESLEY CLASSES

Jonesboro Sunday school may well be proud of the work of its Wesley classes. Spending an afternoon in Jonesboro the other day, we made an inquiry concerning these classes, and we found them to be doing business not only for themselves but for others. One of them, the Mecca Wesley class, composed of 45 young men, had 32 of its number present last Sunday, and the offering amounted to $5.60. Among other fine things it is doing it clothes an orphan boy at the Methodist Orphanage. Equally fine work is being done by the class of 25 young women, the Dependables. It supports an orphan girl and gives a monthly offering to the Centenary. Last year this class raised $500. The two adult classes and the intermediate and senior classes are likewise alive and growing. In fact, the whole school is growing rapidly. In spite of the eight new rooms built last year, the equipment is inadequate already, and Rev. B. E. Stanfield says "we've just got to build more soon, that's all there is to it." And when this pastor talks that way, you may know it will be done.

POPLAR SPRINGS GROWING

Poplar Springs Sunday school might properly be called popular springs Sunday school. It is popular. It has made marvelous gains within the past year. Last year its enrollment was under 75. Now it is 180, 135 of whom were present last Sunday, and it wasn't a special occasion either. It's alive, it's doing something, and it's bound to grow. With Broadway and Morris Chapel, also of the Jonesboro charge, it is supporting an orphan and doing other things that count.

MORE PUPILS THAN MEMBERS

Jonesboro Sunday school has far more pupils than the church has members. There are 311 church members; the Sunday school has 397 pupils. There are more pupils in the main school than members in the church. The school enrollment is made up of 313 in main school, 44 on the Cradle Roll, and 40 in the Home department. Its average attendance is well over 200. This school will be host to the West Fayetteville District Standard Training School October 14-20. In order to provide ample class room facilities for the great number of workers from the western half of the district expected to attend, the splendid public school building on the lot adjoining the church will likely be used. Already the school is looking forward to the pleasure of having in its midst representatives of other schools of the district.

FLETCHERS' CHAPEL BIG DAY

Fletchers' Chapel, Durham district, is planning an all-day Sunday School Day service for Sunday, July 1, according to Mr. A. M. Carpenter, the superintendent. The morning exercises will consist of a program by the children; the afternoon of addresses on Sunday school work.

PINE FOREST PLANS PROGRAM

Pine Forest Sunday school, Goldsboro, R. F. D. No. 1, is planning a full program for the first Sunday in July. It is expected that 300 or 400 people will attend.

KENLY MAKES GOOD REPORT

Superintendent L. Z. Woodard's report to the quarterly conference of the Kenly charge indicates an active school at Kenly. He has a school of 178, with 149 in the main school, 11 in the Cradle Roll, 10 in the Home department, and eight officers and teachers. For the quarter $140.91 was raised for all objects. Superintendent Woodard used the report blank sent out by this office and reported in accordance with paragraph 390 of the Discipline. Any superintendent who did not receive such blanks may secure them by writing to L. L. Gobbel, Durham, N. C.

OUR CENTENARY PLEDGES

We have reason to believe that some of our Sunday schools which made Centenary pledges are making payments without receiving proper credit; that is, paying money perhaps through the church with the result that the church's pledge, as such, gets credit at Nashville and not the Sunday schools. It's a matter of keeping records straight, and if your school subscribed so much as a school, in justice to itself it should see that payments are made through the proper channel and that it receives credit on its pledge. And let's keep on paying.

EPWORTH LEAGUE WORK

Lee Davis, Raleigh, N. C.
Rev. J. F. Armstrong, Concord, N. C.

North Carolina Conference

EDENTON STREET LEAGUE ADOPTS POLICY FOR YEAR

On Sunday evening the regular business meeting of the Epworth League was held in the Sunday school room of Edenton Street church. The meeting was presided over by the president. After the roll call and reading of the minutes of the last meeting, reports were made by Mrs. George Crawford, Miss Vera Edwards and Mr. Tingen, delegates to the conference at Morehead City. These were both interesting and helpful, and gave to the leaguers many new ideas that will be tried out in our league during the coming year.

The policy for 1923 was presented to the league and adopted.

Policy

In order to make our league larger, more effective and of more benefit to the church and the community, we shall endeavor to carry out the following policy:

1. We shall hold a league meeting every Sunday evening during the year, twelve of which shall be business meetings, twelve missionary, and the remaining devotional.

2. We shall support the league by attending all meetings, both devotional and business, striving to have an average attendance of 60 per cent of our membership. We shall look out for strangers at the meetings and shall assist the pastor in every way possible.

3. At the recent Epworth League Assembly we pledged $275.00 for missions. We shall try as individual members to pay both our dues, and our missionary pledge on time each month. A mission study class shall be organized, and to promote interest in missions we shall have a worth while missionary program each month.

4. We shall increase our membership 100 per cent, each leaguer doing his or her best to secure new members and seeing that these new members attend the meetings and have an active part in all league work.

5. Visits shall be made to the sick; cottage prayer meetings shall be held, as well as meetings at the Old Ladies' Home and the Old Soldiers' Home. The three Epworth League covenants shall be maintained, namely: the quiet hour, the fellow workers, the christian stewardship. At least five per cent of the leaguers are urged to study the missionary course and to try for the christian culture diploma.

6. Our officers shall give a report at each monthly business meeting, and quarterly reports shall be made to the district secretary. Twelve cabinet meetings shall be held during the year as well as twelve socials.

7. Each member is urged to subscribe to the Era, and when called upon to take part in the meetings please bear in mind that our meetings can be made more interesting by the members making original talks rather than reading the topics assigned to them.

Social

On Friday evening the Epworth League of Edenton Street M. E. Church held a social in the Sunday school room. Upon arrival numbers were pinned on the girls and boys. Later each person was given a slip containing different things to do. The numbers on the slips corresponded with those pinned on. These afforded much amusement.

Epworth League songs and yells were led by Lee Davis. Misses Marjorie and Lillian Waite gave several readings.

Refreshments were served, consisting of lemonade and cake.

Several games were played and various methods of introducing the strangers and new members were used. The meeting closed with everybody happy and nobody feeling that he was a stranger at Edenton Street League any longer.

DURHAM DISTRICT WINS LOVING CUP

The announcement at the Epworth League Assembly at Morehead City two weeks ago that the Durham district had won the loving cup was met with feelings of joy, surprise, disappointment, commendation and determination on the part of the different leagues in the different districts in the conference. Of course the Durham district was almost overjoyed at the announcement, and rightly so, because it is indeed an honor to the leagues of a district to have accomplished so much among the young people in service to their communities, which of necessity they must have done, and to a larger extent than any other district, to win the coveted prize.

The Durham district is to be congratulated for its achievements in the past year and should be spurred on to do even bigger things in the coming year.

Durham is very fortunate in having such an earnest, active, wide-awake, and hard-working district secretary as they have in Miss Hazel Thompson. The hard work done by Miss Thompson in the Durham district and the splendid co-operation given her by the leagues of the district is not only rewarded in the winning of the loving cup, but first and more important is the satisfaction of knowing that they have done some service for mankind, in serving others. This consciousness that they are doing the Master's will after all is the greatest reward of happiness that can come to any young life.

The great improvement in the leagues of the Durham district in the last year put Durham to the top so quick that it was somewhat of a surprise to some of the other leagues, but the facts were out and there was no doubt that Durham had been on the job while others had become a little careless of their efficiency standard.

We wish Durham the best of luck this year and we hope that the other districts will get so hard down behind Durham that she will have to work hard to get the cup next year.

LISTEN, LEAGUERS!

- How's your league?
- Do you have good attendance?
- Do you have helpful devotionals?
- Have you held any cottage prayer meetings lately?
- Have you invited any new folks to come to your league in the last week?
- Did you go to the meeting last Sunday night?
- Did you take part in the program when asked?
- Did you go or help send a delegate to Morehead City to the Assembly?
- Are you having regular socials?
- Do you have snappy, interesting programs, or cut-and-dried, ditto stuff for entertainment of the young folks?
- Do you join in sentence prayers when asked?
- Can you lead in prayer?
- Can you speak at a league meeting?
- Have you sent in your annual reports to the conference officers?
- Do you send regular reports to your district secretary?
- Have you paid your dues to your league in the last three months?
- Do you look out for strangers who come to your league?
- Have you offered your services as a leaguer to the pastor?
- Does your league have cliques in it?
- Do you belong to one clique and try to snob the other clique?

Is there a feeling of spite or prejudice between or among any in your league?

Is there a spirit of "Let George do it" in your league?

Do you have an indifferent attitude toward your league work?

Do you always put off getting up your program for the meeting until the last minute?

Do you ever say, "Mary don't; I don't see why I should either?"

IS YOUR LEAGUE DEAD?
I WONDER WHY?

Western North Carolina Conference

CROWDER EPWORTH LEAGUE

Crowder Epworth League of Triplett church, at Mazeppa, is one of the best rural leagues in the conference, we believe.

Our league was organized several years ago by Rev. W. N. Crowder, in whose honor we named it.

We rank eighty per cent on the standard of efficiency and we are going to do all we can to get a gold seal at Greensboro next year. Our third department has been a great help in getting new members and arousing interest. Miss Hilda Brawley is the third department superintendent, and a good one, too.

We will have a picnic at Davis Sulphur Springs, at Hiddenite, next month.

We belong to the Mooresville Epworth League Union and we of course think ourselves the best league in the union. Other people think so too.

We meet every Sunday night and the department superintendents and president take turn in leading and we have an average attendance of about forty.

We have learned that monthly council and business meetings and interesting programs are the principal things in running a worth while Epworth League.

If you don't believe we are active, visit us.

The officers of our league are: president, Price McConnell; vice-president, Essie Upright; recording secretary, Nellie Miller; corresponding secretary, Flora Belle Brown; treasurer, Stewart Edwards; Era agent, Kathleen McConnell; 1st department superintendent, Willie Poston; 2nd department superintendent, Viola Upright; 3rd department superintendent, Hilda Brawley; 4th department superintendent, Minnie Lee Moore.

We are going to do all we can to make this the most successful year ever. Look out to hear from us again. Flora Belle Brown, Cor. Sec.

NOTHING "STALE" HERE!

The young people of Staley M. E. Church met at five o'clock last Sunday to organize an Epworth League. It was the writer's good pleasure to be present and see the interest and enthusiasm the people were showing in the prospective league. I believe you may depend on the league at Staley for anything you should expect from a 100 per cent league. I know of no league with a stronger council than the Staley league. The president is one of the young business men of Staley and is very much interested in league work. The vice-president is deeply interested in the young people. The secretary and treasurer is one of Staley's most promising young women. She is a teacher in the Staley high school. The superintendents of the four departments are deeply interested and each of them is prepared for the department to which he or she was elected. The Era agent and corresponding secretary will see to it that nothing shall drag in their part.

The following officers were elected: president, Wade H. Foushee; vice-president, Mrs. Moon; secretary and treasurer, Velma Allred; 1st dept. supt., Mrs. Warren; 2nd dept. supt., Mrs. Foushee; 3rd dept. supt., Miss

A. Teague; Era agent, Miss McArthur; corresponding secretary, Mrs. M. R. Cox; membership committee, Miss Leola Teague, Mr. J. T. Warren, Miss Ethel Fogleman, Miss Cooper, Miss Caviness.

Every member of the council is full of league spirit. Almost all of the council has done league work elsewhere. Watch us grow.

Mrs. M. R. Cox, Cor. Secretary.

A UNION WITH STRENGTH

The Mooresville Epworth League Union held its regular meeting at Broad Street Friday, June 22, at 8 p. m. The meeting was opened with a hymn, and prayer by Rev. G. W. Fink followed. After the next hymn the roll was called and Crowder, of Ray Howard gave the visitors a hearty Triplett, won the attendance banner, welcome, and Price McConnell, of Crowder, responded. Rev. D. P. Waters, pastor of Mooresville circuit, gave a short talk and the business session followed. The election of officers was the principal business and the following were elected: president, Mrs. Upright; recording secretary, Naomi Florence Brown; vice-president, Essie Hartman; corresponding secretary, Sadie Barkley; treasurer, Robie Robinson; Era agent, Ethel Hartman. The department superintendents are to be appointed. After the meeting the social hour under the direction of Miss Nora Tomlinson, Union third department superintendent, was greatly enjoyed, with refreshments at the close.

Sadie Barkley, Cor. Sec.

Practical training 'n bookkeeping, shorthand, typewriting, banking, accounting and penmanship in the Greensboro Commercial School, Greensboro, N. C., will assure you of a well paying position. Students are enrolling weekly. Write for Catalog.

WRITE TODAY FOR CUT PRICES One big, slashing cut brings the price of Genolite Everwear Roofing down to the same price as before the war. Now is the time to put that new top on your house, barns and other buildings—now while prices are down to rock bottom.

SAVED $200.00—GOT BETTER ROOFING Seed-to-day for our special 30-day offer and direct from factory prices. You will be delighted with the low prices and fine quality of material. Mr. M. Cahill, Sr., of Cleola, Ga., writes "I am pleased and satisfied—I saved $200.00 by ordering from you."

TWO CRIMPS ON EACH EDGE OUR DOUBLE CRIMP GALVANIZED STEEL ROOFING HAS TWO CRIMPS ON EACH EDGE—WHICH MAKES A WATERPROOF LOCK. Quick and easy to nail on. Patent Nails, Hammer and Shears furnished with every order.

ROOFING FOR EVERY USE We also manufacture GALVANIZED STEEL SHINGLES, GALVANIZED ROOFING AND SIDING of all kinds, and RED ROOFING IN ROLLS—which we sell direct to you at factory prices. Our NEW BUILDING BOOK tells all about roofing and siding and may have just the information you are looking for. WRITE FOR YOUR FREE COPY TODAY.

YOU SAVE THE PROFIT We have just about enough roofing to fill orders for the next 30 days—so the we may have to raise our prices. SEND TO-DAY FOR BIG FREE SAMPLES—ROOFING BOOK AND CUT PRICES. Get Guaranteed Roofing direct from the factory and keep it in your own pocket the profit others would get.

Address
SAVANNAH FENCE & ROOFING COMPANY,
Dept. B Savannah, Ga.

GALVANIZED STEEL SHINGLES CAN'T CATCH FIRE

SEND FOR THIS FREE BUILDING BOOK—

DIRECT TO YOU—FREIGHT PAID

OUR ORPHANAGE WORK

METHODIST ORPHANAGE RALEIGH, N. C.

Hon. R. N. Page ..... President
A. S. Barnes ..... Superintendent
Mrs. Mattie Jenkins ..... Matron
Owned and maintained by the North Carolina Conference.

FORM OF BEQUEST
I do hereby will and bequeath to The Methodist Orphanage, Raleigh, N. C., contemplated by the charter under the Act of the General Assembly of North Carolina ..... (here designate the bequest) .....

THE CHILDREN'S HOME WINSTON-SALEM, N. C.

Rev. C. A. Wood ..... Superintendent

OUR NEEDS

1. Swimming Pool.
2. Seven-passenger automobile.
3. Monthly offering from all the Sunday schools.

The board of trustees elected Mr. W. Norwood Boyd of Warrenton to succeed W. B. Boyd who served as a trustee until his death. Brother Norwood Boyd will fill the place with great acceptability. Just one sentence from a letter to the board accepting the position as trustee goes to show the fine spirit of Brother Boyd: "Please express to the board my appreciation of this unexpected honor and assure them I consider it a privilege to serve an institution which has always been so close to my heart."

The Rockingham District Conference, in session at Aberdeen, recently voted to raise twenty-five thousand dollars by the time annual conference meets for the purpose of erecting one of the five buildings which was ordered by the board of trustees. This is not an assessment upon the churches but is to be a free will offering from the entire district. Brother J. H. Shore is to put the campaign on when he thinks best. Hon. R. N. Page, President of the board of trustees, represented the Orphanage for me at the conference and it was after his fine address that this action was taken. Brother Page is devoted to the Orphanage as his honored father was before him. The board of trustees and the entire conference feel profoundly grateful to the president of our board and to the Rockingham district for this generous response of twenty-five thousand dollars for such a worthy cause. The entire district has our sincere gratitude and we wish to assure all that the money will be wisely spent.

Dear Friends:

As I prepare to break the dear ties which bind me to this happy home I feel a great thankfulness in my heart to God and His people in the Eastern Conference for providing such a home for girls and boys who are bereft of the care of a mother or father.

Today I realize as I look out upon the great adventure that without the influence, love and kindness of the dear people who are giving their lives to a great work in the Orphanage that we would not be equal to the task of overcoming all obstacles. I am truly grateful to our superintendent, Mr. Barnes, Mrs. Jenkins, and all his co-workers for their kind forbearance. And again I want to especially thank the missionary society of Elm City for their kindness and all they have done for me.

With mingled feelings of joy and sadness,

I am yours,
Elizabeth Sanderford.

Dear Friends:

It is with sadness mingled with joy that I am leaving the Methodist Orphanage which has been a home in every way; sadness because I am leaving the helpful influence and guiding hand of Mr. Barnes and his faculty and leaving my sisters and brothers in whose company I have spent eight delightful and profitable years; joy because I feel that those eight years of training have well equipped me to enter a life of service and usefulness.

I also wish to thank the Methodist church as a whole for making it possible for this home to be made and for keeping it in the good work of training men and women for lives of usefulness and service; and also to thank that class at Mt. Pleasant church for the nice way they have clothed me during my stay at the home.

Mr. Barnes has ever been as a father to me, always glad to advise me in anything, always his interest was as a father to a son. He knows boys and is always on the lookout to give them pleasure.

I shall watch with ever increasing interest the growth of the home, giving many boys and girls an opportunity for training that would otherwise be denied them.

My best wishes to the growth of the home,

Charlie Clark.

Dear Friends:

Out of my childhood's dreams and fancies one picture has clung to memory's wall—that of a long, winding road leading through our campus between the stately old trees that have weathered a hundred storms. The red and gold leaves seemed to whisper childhood secrets, beautiful though not easily understood. And the beauty of the old Jenkins building as it stood in the mellow sunshine of that November morning long ago.

I had no definite idea of what an orphanage was. Many people associate it with the John Grier home in the novel, "Daddy Longlegs," and with prunes. I didn't. I was young and only felt the beauty around me. Mother left me sitting on the doorstep contentedly sucking my thumb. I was not quite six and only one in a family of five little ones. My two brothers came with me and remained until they graduated in 1921. I have spent nearly eleven years here, and friends, I wish to say that since I've visited private homes in the past few years I've come to this conclusion: Our home has the true home spirit. It is the ideal home on a large scale. Can you blame me for loving it? No. Should you live within its portals its name would never pass your lips unless with the reverence you associate with the words "home" and "mother."

I wish to pause at the bend of the trail to thank the friends who have helped to train and educate me and those whose means have made the dreams of youth possible. I also want to thank the Alma Edgerton Bible class of Selma for their loyal support and especially the president and his wife who have been to me what Judy believed Daddy Longlegs to be at first, a true father. However, my story will not end in the same way. I extend my sincere appreciation and thanks to the superintendent and head matron who have guided me safely through the storms of youth. I appreciate what my teachers have done for me, and may I say that in the past year my principal has proved a great inspiration to me. Miss Gray always said, "You can," and I did, for I knew she was counting on me.

Four years ago our class chose the motto, "Excelsior," and since then we have tried to live up to it. Soon we will receive our diplomas and go forth into the world—atoms in the vast tide of humanity, but we will find our places and by the help of our training and the grace of God we will hitch our wagon to a star and all climb "higher still."

Elizabeth Hardaway.

THIRTEEN MILLION DOLLARS IN CHURCH VALUES

The value of property belonging to the Methodist Church in North Carolina exceeds $13,000,000. On this vast amount of property there is only $3,000,000 of insurance—less than one-fourth of its value protected.

Suppose you had stock in a furniture factory one-fourth protected from fire, what would you do? You would either sell, or hold the directors responsible.

See that your church officials protect your most valuable assets or you may be called upon to donate again to rebuild a church parsonage destroyed by fire.

Insure in The Methodist Mutual—owned and controlled by the two North Carolina Conferences.

W. E. WEBB, Secretary
STATESVILLE, N. C.

THE STIEFF TONE

is famous with three generations of music lovers. It has never been duplicated. It is the expression of a passion for perfection that has actuated three generations of piano makers.

Chas. M. Stieff, Inc.,
Charlotte, N. C.

Please send catalogue and prices of Pianos.

Name .....
Address .....

CHAS. M. STIEFF, Inc.
CHARLOTTE, N. C.

STIEFF PETIT GRAND
The smallest Grand Piano made that embodies all the essential qualities of the Concert Grand.

INVENTIVE GENIUS MAKES CALOMEL DELIGHTFUL

Most Valuable of Drugs, Now Purified and Refined from Its Nausea and Danger—"Calotabs" the Name.

The medical virtues of calomel are in no way connected with its nauseating and dangerous qualities, as is proven by the fact that the perfected calomel tablet, called Calotabs, is free from objectionable effects yet retains all of the liver-cleansing and system-purifying qualities of the old-style calomel. For biliousness, constipation and indigestion, and wherever calomel was essential, the new de-nauseated calomel tablet is a practically perfect remedy.

To inspire public confidence in their discovery the manufacturers have authorized druggists everywhere to refund the price if the customer is not "perfectly delighted" with Calotabs. Sold only in trade-marked packages. Prices ten cents and thirty-five cents. One tablet at bedtime with a swallow of water, that's all. No taste, no nausea, no griping, no salts. You wake up in the morning with a clean liver, feeling fine, and a hearty appetite. Eat what you please—no danger.—(adv.)

FOR SALE—THE McCLEES HOME
Adjoining Trinity College campus, containing fourteen rooms, two baths, two basements; 75 feet front on 5th street, running 200 feet to 6th street. Apply to Thos. L. McClees or Prof. F. S. Aldridge, Trinity College Station, Durham, N. C.

FOR SALE

Twenty and one-half acres of land adjoining campus, two thousand feet from Rutherford College; ten-room house conveniently arranged, in first-class condition, electric lights good basement, barn, granary, garage, smokehouse, fine well and spring. Ten acres in cultivation, four acres in pasture, remainder in timber, good apple orchard. Fifteen minutes' walk to station, 12 minutes' walk to graded school. Terms reasonable. If interested write to or call T. E. Conrad, Connelly Springs, N. C.

WHY

It refreshes, exhilarates, builds you up in hot weather

Horsford's quenches thirst quicker because of its agreeable acidity—its PHOSPHATES supply vital tonic properties especially needed in summer.

Horsford's Acid Phosphate

supplies the nutrient the system must have. A teaspoonful makes the summer drink of fruit juices—or plain water—more cooling, delicious, wholesome. At druggists.

Write for SPECIAL BOOKLET of valuable information about PHOSPHATES—with recipe for delicious beverages, ices, punches, etc. Sent free. Address

RUMFORD CHEMICAL WORKS
PROVIDENCE, R. I. N-49

Coated Tongue

Nature's Warning of Constipation

When you are constipated, not enough of Nature's lubricating liquid is produced in the bowel to keep the food waste soft and moving. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it acts like this natural lubricant and thus replaces it.

Nujol is a lubricant—not a medicine or laxative—so cannot gripe. Try it today.

Nujol

REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

A LUBRICANT—NOT A LAXATIVE

Our Little Folks

BUBBLE DREAMS

I often think of Santa Claus
And wonder if in summer time
He sighs for shingle roofs to climb
With heavy pack upon his back,
So fill a stocking or a shoe,
Or drop a sugar plum or two.

If you are still as still can be,
I'll tell you something secretly:
One night I went to Sleepy Town,
Where hills go up and dales go down,
The Land of Quilt-and-Elderdown,
And while the other sleepyheads
Were lying in their little beds
I saw—oh, such a wondrous sight!—
Good Santa in the dead of night.
He bore a big and bulging pack
That bobbed and bounced upon his back
And shone with rainbow-colored gleams.
It held the children's bubble dreams.
Then Santa dropped one like a posy
On every cheek so round and rosy;
And then the little sloopyheads
Sailed off to Dreamland in their beds.

And that is how good Santa passes
The summer time. Both lads and lasses
When they arrive at Sleepy Town,
Where hills go up and dales go down,
The Land of Quilt-and-Elderdown,
There find a gift that brightly beams,
All colored fair with rainbow gleams,
From Santa's pack of bubble dreams.
—Winifred L. Bryning, in Youth's Companion.

MRS. BORROW-BUNNY

There was a little old lady rabbit that lived under a tree stump and that everyone called Mrs. Borrow-Bunny.
She was pleasant and friendly, but she had one bad habit: she borrowed and borrowed and borrowed.

She would say, "O Mrs. Squirrel, do let me have just a cup of buckwheat flour. I was bringing some home in a bag from Mr. Beaver's shop, and it spilled out."

Mrs. Squirrel would give her the flour, and then Mrs. Bunny would forget all about it.

Or she would say to Mrs. Owl, "Do let me take your feather duster for just this morning. I want to make my house all spick-and-span because my cousins, the Meadow Rabbits, are coming over for tea and my own duster is all worn out." And a little sadly Mrs. Owl would let her take the duster, and Mrs. Bunny would forget to return it.

The other animals used to spend a great deal of time talking about the matter. "Let us not lend her any more things," said some of them. But the next time Mrs. Borrow-Bunny went over to the house of one of them, all pleasant and friendly and eager, they would let her have what she wanted before they knew it.

So it went on and on until one day the animals met to make a list of all the things that were missing. As they talked Mrs. Duck wrote down the names of the things on a pad, and after a while they found that Mrs. Borrow-Bunny had all these articles:

Mrs. Owl's duster, cookbook and brown shawl.

Mrs. Squirrel's new rubbers, a cup of flour and three cups of sugar.

Mrs. Hedgehog's bag, a box of raisins and an umbrella.

Mrs. Duck's tin spoon, three buttons and a spoon of yarn.

Mrs. Woodchuck's summer nightcap and a butter ladle.

"What shall we do," they asked, "to get all of our things back?"

"I have a good idea!" said Mrs.
Hedgehog.

"Tell us about it," Mrs. Duck begged her.

"Let us give a picnic on the little green knoll," said Mrs. Hedgehog,
"and invite Mrs. Borrow-Bunny. This is what we will do—" And she went and whispered something in Mrs.
Squirrel's ear. Mrs. Squirrel laughed out loud. Then Mrs. Hedgehog whispered in Mrs. Owl's ear, and Mrs. Owl nodded her big head in a pleased way.
So she went on whispering to one after another until by and by they all knew what the plan was and thought it good and funny.

Mrs. Borrow-Bunny was delighted to be asked to the picnic and accepted at once.

When the day came all the animals met on the little green knoll. It was a bright, sunny morning, and all the world seemed happy. Mrs. Borrow-Bunny was the last to come. That was another queer thing about her; she was always late.

Suddenly, as they were spreading out the lunch, Mrs. Owl said, "Oh, if I only had my brown shawl! And I was going to mix up some mint lemonade with strawberries in it, but I need my cookbook. And if I had my duster to brush off this stone, we might use it for a cake table."

Mrs. Borrow-Bunny looked up from her basket, astonished. "Mrs. Owl!"
she said. "They are all three over at my house. I borrowed them from you; don't you remember? I will scamper right home and fetch them."

And she was gone. In about ten minutes she came back with the things. Mrs. Owl thanked her and set about mixing the lemonade.

Then Mrs. Duck cried, "My tin spoon! I wish I had it to stir this good stuff for the sandwiches. I brought my mending bag, but I need three buttons and a spool of yarn. If I had those things I could sew."

"Why, I owe you those things," Mrs.
Borrow-Bunny said. "I don't mind a bit running home after them."

"Thank you," said Mrs. Duck.
When Mrs. Borrow-Bunny had rested a minute after she came back Mrs.
Hedgehog exclaimed, "My green bag!
I thought I had it here, but I find I haven't. And I do wish I had my umbrella in case it rains. Then I was going to make a raisin salad, and I need a box of raisins. O dear! O
dear!"

Mrs. Borrow-Bunny stood up. She was getting hot, running back and forth across the meadow so many times, and she did not look so happy as she did when she came to the picnic. "They are at my house. I will fetch them," she said.

She brought the things back, and
Mrs. Hedgehog thanked her.

Then Mrs. Squirrel began to whimper that she wanted to wade in the brook and needed her rubbers.

"I will go and bring them to you," voice. She did not seem eager to go.

Mrs. Borrow-Bunny said in a queer voice. This time she did not come back.
The animals waited and waited, and they were all hungry for their good luncheon.

"Let us go and see what is the matter," suggested Mrs. Hedgehog.

When the picnicers came to Mrs.
Borrow-Bunny's house they heard some one crying. There she sat on the doorstep, with her apron over her face and the rest of the things she had borrowed in a heap beside her.

"Go away!" she said. "I know you did it to teach me a lesson. I feel ashamed. But my feet are so tired, running back and forth, and I am so hot! I do not want to go to the picnic, and I do not want you to see me.
Please go away!"

In Elevating Your Daughter's Ideals

In building her moral character, in encouraging and shaping the development of her intellectuality and mental capacity, in developing her physique—consider the advantages of the efficiency of

QUEENS COLLEGE

A college of Christian Ideals, modern equipment, beautiful plant. Faculty consists of two Ph.D.'s, four M.A.'s, and a number of other highly trained specialists. For catalogue address
C. W. H. FRAZER, D. D., President Box 300, Charlotte, N. C.

PAINFUL NEURITIS

If you have it, write to

THE BIGGS SANITARIUM, ASHEVILLE, N. C.

and they will send you interesting and instructive printed matter regarding the latest methods for alleviation and cure of this distressing ailment.

BINGHAM MILITARY SCHOOL

ASHEVILLE, N. C.—"The Land of the Sky"

Has stood the tests of 130 years. Buildings one-story brick—for safety, sanitation and service. Each pupil carefully studied. Small classes allow individual attention. Ideal school life, of the simpler type, directed by men of ability and experience. R. O. T. C. Unit under U. S. Army officer. All forms of athletics.

COL. R. BINGHAM, Supt. Emeritus. COL. S. R. McKEE, Supt.

Then all the animals felt sorry for her; and they told her that they had come to get her because the picnic would not be a bit of fun without her. "Please come," they begged her. "We wish we had not done it!"

"I am so glad you did it," said Mrs. Borrow-Bunny. "I have learned a good lesson. But please promise me row-Bunny any more behind my back. one thing: do not call me Mrs. Borrow-Bunny. Good-Neighbor."

The animals said they would, and they did, and it proved to be just the right name. She was pleasant and plump and friendly, just as she always had been; and she scarcely ever borrowed. If she did, she came running back with the thing she had asked for before the sun set; always before the sun set.—Youth's Companion.

COLLEGE OF

WILLIAM AND MARY FOR MEN AND WOMEN

Supported by the State of Virginia for the benefit of all the people.

Regular DEGREE COURSE and SPECIAL COURSES in Teacher Training, Pre-Medicine, Pre-Engineering, Home Economics, Law, Business Administration, etc.

Healthful location; students under splendid moral influence; four churches, Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A., Sunday Schools, etc.

For particulars address

COLLEGE OF WILLIAM AND MARY
Williamsburg, Va.

H L Bridges, J. A. C. Chandler,
Registrar. President.

GOOD POSITIONS

Paying fine salaries can be had for ambitious young men and women who complete our commercial and stenographic courses.

Our aim this season is to enroll a very large number of such students who can be trained for high and responsible positions.

Won't you be one to enroll? A postal addressed to us will bring you our catalogue. Write for it.

DRAUGHONS BUSINESS COLLEGE
Knoxville, Tenn.

THE NORTH CAROLINA COLLEGE FOR WOMEN

An A-1 grade college maintained by the State of North Carolina for the education of its young women.

Liberal courses leading to the usual degrees in Arts, Science and Music. Equipment modern, including furnished dormitories, library, laboratories, literary society halls, athletic grounds, etc.

Fall term begins in September, Spring term in February, Summer term in June.

For catalogue and other information, address

JULIUS I. FOUST, President
GREENSBORO, N. C.

Methodist Benevolent Association

Gives Southern Methodist Men and Women Safe

Life Insurance At Actual Cost

J. H. SHUMAKER, Secy.

810 Broadway Nashville, Tenn

ART GLASS

for Churches and Residences

Memorial Windows

Catalog and Special Designs free on request

F. J. COOLEGGE & SONS
ATLANTA, Ga.

HYMN BOARDS

of the very best quality supplied at very reasonable cost by

LAMAR & BARTON
Nashville, Dallas, Richmond San Francisco

World's Best Roofing at Factory Prices

"Reo" Cluster Metal Shingles, V-Crimp, Corrugated, Standing Seam, Painted or Galvanized Roofings, Sidings, Wallboard, Paints, etc., direct to you at Rock-Bottom Factory Prices. Positively greatest offer ever made.

Edwards "Reo" Metal Shingles cost less; outlast three ordinary roofs. No painting or repairs. Guaranteed rot, fire, rust, lightning proof. Send for samples and free roofing hook.

Edwards Ready Made Buildings

Send for the Edwards Catalog of "Superior" Ready-Made Buildings, showing a complete line of houses, bungalows, barns, wood garages, poultry houses, etc., all at money-saving factory prices. These buildings are not merely "ready-cut" but actually ready built, and represent a wonderful money-saving.

Let Edwards Save You Money
Be Sure to State Which Books You Want—Roofing and Free Samples; Ready-Made Buildings; or Metal Garages. Postal or letter brings one or more of them FREE.

Free Roofing Book Get our wonderfully low prices and free samples. We sell direct to you and save you all in-between roofing profits. Ask for Book No. 2873

LOW PRICED GARAGES
Lowest prices on Ready-Made Fire-Proof Steel Garages. Set up any place. Send postal for Garages Book, showing styles.

THE EDWARDS MFG. CO.,
2323-2373 Pike St. Cincinnati, O.

FREE Samples & Roofing Book

The Call of the Conference Claimants

Edited by Luther E. Todd, Secretary

Board of Finance, M. E. Church, South

510-513 Security Building, St. Louis, Mo.

INTERESTING FACTS CONCERNING THE "FORGOTTEN MAN"

Estate of Mrs. Moses U. Payne.—On May 25, 1923, I received a letter from Dr. S. P. Cresap, a member of the board of finance, stating that the will of Mrs. Moses U. Payne, lately deceased, contained a paragraph wherein she left to the Board of Finance of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, $1,000 for the Superannuate Endowment Fund. The will was dated March 15, 1923, and probated June 20, 1923. Dr. Cresap and his brother-in-law, M. M. Payne, are the executors of the will. This bequest will in all probability be paid at an early date. The good woman who so thoughtfully remembered the "forgotten man" in the manner stated was the wife of Moses U. Payne, whose liberal contributions to the church throughout his life were such as greatly to hearten those of us who have in hand the work of our great denomination. It would not be possible to write the history of Southern Methodism in the state of Missouri without repeatedly referring to the benefactions of this princely layman. His name and the names of the members of his family will never perish from the earth, for they are indelibly inscribed in the construction of many prominent church buildings and on the records of various boards to which have been committed the stewardship of beneficent enterprises.

Estate of Mrs. Alice J. Wilson.—On May 15, 1923, a letter was received from Mr. J. F. Moore, cashier of the Bank of Davie, Mocksville, N. C., in which he stated that the will of the late Alice J. Wilson provided that the executors of her estate, after paying all other bequests of the will, should pay any excess of the estate to the Board of Finance of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, at 510-513 Security Building, St. Louis, Mo., to be placed by them in the Superannuate Endowment Fund for the benefit of the "forgotten man." This fund was bequeathed by Mrs. Alice J. Wilson in memory of her husband, Rev. W. C. Wilson, deceased. Mrs. Wilson died in February, 1923. The letter from Mr. Moore also stated that the estate would probably be settled in twelve months and that the amount coming to the Board of Finance would depend on the sale of certain real estate. It is thought that the "forgotten man" will realize from this bequest about $5,000. What a joy it is to know that the people are beginning to consider the needs of the "forgotten man" when they write their wills! May this splendid example be followed by many others who have reached a period in their lives when they must give an account of their stewardship!

Estate of Mrs. Louisiana Perkinson.—On May 16 a check for $142.50 was received from Charles H. Gerbig, secretary and treasurer of the Colonial Trust Company, Baltimore, Md., the same representing payment in full of $150 bequeathed to the Superannuate Endowment Fund by the late Mrs. Louisiana Perkinson, less $7.50 collateral inheritance tax. Here is another evidence of the fact that Southern Methodist people generally are giving attention to the needs of the "forgotten man" when they write their wills. There should be such a passion for this cause in the hearts of all our preachers as would move them to be constantly on the alert looking to have it represented in the scores of wills that are being written daily. Why should it not be so? Can one think of any beneficent cause before the church that has a better right to be remembered? Its appeal is one that grips the heart and soul as well as the judgment of those benevolently inclined. Also money given to the Superannuate Endowment Fund is never spent as to principal. The income from it is annually distributed among the claimants on the fund. The principal stands intact forever, and thus it becomes an everlasting memorial to those who give it. What sort of monument could be placed at the head of anyone's grave that could better perpetuate in the thinking of succeeding generations anyone's life and character than a bequest to the Superannuate Endowment Fund?

He Is No Longer a "Forgotten Man."—On May 22, 1923, there was received from Mrs. Lydia H. Roper, of Norfolk, Va., bonds in the amount of $5,000, six per cent, payable semi-annually, which were sent as a gift to the Superannuate Endowment Fund on the annuity plan. It was the desire of the donor that an annuity bond be issued to Rev. W. F. Hayes, superannuate, and his wife, the semi-annual annuity to be the amount of income received by the board from the bonds. This annuity will amount to $300 a year, and it is to be paid to Brother Hayes or his wife as long as either of them lives. When they are both deceased, the $5,000 will automatically pass to the General Superannuate Endowment Fund. Mrs. Roper further stipulated that this beautiful thing that she has done for these worthy claimants is not in any sense to be considered by the church as a reason for reducing the church's regular annual allowance to these claimants from other sources. She very positively states that she desires the annuity going to them from the bonds to be an amount in addition to the bonds to be an amount in addition to what they have a right to receive from the church.

This is one of the most beautiful acts that has come under my observation. I have repeatedly called attention to this method of making provision for our claimants. There are thousands of people in Southern Methodism each of whom is able to do a similar thing for some superannuate and his wife. Surely it will be a happy day to Brother Hayes when this annuity bond, made possible by Mrs. Roper, is placed in his hands. The annuity which he will receive semi-annually, together with the amount going to him as a claimant in regular channels from the church, should make him and his wife very comfortable until God shall say: "It is enough, come up higher."

Something That Stirs My Blood.—It is very heartening to have so many evidences of the fact that the lay members of the church are squaring themselves to do their best in the special effort for superannuate endowment. I receive letters daily from prominent laymen that encourage me to believe that they will apply themselves enthusiastically to the task of raising the ten million dollars for this cause. May I quote for the benefit of my readers an extract from a letter now before me from W. H. Wiseman, district lay leader of the Dickson district, Tennessee conference, as follows: "The superannuated preacher should no longer be called the 'forgotten man.' He is not forgotten but has been neglected and should be called the 'neglected man.' The cause of this man is uppermost in the minds of most laymen. We have long sought an opportunity to do something really worth while for these men. God speed the day when we will do no less for him who paved the way for our great church than is being done by the 'heartless corporation' for its aged. You can depend on the laymen to enter heartily into this movement. We can, and we will."

A Thought for Every Day.—The preachers of the church who are now active in her pulpits should keep themselves constantly reminded of this burning truth: "Every active preacher of whatever age is a 'forgotten man' in the making."

I sometimes drop the fish a line,
But can't deny
These little overtures of mine
Get no reply. —Selected.

FOUND

—a sure way to have beautiful soft and fluffy hair. Use regularly pure

CARO-CO
COCOANUT OIL
SHAMPOO

Large bottle
50c at all dealers.

MORPHINE and WHISKY HABITS successfully treated. Write for information. Correspondence confidential. 12th successful yr. WILLIAMS PRIVATE SANITARIUM, Greensboro, N. C.

RANDOLPH-MACON INSTITUTE, Danville, Virginia, for Girls. College preparatory and special course for those not wishing to go to college. Vocal and instrumental Music Art and Expression. Attractive home life. Gymnasium. Branch of the Randolph-Macon System. Rates $500. Catalogue. Address Chas. G. Evans, A. M., Principal, Box C.

WEAVER PIANOS

THE depth of feeling, the power, the pure rounded tones with which the Weaver renders the old-time melodies find their way into the hearts of all who know and appreciate good music. The simplest lullaby or the most profound composition finds its full complement in its delicately responsive action and perfectly graduated scale.

Years and years of pianoforte building have not dulled the patience nor lessened the care of the Weaver master craftsmen. Every Weaver that leaves their hands has exacted all the pains, all the skill, all the artistic temperament they can possibly bestow upon it. And it goes into the world an artistic triumph.

No wonder professional musicians and music lovers have such high praise for Weaver Pianos. They realize with the true artist's instinct that the Weaver is as near perfect as an instrument can be made. You have only to possess one to realize its worth.

Catalogue on request

WEAVER PIANO COMPANY, Inc.
Factory and General Offices: York, Pa.
Weaver, York and Livingston Pianos and Player Pianos

PRESIDING ELDERS APPOINTMENTS

Western North Carolina Conference

ASHEVILLE DISTRICT
H. C. Sprinkle, P. E.
THIRD ROUND
July
Swannanoa, Tabor, 11 & 3 ... 7-8
Central, 11 ... 8
Hot Springs, Antioch, 11 ... 14-15

CHARLOTTE DISTRICT
J. B. Craven, P. E., 413 Central Ave., Charlotte, N. C.
FOURTH ROUND-IN PART
July
Seversville, 11 ... 8
Rural Trinity, 33 ... 8
Bethel, Love's Chapel, 11 ... 14

GREENSBORO DISTRICT
W. F. Womble, Presiding Elder
508 Summit Ave., Greensboro, N. C.
FOURTH ROUND
July
West Greensboro, Muirs Chapel... 7-8
At 3 and 11
Glenwood, at night ... 8

MARION DISTRICT
Z. Paris, P. E., Marion, N. C.
FOURTH ROUND
July
Bald Creek, Bald Creek, 11 ... 7
Burnsville, 11 ... 8
Gilkey, Gilkey, 11 ... 14

MARION DISTRICT
Z. Paris, P. E., Marion, N. C.
FOURTH ROUND
July
Bald Creek, Bald Creek, 11 ... 7
Burnsville, 11 ... 8
Gilkey, Gilkey, 11 ... 14

Bald Creek, 11 ... 29-30
Burnsville, 7:30 ... 30
All the pastors and charge lay leaders of Marion district will convene at Marion on July 26th on very important business.

MOUNT AIRY DISTRICT
J. H. West, P. E., Box 422, 1st. Alry, N. C.
THIRD ROUND
July
Danbur ... 7-8
Sandy Ridge, 3 ... 8
Ararat, Carter's Chapel ... 14-15

NORTH WILKESBORO DISTRICT
J. W. Williams, P. E., Jefferson, N. C.
FOURTH ROUND
July
Jefferson, Mt. Zion ... 7-8
Warrenville, Mill Creek ... 14-15
Creston, Mt. View ... 21-22

WILKESBORO DISTRICT
July
Laurel Springs, Transou ... 4-5
Sparta, Potato Creek ... 11-12
Watauga, Henson Chapel ... 18-19
Boone, Boone, 8 night ... 19
September
Avery ... 8-9
Elk Park ... 15-16
Todd, Fairview ... 22-23

SHELBY DISTRICT
H. H. Jordan, P. E., Gastonia, N. C.
THIRD ROUND
July
Bessemer, 11 ... 8
King's Mt., 7:30 ... 8
Franklin Ave., 7:30 ... 11
Belmont, Main St., 11 ... 15
Belmont, Park St., 7:30 ... 15

WAYNESVILLE DISTRICT
R. S. Howie, P. E., Waynesville, N. C.
THIRD ROUND
July
Hiawasse Ct., Martin's Creek, 11 ... 7
Hayesville Ct., Tusquitie, 11 ... 8
Murphy Station, 8 ... 8
Shoal Creek Ct., Raven's Ford, 11 ... 15

WINSTON-SALEM DISTRICT
W. A. Newell, P. E., 1084 W. Fourth Street, Winston-Salem, N. C.
FOURTH ROUND
July
Grace, Grace, 11 ... 15
Linwood, Linwood, 3 ... 14-15
Farmington, Bethlehem, 11 ... 21-22

North Carolina Conference
DURHAM DISTRICT
M. T. Plyler, P. E., Durham, N. C.
THIRD ROUND
July
Burlington, Front St. ... 8
Graham and Haw River, Graham ... 8
Leasburg, Salem ... 14
Carrboro, Orange ... 15
Chapel Hill, 8 ... 15
Hillsboro, Walnut Grove ... 21-22

ELIZABETH CITY DISTRICT
C. B. Culbreth, P. E., Elizabeth City, N. C.
THIRD ROUND
July
Hertford, night ... 8
Pasquotank, Mt. Hebron ... 7-8
South Mills, Sharon ... 14-15

COLUMBIA DISTRICT
Columbia, Gum Neck ... 4-5
Gates & N. Gates, Gatesville ... 10-11-12
Roanoke Island, Hatteras, Kennekeet, Stumpy Point, Kitty Hawk, Dare Ct., all at Manteo ... 16-17-18-19

FAYETTEVILLE DISTRICT
R. H. Willis, P. E., Fayetteville, N. C.
THIRD ROUND
July
Haw River, Ebenezer ... 7-8
Newton Grove, Maple Grove ... 14-15
Duke, Angier, night ... 15
Dunn ... 18
Hemp, Mt. Carmel ... 20

ROSELAND DISTRICT
Goldston, Marone ... 4-5
Elizabeth, Wesley's Chapel ... 8
Stedman, Bethabara ... 10-12
Roseboro, Hall's ... 11-12

NEW BERN DISTRICT
F. M. Shamburger, P. E., New Bern, N. C.
THIRD ROUND
July
Kinston, Caswell St., night ... 5
Jones Ct., Shady Grove, 11 ... 6-8
Newport Ct., Harelock, 11 ... 10
La Grange Ct., Seven Spgs, 11 ... 12

RALEIGH DISTRICT
J. C. Wooten, P. E.
THIRD ROUND
July
Tar River, Ebenezer, 11 ... 7-8
Central, 8 ... 11
Youngsville, Bunn, 11 ... 14-15
Louisburg, 8 ... 15
Edenton St., 8 ... 18

WASHINGTON DISTRICT
S. A. Cotton, P. E., Washington, N. C.
THIRD ROUND
July
Fremont, 11 ... 5
Stantonsburg, night ... 5
Calvary, Barefoot's Chapel, 11 ... 15
Bailey ... 15-16
Aurora, Warrens, 11 ... 18

ROCKINGHAM DISTRICT
J. H. Shore, P. E., Rockingham, N. C.
THIRD ROUND
July
West End, Pleasant Hill ... 7-8
Aberdeen ... 8-9
Raeford, Parker's ... 14-15

WELDON DISTRICT
S. E. Mercer, P. E., Weldon, N. C.
THIRD ROUND
July
Barysburg Ct., Concord Ch, 11 ... 7-8

Northampton Ct., Pleasant Grv, 3:30 8
Rich Square Ct., Roxobel, 11 ... 13
Conway Ct., Sharog, 11 ... 14-15
Murfreesboro & Winton, Union ... 17
(All day program.)
Ahoskie, Harrelsville ... 18
(All day program.)
Aulander, Ebenezer ... 19
(All day program.)
Windsor Ct., Mt. Gould ... 20
(All day program.)
Windsor, 11 ... 22
Williamston Ct., 8 ... 22
Hamilton (all day program) ... 24
Scotland Neck Ct. ... 25
(All day program.)
Warren Ct., Sarepta, 11 ... 28-29
August
Middleburg Ct., 11 ... 5

WILMINGTON DISTRICT
J. M. Daniel, P. E., 519 Grace Street, Wilmington, N. C.
THIRD ROUND
July
Southport, Southport, a.m. ... 8
Carver's Creek, Bladen Spgs., a.m. ... 13
Hallsboro, Wannanish, a.m. ... 14-15
Whiteville, Whiteville, p.m. ... 15
Chadbourn, Cerro Gordo, a.m. ... 20
Old Dock, Bethel, a.m. ... 21-22
Tabor, Clarendon, p.m. ... 22
Scott's Hill, Union, a.m. ... 26
Town Creek, Piney Grove, a.m. ... 27
Shalotte, Union, a.m. ... 28-29
Wilmington, Castle St., p.m. ... 29
District conference will convene at Swansboro on June 26, 1923. Opening sermon at 8 p. m. Business sessions 9 o'clock, 27-28. Delegates will get off at Jacksonville. All visitors will notify Rev. T. W. Siler, Swansboro.

BOILS Old Sores, Cuts and Burns have been healed since 1820 with Gray's Ointment
Sold by all druggists. Write for sample to W. F. Gray & Co., 710 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

WESTERN NORTH CAROLINA "The Land of the Sky"
MICHIGAN, WISCONSIN, MINNESOTA, COLORADO, UTAH, CALIFORNIA, CANADA, NEW ENGLAND, and Seashore Resorts
GREATLY REDUCED SUMMER FARES Now in Effect via Southern Railway System
From GREENSBORO AND OTHER POINTS Send for Free Booklet
Convenient Schedules Attractive Service
L. A. PEACOCK, C. T. A. 112 East Market Street, Greensboro

WOMAN'S PAGE

(Continued from page eight)

and juniors and mailed out in the early fall.

A second Belle H. Bennett Memorial program for adults will appear in the 1924 "Yearbook."

Plate and Book of Remembrance.

Requests are coming from conferences and auxiliaries asking that their money be used as a special in the Greater Scarritt. In line with these requests the committee is planning for a memorial plate upon which shall be inscribed the names of auxiliaries having paid five dollars or more per capita to the memorial fund by the end of December, 1926. The committee is also planning a Belle H. Bennett Book of Remembrance in which shall be inscribed the names of auxiliaries that have paid five dollars or more per capita to the memorial fund by the end of December, 1926.

League of Prayer.

There are many who cannot actively engage in the work of raising the memorial fund, yet they have a vital interest. For these there has been planned a League of Prayer. Their love gift is to be the gift of intercession. They are to become God's remembrances night and day. Mrs. R. W. MacDonell has been appointed leader of this league.

The Tennessee Conference.

The Tennessee conference has appointed a woman whose duty it is to promote the memorial throughout the conference. Special memorial mite boxes are being prepared by this conference.—Bulletin.

MY CHURCH A MISSIONARY CHURCH

All the preachers!
All the men!
All the women!
All the children!
Wonderful!

Here's what would happen if this should come to pass:

All congregations would have church buildings, all the churches would have pastors; all counties would have schools, all schools would have teachers; all peoples would have hospitals; all hospitals would have doctors; all nations on the globe would have an opportunity to hear the gospel message; "and the knowledge of God would cover the earth as the waters cover the sea." Do you think it worth trying?

EPWORTH LODGE
LAKE JUNALUSKA

Managed by Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Aldridge.

Write for prices and reservations.

Good eating a specialty.

DR. CHAS. W. MOSELEY

Diseases of Stomach
and Internal Medicine

Office, 229 S. Elm St. Residence, 438 S. Mendenhall St., Greensboro, N. C. Office 604—Phones—Res. 1739.

EUGENE ANDERSON, President Georgia-Alabama Business College.

What Is Holding You Back?

What is hindering your progress and keeping you from being the successful man or woman you would like to be? Is it lack of money, lack of a complete education, lack of the pull of influential friends? Is it age or sex? Many have allowed themselves to believe that such minor obstructions are insurmountable and they are content to plod their way with little progress, working with the hand rather than the brain.

There is room at the top of the ladder for all ambitious men and women of today.

All you need is ambition and character. Add to those qualities a sound business education, a Georgia-Alabama Business College training in book-keeping, accounting, banking, stenography, typewriting, business administration or a secretarial course and you are ready to accept and hold a higher position with plenty of opportunity for advancement.

The lack of education need not worry you, for the Georgia-Alabama Business Course is designed for the purpose of completing your education as well as your business training. The lack of money need not hinder, for our prices and terms are reasonable and we are always ready to lend fullest co-operation in matters financial. Age and sex need not hold you back. Nearly 50% of our students are women and more are mature persons. The business world today is calling for business trained men and women. You need no regret the absence of the help of influential friends, for with the aid of the reputation of our school you will not need it. We always find for our graduates excellent positions at good salaries.

An institution with such standing and reputation as the Georgia-Alabama Business College does more to advance the business interests of its graduates than can be done by any amount of family or personal influence.

If you would improve your position in life and increase your income, write today for our instructive book, "Your Future—What Does It Hold in Store?" It will open your eyes and show you what a bright opportunity you are missing. Sent free on request.

Address Dept. C9, Georgia-Alabama Business College, Macon, Ga.

OXFORD COLLEGE
OXFORD, N. C.

Founded 1850

Oxford College offers:

1. A Preparatory Course of four years, accredited.

2. A Junior College Course of two years, based on fifteen units of High School work. This course prepares for the efficient discharge of the duties of life and for entrance into the Junior Class of the Senior Colleges.

3. A Teachers' Course of one year, based on fifteen units. This entitles to Elementary Teachers' Certificate, Class "A."

4. Vocational courses—Home Economics, Commercial, Fine Arts, Pedagogy, Expression, Music.

Apply for catalogue.

F. P. HOBGOOD

—A GOOD PLACE FOR YOUR BOY—

An efficient, strict, military school of high standards and excellent reputation, operated under wholesome Christian influences.

CARLISLE SCHOOL

A well equipped school. Large, efficient faculty; excellent, modern buildings; ample dormitories, infirmary, gymnasium, library. Two excellent preparatory courses. Total expenses for year including tuition and board, $362.50. For literature and application blank, address

W. C. DUNCAN, Headmaster, Bamberg, S. C.

NORTH CAROLINA STATE COLLEGE
OF
AGRICULTURE AND ENGINEERING
STATE COLLEGE STATION RALEIGH, N. C.

Technical Education at State College prepares its graduates for personal success and for leadership in industrial progress. The college offers

FOUR YEAR COURSES IN:

Agriculture—including General Agriculture and Specialized Courses in Farm Crops, Agricultural Engineering, Animal Husbandry and Dairying, Biology, Horticulture, Poultry Science, Soils, Veterinary Medicine, Vocational Education.
Chemistry, Agricultural Chemistry, Textile Chemistry and Dyeing.
Civil Engineering, Architecture and Highway Engineering.
Electrical Engineering.
Mechanical Engineering.
Textile—Textile Engineering, Textile Manufacturing, Textile Chemistry and Dyeing.
Agricultural Economics, Business Administration, Rural Life.
General Science, Physics, Biology.

TWO YEAR COURSES IN:

Agriculture, Mechanic Arts, Textile Manufacturing.

One Year Course in Auto Mechanics.

Winter Course in Agriculture for Farmers.

Summer Session for Teachers, for College Entrance and for College Credit.

Excellent equipment in all departments.

Session 1923-1924 begins September 4.

Entrance requirements for Freshman Class, 15 units—English, 3; History, 2; Mathematics, 2½; Science, 1; Elective, 6½.

For catalog, illustrated circulars, and entrance blanks, write E. B. OWEN, Registrar.

DAVENPORT COLLEGE

FOR YOUNG WOMEN

LENOIR, N. C.

A three-year Junior College with a record of sixty-eight years of exceptional Academic work.

Well Equipped, Conservative, but thoroughly abreast of the times.

Fine Type of Student Life. A Safe Place for Young Women to study under close but sympathetic discipline.

Moderate Expenses. The lowest cost commensurate with a High Type of Modern Instruction.

A Registered Nurse constantly in attendance. A most healthful location, in the foothills of the Blue Ridge.

Courses in the Regular Academic Department and Art, Music, Expression, Domestic Science, Domestic Art and Secretarial Courses.

A four-year preparatory course on same campus and correlated with the college.

For Catalogue and Views,

Address PRESIDENT C. L. HORNADAY, LENOIR, N. C.

FOUNDED 1838

CHARTERED IN 1859

TRINITY COLLEGE
DURHAM, N. C.

A Southern College of liberal arts with an established national reputation for high standards, noble traditions, and progressive policies. Its large endowment fund makes possible its first-class equipment and large faculty of well trained and carefully chosen teachers. Student fees low. Comfortable, inexpensive rooms in carefully supervised hygienic dormitories.

Classical and scientific courses leading to the bachelor's degree. Graduate courses in all departments. Schools of Engineering, Education, and Law.

For catalogue and illustrated booklet, address

R. L. FLOWERS,
Secretary to the Corporation.

Sure Relief

6 BELL-ANS
Hot water
Sure Relief

BELL-ANS
FOR INDIGESTION

IN MEMORIAM

GARREN—Mrs. Samantha Gash Garren was born September 21, 1840, and died in Asheville, March 13, 1923. She was the widow of J. R. Garren, a Confederate veteran, whom she married in 1892. In death they were not divided long, as the time of their decease was only a few days apart. Sister Garren was converted and joined the Methodist church early in life. She loved the doctrines and polity of her church, and was able to give an answer to every one that asked a reason for the hope that was in her. Towards the last of her life she was a great sufferer, but bore her sufferings with Christian resignation and patience, and death was to her a happy exchange of the pains and sorrows of earth for the rest and peace of heaven and the companionship of loved ones gone on before. S. H. Hilliard.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

On the 12th day of April, 1923, God in His infinite wisdom and love called to himself our oldest and one of our most faithful members, Mrs. R. P. Matheson. Mourning her loss so deeply we resolve:

First, That we, the Ladies' Aid Society of Taylorsville M. E. Church, South, bow in submission to our Father's will as she did.

Second, That we extend our deepest sympathy to her bereaved family and point them to God for comfort and consolation.

Third, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, a copy be spread upon the minutes of our Ladies' Aid Society and a copy sent to the North Carolina Advocate.

Mrs. W. LeGefte,
Mrs. W. T. Roland,
Mrs. S. T. Crowson,
Mrs. U. L. Alspaugh.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas, God in His infinite wisdom saw fit January 21, 1923, to call from our midst our beloved friend, neighbor and co-worker, Mrs. Matilda Wroten, in her seventy-second year. Therefore, be it resolved:

First, That we as members of the Oak Grove Aid Society will sadly miss her, the first one to be called from our society. Though in feeble health for a long time she always attended the meetings whenever she could, bringing a bright smile and willing to help in any way she could the upbuilding of God's cause.

Second, That we bow in humble submission to the will of our Father who never makes a mistake, and extend to the family our heartfelt sympathy and love in this dark hour of bereavement and commend them to His loving care, who alone can give them comfort and consolation in all trouble.

Third, That a copy of these resolutions be put on the minutes of our Aid Society, a copy sent to the family and a copy to the North Carolina Christian Advocate for publication.

Mrs. C. S. Simmons,
Mrs. W. W. Higgins,
Mrs. C. P. Harriett.

PITTMAN—Mrs. Jennie Turnage Pittman, devoted wife of Attorney K. A. Pittman of Ayden, N. C., passed from earth to heaven the night of March 4th, 1923, after several weeks' illness with influenza followed by pneumonia. Her going brought great grief to her family and host of friends. She was deservedly popular and universally beloved by all who knew her. No one has lived among us whose life was more beautiful, exemplary and useful. Her untimely death is an irreparable loss to her loved ones, her church and the entire community.

At Ormondsville in Greene county, N. C., on May 12, 1895, she was born to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elijah Turnage. She lived there until the family removed to Ayden about 15 years ago. A few years ago she was preceded to the beyond by her father and a brother, Leslie. These, too, died in faith triumphant. The others of the family, a saintly and godly mother, three brothers, J. R., R. L. and L. E. Turnage, of Ayden, two sisters, Mrs. W. M. Edwards, of Ayden, and Mrs. Lucy Crowell, of Richmond, Va., and a faithful and loving hus-—“Gone, but not forgotten!”

How beautiful the sentiment expressed, in these time worn and time honored words.—How true the expression when engraved in stone.—How secure we feel when the memories of our loved ones are truly entrusted to the massive strength and lasting durability of—

Winnsboro Blue Granite

Its flawless beauty, matchless color, beautiful legibility and contrast and lasting strength and durability safeguard and perpetuate the memories of thousands of Americans.

Specify Winnsboro Blue Granite

Monuments
Maintain Memories

Winnsboro
Granite Corp.
Rion, S. C.

band, K. A. Pittman, survive. All these are active, useful, consecrated Christians and upright citizens and occupy a large and influential place in the social, business, professional and church life of their communities.

In her early girlhood days Jennie, as she was affectionately called, joyously gave her heart to her Saviour and united with the M. E. Church, South, at Ormondsville and remained to the end of her days a devoted, active and consecrated worker and leader in the church she loved with an undying devotion. She was a chosen, trusted and capable leader in the work of the church and the social and civic life and activities of the community, and was never happier than when engaged in helpful service.

She was educated at Greensboro Female College and Columbia University. Nature endowed her with a strong and alert mind, and she gladly laid the powers of her trained intellect, loving and trusting heart and her splendid physical strength upon the altar of helpful and effective Christian service.

On November 7, 1919, which was the anniversary of her mother's nuptial vows, Miss Jennie became the happy and beautiful bride of K. A. Pittman, Esq., of Louisburg, N. C., and for a little more than three years they lived happily together in the home of the bride's mother.

The value of a life such as Sister Pittman lived cannot be adequately appraised. Her going leaves a wide gap in the ranks of our workers, and a sad loneliness in the aching hearts of the bereaved husband, mother, brothers, sisters and other dear ones, and we feel keenly our great loss. But God knows best and some time we'll understand. Her task on earth was done. He needed her for a work above.

Funeral rites were conducted from the Methodist church by her pastor, assisted by Rev. R. I. Corbett of the Baptist church on Tuesday afternoon at 3:30, March 6th. The large auditorium of the church was crowded to the doors and many stood about the entrances without, giving tearful tribute out of their saddened hearts to the noble dead, who in life was the object of sincere affection and highest esteem. The floral offerings, profuse and beautiful and expressive of the wide popularity of the departed loved one and friend, hid from view the mound under which the body was laid to rest.

May God's abounding grace comfort and sustain the sorrowing loved ones left behind. Her pastor, John M. Wright.

JOHNSON—Mrs. Louisa Johnson, wife of Thos. A. Johnson, of Elevation township, Johnston county, who died recently, was one of the most devoted and consecrated Christian women we have ever known. In her young womanhood she was converted and joined the Methodist church. She exerted a holy influence through her church and community, and was a worker and teacher with a passion for souls. The fruits of the Spirit shown in her life won for her a wide circle of devoted friends who mourn her departure. It might truly be said of her, "None knew her but to love her, none named her but to praise." The study of the Bible was her delight; prayer had a large place in her life; Christian conversation was her constant habit. She served her Master so loyally and faithfully Benson circuit is poorer, but heaven is richer, since she has gone to her reward. For many years she looked forward to the weekly visits of the North Carolina Christian Advocate, which she read with pleasure and profit. Afflicted for a long time, she bore her sufferings with patience and fortitude, and left behind her a testimony which will continue to glorify God for many years to come. As Mr. Wesley said, "Our people die well," so it was in the case of Sister Johnson. "Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of His saints, saith the Spirit, from henceforth they rest from their labors, and their works do follow them." Her pastor, E. M. Hall.

GREENSBORO COLLEGE

The A-Grade Woman's College of the Two Methodist Conferences of North Carolina

Rated by State Department of Education as Class A.

Chartered 1838. Confers the degree of A. B. in the literary department and B. M. in the music department.

In addition to our regular classical course, special attention is called to the departments of Home Economics, Expression, Art, Education, Sunday School Teacher Training, Piano Pedagogy, and to our complete School of Music.

Modern New $50,000.00 Dormitory completed 1918. Conservatory of Music costing about $170,000 completed 1922.

Fall Semester begins September 5, 1923. For further information apply to DR. S. B. TURRENTINE, President, Greensboro, N. C.

PEACE INSTITUTE

RALEIGH, NORTH CAROLINA

For Young Women Established 1857

College Courses. Preparatory Courses for Standard College Requirements. Diplomas in Piano, Voice, Art, Expression and Home Economics. Commercial-Secretarial Course. Teacher Training Course. Specialists in all departments.

LULA B. WYNNE HALL, HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
MARY OWEN GRAHAM, President

1802

1923

LOUISBURG COLLEGE

With Junior College for Young Women
With Standard Preparatory Course of Four Years
Property of North Carolina Conference

Faculty of specially trained, consecrated Christian teachers.
Health Record Unsurpassed. Home-like Atmosphere. Social Life Carefully Guarded. Athletics.

In addition to the regular college courses, Classical and General, attention is called to the departments of Art, Business, Education, Expression, Home Economics, Music (Piano, Voice, Violin, Theory, etc.), and Religious Education.

Rates as low as consistent with good service. Send for free Catalogue and Book of Views. For further information write

A. W. MOHN, PRESIDENT, LOUISBURG, N. C.

NORTH CAROLINA Christian Advocate

Volume LXVIII

GREENSBORO, N. C., THURSDAY, JULY 12, 1923

No. 28

FUNDAMENTALS OF METHODISM

Article I.

Bishop Edwin D. Mouzon

The Apostles' Creed and the Twenty-five Articles.

In certain quarters so much is being said nowadays about "fundamentals" that it seems necessary for someone to call our Methodist people away from emphasis upon things contrary to the spirit and genius of Methodism to an understanding of what the fundamentals of Methodism really are. For it would be nothing short of disastrous—indeed, it would be to turn the clock of spiritual progress back nearly two hundred years and to undo the work of the great Wesleyan revival—if certain alien principles, now being calomously proclaimed by the literalists, should gain the ascendancy and be mistaken for the sum and substance of Methodism.

What I mean to say is this: Fundamentalism is the religion of the letter; Methodism is the religion of the Spirit. Fundamentalism lays stress on doctrines; Methodism exalts the Living Christ. Fundamentalism insists on acceptance of a Calvinistic creed; Methodism calls men to a happy experience of salvation and a holy life.

As showing this Methodist emphasis, I set down here certain words from the pen of John Wesley: "There may be some well meaning persons who aver that if they have not clear views of those capital doctrines—the fall of man, justification by faith, and the atonement made by the death of Christ and His righteousness transferred to them—they can have no benefit from His death. I dare in no wise affirm this. Indeed I do not believe it. I believe the merciful God regards the lives of men more than their ideas. I believe He respects the goodness of the heart rather than the clearness of the head; and that if the heart of man be filled (by grace of God and the power of His Spirit) with the humble, gentle, patient love of God and man, God will not cast him into everlasting fire, prepared for the devil and his angels because his ideas are not clear, or his conceptions are confused." And if this is not plain enough, take another quotation from Wesley: "A string of opinions is no more Christian faith than a string of beads is Christian holiness. We do not lay the main stress of our religion on any opinions, right or wrong; neither do we begin, nor willingly join in, any dispute concerning them. The weight of all religion rests on holiness of heart and life."

Now it is one thing to be liberal in reference to theological opinions, and it is another and a different thing to be lax. Laxness grows out of indifference or ignorance; liberality shows depth of soul and springs from a genuine experience of vital godliness. Wesley had opinions of his own; there was nothing nebulous and uncertain about his theological beliefs. Everybody knew where he stood on all the great truths of the Christian faith. But Wesley had had a transforming experience of the grace of God, and he knew that this was the one thing to be sought above all else. Before his "conversion" he had been thoroughly orthodox—just as orthodox as he was after his conversion. But orthodoxy did not save him. What made a new man of Wesley was the experience he had in Aldersgate Street, at that memorable prayer meeting, when he "felt his heart strangely warmed." Wesley knew what was of first importance to him; and what was of first importance to him he believed to be of first importance to all men. And this is precisely why we Methodists have always allowed others large liberty in thinking. With us conversion and Christian life are the things that really matter. But this does not mean that we Methodists do not hold strongly to her definite views touching Christian belief and Christian life. There are certain very important Methodist fundamentals, and about these I purpose saying some things in language which all can understand.

In a word, then, Methodism comes to the world with three great documents in her hand and with a glorious experience in her heart. It would be more logical, and more in keeping with the genesis of Methodism, if I should speak first of this glorious experience. But for the sake of emphasis I shall leave this till I have spoken of the three great documents which Methodism holds in her possession. These documents are the Apostles' Creed, the Twenty-five Articles of Religion, and the General Rules of the United Societies. The Apostles' Creed shows our connection with the church of the early centuries; the Twenty-five Articles of Religion show our connection with the great Protestant Reformation in England; while the General Rules, which came from the hand of Wesley himself, keep ever before us the type of piety which is the standard and ideal for all who seek to live the life of the people called Methodists. To repeat, here are the fundamentals of Methodism: The Apostles' Creed, the Twenty-five Articles, the General Rules, and a Glorious Experience of Religion. I shall discuss these fundamentals briefly in the order given. I had hoped to be able to set down in one communication all that I have in my heart to say at this time touching these "Fundamentals of Methodism," but I find that I must at this time confine myself to the consideration of the first two documents, the Apostles' Creed and the Twenty-five Articles, reserving for later discussion the General Rules and the Glorious Experience of Religion out of which came the Methodist presentation of the essential doctrines of Christian experience, a complement of doctrines distinctive of Methodism and peculiarly our own.

1. The Apostles' Creed. As it stands in our Book of Discipline this historic creed reads as follows:

"I believe in God the Father Almighty, Maker of heaven and earth; and in Jesus Christ His only Son our Lord; who was conceived by the Holy Ghost, born of the Virgin Mary, suffered under Pontius Pilate, was crucified, dead, and buried; the third day he rose again from the dead, then ascended into heaven, and sitteth at the right hand of God the Father Almighty; from thence he shall come to judge the quick and the dead. I believe in the Holy Ghost; the holy catholic church; the communion of saints; the forgiveness of sins; the resurrection of the body; and the life everlasting. Amen."

This brief and simple statement of the fundamental facts and doctrines of the Christian religion, is an inheritance from the early centuries of the Christian church. It was of gradual growth and traces far back into the earliest period of Christian history. With us Methodists, it is used as a baptismal confession of faith, and is recited every Sunday as the united confession of faith of the worshipping congregation. This is the one and only creed which we Methodists require for admission into our communion. In this we are in perfect harmony with the early church. This Apostolic confession we do require, but we require nothing more whatsoever in the way of creed from those who seek our fellowship in working out their salvation. Thus Methodism builds where the Apostolic church built. One may hold any view whatsoever touching historical, scientific, and literary matters which do not contradict or deny the facts and doctrines herein set forth, and be a true Methodist. Furthermore, one may hold to doctrines not in harmony with the scheme of Wesleyan Arminian theology preached by Methodism, and still be a member of the Methodist church. For we steadfastly hold with John Wesley that we have no more right to object to a man for holding different opinions from ours than we have a right to object to his wearing a wig while we wear our own hair. But as Wesley said, "when he takes off his wig and begins to shake the powder in my eyes then I do have a right to object." And this is precisely what I am objecting to in the things I have said about my friends, the Fundamentalists—they insist on carrying their wigs in their hands and shaking their dusty powder in my eyes.

I rejoice that we of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in particular, are true to the early Apostolic tradition and to early Methodist practice in requiring for church membership no further creed. It should be clearly understood that we do not require those who seek to become members of our church to subscribe to the Twenty-five Articles of Religion. For clearly that would shut most people out of the church entirely. What I mean to say is this: The language of some of the Twenty-five Articles is highly metaphysical and theological, and the majority of people are not theologians and metaphysicians. To require our children to affirm that they believe them would be to make belief mean nothing having any relation to the understanding and the life; and to call upon the busy man from the farm and the office and the store to affirm his belief in difficult theological terminology, would be to shut out a very large number of honest and useful Christian men. Not theology, but faith in Christ makes a man a Christian. And this faith in Christ that makes a man a Christian is very simple and not the complex and involved affair which we are being told we must believe or be cast into outer darkness. It would be a tragedy to see our Methodism, with her glorious record of catholicity, tied up in a theological strait-jacket. But even so, Methodism could not long be held in bondage; for when once more the power of the Spirit came upon her, she would break her bonds and assert her God-given freedom.

2. The Twenty-five Articles of Religion. The Twenty-five Articles of Religion are one of the doctrinal standards of Methodism. According to the general scheme or religion as set forth in this historic document, all Methodist preachers are under solemn obligation to teach and preach. These Articles constitute one of the most important and significant "fundamentals" of Methodism. And as has already been suggested, these Articles of Religion show our connection with the great Protestant Reformation, especially in England. Methodism, indeed, brought forward and completed the English Protestant Reformation. One always has the feeling that the Church of England stopped half-way between Roman Catholicism and Protestantism, in

(Continued on page four.)

JOTTINGS OF A JAUNT

I have just returned from the Middle West. Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Chicago, Winona Lake and intervening points came within the range of "car window" observations. That is the land of corn but not of wine, thanks to the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead Act. Even Chicago, up to recent years as "wet" as the waters of Lake Michigan, is now suffering from a prolonged drouth with not even the prospect of a cloud as big as a man's hand on the horizon.

I had not been in Chicago for ten years. In other days I had visited every section of the old town, and beheld with amazement the enormity of the liquor traffic in that great city which seemed to be in the clutches of strong drink.

Ten years ago saloons were everywhere. In certain sections of the city whole blocks were occupied by liquor dealers. Every bar, and many of them could accommodate hundreds of customers at a time, were crowded day and night. The hotel lobbies were filled with men under the partial influence of drink. Beer-bloated men were in evidence everywhere. The "family entrance" to the saloons told the story of the women's and children's connection with the saloon.

All this is now changed. What few swinging doors remain in the "loop district" of Chicago are restaurants where food and soft drinks are sold, but there is no evidence of men under the influence of liquor in those places. To all appearances Chicago is as dry as Greensboro or Durham.

I have no doubt that the people of Chicago get and use large quantities of liquor, but it does not appear on the surface and the prohibitionists say that prohibition has wrought a revolution in that city. The cry that prohibition does not prohibit comes from those who desire to drink or to make money out of the traffic, and the persistent howl from these sources prove that they are a bit shy on something to drink and that "bootlegging" is not all that a liquor dealer would desire.

Bountiful Harvests.

The prospects for bountiful harvests in this great agricultural section are reassuring. Yet the farmers are complaining of hard times. "Hardly enough money to pay the taxes" is the refrain of their lamentations. We surely have an ungrateful people in this land of super-abundance.

Winona Lake.

Lakes Wawasee, Tippecanoe, Winona, Pappakeechee, Waubesa and Muskegon in northern Indiana, all hark back to the days of the Red Skin and his canoe, before the white man converted the great Middle West into the agricultural cornucopia of the world. Some popular melody like "Down on the Suwanee River," or some song of Hiawthia should have veiled these lakes in romance and sentiment. But the stories of Indian lovers and the songs of the muses have, like Noah's weary dove, found no place to rest among the lakes in that land of "The Hoosier Schoolmaster." Corn for man, oats for horses and cherries in July to make glad the heart of the housewife rule in northern Indiana.

Hardened by the storms of winter these rugged and practical citizens of the Hoosier State do not appear to the casual visitors to be people who would even appreciate the humor and sentiment of James Whitcomb Riley. But we guess they do.

It is among this people and on the east shore of Winona lake that one of the largest and most successful assembly grounds in the entire country has been established. There are 400 "cottages," some of them a bit pretentious, but most of them modest dwellings. The largest assembly hall is the Billy Sunday Tabernacle, which seats 8,000, and was named in honor of this widely known evangelist who has been very influential in the upbuilding of Winona. Other convention halls are the Auditorium, seating 3,000; Christian Temple, which seats 1,000, and Bethany Chapel, which seats 1,000. There are hotels quite a few. Winona is shaded by as fine a lot of maple trees as one need expect to see. The trees in that land almost treeless is the chief natural charm of the place.

A Great Program.

The Christian Citizenship Conference at Winona Lake began July 1st and continued eight days. It was a conference of Christian citizens from several countries of the world to discuss national and international moral problems and to promote civic righteousness.

Among the speakers were such outstanding men as Bishop W. T. Anderson of the Methodist Episcopal church, Dr. William M. Bell, senior bishop of the United Brethren church, Hon. Sam W. Small, Hon. William Jennings Bryan, Bishop F. J. McConnell of the Methodist Episcopal church, and Hon. S. D. Fess, senator from Ohio. Hindoos, Chinese, Japanese, Koreans, Bohemians, Swedes and others from beyond our borders were heard with interest and profit.

From a program of such variety and extent as this which held the attention of the conference for three sessions a day, morning, afternoon and evening, for an entire week, it is next to impossible to say who excelled upon the platform.

From the standpoint of attendance the climax of the conference was reached Wednesday evening, July 4, when William Jennings Bryan in the Billy Sunday Tabernacle spoke to more than eight thousand interested and applauding listeners, and I have never heard this matchless orator speak with finer effect. His mouth is still golden and his magnetic personality grips the multitude. His theme was a plea for the enforcement of prohibition and for the exaltation of Jesus Christ with special emphasis upon His deity.

Sam Small, the inimitable, is renewing his youth at 72—the conference gave him a dinner Tuesday, July 3, in honor of his seventy-second birthday—and he spoke on three different occasions during the week—and never failed to thrill an audience already surfeited with speech-making.

One of the most telling pleas that I heard for moral and religious instruction in the public schools was made by Miss Martha Kralicek of Czechoslovakia, who is now teaching in one of the city schools of Chicago. She is only 23 years of age, but her breadth of vision and approach to conditions as they exist mark her as one of mature years. And her tongue is touched with the eloquence of truth and sincerity. If she does not in the future years become a national figure I shall be surprised.

The conference placed great emphasis upon such reform in our public school system as will guarantee the teaching of Christian ethics and the moral standards of the Bible in all the public schools of the nation. Their objective seems to be this, Let pagan teachers go out, and let the Word of God go into the schools. Is there anything wrong with that? Atheists, infidels and antagonists of Christian morals have a right to believe any or all these things and no one should call that right in question, but they have no right to teach these things in schools supported by the money of Christian citizens. The civil and religious liberty of this country rests upon the Word of God. Why then should American citizens allow it to be relegated to the scrap heap and its ethical codes consigned to oblivion because a small minority, who are really un-American, may demand that it be done?

A. W. P.

TEMPERANCE AND SOCIAL SERVICE CONFERENCE

The Temperance and Social Service Conference which had been in session at Lake Junaluska for a week came to a close with three fine services on Sunday, July 8. The conference was greatly disappointed when it was known that Senator Carter Glass would not be able to be present, but Dr. George Montgomery, who was born in Armenia and who has given much thought to the Near East situation, delivered a very instructive address.

In the afternoon Federal Prohibition Commissioner R. A. Haynes was heard with a great deal of enthusiasm as he told of the progress being made in the enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment. Mr. Haynes is very optimistic as to the final outcome. He believes that after the spasm of lawlessness is over that the people will settle down and recognize the prohibition laws just as they do other laws. He is positive that there will be no retrenchment, and says that the decrease in drinking has been more marked than the people imagine.

The closing service was held on Sunday night when Rev. Dr. Bland, of Toronto, Canada, delivered an address from the subject, "The Kingdom in the World." Dr. Bland emphasized the fact that Protestantism, if she is to accomplish the purpose of God in her, must of necessity get back to Christ and not allow any individual to eclipse the Galilean. His address was rather daring and opened the way for a great deal of criticism, but this he admitted. He believes that the church has given too much attention to the Epistles of Paul and too little to the gospels, and admonished his hearers to study Christ as revealed in the four gospels.

From the beginning of the conference to the end there was much interest manifested. Most of the time there were three sessions daily with addresses by outstanding men and women. Bishop James Cannon, Jr., was in charge, and did not allow a dull minute. It is remarkable the amount of work the bishop can do. He seems to never tire.

Among the speakers during the conference were such men as Bishop Cannon, Dr. Gus W. Dyer of Vanderbilt University, Dr. Hastings H. Hart of New York, Mrs. Kate Burr Johnson of Raleigh, Dr. T. W. Galloway, Mr. Charles E. Gibbons, Mrs. Luke Johnson, Mrs. Booker T. Washington, Dr. J. W. Perry, Nashville, Tenn., Hon. Enoch Marvin Underwood, Atlanta, Dr. Channing H. Tobias, colored, Dr. Will Alexander, Rev. F. Ernest Johnson, Mr. George Berry, Marvin M. Davies, Jerome Jones, and Earl Dean Howard. These delivered the principal addresses, but many others took part in the conference.

Every phase of social life was touched upon and the temperance question with law enforcement was approached from every angle.

Rev. Channing H. Tobias, himself a negro with an international reputation, asked for his people a respect for their personality, credit for worth while achievements of negro people and a definite effort to overcome race prejudice through the compelling power of the Christian religion.

Rev. J. W. Perry, D. D., addressed the conference, stressing the same ideas. Neither speaker advocated in any way social equality, but pointed out hopeful features in bringing about a racial feeling between the whites and negroes of the United States. Dr. W. W. Alexander, secretary of the Inter-Racial Commission of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, gave as his opinion the cause for so many negroes leaving the South, a desire for better family life and education rather than the lure of higher wages. He thinks that the migration will continue.

The voice of labor was heard often. Mr. George Berry, president of the Printing Pressmen's Union, was heard with much enthusiasm, and he did his cause good. He is one of the most fluent speakers at the conference, yet he never attended school a minute in his life. Miss Louise McDonald, of the North Carolina College for Women, gave some of the experiences that a number of young ladies had in Atlanta when they went there to study working conditions of the girls of that state. Her picture of the conditions as they obtained in a cotton mill where she secured night work was not rosy.

Bishop Cannon should have the support of the whole church in this great work. He is chairman of the commission of our church, and he will lead the church into larger endeavors for humanity.

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE INDORSED

The Social Service Commission under the leadership of Bishop James Cannon, Jr., prompted by the report that hooded bands from Alabama and Mississippi had marched by that institution at night and by their presence offered a show of opposition if not of threatened violence to some of the people at work there, has adopted at Lake Junaluska the following resolutions:

"Inasmuch as there has come to us," the resolution said, "through reliable newspaper reports and private sources of undoubted reliability, that the interest of that great institution for our colored people at Tuskegee, Ala., are seriously menaced by threats of organized interference;

"Resolved, that this committee put on record our appreciation of the incalculable value of that institution for the training of our colored fellow citizens, and declare our unalterable conviction that any invasion, or threatened invasion of its rights, or interference with the orderly pursuit of its lawful and benevolent labors would be a calamity to the institution and a lasting disgrace to our southern civilization."

Dr. C. Alphonso Smith says that Shakespeare refers to the Bible 12,000 times—and yet there are those who would have us believe that the Bible is an old out of date book.—News-Enterprise.

PEOPLE AND THINGS

Rev. E. L. Stack has just closed a splendid revival with Brother E. J. Midget at Collington.

Rev. and Mrs. George W. Clay of Gibsonville announce the arrival on July 6 of Geo. Clay, Jr.

Rev. C. P. Goode will begin the annual revival meeting at Bethlehem on the Wentworth circuit at 11 a. m. the fourth Sunday in July.

A building committee was appointed last week by the quarterly conference of the Pasquotank circuit to rebuild old Mount Herman church on that charge.

All the preachers of the Elizabeth City district are kindly requested by the presiding elder to have brief written reports as directed by the Discipline for the conference.

Rev. J. V. Knight, pastor of the Methodist church at Edenton will begin a series of revival services at Mackeys on the opening night of the district conference.

Any pastor desiring a gospel singer in the bounds of the Fayetteville district write Miss Frances Carter, Stedman, N. C. Miss Carter feels called to this special work and thus far is making fine success.

Rev. S. T. Barbee is in a meeting at Powellsville on the Ahoskie charge. He began Thursday night of this week and will continue throughout next week with two sermons a day, one in the afternoon and one at night.

The presiding elder of the Elizabeth City district at the close of a ten days' meeting at Stumpy Point, in which he did the preaching, baptized, among a number of other babies, Robert Willis' Wise, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Wise. He is a fine boy.

Dr. Theodore Copeland is now engaged in a great union tent meeting in Bedford City, Va. This general evangelist of our church is rendering effectual service wherever he goes, and he has held meetings in pretty much every section of our church.

The Salisbury district conference convened in our church at Gold Hill Friday morning of last week and came to a close with preaching on Sunday night. The secretary, Rev. J. Frank Armstrong, promises a full report for our next issue.

A young lady who has completed her high school course and wishes to attend the East Carolina Teachers' Training School, Greenville, N. C., and who is willing to assist in the housework in one of the best homes in that city to pay her board and room and other expenses, would do well to address the Christian Advocate, Greensboro, at once.

Rev. M. D. Giles, who has been indisposed for several days, is now able to be out, his many friends will be delighted to learn. The Rev. Mr. Giles is a superannuated member of the North Carolina conference of the Methodist church, and he has been in the ministry for more than 25 years.—Reidsville Review.

Rev. E. C. Sell, Goldston, N. C., writing under date of July 9th, says: "Yesterday was a great day on Goldston circuit. We observed Sunday School Day at Jones Chapel in the morning and at Asbury in the afternoon. At both places the attendance was good and fine programs were entertainingly and impressively rendered, making the occasion enjoyable and inspiring."

The Methodist Sunday school float of Rutherfordton with about 50 students seated in a large truck took first prize in the Fourth of July parade. The truck was beautifully decorated all in pure white with a large silk flag "for the day" fluttering from the front. The truck was driven by John Miller from the men's class. The girls and boys sang America and Loyalty to Christ, led by the popular pastor, Rev. J. O. Ervin.

According to an announcement made by the Graham Memorial Committee of the University of North Carolina, plans have been perfected for the completion of the campaign for funds for the building during the summer, and twenty representatives of the student body and alumni are now at work throughout the state in the interest of the movement. In 1918 when the building was first proposed the student body numbered 1000, building prices were lower, and the present building reorganization of the University was three years in the future. One hundred and fifty thousand dollars was the objective set, of which $123,000 was subscribed, and $80,000 has been collected. To meet the requirements $400,000 will be required and subscriptions are being asked for on that basis, construction of the central unit to begin as soon as subscriptions and collections justify letting the contract.

Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Aldridge, of Trinity College, are spending the summer at Lake Junaluska and are in charge of the Epworth Lodge. They make it very pleasant for their guests and the accommodation is first class in every respect. It is one large family that gathers around the table at Epworth.

Rev. D. M. Litaker, the presiding elder, reports that on the Statesville district regular finances are 15 per cent ahead of this date last year. Building enterprises are either on hand or have been completed on charges as follows: Central, Mooresville; Broad Street, Mooresville; Mooresville circuit; Troutman; Elmwood; Race Street, Statesville; Cool Springs; Catawba; Westview, Hickory; Lenoir circuit; First church, Lenoir; Dudley Shoals; Granite Falls; Davidson, and Newton.

The following shows the comparative denominational strength of Plymouth as resulted from a recent census: 217 Methodists, 134 Christians (Disciples of Christ), 119 Baptists, 95 Episcopians, Adventists 2, Presbyterians 2, Christian Science 1. Out of 96 who expressed a preference 26 preferred the Methodist church, 23 the Disciples, 23 the Baptist, and 23 the Episcopalian. Out-of-town members and children under eight years are not included in the census.

Rev. E. C. Durham writes: "R. L. Davis, Jr., and Rev. Arthur Kale gave their dramatic debate in the Methodist church at Vanceboro the evening of July 8 before about one hundred people. The question is concerning "Anarchy or Patriotism; Which Shall Reign?" After the boys have presented their debate there is no longer any question in anybody's mind who hears them as to which shall reign. It makes the coward ashamed that he has been a coward; it makes the officer of law wish to resign or really get on the job; it makes even the bootlegger wish that he had never been born. Every church in North Carolina should hear these boys. It is official; the Anti-Saloon League is backing them up. I urge that every church that possibly can will give them a welcome and an appreciative hearing. Then God's word will not return unto Him void."

REPORT ON TEMPERANCE

The Commission on Temperance and Social Service of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, adopted the following statement on Prohibition and Law Enforcement at the meeting of the commission on July 7, 1923:

The Eighteenth Amendment is part of the constitution of the United States. Even its enemies admit that it will not be repealed. It is the law of the land by the will of a great majority of our one hundred and ten millions of people, as represented by the vote of over two-thirds of both houses of Congress and by the legislatures of forty-six out of forty-eight states. A selfish minority has persistently, even defiantly declared that it places appetite and covetousness above the general welfare and obedience to the law of the land. This element openly boasts that the Eighteenth Amendment to the constitution of the United States shall not be enforced, and there are those who even shamelessly demand that Congress attempt to legalize the manufacture and sale of light wines and beer in the face of the constitutional prohibition against the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors for beverage purposes. For these men want and are really demanding intoxicating wine and beer.

The issue today, therefore, is not whether a man favors prohibition, but whether he favors law enforcement or lawlessness. Even did this noisy, thirsty minority, located chiefly in sections with large foreign-born population, include even as many as ten or twenty millions of people, should such a minority be permitted to carry on a traffic in intoxicating liquors either as bootleggers or as buyers, despite the expressed will of the other one hundred or ninety millions of their fellow-citizens? We believe:

1. The very existence of all government is imperiled whenever lawlessness is permitted to triumph over law. We believe that city, state and federal governments should co-operate to the fullest extent to secure the efficient enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment, and that whatever amount of money and whatever force of men are necessary to subdue lawlessness should be unhesitatingly provided by the government.

2. We condemn the action of the legislature of New York, one of the states of the Union, and the approval of said action by Governor Smith in repealing the liquor enforcement law of that state, and also the effort which is being made under the leadership of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment to secure similar action in other, including even Southern states—as witness the bill which has recently been introduced in the legislature of the state of Georgia. The effort of Governor Smith to shift the issue from the effective enforcement of the prohibition law, to which Governor Smith has always been opposed, to the question of state's rights is recognized by all true friends of prohibition and of orderly government as simply an effort to drag a red herring across the track, hoping to introduce a divisive element into the prohibition ranks and to weaken as greatly as possible by the lack of state co-operation the efficacious enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment. The adoption of such a policy by all the states would require the creation of a great federal constabulary operating throughout the country, which would inevitably produce great friction and become a serious menace to serious self-government.

3. In view of the paramount importance of this issue which has been raised, emphasized and thrust to the very forefront by the law-breaking element of society—the smugglers, the bootleggers and their patrons—we urge our people in the selection of public officials to either help to make or to enforce law, to exercise the greatest care and to vote for no man from constable to president who is not known by his record to be positively in favor of the enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment. We repudiate as a slander upon the independence and good conscience of our southern people, the statement attributed in a recent publication to Mr. Norman E. Mack of New York, that the electoral vote of the Southern states will be cast for any man for President simply because he is a candidate of the Democratic party, regardless of his attitude towards the question of light wines and beer and of the efficient enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment.

4. We urge our people to give their active support to the prohibition department of the federal government and to all city and state officials in their efforts to enforce the prohibition law, and we appeal to the editors of secular and religious newspapers, and to the teachers in our schools and colleges, and to our pastors and Sunday school workers to emphasize persistently the duty of all good citizens to condemn lawlessness and to actively support the law.

5. We commend the federal government for enforcing the Eighteenth Amendment as interpreted by the supreme court of the United States, forbidding all persons from transporting beverage liquors into or through the territory of the United States. If one ship is permitted to violate the law, all other ships will claim similar privileges, and the administration of the law would be broken down by a multitude of exceptions. We furthermore believe that our government has the right to protect our people from the smugglers which hover around our shores and frontiers and, if it cannot secure the reasonable co-operation of other governments, it should take aggressive action to disperse the rum fleet, even at the risk of protest from other nations. It is unthinkable that the government of a great people shall be openly defied by what is known to be an organized conspiracy to violate the laws of that government, and that no effective action can or should be taken to prevent a continuance of such defiant laws.

6. We appeal to the courts in this fight against lawlessness. We respectively appeal to juries and to judges, not only to convict men who violate the law of the land, but to inflict such punishment as will deter the offender from a repetition of the crime. The certainty of conviction and the certainty of adequate penalties will go far to break up lawlessness.

TO THE STOCKHOLDERS OF THE SOUTHERN ASSEMBLY

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Southern Assembly is hereby called to be held on Thursday, July 19, 1923, at 2 p. m., at the office of the Southern Assembly.

J. Dale Stentz, Sec.-Treas.

FUNDAMENTALS OF METHODISM: ARTICLE I

(Continued from page one.)

spite of the fact that she began so nobly with the statement of Evangelical faith in her Edwardine and Elizabethan Articles.

The beginning of the Methodist Revival was under the leadership of clergymen of the Church of England and laymen whose early lives had been spent under the influence of that great church. When the Methodist Episcopal Church in America was organized at the Christmas Conference in Baltimore in 1784, John Wesley, Thomas Coke, Francis Asbury, and the others did not suppose that there would ever be organized in America another and a second Protestant Episcopal Church. For it needs to be remembered that the Protestant Episcopal Church was not organized until something more than two years later and by special act of the English Parliament. Meantime, the Methodist Episcopal Church, which had served itself heir to the noble Protestant inheritance of the Church of England and the priceless spiritual riches which came from God through Wesley and those associated with him, had entered upon her glorious career as the great Episcopal Church of America. These facts need to be stated and to be understood. For in the light of our historic connection with the Reformation in England must the Twenty-five Articles be read and interpreted.

The Twenty-five Articles, then, are taken from the Thirty-nine Articles of the Church of England. When Wesley sent over Thomas Coke with authority to organize the American Methodists into a church, he placed in his hands for the Methodists of America these Articles as we now have them, with the exception, of course, of the Twenty-third. He had left out certain Articles and had altered certain others, thus reducing the number. Concerning our Articles of Religion as they have come to us from the Church of England through the hands of our spiritual father, John Wesley, there are several things to be said:

(1) There are Articles here which are common to universal Christendom, such as Articles I to IV—"Of Faith in the Holy Trinity," "Of the Word, or Son of God, who was made Very Man," "Of the Resurrection of Christ," and "Of the Holy Ghost." As there is nothing peculiar or distinctive about these great articles, nothing further need be said about them at this time.

(2) The changes which John Wesley made in the Articles as sent over to America are quite significant. It is evident that he was determined to rid Methodists of Calvinism. For instance, he left out entirely Articles XVIII "Of Predestination and Election." And he left out Article XIII in which it is declared that good works done before justification "are not pleasant to God," but have the nature of sin." And to take only one other illustration, from the Article on "Original or Birth Sin," he cut away half in his effort to get the Calvinism out of it, in particular eliding that part which declares that "in every person born into this world, it ("Original Sin") deserveth God's wrath and condemnation."

Methodism and Calvinism do not agree the one with another. One may, indeed, be a Calvinist and a good member of the Methodist church—for we welcome all who love and serve Christ, no matter what their theology may be. But Methodism cannot tolerate the teaching and preaching of Calvinism. It would be a singular and a sad thing if Methodism, having in the beginning spewed Calvinism out of her mouth, should now at this late hour go to sleep and permit the Fundamentalists to make her swallow the worst form of Calvinism that the world has ever known. For the Fundamentalist's whole conception of religion—of God, of Christ, of Salvation—is distinctly an exaggerated form of Calvinism. We are not willing for Calvinism, having been driven out of the front door, to come bursting in at the back.

(3) But the most significant thing about our Articles of Religion remains to be said. They are overwhelmingly Protestant. That is to say, they were written when the protest against Roman Catholicism was at its height, and they were written by Cranmer, who, it will be remembered, was burned at the stake because of his Protestant faith. Methodism finds herself in this holy, Apostolic succession. More than half of all our articles are in protest against the errors of Rome. Methodism, that is to say, is overwhelmingly Protestant.

We have not time in this discussion to go into details. However, I will indicate a few things of special importance.

Articles V and VI.—"Of the Sufficiency of Holy Scripture for Salvation," and "Of the Old Testament" are Protestant Articles, written to meet and overturn the Roman Catholic view of the Bible. Let it be noted, in passing, that not one word is said about "the verbal dictation" theory of inspiration. That is not a Protestant doctrine. And also note that concerning the Old Testament two important things are said: "The Old Testament is not contrary to the New; for in both everlasting life is offered to mankind by Christ." This is the first thing of importance. To discount and to neglect the Old Testament is to suffer great spiritual loss. But also another thing is said: In the Old Testament there are certain "ceremonies and rites" which "do not bind Christians"; "notwithstanding, no Christian whatsoever is free from the obedience to the commandments which are called moral." That is to say, according to our Methodist Article, it is the moral and spiritual message of the Old Testament which has significance and eternal worth.

We need to keep in mind the essential difference between the Roman Catholic and the Protestant conception of the holy Scripture. According to Roman Catholicism, "the Bible was a sort of spiritual law-book, a storehouse of divinely communicated knowledge, of doctrinal truths, and rules for moral conduct and nothing more." The Roman Catholic theologians were utterly lacking in the historical sense. To them one part of the Bible was as much value as another—if they could only find out what that part of the Bible meant. So, in order to make the Bible mean what they wanted it to mean, the Church of Rome resorted to its four-fold sense—literal, moral, allegorical, and anagogic. Now, as no layman could possibly understand such a Bible, the Church of Rome took the Bible out of his hands and declared that he had no right to try to understand it. Rome alone could tell him what it meant.

Now behold, in our Protestant churches, Roman Catholicism risen from the dead! Several sects arise in America whose very existence is based upon a Roman Catholic view of the Bible. The "Christian Scientists" have their infallible authority in "Science and Health, with Key to the Scriptures"—and the Bible becomes a curious thing in their hands. The followers of "Pastor" Russell have their carefully prepared literature, and to study that literature is of more importance than to study the Bible. And the Fundamentalists, with their Roman Catholic view of the Bible, have their "Bible Schools" and their "Correspondence Courses," and when they are done with you, you will be able to read their scheme of ultra-Calvinism on every page of the Word of God. And when we do not agree with them, we are denounced as heretics.

Now, how far is all this removed from the true position of Protestant Christianity! "It is the unanimous declaration of the Reformers that Scripture is Scripture because it gives us that knowledge of God and of His will which is necessary for salvation; because it presents to the eye of faith God Himself personally manifesting Himself in Christ. It is this presentation of God Himself and of His will for our salvation which is infallible and authoritative. But this manifestation of God Himself is something spiritual, and is to be apprehended by the spiritual faculty which is faith; and the Reformers and the Confessions of the Reformation do not recognize any infallibility or divine authority which is otherwise apprehended than by faith. With the mediaeval theologian infallibility was something which guaranteed the perfect correctness of abstract propositions; with some modern Protestants it consists in the conception that the record contains not even the smallest error in word or description of fact—in its inerrancy. But neither inerrancy nor the correctness of abstract propositions is apprehended by faith in the Reformer's sense of that word; they are matters of fact, to be accepted or rejected by the ordinary faculties of man. The infallibility and authority which need faith to perceive them are, and must be, something very different; they produce the conviction that in the manifestation of God in His word there lies infallible power to save." (For an adequate discussion of this important subject, the reader is referred to Lindsay's History of the Reformation, Vol. I, pp. 453-467, from which the above quotation is taken. Lindsay's monumental work, by appointment of our College of Bishops, is the course of study for the proper instruction of our young preachers.)

Articles IX, X, XI and XII are all Protestant Articles, setting forth the New Testament doctrine of Salvation through Faith and through Faith alone. And barely to mention in passing such important Protestant Articles as "Of the Church," "Of Purgatory," "Of Speaking in the Congregation in such a Tongue as the People Understand," "Of the Marriage of Ministers," and "Of the Rites and Ceremonies of Churches," I call attention a little more carefully to the Articles "Of Baptism," "Of the Lord's Supper," "Of Both Kinds," and "Of the One Obligation of Christ Finished upon the Cross," as giving the Protestant doctrine touching the Sacraments of the Church.

Roman Catholicism had built up a wall between man and God. The only way to come to God was by means of some mysterious "sacrament"; and the key to this door was in the hands of the church. In addition to such institutions as Christ had ordained, Rome had added many others. And so Rome stood with her doctrine that "grace" with its saving power, flows down through the sacraments of Baptism, Confirmation, the Eucharist Penance, and Extreme Unction, in a mysterious and magical way. Thus through Baptism came salvation; through Confirmation, the Holy Ghost is given; in the Eucharist the soul is fed; by Penance, sins are forgiven; in Extreme Unction all sin is cleansed away and the soul is made fit for heaven. This unscriptural doctrine put enormous power in the hands of the priesthood, and put the priest directly between man and God. All this Protestantism brushed aside. For when Martin Luther went directly to God in Christ, the whole Roman system collapsed. This is the great glad news of the gospel of Jesus Christ which Methodism sounds out to all the world—the fact that every man may come directly to Christ for salvation—the proclamation of the priesthood of all believers. And when a man has thus come to Christ and found salvation in Him alone, he is filled with a sense of certainty and confidence which enables him to sing with the great Reformer:

"Though the whole world with devils swarmed;
And threatened us to swallow;
We will not fear, for we are armed
And victory will follow."

This, then, is the sum of the things which I have written. The one creed which Methodism requires of those who seek the fellowship of our communion, is that ancient creed known as the Apostles' Creed, the creed of Christendom. It matters not what else a man may believe or may not believe, if he heartily accepts the brief statements set forth in this ancient symbol, then he may become a Methodist. Besides this baptismal confession, we have (in the Twenty-five Articles of Religion) an important historical document connecting Methodism directly with the Protestant Reformation; and this Protestant document is a standard of doctrine for all our teachers and preachers. In harmony with the Protestant interpretation of Christianity, we must preach and teach. If it be asked: Has there not been in recent years a great apostasy from these doctrinal standards? I answer without a moment's hesitation, Among Methodists I do not believe that there has been. There is, indeed, some considerable stir among the Calvinistic churches of the country, but that is largely because they are discarding their Calvinism. And our Fundamentalists brethren, who believe that a "great apostasy" must occur before Christ comes again, are loudly declaring that such an "apostasy" has now arrived. But I, for one, am sure that my good friends are mistaken. It is to be hoped that the reading of this paper has led more than a few to come to a better understanding of Methodism and to join with the writer in saying:

"Faith of our fathers! we will love
Both friend and foe in all our strife;
And preach thee, too, as love knows how,
By kindly words and virtuous life.
Faith of our fathers! Holy faith!
We will be true to thee till death."

IN THE FAR EAST—THE DUTCH LIFE OF JAVA

By William C. Allen.

I have always considered that Denmark was the only country possessing government-owned railroads that were really worth while. Now I add Java to the very lean list. Maybe the self-possessed Danes and Hollanders govern politicians and officials better than other peoples. Be that as it may, the Javanesse railways are finely adapted to the service of the country. The lines are narrow-gauged. Forty or sixty miles per hour are speeds frequently attained. The sort of "graft" practiced upon a long-suffering public, in some countries I know, is absent. Thus you can go into the restaurant cars during the day and get a very simple meal, of tea and coffee only. At certain hours regular meals are served at an exceedingly low tariff. In American money soup is 7 cents a plate, bread and butter 7 cents, coffee or tea 7 cents, a full-course luncheon 80 cents, and so forth. The language difficulties of foreigners are always overcome by polite officials or by the courteous interpretations of your Dutch, but English-speaking fellow-passengers. It is at strange stations, say after the tropical six o'clock sundown, that you have to gird on your traveller's armour. Before the train comes to a halt a host of shouting wild-eyed natives rush your compartment and, unless you fairly fight for your worldly possessions, will grab them and disappear in the motley crowd. You dare not trust to a possible sorting-out in the dark. One funny thing about the railways of Java is that the trains do not run at night. So, for instance, if you take an express from Batavia for Soerabaja—a 20 hours run—you stop at some city en route between about 7:30 p. m. and about 6 a. m. This is not a hardship because the hotels are excellent. The reason assigned for this is that the native crews fall asleep after night-fall.

My first experience with the Malay bath was on the Dutch ship going from Hongkong to Singapore. Afterward we came into full contact with it in Java. In hotels and private homes it essentially is the same. The houses of our missionary friends usually had the bath rooms in the rear of the houses where, close by the kitchen and storerooms, we would find them at the end of long porticoes. A typical bath room has no windows, light can only enter it over the ample door. There are few hooks whereon to hang your clothing. The floor and walls are made of concrete or stone. All is dark, soothing and cool after the bursting glare of the tropical sunlight. There is no bathtub, only a deep, concrete well about four feet square and on its thick wall is an enormous dipper. You plunge that simple implement into the water, lift it high above you and pour the vivifying fluid over head and shoulders. The effect is exceedingly stimulating; somehow it seems better than a shower. The water runs off of the very sloppy floor out into a drain. You recognize that the Malay bath, next to a limpid mountain stream, is the best of all.

Dutch housewives in Java possess servants galore but servants and sorrows may easily intermingle. The native servants work little and, although they may be very loyal, infinite tact and patience is required in handling them. The range of wages is not large. The cooking is done in little pans and ovens over small braziers, each about the size of an ordinary jardiniere. Only one thing can be cooked at a time. These miniature stoves stand in rows on one side of the oft-times windowless kitchens, on the floors, and over them squat the dusky cooks whilst watching them. Yet amidst these weird surroundings many an excellent meal is concocted which, when served, is supplemented with luscious fruits.

After tiffin—usually enjoyed at one o'clock—a missionary host, unless he saw evidences of going to our room, would smilingly say: "Mr. Allen, you will excuse us now, it is time to go to bed." So all members of the family would retire to their bedrooms and a midnight silence would settle on the house. The same process was observed in all hotels. By two o'clock guttural voices or laughter ceased and quietude reigned supreme. But after four o'clock stirrings would be overheard. The deeply-shaded windows would evidence signs of life. Curtains would be drawn. Men and women in pajamas and bathrobes leisurely wandered to the bath.

The custom of going to bed in the afternoons, as practiced in Java, is a sensible one. It means escaping from the enervating heat, which obtains all the year in the early afternoon. It carries with it physical and mental relaxation. I seriously question if most white people could possibly live for a series of years in Java without it. By four o'clock, even if I did not sleep, I was equipped for work for the remainder of the day; whereas otherwise I would have been exhausted by that hour. The natives take all the rest they can and, as for the Chinese, they never seem to tire—they put to shame our effete European stock—they go on forever.

By five Dutch-Javanesse life is in full swing once more. The time for recreation has arrived. Dutch ladies, gowned in easy fitting garments of flimsy fabrics and simple colors, appear on the scene. The fashionable shopping hour has arrived. The right calling hour is seven. Afternoon tea prepares our Dutch friends for valient service at the dinner table. This function is generally at eight o'clock, or may be much later. While speaking of table things we do not forget the coffee. It is a heavy black syrup offered in little pitchers. Very little is sufficient and the cup is then filled with water or milk, to suit the taste. If genuine American cream were only introduced, instead of boiled milk, the beverage would be ideal.

One of the notable institutions of Java is "Ryst-tafel," or Rice Toffle. What is Rice Toffle? It is a gastronomic wonder of the world. Its astonishing feature does not consist in the strangeness of the dish, or in its cookery, but in the fantastic mixture of a huge variety of things such as only a contemplative Dutchman could possibly evolve. In the hotel it is the great dish for tiffin. A typical Rice Toffle is heaped upon you as follows: Immediately after giving your order there bears down upon you a line of ten solemn-faced, turbaned, white-jacketed, unshod Malay waiters each armed with his contribution to your sure present joy and possible future sorrow. Some of these men carry several articles of diet, some only one. The first places an immensely deep soup-plate in front of you and into its depths you are expected to put as much boiled rice as you feel confident of mastering. Most Dutchmen take—as a foundation for their repast—enough rice to make an ordinary meal for commonplace men. Then follow the other waiters holding aloft a bewildering array of cooked or spiced things which the true epicure masses up, over and around the original basis of this extraordinary meal. The mound of rice is lost to view under beefsteak, cabbage, baked bananas, done-over meats, beans, all sorts of curried affairs, chicken, peanuts, fritters, fried eggs, to say nothing of the pickled things and what-not too numerous to mention. Some of the smaller dishes are very hot and burn your tongue. When this mountainous conglomeration has been heaped up the real Dutchman takes his huge spoon, and big fork, and mixes the component parts with the rice and then—he eats it! Foreigners who are not, so to speak, to the manor born generally do not indulge in all the ingredients composing Rice Toffle. But I confess that, with its almost mystic charm of rarely blissful seasoning, it is a delightful compound although you must, if careful to avoid unhappy consequences, approach it with caution and self-control!

An outstanding feature of life in Java is the social and business position of the Eurasians. While England and America have decided to consider the children of their own white men by dark-skinned mothers as social outcasts the Dutch of the East Indies have, on the contrary, decided to treat such peoples of mixed breeds as white persons and accord them the same social status granted the Hollanders of purest white blood. In other words, with the Dutch, a proportion of white blood makes its owner a white person—this being the reverse of what the Englishman or American grants. As a Dutch lady remarked to me, "Java is the paradise of half-casts." When we consider that white men have created a condition for their half-cast offspring, for which the latter are not responsible, it would seem as if the attitude of the Dutch toward this sad problem is one of equity and justice.

Breathe through the heats of our desire
Thy coolness and thy balm;
Let sense be dumb, let flesh retire;
Speak through the earthquake, wind and fire,
O still, small voice of calm!

—John G. Whittier.

THE BIBLE AND THE SCHOOLS

The daily reading of the Bible in the public schools is required by law in Massachusetts, New York, Washington, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Alabama, Georgia, New Jersey and Louisiana, though in the two last named states the selections may not be from the New Testament. Ohio, we believe, has local option. Arizona by law forbids the Bible to be read in the public schools. Illinois, by a Supreme court decision, has banished the most educative Book in the world from its schools. The proposed new constitution, however, if adopted will permit Bible reading. Nebraska and Wisconsin forbid "sectarian" use of the Bible. The "Twentieth Century Quarterly," which has made a special study of this subject, says: "The recent tendency, on account of the alarming increase of juvenile crime and vice, has been not merely to permit, but to require daily Bible reading, putting it in the honor roll of compulsory education, too important to be left to the local option of a political school board or a frivolous teacher." The subject has come into new prominence recently, not only by reason of the heightened interest in religious education generally, and in the parochial school question, but because of the decision of the Supreme Court of California, which holds that reading the King James Version of the English Bible, without note or comment, is a violation of the state constitution and laws which provide that "boards of school trustees shall exclude from school all books, publications or papers, of a sectarian, partisan or denominational character." This is directly contrary to a decision of the Supreme Court of Louisiana, which dismissed as trivial the Roman Catholic claim that the King James Version was "sectarian."

The young need more Bible, rather than less, in the school as well as in the home. It is almost incredible that lawmakers who call themselves Christians could vote for laws excluding the Bible from the education of the young.—Christian Advocate.

JESUS LIVES

James Monroe Downum.

They tell us that our Lord is only just mere man,
And that He can not help a sad and sin-sick soul;
That, not the Son of God, He's only Mary's Son,
And comforts He has none when waves of troubles roll.

And if He is but man and not God's only Son,
He has no hand to lead to truer heights beyond,
And all our hopes are vain that cheered us through the years,
Our fathers, too, in all their days no God have found.

'Tis thus that they would rob us of our Risen Lord,
Whom we have trusted all the years along the way;
'Tis thus they'd send us forth so lonely and alone
With naught to bless us in the dark and dreary day.

But all these plans of men are false, and God is true,
Who sent His Son to take away our sin and strife;
He came, the Son of God, who died and rose again
To lift us by His love into a fuller life.

Yes, Jesus lives, He lives so true within our souls,
We know He walks and talks with us along the way;
And as He lives we, too, shall live in purer sphere,
E'er looking onward, upward to a nobler day!

Christ bids us "behold the fowls of the air," and says that "God feedeth them." Do they, then, stay at home, and do nothing, expecting crumbs of manna to drop from rich tables in the skies? Are they found, empty of all appetency, regardless of the changing year, and hanging ever upon miracles? What eager industry flutters in the spring around the plantation, gathering the bits and brakes scattered for them by winter's storm! What busy preparation, at autumn's first chill wind, wheels and musters overhead for the long flight over southern seas, the swift cheering on the slow, and the young wing supporting the old! And is not this truly called the feeding of the creatures by their Maker? Yes; only, "hat which he giveth them, they gather," by putting his skill within them, as well as spreading his affluence without.—James Martineau.

NORTH CAROLINA CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

Official Organ of the North Carolina and Western North Carolina Conferences Methodist Episcopal Church, South. Established 1855.

Entered at the Postoffice at Greensboro, N. C., as mail matter of the second class, acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided in section 1102, act of October 2, 1917, authorized September 9, 1918.

Obituaries and Resolutions of one hundred words published free. All words above this number charged for at rate of 1 cent per word.

A. W. PLYLER, Editor; T. A. SIKES, Business Manager

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Year $2.00; Six Months $1.00; To all preachers of the Gospel, year 1.00

FIELD NEWS

DISTRICT CONFERENCE DIRECTORY

Elizabeth City, at Mackey's Ferry July 17-18

EVANGELISTIC SINGER

Preachers needing a singer for their protracted service this summer will do well to write to Willie Winstead, Goldsboro, N. C. Mr. Winstead is a consecrated young man, trying to fit himself for an evangelistic singer, and during his vacation will be glad to help any preacher in his revival. He will expect only a free will offering at the close of the meeting. He helped me last summer and was very acceptable as a leader in the song and prayer-service. C. P. Jerome.

STATESVILLE DISTRICT NOTICE

On June 25th Bishop Denny met with the presiding elders and the conference and district lay leaders to plan the organization of the lay activities especially in behalf of the forthcoming educational work. At this meeting it was decided that in each district a meeting should be called in the month of July. Ours will be in Newton on July 24th beginning at 10 a. m., and closing in time for the return home. The ladies of Newton will serve lunch in the new community house. All the pastors, lay leaders, educational collectors and chairmen of educational committees should be present without fail. Please suspend all other work for that day and come to Newton. Will the pastors please secure the attendance of the laymen? Mr. Chas. Ireland and Dr. Few are to speak. D. M. Litaker, P. E.

SUCCESSFUL REVIVAL

A very successful revival has just closed in Benson. All the churches of the community were greatly helped by the meetings. Sinners were converted and backsliders were reclaimed. Seven persons united with the church on Sunday and others are to follow. Rev. J. A. Russell of Four Oaks was the preacher and Mr. Ira Medlin of Smithfield led the singing. Brother Russell has the evangelistic gift in a marked degree, and stronger, more forceful presentation of the gospel has seldom, if ever, been heard here. May God bless and continue to use these consecrated Christian workers. E. M. Hall.

BOSTIC CIRCUIT

"Bostic circuit in Marion district, Western North Carolina conference, is a new charge composed of churches which are all in rural section of Rutherford county. We have been renting a home for our pastor for three years, which was unsatisfactory. We have recently bought a desirable lot and erected a good parsonage for our charge, and find we are in debt more than $2000.

"We need some help and have decided to ask each Sunday school in the conference to come to our aid with $1.00 or more.

"Will you please bring this matter before your school and instruct your secretary to mail us check, which will be greatly appreciated."

Believing that all Sunday school superintendents are readers of the Advocate, we wish to take this method of extending the many who have responded to above letter, which has been sent them, our sincere thanks for their aid, and also for the many kind letters of good cheer which have been received, quite a number of which we will preserve. We feel that the Lord is blessing the Sunday school work in many ways all over our conference. E. N. Washburn.

Bostic, N. C.

WEAVER COLLEGE

In my new work at Weaver College I am making every effort to get together an ambitious student body and to provide for them the instruction and the equipment necessary for their symmetrical development.

It now seems that the faculty will be at least as strong as ever before in the history of the institution. It will include about half the faculty of last year. Three of the men hold A. M. degrees. Two have studied in Europe. No teacher has less than two years' experience.

The laboratory equipment is sufficient for the science classes which we operate. The library, however, needs more and newer books and must be scientifically classified and administered. We are employing a competent librarian, and are on the outlook for books. I feel sure there are in the conference hundreds of good books not in use. Possibly you have some which are of no more value to you, or you may know of a collection which was valuable to some one but which is now stored away.

It is also necessary to increase somewhat the enrollment of college students. We have now two excellent dormitories capable of accommodating a hundred pupils, and they should by all means be filled to their capacity. I am asking that you send me at your early convenience the addresses of any young people who might be interested in coming here, and any suggestions that might help in building up our library. I assure you of my sincere appreciation of your co-operation in either one or both of these efforts, which are vital to the success of the college.

C. H. Trowbridge.

DAILY VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL AT WEST END CHURCH

The Vacation Bible School is one of the most successful products in the field of religious education. The church throughout the country has felt the need of giving more time to Christian education of its boys and girls and the Daily Vacation Bible School has proved to be a practical form of week day instruction. The one object of the school is to conserve the religious tendencies in the child's life for the purpose of character building. With this idea in view the West End Methodist church was pioneer in introducing this program in Winston-Salem, June 18 to July 7.

Due to the fact that only two teachers were available the school was limited to the small number of twenty-five. The school was organized in two departments—the primary, ages 6 to 9, and juniors from 9 to 12. The school was opened to other denominations and was in session every morning from 9 to 11 except Saturdays and Sundays. Each pupil paid twenty-fivecents to cover the expense of the materials used in handwork.

The morning program opened with a drill in marching, after which there was a devotional program. This consisted of Bible stories, memory verses, songs and prayer. At the close of this the classes assembled in their respective rooms for the lesson period. The class period was used in the teaching of Bible stories and some expression of the stories on the part of the pupils. In the primary department the story was often acted or played; in the junior department crayons were used by the pupils in drawing some phase of the story. The period of organized play gave the pupils opportunity to play both old and new games. Then came the handwork period when the pupils were taught to make hanging bottles, doll hammocks, doll caps, picture frames, paper furniture and clay mouldings. The closing exercises were featured by short talks by a minister, Y. M. C. A. secretary, trained nurse, Red Cross worker, returned missionary, the fire chief and a real Chinese girl. At the close of each day's work the spirit of patriotism was promoted by the pledge of allegiance to the American flag, followed by a stanza of "America" and the pledge of allegiance to the Christian Conquest flag and a stanza of "Stand up, stand up for Jesus."

During the session the children were given a picnic and at the close of the school appropriate commencement exercises were held. A large number of parents were present at the commencement exercises and were shown something of the work that had been accomplished. All articles of handwork along with the drawings of the Bible stories were on display. The parents seemed very much pleased with the work that had been done in the school and the children expressed regret that the school could not continue longer.

It is hoped that next year many or all of the churches of the city will enter into a co-operative work of this sort and give a larger number of children an opportunity of enjoying and deriving benefit from the Daily Vacation Bible School. X.

EAST MARION

Just a word to those who may feel an interest in our great church, and especially those who know East Marion (Marion Mills). We are spending our vacation given to us by the good people of East Marion near the Catawba mineral springs, a beautiful and most delightful place to rest. We are enjoying this outing given to us by the big-hearted people of East Marion charge. Yes, I am resting quietly, notwithstanding the fact we are building two splendid churches—one at each place, East Marion and Clinchfield—modern, up-to-date Methodist churches, worth $10,000 each, with seven class rooms, electric lights, heat and water. Resting, of course, when men like A. F. Hunt, W. S. Jones, W. J. Rogers, Mart Flack and Charlie Fisher and Supt. J. M. Snoddy, the building committee at East Marion; and such as R. O. Wylie, C. W. Wilson, Boyce Sprinkle, J. W. Lusk, J. M. Woody and Ben Seagle, with Miss Wilma McCollom and all the rest at Clinchfield, telling me they will have these nice brand new churches ready when I return the first of August. J. I. Spinks.

EXPECTING A REVIVAL

We are looking forward to a successful revival at our Bethany church, beginning next Sunday, July 8th. Rev. W. F. Trawick of the Roberson circuit will do the preaching.

The fourth Sunday the Evangelistic Club will begin a meeting here at Stedman in the Methodist church. This evangelistic club was organized during the Ham-Ramsey meeting at Fayetteville. They have been very successful in all their work since.

R. F. Taylor.

SORES BOILS, CUTS and BURNS have been healed since 1820 with

Gray's Ointment

Sold by all druggists. Write for sample to W. F. Gray & Co., 710 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

OXFORD COLLEGE

OXFORD, N. C. Founded 1850

Oxford College offers:

- 1. A Preparatory Course of four years, accredited.
2. A Junior College Course of two years, based on fifteen units of High School work.
3. A Teachers Course of one year, based on fifteen units.
4. Vocational courses—Home Economics, Commercial, Fine Arts, Pedagogy, Expression, Music.

Apply for catalogue. F. P. HOBGOOD

Practical training in bookkeeping, shorthand, typewriting, banking, accounting and penmanship in the Greensboro Commercial School, Greensboro, N. C., will assure you of a well paying position. Students are enrolling weekly. Write for Catalog.

EPWORTH LODGE LAKE JUNALUSKA

Managed by Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Aldridge.

Write for prices and reservations.

Good eating a specialty.

EXPERT KODAK FINISHING

Developing and printing done by experts. Most beautiful work guaranteed at all times. Satisfaction or no charge. Developing 6 exposure rolls 10 cents, 10 and 12 exposure rolls 15 cents, film packs 20 cents per pack. Printing 1 5-8x2 1-2—3 cents, 2 1-4x3 1-4—4 cents, 2 1-2x4 1-4—5 cents, 3 1-4x5 1-2—6 cents. Quick delivery. Send one film to test our service.

LIGONS DRUG STORE, Spartanburg, S. C.

The Sweet-Toned WILLIAMS PIANO

Long time favorite of such noted musicians as Excell, Gabriel and Rodebeaver. Our method of sending pianos on Free Trial.

Direct from Factory at Factory Prices to homes and churches is much appreciated by careful and economical buyers. Williams pianos are so much finer and better they actually sell themselves. No money in advance. Easy Terms. We gladly trust good people. Write for FREE Catalog and factory prices. No agents call. Williams Piano and Organ Co., 1256 Fullerton Avenue, Chicago, Illinois

THE SALISBURY MARBLE CO.

Salisbury, N. C.

Anything in... CEMETERY WORK

Satisfaction our Motto

A card will bring full information.

- School Desks, Opera Chairs, Folding Chairs, Kindergarten Chairs, Church Pews, School Supplies, Blackboards

Southern Desk Co., Hickory, N. C.

DR. CHAS. W. MOSELEY

Diseases of Stomach and Internal Medicine

Office, 229 S. Elm St. Residence, 438 S. Mendenhall St., Greensboro, N. C. Office 604—Phones—Res. 1739.

IN MEMORIAM

HASSELL—Dr. G. S. Hassell was born May, 1853, in Tyrrell county. He died June 3, 1923. He was married March 29, 1880, to Miss Mary V. Bate-man of Jamesville, to which union five children were born, of which three survive—Mrs. Virginia Dare Evans of Wilmington, N. C., Mrs. Mary E. Gardard of Jamesville, and J. M. Hassell of Jamesville. He joined the Methodist church in Jamesville April 29, 1923. He was big in heart and spirit. He was a large contributor to all the forward movements in and around Jamesville. A loving father, a tender husband, a noble citizen and a high toned Christian gentleman has passed from us.

W. G. Lowe.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

On May 18, 1923, God in His infinite wisdom called from the busy scenes of this earth into the joys of eternal bliss Brother William Mundy, our friend and co-worker.

We, the members of the Denver M. E. Sunday school, standing in the shadow of this loss and wishing to bear witness to his great usefulness, desire to put on record the following resolutions:

First, That although in the death of Brother Mundy our Sunday school has lost a faithful and loyal member, we humbly submit to God's will and praise Him for the example of this consecrated life.

Second, That we as members of the Sunday school strive to imitate his noble example which stands out as a beacon light beckoning us onward and upward to a better land.

Third, That we extend to the bereaved family our deepest sympathy, feeling sure they are comforted in the knowledge that he has finished his task and has entered into his heavenly rest.

J. D. Lowe,
L. A. Linebarger,
R. E. Proctor,
Committee.

GARRISON—Mrs. Emily Stowe Garrison was born July 9, 1838, died June 19, 1923, being in her 85th year. Paralysis was the cause of her death; however, she had been in bad health for years. See had been for many years a member of the Methodist church. She married John Garrison in 1867, living a true life with him until death. To this union were born five children. She leaves a husband, three sons and one daughter to mourn her departure. May God bless the entire family and may they find in Him their every need is my prayer.

G. L. Wilkinson, P. C.

MILLS—John H. Mills was born April 30, 1860, and departed this life December 21, 1922. On February 7, 1884, he married Miss Emma Brawley, who with seven children and two sisters survive. He spent the last 20 years of his life in Mooresville, where hundreds of friends remember him as "Uncle John," and all who really knew him only have words of praise to speak of him. In spite of great physical pain he spent the last days of his life in sweet and happy communion with God, often expressing the desire for all loved ones to meet him in heaven. He is gone but not forgotten.

G. W. Fink, P. E.

LEDFORD—On June 9th, about 11 o'clock in the morning, while the beautiful sunlight was spreading her rays of gold and the birds were sweetly singing in the apple trees of the old farm orchard which hovered around the dear old home of father, the death angel crept silently into the bedroom and carried father away.

Brother Noah Ledford was born January 12, 1836, and departed this life June 9th, 1923. He had been a member of the Methodist church for 60 years. He was married June 8, 1862. Unto this union were born ten children, four boys and six girls. Three of the children have passed to their reward.

The writer has been in the home of Brother Ledford a number of times for the past nineteen months, and knew him very well as a Christian; his home was where Christ dwelt, and he was loved by his neighbors so much.

To the children I would say, father's gone but not forgotten, and I hand you a heart full of sympathy. I admonish you to live close to the Master, so that you can meet father again.

It is earth's loss, but heaven's gain. The good old brother has gone to join his companion who was buried one year, four months and 13 days ago. Brother Ledford's body was put to rest in the church cemetery at Mt. View, Madison county.

We have to say goodbye here, but there will be no more goodbyes when we meeting in that beautiful city above.

Open the temple gates unto my love,
Open them wide that he may enter in;

And all the posts adorn as doeth behoove

And all the pillars decked with garlands trim,

For to receive this saint with honor due

That cometh into you.

L. C. Delp, P. C.

GRAY—Mrs. Gertrude Buchanan Gray was born in Webster, Jackson county, N. C., 50 years ago. In early life she came by faith into the kingdom of God and joined the army of the Lord under the Methodist banner. In this service she was faithful unto death.

In early womanhood she was married to the Rev. J. J. Gray, a beloved member of the Western N. C. conference. For 25 years she as a faithful companion walked the pilgrim way at his side. A good number of these years were spent in the itinerancy going from parsonage to parsonage, from field to field in the Master's service.

Sister Gray was not only a faithful wife, but a fond and loving mother to her only daughter, Alice, who now is Mrs. J. O. Wood of Rutherfordton, N. C.

After some years of poor health Mrs. Gray slipped away to the Father's house on Sunday morning, June 10th. Her body was accompanied by sorrowing loved ones to the old burying ground in Webster, where it was laid to rest. May heaven's richest blessings attend her memory. And may the goodness and mercy of God, our gracious heavenly Father be and abide upon her loved ones, Brother Gray, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Wood, Bro. M. Buchanan and other loved ones and friends.

By one who knew her.

J. O. Ervin.

BREWER—In loving memory of our dear "Big Daddy," E. B. Brewer, who quietly fell asleep on the night of May 3rd, we wish to express our appreciation of the heritage he left us.

He lived a long, useful life, being in his eighty-fourth year. He was an humble servant of God and a consistent member of Tabernacle M. E. church for about 60 years, serving as steward until paralysis confined him to his room about seven years ago, but his affliction in no way marred his bright and cheerful disposition, for he greeted everyone with a smile and kind word and appreciated every kindness shown him.

We always enjoyed going to "Big Daddy's." He loved children so much. How often do we remember having him call us to him and give us a gentle pat on the head and say, "Be good boys and obey mother and father." And, too, when we wanted to be amused we knew who could sing funny little songs for us or tell us interesting war stories.

We miss him so much. We long to see him, but thank God we know he is happy, for "no pain nor death can enter there."

We loved him dearly and as we grow older we will appreciate more and more the benefit of his life to us and our earnest prayer is that each of us may live the life he taught us by precept and example, and that we can meet him in the bright beyond where comes no parting.

His Grandchildren.

WILLIAMS—One the 30th day of April, 1923, the subject of this sketch,

Mrs. Flora Williams, passed from earth to heaven. Mrs. Williams had lived in Burgaw for many years and was interested in the welfare of the community, but especially was she interested in her church, and seemingly always anxious about her pastor. Doubtless all the preachers who have come this way will remember the kindly welcome they received from this motherly woman. She loved to visit the parsonage. She loved the preacher and his family. She delighted to give little things to the children. May the mantle of her generosity, her sympathy for her pastor and her love for her church fall upon the shoulders of others.

We miss you, Sister Williams, but hope to meet you yonder.

C. H. Caviness.

HERRING—Listen P. Herring, after lingering illness of several months, fell upon sleep June 21, 1923. He suffered much and long, and seemingly welcomed a change. He was appreciative of what the people did for him. He expressed his willingness and readiness to depart and be with his Lord.

C. H. Caviness.

WEBB—The subject of this sketch, Pauline Webb, was born in Swansboro, N. C., November 24, 1901, died October 22, 1922, making her earthly life twenty-one years. At the age of twelve she became a member of the church at Swansboro, and from a child she knew and served her Lord. It was hard for her parents to give her up, as she had been afflicted for some time, which perhaps caused her mother and father to feel the loss of her so keenly. During the illness that took her spirit back to the God that gave it, all was done that loving hands could do. But the Lord had need of her. Pauline has gone where afflictions never come and sickness and sorrow is never known.

Yet again we hope to meet thee,
When the cares of life are fled,
Then together in heaven we'll greet thee,

Where no farewell tears are shed.

A Former Pastor, J. W. W.

GRAY—On the early morning of June 17, 1923, Angeline M. Gray, wife of R. D. Gray, passed to her eternal joys. Her suffering had been long and serene, but with patience she bore them. All that loved ones could do was done for her comfort. She was converted and joined the Methodist church in early life and remained faithful to the end. After her speech had failed day after day smiles played upon her features, showing that she was in sweet communion with her Master. She leaves many friends to miss her, besides a devoted husband and one son, a loving mother, two brothers and two sisters. May the grace of God be with them all that they may see her again with those three jewels that preceded her to the spirit land. Her funeral service was conducted at her home and she was buried beside the three little darlings for whom her heart had been broken years ago.

K. R. Pugh.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas, God in His infinite wisdom has seen fit to remove from us Mary Frances Graham, one of our most faithful and valuable members, and one of the shining lights of our Sunday school; and

Whereas, we, the members of the Rowlan Methodist Sunday school, are touched with profound sorrow that this brief, bright and earthly life, full of promise for the future, has come to a close; therefore, be it resolved:

First, That the dispensations of providence are inspired by considerations beyond the scope of our finite understanding, and while we feel deeply our loss, we bow in humble submission to the will of God, for we know He can make no mistake.

Second, That although we shall miss her visible presence among us the memory of her fidelity to duty, her cheerfulness, sweetness and goodness will abide with us and be inspiration.

Third, That we, the surviving members, try to emulate her example of devotion and faithful service to the Sunday school and church, and the halo of purity, gentleness, kindness and love which she carried.

Fourth, That we extend to the family our deepest sympathy, love and prayers in their sorrow which is our sorrow.

Fifth, That these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of our Sunday school, a copy sent to the bereaved family and copies submitted to the Christian Advocate and The Robesonian for publication.

Mrs. E. B. Ward,
Mrs. P. D. Woodall,
Mrs. J. McN. Smith,
Committee.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas, on April 11, 1923, God in His wisdom saw fit to remove from our midst one of our much beloved members, Brother Alfred White; and whereas, the teacher and members of his Bible class wish to extend their deepest sympathy to his wife and children who survive, be it resolved:

First, Though we miss him, we hold in grateful remembrance his faithfulness to church, class and all duty, and we would commend to ll his Christian life.

Second, That we rejoice in the belief that all his life after his conversion was given for the service of his Master.

Third, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the Christian Advocate and to the great grief-stricken family, praying that the loving Father may manifest to them the continued presence of His Holy Spirit.

Dr. S. J. Christenbury,
H. M. Johnston,
S. A. Thompson.

HOYLE—Raynor, only son of Mr. and Mrs. K. R. Hoyle of Sanford, N. C., and only grandson of the writer, was born January 20, 1922; died June 30, 1923. He was a beautiful and most lovable child and a favorite of many who knew him. Our hearts are burdened with sorrow because we will see him no more in this world, but there is joy in the thought that he is safe with Jesus and that we may see him again in heaven. We prayed that God would let him live, saying "Thy will be done," but God had a work for him to do in heaven that no one else could do. At first we thought that God had wronged us. Why should He give us such a sweet and lovable child and let us love him so much then take him from us? But only the sweet and lovable can draw us from things of the world to a higher and purer life and a longing to meet again. Little Raynor will just as surely be calling those who knew and loved him here as those who call from behind the pulpit and the writer of sacred song. So let each loved one hear his sweet little call, and live so that we may all meet him some day in heaven.

J. F. Wombell.

GRAHAM—When Mary Frances Graham of Rowland, N. C., passed from earth to her heavenly home June 24, 1923, the Methodist church to which she belonged, the community and her home sustained a great loss. She was the daughter of Dr. R. F. and Mrs. Minnie L. Graham, having been born September 16, 1912. She was a general favorite among all who knew her. Beautiful and sunny in disposition, having given her heart to God quite early in life, a model daughter and pupil in school, her life had great promise. It is a rare thing when one so young has such bright prospects for a noble career. She was active in the junior societies of the church, being organist of the Junior Epworth League and president of the Bright Jewels. It is hard for us to realize that little Frances is gone never again to bring us cheer and glad tidings, but she is with the angels and her Lord. The funeral service was conducted in Rowland M. E. church by her pastor, assisted by Rev. J. R. Andrew. The large concourse of people and the many floral offerings as well as the tear filled eyes, all gave evidence of the real worth of the life of the deceased. Her body rests peacefully in the cemetery of Rowland, N. C. She leaves a father, mother, little sister and a great host of friends to mourn her loss. May God comfort these.

P. D. Woodall.

It is a mark of distinction to be a reader of this paper. Don't fail to let our advertisers know it. When answering their ads, mention this paper.

WOMAN'S PAGE

N. C. CONFERENCE

Mrs. J. LeGrand Everett..... Editor
Rockingham, N. C.

W. N. C. CONFERENCE

Mrs. H. K. Boyer ..... Editor
Mt. Airy, N. C.

Western North Carolina Conference

GREATER SCARRITT

The women throughout our conference are more interested in the developments concerning Scarritt Bible and Training School than in any other one thing, possible, at this time. They have been loyally contributing, as conferences, as auxiliaries, and as individuals to its support for many years, and now that it is so soon to enter upon a broader and bigger career of usefulness, and we are called upon not only to keep up our former contributions but to make very much larger ones, we feel that anything that concerns Scarritt is of vital interest to every individual member of every auxiliary. For that reason we have clipped the article below on the "Re-Location of the Training School," written by our Bishop W. F. McMurry, from The Southern Methodist for your information. No conference has pledged more to Greater Scarritt nor been more loyal to Scarritt Bible and Training School than has our North Carolina conference, and we know that we are safe in pledging it to continued loyalty, and we are deeply concerned that the right place for it shall be selected. The term, "the right place," carries with it very much more than just the physical or geographical location of the buildings. Let every woman unite in daily prayer that God Himself shall select that place, that He will so impress those who have the responsibility of the decision that they cannot make any mistake, and that Greater Scarritt will be just what He wants it to be for the dissemination of His truth, for the upbuilding of His kingdom and the salvation of souls.

THE RE-LOCATION OF THE TRAINING SCHOOL

At the annual meeting of the Board of Missions held in Nashville, Tenn., May 1-4, the question of re-locating the Missionary Training School was up for consideration.

This matter came before the board in the form of "The Report on the Scarritt Bible and Training School as Adopted by the Council." That report cited the fact that the Council had considered the report "of the Joint Committee on Missionary Training," and also "communications from President Cox, of Emory University, from Rev. C. W. Scarritt, of Kansas City, etc." The report expressed its appreciation of the communications from President Cox, but set it down that "our plans are so far advanced for the future development of Scarritt as to make it impracticable to accept the invitation."

The report approved "the suggestions made in the report of the joint committee that our two schools of theology be so broadened in scope as to provide adequate missionary training for the ministry at home and abroad."

The report recommended "that Scarritt Bible and Training School be moved to a more central location," and provided that the board of managers of the Scarritt Bible and Training School, together with the executive committee of the Women's Missionary Council "be directed to determine the location and organization of the proposed institution, and to secure a suitable charter for the same." The report further provided that the new institution "be made sufficiently broad and representative of the church as to make practicable the co-operation of all the agencies interested in the training of lay workers." Provision was made for the sale of the property in Kansas City, the safeguarding of the using of the funds in hand, and finally that the executive committee of the Board of Missions and the executive committee of the Woman's Missionary Council and the Board of Managers of Scarritt Bible and Training School be given authority to locate and organize the proposed institution.

After some discussion the Board of Missions amended the proposed action by providing "that these committees report their plans for re-location, both as to the place and relation to other institutions, to the Board of Missions at its next session for final action."

A majority of the members of the Board of Missions present did not believe that the location of such an institution as was proposed should be left for final determination to the executive committee of the Board of Missions, necessarily composed largely of citizens of Nashville, and in part intimately related to local institutions.

It is pretty generally understood, I believe, that the location of the school in the minds of the committees that had been working upon it, was already determined, and that pilgrimages have been made by representatives of the Woman's Missionary Council and others to the site that has been selected in the city of Nashville.

The principal argument for a new location is that this new training school must be near a standard institution of learning, that it may avail itself of provisions therein existing for the usual and regular branches of an education, thus relieving the training school of the burden of supplying a faculty and other necessary equipment, except in the lines of its specialties.

The location of this school is one of the most important questions before the church. We are proposing to train our youth, men and women, for work at home and abroad in the mission fields.

We have gone to large expense, and the church is now being called upon for contributions, and will be in the future for the maintenance of two great universities owned and controlled by the church, and having all the departments of learning usually found in such institutions. Why should we turn away from these schools, which are under our supervision, and provide for perpetual patronage of secular institutions over whose faculties and teachings we have absolutely no control?

The question in my judgment is important enough to be determined by the General Conference, as it is one that concerns the whole church. Certainly no less a body than the Board of Missions should be thought of in connection with it, and time should be given to the church to make up its mind upon this subject. There would be nothing amiss in the annual conferences having opportunity to speak. We cannot afford to make a mistake. —W. F. McMurry, in Southern Methodist.

North Carolina Conference

ANNUAL MEETING W. M. S. OF GREENSBORO DISTRICT

The annual session of the Woman's Missionary Society of Greensboro district met at Muir's Chapel June 7-8, Mrs. William Ballard, the district secretary, presiding. The words of welcome were spoken by Mrs. Lee Smith. Mrs. Lucy Robertson, our beloved president, gave a splendid address, explaining the Belle Bennett Memorial. Miss Naomi Howie, one of our own girls, gave us an interesting talk on the life of the student at Scarritt, where she had been for the past year. She says the thing that impresses one most is the spiritual atmosphere. Miss Howie will be there another year, then go out as our missionary.

Friday morning we had reports from the different societies, showing we had gained five new ones. Our pledge for this year is $9300.

We had as our guest of honor Miss Lelia Tuttle. She spoke of her work in China and told a great deal of the religions and customs of the Chinese. She also led the noontime devotional, using the 23rd chapter of Jeremiah. She insisted that we stress the privilege and joy of service instead of the burden of the Lord.

The afternoon session was given largely to the young people. Mrs. Bernard Kirkman gave an interesting account of her work in Cuba as a teacher in the Eliza Bowman School.

Mrs. C. C. Weaver, superintendent of young people's work, stressed the need of training our young people for leadership and wanted us to have a vision of the need of leaders.

Centenary church, Greensboro, gave a little play, "Aunt Tillie Learns to Tithe," which was greatly enjoyed.

Too much cannot be said of the kind hospitality of the Muir's Chapel auxiliary.

Mention should be made of the beautiful solo sung by Mrs. Richard Boren, "Teach Me to Pray."

We feel that the work has gone forward by leaps and bounds, and that we are greatly indebted to Mrs. Ballard, our district secretary.

Mrs. W. I. Maynard.

ANNUAL SESSION OF WINSTON-SALEM DISTRICT

The annual session of the Woman's Missionary Societies of the Winston-Salem district, was held in Lexington on Thursday, June 21. A large number of delegates and visitors were present and the conference was most inspiring and helpful. Mrs. Dora Simpson of Winston-Salem, district secretary, called the meeting to order and conducted the two sessions in a very comprehensive manner. At one o'clock the ladies were invited to the dining room of the hotel where lunch was served. Among the visitors present were Mrs. W. A. Newell, council superintendent of social service; Rev. W. A. Newell, presiding elder; Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Courtney of Thomasville, Rev. and Mrs. R. H. Daugherty of West End Methodist church, Miss Madge Sills of Winston-Salem, Miss Mo Li How of Shanghai, China; Rev. W. L. Hutchins, pastor of the church at Lexington. Miss How is a graduate of McTyeire school and is completing her education in this country. The program for the day follows:

Morning.

Devotional, hymn No. 207, Mrs. Daugherty.

Welcome, Mrs. Fred Hackney.

Organization.

Echoes from the Council, Mrs. R. H. Latham.

Conference report, Mrs. A. L. Smith. Report of district secretary, Mrs. D. L. Simpson.

Auxiliary institute, Mrs. J. I. Singletary.

Reports by delegates—Finances, Mrs. T. H. Cash; social service, Mrs. R. W. Miller; mission and Bible study, Mrs. J. I. Singletary.

Announcements.

Solo, "Come Ye Blessed," Scott—Mrs. Eugene LeGrand. Lunch.

Afternoon.

Hymn No. 408.

Prayer, Mrs. Daugherty.

Roll call.

Why a memorial to Miss Bennett, and how shall we raise the memorial? Mrs. W. A. Newell.

Solo, hymn No. 197, Mrs. LeGrand. Young people's work, Mrs. W. L. Hutchins.

Reports, Mrs. M. K. Holjes and Miss Frances Hitchcock.

Exhibit of posters, Y. P. yell; song, "Keep the Heart Fires Burning."

Discussions, Mission study books, week of prayer, goals for 1923.

Song, "Roll of Honor," young people.

Playette, Lexington young people.

Children's work, reports.

How can the adult missionary society mother the children—Mrs. J. E. Albright.

Plans for 1923.

Song, Lexington juniors.

Training a social conscience and directing a community service, Mrs. W. A. Newell.

Resolutions and minutes.

Prayer.

Adjournment.

HERE AND THERE

The splendid reports of the different district meetings appearing on this page from time to time brings joy to the heart of every woman interested in the onward trend of things. They have been as a personal message of good tidings to me, as I have read them, and in some instances "boiled them down" somewhat to keep Brother Plyler in a good humor with us. Our district meetings are becoming more and more council meetings in miniature, and this progress is due to the zeal and efficiency of the district secretaries. Your district secretary has a large responsibility and I move that each one be given "a shower" of good cheer and congratulations, for how will she know you appreciate her work unless you do?

At the Greensboro district meeting Mrs. C. C. Weaver struck the keynote of the most serious need confronting us today—the need of trained leaders. There is absolutely no estimating the losses we are sustaining, particularly among our young people, for lack of leadership. This is not cant, but a tremendous far-reaching fact. What are we doing about it?

The presence of Mrs. Lucy H. Robertson at several district meetings was a source of much pleasure and added interest, for we have all come to feel it is a real occasion where she is.

FRECKLE-FACE

Sun and Wind Bring Out Ugly Spots. How to Remove Easily.

Here's a chance, Miss Freckle-face, to try a remedy for freckles with the guarantee of a reliable concern that it will not cost you a penny unless it removes the freckles; while if it does give you a clear complexion the expense is trifling.

Simply get an ounce of Othine—double strength—from any druggist and a few applications should show you how easy it is to rid yourself of the homely freckles and get a beautiful complexion. Rarely is more than one ounce needed for the worst case.

Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength Othine as this strength is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

JAMES M. McMICHAEL
CHURCH ARCHITECT
Charlotte, N. C.

Fishburne Military School Waynesboro, Virginia
44th year. In Blue Ridge Mountains, 1300 ft. altitude. Four hours from Washington. Prepares for universities and business life. Small classes and individual attention secured through faculty of one teacher for every ten cadets. New $250,000 fire-proof buildings. Swimming pool and all athletics. Rate $600. Annual Spring Encampment. For catalog write Major Morgan H. R. O. T. C. under U. S. Hodgins, Principal War Dept.

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORK

N. C. CONFERENCE
L. L. Gobbel ..... Editor
Durham, N. C.

W. N. C. CONFERENCE
O. V. Woosley ..... Editor
Lexington, N. C.

North Carolina Conference

WILMINGTON DISTRICT MEET

Certainly from the standpoint of the Sunday school, the Wilmington district conference, in session the other week at Swansboro, was the most satisfactory perhaps that the writer has ever been privileged to attend. The reports of pastors all bore encouraging messages concerning the Sunday schools of the district, and the atmosphere of the entire conference made it easy for District Secretary Marvin J. Cowell and your conference superintendent of Sunday school work to put in some good licks for the cause. To begin with, Presiding Elder Daniel gave us a good start by placing us on the program the first day if the afternoon—in fact, he gave us the morning hour, which developed into an hour and a half—11:30 to one o'clock. Next day the Sunday school committee through its secretary, Rev. A. J. Hobbs, submitted its report, a remarkably pointed one, published in the Advocate last week, which, after short talks by Revs. H. C. Smith, A. J. Parker, W. A. Stanbury, C. M. Lance, and District Secretary Cowell emphasizing the wisdom of the various recommendations, was unanimously adopted. And between the address of the first day and the adoption of the report and recommendations the second, numerous informal conferences concerning various phases of Sunday school organization and improvement were held. The Wilmington district has made remarkable progress in many respects during the past ten or fifteen years and especially during the past three or four years, and perhaps no phase of the work has progressed more rapidly than the Sunday school. We are expecting even greater progress in the months immediately ahead.

PLACES MANY PROGRAMS

Mr. Marvin J. Cowell, of Wilmington, district Sunday school secretary of the Wilmington district, is making headway in placing the official Programs of Work and standards of efficiency in the Sunday schools of his district, especially in recent days. Within the past ten days or two weeks he has placed Programs of Work in twelve or fifteen schools. Mr. Cowell is thoroughly interested in his work, is himself a successful Sunday school superintendent, and he is offering himself freely to the schools of the district.

INCIDENTS ON THE WAY

Not the least pleasant feature of our trip to the Wilmington district conference was the fact that we had pleasant traveling companions. En route to Swansboro we traveled from Wilmington to the conference with the district secretary and his good pastor, Rev. C. N. Phillips, and in spite of sandy trails, hot sun, and stifling dust time passed pleasantly. And the return trip was equally pleasant, this time the wife of the superintendent of our Orphanage, the business manager of the Advocate, and your conference superintendent of Sunday school work composing the party. We were caught in a dreadful wind and rain storm, but came through it all safely and smilingly, even if we were all as wet as the proverbial hen. Mrs. Barnes, who, at the conference, outdid her husband in representing our conference "pet," and Rev. Mr. Sikes, who preached a big sermon in addition to representing in effective fashion the most widely circulated conference organ in Southern Methodism, took their drenching as though they were accustomed to immersion. Really, it helps wonderfully to be in good company.

BOARD OF MANAGERS MEET

The board of managers of the Rockingham District Standard Training School, meeting at Hamlet Tuesday afternoon of last week, perfected plans for bringing together at Carolina College, Maxton, August 6-11, at least 300 Sunday school and other Christian workers of the district for a week of intensive study and training, for recreation and play, and for inspiration and fellowship. With one exception there was a full attendance of the members, and present also were four or five interested persons not members of the board. It was a very enthusiastic meeting, and committees are already at work looking toward one of the best schools held anywhere. Following are the committees named:

Entertainment—Professor Ernest Greene, Rev. J. L. Rumley, Ben Barnes and D. A. Pierce.

Publicity—Rev. A. J. Parker, Rev. J. H. Frizelle, J. C. Lentz, and Rev. J. A. Martin.

Finance—J. C. Lentz, Rev. W. R. Royall, and Prof. Ernest J. Greene.

Recreation—Rev. J. H. Frizelle, Miss Kate Lee McKinnon, and Rev. W. C. Martin.

Music—Rev. A. J. Parker, L. E. Reaves, and Rev. J. H. Frizelle.

Executive—Rev. J. H. Shore, chairman; Prof. Ernest Greene, Rev. A. J. Parker, J. C. Lentz, and Rev. J. H. Frizelle.

The board passed favorably upon the six courses and instructors suggested by the educational director, and the names of these will be published shortly. Carolina College and the people of Maxton have agreed to entertain the school on the same plan as last year. The program will be brimful of interesting and helpful events, and those who attend are assured a pleasant and profitable week. Remember the date—August 6-11.

SUNDAY AT PINE FOREST

The writer spent the first Sunday in July at Pine Forest, Goldsboro circuit, taking part in an all day Sunday School Day program. The building was filled to the overflowing with men, women and children, some from other churches. The children had their songs, recitations and drills, an orchestra furnished music, dinner was served on the ground, and the writer was given opportunity, both before and after dinner, to discuss the work of the Sunday school and means of making it even more effective. One tangible result was the adoption of the official Program of Work C, and Supt. J. D. Hines and his assistants will set themselves definitely to the task of bringing their school to the degree of efficiency indicated in the program. Pine Forest congregation has under consideration now the matter of building new Sunday school rooms, perhaps of building a new Sunday school and church building, and under the leadership of the pastor, Rev. C. A. Jones, they may be expected to go forward with this and other worthy enterprises.

PROF. WILSON AT FLETCHERS

Prof. R. N. Wilson, Sunday school secretary of the Durham district, delivered a Sunday school address at Fletchers' Chapel, Durham circuit, Sunday, July 1, as a part of the Sunday School Day program at that place. The same afternoon he went to Duke's Chapel with Rev. W. F. Craven, the pastor, and spoke in the interest of the Sunday school there. Sunday, July 22, Professor Wilson will take part in the annual Sunday school institute of the Rougemont circuit.

MAYSVILLE TRAINING CLASS

Rev. L. E. Sawyer has recently organized a teacher training class at Maysville. He is leading the class in a study of Cunningham and North's book on "The Organization and Administration of the Sunday School." Fourteen have already enrolled, and others will join later.

ST. PAULS AND ITS PASTOR

St. Pauls Sunday school officers and teachers have just organized a Workers' Council to meet monthly and have decided to separate Beginner and Primary pupils from the rest of the school for worship, grade these two departments, and use in them graded literature, according to a letter just received from the pastor, Rev. Ivey T. Poole. And that wasn't all the good tidings of his letter. Listen to this:

"Brother Gobbel, I have read a number of the teacher training books but have never enrolled and taken examinations. For the past few weeks I have been re-reading these books and would like to enroll, take the examinations, and get credit. I have just finished the book on 'Organization and Administration of the Sunday School' and am ready for the examination on it. Please send me a list of the entire course."

And then, on top of all this, he says he is making an effort to get all his teachers to attend the district training school at Maxton August 6-11.

We wouldn't object to receiving several letters like that every day.

Western North Carolina Conference

IS YOUR NAME HERE?

The following Western North Carolina conference pastors have received one or more unit's credit this year on the Leadership Training Course for Sunday school workers. A book of twelve chapters, standing for twelve lessons, constitutes one unit. Twelve units, eight general and four specialization, lead to a gold seal diploma. The pastor who refrains from familiarizing himself with the contents of our Sunday school training course is losing his best chance to make himself indispensable. The folks who know the most want to know more. Put your glimmers on these fine fellows. There will be more after the Junaluska schools.

- O. P. Ader, Mount Holly.
- H. G. Allen, Walkertown.
- W. T. Albright, Mount Pleasant.
- W. A. Barber, Greensboro.
- G. T. Bond, Greensboro.
- Z. E. Barnhardt, Winston-Salem.
- J. W. Bennett, Rutherford College.
- R. K. Brady, Hudson.
- D. W. Brown, Gastonia.
- J. H. Brendall, Coleridge.
- E. D. Ballard, Marion.
- L. W. Colson, Asheville.
- Ashley Chappell, Asheville.
- John Cline, Winston-Salem.
- W. B. Davis, Charlotte.
- W. F. Elliott, Rutherford College.
- L. B. Hayes, Greensboro.
- J. S. Hiatt, Winston-Salem.
- M. W. Heckard, Gastonia.
- H. G. Hardin, Charlotte.
- J. W. Hoyle, Leicester.
- J. W. Ingle, Shelby.
- W. A. Jenkins, Concord.
- W. C. Jones, Jamestown.
- T. C. Jordan, Asheville.
- H. H. Jordan, Gastonia.
- G. R. Jordan, Black Mountain.
- C. S. Kirkpatrick, Hickory.
- C. O. Kennerly, Farmington.
- J. F. Kirk, Salisbury.
- W. A. Lambeth, Gastonia.
- M. W. Mann, Gastonia.
- E. Myers, Charlotte, Route 8.
- W. A. Newell, Winston-Salem.
- F. H. Price, Lenoir, R. 2.
- E. J. Poe, Albemarle.
- W. E. Poovey, Marion.

- A. S. Raper, Dallas.
- B. C. Reavis, Weaverville.
- D. H. Rhinehardt, Fallston.
- A. P. Ratledge, Elkin.
- T. J. Stough, Salisbury.
- R. A. Smith, Lexington.
- E. P. Stabler, Bessemer City.
- C. M. Short, Charlotte.
- W. L. Scott, Ramseur.
- A. L. Stanford, Shelby.
- R. A. Truitt, Greensboro.
- R. G. Tuttle, Greensboro.
- J. C. Umberger, Concord.
- W. G. Vick, Gastonia.
- J. W. Vestal, Lewisville.
- M. B. Woosley, Salisbury.
- N. C. Williams, Granite Falls.
- G. W. Williams, Mount Airy.
- G. R. Wilkinson, Belmont.
- J. E. Woosley, Trinity.

OUR FRIENDS

Half of what any fellow does depends upon his friends. More than half of what is done in Western North Carolina conference Sunday school-dom depends upon our friends. Up to July 1st the following Sunday schools had reported to Treasurer H. A. Dunham, Asheville, N. C., that they had observed Sunday School Day and enclosed their offering as shown opposite the school's name. These are our friends. My, how we love them!

Asheville District.

Bethesda .....	$ 5.88
Mills River .....	15.65
Sardis .....	7.27
Saluda .....	6.00
Tabernacle .....	5.75
Woodfin .....	2.46

Charlotte District.

Ansonville .....	6.96
Bethel .....	4.40
Bethlehem .....	1.95
Bonds Grove .....	2.35
Brevard Street .....	6.17
Duncan Memorial .....	14.00
Dilworth .....	19.40
Hebron .....	1.00
Harrison .....	10.00
Hawthorne Lane .....	75.00
Icemorlee .....	4.00
Morven .....	5.17
New Hope .....	2.50
North Monroe .....	4.00
Trinity, Charlotte .....	100.00
Union .....	2.36
Wesley Chapel .....	2.68
Weddington .....	4.40
.....	10.00

Greensboro District.

Friendship .....	9.00
Hopewell .....	6.00
Liberty .....	8.00
Park Place .....	26.23
Ramseur .....	18.65
Rehobeth .....	9.53
Randleman .....	10.00
Spring Garden St. ....	21.97
Trinity .....	2.28
Walnut Street .....	3.19
West Market Street .....	53.15
Worthville .....	5.00

Marion District.

Alexander .....	11.18
Bethlehem .....	2.00
Bollinger Chapel .....	4.05
Glen Alpine .....	5.00
New Hope .....	1.51
Oak Forest .....	2.60
Spindale .....	10.00
Zion .....	4.50

Mount Airy.

Antioch .....	7.38
Rockford .....	7.00
Summerfield .....	28.00

North Wilkesboro.

Fairview .....	3.95
Jonas Ridge .....	2.50
Maple Spring .....	2.59
Scottsville .....	1.00

Salisbury District.

Bogers .....	3.35
Badkin .....	6.49
Cedar Grove .....	5.30
Cottonville .....	5.00
First Street .....	5.50
First Church .....	20.96
Kannapolis .....	11.35
Mount Pleasant .....	7.10

(Continued on page thirteen.)

EPWORTH LEAGUE WORK

Lee Davis, Raleigh, N. C.
Rev. J. F. Armstrong, Concord, N. C.

Western North Carolina Conference

A YOUNG EPWORTH LEAGUE

The Edneyville Epworth League Union is a young league, but we believe there is not a better one in the conference.

Our league was organized May 10, 1922, by Miss Grace Bradley and it has been growing ever since. We began the league with eight members and now our number has increased to 45 members with about 35 regular members.

Every Sunday evening at 8 o'clock we have a snappy, interesting program and once every month a sentence prayer and roll call meetings. At first when we began our league we didn't have a single boy or girl that would lead in prayer, and now we have eight that will gladly pray when called on. Now, if you don't believe we are virile tell us about it.

The officers of our league are:

President—Ethel Merrell.

Vice President—J. W. Hipps.

Rec. and Cor. Sec.—Nora Justus.

Treasurer—Walter Justus.

Era Agent—Roy Justus.

Supt. 1st Dept.—Jennie Hipps.

Supt. 2nd Dept.—Mrs. A. T. Lyda.

Supt. 3rd Dept.—Lois Moss.

Supt. 4th Dept.—Ethel Rymor.

We are going to do our best to make this year's work better than the last. Look for our coming again.

Nora Justus, Cor. Sec.

NEW LEAGUE

The young people of Coleridge met at the M. E. church on Monday night, June 18, 1923, and organized an Epworth League with the following officers elected:

President—Blanche Caviness.

Vice President—Mrs. Floyd Caviness.

Secretary—Penn Cheek.

Treasurer—Thomas Ward.

Era Agent—Lacy Poole.

Cor. Sec.—Faye Caviness.

First Supt.—Mrs. J. H. Brendall.

Second Supt.—Mary Cox.

Third Supt.—Edna Moffitt.

These young people look forward to the activities of league work with pleasure. Penn L. Cheek, Sec.

North Carolina Conference

A TRIP DOWN EAST

It's one thing to hear or read about Epworth Leagues, but it's another thing to see them in action. Did you ever hear anybody say, "Well, what does the league do, anyway?" Well, they do lots of things that the church ought to do and that likely wouldn't get done if the leagues didn't do it. You say, "That's too general; what, for instance?" Well, on this trip down east, as I have titled this tale, Rev. Arthur Kale and I, who are sent out by the Anti-Saloon League, are giving a dialogue or dramatic debate on the subject of law enforcement. The leagues in this section of the state are doing the advertising and working up a crowd for our meetings and they are doing some very creditable work. The leagues are doing a great service to the cause of law enforcement. They are putting themselves before the people as a group of young folks who stand for law and order and are doing their part by helping us get a message to the people. You see, they are alive to up-to-date events and are taking part.

Princeton League.

That's not all. When we were at Princeton on the Fourth of July the league there, which was then two weeks old, had advertised and had us almost a housefull of folks. Gehrman Cobb, the state league treasurer, went over with us to the meeting and he was so inspired by the crowd of young people that he was compelled to speak a word of encouragement to the leaguers. Brother Farrar, the pastor, told me at the close of the meeting that the league had taken over his Wednesday night prayer meeting and were holding that for him every week. Now, how's that for a beginner in league work? Another fact of interest to young Methodists over the state is that in that Princeton League there are two Trinity College students and about two others who expect to enter Trinity next September. So there's a good word for Trinity and the league, too. Then, too, maybe since Trinity is in Durham that has something to do with the fact that Durham won the cup this time. If that's the case, then the other leagues ought to profit by the training the Trinity leaguers get and bring home with them. But I'm getting off my subject. Of course Trinity is "down east," too, far as that's concern. So Princeton has made a good start. Here's hoping she'll continue to grow and be of service to the church and community.

Vanceboro League.

There's a bunch of young leaguers at Vanceboro who can hold prayers, too. Rev. E. C. Durham, the pastor, says the young folks are his "stand-bys." Is not that what makes league worth while?

The leagues in Smithfield and La Grange also advertised a meeting for us.

Oriental League.

If you don't believe a league can do things listen to this. The Oriental League worked us up a meeting on last Saturday night in spite of a rainy night and a show being in town.

Then, by the way, that fellow Willis Brothers of Oriental, who has just been elected New Bern district secretary, is a crackerjack leaguer and I'm expecting big things of New Bern district under his leadership.

Now look at the New Bern leagues. Howard Collie and Weathers have both left Centenary League—two good ones gone—but if you want anything done in New Bern with reference to league work, call on Gertrude Wheeler and you'll get it done. She's a leaguer that does things.

Let's look at Riverside League, too. They haven't as large a church as Centenary, but they have a league that's on the go. Of course there's Addie Rhem Banks, their "old reliable," also a younger Banks is on the job, and Mary Cavanaugh is there, too.

Well, I've been on this trip about a week now and I've already learned lots more about leagues and leaguers.

Now, if you leaguers don't want to read this dope, you'd better get busy and write me some news of your leagues to be put in the place of this.

Lee Davis.

PLEASE SEND ME NEWS

Say, Leaguers, the Advocate gives this page for league news. Why not send me some to put in here? See your corresponding secretaries about this.

Have you installed your new officers? Have you had any social events lately? Have you drawn up a policy for the coming year? If so, tell us about it. Send your news to Lee Davis, care Anti-Saloon League, Raleigh.

MAYSVILLE LEAGUE

At a special meeting of Maysville Epworth League on Sunday evening, June 10, the following new officers were installed by Rev. L. E. Sawyer:

President—J. C. Foscue.

Vice President—Marie Foscue.

Secretary—Robert Brock.

Supt. 1st Dept.—Eliza Foscue.

Supt. 2nd Dept.—Grace Mattocks.

Supt. 3rd Dept.—Clara Foscue.

Supt. 4th Dept.—Inez Tilden.

Cor. Sec.—Laura Mattocks Bell.

Era Agent—Madie Bell Hay.

The Wednesday evening following the installation service of Sunday evening our league was favored by a most interesting talk by a missionary, Mrs. Mamie Hearn, just returned from China. After the talk she displayed many curios which were very interesting to all present.

Although our league had been greatly handicapped during the winter by many things, we are planning to do better this year than the one before.

Laura Mattocks Bell, Cor. Sec.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

Say, leaguers, have you done anything in your league lately? If so, why not let the others of us have the benefit of it? If you are doing anything, you might as well get credit for it. If you're not, you'd better say your prayers and get busy and quit looking for so many excuses.

Do you know, friend leaguers, that the more an individual or a league does and shows himself or itself capable, the more opportunity will come to him? If the people in your community find out that your league is on the job to serve in the name of Christ, they will come to you with more plans for Christian duty than you can imagine.

If other leagues over the state find out that you are putting on some kind of a program that is worth while that they have not heard of, which may be very simple to you, but is something altogether new to them, they will want to get your program and plan of work and try it in their league. Who knows how many new ideas of helpful programs may be broadcasted over the state to the various leagues? And who knows how much good may come out of them? You not only help yourselves, but you help the others. Is not that the sentiment of the league motto? Or might it not be "All together for Christ?"

Now how can you help all get together for Christ? Simply by writing up what happens in your league that might be of interest to some other league and sending it to Lee Davis, Jr., Raleigh, N. C., to be published on this page.

"I CHARGE THEE, FLING AWAY AMBITION"

Anybody who has an ambition to be president of his league chapter or lay delegate to the electoral conference, or member of the legislature or captain of the basket ball team, or bishop, or anything, may read with profit the words which Arnold Bennett puts into the mouth of a successful man of thirty-five:

"I am not happy, and I am not content. And if, after all these years, I am neither happy nor content, what chance is there of my being happy and content in the second half of my life? The realization of part of my worldly ambition has not made me any happier; and, therefore, it is unlikely that the realization of the whole of my ambition will make me happier."

The thing Mr. Bennett would put in place of the ambition which even when realized does not bring happiness, is an ideal, which at least lifts us above our former selves, though the ideal is never reached.

There is lasting gain in pursuing an unreachable ideal. In attaining even the highest ambition there may seem to be gain, but it is a short-lived and doubtful profit; and the after-taste of it all is bitter on the tongue.

Read once more the significant words, proven true by a thousand exact experiments: "It is unlikely that the realization of the whole of my ambition will make me happier."

It won't. It won't even make sensible folks envy you; and where is the compliment in being envied by fools?

—Epworth Herald.

It is a mark of distinction to be a reader of this paper. Don't fail to let our advertisers know it. When answering their ads, mention this paper.

For Your Complexion's Sake
Rid your skin of pimples, rash, eczema.
Make it soft, velvety and healthy by using

TETTERINE

60c at your druggist's or from the
SHUPTRINE CO. :: :: SAVANNAH, GA.

What Is the Club?

The Advocate Piano Club is both a theory and a fact. The theory is that a piano manufacturer can afford to sell one hundred pianos at a lower factory price than he would be willing to make on an order for only one instrument. The fact is that the Club has saved each of its members nearly one dollar out of three, and everybody is therefore delighted.

The theory of the Club is "Co-operation." The fact is "Perfect satisfaction." The theory is "A square deal to every member." The fact is "Not a single case of dissatisfaction."

If you are interested in securing a piano or a self-player piano of the highest quality, by all means write for your copy of the Club's catalogue and the special prices and terms to Club members. Address the Managers, Ludden & Bates, Advocate Piano Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga.

WESTERN NORTH CAROLINA

"The Land of the Sky"

MICHIGAN,

WISCONSIN,

MINNESOTA,

COLORADO,

UTAH,

CALIFORNIA,

CANADA,

NEW ENGLAND,

and

Seashore Resorts

GREATLY REDUCED
SUMMER FARES

Now in Effect

via

Southern Railway System

From GREENSBORO AND OTHER POINTS

Send for Free Booklet

Convenient Schedules

Attractive Service

L. A. PEACOCK, C. T. A.

112 East Market Street,
Greensboro

GOSPEL TENTS

OUR PRICES ON QUALITY GOSPEL TENTS
CANNOT BE EQUALLED—WRITE TODAY—
ATLANTA TENT & AWNING CO.
ATLANTA, GA.

OUR ORPHANAGE WORK

METHODIST ORPHANAGE RALEIGH, N. C.

Hon. R. N. Page ..... President
A. S. Barnes ..... Superintendent
Mrs. Mattie Jenkins ..... Matron
Owned and maintained by the North Carolina Conference.

FORM OF BEQUEST

I do hereby will and bequeath to The Methodist Orphanage, Raleigh, N. C., contemplated by the charter under the Act of the General Assembly of North Carolina ..... (here designate the bequest) .....

THE CHILDREN'S HOME WINSTON-SALEM, N. C.

Rev. C. A. Wood ..... Superintendent

THE METHODIST ORPHANAGE

OUR NEEDS

1. Offerings from all the Sunday schools.
2. Support from all organized classes.
3. Gifts from many individuals.
4. Seven passenger automobile.
5. Swimming pool.
6. Friends to write Orphanage in their wills.

* * * *

For the past two weeks we have been publishing letters which the seniors wrote before they left home. Each week for some time we shall present two or three of the letters to our many friends. It is highly gratifying to the supporters of the Methodist Orphanage to know that these upon whom they have bestowed their gifts and love have a keen sense of appreciation for the favors received. I trust that all of our friends will read these interesting letters.

* * * *

I write this letter of appreciation with two different feelings. In a sense it makes me unspeakably happy, and in another it makes me feel quite sad.

I realize that I am nearing the time when, to my regrets, I shall step from the threshold which has been my protector for so many years. Out into this great, big world, leaving behind me home, friends and protection, I must go.

I shall be ever grateful to the dear people of the Methodist Orphanage, in which I have lived and been happy since I was a little boy.

Especially I wish to thank "Miss Mattie," who has been our "Dear Little Mother" since the first day this home was occupied.

Mr. Barnes, who with his great, big heart has been a loving father to us all for eight years, I wish to leave with him my love and best wishes for success in every task he shall attempt in the future.

To Miss Laura Breeze, our "Dear Mother-like Nurse," I leave my thanks and gratitude for the many, many happy times she so carressingly tended me when I was sick.

To all of my dear school teachers I leave my deepest regrets for every time that I was not at my very best in school.

To all others whom I have not named I leave my best love and wishes for as happy a stay at the dear old M. E. O. as I have had. Ase Davis.

* * * *

In April, 1915, I came to the Methodist Orphanage, having become an orphan at the age of nine years. I lost my mother when I was eight years of age and my father a year later. My uncle kept me for a short time, but with his own little ones found that he could not give us the proper training and education that we should have, so he brought me and my two younger sisters here. We have grown to love this place as our home, for the superintendent and the head matron have been a real father and mother to us.

Before leaving here I wish to extend my hearty thanks and sincere appreciation to the friends who have trained and educated me, especially the Bible class of Launenburg, whose loyal support I have had for some time.

As I go out into the ocean of life I shall not forget the kindness of the North Carolina conference, nor the home of my childhood and girlhood.

The memories that I shall carry away with me will spur me on to become a noble, true-hearted woman.

Once again thanking you, I remain,
Sincerely, Mary Hicks.

* * * *

I am very grateful for this opportunity to try to express my deep appreciation for the gracious privilege which has been mine for the last ten years—that of having this, the dearest spot in all the land of ours, as my home, and it's nothing less than the Methodist Orphanage.

When I first came here little did I dream of the greatness of the event that had happened for I was too young. I can't yet appreciate it as I will some day in the future, for it's out there, when I'm gone from the protecting care of my friends, the true friends, away from home that I will begin to realize the true worth and meaning of my home. There's a peculiar sadness as the time draws near, for I must soon launch out into the big, busy world to find my place among its hustling crowds. Ah, how I'll miss those loving words and the kindly smile and my goodnight kiss from Miss Mattie, and could I carry with me the cheery smile and the loving, optimistic words of the dearest man I know, Mr. Barnes, to encourage me when I come to those rough places that I know I must encounter in my life's walk, I'm sure I would overcome them with ease. But even the memory of these people and the thought of what they are expecting me to do with my life is going to urge me on to the highest notch of the ladder.

And can I forget the sunny smile of one with whom it has been my privilege to work for the last two years. Oh, how I'll miss her!

Words are inadequate for me to express my love for my class in Smithfield. They are making it possible for me to continue my education and I shall go out with the determination to make my life count, because that's the means that I have of repaying them. Money can be repaid, not kindness such as theirs. Right here let me say that I love each member of the class.

Should I try now to make mention of my every teacher, friend and pal I'd be filling a volume, but as my space is limited I must not say more other than this: Oh! I have grown to love each brick and stone from cellar up to dome, and oh, could I express my love and sadness as I must leave this, my Home!

Straight from my heart,
Very truly, Adlee Stokes.

LEAGUERS MUST LEAD

There is a great responsibility on the young Christians of today. Leaguers, you are a large group of that class of young people on whom the responsibility of the evangelization of the world lays. It is a great task and no one can shirk his duty to his Savior and his country and to humanity. Each of us has a job to do. There is so much unhappiness and so much discontentment in the world today due to the fact that men and women are leaving Christ out of their lives in their every day living, that we young Christians must open our eyes to the fact that there is a tremendous burden on our shoulders and we must carry it.

Nor must we become discouraged in the undertaking. Remember and say with St. Paul "I can do all things through Christ who strengtheneth me."

And as Edmund Vance Cooke so well expresses it in his poem on "How Did You Die?"

BAILEY MILITARY INSTITUTE

GREENWOOD, S. C.

33rd Session Begins September 11th, 1923

In the healthful Piedmont section of South Carolina and in a city widely known for its superior moral and religious atmosphere. Strictly a standard preparatory school. Member of Southern Association. Sound classical and scientific courses prepare for college; strong commercial course prepares for business. Faculty made up of college graduates of established success in teaching and leading boys. Small classes. Close but sympathetic supervision. Excellent moral tone. All athletics. High standards of sportsmanship.

Place your boy at Bailey, and rest assured that his every interest will be safeguarded and promoted, and that there will be no let-up in the endeavor to make him a fine gentleman and a four-square man.

Send for catalog, and see what our patrons say of the school. Address JOHN W. MOORE, Superintendent

THIRTEEN MILLION DOLLARS IN CHURCH VALUES

The value of property belonging to the Methodist Church in North Carolina exceeds $13,000,000. On this vast amount of property there is only $3,000,000 of insurance—less than one-fourth of its value protected.

Suppose you had stock in a furniture factory one-fourth protected from fire, what would you do? You would either sell, or hold the directors responsible.

See that your church officials protect your most valuable assets or you may be called upon to donate again to rebuild a church parsonage destroyed by fire.

Insure in The Methodist Mutual—owned and controlled by the two North Carolina Conferences.

W. E. WEBB, Secretary

STATESVILLE, N. C.

THE STIEFF TONE

is famous with three generations of music lovers. It has never been duplicated. It is the expression of a passion for perfection that has actuated three generations of piano makers.

Chas. M. Stieff, Inc.,
Charlotte, N. C.

Please send catalogue and prices of Pianos.

Name .....
Address .....

CHAS. M. STIEFF, Inc.

CHARLOTTE, N. C.

STIEFF PETIT GRAND

The smallest Grand Piano made that embodies all the essential qualities of the Concert Grand.

"Did you tackle the trouble that came your way

With a resolute heart and cheerful?
Or hide your face from the light of day
With a craven soul and fearful?

Oh, a trouble's a ton or a trouble's an ounce,

Or a trouble is what you make it,
And it isn't the fact that you're hurt
that counts,
But only how did you take it?

"You're beaten to earth? Well, well, what's that?

Come up with a smiling face,
It's nothing against you to fall down flat,

But to lie there—that's disgrace.
The harder you're thrown, why, the higher you bounce;

Be proud of your blackened eye!
It isn't the fact that you're licked
that counts,
It's how did you fight—and why?

"And though you be done to the death, what then?

If you battled the best you could,
If you played your part in the world of men,

Why, the Critic will call it good.
Death comes with a crawl, or comes with a pounce,

And whether he's slow or spry,
It isn't the fact that you're dead
that counts,
But only how did you die?"

WHERE WOULD THE WORLD GO?

A resourceful Methodist preacher in Iowa put his church into everybody's thought at a time when few people intended to think about churches. Wilton was observing Old Home Week. A few days before the parade, Pastor Loose was thinking about the floats which the business houses would prepare to represent them.

"Why not the church, too?" said he, and forthwith set to work.

He designed and helped to build a float with his own automobile for its base. Here is a hint of its quality. Look at it, and you will see why the people of Wilton could not quite put the church out of their thought amid the distractions of the day.

"The church and the world are balanced against each other on a teeter plank. But under the church's end of the plank is a great rock, the Rock of Ages. The world is swung over the other end and would go down if it were not counterbalanced by the church.

"Just beneath the world sits the devil, reaching up greedy hands to catch the world if the church should step off the other end of the plank. On the banner over the float is this question: 'What would become of the world without the church?' No way-faring man, looking at the design, needed to be at a loss for the answer to that question."

But the church won't step off!

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON TEMPERANCE AND SOCIAL SERVICE, ROCKINGHAM DISTRICT

Methodism is irrevocably committed to the absolute prohibition of the iniquitous liquor traffic in every form. For her attitude upon this vital question she has no apologies to make, and having contributed no little to one of the mightiest achievements of civic righteousness in modern times, the passing of the Eighteenth Amendment, and the Volstead Act, she will now conserve this great victory by defending without compromise the Federal Constitution against every political vandal, who with lawless hands would tear down this palladium of our liberties.

The Eighteenth Amendment is now a fact—a fact of law, which many otherwise well informed men and women seem not yet to realize, wrought into the Constitution of the United States by the sovereign act of a free people, and any man in a high place of authority with his oath of office upon him, who would defy it or put in operation a process of nullification by putting his foot on the brass rail and blowing the foam from the mug or demanding a larger alcoholic content ought himself to be blown into everlasting political oblivion by the awakened moral sentiment and outraged conscience of a great country that now, happily freed, yet still remembers the bitter bondage of the liquor autocracy.

Being armed with this great instrument, in which the will of a nation finds expression, we must continue to insist with unabated emphasis upon law observance and law enforcement among all classes of our citizenship. Nation-wide in its application, it should be nation-wide in its observance, and they who ridicule it and bring it into contempt as the work of "fanatical dregs," and proceed to stock their cellars simply because they have the price, or connive at the practice of those who do as no business of theirs, are at heart anarchists, and dangerous enemies of our democracy. In this connection we would quote with sincerest approval the ringing words of one of the great men of the state and nation, whose trumpet tongue death has so recently silenced, our own Claude Kitchin: "The test of good citizenship is a willingness and readiness at all times not only to obey any law of the country, but to aid in every way the enforcement of all its laws, and to require of every officer of the law and order such enforcement without fear or favor." We commend these brave words of North Carolina's distinguished son to all our people, and especially to every officer as they bear upon the problem of law enforcement in the violation of the Eighteenth Amendment where-soever and by whomsoever the offense is committed.

Under the provisions of the Eighteenth Amendment, whose protecting aegis stretches from the Atlantic to the Pacific, there is no room in this country for the moonshiner, the blind tiger, the bootlegger, the rum runner, or the outlaw of any other name, who for the sake of big profits in an outlawed business debauches without conscience the youth of the land, breaks the heart of motherhood, and with no feeling of remorse wrecks the home of a little child. We call upon all our officers, from the judge on the bench to the township constable, to respect their oath of the office in dealing with all offenders who deliberately and knowingly violate the law and by utmost diligence, fearlessness and impartiality in the performance of their duty seek to convince the more ignorant of the community that organized society is built on law and order, and that the basis of all social progress is a profound reverence for constituted authority.

But the problem of law observance and law enforcement does not begin at the bottom with the moonshiner and the bootlegger, most of whom are densely ignorant, and the victims of a bad environment for which they are not responsible. It begins with individuals "higher up"—men of intelligence and ability, who furnish the brain and the means for the business while their ignorant dupes do the dirty work and they themselves stand aside under cover and reap the larger profits, and if there be detection and prosecution, they are unknown and go unwhipped of justice, when they should be the first to put on stripes and find their way to the chain gang. Nothing would so strengthen the cause of nation wide prohibition as the apprehension, prosecution and conviction of a few red-handed violators of the Eighteenth Amendment—violators of the kid glove and lavender scented variety, men who by reason of their social standing and financial rating laugh at the idea that they are in a world of infinite subordinations, and assuming that they are beings of a superior order, to whom ordinary social regulations do not apply, spit in the face of the amendment, and say to hell with your prohibitory regulation; we will do as we please. To make this element in our social organism fear a righteous ordinance which they will not respect is the supreme task of law enforcement.

Linked up with the moonshiner and the bootlegger, and practically inseparably from them, is the crime wave that is now sweeping our land. The spirit of lawlessness is abroad in the foundations of the earth. We cannot shut our eyes to the fact that organized society is threatened by the forces of evil, and that civilization itself is now on trial. Coming unsubdued out of the horrors of the great war, the unconquered brute still in human nature seems to have come to the surface red in tooth and claw. Men are in danger of losing all reverence for the sanctity of human life, and the problem now is to save the world from a debacle in a time of peace more awful than that brought on by the sword and the madness of war.

We denounce in unmistakable terms recent outbreaks of mob violence, some of which have occurred within the bounds of Rockingham district, that have shocked the moral sense of the country and brought the blush of shame to the cheek of every law-abiding citizen. Men, cloaked or uncloaked, hooded or unhooded, who band themselves together, and under the cover of night drag helpless women from their homes and ply the lash on their naked backs until their silver skin is laced with their golden blood, have committed a brutal crime whose violence trumpets itself unto heaven. A crime not against a defenseless woman only, but a crime against civilization, against law and order, against organized society.

We call this country a democracy, and some are bold enough to call it a Christian democracy, and such it is in name at least. Then let all men know that democracy does not prowl in the night, and do business in the dark with hooded head. It works in the open, out under God's heavens, lifting unveiled face to the stars, and courts, a pitiless publicity because of a record of which it is not ashamed. A democracy can survive on no other basis, and the government of the people, for the people, by the people is hastening unto swift and sure disaster if private individuals, unrebuked and unafraid, be allowed to take the law into their own hands, and attempt to right in secret public wrongs and private evils and by lawless methods of their own devising. We sometimes complain of what seems to us the law's long and unnecessary delay, and the failure of the courts to fix the punishment to the crime; but the law's long delay and the frequent escape of notorious criminals is infinitely better for all parties concerned than the swift vengeance of the unbridled and unreasoning mob.

For thirty years the Anti-Saloon League has stood in front of the battle line leading the fight against alcohol; it and the W. C. T. U. have largely built up the sentiment that has made possible the victory so far, and we believe if the churches will co-operate and support these organizations they will lead on to complete victory.

In these tremendous hours that are sifting out the souls of men, we urge all our preachers to preach as never before a great constructive gospel, a gospel that saves here and now, and unto the utmost, making men a new creation in Christ Jesus, that out of a regenerated and transformed humanity the ideal kingdom may be evolved, the kingdom of truth and righteousness and brotherhood, of which the Man of Galilee will be the throbbing heart and living center, where all base passions die, the sordid and the mean slough away, grasp and greed are unknown, and where the perfect will of God shall find full and final expression in the conduct of men. R. C. Beaman, Chairman.

MARTHA WASHINGTON COLLEGE

An ideal College for Young Women. Healthful surroundings. 2200 feet above sea-level, same as Asheville, N. C.

All literary teachers hold Master's or Doctor's Degrees. High standard faculty, professionally trained and experienced. All departments of high order. Curricula for majoring in English, History, Mathematics, Sciences, French, German, Spanish, Home Economics, Art, Piano, Pipe Organ, Voice, Violin. Conducted like a large home. Student "activities" a special feature. Address PRESIDENT MARTHA WASHINGTON COLLEGE, Abingdon, Va.

A COLLEGE THAT DEVELOPS

Morals and Christian Character

As Well as Mind and Body

An A grade college, co-educational, of highest standards and scholarship.

GUILFORD COLLEGE

Thorough instruction, excellent equipment, under Christian environment. Courses leading to A. B., and B. S. Degrees. Excellent Musical training and Home Economics. Able faculty. Fine athletic record. Ten modern buildings. Large campus. Healthful climate. Rates reasonable. Six miles west of Greensboro. For literature and other information, write—

THE PRESIDENT, GUILFORD COLLEGE, N. C.

GREENSBORO COLLEGE

The A-Grade Woman's College of the Two Methodist Conferences of North Carolina

Rated by State Department of Education as Class A.

Chartered 1838. Confers the degree of A. B. in the literary department and B. M. in the music department.

In addition to our regular classical course, special attention is called to the departments of Home Economics, Expression, Art, Education, Sunday School Teacher Training, Piano Pedagogy, and to our complete School of Music.

Modern New $50,000.00 Dormitory completed 1918. Conservatory of Music costing about $170,000 completed 1922.

Fall Semester begins September 5, 1923. For further information apply to DR. S. B. TURRENTINE, President, Greensboro, N. C.

OAK RIDGE INSTITUTE OAK RIDGE, NORTH CAROLINA
T. E. Whitaker, President

Founded in 1852. Military. Courses thoroughly covering Literature, Science, Book-keeping, Short-hand, Typewriting, and Music. Eight buildings; electric lights, steam heat and shower baths. 350 acres in campus, athletic grounds, orchards, and farms. Beautiful lake nesting between hills covered with virgin forests. Healthful—1040 feet above sea level; accessible location near Greensboro. Same moral influences. Costs reasonable. $425 for the year. Fall session opens first Tuesday in September each year. Write for illustrated catalogue. Address OAK RIDGE INSTITUTE, Oak Ridge, N. C.

1802

1923

LOUISBURG COLLEGE

A Junior College for Young Women
With a Standard Preparatory Course of Four Years
Property of North Carolina Conference

Faculty of specially trained, consecrated Christian teachers.

Health Record Unsurpassed. Home-like Atmosphere. Social Life Carefully Guarded. Athletics.

In addition to the regular college courses, Classical and General, attention is called to the departments of Art, Business, Education, Expression, Home Economics, Music (Piano, Voice, Violin, Theory, etc.), and Religious Education.

Rates as low as consistent with good service. Send for free Catalogue and Book of Views. For further information write

A. W. MOHN, PRESIDENT, LOUISBURG, N. C.

The Call of the Conference Claimants

Edited by Luther E. Todd, Secretary

Board of Finance, M. E. Church, South

510-513 Security Building, St. Louis, Mo.

This week I am publishing a remarkable article written by Mr. Marvin Campbell, of South Bend, Ind., a splendid layman of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Possibly it contains some statements that should not be published as applying to Southern Methodism, and yet there runs through it such passion and interest for the cause of the conference claimants that I believe it will help to arouse our people on this subject.

The Methodist Episcopal Church is seeking to pay a certain minimum amount to each claimant yearly and to secure same by placing the total amount in the budget. The Methodist Episcopal Church, South, is striving to pay a certain amount yearly to each claimant and to secure this amount (1) by assessment through the budget and (2) by income from adequate superannuate endowment, which is to supplement the amount coming from the assessment. The assessment part of our program has now well-nigh reached our aim so far as it is concerned, and we expect at the annual conferences this fall to project a special effort looking to secure a minimum of ten million dollars' superannuate endowment to complete the program.

I believe the reading of the following article by Mr. Campbell will serve to stir loyal Southern Methodists to support the special effort for superannuate endowment in a manner that will guarantee its success in overflowing measure.

OUR DISHONORED DEBT

By Mr. Marvin Campbell.

Our "debt of dishonor" is not the debt of any board but of our church as an organization. If as an individual I were to treat my debts of honor, my promise to my employees, my contract obligations with the same lack of fidelity as does the Methodist Episcopal Church, I would retain no standing in my church or community as a reliable, honest man.

This criticism is not prompted by any spirit except the hope of benefit, and purposely I have made the statement strong, (1) because it is a fact and (2) because I want all who have read thus far to read further the proof of it. Especially do I want bishops, district superintendents, and ministers to read what I am about to say, because upon them rests the responsibility of conditions as they are, and in them is the remedy, the observing of the law.

The Ethics of Business.—I am president of two manufacturing corporations and own a large majority of the capital stock of both. Hence I control them and am responsible for the honorable or dishonorable way in which they meet their obligations. We have employees to whom we pay a bonus at the end of each six months based on certain conditions. If at the end of any six months or, worse, if repeatedly and continuously at the end of a six months' period I should say to these people, "You have met all the conditions on which we agreed to pay these bonuses; but we have paid unusual amounts to hospitals, orphans' homes, colleges, associated charities, and missions at home and abroad and have increased our own salaries and have decided that these are justifiable reasons for not paying you what we promised to pay," such treatment of my employees would leave me without standing with them and without the confidence of my church and community.

Church Ethics.—The Methodist Episcopal Church is exactly in this position in regard to its aged and disabled retired ministers and the widows and orphans, and its members cannot do as individuals without loss of religious, moral, or business standing that which the church as a whole has been doing for the last fifteen years.

Concisely the facts are these: Our ministers, all in one class as to their support, are divided into four groups: (1) bishops, (2) district superintendents, (3) pastors, and (4) superannuates (conference claimants). Provision for the support of all is by the budget plan, one budget in each pastoral charge, and each of the four ministerial groups has a ratio share based on its claim. If there is a shortage, each is required to bear its ration of the shortage.

1. The Book Concern estimates the claim for the bishops and apportionment it to the annual conferences, which apportion it to the individual churches and in this way the bishops should and do get their support.

2. The district stewards estimate the claim of the pastor and apportion it to the membership of the church, and in this way the pastor should and does get his support.

4. For the retired ministers and other claimants the annuity claim is positively stated. They are the "preferred stockholders" of the church. Each annuitant shall have one-seventieth of the average salary of his conference multiplied by his years of service. The conference stewards shall compute the amount required and apportion it to the respective churches, and in this way the annuitants should receive the full amount of the disciplinary pledge if it were apportioned. But in most conferences the full apportionment is not made.

A Sacred Pledge.—The retired ministers rely upon the pledge of the church, so clearly set forth in its Discipline, to give them a comfortable support in disability or old age by a life annuity. This is a positive contract and a solemn pledge just as surely as any contract that I ever made or ever could make with my employees when they begin and while they continue their service with me, and the Methodist Church cannot with integrity disregard this obligation any more than with integrity I can disregard my business obligations. There is no call for church funds that can take prior claim to this obligation. Home missions, foreign missions, church extension, hospitals, any call, every call is second as a matter of integrity to this obligation written in the law of the church. It is the only positive, fixed amount, contract obligation in the Discipline. All others are dependent upon conditions. This is mandatory and must in honor be met even if to do so means that other suggested expenditures be ignored. I repeat it: the retired minister who has met his conditions of service for forty years or more or who is sixty years or more of age or who is incapacitated for the itinerant work is a preferred stockholder entitled by contract to a definitely pledged amount, and nothing can excuse the payment except insolvency.

The Facts in the Case.—But in practice what are the facts? This pledge of budget support was made by the General Conference of 1908 after being approved by a commission appointed four years previously consisting of three bishops, Cranston, Hamilton and Joyce; three ministers, Drs. J. H.

Hamilton, W. H. Wilder, and J. E. Stubbs; and three laymen, R. T. Miller, John E. Andrus, and myself. With slight amendments, in order to make the claim more positive, it has been repeatedly ratified. I have been on the conference claimants' committee of every General Conference since that time and know the intent to uphold and emphasize this claim. As to the contract, the language of the Discipline has no ambiguity nor uncertainty. Yet fifteen years have passed and only twelve per cent of the annual conferences paid the full disciplinary annuity, while twenty per cent of them paid three-fourths of their disciplinary annuity, forty-six per cent of them paid half of their promised annuity, and twenty-two per cent of them paid less than fifty per cent. Sixty-eight per cent of the conferences, five more than two-thirds of them, paid only fifty per cent or less of this positive annuity contract made by the church.

Paying and Living.—It cannot be said that Methodism does not have the ability to meet its contracts, for it is financially solvent. Millions and millions of dollars are paid each year through solicitation. That is glorious, but liberality has no religious nor moral right to intrude on contract obligations. If an annual conference is not in a position to meet its contract pledge to its superannuates, it is not in a position to pay a dollar for benevolences until it does so. But annual conferences can do both.

Again, if a conference finds that it must apportion to the superannuates only fifty per cent of their claim, it should take the same position toward its other ministers and apportion to the bishops, district superintendents, and pastors only fifty per cent of their claims, so that all classes of the ministry may receive a like ratio of their several claims. This would be equity. It would be religious honesty. It would be following the law as to sharing in the ratio of the shortage, "prorating" as it is called in the Discipline. It would be an honest application of the Golden Rule.

The Golden Rule.—Why am I so earnest about this? Why do I put the facts so plainly? Well, possibly I know the facts more intimately than many other church members. My work with the commission that studied this question and on the committee in each General Conference since the law was placed in the Discipline may have impressed its essential features and the default of the church more intensely on me than on the casual reader. I am charitable enough to grant that. Further, the church as a whole may be so absorbed in other things and so zealous along other good lines that it overlooks this basic obligation which cannot be ignored with honor. I can conceive of no other possible excuse and do not grant that this is a valid one.

I hope that our church papers, bishops, officials, and pastors will together demand of Methodism such a regard for its promises as will require that the Methodist Episcopal Church as a composite whole shall meet its contracts with the fidelity that it expects to obtain in the business conduct of its members in their relation to their individual contracts.

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORK

(Continued from page nine)

Mount Zion .....	4.50
Norwood .....	15.00
Park Street .....	8.34
Randalls .....	4.45
Rehobeth .....	2.50
Stony Hill .....	8.00
Unity .....	3.00
Shelby District.
Bethel .....	6.35
Central, Shelby .....	75.00
Cherryville .....	5.85
Cramerton .....	15.32
Denver .....	5.38
Dallas .....	7.23

East End, Charlotte .....	8.50
First Church, Lincolnton .....	25.00
King's Mountain .....	10.00
Main St., Belmont .....	11.00
Main St., Gastonia .....	131.29
Mount Holly .....	9.00
Tabernacle .....	10.50
Webbs .....	2.35

Statesville District.

Broad St., Statesville .....	18.84
Center .....	5.40
Concord .....	10.00
Hopewell .....	9.00
Hudson .....	4.61
Huntersville .....	3.07
Littlejohns .....	5.40
Mount Zion .....	15.11
Pisgah .....	6.38
Rocky Springs .....	3.33
Stony Point .....	6.30

Waynesville District.

Asbury .....	8.00
Delwood .....	12.50
Maria Memorial .....	2.50

Winston-Salem District.

Advance .....	2.19
Bethel .....	7.43
Burkhead .....	17.18
Centenary, Winston-Salem .....	50.00
Center, Mooresville .....	4.00
First Church, Lexington .....	41.71
Farmington .....	2.00
Fulton .....	1.00
Green Street .....	6.25
Hiatts .....	3.00
Kernersville .....	9.13
Macedonia .....	4.50
Prospect .....	4.75
Siloam .....	2.25
West End .....	38.38

TRAINING SCHOOL FOR NEGRO CHURCH LEADERS

The Commission on Race Relations of the Woman's Missionary Council, in co-operation with the Nashville Bethlehem Community Center, is undertaking a new enterprise in the opening of a summer training school for Negro church leaders. The date of this first session is August 2-12, 1923. It was considered wise to hold a short term at this initial session, but it is hoped that in the future a longer term of six or eight weeks may be conducted in order to give real training for professional workers. While the term this year is to be short, yet every effort is being made to make the session worth while.

The commission and the Bethlehem Center have always held that friendly co-operative effort between the races was the first Christian principle to be observed in the accomplishment of any undertaking for the benefit of the Negro race. In line with this the joint committee which has in charge this new undertaking is made up of representatives from the two races; the faculty and speakers will be both white and colored.

Courses will be offered in Bible, mission study, Sunday school organization, home and community betterment, and methods for the missionary society and young people's work.

In addition there will be platform addresses each evening, at which time vital Christian messages will be delivered. Both teachers and speakers will be the very best that can be secured.

The school will be housed in the new building of the Bethlehem Center, which will be dedicated some time during the session. The students present will have an opportunity to observe an up-to-date Christian settlement at work in a community. This will be of inestimable value, as much of what they see can in some way be put into operation in their own communities.

Mrs. W. A. Newell, Council superintendent of social service, is co-operating with the joint committee and is asking auxiliary superintendents of social service to aid in giving the school publicity and to lend their personal efforts in securing students for the school. All names of prospective students should be sent to Miss Martha Nutt, Registrar Fifteenth Avenue and Cedar Street, Nashville, Tenn.—Bulletin.

PRESIDING ELDERS APPOINTMENTS

Western North Carolina Conference

ASHEVILLE DISTRICT H. C. Sprinkle, P. E. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Asheville District, including Hot S Ings, Antioch, Marshall, etc.

CHARLOTTE DISTRICT J. B. Craven, P. E., 413 Central Ave., Charlotte, N. C. FOURTH ROUND—IN PART

Table listing church appointments for Charlotte District, including Bethel, Love's Chapel, Lilesville, etc.

GREENSBORO DISTRICT W. F. Womble, Presiding Elder 508 Summit Ave., Greensboro, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Greensboro District, including Centenary, Park Place, Gibsonville, etc.

MARION DISTRICT Z. Paris, P. E., Marion, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Marion District, including Gilkey, Rutherfordton, Morganton, etc.

All the pastors and charge lay leaders of Marion district will convene at Marion on July 26th on very important business.

MOUNT AIRY DISTRICT J. H. West, P. E., Box 422, Mt. Airy, N. C.

FOURTH ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Mount Airy District, including Spray, Draper, Pilot Mountain, etc.

NORTH WILKESBORO DISTRICT J. W. Williams, P. E., Jefferson, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing church appointments for North Wilkesboro District, including Warrenville, Creston, Helton, etc.

SHELBY DISTRICT H. H. Jordan, P. E., Gastonia, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Shelby District, including Lowell, McAdenville, Bellwood, etc.

STATESVILLE DISTRICT D. M. Litaker, P. E., 240 Walnut St., Statesville, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Statesville District, including Stony Point, Elmwood, Cool Springs, etc.

Table listing church appointments for Ball Creek, Catawba, Hickory, Westview, etc.

WAYNESVILLE DISTRICT R. S. Howle, P. E., Waynesville, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Waynesville District, including Shoal Creek, Bryson-Whittier, etc.

WINSTON-SALEM DISTRICT W. A. Newell, P. E., 1084 W. Fourth Street, Winston-Salem, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Winston-Salem District, including Grace, Linwood, Farmington, etc.

North Carolina Conference

DURHAM DISTRICT M. T. Plyler, P. E., Durham, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Durham District, including Leasburg, Carrboro, Chapel Hill, etc.

ELIZABETH CITY DISTRICT C. B. Culbreth, P. E., Elizabeth City, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Elizabeth City District, including South Mills, Sharon, South Camden, etc.

FAYETTEVILLE DISTRICT R. H. Willis, P. E., Fayetteville, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Fayetteville District, including Newton Grove, Duke, Dunn, etc.

NEW BERN DISTRICT F. M. Shamburger, P. E., New Bern, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for New Bern District, including Mt. Olive Ct., Mt. Olive & Calypso, etc.

RALEIGH DISTRICT J. C. Wooten, P. E. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Raleigh District, including Tar River, Ebenezer, Central, etc.

WASHINGTON DISTRICT S. A. Cotton, P. E., Washington, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Washington District, including Calvary, Barefoot's Chapel, Bailey, etc.

ROCKINGHAM DISTRICT J. H. Shore, P. E., Rockingham, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Rockingham District, including Raeford, Parker's, Red Springs, etc.

WELDON DISTRICT S. E. Mercer, P. E., Weldon, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Weldon District, including Barysburg, Northampton, Rich Square, etc.

WILMINGTON DISTRICT J. M. Daniel, P. E., 519 Grace Street, Wilmington, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Wilmington District, including Carver's Creek, Hallsboro, Whiteville, etc.

You Cannot Afford to be without the Old Family Songs of the Gospel. Millions now in use. 33 songs, words and music, 12c. each in 100 lots, 15c. songs, words and music 18c. each in 100 lots. Send 25c. for sample copies. We do not pay express charges on 50 or more hooks. Send cash with order. E. A. K. HACKETT, Publisher, Fort Wayne, Indiana

A NEW KOREAN DISTRICT

L. P. Anderson.

The Songdo North District, to which we were appointed last year upon our return from furlough, is the newest one, comprising nearly one-fifth of the baptized membership of our church in Korea, or according to last year's report 1440 members, and at present 87 churches and preaching places. It is interesting to note that this is the exact number of churches in the Songdo district at the time Bishop McMurry organized the Korean annual conference just five years ago. What was then the Songdo district was divided into the present Songdo and North district last annual conference, the former having 85 and the latter 87 organized groups and preaching places at present. You can see something of the growth during the Centenary period from these facts.

During this year, in the Songdo North district, we have established eleven new groups and could just as easily have doubled or trebled this number had we only had funds for expansion, conservation and providing houses of worship for these new groups and those already established.

Our hearts are full of gratitude to God and the home church for all the funds we have received during the past year, and which have made it possible for us to grow so rapidly. But at last year's mission meeting, during the Christmas holidays, we were forced to curtail our expenditures and this mean that we could not advance as we hoped and as the opportunity offered. We were obliged to confine our efforts almost entirely to conserving and strengthening organized work and were unable to go out into new fields where we had no churches, and where they were calling for us, because this would, as I have already said, have meant larger expenditures for pioneer work, conservation and buildings than we had in hand. The field is ripe and waiting if we only had the funds to advance into these new fields.

For awhile many of the poorer and ignorant classes flocked into the churches, but now this has largely reversed and the learned classes and those better off in respect to this world's goods are coming in.

Bright young men from government offices and those with and without educational advantages are turning towards the church for something they have not yet found and can never find outside of Christ.

A semi-political movement, namely, the establishment of temperance societies to limit the consumption of strong drink and tobacco, is under way and in many instances the initiative is coming from among the Christians and often from the non-Christians.

Then the nation-wide longing for education gives us another strong point of contact and opportunity. Many are beginning to realize that those within the church have special advantages that those still in heathen darkness do not have.

We cannot give the exact figures as yet, but we feel that the two Songdo districts will reach or pass the five hundred mark in baptized members this year, a nice increase over last year.

In spite of great flood damages in a large section of our Songdo territory our finances are coming up to an encouraging degree.

There comes to my mind a building enterprise that has been on my heart and on Brother Weems' also. This is the E Chun church building, to house one of our self-supporting stations. We have no more loyal congregation anywhere, and they will do all they can. In the askings for this year, 1923, we have in the estimates for the first quarter $5,000 for this church. Advances from other years and other enterprises are about to crowd this most urgent building out, though it was given a preference and placed in the first quarter. First of all, the local congregation is ready and waiting with its part and we have constantly been telling them to wait just a while longer. The stones have been quarried and brought from the mountain and most of the lumber sawed and stacked up in the open where it will be constantly damaged. Already this congregation has sustained heavy losses due to timber being washed away by flood, but they went bravely to work again and have gotten material together and are only waiting for us to fulfill our pledge made in good faith. Numbers of non-Christians have subscribed liberally to this enterprise and all over our district they and the Christians are looking and waiting for us to begin a building and every day we are losing or are in danger of losing something we cannot afford to—prestige and opportunity—which we will lose if we do not keep our pledge. If it were not His work one could not continue to bear up under the continued inquiries and entreaties to start at once.

GIVE THEM STORY PAPERS

We believe our schools will find it worth while to supply their boys and girls with those splendid story papers edited by our editors and published by our publishing house: "Boys and Girls" for children under 10; "Haversack" for boys 10 to 17; "Torchbearer" for girls 17 to 17; and "Our Young People" for pupils over 18. They are inexpensive, especially so when considered in the light of their excellence. The publishing house will furnish sample copies on request.

"Private" John Allen told of an old negro preacher in Mississippi who was approached by a deacon who desired the reverend gentleman's consent to his daughter's marriage with him.

"I doan' know 'bout dis," said the preacher, dubiously. "You ain't sech a young man, deacon. I ain't sure dat you kin support my child."

The deacon bridled. "Dere won't be no trouble 'bout dat!" he asserted warmly. "I kin support her all right."

The minister reflected for a moment. "Has you eber seen my Chloe eat?" he finally asked.

"I has!" came from the suitor.

"But," exclaimed the old preacher impressively, "has you ever seen her eat when nobody was a-watching her?"—The Continent.

"Don't you wisht you was a bird, Jimmie, and could fly away up in the sky?" mused little Jean, dreamily.

"Naw," scorned Jimmie, "I'd rather be an elephant and squirt water through my nose."—San Diego Epworthian.

Old Colored Mammy: "I'se wants a ticket fo' Florence."

Ticket Agent (after ten minutes of weary thumbing over railroad guides): "Where the dickens is Florence?"

Old Colored Mammy: "Settin' over dar on de bench."—Princeton Tiger.

Our Foreign Advertising Dept. is in charge of JACOBS & CO., CLINTON, S. C.
Soliciting Offices:
E. L. GOULD, 118 East 23th St., New York
Wm. H. VALENTINE, 4372 West Pine Blvd., St. Louis, Mo.
F. W. HENKEL, 1148 First Nat'l Bank Bldg., Chicago, Ill.
J. W. LIGON, Aragon Hotel, Atlanta, Ga.
G. H. LIGON, 421 Biltmore Ave., Asheville, N. C.

It is a mark of distinction to be a reader of this paper. Don't fail to let our advertisers know it. When answering their ads, mention this paper.

FOUNDED 1838

CHARTERED IN 1859

TRINITY COLLEGE
DURHAM, N. C.

A Southern College of liberal arts with an established national reputation for high standards, noble traditions, and progressive policies. Its large endowment fund makes possible its first-class equipment and large faculty of well trained and carefully chosen teachers. Student fees low. Comfortable, inexpensive rooms in carefully supervised hygienic dormitories.

Classical and scientific courses leading to the bachelor's degree. Graduate courses in all departments. Schools of Engineering, Education, and Law.

For catalogue and illustrated booklet, address

R. L. FLOWERS,

Secretary to the Corporation.

DAVENPORT COLLEGE

FOR YOUNG WOMEN

LENOIR, N. C.

A three-year Junior College with a record of sixty-eight years of exceptional Academic work.

Well Equipped, Conservative, but thoroughly abreast of the times.

Fine Type of Student Life. A Safe Place for Young Women to study under close but sympathetic discipline.

Moderate Expenses. The lowest cost commensurate with a High Type of Modern Instruction.

A Registered Nurse constantly in attendance. A most healthful location, in the foothills of the Blue Ridge.

Courses in the Regular Academic Department and Art, Music, Expression, Domestic Science, Domestic Art and Secretarial Courses.

A four-year preparatory course on same campus and correlated with the college.

For Catalogue and Views,

Address PRESIDENT C. L. HORNADAY, LENOIR, N. C.

RUTHERFORD COLLEGE

RUTHERFORD COLLEGE, N. C.

NEXT TERM OPENS SEPTEMBER 4TH

Rutherford College offers four years accredited High School work, and two years of College work.

These are some of the interesting considerations:

1. Modern equipment.
2. An efficient faculty.
3. The breezy and healthful location.
4. Modest expenses (from $150 to $200).
5. The unusually purposeful and religious students in attendance—fifty-five of whom last year were ministerial students, twenty-two volunteer workers, twenty-two members of the evangelistic singing class.
6. The very earnest disposition on the part of the management of the school to raise the standard of scholarship to the highest possible attainment.

Other information will be gladly furnished on request.

M. T. HINSHAW, President, Rutherford College, N. C.

WEAVER COLLEGE

DENOMINATIONAL

CO-EDUCATIONAL

WEAVERVILLE, NORTH CAROLINA

Tenth and Eleventh Grades in High School. Freshman and Sophomore Years of College Course. Lake and Forested Campus nine miles from Asheville. Modern Dormitories, well equipped Library and Laboratory. Athletics, Receptions, Literary Societies, Religious Activities. One Christian Teacher with Education and Experience to every 15 pupils. An excellent Gateway from the Restrictions of a Good High School to the Responsibilities of Professional and Business Life.

For Catalogue and other information address:

C. H. TROWBRIDGE, President, Weaverville, N. C.

IN MEMORIAM

EVANS—Sister Ruth Ruemma Warren Evans was born April 17, 1843; died May 16, 1923; age 80 years and 29 days. She married Mr. J. L. Evans August 27, 1865, who died 35 years ago. This union was blessed with eight children, two of whom died some years ago. Three sons and three daughters survive her and 26 grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren. She was converted in early girlhood and joined the Baptist church but later in life connected herself with the M. E. church at Bethel, in which she died with the testimony on her lips, "I am going to rest."
J. M. Green, P. C.

BEACHUM—Daniel K. Beachum was born April 25, 1848, and died May 14, 1923. In 1872 he was married to Tobitha Dean. This union a son was born. Then the wife died and Brother Beachum was left a widower. March 12, 1872, he was married to Annie Simmons. When a young man he joined the Hopewell Methodist church, where he held his membership the most of his life. When he was in his old age he left his farm near Hopewell and moved to Polkton. He also moved his membership to the Methodist church in Polkton. He was a good man and it is the judgment of those who knew him best that he has gone to the better world. Funeral services were held at Hopewell church by the writer, assisted by Rev. L. H. Griffith, and the body laid to rest in the cemetery there. D. C. Ballard.

MILES—Mrs. Sallie E. Miles was born in Caswell county, near Bayne's Store, November 8, 1882. Her parents were Levi B. and Huldah Fitch. There were also in this home four boys, three now living.

On April 13, 1902, she was happily married to M. B. Miles, and to them God gave three children, viz., Effie, Glen and Betsy. Theirs was a happy home until death came and took the wife and mother away on the 6th of last March.

Mrs. Miles joined the Methodist church when she was young, and was ever true to her vows and faithful in the discharge of her religious duties. She was always kind to and thoughtful of others, and her going from us leaves a large vacancy in the community and church as well as the home. She will be greatly missed.

For a number of years she had been a great but patient sufferer, and a few days before the end came she went to a hospital in Greensboro and underwent an operation, vainly seeking to regain health. It was from there that her pure white spirit slipped away and went home. Tenderly we laid her body in the Mebane cemetery to await the coming of its Lord. May comforting and sustaining grace be abundantly bestowed upon husband, children, brothers and other relatives and friends.
N. C. Yearby.

GREENE—Norma Louise Greene, born April 25, 1922; died May 6, 1923. Norma Louise was one of the brightest, sweetest, prettiest babies of our congregation. Her beautiful, sweet, clear face was often a cause of comment among those who came into her presence. Perhaps no child in our midst was held in more tender affection.

The sainted grandfather often remarked to its parents that the child was too sweet and heavenly to remain on earth. In more than the ordinary way the child was a great heavenly light in the home. Each day it grew into the hearts of its parents; and in more than an ordinary way their hearts delighted in the child. And well may they, for it was a baby of rare beauty, sweetness and charm.

We have never known, perhaps, a child to suffer as it, so meekly, so much pain and torture of body without hardly fretting or grunting. Such wondrous patience and endurance of a little child must have been heavenly. Jesus saw the patient, sweet lamb as it suffered and reached down those gentle, loving arms and took it to His bosom. The child didn't die. Jesus took it to be with Him and the angels and the redeemed.

To have come in contact with Norma Louise here was a sweet benediction, and to know that she is in glory is a rare attraction. Sweet flower, budded on earth, bloomed in heaven. A radiant spirit, rose in earth, shines in glory. Norma Louise, sweet, fair, beautiful child, look for us. We're coming sometime. We'll see you again and take you into our arms on the other shore, where we'll meet to part no more. Lead kindly light, lead thou me on, till we shall see each other face to face.
R. A. Truitt.

TWIFORD—Jas. L. Twiford was born September 22, 1880, and was drowned about March 6, 1923. He leaves a wife, two children, a mother, three brothers and three sisters, and a host of relatives and friends to mourn their loss. Brother Twiford was a loving husband, a good father and a loyal Christian. He was a loyal member of the Amity M. E. church and was for some years a steward of the same. Brother Twiford was a good citizen. He was a member of the Knights of Hyde and an Odd Fellow. The writer put him away in the little burial ground at his wife's childhood home in the presence of a host of his friends and relatives. We sadly mourn because we have lost in our mind a rounded up man in his dealings with men in all lines. May our gracious Father comfort the bereaved ones in this sad hour.
J. J. Lewis.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas, God in His mighty wisdom took from our midst, on Sunday, March 11, 1923, one of our loyal and beloved members, Horace Roberson, age 20.

We wonder why he was taken so young, but these things we do not understand. We leave it to God, for He never makes a mistake. He was an active and enthusiastic member of our missionary society; therefore be it resolved:

First, That our society realizes its great loss in this member, but while we miss his cheerful presence we trust it is his eternal gain.

Second, That we extend to the bereaved family our deepest sympathy.

Third, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, a copy sent to the Christian Advocate, and Missionary News, for publication and a copy recorded in the minutes of our society.

Ima Hunter,
Eddie Boyce,
Lula Copeland,
Committee.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas, death has again entered the ranks of the Woman's Missionary Society of Hillsboro Methodist church and has called home one of our oldest members, Mrs. Margaret P. Brown, who was known to all of us as "Mother Brown"; and Whereas, Mrs. Brown was one of the leaders in the organization of our society and was always read with her gifts and service.

Whereas, her deep Christian piety and full consecration to her church was a source of inspiration to us. Therefore be it resolved:

First, That while we deeply mourn our loss we rejoice in the assurance that she has entered her rest and reward.

Second, That we will endeavor to follow her example of faithfulness and service.

Third, That we extend to her sons, daughters and grandchildren our heartfelt sympathy.

Fourth, That a copy of these resolutions be read at the July meeting of the society and a copy be sent to the North Carolina Christian Advocate.

Mrs. J. J. Blalock,
Mrs. Cora Stewart,
Mrs. J. R. Roach.

MANGUM—On Sunday evening, June 3rd, the spirit of Louis W. Mangum passed out of this life to God, the Maker. His life of 63 years was an eventful one. Born of humble parents in Granville county, N. C., in the dark days of the Civil War, he was deprived of an education in the schools; but, possessing unusual natural ability, he by constant application acquired an education which attracted much attention and made him a valuable citizen and Christian worker. He was a deep thinker, an orator of more than ordinary ability, and a preacher of power at one time. His faith in God and faith in his fellowman found expression in patience, unselfishness, humility and Christian service. The dominant quality of his character was optimism. "Blessed are the merciful, for they shall obtain mercy," was verified in his experience. He literally followed his Master's injunction, and like "bread cast upon the waters," it "came back to him after many days." His long service to suffering and needy people brought him in his last days a host of sympathetic and helpful friends. Almost his last conscious utterance was "His mercy endureth forever," showing that he was resting on the Everlasting Arms, and "though he walked through the valley of the shadow of death, he feared no evil."

E. M. Hall.

TYSOR—On Sunday morning at 11:15, May 20, 1923, the death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Tysor and claimed for his own the devoted wife and mother, Mrs. Mattie Cook Tysor. She was a sweet spirited Christian wife and mother; she carried sunshine and joy to those she came in contact with, and the height of her ambition was to make others happy. She bore her afflictions patiently. She had only been in Durham a short while, but will be greatly missed by her many friends and acquaintances. All was done for her by loving hands, physicians and nurses that could be, but God knew best. Our loss is her eternal gain. She was the sunshine of our home. God has taken her as His own. Weep not, fond loved ones, for me; I am waiting in glory for thee.

The interment was at Pleasant Hill M. E. church, of which she was a consistent member, and the many beautiful floral designs attested to her standing in life. She leaves a devoted husband, four children, a mother, one brother, four sisters, Mrs. Frank W. Massey being one of the sisters and nurse who was at the bedside when the end came. A host of relatives and friends mourn her departure. To these we extend our deepest heartfelt sympathy.
A Loved One.

WRIGHT—G. Watt Wright, the son of George P. and Miranda Wright, was born near Gibson, N. C., May 1, 1858, and died April 14, 1923, at the home of his brother. He had almost reached his 65th milestone when the Master called him. He was converted when a boy and joined St. John's church. He grew to manhood, went into the mercantile business in Gibson and had his membership transferred there where it remained as long as he lived. As a business man he was honest and square in his dealings. His life was pure and clean, with him his church held the first place, he was never too busy to answer her call, and his service was always willingly rendered. He carried the sunshine and had a kind word and a smile for all he met. He had a passion for singing, and was never any happier than when in the choir singing God's praises. He loved the children and the children loved him. His sick room was a mecca for almost all the children in town, who kept his room flooded with flowers. Many were the Sunday afternoons that he would gather a dozen or more boys and girls of the teen age or younger and stroll with them for hours, giving them wholesome counsel. He was loved and respected by all. The poor never turned from him empty handed. He is sorely missed by the church and community at large. He leaves one brother, W. T. Wright, and one sister, Mrs. J. P. Wright, to mourn their loss. Brother Wright never married.
A. J. Parker.

KING—Stith King, wife of George King of Sampson county, N. C., was born November 25, 1850, and died May 7, 1923. Her life was spent in the Goshen and Kener vicinities of Sampson county, most of it within the membership of one of those churches. Wherever she was, at home or at church—and as much in the one as in the other—it was always known that she was a child of the Father in heaven. Not by word of mouth but by the life she constantly lived—a life hidden with Christ in God. She walked with Him through the years, frequently in sorrow and affliction, but always surely and confidently as knowing Him whom she believed. One of the first official duties of this writer after coming to this county was to bury Sister King's only child, a daughter who left to her aged parents and her distressed husband six young children. To them as best she could she supplied that mother's place. Surviving her are her husband, a sister, Mrs. Susan King, and a twin brother, Julius Stith, of Wilson, N. C.

E. H. Davis.

Why Take Laxatives?

Discovery by Science Has Replaced Them.

Pills and salts give temporary relief from constipation only at the expense of permanent injury, says an eminent authority.

Science has found a newer, better way—a means as simple as Nature itself.

In perfect health a natural lubricant keeps the food waste soft and moving. But when constipation exists this natural lubricant is not sufficient. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it acts like this natural lubricant and thus secures regular bowel movements by Nature's own method—lubrication.

As Nujol is not a medicine or laxative, it cannot gripe and, like pure water, it is harmless and pleasant.

Nujol is used in leading hospitals. Get a bottle from your druggist today. (adv.)

CHURCH FURNITURE
PEWS · PULPITS
CHANCEL FURNITURE
SUNDAY SCHOOL SEATING
CATALOGUES ON REQUEST
American Seating Company
CHICAGO
J. E. & E. H. REILLEY
Sales Representatives
220 Latta Arcade
CHARLOTTE, N. C.

TENNESSEE MILITARY INSTITUTE

A school where orderliness, respect for government, and the desire to make good replace recklessness and the "don't care" attitude; where every boy is put on his mettle to measure himself by established school standards.

Good name of school rests on thorough academic work, efficient military training and physical development, and the spirit of T. M. I., which inspires boys to their best achievement. Sound government through sensible restraints and incentives to good conduct. Health record unsurpassed. R. O. T. C. Modern buildings and equipment, laboratories, gymnasium, swimming pool, cinder track. All athletics. Charges moderate. For Catalog address
COL. C. R. ENDSLEY, Supt., Box R
SWEETWATER : : TENNESSEE

Individual Cups

Over 40,000 churches use the Thomas Service. Clean and sanitary. Write now for Catalog and Special Trial Offer.
Thomas Communion Service Co. Box 141 Lima, Ohio.

FOR Soft Fluffy Beautiful Hair
Use CARO-CO COCOANUT OIL SHAMPOO
At drug Stores

NORTH CAROLINA Christian Advocate

Volume LXVIII

GREENSBORO, N. C., THURSDAY, JULY 19, 1923

No. 29

FUNDAMENTALS OF METHODISM

Article 2.

Bishop Edwin D. Mouzon

A false note has been sounded in Methodism—a note which calls attention to things to be believed rather than to a life in Christ to be lived. There have arisen among us some who insist that a correct creed is of more importance than a good life. They seem to take the position that if one's creed is correct, one's life will necessarily be righteous. There is immense peril in this position. For the next step may lead one to conclude that his own life is a Christian life because, forsooth, his creed is in perfect harmony with orthodox standards. Then the further step may be taken which leads the poor, misguided man to the conclusion that his brother is a bad man for the good and sufficient reason that his brother does not agree with him in all his theological tenets.

We Methodists, on the contrary, hold no such view. We believe that a "pure heart" is of even greater importance than a "clear head." For as Jesus said, "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God." We believe that a correct creed is important, but we hold firmly to the view that a Christ-like life is the final test of one's religion. Indeed, this is the final test of all religion—the kind of man that it produces. And this is the final test of the value of any creed. Does it make one narrow, and unbrotherly, and critical? Does it take the milk of kindness out of the human breast? Does it fill one with the spirit of the inquisitor and the persecutor? Or does it make one broad, and brotherly, and charitable? Does it fill one with tender sympathy for all who have stumbled in the path or gone out of the way? Does it give one the mind that was in Christ who came to seek and to save that which was lost and whose gracious words to the penitent were, "Go and sin no more?" I repeat, the ultimate test of creed and of religion is the kind of life that they produce.

Throughout his long life, John Wesley continually insisted that the chief thing God had raised up the Methodists to do was "To spread Scriptural holiness over these lands." When speaking of this, Wesley sometimes used very strong language. Witness the following: "I find more profit in sermons on either good tempers or good works than what are vulgarly called 'gospel sermons.' That word has now become a mere cant word. I wish none of our society would use it. It has not determinate meaning. Let but a pert, self-sufficient animal that has neither sense nor grace bawl out something about Christ, or his blood, or justification by faith, and his hearers cry out, 'What a fine gospel sermon.'" It is quite evident that Wesley had little patience with preaching that did not insist on a pure heart and love to God and man. And it is a most unfortunate thing that nowadays we hear all too little of the fundamental Methodist teaching that Christianity's chief purpose is to make good men and good women.

Let it be said, then, that the General Rules are as truly one of the fundamentals of Methodism as the Apostles' Creed and the Twenty-five Articles of Religion. For Methodist "discipline" is as much a part of Methodism as is Methodist "doctrine." These "General Rules" were drawn up by Wesley himself for the guidance of those earnest Christians who looked to him as their pastor and teacher. And I capitially doubt if a more perfect and complete outline of Christian conduct was ever drawn by the hand of an uninspired man. As a matter of fact, these General Rules are not so much "rules" as "principles." That is to say, they do not attempt to regulate the details of one's life, but rather to furnish, and that largely in the very language of the New Testament, great principles by which one should direct his conduct as a Christian. And attention should be drawn to the fact that they are not many, but few. Indeed, strictly speaking, there are only three General Rules.

BISHOP EDWIN D. MOUZON, D. D.

According to these rules, all who desire to continue in fellowship with the Methodists must evidence their desire for salvation.

"First, by doing no harm, by avoiding evil of every kind, especially that which is most generally practiced;

"Secondly, by doing good, by being in every kind merciful after their power, as they have opportunity, doing good of every possible sort, and, as far as possible to all men;

"Thirdly, by attending upon all the ordinances of God."

It will be seen at once that under the first "rule" we have presented the negative aspect of the Christian life—things that a Christian ought not to do; under the second "rule" we have the positive aspect of the Christian life—things that a Christian ought to do to help others and to make the world better; while under the third "rule" we have outlined the "means of grace" which a Christian should use in his own spiritual self-culture—that he may grow in grace and the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.

1. Consider, then, the Methodist Rule touching the negative aspect of the Christian life. A Methodist must do no harm; he must avoid evil of every kind.

Methodism was the revival of the best things in Puritanism. It is easy enough to make sport of the Puritans and it is the fashion nowadays to do so. But our English and American civilization is under everlasting obligation to them. In all our history no other movement plowed so deep a furrow and sowed so fruitful a harvest of righteousness as did Puritanism. Consider some things that came to us through Puritanism. Our faith in an over-ruling Providence and our belief in the value of the individual God came through the Puritans. Our reverence for Holy Scripture, our regard for the Christian Sabbath, our hatred of sins of the flesh, and our attitude toward such amusements as "cannot be used in the name of the Lord Jesus"—all these came to us through the influence of the Puritans. Wesley, himself, was born in a Puritan home and trained by a Puritan mother. And the best things in Puritanism came to Wesley through his wise mother. As another has said, "The loss of Puritanism is one of the dangers of the present to Methodism." A better rule could not be laid down at the present than that which Susannah Wesley wrote for the guidance of her son:

"Would you judge of the lawfulness of pleasure? Take this rule: Whatever weakens your reason, impairs the tenderness of your conscience, obscures your sense of God, or takes off the relish of spiritual things—in short, whatever increases the authority of your body over your mind, that thing is sin to you, however innocent it may be in itself."

Under this first rule there follow certain special applications of the principle involved. One or two of these have no great interest for us at the present time, as the evils referred to are not very generally practiced amongst us—for instance, the one forbidding "the buying or selling of goods that have not paid duty." There is one which warns against "the putting on of gold and costly apparel" which was very much called for in Wesley's day when, as another has said, the grand controversy was who could out-eat, out-drink, and out-dress his neighbor. And there can be no doubt that, in this present day of fashion and extravagance, our people do need to be warned that they cannot spend hundreds of dollars on dress and thousands of dollars on gold and diamonds and pearls, and then expect to be accounted members of the kingdom of God.

There is yet another to which I feel constrained to make some definite reference. I refer to that which warns against "taking such diversions as cannot be used in the name of the Lord Jesus." Nothing could be finer than that. If one is really in earnest about the Christian life, that will settle for him practically every question touching "worldly amusements." For it is not possible to make out a list, long or short, of amusements that are permissible and amusements that are not permissible. Concerning many things, it cannot be said that they are either right or wrong in themselves; whether they are right or wrong will depend entirely upon the spirit in which one enters into them. If they cannot be done "in the name of the

(Continued on page four.)

"TWELVE GREAT CHINESE"

The Far Eastern Review, published in Shanghai, asked its readers several months ago to determine by vote who are the twelve greatest living Chinese of the present day. Of the twelve men receiving the highest vote four are Christians and five others are favorably disposed toward Christianity, being acquainted as they are with its teachings.

Dr. Sun Yat Sen headed the list. General Feng Yu-Hsiang comes second. After Dr. Sun and General Feng are: Wellington Koo, diplomat; Wang Chun Hui, retired political leader of the early republic; Wu Pei Fu, commanding general third division, Chinese army, who opposed the Manchurian invader, Chang Tao Lin, and won when succored by General Feng and his eleventh division of Christian soldiers; Tsai Yuan Pei, scholar, president of Peking National University; C. T. Wang, former minister of foreign affairs; Chang Chien, industrial and conservative expert; Yen Hsi-Shan, "model governor" of Shansi Province; David Z. T. Yui, general secretary, national committee, Young Men's Christian Association; Li Yuan-Hung, former president of China; and Hu Suh, scholar, of the faculty of the Peking National University.

The second, fourth, sixth and tenth in the foregoing list are Christians, while those favorably disposed to Christianity are the first, fifth, eighth, ninth and eleventh.

BISHOP MOUZON ON THE FUNDAMENTALS

Bishop Mouzon in his series of contributions on the Fundamentals of Methodism is rendering Advocate readers a great service. His presentation of these matters fundamental has delighted those readers who are schooled in Methodist theology and at the same time men and women without theological training have none the less appreciated his clear and cogent discussion of those questions which are of prime importance.

One of the brightest pastors in North Carolina said to us recently that he had been preaching the content of Bishop Mouzon's articles to his people. Other pastors who are not quite so alert as this man in acting upon their own initiative might do well to follow his example.

If any reader of the Advocate has overlooked the preceding articles of Bishop Mouzon, be sure to look them up and give them a careful reading. They are in the issues of July 12 and June 21. If you have misplaced your paper, borrow a copy from your neighbor. At any rate be sure to read this series of articles which are of unusual value.

We are on the front page of this issue of the Advocate giving our readers a look at the bishop with a clear head and a warm heart who, like John Wesley, puts primary emphasis upon Christian experience and "the spread of scriptural holiness over the land."

ROCK SPRINGS CAMP MEETING

Preparations for a great camp meeting at Rock Springs in August are being made by Rev. H. C. Byrum and his people, who are confidently looking forward to one of the greatest camp meetings in many years. The meeting will begin August 5 and continue through August 13.

Rev. H. H. Jordan, presiding elder of the Shelby district, Rev. R. L. Foster, Davidson, N. C., Mrs. C. L. Steidley and the editor of the North Carolina Advocate will assist the pastor in the meeting.

Rock Springs camp ground is the greatest religious assembly grounds in North Carolina. Multitudes of well behaved people are there in August to see and greet each other and to hear the preaching of the gospel. It is the great annual gathering place for the people of Lincoln and adjacent counties and has been for long years.

Rock Springs is the oldest camp ground in the world. At Rehobeth in Lincoln county Daniel Asbury, William McKendree (afterward bishop), Nicholas Watters, William Fulford, and James Hall, a leader in that day among the Presbyterians of Ireland county, held a camp meeting in 1794. The following year, 1795, another camp meeting was held at Bethel, about a mile from Rock Springs, and these were the direct forerunners of the present camp ground.

This was five or six years before the great revival began in Kentucky, out of which grew camp meetings in Tennessee and Kentucky.

The general belief that camp meetings began in Kentucky or Tennessee is an error. The fact is that John McGee, who went from North Carolina to assist his brother, a Presbyterian pastor beyond the mountains, and in whose church the great revival of the first years of the last century broke out, was present at the Lincoln county camp meeting and there got the idea and the anointing which he carried beyond the mountains and from which began the revival and arose camp meetings. The truth is that the great revival which will ever remain a monumental event in the religious history of this country, and the camp meetings which for three-quarters of a century became a mighty agency in the promotion of the kingdom of God in North America, really had their origin in those first camp meetings in Lincoln county.

The nation turns to Fanuel Hall in Boston as the cradle of American liberties. The religious world should turn to Rock Springs in North Carolina as the cradle of camp meetings and of the greatest religious awakening that this country has ever known.

The oncoming generations should not be allowed to forget these facts, and as Israel was careful to turn back to the ancient landmarks, so may we turn to Rock Springs as an ever memorable landmark in our spiritual history.

A FOREIGN CITY

New York City is a town with a foreign tongue and we fear with a foreign heart. The census bureau of the Department of Commerce shows that the several tongues of the city are divided as follows: Yiddish and Hebrew, 946,139; English and Celtic, 897,452; Italian, 803,048; German, 690,789; Russian, 221,153; Polish, 161,310.

This shows that five peoples alone have nearly a million more with a foreign language than there are English speaking people in the city, and this takes no account of a multitude made up of smaller groups which contribute to the babal of the metropolis.

This startling revelation as to language enables one to better understand why un-American ideas and ideals find a fertile soil in New York City. These alien groups are back of Governor Smith in his attempts at the nullification of the 18th amendment to the constitution of the United States. One who reads the New York dailies need to keep such things in mind and beware of propaganda that is foreign to our American traditions and standards.

TALKING SHOP

Just a minute, please. This is good old summertime. The weather is good and hot, and everything is growing nicely. The Advocate is also sending out statements to those who are behind with their subscriptions. It is only a small amount that each one is due us, but if we had it all in one lump sum it would tide us over these lean days. It costs just as much to get the paper out in the summer as it does in the winter. We are very much in need of every cent that is due us. Please as soon as you read this look at the label on your paper and if you are not paid up send us the amount due. If you receive a statement that means we need the money. If we have made a mistake in your case write us at once and we will correct it.

Do you know of any members of our church who will take their church paper out of the office for a considerable length of time, and when a statement of their account is sent fly in a rage and write that they did not want the paper at all? There are several Methodists in the state who are guilty of that very thing. Some of them have been reading the paper for four years and write that way. We wonder if that is honest.

HOW ABOUT THIS ADVICE?

Horace Greeley, the great editor, whose slogan for youth in his day was "Go West, young man," and who at sundry times gave much valuable advice, was upon one occasion sought by the committee of a declining church for advice. The committee among other things wrote, "We have tried everything that we can think of to revive our church—hot suppers, bazaars, concert, excursions—but we have failed. What do you advise, Mr. Greeley?" The blunt old editor replied, "Try religion."

The same advice might still prove of value in not a few instances.

GREENSBORO COLLEGE RECEIVES LOAN FUND

President S. B. Turrentine recently received a check for $1000 from Mr. A. B. Andrews of Raleigh, with a letter explaining the purpose of placing a "Masonic Loan Fund" at Greensboro College.

The letter furthermore explains that the principal and interest of this fund are to be loaned to deserving students, unable to finance themselves, and that the fund is to be handled like any other loan funds of the college. No preference or favoritism whatever is to be shown to any applicant because of any Masonic connection, preference being given to seniors.

Last year the joint Masonic committee on education established four "Masonic Loan Funds" at four state institutions of learning.

The joint Masonic committees met at Raleigh, when the following were present:

Dr. Hubert M. Poteat, Wake Forest, N. C., Grand Master, representing Grand Lodge Ancient Free and Accepted Masons.

Mr. Raymond C. Dunn, N. C., Grand High Priest, representing Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons.

Dr. W. C. Mudgett, Southern Pines, N. C., Grand Commander, representing Grand Commandery of Knights Templar.

Mr. John J. Phoenix, Greensboro, N. C.

Mr. A. B. Andrews, Raleigh, N. C.

At this meeting it was decided that the joint committee would place "Masonic Loan Funds" of $1000 each in eight denominational colleges, using as a basis of selection and classification the bulletin "Classification of Colleges" issued in September, 1922, by the State Department of Education.

It was then voted to establish a $1000 "Masonic Loan Fund" upon the same terms as these funds established at the four state educational institutions, at seven (out of nine) Grade A denominational colleges, selecting those who in 1920-21 had an enrollment in their college department exceeding 225 and also one in a Grade B denominational college for women, which that year (1920-21) had a college enrollment in excess of 225.

Greensboro College was selected as one of the Grade A denominational colleges in the state. The friends of Greensboro College appreciate the honor thus bestowed upon this institution, and the recognition of educational standing and service evinced in committing such trust to the college in the special interest of worthy young women needing aid in securing an education.

The July Bulletin of Greensboro College has just been published containing information of interest about the college.

During the last several years few changes have been made in the personnel of the officers and faculty of Greensboro College.

The new professor of Spanish and associate professor of History is Miss Margaret G. Perry of Wilkesboro, N. C. Miss Perry holds the degree of Bachelor of Arts from the North Carolina College for Women, and Master of Arts from the University of North Carolina; she attended Columbia University summer school three months, the University of Jena, Germany, one summer, and had the benefit of residence and study with Senora Ruiz (professor of Spanish in Trinity College, Washington, D. C.) two summers. Miss Perry has taught in several colleges in the South and is studying this summer at the University of Porto Rico.

Miss Geraldine Smith, who was graduated from Greensboro College with the degree of A. B. last May, will be assistant librarian and assistant in athletics.

Miss Bonnie Lee Enoch, who was graduated from Greensboro College in Art last May, will be assistant in Art.

Several of the professors of Greensboro College are now engaged in pursuing summer work in various institutions: Dr. R. H. Vining, head of the English Department, is pursuing courses in the College of the City of New York; Mr. Gilman F. Alexander, head of Voice Department, is teaching in Chautauqua, New York; Miss Linnie M. Ward, head of Latin Department, is taking courses in the University of Denver, Colorado; Miss Elva Goodhue, head of Physics and Chemistry, is pursuing courses at Columbia University.

President Turrentine reports that, while some dormitory space is now available, the prospects are favorable for a full attendance of students next September.

PEOPLE AND THINGS

Western North Carolina Conference, Winston-Salem, October 17.

North Carolina Conference, Elizabeth City, November 14.

Dr. P. P. Claxton has been elected superintendent of the city schools of Tulsa, Oklahoma.

Rev. A. L. Lucas is assisting Rev. J. E. Hauser in a meeting at Antioch church on Crouse charge.

Revs. W. A. Stanbury and H. C. Smith of Wilmington are spending part of their vacation in New York City.

Rev. Fred H. Ray, pastor at Powder Springs, Ga., has issued a booklet, "Duties of Local Church Officials." It is a revised edition and is good for all church officials to read in order that they may understand just what are their duties.

Rev. W. L. Dawson last week closed a meeting at summerfield that resulted in 65 conversions and 25 accessions to the church with others to join. He is this week in a meeting at Gethsemane on the Summerfield charge. Rev. R. V. Crouse of the Stokesdale charge is doing the preaching.

Rev. J. F. Starnes, Bahama, N. C., called one day last week when the editor was out, but he was thoughtful enough to leave his card. We are always glad to see these good friends of the Advocate who battle upon the "high places of the field," and regret our failure to see Brother Starnes. He is doing a great work at Bahama.

Mrs. T. P. Jimison of Spencer, N. C., is spending the summer in Pittsburg, Pa., finishing a course in dramatic art. Mrs. Jimison is a woman of fine talent and will give a good account of herself in this work. Her husband, during the absence of his wife, is doing full work as pastor and preacher for the Central Methodist people.

Bro. E. B. Stabler, Gastonia, says: "My charge gave me a two weeks' vacation and I spent it at Wofford College, attending the school for Christian workers. The school was of high order and well attended. The fellowship of old friends and new ones was most excellent. But in addition I made two credits in Sunday school specials."

Dr. E. T. Dickenson, Mrs. Dickenson and their children will leave Wilson Monday for Boston, Mass., where they will spend a month. At the end of that time they will return to Greenville, where they will make their home in the future. Dr. Dickenson will be associated with a hospital which he in connection with Pitt county physicians is erecting in Greenville. Wilson people regret keenly Dr. Dickenson and his family are leaving Wilson. Their departure will be a distinct loss to the town.—Wilson Times.

Rev. J. A. Bowles and his people at Old Union church are preparing for a great home coming day July 29, which is the fifth Sunday. Miss Dora Redding will present a historical sketch of the church which is over a hundred years old. There will be a sermon at 11 o'clock, dinner on the grounds and reminiscences by Dr. Wesley Long, Dr. J. W. Walker and other "homecomers" in the afternoon. Old time songs will be a feature of the occasion. July 23 will be a great day at Old Union.

This interesting item from Rev. J. M. Price: "Will you please say in the Advocate that the fifth Sunday in July—the 29th day of July—will be Home Coming Day at Oak Forest church on the Morganton circuit? There will be services at 11 o'clock and in the afternoon with dinner at the church. All former pastors and everybody are cordially invited to be present. Our special revival services at this church will begin the first Sunday in August. Rev. A. C. Kennedy of Catawba will do the preaching for us in the meeting. Let earnest prayer be made for a glorious revival of religion."

Rev. and Mrs. E. L. Hillman of Scotland Neck passed through Greensboro last Thursday on their return from visiting Mrs. Hillman's family at Granite Falls. They were in their car. Rev. Mr. Hillman has recently been in a successful meeting of ten days at Westminster, S. C. The revival at Scotland Neck will begin the fourth Sunday in September. Rev. Dan Kelley of Hattiesburg, Miss., will assist the pastor. Brother Hillman loves the revival work and is eminently successful. The pastors should keep him busy if he has any spare time.

John Winborne Small, six months old son of John G. and Winnie Evans Small, died Monday, July 16, at one o'clock. Burial in Beaver Hill cemetery, Edenton, was Tuesday afternoon.

Rev. E. O. Cole reports a good meeting at Kernersville. Rev. J. Frank Armstrong did the preaching and Rev. H. S. Allen led in the singing. The church was greatly strengthened and ten new members received. There are none better than Armstrong and Allen.

Educational district meetings will be held this week at Muir's Chapel July 18, for the Greensboro district; July 19, at Walnut Cove, for the Mt. Airy district; July 20, at Midway, for the Winston district. Prof. R. L. Flowers and Mr. Chas. H. Ireland will be present and address each meeting.

Prayerful sympathy is sincerely felt in Roanoke Rapids and elsewhere for Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Moore, whose older daughter, Elizabeth, has for weeks been seriously ill in St. Luke's Hospital, Richmond, Va. The fond parents are keeping faithful watch by her bedside. Mrs. Moore is the very capable president of the Woman's Societies in the Roanoke Rapids Methodist church.

Rev. G. W. Clay of Gibsonville will preach at the First Methodist church Sunday morning at eleven o'clock. Mr. Clay is a Caldwell county man, having been born and reared here. He has been away about eight years, having had charges elsewhere. He is spending his vacation here and in the county with relatives and friends. The public is invited to attend the service.—News-Topic.

In Hotel Braswell, Roanoke Rapids, N. C., at 4:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, July 14, 1923, Mr. Melvin T. Burford of Charlottesville, Va., and Miss Pearl McDonaldson of Cumberland, Md., were united in matrimony. Rev. R. H. Broom, pastor M. E. Church, South, officiating. Duly surprised by this announcement, their many friends wish this happy couple long years of useful life.

Rev. J. A. Bowles and his people at Randleman have provided seven new Sunday school rooms for St. Paul's church and painted the church on the outside, painted Naomi church on the inside and are ready to begin painting the outside. For several months Brother Bowles has been having trouble with his throat, but he goes right on with his work and success is manifest in all departments. His physician assures him that with a little more rest his throat will be well.

Rev. M. B. Stokes and family will arrive in the city Wednesday to visit Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Sifford, the latter his sister. Rev. Mr. Stokes and family have been in America more than a year and last winter he took an M. A. degree at the Emory University. They expect to spend a month in this city with Mr. and Mrs. Sifford, after which they will leave for San Francisco, where on the 21st of August they will sail for Korea. Mrs. J. L. Stokes, mother of Mrs. Sifford, is also a guest at the Sifford home.—Lincoln News.

Bishop Collins Denny has made his plans to spend his vacation at Blowing Rock, which will cover the second and third Sundays in August, and will preach those Sundays at the Methodist church at that place. This is a pleasure that all that country is anticipating, and will mark an epoch in the history of that little church. Mr. C. W. Hunt of Charlotte, who is summering there, has charge of the arrangements, and with some help is supplying a visiting minister for the Methodist church there each Sunday during the tourist season. The bishop will be a guest of Mayview Manor.

Saturday morning, July 7, after a year of suffering with an affection of the heart, which baffled medical treatment only to prolong life, Mr. John A. Barnhardt of Concord peacefully passed away at the age of 68. For a short time he had been a resident of Concord, moving here from Pioneer Mills, this county, where he wrought as a good and substantial citizen, enjoying the unlimited confidence of the poor as the well-to-do. John Barnhardt was a model man, modest, sincere, faithful to every trust and of outstanding integrity. There was nothing spectacular in his life, in his business endeavors, in his appearance before the public and in his devotion to his God—he went along attending to every duty as it presented itself in a natural and quiet manner. He had been a juror, a magistrate, a school committeeman, a county commissioner, a state senator, in all of which positions he rendered faithful and efficient service that reflected his great moral worth and his native ability.—The Uplift.

Extensive improvements are being made in the physical equipment of Greensboro College, including the enlargement of laboratories, and the provision for hot and cold running water in all the dormitory rooms of the main building.

The Rich Square Methodist Sunday school has placed a purse of $125 in the hands of Rev. H. M. Eure, pastor of the Rich Square circuit, and he and his wife have been asked to go to Lake Junaluska for a vacation. Brother Eure is in his fourth successful year on the Rich Square circuit and is greatly beloved by his people.

All old Weaver College students are invited to attend the Asheville district educational rally to be held at Weaver College, July 27. All pastors, lay leaders, treasurers of educational funds and their wives will be entertained at a picnic dinner that day on the college grounds. Those who wish to be entertained will send their names to Mrs. J. M. Crawford, Weaverville, N. C.

"Cyclone Mack's" tent on the lot in front of the tobacco warehouses in Greensboro is filled every night when the weather is favorable and overflows on Sunday. The afternoon meetings have been discontinued for the present. The people come for miles around on Sunday to hear the evangelist, especially from those places he held meetings hitherto. On Monday nights he preaches to the colored people. The meeting will continue till toward the middle of August.

Rev. T. V. Crouse has added three rooms and a hall to his parsonage at Stokesdale, thereby making an eight room house with two large halls and one of the best parsonages in the Mt. Airy district. The cost of these improvements is near $2,000. Rev. T. P. Jimison assisted recently in a meeting at Stokesdale which resulted in ten additions to the church with others to join. Brother Crouse will next week be in a meeting at Eden. The pastor will do the preaching and George Hawks of Rutherford College will lead the singing. This has been a prosperous year on the Stokesdale charge.

A memorial tablet to Walter Hines Page, ambassador of the United States to Great Britain during the World War, was unveiled in Westminster Abbey July 3. Viscount Grey of Fallodon, who, as foreign secretary, was closely associated with Mr. Page, unveiled the modest tablet. The dean of Westminster was in charge of the service, and in the presence of a distinguished company offered this appropriate prayer: "O, Eternal Father, we draw nigh to Thee in this church where our kings and queens are crowned. Amid the memorials of Great Britain's most illustrious dead, we humbly commemorate before Thee all those who have served until death the cause of justice, truth and freedom. More especially we praise Thee this day for the memory of Walter Page, American ambassador and true friend of this country. And we beseech Thee that we who are gathered here, being quickened by such high example, may be strengthened to perform the duties and overcome the difficulties of our own day."

MRS. T. W. SMITH DEAD

Mrs. Mary Hubbard Smith, wife of Rev. T. W. Smith of Concord, died Tuesday morning, July 10, at her home in Concord, N. C., age 66 years. Mrs. Smith had been suffering several months from heart trouble, which was the cause of her death. She appeared well as usual in the early morning, but an attack about 11 o'clock hastened her death in a few moments.

The funeral services were held on Wednesday afternoon at five o'clock in Central Methodist church and were conducted by Rev. W. A. Jenkins. Interment was in Oakwood cemetery.

The deceased is survived by her husband, two daughters, two sons, one sister and several brothers. The daughters are Mrs. U. G. DesPortes of Winnsboro, S. C., and Mrs. J. D. Hatchett of Aalanta. Mr. Henry Smith of this city and Mr. Thos. Smith of Rio Janeiro are the surviving sons. The surviving sister is Mrs. J. D. Kerr of Clinton, and the surviving brothers are: Thomas L. Hubbard of Clinton, Willie G. Hubbard of Charleston, W. Va., A. N. Hubbard of Ronceverte, W. Va., and Allison Hubbard of Fayetteville.

Rev. T. W. Smith, the husband who is now left in loneliness, will have the sympathy of his numerous friends in Concord and surrounding country and where he has served as pastor.

FUNDAMENTALS OF METHODISM

(Continued from page one.)

Lord Jesus," that settles it. Saint Paul's high principle of Christian liberty brings us exactly to the same point: "All things are lawful to me; but not all things are expedient. All things are lawful to me; but I will not be brought under the power of any." "All things are lawful; but not all things edify. Let no man seek his own, but each his neighbor's good."

Whosoever else may compromise with the world, Methodists must not compromise. When Methodism compromises, she loses her quality and character, and ceases to bear that testimony to "holiness unto the Lord" for the sake of which God raised her up and sent her forth into the world. For Methodism to compromise is for Methodism to die. To repeat words quoted above: "The loss of Puritanism is one of the dangers of the present to Methodism."

And yet I must remind my brethren that these Methodist General Rules were never intended to be a rod to beat the sheep with. Rather they are a staff with which to guide them. For it should not be forgotten, but should always be remembered, that "discipline" means "teaching," or "training"; and the use of "discipline" is for salvation and not for destruction. Its purpose is to hold up a lofty standard of Christian living before our people while the kind and sympathetic pastor guides his flock into paths of righteousness.

2. And consider what Wesley has to say about the positive aspect of the Christian life. A Methodist is expected to do good in every way, and as far as possible to all men.

The Methodist Way of Life is something more than a negative renouncing of the world. Historians have drawn out a very interesting parallel between John Wesley and Saint Francis of Assisi. The parallel is more superficial than real. Saint Francis is the supreme and classic example of asceticism, with tender and beautiful and human qualities which survive in spite of his asceticism. John Wesley, to a remarkable extent, left his asceticism behind—a discarded garment—when he put on the garments of the new life in Christ. Christianity knows nothing of self-denial for its own sake; and Methodism, when it is true to its spirit and genius, emphasizes self-denial only as the denial of the lower for the sake of the higher and the sacrifice of self in the service of mankind. A merely negative life is a very poor and beggarly life. It is, further, a very perilous life to live. The peril of the empty house is that the former inhabitants may return with other evil spirits like himself, "and the last state of that man cometh worse than the first."

The Methodist Way of Life, then, is far more than negative; it is very positive. We are exhorted and expected to "do good of every possible sort, and, as far as possible, to all men"—"to their bodies by giving good to the hungry, by clothing the naked, by visiting or helping them that are sick or in prison"—"to their souls, by instructing, reproving, exhorting all we have any intercourse with." We are to do good "especially to them that are of the faith or earnestly desiring so to be," thus endeavoring to make the church a genuine Christian brotherhood.

It will be seen immediately that according to Wesley's understanding of it, the gospel of Jesus Christ is not something purely individualistic; rather it is essentially social. The soul of man, it should always be remembered, is the one thing that has absolute value—the only thing that, considered in itself, has infinite worth. Everything else is of worth only as it relates to the soul. But man is a part of the society he lives in. He is rooted in his environment and his environment becomes a part of himself. If man is to be fully saved, then the society in which he lives must be saved also. The New Testament recognizes this. Christ has a gospel for society as well as for the individual. As Canon Freemantel pointed out so ably in his Bampton Lectures, the world itself is the subject of redemption. Christ lived and taught and died not for the individual only, but that all society—all human life with all its varied institutions—might come under the redemptive power of His gospel. The preacher or teacher who discards and decries the orthodox emphasis on the social aspect of the gospel, is simply throwing away half of his gospel to the hurt of the kingdom of God.

By a true Christian instinct, Wesley and the first Methodists saw that if men and women and little children were to be fully saved, they should be put in the best circumstances possible. All this is clearly seen in the kind of work which was carried on in the first Methodist church built in London. "The Foundery"—so called because it was a church building made out of an old, abandoned foundery—was in almost every respect what one would call a modern institutional church. It was a Methodist preaching place; and it was much more than that: It was the center of all Methodist activities in London. Connected with it were Christian and social activities of various kinds. Here was a Book Room for the sale of Wesley's publications; here was a Savings Bank and Loan Office for the help of the worthy poor; here was a Free Medical Dispensary—the first established in London; here was a school for poor children; here was a Home for the Poor and Helpless; and here was a Christian Home where members of Christian workers resided, and from which the sanctified spirit of Susannah Wesley went to God. The Foundery incarnated the soul of Methodism—and Methodism today would do well to hark back to the spirit of her great founder.

The attitude of Methodism toward philanthropy is thus described in "The Confessions of J. Lackington":

"Mr. Wesley's people think that they cannot love their neighbor as themselves without endeavoring to find out every possible way by which they may be serviceable to the souls and bodies of their fellow-creatures. In London and Bristol, and I believe in other places, some of their society who are able to pray, instruct, and exhort, endeavor to find out poor, distressed objects who are confined to their beds by diseases in poorhouses, prisons, lodging-houses, dirty alleys, lanes, et cet. These poor, forsaken outcasts of society they instruct, exhort, pray with et cet. To objects most in want, they give money. Perhaps there cannot be any labor of love more praiseworthy, or more deserving of encouragement, as great numbers of such poor, destitute wretches may at times be found languishing in a forlorn state, and generally die without anyone caring anything about them; for none but such as are filled with the love of God and man will ever go into such loathsome places and habitations. I formerly accompanied some of these loving people in this work of mercy, and have witnessed their cheerful performance of this great duty, which to a poor, selfish, unregenerate heart would be intolerable. But no labor, however disagreeable, or hazardous to health or life, is too much to be performed by such as are thoroughly impressed with the worth of an immortal soul; who are persuaded that Christ tasted death for every man, and would that every man should come to the knowledge of the truth and be saved. While they were employed in this solmen work, if they could discover any poor creature that gave them reason to hope for his conversion, O what love and joy warmed every heart!"

When the Methodists of America met for their great Organizing Conference in the city of Baltimore at Christmas time, in 1784, they asked themselves a very definite question, and they gave a very definite answer. This was the question: "What may we reasonably believe to be God's design in raising up the preachers called Methodists?" And the following was their clear-cut answer: "To reform the continent, and to spread scriptural holiness over these lands." Methodism in America, then, consciously and deliberately entered upon a two-fold mission—to reform the continent, and to spread Scriptural holiness over these lands. The work of "reform" helps to make Scriptural holiness possible; and "Scriptural holiness" always brings about reform. Both to the social aspect and to the individualistic aspect of the gospel, Methodism is committed by its essential character and by its history, as well as by the call of God.

But something else remains to be said, and it needs to be said very clearly and emphatically; for to err at this point is to make a fatal error. The prime object of all Christian philanthropy is the salvation of the soul. It is the perpetual danger of all who are interested in reform that they may lose their interest in individual sufferers and sinners, and that if interested in them as individuals, they come to think more about their bodies than about their souls. With profound insight, Isaac Taylor notes that one of the elements of Methodism in the eighteenth century was "Evangelic Philanthropy." "Evangelic Philanthropy"—that is a fine phrase and comes at once to the heart of the matter. "The benevolent affections"—thus he writes—"when kindled and enhanced by Christian motives, take a wide range and prompt Christian men to engage in enterprises of mercy which have respect more to the religious and moral necessities of their fellows, than to their bodily destitution. Those noble charities of these times which are carrying the gospel out through the pagan wilderness—these have their rise in motives that are wholly approvable to the Christian law—'thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself'; for where we lodge Christianity, with its healing influence, and its purifying institutions, in the heart of a pagan country, we do that which embraces the purposes of all works of mercy, spiritual and temporal."

All of which is to say that Christian philanthropy is primarily evangelical—it is first of all interested in the gospel—the good tidings of redeeming grace to lost men—the salvation of man's immortal soul.

3. The third General Rule gives advice touching Spiritual Self-Culture.

This rule with its suggestive outline is as follows:

"It is expected of all who desire to continue in these societies that they should continue to evidence their desire of salvation.

Thirdly, by attending upon all the ordinances of God: Such are,

- The public worship of God;
- The ministry of the word, either read or expounded;
- The Supper of the Lord;
- Family and private prayer;
- Searching the Scriptures; and
- Fasting or abstinence."

The phrase which I have used, "spiritual self-culture," may be objected to. Dr. R. W. Dale, for instance, says that "self-culture, the great law of natural ethics, is unknown in the supernatural life." But immediately he goes on to explain what he means:

"Christian holiness is nothing else than a revelation of the inexhaustible holiness of Christ. . . . The Christian man does not simply develop and perfect his own life; he is constantly receiving and appropriating the life and power of the Son of God. . . . Hence the possibilities of the Christian life are not to be measured by our native resources, but by the infinite perfection of Christ Himself. We dwell in Him; He dwells in us; and He is the living prophecy of the height and glory of our holiness—a prophecy never to be fulfilled on earth or in heaven, but perpetually moving toward fulfillment through struggle and sorrow and frequent defeat in this world, and through endless ages of joy and triumph in the world to come."

With these words of the great English theologian we are in heartiest agreement. And in the light of the great truth which they set forth, we call attention to Wesley's insistence upon the importance of making use of the "means of grace."

Note briefly the things mentioned under this third General Rule. (1) "The public worship of God." The soul perishes in solitude. Society is necessary if Christian faith is to grow. In public worship we come together with common sins and sorrows and frailties and hopes and fears and aspirations—and we find our needs supplied. Thus we are knit in a closer bond of brotherhood and our Christian faith grows stronger while God is glorified. (2) "The Ministry of the Word, either read or expounded"—the Word of God—the Holy Bible has the first place in our Protestant worship. The Bible stands on every Protestant pulpit, and the pulpit stands directly before the people. Our people suffer when the reading of the Bible from the pulpit is neglected. Few things would help so much as a return to a wise and understanding "expounding of the Word." (3) "The Supper of the Lord." This is Christ's holy institution in remembrance of His own death and passion. It perpetually preaches the fact that His death is the central thing in the gospel. And here still, in the breaking of bread, does the Living Christ make himself known to His followers. (4) "Family or private prayer." The family is the social unit in Christianity. The home is the church in miniature. The writer of this communication may be pardoned for saying that of all the memories of his childhood none is more sacred, for none made a holier impression on him or had more lasting influence, than those which cluster around the "family altar." Oh, that the Methodists of this generation would rebuild the altars that have fallen down! And private prayer is necessary if one is to maintain the Christian life. Nothing tells more immediately on Christian character than the neglect of private prayer. A visitor to City Road Chapel, London, goes immediately to Wesley's house. There he is directed to Wesley's "Prayer Room." Opening out of Wesley's bedroom is a little chamber which is a sacred spot indeed. This was Wesley's closet where he shut himself in with God. Methodism was made by such prayers as were offered in this little room. Here the visitor bows his head and prays that he also may know the way to the Source of all power. (5) "Searching the Scriptures." What a book this Bible is! How God does speak through its pages to the soul of man! To the neglect of this book may be traced the fact that so many people are being led astray, blown about by every wind of doctrine. I plead for the study of the Bible—of the Bible itself rather than of books about the Bible. (6) "Fasting or abstinence." Those first Methodists were in earnest. Indeed, Methodism has been described as being "Christianity in earnest." And no one will deny that nowadays we need less feasting and more fasting, less self-indulgence and more self-sacrifice. So shall we draw nigh to God and so shall God draw nigh to us.

Some one has said that one of the gravest dangers the church confronts today is the danger of "practical efficiency and spiritual shallowness." And I fear that the saying is true. We have developed a wonderful machine. The things that any well trained and efficient business man can do, we have all learned to do well. But where are those who can do what "practical efficiency" can never accomplish? We have been so busy with "much serving," that we have not taken time to "sit at Jesus' feet." And we are the poorer—and the whole church suffers. A young man visiting a distant city for the first time was much impressed when, in passing a great electrical plant, he read this sign, "Power to Let." Here was a great powerhouse from which wires ran in all directions sending power out to the surrounding country. There is a great central Power House for the human soul. Here, power is to let. Here, the soul comes in touch with God. "Ye shall receive power after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you." And by use of the means of grace, as suggested in our General Rule, one will put one's self in touch with that Power without which all our efforts will accomplish little and our own souls grow yet more poverty-stricken even while we try in vain to accomplish the great task of saving the world.

Here, then, in the General Rules, we have one of the most important fundamentals of Methodism. What a pity it would be if Methodists, having received such an inheritance from that man "sent from God whose name was John"—John Wesley—should now join in with those who sound a false note in Methodism—the emphasis on a creed to be believed rather than on a life in Christ to be lived. Let Methodists learn again what Methodism is and come back to those great ethical and spiritual principles which have made Methodism the mightiest spiritual force in America!

IMPORTANT EDUCATIONAL MEETING

On Monday, June 25, there was held in Salisbury, N. C., a meeting of the presiding elders and district lay leaders of the Western North Carolina conference, over which Bishop Collins Denny of Richmond, Va., presided.

Rev. W. O. Goode, secretary-treasurer Christian Education Movement of the conference, was called upon to make his report and to announce any plans which he might have for the consideration of the meeting. He did both. His report was as follows:

Total subscriptions for Western N. C. conference, $733,605.00.

Amounts paid and due by districts as follows:

	Paid	Due
Asheville .....	$ 12,952.14	$ 18,315.05
Charlotte .....	28,714.60	15,609.45
Greensboro .....	18,454.29	20,389.94

Marion .....	5,916.45	7,867.45
Mt. Airy .....	9,840.40	6,686.35
North Wilkesboro .....	1,454.10	5,639.65
Salisbury .....	3,831.31	7,393.42
Shelby .....	5,061.20	9,582.82
Waynesville .....	4,392.55	7,595.70
Winston .....	27,387.73	10,681.00
Statesville .....	5,044.05	13,152.80

Totals .....	$123,048.82	$122,913.63
Total collections reported last conference	$81,606.92
Total collections since last conference..	41,441.90
New subscriptions since last conference.	9,750.00
Total amount pledged but not due.....	487,642.55

There was unanimous agreement that the suggestion made by the secretary that a district conference should be immediately called in each presiding elder's district, composed of all pastors, district, charge and church lay leaders, chairman education committee and collectors, to formulate a plan for full collections of all past due pledges. These conferences will be held at the following times and places:

District Educational Meetings.

- Salisbury District—2 p. m., July 6, Gold Hill.
- Greensboro—10 a. m., July 18, Greensboro.
- Mount Airy—10 a. m., July 19, Walnut Cove.
- Winston-Salem—10 a. m., July 20, _____
- Statesville—10 a. m., July 24, Newton.
- Shelby—10 a. m., July 25, Lincolnton.
- Marion—2 p. m., July 26, Marion.
- Asheville—10 a. m., July 27, Weaverville College.
- N. Wilkesboro—10 a. m., August 2, Jefferson.
- Waynesville—10 a. m., August 21, Bryson City.
- Charlotte—To be announced later.

W. O. Goode.

MORMONISM IN RELATION TO FAMILY AND NATIONAL LIFE

Mrs. Lula Loveland Shepard, Salt Lake City. Every member of the Mormon church is taught from earliest childhood that the Prophet is the representative of God on earth—that he is the living Oracle; that his decrees are divine revelations; that to withstand his direction is to resist God; and that his excommunication insures exclusion from heaven.

No czar ever ruled more absolutely than does the so-styled Prophet of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. As the head of the "Kingdom of Christ on earth" he acknowledges no sovereign; he denounces all efforts of government regulation as the persecution of the Antichrist, and he claims the right to regulate the temporal and spiritual affairs of his subjects.

Many people of the country think that polygamy in the Mormon church is dead, but when you understand the doctrinal basis you can see that it is not merely a social custom, but that it is rooted and grounded in Mormon theology. They believe in a plurality of gods—and that these gods have many wives; each god has as his subjects his own posterity; that these gods live in marital relations with their wives; that there are millions of conscious human souls who have not taken bodily form, all of whom are the natural offspring of the Almighty; that the more wives a man has the more of these spirits he will set free, the more he will please God, and the more glory he will have in the celestial world. The Mormon church has never given up polygamy, for the revelation is still published in the latest editions of the "Doctrine and Covenants." We must get a law through Congress forever forbidding polygamy, for if polygamy comes, down goes this republic. No republic could rest upon a polygamous home, and if the Mormon church should become powerful enough, they would leave no stone unturned to make polygamy universal. They are this summer putting on a most intensive campaign in twelve eastern states and have challenged the Christian churches of America. They are to celebrate the one-hundredth anniversary of the date when Joseph Smith got his vision at Palmyra, N. Y., on September 22, and this special summer campaign has been put on to honor this event. They claim that they have won the West and will concentrate on the eastern states and will then establish churches and schools such as they have in the western states; and they expect to eventually win all the churches to their doctrine. What will be the reply to this challenge by the Christian ministers?

THE CABIN ON THE ROOF

A Parable of Safed the Sage in The Christian Century.

There is a certain city wherein is an Inn which is called the Waldorf. And it is a Boarding House of importance in that town. And I sojourned in that city, and a friend said, Come and eat with me. And he provided Food at the Waldorf. And I did not have to think of the cost, neither did I know the prices.

And after we had eaten, and that was Some Eat, he said, Come thou up on the Roof and see the Garden that is there.

So we went up in the Elevator and stood on the Roof. But the Garden saw we not. For there were men at work upon the Roof, creating that which was not a Garden but a Forest. For they had sent men into the Forest and cut down Green Boughs of Hemlock and Spruce and Pine. And they had many cases of Smilax and other Stuff of Evergreen whose leaf doth not wither. And they were making a Dense Forest with a Winding Path that led unto a Log Cabin.

And we entered the Log Cabin, and we found them erecting tables. And the Tables were of Boards rough as they came from the Saw Mill.

And the man in charge told us that a man of Great Wealth was giving a Dinner to Seventy of his Friends, or those who were reputed to be his Friends, and this was the way he was to do it. They were to eat the Finest Viands off Wooden Platters, and to drink the finest Coffee out of Tin Cups. And there were to be no Table Cloths.

And I asked about how much it cost Per Plate for this Artificial Simplicity. And they told me that this little Banquet was to cost him, all told, the sum of Twenty Thousand Shekels. And that was about Two Hundred and Four Score and Five Shekels a Plate.

Now I have eaten good dinners off plain Boards and drank Coffee out of Tin Cups at about One Fourth of a Shekel per meal. And I have seen the time when Two Hundred and Four Score and Five Shekels would have boarded me and Keturah for the half of a Year. And I have not yet reached the point where such shows do not seem to me to be Sinful Waste.

And I asked concerning the man who made the Feast, and who his father was, and who his father's father was. And I learned that he was spending the money which his father's father began to earn with a Cant-Hook in a Saw Mill, and also drank his coffee out of a tin cup.

And I said, There is at least this good thing about it, that when Extravagance hath gone its Limit, and seeketh some New Thing to do, the folk who practice it can find nothing better than to go back and do in Mimickry that which their own Grandfathers did for Daily Bread. Yea, and at the rate some of them are spending, it may not be long until they have to do it. And I hope that when they come to the point where they take their Coffee out of Tin Cups and eat their Bread from tables without Linen, it will seem to them as Jolly as now it doth when it costeth Twenty Thousand Shekels to feed Seventy folk who already are Overfed.

"HOW TO KEEP THEM IN THE CHURCH"

I should like to ask each individual Sunday school teacher what they do with the names of the members of their Sunday school classes who exodus into other parts of the country to live, as it so happens occasionally.

I suppose that you obliterate their names from the Sunday school roll entirely without any thought whatever as to whether such persons will at the place that they have moved, still again become active and attentive to their Sunday school as they were while in your classes.

Do you not think that it is your duty to endeavor to ascertain the place of abode of your former pupils and transmit their names to the pastor in the city or town where they have gone to live, so that the pastor in that place can call upon them and learn whether they have returned and are practical in their attendance to Sunday school as formerly.

I trust that you teachers shall adopt this suggestion, as I feel that it will make such persons feel that someone is interested in them and as they tread in life that feeling of ardency and fervency towards the church and Sunday school shall inflate in their hearts and souls and follow them beyond the very portals of life everlasting.

Harry Daniels.

NORTH CAROLINA CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

Official Organ of the North Carolina and Western North Carolina Conferences Methodist Episcopal Church, South. Established 1855.

Entered at the Postoffice at Greensboro, N. C., as mail matter of the second class, acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided in section 1102, act of October 2, 1917, authorized September 9, 1918.

Obituaries and Resolutions of one hundred words published free. All words above this number charged for at rate of 1 cent per word.

A. W. PLYLER ..... Editor
T. A. SIKES ..... Business Manager

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Year .....$2.00
Six Months ..... 1.00
To all preachers of the Gospel, year 1.00

FIELD NEWS

BLESSED HOPE CAMP MEETING, HENDERSONVILLE, AUG. 12-26

First session of new camp. Services under tent seating 2,500 people. Raymond Browning and helpers in charge. Visiting preachers and workers will assist him. Ample camping space furnished. For further information write to Mrs. Mabel Baughman, Secretary, Hendersonville, N. C.

REVIVAL IN WAYNESVILLE

June 27th we closed a great union revival in Waynesville. Rev. Thurston B. Price was the gifted preacher and Brother Moorman led the singing with great success. The services were well attended, and there were many conversions; more than fifty members have been added to the churches as a result of the revival. The Waynesville Methodist church has received thirty new members and the Baptist and Presbyterian churches had valuable additions. Everybody was well pleased with Brother Price, and the results both in and outside the churches, the entire town has felt the influence of the revival, and cards, dancing and other evils are in bad repute with many who before the revival had favored these evils both in conversation and practice. The young people of the town were greatly helped.

No doubt it will interest some of your readers to know that work on our new church edifice is progressing rapidly. Also we have a very fine Epworth League with an average attendance of more than fifty.

Geo. D. Herman.

REV. THRUSTON B. PRICE AT CANTON

After closing a three weeks' meeting in Waynesville, a meeting that profoundly stirred the entire town, as a result of which many joined the various churches of Waynesville. Rev. Thurston B. Price came to Canton on June 17th, and began a great union tent meeting. The Baptist, Methodist Episcopal, Presbyterian and our own church uniting. This was a really great meeting. There will be one hundred and twenty-five or thirty joining the different churches. About an equal number reclaimed and all our churches really revived. I wish to say here that in my experience of more than twenty years in the pastorate I know of no man who will leave the local church in better shape than Price. The burden of his preaching seems to be to build the local church up and to put it to work. Yes, it is time for the local church to clean house when Price comes to town.

Brother Campbell, pastor of the Baptist church here, said after the service the second Sunday morning of the meeting, when he preached on What is the matter with the church? that this sermon alone was worth the cost of the meeting. The meeting continued for three weeks. The crowds grew larger and larger with every service. We had not only the large tent seating twelve hundred people, but we had literally the entire lot and all the streets leading up to the tent full of people.

Brother Price is not very well known in our own conference, having done most of his work in the north and west. He has built a home at Lake Junaluska and personally I do not see the need for his going so far from home to work, when there is so much of his kind of work needed here at home. Being one of our general evangelists and in the field all the while gives him an insight into things as they really are and enables him to lay bare conditions as they exist in most of our churches, and he does not fail to do just that very thing. Brethren, if there are any kinks in your church that you want straightened out send for Price.

Our meeting was good and all our churches are in better shape. For which we praise the Lord and take a new start. A. L. Aycock.

RELOCATION OF THE TRAINING SCHOOL—NO. 2

By Bishop W. F. McMurry.

In a former communication I called attention to the fact that the Board of Missions in annual session declined to commit to its executive committee the final authority of relocating the Scarritt Bible and Training School.

That there was a general understanding with the committees who had considered the question and with the Woman's Missionary Council that the new location was to be in Nashville, Tennessee, there seems to be no shadow of doubt.

The action of the Board of Missions, requiring report to be made to the full board, resulted in the sending out by Bishop E. D. Mouzon of communications to several cities in the church, making inquiry as to their desire, and inviting propositions from such cities for the location of the training school within their bounds.

These communications seem to have produced some results, as the Nashville Banner under date of June 27th contained an article headed, "Calls Meeting on Scarritt School." This article stated that "Mr. Molloy issued the call to the Methodists when it became known that several other cities were putting forth strong efforts to get the relocated institution and that the committee for the new site for Scarritt had received some very attractive inducements from other places." The article further stated that Mr. Molloy issued the call for the mass meeting to discuss the matter of additional overtures from Nashville. Mr. Molloy is the presiding elder of the Nashville district.

This would indicate that Nashville had not been interested in a bonus for the location of the training school until it became known in Nashville, in response to the communications of Bishop Mouzon, that other cities were willing and ready to make substantial propositions.

In my judgment there is but one proper course open to those in authority, and that is to locate the new Scarritt in connection with one of the universities owned and controlled by the church. If these universities, which have cost the church so much, are not of such character and standing as to justify such a relationship, let it be said in the open.

TWO ELECT SAINTS

During my pastorate of four years on the Rockingham circuit there were many loyal and faithful members, but none better than those of whom I now write. They were known as Uncle Billie and Aunt Mollie Cole. They were foremost in everything appertaining to their Master's kingdom at Zion church. They lived together in perfect Christian fellowship, aiding liberally in the support of their church, furnishing the loveliest home for the pastor and his family and setting a most beautiful example of Christian living before the eyes of all their neighbors. They were akin to well-nigh everybody in the community, and their lives were a daily example to the truth and beauty of the Christian religion.

During the fourth year of my pastorate Uncle Billie was called home to glory at the hour of midnight when nobody was present to keep watch by his side but Aunt Mollie and God and the holy angels. A large concourse of people was present at the burial to bury this departed saint and to comfort his beloved widow. Long years have passed since then, and her life all the while has been as pure and white as the flowers whose fragrance fills the cemetery where her precious ashes rest. She died in the faith in which she had lived and labored, May 17, 1922. Her creed and our is (2 Cor. 5:1), "For we know that if our earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved, we have a building of God, a house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens." In that faith she lived and died. So may we who loved her so. F. L. Townsend.

REVIVAL MEETING AT MOUNT OLIVET CHURCH

A revival meeting is in progress at Mt. Olivet Methodist church. The pastor is being assisted in this meeting by Rev. G. A. Stamper of Winston-Salem. Mr. Stamper is a preacher of unusual ability and is holding the rapt attention of the immense congregations that attend these services from day to day. Much interest is being manifested and the indications are that this will result in one of the best meetings ever held at this church. The day services are held at 11 and the night services at 8 o'clock. On next Sunday there will be three services—at 11, 2 and 8. Dinner will be served in the church grove. Everybody is most cordially invited to come to these services.—Dispatch.

TO LAY LEADERS AND LAYMEN OF W. N. C. CONFERENCE

It is with great pleasure that I report to you that the enrollments are being received at headquarters for attendance on the Laymen's Conference at Lake Junaluska, beginning August 10th and ending August 15th. This is indeed very gratifying.

If you haven't sent in your enrollments, please attend to this at once, so that you can be provided for in your entertainment. Don't fail to attend to this promptly.

Chas. H. Ireland,
Lay Leader W. N. C. Conf.

JOINT MEETING LAY LEADERS AND S. S. WORKERS

Every pastor, district, charge and church lay leader, Sunday school superintendent, and as many officers and other Sunday school workers as can do so are urgently requested to attend the meeting for the lay leaders and Sunday school workers to be held in Lincolnton Wednesday, July 25, 1923, beginning at 9:30 a. m. The educational treasurers are also requested to be present. Mr. C. H. Ireland, our conference lay leader, and Mr. O. V. Woosley, our Sunday school field secretary, will be present and make addresses. In addition to these speakers a splendid program will be rendered by some of our most efficient Sunday school workers in the district. Bring a big basket full of good eats and dinner will be served picnic fashion. The good people of Lincolnton will furnish the red lemonade. All together for a big, worth-while rally day.

Dear Editors: I you want to have a real good time and do some fine work for the Advocate, you are cordially invited to attend the above mentioned meeting. Come and say a piece for the folks. J. H. Jordan, P. E.

CAMP FREE

A full salvation camp, located at Connelly Springs, N. C. Built in answer to prayer and faith, and dedicated to the worship and glory of God

Stops Eczema
Relieves the inflammation, itching and irritation, soothes and softens the skin and leaves it smooth and spotless.
TETTERINE
The complexion's best friend
60c at your druggist's or from the
SHUPTRINE CO. :: :: SAVANNAH, GA.

EPWORTH LODGE
LAKE JUNALUSKA
Managed by Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Aldridge.
Write for prices and reservations.
Good eating a specialty.

School Desks,
Opera Chairs,
Folding Chairs
Kindergarten Chairs
Church Pews,
School Supplies,
Blackboards

Southern Desk Co., Hickory, N. C.

BREVARD INSTITUTE
BREVARD, N. C.
Established 1895 Vocational
Controlled by the Woman's Missionary Council for boys and girls of high character and limited means. Agriculture, Business, Music, Household Arts. Excellent Faculty. Only student labor employed. Terms: $150.00 per school year of nine months. Apply for information, Oliver H. Orr, Brevard Institute, Brevard, N. C.

HYMN BOARDS
of the very best quality supplied at very reasonable cost by LAMAR & BARTON
Nashville, Dallas, Richmond
San Francisco

THE NORTH CAROLINA COLLEGE FOR WOMEN
An A-1 grade college maintained by the State of North Carolina for the education of its young women.
Liberal courses leading to the usual degrees in Arts, Science and Music.
Equipment modern, including furnished dormitories, library, laboratories, literary society halls, athletic grounds, etc.
Fall term begins in September, Spring term in February, Summer term in June.
For catalogue and other information, address
JULIUS I. FOUST, President
GREENSBORO, N. C.

in Christ Jesus.
Motto: "Christ makes free indeed."
Date for this year's camp, August 1st to 12th, 1923.
Opening sermon by Rev. Z. Paris, Sunday night, July 29.
Special preachers already engaged include: Rev. Joseph Owen, evangelist; Rev. C. R. Wimberly, pastor M. E. church Charleston, S. C.; Rev. C. G. Trumbull, editor S. S. Times, Philadelphia, Pa.
It will be one of the rare privileges of a lifetime to hear these powerful men of God "show unto us the way of the Lord more perfectly." Many of God's best people, preachers and lay saints, will be here "to feast on The Living Word!" Why not you?
Engage in the great camp meeting singing.
Things to remember:
1. Dr. Trumbull will be here only first seven days. Dr. Wimberly will be here only last seven days.
2. On the campus you will find electric lights; famous Connelly Mineral Spring water on ice; book stand, post-office, phone, barber shop, officers to protect your automobile, a large new tabernacle, cottages, tents, etc., and a central dining room, where you can get three meals per day for $1.00. All right out in a beautiful woodland in good old camp style.

3. Our supply of sleeping cots is limited. First come, first served. Every person must bring their own blanket, sheet, pillow and towels.

4. Sleeping quarters can be secured in nearby private homes, upon request and $3.00 advance remittance.

5. This camp is new, unfinished and growing. It needs 100 new cots complete, costing $5.00 each; twenty new tents at $50 each; several sleeping rooms at $100 each; 100 platform chairs, besides lumber, paint, etc.

If you become so impressed, send your check payable to Camp Free to cover any of the objects mentioned above.

6. Pray without ceasing for a glorious revival and come!

For other information, address Jim H. Green, Connelly Springs, N. C.

THE SALISBURY DISTRICT CONFERENCE

This body of Methodist pastors and lay workers met in its forty-first annual session in the Gold Hill church on the morning of July 6, 1923. To attend to all the work of a district conference within a two-day limit and adjourn in time for everybody to get back to their respective homes before night is an achievement of some note, but this was done without even a suggestion of hurry through the wise leadership of our presiding elder, Dr. T. F. Marr.

The Attendance.

The attendance was unusually good. There were one hundred and forty-nine members of the conference present. This number included all of the twenty-six pastors and twelve of the twenty-four local preachers in the district. In addition the following were present as visitors or to represent various interests of the church:

Rev. E. W. Downum of Scott's Hill, North Carolina conference; Rev. L. C. Brothers, Bailey-Middlesex charge, North Carolina conference; Rev. C. A. Wood, Rev. W. O. Goode, Dr. W. P. Few, Rev. W. M. Curtis, Rev. R. M. Courtney, Chas. H. Ireland, O. V. Woosley, Miss Virginia Jenkins, Miss Grace Bradley, Mrs. G. G. Adams, Miss Johnsie Hobson, Mrs. W. W. Weant, Prof. M. T. Hinshaw.

A capacity house attended every session, even the closing one of Saturday afternoon. On Sunday a great crowd from the surrounding country and nearby towns heard a sermon of extraordinary power by the presiding elder. The only other sermon preached during the conference was the one by Rev. W. A. Rollins of Concord circuit on Friday morning. It was a strong presentation of the gospel.

The Grim Reaper's Work.

Since the meeting of the annual conference the district has lost two of its faithful and highly esteemed pastors, Rev. W. S. Hales of Badin and Rev. S. E. Richardson of China Grove, and the veteran local preacher of the district, Rev. Jacob Simpson of Concord. All of these had done valiant service and were exceedingly popular among a wide circle of friends. The conference paused to pay fitting tribute to their memory.

The Conference Gives Large Place to Education.

A strong report from the committee on education was read by Rev. W. A. Jenkins, which was followed by stirring addresses on the subject by Rev. W. O. Goode, Dr. W. P. Few, Rev. W. M. Curtis and Mr. Chas. H. Ireland. On motion of W. A. Jenkins the local preachers were urged to take the course of study presented by the Discipline and report to the next conference the number of books they have bought and read.

Epworth Leagues and Sunday Schools. Friday night of the conference was given over entirely to these two institutions of the church. A program of extraordinary interest and helpfulness had been arranged. The first part of the evening was taken up by the Sunday school forces. Prof. C. A. Reep of Albemarle presided.

M. H. Jenkins, O. V. Woosley and Miss Virginia Jenkins addressed the meeting. Miss Johnsie Hobson presided for the remainder of the hour and Mrs. G. G. Adams and Miss Grace Bradley presented the claims of the Epworth League.

No part of our work is receiving more careful attention or yielding finer results than the Sunday schools and Epworth leagues.

Work of Missions Receives Attention.

The committee on missions submitted a cheering report which was followed by addresses on the subject made by Rev. R. M. Courtney and Mrs. W. W. Weant. The work being done by the women of the Salisbury district is not surpassed in our conference.

New Men Licensed to Preach.

Fred Harris Shinn of Concord circuit, Reuben Roy Rogers of Salem charge, Marion Charles Henderson of Harmony, Concord, and James Bradford Wild of Harmony, Concord, were licensed to preach. These young men give promise of large usefulness.

Vance Orton Dutton of Salisbury was recommended to the annual conference for admission on trial.

Conference Speaks Out on Law Enforcement.

A paper signed by W. A. Jenkins, M. A. Osborne, W. R. Odell and Chas. H. Reep committed the conference unequivocally on the question of law enforcement. A number of the brethren spoke their sentiments in plain fashion and the paper was adopted with unanimity and enthusiasm.

The Spiritual State of the Church.

The committee on evangelism and the spiritual state of the church reported about six hundred accessions to the church to date with many more meetings to be held. A good word is spoken for the evangelist, but the committee urged that "each pastor make use of his own gifts and as much as possible hold his own revivals." "The doctrinal disturbances," which, declares the committee, "have developed within the last years and which have engendered much strife have scarcely touched us."

Delegates to Annual Conference.

The following gentlemen, a strong delegation, were elected delegates to the approaching annual conference: W. R. Odell, J. F. Shinn, Chas. A. Reep, G. D. Troutman, J. C. Kester, J. P. Curlee, C. J. Goodman and C. G. Frick; alternates, Mrs. W. W. Weant, A. H. Sides, C. H. Barrier and Prof. A. S. Webb.

The Presiding Elder Popular.

Perhaps it is not too much to say that no man among us occupying this high responsible position is more universally loved than the presiding elder of the Salisbury district. Conceded to be the equal of the strongest preachers in our conference he is also a man of fine poise and outstanding executive ability. One of the best informed laymen in the whole Methodist Episcopal Church, South, said on the floor of the conference: "If every bishop of the church were to die or become incapacitated tomorrow the Western North Carolina conference alone could fill every vacancy thus created," and closed by saying that the elder of the Salisbury district would fill this high office with great acceptability. On motion of J. F. Kirk, Dr. Marr was granted a month's vacation.

Of course Grant and his people did themselves proud by the manner in which they dispensed their hospitality. Those two dinners spread under the spreading oaks will not be forgotten! Up to this writing no serious results have been reported.

The next conference will be held at Epworth church, Concord.

J. Frank Armstrong, Sec.

—A GOOD PLACE FOR YOUR BOY—

An efficient, strict, military school of high standards and excellent reputation, operated under wholesome Christian influences.

CARLISLE SCHOOL

A well equipped school. Large, efficient faculty; excellent, modern buildings; ample dormitories, infirmary, gymnasium, library. Two excellent preparatory courses. Total expenses for year including tuition and board, $362.50. For literature and application blank, address

W. C. DUNCAN, Headmaster, Bamberg, S. C.

A FEW HOMES AND CHOICE LOTS FOR SALE

in the vicinity of Trinity College, to any who may wish to move to Durham and place their children in school or college, or who may wish to own property near Trinity College.

Write me your wants.

D. W. NEWSOM
Real Estate and Insurance
507 First National Bank Building
Durham, N. C.
"A Square Deal to Everybody"

The Sweet-Toned WILLIAMS PIANO

The highest-grade piano ever sold direct to homes and churches at the net factory price. Sent on trial. No agents. No money in advance. Easy terms. Nothing could be fairer.

Write today for FREE Catalog and Prices

WILLIAMS PIANO & ORGAN Co., 1256 Fullerton Ave., Chicago

GOOD POSITIONS

Paying fine salaries can be had for ambitious young men and women who complete our commercial and stenographic courses.

Our aim this season is to enroll a very large number of such students who can be trained for high and responsible positions.

Won't you be one to enroll? A postal addressed to us will bring you our catalog. Write for it.

DRAUGHONS BUSINESS COLLEGE
Knoxville, Tenn.

A Charm Beautiful Hair

You can possess it by using Caro-Co Coconut Oil Shampoo. Large bottle 50c at all dealers.

DR. CHAS. W. MOSELEY
Diseases of Stomach and Internal Medicine

Office, 229 S. Elm St. Residence, 438 S. Mendenhall St., Greensboro, N. C.
Office 604—Phones—Res. 1739.

COLLEGE OF WILLIAM AND MARY FOR MEN AND WOMEN

Supported by the State of Virginia for the benefit of all the people.

Regular DEGREE COURSE and SPECIAL COURSES in Teacher Training, Pre-Medicine, Pre-Engineering, Home Economics, Law, Business Administration, etc.

Healthful location; students under splendid moral influence; four churches, Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A., Sunday Schools, etc.

For particulars address

COLLEGE OF WILLIAM AND MARY
Williamsburg, Va.

H L Bridges, Registrar. J. A. C. Chandler, President.

MORPHINE and WHISKY HABITS successfully treated. Write for information. Correspondence confidential. 12th successful yr.

WILLIAMS PRIVATE SANITARIUM, Greensboro, N. C.

RANDOLPH-MACON INSTITUTE, Danville, Virginia, for Girls. College preparatory and special course for those not wishing to go to college. Vocal and instrumental Music, Art and Expression. Attractive home life. Gymnasium. Branch of the Randolph-Macon System. Rates $500. Catalogue. Address Chas. G. Evans, A. M., Principal, Box C.

Medical College of Virginia
(State Institution—Established 1838)

Dentistry

Medicine—Pharmacy—Nursing

Well-equipped laboratories under supervision of full-time teachers. Abundance of clinical material in the Memorial, St. Philip and Dooley Hospitals, owned and controlled by the College.

For Catalogue, address

J. R. McCAULEY, Sec.-Treas.
1142 E. Clay St. Richmond, Va.

EXPERT KODAK FINISHING

Developing and printing done by experts. Most beautiful work guaranteed at all times. Satisfaction or no charge. Developing 6 exposure rolls 10 cents, 10 and 12 exposure rolls 15 cents, film packs 20 cents per pack. Printing 1 5-8x2 1-2—3 cents, 2 1-4x3 1-4—4 cents, 2 1-2x4 1-4—5 cents, 3 1-4x5 1-2—6 cents. Quick delivery. Send one film to test our service.

LIGONS DRUG STORE,
Spartanburg, S. C.

Take Business Training at Home

We will train you just as thoroughly at your home as at our College. Write for big, FREE book, "Guide to Business Success." Draughon's Practical Business College, Dept. N. C., Nashville, Tenn.

WESTERN NORTH CAROLINA

"The Land of the Sky"

MICHIGAN, WISCONSIN, MINNESOTA, COLORADO, UTAH, CALIFORNIA, CANADA, NEW ENGLAND,

and

Seashore Resorts

GREATLY REDUCED SUMMER FARES
Now in Effect

via

Southern Railway System

From GREENSBORO AND OTHER POINTS

Send for Free Booklet

Convenient Schedules
Attractive Service

L. A. PEACOCK, C. T. A.
112 East Market Street,
Greensboro

WOMAN'S PAGE

N. C. CONFERENCE

Mrs. J. LeGrand Everett.....Editor
Rockingham, N. C.

W. N. C. CONFERENCE

Mrs. H. K. Boyer .....Editor
Mt. Airy, N. C.

North Carolina Conference

WOMANHOOD AND THE KINGDOM

Does every woman claiming her part in the redemption feel that she is a debtor to a Christless world? Does she measure her responsibilities by her opportunities? Does she realize her personality in praying, giving, sending, and it may be in going to spread the gospel obedience to the divine behest? . . . that she, and not another in her stead, is the debtor? —Mrs. D. H. McGavock.

OUR PRESIDENT MARRIES

On the morning of June 30th I drove with friends to Gatesville to represent our Woman's Missionary Society at the wedding of our beloved president, May Edla Smith, to Mr. Charles Early. We reached the home of Mrs. L. L. Smith, the bride's mother, about 8 o'clock in the morning and everything about the lovely home was fresh and beautiful at that early hour. When the bride greeted us with her charming, happy smile, we found her fresh and beautiful, too.

The wedding was to be at nine o'clock. But long before that hour the church was crowded with loving friends. After I had had the honor of slipping the bride's dress over her head, we crossed the old fashioned stile and passed through the parsonage yard to the church. The church was decorated in white and green with soft candles among the ferns. Back of the altar stood a choir of women dressed in white, who sang delightfully, "Tis thy wedding morning." Then at the notes of the wedding march the ushers came in to take their places. Following these came down the two aisles Miss Early, the sister of the groom, and Mrs. R. R. Taylor, the sister of the bride. After these walked the two little flower girls, Miss Smith's nieces, Merne Plyler and Edla Taylor. Then the groom with his best man, John H. Hall, Jr., advanced, meeting the bride who had entered on the arm of her sister, Mrs. M. T. Plyler. The bride was attired in white crepe, wearing a large hat, and carrying a bouquet of white roses. Rev. M. T. Plyler, assisted by the pastor, Rev. E. C. Clegg, spoke the beautiful words of the marriage service, and our president was no longer Miss May Smith, but Mrs. Charles Early. It was a radiant smile she flashed me as she turned from the altar to make her way out. And the groom—well, he was just beaming, and well he might beam, getting such a wife as our May Smith. He assures me that he knows all the missionary women and is deeply interested in our work.

Among the large number of wedding presents was the handsome console set given by the conference society and many beautiful gifts from individual auxiliaries throughout the conference—and from many co-workers. These are but a small indication of the great love which we bear her. I am sure that from many hearts prayers will ascend for the happiness of our gracious president and her husband. Mrs. W. H. D. Wilson.

TO THE WOMEN OF THE N. C. CONFERENCE—A LETTER

Dear Mrs. McKinne:

I can never receive a gift that will touch me as that beautiful gift with "The Woman's Missionary Society of the North Carolina Conference" engraved on it has!

For you must be able to realize too, that, leaving out the members of my immediate home circle, there is nothing on earth which I love as much as I do the organization that bears that name.

I cannot tell you either of my surprise on receiving your letter that such a gift had been selected for me. In my deep gratitude I feel each time that I look at it that I have done so little to merit such love from the North Carolina Conference. Yet I trust that I may be given years to help in a greater way than I have helped before to carry on His work through this conference.

In deepest gratitude to the conference for all that the beautiful gift means to me and will mean to us in helping to make beautiful our home, I am,
Devotedly,
May Edla Smith.

WELDON DISTRICT GROUP MEETING

The group meeting of the Weldon district was held in the Methodist church, Weldon, June 28th. Mrs. Lee Johnson, county chairman and also conference superintendent of social service, presided. Mrs. E. L. Travis of Halifax was elected vice chairman and Mrs. E. L. Hayward, Weldon, secretary.

Mrs. Ida T. Wilkins conducted the devotional exercises, after which the delegates from the county and the invited guests from Northampton were welcomed by Mrs. H. C. Spiers of the adult society and Mrs. Pierce Johnson of the young woman's auxiliary.

Reports were had from the auxiliaries represented.

Mrs. Johnson gave as our motto for this year, "A Missionary Society in Every Church and Every Woman and Child a Member."

Miss Amma Graham, district secretary, presented the work of the district and outlined plans for extension of the work.

Miss Vara Herring, secretary of the Raleigh district, made a very interesting and helpful talk on "Auxiliary Efficiency."

Mrs. L. D. Hayman told us of the importance of missions and Bible study.

Mrs. Lee Johnson addressed the meeting on Social Service, suggesting ways and means of doing this work, emphasizing our duty to our neighbor, and especially stressing the importance of the work among the negroes.

Miss Sallie Lou McKinnon conducted the noontide devotional service, giving us a beautiful exposition of Jesus' interview with the woman of Samaria, showing us how He never neglected an opportunity to do good.

A delicious luncheon was served by the ladies of the Weldon church in the new assembly room.

After luncheon we had a song by the Bright Jewels, "Love is the Key," after which Miss McKinnon told them a very impressive story of a little Chinese girl she knew. She afterwards interesting account of our schools and addressed the meeting, giving a most hospital work, and told us of the wonderful work that is being done at her own Virginia school and of the beautiful spirit shown by the girls there. She said that now was our great opportunity to help; that the Chinese were investigating every religion and seemed to be seeking the light, and that young China had its face towards the future.

Miss Graham spoke on the Bennett Memorial and on the Littleton College Memorial Fund, which is to be used to train workers for the home and foreign field. Some of the finest workers we have in the foreign field today were graduates of Littleton College. It was ascertained that there were six of the "old Littleton College girls" in the audience. Each girl who ever attended is asked to contribute to this fund.

We were delighted to have as our guests for the day eleven representatives from Northampton auxiliaries.

Mrs. E. L. Hayward, Sec.

A Sure Job---A Better Job And Better Equipped To Hold It

While young, with your future ahead of you, why not make it a brighter future and prepare yourself for greater ability and greater responsibility, before your productive ability wanes and your opportunity is past. There is always a position awaiting in the business world for the efficient trained business man or woman. Our graduates after a thorough course in the many phases of business always find thru our employment bureau a dignified and remunerative position awaiting with brilliant opportunity for advancement.

No matter what your former education and experience may have been you will find that a few months training in the will fit you to accept and ably fill by reason of thoroughness a position of greater opportunity and larger salary. An institution with such standing and reputation as the Georgia-Alabama Business College does more to advance the business interests of its graduates than can be done by any amount of family or personal influence. Ours is a unique business college, training you in the fundamentals, such as writing, spelling, arithmetic, etc., as well as in higher branches of bookkeeping, accounting, banking, commercial law, typewriting and shorthand, etc. Thousands of successful graduates attest the value of our course. They will gladly tell you what a G. A. B. C. training has done for them; and we will gladly show you how the same training can place you in a better position and fit you to hold it and advance in it to a greater future. Our well equipped modern building and our large corps of capable, experienced teachers and our unique business courses combine to make one of the most efficient schools in America. The terms are easy and tuition fees very reasonable.

Georgia-Alabama Business College

On receipt of a postcard we will gladly send you a catalogue giving details and a volume of testimonials from our graduates.

Address: Department A-9

Georgia-Alabama Business College
EUGENE ANDERSON, President
MACON, GA.

(Branch School located at Atlanta, Ga.)

NORTH CAROLINA STATE COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE AND ENGINEERING STATE COLLEGE STATION RALEIGH, N. C.

Technical Education at State College prepares its graduates for personal success and for leadership in industrial progress. The college offers

FOUR YEAR COURSES IN:

Agriculture—including General Agriculture and Specialized Courses in Farm Crops, Agricultural Engineering, Animal Husbandry and Dairying, Biology, Horticulture, Poultry Science, Soils, Veterinary Medicine, Vocational Education.
Chemistry, Agricultural Chemistry, Textile Chemistry and Dyeing.
Civil Engineering, Architecture and Highway Engineering.
Electrical Engineering.
Mechanical Engineering.
Textile—Textile Engineering, Textile Manufacturing, Textile Chemistry and Dyeing.
Agricultural Economics, Business Administration, Rural Life.
General Science, Physics, Biology.

TWO YEAR COURSES IN:

Agriculture, Mechanic Arts, Textile Manufacturing.
One Year Course in Auto Mechanics.
Winter Course in Agriculture for Farmers.
Summer Session for Teachers, for College Entrance and for College Credit.
Excellent equipment in all departments.
Session 1923-1924 begins September 4.
Entrance requirements for Freshman Class, 15 units—English, 3; History, 2; Mathematics, 2½; Science, 1; Elective, 6½.
For catalog, illustrated circulars, and entrance blanks, write E. B. OWEN, Registrar.

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORK

N. C. CONFERENCE

L. L. Gobbel ..... Editor
Durham, N. C.

W. N. C. CONFERENCE

O. V. Woosley ..... Editor
Lexington, N. C.

Western North Carolina Conference

A GREAT FEDERATION

The fifth annual meeting of the Western North Carolina Conference Federation of Wesley Bible Classes, held at Lake Junaluska July 9, 10, 11, was a great success. The attendance was gratifyingly large, there being over five hundred delegates present, and the interest was keen and sustained. Our speakers lived up to their reputation and then made new ones. The closing scene of the Federation was very effective as the large audience moved so as to be in plain view of the Junaluska electric cross and sang "Jesus keep me near the Cross." Our Federation is meaning a great deal to our Wesley Bible classes:

OUR NEW OFFICERS

The newly elected officers of our Federation are as follows: President, George L. Hackney, Lexington; vice presidents, Dorman Thompson, Statesville, and Mrs. A. N. Perkins, Greensboro; corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. L. Thompson, Lincolnton; recording secretary, Mrs. E. O. Chandley, Asheville; treasurer, Edgar F. Allen, Lenoir.

The following district directors were elected: Asheville district, Dr. L. W. Elias, Asheville; Charlotte district, W. B. Love, Monroe; Greensboro district, Charles B. Smith, Ramseur; Marion district, W. E. Owen, Caroleen; Mt. Airy district, W. R. Keiger, Mt. Airy; North Wilkesboro district, O. L. Brown; Salisbury district, R. L. Smith, Albemarle; Shelby district, Dr. I. R. Self; Statesville district, A. M. West, Hickory; Waynesville district, J. M. Boone, Andrews; Winston-Salem district, J. R. McCrary, Lexington.

OUR BROTHERHOOD

The committee, consisting of Rev. C. S. Kirkpatrick, W. B. Love and Mrs. A. N. Perkins, appointed a year ago to think through some good phases of altruism for our Wesley classes to center their activities upon, recommended that during the next year our classes enroll with our Conference Brotherhood, thus agreeing to pay at least one dollar to the widow and children of every Western North Carolina conference pastor who dies. This is a very commendable enterprise and it is hoped that our classes will become interested in it. No money can be better spent than helping along the dependent ones of a deceased Methodist preacher who in the nature of the situation could not provide a sustenance for those he leaves behind.

THANK YOU

The following Wesley Bible classes have paid their pledges on the 1923 Federation program:
Stamey, W. Market, Greensboro...$15
Wesley Philathea, Lincolnton .... 10
Susanna Wesley, W. Mk., Greensb. 15
Men's B. C., Main St., Gastonia... 25
Friendly Class, Reidsville ..... 10
Young Men's Wesley, Lincolnton 10
Woman's Friendly, Lincolnton.... 5
Men's Bible Class, Shelby ..... 25
Wesley Phila., Tryon St., Charlotte 5
Men's Wesley, Mocksville ..... 5
Epw. Wesley, H. Lane, Charlotte 10
Susanna Wesley, Lexington ..... 5
Men's Wesley, Central, Monroe.. 20
Y. W. Wesley, Main St., Belmont 5
Wesley Philathea, Hickory ..... 10
Susanna Wesley, Cent., Greensb. 10
Y. M. Wesley, Central, Concord... 10
Lake Junaluska Wesley, Longs Chp. 10

Men's B. C., Haw. Lane, Charlotte 10
M. and M. Class, Dilw'th, Charlotte 5
Wesley Phila., Main St., Gastonia 10
Wesley Bible Class, Lincolnton.. 25
Ireland B. C., W. Mar., Greensboro 10
King's Daughters, Lincolnton .... 5
Grace Wesley, Brev. St., Charlotte 5
Wesley Class, Morganton ..... 10
Woman's Wesley, Lenoir ..... 5
Men's B. C., Park Plc., Greensboro 11
Men's Wesley, Hickory ..... 10
G. F. Ivey, Hickory ..... 10
Men's Wesley, Ramseur ..... 5
Susanna Wesley, Brv. St., Charlotte 5
Men's Wesley, Tryon St., Charlotte 25
J. B. Ivey, Charlotte ..... 25
Miss Bertha Delap, Lexington ... 1

A GREAT OPPORTUNITY

The first of the three Junaluska Sunday School Training Schools has opened well. Among the list of students our conference has a good number of pastors and other leaders doing intensive work. We are mighty well represented. Those doing the work will be listed in these columns later on. The school opens July 27 and extends through two weeks. Following this school another two weeks' school will be held. Courses in every phase of religious educational work are being given. No leading church can afford to fail to send at least one worker to one of these schools. The courses are being taught by America's leading thinkers and educators. Write for catalogue.

PINNACLE AND PILOT MOUNTAIN

A few Sundays ago I spent a Sunday with Rev. J. M. Capps and his workers at Pinnacle and Pilot Mountain, the occasion being a circuit wide Sunday school booster meeting, held at Pinnacle, under the shadow of Pilot Mountain. In spite of rain the large church at Pinnacle was well filled by the afternoon and the day's program of children's exercises, songs and speaking was mighty well received. Some institute work featured the afternoon.

After the day's program your humble servant found himself domiciled in the hospitable home of Dr. R. E. L. Flippen, of Pilot Mountain, a member of our Conference Board of Finance. The Sunday school cause was presented to our growing congregation at Pilot Mountain Sunday night. The Pilot Mountain charge is growing and is becoming one of our leading charges. Brother Capps is doing good work on his charge and is held in high esteem. He is not content to simply preach to his people, but is getting things done as a result of his preaching and leading.

GOLD HILL

The last but not the least district conference for this year was that of the Salisbury district held at Gold Hill an old mining center, Rowan county, July 6 and 7. As is the custom in the Salisbury district a large attendance featured the conference and much interest was shown in our church enterprises. Presiding Elder Marr knows how to direct a district conference with ease and dispatch and the Gold Hill people know mighty well how to entertain it with hospitality and the fat of the land. It was good to be there. All of the first evening's session was turned over to Sunday school and Epworth League interests. District Supt. C. A. Reap had charge of the Sunday school interests and he directed them in his usual good fashion. The old Salisbury district has already secured its 1500 new Sunday scholars for this year. Brothers Marr and Reap say that they have not yet got through reaping results. If you don't watch out the Salisbury district is going to make some district look mighty bad at our next annual conference.

COMING!

A good line of additional recruits to our Sunday School Day Honor Roll will be given next week. Our Sunday schools are helping us out this year as never before. It is going to soon be that any Sunday school that does not observe Sunday School Day and forward an offering to our Sunday School Board's treasurer will feel mighty lonesome and selfish. Hurrah for the willing ones!

North Carolina Conference

SHARON LEADS THE WAY

Sharon Sunday school, North Rocky Mount circuit, Washington district, is entitled to the distinction of being the first school in the conference to attain the "Standard" rank. It has been checked up under Program of Work "C" and found 100 per cent according to this "C" standard. Supt. Paul C. Moore, Pastor N. B. Strickland, and every member of the school have a right to be proud of their school and of the splendid improvements made during the past six months. There is a higher standard of efficiency, known as Program of Work "B," and Sharon and her leaders will doubtless soon adopt this standard. There are approximately 100 schools in the conference working under either Program of Work "C" or Program of Work "B," and others are adopting these standards every week. Which will be next to become entitled to be designated "Standard?"

JUNALUSKA, YOPECACO TERM

The first of three two-weeks terms of the Junaluska Training School opened Thursday, July 12. The second term will begin July 27 and will be known as the "Yopecaco" term, with special features for young people. Officers and leaders of young peoples' classes and departments and workers with young people will find this term especially attractive and helpful. In addition to various courses of interest to all Sunday school workers, there will be special courses for young people, among them a course in "Recreational Leadership," by E. O. Harbin, famous as author of "Phunology." Let our young people's classes and departments see to it that at least one representative from their church has the opportunity which this term affords. The time will be devoted to a mixture of work and play—swimming, boating, hikes, camp fires, and so on. Let's go!

MAY SHOWER OF CREDITS

According to the monthly report of the department of leadership training, 149 certificates of credit on the standard training course were earned in the North Carolina conference. A class at Wilmington, taught by Rev. J. H. McCracken, earned six of these, as follows: Mrs. Ben D. Stowe, Mellie G. Mayo, Mrs. Chas. R. Spruill, Annie B. Jarvis, Margaret S. Jarvis, and Mrs. Thomas G. Moore.

A class in Hay Street, Fayetteville, taught by Prof. M. B. Andrews, earned four certificates, as follows: M. B. Andrews, Pat Lamb, Ruby L. Patterson, and Mary F. Harriss. Two certificates went to Roxboro, Carrie Wagstaff and J. B. Satterfield.

As a result of a class in Edenton Street, Raleigh, taught by Rev. W. W. Peele, 16 certificates and two diplomas were issued. Those getting the certificates were: Rev. and Mrs. W. W. Peele, who also received diplomas, Mamie L. Speas, Florence Fitzgerald, Eugenia Herring, Mrs. S. P. Norris, Eunice Blair, Alice R. Best, J. R. Sechest, Dr. Albert Anderson, Vera L. Herring and Henre Etta Owens.

Classes were reported also at Weeksville, Bynum, Elizabeth City, and Siler City.

BEFORE AND AFTER TAKING

A non-standard training school was held on the Jacksonville-Richlands charge in April. One of the results was the complete reorganization of the school at Richlands. Before the training school reorganization, according to Rev. A. S. Parker, the pastor, the Sunday school enrollment was 78. Now it is 108, and a few Sundays ago 106 were present. This training school was taught by Miss Keene and the pastor.

WORK WITH THE CHILDREN

Miss Keene spent July 12th and 13th in the Fayetteville district attending quarterly conference at Merry Oaks on the Buckhorn circuit Friday and Ebenezer church on the Haw River circuit Saturday.

During the morning session each day she talked on the work with the children, showing the duty of the church to the child and how even the one-room church must not shirk its duty but give the child the very best that it possibly can. She suggested some of the things that the one-room church can and should do for the child.

In the afternoon she presented the official Program of Work for the "C" type Sunday school. Great interest was manifested in this at both places. One school had already adopted the program and two superintendents gave orders to Miss Keene and one planning to use the program in their schools.

TO HELP MAKE IT BETTER

"The Sunday school training school held at Carolina College last year was great, and we all enjoyed it. Of course we look forward to it this year, and we are willing to help in any way we can to make it even better." Thus began a letter coming to us from Laurel Hill. Then followed two or three good suggestions, one or two of which the board of managers have already adopted. The Rockingham District School to be held at Carolina College this year August 6-11 will have several added features, and we are expecting a great attendance.

"BEST WE HAVE EVER HELD"

Webb Avenue Sunday school, Burlington, observed Sunday School Day with unusual success this year. Supt. Berry Sykes, in a letter to the writer recently, said "it was the best service that we have ever had. The house was crowded and we had a nice offering."

AT MT. ZION THIS YEAR

Rev. J. J. Boone and other Sunday school leaders of the Pittsboro charge are already making plans for their annual Sunday school conference, which will be held this year at Mt. Zion. The date is Saturday, August 4.

WILSON BUILDING STANDARD

The new departmental Sunday school building being constructed at First church, Wilson, Rev. F. S. Love, pastor, has been accepted by the Commission on Architecture, jointly representing the General Sunday School Board and the Board of Church Extension, as meeting the standards agreed upon for modern departmental Sunday school buildings, according to the pastor, who is already at work on plans for making the organization measure up to the high standard set by the building.

TO MAKE SCHOOL EFFICIENT

Supt. J. T. Bynum, of Hope Mills Sunday school, Parkton circuit, has determined to make his school 100 per cent efficient, according to a letter just received. He is securing the official Program of Work for schools of the one-room type, information for properly conducting the Cradle Roll and Home departments, and is going enthusiastically about the work of improving his school. We are expecting a splendid delegaton of his workers to attend the Fayetteville Standard Training School October 7-12.

SILER CITY PROGRESSING

Supt. M. M. Fox of our Siler City Sunday school, working with his pas-

(Continued on page thirteen.)

EPWORTH LEAGUE WORK

Lee Davis, Raleigh, N. C.
Rev. J. F. Armstrong, Concord, N. C.

North Carolina Conference

LOOK, DISTRICT SECRETARIES

Now is the time for all good leaguers to come to the aid of their district secretaries. Now, you tell 'em about it, secretaries. And say, get busy right away about those district institutes. You see this is a kind of an imperative suggestion and it comes direct from our new conference president, Rev. Thos. McM. Grant, Hertford. Are you going to support the officers, or are you going to wait until the last of the year and then wonder why you can't work up interest in your league institute? Let us urge you to begin right away to talk up your institute and to appoint committees and helpers so they can begin work on your gathering, too. Now, "right away" means "right away quick." Don't keep utting it off from week to week. Do it now.

Now listen, you district secretaries. Honest, we want to see the league do big things this year, but it can be done only if you district leaders will start in to get the leagues in your district active on the matter of the district institutes.

Then hold your institute early in the year, so that local chapters may have the opportunity to profit during this year by what they will learn at the institute.

What do you say? Let's go and do our part for a big league year.

Lee Davis.

STANTONSBURG LEAGUE ON THE JOB

At a well attended meeting on last Sunday night, July 15, the new officers of the Stantonburg League were installed by the pastor, Rev. Daniel Lane.

The regular installation program for the league officers was carried out. This active group of young people promise to be even more active in the work of the Master during the coming year.

The officers installed were as follows:

- President—B. Troy Ferguson.
- Vice President—Miss Annie Louise Stanton.
- Rec. Secretary—Miss Louise Hales.
- Asst. Secretary—Miss Mary Lee Stanton.
- Cor. Secretary—Mrs. Nelle Overman.
- Treasurer—Joshua Stanton.
- 1st Dept. Supt.—Mrs. Sara Tyson.
- 2nd Dept. Supt.—Miss Rachel Wooten.
- 3rd Dept. Supt.—Miss Ora Lee Thompson.
- 4th Dept. Supt.—Miss Lucy Eason.
- Era Agent—Jesse Paschall.
- Pianist—Mrs. Elsie Grantham.

Following the installation service Lee Davis and Rev. Arthur Kale gave their interesting and impressive debate on the subject, "Anarchy or Patriotism, Which Shall Reign?" This debate ought to be heard by all leaguers as well as all citizens and church members.

GRACE STREET LEAGUE HAY RIDE

The Junior and Senior Epworth Leagues of Grace Methodist Episcopal church held their annual old-fashioned hay ride Tuesday night to Carolina beach, which proved a delightful event.

The party composed of about a hundred members left the city at seven o'clock in trucks and immediately upon arrival at the beach a plunge in the ocean was enjoyed. This was followed by a picnic supper at the pavilion. During the evening numerous games were indulged in, the party returning to the city at midnight.

Western North Carolina Conference

KANNAPOLIS MEETING

The Concord-Kannapolis-Mt. Olivet Union held its monthly meeting with the Kannapolis leaguers the first Monday night of the month.

Between three hundred and four hundred enthusiastic Epworthians were present. The program was one of the very best given during the entire life of the union. The topic was "The Sacredness and Helpfulness of Song." Naturally enough, music was featured above everything else. The Kannapolis orchestra rendered several fine selections. The "Silvertone" quartet (colored) of Kannapolis, the League quartet of Kannapolis, and the male quartet of Epworth church, Concord, all came in for high praise. "The Star Spangled Banner" was recited, the story of its writing told, and the entire body stood motionless as the orchestra played it. "Let the Lower Lights Be Burning" was recited, the story of how it came to be written was told, and the entire congregation sang it. "My Mother's Prayers Have Followed Me" was recited, the story of how it saved a miserably fallen young man was told, and the meeting closed with the singing of this wonderful song.

Kannapolis won the banner and a committee was appointed to arrange for a great union picnic the first week in August.

WEST VIEW, HICKORY, ELECTS OFFICERS

The Epworth League of the West View church elected the following officers on April 2, 1923:

- Mrs. Lalah Hartley, President.
  - Miss Carrie Berry, Vice President.
  - Miss Dora Crockett, Secretary.
  - Miss Noma Hawn, Treasurer.
  - Miss Willie Abee, First Supt.
  - Miss Edna Heaver, Second Supt.
  - Miss Carrie Crockett, Third Supt.
  - Miss Violet Icard, Fourth Supt.
  - Miss Lucille Abee, Cor. Secretary.
- Our league is doing great work for the church and community. We hope to do greater work for the kingdom.

HAGER SENDS SHELBY PROGRAM

I am enclosing a copy of the program that will be held by the Shelby District Union the night of the 27th at eight o'clock at Lafayette Street church, Shelby:

- Song by leaguers.
  - Prayer, Rev. D. W. Brown.
  - Scripture lesson, Pastor South Shelby.
  - Song by Shelby League.
  - Address (15 minutes), Hon. H. B. Gaston; subject, "Loyalty."
  - Address (15 minutes), Hon. Clyde R. Hoey, "The Young Life of the Church."
  - Remarks by district secretary, D. W. Brown.
  - Remarks by president, C. L. Hagen.
  - Remarks by field secretary, Grace Bradley.
  - Business. Social hour. Benediction.
- Leaguers of the district, please note the change of date of meeting from August 10 to July 27, 8 o'clock sharp. A few don'ts: Don't say we can't go. Don't say it is too hot. Don't say we will go next time. But say we are going this time in full force. Pull for Shelby; not the biggest, but the best.
- C. L. Hagen.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Tuscola Cottage, situated on the Asheville-Waynesville state highway, four miles from Waynesville and in a ten minutes walk of the Lake Junaluska Station and postoffice will receive guests for the summer season at the rate of ten dollars per week or two dollars per day. Buses pass hourly, going in both directions. Pure water and unusual scenic surroundings. Good table board and plenty of fresh vegetables, milk and butter. For information write
MRS. D. O. DANIEL,
Tuscola Cottage,
Lake Junaluska, N. C.

PAINFUL NEURITIS

If you have it, write to

THE BIGGS SANITARIUM, ASHEVILLE, N. C.

and they will send you interesting and instructive printed matter regarding the latest methods for alleviation and cure of this distressing ailment.

In Elevating Your Daughter's Ideals

In building the moral character, in encouraging and shaping the development of her intellectuality and mental capacity, in developing her physique—consider the advantages of the efficiency of

QUEENS COLLEGE

A college of Christian ideals, modern equipment, beautiful plant. Faculty consists of two Ph.D.'s, four M's A., and a number of other highly trained specialists. For catalogue address
Rev. Wm. H. FRAZER, D. D., President, Box 300, Charlotte, N. C.

THIRTEEN MILLION DOLLARS IN CHURCH VALUES

The value of property belonging to the Methodist Church in North Carolina exceeds $13,000,000. On this vast amount of property there is only $3,000,000 of insurance—less than one-fourth of its value protected.

Suppose you had stock in a furniture factory one-fourth protected from fire, what would you do? You would either sell, or hold the directors responsible.

See that your church officials protect your most valuable assets or you may be called upon to donate again to rebuild a church parsonage destroyed by fire.

Insure in The Methodist Mutual—owned and controlled by the two North Carolina Conferences.

W. E. WEBB, Secretary

STATESVILLE, N. C.

THE STIEFF TONE

is famous with three generations of music lovers. It has never been duplicated. It is the expression of a passion for perfection that has actuated three generations of piano makers.

Chas. M. Stieff, Inc.,
Charlotte, N. C.

Please send catalogue and prices of Pianos.

Name .....
Address .....

STIEFF PETIT GRAND

The smallest Grand Piano made that embodies all the essential qualities of the Concert Grand.

CHAS. M. STIEFF, Inc.
CHARLOTTE, N. C.

Coker College

Modern in its equipment. Strong in its faculty. Endowment enables it to take good care of a girl and retain strong teachers.

Four year college courses bases on four years of high-school preparation. A number of $150 scholarships for the daughters of teachers and preachers. A million dollars in plant and endowment. Students limited to 300.

E. W. Sikes, Ph. D., President

HARTSVILLE, S. C.

OUR ORPHANAGE WORK

METHODIST ORPHANAGE RALEIGH, N. C.

Hon. R. N. Page ..... President
A. S. Barnes ..... Superintendent
Mrs. Mattie Jenkins ..... Matron
Owned and maintained by the North Carolina Conference.

FORM OF BEQUEST

I do hereby will and bequeath to The Methodist Orphanage, Raleigh, N. C., contemplated by the charter under the Act of the General Assembly of North Carolina ..... (here designate the bequest) .....

THE CHILDREN'S HOME WINSTON-SALEM, N. C.

Rev. C. A. Wood ..... Superintendent

THE METHODIST ORPHANAGE

OUR NEEDS

1. Offerings from all the Sunday schools.
2. Support from all organized classes.
3. Gifts from many individuals.
4. Seven passenger automobile.
5. Swimming pool.
6. Friends to write Orphanage in their wills.

* * * *

Epworth.—A good size congregation greeted our singing class the second Sunday morning at Epworth church, Raleigh. Brother R. F. Bumpass, one of the most scholarly and saintly men of the conference, extended to us a hearty welcome. This was the first sacred concert we have given since commencement. Many of our old class have gone from the Orphanage and we have had to reorganize and start all over again. Mrs. Nellie Rives, the successful and efficient leader, has succeeded wonderfully well in training the new class. We are expecting it to measure up in a while to the high standard of former classes.

* * * *

Calvary.—It was a fine hearing that Calvary church, Durham, gave our singing class on the night of July the 8th. Brother Wadell, superintendent of the Sunday school, welcomed us to the church in the absence of the pastor, Brother Earnhardt, who was away assisting in revival services. There were three members of the choir who came to the Orphanage from Durham. The entire congregation, which was one of the largest ever assembled in the church, was outspoken in their praise of the class. It is regretted that we were denied the pleasure of seeing Brother Earnhardt. He is one of our best equipped men and the Calvary church counts it a privilege to have such a strong man as their pastor. The members are going to stand by the Orphanage more enthusiastically than ever before. That means that they are going to give us larger financial support.

* * * *

That was a great picnic dinner the members of Miss Lilly Duke's Sunday school class gave our children on July the 12th. It is no small undertaking to prepare food for two hundred and fifty children when you have every convenience. These kind friends, however, were equal to the occasion. They brought with them one hundred and sixty-three chickens all nicely fried. Then there were other good things to go along with all the delicious chickens. Our children enjoyed the occasion to the fullest extent. We all feel greatly indebted to Miss Lilly Duke and the entire class for giving us such a wonderful time. The presence of Dr. M. Bradshaw and wife added much to our joy. We trust that all these friends will come our way again soon. I call them friends because they support one of our children and clothe the two others. Such friends mean much to us.

It is with genuine sorrow we learn that two of the party on their way home happened to a serious accident. In this writing I understand that one is in a serious condition. It is sincerely hoped that a kind providence will deal graciously with both of these good friends.

* * * *

My Friends:

As I come to the end but seemingly short stay at this home, I want to thank each individual for what they have done for me during my happy stay here.

I wish to express my deepest gratitude to our beloved superintendent, Mr. Barnes, for his fatherly care over me. And to "Miss" Mattie for her motherly love for me. To all classes and religious organizations of every kind I cannot find words to show my appreciation for their gifts during the past several years. I wish to thank the ladies of Edenton Street church for making Christmas Day a happy one for me all these years. I sincerely appreciate the work of the many officers who have helped mold my life, it being my plan to make it one of usefulness.

After being escorted here by my oldest brother I have had many helpful experiences which I expect always to remember.

Having finished the high school course in this great place I feel that I am prepared to cope with the temptations of life. I hope to continue my education next fall in Trinity College with other classmates.

Sincerely, Walter Biggs.

* * * *

Dear Friends:

The time has come when I have to leave the home that has saved me the past eleven years. It makes me feel both happy and sad—happy because I can go out and show the people what the orphanage can do for anyone, sad because I have to leave this home and my brothers and sisters.

I wish to thank the people that have cared for me these many years, especially Mr. Barnes, who has been a father and "Miss Mattie" who has been a mother to me.

I also wish to thank the Ladies' Aid Society of Fayetteville who have clothed me for so many years. I can only pay them by living up to their high expectations of me.

As I leave this place I expect to watch with keen interest the growth of the home.

Again I want to thank those who have made it possible for me to spend eleven of the most fruitful years of my life at such a Christian home.

Sincerely, Paul McCready.

* * * *

Dear Friends:

The seven short happy years which I have spent in our beautiful home, the Methodist Orphanage, are just drawing to a close, and in the busy whirl of life I pause to thank the kind friends who have made this home possible, and who have done so much for me. I wish to thank especially the Ladies' Bible Class of Dunn, who in their generosity have clothed me all through these years. In a separate class come our dear "Mother Jenkins" and "Daddy Barnes," as the children often call them. They have truly been in every sense of the word a mother and father to us. We love them and appreciate what they have done for us; also I wish to thank Misses Olerice and Laura Breeze, and Miss Foster, my matron, and Mrs. Nellie B. Rieves, our choir director, for the many things they have done for me. Also my teachers, Miss Gray and Miss MacDonald, who have tried faithfully to teach us not only our text books, but also how to live. I should like to take advantage of this opportunity to thank our good friends who have made the trips of our singing class such a pleasure.

Our annual revivals have been inspirational and helpful. The last one was wonderful and many of us received a great blessing. It made us love God more and want to serve Him better.

In order to show my appreciation to the friends who have made this home and my seven years of happiness possible, I want to live a life of service—to serve God by serving others.

Again thanking our many good friends for what they have done and are doing, I am,

Yours respectfully,

Addie Ma. Davis.

THE CHILDREN'S HOME

Martha M. Wood.

Several of the matrons at the Children's Home have been away on their two weeks' summer vacations. It would be hard to imagine one who needs a vacation more than a matron of a small boys' dormitory. But the little boys of "Tise No. Two" felt so disconsolate at the approaching separation from their matron that, in order to keep her dear presence, they proposed one and all to accompany her! One little fellow went so far with his bright plan as to request permission at headquarters, and when shown that his wish was impractical wept sadly.

However, Mrs. Hasty told him that though she could not take him with her on her vacation trip, that she was going down town shopping that afternoon and would take him along.

He accepted the compromise with smiles through his tears, for a trip to town is valued highly by the little folks of The Home. They do not get to go often, and the sights and sounds of the busling streets is an inlook on a world very different from the fields and lawns of The Home.

So Hubert clung tightly to Mrs. Hasty's hand at the crossings and to her skirts in the crowded stores, for fear he should get lost or run over, and kept his eyes wide open not to miss anything. He saw much to entertain him, but the most amazing discovery made while in the city was to find out with his own eyes where money comes from! Mrs. Hasty went into the bank to get a check cashed, and when the bank clerk passed over to her a roll of bank bills, for the mere asking, Hubert supposed, his eyes stood out in amazement at the easy process of getting money.

"Why," he said, as he and his companion came out of the bank and he turned to take another appreciative view of the imposing stone front of the Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. building, "I didn't know that there was where you got money; I think I'll come down some day and get me five dollars!"

It looked like easy money to Hubert, but come to think of it, the salary of a matron of a little boys' dormitory is about as well earned as any money I know of. Looking after 35 lively, restless little spirits, their cottages and their clothes—every variety of a busy mother's multiplied duties—from kisses to tying up hurt toes, is not a day's light work. Besides it is a twenty-four hour day job, for mother sleep lightly to guard the sleeping children, and the perplexities of mothering a houseful of children of different temperaments and dispositions impose responsibilities that must haunt a matron's dreams as well as her waking hours.

* * * *

Three young ladies have gone out from The Home since school closed. Ruth Luck goes to live with her uncle and aunt, Margaret Thomas spends a few weeks with her mother and then goes to Washington to begin the study of drawing, and Cornelia Whisnant finds a home with her mother and new father who have been anxious to welcome her for some time.

* * * *

Little Eloise has gotten quite heavy on her special dieting, but "Skinnie" R. is still true in appearance to his name, and has not yet learned how to turn eggs and good milk into fat and dimples.

Loife McClure, who was once one of The Home girls, graduated at Trinity this year. She was awarded a scholarship at Scarritt Training School by the conference of the Woman's Missionary Society, and was anticipating an early beginning to a course of training to be a foreign missionary. But after a thorough health examination which is required by the Missionary Conference Board, she finds that she will have to delay a while and rest up and acquire a little more weight and strength.

Just now she is substituting as matron at one of the girls' cottages while the regular matron takes a vacation. That isn't exactly a restful occupation, but it is a change from the strain of study and school work.

* * * *

Mr. W. M. Jones of Asheville recently sent us fifty dollars to help put in a nice book shelving in the library room at the new school building, which we very much appreciate.

* * * *

It would be hard to find children more appreciative of an outing than the children of The Home. Just any kind of a trip or unusual occurrence gives them pleasure.

But when such a wonderful affair happens as an invitation to an afternoon's entertainment at Reynolda, the beautiful country home of Mrs. Edward Johnston, the amount of pleasure the occasion affords can only be measured by multiplying the number of minutes and seconds in a summer afternoon by the round estimate of the full capacity of a hundred and fifty children and their chaperones. For, from the time the news of the invitation flew around from lip to lip till the last car rolled home at dusk, everyone seemed to be experiencing the happy enjoyment of a visit to fairyland. At any rate, the glowing colors of the garden, the sparkling expanse of the lake at the foot of sloping green lawns, the gracious hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Johnston, their household and their friends, was lovely enough to have been magic of some kind.

The children in their pretty gingham and lawns, to my eyes, made a pleasing picture in the handsome reception room of space and rich appointments. And the little ones looked around with interested eyes while they listened to the organ playing that seemed to fill the room with music coming from nowhere that they could discover.

The older children were carried over to witness a game of polo at the athletic field, while the smaller boys and girls stayed behind to walk over the grounds, see the lake and garden and play games on the lawn.

When finally the sun slipped behind the hills and lengthening shadows warned of passing daylight, the company were seated in a garden alcove, screened by shrubs from the larger lawn. A blooming mimosa made the air fragrant. Here a delightful supper was served and nice things to eat and drink were passed around till not even an elastic little boy's capacity had room for one more chocolate candy or little cake.

Joco, the little pet monkey, had a constant circle of lively admirers, and must have felt vaguely reminded of his native monkey associates while the chattering, gesticulating little folks wooed his attention.

But even the most pleasant of days has its sunset—and bedtime, and before dark the last machine full of girls and boys had pulled up The Home hill and unloaded at the cottage, and presently all that was left of the day's pleasure was pillow dreams and memories. But the memories and impressions of the happy time at Reynolda, according to the children, have been tied with a special blue ribbon and put in a special niche of memory treasures.

REV. A. B. CRUMPLER AT PATE-TOWN

Late in June and early in July it was the pleasure and profit of the Wayne county people who live near Pate town to sit under the ministry of the above noted revival preacher, now pastor of Glendon circuit. Brother Crumpler brought his canvas tabernacle with him and under it we had ten night and two day services.

Three outstanding features characterized the meeting. First, the preaching was sound, evangelistic and true to Methodist standards. Brother Crumpler is a able and interesting dispenser of gospel truth, and to him the pulpit is a throne of power, where he wields the sword of the Spirit with great skill and effectiveness.

The second outstanding feature was the singing of the Patetown Sunday school, who have made a reputation as gospel singers not only in Wayne but adjacent counties. With fine skill and melodious voices they charmed the delighted audiences during the revival. They were called to sing Sunday night before an audience of 2,000 people in Goldsboro in Dr. Wall's warehouse meeting.

The third feature worthy of record was the attendance. Patetown is a rural settlement. No town nearer than Goldsboro, which is seven miles distant. But the people came from far and near to the tent. Perhaps as many as 300 people were there nearly every night, and one night the crowd was estimated at 500. The audiences were quiet and orderly except when they got to shouting. The attention to the word preached was very fine and the general behaviour of such a crowd was excellent.

The results did not come up to expectations. There were conversions of the old-time type, some happy ones. Three candidates for church membership and one convert joined another church. Others indicated a desire to join if a Methodist church is organized.

The singing was led by Mr. Eddie Jones. Those who assisted at the piano were Mrs. J. W. Daniel and Miss Margaret Sasser of Goldsboro.
W. O. Butler.

EAST ROXBORO AND LONGHURST

We have just closed our revival meetings on the East Roxboro and Longhurst charge. These meetings proved a great blessing to practically every member of the church, and a good number of conversions and additions to the church resulted. We were scheduled to begin at Longhurst on the evening of June 20, and had a good congregation present, but a late train delayed the arrival of the preachers and the people were forced to wait until the next evening for the first sermon. On Thursday evening, the 21st, we got under way with a full head of steam, and the interest, which was good from the beginning, continued to increase until the meeting came to a close Friday night, the 29th. Rev. Mr. Stewart of Burlington did the preaching, and did it in a fine style. He believes the Bible and preaches it. He hits sin a mighty blow, and holds up the Christ as a loving Saviour. Brother Stewart hates sin but loves the sinner, and his heart-searching appeals to all classes to flee from the wrath to come and seek a higher and better life are very inspiring. Rev. R. C. Goodchild also of Burlington had charge of the singing, and directed the choir to the satisfaction of all. He sang a solo each night in keeping with Brother Stewart's subject, which added much to the impressiveness of the service. Both of these brethren are thoroughly consecrated and the Lord is blessing their efforts. The last three nights of the meeting the Holy Spirit was present in great power, and many folks came to the altar at the invitation of the preacher and declared they were going to live for God. About fifty persons have already united with the two churches of the community as a result of this meeting, thirty of these coming to the Methodist church and twenty to the Baptist church. The last night of the meeting the house was crowded from the front to the rear and many people were standing because there was no room to sit down. The effect of the meeting is felt throughout the community and in both the churches. Some of our stewards who have lived in Longhurst for many years tell us this was the greatest and best revival they have ever known here.

The congregation at Longhurst has recently spent a good sum of money on improvements on the inside of the church building, which has added very much to the appearance and convenience of the church. These improvements consist for the most part in painting the floor, putting carpet in the pulpit, the aisles, across the front and rear of the building, installing new opera chairs in the choir, placing a set of pulpit chairs in the pulpit, purchasing a new and handsome pulpit Bible, and installing a new bell.

Our revival at Grace church, East Roxboro, was a real blessing to all who attended. However, it was held during the week when the mill was giving a vacation to its employes, and many of them were away from home, and many of the folks we had hoped to reach were more interested in their vacation than they were in the revival. Bro. H. C. Ewing did the preaching the first part of the week, but felt physically unable to stand the strain of a revival longer, and Bro. J. C. Williams did the preaching from Wednesday night through Saturday night. Both these brethren brought us very fine gospel messages, and the people were well pleased with their splendid preaching. The pastor received a class of four into the church at the close of the service Sunday night.

We feel that both these meetings have meant and will mean a great deal to our work in these communities. It seems that practically every one has a mind to work. We believe the results of these meetings will be felt in the years to come. We are all grateful for what the Lord has done in these two communities.
S. J. Starnes, Pastor.

OUR LIFE BOAT

By Sarah Charlotte Armstrong.
Cheer up, the trip's not done
Because the light has failed.
'Tis faith that victory won,
When after it others trailed.

Tho' faith in much is lost,
It makes no change in God.
'Tis Him we trust the most
To lead the way He trod.

What use to leave the boat
We've traveled in so far,
Or let it simply float,
Or doubts our way to mar?

Our morale may be gone,
All hopes we brought along;
Our souls not even own,
Nor evil pose as wrong.

There's one thing still to do
That's worth a gallant fight—
To rightly see it through,
When there's no light in sight.

DEEP RIVER CIRCUIT

We have just closed a ten days' meeting at Cedar Falls. Rev. A. Burgess of the Walnut Street M. E. church, Greensboro, brought to us some great gospel truths. Some were reclaimed and we believe that Christians have had their strength renewed. We believe that under God much and lasting good has been accomplished. In the Master's name.
Mrs. J. A. Howell.

FOUNDED 1838

CHARTERED IN 1859

TRINITY COLLEGE
DURHAM, N. C.

A Southern College of liberal arts with an established national reputation for high standards, noble traditions, and progressive policies. Its large endowment fund makes possible its first-class equipment and large faculty of well trained and carefully chosen teachers. Student fees low. Comfortable, inexpensive rooms in carefully supervised hygienic dormitories.

Classical and scientific courses leading to the bachelor's degree. Graduate courses in all departments. Schools of Engineering, Education, and Law.

For catalogue and illustrated booklet, address

R. L. FLOWERS,
Secretary to the Corporation.

DAVENPORT COLLEGE

FOR YOUNG WOMEN

LENOIR, N. C.

A three-year Junior College with a record of sixty-eight years of exceptional Academic work.

Well Equipped, Conservative, but thoroughly abreast of the times.

Fine Type of Student Life. A Safe Place for Young Women to study under close but sympathetic discipline.

Moderate Expenses. The lowest cost commensurate with a High Type of Modern Instruction.

A Registered Nurse constantly in attendance. A most healthful location, in the foothills of the Blue Ridge.

Courses in the Regular Academic Department and Art, Music, Expression, Domestic Science, Domestic Art and Secretarial Courses.

A four-year preparatory course on same campus and correlated with the college.

For Catalogue and Views,

Address PRESIDENT C. L. HORNADAY, LENOIR, N. C.

GREENSBORO COLLEGE

The A-Grade Woman's College of the Two Methodist Conferences of North Carolina

Rated by State Department of Education as Class A.

Chartered 1838. Confers the degree of A. B. in the literary department and B. M. in the music department.

In addition to our regular classical course, special attention is called to the departments of Home Economics, Expression, Art, Education, Sunday School Teacher Training, Piano Pedagogy, and to our complete School of Music.

Modern New $50,000.00 Dormitory completed 1918. Conservatory of Music costing about $170,000 completed 1922.

Fall Semester begins September 5, 1923. For further information apply to DR. S. B. TURRENTINE, President, Greensboro, N. C.

1802

1923

LOUISBURG COLLEGE

A Junior College for Young Women
With a Standard Preparatory Course of Four Years
Property of North Carolina Conference

Faculty of specially trained, consecrated Christian teachers.

Health Record Unsurpassed. Home-like Atmosphere. Social Life Carefully Guarded. Athletics.

In addition to the regular college courses, Classical and General, attention is called to the departments of Art, Business, Education, Expression, Home Economics, Music (Piano, Voice, Violin, Theory, etc.), and Religious Education.

Rates as low as consistent with good service. Send for free Catalogue and Book of Views. For further information write

A. W. MOHN, PRESIDENT, LOUISBURG, N. C.

Our Little Folks

AN ENIGMA; CAN YOU GIVE THE ANSWER?

In finding the answers to the questions use the first letter in each answer. The whole spells the name of one of our preachers and his place of preaching.

My first question is, What is Pallis father's name?

What lad at Troas fell from a window and was taken up dead?

What queen has not performed the commandment of Ahasuerus?

What verse in the old Bible contains all the letters of the alphabet except J?

What is the name of the last book in the old Bible.

Take my — upon you and learn of me.

Beyond what tower did Israel spread his tent?

What is the name of the last book in the New Testament?

What was it that gave out a riddle?

What is the thirty-ninth book of the old Bible?

What borders the east side unto the west side of Simeon?

Who said his punishment is greater than he could bear?

What river divides Ephraim's and Manasseh's tribe?

What family did the ark of God remain with?

What is the name of Solomon's son that reigned in Judah?

When ought a man to bear his yoke?

In what land did Joseph leave his little ones and his flocks?

Who returned and found king of Assyria warring against Lybnah?

Who was St. Paul's friend in Rome?

Who was Nahbi's father?

When Isaac's eyes were dim and could not see whom did he call?

With best wishes for our young people, I am, Your friend, Walter C. Culp.

THE WAY TO END A QUARREL

Two little kittens one stormy night
Began to quarrel and then to fight.
One had a mouse and the other had none,
And that's the way the quarrel begun.

"I'll have that mouse," said the biggest cat.

"You'll have that mouse? We'll see about that!"

"I will have that mouse," said the eldest son.

"You shan't have the mouse," said the little one.

I told you before 'twas a stormy night
When these two little kittens began to fight.

The old woman seized her sweeping broom

And swept the two kittens right out of the room.

The ground was covered with frost and snow,

And the two little kittens had nowhere to go;

So they laid them down on the mat at the door

While the old woman finished sweeping the floor.

Then they crept in as quiet as mice,
All wet with the snow and cold as ice,
For they found it was better that stormy night

To lie down and sleep than to quarrel and fight. —Anonymous.

HOW MOTHER NATURE'S FOLKS KEEP THEMSELVES CLEAN

Once there was a little boy who didn't like to take a bath; he didn't even like to wash his face and hands or to comb his hair. One day when his Uncle Jack was visiting the boy's family he said to his mother that he should like to be a little wild boy and live in the woods with all the wild things.

Uncle Jack looked up from the book he was reading and took off his spectacles. He was a college professor and knew more about birds and animals and all the wild things than the little boy's mother knew, though she knew a great deal.

"Methinks the birds and the bees and the eight-legged spiders and the wildcats and bears and all their folks would be ashamed of you," said Uncle Jack to that little boy. "Should you like to take a walk with me?"

"May I go without washing my face and hands?" asked the little boy.

"Oh, suit yourself," answered Uncle Jack, who was as clean as clean could be.

"Come home in time for dinner," mother advised them, and that was all she said.

So the little boy with dirty face and hands went to walk in the freshly rain-washed garden and woods with his clean, fine-looking uncle.

The first thing Uncle Jack did was to ask the little boy to look through a microscope to see a garden spider comb its hair.

"Where is its comb?" inquired the small boy.

"In its mouth," answered Uncle Jack. "Look through the microscope carefully."

The little boy looked, and he saw the spider put one leg after another into its mouth and comb out every speck of dust and dirt. It made the dust and dirt into little pellets and threw them away.

"An Englishman was the first to discover that fact about spiders," Uncle Jack explained, "and now please notice the beetles. They are never dirty. The dirt slides off their shiny backs, and their little gauzy wings are always clean. Now, if you please, watch that mother robin comb her feathers."

The little boy watched. He saw her comb her feathers with her beak, straight to the tip end.

"Birds always keep clean, and white birds are always white," said Uncle Jack. "Even common flies keep their faces washed and their bodies cleaned. Now, through the microscope let's watch a fly wash his face and comb his hair."

They did; they also watched an ant give her head a hard scrubbing. Then they watched a bee brush off her body. She stood on her hind legs and brushed and brushed. Then she kneaded the pollen into a little pellet that she carried into the hive in the corner of the garden. Uncle Jack said she had changed the pollen into beebread with which to feed the baby bees.

Next the boy was obliged to watch the ducks take their splashing baths in the pool. After that the house cat winked at him and washed her face until he looked the other way because Uncle Jack was laughing.

"Mother Nature's folks always wash and comb and brush themselves," Uncle Jack said. "The gray squirrel on the fence is scrubbing her face this minute!"

The little boy was obliged to look, and while he was gazing at her the squirrel brushed her coat hard and carefully. In the edge of the woods a chipmunk not only washed her face but scolded and scolded the little boy for something.

For once in his life the little boy didn't enjoy walking through the home woods with his Uncle Jack, and he was glad when it was time to go home to dinner. It seemed as if everything that lived in the woods were washing or combing or brushing or cleaning house.

The little boy didn't have to be told to wash his face and hands and comb his hair before dinner that night. He went straight to the bathroom, scrubbed himself clean, combed his hair and laughed.

Uncle Jack and mother laughed too, but the little boy's father, who didn't know what had happened, was so startled when he stepped into the dining room and saw the little boy all clean and shining without having to be sent away to wash his face and hands—the little boy's father was so startled that he forgot his manners and stared.—Youth's Companion.

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORK

(Continued from page nine.)

tor, Rev. O. I. Hinson and their splendid co-workers, is leading his school on to greater things. One indication of new life and vitality is the fact that the attendance is constantly increasing. For instance, on Mothers' Day the attendance was 232, for the last two Sundays it was nearly 200, and the superintendent expects it to average over 200 for the third and fourth quarters. Recently two new classes have been added in the primary department and graded literature introduced. Program of Work "C" has been adopted, and indications are that the school will continue to progress. It is now using part of a new building, which, when completed, will give it a much better opportunity to grow and improve.

BAILEY MILITARY INSTITUTE

GREENWOOD, S. C.

33rd Session Begins September 11th, 1923

In the healthful Piedmont section of South Carolina and in a city widely known for its superior moral and religious atmosphere. Strictly a standard preparatory school. Member of Southern Association. Sound classical and scientific courses prepare for college; strong commercial course prepares for business. Faculty made up of college graduates of established success in teaching and leading boys. Small classes. Close but sympathetic supervision. Excellent moral tone. All athletics. High standards of sportsmanship.

Place your boy at Bailey, and rest assured that his every interest will be safeguarded and promoted, and that there will be no let-up in the endeavor to make him a fine gentleman and a four-square man.

Send for catalog, and see what our patrons say of the school. Address JOHN W. MOORE, Superintendent

BINGHAM MILITARY SCHOOL

ASHEVILLE, N. C.—"The Land of the Sky"

Has stood the tests of 130 years. Buildings one-story brick—for safety, sanitation and service. Each pupil carefully studied. Small classes allow individual attention. Ideal school life, of the simpler type, directed by men of ability and experience. R. J. T. C. Unit under U. S. Army officer. All forms of athletics.

COL. R. BINGHAM, Supt. Emeritus. COL. S. R. McKEE, Supt.

A Beautiful Life

In Beautiful Sentiment Beautifully Commemorated

in
WINNSBORO
Blue Granite

How better can you perpetuate the memory of your loved ones
than thru so beautiful,
so dignified,
so durable, and so appropriate a stone?

Monuments Maintain Memories

Specify Winnsboro Blue Granite, matchless in beauty, permanence, flawlessness, density, clearness of inscription.

Winnsboro
Granite Corp.
Rion, - S. C.

PRESIDING ELDERS APPOINTMENTS

Western North Carolina Conference

ASHEVILLE DISTRICT H. C. Sprinkle, P. E. THIRD ROUND

	July
Sandymush, Big Sandy, 11	21-22
Weaverville Ct., Pleasant Grv, 11	28-29
West Asheville, 7:30	29
	August
Henderson, Fruitland, 11 & 7:30	4-5
East Biltmore, 11	5
Chestnut St., 7:30	6
Rosman, Rosman, 11 & 7:30	11-12
Brevard, 11	2

CHARLOTTE DISTRICT J. B. Craven, P. E., 413 Central Ave., Charlotte, N. C. FOURTH ROUND--IN PART

	July
Pineville, Pineville, 11	22
Belmont Park, 8	22
Trinity, 11	29
Hickory Grove, 3	29
Duncan Memorial, 8	29

GREENSBORO DISTRICT W. F. Womble, Presiding Elder 508 Summit Ave., Greensboro, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

	July
Gibsonville, Gibsonville, at 11	22
West Market Street	29
East End, at night	29

	August
Liberty, Liberty, at 11	5
Bethel, at night	5
Randolph, Hopewell	11-12
Main Street, at night	12
Wesley Memorial	19
Jamestown-Oakdale, Oakdale, night	19
Caraway Memorial, at night	26

	September
East Greensboro, Mt. Pleasant	1-2
Walnut Street, Grace, at night	2
Uwharrie, Concord, at 3 and 11	8-9
New Hope, New Hope, at 11 & 3	8-9
Asheboro, at night	9
Coleridge, Concord	15-16
Ramseur-Frankville, Fkville, night	16
Randleman, St. Paul	23
Deep River, Central Falls, 3 & night	23
Wentworth, Salem, at 11 and 3	29-30
Reidsville, at 11	30

	October
Pleasant Garden, Pleasant Garden	6-7
Spring Garden, at night	7
Ruffin, Ruffin	14

MARION DISTRICT Z. Paris, P. E., Marion, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

	July
Morganton Ct., Salem, 11	21
Morganton, First Ch., 11	22
Glen Alpine, 8	22
Connelly Springs, Warlick, 11	28-29

	August
Table Rock, Fairview, 11	4-5
Marion, First Ch., 8	5
Old Fort, Bethlehem, 11	10
McDowell, Pleasant Hill, 11	12
Cross Mill, 8	12
Broad River, Wesley Chapel, 11	18-19
Forest City, Pleasant Grove, 11	25-26
Spindale, Alexander, 8	26

	September
Marion Mills, Clinchfield, 11	2
Marion Ct., Glenwood, 3	2
Mill Spring, New Hope, 11	8
Cliffside, Avondale, 11	9
Henrietta-Caroleen, Henrietta, 7	9
North McDowell, Concord, 11	16
Spruce Pine, 11	21
Micaville, 11	22-23
Bald Creek, 11	29-30
Burnsville, 7:30	30

All the pastors and charge lay leaders of Marion district will convene at Marion on July 26th on very important business.

MOUNT AIRY DISTRICT J. H. West, P. E., Box 422, Mt. Airy, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

	July
Spray	22
Draper, Draper, night	22
Pilot Mountain, Fairview	28-29

	August
Mt. Airy, Central	5
Rockford St., night	5
Walnut Cove, Palmyra	11-12
Mayodan, Dan Valley, 3	18-19
Madison-Stoneville, Madison, 11	19

Jonesville, Ebenezer	25-26
Elkin	26
Rural Hall, Trinity	1-2
Leaksville, night	2
Dobson, Rockford	8-9
Summerfield, Summerfield	15-16
Stokesdale, Stokesdale	16-17
Yadkinville, Booneville	22-23
W. Davie, Zion, Sun. ngt. & Mon.	23-24
Sandy Ridge	29-30

	October
Danbury, Danbury	30 & 1
Mt. Airy Ct., Oak Grove, Sat.	6
Ararat, Sunday	7

NORTH WILKESBORO DISTRICT J. W. Williams, P. E., Jefferson, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

	July
Creston, Mt. View	21-22
Helton, Greenwood	28-29

	August
Laurel Springs, Transou	4-5
Sparta, Potato Creek	11-12
Watauga, Henson Chapel	18-19
Boone, Boone, 8 night	19

	September
Avery	8-9
Elk Park	15-16
Todd, Fairview	22-23
North Wilkes, Union	29-30
N. Wilkesboro, N. Wilkesboro, 8 ngt	30

	October
Wilkes, Ferguson	6-7
Wilkesboro, Wilkesboro 8 ngt	7

	FIFTH ROUND
Creston, Sutherland, 11	3
Warrens ville, Warrensville, 11	4
Helton, Helton, 11	10
Todd, Todd, 11	11
Jefferson, Jefferson, 11	14

SHELBY DISTRICT H. H. Jordan, P. E., Gastonia, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

	July
Lowell, Lowell, 11	22
McAdenville, 8	22
Bellwood, Kadesh, 11	27
Polkville, Eleotts, 11	28-29
Shelby, Central, 11	29
Lafayette St., 8	29

	August
South Fork, Bethel, 11	4-5
Lincolnton, 8	5
Rock Springs, 11	11
Cherryville, Beulah, 11	18-19
West End, 8	19
Shelby Ct., Elbethel, 11	25-26
King's Mountain, 11	26
East End, 8	26

	September
Lincoln Ct., Asbury, 11	1-2
Trinity, Tate's Chapel, 11	8
Crouse, Laboratory, 11	9
Gastonia, Main St., 8	9
Lovesville, Salem, 11	15-16
Mt. Hilly, 8	16
Stanly, Stanly, 11	22-23
Ranlo, 8	23
Bessemer, Concord, 11	30
Franklin Ave., 8	30
Dallas, Dallas, 11	7
Cramerton, 8	7
Belmont, Park St., 11	14
Belmont, Main St., 8	14

I most earnestly request every official to be present at his quarterly conference, and assist in electing the officials of his church for the ensuing year.

STATESVILLE DISTRICT D. M. Litaker, P. E., 240 Walnut St., Statesville, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

	July
Cool Springs, Providence, 11	21-22
Troutman, Wesley, 3	21-22
Dudley Shoals, Pisgah, 11 & 3	28-29
Maiden, 3 & 8	28-29
Newton, 8 & 11	28-29

	August
Mooresville Ct., Centenary, 11 & 3	4-5
Davidson, 8	4-5
Huntersville, 3	5
Mt. Zion, 3 & 11	11-12
Race St., Statesville, 8	12-13
Ball Creek, Camp Meeting	26
Catawba, Camp Meeting	26

	September
Hickory, Frst, 8 & 11	1-2
Westview, Bethel, 3	1-2
Rhodiss, 8	2
Alexander, Carson, 11	8-9
Statesville Ct., Shiloh, 3	8-9
Mooresville, Central, 8	8-9
Lenoir, First, 8 & 11	15-16
Hudson, Hermon, 3	15-16
Granite Falls, 8	22-23
Lenoir Ct., Littlejohns, 11	22-23
South Lenoir, 3	22-23
Hiddenite, Midway, 3	29-30
Mooresville, Broad St., 8	29-30

	October
Olin, Snow Creek, 11 & 3	6-7
Jones Memorial, 8	6-7

Statesville, Broad St., 11 & 8....7-8
All early conferences will have a fifth round. District meeting in Newton July 24th for pastors, lay leaders, educational collectors and chairmen of educational committees.

WAYNESVILLE DISTRICT R. S. Howle, P. E., Waynesville, N. C. THIRD ROUND

	July
Franklin Ct., River View, 11	21
Macon Ct., Maiden's Chapel, 11	22
Franklin Sta., Carson's Chpl, 4	22
Glenville Ct., Glenville, 11	28
Higblands Ct., Dryman's Chpl, 11	29

WINSTON-SALEM DISTRICT W. A. Newell, P. E., 1084 W. Fourth Street, Winston-Salem, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

	July
Farmington, Bethlehem, 11	21-22
Davidson, Good Hope, 3	21-22
Green Street, Green St., 11	29
Welcome, Ebenezer, 3	28-29

	August
West End, West End, 11	5
Burkhead, Burkhead, ngt	5
Centenary, Centenary, 11	12
Southside, Southside, ngt	12

North Carolina Conference

DURHAM DISTRICT M. T. Plyler, P. E., Durham, N. C. THIRD ROUND

	July
Hillsboro, Walnut Grove	21-22
Eno, 8	22
Mt. Tirzah, Mt. Zion	28-29

	August
Person, Oak Grove	4-5
Roxboro, 8	5
Milton, Purley	10
Yanceyville, Locust Hill	11-12
Burlington Ct., Camp Springs	12-13
Brooksdale, Trinity	18-19
East Roxboro, Longhurst	19
Pearl, Masseys	26
Mebane, 11	26
East Burlington, 8	26

	September
South Alamance, Clover Garden	2
Lakewood, 7:30	2

ELIZABETH CITY DISTRICT C. B. Culbreth, P. E., Elizabeth City, N. C. THIRD ROUND

	July
Plymouth, Mackeys	19
Edenton, Mackeys	19
Roper, Mackeys	19
Chowan, Bethany	28-29

	August
Columbia, Gum Neck	4-5
Gates & N. Gates, Gatesville	10-11-12
Roanoke Island, Hatteras, Kenne- keet, Stumpy Point, Kitty Hawk, Dare Ct., all at Manteo	16-17-18-19

FAYETTEVILLE DISTRICT R. H. Willis, P. E., Fayetteville, N. C. THIRD ROUND

	July
Dunn	18
Hemp, Mt. Carmel	20
Glendon, Caribnton	21-22
Carthage, Doubs	22-23
Jonesboro, Memphis	28-29
Sanford	29-30

	August
Goldston, Maronie	4-5

	August
Elizabeth, Wesley's Chapel	8
Stedman, Bethabara	10-12
Roseboro, Hall's	11-12

NEW BERN DISTRICT F. M. Shamburger, P. E., New Bern, N. C. THIRD ROUND

	July
Beaufort, 11	22
Morehead City, night	22
St. Paul, Goldsboro, 11	29
St. John, Goldsboro, night	29

RALEIGH DISTRICT J. C. Wooten, P. E. THIRD ROUND

	July
Creedmoor, Grove Hill, 11	21-22
Jenkins Memorial, 8	24
Clayton, 8	25
Four Oaks, Sanders, 11	28
Benson, 11	29
Smithfield, 8	29

	August
Princeton, Fellowship, 11	26

WASHINGTON DISTRICT S. A. Cotton, P. E., Washington, N. C. THIRD ROUND

	July
South Rocky Mt., night	20
Springhoke	21-22

Nashville, night	22
Rocky Mt., First Ch., night	23
Vanceboro	28-29

ROCKINGHAM DISTRICT J. H. Shore, P. E., Rockingham, N. C. THIRD ROUND

	July
Caledonia, Caledonia	20
Rowland, Asbury	21-22
Maxton	28-29

	August
St. Paul, Barker's	4-5
Lumberton	5-6
Mt. Gilead Ct., Wadeville	11-12
Mt. Gilead	12-13

WELJON DISTRICT S. E. Mercer, P. E., Weldon, N. C. THIRD ROUND

	July
Aulander, Ebenezer	19
(All day program)
Windsor Ct., Mt. Gould	20
(All day program)
Windsor, 11	22
Williamston Ct., 8	22
Hamilton (all day program)	24
Scotland Neck Ct.	25
(All day program)
Warren Ct., Sarepta, 11	28-29

	August
Middleburg Ct., 11	5

WILMINGTON DISTRICT J. M. Daniel, P. E., 519 Grace Street, Wilmington, N. C. THIRD ROUND

	July
Chadbourn, Cerro Gordo, a.m.	20
Old Dock, Bethel, a.m.	21-22
Tabor, Clarendon, p.m.	22
Scott's Hill, Union, a.m.	26
Town Creek, Piney Grove, a.m.	27
Shalotte, Union, a.m.	28-29
Wilmington, Castle St., p.m.	29

District conference will convene at Swansboro on June 26, 1923. Opening sermon at 8 p. m. Business sessions 9 o'clock, 27-28. Delegates will get off at Jacksonville. All visitors will notify Rev. T. W. Siler, Swansboro.

Does Your Society Need Money?
Make from $15.00 to $500.00 for your society without a penny investment.
Write for FREE Booklet "The Chase System of Raising Money for your Organization."
THE CHASE SYSTEM
115 Walnut St., St. Louis

SAVED $2000 AND GOT BETTER ROOFING

WRITE TODAY FOR CUT PRICES One big, slashing cut brings the price of Genuine Everwear Roofing down to the same price as before the war. Now is the time to put that new top on your house, barn and other buildings--now while prices are down to rock bottom.

SAVED $200--GOT BETTER ROOFING Send to-day for our special 30-day offer and direct from factory prices. You WILL BE DELIGHTED WITH THE LOW PRICES AND THE QUALITY OF MATERIAL. Mr. H. Carlin, St. Louis, Mo., writes: "I am pleased and satisfied--I saved $200 by ordering from you."

TWO CRIMPS ON EACH EDGE OUR DOUBLE GALVANIZED STEEL GOES TO DAY FOR TWO CRIMPS ON EACH EDGE--WHICH MAKES A WATER-TIGHT LOCK. Quick and easy to nail on. Patent Nails, Hammer and Shovel furnished with every order.

ROOFING FOR EVERY USE We also manufacture GALVANIZED STEEL SHINGLES, GALVANIZED ROOFING AND SIDING of all kinds, and RED ROOFING IN ROLLS--which we sell direct to you at factory prices. Our NEW BUILDING BOOK tells all about roofing and siding and may have just the information you are looking for. Write for your FREE COPY TO-DAY.

YOU SAVE THE PROFIT We have just about enough roofing to fill orders for the next 30 days--then we may have to raise our prices. SEND TO-DAY FOR FREE SAMPLES--ROOFING BOOK AND CUT PRICES. Get Guaranteed Roofing direct from the factory and keep in your own pocket the profit others would get.

Address
SAVANNAH FENCE & ROOFING COMPANY,
Dept. B Savannah, Ga.

GALVANIZED STEEL SHINGLES CAN'T CATCH FIRE

SEND FOR THIS FREE BUILDING BOOK--DIRECT TO YOU--FREIGHT PAID

The Call of the Conference Claimants

Edited by Luther E. Todd, Secretary

Board of Finance, M. E. Church, South

510-513 Security Building, St. Louis, Mo.

THE "FORGOTTEN MAN" IN THE MAKING

By Rev. C. E. Bower.

(The statements contained in this article, including the tragedy, are taken from the real experience of a preacher.)

"My dear, I guess you and I will have to have another conference on home finances this evening," said the minister to his wife one evening at the supper table. "I regret the necessity of it very much, but I would be untrue to family interests if I withheld from you certain facts which you are entitled to know."

The simple evening meal they called supper had been finished. The children, of whom there were four, had been excused and were already out playing in the spring twilight with the care-free spirit that belongs to children most anywhere in the world. The minister and his wife had pushed back their plates to linger awhile in confidential chat over the table. It was at this time that the minister had made the above announcement.

Their supper consisted of oatmeal and milk, bread and butter, and tea. The children drank of the milk, which was furnished the minister's family free of charge by a kind neighbor. This meal, though fairly satisfying and nourishing, still left something to be desired. But the state of the minister's finances was such as not to admit of a more elaborate spread. It had been so for some time past.

As resolutely as possible the devout pair entered upon a discussion of their affairs. It was not the first time they had found it necessary to consider their household expenditures.

"What is it that you wish to impart to me or discuss, whichever it is?" asked the minister's wife when he hesitated to proceed. "Is it anything I have done that was wrong or have not done that needs an airing? I am sure I could hardly live more economically than I have both as to our table and the children's clothes. I have not given one thought to getting myself anything new this spring, for I know we cannot afford it. Besides, that insurance money will be due again next month, and where is it going to come from?"

"My dear, you must not think for one moment that you are to blame for anything," he replied in a subdued voice, "a woman who has toiled with her children as you have done and kept the home as you have kept ours. By no means! And it grinds my very soul to have you deny yourself so many comforts and needs. I feel that I should apologize to you every day rather than blame you with anything." His voice grew unsteady with emotion, and tears glistened in his kindly eyes. It was plain that he was carrying a heavy load, and there were signs that he might be approaching the last straw.

Surprised at his emotion, the wife sat regarding her husband for a brief space in silence, but it was with heaving bosom and something akin to sobs creeping up into her throat. It appeared to be her turn now to be brave instead of giving way to her feelings, as she had often done before. She did not remember ever seeing her husband so wrought up and apparently crushed as now.

To the minister his troubles were all the harder to endure when he recalled that it was through no fault of his that they were now on the verge of absolute want. He had endeavored to be faithful to his charge and had so well succeeded that there were no serious complaints against him.

This minister was pastor of a church in a good-sized town. His congregation numbered two hundred. Most of them were persons in moderate circumstances, with a few who were able-to-do and others poor. The salary promised by this church was, of course, small. A had feature of the case was that the small salary was not promptly paid. The minister had done quite as much as was his duty in trying to impress upon his official members the necessity of prompt payment of his stipend if he were properly to support his family and maintain his self-respect in the town. But for some reason his appeals had not impressed them. Contributions continued to be almost negligible. His earnest appeals for the payment of his unpaid salary evoked promises of immediate action, but nothing was done about it.

This was not the only church that was slow to pay the small salary assessed for its pastor. It had been this minister's experience reaching back to the beginning of his ministry. True, some few of the churches had been a little better than others in their support of the pastor, but the fault was a general one. Every time the self-denying man moved his family to a new field of labor he hoped to find a better support for his growing family. This hope was not realized, and it is not surprising that this faithful man of God reached a state of physical and mental collapse.

Early in his married life the minister had taken out a small life insurance policy as a means of saving something for his family in case of his passing on. The premiums on this policy he had paid with absolute regularity. "It is all I have for my family," he would reflect, "and I dare not fail." Often it pushed him to the very limit to find the money to meet them, but he considered no self-denial on his part too great that he might achieve this end.

It was inevitable that his family needs should become greater as his children grew older, and the demands made on him for schooling and clothes grew heavier and heavier. So at this time the minister was confronted with a dire situation. His accounts at the stores were already so large that he could scarcely have the face to make them larger, even though it were to keep soul and body together.

Such was the situation on the evening when the minister had asked his wife for a consultation over their finances. If he only had in the bank what the churches had promised him but did not pay, it would have relieved the situation at once and completely. If his present official members would pay him what they owed him, he could at least have temporary relief. As it was, nothing but gloom appeared to surround them. After a harrowing review of things lasting for more than half an hour, they arose from the table without any relief to their overburdened hearts.

There were doubtless persons in this town who knew something of the minister's predicament. It is scarcely possible that extremity of his needs could have escaped the notice of every one. It is incredible that not one of them showed an interest in the situation, but not one did.

The minister in this story had seen his affairs become continually more complicated and unmanageable till there appeared to him no possibility of unraveling them unless the money could be obtained with which to do it. He was getting so far up in years that he was beginning to be looked upon as an old man. Soon few, if any, churches would desire his services as pastor, preferring a younger man. What was then to become of him and his family? He had not been able to lay by anything for old age, and the church had made but the most meager provisions for its superannuate ministers. Almost nothing could be depended upon in this direction.

"But," he thought, "my children will soon be large enough to help themselves and their mother, if I can just get them through school! There was the rub. This could not be accomplished without money, and where was this money to come from? "My life insurance policy" was suggested to his mind. He could perhaps mortgage it and get some money for immediate needs. But he put the thought from him instantly. "No, no! I cannot do that," he said to himself almost aloud. "Small as it is, that is the only thing that stands between my family and beggary. I cannot use that."

The consultation between the minister and his wife took place on Tuesday evening. Wednesday night was prayer meeting night. In the morning of this day the troubled wife was alarmed when she first looked upon the face of her husband. His cheeks were sunken. His eyes were deep-set in a face that was wan and wasted. He looked like one who had not slept all the long night, and it was true that he had not.

The pastor's study was in the church close by the minister's residence. The wife rarely saw him all that day. She perhaps thought it better to let him wrestle with his troubles alone. Or he may have been preparing some work, as was his custom, and preferred not to be interrupted. He did not come to supper; and when one of the children was sent to call him, he asked not to be disturbed.

When prayer meeting time came, the bell had not been rung as usual. The pastor usually did this. The wife wondered at the omission but did not go to investigate. The first persons to arrive for the prayer service came without waiting for the summons of the bell. On entering the little church the sight that met them fully explained the failure of the bell to ring. In the vestibule, dangling from the end of the hell rope which hung down through the manhole, was the lifeless body of the pastor. He had hung himself!

The coroner's jury rendered a verdict of suicide by hanging due to worry over financial troubles.

Of course the terrible news of the suicide of the minister spread rapidly through the town and out into the adjacent country. Everywhere the greatest sympathy and horror was evoked by the sad occurrence, but it was too late to remedy the neglect. Many said: "I didn't know he was in such trouble. If I had known, I would willingly have helped him out." But it was too late!

(The Board of Finance is wrestling with the problem so truthfully set forth in this article. Help the board.)

THE BURDEN BEARER

I lift the ever-present burden of widowhood, orphanage, disability, sickness and advanced age of the itinerancy and of the laity of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, by providing "a home of their own," or its equivalent, to comfort and support them during all the years of life thereafter.

"Safety first" is my guiding star in all business matters and "brother love" in all manner of service. My premium rates are adequate to give insurance at cost (30 per cent lower than commercial companies require.) Expense of management is reduced to the minimum, being the lowest amount permissible while insuring efficiency. Personal profit, investment methods, and employed paid agents are not allowed. This is saved for the Certificate holders.

Benefit certificates are issued for insurance protection in amounts of $3,000 or less per application on following attractive plans: Whole life; twenty-premium life; endowment at age sixty and seventy; term to age fifty, sixty, and seventy; annuity, and combination of plans.

The itinerant preacher of the past has had no chance. Shall they of the future fare no better?

By their own institution, ingenuity, thrift, and divine Providence they are solving their financial problems. The sting of superannuation is removed.

For information and application blanks write to the Methodist Benevolent Association, Dept. 8, 810 Broadway, Nashville, Tenn.

A Capital Idea

Speaking of the Advocate Piano Club, here is a letter from one of our Club members, which is a fair sample of the letters we are receiving every day. She writes:

"I think it a capital idea. I know we would not have had our piano if we had waited to have gotten the whole amount. I find no fault with the Club plan and as for the Club piano we are just delighted with it. All our friends say they would like to have one just like it. It is just a beauty, and we value it more than anything else in the house."

Let us send you your copy of the beautiful Club catalog today. Address Ludden & Bates, Advocate Piano Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga.

Sure Relief

BELL-ANS FOR INDIGESTION

ART GLASS
for Churches and Residences
Memorial Windows
Catalog and Special Designs free on request
F. J. COOLIDGE & SONS
ATLANTA, Ga.

Bad Breath
Is Usually Due to Constipation
When you are constipated, not enough of Nature's lubricating liquid is produced in the bowel to keep the food waste soft and moving. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it acts like this natural lubricant and thus replaces it.
Nujol is a lubricant—not a medicine or laxative—so cannot gripe. Try it today.
Nujol
A LUBRICANT—NOT A LAXATIVE

IN MEMORIAM

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas, Brother C. E. Weatherby, for many years a faithful and efficient member of the Wilmington district conference, has recently been called from his labors on earth to his heavenly reward, we, the committee appointed by the chairman of the district conference now in session, offer the following resolutions:

First, That we bow in humble submission to the will of the great Head of the church, He who doeth all things well.

Second, That we express our appreciation of the long and faithful work of our brother and friend as church, district and conference lay leader, and that we give thanks for all his service rendered the church.

Third, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the district conference, a copy be sent to the North Carolina Christian Advocate for publication, and a copy be sent to Brother Weatherby's family.

Chas. M. Lance,
W. A. Stanbury,
J. H. Packard,
Committee.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas, on the morning of June 17, 1923, God saw fit in His infinite love and mercy to take from our midst and Ladies' Aid Society, of which she was a faithful member, to her heavenly home in heaven, which place she had been sending up material to build Mrs. Angeline M. Gray, mourning her departure so deeply; therefore be it resolved:

First, That we, the members of the Ladies' Aid Society of Clark's Bethel church, Salvo, N. C., bow in humble submission to the will of God as she did in all her afflictions without the least murmur of complaint.

Second, That we strive to follow her Christian example with cheerfulness of spirit which she always showed in her community by her loving words and smiles.

Third, That while we miss her we rejoice in the hope that it is well with her in her heavenly mansion which she is now occupying, and her reward is that of a faithful servant of God.

Fourth, That we extend our sympathy and love to the bereaved family in their loss of such a Christian character.

Fifth, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the records of this organization, a copy printed in the North Carolina Christian Advocate and a copy forwarded to the bereaved family.

Ladies' Aid Society,
Clark's Bethel Church.

HALL—J. T. Hall was born January 11, 1868, and died February 17, 1923. He professed religion and joined Pleasant Hill church in early life. For a number of years he served as steward. We could count on Brother Hall being at his post of duty. He was a faithful member and will be greatly missed. He was a kind and loving father and husband. Funeral services were held in Pleasant Hill church, conducted by his pastor, T. B. Johnson. May God's blessing rest upon the entire family.

T. B. Johnson, P. C.

REYNOLDS—Bro. Lendon R. Reynolds was born February 27, 1857, died March 2, 1923. In the passing of Brother Reynolds Roberdel has lost a most valuable citizen, the Methodist church a member and officer that will be hard to replace, and his family a devoted father and husband. He was quiet and unassuming in his manners, cultured and refined. For years he taught in the public schools and often his pupils speak of him as an ideal teacher. He was teaching a large class of young men in the Sunday school at the time of his last sickness. A large audience was present to pay their tribute of love and respect and to sympathize with the bereft. We laid his body beneath the outstanding boughs of the whispering pines in old Bear Branch cemetery, there to sleep until the resurrection morn. Brother Reynolds has gone on before and no doubt will be waiting for his loved ones to come home.

F. E. Dixon, P. C.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Since it has been the will of our Divine Father to call from a life of service our sister, Mrs. Sue Watson, be it resolved:

First, A vacant chair in the ranks of the Woman's Missionary Society of Severn Methodist church reminds us that we have lost a true and faithful member, yet we bow to the will of our Father and realize she has just gone home.

Just a passing from our sight,
Out of darkness into light,
To a land all pure and bright—
Just gone home.

Second, That we extend to the bereaved family our deepest sympathy and prayers to God for blessings and comfort.

Third, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, the Christian Advocate, the Northampton Progress, the Roanoke-Chowan Times, and a page in our record book be set apart sacred to her memory.

Mrs. C. P. Spencer,
Miss Essie Porter,
Mrs. T. B. Stephenson,
Committee.

CARVER—Mrs. Jennie Carver was born in Person county near Roxboro July 4, 1880, and died at Jalong N. C., June 15, 1923. About 21 years ago she was married to John Carver, who died in 1918. To this happy union were born five bright, sweet children—Linnie, Lillian, Willie, Jack and Esther, all of whom are living in Jalong. Both the father and mother left to their children the heritage of a clean Christian life and character. Both were active members of the Longhurst Methodist church and were held in high esteem by all who knew them. The funeral of Mrs. Carver was conducted from the home at Jalong by her pastor on June 16, in the presence of a host of sorrowing relatives and friends, and the remains were laid to rest beside her husband's grave in the little cemetery at Storie's Creek church near Roxboro. May God keep and comfort all the sorrowing ones and prepare the children to be reunited with the father and mother in the heavenly home.

S. J. Starnes, Pastor.

VONCANON—On June 27th little Annie Brown Voncanon, infant of Bro. F. W. Voncanon and wife, departed this life and on the next day its little body was laid to rest underneath a mound of flowers surrounded by a large concourse of friends.

At the time of its birth there was little hope of ever rearing it, but all was done that loving hearts and skillful hands could do to save it with no avail. It was a ray of heavenly light that shot into a home and lingered for a few short months and then went out never to be forgotten.

W. H. Brown.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas, on April 27, 1923, death removed from among us one of our most beloved and one of our oldest members of the Woman's Missionary Society, Mrs. Amy Dail; and whereas, we, the Woman's Missionary Society of the Snow Hill auxiliary, feel most keenly the loss of this dear member; therefore be it resolved:

First, That although our hearts are filled with sorrow at her going, we know our heavenly Father knoweth best and we yield our will to His.

Second, That while we shall miss her dear presence, the memory of her fidelity to duty, her sweetness and goodness will ever remain with us. Her children rise up to call her blessed.

Third, That we extend our deepest sympathy to her family and loved ones.

Fourth, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, a copy to the North Carolina Christian Advocate and a copy recorded in our minutes.

Mrs. J. Paul Frizzelle,
Mrs. M. H. Potter,
Mrs. C. T. Rogers,
Committee.

DAIL—In the death of Mrs. Amy Dail on April 27, 1923, Snow Hill has lost one of her best women. It is true Sister Dail did not spend all of her time in Snow Hill, but she held her membership at Snow Hill. She joined the church when quite young and was faithful to her God and to her church to the end. Her life was one of service, as one of her daughters said, "She grew old beautifully and her children and grandchildren thought that here were few like her." She has left them a rich heritage. Sister Dail was 82 when she died. May the family circle be unbroken in heaven.

C. T. Rogers.

MAGNESS—Rufus L. Magness, son of Samuel and Nancy Magness, was born in Cleveland county November 15, 1848, and departed this life May 16, 1923, age 74 years, five months and one day.

He was married to Miss Hester Crowder February 26, 1878, and to this union ten children were born, nine of whom are living—Messrs. W. G. and R. E. of Forest City, C. O., Talmade and Robert of Ellenboro, Carl of Littimore, Misses Beulah and Mattie of Ellenboro and Mrs. Cletus Walker of Sattimore. Little Carrie preceded him to the better world several years ago.

Brother Magness was converted and joined Rehobeth Methodist church under the ministry of Rev. Robt. M. Hoyle about 42 years ago. He never seemed to doubt his conversion and his Christian experience was clear and convincing. He served the church for many years as steward and Sunday school superintendent. During the year 1916 he purchased a large farm near Ellenboro in Rutherford county, moving to it with his family in the fall. Soon after coming into this community he transferred his membership to Oak Grove Methodist church and became at once an active and influential member. He made many friends and was loved by all. He will be greatly missed in the home, the church and the community.

The funeral services were conducted from Oak Grove church by the writer, assisted by Revs. Robt. M. Hoyle and Parker Holmes and were largely attended by people of Cleveland and Rutherford counties, thus attesting the high esteem in which he was held.

L. S. Smith.

NICHOLSON—John Edward Nicholson, the son of John C. Nicholson and Rebecca P. Nicholson, was born January 21, 1874, died June 13, 1923. Brother Ed., as he was familiarly known, was one of the most highly esteemed citizens of Franklin county, North Carolina. Of him it can be said, he served his generation by the will of God. He was the leader in his church and community, a loyal supporter in every good cause. While he was never married his home had a striking resemblance of the home in Bethany, where the Master loved to stay. Yonder on the hill under the oaks is a place where through the years God's servant has found a welcome that warmed his heart and cheered him in his work. The place of our departed brother cannot be filled in the church, Sunday school, community and home. He is gone but not forgotten, departed from us but not dead. Brighter than the glorious sunset which delights our earthly clime, Than the splendor of the dawning breaking o'er the hills of time, Is the richness and the radiance of the land beyond the sun, Where our brother has his country since the work of life is done.

His Pastor.

SPEAS—Tobias D. Speas was born in Yadkin county October 6, 1850; departed this life June 16, 1923. In the year 1878 he was united in marriage with Alice J. Hunter. This God-directed union was blessed with four children, all of whom are living. Brother Speas has been a member of the Methodist church on the Lewisville charge over 40 years, and a steward and trustee in Sharon church for more than 30 years. He has served in almost every phase of the church work with earnestness and enthusiasm. His convictions were strong and his faith in God well founded. He passed to his reward in great faith.

J. W. Vestal, P. C.

STRUPE—William P. Strupe was born in Forsyth county December 17, 1873; died June 19, 1923. He was married to Martha Snow July 7, 1897. Five children were born into the family, two of whom preceded him to the spirit world. About 30 years ago he gave his heart to God and joined Union church on the Lewisville charge. He was a good man. He told his wife but a few days before he died that he expected to be taken away suddenly, and that if he was he was ready to go at any time. He went as he expected.

J. W. Vestal, P. C.

BLACK—Jacob W. Black was born March 2, 1849; died June 18, 1923; aged 74 years, three months and 16 days. He joined the Methodist church at Concord in early childhood and has lived a quiet Christian life since. He was a kind considerate neighbor, a good citizen and a loyal member of the church. He died in peace.

J. W. Vestal, P. C.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

We, the members of the Missionary and Aid societies of China Grove Methodist church wish to express our sorrow and extend our sympathy in the loss of our beloved pastor, Rev. S. E. Richardson. Resolved:

First, That we have lost a faithful friend and pastor, the town a good citizen, and the family a devoted father and husband.

Second, That our loss is his eternal gain; we shall see him again if we follow his footsteps and live as he tried to lead us.

Third, That we bow in humble submission to Him who doeth all things well.

Fourth, That we extend to the bereaved wife and children our sincere love and sympathy and prove our willingness to do anything we can for them while they are with us.

Fifth, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the North Carolina Christian Advocate, Salisbury Post and to the family; also that same be recorded in minutes of our societies.

Mrs. C. A. Sides,
Mrs. K. A. Smidt,
Mrs. H. S. Bostian,
Mrs. H. S. Sechler.

IN MEMORIAM

A tribute of love to the memory of my loving companion. Entered into eternal rest March 30, 1923, Friday morning, 9:30.

Every day brings back sweet memories;

Deep within my heart I cherish
Thoughts of you I loved so dear;
How can I help but feel so lonely,
When your voice I do not hear?

A place is vacant in my home that never can be filled.

My darling one, you have left me,
And your loss I deeply feel;
But 'tis God who has bereft me,
He can all my sorrow heal.

But again I hope to meet you
When my days of life are over
And in heaven with joy I'll greet you,
Where no farewell tears are shed.

God teach me submission to thy will;
So lift my eyes from earth to heaven
And say, Thy will be done, oh God.
His Wife.

BOILS Old Sores, Cuts and Burns have been healed since 1820 with

Gray's Ointment

Sold by all druggists. Write for sample to W. F. Gray & Co., 710 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

Practical training in bookkeeping, shorthand, typewriting, banking, accounting and penmanship in the Greensboro Commercial School, Greensboro, N. C., will assure you of a well paying position. Students are enrolling weekly. Write for Catalog.

NORTH CAROLINA Christian Advocate

Volume LXVIII

GREENSBORO, N. C., THURSDAY, JULY 26, 1923

No. 30

EDITORIAL ~ PARAGRAPHS

Francisco Villa, at one time a noted bandit leader who figured large in the public eye, is dead. His name can be placed with the long list in history who lived by the sword and who perished by the sword.

* * * *

"Cheap sensationalism first attracts, then disappoints, then disgusts. The truth of this has been tested so often that it is not worth while to make further experiments." We do not know the author of the foregoing, but we do know that it is true as Holy Writ. He who thinks otherwise will find from experience how true it is. John the Baptist was a sensationist; so was Elijah, but they were not cheap. Their sensationalism was tremendously expensive. John's cost his head.

* * * *

Here is a case in real life. A preacher puts on a hood and goes out to regulate other people's business. One wonders why the adoption of such methods in the pursuit of righteousness. But when an honorable business man tells how that same preacher owes him a thousand dollars for goods purchased and not only refuses to pay the bill but ignores his letters of inquiry about the same, it becomes easy to understand why he covers his face and even his hands and his feet. Courage and integrity with uncovered face fights and wins, cowardice and crookedness takes to cover.

* * * *

Men pray for the magic touch that transforms the common things of life into gold, but fortunately do not get it. Old King Midas prayed for such a touch and got it. He touched the loaf of bread and it became a lump of gold; he touched the goblet of water to his lips and the life giving fluid was turned into yellow metal; he kissed his little daughter and she became a golden statue. Then Midas, hungry and thirsty, and bereft of all men most miserable, and he prayed to be delivered from that which was worse than death. Yet men fall down and worship things material and forget that life is not gilded with gold. "Kind hearts are more than coronets." The eternal riches are not in the material kingdom, but in the kingdom of love to which the gates are never shut, neither night nor day.

* * * *

Ethics and aesthetics should go hand in hand. To substitute one for the other or with one seek to eliminate the other is unfortunate in the extreme. Between holiness and beauty there is no antagonism. But rather there is beauty in holiness and holiness in beauty. Of a good old country doctor who several years ago went home to heaven, his patients were accustomed to say that he seemed to think the value of medicine was in inverse ratio to how it tasted. A bad taste gave assurance that it was a good medicine. Quite a number of people seem to have the same notion about piety and righteousness—to be of value it must be unpleasant. With all its virtues this was one of the faults of Puritanism. Why not learn that as medicine has been made palatable without robbing it of its virtue, so the ethical and the spiritual can be made attractive without being robbed of their essential qualities.

A cultured woman of unusual mental acumen in urging that goodness be made attractive said, "I wish all good people were attractive and all bad people were unattractive." That would, indeed, be a long step toward the millenium. For a woman with winsome ways, although her personal piety be no greater, has an unspeakable advantage, as a servant of God, over her sister devoid of grace and charm. A man may be a paragon in morals, but what do those ethical qualities avail if with them he is a bore or churl? His handicap will prove disastrous.

* * * *

"If I may write a nation's songs I care not who writes her laws," needs no longer the brace of some great author's name. The truth is accepted without argument. A great national song is of more value than a great standing army. Britain's altar fires are kept burning by "God Save the Queen." Better than the sight of our flag, beautiful as it is to every true American, is the music of our national anthem, "The Star Spangle Banner." In like manner music inspires and rules in the religious world. When Christ was born the angels sang and the heavenly hosts made melody. The early Methodist church was a triumphant church because it was a singing church. Richter says: "Music brings the waves of eternity near the weary heart of man as he stands on the shores of time longing to cross over. Music is the evening breeze of this and the morning breeze of the future life." A lone missionary who lay dying beyond the rampart of civilization where he had gone as a scout of the Eternal turned his face toward the stars and whispered:

Though like a wanderer the sun gone down,
Darkness be over me, my rest a stone,
Yet in my dreams I'd be
Nearer, my God, to Thee, nearer to Thee.

* * * *

"The place whereon thou standest is holy ground," said God to Moses. The place where Moses stood was not among the sepulchers of his fathers, neither amid the ruins of some ancient temple, nor in the courts of a sanctuary dedicated to the service of the Most High. But he stood upon the desert sands where stalked loneliness and desolation. The land that grows the corn and over which is heard the song of the reapers may be holy, but how about the desert with its scattered sage brush? It is holy because God and Moses are there. High and holy personalities and not harvests make the ground holy. Furthermore God did not say to Moses that the place where he did stand is holy. Neither did God say that the place where thou shalt stand is holy ground. But God said, "The place whereon thou standest," standest now is holy ground. It is a great lesson to learn that God is with us now, that our unsandaled feet may now stand upon holy ground in the very presence of the Eternal God—no intervention of years, of priests, or of place. Even the shop, the store, the office and above all the sanctuary of the present day are the dwelling place of our God and in consequence are holy.

GREENVILLE-AYDEN

Sunday, July 15th, the business manager of the Advocate had the pleasure of preaching to the Jarvis Memorial congregation, Greenville, in the morning and at Ayden at the evening hour. Brother Scoville, the pastor at Greenville, was away enjoying a vacation generously granted him by his good people.

It is worth a trip to Greenville to see that fine young educator, Mr. June Rose, conduct a Sunday school. He starts on the minute and keeps things humming all the time. The day we were present was one of the hottest of the season, but 421 answered to the roll call. One thing that pleased us about that fine Sunday school was the fact that the whole school assembled in the main auditorium of the new Sunday school building for the opening exercises and also reassembled for the closing of the school, and Brother Rose had all of the members to take some active part in the services. He knows how to do the thing, and he does it. Another feature of the exercises which impressed us was the introduction of visitors. The superintendent had every visitor to stand up, tell his name and where he lived. If you want to visit a first class school in every particular go to Jarvis Memorial.

The congregation has just completed a modern Sunday school building—one of the most complete that we have seen anywhere. There is an auditorium which will accommodate about six hundred, and twenty-five class rooms. The main auditorium and that of the Sunday school can be thrown together and about 1200 persons can be seated.

When we entered the pulpit for the morning worship we were greeted by a congregation that practically filled the main auditorium, and a finer congregation would be hard to find.

Brother Scoville is in his second year and is growing in favor all the time.

Greenville is one of the most desirable appointments in North Carolina Methodism.

Brother John Wright, the thoughtful and earnest pastor at Ayden, and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Turnage drove over to Greenville Sunday afternoon and took us to their beautiful little city, which we are told has more hard surfaced streets than any town its size in the United States. It is one of the prettiest towns we have seen in our rounds. Brother Wright is there in his second year and is greatly appreciated by his people.

During our stay in Greenville and Ayden we were entertained in the homes of Mr. and Mrs. G. B. W. Hadley and Brother and Sister Wright, and the hospitality of those homes placed us under many obligations to our hosts.

DEFYING THE COURTS OF NORTH CAROLINA

On the night of April 14, 1923, at Proctorville, Robeson county, a hooded mob of eighteen men dragged two defenseless women from their homes and from their children, carried them into the yard of a negro church and there brutally beat them upon the bare flesh till the back of their thighs and legs were bruised and lacerated.

Three men were arrested as leaders of the mob, and placed under heavy bond till the grand jury found true bills, as charged by the state, then the court ordered them to prison to await trial.

Last week while the trial was in progress Mr. Stephen McIntyre, attorney for the prosecution, received an anonymous letter which among other things contained these significant threats:

"This relentless persecution must cease for surely you know that dead men have been dragged from a lake for a less serious crime than you are committing and nobody convicted.

"Your intelligence tells you that the exposure of this warning brings an invisible, invincible hand that is mightier than the courts themselves upon your poor unworthy carcass.

"We command you to show this to T. A. McNeill for it is as much to him as it is to you, and the same penalty is on him if he exposes."

T. M. McNeil, for whom the letter was also intended, is the state solicitor elected by the people and under oath to prosecute criminals and the threat against him ceases to be personal, and is directed against the judicial system of North Carolina.

The following morning Judge Sinclair received an anonymous letter that warned him to use his influence to exonerate the men who were on trial.

But this was not all. On the morning of July 3 H. L. Taliaferro, a professed Ku Klux Klan detective, was arrested on the charge of attempting to intimidate or purchase state's witnesses in the flogging case. He was released the next day on a $5,000 bond said to have been furnished by the K. K. K.

At the hearing of the case last Saturday, Taliaferro offered what has become a familiar plea when an outrage has been committed by hooded bands. He claimed to be helping to ferret out the perpetrators of the crime and to place the blame where it properly belonged. In other words, he was there to assist the courts in punishing criminals as he had done on other occasions. Taliaferro was as calm as a proverbial May morning until two bombs unexpectedly exploded in his face. These explosions were caused by the state's presenting two letters which he admitted having written. The letters were addressed to W. S. Coburn, P. O. Box 1472, Atlanta, Ga. After these letters had been read the court had nothing left to do except to impose the penalty in each of the three counts. The judgment of the court, as is well known, was thirty days in prison and $250 fine in each case, making a total of ninety days in prison and a fine of $750.

Before announcing the judgment of the court Judge Sinclair, pointing to Taliaferro, said:

"This man professes to be the representative of an organization which has declared that it is mightier than the courts, and, speaking for myself, I want to say that the courts accept the challenge."

Taliaferro may take an appeal, make the required bond of $5,000 and flee to distant parts. But the big work has been already accomplished. The public got one more glimpse on the inside of that dark, invisible empire and North Carolinians are again assured that Judge Grady who has been silent in seven languages can just remain silent so are as the public is concerned. His silence will cover no secrets as to his klan affiliation. This bit of history that will go down in the annals of Robeson county has been reported here in the hope that the citizens of North Carolina will not forget.

THE ANNUAL REVIVAL IN THE COUNTRY CHURCH

For the next six weeks revival meetings in country churches will be the order of the day. It is a period of comparative leisure with the farmer and for that reason he has insisted from time immemorial that the protracted meeting be held in the summer. It is a great opportunity for the pastor and for the church. The crowds still attend when something of interest is going on. Best of all the children and young people are at church in the country to sing, if given a chance, and to hear the preaching of the gospel.

All possible emphasis should be put upon these revival occasions. They should be duly advertised beforehand. If possible a religious census of the community should be made in order that the religious needs of the community may be met in an intelligent manner. It is a mistake to enter blindly into the work expecting that God will take care of our ignorance of the situation. The best possible provisions should be made for the music. A revival must be set to music. Apostolic zeal must characterize the preaching of the word. The pulpit must burn. For when the pulpit is ablaze people will run to the fire. The pulpit is no scientific laboratory. Neither is it the desk of a theological lecture room. The Christian pulpit is a rostrum from which God speaks. When God spoke in a bush that bush was ablaze. When God spoke in the temple even the door posts trembled. These messages which aroused Moses and Isaiah were startling in character, but simple in content. Get the lesson: The simple story must become startling.

Furthermore, the obligations upon the congregations are none the less exacting than they are upon the preacher. An attentive, sympathetic, praying congregation adds fuel to the flame in the pulpit, and the result is a great spiritual conflagration.

"All hearts in the work and every hand to the task" should be the slogan for a church entering the revival services.

This should be a great revival season in North Carolina Methodism. With more than 500 pastoral charges in the state and the majority of these in the country, 10,000 people should be added to the churches within the next few weeks. And with the passion and zeal of our pioneer fathers it would be done. Shall we prove worthy of the record of the mighty men who have gone before and into whose heritage we have entered?

ELIZABETH CITY DISTRICT CONFERENCE

It has been said by someone that the elder on the old "Betsy" is a "freshman." That may be true in point of service, but in "pep" he is a sophomore and is possessed with the wisdom of a senior. Brother Culbreth called his conference to order promptly at the appointed hour on Tuesday, July 17th, and conducted the devotional service.

After the organization was complete he called for the Advocate representative to address the conference, and did not tell him to be brief. We did not feel that we had to hurry. The elder let it be known that the "traveling brethren" were a part of the conference and that what they had to say was of vital importance. Brother Courtney represented the Centenary cause. Brother Culbreth had his preachers to make the disciplinary reports and all of them indicated that progress is being made in the Albemarle country so far as Methodism is concerned. There was a large attendance present at the opening session and the major part of them remained throughout the session.

Brother R. R. Taylor was the efficient secretary. Rev. W. M. Curtis spoke to the conference in the interest of Greensboro College, and President Mohn for Louisburg.

The work of the conference was done through committees.

The good people at Mackey's and surrounding community gave excellent entertainment to their guests. Bros. Wilson, Curtis, Courtney, Turner and the writer were well treated in the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Terry.

The secretary has a report of the conference in another column.

"THE CRADLE OF VICTORY"

Thus did Marshal Foch aptly describe Belleau Wood on July 22 when reviewing the campaign from the end of May to the middle of July, 1918. The great commander of the allied armies declared that Belleau Wood, where the American forces were first put into the fighting, marks the turning point of the war.

This historic field has been dedicated to the memory of the American soldier and from henceforth "Old Glory" will float perpetually over the shrine to which will turn the feet of American patriots who chance to reach the shores of Europe.

FIRST CHURCH, SALISBURY

Brother John F. Kirk, pastor of First church, Salisbury, having been granted a vacation by his congregation, and is enjoying it at Lake Junaluska, invited the business manager to "fill in" for him last Sunday. We had heard of the progress of Salisbury and that of the First church, but were not prepared to see such vast improvements that have been made during the past 20 years when we were pastor at Spencer. The new church plant at Salisbury is a thing of beauty and is amply sufficient to take care of our work for years to come.

A large congregation assembled Sunday morning for worship and gave the preacher the best of attention.

PEOPLE AND THINGS

Western North Carolina Conference, Winston-Salem, October 17.

North Carolina Conference, Elizabeth City, November 14.

Mrs. J. F. Stover of Rutherford College is slowly recovering from serious illness of more than a week's duration.

Evangelist Sam Maxwell, who is now in a meeting at Haw River, has an open date for August 19 to give some pastor. His address will be Moyock, N. C.

The Maxwell evangelistic party closed a meeting with Rev. G. M. Daniel at Graham last Sunday night. They are now at Haw River on the same charge.

Lady Astor's bill restraining the sale of intoxicating liquors to persons under 18 years of age has passed its third reading in the British House of Commons by a vote of 257 to 10.

Any auxiliary in the Western North Carolina conference failing to get their Council Minutes or Bulletin, please advise Mrs. S. H. Isler, 201 N. Edgeworth Street, Greensboro, N. C., and they will be sent immediately.

The meeting at Gethsemane on the Summerfield circuit closed last Saturday night with 43 conversions and 23 accessions to the church. Others will join. Rev. T. V. Crouse assisted Rev. W. L. Dawson, the pastor. Brother Dawson is this week in a meeting at Morehead chapel and will be at the Battle Ground church next week, beginning with two services Sunday.

Rev. Philip Greening, who has been seriously ill at his home at Stedman, N. C., for several weeks from a stroke of paralysis, is now greatly improved and his many friends throughout the state hope that he is on the road to complete recovery. Rev. Philip Greening is the oldest minister in the North Carolina conference, being eighty-two years of age, and he is one of the two oldest in point of service. Since he joined the conference in 1871 he has attended every conference but two. He was superannuated in 1913.

The World Almanac and Book of Facts for 1923 gives the following figures of the world religions: Roman Catholic, 273,500,000; Orthodox Catholic, 121,801,000; Protestant, 170,900,000; making a total professing Christianity of 566,201,000. Jews, 14,585,000; Mohammedans, 219,030,000; Buddhists, 135,165,000; Hindus, 210,400,000; Confucianists Taoists, etc., 301,155,000; Shintoists, 20,512,000; Animists, 136,325,000; Miscellaneous, 16,000,000. That makes a total non-Christian population of 1,052,568,000, and the grand total of all the Christian and non-Christian religions of the world is 1,618,769,000. Less than one-third of the world's population is Christian. Yet the greatest nations of the earth are nominally Christian.

Rev. John Lambuth Ferguson, of the Mississippi conference, has recently accepted a call from the General Sunday School Board to enter the field of missionary education as an associate with Dr. Ed. F. Cook. Mr. Ferguson is well prepared for the work in prospect. He received his college and university training at Vanderbilt and Emory, taking his A. B. and B. D. from the last named institution. He majored in religious education and has done graduate work in this field in the University of Chicago and in the University of Edinburgh. In Christian work he has had experience as a pastor, as a chaplain in the United States army in France, was head master of Millsaps Academy and latterly associate professor in the Department of Religious Education, Millsaps College, from which position he comes to his new field. He married the daughter of Dr. A. F. Watkins, president of Millsaps, and brings into his new and wider field of Christian service a helpmate of broad and genuine interests and missionary zeal. Mr. Ferguson assumed the duties of his office on July 24. He will take over a large share of responsibility in the missionary education program in the Sunday school. Mr. Ferguson's coming to the work of the General Sunday School Board will enable Dr. Cook to turn his attention to the surveys incident to the inauguration of the extension program in the home and foreign fields.

Rev. W. G. Farrar closed a week's meeting July 22 at Ebenezer on the Princeton charge. Ten were added to the church on profession of faith and one by letter. Brother Farrar did his own preaching. gave their unique, entertaining and inspirational dialogue in our church last night. They 'showed up' well the clacker official and the slacker citizen in the matter of the enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment. I believe the work of these young men will do much good."

Among the results of the Price meetings in Canton there were approximately 230 converts and many more reconsecrations among the Christians, for much of the preaching was directed against the backsliders of the church. Last Sunday the Southern Methodist church received 38 new members and the other churches of the town admitted a proportionate number of converts. At the conclusion of the three weeks' campaign a large collection was raised by the Canton people as a token of their appreciation of the services rendered to Canton by Rev. Thurston B. Price and Mr. J. P. Moorman.

The laymen of the Vinita district, East Oklahoma conference, have made up a purse to pay the expenses of their presiding elder, Rev. W. Y. Switzer, to the Conference on Lay Activities at Lake Junaluska, August 10 to 15. We most heartily commend this plan to others. Quite a number of churches are sending their pastors and lay leaders and paying the expense. The prospects for the attendance are excellent. John R. Pepper, writing to the district and associate lay leaders of the Memphis conference, says: "My candid judgment is that it (the Laymen's Conference at Lake Junaluska) will be the most important meeting the laymen of our church have ever held and it is worth any sacrifice that can be made for our lay leaders to be present."

Rev. W. A. Kale and Mr. R. L. Davis, who give the dramatic dialogue, "Anarchy or Patriotism, Which Shall Reign," will be in the western part of the state the first weeks in August. These young men have been in the east for some time. Hon. A. D. Ward of New Bern says: "I have just had the pleasure of hearing Mr. R. L. Davis, Jr., as Sheriff, and Rev. W. A. Kale, as the Deacon, in their dialogue, or debate, on the Enforcement of the Prohibition Laws. It is highly entertaining and instructive, and illustrates some of the practical troubles in the enforcement. I think every officer charged with the duty of enforcement, and every good citizen, should avail themselves of the opportunity to hear these two talented young men." Rev. W. V. McRae writes as follows: "Messrs. Davis and Kale

Rev. E. L. Kirk, who last year transferred from the Western North Carolina conference to the Southwest Missouri conference, writes the editor a letter, not for publication, but we take the liberty of allowing his friends in North Carolina to read a line from this consecrated and capable young minister who went from us, to return some day we hope. Here is what he says: "You will find enclosed a check to the amount of one dollar for my renewal to the Advocate. This I had been aiming to do for some time, but have failed in doing so. I am enjoying the Advocate these days and always look forward to its arrival each week. It brings good news from home and acquaintances and in regard to the kingdom in those parts. I was glad to note the success of the Advocate campaign recently and it has been a source of gratitude to know through its pages that it has the largest circulation among our church papers. Does that not speak well for our North Carolina Methodism? O well, that is just one good indication among many. We are well and always busy in our new field, which has connected with it heavy responsibility and some glorious opportunities."

CONFERENCE BROTHERHOOD, IMPORTANT NOTICE

On June 20 I mailed to honorary members of the Brotherhood 1278 notice cards calling for assessment No. 42 in our Brotherhood. Local treasurers sent out about 250 cards at the same date. Up to this date, July 21, I have received $641 from the honorary membership. From past experience I think I will receive about $150 to $200 more, making a total of about $800 in all. Any amount less than $1000 from the honorary membership of the Brotherhood will very soon decrease the amount to be paid to the beneficiary to a figure below $1750. It is just possible some of the honorary members have become careless about the payment of so small a sum as one dollar. But your one dollar is quite important. Main Street church, Gastonia, deserves to be specially mentioned, for it has held the banner over all the other churches since the Brotherhood became so large. The last two calls before No. 42 it paid $153 on each. It has had a good local treasurer all these years in the person of Brother J. K. Dixon. There are a number of other churches that can do just as well. Some of them are growing in that direction. Let no one think from this general statement concerning the Brotherhood that I am alarmed about it. I believe it has so fixed a place in the minds and hearts of our people that they will take care of it. It is more a matter of method than of interest. While we are working out the method let every honorary member send in his or her dues.

The action of the Federation of Wesley classes at Lake Junaluska last week was very significant. A committee that had studied the question for a year, looking for some common cause upon which the classes could become centered, selected the Brotherhood. That does not mean that the classes are to make the Brotherhood the only object of their care. They will continue to do their own work in their own way. But it does mean that every class will join with every other class in promoting this one common cause. It seems to me that it would be a very fine thing for every class, as such, to become a member of the Brotherhood. There are two classes already members. The Stamey Bible class in West Market Street, Greensboro, has for some years been sending $5.00 an each call. Last year a class in Hawthorne Lane church, Charlotte, began doing the same thing. If all the classes in the conference would do something like this it would be a great thing for the classes. I would like to hear from the classes.

I hope this frank statement of the facts about the Brotherhood will bring the honorary fund for No. 42 up to at least $1000.

C. M. Pickens, Sec.-Treas.,

GREENSBORO DISTRICT EDUCATIONAL CONFERENCE

On July 10th there was held for the Greensboro district, at Muir's Chapel, an Educational Conference which was well attended by the pastors and laymen of the district. The meeting was presided over by Rev. W. F. Womble, presiding elder of the district. W. O. Goode, secretary-treasurer of the Board of Education, made his report touching the present status of each charge and church in the district in regard to its pledge to the Christian Education Movement. He then made a plea for the immediate collection of all past due pledges, pointing out that this could be done through the proper organization of the lay forces of our church. Mr. Chas. H. Ireland, conference lay leader, addressed the conference on the importance of carrying out the purposes and plans of the Christian Education Movement, stirring up the pure minds of those present as only this great layman can do. Prof. R. L. Flowers of Trinity College also addressed the meeting, making a great speech in behalf of Christian education, weaving into his address some personal interest stories of struggling students, which caused one of those present who heard him to underwrite the full expenses of a student at Trinity College for next year.

Addresses were made by Dr. John Wesley Long and Mr. Fred N. Tate which were greatly enjoyed. Mr. Tate is district lay leader and it was his announced purpose to so organize the Greensboro district at once as that every church would immediately meet its obligation in full to the Christian Education Movement. The meeting as a whole was full of optimism and good cheer. Rev. W. O. Goode, Chas. H. Ireland and Prof. R. L. Flowers are making a conference-wide itinerary, conducting educational meetings in each presiding elder's district in the Western N. C. conference.

SHOP TALK

We are sending out subscription accounts at the rate of about two hundred per day. These are amounts that are honestly due the Advocate. None of them are large, but if every one would pay up there would be no trouble for us to keep our expenses paid. We need the money. Send us yours. If you have determined to repudiate this debt just write us to stop your paper. Don't "bawl" us out. Even though we are in a "print shop" we have feelings. Let us have your remittance.

RELATIONSHIP OF THE CHURCH TO LAW AND GOVERNMENT

Marvin E. Underwood.

(An address delivered July Fourth, at the Social Service Conference, at Lake Junaluska, by Assistant Attorney General of the U. S. in President Wilson's Cabinet, and General Counsel for the U. S. Railroad Administration.)

"In the consideration of the relation of the church to law and government, on this occasion, for encouragement let us glimpse analogous conditions of 147 years ago, when those we honor fired the imaginations and kindled the hopes of oppressed humanity with that Christian declaration that 'We hold these truths to be self evident, that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.' In those days, and for nearly a century longer we find legalized slavery, an institution which nearly destroyed the Union and has left us as a legacy one of our greatest problems.

"Akin to this was imprisonment for debt, which lasted far into the last half of the 19th century. Of it, McMaster says in history, 'No crime known to the law brought so many to the jails and prisons as the crime of debt.'

"When we consider the low wage of that time we do not wonder that the jails were kept filled with debtors, yet we find leading citizens like Pelatiah Webster and Jay complaining in 1785 as we are complaining today of wages of mechanics and laborers, which some of us are claiming are very extravagant. The current price of unskilled labor in 1774, which Webster longed for, was less than $3.00 per week, of long hours, not a living wage even in those times of low standards when the rough and illiterate laborer, dressed in leather breeches and lived in low, dingy rooms with sand sprinkled floors; had practically no furniture and cooked his coarse and monotonous food over the open fire.

"While the homes of the poor were mean and squalid, the condition of the jails into which debtors were thrown is hardly conceivable. McMaster thus describes them (Vol. I.):

Prison Conditions.

"For more than 50 years after the peace there was in Connecticut an underground prison which surpassed in horrors the Black Hole of Calcutta. * * * There, in little pens of wood, from 30 to 100 culprits were immured, their feet made fast to iron bars and their necks chained to beams in the roof. * * * Into such pits and dungeons all classes of offenders, of both sexes were indiscriminately thrust. * * * Men confined as witnesses were compelled to mingle with the forger, the fornicator streaming with blood from the whipping post, while here and there among the throng were culprits whose ears had been cropped or whose arms, fresh from the branding iron, emitted the stench of scorched flesh.'

"But we should not judge them, lest we be judged. One hundred years from now, probably less than 20 years from now, conditions that are existing among us today which we may be ignorant of, or indifferent to, will be looked upon by those who follow us with the same amazement and horror that we contemplate the conditions I have just described.

"A recent survey of the jails of one of our states, which may be taken, I think as above the average, shows conditions which we tolerate today:

"More than 50,000, or 16 to each 1000 of this state's population, were confined in its county jails in one year. In more than one-half of the jails there were only two apartments, so that it was necessary to mix races or sexes and to confine witnesses and first offenders with hardened criminals. Sixty-two per cent had inadequate bunks; 16 per cent no mattresses at all; three-fourths of them inadequate heating facilities. In 50 per cent of these jails filthy blankets were passed on from old to new prisoners without washing, and in 77 per cent no towels were furnished and bathing was not enforced. In 93 per cent no change of clothing was provided and filth and vermin were common on account of such insanitary surroundings.

"To maintain these institutions, even in this fashion, cost the state an amount equal to three and one-half per cent of all its general property taxes for the year, in addition to the cost of arrest and trial. Into such unwholesome environment human beings are thrust together with others charged with no crime at all, but held only as witnesses, to spend months and sometimes years in almost absolute idleness and with practically no exercise, recreation or religious training. Who can tell what resentment, bitterness and hatred are engendered in these idle brains, what revenge upon society is planned, or how many children as first offenders receive advanced courses in these schools of crime from hardened criminals with whom they are forced to mingle.

Criminal Law at Fault.

"In following them from the jails to the court, in the overcrowded court of a county in which felons are tried, a recent investigation showed that 57 per cent of those arrested during the two year period under consideration, remained untried at the end of the period. During this time more than twice as many men were arrested as were being tried. The poor man who cannot give bond must, like the debtor of old, lie in a foul prison for lack of money, while the man of means and the professional criminal of an organized gang may buy his liberty by giving bond. It takes considerable time for bond cases to reach trial in regular course, and then by continuances and delays, which our antiquated laws make possible, the trial may be delayed until public interest wanes and witnesses so scattered or lost that conviction becomes impossible.

"The Cleveland crime survey showed that of the total amount of bail bonds forfeited in a three-year period, only 6 per cent was collected and that the cost of collection equalled the amount collected. But even when cases are tried, the results are disappointing. Looked at even from the old viewpoint of retribution, we find that comparatively few of the guilty are punished.

"From such instances it will be seen that one of two things is happening: we are doing innocent people a horrible injustice or the administration of our criminal law is inefficient. Chief Justice Taft has said that the administration of our criminal law is a disgrace to civilization.

"Our method today is to consider the crime, not the criminal, for he is passed on to sentence with little thought of his history or physical or mental condition; with no study of his environment or the causes that led to his downfall; with an honest, but uninformed guess as to what is a proper punishment and no consideration of his probable condition, when he shall be again turned loose into society. He is too frequently brutally treated during his imprisonment and at its expiration, without regard to his moral or mental condition foolishly dumped upon society penniless and with the brand of the criminal upon him, but no plan or thought of how he may earn an honest living.

"We must give up this retribution theory of justice, it has gone down before modern psychology and psychopathology. We must stift our study from the crime to the criminal. The prosecutor must strive to secure justice rather than to win his case and renown. We must introduce preventive law as we have already preventive medicine.

"How can we hope to successfully combat crime and other social ills when we permit the criminal, the weak-minded and the carrier of loathsome diseases to roam freely through society with opportunity not only to commit crime, but to propagate his kind?

"This is an enormously serious problem, how we shall treat our criminals and dependent classes and how we shall prevent their multiplying on the earth. It involves the study of crime, poverty, disease, heredity and environment, and we must delve into law, economics, medicine, psychology, sociology, eugenics, and above all, religion.

Task for Church.

Here the church has a task as appropriate as fascinating; as worthy as difficult; as Christian as needed. Let us bend to the task; let us see to it, as a Christian duty, that our criminal laws are good and that they are administered in a dignified, scientific and humane manner by competent officers. Let our punishments be not made to fit the crime but to fit the criminal for a reformed and free life.

"Since more attention has been given to property than to human rights, naturally more progress has been made in civil than in criminal law and administration, though there is still much to be desired. Our laws are slovenly drawn and the administrative machinery is slow, expensive and still too technical. Dean Pound, of Harvard, says: 'Nothing is done with so little scientific or orderly method as the legislative making of laws.'

"This makes for uncertainty and increases the technicalities of the law; it adds greatly to the expense of the government and to the uncertainties of legal sanctions; it permits the unscrupulous, with the aid of ingenious lawyers, to exploit the rich and evade the law, which in turn creates belief that the courts are corrupt and mere instrumentalities of the strong and the rich to oppress the weak and the poor. Nothing destroys confidence in government and courts more surely or quickly than inequality before the law. These laws should be carefully drafted by experts and made to operate more speedily, with greater uniformity and less expensively.

"Numbers are deprived of well recognized rights through ignorance of them or inability to pay competent counsel to defend them. For such, legal aid bureaus should be established and their rights competently protected. This is a particularly appropriate field for church activity. The church should also vitally and helpfully be interested to perfect laws to promote equality of justice, to protect childhood and motherhood, and the infirm and aged; to promote health and education; to assure a fairer division of the profits of industry and a more equitable distribution of wealth and the burdens of government; and indeed all laws tending to make possible better and happier living. We do not realize how much the achievement of these things depends upon good laws and efficient government or how badly they are needed.

Some Examples.

A few examples will illustrate such needs:

"Today under claim of legal right, we find the unscrupulous installment furniture dealer, retaking goods he had sold at probably double their value, from some unfortunate purchaser who had aspirations toward a high standard of living, but whose misfortune made the last payment impossible. Thus losing the furniture and all he had paid, he loses hope and from which he will never emerge. The price society receives for the destruction of this pitiful aspiration of a soul groping toward a higher life is perhaps some petty antique to place in the luxurious home of the dealer to add to his social prestige and as an evidence of his culture.

Another leading citizen and, perhaps, wealthy pillar of the church may have amassed his unholy fortune by preying upon the credulity of the weakest of humanity, the diseased or poverty-stricken man, seeking in his despair relief from pain or ill health in doses of worthless patent medicines.

"Again, hovering over a high stratum of society, we find the vulture salesman of bogus stocks, searching for victims among the worthy and thrifty, who have through years of honest toil, accumulated something for their old age. Finding some who believe his lies, he exchanges his worthless paper for their gold and consigns them to a dependent old age. Babson says that 'Fully 10 per cent of most pay rolls go for the purchase of 'wild-cat' securities.' He further reports that 'during one of the recent prosperous years nearly $400,000,000 were taken out of our state by blue-sky operators.'

"It has become a matter of common knowledge, knowledge which rightly angers the laboring classes, that a great part of the co-operate stocks that flood the country, especially of public utilities, was, at least in the beginning, chiefly water and that some of the greatest fortunes were created by this device.

"It is true that much has been 'squeezed out' and that real value is now found, but this has been accomplished at the expense of the laborers' wage and the consumers' pocketbook. No just man wishes to be sure it is fair and not a predatory return. It is a common plea that wages cannot be raised or hours shortened or prices lowered because capital must have the return. The N. C. Steel Company today offers as a reason for holding 120,000 of its men to a degenerating toil of twelve hours a day, that it will increase the price of its product to the consumer. It holds this altruistic thought for the consumer, despite a finding of a committee of its own stockholders headed by Stuyvesant Fish that a 12-hour day of labor followed continuously by any group of men for any considerable number of years, means a decreasing of the efficiency and a lessening of the vigor and virility of such men.

"A striking instance of excessive return on capital is shown in a statement made by James Wanamaker, when he was Postmaster-General of the United States that, an investment of $1,000 in 1858 in Western Union stock would have received up to 1890, stock dividends of more than $50,000, and cash dividends of more than $100,000.

"A chart just published by the United States Department of Labor shows the following percentages of increase of present wholesale prices over those of 1913: Furniture 87 per cent; fuel 90 per cent; clothing 101 per cent; building materials 102 per cent. Of course the retail prices to the consumer must be still higher.

"In considering wage increases in these lines, take for example the shoe industry. In 1914 all the labor from the hide to the finished shoe absorbed less than one-sixth of the price paid by the consumer, while in 1917 the actual wages had been increased, the share of labor had decreased to one-fourth of the price.

"Equally rapid increases in building materials are recorded, while full advantage of conditions was taken by profiteering landlords as they harvested extortionate rents and did more than any other class to pyramid living costs.

"Other examples could be added to show that protective regulation laws are necessary; that the doctrine of the laissez-faire economists, that enlightened self interest would safeguard society from an unregulated industrialism has proven false. * * *

"Is it not time for the church to take earnest thought of such questions and consider whether it should not take the lead in so amending our constitution that social injustice may be combatted by legal means?

For Minimum Wage.

"In my opinion, fair minimum wage laws are more needed and would do more toward stamping out poverty and disease; raising the standards of living and of education, and improving our economic and social situation than almost any other law that could be passed. The employer would not have to employ anyone, but if he did he would have to pay a wage that would support life in health. Isn't it shocking to think that today men are still claiming and exercising the right to use for their own profit all of the worker's time and to pay therefor less than conceded to be necessary to support that worker, and this because economic conditions make it possible and their freedom of contract must not be impaired?

"The enlightened self interest of this class will never effect a change, but labor may and probably will, by threats and strikes, if legislative means are not available. But this would be the long way and the wrong way; the exercise of force and not of reason. Let us be done with war, both political and industrial, and reason together. If such a law be right and needed, let the church join heartily in securing it.

"Among living wage budgets for a family of five, direction of employers by the Natural Industrial the lowest, $1,697.95 per year, was made under the Conference in 1921 and is as favorable to them as possible. If you will consider the budget and current prices I think you will agree that it is too low. But we must find numbers falling below even this modest standard.

What Is the Church Going to Do.

"Now what is the church going to do about it? Will it join heartily in the effort to make industry pay its own way? If industry does not pay these charges, society must in charities, jails, courts, hospitals and like institutions. It is largely from the underpaid, undernourished, anxious group that our human direlicts are gathered, and it will be economically cheaper and morally better to make industry pay a living wage than for society to take care of the wreckage of a contrary policy.

"What an adventure to enter such a field of opportunity and service! How rejuvenating to the church it would be and how well worth while! With so much to do in applying what Christ taught and we profess; and with such rich opportunities for furthering His kingdom on earth; why do we turn aside to immaterialities and spend valuable time in profitless controversies over dogmas and creeds or in fighting science for trying to discover who our ancestor was? Cannot the church leave this inquiry to science as she ultimately did the question of the earth's shape and movement of the heavenly bodies; and as she later left geology to determine the age of our world and method of its formation?

As a religious question, I am not so much concerned whether I have descended from the ape, as I am concerned to prevent an atavistic return to his qualities and characteristics. If not too grieved I believe Christ would laugh to hear such things called fundamentals. They are interesting as intellectual pastime of scientific inquiry, but it seems to me that for the church, they become mere immaterialities as compared with sincere efforts to practically apply to every day life two great commandments embodying ideas of the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man.

CREDLESSNESS AND UNREST

By Bishop Warren A. Candler.

Hillarie Belloc, in a recent lecture on what all the modern world, expressed the opinion that the distress of mankind today arises from uncertainty of belief. He declared that where there is unrest it is caused by "absence of positive doctrine."

A writer, whose syndicated articles appear in the dailies takes him to task for this utterance, and affirms that "nothing in the world would be so dangerous as a general acceptance unquestioningly of positive doctrine."

This writer, who writes too frequently, without accurate knowledge and careful thought, goes on to say:

"It is positive doctrine that has been the first cause of the downfall of states and the decay of institutions.

It is well enough to be positive if one is positive about the truth, but the security of living in what Zangwill called 'a cosmos without facts' is entirely fictitious.

The fallacy that underlies Mr. Belloc's position is that someone can discover and will remain the same for all time."

It would be difficult to put into three short sentences more that is unfounded in fact and unjustified by reason.

It is not true that positive doctrine has been the first cause of the downfall of states and the decay of institutions. History shows that the contrary is true; that states have risen upon firm doctrines and have fallen when faith perished; that strong beliefs have produced strong institutions, and that they have decayed through the rotting influence of unbeliefness.

Again, truth that is not fixed is not truth at all, and there is no motive for seeking truth if it does not remain the same for all time. Does this shallow writer mean to approve a helpless and hopeless agnosticism which is ever learning and never able to come to the knowledge of the truth? If so, does he imagine that such a vain and fruitless pursuit of truth could fail to produce intense restlessness. St. Paul identifies men of such mind with "Jannes and Jambres who withstood Moses," and with those who "resist the truth" (II Timothy iii: 7-8).

That is exactly the position and purpose of the advocates of the creed of credlessness. They resist settled truth because it disturbs their unsettled lies. Truth is to the intellect what righteousness is to the will, and when truth is corrupted or resisted in the mind unrighteousness in conduct follows. Creed and conduct are co-ordinates.

The position of this composer of syndicate pieces involves the denial of any and all revealed truth, and this, perhaps, is what he intends to teach. He does not affirm that the teachers of positive doctrine have misinterpreted the Christian Scriptures, but he objects to the existence and certainty of any and all truth. He proposes a system of thought which proceeds on the assumption that there is and can be no certain truth. If this assumption is accepted, all preaching and teaching should cease, because nothing is left that is worth teaching or preaching. According to this system nothing is absolutely known, anything may be true and everything may be false. Can states be raised on the foundation of a system so unstable? Can firm institutions spring from a mist?

The Christian religion has given us our Christian civilization with its political freedom, pure morality and world-encompassing benevolence. And that religion could have had neither its beginning nor its continuance apart from its doctrines.

No religion can arise, or survive, without a creed, and least of all the Christian religion. "The truth as it is in Jesus" is the centre and service of its being. Without its great doctrines of revealed truth it would be without definite form and without determining force. It enjoins love as its supreme law—love to both God and man. But love cannot exist without knowledge of the nature and character of the God to be loved. Every desire and affection of the heart, which enters into a life of piety, is called out by some corresponding truth and inspiring doctrine, and its strength is in exact proportion to the definiteness and certainty of the truth from which it springs. Shapeless and shifting sentiment has no power adequate to the production of Christian character. It is wholly incompetent to answer the questions of the heart, command the conscience, restrain human passion, or sustain the hopes without which life on earth is desolate. It cannot retain or impart life.

The men who decry doctrine and despise dogma are digging away the foundations of all the spiritual life and moral order in the world. This senseless and destructive employment has become a popular pastime with the class of writers to which this syndicate composer belongs; but, if their work were as successful as their efforts are energetic, they would create conditions which they could not endure. They are by their writings stimulating the lawless self-sufficiency in both thought and life that constitutes the chief peril of the present age. Already this evil spirit of self-assertion shows marked tendencies to set at naught all authority, both human and divine. Its temper is that of eager, restless impatience. In petulant conceit it is disdainful of control, intolerant of correction, and contemptuous of law. It is restless, of course, because it has nothing upon which to rest. Like the raven sent forth by Noah, it finds in the waste of waters around nothing upon which to light, and has not sense enough to return to the ark.

Belloc is right when he declares that the prevalence of unrest proceeds from want of "positive doctrine." The human soul cannot find rest in negations of all accepted truth and mutations in ever changeable speculations. With its weighty sense of immortality it cannot find repose without the certitude of abiding faith. It cannot bear to live in everlasting doubt. It must have something firm and fixed.

The experience of daily life strengthens this craving of the soul for some immutable basis for enduring peace. Change and decay in all around we see, and we yearn for communion with One who changes not. If no fixed truth on which to rest is found, the heart grows sick and giddy with incurable unquietness. An age of doubt has become most naturally an era of disquietude and it must find in Christian truth the way to Him who to a weary race says, "Come unto me and I will give you rest."

Most certainly mankind cannot find rest in any form of agnosticism; for agnosticism when stripped of its Greek name and laid bare in its nakedness is nothing more than the philosophy of confessed ignorance. Can a poultice of ignorance pacify the heart of humanity? Nay, verily. Darkness cannot dispense its gloom; it must be illumined by "the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ."

The progress, as well as the peace, of the human race is dependent upon the definite knowledge of truth, especially of Christian truth, which is the most powerful stimulation of mental and moral life. Christianity came to the stationary world of the first century and found all its forces exhausted. Into that stagnant world it breathed the purifying breath of a new and nobler life, and thus set it forward on the way of advancement. During the twenty centuries all the progress in the world has been confined to the limits of the Christian nations. Progress in science, progress in government, progress in the production of wealth, and all other forms of progress have sprung from the spread of Christian truth.

And now shall we hold the utterance of a careless writer who would have the doctrines of Christianity set aside as destructive tenets, and in their place set up the speculative guesses of men who believe that definite and unchanging truth is impossible to the human intellect? Shall we substitute the philosophy of incurable ignorance for the illuminating and invigorating doctrines of the Christian revelations? Let the answer be, No, a thousand times.

The emblem of Christian doctrine, definite and clear, is not the deadly upas-tree, blighting everything beneath its shadows, but the life-giving river, carrying plenty and beauty and blessing wherever it flows.

NORTH CAROLINA CHRISTIAN
ADVOCATE

Official Organ of the North Carolina and Western North Carolina Conferences Methodist Episcopal Church, South. Established 1855.

Entered at the Postoffice at Greensboro, N. C., as mail matter of the second class, acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided in section 1102, act of October 2, 1917, authorized September 9, 1918.

Obituaries and Resolutions of one hundred words published free. All words above this number charged for at rate of 1 cent per word.

A. W. PLYLER ..... Editor
T. A. SIKES ..... Business Manager

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Year .....$2.00
Six Months ..... 1.00
To all preachers of the Gospel, year 1.00

FIELD NEWS

HOME COMING DAY

Thursday, August 2nd, will be Home Coming Day, with basket picnic, at Tabernacle church, Maysville charge. All the scattered members and friends of old Tabernacle are cordially invited to return for that day. Hon. D. E. Henderson of Charlotte will deliver an address.

L. E. Sawyer, Pastor.

EVANGELISTIC MEETING

A very successful meeting was held at Woodington June 20 and closed July 1. All the churches in the community were greatly helped by the meeting. Two persons united with the church on Sunday night. Rev. Samuel Maxwell of Pink Hill, N. C., was the preacher. Rev. Howard P. Powell of Clinton, N. C., led the singing, and Mr. Rollin McKeehan of Chattanooga, Tenn., was the pianist.

A Friend.

NOTICE

I have just mailed to the pastors of the North Carolina conference two posters which ought to be of interest to the young people who are thinking of attending college next fall. One of these is for young women and the other for young men. It will be an excellent idea to hang these posters either in the Sunday school room or in one of the class rooms of the boys and girls. I will appreciate it very much if the pastors will have this done.

H. M. North, Sec.

CHURCH BELL

It is said of Hudson Taylor that he never asked anyone for money or help for the China Inland Mission. He did, however, write to the church and to his friends of the needs in his field, and then prayed.

We have no bell on our Fairview church. We need one. Our Baptist brethren have a good sized farm bell. We ought to have something a little different. I believe that somewhere within the bounds of the conference there is either the bell we need, or the money with which to get it, awaiting this simple notice of the need. While we believe this we are praying.

Allen H. Whisner, Pastor.

A GLORIOUS REVIVAL AT NORTH HENDERSON

On the first Sunday morning in July I began a revival at North Henderson. I preached at the morning and evening services and Rev. J. O. Long of North Gates circuit arrived Monday to assist me.

During the week preceding the revival I made a religious survey of the entire community and held cottage prayer meetings each night. The choir was well organized and rendered excellent service through the entire revival.

Brother Long soon warmed up the church by his sincere and earnest preaching of the gospel, and after having preached several sermons to the church people he turned his attention to those who had not accepted Jesus Christ as their personal Saviour. Men and women began to think seriously, and when the revival came to a close on Wednesday night, the 11th, 37 had been converted, 20 joined our church and one gave her name for admission into another church.

Brother Long is an excellent worker in a revival and he has won the love and admiration of the people of North Henderson. Several have said it was the best revival they have ever attended, and one of the old leaders of the church said the church was in the best condition now it had ever been.

As a result of the revival a Junior Epworth League and a Senior Epworth League have been organized and are now ready for business. With the church in such fine spiritual condition we mean to do great things for our Master. Watch us grow.

G. G. Whitehurst, P. C.

TO THE ELEMENTARY WORKERS OF ROCKINGHAM DISTRICT

The week of August 6-11 has been set aside by the Rockingham district conference as training work for the whole district when the leaders, present and prospective, will come together for six days of class work, study, inspiration, fellowship and recreation.

I feel that the elementary workers are especially fortunate in having as their instructors Misses Georgia Keene and Virginia Jenkins, elementary superintendents of the North Carolina and Western North Carolina conferences. Both are exceptionally well fitted for the positions which they hold and are doing a great work for our boys and girls, our Sunday schools and for the church of tomorrow.

We hope that every elementary Sunday school teacher and worker in the district will attend the school, take advantage of this wonderful opportunity and be better prepared to train the youth of our church.

In addition to the special elementary courses to be offered, we are going to have a district elementary institute on Thursday afternoon of that week. At this meeting there will be an interesting program pertaining to elementary work. We shall talk over our work together, discuss problems and help each other in the great work of training the religious life of the boys and girls of the Rockingham district.

Make your plans to be with us at Carolina College, Maxton, N. C., August 6-11.

Mrs. E. B. Ward,
Dis. Elementary Supt.

DR. THEODORE COPELAND IN BEDFORD, VIRGINIA

Bedford is enjoying the greatest revival in its history. Significant in that every Protestant church is actively co-operating, the meeting is attracting the interest of town and county, and prayers for its continued success are being offered far and wide. Hundreds upon hundreds flock to the big tent every night to participate in the singing and to hear the message brought by Dr. Copeland. A spirit of seriousness pervades the great congregations, but with it is a spirit of happiness which expresses itself in a smile when an amusing incident is told or in tears when the sympathy is aroused. There is no hectic excitement, but there is a calm assurance that the spirit of God is working in a mysterious way His wonders to perform.

Magnetic in personality because of a strong face, lighted up by a genial smile and flashing eyes, a kindly spirit which makes all feel he is their friend, ever in evidence, a democratic nature and an absolute sincerity of purpose, Dr. Copeland, the evangelist, has made his way into the hearts of the people to a marked degree. Echoes and re-echoes are heard on the street as to the esteem in which he is held. Expressions from men who have never been interested in the church to any extent that he has introduced them to the church of Christ as it has never been done before attest to the great influence he is exerting for the cause of righteousness. It is not to be wondered at, for who could fail to cherish a man who shows by his every word and act that he is vitally interested in your welfare and takes time to encourage you to better things. Bedford blesses the day that brought Dr. Copeland to her, for he is proving an instrument in God's hand to regenerate hearts, to make happier homes, and to make the town better. He will live in the hearts of the people and his home town, Dallas, Texas, will have greater interest because it is his home.

John C. Simpson.

BOONE'S NEW CHURCH COM-PLETED

After some three years of hard work we completed our new church building sufficiently that on last Sunday, the 22nd, we held our last service in the court house where we had been worshiping for over three years, and on next Sunday, the 27th, we propose having our first service in the new building. We propose having three services that day—preaching by the pastor at 11 a. m., by Rev. J. R. Walker, the pastor who started the work in the afternoon, with dinner on the ground. At night we shall have our Children's Day exercises. Everybody will be welcomed, especially all former pastors and members.

We certainly have a beautiful building—one that will represent Methodism to the large student body attending the Appalachian Training School and the good folks up here in these mountains.

We take this opportunity to express publicly our appreciation of the help of all of our good folks up here in these mountains.

We take this opportunity to express publicly our appreciation of the help of all of our good friends who have made this building a possibility. If you are up in this neighborhood don't fail to come around and see us. If you are at Blowing Rock on Sunday come to the Methodist church there. We are having services each Sunday during the summer. Bishop Collins Denny will preach the second and third Sundays of August.

G. C. Brinkman.

GOD STILL HEARS AND ANSWERS PRAYER

By W. E. Hocutt.

I rejoice that obedience to God's commands will still bring God's blessings in answer to prayer. It looked as though the dry weather would burn up the crops in this section. We had not had a rain to wet the earth since May. The crops looked as though they would parch in the dry sand. I called a meeting at my church to "fast and pray for rain. A few of us met for prayer, while some others smiled at our faith. On Thursday night several earnest prayers were offered, and I remember praying that God would vindicate His promise, and send the rain within twenty-four hours. The next morning when I awoke not a cloud could be seen, but I felt in my soul that God would send the rain as we had fasted and prayed for. Just thirty-five minutes before the time was out I looked toward the west and saw the dark cloud coming. I could hear the Lord's corn wagons coming over the bridges (thunder) and soon the rain was pouring just all we needed. He came on schedule time. How it rejoices my heart that God still hears and answers prayer.

I see in the daily papers that Dr. S. G. Bland is at Junaluska under the auspices of the Sunday School Board of the M. E. Church, South, teaching our young people that the Bible is not an inspired book, and that Moses did not write the Pentateuch or the Ten Commandments. Christ said Moses wrote them. Whom am I to believe, Christ or Bland?

Brother Plyler, will you please tell us where the money came from that put up that building in which Bland is speaking? Will you also tell us who is furnishing the money to pay him for those lectures? Please add a foot note to this article and tell us. We all want to know. Shall the money I pay into my church be used in this way to destroy the faith of my children in the divinity of Jesus Christ and the inspiration of the dear old Book? W. E. Hocutt.

GOOD TIMES ON THE MATTAMUS-KEET CHARGE

Mr. Editor, please give me a little space that the brethren may know what we are doing down in Hyde.

We have just closed a great meeting at Englehead, which resulted in nine on profession of faith and two children baptized and the church much built up. Rev. A. W. Price did the preaching and he did it well. Brother Price will be with me at Watsons on Monday night after the first Sunday in August. Pray for us that we may have a great meeting and that many souls may be saved. I am now in a meeting at Mt. Pleasant.

Amid all the blessings that have come to us in a spiritual way, we have been the recipients of a great pounding from Amity and Watsons churches. I tell you it was a pounding worth while. I think it was as large as we ever received, and we were very much surprised, as our people have been sending hams and lard, sugar and other good things and we did not expect a pounding. But you know that all we preachers get fooled sometimes. I tell you that the Methodist people on the old Mattamuskeet charge know how to do things. I now would not be surprised if they did not pound the elder. So now you see, Mr. Editor, that the invitation is open to you to come and see us if you want to get in the land of the living.

J. C. Lewis, P. C.

THREE BIG DAYS FOR GATES AND NORTH GATES CHARGES

On August 10, 11 and 12 there will be held at Gatesville Methodist church the Gates County Woman's Missionary Institute and a joint session of the third quarterly conference for Gates and North Gates charges.

The first day (Friday, August 10th,) will be devoted to the work of the Woman's Missionary Institute.

On Saturday the quarterly conference for the two circuits will convene. The morning session will be devoted to the discussion of problems of vital interest to the two circuits. In the afternoon the regular business of the quarterly conference will be attended to.

On Sunday there will be preaching service at the following churches:

- Zion, 11 a. m. Sermon by Rev. C. B. Culbreth, P. E.
- Gates, 3:30 p. m. Sermon by Rev. C. B. Culbreth, P. E.
- Kittrells, 8 p. m. Sermon by Rev. C. B. Culbreth, P. E.
- Hebron, 11 a. m. Sermon by Rev. J. O. Long, P. C.
- Pargers, 3:30 p. m. Sermon by Rev. J. O. Long, P. C.
- Savages, 8 p. m. Sermon by Rev. J. O. Long, P. C.
- Harrells, 11 a. m. Sermon by Rev. E. R. Clegg, P. C.
- Philadelphia, 3:30 p. m. Sermon by Rev. E. R. Clegg, P. C.
- Fletchers, 8 p. m. Sermon by Rev. E. R. Clegg, P. C.

This arrangement will provide for service at all of the churches on the two circuits.

Let all of our people make their plans to avail themselves of the opportunities which these services offer. We should make these three days "red letter days" in the promotion of the cause of Christ on these two circuits.

Brother Culbreth, our presiding elder, is working unusually hard to help us to go forward in the great work of the church, and I feel that all of us should and will join with him in heart and hand to promote the cause of our Lord and Master. J. O. Long.

COOL SPRINGS CHARGE

Last Saturday and Sunday were "big days" on this work.

The fourth quarterly meeting was held at Providence church. All the churches were well represented and every report good. Many indications of progress were manifested.

Brother Litaker, our presiding elder, was there both days in the power of the spirit. His sermon Sunday morning was just a little above the average. If all the presiding elders could and would preach like that our quarterly meetings would mean more to the charges.

We are in a great revival meeting this week at Cool Springs. Pray for us.
J. E. McSwain, P. C.

MICAVILLE CHARGE

We have held three very successful revivals on the Micaville charge this year. The first one was held at Celso, resulting in about thirty conversions and reclamations. Rev. C. C. Totherow of Dobson did the preaching. He did some great preaching that got hold of the people, bringing conviction to the unsaved and believers received a larger vision of their Christian duties. We had a wonderful meeting. The people all love Brother Totherow.

The other two meetings were held at Deyton Bend and Martin Chapel. Rev. D. A. Oakley of Hiddenite did the preaching and Prof. George R. Hawkes led the singing. Brother Oakley's great gospel messages on full salvation brought conviction and many souls prayed through to victory. Brother Oakley had held meetings on this charge before and the people flocked to hear him, many coming from other churches.

Professor Hawkes did some great singing that charmed the people. They fell greatly in love with him. His presence and singing added much to the meetings. The two meetings resulted in about forty-five conversions and reclamations. We had several additions to the church as a result of three meetings.

This is our second year on the Micaville charge. The people have been real kind to us. The good ladies of Martin Chapel gave us a nice pounding, and the people of the other churches are continually showing us kindness by giving us many nice things. We have some as good people on the Micaville charge as we have ever met. Pray for us that we may be true to God in ministering to these good folks.

H. E. Stinson, P. C.

ELIZABETH CITY DISTRICT CONFERENCE

The secretary has been requested to send to the Advocate a report of the conference held at Mackey's July 17-18-19.

Rarely does it fall to the lot of the conference to meet at a spot near the ideal as on this occasion. Mackey's is one of the terminals of what is said to be the longest inland bridge in the world. Where the Norfolk Southern bridge across the Albemarle Sound reaches about seven miles from shore to shore, Edenton, an early capital of our state, and rich in historical and social tradition, stands near one end of the bridge and Mackey's at the other. Just to the northwest of Mackey's the meeting of the waters take place where the Roanoke and the Chowan merge into and become the Albemarle Sound. During the conference the usual heat of summer was exiled by the breezes coming across the waters direct from the sea. The weather was delightful and the hospitality of the Mackey's people all that could be desired.

It was the first of our district conferences to be presided over by Rev. C. B. Culbreth. He had a definite and constructive program and kept the machinery running without a hitch. No words except those of approval and commendation for our new presiding elder were heard anywhere.

The roll call showed a large attendance, many of the charges having full delegations, and only two of the pastors being absent. Among the visitors were Rev. T. A. Sikes, representing the North Carolina Christian Advocate; R. M. Courtney, representing Centenary interests; W. M. Curtis, of Greensboro College, and A. W. Mohn, president of Louisburg College.

The conference was privileged to hear sermons of a high order. Tuesday evening Rev. J. Vincent Knight preached from the text, Matthew, 4th chapter, 1st verse. Wednesday morning Dr. N. H. D. Wilson's subject was "Friendship, Human and Divine," and at evening the same day Rev. W. T. Phipps preached on "A Quartette of Fools." Following the last sermon the Holy Communion was administered.

The conference passed resolutions of sorrow at the loss by death of C. E. Kramer of First church, Elizabeth City, a member of the conference and a strong figure in the church. The absence because of sickness of W. S. Davenport, a member, and with Rev. E. L. Hill, a host of the conference, was noted also by resolution by regret and prayer.

J. B. Leigh was re-elected lay leader and W. S. Davenport and Mrs. T. W. Costen, associate leaders.

The following were elected delegates to the annual conference: L. Y. Gray, E. M. Midgett, C. E. Payne, W. B. Harrison, G. W. Dixon, R. R. Taylor, W. A. Leggett and R. L. Knowles; alternates, J. H. Miller, F. W. Brothers, Mrs. D. O. Brinkley and J. W. Cates.

Stumpy Point was selected as the next place of meeting.

Many details necessarily have to be omitted. All agree that the session was enjoyable and helpful to those who attended and there should be beneficial results throughout the district. Many matters of importance were taken up and discussed, but if there was one predominant theme it was "Evangelism." In finance the Centenary pledge and conference collections were stressed.

An unusual feature from a secretarial standpoint was that every pastor presented the report of his work in writing. Also with one exception every committee report was a written one.

The people of Mackey's did every thing possible for the enjoyment and convenience of their guests and the conference expressed its appreciation in adopting by rising vote resolutions of thanks to them.

Robt. R. Taylor, Secretary.

OLIVER TYPEWRITER BARGAIN

New Oliver (No. 9) typewriter for $40 cash. 321 Dale Ave. S. E., Roanoke, Va.

OLD HYMNAL WANTED

If any of our churches have piled away some of the 1900 edition of our old "Hymn and Tune Book" we want to use them at Camp Free this summer. Any church would do this camp a favor by donating or giving us a bargain sale of same. If any reader of this has some to dispose of please write me at once. Jim Green, Connelly Springs, N. C.

JONES MEMORIAL, MOORESVILLE

Since we have taken no space in the Advocate this year we desire to say a few words regarding the revival we have just closed on this charge. We began our revival the first of July with Rev. W. G. Pratt, the boy evangelist, doing the preaching. God has been gracious to us and has blessed us abundantly by the outpouring of His Spirit. The two weeks of earnest preaching by Brother Pratt and the personal work of the Christians of the church resulted in a total number of sixty-five conversions and reclamations, about sixty per cent being reclamations. To date eighteen have been added to the membership on profession of faith and two by letter. Several others who were reclaimed in the meeting will bring their membership here from distant churches. Our hearts are glad because of the good we have been able to accomplish through Christ, and we hereby request the sincere prayers of the praying people in the W. N. C. conference that God will strengthen both pastor and people for the continuance of the revival spirit and prosper the work through our efforts.

Ivon L. Roberts, P. C.

REVIVAL AT MOUNT OLIVET

A revival meeting is in progress at Mt. Olivet Methodist church. The pastor is being assisted in this meeting by Rev. G. A. Stamper of Winston-Salem. Mr. Stamper is a preacher of unusual ability and is holding the rapt attention of the immense congregations that attend these services from day to day. Much interest is being manifested and the indications are that this will result in one of the best meetings ever held at this church. The day services are held at 11 and the night services at 8 o'clock. On next Sunday there will be three services—at 11, 2 and 8. Dinner will be served in the church grove. Everybody is most cordially invited to come to these services.—Dispatch.

DURHAM CIRCUIT AT WORK

Four fine Sunday school programs have been presented by the Sunday school of Durham circuit, with good collections, and one is yet to be. At Pleasant Green they were rained "in" second Sunday, so they offer again fourth Sunday afternoon.

Durham circuit Sunday school conference, a regular yearly institution, meets Saturday, July 21, at Bethany, with a good program and a good day in prospect. J. D. Fletcher, lay leader, is president.

A thoroughly quickening revival was held at Fletcher's Chapel church on Durham circuit last week. The church was unified and responsive. The young men who conducted some of the morning song and prayer services, as well as J. D. Fletcher, lay leader, exhibited fine talent and spirit, and Rev. J. H. Buffalo, of East Durham church, who preached from Monday to Friday, made a hit every day in sermon and altar service. The meeting was a pentecost. There were a number of serious convictions and happy conversions. Nine adult new members were added to the church.

We have at this place a beautiful new church. Formal dedication and sermon by Bishop Denny is to be first Sunday in September.

Our meeting at Duke's Chapel begins Sunday, 15th inst. Rev. J. W. Bradley of West Durham is to be with us in this meeting. W. F. Craven.

LAYMEN'S CONFERENCE AT LAKE JUNALUSKA, AUGUST 10-15

Reservations are being received daily by the committee indicating that one of the greatest meetings ever held held by our laymen is to take place at Lake Junaluska on August 10-15.

The Florida and Western North Carolina conferences are vying with each other in the number of registrations. The Western North Carolina conference should have double the amount of any other conference.

The talent employed for this meeting will be unsurpassed by any summer conference held in America this year.

If the work of any charge is behind and needs awakening and improving do not fail to send one or more of your live laymen to attend this meeting. If the delegates can't afford to stand all their expenses let the congregation pay them. In the end you will get big dividends from the investment.

Our men need training to do their work efficiently. This meeting is being held for that sole purpose. Don't let our conference fall behind in making use of this means of grace and inspiration.

Write at once to J. Dale Stentz, Lake Junaluska, N. C., and have him provide a room for you, notifying the Nashville office or your district lay leader that you are going to attend.

The cost is infinitesimal and the benefits are incalculable. Let each charge in our conference have at least one or more representatives.

C. H. Ireland,

Lay Leader W. N. C. Conf.

THE SOCIAL OPPORTUNITY OF THE CHURCH

From the first to the eight day of July, at Lake Junaluska, North Carolina, under the direction of the Commission on Temperance and Social Service of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, there was assembled a body of earnest-minded men and women, including the commission and representatives of fifteen southern states, to consider together the opportunity and the consequent task of the church.

It was a body of seekers after the truth concerning this social task of the church. It was not an aggregation of dogmatists; it was a conference of inquirers. If the conference were seeking a design for a seal, it would be an interrogation point in the center with the pros and cons chasing each other around the enclosing circle.

Has the church a social task? Is there a gospel for a social group composed of two or more individuals with a common purpose, apart from, or in addition to, the gospel for each individual composing the group? Are there group sins as well as individual sins? Is there a group or social conscience to be reached and converted as well as an individual conscience to be reached and converted? Can we reach the group conscience through the individual only; or can we help the individual also through an appeal to the group?

Have we a single-footed gospel only (according to the apt illustration of one speaker), leaving one foot planted or dragging behind; or two-footed gospel going forward with both feet in bold succession? Is the message of the church to the individual only, or to the group also?

Then a group of subsidiary questions: Are there actually group sins? Do men and women in groups do things that they would not do as individuals? Do men and women do things backed by the force of social or group custom that the individual would not do on his own initiative, if left to his own individual conscience? Do men as business corporations do things to their fellowmen that they would not do as individuals? Is the Golden Rule good for an individual, but bad, because supposed to be impracticable, for a corporation?

Are there groups that, because of their united strength and power, neglect and pray upon other groups because of their unorganized helplessness and need? Are there groups that exploit the infirmities of other groups and fatten on the appetites and passions of their fellows?

In order to find itself and be able to guide the thought of the church in its answer to these and other imminent and pressing questions, the commission prepared a comprehensive program of themes and assembled a company of speakers that for wide range of thought and clearness and force of expression has rarely if ever been equaled in any similar conference in the church.

The themes treated were such as: The Home, The Child, The Family, International Problems, Race Relations,

(Continued on page 13.)

WOMAN'S PAGE

N. C. CONFERENCE

Mrs. J. LeGrand Everett.....Editor
Rockingham, N. C.

W. N. C. CONFERENCE

Mrs. H. K. Boyer .....Editor
Mt. Airy, N. C.

North Carolina Conference

MY GOD

(Translated from the Chinese by Peter Shih.)

O God,
Whenever I search into the valuable treasury of human knowledge,
Thou surely dost come to inspire me.
Whenever I offer prayers of spiritual communion,
Thou dost knock at my heart's door.
Whenever I see poor children who need human assistance,
Thou dost never fail to stir me.
Whenever I think upon those high and honorable works that call for human sacrifice,
Thou dost give me the revelation.

O my God,
Whenever I am sad and weary,
Thou are my comfort.
Whenever I am lonely and in need of a companion,
Thou art my friend.
Whenever I hesitate to struggle forward,
Thou encouragest me.
All day long, whatever I do, I know that thou, my God, are working with me.

—Nashville Advocate.

COMMITTEE ON YOUNG PEOPLE'S SOCIETIES

At the recent meetings of the General Epworth League Board and the Woman's Missionary Council a joint committee composed of three members from each body was appointed to devise plans for a united program for the young people and children as now undertaken in the work of these two bodies.

This joint committee should have the full support of its respective constituencies as it seeks to adjust differences and plan for a program of work whereby our young people may with a solid front go forward in a powerful missionary advance.

The committee is composed of Mesdames P. L. Cobb, W. J. Piggott, and D. N. Bourne, from the Woman's Missionary Council, and Ralph E. Nollner, Mrs. J. W. Perry, and Garfield Evans, from the Epworth League Board.

The committee will be pleased to receive any constructive suggestions. Those interested in the advance of the young people's work should feel concerned to pray for the success of the work of the committee.—Nashville Advocate.

NEW AUXILIARY AT VASS

What promises to be a real live missionary society was organized at Vass on the Rockingham district on Sunday, July the 8th, with 17 members enrolled and the following officers were elected:

- President—Mrs. T. F. Cameron.
- Vice President—Mrs. H. A. Borst.
- Cor. Sec. and Treas.—Mrs. G. H. Simpson.
- Rec. Sec.—Mrs. G. W. Griffin.
- Supt. Young People—Mrs. W. C. Leslie.
- Supt. Children—Mrs. W. B. Graham.
- Supt. Social Service—Mrs. W. D. Matthews.
- Supt. Supplies—Mrs. G. B. Lanbscher.
- Agent Missionary Voice—Mrs. A. K. Thompson.

The Supt. of Study and Publicity will be elected at their first regular meeting. This was such an enthusiastic band of women that we are expecting great things from Vass even this year. Mrs. W. R. Royall, District Secretary.

MESSAGE FROM OUR TREASURER

Dear Co-workers:

I have just mailed our check to Mrs. F. H. J. Ross, council treasurer, and find we have an increase of $163 over second quarter of last year. Our checks to Mrs. Ross for the first six months of our missionary year amount to $17,958.16, showing an increase over last year of $412.12. I always rejoice over these increases, for I do love growth in our great work.

New Berne and Rockingham are the first districts to send in funds for the Belle Bennett Memorial—doubtless every district will have at least a part of its quota next quarter.

Wishing each of you a pleasant summer with a bit of real vacation that we may enter into our work with renewed zeal this fall, I am,

Sincerely yours,

Mrs. F. B. McKinne.

GLEANINGS

The last number of the Nashville Christian Advocate says: "As an inducement to secure the Bible and Training School, Emory University, offers a site, and citizens of Atlanta offers a site, and citizens of the 78 passed resolutions in a mass meeting pledging that a campaign to raise not less than $50,000 for the school, would be put on in the city."

The secretary of the New Bern district, Mrs. Flora M. Kendall, was the first to report money for the Belle Bennett Memorial, and Calypso, one of her smallest auxiliaries, was the first auxiliary in her district to send in money for this purpose.

The study circle of the Louisburg Woman's Auxiliary has just finished the study of "Handicapped Winners." The young girls are to study it, after which the women purpose to give the books to the colored society. This should be a helpful suggestion to other mission study circles. It is not only good educational work, but fine social service, too.

The Council minutes for 1923 are out, and we suggest that as many of our women as possible provide themselves with a copy. It contains much interesting reading, valuable information concerning all our work in every field, messages from our missionaries and deaconesses, much of the work planned for the year, and all the recent Council legislation following the changes made in the Woman's Missionary Society by General Conference.

We are frequently asked for information and advice about the organization and running of a missionary society. The latest hand books—"For Adult Missionary Societies," "Of Young People's Missionary Society," and "Handbook Children's Department"—contain all the information needed for carrying on the auxiliary work, and should be in the hands of every adult president and superintendent of young people's and children's work. One copy free to each society, additional copies five cents. Order from Literature Headquarters, Lambuth Building, Nashville, Tenn.

ROCKINGHAM DISTRICT STANDARD TRAINING SCHOOL FOR CHRISTIAN WORKERS

Last year such a training school was held in Maxton at Carolina College, and was so eminently successful it was decided to have it again this year. The date has been set for August 6-11, and all who are interested, or want to become useful in church work through the Sunday school, are urged to attend. The cost is small—$1.00 per day, and transportation. Each person is expected to carry sheets, pillow cases, towels and soap; tennis shoes, racquet and other athletic togs. Credits will be given for every course satisfactorily completed. The following are the general courses: "Sunday School Organization and Administration," under Rev. W. W. Peele, for all officers of Sunday schools, including superintendents, pastors, secretaries, organists, and others. "Principles of Religious Teaching," under Prof. R. N. Wilson, for teachers and prospective teachers. "Program of the Christian Religion," under Prof. Ernest J. Green, a splendid course for all Christian workers, especially pastors and missionary society workers.

Specialization courses: "Intermediate-Senior Organization and Administration," under Dr. C. O. Shugart, a most helpful study for teen-age boys and girls, and men and women working with teen-age groups. "Junior Organization and Administration," under Miss Virginia Jenkins, for workers with boys and girls nine to twelve years of age. "Primary Lesson Materials and Teaching," under Miss Georgia Keene, for officers and teachers of children six, seven and eight years of age. Workers with younger or older children will take one of the other courses.

It is hoped that many will take advantage of this splendid opportunity for Christian training. Everything possible is being done by the people of Maxton and the several committees to make this a helpful and interesting occasion.

GREENSBORO COLLEGE

The A-Grade Woman's College of the Two Methodist Conferences of North Carolina

Rated by State Department of Education as Class A.

Chartered 1838. Confers the degree of A. B. in the literary department and B. M. in the music department.

In addition to our regular classical course, special attention is called to the departments of Home Economics, Expression, Art, Education, Sunday School Teacher Training, Piano Pedagogy, and to our complete School of Music.

Modern New $50,000.00 Dormitory completed 1918. Conservatory of Music costing about $170,000 completed 1922.

Fall Semester begins September 5, 1923. For further information apply to DR. S. B. TURRENTINE, President, Greensboro, N. C.

DAVENPORT COLLEGE

FOR YOUNG WOMEN

LENOIR, N. C.

A three-year Junior College with a record of sixty-eight years of exceptional Academic work.

Well Equipped, Conservative, but thoroughly abreast of the times.

Fine Type of Student Life. A Safe Place for Young Women to study under close but sympathetic discipline.

Moderate Expenses. The lowest cost commensurate with a High Type of Modern Instruction.

A Registered Nurse constantly in attendance. A most healthful location, in the foothills of the Blue Ridge.

Courses in the Regular Academic Department and Art, Music, Expression, Domestic Science, Domestic Art and Secretarial Courses.

A four-year preparatory course on same campus and correlated with the college.

For Catalogue and Views,

Address PRESIDENT C. L. HORNADAY, LENOIR, N. C.

1802

1923

LOUISBURG COLLEGE

A Junior College for Young Women
With a Standard Preparatory Course of Four Years
Property of North Carolina Conference

Faculty of specially trained, consecrated Christian teachers.
Health Record Unsurpassed. Home-like Atmosphere. Social Life Carefully Guarded. Athletics.

In addition to the regular college courses, Classical and General, attention is called to the departments of Art, Business, Education, Expression, Home Economics, Music (Piano, Voice, Violin, Theory, etc.), and Religious Education.

Rates as low as consistent with good service. Send for free Catalogue and Book of Views. For further information write

A. W. MOHN, PRESIDENT, LOUISBURG, N. C.

TENNESSEE MILITARY INSTITUTE

A school where orderliness, respect for government, and the desire to make good replace recklessness and the "don't care" attitude; where every boy is put on his mettle to measure himself by established school standards.

Good name of school rests on thorough academic work, efficient military training and physical development, and the spirit of T. M. I., which inspires boys to their best achievement. Sound government through sensible restraints and incentives to good conduct. Health record unsurpassed. R. O. T. C. Modern buildings and equipment, laboratories, gymnasium, swimming pool, cinder track. All athletics. Charges moderate. For Catalogue address

COL. C. R. ENDSLEY, Supt., Box R
SWEETWATER : : TENNESSEE

FOR Soft Fluffy Beautiful Hair

use CARO-CO COCONUT OIL SHAMPOO

At drug Stores

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORK

N. C. CONFERENCE

L. L. Gobbel ..... Editor
Durham, N. C.

W. N. C. CONFERENCE

O. V. Woosley ..... Editor
Lexington, N. C.

North Carolina Conference

ON TO MAXTON AUGUST 6-11!

Rockingham district Sunday school and church workers are looking forward again this year to a great week of training, instruction, inspiration and recreation at Carolina College, Maxton, August 6-11, the week of the District Standard Training School; and all indications point to a bigger and better school even this year than last.

Six courses, three specialization courses for Sunday school workers and others interested in children and three general courses for not only Sunday school officers and teachers, but all interested in the religious training and development of boys and girls, men and women, and in the great program of our Christian religion, will be offered.

In addition to the class work, which will consume two hours each morning, there will be a series of morning addresses by Rev. W. W. Peele, of Raleigh. Afternoons will be open for study, for play, and recreation, and a special committee composed of Rev. J. H. Frizelle, Miss Katie Lee McKinnon, and Rev. W. C. Martin is in charge of play and recreation. This feature will be just as interesting and educative this year as last.

The evenings will be made interesting, pleasant and helpful through a variety of special programs, consisting of music, lectures and stunts. Rev. A. J. Parker heads a committee that is making special arrangements for an abundance of good music.

There are several other interesting features in the making, the details of which cannot be released at this time. Suffice it to say there will be some pleasant surprises, and those who attend regularly will get the full benefit of them.

Rev. J. H. Shore, the presiding elder and chairman of the board of managers, with various committees, is at work and expects an attendance of 250 or 300. Prof. E. J. Green, chairman of the entertainment committee, and the good people of Maxton are making plans to comfortably care for all who come. The request is made, however, that all who expect to room in the dormitories or homes of Maxton write Chairman Green at once for reservations.

GREAT TERM AT JUNALUSKA

The first term of the Junaluska Training School is well under way at this writing, with an attendance almost as large as last year and this in spite of the fact that this year there will be three terms and the training school constituency therefore divided to a certain extent into three groups. It is expected that the aggregate enrollment will perhaps double any previous year.

And the North Carolina conference is represented, and creditably so. In fact, the number of North Carolinians here at this time is large and increasing from day to day. And they are having a great time in God's great mountain country. Quite a number of our Sunday schools are represented, some with only one or two persons, others with as many as ten or twelve.

The next term begins July 27 and runs for two weeks, and at its close the third will begin—August 10. Quite a number will spend the entire six weeks here. There will be North Carolinians here all the summer. So come on in; the water's fine.

WILL COMPLETE THE COURSE

"I attended your training school in Fayetteville last year and it was so interesting I'd like to complete the whole course." The foregoing is taken from a letter from Mrs. H. C. Butler, of Cumberland, who wrote to us for information as to how to continue this training work at home. Mrs. Butler earned credit for "Principles of Religious Teaching" last year and is studying at home "The Organization and Administration of the Sunday School." She will secure from the Department of Leadership Training, 810 Broadway, Nashville, Tenn., the examination questions on this course and earn a certificate of credit for this. Other units will be taken later. Many workers are doing as is Mrs. Butler, and our conviction is that more will follow their good example.

ROCKINGHAM WOMEN ORGANIZE

With a charter membership of 21 a class of adult women of First church, Rockingham, has organized and enrolled as a Wesley class. Following are the officers: Miss Georgia Biggs, teacher; Miss Kathleen Hicks, president, and Miss Dell Gibson, treasurer.

ON THE SHALLOTTE CHARGE

Rev. J. W. Dimmette, pastor of Shallotte charge, a mission work in the Wilmington district, is making noteworthy progress in his Sunday schools. He has seven churches and eight Sunday schools, with a Sunday school enrollment, he reports, greater than the church membership, and he expects to build Sunday school rooms at two points. Committees are already at work. This pastor taught public school for eleven years, and he is making this experience count in his Sunday schools.

CHRISTMAS BOXES

Why should we carry such a headline as the above in the month of July? Because now is the time to begin packing a Christmas box to be sent to the children in the foreign mission fields for the holiday season.

The children of our Sunday schools have studied about the children in other lands and are interested in them. So far in most of our schools they have had no concrete way of expressing their interest and desire to help these children except through the offering. The department of Missions and Church Extension of our church has worked out a plan for sending Christmas boxes containing gifts for the children in the foreign fields from the children in our Sunday schools. These boxes will have to be sent in the early fall in order to reach their destination for the holiday season. This plan provides a wonderful opportunity for increasing the interest of our boys and girls in other lands and for providing for a concrete expression of this interest.

The boxes are to contain toys, pictures, and other things dear to the hearts of children. As stated above, these boxes will have to be sent in the early fall, and now is the time to begin.

If you are interested in this plan and would like to have definite information as to what to send, when, where, and how to send it, write to your Conference Elementary Superintendent Miss Georgia Keene, College Station, Durham, N. C.

Western North Carolina Conference

THE LIGHTED CROSS

By M. T. Smathers.

On Junaluska's peaceful shore
There stands a lighted cross,
Whose gleaming brightness ever pours
The darkest night across.

By sons of Wesley was it set,
In stone and cement base,
The daughters, too, of Wesley met
To put that cross in place.

Not that a human form might pend
From beam or cross—are bare,
But that its radiant light should lend
Some rest from grief or care.

To mortals in the walks of life
Who need a cheering sight—
To struggling beings in the fight
Between the hosts of wrong and right.

If in some breast revives a hope
That longs or late was dead;
If with some inner darkness copes
To raise some drooping head—

That cross of light shall meet its end,
And serve its mission well.
The holy Christ His mercy lend
And make all hopes to swell.

THANK YOU

The following Sunday schools have since the last report observed Sunday School Day and sent their offering to Treasurer H. A. Dunham, Asheville, N. C. We are very grateful to these Sunday schools. They make us happy.

Waxhaw, Waxhaw Ct. ....	$ 5.00
Fort, Norwood Ct. ....	3.15
Forest City .....	4.68
Mt. Pleasant, E. Greensboro ...	17.66
Midway, Prospect Ct. ....	3.55
Trinity, Stanley Ct. ....	2.25
Main St., Thomasville .....	25.00
Bethel, Asheville .....	7.74
Whitsett .....	4.20
Cox's Chapel, Sparta Ct. ....	6.60
Wesley Memorial, High Point..	52.38
Cotton Grove, Linwood Ct. ....	3.17
Central, Albemarle .....	13.19
Franklin Ave., Gastonia .....	17.00
Gold Hill, Gold Hill Ct. ....	7.85
Marvin, Pineville Ct. ....	8.07
St. Pauls, Mt. Pleasant Ct. ....	6.60
Central, Monroe .....	75.00
Liberty, Davie Ct. ....	6.76
Carraway Memorial, Greensboro	5.18
Pineville, Pineville Ct. ....	10.00
Bethel, Bethel Ct. ....	10.00
Triplet, Mooresville Ct. ....	4.67
Morganton Ct. ....	6.26
South Main St., Salisbury ....	12.05
Pleasant Hill, Morven Ct. ....	2.29

FEDERATION ATTENDANCE

The attendance upon the fifth annual session of the Western North Carolina Conference Wesley Bible Class Federation, held recently at Lake Junaluska, was well distributed throughout the bounds of our conference. Every district, the Mount Airy district excepted, and most every section of each district was represented. Below are given the total number of registered delegates from a number of places:

Lincolnton .....	66
Asheville .....	58
Charlotte .....	40
Greensboro .....	32
Concord .....	20
Lexington .....	13
Gastonia .....	12
Shelby .....	12
Cliffside .....	11
Hendersonville .....	10
Statesville .....	9
Andrews .....	9
Salisbury .....	8
Lenoir .....	7
Albemarle .....	5
Hickory .....	5
Mt. Pleasant Ct. ....	5
Belwood Ct. ....	5
Avondale .....	4
Brevard .....	4
Lawndale .....	4
Sylva .....	4
Monroe .....	4
Wadesboro .....	4

There were from one to three delegates from a number of other places. We are very grateful for our splendid attendance. We could not have a Federation unless folks attended it.

J. B. IVEY

For the past two years Mr. J. B. Ivey, of Charlotte, has given, in addition to his many other duties, quite a bit of his time and thought to the promotion of our Wesley Bible Class Federation. In fact the church and its enterprises come mighty close to taking first rank in Mr. Ivey's consideration. Two instances have recently reached my ears which bear this out. During the first of July Mr. Ivey was very busy looking after a number of things at Lake Junaluska, but in order to meet a picnic engagement with his Sunday school he hurriedly left the Lake, rushed to Charlotte, promoted the Sunday school picnic and then went back to his business at Lake Junaluska. At the time of our recent Wesley Federation there was a demand for the letting of the contract of his $440,000 store building, but Mr. Ivey held this matter up until his engagements with the Bible classes were filled. Long live J. B. Ivey.

A BIG DAY

Saturday, July 14, was the time, Asbury church, on a hill overlooking the Tennessee Valley, the place and the Macon County Methodist Sunday School conference the occasion for one of the biggest Sunday school booster meetings I have ever attended. The attendance was estimated at from 1,500 to 2,000 people, coming from all sections of Macon county. In addition to scores of baskets filled with tempting eatables Brother Jim Porter, a fine Christian layman of Franklin, provided a cow, a hog, a goat and two sheep to be barbecued and deliciously served. The table, 150 feet long, was surrounded by people many thicknesses in depth. The people ate heartily and then drank good coffee made in big new wash tubs, the same having been furnished by our good friend Porter.

But the crowd and what the crowd ate was not the biggest part of the day. Promptly at ten o'clock Rev. A. W. Jacobs, a superannuated member of the Western North Carolina conference and one of the saints of Israel, as president, called the conference to order. During the morning session Revs. W. M. Smith, W. I. Hughes, R. E. Ward, and Miss Virginia Jenkins and your humble servant spoke pointedly on the why and the how of our Sunday school work. In the afternoon following a most excellent talk by Brother Winn Horn, a prominent Macon county lawyer, reports and institute work featured the conference. Rev. A. W. Jacobs was re-elected as president of the conference for the ensuing year and Rev. W. M. Smith was selected secretary. The conference next year will meet at the beautiful new brick church at Iotla, where it was organized five years ago. These annual county-wide conferences have proven very valuable to our work in Macon county.

FRANKLIN

Franklin, the cultured capital of Macon county, is located in the heart of the valley of the Little Tennessee river and is surrounded on all sides, save where the river breaks through, by the Cowee and Nantahala mountain ranges. It is very difficult to reach Franklin, but the difficulty of approach is forgotten after one arrives. Miss Jenkins, Mrs. Woosley and your humble servant had a very happy day with our Franklin congregation Sunday, July 15. There is no more beautiful church auditorium in our conference than the one recently constructed at Franklin. Our pastor there, Rev. W. M. Smith, is doing a fine work and is held in great esteem by his people. Mr. F. S. Johnston, who for the past thirty years has been superintendent of the Sunday school, now has a fine young understudy in the person of Mr. J. M. Connelly. Bro. Jim Porter, of barbecue fame, has had much to do with the splendid things done at Franklin. Porter means a great deal to Methodism in the Waynesville district.

MARION TRAINING SCHOOL

Beginning Sunday afternoon at 3

(Continued on page thirteen.)

EPWORTH LEAGUE WORK

Lee Davis, Raleigh, N. C.
Rev. J. F. Armstrong, Concord, N. C.

North Carolina Conference

THE GOLDSBORO LEAGUES HAVE GROUP MEETING

Sunday afternoon, July 15th, found the leaguers of Goldsboro and Wayne county holding a group meeting in St. Paul's church. The meeting was held at the suggestion of the new secretary for the New Bern district, Mr. R. W. Brothers, of Oriental.

The meeting was called to order and presided over by Gehrman Cobb, conference treasurer, and proved to be of real value and help to the many leaguers present.

The devotional service was conducted by Mr. Robert Jerome of Elm Street League. Several short sentence prayers were offered, showing that the young people were applying themselves to the teaching of the league in that respect.

Short talks were made by the leader, as well as by Miss Gladys Harrell, Mrs. Mary Daniel, Prof. Mendenhall, Robert Jerome and Miss Emma Davis. Much interest was manifested during the few winners of asking and solving league problems.

So much was the interest shown that those present decided to organize into a county union proposing to meet once a quarter. Mr. Robert Jerome was elected temporary chairman, and the first meeting was decided to be held on the first Sunday night in August with the Pine Forest League.

Those leagues represented at the group meeting were St. Pauls, St. Johns, Elm Street, Daniel's Chapel, Pine Forest, Salem and Falling Creek.

Watch out, leaguers, for great things from this end of the New Bern district—and Durham district, you get ready to hand over the loving cup to us at the next assembly.

NEW LEAGUE

The young people of Salem M. E. church met with our pastor, Rev. L. L. Smith, at the home of Mr. J. W. Carlisle on Friday night, July 6, 1923, and organized an Epworth League with the following officers elected:

- President—Johnnie Carlisle.
- Vice President—Virginia Philbeck.
- Secretary—Huldah Philbeck.
- Treasurer—Leo Glover.
- Cor. Sec.—Layette West.
- First Supt.—D. D. Willis.
- Second Supt.—Mrs. E. N. Washburn.
- Third Supt.—Fred Carlisle.
- Fourth Supt.—Beulah Philbeck.

These young people are greatly enthused over the league and are planning to do some great work this year. Layette West, Cor. Sec.

POLICY OF HELENA EPWORTH LEAGUE 1923-24

1. We shall hold fifty-two devotional meetings this year, and we shall try to make them as entertaining, varied and spiritually helpful as possible. The leader for each meeting shall have the program arranged and those participating notified at least one week in advance.

2. Firmly believing that the highest mission of the Epworth League is to develop and cultivate the spiritual life of our young people and to build Christian character that will stand the test of modern temptations and worldly allurements which our young men and women must constantly meet, we shall do all in our power to accomplish these great ends through widespread participation in devotional meetings, by encouraging daily meditation, prayer and Bible reading and by seeking to lead our non-Christian members to Christ. For these purposes we shall try to get the majority of our members to sign the Quiet Hour Covenant and the Fellow Workers' Covenant cards.

3. Believing further that we should follow our Master's example in visiting the sick and afflicted and helping to minister to their needs, we shall vigorously prosecute the work of our social service department by carrying bouquets and trays to the sick and by calling on them as often as possible. We shall also visit the jail and county home at least once during the year.

4. We shall hold twelve business and social meetings combined during this year. Thorough preparation for each social shall be made by the third department superintendent.

5. We shall hold twelve council meetings this year.

6. We shall conduct a mission study class this year and we shall raise at least $30 for missions.

7. Each officer of the Epworth League shall be required to keep an accurate record of their activities and make a written report on regulation report blanks at each monthly business meeting. They shall also be required to make a quarterly report to our district meeting.

8. We are going to try to make our league measure up as far as possible to the standard of efficiency, and we confidently expect to get a blue seal certificate at our next annual Epworth League Assembly.

9. We shall observe Rally Day.

10. We herewith offer our services to our pastor, Rev. J. C. Williams, that he may use them as he sees fit. We want him to know that there is at least one organization in the church, namely, the Epworth League, which stands wholeheartedly behind him in all his endeavors, and which will gladly set its hand to any task which he assigns.

TO THE NEW BERN DISTRICT

Since I have recently been elected secretary of the New Bern district leagues, I wish all the chapters in this district would send me a list of their officers as soon as possible and their quarterly reports promptly, and let us make New Bern district the best in the conference.

R. W. Brothers, Dis. Sec.

JARVIS MEMORIAL

On Sunday evening, June 24th, we had a special meeting of the league. We reorganized and elected the following officers for the intermediate league:

- President—Walter Dail.
- Vice President—Frank Brown.
- Secretary—Willie Mae Holton.
- Treasurer—Leslie Humber.
- Reporter—Ramona Ray.
- Supt.—Miss Lill Wilson.
- First Dept.—Gertrude Oakley.
- Second Dept.—Frank Wilson, Jr.
- Third Dept.—Mamie Ruth Fleming.
- Fourth Dept.—Jane Hadley.

On July 8th the officers were installed and on July 15th we had a council meeting, planning for the coming year and with our policy for 1923 as follows:

We will have four departments alive, conduct 52 devotional meetings, keeping in mind our motto, "All for Christ."

To have a business and council meeting every month.

To help the sick and send Bibles where they are needed.

To visit the county home.

To increase our membership.

To assist the pastor.

To have a social once a month.

To maintain the Quiet Hour and Christian Stewardship covenants.

Our league is well organized and we are going to do greater work than ever before.

Ramona Ray, Reporter.

OAK RIDGE INSTITUTE, Oak Ridge, N. C.
T. E. Whitaker, President

Founded in 1852. Military. Courses thoroughly covering Literature, Science, Book-keeping, Short-hand, Typewriting, and Music. Eight buildings; electric lights, steam heat and shower baths. 350 acres in campus, athletic grounds, orchards, and farms. Beautiful lake nesting between hills covered with virgin forests. Healthful—1040 feet above sea level; accessible location near Greensboro. Sane, moral influences. Costs reasonable. $425 for the year. Fall session opens first Tuesday in Sept. each year. Write for illustrated catalogue. Address OAK RIDGE INSTITUTE, Oak Ridge, N. C.

MARTHA WASHINGTON COLLEGE

An ideal College for Young Women. Healthful surroundings. 2200 feet above sea-level, same as Asheville, N. C.

All literary teachers hold Master's or Doctor's Degrees. High standard faculty, professionally trained and experienced. All departments of high order. Curricula for majoring in English, History, Mathematics, Sciences, French, German, Spanish, Home Economics, Art, Piano, Pipe Organ, Voice, Violin. Conducted like a large home. Student "activities" a special feature. Address PRESIDENT MARTHA WASHINGTON COLLEGE, Abingdon, Va.

THIRTEEN MILLION DOLLARS IN CHURCH VALUES

The value of property belonging to the Methodist Church in North Carolina exceeds $13,000,000. On this vast amount of property there is only $3,000,000 of insurance—less than one-fourth of its value protected.

Suppose you had stock in a furniture factory one-fourth protected from fire, what would you do? You would either sell, or hold the directors responsible.

See that your church officials protect your most valuable assets or you may be called upon to donate again to rebuild a church parsonage destroyed by fire.

Insure in The Methodist Mutual—owned and controlled by the two North Carolina Conferences.

W. E. WEBB, Secretary
STATESVILLE, N. C.

LAWLESSNESS OR LAW OBSERVANCE—AMERICA'S WORLD OBLIGATIONS

At the recent conference held at Lake Junaluska under the auspices of the Commission on Temperance and Social Service, there was very full and thorough discussion of many great questions pertaining to the relation of the membership of the Christian church to the world in which the church is located and must work. Reports were made and resolutions prepared and adopted on the various subjects before the conference. The reports on some subjects were referred to a special committee for editorial condensation. The chairman of the commission was instructed to send out at once to all our church papers the resolutions adopted concerning "Lawlessness and Law Observance" and "America's World Obligations."

James Cannon, Jr.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

It is seldom that in one person we have the combination of consecration, ability and tact. When such an one also has a willing heart and a spirit of service, too many burdens are placed on that individual. Such was our beloved co-worker in the missionary society, who a few weeks ago triumphantly entered the better world. Chattie Prather Stack, wife of Judge A. M. Stack, housed a strong will and great energy in a frail body. About one year ago her friends saw her health decline under the stress of many and varied duties, so that she was compelled to take life quietly for many months before she passed from our midst. Mrs. Stack built for herself an imperishable monument in her work in the missionary society, in the Sunday school and in all community work which stands for the better things of life.

While Mrs. Stack was most capable in all outside activities, yet she met the greater responsibility of being an ideal mother and helpmate even more beautifully. Therefore be it resolved:

First, That we, as members of the missionary society, strive to emulate her example of willing service for our Master.

Second, That we extend our love and sympathy to her family and friends with the hope that her source of strength and comfort will be theirs.

Third, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, a copy be sent to the city papers and to the North Carolina Christian Advocate for publication, and that they be recorded in our minutes.

Mrs. Walter Crowell,
Mrs. Roscoe Phifer,
Mrs. W. S. Blakeney.

The Skin's Best Friend

Vanishes pimples, heals sores and eczema, stops rash, makes the skin soft, smooth and spotless.

TETTERINE

60c at your druggist's or from the SHUPTRINE CO. :: :: SAVANNAH, GA.

EXPERT KODAK FINISHING

Developing and printing done by experts. Most beautiful work guaranteed at all times. Satisfaction or no charge. Developing 6 exposure rolls 10 cents, 10 and 12 exposure rolls 15 cents, film packs 20 cents per pack. Printing 1 5-8x2 1-2-3 cents, 2 1-4x3 1-4-4 cents, 2 1-2x4 1-4-5 cents, 3 1-4x5 1-2-6 cents. Quick delivery. Send one film to test our service.

LIGONS DRUG STORE,
Spartanburg, S. C.

CHURCH FURNITURE

PEWS · PULPITS
CHANCEL FURNITURE
SUNDAY SCHOOL SEATING
CATALOGUES ON REQUEST

American Seating Company
CHICAGO

J. E. & E. H. REILLEY
Sales Representatives
220 Latta Arcade
CHARLOTTE, N. C.

The Sweet-Toned
WILLIAMS PIANO

Long time favorite of such noted musicians as Excel, Gabriel and Rodebeaver. Our method of sending pianos on Free Trial Direct from Factory at Factory Prices to homes and churches is much appreciated by careful and economical buyers. Williams pianos are so much finer and better they actually sell themselves. No money in advance. Easy Terms. We gladly trust good people. Write for FREE Catalog and factory prices. No agents call.

Williams Piano and Organ Co.
1256 Fullerton Avenue Chicago, Illinois

OUR ORPHANAGE WORK

METHODIST ORPHANAGE RALEIGH, N. C.

Rev. R. N. Page ..... President
A. S. Barnes ..... Superintendent
Mrs. Mattie Jenkins ..... Matron
Owned and maintained by the North Carolina Conference.

FORM OF BEQUEST

I do hereby will and bequeath to The Methodist Orphanage, Raleigh, N. C., contemplated by the charter under the Act of the General Assembly of North Carolina ..... (here designate the bequest) .....

THE CHILDREN'S HOME

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C.

Rev. C. A. Wood ..... Superintendent

THE CHILDREN'S HOME

OUR NEEDS

1. Offerings from all the Sunday schools.
2. Support from all organized classes.
3. Gifts from many individuals.
4. Seven passenger automobile.
5. Swimming pool.
6. Friends to write Orphanage in their wills.

* * * *

Mrs. L. W. Dancaster, of Edenton Street Methodist church, with her S. S. class, gave our larger boys and girls a delightful weinie roast last Thursday night. The children had such a good time! They vote these kind friends their hearty thanks for such kindly consideration.

* * * *

Kittrell.—Long before the hour of worship the church was filled with interested friends. Kittrell turned out almost to a man to give our children a warm welcome. The attendance was fine all the way through the service. The Kittrell Sunday school sends us a monthly offering, but from now on I think the school will measure up to five dollars per month, while Plank Chapel gives us fifteen dollars per month. Kittrell gave us twenty-six dollars as a free will offering and Plank Chapel gave us twenty-five dollars as a free will offering. Friends were delighted to see our children and to hear them. I had the pleasure of being in the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Crudup, where I was entertained in a most gracious manner. I am indebted to Brother Watson, the much beloved pastor, for the privilege of visiting these two churches. His heart is in the Orphanage work and he is doing his utmost for our cause.

* * * *

Plank Chapel.—Saturday night before the third Sunday our singing class gave a sacred concert at Plank Chapel, Tar River circuit. Saturday night seemed to be a good time to give the concert if one may judge by the size of the audience. Every seat in the large church was crowded and many gathered about the windows on the outside because there was no room on the inside. Bro. W. J. Watson was enthusiastic over our going and made the visit a most delightful one to all of us. He has his heart set on Plank Chapel supporting one of our children. He has tried this in the country churches elsewhere and knows how it rallies the Sunday school. Brother J. B. Allen, the beloved superintendent of the Sunday school, together with his fine corps of teachers, will put the thing over within a few weeks. Look out for Plank Chapel. I spent a most delightful night in the hospitable home of Brother Allen.

* * * *

Led by Colonel Olds, the State College summer school teachers gave our children a most enjoyable occasion recently. After our children gave several songs and readings, they were given a big ice cream supper. The State College band was present and gave several selections which the children enjoyed immensely. Our boys pulled off several stunts during the play that followed the ice cream. Colonel Olds took all of us over to State College on street cars and then carried us all over the city and to the Country Club. This occasion was a real joy to the entire family. The state summer school teachers and children of the Orphanage are great admirers of each other. We have entertained them at the college three times this summer and once here at the Orphanage. We all love Colonel Olds, who always plans much for our happiness.

* * * *

Bro. D. H. Tuttle has sent me two hundred dollars to be used on the automobile for the Orphanage singing class. The friends in Smithfield gave one hundred dollars and Brother Tuttle added the other hundred, making the two hundred. I can always count on Brother Tuttle and the Smithfield friends to do the generous thing by our orphanage. Now the ball is in motion, let's keep it going until we can get the entire amount for a good car. If a few other churches and individuals will come across we can get that much needed car. We are seriously handicapped in getting around to the churches with our singing class. Since it is as difficult and expensive as it now is, it looks like we shall have to discontinue the trips except occasionally. Such a course will be detrimental to the orphanage. I trust that we can get that car and prevent such a condition.

* * * *

Dear Friends:
As the time approaches when I must leave the home which I have learned to love devotedly, I wish to thank all the people of the North Carolina conference who have made the home possible.

As I can't thank each one personally I will try to do so through the Advocate. First, I want to express my appreciation to the missionary society of Jarvis Memorial church, Greenville, for the nice boxes of clothes they have sent me each season. I have learned through them that I have friends who will mean much to me through life.

I wish to thank Mr. Barnes, who has been equal to a daddy to me through many difficulties and hardships. Then comes our dear little mother, Miss Mattie, whom we have all learned to love as a mother. Last but not least comes Miss Mary Feree, who has seemed as a big sister to us, and through Miss Laura Breeze I have learned that the only way to make a success in life is through self-denial and patience.

Again I wish to thank everyone. It is impossible to express in words my deep gratitude, but I shall try to prove by living a pure life that I appreciate my home and friends.

Affectionately,
Bessie Mae Harrison.

* * * *

Dear Friends:
As my stay at the Methodist Orphanage closes I can't let my chance for some expression of thanks pass without speaking of the many things I have enjoyed.

I go out into the big world equipped with a training that few other boys get before facing the world. Our home gives the best training that is received at any home in the state of its kind.

I want to thank Mr. Barnes especially for his care of me since he came to be our father. Miss Mattie, who is so nearly a mother to us all, is due all my appreciation and I thank her more than I can express. I wish to thank the whole faculty as a whole and all who have come and gone who have taken such interest in me. I wish to thank the whole conference of North Carolina for what it has done in building such a place as this, my dear old M. E. O.

As I go out I am determined by the help of God to try to live up to the training I have received. I hope by so doing to raise the name of this dear home up to the highest standard possible. I pledge to the home my greatest help and loyalty. I shall always cherish it with the deepest love. The name will always be sacred to me.

With best wishes for the growth and development of the old M. E. O.
Joe Becton.

THE CHILDREN'S HOME

By Martha M. Wood.

Vacations this summer are not so much a matter of course as they were last year. Many children came back last year much benefited by their outing, while others seemed to have found a vacation of doubtful advantage. There are vacations of wholesome pleasures—and there are vacations of various other kinds. Not everyone knows how to give children pleasure in a wholesome way. Perhaps a vacation hostess feels more of a grandmotherly fondness for seeing children enjoy themselves rather than the prudent parent's all-the-year-round serious responsibility for perfection of behavior.

But of course vacation visits are delightful to anticipate anyway—and many happy little folks will get to spend a season with their friends. Those who made their school grade, and who came back from their vacation last year unspoiled and benefited, are in the first lien for vacation privileges.

And for those who do not get off for an out-of-town visit there will be short pleasure trips, rides and picnics—perhaps a camping trip.

It was planned to take a truck load of the young people to the Conrad farm near the river on a berry picking frolic last week. But West End Sunday school, to which our children belong, had a picnic at Dunlap Springs and the children of The Home were part of that afternoon's enjoyable occasion—a jolly ride and an abundant feast.

That is, the large children went. Those under twelve years had a little picnic of their own on The Home lawn, as a consolation for not being allowed to go. A supply of ice cream and cake and games on the lawn in the cool of the afternoon gave them a happy time.

"All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," as the saying goes, and it is just as evident that all play and no work might make him an idle and mischievous one.

So just how to get the wise proportion of work and play best for live young folks is a constant problem with parents and guardians everywhere. And when it is a wholesome problem concerning little boys, middle size boys and big boys, little girls, middle size girls and big girls—work and play, food and clothes and other things—the dilemmas are multiplied and manifold.

The superintendent came in the other day feeling a little bit blue. He said that he was disappointed at the way that one of the young people, of whom he had bright hopes, was balking at small vexations and showing a wrong spirit and lack of appreciation of advantages and opportunities.

"Yes," I said, "but there are very few families anywhere where the old folks do not lose some sleep and spend some anxious moments worrying over the faults and failings of their boys and girls. And these boys and girls give very little trouble—considering the size of the family."

Measured by hours and days, many times the day's work seems discouraging, but a larger measure the year's perspective shows a great gain and improvement—a finer "esprit de corps," a higher standard of honor and co-operation.

Besides, every day that a hundred and fifty are fed, clothed and protected is a good day's work.

Solomon's wisdom shows at its best when he goes up to pray to the Lord for grace to manage his kingdom wisely. This valuable institution here is a little kingdom that the church reigns over—through appointment of officers. Now if the friends of The Children's Home, feeling the same deep interest young Solomon did in the kingdom committed to him, would remember at a place of prayer to petition that a double portion of wisdom and grace be bestowed on those who serve and administer the large affairs of The Home, I know as well as if I already felt it, that such prayer could not fail to reach the place of power and to bring to us, who represent your love and care for the children, an enlarged hope, a confident assurance of day by day safety, and faith to wait patiently the necessary provision for growth and enlargement.

This was the year that the children had to be inoculated again against typhoid fever. Dr. Gray looks after the health of The Home. So after a date was arranged he, with an assistant doctor and several nurses, came out and soon had it accomplished. Two more treatments a week apart were administered. Nobody suffered much inconvenience from it.

Just now the infirmary is dispensing its hospitality to several cases of chickenpox. Where Polly got the chickenpox she broke out with and which other little girls are developing cannot be guessed. Several girls and one little boy have been unfortunate enough to "catch it."

* * * *

The little boys in Tise Number Two felt themselves very fortunate yesterday to get a crate of cantaloupes—a whole melon apiece! The crate was a treat from their matron who is away spending her vacation with relatives who live in the cantaloupe country. She knew where a crate of nice melons would get a real welcome.

There isn't anybody who knows how to get more enjoyment out of good fruit than little boys—unless it is larger boys.

The Home has had very little fresh fruit this summer. There seems very little on the market and what there is is very expensive. Even blackberries have been not very abundant.

* * * *

One of the departments of work most popular with the girls in the summer time is the sewing room. Some of the younger girls who have attained to a place there, have made themselves some pretty gingham dresses, which for neatness in sewing and attractiveness in finish are a credit to little girls of ten and twelve years, and to Miss Goodnight, their teacher.

Mrs. Thompson has arranged for all of the little girls who are large enough to be taught sewing this summer. There are three classes of different ages taught by three of the larger girls.

Margaret Wood contributed something recently to the pleasure of the little girls who love to sew by having a doll show. Sixteen or eighteen of the little girls of ages ranging from eight to twelve entered a contest to try to win a prize for the best made doll dress.

The dolls were exhibited on a table on the lawn one Saturday afternoon, and the judges were the grown folks of The Home. The votes, after careful inspection of the dressed dolls, were written on a slip of paper and slipped into a closed box.

It was hard to decide, taking age and opportunities into consideration, who had done the best. Some of the doll dresses were of elaborate make, some of extra neatness, and some of surprisingly good taste in color selections. All were well done.

Every doll received a vote, some two; one received three votes, the most of any. This was Donnie Matheson's doll, dressed in a blue romper suit, very nicely made.

Ten of the little girls in the contest were promised the honor of dressing dolls for the fair.

The Call of the Conference Claimants

Edited by Luther E. Todd, Secretary

Board of Finance, M. E. Church, South

510-513 Security Building, St. Louis, Mo.

Spark Plugs That Spark.—The old preacher has more real value to the square inch than any other of the nation's assets. Even as a student preacher he justified the expenditure of the church in training him for service, and we began to get dividends on our investment even before he left college or seminary, and he has continued to be a dividend payer all through the years. Any proper appraisal will show a big balance in his favor.

Take a glimpse of the daily output of his life, character, and service:

He has made more good citizens out of bad citizens than all the political parties combined.

He has made more steady workers out of salvaged idlers than all the unions in his town.

He has given many a man the secret of character and an impetus toward a successful career. Chambers of Commerce might well elect him to honorary membership.

He has been a great preserver of the peace by crime prevention, and his influence has helped to keep people out of the courts.

He has saved many a home from disruption and taught young couples the secret of a happy home and guided hundreds of children into the ways of Christ. He has turned many young hearts toward the goal of their life's work, headed them toward college, braced them for the crises of life, and shepherded them to the end.

He has comforted us in sickness, tided us across the agony of days of suffering, and stood by us in sorrow when the foundations of our world seemed to be swept away. He put his strong hands upon our hand and slipped it into God's big hand, and we were steadied. We never thought of paying him for that, for there is no coin adequate for such spiritual service.

In the nation's dark hour he was worth more than committees of public safety and paid accelerators of patriotism. From his pulpit rang out a clear call for personal sacrifice.

In epidemics, sparing not himself, he was to the community as a pillar of fire by night and of cloud by day and an angel of mercy all the time.

He was not all saint, but the warp of his life's fabric was genuine saintliness, which went well with the wool of his humanity. For he was very human and had his own battles to win, his own temptations to fight. He was like the rest of us, only more so; but he was enough like Christ to know him well enough to introduce us to him, and all we have been and are and hope to be we owe to this human ambassador of God.

To forget him in his old age would be unexplainable thoughtlessness, plain selfishness. His right to our love and care is a "first claim" on us. He will not enforce it nor even so much as plead for himself; but the claim is true there, written in the bond of his rights, and God will certainly require its fulfillment at our hands.—W. H. Phelps.

Uncle Sam's Worthy Example.—There appeared in the daily papers this message from Washington: "Congress today passed a measure of unanimous consent providing for the payment of an annuity for life of $125 a month each to the widows of Surgeons James Carroll and Jesse Lazear, United States army, in recognition of their discoveries in connection with the transmission of yellow fever by 'mosquitoes.'

In 1900 when it was first suggested that yellow fever was caused by the bite of the mosquito Surgeons James Carroll and Jesse Lazear, with some private soldiers, volunteered themselves as subjects on whom the experiment might be tried in Cuba.

Two trials were made. In one the men slept in beds and blankets used by yellow fever patients, separated from them by only a closely woven screen. They did not take yellow fever. The others slept in clean beds and fresh air but with the screen removed.

It was a heroic movement when Surgeon Jesse Lazear, sitting by the side of a yellow fever patient, watched a mosquito he knew to be infected light on his hand and did not brush it off. In the expected time he sickened and died, and a year after as a direct result of the experiment Dr. Carroll also gave up his life.

It was not a charge with drums beating, colors flying, boom of cannon, rush of shot and shell; it was the steadfast facing of death, going to meet it alone and unafraid. Not on the battlefield, but in the mosquito-infected hut they laid down their lives for the country and their fellowmen; and Congress, speaking for the people, thought it only common gratitude that the widows of these heroes should have ease and comfort while they lived.

The widows of our old ministers—those faithful soldiers of the cross who for twenty-three and forty years, at home and abroad, in city and country, through winter and summer, in joy and in sorrow, having fought the good fight, have fallen at last and left their wives and children to the mercies not of Congress but of the church—these are our merces to them: "I am alone in the world, a widow seventy-six years old, without any family or any property, and what I get from the church is my only resource in my old age."

And another: "I am sorry to have to ask for at least a part of the spring check. I have been sick for weeks and so in need that I did not know which way to turn."

And this one from the widow of a minister who served the church for thirty-five years: "My husband now lies in an unmarked grave. I have nothing in the world."

It is true of most of us that we didn't know or didn't think, but ought we not to be ashamed that these old ministers, changing Cardinal Woolsey's words, might truthfully say, "Had we but served our country with half the zeal we served our church, she would not in our age have left us naked to our enemies?"—Mildred Welch.

A Sound of Something Beginning.—In every denomination of Christendom during the last several years there has been a movement looking to arouse Christian people to take better care of worn-out preachers and the widows of preachers. In the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, this movement has been more or less pronounced since the General Conference held in 1902, and especially since 1918 there has been an emphatic call to the conscience of Southern Methodism on this subject. The work has not been in vain, for there is evidence on every hand which proves that the people are awakening and squaring themselves to remove from the church the reproach of not caring for her aged servants.

Not only are denominational boards and church members discussing this subject and spreading everywhere the startling facts concerning it, but also secular newspapers, lawyers, bankers, farmers, and business men of every character are going out of their way to call attention to the church's neglect with respect to those whom she has worn out in building up herself. It is not uncommon now for individuals who are not professed Christians and do not hold membership in any church to call attention to this neglect. Some of the most powerful articles that have appeared in magazines such as Collier's, the Literary Digest, and others of more or less recent issue have had for their subject the church's failure at the point of caring for her worn-out ministry. Surely in the light of these facts the time has come when every denomination is forced to give attention to this supreme duty, for any group of Christians will find it exceedingly difficult to maintain itself in the confidence of the people while failing to respond to this ringing call.

This is an age wherein millions of voices articulate clearly and speak loudly one fire-tipped word—namely, equity. It is the call of humankind for a square deal. If men in all of the relations in life hear the call and respond to it, it is possible to have an atmosphere of heaven even upon the earth. On the other hand, to ignore this call in any sphere of action is to invite teachings which have their end in the worst sort of socialism or in communism.

The Methodist Episcopal Church, South, is fast approaching a day of opportunity to do for her worn-out preachers and widows of preachers what they have an unquestioned right to expect. Let us all pray earnestly that our conception of justice will send us into the field of our chance with a determination to win for our beloved church the respect and confidence of all men everywhere concerning this matter.

EVANGELISM AND THE SPIRITUAL STATE OF THE CHURCH

Committee report of the Salisbury district conference:

We have carefully gone over the reports of the pastoral charges in the Salisbury district and find much to hearten the forces of righteousness as well as many things to discourage.

Sunday schools all over the district flourish, and indications are that increasing numbers of the students are being trained for Christian service and fitted for membership in the church. Many revivals have been held already and have been marked by spiritual power. About six hundred members have been added to the church thus far, four hundred of which, perhaps, have been added on profession of faith. Many more revivals are being planned for the summer and fall. All of this indicates that Methodism hereabouts stands fast in the faith of her spiritual forebears.

We believe that the revival is still the instrument of God in the salvation of the multitudes and that our church would be impoverished indeed were it to cease to use the revival as one of its chief weapons of evangelism. We believe, too, that the evangelist has a large place in the Methodist church. While we believe that it is better for each pastor to be his own evangelist in most instances, we recognize that the pastor must sometimes call in assistance. Professional evangelism has developed some deplorable tendencies and is fraught with much peril, but we believe that if our preachers and people will exercise discretion in the selection of help for revivals these tendencies can be corrected and the worthy evangelists will take their places as honored prophets among the hosts of Zion.

The doctrinal disturbances which have developed within the last few years all over the country have scarcely touched us. The doctrines of our church are common property. Our preachers have not been sent forth to defend a creed but to proclaim salvation to a lost world. This they seem to be doing with such earnestness and manifest success, that like the wall builder of ancient days they have neither time nor inclination to come down from such a task to engage in strife and unlearned contentions and questions of small moment. Our brethren still dwell together in unity and still proclaim those great fundamentals on which our great church was founded.

Our age-old enemies still pester us. Gambling, drinking, immodest dancing, salacious movies, Sunday travel and traffic, lust and lying, stinginess and unholiness, and all the unclean brood of perdition still stalk up and down the land. We are in the midst of racial, national and religious strifes and hatreds. We are facing tasks that our fathers never faced, and we are called upon to trace more clearly the frontiers of the kingdom of God.

We rejoice in our past history, but it will profit us nothing to sigh for the good old days. We urge upon our preachers and people to resolutely face the future; to rebuke and reprove, to exhort and persuade, and above all to live unblameably in the midst of the world's welter of woe. We have a gospel that is adequate to right all wrongs, a Saviour who is sufficient to redeem all men, and we believe that we have a church which can adapt itself to all conditions and meet all needs. The world is still our parish, and by God's grace we will win it for our church.

Tom P. Jimison,
W. T. Albright,
S. T. Coburn,
E. C. Kirk,
R. F. Mack,

Committee.

FRECKLES

Don't Hide Them With a Veil; Remove Them With Othine—Double Strength.

This preparation for the treatment of freckles is usually so successful in removing freckles and giving a clear, beautiful complexion that it is sold under guarantee to refund the money if it fails.

Don't hide your freckles under a veil; get an ounce of Othine and remove them. Even the first few applications should show a wonderful improvement, some of the lighter freckles vanishing entirely.

Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength Othine; it is this that is sold on the money-back guarantee.

Facial Blemishes

Sallow, muddy, roughened or blotched complexions are usually due to constipation.

When you are constipated, not enough of Nature's lubricating liquid is produced in the bowel to keep the food waste soft and moving. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it acts like this natural lubricant and thus replaces it.

Nujol is a lubricant — not a medicine or laxative — so cannot gripe. Try it today.

Nujol

REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

A LUBRICANT—NOT A LAXATIVE

Our Little Folks

PUT-OFF TOWN

Did you ever go to Put-Off Town,
Where the houses are old and tumbledown,
And everything tarries and everything
drags
With dirty streets and people in rags?

On the street called Slow live old man
Wait,
And his two little boys named Linger
and Late,
With unclean hands and tousled hair,
And a naughty sister named Don't Care.

Did you ever go to Put-Off Town
To play with the little girls, Fret and Frown?
Or go to the home of old man Wait
And whistle for his boys to come to the gate,

To play ball all day on Tarry Street,
Leaving your errands for other feet?
To stop, or shirk, or linger, or frown,
Is the nearest way to this Put-Off Town. —Exchange.

THEY PLAY IN CHINA TOO

All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy is just as true on the other side of the world as it is on this. We are apt to think that the life of a missionary, or that of mission school pupils, is one constant round of work.
But they do have some good times, and Jean Dickinson, writing in The Missionary Herald, tells of some of them.

In spite of twenty to thirty hours a week of work, long struggles with dictionaries, and many lengthy committee meetings, Yenching College students make time for occasional joyous outings. The great annual affair for the students and teachers is the tree-planting ceremony for those about to graduate. Our one girl student last spring stood, graceful and charming, among a dozen fellow classmen from the men's college, and has since gone to our sister college, Wellesley, for post-graduate work. Our new college site, north of Peking, is beautiful already with trees, but the new class trees add much in sentiment and are marked with tablets that none may forget the classes that have gone out.

But we go to many other places, especially in small groups, and combine study with a delightful outing. Such fun as we have on these occasions, laughing over the donkey riding, singing hymns, and trailing along in twos and threes, getting a considerable amount of exercises which we need.
—N. Y. Christian Advocate.

A VISIT FROM DR. SUNSHINE

"I'm going to be a doctor when I grow up," declared Tom. "My Uncle Robert is a doctor, and I'm going to be like him when I am a man."

"Then if you're going to be a doctor," broke in his Uncle Robert,
"you're just the little boy I'm looking for."

He took an orange from his overcoat pocket. "Put that in your case," he said, "and then put on your hat and go down the street till you come to a small gray house with green shutters.
A little boy lives there who has a broken leg. Give him the orange, and see if you can make him laugh."

Tom trudged off in great delight. It was a long time before he came back, but when he did he was so happy that his eyes shone.

"Well, Dr. Sunshine, how do you like it?" asked his uncle.

"Oh, I'm going every day till he is well!" cried Tom.

"I shall have to put Tom under the seat in my automobile," laughed the doctor, "and when my patients are cross I will bring Dr. Sunshine in to smile at them."—Exchange.

PHILLIPS BROOKS' DREAM

Let me live the years of my stay upon earth 'way out in the country, close to nature and nature's God. I want to feel the touch of the seasons as they come and go, making up the years. I want to feel the chill of winter in my frame, not too severe, but enough to make the blood tingle. I want to feel the gentle warmth of spring as with her gentle touch of magic she awakens new life in things dead. I want to feel the heat of summer, as the golden sunshine ripens the harvest and matures fruit and flowers. Lastly I want to catch the cold breath of autumn coming to fan away the heat and lethargy of summer. I want to hear the cry of whip-poorwills as the twilight settles o'er the hill and hollow. I want to be near when Bob White is calling to its mate when the fields of ripening wheat wave gently to the passing breeze. I want to hear the tingle of bells on the distant hillside, as the sun is going down and the katydids commence their night long chatter. Then old Jack Frost passes by, with his touch of white. I want to wander down the old rail fence and on to where the muscadines hang in rich profusion;
and there, for a time fast and forget.
Yes, let me live out the years of my stay upon the earth in the fullness of the country, and then, dying, let me rest in the quiet churchyard near where father and mother sleep—where the sunbeams play in the summer, and the snow drifts high in the winter.—Phillips Brooks.

THE BEST SIDE OUT

Even though Mrs. Butterfly did the most of her work of visiting the flowers during the day and Mrs. Moth spent her working hours at night, it did happen that occasionally Mrs.
Butterfly met Mrs. Moth late in the afternoon. Mrs. Butterfly would be flying home to rest from her labors and would notice Mrs. Moth quietly resting on the top of a leaf, dozing away in the light of the setting sun.

On one of these occasions Mrs.
Butterfly stopped on the branch of the tree which held Mrs. Moth's leaf and said: "Mrs. Moth, don't think me impertinent, but would you mind telling me why it is that you sleep so?"

Mrs. Moth roused herself drowsily from her day-dream and said that she didn't quite understand. When Mrs.
Butterfly had repeated the question,
Mrs. Moth answered, smiling, "Well, really, I don't know, Mrs. Butterfly. I suppose that it is just natural for some of us to work at night and some in the daytime."

"Oh, I didn't mean that, Mrs. Moth!
I beg your pardon for not making myself clear. I understand perfectly that you are better fitted to do your work at night and that it would be impossible for me to work in the dark.
What I meant was this: Why is it that you never rest with your wings together as we butterflies do? You always sleep, I've noticed, with your wings stretched out flat, so the tops of them will show. But we Butterflies fold ours so the tops will be together."
Mrs. Butterfly looked as if she felt better after she had made this explanation and waited patiently for an answer.

Mrs. Moth looked just a bit embarrassed and hesitated. Then she shook her wings a little and roused herself as if she had made up her mind about something. Then she began: "Mrs.
Butterfly, you've asked me to disclose a little secret—one that may not be complimentary to our family; but I rather think it may not be in our disfavor, after all. So I'm going to tell you about it.

"As a matter of fact, we Moths are not very attractive-looking on the underside of our wings. Our colors are pretty on the top side. Now, you Butterflies have almost as pretty coloring on the lower side as on the upper.
For that reason you can well afford to fold your wings in such a way as to show the lower side of them when you rest. But our mothers have for generations taught us that we should live with our best side out. For the reason that we think our mothers have taught us well, we try, when we sleep and when we work, to hold our bodies so as to show the very best of ourselves." Mrs. Moth nodded her head emphatically then, as if she meant to repeat that she thought the teaching of her mother was a good one. She looked to see what effect her words had upon her friend.

"I hadn't thought of that as being the reason, Mrs. Moth, but it certainly is a good one," agreed Mrs. Butterfly.
"Thank you so much for telling me about it." Then, having invited Mrs.
Moth to call on her when she could,
she waved her wings and flew away to rest, while Mrs. Moth roused herself to begin work for the night.—
Presbyterian Banner.

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORK

(Continued from page nine.)

o'clock, August 19, the first Co-operative Standard Training School for Methodist and Presbyterian Sunday school workers for Marion and contiguous territory will be held at First Methodist church, Marion. Following the Sunday afternoon session all other sessions of the school will be held at night. The following courses will be offered:

Primary Organization and Administration—Miss Georgia Keene, instructor.

Junior Organization and Administration—Miss Virginia Jenkins, instructor.

Principles of Teaching—Prof. C. T.
Carr, instructor.

Sunday School Organization and Administration—Mr. O. V. Woosley, instructor.

It is hoped that this, the first training school held in the bounds of the Marion district, will draw a good patronage.

THE JUNALUSKA CROSS

Elsewhere in these columns can be read the splendid poem, "The Lighted Cross," composed by Rev. M. T.
Smathers, pastor of our congregation at North Wilkesboro. Brother Smathers is a native of Haywood county and it is very fitting that he write this most excellent poem on the Junaluska Cross which so beautifully and suggestively stirs the emotions of Christian hearts. We are very grateful to Brother Smathers.

BAILEY MILITARY INSTITUTE

GREENWOOD, S. C.

33rd Session Begins September 11th, 1923

In the healthful Piedmont section of South Carolina and in a city widely known for its superior moral and religious atmosphere. Strictly a standard preparatory school. Member of Southern Association.
Sound classical and scientific courses prepare for college; strong commercial course prepares for business. Faculty made up of college graduates of established success in teaching and leading boys. Small classes. Close but sympathetic supervision. Excellent moral tone.
All athletics. High standards of sportsmanship.

Place your boy at Bailey, and rest assured that his every interest will be safeguarded and promoted, and that there will be no let-up in the endeavor to make him a fine gentleman and a four-square man.

Send for catalog, and see what our patrons say of the school.
Address

JOHN W. MOORE, Superintendent

FOUNDED 1838

CHARTERED IN 1859

TRINITY COLLEGE DURHAM, N. C.

A Southern College of liberal arts with an established national reputation for high standards, noble traditions, and progressive policies.
Its large endowment fund makes possible its first-class equipment and large faculty of well trained and carefully chosen teachers. Student fees low. Comfortable, inexpensive rooms in carefully supervised hygienic dormitories.

Classical and scientific courses leading to the bachelor's degree.
Graduate courses in all departments. Schools of Engineering, Education, and Law.

For catalogue and illustrated booklet, address

R. L. FLOWERS,
Secretary to the Corporation.

PRESIDING ELDERS APPOINTMENTS

Western North Carolina Conference

ASHEVILLE DISTRICT H. C. Sprinkle, P. E., Asheville, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing appointments for Asheville District, including Weaverville Ct., Pleasant Grv., West Asheville, Henderson, Fruitland, East Biltmore, Chestnut St., Rosman, Brevard, Mills River, Asheville Ct., Fairview, Flat Rock-Fletcher, Hominy, Leicester, Mars Hill, Weaverville Ct., Bethel, Swannanoa, Black Mountain, Spring Creek, Hot Springs, Sandy Mush, Marshall, Central, Weaverville Station, Biltmore, Chestnut Street, Henderson Ct., Saluda-Tryon, Hendersonville, Haywood Street, East Biltmore, West Asheville, Mt. Pleasant, Elk Mountain, Rosman, Brevard.

CHARLOTTE DISTRICT J. B. Craven, P. E., 413 Central Ave., Charlotte, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing appointments for Charlotte District, including Trinity, Hickory Grove, Duncan Memorial, Brevard Street, Laymen's Meeting, Tryon Street, Spencer Memorial, Waxhaw, Peachland, Ansonville, Marshville, North Monroe, Unionville, Polkton, Morven, Wadesboro, Prospect, Bethel, Chadwick, Dilworth, Thrift-Moore.

GREENSBORO DISTRICT W. F. Womble, Presiding Elder 508 Summit Ave., Greensboro, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing appointments for Greensboro District, including West Market Street, East End, Liberty, Bethel, Randolph, Main Street, Wesley Memorial, Jamestown-Oakdale, Caraway Memorial, East Greensboro, Walnut Street, Uwharrie, New Hope, Asheboro, Coleridge, Ramseur-Frankville, Randleman, Deep River, Wentworth, Reidsville, Pleasant Garden, Spring Garden, Ruffin.

SHELBY DISTRICT H. H. Jordan, P. E., Gastonia, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing appointments for Shelby District, including Bellwood, Polkville, Shelby, Lafayette St., South Fork, Lincoln, Rock Springs, Cherryville, West End, Shelby Ct., King's Mountain, East End, Lincoln Ct., Trinity, Crouse, Gastonia, Lowesville, Mt. Hilly, Stanly, Ranlo, Bessemer, Franklin Ave., Dallas, Cramerton, Belmont, Belmont, Main St., Ruffin.

MARION DISTRICT Z. Paris, P. E., Marion, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing appointments for Marion District, including Connelly Springs, Table Rock, Marion, Old Fort, McDowell, Cross Mill, Broad River, Forest City, Spindale, Marion Mills, Marion Ct., Mill Spring, Cliffside, Henrietta-Caroleen, North McDowell, Spruce Pine, Micaville, Bald Creek, Burnsville, Pilot Mountain, Mt. Airy, Rockford St., Walnut Cove, Mayodan, Madison-Stoneville, Jonesville, Elkin, Rural Hall, Leaksville, Dobson, Summerfield, Stokesdale, Yadkinville, W. Davie, Sandy Ridge, Danbury, Mt. Airy Ct., Ararat.

All the pastors and charge lay leaders of Marion district will convene at Marion on July 26th on very important business.

MOUNT AIRY DISTRICT J. H. West, P. E., Box 422, Mt. Airy, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing appointments for Mount Airy District, including Pilot Mountain, Mt. Airy, Rockford St., Walnut Cove, Mayodan, Madison-Stoneville, Jonesville, Elkin, Rural Hall, Leaksville, Dobson, Summerfield, Stokesdale, Yadkinville, W. Davie, Sandy Ridge, Danbury, Mt. Airy Ct., Ararat.

NORTH WILKESBORO DISTRICT J. W. Williams, P. E., Jefferson, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing appointments for North Wilkesboro District, including Helton, Laurel Springs, Sparta, Watauga, Boone, Avery, Elk Park, Todd, North Wilkes, N. Wilkesboro, Wilkes, Ferguson, Wilkesboro, Creston, Warrensville, Helton, Todd, Jefferson.

SHELBY DISTRICT H. H. Jordan, P. E., Gastonia, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing appointments for Shelby District, including Bellwood, Polkville, Shelby, Lafayette St., South Fork, Lincoln, Rock Springs, Cherryville, West End, Shelby Ct., King's Mountain, East End, Lincoln Ct., Trinity, Crouse, Gastonia, Lowesville, Mt. Hilly, Stanly, Ranlo, Bessemer, Franklin Ave., Dallas, Cramerton, Belmont, Belmont, Main St., Ruffin.

conference, and assist in electing the officials of his church for the ensuing year.

SALISBURY DISTRICT T. F. Marr, P. E., Salisbury, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing appointments for Salisbury District, including Park Avenue, East Spencer, Salisbury Ct., First Church, North Main St., Woodleaf, Central, Forest Hill, Concord Ct., Epworth, Kerr Street, Gold Hill Ct., Spencer, South Main, Landis Ct., Kannapolis, China Grove, New London Ct., Salem, Badin, Albemarle Ct., Central, First Street, Mt. Pleasant Ct., Westford, Harmony, Norwood Ct., Norwood.

STATESVILLE DISTRICT D. M. Litaker, P. E., 240 Walnut St., Statesville, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing appointments for Statesville District, including Dudley Shoals, Maiden, Newton, Mooresville Ct., Davidson, Huntersville, Mt. Zion, Race St., Ball Creek, Catawba, Hickory, Westview, Rhodhiss, Alexander, Statesville Ct., Mooresville, Lenoir, Hudson, Granite Falls, Lenoir Ct., South Lenoir, Hiddenite, Mooresville, Olin, Jones Memorial, Statesville, Broad St.

All early conferences will have a fifth round. District meeting in Newton July 24th for pastors, lay leaders, educational collectors and chairmen of educational committees.

WAYNESVILLE DISTRICT R. S. Howie, P. E., Waynesville, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing appointments for Waynesville District, including Glenville Ct., Highlands Ct.

WINSTON-SALEM DISTRICT W. A. Newell, P. E., 1084 W. Fourth Street, Winston-Salem, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing appointments for Winston-Salem District, including Green Street, Welcome, West End, Burkhead, Centenary, Southside.

North Carolina Conference

DURHAM DISTRICT M. T. Plyler, P. E., Durham, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing appointments for Durham District, including Mt. Tirzah, Person, Roxboro, Milton, Yanceyville, Burlington Ct., Brookside, East Roxboro, Pearl, Mebane, East Burlington.

September South Alamance, Clover Garden... 2 Lakewood, 7:30 ... 2

ELIZABETH CITY DISTRICT C. B. Culbreth, P. E., Elizabeth City, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing appointments for Elizabeth City District, including Chowan, Columbia, Gates & N. Gates, Roanoke Island, Stumpy Point, Dare Ct.

FAYETTEVILLE DISTRICT R. H. Willis, P. E., Fayetteville, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing appointments for Fayetteville District, including Jonesboro, Sanford, Goldston, Elizabeth, Stedman, Roseboro.

NEW BERN DISTRICT F. M. Shamburger, P. E., New Bern, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing appointments for New Bern District, including St. Paul, St. John.

RALEIGH DISTRICT J. C. Wooten, P. E. THIRD ROUND

Table listing appointments for Raleigh District, including Four Oaks, Benson, Smithfield, Princeton.

WASHINGTON DISTRICT S. A. Cotton, P. E., Washington, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing appointments for Washington District, including Vanceboro, Swan Quarter, Fairfield, Bath Ct., Washington, Greenville, Farmville.

ROCKINGHAM DISTRICT J. H. Shore, P. E., Rockingham, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing appointments for Rockingham District, including Maxton, St. Paul, Lumberton, Mt. Gilead.

WELDON DISTRICT S. E. Mercer, P. E., Weldon, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing appointments for Weldon District, including Scotland Neck, Warren Ct., Middleburg.

WILMINGTON DISTRICT J. M. Daniel, P. E., 519 Grace Street, Wilmington, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing appointments for Wilmington District, including Town Creek, Shallotte, Wilmington, District conference will convene at Swansboro on June 26, 1923.

GOSPEL TENTS ATLANTA TENT & AWNING CO. ATLANTA, GA. OUR PRICES ON QUALITY GOSPEL TENTS CANNOT BE EQUALLED - WRITE TODAY -

"A LOVELY PIANO"

You ought to see the letters we are receiving from the enthusiastic members of the Advocate Piano Club. Here is a sample from a Music Teacher: "The lovely piano came yesterday. Am just delighted with it; so are my musical friends. The tone is so full and sweet, and the case is lovely."

Another member of the Club, a gentleman from Florida, writes: "The piano is simply a marvel of beauty and tone, as also action. We are all delighted with it."

Write for your copy of the beautifully illustrated Club catalog. Address Ludden & Bates, Advocate Piano Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga.

Wanted -- Salesmen

to sell our "Good For All Time Monuments," made from GRANITE or the famous GEORGIA MARBLE—at reasonable prices. Must be competent and responsible—no experience required. Monuments guaranteed—no risk—no investment. Liberal commission.

Farmers, Merchants, Bankers, Ministers and others have been successfully selling our monuments for more than 20 years—spare or full time.

Write us today for our proposition. ROBERTS MARBLE CO., Ball Ground, Ga.

A FEW HOMES AND CHOICE LOTS FOR SALE

in the vicinity of Trinity College, to any who may wish to move to Durham and place their children in school or college, or who may wish to own property near Trinity College.

Write me your wants.

D. W. NEWSOM

Real Estate and Insurance
507 First National Bank Building
Durham, N. C.
"A Square Deal to Everybody"

JAMES M. McMICHAEL CHURCH ARCHITECT

Charlotte, N. C.

DR. CHAS. W. MOSELEY

Diseases of Stomach
and Internal Medicine

Office, 229 S. Elm St. Residence, 438
S. Mendenhall St., Greensboro, N. C.
Office 604—Phones—Res. 1739.

School Desks,
Opera Chairs,
Folding Chairs
Kindergarten Chairs,
Church Pews,
School Supplies,
Blackboards

Southern Desk Co., Hickory, N. C.

Fishburne Military School

Waynesboro,
Virginia

44th year. In Blue Ridge Mountains, 1300 ft. altitude. Four hours from Washington. Prepares for universities and business life. Small classes and individual attention secured through faculty of one teacher for every ten cadets. New $250,000 fire-proof buildings. Swimming pool and all athletics. Rate $600. Annual Spring Encampment. For catalog write

Major Morgan H. R. O. T. C.
Hodgins, Principal under U. S.
War Dept.

THE SOCIAL OPPORTUNITY

(Continued from page 7.)

Christian Principles in Industry, Prohibition, Law Enforcement, Moving Pictures, and Sabbath Observance.

The discussions by invited speakers were marked by intelligent grasp, clear, concise expression, and almost utter absence of bitterness of spirit and harshness or speech. As an aside, one can but wonder what would have happened if a similar number of "Fundamentalists" and "Modernists" had got together on the same platform and under similar circumstances.

Among the "Findings" or conclusions reached through listening to the various speakers and a system of somewhat careful digesting by a select committee were these:

That there is a social gospel, and the church is under a divine compulsion to study it and teach it.

That there are social or group sins, and that it is the duty of the church to point them out and call for social or group repentance as preliminary to social or group regeneration.

That the church, symbolized by the white-horse rider of the Apocalypse, is the living, militant champion of the rights and interests of all men everywhere.

That there are no foes too great for her to engage, and no human interest too small for her to consider; no human ills too insignificant for her to attempt a cure, and no human oppression too powerful for her to challenge.

More specifically:

They found that just now certain great influences abroad among us are making a determined and successful assault on that fundamental institution—the American home. The influences are complex and varied, but none the less deadly. They are moral, economic and legal. They are economic in that the high cost of housing, feeding and clothing makes it increasingly difficult for men to maintain families in reasonable comfort. They are moral because the exploiting of sex and sex problems undermines sex integrity. They are legal because of the easy access to the marriage altar, and still easier access to the divorce court, through our divergent marriage and divorce laws.

The church through its conferences and ministry must speak its protest against all agencies that over-stimulate the sex emotions of children and youth; and insist on better legal regulation of both marriage and divorce. It must study living conditions in both country and city, together with hours of labor and wages paid, in order to protect the weak against the strong, and help by every sane means to restore the integrity of the family. It is an encouraging fact that the American Hygiene Association is carrying on its work with such success. Dr. T. W. Galloway, associate director of the Department of Educational Measures, was in attendance upon the conference for the first three days, and was exceedingly helpful in leading the discussions on that vital topic.

In the section of our common country in which we as a church especially minister, we have always present with us a state of mental uneasiness, sometimes breaking out into open conflict—a race issue. It is an issue the origin of which neither we nor our colored people are responsible. They did not come of their volition; neither did we of this generation bring them here.

Both they and we must forget the unhappy past and address ourselves to clear thinking and considerate dealing in the future. There appeared on our platform two representatives of the colored race—the widow of Booker T. Washington of Tuskegee, and Rev. Channing H. Tobias of the International Y. M. C. A. Their pleas for kindly treatment, mutual respect, and consideration for the less fortunate by the stronger race were heard by the conference and the commission with the utmost sympathy. There was unqualified condemnation of mob violence against the negro as not only violative of his rights as a citizen, but a still greater violation of our own integrity as a law-abiding people.

The migration of the negro to the north raises not only the question of our treatment of him here in his homeland and ours, but another far-reaching question of the kind of people we will have to let in, or to bring in, to take his place.

On the preservation of our Christian Sabbath the commission recommended that our churches ally themselves with the Lord's Day Alliance as they have been working with the Anti-Saloon League.

The commission warns against the widespread and insidious evils of indiscriminate and constant attendance on the moving pictures of our children, young people, and even adults.

The action of the commission on the subject of prohibition and law enforcement was in thorough keeping with the long established and best traditions of our church on that subject. There was not the faintest hint of fear for the outcome of the conflict, nor the slightest suggestion of letting up or breaking down. Our attitude was by no means a lack of appreciation of the magnitude of the undertaking, or shutting our eyes to the persistent aggressiveness, nor to say the ferocity of our wet and greedy foes, for we have the utmost confidence in the righteousness of our cause and faith in the enlightened conscience of our people.

There was a note of unmistakable resentment at the gratuitous insult flung at the South in a published declaration of Mr. Norman E. Mack, a New York politician, to the effect that the South will give its solid electoral vote to any man whom the Democratic party may nominate, regardless of his attitude toward this greatest of all moral issues before the American people at the present time.

One of the notable addresses of the conference was by Hon. Roy Haynes, U. S. Commissioner of Prohibition. Mr. Haynes does not and would not have us blink at the unmistakable gravity of the situation and the need of full active co-operation of all moral forces along all lines of approach to this most important issue. But his resume of results left every hearer cheered by the assurance of the real progress that has been made and is being made every twenty-four hours toward as complete a mastery over the defiant enemies of prohibition as over the defiant enemies of any and every other law for the protection of society.

The commission comes to the close of this conference with a distinct sense of positive achievement and with a forward look and maturing plans for future enlargement and usefulness. J. H. Light, Sec.

BREVARD INSTITUTE BREVARD, N. C.

Established 1895 Vocational
Controlled by the Woman's Missionary Council for boys and girls of high character and limited means. Agriculture, Business, Music, Household Arts. Excellent Faculty. Only student labor employed. Terms: $150.00 per school year of nine months. Apply for information, Oliver H. Orr, Brevard Institute, Brevard, N. C.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Tuscola Cottage, situated on the Asheville-Waynesville state highway, four miles from Waynesville and in a ten minutes walk of the Lake Junaluska Station and postoffice will receive guests for the summer season at the rate of ten dollars per week or two dollars per day. Buses pass hourly, going in both directions. Pure water and unusual scenic surroundings. Good table board and plenty of fresh vegetables, milk and butter. For information write

MRS. D. O. DANIEL,
Tuscola Cottage,
Lake Junaluska, N. C.

SORES

BOILS, CUTS and BURNS have been healed since 1820 with

Gray's Ointment

Sold by all druggists. Write for sample to W. F. Gray & Co., 710 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

OXFORD BIBLES

are made in so great a variety of styles and prices that there is one to suit every occasion and every purse

For Sale by Christian Advocate.

WESTERN NORTH CAROLINA

"The Land of the Sky"

MICHIGAN,
WISCONSIN,
MINNESOTA,
COLORADO,
UTAH, CALIFORNIA,
CANADA,

NEW ENGLAND,
and

Seashore Resorts

GREATLY REDUCED
SUMMER FARES
Now in Effect

via

Southern Railway System

From GREENSBORO AND OTHER POINTS

Send for Free Booklet

Convenient Schedules
Attractive Service

L. A. PEACOCK, C. T. A.
112 East Market Street,
Greensboro

IN MEMORIAM

DOUGH—Willie Lial Dough was born February 23, 1904, and was drowned off the Jersey coast June 14, 1923. He joined the Methodist church September, 1921. He was married to Miss Zorada Tillett about two years ago. He leaves a grief-stricken widow, a sweet little eight-months-old child, James, his father and mother, and three brothers and three sisters besides a host of friends to mourn their loss. May the Holy Spirit comfort the sorrowing ones.

A. W. Price.

PETERSON—John Peterson was born in Hamburg, Germany, in the year 1848, and died at Nagshead, N. C., June 21, 1923, aged about 75 years. He had been a citizen of the United States 45 years. Forty-two years ago he joined the Methodist church at Nagshead and was a faithful member until his death. I believe that Brother Peterson was a consecrated Christian. He leaves a widow and a number of children and friends to weep for him. May God's peace be with you all.

A. W. Price.

CAVINNESS—Death again invades the ranks of Asheboro Methodism, this time taking Lucile, the young daughter of John M. Caviness, chairman of our board of stewards.

In her twentieth year, a sophomore at Greensboro College, a young woman of great promise has fallen. A telegram from Dr. Turrentine testified as to her fine college record. Rich floral offerings and an immense throng at her funeral indicated how Asheboro loved her. She joined the Methodist church at Coleridge at the age of eight under the pastorate of Rev. R. L. Melton.

Her parents, a sister, Mrs. Roy Cox, of High Point, and a brother, Floyd, of Coleridge survive her.

W. H. Willis.

WOOD—Lorenza C. Wood was born January 25, 1857, in Randolph county, and died in the High Point hospital July 14, 1923, aged 66 years, five months and 19 days.

In early boyhood Brother Wood was converted and joined the Methodist church at Siloam, where he lived a faithful and consistent member until God saw fit to call him home.

He was married in 1885 to Miss Alice Stafford, who later died leaving one son, Van B. Wood, of this place. On July 4, 1895, he was married to Miss Metta Kearns, who with one son, Whitson, survive.

Brother Wood was a member of a large family, seven sons and four daughters. Only one brother, James T. Wood, of Asheboro survives.

In the passing of Brother Wood the pastor has lost a friend and brother who was always ready to stand by and encourage him in every difficulty, the county of Davidson has lost one of its best and most worthy citizens, the neighborhood has lost one of its best neighbors, the church at Siloam has lost one of its best and most faithful members.

Brother Wood was a man who had given his whole life to God. He was not willing, nor would he allow anything of the world to come between him and God. His church and the kingdom of God always came first with him because he counted these more worthy than anything else. He was a faithful husband and a kind, loving father.

His many friends extend their sympathy to the bereaved family and would point them to the light beyond the clouds, where he is ever with the Lord whom he loved and had served so faithfully here.

The funeral services were conducted in his home church by the pastor, assisted by Rev. Mr. Short, pastor of the Davidson circuit (M. P.), and in the midst of about 1200 people from Davidson and Randolph counties, and his body was laid to rest in the cemetery there. The mound where he lay was covered with the most beautiful flowers. This and the large congregation showed the love that the people who knew him had for him.

J. N. Randall, Pastor.

STOCKS—Vera Jane, a bright, sweet little baby of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Stocks, lived just one year and six days and was taken back to live in the paradise above. She was here long enough for father and mother to learn to love her, and our heart goes out in sympathy for the mother and father as they long for the sound of her baby voice and the appeal of her sweet little face.

Mr. and Mrs. Stocks want to thank their neighbors and friends for so many kind things done for them during the illness of little Vera Jane.

R. R. Grant.

REYNOLDS—Mrs. Dorcas Wilson Reynolds came of one of the best pioneer families in Western North Carolina. She married W. W. Reynolds in 1856, since when she lived an influential and useful life in West Asheville, her husband having been a Confederate veteran of Buncombe county, well known and much admired.

Mrs. Reynolds was a long time member of West Asheville Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and did much to promote its welfare.

One brother, one sister, two sons, five grandchildren and ten great-grandchildren survive her and call her blessed.

Her body rests in West Asheville cemetery, her spirit with God who gave it. "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord."

L. W. Colson, Pastor.

EDWARDS—Miss Alice Fletcher Powell joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in early life and lived its faithful member till November 3, 1922, when she was translated to the church triumphant.

She married Mr. Joseph T. Edwards, whom she leaves with nine children besides her father and many relatives and friends to revere her memory. She was indeed a devoted wife and mother, and a faithful friend withal.

Mrs. Edwards was a sister of Rev. H. L. Powell of the Western North Carolina conference.

The writer conducted the funeral service and was lastingly impressed by the manifest esteem in which the deceased was held by her community at large.

"Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of His saints."

L. W. Colson.

DAWSON—In the death of Mr. Lemuel Dawson the county or Green loses one of its substantial citizens, the community a good neighbor and friend and the home a loving husband and kind father. Brother Dawson suffered a great deal for nearly two years, and May 30 last death came.

We offer a prayer for Sister Dawson, who ministered so faithfully to his needs, and his sons and daughters who with their mother will miss him so much. His son, Earl, who is a physician, practically gave up his practice in Hookerton for over two weeks and was by his father's bedside day and night during that time and until his father passed away.

The Lord bless and keep them to the end.

R. R. Grant.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

On the morning of Tuesday, May 29, 1923, God in His infinite love, wisdom and mercy called to Himself one of our beloved members, Mrs. C. A. Spence.

She died as she had lived, strong in faith. Through all her suffering she manifested a beautiful Christian spirit, and the light of that life is still shining and will shine through eternity. Mourning her loss so deeply, we resolve:

First, That the Woman's Missionary Society of Trinity M. E. Church, South Mills, bow in perfect submission to the will of God as she did.

Second, That we extend to her two daughters our tenderest sympathy, and pray that God may be with them in their bereavement.

Third, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, a copy spread upon our minutes and a copy sent the North Carolina Christian Advocate.

Mrs. T. M. Burnham,
Mrs. M. S. Westcott,
Mrs. F. D. Williams.

INGRAM—Ray Eugene Ingram, son of J. Ernest and Ola Ingram, was born October 5, 1904. He touched a live wire of the Southern Power Company at China Grove July 10 at 2:15 p. m. and was instantly killed.

Ray Joined the M. E. church at Marion in September, 1916, under the pastorate of Rev. D. H. Rhinehart. We hope he has died in the faith. He has been a devoted, obedient boy to his mother. His father died when he was small. As a student he was always cheerful and industrious, highly respected by schoolmates and teachers. It is grief to all to see his work finished here.

The funeral services were conducted at four o'clock p. m. July 11th and his body laid to rest in Marion cemetery. To the mother and stepfather, brother and sisters, may God bless and comfort them. He says, "I will not leave you comfortless; I will come to you."

By his teacher,

Miss Pearl Niblock.

WINN—Racie E. Winn, wife of W. W. Winn of Cliffside, N. C., died June 18, 1923. She was 37 years, four months and 21 days old. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Hopper, who live in the Sharon neighborhood of Cleveland county.

While visiting her sister, Mrs. B. D. Crow, she was taken critically ill and was carried to the Rutherfordton hospital, where she underwent a serious operation, after which she lived about 30 hours. Her sudden going away brought deep sorrow to her family and many friends.

Mrs. Winn was converted in early life and joined the Methodist church, of which she remained a faithful member until death.

She was buried at her old home church, Sharon. A very large congregation attended the funeral service. The grave was covered with beautiful flowers. Truly a good woman has gone from us. She will be much missed by her Sunday school class and in the regular church services.

J. C. Keever.

LAWS—When our heavenly Father wants something choice from earth to adorn His home, He transplants a little child from earth to heaven. In their deep grief the parents weep for the child, but if they could only get a vision of the perfect happiness of their little one around the great white throne they would mingle gladness with their tears, for what better could they wish for it!

On July 11, 1923, the death angel entered the home of Brother and Sister Laws of New Bethel community and bore away the sweet spirit of their little boy, Stacy Morris, aged 13 months. He was a bright, affectionate child and had so entwined himself around our hearts it seemed almost impossible to give him up when God called him to mansions above. "While he watches and waits, let us all be pressing on to meet him when the mist has rolled away."

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. J. C. Williams and the body was laid to rest in New Bethel cemetery, where a beautiful display of flowers covered the mound.

J. C. Williams, P. C.

KRAMER—Charles Edmund Kramer, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Kramer, born in Pennsylvania, 1857; moved to Elizabeth City, 1870; shortly thereafter became a member of the Sunday school and in 1877 of the Methodist church; married Miss Sallie Holmes; died suddenly July 9th, 1923.

Industrious, frugal, efficient, spirited, he made his business serve others helpfully yet joyfully and his an ample competency. He was an Odd Fellow. Interested in the public welfare, he was the nominee of his party at the last election for the national house of representatives. But his pre-eminent concern always was for his family, his church and the Sunday school. He had filled faithfully almost every office of his local church, represented it often in the district and annual conference and on the conference boards. He was at the time of his death chairman of the stewards, recording steward, chairman of the missionary committee and a delegate to the district conference. Ever in his place at the Sunday school, church, prayer meeting, board and committee meetings, ardently interested, with emphatic views of methods, but ready to yield and to cooperate, he was to his preacher a tower of strength, a fountain of sympathy, and a modest but wise counsellor. A loving and tender husband, an indulgent father whose indulgence was restrained by wise principles, words can not express what he was to wife and daughters, to his sons-in-law who had become as his sons, and to the children. The loss to the community, church and family is immeasurable. His gain is infinite. He "walked with God and was not for a moment taken from him."

N. H. D. W.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Never in the history of our little town of Richlands has the inhabitants been in so deep a grief and gloom than on June 12th, when a most terrific explosion took place at the Thomason and Banks sawmill at 11 o'clock a. m., killing our friend and brother, Mr. Nathaniel Sylvester, Sr. In Mr. Sylvester's going so suddenly removes one of our best and most influential citizens. He was faithful and very prominent in the affairs of the county, community and town in which he lived and served. As a citizen Mr. Sylvester always stood for civic righteousness and human progress, democratic in his views, and was a man of positive conviction on all questions that engaged his attention.

Mr. Sylvester was a man of original thought and mental as well as moral courage. He will be greatly missed in his community. Cut off just in the time of his life when he was needed most, we trust that his mantle of usefulness will fall on some of his loved ones.

His home was a most happy one. He reigned a "king" in the hearts and lives of each of the family. He had a most devoted wife, a large group of intelligent children, who held him in the profoundest respect and love, and never was he happier than when in his home surrounded by his loved ones, administering to his every need and comfort. He loved his church and Sunday school, was a loyal member of the Wesley Bible class. We will miss him; his seat is vacant and we, the members of the Wesley Bible class wish to record our love and esteem for our departed brother as a faithful co-worker together with us for many years.

Resolved First, When the news flashed over the town, community and county that Mr. Nathaniel Sylvester was dead many sad hearts were bleeding, many whispered to the passersby that a useful man had passed into the great beyond.

Second, As a church and Sunday school we realize that in the death of Mr. Sylvester that we have sustained an irreparable loss, society a most valuable member, industry a great captain, the state an ideal citizen, and the wife a devoted husband, and the children a kind, loving and indulgent father.

Third, That we extend to the bereaved widow, children and friends our deep and heartfelt sympathy in their great sorrow, and commend them for comfort in their bereavement to the God of all grace, who is able to sustain them by His loving power.

Fifth, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family of our deceased brother and a copy sent to the North Carolina Christian Advocate for publication.

J. E. Steed,
J. O. Ervin,
W. S. Ervin,

A. H. Ervin, Teacher.

Our Diplomas on Bookkeeping, Shorthand, Railway Mail, Rural Carrier and Civil Service Courses will insure your success. Fall Term begins Sept. 4. Address Greensboro Commercial School, Greensboro, N. C., for Catalog.

NORTH CAROLINA Christian Advocate

TRINITY COLLEGE LIBRARY
GREENSBORO, N. C.

Volume LXVIII

GREENSBORO, N. C., THURSDAY, AUGUST 2, 1923

No. 31

EDITORIAL ~ PARAGRAPHS

The Youth's Companion, as all intelligent people know, is a chaste, high toned periodical which speaks with the greatest accuracy. The only times that this paper indulges in sharp words is when none others will meet the demands of the case. Here is what the Youth's Companion says about the anonymous letter writer: "The man who writes you an anonymous letter and signs it 'a friend' is either a liar or a coward, and perhaps he is both."

* * * *

"Our civilization cannot survive materially unless it be redeemed spiritually," says Woodrow Wilson in a recent utterance and the daily papers announce the fact in display headlines on the front page. These dailies do well to give prominence to such an utterance. But it is just what every true gospel minister has been saying from the pulpits of the land from time immemorial and we must keep on preaching this doctrine and people must come to accept it if there be personal and national salvation.

* * * *

A sermon, like the holy city that John saw coming down from God out of heaven, has four dimensions, height, depth, breadth and length. Guard well the fourth dimension. For a sermon to be low and shallow and narrow and at the same time long—well, that sermon never "came down from God out of heaven." The four sides of the heavenly city were equal. The four sides of the heavenly sermon are equal. The length should not like Pharaoh's lean kine devour the other three dimensions. Selah.

* * * *

The sexton should keep fresh air in the church and the minister should bring fresh sermons into the pulpit. Stale air and stale sermons are both disastrous to the church services. The call is not for new air, but fresh air from God's great out of doors, from God's forests and God's mountain tops. The urgency is not so much for teaching new duties as for a fresh emphasis upon old duties, not to teach new doctrines but to teach afresh the old doctrines. Sermons fresh from Mount Sinai and from Mount Calvary and all athrob with new life will meet the demands of this and every other age.

* * * *

We do well to give heed to the following from the pen of Bishop L. B. Wilson: "I think that the smallest business for the Methodist minister is to take a microscope to find and advertise defects found in the Bible, for the intellectual delight of his congregation. It is quite possible that the defects are at the subjective end of the microscope. The Book has mysteries, but what of it? You can go into any kitchen and find plenty of mysteries you can't solve. It isn't necessary to tell what you don't believe in the Bible—tell what you do. How long would it take to save the world by ministers who are telling of the mistakes of Moses and Abraham? How much better for us to have a constructive attitude. You can magnify what you know in your own personal experience. Let us postpone till we get up yonder talking about things hard to be understood in the writing of Moses and the prophets."

Do you remember how you promised God that you would stand by Him if He would only see you through? It may have been that night when love trembled and staggered as your precious child seemed to be approaching the gates of death and you prayed best because you loved best. It may have been when you yourself feared that the hour of passage to another world was close at hand and you preferred to stay here. Have you fulfilled those vows made in the solemn hours of life? He who neglects the vows made under such conditions should be ashamed to venture into the presence of the Almighty.

* * * *

Did you ever hear the apostle of gloom? His language is a croak, but the pity of it is he won't stay down by the pond. He roams here and yonder and his cry is, "the country is going to the dogs, the girls and boys are all going to ruin, public officials are crooks, the church has lost its power, etc., etc." A man like that has either a bad liver or a bad heart, and perhaps both. If a big dose of calomel will not stop his complaints a big dose of the Ten Commandments administered internally would. For there are more good people than bad people, there are more good boys and girls than bad boys and girls, there are more things to be thankful for than there are to form the grounds of a just complaint. Frogs have a right to croak, for God made them for that business and at the same time put them off where they could not annoy many people. If God had made the croaking man He would have put him in a frog pond.

* * * *

To keep some things is to throw them away. The wheat in the garner, for instance, may become weevil eaten, but cast into the soil will produce a golden harvest. The sower went forth to sow and some of the seed brought forth an hundred fold. The harvest follows the sowing. Hoarded treasures are less valuable than hidden treasures, they are wasted treasures. The miser has in every age deserved and won the contempt of all right thinking people. Coins to serve must be in circulation. Lives to be of value must serve. "He that would save his life shall lose it, and he that would lose his life shall save it," is the royal law of our Christ. The greatest servants are highest in authority. Not what one holds in his hands but what he accomplishes with his hands, not the place that he occupies but what sort of an occupant he is, "not to be ministered unto but to minister," these are considerations of prime importance. To learn and practice these is life's supreme victory. For it is the conquest of the Son of God and of the sons of God.

"Thou shall know it when it comes;
Not by any din of drums,
Nor the vantage of its airs;
Neither by its gown nor its crown,
Nor by anything it wears;
It shall only well known be
By the holy harmony
That its coming makes in thee."

PLAN OF UNIFICATION TRANSMITTED BY THE JOINT COMMISSION ON UNIFICATION WITH RECOMMENDATION TO ADOPT

Transmittal.

We, the Commissions on the Unification of the Methodist Episcopal Church and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, holding that these two churches are essentially one church, one in origin, in belief, in spirit, in purpose and in polity, and desiring that this essential unity may be made actual in organization and administration throughout the world, do hereby transmit to our respective General Conferences the following plan of unification and recommend its adoption by the two churches by the processes which they respectively require.

Article I—Declaration of Union.

The Methodist Episcopal Church and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, shall be united in one church with two jurisdictions under a constitution, with a General Conference and two jurisdictional conferences.

Article II—Name.

The name of the church shall be.....

Article III—Jurisdictions.

Section 1. Jurisdiction number one shall comprise all the churches, annual conferences, mission conferences and missions, now constituting the Methodist Episcopal Church and any other such conferences and missions as may hereafter be organized by its jurisdictional conference with the approval of the General Conference.

Section 2. Jurisdiction number two shall comprise all the churches, annual conferences, mission conferences and missions, now constituting the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and any other such conferences and missions as may hereafter be organized by its jurisdictional conference with the approval of the General Conference.

Article IV—Composition of General and Jurisdictional Conferences.

The General Conference and the jurisdictional conferences shall be composed of the same delegates. Said delegates shall be elected by and from the annual conferences, provided said general and jurisdictional conferences shall have not more than one ministerial delegate for every forty-five members of each annual conference and not less than one ministerial delegate for every one hundred and twenty members of each annual conference and an equal number of lay delegates, chosen according to the regulations of each of the two jurisdictions; but for a fraction of two-thirds or more of the number fixed by the General Conference as the ratio of representation, an annual conference shall be entitled to an additional ministerial and an additional lay delegate; and provided further that each annual conference shall be entitled to at least one ministerial and one lay delegate.

Article V—The General Conference.

Section 1. Voting—Every vote in the General Conference shall be by jurisdictions and shall require the accepted majority vote of each jurisdiction to be effective.

Sec. 2. Powers—Subject to the limitations of the constitution, the General Conference shall have full legislative power over all matters distinctively connectional, and in exercise of said power shall have authority as follows:

- 1. To define and fix the conditions, privileges and duties of church membership.
2. To define and fix the qualifications and duties of elders, deacons, local preachers, exhorters and deaconesses.
3. To make provision for such organization of the work of the united church outside the United States as may promptly consummate the unity of Episcopal Methodism in foreign lands.
4. To define and fix the powers, duties and privileges of the Episcopacy; to fix the number of bishops to be elected by the respective jurisdictional conferences and to provide in harmony with the historic practice of Episcopal Methodism, for their consecration as bishops of the whole church.
5. To altar and change the hymnal and ritual of the church, and to regulate all matters relating to the form and mode of worship subject to the limitations of the first restrictive rule.

6. To provide for a judicial system and for a method of judicial procedure of the church, except as herein otherwise provided.

7. To govern any and all enterprises and activities which may be agreed upon as being of a connectional character.

8. To provide for the transfer of members, preachers, churches, pastoral charges, districts, annual conferences, mission conferences, and missions in the United States from one jurisdiction to the other, provided that no transfer shall be made without the consent of the member, preacher, church, pastoral charge, district, annual conference, mission conference or mission that it is proposed to transfer.

Section 3. Restrictive Rules—In making rules and regulations for the church, the General Conference shall be under the following limitations and restrictions:

- 1. The General Conference shall not revoke, alter or change our Articles of Religion or establish any new standards or rules of doctrine contrary to our present existing and established standards of doctrine.
2. The General Conference shall not change or altar any part or rule of our government, so as to do away Episcopacy, or destroy the plan of our itinerant general superintendency.
3. The General Conference shall not revoke or change the general rules of the united societies.
4. The General Conference shall not do away the privileges of our ministers or preachers of trial by a committee and of an appeal; neither shall they do away the privileges of our members of trial before the church, or by a committee, and of an appeal.
5. The General Conference shall not appropriate the produce of the publishing house or of the chartered fund to any purpose other than for the benefit of the traveling, supernumerary, superannuated, and wornout preachers, their wives, widows and children.

Article VI—Bishops.

The bishops of the two churches as at present constituted shall be bishops of the united church without further action.

Immediately after the union shall have been consummated the bishops shall meet and organize as one body and shall arrange for the superintendence of the work of the church.

A bishop may be assigned to administer in any part of the church, provided that when he is assigned to administer within the jurisdiction other than that by which he was elected, it shall be with the consent of the majority of the bishops of the jurisdiction involved.

Article VII—Presidency of the General Conference.

The bishops shall select by a majority vote of the bishops of each jurisdiction one or more of their number from each jurisdiction to preside at the sessions of the General Conference.

Article VIII—Jurisdictional Conferences.

Each jurisdiction shall have a jurisdictional conference, possessing full powers of the General Conference of the church now constituting said jurisdiction, except such powers as are herein vested in the General Conference, or which may hereafter from time to time be legally delegated to the General Conference by the jurisdictional conferences.

Each jurisdictional conference shall meet quadrennially where the General Conference is to assemble and immediately prior to its assembling, and when desirable may meet during the session of the General Conference, and at such other times and places as it may determine.

Article IX—The Judicial Council.

1. The General Conference shall, at its first session, provide for a judicial council, to be composed of an equal number of members elected by each jurisdictional conference, and the judicial council shall provide its own methods of procedure.

2. The judicial council shall be authorized to review, upon appeal of one-fifth of the members of the General Conference, or of either jurisdictional conference, or on the appeal of a majority of the bishops on constitutional grounds, the acts of the General Conference and of the jurisdictional conferences; to hear and to determine all other appeals and matters coming to it in the course of legal procedure.

3. The judicial council shall have the right on its own motion, subject to such rules and regulations as shall be determined by the General Conference, to review the legislative acts of the General Conference or of either jurisdictional conference and to pass on the constitutionality of said acts.

4. The judicial council shall also have power to arrest an action of a connectional board or other connectional body when such action is brought before it by appeal by one-fifth of the members of said body, present and voting, or by a majority of the bishops.

5. All decisions of the judicial council shall be made by a majority of the total membership of the council.

Article X—Amendments.

The General Conference shall at its first session provide in harmony with the existing procedure of the two churches a method of amending the constitution and until such method shall have been adopted, amendments shall be effected through the process now prevailing in the churches, respectively.

Article XI—Schedule.

In all matters not specifically set forth in these articles and until the General Conference by legal process shall otherwise ordain, the rules of government in the disciplines of the respective churches shall be of full force and effect and binding upon the jurisdictions, respectively.

Recommendation.

We recommend that financial support of the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church be continued by the jurisdiction with which it is historically related and to such an extent as that jurisdiction may deem wise.

A LETTER TO THE EDITOR

"Being a Methodist and knowing the rules of the church and the vows that we all take when joining the church, how can a steward who is a town official vote for cafes, drug stores and ice houses to open on Sunday? Wasn't the fourth commandment written for us? And also what do you think of the Methodist church putting on plays to raise money? Please answer a Methodist through the Advocate.

Thanking you and praying God's blessing upon you and your work, I am, Sincerely, _____"

As to the first question, should cafes, drug stores and ice houses keep open on Sunday? Most assuredly not for commercial reasons. A man has just as much moral right to make money on Sunday by selling dry goods or groceries as he has in the sale of ice or sandwiches.

But there may be other things to consider. Some may be dependent upon the cafe for meals, or medicine may be needed from the drug store or ice from the ice house for the sick. If so, the hungry and the sick should be supplied.

Jesus Christ laid down the law of the Sabbath which limits work on the Sabbath day to deeds of necessity and deeds of mercy. An honest application of that simple law offers the solution for all problems of working on Sunday.

"Shall the church raise money by putting on plays?" is another question raised by "Methodist." Why not make the answer broader than the question and reply that no church should substitute an indirect method for the direct method of raising money. Let church members pay directly into the Lord's treasury and take no circuitous route by way of ticket to an entertainment, through a bowl of oyster soup or over a plate of ice cream. While this is emphatically our notion of the matter, we do not at the same time see any harm in a semi-social occasion being used once in a while by an organization of the church to raise funds for some special purpose that it may have in hand.

SHALL THE SLAUGHTER CONTINUE?

The Associated Press Monday morning reported 25 deaths last Sunday at grade crossings in this country. Two of these were at Lilesville in North Carolina. This list does not include the injured who escaped death or that number of which the great news agency got no information.

Perhaps an equal number were killed and injured in automobile accidents of one sort and another apart from railroad crossings. When will people learn to exercise greater care in driving automobiles? The elimination of grade crossings and the proper enforcement of wise laws of the road will serve to reduce the death list. But if accidents are entirely eliminated the man or woman at the wheel must learn to exercise that caution which spells safety.

PEOPLE AND THINGS

Western North Carolina Conference, Winston-Salem, October 17.

North Carolina Conference, Elizabeth City, November 14.

Rev. D. W. Brown of West End, Gastonia, left last Tuesday for a month in the west and Canada. He is with a party of tourists.

Dr. Richard L. Ownby, of Columbia, is off to his native habitat, North Carolina, for that month's rest given him by his church.—Methodist Advocate.

Rev. W. L. Dawson closed a meeting last week at Morehead church, where 20 were concerted, 19 have joined the church and five others will join. He is in a meeting this week at the Battle Ground church on the Summerfield circuit. Next Sunday he begins at Center with three sermons Sunday, 11 a. m., 3 and 8 p. m. Two services each day through the week.

Last Sunday, July 22, was a red letter day, so to speak, at Mt. Holly Methodist church. The pastor, Rev. O. P. Ader, received five men into our church by baptism. Three were the heads of homes, and two were the grown sons of one of the fathers. Pastoral visiting and prayer in the homes brought them in without any revival being in sight, and yet this is no hint at opposition to the revival. In the simultaneous revivals to be held in every Protestant church in Gaston county, beginning September 16, Mt. Holly hopes to be "one of them."

Miss Alva Bernice Smith, daughter of the late Rev. E. E. Smith, near Harmony, N. C., was married to Samuel Hoyle Hilton of Newton, N. C., Thursday afternoon. Miss Smith is one of the most accomplished young ladies of the community, having taught school in several counties, and a fine Christian. Mr. Hilton is a fine Christian gentleman and in charge of the Texaco Oil business in Newton. The family and a few friends were present. Rev. W. J. S. Walker, pastor of the bride on the West Davie circuit, performed the ceremony. They will make their home in Newton.

A. W. Harris and H. H. Sherman, the secretaries of the Joint Commission on Unification of the two Methodisms, sends out the following: "The Joint Commission on Unification in session in Hotel Winton, Cleveland, O., Wednesday, July 25th, approved the enclosed document for transmission to the two General Conferences. Forty-two commissioners were present and voting and the paper was adopted by a 'yea' and 'nay' vote. 'Ayes' 39. 'Noes' 3. On the question of name the joint commission passed the following resolution: 'That the selection of a name for the United Church be referred to the first General Conference of the United Church.'"

Mrs. O. P. Ader is on a visit to Stockton, California, to see her father and mother, who celebrated their golden wedding anniversary this year, and brothers and other kin. She will be gone about two months, returning some time in August. She met Rev. J. A. B. Fry in Stockton, who invited her to preach in his church on Sunday. She has quite a name in the West as an evangelist. She will visit also on her return a brother and sister in Iowa. Her brother-in-law, the Rev. Herbert Buffam, is noted as an evangelist and writer of songs. And his wife, Mrs. Ader's sister, is one of the strong women evangelists of the West.

The Junior Order Journal, on its front page last week, carried an excellent cut and the following interesting item about Judge N. L. Eure of Greensboro: "For a score of years Judge Eure has been a leader in the Junior Order in this state. Soon after he joined the order he was elected to office in his subordinate council, which was Greensboro No. 13, and filled various subordinate offices including that of councillor. He was then elected as representative to the State Council, where his conservative leadership and good judgment made itself felt in the upbuilding of the order. He filled the office of state vice and state councillor with credit and has since served two terms as national representative. The same wholesome influence that he has exerted in the Junior Order has been felt in the civic, educational and religious life of Greensboro, his home city, where he is one of the leading attorneys."

The Methodist Orphanage singing class is to give a sacred concert in the Roanoke Rapids Methodist church the first Sunday evening in August at eight o'clock, Rev. E. N. Harrison and his Rosemary congregation uniting in the service.

Rev. W. J. S. Walker, pastor West Davie circuit, says: "Conference collections within a few dollars of being paid. One good meeting just closed at Hane's Grove. Bro. A. C. Swafford of Mocksville station assisted us. Things moving on very well on West Davie."

Prof. H. L. King, Asheville, N. C., of whom mention was made last year in these columns that he drives his car like a young man, although 80 years of age, is now 81 years old and still keeps up his touring habits. One of his favorite trips is from Asheville to Greenville, S. C.

Rev. H. C. Byrum writes that he is expecting a large number of ministers this year at the Rock Springs camp meeting which begins August fifth and continues through the thirteenth day of the same month. Those who attend whether ministers or laymen may expect a profitable occasion. It is good to be at this historic camp ground.

Rev. N. R. Richardson was in Greensboro last Monday on the way from Leaksville to his home in Mt. Pleasant. He is looking the best that we have seen him. His youth is being renewed. Brother Richardson is supplying at Leaksville for Bro. W. L. Sherrill, the pastor, who is resting for a little while after the surgical operation that he underwent several weeks ago. Brother Sherrill expects to take up his work again September 1.

Dr. N. M. Watson, pastor of State Street church, Bristol, Tenn., and formerly a member of the North Carolina conference, is one of the members of the Commission on Unification which has just agreed upon a plan of union of Episcopal Methodism. Dr. Watson reports in the Herald Courier among other things that there was perfect harmony among the representatives of the two churches in working out the details of the plan of union and that of the 19 commissioners present from the Northern church all voted for the plan and of the 21 in attendance from the Southern church three voted against the plan. But he does not mention the names of the three.

TAKE NOTE OF THIS

An official copy of the Plan of Unification as adopted by the Commissions of the Methodist Episcopal Church and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, at their recent meeting in Cleveland, Ohio, is this week given the readers of the Advocate for their careful reading. This is an important document. We shall hear much of it in the coming months. It will be transmitted to the General Conference of the Northern church which will assemble next May in Springfield, Mass. If that conference should adopt the Plan as transmitted, or even with slight modifications, the bishops of the Southern church would probably call a session of the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, to consider the action of the Northern church.

If a plan of union should be adopted by the two general conferences this plan would go to all of the annual conferences of the two churches, which would require approximately a year's time.

Regardless of what may finally become of this plan that we publish, readers of the Advocate would do well to study it carefully and then lay it aside for reference as the discussion proceeds.

PLEASANT GROVE CAMP MEETING

The people of the Waxhaw charge, Union county, are looking forward with a great deal of interest to the third Sunday in August. That is the day set apart for the beginning of Pleasant Grove camp meeting. Rev. S. R. Belk, D. D., a former Union county boy, but now one of the leading members of the North Georgia conference, is to be present and do a major part of the preaching. Tuesday, August 21st, has been designated "Union County's Preachers' Day." There are more than 25 Methodist ministers in active service who were reared in Union county, and it is expected that a large number of these will be present on that day. A number of Union's sons will preach during the meeting. Those in charge of the services urge all of the Union county preachers to be present.

THE CHARLOTTE OBSERVER AND JUDGE GRADY

The Charlotte Observer last Tuesday morning in an editorial of unusual merit concerning the case of Judge Grady says among other things:

"The Observer has no hesitancy in expressing the opinion that he never should have been elected to the office he holds and that he would not have been elected except through a species of false pretense by which he obtained the votes of a good many people who would not have voted for him had not the information been concealed from them that he had sworn allegiance to another government than that of the State of North Carolina and that of the United States. Doubtless there were those who voted for him and helped to elect him, not knowing the facts in the case, who would not vote for him again, even if his name appeared on the Democratic ticket, and they are life long Democrats, too."

Other paragraphs in the editorial run like this: "Of course Judge Grady has not publicly admitted that he is a member of the Klan or has any connection with it, official or otherwise. Had he admitted it, as we understand the matter, he would have been violating his oath as a Klansman. However, he has not denied it, but contented himself with saying that it is none of the public's business—none of the business of the voters who elected him to know what governments he has sworn allegiance in conflict with his allegiance to the state and the United States. And the public has evidence enough to remove all doubt.

"As the public understands it, Judge Grady is in the position of a judge of the superior court of the great State of North Carolina who is ready to administer justice and the law fairly and without fear or favor or prejudice, as long as the interests of the Ku Klux Klan or members thereof are not involved, his oath as a Klansman takes precedence over his oath as a judge. Maybe the public has the wrong impression, but as long as that is its understanding, or the understanding of a large part of the public, it presents a deplorable situation, calculated to prove a tremendous factor in weakening the confidence of a large element of the people in the courts and their justice in administering the law.

"Judge Grady cannot serve two masters, where their interests conflict, any more than a lawyer at the bar can do his duty while representing both parties to a suit in litigation."

THE ADVOCATE FACES A SUIT FOR HEAVY DAMAGES

In the issue of July 19, the Advocate carried upon its front page a cut under which was written "Bishop Edwin D. Mouzon, D. D." Whereupon Bishop Mouzon, being mindful of how St. Paul said that a bishop "must have a good report of them that are without, lest he fall into reproach and the snare of the devil," is anxious to know why his name should have been placed under a picture of Ramases II and then adds, "I have a good notion to sue you for libel."

This is not the first time that threats of damage suits have followed the running of cuts in the Advocate. But we expect to escape the condemnation of the civil courts because our General Rules, of which Bishop Mouzon was the learned expositor, at the very time that his name got mixed up with King Tut or some other ancient worthy, prohibits "brother going to law with brother."

Courage and candor, however, compels us to add that we do not expect to hide behind a legal technicality, and hereby promise never to use that cut again, because the good bishop has promised us a picture that does him justice.

SHOP TALK

It has always been the custom of the management to continue sending the Advocate to its subscribers till notified to discontinue. If you do not want yours continued please notify us at once.

The statements that we are sending out each day for small amounts would assist us greatly during these lean days if paid. The amounts are not large, but put together they would tide us over. If you have received a statement please enclose the small amount at once. If a mistake has been made write us and it will be corrected. Thanks.

OUR MONTHLY SERMON: The Power of Music

(A sermon by Elmer Ellsworth Helms, D. D., delivered at the dedication of Ewart Watchorn Memorial Organ, First church, Los Angeles, Cal., July 15, 1923. Text: "I am their music."—Lam. 3, 63.)

Tubal Cain, the first organ builder, has had a worthy line of successors in Sebastian Bach, George Hogarth, Joseph Booth, Thomas Robjohn, Edward Jardine; but none greater than John T. Austin, builder of the great organ we dedicate this morning—the greatest organ ever installed on the Pacific Coast or in a Methodist church.

The first great organ of modern times, built in 757, belonged to the king of France. At the first organ recital a woman fell into delirium from which she never recovered. Be not surprised at that, for you will listen to this great organ when it will seem to weep out like a multitude of broken hearts. Now it will have the roar of a cataract, the thunder of a storm the ripple of a wave, the soft zephyr of the eventide; now a mighty major, then a melting minor; dramatic and holy, splendid and simple, solemn and serious, stormy and calm. You will hear it sob like a mother over an empty cradle, and moan like a young wife over the first little coffin. The mightiest stop in the great organ is the "tremolo" and "vox humana"—the stop that pours out sorrow and tears and sobs. What a human divine thing the organ is. No wonder Luther said, "Music is the daughter of heaven," and Keats, "Music hath a golden tongue." According to the belief of mythology music came from the gods. Mercury invented the lyre, Minerva the flute, Pan the pipes.

This great temple had a forerunner—greater and grander. It took seven years, 183,500 workmen and $4,447,500 for its construction. It was built by one—King Solomon. At the dedication there were 200,000 singers and 40,000 instruments.

The Book in which you will find the description of that great occasion is a very encyclopedia of music. It is full of harps, flutes, cymbals and trumpets. It rings with melodies, carols, refrains, chants, paeans. It has 467 references to this subject.

Music Rules the World.

Music rules the natural world. That was a great day when the planets first swung in place and space. That was a greater day when the spheres were anointed with song. The world was born with music—when the "stars first sang together." The world was redeemed with music—"Peace on earth, good will toward men." The world will end with music—"The Song of Moses and the Lamb." God's great organ is nature. "The stars are the keys"—the stars "Forever singing as they shine,

The hand that made us is divine."

Says Schopenhauer, "Music is the melody to which the world is the text."

We used to think it was poetry that Congreve spoke—"Music hath power to soften rocks or bend a knotted oak." That's not poetry. Under the power of the music of the great organ in the cathedral of Rheims, the stone walls years ago began to crumble. The architects say this was a direct result of the vibrations. It has been recently discovered that the stones of the churches of northern Germany are crumbling under the minor chords of the great organs. Scientists have but just discovered that there is one tone that will crumble rock, even the hardest flint. And scientists believe it is possible for a sound to be reached which will disintegrate the diamond. Music "hath power to soften rocks." When we read that Apollo played and the rocks did listen, that was nearer science than poetry.

"Orpheus with his lute made trees,
And the mountain tops that freeze,
Bow themselves when he did sing,
To his music."

Music rules the natural world. All the air is filled with invisible bells. Angels are the ringers and the music falls in waves "as sweet as melted pearl." Didn't you ever hear the mountains ring with music and all the hills sing with joy? The fing of the winds, the beating of the waves, the sighing of the boughs, the whisk of the birds' wing—these are part of Nature's great orchestra. The chirping robin, the twittering swallow, the caroling lark, the trilling thrush, the warbling canary—these are part of Nature's great choir. The dirge of the tree tops, the moaning of the seas, the weird soundings of the woods, the whisper of the spring, the cadence of the waterfall, the zephyr of the winds, the rhythm of the brook—these are Nature's minor chords.

The deep roar of the ocean as it beats against the rocks, the thundering oratorio of the cataract, the crash of the storm, "the music of the spheres"—these are Nature's major chords. "Everything that hath breath" doth declare that music rules the world of Nature.

Music a Power in National Life.

Music rules the national world. He was more than poet who said, "If I may write a nation's songs, I care not who writes her laws." One national air is worth more to a country than an army of 100,000 men. What the "Marseillaise" has done for France, "God Save the King" for England, "The Star Spangled Banner" has done for America. Song has slain more than the sword. Ten thousand Greeks rush into the battle of Marathon and under the intoxication of their national song drive 100,000 Persians into the sea. A handful of Christians at Tours, singing as they fight, "The Lord is a strong tower," scatter the hordes of Saracens every whitherward. Gustavus Adolphus' wars were thirty years of triumph inspired by song. The victories of Scotland, Cromwell, Luther were the victories of Christian song.

Music the Great Heart Power.

Music rules the human world. It elevates the thought, purifies the soul, uplifts the life, awakens holy emotions. It gives polish and finish. It vivifies the respiration, energizes the muscles, quickens the circulation, stirs the soul. Not what a man says but what a man sings determines his character. Not the acts but the songs reveal the man.

"The man that hath no music in himself,
Nor is not moved with concord of sweet sounds,
Is fit for treasons, stratagems, and spoils."

Says one, "He who does not sing at his work is a dangerous man." "All one's life is music if one but touch the notes rightly and in time," says Ruskin. Would that were true of all. "Within men are lutes and sing harps"—true if men but knew how to touch the strings. When Liszt's father asked him what he would be, he pointed to the picture of Beethoven and said, "That." And in answer to his father's surprise, said, "It is in me." Music—it is in us all if we but knew it. "Some men move through life as a band of music moves down a street, flinging out melody on every side, to every one near and far." "The passing of many is as the passing of Evangeline; when they pass there is the ceasing of sweet music."

Long after it was heard no more."

"The music in my heart I bore

When Handel, writing "The Messiah," wrote, "He was despised and rejected of men," he fell sobbing. Handel had ears we wot not of. When Jenny Lind was in this country more than seventy years ago, Dr. Lyman Abbott went to hear her in the great oratorio "The Messiah." He tells us an old sea captain sat beside him and asked him to point out the great singer. After a chorus or two and a few solos, Jenny Lind arose and sang, "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden." As she sang the heavens seemed to open and the great audience heard not her but Him singing down the ages, "Come unto me." As she finished, a silence more eloquent than applause hushed the audience. Doctor Abbott hearing a harsh, guttural sound, turned and behold! the old sea captain snoring. There is no music without unless there is music within.

Music is more healing than medicine. It hath power to soothe the troubled breast. Pythagoras was in the habit of quieting his troubles with the harp. Philip V of Spain cured himself of melancholy by listening to the famous singer Farinelli. Elijah in trouble asked that music be brought. Saul soothed his perturbed spirits with David's harp. The old philosopher claimed that music could restore the original harmony of the soul. Paul and Silas found that music soothed and softened their dungeon bed. Beautifully and truthfully says Longfellow:

"And the night shall be filled with music,
And the cares that infest the day
Shall fold their tents like the Arabs,
And silently steal away."

No wing has such power to lift as music.

Music and Religion.

Music rules the religious world. No God no music. He is the inspiration of it. Music comes from God and leads back to God. Montesquieu says, "Music is the only art that does not corrupt the mind, for it is born of God." He started the stars to singing and inspired the angels to chant "Glory to God in the highest," and filled the hearts of the redeemed hosts with "Holy, holy, holy." God—that's the name that sets all the strings of the soul vibrating. Religion is the mother of music. Even the Holy Spirit is put under the figure of music when it says, "Thou hearest the sound thereof." There are more commands to sing than to pray. "Sing ye to God all ye kingdoms of the earth, sing ye to God." Paul exhorts us to "admonish one another in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs."

The loftiest book of music ever given to the world was given to us by David, the sweet singer of Israel. His 150 psalms are 150 songs. The first book printed in America was a psalm-book. The religious world has more than 400,000 hymns. The New Testament church, the Scotch church, the early Methodist church was a triumphant church because a singing church. The great musical productions have been religious productions: Mendelssohn's "Elijah," Haydn's "Creation," Beethoven's "Mount of Olives," Bach's "Ascension," Spohr's "Last Judgment." When Spurgeon has been forgotten, and Beecher's name is mildewed, and Luther's sermons are out of print, Wesley, Toplady, Perronet, and Adams will live on through their "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," "Rock of Ages," "Coronation," and "Nearer, my God, to Thee." A chronometer can measure time, a cyclometer can measure distance, but nothing can measure the power of music.

For sixteen years no music was heard in the ancient temple. A temple without music. A soul without music. In vision does it not come over you—the evenings when around the little cabinet organ with your mother you used to sing, "Is my name written there?" "Safe in the arms of Jesus," "Hear the bells of Heaven"? The bells of heaven—don't you hear them? They ring out "Oh, where is my wandering boy tonight?" Only the music of heaven can make melody in the soul.

Music in Heaven.

Music rules the heavenly world. There is one link between earth and heaven—music. The twenty-two chapters of Revelations are full of the music of heaven. Music is heaven and heaven is music. There is no discord in heaven and that makes heaven. There is nothing but discord in hell, and that makes hell. "Music is the love language of the soul." It is the language of the skies.

All earthly things shall pass away—all but music. It is the one immortal thing. The music of all bubbling streams and singing trees and sweet sounds and noble friendships will roll on beyond the grave. "And I heard voices as it were a great thunder, and they sang a new song—the song of Moses and the Lamb." "Great and marvelous are thy works, Lord God Almighty." And the 144,000 shouted Amen and Amen. As says Pope, "Heaven, and heaven alone, is full of the sounds that song has sown." When Handel wrote the Hallelujah chorus he saw the heavens open. Music opens heaven.

Richter says: "Music brings the waves of eternity near the weary heart of man as he stands on the shores of time longing to cross over. Music is the evening breeze of this and the morning breeze of the future life." As King Henry IV lay dying, he said, "Angels whisper music to my weary spirit." The morning breezes were fanning his locks. A soldier at Fort Donelson, two limbs torn off, life fast oozing away, turned his pale face up towards the pale stars and whispered,

"Though like a wanderer, the sun gone down,
Darkness be over me, my rest a stone,
Yet in my dreams I'd be
Nearer, my God, to Thee, nearer to Thee."

Unbar the gates. Let the music float out. Let the redeemed float in.—Christian Advocate (N. Y.)

THE JOY OF THE READING HABIT

George C. Wilding.

What different ideas people have of the enjoyment of reading. We know people to whom the reading of an interesting book is enjoyment of the very highest order. To others it is a wearisome sort of inactivity. We know a retired business man of means in poor health who can read nothing but the market quotations of his morning paper. The rest of the long day he spends looking out of the window onto a narrow, dull city street, or playing with the cat.

I was a normal, healthy boy, passionately fond of life in the open, on and in the waters of that dear old Ohio river in the summer, roaming the woods in the autumn, and coasting and skating in the winter. All sorts of boyish games and sports had a strong grip upon me. Hence I did not take seriously to reading very early in life.

When I was about thirteen, away back in 1859, in Virginia, my father subscribed for Robert Bonner's New York Ledger. It was a beautifully printed paper. I have always been very susceptible to high grade print and paper. I soon became deeply interested in this paper. Its stories by Sylvanus Cobb, Jr., and Emma D. E. N. Southworth, and articles and sketches by Fannie Fern, Theodore Tilton, Harriet Beecher Stowe and Henry Ward Beecher; and poems by John G. Saxe, Longfellow and Whittier, caught my boyish mind and stirred my imagination.

Soon after this I was fortunate enough to borrow a bound volume of Harper's Magazine. I read it eagerly, hungrily. It opened up a new world to me, and made a profound impression upon my mind. I remember that I was delightfully thrilled by Porte Crayon's Virginia sketches.

I find that I have little tendency to read the books which I have read in the past. My memory is too retentive for that. I dip into the classics only at rare intervals, but when I do I enjoy them.

My reading is quite general. I do not take to works on philosophy, science or theology. I rarely read a speech, address or sermon. Books of personal opinion do not often interest me. I am specially fond of biography, such as that large life of Phillips Brooks. The autobiography of "What Books Mean to Me."

Andrew Carnegie, Strachey's Life of Queen Victoria, The Life and Letters of Walter H. Page, The Americanization of Edward Bok, and those Reminiscences of Great Men by Lyman Abbott. Books of history I keenly relish, such as Macaulay's and Greene's England and Parkman's History of France in America. Well written books of travel and adventure hold me closely. Fiction I am coming to like more and more. Dickens, Scott, Thackeray, Trollope, Stevenson, Marshall De Quincey, Galeworthy, Hardy, Hawthorne and Irving I have learned to enjoy. And I am specially partial to some of those Southern story writers, William Malcolm Johnston, Joel Chandler Harris and Thomas Nelson Page. Poetry of sentiment does not appeal to me. But poems that are wrapped around some interesting incidents, such as Evangeline, Maud Muller, Enoch Arden or Snow Bound are as soft, sweet music to my being.

As the years pass by I take more and more time to read. I read a great deal more than I used to, as I have more leisure of late years. I should think that I read fully fifty books each year, besides the chief magazines, Atlantic, Harper's, Century, Scribners and Outlook. Books are not read aloud in our family. Our tastes differ too much for that. An overplus of individuality is in the way of this exercise.

I remember that I was, as a boy, thrilled by a story in The New York Ledger by Mrs. Southworth entitled, The Hidden Hand. One day, a few years ago, I was browsing around in the book department of Macy's Department Store in Gotham, when I suddenly came upon this old story in book form. I bought it for a small sum, took it home and read it with just as keen relish as I did away back in 1857 when I was a half grown, untutored boy. The story was just as good as ever. It stood the test of sixty-five years of growth and change. Doubtless some of your elderly readers enjoyed this breezy Virginia story in The Ledger when they too were young people away back in those good old antebellum days so pleasant to remember.

That bound volume of Harper's Magazine which so fascinated me as a boy sixty years ago, I read in leisure moments in a village store in western Virginia. I borrowed it from an intelligent, reading family of Yankee people from that little Nutmeg State. On stormy days, when customers were few and far between, I would take my little stool and squat behind the showcase just under the big front window and fairly revel in the delicious contents of this standard old monthly. Soon I was utterly lost to the mercenary, commonplace world around me. I was roaming free-footed through green fields and romantic forests. This was a perfectly new world to me. I had no knowledge of it hitherto. What a wonderful discovery I had made. Who ever forgets an experience of this sort?

After my adventure with The Hidden Hand I fell to studying about those fragrant sketches of Porte Brayon's regarding his carriage tour through those attractive Virginia mountains with his girl cousins one summer in the late fifties. I began to feel as if I should like to read them all once more. So I went to our public library and secured this well-worn old volume, and I read it with the same deep interest that had marked my first reading in Harper's so long ago. If you have any doubts of this get this old book and read it for yourself, and I'm sure that you will be convinced. It is real literature.

When I married and went to housekeeping I determined to own a library of my very own, as the children say. I had our village carpenter build for my future library a tall black walnut book case. Very soon I had two shelves filled with books. When I started out in the ministry I moved my book case with me. But I soon discovered that it was too bulky and too heavy to move about. On my second circuit we were building a parsonage. In a fit of generosity I sold my handsome book case to our village doctor, and with the proceeds thereof I paid my subscription to the new parsonage. So the book case served a good purpose after all.

When I settled down in earnest to study, soon after I began preaching, I became book hungry. I wanted desperately to buy certain books, but where was the necessary money to come from? After much cogitation I hit upon a practical plan of solving this difficult financial problem. I sold a lot of family Bibles in a canvass of my parish and cleared the handsome sum of thirty dollars thereon. This huge sum I at once invested in those much desired books. At that time this looked to me like a lot of money to squander in this way, but I was perfectly happy over the investment. Later on in my ministry I learned that this slight sum of money was but a drop in the bucket when it came to building up a preacher's library in good earnest. But it was a wise use of my hard-earned money. The growing preacher must not starve his mind any more than he would starve his body.

After this experience, every fall at the conference session I would spend a good deal of my leisure time hanging around the table of the Book Concern, fingering over those alluring and tempting volumes and talking to the agent about them. It usually ended in my carrying home after conference a good-sized bundle of new books. In this way my tiny library kept swelling out into larger proportions.

After coming to the fringe of this great metropolis I was not long in discovering its many second-hand book stores, and I began to frequently haunt them. On Monday afternoons after the preachers' meeting in the morning, a preacher friend with me, we would do a half dozen of these stores. Often we secured standard works at a trifling price. Of course I still kept on buying the newer books at our Book Concern. In these stores I bought mainly reference books, commentaries, cyclopedias and hand books of various kinds, for with plenty of these around you one can make his own books. General books for my leisure reading I could easily get at our public libraries, which are abundant all around me here.

As I grew more mature and mellow, in my later ministry, I began to discover that I had outgrown certain books, and there were others which I did not need. For instance, quite early in my study of pulpit work I had discovered the vast importance of the use of fitting, unique and helpful illustrations as windows in the solid walls of the sermon. So I began buying books of illustrations wherever I could find them. In a dozen years I had made some refreshing discoveries in myself. With my Welsh, emotional, dramatic temperament I needed no books of illustrations to help me out. In preaching, if I became at all "het up," my imagination would take fire and the illustrations by the hand would leap out of the bushes and come running toward me with handles on, shouting, "Use me, use me." I had difficulty often in making a swift selection as, of course, I could not use them all. This fault is almost as bad as using no illustrations at all. Later on I began sending my spare books to a little Methodist college up in the mountains of western Virginia, which I helped to found more than forty years ago. Up to this time I have shipped about two thousand books there. Just think of the good they will do as the years go rolling around. Hundreds of our retired preachers could in this way greatly add to the limited libraries of little colleges and academies.

Yes, Dr. Rowland, the nimble and versatile editor of The Richmond Christian Advocate, and myself are Welchmen. His ancestors came from that romantic land of Cambria, and I was born in that delightful valley of the River Wye in South Wales. What a language our people speak. Here are the names of some of their towns: Llangennech, Iregeriog, Cwmgwarch, Llangernyw, Gwalchmai, Gwancaegurwen, Llanfairtalhairan, Clawyddnewydd. There, catch your breath! Are they not stunners? How my little Welch mother could rattle off those awkward sentences.

When I took the retired relation at the age of seventy-five, I destroyed about a thousand sermon sketches. I was afraid that some promising young preacher would get hold of them later on and be seriously crippled by their use. Those miserable books of sermon sketches have dwarfed and hampered hundreds of many otherwise brilliant young ministers. When put on sale they should be properly labeled—"Ready-Made Helps for Lazy Preachers; Crutches for Mental Cripples."

East Orange, N. J.

YEAR BOOK OF THE CHURCHES

The Year Book of the Churches, 1923, edited by E. O. Watson, is just off the press. This edition retains all the features that made the Year Book of 1921-22 so valuable and adds new features further increasing interest in the book and adding to its value for reference.

The first 251 pages are taken up with a Directory of Religious Bodies, carefully brought up to date. This gives full statement of history, doctrine and polity, not only for the evangelical denominations, but for various organizations concerning the history and progress of which all should be informed. The officials, boards, periodicals, editors, educational institutions and executives are listed under each denomination. In previous editions addresses were given only of board headquarters, but in this edition effort has been made to get addresses of individual members of boards.

A table that should prove of interest and value is found on page 401, showing the relative growth, numerical and per cent, of Roman Catholics and Protestants in the United States from 1890 to 1922.

The 1923 edition surpasses that of 1922 in value. All who had the 1922 edition should have that of 1923, and thousands who have never been introduced to the Year Book will find it invaluable as a mine of useful information and a ready hand-book. It is fully indexed, bound in cloth and sells for $1.50. Copies should be ordered from the Washington office of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, Rev. E. O. Watson, Secretary, 937 Woodward Building, Washington, D. C.

NORTH CAROLINA CHRISTIAN
ADVOCATE

Official Organ of the North Carolina and Western North Carolina Conferences Methodist Episcopal Church, South. Established 1855.

Entered at the Postoffice at Greensboro, N. C., as mail matter of the second class, acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided in section 1102, act of October 2, 1917, authorized September 9, 1918.

Obituaries and Resolutions of one hundred words published free. All words above this number charged for at rate of 1 cent per word.

A. W. PLYLER .....Editor
T. A. SIKES ..... Business Manager

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Year .....$2.00
Six Months ..... 1.00
To all preachers of the Gospel, year 1.00

FIELD NEWS

LAYMEN AND PREACHERS OF THE
W. N. C. CONFERENCE

If your charge or church has not elected a delegate to the Laymen's Conference to be held at Lake Junaluska from the 10th through the 15th of August do not fail to have this done next Sunday. Be very careful to select the right man and a man that will go. If the man you select does not feel that he is in a position to pay his expenses there is no congregation that cannot afford to expend a little amount along this line. It will bring you back large dividends if you will do it.

I am exceedingly anxious that the Western North Carolina conference have the largest delegation of any conference in the whole church. Won't you, therefore, Brother Preacher, if you haven't a representative for your charge see that you have one appointed? To the lay brother—any one of whom may be elected to this place—I beg you not to allow any business engagements to interfere with this. It is God's business and you should prepare yourself for that equipment as carefully as you would for any other avocation. It will only take six days. Can't you give that to the service of your church and your Lord? I beg of you to do so. Chas. H. Ireland, Lay Leader of Conference.

ROCK SPRING CAMP GROUND; AN INTERESTING LETTER

I have just read the Advocate and one very interesting piece to me was that one written about Rock Springs camp meeting, which is a sacred and hallowed place to me, and I wish to write you something in connection with the history of the camp ground.

My grandfather, who was Rev. Jacob D. Hill, was one of the number of Methodist preachers who founded and located the camp ground, and held the first prayer meeting ever held there. I can't give you a full list of the names who founded the camp ground and Rehobeth church, but I think I can find out from an old lady who lives right at the church, and who I think knew all of them, and could get other points of information that would be of interest concerning the camp ground and Rehobeth church. His name was not mentioned as one of the founders of the camp ground and as "honor to whom honor is due" I wanted you all to know that he was one of the number. My sainted mother has often told us children of the first little prayer meeting ever held there, when my grandfather with some other preachers started out to find some suitable place to hold a camp meeting; so they found a rock from which was flowing a small stream of water and decided to have the camp ground there, cut down a few trees, and knelt there to have the first prayer meeting; hence it got the name Rock Spring Camp Ground.

My mother, Mrs. Frank Wilkinson, was Mattie M. Hill before her marriage and a daughter of Rev. Jacob D. Hill. My grandparents and some of the Hill family, including my dear mother, are buried at Rehobeth church, a dear and sacred place to me. My husband and I were there at Rehobeth Memorial Day, the first Sunday in May. We are planning to go to the camp meeting this year if nothing prevents.

My grandfather's was always the home for the preachers, and was about four miles from the camp ground and Rehobeth church. Two of my uncles were also Methodist preachers—S. J. and H. D. Hill.

I did not mean to give you a history of the Hill family when I started to write, but you will excuse me for this much I am sure.

We love to read the Advocate, and look forward to it's coming with much pleasure. We love the Methodist church, too, and its advancement.

Our heartiest good wishes for the success and promotion of the Advocate in years to come, for which we have been a subscriber for a number of years. Mrs. W. H. Payne.

FROM EAST FORK CHURCH

A revival is now in progress at our church. The preaching is being done by the pastor, Rev. G. A. B. Holderby. We are hoping for much good results.

During the time our present pastor has been on this work two weddings of much interest have taken place in our community. On Easter Sunday we found our little church very prettily decorated and immediately after the morning services were over Miss Sophronia Goode began softly playing a wedding march. Miss Marie Gillespie and Mr. Boyd McGuire came up the church aisle and were met at the altar by their pastor, Rev. Mr. Holderby, and were united in marriage, the ring ceremony being used. The bride was beautifully dressed in white crepe de chine. Dinner was served at the home of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Gillespie.

The second marriage took place Sunday afternoon, July 22, when Miss Ollie Gillespie became the bride of Mr. Jack Heath. Rev. G. A. B. Holderby performed this ceremony. The ring ceremony was used. This marriage took place at the home of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Gillespie. The bride was beautiful in blue canton crepe. The house was beautifully decorated in pink rhododendren and ferns. Immediately after the ceremony the happy couple left for Cedar Mountain, the home of the groom. F. G.

REVIVAL IN SOUTHPORT

On July 2 Rev. Euclid McWhorter of Aberdeen came to us and remained until the 12th, preaching twice each day. It is needless to say that the preaching was done well. From the beginning there was a deep interest taken. Some of the brethren say that it was one of the best revivals that they have attended in Southport in some time. And the results seems to show that their version is correct.

The membership of the church was greatly revived and a number reconsecrated themselves to the Lord. We received eight on profession of faith and four by certificate. The church seems to have taken on new life.

Our Sunday school is steadily growing and we are looking forward to greater things in the future. Our congregations are very gratifying—they are on the increase. The Sunday school is also growing under the efficient leadership of Bro. R. W. Davis as superintendent.

We have recently rented a building adjoining the church lot with a number of rooms so that we have an opportunity now to develop into an up-to-date Sunday school. Heretofore we have not had enough rooms for our classes, but that hindrance is out of the way now. If the editor can find time it might make him feel better to come down and get a breath of salt air and preach for us. We are not expecting anything less than a good report when we go to Elizabeth City in November. J. C. Whedbee, P. C.

SUNDAY SCHOOL DAY ON FAIR-VIEW CIRCUIT

On July 22nd the four Sunday schools of this circuit held their Sunday School Day together at Sharon church. It was a glorious summer day—seemed to have been made just for the occasion. The people came in buggies, straw wagons, trucks and automobiles from miles around, and each family brought a basket well filled with good things to eat. Talk about your chicken dinners! I am here to tell you that these people know how to cook chicken, and there are more of them than the preacher that know how to eat it. And babies! God must love the Fairview people. I don't know when I have seen so many of them—and the measles kept some away. Two new departments are being added to the Sunday school work on this circuit—the Cradle Roll and the Home department.

Besides the children's program the Children's Home was not forgotten by the pastor and Brother Dunham, and emphasis was laid on the Fifth Sunday offerings in a special request. Brother Ed Brown, of Asheville, discussed Sunday school work; Bro. H. A. Dunham discussed Sunday school and lay work; Mrs. V. L. Stone presented the Woman's Missionary Society interests, and W. W. Edwards talked to us on the Epworth League. Plans are on foot to organize a Woman's Missionary Society and an Epworth League at Tweeds church. The usual Sunday School Day offering was received.

Mister Editor, ye run about so much. Ef I'd knowd jest where to put me finger on ye, I'd a tried to git ye up here in this neck o' the woods. It'd a done ye good to help et some o' that chicken. Allen H. Whisner, Pastor.

EDUCATIONAL MEETING IN THE STATESVILLE DISTRICT

At the call of Rev. D. M. Litaker, the presiding elder, a fine delegation of preachers and lay leaders of the Statesville district met in our church at Newton on July 24 for the consideration of the collection of the subscriptions made to the fund for Christian education and to take a general review of the work planned by and for the laymen of the church. The attendance was beyond expectation and it was such a meeting as filled those who attended with enthusiastic anticipation.

Dr. W. P. Few, the scholarly president of Trinity College, was there and at his best. With the passing years he grows on us as a man of wonderful insight and a man with a yearning heart for the future of our church and the safety of our country. His is the heart of a real Christian patriot. His plea for loyalty to our Christian schools was a plea that there may not lack the element of Christian faith in all educational institutions. He lamented the fact that so little work is being done for the religious instruction of children during the elementary stage of their education. He insisted that America cannot be half pagan and half Christian. He pointed out the dangers which threaten and warned that our place and wealth in America is no insurance that we will survive as a government. He plead with prophetic earnestness for the teaching of a constructive Christian faith in the home, the church, and the school of every grade.

Mr. Charles H. Ireland was there to speak as he only in our conference can speak. He is a lay leader brimming over with enthusiasm. His humor is fine and clean and his faith and loyalty is of the highest type. To see and hear him is to understand that there is something big, compelling and satisfying about Christianity. His appeal for better organization among the laymen for service was clear and strong. He spoke out of the experience of a full and ready heart. He suggested that there ought to be held each year in each presiding elder's district a meeting especially for the laymen and also that when the pastor receives a member into the church he ought to enquire what field of lay activity the new member can engage in, so that the membership shall all be at work and each new member understand in the beginning that the church is a real working force.

Rev. W. O. Goode was ready with many fine suggestions and with inspirational talks to show his fitness to do the work to which the church has called him.

The presiding elder was in his place as real leader of all the forces in his district. His exhortations and comments throughout the meeting showed how his heart is in his work, and he has a masterful hand on every piece of church machinery. Under his leadership the Statesville district will give a good report of all the work undertaken.

President Hornaday brought a cheering report from Davenport College of the work for Christian Education being done there and Mr. A. C. Sherrill told in a most helpful way how all the committees provided for by the last General Conference under the head of lay activities are not only appointed but actively and successfully at work in the Newton church.

Together with the large attendance, the fine addresses, the sumptuous lunch served by the ladies of Newton, and the enthusiasm of the whole number attending it was pronounced a most successful and inspirational meeting and promises to bring fine results in the district. E. W. Fox.

TEACHER WANTS POSITION

Thirty years' experience. Holds H. S. Principal's Certificate. Reasons for change. Address Mr. S., Box 165, Newton, N. C.

WESTERN NORTH CAROLINA

"The Land of the Sky"

MICHIGAN,
WISCONSIN,
MINNESOTA,
COLORADO,
UTAH, CALIFORNIA,
CANADA,
NEW ENGLAND,
and Seashore Resorts

GREATLY REDUCED
SUMMER FARES
Now in Effect

via

Southern Railway System

From GREENSBORO AND OTHER POINTS

Send for Free Booklet

Convenient Schedules
Attractive Service

L. A. PEACOCK, C. T. A.
112 East Market Street,
Greensboro

DISTRICT EDUCATIONAL MEETINGS

The Mt. Airy district educational meeting was held at Walnut Cove. Rev. J. H. West, presiding elder, was in the chair. A very good attendance of pastors and laymen made the conference a success from the start. The meeting was addressed by Chas. H. Ireland, Prof. R. L. Flowers and W. O. Goode, secretary-treasurer Christian Education Movement, after which a splendid dinner was served by the ladies of the church. Mt. Airy district will make good her pledges to the Christian Education Movement.

On July 20th the same trio of speakers were on hand at the Winston-Salem conference, over which that most unique and efficient presiding elder, "Bill" Newell, looked on with the eyes of a statesman, while Mr. Dwire, district lay leader, and one of the most brilliant newspaper men of the state, presided. When Ireland, Flowers and I left the seat of that conference to hurry on to another, the laymen and preachers were in the midst of perfecting an organization which will under the leadership of Newell and Dwire bring the district out on all its obligations before the conference year shall have closed. At the present the Winston district is leading all others in the conference in payments to the Christian Education Movement. A wonder dinner was served by the ladies.

The Statesville district educational meeting was held at Newton in one of the best organized churches in our conference. Rev. W. B. Shinn is pastor. The conference was called to order by Rev. D. M. Litaker, presiding elder of the district. Litaker was at his best throughout the day, giving special attention to everything which came before the meeting. Dr. W. P. Few, president of Trinity College, made a profound impression on the audience when he brought a message of wonderful power on the subject of Christian Education. Mr. Chas. H. Ireland spoke to the laymen most effectively on the work before them as sons of Wesley. After W. O. Goode, secretary-treasurer, had made his report covering every church in the district, A. M. West, district lay leader, took charge and with a master's hand outlined the plan of organization for his district. The ladies of the church served a magnificent dinner in the church hut.

Reports of the Shelby, Marion, Asheville, North Wilkesboro and Charlotte district meetings will be made later.

W. O. Goode.

SHELBY DISTRICT CONFERENCE

It was a called meeting to consider our educational interests, to promote the work of our laymen, and to switch in a Sunday school institute—the three in one.

Rev. H. H. Jordan had a well planned program, and he put his speakers at it Wednesday, July 25, at 10 a. m. Rev. W. O. Goode gave a good account of himself as educational secretary, and as he showed the standing of the several charges in the district he stirred all up to do better still.

With characteristic love and loyalty for his church Bro. Chas. H. Ireland, conference lay leader, in his rich, rare, racy style, made a strong appeal to the laymen to love their church, be loyal to it, and to lead out in all its activities, educational, evangelistic, financial, and what not.

Prof. R. L. Flowers of Trinity College was overflowing with a goodly matter as he made with eager, earnest eloquence a convincing plea for Christian education. He made it clear that the Christian element must be injected into our educational system or its very life blood will run out and our civilization will be lost.

Brother Mangum out of the rich fullness of his mind spoke for better organization and work in the Sunday school. And Bro. Dillinger of Ranlo

THE LAST TRIBUTE

As the sturdy character passes out into the great beyond, let your last tribute befittingly portray the noble qualities so tenderly remembered.

Let the Rugged, Massive Strength of

Winnsboro Blue Granite

portray the staunch character and firm will. Let its beautifully formed crystals portray the love that is gone. Let its striking crystal contrasts and flawless color tell of the spotless and beautiful life. Let its durability tell and demonstrate that his memory shall last forever.

Specify WINNSBORO BLUE GRANITE

Winnsboro Granite Corporation
Rion. S. C.

blazed the way for better things as he spoke from the standpoint of an ideal superintendent how to do the work as a workman that needs not to be ashamed.

Bro. Will Lambeth showed how we fail to appreciate and make much of the worship period in our Sunday school, and in our preaching service (mark the word, preaching,) and what a sad, tragic loss it is to our church and to our Christian character.

At the lunch hour the royal, loyal ladies of the church set forth such a dainty, delicious dinner that those who did not get to speak had to confess nevertheless that it was a great day.

O. P. Ader, Secretary.

CHURCH DEDICATION

Marcus church on the West End circuit will be dedicated on Sunday, August 19, 1923, at 3:30 p. m. The sermon will be preached by Rev. N. L. Seabolt of the Montgomery circuit.

All former pastors and presiding elders are invited to be present at this service. No other invitation than this will be given to them.

This will be the closing service of our protracted meeting which will begin on Monday night preceding.

W. H. Brown.

FINE LEAGUER DROWNS AT LAKE SUMMIT

The entire city of Concord and particularly the membership of Forest Hill Methodist church were shocked and greatly pained to hear of the drowning of Mr. Harold M. Shoof at Lake Summit, near Hendersonville, on Monday evening of last week. Mr. Shoof had been for nearly twelve months a student in the Textile Industrial Institute at Spartanburg, S. C. Near the close of the first day of a week's vacation while boating on the lake in company with three other students the boat in some way capsized. The other young men without difficulty swam to shore, but seeing Harold in distress two of them plunged into the lake to rescue him, but by the time they reached him he was so frantic that, seizing both of them, all three went to the bottom. One of them was able to break himself away and barely saved his life; the other, a Mr. Wall of Spartanburg, was drowned with him.

Mr. Shoof's body was brought here and a great concourse of sorrowing ones attended the funeral and followed it to the cemetery.

Harold was in many respects a most extraordinary young man. He was bright and ambitious to equip himself to play a big part in the game of life a little later on. He was active in church and Sunday school since childhood and was a most enthusiastic Epworth leaguer, representing the Forest Hill chapter at our meeting in Morganton and being at the time he left Concord the president. Since entering the institute he had been prominent in all the social and religious life of the school. We can but grieve over the passing of such a life. However, let us recall the words of a well known writer:

"What is death
To him who meets it with an upright heart?
A quiet haven, where his shattered bark
Harbors secure, till the rough storm is past,
Perhaps a passage overhung with clouds,
But at its entrance, a few leagues beyond,
Opening to kinder skies and milder suns,
And seas pacific as the soul that seeks them."

Wanted! Ambitious Men and Women

We are receiving calls daily for men and women of character, ambition and business training, men and women who can accept and efficiently fill responsible positions; positions that give every opportunity for advancement; positions of high salaries; positions in banks, law offices, insurance, real estate, brokers' offices; positions with manufacturers, jobbers, retailers, in every imaginable type of business in the South.

Many of them we capably fill, others are yet vacant. The men and women who fill them need not be wealthy, nor even moderately well-to-do. They need not be young, nor need they be college or even high school graduates. All that is necessary is that they possess character, ambition and a business training.

The character and ambition they must possess, the business training we will furnish under the direction of the South's most efficient training corps and in one of the South's most efficient and best equipped business colleges. A training with unique courses in bookkeeping, stenography, type-writing, accounting, banking, business administration or our secretarial course. Such a training we will furnish in a few months time at little cost to you, and at terms to meet your own financial condition.

Thousands of Southern men and women have taken advantage of the opportunity and trained themselves for a higher calling, a better salary and a greater opportunity for advancement. Many who have accepted the positions we offer have risen to the top of the ladder, and are numbered among America's foremost and wealthiest business and professional men and women.

An institution with such standing and reputation as the Georgia-Alabama Business College does more to advance the business interests of its graduates than can be done by any amount of family or personal influence.

Consider your present status. Would you not like to improve your station in life, increase your income, attain financial independence and success? An opportunity awaits you, for positions are being constantly offered us that must be filled.

Write for our inspiring book, "Your Future—What Does It Hold in Store?" It is sent free on request, explains our offer in detail and points the way to a brighter future.

Address: Dept. B9, Georgia-Alabama Business College, Macon, Ga., or Dept. B9 Georgia-Alabama Business College, Atlanta, Ga.

Connectional Benefit Brotherhood

Methodist Benevolent Association
Gives first-class insurance protection AT ACTUAL COST to preachers and laymen of the Methodist Church, South.
It issues policies on Whole and Twenty Premium Life, Endowment at age Sixty and Seventy. Term and Annuity Plans. 100 per cent legal reserve. Claims paid without delay. For information write

J. H. SHUMAKER, Secretary
810 Broadway Nashville, Tenn.

Sure Relief

WOMAN'S PAGE

N. C. CONFERENCE

Mrs. J. LeGrand Everett, ..... Editor
Rockingham, N. C.

W. N. C. CONFERENCE

Mrs. H. K. Boyer ..... Editor
Mt. Airy, N. C.

Western North Carolina Conference

HERE AND THERE

Accompanied by my husband and son, Hugh, Jr., we have had a delightful automobile trip to Washington, D. C., returning by way of the far famed Valley of Virginia. This name invites "more talk," but refrain because I want to say I am loitering by the way at Sunnymeade Farm at historic Seven Mile Ford, Va., where "the roses nowhere bloom so sweet"—unless it is in North Carolina.

I look a short distance away upon the white slab marking the tomb of Gen. Wm. Campbell, who sleeps here among his forbears, and the house from which he went forth to the battle of King's Mountain stands nearby.

Incidentally, also I look out upon a field of corn, which about seventy-five Alamance, N. C., farmers visited last week and pronounced the best corn they found on their tour of inspection. They were investigating the diversified crops of Southwest Virginia.

I will soon be turning my face toward the Granite City, and shall await with interest the good contributions for our page. If they are written on one side only of the paper it will insure their appearance on this page "at an early date"—or as soon as possible. M. C. B.

A joint meeting of four auxiliaries—Leaksville, Spray, Reidsville and Bethlehem—was held in Bethlehem church on the afternoon of July 14th. A unique feature of this gathering was two districts coming together for this meeting, Leaksville and Spray being in the Mt. Airy district, while Bethlehem and Reidsville are in the Greensboro district. The church was tastefully decorated with ferns and summer flowers. Mrs. Wm. G. Ballard, the beloved secretary of the Greensboro district, presided. Words of welcome were spoken by Mrs. J. I. Anderson, president of the Bethlehem society. Rev. C. P. Goode conducted the devotional service. Miss Mamie Jones of the Reidsville auxiliary delighted her audience with a beautiful solo. Misses Bess Burton and Mary Sue Farrell of Bethlehem and Leaksville, respectively, each gave enjoyable readings. Mrs. James Turner gave an account of how the Crawford Society, Reidsville, became acquainted with our conference officers through correspondence and read a very interesting sketch of Mrs. Peacock's life. A beautiful duet was sung by two young ladies from the Leaksville Society entitled, "The Cross Is Not Greater Than His Grace."

Special mention should be made of readings given by Miss Mary Wilson of the Leaksville Society, and Miss Elizabeth Wilson.

Mrs. C. L. Freshetts of Reidsville Society read a fine paper on our international relationship. Miss Abel, community worker of Spray, read an original paper on social service. Miss Abel has been engaged in this work for ten years, and in listening to her we caught a vision of what this great work means.

"Granma Clarke," as she is affectionately called, from the Reidsville Society, was asked to make a talk. She is more than eighty years young; said she had been in the missionary work for more than fifty years, and a member of that organization since its beginning, and when we looked into her dear face we knew what a joy this life of service had been to her.

We closed the meeting by singing "When All Methodists Learn How to Tithes" to the tune of "Since Jesus Came Into My Heart." The benediction was pronounced by Rev. C. P. Goode. Afterward a delightful social hour was enjoyed. Refreshments were served on the church lawn. Mrs. E. W. Pugh, Sec.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

I am enclosing a short article hoping you will find room for it in your Woman's Page. This is the anniversary month of Miss Bennett's going away, and so I think it is very appropriate that we should have a short article at this time. I am sure you will be glad to give space for the cause it is setting forth. Estelle Haskins.

IN THE BOOK OF REMEMBRANCE

July 20th marks the first anniversary of the going home of our incomparable leader, Miss Belle H. Bennett. To those who knew her intimately, the days have been indeed lonely. How we have missed her gracious, consecrated personality, her wise leadership, her sympathy and tender love in times of personal need; we have missed the wonderful companionship of such a spirit-filled friend. Yet we remember how she spent herself freely for the work of the Lord for more than thirty-five years, and shall we grieve because she has entered now into the joy of the Lord whom she served so faithfully and so well? Let us consecrate ourselves anew to the unfinished task which she was compelled to lay down and show our love for the Master and our appreciation of her noble, Christ-like life by "carrying on."

In the memorial fund now being raised to be used in enlargement of Scarritt, the women of Southern Methodism are seeking to express their love for such a friend and leader through the love gifts they are sending in.

As a permanent remembrance, the memorial campaign committee is preparing a beautiful but simple Book of Remembrance which shall have a place in the library of the Greater Scarritt. In it are to be inscribed the names of those auxiliaries whose love gifts shall average five dollars per member; that is, the total amount given by each auxiliary which shall equal five dollars per capita. This is a wonderful thought of the committee. One recalls how Jehovah spoke to Malachi regarding the Israelites: "Then they that feared the Lord spoke often one to another; and the Lord hearkened and heard it, and a book of remembrance was written before Him for them that feared the Lord, and that thought upon His name. And they shall be mine saith the Lord of hosts in that day when I make up my jewels." This should be an incentive to our women to have their auxiliaries' names in the beautiful Book of Remembrance in Scarritt. Let not one of our conferences fail to have their names inscribed in this book.

Then, too, in the Bennett section of the Greater Scarritt there will be a memorial tablet on which shall be inscribed the names of all conference societies whose gifts shall equal five dollars or more per capita to the memorial fund. These names will appear on the memorial tablet in the order of the size of the per capita gift, the conference giving the largest sum per member being at the top. If each conference puts her best energies into this, she can easily attain this goal. Emily Olmstead.

PROGRAM AT MOCKSVILLE COURTHOUSE

"On the evening of July 7th an entertainment was given to an appreciative negro audience. A small admission fee was charged.

The money was put in the savings bank to be later used in purchasing a piano for the negro graded school in Mocksville, Davie county, N. C."

The above notice carried with it a program of music and readings, which for lack of space we must omit, but when we say that it was given by Misses Bertha and Alice Lee of Mocksville, it goes without saying that it was planned and executed interestingly.

North Carolina Conference

SERVANTS OF THE KINGDOM

The mission fields all over the world are demanding better preparation, special preparation, the best the Christian world can give. Do we dare ask for less? The lamb without spot or blemish, the firstlings of the flock, were His in those early days when His chosen people knew Him only as Jehovah. Can we who know Him as our living Father give Him less? O let us prove our communion with God this year by asking, seeking and finding the best and worthiest young life in all the church and say to it: "The Master is come and calleth for thee."—Belle H. Bennett, Lambuth-Bennett Book of Remembrance.

THE BULLETIN ON GREATER SCARRITT

As the plans for Greater Scarritt, and our contribution to it in the Belle Bennett Memorial, occupy foremost place in our hearts and minds now, it is our purpose to give them right of way in our columns until all the women, not the leaders only, are perfectly familiar with all that is being planned and what is being done elsewhere for it. For this reason we give the Bulletin items. The Bulletin goes to every auxiliary, but not all the women in every auxiliary see it or even hear all its items. We hope this may be much of information, stimulus, and inspiration to us.

BELLE H. BENNETT MEMORIAL

Every Woman Present a Subscriber.

Quoting from a letter from Mrs. S. L. Smith, of Vinita, Okla., she says: "We presented the Bennett Memorial program at our June meeting. Every member who was present made a pledge, which amounted to $82. I don't know when I ever saw anything like it. Our women have helped build our church, that is just completed, and they had been taxed almost to the limit, and yet they were willing to help on this fund. There were thirty-five members who were not present, and I feel sure that some of them will subscribe."

Louisiana Conference Honor Roll.

Mrs. Nettie Miller Holmes, of Minden, La., and for many years state treasurer, writes: "I want to be one of the one hundred women to give one hundred dollars for the Bennett Memorial Special." Mrs. Holmes thus wins first place on the honor roll.

Chinese Conference Sends a Message.

Miss Frances M. Wo, corresponding secretary of the China Conference Missionary Society, in a recent letter to the president of the Council, says in part: "It gives me great pleasure to write you as the same workers of His kingdom, and although we cannot see each other face to face, we can unite our love through Jesus Christ by our prayers. Very sorry to hear your great loss Miss Bennett. We sympathized with you and had a special memorial service for her on Sunday afternoon, May 6, during our annual conference. Miss Atkinson told us about her life, and we decided that we would join your plan for Miss Bennett. I don't know how much we can get, but I am sure each auxiliary will do the best, and will be very glad to offer some of the love and work of Miss Bennett. Will let you know as soon as possible."

(Continued on page fifteen)

BOILS Old Sores, Cuts and Burns have been healed since 1820 with

Gray's Ointment

Sold by all druggists. Write for sample to W. F. Gray & Co., 710 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

DR. H. E. GOETZ SANITARIUM

Mental and Nervous Diseases
Select cases of morphinism and alcoholism treated by new and successful methods. Write for information. All correspondence confidential.

P. O. Box 487 Knoxville, Tenn.
Established 10 years

HYMN BOARDS

of the very best quality supplied at very reasonable cost by

LAMAR & BARTON
Nashville, Dallas, Richmond
San Francisco

GOOD POSITIONS

Paying fine salaries can be had for ambitious young men and women who complete our commercial and stenographic courses.

Our aim this season is to enroll a very large number of such students who can be trained for high and responsible positions.

Won't you be one to enroll? A postal addressed to us will bring you our catalogue. Write for it.

DRAUGHONS BUSINESS COLLEGE
Knoxville, Tenn.

THE NORTH CAROLINA COLLEGE FOR WOMEN

An A-1 grade college maintained by the State of North Carolina for the education of its young women.

Liberal courses leading to the usual degrees in Arts, Science and Music. Equipment modern, including furnished dormitories, library, laboratories, literary society halls, athletic grounds, etc.

Fall term begins in September, Spring term in February, Summer term in June.

For catalogue and other information, address

JULIUS I. FOUST, President
GREENSBORO, N. C.

Our Diplomas on Bookkeeping, Shorthand, Railway Mail, Rural Carrier and Civil Service Courses will insure your success. Fall Term begins Sept. 4. Address Greensboro Commercial School, Greensboro, N. C., for Catalog.

COLLEGE OF WILLIAM AND MARY FOR MEN AND WOMEN

Supported by the State of Virginia for the benefit of all the people.

Regular DEGREE COURSE and SPECIAL COURSES in Teacher Training, Pre-Medicine, Pre-Engineering, Home Economics, Law, Business Administration, etc.

Healthful location; students under splendid moral influence; four churches, Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A., Sunday Schools, etc.

For particulars address
COLLEGE OF WILLIAM AND MARY
Williamsburg, Va.

H L Bridges, J. A. C. Chandler,
Registrar. President.

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORK

N. C. CONFERENCE
 L. L. Gobbel .....Editor
 Durham, N. C.

W. N. C. CONFERENCE
 O. V. Woosley .....Editor
 Lexington, N. C.

Western North Carolina Conference OUR STANDING

The 1923 Yearbook of the General Sunday School Board of the Southern Methodist Church is just out and carries some very interesting information. From this yearbook it is noted that the Western North Carolina conference has more Sunday schools than any of the 39 conferences, the number being 845. The Virginia conference comes next with 832. Our conference has 7,244 officers and teachers, its rank in this respect being third. The Virginia and North Georgia conferences are ahead of us in this respect. We stand second in the number of Sunday school scholars enrolled, our number being 122,119, whereas the Virginia conference has an enrollment of 129,737. We stand fourth in Cradle Roll enrollment, our number being 6,425. The Virginia, Baltimore and North Georgia conferences are slightly ahead of us. We also stand fourth in Home Department enrollment, the same three conferences being ahead of us. More Sunday school pupils joined the church from our conference than any other in Southern Methodism the number last year being 5,252. Our conference ranks third in church membership.

Financial Showing.

We rank fifth in the amount of money raised last year for missions, our amount being $18,256, the Baltimore, Virginia, South Georgia and North Georgia conferences being ahead of us. We rank nineteenth in the amount of money raised on Sunday School Day, our amount being $1,614. In the amount of money expended for Sunday school supplies we rank fourth, the Virginia, Central Texas and Texas conferences being ahead of us. We spent $52,596 for Sunday school supplies. For money raised for other objects our rank is second with the amount of $84,393, the Virginia conference being slightly ahead of us. In the matter of Centenary payments our rank is fifth, the Virginia, South Georgia, North Georgia and North Alabama conferences being ahead of us. Our Sunday schools have paid up to the beginning of this year $52,659.

LEADERSHIP TRAINING

During last year 830 certificates of credit were earned in our conference. Conferences doing better than this were the Virginia, Alabama, North Carolina and North Georgia conferences. When this year is completed it is thought that our showing will be much better than that made last year.

MAYING

During the month of May 262 certificates of credit in Standard Leadership Training Courses were earned in our conference. In addition to those earned at our Asheville and Shelby Standard Training Schools and at Trinity College Summer School the following persons received credit through correspondence work:

- Rev. W. A. Jenkins, Concord.
- Rev. J. R. Walker, Hickory.
- Rev. R. A. Smith, Lexington.
- Rev. John W. Hoyle, Leicester.
- Rev. M. W. Heckard, Gastonia.
- Miss Virginia Jenkins, Lexington.
- O. V. Woosley, Lexington.
- Miss Maggie Pickett, Lexington.
- Miss Lugenia Raker, Lexington.

- Mrs. C. A. Hunnicutt, Hendersonville.
- Mrs. W. T. Purgason, Greensboro, R. 3.
- G. T. Smith, Gastonia, R. 3.
- Mrs. F. C. Todd, Gastonia, R. 3.
- Miss Leona Smith, Gastonia, R. 3.
- Miss Ruth Gorrell, Winston-Salem.
- Miss Virginia Ebert, Winston-Salem.
- Miss Dora Knight, Winston-Salem.
- Miss Lena Willis, Winston-Salem.
- Mrs. Robert Morrow, High Point.

LEST WE FORGET

At a meeting of the executive committee of the Sunday School Board, the presiding elders and the district Sunday school superintendents held at Salisbury last January it was agreed that 17,000 new Sunday school pupils ought to be enrolled in our conference this year. This number to be brought in to our schools was apportioned among the districts as follows:

Asheville district	2,000
Charlotte	2,000
Greensboro	2,000
Marion	1,000
Mt. Airy	1,000
North Wilkesboro	500
Salisbury	1,500
Shelby	1,500
Statesville	2,000
Waynesville	1,500
Winston-Salem	2,000

The Salisbury district has already reported that it has reached its quota and is going on. Mr. C. A. Reap, Albemarle, and Dr. T. F. Marr, Salisbury, are the district superintendent and district presiding elder, respectively.

THOMASVILLE CIRCUIT

During the past two years the Thomasville circuit has been holding circuit Sunday school institutes three times each year and as a result Sunday school institutes three times each year and as a result Sunday school enrollment and interest have doubled. Four of the churches have had to be enlarged and the end is not yet in sight. In one instance a whole family has traveled fourteen miles each Sunday for a whole year to attend Sunday school.

It was my pleasure to attend their last institute, held last Saturday at Pleasant Hill church, Randolph county. The church was full of people and the people were full of interest during the morning hours and full of dinner and interest during the afternoon hours. The institute was well worth while. Among the speakers were A. L. Stone, D. K. Williams, G. V. Bodenheimer, Rev. T. B. Johnson and your humble servant. Rev. T. B. Johnson is pastor and A. L. Stone is president of the circuit institute. Brother Johnson is leading some fine workers on the Thomasville circuit.

WAYNESVILLE

Rev. G. D. Herman and his good people are building a jim dandy church at Waynesville. I was simply enthused as I recently went over the plans with Brother Herman. The church is being built to serve the community week in and week out in all lines of Christian work. Especially is the Sunday school well provided for in the various departments. Brother Herman has not made a great fuss about his building but if you now want to hear him wax great and mighty just call him out and ask about his church. He certainly has something to talk about and better than that his successors will have something to work about, not to pay the debt, but to make the community a better place in which to live. The Waynesville people have been wisely led.

A PLAYGROUND

The First Methodist church at Lexington has, during the past three years, supervised a well equipped playground. During each summer this playground, which adjoins the church, is each evening, Wednesday evening excepted, crowded with children, youths, and at stated intervals, with adults. A paid supervisor is employed and stunts, frolics and plays are regularly featured. The Methodist playground of Lexington is about the most popular place anywhere to be found, and the fine results of supervised play are plainly evident. The church bought the lot, J. V. Moffitt gave the equipment and Ralph Moffitt keeps as supervisor the play and stunts on the job. J. R. McCrary keeps the grounds beautiful.

A HUT

The Lexington congregation is providing for winter recreation and Christian social intercourse in the erection of a beautiful hut. This hut will be used by the stewards to banquet in, by the missionary societies to meet and work in, by the Epworth League to hold their meetings in, and by everybody to have a good time in. The congregation proposes to have somewhere for its young people to go to have a good time and have it on the square. It is working on the theory that it is better to say DO than to continually say DON'T. The hut is being constructed under the supervision of J. R. McCrary, the friend of his fellowmen, and will cost about $3,000.

North Carolina Conference

NORTH CAROLINA SECOND

Competing with representatives of over twenty states represented in the Junaluska Leadership School at Lake Junaluska Tuesday evening of last week, North Carolinians in attendance at the first term of the school put on an original pageant that was given second place by the judges. Louisiana won over North Carolina, according to information coming from the judges, by the small margin of one-half of one per cent. Alabama took third place.

The North Carolina pageant, put on jointly by the Western North Carolina and the North Carolina conferences, had as a setting a Sunday school workers' council meeting in which the numerous discouragements besetting Sunday school workers were presented and their solution suggested. As the closing feature the group sang the new Junaluska song.

The pageants were graded as to educational message, originality, presentation, and artistic effect. North Carolina worked in all of these and added touches of humor here and there. A committee composed of three representatives of each of the two conferences in the state initiated the idea, which was carried out under the able direction of Miss Virginia Jenkins, elementary superintendent of the Western North Carolina conference. Every one having a part threw himself or herself into it, and the group put on a pageant that was at once creditable and worth while.

MANY TAR HEELS AT LAKE

Twenty-one states were represented in the enrollment of students at the first term of the Junaluska Leadership School, July 11-26, and North Carolina led every other state, leading South Carolina, the state having the next largest enrollment, by over 40 per cent. Leaders representing Methodism in that vast territory between California and New Mexico on the west and Cuba, Florida, and the District of Columbia on the east came together to study how better to do the work of training and developing boys and girls, men and women, in Christian character and service.

Following is the enrollment, by states, and it must be remembered that this year three terms, instead of one as heretofore, will be held; the aggregate enrollment is expected to reach perhaps 800: Alabama 28, Arkansas 7, California 3, Florida 11,

Georgia 37, Cuba 5, Louisiana 8, Mississippi 14, Missouri 8, North Carolina 56, New Mexico 1, Ohio 2, Oklahoma 11, Illinois 1, Kentucky 1, South Carolina 39, Tennessee 20, Texas 7, Virginia 36, West Virginia 19, District of Columbia 2. The North Carolina enrollment was made up of 26 from the North Carolina and 30 from the Western North Carolina conferences. In all of these figures only the bona fide enrollment is given; many were present at Lake Junaluska who did not enroll.

The school was held this year in the new religious education building, just about completed.

MAXTON SCHOOL IS NEXT

The second session of the Rockingham district standard training school begins at Carolina College, Maxton, next Monday, August 6, and indications that a great school it will be. A corps of excellent instructors has been selected, and six courses will be offered. Representatives from every Sunday school in the district are expected to attend. Special features have been added to the program over last year, and all who attend are assured a week of genuine inspiration and definite help.

AN ELEMENTARY INSTITUTE

One of the special features of the Rockingham district training school will be an elementary institute Thursday afternoon, August 9. Mrs. E. B. Ward, district elementary superintendent, is making an effort to bring together for a consideration of elementary work in the district all who are interested in the welfare of boys and girls twelve years of age and under. With the help of Miss Keene, conference elementary superintendent, she is working out an interesting program for the afternoon.

Of interest, also, to elementary workers is the fact that this year three elementary courses will be offered; only two were offered last year. This year there will be special courses for Beginner, Primary, and Junior workers. There will be courses, of course, also for workers with Intermediate-Seniors, Young People, and Adults, including superintendents, pastors and others.

MR. EDENS MEANS BUSINESS

An inspiring illustration of what one really can do when one really wants to is the fact that Mr. Nelson P. Edens, of Roberdel, who attended our non-standard training school at Rockingham April 29-May 4 has continued the study of the standard training course begun by him there and now holds three certificates of credit. "Principles of Religious Teaching," "The Organization and Administration of the Sunday School," and "A Methodist Church and Its Work" are the courses for which he has earned credit. He expects to attend the district school at Maxton and earn another certificate of credit.

WESLEY CLASS AT ARAPAHOE

Calvary Bible class is the name of a new Wesley adult Bible class recently organized at Arapahoe, Oriental circuit. This class is made up of fourteen charter members, eight men and six women, with the following officers: D. W. Moore, president; Mrs. D. W. Moore secretary; and J. B. Daw, teacher.

CONFERENCE AT MANTEO

Rev. C. B. Culbreth, presiding elder of the Elizabeth City district, has planned a big conference of church workers at Manteo August 17, 18 and 19. At this conference, which will be attended by workers of the charges within a radius of perhaps twenty or thirty miles, the work of the Sunday school, missionary societies and kindred organizations will be considered.

OUR ORPHANAGE WORK

METHODIST ORPHANAGE RALEIGH, N. C.

Hon. R. N. Page .....President
A. S. Barnes .....Superintendent
Mrs. Mattie Jenkins .....Matron
Owned and maintained by the North Carolina Conference.

FORM OF BEQUEST

I do hereby will and bequeath to The Methodist Orphanage, Raleigh, N. C., contemplated by the charter under the Act of the General Assembly of North Carolina (here designate the bequest) .....

THE CHILDREN'S HOME WINSTON-SALEM, N. C.

Rev. C. A. Wood.....Superintendent

THE METHODIST ORPHANAGE

Elizabeth City District Conference. —Owing to engagements with the landscape gardener and construction architects it was impossible for me to leave here during the session of the Elizabeth City conference. This I regretted very much. Brother L. B. Pattishall, one of our strongest preachers, kindly consented to go for me and represent the Methodist Orphanage. I am sure he did it well. His kindness is very much appreciated. Ever since he came to Jenkins Memorial church he has shown a willingness to do anything within his power to help the Methodist Orphanage which he loves so ardently.

* * * *

Stem.—The fourth Sunday night in July our singing class visited Stem. Bro. L. B. Joyner, the faithful and beloved pastor of Granville circuit, received our class in a most cordial manner and so did the entire congregation. When the hour arrived for the service, the church was crowded with interested people. The close attention given the class made it a delight to render the sacred concert. Owing to other engagements in the eastern part of the state, it was necessary for us to leave early Monday morning. Kind friends brought us to Durham so we could take the early train to Raleigh. Their kindness is sincerely appreciated. Brother John Stem and family gave me a warm welcome. I regret that my visit could not be longer where such gracious hospitality abounds.

* * * *

Mr. Sears of Philadelphia, one of the most noted landscape gardeners in this country, came down last week to complete the landscape work at the Methodist Orphanage. He has done his work well and the future will prove the wisdom of the board's action in having this important work done now. The future needs of the orphanage have been anticipated and all the buildings will be properly located and everything will fit into a perfect scheme. The plan gives us utility, harmony and beauty. Brother S. V. Vann, our benefactor, who has such a deep interest in the growth and development of our home, went over the plans of Mr. Sears and was delighted with the results of his work. It was at Brother Vann's urgent request that we secured the services of such a competent landscape gardener. While all of us are deeply interested in the beauty of our grounds and surroundings, the thing that concerns us most is the spiritual development of our children. To this end we are giving ourselves unreservedly.

* * * *

Salem, Oxford Circuit.—I am in danger of taking all the space allotted me in the Advocate for orphanage news when I begin to write about my visit to Salem church the fourth Sunday in July. The singing class accompanied me. One of the largest congregations that ever assembled at Salem was present on the happy occasion. Two or three hundred people couldn't get into the church because of the large attendance. The building is one of the largest and best in the country and where. Representatives were present from all the churches on the circuit. How it gladdens my heart to renew the acquaintances of other years. For three years I had the privilege of ministering to these good people. I had the pleasure of spending Saturday night with my good friend, Roy Crews, whom I knew and loved when he was a boy growing into splendid manhood. The warm welcome which he and his devoted wife gave me was enough to make anyone feel happy.

In the afternoon Brother Ben Black took me over to Stovall, where I preached to the people of that community. I was happy to see good friends there whom I had not seen since I left the circuit. Brother Black was exceedingly kind to me and the singing class. No one could have done more for our comfort and pleasure than he. Before leaving his home in Oxford Saturday afternoon, he treated all of us to delicious ice cream, which was a very thoughtful act. I knew Brother Black when he was at Trinity. He is one of the best educated men in our conference and is blessed with five fine boys and a cultured wife. There is much more I would like to say about my visit to the Oxford circuit, but I must forego that pleasure.

* * * *

Dear Friends:
While I am trying to realize that my ten happy years at our lovely home are coming to a close too quickly, memory's pages turn back and it seems but yesterday since I came to make this my home. A true home it has been, for has not our "Mother Jenkins" guided our steps and taught us as a mother would her own child? I extend to her my thanks and appreciation; also to our fun loving "Daddy Barnes," who is always so kind and sympathetic, I wish to express my love and gratitude. I want to thank the faculty as a whole for their teachings, especially our teachers, Miss Grey, our principal, who is ever ready to help us with a geometry problem, and Miss MacDowal, our Latin teacher, also my matron, Miss Foster, and Mrs. Nellie Rives, who has helped me in so many ways. To these I offer my thanks and to the many friends of the home out in the world.

If I stop long enough I can think of many friends whom I would like to thank, but I must pause here long enough to thank the Baraca class of Queen Street church of Kinston for their loyal support, and Mrs. M. J. Best of Goldsboro, who has clothed me, and the men's Bible class of Spring Hope, which has made it possible for me to take music. I also wish to express my deepest gratitude to the men's Bible class of Louisburg which has made me the happiest girl in the world recently by planning to send me through Louisburg College. This is my crowning joy, for I have always longed to go through college, and I feel that I am very fortunate. My sincere hope is that many of my brothers and sisters of the home will have this same opportunity and become a great blessing, and so honor the name of the dear old M. E. O.

Katie Richardson.

DR. CHAS. W. MOSELEY

Diseases of Stomach and Internal Medicine

Office, 229 S. Elm St. Residence, 438 S. Mendenhall St., Greensboro, N. C. Office 604—Phones—Res. 1739.

BREVARD INSTITUTE BREVARD, N. C.

Established 1895 Vocational
Controlled by the Woman's Missionary Council for boys and girls of high character and limited means. Agriculture, Business, Music, Household Arts. Excellent Faculty. Only student labor employed. Terms: $150.00 per school year of nine months. Apply for information, Oliver H. Orr, Brevard Institute, Brevard, N. C.

PAINFUL NEURITIS

If you have it, write to

THE BIGGS SANITARIUM, ASHEVILLE, N. C.

and they will send you interesting and instructive printed matter regarding the latest methods for alleviation and cure of this distressing ailment.

LET YOUR BOY START RIGHT

Under Christian influences, military training, careful supervision and thorough academic instruction at

CARLISLE SCHOOL

A well-known preparatory school of high standards. Excellent dormitories, class rooms, gymnasium, infirmary, library and general equipment. Two academic courses offered. Total fee for year, $362.50. For literature, address W. C. DUNCAN, Headmaster, Bamberg, South Carolina.

PEACE INSTITUTE

RALEIGH, NORTH CAROLINA

For Young Women Established 1857

College Courses. Preparatory Courses for Standard College Requirements. Diplomas in Piano, Voice, Art, Expression and Home Economics. Commercial-Secretarial Course. Teacher Training Course. Specialists in all departments.

LULA B. WYNNE HALL, HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

MARY OWEN GRAHAM, President

MONEY TO LEND

on

Church Property

In amounts of not less than $20,000, in towns of 4000 population or more, principal to be retired in ten annual payments, interest semi-annual.

A. R. Wilson

SELMA, NORTH CAROLINA

THIRTEEN MILLION DOLLARS IN CHURCH VALUES

The value of property belonging to the Methodist Church in North Carolina exceeds $13,000,000. On this vast amount of property there is only $3,000,000 of insurance—less than one-fourth of its value protected.

Suppose you had stock in a furniture factory one-fourth protected from fire, what would you do? You would either sell, or hold the directors responsible.

See that your church officials protect your most valuable assets or you may be called upon to donate again to rebuild a church parsonage destroyed by fire.

Insure in The Methodist Mutual—owned and controlled by the two North Carolina Conferences.

W. E. WEBB, Secretary

STATESVILLE, N. C.

NORTH CAROLINA STATE COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE AND ENGINEERING STATE COLLEGE STATION RALEIGH, N. C.

Technical Education at State College prepares its graduates for personal success and for leadership in industrial progress. The college offers

FOUR YEAR COURSES IN:

Agriculture—including General Agriculture and Specialized Courses in Farm Crops, Agricultural Engineering, Animal Husbandry and Dairying, Biology, Horticulture, Poultry Science, Soils, Veterinary Medicine, Vocational Education.
Chemistry, Agricultural Chemistry, Textile Chemistry and Dyeing.
Civil Engineering, Architecture and Highway Engineering.
Electrical Engineering.
Mechanical Engineering.
Textile—Textile Engineering, Textile Manufacturing, Textile Chemistry and Dyeing.
Agricultural Economics, Business Administration, Rural Life.
General Science, Physics, Biology.

TWO YEAR COURSES IN:

Agriculture, Mechanic Arts, Textile Manufacturing.

One Year Course in Auto Mechanics.

Winter Course in Agriculture for Farmers.

Summer Session for Teachers, for College Entrance and for College Credit.

Excellent equipment in all departments.

Session 1923-1924 begins September 4.

Entrance requirements for Freshman Class, 15 units—English, 3; History, 2; Mathematics, 2½; Science, 1; Elective, 6½.

For catalog, illustrated circulars, and entrance blanks, write E. B. OWEN, Registrar.

The Call of the Conference Claimants

— Edited by Luther E. Todd, Secretary —

Board of Finance, M. E. Church, South

510-513 Security Building, St. Louis, Mo.

THE FEMALE OF THE SPECIES By One of Them.

Ever since Biblical days when Martha stayed in the kitchen and took liberal doses of hard work while Mary sat in the parlor and entertained the guests it has been the lot of many Marthas to do the drudgery and bear the brunt of things in this world.

A new movie house, wishing to do a clever piece of advertising, secured a picture called "What's the Matter with Mary?" and through the papers a general invitation was issued to every person by that name to attend the show as a guest of the company.

Since my name was Martha instead of Mary, it set me to thinking that there must always be some Marthas in every calling in life, somebody who will stay by the stuff and make fifty cents cover a dollar's needs. There must be Marys and Marthas enough for the job.

When I set out hand in hand with my young preacher husband, I wondered if I could measure up to all the expectations of a critical congregation. After forty years of itinerating I believe I can substantiate the claim that I made good. I am now a graduate of the highest college of parsonage experience, besides having a post-graduate diploma in the art of making a dollar stretch out like the rubbers on a boy's bean shooter. I am entirely familiar with the ups and downs of the ministry, which in parsonage parlance means keeping appearances up and expenses down.

Recently our church papers have printed much about the "forgotten man," and I'm glad the subject is receiving long and overdue consideration; but I find myself asking: "What about the 'forgotten woman?'" She who stayed at home on scant fare and minded the stuff while her good husband went over the circuit getting three square meals a day. Yes, what about her? What about the Martha who not only reared a large family of children and did all her housework but was president of the Woman's Missionary Society, teacher of a Sunday school class, superintendent of the devotional department of the Epworth League, corresponding secretary of the W. C. T. U., treasurer of the local fund of Circle Number Four, and the Lord only knows what else.

I have often felt that the women in the church "put off" on the willing preacher's wife. They expect her to read the Scripture lesson, lead the prayer, play the organ, and do the shouting if she can find time. This often leads to many of the women taking a secret course in backsliding; but this would make another story, and I must not sidetrack.

A country minister has precious little time for his family, and his wife has too many demands on her time to allow her to give her children the attention and training they need. So when their boys slip off and go swimming with the crowd on Sunday, it is heralded over the circuit that "the preacher has the worst children in the country."

In my young days when my husband rode the circuit it meant leaving home with horse and saddlebags on Friday and returning Monday or Tuesday, for the country members must be looked after, no matter how much his boys needed his firm hand or how much his garden and patches needed working.

In the absence of the minister in those primitive days the wife was called upon to do much of her husband's work. She must visit and sit up with the sick, shroud the dead, assist the doctors gratis with all the village births (there were no storks in those days), bake the wedding cake, help to furnish and serve at church dinners, pink teas, pie suppers, and in everything the mind of woman could concoct to make hard work for raising little money. She was about as busy as the man in the orchestra who plays the kettle drum, the cymbals, the hoof beats, and also shoots the pistol.

For thirty years she continues this program and, besides, gives birth to a new baby every two or three years; no rest, no exemption, over and over the same tasks; four years in this town, three in another, and then four again, on and on till time drags to the end of her itinerant life or a well-earned rest comes to her tired hands and back by an edict from a merciful Providence.

Personally I know hundreds of preachers' wives, and many are the times I have tried to comfort them and wipe away their tears when they have just heard the reading of the appointments at conference. Many times I have wept with them as they thought of a poor appointment, a long move, almost no school for the children, and a shabby parsonage away down under the hill in a thicket of blackjacks. How could a timid little woman refrain from weeping when she knew her husband must be away from home three week-ends in the month and she would be alone with a crowd of little ones? But there was no use to fret, for the appointments of the conference were like the laws of the Medes and Persians. The only thing to do was to hurry home, pack up and get out before the successor came with his load of things.

Then after more than a quarter of a century of this life, when she has passed her Cape Hatteras by oft-repeated tacking, she suddenly faces the beginning of an experience more dreadful than all the heartaches and hardships through which she has passed. She is told by those in authority: "Your husband is too old to do effective work and must superannuate."

After she has moved hundreds of miles from the north to the south of the conference, then from the east to the west of it, she is finally dropped out. Out of what? Out of the parsonage, out of the hearts of the members who claim her no longer as "our pastor's wife," out of contact with those she has known and loved, out of the invitations received as a preacher's wife, and out of the scant salary which means bread and butter. Out! Yes, down and out!

It is no wonder she sits alone in the evening of life with eyes bedimmed by long years of patching and darning by lamplight and with a lump in her throat that refuses to go up or down as she longs for the husband of her youth who has now gone to his well-earned reward and yearns for the children who are scattered and gone, some in homes of their own, some to lands far away. O, yes, to be sure she could live with some of her children, but there are the in-laws to be reckoned with, and she does not always feel welcome.

Sometimes I wonder if the coming years will furnish any relief to the rising generation of preachers' wives, and then it is that I wish I had the miracle-working rod of Moses, so I might help to set things right. It is a great satisfaction to know that the Great Evener still has control of things and the star of hope arises in our desolate souls.

But, after all, it is a great life; and if I had it to do over, I would make no change in my selection. However, there are times when I sit alone in my little rented room and think of all the girls in my class at school who have splendid homes and temporal blessings; then it is that I am tempted to —no, I'm not. I'm glad it all happened just as it did, for I have been instrumental in helping hundreds of souls to be born into the kingdom of my Lord and Saviour. I'm not afraid to trust God for the future. I'm glad there is a brighter day dawning for the wives of our active ministers as well as for the "forgotten man and woman." Relief is in sight. God speed the day! The special effort for superannuate endowment, soon to be launched by the Board of Finance, is a challenge to every red blooded Southern Methodist.

THE BURDEN BEARER

I lift the ever-present burden of widowhood orphanage, disability, sickness and advanced age of the itinerancy and of the laity of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, by providing "a home of their own," or its equivalent, to comfort and support them during all the years of life thereafter.

"Safety first" is my guiding star in all business matters and "brother love" in all manner of service. My premium rates are adequate to give insurance at cost (30 per cent lower than commercial companies require.) Expense of management is reduced to the minimum, being the lowest amount permissible while insuring efficiency. Personal profit, investment methods, and employed paid agents are not allowed. This is saved for the Certificate holders.

Benefit certificates are issued for insurance protection in amounts of $3,000 or less per application on following attractive plans: Whole life; twenty-premium life; endowment at age sixty and seventy; term to age fifty, sixty, and seventy; annuity, and combination of plans.

The itinerant preache of the past has had no chance. Shall they of the future fare no better?

By their own institution, ingenuity, thrift, and divine Providence they are solving their financial problems. The sting of superannuation is removed.

For information and application blanks write to the Methodist Benevolent Association, Dept. 8, 810 Broadway, Nashville, Tenn.

Church Furniture

WORK OF THE HIGHEST QUALITY
AT REASONABLE PRICES

Write for Catalogue
BUDDE & WEIS MFG. CO.
JACKSON, TENNESSEE

Piles

are usually due to straining when constipated. Nujol being a lubricant keeps the food waste soft and therefore prevents straining. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it not only soothes the suffering of piles but relieves the irritation, brings comfort and helps to remove them.

Nujol is a lubricant—not a medicine or laxative — so cannot gripe. Try it today.

Nujol

REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.
A LUBRICANT—NOT A LAXATIVE

FOUND

—a sure way to have beautiful soft and fluffy hair. Use regularly pure

CARO-CO
COCOANUT OIL
SHAMPOO

Large bottle
50c at all dealers.

Medical College of Virginia

(State Institution—Established 1838)

Dentistry
Medicine—Pharmacy—Nursing

Well-equipped laboratories under supervision of full-time teachers. Abundance of clinical material in the Memorial, St. Philip and Dooley Hospitals, owned and controlled by the College.

For Catalogue, address
J. R. McCAULEY, Sec.-Treas.
1142 E. Clay St. Richmond, Va.

WHERE

the Summer's heat is exhausting, try this:

Into a glass of cool water, stir a teaspoonful of Horsford's Acid Phosphate, and drink. Its "tart" delights the palate and quenches thirst, its PHOSPHATES, like those found in cereals, quiet the nerves and refresh the system.

HORSFORD'S ACID PHOSPHATE

(feeds the body and tissues nourishment that is essential to health, in a form readily assimilable. At Druggists.)

Write for SPECIAL BOOKLET telling how to make delicious fruit drinks, ices, etc., and giving important information about the nutritious PHOSPHATES. Sent free. Address
RUMFORD CHEMICAL WORKS
PROVIDENCE, R. I. M-49

World's Best Roofing at Factory Prices

"Reo" Cluster Metal Shingles, V-Crimp, Corrugated, Standing Seam, Painted or Galvanized Roofings, Siding, Wallboard, Paints, etc., direct to you at Rock-Bottom Factory Prices. Positively greatest offer ever made.

Edwards "Reo" Metal Shingles

cost less; outlast three ordinary roofs. No painting or repairs. Guaranteed rot, fire, rust, lightning proof. Send for samples and free roofing book.

Edwards Ready Made Buildings

Send for the Edwards Catalog of "Superior" Ready-Made Buildings, showing a complete line of houses, bungalows, barns, wood garages, poultry houses, etc., all at money-saving factory prices. These buildings are not merely "ready-cut" but actually ready built, and represent a wonderful money-saving.

Let Edwards Save You Money

Be Sure to State Which Books You Want —Roofing and Free Samples; Ready-Made Buildings; or Metal Garages. Postal or letter brings one or more of them FREE.

Free Roofing Book
Get our wonderfully low prices and free samples. We will direct to you and save you all in-between roofing profits. Ask for Book No. 2373

LOW PRICED GARAGES
Lowest prices on Ready-Made Fire-Proof Steel Garages. Set up any place. Send postal for Garage Book showing styles.

THE EDWARDS MFG. CO.,
2323-2373 Pike St. Cincinnati, O.

FREE

Samples & Roofing Book

Our Little Folks

FATHER AND SON

Be more than his dad,
Be a chum to the lad;
Be a part of his life
Every hour of the day.
Find time to talk with him,
Take time to walk with him.
Share in his studies
And share in his plays;
Take him to places,
To ball games and races,
Teach him the things
That you want him to know;
Don't live apart from him,
Don't keep your heart from him,
But his best comrade,
He's needing you so!

Never neglect him,
Though young, still respect him,
Hear his opinions
With patience and pride;
Show him his error,
But be not a terror,
Grim-visaged and fearful,
When he's at your side.
Know what his thoughts are,
Know what his sports are,
Know his playmates,
It's easy to learn to
Be such a father
That when troubles gather
You'll be the first one
For counsel he'll turn to.

You can inspire him
With courage, and fire him
Hot with ambition
For deeds that are good;
He'll not betray you,
Nor illy repay you,
If you have taught him
The things that you should.
—Edgar Guest.

BERT'S WILDCAT

"O Bert," cried Polly, "father says we're all going to the mountains for the month of August!"

That was good news to Bert, but he only said, "Huh! That's fine!"

The family arrived at the small mountain hotel early one evening, and the next day the brother and sister were all ready to explore the neighborhood. They made friends with Ben, an old man of all work on the premises, and asked him all sorts of questions about the big woods near the hotel.

"Yes," drawled old Ben, "thar's a few animals wandering round on the mountains; foxes and wildcats and now and then a bear."

Polly glanced over her shoulder at the dark forest, but Bert, who noticed her look, laughed.

"Ho!" he said. "Bears always run away, Poll. And as for wildcats, they're no bigger than ordinary good-sized cats. You can tell them by their stubby tails. I'd just as soon walk right up to one and stroke it."

Polly shook her curly head doubtfully and Ben remarked that he should call a wildcat a "savage critter."

A few days after that Bert and his sister set out for a ramble up the side of Whiteface, the nearest mountain. After an hour to two of pleasant climbing they halted to eat the sandwiches they had brought with them. Afterward they stretched themselves out on the moss to rest awhile.

After they had been silent and still for a long time, Bert said drowsily, "This is the jolliest place I ever saw."

Just as he spoke there was a slight sound like the crackling of a twig in the thicket just behind them. Bert sat up. "What was that?" he said.

They listened, and presently they heard the sound again. That time it was a little nearer. "Do you suppose it's a bear or anything?" asked Bert in a low tone.

"It might be a wildcat," Polly suggested rather shakily. "You said bears always ran away."

At that moment they both caught sight of two bright eyes shining in the shadows of the firs. "Look!" Bert said in a loud whisper. "It is a wildcat, I do believe. What shall we do?"

"Perhaps we'd better sit perfectly still," Polly whispered back.

Nearer and nearer came the eyes. The two watchers—sitting like statues, but rather shaky statues—could now see plainly the animal's gray fur and erect, pointed ears.

The creature advanced softly, step by step, until it was only a rod away.

"I can hear it growling," Bert said in a low whisper.

Polly listened a moment. "No," she said softly, "that doesn't sound like growling. It's more—why, it's more like purring."

As the big cat came slowly nearer they could hear it purring loudly. Suddenly Polly had an idea. She reached out one trembling hand, snatched up a fragrant of beef from a left-over sandwich and tossed it toward the strange visitor.

The animal halted and sniffed at the meat, then, crouching, began to eat it.

"I declare," said Polly in a bolder tone, "it acts like a common cat!"

When the cat had finished the morsel it came still closer, purring more affably than ever, and accepting another piece of beef. That finished, it walked over to the shrinking pair and began to rub against Polly's knee.

The little girl drew back at first; then all at once she cried, "Look, Bert, it has a long tail just like any common cat. It is a common cat!"

She put out a hesitating little hand and stroked the silky fur.

A little later two rather shame-faced travelers came stealing back to the hotel. They might have kept their adventure a secret, but the cat followed close at their heels and would not leave them.

As they walked into the backyard old Ben saw them. "Hey," he said, "where did you find Big Tom? In the woods, I suppose; he's a regular tramp. Didn't see any wildcats, did you?"

Then somehow the whole story came out. Old Ben was good enough not to laugh very hard, but he could not help giving Bert a little thrust. "When you saw the critter staring through the bushes did you walk right up to it and stroke it, son?"

Bert was honest. "No, sir-e-e. I didn't," said he. "Wildcats are easier to talk about, I guess, than they are to meet."—Willis Boyd Allen, in The Youth's Companion.

"Willie," said his mother, "your hair is wet. You have been in the river again?"

"Yes, mother," said Willie bravely; "I went in to save Charlie Jones."

"My noble darling!" cried his mother. "Did you jump in after him?"

"No, mother," replied Willie; "I jumped in first, so as to be there when he fell in."—Exchange.

"Who fiddled while Rome burned?" asked the school teacher. "Hector, sir." "No," said the school teacher. "Towser, sir." "Towser! What do you mean? It was Nero." "Well, sir, I knew it was somebody with a dog's name."—Los Angeles Times.

GREENSBORO COLLEGE

The A-Grade Woman's College of the Two Methodist Conferences of North Carolina

Rated by State Department of Education as Class A.

Chartered 1838. Confers the degree of A. B. in the literary department and B. M. in the music department.

In addition to our regular classical course, special attention is called to the departments of Home Economics, Expression, Art, Education, Sunday School Teacher Training, Piano Pedagogy, and to our complete School of Music.

Modern New $50,000.00 Dormitory completed 1918. Conservatory of Music costing about $170,000 completed 1922.

Fall Semester begins September 5, 1923. For further information apply to DR. S. B. TURRENTINE, President, Greensboro, N. C.

DAVENPORT COLLEGE

FOR YOUNG WOMEN

LENOIR, N. C.

A three-year Junior College with a record of sixty-eight years of exceptional Academic work.

Well equipped, Conservative, but thoroughly abreast of the times.

Fine Type of Student Life. A Safe Place for Young Women to study under close but sympathetic discipline.

Moderate Expenses. The lowest cost commensurate with a High Type of Modern Instruction.

A Registered Nurse constantly in attendance. A most healthful location, in the foothills of the Blue Ridge.

Courses in the Regular Academic Department and Art, Music, Expression, Domestic Science, Domestic Art and Secretarial Courses.

A four-year preparatory course on same campus and correlated with the college.

For Catalogue and Views,

Address PRESIDENT C. L. HORNADAY, LENOIR, N. C.

1802

1923

LOUISBURG COLLEGE

A Junior College for Young Women
With a Standard Preparatory Course of Four Years
Property of North Carolina Conference

Faculty of specially trained, consecrated Christian teachers.

Health Record Unsurpassed. Home-like Atmosphere. Social Life Carefully Guarded. Athletics.

In addition to the regular college courses, Classical and General, attention is called to the departments of Art, Business, Education, Expression, Home Economics, Music (Piano, Voice, Violin, Theory, etc.), and Religious Education.

Rates as low as consistent with good service. Send for free Catalogue and Book of Views. For further information write

A. W. MOHN, PRESIDENT, LOUISBURG, N. C.

FOUNDED 1838

CHARTERED IN 1859

TRINITY COLLEGE

DURHAM, N. C.

A Southern College of liberal arts with an established national reputation for high standards, noble traditions, and progressive policies. Its large endowment fund makes possible its first-class equipment and large faculty of well trained and carefully chosen teachers. Student fees low. Comfortable, inexpensive rooms in carefully supervised hygienic dormitories.

Classical and scientific courses leading to the bachelor's degree. Graduate courses in all departments. Schools of Engineering, Education, and Law.

For catalogue and illustrated booklet, address

R. L. FLOWERS,
Secretary to the Corporation.

PRESIDING ELDERS APPOINTMENTS

Western North Carolina Conference

ASHEVILLE DISTRICT H. C. Sprinkle, P. E., Asheville, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Asheville District, including Henderson, Fruitland, East Biltmore, etc.

September

Table listing church appointments for Asheville District in September, including Hominy, Pleasant Hill, Leicester, etc.

October

Table listing church appointments for Asheville District in October, including Central, Weaverville Station, Biltmore, etc.

CHARLOTTE DISTRICT J. B. Craven, P. E., 413 Central Ave., Charlotte, N. C.

Table listing church appointments for Charlotte District, including Brevard Street, Laymen's Meeting, Tryon Street, etc.

GREENSBORO DISTRICT W. F. Womble, Presiding Elder 508 Summit Ave., Greensboro, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Greensboro District, including Liberty, Bethel, Randolph, Hopewell, etc.

September

Table listing church appointments for Greensboro District in September, including East Greensboro, Walnut Street, Uwharrie, etc.

October

Table listing church appointments for Greensboro District in October, including Pleasant Garden, Spring Garden, Ruffin, etc.

MARION DISTRICT Z. Parls, P. E., Marion, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Marion District, including Table Rock, Marion, Old Fort, Bethlehem, etc.

Table listing church appointments for Forest City, Pleasant Grove, Spindale, Alexander, etc.

September

Table listing church appointments for Forest City, Pleasant Grove, Spindale, Alexander, etc. in September.

All the pastors and charge lay leaders of Marion district will convene at Marion on July 26th on very important business.

MOUNT AIRY DISTRICT J. H. West, P. E., Box 422, Mt. Airy, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Mount Airy District, including Mt. Airy, Central, Rockford St., night, etc.

August

Table listing church appointments for Mount Airy District in August, including Mt. Airy, Central, Rockford St., night, etc.

October

Table listing church appointments for Mount Airy District in October, including Danbury, Danbury, Mt. Airy Ct., Oak Grove, etc.

NORTH WILKESBORO DISTRICT J. W. Williams, P. E., Jefferson, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing church appointments for North Wilkesboro District, including Laurel Springs, Transou, Sparta, Potato Creek, etc.

September

Table listing church appointments for North Wilkesboro District in September, including Avery, Elk Park, Todd, Fairview, etc.

October

Table listing church appointments for North Wilkesboro District in October, including Wilkes, Ferguson, Wilkesboro, Wilkesboro 8 ngt., etc.

FIFTH ROUND

Table listing church appointments for North Wilkesboro District in Fifth Round, including Creston, Sutherland, Warrensville, etc.

SHELBY DISTRICT H. H. Jordan, P. E., Gastonia, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Shelby District, including South Fork, Bethel, Lincoln, 8, Rock Springs, etc.

August

Table listing church appointments for Shelby District in August, including South Fork, Bethel, Lincoln, 8, Rock Springs, etc.

September

Table listing church appointments for Shelby District in September, including Lincoln Ct., Asbury, Trinity, Tate's Chapel, etc.

I most earnestly request every official to be present at his quarterly conference, and assist in electing the officials of his church for the ensuing year.

WAYNESVILLE DISTRICT R. S. Howie, P. E., Waynesville, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Waynesville District, including Canton Station, Waynesville Sta., Waynesville Ct., Dellwood, etc.

September

Table listing church appointments for Waynesville District in September, including Canton Station, Waynesville Sta., Waynesville Ct., Dellwood, etc.

Table listing church appointments for Haywood Ct., Mt. Zion, Hayesville Ct., Ledford's Chpl, etc.

October

Table listing church appointments for Haywood Ct., Mt. Zion, Hayesville Ct., Ledford's Chpl, etc. in October.

SALISBURY DISTRICT T. F. Marr, P. E., Salisbury, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Salisbury District, including Park Avenue, East Spencer, Salisbury Ct., Bethel, etc.

August

Table listing church appointments for Salisbury District in August, including Park Avenue, East Spencer, Salisbury Ct., Bethel, etc.

September

Table listing church appointments for Salisbury District in September, including Gold Hill Ct., Liberty, Spencer, Central, etc.

October

Table listing church appointments for Salisbury District in October, including Norwood Ct., Mt. Zion, Norwood, etc.

STATESVILLE DISTRICT D. M. Litaker, P. E., 240 Walnut St., Statesville, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Statesville District, including Mooresville Ct., Centenary, Davidson, etc.

August

Table listing church appointments for Statesville District in August, including Mooresville Ct., Centenary, Davidson, etc.

September

Table listing church appointments for Statesville District in September, including Hickory, Frst, 8 & 11, Westview, Bethel, etc.

October

Table listing church appointments for Statesville District in October, including Olin, Snow Creek, Jones Memorial, etc.

All early conferences will have a fifth round. District meeting in Newton July 24th for pastors, lay leaders, educational collectors and chairmen of educational committees.

WINSTON-SALEM DISTRICT W. A. Newell, P. E., 1084 W. Fourth Street, Winston-Salem, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Winston-Salem District, including West End, West End, Burkhead, Burkhead, ngt, etc.

August

Table listing church appointments for Winston-Salem District in August, including West End, West End, Burkhead, Burkhead, ngt, etc.

September

Table listing church appointments for Winston-Salem District in September, including West End, West End, Burkhead, Burkhead, ngt, etc.

DURHAM DISTRICT M. T. Plyler, P. E., Durham, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Durham District, including Person, Oak Grove, Roxboro, Milton, Purley, etc.

ELIZABETH CITY DISTRICT C. B. Culbreth, P. E., Elizabeth City, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Elizabeth City District, including Columbia, Gum Neck, Gates & N. Gates, etc.

August

Table listing church appointments for Elizabeth City District in August, including Columbia, Gum Neck, Gates & N. Gates, etc.

FAYETTEVILLE DISTRICT R. H. Willis, P. E., Fayetteville, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Fayetteville District, including Goldston, Maronie, Elizabeth, Wesley's Chapel, etc.

August

Table listing church appointments for Fayetteville District in August, including Goldston, Maronie, Elizabeth, Wesley's Chapel, etc.

September

Table listing church appointments for Fayetteville District in September, including Goldston, Maronie, Elizabeth, Wesley's Chapel, etc.

RALEIGH DISTRICT J. C. Wooten, P. E. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Raleigh District, including Princeton, Fellowship, etc.

August

Table listing church appointments for Raleigh District in August, including Princeton, Fellowship, etc.

September

Table listing church appointments for Raleigh District in September, including Princeton, Fellowship, etc.

WASHINGTON DISTRICT S. A. Cotton, P. E., Washington, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Washington District, including Swan Quarter, Sladesville, Mattamuskeet Ct., etc.

August

Table listing church appointments for Washington District in August, including Swan Quarter, Sladesville, Mattamuskeet Ct., etc.

September

Table listing church appointments for Washington District in September, including Swan Quarter, Sladesville, Mattamuskeet Ct., etc.

NEW BERN DISTRICT F. M. Shamburger, P. E., New Bern, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing church appointments for New Bern District, including Craven Ct., Tuscarora, Dover Ct., Dover, etc.

August

Table listing church appointments for New Bern District in August, including Craven Ct., Tuscarora, Dover Ct., Dover, etc.

September

Table listing church appointments for New Bern District in September, including Craven Ct., Tuscarora, Dover Ct., Dover, etc.

ROCKINGHAM DISTRICT J. H. Shore, P. E., Rockingham, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Rockingham District, including St. Paul, Barker's, Lumberton, Mt. Gilead Ct., Wadeville, etc.

August

Table listing church appointments for Rockingham District in August, including St. Paul, Barker's, Lumberton, Mt. Gilead Ct., Wadeville, etc.

September

Table listing church appointments for Rockingham District in September, including St. Paul, Barker's, Lumberton, Mt. Gilead Ct., Wadeville, etc.

MORPHINE and WHISKY HABITS successfully treated. Write for information. Correspondence confidential. 12th successful yr. WILLIAMS PRIVATE SANITARIUM, Greensboro, N. C.

RANDOLPH-MACON INSTITUTE, Danville, Virginia, for Girls. College preparatory and special course for those not wishing to go to college. Vocational and instrumental Music, Art and Expression. Attractive home life. Gymnasium. Branch of the Randolph-Macon System. Rates $500. Catalogue. Address Chas. G. Evans, A. M., Principal, Box C.

Take Business Training at Home We will train you just as thoroughly at your home as at our College. Write for big, FREE book, "Guide to Business Success." Draughon's Practical Business College, Dept. N. C., Nashville, Tenn.

Church Pewes at Special Prices Now is your great opportunity to save money on new pews for your church. Beautiful designs. Excellent workmanship. Selected seasoned lumber. Satisfaction Guaranteed. Write for illustrated circular and prices. FORBES MFG. CO., Inc. Hopkinsville, Ky.

WOMAN'S WORK

(Continued from page eight)

Auxiliary President Writes of Interesting Memorial Program.

Mrs. Mary Snead, president of the Oakland Pioneer Missionary Society, writes: "At the June meeting we carried out the Council's beautiful program. For beauty of conception and planning, the Council program could not be excelled. The outline was followed, and the members entered cordially, sympathetically, and lovingly into the occasion. The large, handsome picture of Miss Bennett, surrounded by flowers, had a conspicuous place; that in itself was an inspiration. After all the beautiful tributes to our late Council president, and the glorious work she had accomplished, the touching little poem was given,

Good-Bye Pimples!

Farewell eczema, rash and other annoying skin troubles

TETTERINE

The skin's best friend. Leaves the skin soft, smooth and spotless.

60c at your druggist's or from the SHUPTRINE CO. :: :: SAVANNAH, GA.

- School Desks,
- Opera Chairs,
- Folding Chairs
- Kindergarten Chairs,
- Church Pews,
- School Supplies,
- Blackboards

Southern Desk Co., Hickory, N. C.

The Sweet-Toned WILLIAMS PIANO

The highest-grade piano ever sold direct to homes and churches at the net factory price. Sent on trial. No agents. No money in advance. Easy terms. Nothing could be fairer.

Write today for FREE Catalog and Prices
WILLIAMS PIANO & ORGAN CO. 1256 Fullerton Ave. Chicago

EXPERT KODAK FINISHING

Developing and printing done by experts. Most beautiful work guaranteed at all times. Satisfaction or no charge. Developing 6 exposure rolls 10 cents, 10 and 12 exposure rolls 15 cents, film packs 20 cents per pack. Printing 1 5-8x2 1-2—3 cents, 2 1-4x3 1-4—4 cents, 2 1-2x4 1-4—5 cents, 3 1-4x5 1-2—6 cents. Quick delivery. Send one film to test our service.

LIGONS DRUG STORE,
Spartanburg, S. C.

sure is strong

for the outhouse

Look for the smiling red devil

You always know a can of genuine Red Devil Lye by the smiling red devil on the label. It stands for a lye that you can depend upon to do the hard, rough work. For twenty years it has been the standard for good lye. Ask your grocer for the can with the red devil label.

Write for Free Booklet

Wm. Schield Mfg. Co., St. Louis, Mo.

RED DEVIL LYE

and a prayer for the success of the Memorial campaign was offered by our pastor. Individual pledges were then taken, and, after a few moments of reverent silence, the pledges were collected; when summed up, it was found that our auxiliary had more than subscribed the necessary amount to meet the pledge made at the Pacific Conference by our delegates. Our hearts' response was 'Praise the Lord.' It is our prayer that every missionary society in the entire church will respond as cordially as did the Oakland auxiliary, and that soon the Bennett Memorial will be an accomplished fact."

The Plan of the Memorial Campaign.

Since the last issue of the Bulletin the "Campaign Handbooks" have come from the press and been distributed to all the auxiliaries throughout the connection, one being sent to each conference treasurer, one to the auxiliary collector, and one to the president of each auxiliary. Those who desire further information other than contained in this Bulletin, can secure a "Campaign Handbook" by writing Miss Estelle Haskin, Lambuth Building, Nashville, Tenn.

It is generally known that the Memorial fund is to be raised on the share plan, these shares to be sold to members of the auxiliaries, members of the church, or other individuals who wish to express their love to our great leader and to the Master whom she, followed by having a part in the campaign.

The method of procedure recommended to all conferences is as follows:

Auxiliary Collector.

In each auxiliary it has been suggested that a collector be appointed who shall co-operate with the auxiliary treasurer in securing pledges and collecting funds. She may have a committee if she desires one. Pledge cards will be furnished the collector in any number by writing to Miss Estelle Haskin, Nashville, Tenn. The collector is to keep all pledge cards until the pledges have been paid in full, then she sends the cards to Mrs. F. H. E. Ross, Lambuth Building, Nashville, Tenn. Do not send any money in payment of pledges to Mrs. Ross. Information will be given below as to the policy of handling the money.

Auxiliary Collector Report Blanks.

Report blanks will be furnished each collector on which she makes her report each quarter. When the blank has been properly filled with the names of the subscribers and the number of shares, she sends it to the auxiliary treasurer to send with her report to the conference treasurer. Certificates will be issued by the conference treasurer to any subscriber for payments in even dollars. For example, if a person subscribes fifteen dollars, payable in three years at five dollars each year, a certificate will be issued for each five shares as soon as paid; if the subscriber so desires, the certificate will be issued for the full fifteen shares when the final payment is made.

Auxiliary Treasurer.

The auxiliary treasurer receives all money collected by the auxiliary collector and forwards same quarterly to the conference treasurer, with the accompanying blank, taking care to state that the sum is for the Bennett Memorial. The amount of cash forwarded must agree with the total on the collector's report blank for the quarter.

Certificates—How Issued.

A supply of certificates will be given to the conference treasurer, who will fill them out, counter-signing each certificate in the space above the name of the Council president. Certificates, when mailed out, may be sent in packages to the auxiliary collector for distribution to subscribers. Special mailing envelopes will be furnished with the certificates.—Bulletin.

Cullowhee Normal and Industrial School

CULLOWHEE, N. C.

CO-EDUCATIONAL

A standard two-year State Normal School, preparing teachers for elementary schools. Three distinct curricula:

- (a) For teaching in primary grades, leading to Primary B Certificate.
- (b) For teaching in intermediate grades, leading to Grammar Grade B Certificate.
- (c) For teaching in upper grades, leading to Grammar Grade B Certificate.

Enlarged faculty of specialists in teacher-training work; excellent practice school, with new building and equipment throughout; one of best girls' dormitories in state just being completed; dormitory for men; new central heating plant. Tuition free to North Carolina teachers.

The State also has a standard four-year high school here, which, while being distinct from the normal school work, is under the same management.

The school is in the picturesque Tuckasegee River Valley, in Western North Carolina, fifty-five miles from Asheville; daily train and bus to central points. For information, write

H. T. HUNTER, PRESIDENT, CULLOWHEE, N. C.

"What Shall I Play Next?"

WHEREVER you go, the piano is the center of attraction. There is always the demand to "play one more—anything at all." And the girl who can play, who can amuse and entertain people, is usually the most popular.

So long as the love of music remains, playing will never die out in the home. For there's no pleasure to compare with that of sitting down and playing, yourself, whether it's some beautiful masterpiece of music, or only the lilting, happy notes of a popular song.

For years, the Weaver piano has been making playing possible in thousands of homes. Its rich, full tones have been an inspiration and joy to many. It has been recommended by leading musicians all over the country, for its beautiful tone qualities, its easy, responsive action and perfect mechanism.

You will find the Weaver just the instrument you have always dreamed of owning. And as the years pass, bringing the same rich beauty of tone, you will congratulate yourself many times on the wisdom that prompted you to decide upon a Weaver.

Only a small outlay down is necessary, and the Weaver is yours, to enjoy the whole time you're paying for it. The terms have purposely been made easy. These easy terms will buy a Weaver upright, grand or player piano. Write us for further information.

WEAVER PIANO CO., Inc.

Factory and General Offices: York, Pa.

Weaver, York and Livingston Pianos and Player Pianos

WEAVER PIANOS

IN MEMORIAM

MIDGETT—Cenetha J. Midgett, wife of James M. Midgett of Rodanthe, N. C., was suddenly called from her home on earth to her home in heaven October 28, 1822, in the sixty-third year of her age. She was converted and joined the Methodist church when quite young, and remained a faithful and cheerful Christian through life. And her influence still lives and will as the years go by. She leaves a husband, four children, one brother, three sisters in sorrow with a host of friends to miss her. May they all be comforted with that truth which can meet her again some day. The funeral service was held at her home, and she was laid to rest beside loved ones that had gone before.

K. R. Pugh.

WILLIAMS—Mrs. Susannah Williams died June 1, 1923, at the age of nearly 81 years. She was first married to John C. Charles, second to J. R. Williams. To the first union were born eight children, three of whom preceded her to the spirit world. Those now living are Mrs. H. T. Smithdeal, Miss Sallie Charles, Mrs. G. T. Tucker, Mrs. W. R. Taylor and Mrs. G. H. Cornatzer. Early in life she joined the church at Shady Grove and lived a faithful member of the same till death. In her death the community has lost a valuable helper and the church a loyal member.

"Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord." J. M. Varner.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

The Daughters of Wesley sustaining an irreparable loss in the death of one of its members, Lucile Caveness, do hereby resolve:

- First, That we have lost one of our most useful and consecrated members.
- Second, That we will cherish her memory in the coming years.
- Third, That our hearts are saddened by her passing, and that we shall miss the ever cheerful help of Lucile in the future activities of our class.
- Fourth, That we as a class extend our heartfelt love and sympathy to her relatives and friends.
- Fifth, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, a copy to the Courier, North Carolina Christian Advocate, and a copy recorded in the minutes of our Sunday school.

Golda Hayworth,
Mary Bulla,
Lena Hilliard,
Committee.

TO THE MEMORY OF TWO FRIENDS

During my stay in Fairmont while on the Robeson charge for four years, there were two persons who stood by me and helped me in all my work and were faithful and true in all the work of the church. Of course there were many others on this charge that were loyal to the church and helped me, but I mention these because this year they have been called to enter into that rest that remains for the people of God.

One of these was Mrs. Florence Brown, wife of Dr. J. P. Brown, and daughter of Dr. J. Sanford, once a useful and beloved member of the N. C. conference. And so far as I know she was the last one of the immediate family.

I found in Sister Brown a true, devoted worker and leader in the church, but more especially in the Sunday school and Woman's Missionary Society. She loved these with a great love and gave to them her best self in time, talent and sacrifice. And in many respects she could be called the mother of Methodism in Fairmont and of the missionary society—and I think it proper and right that the society should be called Florence Brown Missionary Society.

Sister Brown was educated at the old "G. F. C." in Greensboro and was refined and intelligent. The people loved and trusted her. She was a friend to all. She was of a bright, cheerful and happy disposition that carried sunshine and happiness to many a soul.

The other person of whom I speak was Brother Oscar Pittman. Robeson county has never had a more true and upright citizen than Brother Pittman. He was a timid, modest man, but of a great soul and character as pure as the lily in morals.

According to the proverb, "A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches," he was really rich; for I am sure that no man in all that section had a better name for sobriety, honesty, purity, etc., than he. I considered him in every way a real Christian gentleman.

Brother Pittman was always true and loyal to the Methodist church. He was one of the charter members and a teacher in the Sunday school for a long number of years. He gave of his means liberally to all the institutions of the church, but more especially to the orphanage. I regret that he did not make a will, for I am sure he would have remembered this and other institutions and gave liberally to them.

And it is sad to think that these two saints could not have lived to see a new Methodist church in Fairmont, for it was their great desire and expectation. But God ordered to carry them home. So as I have heard Mrs. Brown sing, The angels came and bore them away on their snowy wings to their immortal home.

Heaven is nearer and sweeter to me because these two have lived and I have come under the influence of their lives. I feel a personal grief at their going. B. E. Stanfield.

BETHEA—At her home in Lillington, surrounded by relatives and sorrowing friends, Miss Jennie Louis Bethea passed to her reward January 26, 1923. She died after a short illness of pneumonia, following influenza. Miss Bethea was born August 5, 1857, the youngest child of the late John Louis Bethea. She is survived by two sisters, Mrs. J. W. Brown of Sanford, Mrs. William Arnold of Lillington, and a host of other relatives.

At 19 years of age Miss Bethea consecrated her life to the service of God and united with the Methodist church, in which till death she was an active and interested worker.

In the passing of Miss Bethea her community has lost a personality that cannot be duplicated. She was of unusually genial disposition, imparting her spirit of cheerfulness to all. The sweetness of her life, her patience, her trust, her bravery to face any condition smilingly will be forever stamped on the minds and hearts of all who knew her, and is an inspiration to loved ones.

"To so live that when our summons comes to join

The innumerable caravan which moves
To that mysterious realm, where each must take
His chamber in the silent halls of Death,
We go not like the quarry slave at night
Scourged to his dungeon, but soothed and unstained
By an unflinching trust, approach our grave
Like the one who wraps the draperies of his couch
About him, and lies down to pleasant dreams."

G. S. I.

Renew Your Health At Nature's Fountain

Without the Expense and Loss of Time Necessary for a Visit to the Spring

THE CRISIS

There comes a time in the life of practically every man and woman when their digestive or eliminative organs, or both, fail to respond to drugs prepared by human skill. In fact drugs seem to do them about as much harm as good for their systems rebel against all drugs. These are the cases which physicians call "stubborn" and "chronic" for the reason that they persist in spite of drug treatment. We do not refer to incurable diseases such as cancer and consumption, but to that larger class of functional disorders which we meet every day, where the organs of digestion and elimination are impaired.

For this class of cases our best physicians and our big city specialists send their wealthy patients to the mineral springs where, in the great majority of cases they are permanently restored or decidedly benefited. But what about the poor man who has not the money or the busy man or woman who cannot spare the time to spend several weeks or possibly months at a health resort? Shall circumstances deny them the restoration to health which Nature has provided? Read our answer in the coupon at the bottom of this page.

We have the utmost confidence in the Shivar Mineral Spring Water for it has made us thousands of friends in all parts of America and even in foreign countries, whose faces we have never seen. Yet we count them our friends for the Shivar Spring Water has bound them to us by lasting gratitude.

We ask you to read their letters, a few samples of which we publish below for your benefit, and if you find among them any encouragement as to your own health do not hesitate to accept our offer which has no limits or conditions except those shown on the coupon.

INDIGESTION

I was suffering with indigestion, stomach and liver disorders and all its train of horrifying phenomena for several months. I had lived on milk, soft eggs, shredded wheat, a very insufficient diet for an active working man, and, of course, from disease and starvation was in a very low state of nervous vitality and general debility. I ordered ten gallons of your Mineral Water which I used continuously, reordering when necessary, and in four months gained twenty-nine pounds, was strong and perfectly well, and have worked practically every day since. It acts as a general renovator of the system. I prescribe it in my practice, and it has in every instance had the desired effects. It is essential to use this water in as large quantities as possible, for its properties are so happily blended and in such proportion that they will not disturb the most delicate system. It is purely Nature's remedy.

I feel it my duty to thank the humanity to make public announcements of the benefits I have derived from Shivar Mineral Spring Water. I have been a sufferer for twenty-five years from indigestion and dyspepsia. After one week's trial of Shivar Mineral Spring Water I commenced to improve, and after drinking it for four weeks I gained fifteen pounds. I feel better and stronger than I have in twenty-five years. I strongly recommend this Water to any one with stomach trouble of any character. I am writing this voluntarily and trust it will fall in the hands of many who are so unfortunate as to be afflicted with indigestion and nervous dyspepsia. C. V. T.

DYSPEPSIA

For many years I suffered with stomach trouble as a direct result of asthma. I consulted the very best specialist in this country, and spent quite a large sum of money in my endeavor to get relief. However, I had about come to the conclusion that my case was hopeless, but by accident I happened to get hold of one of your booklets, and decided to try Shivar Spring Water. After drinking the water for about three weeks I was entirely relieved, and since that time have suffered but little inconvenience from my trouble. I cheerfully recommend the use of your Water to any one that may be suffering from stomach trouble. O. T. S.

It is a great pleasure to tell you that your Water has been a great benefit, I may say a great blessing, to me. My wife says it has helped me more than anything else I ever tried. I have been, for thirty years, a sufferer from stomach trouble. REV. E. H. R.

RHEUMATISM

I have tested your Spring Water in several cases of rheumatism, chronic indigestion, kidney and bladder troubles, and in nervous and sick headaches, and find that it has acted nicely in each case. It will purify the blood, relieve debility, stimulate the action of the liver, kidneys and bladder, aiding them in throwing off all poisonous matter. C. A. C., M. D.

I suffered with indigestion and kidney trouble, and a year ago was stricken with acute articular rheumatism; was helpless for months, and since using your Spring Water I am walking without any crutch and improving daily. Indigestion much relieved. I wish I could write Shivar Spring Water in the sky so that the world could become acquainted with it. MRS. T. K.

RENAL AND CYSTIC

I suffered for eight years with kidney trouble and inflammation of the bladder to the extent that I would have to get up during the night some five or six times. After using this water only a few days, I am entirely relieved and suffer no more effect of the trouble whatever. J. P. D.

My wife has had a bad kidney trouble for several years. She has been using the water only about three weeks and it has already made her a new woman. Her color is much improved, her appetite is all that she could wish for, her digestion seems to be perfect. We give Shivar Springs credit for it all. T. G. S.

Fill Out This Coupon and Mail It Today

Shivar Springs,
Box 4T, Shelton, S. C.

Gentlemen: I accept your offer and enclose herewith three dollars ($3.00) for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Spring Water. I agree to give it a fair trial in accordance with the instructions which you will send, and if I report no benefit therefrom you agree to refund the price of the water in full upon receipt of the two empty demijohns, which I agree to return within thirty days.

Name .....

P. O. ....

Express Office .....

Please write distinctly.

NORTH CAROLINA Christian Advocate

Volume LXVIII

GREENSBORO, N. C., THURSDAY, AUGUST 9, 1923

No. 32

Bishop James Cannon, Jr., Writes Dr. J. W. Shackford

From letters which I have received from different parts of the church, it is evident that the statements contained in the secular press concerning the course of lectures delivered by Dr. Bland of Toronto, Canada, in the auditorium of the Southern Assembly under the auspices of the General Sunday School Board, the questions which I asked and the statement which I made at the close of the lectures have aroused wide-spread interest among our people and a desire to know the exact facts. On July 21st, the day after the conclusion of Dr. Bland's course of lectures, I wrote to Dr. John W. Shackford, the general secretary of the Sunday School Board, stating my objection to the method pursued, insisting that assurances be given that such methods would not be continued in the work of the Sunday School Board. In a reply to this letter, Dr. Shackford states that he has it in mind to set forth in the Review or elsewhere his position on the question at issue. He furthermore states as his belief that the position taken by Brother Sensabaugh and himself had the enthusiastic support of the great majority of those present, and he emphasizes his opinion that he is anxious that the church at large should know the very remarkable extent to which our teachers, young people, and the pastors present expressed themselves as having been helped and their faith stabilized by the lectures of Dr. Bland.

In view of this purpose expressed by Dr. Shackford, to set forth in print his views on this subject, and in view of the fact that I am sailing for Europe within the next few days, I have decided, in order that in my absence there may be no question as to my attitude, or as to the statement which I made, or as to the letter which I wrote to Dr. Shackford, to give out for publication that letter which was written on the day after the conclusion of Dr. Bland's course of lectures.

James Cannon, Jr.

The letter follows:

July 21, 1923.

My Dear Doctor Shackford:

I am not quite certain whether this letter should be addressed to you, or to Dr. E. B. Chappell, but in view of your relationship to the training school work which is being done on the Southern Assembly Grounds at Lake Junaluska, I am sending the letter to you and a copy to Dr. Chappell and to each member of the General Sunday School Board.

I have heard four of the six lectures given by Dr. S. G. Bland, of Toronto, Canada, on "The Origin, Significance and Abiding Worth of the Old Testament Scriptures." I am constrained, not only as a member and a minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, but also as one of the general superintendents, to write to you, as the general Sunday school secretary, whom I understand to be immediately in charge of the program and study courses which are being given on the Southern Assembly Grounds at the present time, to express my dissent from your action in engaging Dr. Bland to deliver such a course of lectures under such conditions as these lectures have been delivered. I have been amazed at the statements which have been made by yourself and by the dean of the training school, Brother Sensabaugh: that the ministry has practiced a policy of concealment and has endeavored to hide from our people the facts in connection with difficulties in a proper understanding of portions of the Old Testament, has tried to prevent any thorough investigation of the same, and has insisted upon putting a "soft pedal" upon any discussion of such subjects. I believe most sincerely in a thorough study of the Bible. I do not believe in efforts to conceal the truth. I have personally studied with considerable thoroughness the writings of Wellhausen, Ewald, Keunen, Graf, Robertson Smith, Cheyne, Driver and others, and I have carefully considered the hypotheses which they have evolved and the results which they claim to have established. I am entirely willing that others shall pursue these same studies under proper conditions, but I emphatically object to the methods employed with the delivery of the course of lectures by Dr. Bland at Lake Junaluska.

Dr. Bland declared that the statements in the early part of Genesis are myths, not giving us what actually occurred, but what the later writers of Israel supposed had occurred; that the first genuinely historic character in the Old Testament is Abraham; that the first five books, commonly called The Pentateuch, are no longer supposed to have been written by Moses, but that along with the book of Joshua, they compose the Hexateuch, which Hexateuch is a composite work which has been analyzed into four main elements, two known as J and E, consisting mainly of early stories and legends, making up most of Genesis and Exodus, with the Book of the Covenant, and parts of Numbers and Joshua; that these fragments were collected by someone about 800 B. C. and combined before 650 B. C.; that Deuteronomy was written by some unknown Israelite in the time of Josiah, who longed for the return of Moses and, failing that, decided that he would write a book stating what Moses would have said had he been alive at that time; that this book was successfully plumed off upon King Josiah as the work of Moses, and has been so considered by the Jews, by Christ, the Apostles including Paul, by the Church of all ages until the advent of higher critics within the past one hundred and fifty years; that the Priestly Code of Laws, comprising all of Leviticus and parts of Genesis, Exodus and Joshua, was written in Babylon about 500 B. C.; that the book of Isaiah is the work of several writers, part of it having been written in the time of Isaiah of Jerusalem and part of it in Babylon; that the book of Daniel is not historical nor prophetic, but was written in the time of the Maccabees, four centuries later than the date heretofore attributed to it, and that it was written in order to stimulate and inspire the people to heroic deeds in the time of the Maccabean wars; that the Ten Commandments were not given to Moses by God, indeed, are not Mosaic at all in their origin, but were Babylonian in their origin, taken from the Code of Hammurabi, and were edited and improved by Jewish writers; that Paul thought that Moses wrote the Law, and that Christ also held the conservative view.

These are some of the statements which were made, and which, not only Dr. Bland declared to be the truth—the established results of the work of the highest Christian scholarship—but you yourself, the general Sunday school secretary, and Brother Sensabaugh, dean of the school, stated most emphatically from the platform to be the established results of the Christian scholarship of today, and as the truth which you were under obligation to give to our people to lead them from doubt to light.

I register my positive protest against the making of such dogmatic statements on such vital subjects without offering any proof whatever before an audience composed largely of persons who have had no training on such questions. I would emphasize again that I do not object to the discussion of such questions under proper conditions—where trained, competent teachers holding opposing views have been invited to present the conservative side of the discussion, or where, failing this, the lecturer will give a full, fair statement of the views held by conservative scholars, with due emphasis on the fact that Christ, Peter, Stephen, Paul, and other New Testament writers, held the conservative view, and with full opportunity given for questions and discussion. To my mind it is clearly a great injustice to the hearer to present such subjects in a public auditorium with a mixed audience, such as is usually assembled on such occasions. Furthermore, instead of stating, as you did, with all the authority which could be given it from your position as the general Sunday school secretary, that such statements as are quoted above are the established results of Christian scholarship and the truth which must be given to lead our people from doubt to light, I think that you should have frankly stated that you were fully aware of the fact that in making these statements you did not represent the views of the great majority of the ministry and laity of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

I do not hesitate to assert that, if this course of lectures had been given at the session of the last General Conference at Hot Springs, and if it had been stated by you there, as it was stated by you on the platform at Lake Junaluska, that Dr. Bland had purposely been invited to deliver that course of lectures in order that our people might know the truth, so that they might be free and be led from doubt to light, the General Conference, the representative body of our church, would certainly not have elected a general Sunday school secretary who would have approved such methods, or a Sunday School Board which would support the secretary in carrying out such a program, and this would not be because the General Conference does not believe in the thorough study of the Scriptures, or approves a policy of concealment and of putting on the "soft pedal," but because it believes that no board of officers elected to represent a great body should presume, acting as the representative of that church and with its authority, to publicly make such dogmatic statements as you and Brother Sensabaugh made concerning questions upon which you knew that you did not represent the great majority of the church under whose authority you are working. The General Conference, in my judgment, would consider such action to be a betrayal of the trust and an improper use of the authority which has been given to you.

Holding the above views, I am writing you this letter, and, as stated above, am sending a copy of the same to Dr. Chappell and to the members of the Sunday School Board, and I insist that assurances should be given by yourself and by the Sunday School Board that there will not be a continuance of such methods in the work of the Sunday school department of our church.

Yours sincerely,

James Cannon, Jr.

PRESIDENT HARDING

"Thy gentleness hath made me great" are the words of Holy Writ which one is inclined to apply to our dead President. His amiable personal qualities are emphasized by all who were privileged to know him. He was perhaps one of the most engaging personalities that has graced the office of President.

It will be left for history to fix his place among the statesmen and political leaders of the nation, but it can be said now that Warren G. Harding in high personal character and in his attitude on all moral questions stands in the front ranks of the great public servants of this country. We mourn his "untimely taking off."

A little less than two and a half years ago, Woodrow Wilson after eight stormy years, broken in body and wounded in spirit, was by gentle hands carried from his killing tasks as President of the United States and Warren G. Harding, strong and vigorous in body, took up the task that Wilson laid down. Now when the term of office is a little more than half out President Harding died a martyr to the onerous duties of his office.

REVERENCE

By Bruce Craven.

In the Guadalupe mission, Jaurez, Mexico, I went to early morning service, and the mission was packed to its capacity. Just outside in the busy streets were busy stands crowding right up to the church doors, selling things to eat and drink. Inside there was only reverence; hundreds of men, women and children meekly kneeling on their knees, the priest at the far end with his back to his congregation repeating the service, while the kneeling congregation said the responses. Hours they spend there on their knees in the deepest attitude of respect to the Creator, and in that same place the same has been true for three hundred years.

The same afternoon at the little village of Ysleta, Texas, some fifteen miles from El Paso, I again attended the service, and saw the same thing, only there was no crowd. Perhaps forty people were on their knees. I looked at their faces and saw there something that I will never forget. They were in God's house and though most of them very ignorant, they needed no explanation of Kipling's poetic reference to the God "beneath whose awful hand we hold dominion over palm and pine." There was deep impressive quiet in the church, and whatever the people may be outside, they were making the Lord's house a house of prayer, as Jesus Christ said it should be. An hour in that reverent relation to the Almighty can not fail to leave its impress on any immortal soul. The sight of it did my soul good, perhaps because I have seen so little of it.

A great painter in exhibiting one of his paintings, placed a critic in a certain position so the light struck just right, saying, "If you would judge my work, you must see it from my point of view," and I would have no one misunderstand what I say of Mexican Catholics. I am not comparing them with North Carolina Methodists, but there is nothing that cannot teach something for good to one who is looking for good, and they can teach us to make His house a house of prayer, something that we too often fail to do. In this brief letter I am speaking of Reverence only in that one application of our proper conduct in the place that we call the house of God.

If it really were the house of God, would we act in it like we do? We would not even act as disrespectful in the house of an earthly friend. We go to church in these modern times and demand to be entertained, and if we are not, we don't go any more. The church and the preachers encourage this spirit, by talking about everything else except God and Christ and the Bible. We have our institutional churches (the enthusiasm for which is waning apparently) and our club houses, playgrounds, sensational revivals "to appeal to people who the churches do not reach," and it might be added "who will never reach the churches"; and we have our high church music, and all the rest, all good things of course, but every one of which leads away from the house of prayer and such hymns as "Sweet Hour of Prayer" and dozens of others that would sound like the meeting of old friends if we could hear them again.

Maybe I am mistaken about all this. One of our most prominent Methodist ministers told me recently that "the question of right and wrong is so complex that no one knows what to do or say"; while to me the whole business is so plain and easy that I think the very simplicity of it turns some minds away from it; but he is a much smarter man than I am, or at least the public thinks so. However, I remember that some years ago another one of the high-up preachers was insulted when I said in his presence that Dr. Eliot's new religion was merely a re-hash of old stuff, and he added that the "new religion" was going to revolutionize the world, but it has now been in the ash can so long that few can remember what it was about. I may be mistaken, but all the same, when I see a sweet faced old lady walk into a seat in church and get down on her knees and pray, and then keep on praying in word and deed, I somehow believe there is Christianity and that it is so simple that no one can miss it who wants to find it.

A LETTER FROM BISHOP H. M. DUBOSE TO THE EDITOR

The publishers, Messrs. Lamar & Barton, inform me that the first installment of the Aftermath Series, a symposium of discussions of the problems of Bible criticism, edited by myself, is now ready for sale and delivery. I am writing to give you a brief account of the purpose and contents of this series, and to solicit your valued assistance in bringing it to the attention of the Christian public, and especially to the attention of our ministers and theological students.

The need for better understanding of the attitude of critical thought today is apparent. Of those who talk criticism, and even of those who affect to represent its varying aspects of radicalism and conservatism, a small minority only can speak with any degree of authority. In point of fact, the whole question has been more or less involved in a mist of mental confusion. It is therefore desirable that some thoroughly authoritative utterances on the related problems of criticism should be brought within the easy financial and intellectual reach of students and other busy people. The further fact that the late world war most tremendously affected the critical thinking of Germany and Great Britain, resulting in a distinct diversion against the theories of the old higher critical school, has enhanced the desirability of such a popular channel of information. The Aftermath Series is an effort to supply this channel. It is meant to be an exhibit of the AFTERMATH of the opposition of conservative scholarship and the reaction of the world war against the fabric of rationalism and pragmatism in Bible science.

This series is to consist of twelve booklets or brochures, covering both the Old and the New Testament fields of criticism. The scheme is logical, traversing the attacks of the higher critics on the tradition of Bible history, literature and religion.

Dr. Kegel, late of Wittenberg, who is introduced by the editor in an initial brochure, "The Crisis of Criticism," particularly deals with the historical and legislative side of Old Testament criticism in two strong discussions, "The History of The Israelitish Priesthood," and "The Religious Reformation of Ezra."

In the second installment Dr. Robert Dick Wilson, of Princeton, will show the lack of fundamental scholarship in the conclusions of this school in a tremendously strong argument, "Is the Higher Criticism Scholarly?"

Professor Sellin, of Berlin, in "Orientalism Versus Wellhausen" will exhibit the wreck of this school in the new discoveries in Oriental research; and Harold M. Wiener (Cambridge) will demonstrate the compositional integrity of the Old Testament writings.

In a future installment Max Loehr, of Koenigsburg, will set forth his reasons for deserting the school of the higher critics. In the New Testament section Dr. Faulkner, of Drew, and others will write in defense of the doctrines and literature of the New Testament. Each one of these men speaks with authority.

With assurances and good wishes, I am,
Very faithfully,
H. M. Du Bose.

NEARING THE GOAL OF CHURCH UNION

In an editorial with the above caption the Northwestern Christian Advocate commends the proposed plan for the union of Episcopal Methodism in the following terms:

"There shall be one episcopal body composed of all the bishops of both churches, who shall meet semi-annually and shall be assigned to any part of the church. Naturally the bishops in the South will at the outset maintain jurisdiction over the Southern areas and conferences, and the same situation will obtain with our bishops in the North; but immediately and with increasing frequency, bishops of the South will preside over our Northern conferences, and vice versa, until the lines of episcopal supervision will be practically obliterated.

Churches also will gradually and steadily be transferred or merged. For instance: two churches, one of the present Methodist Episcopal Church, and the other of the present Methodist Episcopal Church, South, struggling for existence in the same town and within a stone's throw, will, under the united church, merge into one body, paying a living salary to a forward-looking pastor.

In order to hasten the matter, representatives of the commission are to appear before the fall conferences of our church explaining the action and answering any questions that may be propounded. The report adopted at Cleveland will be carried up to our General Conference next May, and if acted upon favorably by them, the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, will immediately call a special session to consider the report, and if they also act favorably upon the same, it will be carried to all the annual conferences of each church. If a constitutional majority of these conferences (two thirds of our conferences and three fourths of the conferences of the Church, South) vote favorably upon the action, it becomes effective and the churches are one.

All these probabilities eventuating in order, we may reasonably look for final consummation within two years—a very brief time, indeed, in the history of church movements. We believe the time is ripe. This is no hour for a discordant note. We are within hand-clasp of each other; being brethren in the flesh and, far more significantly, brethren in the spirit, we dare not falter; we would fear Divine condemnation.

A SUGGESTIVE INCIDENT

In the living room of his father's home, an unpretentious farm house where his boyhood days had been spent in the obscure village of Plymouth, Vt., Calvin Coolidge at 2:30 a. m. August 3, took the following oath as prescribed by the constitution of the United States:

"I do solemnly swear that I will faithfully execute the office of President of the United States and I will, to the best of my ability, preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States."

Then, although the Constitution does not require it, he added, "So help me God."

The oath was not administered by the chief justice of the United States, but by a notary public, in this instance the President's own father. One is impressed with the simplicity of it all.

But there is in it more than simplicity of circumstance. We are reminded afresh how far our government is removed from the old ideals of royalty and kingly pomp and how intimately even the presidency of the United States is related to the great mass of the people. Our chief magistrates are still coming, as Harding and Coolidge clearly demonstrates, from among the common people. The United States is a democracy.

PEOPLE AND THINGS

Western North Carolina Conference, Winston-Salem, October 17.

North Carolina Conference, Elizabeth City, November 14.

Rev. A. H. Bryan, who assisted Rev. A. R. Bell in a very successful meeting at Rock Springs, Taylorsville circuit, will be open for engagements in meetings after September 1.

Rev. and Mrs. M. B. Woosley are receiving felicitations upon the birth of a daughter, Margaret Sue, who arrived Tuesday, August 1, at the parsonage of the South Main Street Methodist church on South Main street.

Prof. A. N. Fisher writes: "I have a few open dates during the months of August and September. Any pastor or evangelist in need of my services as evangelistic singer please write me at 3212 Ocean View Boulevard, E. Fairmont Park, Norfolk, Va."

The home of Mrs. Lola Frink, 420 North Fifth avenue, Wilmington, was the scene of a lovely marriage Thursday, August 2, at 6 p. m., when her daughter, Miss Kathleen, became the bride of Mr. Jesse D. Batson. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. A. J. Hobbs, Jr., pastor of the bride.

The Mamie Webb auxiliary of Queen Street Methodist church has practically refurbished Pastor Proctor's study with a new desk, modern office equipment and other "fixings." Mr. Proctor said he was a happy man, and wanted his friends to drop in on him at any time and find a welcome.—Kinston Free Press.

The new brick veneer church at Spruce Pine is now being erected at a cost of $10,000. The pastor and people hope to have it enclosed by conference. Rev. J. A. Fry requests that readers of the Advocate send him any amount from 25 cents up to help in the worthy enterprise as they are greatly in need of funds.

Rev. E. C. Sell, Goldston, N. C., preached at Wesley's Chapel on the Gold Hill circuit, Western North Carolina conference, on the fifth Sunday in July. This is the community in which Brother Sell was reared, and a large congregation was present, some of whom were his schoolmates and pupils when he attended school and later taught school in the earlier years of his life.

"Had 29 converts and church greatly revived. Ten joined the church and five or six others will join who were not present on account of the rain at closing service. We did our own preaching, and at the close the congregation gave us a nice "free will" offering that will help us financially for some time. Eden church has among its membership many of the very best people on the Stokesdale charge. It is a real pleasure to serve them as pastor." So writes Rev. T. V. Crouse, the pastor.

Col. Fred A. Olds says: "The handsomest church in the six mountain counties of Ashe, Alleghany, Watauga, Avery, Yancey and Mitchell, the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in Boone, was opened by Miss Rebecca Kirkpatrick, the talented young daughter of Rev. and Mrs. C. S. Kirkpatrick, has been invited to play at a recital to be given tomorrow evening at the Battery Park Hotel, Asheville, by the pupils of the Boston School of Expression, which is coming to a close after a six weeks' summer course. The honor that comes to Miss Kirkpatrick is highly appreciated by her many friends. She will play two solos and will give the only musical numbers of the program. Miss Kirkpatrick is spending some time at Lake Junaluska with her family.—Hickory Record.

Rev. J. C. Gentry writes: "We had a great meeting at Bethel. Forty-three conversions and reclamation. Many will join the church. Rev. B. A. Sisk ably assisted the pastor the first week of the meeting. We are giving two weeks at each of the five points that I serve individually. Rev. John H. Price is now doing active work in holding prayer meetings preparatory to the revival to begin at Oak Forest the first Sunday in August. Rev. Mr. Kennedy will do the preaching. We are in the midst of a two weeks meeting at Salem. The results to date are gratifying to us and we pray well pleasing to God. Large crowds come and many are saved. The pastor is doing the preaching."

ed on Sunday, July 29. In January, 1920, the idea was conceived and the following summer work began, under the ministry of Rev. J. R. Walker. The church is of a design which meets every requirement and is in the finest taste. It represents an outlay of $40,000, and so great has been the church spirit and the public spirit also that the debt is but a trifle."

"Our Wendell Methodists are doing great honor to themselves and service to Almighty God in erecting a nice brick church in which to worship God. The church will be a modern edifice with adequate provisions for a good Sunday school. We extend to all members and former pastors a cordial invitation to be with us at the cornerstone laying on August 22, at 5 p. m." So writes Rev. W. L. Loy, the pastor, about his church at Wendell.

Rev. J. O. Long says: "We have just closed a ten days revival meeting at Parker's church in the North Gates circuit. Bro. W. T. Phipps, pastor of Perquimans circuit, assisted the pastor. Brother Phipps did some splendid preaching during the meeting. The pastor and people were well pleased with his sincere work with us and believe that our church and community have been greatly benefited. As a result of the meeting twelve members have been received into the church."

Rev. J. A. J. Farrington has just closed a successful revival at South Side, Winston-Salem. There were 25 conversions and 20 joined the church on profession. The preaching was done by Rev. H. G. Allen of Walkertown. Brother Allen captured the South Side people completely. The singing of the Alexander Quartette added greatly to the occasion. This is a most successful year at South Side. Fifty-eight have been added to the church and a new church is to be built in the near future.

Bishop Collins Denny, Mrs. Denny and a younger son will motor from Richmond to Blowing Rock the last of this week, where they will spend ten days at Mayview Manor. The bishop will preach both the second and third Sundays in August at Blowing Rock Methodist church, and the local Methodist church, and the local Methodists and summer visitors there are looking forward to these Sundays with a great deal of pleasure. Record crowds of people are at this resort at this time, it is learned, and on Saturday evenings many have trouble getting a place to stay.

The senior Sunday school classes of Trinity church, Wilmington, gave a moonlight ride on the steamer Wilmington a fortnight ago, which proved very successful from every standpoint. The proceeds derived from the occasion were divided equally to the senior boys' and girls' classes. The boys' class was very generous—that is to say, they turned their portion of the money, which was $30, over to the Epworth League to assist the league in carrying on our work of benevolence. The league indeed appreciated the donation and is deeply indebted to the boys' class for their thoughtfulness.

The following statement was issued by Federal Prohibition Commissioner R. A. Haynes on his return from his home in Ohio: "In the death of President Harding I not only feel the sense of loss in leadership, to America and the world, which all the world is experiencing, but I feel deeply the loss of a personal friend. In his council, his support, his suggestions, he was always kindness, consideration, personified. In hours of stress and difficulties he never failed. His lofty conception of the administration's responsibility on prohibition law enforcement had become well understood by all the people. He never lost an opportunity to express satisfaction with evidences of progress nor to inquire wherein he could be more helpful. I believe when the history of his illustrious life and notable administration shall have been written it will concede that his most notable service to America and to the world was his courageous, uncompromising sponsorship of a positive program of prohibition law enforcement."

NOTICE OF DEDICATION

The new church building at Fletcher's Chapel on the Durham circuit is to be dedicated in a regular service at eleven o'clock the first Sunday in September, sermon and formal dedication by Bishop Collins Denny of Richmond, Va. The congregation and present pastor cordially invite all former pastors to be present. W. F. Craven, Pastor.

Brother H. L. Caison is enthusiastic over the success of the Central Methodist church at East Laurenburg. Brother Culbreth is an excellent preacher and faithful pastor. The Sunday school last Sunday had 352 present.

THE PARABLE OF THE SHORTAGE OF TOWELS

I rode one night in a Pullman Car, and after I had slept, I still rode on. For my journey was a long one. And verily, I have many long journeys. And the Porter was very Parsimonious with his Towels.

And the day was Hot, and whatever Comfort a Traveler found was in Occasional Washing. And there were Very Few Towels in the Rack.

And I inquired of the Porter concerning the reason.

And he said, This is the Front Sleeper. And the men's end is next to the Day Coach. And men come in from the Day Coach, and wash, or pretend to wash, and they carry Away Towels.

And I inquired of him, Are the folk in the Day Coach less Honest than those in the Pullman?

And he said, They who ride in the Pullman are none too honest; but they pay the Company for the privilege of what they Steal.

And I said, Hast thou much trouble with theft?

And he said, Every Porter hath checked up against him his losses, and if they grow so as to be larger than the average of those of other Porters, then he is Censured or Fired. And we learn to notice as we make up the Berths, and count the Linen and the Blankets.

And he said, Those Students in Colleges they have No Conscience. At Ithaca and Syracuse they must not teach those men anything but just how to Swipe Things. I believe that if I could go through their Fraternity Houses, I should find them full of Pullman Blankets. Verily, no man who is a College Student ought to be allowed in a Pullman Car with a bag larger than is necessary for a Tooth Brush.

And I heard from him much more.

And I asked, Do not the Porters steal some things when they find they are below their Average?

And he said, The Mark on the Pullman Linen will not come off. No sir, there is no way to get it off. And what would I do if I should be sick, and some one from the Company should visit me and find my Delirious Head resting on a Pullman Pillow Case? No sir, some Porters may steal a little to keep up their Average, but I do not consider that is Right or Safe.

And I said, Nothing is Safe that is not Right. Nevertheless, the Passengers on this Car desire that they keep themselves Clean. Therefore, I pray thee, get us some Towels.

And he said, Yes sir, but it is a pity that all men are not Honest.

And I think so, too.—Index.

OASIS

A great number of people when they receive a statement fly into a rage and write things to us that we are sure they regret on second thought. They are good people, but just forget who they are and what they represent. We have received some very ugly letters recently because we mailed statements showing how much was due the Advocate. Some of them were beneath the dignity of a Methodist, but they came from Methodists. We do not hold it against them.

But we give below just two short letters which helped us over the hill and brought joy to our hearts:

"It gives me much pleasure to enclose you my check for $2.00 to cover my subscription for the next year to the North Carolina Christian Advocate. The paper is worth many times the price of the subscription, and at times it is a great joy to me to have it in my home.

I am afraid that many of your subscribers do not appreciate it, because they do not read after it is sent to them.

The more we put into a thing, the more we get out of it, and the more we read the Advocate, the more we will enjoy and appreciate it."

"I cannot afford to be cut off. Have read Advocate for more than 40 years, as your books will show."

"JOHN JASPER: THE UNMATCHED NEGRO PHILOSOPHER AND PREACHER"

In the July number of the Methodist Quarterly Review is an interesting and illuminating sketch of Rev. John Jasper, for many years one of the notables of Richmond, Va. Dr. H. H. Smith has prepared the sketch from which we select for Advocate readers Jasper's own story of his conversion.

"I was seeking God six long weeks—jes' 'cause I was sich a fool I couldn't see de way. De Lord struck me fus' on Cap'tal Squar', an' I left thar badly crippled. One July mornin' somethin' happen'd. I was a terbacker-stemmer—dat is, I took de terbacker leaf, an' tor'd de stem out, an' dey wan't no one in dat fact'ry could beat me at dat work. But dat mornin' de stems wouldn't come out to save me, an' I tor'd up terbacker by de poun' an' flung it under de table. Fac' is, bruther'n, de darkness of death was in my soul dat mornin'. My sins was pilled up on me like mount'n's; my feet was sinkin' down to de reguns of despair, an' I felt dat of all sinners I was de wust. I tho't dat I would die right den, an' wid what I supposed was my las' breath I flung up to heav'n a cry for mercy. 'Fore I kno'd it, de llight broke; I was light as a feather; my feet was on de mount'n; salvation rolled like a flood through my soul, an' I felt as if I could knock off de ract'ry roof wid my shouts.

But I sez to myself, "I gwine to hol' still till dinner," and' so I cried, an' laffed, and tore up de terbacker. Pres'n'tly I looked up de table, an' dar was a old man—he luv me, an' tried hard to lead me out de darkness; an' I slip roun' to whar he was, an' I sez in his ear as low as I could: "Helle-lujah; my soul is redeemed!" Den I jump back quick to my work, but after I once open my mouf it was hard to keep it shet any mo'. 'Twa'n' long 'fore I looked up de line ag'in, an' dar was a good ol' woman dar dat knew all my sorrers, an' had been prayin' fur me all de time. Der was no use er talkin'; I had to tell her an' so I skip along up quiet as a breeze, an' started to whlisper in her ear, but jest den de holin-back straps of Jasper's breechin' broke, an' what I tho't would be a whlisper was loud enuf to be hearn clear cross Jeems River to Manchester. One man sed he tho't de fact'ry was fallin' down; all I know'd I had raised my fust shout to de glory of my Redeemer.

But for one thing thar would er been a gen'ral revival in de fact'ry dat mornin'. Dat one thing was de overseer. He bulg'd in de room, an' wid a voice dat sounded like he had his breakfus' dat mornin' on rasps an' files, bellowed out: "What's all dis row 'bout?" Somebody shouted out dat John Jasper done got relig'n, but dat didn't wurk 'tall wid be boss. He tell me to git back to my table; an' as he had sumphin' in his han' dat looked ugly, it was no time fur makin' fine p'lnts, so I sed: "Yes, sir, I will; I aln't meant no harm; de fust taste of salvation got de better un me, but I'll git back to my work." An' I tell you I got back quick.

'Bout dat time Mars Sam he come out'n his orfis, an' he say: "What's de matter out here?" An' I hear de overseer telln' him: "John Jasper kick up a fuss, an' say he done got relig'on; but I dun fix him, an' he got back to his table." De devil tol' me to hate de overseer dat mornin', but de luv of God was rolln' through my soul, an' somehow I didn't mind what he sed.

Little aft'r I hear Mars Sam tell de overseer he want to see Jasper. Mars Sam was a good man; he was a Baptis', an' one of de hed men of de old Fust church down here, an' I was glad when I hear Mars Sam say he want to see me. When I git in his orfis, he say: "John, what was de matter out dar jes' now?"—and his voice was sof' like, an' it seemed to have a little song in it which played into my soul like an' angel's harp. I sez to him: "Mars Sam, ever since de fourth of July I been cryln' after de Lord, six long weeks, an' jes' now out dar at de table God tuck my sins away, an' set my feet on a rock. I didn't mean to make no noise, Mars Sam, but 'fore I knowed it de fires broke out in my soul, an' I jes' let go one shout to de glory ob my Saviour."

Mars Sam was settin' wid his eyes a little down to de flo', an' wid a pretty quiver in his voice he say very slow: "John, I b'l'ev' dat way myself. I luv de Saviour dat you have jes' foun', an' I want to tell you dat I don' complain 'cause you made de noise jes' now as you did." Den Mars Sam did er thing dat nearly made me drop to de flo'. He git out of his chair, an' walk over to me and giv' me his han', and he say: "John, I wish you mighty well. Your Saviour is mine, an' we are 'brothers in de Lord." When he say dat, I turn 'roun' an' put my arm again' de wall, an' held my mouf to keep from shoutin'. Mars Sam well know de good he done me.

Aft'r a while Mars Sam say: "John, did you tell any of 'em in thar 'bout your conversion?" An' I say: "Yes, Mars Sam, I tell 'em 'fore I know'd it, an' I feel like tellin' everybody in de worl' about it." Den he say: "John, you may tell it. Go back in dar an' go up an' down de tables, an' tell all of 'em. An' 'den if you wan' to, go upstairs an' tell 'em all 'bout it, an' den dowdstairs an' tell de hogshead men an' de drivers an' everybody what de Lord has done for yer."

By dis time Mars Sam's face was rainin' tears, an' he say: "John, you needn't work no mo' today. I giv' you holiday. Aft'r you git through tellin' it here at de fact'ry, go up to de house, an' tell your folks; go roun' to your neighbors, an' tell dem; go anywhere you want to, an' tell de good news. It'll do you good, do dem good, an' help to hon'r your Lord an' Saviour."

Oh, dat happy day! Can I ever fergit it? Dat was my conversion mornin', an' dat day de Lord sent me out wid de good news of de kingdom. For mo' dan forty years I've been tellin' de story. My step is gittin' ruther slo', my voice breaks down, an' somelimes I'm awful tired, but still I'm tellin' it. My lips shall proclaim de dyin' luv of de Lam' wid my las' expirin' breath.

Ah, my dear ol' marster! He sleeps out yonder in de ol' cemetery, an' in dis worl' I shall see his face no mo', but I don't fergit him. He give me a holiday, an' sent me out to tell my friends what great things God had dun for my soul. If he wuz here now, I think he would lif' up dem kin' black eyes of his, an' say: "Dat's right, John; still tellin' it; fly like de angel, an' wherever you go carry de Gospel to de people." Farewell, my ol' marster; when I lan' in de heav'nly city, I'll call at your mansion dat de Lord had ready for you when you got dar, an' I shall say: "Mars Sam, I did what you tol' me, an' many of 'em is comin' up here wid da' robes wash'd in de blood of de Lam' dat was led in de way by my preachin', an' as you started me I want you to share in de glory of de salvation." An' I tell you what I reckon, dat when Mars Sam sees me, he'll say: "John, call me master no mo'; we're brothers now, an' we'll live forever roun' de throne of God."

DELINQUENTS IN THE CONFERENCE COURSE OF STUDY

I am glad to note that some of our bishops are coming down strong in the annual conference sessions upon the shirkers. As one sits in an annual conference it is pathetically amusing to note a tender-hearted or politically cautious presiding elder ransacking the innermost recesses of his brain, or reaching out to the furthest limits of space and possibility, to find perchance some excuse for the delinquent when the bishop says, "What is the matter with this young brother?" Listen to some of the "reasons" reported to me by some of the delinquents themselves. They run like this: The circuit horse has been sick, or the Ford has punctured a tire, or developed engine trouble, or the baby has the colic, or twins have arrived at the parsonage, or there have been so many visits to be paid, or so many protracted meetings to be held. In other words, the preacher has simply had to meet the usual duties of life. Did not our fathers rear children and doctor horses and hold protracted meetings and visit their flocks? Yes. And they mastered their work irrespective of the equine health and the infantile digestion and whether twins or triplets entered the family circle. Do not men in other lines of work have to overcome difficulties and bear extra burdens? What sort of an example to set before one's flock is such shirking of one of the main duties of one's life? How can a preacher be a "leader and commander" to the people when he is failing with his own task of managing himself and his time? I actually heard one young preacher at an annual conference last fall lay his failure in his year's studies to the Mississippi river! A new scapegoat! "We had so much high water in our neighborhood, bishop." I wondered if it was a case of water on the brain.

I am fully aware that there are a few cases where a man is continued in the same conference class because he is off at college or seminary, and there are also a few cases, but very few, of protracted illness or very unusual circumstances, but these are so few as to be negligible. Who cares for a hen that will not lay in the nest, but hides her eggs under any fence corner that strikes her fancy and you never find the eggs until they are stale. Who wants a moderately good egg anyway? Our leading thinkers say that a preacher ought to read at least one strong book a week. Remember Father Wesley of whom one of his great contemporaries said, "I admire but strive in vain to imitate his indefatigable industry." Remember him riding 5000 miles a year, mostly on horseback, preaching sermons by scores of thousands, writing innumerable letters, publishing one hundred and thirty-eight volumes edited by his pen, supervising the churches, caught by a swollen stream and sitting down in a cottage by the riverside and translating a Latin grammar while waiting for the waters to fall, writing in his diary when his health failed temporarily that he must take better care of himself, and that he was resolved hereafter not to preach oftener than five times a day. What sore of ecclesiastical descendants of such a man are those among us who say they cannot read and digest from four to six books in twelve long months? A preacher is supposed to have to study something in order to make his sermons. If he does not spend enough time in his study during the whole year to master even these few books, (and they team with sermon suggestions and material) from whence does he get his sermons? From the comic supplement and the daily papers? Pity the congregation that has to feed on that sort of veal!

Is it not time that something was done about this business? Our annual conferences have been entirely too easy with these young brethren, and like all too soft handling of wrong doing, the conditions have grown steadily worse instead of better. Shall not our presiding elders—every one—vigorously take this matter up with their undergraduates and see that they promptly press their studies to completion and correct this wretched condition of dawdling failure?

There is no reflection in the above upon the many high and devoted and studious men in our young ministry. I rejoice in their present success and in their future triumph. May their tribe increase! It is only the drone, or the near-drone or the semi-drone or the demi-semi-drone that I am after and that the church ought to be after through all of its agencies. We cannot afford to carry such lagging burdens.

R. H. Bennett,
Sec. Ministerial Supply and Training.

NEVER SAW EACH OTHER BUT LIVE HAPPILY FIFTY YEARS

By W. S. Surratt.

Through fifty years of married life Mr. and Mrs. T. J. McCullan, of Loraine, Ohio, have never seen each other. They are blind.

The house is quiet. Then there is a footfall on the stair. Mrs. McCullan's ears hear.

"Tom," she says, "you will find me in the dining room."

And how does she know that it is Tom, her husband, who approaches?

We said she was blind. And the blind know. We cannot tell you why nature takes care of its own—or how, we only know that it is true. Listen what the blind woman says:

"In compensation for the loss of my sight, God has sharpened my other senses. The touch of my finger tells me, for instance, when a pie is ready to be removed from the oven."

Mrs. McCullen was born in Syracuse, New York. She is 67 years old. She became totally blind when she was a girl. Her husband is 73. He was born blind.

It was at school for the blind in Ohio when the two met. There were no soft romantic moons for them. But into the darkness of their lives there crept a new light that has shone through the years. In that day it revealed to Tom that the woman was beautiful, though beauty he has never seen.

If a preacher comes to his pulpit with his arm trained to handle a pen, he need not be surprised if he fails even to bunt the ball.

FROM THE AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF BISHOP
HENRY CLAY MORRISON

"While serving on the Logan circuit . . . I contracted the habit of smoking cigars. Seven years indulgence had developed an appetite for tobacco that rendered me a slave to the habit. . . . In my extremity I went to God in prayer, believing that He would help me gradually to get free from my bondage. I promised on my knees to give up the habit, broke the promise, repeated it from time to time, only to break it again. I would throw away my cigars and desperately resolve to go through at least one night without a smoke, and at midnight I would search the lumber room of the parsonage for tobacco leaves which had been placed among the clothing as a protection from the moths. These I would roll into cigars and would smoke them. It seemed during my abstinence as if I would go mad if I did not get tobacco.

"After fighting and failing and falling until I was ashamed to go back to God with my worthless vows, I finally surrendered to what I believed to be my unalterable fate. I gave up the struggle and resigned myself to my doom—a tobacco slave.

"Not long after my 'surrender' a friend sent me a small tract entitled 'The Wonders of Grace in the Instantaneous Deliverance from the Whiskey, Opium and Tobacco Habits.'

"My first thought was 'This is fanaticism.' However, I sat down to reason the matter out with myself. I had at that moment a half consumed cigar in my mouth, and no less than ten or fifteen cigars per day would satisfy my craving. I asked myself, 'Do I believe what I preach? I do. Do I not preach to the sinner that God will take away the sins of a whole lifetime in an instant if he will ask and believe? I do, and I know by experience that this is true. Then if God can and will take away the sins of a lifetime in an instant, can He not in an instant and will He not in an instant take away an appetite which I have been only seven years in forming?' Again: Do I not preach that 'Whatsoever ye ask that is consistent with His divine will, ye shall have it?' I do believe and preach all this. Then is it not consistent with the divine will that I should be free from this merciless appetite that is injuring me? Yes, I believe God is willing.' Then came the hard question, Am I willing? . . . I had suffered so much that my whole soul and body answered, 'Yes, yes.' Instantly I found it according to my faith. The chain broke, and deliverance came. The cigar passed out of my fingers and the craving out of my life. I was consciously free. I was as a child who had never known the use of a narcotic. More than four years have passed since then, and there has never been the faintest desire for tobacco in any form."

REPORT OF FINDINGS COMMITTEE

At the Conference on Religious Education held at Lake Junaluska, N. C., July 17-19, 1923, composed of representatives of church boards, church colleges, and tax-supported institutions, the following report was submitted by the Findings Committee and was unanimously adopted:

"Compulsory intellectual training is now recognized to be necessary to remedy illiteracy and its attendant evils. Likewise, it must be recognized and emphasized that universal moral and religious training are necessary in order to remedy moral and religious illiteracy and its even greater attendant evils. The amazing ignorance of our young life of moral and religious principles and of Biblical knowledge is displayed in everyday conversations, in classrooms and the alarming lawlessness of our times. If our nation is to survive, the moral and religious principles which governed our forefathers must be instilled into the present day young life of the nation.

"We would not minimize in the slightest degree the duty and the responsibility of fathers and mothers to give to their children in the home the moral and religious training which is the proper heritage of every child. The willingness manifested by many parents to turn over this responsibility to the church and state is a crime, not only against the children whom they have brought into the world, but against the nation of which they are citizens.

"Nor do we minimize the great responsibility of the church through its various distinctive agencies to give moral and religious training. But we must recognize the fact that there are great masses of young people in the public schools who are receiving little, if any, moral and religious training, and that these must be reached in order to secure universal religious training.

"1. We believe that the moral and religious are equally as important elements of human nature as are the physical and the intellectual, and therefore the state should openly and positively recognize the necessity for a thorough moral and religious training and should co-operate in securing such training as far as the constitutions and the laws of the several states of the nation will permit.

"2. We believe that the state should furnish moral instruction in every grade of public school work from the primary grades to the university.

"3. We believe that adequate religious instruction should be provided in every community by the churches acting harmoniously to meet the community needs, and that the state authorities should co-operate in every proper way to secure the attendance of public school children upon such private courses of religious instruction.

"4. We believe that even greater emphasis should be placed upon the dignity and the responsibility of the teaching profession, and that the state, church, and private normal schools, colleges, and universities should stress even more strongly the moral and religious elements necessary in the character development of those who are to teach by example as well as by precept the young life of the nation.

"5. We believe that the church should provide adequate buildings for devotional and social purposes in close proximity to higher institutions of learning, both of the state and of the church, and that pastors should be selected for such churches as are able to reach effectually the student body of these higher institutions. This work is of such vital, far-reaching importance that the church boards of education and of missions should carefully investigate the facts in connection with all such schools and, wherever it is necessary, make appropriation sufficient to supplement the local church agencies.

"6. We believe that optional courses in religious education should be furnished in all higher institutions of learning, both of church and of state, and that special emphasis should be placed at the present time upon the preparation of an adequate number of men and women to devote themselves to the work of religious education, and we believe that a peculiar responsibility rests upon the church to train such workers in its own institutions.

"7. We believe that this work is so vital to the national welfare that there should be hearty, effective co-operation between the various denominational agencies, local and general, and between the denominational and state agencies, local, state, and national, with the one great purpose that there shall be universal moral and religious training throughout the United States.

"8. We believe that the present conference has been of great value, and we recommend the appointment of a continuance committee which shall be requested to develop a plan by which similar conferences will be held in various sections of the country, as well as a conference of the same nature. We request Dr. Stonewall Anderson and Dr. H. H. Sweets to act for the conference in organizing such continuation committee composed of representatives of state and denominational boards of education, and of state and church school systems and of other educational agencies.

James Cannon, Jr.,
H. H. Sweets,
J. H. Reynolds,
J. P. McConnell,
J. W. Shackford.

WORLD PROBLEMS DISCUSSED AT INTERNATIONAL CHRISTIAN CITIZENSHIP CONFERENCE

The relation of Christianity to world problems—social, economic, political and religious—were discussed for a week during the early part of July at Winona Lake, Indiana, at the International Christian Citizenship Conference held under the auspices of the National Reform Association.

Two thousand delegates came from various parts of the United States and Canada, although many came from European and Asiatic countries. Governors of 12 states each appointed about 15 special delegates, consisting of prominent citizens. Over 100 speakers of national prominence addressed the conference, most of whose sessions were conducted as open forums, so that the audience had a large part in the discussions.

In the declaration on "Christianity in Fundamental Law" it was stated: "There has never been and cannot be a nation of atheists. There is a vital connection between civil government and religion. God is the ultimate source of governmental authority. The nations are subjects of God's moral law. This connection of the state with religion has not been formed by men and cannot be dissolved by men. It is a fundamental political fact, and should receive due recognition in fundamental law."

The obligation on the part of the state to define the system of morals to be taught in the public schools—whether the Christian system or some other—was insisted upon. Every child should be carefully instructed in the righteousness of the Ten Commandments and the Sermon on the Mount, and a large place should be given in the public school curriculum to the teaching of morals, the conference declared. In order to do this effectively it was voted by the conference that public school teachers should be required to pass an examination in methods of teaching moral principles before they could qualify.

Many of the one hundred speakers discussed the subject of international peace. A 500 word message to the rulers of the world on this subject was drafted by Charles Stelzle at the request of the conference and was unanimously adopted by the delegates. The message was cabled to the twelve principal kings and presidents of Europe, and it will be suitably prepared and mailed to all of the 83 rulers throughout the world. The message reviewed the present world situation and the failure thus far to perfect a plan which might bring about peace. "The time has come to try Christianity," it declared, and the moral responsibility of nations and rulers to apply the principles of Jesus was urged.

OUTSTANDING DATES IN LIFE OF WARREN
G. HARDING

1865—Born November 2 on farm near Blooming Grove, O.

1882—Graduated from Ohio Central College, Iberia, O.

1884—Became owner and editor of Marion (O.) Daily Star.

1891—Married Miss Florence Kling of Marion.

1900—Entered Ohio State Senate.

1902—Started upon second term in Ohio Senate.

1904—Sworn in as lieutenant-governor of Ohio.

1910—Defeated in Ohio gubernatorial campaign.

1914—Elected United States senator from Ohio.

1920—Won Republican nomination and was elected over James M. Cox, Democratic candidate.

1921—Inaugurated 29th President of the United States.

Called world conference on disarmament.

Put into effect governmental budget system.

Opened fight for American ship subsidy.

1922—Vetoed soldier bonus bill.

Took active part in settlement of rail and coal strikes.

Pleaded for formation of world court.

1923—Assailed wet forces and practically put Republican party on record as opposing any attempt to nullify the 18th amendment.

Urged formation of consumers' co-operative organizations, under government supervision, to combat soaring prices.

Visited western states and Alaska.

Stricken ill at Seattle on return from Alaskan trip, forced to bed at San Francisco, and remainder of trip canceled.

Died in San Francisco August 2, about 7:30 p. m.

p. m., Pacific time.

I believe Jesus Christ to be the Son of God. The miracles which he wrought establish in my mind his personal authority, and render it proper for me to believe whatever he asserts. I believe, therefore, all his declarations, as well when he declares himself to be the Son of God, as when he declares any other proposition. And I believe there is no other way of Salvation than through the merits of his atonement.—Daniel Webster.

NORTH CAROLINA CHRISTIAN
ADVOCATE

Official Organ of the North Carolina and Western North Carolina Conferences
Methodist Episcopal Church, South.
Established 1855.

Entered at the Postoffice at Greensboro,
N. C., as mail matter of the second class, acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided in section
1102, act of October 2, 1917, authorized
September 9, 1918.

Obituaries and Resolutions of one hundred words published free. All words above this number charged for at rate
of 1 cent per word.

A. W. PLYLER ..... Editor
T. A. SIKES ..... Business Manager

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Year .....$2.00
Six Months ..... 1.00
To all preachers of the Gospel, year 1.00

FIELD NEWS

DAILY VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL AT WEST MARKET

In this issue of the Advocate there appears a picture of the Daily Vacation Bible School which was held at West Market Street church this year.
This is the first vacation school that the church has held, and since it was such a marked success I am venturing a few remarks concerning the school, thinking perhaps that they will be of interest to some of our pastors and religious leaders. The following program which we followed in the main gives a fairly adequate idea of the aims and purposes of the vacation school:

Daily Schedule.

Monday to Friday, nine to noon. For any child in the community 5 to 12 years old.

9:00 to 9:10—Devotional period.

9:10 to 9:20—Christian Citizenship —"The Good American Vacation Lessons," Danielson.

9:20 to 10—Bible Work—Story, Memory, Handwork, Pantomime, Dramatization.

In charge: Miss Lucy B. Clapp.

Group 5 to 6 years—"Listening to the Heavenly Father," Towne.

Teachers: Mrs. H. B. Gunter, Miss Katherine Mann.

Group—7 to 8 years—"Graded Bible Stories," Mutch.

Teachers: Mrs. N. L. Eure and Miss Augusta Sapp.

Group—9 to 10 years—"The Rules of the Game," Lambertson.

Teachers: Misses Virginia and Eleanor Vanneman.

Group—11 to 12—"Followers of the Marked Trail," Frayser.

Teacher: The Assistant Pastor.

10 to 10:30—Supervised Playground Period.

In charge: Miss Lucy B. Clapp;
Misses Margaret Atwater, Margaret Barnhardt; and Mildred Michaux assisting.

10:30 to 10:50—Missions.

Group—9 to 12—"Under Many Flags," Cronk.

Teacher: Mrs. Richard Wills.

Group—9 to 12—"A Travel Book for Juniors," Hanson.

Teacher: Mrs. H. M. Ware.

Missionary Story Period—Ages 5 to 8 years.

In charge: Miss Lucy B. Clapp.

10:50 to 11:30—Vocational Period.
Kindergarten: Miss Kathleen Hall,
Mrs. H. L. Hanes, Helax Curtis, Dorothy Lee.

Industrial Art: Miss Lucy B. Clapp,
Ruth Curtis.

Sewing: Mesdames Karl Ljung, Jr.,
H. C. Hedgepeth, T. W. Russ, Miss
Marjorie Vanneman.

First Aid: Mrs. Kathryn Krause and Nurses from Wesley Long Hospital.

Wood Work and Basketry—Teachers to be supplied.

11:30 to 12—Assembly Period—Diversified.

Singing: Hymns and Patriotic Songs.

In charge: Mrs. H. M. Ware and Miss Myrtle Preyer.

Citizenship, Health and Habit Talks.

DAILY VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL AT WEST MARKET, GREENSBORO

The Pastor, the Assistant Pastor and special speakers.

12 noon—Adjournment of school.

Since this was our first attempt we did not try to run the school on a large scale, but to do intensive work in getting the school firmly established so that we might look towards greater things next year. Despite the fact that no special effort was made to carrol the young people we had an enrollment of seventy-five and an average attendance of about sixty. And the work which was done by the pupils was creditable indeed. This is especially true of the Bible work which consisted of the study of the Bible text, memory and notebook work. The missionary story work is also deserving of special commendation.

The Daily Vacation Bible School is fraught with great possibilities. This is especially true with reference to the up-town city church. It will also work wonders in churches located in industrial centers or rural communities.
Six schools were successfully maintained in Greensboro this year and one was held at Pleasant Garden, on the Pleasant Garden charge. The last mentioned school was reported as a notable success. And the cost of operating a school is comparatively small. The school at West Market cost approximately $250. Part of this sum was spent for materials; the rest went to pay the salary of one trained worker. With the exception of this one all the workers volunteered their services. Many of them left very pressing duties at home and gave unstintingly of their time in the training of the young people of our school.
Many of the teachers gave expression to the sentiment that the school helped the helpers as much, if not more, than it did the pupils. The school had this wholesome and beneficial effect upon the entire congregation: It quickened the interest of the church in the cause of religious education.

The program of the Daily Vacation
Bible School will bear investigation on the part of all who are interested in religious education. E. P. B.

SILER CITY CHARGE

This historic old charge is composed of two stations and a circuit of three churches, and there is enough to keep two men busy 365 days in the year.
Methodism here has been served by such men as Revs. R. A. Willis, W. H.
Moore, T. A. Sikes, E. C. Sell, W. F.
Craven, T. A. Sutton, E. B. Craver, and last but not least H. B. Porter.
Old Chatham is now in the procession of progressive thinking and living. The highways through this section are among the best in the state and they are setting the pace for a new day throughout this section—and this is undoubtedly one of the finest sections of the state, from both a climatic and material standpoint.

Siler City will have a strictly up-to-date church when finished and the policy is "to pay as you go." But we hope to see this beautiful church finished in the near future. The membership has been increased by thirty-three this year and the Sunday school has had an increase of fifty per cent.
West End church is also making commendable gains.

The Sunday school enrollment for the whole work has gone from 400 to 700 this year without including the cradle roll and home departments, which have been received in three churches.

So far the total increase in membership is 101, 69 of these being on profession of faith. Splendid meetings have been held in all the churches except First church, Siler City. With the assistance of Rev. J. F. Armstrong we are planning to hold that meeting the first of September.

Our watchword on the Siler City charge is ever onward and upward.

O. I. Hinson.

SUCCESSFUL REVIVAL AT STANLY CREEK CHARGE

Beginning on the first Sunday of July and closing the second Sunday evening, the meeting at Iron Station was held. Mrs. C. L. Steidly, of Gastonia, helped the pastor. From the very first fine congregations came and fine interest was shown. The day congregations were unusually good, and the church never from the first held the folks at the night services.
The church was very greatly aroused and made united effort for the salvation of the indifferent and sinner. As a result of these services there were 35 or 40 reclaimed and converted and 15 were added to the church.

Before the meeting began the members became interested and painted the church on the inside, walls, seats, floors and stained the windows, at a cost of between $250 and $300.

On the morning of the third Sunday in July the meeting at Trinity began.
This is a country church and was formerly a part of the Lincoln circuit.
Because of its location it had grown weak in membership. There had been no good meeting there for a long time. Here Rev. W. G. Pratt, a ministerial student of Rutherford College, did the preaching for the pastor and
Mr. T. E. Stough, of near Concord, directed the singing. Mr. Stough is one of the band of fine young men trained for revival singing at Rutherford College, by Prof. Milam the past two years. These splendid young men did fine service at Trinity and the meeting resulted in a splendid revival in the church at 22 reclamations and conversions, and there will be five or six additional to the church.

On account of the growth of the population here the membership of the church here is all the time gradually growing.

The pastor wishes to speak of one thing he forgot when writing some time ago; the splendid new high school building in course of erection.
The school is always of interest to the preacher, when "moving time" comes.

The plant as it now stands is a building of ten rooms with a fine auditorium, seating about 600 people. This will be devoted to the graded school work exclusively. The new high school building will be equipped for the work of the upper classes, the laboratory, the economics and music.
The entire building, lots and equipment will cost $20,000. The new and old building will be fitted up with a water and sewerage system and will be modern in all respects. There will be 13 teachers, nine in the grammar school and four in the high school, and it is now an accredited school.

Albert Sherrill.

REVIVAL AT TROUTMAN

Our revival meeting began at Trout-man the fourth Sunday in June and continued through Saturday night,
July 7th.

Rev. R. A. Taylor did the preaching. He preached the plain old-time gospel straight from the anvil—didn't compromise with sin and the devil in any form—while some of the "sinners" did and renewed their covenant with God. The whole town of Trout-man has received a blessing, we believe.

We are pleased with our pastor,
Brother Peeler, and his good wife.
They are serving Troutman charge faithfully. Brother Peeler began a meeting at Rocky Mount church the fourth Sunday in this month, assisted by Brother R. C. Kirk of East Spencer.

A Member.

PEACE PLAN

Now Mr. Bok offers $100,000 for the best practical plan for peace. The only plan there is—and it is not mine, or any other man's—is for the knowledge of the Lord to cover the earth as the waters cover the sea. Let Mr.
Bok, and all others who aspire to real greatness, who are able, give that money to the cause of extending the Kingdom of God all over the earth, and thereby prove the plan and pay at the same time.

Nothing under the sun can bring peace to man or nations but Jesus Christ and His principles applied to the hearts and lives of men and nations. Until this is done, all efforts are echoes of those who cry "Peace, peace, when there is no peace!" because the only peace that can be abiding is the peace of the lowly Nazarine.

H. L. Witten,

SUMMER POUNDING, QUARTERLY CONFERENCE, ETC.

Speaking of poundings, the weather does not get too warm in these parts for these delightful experiences. Our people from Witakers, about twenty-five in number, drove up to Battleboro and stopped in front of the preacher's home a few nights ago, all unexpected to the preacher's family, and introduced themselves by serving a freezer full of delicious ice cream with cake. When this was done they began to unload groceries of every kind until the table was loaded down. Not just ordinary things, but flour, hams, sugar, coffee, tea, lard and clean on through the grocery list in quantity, quality and variety seldom surpassed by any pounding you have heard of. Good friends, we deeply appreciate this act of kindness as we do all the many kindnesses from our many friends.

Those of our number who heard Rev. S. E. Mercer in his preliminaries just before beginning the call of regular questions in the quarterly conference recently held think Mercer is unsurpassed as an elder, and so say we all. No phase of the laymen's work was left untouched. In the morning services Bros. W. T. Shaw of Weldon and William of Windsor made fine addresses to the delight of those present.

Sister A. M. Edmondson of Whitakers died in the hospital at Rocky Mount July 30th and was buried by the pastor, assisted by Rev. Mr. Rosser of the Baptist church. Sister Edmondson was a fine Christian character. Her death was peculiarly sad. She was the mother of thirteen children, ten of whom are living, the youngest being but five months old. Sister Edmondson was but thirty-eight years old at the time of her death. By her life and work she had greatly endeared herself to the people of her community. The great gathering of people and beautiful floral designs in great abundance at her funeral were but silent tokens of the high esteem in which she was held by those who knew her. May God comfort the saddened husband and children.
J. C. Humble.

LEASBURG CHARGE

On last Sunday night we closed a great union meeting at Bethel church which had been in progress two weeks. The good Baptists and Presbyterians co-operated with us in every respect. The first week Brother Buffalo of Carr church was with us and rendered us very faithful and consecrated service. His preaching was filled with thought and seasoned with the spirit of Christ. The second week Brother Kanipe, the pastor of Mebane Baptist church, was with us and did the preaching. His preaching was of a high order and we feel did much and lasting good. The congregation was good and increased in number and interest up to the very last service. The churches of the community were greatly revived, many souls saved and twenty united with the church on profession of faith. Ten united with one church, nine with the Baptist and one with the Presbyterian. Others will join later.

We held our meeting at Union following second Sunday in July with Bro. J. C. Williams assisting. Brother Williams is one of our best young preachers and renders fine service in a revival. While we had only two accessions, we feel that the meeting was a great success, in that the church was greatly revived and strengthened.

Our meeting at Hebron church last week was good. Brother Prevo, the Baptist preacher at Yanceyville, assisted me. He is a very fine young man and rendered us faithful service. We had five to unite with the church on profession of faith. We were conducting two meetings last week. Services at Hebron were at 11 and 2 o'clock and Bethel at 4:30 and 8 o'clock. It was right hard on me to be in the four services each day, but the Spirit was with us and the people co-operation in such a fine spirit we were able to keep up and be in fine shape for our meeting at Salem church this week. Bro. S. J. Starnes is with us and doing the preaching. We had Brother Starnes with us last year and he always renders fine service. His consecrated life and strong faith in prayer, together with his quiet manner of telling the gospel story of Jesus and His love always brings results that are worth while.

We are now winding up our fourth year on the Leasburg circuit. We hope to write you later and give you the results of our meeting this week, of our stay at Leasburg and some facts concerning our work over here in and around Caswell county for the last 20 years. While they have been years of hard work we have been able to see God's work prosper in our hands. Together with this fact and the acquaintance and friendship of a people of a whole county is one of the greatest assets and pleasures of my life.

S. F. Nicks, Pastor.

JUNALUSKA AND DR. BLAND

A new and strange thing has recently happened at Junaluska, the "Capital of Southern Methodism." If the newspaper reports and the reports of some who were present can be accredited (and who doubts these?) one Rev. Dr. Bland from Canada, invited to our Southern Assembly Grounds by somebody who is authorized to do such things, said from the public platform in an address that the writings of Moses were not divinely inspired and the Ten Commandments were myths. Some present were true and loyal enough to God and the Bible to publicly enter protests; others defended and lauded the reverend gentleman whom they had brought to us from Canada. The many young people from over a wide area of our church present for wholesome religious instruction (quite a number protesting against hearing Dr. Bland again) were constrained to continue through the series of lectures, or addresses, of this man who was giving out this corrupt and most hurtful teaching. May the good Lord save us!

It has been said that such a calamity shall not be repeated. Let us devoutly pray and hope that this is true.

We all would like to feel sure that Junaluska is a place of moral purity and religious safety for us and our children and young people to go. Most of us have felt so up to date; but if such deliverances as this Dr. Bland is said to have made is going to be repeated, or allowed to go out from that center, then it is high time to call a halt; and, instead of urging and encouraging our people (especially our youth) to attend these meetings at Junaluska, to insist upon them and everybody to stay as far away as possible from the place, made hurtful and corrupt by such teaching. And let all our people say, Amen.

W. R. Ware.

FINE REVIVAL ON BATH CIRCUIT

We have just closed two very successful meetings at Bethany and Asbury, resulting in twenty-two accessions to the church, with more to follow. During this time we baptized two adults by immersion, three by sprinkling and also baptized three infants.

Brother William Stewart of Burlington did the preaching and did it well, too. He hits sin hard. His sermon on "The Modern Woman" is a gem within itself. In this sermon some startling facts are set forth, showing the evil effects of the card table, the social drink, and the modern dance upon the young people of today. Brother Goodchild, the singing evangelist, is a man of God, and does excellent work as a singer, and is a

LIKE AN OLD VIOLIN

The Stieff instrument has that soft, mellow tone that lovers of music demand.

For three generations this piano has delighted its users.

Chas. M. Stieff, Inc.,
Charlotte, N. C.

Please send catalogue and prices of Pianos.

Name .....

Address .....

The smallest Grand Piano made that embodies all the essential qualities of the concert grand.

CHAS. M. STIEFF, Inc.,
CHARLOTTE, N. C.

WEAVER COLLEGE

DENOMINATIONAL      CO-EDUCATIONAL
WEAVERVILLE, NORTH CAROLINA

Tenth and Eleventh Grades in High School.
Freshman and Sophomore Years of College Course.
Lake and Forested Campus nine miles from Asheville.
Modern Dormitories, well equipped Library and Laboratory.
Athletics, Receptions, Literary Societies, Religious Activities.
One Christian Teacher with Education and Experience to every 15 pupils.
An excellent Gateway from the Restrictions of a Good High School to the Responsibilities of Professional and Business Life.

For Catalogue and other information address:
C. H. TROWBRIDGE, President, Weaverville, N. C.

DAVENPORT COLLEGE

FOR YOUNG WOMEN      LENOIR, N. C.

A three-year Junior College with a record of sixty-eight years of exceptional Academic work.

Well equipped, Conservative, but thoroughly abreast of the times.
Fine Type of Student Life. A Safe Place for Young Women to study under close but sympathetic discipline.

Moderate Expenses. The lowest cost commensurate with a High Type of Modern Instruction.

A Registered Nurse constantly in attendance. A most healthful location, in the foothills of the Blue Ridge.

Courses in the Regular Academic Department and Art, Music, Expression, Domestic Science, Domestic Art and Secretarial Courses.

A four-year preparatory course on same campus and correlated with the college.

For Catalogue and Views,

Address PRESIDENT C. L. HORNADAY, LENOIR, N. C.

noted worker at the altar among those who are seeking God. May the Lord be with these men of God, and use them in a wonderful way to bring His kingdom down among men.

We are planning to hold our last protracted meeting at Pinetown some time in September. We are hoping and praying that many souls may be saved. The pastor is planning to hold this meeting. Pray for us.

As a result of the meeting at Asbury an Epworth League will be organized in a few weeks. The young folks are eager for it. A prayer service has already been established. So with the church in such fine spiritual condition we mean to do great things for our blessed Master. Watch us as we grow.

I feel that the people of Bethany are going to repair their church. Bath will treat hers to a new roof and paint (maybe), while Asbury is planning some internal improvements. May the Lord bless their efforts.

We are among a good people, and they seem to be in love with the pastor and his family, especially the family.

We cannot rejoice with Brother J. J. Lewis in temporal things, as we have not been the recipient of any poundings this year. We haven't lost all hope yet, but nothing in sight. But we still "live and move and have our being."

R. J. Lough, P. C.

ADVERTISING

On a big blackboard at the opening of the Lake Junaluska grounds in plain view of those passing on the trains the following true statements appear in bold letters:

- Stop, Look and Enjoy
- Lake Junaluska,
- The Home of
- The Southern Assembly
- The Capital of Southern Methodism.
- Special Features
- Swimming, Boating, Supervised Athletics
- Golf Course in Charge of Professional Instructor
- Supervised Children's Playground
- Unsurpassed Hotel Facilities
- Schedule of Interesting Hikes
- Unexcelled Program
- Musical Instruction

No Expert

Judge—What had 'he defendand been drinking when you arrested him?
Cop—Whiskey, I think, Your Honor.
Judge—You think? Aren't you a judge?
Cop—No, Your Honor, only a patrolman.

WOMAN'S PAGE

N. C. CONFERENCE

Mrs. J. LeGrand Everett, ..... Editor
Rockingham, N. C.

W. N. C. CONFERENCE

Mrs. H. K. Boyer ..... Editor
Mt. Airy, N. C.

North Carolina Conference

MOSES OR DR. BLAND?

In her Bible lesson in Our Missionary News for August, Miss Lamb brings together for our benefit what Moses had to say about the Ten Commandments. We must believe either Moses or Dr. Bland and other scholars like him. For ourself, we believe Moses and the Bible, be the scholar never so great who contradicts them. It would be a literary curiosity—an "intellectual satisfaction"? we wonder—if it were possible to produce a Bible that all the scholars, agreeing upon, would accept as authentic as the Word of God, but it would be our Bible so maimed by their depletions, so changed by their corrections, we would turn away from it in horror and with aching, hungry hearts. We do not want a Bible of myths and folk lore, however honest may have been the authors.

It is a great grief to us that some of our leaders seem to be getting away from that simple faith in the Bible taught us by our fathers and mothers, many of whom in that faith, in that belief in the Bible as the Word of God, were the pioneers who built up our great church into what it is today, which we believe could not have been done by the scholars, who, in what they are doing to the Bible, are taking away our bread and knocking us down with the stone. Can we hope to win souls of men if all we have to offer them is the God, the Christ, of the critics, and the mutilated Bible of the scholars?

We wish to offer our protest against the importations of such teachings as some that were credited to Dr. Bland by the reporters in our daily papers. "It is a shame!" "It is an outrage!" have been the opinions we have heard expressed of them. And we do not need to go away from our own church for Bible scholars and teachers, when we have such men as Bishop Candler, Bishop Denny, and Bishop Cannon, and our own Rev. Harry M. North, Rev. J. H. Shore and others. We thank God for such leaders as Miss Lamb, herself an eminent Bible scholar and teacher of great spiritual power, and Bishop Cannon, who "believe the Bible," and have the courage to say so in the face of any scholar.

BIBLE LESSON

The following clipping speaks for itself:

Did Moses write the first five books? Dr. S. G. Bland says the early books of the Bible are works of unknown scholars.

Lake Junaluska, N. C., July 18.—The first five books of the Bible were not written by Moses but together with the book of Joshua form the hexateuch and are the works of unknown authors, put together by scholars, was the opinion of Dr. S. G. Bland of Toronto in an address on the Old Testament before the Sunday school leadership school of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in session here today.

The early history of Israel prior to Abraham was not founded on historical fact, but upon helpful myths expressive of the effort of an honest people to explain the beginning of things, also was asserted by Dr. Bland to be the opinion of majority of Bible scholars in Great Britain and America. He added that it is also believed that the Ten Commandments did not proceed from Moses, but came into existence before his time, but stated that all these questions have no bearing on Christ or Christianity, but are only "intellectual satisfaction."

In the open forum that followed Bishop James Cannon of the Southern Methodist Church, expressed a different opinion from that advanced by Dr. Bland regarding the authorship of the early books of the Bible.—News and Observer.

Dr. Bland's opinion as to the authorship of the first five books of the Bible is not backed up by any passage of scripture, so far as we know. But his statement that "The Ten Commandments did not proceed from Moses, but came into existence before his time" is refuted by passages in the Bible. When "Bible scholars" make such statements we are reminded of the lesson Jesus gave to the Scribes and Pharisees of Jerusalem in Matthew 15:1-9. And verse nine contains a warning: "But in vain do they worship me, teaching for doctrines the commandments of men." If we transgress the commandment of God in one particular, and teach the pupils in our Sunday schools, or others, things contrary to God's Word, we are on dangerous ground.

Let us review a few of the statements in the Bible about the Ten Commandments. In Exodus 19 we have an account of God's call to Moses to go up to the top of Mount Sinai—and in chapter 20:1-17 we have the Ten Commandments. In Exodus 24:12 we read: "And the Lord said unto Moses, come up to me into the mount, and be there: and I will give thee tables of stone, and a law and commandments which I have written, that thou mayest teach them." In Exodus 31:18—"And he gave unto Moses, when he had made an end of communing with him upon Mount Sinai, two tables of testimony, tables of stone, written with the finger of God." Exodus 32:15-16—"And Moses turned and went down from the mount and the two tables of the testimony were in his hand: the tables were written on both their sides; on the one side and on the other were they written. And the tables were the work of God, and the writing was the writing of God, graven upon the tables." In Deuteronomy 5:1-22 we have Moses' statement. Not the last word in verse twenty-two. Verses 1-5 read: "And Moses called all Israel, and said unto them, Hear, O Israel, the statutes and judgments which I speak in your ears this day, that ye may learn them, and keep and do them. The Lord our God made a covenant with us in Horeb. The Lord made not the covenant with our fathers, but with us, even us, who are all of us here alive this day. The Lord talked with you face to face in the mount out of the midst of the fire, (I stood between the Lord and you at that time, to shew you the word of the Lord: for ye were afraid by reason of the fire, and went not up into the mount), saying; I am the Lord thy God which brought thee out of the land of Egypt, from the house of bondage." Verses 7-21 are the Ten Commandments as they are in Exodus 20:2-17, and verse 22 reads: "These words the Lord spake unto all your assembly in the mount out of the midst of the fire, of the cloud, and of the thick darkness, with a great voice: and he added no more. And he wrote them in the two tables of stone and delivered them unto me."

In Deuteronomy 10:1-5 we read: "At that time the Lord said unto me, Hew thee two tables of stone like unto the first, and come up unto me into the mount, and make thee an ark of wood. And I will write on the tables the words that were in the first tables which thou brakest, and thou shalt put them in the ark. And I made an ark of shittim wood, and hewed two tables of stone like unto the first, and went up into the mount, having the two tables in mine hand. And he wrote on the tables, according to the first writing, the ten commandments, which the Lord spake unto you in the mount out of the midst of the fire in the day of the assembly: and the Lord gave them unto me. And I turned myself and came down from the mount, and put the tables in the ark which I had made; and there they be, as the Lord commanded me."

The pronoun "I" used in Deuteronomy 10 is understood if we read the first two verses in connection with Exodus 32:1-19.

Each of us will read the other passages just as convincing as those quoted. It seems to be needless—the reporter may have misquoted Dr. Bland in the second sentence of the second paragraph—even as in the first. Let us hope so.

When any "Bible scholar" makes a statement that contradicts a statement made in the Bible, we shall do well to pray for the help of the Holy Spirit. Jesus promised to send Him to "guide us into all truth."

Elizabeth Lamb.

Western North Carolina Conference

SALISBURY DISTRICT MEETING

The Woman's Missionary Societies of the Salisbury district held their meeting at New London June 28-29. Our newly elected district secretary, Mrs. W. W. Weant, presided most efficiently. The devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. J. S. Folger, pastor at New London. The address of welcome was given by Mrs. J. A. Allen, and the response by Mrs. D. A. Beaver. The address of the evening was made by Mrs. M. A. Dunham and was full of inspiration and information. Speaking of the recent Council she gave a mental birdseye view of the home and foreign fields. In conclusion she told us of the consecration service, in which thirty-one missionaries were commissioned. Among these were two from the W. N. C. conference—Miss Mabel Jetton and Miss Blanche Houser.

Following Mrs. Dunham's address a demonstration, "How a Missionary Society Lost Its Voice," was given by Mesdames D. A. Beaver and P. N. Peacock.

The second day three conference officers were present, Mesdames Peacock, Weaver and Dunham, each speaking most helpfully and interestingly of the work of her department. An inspiring devotional hour, led by Mrs. E. J. Poe, was followed by a round table by Mrs. Dunham on the very pertinent question: "How to keep the missionary societies missionary." "A Missionary Clinic," presented by a group of young women from the Grace McCubbins Society of Salisbury, was quite amusing, at the same time setting forth valuable truths.

An interesting visitor was Miss Naomi Howie, student from Scarritt, who told us so vividly of the inside life at Scarritt that we caught the spirit and felt that we had made a visit there. Our interest in the school was deepened as Mrs. Peacock told us many interesting things in the life of its founder, Miss Belle Bennett, and of the bright prospect for a greater Scarritt. We were made very happy when two young ladies offered themselves for service. These were Miss Julia Wyacke Allen and a young daughter of Rev. and Mrs. E. J. Poe.

In regard to finances our district secretary pledged $4,700 for the regular work and $1,100 for the Belle Bennett Memorial.

An interesting program by the young people's and junior societies in charge of Mrs. C. C. Weaver closed the program.

The weather was delightful and a sumptuous dinner was served in the grove.
Mrs. Alonzo Rowe.

SPECIAL BULLETIN REPORTS

My Dear Co-Worker:

The enclosed special bulletin concerning the situation at Tuskegee is most important. Will you give it space in the next issue of your Woman's Page? The making of public opinion which shall speak against efforts at intimidation by masked parades is imperative. The success of our church's message to the world depends upon it. No more imperative work is before us as women. The leaders of our church have taken a stand. Let us as women stand with them.

Praying for the success of all your efforts, I am,
Estelle Haskin.

The Grave Situation at Tuskegee.

A situation which seriously threatens the welfare, not only of the Negro race in the South but also the future of Christianity and our cherished civilization, has developed in connection with a Federal Hospital recently established in Tuskegee, Ala., for disabled Negro war veterans. Tuskegee Institute, an institution of world-wide fame founded and controlled by Negroes since its very beginning, has in Tuskegee an investment of about ten million dollars. This institution gave four acres of land adjoining the institute for the establishment of the Veterans' Hospital.

The controversy which now exists concerns the staffing of the hospital, the question being shall the staff be all white, all Negro, or mixed white and Negro. An effort to secure a white staff by demonstrations seems to have as an aim the intimidation of the Negroes of Tuskegee Institute in order to influence the government to concede to their demands.

On July 3 a group of masked men paraded the highway leading around the institute. The Christian leadership of our church has been strong in the denunciation of this demonstration of implied force against Tuskegee Institute, an institution which has always worked for peace, and good will between the two races living side by side in the South. They feel that the present strife is striking at the very root of Christianity, and that it is jeopardizing the message of our missionaries in very foreign land where we seek to proclaim the gospel of Jesus Christ. In view of the gravity of the situation, the different agencies of the church have spoken in protest as follows:

General Conference Commission on Social Service.

(Paper adopted by the Commission on Temperance and Social Service of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in session at Lake Junaluska July 1-7, 1923.)

Inasmuch as there has come to us, through newspaper reports and private sources of undoubted reliability, information that the interests of that great institution for our colored people at Tuskegee, Ala., are seriously menaced by threats of organized interference—

Resolved, That this commission put on record our appreciation of the incalculable value of that institution for the training of our colored fellow citizens and declare our unalterable conviction that any invasion, or threatened invasion, of its rights, or interference with the orderly pursuits of its lawful and benevolent labors, would be a calamity to the institution and a lasting disgrace to our Southern civilization and people.

Bishop James Cannon, Chm.,

Dr. J. H. Light, Sec.

July 14, 1923.

Commission on Race Relations.

The Race Commission of the Woman's Missionary Council of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, has released the following statement concerning the recent threatened mob violence against Tuskegee Institute, Tuskegee, Ala.

For many years Tuskegee Institute, a Negro institution in the heart of the South with an entire Negro administration, has stood for the best development of the Negro within his own race. Its marvelous achievements have attracted the attention and won the appreciation, not only of our own na-

(Continued on page fifteen)

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORK

N. C. CONFERENCE
L. L. Gobbel .....Editor
Durham, N. C.

W. N. C. CONFERENCE
O. V. Woosley .....Editor
Lexington, N. C.

North Carolina Conference

CHILDREN'S WEEK

Date—Any week in October, preferably October 14-21.

Slogan—"The race moves forward on the feet of little children."

Children's Week is a week in which pastor, superintendent, elementary officers and teacher and parents work and plan together for the betterment of local church and home conditions, in order that the children may receive the best possible training in religious education.

One week in October, preferably October 14-21, the Sunday school workers with children under 13 years of age in the North Carolina conference, along with the other Sunday school workers of the Southern Methodist church and other denominations, are asked to observe Children's Week. Will your Sunday school respond to the call and show its interest in childhood by observing the week?

Last year a number of Sunday schools in the North Carolina conference put on the Children's Week program with splendid results. The needs of the children in the church were brought before the people of the church as they never had been before, and the response was wonderful. Great forward steps were taken, and a greater interest in childhood and its needs has been shown by the churches that observed the week last year in our won conference and throughout Southern Methodism than ever before.

ROCKINGHAM KEY WOMEN

Mrs. E. B. Ward, of Rowland, elementary superintendent of the Rockingham district, reports fourteen key women in her district. These women will help her in promoting the elementary work in their Sunday schools, and we are sure that with this corps of workers and others who will be added from time to time, the work in this district will show a great growth.

The goal for the district is "a key woman in every Sunday school," and we believe that this goal will be realized in a short time.

The following are the key women already appointed, with the name of their Sunday school:

- Mrs. G. Y. Jones—Laurinburg.
- Mrs. James Bowman—Candor.
- Mrs. P. S. Oliver—Olivet.
- Mrs. T. F. Matthews—Lemon Springs.
- Mrs. W. B. Graham—Vass.
- Miss Minnie Johnson—Hebron.
- Miss Bettie Tucker—Zion.
- Miss Edith Hurley—Wadeville.
- Miss Blanche Nooley—Sardis.
- Miss Lola Gibson—Gibson.
- Miss Alice Floyd—McKendree.
- Miss Hattie Ellerbe—Zion.
- Miss Nonnie Norman—Cameron.
- Miss Esther Maness—Centenary.

EIGHT NEW WESLEY CLASSES.

Eight new intermediate, senior and young people's Wesley classes were chartered in the North Carolina conference during June and July. These classes are as follows:

"Young Christian Workers," Carthage, 10 intermediate boys and two girls; Miss Mary Swearingen, president; Miss Nannie P. Hoyle, teacher.
"Daughters of Liberty," Rocky Mount, 11 senior girls; Miss Undine Denison, president; Mrs. G. W. High, teacher.

"Lend a Hand," Murfreesboro, two senior boys and four girls; Miss Virginia Ferguson, president; Mrs. L. C. Larkin, teacher.

"Beacon Lights," Murfreesboro, four senior girls; Miss Myrtle Britton, president; Miss Eva Gary, teacher.

"The Tama Jones," Pamlico, seven young men and 15 young women; Miss Thelma Woodward, president; Mrs. S. D. Mallison, secretary; and Mrs. S. L. Silverthorn, teacher.

"Win One," Broadway, 14 young men and nine young women; Mr. J. C. Thomas, president; Mr. S. H. Kelly, secretary; and Mr. G. T. Chandler, teacher.

"Maratheia," Gibson, 20 young women; Miss Mildred Gibson, president; Miss Irene Joyce, secretary; Mrs. Miranda P. Lytch, teacher.

"Wesley Bible Class," Arapahoe, six young men and eight young women; Miss Thelma Williams, president; Miss Matilda Dixon, secretary; and Miss Elva Templeton, teacher.

ROUEMONT WORKERS MEET

Sunday school interests were considered and good fellowship abounded at the annual Sunday school gathering of the Rougemont circuit held Saturday, July 21, at Bahama. The day was brimful of good things, including Sunday school addresses by Prof. R. N. Wilson, of Durham, district Sunday school secretary, and Prof. I. B. McKay, superintendent of Mt. Sylvan Sunday school, reports from various schools, and a program by the Orphanage singing class, which was present under the direction of Supt. A. S. Barnes. Prof. McKay set forth the aims of the Sunday school, and Prof. Wilson told how these may be attained. Mr. W. D. Turrentine was re-elected president and Mrs. T. G. Sexton secretary of the circuit organization, which will meet again next year, perhaps at Mt. Sylvan.

FINE MEETING AT BAREFOOT

Your correspondent of Sunday school work spent Sunday, July 29, with the people of Calvary charge, Wilson, in their regular fifth Sunday circuit meeting. Workers and members of the three schools of the charge, Calvary, Barefoot chapel, and Sims, came together at Barefoot chapel and spent the day in the interest of Sunday school improvement. Talks were made by Rev. W. N. Vaughan, the pastor, Mr. L. K. Wilkins, superintendent of Calvary school, and the writer, and splendid interest was shown. An interesting feature of the gathering was the singing, participated in by the members of the three schools.

All the schools were well represented. Calvary made a specially good showing, having a representative for every member of the school. Messrs. L. B. Thomas, L. K. Wilkins, and S. H. Simpson, the superintendents, headed their respective delegations. At the close of the public meeting, a workers' conference was held, at which several important matters were discussed.

The next meeting will be held September 30 at Calvary.

JUNE CROP OF CREDITS

The June crop of certificates of credit on the standard training course, harvested by Sunday school workers of the North Carolina conference, amounted to 330 awards, according to the monthly report of the training work section of the General Sunday School Board.

Of these awards, 85 certificates, 11 incomplete diplomas, and 10 blue seal diplomas were issued to students at Louisburg College; 109 certificates and one incomplete diploma to students enrolled in the Durham Standard Training School; 45 certificates to students in the Alamance Standard Training School; 51 certificates issued to students at Trinity College; one certificate and one blue seal diploma to Mrs. W. W. Peele, Raleigh; one certificate to Mrs. L. T. Royall, Smithfield; one certificate to Miss Edna Kells, East Durham; seven certificates to a class at Elizabeth City, taught by Mrs. C. B. Culbreth; one certificate to Rev. H. C. Smith, Wilmington; one blue seal diploma to Miss Eunice Blair, Raleigh; and five certificates to a class at Gibson, taught by L. L. Gobbel.

Members of the class at Elizabeth City earning the certificates were: Mrs. C. B. Culbreth, Mrs. Robert S. Fearing, Mrs. G. R. Barrow, Mrs. J. B. Leigh, Mrs. G. A. Leathers, Miss Sallie Cobb, and Mrs. Linda Mercer Falls.

Members of the Gibson class receiving the certificates were: Dr. J. S. Gibson, Mrs. D. C. Lytch, Mrs. Nelson T. Fletcher, Rev. A. J. Parker and Supt. Willie Gibson.

The blue seal diploma at Durham went to Supt. V. E. Wilson of the Lakewood Sunday school.

Louisburg College students receiving the blue seal diplomas were: Misses Charlotte Pittman, Mary Wilson, Margaret Ledbetter, Josephine Fuller, Essie Liles, Carolyn Crowell, Margaret Davis, Minnie Lee Winstead, Kathryn Melvin and Katherine Brady.

The foregoing report does not include about 750 or 800 certificates and diplomas earned this year by students in Trinity College. These will be included in a later report.

Western North Carolina Conference

THANK YOU

The following Sunday schools have reported to Treasurer H. A. Dunham, Asheville, N. C., their Sunday School Day offering since the last recording in these columns. This report includes those reporting up to August 1. We are greatly indebted to these co-operating schools:

Fairview Ct. ....	$ 8.50
Hickory Grove .....	8.30
Grace, Greensboro .....	4.03
Granite Falls .....	7.75
Leaksville .....	12.24
Holt's Chapel, Greensboro ....	3.83
Broad St., Statesville .....	36.00
Park St., Belmont .....	3.00
Trinity, Prospect Ct. ....	3.90
Ranlo .....	11.00
Tryon St., Charlotte .....	48.50
Waynesville .....	16.75
Boonville .....	3.85
Denton .....	4.60
Central, Spencer .....	7.50
Stokesburg, Walnut Cove Ct. . .	7.81
Fairview, Davidson-Fairview ..	5.00
Jamestown .....	2.80
Belmont Park, Charlotte .....	11.00

LEARNING

There were thirty fine people from the Western North Carolina Conference enrolled in the first Junaluska Sunday School Training School. I regret that their names are not available. Those who stood the tests and got credit will be listed in these columns at a later date. In the present school the second one, the following students from our conference are enrolled:

- Miss Elizabeth Andrews, Greensboro.
- Miss Sallie Carroll, Winston-Salem.
- Miss May Devlin, Charlotte.
- Howard Dunaway, Charlotte.
- Mrs. Jas. A. Elliott, Jr., Charlotte.
- Rev. E. J. Harbison, High Point.
- Mrs. E. J. Harbison, High Point.
- Mrs. J. B. Ivey, Charlotte.
- Miss Virginia Jenkins, Lexington.
- Rev. W. A. Jenkins, Concord.
- Mrs. W. A. Jenkins, Concord.
- Rev. O. J. Jones, Sylva.
- Mrs. O. J. Jones, Sylva.
- Mrs. Theo. McCracken, Waynesville.
- Mrs. B. N. Mann, Greensboro.
- Rev. M. F. Moores, Reidsville.
- Miss Sara Murray, Charlotte.
- Rev. C. M. Pickens, Albemarle.
- Mrs. J. H. Shuford, Greensboro.
- Clarence Snyder, Lake Junaluska.

- Miss Frances Spratt, Mt. Holly.
- Mrs. R. M. Stafford, Mooresville.
- Mrs. J. H. White, Greensboro.
- O. V. Woosley, Lexington.
- Mrs. O. V. Woosley, Lexington.
- Miss Sue Zackary, Sylva.
- T. A. Holton, Marion.

GROWING

The value of Lake Junaluska is growing on people every year. Each year witnesses a larger number of people coming to the lake. Once a person comes he becomes a Junaluska booster. It truly is a wonderful place. Fifty per cent more people are here this summer over any previous season. If you have never visited Lake Junaluska do so at your earliest convenience. The place is becoming more attractive each year and the programs are becoming more beneficial. Remember that the Sunday school training schools run through six weeks instead of two weeks as formerly was the case. The third ssschool opens August 10 and extends through two weeks.

HURRAH FOR BOONE

We held our first services in the new church yesterday. Of course we had a record attendance of 296 in our Sunday school. Last night we had our Sunday School Day program which was delayed on account of the desire to use the new church. We had a splendid audience and a fine program. Our offering amounted to $17.83, which I am today forwarding to Mr. H. A. Dunham as per your request. Come to see us in our new house. We are going to keep climbing.
Yours,
O. L. Brown, Supt.

DO YOU READ?

The following list of books for our Sunday school workers has been prepared by the Administration Department of our General Sunday School Board. Your Sunday school will do well to purchase these books for a workers' library. If your Sunday school will not do this it will pay you to buy one, read it and then buy another. The books can be had from Lamar and Barton, Richmond or Nashville.

- The Cradle Roll of the Church, Chapin, $1.25.
- Methods with Beginners, Danielson, 60 cents.
- Story Telling for Beginners and Primaries, Cather, 60 cents.
- The Primary Worker and His Work, Thomas, 85 cents.
- Junior Organization and Administration, Koontz, 60 cents.
- The Art of Story Telling, Shedlock, $1.50.
- Leaders of Youth, Harris, 75 cents.
- Handbook for Workers with Young People, Thompson, $1.65.
- Vocations Within the Church, Crawford, $1.35.
- Missionary Education in School and Home, Diffendorfer, $2.00.
- The Adult Worker and His Work, Barclay, 75 cents.
- The Workers Conference and How to Make It Go, eHron, 75 cents.
- The Sunday School at Work in Town and Country, Brabham, $1.50.
- How Can I Lead My Pupils to Christ, Pell, $1.00.
- The Parent and the Child, Cope, $1.50.
- The Mother Teacher of Religion, Betts, $2.20.
- The Life of Christ, Stalker, 90 cents.
- How We Got Our Bible, Smyth, $1.
- Adventures of Faith in Foreign Lands, Pell, $1.00.
- Living Teachers, Slattery, 35 cents.
- The Rural Church Serving the Community, Karp, 75 cents.
- Big Jobs for Little Churches, Cowan, $1.00.
- One Volume Commentary of the Bible, Dummelow, $3.00.
- Learning and Teaching, Sheridan-White, 85 cents.
- The Pupil and the Teacher, Weigle, $1.25.

EPWORTH LEAGUE WORK

Lee Davis, Raleigh, N. C.
Rev. J. F. Armstrong, Concord, N. C.

Western North Carolina Conference

HERE IS OUR POLICY

1. That on account of the obligation to the young people of our churches we set aside as our goal for this year four hundred leagues.
2. That each of the eleven districts in the conference hold at least one district institute this year.
3. That we adopt a budget of fifteen hundred dollars for the the conference expense and to be apportioned among the districts.
4. One delegate for every fifteen members or a fraction to represent each chapter at the annual league conference, and the president in addition, also intermediate superintendent and one delegate and junior superintendent and all union presidents.
5. We urge that all chapters use the standard record books and report blanks used by the Central Office and that they return promptly the quarterly report to the district secretary.
6. That we endorse the action of the conference cabinet in their last session, when it was decided that all finances must be in the hands of the treasurer on or before May 30th, to be included in the year's work.
7. That a special fund be created for helping worthy volunteers in their education, the fund not to exceed ten per cent of the African special pledge.

Respectfully submitted,

M. S. Smith,
Grace Bradley,
Berryman Jones.

CONCORD UNION HAS ANNUAL PICNIC

Considerably more than two hundred jolly, noisy but well behaved young people gathered last Friday night in the beautiful grove in front of Mt. Olivet church on the national highway between Concord and Kannapolis. The occasion was the second annual picnic of the union and was one of the most enjoyable social affairs in its history. No business was transacted, the entire time being given over to the matter of playing outdoor games and devouring the bountiful spread that had been graciously prepared by the girls. Large delegations were present from the various churches in Concord, Kannapolis and Mt. Olivet.

NORWOOD STARTS OFF WITH FINE POLICY

We have just organized a senior Epworth league with 40 charter members. The following are the officers:
President—Annette Shinn.
Vice President—Sadie Thompson.
Treasurer—Talford Honeycutt.
Epworth Era Agent—Emma Keever.
Supt. First Dept.—Louise Avett.
Supt. Second Dept.—Bertha Parker.
Supt. Third Dept.—Eula Mae Lisk.
Supt. Fourth Dept.—Ruth Avett.
At our first council meeting the following policy was adopted:

1. That the league make a complete religious survey of the city.
2. That we make every devotional program as spiritual and helpful as possible.
3. That the league have a social once every two months, and to make a serious study of the doctrines of our church during the year.
4. That a council meeting be held the first Monday night in each month and that this council make the devotional programs for the month.
5. That each leaguer constitute a committee of one, not only to report to the pastor of all who may be sick or strangers in our midst, but that they visit the same.
6. That the league visit and worship with the sick and unfortunate.

It is our purpose to put into execution these items.

Thomas A. Hathecock, Sec.

SALISBURY-SPENCER UNION HAS BIG SOCIAL

Friday evening, July 27, we met for our quarterly social with the South Main chapter—185 present—all chapters of the two towns being well represented. Devotionals were conducted by Rev. Mr. Stough of North Main church. A short business session was held by George Jarvis, union president, during which reports from each chapter were made. These were very encouraging. The social hour was spent in contests, games, singing, selections by South Main orchestra and male quartette. The spirit of the occasion was fine.

Last evening at First church our quarterly devotional meeting was held. Our pastors turn over the regular service hour and the church to us on these occasions. Services were conducted by leaguers entirely. The choir loft was filled with fifty of them, one singing "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere" as offertory solo. Six girls acted as ushers. Scripture lesson and prayer by girls also. George Jarvis also had charge of this service. A loving cup (donated when the union was organized by pastors, which goes to the chapter having largest percentage of enrollment present at these fifth Sunday devotionals, was won by the South Main chapter with 91 per cent present. Rev. Mr. Hayes gave us a splendid message on "Let no man despise thy youth." Nearly 200 leaguers were at this service.

Johnsie Hobson.

CUBAN PINEAPPLE CROP MOVED ON FAST TRAINS

Jacksonville, Fla., Aug. 6.—Movement of 3,600 carloads of Cuban pineapples, practically the entire 1923 crop, from Jacksonville for distribution throughout the South, Central West and East has just been completed by the Southern Railway System with approximately 100 per cent efficiency, according to an announcement made by Foreign Freight Traffic Manager, R. L. McKellar, of Louisville.

With the exception of 833 cars which went to Potomac yards, practically the entire movement was handled by the Southern through Macon, Atlanta and Chattanooga, 1482 cars having been handled to Cincinnati and points beyond.

The pineapples were brought by the Florida East Coast ferry to Key West, where they were loaded in refrigerator cars and moved by the Florida East Coast Railway to Jacksonville in special trains. From Jacksonville they were handled by the Southern in special trains to interior destinations on fast schedules. A total of eighty-one special trains were operated.

An interesting feature of the movement was the fact that the pineapples were sold en route and it was necessary to consign 2,229 cars, the diversions being handled by the Southern's traffic and transportation forces with a remarkable degree of accuracy and dispatch.

SORES BOILS, OUTFS and BURNS have been healed since 1820 with

Gray's Ointment

Sold by all druggists. Write for sample to W. F. Gray & Co., 710 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

You Cannot Afford to be without the Old Familiar Songs of the Gospel. Millions now in use. 33 songs, words and music, 12c. each in 100 lots, 161 songs, words and music 13c. each in 100 lots. Send 25c. for sample copies. We do not pay express charges on 50 or more books. Send cash with order.

C. A. K. HACKETT, Publisher. Fort Wayne, Indiana

It is a mark of distinction to be a reader of this paper. Don't fail to let our advertisers know it. When answering their ads, mention this paper.

The Christian Education Movement

HAS THE RIGHT - OF - WAY

August

September

October

November

The Committee authorized by the General Conference to harmonize and correlate the forward movements of the Church has given the CHRISTIAN EDUCATION MOVEMENT from August to November, inclusive, for cultivation and collection of pledges. During this period all the general organizations and public agencies of the Church will be mobilized in the interest of Christian Education.

THE BISHOPS

have issued a strong address to the Church and are leading in the work.

THE PRESIDING ELDERS

will co-operate and direct the work in the districts. A live Presiding Elder brings things to pass.

THE PASTORS

will give the message to the people and guide the efforts in the local churches. The wise pastor believes in Christian Education and shows his faith by his works.

THE CHURCH COLLECTOR

has a place of great opportunity and responsibility. It is harvest time. He thrusts in the sickle and gathers the golden grain.

THE SUBSCRIBER

is the most important of all. Money talks and he has the last word. If he fails the efforts of all others are futile. But a true Methodist will not fail. His word is out. He has promised. He will pay.

"After Centenary" Pledges

Many subscribers made their pledges payable "after the Centenary." This means the payments will begin November 1st, 1923, since the last payment on the Centenary was due January 1, 1923.

"AFTER THE CENTENARY" MEANS NOV. 1, 1923

The Christian Education Movement

810 Broadway, Nashville Tenn.

OUR ORPHANAGE WORK

METHODIST ORPHANAGE RALEIGH, N. C.

Hon. R. N. Page .....President
A. S. Barnes .....Superintendent
Mrs. Mattie Jenkins .....Matron
Owned and maintained by the North Carolina Conference.

FORM OF BEQUEST

I do hereby will and bequeath to The Methodist Orphanage, Raleigh, N. C., contemplated by the charter under the Act of the General Assembly of North Carolina ..... (here designate the bequest) .....

THE CHILDREN'S HOME WINSTON-SALEM, N. C.

Rev. C. A. Wood.....Superintendent

THE METHODIST ORPHANAGE

WANTED

1. Ten thousand dollars for Baby Cottage.
2. Offerings from every Sunday school.
3. Organized classes to support individual orphans.
4. Friends to write Orphanage in their wills.

* * * *

Only a part of our singing class got to Bahama at the Sunday school conference. It is too bad that we can't reach a larger number of places that want us all because we haven't that automobile that I have been asking for the past few months. Smithfield has given two hundred dollars. Let others join hands with them and make it possible for us to reach many places that are asking for us.

* * * *

Our bank deposit is about exhausted. A number of our Sunday schools and organized classes are running behind with their offerings and pledges. Unless our receipts pick up considerably we shall have to borrow money to meet our current expenses. It is not generally understood that it is up to the superintendent of the Orphanage to raise at least fifty thousand dollars annually. If we depended on the Orphanage assessment to finance our Orphanage, we would go into bankruptcy before one-half the conference year is over. With this statement it can be clearly seen that it is imperative that we receive specials from all the Sunday schools, organized classes and churches. Without the specials we should become hopelessly involved in debt. Just remember, dear reader, that I am counting on YOU to help supply our need.

* * * *

The board of trustees ordered all new buildings for the Methodist Orphanage to be built fireproof. This will make them cost a great deal more than they would otherwise. Steel and cement are very high, and we shall have to call upon our people for large contributions to put over our building program. We have only a part of the money in hand. Because the churches are demanding more accommodation for the orphan children, the board of trustees are trying to meet this large demand by providing for five new buildings. The money must come from the churches of the North Carolina conference, as we have no other source from which to obtain it. In view of our pressing need of money both for building and running expenses, I must urge our people to come to our relief. By all joining in this great forward movement, we can make it a glowing success. We can do if we will. Our people are going to stand by the board of trustees and make it possible to care for one hundred more children.

The plans for the Baby Cottage are being drawn. Because this building is to be fireproof it is going to cost us at least ten thousand dollars more than we expected it to cost when we began to urge the conference to provide for such a building. A few years ago we could have put up a brick building the size of the fireproof one that we now expect to erect for one-half the cost now. In other words, it will cost us thirty thousand dollars to erect a fireproof building now against fifteen thousand dollars for a good brick building two or three years ago. It can be clearly seen that we must have at least ten thousand dollars more for the Baby Cottage than we anticipated when the movement was first begun three or four years ago. What is true of the Baby Cottage applies with equal force to the other four buildings ordered erected by the board of trustees. We shall need from sixty to seventy-five thousand dollars more than is now in sight to carry out the building program. But we shall not fail our orphan children in this hour of their greatest need.

* * * *

Dear Readers:

As it is nearing the time for me to leave the place which has been "Home Sweet Home" to me for eight years, to go into the world for myself, I desire to express my sincere gratitude and appreciation for the interest and care that have been shown me by all the workers of the institution. Especially are we indebted to Mr. Barnes and Miss Mattie. I am sure we will never be able to repay but we may at least represent what their teachings have been by the life we live. I also wish to express my thanks to the Ladies' Aid Society of Apex for clothing me since I have been here and the church at Elizabeth City for supporting me.

It has meant everything to me to be reared in this home with so many girls and boys which I have learned to love as brothers and sisters, although I had only one sister and she left me two years ago.

I appreciate the watchful and tender care of Miss Laura while I was ill. I am grateful to my cottage matron, Miss Foster, and Miss Mary, who has been like big sisters to us in the Jenkins building.

I owe my sincere gratitude to my teachers, Miss Gray and Miss McDonald, for their faithful toiling with me and inspiring me to live up to our class motto, "Excelsior."

I know I have received a better training and more opportunities than I would have received anywhere else and I shall never forget the days I have spent here.

With my motto to guide me and the prayers of Orphanage folks I hope to achieve the best things in life.

Lydia Isley.

* * * *

Dear Readers:

As the time has approached for me to leave the home which has sheltered me for the last ten years, I wish to express my deepest appreciation for the privileges and opportunities which have been mine. Mr. Barnes has been a father and a rock of strength to lean upon, and Miss Mattie as she is called by all, has indeed taken the place of mother. I will ever be grateful to Miss Gray, our beloved teacher and principal, who has been a source of inspiration to me. I also wish to take advantage of this opportunity to thank Circle Three for the beautiful clothes I have received from time to time and to the class of Rosemary for its loyal support through the years I have been here. I will never forget the Christian training I have received while here. One of the happiest experiences of my orphanage life has been in the last years working as officer in the Epworth League, from which I have received the greatest blessing of my life. The doctrines and inspiration which have come to me as a result from this organization will not only be with me for just a day but for years to come.

The greatest surprise and pleasure I have had was when Daddy Barnes sent for me and told me that I had been assigned to a class at Maxton, which was going to put me through school next year. To these good people I will ever be indebted. Again I wish to thank all who have made possible such a home as this, the dear old M. E. O. Sincerely, Bertha Smith.

THE CHILDREN'S HOME

By Martha M. Wood.

Numerous eloquent speakers and fluent writers often charm the public with the beautiful sentiment that if the babies were well rocked in the cradle the world would speedily be cured of all ills.

Recently I read in a high class religious review an article in which a cultured lady wrote with force and earnestness on the subject of the world's desperate need of more good homes.

The need is evident, but it takes more than willing hands and hearts to make a home of any kind. Wisdom and opportunity—and cash are not to be for the wishing.

But the particular protest of the lady of the article was that a woman should ever choose to do outside-of-the-home work, or a man occupy himself with housework—especially she felt annoyed at the idea of a man washing dishes.

She said that God had created the race male and female, and that a man washing dishes was out of his divinely designated element.

Of course I haven't wisdom enough to prescribe the boundaries of any class of human activities, but since dishes were invented a considerable number of years after the creation—by a man doubtless, and a man moulded them and painted them and burnt them. And if he now and then washes a few, I do not suppose that the peace of heaven is any way disturbed about it.

And I can imagine that a lady dishwasher would be very much out of place in a military camp, for instance; but I feel sure that the women would usually rather wash their own dishes than have the men folks do them. And it would seem that such an affair as who washes the dishes might be left to family convenience without attempting biological or theological research to establish an exclusive privilege to the duty.

The curious intensity of interest that some people display in deciding a job to be a woman's job, or a man's job, reminds me of a story I heard once.

Soon after moving to the last place we lived before coming to the Children's Home, a neighboring Presbyterian preacher called done evening after church; and, as preachers often do, he told some entertaining stories.

One amusing incident he told was: That one time his father's family moved from somewhere to Raleigh, and they took with them a green, country ducky, named Mirandy, I think.

Mirandy was much impressed and entertained by the sights of the city. To be sent up town on an errand, and to gaze at the fine things in the store windows was a great delight, and a pleasure to be loitered through as leisurely as possible.

One day Mirandy was thus enjoying herself, when she saw approaching down the street an imposing funeral procession—a long line of carriages headed by a somber, sable-plumed hearse, drawn by stately stepping black horses, and driven by a dignified black driver, erect and solemn with the importance and seriousness of the occasion.

Mirandy stood gazing in absorbed interest at the approaching spectacle, and considered herself fortunate to be on hand when such a splendid funeral was passing.

But uninformed observation did not satisfy wholly her profound interest in the funeral, and when the hearse got opposite, she stepped out into the street in front of the horses, and when the amazed driver stopped them, she inquired: "Mister, would you mind telling me, is the funeral a gentleman corpse or a lady corpse?"

The state of mind the hearse driver experienced, in being held up in such a manner, can possibly be matched by what the conductor on a Southbound train that passes The Home siding felt recently.

A few days ago the print shop of The Home had a letter that they wished to get mailed promptly. One of the boys in the shop came into the office to see if there was an opportunity of getting the letter to town in time to catch the outgoing mail to Charlotte.

One of the young ladies in the office, who looks after such business, told him that there was hardly time to get it to the postoffice in time. That the outgoing train was due at the siding in fifteen minutes, and his only possibility of getting the letter off was to be at the siding when the train passed, and if there was a passenger taking the train there, the train would be flagged, and he could ask some one to mail his letter on the train.

So Earl walked down to the siding with the letter and waited.

No passenger put in an appearance. But Earl, being of a resourceful turn of mind, fixed the stop flag in place himself, and sat down on a log to await the train. And when it presently pulled around the bend, he arose and stood with his letter ready.

The conductor alighted to take on board his supposed passenger, and Earl politely asked him if he would please mail a letter for him.

What the conductor said in reply was warmly expressed, and very much to the point. He told Earl, in unmistakable terms, what would happen to him if he ever again stopped a train to get a letter mailed.

However, he took the letter on, and probably by this time his annoyance has worn off, and the idea of a little boy in overalls flagging a train to get a letter mailed seems funnier than it did when the engineer slowed his train to a stop, on an upgrade, getting out of Winston-Salem that day.

* * * *

A number of the boys have been qualifying for some months past to be Boy Scouts. Mr. Evans, Scout master over in town, has been coming out to train them in Scout craft and principles.

Recently they got their Scout uniforms, furnished by a good friend of The Home in town.

And yesterday a number of the boys who have no home-going vacation in prospect went on a camping trip down to Camp Rotary.

Camp Rotary is on a beautifully wooded island about forty miles down the Yadkin river. The river is wide there and shallow and a sandy beach makes an ideal place for boys to have a good safe time under the supervision of the scout masters in charge.

Why Take Laxatives?

Discovery by Science Has Replaced Them.

Pills and salts give temporary relief from constipation only at the expense of permanent injury, says an eminent authority.

Science has found a newer, better way—a means as simple as Nature itself.

In perfect health a natural lubricant keeps the food waste soft and moving. But when constipation exists this natural lubricant is not sufficient. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it acts like this natural lubricant and thus secures regular bowel movements by Nature's own method—lubrication.

As Nujol is not a medicine or laxative, it cannot gripe and, like pure water, it is harmless and pleasant.

Nujol is used in leading hospitals. Get a bottle from your druggist today. (adv.)

The Call of the Conference Claimants

Edited by Luther E. Todd, Secretary

Board of Finance, M. E. Church, South

510-513 Security Building, St. Louis, Mo.

"A SOUND OF A GOING IN THE TOPS OF THE TREES"

The time of beginning is upon us for the meetings of the annual conferences in the fall of 1923. In these meetings the "forgotten man" has right of way. It will be interesting to readers of this page to know something of the plan of the Board of Finance for presenting to the home annual conferences the plan of the special effort for superannuate endowment, as follows:

Illinois Conference, Odin, Ill. Day of presentation, Thursday, August 23, 10 a. m.; director of the program, Bishop U. V. W. Darlington; inspirational address, Rev. W. E. Brown; explanation of the plan, Luther E. Todd.

Denver Conference, Beulah, Colo. Day of presentation, Saturday, August 25, 3 p. m.; director of the program, Bishop W. F. McMurry; inspirational address, Bishop McMurry; explanation of the plan, Luther E. Todd.

Western Virginia Conference, Barmoursville, W. Va. Day of presentation, Thursday, August 30, 10 a. m.; director of the program, Bishop U. V. W. Darlington; inspirational address, Rev. Frank L. Wells; explanation of the plan, Luther E. Todd.

Missouri Conference, St. Joseph, Mo. Day of presentation, Thursday, September 6, 10 a. m.; director of the program, Bishop W. F. McMurry; inspirational address, Bishop James E. Dickey; explanation of the plan, Luther E. Todd.

Northwest Conference, Milton, Oregon. Day of presentation, Thursday, September 6, 10 a. m.; director of the program, Bishop H. M. DuBose; inspirational address, Rev. C. A. Rexroad; explanation of the plan, Rev. W. H. Nelson.

Kentucky Conference, Winchester, Ky. Day of presentation, Saturday, September 8, 10 a. m.; director of the program, Bishop U. V. W. Darlington; inspirational address, Rev. Frank L. Wells; explanation of the plan, Luther E. Todd.

Southwest Missouri Conference, Nevada, Mo. Day of presentation, Thursday, September 20, 10 a. m.; director of the program, Bishop W. F. McMurry; inspirational address, Bishop U. V. W. Darlington; explanation of the plan, Luther E. Todd.

Louisville Conference, Providence, Ky. Day of presentation, Thursday, September 27, 10 a. m.; director of the program, Bishop U. V. W. Darlington; inspirational address, Bishop W. F. McMurry; explanation of the plan, Luther E. Todd.

Holston Conference, Bluefield, W. Va. Day of presentation, Wednesday, October 3, 10 a. m.; director of the program, Bishop E. D. Mouzon; inspirational address, Rev. W. A. Lambeth; explanation of the plan, Luther E. Todd.

New Mexico Conference, Marfa, Texas. Day of presentation, Thursday, October 4, 10 a. m.; director of the program, Bishop James E. Dickey; inspirational address, Rev. C. C. Selecman; explanation of the plan, Rev. W. H. Nelson.

St. Louis Conference, Sikeston, Mo. Day of presentation, Friday, October 5, 10 a. m.; director of the program, Bishop W. F. McMurry; inspirational address, Bishop W. N. Ainsworth; explanation of the plan, Luther E. Todd.

Tennessee Conference, Clarksville, Tenn. Day of presentation, Thursday, October 11, 10 a. m.; director of the program, Bishop E. D. Mouzon; inspirational address, Bishop W. F. McMurry; explanation of the plan, Luther E. Todd.

North Texas Conference, Gainesville, Texas. Day of presentation, Thursday, October 18, 10 a. m.; director of the program, Bishop John M. Moore; inspirational address, Bishop W. F. McMurry; explanation of the plan, Rev. P. C. Fletcher.

Western North Carolina Conference, Winston-Salem, N. C. Day of presentation, Thursday, October 18, 10 a. m.; director of the program, Bishop Collins Denny; inspirational address, Rev. C. W. Tadlock; explanation of the plan, Luther E. Todd.

Virginia Conference, Richmond, Va. Day of presentation, Friday, October 19, 10 a. m.; director of the program, Bishop Warren A. Candler; inspirational address, Rev. C. W. Tadlock; explanation of the plan, Luther E. Todd.

Pacific Conference, Hollywood, Cal. Day of presentation, Wednesday, October 24, 10 a. m.; director of the program, Bishop H. M. DuBose; inspirational address, Bishop W. F. McMurry; explanation of the plan, Rev. W. N. Nelson.

West Texas Conference, Gonzales, Texas. Day of presentation, Saturday, October 27, 10 a. m.; director of the program, Bishop James E. Dickey; inspirational address, Bishop W. F. McMurry; explanation of the plan, Luther E. Todd.

Upper South Carolina Conference, Newberry, S. C. Day of presentation, Wednesday, October 31, 10 a. m.; director of the program, Bishop Collins Denny; inspirational address, Rev. W. A. Lambeth; explanation of the plan, Luther E. Todd.

West Oklahoma Conference, Paul's Valley, Okla. Day of presentation, Wednesday, October 31, 10 a. m.; director of the program, Bishop John M. Moore; inspirational address, Bishop W. F. McMurry; explanation of the plan, Rev. S. H. C. Burgin.

Arizona Conference, Tucson, Ariz. Day of presentation, Thursday, November 1, 10 a. m.; director of the program, Bishop H. M. DuBose; inspirational address, Rev. Bob Shuler; explanation of the plan, Rev. W. H. Nelson.

North Alabama Conference, Ensley, Ala. Day of presentation, Friday, November 2, 10 a. m.; director of the program, Bishop W. B. Murrah; inspirational address, Bishop W. N. Ainsworth; explanation of the plan, Luther E. Todd.

Northwest Texas Conference, Plainview, Texas. Day of presentation, Friday, November 2, 10 a. m.; director of the program, Bishop James E. Dickey; inspirational address, Bishop W. F. McMurry; explanation of the plan, Rev. S. H. C. Burgin.

East Oklahoma Conference, Shawnee, Okla. Day of presentation, Thursday, November 8, 10 a. m.; director of the program, Bishop John M. Moore; inspirational address, Rev. C. C. Selecman; explanation of the plan, Luther E. Todd.

North Arkansas Conference, Walnut Ridge, Ark. Day of presentation, Saturday, November 8, 10 a. m.; director of the program, Bishop James Atkins; inspirational address, Bishop W. F. McMurry; explanation of the plan, Rev. L. H. Estes.

North Mississippi Conference, Greenville, Miss. Day of presentation, Saturday, November 10, 10 a. m.; director of the program, Bishop W. N. Ainsworth; inspirational address, Mr. G. L. Morelock; explanation of the plan, Luther E. Todd.

Memphis Conference, Jackson, Tenn. Day of presentation, Wednesday, November 14, 10 a. m.; director of the program, Bishop E. D. Mouzon; inspirational address, Rev. C. W. Tadlock; explanation of the plan, Luther E. Todd.

Central Texas Conference, Temple, Texas. Day of presentation, Thursday, November 15, 10 a. m.; director of the program, Bishop James E. Dickey; inspirational address, Bishop W. F. McMurry; explanation of the plan, Rev. P. C. Fletcher.

North Carolina Conference, Elizabeth City, N. C. Day of presentation, Thursday, November 15, 10 a. m.; director of the program, Bishop Collins Denny; inspirational address, Bishop U. V. W. Darlington; explanation of the plan, Rev. Frank L. Wells.

Alabama Conference, Opelika, Ala. Day of presentation, Friday, November 16, 10 a. m.; director of the program, Bishop W. B. Murrah; inspirational address, Rev. C. W. Tadlock; explanation of the plan, Luther E. Todd.

Mississippi Conference, Gulfport, Miss. Day of presentation, Saturday, November 17, 10 a. m.; director of the program, Bishop W. N. Ainsworth; inspirational address, Bishop W. F. McMurry; explanation of the plan, Luther E. Todd.

Louisiana Conference, Bogalusa, La. Day of presentation, Wednesday, November 21, 10 a. m.; director of the program, Bishop Warren A. Candler; inspirational address, Bishop W. F. McMurry; explanation of the plan, Rev. C. C. Selecman.

North Georgia Conference, Atlanta, Ga. Day of presentation, Thursday, November 22, 10 a. m.; director of the program, Bishop W. B. Murrah; inspirational address, Rev. W. A. Lambeth; explanation of the plan, Luther E. Todd.

Texas Conference, Cameron, Texas. Day of presentation, Friday, November 23, 10 a. m.; director of the program, Bishop John M. Moore; inspirational address, Bishop W. F. McMurry; explanation of the plan, Rev. P. C. Fletcher.

Little Rock Conference, Little Rock, Ark. Day of presentation, Wednesday, November 28, 10 a. m.; director of the program, Bishop James Atkins; inspirational address, Bishop W. F. McMurry; explanation of the plan, Luther E. Todd.

South Georgia Conference, Savannah, Ga. Day of presentation, Friday, November 30, 10 a. m.; director of the program, Bishop W. N. Ainsworth; inspirational address, Bishop W. F. McMurry; explanation of the plan, Luther E. Todd.

South Carolina Conference, Kingstree, S. C. Day of presentation, Saturday, December 1, 10 a. m.; director of the program, Bishop Collins Denny; inspirational address, Bishop W. F. McMurry; explanation of the plan, Luther E. Todd.

Florida Conference, Bradentown, Fla. Day of presentation, Friday, December 7, 10 a. m.; director of the program, Bishop W. N. Ainsworth; inspirational address, Bishop W. F. McMurry; explanation of the plan, Luther E. Todd.

Baltimore Conference, Roanoke, Va. Day of presentation, Thursday, April 3, 10 a. m.; director of the program, Bishop Warren A. Candler; inspirational address, Bishop W. F. McMurry; explanation of the plan, Luther E. Todd.

The Sweet-Toned WILLIAMS PIANO

Long time favorite of such noted musicians as Excell, Gabriel and Kodaheaver.

Our method of sending pianos on Free Trial

Direct from Factory at Factory Prices

to homes and churches is much appreciated by careful and economical buyers.

Williams pianos are so much finer and better they actually sell themselves. No money in advance. Easy Terms. We gladly trust good people. Write for FREE Catalog and factory prices. No agents call.

Williams Piano and Organ Co.
1256 Fullerton Avenue - Chicago, Illinois

FRECKLES

Now is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots.

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as Othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of Othine—double strength—from any druggist and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than an ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

JAMES M. McMICHAEL
CHURCH ARCHITECT
Charlotte, N. C.

Individual Cups

Over 40,000 churches use the Thomas Service. Clean and sanitary. Write now for Catalog and Special Trial Offer.

Thomas Communion Service Co. Box 141 Lima, Ohio.

Big Savings on Church Pews

Replace those old pews with our beautiful new designs. Our prices are lowest. Highest grade workmanship and materials. Satisfaction guaranteed. Write today for prices and illustrated circulars.

FORBES MFG. CO., Inc.
Hopkinsville, : : : Kentucky

Fishburne Military School Waynesboro, Virginia

44th year. In Blue Ridge Mountains, 1300 ft. altitude. Four hours from Washington. Prepares for universities and business life. Small classes and individual attention secured through faculty of one teacher for every ten cadets. New $250,000 fire-proof buildings. Swimming pool and all athletics. Rate $600. Annual Spring Encampment. For catalog write Major Morgan H. R. O. T. C. Hodgins, Principal under U. S. War Dept.

TENNESSEE MILITARY INSTITUTE

A school where orderliness, respect for government, and the desire to make good replace recklessness and the "don't care" attitude; where every boy is put on his mettle to measure himself by established school standards.

Good name of school rests on thorough academic work, efficient military training and physical development, and the spirit of T. M. I., which inspires boys to their best achievement. Sound government through sensible restraints and incentives to good conduct. Health record unsurpassed. R. O. T. C. Modern buildings and equipment, laboratories, gymnasium, swimming pool, cinder track. All athletics. Charges moderate. For Catalog address

COL. C. R. ENDSLEY, Supt., Box R SWEETWATER : : TENNESSEE

DIPLOMA References

Our Diplomas on Bookkeeping, Shorthand, Railway Mail, Rural Carrier and Civil Service Courses will insure your success. Fall Term begins Sept. 4. Address Greensboro Commercial School, Greensboro, N. C., for Catalog.

Our Little Folks

DREAMS

By Anne Hyde.

Last night I dreamed the queerest dream:

I thought that it was light,
That I was in my room at school,
And stood up to recite.

The funny thing to me was this:
I talked a perfect streak,
And answered all the questions that I didn't know last week!

I wish I could, while I'm asleep, Examinations take!
I know I'd do much better
Than when I am awake!

S. Nicholas.

OLD BILL TESTIFIES

By D. H. Talmadge.

A court of justice was in session in the hills of the West Coast country one hot afternoon in July. Flies droned about the bench, and the justice, who in his private capacity was the village blacksmith, brushed the insects good naturedly from his bald head in the intervals between naps. The other functionaries of the court—the village constable and a young man from the general store, who had been drafted to keep a record of the proceedings—frankly dozed. The court room was the blacksmith shop. The blacksmith sat in a chair set upon a box. The reporter occupied a stool, his book on his knees. The constable straddled a nail keg, his back to the dingy wall. Several private citizens, called to the scene by the unwonted prospect of a trial, stood about or sprawled in the shade of the trees in the street. Two chairs stood before the bench. Presently a man and a young girl appeared in the big doorway, and the court bustled into action.

"Howdy, Jim," called the justice cordially, "Howdy, Maggie. Sit down. Hot, huh?"

The man mumbled an unintelligible response and sat down, mopping his face with his shirt sleeve. The girl, a half frightened smile upon her face, courtied.

The court was called to order. The charge against the man was read.

"Jim," said the justice, "you've heard the charge against you. What have you got to say for yourself?"

"Only this"—the man rose to his feet and cast a scowling look about him—"the whole thing's a trumped-up lie. It's spite work on the part of somebody, that's what it is."

"Then, I reckon, you plead not guilty."

"I surely do."

"All right. The complaint says you abused your horse—licked him—worked him without water—let him stand hitched to a plow in the field for two hours while you snoozed in the shade. 'Taint so, huh?"

"'Taint so."

"Never licked him, huh?"

"Not enough to hurt him."

The court pondered. "Did you drive old Bill in today, Jim?"

"Yes."

"Tied outside, is he?"

"Yes."

"Henry"—to the constable—"bring in the witness. Drive him right in, buggy and all."

Old Bill, meager of flesh and sightless of eye, was presently in court. He stood in an attitude of dejection, half-heartedly switching flies with his tail.

The justice suddenly addressed the girl. "Maggie, do you like horses?"

The girl glanced timidly at her father, then nodded.

"Does your mother like 'em?"

Again she nodded.

"Where is your mother today?"

"At home."

"What doing?"

"Washing."

"Tub?"

"No, a machine."

"Heard you had one. What did your pa say when he took the machine home to your ma?"

The child hesitated and looked at her father, who stared doggedly at the floor.

"He said—he said the merciful man is merciful to his b-beast."

"'Hm-m—heard he said it." The justice drew an apple from his pocket and tossed it to the girl. "Give that to old Bill, Maggie."

The girl obeyed. After the apple was disposed of, the horse nibbled affectionately at her shoulder, and she patted him on the neck.

"Sit down, Maggie." Another apple was brought forth. "Jim, give this to old Bill."

The man did not move.

"Jim," thundered the court, "give this to your horse."

The man stood up sullenly, snatched the apple and held it toward the animal. The horse's ears flattened instantly, and he backed away. Finally, the apple being forced into his mouth, he mumbled it with his lips and let the pieces fall to the floor.

"Sit down, Jim. You're guilty. Old Bill's testimony's about as conclusive as any I ever saw. For good honest testimony, give me a horse! What you got to say before the court pronounces judgment on you?"

"Nothing."

"Good enough. In your place, I wouldn't either. I'm going to fine you, Jim can't hel pit. But I ain't going to compel you to pay the fine—till next time, and I'm thinking there won't be any next time. That was a beautiful sentiment you uttered when you took the washing machine home, but it wasn't placed quite proper. I ain't saying you didn't intend it all right, and that it don't do you credit. It does. But ain't you a bit mixed, Jim? You didn't mean that your wife was a beast, did you?"

"No."

"Course not; I knew you didn't. But, Jim, old Bill is a beast, and that sentiment of yours meets his case fine. He's a good old horse. I ought to know, for I've shod him the last ten years. This court's going to watch over the old fellow from this on. You know, I've got a sort of a—a sort of a what you might call a proprietary interest in him, and—"

"I'm going to pay you some time."

"Don't worry about that, Jim. Give the old horse a fair shake, and you'll find money will come in more plentiful. Now you and Maggie drive home and help mother with the washing. Court's adjourned."

The man and the girl stood up. The justice stepped down from the bench, and, placing a brawny arm about the girl, patted the man on the shoulder.

"Let Maggie boss the old horse, Jim," he whispered.

The man raised his face. "All right," he said. It sounded like a growl, but his eyes, as they shifted to his little daughter, suddenly filled with tears.—Our Dumb Animals.

THE NEW DRESS

"But I don't want to be 'tried on,'" Marcey pouted. "I just promised Dot I'd be out to play in a minute!"

"It will take only a few minutes, dear. I want to see about the length of your arm. The dress is all finished except the sleeves, and I have one sleeve basted in, ready to try on."

Marcey sighed deeply. "Oh, well, if I must!" she said crossly. She took off her play-dress and stood up on the stool while her mother tried on the new dress. Of course, it was pretty, and Marcey really liked it, but it certainly was a nuisance to be "tried on."

It seemed to take mother very long, and Marcey grew impatient. "I wish I never had to have a new dress," she complained, "especially one with long sleeves." The little girl regarded the arm with the sleeve on it unhappily. "I—I don't like long sleeves! I—"

But the look on mother's sweet, tired face kept Marcey from finishing her sentence.

Mother took the dress off, and the child hurried into her play-dress and out of doors.

Two days later Dot, one of Marcey's friends, had a party. After luncheon mother laid out all the clean clothes on the bed as usual—white shoes, clean stockings—clean everything—and a dress which was clean, too, but rather shabby.

Marcey looked puzzled. "Why—why, where's my new dress, mother?" she asked.

Mother stood in the doorway. She looked at Marcey questioningly, but said nothing. Then Marcey burst into tears. She knew that her mother was punishing her and that she deserved it.

"Oh, dear!" she wailed. "You—you didn't finish it because I said I—I wished I never had to have a new dress. O—O—O!"

Marcey's mother stroked the dark hair tenderly. "You are sorry, aren't you, dear?" she said. "You'll never be unwilling to be fitted again when mother tries so hard to please you?"

"No, mother, I think I never shall," sobbed the little girl.

Marcey lifted up the shabby little dress, and there, hidden snugly underneath, was the dainty new dress.

The little girl gave mother a big hug.

"Oh, you darling!" she said; "please, please forgive me, mother!"

And Marcey lifted up her tear-stained face to be kissed.—The Sunbeam.

MAMMA'S LAP

I know a place I love the best
When in my throat that lump will rise,
For any sorrow or mishap
There's nothing quite like mamma's lap.

When I fall down and bump my head,
When kitty scratched me till it bled,
When Johnny sometimes gives a slap,
I always run to mamma's lap.

When, after running round all day,
My little feet are tired of play,
How nice to take cosy nap,
All cuddled up in mamma's lap.

I like to ride on papa's foot,
Perched like a fairy on his boot,
I like to hear his watch case snap;
But then he hasn't got a lap!

And when I want to hide my eyes,
When in my throat that lump will rise,
(She never says, "Don't muss my cap!")

There's nothing quite like mamma's lap.

And when I've naughty been, and wild,
And am a sorry little child,
I feel her arm around me wrap.
Oh, then, how good is mamma's lap.
—Youth's Companion.

A COLLEGE THAT DEVELOPS

Morals and Christian Character

As Well as Mind and Body

An A grade college, co-educational, of highest standards and scholarship.

GUILFORD COLLEGE

Thorough instruction, excellent equipment, under Christian environment. Courses leading to A. B., and B. S. Degrees. Excellent Musical training and Home Economics. Able faculty. Fine athletic record. Ten modern buildings. Large campus. Healthful climate. Rates reasonable. Six miles west of Greensboro. For literature and other information, write—

THE PRESIDENT, GUILFORD COLLEGE, N. C.

GREENSBORO COLLEGE

The A-Grade Woman's College of the Two Methodist Conferences of North Carolina

Rated by State Department of Education as Class A.

Chartered 1838. Confers the degree of A. B. in the literary department and B. M. in the music department.

In addition to our regular classical course, special attention is called to the departments of Home Economics, Expression, Art, Education, Sunday School Teacher Training, Piano Pedagogy, and to our complete School of Music.

Modern New $50,000.00 Dormitory completed 1918. Conservatory of Music costing about $170,000 completed 1922.

Fall Semester begins September 5, 1923. For further information apply to DR. S. B. TURRENTINE, President, Greensboro, N. C.

RUTHERFORD COLLEGE

RUTHERFORD COLLEGE, N. C.

NEXT TERM OPENS SEPTEMBER 4TH

Rutherford College offers four years accredited High School work, and two years of College work.

These are some of the interesting considerations:

1. Modern equipment.
2. An efficient faculty.
3. The breezy and healthful location.
4. Modest expenses (from $150 to $200).
5. The unusually purposeful and religious students in attendance—fifty-five of whom last year were ministerial students, twenty-two volunteer workers, twenty-two members of the evangelistic singing class.
6. The very earnest disposition on the part of the management of the school to raise the standard of scholarship to the highest possible attainment.

Other information will be gladly furnished on request.

M. T. HINSHAW, President, Rutherford College, N. C.

PRESIDING ELDERS APPOINTMENTS

Western North Carolina Conference

ASHEVILLE DISTRICT H. C. Sprinkle, P. E., Asheville, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Asheville District, including Rosman, Brevard, Mills River, etc., with dates and times.

CHARLOTTE DISTRICT J. B. Craven, P. E., 413 Central Ave., Charlotte, N. C.

Table listing church appointments for Charlotte District, including Tryon Street, Spencer Memorial, Waxhaw, etc.

GREENSBORO DISTRICT W. F. Womble, Presiding Elder 508 Summit Ave., Greensboro, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Greensboro District, including Randolph, Hopewell, Main Street, etc.

MARION DISTRICT Z. Paris, P. E., Marion, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Marion District, including Old Fort, Bethlehem, McDowell, etc.

Table listing church appointments for Bald Creek and Burnsville.

MOUNT AIRY DISTRICT J. H. West, P. E., Box 422, Mt. Airy, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Mount Airy District, including Walnut Cove, Palmyra, Mayodan, etc.

NORTH WILKESBORO DISTRICT J. W. Williams, P. E., Jefferson, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing church appointments for North Wilkesboro District, including Sparta, Potato Creek, Watauga, etc.

SHELBY DISTRICT H. H. Jordan, P. E., Gastonia, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Shelby District, including Rock Springs, Cherryville, Beulah, etc.

WAYNESVILLE DISTRICT R. S. Howie, P. E., Waynesville, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Waynesville District, including Waynesville Ct., Dellwood, Bethel Ct., etc.

SALISBURY DISTRICT T. F. Marr, P. E., Salisbury, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Salisbury District, including Salisbury Ct., Bethel, First Church, etc.

Table listing church appointments for Central, Concord, Forest Hill, etc.

September

Table listing church appointments for September, including Gold Hill Ct., Liberty, Spencer, etc.

STATESVILLE DISTRICT D. M. Litaker, P. E., 240 Walnut St., Statesville, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Statesville District, including Mt. Zion, Race St., Statesville, etc.

October

Table listing church appointments for October, including Olin, Snow Creek, Jones Memorial, etc.

WINSTON-SALEM DISTRICT W. A. Newell, P. E., 1084 W. Fourth Street, Winston-Salem, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Winston-Salem District, including Centenary, Southside, Mocksville, etc.

North Carolina Conference

DURHAM DISTRICT M. T. Plyler, P. E., Durham, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Durham District, including Milton, Purley, Yanceyville, etc.

ELIZABETH CITY DISTRICT C. B. Culbreth, P. E., Elizabeth City, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Elizabeth City District, including Columbia, Gum Neck, Gates & N. Gates, etc.

FAYETTEVILLE DISTRICT R. H. Willis, P. E., Fayetteville, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Fayetteville District, including Stedman, Bethabara, Roseboro, etc.

RALEIGH DISTRICT J. C. Wooten, P. E. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Raleigh District, including Princeton, Fellowship.

WASHINGTON DISTRICT S. A. Cotton, P. E., Washington, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Washington District, including Bath Ct., Washington, Greenville, etc.

NEW BERN DISTRICT F. M. Shamburger, P. E., New Bern, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing church appointments for New Bern District, including Dover Ct., Dover, New Bern, Centenary, etc.

October

Table listing church appointments for October, including La Grange Ct., Newport Ct., Harlowe Ct., etc.

ROCKINGHAM DISTRICT J. H. Shore, P. E., Rockingham, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing church appointments for Rockingham District, including Mt. Gilead Ct., Wadeville, Mt. Gilead.

Western North Carolina 'The Land of the Sky' Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Colorado, Utah, California, Canada, New England, and Seashore Resorts. Greatly Reduced Summer Fares. Southern Railway System.

Itching Skin?

Soothe the irritation, reduce the inflammation and stop the skin troubles with

TETTERINE

The itching skin's best friend
60c at your druggist's or from the
SHUPTRINE CO. :: :: SAVANNAH, GA.

NORFOLK, VA. SPECIAL SEASHORE EXCURSION

AUGUST 9, 1923

Via Southern Railway System
$5.00 Round Trip

Three whole days in Norfolk. Grand opportunity to spend a few days vacation or week-end at Ocean View, Virginia Beach, Cape Henry, Willoughby Beach. Fine surf bathing, boat excursions, fishing, sea breezes, etc.

Schedule. Round Trip Fare.
Lv. Winston-Salem 7:00 p.m. .... $5.00
Lv. Kernersville 7:20 p.m. .... 5.00
Lv. Gullford College 7:40 p.m. ... 5.00
Lv. Greensboro 8:15 p.m. .... 5.00
Lv. Browns Summit 8:40 p.m. .... 5.00
Lv. Reidsville 9:10 p.m. .... 5.00

Through Pullman sleeping cars and coaches.

Tickets good only on special trains in both directions. Returning special trains leave Norfolk 7:00 p.m. Aug. 12th (Sunday). Tickets not good for stop-overs and no baggage checked. Make your Pullman reservations, for both directions, NOW.

Low round trip fares from other North Carolina points.

For further information apply ticket agents.

L. A. PEACOCK, C. T. A.,
112 East Market St., Greensboro, N. C.

BREVARD INSTITUTE BREVARD, N. C.

Established 1895 Vocational
Controlled by the Woman's Missionary Council for boys and girls of high character and limited means. Agriculture, Business, Music, Household Arts. Excellent Faculty. Only student labor employed. Terms: $150.00 per school year of nine months. Apply for information, Oliver H. Orr, Brevard Institute, Brevard, N. C.

School Desks,
Opera Chairs,
Folding Chairs
Kindergarten Chairs,
Church Pews,
School Supplies,
Blackboards

Southern Desk Co., Hickory, N. C.

MOREHEAD CITY, N. C.

The ideal North Carolina Coast resort, offering unusual attractions and accommodations for visitors. Atlantic Hotel has been remodelled and with other hotels offer excellent accommodations. Unsurpassed surf bathing at Bogue Sound.

Convenient schedules via Norfolk Southern trains and close connections at Goldsboro from points on connecting lines.

Special Sunday, Week End and Summer excursion fares. Sunday train leave Morehead City 5:30 p. m.

For information, rates and schedules, apply any ticket agent or write

J. F. Dalton,
General Passenger Agent,
Norfolk, Va.

GOSPEL TENTS

OUR PRICES ON QUALITY GOSPEL TENTS
CANNOT BE EQUALLED—WRITE TODAY—

ATLANTA TENT & AWNING CO.
ATLANTA, GA.

WOMAN'S WORK

(Continued from page eight)

tion, but of other nations and peoples around the world. Its unique educational achievements have been acknowledged in educational conferences throughout the world. It has been cited as an outstanding demonstration that the Negro has an opportunity for achievement within the South.

Therefore, we register our strong moral protest against any act of intimidation or terrorism affecting this institution, realizing that such methods are condemned by all Christian powers as foes to civilization and orderly government.

Mrs. A. B. Smith, Tennessee;
Miss Estelle Haskin, Tennessee;
Mrs. L. P. Smith, Texas;
Mrs. W. A. Newell, North Car.;
Mrs. Luke Johnson, Georgia;
Mrs. W. J. Piggott, Kentucky.

July 14, 1923.
Executive Committee, Board of Missions, July 20, 1923.

We have learned with deep regret through the press and other trustworthy sources that the work of Tuskegee Institute, Ala., has been seriously jeopardized not only by threats, but by acts of intimidation.

Whereas, we are deeply concerned for all that looks to the intellectual, moral, and spiritual development of our colored citizens; and whereas any interference with this great institution, for many years an outstanding example in our Southland and before all the world of what can be done by and for the Negro race, constitutes a blow at all like efforts; therefore,

Resolved, That this committee hereby records its earnest protest against any act or threat of intimidation or any interference with the peaceful and orderly pursuit of the conspicuously useful work that this institution is doing and expresses its deliberate conviction that any such interference is not only unchristian and unpatriotic, but also a shameful contradiction of the best and noblest traditions of the South. Percy Madden, Chm.

TEACHER WANTS POSITION

Thirty years' experience. Holds H. S. Principal's Certificate. Reasons for change. Address Mr. S., Box 165, Newton, N. C.

You Are Invited

To write for your copy of the handsomely illustrated catalogue of the Advocate Piano Club. It will show how you can club your order with those of ninety-nine other subscribers and thereby secure the lowest possible price on a high-grade piano or player-piano, without incurring any obligation except for your own instrument. You will be surprised and delighted with the big saving in price and especially with the superior tone, action, design, finish and construction of the instruments. Old Club members unanimously indorse the plan and express their warm appreciation of the service rendered by the Club. We have printed hundreds of their letters in a booklet, a copy of which will be sent you with the catalogue. Address the Managers, Ludden & Bates, Advocate Piano Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga.

DR. CHAS. W. MOSELEY

Diseases of Stomach and Internal Medicine

Office, 229 S. Elm St. Residence, 438 S. Mendenhall St., Greensboro, N. C.
Office 604—Phones—Res. 1739.

EXPERT KODAK FINISHING

Developing and printing done by experts. Most beautiful work guaranteed at all times. Satisfaction or no charge. Developing 6 exposure rolls 10 cents, 10 and 12 exposure rolls 15 cents, film packs 20 cents per pack. Printing 1 5-8x2 1-2—3 cents, 2 1-4x3 1-4—4 cents, 2 1-2x4 1-4—5 cents, 3 1-4x5 1-2—6 cents. Quick delivery. Send one film to test our service.

LIGONS DRUG STORE,
Spartanburg, S. C.

MARTHA WASHINGTON COLLEGE

An ideal College for Young Women. Healthful surroundings. 2200 feet above sea-level, same as Asheville, N. C.

All literary teachers hold Master's or Doctor's Degrees. High standard faculty, professionally trained and experienced. All departments of high order. Curricula for majoring in English, History, Mathematics, Sciences, French, German, Spanish, Home Economics, Art, Piano, Pipe Organ, Voice, Violin. Conducted like a large home. Student "activities" a special feature. Address PRESIDENT MARTHA WASHINGTON COLLEGE, Abingdon, Va.

1802

1923

LOUISBURG COLLEGE

A Junior College for Young Women
With a Standard Preparatory Course of Four Years
Property of North Carolina Conference

Faculty of specially trained, consecrated Christian teachers.

Health Record Unsurpassed. Home-like Atmosphere. Social Life Carefully Guarded. Athletics.

In addition to the regular college courses, Classical and General, attention is called to the departments of Art, Business, Education, Expression, Home Economics, Music (Piano, Voice, Violin, Theory, etc.), and Religious Education.

Rates as low as consistent with good service. Send for free Catalogue and Book of Views. For further information write

A. W. MOHN, PRESIDENT, LOUISBURG, N. C.

CULLOWHEE Normal and Industrial School

CULLOWHEE, N. C.

CO-EDUCATIONAL

A standard two-year State Normal School, preparing teachers for elementary schools. Three distinct curricula:

(a) For teaching in primary grades, leading to Primary B Certificate.

(b) For teaching in intermediate grades, leading to Grammar Grade B Certificate.

(c) For teaching in upper grades, leading to Grammar Grade B Certificate.

Enlarged faculty of specialists in teacher-training work; excellent practice school, with new building and equipment throughout; one of best girls' dormitories in state just being completed; dormitory for men; new central heating plant. Tuition free to North Carolina teachers.

The State also has a standard four-year high school here, which, while being distinct from the normal school work, is under the same management.

The school is in the picturesque Tuckasegee River Valley, in Western North Carolina, fifty-five miles from Asheville; daily train and bus to central points. For information, write

H. T. HUNTER, PRESIDENT, CULLOWHEE, N. C.

FOUNDED 1838

CHARTERED IN 1859

TRINITY COLLEGE DURHAM, N. C.

A Southern College of liberal arts with an established national reputation for high standards, noble traditions, and progressive policies. Its large endowment fund makes possible its first-class equipment and large faculty of well trained and carefully chosen teachers. Student fees low. Comfortable, inexpensive rooms in carefully supervised hygienic dormitories.

Classical and scientific courses leading to the bachelor's degree. Graduate courses in all departments. Schools of Engineering, Education, and Law.

For catalogue and illustrated booklet, address

R. L. FLOWERS,
Secretary to the Corporation.

IN MEMORIAM

RANEY—On July 29, 1922, one year ago today, God sent us a sweet little baby girl. We named her Lucy. How her mama, papa, brothers and sisters did love her. God loved her, too. And days later took her to live with Him. Now she is a little angel in heaven, safe in the arms of Jesus.

Her Mama.

VICK—Brother C. B. Vick of Sharon church, Conway circuit, aged 47 years, died in his home on December 4, 1922, after only an hour's illness.

Brother Vick was a man with an unusual mind. In his boyhood he attended Trinity College and has always been her loyal son. He loved Sharon church, where his father had wrought. He was willing to carry more than his part of the load.

He married Miss Annie Newsome of Emporia, Va., and unto them were born three sons, Lawrence, Lovel and Warren Kilgo. It was in the home among his loved ones that Brother Vick was happiest. He was one of the kindest of husbands and he was not only a father but a "big brother" to his sons.

We believe he loved his Lord, his church, his brethren and family. We miss him but expect to find him and continue a joyful fellowship with him.

J. B. Thompson, P. C.

SPENCER—William Warren Spencer, son of J. J. and E. M. Spencer, was born June 1, 1862, and died Saturday, June 23, 1923. Brother Spencer was married to Robena Harries on the 15th day of December, 1886.

To this union there were born seven children, one dead and six living. Those living are the only son and oldest child, J. M. Spencer, who resides at Hydland, N. C.; Mrs. Pat Simmons of Fairfield, N. C.; Mrs. C. F. Gibbs, Mrs. J. H. Jarvis and Mrs. I. H. Watson of Englehardt, N. C., and Miss Willie Mae, the youngest, is with her mother at Hydland, Hyde county, N. C.

Brother Spencer was a consistent member of the M. E. church at Englehardt. While Brother Spencer was for a long time a great sufferer he never complained of his afflictions, but was always pleasant and jolly. From what I have learned he was one of the smartest men in the county. His was a home of hospitality to all who came in and was welcome.

I would say to the sad ones that he is not dead, but has gone home to live with God. So try to meet him.

J. J. Lewis, Pastor.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

In the midst of life we are in death." In apparent good health just two weeks ago, and only the day before his death, our faithful and beloved brother, C. E. Kramer, sat with us, but now he has left us forever. We admired his faithfulness and loyalty—ever ready to serve the best interest of his class, Sunday school and church. The weather was never too cold nor too hot to keep him from his place in his class. Wise in his counsel, modest in his deportment, but always ready to cheerfully carry his part of the burdens.

He took the Bible as his counsel and we believe he walked and lived by the light of its teachings, and that now he has gone to reap the rewards of his faith and service. May we in our lives emulate his example of loyalty, faithfulness and his unassuming Christian service. In his death the class has suffered a great loss, and may each of us firmly resolve to so live that when the roll is called "up yonder" each will answer to his name.

Therefore, be it resolved, that in the death of Brother Kramer, while our loss is great his gain is even greater, and we believe he is wearing his crown.

Second, That we join his bereaved family in their sorrow, and in their hope to meet him where there will be no more parting.

Third, That these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of our class and a copy sent to the bereaved family.

J. G. Fearing,
S. B. Parker,
L. E. Old.

STROUPE—Bro. Charles M. Stroupe was born in Lincoln county, N. C., January 19, 1851, and died at his home in Bessemer City, N. C., July 22, 1923. He was twice married. He is now survived by one brother, three sisters, one son, five daughters, six grandchildren and one great-grandchild. He was converted about eight years ago at Iron Station, N. C., in a meeting which was being conducted by Rev. Jim Green. He joined the M. E. Church, South, and has been a loyal member and a faithful Christian to the day of his death.

E. P. Stabler, Pastor.

WATSON—In the death of Sister Susan Sherrod Watson, Providence church, Conway circuit, has lost one of its oldest and best members.

Sister Watson had not been in robust health for some time, but was seriously ill only a few days. She came peacefully to the end of life May 23rd, having just passed the 79th milestone in life's journey. Five years and a little more before her death her husband, David Watson died leaving her and her three sons and two daughters. She was a good woman and leaves to her children and us all an inheritance that we should highly prize.

J. B. Thompson.

GRAY—Mrs. Nancy Christian Gray was born September 18, 1857, and died April 15, 1923. A number of years ago she was left a widow with an invalid son to provide for. Her life was one of toil and trial, but she did exceptionally well to her chance. In her girlhood days she professed religion, joined the M. E. Church, South, and remained a faithful member till God called her home. The last few months of her earthly life were full of suffering, but she bore her afflictions with patience, realizing that she would soon pass into that life where sickness and pain are felt no more.

She bore her cross patiently, lived well and has gone to wear the crown.

C. A. Johnson.

DAVIS—On June 12, 1923, death came to the home of John W. Davis after years of feeble body but only two or three days serious illness.

Brother Davis as long as physically able was a regular attendant at the church services. There was not a member of the church on this charge so far as I know who had a doubt as to his piety.

A sister of his had died in his home this year. He leaves a son and daughter to mourn his departure. His wife had preceded him to the spirit land some years. In the going of Brother Davis Conway has not only lost one of her oldest but one of her best members.

J. B. Thompson, P. C.

MEEKINS—Horace Brooks Meekins, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Meekins, was born September 17, 1918, and went home to heaven July 3, 1923. Brooks was a frequent sufferer all his life, yet he possessed some rare qualities that are seldom ever demonstrated in the life of a human sufferer. He had a bright, cheerful and affectionate disposition and was loved by those who knew him. Brooks loved the Sunday school and was most always present. The good impressions he received was marked by the little songs he learned to sing, such as "Jesus wants me for a Sunbeam" and "Jesus loves me, this I know. The Sunday school will miss his bright little face, and the home is sad because of his going away. May God's blessings rest upon those who mourn his departure.

C. A. Johnson.

HERRING—Sarah Cassandra Thompson Herring, the youngest of eight children of the late William B. and Ann Eliza Thompson, was born July 21, 1867, died April 7, 1923.

At the age of 12 she gave her heart to God and was happily converted under the ministry of Rev. W. C. Gannon of the North Carolina conference and joined the church at Thompson's Chapel, Wayne county, N. C.

On March 15, 1894, she was married to Benajah Herring, who preceded her to the better world 26 years ago. To this happy union were born two children, one of whom survives, Mrs. R. E. Cox, with whom she made her home.

Sister Herring, having been born in a Christian home and reared in a wholesome Christian atmosphere, lived all of her days a consistent Christian life, walking humbly with her God and in all things worthily magnifying His name. In her daily walk and conduct she showed forth the spirit and teachings of her Lord in whom she had an unswerving faith and an unfaltering trust. To her Christ was a real divine human person with whom she walked and talked in the unbroken bonds of a sweet and holy fellowship.

In her home life she was tender, thoughtful, patient and loving, ever manifesting a beautiful spirit of wise and unselfish devotion to the highest interests of her family. As a neighbor and friend Sister Herring was kind and sympathetic, visiting the sick, ministering to the needs of the poor and exercising a spirit of charity and good will toward all.

Sister Herring loved her church and was faithful in her loyal devotion to its every interest. The vows she took as a child at the altar were ever sacred to her. She was faithful in her attendance upon its public worship and the hearty support of its institutions. Her pastor could always depend upon her for sympathetic co-operation in all the enterprises of the church, never growing weary in any service she could render. Her home, as was that of her parents, was ever open to the Methodist preacher, and many of those who once enjoyed its gracious hospitality were waiting at the "beautiful gate" to welcome her redeemed spirit to her eternal home—the heart of God.

The funeral services were held from the residence of her daughter, Mrs. R. E. Cox, conducted by Rev. C. A. Jones, her pastor, Rev. C. L. Read, pastor of St. Paul church, Goldsboro, and the writer. In the presence of a large concourse of sorrowing relatives and friends her remains were interred in the family burying ground near the old home, there to await the glorious morn of the resurrection. The radiant light of her beautiful life has not gone out but gone on. We shall see her again. "I heard a voice from heaven saying unto me, Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth: yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors."

G. T. A.

BRASWELL—James Craig Braswell, Jr., was born in Rocky Mount April 24, 1902, his parents being James C. Braswell and Mrs. Grizzelle Burton Braswell. He was of excellent lineage, a descendant of old North Carolina families. His great-grandparents on his mother's side were Rev. Alexander Walker and Mrs. Harriet Walker, and his grandparents Mr. R. C. Burton and Mrs. Nannie B. Burton. On his father's side his grandparents were Thos. P. Braswell and Mrs. Emily Stallings Braswell. In the immediate family are one brother, Russell Braswell, and two sisters, Lillian Duval and Nancy Burton Braswell. These three, with their parents and grandmother, Mrs. Burton, survive him.

His boyhood was spent in Rocky Mount, where he also received the early years of his schooling. At the age of thirteen he entered Webb School, at Bellbuckle, Tenn., and studied there for three years. After this he attended a school in Washington City with the idea of preparing for Annapolis Naval Academy in case the war had continued. Following this he went to Virginia Military Institute for one session; then graduated from the University of North Carolina in the spring of 1922, after a residence there of a little less than three years. In June, 1923, he entered the first year in the law course at Harvard University, and took a vacation to Marblehead, Mass. It was here that he was afflicted, on account of being taken with cramp, on July 9, 1923, while swimming with friends. While he was in Harvard his roommate, classmate and best friend was Mr. James Maxwell Erbaugh, of Denver, Col. This young man, together with his bride, accompanied the remains to Rocky Mount, where the interment took place July 12th. So reads the brief chronicle of the earthly life of our young friend, but these dates and places do not tell the whole story of his character and worth.

I found a little book of essays he had been reading, which opened readily at a place that he had marked with a pencil. The marked passage runs after this manner: "The gentleman is a man of truth; lord of his own actions, and expressing that lordship in his behaviour." Somehow I feel that it was around this idea of the perfect gentleman his life was formed. There were a few traits which characterized him strongly. One of these was a high sense of personal honor. He would not stoop to do the small or mean thing, but ever bore himself in such fashion as to win and hold the respect of all who knew him, and to maintain respect for himself. He was generous to a marked degree, frequently forgetting his own interests, and impoverishing himself in order to place some weaker friend upon his feet. In his literary tastes he was old and thoughtful beyond his years, his chief pleasures being those which came through the mind. He delighted to dwell upon the great themes of which the masters of the world had written and spoken, while the finer things of our human life found a large place in his conversation. Kindness, grace, manliness, purity were some of the elements which went to compose the character of this young man of promise. The drink habit was especially distasteful to him. Only last spring he received a reward of two thousand dollars which his grandmother had promised him while he was but a child, on the condition that he would be a total abstainer until he became of age. Each season saw the unfolding of some new and excellent trait in him which but the prophecy of a rich and fruitful life in the after years. Hundreds of testimonials as to his high and noble character have reached the family by letter and telegram from those who knew him.

James joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, at the age of ten, and continued a loyal member of the same to the end. He was also a charter member of the first troop of Boy Scouts organized in Rocky Mount. While in college he became a member of the Phi Delta Theta Fraternity, and the comrades of that order served as attendants to bear his form to its last resting place.

We had not looked for him to go so soon. Just twenty-one years to live and work. He had not known the heat of the noontide nor the weariness of the late evening. His feet were still wet with the dew of the morning, while the light of the early sun shone full upon his face; he left his plow in the field. How short a time it was, and yet so much to do. Yet our lives are not measured by length of years, but by how much we think and feel and love and serve during the time that we live. It is possible for one to sum up in a brief period what it takes others a generation to accomplish. Our friend did not live long on earth, but he lived well, and his name will find its rightful place in that long and sacred roll of our honored dead.

There must of necessity be a hereafter where such lives as have been cut short in this world may complete their growth and come to a full fruition. And somehow I feel that in the heavenly land, among the glorified immortals, in the presence of his Redeemer, James Craig Braswell, Jr., will be found with the light of eternal youth upon his face. "I cannot say, and I will not say, that he is dead; he is just away." Harry M. North.

LEWTER—On May 10, 1923, at the age of 43 Sister Edna Jane Lewter, after some time spent in a hospital, died in her home in Severn, N. C. She is mourned by her husband, four sons, three daughters and a host of loved ones and friends.

Sister Lewter joined the Methodist church under the ministry of Rev. J. H. M. Giles and lived a beautiful Christian life. Her sweet disposition made her own home a place of joy to her husband and children. Her parents, brothers and sisters had long felt the beauty of her life before she left the parental roof.

Sister Lewter was a loyal church member and a true Christian. Her going so early is a great loss to the church and community, but the blow falls heaviest upon Brother Lewter and her children.

We buried her body in a beautiful hill, but her life encompasses all who knew her and this gentleness makes us long to be loyal to her Lord.

J. B. Thompson, Pastor.

NORTH CAROLINA Christian Advocate

Volume LXVIII

GREENSBORO, N. C., THURSDAY, AUGUST 16, 1923

No. 33

FUNDAMENTALS OF METHODISM

A Gracious Experience of Personal Salvation

By BISHOP EDWIN D. MOUZON

I purpose writing in the present communication about that gracious experience of personal salvation out of which Methodism sprang and to which Methodism bears witness the world over. I am doing this because of the joy I have in bearing testimony to my own faith and in order to draw the thought of my brethren back to the viewpoint of Wesley and the early Methodists. For the most essential thing in Methodism is a personal experience of salvation. To preach the great doctrines of personal experience and to bear glad testimony to salvation from sin—it was for this that God raised up the Methodists.

Let no one suppose that we Methodists are indifferent to matters touching fundamental orthodoxy. Throughout all our history the trumpet we have sounded has given forth no uncertain sound. However, our Methodist way of approaching the whole matter of orthodoxy has from the very beginning been quite different from that usually followed. The unusual method of those who "contend for the faith" has been to write down intellectual propositions, to draw up long articles of belief, and by threat of excommunication insist that they must be accepted. This method of intellectualism Methodism has never followed. The historic position of Methodism is not that you make men Christians by first making them orthodox, but that if you can succeed in getting people converted and can lead them on to deeper experience of divine grace you will keep them sound in the faith.

And the things I am saying to the church are said because I am interested in keeping Methodism true to her early experience and her apostolic testimony. I do not believe that this can be done by dogmatism and denunciation. I know that it can be done by calling sinners to repentance, by living a Christian life, and by exhorting our people to go on to perfection. I could easily load this paper down with quotations to show that this is the position of the fathers and founders of our great church. Take just one quotation from Dr. Abel Stevens:

Methodism reversed the usual policy of religious sects which seek to preserve their spiritual life by their orthodoxy, it maintained its orthodoxy by its spiritual life, and it presents to the theological world the anomalous spectacle of a widespread church which for more than a hundred years has had no serious disturbance from heresy. Wesley seems to have perceived that unnecessary discriminative theological requirements of opinions are the most effectual means of provoking heterodoxy into existence by challenging the doubts of curiosity of speculative minds, that the continual scenting out of heresy by the church is the surest means of producing it, as the persecution of doubtful opinions has usually strengthened and spread them. (History of Methodism, Vol. II, page 445.)

Let us recall, then, that epoch-making experience out of which came Methodism. Many circumstances had led up to that hour in Wesley's experience. The influences of the parsonage at Epworth, the life spent at Oxford, the humbling and chastening effect of his experience in Georgia—all these brought him to that culminating hour. In language which has become classic in Methodist circles Wesley describes what happened at the prayer meeting in Aldersgate Street:

"About a quarter before nine, while one was describing the change which God works in the heart through faith in Christ, I felt my heart strangely warmed. I felt I did trust in Christ, Christ alone, for salvation, and an assurance was given me that he had taken away my sins, even mine, and saved me from the law of sin and death. I began to pray with all my might for those who had in a more especial manner despitefully used me and persecuted me. I then testified openly to all there what I now first felt in my heart."

John Wesley was not alone in this experience. Whitefield had entered into a conscious experience of divine grace. Charles Wesley had also found the peace and joy which come from personal trust in Christ. Presently numbers of others had found the "pearl of great price." And in a little while there came from God the greatest revival of evangelical religion the world had ever seen. Out of this came Methodism and the Methodist church.

Methodism, then, is emphatically the religion of Christian experience. As everybody knows, among the doctrinal standards of Methodism are reckoned Wesley's "Notes on the New Testament" and Wesley's "Standard Sermons," these all written to explain and expound the doctrines of Christian experience. What, then, are the doctrines of Christian experience which from the first have been considered of central importance in Methodism? They are the following: (1) The Universality of the Atonement, (2) Salvation through Faith in Jesus Christ, (3) The Witness of the Spirit, and (4) The Possibility of Christian Perfection.

Consider briefly these cardinal doctrines of Methodism, these gracious truths of Christian experience:

1. The Universality of the Atonement.

From his college days Wesley had believed in the universality of the atonement. He held to the faith which he had received from his wise mother that "the doctrine of predestination as maintained by the rigid Calvinists is very shocking and ought to be abhorred because it directly charges the most high God with being the author of sin." But in the glowing experience of Wesley and those associated with him this truth that Christ died for all men took fire. It became something more than a doctrine handed down from the fathers and held by the intellect as a truth made necessary by the character of God. It became a fact of experience. They themselves had been redeemed. The worst men that they knew were being saved by the power of Christ. None were so lost but Christ could find them and bring them back to the Father's house. And so, to quote Green, the historian of the English people: "Their voice was soon heard in the wildest and most barbarous corners of the land, among the bleak moors of Northumberland, in the dens of London, or in the long galleries where in the pauses of his labors the Cornish miner listens to the sobbing of the sea."

And it was not long before revival fires were kindled on this side of the Atlantic. What Wesley and his associates did in England Francis Asbury and his coadjutors did here in the wilds of America. And they did even more, for their hardships were incomparably greater. Among all those early heroes, Jesse Lee, of Virginia, stands out as easily one of the first. It was he who carried the gospel of Methodism into Calvinistic New England. They would not let him preach his Methodist "heresy" of the love of God to all mankind in their churches. So, like Wesley before him, he took to the open fields. When he came to Boston, he found a table, and, placing it under an elm tree, he began to sing:

Come, sinners, to the gospel feast;
Let every soul be Jesus' guest;
Ye need not one be left behind,
For God hath bidden all mankind.

Sent by my Lord, on you I call;
The invitation is to all:
Come, all the world! come, sinner, thou!
All things in Christ are ready now.

This is the gospel which did more than any other one thing to lay the foundations of Christian civilization in this New World. It is a blessed gospel we preach, and a glorious inheritance of faith and heroic service is ours. But what does it all amount to if we do not do our utmost and our best to follow in the steps of our fathers and give the gospel to the lost men and women of our cities, our towns, and our rural districts? The compulsion of a great message is upon us. We must be missionary or we are not Methodists.

God pity us if, sent as we are upon a great mission, we fall out among ourselves by the way and take to disputing about things which are not essential to the gospel and have no relation to the great facts of Christian experience and life!

2. Salvation through faith in Jesus Christ.

All his lifelong, until he felt his heart "strangely warmed," Wesley had been on the wrong track. He had tried almost everything—sacramentarianism, asceticism, reliance on good works—and all in vain. His experience in Aldersgate Street changed all that. Then and there he discovered for himself what it was to trust in Christ, Christ alone for salvation. And this is how Wesley describes the faith that saves:

"It is not an opinion or any number of opinions put together, be they ever so true. A string of opinions is no more Christian faith than a string of beads is Christian holiness. The faith by which the promise is attained is a power wrought by the Almighty in an immortal spirit inhabiting a house of clay to see through that veil into the world of spirits, into things invisible and eternal. . . . It is the ear of the soul whereby the sinner hears the voice of the Son of God and lives, the palate of the soul (if the expression may be allowed) whereby the believer 'tastes the good word of God and the powers of the world to come,' the feeling of the soul whereby 'through the power of the Highest overshadowing him' he perceives the presence of Him in whom he lives and moves and has his being and feels the love of God shed abroad in his heart. It is the internal evidence of Christianity, a perpetual revelation, equally strong, equally new, through all the centuries which have elapsed since the incarnation and passing now, even as it has done from the beginning, directly from God into the believing soul."

Concerning this description of faith, Coleridge is quoted as saying: "I venture to avow it as my con-

(Continued on page four.)

WHY THE DISCUSSION?

Every few decades during the world's history some fellow has undertaken to undermine the Bible. It has been chained. It has been burned. Its truthfulness has been attacked. But it stands out today the same book unfettered, unsunged and as the one book that is the "Rule and guide to our faith." All those who have gone before failed to shelve the "Word of God." It will be impossible for those who are making the attempt today. In a few years those who have attacked the origin and authenticity of the Old Testament Scriptures will be forgotten, but the Bible, including the Pentateuch, will be intact and will still be a comfort to men and women. All other things will pass away, but not one page of the Old Book will be destroyed. "Much learning" has "made some folks mad," and they have come to the conclusion that it is up to them to correct all the mistakes of those gone before and prove that they know more about the scriptures than did Christ Himself. We wonder why Christ when He was here did not inform us of the "Origin, Significance and Abiding Worth of the Old Testament Scriptures." Instead of delivering a series of lectures on that subject, in nearly every one of His public utterances He quoted from the very scriptures that have been attacked. He came to fulfill and not to destroy. The Old and New Testament scriptures have always been recognized by Methodism as the "Canonical Books." "In the name of the Holy Scriptures, we do understand those canonical books of the Old and New Testaments, of which authority was never any doubt in the Church." This last sentence is taken from the Articles of Religion of our church, and every minister of Methodism has entered into a solemn contract with the church to defend these articles of religion as expressed by the church, and which is founded on the scriptures, and it seems to us that when one reaches that point where he cannot accept these articles of religion that common honesty demands that he leave the ministry of the church at once.

But back to our head line. Why the discussion? It is said that at a congress of religions held a few years ago that the Bible of our fathers was attacked by a speaker and that Jesus our Lord was belittled. His virgin birth was denied and his divinity was stamped as a falsehood. One strong supporter of the Bible as it had been handed down to him wanted to answer this defamer of God's Word and of His Son, but friends near prevailed upon him to hold his peace, stating that Jesus would answer for Himself. As soon as the speaker was through the great audience arose en masse and sang "Jesus shall reign wherever the sun does its successive journeys run." And Jesus and the old Bible had won. When the scholars of today get through displaying what they think they know, the masses of the lovers of God and the Bible will still be shouting His praises and the Bible will be loved from Genesis to Revelations and the Kingdom of God will be marching on and these "great thinkers" will be forgotten. Let the church go on doing its work under the guidance of God's Holy Spirit and stop discussing the foolishness of "great thinkers."

HONESTY

It would be an untruth to state that every man who does not meet his financial obligations when they become due is dishonest. There are a large number of men who are honest but are unable to pay their just debts. Reverses may have overtaken them, or other circumstances which render it impossible for them to do what they would be glad to do. Such a person is to be pitied rather than censured. If he had the means at his command he would pay the last farthing with the usury that generally accompanies such cases. He may be criticized by some people, but well thinking people will appreciate his condition.

But there are those who are able to meet every obligation of life in a material way, but who will not do so. It has been a revelation to this writer and at the same time a sad disappointment to him to make the discovery that there are so many people who really will dare to repudiate a financial obligation—men who are high in social, political and religious affairs will scruple to flatly refuse to pay an honest debt and render no excuse for it at all. Instead of preaching against the sins of the bootlegger, the gambler and taking an hour to abuse the poor little silly girl for not having any more gumption than to go out on the greased floor and dance herself sick, it seems to us that it is high time for the ministry to strike at the dishonest pew holder. Not only the fellow who refuses to meet his obligations in things material, but who is so dishonest as to take by unfair means that which is another's and then call it a "shrewd deal." We once knew a real estate dealer who was high up in all departments of life in his town who sold a house to an honest working man. He failed to meet the payments as they came due. The real estate man at once took back the property and kept all that the poor man had paid on the property, and in a public place boasted of the fact that he had just "cleaned up $1,000." We may be wrong, but our candid opinion is that that real estate man will meet that thousand dollars again. If not before, at the judgment.

We have had all kinds of campaigns in our church. Now let's have a campaign for old-time honesty.

GREENSBORO COLLEGE GETS NEW PIPE ORGAN

The trustees of Greensboro College have authorized the installing of a new pipe organ in the Odell Memorial Building. Mr. J. A. Odell of Greensboro has indicated his willingness to pay for the organ. The contract has been closed with the Pilcher Organ Company of Louisville, Kentucky, and the work of installing the organ is to be completed by March 1, 1924.

The organ will have three manuals and a large echo organ in the gallery, with a set of 25 cathedral chimes. This echo organ will have the stops echo flute, echo etheria, vox humana and a fern flute made of metal and wood. Each stop will have 73 pipes, which will make it one of the largest and best echo organs in the state particularly useful in recitals.

With the pipe organ in the main building of the college and the new practice organ in the Odell Memorial Building the addition of this superb new pipe organ will thoroughly equip Greensboro College for instruction in organ and will also provide ample facilities for recitals and concerts.

This item of news will be read with a great deal of pleasure by the friends of Greensboro College, and North Carolina Methodism will rejoice at the generosity of Brother Odell.

JAMES J. JEFFRIES, EVANGELIST

A news report coming from Los Angeles states that James J. Jeffries, the former prize fighter, is preparing to spend the rest of his days as an evangelist. Every good person will be glad for Mr. Jeffries, or any other person who has neglected God and served the devil, to turn from the error of his way and become a servant of Christ. But some will find it difficult to become enthusiastic over the ex-pugilist's decision—to turn evangelist when he no longer is able to fight. Had the decision been made in his palmy days, when it might have meant the giving up of a chance to make some big money as a nose smasher, it would have made a better impression. Of course he will draw a crowd wherever he goes, at least for a time, even if he cannot preach very much. People will want to see the ex-champion, who can thus capitalize his fistic reputation in the field of evangelism. If he is sincere enough, and has spiritual power enough to turn that curiosity into a genuine interest in the eternal verities, he may do an effective work. If he cannot meet this condition, the cause of true evangelism can but suffer at his hands. The grace of God is able to save to the uttermost, and use to good advantage in the Master's vineyard even an ex-pugilist, but he must come by the way of repentance, and not endeavor to ride into the kingdom upon the notoriety gained in a life of sin. We trust that Mr. Jeffries is sincere, and that he may be as great a fighter against sin as he has been in the ring. The reputation of an evangelist looks better than that of a prize fighter, when viewed in the light of eternity; and Mr. Jeffries may be getting near enough to the end of the long, long road to see things according to their real value.—Religious Telescope.

The tragedy of it all is that so many ex-prize fighters, gamblers, bootleggers, etc., are running over the country under the name of a gospel minister, claiming to have been converted and called by God to the holy ministry, and people will leave the churches and flock to hear such stuff. Verily the American people delight in being humbugged

OUR NEW PRESIDENT

As the doors of the receiving vault at Marion, Ohio, have closed and our late President remains within its silent walls, the eyes of all the world turn toward our new President, Calvin Coolidge, the son of a Vermont farmer. We will not all agree with him in his policies. It is not to be expected that he will be able to measure up to the wishes of all the people. It would be impossible for him to do so. But all the people can assist him and those associated with him in working out plans that will be of most service to the people he is called to serve. If more constructive and less destructive efforts were put forth our people would be happier. If we had more of the human kindness and less petty politics all would be better. Mr. Coolidge is human, and like all of us, will make mistakes. The duty of the American people is to give him their unstinted support and sympathy and prayers.

Mr. Coolidge is not a member of any Christian church. He was reared in the Congregational church and attends regularly upon its services. Mrs. Coolidge is a regular communicant of that faith. May God bless our new President.

CONFERENCE SEASON DRAWS NEAR

Two months from today the Western North Carolina conference will be in session in the city of Winston-Salem. A month later the North Carolina conference will convene in Elizabeth City. Surely the year has glided swiftly by. In the multiplied work that has crowded in upon us a great many things that should have been done early in the year have been left undone till now, and it will require hard work and a determined effort to finish up the work of the conference year during the next two months. The protracted meeting season is now on and this will tax the preachers for several weeks. It will be necessary for all church leaders to get busy and remain so till the last day before conference. It usually happens that during the last few days before conference most of the finances are to be raised. Every effort possible should be put forth to collect all claims laid upon the church, but especially ought the stewards see to it that the pastor's salary is paid in full. This is not said to minimize any other interest of the church, but it is necessary for the preacher to live on his salary and, if the board fails to pay him up in full, he may be forced to leave behind debts unpaid, and this should never be allowed.

Throughout North Carolina comes to us reports of fine crops in most sections and it now appears that the prices will be high and that prosperity will visit our state. We are sure that our people will not refuse the church and ministry the part that belongs to them. Let every interest of the church be considered in the closing days of the conference year.

IRRESPONSIBLE DRIVER CAUSES DEATH OF YOUNG MAN

It is distressing to read in the Advocate that Mr. Marvin Dewey Robinson, son of Rev. and Mrs. B. P. Robinson, of the Northampton charge, had been killed on Sunday afternoon, August 5th, by a negro driver in a high powered car running at a rate of speed that is prohibited by the state law. We do not know what was done with the negro, but it so often happens that reckless drivers of automobiles who destroy life or maim innocent persons are adjudged not guilty on the grounds that it was an unavoidable accident. It is high time that something is done to avoid such occurrences as that which happened to young Robinson between Jacksonville and Weldon. He had stopped a few minutes before to render assistance to an old colored man, and had just started when he was killed.

There ought to be some way provided which would require every driver of an automobile to have state license before he is permitted to drive on the public highways, and every man who does not own his car to put up a bond before he is allowed to drive an automobile. The multiplied thousands of machines on the roads have rendered travel hazardous at best, but to turn high powered machines over to irresponsible persons it is simply dangerous to travel our highways.

The large circle of friends of Brother and Sister Robinson will greatly sympathize with them in their sorrow. May God's blessings richly abide with them

PEOPLE AND THINGS

Western North Carolina Conference, Winston-Salem, October 17.

North Carolina Conference, Elizabeth City, November 14.

Mr. Lenoir Correll and Miss Lucy Abee were united in marriage by Rev. J. R. Walker on July 21.

Rev. W. B. Humble was assisted in a successful meeting at Perkins church on the Moyock charge by Rev. E. L. Stack, of Elizabeth City.

Rev. A. W. Price, of Manteo, recently assisted Rev. J. M. Joliff through a series of meetings at Hatteras. The results, we are told, were very satisfactory.

Rev. and Mrs. N. H. D. Wilson, of First church, Elizabeth City, are visiting, during their vacation, friends and relatives and friends in Rockingham, Hamlet and Maxton.

Mrs. C. B. Culbreth, wife of the presiding elder of the Elizabeth City district, was one of the instructors at the Standard Training School at Maxton last week.

The Sam Maxwell evangelistic party has September 3 open, and if any brother wishes their services at that time they can be found in care of Judge Oliver H. Allen, Kinston, N. C.

Brother W. E. Cunningham, one of our best official members at Harrison church, Pineville charge, passed to his reward August 8 at 2 o'clock p. m. A memoir will be published later.

Rev. J. H. Barnhardt, pastor of West Market Street, Greensboro, is at Lake Junaluska spending a much needed vacation. Rev. E. P. Billups, assistant pastor, is at his home in West Virginia spending some time with his parents.

We regret to chronicle the death of Mrs. J. W. Hoyle, Sr., which occurred at Ridgeway, S. C., where Brother Hoyle is serving a charge, on August 9th. Brother Hoyle will have the prayers and sympathy of his large circle of friends.

Revs. E. H. Davis and G. B. Starling, of Clinton and Mt. Olive, respectively, have recently assisted Rev. C. M. Lance, of the Faison and Warsaw charge, in two fine meetings. These brethren and fine service were greatly appreciated.

Rev. H. R. Cornelius and Miss Lena Setzer were married at the residence of Rev. J. R. Walker in Hickory on the 30th of June. These young people will enter the itinerant ranks of our church. Brother Walker performed the ceremony that made them man and wife.

The Advocate job department has recently turned out catalogs for Weaver College and Brevard Institute. These two institutions are looking forward to a successful year. Brother Trowbridge is the new president of Weaver and Brother Orr is in charge at Brevard.

Rev. J. M. Daniel, presiding elder of the Wilmington district, spent last Sunday in Greensboro. The office being closed Brother Daniel found us at home and delighted us with a visit. He reports that Sister Daniel, who has been in a hospital for some time, is improving and hopes to be able to return home in September.

Rev. N. R. Richardson, who is filling the pulpit at Leaksville during the illness of Brother Sherrill, the pastor, called to see us on Monday. He reports that Brother Sherrill is now at All Healing Springs, near Taylorsville, recuperating from a recent surgical operation, and that he expects to be back at work by the first of September.

Rev. T. M. Grant, pastor of that fine congregation at Hertford, was called back to one of the churches he had formerly served as pastor over in Gates county to assist in a meeting. He had the pleasant experience of receiving into the membership of the church his two young daughters. They are twins and are just eight years of age.

Rev. Carlock Hawk, of Haywood Street church, Asheville, has been granted a month's vacation by his congregation, and he is spending the time at Chautauqua, N. Y. Brother Hawk has had a most successful year at Haywood Street. Seventy additions to the church is one of the results of his ministry. He is attending from four to six lectures per day at Chautauqua and declares that that is a great place to recreate and study.

At the home of the bride in Chatham county, Mr. Carl H. Hunnicutt of Raleigh and Miss Lucile Knight were happily united in the holy bonds of matrimony August 9th, Rev. B. E. Stanfield officiating.

Greensboro College will open for the fall semester on September 5th. President Turrentine reports that prospects for a large opening are very bright. All the rooms in the dormitories have not been taken, but new applications are received nearly every day.

Rev. Harry C. Smith, of Trinity church, Wilmington, will assist Rev. G. B. Starling in a series of meetings beginning next week at Mount Olive. Brother Starling reports that his charge is in fine shape and that good reports will be made at conference.

Rev. R. G. L. Edwards, of Tabor, did the preaching in a meeting at Rocky Mount, which closed recently. Reports from there are to the effect that his preaching greatly pleased the people and that much good was accomplished. Brother E. W. Downum is the pastor.

Rev. A. L. Lucas is in a great meeting at Bethany church on Liberty charge. Mr. Lucas is doing good preaching. The church is greatly revived, fifty-one have professed faith in Christ, twenty-four have united with the church and others will join. The meeting is still going fine.

Rev. W. F. Womble, presiding elder of the Greensboro district, has asked the Advocate to request the pastors of the district to prepare duplicate copies of the boards of stewards to be nominated at the fourth quarterly conference, and he also asks that every preacher see to it that the trustees are ready to make the report of property held by them according to the requirements of the discipline.

Rev. J. C. Wooten, presiding elder of the Raleigh district, we learned incidentally, passed through Greensboro last week returning from a vacation spent in the western part of the state. Brother Wooten failed to call at the Advocate office. We want to notify him that this is almost an unpardonable offense. If it is done again we shall have to investigate the matter.

Rev. A. C. Gibbs, pastor of our church in Thomasville, was a caller at the Advocate office on Monday. He reports that church work in his town is in good shape. During the hot summer months he has been preaching to a full house each Sunday. He goes next week to assist Rev. W. B. Thompson in a meeting at Farmers and the week following he will be with Bro. F. O. Dryman at Norwood.

Interest among Governor Morrison's appointments of officials of the Atlantic and North Carolina Railroad was that of Rev. J. M. Carraway of Merrimon, Carteret county, to the finance committee to succeed John S. Weskert of Bayboro. Rev. Mr. Carraway is a splendid type of citizen, said Judge Oliver Allen, and is a man of great influence. Brother Carraway is pastor of Caswell Street church, Kinston.

Little Mary Plyler, the eight-year-old daughter of Rev. and Mrs. A. W. Plyler, has been quite ill for the past several weeks. Brother Plyler has been forced to remain at his home to assist in nursing his daughter. This will account for the shortcomings of the Advocate this week. The business manager has had to double up and try to do the work of the editor and business manager. We are sure that the host of friends of Brother and Sister Plyler will remember them in this hour of their anxiety.

Rev. J. A. Cook and daughter, Miss Mary, Mr. L. R. Martin and Miss Thelma Jackson, of Mount Airy, were pleasant callers at the Advocate office Monday. They were here to meet Rev. J. L. Hodgen, of New Bern, who is this week assisting Brother Cook in a series of meetings. Brother Hodgen is pastor of a Baptist church, but he and Brother Cook have been close friends for a long time and often assist each other in meetings.

Rev. W. L. Dawson, of the Summerfield charge, closed a very helpful and inspiring meeting at Center church last Saturday night. There were twelve accessions to the church. The week before Brother Dawson closed a week's meeting at Battle Ground church, at which place there were five additions to the membership. This hard working preacher is this week at Lee's Chapel preaching twice a day to large congregations. Brother Dawson is doing all his preaching in his meetings and is having wonderful success.

At the Methodist parsonage in Jonesboro Thursday morning, August 9, Mr. Hume F. Harrington of Sanford and Miss Elva Campbell of Jonesboro were happily united in marriage, Rev. B. E. Stanfield officiating.

Richlands Methodist church will begin revival services Monday night, August 27. Rev. J. B. Thompson, pastor at Conway, N. C., will assist the pastor. The pastor is planning for a successful meeting.

Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Turrentine have returned from an extended vacation which was spent at Cold Springs, Johnston City, Tenn., and Asheville. In Johnston City they were the guests of their son, Mr. S. B. Turrentine, Jr.

Brother W. F. Craven says that Fletcher's Chapel to be dedicated at an early date by Bishop Denny, as announced in this issue, is a splendid church, has successful Sunday school and Epworth League, good working congregation and the pastor has promised us a cut of the church for the Advocate. We hope to get it to run the week of the dedication.

The Advocate is in receipt of the following announcement: "Reverend and Mrs. George Bascom Perry announce their fiftieth wedding anniversary on Monday, the thirteenth of August, nineteen hundred and twenty-three, Selma, North Carolina. George Bascom Perry, Josephine Perry. 1873-1923." Brother and Sister Perry enjoy a wide circle of friends who rejoice with them in reaching the half century together. The Advocate hopes to be able to announce their diamond wedding twenty-five years hence.

SHOP TALK

Within the next few weeks we hope to complete sending out subscription statements to all who are as much as one year behind with their subscriptions. We greatly appreciate the response that we have had to the statements already mailed. Quite a number have sent in their renewals. Of course there are a great many who have not done so. We are sure there is a reason, but we will be glad for all who can possibly do so to send in their renewals at this time. We are in need of the money and then we want to get our mailing list in good shape. Let us have a check for the amount you are due. If there is an error in your label let us know it and we will make the proper correction.

As soon as we complete sending out statements we are going to make a new list and mail all our pastors the mailing list of their respective post-offices for their use in settling up before conference. We hope that those who cannot send us their renewals at this time will see their pastor and give him their money before he leaves for conference.

Now would be a good time to send us your order for collection envelopes for next year. We have a large stock on hand and can give good service, and we guarantee the price to be right.

MARVIN DEWEY ROBINSON KILLED

The oldest son of Rev. B. P. Robinson, Marvin Dewey Robinson, was killed with his companion named Mr. Bradley in a bad automobile wreck. The death car was driven by Marvin, while the car doing the damage was in charge of a negro man. The negro has been caught and now in jail. The tragedy occurred on the Weldon-Jackson highway about two miles from Weldon. The negro was driving at great speed when he struck the car, turning it over and killing the men almost outright. Marvin died three hours later, and Bradley passed away next day at 11 o'clock. The wreck occurred about nine o'clock Sunday night.

The funeral services were conducted by the writer for Mr. Robinson, assisted by William Towe, E. N. Harrison and A. S. Barnes. After the services the remains of Marvin were taken to Raeford, where burial took place late Tuesday evening. Brother Robinson and family are in great grief over the untimely death of their boy. May God bless and comfort them in these days.

L. D. Hayman.

No mind can fully grasp his glory: his beauty, his worth, his importance. No tongue can fully declare. He is the source of all good, the fountain of all excellency, the mirror of perfection, the light of heaven, the wonder of earth, time's masterpiece and eternity's glory; the sun of bliss, the way of life, and life's fair way.—Arthur James Balfour.

FUNDAMENTALS OF METHODISM

(Continued from page one.)

viction that either Christian faith is what Wesley here describes or there is no proper meaning in the word."

Let us rejoice that there are many of us who know from personal experience that "a string of opinions is no more Christian faith than a string of beads is Christian holiness." We have found out for ourselves that saving faith is an intensely personal affair. It is a relation between souls, between my soul and the living Christ. It is like forming a new friendship. It is like falling in love. We have formed a new friendship with Him who is the sinner's Friend. We have fallen in love with Him who loved us and gave himself up for us. The trust we have in Him is like the trust a child has in his father.

My exhortation to all Methodists who have entered into the experience described above is this: Do not let the clamor of confused and confusing voices make you timid or afraid. If you have come in touch with reality, if you have learned to distinguish the things that differ, the essential from the non-essential, then tell it out to all the world. Speak out the things which you have found out for yourself. Dare to be a witness to the reality and power of that living faith which never mistakes the husk for the kernel and which never confuses the changing form with the abiding reality.

3. The Witness of the Spirit.

Possibly more than any other Christian denomination has Methodism preached this doctrine. God has enabled Methodism through all these years to testify with St. Paul: "The Spirit himself beareth witness with our spirit that we are the children of God."

What gave special form and expression to this doctrine was the deistic philosophy which was prevalent in the eighteenth century and the personal experience of Wesley and the people called Methodists in reaction against that form of skepticism.

Deism was the doctrine of an absentee God. It taught that God had once done something but that he could not do anything more. He had once created the world and ordained certain laws. Then he had left the world to the running of these laws just as a watchmaker, to use the favorite illustration of the eighteenth century, might make a watch and wind it up to run of itself. God was not present in history; there could be no such thing as personal providence over human lives; there could not possibly be any such thing as revelation, since God could not speak to men; God could not come in touch with the human soul; men could not possibly have present and personal knowledge of God. God had given men the light of human reason. By this light they could discover that God exists, that he had ordained certain laws of morality, and that the soul is immortal. That was enough; man needed no more. Such in brief was the philosophy of the eighteenth century. And it was everywhere triumphant; practically all preachers and teachers had come under the influence of it. It weighed heavily upon them like the pressure of the atmosphere. They could not escape from it. And I may add that this is the philosophy of many people today. Indeed, in some of its forms it still passes itself off as orthodox theology. Religion in Wesley's century was therefore, a cold and dead affair. It had neither life nor enthusiasm in it.

On the intellectual side Bishop Butler did a work without parallel when he wrote his "Analogy." It is a mistake to underestimate the influence of that notable book on the religious and philosophical thought of the century. But it is simple truth to say that it was not Butler's "Analogy" and the writings of other thinkers that destroyed deism. It was the Methodist Revival that did the work. It was not reason that overturned that philosophical system; it was experience. Deism was silent in the face of the facts of Christian experience. The answer of Methodism to the doubts and denials of the deists was just this: God is not absent but present. Here he is now, moving mightily in the hearts and lives of men and working powerfully in human society. God does speak to men, for God has spoken to us. "The Spirit himself beareth witness with our spirit that we are the children of God." Methodism was a movement that came from God; it was a gracious dispensation of Divine Providence; it was an invasion out of the other world. When one reads Wesley's Journal, one finds himself in the atmosphere of the New Testament. The supernatural was revealed in the hearts of men and before their very eyes.

4. The Possibility of Christian Perfection.

We will let John Wesley say exactly what Methodism means by this doctrine. He writes: "I mean loving God with all our heart and our neighbor as ourselves. I pin all its opposers to this definition. No evasion. No shifting the question." A short while before he died Wesley said: "This doctrine of full salvation is the grand depositum which God has lodged with the people called Methodists, and for the sake of propagating this chiefly he appears to have raised them up."

Now, as everybody knows, this doctrine has been the cause of much difference of opinion among Methodists. In recent years it came near creating a schism in the church. In consequence one seldom hears "entire sanctification" mentioned from our pulpits nowadays. It is my own opinion that the time has come when, with the heat of controversy behind us, in the light of New Testament teaching, and with the assistance of a more adequate psychology than our fathers had, we are prepared to restate our great teaching concerning the possibility of Christian perfection and to proclaim it to all the world.

That the New Testament teaches a doctrine of perfect love is as clear as anything can be. That the early Methodists taught such a doctrine and that through their preaching many men and women were lifted from the lowlands to the sunlit plains is also as certain as anything can be. It is believed that in the light of modern psychology the doctrine of Christian perfection can find a restatement which will commend it to all thoughtful and aspiring souls. Our present-day psychologists have much to say about "the divided self" and "the unified personality." Now, the end of all religion and of all Christian education, so far as personal salvation is concerned, is to enable one to say: "This one thing I do; this one thing I am." This process of unification begins in conversion. Perfect love completes it. What our modern psychologists mean by "the unification of personality" exactly that Wesley meant by Christian perfection, and exactly this the New Testament means also. Here, then, is an experience to be sought after. Here is an attainment to be reached this side of death. For so far as the teachings of the New Testament guide us and so far as experience leads us there is no reason why as a result of full consecration and perfect faith one may not attain it in one supreme and glorious moment.

It is interesting to know that Wesley did not himself profess it. To one who had objected to the doctrine Mr. Wesley wrote: "I tell you flat, I have not attained the character I draw." The nearest he is known to have come to professing it was when to the question whether he had ever experienced the blessing of perfect love he replied by quoting Charles Wesley's hymn:

Jesus, confirm my heart's desire,
To work, and speak, and think, for thee;
Still let me guard the holy fire,
And still stir up thy gift in me;

Ready for all thy perfect will,
My acts of faith and love repeat,
Till death thy endless mercies seal,
And make the sacrifice complete.

If the present writer be asked, "What have you to say concerning your own experience?" I reply: "Not as though I had already attained, . . . but this one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." And I will add this also: In the providence of God he broke me in pieces like a potter's vessel and made "another vessel as seemed good to the potter to make it." Temptations which once were fierce are fierce no longer. Certain battles which once occupied a great part of the field of life have now passed to a large degree out of sight, having rolled on down beneath the horizon where sometimes I hear the distant sound of artillery and the retreating steps of a defeated foe. There have come to me a deeper appreciation of the things that really matter and a large indifference to things, whether of creed or of practice, that make no difference to the Christian life. A deep and abiding sense of certainty touching the things of the spirit has brought me a peace which once I did not have. I am ashamed beyond measure that my Christian experience is still so poor and my attainments in divine grace so small. But I am able to make Andrew Rykman's prayer my own.

Other lips may well be bold;
Like the publican of old,
I can only urge the plea:
"Lord, be merciful to me."

If I may not, sin-defiled,
Claim my birthright as a child,
Suffer it that I to thee
As an hired servant be;
Let the lowliest task be mine,
Grateful, so the work be thine;
Let me find the humblest place
In the shadow of thy grace:
Blest to me were any spot
Where temptation whispers not.
If there be some weaker one,
Give me strength to help him on;
If a blinder soul there be,
Let me guide him nearer thee.
Make my mortal dreams come true
With the work I fain would do;
Clothe with life the weak intent;
Let me be the thing I meant;
Let me find in thy employ
Peace that dearer is than joy;
Out of self to love be led
And to heaven acclimated,
Until all things sweet and good
Seem my natural habitude.

The most fundamental thing about Methodism, then, is a gracious experience of personal salvation. Nothing would mean more to our church just now, and I think also to the kingdom of God, than a fresh study of our own doctrines and a fresh quickening of our own Christian experience. Let our beloved Methodism come back to the experience and practice of the fathers. Well does Dr. Stevens say in connection with the great passage already quoted from his "History of Methodism," "In this respect"—in respect to Methodism's insistence on experience and a holy life rather than an "theological requirements"—"Methodism may have a special mission in the religious world and for the ages to come."

And this, I am sure, is the call of God to Methodism at this very hour. My own belief is that Methodism has come to the kingdom for such a time as this. And I express the grave fear that if this present agitation concerning orthodoxy and heresy, in which laymen often try to settle theological questions that have puzzled scholars for centuries and preachers think to silence the scientists while themselves knowing nothing about the matters they discuss and scientists who know little about the Bible and nothing about philosophy join in and add confusion to disorder—I say I am greatly afraid that if something is not done to stop this agitation multitudes will be driven into the camp of the "liberalists," and some may be driven into actual infidelity. And I am sure that if we Methodists will learn from our own standards and our own Methodist historians just what Methodism is and will stand true to original Methodism the present hour offers the greatest opportunity that ever came to us in our entire history. In this respect Methodism has a special mission in the religious world today and for the ages to come.

My concluding exhortation is this: Preach the great affirmations of the faith. Sound out always a positive note. Do not try so much to defend the gospel. Proclaim it. Proclaim the gospel, and the Holy Spirit will defend it. This was St. Paul's method: "By the manifestation of the truth commending ourselves to every man's conscience in the sight of God." When the truth is proclaimed, it takes hold of the conscience of every sort of man. The Methodist gospel of Christian experience is the gospel of Jesus Christ, and it is ample for all men, large enough to meet the needs of all who sin and suffer and wander and die. Let us tell it out to all the world.

COUNTY WIDE EVANGELISM

By Rev. Bob Jones.

Writing for church papers is not in my line. This is written at the request of Dr. R. L. Russell, who is vitally interested in the cause of evangelism. The article is rather long, but I hope it will not prove to be tedious.

As most of the brethren know, my evangelistic meetings for the last ten or fifteen years have been conducted mostly in the larger towns and cities of America. I have felt for a number of years that the hope of this country is in the smaller towns and rural districts.

I have believed for a long time that it is possible to put on evangelistic tabernacle meetings in the smaller towns and country districts more successfully, and with less strain and effort on the part of the people than it is to put on similar campaigns in the larger towns and cities. I know now this can be done. Houston, Mississippi, has proved it.

Last January the pastors of the Methodist, Baptist, Presbyterian and Christian churches in this little town of 1500 people came to see me, and extended us an invitation to conduct in their town one of our regularly organized tabernacle meetings. These pastors are big men, with vision, and they work together. I talked with them about my idea of the county wide campaigns. They returned home and called into conference the pastors and representative laymen of the country churches. My campaign manager was at this conference, and he outlined our method of organization. The pastors and laymen of the county joined in the invitation.

The meeting was set up with the same care and with the organization of the same committees we use in our largest city meetings. The only difference being that here the county was the unit instead of the city.

Three weeks ago the meeting started. (It will close tomorrow). My manager was here in advance of us for a month. He directed all preliminary details. The tabernacle was built by volunteer labor in one day. The ladies of the church served lunch on the ground the day the men built the tabernacle.

We will leave here feeling that we have had one of the greatest meetings of our ministry. I am sure it has been one of the most delightful we have ever had. There have been fewer problems than we have had anywhere. The expenses were $1800. By expenses I mean the building and equipping of the tabernacle, the salaries and expenses of my party, and all running local expenses. This budget was raised in a little more than a week by simply taking incidental collections. The free will offering which I will receive is more generous than I expected, and is far more liberal than I deserve. It will be raised with less effort than is usually made in the larger communities.

The results are wonderful. The tabernacle, which seats two thousand (buildings of similar size are generally supposed to seat about four thousand), has rarely been large enough to accommodate the crowd. Almost every night hundreds have been on the outside. A section outside the tabernacle has been reserved for colored people. This section is usually overflowing. Almost every night the colored people have sung some of their own songs. The crowds come from everywhere. Automobile parties have come at night from as far as fifty miles.

There have been hundreds of conversions and there will be several hundred accessions to the churches in the town and throughout the county. The Christian forces have been cemented and their vision enlarged. They have a new appreciation of the bigness of religion. Many family altars have been erected, and eternity alone will reveal the results of this.

To show the power of an organized effort in a county like this I will relate an incident. We had one night that we called "Masonic Night." A group of local Masons sent out fifteen hundred invitations to the Masons of the county and surrounding counties, inviting them in to this special night. We had on that occasion the largest Masonic delegation we have ever had anywhere.

This article is written with the hope that the pastors in our towns may see the wonderful opportunities that lie in putting on large co-operative campaigns. I am sure most of the general evangelists of our church, even those who usually hold meetings in the larger towns and cities, would be willing to give some of their time to these county-wide meetings. It is my purpose, provided the Lord leads, to conduct two or three city meetings each year, and the rest of my time I am going to put in on these fields which are supposed to be smaller, but which I believe afford the greatest opportunities for real, constructive, evangelistic work.

The general evangelists of our church, to my mind, and I think I know something about evangelists, as I was president for two years of the Interdenominational Evangelistic Association, with headquarters at Winona Lake, Indiana, are the best, on the average, evangelists in America today. There are a number of them who are big enough to conduct evangelistic campaigns in the biggest cities on the American continent.

I believe if the Methodist pastors in the average Southern town would take up with the other Protestant pastors the proposition of great, county-wide campaigns they would be able to get the co-operation that is necessary to make such campaigns a success. I have found, after having conducted campaigns in about thirty states, that the Baptist, Presbyterian and Christian pastors are usually willing to go into co-operative campaigns when they are sure of sane leadership. I do not mean that our Methodist pastors should attempt to force Methodist evangelists into the towns and counties at all times. It may be that in some counties it would be much wiser for the Methodist pastor to go into evangelistic campaigns under the leadership of evangelists who are members of other denominations rather than their own.

This article is written with the hope and prayer that our pastors throughout the church may get the evangelistic vision which will lead them to the greatest possible evangelistic program in our smaller towns and country districts.

PREACHING CHRIST AS CHRIST PREACHED

There are those who think that the former days were better than these, and who lament the passing of certain good old customs. It is a habit to magnify the past and minimize the present, and sometimes to excuse present failures by recalling the successes of the past. There were such men in Solomon's time, and he rebuked them, saying, "Say not thou, what is the cause that the former days were better than these? for thou dost not inquire wisely concerning this."

It is well that we remember the good rather than the evil; but it is not wise to see only the evil and not the good in the present generation.

Some good men wonder why revival preaching seemed to get quicker and easier results fifty years ago than the same kind of preaching gets today. The reasons are complex. Consider some of them.

1. Life then was simpler. The simpler the life the more readily are the emotions stirred. Consequently there was a readier response to the emotional appeal.

2. One hundred years ago only seven persons in a hundred in America belonged to the church. Today twenty-eight in every hundred are church members. Fifty years ago in the West, as there was comparatively little preaching, the whole neighborhood turned out for preaching, and the majority in any congregation were unconverted. Today in almost any Methodist congregation the vast majority are already members; hence the number who ought to respond is smaller. We have known unskilful preachers to call for penitents and show deep concern because no one responded, when a different call would reveal the fact that all in the congregation were church members.

3. In the olden days there were few activities to engage the young convert, and consequently he soon backslid, and was material for reclamation at the next revival. Today, in our well organized churches, converts are put to work in Sunday school and Epworth League and missionary society, kept thus from backsliding, and are not needing reclaiming.

4. When Sunday schools were few practically no children were led to Christ except in the home and at the protracted meeting; and those who were properly instructed at home expected to confess Christ in the protracted meeting. Today definite work is done in every good Sunday school to have the young children accept Christ, and they are carefully instructed by teacher and pastor and received into the church without the technical revival. That most of these children are genuinely converted is beyond question, although they do not go through the long agony of the old and hardened sinner.

5. Coming forward and kneeling at a mourner's bench is merely a method. It is not prescribed in Scripture, and we have no right to require conformity in a mere matter of form. Methods that work are good. When they cease to work others should be used. To agree that a sinner must come forward and kneel in the straw at a bench is to require what Jesus did not demand and Peter and Paul did not require, and it may be putting a stumbling block in the way. Fifty years ago merchants waited for customers to come to them. Today they send out drummers and advertise and solicit by letters. The merchant who followed only the old custom would fail. Fifty years ago a pastor with a large circuit could reach few people by personal interview, hence he had to depend on the call to the mourner's bench. Today every pastor who is a true pastor visits and knows intimately every member of his flock. It is a day of personal contacts, and the sinner who is canvassed by merchants and agents expects his pastor to take time and pains to talk to him personally about his soul. If the pastor makes the appeal only from the pulpit when he has had scores of opportunity to present Christ in private, the sinner may doubt the preacher's personal interest and consider the preaching a professional and perfunctory performance.—Arkansas Methodist.

Christian progress comes out of the clash and collision of two things, like that of flint and steel—the consciousness of imperfection and the confidence of success. And they who are thus driven by the one and drawn out by the other, in all their consciousness of failure are yet blessed, and are crowned at last with that which they believed before it came.—Alexander Maclaren.

It is of momentous importance to remember that the very core of faith is motion—a movement of the will toward the holy Lord. The act of faith is the yielding of the personal life to the God who is revealed to us in Jesus Christ our Lord. And the life of faith is the constant repetition of that act of surrender until the repeated acts become an attitude, and every choice and will in life is stamped with the pleasure and fear of God.—Dr. John H. Jowett.

How petty are the books of the philosophers with all their pomp, compared with the Gospels! Can he whose life they tell be Himself no more than a man? Is there anything in his character, of the enthusiast or the ambitious sectary? What sweetness, what purity in His ways, what touching grace in His teachings! What loftiness in His maxims, what profound wisdom in His words. What an empire over His passions! Where is the man, where is the sage, who knows how to act, to suffer, and to die, without weakness and without display? If the death of Socrates be that of a sage, the life and death of Jesus are those of a God.—Jean Jacques Rousseau.

There was ever a wistfulness in Jesus' voice. A wistful look was in his eyes, a wistful mood was in his tears, a wistful cadence gave his words a rainy sweetness of tears and laughter intermingled. His custom was compassion. He was not ominous or despairing, for his prophecy swung golden bells in a blue sky and rung them as a holy hymnic chime. Christ was wistful for a world; he dwelt among races of provincials. The Jew, the Greek, the Roman were all provincials. Then provinces differed a little, but only a little. Christ whispered, trumpeted, wept, sung, preached, lived, died—all framing a wide, unprovincial word—the WORLD. Christ, Godman, blood of our blood and the mingled blood spilled for the world has produced a World Brotherhood.—Wm. A. Quayle.

O, who shall paint him? Let the sweetest tone
That ever trembled on the harps of heaven
Be discord; let the chanting seraphim
Whose anthem is Eternity be dumb;
For praise and wonder, adoration, all
Melt into muteness ere they soar to thee,
The sole perfection! Theme of countless worlds!

—Robert Montgomery.

NORTH CAROLINA CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

Official Organ of the North Carolina and Western North Carolina Conferences Methodist Episcopal Church, South. Established 1855.

Entered at the Postoffice at Greensboro, N. C., as mail matter of the second class, acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided in section 1102, act of October 2, 1917, authorized September 9, 1918.

Obituaries and Resolutions of one hundred words published free. All words above this number charged for at rate of 1 cent per word.

A. W. PLYLER ..... Editor
T. A. SIKES ..... Business Manager

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Year ..... $2.00
Six Months ..... 1.00
To all preachers of the Gospel, year 1.00

FIELD NEWS

OLIN CIRCUIT

For a week we combatted with the devil at Mt. Bethel church and God gave us the victory to a large extent. Many were reclaimed and newly born. Brother Osborne from Huntersville did the preaching and it was well done. Brother Osborne is one of our best young preachers.

From Mt. Bethel we went to Olin, and there for a week put forth strenuous efforts to win the lost. We feel sure that the Olin church is much better than before the meeting. A goodly number were added to the church. Brother Ashmore did the preaching at this church, and the girls of this church always came with excellent music.

May God's blessing rest upon the people of this charge, for they are a fine people. Pastor in Charge.

THESE FEW WORDS TO OUR ADVOCATE

And to Dr. Bennet' thanks for his timely words. This not "forgotten" superannuate at nineteen joined conference with no such advantages that our young preachers now have. I served fifteen churches each year for the first three years of my itinerant life, trying to preach every day in the week except two days, boarding among the church scholars. I prepared small sermons and our big conference course (then nearly as heavy as now) chiefly riding on horseback from home to home and church to church. Somehow, the Head of the church knows how, I carried up my conference lessons each year and reached elder's orders in the four years. What is the matter that any of our promising young preachers should fail these times when pastor, salaries, charges, travel and lay co-operation are on a highway that we down here in the old roads had hands in helping to build up? Yet we have assurance that no young Methodist pastor has lost time from his lessons helping Dr. Bland to find glory for Moses and the prophets, since the new teaching and light takes from them glory God gave them. Let us not fear that Moses will be lost to us down in Egypt, and that our new leaders will not lead us up into Canaan. Dr. Bland did leave heterodox smut on the fair field of our Junaluska, and we hope that our Sunday school leaders will not again blunder. Strong orthodox hands like those of Bishop Cannon will soon sweep off all the smut from Canaan, and Junaluska will yet be the bright gem of orthodoxy in Southern Methodism.

In 1871, when I was a young pastor, Rev. W. W. Ivey, the Bishop Asbury type of circuit rider, said to me: "You must read the Christian Advocate. It is the heaviest metal in Southern Methodism." He did not then know that his noble boy would make Advocate metal heavier than in all its illustrious history. And I desire to say that our N. C. Christian Advocate metal is heavier than ever in our Advocate history. S. M. Davis.

REVIVAL AT MURPHY

We have just closed a wonderful revival in Murphy. Many of the oldest citizens declare that the town has not been stirred religiously since they can remember as has been the case in the recent revival conducted by Rev. Thurman B. Price, general evangelist of our church.

There will be about fifty accessions to the Methodist church as a result of this meeting, and possibly as many more to the other churches of the town. But we think the most beneficent result of the meeting is within the church itself. At least three-fourths of the sermons delivered was to the church, and without exception they were delivered with telling effect.

Brother Price has been called the "sane" evangelist of our church, and well does he deserve that designation. His sermons are of the argumentative type, and his appeals are directed with tremendous force to the reason of thinking people. The meeting was held under a large tent and lasted three weeks. M. B. Clegg.

MILTON CIRCUIT

Situated in the extreme northern part of North Carolina in Caswell county is the Milton circuit. The climate here is specially delightful in summer, and the scenery is beautiful. There are five churches on the circuit, one of which is just completed at Semora.

The pastor, J. Bascom Hurley, has held two meetings with good success, not in accessions to church membership, but in the renewals of faith, and in the hearty support of the membership, and the large congregations that greeted him and stuck to him. Last week our meeting was held at New Hope, the largest church on the work. Never has the pastor enjoyed a week of meeting better anywhere. We had service at 5:30 p. m. and 8:15, with supper on the grounds. In addition to spiritual blessings, we were blessed with fine rain seasons for the growing crops, which were so badly needed. For the last fifty years it has never failed to rain during New Hope meeting. The oldest citizens say this is a fact.

Rev. W. R. Jenkins of Western N. C. conference is to preach for us at Purley church, beginning the second Sunday in August. He is a graduate of Trinity College, and a classmate and intimate friend of the writer's. We are looking for a good and glorious meeting.

We begin our meeting at Connelly the first Sunday in August. Rev. J. J. Barker is going to assist us some. His old home was in this section.

We have a beautiful new church at Semora, which we shall occupy about the first of September. We hope to get a picture of the church and a detailed account of how this church was built. It will be interesting reading. The church people there deserve great praise for what they have made possible.

A PLEA TO THE WESLEY BIBLE CLASSES

Richard Thompson is an American who has been in this country three years. He is a member of our church in Sarasota, Florida. He was taken ill with tuberculosis some time ago. He has no money, no relatives and no friends, except the Methodists of Sarasota. They cared for him a while in Florida, paid his doctor's bills, and finally were informed by the physicians that the only way to save his life was to send him to Western North Carolina, where he could get the full benefit of that wonderful climate and the attention of specialists in pulmonary troubles. The Sarasota church sent him to Asheville and he is now in a sanitarium there. His doctors say that with a five or six months treatment he can be entirely cured, as thousands of others have been, when this dread disease is caught in its insipient stages.

Asheville cannot assume the total expense of five or six hundred dollars, as they have dozens of similar cases coming to them constantly.

When I was in Asheville some time ago I personally investigated this case. I saw the young man at the sanitarium. He greatly impressed me. He is a fine young fellow with his life before him if it can be preserved. His pastor says he is one of the finest Christian characters he has ever come in contact with. I am wondering if the organized Bible classes of the Western North Carolina conference would not count this a splendid opportunity for service. They have the privilege of saving a life and restoring to society a splendid character. I presented this matter to our Sunday school in Lexington on Sunday morning and they quickly guaranteed $50, Cetenary Sunday school in Greensboro sent a check for $20, Ireland's Bible class of West Market Street promised $25, and others have promised to present the matter to their classes. If there are individuals or classes who would like to have a part in this splendid work, won't you please send the amount, whether large or small, to me at Lexington or to Rev. J. S. Williams, P. O. Box 311, Asheville, N. C. I have faith enough in the organized classes of our conference to believe they will take care of this case. Geo. L. Hackney, Pres. W. B. C. Federation.

NOTES FROM WELDON DISTRICT

Rev. S. E. Mercer, presiding elder of Weldon district, got in some fine work on the third round, especially on the eastern side of the district. At Concord church, Garysburg charge, he had Rev. L. D. Hayman with him, who preached a splendid sermon on the way to organize and direct the activities of the church. The quarterly conference recommended E. Spurgeon Rose, a member of the senior class the ensuing year at Trinity College, for license to preach.

The beautiful brick church at Seaboard is nearing completion. Rev. William Towe, the pastor, who is rounding up his fourth year on the Garysburg charge, has painted and improved the parsonage, and has painted or built Sunday school rooms at each church on his charge. He and his fine people have wrought well together.

At Roxobel, of the Rich Square charge, where Bro. H. M. Eure is the deservedly popular pastor and is now in his fourth year, Rev. B. P. Robinson of the Northampton charge was present and preached a very spiritual helpful sermon. Brother Eure is finishing up a most successful quadrennium on that charge. The people are unanimous in their desire that he be returned to them for the fifth year.

At the quarterly conferences on the Murfreesboro and Winton charge, Aulander charge, Ahoskie charge and the Windsor charge, Revs. E. L. Hillman, L. C. Larkin and Wm. Towe were all with the presiding elder. These brethren delighted the fine audience at every place with their excellent singing and addresses. On the Murfreesboro and Winton charge, Brother and Sister Larkin have warmed their way into the hearts of the people.

These appointments have been especially mentioned because of the all-day programs which were put on at these places. At every place the folks were so delighted with the splendid addresses and excellent singing of the visiting pastors and lay speakers that they made urgent request that they have the same sort of program next year. Some of the stewards said that of the thirty-five years they had been attending quarterly conference they had never gotten so much out of one.

Every interest of the church was presented at these meetings. On the Weldon district there is a fine spirit of co-operation among the preachers,

BOILS Old Sores, Cuts and Burns have been healed since 1820 with

Gray's Ointment

Sold by all druggists. Write for sample to W. F. Gray & Co., 710 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

School Desks,
Opera Chairs,
Folding Chairs
Kindergarten Chairs
Church Pews,
School Supplies,
Blackboards.

Southern Desk Co., Hickory, N. C.

How Many Pounds Would You Like to Lose in a Week?

If you are fat and want to lose weight, I will send you a sample of the famous Rid-O-Fat treatment absolutely Free. Do not send any money—just your name and address to Whinton Laboratories, 9377 Coca Cola Bldg., Kansas City, Mo.

F. PERRY WALTERS

Life, Accident and Health Insurance

A policy for every member of the family. Office, 306 Southern Life & Trust Bldg. Phone 2776.

Will be glad to call and explain any policy you may desire.

NORFOLK, VA. SPECIAL SEASHORE EXCURSION AUGUST 9, 1923

Via Southern Railway System
$5.00 Round Trip

Three whole days in Norfolk, Grand opportunity to spend a few days vacation or week-end at Ocean View, Virginia Beach, Cape Henry, Willoughby Beach. Fine surf bathing, boat excursions, fishing, sea breezes, etc.

Schedule. Round Trip Fare.
Lv. Winston-Salem 7:00 p.m. .... $5.00
Lv. Kernersville 7:20 p.m. .... 5.00
Lv. Guilford College 7:40 p.m. ... 5.00
Lv. Greensboro 8:15 p.m. .... 5.00
Lv. Browns Summit 8:40 p.m. .... 5.00
Lv. Reidsville 9:10 p.m. .... 5.00

Through Pullman sleeping cars and coaches.

Tickets good only on special trains in both directions. Returning special trains leave Norfolk 7:00 p.m. Aug. 12th (Sunday). Tickets not good for stop-overs and no baggage checked. Make your Pullman reservations, for both directions, NOW.

Low round trip fares from other North Carolina point-

For further information apply ticket agents.

L. A. PEACOCK, C. T. A.,
112 East Market St., Greensboro, N. C.

Not a Laxative

Nujol is a lubricant—not a medicine or laxative—so cannot gripe.

When you are constipated, not enough of Nature's lubricating liquid is produced in the bowel to keep the food waste soft and moving. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it acts like this natural lubricant and thus secures regular bowel movements by Nature's own method—lubrication. Try it today.

Nujol

REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.
A LUBRICANT—NOT A LAXATIVE

and it has been said that no district has a finer class of laymen than the Weldon district. Some of these brethren are willing to leave their own charges and go at their own expense to points where they can be of assistance.

At Murfreesboro the people have just completed a beautiful eight-room parsonage and moved the pastor and his wife into it. The work is flourishing at that point in every way.

The Aulander charge, which was created at the last conference, has also completed a nice brick bungalow parsonage and moved the pastor's family into it. Rev. M. F. Hodges is the hard working and faithful leader of this new charge.

The Ahoskie charge, under the splendid leadership of Rev. S. T. Barber, is in the midst of a most progressive year. On the Windsor charge Rev. B. F. Boone is closing his fourth year. He has served a most excellent people and has given to them a fine service. The charge that secures him and his good wife at the coming conference will be fortunate.

On the Williamston and Hamilton charge, where Rev. M. R. Chambers is pastor, the quarterly conference was held at Hamilton. Brother Chambers had received up to that time about forty or fifty on profession of faith. At this point Brothers Larkin and Hillman were present and rendered valuable service. The next conference was held at Palmyra on the Scotland Neck charge. Under the capable and enthusiastic leadership of E. L. Hillman, this charge is making splendid progress.

At most of these places the local charge had a program which was mixed in with the songs and addresses of the visiting pastors. On the Battleboro and Whitakers charge the quarterly conference was held at McTyeire's church. Bro. W. T. Shaw of Weldon and Moses Gilliam of Windsor delivered splendid addresses. This charge raised the salary from fifteen hundred last year to twenty-five hundred the present year. Rev. J. C. Humble is putting his constructive genius into a program of development on this charge. They have already plans for building Sunday school rooms at Whitakers.

The entire Weldon district is in deep sympathy with Rev. B. P. Robinson and family in the great sorrow that has come to them in the tragic ending of the life of their only son, a young man of twenty-one or two years of age. Brother Robinson's son with a friend of his were on their way from Jackson to Weldon Sunday evening. They stopped to offer assistance to an old colored man who had trouble with his car. They were driving a light car. When they had gone about twenty yards from where they had stopped to render assistance, a negro man driving a big car at a high rate of speed, ran into their car, throwing it down a high embankment. Young Robinson's head struck a stump which broke his skull. He lived a few hours but never regained consciousness. The other young man also died from the effects of the injuries. After funeral services were held at Jackson the remains were taken to Raeford, N. C., for burial. At the grave the funeral services were conducted by Rev. S. E. Mercer, presiding elder of the Weldon district and Rev. R. H. Willis of the Fayetteville district. Brother Robinson was pastor of the Raeford charge before he was appointed to Jackson. He was loved and held in high esteem by the people of Raeford and that entire section of country. A large delegation from Raeford and vicinity met the family at Fayetteville and accompanied them back to the cemetery. The floral offerings were indeed beautiful. There was nothing left undone that sympathy and love could render to this former pastor.

THREE FULL DAYS IN GATES

Friday, August 10, was the first of the three days of a constructive program for Gates county. The Gates County Missionary Institute, an organization perfected in 1908, convened in the Methodist church at Gatesville. It was here that the first children's missionary society in the Southern Methodist church was organized. Mrs. Thomas H. Campbell, wife of the pastor of the church, on January 1, 1879, organized the children into the Rosebud Society. Out of this small beginning has grown the Bright Jewels of today, which includes in its membership thousands of boys and girls throughout the Southern Methodist church. This is a bit of history worth our remembering. As Bro. M. T. Plyler says in the opening statement of his "Life of Leroy Lee Smith," "The Albemarle country, considered in any aspect, is full of historic interest."

On Saturday men and women gathered from nearly every section of the county to take part in the program of the day. The work of the Sunday school, financial plans and stewardship were discussed by the pastors, laymen and the presiding elder. After a barbecue dinner served by the good people of Gatesville the quarterly conference for the two charges in the county were held.

On Sunday inspirational services were held in practically every one of the ten churches in the county. The pastors, Rev. J. O. Long of the North Gates charge and Rev. E. R. Clegg of the Gates charge were assisted by Rev. Costen J. Harrell, pastor of the First Methodist church at Atlanta, Ga., Mr. L. L. Gobel, our conference superintendent of Sunday school work, Miss Georgia Keene, conference elementary superintendent, and the presiding elder. C. B. Culbreth.

Stops the Waste in Piano Buying

That is what the Advocate Piano Club does, and what hundreds of letters from Club members prove it does. Better Pianos and Player-pianos for less money—that is the motto and that is the experience of everyone who has placed his order through the Club.

If you would like to see the most enthusiastic bunch of letters you ever read write for booklet containing indorsements from Club Members. They tell of the surpassing beauty and superior quality of the instruments, of the big saving in price, of the splendid plans for easy payments, of the wise provision for the protection of the family in the event of the death of the purchaser, of the exchange privilege and of the absolute guarantee of satisfaction. These letters are written by people like yourself. We wish you to see the Club's proposition, for we know that you will be delighted with it.

Every feature is positively guaranteed by one of the oldest, largest and most reliable piano houses in America. Write today for your copy of the Club's catalogue. Address the Managers, Ludden & Bates, Advocate Piano Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga.

THE BURDEN BEARER

I lift the ever-present burden of widowhood orphanage, disability, sickness and advanced age of the itinerancy and of the laity of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, by providing "a home of their own," or its equivalent, to comfort and support them during all the years of life thereafter.

"Safety first" is my guiding star in all business matters and "brother love" in all manner of service. My premium rates are adequate to give insurance at cost (30 per cent lower than commercial companies require.) Expense of management is reduced to the minimum, being the lowest amount

PAINFUL NEURITIS

If you have it, write to

THE BIGGS SANITARIUM, ASHEVILLE, N. C.

and they will send you interesting and instructive printed matter regarding the latest methods for alleviation and cure of this distressing ailment.

LIKE AN OLD VIOLIN

The Stieff instrument has that soft, mellow tone that lovers of music demand.

For three generations this piano has delighted its users.

Chas. M. Stieff, Inc.,
Charlotte, N. C.

Please send catalogue and prices of Pianos.

Name .....

Address .....

CHAS. M. STIEFF, Inc.,
CHARLOTTE, N. C.

The smallest Grand Piano made that embodies all the essential qualities of the concert grand.

DAVENPORT COLLEGE

FOR YOUNG WOMEN

LENOIR, N. C.

A three-year Junior College with a record of sixty-eight years of exceptional Academic work.

Well equipped, Conservative, but thoroughly abreast of the times.

Fin Type of Student Life. A Safe Place for Young Women to study under close but sympathetic discipline.

Moderate Expenses. The lowest cost commensurate with a High Type of Modern Instruction.

A Registered Nurse constantly in attendance. A most healthful location, in the foothills of the Blue Ridge.

Courses in the Regular Academic Department and Art, Music, Expression, Domestic Science, Domestic Art and Secretarial Courses.

A four-year preparatory course on same campus and correlated with the college.

For Catalogue and Views,

Address PRESIDENT C. L. HORNADAY, LENOIR, N. C.

1802

1923

LOUISBURG COLLEGE

A Junior College for Young Women
With a Standard Preparatory Course of Four Years
Property of North Carolina Conference

Faculty of specially trained, consecrated Christian teachers.

Health Record Unsurpassed. Home-like Atmosphere. Social Life Carefully Guarded. Athletics.

In addition to the regular college courses, Classical and General, attention is called to the departments of Art, Business, Education, Expression, Home Economics, Music (Piano, Voice, Violin, Theory, etc.), and Religious Education.

Rates as low as consistent with good service. Send for free Catalogue and Book of Views. For further information write permissible while insuring efficiency. Personal profit, investment methods, and employed paid agents are not allowed. This is saved for the Certificate holders.

A. W. MOHN, PRESIDENT, LOUISBURG, N. C.

Benefit certificates are issued for insurance protection in amounts of $3,000 or less per application on following attractive plans: Whole life; twenty-premium life; endowment at age sixty and seventy; term to age fifty, sixty, and seventy; annuity, and combination of plans.

The itinerant preacher of the past has had no chance. Shall they of the future fare no better?

By their own institution, ingenuity, thrift, and divine Providence they are solving their financial problems. The sting of superannuation is removed.

For information and application blanks write to the Methodist Benevolent Association, Dept. 8, 810 Broadway, Nashville, Tenn.

OUR METHODIST BROTHERHOOD

Provides for the Widow and Orphans and disabled and aged member "a home of their own or the equivalent" and continuous support through adequate insurance and annuity protection at cost.

WRITES LIFE, ENDOWMENT, TERM, AND DISABILITY-ANNUITY POLICIES. IN REACH OF ALL

Insurance is a guarantee against the snares and quicksands of a day.

Wives may object to insurance, but widows and orphans never.

Your income may stop, but human needs go on. If you should die tonight, what of the morning after if not insured?

All Southern Methodist men and women from ages 20 to 60 may secure safe life insurance at cost—30% cheaper than can be secured elsewhere.

ALL BENEFIT CLAIMS PAID WITHOUT DELAY

Write for Plans, Rates, and Forms to the Methodist Benevolent Association
J. H. Shumaker, Sec., 810 Broadway, Nashville, Tenn.

WOMAN'S PAGE

N. C. CONFERENCE

Mrs. J. LeGrand Everett.....Editor
Rockingham, N. C.

W. N. C. CONFERENCE

Mrs. H. K. Boyer.....Editor
Mt. Airy, N. C.

Western North Carolina Conference

WHAT IS SOCIAL SERVICE?

Address delivered by Miss Mary Ann Abel, Spray, N. C., at the Bethlehem church group missionary conference on July 14th:

"Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me more than these?" "Yea, Lord, thou knowest that I love thee." "Feed my lambs." Who are His lambs? The soldiers of China? Yes. The mountaineers of North Carolina? Yes. The women of India? Yes. The negroes of Rockingham county? Yes. The lonely sailors of Labrador? Yes. The underprivileged men and women of the south? Yes.

Did He say, "Peter, go only to the big cities?" No. To the seashore? No. To the wilderness only? No. To the civilized countries only? No. He said, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every living creature." There was no limit in the mind of the Master and no excuse was to be accepted for failure to comply with the command. Notice it is not a plea but a high command.

So that is what we call being a missionary or the missionary spirit. Today, at least in local fields, we call it social service. Broadly speaking it is service to our nation, our state, our county, and our town for all classes, creeds, colors and conditions of men and women. We are not released from further work when we have passed the borders of this our own county, but we are commanded to throw the line further and further until we shall have reached the uttermost parts of the earth and until all the dark spots have become brightened.

Those who explain the Scriptures to us tell us all this mighty work should go forward simultaneously, but I doubt if that has been the case. A few days ago I heard a man of international reputation in an address in Washington make the very startling statement that in fifteen or twenty years the Christian forces might safely be withdrawn from China! I thought that was the most tremendously important statement I had heard in years. Think of the import of that—a few years ago we looked upon China as the Dark Continent and now we are advised that Christianity has made such giant strides that the entire nation will soon be called a Christian nation. A late newspaper dispatch says 30,000 troops of the Chinese army embraced Christianity at the same time. Do you know of any such like record in America? Do you honestly in your heart believe we have made such gains, comparing our opportunities to the Chinese, here in our own country? Can you point to a single movement as mighty and significant as that which has taken place here in America? With the opening statement of this speech in mind I want to ask you if you think His command has been regarded as closely here in America as in some of the far countries of the east?

A few days ago 10,000 strange people speaking a foreign tongue landed in America to take up their abode among us. Will they get to feel the real heart and pulse of America or will they form a colony of souls strangers to our thoughts and ideals? We are neglecting sadly here in work with the newly-arrived immigrant a priceless opportunity for making him a real American citizen instead of a transplanted Bolsheviki. It is largely, to express it in street corner slang, "up to us" and should be a distinct challenge to the home mission boards of all the churches of America.

That landing of the immigrant on our shores to get or lose for himself American ideals goes a long way toward counter-balancing the 30,000 Chinese who accepted Christianity. We are busy in China, but unmindful of the menace standing right at the very gate of America. Let us look closer home for opportunities improved or neglected. The other day in my mail came an inquiry from a national organization concerning the welfare of the negroes of Rockingham county. This organization is collecting information relative to what is being done in social service lines with and for the negroes of our county. After that letter I set myself to the task of finding what had or had not been done along this line here in the county of my adoption. I found no welfare work of any kind being done among the negroes of Rockingham county. There is no organized welfare work to give advice, help in matters of health and hygiene, nor to interest itself in interracial matters. I found the act which intimates the state department of welfare may work for the negroes as well as for the white people, but nothing has been done in this direction. Some counties have placed paid negro helpers in the field to help educate their people along matters of health, sanitation and morals. The thought may not please you, may even be repugnant to you, but it is the thought of many leaders in social service work that this type of home service has been too long neglected. As a matter of self-education and protection from every standpoint we should inform ourselves concerning what our negro citizens are preaching from their pulpits, teaching from their desks and living in their lives. Neglected altogether and we may as Christian people live to regret the day when we lost our opportunities in this direction.

I point out these two instances of need for service only to draw attention to the weak points in our home service and to abuse the idea that we are doing all we can here at home. I am an ardent and tireless student of both the home and foreign work and see it from the perspective of ten years spent in college and on the field in active social service. The missionary spirit both as applied to home and foreign work is growing rapidly and I do not need to tell this audience this afternoon how badly it is needed. Because I love the south so deeply and am so concerned for its future I could spend the entire time this afternoon telling you of some of the things we have neglected right here in our own home. The subject of illiteracy is one of very great interest to us all. I have not the figures with me, but we all know there are thousands of our own native white citizens who do not know how to read and write. A friend of mine is an official of the government working with mothers and young children in the south. You women and mothers would weep to know of the hardships some of these women in the mountains pass through in the bearing and rearing of children. These women are not foreigners. Not one drop of foreign blood flows in their veins. They are descendants of the same type of ancestors as you and I. Here we stand idle while these our own blood countrywomen pass through and suffer unnecessary hardships and pain because of ignorance and our neglect. I leave it to you to judge for yourselves whether or not we owe them the same duty and help we owe to the Chinese soldier with his modern machine gun and newly learned tactics of war. Thoughts of the mountain women are very close to my heart and I hope you will pardon me for taking so much of my time in their behalf.

Social service, the word and the thought, is as deep as God's love, as broad as the earth and as limitless in its scope as heaven itself. I can only urge you to keep your eyes open and trained for opportunities of service. To me there is hardly any term meaning more in the English language. It covers the act of taking a cup of cold water to a thirsty soul and shut-ins. It means building hospitals for the sick, asylums for the insane and institutions for the feeble-minded. It means emphasizing the pleasant and beautiful things in life and hiding the ugly. It covers the subject of the broader phases of education. It deals with the body and the mind as well as the soul—that is social service. It is not confined to any one country, one color nor one creed. It is as broad and as deep as the principles of Christianity and if those principles and teachings are narrow it is our own fault. It is concerned with the study of the Holy Scriptures, and is equally concerned with conditions which breed disease in our communities. It studies towns and the people thereof not only from the standpoint of the moral but the physical beauty as well. Social service is any type of service which can raise the standard of our own lives, our towns, our county, our states and our country.

All the preceding thought and definitions our Lord had in mind when on that memorable evening seated among the men he loved he turned to one whom he loved most and gave this simple yet all-embracing command: "Feed my lambs."

TO KOREA

Friends of Rev. and Mrs. W. S. Cherry of Mineral Springs, N. C., will be interested to learn that their daughter, Miss Mabel, will sail for Korea August 13. Honoring her, the Prospect circuit will hold a farewell service at Prospect August 9th at 11 o'clock. We regret that Mr. Boyer nor I will be able to accept Miss Mabel's invitation to be present and have a place on the program, but our warm interest will be with her in her chosen work, and also with our long-time friends, her father and mother, in the ordeal of their separation.

We are asked to say that the address of Mrs. J. C. Postelle is Henrietta instead of Caroleen. Those addressing mail to Mrs. Postelle will please make note of this.

North Carolina Conference

KNOWING GOD THROUGH LOVE

Love is to rule in all our relations to our fellows. It is the only bond for the social order. No element in society can despise any other element. The head cannot do without the foot, nor can the eye disdain the ear. Mutual esteem and mutual respect must govern; love must reign, especially to the weak. Is the question with regard to eating meat? While pride in one's own strength and self-sufficiency may dictate one answer, the response of love is entirely different. "I will eat no meat while the world stands, lest I make my brother to offend!" Self-interest may emphasize one's rights, but love will frequently forego rights in order that other men may be blessed.—Thomas W. Carter.

Let all that ye do be done in love (1 Cor. 16:14).—Lambuth-Bennett Book of Remembrance.

NOTICE

Mrs. N. H. D. Wilson of Elizabeth City, will receive her mail more quickly if sent to her at Chapel Hill, after the middle of August, for the following six weeks.

BULLETIN SPECIAL

A situation which seriously threatens the welfare, not only of the negro race in the South but also the future of Christianity and our cherished civilization, has developed in connection with a federal hospital recently established in Tuskegee, Ala., for disabled negro war veterans. Tuskegee Institute, an institution of world-wide fame founded and controlled by negroes since its very beginning, has in Tuskegee an investment of about ten million dollars. This institution gave four acres of land adjoining the institute for the establishment of the Veterans' Hospital.

The controversy which now exists concerns the staffing of the hospital, the question being shall the staff be all white, all negro, or mixed white and negro. An effort to secure a white staff by demonstrations seems to have as an aim the intimidation of the negroes of Tuskegee Institute in order to influence the government to concede to their demands.

On July 3 a group of masked men paraded the highway leading around the institute. The Christian leadership of our church has been strong in the denunciation of this demonstration of implied force against Tuskegee Institute, an institution which has always worked for peace and good will between the two races living side by side in the South. They feel that the present strife is striking at the very root of Christianity, and that it is jeopardizing the message of our missionaries in every foreign land where we seek to proclaim the gospel of Jesus Christ. In view of the gravity of the situation, the different agencies of the church have spoken in protest as follows:

General Conference Commission on Social Service.

(Paper adopted by the Commission on Temperance and Social Service of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in session at Lake Junaluska July 1-7, 1923.)

Inasmuch as there has come to us, through newspaper reports and private sources of undoubted reliability, information that the interests of that great institution for our colored people at Tuskegee, Ala., are seriously menaced by threats of organized interference—

Resolved, That this commission put on record our appreciation of the incalculable value of that institution for the training of our colored fellow citizens and declare our unalterable conviction that any invasion, or threatened invasion, of its rights, or interference with the orderly pursuits of its lawful and benevolent labors, would be a calamity to the institution and a lasting disgrace to our Southern civilization and people.

Bishop James Cannon, Jr., Chm.
Dr. J. H. Light, Secretary.
July 14, 1923.

Commission on Race Relations.

The Race Commission of the Woman's Missionary Council of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, has released the following statement concerning the recent threatened mob violence against Tuskegee Institute, Tuskegee, Ala.

For many years Tuskegee Institute, a negro institution in the heart of the South with an entire negro administration, has stood for the best development of the negro within his own race. Its marvelous achievements have attracted the attention and won the appreciation, not only of our own nation, but of other nations and peoples around the world. Its unique educational achievements have been acknowledged in educational conferences throughout the world. It has been cited as an outstanding demonstration that the negro has an opportunity for achievement within the South.

Therefore we register our strong moral protest against any act of intimidation or terrorism affecting this institution, realizing that such methods are condemned by all Christian powers as foes to civilization and orderly government.

Mrs. A. B. Smith, Tenn.
Miss Estelle Haskin, Tenn.
Mrs. L. P. Smith, Texas.
Mrs. W. A. Newell, N. C.

(Continued on page fifteen)

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORK

N. C. CONFERENCE

L. L. Gobbel .....Editor
Durham, N. C.

W. N. C. CONFERENCE

O. V. Woosley .....Editor
Lexington, N. C.

Western North Carolina Conference

LET'S DO IT

It will be remembered that in a meeting of the district Sunday school superintendents and presiding elders held in Salisbury during the early part of this conference year it was decided that diligent effort would be used in increasing the Sunday school enrollment in the Western North Carolina conference during this year to the extent of 17,000. The following district quotas were agreed upon: Asheville district 2,000, Charlotte district 2,000, Greensboro district 2,000, Marion district 1,000, Mount Airy district 1,000, North Wilkesboro district 500, Salisbury district 1,500, Shelby district 1,500, Statesville district 2,000, Waynesville district 1,500, Winston-Salem district 2,000. Just to show how little this increase will be apportioned to various charges the following tabulations have been made. The first figures opposite the name of the charge stand for last year's Sunday school enrollment. The last figures stand for the additional enrollment desired. It ought to be an easy task to enlist these desired recruits. Let's do it.

Asheville District.

Elk Mountain	172	40
Spring Creek	460	90
Saluda-Tryon	234	40
Marshall	165	40
Swannanoa	274	60
Bethel, Asheville	402	80
Fairview	298	60
Weaverville Station	399	80
Brevard	510	100
East Biltmore	230	40
Hendersonville Ct.	412	80
Hot Springs	235	40
Rosman	237	40
Leicester	285	60
Sandy Mush	246	40
Hominy	638	120
Mars Hill	185	40
West Asheville	559	120
Hendersonville	446	80
Biltmore	166	40
Chestnut Street	437	80
Black Mountain	199	40
Weaverville Ct.	359	80
Central, Asheville	1328	270
Mount Pleasant	163	40
Flat Rock-Fletcher	285	60
Mills River	278	60
Asheville Ct.	200	40
Haywood St.	323	60

Charlotte District.

Duncan Memorial	301	40
Chadwick	485	60
Wadesboro	740	100
Spencer Memorial	446	60
Ansonville	487	60
Brevard St.	374	60
Hawthorne Lane	117	16
Monroe, Central	984	140
Seversville	377	60
N. Monroe-Icemorlee	322	40
Charlotte, Belmont	576	80
Thrift-Moores	315	40
Polkton	582	80
Morven	861	120
Matthews	417	60
Trinity, Charlotte	701	100
Pineville	410	60
Tryon St.	944	140
Unionville	341	40
Marshville	430	60
Weddington	336	40
Hickory Grove	354	60
Lilesville	305	40
Waxhaw	584	80
Bethel	425	60
Calvary	350	60
Dilworth	334	40
Prospect	540	80

Greensboro District.

Bethel, Greensboro	343	40
Glenwood-Grace	433	80
Gibsonville	373	60
Jamestown-Oakdale	485	80
Walnut St.	516	80
Coleridge	593	100
Carraway Memorial	456	80
East Greensboro	466	80
Randolph Ct.	755	120
Deep River Ct.	504	80
Ramseur-Franklinville	679	100
Main St., High Point	837	140
Randleman	680	100
West Market St.	1500	240
Uwharrie Ct.	750	120
Spring Garden St.	762	120
West Greensboro	413	60
Park Place	400	60
Reidsville	639	120
Pleasant Garden Ct.	785	120
Ruffin	362	60
Centenary	631	100
Asheboro Ct.	384	60
Wesley Memorial	877	140
Wentworth Ct.	322	60
East High Point	95	16

Marion District.

Spindale-Alexander	311	40
Marion Mills	248	30
Cliffside-Avondale	349	40
Morganton St.	825	90
Marion St.	513	60
Henrietta-Caroleen	388	40
McDowell Ct.	595	70
Connelly Springs	701	80
Gilkey	395	40
Spruce Pine	277	30
Mill Spring	364	40
Micaville	284	30
Old Fort	420	50
Glen Alpine	210	30
Broad River	293	30
Rutherfordton	260	30
Burnsville	132	20
Morganton Ct.	569	60
Table Rock	425	50
Bald Creek	325	40
Bostic Ct.	380	40
Forest City-Pleasant Grove	322	40
Marion Ct.	166	20

Mount Airy District.

Rockford St.	471	60
Sandy Ridge	230	30
Danbury	212	20
Mayodan	314	40
Walnut Cove	841	100
Dobson	568	70
Elkin	375	40
Jonesville	176	20
Summerfield	650	80
Draper	431	50
Rural Hall	830	100
Ararat	434	50
Leaksville	199	20
Pilot Mountain	445	50
Stokesdale	50	6
Spray	245	30
Mt. Airy, Central	503	60
Madison-Stoneville	266	30
Yadkinville	421	50
Mount Airy Ct.	510	60

North Wilkesboro District.

Boone	320	45
North Wilkes Ct.	296	40
Wilkesboro	281	40
Avery Ct.	320	45
Creston	226	30
Elk Park	82	40
N. Wilkesboro	354	50
Warrenville	231	30
Elkland	133	20
Sparta	326	45
Jefferson	410	55
Watauga	265	35
Wilkes Ct.	80	10
Laurel Springs	50	5

Salisbury District.

Westford	358	45
China Grove	391	45
Harmony	224	30
Badin	175	15
Epworth	544	75
Norwood Station	575	75
New London	377	45
Park Ave.	627	75
First St.	410	45
East Spencer	293	30
Kannapolis	1095	135
Kerr St.	183	30
South Main St.	593	75
Norwood Ct.	407	45
Woodleaf	453	60
Salisbury, First Church	832	105
Albemarle, Central	500	60

Concord, Central	316	45
Concord Ct.	466	60
Mt. Pleasant	605	75
Albemarle Ct.	285	30
Gold Hill	402	45
Spencer, Central	470	60
Salem	411	45
Salisbury Ct.	373	45
Forest Hill	429	60

(Continued on page fifteen)

North Carolina Conference

GREAT DISTRICT SCHOOL

The Rockingham District Standard Training School, holding its second annual session at Carolina College, Maxton, last week, surpassed the one last year in many respects, and, as many will recall, the one last year made a most creditable beginning. This year forty-five Sunday schools were represented and at this writing (three days before the close of the school) indications are that 75 or more pupils will earn certificates of credit, an increase of about 75 per cent over last year.

Six courses were offered. Class work and a public address by Rev. W. W. Peele, of Raleigh, came each morning. The afternoons were given over to rest, study and recreation. The evenings were filled with a variety of programs. Monday evening the good people of Maxton tendered us a delightful reception. Tuesday evening was given over to a consideration of the Epworth League, Revs. W. C. Martin, W. W. Peele and J. H. Shore speaking and members of the Hamlet League presenting a pageant.

Prof. Ernest J. Green, district Sunday school secretary, had charge of the Wednesday program, which set forth plans for Sunday school development in the district. Your conference superintendent of Sunday school work explained the official programs of work and how they are related to our plans for Sunday school improvement. Rev. J. H. Sboore, Mrs. E. B. Ward, district elementary superintendent, and Professor Green also spoke in behalf of the work in the district.

Thursday night was stunt night—four groups, faculty, pastors, young people and adults putting on stunts. Thursday afternoon Mrs. Ward and the other elementary workers held an elementary institute. Friday morning the training school held a memorial service for the late President Harding, and Friday night came commencement.

The school closed Saturday morning. A fine, full week it was, and plans are already on foot for an even finer, if not fuller, week next year.

THE FACULTY AND COURSES

Following are the members of the Rockingham District Standard Training School faculty and the courses given:

"Sunday School Organization and Administration," Rev. W. W. Peele.
"Principles of Religious Teaching," Prof. R. N. Wilson.
"Program of the Christian Religion," Prof. James Cannon.
"Beginner Organization and Administration," Mrs. C. B. Culbreth.
"Primary Lesson Materials," Miss Keene.
"Junior Organization and Administration," Miss Virginia Jenkins.

ELEMENTARY INSTITUTE

A splendid program was that of the Rockingham district elementary institute held Thursday afternoon. Following is the outline:

Devotional, Rev. J. H. Shore, presiding elder.
"The Spirit of Our Task," Mrs. E. B. Ward, district elementary superintendent.
"Children's Week," Miss Keene, conference elementary superintendent.
"Key Women," Miss Virginia Jenkins, elementary superintendent of the Western North Carolina conference.

"Elementary Programs of Work," Miss Keene.
"District Goals for the Year," Prof. E. J. Green and Mr. L. L. Gobbel.

PITTSBORO CHARGE MEETING

The annual Sunday school institute of the Pittsboro charge was held at Mt. Zion Saturday, August 4. Every one of the six schools of the charge was represented, as was also Hickory Mountain school of the Siler City charge. Rev. J. J. Boone, the pastor, was in charge of the day's program, which consisted mainly of a careful consideration of the official Program of Work, of elementary work, and of Children's Week. Miss Keene and the writer attended and talked, morning and afternoon. One of the visible results of the day was the placing of Program of Work "C" in eight Sunday schools, as follows:

Pittsboro—E. R. Franklin, superintendent.

Pleasant Hill—G. D. Burke, superintendent.

Brown's Chapel—C. H. Lutterloh.

Chatham—Mrs. W. M. Burns.

Mt. Zion—J. Lee Harmon.

Providence—Mrs. W. W. Steadman.

Moncure—J. J. Womble.

Hickory Mountain—O. B. Mann.

Rather unusual interest was shown in the discussions, and under the leadership of the splendid pastor and with the co-operation of the leaders these schools have their faces turned toward higher levels of efficiency.

SHORT STOP AT JONESBORO

Enroute to Maxton for the opening of the training school, Miss Keene, Prof. R. N. Wilson and the writer made it convenient to reach Jonesboro in time to get a look-in at the splendid Jonesboro Sunday school. We found over 200 present and the work being conducted in an orderly fashion. The superintendent gave us an opportunity to speak briefly to the school. At the close of the school Miss Keene met with the elementary workers and discussed with them Children's Week. We enjoyed our visit to Jonesboro and are looking forward to spending a week there October 14-19, the date of the West Fayetteville Standard Training School.

NEW ROOMS AT RAEFORD

Having outgrown its building, the Raeford Sunday school has proceeded to build four or five additional class rooms. These rooms are being constructed in the rear of the building and will provide extra space for this constantly growing school. Supt. L. E. Reaves and Pastor J. H. Frizelle are bringing things to pass in the Raeford school.

TEMPERANCE HALL INSTITUTE

A Sunday school institute, with a special program lasting through the day, was held at Temperance Hall, North Rocky Mount circuit, the fifth Sunday in July. The day was fine, the attendance overflowed the church, the addresses were excellent, the musical program was enjoyable, and the dinner, well—. Among those taking part in the program were Mr. R. L. May, Mr. R. B. Peters, Rev. J. H. Miller, and the pastor, Rev. N. B. Strickland.

MT. GILEAD'S GOOD RECORD

Within the past twelve months workers in Mt. Gilead Sunday school have earned 16 certificates of credit on the standard training course, and Rev. J. A. Martin, the pastor, says this is just a forecast of what his workers expect to do as to their preparation. The total number of certificates held by these workers before the first district training school in August, 1922, was six. Now it is 22, not including several to be earned at the district school about to come to a close. And the pastor is leading the way. He has earned his diploma since the first school.

EPWORTH LEAGUE WORK

Lee Davis, Raleigh, N. C.
Rev. J. F. Armstrong, Concord, N. C.

North Carolina Conference

WASHINGTON DISTRICT LEAGUE INSTITUTE.

Possibly while you are reading this notice something is going on down in Greenville, N. C. What is it? Well, take a look at the program of the institute and see if you don't think something is happening, too. Here it is:

Tuesday, Aug. 14—Evening.

8:00—Devotional service.

8:15—Address: My Business as an Epworth Leaguer, Rev. Thomas M. Grant.

8:15—A Practical Program of Recreation and Culture, Greenville Chapter.

Wednesday, Aug. 15—Morning.

9:00—Devotional service.

9:15—Organization, enrollment, appointment of committees.

9:35—Chapter finances, Mr. Gehrman Cobb.

9:55—A Model Council Meeting, Stantonsburg Chapter.

10:15—A Program of Social Service for Local Chapters, Mr. Samuel E. Leonard.

10:35—The Department of Worship—What It Includes, Rev. Daniel Lane.

10:50—Junior Work, Miss Hazel Thompson.

11:05—Intermediate work.

11:20—Intermission.

11:30—Address: My Place in the Epworth League.

Afternoon.

2:00—Business.

2:20—A Live Business Meeting, Rocky Mount Chapter.

2:40—The Epworth League and the Centenary, Rev. Solon A. Cotton.

3:00—Address: Efficiency, Rev. F. Swindell Love.

Evening.

8:00—Report of Committee on District Policy.

8:15—Consecration Service, Rev. J. Marvin Ormond.

How does that look to you? It looks to me like Washington "deestric" is on the job. In the first place, they are having their institute early in the year so that the leaguers may profit by using their learning at the institute throughout the balance of the year. The district secretary as well as the leaguers are to be commended for being up and doing early. They are setting a pace for the other districts and I hope they will follow suit in the near future.

Then, secondly, the district is fortunate in securing such a splendid group of speakers. I don't know of a better group of whole-hearted leaguers who could conduct the exercises of the institute. The leaguers attending cannot afford to miss a single period during the entire session. Now again, look at the program. Notice the practical and business-like method of presenting the different subjects. The topics are to the point and the period is short. This is the attractive and effective way of reaching the young people. Notice also several of the topics are in the form of a demonstration. This is another effective way of appeal to young folks—through the eye rather than altogether through the ear.

Now for a more personal view of the personnel. First, there's our own new conference president, Rev. Thos. M. Grant, the first on the program to start things off right. We need not mention any of his qualities, because we know it was his ability and interest in young folks and leagues which caused him to be elected to lead the leaguers through the year.

Look again. Well, we all know Gehrman Cobb knows all about handling the money, and if you find one more interested than Gehrman, you're going some. Then Rev. Daniel Lane, another old "efficient Epworthian," who needs no introduction to leaguers. Now here's the girl who led the district last year that won the "loving cup." That's Miss Hazel Thompson, Durham district secretary. Well, if her district won the cup, she ought to know how, and I'll say she does. Then there's Rev. Solon A. Cotton. He's a veteran leaguer, so we know he has something good for the leaguers. Next is our "lovely" ex-president, Rev. F. S. Love. He's our "old reliable"—and look at his subject on the program—nobody ought to miss that. Then they had to go to Trinity College to find somebody to finish the thing up right; so they have Rev. J. M. Ormond, and if he can't inspire the young folks there's something seriously wrong with the leaguers.

Now we've mentioned everybody except the "power behind the throne." That is Rev. W. Norman Vaughan, the Washington "deestric" secretary. Well, Norman, old man, you're doing some fine work. Congratulations. Our prayers and best wishes are for you and all leaguers who are trying to make "all for Christ."

HOW TO MAKE LEAGUE PROGRAMS INTERESTING

Dear Margaret:

If I may call you thusly—I feel like anybody who was at the Morehead Assembly I can call by name.

Your letter was forwarded to me from Raleigh to Hendersonville. I got it yesterday. Now believe me, young lady, you have certainly given me a job when you ask how to make your programs more interesting. I'll try anyway.

In the first place, to have an interesting performance there must be interesting performers. To have interesting performers there must be interesting subjects on which to talk. Now, where shall you find such subjects? First, out of your head and the heads of the cabinet and members, then out of the Era as you suggest, but you need not give the programs exactly as they are in the Era. Use that as a suggestion; leave out part of it and add part of your own ideas. Do not let the clippings from the Era be read. That's too dry. Use the subject of the clippings, read what it has to say, add more in your own language and tell about it giving simple illustrations and incidents when possible.

Have you ever tried a musical program? I mean by that not only vocal and instrumental selections, but also talks on different songs and hymns, the subject matter of the songs, the circumstances under which they were written, interesting incidents in the author's life, the effect the song has on the hearers, the value of songs, and such life. Several songs may be discussed in one meeting or one song by several people giving more in detail the interesting history of a song.

Then how about extempore talks? Have the subjects of several talks written on slips of paper when you come to the meeting. Have the subjects on something of interest to the leaguers and make them definite and to the point. Don't give a general subject like "woman suffrage" about which books may be written. Be specific. Then during the course of the meeting call on different ones to come up and draw a slip with the subject on it and talk from one to three minutes on that subject. Don't let the members say, "I can't." Tell them the Epworth League is the place to learn how, and they can if they will.

Try a debate sometime in your league. Have about two speakers on each side and limit the time of each speaker so as not to make the program too long. Then throw the meeting open for general discussion, but by all means don't let more than one person talk at the time. The chairman must call them down.

Of course the devotional meeting is the most important and must not be overlooked. Have different members to comment briefly on suitable passages of scripture. Have sentence prayers, not too long, just a few short prayers. Try to have new members or those who are not accustomed to take part in prayers give a sentence of prayer. Get them started to praying in public. That's an important part of league work. Always have as many as possible take part in the program. If you work a member he'll become interested, so keep them busy. Appoint committees and give everybody something to do. Have you a handshaking committee? Appoint one and see that they are on the job shaking hands as they come in and always make it a point to shake hands with strangers. Don't wait for them to speak to you. It's your meeting and your business to welcome them. Have ushers for your league meetings even if the crowd is small. Seat them together. Don't let them scatter all over the house.

Now, Margaret, you asked me about a stunt. Well, that's where you "stunt" me. I don't know what kind of crowd you have and I don't know how long a stunt you want, so I guess I'd better keep my mouth shut.

Well, a book might be written on "How to Make League Programs Interesting," but there's not space on the Advocate page to publish it.

By all means, Margaret, don't get discouraged when the league doesn't go just right. There are "ups and downs" in everything. I'm sure your league will be "up" again next winter if not before. "Don't give up the ship." Keep up your wit and grit and stick to it, and always keep the league motto in the foreground.

Yours in the work,

Lee Davis.

Western North Carolina Conference

A LIVE LEAGUE AT OLIN

Leaguers, I just want to tell all of you about our little Epworth League. Perhaps you've never heard of us or our little village before; but just the same we're on the map, and have our thriving little league enrolled beside yours. This is the first time we have ever had a league here, and we surely have missed something too, for it is one of the finest ways in the world to get country boys and girls interested in the church. We already have 48 members, and always we have lots of visitors.

We had a special called meeting at the Olin Methodist church on Saturday night, July 21st, and perfected our organization. The following are our officers:

President—James Tatum.

Vice President—Hugh Weaver.

Sec.-Treas.—Bertha Boggs.

Cor. Sec.—Mary Holland.

First Supt.—Ruth Holland.

Second Supt.—Mary Lee Tatum.

Third Supt.—Carl Weaver.

Fourth Supt.—Mrs. Nora Stikeleather.

We have named our organization the Rathburn Epworth League in honor of our pastor, who has given us such great support in organizing.

Mary Holland, Cor. Sec.

CONFERENCE CABINET MEETS AT RACE STREET, STATESVILLE

The conference cabinet was called to meet in Race Street church, Statesville, last Wednesday night and continued in session till the afternoon of Thursday.

The entire work of the league in this conference was gone over carefully and many helpful suggestions were made. Nine of the eleven districts were represented. The Tar Heel Leaguer was discussed at length and steps taken to put it on a sound financial basis.

The editor of the League Page was given much encouragement by the many promises to see that in the future he gets news from the local chapters and the field secretary and the several district secretaries. All in all it was a most profitable meeting. The Foxes and their good people played the role of host in fine fashion.

THE CONFERENCE SPEAKS OUT ON CITY AND DISTRICT UNIONS

We, the city union committee, recommend the following:

1. That where two or more leagues can meet once a quarter a union should be organized.

2. That union cabinet meetings be held monthly.

3. That unions emphasize chapter efficiency.

4. That all unions carefully guard against losing the conference spirit, and making the development of the union their sole interest.

5. That each union hold at least one efficiency institute during the year.

6. That all unions provide in their budget for the expense of sending their president to the next general presidents' meeting to be held at Meridian, Miss., January, 1924, or to a regional conference for union presidents which will be held in a nearby state. Respectfully submitted,

R. G. Dawson.

Mrs. P. E. Torrence,

J. S. Cease.

WHAT COMMITTEE SAID ABOUT BOOKS AND PERIODICALS

We, your committee on literature, recommend:

1. That every chapter establish a league library with reference books suitable for each department, especially recommending Efficient Epworthian by Dan B. Brummitt, and Phonology by E. O. Harbin.

2. That every Epworth League take the Epworth Era and read it more at home than at league meetings. That every leaguer become well acquainted with the handbook. That every leaguer support the Tar Heel Leaguer.

3. That the superintendent of the third department provide a list of wholesome literature for general reading.

4. That every district have a winter efficiency institute.

5. That every chapter have a study class in missions or in one of the four departments during the year.

6. That a book agent be appointed to sell books at the next conference.

Respectfully submitted,

Sarah E. Green,

Margaret Iseley,

Maribelle Umberger.

OF FIRST IMPORTANCE

We, your committee on the intermediate league, beg to submit the following report:

1. We heartily endorse the suggestion made by the nominating committee that a separate intermediate superintendent be appointed in our conference.

2. We recommend that the intermediate superintendent enroll in the superintendent's training course.

3. We recommend that more emphasis be placed on the organization of college clubs and intermediate league week.

4. We urge that the superintendent report promptly and accurately to the assistant district secretary.

5. We recommend that more intermediate city unions be organized.

Respectfully submitted,

Gertrude Falls,

Carmen Blessing,

Hortense Bridgers.

Best For Baby's Skin

Soothing, healing, antiseptic. Stops pimples, rash, hives, eczema—

TETTERINE

Used by mothers everywhere.
60c at your druggist's or from the
SHUPTRINE CO. :: :: SAVANNAH, GA.

OUR ORPHANAGE WORK

METHODIST ORPHANAGE RALEIGH, N. C.

Hon. R. N. Page ..... President
A. S. Barnes ..... Superintendent
Mrs. Mattie Jenkins ..... Matron
Owned and maintained by the North Carolina Conference.

FORM OF BEQUEST

I do hereby will and bequeath to The Methodist Orphanage, Raleigh, N. C., contemplated by the charter under the Act of the General Assembly of North Carolina ..... (here designate the bequest) .....

THE CHILDREN'S HOME WINSTON-SALEM, N. C.

Rev. C. A. Wood.....Superintendent

THE METHODIST ORPHANAGE

OUR NEEDS

1. Offerings from all the Sunday schools.
2. Support from all organized classes.
3. Gifts from any individuals.
4. Seven passenger automobile.
5. Swimming pool.
6. Friends to remember Orphanage in their wills.

* * * *

More Sunday schools and classes are falling behind with their offerings and pledges than usual. Our bank deposit is just about exhausted. Unless our friends come to our relief, I shall be forced to borrow money with which to pay this month's bills. I know that money is scarce at this time of the year. It will be necessary for all to put forth their utmost effort in order to relieve our financial embarrassment. Let this be a labor of love and not a burden. I am going to urge all to respond to this appeal so that we may not be handicapped in our Christ-like work.

* * * *

Thanksgiving in the past has proved a very fruitful season to the Methodist Orphanage. We all look forward this year for still larger results from the Thanksgiving offering. Every pastor and Sunday school superintendent should begin to make plans to raise the largest contribution that has ever been secured from their church and Sunday school. We are going to need a larger sum of money to put over our building program in addition to the large sum we receive at this time for current expenses. By uniting at Thanksgiving season we can raise ample funds both for maintenance and building purposes. I mention this now so all may have ample time to make due preparation for the important occasion. Our Baptist friends raise one hundred thousand dollars during the Thanksgiving season for the Thomasville Orphanage. Our Methodist friends are as loyal as the Baptists. All together for a great Thanksgiving season!

* * * *

The singing class has been on the go a great deal during the last few weeks. There were sections of the state in which we had never visited and I was anxious to present our class before the churches of these sections. There are many other sections we will visit when we have time. It is pretty generally known that we do not send out a regular class to tour the state. Our children have work to do and can't be away from home but a few days at the time. In the fall and winter they have school and in addition to this they have various duties about the home. It would give me genuine pleasure to take the class to every church in the conference, but that is out of the question. We can only reach a limited number at best. Wherever we have gone among the churches we have received a warm welcome and many expressions of good will and love. As a result of our visits, the churches are going to be more enthusiastic in their support than ever before. We have visited the following churches: Plymouth, Hertford, First church at Elizabeth City, City Roads, Manteo, Wanchese, Garysburg, Weldon, Roanoke Rapids, Rosemary, Seaboard and Macon.

* * * *

Dear Friends:

I want to take this opportunity to express to you my heartfelt thanks for making it possible for me to be brought up in such a beautiful home.

I have spent six years in this home and I want to say they were the happiest years of my life.

I want to express to Mr. Barnes and Miss Mattie my heartfelt thanks for their loving care and the interest they have shown in me. I can only show my real appreciation by a life of usefulness after leaving this home where Christian ideals are the controlling influence.

Thanking you again for making it possible for me to spend these care-free days in this beautiful home, I am,

Yours sincerely,
Sherwood White.

* * * *

Dear Friends:

As I leave this dear old home with its beautiful surroundings there is joy and sorrow mingled in my heart. The joy comes because I am able to go out into the world to fight wrong and to stand up for the right. This I shall endeavor to do to the best of my ability. But with the joy comes sadness. I am leaving the place that has been home to me, teachers who have been patient and kind, matrons who have been as mothers and superintendents who have been fatherly advisers for the past ten years. These I will not forget. I wish to thank them all for the help they have been to me. I also want to thank the many kind friends of the home who have made it possible for me to come here and to enjoy the blessings of this wonderful institution.

As the time for my departure draws near I think of the time when I was a small boy. How I longed for this time to come, but now that I am about to leave for good I realize the true value of such an ideal place as this home.

I shall always uphold the name of the Methodist orphanage and in the coming years I hope my life will be a memorial to her.

Herman Farrington.

THE CHILDREN'S HOME

Martha M. Wood.

We were not awakened by the birds this morning. The noise that broke into our quiet morning slumbers was a chorus of more volume and not so musical as the melodies the bird choir made.

The second band of Boy Scouts were starting on their trip to Rotary Camp, preparing to hike to the station to catch the nearly morning train, and feeling the exhilaration of embarking on such a prospect of pleasure, were manifesting the exuberance of spirits the occasion inspired. They had to have breakfast before starting, and that meant getting up something like 4:30.

However, it wasn't absolutely necessary that the rest of us wake to hear them depart, except that we couldn't very well stay asleep with so much laughter and calling of one boy to another going on. It scattered dreams and broke sweet sleep into fragments.

"Goodbye, Jiggs! Goodbye! Goodbye, Jiggs! Goodbye, boys! Goodbye, Jiggs! Goodbye, Jiggs! Ha! Ha! Whistle! Whistle! Goodbye, boys! Goodbye, Jiggs!"

* * * *

The boys looked fine in their new scout suits. The boys going off just got theirs yesterday. Mrs. Feimster was busy marking each piece to have them ready by this morning. And the boys evidently felt fine. They were proud of being allowed to make the trip by themselves, in charge of Eben, the largest boy at The Home.

* * * *

The folks at The Home are looking forward to an early enjoyment of the watermelon feast that the men's Sunday school class of Centenary church, this city, give every year.

I heard the superintendent tell John M. to see that the picnic tables were put in place today on the lawn, to be ready for Sunday afternoon. The hosts and their families and a load of melons—could anything make a nicer affair! Just the memory of the fine red-hearted melons we had last year makes every mouth water at the thought of another such feast near at hand.

* * * *

We have been enjoying the open-air concerts that the musical people of Salem and Winston have been giving at Hanes Park this summer.

Hanes Park is not far from The Home. In fact, we can hear the band pieces quite well from The Home grounds. Though, of course, to enjoy music fully, the low, soft notes must be heard nearer.

The park has an athletic field, and the band stand is near the grand stand seats.

* * * *

A number of Methodist Boy Scouts from Newton, traveling in a large truck, camped at The Home spring Thursday night.

I went with the superintendent to visit the camp. I wanted to see what a traveling Boy Scout camp looked like. I was interested in the preparations for supper. The cook was slicing a pile of steak, preparing to fry it in pans over the coals. I asked one of the Scoutmasters if it did not take a lot of food for twenty boys to eat. He assured me that it did—said that he bought a ham one day recently, thinking that it would do for two meals, but they ate all of it for breakfast.

These boys had been from Newton to Wrightsville Beach, and were on their way home, coming from Raleigh as far as Winston-Salem that day. They had a swim in The Home swimming pool after supper.

* * * *

Mrs. Thompson and Evelyn and Jack are away for a couple of weeks visiting relatives and spending some days in the mountains.

* * * *

Mr. Robert Bradshaw is taking a short vacation at home and with his father, spending a few days at Junaluska.

* * * *

Mrs. Hasty is back and Mrs. Feimster is looking forward to a two weeks rest time and a visit to relatives in her native county, in company with her children, after Mr. Bradshaw returns to look after the boys in Tise Number Two.

SOUTHERN TO OPERATE THREE TRAINS DAILY FOR COTTON PRODUCTS

Charlotte, Aug. 6.—Three special textile trains, to be loaded solidly with the products of Carolina mills, will be operated daily by the Southern Railway System beginning August 1, according to announcement made from the Southern's offices in Charlotte.

All cotton factory products for points outside the South will be handled in these trains, which will run on fast schedules and be given the same attention as has been given to the special trains handling peaches and other perishables.

Trains will be run from Greenville, S. C., to Potomac Yards, Va., handling textile freight, moving all rail to eastern destinations; from Greenville to Pinners Point, Va., handling freight moving via boat line to Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York, Boston and Providence; and from Spencer, N. C., to Cincinnati, Louisville and East St.

Louis, with a connecting train from Hayne, S. C., to Asheville, handling freight for the west, including twenty-five daily package cars for destinations on and beyond the Ohio river.

Solid cars loaded by the mills as well as package cars loaded at the Southern's assembling stations at Spencer, N. C., and Hayne, S. C., will be handled on these trains.

No short haul freight will be handled on them and there will be no switching at intermediate terminals.

The establishment of this service exclusively for cotton factory products strikingly illustrates the growth and diversification of the textile industry in the Piedmont territory, the variety of goods now being turned out and the wide range of destinations to which they are moved having influenced the management of the Southern to inaugurate these special trains as a further contribution to the upbuilding of the textile industry in the territory it serves.

Schedules of the special textile trains will be as follows:

Leave Greenville 6 p. m., leave Spencer 4:30 a. m., arrive Potomac Yards 4:30 a. m.

Leave Greenville 6:10 p. m., leave Spencer 5 a. m., arrive Pinners Point 4:30 a. m.

Leave Greenville 12:01 a. m., leave Hayne 5 a. m., leave Asheville 10 a. m., arrive Louisville 1:30 a. m., arrive Cincinnati 4 a. m., second morning, and arrive East St. Louis 7 a. m. third morning.

WANTED — At Weaver College, Weaverville, North Carolina, a mature white woman to cook for the term of 1923-24. Anyone interested, please write the Secretary of Weaver College, Weaverville, North Carolina.

RANDOLPH-MACON INSTITUTE, Danville, Virginia, for Girls. College preparatory and special course for those not wishing to go to college. Vocal and Instrumental Music, Art and Expression. Attractive home life. Gymnasium. Branch of the Randolph-Macon System. Rates $500. Catalogue. Address Chas. G. Evans, A. M., Principal, Box 6.

DR. CHAS. W. MOSELEY

Diseases of Stomach and Internal Medicine

Office, 229 S. Elm St. Residence, 438 S. Mendenhall St., Greensboro, N. C. Office 604—Phones—Res. 1739.

MORPHINE and WHISKY HABITS successfully treated. Write for information. Correspondence confidential. 12th successful yr. WILLIAMS PRIVATE SANITARIUM, Greensboro, N. C.

SAVED $2000 AND GOT BETTER ROOFING

WRITE TODAY FOR CUT PRICES One big, slanting cut brings the price of Genuine Evergreen Roofing down to the same price as before the war. NOW IS THE TIME TO PUT THAT NEW TOP ON YOUR HOUSE, BARN AND OTHER BUILDINGS—NOW WHILE PRICES ARE DOWN TO ROCK BOTTOM.

SAVED $20.00—GOT BETTER ROOFING Send to-day for our special 30-day offer and direct from factory prices. You will be delighted with the low prices and fine quality of material. Mr. M. Carlisle, of Chicago, writes: "I am pleased and satisfied—I saved $20.00 by ordering from you."

TWO CRIMPS ON EACH EDGE OUR DOUBLE CRIMP GALVANIZED STEEL ROOFING IS THE BEST CRIMPS ON EACH EDGE.

ROOFING FOR EVERY USE We also manufacture GALVANIZED STEEL SHINGLES AND GREEN ASPHALT SHINGLES AND RED ROOFING IN ROLLS—which we sell direct to you at factory prices. Our NEW BUILDING BOOK tells all about roofing and siding and may have just the information you are looking for. WRITE FOR YOUR FREE COPY TODAY.

YOU SAVE THE PROFIT We have just about enough roofing to fill orders for the next 30 days—then we may have to raise our prices. SEND TO-DAY FOR FREE SAMPLES—ROOFING BOOK AND CUT PRICES. Get Guaranteed Roofing direct from the factory and keep in your own pocket the profit others would get.

Address SAVANNAH FENCE & ROOFING COMPANY, Dept. B Savannah, Ga.

GALVANIZED STEEL SHINGLES CAN'T CATCH FIRE

SEND FOR THIS FREE BUILDING BOOK

DIRECT TO YOU - FREIGHT PAID

The Call of the Conference Claimants

— Edited by Luther E. Todd, Secretary —

Board of Finance, M. E. Church, South

510-513 Security Building, St. Louis, Mo.

Ex-President Woodrow Wilson "Rings the Bell."—The August number of the Atlantic Monthly carries an article under the caption, "The Road Away from Revolution," the author of same being our own much beloved Woodrow Wilson. The following excerpts from his article have a bearing on the great question now being discussed on this page under the heading, "The Call of the Conference Claimants":

"In these dreadful and anxious days, when all the world is at unrest and, look which way you will, the road ahead seems darkened by shadows which portend dangers of many kinds, it is only common prudence that we should look about us and attempt to assess the causes of distress and the most likely means of removing them.

"Real ground for the universal unrest lies deep at the sources of the spiritual life of our time and leads to revolution. The cause of the Russian revolution was a systematic denial to the great body of Russians of the rights and privileges which all normal men desire and must have if they are to be contented and within reach of happiness.

"What has this to do with America? It was against capitalism that the Russian leaders directed their attack, and it is against capitalism under one name or another that the discontented classes everywhere draw their indictment. Thoughtful men everywhere believe that capitalism is indispensable to civilization, but is the capitalistic system unimpeachable? Is it not true that the capitalist often seems to regard men whom he uses as mere instruments of profit whose physical and mental powers it is legitimate to exploit? Ought we not to seek a way to remove such offenses and make life itself clean for those who will share honorably and cleanly in it?

"The world has been made safe for democracy. There need now be no fear that any such mad design as that entertained by the insolent and ignorant Hohenzollerns and their counselors may prevail against it. But democracy has not yet made the world safe against irrational revolution. That supreme task which is nothing less than the salvation of civilization now faces democracy insistent, imperative. There is no escaping it unless everything we have built up is presently to fall in ruin about us, and the United States as the greatest of democracies must undertake it.

"The road that leads away from revolution is clearly marked, for it is defined by the nature of men of organized society. It, therefore, behooves us to study very carefully and very candidly the exact nature of the task and the means of its accomplishment. The sum of the whole matter is this, that our civilization cannot survive materially unless it be redeemed spiritually. Here is the final challenge to our churches, to our political organizations, and to our capitalists—to every one who fears God or loves his country."

What Can the Church Do About It?—Undoubtedly Mr. Wilson in the article referred to in the foregoing paragraphs has put his finger on a very vital matter concerning the peace and happiness of the world. There is a mighty challenge going to the church in the present day to draw heavily upon her resources to meet this issue. But what can she do?

It seems to me that our pulpits throughout Southern Methodism should take as a text "The Golden Rule" and preach from it with great emphasis and constantly until the thinking and practice of all people everywhere are in harmony with its teaching. The present day is too pregnant with possible disaster for us to lose time with bickering and strife among ourselves touching trivial things. Never before in the history of the world has there been a greater need for prophets of the King of righteousness and the golden rule of conduct.

If the church will turn as she should to such a program, it cannot be followed properly until the church has a proper conception of her duty toward her preachers who are expected to carry on. If it is true that the church has so large a part in saving the world from turmoil and revolution, it is also true that those upon whom will rest the leadership in effecting this program should have a worthy support in the midst of their task. To put it bluntly, is it fair for bricklayers, carpenters, plasterers, etc., to receive for constructing buildings ten to twenty dollars per day each, while preachers of the gospel are called to the titanic struggle of rebuilding a wrecked world and are paid for such a task the trivial amount of an average of $3 per day each? If the church is to meet the challenge pointed out by Mr. Wilson, she must first apply within herself the principle which she is called to teach to others.

Furthermore, if it be true that misguided capitalism has exploited labor for selfish purposes, what should be said of a church that has taken men wholesale for her ministry, used them to the limit of their physical endurance, paid them salaries which barely provided daily rations during active service, and then when they were unable to drag themselves further in the program set them aside as worn-out men to live, with their aged wives and invalid members of their families, on an annual amount for each which today averages but little more than $200? I maintain that the church will not be ready for the supreme task to which she is called by Mr. Wilson and other great leaders until she makes adequate provision for the age-worn and enfeebled ministers whom she calls her superannuates. As long as it can be truthfully written that the church has the "forgotten man" she will be unable to possess the moral fiber and character sufficient to enable her to come to the rescue of a world stricken by the cries of its people who feel that they too are forgotten.

The Paramount Issue Before the Church.—It is natural that every leader of important movements should feel that his particular task is supreme in importance above all others. I feel that way about the special effort for superannuate endowment. However, there are so many arguments sustaining me in this contention that it appears I should be absolved from the charge of being merely a propagandist.

From the beginning of her history the church has used her preachers very much in the same manner as some soulless corporations have used their employees. The latter have sought in many instances to squeeze out of the men and women working for them the greatest possible lift in efficient service and have paid these lifters the smallest amount that would be accepted by them without strikes and serious trouble. These corporations have grown tremendously rich, and those who did so much to create such values for others have in doing it barely eked out an existence for themselves. I am not reading a brief in behalf of labor in its contest with capitalism, for I am not competent to make a worthy pronouncement on the subject. However, the statement made is the text from which much is being spoken and written today about the discontent of the masses.

What about the church? Read the account of Southern Methodism's progress during the past one hundred years, and you will be amazed at the figures which mark our present property holdings. We have a membership of approximately 2,500,000. We have preachers who were willing to sacrifices in the world. How did we get all this? It must be admitted that it has come to us very largely through the loyal and faithful leadership of preachers who were willing to sacrifice everything in the interest of the church. If the average annual stipend of these preachers were computed through the entire period, I am sure it would not be more than $350. Even today the average amount annually paid to a preacher in our church for active service is approximately $1,200.

Think of the preachers of Southern Methodism who gave their all to the church and then when aged and physically infirm were superannuated with nothing for the first year and but little more than nothing for the years thereafter. I have opportunities to look "behind the scenes" to discover the manner of living of these used-up prophets. They do not advertise their distresses. They wait and suffer, believing the "Lord will provide." As I study the conditions of their need I am amazed that a church claiming the lowly Nazarene as her Master and Teacher can be guilty of such neglect. These tottering old superannuates will never inspire or lead a revolution to establish equities; they are too good and loyal for that. But as long as the church goes on, complacently and allows them to suffer from dire poverty she will not be morally strong enough to save the world from bloody revolutions which threaten today from other mistreated classes.

The paramount issue before the church is an adequate support of her preachers in active service and a comfortable living for the superannuated preachers worn out in her service. Let this issue be met squarely until the preachers of the gospel, both active and superannuated, are comfortable, and the church will then be able to meet the challenge to her influence and power which comes so emphatically today from the world's best thinkers and greatest leaders.

Medical College of Virginia

(State Institution—Established 1838)

Dentistry

Medicine—Pharmacy—Nursing

Well-equipped laboratories under supervision of full-time teachers. Abundance of clinical material in the Memorial, St. Philip and Dooley Hospitals, owned and controlled by the College.

For Catalogue, address

J. R. McCauley, Sec.-Treas.

1142 E. Clay St. Richmond, Va.

GOOD POSITIONS

Paying fine salaries can be had for ambitious young men and women who complete our commercial and stenographic courses.

Our aim this season is to enroll a very large number of such students who can be trained for high and responsible positions.

Won't you be one to enroll? A postal addressed to us will bring you our catalog. Write for it.

DRAUGHONS BUSINESS COLLEGE
Knoxville, Tenn.

EUGENE ANDERSON, President
Georgia-Alabama Business College.

What Is Holding You Back?

What is hindering your progress and keeping you from being the successful man or woman you would like to be? Is it lack of money, lack of a complete education, lack of the pull of influential friends? Is it age or sex?

Many have allowed themselves to believe that such minor obstructions are insurmountable and they are content to plod their way with little progress, working with the hand rather than the brain.

There is room at the top of the ladder for all ambitious men and women of today.

All you need is ambition and character. Add to those qualities a sound business education, a Georgia-Alabama Business College training in bookkeeping, accounting, banking, stenography, typewriting, business administration or a secretarial course and you are ready to accept and hold a higher position with plenty of opportunity for advancement.

The lack of education need not worry you, for the Georgia-Alabama Business Course is designed for the purpose of completing your education as well as your business training. The lack of money need not hinder, for our prices and terms are reasonable and we are always ready to lend fullest co-operation in matters financial. Age and sex need not hold you back. Nearly 50% of our students are women and more are mature persons. The business world today is calling for business trained men and women. You need no regret the absence of the help of influential friends, for with the aid of the reputation of our school you will not need it. We always find for our graduates excellent positions at good salaries.

An institution with such standing and reputation as the Georgia-Alabama Business College does more to advance the business interests of its graduates than can be done by any amount of family or personal influence.

If you would improve your position in life and increase your income, write today for our instructive book, "Your Future—What Does It Hold in Store?" It will open your eyes and show you what a bright opportunity you are missing. Sent free on request.

Address: Dept. C 9, Georgia-Alabama Business College, Macon, Ga., or Dept. C 9, Georgia-Alabama Business College, Atlanta, Ga.

Sure Relief

Our Little Folks

A WELCOME VISITOR

It always makes me glad to hear
That gradmamma is coming near.

She makes our home seem very bright
And tells me stories every night.

She knows so very many things,
Not even known by queens and kings.

Long ago she was just my size—
And had dark curls and bright, bright eyes.

Her hair is gray and has no curl,
But she was once a pretty girl.

She's still as lovely as can be
And thinks the world and all of me.

Sometimes while reading from my books
Her eyes are dim with dreamy looks.

And as we turn the white leaves o'er
She shows pictures and tells me more.

She knew a boy who went to sleep
And didn't half-way mind the sheep.

He didn't even blow his horn
To drive the cow out of the corn.

That's a funny story of Jack and Jill
Who spilled the water on the hill.

And I could listen the whole night through
Of the boys who sailed in the wooden shoe.

But when she tells of Wynken and Nod
We both kneel down and talk to God.

Grandmother knows so many things—
I'm sure she knows much more than kings.
—Oakie McNabb, in Christian Evangelist.

HOW JOHN PAID NAN

The family were at the supper table when John came in with his skates.
After supper his father said to him:
"John, you have been gone all the afternoon. You did not get your work done. It must be finished tonight, you know."

John went out into the shed with gloomy brow. It was not long, however, before the tones of his voice came in very cheerfully through the closed door into the sitting room.

"Is that Nan out in the shed with John?" asked Janetta.

Her mother smiled and nodded.
Janetta was almost grown up. She felt herself to be wise and often liked to give her mother advice, as most of us have liked to do in our time. She gave her some now.

"I think, mother, that you ought not to let Nan help John so much. She will spoil him. It is no girl's work for her to be carrying wood for him down into the cellar. She never seems to mind what she does, if it will make things easier for John."

"He pays her pretty evenly, I am sure," said Mrs. Neville, quietly.

"Pays her!" repeated Janetta in surprise, looking doubtfully at her mother. "How?"

"Keep your eyes open and see," said Mrs. Neville. She would give no hint of what she meant.

"John," said Nan, when they had come back into the house and were warming themselves luxuriously, "Eva Hastings cannot go to the singing class because she has nobody to take her home. We could walk just that little distance round the corner with her, couldn't we?"

"Where's her brother Jim? Why can't he go for her?"

"He'll not be bothered, he says. You always come after me, anyway. So I think it wouldn't be so very much farther to take Eva on home."

"I suppose it wouldn't," said John.
"All right."

Janetta looked across at her mother. But Mrs. Neville's head was bent over her work.

The next day at noon John was full of a plan which the boys were making at school.

"We are going to get up a sleighride—just we ourselves, amongst us boys. Then we will invite the young ladies to come with us."

Janetta condescended to show a little interest. She usually felt herself much above John and his friends, but if it was a question of having a sleigh-ride when sleigh-rides were few, perhaps she might forget her dignity for once to advantage. John noticed this. He was divided as to whether to feel flattered or to grumble.

"Yes, of course, some of the fellows want you, Janetta," he said. "They know that generally you don't remember that they are alive; and it is just possible that now and then you slip out of their memory for a minute or two at a time. But on an occasion like this we can make believe all round.
You see, it adds something to the style to have girls on board with long skirts and their hair put up."

Nan was listening wistfully. Her skirts were not long and her hair was in a pigtail. Still, she oughtn't to be selfish; it was nice for John and Janetta, and her turn would come by and by.

"In my own case, though," John continued, "I didn't choose my girl for style. I have more sense. She is young; she may fall asleep during the proceedings, but she is the nicest girl in town, for all that, of any size—except mother—Nan is."

"Oh, John, you didn't!" cried Nan, joyfully. "How perfectly, perfectly lovely of you!"

Janetta thought of several things, of which the sleigh-ride was only one.
Meantime, Dr. Neville had come in for his dinner.

"John," he said, "I hope you have not been making friends with those two Barbour boys."

"I haven't," said John; "Nan wouldn't let me. I couldn't see anything bad in them; and they are awfully entertaining. But Nan made such a fuss that I had to give in."

"Well, you may be very thankful to Nan," said his father. "They have got themselves into a miserable scrape.
They were picked up on a back street drunk last night and put in jail!"

While the others exclaimed and questioned, John was uncommonly silent. At the end, before he started back to school, he said, soberly.

"A fellow doesn't lose much by taking Nan's advice. Maybe if Harry and Phil Barbour had had a sister like her they never would have got into such bad ways."

In the course of the afternoon Janetta drew her chair up close beside her mother's.

"Mother," she said, "I have watched and I see. Nan gets high pay from John for hewing wood and drawing water—the highest."

"I knew that you would see it before long," said her mother. "A girl cannot do better work that build little fences of kindness and love and goodness about a brother that will help to keep him safe. Even if she roughens her hands a little at it and works rather more than her share, it is well worth while. Isn't it?"—The Instructor.

GREENSBORO COLLEGE

The A-Grade Woman's College of the Two Methodist Conferences of North Carolina

Rated by State Department of Education as Class A.

Chartered 1838. Confers the degree of A. B. in the literary department and B. M. in the music department.

In addition to our regular classical course, special attention is called to the departments of Home Economics, Expression, Art, Education, Sunday School Teacher Training, Piano Pedagogy, and to our complete School of Music.

Modern New $50,000.00 Dormitory completed 1918. Conservatory of Music costing about $170,000 completed 1922.

Fall Semester begins September 5, 1923. For further information apply to DR. S. B. TURRENTINE, President, Greensboro, N. C.

THIRTEEN MILLION DOLLARS IN CHURCH VALUES

The value of property belonging to the Methodist Church in North Carolina exceeds $13,000,000. On this vast amount of property there is only $3,000,000 of insurance—less than one-fourth of its value protected.

Suppose you had stock in a furniture factory one-fourth protected from fire, what would you do? You would either sell, or hold the directors responsible.

See that your church officials protect your most valuable assets or you may be called upon to donate again to rebuild a church parsonage destroyed by fire.

Insure in The Methodist Mutual—owned and controlled by the two North Carolina Conferences.

W. E. WEBB, Secretary
STATESVILLE, N. C.

RUTHERFORD COLLEGE

RUTHERFORD COLLEGE, N. C.

NEXT TERM OPENS SEPTEMBER 4TH

Rutherford College offers four years accredited High School work, and two years of College work.

These are some of the interesting considerations:

1. Modern equipment.
2. An efficient faculty.
3. The breezy and healthful location.
4. Modest expenses (from $150 to $200).
5. The unusually purposeful and religious students in attendance—fifty-five of whom last year were ministerial students, twenty-two volunteer workers, twenty-two members of the evangelistic singing class.
6. The very earnest disposition on the part of the management of the school to raise the standard of scholarship to the highest possible attainment.

Other information will be gladly furnished on request.

M. T. HINSHAW, President, Rutherford College, N. C.

NORTH CAROLINA STATE COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE AND ENGINEERING STATE COLLEGE STATION RALEIGH, N. C.

Technical Education at State College prepares its graduates for personal success and for leadership in industrial progress. The college offers

FOUR YEAR COURSES IN:

Agriculture—including General Agriculture and Specialized Courses in Farm Crops, Agricultural Engineering, Animal Husbandry and Dairying, Biology, Horticulture, Poultry Science, Soils, Veterinary Medicine, Vocational Education.
Chemistry, Agricultural Chemistry, Textile Chemistry and Dyeing.
Civil Engineering, Architecture and Highway Engineering.
Electrical Engineering.
Mechanical Engineering.
Textile—Textile Engineering, Textile Manufacturing, Textile Chemistry and Dyeing.
Agricultural Economics, Business Administration, Rural Life.
General Science, Physics, Biology.

TWO YEAR COURSES IN:

Agriculture, Mechanic Arts, Textile Manufacturing.

One Year Course in Auto Mechanics.

Winter Course in Agriculture for Farmers.

Summer Session for Teachers, for College Entrance and for College Credit.

Excellent equipment in all departments.

Session 1923-1924 begins September 4.

Entrance requirements for Freshman Class, 15 units—English, 3; History, 2;
Mathematics, 2½; Science, 1; Elective, 6½.

For catalog, illustrated circulars, and entrance blanks, write E. B. OWEN, Registrar

"OUR PAPER"

By Sam B. Coward.

My mother, her takes a paper
Called the Christian Advocate.
I likes to hear her read it so I almost can't hardly wait

Till supper's over and they ain't very much to do.

Then she reads the bestest stories,
And I know they's allays true,

'Cause they's made fur little boys like me,

And they'll make us men like we oughter be.

I know, 'cause that's what I heard my mother say

Jest the other day.

—Methodist Advocate.

Our Diplomas on Bookkeeping, Shorthand, Railway Mail, Rural Carrier and Civil Service Courses will insure your success. Fall Term begins Sept. 4. Address Greensboro Commercial School, Greensboro, N. C., for Catalog.

PRESIDING ELDERS APPOINTMENTS

Western North Carolina Conference

ASHEVILLE DISTRICT H. C. Sprinkle, P. E., Asheville, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing appointments for Asheville District, including locations like Mills River, Asheville Ct., Fairview, Flat Rock-Fletcher, Hominy, Pleasant Hill, Leicester, Mars Hill, Weaverville, Bethel, Swannanoa, Black Mountain, Spring Creek, Hot Springs, Sandy Mush, Marshall, Central, Weaverville Station, Biltmore, Chestnut Street, Henderson, Saluda-Tryon, Hendersonville, Haywood, East Biltmore, West Asheville, Mt. Pleasant, Elk Mountain, Rosman, Brevard.

CHARLOTTE DISTRICT J. B. Craven, P. E., 413 Central Ave., Charlotte, N. C.

Table listing appointments for Charlotte District, including Peachland, Ansonville, Marshville, North Monroe, Unionville, Polkton, Morven, Wadesboro, Prospect, Bethel, Chadwick, Dilworth, Thrift-Moore.

GREENSBORO DISTRICT W. F. Womble, Presiding Elder 508 Summit Ave., Greensboro, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing appointments for Greensboro District, including Wesley Memorial, Jamestown-Oakdale, Caraway Memorial, East Greensboro, Walnut Street, Uwharrie, New Hope, Asheboro, Coleridge, Ramseur-Frankville, Randleman, Deep River, Wentworth, Reidsville, Pleasant Garden, Spring Garden, Ruffin.

MARION DISTRICT Z. Paris, P. E., Marion, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing appointments for Marion District, including Broad River, Forest City, Spindale, Marion Mills, Marion Ct., Mill Spring, Cliffside, Henrietta-Caroleen, North McDowell, Spruce Pine, Micaville, Bald Creek, Burnsville.

MOUNT AIRY DISTRICT J. H. West, P. E., Box 422, Mt. Airy, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing appointments for Mount Airy District, including Mayodan, Madison-Stoneville.

Table listing appointments for Western North Carolina Conference, including Jonesville, Elkin, Rural Hall, Leaksville, Dobson, Summerfield, Stokesdale, Yadkinville, W. Davie, Sandy Ridge.

NORTH WILKESBORO DISTRICT J. W. Williams, P. E., Jefferson, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing appointments for North Wilkesboro District, including Watauga, Boone, Avery, Elk Park, Todd, North Wilkes, N. Wilkesboro, Wilkes, Ferguson, Wilkesboro, Creston, Warrensville, Helton, Todd, Jefferson.

SHELBY DISTRICT H. H. Jordan, P. E., Gastonia, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing appointments for Shelby District, including Cherryville, West End, Shelby Ct., King's Mountain, East End.

WINSTON-SALEM DISTRICT W. A. Newell, P. E., 1084 W. Fourth Street, Winston-Salem, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing appointments for Winston-Salem District, including Mocksville, Cooleemee, Advance, Davie, Kernersville, Oak Ridge, Thomasville, South & East, Denton, Erlanger.

WAYNESVILLE DISTRICT R. S. Howie, P. E., Waynesville, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing appointments for Waynesville District, including Bethel Ct., Lake Junaluska, Sylva Sta., Cullowhee, Webster, Jona'han, Bryson-Whittier, Shoal Creek, Hayesville, Murphy, Hiawasse, Fines Creek, Judson, Murphy, Andrews, Robbinsville, Glenville-Highlands, Macon, Franklin, Franklin, Franklin.

SALISBURY DISTRICT T. F. Marr, P. E., Salisbury, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing appointments for Salisbury District, including Woodleaf, Central, Forest Hill, Concord, Epworth, Kerr Street, Gold Hill, Spencer, South Main, Landis, Kannapolis, China Grove, New London, Salem, Badin, Albe-marle, Central.

Table listing appointments for Western North Carolina Conference, including First Street, Mt. Pleasant, Westford, Harmony, Norwood.

STATESVILLE DISTRICT D. M. Litaker, P. E., 240 Walnut St., Statesville, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing appointments for Statesville District, including Ball Creek, Catawba, Hickory, Westview, Rhodhiss, Alexander, Statesville, Mooresville, Lenoir, Hudson, Granite Falls, Lenoir, South Lenoir, Hiddenite, Mooresville, Olin, Jones Memorial, Statesville, All early conferences will have a fifth round.

WINSTON-SALEM DISTRICT W. A. Newell, P. E., 1084 W. Fourth Street, Winston-Salem, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing appointments for Winston-Salem District, including Mocksville, Cooleemee, Advance, Davie, Kernersville, Oak Ridge, Thomasville, South & East, Denton, Erlanger.

North Carolina Conference

DURHAM DISTRICT M. T. Piyler, P. E., Durham, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing appointments for Durham District, including Brooksdale, East Roxboro, Pearl, Mebane, East Burlington, South Alamance, Lakewood.

ELIZABETH CITY DISTRICT C. B. Culbreth, P. E., Elizabeth City, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing appointments for Elizabeth City District, including Roanoke Island, Dare Ct., First Church, City Road, Pasquotank, Perquimans, Hertford, Currituck, Belhaven & Pantego, Moyock, Perkins.

FAYETTEVILLE DISTRICT R. H. Willis, P. E., Fayetteville, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing appointments for Fayetteville District, including Stedman, Roseboro, Hall's.

NEW BERN DISTRICT F. M. Shamburger, P. E., New Bern, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing appointments for New Bern District, including New Bern, Bridgeton, Pink Hill, Goldsboro, St. Pauls, Elm St., Caswell, Grifton, Queen St., Pamlico, Jones, Hookerton, Snow Hill, La Grange, Newport.

Table listing appointments for Western North Carolina Conference, including Harlowe, St. John, Mt. Olive, Mt. Olive and Calypso, Atlantic, Ocracoke and Portsmouth, Straits, Beaufort, Morehead, Oriental.

ROCKINGHAM DISTRICT J. H. Shore, P. E., Rockingham, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing appointments for Rockingham District, including Hamlet, Rockingham, Richmond, Piedmont, Ellerbe, Roberdel, St. John-Gibson, Laurel Hill, Laurinburg, Robeson, Lumberton, Montgomery, Troy, Biscoe, West End, Aberdeen, Vass, Raeford, Red Springs, Rowland, Caledonia, Maxton, St. Paul, Lumberton, Mt. Gilead, Hebron, Mt. Gilead.

RALEIGH DISTRICT J. C. Wooten, P. E. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing appointments for Raleigh District, including Princeton, Franklinton, Granville, Creedmore, Oxford, Garner, Zebulon, Four Oaks, Benson, Smithfield, Kenly, Selma, Princeton, Millbrook, Cary, Youngsville, Tar River, Louisville, Central, Edenton, Epworth, Jenkins.

WASHINGTON DISTRICT S. A. Cotton, P. E., Washington, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing appointments for Washington District, including Greenville, Farmville, McKendree, Tarboro, Aurora, Wilson, Calvary, Elm City, Fremont, Stantonburg, Rocky Mount, Nashville, Bethel, Grimesland, Ayden, Robersonville, Greenville, Farmville, Swan Quater, Mattamuskeet, Fairfield, Washington, Bailey, South Rocky Mount, Rocky Mount, Rocky Mount, Bath, Vanceboro.

WOMAN'S WORK

(Continued from page eight)

Mrs. Luke Johnson, Ga.
Mrs. W. J. Piggott, Ky.

July 14, 1923.

Mass Meeting, Women in Attendance, Mt. Sequoyah, Ark., Assembly.

Whereas the women of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, have for many years been vitally interested in the welfare and progress of the negro race at home and abroad and have aided in establishing and maintaining religious, educational, and social service institutions for the Christianizing of the negro; and

Whereas it has been reported through the press and other reliable sources of information that Tuskegee Institute, of Tuskegee, Ala., a negro college which has always stood for the best development of the negro race in the South, has been menaced in its welfare and activities by a lawless element in the state of Alabama; therefore,

Resolved, That the women attending the Western Methodist Assembly, Mt. Sequoyah, Fayetteville, Ark., in mass meeting assembled, express our confidence in the aims and ideals of Tuskegee Institute and our appreciation of the great contribution it has made to the negro race in America.

Resolved further, That we go on record as entering a vigorous protest against any act or influence calculated to injure the reputation, hinder the activities, or menace the existence of this worthy institution.

Mrs. Fred Lamb, Chm.
Mrs. John S. Turner, Sec.

July 14, 1923.

Executive Committee, Board of Missions, July 20, 1923.

We have learned with deep regret through the press and other trustworthy sources that the work of Tuskegee Institute, Tuskegee, Ala., has been seriously jeopardized not only by threats but by acts of intimidation.

Whereas we are deeply concerned for all that looks to the intellectual, moral, and spiritual development of our colored citizens; and whereas any interference with this great institution, for many years an outstanding example in our Southland and before all the world of what can be done by and for the negro race, constitutes a blow at all like efforts; therefore

Resolved, That this committee hereby records its earnest protest against any act or threat of intimidation or any interference with the peaceful and orderly pursuit of the conspicuously useful work that this institution is doing and expresses its deliberate conviction that any such interference is not only unchristian and unpatriotic, but also a shameful contradiction of the best and noblest traditions of the South.

Percy Madden, Chm.

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORK

(Continued from page nine)

Kannapolis Ct. ....	272	30
Shelby District.
Ranlo .....	260	30
Franklin Ave., Gastonia ..	568	60
Cramerton .....	335	30
West End, Gastonia .....	621	75
East Belmont .....	462	45
Lowell .....	451	45
Trinity .....	304	30
Lafayette St., Shelby .....	433	45
East End, Gastonia .....	311	30
Dallas .....	463	45
Crouse .....	718	75
Lincolnton .....	571	60
Shelby, Central .....	678	75
Lowesville .....	637	75
Mount Holly .....	463	45
McAdenville .....	213	30
Rock Springs .....	932	105
Main St., Gastonia .....	1005	105
Lincolnton Ct. ....	638	75
Belwood .....	715	75
Belmont .....	191	15
Shelby Ct. ....	508	45
Bessemer .....	320	30
Polkville .....	611	60
Cherryville .....	629	75

King's Mountain .....	217	30
Stanley .....	265	30
South Fork .....	440	45
Statesville District.
Rhodiss .....	105	16
Broad St., Mooresville ..	684	100
Balls Creek .....	550	80
Catawba .....	378	140
West View .....	830	100
Race St., Statesville .....	688	80
Hickory, First Church .....	983	140
Huntersville .....	121	18
South Lenoir .....	352	60
Elmwood .....	336	60
Lenoir, First Church .....	452	60
Mount Zion .....	674	100
Mooresville, First Church..	598	80
Statesville, Broad St. ....	741	100
Maiden .....	397	60
Mooresville Ct. ....	622	100
Newton .....	619	100
Davidson .....	378	60
Cool Springs .....	686	100
Statesville Ct. ....	340	60
Hudson .....	289	40
Olin .....	320	40
Troutman .....	576	80
Hiddenite .....	325	40
Alexander .....	276	40
Dudley Shoals .....	332	40
Granite Falls .....	245	40
Stony Point .....	269	40
Lenoir Ct. ....	152	20
Waynesville District.
Waynesville Ct. ....	363	90
Jonathan .....	200	45
Sylva .....	351	90
Lake Junaluska .....	460	105
Hayesville .....	429	105
Hiawassee .....	255	60
Andrews .....	358	90
Murphy Station .....	291	75
Shoal Creek-Echota .....	165	45
Fines Creek .....	257	60
Waynesville Station .....	450	105
Highlands .....	71	15
Bryson-Whittier .....	214	45
Haywood .....	300	75
Bethel .....	260	40
Judson .....	147	30
Webster-Cullowhee .....	405	90
Franklin Station .....	286	60
Murphy Ct. ....	143	30
Franklin Ct. ....	342	75
Glenville .....	70	15
Canton .....	345	75
Macon .....	244	60
Robbinsville .....	57	14
Winston-Salem District.
S. and E. Thomasville .....	408	60
Oak Ridge .....	218	20
Hanes-Clemmons .....	341	40
Green St., Winston-Salem..	570	80
Southside, Winston-Salem ..	541	80
Main St., Thomasville .....	1018	140
Southside Ct. ....	320	40
Forsyth Ct. ....	874	100
West Davie Ct. ....	184	20
First Church, Lexington ..	1098	140
Cooleemee .....	489	60
Grace, Winston-Salem .....	282	60
Davidson Ct. ....	803	100
Burkhead, Winston-Salem ..	789	100
Lewisville Ct. ....	580	80
Kernersville .....	125	16
Mocksville .....	309	40
Centenary, Winston-Salem..	1028	140
Walkertown .....	318	40
Farmington Ct. ....	677	80
West End, Winston-Salem..	704	100
Welcome Ct. ....	745	100
Denton Ct. ....	387	60
Linwood Ct. ....	494	60
Advance Ct. ....	532	60
Thomasville Ct. ....	595	80
Davie Ct. ....	642	80
New Hope Ct. ....	214	20

LET YOUR BOY START RIGHT
Under Christian influences, military training, careful supervision and thorough academic instruction at
CARLISLE SCHOOL
A well-known preparatory school of high standards. Excellent dormitories, class rooms, gymnasium, infirmary, library and general equipment. Two academic courses offered. Total fee for year, $362.50. For literature, address W. C. DUNCAN, Headmaster, Bamberg, South Carolina.

WEAVER COLLEGE

DENOMINATIONAL CO-EDUCATIONAL
WEAVERVILLE, NORTH CAROLINA

Tenth and Eleventh Grades in High School.
Freshman and Sophomore Years of College Course.
Lake and Forested Campus nine miles from Asheville.
Modern Dormitories, well equipped Library and Laboratory.
Athletics, Receptions, Literary Societies, Religious Activities.
One Christian Teacher with Education and Experience to every 15 pupils.
An excellent Gateway from the Restrictions of a Good High School to the Responsibilities of Professional and Business Life.

For Catalogue and other information address:
C. H. TROWBRIDGE, President, Weaverville, N. C.

Cullowhee Normal and Industrial School

CULLOWHEE, N. C.

CO-EDUCATIONAL

A standard two-year State Normal School, preparing teachers for elementary schools. Three distinct curricula:
(a) For teaching in primary grades, leading to Primary B Certificate.
(b) For teaching in intermediate grades, leading to Grammar Grade B Certificate.
(c) For teaching in upper grades, leading to Grammar Grade B Certificate.

Enlarged faculty of specialists in teacher-training work; excellent practice school, with new building and equipment throughout; one of best girls' dormitories in state just being completed; dormitory for men; new central heating plant. Tuition free to North Carolina teachers.

The State also has a standard four-year high school here, which, while being distinct from the normal school work, is under the same management.

The school is in the picturesque Tuckasiegee River Valley, in Western North Carolina, fifty-five miles from Asheville; daily train and bus to central points. For information, write
H. T. HUNTER, PRESIDENT, CULLOWHEE, N. C.

FOUNDED 1838 CHARTERED IN 1859

TRINITY COLLEGE

DURHAM, N. C.

A Southern College of liberal arts with an established national reputation for high standards, noble traditions, and progressive policies. Its large endowment fund makes possible its first-class equipment and large faculty of well trained and carefully chosen teachers. Student fees low. Comfortable, inexpensive rooms in carefully supervised hygienic dormitories.

Classical and scientific courses leading to the bachelor's degree. Graduate courses in all departments. Schools of Engineering, Education, and Law.

For catalogue and illustrated booklet, address
R. L. FLOWERS,
Secretary to the Corporation.

What is your Annual Income?

You can increase it.
Represent us in your locality by selling our monuments and Memorials.
Many farmers and business men can make over $2,000 a year.

Write for particulars
COGGINS MARBLE CO.
22 Main St. Canton, Georgia

IN MEMORIAM

FULLER—William J. Fuller died at his home near Semora, N. C., June 10, 1923, at the ripe age of 71.

Brother Fuller had long been a faithful member of New Hope church on the Milton circuit. He suffered for more than a year with a dreadful kidney trouble which took him away. The writer was privileged to see and talk and pray with him once. All was well with his soul. Death had no fears for him, because he was ready to go. May God bless his memory and comfort his five children and many loved ones and friends who are left behind.

His pastor,
J. Bascom Hurley.

MYERS—Geneva Roella Myers was born July 19, 1874, was married May 23, 1907, and died July 30, 1923, being 49 years and 11 days old. She joined Liberty Baptist church in young girlhood. After her marriage she moved her membership to Fairgrove church, where she remained a consistent member till the day of her death. She suffered much pain, but was always patient and cheerful. Sister Meyers was a good woman and will be greatly missed in the community. May God's blessings rest upon her family and friends left behind.

T. B. Johnson, P. C.

TAYLOR—Allie Taylor was a young man of about twenty-one years old. He lived near Milton, N. C. He died in July, 1923, a victim of tuberculosis. He gave up last year, but made a brave fight to live. His was a beautiful spirit, cheerful and hopeful. He had a deep and abiding faith in his Saviour. Religion was a reality to him. He was a member of Connally church, and made it a point to be there every time he was able, and was always a willing worker. There can be no doubt as to his salvation. May God bless his influence to the good of all who knew him and loved him. May our merciful Father comfort all his loved ones.

J. Bascom Hurley.

DAVIS—Mrs. Isabella Davis died at her home near Milton, N. C., July 11, 1923. Sister Davis had been confined to her room for two or three years. Her health had been gradually getting worse for some time until her death. The funeral services were conducted at New Hope church, where she was a member, by Brother Stanford, pastor of Yanceyville circuit, in the absence of the pastor.

A beautiful Christian character has gone to her reward, and her godly influence and Christian patience were beautiful and helpful. Truly her children arise up and call her blessed. She is sadly missed in this community; but after all we are pilgrims and strangers and our home is not confined to any spot on this earth. Thanks be to God for his welcome home. May the Comforter strengthen the loved ones.

J. Bascom Hurley.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas, on May 25, 1923, death removed from among us one of our most beloved and one of our oldest members of the Woman's Missionary Society—Mrs. Nancy Etta Rudisill, wife of W. A. Rudisill; and whereas, we, the Woman's Missionary Society of the Lincolnton auxiliary, feel most keenly the loss of this dear member, therefore be it resolved:

First, That although our hearts are filled with sorrow at her going, we know our heavenly Father knoweth best and we yield our will to His.

Second, That while we shall miss her dear presence, the memory of her fidelity and goodness and sweetness will ever remain with us. Her children rise up and call her blessed.

Third, That we extend our deepest sympathy to her family and loved ones.

Fourth, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, a copy to the North Carolina Christian Advocate, a copy to our town papers, and a copy recorded in our minutes.

Mrs. L. A. Crowell,
Mrs. A. Nixon,
Mrs. K. H. Randall,
Committee.

SETZER—Wm. E. Setzer passed away August 3, 1923, being in his 63rd year. He was twice married, first in 1898 to Maggie Brawley, to which union six children were born, five of whom are living. After the death of his first wife he was again married to Missnie Sherrill. To this union five children were born, all of whom are living. For more than 30 years he has been a member of Bethel Methodist church; was a licensed exhorter, lay leader of Statesville circuit charge, and for five years superintendent of the Sunday school. Truly a useful man and will be greatly missed.

R. L. Melton.

BRINKLEY—Recently Mrs. Barus Brinkley finished her work on earth and went home to dwell with her heavenly Father. She was born September 20, 1888, and died July 24, 1923. She was married to Bro. Barus Brinkley on February 18, 1907. She united with the Methodist church at Parkers early in life and remained a member there until God called her home.

She leaves a husband, nine children, a father and mother and several brothers and sisters to mourn her loss.

Our hearts are touched with loving sympathy for the bereaved loved ones. May God in tender mercy comfort their hearts.

J. O. Long, P. C.

BOWERS—Margaret Katherine Bowers was born August 27, 1901, and died June 30, 1923. She was married to Avery Bowers October 19, 1922. She had many friends who loved her. To them she was loyal and true. She was converted and joined the church at Fairgrove at the age of 12 years. She was faithful and true to her church, having been a Sunday school teacher and worker. Katherine was the baby of a large family of children and was the first to be taken. The young husband, parents, brothers and sisters are heart-broken, though they know Katherine and her little babe are safe in the arms of Jesus. There by His love o'ershadowed sweetly their souls do rest.

T. B. Johnson, P. C.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

On Friday, April 13, 1923, God in His infinite love and wisdom called to Himself one of our beloved members, Mrs. Elizabeth Dowdy, born July 4, 1855. She died as she had lived, strong in faith. Through all her suffering she manifested a beautiful Christian spirit, and her life will ever be a guiding star to her children and light to her blind and feeble husband's footsteps. Mourning her loss so deeply, we resolve:

First, That the Ladies' Aid Society of Mt. Zion M. E. church bow in perfect submission to the will of God as she did.

Second, That we extend to her relatives our tenderest sympathy and pray that God may be with them in their bereavement.

Third, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, a copy spread upon our minutes and a copy sent the North Carolina Christian Advocate.

Sarah McHorney,
Gladys Evans,
Lessie Aydlett.

MAYHEW—Alice Anarah Elkins was born in Concord, N. C., January 17, 1860, married W. B. Mayhew at the age of 18, and died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. M. James, Pineville, N. C., April 1, 1923. She was born again at the age of 12 and joined the Methodist church, in which communion she had great peace and satisfaction through a long life.

The most wonderful thing in the world is not the flying machine nor submarine, not the use of steam and electricity, not radium, nor wireless telegraphy—transcending all these is the transforming power of Jesus Christ manifest in human beings. This miracle old, yet ever new, was manifest day by day in her life. She sat at the feet of Jesus and learned of Him. There she learned patience and poise; there she learned kindness in judging others; there she received positive convictions that made her stand firm when others were swayed by life's storm and stress.

Those who were with her at the last say that in her room there was a touch of heaven as she talked of her blessed Lord. Earthly philosophers

Aristocrats of the Cemetery

As in life some characters shine more brilliantly and stand as peers among their equals, so in the cemetery

Winnsboro Blue Granite

befittingly portrays life's characteristics and permanently perpetuates the memory correspondingly. Matchless in beauty, permanence, flawlessness, density, clearness of inscription.

Monuments Maintain Memories—Specify Winnsboro Blue Granite
Winnsboro Granite Corporation, Rion, S. C.

may enable one to go out into the next world with grim stoicism or determined resignation. It is left to the people of God to be able to go out with a song of rejoicing on our lips.

Seven children who survive and many friends know God better and have a surer knowledge of His power because of her faithful life and triumphant death.

J. A. Baldwin.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas, the Great Spirit from above has removed from our midst Mrs. Katie Sasser Bartlett; therefore, be it resolved:

First, That in her death Willing Workers Society has lost one of its loyal members, one who was ready to do all she could for the society and was always at the post of duty in her home and did all she could to make a happy home.

Second, Although we shall miss her sweet face and cheering words, we realize she has been called to a higher and greater service. We shall always cherish her memory and thank God for loaning her to us forty-four years.

Third, We extend to the bereaved husband and family our sincere and heartfelt sympathy in their great loss and trouble. We mingle our tears and pray God to comfort them in their sad hours and help them to always be ready to meet her own on the other shore.

Fourth, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of Willing Workers Society, a copy sent to Mr. Bartlett, her sisters and brother, and that they appear in the Goldsboro Record and the North Carolina Christian Advocate.

Miss Bessie Vail,
Mrs. A. M. Sheard,
Mrs. H. H. Howell,
Mrs. J. C. Peacock.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Mrs. Margaret Woodhouse was born in Pasquotank county, October 13, 1855, moved to Currituck county soon after her marriage to Major E. Woodhouse.

In her early life she joined Mt. Zion Methodist church and remained a faithful member until the morning of July 2, 1923, when she was called away.

She was a woman of original thought and mental as well as moral courage. She was a great sufferer, being an invalid for more than two years. She was a devoted mother, a faithful and lovable woman to her many friends. Mourning her loss so deeply we resolve:

First, That the Ladies' Aid Society of Mt. Zion M. E. church feel so keenly the loss of another of its members.

Second, That we extend to her husband, children and friends our deep and heartfelt sympathy in their great sorrow and commend them for comfort in their bereavement to the God of all wisdom who is able to sustain them by his loving power.

Third, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family of our deceased sister and a copy sent to the North Carolina Christian Advocate for publication.

Mrs. W. C. Barco, Sec.
Nellie Barco,
Lessie Aydlett.

Church Pews at Special Prices
Now is your great opportunity to save money on new pews for your church.
Beautiful designs. Excellent workmanship. Selected seasoned lumber. Satisfaction Guaranteed.
No money in advance. Easy terms. Nothing could be fairer.
Write for illustrated circular and prices.
FORBES MFG. CO., Inc.
Hopkinsville, Kentucky.

The Sweet-Toned WILLIAMS PIANO
The highest-grade piano ever sold direct to homes and churches at the net factory price. Sent on trial. No agents. No money in advance. Easy terms. Nothing could be fairer.
Write today for FREE Catalog and Prices
WILLIAMS PIANO & ORGAN Co. 1256 Fullerton Ave., Chicago

HYMN BOARDS
of the very best quality supplied at very reasonable cost by
LAMAR & BARTON
Nashville, Dallas, Richmond
San Francisco

NORTH CAROLINA Christian Advocate

Volume LXVIII

GREENSBORO, N. C., THURSDAY, AUGUST 23, 1923

No. 34

Harnessing Science and Religion

By Robert L. Kelly

One of the two greatest forces in our present civilization is science. Within the last fifty years science has brought into existence a new world. There are no wonder stories in all history equal to the wonder stories of modern science. The magic of the spectrum which reaches into the unmeasured depths of space, the wizardry of the geologist which discloses the history of the rocks, the uncanny insight of the biologist, the physicist, the chemist, and the psychist, and the daring imagination of the inventor are all registering marvelous achievement in intellectual adventure. The church college knows all these things and has kept its mind open to this phase of truth. It is part of the creed of the church college that this universe is a universe of law and order and it understands that the scientific method is the greatest instrument at the command of man in discovering this law and portraying this order.

The other great force of our civilization is the force of religion. The church college understands that revelation makes a contribution to truth as well as science. It knows that men had discovered much truth before modern science existed. It does not hesitate to recognize the validity of revealed truth as well as scientific truth. Much of this truth is to be found in the Bible. Much of it has been given to men through seers and prophets and apostles in the ages past and is being given to them in this age. The church college believes in a continuing revelation. It does not hesitate to open its windows toward Jerusalem. It is unhindered by law and tradition in its attempt to extend the influence of spiritual truth.

Church College "Alert."

In a word, it undertakes to interpret the message of the Great Teacher who long before science was invented declared "I am the Way, the Truth and the Life." It understands that this means that the church college must be alert to and authoritative in the problems of scholarship, the problems of physical education, the problems of the development of the spirit and the problems of social service. For the Great Teacher set forth the fundamental program of man in each one of these fields.

The question is asked: "What is your strongest argument in behalf of the training of distinctively Christian leaders?" The most imperative necessity for Christian leaders arises out of the job which needs to be done. The job is to reconstruct a world made chaotic by the very multiplication of scientific facts yet unorganized, by the upheavals of social revolution and the malignant passions of men. No semblance of unity has yet been obtained in the material world with which science deals. We know more than we know what to do with. Much of what science has given us as yet merely amuses us. It has not become serviceable. We do not know what to do with the wireless, or with the aeroplane, or with the radio, or with a thousand other discoveries and inventions. The world of materials must be made to function.

And yet in spite of all these difficulties, we must admit that the scientists have been doing more in their field to fulfill the command of the Lord to subdue the earth than have the devotees of religion. Within the past few years there has been a display of the violent passions of men—of hatred, jealousy, revenge, uncontrolled ambition, of individual and national selfishness in many forms—which the world has not witnessed before and which the modern world did not think possible. As a result of these upheavals in the social realm nations have become bankrupt or have ceased to exist and civilizations are discredited. There is but one solution.

Super-Men Required.

The job before us seems to require super-men. It means that all these broken fragments must be pieced together. It means that intellectual and ethical unity must be attained. There is but one Architect known to men for such a task as this. He has given the world the plans and specifications for a work of reconstruction even of this magnitude. These plans and specifications are found in the Sermon on the Mount. They are found partially stated in Lincoln's Second Inaugural and in the Gettysburg Speech. They are the only plans and specifications that have ever worked. The contractors on this big new job must be under the guidance of this Architect. The church college is attempting to equip these contractors for this most important task.

They need science because it gives them eyes and ears and hands; they need religion because it gives them heart and conscience and connects them with infinite resources of power.—Christian Advocate (N. Y.)

PRESS UP AND ON

Beyond the veil the way continues to ascend. The soul which has acquired the habit of climbing continues to climb. There are higher heights—who dares name them? There are divine visions—who dares portray them? There are more than angelic songs—how futile to try to strike them till the harp be strung! But there is one who gathers in Himself the measures of all possible heights, the sights of all visions, and the melodies of all possible songs. At the mention of His name the soul which has conquered the altar stairs, presses up and on, along the glory heights. His name is God.—J. I. Vance.

The worst part of martyrdom is not the last agonizing moment: it is the wearing daily steadfastness. Men who can make up their minds to hold out against the torture of an hour have sunk under the weariness and the harass of small prolonged vexations. And there are many Christians who have the weight of some deep communicable grief pressing, cold as ice, upon their hearts. To bear that cheerfully and manfully is to be a martyr. There is many a Christian bereaved and stricken in the best hopes of life. For such a one to say quietly, "Father, not as I will, but as thou wilt," is to be a martyr.—F. W. Robertson.

SHOES AND CHARACTER

By S. D. Gordon.

Shoes divide men into three classes. Some men wear their fathers' shoes. They make no decisions of their own.

Some men are shod by the crowd. They unthinkingly decide to follow the throng. The strong man is his own cobbler. He insists on making his own choices. He walks in his own shoes.

Every man makes his own choices. And his choices make his character, and reveals it. This is the image in which man is made, this power of choice. This is man's distinctive characteristic. Every man is an absolute sovereign in his power of choice.

This explains why there is such a tense moral battle on. It's a battle for man's choice. The powers of evil lay siege to every man's will to win his choice. The Man on the Throne is ever wooing man to choose His way.

If that Man be in the Evil One is besieging to get in, if only by a hair. If the Evil One be in, that Man is warmly wooing to be allowed in, not by a hair, but all the way. And man decides.

Commonly, a decisive victory ends the conflict. That's history. When the daring Drake drove back the Spanish Armada that settled Phillip's ambitions to dominate England and Europe. When Nelson downed the French boats at Trafalgar that settled the Emperor on the water. And when Wellington faced Napoleon himself at Waterloo that settled him on land, and for good and all.

But here is an exception. Calvary was a pitched battle in the unseen spirit world. The Third Morning After was the decisive victory. The Man of Calvary was the victor. The unseen spirit power was stingingly defeated. Yet the decisive victory has not ended the conflict.

That Man wasn't fighting his own fight. He was fighting our fight and our foe. He offers us his victory, if we'll take and use it. But each man must decide.

We can't win alone. Long years have proven that. Two things must be tied together, that Man's victory and—our choice. But these two, Jesus and a set will—these are invincible. And the decisive factor humanly is our choice.

This is the biggest story of the old Book. Here is the first page. In a garden God says to his human companion: "Eat freely of all these trees. But here is one, the Tree of Choice. Please don't eat of it. I ask you not to, so that you may have the opportunity of showing your love by choosing what I prefer.

"But you choose. You may eat of it if you choose. You're free. Do you as you will. But, please, for love of me, use your power to keep in sweet touch. But you're free." That's the first page.

Now, the last page. A free translation makes the thought clearer. Listen: "He that is set in his choice on doing the thing that isn't right, still let him be utterly free to follow the bent of his choice, even though it be against the way I want him to go."

Then the same thing regarding the gutter stage of doing wrong. And then the same thing regarding choosing right. That's the last page.

Now, turn the leaves of the book, slowly, thinkingly. And, on every page, practically, is this: Choose; choose right; don't choose wrong; choose now. But—you choose. Choose as you choose. Either the word, or illustrations of good choice or bad—that really is the Book.

There's only one knob on the door of a man's heart. And that's on the inside. The Evil One can't come in till the man inside twists the knob and throws open the door. And God won't come in until the door opens freely to him.

Choice makes the man. Right choice strengthens the man. It lets his friendly God in. It defeats the Evil One.

Wrong choice weakens the man. It shuts God out. It lets the Evil One in. It stiffens up the joints of the choosing power. It's tougher work choosing right, easier choosing wrong.

And it's striking that wobbling indecision practically results as wrong decision does. The tempter is strengthened in his approach. God is still out. The door is not open to him. The will weakens. A wobbling will is a weakening will. Not choosing is choosing not to.

It is striking that, as a bit of mere psychology, choice of the Christ includes all moral choices. By common consent he stands for the purest and strongest and humanest.

Choice of Him opens the door for a new power to come into one's life. That power re-knits all the moral fibre of character. No conflicting choice can be made as long as one remains true to that one choice.

And life becomes a succession of choosings. Choice stares in at every window pane. It knocks at every door. It rings the bell unceasingly. It's wireless cries come on the wings of every wind. The darkness intensifies the call, and the light brings it sharper and closer home.

And peace of heart, without which there is no strength, comes only in right choice made and unwobblingly persisted in.

Leigh Hunt was right. A friend looing at his new painting, since so famous, of Christ knocking at the vine-clad door, said, "There's a mistake. You put no knob on the door."

And the painter quietly said, "There is only one knob to the door of a man's heart, and that's inside." Every man makes his character by the use of that knob.

A NOTABLE DAY IN MORGANTON

Sunday, August 12, was a notable day in the history of the First Methodist church at Morganton. Dr. C. G. Hounshell, beloved throughout our church, was the special preacher for the day. At the evening hour a farewell, God-speed service in honor of our recently appointed missionary representative, Miss Miriam F. Goodwin, was held. The great congregation, made from all the churches in the town, bespoke interest in Christ's kingdom here and across the seas and by its presence paid a fine tribute of respect and esteem for the family and daughter who give of their best to Him who gave Himself to save a lost world. The addresses of Dr. Hounshell and Dr. W. F. Powell, pastor of the First Baptist church in Nashville and special friend of the Goodwin family, were thoroughly enjoyed and made lasting impressions for good. The representatives of the various departments of the church—Mrs. J. T. Perkins for the missionary societies, and Mr. Joe Kjellender for the Sunday school and of the pastor, told finely of the happenings coming to the church and city through the splendid work of Miss Goodwin. As a pleasing feature of the service Mrs. J. L. Rendleman of Salisbury sang at Miss Goodwin's request, "Oh, Jesus, I Have Promised." The entire evening marked a truly great service, and it should mean the beginning of an epoch in the history of our church in this community. Let prayer be made continuously for those who labor for the Master in the foreign lands.

I plucked an acorn from the greensward, and held it to my ear, and this is what it says to me: "By and by the birds will come and nest in me. By and by I will furnish shade for the cattle. By and by I will provide warmth for the home in the pleasant fire. By and by I will be shelter from the storm to those who have gone under the roof. By and by I will be the strong ribs of the great vessel, and the tempest will beat against me in vain, while I carry men across the Atlantic." "Oh, foolish little acorn, wilt thou be all this?" I ask. And the acorn answers, "Yes, God and I."—Abbott.

There is a life beyond this: and there is reason to hope, there is reason to believe, that the silver cords which are broken here shall be brought together again there: that the golden bowl shall be restored never to be broken again: that the pitcher shall never more be broken at the fountain, nor the wheel at the cistern; and that there shall be joy in the presence of God over a noble community of men made perfect, and ransomed from the flesh.—Beecher.

A YOUNG MINISTER ANSWERS THE FINAL CALL

Grady Rowe Mann, age 24, died in a Greensboro hospital Wednesday, August 15, following an operation for appendicitis. He had been ill one week.

The funeral services were held at 10 o'clock Friday morning, August 17, in Spring Garden Street church, of which he was a member. Rev. G. T. Bond, the pastor, was assisted in the services by Rev. W. F. Womble, presiding elder of the Greensboro district, and Rev. L. B. Hayes, pastor of Park Place church. A large company of friends assembled for these solemn services and Rev. G. T. Bond paid a just tribute to the character of this young man of promise who has been cut off in early life. An outline of Brother Bond's address follows:

Youngest son of the late Rev. George P. Mann and Carolina Elizabeth Mann, was born in Franklin, N. C., May 3, 1897. Passed from this life at the age of 26 years, three months and 12 days.

Converted in early childhood. Joined Spring Garden Street Methodist Episcopal church during the pastorate of Rev. N. R. Richardson.

In 1918, having for some years felt the call to preach the gospel, he entered Rutherford College to prepare himself for the great task.

In 1922 he was licensed as a local preacher by the Greensboro district conference which was held at Ramseur, N. C.

Characteristics.

1. Modest and retiring.
2. Communed with his own heart.
3. Thought a thing through for himself.
4. Moved carefully and positively along all lines of work and thought. Ill last year before district conference. He was then too ill to be present but made a good report.
5. Abiding and high sense of honor.
6. Frank in his methods of dealing. His life was transparent. You never had to guess where he stood.
7. Unquestionable Christian character without cant or hypocrisy.
8. True to his own convictions after weighing the advice of his friends.
9. Choice of a career clearly indicated the high ideals which moved him to prefer serving rather than being served.
10. He was a Christian who lived and thought in a rare way, and was not understood except by close friends unto whom he opened the gates of his life. He lived for a quarter of a century and passed bravely beyond without having left the stigma of sin on any soul.

Over the river they beckoned to me,
Loved ones who've crossed to the farther side;
The gleam of their snowy robes I see,
But their voices are drowned by the rushing tide.

There's one with ringlets of sunny gold,
And eyes, the reflection of heaven's own blue;
He crossed in the twilight gray and cold,
And the pale mist hid him from mortal view;
We saw not the angels that met him there,
The gates of the city we could not see;
Over the river, over the river,
My brother stands waiting to welcome me,
And I sit and think when the sunset's gold
Is flushing river and hill and shore.
I shall one day stand by the water cold,
And list for the sound of the boatman's oar;
And when perchance the well known hail
Again shall echo along the strand,
I shall pass from sight, with the boatman pale,
To the better shore of the spirit land.
I shall know the loved who have gone before,
And joyfully sweet will the meeting be,
When over the river, the peaceful river,
The angel of death shall carry me.

Let us be only patient, patient; and let God our Father teach His own lesson His own way. Let us try to learn it well, and learn it quickly; but do not let us fancy that He will ring the school bell, and send us to play before our lesson is learnt.—Charles Kingsley.

PEOPLE AND THINGS

Western North Carolina Conference, Winston-Salem, October 17.

North Carolina Conference, Elizabeth City, November 14.

Rev. and Mrs. R. L. Beasley announce the marriage of their son, Lancelot Ruffis, to Miss Lucille Dalby, Norfolk, Va.

Rev. J. Frank Armstrong and family of Forest Hill, Concord, left Monday morning of this week for a ten day motor trip through the mountains.

Rev. S. T. Barber last week assisted Rev. J. B. Thompson in a revival at Conway, and he is this week in a meeting at Colerane on the Ahoskie charge.

Rev. M. A. Osborne of Epworth, Concord, assisted his neighbor, Rev. W. A. Rollins, at Boger's Chapel in a meeting recently. The people say it was good preaching, too.

Rev. W. A. Jenkins and family of Central church, Concord, are spending the month of August at Lake Junaluska. However, "Billy" is not idle. He declares he is going to school four hours a day.

Rev. J. Frank Armstrong of Forest Hill, Concord, assisted Rev. W. T. Albright in a meeting at St. Paul's last week. Brother Albright is wisely leading the flock on Mt. Pleasant charge.

Rev. R. F. Mock and his family of Harmony, Concord, have just returned from an extended vacation trip that carried them through Western North Carolina, East Tennessee and Southwest Virginia.

On August 18, 1923, in the Methodist church at Burnsville, N. C., Miss Grace Hyatt of Burnsville and Mr. R. P. Dayton of Fort Worth, Texas, were nited in marriage, Rev. J. B. Tabor officiating.

Dr. T. F. Marr spent last Sunday in Concord, preaching two strong sermons and holding quarterly conferences. He was at Central in the morning and Forest Hill at night. Dr. Marr is decidedly popular among the Concord Methodists.

Rev. J. L. Smith reports a good meeting at Carver's Creek: "We have just closed a great revival at Carver's Creek church. Forty or more conversions and reclamation; twelve received on profession of faith; six infants baptized. Rev. C. Rowland, of the Central Texas conference, did the preaching and did it well.

Rev. W. L. Dawson closed a meeting last Sunday at Lee's Chapel near Greensboro. There were 31 professions and 26 joined the church and four others have given their names. There has been 162 professions and 132 have joined the church this year on the Summerfield circuit and Brother Dawson has one other meeting to hold at Pisgah second Sunday in September.

Rev. D. V. York writes us from Texas as follows: "I have just closed a meeting here in central Texas with 50 conversions and 26 additions to the Methodist church, and nearly as many more went to other communions. I have a large tabernacle meeting on hand just north of Altus, Oklahoma, my home town, which will close my year's work. The tabernacle was built especially for this meeting. I have had just about 1,000 conversions this conference year."

Rev. R. F. Taylor, the pastor at Stedman, sends us this interesting bit of news: "Just at the close of our prayer services at the Methodist church here last night (August 15) a beautiful marriage was solemnized by the pastor, R. F. Taylor, assisted by the Baptist minister, Rev. Mr. Turner—Prof H. R. Totten of Chapel Hill, N. C., and Miss Addie S. Williams of Stedman, N. C. Immediately after the marriage the happy couple left on their wedding tour north."

Rev. W. T. Albright has a meeting going on this week at Cold Springs church on the Mt. Pleasant circuit. The services are intended for all the churches of that charge. The meeting began last Sunday with a sermon at 11 o'clock by Rev. Z. E. Barnhardt, pastor of Centenary church, Winston-Salem, and a sermon at night by Rev. J. H. Barnhardt, pastor of West Market Street, Greensboro. Cold Springs is the home church of the "Barnhardt boys." Rev. W. L. Dawson arrived Monday and is doing the preaching through the week. Special music has been provided and a great revival is in prospect.

Dr. R. F. Bumpass left last Monday for a stay of three weeks at the celebrated health resort at Battle Creek, Michigan. Brother Bumpass has arranged to have his pulpit supplied during his absence. The stay at Battle Creek will unquestionably prove both enjoyable and beneficial to this devoted servant of the church.

A life long reader of the Advocate at Hillsboro wrote us under date of August 9, requesting us to publish a piece about a dear girl who had died almost a year ago, but the writer of the letter evidently forgot to sign his or her name, and we do not know with whom to communicate. If the writer will send the article in question we will be glad to grant the request of this unknown writer.

Evangelist Walter Holcomb, by invitation of Bishop H. A. Boaz, will go to Japan, Korea and Manchuria, where, in co-operation with the bishop, he will conduct evangelistic services. This is the second such trip by this experienced evangelist. The last year was spent in Europe with Bishop Beauchamp. When one considers that the evangelist must speak through an interpreter and that great success has attended his labors, the needs of the field and response of the people may be well understood.—St. Louis Christian Advocate.

Rev. J. B. Fitzgerald sends us this interesting note: "We have closed two extra good revivals on the Davie circuit. At Oak Grove Rev. R. H. Kennington did the preaching. The church was greatly strengthened by this gospel preacher. At Liberty Rev. M. A. Osborne did the preaching. He preached the plain, simple gospel and the people gladly heard and heeded the truth. As a result of this revival there were forty-five conversions and twenty-five accessions to the church and a number to join other children. Pray that this good work may continue."

Rev. W. R. Ware sends us the following interesting news items: "I have recently helped in three protracted meetings—Brothers Brittain at Dysartsville, Goforth at Glen Alpine, and J. A. Fry at Spruce Pine. In all these meetings the good Lord was graciously present. Believers were edified and strengthened in the Christian life, backsliders were reclaimed, and sinners professed conversion. More than twenty were added to the Methodist church on profession of faith. Several family altars were erected, and a number of infants were baptized. The brethren I helped were very considerate, the people kind, and I had a good time spiritually and otherwise. I greatly enjoy getting out and helping my brethren. It is good for my religion to do this. It has been the custom of my life, and I would not know how to spend a year without this spiritual and fraternal feast in revival meetings. Our meeting will begin in Morganton the third Sunday in September. May the good Lord favor us with a glorious revival. After two weeks of recreating in the mountains, I hope to return to my work prepared for a successful and satisfactory closing of my year's work here and to go to conference with a report that will be pleasing to God."

DR. W. P. HARRISON ON PLENARY INSPIRATION

Mr. Editor:

I send you the following editorial by Dr. W. P. Harrison, the former distinguished editor of the Methodist Quarterly Review, taken from the October number, 1891.

O. H. Allen.

"I believe that the Bible is the Word of God. Holy men of old, anointed by the Spirit of God, and under the influence of this infallible guide they have stated the facts, announced the doctrine and recorded the revelation that God gave to men through the means of the sacred volume. In the plenary inspiration of the Scriptures I see the proofs of a divine power preserving the sacred writers from any and every error in the statement of facts, from every mistake in the record of doctrine and from every misconception of the divine will in the declaration of revealed truth.

That theory of inspiration which makes the sacred writer to be only the pen of the Spirit, and contends for the actual selection of every word and its transfer to the memory of the writer, I believe to be unworthy of acceptance, because it degrades the human without in the slightest degree exalting the divine element in the composition of the sacred scriptures. But the inspired thought given to the penman by the Holy Ghost was left to take the form natural to and characteristic of the writer himself, the Holy Ghost meantime guarding against error in fact or expression, and sensibly approving the selection of the best words in the writer's use. Thus infallible truth appears in the distinctive forms that personal peculiarities have given it, without depending upon the sole authority of the sacred penman for its accuracy is point of fact or its completeness in point of doctrine.

It is the word of the Lord by the pen of Moses, David, Isaiah or St. Paul, and in this divine word there are neither contradictions in the statements of fact, nor inconsistencies in the records of doctrine. Every age of the world's history has contributed somewhat to explain and illustrate that which, to the age preceding, was a subject of doubt or difficulty; and thus in the progress of our race every word of the Lord will be established, and the unity of purpose contained in the sacred books will be demonstrated beyond the possibility of a reasonable question."

"THE CHURCH IS A HOLY PLACE"

God is everywhere present and particularly so in His church, and knowing this as we do we should respect and reverence the holy house of God.

We have six days in the week in which to gossip and it would seem that we could spend a few hours on Sundays in God's house in silence and prayer.

We are Sunday after Sunday making out of the church of God a place of exchange of secular things in a verbal way.

It should be remembered that God is ever present in the church and the world should keep in silence before Him.

It is very common these days to hear persons refer to the church as an auditorium. If such ignorant persons would consult their dictionary they would find that a church and an auditorium are two separate and distinct buildings having no relation whatever to each other.

However, for such persons it would be far better if the church was an auditorium, as the latter would fit their manner of worship and deportment more so than dignity and holiness of a church.

Harry Daniels.

WHO WILL PAY FOR IT?

The Advocate received the following letter recently:

"I received your letter saying I owed you $—subscription. I am very sorry, but I am not financially able to pay this now. I haven't the money. My husband and I are very poor and we are trying to pay for a home and we have a little almost helpless girl that has fits and spinal trouble which we have to buy medicine for. I am very sorry not to get the Advocate. My grandfather was a Methodist preacher and I love to read my church paper, but cannot pay for it. So you will have to discontinue it."

Some one who can afford to do so or some church ought to pay for the Advocate for this good woman. Send us $4.00, just half of what she is due, and we will mark her up to 1924. Let us have your check. We have more than a dozen calls like this and could use a nice sum in helping those who want to read the Advocate to do so. Send us a check and we will make it do good for you.

CLEAN-UP PERIOD CHRISTIAN EDUCATION MOVEMENT

On the first of November the third installment on Educational subscriptions will be due. On looking over my lists I find that there are many who have not paid their pledges for the first and second years. It is very important that this be done before the beginning of the third year. Hence, we are taking the period of September 1st-15th to clean up as far as possible all pledges which are past due. I am making an appeal to the local church collectors to see everyone who is in arrears and try to get a payment. I shall appreciate it very much if the pastors will speak a good word for the cause during the next two weeks and if the educational committee will help the collector in securing these funds.

Let me also request that every delinquent subscriber who reads this article should hand to his local collector the amount now due on his Educational subscription.

H. M. North, Sec. and Treas.,
Christian Education Movement, N. C. Conf.

Historical Sketch of Old Union Church

By Miss Dora Redding

A church could scarcely have been located in a more historic place than was Old Union. In 1779, when Randolph county was formed out of a part of Rowan and Guilford counties, the first court house was built about two miles from this place. The first court house was a small, log structure with only one room, where the courts and business of the county was transacted for nine years, when a large two-story frame court house was built. The nails in this building were made in a smith shop nearby and the planks were sawed by hand. The new court house was just west of what is now known as Brown's X Roads. The name of the new village, or county seat was Johnsonville, in honor of Samuel Johnson, who was governor of North Carolina at that time. It was at Jacksonville that a tall young man entered the court house and produced a license authorizing him to practice law in the several counties. This young man was Andrew Jackson, who was later the seventh President of the United States.

Col. David Fanning, one of the most daring bandits of Revolutionary days, one whose very name caused terror among men and women alike, did some of his dreadful work in this section.

After the battle of Guilford Court House in March 1781, Cornwallis and his army had their headquarters at the Bell mill for two days and had the use of the mill.

Many other events of interest could be mentioned, but we are dealing with the history of Old Union church. However, there are a number of years of which we have no record. William Bell, who was the first sheriff of Randolph county and later a member of the House of Commons in the General Assembly of North Carolina, lived at the Bell mill near Walker's mill on Deep river. Mr. Bell was the owner of a vast territory of land, including the land on which this church now stands. Feeling that there should be something done for the uplift of the community, and that religious instruction was being neglected, he decided to build a church and let the various Christian denominations worship in it. This church was a log building and was erected in 1786. It was called Bell's Meeting House. The next account we have of Bell's Meeting House was in December, 1801, when two brothers, William and John McGee, sons of Mattie Bell and stepsons of William Bell, commenced what was the first camp meeting ever held in this section of the state. The meeting continued till some time in January, 1802. John McGee was a Methodist minister, while his brother William was a Presbyterian minister. They were assisted in the meeting by other preachers. About this time a great revival of religion swept over the country, remarkable for its extent and results. John McGee, describing one of the camp meetings, says: "Preaching commenced, the people prayed and the power of God came down. There was a great cry for mercy. The nights were truly awful. Some were exhorting, some were shouting, others were lying on the ground as dead men. Some penitents fled to the woods and their groans could be heard all through the grove, and many came into the camp rejoicing and praising God. In the meeting both the saved and the unsaved had what they called the "jerks." Men would lose control of themselves and have all sorts of unnatural movements, contortions and conditions." Much has been said about Mattie Bell and her wonderful bravery as a Revolutionary heroine, but we lose sight of the fact that she was the mother of the men whom God used to bring about such a spiritual awakening in this community. Mrs. Bell and the McGee brothers have many descendants still living in this community, a number of them being among the most active members of this church today. Mrs. Sarah Swaim and Mrs. Louisa Aldridge are great-granddaughters of Mrs. Bell. John and William McGee went to Tennessee, where they kept up their evangelistic work with great success, while their mother and her second husband, Mr. Bell, lived and died at the Bell mill, and graves can be seen in the old burial ground in a grove half a mile east of this place.

After the camp meeting of 1801-02 the name of the church was changed from Bell's meeting house to Old Union church, and while all denominations were allowed to use the church it was considered a Methodist place of worship.

In about 1845 another camp meeting was held here, but we are unable to find out anything more about it. After that time there were services in the old church at intervals till about 1850. Among others who preached here was Rev. Joshua Robbins, who preached here once a month, usually on Saturday, when every one quit their work and went to church.

Mr. Solomon Wall, one of the most prominent citizens as well as a fine type of Christian gentleman, bought much of the land once belonging to William Bell, including the land where Old Union church stands. In 1853 Mr. Wall deeded five and one-half acres of land to the trustees of Old Union Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and the church which stands here at this time was erected about that time. The first trustees of the church were Thomas White, Charlie Lines, Thos. K. Hanner, S. W. Wall, Woodward White and Jesse Mulnix. Probably among the first stewards were Jesse Walker, Solomon Wall and perhaps others.

Rev. B. F. Guthrie held a great revival here in 1856. Many were converted and joined the church. Mr. Guthrie was here later in a meeting and greatly endeared himself to the people. He went as an army chaplain during the Civil War and was killed.

The list of pastors in the early history of the Southern Methodist church at Old Union cannot be given in order; in fact, the list is not complete. We find in the conference journals the names of the following ministers who served the charge at some time: Revs. N. A. Hooker, George F. Wyche, James Needham, Zebedee Rush, W. C. Norman, J. W. Lewis, J. B. Alford, J. H. Robbins, Solomon Helsabeck, Joseph C. Thomas and Dougan C. Johnson. Rev. Dougan C. Johnson was a member of the first graduating class of Trinity College. He served the church as pastor at two different times. During these years Old Union had been a part of the Asheboro circuit. In 1874 the Randolph circuit was formed and Old Union became a part of it. The first pastor to serve the new charge was Rev. J. F. Craven. He was followed by Rev. Charles H. Phillips. Every one has heard of "Uncle Charlie Phillips," but few are here now who really knew him. He drove a large bay horse hitched to a gig. He nor the horse ever seemed to get in a hurry, but he was always at the church on time and came with a message that no one forgot. As he preached Mrs. Polly Coltrane, Mrs. Nellie York and Mrs. Ibbe Adams frequently shouted, and everyone felt that it was good to be here. A granddaughter and two great-grandsons of "Uncle Charlie" are members of Old Union church at this time. Rev. R. T. N. Stephenson was the next pastor and he was followed by Dr. Frank H. Wood, who was pastor of the church in 1886 when a camp meeting was held, just one hundred years after the first old log church was built. Mr. R. R. Ross, Col. J. E. Walker and Dr. W. A. Woollen took a prominent part in planning and arranging for this camp meeting. A number of the members of Old Union church also took an active part in helping build the arbor and tents. A splendid arbor was erected which was fifty by ninety-five feet with a seating capacity of twelve hundred. The tents were well built and comfortable to stay in. A nice fence enclosed the arbor and tents to keep the people from driving too near the grounds. The following people left home cares and business duties and moved into the tents to help take care of the visitors at the meeting: Dr. W. A. Woollen, Messrs. David Coltrane, J. E. Walker, J. H. Ferree, S. W. Wall, J. A. Wall and mother, Robert Welborn, M. C. Ridge, R. R. Ross and Henry Dicks. Those who remained over with these good people were made to feel at home. Dr. Wood was in charge of the meeting, and that means that nothing was left undone that could be done for the success of the occasion. The ministers present were Revs. L. S. Burkhead, R. P. Troy, W. H. Pegram, I. F. Kearns, R. M. Greter, F. H. Wood, J. B. Bobbitt and the presiding elder, Rev. V. A. Sharpe. The crowd on Sunday was immense. It was estimated at three thousand. Prof. G. E. Leonard had charge of the music during the entire meeting. On Monday and again that night a number of people came to the altar for prayer. The indications were that the meeting was going to be a great one. Just after the close of the service on Monday night a great quake came which filled the people with awe. Many there were who felt as they never had before their helplessness and their entire dependence upon an all wise God. The meeting closed on Friday night with about twenty accessions to the church, and the church members generally were spiritually strengthened.

In 1887 another camp meeting was held. It was not convenient for some who tented here the year before to come back this year, but others took their places and the tents were all filled. Mr. W. L. Adams and Mr. Samuel Aldridge were added to the list of ten holders this year. Like the camp meeting of 1886 this one was largely attended. The church was greatly revived and a number were converted. After this camp meeting the tents were moved away and no more camp meetings have been held. The arbor was left standing for a few years and was used during the summer for services, and especially for the annual protracted meetings.

The pastors following Dr. Wood were Revs. W. M. Bagby, J. E. Woosley, G. E. Eaves, J. M. Price, Price, R. S. Webb, Albert Sherrill and B. F. Hargett. At this time in 1907 our connection was severed from the Randolph circuit. It was necessary to make a new charge in order to have all of the churches supplied with pastors, consequently the new charge was called Asheboro mission, and Old Union was a part of it. Yes, we were sore, for we felt that we had been thrown out of our own home, but that feeling only lasted till we saw and heard our new pastor preach. We realized from the first that we had gained not only a new pastor, but a friend—one who was always ready to share the sorrows as well as the joys of everyone. That pastor was Rev. R. L. Melton. We were later served by Revs. R. A. Taylor, J. L. McNeer and J. D. Gibson. Mr. Gibson had started on his second year and was a faithful pastor. He died in February, 1914. At that time it seemed again that there was no place for Old Union, when through the influence of Rev. G. H. Christenberry we were placed on the Randleman charge. Mr. Christenberry was the pastor at that time. Since then the pastors have been Revs. A. R. Bell, W. L. Dawson, J. A. J. Farrington, J. A. Cook and J. A. Bowles. From history we find that many of the early pastors were among the best preachers in the conference, and since the members of Old Union who are now living can remember there has never been a pastor of whom we could not feel proud. Each one deserves special mention, but time will not allow it. Besides the pastors there have been a number of other ministers here at different times who have been a great blessing to the place. Perhaps no minister has ever quite gained the place in the hearts of the people that Rev. Amos Gregson has. Having lived at Union Factory, now Randleman, the greater part of his life, everyone has heard their father and mother and possibly their grandparents speak of him in the highest terms. He probably preached at Old Union longer ago than anyone else now living, and he preached his last sermon here May 30th of this year.

The pastors have always had the co-operation of a loyal set of laymen. In the early history of the M. E. Church, South, at Old Union, Coltranes, Hanners, Welborns, Walls, Adams, Whites, Mulnix, Lines, Walkers, Swaims and many others were prominent supporters of the church. Many of their descendants are still active in church work. Who does not remember Dr. Woollen? He came into the church very quietly, walked down the aisle and took his seat in the amen corner. A more humble, earnest prayer was never offered in Old Union church than he could pray, and his exhortations would reach the hardest heart. The stewards were made to rejoice each year when Dr. Woollen and T. J. Redding would say to them before conference, "Do what you can on collections and if there is a deficit send us the bill." The bill was always sent. The stewards and trustees at this time are W. L. Adams, Ed Swaim, J. T. Coggins, E. J. Nance, J. W. Newby, J. A. Wall, S. L. Adams, Thomas Swaim, Mrs. E. J. Nance and R. L. Bardner.

Old Union is represented in a number of states in the Union. Three of the former Sunday school superintendents are in three different states. Mr. J. M. Johnson is in Tennessee, Mr. Q. F. Beckerdite is in Missouri and R. C. Welborn in Kansas.

Down to the present time: It is not out of place to say that our present pastor, Mr. Bowles, is doing all he can to help Old Union people spiritually and to make this a better community to live in. Mr. Charles Coggins is a faithful Sunday school superintendent, always at his post when the Sunday school hour arrives. Miss Verla Coltrane, the organist, who is a great-great-granddaughter of Mattie Bell can be depended upon to be in her place as organist and then as teacher of a class. The Sunday school teachers, assistant organist and others are very faithful also.

As this is a time when people are leaving the farm and going to town, and there have been a number of deaths our church membership is not large, neither do we always have large congregations, but Old Union is still making some history that may be interesting reading in the years to come.

A number of other people deserve mention, and there are other events of interest that may be recorded later as we get together and really learn more of the history of Old Union.

SEEING THINGS AT JUNALUSKA

Rev. J. H. Barnhardt.

No, I will not admit it: Lake Junaluska is no hobby of mine. But I can tell a good thing when I see it—particularly when I keep seeing it. Talking about hobbies reminds me of what the crazy man said about the difference between a hobby and a horse; he said you can "get off of a horse."

Every man who writes should have a reason for doing so—or an excuse. It may ease matters just a little for me to state that the gentlemen in charge of the Christian Advocate are responsible for this article being written. That is the excuse. And since I am just back from "the lake," they suggested some feeble remarks anent that subject.

Be it known, therefore, that I, in common with a variable number of other people, have been endeavoring to go through with the annual tug of taking a vacation. And while I had rather not do it, I have learned to nerve myself with what grace I may against the fourth Monday night in June, at which time I know from past experience that the official board is going to suggest that I "get off" at my convenience for a little rest. That is considerate and courteous in them, and their kindness is duly appreciated. Were it not for a little stimulus applied at the home base, many a man would stay on the job constantly until he wrecked both the job and his own health. The object now is to keep fit rather than cure oneself after becoming sick, and a good rule it is. Therefore, taking vacations are on a par with a custom we used to have down on the farm of taking "lion's tongue" bitters in the spring of the year in order to build ourselves up physically and thus forestall any lurking disease which might strike us down and interfere with our work in the busy season ahead. But I don't mind confiding to a waiting world that I usually look forward to a vacation very much as I used to anticipate having a spell of measles after having been unwittingly exposed to it by sleeping with the hired hand. I knew it had to come and the sooner it was over the better. I find myself somewhat in the mood to sympathize with a certain gentleman in Alabama who was unfortunately in the penitentiary for some offense. His wife, who was pleading for his pardon, was asked by the board on what ground she based her plea for clemency? She replied: "Well, he don't like it down there and would be a heap better satisfied at home."

Now, it must be fully understood that these remarks are not to be considered derogatory to the mountains nor to the seashore. We make to ourselves friends of these, that when we fail, they may receive us into their habitations. And so, it came to pass that I journeyed once more to the Capital of Southern Methodism. In connection therewith, I now make a significant confession, which, in fact, the reader may already have suspected, that I give myself credit for having more than ordinary intelligence, and hereby cite my custom of going to Junaluska as a sufficient evidence of the same. By a process of elimination, I have settled down to the conviction that this is the most congenial spot for me to spend awhile in summer. It is an entrancing place in every particular. The setting is gorgeous, the surroundings are ideal, and the scenery is unrivalled for beauty. In the spirit of the new rich woman who was traveling through the Alps, "I like nature because it is so natural." I really believe there is more natural, undefiled, unspoiled beauty about Junaluska, and fewer superficial, sex-ridden, God-forsaken diversions, than I have found in the same area anywhere else I have been. Yet it is a place which is filled with all wholesome, satisfying, legitimate forms of recreation for all ages and tastes, besides carrying at all times throughout the season profitable programs of entertainment, study, and research for people who have learned to make the most of their vacations by combining suitable and pleasant work with play in an environment of marvelous beauty and attractiveness.

Junaluska As It Is.

There are thousands of Methodists who have never yet caught a vision of the present magnitude of Junaluska nor of its vital relation to the church of the future. It is, and will continue to be, great as a playground; but it is more than that. It is even now a sort of demonstration station where the teachings of Jesus may be applied in a practical way to all the departments of life in which the Christian is interested. And it will be increasingly so in the future. A great many of us preach a social gospel at home, and then proceed to annul all we have preached on that subject for eleven months by patronizing resorts in August whose practices are covertly or openly antagonistic not only to the social teachings of Jesus, but to His teachings as a whole, particularly as touching the great institutions of Christianity such as the Sabbath, the home, etc. It is foreign to my intentions to create the impression that there is at Junaluska a prayer-meeting atmosphere all the while, for that impression, if made, would not be true to the facts, but I do assert as a fact that Junaluska, almost more than any other place I know, does exemplify in spirit and in every day life, the injunction of the great apostle who exhorts us: "Whether ye eat or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God." I never stand at the entrance to Junaluska and sweep the graceful lines of its picturesque lake and drink in the virgin glory of the surrounding hills against which is silhouetted the blazing cross of Calvary, that I do not seem to hear afresh the alluring voice of the Man of Galilee saying to His comrades in the stress of their physical weariness: "Come ye apart into a desert place and rest awhile."

When I think of what the church is doing there for the young people of her communion, as well as all others, I rejoice that God has given her foresight and insight and a form of sound wisdom and statesmanship sufficient for her to work out as she has done there a practical application of Christianity to all the problems of life. And, furthermore, I have a feeling of pride in it all very much after the manner of the small boy who, upon being asked to give his father's name, said: "His surname is Johnson, but his Christian name is Methodist."

Never in the history of the place has there been such a crowd of visitors as during the present season. The management was all smiles; in fact, they reminded me of the little girl who laughed out loud at something which amused her, and explained by saying that she was smiling and the smile "busted." Every hotel, cottage, tent has been crowded to its capacity. I heard some perfectly respectable people say they were sleeping in Evangelist Thurston B. Price's garage and were faring much better than if they were at home in the heat. But the management has taken good care of all who have come and are already making arrangements to handle comfortably all who may come another year. The new Sunday school building is a great addition to the grounds and the Mission building, now in its second season, has filled a long felt want. Within the grounds a visitor may find almost any kind of accommodations he may wish and at almost any cost, from a nominal rate up.

A Big Industry.

Eating is a big industry up there. I would hate to have to cater to the abnormal, subnormal tastes of pampered femininity and the voracious, rapacious appetites of starving masculinity, lined up as I have seen it at the counter napkined and utensiled for the fray, in the hope of pleasing so wide a range of culinary absurdity. Usually the fellow who has least to eat at home complains the most and eats the loudest away from home. So far as I could tell there were but few complaints at this point, and those in charge of restaurants, cafeterias, and boarding places of all kinds performed their tasks well under some rather trying and difficult conditions, because everybody seemed to want to eat at once and were like a certain boy and his mother's pancakes—"he didn't need to be called, he was there already."

One day at the Lakeside cafeteria, after an unusually busy hour which had left every plate in the establishment soiled, the electric power which operates the big dish-washing machine was temporarily cut off. Nothing was to be done about it except to clean the dishes by hand, which duty was turned over to the colored servants about the place. Whether by accident or design, I know not, but very soon their voices were heard floating out over the air, to the accompaniment of clattering dishes, as they sang: "O Lord, send the power just now." Whether their prayer was answered I did not learn, but there was nothing wrong about their sense of appropriateness.

I was fortunate to be there during part of the laymen's conference conducted under the direction of the Board of Lay Activities of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. The program was an able and well balanced one—sane and helpful all the way through. The speakers were all sizeable men, and came to their engagements with notable zeal, ability, and careful preparation of their messages. I came as near seeing there as anywhere in recent years, the literal fact of men being aflame with conviction, blazing with zeal, and speaking with an unction which is characteristic of the pioneer; and it is pioneer work these men are doing in a large sense, for while some of the laymen of the church have always been active, and while their activities have added greatly to the efficiency of the whole church, it is true that the last General Conference in setting up the present organization has blazed the way for greater lay usefulness and added strength and power to this important branch of our organization. Our laymen are now furnished an almost unlimited task and they are seriously endeavoring to find that task and to equip themselves for the fulfillment of it under the leadership of the Holy Spirit.

A Word of Caution.

There is one word of caution that I feel led to speak in regard to the relation of Lake Junaluska to the various conferences which are held there every year under the direction of the boards of the church. It should be remembered that Junaluska as such does not put on any conferences. It only furnishes the facilities and material equipment whereby these conferences may be put on by the authorized agencies of the church acting through the boards which are the creatures of the General Conference. These boards, therefore, and not the assembly organization, are responsible for the programs given. Now, it stands to reason that the various speakers who appear on the platform there bring with them a variety of opinion touching the many subjects which are being discussed. It is a forum to which all kinds of wares are brought for exhibition, and not even the boards who are not directly interested in bringing the speakers can always know in advance just what is going to be said by them. In view of all this, it would be manifestly unfair and unjust to hold the assembly management responsible for any utterance made from the platform under the auspices of any board to whom the platform is turned over as the agent of the church.

This is written in an effort to clear up a slight misunderstanding at that point. Whatever may be one's opinions touching the present agitation in the church growing out of discussions radical or conservative, so far as Junaluska is concerned it has no opinion, and can have none in the nature of the case, and should not in justice be made the victim of any school. The individuals composing the corporation have opinions, but the corporation itself does not. This is only my personal conviction and I do not speak with any authorization from anybody connected with the assembly.

Well, just to show you that this is no hobby of mine, I will proceed to get off. But when you buy a ticket next summer, see that it reads: "Lake Junaluska, N. C."

The hot weather grind may boast of his zeal, but he will find himself at the end of the summer slightly run down at the heel.

NORTH CAROLINA CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

Official Organ of the North Carolina and Western North Carolina Conferences Methodist Episcopal Church, South. Established 1855.

Entered at the Postoffice at Greensboro, N. C., as mail matter of the second class, acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided in section 1102, act of October 2, 1917, authorized September 9, 1918.

Obituaries and Resolutions of one hundred words published free. All words above this number charged for at rate of 1 cent per word.

A. W. PLYLER ..... Editor
T. A. SIKES ..... Business Manager

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Year .....$2.00
Six Months ..... 1.00
To all preachers of the Gospel, year 1.00

FIELD NEWS

JUNALUSKA AND THE LAYMEN'S CONFERENCE

At the meeting of the Laymen's Conference, held at Lake Junaluska the week beginning August 9th and ending August 15th, a very fine program had been provided. I think there were about two hundred and fifty delegates who registered as attending this conference. Quite a number failed to register.

The meeting was a success from start to finish. No finer program has ever been enacted than was put over there at Junaluska. The speakers were men of eminence and ability. There might have been a difference of opinion as to some interpretations that were put upon things, but the Lay Activities Board is composed of men of mature thought and, in my judgment, everything that was done there, was calculated to make a man think and think seriously on the problems that confront the church in this day and time.

I was inspired to new ambitions to do more than I have ever done before in the church. I met many others who felt the same way. Of course, each man was there to stress his peculiar views on a certain subject and, naturally, there were different sides to each subject. There were some people who could not but express opposition to a man giving one side of a subject and the other side not having been answered by someone else. To have done that would have taken a good deal of time.

I am sure there were no unsound doctrines proclaimed there for the speeches were all of a high order, in fine spirit and calculated to do good.

The two Carolinas had the largest attendance of any other sections of the church. Oklahoma and Texas were pretty close after them and Virginia was well represented.

I could not help but wonder why our people don't take more interest in this Methodist Assembly Ground. There is nothing in this world any prettier than this is and the expense in going there is much cheaper than any other resort that I know of. The accommodations are as good as you could ask. The food was well prepared and as cheap as a reasonable person could ask. Rooms could be procured at a rate from 50 cents to $2.50 per day. The buildings are compact and easy of access to the auditorium. The sports are of an innocent character—golf, boating, fishing, rowing, tennis, croquet and other like amusements. There is no dancing pavilion on the place. Someone had suggested that if we could just introduce a dancing pavilion, possibly it would be more attractive to some of our church members. I am glad to say that that view was not taken seriously by the management, so there will be no dancing pavilion at Junaluska. There are only wholesome, innocent amusements up at Junaluska—things that are perfectly safe when it comes to morals.

The association is of the very finest—noting but the cream of all of the Southern church is to be found there, both men and women.

Horseback riding and tramping are popular sports. If you want to carry your automobile, there are fine roads and any number of excursion parties.

In fact, any amusement of an innocent character that does not degrade is to be had there.

So long as our church people fail to appreciate the value of a place where there is nothing but innocent amusements we need not be surprised if our children go astray. If those people who are now going to resorts where there is dancing, card playing and every other kind of worldly amusement going on would go to Junaluska they would have to have as many as five hotels to take care of them.

I am glad to say that the Junaluska Association grounds has, seemingly to me, reached a point where nothing can keep it from going. I think it is permanently established. While I was there everything was full and have been this way for two months.

The Epworth League and Evangelistic conferences were opening up the day I left. The programs for both of them seemed very fine.

There was some "rumpus" with regard to some teaching that had been done at the Sunday School Conference, but regretting that as much as I do I am sure that no sane person would hold that against the Junaluska grounds because one man came there and gave his views on a subject that was questionable as to whether it was wise to discuss it at all, and if at all not before a Sunday school conference. But that is a mistake. Why put it down as being of criminal intent? Just let's see that that is not done again and all will be well. We might take this as "Cyclone Mack" suggested when he came to Greensboro. He said that some people were opposed to some of his teachings, but he asked them to simply have the sense of a cow—when he put fodder and weeds before her she would root out the weeds and eat only the fodder. The same holds good with regard to the Junaluska conferences. The Junaluska grounds have demonstrated their success this year.

All those people who want a nice summer outing ground where people can enjoy innocent amusement and have intellectual entertainment certainly should make reservations for another year to encourage in every way we can this splendid program which laid out for the benefit of the Methodist people of the South.

Chas. H. Ireland.

A PLEA FROM JAPAN TO PREACH HELL FIRE

I notice occasionally that writers to the Advocate advise evangelists to be "more sparing of their use of hell fire" in evangelistic meetings. It may be true that some evangelists make their meetings hot with fire and brimstone, but is it not the tendency today to neglect to sound the warning that once made men fear and tremble and cry out saying, "Sirs, what must I do to be saved?"

Listen to John Wesley: "God and eternity are real things. Heaven and hell are in very deed open before you; and ye are on the edge of the great gulf. It has already swallowed up more than words can express, nations, and kindreds, and peoples, and tongues; and still yawns to devour, whether they see it or no, the giddy, miserable children of men. Oh, cry aloud! Spare not!"

By glancing through the sermons of Wesley you will see that he often warned men of hell, and he did it in plain, unmistakable terms. Are men less vile today than they were fifty, one hundred, two hundred years ago? Is hell less real now than then? Do men not need to be warned today as in days of old? Personally, I wish there was no hell; and I wish that I could preach a gospel without mentioning hell fire. But the same Bible that tells me of heaven, the home of the redeemed, tells me also of hell, the everlasting abode of the condemned. In the words of Bishop Hay, "I believe in a topless heaven, and a bottomless hell."

I will admit that it is not the most pleasant subject upon which man can discourse; it is perhaps not a popular subject; it is not a subject in which the masses are very deeply interested, especially those condemned, but it is, nevertheless, necessary that we sometimes preach upon it.

The Man of Galilee, who in the fourteenth chapter of John comforts his disciples by telling them of the "mansions in the skies," also gives in the ninth chapter of Mark a solemn warning of hell, describing it as a place "where the worm dieth not, and the fire is not quenched." Again, in the sixteenth chapter of Luke, where He tells us of the comfort of Lazarus in the bosom of Abraham, He also tells us of the torments of the rich man in hell.

Among the last things that Jesus said to the eleven before His ascension was: "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned." Then, is it not our duty as ministers of the gospel not only to preach salvation by faith, but also to warn men that through unbelief there is damnation—hell?

I. L. Shaver.

Gotemba, Japan, Aug. 2, 1923.

WHAT SCARRITT IS SEEKING THROUGH RELOCATION

Mabel K. Howell.

The decision to change the location of the Scarritt Bible and Training School from Kansas City has been reached as a result of very definite and compelling convictions on the part of a large majority of the board of managers—convictions resulting from a study of the demands of the work on the mission fields, and from a long experience in trying to meet the need for properly qualified workers, especially women. Those who administer the woman's work at home and abroad and those responsible to secure candidates have felt for a number of years the responsibility resting upon them to adjust the missionary training provided for women to the demands of the new day on the foreign fields, and also to enlarge its scope to meet the ever increasing calls of the church at home. In seeking to make this adjustment, the board has been convinced that a new location was absolutely essential. The church should know what Scarritt is seeking to gain by relocation.

(1) Scarritt expects to continue to maintain its separate organic entity as an institution for missionary training. The Scarritt Bible and Training School for more than thirty years has lived and worked as a vital part of the educational system of the church. More than one thousand young women have been trained for the service of the church within its walls, and have laid the foundation of missionary work among women and children in almost every mission field. Those who know intimately the foreign mission fields know that a type of woman missionary has been sent to the fields that has been so superior as to call forth considerable comment from other denominations. Scarritt has a large and influential body of alumnae. It has earned the right by its fruitage to maintain its separate life and to carry on its distinctive and unique contribution to the training of womanhood for Christian service. It does not seek to merge or blend its life with other institutions in its enlarged program. It expects to carry forward in its new location a full program of missionary training. The proposed "Greater Scarritt" is not a new institution, but an old and well establishlished institution seeking a new and better location and a more adequate program. This separate organic life is a "sine qua non" of the proposed plan.

(2) Scarritt is seeking a location central to the constituency of the church. The term "central" as descriptive of the new location that is being sought occurs in the report of the Joint Committee on Missionary Training, that was adopted by the Woman's Missionary Council and the Board of Missions at their annual sessions this spring. By the term "central" is meant a location central as between the two schools of theology and central as to the entire supporting constituency. The underlying cause in seeking a central location is that the new Scarritt may better serve the entire church and also in order to prevent a division of available assets which would inevitably follow were a new location chosen that would in any sense be regarded as sectional. If a central location can be secured that the entire supporting constituency will endorse, assets will be available that will make possible a very large and unque contribution to the work of the church at home and abroad.

A very careful statistical study of the membership of the church has been made with a view to determining what would be central. This reveals the fact that Memphis is very nearly central as regards church membership to the North and South and Nashville equally central as to membership to the East and West. Forty-six per cent of the membership lies to the north of Memphis and fifty-two per cent to the south, while forty-six per cent of the membership is to the west of Nashville and fifty-two per cent to the east, so that Memphis could be called central as to constituency north and south and Nashville central as to constituency east and west.

(3) In seeking a new location, Scarritt is seeking a center that will afford opportunity to supplement the courses which are essential to its own distinctive program, with such elective courses primarily in education that can be secured only in a teachers' college. From the foreign missionary standpoint there are three groups of students related to the missionary program that the enlarged Scarritt plans to serve: First, the student preparing to go in the field for the first time and who while taking the required courses in distinctive missionary preparation such as Bible, Church History, Religious Education, etc., needs to be able to elect certain educational or other courses fitting her for the specific work on the field for which she is being sent. There is an increasing demand for women who are specialists in education, agriculture, textiles and fine arts, manual training, nursing and kindergarten work, physical education and home economics. Graduate and undergraduate courses in such subjects and in many others are needed for the enlarged program and the new Scarritt cannot afford to add complete departments of graduate and undergraduate work in these subjects to its own program inasmuch as a very limited number each year would be required as specialists in each line. It must secure such electives from another institution; secondly, the woman missionary on furlough, who, because her work on the field is largely educational work on the field, to take graduate work in her specialty while on furlough, and at the same time be able to have graduate work in Bible and Religious Education. Such furloughed missionaries are now going to Teachers College, Columbia University, New York, or the School of Education in Chicago University, where they are working for Master's Degrees and some for Doctor's Degrees. Their Biblical work has to be taken in a Union Theological School or in Dr. White's Bible School. Those fostering the new Scarritt desire to make provision for this class in the new center so that these furloughed missionaries while taking their advanced training in their specialty can be taking also graduate work in Bible and Religious Education, etc., under the auspices of the new Scarritt, and within the bounds of their own church; thirdly, the missionary program on the field requires more than ever before that picked young women be sent from the native churches to America for special educational training, that they may have a larger part in the program of the church on the field. Such young women today are going to the North and do not touch during their stay in America the constituency of their mother church, and therefore are not prepared as they should be on their return to serve in the church. This need can be met if the school affording the training in Bible and Religious Education can be in proximity to a teachers college offering graduate as well as undergraduate work in education and kindred subjects.

In studying the various centers where the best advantages could be secured in the supplementary courses needed, it was found that the variety of subjects could be best secured in a teachers' college and because Peabody College for Teachers located in Nashville, Tenn., is the only real teachers' college in the South today in which the graduate work needed can be secured, it has seemed to those studying the question that if the new location could be in Nashville, where Peabody courses would be available as electives the greatest returns could be secured for the church and the missionary program. The fact that Nashville is central and affords these opportunities for electives, has been a very important factor in influencing opinion for the Nashville location. It is an interesting fact that during this year eight furloughed missionaries and eighteen preparing for missionary service are attending Peabody and these represent many of the leading mission boards. Their reason for choosing Peabody reveal the fact that the deciding factors have been the very ones that are leading those concerned for the new Scarritt to seek to be near that institution.

Scarritt is seeking, therefore, in its relocation to maintain its separate organic life, to be centrally located as between the two schools of theology and the church constituency, and to be in a place that affords the opportunity to secure the widest range of elective courses that are deemed essential to the missionary program.

COUNTY WIDE EVANGELISM

Dr. R. L. Russell.

Through the experience of some of our general evangelists, such men as Bob Jones and Burke Culpepper, I have come to the conclusion that in much of our rural territory we could put on county-wide programs of evangelism reaching thousands of people, with the county seat as the center of operations. A large tent for tabernacle could be erected and services held every night, the pastors of the county and the evangelistic party holding services in various sections of the county throughout the day.

Such campaigns are no longer an experiment. If you will read the article by Rev. Bob Jones in the last issue of the Advocate you will see how well it has worked with him. I do not think there is a general evangelist in our church who would not be willing to give much of his time to this sort of work. My idea in giving the article of Brother Jones to the press is to emphasize this matter and call upon our pastors to organize for movements of this kind. If they need any assistance in the organization and will write to us as Secretary of the Bureau of Evangelism, we might aid them in getting the movement started.

I have formed the conclusion, after careful study that we must use unusual methods in many places if we are going to get the results which, as leaders in the church, we covet for our King and Lord.

I trust the pastors throughout the church will have our general evangelists occupied every day which it is possible for these men to give to their work. If you are needing a helper or evangelist, communicate with the Bureau of Evangelism, or with the Conference Committee on Evangelism. These are the authorized agencies in the church to promote evangelism throughout the denomination, and we give our services to the pastors absolutely free of charge. We are hoping that you will correspond with us when in need of any assistance that we can render you.

If we do in the field of evangelism what the General Conference, by its unanimous action, expects and requests of us, we must work together and work all of the time during the quadrennium. We should be wedded to no method. Forms and programs are useless unless they produce results.
R. L. Russell.

STEDMAN LEAGUE HAS SOCIAL ON RIVER BANK

On Friday afternoon, July 27th, the members of the Epworth League of Stedman Methodist church were delightfully entertained on the banks of the South river. The third department had charge of the program. Supper was cooked and served on the grounds by members of the third department and some others. After a very enjoyable feed the crowd was treated to a watermelon slicing. This was followed by various kinds of amusements for the young folks. Games, stunts and jokes were enjoyed by all present.

Before leaving the young folks all joined in singing some lively and snappy songs, including lots of the ones used at the Epworth League Assembly.

About six-thirty the jolly crowd of leaguers headed for their homes, all feeling they had spent a delightful afternoon.
Reporter.

Easy to Buy a Piano Through the Club

If you have been putting off the purchase of a piano for financial or other reasons, you should write for a copy of the Advocate Piano Club's catalogue. It will open your eyes to the best method of piano buying and you will clearly see that it is no longer a difficult matter to provide your home with a piano or player-piano of the highest quality.

The Club has anticipated your needs and your difficulties and has perfected a plan that will save you a great deal of money, yet it makes the payments so convenient that you can get your piano at once. The Club's plan is the best because it gives you an instrument of standard quality and guaranteed durability at the lowest price at which a dependable instrument can possibly be sold.

You are cordially invited to place your order through the Club and avail yourself of all its benefits and privileges. Write for a copy of the handsomely illustrated catalogue today. Address the Managers, Ludden & Bates Advocate Piano Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga.

School Desks,
Opera Chairs,
Folding Chairs
Kindergarten Chairs,
Church Pews,
School Supplies,
Blackboards

Southern Desk Co., Hickory, N. C.

Lake Junaluska Bible and Evangelistic Conference

August 26th to Sept. 2nd

EIGHT GREAT DAYS

The Climax of the Greatest Season in Junaluska's History

PROGRAM

- DR. G. CAMPBELL MORGAN—Leading Bible Teacher of the World.
- DR. WILLIAM E. EVANS—One of America's foremost Platform Men and Bible Teachers.
- REV. THURSTON B. PRICE—General Evangelist of the M. E. Church, South, known from coast to coast as an evangelist whose work has been definitely constructive.
- REV. WALT HOLCOMB—Lecturer and traveler. Recently returned from abroad, will deliver a lecture entitled "A Circuit Rider in Czecho-Slovakia."

THESE MEN WILL SPEAK EACH DAY

SEVERAL OTHER WELL KNOWN MEN WILL SPEAK DURING THE WEEK

PLAN TO ATTEND THIS GREAT CONFERENCE SPECIAL RAILROAD RATES

For Program and Other Information Address

J. DALE STENTZ, Lake Junaluska, N. C.

1802

1923

LOUISBURG COLLEGE

A Junior College for Young Women
With a Standard Preparatory Course of Four Years
Property of North Carolina Conference

Faculty of specially trained, consecrated Christian teachers.

Health Record Unsurpassed. Home-like Atmosphere. Social Life Carefully Guarded. Athletics.

In addition to the regular college courses, Classical and General, attention is called to the departments of Art, Business, Education, Expression, Home Economics, Music (Piano, Voice, Violin, Theory, etc.), and Religious Education.

Rates as low as consistent with good service. Send for free Catalogue and Book of Views. For further information write

A. W. MOHN, PRESIDENT, LOUISBURG, N. C.

Cullowhee Normal and Industrial School

CULLOWHEE, N. C.

CO-EDUCATIONAL

A standard two-year State Normal School, preparing teachers for elementary schools. Three distinct curricula:

(a) For teaching in primary grades, leading to Primary B Certificate.

(b) For teaching in intermediate grades, leading to Grammar Grade B Certificate.

(c) For teaching in upper grades, leading to Grammar Grade B Certificate.

Enlarged faculty of specialists in teacher-training work; excellent practice school, with new building and equipment throughout; one of best girls' dormitories in state just being completed; dormitory for men; new central heating plant. Tuition free to North Carolina teachers.

The State also has a standard four-year high school here, which, while being distinct from the normal school work, is under the same management.

The school is in the picturesque Tuckasegee River Valley, in Western North Carolina, fifty-five miles from Asheville; daily train and bus to central points. For information, write

H. T. HUNTER, PRESIDENT, CULLOWHEE, N. C.

WOMAN'S PAGE

N. C. CONFERENCE

Mrs. J. LeGrand Everett,.....Editor
Rockingham, N. C.

W. N. C. CONFERENCE

Mrs. H. K. Boyer .....Editor
Mt. Airy, N. C.

North Carolina Conference

A GEM WITHOUT NAME

"I took a piece of plastic clay
And idly fashioned it one day,
And as my fingers pressed it still
It moved and yielded to my will.

I came again when days were passed,
The bit of clay was hard at last,
The form I gave it still it bore,
And I could change it never more.

I took a piece of living clay,
And gently formed it day by day,
And worked it with my power and art
A young child's soft and yielding heart.

I came again when days were gone,
It was a man I looked upon,
He still that early impress bore,
And I could change it never more.
—Contributed by Miss Althea Jones.

WHY ORGANIZE THE CHILDREN OF THE CHURCH?

1. The best time is at the beginning.

"The minister's wife was making bread for the Saturday's baking. All at once she gave a little exclamation of impatience. She had forgotten something, and the bread wouldn't rise. That which had been forgotten was an insignificant little cak of yeast, but that lump of inert, unambitious dough refused to do anything without it.

"Why not put it in now?" asked the minister, who was hovering about the kitchen.

The minister's wife gave him a look of pity.

"Don't you know," she asked, "some things have to be put in at the beginning?"

"O, they do, do they?" cried the minister, a very great thought shining suddenly in his face. "O, they do? And they won't amount to much without it? O, but 'tis more than bread-making we are talking about! Thank you, my dear, for helping me to know what to talk about to the Cradle Roll mothers—you know they meet here this afternoon, and you asked me to say a few words. It's the church's business, the woman's missionary society's business, and my business if we want religion in this church to set right to work and try to put it in at the beginning."—Selected.

If we fail to train our children in intelligent organized service, we are definitely training them for irresponsibility, indifference, and inaction in the face of the need of the world for salvation.

2. It helps the mothers.

Every true Christian mother feels her responsibility, and also that she is unable to give her children all the training that she would for a Christian life. Then how thankful mothers should be for the help offered by the church through the children's missionary society!

The junior missionary society is organized to train the children to pray, give, and work for the coming of the kingdom. They are told of Christ and taught how to obey his command, "Go ye," by prayer, by study, by giving of money, and of self.

3. Children are the hope of the world.

Carey Morgan once said: "We have raised one hundred and thirty thousand dollars for foreign missions this year in part, at least, because the boys and girls, who at fifteen were taught the truth about missions ten years ago in mission bands and Sunday schools; they are twenty-five now and have their own purse."

Expert opinion tells us that the only hope that the church will accomplish its great task of evangelizing the world soon is in beginning at once to educate its children in missions, so that there will be no loss of time which ignorance of the subject makes necessary.

"The chains of habit are too weak to be felt until too strong to be broken." Then of what priceless value is it that our children should form habits of good and not evil in their younger years. Surely the church needs the works, gifts, and prayers of her children in her great missionary enterprise.

4. God's command is: "Feed my lambs."

When the question of feeding Belgian babies or Armenian waifs comes up no one thinks of making excuses. No one says: "Some one else is more competent than I to do this noble deed." No one dares to say: "I have nothing to give them." And yet when the need of feeding God's lambs is presented, "they all with one accord begin to make excuses." "I don't know how to reach children." "Some one else could do it so much better." "I haven't time."

"Lovest thou me? Feed my lambs." If you have no children's missionary society in your church, take this appeal directly to yourself. Is it not your plain duty to organize and lead such a class or obtain the some one better fitted?

Lay this on your conscience. Give it a place in your daily prayers. Jesus says to you: "Prove your love to me by feeding my hungry, neglected lambs, for whom I died." Can you look in his face and say, "Lord Jesus, get some one else to do it?" He will not turn his gaze from you. He will say once more, "Lovest thou me? Then feed my lambs!"—From "Feed My Lambs" by O. W. Borland, Presbyterian Church, U. S. A., adapted by Miss Aletha Jones.

MY CROWN

The only crown I ask, dear Lord, to wear

Is this—hat I may help a little child.
I do not ask that I shall ever stand
Among the wise, the worthy, or the great,

I only ask that safely, hand in hand,
A child and I may enter at Thy gate.
—Selected.

JUNIOR MISSIONARY ENTERTAINMENTS

A request came to us for suggestions concerning entertainments, plays or pageants for Bright Jewels. We do not handle any literature—all must be ordered from Literature Headquarters, Lambuth Building, Nashville, Tenn. There may be other superintendents of children's work who would be glad to know of these little plays for the Bright Jewels to present, so we are glad to publish the following list:

"Prove It," a mite box opening, 10 cents.

"Lighting the Dark Continent," African play, 10 cents.

"The Junior Missionary Society at Work," 20 cents, four for 50 cents.

"A Book of Missionary Entertainments," 65 cents.

"Suggestions for Costumes," containing a description of native costumes for men, women and children in our mission fields, 10 cents.

Order from Literature Headquarters, Lambuth Building, Nashville, Tenn.

EXTRACT FROM REPORT SUPT. CHILDREN'S WORK, 1922

*** "Thank God for a good year." We have had many discouraging things to happen, yet our work has gone forward. I think that when we have failed the woman's auxiliary, in most cases, should bear the blame.

Thirty-two baby divisions and twenty-seven junior divisions have had to be dropped for the lack of good women to take charge. This cuts our number of bands down much lower than last year, though we have added fourteen new baby divisions and twenty new junior divisions.

*** Only by stressing this important work of training the children can we reach our highest usefulness. These little minds are ready for the truth which will inspire them with life long interest in the work of saving the world. This is our opportunity, let us seize it. *** May we not ask the woman's auxiliaries of the North Carolina conference to be more zealously active this new year than ever before in supporting and extending the children's work? Mrs. N. H. D. Wilson, Conf. Supt. Children's Work.

Western North Carolina Conference

OUTGOING MISSIONARIES

The steamer "President Madison" when she set sail from Seattle August 18th carried with her a large party of missionaries bound for China. This party includes no one from the W. N. C. conference. On August 23rd the "Empress of Canada" of the Canadian Pacific Line will sail from Vancouver with another party bound for Korea. This party will include Miss Blanche Hauser of Pfafftown (near Winston-Salem) and Miss Mabel Cherry of Mineral Springs, also Miss Miriam Goodwin of Morganton, who goes for three years to teach the missionaries' children. Our heart yearns that His grace shall be sufficient for each of these dear girls as they "go," and we cannot forget the home folk who are left behind. "With what broken pitchers go we to deep wells" when we attempt to speak of the conflicting emotions bound up in the heart of father and mother and daughter during the days of decision, then preparation, then the parting time! It is all so wonderful, and what signal honor God confers upon every home from which He calls a son or daughter!

"As thy days, so shall thy strength be."

ROSEBUDS' PICNIC

Early in the morning of August 9th three cars full of Rosebuds—think of it—fared forth, chaperoned by Rev. and Mrs. J. I. Spinks, to a beautiful spot on Buck's Creek, where the day was spent in real picnic fashion—games, swimming, paddling, singing and enjoying a sumptuous feast. This junior missionary society was organized at East Marion recently with a membership of fifteen and has grown to twenty-one. Mrs. Spinks says: "They are a most lovable band of children and are doing fine work, having already paid their pledge of $25."

The above report is truly refreshing and we are wondering how many others have paid their pledge. Juniors, tell us about it—but don't everybody speak at once.

Mrs. B. F. Morris, district secretary of the Shelby district, reports the organization of a young people's society at Belmont in June, making three new societies for her district this year. Good record, Mrs. Morris.

THE MOTH IN THE CHURCH CARPET

(A Parable of Sated the Sage.)
There was a Moth that had his home in the Sanctuary, and he lived long and was happy. For the place of his Habitation was between Two Tacks in the edge of the Carpet, in an obscure little Angle where the stair ascendeth unto the Pulpit. And it would have been difficult to select a Finer Place of Abode for a Moth of Seditary Habits. And he never, never wandered from his own fireside, but whitened the Corner where he was. That is to say, he wandered not until the time when this Chapter in his History Beginneth, and this Chapter is not a long one, and there will not be any Chapters after this. For that Moth is there no longer, and the place that knew him knoweth him no more.

Now this Moth was Serenely Happy; for the carpet was Fuzzy, and it was the Very Best Food a Moth could desire, and the Brushe- of the Janitor came not nigh him.

And the Moth listened unto the Organ, and he thought the Music was for his Edification, and he heard the Sermons and the Prayers, as being addressed to him.

And he lifted up his eyes, and behold there were Yards and Yards of Carpet, stretching down Long Aisles through the length of the Nave, and he looked unto the right hand and the left, and there was Carpet unto the uttermost borders of the Transepts. And the lines had fallen unto him in pleasant places, and he had a goodly heritage.

But he waxed fat, and grew Conceited. And he said, Go to, now; I will explore mine Heritage; for, behold, all this is mine, and for me it hath been created.

And he crept out of his Corner, and started on a journey down the Center Aisle.

And when he had gotten out about an Inch and the half of an Inch, behold, the Janitor came along with a Vacuum Cleaner, and just what happened unto the Moth, he hath not yet clearly defined in his own mind. For he was sucked up with a strong wind, and blown down a rubber tube that led to an Iron Pipe into a Vat in the Basement, and buried deep in Dust. And while he meditated, the Janitor came, and opened the Vat, and thrust in a Shovel, and scooped up the Dust and shoveled it into the Blazing Fiery Furnace, and the moth was in the Dust when this occurred. And the History of that Moth from that time on containeth nothing of importance. But there seldom hath been a Moth whose Future Prospects were more encouraging than that one, if he had not gotten a Swelled Head, and thought that he was the Boss of the Whole Establishment.

Now the man who thinketh that the Universe was made for his own convenience would better stay in his own little corner of it; for if he getteth out where important Things Occur, something is likely to happen either unto him or his theory.—Christian Century.

FRECKLE-FACE

Sun and Wind Bring Out Ugly Spots. How to Remove Easily.

Here's a chance, Miss Freckle-face, to try a remedy for freckles with the guarantee of a reliable concern that it will not cost you a penny unless it removes the freckles; while if it does give you a clear complexion the expense is trifling.

Simply get an ounce of Othine—double strength—from any druggist and a few applications should show you how easy it is to rid yourself of the homely freckles and get a beautiful complexion. Rarely is more than one ounce needed for the worst case.

Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength Othine as this strength is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

The Sweet-Toned WILLIAMS PIANO

Long time favorite of such noted musicians as Excecl, Gabriel and Rodeheaver. Our method of sending pianos on Free Trial Direct from Factory at Factory Prices to homes and churches is much appreciated by careful and economical buyers. Williams pianos are so much finer and better they actually sell themselves. No money in advance. Easy Terms. We gladly trust good people. Write for FREE Catalog and factory prices. No agents call.

Williams Piano and Organ Co.
1256 Fullerton Avenue Chicago, Illinois

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORK

N. C. CONFERENCE

L. L. Gobbel .....Editor
Durham, N. C.

W. N. C. CONFERENCE

O. V. Woosley .....Editor
Lexington, N. C.

North Carolina Conference

MAXTON SCHOOL CREDITS

Eighty-one men and women and young people earned certificates of credit in the Rockingham District Standard Training School held at Carolina College, Maxton, August 6-11. Several others did all the required work, attended classes regularly, and would have received the certificates of credit but for the fact that they were under the age limit. The names and addresses of those earning the credit, by courses, are given below:

"Sunday School Organization and Administration," Rev. W. W. Peele, instructor—A. J. Burt, Jr., Miss Gladys Monroe, Rev. F. B. Peele, and Roger D. Utley, of Biscoe; Miss Ethel Burkhead and Chas. B. Graham, Candor; Ralph Barlow and Dan Williams, East Laurinburg; Miss Mamie Baldwin, Miss Exie Presnall, and Paul Smith, Ellerbe; Miss Effie Easterling, Roberdel; Rufus Goodyear, Lumberton; Rev. A. J. Groves, Miss Mary Harris, Earl Henley, Fred Jarrell and Lee Johnson, Mt. Gilead; B. C. Kinlaw, Parker's Chapel; Miss Emily McClelland and Miss Elsie Tucker, Maxton; Miss Maggie Stogner, Rockingham; Roy Swink, Jackson Springs; Rev. W. F. Trawick, Fairmont; Miss Hester Williamson and Mrs. E. B. Ward, Rowland.

"Principles of Religious Teaching," Prof. R. N. Wilson, instructor—Mrs. B. S. Barnes, Mrs. J. O. McClelland and Mrs. Lacy Williams, Maxton; Landis Bennett, Miss Dora Long, Miss Learl Long, Miss Cora Poole and Miss Pearl Poole, Jackson Springs; Miss Bessie Covington and Miss Bessie Liles, Red Springs; Rev. and Mrs. J. H. Frizelle, Mrs. J. L. McLeod and Mrs. S. A. Snead, Raeford; Mrs. Henry McLaurin and Mrs. Fred E. Sanford, Laurinburg; J. W. R. Norton and Miss Elva Norton, Laurel Hill; Rev. A. J. Parker, Gibson; Mrs. C. T. Pate, Purvis; Mrs. W. W. Peele, Raleigh; and Mrs. J. D. Worrell, East Laurinburg.

"Program of the Christian Religion," Prof. James Cannon, instructor—Rev. W. H. Brown, West End; Rev. Frank Culbreth and J. Walter Jones, Jr., Laurinburg; Nelson P. Edens, Roberdel; L. L. Gobbel, Durham; Miss May Bostick, Laurinburg; Mrs. H. S. McCallum, Maxton; Rev. Newton, Red Springs; and Rev. J. L. Rumley, Maxton.

"Beginner Organization and Administration," Mrs. C. B. Culbreth, instructor—Miss Minnie Kanoy, Troy; Mrs. C. F. Kirk, Mt. Gilead; and Mrs. Lula F. Usher, Laurel Hill.

"Primary Lesson Materials and Teaching," Miss Georgia Keenan, instructor—Miss Viola Braswell, Hamlet; Miss Annie Bullard, Elrod; Mrs. T. J. Fletcher, Roberdel; Mrs. S. G.

Floyd, Fairmont; Miss Esther McCulloch, East Lumberton; Miss Ina Parker, Parker's Chapel; Miss Jewel Snead, Raeford; Miss Pearl Shaw, St. Pauls; and Miss Fleta Wallace, Star. "Junior Organization and Administration," Miss Virginia Jenkins, instructor—Miss Glen Cashwell, Maxton; Mrs. E. J. Chambers, Fairmont; Miss Pattie Ellerbe, Rockingham; Miss Mary Graham, Candor; Miss Nancy Jones and Mrs. Jack Walters, Laurinburg; Miss Edna Marks, Rockingham; Miss Esther Maness, Rowland; Miss Ila McNeil, Pembroke; Miss Mary Parker, Parker's Chapel; Mrs. L. L. Ross, Mt. Gilead; and Miss Georgia Wright, Gibson.

REACHING THE SCHOOLS

Forty-one Sunday schools sent workers to the Rockingham District Standard Training School at Maxton August 6-11. Thirty-seven of these schools had one or more representatives to earn a certificate of credit; that is, from one to seven or eight representatives from each of these schools attended regularly and did all the assigned work. Think of it—thirty-seven schools within the bounds of the Rockingham district having in it at least one worker studying earnestly to become better trained and equipped! And we have just started.

One hundred and fifty-seven persons were enrolled in the training school, and quite a number attended one or more classes without enrolling. The encouraging fact about the training school, however, is not the number enrolled so much as it is the fact that so many schools scattered all over the district were represented and those who attended did much faithful work.

REACHING THE PREACHERS

Seventeen pastors of the district enrolled in the standard training school at Maxton, and eight of them not only attended regularly but also did the required reading and written work, thus earning the certificate of credit on the standard training course. These pastors are interested not only that the officers and teachers of their Sunday schools should be thoroughly informed as to modern principles, methods, plans and programs of Sunday school work but also that they themselves, who occupy the supreme place of leadership in their charges, should at least be abreast of their officers and teachers. More and more of our pastors are attending our training schools, and an increasing number are supplementing the work done in these schools by taking some of the work by correspondence.

Following are the names of the pastors enrolled in the Rockingham district school:

- Rev. F. B. Peele, Biscoe.
- Rev. A. J. Groves, Mt. Gilead.
- Rev. W. F. Trawick, Fairmont.
- Rev. F. B. Noblitt, Vass.
- Rev. J. H. Frizelle, Raeford.
- Rev. A. J. Parker, Gibson.
- Rev. W. H. Brown, West End.
- Rev. Frank Culbreth, Laurinburg.
- Rev. J. L. Rumley, Maxton.
- Rev. P. D. Woodall, Rowland.
- Dr. J. W. Harrell, Troy.
- Rev. W. C. Martin, Hamlet.
- Rev. N. B. Johnson, Ellerbe.

- Rev. J. A. Martin, Mt. Gilead.
- Rev. N. L. Seabolt, Troy.
- Rev. D. A. Clark, Rockingham.
- Rev. D. A. Petty, Entwistle.

Nearly all of the pastors, therefore, enrolled in the school, from the youngest to the oldest. Rev. A. J. Groves, perhaps the oldest in the district, took a course for credit, and he testified at the close of the week that this week in the training school was just about the happiest of his life.

AN ELDER THAT'S POPULAR

Not that there are not hundreds of presiding elders who are popular, but from expressions manifested during the recent training school at Maxton it is hard to believe that there are many more popular with their people than is Rev. J. H. Shore, of the Rockingham district, with his. Resolutions, applause and private expressions indicate that the enthusiastic and whole-hearted way in which this good man is throwing himself into the work of the district, especially that of the Sunday schools, and more especially the district standard training school, is appreciated. He worked untiringly all through the year for the training school, stayed by it through the entire week, and his interest had telling effect.

ROCKINGHAM DISTRICT TEAM

If anyone wants to see a district in which its Sunday school officers are really functioning, we point them to the Rockingham. In it we have district workers who are working. In Prof. Ernest J. Green, district secretary, and Mrs. E. B. Ward, district elementary superintendent, the district has a team well trained, capable and enthusiastic. They have been doing these things since they accepted the work some weeks ago. Especially active were they in promoting the standard training school at Maxton, and in conjunction with the school were held a district Sunday school institute and a district elementary institute. Sunday school work in the district may be said to be on its feet and going, and this team can be depended upon to speed it on its way.

REV. MR. PEELE LECTURES

A fine feature of our Rockingham District Standard Training School was the series of morning lectures delivered by Rev. W. W. Peele, of Raleigh, who also taught a course in Sunday school organization and administration. These lectures, typical of the fine spirit who delivered them, lay bare the great opportunities presented by this age and presented a challenge to life service. It was a splendid contribution which they made to the school and, we believe, to the men, women and young people who heard them.

STUNT NIGHT A BIG HIT

Another feature which made a notable contribution to the general program of the training school at Maxton was "stunt night." This came Thursday night, was put on by four groups represented in the school—faculty, pastors, young people and adults, and was at once entertaining and educational. The faculty put on a workers' council meeting, the pastors a quarterly conference, the adults a Ladies' Aid Society meeting, and the young people a Sunday school hospital. The young people's stunt was adjudged the best.

MEMORIAL SERVICE IS HELD

Those attending our Rockingham District Standard Training School turned aside from their regular work long enough Friday to join with patriotic Americans everywhere in paying respect to the memory of our late President Harding. In the college chapel a most impressive service was held, with Rev. J. H. Shore, presiding elder, making the address.

ANOTHER SCHOOL NEXT YEAR

So successful was the school this year that the Board of Managers recommended to the student body and the student body voted unanimously that a similar school be held at Carolina College again next year. The week of August 25-31 was selected as the date for the 1924 school.

Western North Carolina Conference

CARRY ON

The work of religious education as promoted by our Sunday schools and allied agencies is too important and constructive to be sidetracked by discussions from higher critics or from lower critics, both of whom can make themselves very annoying. The great hosts of North Carolina Methodist Sunday school workers can best serve their day and generation by continuing their earnest efforts in making our state a better place to live in, unruffled by exceptional annoyances. Let's carry on.

THANK YOU

The number of Sunday schools observing Sunday School Day and forwarding their offering to Mr. H. A. Dunham, Asheville, N. C., treasurer of the Western North Carolina Conference Sunday School Board, is larger this year than ever in the history of our conference. A complete list of these Sunday schools will be posted in a prominent place for inspection during the sessions of our next annual conference. If your Sunday school has not yet had a part in financing our conference program it is not yet too late. Note our fine recruits since last report.

Mt. Pleasant, Asheville	$ 5.00
Boone	17.83
Franklinville	4.00
Salem, Morganton Ct.	8.93
Woodleaf	8.60
Crouse	3.16
Bethel, Greensboro	3.81
Olin	4.74
Weaverville	15.12
First Church, Lenoir	18.84
Miss Bertha DeLap	2.00
Mt. Carmel, Concord Ct.	2.81
Laboratory, Crouse Ct.	3.00
Main St., Reidsville	15.00
Palmyra	4.21
Lewisville	4.00
South River, Woodleaf Ct.	9.03
Rutherford College	4.46

(Continued on page fifteen)

MEN'S WESLEY BIBLE CLASS, CENTRAL METHODIST CHURCH, ALBEMARLE; ENROLLMENT 190

R. L. Smith, teacher; W. A. Smith, assistant teacher; O. H. Phillips, president; Rev. C. M. Pickens, pastor, and C. A. Reap, superintendent

EPWORTH LEAGUE WORK

Lee Davis, Raleigh, N. C.
Rev. J. F. Armstrong, Concord, N. C.

North Carolina Conference

HOW ABOUT YOUR AFRICAN SPECIAL?

Say, you fourth department superintendents, how about your African Special pledge?

Has your league paid its pledge for the past year and have you made another pledge for next year? If you have, fine! So far, so good. But don't stop now and hold your hands all the year. Get to work right now on raising the money for your pledge so that when the last of the year rolls around and it's time to go to the assembly and pay the pledge you will have the money ready to pay off the pledge.

Now you know how much trouble and hard work it means to try to raise the money for the pledge during the last few weeks before paying up time. So why not save all that worry and trouble by starting at it right now and have the whole year before you in which to raise the amount for the pledge?

Get the members to make their individual pledge now so you will have the year in which to collect it.

Here's another "don't." Don't have candy sales, rummage sales and parties and the such to raise money for the African Special. Why? Well, simply because we ought to pay for the work of the Lord out of our pockets. We ought to pay that out of our tithe fund. Oh, you haven't a tithe fund. Well, that's no fault of the Epworth League, so don't try to make it pay for what you owe the Lord by having sales, parties and so forth.

Think this over, leaguers, and see if you don't agree that now is the time and this is the way (out of our pockets). If you think so, then get your pledge cards and present them to your leaguers at your next meeting.

Lee Davis.

LOOK OUT FOR A LETTER

Leagues all, when I get back to Raleigh now in a few weeks I'm going to send you all a personal letter. Now that is provided I know who you are. How am I to know? Well, just this way: if you send a list of the names of your officers to Miss Fannie Vann, at Clinton, N. C., you will hear from me; if you don't, you won't. I have something interesting to say to all the leagues in the N. C. conference.

Lee Davis.

WHO ARE YOUR NEW OFFICERS?

Leaguers, have you ever sent in to the conference secretary, Miss Fannie Vann, Clinton, N. C., the names of your officers? If you are a new league and have not sent in their names, please do so immediately. You know the league constitution provides that the names of the officers shall be sent to the conference officers and also to 810 Broadway, Nashville, Tenn.

At least, please send the names to your conference secretary, Miss Fannie Vann, Clinton, N. C.

STEDMAN LEAGUE GIVES SPLENDID PROGRAM AT CAMP GROUNDS

The Stedman Epworth League, by invitation of Miss Christine Graham, makes a visit to the Camp Grounds Methodist Church League, Sunday afternoon, August 5th, and presented a very interesting and helpful program, which was enjoyed by all the leaguers, both guests and hosts. A large number took part on the program, which was as follows:

Silent prayer, closed by Lord's Prayer.

Hymn, "When Morning Gilds the Skies."

Scripture, Psalm XIV, Acts XV; 16.

Hymn, "Peace, Perfect Peace."
Prayer, Miss Addie Williams.
Hymn, "Fairest Lord Jesus."
Introduction, Leonard Beard.
Talks, Neta Carr and Welch Blake.
Song, "Loyal Epworth Leaguers."
Addresses, Beatrice Vinson, Ursie Blake, Sheldon Beard.
Song, "All for Christ."
Discussions, Irene Vinson and Herbert Maxwell.
Duet, Elizabeth Fussel and Wilma Blake.
Roll call, answered by Bible verses.
Hymn, "God of Our Fathers."
Benediction, Leonard Beard.
All the Stedman leaguers are looking forward with pleasure to a return program from the Camp Ground Leaguers.
Reporter.

Western North Carolina Conference

BILLIE WAXES ELOQUENT

Vacation time! Where am I going to spend mine? Epworth leaguers, let me tell you—come on over to Junaluska—a paradise on earth. All kinds of amusements, besides the good Epworth Assembly we attend. And as we are getting a pleasure trip, also a great spiritual treat as well. Last year old Western North Carolina had only two leaguers besides Miss Bradley and Miss Falls. This year I know 16 are going from one district when only one went last year. What is the matter with us in W. N. C.? Leaguers from other states come hundreds of miles to Junaluska, and here we have Junaluska at our very door. Come on, Epworth Leaguers. Wake up. And now, dear Epworth Leaguers, if you don't believe it's true, we don't ask you to take our word for what we're telling you. Just pack your grips and up to Junaluska go. And once you're there you will admit that every word is so.

Hope you can use this and perhaps it will do a little good.

Sincerely,
Billie.

CHARLOTTE INTERMEDIATES HARD TO BEAT

As I promised am sending you a report of our Epworth League Intermediate City Union meeting, which was held at Seversville church last night (13th), beginning at eight o'clock. We had a great crowd and the meeting was a success in every way. Our devotional was very impressive, prayer being offered by two intermediates from each league, closing with the Lord's Prayer. In our business meeting each superintendent gave a brief report of the work being done in their league, which was very beneficial and inspired the superintendents to do greater work.

The attendance banner was won by Seversville, and our next quarterly meeting will be held with Hawthorne Lane League second Monday night in November.

After our meeting we had a social hour, which our intermediates always look forward to. During the social hour we had several recitations and piano solos which we all enjoyed so much. Music was furnished by our League Union orchestra and refreshments served by Seversville League. We will have our usual union picnic for the intermediate and junior leagues on Saturday afternoon, August 25th, at the North Charlotte Community House, and we are planning for the best time ever. We claim to be a real live, wide-awake union and will be glad to have you bring your folks over and let us show you how the Intermediate Union of Charlotte does things.

Mrs. Jennie M. James,
City Supt. Int. and Jr. Leagues.

FOR SALE

Elegant Pulpit Set of seven pieces; solid walnut. Will grace any church in the state. Write A. G. Odell, Concord, N. C.

LIKE AN OLD VIOLIN

The Stieff instrument has that soft, mellow tone that lovers of music demand.

For three generations this piano has delighted its users.

Chas. M. Stieff, Inc.,
Charlotte, N. C.

Please send catalogue and prices of Pianos.

Name .....

Address .....

CHAS. M. STIEFF, Inc.,
CHARLOTTE, N. C.

The smallest Grand Piano made that embodies all the essential qualities of the concert grand.

WEAVER COLLEGE

DENOMINATIONAL CO-EDUCATIONAL

WEAVERVILLE, NORTH CAROLINA

Tenth and Eleventh Grades in High School.
Freshman and Sophomore Years of College Course.
Lake and Forested Campus nine miles from Asheville.
Modern Dormitories, well equipped Library and Laboratory.
Athletics, Receptions, Literary Societies, Religious Activities.
One Christian Teacher with Education and Experience to every 15 pupils.
An excellent Gateway from the Restrictions of a Good High School to the Responsibilities of Professional and Business Life.

For Catalogue and other information address:

C. H. TROWBRIDGE, President, Weaverville, N. C.

DAVENPORT COLLEGE

FOR YOUNG WOMEN

LENOIR, N. C.

A three-year Junior College with a record of sixty-eight years of exceptional Academic work.

Well equipped, Conservative, but thoroughly abreast of the times. Fin Type of Student Life. A Safe Place for Young Women to study under close but sympathetic discipline.

Moderate Expenses. The lowest cost commensurate with a High Type of Modern Instruction.

A Registered Nurse constantly in attendance. A most healthful location, in the foothills of the Blue Ridge.

Courses in the Regular Academic Department and Art, Music, Expression, Domestic Science, Domestic Art and Secretarial Courses.

A four-year preparatory course on same campus and correlated with the college.

For Catalogue and Views,

Address PRESIDENT C. L. HORNADAY, LENOIR, N. C.

Coker College

Modern in its equipment. Strong in its faculty. Endowment enables it to take good care of a girl and retain strong teachers.

Four year college courses based on four years of high-school preparation. A number of $150 scholarships for the daughters of teachers and preachers. A million dollars in plant and endowment.

Students limited to 300

E. W. Sikes, Ph. D., President
HARTSVILLE, S. C.

OUR ORPHANAGE WORK

METHODIST ORPHANAGE

RALEIGH, N. C.

Hon. R. N. Page ..... President
A. S. Barnes ..... Superintendent
Mrs. Mattie Jenkins ..... Matron
Owned and maintained by the North Carolina Conference.

FORM OF BEQUEST

I do hereby will and bequeath to The Methodist Orphanage, Raleigh, N. C., contemplated by the charter under the Act of the General Assembly of North Carolina ..... (here designate the bequest) .....

THE CHILDREN'S HOME

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C.

Rev. C. A. Wood.....Superintendent

THE METHODIST ORPHANAGE

WANTED

1. Ten thousand dollars for Baby Cottage.
2. Offerings from every Sunday school.
3. Organized classes to support individual orphans.
4. Friends to write Orphanage in their wills.

* * * *

Since the board of trustees has ordered the erection of five buildings, it would be a most fitting thing if some interested friend would take advantage of the opportunity to build an appropriate manument to the memory of some dear one who has departed this life. The buildings with one exception will cost about thirty thousand dollars. We will have one that will cost about sixty thousand dollars. I shall be glad to correspond with interested friends, submitting plans and specifications and cost. Those who want to do honor to the memory of some loved one and at the same time render service to the living by providing a home for orphan children have a fine opportunity to do so now. Let all who are interested act at the earliest possible date.

* * * *

The architect is at work on plans for new buildings. We hope to have the best plans that thought and effort can work out. The thing that gives me considerable concern now is the money end of the proposition. Since these buildings are to be fireproof, they are going to cost a good deal more than they would otherwise. We must look to the conference for seventy thousand dollars to put over our building program. The Rockingham district has pledged twenty-five thousand dollars of the seventy-five thousand dollars. It ought to be an easy matter for the other eight districts to raise fifty thousand for the buildings. Of course we shall expect large contributions from all the Sunday schools during Thanksgiving for our current expenses. Why not everybody throw themselves unreservedly into this undertaking and make it a complete success?

* * * *

Since we are visiting so many places this summer in rapid succession it is impossible for me to write in detail of each place visited by the singing class. Our last trip took us to Jarvis Memorial church, Greenville, Farmville and Stantonsburg. At each place large congregations turned out to welcome our boys and girls. Our many friends are delighted with the fine type of children we are turning out for life's battles. We aren't out to collect money, but to put our work before the churches so that our conference may know more about the workings of the Methodist Orphanage. I do not want to make the impression that we do not need money, because we do need large sums now. My conviction is that if I can lay our needs before our friends, and at the same time demonstrate the splendid work of the home, the churches will be glad to furnish the money with which to pay the bills. So far our visits have resulted in increased enthusiasm and contributions. All the churches and Sunday schools will have to move up considerably if we are to meet the demands that are made upon us.

* * * *

RESOLUTIONS TO WALTER B. BOYD

The Orphanage realizes that in the death of Brother Walter B. Boyd we have lost one of our most useful and consecrated friends and supporters, faithful to the call of duty, loyal to the demands made upon him by the Orphanage, of his church, superb in his Christian life, dependable to the last degree in his daily walk and consecration, useful in church and state councils. Our hearts are saddened in his passing. We shall miss his cheerful and wise help in the future activities of the Orphanage; therefore, be it resolved:

That we, the trustees of the Methodist Orphanage, extend to the family of our deceased brother our most profound and loving sympathy in their great bereavement and commend them to the God of all grace who has said, "I will never leave thee nor forsake thee," and "What I do you know not now, but you shall know hereafter."

"What is Death?"

To him who meets it with an upright heart

A quiet haven, where his shattered bark

Harbors secure till the rough storm is past."

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family of our deceased brother, to the Advocate, and a page be set apart in our minute book and this action of the board of trustees entered thereon.

S. C. Vann,
R. E. Prince,
Julian S. Carr.

UNION TENT MEETING AT ROWLAND, N. C.

Sunday, July 22, Rev. E. G. Caldwell of Dillon, S. C., and his party began an evangelistic campaign at Rowland, N. C., and closed the first Sunday night in August. From start to finish the interest was great and grew all during the meeting. A great many church members reconsecrated themselves and there were a good many additions to the local churches. All denominations in the town joined heartily in the meeting, the services being conducted under a tent with a seating capacity of one thousand. Several times the tent was full and the last night the congregation was estimated to be twelve hundred.

Brother Caldwell is a preacher of wonderful power. He preaches the old time gospel salvation from sin and his messages carry conviction to the heart. He is a man of deep consecration and when you hear him through a series of sermons you are impressed by the fact that he is divinely inspired. I can recommend him to any pastor who wishes to secure evangelistic help. P. D. Woodall.

MRS. J. W. HOYLE

The subject of this sketch, the wife of Rev. J. W. Hoyle, pastor of Ridgeway circuit, passed away at four o'clock Thursday morning, August 9, after an unusually long illness, covering several years. The funeral was conducted in the Ridgeway Methodist church by the presiding elder, Rev. J. R. T. Major, and Rev. W. R. Bouknight, pastor of Green Street church. Interment was in Ridgeway cemetery. This good woman is survived by her husband and five children, two sons and three daughters. Her oldest son, John Hoyle, is a member of the Western North Carolina conference. She was a devout Christian woman, deeply spiritual in her personal experience, and devoted student of the Bible. During her life time of fifty-two years she had read the Bible through forty-two times. Brother Hoyle and his interesting family were transferred to this conference from North Carolina conference at the last session of our annual conference, and although he has been with us for so short a time he has made many friends and has impressed all who know him with a deep sense of loyalty, his pure, unselfish spirit of service and the energy with which he looks after his Lord's business. The entire church in this conference sorrows with him and his children in this hour of sore bereavement.—Southern Christian Advocate.

RESOLUTIONS BY TRAINING SCHOOL

The following are resolutions adopted by the student body of the Rockingham District Training School, held at Maxton August 6-11, 1923:

Owing to the higher visions we have caught, to the knowledge that has been imparted to us, and to the good time we have enjoyed, we, the students of the Rockingham District Training School, have passed the following resolutions:

First, That we extend to the board of directors our deepest appreciation for their service to us and for having secured such efficient instructors.

Second, That we extend to the faculty our gratitude for having given us such needed knowledge and instruction; furthermore, that it is our desire that they return again next year.

Third, That we extend to Rev. J. H. Shore our thanks for his earnestness and spirit that he has put into the school.

Fourth, That we extend to Director L. L. Gobel our gratefulness for the completeness of organization that he has put into the school.

Fifth, That we extend to Rev. W. W. Peele our gratitude for his inspirational lectures to us.

Sixth, That we extend to Miss Virginia Jenkins our thanks for her service and wish her much success in her work in the future.

Seventh, That we extend to Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Green, as host and hostess, our appreciation for their devoted service to us during the entire week.

Eighth, That we extend to the people of Maxton our sincere gratitude for their kind hospitality.

Ninth, That we extend to all who are not mentioned above and who have in any way contributed to the good time we have enjoyed our thanks for their service and their substance.

Tenth, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the North Carolina Christian Advocate.

Miss MayPresley Bostick,
Mrs. E. B. Ward,
Mr. Nelson P. Edens,
Committee.

The Treasure.

We devote ourselves to the acquisition of the whole field of life and character, until we are able to say that the new-found treasure is love. The only price of divine treasure is love. We cannot pay for it in any other way. And love comes out of faith. Nothing in the world enriches a soul, develops its powers, completes its real life more naturally than the faith that there is somewhere, not far away, a pure and true and perfect Being, whom we can love without reserve.—Herbert Snell.

WANTED—To correspond with trustees or superintendent of school in need of lady to train adults and children in chorus work for school and church. Have several years teaching experience and can help with literary work where there is shortage of teachers. Methodist. Sunday school worker. References. Address "Conscientious," Epworth Lodge, Lake Junaluska, N. C.

For Your Complexion's Sake
Rid your skin of pimples, rash, eczema.
Make it soft, velvety and healthy by using
TETTERINE
60c at your druggist's or from the
SHUPTRINE CO. :: :: SAVANNAH, GA.

DR. CHAS. W. MOSELEY
Diseases of Stomach and
Internal Medicine
Office, 229 S. Elm St. Residence, 438
S. Mendenhall St., Greensboro, N. C.
Office 604—Phones—Res. 1739.

F. PERRY WALTERS
Life, Accident and Health Insurance
A policy for every member of the family. Office, 306 Southern Life & Trust Bldg. Phone 2776.
Will be glad to call and explain any policy you may desire.

TENNESSEE MILITARY INSTITUTE
A school where orderliness, respect for government, and the desire to make good replace recklessness and the "don't care" attitude; where every boy is put on his mettle to measure himself by established school standards.
Good name of school rests on thorough academic work, efficient military training and physical development, and the spirit of T. M. I., which inspires boys to their best achievement. Sound government through sensible restraints and incentives to good conduct. Health record unsurpassed. R. O. T. C. Modern buildings and equipment, laboratories, gymnasium, swimming pool, cinder track. All athletics. Charges moderate. For Catalog address
COL. C. R. ENDSLEY, Supt., Box R SWEETWATER :: TENNESSEE

There's the dream of Southern Sun-light in tresses that have felt the touch of
CARO-CO
COCOANUT OIL SHAMPOO
Carolina's gift to lovely women Your best druggist carries it 50 cents the bottle
CARO-CO
UNION SOUTH CAROLINA

Stop Laxatives
Which Only Aggravate Constipation
Nujol is a lubricant—not a medicine or laxative—so cannot gripe. When you are constipated, not enough of Nature's lubricating liquid is produced in the bowel to keep the food waste soft and moving. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it acts like this natural lubricant and thus replaces it. Try it today.
Nujol
REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.
A LUBRICANT—NOT A LAXATIVE

The Call of the Conference Claimants

Edited by Luther E. Todd, Secretary

Board of Finance, M. E. Church, South

510-513 Security Building, St. Louis, Mo.

Pledge of Co-operation.—On July 30 I received a letter from a prominent minister of the great Virginia conference, and its contents were of a nature to give me much encouragement concerning the fast-approaching special effort for superannuate endowment. The writer of this letter stated that at a meeting of the Board of Managers of the Pastors' Association held on June 27, 1923, representing all the districts of the Virginia conference, they unanimously adopted a resolution touching this great cause and instructed their secretary to send a copy of the resolution to the Board of Finance, and it is as follows: "That the Board of Managers of the Pastors' Association of the Virginia conference assembled in Ashland, Va., June 27, 1923, give our hearty indorsement of the plan for the special effort for superannuate endowment and pledge ourselves to untiring efforts in its behalf."

There are one hundred and seventy-two members of the Pastors' Association in the Virginia conference. Knowing these pastors as I do, it can be safely stated that their determination to make the superannuate cause the keynote of their year's program guarantees the success of the movement so far as that part of the church is concerned. I have contended from the beginning of my secretaryship of the Board of Finance that nothing can keep this great cause from succeeding in the fullest measure if the preachers of the church are willing to give it their undivided attention and faithful leadership.

The Virginia regiment of real fighting men have raised their war cry. This means, in the words of Uncle Mose, "Sumthin' gwine t' drap." I have never read of the great state of Virginia failing in anything she undertook, and the state is mostly what the preachers have made her.

Three cheers for the Old Dominion: "Rah, rah, rah! Rah, rah, rah! Rah, rah, rah! Virginia!"

Another Trojan Enlists for the Battle.—It is strange how God leads us into vital relations with some fundamental truth. The other day I met two soldiers. One of them was a Union soldier and was well dressed and apparently happy and well fed. I fell into conversation with the gentleman and found out that he had given three years of unselfish service to his country in bearing arms during the years of 1862-65. I could not ask him how much money he received from the government, but I learned that he has his home and clothes and food furnished him and money to meet all his other needs. There was something in my heart that said to me: "This is right; it is just as it should be."

While I was thinking over the happy lot of this veteran soldier of the government another gentleman approached me and wanted to sell me a brush of some kind. He had several different kinds of brushes with him, and I bought one. He was hot and tired and poorly clad. He, too, was an old man and had a very fine face, and his voice was soft and his manner very gentle. I learned that he was a retired minister of the gospel and had given forty-seven years of unselfish service to his country, and now at his advanced age there is no place for him in the regular ranks of the ministry, and he is turned out to sell brushes to pay house rent and meet other expenses. There was something in my heart that said this is not right.

This man not only gave his life to his country but also went about building churches, helping to build hospitals, schools, towns, and contributing his best to the building of such immortal monuments. I could not respect his church neglecting him in his old age. I have always been committee to a course of positive action for adequate superannuate endowment but now I am for this cause more than ever.

Since the incident referred to above I have read "The Forgotten Law," and I could not for a while see anything but the "forgotten man." I am now reading three great books—"Social Insurance," by Seager; "Getting a Living," by Bolen; and "Profit Sharing," by Gilman—and all of them have deepened my impressions that we must do something for our aged ministers. Every worthy business enterprise has endeavored to make provisions for their employees when they are retired. Can the church of the living God treat this cause lightly? The low salaries paid by the various denominational bodies to their clergy and the inadequacy of philanthropic methods to meet the problems of old age relief have been leading considerations in the movement for clergy pensions for some time. May the Lord lead us to a realization of our duty in this matter! I believe the church will be glad to have the opportunity of doing this thing for her "forgotten man." This old soldier of the cross should have as good a living as any man on earth. The Lord bless his church in this work.—Rev. H. E. Corbin.

The Viewpoint of an Awakened Pastor.—Not long ago one of the Shreveport daily papers carried a very pathetic story under the headline "Old Horses' Home Proposed." According to the report, a certain lady whose name was given had made the suggestion after seeing the cruel treatment and the inhuman neglect of many of these old worn-out but one-time faithful servants of man. It was pointed out that after years of toil these poor beasts or burden, crippled and shrunk with age, were allowed the privilege of starvation pasture—to suffer for a time and then to die. As I read this story my sentimental nature was stirred to its depths. There was basest ingratitude on the one hand and Christlike human tenderness on the other.

Then I recalled another touching story as told by Rev. T. B. Fisher, of the Tennessee conference. He said that years before he had made a promise to his horse friend with him in a ministry of twenty-five years that if the horse would be faithful to the end he should have a decent burial. The day arrived at last when this faithful to the end he should have a decent burial. The day arrived at last when this faithful horse died. True to his agreement, Brother Fisher gave the animal a burial hard by the church.

Such tenderness shown by the good woman and the old superannuate referred to above serve to remind us that we should all have at least good horse religion in dealing with the old war horses of Southern Methodism. How can we longer neglect or forget those among us who have pulled the heavy loads through the years? How few of them have kicked out of the harness, no matter how heavy the load or long the journey! How many times they have with strength of faith in God pulled the state and the church out of the mud and got the wheels of civilization on firm ground! Yes, and they have fought other battles, too: they have charged through the thick ranks of all forms of sin from personal vices to social and political unrighteousness. And now, battle-weary and service-marred, they are permitted to shift for themselves the best they can, not even having the care which human gratitude provides for old horses.

I believe with all my heart that there is going to be an uprising in Southern Methodism. Thousands and tens of thousands will say our superannuates must be cared for and with the gratitude and concern which is their due. In the name of all that is high and holy let us bring in twenty million dollars for superannuate endowment in behalf of these retired servants.—Rev. J. W. Pearson.

From the Pentecostal Herald.—He was an old minister of the gospel. For many years he had traveled large circuits and faithfully preached the word. He had served important stations. He had been a presiding elder. His financial remuneration had always been meager. He was old now, had been superannuated, and was in poor health.

He lived on the edge of an old field on the borders of a ragged, broken forest in a log house that, like the man and the field and the forest, had seen its best days. He hacked his wood down, rolled the logs on a sled, and hauled it to his door. He hacked off the logs and, with the assistance of his aged wife, rolled them into the fireplace. It kept the dear old man busy to supply fuel sufficient to have enough fire to keep fairly comfortable. He had a little garden and took great interest in it. He would hoe a while, lean on his hoe handle, and wipe the sweat from his brow with an old faded red handkerchief. His floor was barren of carpet, except a small piece made of rags lying at his bedside to protect his bare old feet as he prepared to retire. The fae at his table was very simple. I bought some of his books. They were great old friends of his, and he was sad to part with them, but he needed a few dollars badly. I could scarcely keep from crying. I was choked with emotion. I could but feel some indignation, and I believe it was righteous indignation, against the host of people to whom he had ministered so faithfully, and who had remunerated him so sparingly and now neglected him almost entirely.

Dear old man, he's home in heaven now and having a wonderful time. I can imagine him in beautiful robes of white walking and rejoicing in the light of the countenance of the Lord he loved. He was a very cultured man, refined, gentle, uncomplaining. There are such men living today. May the Lord bless them! May the church do her duty by them!

GREENSBORO COLLEGE

The A-Grade Woman's College of the Two Methodist Conferences of North Carolina

Rated by State Department of Education as Class A.

Chartered 1838. Confers the degree of A. B. in the literary department and B. M. in the music department.

In addition to our regular classical course, special attention is called to the departments of Home Economics, Expression, Art, Education, Sunday School Teacher Training, Piano Pedagogy, and to our complete School of Music.

Modern New $50,000.00 Dormitory completed 1918. Conservatory of Music costing about $170,000 completed 1922.

Fall Semester begins September 5, 1923. For further information apply to DR. S. B. TURRENTINE, President, Greensboro, N. C.

THIRTEEN MILLION DOLLARS IN CHURCH VALUES

The value of property belonging to the Methodist Church in North Carolina exceeds $13,000,000. On this vast amount of property there is only $3,000,000 of insurance—less than one-fourth of its value protected.

Suppose you had stock in a furniture factory one-fourth protected from fire, what would you do? You would either sell, or hold the directors responsible.

See that your church officials protect your most valuable assets or you may be called upon to donate again to rebuild a church parsonage destroyed by fire.

Insure in The Methodist Mutual—owned and controlled by the two North Carolina Conferences.

W. E. WEBB, Secretary
STATESVILLE, N. C.

RUTHERFORD COLLEGE

RUTHERFORD COLLEGE, N. C.

NEXT TERM OPENS SEPTEMBER 4TH

Rutherford College offers four years accredited High School work, and two years of College work.

These are some of the interesting considerations:

1. Modern equipment.
2. An efficient faculty.
3. The breezy and healthful location.
4. Modest expenses (from $150 to $250).
5. The unusually purposeful and religious students in attendance—fifty-five of whom last year were ministerial students, twenty-two volunteer workers, twenty-two members of the evangelistic singing class.
6. The very earnest disposition on the part of the management of the school to raise the standard of scholarship to the highest possible attainment.

Other information will be gladly furnished on request.

M. T. HINSHAW, President, Rutherford College, N. C.

Our Little Folks

JANE'S SECRET

"What can be the matter, Phyllis?"
 "Nothing at all is the matter."
 Phyllis hurried down the walk so that Jane should not see the sudden tears in her eyes. She did not like to cry.
 Jane followed Phyllis, deep in thought. A secret is a terrible thing, especially when you can't tell it to your best friend. Jane knew that Phyllis felt bad and she was sorry, but she couldn't tell her this secret yet.

When the children reached the school yard Jane was quickly surrounded by three or four girls. Phyllis went off by herself.

After school Phyllis and Jane had a great deal of fun making paper-doll clothes. Jane had several sheets of tissue paper, blue and yellow and pink. She had even found some plaid paper for trimmings. With cutting and fitting and pasting the little girls soon made the paper into dresses.

"I do love paper dolls," said Phyllis. "Sometimes I think I had rather have them than real dolls. I asked mother to give me only paper dolls for my birthday."

"That's tomorrow, isn't it?" asked Jane, and she smiled to herself.

"Will you come over after school? Mother said I couldn't have a party this year. But she's ordered some ice cream, and maybe there'll be a cake."

Jane had a queer look on her face. "I can't come right after school, Phyllis. I promised Helen I'd go over there."

"Helen didn't ask me."
 "I—I know."

"But it's my birthday."
 "I'm sorry," said Jane, but she didn't look sorry.

Phyllis jumped to her feet. "If you don't like me any more I'm going home."

She ran out of the yard.

All the next day at school Phyllis kept away from Jane and from Helen. More than once she saw them giggling and talking together, but every time she came near them they grew quiet.

She felt hurt and went home all by herself. Phyllis had a habit of sulking when things did not go to please her, and, even though today was her birthday and there was ice cream at home, she circled round the house to the back yard. She could do something to make those girls feel bad, and she intended to do it.

The paper dolls!

Lightly she ran across the back yard and down a side street to Jane's playhouse. She knew just where everything was. She picked up a box of colored papers that she had decided to burn or tear or spoil in some way. But when she took the cover off the box a scrap of white paper fluttered to the floor. She thought it was a paper-doll dress and stooped to pick it up, but then she saw that it was a note.

"Be sure to be on time," it said. "Won't it be a lark! Mrs. Cummins said—" The rest was torn off.

Mrs. Cummins? That was Phyllis' mother. What did she know about all this? Phyllis hadn't told her that the girls had a secret. Slowly she put back the box of paper dolls. She would go home and ask her mother what the note meant. Slowly and thoughtfully she walked up the front walk and opened the front gate.

"Surprise! Surprise!" a dozen merry voices shouted.

Then Phyllis realized what the note had meant and why the girls had avoided her and why Helen had not asked her to play. A surprise party!

For her! Of course! It was her birthday.

Jane was hugging her tight. "Come on, Phyllis. The table is all set. There's a great big cake, and you are to have the first blow at the candles."

Of course it was intended that Phyllis Cummins should be the happiest little girl there, because it was her birthday and her party; but she wasn't, because she felt ashamed of herself.—Marguerite Murphy, in The Youth's Companion.

THE GOLDEN HORSE

The golden horse was a part of a weather vane on the top of a large stable where there had once been horses but where now there only two hard, shiny automobiles that never turned to look when anyone came into the stable.

The golden horse had been there many years, and he was very proud of himself. When he was young he had often been told how splendid he looked in his coat of gold leaf, and now he did not know that the rain and the sun had washed and burned almost all of it away. Beneath him were four golden letters, N and E and S and W, all pointing in different directions. The four letters never moved, no matter what happened, but the golden horse moved very often. His mane was thick and wavy, his tail streamed out behind, and he held his head proudly. His legs were made so that he seemed to be always running, and however hard the wind blew, or however often it changed about, he always ran bravely against it. Once the crow who had a nest in the tree near the stable asked the golden horse why he always ran against the wind.

"It is necessary," replied the golden horse; "otherwise no one would know which way the wind was blowing."

"But it is much easier to go with the wind," said the crow.

"I was not put here to take life easy," answered the golden horse, "but to tell people which way the wind is blowing. It is an important duty." And he bore against the wind harder than ever.

From his high place he could see the ocean, with great ships sailing on it. Nearer were many houses and all the different kinds of buildings that make a town; and there were trees and a little park and roads that went far off and never came back again. Smoke rose from the chimneys of the houses, and people walked about the streets, and automobiles went out on the far roads. But there were few horses, and none of them were golden.

"I am the only one of my kind," said the golden horse. "I must be very important."

But he spoke kindly to the little birds that flew about him all day long and held many serious conversations with his old friend the crow, who was a deep thinker.

One night after the summer was nearly gone there was a terrible storm. The golden horse had been in many bad storms since he first took up his place on the weather vane, but never before in so bad a storm as that. It rained so hard that it seemed to him as if bucketfuls of water were being poured over him every moment; the wind blew so hard that the horse rocked from side to side; the lightning flashed like great white flames, and the thunder crashed and roared as if cannon were being fired in the clouds. The birds and the squirrels cuddled deeper into their nests and twittered and chattered in their fright. The golden horse too was frightened, but he still ran bravely against the wind and called to the old crow not to be afraid. Suddenly there was a louder thunderclap than ever, and the golden horse felt himself falling, falling through the air, head over heels, until he struck the roof of the stable and slid and slipped and fell again and at last struck the ground with a dreadful thump.

"This is the end of me," he thought as he lay still in the mud and the rain.

When morning came the storm had gone far away, and everything was peaceful once more. The sun came up in a clear blue sky and shone gayly on the puddles of rain water. The little birds flew about and sang as if nothing had happened, but the old crow came over to speak to the golden horse.

"This is the end of you," he said.
 "This is the end of you," he said, proud. Now you are of no use to anyone."

An old man came by with a bag on his back, looking for something that he could sell for a few pennies. He saw the golden horse but only pushed him aside with his foot.

"This is the end of me," said the golden horse; "even the junk man doesn't want me." And his heart was sad.

A little girl and boy came running out from the big house beyond the stable. They saw the golden horse and ran to pick him up. "Oh, see!" they called to each other. "It is the golden horse from the weather vane. How wonderful he is!" and they ran with him to the house to show their mother.

"Sure enough," she said, "it is the golden horse from the weather vane. The storm has blown him down. We must give him a fresh coat of gold leaf and put him up again."

So she sent him to a sign painter who gave him a new coat of gold leaf and made him all shining and bright once more.

"Let us have him to play with," begged the children. "Do not put him up again."

"We shall see what father says," answered their mother, "but you may have him today at least."

All day they played with him. The little boy rode him about and the little girl put reins of string in his mouth and sat in a chair behind and pretended that she rode in a pony cart. When the nurse brought their bread and milk for supper they gave some to the golden horse, and when they went to bed they kissed him and laid him on some strak on a shelf.

When the father came to see them before they went to sleep they told him about the golden horse. "He is a good horse, and we love him," said they. "May we keep him, father? He must have been lonely on top of the stable."

The father went to look at the golden horse.

"Well, old friend," said he, "you have come down in the world, but perhaps it is just as well. Since the little ones love you, you shall stay here and play with them." Then he said good night to the children.

The golden horse thought of his high place on the weather vane and how he could see the world round him, and at first he wanted to go back. But he thought that it was important for him to stay with the children and make them happy. "After all," he said to himself, "it is very pleasant to be loved."—Youth's Companion.

SORES BOILS, OUTS and BURNS have been healed since 1820 with

Gray's Ointment

Sold by all druggists. Write for sample to W. F. Gray & Co., 710 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

Take Business Training at Home We will train you just as thoroughly at your home as at our College. Write for big, FREE book, "Guide to Business Success." Draughton's Practical Business College, Dept. N. C., Nashville, Tenn.

Big Savings on Church Pews
 Replace those old pews with our beautiful new designs. Our prices are lowest. Highest grade workmanship and materials. Satisfaction guaranteed. Write today for prices and illustrated circulars.
FORBES MFG. CO., Inc.
 Hopkinsville, : : : Kentucky

GOSPEL TENTS

OUR PRICES ON QUALITY GOSPEL TENTS CANNOT BE EQUALLED—WRITE TODAY—
ATLANTA TENT & AWNING CO.
 ATLANTA, GA.

DIPLOMA
References

Our Diplomas on Bookkeeping, Shorthand, Railway Mail, Rural Carrier and Civil Service Courses will insure your success. Fall Term begins Sept. 4. Address Greensboro Commercial School, Greensboro, N. C., for Catalog.

MOREHEAD CITY, N. C.

The ideal North Carolina Coast resort, offering unusual attractions and accommodations for visitors. Atlantic Hotel has been remodelled and with other hotels offer excellent accommodations. Unsurpassed surf bathing at Bogue Sound.

Convenient schedules via Norfolk Southern trains and close connections at Goldsboro from points on connecting lines.

Special Sunday, Week End and Summer excursion fares. Sunday train leave Morehead City 5:30 p. m.

For information, rates and schedules, apply any ticket agent or write

J. F. Dalton,
 General Passenger Agent,
 Norfolk, Va.

sure is strong

RED DEVIL LYE
 Wm. Schield Mfg. Co., St. Louis, Mo.
 for automobile radiators

The Lye you can trust

Genuine Red Devil is the lye you can trust for quick sure results. It is economical because of its concentrated strength. Don't be put off with cheap, wasteful brands. Ask your grocer for the can with the smiling red devil on the label.

Write for Free Booklet

Wm. Schield Mfg. Co., St. Louis, Mo.

RED DEVIL LYE

PRESIDING ELDERS APPOINTMENTS

Western North Carolina Conference

ASHEVILLE DISTRICT H. C. Sprinkle, P. E., Asheville, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing appointments for Asheville District, including locations like Fairview, Bethany, Flat Rock-Fletcher, Homlmy, Pleasant Hill, etc., with dates from August to October.

CHARLOTTE DISTRICT J. B. Craven, P. E., 413 Central Ave., Charlotte, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing appointments for Charlotte District, including locations like Peachland, Mt. Moriah, Ansonville, Cedar Hill, etc., with dates from August to September.

GREENSBORO DISTRICT W. F. Womble, Presiding Elder 508 Summit Ave., Greensboro, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing appointments for Greensboro District, including locations like Caraway Memorial, East Greensboro, Mt. Pleasant, etc., with dates from August to October.

MARION DISTRICT Z. Paris, P. E., Marion, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing appointments for Marion District, including locations like Forest City, Pleasant Grove, Spindale, Alexander, etc., with dates from August to September.

MOUNT AIRY DISTRICT J. H. West, P. E., Box 422, Mt. Airy, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing appointments for Mount Airy District, including locations like Jonesville, Ebenezer, with dates from August to September.

Table listing appointments for Elkin, Rural Hall, Trinity, Leaksville, night, Dobson, Rockford, etc., with dates from August to October.

NORTH WILKESBORO DISTRICT J. W. Williams, P. E., Jefferson, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing appointments for North Wilkesboro District, including locations like Avery, Elk Park, Todd, Fairview, etc., with dates from August to October.

SHELBY DISTRICT H. H. Jordan, P. E., Gastonia, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing appointments for Shelby District, including locations like Shelby Ct., Elbethel, King's Mountain, etc., with dates from August to September.

WAYNESVILLE DISTRICT R. S. Howie, P. E., Waynesville, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing appointments for Waynesville District, including locations like Lake Junaluska, Long's Chpl, Sylva Sta., Balsam, etc., with dates from August to October.

SALISBURY DISTRICT T. F. Marr, P. E., Salisbury, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing appointments for Salisbury District, including locations like Concord Ct., Rocky Ridge, Epworth, Kerr Street, etc., with dates from August to October.

STATESVILLE DISTRICT D. M. Litaker, P. E., 240 Walnut St., Statesville, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing appointments for Statesville District, including locations like Ball Creek, Camp Meeting, Catawba, Camp Meeting, etc., with dates from August to October.

WINSTON-SALEM DISTRICT W. A. Newell, P. E., 1084 W. Fourth Street, Winston-Salem, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing appointments for Winston-Salem District, including locations like Mocksville, Mocksville, Cooleemee, Cooleemee, etc., with dates from August to September.

North Carolina Conference

DURHAM DISTRICT M. T. Plyler, P. E., Durham, N. C. THIRD ROUND

Table listing appointments for Durham District, including locations like Pearl, Masseys, Mebane, East Burlington, etc., with dates from August to September.

ELIZABETH CITY DISTRICT C. B. Culbreth, P. E., Elizabeth City, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing appointments for Elizabeth City District, including locations like Roanoke Island, Hatteras, Kennekeet, Stumpy Point, etc., with dates from August to September.

FAYETTEVILLE DISTRICT R. H. Willis, P. E., Fayetteville, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing appointments for Fayetteville District, including locations like Parkton, Sandy Grove, Sunday at Hope Mills, etc., with dates from August to October.

NEW BERN DISTRICT F. M. Shamburger, P. E., New Bern, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing appointments for New Bern District, including locations like Bridgeton Ct., Bridgeton, Pink Hill Ct., etc., with dates from August to September.

Table listing appointments for St. Pauls, Goldsboro, night, Elm St. and Pikeville, night, Caswell St., Kinston, night, etc., with dates from August to October.

ROCKINGHAM DISTRICT J. H. Shore, P. E., Rockingham, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing appointments for Rockingham District, including locations like Hamlet, Rockingham, Richmond, Zion, etc., with dates from August to September.

Table listing appointments for West End, Marcus, Aberdeen, Vass, Cameron, Raeford, Raeford, etc., with dates from August to November.

RALEIGH DISTRICT J. C. Wooten, P. E. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing appointments for Raleigh District, including locations like Princeton, Fellowship, Franklinton, Wesleys, a.m., etc., with dates from August to October.

WASHINGTON DISTRICT S. A. Cotton, P. E., Washington, N. C. FOURTH ROUND

Table listing appointments for Washington District, including locations like McKendree, Conetoe, Tarboro, night, Aurora, Bonerton, etc., with dates from August to October.

Mattamuskeet, Amity, 11	.....27-28
Fairfield, night	.....28
Washington, night	.....31
November
Bailey, 11	.....3-4
South Rocky Mount, night	..... 4
Rocky Mount Ct., 3	..... 5
Rocky Mount, First Church, ngt.	..... 5
Bath, Asbury, 11	.....10-11
Vanceboro, night	.....11

WELDON DISTRICT
S. E. Mercer, P. E., Weldon, N. C.
FOURTH ROUND

September
Henderson, First Church, 11	..... 2
North and South Henderson, 8	..... 2
Weldon Station, 8	..... 5
Warrenton Chg, Hebron Ch, 11	.....8-9
Littleton Chg, Bethel Ch, 11	.....16-17
Battleboro & Whitakers, Wh'krs, 11	..... 23
Enfield, 8	..... 23
Rosemary, Rosemary, 11	.....30
Roanoke Rapids, 8	.....30
October
Scotland Neck, 11 & 8	..... 7
Halifax, Halifax, 11	.....13-14
Garysburg, Garysburg, 11	.....17
Northampton, Lasker, 11	.....20-21
Rich Square, Pinners, 8 & 11	.....21-22
Conway, Zion, 11	.....27-28
Murfreesboro & Winton, Murfrees-	.....28-29
boro, 8 & 11	.....28-29
Aulanger, Aulander, 11	.....31
November
Ahoskie, Colerain, 11	..... 1
Windsor, White Oak, 11	.....3-4
Williamston & Hamilton, William-	.....4-5
ston, 7:30 & 11	.....4-5
Middleburg, Cokesbury, 11	..... 8
Warren, Shady Grove, 11	..... 9
Norlina, Jerusalem, 11	.....10-11

WILMINGTON DISTRICT
J. M. Daniel, P. E.
FOURTH ROUND

August
Wilmington, Grace, a.m.	.....27
Wilmington, Fifth Ave., p.m.	.....27
September
Wilmington, Trinity, a.m.	..... 2
Wilmington, Epworth, p.m.	..... 2
Magnolia, Trinity, a.m.	.....8-9
Clinton, Clinton, p.m.	..... 9
Wallace-Rose Hill, Providence, a.m.	.....14
Burgaw, Watha, a.m.	.....15-16

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORK

(Continued from page nine)
A BOOSTER

Rev. G. G. Adams, the systematic, efficient and constructive pastor of the Norwood circuit, is leading his fine people to become more definitely identified with our conference work. In spite of two disappointments this year in our not getting to his work for a Sunday school institute he has promoted a Sunday School Day in each of his five churches. Norwood circuit, just two years old, is developing rapidly. It is being wisely led.

NEW WESLEY CLASSES

Since our last report the following Wesley Bible classes have been added to our Western North Carolina Conference Wesley Bible Class Federation. Welcome, a hundred times welcome.

- Wesley Philathea, Trinity, Randolph circuit.
- Young Ladies' Wesley, North Wilkesboro.
- Weaver Wesley, Monroe, Central.
- Young Men's Wesley, Reidsville, Main Street.
- Mary and Martha, Dilworth, Charlotte.
- Willing Workers, Norwood.
- Friendship Class, Hawthorne Lane, Charlotte.
- The Bell Bennett, Central, Asheville.
- Men's Wesley Bible Class, Avondale.
- Susanna Wesley, Avondale.
- Daughters of Wesley, Rutherford-ton.

GROWING

The list of pastors who have taken time to pass one or more units of credit in our Standard Leadership Training Course is constantly growing. Since last report the following pastors have joined the fine company who will be presented with certificates of award on the Sunday School Anniversary night of our annual conference: Revs. E. J. Harbison, M. G. Ervin, O. J. Jones, J. W. Kennedy, C. M. Pickens, J. R. Walker and J. W. Williams.

The following seven pastors attended the Junaluska Training School and received two units of credit. Revs. G. T. Bond, E. J. Harbison, L. B. Hayes, W. A. Jenkins, O. J. Jones, J. F. Kirk, and C. M. Pickens. Rev. E. P. Stabler attended the South Carolina Conference School for two weeks and received two credits. The number of pastors who really believe in religious education is constantly growing.

DOERS OF THE WORD

Elsewhere in the columns of the Advocate will be seen a picture of the Men's Wesley Bible Class of Central Methodist church, Albemarle. Supt. Charles A. Reap writes as follows of this fine body of men:

"A little less than eighteen months ago the Men's Bible class organized as a Wesley class and began to enlarge the scope of its work and service. At that time the enrollment of the class was about sixty. The class began to interest the men of Albemarle in Sunday school and church work, and set as its goal by Easter 1922, an enrollment of one hundred; it passed this mark before that time and continued its growth and work until now it has an enrollment of about one hundred and ninety. This class is blessed by having Mr. R. L. Smith, one of the ablest lay workers of the conference, as its teacher. Herein lies one great secret of the class' success. Mr. Smith never fails to bring a splendid message to the class each Sunday morning. Mr. O. H. Phillips is president of the class and Mr. W. Almer Smith is assistant teacher.

The work of this class is not limited to its church in Albemarle, but extends its work throughout the county. The class gave the county welfare officer instructions to report any cases of need to the class and the class would aid those in need anywhere within reach regardless of denominational lines. The class has given much aid to many needy homes. It has sent aid through the county welfare officer to widows and children twenty miles away when the need was reported to it. Central Methodist Sunday school is very proud of the splendid work its men of the Wesley Bible class are doing."

RUFFIN

Arising very early Sunday morning, August 12, I hastened over to Ruffin to spend the day with Rev. H. F. Starr and his people in emphasizing the why and the how of Sunday school work. Beginning with the Sunday school session in the morning and followed by morning and afternoon sessions the Sunday school work was emphasized throughout the hot day. Brother Starr is serving his third year on the Ruffin charge and the prints of his handiwork are plainly manifest. He is not content to tell how a thing should be done, but better than that he can show how to do it. A painted church, improved church grounds, and a painted and renovated parsonage testify to the passerby that something is going on at Ruffin. Brother and Sister Starr are happy in their work at Ruffin and the Ruffin people are happy to have them as their spiritual leaders.

CORRESPONDENCE

During the month of July the following Western North Carolina conference credits in Leadership Training were earned through correspondence:

- Rev. W. A. Jenkins, Concord, blue seal diploma.
- Rev. J. R. Walker, Hickory, incomplete diploma.
- Rev. G. M. Ervin, Mooresville, incomplete diploma.
- Mrs. B. N. Mann, Greensboro, three certificates.

- Mrs. L. W. Fuller, Lenoir, one certificate.
- Miss Ethel Smithdeal, Advance, one certificate.
- Miss Gladys Thompson, Advance, one certificate.
- Miss Clara Maie Varner, Advance, one certificate.
- Miss Patsy Davis, Advance, one certificate.
- Samuel Talbert, Advance, one certificate.
- Dorothy Thompson, Advance, one certificate.
- Rev. J. W. Kennedy, Denim, one certificate.
- Rev. J. W. Williams, Jefferson, one certificate.

REBUILDING 2,000 CARS IN THE SOUTHERN RAILWAY SHOPS

Birmingham, Ala., Aug. 20.—Two thousand rebuilt box cars with steel underframes will be turned out of Southern Railway System shops during the next few months. The underframes will be fabricated in Birmingham by the Virginia Bridge & Iron Company and the work of applying them and of rebuilding the cars will be done in the Southern's own shops throughout the South.

The cars to be rebuilt are of all-wood construction and had been set aside for retirement. Their return to service as modern steel underframe cars, equal in every respect to new cars and suitable for handling any lading, will mean a substantial addition to the Southern freight carrying equipment.

The rebuilt cars will be in addition to 9,000 new box cars, purchased by the Southern during 1922 and 1923, of which over 6,000 are already in service and the remainder are contracted for delivery in time for the movement of fall business. The Southern will also soon receive 66 locomotives, 4,865 coal cars and 200 stock cars which were purchased in the spring.

CONFERENCE WEEK

Say, in conf'rence week, it's funny
How pa gets in a sweat,
Waitin' 'round to see what happens,
An' what minister we'll get!

Pa says, "What we need in this church
Is a man to raise the debt!"
Ma says, "First we need the people—
Then the bill will all be met."

Old Mis' Jones drops in to see us
An' she says, "They'll be a fuss
If they send a young upstarter
To be practicin' on us!"

An' Bill Brown, who goes with sister,
Says, "I'm gonna make a shift
If they send us an old timer
That'll let the young folks drift."

'Ficial board all wants a preacher
Who'll "make the old fire fall"—
But my gang is fer a feller
That can coach at basket ball.

So I'm wonderin' how the preacher's
Gonna fit all down the line;
An' I'll tell you one thing certain—
I don' want his job fer mine!
—Western Christian Advocate.

Banishing the Wrong.

Each solitary kind action that is done, the whole world over, is working briskly in its own sphere to restore the balance between right and wrong. The more kindness there is on the earth at any given moment, the greater is the tendency of the balance between right and wrong to correct itself and remain in equilibrium. Nay, this is short of the truth. Kindness allies itself with right to invade the wrong and beat it off the earth.—Frederick W. Faber, D. D.

Many a man uses his vacation to lower the level of his spirituality.

MARTHA WASHINGTON COLLEGE

An ideal College for Young Women. Healthful surroundings. 2200 feet above sea-level, same as Asheville, N. C.

All literary teachers hold Master's or Doctor's Degrees. High standard faculty, professionally trained and experienced. All departments of high order. Curricula for majoring in English, History, Mathematics, Sciences, French, German, Spanish, Home Economics, Art, Piano, Pipe Organ, Voice, Violin. Conducted like a large home. Student "activities" a special feature. Address PRESIDENT MARTHA WASHINGTON COLLEGE, Abingdon, Va.

FOUNDED 1838

CHARTERED IN 1859

TRINITY COLLEGE
DURHAM, N. C.

A Southern College of liberal arts with an established national reputation for high standards, noble traditions, and progressive policies. Its large endowment fund makes possible its first-class equipment and large faculty of well trained and carefully chosen teachers. Student fees low. Comfortable, inexpensive rooms in carefully supervised hygienic dormitories.

Classical and scientific courses leading to the bachelor's degree. Graduate courses in all departments. Schools of Engineering, Education, and Law.

For catalogue and illustrated booklet, address

R. L. FLOWERS,
Secretary to the Corporation.

IN MEMORIAM

THOMPSON—July 4, 1923, was a great day of Liberty to the soul of Sister Mary Asbury Thompson when it took its flight into the eternal world, a granddaughter of Rev. Henry Asbury, she was of noble ancestry, and by her life she added new luster to a noble name. Coming to Mt. Holly in 1896, she became a charter member of the W. M. S. and took an active part in Sunday school work and all church activities. She leaves a large family to honor her name and emulate her virtues. Hers was a great, good life, and she was glad to go to the glory world.
O. P. Ader.

DUNN—Louise Dunn died May 26, 1922, aged 76 years. A sainted mother is gone. Bethlehem church, Bladen circuit, has lost one of its strongest pillars. But she could not always be with us; God took her home. Left to mourn are children, grandchildren and a large circle of friends. She professed faith in Christ early in life. To her church she was ever faithful and true. She loved the doctrines of the Methodist church, lived them each day and died in the triumphs of the faith. Sleeping in Bethlehem cemetery she awaits the resurrection morning.
G. H. Biggs.

REGISTER—Mary C. Register was born in 1848, died June 5, 1923, aged 75 years. She was converted and joined Winsor Methodist church, Bladen circuit, in 1859. She is said by all who knew her to have been one of the most sainted mothers that ever lived in this section of country. She loved all churches, but had an intense love for the doctrines of the Methodist church. She knew her Saviour and loved Him devotedly. It is said that from the day of her conversion the world lost its charms for her and she walked and talked with God. Mourning loved ones and friends gathered at the home burying ground near Center church and laid her body to rest till God should call for it in the resurrection morning.
G. H. Biggs, Pastor.

WALKER—Carolyn Moore Walker was born November 6, 1920, and departed this life July 17, 1923, age two years, eight months and eleven days. As death came and took away little Carolyn from her father and mother, Dr. R. B. and N. S. Walker, and a host of relatives, her sweet spirit was transplanted in the sweet fields of Eden over there.

She was a sweet, bright, affectionate child, always full of sunshine, and the home was kept bright and cheerful. Oh, how it makes the heart of parents bleed to give them up. Sleep on, sweet Carolyn. You shall not return to us, but we shall go to you. May God's richest blessings rest upon the bereaved family.
J. M. Green, P. C.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Since it has been the will of our divine Father to call from a life of service our sister, Mrs. J. D. Jones, be it resolved:

First, That we, the members of the Woman's Missionary Society of Lincolnton Methodist church, bow in humble submission to the will of God.

Second, That we strive to follow her Christian example with cheerfulness of spirit which she always showed by her loving words and smiles.

Third, That while we miss her, we rejoice in the hope that it is well with her in her heavenly mansion which she is now occupying, and that her reward is that of a faithful servant of God.

Fourth, That we extend our sympathy and love to the bereaved family in their loss of such a Christian wife and mother.

Fifth, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the records of this organization, a copy printed in the Lincoln County News, Lincoln County Times and North Carolina Christian Advocate and a copy forwarded to the bereaved family.

Mrs. J. T. Perkins,
Mrs. S. W. McLean,
Mrs. Plato Miller,
Committee.

CAIN—Sister Ann Cornelia Cain departed this life November 5, 1922, aged 72 years. A mother in Israel has fallen. In early life she professed faith in Christ and was a member of Windsor church, Bladen circuit. She was a good woman. Though a sufferer she was ever bright and cheerful and always saw the sunny side of life. All who knew her loved her. Besides loved ones left to mourn there is a host of friends whose hearts are sad. In the home burying ground beside her husband she sleeps peacefully to await the resurrection morning. God bless the mourning loved ones.
G. H. Biggs, Pastor.

MIDGETT—Jethro Anderson Midgett of Rodanthe, N. C., passed to his reward July 20, 1923. He was stricken suddenly while in a boat with some of his neighbors and was at once taken to his home and lived less than two days. He was about 67 years old. He leaves a widow, three children and three sisters with other loved ones to mourn their loss. The shadows have fallen across their pathway. Brother Anderson was a good man. He was converted and joined the M. E. Church, South, many years ago, and remained a faithful member to the last. May God comfort the sorrowing family and guide them to the heaven where sorrow never comes. The funeral service was conducted at his home and his form laid to rest beside loved ones who preceded him to glory.
K. R. Pugh.

DAMERON—December 17, 1848, there came into the home of John Buxton and Tempe Hilliard Williams, in Warren county, a little daughter, Tempe Buxton, who was destined to bring great comfort to her parents, and be a blessing to all with whom she was thrown during a long useful life.

She was happily married June 14, 1876, to John A. Dameron of Brunswick county, Virginia, and together they raised a family of four sons and four daughters, all trained to "Fear God and keep His commandments." It was in her beautiful home life that her character shone brightest, though her sweet, unselfish spirit went out to all around her, and made her a blessing and inspiration to all who knew her. She joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in her youth and always loved her church.

Her husband preceded her to the better land in 1918, and since then she has been feeble, but through her entire invalidism her sweet, unselfish nature kept her bright and cheerful, always thoughtful of those around her. She had a bright smile and cheerful greeting, always ready for the friends who came to see her. The beautiful devotion of her children and constant attention to her every wish was observed by all who knew them. Her oldest son, Dr. Buxton Williams Dameron, died a few months ago, and she bore his death with Christian resignation.

All that human love and skill could do to keep her was done, but the Master called her, and surrounded by her loving children her gentle spirit went home to God July 13, 1923.

This was a beautiful ending to a beautiful life, filled with deeds of love and kindness. Sunday, July 15, she was tenderly laid to rest by the side of her husband, covered by a mound of beautiful flowers sent by loving friends in many places. Seven children are left to thank God for the privilege of having had such a mother. The sympathy of the community goes to them in their great sorrow.

Goodbye, dear one, goodbye;
The peace of heaven is thine.
Upon thy loving face
The light of God doth shine.

H. M. D.

HARPER—On March 26, 1921, a dear little girl came to brighten the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Harper of Snow Hill, and they called her Mary Suggs. She at once became the idol of their hearts, but she was sent for only a short mission, for on June 30, 1923, God touched her and she slept. We often wonder why these little ones enter our homes and linger with us only a short time, reminding us with their sweet smiles of the purity and sweetness of heaven. Why must they open the tenderest fountains of our nature, only to leave them so soon choked with the bitter tears of loss?

It is impossible to answer such questions of the tortured heart. God has called her. Why? It is not for us to question. The mystery of His ways still remain unsolved, but "some time we'll understand." Surely it is an inestimable blessing to have been the parent of a child that has the stamp of heaven upon its brow, to hold it in one's arms, to minister to it, and then to give it back to God at His call, with the thought that in heaven as upon earth it is still our child.

O, what a sacred privilege!
Is accorded to woman and man,
To be the parents of angels
In the great divine plan.

As things of great value always costs, it is worth all the sorrow to have known this holy affection, and to have this treasure in heaven. So grieve not fond parents, for you know little Mary Suggs is "Safe in the arms of Jesus, Safe on His gentle breast, There by His love o'ershadowed Sweetly her soul shall rest." And may this link but bind you closer To the Saviour every day, strengthen and direct your footsteps As you journey on your way.
Mrs. J. W. Parker.

OWENS—Manie Owens, only daughter of A. L. and Docia Owens, died March 23, 1923, aged 17 years. Her's was a beautiful life. Obedient and loving as a child, and when but ten years of age professed faith in Christ and joined Center Methodist church on Bladen circuit. She was ever in her place in church and in Sunday school and because of her Christian graces and fitness for the work she was chosen teacher of the junior Sunday school class when but fifteen years of age. Her life was most powerfully felt, both in the church and Sunday school; but it was possibly in the Sunday school and before her class as teacher that her greatest opportunity for usefulness was seen. She loved her class and she lived her very life into each member of that class, and they together with the whole church and school loved her in return. But God did not allow them to have her long—only two short years—till he came to take her home. She was sick only a few days. Pneumonia had claimed her its victim. In her passing hours she sang, shouted and praised God and talked about going to be forever with Him. She loved her father, mother and only brother most affectionately, together with all other loved ones and friends, but when her Saviour came in His love and sweetness for her she laid her hands gently in His and went away to her home in the skies. All that was mortal of her we laid to rest in Center church cemetery to await the resurrection morning. We pray that all the sorrowing loved ones may be comforted and that they, together with the host of friends who came to see Manie's face the last time on earth may be impressed by her life, love the Christ she loved and meet her in heaven. Goodbye, Manie; we will miss you.
G. H. Biggs, Pastor.

HARRELSON—Sarah Virginia Harrelson was born May 15, 1835, and died May 30, 1923. Noting the above facts we are impressed by the years of opportunity through which she passed—years which were used in God's service. Her life was a long and useful one. She joined the Methodist church when quite young and used her talent in God's service.

It was the writer's fortune to come in contact with this life, so full of grace and truth, and to hear from the life of this good woman expressions of faith which recalled to mind the patriarch of Bible times. It is a benediction to be in her home. She was a granddaughter of Captain William Gunn, who fired the first shot at the battle of Yorktown. She was eye witness to the surrender of Lord Cornwallis. Her grandfather entertained in his home at Snow Hill and Whitfield. She not only had the privilege of hearing first hand stories of the war of Independence, but her life was linked up with the lives of the founders of Methodism in America.

She leaves to mourn their loss two sons and one daughter, Philip Harrelson of Charlotte, Walter Harrelson and Miss Alice Harrelson of Yanceyville. She was loved and honored by a large number of relatives and friends of North Carolina and Virginia. Thus passes one of those Christian characters who knew Methodism for sixty-five years in the nineteenth century, and for nearly twenty-five years in the twentieth century. Like her Master, she went about doing good. Methodism has lost one of the best women of Caswell county.

J. T. Stanford.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas, our friend and fellow Epworthian, Mr. Harold M. Shoaf, on July 22nd lost his life by drowning; therefore resolved,

First, That we, the Senior Epworth League of Forest Hill, Concord, with heavy hearts bow submissively to this strange dispensation of Divine Providence.

Second, That our league has lost a faithful and ready colaborer, who as a member and later as our president showed a deep concern for our work and by his fine example pointed us to efficient Christian service.

Third, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon our minutes, a copy sent to the bereaved family, and a copy to the North Carolina Christian Advocate for publication.

Gladys E. Brown,
Boots Widenhouse,
Leonard B. Suther.

MASSEY—Lida Mae Massey, daughter of Cecil S. and Alice L. Massey, was born March 3, 1919, and died August 10, 1923, being four years, five months and 12 days of age. Little Lida, named for helpmeet of a devout Methodist minister, was a sweet and attractive child, possessing a very rare and beautiful spirit. Popular with other children and making for her own little self friends of the mature and aged, she was for her tender years a most extraordinary child—bright, intelligent, affectionate, her friendliness drawing people to her. Lida though young lived well, and she left the old world sweeter than she found it. The rose had scarcely begun to unfold, but enough, however, to reveal its beauty, purity and richness, with the dewdrops of the early morning nestling among the lovely petals. We cannot think of her as dead. She has just slipped away; but O so suddenly, leaving us stunned and sad. She was a frequent visitor at the parsonage, many times refreshing my spirit and making glad my heart. I miss you so much. But some day, when the mists have rolled away and we all come before Him who said, "Suffer little children to come unto me and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of heaven," we will understand why you left so quickly.

May God bless and comfort the parents and keep safely the three little brothers and surviving sister.
L. B. Pattishall.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas, God in His providence in July, 1923, removed from our midst our esteemed co-worker, Annie Boldwin Marlow; and whereas, we, the Woman's Auxiliary of the Whiteville Methodist church, desire to place on record some appreciation of her life, therefore be it resolved:

First, That we bear testimony to her faithfulness and devotion to her church and missionary auxiliary.

Second, That as a kind neighbor, loyal friend, faithful wife and devoted mother, she was ever ready to do anything in her power to help.

Third, That we, her co-workers, deeply feel the loss her death has caused the community and her church, and that we express to her bereaved family our sincere sympathy and commend them to the loving care of our heavenly Father.

Fourth, That these resolutions be inscribed upon the records of this organization, and that a copy be sent to the family of the deceased, the Whiteville News Reporter and the North Carolina Christian Advocate.

Mrs. W. C. Merritt,
Mrs. J. B. Schuelsen,
Mrs. A. E. Powell,
Committee.

JAMES M. McMICHAEL
CHURCH ARCHITECT
Charlotte, N. C.

NORTH CAROLINA Christian Advocate

Volume LXVIII

GREENSBORO, N. C., THURSDAY, AUGUST 30, 1923

No. 35

The Real Position of the Management of the Junaluska Leadership Training School

By JOHN W. SHACKFORD

The following are exact quotations taken from several pages of notes which I wrote in preparation for the address I delivered on the evening of July 12, 1923, at the opening of the Training School, the substance of which I repeated briefly immediately preceding Dr. Bland's last address at the auditorium.

These quotations will indicate the position which the management of the school took great pains to make clear, and which was consistently maintained throughout the school, both by the General Secretary and the Director of Training Work. No utterance, which by any fair interpretation could be understood to the contrary, was made at any time.

I give the exact quotations written before any effort was made by others to give to an absent public the interpretation of our position, lest any should suggest that for any reason the school management is now seeking to modify its original position.

"It is no small responsibility that rests upon those who are charged by the church with giving guidance in the preparation of 160,000 teachers and officers for the religious instruction and training of more than two million Sunday school members."

"In the midst of a distraught world, in the midst of confusion of thought, in the midst of extremists on both sides on all questions of human thought, what is the proper attitude of those charged with the spiritual care of a generation in the making?"

"It will help us if we keep clearly in mind that we are responsible, first of all, for the vital Christian development of the persons under our care. Our concern is with persons, that these persons shall be guided progressively toward the goal of an achieved Christian character."

"But let us go a step further: What is the Christian development of persons? The Christian religion means an experience and a way of life, and the growth in the Christian life means the enlargement of that experience and the perfecting of that way of living."

"Religious education from the Christian point of view is the conscious effort to guide persons into this ever enlarging experience of God and of life as revealed in Jesus Christ. It is the effort to co-operate with God in the advancement and becoming of the full-grown man after the ideal of Jesus."

"Note the contrast in this with what may be called the primary emphasis upon intellectualism. Intellectualism cannot be substituted for experience. Religious education is more than instruction about religious things, it is participation in the things of God."

It is for this reason that we must break with the man who puts his faith primarily upon creeds, whether those creeds represent traditional forms or liberal forms of statement. At best they are but school-masters to help us to a vital experience of Christ and His spirit."

"Nothing more pitiable than to see people fighting to the last ditch for the mere forms of things, and sometimes for forms that have ceased to have vital significance."

"The deadly sin of unbrotherly judgment, of careless criticism of men who are following close up to Jesus Christ but do not pronounce one's particular shibboleths."

"A great scholar and a great Christian of our Methodism said recently that 'nobody, in my judgment, is doing so much today to undermine the religious faith of our thinking young people as those who are telling them that they must give up their science or their religion, or that they cannot be true to Christ and accept the viewpoint of modern scholarship.'"

"Our position is this, that we must be true to the great commission, which bids us teach the people the truth of Christ; not to preserve in cold storage the forms of statements of others, but try to discover and pass on the living experience which these represented."

"Let us repeat that the defenders of faith are not those who fight for the inviolability of the forms of faith, but those whose chief concern is the truth in its relation to persons; those whose chief concern is to pass on the vital experience of the Christian life to the generation succeeding us."

"Now we do not have to accept every theory of Bible scholars and of scientists. Many of these we may well leave to the scholars and to the scientists to debate among themselves. There are scientists hostile to religion, and there are destructive critics, but in a far larger sense have scientists and scholars been true servants of the truth and of religion."

"To be sure, a rationalism which accepts nothing which cannot be demonstrated is foolish and destroys itself. On the other hand, a faith that denies the place of reason in coming to a larger understanding and experience of the truth is fanaticism and will likewise destroy itself." (God expects us to exercise both our faith and our reason.)

"We are asked, what is the position of the school on the issues of the time? We believe that all religion is life and that our business is to co-operate with God, that there may be an over-enlargement in His people of the life revealed in His Son."

"We believe the old theology has its service to render and we believe that the new has its service to render, and we are not concerned with either as an end in itself."

