The Bethel charge, with Rev. R. E. Hunt as pastor, is moving nicely. Bro. Hunt is a good preacher and is taking well with the people. Our presiding elder, Dr. J. B. Craven, is pleasing in his manner and conversation and is wide awake to all the interests of the church, emphasizing the importance of rural congregations to be more progressive and fall in line with the churches that are meeting the demands of progress and are really doing things.

Several of our oldest persons have died. The latest to pass were Mrs. Clara Aycock and John L. Hartsell; both were members of Bethel church. It seems to be a law of nature that where there are quite a number of aged persons in a community and one dies several will die in a short period of time. We can recall the names of six or more persons ranging in age from 70 to 80 years who have died within radius of a few miles recently.

The congregation at Bethel is building a new church, which when completed will be one of the best we have ever seen in a rural community. It will contain eight class rooms and a large auditorium and when completed will cost about $23,000. Up to the present time there has been expended $13,000. The new structure is now under roof and the people, under the wise leadership of Brother Hunt, are anticipating its completion this year. So far as we know this is the oldest Methodist organization in this section of the state, having been organized 114 years ago. With an amendment by the general assembly to the school code, which is a move towards consolidated schools, a campaign for better roads, the Norfolk-Southern railroad nearby, Bethel being located near the center of No. 10 township, Cabarrus county is destined to become a still greater force in the moral, spiritual and educational uplift of the community. "Come over and help us."

With love to the editor and success to the Advocate. J. M. Hartsell.

TOWN CREEK CHARGE

Well, here we are again. I can hear you say, "Another pounding or we wouldn't be hearing from him again so soon." You are mighty right about the pounding. The members of Zion church, our nearest church and neighbors, (and when one's near neighbors join in and help to pound one, others need not hesitate, see!) entered into a conspiracy to visit and pound us. So on Friday night, March 9th, they all came in cars and carts and brought us just lots of good and needful things to help and cheer their pastor and family. While words are unable to express our appreciation for the material blessings, we feel far more grateful for the kind spirit that prompted the act. While we already felt we were in a goodly place, we were made to feel that we have the backing of our people and will strive harder to merit their love and kindness.

Am doing what I can for the Advocate. Hope to send in some subscriptions before long.

Our county has been hard hit by its two banks closing recently. It has hurt the people and of course will hurt the church and her interests. I hope to be able to send in a good write-up of my work by fall. Pray that I may discharge my full duty by my church, my people and my God, and be able to look them in the face and say I've done my best. W. J. Freeman, P. C.

FAYETTEVILLE DISTRICT CONFERENCE

Delegates to annual conference: J. T. Byrum, J. M. Cole, Dr. M. L. Matthews, C. K. Wrenn, E. C. Geddie, D. U. Sandlin, O. P. Shell.

Attendance: All the pastors, eleven charge leaders, sixty-eight delegates. In all 107 members of the conference were marked present. Visitors: Four college presidents, Advocate representative, general secretary of the Board of Lay Activities, Centenary secretary, Sunday school secretary, superintendent of Orphanage, superintendent of Anti-Saloon League, making ten connectional men, all of whom we heard gladly. In addition to these, four preachers were present from outside the district.

District lay leader, E. V. Snipes of Dunn; associate district leaders, D. U. Sandlin of Fayetteville and Dr. M. L. Matthews of Sanford.

Two standard training schools arranged for—Fayetteville, October 7-13, Jonesboro, October 14-19.

Next district conference to be held at Hay Street, Fayetteville. Four invitations were received.

Dr. Turrentine preached a very fine sermon Wednesday night to a full house on "What Think Ye of Christ?"

R. H. Willis.

THE VALUE OF PASTORAL VISITING

The Master said, "Go feed my lambs and my sheep," and tired and lonely people often become dissatisfied, discouraged and disheartened by only seeing their pastor or shepherd at the church.

There is nothing that helps a sick and lonely member more than a hearty handshake and visit with a portion of God's word read and prayer in the home, but it is seldom that it happens on many charges in our conference these days.

Many of our people never see their pastor in these latter days only at church unless they send for him to preach a funeral. The book says, "Go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel." And yet all over this land of ours the sheep stray and are never led back to the fold when in many cases they would be if the pastor went out after them.

A short talk with the pastor often helps burdens to seem lighter and one's pathway brighter. I speak from experience when I say that a visit by my pastor helps me the same as a sermon does.

May God give us a ministry who loves and cares and visits and encourages the old, the sick, the backsliders and the poor. Give ear, O shepherd of Israel, that thou leadeth.

Rowan Hooper.

ST. JOHNS AND GIBSON

The St. Johns and Gibson charge does not make much noise, but it proceeds to do things in a first class manner. In the beginning of this year they informed the pastor that he was to do the preaching, visiting and looking after the sick and strangers, and that they would look after all finances. I said that suits me. We have had our second quarterly meeting and everything—pastor's salary and all conference collections—are paid up to date in cash. It is delightful to serve a people who do things in this way. Half the year gone and half of all of our conference collections in the hands of the conference treasurer, and the pastor able to pay cash when he goes to the store. That is the way to do things.

The non-standard training school conducted by Brother Gobel and Miss Keane recently in Gibson was a splendid success. The Sunday school here has taken on new life and numbers 45 more than the membership of the church. There is also at Gibson a live Intermediate Epworth League, which is looking after our young people.

Brother Shore is a live presiding elder. He not only preaches strong sermons, but he has a way of making the details of a quarterly conference exceedingly interesting. Somehow he gets hold of the conference and makes its members want to do the work of the church.

Talk about poundings—well, such storms as I see others reporting do not hit our way, but we have what is much better. The members of this charge never forget their pastor. When one has a hog killing or tears down a hill of potatoes, or kills a kid, or has on hand some nice frying size chickens, a portion finds its way to the parsonage—just a continual stream. No pastor ever served a more thoughtful or kind people. They believe in dividing the good things they have with their pastor and in a material way showing their appreciation.

Beginning on the 8th of April we will have a great union meeting here, conducted by Rev. E. McWhorter under a big tent. A. J. Parker.

THE WORK AT LANDIS

We wish to say a few words concerning the Methodist work at Landis.

The church has shown wonderful growth both in membership and Sunday school. The Sunday school has increased since last conference from an enrollment of 18 to 75, and an average attendance of about 60.

Our pastor, Rev. J. C. Brown, is untiring in his efforts to bring things to pass for the advancement of Christ's kingdom; and his beautiful example is a source of inspiration to the church membership.

Our revival will begin the second Sunday in April. Remember us in your prayers. A Member.

I would have every minister of the gospel address his audience with the zeal of a friend, with the generous energy of a father and with the exuberant affection of a mother—Fenelon.

RESOLUTIONS OF RSEPECT

On Tuesday afternoon, February 20, the angel of death came for the first time to the Florence Blackwell Missionary Society, bearing away into the great beyond the gentle spirit of Julia C. Blum.

From the time of the organization of the society Julia was ever one of the most loyal and enthusiastic members, always ready to do her part with willing heart and untiring hands. Ever modest, retiring and unostentatious in her manner, she was always helpful and ever ready with her words of praise and encouragement for her associates and fellow workers. The optimism of her life and her cheerful encouragement was ever an inspiration to the leaders. Too modest to assume the leadership herself she was always a willing and capable follower, carrying out her part with real ability. And now, even though she is not with us in her actual presence, her influence and the gracious benediction of her life among us as a friend and a member of our society will be felt as long as memory lasts.

"And so, now all thy days be fair,
And shadows touch thee never,
But his alone—God bless you, dear!
So thou are safe forever."

Florence Blackwell,
Anna Ogburn,
Maud B. Trotman.

NEW CHILDREN'S SOCIETY

We are very glad to announce the organization of a children missionary society at Mt. Pleasant, Salisbury district, with the following officers:

Supt.—Miss Wilma Tucker.
President—Helen Thayer.
Vice President—Alice James.
Secretary—Mary Ware Albright.
Treasurer—Annie Hintz.

ANNUAL MEETING AT MONROE

Be sure to send names of all delegates to our annual meeting at Monroe, April 24-27, to Mrs. Atha Stevens, 605 W. Franklin St., Monroe, N. C.

It has been suggested that we mention the number of delegates each auxiliary is entitled to send to this meeting. An adult auxiliary is entitled to the president and one other delegate; young people's to one delegate, and each children's society should be represented by their leader, the superintendent of children's work.

COUNCIL BULLETIN

Send in your subscription to the Council Bulletin for 25 cents. Subscriptions should be sent to Mrs. S. G. Barnett, Literature Headquarters, Lambuth Building, Nashville, Tenn.

The Bulletin will contain a full account of the memorial service to Miss Belle Bennett, will be held on Wednesday evening, April 4th.

NEW ORGANIZATIONS IN GREENSBORO DISTRICT

Mrs. W. G. Ballard reports new adult organization at Pleasant Garden, a new young people's society at Ashboro, new junior at Glenwood, and there has recently been a new young people's society at Centenary, Greensboro. Four new auxiliaries at one time is a splendid report.

There is a source of revenue for the superannuates that we could all boost, laymen and preachers alike. I speak of our Publishing House. Know ye not that our constitution says that all profits from said institution shall go to the support of our "forgotten men"? Every dollar's worth of business that you send to Lamar & Barton is helping this fund. Then buy your books and your Sunday school literature from our own house and get your people to take our periodicals and pay for them.—Nashville Christian Advocate.

NEW OFFICERS

The Hills River auxiliary have elected the following officers for 1923:

President—Mrs. Hattie W. Posey.
Supt. Y. P.—Miss Sue Brittain.
Supt. Children's Work—Mrs. Harry C. Jones.
Supt. Local Work—Mrs. Montie Brittain.
Treasurer—Mrs. S. E. Greenwood.
Agent for Voice—Mrs. W. F. Cathey.
Secretary—Mrs. T. L. Johnson.

SAVE THE HOME

We hear the voice of progress raise
Above the jazz and din.
To speak a word of protest,
To some may seem a sin.
But I'm tired of all this nonsense—
Of fashion and so-called lore.
I'd like to go back to my childhood
And rest there a while once more.

I'd like to go back to the village,
Where I lived so long ago,
And see the dear old faces
I used to love and know.
The church back there seems sacred,
And to it I'd love to roam.
But the dearest place in the village
Is my humble childhood home.

I wonder now as I write this
How many women and men
Would like to go back to their childhood
And live it over again.
How few would loath their surroundings,
And long to get out in the world,
Leaving the tear stained faces,
Rushing out into the whirl.

The rushing tide of humanity
Caught many from off their feet
And dashed them on through progress,
Where they've never known defeat.
Some from the humble cabin have entered Halls of fame,
Sons of lowly peasants have brought Honor to their name.

Deep in the breast of true manhood;
Burns a fire that's aflame.
They love the home of childhood,
And honor their parents' name.
'Twas with them that they learned
Their first lesson
Of honor, of God and truth;
They were led by them to the altar,
To meet the God of their youth.

'Twas around the dear old fireside
That they learned to pray
To the One who reigns in glory
And keepeth against that day.
How many homes, I wonder,
In this modern age of ours,
Are sowing thought producing seed
For our children's quiet hour.

Will our children hallow the memory
Of the homes of their rushing age,
Or will they loom up empty
And memory wax cold and vague?
Our homes, the nation's foundation,
Are crumbling and falling in shame,
And the childhood home of our children
Will be only a home in name.

Swing backward, oh time, swing backward,
And stay humanity's rush.
Give back the old fashioned mothers
And maidens who know how to blush.
This age of youthful freedom,
This rush for wealth and fame,
Some day will tell it's sad story—
A nation put to shame.

We owe a debt to our children—
Their claims are ours to meet.
We have taken a God-given heritage

And dragged it under our feet.
Better live in an humble cabin
And follow the path of truth,
Than rule an ill gained mansion,
Misguiding the lives of youth.
When old age overtakes us
May we leave on memory's page
The memory of an old fashioned home Maintained in a Modern Age.
—Mrs. F. L. McNeer.

IN JERUSALEM, JUDEA, SAMARIA

There are ten millions or more of the Negro race, our life-long friends and fellow citizens, within the bounds of the fifteen Southern States (the natural territory of the Southern Methodist Church), representing about one-third of the population of these states. By every principle of justice, righteousness and mercy we are debtors to these people to the limit of that great love which said: "All authority hath been given unto me, in heaven and on earth; go ye, therefore, and make disciples of all nations, * * * teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you." Are we ready and eager to go quickly to the more than fifty millions of unchurched, neglected, unsaved people of our own land? Has the Holy Spirit taught us to look upon and love the dark-skinned people among whom we have been born and reared as our brothers and sisters? The Master said: "A new commandment I give unto you, that ye love one another even as I have loved you, that ye also love one another, By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have loved one another."—Belle H. Bennett, Lambuth-Bennett Book of Remembrance.

NATIONAL NEGRO HEALTH WEEK APRIL 1-7

It is insistently urged that our auxiliaries through their Inter-Racial director, or if they have none, their superintendents of social service, cooperate with the negroes of their communities in observing the National Negro Health Week, April 1-7, programs for which appeared on this page last week. This is not a denominational matter, but is under the auspices of the Inter-Racial Committee, which is made up of representatives from all denominations and organizations interested in the negro. Our own Mrs. Luke Johnson is the chairman of the whole big woman's section of the Inter-Racial Committee. Our Mrs. W. A. Newell, Council superintendent of social service, is one of the most influential members of it. And it was one of the measures most dear to the heart of our sainted Miss Bennett. Surely where these splendid lead, we can but follow as they urge us to go. The attention of the whole South has been more or less concentrated during the past few months upon the negro, studying him, his needs, his privileges, his rights. Many of the best women throughout our country have been thinking of and studying about him, with the earnest desire born of the love of God in their hearts to understand and help him. Why should we give of our means to help the negroes in far away Africa, sending missionaries to teach, heal and preach to them, and refuse to do the same thing to those who are right at our doors? Doesn't it seem a bit inconsistent if we should? But we will not be so inconsistent. Methodists may not make a parade of their loyalty to church and leaders, but that is one of our chief characteristics—we go where we are sent, we take whom is sent to us, and we do what we are told to do by our own regularly appointed or elected leaders, even if we don't really like it overmuch. So, dear women, as loyal Methodist missionary women, let's get busy on this program. If the negroes in your community do not know about it, go to them, explain what it is all about, and the importance of it, and help them to observe this week in the best way for them. Help them to make Thursday, in memory of their Booker T. Washington, a real inspirational day for them, by talks on some of the many members of their race who have done worth while things, interspersing them with their folk songs and recitations by their school children from their poets or other writers. Get your prominent men and women—doctors, nurses, mayors, superintendents of schools and teachers—interested in this Health Week and ask their co-operation.

There isn't a more responsive or pleasant class of people anywhere to work with than our Southern negro, if we gain his confidence by showing him that we really are his friends, that we desire his good, and are glad to contribute our share to his getting it. We hope that we will all meet the expectations of our leaders who urge us to do this thing, and that many communities can report a successful and interesting Negro Health Week.

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT

The Woman's Missionary Conference of the M. E. Church, South, N. C. Conference will meet in Henderson April 24-27. Henderson is looking forward to this meeting with pleasure. It is her desire and intention to do all in her power to make the women of the conference feel at home, to make the conference a success in every way. Conditions for entertaining are there just as they are everywhere else, not as they once were. It is in the power of every delegate to make the entertaining not a hardship but a pleasure to her hostess. Every auxiliary can help by electing its delegate at once and sending on her name immediately. So you are urgently requested to do so. According to the standing rules of our conference every auxiliary, adult and young people, is privileged to send one delegate—only one—as its representative. To represent the children's auxiliaries the superintendents of children's work are expected to go. This limitation was made because of the size of our conference. It was becoming rather burdensome in this day of servants few and far between and the high cost of living, to entertain it. And one representative from one auxiliary is a sufficient number. Elect your delegates at once and send their names immediately to Mrs. R. J. Corbitt, Henderson, N. C.

STUDYING THE NEGRO

The members of Kittrell's Auxiliary, Gates, Elizabeth City district, organized a mission study class in January, 1923, with nine members. We will finish the first book, "Handicapped Nations," this quarter, and have decided to study next, "The Trend of the Races," hoping to finish a book each quarter. As we finish these books we plan to give them to the young people's society. Mrs. J. F. Wiley, President.

This is a part of a letter written for reporting and information, not for publication, but coming just at this time it seems such a splendid example of loyalty, of the effort to carry out the desire of our leaders, that we cannot forbear publishing it. There are others of our faithful women who are studying one of the books on the Negro question recommended by Council, but this is the only one so far to take two.

Would You Like to Go to Palestine, Egypt and Europe?

Rev. J. M. Rowland, editor Richmond Christian Advocate, will conduct a third tour starting early in June. Travel free from worry and get the most for the money.

Delightful party now forming. Reservations should be made early. Special Tour of Europe for young ladies, etc.

REV. M. B. WOOSLEY

One of my distinct surprises at the last annual conference was the placement of Rev. M. B. Woosley, my youngest brother, on the Sunday School Board. But such was done and now this member continually reminds me that he will get even with me for all past experiences heaped upon him.

My brother's Christian experience, unlike mine, does not date from an event but has been a process. He accepted Jesus Christ as personal Savior and Lord as soon as he reached the knowing stage and since there has been a continual growth. From very early boyhood it was generally understood that he would be a preacher. He said so, we said so and the Lord said so. We helped the Lord call him. After getting his early training at various places, he being the product of a Methodist parsonage, my brother entered Trinity College, where after four years managed to graduate. Following this event he was sent to Granite Falls to fill out an unexpired year and while there taught school in addition to his pastoral work. The next four years were spent at Davidson College as pastor there and now he is on his second year at South Main Street, Salisbury, where good work is being done as a teacher of young men, a director of league work and as a pastor. He gives much time to the youth of his congregation.

While at Granite Falls he married Miss Lucille Warlick, the oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Warlick, prominent Methodists of the Statesville district. This union has been blessed with the addition of Rebecca, a fine little girl of three years. I frequently tell my brother that he outmarried himself. He reminds me that I did the same thing.

ELEMENTARY NOTES

Miss Jenkins visited Central, Asheville, Sunday school Sunday morning, February 25th. During the afternoon of this date she conducted a greater Asheville Elementary Council. There were twenty-seven elementary leaders present and a good meeting was held. The following day Miss Jenkins met the Asheville pastors in their meeting and held a conference with Miss Ruth Brown, elementary superintendent for the Asheville district.

On Sunday, March 4th, Miss Jenkins met our Shelby Sunday school and addressed Rev. A. L. Stanford's large audience throughout the eleven o'clock hour. In the afternoon an Elementary Council was held, to which came twenty-one people interested in the small child. A conference was held with Miss Eunice Roberts, Shelby district elementary superintendent.

Saturday evening, March 10th, during a downpour of rain Miss Jenkins met the elementary workers at Wadesboro and went over with them the standards of the elementary departments. Twelve leaders were present.

Sunday, March 11th, was spent at Monroe, where in the afternoon a conference was held with those working with the religious development of the small child. Fifteen people were present and a conference was held with Miss Lura Heath, director of religious education of Central church.

In each of the foregoing meetings a most cordial situation prevailed and much good was accomplished. During office hours our elementary superintendent has worked out outlines entitling her for being accredited by the Leadership Training Department, at Nashville, to teach in our Standard Training Schools Junior Organization and Administration and Junior Lesson Materials and Teaching.

BESSEMER CITY

Fulfilling an engagement made with Rev. E. P. Stabler many weeks ago I went to Bessemer City Saturday, March 11th, to spend the following day with him and his Sunday school workers at Bessemer City and Concord, where a new order of things seem to be prevailing. The Sunday school at the two points are led by two brothers, S. B. Hovis, at Bessemer City, and T. M. Hovis, at Concord, a congregation worshipping in a large new brick church in a fine rural section of Gaston county. Brother Stabler and his good wife are held in high esteem by their parishioners. On being asked how she liked Bessemer City, Mrs. Stabler replied in her agreeable way, "We always like wherever we are." Brother Stabler seems to never worry and he knows how to get at an unpleasant task in a pleasant way. It was a pleasure to spend a day with Stabler and his good people.

BLUE MONDAY?

Was Monday, March 12th, a blue Monday? No, for I spent a large part of it with Rev. C. S. Kirkpatrick visiting Rev. N. C. Williams and several of his Sunday school leaders at Granite Falls and Rev. P. W. Tucker in his grand parsonage at Lenoir. We were talking up the Standard Training School to be held at Hickory April 8-13. Everybody favored the idea and many will attend it. The splendid workers at Granite Falls will send over some fifteen or twenty people to Hickory, a distance of seven miles. Some fifteen will come from Lenoir, a distance of twenty-one miles. Rutherford College, ten miles away, will send in a good delegation, and Newton, ten miles away, will not be left in the good work. Quite a number of country churches, led by the Westview circuit, will swell the band of Christian workers. Monday, March 12th, was no blue Monday.

THE HICKORY SCHOOL

Beginning Sunday afternoon, April 8th, the first Standard Training School for Hickory and contiguous territory will be held. In addition to enrolling leaders from a number of Methodist schools the Presbyterians at Hickory will join in making the most of the school. The following courses and faculty will help make the school:

- Primary Organization and Administration—Miss Georgia Keene.
- Junior Organization and Administration—Miss Virginia Jenkins.
- Principles of Religious Teaching—Prof. C. T. Carr.

Life of Jesus—Rev. C. S. Kirkpatrick.

Sunday School Organization and Administration—O. V. Woosley.

ALL ABOARD

The Greater Gastonia Co-operative Standard Training School for Methodist and Presbyterian Sunday school leaders is about ready to start. Enrollments have been secured from about all the leading schools in Gaston county and a large school is assured.

Six courses and six good instructors are arranged as follows:

- Beginner Lesson Materials and Teaching—Mrs. C. L. Van Noppen.
- Primary Lesson Materials and Teaching—Mrs. G. W. Green.
- Junior Lesson Materials and Teaching—Miss Virginia Jenkins.
- Intermediate - Senior Organization and Administration—Mrs. B. H. Bunch.
- Principles of Religious Teaching—Prof. C. T. Carr.
- Sunday School Organization and Administration—Prof. H. E. Spence.

ASHEVILLE DISTRICT CONFERENCE

After staying awake about all night on a train detained behind a freight breakdown I arrived at Hot Springs, six miles this side the Tennessee line, in company with Editor Plyler and Centenary Courtney, early Tuesday morning, March 13th, to attend the Asheville district conference. In spite of bad weather, bad roads in the depths of the mountains and magnificent distances there was a good attendance present. Elder H. C. Sprinkle began his well planned conference ahead of time. Although beginning at nine in the morning and not closing till after five in the afternoon no one wanted to leave the sessions of the conference. The elder kept something doing all the while. He not only heard from pastors but also the laymen were called upon to report on definite things. The Sunday school work was in the hands of Mr. Edwin L. Brown, district superintendent, and he made one of the best, if not the best, report and presentation of the Sunday school work I have ever heard. He had written to ninety superintendents and had replies from seventy of them, a simply marvelous achievement. Brother Brown is doing a most excellent piece of work in the Asheville district. At the night session Lay Leader H. A. Dunham conducted a layman's anniversary, at which C. H. Ireland, conference lay leader, and several other spoke. The Asheville district is alive and is going forward. The laymen have raised their pastors' salaries in the district this year to the extent of $8,000, and both laymen and pastors are doing well.

North Carolina Conference

ROBERT NORTH WILSON

The subject of this paragraph in our "Who's Who in the Districts" is Prof. Robert North Wilson, district secretary of the Durham district. Having been at Trinity College for thirteen years and during this time closely and actively identified with Sunday school work, particularly in Durham and the Durham district, Professor Wilson is already known by quite a number of our readers. His good humor, his knowledge of Sunday school work, his devotion to what he considers his duty to the church, his desire to serve, and withal his good common sense fit him admirably for the work of district secretary. Born at Lenoir, Catawba county, the grandson of George Hopkins Round, of the (then) South Carolina conference, he soon found himself identified with the Sunday school of his community, and he has been in all sorts of Sunday schools, in all sorts of capacities, for the last forty-five years. He has had experience in country, city missions, and city church schools, and he has served all the way from pupil, janitor, and class officer to secretary, teacher, and superintendent. And he's still on the job. He, his wife and children find themselves one hundred per cent at school at 9:30 o'clock every Sunday morning. He has certificates of credit for a number of units in the standard training course, teaches them in some of our standard and non-standard training schools, and besides, studies for credit in every standard school he gets a chance. He is vice-chairman of our Conference Sunday School Board, scoutmaster of Durham Troop No. 1 (the best in town), and professor of chemistry at Trinity College. Before coming to Trinity thirteen years ago, he taught chemistry at Guilford College for twelve years. He has been a steward in the church, but that's too slow a job at present. In the Sunday school work in the district he is occupying first-line trenches and is going to help lead this sector of the Sunday school army over the top and accomplish its great objectives.

CREEDMOOR TRAINING WEEK

A non-standard training school for the Sunday school workers of Creedmoor, Banks, Bullocks, and neighboring places was held at Creedmoor last week. The winds blew, the rain came, the waters covered the face of the earth, the roads became sticky, some of us got stuck in the mud, but the training work hardly even slowed down. Beginning Sunday evening, this school, offering three courses in modern principles and methods of Sunday school work, ran through Friday evening, with good attendance and splendid interest. Miss Keene taught a fine group of elementary workers, Prof. R. N. Wilson had a large class of teachers and prospective teachers in the higher grades, and your conference superintendent of Sunday school work taught a group of officers and parents in the organization and administration of the Sunday school.

Rev. V. A. Royal, the pastor, was not quite well but managed, nevertheless, to attend some of the meetings of the school. Mr. N. J. Boddie, superintendent at Creedmoor, had charge of local arrangements, and to him much credit is due for the successful issue of this training enterprise.

FIFTH-SUNDAY INSTITUTES

Sunday, April 29, will be the next fifth Sunday. As is the custom with a number of our more progressive circuits, this day will be used as a time for holding what has come to be known among us as Four-Times-a-Year Circuit Institutes. Quite a number of circuits maintain a circuit Sunday school organization, meeting every fifth Sunday, for the purpose of open conference, business relating to the interests of the Sunday schools, and inspiration. This office is ready to supply to such as are interested suggestions as to how to go about the formation of a circuit organization and as to what the institute program should include, together with some report forms for general use. Write to L. L. Gobbel, Durham, N. C.

GRADED LESSONS AT ENO

Rev. D. M. Sharpe, pastor of Eno church, near Hillsboro, has recently introduced Graded Lessons in the elementary classes of his Sunday school. He has also secured the Program of Work for schools of this type and is otherwise co-operating with the superintendent, Mr. C. B. Stanley, with the view to increasing the efficiency of the school. Already improvements along many lines and new interest and enthusiasm among both pupils and teachers are evident. This is a school of about 140 pupils, with seven teachers and two class rooms. We expect to see additional rooms provided before many moons. When a school sets out to do something, when it sees

LISTEN, FOLKS!

Your immediate response to our S. O. S. call as elders, parsons and ordinary league people is going to show to the world who's who in our young people's work. When our five-hundred copy twelve-page Easter paper comes out and you see it, you are going to be sorry if your district, charge or league is not represented in it. Somebody is going to think you are asleep. Arouse ye, my countrymen! Arouse ye, heavenly fellow citizens.

OBSERVE ANNIVERSARY DAY

Have you ordered those specially prepared anniversary programs from our publishing house, Richmond? We are supposed to present the work of the league to the entire congregation on this Sunday, April 8. It should be representative of the interest we have in our young people. Sure it takes work, but practically the only way your congregation has of informing itself on the work and becoming interested in it is through what we do on these special occasions. Why not get some placards like you would for a play or a big ball game. Advertisement works as well in our work, and it certainly is as much worth while. Urge a liberal offering.

LAGRANGE OFFICERS

The wide awake LaGrange Senior Epworth League recently elected the following officers for the coming year:

- President, Marvin D. Harper; vice president Mrs. Daisy N. Smith; recording secretary, Silas S. Best; corresponding secretary, Miss Annie Smith May; treasurer, Miss Helen Wrenn; Era agent, Miss Florence Eason; 1st Supt., Parrott Hardy; 2nd Supt., Miss Christine Fields; 3rd Supt., Mrs. L. F. Davis; 4th Supt., Mrs. J. M. Aldridge. The pastor is Rev. R. A. Pittman.

How Shivar Mineral Water Relieves Rheumatism

According to the standard medical books, Rheumatism is not a germ disease but is the result of imperfect nutrition. The food is either imperfectly digested or imperfectly assimilated. Poisons accumulate and these irritate and inflame the delicate linings of the joints, the heart and other organs. To relieve Rheumatism it is therefore necessary to stop the formation of these poisons and get rid of those already formed.

The celebrated Shivar Mineral Water acts on the stomach and kidneys. It corrects the digestion and washes out the poisons through the kidneys. This is the opinion of physicians who prescribe it. If you suffer from rheumatism, dyspepsia, indigestion, disease of the kidneys, bladder or liver, uric acid poisoning, or any curable conditions due to impure blood, read the following letter, then sign it, enclose the amount and mail it. Only two out of a hundred on the average report no benefit.

Shivar Springs,
Box 4 B, Shelton, S. C.
Gentlemen:

I accept your offer and enclose herewith three dollars for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Water. I agree to give it a fair trial, in accordance with instructions contained in booklet you will send, and if I report no benefit you agree to refund the price of the water in full upon receipt of the two empty demijohns which I agree to return within a month.

MEETING AN EMERGENCY

THE RESPONSIBILITY

The Methodist Episcopal Church, South, has a definite missionary responsibility. We have been assigned certain definite tasks in the missionary enterprise. We are responsible for the cultivation of important mission fields. If we fail to cultivate them they will suffer. Other churches have their own responsibilities and fields and hence they cannot take care of ours.

THE PLEDGE

When the Centenary campaign was launched we made pledges sufficient to meet our responsibilities. These pledges were made in good faith. They were accepted by two hundred and forty new missionaries, including wives of missionaries, who have gone to represent us in China, Japan, Korea, Siberia, Brazil, Mexico, Cuba, Europe and Africa. They were accepted by native churches and church members in all our fields.

THE VICTORIES

Four new missions have been opened and there has been great advance in all the older missions. Hundreds of new congregations have been organized. Thousands have been added to the Church. The way has been opened to still larger success.

THE EMERGENCY

Our pledges have not been repudiated nor will they be. But our people are behind in their payments. There is great danger that the work will suffer. We must collect $4,000,000 on these pledges now or the program will be halted.

THE COST

It will not be easy to collect this amount of money now. Many will have to make sacrifices to pay what they promised to pay. It will cost; certainly it will cost to pay our pledges, but it will cost infinitely more to fail to pay them.

THE METHODIST ORPHANAGE

We certainly are having a hard time trying to get to the churches with our singing class. There are seventeen children and Mrs. Rieves and myself, and we have just one five-passenger car on which we take eight. If we had a seven-passenger car, with the Dodge we now have, we could take all the class and get about with much less expense. Unless we can get another car we shall be forced to give but very few sacred concerts over the conference. It would be a fine thing if some church would give us that seven-passenger car.

The one thousand dollar gift from Brother M. J. Best, of Goldsboro, for the Baby Cottage has greatly encouraged me in my efforts to secure the entire amount for this much needed building. We now have in cash twelve thousand and five hundred dollars and about two thousand and five hundred in subscriptions, making in all fifteen thousand dollars. Just three thousand dollars more will give us the required amount. Three other friends like Brother Best would enable us to reach the goal. Just as soon as the landscape gardener completes his work, locating buildings, we will begin at once the erection of the Baby Cottage. Before we begin actual construction it would be much better if we had all the money in hand. Can't we get it? Who will give us a thousand or five hundred dollars for this most sacred cause?

Fremont is not one of our most important towns from a commercial standpoint. Educationally, it has maintained a good school for many decades. It is located in the finest farming section in the state. Fremont gave the state the great educational governor whose influence is more alive today than when he was among us.

It was with great joy I took the Orphanage singing class to Fremont last Sunday. A large congregation was present to enjoy the sacred concert given by the children. Brother J. A. Dailey, who has made a fine hit among all the people of the town and entire charge, gave us a warm welcome. For many years he has taken a lively interest in our Orphanage. He is chairman of our conference Orphanage committee and has been for several years. He believes in the orphanage with all his heart and proves his interest by enlisting his churches in our behalf. I had the pleasure of being guest of my cousin, C. D. Hooks. He and his most excellent wife are great workers in the church and do much toward its progress. From this community and church the writer has gone forth to make his little contribution of service to the church.

When we reached Rocky Mount the second Sunday afternoon Brother H. M. North and his committee were waiting for us at the church. Within a few minutes our children were in the best homes in the city. The large gathering at the church at the night hour greatly encouraged our singing class. In a few well chosen words Brother Nash welcomed us to his church and to the homes of his people.

Many of those present expressed themselves as being pleased with our children and the program. One of our trustees, Brother J. C. Braswell, is a member of this church and expressed himself as being highly pleased with the sacred concert. Two of our girls were entertained in his lovely home. I had the good fortune to fall into the hands of good friends and relatives. It was a joy to be in the home of Mrs. Kate Aycock for the evening meal. She and her sister, Miss Martha Darden, are active members of the First church. John Westbrook, chairman of the board of stewards, entertained me in his home after service. I first knew him at Trinity when he roomed next to me. He is a royal fellow and an enthusiastic Methodist and a consecrated Christian. On a former visit to Rocky Mount, when preaching for the pastor one Sunday, I had the pleasure of being guest in this good home. It is always a joy to be with Westbrook and his noble wife.

BRIGHTEN YOUR HOME WITH A PIANO

Did you ever notice the difference between a home that is filled with music and one that has no music to drive away dull care and bring that feeling of contentment and joy? You realize what it means to your wife and daughters to have a piano and to be able to render beautiful music therefrom, don't you? You know that music is one of the greatest gifts to mankind, and that it means culture, refinement and better homes.

Have you a piano or player-piano in your home? If not, do you think you can't afford one? Why, you don't know just how easy and safe it is to own a high grade instrument by buying through the Advocate Piano Club. Read What It Means to You and Others. It means that you are buying at wholesale prices instead of retail prices. Each club consists of 100 members who by buying together gain a much better price than any one purchaser can procure. You are only responsible for your own purchase, but you get wholesale prices.

By joining the club you are extended the most convenient terms of monthly, quarterly or yearly payments based on the lowest net cash price. This represents a tremendous saving as compared with the customary installment prices which are usually much higher than cash prices.

You have the privilege of trading in your old piano at its real valuation for a new one or a player-piano.

Don't delay longer. Get the Club's beautiful illustrated Catalogue showing the many designs from which to choose and giving full particulars. Address Ludden & Bates, Advocate Piano Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga.

KEEPING UP TO DATE

A somewhat rapid city man, according to a story that is going the rounds, remarked to a farmer friend:

"Thursday we autoed to the country club and golfed till dark, then trolleyed back to town and danced till morning."

The farmer "got back" in this language:

"I've been havin' some time myself. Wednesday I muled to the cornfield and gee-hawed till sundown. Then I suppered till dark and piped till nine. Then I bedstedded till 5 o'clock, then breakfasted till it was time to go mulin' again."—Selected.

Why Take Laxatives?

Discovery by Science Has Replaced Them.

Pills and salts give temporary relief from constipation only at the expense of permanent injury, says an eminent authority.

Science has found a newer, better way—a means as simple as Nature itself.

In perfect health a natural lubricant keeps the food waste soft and moving. But when constipation exists this natural lubricant is not sufficient. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it acts like this natural lubricant and thus secures regular bowel movements by Nature's own method—lubrication.

As Nujol is not a medicine or laxative, it cannot gripe and, like pure water, it is harmless and pleasant.

Nujol is used in leading hospitals. Get a bottle from your druggist today. (adv.)

MARY ELLEN'S WAY

Ruth Stern had just gotten her report card, and her average was the highest in school; yet she was not happy about it.

"It's only that the other girls do not love me, mother," she replied when her mother had asked her what was the matter. "I make the highest grades every month and study hard, yet none of the children seem glad. When my name was read out, nobody clapped; but when Mary Ellen's name was read out, and it's the first time she ever was put on the honor roll, why they clapped so loud the old schoolhouse rang."

"Perhaps it was because of its being the first time for Mary Ellen," suggested her mother.

"No, ma'am, I don't think it was that. At recess she is always followed by all the girls, and the trouble is I don't see why it is. I've watched her, and I can't find out her secret."

"Then watch some more," suggested mother. "There must be a reason."

So Ruth determined to find the reason, and she could think of no better way than walking with Mary Ellen to school and talking to her.

"Hello," she said as Mary Ellen came running toward her with sparkling eyes. "Let's walk together this morning. I want to ask you a question. I'm trying to find out why everybody loves you so. I'd give anything if they would love me that way."

Mary Ellen looked at Ruth in astonishment. "But I didn't know they did," she declared. "I never thought of it before—I mean I never thought about the children's loving me, but I know I think a lot of all of them."

"I don't," said Ruth. "I am too busy."

"I've noticed you are always busy," answered Mary Ellen. "You never even take time to play at recess much, do you?"

Just then Elsie Terrance came around the corner. "I've been wishing I could meet up with some one before school who could explain that last problem to me," she said, looking at both girls in turn. "I have worried so over it and don't know what to do."

"It's too late to open our books here; we'll be late for school," began Ruth, but Mary Ellen was already busy unstrapping hers as she walked.

"I had a time with that problem myself," Mary Ellen said, "and I am awful glad to pass it on. Here, Elsie, just glance at it—here, all worked out—maybe you can understand as I tell you how I did it."

The two girls were soon deep in the problem and had entirely forgotten Ruth, who walked silently along by their sides. Here was an opportunity she had avoided, while Mary Ellen had grasped it at once. But what a trouble to put oneself to! Then when Elsie thanked Mary Ellen, there was a light of happiness in Mary Ellen's eyes which would be there all day.

That night when Ruth reached home she said to her mother: "I have found out the secret Mary Ellen has. She doesn't know what it is herself, because she never thinks of herself; but I know now, and I will never forget it."

"I think I know already what it is," answered her mother, "but I would like for you to tell me."

"Well, I think it is because Mary Ellen always helps every one she possibly can. I never thought of it before, but I just know that is the secret of her popularity, isn't it, mother?"

"I am sure it is, my dear, and you must follow her example."

"And will all the children love me as they do Mary Ellen?"

"You must not think of that part. Give with your whole heart. Ask nothing in return. That part will be taken care of, never fear."—Exchange.

FAIRY HELPERS

Nobody liked cleaning up the nursery floor. It was covered with papers now, and to "tidy up" seemed hard work. Mother came in and turned the task into a game.

"I am the fairy queen," she said. "I'm powerful, and I have many fairy helpers. When a whirlwind has turned every town topsy-turvy, then I sing:

"Leave your dance, leave your song.
Come along, come along.
Come and clear it all away,
Willing work makes happy play."

"And my fairy workers have such nice names."

"O, I want to be one!" cried Margaret.

"I do, too," said Katherine.

"And I," said John.

"Very well," said mother. "Margaret may be the 'Pick-Up Praxie'; Katherine, 'Elf-Elf, tidy up the shelf'; and John may be 'Brownie, Brownie, bring a broom, Brownie.'"

How the fairies worked! John ran for the broom, Margaret swept and brushed up all the cut paper, and Katherine tidied the shelves. In fifteen minutes you never would have known the nursery. Then mother said: "Now, dance in a ring and sing:

"Happy when our work is done,
Being fairies is such fun!"

And I'll go down and send up the fairies' banquet."

After that they always played fairies when cleaning-up time came.—Youth's Companion.

The thing that goes the farthest toward making life worth while, That costs the least and does the most is just a pleasant smile. The smile that bubbles from the heart, that loves its fellow men, Will drive away the clouds of gloom and coax the sun again. It's full of worth and goodness, too, with manly interest blent; It's worth a million dollars and doesn't cost a cent.

There is no room for sadness when you see a cheery smile; It always has the same good look; it's never out of style; It nerves us on to try again when failure makes us blue.

The dimples of encouragement are good for me and you.

It pays a higher interest, for it's merely lent;

It's worth a million dollars and doesn't cost a cent.

A smile comes very easy; you can wrinkle up with cheer

A hundred times before you can squeeze out a soggy tear.

It ripples out moreover to the heart-strings that will tug

And always leaves an echo very like a hug.

So smile away, folk know by what a smile is meant;

It's worth a million dollars and doesn't cost a cent.

HALIFAX WESLEY CLASS

Halifax Sunday school as a whole may have some weak points, but the Adult Wesley Class has no weak links. Every officer is on his or her job all during the work days as well as on Sunday.

Cordiality to visitors is a specialty. Wednesday evening, March 7th, the president, Mr. W. D. Dickens, and his energetic wife entertained at their home the class together with the superintendent and teachers of the entire Sunday school.

The guests were met by the host and presented to Mrs. Van Warren, who very gracefully presided over the punch bowl. Miss Mildred Campbell, Sunday school organist, rendered the music.

Methods and plans were discussed and many suggestions offered if carried out will add much to the efficiency of the class.

The hostess served a delightful course of chicken salad, crackers and hot coffee. We took our departure feeling very much indebted to the host and hostess for a pleasant evening together.

WELDON DISTRICT REPORT

The February report of Mr. E. S. Yarbrough, of Henderson, Weldon district Sunday school secretary, indicates that we have an official in the Weldon district who is not only an officer but a worker. In February, the first month of Mr. Yarbrough's work, he made two visits to Sunday schools, attended a meeting of district workers in Raleigh, wrote eighty-two letters, and sent one telegram. This is a splendid start. But it is only a start, for already Mr. Yarbrough has engagements for every Sunday in March and April. In fact, all of our district workers are entering upon their duties with a zeal and persistency that bespeaks advancement along all lines of Sunday school endeavor.

DURHAM DISTRICT SCHOOLS

Plans are being perfected for two Standard Training Schools in the Durham district in April. At Graham April 15-20 we will conduct such a school for our churches of Alamance county, or the southwestern section of the district, and, according to Rev. G. M. Daniel, chairman of the board of managers, who was in our office last week, prospects for a successful school are encouraging.

The other standard school is to be held at Trinity College, Durham, for the Sunday schools of Durham and Durham district within a radius of twenty or twenty-five miles of the college. Committees have been named, and plans are being completed to make this the best school ever held in the district. The date was originally set for April 8-13, but it has been found necessary, due to conflicting engagements, to change it to the week of April 22-27.

Rev. M. T. Plyler, presiding elder, and pastors are taking much interest in these schools and are going to attend and bring many of their workers and prospective workers with them.

MOREHEAD CITY THIS WEEK

A non-standard training school is being held this week at Morehead City. Workers of Morehead City, and perhaps a few from neighboring places, are studying under Miss Keene, conference elementary superintendent, and Rev. W. A. Cade, the pastor. Courses in elementary work and in principles of religious teaching are being offered.

BEWARE OF IDES OF MARCH

We quote from "The Methodist Superintendent and His Helpers":

"This season is to be the culmination of our special efforts to win every unconverted Sunday school pupil to Jesus Christ. Shall we not 'beware of the ides of March,' lest this time of opportunity escape us? Train your converted pupils in the meaning and value of church membership."

AN EVANGELISTIC SCHOOL

It should be the aim of every Sunday school to "lead each pupil to a knowledge of God's will and an acceptance of Jesus Christ as personal Saviour and Lord and to develop a Christian character that is expressed through worship, right living, and efficient service." All perhaps are seeking to realize this lofty aim, some with more encouraging results than others. Here what Mr. E. J. Cheat-ham, superintendent of our Sunday school at Franklinton, says in this connection. In a letter to your conference superintendent of Sunday school work he says:

"I know you will be glad to know that at Decision Day today thirty children of church age came forward to the altar and will be with Rev. Mr. Dowd in a class for instruction until Easter Sunday, when the doors of the church will be opened. The earnest work of the pastor and teachers, along with literature sent from Nashville, was rewarded."

IN MEMORIAM

FOSHEE—Miss Allie Ray Foushee, the youngest daughter of Mrs. Haword Foushee, was born September 9, 1900, died in Richmond, Va., February 18, 1923. In girlhood she was converted and joined the Methodist church at Lea's Chapel on Person circuit, and was a consistent member till the death angel called her home. Allie desired to be of service to her church and to humanity. She had been a great sufferer, but never murmured or complained. She radiated brightness among her associates and many turned from the grave determined to live closer to God. May the blessings of heaven abide with the sorrowing ones.
B. C. Thompson.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas, God in His infinite wisdom and mercy has seen fit to call Dr. M. L. Smoot back to Himself; and hereas, the departure of Dr. Smoot means an irreparable loss to the membership of the Hay Street Methodist Sunday school, be it resolved:

That we, the membership of Hay Street Methodist Sunday school, assembled in our regular place of worship and study on the morning of Sunday, February 25, 1923, at 10 o'clock, do hereby express, among ourselves and in the presence of Almighty God, our sincere love and respect for Dr. Smoot, whose manly Christian life will ever remain an inspiration to us all; that we extend to the bereaved family and loved ones our deepest sympathy, and that we resolve to send a copy of these resolutions to each member of the family and to our church paper and our local paper for publication.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

God in His wisdom has called from earth to heaven our beloved Sunday school teacher, Miss Jean Lea Clarke. Therefore be it resolved by her Sunday school class of Concord church:

First, That in the removal of Miss Jean to her home above we have lost a beloved teacher and friend, whose life of truthfulness and righteousness has been an inspiration to her class and to the members of the church. Her place will be sadly missed, while her memory will be a precious one.

Second, That in the removal of Miss Jean we recognize our Father's loving will, and pray that He who doeth all things well and makes no mistakes will comfort her loved ones where earthly friends fail, and that her mantle may fall on others.

"She saw a hand we could not see, Which beckoned her away; She heard a voice we could not hear Which would not let her stay."

Third, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the N. C. Christian Advocate, one to the M. & I. and a copy to the bereaved family.

Her Sunday School Class.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas, our brother, Rev. Paul Deatur Anthony, in the infinite wisdom of God has been removed from our midst and transplanted in the City of God, be it resolved:

First, That in his departure the club has lost a faithful and beloved member.

Second, That while we feel deeply our loss, our hearts go out in sympathy for his bereaved relatives.

Third, That the members of the Ministerial Band will ever remember his wife and infant son in prayer to God.

Fourth, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon our minutes, one sent to his wife, one to his parents, one to the North Carolina Christian Advocate, and one to the Rutherford Breezes.

Adopted by the Ministerial Club, Rutherford College, in regular meeting this eighth day of February, 1923.

WINSTEAD—Arthur G., son of Chas. S. and Tonisa Winstead, was born November 23, 1871, died February 12, 1923. In early manhood he was married to Miss Mollie Barnette, who died February 27, 1912. He was a good husband and father, a good neighbor and all who knew him loved him. For eleven years after the death of his wife he kept the six children together and tried to make it a home for them. He suffered many hardships, yet he did not complain. He said he was ready to go and only dreaded the moment of death. May his children and aged mother with the sister and brothers meet him above the stars and be with God forever.
B. C. Thompson.

WOODY—Nathaniel K., son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Woody, was born November 10, 1907, died January 13, 1923. He was converted and joined the Methodist church at Concord on the Person circuit when eleven years old. He was a good boy, doing well what he was asked to do, always bright and cheerful, and everybody that knew him said "Nat is a good boy." He was a member of the Epworth League and gave promise to be one of our best workers. The fond parents and three sisters are under a deep shadow, but as they trust in God joy comes to them as they remember we shall meet after awhile where partings come no more.
B. C. Thompson.

BROOKS—Mrs. Arabella Brooks, wife of the late Benjamin Brooks, was born June 9, 1843, died February 17, 1923, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. M. W. Clement. This sincere Christian woman has gone to her reward and we will miss her, but her works follow her and all will remember Aunt Belle. She leaves five children to mourn their irreparable loss. Her body was laid to rest in the cemetery at Concord Methodist church in Person county, N. C., in the presence of a large company of sorrowing friends and relatives. May they all meet her where parting is no more.
B. C. Thompson.

TURNER—Mrs. Amelia Turner was born August 6, 1847, and died February 22, 1923, leaving three sons, N. F., W. H. and B. B. Turner, to mourn their loss.

She was the daughter of Mr. Harrison Rand, who was the youngest of several brothers, members of a family who for more than a century were prominent and influential in Wake county.

In early life Mrs. Turner became a member of Holland's M. E. church, perhaps the oldest Methodist church in Wake county, and remained true to her vows until death.

In October, 1867, she was happily married to W. S. Turner, who died in June, 1915, after a long life of very exemplary Christian character.

Mrs. Turner possessed a very modest, retiring nature, embodying those high qualities of womanhood that characterize the devoted wife and mother. May her loved ones left behind emulate the virtues that crowned her useful life.
J. M. Turner.

WRIGHT—"Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of His saints" aptly describes the going of Mrs. Edward B. Wright from her earthly home in Asheville on February 18, 1923.

Margaret McCarley Wright was born at Laurens, S. C., in January, 1886, married on July 7, 1907, and died on date indicated. She was a devoted Christian and member of West Asheville Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and although an intense sufferer for 18 months, she trusted Him who suffered her not for any pains of death to fall from Him.

Mrs. Wright leaves her good husband, four children, one brother and three sisters and many other relatives and friends, but they well know where to find her. L. W. Colson, Pastor.

BOYETTE—Sister Fannie Boyette, nee High, fell asleep in Jesus on the morning of January 2, 1923.

She was born November 25, 1882; was married to Frank Boyette December 20, 1900. To this union eight children were born. She was converted at the age of 15 and joined the M. E. Church, South, of which she was a faithful and devoted member till the end came. She loved her home, children, church and community with a beautiful, tender love, but above all she loved her God.

Sister Boyette is not only missed in the church and Sunday school but in the Ladies' Aid Society, where she was a faithful member, always ready and willing to do her bit.

Our hearts are grieved, but we realize while it is our loss it is her gain, and we humbly bow in submission to Him who doeth all things well.

Mrs. W. A. Griffin,
Pres. Ladies' Aid Society.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas, the great Supreme Ruler of the universe has in His infinite wisdom removed from among us Sister Minnie Pleasant Wrenn, our assistant and co-worker in Sunday school at Warren's Grove.

Whereas, the intimate relation held with her in faithful performance of her duties as a Sunday school worker, we sadly miss her.

Resolved first, That we as scholars of the Sunday school do try to live and carry out the good deeds which she set before us.

Second, That the removal of such a life from our Sunday school leaves a vacancy and a shadow that will be deeply realized by the members and friends of the Sunday school and community.

Third, That with deep sympathy for the bereaved family and relatives of the deceased we express our hope that even the loss to us all may be overruled for good by Him who doeth all things well.

Fourth, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the Advocate and to the Roxboro Courier for publication and that one be sent to the bereaved family.

UNDERWOOD—Mrs. Minerva Underwood of Cedar Creek, Cumberland, N. C., after several months' illness, passed to her heavenly reward February 25, 1923. She was sixty-six years and two months old. Amid a large number of friends and relatives we laid her body to rest in the family burying ground near her home. Eight children survive her to mourn their loss, two of whom are married and reside in and near Roseboro, N. C.—Mrs. Mary Thaggard and Mrs. Ella Underwood; Livius, Walter, Fannie, Mamie and Lillie, all at home. She joined the Methodist church early in life and ever afterward lived a faithful Christian life.

There's a reason why nearly everybody freckles in March, but happily there is also a remedy for these ugly blemishes, and no one need stay freckled.

Simply get an ounce of Othine—double strength, from your druggist and apply a little of it night and morning, and in a few days you should see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the light ones have vanished entirely. Now is the time to rid yourself of freckles, for if not removed now they may stay all Summer, and spoil an otherwise beautiful complexion. Your money back if Othine fails.

IN MEMORIAM

IN MEMORY OF MR. D. MARSHALL REEVES OF STANLY COUNTY

On the twenty-second day of January, Monday morning, near five o'clock, At Long's hospital in Statesville. The death angel came and knocked.

He came right in and took away A precious one so dear. No more we see his precious face, No more his voice we hear.

One precious to our hearts has gone, The voice we loved is stilled; The place made vacant in our home Can never more be filled.

His vacancy will be missed by all, The thought it gives us pain; But we believe his loss to us Is his eternal gain.

He was only sick for about two weeks, Although he was nursed with care; But the Lord never makes a mistake When He takes our precious ones so dear.

He will be missed by this community As a faithful and true-hearted friend, And to his bereaved wife and children My sympathy I send.

Grace Kirk.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas, our heavenly Father in His infinite wisdom removed from us on the 28th day of December, 1922, our beloved friend and co-worker, Mrs. Edgar L. Hart; therefore be it resolved:

First, That we, the women of Grace Missionary Society, cherish the memory of one who loved the cause of missions and gave of her time and means unselfishly.

Second, That we feel deeply our loss, but we take courage and thank Him for the life of one who radiated so much of goodness and power.

Third, That we extend to the bereaved ones our sympathy.

Fourth, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the husband, to the North Carolina Christian Advocate, to the Missionary News, and a copy be spread upon the minutes of the society.

Mrs. W. A. Stanbury, Mrs. W. E. Perdew, Mrs. C. H. Fore, Committee.

A TRIBUTE

The Woman's Missionary Society of Centenary church mourns the loss of one of its most faithful and beloved members. On December 1, 1922, Mrs. Maybell Gray Barber, after a few hours illness, fell peacefully asleep, to awaken in the "clear morning of that other country." Hers was a rare character, abounding in good works. In all the relations of life she was faithful, her watchword was service.

In her home her devotion was supreme—ministering to others was her greatest joy. Bound by strong cords of love to each member of her large family circle she had for each an especial interest and affection.

As neighbor and friend, all who came under her influence can testify to her thoughtful kindness.

To her church she was loyal and constant—to her pastor a "cup of strength."

For more than forty years she was a member of the Woman's Missionary Society, and gave to it a large measure of time and thought. In former years she was a leader of the "Bright Jewels," afterwards the "Light bearers." She was faithful in attendance upon all meetings, and while we shall miss her presence, her influence will long be with us.

We extend our sympathy to her family, who feel most keenly the loss of her whose heart overflowed with love for them, and the loss of whose touch and voice leaves a void in their lives that can never be filled.

"There seems a shadow on the day, Her smile no longer cheers, A dimness on the stars of night Like eyes that look thru tears."

Mrs. W. P. Hill, Mrs. L. K. Stanton, Miss Nora Dodson, Committee.

LAX—Sallie Mae (Bulla) Lax was born December 4, 1878, and departed this life February 21, 1923. She was converted in early life and joined the Methodist church, and lived a faithful and consistent member until God said come home. She has been in poor health for 25 years, and though she has suffered so much, she still trusted in her Saviour till the last. She has gone to be with Him whom she loved. May we live here so we shall meet her when God shall call us home. Our heartfelt sympathy goes out to those bereaved ones that are left behind.

J. N. Randall, P. C.

REEVES—Elisha Monroe Reeves was born July 1, 1841, and died February 7, 1923. He was married October 18, 1866, to Mary Delphina Davis. There were born four children to this union, all of which are living to mourn their loss. Brother Reeves professed faith in God and joined the Methodist church in early life, and lived a faithful member until he was called to his reward to live with the Christ whom he loved and had served for so many years. May the blessings of God and the love of His Son ever hover around those that are bereaved.

J. N. Randall, P. C.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas, God in His infinite wisdom has taken from our midst J. E. Wooler on January 8, 1923, be it resolved:

First, That we as officials of Main Street M. E. Church, South, of High Point, N. C., will miss his constant and able service both as an official and member of the church.

Second, That we will cherish his memory in the coming years.

Third, That we as representatives of the church express our sympathy to the sorrowing family.

Fourth, That we insert a copy of these resolutions on our quarterly conference records, a copy be sent to the North Carolina Christian Advocate, and a copy be sent to the stricken family.

The officials of the church, by J. W. Clinard, W. H. Davis, C. H. Lamberth, Committee.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas, Almighty God in His infinite wisdom has called from our midst our beloved pastor, Rev. W. S. Hales, we, the Board of Stewards of the Badin M. E. Church, South, do offer the following resolutions:

First, That we deeply feel the loss of our consecrated Christian leader, counsellor and friend.

Second, That we extend heartfelt sympathy to the wife and children in their great bereavement.

Third, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the N. C. Christian Advocate, the Albemarle Press, and the family of the deceased.

R. L. Miller, H. A. Lilly, J. S. Cox, Committee.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas, in His infinite wisdom and love, God has removed from earth to heaven Mrs. Carrie White Miller, for many years a faithful member of the Woman's Missionary Society of Centenary church, Winston-Salem; we therefore resolve:

First, That we have lost from our society a loyal and consistent member, one who though she was prevented for several years by failing health to attend our meetings, was always ready to give generously of her service and means to further the work of missionary work.

Second, That we extend to the family our heartfelt sympathy, commend them to the Father who has taken their mother from weakness and suffering to a higher place, where in renewed strength she will receive the reward of the ransomed from her Redeemer. May the memory of her life and character be an inspiration and guide to them during their remainder of their lives.

Third, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, to the Christian Advocate, and also spread upon the minutes.

Mrs. C. F. Lowe, Mrs. C. D. Powell, Mrs. L. C. O'Brien, Committee.

BULLA—Nammie Bulla was born December 2, 1894, and departed this life February 6, 1923. She gave her heart to God in early life, and joined the M. P. church at Liberty, and remained a faithful member there until God saw fit to call her home. While her mother was visiting her a short time ago she said, "Ma, if you hear that I am dead, don't shed a tear or fear, for I will be at rest forevermore." She leaves a husband, J. C. Bulla of Winston-Salem; a mother, Mrs. W. E. Davis; two brothers, A. R. Davis of China Grove and R. L. Davis of Pinson, and a host of friends to mourn their loss; while we feel that our loss is her eternal gain.

J. N. Randall.

SCOVILLE—John Edwin, son of Rev. V. P. Scoville and wife, was born November 10, 1908, in Whigham, Ga., and died November 27, 1922, in Wilson Sanitarium, Wilson, N. C., where he had been carried from his home in Greenville, N. C., for an operation for appendicitis. All that skilled physicians and surgeons, anxious and solicitous friends and loved ones, and trained and faithful nurses could do to stay the hand of the grim reaper was unavailing and death was victor over the mortal body, but the immortal spirit of this splendid, promising and manly boy was borne by angels to the city celestial to be forever happy in the presence of the good and great Giver of life.

His sudden and unexpected going was a great shock to his parents and the entire community. We can bear to see the aged depart, for their work is done, and it is well that they rest from their labors. But when youth departs, it seems so untimely, so out of the natural order. Gone with the sweetness of the flower upon their breath. But God knoweth best.

John Edwin's stay was comparatively brief—a few days more than fourteen years—but he tarried long enough to enshrine himself in the hearts and affection of a wide circle of friends and acquaintances. His was a fine and portly physique; he was unusually handsome, of manly bearing, courteous and considerate in conduct, possessed an active, alert and uncommonly bright intellect, and above all a beautiful Christian character.

As a token of the high esteem in which he was held by the faculty and students of the Greenville High School in which he was a student, a memorial tablet, commemorative of his exemplary conduct and work as a student, will be placed by them in the school.

When five or six years old John Edwin accepted Jesus as his personal Saviour and joined the church which his father and mother love so well and serve so faithfully. Blessed with the heritage of a parsonage home the son was growing in grace and knowledge of the Lord Jesus Christ and becoming active and useful and happy in the work of his beloved church. Just a week or so before the fatal illness seized him he led in public prayer in an Epworth League service and otherwise participated in the program being rendered. While the revival meeting in his father's church last fall was in progress John Edwin was actively interested in the work, engaging in effective personal work, and on one occasion he came with radiant face and rejoicing heart to his father and said, "Papa, I have brought two fine boys to Christ today." How beneficent the reward of such service!

"They that are wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars forever and ever." The ideal of his father's life, in him he centered high hopes for the coming years, and his passing into the silence leaves loving hearts of devoted parents lonely and indescribably sad, but how comforting to know that the beloved boy lived successfully and died triumphantly and is now happy and secure in the heavenly home.

Kind and sympathetic friends sought in every way possible to comfort and strengthen the stricken hearts of sorrowing and bereft loved ones and omitted no service that kind hearts and willing hands could give.

The funeral service was conducted from Jarvis Memorial Methodist church on the afternoon of January 28th by this writer, assisted by Rev. S. A. Cotton, presiding elder of the Washington district, and the pastors of the various churches of Greenville, the body of the deceased being laid to rest in the family plot in the Greenville cemetery.

The large company of people present and the beautiful and profuse floral designs that hid the mound under which the body sleeps in its enduring casket attest the good name and popularity of the deceased and the high esteem and love in which the sorrowing family is held.

May God in His infinite love and mercy comfort and sustain Brother Scoville and his family in this hour of their sorest trial.

"He lives!—in all the past He lives; nor, to the last, Of seeing him again will I despair; In dreams I see him now; And on his angel brow I see it written, 'Thou shalt see me there!'"

John W. Wright.

BYNUM—Miss Julia C. Bynum was born in Winston-Salem, N. C., July 28, 1885. On Tuesday afternoon, February 20, 1923, her enfranchised spirit winged its flight to the realms of glory, leaving behind a frail, disease racked body, and a host of friends who gazed after her with mixed emotions; rejoicing that another faithful soul had been set free and was at home with her Lord, and sorrowing that earth ties had been broken, and that we who needed so much her help and encouragement would be permitted to see her face no more in this world.

But, thank God, we know that she is happy. She went as she had lived, with a smile on her face, answering, ready. She was always ready for the Lord's will to be done in her life. We realize today that not truer, sweeter spirit has ever been imprisoned in a tabernacle of flesh in this city. She is gone, but her spirit and influence will continue to live with us. Her passing reminds us again of the Psalmist's words: "In the midst of life we are in death," for she was barely half way up the sunny side of the mountain. To our beclouded minds it seems a tragedy that one who loved life so much, and whose life was a benediction to so many weary pilgrims along the way, could not have been spared to us a few more years. But God, in His infinite love and wisdom, knows best, and we doubt not at all that one whose life was so full of service here will have even grander opportunities for service there.

Miss Julia gave her heart and life to her Lord when just thirteen years of age, and joined Centenary Methodist church. For twenty-four years she lived a most exemplary Christian life. Her religion was not confined to Sunday, but was made to permeate the whole round of life. In her home she was tireless in her unselfish devotion to her loved ones, anticipating her father's every wish. To her friends, who were many, she was always loyal and true. To old people she was a tender, ministering angel of mercy. To little children she was a companion and playmate. To the poor she was the exemplification of the spirit of her Master, sympathetic and ready to help. To her church she was loyal and untiring in her service, loving it for the sake of Him whom it represented. In her Sunday school, missionary societies and other organizations of the church where there was need for earnest workers, she was ever found ready to do her best. She lived a life of buoyant optimism, and radiated joy and sunshine wherever she went. In spite of limitations, imposed by the condition of her health, she made her life count, and she left the world better for having lived in it.

Besides her wide circle of friends, she leaves her father, Major Z. T. Bynum, two sisters, Mrs. Thomas Kapp and Miss Grace Bynum, and three brothers, Messrs. A. B. Bynum, Z. T. Bynum, Jr., and Turner Bynum, to mourn her death.

To the bereaved family we extend our deepest sympathy. We pray that the God of all comfort who has promised "Never to leave us alone," who stood before the grave of Lazarus and beside the bier on which was borne the widow's son and proved Himself to be the resurrection and the life, may take his place constantly by their side and cheer them with the thought of the glorious resurrection morn when those whom we have loved and lost awhile shall be restored to us forever.

"Tomb, thou shalt not hold him longer;
Death is strong, but life is stronger;
Stronger than the dark, the light;
Stronger than the wrong, the right,
Faith and hope triumphant say.

"Man does not get to God on his feet," says Bishop Collins Denny. "He comes to God on his knees. That is, as St. Augustine puts it, 'Man reaches God through his affections.'"

Some "don'ts" that are good. Don't grumble, don't bluster, don't shirk. Don't magnify your worries, but magnify your work. Sing at your task and shout in the midst of the battle. "No man sees his shadow who faces the sun."

From the ancient city of Prague comes this message from our Bishop Beauchamp: "The field is white to the harvest and there is great need and opportunity for us in Europe. We must not fail in such an hour." In the first century the Macedonian call summoned St. Paul into Europe. Now in the twentieth century a later "Macedonian cry" calls Southern Methodism into Europe. Shall we enter with the Pauline spirit and with that great apostle's vision and abandon?

Gipsy Smith is a great soul and a most effective gospel minister. Five continents bear testimony to the real worth of this true man of God. But with all his genuine worth, that Gipsy tent of his has served a great purpose. It has enabled him to get a wider hearing than he could otherwise have hoped for. In other words his being a Gipsy aroused a popular interest that in all parts of the world gave him a good hearing from the start. The practical lesson growing out of this fact is: Use all legitimate methods to get the ear of the people, but be sure to have a message worth their hearing.

Paul's specialty was experience. His theology was rooted in his personal religious experience. All vital theology is so rooted. That theology which does not issue from the deep centers of one's own personal fellowship with God is only so much ecclesiastical junk. Paul relied more implicitly upon his Damascus road experience than upon logical syllogism. The climax of his arguments was the story of his conversion. This stood at the beginning and in a striking sense was the explanation of his entire Christian life. He wrote in comprehensive and impressive terms of what we call the deity of Jesus Christ, but this divine and eternal Lord of the apostle's thoughts was first the Lord of his own personal experience. "I know Him," became the triumphant declaration that rings like the clear note of a silver bell through all his utterances and that nerved him for every task of his eventful life. John Wesley in this respect was a direct descendant of the Apostle Paul.

Easter is almost here again. It is the glad occasion which sets ajar the gates of the future. The resurrection of Jesus Christ enables us in the language of Robert Browning to "Greet the unseen with a cheer." With glad hearts should we bid welcome the joyous Easter day. Young and old should join in the Easter hymns. Pull out all the stops of the great organs and let these instruments of praise send forth their most triumphant notes. "Shout His praises through the ages: Christ is risen, Lord of all!"

The March winds may not be at all necessary for the making of the flower gardens of spring. But these blustery days, oftentimes wild and wicked, certainly makes us appreciate all the more those halcyon days which bloom in beauty and are musical with birds. We sometimes wonder whether disagreeable people, these March wind folks, are really necessary or not. But we are sure that they greatly enhance the world's appreciation of agreeable people. Those whose very manner adds to the joy of all who touch elbows with them. The law of contrasts play a big part in the lives of us all. Yet who should wish to be like the March wind just to make his neighbors more appreciative of pleasant people?

"Bishop Mouson is making himself felt," is the way that the Central Methodist Advocate puts the case in speaking of the bishop's work in Tennessee. That's the idea. Make himself felt, whether he be a bishop, presiding elder, pastor or some other leader. Make himself felt not with his fist, but on his knees, not with his tongue in making a great noise, but with his head in working out great plans. Make himself felt by putting his heart and all other resources of his personality into the tasks which call for the very best that he can give. It is wonderful how every condition and all sorts of people respond to capable leadership. The private soldier fights the battles but he wins only when his general knows how to command. Efficient leadership goes ahead of the victory.

The juniper tree stands well amid earth's flora, but has fallen into bad repute among religious teachers. In common parlance, it stands for a cowardly, depressed spirit. Its shadow is regarded as the headquarters of gloom. Elijah is responsible for it all. Elijah's fit of the "blues" has done the juniper tree great hurt. It is wonderful how a man's or woman's presence affects the things about him. The presence of Moses has caused that "bush" on the Arabian desert to leave a luminous trail down the centuries. The presence of the youthful Isaiah caused the trembling temple to be filled with seraphims who cried: "Holy, holy, holy, Lord God of Hosts!" Mary's matchless love and devotion caused the broken box of spikenard to fill the world with its odor. A baby in thatched roof cottage converts that abode into a lordly mansion and transforms its humble threshold into the gates of paradise. A single vine over the door where love abides is better than a garden of roses with the wormwood of hate.

IN THE LAND OF THE SKY

Rev. Z. Paris, the wide-awake and popular presiding elder of the Marion district, shattered all precedents, so far as we know, by calling his district conference to meet on Sunday night. It was real interesting to see a train load of preachers and laymen on their way to attend a church meeting on Sunday afternoon, but this is what happened. Brother Paris had called for the conference to meet on Sunday night, March 18, and practically all the preachers and a large number of laymen answered to the first roll call.

The conference was opened with a most excellent sermon by Rev. W. F. Elliott, of the Connelly Springs charge, after which the sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered by the presiding elder, assisted by Revs. W. R. Ware and W. E. Poovey.

Mr. B. L. Lunsford, of Marion, was elected secretary.

The first item of business on Monday morning was reports from the preachers. The presiding elder informed them that he wanted to know something of their experience, and instead of the cut and dried reports the conference was turned into an old-time experience meeting. The pastors on the Marion district are hard working men and from the reports heard in open conference and in private we feel that much progress is being made throughout the district.

Monday afternoon was given over to the renewal of licenses of local preachers, election of delegates to the annual conference, etc.

Bishop Denny arrived Monday night and presided over the conference on Tuesday. He preached a great sermon at 11 o'clock to an audience that taxed the capacity of the Rutherford county court house.

Those representing special interests of the church were there in full force. Rev. J. K. Jolliff, presiding elder of the Petersburg district, Virginia conference, and Rev. R. M. Courtney represented the Centenary. Mr. O. V. Woosley presented the Sunday school work. Rev. W. O. Goode was on hand to tell of the progress of the educational movement. The Children's Home was represented by Rev. C. A. Wood. Mrs. Goodman of Morganton told of the woman's work in the district. Rev. M. T. Hinshaw, president of Rutherford College, made a strong appeal for the support of that institution and asked the district to raise $25,000 to go toward a $100,000 endowment fund that an effort is being made to raise in the conference. He made the statement that there are at Rutherford College at this time 55 ministerial students. The writer was given ample time and a fine opportunity to represent the North Carolina Christian Advocate. None of the brethren can complain of the treatment accorded them by Presiding Elder Paris. He was considerate of all and gave them a cordial welcome.

The Marion district is in the hands of a man as elder who is trying to do his best to lead in a way that will bring the highest good to the church. He is spiritual and always alert to the advancement of the kingdom of God. He assured us that the Marion district would not fall behind its usual good record in the matter of renewals and new subscribers to the Advocate. The preachers are all at work for the church organ and we expect fine reports to come in during the next month from that section of the church.

In Asheville for a Sunday.

Thanks to the way railroads do business we spent Sunday, March 18, in Asheville. We had an engagement at Spruce Pine, but when the Southern train arrived at Clinch Cross, the Clinchfield train had been gone just 20 minutes, and this after our conductor had wired ahead that he had passengers for that road. It does seem that the corporation commission would compel roads to make connection when notified by another road that they have passengers for certain trains.

But back to Asheville. We sat Sunday morning for about thirty minutes in the men's class of Central church and listened to addresses by Dr. O. J. Chandler, and Brothers Curtis and Brown. All of them were fine exegesis of the trial of our Lord.

At the 11 o'clock hour we sat in the pulpit with the pastors, Drs. Chappell and Chandler, of Central. It was an inspiration to sit and look over that great audience which had gathered to hear the popular pastor preach. At the hour appointed for service every available seat in the main auditorium was filled and in five minutes the Sunday school auditorium was crowded. Chairs were placed down the aisles and around the walls and when Dr. Chappell arose to preach there was not standing room anywhere in that great church and, we are confident, that there were at least one hundred turned away that could not get inside. Brother L. B. Rodgers told us it was that way every Sunday. The message of the pastor was a simple gospel message, void of sensation or anything to detract from the old story. The people heard it gladly and all felt moved to try to do better when they left the church. Dr. Chappell has made for himself a large place in the city of Asheville and Central church is growing by leaps and bounds. We expect to have more to say about them real soon. T. A. S.

RAMBLING ROUND

At noon Saturday when the presses and linotype machines in the Advocate shop stood still, thereby marking the end of another busy week in the shop, I left the office to catch Southern train No. 21 for Hickory, where Rev. J. R. Walker, the pastor of West View, took the peripatetic quill driver in hand. The final destination of the evening was Bethel, one of the churches on the West View charge three miles out from the center of Hickory. But the church is in one of the suburbs of the town. Hickory is now a city about six miles long.

Brother Walker began a revival at Bethel Friday night with Rev. N. C. Williams of Granite Falls doing the preaching. The meeting will continue through this week. The Granite Falls people declare that they have one of the finest preachers in the Western North Carolina conference and if his sermon Saturday night is a fair specimen of his preaching I am in hearty accord with their estimate of the man.

Brother Walker with his accustomed zeal is looking carefully after every interest of the church on his charge of five churches and he is doing very fine work.

At the close of that good old fashion Saturday night revival service, in which Prof. J. W. Bennett of Rutherford College led the singing and where he was to preach Sunday morning, I found myself being whirled in Brotnor Williams' car over the good roads to the parsonage at Granite Falls. My stay in that parsonage was as delightful as could be. Those three black-eyed boys, the youngest only two years of age, give promise in the future years of adding fresh laurels to the "sons of the parsonage."

Sunday was a great day at Granite Falls. Big Sunday school, big congregation and at the close of the sermon, the board of stewards at the request of the pastor pledged to join him in the work of putting the Advocate in every home. We will hear more of this a bit later when the work has been completed.

I had the privilege Sunday afternoon of preaching for Rev. J. M. Barber, the pastor of Dudley Shoals charge, at Ebenezer church near the village of Dudley Shoals. This is the church where Rev. George W. Ivey on the afternoon of November 2, 1902, closed a ministry of 52 consecutive years.

Brother Ivey had come from his quarterly meeting at Grace chapel to Ebenezer to preach a funeral sermon at three o'clock in the afternoon. His text was 1st Timothy 6:12: "Fight the good fight of faith, lay hold of eternal life." He had been preaching about 20 minutes and had just said, "Eternal life is"—when he suddenly took his seat, lost consciousness and was carried from the church to a nearby house where he remained till Tuesday when, having regained consciousness, he was taken to the parsonage at Granite Falls. On the following Friday, the 47th anniversary of his marriage, one of the greatest circuit riders in all the annals of the Methodist itinerancy went to his reward.

I confess to a strange sense of unworthiness last Sunday afternoon as I stood where that great man who not in a chariot of fire, as Elijah of old, but from the pulpit of a little country meeting house completed his ministry and went to his home in the skies. But it was fitting that this apostle to the yoemanry of North Carolina should finish his work in the pulpit of a country church, for the country church had been for half a century his throne of power.

Brother Barber is making a great record at Dudley Shoals and those elders who are wide awake will keep their eyes on this young man. A.W.P.

OPINIONS FROM THOSE WHO KNOW

A newspaper is not the product of any one individual. It is an institution that employs the talent and time of dozens, if not scores of people, in its making. For that reason we do not hesitate to quote some recent words of praise for the Advocate from two of the leading papers of the state.

Charity and Children, that good Baptist paper edited by Mr. Archibald Johnson, one of the great editors of the country, said last week: "The North Carolina Christian Advocate is stronger, brighter and finer than it has ever been. It is a worthy exponent of the great denomination behind it. As our readers know, we take large toll of its fruitful columns."

The News and Observer in a recent issue said editorially: "The North Carolina Christian Advocate has more subscribers than any other religious paper printed in the South. It deserves them all."

Our Methodist people should appreciate these words of commendation from such high sources as Charity and Children and the News and Observer, and do all in their power to get those who do not already take the Advocate to subscribe and to become readers of their church paper.

We are exceedingly anxious that our Methodist people should all become readers of the Advocate so as to become intelligent Methodists and that they may have good reading matter in their homes. Give your children a chance, give yourself a chance. Let's put the Advocate in as nearly all of our Methodist homes as it is possible to do.

THE STATESVILLE DISTRICT CONFERENCE

District conferences like freight trains are all essentially alike regardless of chronology or geography. The Statesville conference last Wednesday, Thursday and part of Friday at Catawba was no exception to this rule.

But these conferences generally have one or more unusual features that become of public interest. The conference at Catawba was unique in the method of entertainment. The people of Catawba provided supper, breakfast and lodging and the other three churches of the Catawba circuit served a picnic dinner each day at the church—Bethlehem on Wednesday, Hopewell Thursday and Concord Friday. Perhaps no district conference has seen so much food of the finest quality carried back home after dinner as was carried away each of these days at the Statesville conference. There was enough brought each day to have fed the conference all the days. It is needless to say that Rev. A. C. Kennedy and his people took good care of the conference. Brother Kennedy was a delightful host whom we thank for our good home with Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Sherrill.

Bishop Collins Denny and Rev. D. M. Litaker directed the affairs of the conference and Bishop Denny preached both Thursday and Friday. We speak with caution, his sermons were great and greatly enjoyed.

The Statesville district now has 30 pastoral charges, which gives the presiding elder a man's size job. Brother Litaker has more than enough to do, but he is at his task with a zeal that becometh a sub-bishop.

Items from Elizabeth City district: Quarterly conference, Perquimans charge, March 31-April 1; Woodland, April 7-8. Centenary speakers at Elizabeth City April 8, Hertford night of April 8, Roper 11 a. m. April 9. This meeting for Plymouth, Columbia, Belhaven and Pantego charges.

Bishop Denny will preach on Saturday, May 26, at Winston-Salem district conference and on Sunday following will dedicate the Burkhead Methodist church in Winston. This church has been erected within the last year at a cost of $75,000 and is admirably located. Rev. J. S. Hiatt is the pastor.

Our book of Discipline says: "By means of the budget plan, or in some other practical way, let each church put the conference organ into every Methodist home. Let the circulation of church periodicals be diligently and faithfully promoted by pastors and official members." This is the law of our church and it is good to be observant of the law. Those Methodists who keep our law cannot go wrong.

PEOPLE AND THINGS

Dr. Ashley Chappell, the pastor, is holding this week pre-Easter revival services at Central church, Asheville.

Pastors in the Greensboro district will please see that their quarterly conference records are at the district conference at Pleasant Garden on April 5-6.

Rev. J. W. Vestal is in a revival meeting this week at Lewisville. Rev. H. G. Allen of Walkertown is doing some fine preaching in this meeting.

Rev. H. G. Allen, pastor at Walkertown, has received thirty-nine into the church on profession since conference. These all joined at the regular church services.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Read wish to announce to their friends through the Advocate the birth of their daughter, Nancy, on the 21st of March, 1923, St. Paul parsonage, Goldsboro.

Rev. D. A. Oakley is doing a fine work at Hiddenite. Bad roads have hindered his work this winter. Seldom does one now hear of bad roads in North Carolina. There has been a great revolution in this respect within the last decade.

Rev. E. W. Fox, Race Street, Statesville, has made more than eight hundred pastoral visits since the annual conference. Most of these visits were to the sick. He has been in the midst of a "flu" epidemic. His people are better now.

A series of revival meetings will begin at the Methodist church in Newton on Sunday, April 8th. Rev. J. F. Moser, of Cherryville, is expected to do the preaching and Prof. Curry, of Hendersonville, will have charge of the music.—News-Enterprise.

Lenoir station has 194 members of the Woman's Missionary Society—a remarkable record for a church with 447 members. This charge has one of the very best parsonages in the conference. Rev. P. W. Tucker is the pastor who enjoys this elegant home.

An article in appreciation of the late Alfred M. Gilliam has been received in this office. There is no name to indicate the author, hence the article cannot be published until the name of sender is known. Also one in memory of Mary Ann Charlotte Kestler.

Brother James D. McLean reports that the work goes well at Dick's Creek chapel on the Leicester circuit. Brother John W. Hoyle, the pastor, has closed a two weeks' meeting with fine success. Seldom have the people heard such powerful preaching as this pastor did in that meeting.

Rev. J. R. Walker at West View, Hickory, has in a pastorate of 16 months received 99 members into the church. With two revivals just ahead he expects to add many more in the next few weeks. Last year he added 61 new subscribers and 37 renewals to the Advocate and expects to do better this year.

Bald Creek charge is planning a new church at one point and expects to spend ten weeks in revival meeting—two weeks at each church. Rev. T. W. Hager is the pastor, and a man who puts all the energies of his life into his work. His goal is 25 new subscribers to the Advocate and 50 renewals before the end of the present campaign.

Mooreville now has three stations. Rev. L. B. Abernethy is the pastor at Central and Rev. G. W. Fink is pastor at Broad Street. Two strong self-supporting stations for the town of Mooreville is a record of progress. Thirty years ago the Mooreville church was on a circuit. Broad Street, the new station, is planning a big new church. Jones Memorial is the other Methodist church in Mooreville and it is already looking to the day when it will be self-supporting.

Dr. Franklin N. Parker, dean of Candler School of Theology, Atlanta, Ga., sends us the following interesting news item: "Mrs. Sam Jones has established an endowed lectureship in the Candler School of Theology on Evangelism in memory of her husband, the famous evangelist. It has been thought appropriate by all parties concerned to have the first series delivered by Dr. George R. Stuart, pastor of First Methodist church, Birmingham, Ala., and for some time Brother Jones' associate in evangelistic work. The lectures are to be given in the chapel of the Divinity School of Emory University during the week beginning April 23rd."

Grays's Chapel on the Dudley Shoals charge is being enlarged and otherwise improved at a cost of $6,000.

The Hillsboro circuit is building two parsonages this year in preparation for a division at conference. Work will begin on the parsonage at Hillsboro in a few weeks. Timber is being cut for the new parsonage at Cedar Grove. A brother has donated an admirable site and the success of the enterprise is assured. Both of these buildings will be attractive and comfortable homes.

The women of the missionary societies of Person county held a county meeting last Friday at Brookdale. Mrs. B. C. Thompson was in charge and the result of her efforts appeared on every hand. The attendance, the most excellent program, the entertainment of the Brookdale ladies and the interest shown contributed to the fine success of the undertaking.

Rev. G. Ray Jordan with Robt. Z. Tyler of Atlanta to direct the music is this week in a series of revival services at Black Mountain. Preparatory cottage prayer services were held last week and the pastor's themes this week are in part as follows: Sunday morning, "Hand-Picked Fruit"; Sunday evening at 7:30, "The Man in Need"; Monday evening, "Praying Effectively"; Tuesday evening, "A Mad Man for God."

That veteran soldier of the cross, and an Israelite in whom there is no guile, Rev. Robt. M. Hoyle, pastor of our church at King's Mountain, sent us the largest check for subscriptions to the Advocate that had been received up to Tuesday morning of this week. Brother Hoyle has always been a staunch friend of the church paper, and never fails to see to it that it is properly presented to his congregation. We thank you, Brother Hoyle.

Probably very few of our churches have so efficiently organized and zealously operative woman's societies as those in Roanoke Rapids. Last year the local branch raised $1,000 and rendered substantial and much appreciated help to a greatly burdened membership. And the first quarterly reports this year were highly encouraging. The new missionary society has started off hopefully, and that with a splendid organization. Mrs. J. A. Moore, a most excellent executive, directs the untiring activities of these societies.

STATESVILLE DISTRICT

The Statesville district will observe Sunday, April 8th, as Centenary Sunday on all the stations and half the circuit churches, the following Sunday to be observed on the remaining circuit churches. The week preceding the pastor, lay leader and Centenary treasurer will organize the collecting committee and examine the subscription cards. On Sunday the Centenary will be presented from the pulpit and the following afternoon or the following week will be devoted to visiting the subscribers and soliciting payment to date, four of the five payments now being due.

D. M. Litaker, P. E.

TRINITY ALUMNI MEET

The annual meeting of the Guilford County Trinity College Alumni Association was held last Monday night at West Market Street church with Fred C. Odell presiding. Prof. R. L. Flowers was the principal speaker. Richard E. Thigpen, assistant alumni secretary, told of the work in organizing the alumni association in various sections of the county. Officers to serve for the ensuing year were elected as follows: Sidney S. Alderman, Greensboro, president; W. M. Marr, High Point, vice president, and O. A. Pearce, Greensboro, secretary-treasurer.

The occasion was one of fine fellowship, the supper first class, the music good, and Prof. Flowers measured up to his usual high standard in the address of the evening.

These county alumni associations are being organized all over the state. Thirty-five county associations have been already organized mainly in the central and western section of the state and the next three weeks will be given by Mr. R. E. Thigpen to the eastern part of the state, beginning at Goldsboro April 2, New Bern April 5, Wilmington April 10, and Fayetteville April 12.

This movement has in it untold possibilities for serving Trinity College and should have the enthusiastic support of every former student of the college.

AN EXPLANATION

In justice to myself I think I should say that the district conference notes published in this week's Advocate over my signature were not intended to be given as a communication. They were mere notes sent to Brother Sikes to be used by him in his write-up of the conference. R. H. Willis.

NEW BERN DISTRICT CONFERENCE

Please state in the Advocate this week that visitors and delegates who expect to attend the New Bern district conference, April 10-12, Mount Olive, will please write the pastor at once, so that entertainment may be provided. We shall expect the Advocate to be represented. Geo. B. Starling.

GREAT DAY AT TRINITY CHURCH, DURHAM

Bishop Collins Denny preached at 11 a. m. Circle meetings were held at 26 homes of the members at 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon, which were rallying points for the canvass that resulted in pledges, as announced at the night service in the Academy of Music, amounting to $151,272. This with the insurance on the old church brings the total above $220,000.

The plans approved for the new building provides for three units on the site of the old church. The three separate buildings, church, Sunday school building and parsonage, which are to be erected, will cost $300,000. The work is expected to proceed with dispatch. These new buildings will give the Trinity congregation a great plant.

SHELBY DISTRICT CONFERENCE

The Shelby district conference will be held at Central church, Shelby, April 12-13, beginning at 9:30 a. m. We hope to have Bishop Denny and Mr. G. L. Morelock, secretary of the laymen's work, with us. We hope to have a full attendance of the laymen as well as pastors. I know it will be a busy time, but by careful planning I believe that most of those who ought to go can get their work in such condition as to make it possible for them to do so. All local preachers are requested to have written reports ready to submit, and the recording stewards will please be sure and have the quarterly records present for examination. The good people of Shelby are making plans to give the conference fine entertainment, and I hope we will have a great conference. Revs. J. E. Thompson, O. P. Ader and J. F. Moser will act as committee of examination for license to preach, orders, etc.

Visitors who expect to attend the conference will please notify Rev. A. L. Stanford, so that entertainment may be provided for them.

H. H. Jordan, P. E.

CENTENARY EMERGENCY CAMPAIGN

For a little more than two weeks a special team of Centenary speakers have been visiting churches in the bounds of the Western North Carolina conference. This itinerary for the Western North Carolina conference came to a close in Asheville Sunday, March 25th. The members of the team expressed themselves as being very much encouraged with what they had seen in the Western North Carolina conference. Beginning with Monday, March 26th, the team of speakers are scheduled for points in the North Carolina conference. In the team at present are Bishop Hay, Dr. Hounshell, Dr. Joliff, Dr. T. M. Elliott and Dr. A. D. Wilcox. On Friday, March 30th, Dr. Rawlings and Dr. Hounshell will be at Durham district conference, West Durham. On Friday night, March 30th, Dr. Hounshell will be at Burlington, Dr. J. K. Joliff at Weldon and Bishop Hay at Oxford. On Sunday, April 1st, the members of the team will be at Raleigh and Durham. The last week of the itinerary we will have Dr. Rawlings, Dr. Joliff, Dr. Walt. Holcomb, Dr. T. M. Elliott and Dr. T. N. Ivey. The points to be visited on the week of April 2d to the 8th are as follows: Littleton and Goldsboro, Monday, April 2nd; Louisburg, Rocky Mount and Mt. Olive on Tuesday, April 3rd; Sanford, Greenville and LaGrange, Wednesday, April 4th; Dunn, Washington, Morehead City and Beaufort, Thursday, April 5th; Wilmington, Elizabeth City and New Bern on Friday, April 6th, and the members of the team will remain over Sunday, April 8th. On Monday, April 9th, there will be held at Roper a group meeting and some member of the team will go to Hertford on Monday, April 9th, for service at 7:30 p. m.

THE DEEP DRAWN LINE OF SEX

Some would wipe out the old and persistent line of sex. They decry the womanly and strive for all that is manish. Aping manish attire and affecting masculine manners with not a few women become a consuming passion. As one has put it: "They have been encroaching on us poor fellows for years. They have taken our hats, coats, shirts, collars, top-boots, and have long been tugging at our trousers." And he adds: "Do not women know that the more nearly they approach the likeness of men in dress, voice, manners, habits, conduct and vocation, the less attractive they become to men and that they may reach the point of actual repellancy?"

Still, the drums are beating and the banners are flying as the cause is marching on. The barriers are breaking down and the most conservative retreats are being invaded. All the doors of the most ancient seats of learning must admit both men and women. What for? To make of them the truly cultured of the feminine type? No, the presumption is that they will be cast in the mold of the masculine. Will it be possible to run our humanity, male and female, through the mill of conformity until the presumably fixed and eternal line between man and woman has been wiped out?

Somehow, the instinct that calls for a drum in one tot in rompers, and that calls for a doll in another, is most deeply seated and persistent. The tendencies regnant in life's morning-time remain to the close of day. The line may be blurred and, at times, seemingly obliterated only to persist in the face of the most determined efforts to wipe out all distinctions and long recognized differences. Though voices many call the modern woman to go after strange gods, enticed by the promise of escape from the quiet ways in which our grandmothers walked, the fact remains, writ large on all the tablets of the race, that woman in her deeper longings and truer hours desires to be sheltered, protected and loved. Every girl, answering the normal impulses of her soul, delights in pretty dresses and love letters. The one graces the goddess of form; the other finds ready response in the awakening soul. Life's true destiny begins to glimmer on the far off horizon of the years. The violets are blooming and the blue birds are singing on every hand, for spring is everywhere. Beneath the enforced uniformity of these modern times, with the tides washing out every line of distinction between man and woman, and under this tinsel and show, paraded on every hand, lie the deeper longings and diviner impulses of the womanly soul. Hidden away in the inmost core of every woman's being is the sly and sneaking expectation that on cheery day, when the opportune hour strikes, there will be the fragrance of orange blossoms in the air. True, few will admit this to themselves, and no normal woman will proclaim it on the housetops, for the truest sanctities of life are not flaunted in the face of the world; but the fact remains and, once the right man comes along, the proof will be forthcoming.

Fortunately, man has much the same deep-seated and persistent longings. Though markedly different in many respects, in this, men and women show tendencies in common. The heart of the normal man never fails to respond to the tender sentiment expressed by Whitcomb Riley in the familiar lines:

"When we should live together in a cosy little cot Hid in a nest of roses, with a fairy garden-spot, Where the vines were ever fruited and the weather ever fine,

And the birds were ever singing for that old sweetheart of mine."

Perhaps, the tendency of woman to lose her poise and equanimity has been exaggerated, in her eagerness to follow the object of her affections and to answer the demands of life; still, at almost every turn, we meet with agitated, pale, languid women, who have grown discouraged and are ready to fall by the wayside. The eagerness of youth and the expectations of other years have fled. The color has gone out of life, age has crept on apace, and the future settles like a heavy fog over a moaning sea. Women incline to lose their balance and to plunge headlong in the line of their affections, or else how are we to account for the many fine women who marry such ordinary men. Furthermore, there is that feeling expressed in the Spanish lady's guitar song:

Time flies, and flying, gathers one by one
The buds that burgeon at Life's golden gate:
Be wooed and wedded ere thy day is done;
Man roams afar, but woman cannot wait.

The bird without a mate must cease to sing,
The rose, neglected, shatter on her spray;
The vine must perish where it cannot cling,
The summer reft of sunshine, pass away.

When strands of silver thread thy silver locks
Like webs of moonbeams as the night grows late,
Sweet love no longer at thy portal knocks;
Man roams afar, but woman cannot wait.

Man sails the seas for glory, wealth or power,
For court, or camp, or battle-field departs;
We, left behind, from lonesome hour to hour
Hear but the beating of our restless hearts.

Youth, like a fragile morning-glory bloom,
Long ere the noontide meets his hapless fate;
Haste, ere thy queenly beauty suffers doom;
Man roams afar, but woman cannot wait.

THE PREACHER'S HOUR ON SUNDAY

Does the average preacher appreciate the high hour of opportunity he has in his pulpit on Sunday? Oftentimes, this is the only hour which he can call his own in the month. Certainly, he can claim not more than two hours a month in the country. Then, when he remembers that fully one-half of his congregation is not there more than half the time, the limited opportunity offered is such as to constrain the thoughtful man devoted to his high calling to make the most diligent use of this hour.

In the congregation are the burdened and the broken-hearted, the careless and the worldly-minded, the thoughtful and the frivolous, the devoted saint and the outrageous sinner, the young and the old; in a word, a mixed multitude, in need of being made awfully conscious of the divine presence, faces the man of God in this hour of opportunity. How criminal to trifle away the time with a stale, flat, unprofitable homily; or what is worse, to harangue the crowd with cheap abuse of the follies practiced by people who are not present, when a vigorous, thoughtful, spiritual message should make real the eternal message of the gospel! Once Methodist preachers follow the injunction of Wesley to preach on the great theme, heaven will come near and sermons will grip heart and conscience of the hearers.

On the average circuit, six or eight times a year marks the limit of a preacher's opportunity with the mass of the people. Deduct from this the hindrances that come because of sickness and family demands, to say nothing of the depletion suffered because of bad weather and worse roads, the more urgent becomes the demands to make the most of every moment allowed the man in the pulpit. Surely a man with a prophet's message burning in his bones and a preacher's message in his heart will use the one hour which he can call his own as the one hour fraught with eternal issues. Is it too much to expect him to preach "as dying man to dying men?"

The men who continue to get a hearing and are able to command the attention of the multitudes, Sunday after Sunday, have a way of making vital and fresh the occasion from the first note on the organ to the last amen. They do not quibble over announcements and waste time on the trivial. Those who do are doomed. A preacher who can fill full the hour with a vitally personal message from a personal God, carried fresh and full to the hearts of men, can send men away with a fresh consciousness of the Divine presence. To such, the hour on Sunday is highly significant.

THE COUNTRY CHURCH IN APRIL

Once the ground hog has retired after a forty days' reign, the country people cherish fresh expectations for the open season of the coming spring-time. Fresh life manifests itself in forest and field and a new stir is on about the country meeting house. The long dormant energies of the more mature in years begin to awake with the assurance that the young life is now ready to gather once more in the Sunday school. Of course, every one informed knows that it is not the young but the old who close the Sunday schools during the winter. Not necessarily those old in years but those old in the methods used and the feelings cherished. But now with the first of April even these see better prospects ahead.

Some allowance must be made for winter weather and bad roads. But worse than these are the poorly heated houses and the would-be leaders so wanting in zeal and energy. Once we are wise enough to have well equipped and comfortable country churches and will set about training a few who are willing and know how to lead, we will not wait for the coming of April buds to stimulate us to new efforts in the church work.

Once more, however, April is with us and the spring revival is on. New faces are in the Sunday schools and larger crowds greet the preacher; a finer fellowship is evident on every hand. Will the preachers and the officials make the most of this and rally all to new effort in every line of endeavor? Some have not been to church since last October and have not contributed one red cent to any cause since last annual conference. The pastor has met the little shivering groups of loyal and devoted members of the old guard, but the great mass of the people have not been in evidence through the long winter months. Why not make this April a notable month in every country church so as to make possible the finest victories before the leaves fall?

SHAVER NEWS LETTER FOR OCTOBER, NOVEMBER, DECEMBER, 1922

Conversions, 7; probationers, 6; accessions to church, 7. Total members of the church, 81. New Sunday school members, 18; total Sunday school members, 123. Total Epworth League members, 25. Contributed for all purposes: church, 154.39½; Sunday school, 14.20. Tracts distributed, 200; baptisms 8, seven of which joined the church; enquirers, 65.

During the past quarter we have opened up regular work in South Hiroshima. We have a good Sunday school and Bible class here which we started last year.

The work at Itsukushima is moving along nicely. I baptized a young man down there last Tuesday night, December 26. He will join the church as soon as we organize. This was the first Christian baptism ever administered on the Island of Itsukushima, so far as I know. I expect to conduct a special meeting there this spring.

I conducted a revival meeting at Yanai about a month ago. Had very good results. I had the honor of being the first foreigner ever to speak in some of the schools in Yanai.

Mrs. Shaver is teaching sewing at the Hiroshima Girls' School this year.

A Modern Good Samaritan.

Last spring a couple of young men came to our home to play tennis. One was interested in Christianity and asked me what a person had to do in order to become a Christian. I told him as best I could in my Japanese, and invited him to come to church. I also gave him some tracts. He immediately began attending church, and a few weeks ago I baptized him and he was received into the church. Just one week after his baptism, while walking up the street he met a poor man with two small children. They needed food and clothing. This young man, feeling very sorry for them and not having anything except what he had on, removed his own coat and placed it around one of the suffering children, and then, with tears in his eyes, he ran to his school and borrowed one yen from his teacher and gave that to the poor man. "Inasmuch as you did it unto one of the least of these, ye did it unto me."

This young man having returned to his native village, has invited us to come and preach there also.

Yours in His service,

Hiroshima, Japan.

I. L. Shaver.

EASTER AND EVANGELISM

By R. L. Russell.

It has come to be a custom with many of our churches to conduct pre-Easter evangelistic campaigns. This is a good sign, and it will be a great thing for our Methodism when all our churches devote the month preceding Easter to evangelism.

In these campaigns we should promote services of prayer, family religion, Christian stewardship and life service; but most of all, we should proclaim the happy news of salvation to all penitent sinners.

It is hoped that with the close of this Easter time there may be at least 100,000 people added to our church. This should be our minimum goal. Why should not 2,300,000 members gain 100,000 new members for the church and kingdom in a four weeks' campaign? One hundred thousand new members would be less than fifteen to each pastor of our denomination. Therefore, if every pastor of the church would set as his minimum goal fifteen additions to the church as an Easter offering to our Lord, we would easily reach the 100,000.

The Bureau of Evangelism craves to be of help to the brethren in creating a real revival spirit throughout the church. We are glad to co-operate with the Commission on Evangelism and Life Service of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America in this great pre-Easter campaign, and submit herewith a letter which they have addressed to all Protestant churches in America:

A Call to Prayer for the Pre-Easter Period and the Holy Week of Prayer, March 25 to April 1, 1923.

"When has the world's need for sympathy and brotherhood been so impelling and beseeching as it is today? When have hate and selfishness so nearly brought ruin to all that is helpful and good? How shall the church perform today the task to which God has sent her as the light of the world and the salt of the earth, if her own lamp is not trimmed and her own life so true that she can be the purifying influence in a time of selfishness and sin?"

"The call of the church is first of all a summons to prayer and consecration. We need to confess our shortcomings and to be ashamed of our aloofness, our sinfulness and complacency. Let us examine ourselves before we take others to task. Hatred and selfish unconcern will cease among the nations when they cease in the individual hearts of men and women.

"There is a deepening conviction among men that the greatest power on earth is the power of prayer. It will release more energy for the world's help than any other agency. Pentecosts are ever at hand and will fall upon the church when by the same method that precipitated the first Pentecost she brings herself close to the Infinite.

"Day long a craven cry goes up,
The people drink a bitter cup,
They languish, seeking stones for bread.
Brave faith seems fallen, the old hope dead,
The habblers will not cease,
The people have no peace.
Wake, wake your strings of fire!
Fod for us—strike the lyre!"

"Our topics for the Easter season present Jesus Christ as the Savior of the world. There is no human need so great that He cannot meet it; there is not want that He cannot satisfy. Once more we follow in His footsteps through the tender teaching, the holy fellowship, the cruel scourging, and the agony of the cross. With greater hope than ever we hail the Easter dawn and pray that the light of that day may illuminate the world.

"He went out into a mountain to pray and continued all night in prayer to God."

"And when it was day . . . He came down . . . and stood in the plain . . . There virtue went out of Him and healed them all."

"Thus with the Master, he who would do the work of the world in the daylight hours must find his way back, at every eventide, to the sources of his spiritual strength. There is no vital service without a commensurate spiritual life and the one will be as real and abiding as the other is deep and reverent.

"The world's deepest need is not political, is not economic; it is, in every age, and above all at the present hour, the need of vital religion."

Protestantism may find it difficult to get together on many things, but we should find it easy to agree on a campaign of soul winning. The salvation of the human race waits largely upon the American churches, and yet not one-half of the American people are members of any church—either Protestant or Catholic, and many of us who belong to the churches are half Christian and half pagan—judging by much of our attitude of life. It is well, therefore, that we set aside the pre-Easter time for heart searching, repentance, a renewal of our vows, and an aggressive campaign for the lost.

EVANGELIZING IN BELGIUM WHEN ALL EUROPE IS TENSE

By Bishop W. B. Beauchamp.

Newspapers in the United States and the newspapers in Europe are full of startling headlines and disturbing news. But even so, one cannot quite get the deep uncertainty of affairs nor realize the international suspicions unless he breathe this atmosphere.

Mr. Lloyd George said the other day in the House of Commons, "Is it cash or smash?" speaking of the Ruhr Valley situation. I am ten days longer getting to Prague from Brussels, as German trains will not pull French or Belgian cars. I am in Vienna today and the kronen sells seventy thousand to the dollar! The only thing cheap in Austria is her money.

Placards are up in the hotel saying, "If the American will give ten dollars to the committee this will insure one heal a day for three months to a suffering and hungry citizen"—the names of the committee guarantee the program. There is much and wide-spread suffering. The value of the franc, Belgian and French, is falling rapidly.

A distinguished speaker said the other day in London, "Europe needs to disarm mentally." This is very true and the nations need just as certainly to disarm physically. But I dare not enter upon other manifest and blighting evils which have followed in the wake of war. The Church of Christ has a tremendous responsibility to help the nations disarm mentally and physically. The Protestant churches in America believe in peace and the power of the gospel to redeem nations have a great task in Europe. The Romanist view and method, with always a longing and plotting for material world power, is a menace to all the nations.

So here in Belgium we are carrying on under these European conditions, in faith, according to the plans of the gospel.

I went to the market place where our colporteurs go and sing and preach and sell Christian literature and the gospels. One night I went to the service in the hall at Aernaudt. It was full of men and women and children. They were having gospel hymns and singing with a vim! One afternoon, Thursday, I went to the Sunday school at Herstal. There were eighty children and such stirring gospel singing! Then on Sunday night I went to Antwerp and spoke to a hall full of people. Our workers are getting a hearing in this half Catholic and half Socialistic country. The propaganda by pamphlet and through the colporteur is going in a most remarkable way. Brother William Thonger, through this department, is doing a most remarkable piece of work.

The Christian Clinic, owned jointly by us and the National Church, is now paying its way. It is entirely too small. We ought to have a nurse training school in connection with it in order that we may be able to do a thoroughly Christian and constructive piece of work. I am sure there is a place and opportunity for such a work in Brussels.

The orphanage with fifty children is as fine in Christian spirit and management as I have ever known. The oldest girl of the orphanage is now at Herstal in Christian work in our church. And the oldest boy is taking normal school training for Christian service. The atmosphere is thoroughly Christian.

Our girls' school, Les Marrioniers, has seventy students—the only Protestant boarding school in Belgium. I am sure this school is a great need of Belgium and a great opportunity. There are special difficulties but we can succeed and ought to plan for enlargement. None of our workers in Belgium have faced greater difficulties than our American teachers in this school and they are facing the situation bravely and courageously.

So in this little nation of Belgium we are seeking to do our part as a great Protestant group to leaven this people with the ideals of Protestantism and of the Bible.

CHRIST IN THE GARDEN

The following Easter poem, which has been for more than 30 years in the possession of Mr. J. McB. Hurley, was sent us by Rev. A. J. Parker, who found this note pinned to the original copy of the poem:

"This beautiful pen picture of our Saviour's agony in the Garden of Gethsemane, we publish by request of Rev. W. M. Boyles, and other readers of The Vidett of Mt. Gilead. When we first heard it sung, by Rev. Marcus C. Thomas of the North Carolina conference many years ago, we thought it sweetly beautiful, grand."

While nature was sinking in stillness to rest,
The last beam of daylight shone dim in the west,
O'er hills by the moonlight my wandering feet
Sought in quaint meditation some lonely retreat.

While passing a garden I paused there to hear
A voice faint but plaintive from one that was near.
The voice of the stranger affected my heart,
While in agony pleading the poor sinner's part.

I listened a moment then turned me to see
What a man of compassion this stranger could be;
I saw him low kneeling upon the cold ground,
The loveliest creature that ever was found.

His mantle was wet with the dew of the night;
His locks by pale moonbeams shone glittering and bright;
His eyes bright as diamonds to heaven were raised,
While angels in wonder stood 'round him amazed.

So deep was his sorrow, so fervent his prayer,
That down o'er his bosom rolled blood, sweat and tear;
I wept to behold him, and asked him his name;
He answered, "'Tis Jesus, from heaven I came:

I am thy redeemer, for thee I must die;
The cup is most bitter but can not pass by;
Thy sins like a mountain were laid upon me,
And all this great anguish I suffer for thee."

I heard with deep sorrow the tale of his woe,
While tears like a fountain of water did flow;
The cause of his sorrow to hear him repeat Affected my heart and I fell at his feet.

I trembled with horror then loudly did cry,
"Lord, save a poor sinner; Oh, save or I die!"
He smiled when he saw me; he said to me, "Live;
Thy sins which are many I freely forgive."

How sweet was that moment he bade me rejoice;
His smiles, oh, how pleasant! How charming his voice;
I flew from the garden to spread it abroad,
I shouted salvation and glory to God!

I'm now on my journey to mansions above,
My soul's full of glory, of light, peace and love:
To think of the garden, the prayers and the tears,
Of that loving stranger who banished my fears.

The bright day of glory is rolling around,
When Gabriel descending the trumpet shall sound;
My soul then in raptures of glory shall rise,
To gaze on this stranger with unclouded eyes.

PARAGRAPH 253

We have a special request from one of our pastors to publish paragraph 253 in the Discipline. Here is the desired paragraph:

253. The stewards shall report to each church the whole amount to be raised, and that part of it which each congregation is expected to pay. The church conference may adopt its own method of raising the money. Unless otherwise ordered by the church conference, the stewards shall adopt the plan of assessment with consent, as provided in the following paragraph: provided, nevertheless, that no board of stewards or pastor shall incur any indebtedness for the payment of the preacher's salary or the benevolences, which indebtedness shall be left upon the charge for his successor to raise.

I would have every minister of the gospel address his audience with the zeal of a friend, with the generous energy of a father, and with the exuberant affection of a mother.—Fenelon.

FIRST REPORT IN ADVOCATE CAMPAIGN

The Advocate campaign is now beginning in earnest and for the next four weeks will occupy the center of the stage. Up to this date has been a period of preparation. The month of April will bring in thousands of renewals and new subscribers. Every pastoral charge ought to make a good showing. The policy of each pastor should be to do something big for the Advocate.

Among the features of the reports to date is this: Mr. Henry Ledbetter of the Ledbetter Manufacturing Co., Rockingham, N. C., has sent in six new subscriptions and 26 renewals for employes of his company. That is fine. Other men might do well to follow his example.

ASHEVILLE DISTRICT CONFERENCE. Nestled in a little pocket of the Great Smokies is the village of Hot Springs, to which the preachers and elected delegates of the Asheville district journeyed to hold their annual meeting. This was the thirty-fourth session. On Tuesday morning, March 13th, 1923, Presiding Elder H. C. Sprinkle, with a carefully prepared calendar, proceeded to the dispatch of the business usual to such gatherings, and proved himself equal to the task. W. Frank Sandford was put at the secretary's table and handled that end of the program. At the first roll call eighteen pastors and forty-four delegates were found to be present.

And of course there was a fair representative list of "visiting brethren," namely, Rev. W. M. Curtis, from G. W. C.; Rev. R. M. Courtney, of the Centenary work; Rev. A. W. Plyler, who runs the Advocate; Prof. O. V. Woosley, who pushes the Sunday school interests; Miss Grace Bradley, the enthusiastic Epworthian; Rev. W. O. Goode, the earnest educational secretary; and last, but not least, that princely layman, Mr. C. H. Ireland. A district conference would be a tame affair without these.

"One minute reports" was the schedule for the preachers, and they made it lively. Not a discouraging tone! It was all of progress, interest and growth. "We do move" in the Land of the Sky.

The names of the local preachers were called and passed—and something new just here, nearly all submitted a written report. Three of these faithful men had died during the year—F. A. Barrett, J. B. Hyder and T. E. Ray—and suitable memorials of their lives and labors were prepared and read.

The afternoon of the first day was given over to the report on Sunday schools and education, which gave time for a full and free discussion. All interests were considered carefully, and all representatives had ample time for addressing the conference on their particular work and mission.

Particular inquiry into arrangements for the work of Sunday schools was made. A committee was appointed to "develop and work out plans whereby country church buildings and one-room houses of worship can be arranged, by changes and additions, for more efficient work and to meet the requirements and needs of the times."

By a strong vote the conference changed the presiding elder's residence from Weaverville to Asheville, and appointed a committee to aid the board of trustees in the disposition of the old property and the purchase of a new residence.

The night service, of the first day, was the laymen's session, and it was live and interesting; presided over by Mr. H. A. Dunham. (The editor has reported Edwin L. Brown's direction of the religious service and Dunham's management of the meeting.) This was a time when lay activities had about every phase of the work presented in the most attractive and interesting manner. They are "doing things" up here in the mountains.

The second day was crowded with miscellaneous business—reports from the committees and "five minute talks" on the questions involved; resolutions upon sundry matters; the election of delegates; the licensing of local preachers, and "where shall we go next year?"

The opening service at eight o'clock in the morning, the administration of the Lord's Supper, called many out early and set its stamp upon the proceedings of the entire day.

The committee on missions, in their report, advocated a religious survey of the entire field and a forward movement to "bring the people to Christ." The matter was referred to the Pastors' Conference of Asheville Methodism for further discussion and action.

The delegates elected to the annual conference are: K. E. Sherrill, C. F. Bland, Frank Smith, E. L. Brown, H. A. Dunham, G. P. Morris, J. E. Rector and Mrs. E. O. Chanley.

K. G. Patterson was granted license to preach. O. E. Croy, a preacher from the Pentecostal Holiness church, and N. A. Mace, a preacher from the Baptist church, were received and licensed as local preachers.

The conference voted to meet at Swannanoa at its next session.

The Hot Springs church was an ideal host, and the homes of that splendid people kept open door for the Methodist conference, giving every one who attended "the best home."

W. F. Sandford.

REV. THOMAS J. OGBURN — AN APPRECIATION

(Prepared by H. M. Blair for Methodist Preachers' Conference at Greensboro, N. C.)

"God buries his workmen but carries on his work." Thus Mr. Wesley expressed his sorrowful appreciation of his co-laborers, apparently indispensable as helpers in the work in hand, when they were snatched away by death in the midst of their busy tasks. We were reminded of these words of our great founder when on Saturday, February 24, 1923, our dear Brother Ogburn was suddenly taken from us after only a few days' illness.

Our hearts are sad because of the absence of Brother Ogburn from our Monday morning conferences, where his brotherly greetings and godly counsels were always helpful and inspiring. At the age of 73, after a most zealous and effective ministry of 57 years, he stepped into the heavenly chariot and went home to God. A great preacher, unique in style, incisive and powerful in the presentation of the essential truths of the gospel, he is justly classed among the faithful prophets of the New Testament dispensation. As few among us he could call down fire from heaven to consume the works that are evil, at the same time holding up the cross of Christ as the hope of the evildoer. In a most unusual way Brother Ogburn combined the spirit of the Old Testament prophet and the New Testament evangel.

The passion of this man to "be about the Father's business" is seen in the urgency of the divine call which thrust him out at the age of sixteen, and in his eagerness to preach even after his superannuation. Like our Lord he could truly say, "My meat is to do the will of him that sent me and to finish his work." Busy to the last with both tongue and pen, he went home to God from the harvest field, having the sweat of toil fresh upon his brow.

"Redeemed from earth and pain,
Ah! when shall we ascend
And all in Jesus' presence reign
With our translated friend?"

EAST HIGH POINT

The assistant editor had the pleasure of trying to preach to the congregation at East High Point last Sunday. It was a revelation to him. He had thought this to be a small struggling congregation over in that section of the city. But when he arrived he found the Sunday school in session and the house filled with enthusiastic folks. At 11 o'clock a nice congregation greeted us and listened with enthusiasm. Brother O. G. Allen was present and represented the Y. M. C. A. proposition to the congregation. High Point is entering a campaign for a $200,000 Y. M. C. A. building, and, it is needless to say, that the project will be a success.

Rev. E. J. Harbison, pastor at East High Point, has captured his congregation and is receiving a large hearing every Sunday. A movement is on foot to erect a new house of worship down on Green street. The congregation is falling in line with the plan and, in a short while, plans will be drawn and work on the construction of the new home for this growing congregation will be started.

Preacher and people assured us that the Advocate would have the attention it deserves in a short while, and that efforts would be made to secure renewals and a large list of new subscribers.

INFORMATION WANTED

I would like for you, or some one, to give me a little "more light" on the Reports (?) of North Main Street, Salisbury, and Bald Creek, Marion districts, for 1922.

I find by reference to the minutes of 1921 that in 1921 North Main Street, Salisbury, paid the P. E. $120, and the pastor $1200; in fact, she paid all of her assessments in full. The grand total in table No. 3 shows that in 1921 North Main paid $3761. Rev. A. C. Tippet was appointed for his third year, but in the minutes for 1922 table No. 3 does not show that this charge was even assessed for a single thing. The whole thing is a total blank, thus showing up very badly for this church and marring the report of the great old district in which it is located. As a former pastor I am interested in North Main Street. The same "blank condition" obtains in the Bald Creek charge, to which Rev. J. M. Price was reapointed for his second year. Can these brethren explain how it all happened?

I expect to send in new and renewal subscriptions to the best church paper I know anything about, namely, the "N. C. C. A."

preaching and doing it well. His sermons are well prepared and delivered with telling effect. His attacks on sin are bold and fearless and with prophetic earnestness and power he appeals to men to repent and believe the gospel. He has pronounced evangelistic gifts and ought to be kept busy in our conference.

At the morning service yesterday there were six professions at the altar. In the afternoon service thirty-five children professed conversion, and last night fourteen more grown people professed saving faith. To date there have been sixty-nine professions.

We are taking care of Brother Taylor in one of the prettiest and best parsonages in the conference. The addition to the parsonage was begun in the latter part of last year and finished and well furnished since last conference. With growing Sunday school classes and congregations crowding the auditorium we are seeing the necessity for the enlargement of our church. E. W. Fox.

C. H. TROWBRIDGE MADE PRESIDENT OF WEAVER COLLEGE

Carl Hoyt Trowbridge, A. B., A. M., and well known writer on educational subjects, has been elected president of Weaver College, Weaverville, and will assume his duties at the conclusion of the present term of the college, according to an announcement by the board of trustees Saturday.

The board of trustees made it known that all members of the board feel that the election of Mr. Trowbridge assures a brilliant future for Weaver College. The official announcement said:

"With enlarged and improved physical equipment; with further enlargement in immediate prospects; and now with the selection of a man of outstanding attainments to head the institution, it is confidently expected that Weaver College will take front rank among the leading educational institutions of the South."

Mr. Trowbridge will succeed Dr. A. M. Norton, president for the past three years. During Dr. Norton's administration many improvements have been made at the college and forward strides have been made in scholastic and athletic endeavors. It has not been announced where Dr. Norton will probably decide to locate, but his friends freely express the opinion that any institution that he may become connected with, and any college that he may head will grow and enjoy an era of progress.

In occupying an enviable position as an educator Mr. Trowbridge has many friends who recognize him as a man coming of parents of distinguished scholastic attainments and notable careers as educators. He was married in 1905 to Miss Emily Bond La-

He is now a candidate for the Ph. D. degree at the State University of Iowa, having completed his necessary residence and filed examinations for this honor.

He is a member of the National Educational Association, Phi Delta Kappa Fraternity, Southern Mountain Workers' Conference, Epworth League Board, and Board of Christian Literature.

He directed a Mountain Exhibit at the great Centenary Celebration of the Methodist Church at Columbus, Ohio, in 1919.

Mr. Trowbridge's name is listed in "Who's Who" in America, and will be listed in the forthcoming publications of "Who's Who in Education" and White's National Encyclopedia of American Biography.

Mr. Trowbridge's experience as an educator covers public school work in Missouri, Chair of Science at the Central College for Women at Lexington, Missouri; Chemistry at the Manual Training School of Washington University of St. Louis. He has been superintendent of the Vocational School at Brevard, North Carolina, since 1907, where he built the administration building and dormitory, supervised the finances, boarding house, farm, academic and vocational departments, and was director of county institutes and summer schools in Transylvania county. Under his administration, Brevard Institute has developed into one of the largest educational institutions in Western North Carolina.

In addition to his activities as a student and educator, Mr. Trowbridge is a well known writer on educational subject.—Citizen.

THE EASTER TIDINGS

Two angels sat in the empty tomb,
And one to the other said,
"We know that the Lord has risen again,
Though the whole world thinks Him dead.

"I wish I might go to the city now,
Where they weep in the upper room;
I could bring glad news to the faithful ones
That would drive away their gloom!

I should like to go to scribe and priest,
And the Roman in his hall,
And bid them look upon Him they pierced,
Who liveth, the Judge of all!

"And then I would go into all the world,
Wherever men draw breath,
And tell the news of the risen Christ,
And the broken gates of death."

Then the other sweetly answered him,
"Nay, God hath a better plan;
We may sit and point to the empty tomb,
But the word shall be borne by man!

"For that poor, sorrowful Magdalene,
Who wept when they laid Him here,
Shall bear the news to the faithful band
Lamenting their Master dear.

"And Peter, the man who feared and fled,
And mourneth in deep chagrin, Shall boldly stand before scribe and
priest,
Convincing them of their sin.

"And John and Andrew, and all the rest
Shall hasten forth with the word,
And soon shall the whole world hear the news
Of the slain and risen Lord!"

The years have come and the years have gone,
And centuries passed since then,
And still the angels are longing to go,
But the word must be borne by men.

And I think the Shining Ones marvel much,
As they gaze from the world above,
To see how slowly we spread the news
Of that sacrifice of love!
—Missionary Voice.

APRIL FIRST

The spring has come! Let us lay our ear close to the heart of nature and listen to the current of life pulsing with new courage, hope and effort, and open the eyes to see in field, forest and stream, new manifestations of life's energy, new creations bearing evidence that seeming death is but the pause of sleep between a yesterday and a tomorrow. Looking up
"from nature to nature's God," let us realize the fullness of the meaning of the angel's words: "He is risen!" ...
Thanks be to God, who gives us with Christ the victory over death and the grave! As surely as Christ lives today, so surely do our loved ones who have passed through the tomb live again. ... The three great eternities are life, love and truth, changed in form, unchanged in our deathless love, we shall meet and know each other as never before in the fullness of God's eternal truth.—Mary Helm, in the Lambuth-Bennett Book of Remembrance.

Dear Co-workers:

I am going to talk to you about our missionary society at King's Mountain, not because I feel that it is so worth telling about, but because it is probable that some other band of women is trying to solve the same problems and might find some aids to their solution in learning how we have solved them. If more societies will write about what they are doing I am sure we will be greatly benefitted and a better spirit of co-operation and enthusiasm will be fostered throughout the realm of woman's work.

We hold our meetings sometimes in the church but more often in the homes, especially during the cold months, as we find it more convenient and comfortable than seeing that the ladies' parlor is properly heated.
The attendance is better by this method, we find, also. We do not make a practice of serving refreshments, although occasionally we have a light course such as hot chocolate, candy or sandwiches. We urge the plan of paying our pledge up to date each month, so that it will not accumulate and be a burden at the end of the year.

We have a very interesting mission study group which has labored faithfully to get something from the books prescribed for our use. We have studied them as faithfully as we knew how, using the helps for leaders, and have had some splendid programs and much enthusiasm has been manifested. Especially have we enjoyed and found helpful the study of "Handicapped Winners," which we have just completed. As a rule, however, we have found the books not adapted to local needs and too complicated to hold the interest of the average group with limited leadership.

We completed the study of "Handicapped Winners" in two meetings by the following method: The stories in the book were assigned to members of the young people's society and told in their own words at the adult class meeting. Following this we had a round table discussion of local conditions among the negroes and ways by which we might help them and bring about a better spirit between the races. Several sacred selections, sung by the Fisk Jubilee Quartet, were played on the Victrola, after which light refreshments were served by the hostess. The same stories and storytellers were used later in a study of the book in the young people's society.

The greatest problem we have is that of securing a leader for our young people. At present we are using this plan, and although it is not an ideal one it has worked pretty well with us.
Our vice president has the work in charge and is responsible for the meetings. She has, however, the privilege of appointing a member of the adult society to get up the program each time and meet with the class. In this way we all take turns in working with the young people without sacrificing altogether the unified management.

We are going to have a Bible study class this spring with our pastor as leader and are looking forward with keen anticipation to the time when Brother Loyale will feel physically able to begin the class.

We have sent a box of linen to Brevard, given regular assistance to a widow and her family for several months, sent flowers in instances of bereavement, and our chairman of social service has inspected the county home and jail. We have a regular flower fund to which each member contributes at least 25 cents a year. We also have a sinking fund box in which each member puts as many pennies as she is years old at the meeting which occurs in the same month as her birthday.

We are planning to give a missionary pageant in the near future to awaken our church more fully to the meaning and scope of missions, and hope thereby to gain some new members. The idea of dividing our society into circles is at work in our minds and we would be glad to hear from others who are using this plan.

We ask that each of you pray that we may consecrate ourselves sufficiently to accomplish something worth while for the Master, for we realize that without consecration our efforts are vain. Yours in the work,
Mrs. E. W. Griffin,
Supt. Study and Publicity.

A CAPSULE SOCIAL

Friday afternoon at the parsonage, the home of Rev. and Mrs. A. S. Raper, the members of the Methodist Woman's Missionary Society gathered for an "at home" to all the ladies of the church.

A large number who braved the stormy weather and downpour of rain were amply paid by these few hours of pleasant fellowship together.

No set program was arranged other than the revelation of the little acts of kindnesses secretly performed to each other during the three months, since drawing their capsule friend. Each told of the attentions received and given since only one had any knowledge of her capsule friend, the fun was in the guessing. When the name of one of their faithful and much loved members, Miss Margaret Gaston, was mentioned and who passed into the great beyond since this pleasant scheme of kind acts was inaugurated, all rose and with bowed heads for a few minutes silence in her honor were then led in prayer by their pastor.
During the social hour music was dispersed from the Victrola and piano selections by Mrs. S. C. Cornwell while the hostess, Mrs. A. S. Raper, was assisted by Mrs. A. A. Willis and Miss Jonnie Detter in serving sandwiches and coffee.

Those present were Mesdames S. C. and C. C. Cornwell, G. W. Detter, Cora Altman, Sarah C. Rhyne, A. J. Beauchamp, G. W. Ballard, J. L. Rhyne, James Taylor, E. F. Friday, W. B.
Sims, E. N. Shell, A. A. Willis, Avery

IN JERUSALEM, JUDEA, SAMARIA

Not only do those at a distance need our home mission work, but it is equally needed right at our doors. Do you see that poor little outcast crouching in the alley corner because he has no home, driven to vice by misery? Do you see that poor, degraded woman whose heart often throbs with the agony of remorse and despair in the midst of her guilt? Do you see that criminal in his cell, embittered toward the world because not a soul in it cares for him? These are God's creatures.
Have you no care for them, and yet profess to be God's child?—Lucinda her own district secretary. The blanks for these formal reports are all in your corresponding secretary's record brand new report books which, once she has gotten it, every corresponding

IN OUR AUXILIARIES

Three years ago when we were appointed to take charge of this column for our conference, we were directed to discontinue publishing the lists of new officers after they were elected in the auxiliaries in December, for lack of space. There have been several times when we have broken over that rule, when there has been nothing of an urgent nature for that week, but usually we have more copy than we have room for. If you have a record of auxiliary work, or other items of interest, send them to us and we will gladly use them, but in all kindness we ask you not to ask us to publish only just a change of officers. Send your lists of officers to Mrs. F. S. Love, Wilson, who needs it to get her social service literature to you; to Mrs. J. Le-Grand Everett, Rockingham, who must mail you the Bulletin and literature concerning mission and Bible study; and to Mrs. W. F. Murphy, Wallace, N.
C., who will hereafter mail your program literature to you.

SUBSCRIBE NOW TO THE COUNCIL BULLETIN

The Council Bulletin, containing the full proceedings of the Council sessions to be held in Mobile, April 4-11, will be issued this year as usual. The first issue will contain a full account of the memorial service to our beloved late president, which will be held on Wednesday evening, April 4. Write your name and address plainly and send with 25 cents to Mrs. S. G. Barnett, Literature Headquarters, Lam-buth Building, Nashville, Tenn., and the Council Bulletin will be sent you as soon as it comes from the press.

NOTICE!

The eleventh annual meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of the

It is requested by the good women of Henderson who will entertain us that names of delegates be sent to Mrs. R. J. Corbitt, Henderson, N. C., during March. Their prompt attention of the auxiliaries to this will be much appreciated.

had given so many years of her life

North Carolina Conference

EDWIN S. YARBROUGH

"My wife says you had better not let her see you when you come to Henderson and, if she does, that she is going to sue you for 'the alienation of the affections of her husband.'" Whe-e-w! Your conference superintendent of Sunday school work is in a peck of trouble! Well, yes, of a sort. The fact of the business is that husband's affections have been somewhat inclined toward the great Sunday school cause for quite a while, and your superintendent of Sunday school work found it out and gave him a job.

The quotation at the head of this section of our "Who's Who in the Districts" is from the pen of Mr. Edwin S. Yarbrough, of Henderson, whose services as district Sunday school secretary of the Weldon district are so much in demand that he finds it difficult to spend a week-end at home. He has been quite active since assuming the district work soon after conference; he has been visiting one or more Sunday schools almost every Sunday and already has engagements ahead for every Sunday until the first Sunday in May.

Who is this new district secretary, anyhow? We have already said enough to convince readers of these columns that he's a hustler—a really interested, energetic, active friend of the Sunday school cause. Mr. Yarbrough was born in Caswell county August 18, 1881. His parents were farmers and whole-souled, energetic Christians—active workers in their churches. He was educated at Cary high school and Trinity College, being graduated from the latter institution in the class of 1902. From then until 1920 he was connected with the Erwin Cotton Mills Company at Duke. He was one of the organizers and the first superintendent of the Sunday school at Duke and held this position until he left there in 1920 to become president of the Henderson Hosiery Company. He has been and is active in his church at Henderson and is a member of the board of stewards. He is also a Rotarian, a public-spirited gentleman, and a man of influence. In fact, he's a "reg-lar feller."

TO SET HISTORY STRAIGHT

It has been the policy of the writer to refrain from publishing his trials and tribulations. To set history straight, however, it becomes necessary to deviate just a bit at this point and add a "postscript" to the item in these columns last week concerning our Creedmoor non-standard training school. That item was written Wednesday or Thursday, just a day or two before the close of the school. A statement was made to the effect that the rains came, the winds blew, and so on, and that all of this hardly slowed down the training enterprise. Well, this was just partly correct; it was correct so far as it went, chronologically, but it was a bit premature. That unlucky Friday night had not yet arrived, with its superabundance of rain, mud, and mired automobiles. In order to be able to carry on two jobs the same week, Professor Wilson and the writer made trips back and forth to Creedmoor each night—except Friday night. We started on time this time and finally got there, but too late for school (and only a handful of our pupils got there at all). When we finally did show up in the Granville town, we looked more like plasterers or wet fishermen than persons headed toward a Sunday school meeting, and our automobile was four or five miles outside the gates of the city stuck fast on a hillside.

Having set history straight and incidentally told something of our trials and tribulations, fairness, if nothing more, would lead us to add that Superintendent Boddie had a warm fire and a cozy corner for us when we finally arrived, that quite a few of those who enrolled completed the work and will receive certificates of credit on the standard training course, and the school is branded a success in spite of rains, roads, mud, mire, snakes, shivers, frost, frogs, and a few other things. If possible, however, we will try to pick a better week next time.

PROF. WILSON—BURLINGTON

Prof. R. N. Wilson, Durham district secretary, spent Sunday in Burlington in the interest of Sunday school work in general and the Alamance Standard Training School in particular. At the Sunday school hour he visited Webb Avenue and spoke briefly concerning the training school, and at 11 o'clock he addressed the Front Street congregation. The Alamance Training School, a standard training school for all our Methodist Sunday school workers and prospective workers, and any others who may desire to take advantage of this great training opportunity, will be held at Graham April 15-20.

ALAMANCE TRAINING SCHOOL

Programs of our Alamance Standard Training School have just come from the press and are being mailed out to quite a number of persons who are expected to attend. Standard courses will be offered and certificates of credit awarded to those who earn them. Following are the co-operating charges and pastors: Front Street, Burlington, Rev. W. B. North; Webb Avenue, Burlington, Rev. N. E. Coltrane; Burlington circuit, Rev. Lindsay Frazier; Graham-Haw River, Rev. G. M. Daniel; Mebane, Rev. N. C. Yearby; South Alamance, Rev. W. R. Hardesty. Rev. G. M. Daniel, chairman of the board of managers, reports pleasing prospects for a splendid enrollment.

FIRST DISTRICT CONFERENCE

The first district conference of the new year was the Fayetteville district conference at Sanford March 14-15, and although held a little earlier than such meetings are usually held, was quite a success. Every pastor was present, five of the charges had full delegations, and interest was fine. Rev. R. H. Willis, who is serving his first year as presiding elder of this district, kept things moving.

The conference was liberal with its time and attention devoted to its Sunday school interests. The writer was given about thirty minutes immediately before the noon recess Thursday in which to explain the official Programs of Work of Methodist Sunday schools, set forth Sunday school conditions in the district as revealed in the last annual conference journal, and propose certain objectives for the new year. Then just after the recess period the conference returned to the consideration of Sunday school matters, voted unanimously in favor of holding another Standard Training School at Fayetteville October 7-12 for the eastern half of the district and asked that a similar school be arranged for the western half of the district. This will be held at Jonesboro October 14-19, the week immediately following the Fayetteville date. The conference also adopted unanimously a resolution offered by Rev. O. I. Hinson, of Siler City, endorsing the Programs of Work and pledging members of the conference to the work of building up the Sunday school of the district to the point where they will measure up to the standard of efficiency set forth in the Programs of Work.

FAYETTEVILLE'S GROWTH

Fayetteville district made rather remarkable gains in Sunday school enrollment and efficiency last year. Whereas at the close of 1921 the enrollment for the district was 8,365, at the close of 1922 it was 10,498, an increase of 2,133, raising the percentage of Sunday school enrollment on church membership from 37 per cent to 81 per cent. And whereas in 1921 353 pupils joined the church, in 1922 there were 481, an increase of 128. By their fruits ye shall know them.

SECURE PROGRAMS OF WORK

Programs of Work were placed in six Sunday schools of the Fayetteville district in connection with our visit to the district conference at Sanford. Supt. T. W. Sprinkle, of Duke, ordered Program "C" for his school and expects to use it to good advantage in building up his school to a higher degree of efficiency, and Rev. J. A. Tharpe, of Roseboro, ordered five of the same type, one for each Sunday school of his charge.

FAISON-WARSAW SCHOOLS

We have also recently placed Programs of Work "C" in the Sunday school at Faison and also at Warsaw. Rev. C. M. Lance, the pastor, together with the superintendents, Mr. C. E. Weatherby and Mr. S. E. Butler, is thoroughly interested in making the schools more effective and in building them up to the points of efficiency set forth in the programs.

MOREHEAD CITY SCHOOL

About fifty Sunday school workers and prospective workers attended the non-standard training school held at Morehead City March 18-23. Rev. W. A. Cade and Miss Keene each taught a course, and two class periods were held every evening. An interesting social feature was held in connection with the school, the ladies serving refreshments between class periods.

NEXT SUNDAY IS EASTER

Next Sunday is Easter! On this day we celebrate the great fact that He is not dead but is risen. We celebrate the crowning event of the life of our Lord on earth. This will be a day of rejoicing. It will be a day, too, in which some of the crowning work of the Sunday school will be made manifest; many boys and girls will this day unite with the church and definitely dedicate their lives to the service of the risen and reigning Lord.

GLORIOUS!

The Gastonia Co-operative Standard Training School for Methodist and Presbyterian Sunday school workers has been grand and glorious. The enrollment has been over 300 with over 250 actually sticking throughout twelve sessions of each course of study. Not all of these have done all the work, but they have attended regularly. The credit students will be given next week. Gastonia has treated the faculty with much consideration. Presiding Elder Jordan and Pastor W. A. Lambeth have been untiring in their efforts to make the school a success. Our Presbyterian friends have not been left in the nice things done. The Business Women's class of First Presbyterian church entertained the whole training school one evening after the class work was over.

FILLING THE BILL

Prof. H. E. Spence, instructor in Organization and Administration of the Sunday school in our school, has been in great demand as an after dinner speaker and as a director of thought in public addresses. In addition to teaching twelve class periods during our present school he has made during the week eight public appearances and got away with it all in grand style. It seems that Gastonia is a thorough admirer of the inimitable Spence. Incidentally Trinity College has been favorably advertised as has also our training work. Spence is a great asset to our cause.

WEST END, GASTONIA

It was my pleasure Sunday morning, March 18th, to speak to the men's Bible class and then to the eleven o'clock congregation at West End, Gastonia, where Rev. D. W. Brown is doing such fine work. Brown has more tasty and thoughtful slogans placed about in his church than I have ever seen in any church anywhere. He believes that people learn more through what they see than what they hear and he is right. A year ago his church built quite an addition to the church and is now getting ready to build just as much more in addition. His church membership has over doubled in one year's time. Brown knows how to work out his troubles. He is a fellow who spends his time solving things rather than in discussing unpleasant situations. He is doing his great work up brown.

A HUSTLING CROWD

After the opening of our training school Sunday afternoon Brother R. H. Kennington, the hustling pastor of our growing congregation at Lowell, ran in for me and I had the pleasure of speaking to his people Sunday night in that splendid new church they have just built. It was a joy to note a new church built for the Sunday school departments as well as for the other good work it is to do. I have seen no church that meets the situation better. The cost of the building was less than $10,000. Brother Kennington, W N C SUN SCHL—TWO g flo as pastor, and Brother P. Rankin, as superintendent, are doing a great work. Bless their sweet souls! And better than they are the ones who so gladly follow their directions. Lowell is made up of a bunch of Christian hustlers.

MARION DISTRICT CONFERENCE

The Marion district conference began its first session at Rutherfordton Sunday night and closed on the following Wednesday, after a most profitable meeting. Monday night was set apart for the Sunday school anniversary, where to a large congregation the Sunday school report was read by Rev. R. C. Goforth and then discussed by your humble servant. Sunday school work is in great favor in the old Marion district and therefore it is always such a pleasure to meet with the brethren over there.

Rev. J. O. Erwin, our pastor at Rutherfordton, is arranging with the aid of his good laymen, among whom is the

Rheumatism and Indigestion

Practically all physicians and medical writers are agreed that there is a close relationship between Indigestion and Rheumatism. This view is substantiated by the fact that Shivar Spring Water, which is probably the best American mineral water for Dyspepsia and Indigestion, relieves Rheumatism and the Rheumatoid diseases, such as Gout, Sciatica, Neuralgia and Nervous Headache. Physicians who have studied this water and who have observed its effects in their practice believe that it relieves these maladies by rendering the digestion complete and perfect and thereby preventing the formation of those poisons which inflame the joints and irritate the nerves, and also by eliminating, through the kidneys, such poisons as have already been formed.

The following letters are interesting in this connection. Dr. Crosby writes: "I have tested your Spring Water in several cases of Rheumatism, Chronic Indigestion, Kidney and Bladder Troubles and in Nervous and Sick Headaches, and find that it has acted nicely in each case, and I believe that, if used continuously for a reasonable time will give permanent relief. It will purify the blood, relieve debility, stimulate the action of the Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, aiding them in throwing off all poisonous matter."

Dr. Avant writes: "I suffered for years with a most aggravating form of stomach disorder and consulted a number of our best local physicians, went to Baltimore and consulted specialists there and still I was not benefited. I had about despaired of living when I began to use Shivar Spring Water and in a short time was entirely relieved."

Editor Cunningham writes: "The water has done me more good than any medicine I have ever taken for Rheumatism. Am entirely free from pain."

Mr. McClain of South Carolina writes: "My wife has been a sufferer from Rheumatism and after drinking 20 gallons of your Mineral water was entirely relieved of the horrible disease."

Mr. Carter of Virginia writes: "Mrs. Carter has had enlarged joints upon her hands, caused by Rheumatism. Shivar Spring Water removed every trace of the enlargement. The water is simply excellent."

If you suffer from Rheumatism, Indigestion or from any curable disease accept the guarantee offer below by signing your name. Clip and mail to Shivar Springs, Box 4 D, Shelton, S. C.

Gentlemen:

I accept your offer and enclose herewith three dollars for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Water. I agree to give it a fair trial, in accordance with instructions contained in booklet you will send, and if I report no benefit you agree to refund the price of the water in full upon receipt of the two empty demijohns which I agree to return within a month.

THE WAY

By Lina Covington Harrell.

The cross I bear seems hard to me,
Until I glimpse lone Calvary.

Beneath life's jeers my head must bow,
But for that patient, thorn-crowned brow.

The world derides my best—my all;
'Gainst His lips too they pressed the gall.

Long hours of lonely misery
Recall that dark Gethsemane.

Weary and spent, each day I grope
To touch that tortured hand of hope.

And from the cross His voice I hear—
"I give my spirit to Thy care."

Lo, then the night fades into day!
A risen Lord shows me the way.

THE METHODIST ORPHANAGE

LaGrange opened its doors and heart to our Orphanage singing class the second Sunday. Brother R. E. Pittman, the successful and much beloved pastor, together with the members, made elaborate preparations for the coming of the class. On Sunday morning the church was crowded with an enthusiastic congregation. The attention was, fine all the way through the program. The many expressions of approval made glad the hearts of our class. The homes of the congregation were thrown wide open for our entertainment. I was happy to be guest of Brother R. E. Pittman. He and his devoted wife did much to make my brief visit one of real joy. Brother Pittman is doing a constructive work, and is getting gratifying results. It is encouraging to see a man who is on his job and bringing things to pass. LaGrange and Lenoir county were hit hard in a financial way last year, but our friends are not going to neglect or forsake the claims of our beloved Methodist Orphanage. They know our needs and are manifesting a real spirit of sacrifice in order to make our work a success.

* * * *

The coming of Easter brings to us a large number of our former sons and daughters. A very interesting program has been prepared for the Easter holiday. Invitations have been sent to all of the old boys and girls whose address we were able to secure. What a happy time it will be for those dear old boys and girls to meet again and talk over the rich experiences they had in their Methodist Orphanage home. Most of them realize now more keenly what the home meant to them than they did while here. A deep sense of genuine gratitude is felt in their hearts for the Christian training which they received at the hands of their devoted teachers and matrons. The children who are now members of the Orphanage household enjoy immensely the coming of their older brothers and sisters. They hear them relate their experiences at the orphanage and how much they owe the orphanage for their success in life. Frequently the returned sons and daughters tell those who are here now that they have the best home in the world and that they ought to appreciate it and stand loyally by it in all things. So the Methodist Orphanage Alumni Association benefits both those who remain as well as those who have gone out into the big world to make for themselves a name worthy of the spirit and ideals of their alma mater.

One of the largest congregations that has ever greeted our class was present the second Sunday night at the Queen Street Methodist church in Kinston. The main auditorium and all the galleries were filled. The immense audience received the sacred concert with evident satisfaction and with a degree of enthusiasm. Rev. C. K. Proctor welcomed us as a father who welcomes his own sons and daughters back home again after a long separation. He is one of our favorites at the Orphanage. Twice he has held our annual revival and has contributed largely to the spiritual enrichment of the lives of our boys and girls. He is not only held in the highest esteem by the children and officers, but greatly beloved by every one of us. We have no better friend anywhere than Proctor. It is a source of genuine joy to see him filling a position of such commanding influence and power with such acceptability. He is preaching to growing congregations and the most complimentary remarks are being made about his sermons by the leading members.

It would be impossible for me to over-state the gracious hospitality I received at the hands of Mr. and Mrs. Felix Harvey at their palatial home. It is one among the most beautiful in the state. Whoever is entertained there will never forget the fellowship experienced. Two of our daughters, who are members of the singing class, were also entertained by these good friends of our cause. Of course I was happy over a remark Mrs. Harvey made about the two girls mentioned. She said she had had many young people visit her home, but had never had any who were more refined and lady-like than our two orphanage girls. Wherever we go the common verdict is that our boys and girls are not institutionalized, but happy normal children with high ideals and a serious purpose in life. No higher compliment could be paid our Orphanage than to have such things said of us. Wherever we go all erroneous ideas about our orphanage are scattered to the four corners of the earth. It has become a common expression among the thinking people of the conference that our children are being trained better than nine-tenths of the children in private homes.

I cannot close this paragraph without thanking our friends who so kindly took our children to Goldsboro early Monday morning in time for them to take the 6:45 train for Raleigh. It is no little undertaking to take a party of nineteen a distance of thirty miles for such an early train. Yet our Kinston friends did that in such a beautiful spirit. When I reached the church at 5:15 Monday a. m. a crowd of men were there with cars to take our class to Goldsboro and on every face was a happy smile. I call that just fine! With such a warm reception and a gracious send-off is it passing strange that our class should sing the praises of Proctor and the membership of a queenly church?

THE CHILDREN'S HOME

There are many signs and sounds of spring on The Home hill and farm. There is a warm red prophecy of coming leaf in the treetops, a fresher green in the turf, venturesome pink peach blossoms, and a wealth of yellow and white in the early flowering golden bell and spireas.

And the morning chorus of the birds in the pinetops has swelled to a grand concert of many new notes. I wish I knew the different singers well enough to name them for you. If I had the ear and eye of a John Burroughs, for instance, I could write a whole chapter on the birds that visit The Home in the spring, and what is more, you would be charmed to read it.

There is a little owl that sings every night in a pinetop above my window in low continuous quavers. Probably he is telling his mate what he thinks of the warm spring winds, the silvery moonlight, and the prospects of nest building.

Perhaps you might not think there is music in the voice of the frogs, singing along the branches every night now, but it sounds so hopeful and sure of the early coming of warm weather that we would be sorry to miss the familiar sound from the spring.

A lady once offered Thoreau a biography of Dr. Chalmers to read, but he didn't seem to care to take time to read it, and the lady commented on the amazing fact that Thoreau spent half hours at a time listening at the frogs croak! It all depends on being able to understand what you hear.

* * * *

Even the hum of the sewing machine has a sound of deeper interest at this season, for the girls are all thinking of the early prospect of new spring dresses, and the sewing room is working full time to get as many dresses made as possible by Easter, when spring hats will be worn for the first time. If there is anything more delightful to a young girl than wearing a new spring hat and dress, it remains to be discovered.

* * * *

There have been some pretty dresses sent in by the kind friends who are clothing individual children. A whole dozen of attractive dresses and other things came in one lot last week for little Charlie H., who has been adopted by a Lexington missionary society. The little touches of hand work show that a lot of sympathetic love, as well as excellent taste and skillful sewing, went into those garments for a little six-year-old girl. There was a brown linen dress worked in cross stitch of darker brown, lavender crepe with white organdie collar and sash, an orange linene worked in black, a blue soisette trimmed in white organdie ruffles, a light blue gingham worked in black and yellow, a green gingham worked in pink and other gingham of simple and pretty design and trimming.

* * * *

One of the little boys, too, got a nice box containing two play suits of khaki and a nice serge suit for best wear, a very becoming hat of dark blue straw and another to wear at play, three suits of summer underwear and some playthings and candy.

* * * *

Sometimes there is inquiry made as to whether, in sending extra pretty clothes to individual children, if they do not excite envy and discontent in the others. It does not seem to work that way. The children seem to get pleasure in seeing pretty things on each other. Besides, the sewing room turns out attractive garments, too, and Miss Goodnight is teaching the sewing girls to add the hand touches that make for artistic effect.

I asked the children to help me find news items for The Home page in the Advocate. Here are some they brought in:

Miss Ivey, our school teacher, gives her room a birthday party each month. This month we had it last Thursday. There were candy Easter eggs on each desk. We played games with the eggs. One game was to try to throw a candy egg into a glass jar. The one who could throw an egg into the jar got ten eggs. If it went inside a string circle around the jar you got five.

Another game was to try to carry some candy on a knife blade from one chair to another while someone counted twenty-five. Marquis Wood.

Some students from Salem College have been coming over occasionally to entertain the smaller children by teaching them new games to play.

Each school grade at The Home is trying to get up some flowers and plants for their rooms in the new school building.

The seventh grade has been having drawing lessons and hopes to have some work done well enough to use in our new room when we move in.

Myrtle Cox.

In our grade we have been writing compositions on some European country. I chose Holland. It is a very interesting country. Leta Marr.

* * * *

The boys are having a lot of fun playing peggy now.

John M. took a load of chairs to the new school building a few days ago.

James Rink.

Sixteen of the girls at the Smith Cottage are planning to plant flower gardens this summer. Miss Huitt, our matron, bought us some flower seed.

Dorothy Hartman.

We are going to plant poppies and petunias and tulips in our gardens. We have violets in bloom.

We have been making "clean up" posters in our room at school.

The superintendent has attended district conferences at Elkin, Rutherfordton and Catawba.

While on his last trip he visited the Southern Desk Company at Hickory. He was informed that the desks for the new school building would be shipped in a few days. Mr. G. F. Ivey, who is the head of the Southern Desk Company, is a trustee of the Children's Home. The chairs for the auditorium were also bought from Hickory and will follow the desks soon.

We hope to be using the school house in a few weeks. It will be nice to have a suitable place in which to hold commencement exercises. Last year school closing exercises were held on the lawn, and the clouds and threatening rain kept away the crowd and made the rest of us uncomfortably anxious. But before commencement there will be several weeks of school in the new school house, for we are to have ten months school this year.

Martha M. Wood.

OUR LITTLE FOLKS

BIDDY'S EASTER EGGS

The topknot biddy with yellow legs
Was Harry's, and every morn
He gave her orders for Easter eggs, While he scattered the oats and corn.
Day by day for a week he fed
Rations of every hue:
Chosen ears of yellow and red
And squaw corn white and blue.

"Now, Biddy Topknot," I heard him say,
"Easter will be here soon.
A dozen eggs at least you must lay
By tomorrow afternoon:
Red ones, Biddy, the nicest kind,
And yellow and blue, real bright,
Speckled and striped and spotted.
Now mind
Zat you make 'em zackly right."

But in spite of feeding and coaxing, too,
His biddy would only lay,
Instead of red and yellow and blue,
Just one white egg a day.
And Harry's patience was sorely tried,
But he waited and watched the nest
And stroked his biddy and softly sighed:
"I fink she will do her best."

On Easter morning wasn't it fun
To look at him through a crack?
He went to the nest, as he'd often done,
But soon came capering back
With his apron full of Easter eggs,
Striped and speckled and gay.
The topknot biddy with the yellow legs
Was petted and praised that day.

He told mamma just how it befell;
She listened again and again.
'Twas such a pleasure to hear him dwell
On the skill of his wonderful hen.
And when he had gone to share his prize
With Susy and Katy and Ned,
The dear mamma looked ever so wise,
But never a word she said.
—Zion's Herald.

THE SQUEAKY CHAIR

A queer old rocking-chair there stands
Right by my little bed;
It has a cover on the back
With yellow flowers and red,
And when I have been very good
And said my prayers all right,
I go to Katie and I say:
"Rock me to sleep tonight?"

(I'm awfully big to rock to sleep,
I'm nearly half-past five).
Then Katie says: "Why, baby's back,
As sure as I'm alive."
But then she takes me on her lap,
Although my legs hang down,
And laughs and says: "Now, baby dear,
We're off to Sleepy Town."

"Eenk—awnk, eenk—awnk," the old chair goes.
It has an awful squeak.
"Eenk—awnk, eenk—awnk," I try to talk,
But I—forget—to—speak.
"Eenk—awnk, eenk—awnk," the old chair says.
From some place far and deep
I hear it call, "Eenk—awnk—eenk—awnk,"
And then I go to sleep.
—Mary Fanny Youngs, in Zion's Herald.

ARE ALL THE CHILDREN IN?

Are all the children in? The night is falling,
And storm-clouds gather in the threatening west;
The lowing cattle seek a friendly shelter;
The bird hies away to her nest;
The thunder crashes; wilder grows the tempest;
And darkness settles o'er the fearful
ain;

Come, shut the door and gather round the hearthstone,
Are all the children in?

Are all the children in? The night is falling,
When gilded sin doth walk about the streets.
For, "at last it biteth like a serpent."
Poisoned are the stolen sweets.
Oh, parents, guard the feet of inexperience,
'Too prone to wander in the paths of sin!
Oh, shut the door of love against temptation!
Are all the children in?

BUNNY'S DISOBEDIENCE

"Mother," called little Bunny Rabbit,
"I want to go into Mr. Brown's garden and get some cabbage."
"You must not," replied Mother Rabbit. "It doesn't belong to us; so you must not take any of it."
Little Bunny Rabbit hopped out of the tunnel that his father had dug under the ground to their house. He was disappointed. The cabbage leaves in the garden looked tempting, and, oh, how good they would taste!

He sat in a corner of the field near the garden and smelled the delicious odor of the cabbage leaves. He wrinkled his nose and hopped up.
"O pshaw!" he exclaimed. "Mother's always saying not to do this and not to do that. What harm will it do if I crawl under the fence and eat a few of the leaves? No one's about, and mother will never know."

Little Bunny Rabbit sneaked into the garden. He hid under a great cabbage leaf and nibbled until he thought he couldn't nibble any more. Then he crawled out of the garden.

Bunny Rabbit sneaked along the fence until he began to feel sleepy and tired. Soon he came to a bunch of clover where he thought he would lie down and take a nap.

"Wasn't I smart?" said little Bunny and smiled to himself. "No one saw me get the cabbage, and no one will ever know—"

Then Bunny Rabbit's eyes began to open, and he felt a dreadful pain inside. He rolled over on the ground, but the pain did not go away, and little Bunny Rabbit felt very sick.

He tried to crawl home, but he was weak and had a long way to go; and all the time he kept thinking what he should tell his mother. He didn't want to say anything about the cabbage that he had been forbidden to eat but that he had eaten anyway.
How he wished now that he hadn't gone into Mr. Brown's garden at all but had joined his brother and sister in the clover field and eaten a breakfast of clover! Then he would have been all right.

"Help! I'm sick!" cried Bunny Rabbit when he reached his home.

Mother Rabbit came out of the house in a hurry, and after she had looked at her son she told his brother,
Gray Rabbit, to run for Doctor Jack.
Little Bunny Rabbit groaned at those words.

Pretty soon Dr. Jack Rabbit came with his medicine chest, and after he had made little Bunny Rabbit open his mouth he stuck a spoon into it. Then old Dr. Jack shook his head until his glasses fell off his nose.

"A pill," said the doctor. "That's what you have to take when you are naughty."

"What has Bunny Rabbit done?"
asked Mrs. Rabbit anxiously.

"Eaten too much cabbage," answered Doctor Jack, "but this pill will cure him all right."

Little Bunny Rabbit felt very much ashamed of himself. And when he swallowed the pill, which had a terribly bad taste, he was sorrier than ever that he had been disobedient.

"O dear!" he whispered to himself.
"It will be a long time before I eat any more cabbage."—Frank A. Halverson, in Youth's Companion.

TED'S EASTER EGGS

Ted tried to find some new way for everything he did. He had even been known to put on his jacket wrong side out "just for a change."

So it was not strange that when he happened to think of Easter he went to mother one day early in March to ask if she could not find some new way to fix his Easter eggs that year.
"For," said he, "I've had them dyed, and I've had them painted."

Mother thought a minute and said she believed she knew a plan that would just suit him. It would be a good deal of work, she said, but she would not mind that for a boy who was always ready to bing in wood and nearly always remembered to wipe his shoes when it was muddy. Mother went on to explain that she would begin right away and employ an assistant who would give her whole time to it until Easter. Ted opened his eyes pretty wide at that, and within half an hour he had filled the big wood box heaping full.

Ted was rather surprised in the next three weeks that he did not see anything of mother's assistant. But he knew she would do whatever she promised; so he carried a great deal of wood and wiped his shoes very clean and asked no questions.

On Easter morning he began to hunt for the eggs as usual. He looked all over the house and finally went to the woodshed. There he found mother bending over a box, and he heard a little twitter and chir-r-r that seemed to come from the box. As soon as he noticed that he forgot his eggs for a minute and hurried to see what it meant. There was his Easter surprise.

He thought he had never seen a prettier sight than the nest full of tiny, downy chicks, all huddled together and trying to get under one another's wings and chirping for the mother hen. And they were his!

"O mother!" cried Ted. "Those are my Easter eggs, I do believe!" And he gave her a good lug on the spot.
"But where's your assistant? I thought you were going to employ one.
I haven't seen her yet."

"Right here," said mother, turning over a big pail and letting the proud, fussy little mother hurry to the box to cuddle her ten babies. "Just the most faithful assistant you could imagine,

Mrs. Biddie Bantam, Ted, and I'll advise you to employ her right along."—

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORK

fine young man, J. C. Cowan, Jr., superintendent of the constantly growing Sunday school, to build at a near date a commodious new church, and it was my pleasure to talk plans with the building committee. Rutherfordton is going to do the thing right.

STATESVILLE DISTRICT CONFERENCE

It was hard to leave our training school again, but the Statesville district conference was too important to miss and so I ran over to Catawba Wednesday, March 20th, to keep in touch with our good people and the good work they are doing in the hub of our conference. After meeting with the Sunday school committee in the afternoon the cause was presented at night. Rev. C. S. Kirkpatrick read the Sunday school report, one of its provisions being that the Statesville district will find during this year 2,000 new Sunday school scholars.

LISTEN!

Our Hickory school prospects are growing encouragingly. At a meeting of the pastors during the recent district conference at Catawba it was learned that in addition to Lenoir, Rutherford College, Granite Falls, Westview and Newton, other points would join to make the school larger and better. Catawba, Ball's Creek, Maiden, Hudson, South Lenoir and Dudley Shoals charges will, through the efforts of their pastors and superintendents, send groups to the Hickory Co-operative Standard Training School, which open in the First Methodist church, at Hickory, Sunday afternoon, April 8.

SUNDAY SCHOOL DAY

Paragraph 393 of our "Discipline" says, "Let every Sunday school observe with appropriate services the third Sunday in April, or as near thereto as practicable, as Sunday School Day, and take an offering for Sunday school work, to be forwarded to the treasurer of the Conference Sunday School Board."

It is earnestly hoped that our schools are getting ready to do this very thing. Let's have a big Sunday School Day Honor Roll this year. You might just get ready to look for the first installment of this honor roll just after the third Sunday. We have a growing number of those who never disappoint us.

TRINITY, GASTONIA

Trinity congregation, in South Gastonia, has for several years worshipped in a school house. But soon a new order of things will prevail, for a nice new church is in the course of construction, one that will have department rooms for Beginners, Primaries, Juniors, Intermediate-Seniors and a main auditorium for the Young People-Adults. In addition to this the church will house a good library and a pastor's study. Brother M. W. Heckard is wisely leading this work. Today we have collaborated with him in two conferences, one with Elder Jordan, Parson Lambeth and Rouser Spence, and the other with Heckard's building committee. Brother Heckard is just getting out from an attack of the measles which prevented his attendance upon the sessions of our Gastonia training school. But Heckard takes all the opportunities offered and will be ready to get the others as they come.

It is not a minister's wisdom but his conviction which imparts itself to others. Nothing gives life but life. Real flame alone kindles other flame; this was the power of the apostles: "We believe and therefore speak." Firm faith in what they spoke, that was the basis of the apostles' strength.—F. W. Robertson.

IF SICK TODAY! TAKE NO CALOMEL

"Dodson's Liver Tone" Straightens You Up Better Than Salivating, Dangerous Calomel and Doesn't Upset You—Don't Lose a Day's Work—Read Guarantee

I discovered a vegetable compound that does the work of dangerous, sickening calomel and I want every reader of this paper to buy a bottle for a few cents and if it doesn't straighten you up better and quicker than salivating calomel just go back to the store and get your money back.

I guarantee that one spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone will put your sluggish liver to work and clean your thirty feet of bowels of the sour bile and constipation poison which is clogging your system and making you feel miserable.

I guarantee that one spoonful of this harmless liquid liver medicine will relieve the headache, biliousness, coated tongue, ague, malaria, sour stomach or any other distress caused by a torpid liver as quickly as a dose of vile, nauseating calomel, besides it will not make you sick or keep you from a day's work.

Calomel is poison—it's mercury—it attacks the bones, often causing rheumatism. Calomel is dangerous. It sickens—while my Dodson's Liver Tone is safe, pleasant and harmless. Eat anything afterwards, because it can not salivate. Give it to the children because it doesn't upset the stomach or shock the liver. Take a spoonful tonight and wake up feeling fine and ready for a full day's work.

THIRTEEN MILLION DOLLARS IN CHURCH VALUES

The value of property belonging to the Methodist Church in North Carolina exceeds $13,000,000. On this vast amount of property there is only $3,000,000 of insurance—less than one-fourth of its value protected.

Suppose you had stock in a furniture factory one-fourth protected from fire, what would you do? You would either sell, or hold the directors responsible.

See that your church officials protect your most valuable assets or you may be called upon to donate again to rebuild a church parsonage destroyed by fire.

IN MEMORIAM

WESTBROOK — Death entered Woodland M. E. church on Pink Hill charge and removed from our midst Bro. Duffy Westbrook. A good man has gone from us to his reward. He leaves a wife, two small children, father and mother, sisters, and a host of friends to mourn their loss but his gain. He joined the Methodist church in April, 1914, and remained faithful to the day of his death, January 17, 1923.
R. W. Barfield, P. C.

GARRETT—Mrs. Harriet Anne Garrett was a faithful member of the Methodist church at Brooksdale and was the oldest member at the time of her death. She was converted when young and joined the Methodist church at Allensville, later removing her membership to Brooksdale. Three children, Mrs. C. G. Daniel, William H. and Charles P. Garrett, survive. Not only they but others who knew her, rise up to call her blessed. Truly a mother in Israel has fallen, but to rise victorious.
B. T. Hurley.

FULCHER—Norman Talmage, infant of Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Fulcher of Buxton, N. C., was born in May, 1922, blessed and brightened their home for six months and died in November, leaving a void never to be filled in this world. While we sorrow with them in their affliction, we rejoice in the fact of a deeper consecration in their lives and a closer walk with God. We bow in submission to the will of Him who said "Suffer the children to come unto me, for of such is the kingdom of heaven."
J. M. Jolliff, Pastor.

STOWE—Ira Stowe was born May 23, 1845, died February 5, 1923. He joined the M. E. Church, South, Hatteras, N. C., about fifty years ago, later transferring his membership to the M. E. church. Brother Stowe led a very quiet life, loved and respected by the entire community. He leaves a wife 87 years old and blind, and several children and grandchildren. He was known as one of the best surfmen on the coast and a real friend to man. Sweet be thy rest.
J. M. Jolliff.

BURCH—Death came into the midst of our young people and took away on New Year's day Miss Virginia Burch. Her body was laid to rest in the family cemetery near Roxboro the following day, January 2, 1923. The funeral services were conducted by her pastor, assisted by Rev. B. C. Thompson of the Person circuit. Virginia was a member of Allenville Methodist church, a devout Christian character, and loved by all who knew her. She was born July 25, 1907. She leaves behind two brothers and four sisters to greet her parents and other loved ones who have gone on before.
B. T. Hurley.

MOTON—God never makes a mistake, so when on March 5, 1923, the death angel entered the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Moton and plucked from their arms their only son, we feel 'tis but right that we humbly submit to the will of Him who said, "Suffer little children to come unto me and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of heaven." Such a little while ago little Raymond was only a little bud of not quite four months, but this morning a full blown rose in God's garden awaiting the coming of father and mother; and may each one realize that he was too pure for earth, just fit for heaven. Nellie Sherrill.

AUSTIN—H. B. Austin was born in Dare county, N. C., August 31, 1855; died February 1, 1923. Brother Austin joined church under the ministry of Rev. W. E. Troutman in 1908, having been a sailor in his early life. We found him in the stewardship at Frisco, and I believe he tried to meet the requirements of that office. The prevailing opinion is that he was a man of solid piety. His door opened wide to receive the preacher. The writer has indeed lost a friend, but we shall see him again. He leaves a wife, one brother, six children (all married) and several grandchildren, and a whole community to lament his going. Good-night, dear friend, we'll meet you in the morning.
J. M. Jolliff, Pastor.

GILLIAM—A. M. Gilliam was born in October, 1837, in Union county, N. C., and went home to heaven February 13, 1923, being a little over 85 years old. He joined the Methodist church at 12 years of age, and has been a consistent, faithful and useful member for over 73 years. His was a life wholly given to the service of God, and he will live on with God and in the hearts of those who knew him. He leaves a wife, two sons and three daughters. May the Lord comfort the bereaved ones and prepare them to meet him above.
R. A. Swaringen, P. C.

DAIL—Mrs. W. H. Dail was born August 10, 1848; was married to Mr. W. H. Dail when 18 years of age. Sister Dail joined the Methodist church when young and remained a faithful member until her death. For several years Sister Dail was not able to attend her church, but she was ever willing to do her part. For a member of years, as long as Sister Dail was able to make her own money, she had her tithing box, and one of the things she did with this tenth was to take care of an orphan. For quite a number of years Sister Dail was treasurer of her missionary society.
Sister Dail died January 1, 1923. She leaves several children and other loved ones and many friends to mourn her death.
Her pastor,
C. T. Rogers.

Mitchell—Sister Mary Mitchell was born February 13, 1835. She departed this life November 20, 1922. Most of her life was spent in Asheville, N. C., where she served well her church and community, being a consistent member of the M. E. Church, South, for more than sixty years. She had many friends who will miss her, for she was kind and affectionate toward all. She was twice married and outlived both her husbands. Her last request was to be buried by her first husband, who died in the war between the states, Mr. Andrew Cooper. She was a kind and loving sister, always standing for peace and right. She loved her church, she loved her home, she loved all her many friends, and appreciated all that was done for her to the last days of her life.
Her only sister,
Mrs. J. H. Pinner.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT
Whereas, on February 27, 1923, one of our most faithful and loyal members, Miss Grace Harrington, was suddenly called from this life of service to that greater life above; therefore be it resolved:
First, That we, members of Poplar Springs Sunday school, bow in humble submission to the plan of our God.
Second, That though we shall miss her we hold in great remembrance her faithfulness to duty and commend to all her Christian life.
Third, That we extend to the family our deepest sympathy in their sorrow which is our sorrow.
Fourth, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, to the county papers and North Carolina Christian Advocate.
Mrs. Paul Kelly,
Miss Lulu Campbell,
E. C. Brown,
Committee.

PARIS—On Sunday morning, January 20, 1923, God called one of our most faithful workers, Mr. W. H. M. Parris. He was sick ten days preceding his death. He died of appendicitis, and during his last illness suffered much, yet he did not complain. All the time he was very patient. Brother Parris was born July 20, 1852. He joined the Methodist church in his youth and remained a faithful member until his death. During this time he held the office of district superintendent for a number of years. This position he filled with great loyalty to the church. He is survived by two brothers and two sisters—Mr. P. C. Paris, Mrs. Sarah Velamar, Mrs. Julie Muse, all of Pamlico, N. C., and Elder Z. Paris of Marion, N. C.
The funeral was conducted by Rev. O. P. Fitzgerald and his body laid to rest in the cemetery of the M. E. church. May God richly bless and comfort the bereaved and make them to realize that heaven is made brighter by their loss and that they may meet again "some sweet day."
Mrs. Sarah Velamar.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT
Whereas, the Supreme Architect of the universe has deemed best in His infinite wisdom to call from our midst our beloved friend, Mrs. W. H. Dail, Sr. Be it resolved, That while we, the members of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Methodist church, bow submissively to the will of the great God who called her; still we mourn the loss of our friend, who was the oldest member of our society.
That we extend our deepest sympathy to the members of her family who survive, and join them in commending her spirit to the God who gave it.
That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of our society, a copy sent to the relatives of the deceased, and copies sent to the Missionary Voice and the Standard Laconic for publication.
Mrs. Mark Lasitter,
Mrs. S. H. Hicks,
Mrs. J. G. Anderson,
Committee.

WRENN—Mrs. Minnie W. Wrenn, the devoted wife of William W. Wrenn, was born July 12, 1874, and died at her home near Roxboro February 21, 1923, of pneumonia. She was ill only a short time, hence her death was a shock to the community. She was aware that the grim reaper was near, and being perfectly rational, made plans for her funeral, talked with those at her bedside about her home over yonder to which she was going, saying that she was ready and had no fears, and with her weak voice sang hymns with the family. Truly she died in the faith in which she had lived for more than a quarter of a century. Sister Wrenn was a faithful and consistent member of Brooksdale Methodist church. The church and community as well as her family, will miss her.
She being surrounded with a host of friends and admirers, a devoted family, congenial and happy, and living in a home with all the necessary comforts, yet she had many great sorrows through which she had to pass. Only a year ago she had to give up her young son who was just approaching manhood. This was a great blow to her, and while she was submissive and resigned to the will of God, it was too great a shock for her delicate constitution, and she never completely recovered from it. She leaves behind her husband, eight children and one brother to mourn her passing. May God's grace be abounding in this time of their great grief and need.
B. T. Hurley.

BERRY—On Thursday morning, February 15, 1923, the death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Berry and took from them their son, Rupert Berry. He was sick with pneumonia but a short while. His suffering was great, but he bore it with patience.
He leaves behind to mourn their loss father, mother, four sisters, four brothers and many friends and relatives. Home is sad, O God, how dreary; Lonesome, lonesome, every spot. Listening for his voice still weary—Weary, for I hear it not.
Just when his life was brightest, Just when his hopes were best, He was taken from this world of pain To a home of eternal rest.
He was laid to rest in the family burying ground to sweetly sleep till the final resurrection. Peace to his soul.
Lillian Gibbs.

CARR—Lubley Carr was born March 28, 1883; was married to Fannie Dail January 15, 1911. To them were born five children, all dying in infancy. Brother Carr joined the Methodist church when quite young and remained a faithful member until his death. His place in church and Sunday school was never vacant unless kept away by sickness. Everyone had so much confidence in Brother Carr, and knew he was walking in his heavenly Father's footsteps. Brother Carr died December 27, 1922, in the Kinston hospital with an abscess of the brain. He said he was not afraid to die, and though very sick he would have his devoted wife to read from God's holy word. Brother Carr leaves besides a devoted wife seven brothers and five sisters, a father and a step-mother. He lived well and died triumphantly.
His pastor,
C. T. Rogers.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT
Whereas, God in His wisdom has seen fit to remove from our midst one of our much loved members, Mrs. Ida Munn, and whereas, the Woman's Missionary Society of the Methodist church of Pilot Mountain wishes to place upon record an expression of their affection for her; therefore be it resolved:
First, That we feel a sense of personal bereavement in the loss of our dear friend and that we extend to each of her children our heartfelt sympathy and pray that the loving Father may manifest to them, the continuous presence of His Holy Spirit and supply them with sufficient grace in their great grief.
Second, That we rejoice in the belief that her earthly life, after her conversion and joining of the Methodist church, was wholly given to the service of the Master whom she loved so devotedly.
Sister Nunn was never absent from her place in church, Sunday school, prayer service or missionary meeting. She told her Sunday school leader not long before she was taken away that she had never missed a Sunday school service since she joined her class, and hoped she would be able to attend until the close of the year, which she did, her death coming suddenly on the last day of the year.
Third, That these resolutions be recorded on our minutes, that a copy be sent to the Christian Advocate and a copy to the grief-stricken family.
Mrs. R. E. Worth,
Mrs. L. M. Snider,
Mrs. Chas. E. Hiatt.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT
Whereas, God in His great love and wisdom has removed from the home of Mr. and Mrs. N. J. Boddie the sweetest and brightest ray of sunshine in taking to Himself dear little John Thomas, who so blessed that home with its short sweet life.
Resolved First, because of his bright, sweet disposition we feel that he was the idol of the home. He never seemed afraid of anyone, because his white dimpled little hands were always laughingly extended to any who offered to take him. Truly we all loved him and are thankful for his dear short life of six months.
Second, We know that God so often takes from us our sweetest and best, but it is to make heaven. What on honor that God, our heavenly Father, selects from among us to make that eternal home.
Third, That we extend to the family our heartfelt sympathy and love in this sad hour of bereavement, knowing that "sometime we'll understand."
Fourth, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of our Sunday school of which he was a cradle roll member, a copy sent to the family, one to the Creedmoor Times, and one to the N. C. Christian Advocate.
Mrs. V. A. Royall,
Maye Moss,
G. H. Dow,
Committee.

KING—James Frederick King was born in Columbus county, North Carolina, September 17, 1850, and died at Asheville November 8, 1922. In 1877 he was married to Miss Eliza King, who passed away a few years ago. Surviving him are his three daughters, Mrs. J. H. Hinyard, Mrs. R. E. Lewis, Mrs. Thomas G. Curtis, and one son, W. L. King; also two sisters and three brothers. He gave his heart to the Lord when he was eleven years old and joined Waymen Methodist church and continued in its fellowship all the rest of his life. He was ever faithful in serving the church and his Lord. For twelve years he was superintendent of the Sunday school.
Brother King was of that meek and quiet spirit which is in the sight of God of great price. It was my pleasure to minister to him during the last year of his life. Although weak in body he was a constant attendant upon Sunday services. It was good to see his face light up with joy in the hours of worship. He loved all that was high and holy and delighted in the companionship of Christian people. He died as he had lived—in the faith. We shall find him waiting in the Father's house.

EDITORIAL PARAGRAPHS

Preachers have to bear the brunt of the stories about public speakers. But here is one on the lawyer. A young lawyer in defending a foreigner in the courts put forth his best efforts and secured an acquittal for his client, whereupon the appreciative alien who was not familiar with the finer distinctions of the English tongue approached his attorney with these words of appreciation: "Tanks! That was a pretty fine noise you make."

The sermon is not a machine put together like a Ford car, even if a Ford has a good motor in it. Sermons, frequently, do not have so much as going power. Neither is it a toy that runs a circular track, or crys like a kitten or a rabbit to amuse children. Yet some people seem to think that the object of a sermon is to amuse folks, to entertain the "babes in Christ." A sermon is a living organism that has grown out of the fertile soil of the preacher's life and character and that has been watered with the warm blood of a great heart. It is a tree with flowers and fruit and its very leaves are for the healing of the nation. Under its shade the weary traveler may find rest for his soul. "A good tree cannot bring forth evil fruit, neither can a corrupt tree bring forth good fruit." So of the sermon.

The snob is servile to the few whom he regards as his superiors and insolent to the many whom he looks down upon as his inferiors. Furthermore, his judgments are based upon second or third rate considerations and even upon assumptions that are groundless. Riches or supposed riches, claims in heredity, social position, intellectual pretensions, ecclesiastical considerations in religion, are among the things that claim first place with the snob. These are to him a thousand fold more valuable than the fine gold of character. He turns up his nose at the things which are really worth while, and struts like a peacock at the glitter of his tailfeathers. There are social snobs, intellectual snobs, religious snobs, etc. But of them all none try the patience of a saint like the religious snob.

It is agreed on every hand that the Christian church rose out of the belief in the resurrection of Jesus Christ. Paul staked his all upon the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead. He did not even mention some of the things that are uppermost with a few today—the virgin birth, for example—but the resurrection from the dead, the deity of our Lord, and the cross of Christ occupied the primary places in his thought and life. "God forbid that I should glory save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ." "That in all things he might have the pre-eminence," and the joyous, triumphant note, "death is swallowed up in victory," are the great central declarations of this mighty man, who is chief among all the disciples of our Lord. The resurrection is not simply for Easter but for the ages. The living Christ is the world's only hope.

We are going at a pace that kills. To make money, to make a name, or just to keep up with the rest, requires every moment of time and every ounce of energy. As a result old friendships are severed and new ones are never formed. In consequence a great loneliness, sometimes it's unconscious, is settling down upon the hearts of men. Here is the idea in verse:

"Tomorrow," I say, "I will call on Jim,
Just to show that I'm thinking of him."
But tomorrow comes and tomorrow goes,
And the distance between us grows and grows,
Around the corner—yet miles away
"Here's a telegram, sir. Jim died today!"
And that's what we get and deserve in the end—
Around the corner a vanished friend.

Growth is the big word in the realm of life. You can build a house, a monument or a temple, but you cannot build a tree, a bird or a man. These are living organisms and reach maturity by means of growth, as all living things do. A stone may be chiseled into the shape of a man, but it is still a lifeless stone statue. Christian characters must be grown. And this requires not a saw and hammer, but food, and health and time and culture. At present, we fear, there is too much of the mechanical and too little of the natural method in the formation of character. We grow into Christ our living Head.

* * * *

"The old rugged cross" does not appeal to the fastidious taste of a smug, passionless Christian. Calvary's sacrifice has to be eliminated from his theology. He is content with a religion that rests primarily upon ethical codes and with a pulpit that has been converted into a forum for the discussion of social programs. It seems never to have occurred to him that the church of God is the power house of sacrificial love, and that the cross of Christ is the highest earthly manifestation of this love. The world's great issues are not settled in cold blood. Rugged and full of passion, of passionate love, is that faith which is able to conquer the world. Gethsemane, Calvary and the ashes of martyrs all belong to that type of Christianity which is to win.

* * * *

Every pulpit utterance to be effective must bear the stamp of authority. The authority that grows out of a sterling character back of the sermon, the authority of a deep conviction, the authority of certain knowledge, the authority of a warm, passionate heart, the authority of a shining face fresh from the mount of God. "He spake as one having the authority." In this Jesus differed from the Pharisees and other religious teachers of his day. And the Christian minister who speaks for his Lord is expected to preach with divine authority, and therefore, with heavenly power. Sharp speech, dogmatic utterance, defiant attitude on the part of the preacher, or abuse of others, even abuse of the devil, must not be mistaken for that authority which convicts and persuades men.

ONE OF THE ELECT WOMEN

Mrs. A. A. Connelly has charge of the Advocate campaign for Dr. W. R. Ware at Morganton. This efficient manager of the campaign has already sent in $106 for renewals and new subscribers. Mrs. Connelly was on the job at Morganton last year and made a great record for her church and for herself. She goes this year as one of the delegates to the annual conference.

A LAYMAN WHO IS GOOD AS GOLD

Mr. Chas. B. Smith of Ramseur has sent his check for $107.00 for renewals and new subscribers to the Advocate. This is the third year that Brother Smith has made the unusual record of having more subscribers to the Advocate than there are families in the church. Some outsiders take the paper. Three cheers for Smith and Ramseur!

LEWISVILLE AND BROOKSTOWN

I spent last Sunday with Rev. J. W. Vestal at Lewisville and Brookstown. It was at Lewisville the last day of a decidedly successful revival in which Rev. H. G. Allen had been the preacher up to Sunday, when he returned to his own pulpit. Brother Allen as a preacher and revivalist won golden opinions of the pastor and people of Lewisville. The pastor received into the church as a result of the revival 30 on profession of faith and one by letter. The meeting closed Sunday night.

I preached at 11 o'clock to a large congregation at Lewisville, enjoyed a delightful hour at the parsonage and after dinner went in company with the pastor to preach at Brookstown, another one of his seven churches on the Lewisville charge. Brother Vestal preaches three times every Sunday and looks after the interests of all these churches. He has enough to keep him busy, but he is doing the work in a very satisfactory manner.

This pastor has all plans made for his other revival meetings and excellent preachers secured to assist him in the work. It was a delight to spend the day with Brother Vestal and his people.

DURHAM DISTRICT CONFERENCE

The Durham district conference at West Durham church started off at 10 o'clock Thursday, March 29, "full steam ahead." Rev. M. T. Plyler, presiding elder, and Prof. F. S. Aldridge, secretary, two veterans in district conference management, were in charge and they stopped only for refreshments, and not long for these, though the table in the yard groaned under its burden, if one may use that hoary and decrepit expression.

The pastors' reports came thick and fast and full; the visitors were introduced and given all the time needed, if they talked to the point. Almost two hours were devoted to the layman's work. Dr. W. P. Few, conference lay leader, who is taking great interest in this work, directed the program and presided part of the time.

Mr. G. L. Morelock, general secretary of the Board of Lay Activities, was the principal speaker. His address was both interesting and instructive. The speaker, also, answered a number of questions of a practical sort as they relate to the laymen's work.

Some interesting moments were given to the Advocate campaign. Rev. B. C. Thompson, who is looking after the campaign in the northern part of the district and who is doing such fine campaigning on his own charge, the Roxboro circuit, made a red hot speech and declared that victory belonged to his territory, to the Durham over other districts, and to the North Carolina conference over the W. N. C. conference in the present campaign.

Rev. J. W. Bradley, the conference host, and a good one, and the man who always succeeds in all his work, told the brethren how to put on the campaign so as to get results. He suggested among other things rival teams of canvassers and told of one charge which had challenged one adjoining charge.

Rev. G. M. Daniel, who is at the head of the campaign in Alamance county prophesied big things for the Advocate in Alamance.

The first day was full of "pep" and the second day was doubtless like unto the first. We had to leave at the end of the first, but are looking to the secretary for the detailed report of business transacted.

BISHOP COLLINS DENNY, L. L. D.

Bishop Denny is at the Greensboro district conference this week. He is in labors abundant. Presiding over and preaching at district conference and visiting other important points according to previous engagement keeps him on the go constantly. Our bishop is giving great service in this episcopal district. His presence delights both preachers and people wherever he goes.

Our bishops with scarcely an exception are the hardest worked men in the church. He who desires the office of a modern bishop desires an office with an unusual amount of hard work, to say nothing of grave responsibility. And it is a safe assumption that none of these bishops are meeting the responsibility and duties of their office more effectively than our North Carolina bishop.

JOURNAL OF SOCIAL FORCES

In the March number of the Journal of Social Forces, we call attention to the North Carolinians who have contributed. While the May number will feature especially, in honor of the National Conference, such national leaders as Dean Pound of Harvard, Prof. Franklin H. Giddings of Columbia, Prof. James H. Tufts and Chas. E. Merriam of University of Chicago, and many other distinguished writers, we are particularly proud of the North Carolina contributors in the March number. Gerald Johnson has a unique interpretation in "Mr. Babbitt Arrives at Erzerum"; Dr. Branson continues his farm tenant studies; Dr. Wm. Poteat is good in "The Social Hope"; Mrs. Bertha P. Newell of Winston-Salem has an unusual article on the work of women's organizations in the churches; Bishop Penick on the social progress of the Episcopal church. Besides this are articles by Dr. J. F. Steiner, Prof. Walter Matherly, Prof. Homer Hoyt and the editor, from the University; a short discussion by Harriet Herring of Spray, Wiley H. Swift of Greensboro, Miss Emeth Tuttle and Nell Battle Lewis of the State Department of Public Welfare, and Mayor T. B. Eldridge of Raleigh.

THE MAN AT THE WHEEL

Automobile accidents and even fatalities are becoming alarmingly prevalent. The situation instead of improving appears to grow worse. A list of the dead and injured is a deplorable feature of the morning papers.

If one will keep an eye on all these unfortunate occurrences where people are killed or injured, he will discover that the man or woman who drives the car is more largely to blame than any other. This is clearly the case in accidents which occur in speeding. The driver is responsible for the speed of his car. In collisions some driver is to blame for not observing the rules of the road or for not keeping his car under control.

Children are frequently run over by a car and the report goes out that the child ran in front of the car from behind some object and the driver could not stop. This is no excuse at all. All drivers of cars should exercise particular caution about children and assume that they are just as liable to run in the way of a car as not. Consequently the driver when passing any object behind which a child may be hidden from view and quickly run in front of the car should have his auto under control, and when children are in sight there is no excuse whatever for an accident, for the driver should exercise such caution as to render it impossible.

What is the first duty of all people who handle the wheel? Never be reckless, or careless. Exercise caution, even undue caution. If you must drive fast get out on some lone road where there is neither man nor beast. It does not matter about the birds. They know how to escape unless a chicken be called a bird. The chicken is sure to cross the road.

The law is to be invoked in these perilous times when every man, woman and child's life is in jeopardy from the automobile, but the remedy, we repeat, rests mainly with the men and women who sit at the steering wheel and who "step on the gas." The remedy must be sought among the people who have the cars in hand on street and highway. Yet we would have the officer of the law alert in getting the "speeder." And the mailed fist of the law should be laid heavily upon all truck drivers who defy every right of man on the road and in the street.

ENCOURAGING FIGURES OF CHURCH MEMBERSHIP

The total increase of church members in the United States for the past year, as given out by the Department of Statistics of the Federal Council of Churches, is 1,220,438. This is a decided gain over previous years.

The present membership of all religious bodies in this country is now 47,461,558. The total population of the United States as given by the census of 1920 is 105,710,620. The membership of all religious bodies, therefore, makes a creditable showing when compared with the total population.

It is interesting to note that the recent figures puts the Protestant constituency, that is the members of all Protestant churches and the adherents to these churches, at 78,104,481, and the constituency of the Roman Catholic church at 18,104,804. If these figures are anywhere near correct, this is overwhelmingly a Protestant country. And it is.

The Federal Council statistics places the Methodist constituency at 23,253,854, the Baptist constituency at 22,869,098 and the Roman Catholic, as already given, at 18,104,804. The Methodists and Baptists each have a larger constituency in this country than the Romanists. Yet we hear in every election of the "Catholic vote," but nothing of the Methodist vote. The politicians have to reckon with the Roman Catholic vote because it can be delivered in a bloc. This Protestant country should put a stop to Roman Catholicism's attempt to control the politics of this country.

Other figures of particular interest are these: Mormons 604,082, Jews 3,300,000, Unitarians 108,560, with a gain of 4,624 for the past twelve months.

Yet there are a few ministers in the evangelical churches of this country who are denying the deity of Jesus Christ and from their pulpits preaching Unitarian doctrines as they relate to the person of Christ. Any man who is at all acquainted with Christian history and knows as much mathematics as the multiplication table should have better gumption than to do such a thing, to say nothing about loyalty to his vows.

THE ADVOCATE CAMPAIGN

Since the ground hog has ceased to function, and spring has come, the friends of the Advocate who have been in winter quarters, have come out and the campaign for renewals and new subscriptions has taken on new life. We are confident that during the present month the pastors, committees and all the friends of the church paper are going to bestir themselves, and will make this the most fruitful year in the history of the Advocate. We most earnestly ask that all the friends of the church paper put forth special effort during the month of April to secure the renewal of all old subscribers and at least 5,000 new ones during the month.

Because of press of other matters this week we are not able to publish in detail the standing of the various charges, but this will be done next week. The following have sent in nice lists since last week: L. B. Hayes, Park Place, to every family represented in the charge; R. F. Munns, Hope Mills; G. W. Williams, Rockford Street, Mt. Airy; B. C. Thompson, Person charge; R. A. Bruton, Newport; G. R. Jordan, Black Mountain; J. T. Ratledge, Walnut Cove; L. M. Chaffin, South Mills; W. L. Scott, Ramseur; L. H. Joyner, Granville; N. C. Williams, Granite Falls; G. L. Wilkinson, Belmont; A. J. Parker, St. John and Gibson; W. R. Ware, Morganton; W. R. Shelton, Wadesboro; B. E. Stanfield, Jonesboro; J. W. Bradley, West Durham; S. J. Starnes, East Roxboro and Longhurst; J. H. Bradley, Mt. Zion; L. D. Thompson, Hawthorne Lane; J. A. Fry, Spruce Pine; H. C. Ewing, Branson, and J. B. Thompson, Conway.

Alice Robertson made a significant statement in closing her congressional career. It indicates that politics does not satisfy the true and deeper instincts of woman's nature. Listen to her: "I want to go home as soon as possible. I am going back to my old arm chair, in the garden where the flowers will be blooming, to listen to the mocking birds and at dusk, out over the southwestern oil fields—just to rest and think, for the twilight of life is a time for reverie and remembrance. No, public life is not the highest career of a woman. Her happiest place is in the home."

PEOPLE AND THINGS

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. McKinney announce the birth of a son, George William, on 29th of March, 1923.

Mr. J. C. McLain, Statesville, N. C., after May 1 will be open for some dates for singing in revival meetings.

Rev. A. L. Lucas is in the midst of a revival at Bethany church. The attendance is good and Bro. Lucas is doing excellent preaching at every service.

West Market Street church, Greensboro, has received 25 by letter and seven by vows as a result of the recent revival. This makes a total of 73 for the year.

Rev. W. H. Willis last Sunday received 14 on profession of faith, 21 members by certificate and baptized four infants at Ashboro. He has received 50 new members at Ashboro this year.

Mr. Joseph T. Waddell and Miss Emily Hilliard were united in marriage Sunday evening, April 1, 1923, at six o'clock at the Methodist parsonage, Goldston, N. C., by Rev. E. C. Sell.

Rev. G. L. Wilkinson, pastor of Park Street charge, Belmont, will begin a revival meeting at Ebenezer April 15. The first service will be held at 11 o'clock and Rev. R. L. Forbis of Ranlo will preach throughout the meeting.

"Wesley's Chapel on the Broad River circuit caught fire in the loft Sunday morning while the Sunday school was in session and burned down." This distressing message comes from Rev. Elmer Simpson, the pastor.

Rev. R. A. Truitt, the pastor at Bethel, Greensboro, will in a week or two move into a new $5,000 parsonage. West Market has donated for the enterprise $2,000, Park Place $1,000, Centenary $1,000 and the Bethel people will raise $1,000. This is a good piece of work on the part of these churches.

Rev. F. S. Love began revival services in his church at Wilson last Sunday. Rev. J. W. Moore, pastor of Broad Street church, Statesville, who is doing the preaching, arrived Monday and preached his first sermon Monday night. With the gifted Statesville pastor to assist him in the work Dr. Love is expecting a great meeting.

Revival services at the Ahoskie Methodist church which began last week have been prolonged and will probably continue throughout this week. Rev. Mr. Barber, pastor, is conducting the services, which have been well attended during the ten days. A special service for young children was held Monday afternoon.—Herald.

Each evening this week Rev. J. E. Abernethy is holding revival services in his church, Trinity, Charlotte. The meeting began last Sunday. Mr. Abernethy is one of our most successful pastor evangelists and it is confidently expected that this meeting will result in great good. Trinity continues to prosper under the leadership of Dr. Abernethy.

Rev. J. Herbert Miller, the pastor, began a two weeks' revival meeting Sunday, March 25, at Pine-top. The interest and attendance has been good from the very start and continues to grow. The pastor is doing the preaching. Brother Miller is giving a good account of himself at Pinetop. He is one of our finest young ministers. His church is to entertain the district conference this year.

Centenary church, Greensboro, is making good progress under the pastorate of Rev. R. G. Tuttle. A meeting will begin April 23. Rev. D. H. Tuttle of Smithfield and a brother of the pastor, will assist in the meeting. The Centenary people and Greensboro will enjoy the ministry of Brother Tuttle. He is "a man of God who rightly divides the word of truth." Four were added to Centenary church last Sunday by letter.

Bro. Elzie Myers says: "We are trying to do something over here. Have just let the contract for our new brick veneer church to cost $11,500 when furnished. The plan calls for six Sunday school rooms, and will seat about 500 people by using the Sunday school rooms. It will be a very pretty church when completed. It has taken work to put it over, but I am convinced that with hard work almost any good proposition can be put over. We have some mighty fine Methodist people here. They gave us a warm reception when we came last fall, and a big pounding, Thanksgiving, and have been sending things to the parsonage ever since."

Rev. E. E. Williamson and his people at Grace church, Winston, have paid off the $4,000 indebtedness on that church and expect to have the dedication just as soon as Bishop Collins Denny can arrange to give them one Sunday for these services. Brother Williamson is enjoying great success in his pastorate at Grace.

Dr. C. C. Selecman has been elected president of Southern Methodist University, Dallas, Texas, in place of Dr. H. A. Boaz, who last May was elected bishop. Dr. Selecman was born in Missouri in 1874 and has been in the active ministry 26 years. He was for seven years pastor of Trinity church, Los Angeles, Cal., and came from there to First church, Dallas, in 1920. His successor at First church has not been announced.

"Mrs. Clater Winn Smith requests the honor of your presence at the marriage of her daughter, Helen Slade, to Mr. Rupert Lee Benson, on Wednesday, the eleventh of April, nineteen hundred and twenty-three, at half after five o'clock in the afternoon, Grace Methodist Episcopal church, Wilmington, N. C." Miss Smith is the daughter of the late Rev. C. W. Smith, and Mr. Benson a nephew of the late Rev. J. M. Benson, both of the North Carolina conference.

The revival services which have been in progress at the Methodist church since Sunday, March 18, have been steadily growing in interest. Large crowds attend each service and quite a number of professions have been made. Rev. Jim Green has been preaching plain, forcible sermons calculated to carry the truth home to his hearers. This afternoon he preaches especially to the high school pupils. The service will be held at four o'clock at the church. Sunday afternoon at three o'clock he will hold a special service for the women and girls.—Smithfield Herald.

For some time the young superintendent of the Sunday school at Epworth church, Wilmington, N. C., has been specializing in methods, plans, administration, etc. The results of his labors have been manifested in the success of his school. But he was not satisfied with his achievements and recently decided there were other worlds to conquer. With this decision there came a heartfelt need of a helper or assistant; and on Thursday, March 29, at 5:30 p. m., in the auditorium of Epworth church, this earnest and enthusiastic worker, Andrew J. Lee, Jr., was married to Miss Katie Leonora Swann of Wilmington. The Rev. A. J. Hobbs, Jr., pastor of the young couple, performed the ceremony. After the marriage Mr. and Mrs. Lee left on a two weeks' tour to Jacksonville, Palm Beach and Cuba. Upon their return they will be at home at Sixteenth and Orange streets, Wilmington.

Prof. W. F. Massey, who died last Friday at the age of 83 in Salisbury, Md., was the pioneer of diversified farming in North Carolina, and did more than any other man to emphasize the value of cowpeas for the improvement of the soil. The older readers will remember the department on farming that he carried for several years in the Advocate and how immensely popular this column was with all classes of readers. His style was attractive and with great clearness did he present the facts that related to successful farming. One loved to read what he wrote whether specially interested in the farm or not. His articles were sought by all farm journals and by some of the leading dailies. Hundreds of people in North Carolina will learn of his death with genuine sorrow.

Arrangements are practically complete for the State Sunday School Convention to be held in Winston-Salem April 10th, 11th and 12th. The program committee, composed of J. B. Ivey, Charlotte; J. M. Broughton, Raleigh; E. B. Crow, Raleigh; Chas. M. Norfleet, Winston-Salem, and D. W. Sims, Raleigh, feel confident that in subject matter and personnel of speakers the program is unusually strong. More than fifty people will take part on the program. Among the prominent Methodists on the program are Prof. D. W. Donaldson, Washington, N. C., professor of Religious Education in Washington Collegiate Institute; Rev. J. H. Barnhardt, Greensboro, pastor West Market Street Methodist church; Miss Meta Liles, Tarboro, superintendent Primary Department St. James Methodist church; Miss Sallie Carroll, Winston-Salem, director Religious Education, West End Methodist church; Mr. R. L. Pope, Thomasville, teacher Men's Bible Class, First Methodist Sunday school; Miss Maud McKinnon, Charlotte, director of Religious Education, Tryon Street Methodist church.

Park Place church, Greensboro, on Easter Sunday received eight members on profession of faith and five by letter.

Prof. Earl H. Sikes of Dartmouth College is spending the Easter holidays with his parents, Rev. and Mrs. T. A. Sikes, Greensboro. He will return Saturday to his duties at the college.

Calvary Methodist Episcopal church, 129th street, New York City, the church that Dr. Chas. L. Goodell served as pastor, has been transferred to the colored people and the name changed from Calvary to Salem. The influx of the negro population in that section of the city between 125th and 145th streets has made the change desirable, even necessary.

J. Wesley Higgins, a wealthy and well known citizen of Burnsville, N. C., was the victim last Monday of an automobile accident in his home town of Burnsville. He died while being taken to the hospital at Rutherfordton for treatment. He was 82 years of age, had represented his county in the legislature of 1895, had been for 25 years president of the Citizens' National Bank, Burnsville, and was a liberal contributor to the new Methodist church in Burnsville.

Rev. S. F. Nicks, who is in his fourth year on the Leasburg circuit, has been preaching twenty years, has served only five charges, and all these were in Caswell county except on one charge a few of the churches were outside of Caswell. He has been pastor of every Methodist church in the county. And this man, whose ministry for twenty years has been primarily in one county and who never moved till the end of the four years, is a native of that section. Apply not to this man the proverb, "A prophet is not without honor save in his own country."

Bro. F. E. Whitener writes: "A two weeks' revival meeting closed last Sunday at Lafayette Street Methodist church with Rev. J. W. Ingle, the pastor, conducting the services and doing all the preaching. Brother Ingle did some wonderful preaching. His sermons were just wonderful, and it was a great revival. There were 60 conversions and reclamations. Thirty new members by conversion were added to the church and eight joined by letter. At the close of the meeting the church presented Brother Ingle with $60 cash and granted a few days much needed rest. He starts for Columbia, S. C., today to be gone until the 11th of this month."

Rev. R. D. Sherrill, who following a stroke of paralysis had to take the superannuate relation at the conference of 1921 and who has since lived on his farm near Statesville, is greatly improved in health. He now drives his car and, partially in jest but with a good measure of intention, says that he expects to buy a mule and go to ploughing again as when a boy. His multitude of friends who are just about as numerous as his acquaintances, will learn with delight of his good health. We hope before a great while to see him once more active in the pastorate where he wrought so well for 30 years.

Northwestern University is annually becoming more cosmopolitan as regards the religious affiliations and preferences of the student body. A religious census just compiled shows that although Methodists lead in numbers many other creeds are strongly represented. The canvass which is composed of statements from 78 per cent of the total enrollment gives the church connections of the students in this order: Methodist Episcopal, 1320; Roman Catholic, 690; Presbyterian, 651; Jewish, 534; Lutheran, 447; Congregational, 352; Protestant Episcopal, 531; Baptist, 249; Protestant (denomination not specified), 208; Christian Scientist, 177; Unitarian, 10; miscellaneous, 331; no preference, 633.

Rev. Marvin Heflin is the Methodist pastor at McRae, Ga. He is a native of Alabama, a brother to Senator Tom Heflin, whom North Carolinians love to hear speak, and he can tell as good a story as his brother, the senator. It will be of interest to those Carolinians who know Marvin personally to read the following introductory paragraph of a three column report of a recent sermon that he preached in his church at McRae. The Telfair Enterprise says: "Rev. Marvin Heflin preached a powerful sermon on 'The Divine Gift' last Sunday. He paid his respects to Dr. Grant and Dr. Fosdick, and advised that both read Bishop Warren A. Candler's book on 'The Kingdom of God and His Dear Son,' and Phillips Brooks' sermon on 'The Light of the World.'" He pointed to the value that God has set on the soul as proof of Immortality and stated that every race of people seek Eternity."

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON THE SPIRITUAL STATE OF THE CHURCH

Adopted and Ordered Published in the North Carolina Christian Advocate by the Statesville District Conference.

A glance at our annual conference reports reveals the fact that for many years the Statesville district has been moving in the very front ranks with the most spiritual, therefore the most prosperous, districts of our great conference. Great revivals; rapidly increasing church rolls; increasing liberality; numbers of churches being built and remodeled; rapidly growing Sunday schools; real living and constantly growing Epworth Leagues; and Women's Missionary Societies which are really moving things, are among the convincing evidences of the fact, that never before in the history of our beloved district were there more encouraging indications of still greater achievement along all worthy lines than for the present year; yet we frankly admit that as a district, we are alarmingly below our privileges along spiritual lines.

Among the many things which contribute to the lack of spirituality among our people, only a few, which we consider the most important just now, can here be mentioned, among which are:

1. A lack of due reverence for God and holy things.
2. The absence of a conscious need of a spirit-filled life on the part of too many church members and some leaders.
3. Entirely too few family altars and too little consideration given to the importance of the Christian home. We are facing grave dangers at this point, for our churches can rise no higher in spirituality than that of our homes.
4. The small number of church members who consider it a privilege to be honest with God by practicing tithing as compared with the large number who cry for help, shutting the door of heaven in their faces by failure at this point.
5. A great lack of personal interest in the salvation of lost souls and the spiritual development of young converts, on the part of so many church members and some leaders.

In addition to the omissions and failures mentioned, we find that many commissions and much worldliness on the part of many church members and even some leaders, are doing untold hurt to the spiritual life of the church, only a few of which can be mentioned here, among which are:

1. "The Christless Motion Picture Business of today," whose only motive is to get the money of the people at any cost:
  - (a) At the cost of high and worthy ideals of children and young people.
  - (b) At the cost of making criminals of the young generations.
  - (c) At the cost of the virtue of women.
  - (d) At the cost of the sacred marriage relation.
  - (e) At the cost of the home itself.
  - (f) At the cost of the Protestant ministry, which is the only hope of the salvation of the world.
  - (g) At the cost of law and order and the constitution of our beloved nation itself.
  - (h) And even at the cost of civilization, and whatever else of virtue yet unmentioned; yes, at the cost of all that is worth while here or hereafter.

The only successful way to deal with the present picture industry is to have such strong censorship laws passed, and for all Christian people to boycott the unholy institution until it breaks completely down; which it will do, just as certainly as the saloon is doing, which as bad as it is, is the least hurtful of the two institutions.

2. The present day swimming pools which are patronized by both sexes at the same time, are more destructive to decency and morals than the dance halls ever were, as justly as they receive the condemnation of all Christian people.

3. The tendency of so many parents, and some institutions of learning, to insist on such immodest dress for girls of the adolescent age that "modesty," which is the crowning virtue of women, is trampled beneath their feet, and thus the foundation for the present day "flapper" is securely laid for the girls of today, and the net set for boys of like age to become victims of the decoying influences thus thrown around them and thus they are in grave danger of falling together.

4. Sabbath desecration is another growing evil of our day. Sabbath joy-riding, patronizing swimming pools, publishing and reading newspapers on the Sabbath are among the numberless desecrations in which many professing Christians engage.

These and other devices too numerous to mention, are chains with which satan is endeavoring to bind our churches, and not only rob them of spiritual power, but so bind the church that it can do his cause no hurt. This is no time for pacifists to arise, pleading compromise with sin and the powers of darkness, to save criticism or a few dollars some might withhold because of disturbed pets; but it is the day when the church needs Daniels, Nathans, Jeremiahs and Elijahs to "cry aloud and spare not, and show the house of Israel their sins." Also to preach the old Methodist doctrine of genuine repentance, regeneration, the spirit-filled life, a hell to shun and a heaven to gain and Christ the only way of salvation, who offers salvation to all who will meet the conditions of His saving grace.

We think there is no doubt but that we are in the midst of one of the greatest extremes of sin the world has ever known. To recognize this fact is no pessimistic howl, but simply the willingness to behold things as they are; which should only stir us to a high state of righteous indignation, and challenge the best there is in us, as we go to our God given tasks. Sin has reached a climax just before every great forward movement of the Lord in the past, as a glance at a few of them will clearly reveal: Sin reached a climax just before God swept the earth with the flood; just before God led Israel out of bondage by the hand of Moses; just before Christ began His ministry; just before the Protestant Reformation, and also at the present time, which is doubtless on the verge of the greatest forward movement the world has ever known in some respects.

Since the Statesville district has its share of the evils mentioned, therefore your committee sees, as no doubt all you leaders see, that the thing of paramount importance is a genuine revival of religion in every church in the district. Not just a week or ten days protracted services, but a genuine revival sent down from God Himself. In order for this to be realized we think some important preparation should precede each meeting: First, a survey of the community should be made; second, prayer meetings in homes and general prayer meetings should be held in the church at least two weeks before the beginning of each meeting. As far as possible the pastor and people should hold their own meetings, but where outside help is secured neighbor pastors, and conference evangelists and our presiding elder when possible should be secured. Under all circumstances look to God and not to the preacher for the victory, and continue the meetings until the victory is realized.

R. K. Brady, Secretary.

SUMMER TRAINING SCHOOL FOR CHRISTIAN LEADERS

By J. W. Perry.

The Board of Missions, the Sunday School Board and the Board of Education are fostering summer training schools for city and rural pastors and church workers. This summer such schools are planned in eighteen centers, covering our whole territory. The one for the territory covered by this paper will be held at Durham, N. C., June 6th-16th. Lectures will be given by the best qualified men the boards have been able to secure. No pains or efforts have been spared to get the best. Each man is selected because of special fitness to give instruction on the subject assigned him. This work is designed to be helpful to our pastors in our cities, larger towns and industrial centers as well as for those serving in the country places. The country preachers have shown great appreciation of the advantages offered by these courses, and have been greatly benefitted as their work makes evident, and large numbers of them have attended.

Our cities and industrial centers are growing rapidly, and will continue as the demand for manufactured goods increases, agriculture improves in method and output per man and per acre, and as facilities for transportation and production of raw materials increase. For some time the growth of churches in membership has not kept up with the increase of population in the larger centers. The message of the preacher and the program of work of the congregation must be adapted to changed and changing conditions of life. The distractions, increasing materialism, temptations and vices of our urban life must be overcome by a gospel ministry that reaches all conditions and serves in helping to "make the whole man sound." The morals of our cities will determine the character of our civilization. The preacher needs to be equipped for the tasks of this day, if he is to lead the forces of righteousness to victory. Do we not need to feed frequently our minds and our spirits that we may be strong men, growing men, with a vision, and program of work commensurate with that vision, and the demands of this age? What better way to spend a few days than in the study of these matters with teachers of ability and experience? "As iron sharpeneth iron, so does the contenance of a man his friend." The very discussion will prove helpful to any earnest man.

There will be treated this year such subjects as: Bible Study, or Bible Messages for Men of Today; Evangelism—Methods and Message; Social Teachings of Jesus; Social Background for a City Church; and The Church School, Its Program and Method. These subjects will be related to the four general themes which will run through a four year course of study: 1. The Minister's Message; 2. The Community the Church Serves; 3. The Methods the Church Needs to Employ; and 4. The Training of Leaders.

It is confidently expected that large groups of our pastors will gather at the different centers this summer for twelve days of Christian fellowship, study and recreation. The recreation will be conducted in a way to demonstrate some of the things which can be done in any congregation without special equipment and at little cost, to provide our people, and particularly the young people, a program of wholesome recreation.

Business organizations conduct schools for their employees. Our states require the teachers of public schools to attend training schools in order to equip themselves better for their task. The leaders of the church of God must keep apace with leaders of commerce and education if they are to be real leaders of men in this modern world. The man of God must be thoroughly furnished unto all good work.

LATIN AMERICA RESPONDING TO EVANGELICAL CHRISTIANITY

Bishop Hoyt M. Dobbs.

The Centenary movement has in five years laid sixteen million dollars on the altars of the church at home and abroad, and has witnessed an increase in pastoral support of thirty-five per cent.

"An institution is the lengthened shadow of a man." The church house is a heightening of the outward symbol of an inner life. For the first time in the noble history of fifty years Methodism in Brazil is adequately housed. "The church which was in the house" were words which were frequently on the lips of Saint Paul. For many years in South America the only church which the toiling missionary had was "in the house." Happily today the church which was in the house has become in many instances the church in the center of the square, or on the mountain top.

In the Latin-American countries the institutional forms of religion carry almost as much weight as the life and teachings of its members. It is therefore very evident that Methodism in Brazil has received an added impetus resulting from the houses which we have builded.

The funds have without exception been administered, and will continue to be administered, with wisdom and economy. The building program has not been feverishly planned. In some instances a term of years must elapse before it can be completed.

I think it safe and entirely accurate for me to say that these great gifts have not pauperized the native church. On the other hand there is rapidly appearing a larger evidence of self-sustaining and self-supporting strength than at any other time in their history. The toiling missionaries have been greatly heartened and reinforced for their tasks by this generous act of the whole church.

It is perhaps altogether fitting and proper that I should mention the fact that evangelical Christianity in South America is today one of the most rapidly growing mission territories on the globe.

THE PREACHER AT HIS WORK

Frank Culbreth.

In this article we are to give consideration to the preacher in his parish—the workman at his work—or the shepherd with his flock. A careful reading of 9th and 10th chapters of the Gospel of Saint Luke, and the first chapter of the Acts of the Apostles will force the conclusion that Christ was very much concerned about where and when each of his apostles should preach. All the world was to be reached, but by a process and a definite plan. The human in the apostles and the people to be reached was fully recognized in this plan. It has been said that we inherit our religion and politics. It is my opinion that the law of inheritance is more powerful in forming our religion and our politics than the law of heredity. It is well nigh impossible to separate people from their religions and political views or principles. To realize this fact ought to help us also to realize that a man can not be one thing and successfully preach another. A large and an increasing number of people know nothing about the Divine Call to the ministry, the preacher and the church, and their relations as these are set forth in the New Testament. Their whole notion is formed from their acquaintance and association with preachers and church members. And generally they always see the worst and credit with the lowest values. The most subtle and damaging force arrayed against the kingdom of God is not aimed against the revelations and inspiration of the Bible; nor against the moral, social and ethical teachings of Christ, but against the church, against the working church as it is composed of and organized by human beings. Here is a very, if not the most, important part of the battle field today. Weakness or failure in the ministry is so damaging, and in many instances, either is deadly. The minister is the agency by which sinful humanity is brought into vital contact and relation with the Divine Word and Spirit. To be a real medium he must have power with both God and man. It is through his life and manner of living that he becomes powerful or powerless with men. Of all the tragedies and sad sights in life a powerless ministry is without an equal. How the preacher needs the consciousness of the Divine Presence while he is handling the all important and awful truths of the gospel! The time and attention that he gives to his own religious life and experience will bear an abundance of fruit in the life of his congregation.

Christ thought and spoke of himself and his apostles as being shepherds. This term is common in both the Old and the New Testaments. Of all the terms by which preachers are known, this is the most universally understood, accepted and appreciated in the church. Preaching the gospel is still the real work of the minister and will continue to be, because it is still the chief way of shepherding the flock. It is still by the foolishness of preaching some will be saved. There is no such thing as a preacher being a really great and effective preacher, but a poor shepherd. Nor is the converse true. The pulpit and especially the sermon is an essential method of shepherding the flock. Some of the preacher's most effective preaching is done outside the church edifice. We may separate preaching and shepherding in thought and in terms, but in fact they are so close in their relations and are so dependent the one upon the other that they are inseparable. There are folks in most congregations who clamor for this thing or that thing to the exclusion of other things, while there are others who clamor against this thing or that thing and in favor of something else. But the true pastor cannot afford to discriminate against any interest of the church, or any opportunity for service. The pastor cannot specialize, for he is not a specialist. He is a shepherd and he dare not try to be anything else. He should remember that good and excellent preaching is essential to the life and growth of the church. The pulpit service broadens and increases the preacher's influence and power outside of the church, just as his conduct and manners outside of the church multiplies his pulpit power and influence. Why should it be supposed that a preacher cannot be both, a good preacher and a good pastor? The fact is he cannot be one without being the other. You cannot separate doing from being in matters of religion. A good preacher is not always what the public would call a good entertainer. The world today is so anxious to be entertained that it is very willing to accept entertainment for many of the higher and better things of life, sometimes even for religion itself. There are godly men and women in our church who feel that in many places the Sunday church services are drifting towards, and there is danger of their becoming, here Sunday and polite entertainments. If there is such a tendency the whole life and influence of the ministry should be thrown against it, for it is in the church service the lost are found and the hungry are fed. It is not mere entertainment. It is life or death.

The New Testament notion of the church includes also that of the congregation and the preacher. There is a difference, but it is sufficient for both to recognize it. Very little is gained by either being all the time conscious of it. The minister who feels this difference and magnifies his own place and importance in the church is a millstone about the neck of the church. Such a church will not have very many young men coming into the ministry, and those who do come, having been brought up under such a ministry, will not be apt to become true shepherds. These same results may be, and sometimes are, produced by the congregation. It requires more than a preacher, a church edifice and a church roll to produce real shepherds. There must be a true shepherd and a real flock, and both must recognize and faithfully observe the relations that each sustains to the other. The church would do well to take cognizance of the young men who offer themselves for its ministry, but also of the congregation that has mothered them and the ministers who have been their pastors. It would be very little advantage to the whole church to fill all of its pulpits with young men coming from some congregations, having been brought up under the ministry of some preachers. Some preachers seem to think the church is a necessary evil. They act as though they thought they were a great deal bigger and of much more importance than the church. Were it not for the church they could accomplish something. Brethren, we may or may not magnify the ministry, but we must magnify the church. We can well afford to keep hands off of all so-called religious activities that lead from the church and minimize its worth and importance.

Churches, like individuals, have a personality, notions and whims. The preacher should study these. He should never undertake to go farther or to do more with these than he has earned a right to go and to do by knowing and loving the flock. All these things may become a source of great strength and help to him in the prosecution of his work. Changing the church's way of doing or not doing things; reversing its whole order may not always be real progress. It requires a little time to reverse the gears. There is always a way to do these things and sometimes they should be done. But better let them go undone than discredit the whole church. The whole ministry centers around the local church. The candidate for the ministry is the child of the local church—and such a father such a son. For this reason if for no other there should be a better understanding of the church and the ministry, by both pastor and congregation. There is great need of oneness in Christ of pastor and congregation. There should be more sympathy for, cooperation with, and appreciation of each other. I believe the human side of the whole problem of supplying the church with an adequate and competent ministry is with the local church and its pastor. A congenial, sympathetic and cordial attitude toward each other would do a great deal in influencing the young of the congregation towards the ministry. The preacher need not assume a pious sanctimonious appearance, manner, or tone of voice. He should not try to appear too heavenly or preachery. These things will hardly attract strong, vigorous, honest, sincere young people. The preacher should not dehumanize himself, nor should the congregation. The notion that a man can not be Christ-like or a true shepherd unless all the human has been got out of him or so submerged that it never appears has not done the church any good. If Christ had wanted beings other than human beings to preach His gospel He would have commissioned them long ago, and He would not have been so patient and long suffering with His church.

Not in any one thing that a part of the church may or may not do, but in the faithfulness and fidelity of the whole church to all of its interests and opportunities even down through the minutest details does the solution of this problem lie.

DEEDS OF HEROISM IN SONG

"Whenever were there deeds of heroism worthy of a song in which North Carolina did not have a part?" were the apt words of Bishop Collins Denny in his eloquent reference to the doings at Yorktown, by way of illustration, in a sermon at Trinity church, Durham. Such a touch could but cause a North Carolina audience to sit with bated breath as the good bishop completed the picture of that day and its significance. This incident in Virginia of Revolutionary days reminded the Tar Heels of later doings as expressed in the familiar phrase, "First at Bethel, farthest at Gettysburg and last at Appomattox." Then, we do not forget the boys who stood at the Marne and made glorious Chateau Thierry and Balleau Woods, and of that larger group who crossed the Hindenburg line on that memorable September day. Yes, North Carolinians have a way of being on hand when deeds of daring are to be done, whether the poet is there to sing the song or not.

But it is always well to remember that "Peace hath her victories no less renowned than war," and to know that the Old North State has been heroic in the days of peace. Most real heroism has been shown by the plain yeomanry of North Carolina, during the plodding days of peace, in the heroic efforts to gain the place of advantage won in the face of our terrible struggle with ignorance, poverty and sin. The end is not yet, but the promise of a better day greets us. The gray dawn streaks the east and the masses are astir. The spirit of the men in moccasins and coon-skin caps at Yorktown abides and comrades of those who sleep under the Stars and Stripes in France are citizens of the new day in this commonwealth. North Carolinians will be found doing their part wherever there are deeds of heroism worthy of a song.

The consideration of first importance in the midst of all the devotion shown in the so-called march of progress is to see that vision does not perish and the finer aspirations of the soul do not die so that there be no poet to sing the song. Could many of the deeds done by the sons of Carolina have been told in song and story ours would have been a larger place in the record of a great free people. Tennyson rendered immortal the charge of the Light Brigade.

FILLING STATIONS MANY AND VARIOUS

Itinerant, in his perambulations, passed along the streets of a little town until he chanced upon a man who had every appearance of being to the manor born. Engaging the gentleman in conversation, this question was put to him: "How many filling stations have you in this town?" After a moment's pause the reply was forthcoming, "Five."

This led Itinerant to put another query: "How many newspapers have you?" With little hesitation came the reply, "One, and it has a hard time to get along."

To ask about the book stores would have been useless. A book store or a library had never once entered the mind of the most visionary citizen, and none had ever stopped to ask, "Why this state of affairs?" But, somehow, the matter of filling stations took hold of Itinerant and he could not get away from the fact that filling stations of greater variety were needed.

Think of five filling stations for automobiles and not one for the mind! Gas and go are not all of life; vision and thought have a place. Fewer gas stations and more book emporiums would secure a finer balance in the life of a people. Will not a better adjustment have to be made before proper proportion can be maintained in life's values? Millions are poured out like water for schools in the wonderful advance of the present time in educational effort, without any notable increase in the demand for the stations furnishing supplies for the mind. Why is this? Does it mean that books have but small place in the life of the modern man? Green says that in the days of the Puritan, England became a nation of one book; it would seem that America has become a nation of no book. We live on head-lines of newspapers and the pictures in magazines and the movies, entrusting our salvation to gas and go.

A HOME-GROWN REVIVAL

Some features of the fifteen days' revival services recently held at Ashboro may be of interest to the Methodist public.

Preparation.

Timely topics discussed at church and prayer meetings during the preceding two months.

Two class meetings—one for the board of stewards, the other for the missionary society.

Ten simultaneous prayer meetings held mostly by stewards in pairs the preceding Friday night.

Printed and addressed announcements delivered to each of the 475 white residents of the town.

Activities for the Two Weeks.

Ten morning services at eight o'clock with an average attendance of 125. At these ten minutes of catechetical instruction was given to children bearing on the fundamentals of religion and church membership.

Thirty-nine women's prayer meetings held by 32 different leaders on topics previously furnished and outlined by pastor, with a combined attendance of 720.

Ten noon-day shop meetings at five factories, with an average attendance of 60.

One meeting for men only, with about 175 present.

One children's service.

One sunrise praise service.

One street meeting.

The fourteen evening services were generally to full houses.

About 500 carefully selected tracts and leaflets were properly placed.

The preaching was all done by an ex-presiding elder.

The music was led by the regular organist—a timid highly cultured woman, who would pray or exhort from the organ stool as occasion demanded.

Results.

Thirty-five accessions, 21 of whom came by letter. Four infants baptized.

Many reconsecrations—nearly the whole membership on "higher ground."

Easter offering for Children's Home of $200. Expense of meeting $30.75.

W. H. Willis.

AN APPEAL

The appeal of Pisgah church, Lincoln circuit, for help to repair the church has been answered with liberal amounts by several of the good superintendents of the Western North Carolina conference. We are grateful for their support in this work.

We are far from our goal, and hope that each superintendent who has received the letter of appeal sent out by me and have not as yet taken this matter up with their school will do so at once, because the church is depending on the Sunday schools to come to their aid, and I believe that they will when they have given this matter their careful and prayerful attention.

Brother Vaughn from Grace church, Greensboro, sent me a donation, and he said in his letter that he was glad of the opportunity of helping us, for he knew what it was to be in need of a friend at a time like this.

The Oak Grove Sunday school took this matter up, and instead of sending one dollar as requested, they sent the whole Sunday school collection, and others have done likewise.

NEW SUNDAY SCHOOL BUILDING AT JUNALUSKA

Among the notable improvements which will mark the Southern Assembly grounds at Lake Junaluska, N. C., when Methodists clans gather there for their usual summer season of denominational activities, will be the new standard training school building, property of the general Sunday school board of the M. E. Church, South. According to A. L. Dietrich, business manager of the board, the building is already under way and will be a model of convenience. It will be erected at a total cost of about $50,000 and is expected to be ready for use during the six weeks training school for Sunday school workers in July and August.

Mr. Dietrich says that foundations for the new building are now being laid. The building will have a frontage of 150 feet and will be 90 feet deep. It will contain 20 class rooms, a large lobby with galleries, stage and moving picture booth. There will be a library and reading room, faculty rooms, offices for the Sunday school editor and general secretary and business offices. The building is located on the crest of the hill between the upper and lower lakes, and faces easterly toward the new missions building. It is on the property recently purchased from E. A. Cole of Charlotte, N. C., and adjoins other property owned by the Sunday school board and occupied by its cafeteria and dormitories.

A TRIUMPH OF MEDICINE

For a long time diabetes has ranked as one of the most intractable of human diseases. In many instances it is incurable. It is also a very common disease. The announcement, therefore, that a young physician of the research department of the University of Toronto has discovered an effective antidote for this form of mal-nutrition marks a real epoch in medicine. The discovery is based on the accepted principle that the illness is due to a failure of the pancreas, an organ which supplies some elements that are essential to the complete digestion of food. His investigations having convinced him that the pancreatic principle is essentially the same in the lower animals as in man, Dr. F. C. Branting, the youthful investigator to whom we have referred, has succeeded in insulating that principle in a non-poisonous extract which may be injected into the blood of the patient. The tentative results have proved almost miraculous. Dr. Banting and the professor at the head of his department, Dr. J. J. R. MacLeod, after satisfying themselves of the efficacy of the treatment, are now engaged in experiments with a view to producing the new extract, which has been named "insulin," in quantities sufficient for general distribution. With the usual boldness and abnegation of the medical profession, Dr. Banting experimented first on himself to make sure that the injections had no harmful effects. Dr. MacLeod, who disavows for himself any credit for the discovery of his subordinate, is prepared to certify to its most extraordinary results in relieving those who suffer from diabetes. Some who had even reached a state of coma, hitherto always the precursor of death, have been restored to health.—St. Louis Christian Advocate.

MRS. MARGARET KELLY ABERNETHY

Mrs. Abernethy, who has been for 13 years editor of the social department of the Charlotte Observer, retires from the newspaper game to enter the real estate business. This talented and gracious woman will make money in her new field of activity, but the readers of the Observer have lost more than money, they have lost the giver of sunshine and happiness as she chronicled the news of the day. She was a past master at saying pleasant things most beautifully. As she retires from her strenuous task the public will hold this gifted woman in appreciative remembrance and miss her greatly that she is out of the game.

THE SOUTHERN METHODIST HANDBOOK

The Southern Methodist Handbook for 1923 is ready for the mail. In some respects it is a clear condensation of a larger scope of information than has been seen in any previous year. The illustrations are numerous and artistic. Now let your eye run over the following features and you can form some estimate of the high value of the informational survey accomplished in the 1923 Handbook: Connectional directory embracing boards, committees, commissions, and councils; rolls of presiding elders, secretaries, agents, superintendents, managers, evangelists, evangelistic singers, college and university presidents, professors, and students; missionaries and chaplains; General Conference legislation from the beginning; historical and statistical miscellany; connectional officers from the beginning; net increase or decrease by year in number of preachers in charge, local preachers, and lay members from 1900 to the present; survey of ministerial support since 1900, giving average support and average per member; sketches of our new bishops; memoirs of bishops who have died during the year; departmental information embracing Publishing House, periodical literature; conference organs, church extension, Sunday school, Epworth League, education, missions, etc., orphanages and hospitals; other Methodist branches; general religious organizations; subscriptions and payments on Centenary and Christian Education Movement; statistics of general Methodism; summary of gains and losses for all the denominations. Send to Lamar and Barton. Price 50 cents.

MAIN STREET, THOMASVILLE

The last revival is usually thought to be, by the preacher who conducted it, the best, the greatest meeting "in the history of the church." As a great many things happened in old Main Street, Thomasville, of which I know nothing, I shall lay no claim to that unique honor. This, however, I do know: We closed a good meeting last Sunday, Easter.

Forgive me if I wax a bit enthusiastic. It was a great moment in my life, and I believe in the life of the church, when 34 candidates for church membership, mostly young people, stood at the chancel. It was a moment in my life made greater by the consciousness of the fact that I knew the road most of them came; for I did the preaching myself and came into personal contact with all of them. I think the true pastor's heart never swells quite so large as when reaping the fruit of his own labors.

But as I look back over the field and think of the struggle, the 24 members on profession of faith and 14 by certificate, making in all 48 accessions to the church, was not all that took place, possibly not the greatest. Just for a great congregation to give itself, day after day, in loving service, even though there be few visible results, is great, is glorious. Several services were attended by congregations that taxed the church for room. All considered I was never given more loyal support by any church. This was one of the finest things to come out of the meeting.

One word more. Brother Frank P. Allen of Charlotte was with us from first to last and led the singing. He is a man of wide experience as an evangelistic singer, and unusual ability. He knows music and, furthermore, he knows what is not music. He is a gifted soloist and an accomplished choir director. His influence is altogether wholesome. If any of the brethren need a cultured, talented Christian singer he fills the bill. Thomasville loves him.

One boast more. We have received, since conference, 78 members into the church. Our congregations are large morning and evening. When we get ready we're going to build a church. And when the roll is called we'll be there. A. C. Gibbs.

FINE REVIVAL AT LAFAYETTE STREET

We have just closed a fine revival at Lafayette Street. We had 75 conversions; 45 joined the church, 38 our church and seven the Baptist. The pastor did the preaching and the church worked in harmony with me.

My people gave me a free trip to Columbia to hear Billy Sunday. Mrs. Ingle and I will leave tomorrow. Our men's Bible class, taught by that splendid young man, Charlie Roberts, deserves credit along with many others for making this trip possible. The purse amounted to $60. To God be all the praise. J. W. Ingle.

BALD CREEK CHARGE

Please allow me a little space in your paper to say a few words in behalf of Bald Creek charge.

At the last session of conference we were appointed to this charge. A few days later we started for our new work. We arrived here just before night and found a number of the good ladies in charge of the parsonage putting it in shape to make us feel at home. They also had a nice warm supper ready for us, which we enjoyed very much after our long drive over the mountains. We have been most hospitably received by all our people.

We found in the kitchen a good supply of groceries which is continually being recruited. On the night before Thanksgiving our good people gave us an old time pounding. Then again on Christmas night they came with another big pounding, which added much to our Christmas joy. We feel very grateful to these good people for the many kindnesses shown us since we came in their midst.

Now just a word about our work. We have held two revivals with splendid results. We have organized a mid-week prayer meeting, a teacher training class, and a Cradle Roll at Bald Creek. We have a live Woman's Missionary Society that is always ready for service. The women of this society are planning to put new seats in the church in a short while. They are continually adding more furnishings to the parsonage. Then in our Epworth League we have some splendid young people who are planning to do things this spring and summer.

We hope to remodel our church at Bald Creek and add some Sunday school rooms.

We now have on a contest at two of our Sunday schools. To know just what we are doing come and see.

J. W. Groce.

HOT SPRINGS REVIVAL

The Hot Springs revival meeting protracting from the Asheville district conference closed Thursday, March 26. The meeting was decidedly a great success. There were 25 professions, many of whom were men of promising worth to the church. Several were added to the church and the church as a whole greatly revived.

Dr. D. V. York, traveling evangelist, did the preaching, which was of a timely gospel in a timely method, and quickened the church as it has not been quickened in many years. Dr. York is an able preacher and an incessant worker. He will begin a meeting at Brevard April 1, assisting Rev. L. A. Falls.

Prof. George Hawks, of Rutherford College, directed the music, which contributed greatly to the success of the meeting. Professor Hawks is a good singer. Any one in need of an evangelistic singer will make no mistake in securing his service. Address him at Rutherford College, N. C.

REMARKABLE REVIVAL AT JEFFERSON

One of the greatest revivals of religion in the history of Jefferson has been in progress in the Methodist church for the past two weeks, conducted by Pastor J. L. Reynolds. Rev. J. W. Williams, the presiding elder of the North Wilkesboro district, and Rev. A. H. Gentry rendered assistance for the first week. But the greater part of the preaching has been done by Pastor Reynolds, who has presented the gospel in a simple but effective style. No man has made a deeper impression on such large numbers in the memory of the oldest citizen. Pastor Reynolds is intensely sincere. His earnestness make the faithless begin seeking for faith. No one can listen to him and doubt his belief in prayer and in God.

Pastor Reynolds set for his goal 75 conversions in this staid and conservative old town. Monday he was within four of his goal, for 71 have made professions of religion. The faithful preacher is talking of raising his goal to 100. And he says that the Lord is sending him new material for his higher standard. Having won all but three or four of the pupils of the Jefferson School, he was looking for recruits from other sources. The town and community have contributed to the number of converts. And on Monday the school from West Jefferson came in a body. Several of them were converted the first service.

Members of all denominations who maintain churches in Jefferson have joined in the meeting wholeheartedly. Baptists and Presbyterians, temporarily without pastors, have gladly heard the word as preached by Pastor Reynolds. In fact, almost everybody in the community but the devil seems to have enjoyed the meeting. Only a few hardened sinners have refused to be moved by the powerful pleadings of the preacher. No one who knows Jefferson would expect unanimity and there may have been criticisms, but we have not heard them. And a spirit of unity and good fellowship seems more apparent than for years.

A feature of the services has been experience or testimony meetings. Young men and young women, little children, old men with white hair, middle aged men and women who have never spoken in church before have joined in expressions of testimony and lifted their voices in behalf of the cause of the Christ.

Pastor Reynolds says only the Lord knows when the meeting is going to close. X.

KNOWING GOD THROUGH FAITH

God's leaders must be men and women of vision. Not of supernatural vision in these days, but men and women who lift up mind and heart until they can think God's thoughts and read God's plans. I had a friend who was the head resident in a great city settlement. One evening he went out into the country to spend the night, taking with him a half-grown lad who had never known anything beyond the city slums until he touched this strong man's life. When the evening was advanced and the darkness had settled down, the man, taking the boy with him, stepped out into the yard. The boy shrank back with a cry of fear and astonishment. He had never seen the silent night with the great starry heavens spread out over it before. He was afraid of the heavens that "declare the glory of God, and the firmament that showeth his handiwork." God has so many fearful leaders because they have such narrow visions.—Bell H. Bennett, Lambuth-Bennett Book of Remembrance.

Remember now is the time to order the Council Bulletin, containing full proceedings of our meeting in Mobile. Price 25 cents. Send name, address and money to Mrs. S. G. Barnett, Lambuth Building, Nashville, Tenn.

THE BELLE H. BENNETT MEMORIAL

The committee, composed of Mrs. F. F. Stephens, vice president of Council; Miss Estelle Haskin, Council superintendent of literature; Mrs. R. L. Kirkwood, corresponding secretary of S. C. conference; Mrs. Lee Britt, president of Virginia conference, and Miss Esther Case, administration secretary Latin-American and African fields, is considering plans for a suitable memorial to Miss Bennett to present to Council when it meets next month. The conferences throughout the Southern Methodist church are being asked to make pledges to the fund being raised for this purpose, and are responding liberally and joyously: "We count it a privilege to have a part in such a movement." "One of the most splendid things the Council has ever done." "Our conference will joyously co-operate." "The plan is attractive and sure to succeed. I am wholeheartedly in favor of it and glad to further it." "We are delighted with the plan, and our conference will do all in its power to make it a success." "I am heartily in sympathy with the plan and write to tell you so." To those conferences which meet after Council meets, which is the case with both the North Carolina conferences, the privilege is extended their conference officers of making a pledge for their conferences, "subject to the approval of the conference in annual session. That is a good plan and doubtless many conferences will desire to use it. Then if the conference desires to set a larger amount than their representatives at Council did, or a smaller one, that may be done. Since the memorial is a part of the Christian Education Movement, it is necessary to act promptly. That movement has but three more years for payment and 1923 is one of them. For this reason it is felt that the memorial must be planned this year and the payments started this year."

A BOARD OF MISSIONS IN CHINA

At the last meeting of the China mission conference a Board of Missions was organized whose purpose will be to project work in Manchuria where the gospel of Jesus Christ has never penetrated. The personnel of this board consists of five laymen, five women who are elected by the Woman's Missionary Society, and five preachers, all of whom are native Chinese! So eager were they for the establishment of a Mission Board that when it was organized, it was learned that 1,000 yen had been saved for the extension of the work. China is indeed waking up. While in the Orient, Miss Howell assisted the Chinese conference in the organization of a Deaconess Board. The native Chinese women who desire to become deaconesses, after finishing their training, will be appointed to their work by the bishop in charge of the work in the Orient at the regular annual meeting of the China conference.—Bulletin.

NORTHAMPTON COUNTY FEDERATION

The Northampton County Federation of Missionary Societies met at Conway, March 22 at 11 o'clock.

The president, Mrs. J. B. Stephenson, presiding. Hymn 649 was sung, after which devotional exercises were conducted by Mrs. P. C. Brittle. Prayer by Rev. J. B. Thompson. Welcome by Mrs. C. J. Garriss. Response was made by the president in the absence of Mrs. John Shoulers, who was on the program for response but who was kept away by sickness.

Vocal solo, Miss Gwendlyn Martin. Paper, "The Relation of Church and Missionary Society," was read by Mrs. J. B. Stephenson in the place of Mrs. John Woods, who was absent on account of sickness. Although hurriedly gotten up by Mrs. Stephenson, it was worthy of much favorable comment.

Talk by Mr. Stephenson, "Am I Individually Responsible for a Missionary Spirit in My Church?" This was also an able discourse. Our ladies feel indebted to Mr. Stephenson for helping us out, as Mrs. C. W. Martin was on for this talk, but again sickness interfered.

A roll call of the different auxiliaries in our county revealed the fact that we had a good representation from most of the societies. Several responded with good reports and helpful information.

At the noon hour lunch was served on the church grounds a la cafeteria.

Afternoon. Music by choir; prayer by Rev. Mr. Towe of Seaboard.

Devotional by Mrs. Richard Edwards.

Talk, "Missions and Our Young People," Mrs. J. H. Brown. This was listened to with profound interest.

A vocal solo by Mrs. W. D. Barbee was much enjoyed by all.

The young people and Bright Jewels of Conway church entertained the audience with the following program:

Y. P.—Chorus.
Y. P. duet—Virginia Gariss and Frances Flythe.

Y. P. reading—Clarence Odom.
B. J. recitation—Little John Paul Garriss.

Vocal solo—Lorraine Martin.
Recitation—Glennie Draper.
Report of committees.

Offering. Hymn 633. Benediction.
Next meeting will be with Garysburg auxiliary July 26.

Cor. Sec. pro tem.

A WOMAN'S GIFT STIRS THE CHURCH

Rev. J. W. Daniel, presiding elder of the Cruz Alta district, Brazil, tells this new and startling story: "In Palmerra they are building a new church. It is one of the liveliest congregations in Brazil, with a membership of some two hundred, several of whom are rich enough to pay the whole cost of the building without feeling the pinch.

But this people who know so well how to work among the poor, the sick, the prisoners, who have conversions every Sunday in their services, and sometimes at prayer meeting, do not know the grace of giving. When we put on the campaign there for the building fund, we only raised about one hundred dollars. Nothing discouraged, we continued to preach money, tithing, giving on every occasion, and at last we are beginning to see things come to pass. At the close of the last service I held there a young woman arose and offered a 'conto of reis'—at usual exchange about $300. Everybody was astounded, except myself who did not know her financial condition. Later I learned that she had placed her home on the market, and was offering not a tenth, but one-third of the selling price, to the church. She is a spinster who gains her living by her needle, and her little home is the only property she possesses. I protested that she should not make such a sacrifice, that the Lord does not demand so much of her. She was firm. And now I'm not sure but that the Lord did demand that some one should really sacrifice for the cause. Just why sacrifices are necessary I do not know, but I do know they are not made in vain. The pastor writes me that this woman's gift so stirred the church that there will now be no difficulty in raising the quota assessed. What a whole year's preaching could not accomplish this one sacrifice did within a week."

REIDSVILLE AUXILIARY

Monday evening, March 19, at 7 o'clock the four circles of the Woman's Missionary Society of Main Street church, Reidsville, met in the basement of the S. S. Annex for their quarterly union meeting.

The first number on the program was a most tempting lunch prepared by a committee under the direction of our very efficient president, Mrs. J. S. Turner. This was very much enjoyed by the forty members present. Covers were laid for sixty, but there was a very decided change in the weather and the evening was very disagreeable on the outside. On the inside all was warmth and comfort, and after lunch we all joined heartily in singing "The Kingdom is Coming."

We now entered into a short business session and had reports from the leaders of the four circles, and raised our budget ($50) for the coming year.

We elected Mrs. Lytt Gardner delegate to the annual conference in Monroe.

Program.

Solo: "If Jesus Goes With Me, I'll go," by Miss Mamie Jones.

Reading, by Mrs. Walker of Circle No. 1, "Missionary Woman's Creed."

A quiz on the Centenary, by Mrs. Ellington of Circle No. 2. This quiz gave us an idea of the vastness of the Centenary movement.

Paper: "Echoes," by Mrs. Watt of Circle No. 3.

Circle No. 4 gave two numbers—"How Mary Sue Finds a Home," by Mrs. Addison; "Cindy's Chance," by Mrs. Waggoner.

In this room full of 39 women was one brave man. We were so glad to have Brother Moores with us. He conducted the devotional, reading a part of the first chapter of John, and led in prayer.

We closed this very delightful and inspiring meeting with the singing of "Blest Be the Tie That Binds."

REV. H. H. JORDAN

Rev. H. H. Jordan, presiding elder of the Shelby district, is worth his weight in gold, and then some, to our Sunday school work. In addition to a continual emphasis each year he features his third round of quarterly conferences with Sunday school institutes. At these, on a week day, I have seen more people than could get in the churches. Brother Jordan got his start in a country Sunday school in Iredell county, where as a teen age boy he superintended a dead school to life.

This country lad, after getting only a common school education, read law at Statesville under Major Harvey Bingham and after three years of practice in the legal profession yielded to the insistent call to preach, in which high calling he has been eminently successful. Jordan gets things done.

Years ago at Burlington, N. C., he married Miss Annie Sellars and this happy union has been blessed with six talented children, the youngest three now being students at Trinity College. As his boys and girls go through the learning process so do the parents. Both attended regularly our recently conducted Gastonia Sunday School Training School, even though Mrs. Jordan was quite unwell. There are many Sunday school workers in this land who have been encouraged to press on by the recognition of the elder of the "Old Shelby" and there will be many to gather around him in heaven and talk over old times in the Christian service.

FINE, SUPERFINE

The Gastonia Co-operative Standard Training School was fine, in fact it was superfine. Out of an enrollment of 300 and a regular attendance of 250 one hundred and seventy-four credits were registered, 108 of which were Methodists, 51 Presbyterians and 15 other denominations. The type of work done was very fine as several instances of handwork and written papers will show. The Methodist credit students are hereby given by courses:

MINISTERIAL HONOR ROLL

The number of Methodist pastors who are willing to study to keep up with the aim and program of our growing Sunday school work is constantly increasing. I believe we will have 75 or 100 pastors on our honor roll by the time our next annual conference meets, at which time, it is hoped that the presiding bishop will deliver Certificates of Award. In the recent Gastonia school the following pastors attended, did all the work and received credit:

Revs. H. H. Jordan, W. A. Lambeth, G. W. Vick, A. S. Raper, M. W. Mann, D. W. Brown, O. P. Ader, G. R. Wilkinson.

IN THE LEAD

Main Street, Gastonia, had 52 credits in the recent Gastonia school. This is the greatest number from any one church in our conference, and unless Edenton Street, Raleigh, can beat it, the greatest in the state. Pastor Lambeth and Supt. Separk not only urged their people to work but they worked themselves. Separk canceled a speaking engagement at a big Rotary convention to stay home and write Sunday school papers. Hurrah for Separk and Lambeth and their Main Street, Gastonia, Sunday school!

IN EARNEST

Splendid delegations from Bessemer City, McAdenville, Belmont, Dallas, Cherryville and Mount Holly came regularly to the Gastonia school. In each instance the pastors led the procession.

BETTER AND BETTER

The following came in one mail: Just wanted to tell you that we had 516 present in our Statesville Sunday school last Sunday. This, as you know, is our record attendance to date. We are now striving for 600 and have every reason to believe that we will soon reach and even go beyond that. Would be glad to have you visit us at some convenient time.

Yours very truly,

R. C. Bunch.

Replying to your letter of March 22, wish to say that I am today mailing check to Col. John E. Edgerton in sum of $315, covering the balance due on Wesley Memorial Sunday school pledge to the Centenary fund, amounting in all to $2100.

Yours very truly,

W. T. Powell.

In reply to your recent letter will say that I have already secured our Sunday School Day programs and we will observe the day at Green Street the third Sunday in April. We will try do our best for you. We are going to have the whole school in it from the Cradle Roll to grandpa and grandma. At our last Workers' Council we had 33 of our 38 officers and teachers present. Ha! Ha!

H. C. Jones.

Our Morganton school is moving along in fine style, our attendance being well over the 400 mark each Sunday and we have set our mark for 500 by the first Sunday in May. The Sunday school has a message and in order to give it to the folds you have to get them to come.

Next Sunday I have arranged to go to two churches on the Morganton circuit with Brother Price and establish schools where there now are none. I figure that there is no church too small or too insignificant for a Sunday school and of course it will mean a better church for having one. These churches did not report a school last year.

I received your letter in regard to the Centenary pledge of our school. It will perhaps be information to you to know that I hold a 100 per cent card for our school and that we are keeping up to date with our pledge. We evidently got into this class since you received the statistics from the treasurer. We are going to pay monthly and will be paid up when the time is up. "Every day in every way we are getting better and better."

Kindest wishes,

Joe Kjellander.

NEXT WEEK

Next week I want to present the cut of a young man who is meaning so much to our work in the Salisbury district and at the same time tell of a county-wide meeting he conducted. Lack of space now forbids.

North Carolina Conference

R. E. PRINCE, RALEIGH

Our district secretary of Sunday school work in the Raleigh district is Mr. R. E. Prince, of Raleigh, an active layman and a Sunday school worker of ability and experience. It is to him that this paragraph of our "Who's Who in the Districts" is devoted. Mr. Prince has been active in the Sunday school from his youth up. He was only twenty years old when he was elected superintendent of a school at Pearson, Ga. He came to Raleigh and became a member of Central church in the early part of 1899 and was elected superintendent of this school in the fall of 1903, being now in his nineteenth year as superintendent at Central. With the exception of about four years, therefore, he has been superintendent of some Sunday school since 1897. He has been a steward in his church twenty-three years and has also served in some of the important places of the League. He has also served as president of the Raleigh district Sunday school organization and has always been interested in seeing the great Sunday school cause go forward. As district secretary he is offering himself freely to the work. He is throwing himself into it with energy and enthusiasm, and we expect to see progress in the Raleigh district as a result of his activities. In a letter to superintendents of the district Secretary Prince sounds this clear call. "Help make the Raleigh district the banner district. With your help we can."

Secretary Prince, like all our district workers, is a voluntary worker; he's working for nothing and boarding himself. To provide for the physical and financial necessities of himself and his, however, he conducts a real estate business. He is manager of Prince Realey Company, 301 Tucker building, where he always keeps open house alike to Sunday school workers and customers and clients.

RUNS STRICTLY ON SCHEDULE

Mr. E. S. Yarbrough, of Henderson, Weldon district secretary, visited our Sunday school at Scotland Neck Sunday, March 18, and came away gratified. He found, says he, a live school with a young, energetic superintendent working toward definite objectives and a pastor thoroughly interested and active. Read some other things which Secretary Yarbrough says about Scotland Neck:

"Mr. J. G. Madry, the superintendent, has adopted the Program of Work 'C' and will already make a grading of about 80 per cent, and hopes to make his school a standard one before the year is gone. He had his program for the morning session previously arranged, every song selected, knew who would lead the prayer and what Scripture passage would be read, and, the good part, he carried it out in detail. He started on time, went to classes on time, and quit on time. The officers and teachers were in full accord, and the work ran smoothly.

"Brother Hillman, the pastor, has planned a year's work in the Sunday schools of his charge, has set certain goals and will have each school working towards certain ends. They have planned to have the workers from the three churches meet once monthly for a conference. This first conference met Sunday afternoon and the workers from Palmyra, Hobgood and Scotland Neck had been invited, and some from each place put on the program. The meeting was well attended and every one showed keen interest in the work. The Program of Work 'C' was thoroughly discussed. Mr. Madry made the opening remarks and presided, and Mr. Hillman enthused those present with a strong address on Sunday school work and what they hoped to accomplish this year in his district. "The Hobgood delegation invited the meeting to be held at Hobgood next month, and they will also serve light refreshments."

THIS LOOKS LIKE BUSINESS

"Gibson Sunday school has made great improvement in attendance during the last quarter. We have had several rainy Sundays, but the attendance has not been less than one hundred on any Sunday. We have lost a few members by their moving away into other communities. There are 174 members enrolled in the main school. There has been added a Cra-

CHARLOTTE UNION EFFICIENCY INSTITUTE

The Epworth Leaguers of Charlotte have just enjoyed their third Efficiency Institute, which was conducted by the Charlotte Epworth League Union during the week ending March 30th, at Trinity Methodist church. We were fortunate in having with us during the entire week Mr. E. O. Harbin, third department superintendent, from the Central Office at Nashville, and Miss Grace Bradley, field secretary for the Western North Carolina conference. The other members of the faculty were local leaguers and pastors.

Thirty-eight Christian Culture Certificates were awarded as a result of work done by those attending the institute. The average attendance on the study periods was more than one hundred.

The banner offered to the league with the largest percentage of their membership attending the institute was won by Spencer Memorial League an average of 55 per cent. Trinity League, host to the institute, came second with a percentage of 34.

The prize for the best poster was awarded to Miss Katherine Foard of Belmont Park League. In the absence of the dean, Rev. J. B. Craven, the certificates were presented by Mr. Jas. S. Sease, president of the Charlotte Union.

NORTH MAIN LEAGUE, SALISBURY

A very enthusiastic crowd met Sunday night at North Main Street church and organized a Senior Epworth League. We were delighted to have the Rev. M. B. Woosley, pastor of South Main, and Mr. George M. Jarvis, president of the Senior League at First church, here to speak to us on the nature of the work and the organization of the league.

We are sure of success for three reasons: Because of the efficient officers at its head, because there are several in the league who have had experience in other leagues, and because we have a number of young people to join. We spell nothing but success. Just watch us go.

We elected the following officers:
President—Mrs. M. L. Jacobs.
Vice President—Miss Artie Hoffner.
Supt. 1st Dept.—Rev. J. M. Brandon.
Eupt. 2nd Dept.—Mrs. Baxter Wyatt.

SHALL OUR LEAGUERS ATTEND COLLEGE?

There is a greater appreciation of the value of a college education today than ever before. More of our boys and girls are preparing to go to college and more of them are actually entering college each year than was true the year before. But in spite of this fact, a large number who could go to college if they were willing to pay the price are failing to enter college and are beginning to work.

A number of our finest boys and girls who ought to go to our church schools are entering other colleges each year. Many of these could have been directed to our church schools if enough thought had been given to them at the right time. The Intermediate Epworth League is attempting to do just that sort of work through the League College Club.

Every intermediate chapter ought to use the program given in the Intermemediate Epworthian for April 15th. If the program cannot be used on that date, use it as soon afterwards as possible, but by all means use it. Organize a College Club. As soon as the club is organized send the name of the intermediate superintendent of the league and the name of the correspondent of the college club, together with the names of all members, to the central office of the Epworth League.

As soon as the club is reported, information will be sent, and the club will be put in touch with information regarding the club and correspondence will be started with a representative of each of the Methodist colleges in your territory. Our effort will be to get the colleges in touch with the college clubs and the clubs in touch with the colleges.

There is a tremendous possibility in these clubs. If you want further information, I shall be more than glad to have you call on me.

TRINITY EPWORTH LEAGUE ENJOYS BANQUET

The regular annual banquet of Trinity Epworth League, which is held on the occasion of the installation of its officers for the ensuing year, as a means of welcome and send-off to the new officers, was held at the church on Friday evening, March 23, at 6:30 o'clock.

The retiring president, Mr. G. C. Chalker, acted as toastmaster and made a talk on the accomplishments of the league during the past year and wished the incoming officers "God-speed."

The names of the new officers were then called, and after assembling within the crescent formed by the banquet tables, they were installed by Dr. J. E. Abernethy, pastor of the church, who afterwards made a talk, congratulating the retiring officers on the work of the league during the past year and wishing the new ones the same success, also offering his services when desired.

The incoming president, Mr. M. R. Simpson, was then called on for a speech, whereupon he responded with a stirring and impressive speech, setting forth the attainment of his ambition to become the leader of Trinity Epworth League and that as such he expected to give it his very best and hoped that the league, under his administration, would have the same continued success as that of the past year; also calling upon the newly elected officers to stand by him in his efforts—also stating that he hoped he would have the same success as that of the presidents for the past several years in another respect—that of winning their life's partner.

Miss Winnie White, vice president, was next called upon and she responded by saying that she stood ready to do her part and felt certain that a successful year would ensue under Mr. Simpson's administration.

The officers elected for the ensuing year are as follows: Mr. M. R. Simpson, president; Miss Winnie White, vice president; Mr. Jesse T. Griffis, treasurer; Miss Thelma Wall, recording secretary; Miss Mary Lee Gilbert, corresponding secretary; Miss Marie Owen, Epworth Era and Tar Heel Leaguer agent; Miss Estelle Hamilton, musical director; Miss Mary Van Derberg, publicity director; B. E. Crater, chairman ushers' committee; G. C. Chalker, superintendent department of spiritual work; Miss Alice Pickler, superintendent department social service; Mrs. Paul Palmer, superintendent department of recreation and culture; G. M. Lupo, superintendent department of missions.

SUMMERFIELD

This league was organized Sunday afternoon, March 18, electing the following officers:

President—J. T. Lloyd.
Vice president—C. B. Gamble.
Secretary—Miss Ruby Dawson.
Treasurer—Theo. Crews.
Cor. Sec.—Miss Margaret Medearis.
Era Agent—Miss Katherine Hoskins.
It was a great pleasure to be with them last Sunday evening. I like the way they are getting down to business. The interest shown is inspiring.
D. L. Webster.

GREENSBORO DISTRICT

Every league is busy working on the Anniversary Day program. We are getting the co-operation of our pastors in this and look for April 8th to be the red letter day for the Epworth League in the Greensboro district.

A new league was organized at Bethel two weeks ago. They are progressing finely. A full report from this league will be given later.

The April district union meeting will be held at Walnut Street, Proximity, Thursday night, April 12. All chapters of the district take notice. We are expecting the largest attendance in the history of the union.

The Jamestown Epworth League has been doing some fine work during the last few months which is due in a large measure to the enthusiasm of Miss Novelle Templeton. For some time Jamestown has held the attendance banner of the district union meetings.

Our last meeting was held Thursday night, March 8th, at the White Oak Y. M. C. A. building. We not only had a good delegation, but won the judge's decision in a singing contest between Spring Garden Street church and the Jamestown church, after which we listened to a short talk on "Building Character" by our presiding elder, Mr. Womble.

We have now accepted a challenge from Carraway Memorial church for another singing contest at our next monthly meeting. So join us, all ye leaguers, and let's win again.

North Carolina Conference

A CORRECTION

We desire to make the correction in the last published list of district Epworth League secretaries of Miss Hazel Thompson, Durham, as secretary of the Durham district in place of Rev. G. M. Daniel, as published.

We hope every league in the North Carolina conference at least will rightly celebrate Anniversary Day next Sunday. Our Epworth League Special which we hoped would come out as an Easter Special will be out as an Anniversary Special instead.

We will publish in the next issue of the Advocate a full program of the Summer Epworth League Assembly to be held at Morehead City June 18-24. In addition to the North Carolina conference leaders, most of the platform work will be done by the noted Dr. Ivan Lee Holt, pastor of St. John's church, St. Louis, Mo., one of the outstanding preachers of our church, and by Dr. B. Brummitt, editor of our Epworth Herald, the official league organ of the Northern Methodist church.

Let's get everything in line to break all precedents in the coming assembly. These and the district institutes are indispensable to our every individual league.

THE METHODIST ORPHANAGE

In the spring a young man's fancy not only turns to thoughts of love, but to baseball. Our boys have the fever now and it will run higher as the season advances. We have the material out of which we expect to organize the best team we have ever had. I wish to offer my sincere sympathy to any team that may challenge our boys.

* * * *

Our singing class visited Mount Gilead and Troy the fourth Sunday in March. It was with sincere regret that conditions were such that I could not accompany the class. Mrs. Nellie Rives, who has charge of the class, together with the children, tell in glowing terms of the warm reception which they received at the hands of the good people of Mount Gilead and Troy. We appreciate the many courtesies extended to us by Brothers Martin and Harrell.

* * * *

Just this little reminder. Here and there occasionally a Sunday school or organized class drops behind or out of the procession and causes us to feel sad and lonely. When all are keeping step and others joining the happy band, we experience a feeling of exhilaration. Let's all join hand and heart and march together as one great band of enthusiastic orphanage workers. By so doing we shall make our beloved Methodist Orphanage second to none in all this beautiful Southland of ours!

In the passing of that saintly woman, Mrs. Mary C. Daniels, the Methodist Orphanage loses one of the best friends it ever had. She never made any large gift to us from a financial standpoint, but her loving ministry and self-sacrificing spirit endeared her to our home and enriched the lives of our children. Having been left an orphan at an early age, she understood and appreciated the needs of our children. For many years she clothed one of our girls. From the very beginning of our orphanage work she took a lively interest in everything that pertained to the good of the home. She now rests from her labors and has entered upon her heavenly reward.

Barium Springs, Feb. 20.—The architect was here today going into the preliminary work of the boys' dormitory and baby cottage, which were recently authorized for immediate construction by the board of regents of the Presbyterian Orphans' Home. The ground will be broken for both of these buildings within two weeks. In speaking of the matter today, General Manager Joseph B. Johnston said: "It is our sincere hope that construction of the buildings can be rushed quickly to completion before our list of applications gets so big that even the addition of these buildings will not begin to handle them."

I was present at the Fayetteville district conference for a few hours. The laymen's movement was under discussion. With Dr. W. P. Few as our leader it is confidently believed that the great cause will be given its rightful place in our conference. Brother Willis, who is uniformly courteous to all, was very kind to the orphanage man. Most of us who represent the various interest of the church are disposed to take more time than can well be spared at a district conference when the time is so limited. A short speech right from the shoulder is more effective on such occasions when time is very precious for the transaction of the business of the district. A word to the wise is sufficient.

Don't Take Calomel! "Dodson's Liver Tone" Acts Better and Doesn't Gripe, Salivate or Make You Sick—Don't Lose a Day's Work—Read Guarantee

Ugh! Calomel makes you sick. It's horrible! Take a dose of the dangerous drug tonight and tomorrow you may lose a day's work.

Calomel is mercury or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel, when it comes into contact with sour bile, crashes into it, breaking it up. This is when you feel that awful nausea and cramping. If you are sluggish and "all knocked out," if your liver is torpid and bowels constipated or you have headache, dizziness, coated tongue, if breath is bad or stomach sour, just try a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone tonight.

Here's my guarantee—Go to any drug store and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone for a few cents. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't straighten you right up and make you feel fine and vigorous I want you to go back to the store and get your money. Dodson's Liver Tone is destroying the sale of calomel because it is real liver medicine; entirely vegetable, therefore it can not salivate or make you sick.

WHERE GO TO COLLEGE?

There are three major considerations that determine the greatness, or the potential greatness, of an educational institution.

1. The Plant, including grounds, library, classrooms, laboratories, and apparatus.
2. The Faculty.
3. The Student body and its democratic standards.

In addition to the thirty-four buildings already on the campus, the State of North Carolina is this year putting $1,650,000 into new buildings and equipment. The library of 115,000 volumes is spending $24,000 annually for books and periodicals. Eight thousand volumes were received in 1922-1923, and one thousand and five magazines and learned journals were received on subscription.

The Faculty numbers 128 of the country's best scholars. Speaking of the student body of the University, Mr. Sherwood Eddy, of Yale University, who has spent the major portion of his life studying in four continents, said, that with one exception, it was the most seriously thoughtful and democratic group of students he had ever known.

OUR LITTLE FOLKS

WHAT HAPPENED ON A PUMPKIN LEAF

Once upon a time there was a vegetable garden in which were many things besides vegetables. There were worms and caterpillars and many different kinds of insects. On this particular day several insects had met on a large pumpkin leaf to gossip.

"I see by the latest copy of Insect Fashions that polka dots are the newest thing among the best people," said Mr. Lady-bug, "and I am glad of that, for my wife has been trying to get me to wear stripes for a change."

"And what is the matter with stripes?" asked Mr. Squash-bug.

"Nothing," replied Mr. Lady-bug, "but polka dots are said to be the newest style."

"Well," said Mr. Squash-bug, "I'm going to stick to stripes just the same. I cannot spend a cent on clothes this year, whatever the styles say."

"Then you'll be behind the times," said Mr. Lady-bug, a remark that made Mr. Squash-bug feel sad.

"Oh!" cried Miss Fuzzy Caterpillar. "What shall I do? I have just chosen my new wrap, and it cannot possibly have polka dots on it!"

"I'm sorry," replied Mr. Lady-bug, "but you should have waited before you made your choice. You will have to be out of style, that is all." Poor Miss Caterpillar crawled to the edge of the leaf to hide a tear.

"What about me?" asked a bright green three-cornered bug. "I heard that jade green was the color likely to be the favorite, and I have the newest shade of it. It would not be any prettier if it had polka dots."

"Oh, but you should have had the dots just the same," said Mr. Lady-bug. "It was a great mistake not to, and you will find yourself out of style."

The bright green three-cornered bug turned his head and coughed hard to keep the others from thinking it made any difference to him.

"Dear me!" sighed a red ant. "I wish I had known that sooner. I should have had a large polka dot on my back and a small one on my head, done in jet black!"

"Yes, it is a pity you were hasty," said Mr. Lady-bug. "You will be so old-fashioned." The poor ant cried so hard that his shoulders shook.

"What about me?" asked a large dragon-fly perched on the tip of the leaf. "Polka dots would not be becoming to me!"

"I can't help that," said Mr. Lady-bug. "It does not say that you must stop to think whether the style is becoming or not; it merely says that polka dots are the latest thing, so I am afraid you will look shabby this year." Mr. Dragon-fly hid his large eyes as well as he could with his front legs.

"Oh, but that does not mean me," said Miss Butterfly, who had chosen nearly all the colors of the rainbow. "No one can be more beautiful than I," and she turned slowly round so that the insects could see her.

"Well, my dear," said Mr. Lady-bug, "you may think so yourself, but according to the latest news you are just a plain, everyday person, quite out of style."

Poor Miss Butterfly nearly cried out loud.

Now it happened that under the leaf sat a black beetle, who did not like the way Mr. Lady-bug was going on. Mr. Beetle had neither stripes nor polka dots. He was not fuzzy like the caterpillar, gauzy like the dragon-fly or colorful like the red ant, the bright green three-cornered bug or the rainbow butterfly. He thought it was time to put a stop to the doings; so he crawled out from under the leaf and said to Mr. Lady-bug, "Let me see that copy of Insect Fashions!"

Mr. Lady-bug was so startled he had not time to think; so he handed the magazine to Mr. Beetle and backed off to the edge of the leaf. After a glance at the magazine Mr. Beetle read aloud:

"The latest styles for insects this year are as follows: Summer furs for caterpillars; lengthwise stripes for squash-bugs and potato-bugs; crosswise stripes for ringed worms; gauze for dragon-flies; jade green for three-cornered bugs; red or black for ants; all colors for butterflies; and polka dots for lady-bugs."

"There," he said, "I thought so! Mr. Lady-bug did not give you the whole list of styles. You see, you are all in fashion, as I was sure you were. We shall now hear what Mr. Lady-bug has to say for himself."

But when they looked around they did not see Mr. Lady-bug, for he had flown away. So instead they said it for him, and what do you think it was? Why, that the lady-bug is no gentleman.—Blanche Elizabeth Wade, in Youth's Companion.

AN EXTRA PIG

Alice did not have a great deal to do. That is why she stood so long outside the pen and looked at the white pigs.

"What do you think of them?" asked Mr. Ginty, who was the owner of the pigs.

"They are little dears," replied the little girl. "But there's an extra one."

"How's that?" Mr. Ginty was a friend of Alice's, and he always paid attention to her opinion; so now he put on his spectacles carefully and came closer to the pen.

"Yes, sir," said Alice firmly. "There should be only five pigs in the family. Don't you know, one little pig went to market, one little pig stayed at home, one had roast beef, and one had none, and one little pig cried, 'Wee, wee,' all the way home?"

"That's a fact." Mr. Ginty slapped his thigh. "Well, now, I hardly know what to do about it. Which do you think is the extra one?"

Alice considered carefully. "I believe it's that one," she said, pointing to a fat little fellow standing off by himself.

"I'm sure you're right. He doesn't look as if he belonged here. I wonder—would you be kind enough to—er—adopt that pig—take him home with you?"

"For good, you mean?"

"Yes," said Mr. Ginty gravely, "for the pig's good. He looks lonesome."

"Oh, thank you," Alice had often told Mr. Ginty how much she wanted a live pet. "I should love to have the little extra pig." She was delighted. She clutched the pig in her arms and started to go home.

She walked fast at first, but after a while the sun grew hot, her legs grew tired, and the little extra pig grew heavier and heavier. And just as she had decided that she couldn't go another step she saw an empty pigsty at the side of the road. At the same time the pig squirmed out of her arms and fell to the ground.

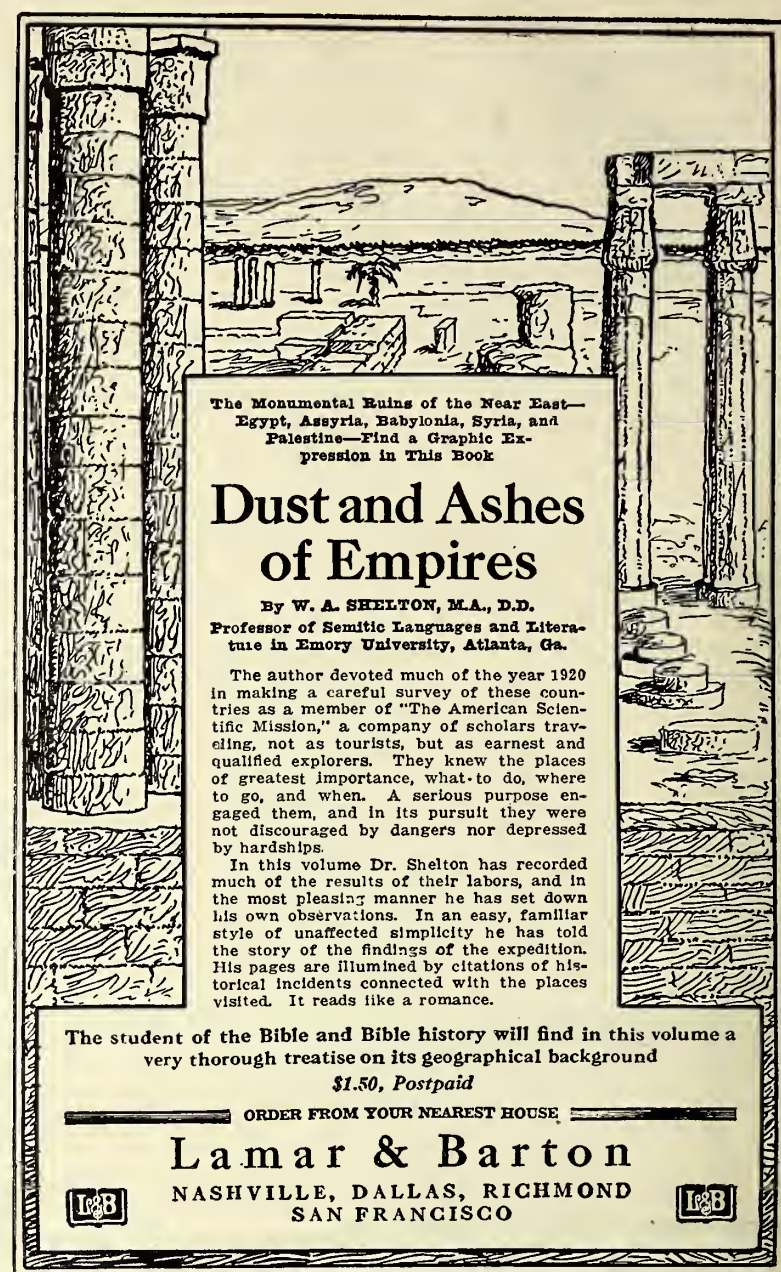

"Oh, your poor little piggy!" wailed Alice and reached down to pick him up. But the pig was already running toward the pigsty.

"A good place to rest," said Alice. She followed the pig into the sty and shut the gate after her. Then her heart sank, for she heard the spring lock fasten on the outside.

She looked about her. The fence was made of boards that ran up and down, too high and straight for her to climb and much too close for her, or for her piggy either, to crawl between.

Now when the little pig found they were locked in he cried too; but he didn't fall down to do it. He went about sniffing at every inch of the fence. Finally at one corner he found a sunken place. It was only a tiny hole, but large enough for him.

With his little round pink nose he began to root vigorously. Now and then he sneezed the dirt from his nose, but not once did he stop digging. When Alice was tired of crying she looked round and saw him just squeez-

Dust and Ashes of Empires

By W. A. SHELTON, M.A., D.D.
Professor of Semitic Languages and Literature in Emory University, Atlanta, Ga.

The author devoted much of the year 1920 in making a careful survey of these countries as a member of "The American Scientific Mission," a company of scholars traveling, not as tourists, but as earnest and qualified explorers. They knew the places of greatest importance, what to do, where to go, and when. A serious purpose engaged them, and in its pursuit they were not discouraged by dangers nor depressed by hardships.

In this volume Dr. Shelton has recorded much of the results of their labors, and in the most pleasing manner he has set down his own observations. In an easy, familiar style of unaffected simplicity he has told the story of the findings of the expedition. His pages are illumined by citations of historical incidents connected with the places visited. It reads like a romance.

The student of the Bible and Bible history will find in this volume a very thorough treatise on its geographical background ing his fat little body through the hole that he had dug.

"Oh, don't leave me," she begged.

But the pig gave a grunt and pulled himself under the fence. Then he shook himself and started down the road with a happy little squeal.

"Well, I guess what pig can do I can do." Alice thought and began to dig at the hole that the pig had made. Some of the dirt got into her eyes, and a great deal clung to her hair; but she kept on digging.

The pig was fat, but Alice was thin; and before long she was able to squeeze herself through the hole just as he had done. "And I didn't have to use my nose," she thought, with a laugh. Once outside, she shook herself and started down the road just as piggy had started, except that she didn't squeal.

The road led over a brook that had to be crossed on a bridge of slim logs laid together. The pig had started over the bridge, but instead of staying on the logs his feet had slipped into the spaces between. When Alice arrived there he hung, with his legs dangling on both sides and his fat little body see-sawing across the top of a slippery log. He squealed with all the breath he had left.

Alice could not help laughing at him. But one good turn deserves another, and right here was where she could repay the little extra pig for starting that hole. By this time he had come to look upon her as a friend; so he did not squirm when she lifted him in her arms and carefully picked way over the bridge.

Once across the brook she set him on the ground. "Now, sir, I'm done with you. You may do just as you please. I'm going home." She turned at the crossroads. She was so hot and tired and dirty that pigs no longer interested her. She did not even look to see which way he turned at the four corners, nor did she care!

It wasn't far now to her home. She ran through the yard and into the house, but as the screen door swung shut behind her she heard a forlorn little grunt and whirled round in time to see piggy caught in the crack.

"Oh, you precious little thing, did you follow me? Do you really want to be my own little extra pig?" She held the door open for him to come in. Together they walked straight into the room where mother and father were.

"Why!" cried mother. "What have we here?"

"A little extra pig," said Alice.

"Umph! It looks like an ordinary pig to me," said mother. But it did not look at all like an ordinary little pig to Alice.—Catha Wells, in Youth's Companion.

the Roll department, with Mrs. Berta Adams as superintendent, and a Home department with Mrs. A. J. Parker as superintendent. There are 17 members of the Cradle Roll and 36 in the Home department. This gives us an enrollment of 227 in all departments. The membership of the church is 182. We have a Workers' Council in which the officers and teachers plan their work. Have held one meeting. The teachers are showing a great deal of interest in their work. Most of them have their classes organized and will apply for certificates.

For one week beginning February 23 a non-standard teacher training school was conducted by Mr. L. L. Gobbel and Miss Georgia Keene. They did us fine service. Several persons from other churches were present during the week. We were greatly benefited by the school. The school has filled a much needed want in the life of our teachers and officers, and we hope to have still another course in the future. Our school is not a standard one yet, but we are planning to reach the standard in the near future. We are working and planning to meet the threefold task of the Sunday school, which is to guide the growth of the pupil into religious knowledge and to train them in Christian worship and Christian service.

Respectfully submitted,
Willie Gibson, Supt."

The foregoing is the report of the superintendent at Gibson Sunday school to the quarterly conference of St. Johns and Gibson charge, Rockingham district. This superintendent has reported, in a concise yet comprehensive way, the conditions of his school. The report itself and the facts reported indicate interest and business-like methods, so essential to successful Sunday school work. Other superintendents should read paragraph 390 of the Discipline.

SANFORD AND SILER CITY

Your conference superintendent of Sunday school work spent Sunday, March 25, in Sanford and Siler City, speaking to the Sunday schools, workers' councils, and congregations at these places, making six engagements in one day. Sunday morning he visited Steel Street Sunday school and said a few words there. At 11 o'clock he spoke to 400 or 500 people, and after this hour met with the officers and teachers of the school, presenting the Program of Work for the class-room type Sunday school. These workers voted unaproposely to adopt this official program for their school and to set about systematically to attain the points of excellence set forth in the program. These good people not long since have made several changes and improvements in their Sunday school equipment, providing two or three departmental rooms, and expect to reach more members and improve the effectiveness of work. Rev. L. B. Jones, the pastor, believes that "nothing is more important at this time than the Sunday school work," and he is giving considerable attention to it.

OVER THE A. & Y. LIMITED

Double-timing it from Parson and Mrs. Jones' dining table, via their Franklin automobile, to the union station, your conference superintendent caught the Atlantic and Yadkin Limited (limited to twenty miles per hour, more or less,) at 1:42 for Siler City, where he had engagements for the afternoon and evening. At 3:30 he was in the West End Sunday school, where he found Supt. J. F. Lambe and his assistants working away at the King's business and to whom he presented the Program of Work for the small Sunday school. At 4 o'clock he met with about forty officers, teachers and friends of Siler City Sunday school, in a workers' council meeting and discussed the Program of Work and other phases of Sunday school interest. Then at 7:30 he spoke to the whole congregation.

This congregation is now using the ground floor of its new building, which, when completed, will represent an outlay of approximately $30,000. The Sunday school, under the leadership of its energetic superintendent, Mr. M. M. Fox, and its good pastor, Rev. O. I. Hinson, is taking on new life, and expects to do greater things when it can use its new equipment. This school was organized in 1886, with Mr. W. F. Womble (now the Rev. W. F. Womble, presiding elder of the Greensboro district) as superintendent. He served for three years and was succeeded by Mr. J. F. Lambe, who was at the helm for eighteen years, when the present superintendent, (a brother of Rev. E. W. Fox of the Western North Carolina conference), was chosen for this office.

PARKTON TRAINING CLASS

Rev. R. F. Munns has organized a training class at Parkton with an enrollment of fifteen, seven or eight of whom will stand the examination for a certificate of credit. "The Pupil" is the course being studied.

BYNUM TRAINING CLASS

Rev. John R. Edwards is teaching a class of Sunday school officers and teachers at Bynum in "The Organization and Administration of the Sunday School."

WHOLE LOT IN FEW WORDS

In a few words Supt. Paul C. Moore says a whole lot about his Sunday school. Read what he says: "The Sharon Sunday school, North Rocky Mount charge, is working to become a 100 per cent Sunday school this year, Program of Work "C." We are carrying out the ten points or requirements. Have ten classes, five of which are Wesley classes. The average attendance for the first quarter was 75 per cent, officers and teachers 93 per cent."

AN APPRECIATION OF PROF. A. M. NORTON

We, the senior class of Weaver College, owing to our regard for our president, Prof. A. M. Norton, our appreciation of his work and influence, and our regrets at his departure, pass the following resolutions:

1. We feel that Prof. Norton is a man of the highest Christian character, has a broad mind and a generous heart; that he possesses wonderful self-control, great fortitude and judgment in time of stress, and unusual power to handle delicate situations; that he is a teacher of marked superiority, which qualifications distinguish him as a man of superior ability, and as one fitted to be a leader of young people in a Christian college.

2. We wish to express our deepest appreciation of his work with us, his justice to the individual student, his deep insight into our needs, his fair-minded generosity, and for the example of his noble life.

Also, we wish to express our sincere appreciation for the interest Mrs. Norton has shown in us, and the many ways in which she has helped us.

3. We feel the deepest regret that we are to lose the man we so much appreciate and love. We regret the loss that Weaver College sustains in losing him. Also, we wish for Prof. Norton the greatest success in the field of work that he takes up.

Passed unanimously, first by the senior class of 1923, and then by the entire student body.

That is not the best sermon which makes the hearers go away talking to one another, and praising the speaker, but which makes them go away thoughtful and serious and hastening to be alone.—B. F. Burnet.

THIRTEEN MILLION DOLLARS IN CHURCH VALUES

The value of property belonging to the Methodist Church in North Carolina exceeds $13,000,000. On this vast amount of property there is only $3,000,000 of insurance—less than one-fourth of its value protected.

See that your church officials protect your most valuable assets or you may be called upon to donate again to rebuild a church parsonage destroyed by fire.

IN MEMORIAM

SHANK—Sarah Jane Shank was born September 4, 1846; died February 28, 1923, age 76 years, six months and 24 days. She was twice married, first to Daniel Adams and last to Thomas Shank. She was the mother of five children. Two dead, three living, two in Concord, one at Mischaner Springs.

She professed religion when quite young and joined the Methodist church at Salem and was a member when the end came. She was a great lover of the Bible and a constant reader of it, and she made it her life-long study. Even in her last days when her health was declining it was still her desire to read her Bible, and when friends would visit her she would talk of the Bible and her desire to continue it until the end came. She was bright, cheerful and a patient Christian light until the end came.

She leaves three children, 26 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren and a host of friends to mourn her departure. Comfort to her loved ones and peace to her ashes. F. F. M.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

God saw fit on the night of January 31, 1923, to send the death angel into the home of Dr. J. P. Brown to bear the soul of Mrs. Florence Sanford Brown through the portals. She had been a great sufferer for many years. In early childhood she gave her life to Christ and walked daily with Him through a pilgrimage of fifty-six years. She was the first Bright Jewel in North Carolina, and was a charter member of the Florence Brown Missionary Society and of the Parsonage Aid Society. She worked for everything that was for the upbuilding of her church and community. So great was our love for her and so keenly do we miss her that we resolve:

First, That we, the Missionary Society of Trinity M. E. Church, South, of Fairmont, N. C., bow in humble submission to the rulings of God.

Second, That we will emulate her example, walk in the paths she has trod and try to be so ready for every call.

Third, That we extend to the family our heartfelt sympathy, our love and our prayer in this hour of sorrow.

Fourth, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, a copy be spread on the minutes of the Missionary Society, a copy be sent to the Robesonian, and one to the N. C. Christian Advocate for publication.

Mrs. A. S. Thompson,
Mrs. W. F. Trawick,
Mrs. E. J. Chambers,
Committee.

DRAPER—The subject of this sketch was born September 20, 1841; died February 14, 1923. He was the son of the late Richard Draper and Emma Elizabeth Everett. He was thrice married. His first wife, who was Miss Sallie Winfield, died March 22, 1880. To this union were born Mrs. Emma Adams of Washington, N. C., Thomas Draper, Mrs. R. H. Criffiel, Mrs. C. E. Waters, Mrs. Ella Williams, all of Bath, N. C., who live to mourn his loss. Besides these he leaves four grandchildren as well as a host of friends all over Beaufort county and elsewhere, who feel the loss of a kind friend and useful neighbor. His second wife, to whom he was married in December, 1882, was Mrs. Martha Adams, who died October 9, 1908. There were no children born to this union. On March 12, 1913, he married Mrs. Mattie Marse, who still survives him. Brother Draper was a consistent member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and was trustee to the church property for a great many years, holding that position at the time of his death. For a number of years he has been in declining health, and during this time he was not heard to complain, but seemed to realize the presence and power of an Almighty God, and passed off quietly to his eternal reward. He was laid to rest in the old burial ground near Bath, funeral services being conducted from his home by his pastor, Rev. R. J. Lough, in the presence of a large number of sorrowful friends and loved ones. Peace to his ashes. R. J. Lough.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

On the morning of January 13, 1923, God in His infinite wisdom and love took to Himself the spirit of Mrs. Henry A. Rives, removing from her family circle of husband and two little girls a devoted wife and mother; from our society one of its most loyal members, and depriving all whose privilege it was to know her well of an exceedingly true friend. Therefore we resolve:

That, although our hearts are saddened because of her going from us, we will be resigned to the will of God, who makes no mistakes but causes all things to work together for good to them that love Him.

That we will extend our heartfelt sympathy to her family in their bereavement and point them to the Great Comforter.

That a copy of these resolutions be sent the family, a copy spread upon our minutes and one sent to the N. C. Christian Advocate.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

The following resolutions were adopted by the quarterly conference of the M. E. Church, South, Morehead City, N. C., February 16, 1923:

In the wisdom of our heavenly Father, He has seen fit since our last conference to take from us by death our much loved friend and co-laborer, Bro. R. W. Taylor, who was for a long time the very efficient and faithful chairman of our board of stewards as well as a trustee of the church.

His going seems untimely to us and we cannot understand why those who are so faithful should be called so soon. The irrevocable call to him has caused us to reflect upon the uncertainty of life, and to more fully realize that what we have to do in the church of Christ or elsewhere we must do very quickly. His faithfulness will ever be an inspiration to us to do our best in the work in which he was engaged with us.

Be it resolved, That we bow humbly and submissively to this ruling of providence; we shall miss Brother Taylor, not only in our church, but in the community as well; we shall try to emulate his Christian life, and feel that we are the better by reason of our association with him. His patient suffering during his illness was beautiful, and could but impress those who came in intimate touch with him, of his perfect resignation to the will of Him "who doeth all things well."

Resolved further, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon our minutes, a copy conveyed to his widow and children, and publication of same be made in the N. C. Christian Advocate and the Coaster.

CROWELL—Mrs. Sarah Jane Davis Crowell, widow of the late S. H. Crowell of Indian Trail, died at her home February 28, 1923, of pneumonia. She was a daughter of A. A. and Martha Davis of Union county. She was married to the late Samuel H. Crowell on October 15, 1896, and to this union were born seven children, all of whom survive. They are Misses Annie, Kate, Allea, Martha and Sarah Crowell and Messrs. Clayton and Samuel Crowell, also a step-son, R. B. Crowell of Indian Trail. Also surviving are her aged father, A. A. Davis, three brothers, A. W., W. C. and J. L. Davis, of this county, and two sisters, Mrs. E. H. Morris of Indian Trail, and Mrs. T. A. Plyler, wife of Rev. T. A. Plyler of Woodleaf.

Funeral services were conducted at the Indian Trail Methodist church, of which the deceased was a devoted member, at 11 a. m. Thursday, March 1, 1923, by her pastor, assisted by Rev. T. J. Huggins, our pastor at Weddington, Rev. Mr. Shankel, former pastor, and Rev. Mr. Underwood, the present pastor of the Indian Trail Presbyterian church. Mesdames J. F. Laney, C. C. Weaver, Ray Funderburke and G. M. Smith furnished the music. Interment was at Mint Hill cemetery.

Nothing better could be said of Mrs. Crowell than that she loved her God and Saviour and the church. This love dominated all her activities. As the product of this love she has a home not made with hands, eternal in the heavens, and the church has a heritage never to be forgotten. R. E. Hinshaw, Pastor.

FERRELL—Mrs. Alda Nicholson Ferrell was born in Iredell county near Statesville about the year 1869; died February 25, 1923. Between these two dates there was lived a beautiful life.

Seven years ago Miss Nicholson married Bro. W. V. Ferrell. After their marriage they came to Burgaw to live and make their home; and their home was not merely a house, it was a home presided over by this good woman.

She had been a member of the Methodist church for a long time. We shall miss her, for her presence together with her husband was a benediction. Brother Ferrell is lonely and sad without her. She died at her father's home in Statesville and was buried at Snow Creek Methodist church. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. J. W. Moore, pastor of Broad Street Methodist church, Statesville, N. C.

Blessings upon her aged parents, Brother Ferrell and all of the family. Her pastor, C. H. Caviness.

PATTEN—Ellen Frances Patten (nee Hancock) was born in Tremham, Mass., January 18, 1842. Wellington Patten and Ellen Frances Hancock were married February 5, 1867, at Bridgeville, Delaware. They moved to Mt. Olive, N. C., in 1898. Mrs. Patten was a charter member of the Presbyterian church at Calypso, N. C. Removed to St. Cloud, Fla., in 1920, where she died February 25, 1923. Her sons, Wellington and Walter, were with their mother when the end came.

She is survived by her husband, Wellington Patten, St. Cloud, Fla.; her sons, Edwin Patten, Rockville Center, L. I., Wellington F., Calypso, N. C., Charles H., Providence, R. I., Walter, Chapel Hill, N. C., and her daughters, Mrs. H. J. Pope, Mt. Olive, N. C., Mrs. H. L. Faison, Norfolk, Va.; brother, Charles E. Hancock, Providence, R. I.; sister, Mrs. F. M. ## DR. MARVIN L. SMOOT

The subject of this sketch was born August 24, 1876, at Cool Springs, Iredell county, N. C., and died in the triumphs of the Christian faith in Fayetteville, N. C., February 6, 1923. He gave himself to God and joined the Methodist church when only 13 years old. On April 5, 1906, he was married to Miss Margaret Giddens of Goldsboro, N. C., unto which union were born children, two of whom, a daughter, Margaret V., and a son, Marvin L. Jr., with their mother survive. On August 1, 1912, he moved to Fayetteville for the practice of his profession. Thus are given about the chronological facts of one of the best lives that ever blessed the walks of mankind.

I count it an extraordinary delight to have known intimately the deceased through a period of six years—to have had his confidence, to love and be loved by him. After this acquaintance with him I would not have suggested one alteration, if I had been given the privilege of making him over. In temperament he was quiet, rather reserved, not of surplus words, with no spirit of show, preferring to follow than to lead, but willing to do either if duty called him. His convictions of right were clear-cut and his courage was heroic in his stand for them. He leaves the record of no word or act to stain any page of his clean life. He made good in any sphere he moved, whether as a citizen laboring to promote the civic righteousness of his city, a co-worker in Y. M. C. A. activities, a steward and Sunday school superintendent in his church or the kind-hearted, sympathetic physician in the relief of human suffering. Excelling everywhere else it was, however, in the home sphere that he reached the highest peak of unsurpassed excellence. In the sacred precinct of the family circle he appears that Christian husband keeping inviolate his marriage vows and that patient sympathetic father. Here in this circle of brightness, with his devoted wife and children about him, he spent his happiest moments and found his most precious companionships. He loved his loved ones, tenderly gratifying the wants of each, and delighted in having his friends join him in the joys of his household.

With such a record behind him, no wonder that he could approach that sleep which knows no human waking with the calmness of going away for a vacation pleasure, gently call his son to him and say, "I am depending on you. Be a good, clean man," and to his daughter, "My old partner, how I love you!" and to another, "I have a home waiting for me." What a blessed heritage of sacred memory this closing, touching scene of Dr. Smoot's life to this bereaved wife, children, sister and three brothers with his innumerable friends!

In the ever widening sphere of usefulness, more and more entrenching himself in the love of a city population which vents itself in tears at his passing, and not old: Why must he go now? Out in the unknown to human mind lies the possibility that God needed him to help lift up the fallen of another sphere even more than on this, thought that seems hard to say. Se he may be gone to do his best work after reaching efficiency here.

So dear Dr. Smoot, we will not think of you as sleeping in the cold, cold ground, but of carrying cheer and sunshine to other God-created beings, hungering for the clasp of a warm hand and the smile of a bright face, or as resting in that home you said was waiting for you.

Farewell till we meet you again.
J. D. Bundy.

Easy Now to Double Winter Egg Yield

Proven Remedy Gives Remarkable Results—Turns "Boarder" Hens Into Profitable Layers—

Winter yields, double and treble those of former years, are now being made by many poultrymen through the use of a compound that science has finally perfected.

This wonder which is called "Hick's Egg-Lay", contains expensive ingredients mixed so that it increases the egg yield. The medicine acts on the productive organs and causes you to lay a larger number of eggs (the germ of egg) to be produced. Thus you get many more eggs and get them during the time they bring the highest prices.

Hick's Egg-Lay is prepared for convenience in tablet form. Simply dissolve one tablet in a quart of water. This is the surest, easiest and quickest way ever discovered to get more eggs.

A Final Cost You Nothing

Are you so confident that Hick's Egg-Lay Tablets will double or treble your egg yield that he is making a special guaranteed offer of one regular double strength $1.00 package of Egg-Lay Tablets and a full $1.00 package of Hick's famous Lice-Go Tablets all for $1.00.

Lice-Go is added to the drinking water. The medicine taken into the system of the bird comes out through the oil glands of the skin and every louse or mite quickly leaves the body. Keeps the birds always free without the noxious raiser doing any harm. If you would rather have two $1.00 packages of Egg-Lay Tablets or two $1.00 packages of Lice-Go (instead of one of each, say so on your order. Send $1.00 for currency, money order, check, etc.) to H. H. Hick & Company, Dept. 916, 1018 So. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Illinois. If you prefer, send no money. Just your name and address and pay postman $1.00 and postage on delivery. If after thirty days trial, you are not absolutely satisfied, write Mr. Hick and your money will be refunded. This offer is absolutely guaranteed, so don't hesitate to make the best.

Gentlemen:—A year ago I purchased one of your Appliances, and after wearing it three months I was completely cured. The Doctor had told me I would have to have an operation, but I advise all sufferers of hernia to try your Appliance first. You may publish my statement if you care to.

The Above is C. E. Brooks, Inventor of the Appliance. Mr. Brooks Cured Himself of Rupture Over 30 Years Ago, and Patented the Appliance From His Personal Experience. If Ruptured Write Today to the Brooks Appliance Co., Marshall, Mich.

Ten Reasons Why

You Should Send For Brooks Rupture Appliance

1. It is absolutely the only Appliance of the kind on the market today, and in it are embodied the principles that inventors have sought after for years.
2. The Appliance for retaining the rupture cannot be thrown out of position.
3. Being an air cushion of soft rubber it clings closely to the body, yet never blisters or causes irritation.
4. Unlike the ordinary so-called pads, used in other trusses, it is not cumbersome or ungainly.
5. It is small, soft and pliable, and positively cannot be detected through the clothing.
6. The soft, pliable bands holding the Appliance do not give one the unpleasant sensation of wearing a harness.
7. There is nothing about it to get foul, and when it becomes soiled it can be washed without juring it in the least.
8. There are no metal springs in the Appliance to torture one by cutting and bruising the flesh.
9. All of the material of which the Appliances are made is of the very best that money can buy, making it a durable and safe Appliance to wear.
10. We guarantee your comfort at all times and in all positions, and sell every Appliance with this positive understanding.

April 26, 1921.

Mr. C. E. Brooks, Marshall, Mich.

With Best Wishes,
Wm. Vedders.

I wore your Appliance a long time, being afraid to go without it, but am completely cured. I will be glad to answer any inquiry that is made and words tell how thankful I am.

Sincerely yours,

OUR MONTHLY SERMON

By

Rev. Clovis G. Chappell, D. D.

A GOOD MAN—BARNABAS

Text: Acts 11:24.

This is the text: "He was a good man." Doubtless you think me daring to the point of rashness to undertake to interest and edify a modern congregation by talking about a virtue so prosaic as goodness. "He was a good man." We do not thrill when we hear that. It is not a word that quickens our pulse beat. We do not sit up and lean forward. We rather relax and stifle a yawn and look at our watches and wonder how soon it will be over. We are interested in clever men, in men of genius. We are interested in bad men, in courageous men, in poor men and rich men, but good men—our interest lags here, nods, drowns, goes to sleep.

The truth of the matter is that the word "good" is a bit like the poor fellow that went down from Jerusalem to Jericho. It has fallen among thieves that have stripped it of its raiment and have wounded it and departed, leaving it half dead. It is a word that has a hospital odor about it. It savors of plasters and poultices and invalid chairs. Its right hand has no cunning. Its tongue has no fire. Its cheeks are corpse-like in their paleness. It seems to be in the last stages of consumption. If people say we are handsome or cultured we are delighted, but who is complimented by being called good?

What has wrecked this word? What is the secret of its weakness and utter insipidity? Answer: bad company. The Book says, "The companion of fools shall be destroyed." And this word is an example of the truth of that statement. It has been forced to rub elbows with bad company till it has come into utter disrepute.

Its evil companions have been of two classes. First, it has been made to associate with the gentleman about town whose greatest merit was that he would smoke a cigar with you, if you would furnish the cigar, or take a drink with you, if you would furnish the liquor. He also graced a dress suit, even though it were a rented one with the rent unpaid. And he looked well in pumps. He was a graceful dancer and good at poker. He also was very skilled in never having a job. And his friends all said that "he was a good fellow." And, of course, being forced to keep company with said fellow was enough to ruin the reputation of the word forever more.

But as if that were not enough calamity to befall any innocent and inoffensive word, it was forced into another association that was but little less disreputable. There was an individual—sometimes a man, sometimes a woman—who did not swear, nor lie, nor steal, nor dip snuff; whose conduct was as immaculate as that of a wax figure in a show window; who never made a mistake, nor did he ever make anything else. He was as aggressive as a crawfish and as magnetic as a mummy. He was "faultily faultless, icily regular, splendidly null." And one day we felt called upon to clothe this colorless insipidity, this incarnate nonentity, with some sort of an adjective, and so we threw around its scrawny shoulders this once glorious robe "good." We said, "Yes, he isn't much account, it is true, but he is a good fellow." And the garment fit him as the coat of Goliath would fit a pigmy. But little by little the once great cloak seemed to draw up and to come to fit the figure of the dwarf.

Thus the word "good" lost its reputation, fell, as many words and many folks do fall, through bad

Introducing the Preacher: Dr. Chappell is the pastor of the Representative Church of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, Washington, D. C. He preaches to larger congregations than any other pastor in the capital city and hundreds are turned away every Sunday for lack of room. His are interesting and helpful gospel sermons which attract all classes and conditions of people.

company. But let me remind you that, in spite of popular misconception, "good" is not after all a weak word. It is a strong, brawny, masculine word. It has the shoulders of a Samson. It has the lifting power of a Hercules. And the reason God employed it here to describe this man Barnabas was not because He had to say something about him and could not find anything else decent to say. It was not a word to cover up the deformity of uselessness or the glaring defect of a moral minus sign. He used the word because there was none other that would fitly describe the fine and heroic man of whom He was speaking. It means here all that "Christian" means.

"He was a good man." That was what God said about him. That was how he looked when seen through "the microscope of Calvary." He had matriculated in God's school, and after faithful and patient study, his Master gave him a degree. And what was that degree? Barnabas, the genius? No. Barnabas, the gifted? No. It was a higher degree than either of these. It was the highest degree that Heaven itself can confer. He gave him the degree of "good." Barnabas, the good. "For he was a good man."

Now, why did God call him good? Or, in other words, what are the characteristics that go to make up a good man? When is a man good in the sight of "Him who sees things clearly and sees them whole?" In what branches must a man show himself proficient in order to receive this degree? I ask these questions with the hope that some of us who are here today may want to matriculate in God's school to receive the high degree that was conferred upon Barnabas.

The first branch in which Barnabas showed himself proficient in his preparation for this degree was the branch of Christian Stewardship. And I make bold to say that no man will ever receive the degree that Barnabas received who is not proficient in the grace of stewardship.

Here is the story. Barnabas is in Jerusalem at the time of Pentecost. The church is in the early spring-time of its power. Many Jews, both home-born and foreign-born, have been brought into the fold. They have thereby broken with their kindred, and many of them are without any means of support. Then Barnabas comes forward. He is a wealthy land owner. He sells his land and puts every dollar of it upon the altar of his Lord, for the saving of the church in its hour of crisis.

What does this mean? It means that when Barnabas became a Christian, that when he gave himself to Christ, he gave his money also. Now, stewardship for you may not mean that you, as Barnabas, sell what you have and give it all away. God does not call upon all men to do that, but what He does do is to call upon every man to put both himself and his money at His disposal. He calls upon every man to recognize God, and not himself, as the owner. That is the first step in Christian stewardship: that God owns all; He owns me; He owns my home; He owns my children; He owns my property. I have called your attention before to the fact that the modern idea of ownership is pagan. The Christian idea is this: that God is the absolute owner of all things.

Second, Barnabas was proficient in that difficult branch that we call faith. He had acquired faith till he was full of it. Faith in God? Yes, he had faith in God. That lies back of all that he did and all that he became. But the faith that shows itself most in his life, as we see it is his faith in men. How he did believe in folks! Confidence in men is an essential to true goodness. I do not believe that a cynic was ever a really good man. I know we sometimes pride ourselves on being hard to fool. We congratulate ourselves at times on being able to see more through a keyhole than other folks can see through a wide-open door. We boast of our ability to read character and to see behind the scenes and to detect sham where other folks dreamed there was sincerity. And I am not arguing for blindness or stupidity, but what I do say is this: that the really good men are the men who believe in their fellows.

You have met the man who says that every fellow has his price. But whenever you hear a man say that you may know that there is at least one man who does have his price, and that is the man who is making the statement. You can compromise till you come to persuade yourself that compromise is the law of life. You can play with honesty till you come to believe in the dishonesty of the whole world. And the man without confidence in his brother is a man who personally knows that he himself would not do to trust.

Barnabas believed in men. One of the greatest enemies that the church ever had returned one day from a tour of persecution in Damascus. He declared that he had been converted on the way, but nobody in Jerusalem believed him. Yes, there was one glorious exception. That exception was Barnabas. He believed in Paul, staked his reputation, his life, his church, which was dearer to him than his life—he staked all these upon his faith in Paul's sincerity. But for that, Paul might have been lost to the church.

And here is another instance: Paul and Barnabas are on their first missionary tour. With them is a young man named Mark. He has been tenderly nurtured. He finds the missionary life harder than he expected. He proves a coward and goes home. Years after, when the faces of Paul and Barnabas are again set to the battle front, Mark once more offers his service. But Paul will not accept him. He knows that the mission field is no place for parlor soldiers. And so he flatly refuses to allow him to become a part of the army of invasion.

But Barnabas—somehow he cannot bring himself to give him up. He believes that even if a man failed once he may succeed at a second trial. He believes that a coward may become a hero, that a deserter may yet become a trusted and faithful soldier. And so he stands by John Mark even at the great price of parting company with Paul. And his confidence was gloriously justified, as our confidence so often is. Who wrote the second Gospel—one of the choicest pieces of literature in the world? It was written by John Mark, the deserter.

Then years later, when bitter days of persecution

SOME FAMILY HISTORY OF UNUSUAL INTEREST

A letter of unusual interest has just reached us from Rev. W. L. Sherrill of Leaksville. It is so replete with important family history of wide interest that we must give it to the Advocate readers. Brother Sherrill who is just up after an illness of ten days writes:

"During my illness I received the sad news of the death of Rev. Dr. John Langdon Weber, Rev. Dr. John O. Wilson and Judge Geo. E. Prince, all closely related to our family. Dr. Wilson and Judge Prince both married daughters of the Rev. Dr. Samuel Lander, the founder of Lander College, and were all men of exceptional ability and prominent church men. It seems a strange providence that these men, associated with my family by marriage and blood should have died during the last ten days of March.

"My grandfather, Samuel Lander, the First, an Irishman fresh from Tipperary with his wife and two children, members of the Church of England, arrived at Boston in 1818, and at easy stages made their way to Salisbury, where one hundred years ago they dwelt for a while. Fortune did not favor them, a fire destroyed their home and all their possessions. Finally about 1825 they proceeded to Lincolnton and through the attention of Methodist circuit riders, my grandfather attended the Rock Springs Camp Meeting in Lincoln county in August, 1828, and was powerfully converted, and with Irish zeal became a zealous Methodist and local preacher, exercising a wonderful influence for near forty years in that section until his death in 1864. He was a man of wonderful mentality and his wife was a cultured gentle-woman. After his conversion, fortune smiled upon him. He prospered, he educated his children, among whom were:

"First: The Honorable William Lander (for whom I was named), who was a noted orator and brilliant jurist; was a member of the Constitutional Convention of 1861 and of the Confederate Congress. All of the Landers now in Lincolnton are his descendants.

"Second: A second son, Rev. Dr. Samuel Lander, who served the church as a teacher, first at Olin and at Greensboro College, Lincolnton Seminary and Davenport College removed to South Carolina in 1870, and Lander College at Greenwood today stands as his monument. His son, Rev. Dr. John M. Lander, has been a missionary to Brazil since 1889. His two daughters were the wives of the two gentlemen who have recently died. His other sons occupy positions of prominence in the social, professional and industrial life of South Carolina.

"Third: Ann Lander, the oldest child of Samuel Lander, the first, married John W. Weber of Snow Creek, Iredell county, and was the mother of Rev. Dr. Samuel A. Weber, the Nestor of the South Carolina conference, and Dr. John L. Weber, who has just died, is his son. As was also Dr. William Lander Weber, a layman, but consecrated Christian, son-in-law of Bishop Wilson and member of the General Conference of 1910. He died in 1911.

"Fourth: Margaret Lander married Rev. Dr. William I. Langdon, a brilliant preacher of his day, of the North Carolina conference.

"Fifth: Sarah Katharine Lander was my mother.

"You will observe from all this history, Samuel Lander, the First, converted at the Rock Springs Camp Meeting in 1828, set in motion a chain of influences which have flowed on as an ever widening stream, and left as his conversion to Methodism, he becoming a preacher himself, his son Samuel Lander, the Second, was a preacher and his son, John M. Lander, and Norman Lander Prince, son of the late Judge Prince, who died last week, and Dr. Samuel A. Weber, his son, Dr. John L. Weber, and myself, besides Dr. John O. Wilson and Rev. William I. Langdon and Rev. Geo. H. Wells married in the family."

It is particularly interesting to note that the pivotal point in this interesting story furnished by Brother Sherrill is in the conversion of Samuel Lander at the Rock Springs Camp Meeting in August, 1825.

Methodist circuit riders had induced him to attend the camp meeting in Lincoln county, where he was powerfully converted. What a debt this nation and American Methodism owe the circuit riders of those early days! What mighty influence through the first half of the nineteenth century was the camp meeting!

"METHODIST ADVOCATE"

The name of the Midland Methodist, which is the official organ of the Holston, the Tennessee and the Memphis conferences, was a few months ago changed to the Central Methodist Advocate. Owing to the similarity of this name to that of The Central Methodist of Kentucky, the joint commission of the Tennessee paper, at the request of the managers of the Kentucky paper, dropped "Central" from the name of their paper and it now stands "Methodist Advocate."

We like the new name better than the former name because it is shorter, simpler and saves from the confusion of the names of the two papers.

The Methodist Advocate of which Dr. J. A. Burrow is the editor is as bright as a new silver dollar. Its editorials sparkle. For news notes, personal and otherwise, it knows no end. Those Tennessee Methodists should give their paper enthusiastic support.

DISTRICT LOAN FUND

The Greensboro district conference has not done a finer thing than establish a loan fund for ministerial students of limited means. Only a few minutes were required at Pleasant Garden last week to secure $1070, which was contributed by churches and individuals. Other contributions will be secured each year to supplement this fund till the money loaned shall have been paid back in sufficient amounts to take care of all those in the district who need such aid.

The trustees have decided upon a low rate of interest, 4 per cent, and will require full reports of the grade of work done by the beneficiaries, so that only worthy students shall have access to this sacred fund. But there will be no lack of worthy young men in need of help.

Other districts would do well to establish such a fund. There would be little trouble to raise the money if properly presented and it would serve a great purpose in providing for the needs of worthy students.

GOD HONORS HIS OWN

Randleman was the editor's place of service last Sunday morning. After the sermon at St. Paul's church, Rev. J. A. Bowles, the pastor, in about two minutes secured the renewal of all subscribers present and five new subscribers. This was the beginning of his campaign for the paper. Brother Bowles is doing at Randleman the same high grade, constructive work that has characterized his ministry for 40 years. No man among us has been a more successful workman in all the charges that he served than has J. A. Bowles. The gracious hospitality of the parsonage at dinner was enjoyed to the limit. Only two of the children, the baby boy and the youngest daughter remain at home. The other two daughters with their husbands have builded homes of their own. Five boys, manly, noble young men, are out in the great busy world filling a large place. There is not a black sheep in the flock. But each of them is adding fresh honors to the "sons of the parsonage."

EXPANSION OF RELIGIOUS TRAINING AT TRINITY COLLEGE

Rev. J. M. Ormond, who for two years past has been a member of the faculty of the school of theology of Southern Methodist University, has during the spring quarter taken up his new duties as a member of the department of Religious Training of Trinity College. Prof. Ormond's coming to Trinity increases the number of full time instructors in this department of the college to three; Prof. H. E. Spence and Prof. James Cannon III having been working in the department for several years. The two North Carolina conferences have provided for four full-time instructors in this work at Trinity, and a force of nine men is contemplated when the full program is put into effect.

There are now 70 candidates for the ministry at Trinity and 35 students, men and women, are members of the life service band, the majority of whom are volunteers for the foreign mission fields. The present year there are 495 students taking college courses in religious training, 190 of whom are taking active courses. Besides the three full time instructors in the department two other members of the college faculty offer courses in this field.

GREENSBORO DISTRICT CONFERENCE, PLEASANT GARDEN

Gardens may be "pleasant" or otherwise. From Eden to Gethsemane is included all the human emotions. But Pleasant Garden is properly named. Every one who attended the district conference will say so.

Was it this inviting community, love for Elder Womble or fear (?) of the bishop that brought every preacher to answer present at the conference? These factors possibly are to be considered but, knowing the men, we should say that love for the church had most to do with it. Anyway, they were all there and it was a notable and profitable meeting.

In addition to the preachers present 100 per cent there were more church lay leaders there than usual. And they talked about their jobs earnestly and hopefully. Those of us who preach have new reason for joy in this age because our splendid laymen are holding up our hands and taking over an increasing amount of the detail of the work. With Ireland leading the conference and Tate the district, this work in our section is going to be carried on and out.

This conference was characterized by a fine spirit that carried the routine and work of the assembly without tedium. Every committee and man did the work assigned with pleasure and the reports indicate that the district is in good spiritual and financial condition. The quiet and earnest leadership of the presiding elder is being felt and followed. His contribution to the nurture of the children and young people is so marked that every church must feel it.

The visit and the ministry of Bishop Denny was without doubt a most gracious and inspiring occasion. Those sermons will reverberate in the memories of the congregations for days and years. It seemed that every preacher went out after the high tide of Friday with more heroism and deeper love for the Christ of Paul than he had ever commanded. No greater evidence of wisdom and true service can be had than this reaching out to the people in small communities on the part of our bishop.

Possibly the greatest single act of the conference was the creating of a loan fund for needy ministerial students. For some time the district has felt the need for a supporting hand for her young and ambitious students. One thousand and seventy dollars was subscribed by the churches and individuals and trustees were elected to administer this important fund, which shall be a revolving loan to be turned back as soon as the one aided can get to work.

The following delegates were duly elected after much balloting to represent the district at the annual conference: C. H. Ireland, F. C. Odell, F. N. Tate, I. F. Craven, W. B. Hunt, R. B. Chance, J. M. Gibbs and W. M. Clark; alternates, T. A. Glascock, R. E. Bundy, A. J. Idol and E. P. Hayes.

Aaron Watson Lynch was licensed to preach and recommend to the annual conference for admission on trial.

All the interests of the church had careful attention—the space and time does not allow a published record. Many other things were done and written in a book and all those who visited the conference and made speeches (or tried to) and those who came to see the bishop and get their names in the Advocate (Newell, for instance,) are hereby disappointed. I think I know who ought to be praised at this conference: Hurrah, for Lofton and Pleasant Garden! They actually fussed because more people did not spend the night with them!

L. B. Hayes, Secretary.

E. J. Harbison, G. W. Clay, Assistants (and did most of the work.)

Have a care for the children in the home. The leaders of our church life today in the great majority of cases are men and women who were nurtured in Christian homes. This is as it should be and as it will continue to be. There is no escape from this fact and there can be no substitute for the Christian home. The church and the Sunday school may and must supplement the work of the home in this respect, but these cannot become substitutes. Good mothers and good fathers are even more essential than good preachers. The right sort of homes are the sure foundations of both church and state. The salvation of society comes largely through the mothers of the race.

Rev. J. C. Umberger of Westford church, Concord, has just closed a good revival in his church, which resulted in a number of accessions and a quickened interest in all the work of the kingdom in that promising field. Brother Umberger has found time to get out a most helpful parish paper.

Dr. J. A. B. Fry, our pastor at Stockton, and Mrs. Fry, left last Monday for the meeting of the General Board of Education to be held in Nashville, April 11 and 12. While East Dr. and Mrs. Fry will visit the old home in North Carolina and other interesting points.—Pacific Methodist Advocate.

The work on the Forest Hill church at Concord is being rushed now and it is hoped that the middle of the summer will see this large building enterprise completed. This congregation is looking forward with great interest to the coming in June of Dr. G. T. Rowe, of Nashville, Tenn., to conduct a two weeks' revival.

The Methodist people at Franklin have just paid off a $10,000 debt on their church and Bishop Denny on the second Sunday in May, following the meeting of the Waynesville district conference, will dedicate this elegant and commodious house of worship. Rev. Jesse Lanning, who was last December transferred from North Carolina, and is stationed at Ukiah, in the Pacific conference, has thoroughly won the hearts of his people. He particularly has laid hold on the young life of his church, and is organizing the young people in a manner that promises the largest success.—Pacific Methodist Advocate.

Revival services at Ahoskie closed last Sunday night at the Methodist church. There were seven accessions to the church on profession of faith, six of whom were baptized. There will be received into the church about twelve by letter. The preaching was done by Rev. S. T. Barber, pastor in charge, and his sermons made a deep impression on those who heard him as being an earnest gospel preacher.—Herald.

Another students' recital was given Monday night in Odell Memorial building of Greensboro College. The program was made up of compositions by American composers only, which proved a welcomed innovation. The work of the students was of the kind that is unanimously spoken of as successful. They had no trouble with memory, exhibited none of the symptoms of stage fright. They were faithful in adhering to the fundamental principles of the general laws of musical interpretation. One excellent number followed another the whole evening. The pianists met the trying ordeal with steady hands and played their selections in a manner greatly to be praised. The two singers, Misses Clarabel Morris, Ashboro, and Dorothy Waldrop, Hendersonville, sang in that artistic way that can please an audience which can tell good singing. The pianists were Misses Kathryn Jones, Sanford; Mabel Parker, Clinton; Agnes Edwards, Seaboard; Audrey Bruton, Mt. Gilead; Willie Faire Hemby, Matthews; Mary Scott Tucker, Raleigh; Ernestine Reynolds, Elizabeth Mann, Lois Allred, Bailey Watson, Greensboro.

DAVENPORT COLLEGE NEWS

A thoroughly enjoyable program was given to the students and faculty and to the public by the Davenport College Glee Club on Tuesday, April 3, at 8 p. m. Under the direction of Prof. F. W. Kraft, of the Department of Music, the young ladies were well trained, and gave the following much appreciated numbers:

"The Gypsy Trail" (Galloway-Warhurst). Glee Club.

"Song of the Brook" (Hewitt). Louise Tabor.

"The Fairy Pipers" (Brewer-Stebbins). Lila Fisher, Mildred Sherrill, Louise Templeton.

"When Celia Sings" (Moir). Ada Farthing.

"The House That Jack Built." Mary Shelley and Glee Club.

"Narcissus" (Nevin-Martel). Ethel Davis, Helen Meyers, Ruth Hargett.

"In An Old-Fashioned Garden" (Squires). Helen Meyers.

"Dreaming" (Shelley). Glee Club.

"The Grasshopper," a tragic Cantata (Randolph).

There will be a meeting of Davenport alumnae on Monday evening, April 16, to make plans for a homecoming of the former Davenport students for the commencement exercises, May 21-23.

It has been officially announced by President Hornaday that the annual literary address will be delivered this year on Wednesday of commencement week (May 23) by Dr. E. C. Brooks, state superintendent of public instruction for North Carolina. The college considers it a great privilege to have so distinguished and interesting a public man to deliver the commencement address.

Many Davenport students went home for Easter. But those who remained at the college were by no means left unthought of. There was a weiner roast, attended by both teachers and students, on Saturday night. On Monday morning at ten o'clock, upon the invitation of Mr. S. S. Jennings, the students and members of the faculty visited the plant of the Lencir Chair Company and were conducted through the factory and shown the machinery, processes and craftsmanship that are necessary for the manufacture of high grade chairs. The visitors followed the process of making chairs from the rough lumber all the way through to the finished product. The exhibition was a real benefit to all who attended. Refreshments were served to the visitors by the management of the company. A handsome little footstool was presented to that one of the guests who held the lucky number in a drawing contest, Miss Nettie Hauser being the fortunate one.

Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Johnson, of Seagrove, visited their daughter at the college during the Easter holidays.

Wesley Taylor.

TRUSTEES TO MEET

The board of trustees of Jefferson School is called to meet at the Methodist church at North Wilkesboro, on Thursday afternoon, April 19th, at one-thirty o'clock. This is a very important meeting, as plans for the future of the school are to be fully considered and decided upon. John F. Kirk, Chm. Board of Trustees.

"HONOR TO WHOM HONOR IS DUE"

I note in this week's Advocate you give me credit for sending in the 54 subscriptions, when as a matter of fact I do not deserve it. Brothers I. F. Craven and V. C. Marley really deserve as much as I, as they are on the committee and helped secure them. Please correct this in next week's issue of the Advocate. As much as I covet the honor, I cannot accept credit for all of it.

Wishing you and your great paper all the good things you may desire, I am, Yours very truly, C. B. Smith.

We did not intend to overlook Brothers Craven and Marley, but the check for a moment threw us off our balance.—Ed.

SIMPSON-GRIFFITH

A pretty wedding marked by quiet simplicity was solemnized Wednesday afternoon, April 4, at 12:30 o'clock, when Miss Orion Edna Simpson of this city became the bride of William E. Griffith of Winston-Salem. The ceremony was performed by Rev. R. G. Tuttle, pastor of Centenary M. E. church, at the home of the bride's parents at 515 Julian street, in the presence of a few intimate friends and relatives.

Mrs. Henry Faulconer played "Traumerei" during the ceremony and Miss Lee Allred sang softly "I Love You Truly."

The room was decorated tastefully and artistically with palms, Easter lilies and snap dragons.

Immediately following the ceremony the happy couple left for New York City and other points for an extended trip of ten days or two weeks. Upon their return the young couple will make their home in Winston-Salem.

The bride is the attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Simpson. She is an accomplished young woman of lovely Christian character and has a wide circle of friends.

Mr. Griffith is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Griffith of Winston-Salem and holds a responsible position with the Underwood Typewriter Co.

OUR MONTHLY SERMON A Good Man—Barnabas

have come, Paul is in prison. He especially needs men about him now on whose loyal courage and devotion he can count absolutely. For whom does he now ask? Listen! "Take Mark and bring him with thee, for he is profitable to me for the ministry." Mark has come back. He has been saved to Christ and to the church. And the one to whom we are mainly indebted for his salvation is none other than the good man Barnabas. And Barnabas won because of his sturdy, persistent faith.

Now to some this virtue may seem a bit of a weakness, but if weakness, how like it is to the weakness of Christ Himself! For certainly one of the most marvelous characteristics of Jesus is His faith in men. How Jesus could expect that the poor slattern who was dragged into His presence taken in adultery could be utterly different from that hour, I do not know. I certainly would not have expected it of her, but He did. And I hear Him saying to her, "Go and sin no more." How Jesus could expect that twelve faulty, unlearned, self-seeking men, such as His disciples were, would ever be the means of remaking the world, I cannot for a moment see. They failed Him in His hour of supremest need. They slept in the garden and ran like frightened sheep when He was arrested. And yet, knowing their cowardice and their weakness, He tumbles the responsibility of world conquest upon their frail shoulders with the declaration that "the gates of hell should not prevail against them." Certainly the wildest faith that was ever exercised is the faith that God exercises in men. And the faith of this man Barnabas was a quality born of a goodness that was close akin to the goodness of God.

That is the way, I think, that this man got his name. You know they did not always call him Barnabas. The folks over in Cypress knew him as Joses. They named him Barnabas because that was the word that best described him. It was a verbal picture of the man. What does it mean? A son of consolation. Isn't that fine? James and John were called the sons of thunder. That speaks of power, might, dash, the lightning's flash, the thunder's crash. There is storm wrapped up their personalities. But Barnabas is the peaceful sunset after the storm. He is the light at eventide. He is a son of consolation.

Now, if there is anything finer than that I do not know just what that something might be. To be incarnated encouragement, embodied comfort, flesh and blood consolation—it would be hard to find a better vocation than that. This man had the tongue of the learned that he might be able to speak a word in season to him that was weary. He delivered men from the bondage of their self-despisings, from the burden of their self-contempt. He brought hope where there had been despair and turned the westward gaze toward the east. He pointed out the streaks of dawn that were lighting the sky. He made men hear the bird's song within the voiceless egg and to catch the perfume of flowers under the snow. He was a son of consolation. "Be pitiful," says Dr. Watson, "for every man is having a hard time." There are some folks who depress us. There are some wet blanket personalities who stifle us. And there are others like Barnabas who refresh us, and when they come and knock at our doors we pass out of the stuffy atmosphere of a mental prison into a flower garden where the air is fresh and sweet with perfume and musical with the morning song of birds.

And last of all, Barnabas was a spiritual man. The inspired writer says that he was full of the Holy Ghost. And that implied, of course, that Barnabas was a man fully given up to God. There can be no deep spirituality apart from that. Our surrender is the condition of our being full of the Spirit. "For we are His witnesses of these things, as is also the Holy Ghost, whom God hath given to them that obey Him."

So you can readily see why Barnabas has a right to the fine compliment that is paid him here by the writer of the Acts. Barnabas was generous with his possessions. He had the Christian attitude toward money. Barnabas was generous in his judgments. He had a brother's attitude toward his fellows. He was thoroughly missionary. He made Christ's program for world conquest his own. He was profoundly and genuinely spiritual. And because of these fine qualities one who know him well said of him, "He was a good man."

Now, there are compliments more flashy than being called good. There are encomiums that are much fuller of glitter, but in spite of that, I am convinced that nothing greater or better could possibly be said about any one of us living today or any one that ever has lived than just this that is written about Barnabas: "He was a good man." I had rather my boy would be able to say that about me when he stands by my grave, sunken and grass-grown, than to say anything else in all the world.

Brother, let us covet goodness. Let us seek that rare treasure. For there is nothing better or finer or more beautiful or more useful. "Goodness." It is the fairest flower that can ever bloom in your soul garden. It is the sweetest music that even God's skilled fingers will ever be able to win from your thousand stringed heart harp. It is the virtue in those we love that grips us tightest and holds us longest. And wonderful to say, it is within reach of every one of us.

There are certain fine things that you and I can never possess. We know that. Genius, greatness—they are high and forbidding mountain peaks. Their sides are rugged and precipitous. They have pulled iron hoods of snow and ice upon their brows. But goodness—that is a peak that may be scaled by the tender feet of little children and by the tottering feet of old age. It may be scaled by the reluctant feet of those in life's prosaic middle passage. Let us address ourselves then to this high task. Let us matriculate this morning in God's school for this degree, the degree of "goodness." And one day it may be written of us as it was written of Barnabas, "He was a good man."

BREVARD STREET IS ALL RIGHT

After all, the Brevard Street people do have some life and good qualities. The report which came to me the day that the appointments were read in Monroe last October was to this end: "You are going up against the toughest bunch that is to be found in the conference." It was discouraging to a fellow going to his first regular appointment. Even in my first sermon I showed a big lack of confidence and trust, but I tried my best to look for the good and not think of the ugly report which had come to me.

I forgot the ugly report after the first Sunday. I turned myself out in the field of service and gradually I saw that genuine Christian leadership was what was needed in this community. The Sunday school work was growing and the leaders were desirous to see it reach out and render the service which it should render in this community. This being the work in which I am especially interested cause me to realize my opportunity. Day by day I realize that I have a great opportunity in the Sunday school work and in my pulpit. I am trying to meet these opportunities the best I possibly can, and I am deeply gratified with the co-operation I have received. When I made it known that I was going to have a companion in the parsonage with me, the official board started plans to do some work on the parsonage. They did the work—a good job, too. The Ladies' Aid decided then that they would finish the job, and they did it well. On Tuesday night, March 13th, when Mrs. Higgins and I came to the parsonage, we found it beautifully lighted and decorated in good taste, a well prepared supper, and a table in the kitchen so well loaded that even now we can see some of this food lasting until up in the summer.

Without exaggerating, I believe that there are some members in this church who do not know what failure is. The Ladies' Aid is composed of just such people. We do not have so very many, but when they decide to do a piece of work they do it. The Sunday school superintendent is a man interested in the young life of the community, and his labors are bearing fruit. The board of stewards are wide awake, and we are greatly encouraged with the prospects for the year.

Mrs. Higgins and I are happy in this field of service as we realize the great challenge which it presents to us, and when a challenge becomes a charm there is joy in the work.

I believe the Brevard Street people have a joy in the work.

Chas. H. Higgins.

OUR PREACHERS' GRAVES AND MEMORIAL DAY

At our last conference a committee was appointed to see that more attention be given to and care taken of our preachers' graves. Memorial Day, May 10th, was suggested as the time when these graves should be cleaned off, if necessary, and decorated with flowers. Where there is a grave of one of God's ministers unmarked, if the church and community where such a grave is located desires to erect a modest tombstone or monument over the sleeping dust of these heroes of the cross, it would be a most commendable thing to do. But let each community that is so highly honored as to have one or more of our preachers' graves in its cemetery see to it that proper attention is given and flowers are placed there Memorial Day.

The following is the committee by districts: Asheville district, L. R. Geiger, Hendersonville, N. C.; Charlotte district, J. A. Bell, Charlotte, N. C.; Greensboro district, C. H. Ireland, Greensboro, N. C.; Marion district, D. E. Hudgins, Marion, N. C.; Mount Airy district, J. D. Minick, Mount Airy, N. C.; North Wilkesboro district, J. D. Moore, North Wilkesboro, N. C.; Salisbury district, Rev. J. F. Armstrong, Concord, N. C.; Shelby district, Clyde R. Hoey, Shelby, N. C.; Statesville district, W. D. Turner, Statesville, N. C.; Waynesville district, D. J. Kerr, Canton, N. C.; Winston-Salem district, Rev. W. L. Hutchins, Lexington, N. C.; W. R. Ware will try to get in touch with some one who will agree to look after the graves out and beyond the bounds of our conference.

Will the pastor, some layman, or other interested person, where a grave of one or more of our preachers is located, please notify at once some member of the above named committee where such grave is; and will each committeeman please make permanent record of the name of each minister and place of burial. Unfortunately there is no such record known to our conference. Let's be ready to make as complete a report as possible to the conference next October. Will not all concerned please manifest active interest in the sacred cause above mentioned.

W. R. Ware.

WE MUST REDEEM OUR PLEDGES

Bishop Collins Denny.

In the apostolic church collections for the work of the church played no small part, and in his Epistle to the Corinthians the Apostle Paul treats of these collections. Promises had been made by the Corinthian church, and the apostle urges the payment of these promises. In that day he was able to speak of the fact that "in a great trial of affliction and abundance of their joy and their deep poverty abounded unto the riches of their liberality." Indeed, he is able to say that he could bear record to their power, "yea, and beyond their power, they were willing of themselves," so willing that they prayed the apostle and his associates "with much entreaty that they would receive the gift and take upon themselves the fellowship of the ministering to the saints."

It will be helpful to all of us to read and re-read the eighth and ninth chapters of the Second Epistle to the Corinthians. The apostle had boasted in Macedonia and Achaia of the promises of the Corinthians and now he urges those Corinthians that they do not make him ashamed in his confident boasting. He was calling for a payment of the ready subscriptions made by the members of the Corinthian church.

With a liberality beyond anything known before in Methodism our people made large subscriptions during the Centenary period. We must now, following the example of the apostle, urge upon our people not to fail to pay these subscriptions. It will be to us, as it would have been to the Corinthians, a "shame" not to redeem the promises made. Our "poverty" is not so "deep" as was the deep poverty of the Corinthians, and our poverty can also abound unto the riches of our liberality.

Great as was our rejoicing when the subscriptions were made, and great as was the blessing that came to us at that time, greater still will be the rejoicing and the blessing when with thanksgiving to God for the opportunity and ability we shall have paid for His work and His glory the subscriptions we were glad to make.

THE DURHAM DISTRICT CONFERENCE

The fifty-seventh session of the Durham district conference was held in the Methodist church at West Durham. The first session began at 10 o'clock Thursday morning, March 29, and was continued through Friday.

All the preachers having charges were present except Brothers M. Bradshaw, N. C. Yearby and N. E. Coltrane. They were detained on account of illness either of themselves or some one in the home. The attendance of the delegates was very gratifying: We have had some unusually unfavorable spring weather for the farmers. Until recently they have been unable to do any work on their farms. Notwithstanding this many of them came to the conference and remained until the close. The attendance of visitors was larger than usual, both local and connectional.

Practically every department of our activities was represented by some one or more of the connectional workers and their addresses were of the finest order. It is hard to think that the laymen or preachers could go away without a new vision and a greater determination to do the work assigned to them.

The following were some of the connectional brethren: Mr. G. L. Morlock, general secretary of the Board of Lay Activities; Dr. T. M. Elliott of the publicity department of the Centenary; Rev. A. W. Plyler, editor of the North Carolina Christian Advocate; Rev. C. G. Hounshell, educational secretary of the Board of Missions; Dr. S. B. Turrentine, president of Greensboro College for Women; Rev. A. S. Barnes, superintendent of the Orphanage at Raleigh; Rev. H. M. North, conference secretary of the Christian Education Campaign; Rev. R. M. Courtney, Centenary secretary for both North Carolina and the Western North Carolina conference; Dr. W. P. Few, North Carolina conference lay leader; Rev. S. A. Stewart, president of the Hiroshima School for Girls in Japan. Prather Stewart preached on Thursday evening to the delight and edification of the conference.

The reports from the preachers were encouraging. Some have already been engaged in special evangelical work and the others are planning their meetings. The Epworth League work was especially encouraging in many parts of the district.

The work among the laymen is taking on new life and there will be a forward movement along this line of endeavor. It is the aim to have a live organization of lay activities in every church in the district.

The delegates to the annual conference are: Dr. W. P. Few, J. T. Ware, R. L. Flowers, W. H. Woods, Miss Mattie Pulliam, Dr. N. P. Boddie, J. A. Isley, and H. H. Mullen.

From the beginning of the conference till the end the efficient presiding elder kept the interest of every one from lagging. It is the regret of the whole district that Brother Plyler is rounding out his fourth year in the Durham district. He has done a great work in every way and the affairs of the church are in much better condition than when he came to us. F. S. Aldridge, Secretary.

A NEW PARSONAGE AT CARTHAGE

One of the most up-to-date parsonages owned by any charge in the North Carolina conference, if not in the entire state, is the new domicile just completed at a cost of $7,000 by the Carthage circuit, Fayetteville district.

The plans for it were drawn by S. Gasden Sayre, well known architect of Raleigh, and Anderson, S. C. The construction work was in the capable hands of Norman Kline, local contractor, and the result is a splendid, artistic and well built structure, that is a thing of beauty and will no doubt prove a "joy forever" not only to Rev. G. W. Perry and his family, the present occupants thereof, and those ministers who are to be designated to follow him, but also to the good people of the church and charge who made it possible by their contributions, as well as our people generally.

It would take a connoisseur to justly describe in detail the many good points of the building. Suffice it to say that it is of wood, two stories high, and contains 12 rooms including bath. On the first floor there are, reception hall, dining room, breakfast room, kitchen, two bed rooms and bath. On the second floor is the study, dressing room, two bed rooms and a bath.

No doubt feeling that such a handsome structure should have a proper setting and becoming setting, the ladies of the Carthage church had the yard and grounds put into splendid shape, employing a florist to plant out suitable shrubbery in the yard.

Hardly had Brother Perry, the popular pastor, and his family been settled in their new home, when the Carthage and Center churches gave them an "unmerciful pounding." Making for a while at least it a matter of small concern to them whether the H. C. L. goes up or down. S. R. H.

BETHEL, MARVIN, WEST HICKORY, HOUK'S, FAIR GROVE

Four good points for Bethel:

1. Our meeting, March 23-April 1.
2. The ladies put the building in good condition for the meeting.
3. During the meeting Bethel pounded the pastor.
4. The editor of the Advocate visited Bethel.

The Rev. N. C. Williams, of Granite Falls, preached ably, and Prof. J. W. Bennett, of Rutherford College, led the singing acceptably, in addition to preaching two strong sermons. Our people were revived.

Pastor and family are happy over the kind and severe pounding.

We enjoyed the editor's visit. I want the Advocate in every Bible home.

On the fourth Sunday morning in March I walked into a church where I thought Marvin church was. I asked, "What church is this?" It had on a new spring hat and new clothes—in plain words, a new roof, and painted outside and inside, a new carpet for the pulpit, and so on. Nearly all our Marvin Advocate subscribers have renewed and I think the others will do so. With a membership of 74, Marvin takes 14 Advocates.

While West Hickory hopes to be in a new church within a few years, our people are repairing and beautifying the old building. The Epworth League has charge of the inside work—cleaning and carpeting. We needed a new roof; we put on a galvanized iron roof so that when we sell the old building, if it should be remodeled the roofing can be used.

Houk's is repairing and is improving in church attendance and interest.

Look out later for some extra good news from Fair Grove.

I want our Advocate in every home at every church. J. R. Walker.

GOOD RESULTS AT FOUR OAKS

I am sending a list of subscribers and a check to the amount of $72. Hope to be able to send more soon.

At Four Oaks, cdSHRETASHETTETAOETAOI Our new Four Oaks church was completed and opened for services one month ago. We have the best church in the county. Our Sunday school has increased about 100 per cent since going into the new church. Our revival services will begin in this church with the first Sunday in May. Bro. H. A. Humble will do the preaching and we are expecting a great meeting.

The church at Sander's Chapel gave the pastor a big pounding and always furnish him a big crowd to preach to. The Elizabeth people are continually giving and doing things—two turkeys and many other nice things for Christmas.

The reason you have not heard from us was because we were too busy to write and not because we had nothing to write about.

Come to see us and we will give you a good time. J. A. Russell.

VISITING DAY IN GRAHAM

By G. M. Daniels.

Every alert pastor, I think, gets tired now and then of the grind of routine, and will heartily welcome a suggestion or plan that holds promise of breaking the monotony by the fact that it has been worked successfully somewhere. With this in mind, I am wondering if there are not quite a few pastors right here in North Carolina who will be interested in a visiting program which worked in one church.

Our workers here who have gone out in the annual every-member canvass and the special canvasses for different cause have invariably come back with this statement from some one or several who have somehow been neglected or overlooked in the swapping of neighborly visits: "None of our Methodist people ever come to see me EXCEPT WHEN THERE IS SOME MONEY TO BE RAISED." The remark has origin sometimes in a generally disgruntled disposition; sometimes in a brooding, dyspeptic imagination; and oftentimes in fact.

Anyhow, sometime ago a few of us determined to give that wall a jolt. We would surprise some folks by making a visit and getting away without calling attention to the dotted line. In a business-like way five interested persons set to work, with the pastor, to do the first necessary thing—district the territory. We didn't want anybody to be overlooked. After outlining boundaries for six districts, we took the roll of members and located every Methodist home according to district.

Three Sundays before the day set for visiting the plan was announced, and its possibilities emphasized. On the next Sunday attention was again called to the program, and a card was passed out which asked four questions:

Do you think this visiting plan a good one?

Do you think of a particular home we ought to visit?

Whom do you suggest for a visitor?

Will you make at least one visit under direction of a leader?

Right away these cards enlisted the attention of everybody, and when they were taken up we found that quite a large number had volunteered to make one or more visits. Some that the committee hadn't thought of at all seemed eager to visit. The rest was easy. One week remained, and then "visiting day." In this week we selected our leaders for the six districts, and apportioned visitors according to the number of homes in the district. District number two, for instance, had twenty-three homes, while district number five had only six. Of course district number two was given the larger number of workers.

Then came the day. There was not much to do except visit. Everything was in readiness. Announcement was made in the Sunday school and preaching service that all visitors were agreed to meet at the church at two-thirty, spend a half hour in getting final directions, then spend two hours in visiting. At the hour appointed the visitors were at the church and it was a matter of just a few moments to "pair off" the workers and put cards giving the names of persons to be visited in their hands. On the card also was a number of topics suggested for conversation, as prayer meeting, the Sunday school, the Epworth League, the church paper. "Money" was taboo.

At the evening service there were radiant faces and happy hearts. True, there were tired bodies; some "so tired they could hardly drag." But what is tiredness when there is joy in the soul! And every Methodist home had a visit. You see, when the two hours set for visiting were up, the visitors dropped in to see each other. Wasn't that fine? Conversation on high themes in more than a hundred homes in a comparatively small community on Sunday afternoon—and everybody enjoyed it. The bond of Christian fellowship cemented more closely; all more securely tied to our great God-blessed church! Brother, it is worth trying.

A UNIQUE EVANGELISTIC MEETING

Twenty-three accessions by vow at the end of a four-day evangelistic meeting is a rather unusual result. It was a meeting with and for the children exclusively. A junior chorus-choir led the singing. When an offering was taken—one time crooked sticks were currency, another it was empty spoons—junior boys waited on the congregation. When the altar was crowded with those who had come to surrender to Christ, it was a line of juvenile church members who encircled the altar to pray for their companions. And when the junior group had been received by vow and baptism they reverently knelt about the chancel and received the elements of the Lord's Supper.

The simple gospel truths were illustrated with stories, blackboard drawings, and other object lessons, and the response of the boys and girls to the gospel messages were spontaneous, and yet deliberate and serious.

Why not have a graded system for evangelistic work as well as for the day-school and the Sunday school?

Our accessions total fifty-six to date at First church, Marion. W. E. Poovey.

ADVOCATE CAMPAIGN REPORTED BY DISTRICTS AND CHARGES

The Statesville district in the following report leads with a total of 236. The Shelby follows a close second with 218. Charlotte has 185 and Fayetteville is close up with 173. Fayetteville leads in the number of new subscribers and Shelby in the number of renewals. According to the reports that reach this office, the campaign is now going good in most places.

WHAT ARE PUPILS READING?

Do you object to your boys and girls reading trashy literature? Then, provide them with more wholesome reading. Our publishing house issues four weekly papers for Sunday school pupils—for the sake of the children, youth, and young people and not for the sake of revenue. They are: "Boys and Girls" for children under ten, "The Haversack" for boys from ten to seventeen, "The Torchbearer" for girls from ten to seventeen, and "Our Young People" for young people. You owe it to your pupils to provide these. Order them with your next supplies, if not before.

A SANITARIUM IN THE MOUNTAINS

Through the columns of the Advocate I wish to advise any of its readers who may need to spend the summer months at a sanatorium in the mountains that an excellent place exists in Weaverville, N. C., known as Bethel Home. It is situated on the side of Hamburg Mountain and commands a panorama of wonderful mountain scenery. The Home has all conveniences, water lights, etc., and the expense of boarding will not exceed ten dollars a week for each patient. The co-operative plan makes possible this low rate. Only tubercular patients who are able to be up and about can be taken. The sanatorium is conducted as a Christian home, and only those who wish to be in such a place are desired. Opened May 1, it stays open till November 1. Those desiring further information should communicate with Rev. Homer Casto, Bethel Home, Weaverville, N. C. I can recommend the place fully.
James H. Burrus.

GREEN STREET, WINSTON-SALEM, MAKING GOOD RECORD

"They make you work whether you want to or not," said Rev. G. A. Stamper, the new pastor of Green Street church, a few days ago in conversing with a friend. Perhaps this is the reason he has kept out of the columns of the Advocate this year. However, as a layman, I wish to tell the Methodists of the two conferences something of the work of one of the best churches in the state.

Entering a new house of worship last year at the close of a successful four-year pastorate, the congregation regretted to see Rev. A. C. Swafford, who had so much to do with the building of the church leave for another field of labor. However, every member of the church has fallen deeply in love with Rev. Mr. Swafford's successor, Mr. Stamper, who is one of the best preachers and leaders in the conference.

The new pastor took up the work where Mr. Swafford left off and has been pushing things with a vim. He declares that he never had such prayer meetings anywhere as he has been having this year at Green Street. Twice within a few months a count of faces revealed more than 150 people at the mid-week service. Wednesday night, March 29, the attendance totaled 176.

Every effort possible is being put forth to clear the church of all debt and have it dedicated this year. The new pews have been ordered and will soon arrive.

The congregations at preaching services fill the church and often at night the big auditorium is packed and jammed. The new pews will greatly relieve this condition, as more seating room will be available after their installation.

It is generally understood that Green Street has one of the best departmentalized Sunday schools in the conference. (Ask Woosley). All departments are functioning splendidly and the attendance is growing very rapidly. With an average attendance around 350 now, the wide-awake superintendent, H. C. Jones, and his co-workers, is pulling for 400 before the end of the year.

We are looking forward with a great deal of interest to the coming of the annual conference this fall, and Green Street will do its part in entertaining this body.
A. W. Cline.

TWO CHURCHES PAID CENTENARY IN FULL

Will you permit me space in the Advocate to say we have two churches on Marion circuit that has paid their Centenary in full. Hope to raise the Centenary at the other one this month.

Our people have painted the parsonage in the inside and at our second quarterly conference they decided to give it a coat of new paint now on the outside and do some other work on it. At the beginning of the year the good people raised the salary of their pastor about 65 per cent above what the same churches paid last year. We have made a gain of seven members to date.

We have plans for special services for the children this month and will take an offering for the Children's Home. At these services, brethren, we have some good, loyal Methodists to serve up here. Pray that we may have the greatest year in the history of Marion circuit.
E. D. Ballard.

A PREACHER CORRECTED

We noticed in this week's Advocate that Bro. G. A. B. Holderhy desired information concerning the report of North Main Street in last year's minutes. Do you know Bro. A. C. Tippett? He knows all about it. Just write to him and I am sure he will be glad to tell you what you desire to know. The people all over North Carolina do not know about that report and could not give you any information. When a preacher does the work that his church demands of him, he doesn't have time to hussy himself with old reports.

I will say here that the people did fine here last year considering their chances. They didn't quite pay everything in full, but how many churches did? It is true that they have no credit in the minutes for what they did, but that is not their fault. They did the work.

We are moving along nicely this year. Our Sunday school has more than doubled. It has even grown out the front door. The man's and young men's Bible classes are having to meet in street cars because of a lack of room. We are expecting to build an addition to the church right soon. Have just organized an Epworth League with twenty-five charter members. This promises to be a live league.

I think our Ladies' Aid Society here has done exceptionally well during the last few months. It has raised $806, not by soliciting funds, but by giving suppers and bazaars. They gave the people something for their money. We are now having fine success at raising $1650 on the parsonage debt.
F. J. Stough, Pastor.

(Rev. A. C. Tippett, who is now a student at Trinity College, writes in detail of North Main and of the report in question. The fact in a word is that Brother Tippett sent the report, to conference, but for some reason it failed to reach its destination.—Ed.)

NOTE OF THANKS

We wish to extend a note of thanks to the neighbors and friends for their kindness during the sickness and death of our father, C. C. Weisner. During the ten weeks father was confined to his bed there were more than one hundred friends and neighbors visited him to pay a tribute of respect in his last hours here on earth. May God's richest blessing be with them all is our prayer.
C. W. Weisner.

SOUTH MAIN, SALISBURY

The work at South Main Street Methodist church, Salisbury, has been the best ever during this conference year. We have the largest Sunday school in attendance and enrollment in the history of the church. We have nearly reached our goal of 400 in actual attendance each Sunday, and when we reach the goal of 400 we will place our goal out to the 500 mark.

The Epworth League that was organized last year has now 85 enthusiastic members. This organization is doing excellent work in our community. We are glad to report that South Main has a large number of young and energetic people who are loyal to the church. They are largely financing and directing the program in the community house built beside the church. Games, socials and even shower baths are offered to the young people free of charge.

The writer just now, however, is mostly interested in the drive made by the junior board of stewards for Advocate subscribers. We are late about beginning, but we are now being coached for our task, and we propose to place the Advocate in the home of every member of South Main Methodist church.
William S. Hartsell,

Chm. Jr. Board of Stewards.

WORLDLINESS

In Romans 12:2 we read: "And be not conformed to this world; but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect will of God." Be not conformed. Be ye transformed. What wonderful advice! Are you conformed or are you transformed? You have to be transformed if you would "prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect will of God." You can't be both consistently. Jesus said, "Ye cannot serve God and mammon." Matt. 6:24. How pitiful to see a person who was once transformed that has compromised with the world and is now conformed to it. Such a person is not proving the good, acceptable, and perfect will of God.

Church members are of three classes: Those who are transformed, those who have been transformed, but are now more or less conformed to the world; and those who have never been transformed. It is not surprising that those who have never made any profession, and who have never taken upon themselves the vows, should be worldly. But it is serious when those who have "renounced the devil and all his works, the vain pomp and glory of the world, with all covetous desires of the same, and the carnal desires of the flesh, so that thou wilt not follow or be led by them" (Discipline), are conformed to the world, and when rebuked try to justify themselves by saying, "Everybody does it."

Reader, please ask yourself the question, Am I conformed to the world, and is my influence encouraging others to be worldly?

Why am I writing this article? Simply to get people to thinking, and thinking seriously. And to get them to acting, and acting rightly. Let the woman who dresses indecently "think on their ways and take heed." We have many church members and some professing Christians who are wearing the devil's uniform. It's no use to mince words—it is a serious situation.

The Apostle Paul says, "Wherefore, if my meat make my brother to offend, I will eat no meat while the world standeth, lest I make my brother to offend." 1st Cor. 8:13. Again he says: "Whether therefore ye eat, or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God." 1st Cor. 10:31. What a beautiful thing if all our members would follow this teaching! There is no question in my mind that great harm is done by women appearing in public indecently garbed. It often suggests unclean thoughts to men, and no doubt many times causes some to commit adultery in their hearts, to say the least. See Matt. 5:28. "Brethren (sisters) these things ought not to be." Women of our country, you make it harder for our young men to live clean lives by your abominable fashions. I wish that the good (transformed) women of our land would rise up in a great movement and banish these abominations forever. As a rule men don't like to see women half naked. I put this proposition to my Sunday school class of boys and young men, and the vote was unanimous that women be properly dressed. Brother Pastor, spring this proposition on your congregation some morning and surprise somebody. I'm afraid we use praise too much. Seems to me it is nearly worn out from so much use. Of course, praising God is always proper. Amen! Sometimes David needs Nathan. Of course Nathan's job was not easy, but it was the thing needed at the time. His medicine was bitter, but it effected a cure. Had he failed to give David the right medicine, probably we would not have the wonderful collection of psalms that David left us, and that made his name immortal.

Brethren, we need more Nathans today.
Samuel Johnson.

MRS. ALICE J. WILSON

Rev. A. C. Swafford, pastor at Mocksville, has prepared for Advocate readers an interesting sketch of the life of Mrs. W. C. Wilson, who died in Mocksville March 13, 1923, and who left the residue of her estate amounting to several thousand dollars to the "Forgotten Man." Brother Swafford's sketch of this good woman follows:

"Mrs. Alice Jean Long Wilson, widow of the late Rev. W. C. Wilson, was born October 8, 1843, in Virginia. She passed away March 13, 1923, at her home in Mocksville.

She was a daughter of Rev. John Long, who was an honored member of the Virginia conference. She was educated in Greensboro.

May 21 1867, she was happily married to Rev. W. C. Wilson, with whom she traveled as a faithful helpmeet to him in his work as an itinerant Methodist preacher until his death in 1903.

At the age of nine years she was happily converted and joined the Methodist church. Her best service was given her church until ill health deprived her the privilege of carrying on its work. Though almost an invalid for 42 years she never lost interest in any of her church's plans. She loved its history and had great faith for its future.

In her many weary years of suffering she was patient, seldom ever uttered a complaint though suffering excruciating pain.

Mrs. Wilson was much loved by all who knew her. Perhaps no person in the town was ever more loved than she and none more worthy of that respect and affection.

Her natural graces were patience, gentleness, kindness, faithfulness, hospitality and cheerfulness.

She is survived by one adopted daughter, Mrs. Elsie Godhy of Mocksville.

The funeral was conducted from the church Thursday, March 15. Services conducted by Revs. W. A. Newell and A. C. Swafford. Interment was in Rose cemetery beside the grave of her husband."

The wind that blows can never kill

It bloweth east, it bloweth west;

Sureads wider boughs, for God's good

SNAPSHOTS

"It is dangerous to take the verdict of an uncommon action. If you want the truth, judge yourself by today," says a wise writer. It is not the beautiful act of self-sacrifice that you rendered in an hour of enthusiasm and inspiration that tells just what you are, nor is it the ignoble act to which you stooped in a moment of sudden temptation and which you deplore. Both these possibilities lay within you, but they may have surprised you quite as much as they surprised any onlooker. The real self is the self of the common days, the self that meets weariness and monotony, that is faithful or unfaithful in the everyday duties; the self that the family, the school, the office, or the factory force knows. It is the usual, the often wearisome usual, that is the real test of character, and it is by this that we shall be remembered when we have passed on. The picture for which we have posed may hang in its frame and be admired, but it is the little snapshots that are smiled over and cherished.—Exchange.

A MONOLOGUE BY PUBLICITY

Well, how do you do, dear women of the Woman's Missionary Society? I have waited so long for some of you to call on me that I made up my mind that if there was any calling done I should have to do it! I have been consulted in one way and another for centuries—don't you drop me! And when I hear some of you say that you wish there was more interest in missionary work and that you just don't know what is the matter—well, I want to tell you that the reason is this: you think you are sufficient unto yourselves, but the fact is evident that you cannot get along without me! Oh, call it conceit if you wish! I am perfectly willing to be maligned if it gives me a chance to prove my point.

A few years ago Mrs. Charles Evans wrote a leaflet, about me, and if every woman in the society had studied that there would be no need for me to say the things that are in my mind now. Right on the cover (you see she said some good things before she began to say any thing!) is this bit of wisdom:

"Oh, never mind that cooks are scarce, The cost of things a-soaring.
To talk of these things all the time Will sure your friends be boaring!
Just use these little publishers, Your lips and tongue, I'm meaning,
To talk to our Society;
'Twill stop all idle dreaming.
The folks will want to do their bit,
And crowd to your next meeting.
Just try it out! Publicity,
I give you friendly greeting!"

"We are advertised by our loving friends," says a well-known advertisement. If this is true of a baby food, why not make it true of the greatest society for women in all Methodism? More people are attracted by the use of posters than in any other way. Use this method of keeping before the public the up-to-date things in our work. Take our literature, for instance. On a large cardboard put a picture of a maid trying to learn to skate. Of course she is down the most of the time! A lad is doing his best to help her. Print under this, "A friend in need is a friend indeed, and in larger letters say, "This is what the Missionary Voice will be to you."

Of course you use posters to announce your meetings, but don't forget to use the telephone also. A lady said to me, "I get better results from the telephone than from a letter, because on the telephone I can nail people down to a definite answer."

See that a report of all meetings gets to the local paper. Keep your work before the public, that they may know you are alive and working.

Now you see this means that I must have a helper in every society who will do this in addition to seeing that an attractive notice is in the church calendar or read from the pulpit. And do make these notices pep-py! Don't word them as your grandmother did hers!—Adapted from Woman's Missionary Friend.

WOMANHOOD AND THE KINGDOM

The Woman's Missionary Society is the best mobilized arm of the church. You are the women called of God to lead in this great awakening of his sleeping forces. In all of our congregations there is a "No Man's Land," where ignorance, indifference and spiritual coldness keep silent watch. These must be won to a study of God's word to a close, loving knowledge of our divine Leader's life, and to a passionate desire to walk in His footsteps. There must be a great league of prayer, prevailing prayer, undergirded with that humble confession of sin and disobedience that only a broken heart and a contrite spirit can make.—Belle H. Bennett, Lambuth-Bennett Book of Remembrance.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY CONFERENCE, HENDERSON, APRIL 24-27

Have you elected your delegate and sent her name to Mrs. R. J. Corbitt yet?

Our president, with her advisers, has planned an interesting and helpful program, emphasizing all phases of our work. In order to do our part of the work well, it is absolutely necessary that we be informed. Much of this information can be gotten from our various conferences and group meetings. Our annual conference is our great authoritative source of information in all departments. Every auxiliary then should be represented by a member, as delegate, who can and will absorb everything to carry back home to inspire and stimulate her co-workers.

Mrs. J. H. McCoy, of Nashville, Tenn., Council administrative secretary of the Atlantic and Gulf States

Division, will tell us about our Home Mission work in her territory. Mrs. W. A. Newell, of Winston-Salem, our Council superintendent of social service, author of most of our best social service literature, will speak to us on Inter-Racial Relations. Mrs. Newell is also one of the most prominent and capable members of the Inter-Racial Commission, and of our own Inter-Racial state committee. Our conference has had the privilege of entertaining Mrs. Newell before, and will extend her a cordial welcome. Two of our own dearly loved missionaries, at home on furlough, will also be with us and speak of their work to us, Miss Sallie Lou McKinnon of Maxton, and Miss Ida Hankins of Wilmington. Mrs. C. L. Stediley of Gastonia, a noted evangelist and Bible teacher, will conduct the noon devotionals. A deaconess, whose name was not given us, will discuss the deaconess work. In addition to these delightful visitors, whom we will be so delighted to welcome, our own conference and auxiliary women will contribute their share towards making this conference a great one.

Send your delegate's name to Mrs. R. J. Corbitt, Henderson, N. C.

VIRGINIA K. JOHNSON HOME AND SCHOOL

The providence of God! The miracle of grace! What sainted follower of the Lord Jesus could have prophesied in 1893 that in 1923 there would stand a magnificent three-story brick building for unfortunate girls that would cause the angels in heaven to rejoice? Beautifully located on an 18-acre campus with every comfort and convenience the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, owns and manages this, the greatest benevolent institution of its kind in America.

When God drafted us for this sadly needed and difficult work, we enlisted as soldiers of the Cross. We knew we must first consult our bishops and ministers. They joyfully enlisted, knowing it was God's call!

Then we realized that with "The Dallas News" victory would be sure. So we put our cause before Col. Belo, owner of this great paper. With royal enthusiasm he replied, "I have ordered my editors to print everything you write, regardless of what they think of it." Such an honor from one of the greatest newspaper leaders in America, enthused us with unspeakable gratitude. Then, his president, Geo. B. Dealey, has been ever our truest counsellor and adviser. Never shall we cease to honor and praise these generous and whole-hearted friends.

Besides our church, we realized our Mission was:

"To the high for the low,

To the rich for the poor,

To the good for the bad,"

and through the 29 years the providence of God has led us on and on giving us blessings untold.

Officers and teachers in the school are:

President, Mrs. M. L. Stone; Mrs. Gertrude Brown, president of City Church Board, is our assistant manager; Miss Nellie Denton, literary teacher; Miss Mary Burelsmith, sewing teacher; Miss Ruby Ruxton, domestic science teacher; Miss Lula May, household arts; Dr. May Agnes Hopkins, one of the greatest women physicians of America, is our medical treasure and has made our sanitarium one of the best and most wonderfully successful in city or state. Miss Anna M. Lowe, our graduate nurse, and supervisor of the girls and infants, has few if any equals. She is a wonder, and trains many girls to become nurses.

Rules and regulations are given by request. Every girl admitted signs a contract to take a two years' educational and vocational training course. The aim of the institution is to Christianize, educate and train the girls to make noble, helpful, Christian women. The Bible is taught as a text book.

And every teacher has an evening with the girls to hold a social or religious service. The spiritual atmosphere of the institution would convince one that Christ is the recognized head of this house, and we give Him all glory.

Besides our local board, composed of three members from our 18 Methodist churches, Christian Service Girls' Club of S. M. U., Mrs. A. A. Cocke, Dallas' splendid Expression teacher, and other church and social societies give us many delightful and helpful entertainments, which means educational and religious training to our students and cheer and comfort to teachers.—The King's Messenger.

GROUP MEETING

On March 22, 1923, at Windsor M. E. church, Windsor, N. C., the auxiliaries from Bertie, Hertford and Martin counties met in a group meeting. A most cordial welcome was extended to the visitors by the ladies of the Windsor auxiliary and their pastor, Rev. B. F. Boone.

After the devotional exercises and the address of welcome, the greater part of the morning session was spent in the discussion and organization of the county units, after which a most tempting lunch was served by the Windsor auxiliary.

The afternoon session was made very interesting by the presentation of "What a Missionary Society Should Not Be." This was followed by an outline of "What a Missionary Society Should Be," by Miss Amma Graham, our district secretary. Then Miss May Edla Smith in her usual pleasing and impressive manner gave us a very inspiring talk. She stressed the need of individual consecration and made an earnest appeal for willing workers. Quite a pleasing feature of the program was the special music rendered by members of the Windsor auxiliary.

Each one felt as she left that it had indeed been a pleasant and profitable day, and that much inspiration had been gained which we could carry back to our auxiliaries.

Mrs. Alvah Early, Rec. Sec.

The Nashville auxiliary of the Women's Missionary Society was on Monday, March 12th, delightfully entertained by Miss Leta Carter with the reading of Handicapped Winners (Sarah Estelle Haskins). Each chapter of the book was portrayed by six little girls, namely, Song, Poetry, Clock, Shoes, Goobers and Yams. After the reading, which was a study of the colored race, refreshments were served of sweet potatoe pie and other goodies dear to the negro's heart. A quartet sang "I Want to Be a Christian," after which all present voted the evening well spent and much enjoyed.

SUPT. C. A. REAP

Charles Augustus Reap is a product of Stanley county, where early in April thirty-one years ago he first saw light. But he is no April fool, he is the alert and most successful superintendent of public instruction in Stanly county. Getting his first training in his own county schools he then went in turn to Mt. Pleasant Collegiate Institute, Weaver College, and Trinity College, graduating with honors at each place. Following his graduation from Trinity two years were spent in varied and distinguished military service and following the Armistice he taught American soldiers at Beaune University, France. Other teaching experience was gained in his home county schools and at Weaver College. In 1921 Mr. Reap attended the University of Chicago for graduate work.

As superintendent of public instruction of Stanly county Mr. Reap has done a most wonderful work in consolidating schools, building splendid brick buildings and in elevating the teaching standard. He is an outstanding success.

He gives his church a good portion of his time. He superintends a constantly growing departmentized Sunday school at Central, Albemarle, and is also superintendent of Sunday school work in the Salisbury district, where he is by no means a figurehead. Reap reaps results. It's a pity he is not married, but maybe some day he can make it.

NORWOOD

A few Sundays ago I had a delightful visit to our Sunday school at Norwood, where Dr. T. A. Hathcock superintends, Rev. R. O. Dryman ministers and Bro. J. F. Shinn promotes. The Methodist church is the biggest thing in Norwood and about it center the loyalty and service of a host of people. Each year this Sunday school sends three of its teachers to the Junaluska Training School and in time this good work will result in one of the best departmentized schools in our conference. Church work is no side issue at Norwood.

COUNTY WIDE, SIR!

When we secured Supt. C. A. Reap to become superintendent of Sunday school work in the Salisbury district we harnessed up something that would pull. Already he has held a county wide meeting for Stanly county and is arranging for two other such meetings. At Albemarle Sunday afternoon and night, March 25th, a well attended and well balanced conference was held at which the actual work of the Sunday school was got at in earnest. In addition to the conference workers such outstanding personages as Dr. T. A. Hathcock, R. L. Smith, J. F. Shinn, Rev. F. O. Dryman, Rev. R. O. Eller, Rev. C. M. Pickens and others participated. Mr. Reap had a map of the county mounted showing the location of each church together with its church membership and Sunday school enrollment. He also had complete figures showing the work of all other churches. By this method the task at hand was brought directly before the eye and the ear. The Stanly county meeting was a great success.

BUILDING AND ENLARGING

Some days ago an engagement was filled with the pastor, superintendent and other interested parties connected with the building of quite an enlargement at Forest Hill, Concord. The building is a reality. It is up, covered and only the inside work is to be completed. Our job was to help decide on inside arrangement. A Beginners', Primary, Junior, Intermediate-Senior, and Young People-Adult Department, five in all, have been provided for and in addition there will be seven class rooms for adult classes. Supt. A. G. Odell and Rev. J. F. Armstrong have led well and our Forest Hill folks will be well housed.

THE BISHOP TALKED

Yesterday was spent at the Greensboro district conference at Pleasant Garden, where a well attended meeting was held under the direction of Bishop Denny and Presiding Elder Womble. In the afternoon of the first day Bishop Denny called on the pastors to report as to the work of their Sunday schools and then made a most clear-cut and emphatic Sunday school appeal. He said this was an age of prevention rather than cure, that we ought to vaccinate against sin as much as possible, that it was better to keep a fellow out of the gutter than to pull him out. He reminded his hearers that a gutter fellow nearly always had the gutter smell to him. It was really fine to hear a bishop talk this way. I had never heard one do so before.

Following the bishop Bro. I. F. Craven, district superintendent, presented an exhibit of Sunday school growth in the Greensboro district that was very encouraging. This is the only district in our conference having more Sunday schools than churches. Brother Craven set up five outstanding goals for the year, one of which is the attainment of 2000 additional enrollment. This will be reached, for Brother Womble is squarely behind it.

A TEAM

Did you know that Presiding Elder J. B. Craven and District Superintendent D. E. Henderson were making a good Sunday school team? Well, they are covering the Charlotte district in Sunday school institutes in April, May and June. Just think what this will mean! Somehow the rural sections of the Charlotte district are behind the rest of Piedmont North Carolina in Sunday school interest. The situation can and will be changed as this strong team gets into action. It is wonderful what an elder and a good layman can do. It will take both. No district work goes faster than the elder goes.

DO DO IT

Don't say you won't. Don't say you can't, but do do it. Observe Sunday School Day and take an offering for our Sunday school work. It will make you happy and cause us to shout. Write for free programs.

MRS. E. B. WARD

Assisting Miss Keene in promoting elementary work in the Rockingham district is Mrs. E. B. Ward, of Rowland, district elementary superintendent, whom we make the subject of this sketch in our "Who's Who in the Districts." Mrs. Ward is a modest woman and of course is not seeking publicity, but Miss Keene has gathered together certain interesting facts concerning her, and we are setting them forth here in order that you may know what a capable, energetic and efficient voluntary worker Mrs. Ward is and will co-operate with her in the great work which she is doing.

Mrs. Ward was born at Marietta, Robeson county, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Oliver, and is a direct descendant of the late Rev. John Oliver, an honored local preacher for whom Olivet church, Robeson circuit, was named. She was educated at Greensboro College for Women, the University of North Carolina, and Columbia University. She taught school several years, being for some time a teacher in the Raleigh city schools. She married Mr. E. B. Ward, of Rowland, who, too, comes from a prominent Methodist family and who is very much interested in the Sunday school. She has attended our great Junaluska Training School, attended the Rockingham district school at Maxton last year, and has made extensive and varied experience in both small and large Sunday schools. She is also active in the work of the Woman's Club, Epworth League and missionary society.

Already she has placed elementary standards in fifteen Sunday schools of her district, appointed four elementary key women, introduced graded lessons in one school, and is planning to carry on until the elementary departments of every school in the district become more and more effective in serving and conserving, training and developing the child life of the district.

WEST DURHAM CONFERENCE

The interests of the Sunday schools of the Durham district were considered Thursday afternoon of the district conference held at West Durham, March 29-30. Presiding Elder Plyler cleared the decks for us about 3:30, and from then until adjournment Prof. R. N. Wilson, district secretary, and your conference superintendent of Sunday school work set forth certain facts as to conditions of the schools as revealed by the last conference journal and certain suggestions and recommendations designed to increase their efficiency.

OUR HENDERSON SCHOOLS

The writer had the pleasure of spending Easter Sunday with our schools in Henderson. Sunday morning he took part in a special Easter program at First church after listening to Easter songs, readings, and recitations by members of the various classes in the school. At 11:15, in company with Mr. E. S. Yarbrough, Weldon district secretary, he found himself at North Henderson, where the pastor, Rev. G. G. Whitehurst, insisted that we talk Sunday school to his congregation. Immediately following the morning service we checked North Henderson Sunday school on the Program of Work "C," and as a result seals will be awarded on several points.

While in Henderson we were shown the architect's drawings of the new Sunday school and church building soon to be begun by First church. These plans are thoroughly modern, providing for a strictly departmental school and a handsome church auditorium, which will cost approximately $100,000. When completed and furnished the plant and lot will represent an investment of about $150,000. Rev. T. G. Vickers, the pastor, is now leading in a movement to provide the funds and is meeting with splendid responses.

CREEDMOOR SCHOOL LEADS

The first Sunday school in the North Carolina conference to ask to be checked on the official Program of Work "C" is that at Creedmoor, Raleigh district. At the request of Mr. N. J. Boddie, the superintendent, the writer attended the workers' council meeting the night of March 29, checked the school, and awarded seven seals, indicating that this school has attained the Progressive rank. It lacked only a few details in three points, measuring up to the hundred per cent mark for schools of this type. These earnest workers have already set themselves the task of eliminating these few defects and becoming the first Standard Sunday school in the conference. These Programs of Work have been placed in about fifty other Sunday schools, and many of them will grade high already. Let's see which is first to become standard.

THESE HAVE PAID IN FULL

Three Sunday schools in the North Carolina conference have paid in full their Centenary pledges, being therefore more than up to date in their payments. They are Weldon, Faison, and Wesley Memorial, Wilmington. Weldon Sunday school has been contributing over $150 a year to the support of a native worker in Japan, Faison school about $60 a year to Hoochow hospital, China, and Wesley Memorial about $25 a year to general missionary interests. These schools are considering continuing their missionary specials as a regular part of their program. Let's all give three cheers to these three! They have set the rest of us good examples.

THESE PAID UP TO DATE

In addition to these schools which have paid in full their Centenary pledges, the following are up to date in their payments: Graham, Haw River, Leasburg, Milton, Pantego, Pleasant Grove, Roper circuit; Wesley Chapel, Elizabeth circuit; St. John's, Goldsboro; Banks, Creedmoor circuit; Selma, Rockingham, Robersonville, Murfreesboro, Winton, and Union schools, Murfreesboro-Winton charge; Holly Springs, Williamston-Hamilton charge; Whiteville, and Grace, Wilmington.

"LIFE IN THE MAKING"

Eight workers of Concord Sunday school, Person circuit have been studying "Life in the Making," one of the books in the standard training course, and expect to receive certificates of credit. Mrs. T. C. Wagstaff has been teaching the class. Rev. B. C. Thompson is the pastor.

SOME NEW WESLEY CLASSES

Five new Wesley classes have recently been organized, four of them at Stumpy Point. They are as follows:

1. "Fisherman's Bible Class," Stumpy Point; G. W. Hooper, teacher; H. E. Hooper, president; L. H. Wise, secretary; 23 men.
2. "Persistent Workers," Stumpy Point; Miss Edith Meekins, teacher; Colon Midgett, president; Lonnie Hooper, secretary; six senior boys.
3. "Willing Workers," Stumpy Point; E. Marvin Hooper, teacher; Miss Frances Wise, president; Miss Evelyn Hooper, secretary; six intermediate girls.
4. "Helpers," Stumpy Point; Miss Mabel Stephens, teacher; Robert Midgett, president; Warren Meekins, secretary; eight intermediate boys.
5. "Daughters of Wesley," Nashville; S. F. Austin, teacher; Miss Sallie Benson, president; Mrs. M. W. Lincke, secretary; 21 women.

The William Meredith Memorial class of Grace, Wilmington, has changed its name to the Addie Hart

DAVIDSON LEAGUE

The Davidson leaguers elected new officers Tuesday, April 3, at the Methodist church. The officers who now enter their work as leaders of the league are enthusiastic workers. The members displayed good judgment in their selection. Mr. Clyde Johnson, who is a student in Davidson College, was elected president; Miss Sue Mock, vice president; Miss Grace Goodrum, secretary; Miss Fannie McConnell, treasurer, and R. L. Foster, the pastor of the church, corresponding secretary. Perhaps this new office will stop my excursions into so many fields of speculation and keep me from imposing on the public with my dissertations on evolution. At any rate, I now must write at all hazards.

A rising vote of thanks and appreciation for the faithful work of our retiring officers was given and every leaguer looks to the future with confidence of success and progress.

THIRTEEN MILLION DOLLARS IN CHURCH VALUES

The value of property belonging to the Methodist Church in North Carolina exceeds $13,000,000. On this vast amount of property there is only $3,000,000 of insurance—less than one-fourth of its value protected.

Suppose you had stock in a furniture factory one-fourth protected from fire, what would you do? You would either sell, or hold the directors responsible.

See that your church officials protect your most valuable assets or you may be called upon to donate again to rebuild a church parsonage destroyed by fire.

THE CENTENARY AND HOME MISSIONS

No other nation ever faced a world responsibility such as this nation faces today. America is in better position to lead the world toward a Christian course than any nation has ever been.

To meet this responsibility America herself must be made genuinely Christian. Furthermore, America must be made Christian for her own sake as well as for the world's sake. Nothing less than a great spiritual awakening can save America from perils that will destroy the best in our civilization.

The responsibility for Christianizing America is the responsibility of the church. No other agency is seeking such ends and no existing agency is in position to lead in such a worthy effort.

As one of the great denominations of America the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, is seeking to do its share. No worthy Methodist will be satisfied for his church to do less than its share.

The Centenary made it possible for the church to institute a very hopeful program in the homeland and already much has been accomplished.

This program includes a better approach to the city problem, better work in our vast rural sections, work among foreign speaking groups and the maintenance of a larger force of workers in sparsely settled districts in the West and Northwest.

To halt the program now would be tragic. It would mean the loss of much that has already been achieved and to regain the position to which we have come would require larger expenditures in the future.

Unless Centenary pledges are collected this great program must halt.

Payments must be made at once if the church is to hold its position.

THE METHODIST ORPHANAGE

The Orphanage notes in this issue of the Advocate were written by Mr. John W. Jenkins, whose sainted father was the founder of the Methodist Orphanage. Mr. Jenkins is a newspaper writer of national reputation, having served on the editorial staff of the Baltimore Sun for several years. During the World War he was closely and intimately associated with Mr. Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy. He has known the Orphanage from its beginning. He has always manifested a lively interest in all of its affairs and writes as a friend who understands and appreciates the true worth of our Home. I am sure our Advocate friends will be glad to read what he has to say about our children.

"This is the happiest, healthiest looking lot of children I ever saw," remarked a recent visitor to the Methodist Orphanage. And they are attractive children, too, the kind you would like to have for your own, the kind you know will grow up into good citizens, an honor to their state and country.

With its broad sweep of lawns and spreading trees, its buildings on the hilltop commanding an extensive view, the Orphanage is one of the most beautiful spots in this region. Situated at the edge of the capital city, in the midst of its best suburban section, the location and surroundings are ideal. Its more than 100 acres give ample space for expansion—for farm and garden, dairy, play grounds, and all requirements. Since its purchase, the value of the land has increased many times and is constantly increasing. Considered as a mere piece of property, this is about the best investment. North Carolina Methodism has ever made.

But far more important than this superb setting is the human element, the life and work of those who dwell therein. For this is the Home of the children—a real home, where those who would otherwise be homeless. Those who have been denied a father's and a mother's care are given all the advantages of Christian family life. And it is truly Christian, breathing the spirit of the Master, who said: "Suffer the little children to come unto me and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of heaven."

To one who has seen large charitable institutions in great cities, where hundreds of children are crowded together in brick walls, where the inmates, clad all in the same sombre uniforms, seem all cut out of the same pattern, this institution is a revelation. There is nothing of the kind here. Individuality is fostered and encouraged. There is every opportunity for normal development, and these youngsters are as normal and varied and individual as in any public school, or any gathering of children who come from the best of private homes.

The whole institution exists for the children. From the superintendent and matrons and teachers down to the little toddlers learn their A. B. C.'s, they are like one big happy family.

There are now some 250 children here, and the average, physically, mentally and morally, is quite as high—in fact, a little higher, if anything—than in the same number coming from private families.

The final test of any institution is its product, and here its work is measured in terms of human life. And by that measure the Methodist Orphanage is yielding the richest of results. If you could see some of the children who are brought here for admission, tiny boys and girls whose faces are still wet with the tears of grief over the loss of father or mother—if you could see them when they arrive, lonely and sad, and then see them a few months later with bright eyes and smiling faces illuminated with hope and happiness, you would know that all the money given for them, all the care and effort devoted to them is worth a thousand times the cost.

There is one little girl, with a wealth of reddish gold curls, and an ever-smiling face, who attracts the attention of everyone. "Isn't that the dearest, most lovable child!" one visitor after another exclaims. Yet that tiny sprite when she came to the orphanage was one of the saddest little figures imaginable, with neither kith nor kin to care for her.

This is an extreme case, but there are not a few of them. Many of the children come from as good blood as there is in the state, sons and daughters of fine families which have been broken up by death and misfortune. They were born in Christian homes, loved as dearly as your own little ones, but robbed by death of the mothers and fathers to whom they were dearer than life itself. They come from all kinds and conditions of people. The door of the Orphanage opens wide to all of them. The one thing that is considered is their need, and that the institution strives in every way to supply.

It is a home, it is a school, it is a community of busy workers—a little world in miniature, this institution. For it must not only provide for physical, but mental and moral needs. Providing proper food and shelter and clothing for 250 lively, growing youngsters is, in itself, no easy task. Education is another big problem, for many a North Carolina town has fewer children in its schools than there are here. There must be classes for all ages, for all of them go to school daily. And the grades and studies correspond with those in the public schools.

School and work and play make up a busy day, for every child has its daily work and duties. The girls do the cooking and housework and laundry work; the boys run the farm and gardens and dairy and care for the grounds. They all have plenty to do, but there is also plenty of time for study and play.

They have their organizations, Epworth League, missionary and literary societies. They are intensely interested in the Sunday school and church activities. One of the outstanding features is the real religious atmosphere which enters into their daily lives. They love hymns, and it is inspiring to hear their fresh young voices ring out the sweet song of Zion. The fatherhood of God must have a meaning for them which it can hardly have for those of us who have earthly fathers. "Jesus loves me" is no empty phrase to them, but a personal belief that carries hope and comfort. Every Christmas the children have the privilege of telling what they desire most for a Christmas present. It surprised even their teachers when last Christmas many of the little ones said that what they wanted most were Bibles of their very own with their names printed on them.

Music is something they thoroughly enjoy. Thousands of people throughout the state have heard the Orphanage Choir in various towns and enjoyed its sacred concerts. They could really form a dozen choirs here—and the tiny tots in the Jackson building sing almost as well as their big brothers and sisters. Many of the girls are taught piano as well as voice, and a number have developed into talented musicians.

Athletics form an essential part of the regular program. The boys have a baseball team which ranks high among the amateurs of this region, and the girls have an excellent basketball team. Both compete with the neighboring high schools, and the boys and girls show the most intense interest in these contests.

All these things are fine for those in the institution, you may say, but how does it work out in preparing them for after life, what kind of men and women do they develop into? That is the final test.

I only wish you could have been here this Easter and attended the annual reunion of those who have gone out from here. The former boys and girls came not only from other towns but other states to attend the annual meeting of the alumni. Students came from Trinity, the Greensboro College for Women, from Louisburg and other colleges they are attending, where they stand high in their studies. Some of the young women, now presiding over happy homes, brought their husbands and children; young men now in business came from other cities.

If you could have seen the lovely, cultured young women, the sturdy, up-standing young men, you would have had not doubt about the quality of the Orphanage's output. No school or college could have better examples. And their pride in the Orphanage, their pleasure at being "home again," testified to their appreciation of the care and training they received. They were splendid living examples of the Orphanage's contribution to good citizenship and fine womanhood and manhood.

When we recall the small beginnings of this institution twenty-two years ago, its growth has been marvelous. When I remember how my sainted father, Rev. John W. Jenkins, thought and planned for years before he could convince others that the idea was even practicable, and what a struggle it was to raise the first few thousand dollars to make a start, it seems a tribute to faith. For this institution was founded on faith and an ideal. His ideal was an institution founded on love and humanity.

"A little child needs love and care as much as it does food and clothes," he said. "There isn't anyone who would let an orphan girl or boy starve or freeze. But he must do more. We must give these fatherless little ones the same loving care and devotion we would our own children; give them as good a chance in life as other children have."

That is the spirit in which the Orphanage was founded and the spirit which prevails here today. It is a great dream come true. It was a deep satisfaction to my father that he lived to see the institution firmly established and deeply rooted in public affection. It is gratifying to all who have had its welfare at heart that the work has been carried on and expanded to such splendid proportions under the succeeding superintendents.

Under the Rev. John N. Cole, of blessed memory, the Orphanage was greatly expanded, and the new buildings erected in his administration stand as monuments to his memory. But an even more enduring monument are the boys and girls who were trained and inspired and given a broader life through his ministrations.

Bringing to the institution his endowment of energy and devotion, the Rev. Albert S. Barnes has, for eight years, given his life and devotion to this great work, with what signal success the splendid condition of the Orphanage today attests. Consecrated, earnest, able, backed by a devoted board of trustees, the Orphanage under his administration is growing and expanding as never before. And this is only the earnest of greater things to come, for new buildings are needed, new departments, and a larger capacity to care for many more children. That the Methodists of North Carolina will provide them he is confident, for their generosity will not disappoint his faith or the children's needs.

No sketch of the Orphanage would be complete without tribute to "Miss Mattie," as the children call her—Mrs. Mattie Atwater Jenkins. As matron, she has been with the Orphanage from the beginning—a real mother to all the children, an inspiration to all who know her. Her services, her devotion are written in the hearts and lives of hundreds of boys and girls who rise up and call her blessed.

Founded in Faith, conducted in Love, developing Character, producing a high type of manhood and womanhood, caring for the fatherless in the spirit of the Father, the Methodist Orphanage is a superb example of the workings of practical Christianity.

John Wilber Jenkins.

Whenever I start out to walk, our dog
he seems to know,
And runs along ahead of me to show
he's coming, too;
And when there is a reason why he

The hollering "Go home" to him is awful hard to do.

He wags his tail and jumps around,
and seems as if he said:
"I guess you didn't mean it, you were only jokin' then!"
But when he sees I'm serious he kinder droops his head,
Or looks up at me sorrowful, an'
looks away again.

And then at last he minds me if I keep an angry tone.
It's awful hard to do it, but I try with all my might;
And sometimes when I look around I see him all alone
A-watchin' me and watchin' me until I'm out of sight.

You see I know just how it is, 'cause

And when he says I mustn't go and tag

He leaves me sittin' somewhere and a-feelin' just that way!

ANNE RUDILPH'S RIDE

It was late in the fall of 1777 that a foraging party from the British camp in Philadelphia made a descend upon the farm of Major Rudolph, south of that city. Having supplied themselves well with provender, one of the soldiers happened to espy a valuable cow in the lane leading to the barnyard, and poor Sukey was immediately confiscated.

Now this cow happened to be the pride of the farm and was claimed as the exclusive property of Miss Anne Rudolph, aged twelve years. Of course no other animal on the estate was so important as this cow, and her confiscation by the soldiers could not be tolerated. So Miss Anne made an impetuous dash for her recovery; but finding the men deaf to her entreaties and the sergeant proof against her indignation, the spirited child rushed to the stables, saddled her pony, and was soon galloping toward the city, determined to appeal to the commander in chief of the British army.

Meanwhile poor Sukey trudged along, her reluctant steps quickened now and then by the gentle prick with the point of a bayonet in her well-rounded side.

To reach the city before the foraging party was the one thought of the child as her pony went pounding along the old Chester road at a pace that soon brought her within the British line. She was halted at the first out post by the guard, and the occasion of her haste was demanded. The child replied: "I must see the general immediately."

"But the general cannot be disturbed for every trifle. Tell me your business, and if important it will be reported to him."

"It is of great importance. And I cannot stop to talk to you. Please let go my pony—tell me where to find the general."

"But, my little girl, I cannot let you pass until you tell me whence you came and what your business is within these lines."

"I came from Darby, and my business is to see the general immediately.
No one else can tell him what I have to say."

The excitement of the child, together with her persistence, had its influence. The officer well knew that valuable information of the movements of the Americans frequently reached the British commander through families residing in the country. Here might be such a case, and this consideration determined the soldier to send the child to headquarters. So, summoning orderly, he directed him to escort the girl to Lord Cornwallis.

It was late in the afternoon by this time, and Cornwallis was at dinner with a number of British officers when "a little girl from the country with a message for the general" was announced.

"Let her come in at once," said the general, and a few minutes later Miss Anne Rudolph entered the great tent.

"Well, my little girl, I am General Cornwallis," said that gentleman kindly. "What have you to say to me?"
"I want my cow!"

Profound silence reigned for a moment, then came a burst of laughter from all the gentlemen around the table. The girl's face reddened, but she held her ground, and her set features and flashing eyes convinced the the general that the child before him was of no ordinary spirit.

With ready tact the general drew from her a narration of her grievance.
"Why did not your father come?" he asked.

"My father is not at home."
"And have you no brothers?"

"Both of my brothers are away. But, General," she cried impatiently, "while you keep me here talking they will kill my cow!"

"So—your brothers also are away.
Now tell me, child, where are they?"

"My oldest brother is with General Gates."

"And your other brother, where is he?" inquired the general.

"He's with Harry Lee." The girl's eyes fairly blazed as she spoke the name of gallant Light-Horse Harry
Lee. "But, General, I want my cow!"

"Ah! ah! one brother with Gates and one with Lee. Now," said the general severely, "where is your father?"

"He is with General Washington," answered the little maiden, "but he is a prisoner now."

"So, so. Father and brothers all in the Continental army! I think, then, you must be a little rebel."

"Yes, sir, if you please. But I want my cow!"

"Well, you are a brave little girl, and you shall have your cow and something more, too." Then, stooping forward, he detached from his garters a pair of brilliant knee buckles, which he laid in the child's hands. "Take these," he said, "and keep them to remember that Lord Cornwallis can appreciate courage and truth, even in a young rebel." Then, calling an orderly, he instructed him to go with the child through the camp in search of the cow and when he should find the animal to detail a man to drive her home again.

So Miss Anne returned home in triumph with her cow. And those sparkling knee buckles are still treasured by her descendants as a memento of Cornwallis and the Revolution.—

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORK

Memorial class, in memory of Mrs. Edgar L. Hart, beloved teacher, who recently died.

MT. ZION SUNDAY SCHOOL

The membership of Mt. Zion Sunday school gave an interesting program Sunday, April 1st, for the benefit of the orphanage at Winston-Salem. We received six dollars.

The pastor, Rev. H. A. Chester, made an interesting address. Our Sunday school is growing. The people are interested in the work.

The people like their pastor and the work seems to be progressing. We hope to make this the best year's work we have yet had.

Mrs. J. F. Allen, S. S. Supt.

DURHAM DISTRICT

Your committee submits the following report:

Brethren: We are all aware of the great service rendered by our Sunday schools. We believe that the Sunday school is not a part of the church, nor a sort of an attachment thereto, but the church itself, functioning in one of its divinely appointed ways as a teacher of religious truth.

To the end that it may make itself more effective in discharging the great task laid on it, so far as the Durham district is concerned, we make the following recommendations:

1. That we are in full accord with the policy and plans of the last General Conference and of the General Sunday School Board, and that we recommend to all pastors, Sunday school superintendents, and to all other local official members of our churches to acquaint themselves thoroughly with with that part of the Discipline that pertains to the Sunday school.

2. That we endorse the principle of teacher-training, and the plans of the general board in that direction, including:
  - a. Standard training schools.
  - b. Non-standard training schools.
  - c. Individual study in training courses.
  - d. Training classes in the Sunday school.

3. That we set up as goals to be reached during the coming year a number of things, namely:
  - a. Increasing the Sunday school enrollment to a number equal to our church membership.
  - b. At least one member from every school enrolled in some training course.
  - c. Every pastor working for credit in some standard training course.
  - d. As many as ten representatives from the Durham district attending the Summer School at Lake Junaluska.
  - e. Organization, wherever possible, or wise, of home departments, cradle rolls, and Wesley classes.
  - f. The observance of Sunday School Day in every school.
  - g. The use of or own literature, and especially the use of the new series of weekly papers, published for the use of boys and girls.
  - h. That all schools, wherever possible, keep open the entire year round.

4. The adoption of the Program of Work in at least 30 schools in the district.

5. That when buildings or repairs are being planned, that the architectural department of the General Board at Nashville be asked to make suggestions or submit plans.

6. That new schools be set up wherever circumstances of position or population seem to warrant.

7. The setting up of circuit institutes wherever they have not already been organized.

8. We recommend that all pastors and superintendents be free to make use of the conference superintendent of Sunday schools, and of the district superintendent whenever they can be of service.

5. That in our opinion the pastors could assist greatly in creating more interest in our Sunday schools on the part of the adult membership of our churches by stressing the work of the Sunday school from the pulpit.

By the committee: W. P. Henry, D. E. Earnhardt, J. B. Hurley, G. M. Daniel, R. N. Wilson.

LETTER FROM BROTHER SALYER

After having to give up the work to which I was assigned on the Town Creek circuit, Wilmington district (because of no high school for our children) we came to Holly Springs, and here it has been our great pleasure to be given the young men's class in Sunday school, which gives us an opportunity to do in a measure some of the work to which I feel that the great heavenly Father has called me.

The good people of Holly Springs has not ceased, since we have been in their community, to in a substantial way express their appreciation of our presence in their church and community life.

But what I began to write about, dear Editor, in the first place, was the meeting in the M. E. church at Holly Springs. The pastor, D. W. Caviness, was assisted by his nephew, H. C. Caviness, who was for several years one of North Carolina's leading attorneys and politicians. But God called him into the ministry. He then went to the Moody Bible Institute at Chicago and made further preparation for his life work.

Bro. H. C. Caviness is a spirit-filled messenger, a cloven vessel. I cannot find words to adequately describe the meeting. The evangelist denounced sin in its every form with all the fiery zeal of an ancient prophet. Church members, we know not how many, were at the altar trying to correct their relationship with God; they were made to see that having their names written on the church register did not constitute Christianity. Many sinners were weeping at the altar because of their sins. The older people of Holly Springs say that there has not been such a manifestation of the power of God in this town in thirty years. In fact there was a great revival of the religion of the Lord Jesus in the church.

The pastor, D. W. Caviness, received twenty-two into the M. E. church on profession of faith and nine by letter.

The last day of the meeting, from 9:30 a. m. to 5 p. m., was a continuous service of fasting and prayer, and the service began again at 7:30 p. m. and lasted until one o'clock next morning. It looked as though the devil had been put entirely out of business in Holly Springs. This was not the "hand shake" sort of religion; it was the "pray through at the altar" kind. Forty-seven young people gave themselves for definite service.

Pray for us that we may keep the holy fires burning. S. Salyer.

A GENEROUS RESPONSE

The response to the call I made some time ago for the superannuate was right liberal. I want to thank the contributors for him.

Quite a number of them live in the North Carolina conference. I think this brother once served in the bounds of that conference.

But I am sure no one was thinking about where he had served. These two great conferences will never allow a disabled preacher to be in need if they know it.

But let us feel confident that after the drive for the Superannuate Endowment Fund an emergency call will never again be necessary.

J. J. Gray.

As the great test of medical practice is that it heals the patient, so the great test of preaching is that it converts and builds up the hearers.—H. L. Wayland.

IN MEMORIAM

DOXY—Bro. Haywood Doxy, one of the oldest members of Baxter's Grove church, passed away December 26, 1922. Brother Doxy was 84 years old and had been quite feeble for some years, not able to attend church, but notwithstanding this he was firm in the Lord, giving evidence of a living faith in Christ. He was laid to rest in the family burying place in the presence of a goodly congregation of sorrowing children, grandchildren and loving friends. W. B. Humble.

AYDLETT—Mrs. Mary Aydlett, wife of L. D. Aydlett, was born November 17, 1853, and died January 20, 1923. Sister Aydlett was at the time of her death a member of Baxter's Grove church and had been for 26 years. She joined the church when young at Poplar Branch and was a faithful member of the same for a number of years before coming to Baster's. Sister Aydlett was a great sufferer in the last few years of her life, but bore it with great patience and Christian fortitude. She gave unmistakable evidence of her acceptance with her Lord in her last illness. May God comfort her loved ones. She died in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Clara Ballance. She was buried from the home. W. B. Humble.

GASKINS—On Monday, February 19, 1923, the death angel visited the home of Mrs. J. H. Garrish and bore the spirit of Mrs. Dorcas Gaskins to its heavenly home. She was a member of the M. E. Church, South, for many years and a loyal member of the Ladies' Aid Society for twenty-seven years. She was known to all our pastors as "Aunt Dark" and always their friend. She leaves one brother, many relatives and a host of friends to mourn the loss of her, but we hope our loss may be her gain. All was done for her that loving hands could do, but God was calling her to come up to her higher home where parting is no more. Her presence will be missed by all relatives and all her loving friends. We pray that we may all meet her in heaven, and we can all say together, "Gone but no forgotten."

Mrs. M. L. Howard,
Pres. Ladies' Aid Soc.
Miss Florence Gaskill,
Sec. Ladies' Aid Soc.
Mrs. T. W. Howard.

SESSOMS—Miss Lillian Sessoms of Stedman, N. C., was born March 18, 1887; died March 6, 1923; aged 35 years, 11 months and 18 days.

She was converted under the ministry of Rev. L. H. Joyner when she was 17 years old and joined the Methodist church at Stedman, where she ever lived a faithful, consistent Christian life till death.

She leaves a sainted widowed mother, Mrs. Julia Sessoms, now more than 70 years of age; one single brother, Frank M. N. Sessoms; four sisters, Mrs. Mary Owen of Seventy-First township, Cumberland county, Mrs. Lula Gilbert of Lake Waccamaw, Columbus count, Misses Anna S. and Ethel Sessoms, both at home near Stedman, N. C.; a foster brother, Paul H. Sessoms, and five uncles, Alex. Sessoms of Florida, W. T. J. K., J. D. and H. H. Sessoms, to mourn their loss.

She received her educational training in the common schools of Cumberland county, and began teaching when she was 20 years old, and taught till about a month before her death—two years in the Thomas Industrial Institute in Florida, about ten or eleven years in the Cumberland county schools. The last year and a half she was an instructor in the Masonic Orphanage at Oxford, N. C., at which place, in February, she had a nervous breakdown. She at once gave up her position and returned home for rest and recuperation. But in a few days an awful disease attacked her physical nature so severely as to affect her mental condition and had to be taken to the State hospital, where she had every attention given her, but to no avail. She continued to grow worse till death relieved her spirit of the diseased body and took her home to live with God, where pain and affliction are no more.

She was a young woman of great usefulness, full of energy and always of a jolly, cheerful and happy disposition. None knew her but to love her.

She was a fine teacher in the school room and out of it. She lived such a fine Christian character that she did more to develop the character of others out of the school room than in it.

May the comforting influences of the Holy Spirit bless the mother, the brother, the sisters, and all their relatives and friends, soothe all their sorrows till they shall meet her in that haven of eternal rest.

On the eighth day of March the writer, her pastor, conducted the funeral services at the Fisher cemetery, their family burying ground near Stedman. There were about fifteen hundred people in attendance at the funeral services, the largest gathering probably that ever attended any funeral at this cemetery. The grave was completely covered with many of the most exquisite floral designs. R. F. Taylor.

WATKINS—John Casper Watkins of Cullasaja, N. C., peacefully passed to his reward in his 86th year on February 22, 1923.

In the death of Brother Watkins, Macon county loses one of its best citizens and the church one of its most excellent members. We say "loses," yet we know his influence will still live and we are sure he is a member of the church triumphant. Brother Watkins professed faith in Christ in the year 1853 when he was 16 years of age and joined the Methodist church and lived a faithful Christian to the end of his life. He served his church in the following capacities: Class leader, trustee, Sunday school superintendent and steward. He was a man of prayer. His prayers have proved a blessing to many people.

Four sons, four daughters and three brothers survive. R. E. Ward, P. C.

FISH—Wilburn Fish, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Fish, was born January 19, 1905, and departed this life January 25, 1923, age eighteen years and six days.

He was converted and joined the Methodist church when just a boy. And when at home he was usually in his place both at Sunday school and church. Wilburn had a fine disposition and made friends wherever he went. He died in a hospital in Macon, Ga., after about a week's illness from pneumonia. The nurse who attended him said he talked freely about dying, and said he was happy and ready to go.

His body was brought home and laid to rest in the little cemetery on the hill overlooking the town of Clyde, N. C., to await the resurrection morn.

The funeral was one of the largest attended ever held in that community. The pastor was assisted by the following brethren: Professor White, to whom the young man had gone to school, Rev. T. F. Glenn, who had known him from childhood, and Rev. Carlock Hawk, a former pastor.

May the Lord comfort the bereaved family and help each one of them to so live as that there may be a happy reunion on the other side of the river.

W. M. Robbins, Pastor.

STARR—Robert Brooks, son of W. H. and Hallie Weaver Starr, was born in Wilkesboro, N. C., January 10, 1892, and died in Parrott Memorial Hospital, Kinston, January 30, 1923. Besides his devoted parents he is survived by one sister, Eloise, and one brother, Weaver.

Gob Starr was a fine Christian character. Uniting with the Methodist church in early childhood, he always proved himself a loyal and worthy member. For the past six or seven years of his life he had lived in Greenville, holding a responsible position with the Farmers' and Merchants' Bank.

He was very earnest and active in the Sunday school and Epworth League of Jarvis Memorial church, having been twice elected president of his class, which office he held at the time of his death. No young man among us was more highly esteemed for his Christian integrity than was Rob. His pastor accompanied the body to Wilkesboro, where it was met by a host of sorrowing friends and relatives and laid away to await the morning of the resurrection.

V. P. Scoville, Pastor.

IN MEMORIAM

KING—Dr. M. M. King of Brevard, N. C., died March 4, 1923, just having passed his 71st birthday. A physician for nearly half a century. A true and loyal citizen and a faithful friend. Twice married, he leaves four children and a loving companion to mourn their loss. Joined the Methodist church when but a mere boy; he died in its faith. Brevard loses a faithful physician and a very popular citizen. It is said, "He dies without an enemy." May the comforts of the gospel be the heritage of the grief stricken family.
Lee A. Falls, Pastor.

EVANS—Weary of life's stress, after nearly 78 years of life's stress, John W. Evans forsook this world of clay and crossed the river whose waters lash the shore of eternity. His was the privilege of being one of seven charter members of Mt. Olivet church on Roanoke Island, and the impression of his goodly influence shall abide. Brother Evans "lived powerfully among men because he lived deeply in God." He had convictions of right and positively refused to sacrifice them for any earthly thing. Life to this Christian soldier was an abiding faith and death could but bring him the victory.
E. C. Few.

MAUDEN—Adam Mauden was born March 13, 1870 and died March 4, 1923, aged 52 years, 11 months and 21 days. He leaves a wife and six children, two sisters and other relatives to mourn their loss. He had been a member of Stony Hill church, Albemarle circuit, for six years. One of his neighbors just before the funeral service said to me, "He was straight, honest, upright, one of the best neighbors I ever saw." Friend after friend departs;
Who has not lost a friend?
There is no union here of hearts
That finds not here an end."
E. J. Poe.

BLALOCK—James Elmer Blalock was born December 25, 1890, and died at the home of his mother, near Stony Hill Methodist church in Stanly county, February 24, 1923. The subject of this sketch was so afflicted from early infancy that he was never able to talk, but we trust that he has found his voice and now sings the praise of God with the saints and loved ones on the bright eternal shore, where there are no invalids. We laid his body to rest in Stony Hill cemetery to await the resurrection. May the Lord comfort the sorrowing ones.
E. J. Poe.

POPLIN—Sarah Poplin, one of the oldest members of Pine Grove church, Albemarle circuit, departed this life on February 14, 1923. She expressed a desire and readiness to depart and be with Christ whom she had loved and served so long. The funeral service was conducted in Pine Grove church by the writer and Rev. Mr. Thompson of the Holiness church, who was a near neighbor of hers. "Thou shalt come to thy grave in a full age, like as a shock of corn cometh in his season." May all the loved ones and kindred meet her on the bright celestial shore.
E. J. Poe.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas, God in His infinite wisdom has removed from our midst our beloved friend and faithful member and co-worker, Mrs. Jane Glazener, and we as members of the Ladies' Aid and Missionary Society of the Roman Methodist church feel that the church and society has lost one of its most loyal and faithful members and benefactors, and while we bow in humble submission to the righteous will of Him who doeth all things well, yet we, the members of the Ladies' Aid Society of Rosman, N. C., wish to express our appreciation of her labors of love and unselfish service.
Therefore be it resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the N. C. Christian Advocate and that a copy be spread upon the minutes of this meeting.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas, God in His infinite wisdom has seen fit to take unto Himself our beloved sister, Miss Margaret Gaston, of Dallas M. E. church, a faithful member for 25 years. She passed to her reward on Thursday, February 1, 1923. So great was our lover for her, and so keenly shall we miss her cheerful presence that we resolve:
First, That we have lost one of our most loyal, consecrated members in our societies and Sunday school class.
Second, That we humbly submit to the will of Him who doeth all things well.

Mrs. Adelene Spargo,
Mrs. T. L. Rhyne,
Mrs. A. S. Raper,

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

David H. Anderson is dead.
In the midst of life, in active duty, and under full harness, Dave Anderson has been summoned by his Lord to his eternal home.
We honor our heroic and patriotic dead by being true men, and as true men by faithfully performing our service as the dead performed theirs in their day. The best citizen, the best church member, the best man is the one who gives the best manhood to God.
Dave Anderson is dead and the church and the church membership will miss him.
Dave Anderson gave his manhood, his time, his services, his money to the Lord.
He was the man who wrote upon his nature the Ten Commandments and the nine beatitudes.
We are among the many who loved Dave Anderson, but we fling back the thoughtless speech that calls him dead. We have laid, for a period, his body beneath the soil that he loved. God reigns and his purpose lives, and although his lips are silent, the seeds of his service will live on. Therefore, be it resolved:

Whereas, our Lord, in His infinite wisdom has deemed it best to deny us the physical presence of David H. Anderson, and
Whereas, the church has been bountifully blessed by having the services of our dearly beloved for half a century, and while mourning the loss of David H. Anderson to give praise to our Lord God of hosts for the services of His servant to us; and That these minutes and resolutions be read to the Sunday school and be spread upon the records of the church, and a copy sent to Mrs. David H. Anderson, North Carolina Christian Advocate, the Charlotte Observer and the Charlotte News, and that the closing sentence be: "Though we have lost, we have gained."

B. P. Wellens,
J. A. Russell,
Guy A. Myers,
Committee.

PAYNE—Nathan O. Payne was born May 13, 1864, and died in Wanchese, N. C., February 26, 1923. He was converted and joined the Methodist church in early life, and from the time of his conversion until the day of his death he was ever at his post of duty in God's service. He had been an exhorter in the church for several years. On Sunday night, March 25, he attended the services at the church, went home from church and prayed with his family and was stricken before retiring, and passed away at about 6:30 Monday morning. "Be ye also ready, for in such an hour as ye think not the Son of Man cometh." May our heavenly Father comfort the grief-stricken widow and six children that are left, besides a host of friends and relatives.
A. W. Price.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

The Woman's Missionary Society of the Oxford M. E. church has sustained another loss in the death of Mrs. Mary Della Harris, which sad event occurred February 2, 1923. While we cannot question the wisdom or right of our Father to deplete our ranks, we deplore the loss. In her life and character were found all the elements of a refined Christian womanhood. Therefore be it resolved:

First, That our society has lost a valued member, and that while we shall miss her support and cheerful presence we bow in humble submission to the will of Him who never makes a mistake.

Second, That we extend to her children our warmest sympathy, and pray that God may be with them in especial tenderness in this their hour of great need.

Third, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, a copy sent the Public Ledger and the N. C. Christian Advocate for publication, and a copy recorded in the minutes of our society.

Mrs. J. F. Veasy,
Mrs. A. A. Hicks,
Mrs. John Paris.

VAUGHN—Wilson B. Vaughn was born January 19, 1833, died February 21, 1922, aged 85 years, one month and two days. He served the entire four years from 1861 to '65 in the Civil War, being actively engaged in the Confederate Army.

He was married August 24, 1865, to Cora E. Blackburn. To this union were born nine children, three daughters and six sons. Two sons died in infancy; one daughter, Mrs. Susan Vaughn Fulton, died on April 6, 1922. His wife passed to her reward on April 4, 1922.

During the greater part of his life he was a member of the Methodist church, being converted when quite a young man. For many years he was the beloved superintendent of Stokesburg M. E. Sunday school and is kindly remembered as an earnest, untiring worker in that capacity, being held in highest esteem by his former students and co-workers. He was a consecrated Christian all through life, and about two weeks preceding his death he told the family that he had a message from above the night before and was sure that before long he would receive his call; he was exceedingly happy on that occasion and was perfectly satisfied with his future in the great beyond.

For more than 50 years he was a member of the Masonic order, at the time of his death being an honored and faithful member of Walnut Cove Lodge No. 629, A. F. & A. M., and being one of the oldest Masons in this section of the state was honored and respected by his younger brothers who mourn the loss of one of their most valuable fellow workers.

His entire life was spent in Stokes and Forsyth counties, where he lived a life so nearly beyond reproach that he was loved, honored and respected by all who knew him—a landmark who will be sadly missed in the civic, business, social and religious life of the community.

He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. W. S. Gentry of Mt. Airy, Mrs. P. H. Linville of Walnut Cove; four sons, N. M. and W. F. Vaughn of Winston-Salem, E. W. Vaughn, Richmond, Va., and F. S. Vaughn, Mt. Airy.

J. T. Ratledge.

MURRY—Bro. E. P. G. Murry was born in April, 1836, and departed this life February 28, 1923. He was married to Miss Lou Singleton August 15, 1860. To this happy union there were born eight children, two of whom outstripped him in the lane of life. His wife also had crossed over the river and was resting under the shade of the trees eighteen years before his going.

Those of the family who survive him are Eu, Tom, James and Benjamin, and Mrs. Sadie Long and Mrs. Mattie Wells.

He was converted in early life and joined the Bethel M. E. church, and ever afterward lived a consistent life in the same church until he was called home. He was not a man of great display of his deeds, but almost a constant doer of the word. He loved his church. His pastor always found a cordial welcome and an abundant entrance into his home. He loved much, did much, and died well. He was both a soldier of his country and the cross. He saw service in the war between the states. He was ever ready to defend what he thought to be right and to help to down whatever he thought to be wrong.

We laid him away in the Bethel cemetery to await the resurrection of the just in the presence of a large congregation, which was a token of the high esteem and friendship in which he was held. He was a faithful member of the church, a good husband, a loving father and a dutiful citizen. God bless and comfort the bereaved ones.

PINETOPS METHODIST CHURCH, PINETOPS, N. C.

This new brick building takes the place of a one-room frame building which stood on the same lot. It was begun last summer by Rev. L. L. Smith and has been recently completed at a cost of about $11,000. It has a beautiful auditorium and nine Sunday school rooms. The church was opened for worship on the fourth Sunday in March. The Washington District Conference is now in session at this church.

THE RAM'S HORN OUT OF DATE

The walls of Jericho were not blown down by the ram's horns. It would be as accurate to say that the new song of the New Jerusalem was inspired by the heavenly trumpeters. These were but instruments in the economy of God. The one served in a primitive civilization, the other amid the perfected things of God's grace where the streets of the city were gold and the gates pearl and where rams and he-goats were not fit for sacrifice, because the sacrifice of "richer blood and nobler name" had appeared.

There is with God an eternal fitness of things, and there should be with men. Our civilization of the present day has no call for ram's horns, not a bit more than that rude far off age with its primitive shepherd tribes had for golden trumpets. And the man today who is just going to be a ram's horn for God had better get back amid such conditions as when He chose to use those instruments to overturn city walls.

God desires of every age the very best that the civilization of the times can furnish for his service. The automobile, the railroad train, the ships of the sea, and of the air, the winged messengers of communication swift as the lightning should all become servants of God.

The riches of this and every other generation is not for profane, but for holy purposes. Music and art and sculpture and those finer products of our humanity which hold dominion in the kingdom of beauty and culture should be consecrated to the cause of God's eternal Son. For there is a holiness in beauty as well as a beauty in holiness.

The call, therefore, is not for the instruments and methods of some far off day, which the world has clearly outgrown, to do God's work. But the urgency is upon us to take the things of today and use them in modern ways for God's glory. Instruments and methods are not eternal. Eternity belongs to the Divine spirit and the Divine power.

WHY THE UNDUE AND UNNECESSARY ALARM?

The answers in philosophy change with the passing years, but the questions remain unchanged. Just so, the attacks upon Divine revelation differ with the succeeding generations, but "the Word of God standeth sure."

Even unto this day Tom Paine remains in the popular mind an outstanding representative of that infidelity which made vigorous and repeated assaults upon the inspired Word of God, but without results. A generation ago Agnosticism with Robert Ingersol as its brilliant though superficial apostle hurled its negations against the Bible and even against the throne of God. But the world has about stopped taking Agnosticism seriously.

Just now there is in some quarters a popular alarm for the safety of God's Holy Word. The cry is that the destructive critics are about to hew the Bible to pieces.

But in the face of the facts of history as they relate to the Word of God we refuse emphatically to become alarmed. The truth as stated in the following verses—not poetry—appeal to us:

"I stood one day beside a blacksmith's door
And heard the anvils beat and the bellows chime;

Looking in, I saw upon the floor Old hammers worn out with beating years and years of time

'How many anvils have you had,' said I,
'To wear and batter all these hammers so?'
'Just one,' said he, then said with twinkling eye,

'The anvil wears the hammers out, you know.'

So me thought, the anvil of God's word—
Of Jesus' sacrifice—have been beat upon—
The noise of falling blows were heard—
The anvil is unharmed—the hammers are all gone."

ARE THE PRISONERS BADLY TREATED?

The people are entitled to know the exact facts as to the treatment of prisoners in the penitentiary at Raleigh. If the management is what it should be, let the public be so informed. If there be mismanagement, let the evils, whether those complained of, or others, be corrected. It will be a great mistake to attempt a job of whitewashing.

Those who are right need have no fears of the light. Turn on the light and let the people of North Carolina know what is going on in the state prison at Raleigh. In view of the past records, the people need some reassurance as to the management of that prison and now is a good time to give it.

Let's have the exact facts about the management of the penitentiary at Raleigh.

TWO INTERESTING DISTRICT CONFERENCES

Last week was a strenuous one on "rod riders." Two district conferences were held in the North Carolina conference and one in the Western North Carolina. It fell to the lot of the business manager to attend those in the North Carolina conference and present the claims of the Advocate. This was a real joy to him. During the nearly three years we have been in the Advocate office we had only attended two district conferences in his own conference, hence it was a pleasure to be present at the sessions of the New Bern, which was held in Mount Olive, and the Weldon in Jackson.

Bishop Collins Denny preached the opening sermon for the New Bern district on Tuesday night to a large and delighted congregation. The bishop was at his best and immensely pleased his hearers. He preached again at the 11 o'clock hour on Wednesday and again the church was crowded to hear the learned, eloquent and consecrated bishop.

Brother Shamburger had instructed his preachers to have their reports ready, and they gave a splendid account of themselves. A large number of meetings have been held and many have joined the church within the bounds of the district. Much material progress has been made.

Brother Shamburger is finishing up his quadrennium on the district and will be able to hand it over to his successor in good shape. He is a hard, conscientious worker and all who know him love him.

Brother G. B. Starling was the pastor-host of the conference. He is in his third year and the people say they do not care if the time limit is removed altogether. They are perfectly willing to keep Starling indefinitely. He has done good work at Mount Olive during the past two and a half years. No better conference host could be found, and all the Methodist people of that good town opened wide their homes and their hearts to their visitors. We can prove by Revs. R. M. Courtney and W. M. Curtis that we had just about the best home in the town, but the thing about it is every other fellow that was in attendance thought the same thing. But over at Brother J. A. Westbrooks' we found just as good treatment as we could desire. The only regrets we had was we could not stay long enough in that splendid home. Senator Hargett, of Jones county, was at the secretary's table, and was one of the most efficient men we have seen in that position.

It was necessary for us to hurry on, as the Weldon district conference was in session at Jackson, the county seat of Northampton county. We were forced to take a night train out of Mount Olive and go to Rocky Mount and spend the early morning hours, leaving there about five o'clock and arriving in Weldon in time for breakfast. Our good friend, W. T. Shaw, took charge of us and drove us over to Jackson, where we found Brother Mercer and that excellent body of preachers and laymen of the Weldon district. Brother John C. Humble had preached the opening sermon the night before, and we heard the echoes of it when we arrived on Thursday morning. If reports are correct Brother Humble gave a good account of himself. After the sermon the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered and the conference organized by electing Rev. M. Y. Self secretary and appointing the committees.

Brother Mercer had prepared a special program for his conference and announced that it would be the order of service during the entire session. He had the committee on Education to make its report and then gave representatives of the various educational institutions ample time to represent them. Brother Curtis, as is his custom, told in a very effective way of the merits of Greensboro College. Prof. Mohn, the new president of Louisburg College, represented that old institution of learning. Brother Mercer spoke in the interest of Trinity and Carolina.

The next order of business on the program was the report of the committee on Christian Literature, and Brother R. H. Broom, who is one of the most efficient men in the conference, and who knows how to write a report, read a carefully prepared paper which emphasized the importance of religious literature in the home, and urged that our people give more heed to what the young people read. The Advocate representative was given plenty of time and a good hour in which to tell about the North Carolina Christian Advocate. The Weldon district has always been a good friend of the church organ and we are expecting this to be the banner year for the paper over there. The preachers and the presiding elder are all at work for it.

Dinner was served on the court house square and it is seldom that we are accorded the privilege of standing in front of a table loaded with so many good things to eat. There was plenty and to spare.

Brother Mercer is in his second year as elder on the Weldon district. He is always on the alert to the interests of the church, is cautious in his administration of the work, is kind and brotherly to his preachers and is popular with the people all over the district. He was specially good to those who were representing causes of vital interest to the church at large.

Brother B. P. Robinson was the host and he was enjoying looking after the brethren. Robinson is one of our most successful pastors and his heart is as big as his body.

The "connectionals" at these two conferences were Revs. R. M. Courtney, representing the Centenary; W. M. Curtis, Greensboro College; J. M. Ormond, Trinity; J. C. Wooten and L. B. Pattishall, the Methodist Orphanage; Mr. L. L. Gobbel, Sunday school field secretary; Prof. Mohn, Louisburg College, and the Advocate representative.

WORLD VOICES

By Rev. Ashley Chappell, D. D.

We are in danger of listening to world voices. It is frequently said that a preacher is a "live wire." We all know what that means. It means that the preacher is wise for his generation; that he is alert and sensitive to world voices, and knows how to interpret them; that he can distinguish the popular and the unpopular, even in the distance, and governs himself accordingly; that he is thrilled by the maxims of the world, understands them, and uses them. It simply means that his citizenship is not in heaven but here; that he has a genius for listening to the lower world voices rather than the voices of authority that comes from the far-flung heights.

There is no doubt but that this is a temptation to all of us, a temptation that haunts us, and hounds us, through all of the centuries. It is so easy to listen to world voices. It puts one so easily in popular favor and in the popular eye. These world voices promise an immediate success, a success that is tangible. The man who listens to the world voices has much to say about the needs of the hour and the signs of the times. He does lots of talking. He makes the impression on himself and on others that he is saying something greatly worth while. He has no doubt that he will get along all right if he listens to these world voices. Lot, Demus, Judas, and many others who sold out for a mess of pottage, were good listeners to the voices of the world.

Every preacher feels the subtle tendency and temptation to listen to the call of the immediate present. Such a temptation confronted the Apostles, and it has grown more insistent with the years. Possibly there never was a time when our ministry was in greater danger of becoming side-tracked than the present. The duties that devolve upon the preacher are manifold, and he is troubled about many things. He must carry on banquets, organizations, the meeting of committees, and a thousand things innumerable, while church debts sit astride his neck until he is within whispering distance of frenzied finance. All of these things are good, and are necessary. But they are not altogether the preacher's job. The church that saddles all of these various tasks upon the preacher and makes it his first duty to be general business manager and financial agent for the church, is working for its own spiritual impoverishment, as well as that of its pastor. The pastor who allows himself to be ridden to death with a thousand intricate side issues is literally uncrowning himself as well as unfitting himself to listen to the higher voices, which he must hear if he speaks with the note of authority. The preacher already has a job, the most fascinating one in all the world. It is a wonderful privilege to be able to say, "The spirit of the Lord is upon me, because He has anointed me to preach the Gospel." This, and this alone, is his chief glory and task. He should remember that he is God's messenger, speaking the message of life to the world's fainting heart. No, he is not primarily a financial agent, though he ought to know how to teach the proper use of money. He is not an entertainer, though he should be the most fascinating man in the world. He should hold his audiences with deep and holy interest. He must not be a mere lecturer on newspaper and magazine topics of passing interest, though he is to see all of these things with clear eyes, and in the light of eternity, to interpret them in the great trend of history, as it goes forward to the ultimate and divine event. He is not to be the dry and academic ransacker of the pockets of a dusty and dead philosophy, though he is to keep abreast of the times, to know the best that has been said and thought in the world.

What then, is the preacher's task? It is just this: he is to speak to the men of today, in the language of today, the message that he himself has received from the lips of the living Christ of today. His message must be the same old message, but brought in a vital and fascinating way that relates itself to the world of today. Such a message is both timely and timeless. It throbbed in the heart of God before the morning stars sang together. It will still be the mightiest force in the world.

"When earth's last picture is painted,
And the tubes are twisted and dried,
And the oldest color is faded,
And the youngest critic has died."

It has power to kill and power to make alive. It cuts like a sword and heals like a balm. It warms like the noon-day sun and vitalizes like the breath of springtime. It sets men to sighing and sobbing; it also sets them to singing and shouting. It throws them upon their faces in the desert dust; it lifts them upon their feet to be ministers and witnesses for Christ. It drapes them in the sackcloth of penitence; it also decks them in linen pure and white. Brethren, we ought to give ourselves wholly to it. We ought to say with St. Paul, "This one thing I do."

The men who have brought the largest influence to the world for God and right in the past have been the men who did just this thing. It was the burning passion of their lives to speak God's message to men. They felt that "Woe is me if I preach not the Gospel." These great messengers were great listeners, not to world voices but to the Voice from above. They listened in order that they might have something to tell. That preacher who prayerfully listens, and who makes it the holy habit of his life, will have a ministry of perennial effectiveness. He will know how he "might speak a word in season to him who is weary." Such a word takes the weariness out of tired hearts, and the furrows out of tired faces. The great prophet lets us know unmistakably that nobody in the wide universe runs a school of oratory like the great God whose message he himself had heard. Isaiah, Jeremiah, John Wesley, all might have been very successful politicians, listening to world voices. But, above the insistent voices of the world, they heard the voice of God saying, "I have put My word in thy mouth." That, after all, is the final test of our credentials as spokesmen for God.

So in spite of all of the insistent voices of the world, we must still believe that the Apostle John was right when he made that strong resolution to give himself to this one divine task. We must believe in all confidence, too, that this is the supreme need of the preacher for this twentieth century day. In no other possible way will he be able to find the best; in no other way will the fine radiance of his early ministry abide with him in growing brightness to the end of the day. How fearfully easy it is for him to become a mere talker, a mere peddler of dead experiences, of passing things that are trivial, instead of a gladsome herald of the unsearchable riches of Christ. He knows better than anybody in all the world how easy it is to become a faltering purveyor of half-believed dogmas, instead of a winsome witness of what he has heard and seen in the secret place of the Most High. He knows with what facility he may pass from the high office of the shepherd of the sheep, to a mere gossiping gadabout, with no mighty rod to strike sin, and with no magic crook to guide the flock. He knows with what awful readiness he may be side-tracked from his holy office of the minister of Christ to become a mere pious piddler, fretting himself about a thousand things, instead of an inspired prophet, giving himself wholly to the one task of bringing God's burning message to men. The man of this one work will bless and bless continuously. He will be able to begin his sermon, "Thus sayeth the Lord," and those who sit under his ministry will rejoice with joy unspeakable and full of glory.

Asheville, N. C.

PEOPLE AND THINGS

Rev. D. V. York will begin revival services at North Wilkesboro on Sunday, June 17.

Rev. E. R. Welch began a meeting last Sunday at Chestnut Street, Asheville. Rev. H. C. Sprinkle, the presiding elder of the Asheville district, is doing the preaching.

Rev. G. W. Fink of Mooresville is this week in a meeting at Erlanger with Rev. R. A. Smith, the pastor. This meeting, under the auspices of the Methodist church, is intended to meet a community need.

"Mrs. Anna A. Mahene died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. M. James, in Pineville, April 1, 1923. She was a noble Christian woman and will be greatly missed by her children and loved ones and a great host of friends." This sorrowful message comes from Rev. T. J. Houck.

Rev. Geo. F. Smith, pastor of our church at Litleton, was in Greensboro Tuesday to attend a meeting of the board of trustees of Greensboro College. As is his custom when in the city, he paid the Advocate a visit, and reported that his charge is moving along nicely.

Rev. Mr. Carpenter, we understand, after having undergone the second operation not many days ago, is showing more signs of improvement now than at any other time in the two and one-half months of illness and will possibly be home before so very much longer.—News-Record.

Rev. Chas. M. Lance sends us the following report that will bring sorrow to a host of Brother Weatherby's friends: "Brother C. E. Weatherby of Faison, at one time lay leader of the North Carolina conference, is now seriously ill in a Kinston hospital. His many friends throughout the state will be glad to join us in prayer for his restoration if consistent with God's will."

Rev. J. Herbert Miller says: "We closed a very successful meeting at Pinetops on last Sunday night, April 8. The attendance and interest was splendid throughout the meeting. At the closing service we had an overflow attendance. Every available seat was taken, people standing, and just a few who failed to get in at all. There were fourteen additions to the church on profession of faith."

"A most unique but interesting service was recently held in the Methodist church of Bynum, when an individual communion service was presented to the church in memory of a former pastor and his beloved wife, Rev. and Mrs. G. W. Perry. They still have many loyal friends here whose prayers will follow them wherever they go. The presentation was made by Miss Mamie Moore in behalf of the Philathea class of which she is a member."

Dr. S. B. Turrentine, president, has announced that Rev. Franklin N. Parker, D. D., dean of Candler School of Theology, Emory University, will preach the commencement sermon for Greensboro College on May 27, at 11 o'clock, and that Dr. C. G. Hounshell, of Nashville, Tenn., the sermon for the Y. W. C. A., the same evening at 8 o'clock. On Tuesday, May 29th, Mr. Harry Clark, of Nashville, Tenn., will deliver the annual address. The full program will be published next week.

Rev. Paul R. Rayle of Rutherford College and Miss Annie Bell Pearson of the Summerfield charge were quietly married Easter Sunday afternoon in Center church, which has been their home church from youth. Miss Pearson has been employed as one of the teachers of Ridgefield High School for the past three years, while Mr. Rayle has been preparing himself for his life's work. After the holidays each returned to their work. Mrs. Rayle will join Mr. Rayle at Rutherford College the 21st of this month.

Dr. F. E. Asbury of Ashboro, who was taken ill with pneumonia while attending the Greensboro district conference at Pleasant Garden, died Wednesday of last week at the home of Mr. C. F. Neeley, whose guest he was for the conference. The funeral services, conducted by Rev. W. H. Willis, were held in the Ashboro Methodist church April 13, and interment was in the Ashboro cemetery. Dr. Asbury was a prominent physician, loyal Methodist and highly esteemed citizen. A large circle of friends mourn the departure of this good man.

Dr. C. C. Weaver, the pastor, has just closed a meeting in Central church, Monroe, conducted by Rev. C. S. Kirkpatrick and Mrs. C. L. Steidley. It was a great success. More than fifty people came into the church, among them several grown men. In fact it was a men's meeting. Central church now has over 900 members—but will not be open this fall, according to the latest report from the pastor. We have no report from the people.

There is to be a program of special interest in connection with the third quarterly conference of the Waxhaw charge, M. E. Church, South, to be held in the Methodist church in Waxhaw, embracing the fourth Sunday in April. The program is to begin Friday, 7:30 p. m., April 20, with a sermon to the Epworth League and young people generally. Saturday, 11 a. m., sermon by Rev. J. B. Craven, P. E.; 1:30 p. m., "Loyalty to Our Church Vows," Hon. H. B. Adams; 7:30 p. m., "The Far-reaching Effects of the Cross." Sunday, 11 a. m., sermon on Missions, Rev. J. B. Craven, P. E.; 2:00 p. m., S. S. Institute; 7:30 p. m., "The Philosophy of Life."

There is one thing that our people and preachers should learn, and that is that Bishop Denny knows the law of the church and is going to be governed by that law when he is in charge of a conference. It seems that the local preachers in both conferences have been careless about sending in their reports and making a request for the renewal of their license to preach. They may just as well learn that Bishop Denny will not allow their license to be renewed unless they comply with the requirements of the discipline. Several of the local preachers' licenses were lapsed because of their failure to meet this requirement.

Rev. D. V. York writes from Brevard: "We are having the most outstanding revival here that has been for years. It is reaching the outstanding business men of the town. Have had about 75 conversions to date and the end is not yet. We have organized prayer squads and held prayer meetings in nearly every home in the town and some in the country. I look for over 100 conversions before we close. There are actually scores of people who are leading in public prayer that never thought of doing so before. I go from here to Concord for two meetings. The meeting is now largely reaching the men of the town. Excuse this irregular writing, as I have been holding three services all the time except about half of the time when I have been holding four services per day, and preached five times last Sunday and had 24 conversions during the day."

SPRING GARDEN STREET CHURCH

Our call for help has been heard in the Far East. Bro. J. R. Moose, a missionary in Korea, sends us a check for $5.00.

We feel that we ought to send this money back to Korea. God needs money there. Greensboro Methodism should come to the rescue of Spring Garden church, and with the consent of the pastors and official boards of the various churches of the city a campaign for funds for this church will be started Sunday afternoon, April 22. Every Methodist who has not already done so will have an opportunity to contribute to this church, located across the street from the N. C. C. W.

If you are interested in the N. C. C. W. and the work that Spring Garden Street church is doing for the girls of this great school send us a contribution.

Sincerely yours,

W. A. Mann, Treas.,
710 Highland Ave., Greensboro, N. C.

FOUNDERS AND BENEFACTORS DAY AT GREENSBORO COLLEGE

Greensboro College observed April 17 as Founders and Benefactors Day with appropriate exercises at 11 o'clock in the college auditorium of the Odell building. President S. B. Turrentine was in charge of the services. Mr. Chas. S. Wallace of Morehead City, president of the board of trustees, read a scripture lesson. Prayer was offered by Rev. M. T. Plyler of Durham. The address of the day was delivered by Rev. W. A. Lambeth of Gastonia. Mr. Lambeth's address, which met fully every demand of the occasion, centered about three words, namely, Benefactors, Gratitude, Emulation. Delightful music was furnished by the department of music of the college.

The trustees held their semi-annual meeting at two o'clock in the afternoon.

Rev. H. L. Davis writes that the second quarterly conference of the Duke charge was held at Black's Chapel church the seventh and eighth. It was an old time Methodist conference. Brother Willis preached an excellent sermon Saturday at 11 a. m. Lunch was then served out in the grove. After an hour of recess the business session was held. Reports were made as called for, and they indicated that the work was going along nicely and the pastor was not being neglected. Sunday afternoon at three o'clock Brother Willis preached another helpful and inspiring sermon. Brother G. T. Adams of Dunn was with us at Duke Sunday morning, April 8, and preached a great sermon, presenting the Centenary cause in a very interesting and appealing style.

REV. N. C. WILLIAMS ILL

Rev. N. C. Williams, the pastor at Granite Falls, is in Long's Hospital in Statesville suffering with a severe gastric ulcer. Just before taken suddenly ill on last Thursday, Brother Williams finished placing the Advocate in every home in his church, securing forty-two new subscribers. He did this work himself and he has now an efficient committee securing all the renewals. It is work like this which puts the Statesville district up around the head of the column. All over the district the Advocate and the Centenary canvasses are being vigorously pushed and fine reports will soon be forthcoming on both these great and good causes. D. M. Litaker.

A DAY IN OLD IREDELL

I spent last Sunday with Rev. J. A. Peeler, the pastor of the Troutman circuit, and preached at 11 o'clock at Troutman and in the afternoon at Rocky Mount. Brother Peeler is pleased with his new charge and the people are delighted with him. Many were the joys of the day in being back upon the hills of my native county and among these delights was my stay at the parsonage, with its unstinted hospitality. Brother and Sister Peeler still carry in their hearts the sensitive wounds made by war in the loss of their oldest son. He was one of the immortals who broke the Hindenburg line and turned the fortunes of war. But he was among those boys of the infantry who fell in that awful struggle and his dust sleeps in a hero's grave "far from kindred and friends," while the people at home miss him still. A. W. P.

GO-TO-COLLEGE SUNDAY

I am mailing to each pastor of the North Carolina conference this week six copies of the program for GO-TO-COLLEGE DAY. This will be sufficient for any one church, furnishing a copy for the leader, and a copy for each of the five people selected to assist the leader. The program is arranged in the form of questions and answers. The leader might be either the pastor, the Sunday school superintendent, the chairman of the educational committee, or any other good man or woman interested in this cause. Half of the Sunday school hour might well be used for these exercises, or a part, or even the whole of one of the preaching hours. In case of a circuit, I would suggest that these programs be used at one church, and saved to be used at the others, as I will not be able to furnish extra programs. When the service is over, these programs ought to be given to young people who will soon go away to college. The pastor, or some other leader, is requested to take the names of any young people ready for college and put our colleges in touch with them. I wish very much that this program might be carried out in every church or Sunday school or Epworth League in the North Carolina conference. H. M. North, Sec.

WHY THERE SHOULD BE AN IMMEDIATE AND DETERMINED EFFORT TO CURB MOB VIOLENCE

1. Because of the great menace of mob violence to civilization.

2. There is a rising tide of sentiment opposed to mob violence. Lynchings have been reduced in a time of increasing general lawlessness.

3. Special moral obligation rests upon us as Southern citizens because the majority of the lynchings occur in Southern cities and because of the general opposition of the co-operation of the federal government in punishing those participating in mob violence. This was especially manifested in the opposition to the Dyer bill.

4. Such effort at this time would tend to reduce the general exodus of negroes from the South to other sections of the country.

5. It would strengthen the hands of those who are seeking to lead younger negroes, particularly negro college students, to a faith in Christian principles and methods as offering the largest hope for the negro race in America. Dr. McKenzie reports in a confidential conversation that it has become almost impossible to get negro college students to listen to a presentation of the claims of Christianity. They say that Christians could, if they would, prevent the outrages to which negroes are so frequently subjected and that this shows the utter futility of Christianity.

6. Such a vigorous campaign would help to break the power of the negro radical and would greatly strengthen the hands of that large number of negro leaders who at present seek to hold the masses of negroes to faith in their white neighbors, in the Christian church and in co-operation as opposed to force.

7. It would help to forward every constructive enterprise which is now being undertaken for negroes. Negro education and negro health cannot be successfully promoted in states where lynchings frequently occur. In those states where lynchings have been eliminated or reduced to a minimum, the program of education and general welfare for negroes has gone forward with increasing rapidity.

8. Will be most helpful in combating the general spirit of lawlessness which prevails throughout the country. The most effective way to combat the more violent forms of lawlessness in the South would be to concentrate on the elimination of mob violence.

9. The story of American mob violence, particularly against negroes, is known around the world and is a constant embarrassment to missionaries among the tinted races where the opinion prevails that Christian America butchers and burns black men and women with little consideration on the part of anyone. I was particularly impressed with this in a recent interview with the president of Peking University, and one of the bright Chinese Christians who is a teacher of philosophy in that institution.

10. It will remove from the Anglo-Saxon race the greatest blot which rests upon it in any part of the world. There is no other practice common among Anglo-Saxon people where so much savagery and brutality is manifested as in the lynchings in the United States. This, of course, bears directly on the future leadership of our race among the people of the world.

Why the M. E. Church, South, Should Do This.

1. Because the moral and religious appeal of the church is the only final cure for this evil.

2. Because it is a Southern organization. No organization outside the South, not even the Federal Council, can lead Southern public opinion this question.

3. The Methodist Episcopal Church, South, can reach Southern communities more thoroughly and more quickly than any other similar organization.

4. Other Southern churches and civic organizations will follow the leadership of the Methodist Church, South, more quickly than any other organization with similar influence.

5. The Methodist Episcopal Church, South, has a background of social vision and tradition which lays upon it a moral obligation for such an undertaking. The lives of Bishops Haygood, Galloway, Lambuth and of Miss Bennett with a host of others who have passed on, placed upon us a peculiar and inescapable obligation.

JESUS, THE CHRIST, AND THE DESTRUCTIVE CRITICS

By E. Myers.

The great warfare between God and Satan, between light and darkness, between righteousness and unrighteousness, has been waged over the Christhood of Jesus and the present warfare between the faithful men of the church and the higher critics is a continuation of that same warfare. Satan began in the temptations in the wilderness; he continued it through the world and the church while Jesus was here on earth. The battle was begun by the Jews as soon as he began to show his claims to the Messiahship or to reveal himself as the Son of God. The first part of his ministry was popular as he taught the great crowds, fed the multitudes and healed the sick, but when he told them that he was the Son of God, the bread that came down from heaven and that except they eat his flesh and drink his blood that they could have no life in them, then the multitudes left him and persecution grew more intense as the days came and went and the challenge to his Messiahship or Christhood became more bitter and determined and they never let up until they got him on the cross. That fight was continued by these same opponents of Christ and others that arose from time to time and continued to war with the Apostles of Jesus, and most of them like their Lord suffered martyrdom for the same reason, namely, preaching the Christhood of Jesus. The word, resurrection of the dead, and especially of Jesus, stirred these haters of Christ, and not only resurrection but anything else that involved the Deity of Christ or his Christhood.

But perhaps John describes them more definitely than any other Apostle. In his epistles we will notice a few passages: 1 John 2:22, "Who is a liar but he that denieth that Jesus is the Christ?" (that is, denies the Christhood of Jesus). The same verse continues, "He is antichrist that denies the Father and the Son." Verse 23, "Whosoever denieth the Son, the same hath not the Father." So you see we cannot deny the Christhood of Jesus and have the Father.

First John 4:16. In these verses John urges the churches to "try the spirits whether they are of God, because many false prophets are gone out into the world." Verse 2, "Hereby know ye the Spirit of God. Every spirit that confesseth that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh is of God: and every spirit that confesseth not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh is not of God: and this is that spirit of antichrist whereof ye have heard that it should come: and even now already is it in the world."

Let us keep in mind that John is still speaking of the Christhood of Jesus. Of course the world around them knew of the historic Christ, but some denied his Deity or Christhood, and John says they are all false prophets and antichrists who deny his Deity or Christhood. He says also that they who deny his Christhood are not of God, but in verse 4 he tells the saints that they are of God: "Ye are of God little children and have overcome them; because greater is he that is in you than he that is in the world." Verse 5, "They are of the world; therefore speak they of the world and the world heareth them." Verse 6, "We are of God; he that knoweth God heareth us, he that is not of God heareth not us. Hereby know we the spirit of truth and the spirit of error."

These verses draw the line and show up true Christians or true preachers and teachers, for that is what these verses refer to, and the false prophets or antichrists which answer to the critics of the present time. They teach the same doctrine, denying the Christhood of Jesus. John says those of his day were not of God. John 4:3, "Every spirit that confesseth not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh is not of God: and this is that spirit of antichrist whereof ye have heard that it should come." So those of our day being the same kind are not of God. In John 2:19, "They went out from us, but they were not of us: for if they had been of us they would no doubt have continued with us: but they went out that they might be made manifest that they were not all of us." These verses help to locate the critics of the present day. They went out, or went "over," as some are putting it, leaving the teaching of the church and the Bible and taking up the teachings of the age-long enemies of God and the church in the name of Science. The Apostle Paul said "science so called." It changes so often that you never know where to find it.

Now, to sum up the charges the Apostle brings against them, "False prophets," "antichrists," "not of God," "went out from us," and "not of us," five charges, all of which may be applied to the critics.

If these critics are as intellectual as they would have us believe, it seems to me that they would not use some arguments and make some claims which they are making.

1. They proceed with their arguments to show that Jesus is not divine and then turn around and call him Lord and Master. If he is not divine he is no Lord of mine. I had as soon offer worship to any other man. In fact to worship him would be idolatry; just as well worship Buddha or Confucius as to worship Jesus if he is not divine. But I am so glad I know he is divine.

2. They say it is his good example, lofty ideals, and superior teaching that appeals to them and commends him to them. I rejoice in all these, but these are his because he is divine. If he were not divine his would not be a good example. He would be a pretender (even the greatest pretender) and a hypocrite, for he claimed to be divine and his disciples claimed it for him and the Father owned him as his son before competent witnesses on two occasions, at the Baptism and on the Mount of Transfiguration. Now if Jesus was not divine, very God as well as very man, all this testimony is false and Jesus was an imposter and hypocrite. So we see that Jesus could not be a good example if he is not God. With one breath these inconsistent scholars (?) quote from the Bible and with the next they deny or ridicule it. Have they anything that is certain, that is sure and steadfast on which they can lean in times of storm, anything on which to pillow their heads in the dying hour? No Bible, no Christ, an uncertain and very vague kind of God that somewhere back in the millions of years gone by started things and left them to rock along at will.

It is not so surprising that men of the world, scientists that know nothing of God or of his salvation, should have such views as the critics are setting forth, but for preachers, theologians, with all sorts of D's hanging to their names to advocate such stuff, it is surprising. But when we turn to Jude 19, we read the explanation, "These are they who separate themselves, sensual, having not the spirit." The word "sensual" does not give the true meaning here, but the idea in the original word is intellectual, or natural, in opposition to the Holy Spirit, as he says, "having not the spirit." The Greek word translated "sensual" is psychikoi—mind or soul. So the way the devil gets preachers away from the main line of Holy Ghost religion is to get them on the sidetrack of intellectuality, and the switch on the sidetrack is so gradual and so near like the main line that the devil has them turned completely away from the main line before they are aware of it, as the only guard and guide is the Holy Spirit whom they have chosen against in accepting the critics' intellectualism. So before they are aware of it they get out on the devil's sidetrack and puff and blow and make a great deal of noise and would make the whole world believe they are on the main line of God's wonderful salvation. Of course, the track has sensuality on it and many other things that are not right, but the switch is being operated by the devil that engages the mind first then on to other things. We had better stay on the main line of Holy Ghost religion.

May the Lord give us grace to say with Peter, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the Living God," and in this faith to live and die. Amen.

The preacher should be positive, but not dogmatic; earnest, but not denunciatory; tender, but not sentimental; scholarly, but not pedantic; simple, but not commonplace; impassioned, but yet graceful; popular, but not vulgar. Believing with all his heart in the reality and deadly power of sin, in the peril of the ungodly, and in the gospel as the only adequate remedy for a ruined race, he should try to make his fellowmen believe the same; and by his tremendous earnestness, by the contagion of his own faith, he should succeed.—Anon.

That is not the best sermon which makes the hearers go away talking to one another, and praising the speaker, but which makes them go away thoughtful and serious and hastening to be alone.—B. F. Burnet.

A VARIETY OF THINGS, INCLUDING SHELBY DISTRICT CONFERENCE

For weeks Bishop Denny has been on the go constantly and will continue this strenuous manner of life for weeks to come. I ran up with this hard working bishop last Thursday morning at 6:20 o'clock as we were climbing on board a southbound train at Greensboro. Bishop Denny had come through on the night sleeper from Goldsboro on his way from the New Bern district conference at Mt. Olive to the Spartanburg district conference. I was headed for the Shelby district conference. Consequently we made the trip together as far as King's Mountain.

The tedium of those morning hours was dispelled when the good bishop at the breakfast table talked most interestingly and at length of scholars, of scholarship and of the scarcity of real scholars. The world of scholarship is an enchanted realm to our bishop, but he is aware of its limitations as well as appreciative of its riches.

I had gone trusting to luck for a means of conveyance from King's Mountain to the seat of the conference at Shelby and fickle fortune smiled upon me upon this occasion. For Mr. E. A. Hauser had come over in his sedan from Shelby to meet Mr. E. B. Hunter, the telegraph editor of the Daily News, who was to be his "best man" at his marriage at 5 o'clock that same afternoon, and the bridegroom took me in. In addition to a delightful ride with these fine young men for 14 miles over the hills of Cleveland county, I enjoyed the hospitality of Dr. and Mrs. E. A. Hauser, the parents of the young man who had befriended me and also got an invitation to attend the marriage in the afternoon.

It was a beautiful marriage in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Anthony, attended by the families of the contracting parties and a few friends and was followed by an elegant reception.

I reached the conference at the opening of the afternoon session while Rev. J. E. Thompson was conducting the half hour of worship. The morning session of the conference, according to reports, had been a busy time and the afternoon session kept the pace of the previous session. Sunday school work and the subject of Christian literature occupied a prominent place on the program of this session.

Rev. H. H. Jordan believes, with all his heart in the supreme value of good literature and he does not hesitate to use his influence to induce our people to become the readers of Christian literature.

The presiding elder and the pastors of the Shelby district are enthusiastically behind the North Carolina Christian Advocate in the present campaign. They believe in the paper and are working for it.

Thursday evening a large congregation listened with breathless attention for fifty minutes to an intensely interesting and helpful sermon by Rev. W. A. Lambeth of Main Street, Gastonia, upon the subject of A Masculine Gospel. Brother Lambeth drives home the truth with apt and telling illustrations.

One of the impressive and helpful hours of the morning session was at 11 o'clock, when the sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered by Rev. R. M. Hoyle, "the grand old man of the Western North Carolina conference." He spoke impressively of this sacrament and every pastor should hear the address he made and then practice what he said. Jesus did not command us to celebrate his birth, his crucifixion or his resurrection, but he did command us to continue this "supper." Yet we make a great ado over the celebration of Christmas and Easter and at the same time neglect that which he specifically commanded.

It was this thought that Brother Hoyle put emphasis upon and at the same time told us of the great spiritual value of this sacrament. The hour was one of spiritual joy for the entire conference.

Brother Jordan is in his fourth year on the district and progress is manifest in every part of the district. The ladies each day served an elegant luncheon in the Sunday school department of the church. Rev. A. L. Stanford was alert to every demand and met in a large way his duties as a host. He is meeting with his accustomed success at Shelby with overflowing congregations, record breaking prayer meetings and a Sunday school near the 500 mark. He is now in a revival.

I look to Rev. W. M. Mann, the secretary, for a list of lay delegates to annual conference, the names of those licensed to preach and other details of the conference.

To allow the delightful and elegant hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. D. V. Newton to pass unmentioned in these notes of the conference would be little short of base ingratitude. To stay in the home of these young Methodists, even for a night, adds a bright spot to one's memory of life's joys. A. W. P.

DOWN BY THE SEASIDE

To ride on a train from Greensboro to Wilmington that makes about 22 miles per hour will try the patience and piety of almost any one. It is not that the train runs so slow while it is running, but it stays long enough at each station for friends to greet friends and for business men to transact their affairs. But it is not the fault of the railroad. Traffic is so heavy—baggage, express, etc., it requires much time to load and unload, but what is the use to be in such a hurry?

When Wilmington is finally reached the hospitality accorded by the good people of that fine city, repays for all other things. The train which carried the Advocate's business manager arrived Saturday night, April 14th, just thirty minutes late. As he stepped off the train our good friend, Fleet Williams, took charge of us and placed us in his high powered Mitchell and drove rapidly to Wrightsville Sound in company with Harry McGirt and Rev. A. L. Ormond, the ever increasingly popular pastor of Fifth Avenue church. I know of but two men anywhere who can eat more-rosated oyster than Fleet Williams and Harry McGirt. It is useless to call names.

Sunday morning found us at the opening of the Sunday school at Fifth Avenue. That Sunday school has grown just as much as it can till the new building is complete. Practically every seat in the main auditorium was occupied and it is impossible to do good Sunday school work with such inadequate quarters. But in a few weeks that Sunday school will move over to one of the best equipped Sunday school buildings that we have seen. Brother Gore showed the Advocate representative over the edifice and explained all the details to him. When completed there will be a main assembly room which will seat something like eight hundred or a thousand people, twenty-five class rooms, boys' scout room, men's class room, a room for all meetings of the ladies, and, in fact, everything that an up-to-date building of this kind demands. The Fifth Avenue Sunday school expects to occupy their new building early in May. It is the expectation of the pastor and officers to increase the school from their present enrollment of about three hundred to about double that number, and there is no reason why they should not, for as we see it this church is well located to take care of a large part of the city.

It is a great pleasure to preach to Fifth Avenue congregation. That Sunday morning the house was well filled, the choir rendered splendid music and the attention was an inspiration to the preacher.

Brother Ormond is there in his first year, but has won for himself a large place in the hearts of the people. The fact of the case is if we were right certain that Bros. Shore and McCracken would not read this we would tell just what the folks did say. But Ormond is making good and is having a fine hearing.

The Advocate is in good favor and a strong committee has been appointed to secure renewals and new subscriptions and we will be greatly disappointed if we fail to receive a long list real soon.

At the evening hour we worshipped with the Grace congregation and tried to preach to that splendid people. They were rather "fed up." Brother Stanbury has been preaching there for nearly four years and the people say that he is just about the best the church affords, and Dr. Rawlings had occupied the pulpit in the morning. So it was rather trying on us to attempt to preach, but we had a sympathetic hearing. Grace is one of the great churches of Southern Methodism and Stanbury is one of the most efficient men we have in the church. The past quadrennium has been one of splendid achievements. This is one of the few churches in the state that all official members are subscribers to the North Carolina Christian Advocate. It is our honest conviction that every official member of the church at least ought to take and read the church paper. Grace will do its part for the Advocate, we have no doubt.

Monday night, after another oyster roast, we attended the quarterly conference at Trinity church. Brother Daniels, the methodical and painstaking presiding elder, was in command. If we had any misgivings as to Brother Daniels' ability to fill the office of presiding elder, they were dispelled on Monday night. He goes into every detail of church work and when he is through he knows what the church is doing, and, if his preachers are to be believed, he is popular all over the Wilmington district.

But the Trinity congregation are of the opinion that Rev. H. C. Smith is the finest fellow and just about the best preacher that the North Carolina conference affords, and we could not dispute with them. Brother Smith is doing a splendid piece of work and is appreciated by all the people in Wilmington who have come in contact with him. Trinity is well located. It is in a growing section of the city. The one mistake that was made in planning that church was in not building large enough. It is already too small for the increasing Sunday school and congregation. In the near future they will be forced to enlarge. A number of the official members are greatly interested in placing the Advocate in every home represented in the membership of the church, and we believe this will be done before the end of the campaign.

While in Wilmington we were the guest of that fine young couple, Mr. and Mrs. Fleet Williams in their beautiful suburban home. Their hospitality was the kind for which eastern North Carolina is noted.

N. E. W. S.

The word news is made up of the initials of the words North, East, West and South. I suppose it means information from all points of the compass.

We had in Rowan county, when I was a boy, a man who dearly loved to tell the news. He couldn't read, but he could spell, and when he had spelled out enough to make a news item he would hurry off to a neighbor's to tell it. His neighbors, knowing how he loved to tell it, would be sure to ask him the news. Then he had an odd way of telling it which made it interesting. When the great fire was raging in Chicago and after it had raged for about three weeks, this brother got hold of a paper that told about it. Loking at the maps that gave the track of the fire as it was driven by the wind first in one direction and then in another he spelled out the name of the place where it occurred and put out to a neighbor's house. Pretty soon someone asked, "Mr. ———, is there any news?" "News, itam, yes! Chick-a-go liked to got burned up the other day."

But I started out, Messrs. Editors, to say that we Methodists of North Carolina are and ought to be grateful to you for the excellent fund of news items you are giving us in the Advocate. It is astonishing how much you can gather from all points of the compass without a corps of paid reporters. "Day by day, in every way," the Advocate is getting better and better; but I want to record my appreciation especially of the religious news items you are giving us. If I had money I would send the Advocate to all of my people and many of my friends who don't take it. I hope you will get the number of new subscribers you set out to get, and that all delinquents will renew. D. L. Earnhardt.

SHALL THE LINE BREAK?

Bishop James E. Dickey.

We have not forgotten the tense days of 1917-18, when the thin line across the frontiers of Belgium and France was bending and falling back and bending again. We waited with bated breath when the newsboys cried, "The Drive's On!" Strong men gripped hands and asked, "Will the line break?" Pale faced women fled to their closets and prayed that the line might not break, for it should break a besom of destruction would sweep on to Paris, across the channel and then deluge a wide world.

There is a thin line in Belgium today under the leadership of Bishop Beauchamp, another in far away Manchuria-Siberia under Bishop Boaz, another in China under Bishop Hay, another in Africa under Bishop Cannon, and another to the far south, under the Southern Cross, directed by Bishop Dobbs. These men, with their devoted followers, are there bearing aloft Immanuel's banner in the face of fearful odds. Humanity with all its hopes and all its fears hangs upon the destiny of those thin lines. Shall the line break?

REVIVAL AT WEAVERVILLE

We are in the midst of our revival meeting here at Weaverville. Bro. H. C. Sprinkle, our beloved presiding elder, did the preaching last week. He brought us messages valuable beyond measure. We feel that a great good has been done already. Dr. Ashley Chappell, the efficient pastor at Central church, Asheville, is doing the preaching this week. Dr. Chappell is a man with a message and he knows how to deliver it. Pray for us that we may have a great revival.

B. C. Reavis, Pastor.

MACON CIRCUIT

Am at work at last. Almost through with what is now my first round of church conferences—should have been the second round—and in these conferences held four time a year preceding quarterly conference every interest of the church is reviewed. This is how that in every church there is an elected representative of the Advocate.

Hope one of you can be at our district conference prepared to remain over Sunday. Two churches are to be dedicated, and I would like to arrange to have one of you to speak at Old Folks Day the third Sunday in September at Union. W. I. Hughes.

BEST MEETING IN HISTORY OF CHURCH

We closed what was said by the older members to be the best meeting in the history of our church last night. The people came to the altar and prayed through. We received thirty-five and will have others. The most of those who united with the church are men and women. About fifteen of the number are men. Bro. M. V. Lewis of Wilmore, Ky., had charge of the music and conducted it in a most excellent way. If any man wants a singer he will be indeed fortunate to get Brother Lewis. He is deeply consecrated, a fine worker, has power in prayer, a lovable man and can get more music out of a congregation than any man I ever saw. L. L. Smith.

RAMSEUR-FRANKLINVILLE

The work of the Ramseur-Franklinville charge is progressing well. The laymen are carrying on their share of the work nobly, thus making the pastor's work more effective. The wide distribution of the Advocate among our people aids greatly in preparing their minds and hearts for the splendid service rendered to the church and for the reception of the word.

Rev. A. W. Lynch, recently licensed to preach by the Greensboro district conference, preached at Ramseur Sunday morning, April 8th. Since he was recommended from our charge it was fitting that he should preach his first sermon here. The sermon was one of considerable power and was heartily received. For a man just starting in the ministry he possesses unusual knowledge of the scripture. This, linked up with his scholastic preparation and his consecration, renders him a young minister of promise.

W. L. Scott.

THE GREAT RECORD OF A SUPER-INDENT AND HIS FAMILY

I have been superintendent of our Sunday school at Green Street, Winston-Salem, nearly 15 years straight. In that time I have only missed three Sundays, and in that time I never have been late a single Sunday—I have been on time and ahead of time every time. My oldest son, now seventeen, has been in our Sunday school ever since he was eight months old, and he has not missed a Sunday in ten years. Our oldest girl is now twelve years old and has been in our Sunday school ever since she was four weeks old and has not missed over half a dozen Sundays in her life. Wife and myself are blessed with twin boys who are now eight years old, and we carried them to Sunday school the Sunday they were four weeks old, and they have not missed over six Sundays in this time. We now have a little girl in our home who will be thirteen months old the 12th day of this month, and we carried her the Sunday she was four weeks old and she has not missed a single Sunday yet. Today makes 53 Sundays out of the 57 Sundays that she has been in the world. We carried her the Sunday she was four weeks old and she stayed for preaching and we had her baptized on that day by our pastor, Rev. A. C. Swafford, at that time, and our twin boys joined the church at the same time.

We are now seven in family and we all have put in straight together with our baby and its mother 53 Sundays without a miss. Our car is somewhat a jitney on Sunday, but no charge. But we get good pay. Our oldest son takes our car and goes south and gets Mrs. W. M. Biles and children and brings them to school, then goes north and gets three ladies and comes by home and gets his mother and little sister and brings them to Sunday school also. So we are proud of such a record. But we give our heavenly Father the praise for it all, for it is His goodness and mercy that we have been able to do so.

H. C. Jones, Supt.

SOUTHSIDE METHODIST CHURCH, WINSTON-SALEM

The Wesley Bible class, taught by Mr. W. M. Spough, is a fine class of men of thirty-six (36) members.

The Sons of Wesley is an exceptionally fine class of fifty-six (56) members, with Mr. C. V. Pegram teacher.

The mothers' class has twenty-nine (29) members with a good leader, Mrs. J. A. J. Farrington.

The following classes are doing equally as well with fine teachers:

Daughters of Wesley, taught by Mrs. Kenny.

The Intermediate, taught by Mrs. H. G. Johnson and Mr. J. N. Hanks.

The Juniors, taught by Miss Carter and Mr. H. J. Daughtery.

Primary, taught by Miss Critz.

Beginners, taught by Miss Shelton and Mrs. Whitt.

There are four hundred and thirty-eight (438) on Sunday school roll.

The pastor, Rev. J. A. J. Farrington, has received twenty-five (25) new members into the church since conference. Rev. Mr. Farrington is a great worker and unusually popular.

We have recently organized a Junior Aid Society.

The Ladies' Aid Society, the Epworth League and all the organizations of the church are doing good work.

We have recently purchased two fine lots on which we hope at an early date to erect a modern new church building.

A revival will begin in our church April 22, conducted by Rev. H. G. Allen of Walkertown.

Our new orchestra, trained by Mr. W. C. Kearns, is to make its first appearance at church Sunday morning.

Mrs. J. H. Wimbish.

THE CALVARY PASTOR POUNDS HIS PEOPLE

The pounding is evidenced by the following facts:

1. Calvary is outgrowing the clothes handed down to her by former generations. She has become taller and they are too short; she has become broader and they are too narrow. She has clothed herself in the white robe of success.

2. In the good old days the parents used to send their children to Sunday school at Calvary armed with one red copper cent. Now they go and carry the children with them and give them a dime apiece for collection. Furthermore, these people have been doing missionary work in the community and now have an enrollment of 350 with 250 of them active in attendance and support. Not only so, for B. C. Woodall is the best superintendent in the city.

3. Financially we are rich and feel it. We keep the preacher and the elder fed up and paid up, and with the surplus we have recently carpeted the church, while we carry a regular installment on the church and parsonage debt.

4. Since the first of January we have added thirty-seven to our church roll and at present a class of fifteen are being instructed for church membership. This makes a total of fifty-two. This is backed up by the fact that they are still attending and joining. This work has been done through the week and at the regular Sunday services for we have not held a revival this year.

5. There is a spirit of friendliness in all the services at Calvary. Some fellows who used to be as sour as a peck of lemons now stand around the church smiling like a basketful of 'possum heads.

P. S.—If any of the brethren have any empty pews we can fill them at Calvary.

If any want to borrow money we can furnish them.

If any need a burning happy heart we can set the example and show them the way. D. E. Earnhardt.

A GOOD MOVE IN THE RIGHT DI-RECTION

Sharon congregation, Washington district, had outgrown its quarters, hence the need of a new building in which to house our church, Sunday school and Epworth League.

After some discussion we decided to erect our new church on another lot a mile or so away, and pursuant to this decision we called our men to the woods with axes, saws and log-carts and began cutting and hauling the timbers to a sawmill at Red Oak, where we were to build. The pastor and Bro. Brinkley Bedgood, in a race with other good crosscut sawyers, cut the first log on March 27th last, and that day we cut more than thirty thousand feet of timber.

In nine months time, from the stump and kiln, we built the best country church in the district—nine Sunday school rooms, six of which open into the auditorium, basement, hot air furnace and our own electric lighting system.

The first Sunday in 1923 we moved our Sunday school into the new church. Within five Sundays our Sunday school enrollment went from less than ninety to more than one hundred and fifty and our average attendance from less than fifty to more than one hundred. Our Epworth League more than quadrupled its membership, attendance and efficiency. Bro. H. M. North preached in our new church once and said, "It is a gem."

The good people of that congregation are looking forward to the not far distant future when they can have a pastor stationed there, thus giving Methodism greater opportunity to better care for her interests in that surrounding district. X.

REVIVAL AT EPWORTH CHURCH, WILMINGTON

We began a revival in our church with an altar service on Easter Sunday. On the following day Rev. J. W. Bradley, pastor of the West Durham Methodist church, came to us to do the preaching. The meeting continued eleven days, resulting in thirty conversions and reclamations. Eleven have already joined our church, and there are others to join at an early date.

Brother Bradley soon won his way into the hearts of our people. His soul-stirring sermons were delivered most forcefully and effectively, and when a visitor came for one service he returned for another.

Sunday night, April 8, we observed as "Railroad Night," with a special sermon to railroad men. Numerically speaking, this was the greatest service of the series. Some of the old landmarks among our membership say it was the largest congregation ever assembled in Epworth church. The special seats for railroad men were filled, along with all the others, and more space had to be provided. Chairs were placed in the aisles and the Sunday school auditorium was thrown open; still we were unable to seat the throngs that filed in, and many were turned away. We had a great service. The Holy Spirit was with us in abundance of power. Monday night was observed as "Sunday School Night," when a special message was delivered to the young people of the church. This was a good service, too, and was well attended.

The church has been greatly revived and we are looking to the future with courage.

A. J. Hobbs, Jr., P. C.

North Carolina Conference

"By all the mercies of the past, by the glorious hope of the future, we dare not falter or fail."—Belle H. Bennett, in Council Banner.

NOTICE

Not only is Henderson pleased but the whole Weldon district at the honor of entertaining the Woman's Missionary Conference, April 24-27.

We hope for a great representation from every district of the North Carolina conference, and especially our own district. Homes will be provided for all county chairmen, so let us not have one missing, as theirs is the important place at this conference. If names have not been sent in, please let Mrs. R. J. Corbitt, Henderson, have them at once.

We are ready to serve you in every way we can. Come, don't disappoint us, Anna D. Graham, Dis. Sec.

THE WOMAN'S MISSIONARY COUNCIL

In order that you might hear from our council, now meeting in Mobile, Ala., a little earlier than you will get the Bulletin, we subscribed to the Mobile paper which would carry daily the authorized reports of Council proceedings, The Mobile Register, from which we have selected the following items, though even with this effort for you, it will be almost two weeks before you see this:

Coming from 45 conferences, representing 300 districts and 10,000 churches, more than 2,000 people were expected to attend this Council, the arrangements for which were made by local committees under Mrs. L. G. Adams, chairman of all committees. To confer with the local committees the executive board of the Council arrived several days before the opening session. In addition to the 300 accredited delegates and other members of the Woman's Missionary Society, five of our bishops were expected to be present to take important parts on the programs. Requests for reservations poured in for weeks, 200 from Birmingham alone, and others from sections as remote as Arizona and New Mexico. The delegates were registered in hotels, while the visitors were entertained in Mobile homes, a number of persons of other faiths offering to help in this entertainment.

The Woman's Missionary Council is the second largest body in Southern Methodism, the General Conference being largest. Of the 45 conferences represented, 40 are in the United States and five in foreign fields where the Council is operating, China, Korea, Japan, Brazil, Mexico, Cuba and Africa. Our mission board operates in four European conferences in addition to these. The work done by Council in foreign fields includes educational, evangelistic, social service, industrial and medical activities, while here at home our work takes in cities, rural communities, mountain districts, mines and mills, expending over $1,000,000 annually, coming from the conferences, Centenary and other sources.

Mrs. Hume R. Steele, assisted by members of Troop 2, Boy Scouts of St. Francis Street church, where the Council was held, had on exhibition in the assembly room of the Cawthon hotel, 216 hand-painted charts showing our work in figures and pictures.

The Council opened its thirteenth annual session at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening, April 4th, Mrs. F. F. Stephens, vice president, presiding, with a memorial service for Miss Belle H. Bennett, its first and only president. The program was opened with devotional exercises conducted by Bishop E. D. Mouzon, and included two hymns and a solo, "This Is My Task," sung just after Mrs. R. W. MacDonnell's address, the memorial roll call of deceased members of Council, and the communion service. In her address, entitled "In Loving Remembrance of Miss Bennett," Mrs. MacDonnell eulogized the work of the late president of the Council, as well as her exemplary life, pointing out the many sacrifices she made in behalf of the organization and for humanity, playing such an important part in its history and the progress of its growth. The features of this meeting were Mrs. MacDonnell's address and the unveiling of Miss Bennett's portrait. This portrait was painted by Miss E. S. Hergesheimer of Nashville, Tenn., an eminent artist, and upon its return from Mobile will hang in the assembly room in the Lambuth building in Nashville. It was made possible through an accumulation of funds from the sale of "Women and Missions." According to a biographer, Miss Bennett was regarded as the greatest leader among the women of Southern Methodism. She was recognized as an authority on missions, having visited the seven foreign mission fields of our church, and just three years previous to her death went to Europe as a member of a commission to open mission work in Belgium.

Adoption of a plan for the establishment of a half million dollar memorial in honor of Miss Bennett, and an address by Bishop Mouzon on "The Spirit of Methodism," were the features of the first day's session of Council. The memorial will be in the form of a greater Bible training school, to be named in some way for Miss Bennett. The memorial campaign will be conducted in connection with the Educational Movement, according to plans made by the committee and adopted by Council. The present Bible and training school at Kansas City, in which Miss Bennett was so greatly interested and for the organization of which she worked so hard, will be moved to a more centrally located and more convenient place, it is stated, though the city has not yet been agreed upon. Whether the memorial to Miss Bennett will be an enlargement of the present training school or an entirely new institution has not been decided. An impressive feature of the day was the presentation of Miss Bennett's portrait to Council by Miss M. L. Gibson. It was received for the Council by Mrs. H. L. McClesky of Hattiesburg, Miss. It was unveiled by Miss Estelle Haskin and Miss Emily Olmstead, deaconess, devoted friends of Miss Bennett. Miss Olmstead read a memorial poem written by Mrs. Emily Allen Siler.

The noon devotionals are being conducted by Dr. W. A. Smart, of Emory University, Atlanta. The address of welcome was made by Mrs. L. G. Adams. The pupils of the seventh grade of the old Shellroad school gave an entertainment program, the subject being Japan, dressed in Oriental costumes. Invitations to hold next year's sessions were received from McKendree church, Nashville, from Centenary church, Winston-Salem, also from the Chamber of Commerce, the Rotary, Kiwanis, Lions and Civitans clubs of the latter city.

At the service for the consecration of deaconesses Bishop Cannon preached the annual sermon. Our other bishops present, speaking and preaching, were Bishop Sam R. Hay, Bishop Hoyt M. Dobbs and Bishop H. A. Boaz. The pulpits of the various churches of the city were filled Sunday by our bishops and Council women.

Her friends are missing Mrs. Luke Johnson, who on account of illness was not able to attend Council. Mrs.

Johnson is chairman of the Inter-Racial committee, and in her absence her report was read by Mrs. A. B. Smith, vice-chairman.

Mrs. R. W. MacDonnell, of Washington, D. C., who delivered the address in memory of Miss Bennett, is well known to many of our women, but for the pleasure of those who do not know her, it seems timely to close with these words about her: "She and Miss Bennett were co-workers in the cause of missions for more than a quarter of a century. Mrs. MacDonnell is the widow of Robert MacDonnell, of Macon, Ga., one of the pioneer missionaries to Mexico, sent out by our Southern Methodist church. After his death she accepted the position of general secretary of the Woman's Board of Home Missions, whose headquarters were in Nashville, Tenn. Under her leadership city mission work was begun, and the first Wesley Community House was opened in Nashville. Today there are 49 of these community centers scattered through the large cities of the South, with 400 trained missionaries and deaconesses, besides more than 5,000 volunteer workers, administering to approximately 445,000 people. In 1919 Mrs. MacDonnell resigned her position and now makes her home with her daughter, Mrs. Wilfred Balcom in Washington City."

THE JOY OF INTERCESSION

"Helping together by prayer."
I like to feel that though on earth
We never meet,
Yet we may hold heart-fellowship
At God's dear feet.

I like to feel in all the work
Thou hast to do,
That I, by lifting hands of prayer,
May help thee, too.

I like to think that in the path
His love prepares Thy steps may sometimes stronger prove Through secret prayers.

I like to think that when on high
Results we see,
Perchance thou wilt rejoice that I
Thus prayed for thee!
—E. G. Barnes-Lawrence.

STANDARD OF EXCELLENCE POSTER

Attractive posters for the adult and junior auxiliaries are now ready for sale at twenty-five cents each. These will add very much to the beauty of the room and will be a reminder as well of the goal that is set for the auxiliaries. These posters can be secured at the Literature Headquarters, Lambuth Building, Nashville, Tenn.

MUST HAVE APPLAUSE

Alla Nazimova, Russian actress, who quit the stage for the screen, plans to leave the screen for the stage, because she craves applause.

"Applause," she said, "is the actor's greatest reward. It took me months before the camera to realize just what vital element was lacking. I have collapsed from sheer exhaustion after tense emotional scenes and always felt tremendous disappointment. I missed the applause. That is the difference between spoken and silent drama, and that is why I shall leave the screen."

There are many others who, like this actress, hunger for the world's applause and will compromise themselves if necessary to obtain it. We have a right to appreciate approval of our work when we have done our best, but sometimes the plaudits of men mean the sacrifice of a clear conscience and the loss of some once cherished ideal. It means a great deal more to feel that we have the approval of God and our own hearts.—Exchange.

GOOD NEWS!

The mission boards of the Orient have issued a statement requesting that all missionaries coming out to the mission fields be booked on American steamers only, since all other transports are carrying heavy embargoes of liquors.

Just a few more days until the opening of our annual meeting at Monroe. We are anticipating one of the most enjoyable meetings in our history. Let us each resolve to take home enough inspiration and enthusiasm to spread over all the "home ground" and so fertilize and enrich it that the gospel fruit for 1923 will exceed the crop of 1922 by a large per cent.

Be sure that your delegate's name has been sent to Mrs. Atha Stevens, 605 W. Franklin St., Monroe, N. C.

A MEDICAL MISSIONARY'S PRAYER

My Father!
There is no greater, fuller life in the world than that of a medical missionary—and thou hast seen fit to give this great call TO ME.

The daily cares encompass and press and could not be borne without thy grace—and thou hast given grace sufficient TO ME.

Thou hast placed before thy church a great, restless throng of poor, ignorant, suffering, Christless human beings, to teach and lead back to thee—and thou hast given a part of the task TO ME.

Day by day and night by night the fight between life and death is waged. Thou hast commissioned many to be leaders in this great battle—thou hast even give a commission TO ME.

The suffering lowly ones, in their need and extremity—yea, in their last hour—search for a human hand, a human voice, a human face, to comfort and cheer and to guide them through the dark valley—and thou hast given this great responsibility and priceless privilege TO ME.

And because thou hast called me to this great and wonderful task, I thank thee! Because thou dost give strength of body, mind and spirit to send me forth day and night to serve with joy in my heart, I thank thee! And as thou hast placed me here to do this work for thee, I beseech thee that thou wilt give the comfort of thy grace, the power of thy spirit and the uplift of thy constant companionship TO ME. MR. N. E. ALLRED

Take off your hat! Pause long enough to thank the Lord. You are looking into the face of a man who has not missed Sunday school a single time in 41 years. Think of it—forty-one years! This splendid old gentleman lives at High Point and is now, and has been for a number of years, the painstaking librarian of Wesley Memorial Sunday school.

Brother Allred was born in Richmond county sixty-seven years ago, but for a number of years he has been living at High Point making a living and serving the Lord. When asked how it was that he had made such a wonderful record he replied that he promised the Lord that if He would open the way for going he would never fail to go, and "since the Lord has never failed me, I have never failed Him." Every Sunday school reader of the Advocate wishes, I am sure, to congratulate Brother Allred and the school he represents.

THE HICKORY SCHOOL

The Hickory Co-operative Standard Training School for Methodist and presbyterian Sunday school workers opened at First Methodist church, Hickory, Sunday afternoon, April 8, with 219 present, one hundred and ninety-eight Methodists and twenty-one Presbyterians. Among the outstanding delegations the following were noted: Lenoir, twenty-one miles away, 54; Rutherford College, twelve miles away, 31; Granite Falls, nine miles away, 27; Maiden, twenty miles away, 8; Littlejohn's church, twenty-eight miles away, 5.

The sustained attendance each night to this school has been around one hundred and fifty. This attendance has been grouped in five classes as follows: "Primary Organization and Administration," taught by Miss Georgia Keene; "Junior Organization and Administration," taught by Miss Virginia Jenkins; "Principles of Religious Teaching," taught by Prof. C. T. Carr; "Life of Jesus," taught by Rev. C. S. Kirkpatrick; "Sunday School Organization and Administration," taught by Mr. O. V. Woosley. It now looks as if there will be around ninety credit students.

WHAT'S A CAR FOR?

You people who have been saying that the automobile is ruining our church work should remember that the "pesky things" have traveled 42 miles each night of late to our school filled with the large Lenoir delegation, 56 miles with the Littlejohn's delegation, 24 miles with the Rutherford College folks and 18 miles with the Granite Falls workers. These and other busy people have made a living during the day and then hurried off to school to learn how to serve the Lord better. A car is all right when driven by the right folks.

KIRKPATRICK & CO.

Kirkpatrick & Co. is a religious firm located at Hickory, N. C. For the past week this firm, composed of 66 stockholders, has been engaged in "selling" the Sunday school to themselves. Business has been mighty good and big dividends are confidently expected.

ROLL CALL

Mr. Secretary, please call the roll of outstanding pastors and superintendents who have kept continually behind the delegations attending the Hickory school: Rev. P. W. Tucker, J. E. Shell, Rev. N. C. Williams, A. M. Martin, Rev. W. F. Elliott, A. M. Hauss, D. W. Alexander, J. E. Bolick, Rev. F. H. Price, W. M. Courtney, Mrs. H. Ballinger, Rev. C. S. Kirkpatrick, G. F. Ivey, Rev. R. K. Brady, Rev. J. W. Bennett.

SHELBY DISTRICT

Getting in with Rev. W. O. Goode I had a fine forty-five mile ride with him in his dandy Franklin roadster from Hickory to the Shelby district conference at Shelby Thursday, April 12. Brother Goode is just as good a driver as he is an educational director and collector. After a good trip we found a good conference eating a good dinner, a real Shelby dinner.

On the evening of the afternoon session Rev. J. E. Thompson led the conference in a thoughtful devotional service and then "Elder Jordan" gave the Sunday school report of the way. The Sunday school report, prepared by Rev. W. A. Lambeth and District Superintendent Marshall Dilling, was read by Mr. Dilling and then spoken to by Miss Eunice Roberts, district elementary superintendent, Dr. I. R. Self, district Bible class superintendent, Mr. Marshall Dilling, general district superintendent, Rev. W. A. Lambeth, chairman of the Conference Sunday School Board, and your humble servant. Sunday school work is growing by leaps and bounds in the Shelby district.

LEISURE TIME

The church must look into the way the people spend their leisure time. It is from one's leisure time, the time not occupied in making a living, that the church must draw for support. It is therefore important to develop this leisure time. What is your Sunday school doing to offer a program utilizing the leisure time of its people? Eight hours for sleep, eight for work and eight for leisure is the program contended for in many circles. This leisure time can be harnessed up in constructive recreation or it may be allowed to be dissipated. Folks are going to do something with it.

Norman E. Richardson in his recent book, "The Church at Play," says that the gate receipts of one of the world's series of baseball games was more than $500,000. The cost of the baseball parks owned by the sixteen major leagues is approximately $10,000,000. The annual receipts of the movies in the United States is estimated to be $850,000,000. One hundred thousand young people every week are taught to dance in Manhattan Borough. More than 2,000,000 Americans play pool daily. Nearly 13,000,000 attend the movies daily. In one city the commercial immoral types of recreation cost $1,900,000 annually.

People are going to use their leisure time for the devil if there is not a program of activities for a better use. What is your church offering for the making of good conduct? Better look out for that leisure time.

ALAMANCE TRAINING SCHOOL

When this appears in print we will be in the midst of our Alamance Standard Training School at Graham, a big training enterprise for all our Sunday school workers of Alamance county. Rev. G. M. Daniel, pastor at Graham, and chairman of the local board of managers, with various committees, has been working like a Trojan for the past month or more getting everything lined up, and at this writing we are expecting a great training school. Four standard courses will be offered by the following instructors: Prof. R. N. Wilson, Mrs. E. R. Michaux, Miss Georgia Keene, and Mrs. C. L. VanNoppen.

DURHAM SCHOOL NEXT WEEK

Durham is all set for the Standard Training School to be held at Trinity College April 22-27 for the Sunday school and church workers of the southeastern section of the Durham district, including Durham and the territory within a radius of about twenty miles. Committees in every school are enrolling workers for the training, and indications are that this, the fifth, will be the biggest and best school at all. Six courses will be offered, as follows:

"Sunday School Organization and Administration," Prof. J. M. Ormond, instructor.

"Principles of Religious Teaching," Prof. H. E. Spence, instructor.

"Christian Service for Adults," Dr. Emmett Hightower, instructor.

"Intermediate-Senior Organization and Administration," Mrs. B. H. Bunch, instructor.

"Junior Lesson Materials and Teaching," Miss Virginia Jenkins, instructor.

"Beginner Lesson Materials and Teaching," Mrs. C. L. VanNoppen, instructor.

LISTEN TO BISHOP DENNY

"It's better to keep a child out of the gutter than to lift a man out. The man's never going to get entirely away from the marks of the gutter. . . . Our hope for the future is in the children, and we must pay more attention to our Sunday schools. So I'm in favor of this emphasis on the Sunday school."

So spoke Bishop Collins Denny at the New Bern district conference at Mt. Olive Thursday following the reading of a thoughtful report by Senator J. S. Hargett, district secretary, and a talk by L. L. Gobbel, your conference superintendent of Sunday school work, concerning the Sunday schools of the district and recommendations looking to Sunday school advancement. Bishop Denny was clear and forceful in his support of the Sunday school's interests.

"This was an almost barbarous country when we started business. We didn't pay much attention to children; we were busy converting the barbarians," said the bishop, who added that conditions have changed and "I hope we will pay attention to these Sunday schools."

Mr. J. F. Marquette, district Wesley class superintendent, and District Secretary Hargett were officially reappointed to their respective offices in the district. Presiding Elder Shamburger was very considerate of all the interests, and the conference proved quite interesting and helpful.

MISS KEENE—STANTONSBURG

Miss Keene, conference elementary superintendent, conducted a one-teacher training school at Stantonburg April 1-5 for the Sunday school workers of the Stantonburg circuit. Rev. Daniel Lane, pastor, was in charge of local arrangements. Following up the splendid start which Miss Keene made, the pastor purposes to teach a group the course on "Principles of Religious Training" and perhaps other units in the standard training course.

JONESBORO DOING THINGS

Under the leadership of the pastor, Rev. B. E. Stanfield, the Sunday school workers of the Jonesboro circuit are doing things. Four schools of the circuit—Jonesboro, Broadway, Poplar Springs, and Morris Chapel—have adopted the official Program of Work and are working it. No, they are not working it quite all at once, but step by step they are improving their schools and before many months expect to attain the standard rank. Each of these schools has a Workers' Council meeting quarterly. Just recently Broadway school has organized a Home department, with Mrs. G. M. Harrington and Mrs. J. L. Thomas as joint superintendents. The next thing which persistent Pastor Stanfield will undertake is the organization of all classes whose members are over twelve years of age as Wesley classes. He paid the office of your conference superintendent a visit last week and secured Wesley class literature. This splendid leadership is making itself count in other ways, too. Last Sunday the school at Jonesboro, with an enrollment of 275, had an attendance of 235.

WITH PEOPLE AT BYNUM

The writer spoke to the congregation at Bynum Sunday night in the interest of the Sunday school. Rev. J. R. Edwards, the pastor, and Mr. J. B. Atwater, superintendent, opened the way for us in good fashion. Following the general meeting, a Workers' Council was held, at which the official Program of Work was presented and adopted. This school has a large enrollment and a fine attendance. Additional equipment will be provided before long, and even greater work will be accomplished.

BUSY IN RALEIGH DISTRICT

Mr. R. E. Prince, Raleigh district secretary, is making the wheels turn in his district. He is devoting considerable time to the work of placing the official Programs of Work and otherwise stimulating and improving Sunday school work. Sunday, April 8, he spent the afternoon in Smithfield, last Sunday with the schools of the Youngsville circuit at Bunn, next Sunday he will be at Garner with the schools of the Garner circuit, and the fifth Sunday he will be at Bullocks for the Creedmoor circuit institute. Then, the second Sunday in May he will be at Stem. Here's another district secretary who is not only an official but a worker, and the schools of the district are using him.

SUNDAY SCHOOL BOOSTER

"Booster" is the title which has been given Mr. J. G. Butts, of the Halifax circuit. Rev. J. L. Midgette, the pastor, tells of Booster Butts and his work as follows:

"Brother J. G. Butts is our Sunday school booster for the entire circuit. He came into this office, as I see it, just as a preacher comes into the ministry—that is, by a call from God, or that is the way I explained it to the officers of the school after he had told me how he felt. He was president of the Wesley Bible class, and it was time to elect new officers. He came to me and said he believed he could do more service by advertising for the Sunday school. I said, 'Well, we will appoint you and then I want you to do what our church has been trying to get a charge lay leader

JUNIOR-INTERMEDIATE LEAGUE WEEK, APRIL 15-22

The aim of this week is to emphasize the importance of the Junior and Intermediate age and work. All informed parents and senior leaguers, especially the leaders of senior leagues, have learned that the league work is in origin and nature founded in these younger people and their organized work.

In fact about the only way to have efficient senior leaguers for future church leadership is to grow them through these organizations. We have never received communications for publication from any junior or intermediate leagues except the intermediate league at Greenville. There are fewer than two dozen of both the junior and intermediate leagues in the entire North Carolina conference. Does this afford any indication of the nature and extent of our young people's problem? Does it explain to any degree the reason for the growing alienation of our awakened young people of most promise from the church? Are we fully awake to the seriousness of the so greatly lamented alienation, and its inevitable disastrous consequence both upon the church and the present and future age? It is up to us to measure up to our increasing responsibilities in our new age.

TO THE NEWLY ELECTED OFFICERS

To the newly elected officers for the new year one and all we extend congratulations. Our privileges and opportunities as chosen outstanding leaders of our respective communities constrain us in the realization of our proportional responsibility.

Your position in your relationship to the league and its work is quite similar to that of officers in an army. A receptive ear and an open mind and earnest purpose will double our own efficiency, our league enrollment, and growth of the general league work and world this year. The success or failure in the main is in exact proportion to the interest and ability of the leaders. Your council is the work-shop of the league. Let's be everlastingly at it. Let's go! What say you?

DISTRICT INSTITUTE, DURHAM

The Epworth Leagues of the Durham district will hold a district institute at Memorial church, Durham, Thursday night and Friday, April 19-20.

A live, snappy program is being arranged, which includes among the speakers the following: Rev. W. W. Edwards, Asheville, president of the W. N. C. League conference; Rev. W. W. Peele, Edenton Street church, Raleigh; Mr. Gehrman Cobb, Goldsboro, conference treasurer; Miss Edna Wilkins, Wilmington conference, superintendent junior and intermediate departments; and Rev. J. M. Ormond, professor of Biblical literature, Trinity College.

Arrangements for this institute have been delayed because of the change during the year of district secretaries. The new secretary, Miss Hazel Thompson, took office in January, and has since experienced a great amount of difficulty in getting in touch with all the leagues in the district. It is hoped that the institute will be the means of bringing the leagues together and of facilitating their progress.

Free entertainment during the institute will be provided by the leagues of Durham and Trinity College students. Every league in the district is expected to be represented by two or more delegates. A pleasant and profitable time is assured all who come.

A feature of the institute will be a pageant, "The Gift of Self," to be given on Thursday night by the Student Volunteer Band of Trinity College.

C. H. Smith,
Publicity Director.

SPINDALE

On Sunday evening, April 8th, the Spindale Epworth League elected the following officers to serve during the next year:

President—Mr. Fred C. Kinzie.
Vice President—Mr. T. O. Hendrix.
Sec. Treas.—Mrs. T. O. Hendrix.
Cor. Sec. and Epworth League Agent—Clarence Griffin.
Supt. First Dept.—Mr. G. B. Howard.
Supt. Second Dept.—Mrs. S. K. Yelton.

Supt. Third Dept.—Mr. Ivy Cowan.
Supt. Fourth Dept.—Dr. G. F. Hovis.
During the past year the Spindale Epworth League has made splendid progress under the able leadership of Dr. Frank Hovis. The past year was the first league that we have had here. Nastrally while we were going forward we made mistakes. The perseverance of the president has, in no small way, contributed to the success of the league, and profiting by our past mistakes we expect to have the leading league of the district by another year. Clarence Griffin,
Cor. Sec.

HERTFORD CHAPTER

When Dr. Worth was assigned to our charge he found our Epworth League as wide awake as it was when Rev. T. A. Sikes left us. The same spirit of enthusiasm and co-operation has invaded our circle since its organization about 12 years ago. Mr. North was a potent factor in all activities which pertained to its uplift.

Mr. R. M. Riddick, the efficient superintendent, has a strong cabinet. If it were not unconstitutional all the officers would be re-elected.

The contest which has just closed added many new members.

It fills our hearts with joy to know that many of the leaguers who were trained in our chapter have carried to other fields enthusiasm and loyalty and are consecrated workers in their Master's vineyard. Because of sickness our delegate to Morehead at the last conference could not go. Look out for a strong delegation at the next session.

When Rev. T. M. Grant is removed from us our league will sustain a great loss.

With best wishes for all Epworth leaguers. Minne MacNewbold.

EPWORTH LEAGUE BANQUET

The West Market Epworth League of Greensboro held their annual banquet with the election of officers Monday evening in the church basement. Fine music was rendered by the Sunday school orchestra and a solo by Miss Lucile Pettit and readings by Mrs. L. M. King were much enjoyed. The president welcomed every member and visitor and short talks were made by the presiding elder, the assistant pastor, the district union president, Mr. H. B. Gunter and Mr. Mendenhall.

After the program the following officers were elected: Calvin Leonard, president; B. I. Halfner, vice president; Virginia Vanderman, secretary; C. G. Hawkins, treasurer; Margaret Barnhardt and Mildred Michaux, Era agents, and Margaret Isley, publicity agent. The department superintendents will be appointed by the president.

As the great test of medical practice is that it heals the patient, so the great test of preaching is that it converts and builds up the hearers.—H. L. Wayland.

TRIBUTE TO A USEFUL CITIZEN

The many friends of Mr. George W. Martin, "Uncle George" as he is called by many of his friends, will be much grieved to learn of his recent affliction. However, they will be delighted to know that he is much improved at this writing. Ten days ago Brother Martin suffered a slight stroke of paralysis.

Mr. Martin has an enviable record and I wish I could give at this time a history of his life, but time and space will not permit. Let me give only a little sketch. Brother Martin is 73 years old; he has been a member of the church for more than fifty years. He has been a steward in the Methodist church, Madison, for 32 years; the most of that time he has been treasurer of his church. He has been recording steward for 25 years, district steward for 20 years or more. He has been trustee of the church property at Madison for perhaps 50 years.

Besides serving his church Mr. Martin has served his town and county. He was mayor of Madison for some years and register of deeds for Rockingham county. He has been chairman of the board of education for 25 years. Rockingham county has forged to the front in educational matters under his fine leadership till she now stands second to none in this great state of ours.

Mr. Martin is still very active in matters of church and state. There are so many things I would like to say but I must desist. Let me mention this one other little touching incident. Brother Martin's home church decided that, though afflicted with a weakened limb, that he is yet worth more to the church than lots of folks with two good limbs, so the church purchased for him a gold headed cane on which is beautifully engraved these words, "From the M. E. C. S., Madison, to George W. Martin, for his faithful services, 1890-1923, with love and esteem."

On yesterday morning Dr. J. T. Taylor, Mr. Martin's physician, in the presence of the wife, daughter and pastor, with a few well chosen words, presented the cane to Mr. Martin. In response there was a silver tear which stood for a moment on his cheek, which was the most eloquent response he could have made. By the use of this cane may he be able to serve his church for many years to come.

Our meeting will begin in Madison on the fourth Sunday morning in April at eleven o'clock and continue for two weeks. Rev. Carlock Hawk of Chestnut Street church, Asheville, will do the preaching and Mr. George Hawks of Rutherford College will have charge of the singing.

Jas. P. Morris.

REVIVAL AT HIGHLANDS

Rev. T. A. Groce, our Waynesville district evangelist, with our pastor, Rev. C. S. Plyler, have just closed a two weeks' revival at Highlands and it is generally conceded to be the most successful meeting held here for many years. While there were but few accessions to the churches, the moral and religious sentiment has been lifted and many members of the various denominations revived and reclaimed.

Brother Groce is peculiarly called to this class of work. He is gentle in his manners and has a special gift in reaching the people, besides his work is indeed constructive in his manner of stimulating Bible reading, erecting family altars, enlisting recruits for Christian life work, and pledges for tithing.

I think it indeed a wise action upon the part of our evangelistic committee with the concurrence of our annual conference, and bishop, in placing a special evangelist in our district, and while it is a new departure in Southern Methodism, I believe it is bound to bring wonderful results for good.

To know Brother Groce is to love him and the congregation, charge, or station, who fail to secure his services will miss a rare treat. W. S. Davis.

THE MAXWELL EVANGELISTIC PARTY

We are now making dates for revivals for any time after June 17. I have H. P. Powell, Clinton, N. C., with me for the third year as song evangelist, and Rollin H. McKeehan, Chattanooga, Tenn., as pianist. We make our work Biblical and thoroughly constructive. We preach the Bible, exalt Christ, magnify the atonement, honor the Holy Ghost and stand squarely for the old time religion with the altar as the working ground. If you need this party write me.

BURKHEAD CONGREGATION WOR- SHIPS IN NEW CHURCH

Sunday was a glad day for the Burkhead Methodist congregation, Winston-Salem. The pastor and his people worshipped for the first time in their beautiful new house of worship, which cost $75,000. The attendance at the Sunday school numbered 550 and the program included short addresses by former superintendents, etc. The pastor, Rev. J. S. Hiatt, preached to large congregations morning and night and in the afternoon at three o'clock a special service was held for the public, and at this hour the building was packed. Besides special music, splendid addresses were made by Mayor James Hanes, Attorney W. M. Hendren and Leon Cash. Bishop Denny of Richmond, Va., has accepted an invitation to dedicate the new church on Sunday, May 27th. Dr. J. E. Abernethy, pastor of Trinity Methodist church, Charlotte, has accepted an invitation to assist Rev. E. E. Willamson in a series of revival services at Grace M. E. church here, beginning May 7. Dr. Abernethy was pastor of Centenary church here for four years and was exceedingly popular.

THE METHODIST ORPHANAGE

It has been a great pleasure as well as a privilege to have Mr. John Wilber Jenkins with us at the Orphanage for the past few weeks. He enters into all the activities of the Orphanage and manifests a keen interest in its future development. The Methodist Orphanage is the crowning work of his sainted father. Through the centuries the Home will stand as a monument to his memory.

* * * * *

The Rev. M. T. Plyler, the aggressive and statesman-like presiding elder of the Durham district, was kind to me at the recent session of the district conference. I was given a choice time in which to present the needs of our Methodist Orphanage. Because of the rush at most of the district conferences, I never take but a few minutes to tell the folks something about our Home. During the noon hour several friends sought me out and gave me a lift which is sincerely appreciated. Others assured me that their churches and Sunday schools are going to give me their loyal and generous support. Such good news as that greatly encourages me in my responsible but joyous work. Let everybody fall in line and work together in building and maintaining the greatest Methodist Orphanage in the world. We can do it provided everybody joins hands and heart.

* * * * *

We are again very fortunate in securing the right man to assist us in our annual revival. This time we are to have with us Rev. J. M. Ormond, who is now a professor in Trinity College. He is one of the best equipped preachers and teachers in Southern Methodism. He comes to us with a rich experience in institutional service of this kind. Knowing child psychology and having considerable experience in dealing with youth, we feel that this service will prove a benediction to our large family, numbering two hundred and fifty boys and girls. A great opportunity to mold them into beautiful and useful vessels for the Master's use. May I ask the prayers of all our people that our revival may prove a season of refreshing from the presence of the Lord.

Methodism is strong in Rockingham. In its membership are many prominent and wealthy families. In the past the church has been rather conservative. Under the able leadership of Rev. J. D. Bundy the church is destined to become a mighty aggressive force locally and in its connectionism. No braver knight ever went forth on a holy crusade than Rev. J. D. Bundy. He has clear cut convictions as to what Israel ought to do and has the courage to back up his convictions. Being a man of intellectual attainments and genuine piety he commands the respect and admiration of the entire community. He paid our singing class a fine compliment Sunday night when he publicly declared at the close of the concert that the impression made upon him would go with him through life and into eternity. Our Rockingham friends gave us a large hearing. Hundreds came forward after the concert and shook hands with the class. Practically all expressed themselves as being highly pleased with what they had seen and heard. We have many urgent requests to return at an early date. I was guest of Brother George L. Steel at the hotel. All the children tell in glowing terms how lovely their hosts and hostesses were to them. Bro. Thomas P. Wood put me under lasting obligations because of his many kindnesses to me. I am going to predict that from now on the Rockingham congregation will be more enthusiastic over our beloved Methodist Orphanage than ever before.

* * * * *

It would be hard for us to overstate the kind treatment the singing class received at the hands of Rev. W. R. Royall and his committee upon our arrival in Laurinburg on Saturday night before second Sunday in this month. Every member in our party was accorded a warm welcome and given a delightful home. On Sunday morning at the eleven o'clock hour the church and Sunday school auditoriums were filled with interested friends to hear our children give a sacred concert. It may not be good taste on my part to say that the congregation was delighted with the children and program. Some of the leading members of the church told me that it went far beyond their highest expectations. Mrs. Nellie Rives, who has charge of the class, deserves high praise, and always receives it for training the class to such a high point of efficiency. Misses Eva Oglesby, Mary Ferree and Ladv Doles have greatly contributed to making the concert a success. If you want to get a fine conception of Methodism just visit Laurinburg. The church is almost ideal for worship and Sunday school. The parsonage is one of the best in the conference. The Laurinburg saints do not do things on a small scale. Brother Royall is in the midst of a great pastorate. He is happy in his work and the co-operation the people give him is enough to make glad the heart of any man. It was a rare privilege I had in his home. We used to be together a great deal in our early ministry. It was a joy to have fellowship with him and his delightful family. Lest I make the account of our visit to Laurinburg too long I will close by saying from now on that church and Sunday school are going to do still greater things for the Methodist Orphanage.

IF SICK TODAY! TAKE NO CALOMEL

"Dodson's Liver Tone" Straightens You Up Better Than Salivating, Dangerous Calomel and Doesn't Upset You—Don't Lose a Day's Work—Read Guarantee

I discovered a vegetable compound that does the work of dangerous, sickening calomel and I want every reader of this paper to buy a bottle for a few cents and if it doesn't straighten you up better and quicker than salivating calomel just go back to the store and get your money back.

I guarantee that one spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone will put your sluggish liver to work and clean your thirty feet of bowels of the sour bile and constipation poison which is clogging your system and making you feel miserable.

I guarantee that one spoonful of this harmless liquid liver medicine will relieve the headache, biliousness, coated tongue, ague, malaria, sour stomach or any other distress caused by a torpid liver as quickly as a dose of vile, nauseating calomel, besides it will not make you sick or keep you from a day's work.

Calomel is poison—it's mercury—it attacks the bones, often causing rheumatism. Calomel is dangerous. It sickens—while my Dodson's Liver Tone is safe, pleasant and harmless. Eat anything afterwards, because it can not salivate. Give it to the children because it doesn't upset the stomach or shock the liver. Take a spoonful tonight and wake up feeling fine and ready for a full day's work.

THIRTEEN MILLION DOLLARS IN CHURCH VALUES

The value of property belonging to the Methodist Church in North Carolina exceeds $13,000,000. On this vast amount of property there is only $3,000,000 of insurance—less than one-fourth of its value protected.

Suppose you had stock in a furniture factory one-fourth protected from fire, what would you do? You would either sell, or hold the directors responsible.

See that your church officials protect your most valuable assets or you may be called upon to donate again to rebuild a church parsonage destroyed by fire.

Our Little Folks

SMELLS (JUNIOR)

My Daddy smells like tobacco and books;

Mother, like lavender and listerine; Uncle John carries a whiff of cigars, Nannie smells starchy and soapy and clean.

Shandy, my dog, has a smell of his own,

(When he's been out in the rain he smells most);

But Katie, the cook, is more splendid than all—

She smells exactly like hot buttered toast!

TWENTY-TWO YEARS AGO

Nobody swatted the fly. Nobody wore a wrist watch. Nobody sprayed orchards. Nobody knew about radio. Most young men had "livery bills." Farmers came to town for their mail. Many people read by the candle or kerosene light.

The heavens were not full of man-birds.

Nor the seas alive with underwater boats.

Young men learned trades at $5 per week.

The butcher "threw in" a chunk of liver.

The merchant "threw in" a pair of suspenders with every suit.

Nobody listened in on the telephone. There were no electric meters.

Nobody observed a sane Fourth. The safety razor had not introduced the clean-shaven face.

(Times have changed).—Selected.

A RURAL HOME

Late in the winter a March hare stood beside his bungalow in a wood when suddenly on his ear there fell the fairy tones of a tiny bell. "The telephone!" he cried. "Oho!" and hopped into the bungalow.

"Hello!" he called. "Mr Sun? You say that little Miss Spring starts north today? And you want me to tell folks far and near that in three more weeks she will be right here? The news is welcome, I'm sure," said he. "It shall go right out on the R. F. D."

"As quick as a wink he was at the wheel of his red, reliable jumpmobile. He carried the news to every house—to woodchuck, squirrel, and small field mouse; to chipmunk, porcupine, toad, he scattered the tidings as he rode. Then home he hurried to drink his tea and tell the tale to his family.

The message made a tremendous stir. Miss Pussy Willow bought brand new fur; the crocuses filled their snowy laces; the poplar satkins all washed their faces. Violet put on a purple hood and nodded gay to an elf in the wood.

Miss Hepatica down in the hollow called, "Good-morning, dear Miss Marshmallow!"

That night the wind blew a fearful gale; there was rain and snow, there was sleet and hail. Buffeted, drenched, and full of fears, the poor little flowers were all in tears.

The wood folk were murmuring everywhere, "Don't ever believe a mad March hare."

But the sun came out with a will next day, the world was bright and the wood was gay; the brave little blossoms took heart, and then the glad wood creatures wear gay again.

The March hare cried, when he heard them sing, "Now wasn't I right? And isn't this spring?"

Then he cut three capers and stood on his head. "My reputation is saved!" he said.—Carrie O'Neal, in Youth's Companion.

THE SCRUB HORSE THAT HAD THE "GO" IN HIM

By Raymond Browning.

One of those unforgettable stories that "Old Sawney" Webb, the famous schoolmaster of Bellbuckle, Tenn., used to tell his boys in order to stir their ambition and spur them on to the finest intellectual attainments, was that of the little scrub horse that had the "go" in him. Every lad that has attended Webb School since this incident occurred, which was more than thirty years ago, has heard the story which in brief is this:

Mr. Webb was attending a horse sale at the county fair grounds in Culleoka, Tenn., when a negro man approached him and said, "Boss, won't you buy dis hoss fum me?" Mr. Webb looked the trim little horse over and then said, "Uncle, is this a blooded horse?" "Naw suh, Boss," replied the negro, "he aint no blooded hoss, but he sho can go. Dis hoss is jist natchelly got de 'go' in him." "What is he worth?" asked Mr. Webb. "I'll take seventy-five dollars fur him," was the reply. Mr. Webb hesitated for a moment and then said, "No, I don't want a scrub horse. I am looking for a blooded animal." In a few minutes he had purchased from a dealer for $125 another horse which did not look nearly so good as the negro's, and later proved to be a mediocre trotter, although of good breeding. "Just think what I missed," Mr. Webb used to say in after years in his school lectures and the boys would roar with merriment at his droll air of pretended regret. Then with a twinkle in his nervous blue eyes he would go on with the story.

Another man bought the negro's horse and after hitching him to a two-wheeled sulky started away from the fair grounds. The little horse was swinging along in a nice easy gait when of a sudden a man driving a magnificent bay horse hitched to a bright new buggy came dashing up from behind. He wished the air with his whip and the big bay lunged forward and was about to pass the sulky, but the little scrub horse seemed to say, "What's this? Going to pass me, eh? Well, let's see you do it." And then that little scrub just stretched himself out down that turnpike and soon his heels were tossing dust in the face of the big bay. He seemed to be saying, "Come on with that pretty buggy. If you can pass me it's all right, but I'd like to see you do it." It was a great race and when the little horse had left the big one far behind his new owner said, "It's a great pity this horse is a scrub. He can trot like the wind, but he can never hold that gait for long because he's just a scrub." However, before he reached home a new idea came into his mind and he said with a smile, "Little Scrub Horse, I'll just give you a blooded horse's chance and see what I can make out of you."

Then came months of careful feeding and exercise and one day the owner took the scrub horse to the fair grounds and put him into a race with some real thoroughbreds. The little scrub seemed to say, "I've heard about blue blood all my life, and now here is my chance to see what it's like." The little scrub had the outside of the track but he was not discouraged. Finally, the starter waved the handkerchief and they were off. The scrub got right down to business and nosed his way past the nearest racer and that just seemed to fire his ambition. Soon he passed another, and then he seemed to say, "I believe I'll just go head in this class while I'm at it." Up and up he forged until he passed the leader and got the inside of the track. "Come on, Bluebloods," he was saying in his horse language, "can't you go any faster than that?" He swept under the wire and won the race.

Six months passed by and the scrub horse was sold for $1,400. A year and a half later he brought $40,000. At the height of his career he was the most famous trotting horse in the world, and he was known as the "Little Brown Jug." He was a scrub horse but he had the "go" in him.

Soon after Little Brown Jug rose to fame "Old Sawney," as the schoolboys affectionately nicknamed Mr. Webb, looked out of his school-room door and saw Hon. John C. Brown, ex-governor of Tennessee, riding along the road with several men and an odd looking bunch of horses following. Mr. Webb inquired about the horses and the governor said, "Webb, these are Little Brown Jug's kinfolks. I've bought every one I could find. There's his sire, old Tom Hal." Thus one of the finest lines of race horses in Tennessee goes back to Tom Hal, who who was never heard of until Little Brown Jug brought fame to his family.

Mr. Webb never despised good breeding, but he used to say, "Good blood ought to produce good people. Don't you boys boast of your blue blood and then sit foot in your classes. If that's blue blood I would rather have frog-spawn or soapsuds in my veins." Then he would grip his short chin whiskers and laugh a little tantalizing laugh and say, "Boys, I'm for the scrub horse that has the 'go' in him."

Following this story he would then tell with graphic beauty and tenderness of some poor boy in whom ambition awakened and how he "wrong success from the iron jaws of adverse circumstances." For instance, he would tell of Braxton Craven, who was born amid such hard conditions that a kind-hearted old Quaker gentleman felt sorry for the neglected boy and persuaded the mother to let him take the little fellow into his family. It was a long hard road for the lad's feet, but there came a time when Braxton Craven was one of the greatest preachers and educators that the Old North State ever produced. He was for many years president of Trinity, which is now the largest Methodist college in the South, and today the name of Craven is a synonym of culture and refinement in North Carolina. As "Old Sawney" would say, "He was a scrub horse but he had the 'go' in him."

"The eyes have it," said the wavering professor as he wrote one A after another for his class full of co-eds.—Mugwump.

Why Take Laxatives?

Discovery by Science Has Replaced Them.

Pills and salts give temporary relief from constipation only at the expense of permanent injury, says an eminent authority.

Science has found a newer, better way—a means as simple as Nature itself.

In perfect health a natural lubricant keeps the food waste soft and moving. But when constipation exists this natural lubricant is not sufficient. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it acts like this natural lubricant and thus secures regular bowel movements by Nature's own method—lubrication.

As Nujol is not a medicine or laxative, it cannot gripe and, like pure water, it is harmless and pleasant.

Nujol is used in leading hospitals. Get a bottle from your druggist today. (adv.)

WHY DRUGS FAIL

Many chronic diseases fail to respond to drug treatment, even in the hands of the best physicians, whereas acute diseases usually respond readily. When a disease has become chronic, drugs often seem to do as much harm as they do good, for the system rebels against them. It is just this class of cases which derive the greatest benefit from drinking Shivar, America's best stomach, liver and kidney water. If you suffer with chronic dyspepsia, indigestion, sick headache, rheumatism, kidney or liver disease, uric acid poisoning or other curable conditions due to impure blood do not hesitate to accept the Spring's liberal offer as printed below. Their records show that only two in a hundred, on the average, have reported "no benefit." This is a wonderful record from a truly wonderful Spring. Sign the following letter:

Gentlemen:

I accept your offer and enclose herewith three dollars for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Water. ## SCIENCE'S DISCOVERY ROUTS CHICKEN LICE Mineralized Water Gets Rid of Dusting or Spraying—Birds delouse Themselves. Fine for Baby Chicks and All Poultry.

A recent discovery promises to revolutionize all the commonly accepted methods for keeping poultry free from lice and mites. This wonderful product keeps the poultry always lice-free without the poultry raiser doing any work. It is the simplest, easiest, surest and best method ever discovered.

Hick's Lice-Go, which is the name of this remarkable lice remedy, is dropped in the chicken's drinking water. Taken into the system of the bird, it comes out through the oil glands of the skin and every louse and mite leaves the body. It is guaranteed to help the hatchability of the eggs and cannot injure the flavor of the eggs or meat; is harmless to chicks and does not affect the plumage. A few days treatment at the start and then a little added to the drinking water each month is all that is necessary.

Send No Money—just your name and address to Chas. M. Hick & Company, Dept. 356, 1018 So. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill. A card will do. Mr. Hick is so confident that Hick's Lice-Go will get rid of every louse or mite that he will send you two large double strength $1.00 packages for the price of one. When they arrive, pay postman only $1.00 and postage. Sell one to your neighbor and get yours free. If you are not absolutely satisfied after 30 days trial, your money will be refunded. This offer is guaranteed by two big Chicago banks, who say that Mr. Hick will do exactly as he agrees without question or argument. Write today before this remarkable trial offer is withdrawn.

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORK

to do for years—go from church to church and put new life into the laymen."

Already evidences of new life are apparent as a result of the work which Mr. Butts is doing, says the pastor.

PLAN ROCKINGHAM SCHOOL

A big non-standard training school will be held at Rockingham April 29-May 4 for the Sunday school and church leaders of four charges near the Richmond county seat: Piedmont circuit, Richmond circuit, Roberdel circuit, and Rockingham. A board of managers with Rev. D. A. Petty as chairman, Rev. F. E. Dickson as secretary, and Rev. D. A. Clarke as treasurer, is busy making arrangements for the week's work. Sunday school officers and teachers and persons who may later become workers in the Sunday school, together with stewards, fathers and mothers, and Christian workers in general are expected to attend.

SUNDAY SCHOOL DAY

"The third Sunday in April, or as near thereto as practical," is the time, according to paragraph 393 of the Discipline, for observing Sunday School Day. Programs have been sent to every pastor in the North Carolina conference in quantities sufficient for every Sunday school to have an adequate supply. If additional programs are needed in any instance, however, a letter or card addressed to L. L. Gobel, Durham, N. C., will bring them.

Sunday School Day can be made a real red-letter day in the life of the Sunday school. It offers an opportunity for setting before the congregation and the community the work of the Sunday school. It gives the pupils an opportunity to take part in a public program, and it does many other valuable things. All of this, however, requires some work and attention upon the part of those who care.

Let's have 100 per cent observance in the schools of the conference.

A LAW TO SAVE LIVES

The General Assembly of North Carolina has done the sane and commendable thing in passing an act, effective July 1, 1923, requiring every person operating a motor vehicle on the public roads of this state to come to a full stop at a distance not exceeding fifty feet from the nearest rail of any railway track crossing the public road at grade.

Drivers of automobile and trucks should not consider the provisions of this act as a hardship on them, but as an effort on the part of the state to save them from injury and death. Official reports of the Interstate Commerce Commission show that in 1921 there were 5,387 persons killed or injured in automobile accidents at grade crossings with railways. In the last five years 9,101 persons have been killed in such accidents in the United States. North Carolina has contributed more than her full share to the list of victims.

Violation of this law will constitute a misdemeanor, punishable by fine or imprisonment. We do not see why any person should violate a law passed for his protection. We believe that observance of this law will save many lives and commend it to our readers.

The railways have been required to go to heavy expense to erect signs forty by fifty inches 100 feet from crossings, lettered "N. C. Law. Stop." When you see that sign, obey its injunction and protect yourself and those with you.

Many a meandering discourse one hears, in which the preacher aims at nothing, and—hits it.—Whately.

WHERE GO TO COLLEGE?

There are three major considerations that determine the greatness, or the potential greatness, of an educational institution.

1. The Plant, including grounds, library, classrooms, laboratories, and apparatus.
2. The Faculty.
3. The Student body and its democratic standards.

In addition to the thirty-four buildings already on the campus, the State of North Carolina is this year putting $1,650,000 into new buildings and equipment. The library of 115,000 volumes is spending $24,000 annually for books and periodicals. Eight thousand volumes were received in 1922-1923, and one thousand and five magazines and learned journals were received on subscription.

The Faculty numbers 128 of the country's best scholars. Speaking of the student body of the University, Mr. Sherwood Eddy, of Yale University, who has spent the major portion of his life studying in four continents, said, that with one exception, it was the most seriously thoughtful and democratic group of students he had ever known.

The author was a member of the American Scientific Mission, devoting the greater part of 1920 to this exploring. Dr. J. H. Breasted was director of this mission. He is now in charge of the opening of King Tut-Ankh-Amen's tomb.

In an easy, familiar style he sets down for the average reader all the recent developments of that interesting subject, "Recent Archaeological Development and Its Tremendously Important Bearing on Bible History."

ANNUAL SESSION N. C. CONFERENCE WOMAN'S MISSIONARY SOCIETY

The first service of our conference which meets in Henderson next week, April 24-27, will be held Tuesday evening, April 24. Miss Lelia Tuttle, for fourteen years a teacher in McTyeire School, of China, will speak on "The Currents of Life in Shanghai."

On Wednesday evening Mrs. J. H. McCoy, administrative secretary of the Gulf States and Atlantic Division of the Woman's Missionary Council, will speak on "The Conquests of Jesus."

Thursday evening the Bright Jewels of Henderson sing for us and the Henderson young people will present "The Call of the New Year." On this program, too, Miss Ida Hankins speaks on "Why I Became a Missionary," and Miss Sallie Lou McKinnon speaks on "Life Investment." Miss McKinnon will also have other time on the program to tell of Virginia School, Huchow, China, and Miss Hankins will tell of our work in Songdo, Korea.

Mrs. W. A. Newell will speak on Thursday morning on "What the Council Means by Inter-Racial Work." Mrs. Newell is Council superintendent of social service.

Mr. A. W. Mohn will on Thursday afternoon tell of "Our Work in a Mountain School."

Not among the least of the attractive speakers and features of our Henderson conference will be the noon Bible hour conducted each day by Mrs. C. L. Steidley.

A two and a half day session and three evening programs packed to the full with subjects of interest and importance to the work of the North Carolina conference. We trust that each auxiliary will be represented and that each delegate will be present for the Tuesday evening service and remain until the closing service at noon Friday.

A wonderful conference is promised us. May from it go new strength and inspiration to each auxiliary in this great North Carolina conference.

May Edia Smith.

REPORT CENTENARY COMMITTEE DURHAM DISTRICT CONFERENCE

We, your Centenary committee, feel that the large number of members of our church, whose Centenary pledges are now past due and unpaid, are not intentionally indifferent to the tremendous issues involved in the vast and vital work of the Centenary movement, yet the condition that confronts us awakens our deepest concern.

We believe our people have a conscience in the cause. We fear, however, that with many this conscience is slumbering. It must be awakened. The five-year period is nearly ninety per cent past, and but fifty per cent of pledges are paid.

Our great world program waits. The restless, hungry millions. Our workers wait. Christ also waits! Have we done what we could? Have I? Have you? The kingdom our Master has committed to us hangs largely upon the payment of these pledges.

The appeal of the press and pulpit reaches many, and we trust all these are doing their duty. But we know that many do not read the papers or hear the preacher in the earnest call coming to us today. In the great opening campaign of this movement, the call was carried to the last man by a personal canvass. The present call must have the same help and helpers.

We therefore recommend that the month of April be used in all our district for such a personal canvass:

That our pastors call all the people to special prayer and to faithful preparation, calling upon the lay leaders and their organizations to join in the work to the end that it may be an intensive campaign for the fullest collection possible.

GRAVES OF METHODIST PREACHERS AND THEIR WIVES IN MT. AIRY DISTRICT

So far as learned by the committee the following states the year of death, the place of burial and whether the grave has a marker:

Miles Foy, 1895, old Methodist graveyard, Mt. Airy, marker.

Mrs. Miles Foy, 1891, old Methodist graveyard, Mt. Airy, marker.

W. S. Creasy 1899, Oakdale cemetery, Mt. Airy, marker.

A. M. Long, 1912, Little Yadkin graveyard, near Pilot Mountain, marker.

Mrs. A. M. Long, Little Yadkin graveyard near Pilot Mountain, marker.

R. M. Taylor, 1920, Salem graveyard, near Mt. Airy, marker.

James Needham, New Hope graveyard, near Ararat, marker.

S. H. Helsabeck, 1911, Antioch graveyard, near King, marker.

S. D. Stamey, 1903, Galax, Va. (outside conference bounds).

And Dr. Boyer, my pastor, tells me that over twenty years ago there was pointed out to him the unmarked grave of a Methodist preacher near Pine Ridge, in Surry county. It is hoped that inquiry that neighborhood may result in finding the grave and learning the name of this "unknown soldier" of the Cross.

This last item gives the reason for the action of the last annual conference.

Anyone who knows additional facts about the graves of Methodist preachers in the bounds of the Mt. Airy district can render service by sending a statement of these facts to me at Mt. Airy, N. C. J. D. Minick.

McNEILL—John A. McNeill was born January 23, 1877; died January 31, 1923. Between these dates lived a man of sterling qualities. His sunny disposition and spirit of optimism captured his acquaintances as friends and bound them to him as with hooks of steel. Hardly had he reached the zenith of life with its opened doors of opportunity so inviting, when without a moment's warning he was tragically taken from us. His passing was accidental, yet who is it that doesn't believe that God took him. The gardener plucks the choicest flowers to adorn his presence. John, as he was affectionately called, enjoyed the confidence of the people and served them for a number of years as county commissioner. He loved his pastor and church and was glad to attend its ordinances and support its institutions. He leaves to mourn their loss a devoted wife and five children besides an aged mother and other relatives. May the sustaining grace of an all-wise Father be their stay. Dear John McNeill, we shall miss your companionship along life's way. It's lonely here without you. We are anticipating seeing you again, and until then, farewell. F. E. Dixon.

Everlasting Memorials

The Pyramids and Sphinx of Egypt were old when Solomon brought the daughter of Pharaoh into the City of David. They stand today, as they have stood for 5000 years, silent but eloquent tributes to the strength of the material from which they were constructed—GRANITE. This is the most enduring stone known to man and is always used where lasting, weather-resisting qualities are required. Therefore it is the part of wisdom to specify

IN MEMORIAM

RYMER—Death has again entered our borders and taken Mrs. Mitchell A. Rymer from the husband and family, after a life of seventy-five years. She joined the church at thirteen. A good Christian wife and mother is gone to her reward.

Also a young wife, mother and daughter, Mrs. Lola B. Hiatt. She was a good Christian and died triumphantly. A. J. Burrus.

HAITHCOCK — Mrs. Martha J. Haithcock died in Concord, N. C., January 23, 1923, at the age of 63 years. She leaves behind to mourn her passing two brothers, John Melton and William Melton and the following children, Eben of Augusta, Ga., and Dave of Concord, N. C., and Mrs. L. A. Griffin, Mrs. O. M. Cranford, Mrs. M. C. Jones and Mrs. Philmore Bunton of Mooresville, N. C.

Mrs. Haithcock was from childhood a devoted member of the Methodist church. She suffered much in her last days, but was uncomplaining.

J. Frank Armstrong, Pastor.

SWARENGEN — John Harrison Swarengen of Concord, N. C., died February 9, 1923, at the age of 75 years. His wife and nine children survive him. The children are Mrs. Mamie Kirk, Mrs. Eugenia Burns, Mrs. Phronia Mills, Miss Anna, Marshall, Henry, Calvin, Edgar and Crowell.

Brother Swarengen was a faithful member of Forest Hill church, but on account of affliction has not attended for a number of years. He died in peace and in faith.

J. Frank Armstrong, Pastor.

WINECOFF—Mrs. Florence Tucker Winecoff, wife of Mr. W. F. Winecoff of Concord, N. C., died February 20, 1923, at the age of 48 years.

There survive her in the immediate family the husband and three boys, Albert of Detroit, Mich., Lee H. of Charlotte, N. C., and George Frank, a lad at home with his father.

Mrs. Winecoff had been for many years a devoted member of Forest Hill church. She was a constant sufferer, but bore it with fine courage and died in triumph. J. Frank Armstrong, Pastor.

PARIS—George Crockett Paris was born November 8, 1864, and died February 21, 1923. He was converted in early life and joined the Methodist church, remaining a loyal and influential member till death. At the time of his death he was the efficient treasurer of his church. He passed away from us in the full assurance of eternal life, and the last utterance of his lips were parts of a triumphant song. He leaves a wife, a number of children and a host of friends who are comforted in their sorrow by the hope of seeing him again the better land.

D. A. Lewis.

BAUMGARNER—On January 8 God called a loving mother, wife and sister, Mrs. A. C. Baumgarner, from her earthly home to dwell in that beautiful home beyond the skies. Mrs. Baumgarner was a daughter of the late Col. John H. Ally, and married Andrew C. Baumgarner about 52 years ago. She was the mother of nine children, seven boys and two daughters, all of whom are living except one son who died in 1914.

She had been an invalid for more than 22 years, but bore her suffering patiently. She professed faith in Christ more than 50 years ago and lived a devoted Christian life until her death. She was a member of the Pleasant Grove M. E. Church, South.

Just before the end came she sang most beautifully and spoke of the happy meeting over there, and said all was well with her and she had no fears of death.

The funeral was held at the Cashiers M. E. church, and was ably conducted by the Rev. W. T. Hawkins, after which the remains were laid to rest in the lower Zachary cemetery.

Mother's face has gone from us, but is beaming in glory this day. A Son.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas, God in His infinite love and wisdom has taken from their home and our Sunday school and church our beloved and loyal members, R. A. and O. M. Walker, therefore be it resolved:

First, That we, the members of Lowe's Sunday school, feel most keenly our great loss, but feel that our loss is heaven's gain.

Second, That we wish to attend to the family our most heartfelt sympathy in this their great hour of bereavement.

Third, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, to the Reidsville Review and the Christian Advocate for publication.

R. L. Pearson,
C. C. Roberts.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

On Tuesday afternoon, February 20, the angel of death came for the first time to the Florence Lackwell Missionary Society, bearing away into the great beyond the gentle spirit of Julia C. Bynum.

From the time of the organization of the society Julia was ever one of the most loyal and enthusiastic members, always ready to do her part with willing heart and untiring hands. Ever modest, untiring and unostentatious in her manner, she was always helpful and ever ready with her words of praise and encouragement for her associates and fellow workers. The optimism of her life and her cheerful encouragement was ever an inspiration to the leaders. Too modest to assume the leadership herself she was always a willing and capable follower, carrying out her part with real ability. And now, even though she is not with us in her actual presence, her influence and the gracious benediction of her life among us as a friend and a member of our society will be felt as long as memory lasts.

"And so, now all thy days be fair,
And shadows touch thee never,
But his alone—God bless you, dear!
So thou art safe forever."

Florence Blackwell,
Anna Ogburn,
Maude B. Trotman.

LEE—Mrs. Anna May Lee, wife of Thomas Lee, was born January 11, 1892, and died February 27, 1923. The subject of this obituary was converted and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, at Perkins Chapel in 1922 and later removed to Moyock church and died a loyal member of this church.

Sister Lee had been a very great sufferer for quite a long while, having had most all the dreaded diseases as pneumonia, typhoid fever, influenza, and died with the dread disease cancer; but amid all these which were distributed over several years, she remained loyal to her Lord and kept the faith and because of this, it can well be said she was one of the most loved women among us—a loyal, devoted wife, and a tender thoughtful mother and devout Christian. Many times during her last year and more of suffering she expressed a desire to go where she would be forever free from the suffering of the body and as often assured us of her faith and confidence in her Lord, giving every evidence of her preparation for the change which she was conscious could not be delayed long.

It was indeed like heaven on earth to sit by her bedside when she was not in her most excruciating moments of pain, and hear her happy, cheerful voice even to the last few days before her death claimed her. She was indeed one of the most patient sufferers I ever saw—never a murmur, not even when it looked as if death was doing its work.

She leaves three girls and one boy, the oldest a girl of 13 and the youngest a boy of four, and a devoted husband who patiently watched and did all in his power for her, and a father, A. W. Oliver, two brothers and two sisters, Mrs. E. E. Sexton and Randal Oliver of New Bern, Mrs. L. A. Norman of Columbia and W. H. Oliver of Roper, and many devoted and loving friends.

The funeral services were held by the writer in Moyock church February 24 and she was buried in the family burying ground. The floral offerings were very beautiful. W. B. Humble.

BROWN—Allen, little four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. T. Ed. Brown, died March 19, 1923, with pneumonia. Allen was a bright little fellow and will be missed by all who knew him. His body was laid to rest in the cemetery at Centenary church. He leaves a father, mother, five sisters and one brother to mourn his loss. His little grave was covered with flowers.

We know he is safe in the arms of Jesus;

Little darling from that home is gone.
A voice they loved is stilled,
A place is vacant in that home
Which never can be filled.

A Friend.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas, God in His infinite wisdom has called home our beloved brother and member of our class, Temple Foster, who was born June 19, 1905, and died on February 19, 1923.

We, the members of the junior class of the Newland Methodist church, feeling the loss so greatly, desire to give expression to our sorrow; therefore be it resolved:

First, That while we sorrow for his going and our hearts are sad because he will not meet with us again on earth, we feel that all is well with him.

Second, That our sympathy goes out to his loved ones. They will miss his love and the sweet influence of his Sunday school attendance, precept and example, but will hold these as sacred memories and be guided by them in the years to come.

Third, That these resolutions be spread upon the minutes and that copies be sent to the family and to the North Carolina Christian Advocate for publication.

Johnnie Brothers,
Jackson Stafford,
Everette Beamon,
Committee.

RONEY—Mrs. Eliza Roney, relict of Calvin N. Roney, ripe and full of years, passed to her deserved reward the 2nd day of March, 1923, at the age of 84 years. She fell and suffered a broken limb in the home of a daughter, Mrs. John C. Dailey of West Durham, with whom she had lived for a number of years, on January 23rd and at once was removed to Watts Hospital, Durham, where she lingered until death claimed her. She leaves three loving daughters to mourn her going, Mrs. John C. Dailey, West Durham, with whom she spent her last years, Mrs. Charles Park of Mississippi, and Mrs. Lee Hurdle of Alamance county.

It was the writer's privilege to have known Sister Roney for many years. It makes me happy to be able to bear testimony to her superior Christian life and character. I can say without reservation I have never known a nobler soul. She was indeed a mother in Israel, one who walked and talked with God. She was kind, gentle and beneficent in disposition, and withal, a great mother to her children. In other years, when she was strong and active, I have heard from her lips, in revivals especially, prayers uttered publicly, the fervency of which I have seldom if ever heard fall from mortals. I have known seemingly whole congregations to be wonderfully touched and moved while she in prayer would tenderly but bravely hold on to the altar. Sinners would often become convicted and converted while she would be talking with the Lord in prayer. Her last days in the hospital were wonderfully spent. Her mind returned as clear as a bell, and she would quote chapter after chapter of the Bible and sing softly and gently of the home of the soul into which she was so graciously to enter. The Lord created in these last days a confidence that nurses would not see her side from over the hospital, and hear feelingly her simple but triumphant story of redemption. Surely the gates of glory swung wide open when dear Sister Roney went that final day home to God. She left the enrichment of a gracious life as ointment poured forth upon her dear children, near relatives, which were many, and a host of friends over the country when she departed. Faithful God and loyal to the Methodist church many, many years, this saint of God has entered happily into the church triumphant on high. God's benediction rest continually upon all relatives and friends.

J. A. Dailey.

HALEY—Henry Ervin Haley was born July 27, 1850, and departed this life December 23, 1922.

Mr. Haley was a native of Cedar Grove community in Orange county. At the age of eighteen he professed faith in Christ and united with Cedar Grove Methodist church. Three years later he was elected Sunday school superintendent and in this office, and also as steward, he served the greater part of the fifty years of his Christian life.

At the age of twenty-nine Mr. Haley was married to Mary Burch, also of Orange county, and who still survives. This union was blessed with nine children, seven of whom, two boys and five girls, still survive.

In the death of Brother Haley the entire community has suffered a distinct loss. He was a staunch Methodist, always active, faithful and forward looking, a pillar in his church; but his activities were not limited only to those of his own denomination. He was a part of the community. He worked with and for all.

Mr. Haley was known, too, as a man who lived his religion in his home and in the fields. He was accustomed to pray and to praise God in the fields of his farm as well as in his home and church. To him all places might become the house of God and the gate of heaven.

The death of Brother Haley came unexpectedly and as a great shock, even to his most intimate friends. In his usual good health apparently, he attended a stewards' meeting on Thursday, went on a business trip Friday, was taken ill and rushed to a hospital for treatment and died early Saturday morning. But death had no terrors for him. He knew the end had come and he was ready to go.

Though great as is our loss we would not call our brother back from his well deserved rest and reward. We shall miss him and our work will be badly crippled for a time, but we are looking for God to raise up and lay His hand on others who may live and labor as worthy successor to this man of God. J. E. Blalock, Pastor.

TYSON—Richard H. Tyson was born in England October 15, 1869, and came to America in 1881. He was happily married to Miss Lizzie Smith April 4, 1917. To this union were born three bright little boys—Richard, Jackson and Thomas. Besides his wife and three little boys, he leaves four brothers and five sisters and many other relatives and friends to mourn his departure.

He was a good man and will be greatly missed in his neighborhood, where he had done so much, and his influence was felt by all who came in contact with him. He was not ostentatious, but strong, faithful and an humble Christian. We thank God for his life and having felt the influence of his gentle Christian life radiating its goodness and power to all those about him.

In his young manhood he was converted one day when alone in the field plowing, but did not join the church until after his marriage. He joined Pleasant Grove Methodist was superintendent of the Sunday school of that church for four years, and was entering on his fifth when on January 13 God called him to come and be with Him. He was faithful and was always there. He will be greatly missed and his place will be hard to fill. He was a man of very few words, but what he did say counted so much.

The burial service was held at Pleasant Grove church, conducted by his pastor, Rev. M. G. Irvin, assisted by Rev. J. C. Wooten of Raleigh, and his earthly remains were laid to rest in the church cemetery and the grave was covered with flowers, beautiful and fragrant.

He lived thirteen days after developing pneumonia and bore his affliction patiently. Everything that medical skill and loving hands could do was done to save him, but God knew best and took him hence.

May the Lord bless and comfort the bereaved family, and may they remember that God is too good to do evil and too wise to make a mistake. We extend to them our sympathy and trust that his beautiful life as husband and father will lead and beckon them to follow until they shall join him on the other shore.

Gone but not forgotten. A Friend.

EDITORIAL PARAGRAPHS

Some town and city churches shake their own hands in self-congratulation because fifty or a hundred new members have been added to the roll during the year, when the big majority of these came by letter from country churches or other town and city churches. This is nothing to boast about. Under the present condition of a constant influx of population from the country to the towns there is a constant drain upon the country churches and a consequent growth of the town churches. But the church in town should be careful not to trust for this growth from without and should be willing at the same time to lend a hand to the struggling country church.

Pessimism is the philosophy of gloom. Its native tongue is a croak. Its progress is backward. From a philosophical viewpoint this is the worst possible world to a pessimist. From a practical viewpoint the world is growing worse all the while. Yet there are some professed Christians who are practical pessimists. To these the Master will say: "I never knew you; depart from me, ye workers of iniquity." For our Lord had confidence in humanity, and in the triumph of right. He dared to trust the truth, to trust men, and to trust the future. With Him Faith, Hope and Love are supreme. Instead of a wail of despair, the crucified Lord shouts from the cross a prophecy of ultimate victory. The "Man of Sorrows" knew but one song and that was a song of triumph.

"Instead of asking the blessing every day at the table," said the inquisitive lad of his pious old father, "why don't you go to the smokehouse and ask the blessing upon all the meat at once and for the whole year?" Some folks seem to have the same idea about going to church. They go once or twice a year and seem to expect a whole smokehouse full of meat at one time. But this method does not satisfy the demands of piety. "Give us this day our daily bread," "Line upon line, precept upon precept," "Not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is." These are the Divine injunctions for our guidance and they emphasize the repetition of worship and study. Holy habits are one of the ends to be sought in worship.

The kingdom of heaven is not a manufactured product. It is not made by machinery, neither is it hand-made. It is a growth. But it is not a hot house plant. Neither is it a product of the arctic regions. It belongs to the temperate zone. Abnormal heat generates fanaticism and in extreme cold the kingdom of God dwarfs and dies. It flourishes best in a moderate temperature. But this kingdom which is a growth requires constant and careful cultivation. The fields of the sluggard are overgrown with thorns and briars. The lazy pastor will be troubled with grass and weeds and a small yield at harvest time. Intelligent cultivation of a field in which hath been sown good seed carries with it the promise of an abundant harvest, "some thirty, some sixty and some an hundred fold."

The country made a constant appeal unto Jesus. Men from the out-of-doors were the first visitors to his cradle. The flocks and the lambs of the flocks became objects of his special care. His interest was in the speck of a seed which grew into a tree and in the birds that are fed without storehouses or barns. He talked of figs and grapes and of reeds along the ditches. The lilies in their beauty and the grass which is green today and tomorrow is cast in the oven became his theme. The fish in the meshes of the net, the fox with his cunning and the hen with outspread wings of protection were all employed by the Great Teacher to emphasize his truth. Jesus with his interest in and love for all things rural must have loved greatly the springtime when nature is at her best and shows forth her resurrection glories.

The kingdom of God is no place for piddlers. Its tasks are tremendous and its duties amazingly exacting. Jesus Christ under the shadow of the cross saw a world to be redeemed and saw himself set to the task. Should not the disciple be like his Lord? If the Christian glories at all, it must be in big and hard work. For the honors of the kingdom are not measured by position, but by service. Any man who does not magnify the place which he occupies in the church of God should surrender his office to another who will. This applies to bishops, presiding elders, pastors, stewards, secretaries, editors, and every other person to whom has been entrusted a place of leadership in the church. Dare to undertake big things for God. World conditions call for nothing less. Furthermore, red blooded men are interested in the big job. Keep the iron hot all the time and hit hard while it is hot. But do not be a piddler. Children, not men and women, play mumble-peg.

Under the caption "Straws in the East Wind" the New York Christian Advocate has this illuminating and to Christians encouraging paragraph: "The Weekly Review of the Far East, published at Shanghai, has been taking a poll as to the twelve greatest living Chinese. The results are worth noting because of the number of Christians whose names are near the head of the list. Naturally, Dr. Sun Yat Sen heads the poll, but General Feng, a Christian, sometimes called China's Cromwell, ran a close second. Dr. Wellington Koo, who stands next, is a graduate of a Christian college, and though not a church member, has shown sympathy with Christianity. C. T. Wang, a graduate of the same school (Saint John's College) and of Yale, has been vice president of the Senate and is a Y. M. C. A. leader. Dr. Wang Chung-hui, another Yale man, is the son of a Chinese pastor, and has been Minister of Justice. Then there are David Yui, senior secretary of the Y. M. C. A., and General Yen, Governor of Shansi, who has shown marked favor to Christianity. One-half of the big twelve of China are either active Christians, or the product of mission schools, or noted for their sympathy with Christian ideals and Christian missions." In the face of such facts who will say that Christian missions and Christian schools are not worth while?

RELIGIOUS JOURNALISM IN AMERICA

With the Advocate campaign approaching its close, there is a widespread interest in the church paper. We have, therefore, thought it an opportune time to present some facts and figures upon the subject of religious journalism as these have been collected by Dr. E. C. Wareing and presented in the Western Christian Advocate.

To all persons interested in their church paper, its cost and value, and in religious journalism, both Protestant and Roman Catholic, the comprehensive study made by Dr. Wareing will prove of unusual interest and profit. Read the following:

A study of comparative figures of membership and circulation will assist in producing information on the increasing value placed on the church paper. The following data covers completely all publications of the Baptist, Christian (Disciples), Lutheran, Presbyterian, Protestant Episcopal, Congregational, and Evangelical denominations:

Methodist Episcopal Church: Membership, 3,718,396; church paper circulation, 270,338, or approximately one subscriber to every fourteen members.

Methodist Church, South: Membership, 2,108,061; church paper circulation, 162,491, or approximately one subscriber to every thirteen members.

Baptist—North and South: Membership, 3,939,039; church paper circulation, 142,263, or approximately one subscriber to every twenty-seven members.

Christian Church (Disciples): Membership, 1,231,404; church paper circulation, 129,875, or approximately one subscriber to every nine members.

Lutheran Church: Membership, 2,452,850; church paper circulation, 138,964, or approximately one subscriber to every seventeen members.

Presbyterian Church—North and South: Membership, 1,613,056; church paper circulation, 94,170, or approximately one subscriber to every seventeen members.

Protestant Episcopal Church: Membership, 1,098,173; church paper circulation, 24,600, or approximately one subscriber to every forty-four members.

Congregationalist: Membership, 790,163; church paper circulation, 34,000, or approximately one subscriber to every twenty-three members.

Evangelical: Membership, 194,535; church paper circulation, 34,000, or approximately one subscriber to every five and one-half members.

Methodist System Best.

The above statement reveals the emphasis and concern the denominational leaders throughout the country are placing on the religious press. We learn privately from those with whom we are associated in the Editorial Council that the Methodist system of Advocates is regarded as the best in existence. Our method of being able to make every pastor "the Advocate agent" is regarded as the most efficient means of promoting circulation. Our aggregate circulation leads the Protestant press of America.

We also have the information that all outstanding religious journals have an annual deficit. Not one of them is published for gain. How they provide for their losses has not been divulged. However, by various sources we learn that this is done by three methods—private contributions, denominational subsidies, and foundation grants. The denominational paper is looked upon as an indispensable promoter of the interests of the kingdom of God. Returns are not to be expected in the department of promotion, but in all the other productive and constructive departments of the church. The advertising department of a business is indispensable, but it is supported by the productive results of the other departments which it promotes. The second-class mail matter of the postoffice department does not produce income sufficient to sustain it. There is annually a tremendous deficit. But the first-class mail which it promotes is highly remunerative.

Subscription Rates.

As to the subject of subscription rates, something should be said in the interest of the prevailing system. A study of the Protestant press reveals the following:

3	Protestant weeklies	at.....	$4.00	per year
1	"	"	..... 3.50	"
3	"	"	..... 3.00	"
7	"	"	..... 2.50	"
30	"	"	..... 2.00	"
1	"	"	..... 1.75	"
13	"	"	..... 1.50	"

6	"	"	"	..... 1.25	"
5	"	"	"	..... 1.00	"
1	"	"	"	..... 50	"

In this same connection you will be interested in noting what our Catholic fellow citizens are doing along the same line. We find as follows: According to the last statistics available that they had a membership of 15,742,262. This membership is being supplied with forty-seven weekly Catholic papers, aggregating a circulation of 1,138,322, or approximately one subscriber to every fourteen members (same as our church). But to this should be added fifteen foreign language papers, with an aggregate weekly circulation of 145,811, giving the Catholic papers in America a total circulation of 1,284,133, or approximately one subscriber to every thirteen members. You will also find in their subscription rate that they have:

1	paper at.....	$3.00	per year
2	"	..... 2.50	"
29	"	..... 2.00	"
11	"	..... 1.50	"
2	"	..... 1.00	"
1	"	..... 50	"

$2.00 Normal and Accepted Rate.

From all this data it would seem that the normal and accepted rate of subscribers for both Protestant and Catholic faiths where large circulations are indicated is $2.

The above statistical figures are given that you may be able to survey the religious press of the country and make comparisons. We believe that you will come to our conclusion, that the Methodist press, as it is now functioning, compares favorably with all others, and that the results are such as to justify increase of faith and accredit the judgment that counsels large investment of talent and money in it, and that pronounces our policy sound and worthy the utmost confidence.

There is a growing emphasis being placed upon the importance of the church paper. This is being done not only by the leaders of the denominations, but by all secular organizations which seek to reach the constituency of the church. The reason for this is found in the fact that men and women who represent the prominent citizenship of every community are largely members of some religious organization. They represent the taxpayers, the property holders, the constructive leaders, and the good citizenship of the community.

A BIG DAY AT DISTRICT CONFERENCE

With Pinetop and the Washington district conference as the final objective, I stopped over for a night at Wilson with Rev. J. F. Love, the shepherd of First church. Among the pleasures of my stay in Wilson was the privilege of looking over the new $76,000 addition to First church. The walls are now to the second story and the work is to be completed by the middle of October.

There is a roof garden and all other equipment of an up-to-date church plant. When completed Wilson will have a church second to none in the state and equaled by few.

After Love had officiated at an early morning marriage we were off to the seat of the conference. Mr. John N. Hackney, Col. John F. Bruton, Rev. J. F. Love and I made up the party. Mr. Hackney was at the wheel of his big car, which without effort could make all the law would allow, and in a few minutes the 17 miles to Pinetop lay behind us. The conference when we arrived was running like a new, well oiled machine with Elder S. A. Cotton at the wheel. The Rev. S. A. Cotton can manage a district conference with the same ease that John N. Hackney drives an automobile.

The interest did not lag for a single moment throughout the day and the spirit of the occasion was as fine as one ever sees in a district conference. The morning was given mainly to reports from pastors and lay leaders and to the Advocate. To have a report from each of the lay leaders of the charge was a new feature to me in a district conference. But it was interesting and well worth while. For the conference got a report from the layman's viewpoint as well as from that of the pastor.

The afternoon was given to the laymen when Brother C. G. Morris, district lay leader, was in charge. The addresses were by Col. Bruton, James Galloway, L. L. Gravely and H. M. North. Col. Bruton has tremendous influence in that district, where he is so well known, and his address will accomplish great good. Brother Galloway spoke with authority because behind his speech is a life full of good works. Mr. Gravely, who has traveled extensively in Europe, brought a remarkably illuminating address about conditions on the continent and what the Methodist work is accomplishing over there. Rev. H. M. North, who can do anything well from playing baseball to officiating at a marriage, explained clearly HOW laymen can help the pastor and serve effectively in the different activities of the church.

Pinetop has a new church of which the Methodists are justly proud. The cut of this church was on the front page of last week's Advocate. The name of Rev. J. Herbert Miller, the pastor, was inadvertently left off that page to our regret. But he is the pastor, has been for almost half a year, has led in the completion of the church and in sundry other ways is magnifying his office. Methodism is growing in Pinetop and with such an alert and capable pastor as J. Herbert Miller it will continue to prosper.

The barbecue for dinner served on the grounds was the very best. Edgecombe county claims to lead in the serving of barbecue. I am neither prepared nor inclined to dispute this claim, though some of the adjoining counties might set up a counter claim. I desire nothing better than Edgecombe barbecue. A. W. P.

A DAY IN UNION COUNTY

By an exchange in engagements between the editor and business manager the latter was permitted to spend last Sunday in his native county, and it was a happy experience to him. Pastor Crowder of the Waxhaw charge, had arranged for special services to be held in his church at Waxhaw in connection with the third quarterly conference. Preaching on designated subjects was announced for Friday night, Saturday morning, Saturday night, Sunday morning and Sunday night. Rev. T. J. Houck, of Pineville, preached on Friday night, Rev. J. B. Craven, the energetic presiding elder of the Charlotte district, on Saturday morning and Rev. J. J. Edwards on Sunday night. Saturday night and Sunday morning were turned over to the Advocate's representative. A Sunday school institute was held on Sunday afternoon. A team that has been assisting Presiding Elder Craven for some time was on hand to present this important department of church work.

The one thing that Waxhaw needs very badly is a new church building, and to be set off to itself so that it can have an all time preacher. The new building is being talked and when that is finished the station will come. There are large possibilities in that town for Methodism, and we must enter in and meet the responsibilities.

Sunday afternoon it was our privilege to be at Bethel on the Matthews charge. It was the occasion of the third quarterly conference. There are a number of fine young people at that church and Pastor Hinshaw is diligently looking after them.

We are under obligations to Brother and Sister Crowder and their fine daughters for their kindness to us while in Waxhaw, and to Elder Craven for being so nice in driving us around the country.

"A Dastardly Outrage" is the caption of a strong editorial in The Robesonian which denounces in no uncertain terms the outrage committed April 14 by 18 masked men at Proctorsville, Robeson county, when two women were taken from home into a negro church, their clothes removed and they severely whipped with a leather strap, while their children, five in number, three belonging to Mrs. Purvis and two to Mrs. Watson, the victims of this outrage were left in terror at home. "No more dastardly outrage has ever been committed in Robeson county," declares The Robesonian. One thing is certain, these hooded perpetrators of outrages in North Carolina gets no sympathy from the press of the state.

The stories in the daily press of Florida's treatment of her prisoners read like a chapter from prison annals of the Dark Ages. If the testimony of some of the witnesses in the case is to be accepted the old Spanish fort at St. Augustine with its instruments of torture need not be shown to visitors as a monument of Spanish cruelty but can be pointed out as typical of Florida's present day prison policy. Evidently it is time for Florida to clean up and for every other commonwealth to treat its prisoners as becomes an enlightened and humane Christian civilization.

PEOPLE AND THINGS

Rev. Jim Green begins a ten days' meeting at Jotla on the Franklin circuit April 27th.

Mrs. J. A. B. Fry of Stockton, Cal., who has with her husband been spending some time in North Carolina, is visiting friends in Concord this week.

Dr. J. E. Abernethy preached the commencement sermon at Pineville high school last Sunday. It was a great sermon and was heard and greatly enjoyed by a large audience.

Any pastor or evangelist in need of an evangelistic singer during the months of May, June or July, please write A. N. Fisher, 3212 Ocean View Avenue, E. Fairmont Park, Norfolk, Va.

Rev. W. R. Shelton on Tuesday evening, April 17, addressed an audience of Bible class workers in Winston-Salem. The men's Bible class of Calvary Moravian church was host for the occasion.

Rev. R. G. Tuttle is this week holding revival services at Centenary, this city. Rev. A. Burgess is leading the song services. Brother Tuttle expects Rev. D. H. Tuttle of Smithfield to assist him next week.

Rev. E. C. Sell, pastor of Goldston circuit, who has been suffering from a deep, debilitating cold for some time, has gone to Wilmington on a visit to his family, hoping by a few days' rest to regain his usual strength.

First church Salisbury has wiped out its indebtedness of $24,000. The money was raised in two weeks, half of it by free will offerings on two Sundays. The church is worth $200,000 and one of the handsomest in all the country.

Rev. W. A. Newell has in this issue of the Advocate an interesting thought-provoking article on the rural church. Read every word of that excellent communication on the fourth page of this issue of the paper. Let's have a revival of practical interest in the country church.

Mr. A. S. King of Sloop Point, N. C., and Miss Hettie Mae Alexander of Scott's Hill were married Sunday, April 22nd, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Alexander of Scott's Hill. The ceremony was performed by the bride's pastor, E. W. Downum.

Rev. L. D. Thompson, pastor of Hawthorne Lane church, Charlotte, is now in a meeting at Trinity Methodist church, Newport News, Va. The daily press of that city is carrying extended reports of his sermons, which are being heard by large congregations. The meeting appears to be making a very decided impression upon the city.

Rev. J. F. Armstrong of Concord passed through Greensboro on his way home from Durham, where he delivered three addresses Sunday in behalf of the "Near East Relief Fund." He spoke to the Trinity Sunday school at 10 o'clock and at 11 a. m. and 3 p. m. in two of the Baptist churches of the city. Brother Armstrong has been a successful leader for Cabarrus county in the work of relief for destitute peoples in the East.

Rev. M. T. Hinshaw, president of Rutherford College, writes: "We have a young lady here who is finishing the high school work. She is preparing herself for foreign missionary work. She is endeavoring to make her way through school, and would like to have a position for the vacation with some of our pastors and assist him in his young people's work, visiting the sick, or in other words, serving as a deaconess. The young lady is thoroughly interested in religious work, and in my judgment would make a most valuable helper to some pastor."

Mr. E. C. Weatherby, a well known salesman of Faison and a prominent Methodist layman who has served as conference lay leader and on various boards and who had a summer home at Lake Junaluska where he delighted to stay amid those Methodist associations, dropped dead last Thursday in a Kinston hospital, where he had gone for treatment. Funeral services were held at his late residence in Faison Friday afternoon by Rev. C. M. Lance, the pastor, assisted by Revs. W. A. Stanbury, R. H. Davis, Walter Patten and P. McIntyre of the Presbyterian church. Brother Weatherby was widely known, personally popular and will be greatly missed by his large circle of friends.

Rev. and Mrs. J. C. Umberger of Westford, Concord, announce the birth of their daughter, Bulah Margaret, on April 6, 1923.

Dr. Ashley Chappell, the pastor, on Easter Sunday received 141 new members into Central church, Asheville.

If the "Friend" who wrote the obituary of Miss Belle Albea, of Harmony, will be good enough to send us his name it will be published as soon as possible.

Thomas Perrette, one of the oldest and most prominent citizens and for many years a member of the Faison Methodist church, was buried Monday, April 23rd. The funeral services were conducted by his pastor from his home in Faison. He held a large and important place in the community and church.

Edith Wilson, the four-year-old child of Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Umberger of Concord, died in the Charlotte Sanatorium last Sunday night following a major operation. She was buried in the Mt. Olivet cemetery Monday afternoon. She was the baby sister of Miss Mary Belle Umberger of Greensboro College for Women and was a most interesting and promising child.

"A good fly paper holder can be made of cardboard. Cut a piece of heavy cardboard, or two or more thin sheets 8 by 14 inches. Place sheet of Tanglefoot on cardboard, fasten four corners with wire paper clips. A half inch elevation in center of sheet increases the catch of flies. Bend up a piece one-half by six inches in center of cardboard lengthwise."

The pastor and congregation of Grace Methodist church at Winston-Salem are planning for an interesting service at 3:30 next Sunday afternoon. The outstanding feature will be the burning of the mortgage held on the church since it was built six years ago. All of the outstanding indebtedness on the property, aggregating about $4,400, has just been liquidated, the money being raised through the efforts of the pastor, Rev. E. E. Williamson. An interesting program is being arranged for the service next Sunday afternoon. In addition to special music, short addresses will be delivered by Rev. J. S. Hiatt, during whose pastorate the present house of worship was erected, and one or two leading laymen of other Methodist churches in the city. Grace church will be formally dedicated in June or July. The exact date will be left with Bishop Denny, of Richmond, Va., who will preach the sermon. He will advise the pastor within the next few weeks when he can be here. Rev. W. M. Curtis, now secretary and treasurer of Greensboro College for Women, was the first pastor of Grace church. The congregation was organized with about 35 members in 1892 and Mr. Curtis served this charge most acceptably for four years.

CHARLOTTE DISTRICT CONFERENCE

The Charlotte district conference will convene in Morven, N. C., May 3rd and 4th.

Those coming on the Winston-Salem Southbound will come directly to Morven. Those coming on the Seaboard will stop at Wadesboro and come on to Morven by automobile. There will be automobiles at Wadesboro to meet all persons who notify me beforehand on which train they will arrive. Those coming by automobile from west of Polkton will detour north in Polkton.

We of Morven hope to have a full attendance and are praying that the conference may be a great spiritual feast.

S. Taylor.

Rev. J. C. Gentry is expecting the fifth Sunday to be a big day on the Morganton circuit when the people of the entire charge are to meet at Oak Forest church. Mr. O. V. Woosley and others will speak. There will be dinner on the grounds and all day services.

Mrs. S. E. Richardson, wife of our pastor at China Grove, was carried to her home from the High Point hospital Monday of this week. She is satisfactorily recovering from a recent operation for appendicitis. Brother Richardson, too, has been somewhat "out of form" but is better now.

Rev. L. L. Smith and his people at Bethel are building a $57,000 church. The present membership of the church is a little over 200 and the attendance at Sunday school 350. This is a great record in a town of 800. Both the pastor and people are in the work with an enthusiasm that tells of a great future for this growing church.

Rev. and Mrs. J. A. B. Fry, of Stockton, Cal., have been visiting friends for several weeks in North Carolina. They spent last Sunday with friends in Pomona. Brother Fry at 11 o'clock preached an excellent sermon at West Market. Mr. and Mrs. Fry went Monday to visit friends in Marion. Brother Fry's mother lives at Spruce Pine and he expects to spend some time with her before leaving next Monday for the Far West.

"I am very sorry to tell you I will have to stop my church paper for a while at least. I have been in the hospital for eight weeks with cancer of the throat, and it takes all the money I have to pay my expenses. I like to read the Advocate. I read every page from cover to cover. I am a widow." This letter was received by the Advocate Wednesday morning. We have more than a dozen such letters on file. Who will help us send the paper to these dear old people?

TRINITY'S BEST REVIVAL IN YEARS

We are sure that the special evangelistic services held during the past two weeks in Trinity church were a great benefit to our church. About fifty persons joined the church at the morning service of April 15th as a direct result of the meetings and there are still others who were unable to present themselves for membership on that date who will join at a later date.

Our pastor, Dr. Abernethy, has, beyond a doubt, rendered this church a service of great value and at the last meeting of the Workers' Council of the Sunday school that body, by a rising vote of thanks, signified to Dr. Abernethy, who was present, its appreciation of this particular piece of service, as a large percentage of those who have just joined the church are members of the Sunday school.—Trinity Men's Club News.

A GREAT OPPORTUNITY FOR RURAL DEVELOPMENT

By W. A. Newell, Presiding Elder of Winston-Salem District.

While 80 per cent of our church membership is found in the rural church at least 90 per cent of all our plans and programs are designed to meet the needs of the urban church. This inversion of interests is due to the fact that most of our leaders and "planners" are drafted from the city churches. Of course, most of them had been drafted from the rural church into the urban church before the boards called them to higher seats. But we have a strange facility for forgetfulness of the "rock from which we were hewn."

Close and constant contact with the country church for the last five years has convinced me that the rural church has not failed, is not failing and will not fail. They are more active and progressive than they have ever been and under wise supervision and progressive leadership they will continue to develop the very highest type of Christian life and fellowship in the countryside.

Our rural problem has two major difficulties which stand in the way of the most efficient organization. One is "absentee landlordism." Without doubt, this is the worst curse that can befall any rural community. At an early date we wish to make an analysis of the situation in some typical churches affected by this evil and suggest a remedy.

The other difficulty lies in inadequate equipment of the country church for the work that needs to be done. The day of the old one-room country church is gone. The sooner we realize this fact the better for our Methodism. I shall not argue this point. It is so evident that argument is ridiculous. The reason for one-room churches existed along with the need for one-room homes and school houses. It was the necessity imposed by poverty. That compelling force has been destroyed by an era of prosperity which we now enjoy but do not appreciate. Rural thought tends to conservatism and our country population is just beginning to understand that the highest form of prosperity is that which expresses itself in the things held in common by all the people, such as schools, roads and churches. On every hand we have convincing evidence that they are awakening to this fact and are rebuilding their communities in the light of a recognition of the common need and aspiration.

It behooves the church to take the place of real leadership in this magnificent development. Our great Methodism is peculiarly fortunate in its relation to this work. We are in that blessed estate of having nothing to "take back" and nothing to throw overboard. If I understand the situation we have need of all the methods and machinery of former days. In addition to this we need the sublime faith of the fathers that will enable us to meet changing conditions with the organizing power of the will and word of God. A confession of failure at this point is denial of Christ.

In its material equipment the country church needs rebuilding from the ground up. The spirit is willing but the flesh is weak. Some of our rural churches have already grasped this fact, acted upon it, and have now entered upon a new day of mastery:

There are so many phases of this problem that we shall confine ourselves to several of the more salient ones. The first is—

Location.

Thousands of churches in town and country have been doomed to lives of futility because some misguided brother "gave them a lot" upon which to build. Others occupy locations that were good when the former church was built but the community has since grown away from it. I am convinced that, as a rule, we have too many country churches and too few town churches. Means of urban transportation have not changed so radically in the last few years as have those of the country districts. Practically everybody in the country now goes to church in the ubiquitous Ford. So, the ideal location for a country church is at that point where the greatest number of improved roads converge. A church at the cross roads has a fourfold greater chance for success than one located at the end of a road.

In this day of consolidated public schools the church and school should be in agreement upon the subject of location. The best location for a consolidated public school is the best location for a community church. We should erect a modern church in the immediate vicinity of every consolidated public school. There may be exceptions to this rule but I haven't found them. For five days in the week this is the community center. It is poor psychology to try to change it on Sunday. The church and school should be co-laborers in all worthy tasks and their combined efforts are always crowned with success. Our best country churches already occupy these strategic situations.

The growth of our larger towns and the expansion of the great mail order houses of the big cities have destroyed the country village as a trading center. But we now see the rebirth of the village around the school, the church, the physician and the larger social activities made possible by this new grouping of social forces. It is the most promising development of this new era.

The church should have an adequate area of land. With all the land God has made He should be granted enough for His church. Spacious grounds, well adapted to the purpose should be acquired by gift or purchase. See that there is plenty and then buy as much more. Then induce somebody who loves the Lord to give you two or three acres more. No church in the country should have less than two acres as a minimum. Five to ten acres should be standard. And not a foot of it should be used as a graveyard.

This brings us to the second big factor—

Building.

A country church should be planned to take care of at least three items which I shall name in the order of their importance—Worship, Training and Religious Education, Social Life. There is absolutely no reason why the country church should not be just as beautiful and well equipped as the city church. Of course, you will hear the old cry of poverty and inadequate resources, but as a rule this cry is raised to hide the vice of stinginess. Perfect frankness will induce us to say that if the average country church would make the same degree of sacrifice as is made by similar churches in our industrial centers they could achieve wonders in the way of equipment. And there is no excuse for the erection of ugly, inadequate structures. Our Board of Church Extension, Louisville, Ky., stands ready to supply you with modern plans at a nominal cost. Our fathers built the old one-room churches. They wrought well, for their fathers had built log churches to take the place of brush arbors erected by the founders. As sons of such worthy sires we should build to meet the needs of this our day.

I shall not go into details concerning these buildings. The place of worship should be beautiful and set in beautiful surroundings. The Sunday school should have facilities equal to those of the public school serving the same group. A room apart from the worship room should be large enough for community group meetings. This room would also serve as one of the department rooms of the Sunday school. There are hundreds of good plans. Get in touch with the Board of Church Extension, call upon O. V. Woosley, our Sunday school secretary, visit other good churches and select the best. Then build of the best and most lasting materials available. Your people will rally to a big program when they see its possibilities.

Difficulties in the Way.

I wish we might have time and space for the discussion of some of the difficulties and objections. I shall name just a few that I have met with. One is: "We are attached to the old site." This should hold just so long as the old site is the most suitable site. If we were building churches in unoccupied territory not half the old sites would be selected today.

"We can't leave our graveyard." This is most potent of all the forms of opposition. The only sensible solution where the present church is inadequate and poorly located is to make the building a mortuary chapel, keep it in good repair and maintain our cemeteries in decency and order. Certainly a neighborhood of living children should not be sacrificed to the ashes of the dead. A mere glance at the condition of the graveyard will often convince an unprejudiced observer that the spirits of the dead are "called up" upon occasion to disturb the living. I have seen many a deserted and abandoned graveyard, but they were in every case of the smaller kind. We should acquire large grounds for the burial of our dead for this, a process that will continue for years to come. I yield to no one in my reverence for those who have fallen on sleep. I am willing to contribute my part to the maintenance of beautiful cemeteries without making if an excuse for worshipping God in an old tumble-down shack, far off the road, at the back end of a thicket.

"If we already have too many churches, why build another?" In every case where it is possible let us consolidate several of these struggling, starving country churches into one live organization which will meet the community's needs in the religious life. If they cannot be consolidated build the church at the center anyway. Whether you build the better church or not it is only a matter of a few years until the badly located and poorly equipped church will be abandoned to the bats and owls. It is one of the laws of life that no organism can survive which is out of harmony with its environment. And when the sad day arrives it will be too late for reorganization for this cannot be effected with the dead.

In Conclusion.

The circumscribed space available for a discussion of this kind gives it a querulous tone. Nothing is father from my mind. I have always contended that the generous member of the rural church pays more for what he gets in religious service than any other element composing our church. My only complaint is that he doesn't get enough. Sometimes he is satisfied with too little. Sometimes he is made hopeless by the long struggle against adverse conditions. I was born in the country, have lived most of my life in the country and am hopelessly country-minded. My only contention is that the resident of the rural sections, child or adult, shall have his full quota of life—physical, intellectual and spiritual. The most condemnatory indictment of our civilization is that we have so neglected him that often he doesn't even know what his rights are in these holy things. The church must teach him in her Sunday schools and inspire him from her pulpits and endow him with her social spirit until rural life shall express that fine perfection which God means for it to have.

For after all it is the same people who toil in the fields and learn in the schools and travel over the roads and live in the homes of a community that make up the church of the community. Our churches should be that point where all these phases of community life come into personal contact with God. And under adequate leadership our country churches will come into this golden age of achievement which is destined to be glorious beyond the fondest dreams of the fathers. And my fellow countrymen will do the job right when they see what is to be done.

VIGOROUS HEART ACTION ESSENTIAL

How shall we keep the heart of the church pulsating with vigor? Certainly not by raising a hue and cry for orthodoxy. An occasional revival soon spends its force, leaving but a waning life behind; and the ordinary rounds of preacher and officials degenerate into life "at a poor dying rate." Perhaps no one effort in the church will count for more than a real missionary organization among the women. This means the gathering into an organized group the very heart of the home and of the church. The best guarantee comes with the missionary society that the children will be trained, the young people cared for, and the outlook of the women cultivated.

The study of the fields, the acquaintance of noted missionaries, the regular contributions made, the unselfish work done, all contribute mightily to a vigorous life in any church. Information is carried into the home, a spirit of loyalty is cultivated, and a love for the world for which Christ died pervades the life. The women are doing a marvellous work in North Carolina, a work that is so much like the sunshine that we hardly perceive how it is done. In its quiet and pervasive way the work goes on. More and more, the children are being trained and a select number of willing workers are giving their dimes and their dollars and sending prayers heavenward, as they look out across the world with a new perspective and a fuller consecration. As the great test of medical practice is that it heals the patient, so the great test of preaching is that it converts and builds up the hearers.—H. L. Wayland.

WEEK DAY WORK IN RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

By John W. Shackford, Gen. Sec. S. S. Board.

The action of our last General Conference in recognizing that week day work in religious education must be allied with work on Sunday is essentially sound. Nothing could be more unfortunate or divisive of the forces engaged in religious education than to undertake to create a new institution in the field of religious education known as the Week Day School of Religious Education. This would be still further to divide the interests and loyalties of the pupils, and set up a week day institution as a competitor of the Sunday institution attempting the same thing.

Every pastor who has had any experience in trying to develop a strong program of religious education in his own church realizes that the present need is to simplify and unify the agencies of religious education in the local church rather than to increase the overlapping and unrelated elements of the local church educational program. The importance of working out a unified program for the local church is fundamental, therefore, both from an educational viewpoint and from that of the practical situation existing in our local churches.

In order that this new development in week day work may be projected in harmony with this demand for unity and for simplification, it is most important that from the beginning the week day and Sunday program be projected as one under adequate provisions for co-ordination, both in administration and in curriculum.

Paragraph 361 of the Discipline says the General Sunday School Board "Shall have oversight of the Sunday school work of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, INCLUDING ALLIED WEEK DAY INSTRUCTION." The board is also authorized to determine the Sunday school curriculum, including "Courses for week day religious instruction correlated with the Sunday school." (See paragraph 365. See also Paragraph 381).

Before any of our Methodist churches acting in co-operation with other local Methodist churches in the community, or with other denominations, enter upon the actual projection of any scheme of week day religious education, they should give the most careful study to the matter they are undertaking, and clarify in their own thinking the purpose and relationships of this new type of work and should make the necessary arrangements for permanency, for a competent teaching corps, and for adequacy of supervision.

Under the instruction of the General Conference, it is the purpose of the General Sunday School Board to provide for the supervision and guidance of week day work in religious education as a part of the program of religious education of the local church.

The purpose of the movement in the direction of week day work in religious education is:

1. To develop a more adequate program of religious education for the pupils of school age.
  - (a) By providing more time for religious education.
  - (b) By providing a more complete and effective program of religious education.
  - (c) By reaching a larger number with this program than are reached by the present program of the church school.

2. To seek as far as possible to unify the provisions for religious education as they relate to the pupil, whether such provision be made for Sunday or week days.

The relation of the church to religious education on week days deserves the most careful consideration at this time.

The entire program of religious education in so far as practicable should be arranged with the pupils' day school program in mind, both with a view to utilizing the interest and information gained in the day school for the more vital and intelligent study of the materials of religious education, and with the purpose of supplying a religious motive and viewpoint that may assimilate to itself the materials of the week day school, and altogether to unify the educational experience of the child and give that experience a distinctly Christian outlook and character.

On the other hand, the distinct responsibility of the church for the work of religious education should be kept clearly in mind. The church exists for the Christianization of the world and for the establishment of the kingdom of Christ in the earth.

Its chief means of making the world Christian is through Jesus' own method of teaching the Christian religion to those who are under its care and within the reach of its teaching ministry.

In its responsibility for teaching the Christian religion to those under its care, the church is second only to the Christian home, with which it shares this primary responsibility. Where the home is not Christian the church must assume the entire responsibility for teaching the Christian religion to the young in so far as this may be consistent with the wishes or consent of the parents or legal guardians of the pupils.

In attempting to provide a complete program of religious education, including week day time, the church will seek to co-operate with the public schools so as to insure needed relationship of curriculum, unity and experience, helpful advice and common understanding.

At the same time, the position of the church is that it is not the province of the state to undertake to become the interpreter and teacher of religion, or to attempt to mediate any distinct body of religious experience to the young. Our churches need to be warned against entering into any hasty alliances with the public schools by which they are asked to undertake religious education in any such sense as the church of Christ understands it; and any effort to turn this responsibility over to the state is fraught with untold dangers, both to the state and to the Christian religion.

Since, therefore, the church must hold to its own primacy of responsibility, after the home, for the religious education of those under its care, it is bound by every consideration, both to the pupils themselves and to society, to provide as rapidly as possible for a program of religious instruction and training that is educationally comparable to the educational program provided for the same pupils by the public schools.

The responsibility of the church in this field must be met mainly through and in connection with the local churches. In the local church, as a rule, some measure of religious instruction is already provided for a large proportion of the pupils of school age in the communities where such churches are located. Again, the local church supplies the most logical and natural avenue through which to reach pupils of the same communities, who as yet have not been brought under the influence of the local church school.

In our entire approach, therefore, to this subject this principle should be fundamental in our thinking, that the church functioning through the local church organization, and through its regularly established general plan of organization, must assume responsibility for maintaining and supervising the work of religious education on Sunday.

The General Sunday School Board will, upon request, make more detailed suggestions regarding the supervision and control of the various types of week day work in religious education with a view to helping those who are planning to project experiments in this field to project them in harmony with the general principles suggested above. Suggestions will be made with reference to unity of administration and consistency in the curriculum.

MILK OF HUMAN KINDNESS

There are many more kindly disposed people moving about incognito than the casual observer is aware of. The innumerable acts of kindness and goodness that are handed out to the distressed and the afflicted, silently, far outnumber the acts attended by the spectacular. To do a great thing is a joy—run about boasting of it and embellishing it is the act of a small soul.

There is an humble family in Concord, in which are two children with deformed lips that will mar otherwise attractive faces throughout life. An interesting physiological question may arise here in the power of pre-natal impressions; but this does not concern us at this time.

A bright faced, blue-eyed child of near unto a year of age passed a certain store the other day. A merchant, who has never appeared in the limelight as a philanthropist (he hides his acts of kindness and mercy) saw this happy little mortal with a physical blunder that would follow her throughout life. He felt sorry for the little girl baby. He had read somewhere that hair-lipped deformity could be remedied if attended to in time. He found the name of the baby girl, where her home is, and forthwith 'phoned the facts to an officer of the local circle of King's Daughters with this short but matter-of-fact instruction: "I wish you to investigate this case; have the child placed under the care of a specialist, give it the best possible treatment, to the end that the horrible deformity may be obliterated. Send the bill to me—it will be my opportunity and pleasure to pay it."

Some of these days the name of this really humane gentleman will leak out; and there will be those, who are accustomed to see things and people through dark glasses, to be surprised. There are lots more good people in this world than bad and sorry ones—it depends on the angle from which you view them and the state of your own spirit of service.—The Uplift.

THE MODERN MINISTER

Time was when the first question asked about a minister was, "Is he a spiritually minded man?" but the Modern Minister, it is, "Is he a good executive? Has he administrative ability? Is he an organizer?" This is because of the supposed needs of the congregations. They want things done. They expect the minister to do them. They look for organization. They expect him to organize them. They look for results in church growth from methods and organizations, and he must show them. The Modern Minister must meet that demand, or he is professionally doomed! He is the church's factotum; its setter-up of machinery; its leader in social service; its hustler for pennies; its official advice receiver for the myriad recommendations of methods devised and offered; its organ of communication with a thousand applicants for its influence, money, co-operation; its raiser of special collections almost imperatively demanded of it; its agent for boosting outside organizations; its advertiser; its answer of innumerable and irrelevant questionnaires from every conceivable and inconceivable source; its setter and observer and holder of special days for everything on earth; its helper of endless business enterprises; its partner of every energetic book agent and newspaper circulator; its dispenser of lists of members for the exploitation of other people's business or schemes; its assorter of wealth, ability, or willing spirits of its members for the use of benevolent work, philanthropy or church building; its standardizer; its driver of drives and mover of movements; its manager of pageants and plays and days; its employment bureau for the unemployed; its refuge for the tramp; its patient bearer of every ill to which flesh is heir; in short, the church's combination organizer and drill-sergeant, cash register and adding machine! Is it any wonder that the Modern Minister is not a scholar?—Rev. George Summey, D. D., in The Christian Observer.

RECITAL AT LOUISBURG COLLEGE

On Friday evening, April 13, one of the most enjoyable programs of the college year was rendered by Miss Gracie Parker, graduate in Expression at Louisburg College, and her assistant, Miss Julia Daniels, pianist.

The entire program, which was well selected, gave evidence of careful preparation and rare appreciation, winning enthusiastic commendation not only for the two students but for their instructors, Miss Catherine Padwick, director of Expression, and Miss Ruth Hall of the Department of Music.

Miss Parker's impersonation in the play, "Beauty and the Jacobin," by Booth Tarkington showed splendid literary appreciation and decided dramatic ability. This fine play of the French Revolution was followed, after a musical number, by the delightfully modern story, "Exigencies of Etiquette," taken from Jean Webster's "When Patty Goes to College," in which Miss Parker showed a keen insight into the character of boarding school students and the strategy to which they sometimes resort. The last number, "Watching the Sparkin'", a monologue by Fred Emerson Brooks, brought again a storm of applause when Miss Parker revealed a keen grasp of humorous situation in giving the opinions of the boy who watches through the windows his professor's awkward attempts at courting.

Miss Julia Daniels in her usual proficient manner delighted the audience with "Romance" by La Dorge and "Caprice Viennois" by Kreisler, but especially in her rendition of "En Route" by Gourdard did she show a mastery of technique and a fine appreciation.

WELCOME CIRCUIT

We have held our meeting here at Welcome. It was a very good revival—about twenty-seven professions, and the church and community were brought closer together. As a result of the meeting we are planning to build a $10,000 church in Welcome.

We are also planning to build a $20,000 church at Midway. We have a building committee elected at Midway and at Welcome. So we hope to have these churches well on the way by fall.

Also our brave ever ready to do crowd at Ebenezer are going to build a nice five or six thousand dollar church. This church is three miles north of Lexington on the Winston road. They will soon be on the job. And at Vernon we are planning to build Sunday school rooms this fall. So you see we have a building program for this year. We have a fine charge to serve—people who can and are willing to do things.

We are expecting a great year on this charge. We are trusting God for great revivals on this charge which is needed so much in the church. I trust all the real saints of God who read this will remember us in your prayers.

May the Lord bless us in giving the greatest revivals in this conference we have ever had. John H. Green.

SEVERSVILLE

As all know Seversville and Rural Trinity were divided at our last conference, both being made stations. By personal choice, not often the case with a Methodist preacher, we were given Seversville. We have here a church membership of one hundred and twenty; like all places, not all loyal. On coming we found no parsonage and no money to build one; no house that we could rent. But finally found some rooms some distance from the church; moved in. After four and a half months in our own hired house, we are now in one of the neatest six-room bungalow parsonages in our conference, and it well furnished, the building being well worth five thousand dollars, with just a small debt and that arranged so it can be easily paid. This was done by about 21 members, with the exception of $345 donated by outsiders.

The ladies, of course, put in the furniture at a cost of $500, over which there is no debt—all paid for, for which they deserve great credit and praise, for it was only through a determined effort and hard work that they succeeded. There has been more than three times as much money raised to date by the church than has been raised in a whole year prior to this time.

NEW PARSONAGE AT CHAPEL HILL COMPLETED

On the site of the old Carr home next the west corner of Franklin and Columbia streets, the Methodist church of Chapel Hill has recently completed a beautiful new parsonage as the first unit of the enlarged building program for Chapel Hill of the Methodist conferences of North Carolina. The building is of colonial style, of common red brick, laid in Flemish bond and raked joints. It has the conventional entrance porch, and porches at the east and west ends connected with the front porch by uncovered brick terraces, with flower boxes built into the buttresses of the steps leading to all three of the porches. Large windows, glass doors, and three small pointed dormer windows across the front slope of the roof carry out the colonial idea.

The interior of the house is splendidly appointed. A wide hall divides the first floor into four large rooms, three of which open into one another and the hall by sliding glass doors. On the second floor there are four large and one small bed rooms, two baths and a linen closet, and an abundance of space for storage is provided in the attic which extends over the entire house. The basement is roomy and light, and is equipped with a low pressure steam heating plant and complete household laundry arrangements.

In addition to providing a home for the pastor, one of the chief purposes of the building is that of furnishing an attractive center for the Methodist students in the University. The first floor is splendidly adapted to this purpose, and already a general reception to the student body, a dinner for the men of the local church, and meetings of large groups representing various interests of the student body and congregation have been held in it. Its appointments and furnishings have been selected with the utmost care and taste, and altogether it is furnishing a most delightful home atmosphere. L. R. Wilson.

Not only this, on last night they came and took the new parsonage by storm, run the preacher under the table, for which deed he got a scolding by the mistress of the parsonage, went straight to the dining room; and when they had unloaded and we began to take stock we found many things that the preacher will have no need to buy until he meets the bishop at Winston, unless ye editors will come over and board with us a while. All this was accomplished by a big man with a bigger heart who is chairman of the board of stewards as leader.

Boys' watch Seversville grow. So much for the material.

The spiritual side is going forward. Our Sunday school is doing fine work. Our Epworth Leagues are very much alive. Our men's prayer meeting is growing in extent. A ladies' prayer meeting has recently been organized with prospects of accomplishing much good. The Ladies' Aid is very active doing many things for the church and parsonage. Our congregations are fine. And best of all, we are planning for a great meeting in May, closing the year with a great ingathering of souls. C. L. McCain, P. C.

NEWTON GROVE CHARGE

We have just closed a successful revival on the Newton Grove work which lasted two weeks. Rev. S. A. Maxwell did the preaching, which was well done, for he is an able speaker. Like John of old he points men to the "Agnus Dei, Lamb of God," "which taketh away the sin of the world." Brother Maxwell is a young man, but notwithstanding the fact he is an old-time Methodist preacher. He preaches death certain, hell hot, eternity long, and that a man must be born again or he cannot see the kingdom of God. He also believes in a revival that is prayed down and not worked up. In other words, he believes in a Holy Ghost, heaven-born, old-time, sky-blue, blood-red, thirty-six inches to the yard, four quarts to the gallon, seven days of the week, twenty-four hours to the day, full measure, running over, shaken down, overflowing, sin-killing, devil driving, hell shaking, sin confessing, God honoring, sanctifying, rugged cross, Gethsemane, soul stirring, Holy Ghost religion that comes from God into the soul of man. This is just what he preaches. And the results are good. We received six into the church on profession of faith, and one by letter; the one by letter had been out of the church for seventeen years. Some over one hundred church members came to the altar during the meeting and were greatly blessed by the Holy Spirit, who was present at all of our services. While some were seeking to have the joys of salvation restored unto them, others were seeking a closer walk with Him, and others received their Pentecost. There are others to be received in the church the second Sunday in May, which will bring the total accessions to the church up to about ten or twelve.

Just a word about Brother Maxwell. He is a graduate of Trinity College and is now a student at Yale University, of which he expects to graduate next year with B. D. degree. The Lord is using Brother Maxwell as He is using no other young man in North Carolina to win souls for Him. Brother Maxwell is going to be one of our best evangelists, for he believes the Bible is the inspired word of God, and he is getting the best education possible. I think I can truthfully say that he is "every day in every way getting better and better."

I am going to begin a meeting in Antioch church in a few days, and I want to ask an interest in the prayers of the brethren of the North Carolina conference that God will give us a gracious outpouring of His Spirit and that many souls will be saved for Christ's sake. Amen.

S. W. Phillips.

Mr. M. G. Piland, accompanied by Mrs. Piland and children, have been summoned to the bedside of his father, Rev. W. A. Piland, who has been stricken with paralysis. Mr. Piland will be remembered by many as a former pastor of the local circuit some eight years ago, and his many friends hereabouts will hope that he will soon be reported better. He now resides at Kipling, near Raleigh.—Mt. Olive Tribune.

POUNDS AND POUNDINGS

Brothers Earnhardt and Hornaday whooped a great deal about their poundings, but shucks! they should have seen the poundings that came to our house.

The Maysville, Tabernacle, Hopewell and Belgrade brethren kept us supplied with fresh backbones, spare-ribs, sausage and liver pudding till about Christmas. Then the Tabernacle folks loaded up a car and the Hopewell hosts a wagon with good things for the table, and stocked our pan'ry—yes, and sent some money, too, to buy Christmas fixings. Then the Pollocksville and Lee's Chapel brethren held a conclave and planned to do likewise, but out of sheer sympathy for their erstwhile cavernous but overfed parson, they decided to wait till the flush somewhat abated. So one night last week the Woman's Missionary Society rallied their forces and made a charge—Methodist, Presbyterian, Baptist and Episcopal—practically every family in Pollocksville was represented. And, my! what a pounding they did bring!

Yes, we are in good hands. The folks are kind and good to us, and we are trying to give them the best service of all our ministry. As they feed well our bodies, we are trying to feed their souls out of the same trough of good spiritual things with which the good Lord is blessing.

L. E. Sawyer.

COOL SPRINGS CHARGE

Our third quarterly conference convened at Rose chapel last Saturday, April 14. Presiding Elder Rev. D. M. Litaker was on the "dot" and presided. He is of that type of leader that lets no item of interest escape his notice. He knows what's right, and knows he knows it.

The churches on the charge were well represented and reports were good. Sunday schools are growing in number. Epworth Leagues are doing fine. Another new chapter organized at Cool Spring church. T. D. Shuford of Rose chapel says all the Sunday school rooms are full and that his Sunday school has gained 40 new scholars during the past four weeks.

Our Ladies' Aid Societies over this charge are doing a wonderfully good work. The ladies of New Salem are buying new carpet for the church. Those at Providence are making and selling fancy quilts—doing things for their church and parsonage. Ladies of Cool Springs have bought new lights for the church and are now supplying their church with "Our Methodist Hymnals." The ladies of Clarksbury are making marked improvements on their church building—cement steps, new lights, etc.

Our Circuit Sunday School Rally will be held at Cool Springs the fifth Sunday of this month.

Our presiding elder, Rev. D. M. Litaker, preached one of his strong sermons at Rose Chapel at 11 a. m. last Sunday. The people said on the way home from church, "Now we have something to think about." McS.

For Sale—In Rutherford College, 5 acres of land; good orchard, good 8-room house, small barn. If interested write me at Welcome, N. C. John H. Green.

And Jesus answered and said unto him: If a man love me, he will keep my word and my Father will love him, and we will come unto him and make our abode with him.—John xiv. 23.

These promises are to us just as they were to his disciples. Do we believe them? Do we want to prove them true? Nothing but continuance in known sin can keep or prevent God, the Father, and Jesus Christ, the Son, from making their abode with us and in us if we obey him.—Belle H. Bennett.

Lover of souls indeed,
But lover of bodies, too,
Seeing in human flesh
The God shine through,
Hallowed be thy name,
And for the sake of thee
Hallowed be all men,
For thine they be.
—"Thy Kingdom Come," W. J. Dawson.

A PRAYER

Our Father, we thank thee for the heroes of the cross who have carried the message into the dark places of the earth. Open the hearts of thy people to supply their every need, and fill their ranks, we pray thee, with a multitude of young lives ready to do valiant service for the King. Help us each one to do thy will, and grant that thy kingdom may come speedily upon the earth.—Sara Estelle Haskin.

Methodist missionaries in India began by preaching in a single native language, but now they are preaching in at least thirty-seven different tongues.

A VAIN SEARCH OF FIFTY YEARS

A backslider who was converted and joined the church and who went to church at least once on Sunday, uphill or down, in or out of the path. If out at all, he went to church, twice if possible, but once sure.

A backslider who went to prayer meeting every Wednesday night if not sick abed; and if he would go to collect a bad debt of one hundred dollars, he was there. Of course he should pray if called on, but he went.

A backslider who read his Bible daily, if only one verse, at night or in the morning. He should hold family prayer, reading this Book; but the one thing he never neglected was to read a little from the Book each day.

A backslider who prayed in secret morning and night in his boarding house or home whether others did or not. If his prayers mixed in with the jeers of companions or even wife, yet he prayed. However short and lame, he prayed.

A backslider who took his church paper, read it enough to give an account of the drift of church affairs. Whether poor or plentiful, he invested in this much church inspiration.

A backslider who paid something to his pastor and other claims. If not much, it always came, at least before the preacher got off to conference.

A backslider who had his preacher around at least once a year.

A backslider who each day in his own way, whether simple or complex, tried to do some person a good turn in body, mind, or soul.

He who did these eight simple things I have never known to fail to get where he could not see far and finally forgot he had been purged from his old sins.—Rev. John B. Culpepper.

THE TOMB OF MARY MAGDALENE

The sun shone clearly over
The green hills of Palestine;
No cloud came floating by,
No quiver in the air,
A marvelous stillness reigned supreme;
There's such rare sublimity in the scene,
To look upon the landscape
At the tomb of Mary Magdalene.

Autumn-time is coming,
But those flowers will never fade,
Or bow their heads, or give away,
To the birds that sing so sweetly
All the day in Palestine.
Oh, it's fine to view the scene,
And to look upon the landscape
At the tomb of Mary Magdalene.

Rocky ledges dot the hillsides,
Sleeping the ages away;
Grass springs up in the valleys,
The sheep graze day by day;
Our hearts go back there daily,
Our eyes still view the scene—
And we look upon the landscape
At the tomb of Mary Magdalene.

Farewell to the hills and the valleys,
To all upon the green—
Where the view upon the hilltop
Is the grandest ever seen.
It's there our minds still linger,
In a wonderfully charming scene,
It's there our vision wanders
To the tomb of Mary Magdalene.

WOMANHOOD AND THE KINGDOM

The greatest good accomplished by the Woman's Missionary Society during all the years since it became a part of the autonomy of the church is not recorded in the annual reports, nor measured by the suffering alleviated, the schools established, and the lives made better and more bearable by their work; but by the ever growing goodness of the women who have lived and loved and wrought for them with God.

The marked increase in the membership and collections of the society is but the natural and visible result of lives that are taking on more of the learning of God through service to man, and learning more of the mind of Christ in the struggle to apprehend the meaning of His words: "Love one another as I have loved you."

To the womanhood of the church He continues to say: "Behold I set before you an open door." His light shines with increasing brightness upon the dark places of the earth, and all who will may lift up their eyes and see. He still looks with compassion on the great multitudes that are like sheep without a shepherd and says to His church: "Feed my lambs."—Belle H. Bennett, Lambuth-Bennett Book of Remembrance.

TRINITY WOMEN BUSY

Since January 21 our society has been without a church building, for on that day old Trinity church, the oldest in the city of Durham and one of the oldest in the state, was burned completely down. Notwithstanding this great loss, our society has added seventeen new members to its roster, and there has been an awakening in interest and enthusiasm for our work. A new spirit of co-operation and unity has prevailed since the fire, and on the whole we believe our society is stronger in numbers, more zealous in efforts, and more consecrated in purposes.

Dr. A. D. Wilcox has continued his course in Bible study, meeting the membership once a month in a series of lessons on Biblical facts. A mission study class led by Mrs. Annie Wall Foushee has created a great deal of interest. This class has been studying Dr. Edward Leigh Pell's book on The Early History of Methodism.

The society is divided into four circles, each one concentrating at present on the rebuilding of the church. A sock social netted about $50 recently, and there are plans on foot for various other money-making events. One circle has sold pictures of the burned building. The society as a whole has pledged $1,000 per year for the next four years, which does not include personal pledges or pledges made through other channels. This pledge of course is in addition to our missionary obligations.

Cor. Sec.

GROUP MEETING IN WINDSOR

The group-meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society for Bertie, Hertford and Martin counties was held in Windsor on March 22.

We had Miss May Edla Smith, our conference president, and Miss Amuna Graham, our district secretary, with us.

There were also visitors from Williamston, Aulander, Powellsville and the other churches on Windsor charge. It was a perfectly lovely day. But for the bad roads there would have been a much larger crowd, which we had so much hoped to have.

After devotional exercises Rev. B. F. Boone delivered the address of welcome.

Rev. Mr. Chambers from Williamston gave a short talk on the work and the needs of his charge, after which Miss Graham proceeded to organize and elect officers in these counties, to hold meetings quarterly in the different sections, trying to get all the societies in closer touch with each other, therefore making the work more effective and interesting.

Luncheon was served at the church. After a very pleasant social hour Miss Graham called the meeting to order and announced there would be a dialogue, "How Not to Have a Missionary Society," which was rendered by some of the members of the Windsor auxiliary.

Miss Smith then gave us a most excellent talk on the needs of the different mission fields, which was much enjoyed. A solo in the morning by Miss Belle Brett, and one in the afternoon by Mrs. Shock added much to the music. After having the reports from other auxiliaries and some very interesting and encouraging remarks from Miss Graham the meeting adjourned.

It was a very successful and inspiring meeting, and we feel that much good was accomplished.

Mrs. Bessie Dunstan, Cor. Sec.

WEST BURLINGTON MISSIONARY SOCIETY

West Burlington Missionary Society of Front Street church was organized by Miss Agnes Stewart March, 1917, at the home of Mrs. J. P. McPherson with eight charter members. The year closed with eighteen enrolled. Mrs. A. J. Whittemore was made president and still holds the office. Some of the other officers have remained the same for six years. We have lost two members by death. They were Mrs. J. W. Slaughters, mother of Rev. B. B. Slaughter, and Mrs. Flora Stubbins, who was once our treasurer. A good many have moved away but others took their places, so that our membership has remained between 20 and 25. Every fall we have sent a box of clothing to the orphanage at Raleigh ranging in value from $24 to $180.

All of our women work, so we meet on the first Tuesday evening in each month at 7:30. We meet in the different homes and have a business meeting followed by a social hour which we all enjoy.

Mrs. A. A. Apple.

No sermon is of any value, or likely to be useful which has not the three R's in it: ruin by the fall, redemption by Christ, and regeneration by the Holy Spirit. My aim in every sermon is loudly to call sinners, to quicken souls, and to be made a blessing to all.—Hyland.

Western North Carolina Conference

SUPT. A. C. REYNOLDS

It seems to me to be a pity that every one of us could not have been born in the mountains of western North Carolina and there to have faced the mountain difficulties and enjoyed the mountain scenery. The fellow who can come under the "hillbilly" or "mountain white" class is some fellow. Mr. A. C. Reynolds, superintendent of public schools of Haywood county, can qualify in every particular. Born in the Sandy Mush section of Buncombe county he had big obstacles and animating beauty on every hand. He waded through both and eventually graduated from Peabody Normal as a sort of a diamond with part of the rough rubbed off—not all, for "a diamond in the rough" always appeals to us all.

Following graduation Mr. Reynolds spent four fruitful years teaching at Camp Academy, in his home community. Then he directed the work for a while at Rutherford College, resigning to accept the superintendency of Buncombe county schools. After seven years he accepted the presidency of Cullowhee Normal and Industrial School, where eight years of splendid development accrued. He is now serving his third year as leader of the Haywood county schools where much progress is being noted.

As a teen-age lad our mountain leader gave his heart to God with the disposition to do everything He directed him to do. For thirty-four years this decision has been carried out. The Sunday school has given him the opportunity to teach, to promote and to superintend. His church has received much of his time, where as steward, lay leader and General Conference representative, the cause of righteousness has been promoted. At present Mr. Reynolds heads our Sunday school work at Waynesville and also in the entire Waynesville district, a mountain territory comprising seven counties.

Mrs. Reynolds, who was formerly Miss Nannie Elizabeth Woods, of Orange county, has been a great help to Mr. Reynolds in all the good work he has directed. The seven Reynolds children are normal "mountain whites" doing good work in school as they look the world straight in the face. The best thing I can say is what Reynolds said to me, "As I grow older I become more and more impressed with the thought that we should make our best contribution to the race through our work in the church and through the children that God commits to our care."

NINETY-SIX

IN APPRECIATION

Miss Estelle Wolfe, a student in our recent Hickory school, handed me the following, headed, "In Appreciation":

"Backward, turn backward, Oh Time in your flight."
We have been to school, this week, every night;
Teachers to train us the work we must do;
We had a good time, not a moment was blue.

We hope to do better again next year, For results from this school already appear;
Teachers, we thank you for all you have done;
Good, solid work, encouragement and fund.

THANK YOU

It is an intense satisfaction to note that many of our Sunday schools are going to observe Sunday School Day and then give a liberal offering for our conference and district Sunday school work. Quite a number that have not previously done so will do so this year. Already some $250 worth of programs have been furnished our schools and the business is just getting in full sway. It's co-operation we want and it's co-operation we are getting. Thank you.

STORY PAPERS

The Sunday school authorities for the Southern Methodist Church publish, in addition to the general Sunday school lesson materials, four story papers as follows: "Boys and Girls" for children through ten years of age, "The Haversack" for boys from ten to about seventeen, "The Torchbearer" for girls of the same age, "Our Young People" for young men and young women over eighteen years of age. There are 9,070 copies of the four story papers coming within the bounds of the Western North Carolina conference. If we can double this subscription list our publishing house will give us $50 worth of Sunday school books. In the near future we will enter upon this campaign.

North Carolina Conference

MR. J. F. MARQUETTE

Our Wesley class superintendent of the New Bern district is Mr. J. F. Marquette, of Trenton. He's the best district Wesley class superintendent in the North Carolina conference! (He's the only one.) He's blazing the way, and we hope before long to have such a superintendent in every district. Born May 19, 1875, in Onslow county, he was baptized in infancy by Dr. Black in Queens Creek Methodist church. He has been active in Sunday school work for the past twenty years and was one of the first stewards of Caswell Street church, Kinston, after its reorganization. He is quite prominent in Masonic circles, being assistant grand lecturer, Grand Lodge, A. F. and A. M.

He believes in beginning at home. He has been giving some attention to classes in the neighborhood of his home town. Recently he organized a class of young men in Trenton Sunday school, "Sons of Wesley," with Mr. C. S. Hargett as president, Mr. E. S. Smith as secretary, and Miss Bessie Whitaker as teacher. In the same school he reorganized a class of young women, "Willing Workers," with Miss Roslie Windley as president, Miss Lillian Hammond as secretary, and Mr. T. A. Windley as teacher.

Mr. Marquette is thoroughly interested in the great Wesley class movement and is giving of his time to keep it moving. Pastors and superintendents of the New Bern district in whose schools classes should be organized or reorganized would do well to invite Mr. Marquette to their schools.

WELDON DISTRICT SCHOOL

The feature of the Weldon district conference, which met at Jackson April 11-13, insofar as the Sunday school is concerned, was the unanimous decision of the conference to hold, in co-operation with the annual conference and general Sunday school boards, at Weldon, July 2-7, a big district-wide Standard Training School, and a board of managers, composed of Rev. L. D. Hayman, chairman and secretary, Mr. E. S. Yarbrough, vice-chairman, Rev. Rufus Bradley, treasurer, Rev. T. G. Vickers, Rev. H. B. Porter, Rev. L. C. Larkin, Rev. B. P. Robinson, Lesley Towe, W. N. Sherrod, D. R. Anderson, N. M. Sherain, E. J. Gerrock, and G. E. Midgette, with Rev. S. E. Mercer and L. L. Gobbel ex-officio members, was named to work out the details for a great training school. The good people of Weldon will entertain all who attend, on the "Harvard" plan. Six days, Monday Saturday, will be devoted to a study of principles and methods underlying successful Sunday school work and problems of Sunday school management. There will also be inspirational addresses and interesting recreational features, including various outdoor games and contests. It is to be a week of pleasure and inspiration as well as of helpful study and work.

The report of the Sunday school committee, read by Mr. E. S. Yarbrough, district secretary, gave a clear analysis of the Sunday school conditions of the district. Following the report your conference superintendent of Sunday school work and Rev. Rufus Bradley, member of the Sunday school committee and of the Conference Sunday School Board, spoke to the report, the latter reading certain recommendations, among them the setting up of several definite goals for the year.

Rev. S. E. Mercer, the presiding elder, set a side a whole hour for considering Sunday school work, most of which time was consumed and, we believe, to advantage. Weldon district is all right. It has done much and it's going to do more!

FINE SCHOOL AT GRAHAM

Our Alamance Standard Training School, in session at Graham last week, had a splendid attendance, and a good percentage of the enrollment earned the certificates of credit. The attendance ranged around 125 to 150, and every one of the six Methodist charges of Alamance county was represented. Taking advantage of this training opportunity, also, were quite a few Presbyterians, Baptists, and Methodist Protestants. They came from Burlington, Haw River, Mebane, Swepsonville and other places—pastors, superintendents, other officers, teachers, and pupils. Especially fine was the attendance of the pastors, all but one or two earning certificates. Rev. G. M. Daniel, chairman of the board of managers, did a fine piece of advance work, and everybody apparently enjoyed the week of fellowship and training. Names of those earning certificates will be given next week.

BOLL WEEVIL VS. BUILDINGS

Our Sunday schools of the Weldon districts are not allowing the boll weevil scare to frighten them away from their building programs. Leastwise reports of pastors at the recent district conference indicate as much. Read these:

Rev. E. N. Harrison, of Rosemary, reported his Rosemary school was completing four new Sunday school rooms.

Rev. J. B. Thompson, of Conway, reported his people planning to build a new Sunday school at Conway.

Rev. Rufus Bradley said his school at Enfield was planning new rooms. He also reported a new Sunday school to be organized at Central Cross.

Rev. William Towe reported a new church at Seaboard about completed, this to have eight Sunday school rooms and to cost about $15,000. He also said lumber was on the ground ready for remodeling the church and providing six Sunday school rooms, these improvements to cost about $4,000.

Rev. T. G. Vickers reported plans progressing satisfactorily toward the erection of an up-to-date church and thoroughly departmental Sunday school building at Henderson, to cost about $100,000.

Rev. M. Y. Self, of Norlina, told of a movement to remodel one of his Sunday schools. He reported his schools well attended, so much so that the buildings were overflowing and some of the classes meeting outside.

Rev. R. H. Broom, also, told of increasing attendance at Roanoke Rapids.

Sermon—Rev. J. W. Roach of Presbyterian church, Lowell.

Closing Song—"There's a Wideness in God's Mercy."

Benediction by Rev. J. W. Roach.

Our members are very proud of the recent improvements in our church and every loyal member is doing his or her part to rally to the support of our much beloved pastor, Rev. C. M. Campbell, who has worked so faithfully among us for the past four years.

JONESBORO CIRCUIT—A MOST INTERESTING CONFERENCE

It was my privilege and pleasure as a steward in Jonesboro church to attend the second quarterly conference of Jonesboro church, which was held at Poplar Springs church, about six miles east of Jonesboro.

It would be a pleasing surprise to any of the former pastors of this work to look upon Poplar Springs church today. Through the efforts of Rev. B. E. Stanfield a transformation has been wrought in this church. Its glistening new coat of paint on the outside, and the remodeling, painting and carpeting on the inside make it very neat and attractive. They are now ready to have the windows replaced with memorial are glass.

This mid-week (Wednesday, April 18,) quarterly conference was attended by a large congregation. At eleven o'clock Brother Willis, P. E., preached a splendid sermon on "Owe no man anything but to love one another."

After the sermon a sumptuous dinner was served on the grounds, then the congregation reassembled for the quarterly conference. There was quite a full attendance of stewards and officials, 211 answering to roll call, every church on the charge being represented. The reports from all the churches were good. We are using the budget system at every church in our collections, and several churches have paid their assessments in full to the present. All departments of church work are active and enthusiastic, due to the untiring efforts of Brother Stanfield.

A fine talk was made by our associate district leader, Dr. M. L. Matthews, of Sanford, on church and Sunday school work. A pleasing and inspiring feature of the afternoon was the singing of the children of the Sunday school and day school. Altogether it was one of the very best quarterly conferences I have ever attended.

Mrs. J. D. Pegram.

NEWTON GROVE LEAGUE

The Newton Grove League is now doing the best work since it was organized, considering so many of our leaguers are away.

Special mention should be made of it because we have had a hard time in getting the leaguers to work together and see the importance of this great organization.

I think it will be well to mention our junior leaguers, for they are taking an active part in the programs and are doing worth-while things in making our league the best in this district. We are striving to bring all the young people into our league so we can work together, and make our community a happier place to live in and do better service for our Master as we are commanded.

Our pastor, and Miss Mary Lula Ingram, president, Miss Naomi Warren, secretary, and Mr. Duffie Weeks, treasurer, are largely responsible for the success of our league. All of the officers are enthused and are very loyal to their duties.

On Easter morning after Sunday school, the league gave a very interesting program under the leadership of Miss Maude Warren. It consisted of readings, recitations and special music for the occasion. A very interesting feature of the program was an instrumental solo rendered by little Miss Kate Williams while the offering was being taken.

We are going to make the other leagues sit up and take notice for we are wide awake. Watch us.

WHY HE WAS LIKE A DONKEY

"William, do you know why you are like a donkey?"

"Like a donkey?" echoed William, opening his eyes wide. "No, I don't."

"Do you give it up?"

"I do."

"Because your better half is stubbornness herself."

"That's not bad. Ha! ha! I'll give that to my wife when I get home."

"Emily," he began, as he sat down to supper, "do you know why I am like a donkey?"

He waited for a moment, expecting, of course, that his wife would give it up; but she didn't. She looked at him with some pity in her eyes, and replied:

"Why, I suppose, dear, because you were born so."—Selected.

"We have wondered why his students called him 'Doctor Jack.'"

"We know now that it was characteristic of an intimate love inspired in their hearts by his fatherly advice and counsel. The morning chapel hour frequently was occasion for a short talk by Dr. Kilgo on some practical question of Christian living. In this he was a master. His talks won the confidence and love of his students, destroyed their doubts, strengthened their resolve, and created a lasting desire to practice within their own lives these great teachings of Christian faith."

THE CHILDREN'S HOME WINSTON-SALEM, N. C.

Rev. C. A. Wood ..... Superintendent

THE CHILDREN'S HOME

The recent Sunday school convention brought some nice things to the children of the Home. One night Mr. J. B. Ivey, of Charlotte, came out and gave the children a program of slight-of-hand tricks. No professional magician ever had a more appreciative audience. Every one was ready to help and all were duly thrilled when the missing money, rings, flags, etc., reappeared in unexpected places. The slight-of-hand performance was followed by a treat of candy, and after adjourning to the yard, by fireworks.

It is not often that the children here have the joy of an interruption during school hours. Perhaps that has something to do with their ability to finish a grade a year, though they only go half a day. But during the convention they had an interruption which they enjoyed very much. Mr. E. R. Stanford, of Nashville, superintendent of Intermediate-Senior work of our Sunday School Board, came over and made them a talk.

Edward C., who broke his leg last November, has come home from the hospital. He was in the hospital nineteen weeks and still has his foot in a plaster cast. After the superintendent and John M. had carried him upstairs in a chair, John M. said, "I am afraid Mr. Wood and I could not make a go as an ambulance without more equipment."

It is quite encouraging to note the increased number of children in the Home who are clothed and supported by individuals or classes. Two are being wholly supported, some partially supported, some clothed, and some receive nice occasional gifts of clothes.

The following, people and classes are doing this special work:

Young Men's Bible class, West Market, partially supports a boy.

Mrs. W. F. Womble's class, Greensboro, clothes a girl.

Missionary society, Lilesville, clothes a girl.

Mrs. J. W. Burk's class, Gibsonville, clothes a boy.

Wesley Philathea class, Lenoir, partially supports a girl.

A friend (name withheld) supports a boy.

First Avenue circle, Lexington, clothes a girl.

Philathea class, Wadesboro, clothes a girl.

Miss Hunt's class, Pleasant Garden, partially clothes a girl.

Young Matron's class, Trinity, Charlotte, clothes a girl.

Philathea class, Cooleemee, partially supports a girl.

Sunshine circle, Lexington, clothes a girl.

Young Ladies' class, Walnut Street, Greensboro, clothes a girl.

Board of stewards, Salisbury, partially supports a boy.

Mrs. W. J. Irvin, Reidsville, clothes a boy.

Miss James' class, Lincolnton, clothes a girl.

Men's Bible class, Shelby, supports a boy.

The O. B. Carr class, Lexington, clothes a girl.

A missionary circle, Hickory, clothes a girl.

Most of the children who are being clothed have already received their summer outfits. The boxes that come contain such pretty things it is a joy to look at them. The ladies have put so much care in the selection of material and so many pretty stitches and extra touches upon the little dresses that no one seeing these little girls would know they did not have the care of a loving mother.

Receiving a box of pretty clothes (with sometimes a doll or toy hidden away) is quite as thrilling, and brings as much joy as anything that ever happened in a fairy story. A few days ago I was crossing the grounds when Geneva O. called out to me, "Miss Margaret, I've got some new dresses." I can't describe how her big brown eyes danced. If you want to know what it was like you will have to "adopt" a little girl and bring in her supplies.

The other day when some ladies brought in a lovely supply to one little girl another little girl said to the superintendent, "I think I will have to get me some ladies."

The boys are quite as interested in new things as the girls. Only two little boys are being clothed, but they have both received nice outfits and are as proud of them as any girl.

Since the first of March 118 dresses (most of which had bloomers to match) and 65 other garments have been received. One can see just what that means when there are only eight girls and grown persons sewing in the sewing room for 149 children.

The Wesley Philathea class, Brevard Street, Charlotte, sent in 25 dresses of assorted sizes.

Sunday was Decision Day at our Sunday school and eight of our boys presented themselves for church membership. One hundred and three of our girls and boys are already members of the church.

John M., who was once a boy here but is now a valued employe, had a birthday the other day and some of us decided to surprise him with a party. It looked for a while as if we were the ones to be surprised for John M. insisted on going off. But the superintendent came to our rescue by sending for John M. to come to the office and detaining him long enough for us to get our plans perfected. Back of the boys' study hall there is an alcove in which we arranged the table. When John M. came in there was no light except that of the 21 candles on the cake, and he was greeted with a yell from the high school girls and boys. Then the lights were turned on and he was presented with a box of toys that would have delighted a child of five or six years. We had a jolly time playing games for a couple of hours.

The children love their new pictures even more than we thought they would and they want to know the story of each one. The art department of the women's clubs of Winston-Salem and other friends have given us another nice selection of pictures which we hope to get framed soon. These pictures will delight the children for they are in colors. The pictures are:

"The Blue Boy," by Gainsborough.

"Innocence," by Reynolds.

"A Boy and Rabbit," by Raeburn.

"Simplicity," by Reynolds.

"Boy Christ," by Hoffman.

"Christ Blessing the Children," by Plackhorst.

"Spring Song."

The warm spring days are making the children long to go barefoot, and the superintendent is about as anxious as any of the boys for the time to come, though he is past the age when he can indulge in the pleasure himself. Last week John M. took thirty-five pairs of shoes to the repair shop, and our shoe repair bill is about $75 a month. Margaret V. Wood.

IF SICK, BILIOUS! START YOUR LIVER

Don't Take Calomel! "Dodson's Liver Tone" Acts Better and Doesn't Gripe, Salivate or Make You Sick—Don't Lose a Day's Work—Read Guarantee

Ugh! Calomel makes you sick. It's horrible! Take a dose of the dangerous drug tonight and tomorrow you may lose a day's work.

Calomel is mercury or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel, when it comes into contact with sour bile, crashes into it, breaks it up. This is when you feel that awful nausea and cramping. If you are sluggish and "all knocked out," your liver is torpid and bowels congested or you have headache, dizziness, coated tongue, if breath is bad or stomach sour, just try a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone tonight.

Here's my guarantee—Go to any drug store and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone for a few cents. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't straighten you right up and make you feel fine and vigorous I want you to go back to the store and get your money. Dodson's Liver Tone is destroying the sale of calomel because it is real liver medicine; entirely vegetable, therefore it can not salivate or make you sick.

THIRTEEN MILLION DOLLARS IN CHURCH VALUES

The value of property belonging to the Methodist Church in North Carolina exceeds $13,000,000. On this vast amount of property there is only $3,000,000 of insurance—less than one-fourth of its value protected.

Suppose you had stock in a furniture factory one-fourth protected from fire, what would you do? You would either sell, or hold the directors responsible.

See that your church officials protect your most valuable assets or you may be called upon to donate again to rebuild a church parsonage destroyed by fire.

with means would give us about two hundred thousand dollars with which to erect cottages, dining room, kitchen, central heating plant, modern school building and industrial building. These buildings are an absolute necessity if we are to cope with the situation which now confronts us. Unless some one with large means supplies the money, I do not see much hope for any relief in the near future.

It was a keen disappointment to me not to be able to attend the New Bern and Weldon district conference. Since I was providentially hindered I was very fortunate in securing the services of Brothers John C. Wooten and L. B. Pattishall to present the needs of the Methodist Orphanage to those respective conferences. Bros. Shamburger and Mercer were kind to my representatives and gave them an opportunity to say a good word for our Methodist Orphanage. I am greatly indebted to these good friends for responding to my request. That they made a strong appeal for our cause goes without saying.

Mrs. Nellie Rives and the children who make up the singing class tell in glowing terms of the many courtesies and favors shown them when visiting Aberdeen and Carthage on the third Sunday. In the absence of the pastor, Rev. Euclid McWhorter, Hon. R. N. Page, president of our board of trustees, was master of ceremonies at the concert in Aberdeen. He presented the class to the congregation in a friendly, whole-souled manner. With such a warm reception our children found it easy to respond with all their soul.

A tremendous congregation, taxing the church and Sunday school auditoriums to their limit, greeted the class at Carthage. Brother Perry gave the class a warm welcome for himself and the entire town. For many years Carthage has given our orphanage its loyal and generous support both through the church and Sunday school. We shall look forward with delight to the time when we can visit again our friends at Aberdeen and Carthage.

WELCOME, SWEET SPRING

By Opal Barnette.

Spring is here in all its splendor,
Of all the flowers will be in bloom.
Soon the seasons of the year,
I like from March till June.

The violets the first to welcome us—
I like their purple beauty.
They teach us how our thanks to God
Should be returned in duty.

Next comes the yellow jonquils,
Or jaunty stems erect;
And as we view the perfect bloom
They remind us of neglect.

Of many things that we should do,
As through life's way we go.
Just as the flowers seem to say,
This way is right, you know.

I often wonder as I stroll
Among the flowers in spring,
Would they not say if they could speak,
Just you be happy and sing.

The flowers, they seem so happy,
So fragrant and so sweet.
I often think they seem to say,
Good-day to all they meet.

And may we ever like the flowers
Stand fourth in love and beauty;
And at the end of life's pathway
Proclaim we've done our duty.

THE TALE OF A TAIL

Perhaps you do not know it, but in Bunnyland there lives a great-grandfather bunny. His real name is Bobby Bunny, but he is known to all the bunnies, great and small, as Great-grandfather Bunny.

Of course, he is quite old and very grey; almost as white as the cotton in his tail has always been. His frolicking days are over and he is content to sit still, and the rest of the bunnies see to it that he has the softest, cushiony arm chair to sit in.

Because Great-grandfather Bobby's teeth are not so good as they used to be, all the choicest morsels of corn and cabbage and carrots and bark are saved for him. Eating so much and sitting quiet have made him quite plump and even the very strongest chair in Bunnyland goes crickety-creak as Bobby Bunny carefully lowers his round, sleek body into it.

In the winter he sits by the open fire and nods and naps and tells stories. In summer weather his chair is placed in the shadiest corner of the north piazza where he nods and naps and tells stories. In fact, his silky, grey head seems to be just crammed with the jolliest stories.

And how all the bunnies love Great-grandfather Bobby and his tales, and no one ever tires of the rabbit lore of bygone days.

When Great-grandfather Bobby wakes in the morning and hears the pitter-patter of the rain on the roof, he knows he will have a busy day of story-telling, for, just like you, the little bunnies who do not want to play in the rain must stay indoors, and they like rainy-day stories and games, too.

Except when the dear old fellow actually drowns off in the middle of a story—they never wake him—there is seldom a time when his chair is not the center of a group of listening rabbits—big rabbits, middle-sized rabbits and teeny-weeny rabbits—all with long, shing ears, tilted eagerly forward.

Everyone knows that Great-grandfather Bobby is—oh, very wise, and all quarrels are brought to him. Whatever he says is quite all right.

Being very old, Great-grandfather has many odd habits. When a matter is laid before him he always reaches for his pigskin case and puts his great, bowed, bone-rimmed, owly spectacles on his smooth, twitchy nose. And always he looks square over the top of them!

When thinking deeply he pulls his long, silky right ear down, tucks the tip of it into his mouth and chews it. That is the beginning of every story, and when his soft paw goes up every bunny who is near flip-flops his ears and twinkles his pink nose in expectation, and bunnies come scampering from all quarters to hear what Great-grandfather Bobby has to say.

The baby bunnies call Great-grandfather Bobby's ear the hi-ki-yi, which is rabbit for story book. You see, they have no books as you have, and they believe that Great-grandfather Bobby gets the tales in some strange way from his ear.

"Great-grandfather Bobby," one will ask, "why is it that my tail is so very short and my ears are so very long?"

Up goes the paw and down comes the hi-ki-yi. Great-grandfather Bobby has told the story a hundred times, but he does not seem to mind repeating it.

"It was this way, Sonny Bunny," he always begins the same way, except when it is a little girl bunny he says Sis Bunny instead of Sonny Bunny.

It is just because the very first bunny who came hippity hop into Bunnyland was too vain.

He had fine long ears like yours and his tail was bushy and long and flat; that is what caused all the trouble; it was such a splendid tail that Buster Bunny—that was his name—began to boast to his neighbors about it.

Next door to him, in Hollow Tree House, lived Squinky Squirrel who was just the same color as Buster, but, of course, he was much smaller and had neat little ears and a tail to match.

He was a good-natured, happy little fellow, and went whisking, frisking about his work and play. He and Buster became good friends, but always Buster teased Squinky about his short ears and tail to match!

Why didn't he have a long, handsome tail, such as he had? and Buster would hippity hop away through the woods to show off his graceful tail.

One day Squinky got real angry; he had heard quite enough about his neighbor's fine ears and tail. Besides, it made him feel badly; he had always longed for just such a long, curling tail but had never made himself unhappy over it. Now, no matter where he met Buster he was reminded of his homely, stumpy tail.

With a shriek of anger he darted at Buster—and if ever Buster needed all the hippity and hoppity in his four legs, it was right then!

Away they went toward Bunny Bungalow. Squinky was no longer his happy, whisking, frisking self—he ran with all his might, determined to punish his boastful friend.

My, but Buster did get tired, darting over rocks and logs and through bushes. But always Squinky was near his heels. He had to keep his precious tail laid flat on his back to keep the angry Squinky from tweaking it!

When he thought he could not go any farther or faster Buster would remember vividly that Squinky's teeth were sharp enough to crack nuts with and that his paws ended in the pointiest sort of claws and he would keep hopping and panting. By that time the hippity was all gone from his legs. Seeing he was nearly home he dashed madly around a rough stump and as he went on, felt a great twinge of pain, but he never paused until he heard a queer, glad-sounding shout from Squinky.

His tail was hurting him and he wanted to see what made Squinky so happy. Turning his head he was shocked to see only a bit of his tail and it was white as the snow he loved to play in!

He forgot his weariness and hopped and hopped this way and that, to get a better view of himself—but his handsome tail was gone!

His big, round eyes grew bigger and rounder, when, in answer to Squinky's eager voice, he beheld the beautiful, bushy end of his tail being borne triumphantly off by his neighbor with the despised stump of a tail!

Then he knew just what had happened; in passing quickly around the stump, his flat tail had become wedged tightly in a crack and in his wild effort to reach his door, it had been jerked rudely off!

It was a sorry bunny that, over his shoulder, regarded the remaining homely stump of his once boasted bushy tail, and a sorrier one still who, a week later, was greeted by his neighbor Squinky, proudly wearing his own lovely, long tail!

Now he thought he knew how his friend had felt before, but it was too late to mend matters.

Squinky had carefully and gleefully carried home the severed tail, and though it hurt him badly, had coaxed his mother to sew it to his own poor one. Mother Squirrel had tacked it firmly with a thorn needle and a fibre thread. It was there to stay, Squinky said.

You may be sure there was no more chaffing about tails after that, for the new owner of the tail felt sorry for Buster.

"And why are our tails regular cotton balls?" begs Sis Bunny, though she knows quite well.

"Buster always said he thought his fear of Squinky that day had turned it—white—as—snow!"

Every bunny, with his finger on his lip, tiptoes softly away.

Great-grandfather Bobby is fast asleep!—Christian Guardian.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas, God in His infinite wisdom has seen fit to remove from our midst our beloved brother and classmate, Heman R. Hall, we, the members of the Wesley Bible class of Hay Street Methodist church, do go on record as follows:

That we have lost an esteemed friend, a man faithful in all things and constant in the performances of his duty, a Christian whose constant presence in our midst leaves a place not soon to be filled.

Further, we do resolve that a copy of these resolutions be spread upon our minutes, mailed to the bereaved family and our church organs that the public may know that our class is the loser in this instance, though it is but God gathering in His own.

Respectfully submitted,

DOZIER—William Riley Dozier was born in Pasquotank county, N. C., August 24, 1857. In childhood he moved to Camden county, where he spent the remainder of his life. For ten years he was register of deeds for Camden county. For sixteen years he was postmaster at South Mills, N. C. In early life he joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, at McBride's church on Camden circuit. Later he transferred his membership to Trinity church at South Mills, where it remained till his death. He served as steward in both of those churches. For many years he was a trustee of both churches, and also of the parsonage, holding all those positions at the time of his death. For some years, and at the time of his death, he had charge of the Chamberlain fund at McBride's church. He was the Centenary treasurer for his church, and also for the South Mills circuit. He was a modest, quiet, unassuming man. The people had confidence in him.

November 25, 1891, he was married to Miss Sarah F. Etheridge, who with four children, R. C. and W. R. Dozier, of Portsmouth, Va., Mrs. F. M. Jones and Helen Dozier, of South Mills, N. C., survive him. During the last year of his life it was my privilege to visit him many times, and a number of times to pray with him. He went toward life's sunset trusting in God through Jesus Christ. Friday, January 26, 1923, he reached the end of his life in this world. Sunday afternoon, January 28th, in Trinity church at South Mills, in the presence of a vast crowd that more than filled the church, this writer, assisted by Rev. Mr. Harrell, of the Baptist church, conducted the funeral service, after which in the burying ground not far away his wasted body was laid to rest. May God bless his widow and children.
L. M. Chaffin.

BELL—Christopher C. Bell was born near Wildwood, Carteret county, June 23, 1849, and died at his home at North Harlowe October 11, 1922. In 1871 he moved from his old home near Wildwood to Harlowe, where he joined the church the next year, and three years later, 1875, was converted. After helping to build Oak Grove church in 1882 he moved his membership there, with that of his family, and was a faithful steward of that church until a few years ago.

On January 1, 1874, he married Mrs. S. J. Harris. Seven children were born to this union, four daughters and three sons; three of whom, two sons and a daughter, have gone on before. Surviving him are his saintly and aged widow; three daughters, Mrs. J. O. Barbour of Beaufort, N. C., Mrs. E. H. Connor of Jacksonville, N. C., Miss Bertha D. Bell of North Harlowe, N. C.; one son, G. Everett Bell of North Harlowe, N. C.; one brother, George W. S. Bell of Jacksonville, Fla.; two sisters, Mrs. Joseph Long and Mrs. Joseph Hales, both of Morehead City; one step-son, W. L. Harris, of Blades, N. C., and twelve grandchildren.

Brother Bell lived a consecrated Christian life from the time of his conversion until the end. His home life was beautiful in its simplicity and sweetness. In his home his pastor always found one, and around his fireside there was ever a hearty welcome for relatives, friends and strangers. By his death his church lost a faithful worker and his community one of its noblemen. We that knew him loved him, and our tears of grief and sympathy mingled with the tears of those nearest him by ties of blood at the passing of this devoted follower of the meek and lowly Carpenter of Nazareth.

One Who Loved Him.

There is also to be built new Sunday schools at Whitakers. Rev. J. C. Humble is the pastor and Mrs. L. L. Draughon the superintendent.

Rev. H. B. Porter said there is a need for Sunday school rooms at Warrenton, that a building project was being talked, and he hoped to get the needed equipment before long.

MOREHEAD CITY TO BUILD

Morehead City has definitely decided to build a thoroughly departmental Sunday school building, according to Rev. W. A. Cade, the pastor. It will have a capacity of 500 pupils. The architectural department of our church is being engaged to help draft the plans.

DR. FEW TO GENERAL BOARD

Dr. W. P. Few, president of Trinity College, attended a meeting of the General Sunday School Board in Nashville, Tenn., last week. Dr. Few has been a member of this board for a number of years and in the capacity of this membership and as head of this great college is making a big contribution to the cause of religious education.

PROF. WILSON IS WORKING

Prof. R. N. Wilson, district secretary of the Durham district, is doing a splendid work for our Sunday schools. Last week he taught a course in "Sunday School Organization and Administration" in our Alamance Standard Training School, in addition to carrying on his regular work at Trinity College. He and the writer rode the trains back and forth each morning and evening, working in the training school at night and in the class room, laboratory, and office during the day. Next Sunday he will be with Rev. Lindsay Frazier and his workers of the Burlington circuit in a Four-Times-a-Year Circuit Institute. The following day, May 6, he will have part in a Sunday school program at Salem church, Hurdle Mills.

HAS EIGHT WESLEY CLASSES

The Sunday schools of Oriental circuit believe in organized classes. They believe, also, in the great Methodist class organization, the great Wesley Brotherhood. They believe in encouraging class loyalty and class activities. Rev. O. P. Fitzgerald, the pastor, at the recent district conference at Mt. Olive, reported eight Wesley classes, with three more soon to be organized.

MIDDLEBURG AND PROVIDENCE

Mr. E. S. Yarbrough, district secretary of the Weldon district, was at Middleburg Sunday morning, April 8, made a Sunday school talk, and presented Program of Work "C." He was pleased to find an excellent corps of officers and teachers, which, he says, will adopt the Program of Work and work toward its points. They also expect to provide screens to separate classes during the lesson period. In the afternoon he was at Providence on the Warren charge, a country school in the hands of a good superintendent, Mr. F. P. Bowden. "This school," says Mr. Yarbrough, "is above the average of the country school."

WHY DRUGS FAIL

Many chronic diseases fail to respond to drug treatment, even in the hands of the best physicians, whereas acute diseases usually respond readily. When a disease has become chronic, drugs often seem to do as much harm as they do good, for the system rebels against them. It is just this class of cases which derive the greatest benefit from drinking Shivar, America's best stomach, liver and kidney water. If you suffer with chronic dyspepsia, indigestion, sick headache, rheumatism, kidney or liver disease, uric acid poisoning or other curable conditions due to impure blood do not hesitate to accept the Spring's liberal offer as printed below. Their records show that only two in a hundred, on the average, have reported "no benefit." This is a wonderful record from a truly wonderful Spring. Sign the following letter:

Shivar Springs,
Box 4H, Shelton, S. C.

Gentlemen:

I accept your offer and enclose herewith three dollars for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Water. I agree to give it a fair trial, in accordance with instructions contained in booklet you will send, and if I report no benefit you agree to refund the price of the water in full upon receipt of the two empty demijohns which I agree to return within a month.

OUR ORPHANAGE WORK

Wakefield High School on the Orphanage diamond and our boys won by a score of 9 to 4. On Friday evening we had a good, wholesome moving picture which we secured from the State Board of Education. On Saturday afternoon many of the old boys and girls witnessed a fine game of baseball at the State College. Saturday night the Senior and Junior girls gave a most interesting play, complimentary to the visiting sons and daughters. Church services were attended by the boys and girls on Sunday morning. At three o'clock in the afternoon a meeting of the Alumni Association was held and seven hundred and fifty dollars were pledged to the Atwater Memorial Building. At the night hour we gave a sacred concert in the Orphanage chapel. Monday morning we had a baseball game between the present team and the visiting boys, score standing 5 to 4 in favor of the present team. The usual picnic dinner was given at Lassiter's mill pond. Monday night's program was in the hands of Senior and Junior boys. They pulled off a great negro minstrel, much to the pleasure of all who attended as well as credit to themselves. By Tuesday noon practically all had returned to school and to their work. It was a great joy to have the dear old boys and girls back home again. Each year we expect the attendance to increase until we have them here for the reunion by the hundreds.

GREENSBORO DISTRICT LOAN FUND

Report of the committee of five appointed by the district conference to make recommendations relative to a loan fund, which was subscribed by different churches and individuals at the Greensboro District Conference on April 5th and 6th, 1923:

We recommend that the five trustees elected for this purpose by this district conference, namely, the Presiding Elder of the district, C. H. Ireland, A. W. Plyler, R. B. Chance and F. N. Tate, be and they are hereby constituted a Board of Trustees to hold and administer the funds raised for the purpose of aiding students who desire to fit themselves for Christian work and efficient service in the church.

We recommend that this board be empowered to pass upon the eligibility of all applicants and that they be required to execute such notes as they deem best for the safeguarding of the aforesaid fund; that the funds be loaned to the borrowers on a note to be signed by him, provided that not more than four per cent interest be charged for the use of same.

We recommend that C. H. Ireland and A. W. Plyler be elected for a term of one year; that F. N. Tate and R. B. Chance be elected for a term of two years; while the Presiding Elder will hold his office by reason of his official position and will, therefore, not be elected by the conference.

We further recommend that these men hold their offices until their successors shall be appointed and that two members of the board be appointed at each session of the district conference in each and every year.

We recommend that the board submit a report to the district conference annually as to the status of the fund and to whom loaned; and that they require each person aided by them to render a report of their work.

We recommend that the board of stewards of each of our churches be requested by the presiding elder to make a provision at the fourth quarterly conference for a sum to be paid such as they are willing to contribute each year, which shall be paid to the treasurer of this fund for the purpose of enlarging it in order to help needy students, and that this be continued until it shall have reached such an amount as to make it sufficient to take care of the needs of those who shall apply to the district for help.

We also suggest that when the borrower shall repay the amount so borrowed with the interest that this amount shall be turned into the treasury of this fund for the purpose of rendering assistance again to some needy student by the lending of this money. Respectively submitted,

C. H. Ireland,
A. W. Plyler,
F. N. Tate,

For the Committee.

The above resolutions were unanimously adopted.

The board, as above mentioned or appointed, met and elected the following officers for the year 1923-24: President, W. F. Mombie, Presiding Elder of the district; vice president, A. W. Plyler; secretary and treasurer, C. H. Ireland.

IN MEMORIAM

KESLER—Mrs. Mary Ann Charlotte Kesler was born October 27, 1837, and departed this life March 8, 1923. She lived to the ripe old age of 86 years, four months and 11 days. She joined the Methodist church at the age of eighteen and was a faithful and consistent member to the end of her pilgrimage here. She leaves six living children, one step-son, one step-daughter, 41 grandchildren, 104 great-grandchildren, and two great-great-grandchildren. Sister Kesler was a woman of sterling Christian character. Those who knew her spoke in the highest terms of her. To know her was a benediction. R. C. Kirk.

GOWAN—Lucy Ann Gowan was born March 27, 1839, died February 13, 1923. She was the mother of four children, three daughters now living and one son dead.

She professed faith in Christ when a small girl and joined the Methodist church and lived a faithful life till God called her home. Her prayers and songs of praise will be greatly missed at Center church. It gave her great pleasure to work for her Master. For two years she was an invalid, and it was a great privilege for anyone to sit by her bedside and talk to her concerning her faith in God. The going away of this good woman will be greatly missed in the church and community. J. B. Fitzgerald.

EVANS—Richard Carroll Evans was born in Manteo, N. C., September 2, 1894, and died in Honolulu, January 23, 1923. His remains were brought to Manteo and the funeral services were conducted by the writer in the Methodist church, assisted by the Rev. Mr. Hines, pastor of the Baptist church here, on March 7th, and we laid his remains to rest in the cemetery of Manteo. He leaves a father, Mr. R. C. Evans, of Manteo, and two brothers, Dennis and Alton Evans, and two sisters, Miss Mabel and Miss Edna Evans, all of Manteo, besides a large concourse of friends to mourn their loss.

Carroll joined the U. S. Navy about eight years ago, re-enlisting at the close of each term, and had recently re-enlisted for a term of four years. During the service he rendered in the navy he had merited distinction and was advanced to official standing. He was highly esteemed and well liked by all who knew him for his quiet life, and he was kind to all. May God comfort the bereaved and sorrowing ones. A. W. Price.

HOWIE—William Cruse Howie of Mecklenburg county, N. C., was born March 16, 1866, and departed this life February 10, 1923.

He was married to Miss Mary Ida Elliott December 25, 1889, and is survived by her and the following children: Mrs. W. A. Yandell of Pineville and Mrs. W. W. Kerr of the Harrison community, H. B. Howie and John Howie of Charlotte, Charles, Emma, Elizabeth, Margaret and William, at home. He is survived by the following brothers: Rev. R. S. Howie of Waynesville, Rev. J. L. Howie of Chicago, and Edward E. Howie of Pineville.

Brother Howie was a faithful member of the Methodist church at Harrison, was a steward and a trustee when the Master called him home. He was one of the best citizens of Mecklenburg county; and no father and mother in this country have reared a brighter, better family of children than Brother and Sister Howie. He was a most lovable man, kind and good to all. He loved his home and his family, his church, his country and his God.

But he is gone. We all miss him so much. We laid his body to rest in the old cemetery at Harrison church to await the coming of our Saviour. "For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with Him" (1 Thes. 4:14). May our dear heavenly Father comfort his sorrowing loved ones, and may they every one meet him in heaven is my humble prayer. T. J. Houck, Pastor.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas, God in His wisdom called to Himself the soul of Sister Mary Neal Latham, therefore be it resolved: First, That we, the members of the Ladies' Aid Society of Washington M. E. Church, South, wish to extend our deepest sympathy to the bereaved husband in his sorrow and to point him to the God she loved and served. Second, That while we shall miss her we rejoice in the hope that it is well with her and that her reward is that of a faithful servant of God.

Third, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to Brother Latham, a copy to the North Carolina Christian Advocate, and a copy be spread upon the minutes of our society.

Mrs. George Watson,
Mrs. Henry Harper,
Mrs. S. T. Snell.

EVANS—John W. Evans was born in Chowan county, N. C., November 8, 1845, and died in a hospital in Newport News, Va., February 28, 1923.

He was married to Miss Rosa A. Brinkley May 24, 1871, who departed from this life September 21, 1898. He leaves four children, namely, Miss Helen Evans of Newport News, Va., Prof. Charles G. Evans of Danville, Va., Mrs. Eva E. Hocutt of Newport News, Va., and Mrs. Ruth L. Dozier of Nashville, N. C.

Brother Evans was a consistent and active member of the Methodist church in Manteo for several years. His name heads the list of the charter members of our church here in Manteo, which was organized February 13, 1888. The funeral services were conducted by the writer in the Methodist church, Manteo, N. C., March 2. May our gracious heavenly Father comfort the bereaved and sorrowing ones.

A. W. Price.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

The subject of this sketch, John D. Ellis, was born in Warren county, N. C., April, 1850, and lived all of his life, being nearly 73, within one mile of his birthplace. On December 23, 1922, the Lord called him to come up higher and thus passed from earth the spirit of our dear brother.

In early manhood he was happily married to Delena White, who preceded him to the better land about four years ago. She bore him eight children, six of whom live to mourn the loss of father and mother.

Brother Ellis joined old Hebron church in the early eighties and ever remained a consistent member of the same. He was for more than 20 years identified with the official body of the church, being at the time of his death a member of the board of stewards.

The church feels keenly the loss of this good man who quietly went about his "Master's business," and to his loved ones and friends we would point them to our heavenly Father who makes no mistakes.

Therefore be it resolved, that a copy of this be spread upon our quarterly conference minutes, a copy sent to the family of the deceased and a copy each to the North Carolina Christian Advocate and the Warren Record for publication.

EASTERLING—Silas A. Easterling was born in Marlboro county, S. C., on the 30th day of December in the year 1878, and departed this life on the 6th day of June, 1922. Brother Easterling and Rachel L. Gibson were happily married September 19th, 1900. To this union were born four children, two girls and two boys: Effie, Bessie, Belton and Paul. Brother Easterling was a member of the Roberdel Methodist church 23 years, was steward 14 years, and superintendent of the Sunday school three years. Brother Easterling was a true man everywhere, a loving and devoted husband, a tender and affectionate father, a noble citizen, and above all a soldier of the Cross. May the great God of all grace sustain his dear companion, comfort his children, and may they with all their relatives meet him again in the heavenly home, where there will be no more separation, no more sorrow, no more sickness, and no more death, is my humble prayer, for Jesus sake. A Friend.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas, God our Father, in His wisdom and love saw fit to remove from our midst the loving wife of J. D. Bobbitt, our beloved brother; therefore be it resolved:

First, That we, the members of the Pearle Mills Sunday School of Durham, North Carolina, feel deeply our loss in her death, but we bow submissively to the will of God, knowing that He doeth all things well. Though she was not permitted to attend the church regularly we felt that she was with us in spirit, and was anxious to do her part in all good works.

Second, To the sorrowing ones we extend our heartfelt sympathy and pray that God whom they serve may be with them in special tenderness in this their hour of great need.

Third, To Brother Rose, in the loss of his mother, we extend our deepest sympathy, praying that God may keep him in His ever abiding love.

Fourth, That a copy of these resolutions we sent to the North Carolina Christian Advocate.

CHRISTMAN — Esther Caroline Christman was born Jan. 31, 1853, departed this life February 26, 1923, age 70 years and 26 days. She married Dobney Christman February, 1873. To this union were born ten children, eight sons and two daughters, nine of whom are living.

Sister Christman professed faith in Christ about the age of thirteen, remaining steadfast in faith until the end. She was a member of home, church and God's devoted companion, mother and neighbor, and was very much loved by her community. The last months of her sojourn here were very great suffering, but she bore the pain patiently and heroically until the Father said, it is enough, come up higher. Sister Christman is gone from among us, but her influence is yet in the world manifesting itself in her noble sons (one of whom is a minister of the gospel) and gentle daughters. May our good Father above comfort, sustain and keep her bereaved companion and children and help them to live that there may be no break in the family circle on the other side. Her pastor, C. C. Tótherow.

HEIGHWAY—On Friday, March 1, 1923, the sad news circulated that the wife of Dr. S. C. Heighway was in a critical condition and at eight o'clock in the evening she passed away.

While Mrs. Heighway had been broken in health for several years and at times her condition had been serious, yet her death was a surprise and shock to many of her friends.

She will be sadly missed in the work of her church, which was very dear to her loyal heart.

The keynote of her life was service, and her example of keeping her lamp trimmed and burning for her Master will ever shine, though her busy hands are folded in death and her weary spirit has gone back to its Creator.

The members of the Woman's Missionary Society would extend to the family their heartfelt sympathy in this dark hour of bereavement and would bring to them the comforting thought that they will not walk in the shadows alone, but will have the sweet companionship of Him who knows how to soothe and sustain the sorrowing heart:

Mrs. John E. Fair,
Mrs. E. B. Norvell,
Mrs. L. P. Kinsey.

GOODSON—Mary Elizabeth Goodson was born November 12, 1841, departed this life March 12, 1923, making her stay on earth 81 years and four months.

She made a profession of religion and united with the M. E. Church, South, in 1865, and lived a consistent Christian life until death. She was married to Albert Goodson February 18, 1865. To this union six children were born, three of which preceded her to the spirit land. Three still survive, G. B. and Charlie Goodson of Lincoln, N. C., and Fannie Goodson of Fort Lauderdale, Florida. All useful citizens. She was a noble woman who loved God and prayed much. She still lives in her sons, who are all Christians. The last son was converted in Miami, Florida, the fourth Sunday night in January of this year. She said when she heard the news of his conversion that she could now die satisfied, her children were all saved. Earth is poorer but heaven richer by her going. But we shall meet again where parting never comes. I. W. Combs.

EDITORIAL PARAGRAPHS

Avarice is the sin of old age. It is a plant that flourishes in the evening time of life. Old men on the margin of "the river" cling tenaciously to the dollar which they cannot take with them. This impressive fact becomes one of the strange anomalies of human conduct. As the physical forces fail and the mental vigor diminishes, the love of money in too many instances becomes a consuming passion. Tottering old age snatching for gold is a pitiable spectacle.

Archibald Johnson speaks right out in meeting when in the last issue of Charity and Children he says: "We hope our prison officials are humane; we are quite sure they are inefficient. We have sufficient ground to make the last statement from what we have seen and heard within the past twelve months. We have little confidence in Dudding, but we are with Mrs. Kate Burr Johnson that the public ought to have assurance that cannot be denied that our prison system is faithfully administered."

"Sober-minded," "High-minded," "Double-minded," "Otherwise-minded," "Carnally-minded," "Spiritually-minded" are hyphenated terms of the Bible which pound in the truth with sledgehammer blows. These are a sort of "Aryil Chorus" from the skies, which have become a classic for right-thinking. And with those come trooping other classic phrases like these, "Mind makes the man"; "As a man thinketh in his heart so is he"; "Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus."

A boy when asked how many gods are there, replied, "An awful mess of them, and they lived on Mount Olympus." This boy had been taught Greek Mythology in the schools but he had not been taught either at home or in the schools the very first principles of the Christian religion. He was a fair product of a pagan home and a pagan school system. It is unspeakably bad for any Christian state to have a school system that gives due attention to the gods of Mount Olympus, but ignores utterly the Christ of Mount Calvary.

"He thanked God and took courage." Who? Paul. Why? Because he was lonely, and loving friends had come out to encourage him with their presence. He was tired and needed someone to bring him a word of cheer. Paul after the long tramp up the Appain way needed encouragement. All of us do on life's journey. Jesus, true to his task of helping mortals, was the great encourager. "Peter, satan is after you with his sifter, but I have prayed that your faith may not fail." "Fear not, little flock; it is your father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom." To give rest to the weary, to comfort the broken hearted, to help those who bear heavy burdens, is an urgent duty of all who walk in the steps of the Master. The world of mankind is in need of sympathy, words of encouragement and good cheer are "like apples of gold in pictures of silver."

Upton Sinclair is not numbered among the saints, but he is a versatile student of modern life and of social conditions and tendencies. Listen to this man as he says a word about the modern dance: "I know what these modern dances mean. They come to us straight from the brothels of the Argentine. Others have come from the jungle, where they were natural. The poor creature of the jungle has his sex desire and nothing else. He is not troubled with brains. He does not have a complicated social organization to build up and protect, consequently he does not need what are called 'morals.' But we civilized people need morals, and we are losing them."

Bishop Mouson truthfully and with great force says: "Protestantism puts the Bible into the hands of every believer, and bids him read for himself. Necessarily, therefore, Protestantism allows large liberty of interpretation. And whoever denies to another this liberty to read the Bible for himself is essentially a Roman Catholic—and he ought to go home." Well said, dear bishop. But, unfortunately, these Romanists within the Protestant fold insist upon becoming a hierarchy of their own with the powers of life and death over those true Protestants who will never surrender the right of private interpretation of the Holy Scriptures.

The last paragraph of the Western Christian Advocate has a paragraph of such pungency on the "hold down minister" that we are glad to give it a wider reading. Here it is: "This hold-down minister, you have met him. He tries one's nerve. He is so cautious. He is so conservative. He is so wise. He is afraid of being too radical. No matter how great the need, he holds down effort. He discourages new undertakings. He sits tight. He works under the feeling that his congregation is getting along as well as could be expected. It has reached about its full development in the community. He can find a dozen reasons for not undertaking a thing that ought to be done and could be done in the name of Jesus Christ. He is marking time and does not know it. He is losing place and is utterly unconscious of it."

Dishonor and dishonesty as related to material holdings have heavy judgments placed upon them in the Word of God. In this connection stands out conspicuously in the Old Testament Achan's wedge of gold and the Babylonish garment. In the New Testament are Annanias and Sapphira who lied about the money they got for their farm. But in each instance defeat and death followed in the wake of such dishonesty and dishonor. The wedge of gold in all ages has been an entering wedge for all manner of unholy practices, but the judgments of Almighty God invariably rest upon such practices. Our God is altogether righteous and will have no unethical religion. "Justice and judgment are the habitation of His throne." The greatest single verse of the Old Testament is this: "And what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God."

DR. R. C. BEAMAN DENOUNCES MOB VIOLENCE

The recent outrages committed in Robeson county when two defenseless women were taken from their homes at night and whipped upon the naked flesh by a hooded mob, called out the fiercest invectives of Dr. R. C. Beaman in a sermon last Sunday morning in his church at Lumberton. Among other things, according to the Robesonian, "Dr. Beaman strongly denounced the recent outrage that has brought shame upon Robeson county. After referring to the world war, the liquor traffic and other conditions the world over which tend to drag the world back to an uncivilized state, he exclaimed:

"Is Robeson county civilized? Not when hooded men drag defenceless women from their homes and beat them cruelly on their naked flesh; not when men try to take the law into their own hands. We must have the protection of the law. Law enforcement cannot be in the hands of private citizens. Is Florida civilized, with recently-revealed conditions in her prison camps?

"That is the spirit that would wreck all civilization.

"There is not a spot ten miles square on God's green earth where Jesus is followed absolutely and loyally, but thank God we are marching on and Jesus leads the way, in spite of mob violence."

All honor to R. C. Beaman who dares to speak out, as every true minister should under such circumstances. It is time that the Christian ministry and the Christian church should take such a decided stand against hooded mobs and all other forms of lawlessness as will put an end to these things which threaten the stability of our civilization.

NINE BOYS AND FIVE GIRLS

The Wilkesboro high school this year had nine boys and five girls in its graduating class. When has a high school class in North Carolina before this had such a big majority of boys composing its membership?

It was our pleasure last Sunday morning to preach to this unusual class in the capital of the "State of Wilkes."

With Prof. Ralph Weaver as principal this has been a successful year for the Wilkesboro school and with the new building completed by the opening of the next term the coming year promises even greater things.

Prof. Weaver is greatly impressed with the musical talent he finds among the young people of that section, especially among the young men. But their talents are not limited to music. There is a great future ahead of Wilkes county.

THE EDITOR OF THE ROBESONIAN

J. A. Sharpe is the editor of the Robesonian. We knew him in the long ago at Trinity College. A fine lad was "John Sharpe," as the boys called him. He is a son of Rev. V. A. Sharpe for almost fifty years an itinerant Methodist preacher who went to heaven in 1895, and who was one of the great and good men of the North Carolina conference.

This son is proving worthy of his honored father. The testimony of this man as to the cruelty of the mob that beat the women in Robeson county should be read by the citizenship of North Carolina in order that they may know what has taken place within the borders of our state. Among other things he says:

"The editor of The Robsonian is prepared to swear that he has never seen a sight so shocking as the marks of violence left upon these women. He has never seen flesh of a human being, nay, he has never seen flesh of a dumb brute, which bore the marks of such a cruel beating. The wonder is that the women were able to walk home. And then consider for a moment the fiendishness of the brute who when one of the women felt that she could not walk further, remarked that maybe a few more lashes would help her along! Such marks of violence as make the blood run cold with horror and then burn with shame and boil with hot anger against cruelty and cowardice skulking in the name of order and decency and doing deeds that would delight the heart of a savage!"

A RAINY DAY IN CATAWBA

Have you ever been to Ball's Creek Camp Ground? Have you ever met the Reverend Theodore W. Hager? If you have not you have at least two things that are worth while to live for. Ball's Creek Camp Ground was established in 1854 and is located in Catawba county about nine miles east of Newton. Since the time of the establishment of this old historic place there has not been a year that camp meeting has not been held under the old arbor. The land was given by some friends of the cause and vested in a self-perpetuating board of trustees. When the property ceases to be used as a camp ground it reverts to the heirs of the donors. The camp ground is located on a beautiful knoll, surrounded by an original forest of oak and pine. In the center of two and one-half rows of tents which completely encircle the grounds is a mammoth arbor which will seat something like two thousand people, but this will not begin to accommodate the immense crowds that flock there each fourth Sunday in August. Down under the hill are two of the most beautiful springs that we have seen anywhere. The trustees have taken good care of these. They will hold about five hundred gallons of water each and are cemented from top to bottom. From one of these springs five pipes extend. One of them is known by all the people in that section as the Methodist pipe, one as the Lutheran, one as the Baptist, one as the Presbyterian and the other as the German Reformed. We asked if each denomination used his own pipe and received an affirmative answer. We do not know whether this is true, but we do know that all get good water and from the same fountain. The good people of that section are expecting a great camp meeting this year.

But back to Brother Hager. This itinerant was sent to Ball's Creek charge by Bishop Denny at the last session of the Western North Carolina conference. He has taken charge with vigor and determination, and the people have fallen in line with him and they are all pulling together and results are already being enjoyed. The congregations are increasing all over the work, the Sunday schools are growing, salaries are being paid better than ever, one new church is planned, the parsonage lot has been beautified and all are rejoicing together. The pastor and his good family have been the victims of five very severe poundings—not the kind that Whipping Boss Higgenbotham administered, but the kind that makes a preacher and his family feel good. The fact of the case is Hager is very popular over on the Ball's Creek charge. We would advise Brother Litaaker to watch him closely at conference. There are about ten other elders who are looking for a man just like Hager.

The business manager of the Advocate was to have preached at the Fifth Sunday Charge Sunday School Institute last Sunday, but it rained in torrents and the people could not get there, hence it was impossible to carry out the program. But we attended Sunday school at Center and held a service of prayer under the arbor.

That charge, under the leadership of Brother Hager, is pushing the Advocate campaign and before the first of June will be up among the leaders.

NO CLOSE COMMUNION IN HEAVEN

"Do you suppose that in heaven when communion is celebrated that John Calvin, John Knox, John and Charles Wesley and other great leaders in the non-Baptist world will be denied the privilege of sitting with Baptists?"

This is the question that Dr. Cornelius Woolfkin, the pastor of John D. Rockefeller's church in New York City, otherwise known as Park Avenue Baptist church, propounds to his Baptist brethren in arguing against the Baptist practice of excluding members of other churches from their communion table.

We Methodists can promptly answer this Baptist parson by declaring that Calvin, Knox, and the Wesleys will commune with Baptists in heaven and we could do it down here if invited. Dr. Woolfkin here is our hand, as "thy heart is with our heart."

"A SECOND DANIEL COME TO JUDGMENT"

Judge W. F. Harding is a just judge who hates unrighteousness. And he does not hesitate to speak out against wrong whether it's done under cover of law or without law. Judge Harding is skilled also at putting the probe in the rotten spot.

His latest protest is against that specie of highway robbery practiced by some magistrates who at the instigation of a constable or deputy sheriff issues a warrant for an alleged speeding autoist and sends by mail an order to pay a stipulated amount so that the case can be dropped.

The strictures upon such procedure was called out by Judge Harding's having before him in Greensboro court last Monday an application for a writ of habeas corpus for a young man who had been ordered to send $18 to a section of the state where this defendant had never visited but from which the warrant charged him with speeding. The writ was granted. Good for this righteous judge who hates robbery under cover of law.

NOW FOR A UNITED EFFORT

In looking over the final reports of the eminently successful campaigns for the Advocate, both last year and the year before, we find that quite a number of pastoral charges made a very poor showing each year. Some others showed up well one year and did little in the other campaign. While the rest did well both years. It is not our purpose here to explain why. We simply state the fact.

What will be the final showing this year on the last day of May when the campaign closes?

We cannot answer, even though the date is close at hand. You can. What is going to be the answer for your charge, for your church at the end of this month? It will all depend upon whether the pastor and other leaders of the church put in a little enthusiastic work for the Advocate. In almost every instance where the North Carolina Christian Advocate is presented wisely and with enthusiasm the response is most gratifying. As in other years we are expecting a great response in the campaign that is now hastening to a close. Let's have a big report from each and every charge.

REV. G. D. LANGSTON IS DEAD

Rev. G. D. Langston, a superannuate of the North Carolina conference, died at his home in West Durham Friday, April 27, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. He was 77 years old. During his prolonged illness of several months, he had suffered intensely, but the end was peace. In the language of Rev. J. W. Bradley, who notified us of his death, "he simply went to sleep."

The funeral services were held Saturday afternoon in the West Durham Methodist church and his body was laid to rest in the Durham cemetery.

Brother Langston was a well known and honored minister who had been a member of the North Carolina conference since 1890. His ministry extended over a stretch of fifty years, but he did not join the conference till 1890.

His early life was spent in Wayne county. At the beginning of the Civil War he joined the Junior Reserves and soon became a sergeant in the company. At the age of 18 he became a member of Company I, Seventh N. C. Calvary, in which he served till the end of the war. Soon after his return home from the war he entered the ministry.

During his itinerant ministry he served churches in Durham, Wilmington, Henderson, Manteo, Graham, Mt. Olive, and other places in the North Carolina conference.

In 1868 he married Miss Sallis Giles of Beaufort county, who with five children survive him. The two sons are Col. J. D. Langston and Mr. W. H. Langston of Goldsboro. The daughters are Mrs. H. J. Elmore of Rocky Mount, Mrs. Fred Thomas of Durham, and Mrs. E. R. Thomas of Durham.

Some comrade of his in the itinerancy who enjoyed the high privilege of knowing Brother Langston intimately will prepare for the Advocate a fitting sketch of the long and useful life of this good man.

PEOPLE AND THINGS

Western North Carolina Conference, October 17.
North Carolina Conference, November 14.

Rev. S. T. Barber of Ahoskie is in town for a few days with his family, which has not yet moved to Ahoskie.

Rev. A. C. Gibbs, pastor at Thomasville, will preach the annual sermon May 20 for the city schools of Smithfield, N. C.

Rev. A. P. Ratledge will begin a meeting next Sunday in his church at Elkin. Rev. J. H. Barnhardt of Greensboro will assist in these services.

Rev. H. H. Robbins of Park Avenue church, Salisbury, is in the midst of an excellent revival. He is being assisted by Rev. R. O. Eller of Salem.

Rev. R. E. Pittman has Rev. L. B. Pattishall assisting him in a meeting at LaGrange with prospects of fine results.

The next General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church will meet in Springfield, Mass. It has been 72 years since the General Conference was held in New England.

Beginning the second Sunday in May, Rev. C. S. Kirkpatrick will be with Rev. W. M. Robbins, the pastor, in a meeting at Lake Junaluska. The meeting is expected to continue ten days.

Miss Annie Maie Hatch of Mt. Olive, N. C., and Mr. William E. Raper of Lexington, N. C., were married last Wednesday evening in the Methodist church at Mt. Olive. Rev. G. B. Starling officiated.

Married, at the parsonage at Polkville, Sunday, April 29th, Mr. L. E. Jenkins to Miss Cora Brooks, and Mr. Fred Grigg to Miss Carrie Brooks. The brides are sisters and the grooms cousins. Rev. E. M. Avett officiated.

Dr. G. T. Rowe of Nashville, Tenn., begins a revival meeting with Rev. J. F. Kirk and his congregation at First church, Salisbury, next Sunday. It is needless to say that the entire city is interested in this announcement.

Evangelist John Brown will begin a three weeks' meeting in Reidsville May 6. The services will be held in the Pinnix warehouse and there are six members of the evangelistic party. Reidsville is looking forward to a great evangelistic campaign.

Rev. M. A. Osborne of Epworth, Concord, preached for Rev. J. Frank Armstrong at Forest Hill church last Sunday night. Rev. W. A. Rollins preached for Brother Osborne and Brother Armstrong preached at the First Baptist church in Salisbury.

Rev. J. W. Moore began a revival last Sunday at the Broad Street church, Statesville. Rev. W. W. Peele, pastor of Edenton Street church, Raleigh, will do the preaching and the Wisdom Sisters will sing. The meeting will continue ten days or two weeks.

Asheboro has been given back its "e" by the Postoffice department, according to the postal guide. Several years ago somebody cut out the letter that belonged between "h" and "b" and the department much to the regret of some citizens of that town wrote it Ashboro. But that wrong has been righted, we are glad to report.

Mt. Olivet church on the Concord circuit enjoyed a fine illustrated lecture on Friday night of last week and again on Saturday night. These lectures were given by Rev. W. A. Jenkins of Central church. Saturday was a high day, too. It was the quarterly meeting occasion and in addition to the great sermon by the presiding elder, Dr. T. F. Marr, Attorney John M. Oglesby of Concord, J. F. Shinn of Norwood and Supt. C. H. Reep of Albemarle made interesting addresses. It was an all day affair with dinner on the grounds.

Rev. D. H. Tuttle is preaching this week for Rev. R. M. Tuttle at Centenary, Greensboro. The services are largely attended and Brother Tuttle's preaching is excellent. Rich in Christian experience, a close student of the Bible, he speaks with the authority of one who knows. To believe a thing with all his heart and to speak with the enthusiasm of youth are gifts of his that not only insure a hearing, but helps the people who hear. Centenary is fortunate to have the privilege of hearing this consecrated minister.

Mr. Clarence Register of Castle Hayne, N. C., and Miss Daisy Lee Ottoway of Holly Ridge, N. C., were married at the residence of Mr. B. G. Rhodes, 108 1-2 S. Front street, Wilmington, N. C. April 27, 1923, Rev. E. C. Sell of Goldston, N. C., officiating.

Rev. J. C. Gentry, pastor of the Morganton circuit, says: "The folks up here are beginning to see that they cannot get along without the Advocate. I may not be able to visit the homes of my people as often as they should be visited, but I am making an effort to have our paper do some of the visiting that it is not possible for me to do, namely, a visit to every home ONCE-A-WEEK."

Rev. T. P. Jimison of Spencer passed through Greensboro Monday on his way to Gibsonville to assist Rev. G. W. Clay in a meeting. Sunday he received three into the church and has 12 others to receive a little later. A drive is to be put on by the Spencer Methodists May 15, to pay off the indebtedness on their new church. They are going in expecting to clear it all off. The two weeks' meeting that Brother Jimison held some time ago was most successful. Fifty were converted on the last night of the meeting.

Rev. J. A. Cook and his youngest daughter, Mary, a charming young girl of sixteen, was in the Advocate office Tuesday on their return from Randleman, a former charge, to Mount Airy. Brother Cook has the walls of a church half up at New Hebron and a new church is being erected at Brown's Springs. Plans are being drawn for the $20,000 church at Salem, two and a half miles from Mt. Airy. This is the home church among other preachers of Walter S. Creasy and Robt. M. Taylor, of precious memory, and of R. G. Satterfield, the associate editor of the Nashville Christian Advocate.

Dr. Wilbur F. Tillett, A.M., D.D., LL. D., professor in the School of Religion, Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn., will deliver the MacDonald Lectures this year at the Scarritt Bible and Training School, April 21-26. General theme: The Paths that Lead to God. (1) God, Who is He? What is He? Where is He? 4:30 p. m., Sunday April 22. (2) Through Nature to God, 8 p. m., Monday, April 23. (3) Through Man to God, 8 p. m., Tuesday, April 24. (4) Through the Bible to God, 8 p. m., Wednesday, April 25. (5) Through Christ to God, 8 p. m., Thursday, April 26.

Rev. S. M. Needham, pastor of the Wilkesboro station, suffered a serious injury the night of April 14 while driving from Winston-Salem to his home in Wilkesboro, when the radius rod of his car broke and having lost control of the car it turned round, rolled down the bank and turned over, crushing his right foot, sprained his knee and injured some of the muscles of his thigh. His foot is still in a plaster cast, pains him quite a little and will not be well for several weeks. The people of Wilkesboro are exceedingly kind to him in the midst of his troubles. He was pounded to such extent a few nights ago that the parsonage for some weeks will be independent of a grocery store. The congregation is greatly pleased with their pastor and his family. Their praises are upon the tongues of the people irrespective of church relations.

The Daily Sentinel of Winston-Salem carries in a recent issue an extended story of historical value in which is given an account of the burning of the note which wipes out the present indebtedness and with this a history of the church since its establishment in 1892. The pastors who have served this charge include Revs. W. M. Curtis, J. A. B. Fry, W. H. Willis, J. H. Barnhardt, J. F. Kirk, W. M. Robbins (twice appointed), L. W. Collins, R. E. Atkinson, J. S. Hiatt, T. P. Jimison and the present pastor, Rev. E. E. Williamson. Grace was organized with 35 members. The church now has about 450. Leon Cash was the man to whom fell the honor of applying the match to the mortgage not to burn it entirely but to burn off one corner and leave this maimed document to lie in the archives of the church as a memorial of the day when this congregation passed out of the bondage of debt into the promised land of freedom. Hiatt, a former pastor of the church, seemed to have been the Miriam of the occasion as he talked of deliverance from "dirt, debt and the devil." The principal address of the occasion was by H. R. Dwire, who spoke aptly and well. To Rev. E. E. Williamson, the pastor, who has led in the campaign to clear the debt, is due a large measure of praise. He presided upon this happy occasion last Sunday afternoon.

We have a number of these good people on our waiting list. If you want to make some one happy for 12 months send us $2.00, and we will select some one to receive the benefit of your generosity.

That fine Centenary congregation, Winston-Salem, mailed the Advocate a check for $20, and Mr. Mason W. Gantt, clerk of superior court, Guilford county, handed us one for $5 to be used in sending the Advocate to those who are unable to pay for it, but are anxious to read it.

Rev. L. B. Hayes has returned from Elizabeth City, where he assisted Rev. H. E. Meyers in a meeting at City Roads church. It was a simultaneous revival for the churches of the city. Dr. E. K. McLarty did the preaching at First church for Dr. N. H. D. Wilson. Brother Hayes reports good results.

Rev. H. A. Chester, Laurel Springs charge, writes: "We have been working on the Advocate and have got renewals and new subscriptions. We are finishing one of the churches on this charge and getting ready to build a new parsonage. We are expecting to have the parsonage ready for the preacher to move in after conference."

The Shelby district conference elected the following as delegates to the annual conference: T. F. Cline, A. E. Elmore, L. A. Jackson, W. L. C. Killian, Mrs. P. L. Hennessee, C. S. Lee, F. C. Todd and C. B. Goodson. Alternates: H. B. Sellars, W. N. Davis, Mrs. B. T. Morris and W. L. Tucker. The next session of the conference goes to Polkville. The licensing committee was elected as follows: W. A. Lambeth, J. W. Vick, A. S. Raper and D. W. Brown.

Rev. B. E. Stanfield passed through Greensboro last Friday on his way to High Point to purchase pews and furnishings for one of his churches on the Jonesboro circuit. Brother Stanfield has wrought wonders on that charge. To enlarge, rebuild and repair churches has been the order of the day since the arrival of this itinerant upon that important field. North Carolina Methodism has no more effective minister than B. E. Stanfield.

CHAIRMAN EDUCATIONAL COMMITTEE

A few weeks ago I wrote the pastors of the North Carolina conference, asking them to give me the chairman of the Educational committee at each church. So far, I have heard from sixty of the pastors, leaving about three-fourths of them which I have not heard. It is quite important that I have this information, so I am asking all pastors to please have these committees appointed at each church and send me the names of the chairmen.

H. M. North,
Rocky Mount, N. C.

BIG MEETING AT CHARLOTTE FOR LAY ACTIVITY

The Mecklenburg County Board of Lay Activities has planned a great public meeting at Tryon Street M. E. church, Charlotte, on Sunday, May 6th, at 3 p. m., at which time there will be a great musical program in addition to the addresses to be delivered. Rev. J. B. Craven, presiding elder, will conduct the devotional services. D. E. Henderson, county chairman, will preside. Mr. E. A. Cole, district chairman, will present Rev. T. F. Higgins, who will deliver a ten-minute address on the pastor's need of active laymen. Rev. H. G. Hardin will present Hon. Clyde R. Hoey of Shelby, who will deliver a twenty-minute address on what laymen can do for the church.

They are planning one of the best musical programs ever offered in a church in Charlotte, which is as follows:

A large orchestra, directed by Mr. A. D. LaJoie; the Carolina Concert Club, directed by Mrs. Coral Hader Baker at the piano; the Trinity Quartette, directed by Mrs. Powell; the junior and senior choirs of Hawthorne Lane church, directed by Mr. C. A. McIlvane; the congregation, directed by Mr. Henry Benoit, and the Tryon Street choir, directed by Mr. Eugene Craft. In addition to the special numbers they are going to sing some of the old-time Methodist hymns, everybody joining in.

All Methodist laymen, both men and women in the county, including Bethel charge, in Cabarrus county, and their friends, are invited to be present on time.

We are receiving a number of letters thanking us for extending the Advocate campaign.

WATCHES AND CHURCH EXTENSION

At a meeting of representatives of Conference Boards of Church Extension, held in Louisville, Ky., April 24, 1923, Rev. J. H. Barnhardt of the Western North Carolina Conference, at the closing banquet meeting, responded as follows to the toast:

"Tis with our Judgments as our Watches—None Go Just Alike, Yet Each Believes His Own."
—Pope.

The natural gait of some of these freak time-keepers is heart rending. Doubtless you have heard of the clock of the gentleman who said that when the hands pointed at three, it struck nine, and then he knew it was half past six. There's a lot in knowing how to tell time in spite of the clock. Or maybe you have digested your dinner in some remote period of your life by chuckling over the story when it was fresh and you were young, of the man who was awakened early one morning by the clock on the mantle striking one hundred and three times. He called his wife and said: "Mandy, wake up and git up; it's the latest I ever knowed it to be."

We are talking about those useful and necessary timepieces which we carry around with us every day, and to which we fasten our fraternity emblems and college medals. No well dressed person would think of going out on the street immodestly unadorned by that indispensable article of apparel. And so acute is our sense of need at this point that very early in life we usually launch a campaign the objective of which is to furnish ourselves at least with an Ingersoll or a Waterbury. There may have come into your collection of stories the one in which the young son of the family is represented as begging his father to give him a watch until the insistence of his appeal brought down upon his head the paternal wrath. He was forbidden to mention the subject again under penalty of dire punishment. That day, as the family was seated about the dinner table, the father called upon each member as usual to repeat an appropriate verse of Scripture. When it came Willie's time, he bowed his head in mock reverence and shot a curve over the base which struck the old man out: "What I say unto you, I say unto all—WATCH."

One of the points in favor of a watch is its availability. It can be carried around and consulted at will. It is serviceable in your pocket, but right much of a nuisance in any other position. Nobody wants to get up and run to the mantel to consult a timepiece. A clock would soon be substituted. But a clock would be a sorry piece of furniture to carry around on one's shoulder. Dr. Joseph Parker, the famous London preacher, gave a striking illustration in which he took a complaining watch which objected to its modest, obscure surroundings, and put in the place of "Big Ben" high up in the Victorian Tower which crowns the stately Parliament building. It was not long until the little thing, which could not even be seen at such an altitude, begged its owner to put it back into his pocket.

There is this peculiarity about watches: they are said by jewelers to partake of the habits of their owners. It is said that the watches of some preachers never run down.

Service is the great watchword. The question arises: Why carry a watch at all unless you can trust it? Even though it should be readily accessible, suppose it is unreliable as a time keeper? If it doesn't keep time, have it regulated. Even then it may vary from the truth, for watches display some very humanlike qualities; but, even at that it is practically correct and should be trusted in a pinch.

We have come here to talk Church Extension. We bring to our consideration of the subject a great variety of individual standards of opinion and judgment, growing out of our contact with the real conditions which greet us from the several sections of our far-flung connectional territory. None of us have all wisdom; we are sincere, but not perfect; our ideals may be at fault in some measure; we do not see alike on all questions because our standards are not the same. And yet, in the main, our movements are all in the same general direction, and our love for the church is identical. We want to serve her to the best possible advantage. And so we come here to the great central observatory, so to speak, that we may check up our individual opinions and judgments and compare them with the corporate judgment of the church at large, which is to be our standard of action, and regulate our little "biscuits," if necessary, to conform to the central mechanism of the department as determined by the General Conference which is the governing body of our Methodism. It has been a most delightful day which we have spent together, and one which indicates the closest co-operation among all our forces within the quadrennium in doing the great things committed into our hands. The splendid spirit of brotherly kindness and the deep Christian fellowship which have actuated all our deliberations speak in terms of prophecy concerning the success of our task in the future days.

But when I got here I found that some of you men from the west were running from one to two hours behind us in the east. I hadn't traveled two hundred miles in this direction until I had to set my watch back a whole hour, and slow down to your gait. I didn't want to do it; I just knew my watch ought not to be tampered with at all, but in the interest of harmony I had to do it. I didn't want to get to Louisville and find everybody out of step except myself, like Bridget remarked about Pat who was marching in the military parade.

It isn't necessary for me to take your time to enforce the tremendously vital work of Church Extension in our economy. Methodism must be adequately housed before we can function in any department of our work. It is undoubtedly true that our task has been unwittingly obscured in some measure by the very success of other companion interests which have received the full attention of the church in recent years. And we find ourselves embarrassed because the demand for service is so greatly in excess of the resources the church has put into our hands with which to do the fundamental thing of building. We men in the field are constantly up against the seamy side of administration. Charged with the duty of safeguarding all funds committed into our hands, often misunderstood by the brethren, and faced by constant insufficiency of funds, we often keep company with the great apostle in one respect at least, who represented himself in various kinds of perils and journeyings to the point of martyrdom. We are very much in the position of the Methodist layman who was called upon to make a speech in an Episcopal church. Before entering the pulpit the rector asked him if he would wear a surplice. He replied: "No, I believe I prefer to speak in ordinary men's clothes. Besides, I am a Methodist, and Methodists don't know anything about a surplus; all they are acquainted with is a deficit."

True, we conference board men have sometimes felt toward the general offices very much like the Irishman did about the pair of lawyers whom the court had appointed to defend him before the bar upon a charge of grand larceny. After consulting with the attorneys for awhile, he arose and, addressing the court, asked if he might not swap one of the lawyers for a witness. But then you, too, may have been in the notion, if the truth were told, to trade some of us off for a pair of jack rabbits.

Well, your watch says my time is up; and, while I don't believe it, I'm going to stop anyway just to be courteous.

WHY SHOULD OUR YOUNG WOMEN ATTEND A CHRISTIAN COLLEGE?

Mrs. Lucy H. Robertson, Professor Religious Education, Greensboro College.

The above question is one of such vital importance, having such a far-reaching influence upon the three great factors of our civilization, the home, the church, and the state, that it calls for the most profound consideration of parents, educators, and, indeed, all who have at heart the future welfare of these three great institutions which form the foundation upon which rests the entire structure of human society.

When we remember that our girls enter college at the most impressionable period of their lives, when they are susceptible to influence for weal or woe, it behooves those responsible for them to consider wisely the environment in which they shall be placed. Any neglect or carelessness at this point may have most disastrous consequences, bringing incalculable sorrow into the lives of both parents and children. The college period is a time of final decisions upon some of the weightiest questions of life; a time when the judgment is maturing, and the emotions are reaching out to entwine their tendrils about some strong and sure support. It is a time when the wavering, unstable nature of early growth is crystalizing into the solid form of feelings and opinions of mature life.

How important that this crisis should take place under most favorable conditions for securing right direction! Where, outside of the Christian home, can this favorable environment be more surely found than in the truly Christian College, under the guidance of genuinely Christian teachers? The last is of especial importance, for the personality of the teacher is a greater influence than what he may teach. It has been tersely said that "Character is caught, not taught." This being conceded, what wise parent would fail to take into consideration the kind of character-influence that he would wish to have imparted to the plastic mind and heart of the young? He would no more expose his child to moral contagion of un-Christian influence than he would expose her body to some foul disease. The mental and moral nature must be at least as carefully guarded from contamination as the physical.

In this we find one answer to our question, viz., the highest good of the individual. But since no one lives to himself alone, but from each there radiates an influence, we may well insist upon Christian education for our daughters for the sake of those who will come within the radius of that influence.

The future home-makers of our nation must be prepared to make the homes in which its future citizens shall be reared centres of all that is pure and ennobling, where the Christian graces may shed the sunshine and warmth in which Christian character may be nurtured, for in such an atmosphere alone can the great qualities of mind and heart reach their highest development.

It is largely the home that determines the character of a people; and out of our Christian homes must come the leadership of church and state. It is only when our homes train up leaders that will go out into the world in Christian service that we can hope for the church to fulfill her missions in the world, and to furnish a citizenship that will make us a nation of Christians in truth rather than in name.

Such a consummation may be brought about through educated and consecrated womanhood. Is not this then a sufficient reason why our young women should receive their life-training in Christian colleges?

OUR PREACHERS' GRAVES MEMORIAL DAY

Will not the militant host of the Western North Carolina conference halt long enough to place a flower and drop a tear on the graves of our fallen comrades on Memorial Day, May 10th? Search for the resting places of these soldiers of Jesus Christ and let the busy, rushing world know they are not forgotten. Some of these may sleep beneath the broomsedge and the briars; if so, let these be cleared away and tokens of loving esteem be put in their place. The ministry of these men of God to our fathers and mothers, and to some now living, was inestimable. "They rest from their labors; and their works do follow them." Far from kindred and dear ones some of their graves may be. Let's see that they are not forgotten nor neglected in this springtime which calls to our memory the resurrection of our Lord and their Lord. The heroines of the parsonage who "stayed by the stuff" and made the victories at the front possible for their courageous husbands deserve like tokens of esteem. They now sleep in undisturbed repose side by side. The flowers they planted now bloom for others while they inhale the fragrance of those that never fail in the paradise of God; but the Father will smile on those who manifest their thoughtfulness and love for those who fell in the thick of the fight.

The following district committmen have written, saying they would do all they can to see that proper attention is given to the graves in their respective districts: L. R. Geiger, Asheville district; J. D. Minick, Mt. Airy district; J. A. Bell, Charlotte district; C. R. Hoey, Shelby district. I trust the brethren who have not written are diligently looking after this sacred trust in their respective districts. I have written concerning those buried beyond our bounds and have heard from some of these letters. Hope to get other replies. Let not this important matter pass unheeded.

SPRING

By Alma S. Trowbridge.

The winter's chill winds and fierce storms now are gone,
And all gloomy scenes for a time are withdrawn.
The hills and the vales far and wide brightly shine
With beauties of nature in gorgeous design.

The leaf-buds from long winter's rest slowly creep,
Bright jonquill, sweet hyacinth, up proudly peep,
Swift birds, all so brightly arrayed, gaily sing,
Mostly sweetly their echoes in air softly ring.

By warm sun and rain, the green grass swiftly leaps
From its seeming lifelessness within the deeps.
Wild flowers, so fragrant, so graceful they grow,
Spring forth, as by magic, real cheer to bestow.

May we, from these beauties of spring now at hand,
Learn surely the lesson that truth would demand.
Though fruitless your life, and oft sad it may seem,
Just give it to God who will gladly redeem.

AN EXCELLENT NEW BOOK

Jno. R. Pepper.

Mr. M. W. Brabham some time superintendent of the Department of Administration of the General Sunday School Board of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, has just published a most valuable book entitled, "The Sunday School at Work in Town and Country."

This writer has read every line of said book from title page to bibliography and questions for thought and discussion.

Having been reared in the mountains of old Virginia and for years in boyhood days he walked two or three miles to a regular country Sunday school.

For the past thirty-six years he has been chairman of the Sunday School Board of the Memphis conference with supervision over about 600 Sunday schools; the large majority of which are strictly rural schools and with these schools he has communicated constantly year by year, and has visited very many of them. Therefore this writer claims to have a fair first hand knowledge of conditions and methods of the average town and country Sunday school as it exists today.

The chapter titles of the said book are logical and very suggestive, while the treatment of each subject is simple and exceedingly helpful.

In fact every phase of present day Sunday school work is discussed in such plain and untechnical language that the most unlearned can understand and be stimulated by its fine teachings.

So that no rural pastor, superintendent or teacher can do his best work without reading and studying this splendid contribution to our Sunday school literature. Possessing and having read most of the books on the various subjects of Sunday school activities published during the past twenty-five years, I beg to say deliberately and without hesitation, that for practical purposes, and for reaching the vast constituency of the small town and rural schools, "The Sunday School at Work in Town and Country," according to my humble judgment is the best and will be the most abidingly helpful book yet written, or that will be written until material changes are made in our fundamental methods of work.

In order that I may endorse the foregoing publication more substantially than by mere words, I have ordered fifty copies sent to the superintendent of Sunday school work of the Memphis conference and by him to be given with my personal compliments to fifty rural pastors who will promise to carefully read the volume, and then see to it that each Sunday school superintendent on his charge does likewise.

If this is done we will surely raise the level of several hundred rural Sunday schools in the Memphis conference.

It is not a minister's wisdom but his conviction which imparts itself to others. Nothing gives life but life. Real flame alone kindles other flame; this was the power of the apostles: "We believe and therefore speak." Firm faith in what they spoke, that was the basis of the apostles' strength.—F. W. Robertson.

CZECHOSLOVAKIA

By J. L. Neill, Supt. Czechoslovak Mission of the M. E. Church, South, Prague, Czechoslovakia.

Czechoslovakia is a rather difficult word for American people, but when compared with many other names of cities, countries and individuals one meets in Central Europe, and especially in Slavik countries, he realizes that this word is easy.

This new republic was formed out of sections of the old Austro-Hungarian empire. These sections were separate and individual kingdoms before the formation of the Austro-Hungarian empire. The fact is, the king of Bohemia, during the thirteenth and fifteenth centuries, was one of the greatest rulers in Continental Europe, having under his sway many other countries besides Bohemia.

The countries now forming the republic of Czechoslovakia are Bohemia, Moravia, Slovakia and Podkarpatska Rus. Bohemia is the largest and furthest advanced. Practically all of the industries, and by all odds the best farming land of the old Austrian kingdom are within Bohemia. In culture, education and economic progress, Moravia stands next. Slovakia is very far behind.

Many of the Slovaks cannot read or write. Their land is owned principally by the Magyar nobility, and controlled by Roman Catholic influence.

Podkarpatska Rus, which means literally Under the Carpathians, is the eastern end of the republic. It has a population of approximately a million people. Twelve per cent are Magyars, who are the land owners, fifteen per cent are Jews. These are the money lenders, and in the cities and towns compose seventy or eighty per cent. The remaining people are known as Little Russians, sometimes called Ruthenians. There are about seven hundred fifty thousand of them. Ignorance and vice among these people is beyond our understanding. Eighty per cent of them cannot read or write a word of any language. There are communities with ten thousand inhabitants and the nearest physician 30 miles away. I could not believe what I had heard concerning this section until I had visited it in person. Three visits to this section during the past winter led me to believe that probably no section in any part of the world is in any greater need of the power of the Gospel of Jesus Christ than this section.

Let no one in America be deceived concerning languages in Europe. In Czechoslovakia, with its population of less than twenty million, there are three and a half million who speak only the German language. In Bohemia and Moravia the language is Czech; in Slovakia, it is Slovak, but the language of the schools has been Magyar; in Podkarpatska Rus the language is a dialect without a particle of literature. The republic is now establishing schools throughout these sections and creating a language for them. This seems perfectly ridiculous to an American. It does appear that it would be much better to teach them some one of the old and classic languages of the Slavik people, either the Russian, Czech, Slovak, Polish, or some other one. The republic, however, believes that it is best to put this dialect into a written language. The reason the citizens of Podkarpatska Rus and Slovakia are so illiterate is due to the fact that under the old Hungarian regime they were not allowed their native language in the schools. Only the Magyar was taught. Magyar is not a Slav language and the Slovaks and Ruthenians refused to study it.

Geographic Situation.

The whole republic of Czechoslovakia, as now constituted, is surrounded by mountains on every side. It is in reality like an island within a great continent.

It has two outlets to the sea, one by way of the Elbe river through Germany to Hamburg on the North Sea and the other by way of the Danube river, which skirts along the southern border of Czechoslovakia out to the Black Sea. There is much talk now of connecting the Elbe and Danube by means of a large canal, which would give a direct water course from the North Sea through the center of Europe into the Black Sea.

Czechoslovakia is virtually in the center of Europe. A line drawn from the southwest point of Spain to northwest Russia would pass through Prague. Also a line drawn from the most western point of France to Odessa on the Black Sea would pass through Prague. A line from the Baltic Sea on the north to the Adriatic on the south would pass through Prague. Pragues would be near the center of each of these lines, as also the center of the one drawn from the northernmost tip of Norway and Sweden to the southernmost point of Italy. This will give you some idea of the geographical location of the republic. This in itself leads me to think that this republic will necessarily play an important part in European affairs in years to come.

Economic Situation.

Aside from its geographical location, Czechoslovakia has a wealth of minerals, timber, farm lands and great industrial plants which give it an outstanding position among the Continental European countries.

The Skoda works, about which Americans have heard so much are located in Prague and Pilsen. The Big Bertha guns were built in these works. All these shops have been confiscated by the Czech government and are being operated today for the creation of machinery to develop Czechoslovakia industrially instead of building war machines.

Czechoslovakia is without any question the leader of the Slavik people at the present time. By Slavik peoples I mean Russia's millions, other millions in Poland, Jugoslavia and Bulgaria.

Czechoslovakia's plan is to develop the ancient University of Prague into the world's greatest university. They now claim something like thirty thousand Slavik students. Through this university Czechoslovakia will touch every phase of Slavik life. There are now in this university more than two thousand Russian students. Most of these students are taking technical courses preparing themselves for the development of their own country, when Bolshevism has either been eradicated or evolved into a democratic form of government. The latter is really what will happen, I think.

Political Situation.

It is said that where you have two Slavs, you have three political parties. I am prepared to believe it. The Slav is without doubt the most independent individual I ever met with the exception of the American Indian.

In Czechoslovakia we have twenty-eight well organized political parties. I don't know how many more.

The form of government is very interesting and quite different, though similar to our American form. The first president, Dr. Thomas G. Masaryk, by the way one of the greatest thinkers in the world today, is elected president for life. At his death the president will be elected for a term of years and cannot succeed himself.

Instead of the secretary of state and other departments as we have them in America, the plan is here to have ministries and a minister for every department. The ministry of foreign affairs, which corresponds somewhat to our state department, has considerably more power than our secretary of state. The same is true of the other ministries in the government.

The law making body is composed of two houses, corresponding somewhat to our senate and house of representatives. The method of election, however, is quite different. The women have the same privilege of voting as the men, and quite a number of women have been members of the parliament since its creation. Representation in the senate and lower house is so divided among the various political parties that each party has its pro rata of representation. This is quite different from our American system. It could happen under our American system that members of only one party would be elected to Congress, but not so in Czechoslovakia. In the first election the citizen votes, or registers rather, his party affiliation. On the basis of that election it is determined that each party should have a certain number of representatives, so that the Communists and Radicals have a voice in all the affairs of the government. In some respects it may be a wise plan. Personally, I like our American plan better.

Another distinction is that the ministry is made up of individuals from the various party organizations, instead of being formed out of the majority party. One thing that can be said for this plan is that every belief can have its say and have an equal opportunity with others to present their claims to the people. It also provides a greater check on radical legislation than can be provided for under the American system.

N. C. CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

☞ Enjoys the largest circulation of any of the Advocates. It is the best from a mechanical standpoint. It is filled with wholesome reading matter. Every department of church work is given due consideration in its columns.

☞ Think what it means to Methodism and the Kingdom of God in the state. Think of the great help it is to the pastors and other church workers. Just think what it would mean if it went into the 75,000 Methodist homes in the state.

☞ If every preacher and every friend of the paper would work during the next three weeks a long stride in that direction would be made. That would put the organ of North Carolina Methodism right at the top with the leading religious newspapers in the United States.

HOME COMING DAY

There will be a Home Coming Day at old Rehobeth on the Rock Springs circuit the first Sunday in May. Rev. W. C. Byrum has secured Mr. Stonewall Durham to make a speech and the children of the Sunday school will render a short program. Hence, Home Coming and Children's Day combined. A good part of the day will be spent socially. Hope to see many of our old pastors, friends and kinfolks out for the day. X.

FLAT ROCK AND FLETCHER

The revival for Flat Rock church is scheduled to begin the fourth Sunday in May. We will have with us Rev. R. F. Mock of Concord, a sound gospel preacher. A week of prayer will be observed prior to the meeting, and we are praying for a great awakening both in and outside the church. Our charge as a whole is taking on new life. Epworth League is growing and becoming more and more interesting. Our Sunday schools are improving and public worship better attended. There is room for much improvement along all lines, however. We need your prayers. M. W. Dargan.

WASHINGTON DISTRICT CONFERENCE

One of the most largely attended district conferences the writer has ever attended was the one held in Pinetops April 17-19. This conference was well attended by the laymen.

There were twelve charges with full delegations and seven with only one absent. This conference was not only well attended but well conducted. Brother Cotton, the elder, handled the business and men like a veteran. He had it well planned and carried out well his plans. There was not a dull moment during the whole session of the conference.

The conference was not only well attended, well administered and encouraging, but it was well cared for and entertained. Brother Miller, the host, and Pinetops and McKendree people left nothing undone to make the stay of the preachers and laymen pleasant and comfortable. In addition to looking after every want of the members of the conference they gave the conference an informal reception on Wednesday night, when they enjoyed a pleasant social hour together in the Sunday school rooms of that beautiful new church that has just been completed.

The various pastors and laymen were conscious of the great task at hand and ahead, yet they made very encouraging reports of the work throughout the district.

Bro. W. C. Benson preached the opening sermon on Tuesday night.

Wednesday afternoon was given over entirely to the laymen, and they made great use of it. It was a great feast for and encouragement to the preachers to hear the messages that came from the hearts and lives of such consecrated and able laymen as Col. J. F. Bruton, L. L. Gravely, C. G. Morris, J. C. Galloway and others.

C. G. Morris was re-elected district lay leader; L. L. Gravely and J. C. Galloway were elected associate lay leaders.

Bethel, Englehard, Aurora and Fremont invited the district conference for next year. The conference voted to go to Englehard.

The interest of the Advocate was well represented in the person of our busy, pleasant editor, Rev. A. W. Plyler, the orphanage by Mrs. J. W. Jenkins, the Centenary by Rev. R. M. Courtney, secretary of two conferences, Louisburg College by the president, Dr. A. W. Mohr, and Greensboro College by the presiding elder, Rev. S. A. Cotton.

Those elected to annual conference are: Col. J. F. Bruton, W. H. Newell, S. F. Austin, J. T. Thorne, J. B. Ross, W. W. Hooper, T. A. Person, J. D. Lancaster, and the following alternates were elected—L. L. Gravely, C. B. Keech, J. C. Galloway and W. H. Adkins. B. B. Slaughter, Sec.

A CORRECTION

I note in recent issues of the Advocate in giving results of the Advocate campaign the name of the pastor of Aulander circuit is given as Rev. J. M. Bigan. Please make this correction, not that Brother Gigan, whoever he may be, would be any the worse for living here, but then he is not here. M. F. Hodges is the humble pastor of Aulander circuit for this year. We will tell you something interesting about this new circuit in the near future. M. F. Hodges, P. C.

BATH CIRCUIT

The work is progressing nicely on Bath circuit, and I am going to send in a big list of renewals and also some new ones before long. We begin our revivals in June. Our people generally are getting wider awake each day in reference to the things of God. New prayer services are being instituted all over the circuit, and evidences of a desire to improve the church properties are being manifested. I regard this as a good indication that the people are becoming more and more interested in the establishment of the Master's kingdom. Pray for us. R. J. Lough, Pastor.

PRICE-MOORMAN MEETINGS

The Tarboro Methodist church is in the midst of a great evangelistic meeting. Evangelist Thurston B. Price and Julian P. Moorman, soloist and choir director, are doing a great work in a great way. They have gripped the people of Tarboro as no preacher has—at least in recent years. Crowds have been turned away from the church for the past several nights, and we have been forced to change the place of meeting from the church to the court house in order to accommodate the crowds that are flocking to hear the singing and the powerful messages being delivered by Mr. Price. When the first invitation was given Friday night, there were thirty-eight professions and fifteen reconsecrations.

The meetings will continue all the week in the court house at 8 o'clock and will close Sunday, May 6th.

Mr. Price and his high grade of work and thorough sane type of evangelism are too well known among us to need any detailed commendation and praise through the press. B. B. Slaughter.

Many a meandering discourse one hears, in which the preacher aims at nothing, and—hits it.—Whately.

CALLED OF GOD

No one except those called of God to do a special work, realize the responsibility and seriousness of the work as those that are. For the last ten years I have felt "woe is me if I preach not." I use to think I would join the Western North Carolina conference and looked forward to that end for some time. But the Lord seemed to lead differently. Had to quit school four times on account of my health, but get on all right in active work. Served nearly six years as pastor, but did not feel that that was my paramount work. Have felt ever since I was called to preach I must be an evangelist.

Did not ask for pastoral work this year. My plan is to give my life to evangelistic work. Will go anywhere. Have a new tent can use when advisable. My address is Nealsville, N. C. J. D. Pyatt.

GRADUATING RECITAL AT LOUISBURG COLLEGE

The graduating recital of Miss Mary Alice Campbell, pianist, was given at Louisburg College Friday evening, April 27. Miss Campbell was assisted by Miss Margaret Ledbetter, reader. Each number on the program was well rendered by an unusually appreciative audience. The ushers were Misses Geneive Peltz, Mary Wilson, Frances Russo, Katherine Melvin and Josephine Fuller.

The program was as follows:

C sharp minor, Op. 27, No. 2, Moonlight Sonata (Beethoven).

Fantasia in D minor (Mozart).

Preludio XXI from the Well-Tempered Clavichord (Bach).

"How It Happened"—in four acts—Marporie Benton Cooke. Miss Ledbetter.

LeChant du Ruisseau (Lack). Polichinelle Op. 3, No. 4 (Rachmaninoff).

"The Greater Love," from Tale of Two Cities (Charles Dickens). Miss Ledbetter.

Valse, Op. 15 (Arensky). Second piano, Miss Daniels.

QUARTERLY CONFERENCE DEPLORES WHIPPING OUTRAGE

Quarterly conference of Chestnut Street Methodist church, Presiding Elder J. H. Shore presiding, unanimously passed the following resolution:

"Believing that this governing body of our church should not allow to pass unnoticed acts of lawlessness that strike at the very foundations of our civilization, be it

"Resolved, That the quarterly conference of Chestnut Street Methodist church of Lumberton deeply deprecates the recent shameful outrage committed on the night of April 14, last, at Proctorville, this county, when a band of men, disguised in hoods and robes, entered a private home, took therefrom two defenseless women, and severely beat them on their naked flesh with a strap.

"Resolved further, That we regard such an outrage as this, and any other attempts to regulate the conduct of individuals without due process of law, whether perpetrated by masked or unmasked men and in the name of whatever organization committed, as lynch law and a terrible menace against which all law-abiding citizens who love their country should set their faces like a flint and to check which such citizens should render every aid in their power.

"Resolved further, That we call upon all parents and teachers in season and out of season to stress upon the minds and hearts of those in their care the supreme importance of profound reverence for law, flagrant evidences of disrespect for which may be seen on every hand and which if unchecked will make of our fair land a slaughter house and a by-word and a hissing."

A GREAT GET-TOGETHER AFFAIR AT KINSTON

This time it is the stewards' committee on Christian Education down here at Queen Street Methodist church in Kinston that makes a bid for the limelight. And, considering what that group did in arranging a big Methodist banquet and bringing Prof. Flowers here to make an address, it deserves recognition for service well performed.

This committee consists of Dr. Clifton F. West, Roy H. Leach and Reynold T. Allen. However, these men didn't actually put it over. They just hatched out the idea and handed it over to a sub-committee made up of C. F. Harvey, Jr., B. B. Jones, H. E. Fisher and our pastor, Rev. C. K. Proctor, to get busy and see that the affair was a success—and the event showed that they did it.

It was a get-together affair and was given Thursday evening, April 26. In addition to a large portion of the membership of Queen and Caswell Streets were present a number of visitors from outside the city as well as representative members of our sister churches in Kinston. The chairman of Queen Street's board of stewards, C. F. Harvey, Sr., presided as toastmaster, Rev. C. W. Howard of the Christian church gave the invocation, Rev. C. K. Proctor delivered a short address of welcome, Paul Frizzell of Snow Hill spoke and Rev. Hector N. McDairmid, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, brought to the assembled banqueters a fervent message of fellowship from the Ministerial Association of the city.

This was all preliminary to the principal address of the evening, which was made by Prof. R. L. Flowers of Trinity College. Prof. Flowers upon this occasion sustained his well established and justly ascribed reputation as being an able, eloquent and earnest champion of Christian education, a profoundly thoughtful observer and an accurate critic of social and religious conditions as they exist in our country today. Some one hundred and fifty banqueters heard Prof. Flowers with marked interest, and were generous in their applause and commendation of his masterful address.

A most delightful feature of the evening's entertainment was the musical program, one of the very best ever given in Kinston. Mrs. Dan Quimerly sang beautifully. She was assisted by Mrs. T. C. Etheridge on the violin and Mrs. Kola Farabow, pianist. Mrs. Etheridge with the violin and Miss Vida West at the piano then charmed their hearers with an instrumental duet. Following this Mrs. W. W. Gill, choir directress at Queen Street, with wonderfully full, strong and mellow voice, evoked continued applause by two selections.

Our able and consecrated young pastor, Rev. C. K. Proctor, is still giving a good account of himself. He works from fourteen to sixteen hours a day. The rest of the time—except at meal—he takes it easy. It is understood that he has thus far been able to take culinary refreshments three times a day. And they do say that upon one occasion at least the finny tribe has had ample cause to rue his prowess as an accomplished angler. Of a truth Mr. Proctor is a man "diligent in business"—the Lord's business; and his great employer is blessing his efforts to the upbuilding of the kingdom at this place. D. T. Edwards.

ANNOUNCEMENT

I have open dates from May 6th to July 15th. Will be glad to assist pastors needing a singer of experience. Address C. P. Curry, Hendersonville, N. C.

AS TO CONTRIBUTIONS

If you've got a thing that's happy,
Boil it down.

Make it short and crisp and snappy,
Boil it down.

When your brain its coin has minted,
Down your page your pen has pointed,
If you want your effort printed,
Boil it down.

Take out every surplus letter,
Boil it down.

Fewer syllables the better,
Boil it down.

Make your meaning plain—express it
So we'll know, not merely guess it,
Boil it down.

Cut out all the extra trimmings,
Boil it down.

Skin it well, then skim the skimmings,
Boil it down.

When you're sure 'twould be a sin to Cut another sentence in two,
Send it on, and WE'LL begin to
Boil it down.

ELEVENTH ANNUAL MEETING

The eleventh annual meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of Western N. C. conference held its opening session at eight o'clock on Tuesday night in Monroe, N. C.

Devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. C. C. Weaver, D. D., who read verses from Jude, James, Phillipians, and 1st Corininthians, all conveying the idea of bond-servants to our Lord. Mr. Weaver said that the effect of Christianity is to diminish the importance of external things—that slavery is binding and if we are bound to Christ Jesus we are made free—free from unnecessary externals, free from fear. The Son shall make us free.

We enjoyed beautiful special music by the choir, and a most unique feature of the evening was greetings extended to our body of women from representatives of the various churches of Monroe, which were graciously responded to by Mrs. S. H. Isler of Greensboro. This was followed by a most glowing account of our recent council meeting at Mobile by Mrs. H. A. Dunham, conference corresponding secretary. At the close of the session we were invited downstairs for a social hour, during which time punch and wafers were served by members of our hostess church.

On Wednesday morning the session was opened by a devotional service conducted by Mrs. M. B. Goodwin, district secretary of Morganton district. She read Scripture from Eph. 3:14-21. Mrs. Goodwin said to us that more things are granted by prayer than by any other activity, and asked the question, "Are we using prayer as we should?" She cited the fact of nuns at St. Anne's in Quebec who go there for a life of consecration, never expecting to look on faces of the outside world again, thinking that they could do their part of the world's work better in that way than any other. We are constrained to say that Mrs. Goodwin must be one of this sort of sacrificial, praying women, since she has laid on God's altar for life service one of her own ewe lambs. Mothers can realize how close they must get to God our Father before they can willingly do this.

Devotional services were followed by organization, at which time Mrs. W. R. Harris was elected to act as recording secretary pro tem, in the absence of Mrs. G. W. Whitsett, who was unable to attend our meeting on account of illness in the home. It was voted to send telegrams of love and sympathy to Mrs. Whitsett, Mr. Frank Siler, Mrs. R. M. Courtney and Mrs. W. C. Houston, all of whom were unable to be with us, and a message of greeting to the North Carolina conference now in session, and to Mrs. W. A. Newell, who had already sent greetings to this body.

Mrs. Robertson brought us words of love and greeting and spoke to us along the lines of the keynote of our meeting—"Building." She said to us that neither an individual nor an organization can stand still, they must progress or retrogress. "He builds too low who builds below the skies." She urged us to lengthen the cords that bind us to our Father, that we build with Christ for our cornerstone and ourselves for the lining stones.

Mrs. Dunham again brought us an enthusiastic message—this time in regard to our own conference work. She told us we had 41 new organizations last year—21 adult, 10 young people and 10 children's societies; that we now have 359 auxiliaries, of which 174 are adult, 80 are young people and 105 children's; that 94 observed the week of prayer. She urged that we all observe this week of prayer both for the consecration of ourselves and for our gifts, financially, at this time. There were 19 adult auxiliaries attaining the Roll of Honor last year, and she presented to the representatives of these auxiliaries beautiful honor badges of white ribbon, printed with gold lettering.

Mrs. Dunham stressed the Lucy H. Robertson Scholarship Fund, stating that two girls are now at Scarritt as a result of this fund, while a third one is being supported by the Greensboro district.

Mrs. Dunham mentioned that Western N. C. conference stands fifth in the conferences in the amount of money to raise. She mentioned that by new ruling the auxiliary president has become a member of district conferences, and that a new by-law provided for a conference distributor of literature and publicity, each auxiliary to have a new officer, superintendent of publicity, who shall report to conference distributor of literature and publicity. Adult organizations are urged to aid and direct the social service work of the young people's organizations. It was advocated at the Council that instead of several adult organizations in one church, there be one body of women, divided into circles. We are going to be asked to assist in the campaign for the Superannuate Fund, and then our retired workers will come in for a share in the fund.

Mrs. Dunham spoke of the memorial to Miss Bennett, which will be an addition to Scarritt, and to which our conference pledged $10,000, with three years in which to pay it. Our June meetings are to change the program from a social service one to one concerning this wonderful plan for memorializing the memory of this, the greatest woman of Southern Methodism, Miss Belle Bennett. Literature for this special program will be sent out at once and auxiliaries are urged to observe the change, substituting this new literature for the social service literature already sent them for the June meeting.

ALAMANCE SCHOOL CREDITS

Meeting in our Graham Sunday school's new hut, constructed just to the rear of the church, the approximately 150 Sunday school workers enrolled in the Alamance Standard Training School at Graham April 15-20 enjoyed a delightful commencement program and an informal social gathering on the closing night of the school, at which time it was announced that forty-five persons had earned the certificates of credit, these not only attending regularly but also reading the required textbook and doing the written work assigned by the instructors. These certificates were divided among the co-operating charges as follows: Graham-Haw River 14, Burlington 14, South Alamance 5, Burlington circuit 2, Mebane 1, other denominations 9. A fine spirit prevailed throughout the school, and the successful outcome of this training school has prepared the way for greater schools in the future.

The names of those earning the certificates of credit, according to classes, are as follows:

Beginner Organization and Administration—Mrs. C. L. VanNoppen, instructor—Mrs. G. M. Daniel, Miss Edna Reinhardt, Miss Ethel Porterfield, Mrs. S. K. Ireland, Miss Bessie Lee Nicks, Miss Grace Neese, and Miss Alice Bason.

Robertson, Miss Reva Hamilton, Miss Joliette Isley, Miss Lala Browning, Miss Lucile Walker, Miss Lelia Walker, Miss Daisy Walker, and Mrs. C. C. Thompson.

The Organization and Administration of the Sunday School, Prof. R. N. Wilson, instructor—Miss Bettie Best, J. M. Buckner, Miss Espa Bullard, Miss Virginia Cates, Rev. G. M. Daniel, P. S. Dixon, Rev. Lindsay Frazier, Miss Margaret E. Freeman, W. B. Green, Miss Florine Robertson, J. H. Terrell, J. W. Thompson, Mrs. J. W. Thompson, W. E. Thompson, Rev. W. R. Hardesty, I. I. Henderson, Mrs. I. I. Henderson, F. C. Hunter, Joseph Isley, Miss Virginia L. Johnson, Mrs. Walter Neese, Dr. W. B. North, and Mrs. W. B. North.

THIS WEEK IN ROCKINGHAM

When this item gets into print we will be in the midst of what at this writing seems will be a splendid non-standard training school at Rockingham. We have arranged a school there for four charges—Rockingham, Piedmont circuit, Richmond circuit, and Roberdel circuit, and the enrollment from just two of the charges ten days in advance of the opening was well over the hundred mark. The public school building has been engaged for the week. Courses being offered are as follows: Elementary Work, Miss Keene; Principles of Religious Teaching, Rev. D. A. Clarke; Organization and Administration of the Sunday School, L. L. Gobbel; and A Methodist Church and Its Work, Rev. J. D. Bundy. The presiding elder, Rev. J. H. Shore, and all the pastors, with committees, are thoroughly supporting this work, and the outcome is not in doubt. Rev. D. A. Petty is chairman of the board of managers, Rev. F. E. Dickson is secretary, and Rev. D. A. Clarke, treasurer. Serving with these pastors on the board are Rev. J. D. Bundy, Messrs. Walter Boggan, T. P. Wood, T. J. Fletcher, and S. A. Lampley.

TRAINING WORK FOR MAY

Four non-standard training schools are scheduled for May, touching four districts: Rockingham at Rockingham, Durham at Roxboro, New Bern at Snow Hill, and Weldon at Scotland Neck. The Rockingham school is being held this week. The one at Roxboro, which will serve six or seven pastoral charges, comes May 13-18; that at Snow Hill, for Snow Hill and Hookerton circuits, May 20-25; and that at Scotland Neck, for two or three charges, May 27-June 1.

SUNDAY SCHOOL DAY

This is the season for observing Sunday School Day, once called Children's Day. The Sunday School Board has sent, free, to the pastor of each charge in the conference, Sunday School Day programs, so that every school might observe this important day without inconvenience or delay. If your pastor has not a sufficient quantity, a letter or postal card addressed to L. L. Gobbel, conference superintendent, Durham, will bring as many as you need.

GOOD BUT WILL BE BETTER

Macon Sunday school, Warrenton circuit, of which Mr. Fletcher Bobbitt is superintendent, is a one-room school that's good but wants to improve its efficiency and field of usefulness. At its invitation District Secretary Yarbrough spent Sunday, April 15, there, with the result that the official Program of Work was adopted. Already plans are being made to build Sunday school rooms. With the Program of Work as a guide and class rooms as equipment these good workers will be able to make their good school better.

WE BEAT 36 CONFERENCE!

The annual report of enrollment and awards by conferences just made by Mr. L. F. Sensabaugh, director of training work, Nashville, Tenn., to the General Sunday School Board, shows that of the 39 conferences in Southern Methodism the North Carolina conference stands only third from the top in the number of standard training course certificates and diplomas awarded from February, 1922, to February, 1923. Only the Virginia and Alabama conferences made a better showing. For this period we earned 1,134 certificates, 19 incomplete diplomas, 15 blue seal diplomas, and three gold seal diplomas.

And we have just started! Let's beat 'em all! Join a training class, attend a training school, or enroll as an individual student with the Department of Leadership Training, 810 Broadway, Nashville, Tenn. Help us provide consecrated workers trained and equipped for the most effective service in the Sunday school!

DOES YOUR SCHOOL HAVE IT?

Is your Sunday school acquainted with the official Program of Work for Methodist Sunday schools? If not, invite your district secretary to visit your school and explain this Program of Work, or write us for this information. Approximately 100 of our schools have adopted this program already. Let's make it unanimous. Your school is missing something if it doesn't have this great help.

GREAT WEEK IN DURHAM

Twenty-four Sunday schools, most of them in Durham and Orange counties, were represented in the enrollment of our Durham Standard Training School in session at Trinity College last week. These are just twice as many schools as were represented in the school of last year, and a high grade of work was done. Features of the school, outside the class-room work, were the opening address by Dr. Emmet Hightower, of Nashville, Tenn., a Beginner worship program conducted with adults by Mrs. C. L. Van Noppen, of Greensboro, presentation of the Program of Work by Prof. R. N. Wilson, Durham district Sunday school secretary, and the commencement program at the close of the school. Six courses were offered by the following instructors: Prof. H. E. Spence, Dr. Hightower, Prof. J. M. Ormond, Miss Virginia Jenkins, Mrs. B. H. Bunch and Mrs. Van Noppen.

"HAVE BEGINNERS IN MIND"

Rev. E. W. Hurst, Jr., and his people of the Ingold circuit, Wilmington district, are in the midst of a Sunday school building program, and the information coming to us indicates that the building is being planned in keeping with the needs of the pupils. This good pastor writes:

"We are building at Garland with special regard to Sunday school equipment. There are to be five Sunday school rooms, besides the auditorium. We have the Beginners in mind, remembering that they need smaller chairs than 'grown-ups.' We also expect to install a modern heating plant. One thing I have in mind especially is the arrangement of rooms to permit pupils to enter and leave class rooms in such a manner that pupils of other rooms will not be disturbed."

The last quarterly conference of this charge elected a building committee to build four good Sunday school rooms at Antioch, also, and plans are being made to erect a new church and Sunday school building at Longview.

THE MURFREESBORO WAY

Murfreesboro Sunday school, Weldon district, has entered the arena by adopting the official Program of Work and promises to give Creedmoor, Sharon, Whitakers, Scotland Neck, and the others a close race for efficiency honors. District Secretary Yarbrough presented the Program of Work and talked at Murfreesboro Sunday morning, April 22, and at Union and Winton at 2:30 Sunday afternoon. All three schools adopted Program of Work "C." Writing to the editor of this column Rev. L. C. Larkin, the pastors, says:

"We had Brother Yarbrough with us yesterday, and I feel that it proved to be a happy and profitable day. All three of our Sunday schools are enthusiastic in carrying out the Program of Work that has been outlined to us. I wanted to let you know how much his work is appreciated by all our people."

"Our Sunday school here at Murfreesboro," continues this good pastor, "is ready this week to meet the requirements of the 100 per cent standard. We have decided on our Promotion Day and have had our first meeting of our Workers' Council. All the officers and teachers have agreed to secure at once the books for teacher training. I am going to send in order today for books selected."

PERSON TRAINING SCHOOL

Detailed arrangements for our Person Training School to be held at Roxboro May 13-18 for the Sunday school and church workers of Person county were made by the board of managers, composed of the pastors and superintendents, meeting in Long Memorial church last Wednesday afternoon. Beginning Sunday evening at 7:45 o'clock and running through Friday evening, four courses will be offered, as follows:

Elementary Work—Miss Keene.
Principles of Teaching—Prof. I. B. McKay.

Sunday School Organization and Administration—L. L. Gobbel.

Methodist Church and Its Work—Rev. M. T. Plyler.

Rev. B. T. Hurley is chairman of the board of managers, Rev. B. C. Thompson secretary, and Rev. J. B. Hurley treasurer. Your conference superintendent of Sunday school work attended the meeting of the managers and found them enthusiastic and confident of a good school.

HONOR ROLL

Our Sunday School Day Honor Roll has started. Note the Sunday schools that have sent their offering to Treasurer H. A. Dunham, Asheville, N. C. Two of these have let it be known that their offering will be made larger. This money goes towards keeping three whole-time workers busy and thirty-three part-time workers partially busy in the promotion of our Sunday school work as they hold training schools, institutes and conferences and as they otherwise "roust about." Quite a lot of literature is supplied needy Sunday schools. But note our headlines on the honor roll.

NUMBER FOUR

At a luncheon given by Mr. Edwin L. Brown, Friday, April 20th, to the pastors and superintendents of Asheville the fourth annual Standard Training School for Asheville and surrounding territory was set up. The school will open Sunday afternoon, May 6th, at three o'clock. Just four years ago the training work in our conference began at Asheville. Now it has grown to large proportions. The courses and faculty for the schools were decided upon as follows:

Beginner Lesson Materials and Teaching—Miss Jessie Spencer, Louisville, Ky.

Primary Organization and Administration—Miss Georgia Keene, Durham, N. C.

Junior Organization and Administration—Miss Virginia Jenkins, Lexington, N. C.

Intermediate Senior Agencies—Rev. J. C. Robertson, Danville, Va.

Sunday School Management—Mr. O. V. Woosley, Lexington, N. C.

Principles of Teaching—Prof. C. T. Carr, Mooresville, N. C.

Mr. Edwin L. Brown is president of the board of managers; S. P. Burton, vice president; Frank Smith, secretary; C. W. Brown, treasurer; W. W. Edwards, publicity manager; L. B. Rogers, entertainment supervisor; and the Brown Book Store will handle the books. A large enrollment is confi-

WHY DRUGS FAIL

Many chronic diseases fail to respond to drug treatment, even in the hands of the best physicians, whereas acute diseases usually respond readily. When a disease has become chronic, drugs often seem to do as much harm as they do good, for the system rebels against them. It is just this class of cases which derive the greatest benefit from drinking Shivar, America's best stomach, liver and kidney Water. If you suffer with chronic dyspepsia, indigestion, sick headache, rheumatism, kidney or liver disease, uric acid poisoning or other curable conditions due to impure blood do not hesitate to accept the Spring's liberal offer as printed below. Their records show that only two in a hundred, on the average, have reported "no benefit." This is a wonderful record from a truly wonderful Spring. Sign the following letter:

Shivar Springs,
Box 4H, Shelton, S. C.

Gentlemen:

I accept your offer and enclose herewith three dollars for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Water. I agree to give it a fair trial, in accordance with instructions contained in booklet you will send, and if I report no benefit you agree to refund the price of the water in full upon receipt of the two empty demijohns which I agree to return within a month.

EPWORTH LEAGUERS PRESENT PAGEANT

The Epworth League of the Edenton Methodist church gave the beautiful pageant, "A Modern Prodigal," in the church auditorium Sunday evening, April 22nd, to a crowd that overflowed the church long before the play started. Lots of hard work had been done in preparation for the play, and older citizens of the town pronounced it one of the best presentations of its kind ever given in Edenton.

Mrs. Joe R. Nixon presided over the meeting and read the prologue. The character, Hardy Mann, the Modern Prodigal, was taken by the pastor of the church, Rev. J. Vincent Knight. In addition to carrying the part of a bum in an excellent way, Mr. Knight brought the play to a dramatic climax and melted the big audience to tears with a solo entitled, "Mother's Prayers Have Followed Me." The Angel girl, Miss Grace Fisher, the Spirit of Service, Miss Elizabeth Moore, and the Spirit of Missions, Miss Margaret Stephenson, all deserve special mention. In fact all on the program carried their parts without a break.

One of the fine things the leaguers of Southern Methodism have contributed to the church this year is this pageant. It shows the life and story of the modern prodigal, and carries with it many fine lessons people need to know. Just as this son was brought to see the error of his way and turn from it, so will thousands of men and women be made to see the right path and walk in it. Our leaguers here are assured that our people appreciated it. They proved by their offering and the fine interest shown in various other ways.

Our league has been divided into two parts. The Senior and Intermediate (meeting together) and the Junior with an enrollment of nearly 50 meet on Wednesday evenings. Both divisions have nearly doubled their attendance since the division.

A Leaguer.

 That was certainly a generous and thoughtful act on the part of the Wanchese Sunday school through Bro. A. C. Daniels to send us several boxes of fine shad. Our children had a feast of good eats. This kindness reminds me that there are others who could send us such things as chickens, eggs, potatoes, etc.

Early in the season I predicted that we would put out a strong baseball team and offered my sympathy to any team that might oppose ours. So far we have played six games and won all of them by a good majority. Our undefeated team is looking round to find other teams to devour. Our boys have the winning spirit.

In the City Marble Contest one of our boys walked off with the loving cup and a five dollar bill. Hundreds of boys entered the contest, but all were eliminated except four when the final contest came. George Flinton is smiling from ear to ear. It seems that fate decreed that I should miss three district conferences this spring. Just a simple throat operation deprived me of this privilege. I have been fortunate in the substitute. Mrs. Mattie A. Jenkins went to the Washington district conference for me. She received a warm welcome at the hands of Brother S. A. Cotton, the hustling, successful presiding elder of the district.

A larger collection of books is one of the great needs of the Methodist Orphanage. During the past few years we have succeeded in building up our library considerably. It is still far from being anything like it ought to be. Last week one of the most scholarly and saintly men in our ministry gave us a selection of choice books numbering several hundred, and a fine collection of geographical magazines which are good for reference work. Brother R. F. Bumpass has made a great donation where it is appreciated to the fullest extent. I trust that his fine example will lead others to remember us in like manner. I trust that in the near future we shall have a library building filled with a fine collection of books covering all important subjects.

 We are now making dates for revivals for any time after June 17. I have H. P. Powell, Clinton, N. C., with me for the third year as song evangelist, and Rollin H. We preach the Bible, exalt Christ, magnify the atonement, honor the Holy Ghost and stand squarely for the old time religion with the altar as the working ground. If you need this party write me. # Our Little Folks

THE GASOLINE LIFE

How dear to his heart is the little old flivver
That carries him out to his work and his play;
He finds that its jolting is good for his liver
And woe to pedestrians who come in his way.

With his cap and his gauntlets and a large pair of goggles,
He makes an impression you will not forget
As he sits at the wheel where he teeters and joggles,
And only the traffic cops cause him to fret.

—Birmingham Age-Herald.

A LIFE OF REAL FUN

I wonder if you ever had a taste of real fun,
Ever go a-fishing with a pole, line and gun?
I wonder if you ever shot a turtle on a log,
Or ever treed a squirrel by the barking of your dog?

I wonder if you ever had a stone bruise on your heel,
Ever take your grist to an old country mill?
I wonder if you ever heard an old dinner horn,
Or began your plowing when the dew was on the corn?

I wonder if you ever raised a good tobacco crop,
Ever blow the bellows in a country blacksmith shop?
Wonder if you ever tracked a rabbit in the snow,
Or hunted coons at midnight many years ago.

I wonder if you ever tried to ride a yearling colt,
Ever tried to milk a cow and get an awful jolt?
I wonder if you ever led a calf by ear and tail
Or ever tried to kill a lizard running on a rail.

I wonder if you ever built a rail pen for the pigs,
Ever feel the tickle of the limber hazel twigs?
I wonder if you ever dug potatoes by the peck,
Or ever tried to wring a last year's chicken neck.

I wonder if you ever chased a rabbit in a tree,
Ever transact business with a small-sized bumblebee?
I wonder if you ever saw a yaller jack-et's nest,
Or ever heard a screech owl yell his very level best.

I wonder if you ever worked an old contrary mule,
Ever play town ball while at the country school?
Ever use a turning pole and try to skin a cat,
Or ever pick blackberries in your old straw hat?

I wonder if you ever had a wheat beard in your eye,
Ever tried to get it out and thought that you would die?
I wonder if you ever wore a lay-down paper collar,
Ever need a suit of clothes and couldn't raise a dollar?

I wonder if you ever used a scythe to mow the briars,

Ever drive a wagon and lose one of the tires?
I wonder if you ever went wading in the creek,
Or ever had your gumwax adhere to your cheek.

I wonder if you ever wore blue drillen clothes,
Ever go with one suspender with a rag tied round your toes?
I wonder if you ever had chills every other day,
And took quinine from a spoon in the good old-fashioned way.

I wonder if you ever made a scarecrow for the crows,
Ever dress him up with your father's Sunday clothes?
I wonder if you ever made a two-story martin-box,
Or ever went barefooted till your mother darned your sox.

Did you ever throw green apples at a swinging hornet's nest?
Ever shear a sheep and have it kick you in the breast?
I wonder if the new-ground plow cut a root that struck your shin.
Ever use the silks of corn for whiskers on your chin?

I wonder if you ever fed an old molasses mill,
Ever burn brush piles in the clearing on the hill?
If you have, then you have tasted of the joy
That comes only to him who was once a country boy.

—H. M. Lockyear, in Christian Evangelist.

WANTED HIM TO GET "NOLEGE"

It was a Pike county woman who indited a note to the teacher concerning the punishment of her young hopeful. The note ran thus:

"Dear Miss —: You rite me about whippin' Sammy. I hereby give you permission to beat him up any time it is necessary to learn his lesson. He is just like his father—you have to learn him with a club. Pound nolege into him. I want him to get it and don't pay no attention to his father says—I'll handle him."—Reading Eagle.

The Limit.

Mrs. Key was visiting some friends and left the following note for her nearest neighbor:

"Dear Mrs. Garrison: Would you please put out a little food for the cat I have been feeding this winter? It will eat almost anything, but do not put yourself out."—The Booster.

Henry arrived at breakfast in a cross frame of mind. He informed his wife that Tommy had taken some change from his pocket.

"It isn't fair to accuse Tommy," his wife remonstrated. "Henry, you might as well say I took it."

"No, dear," the brute answered; "it wasn't all taken, you know."

It was Robert's first visit to the Zoo. "What do you think of the animals?" inquired Uncle Ben.

After a critical inspection of the exhibit the boy replied, "I think the kangaroo and the elephant should change tails."

Daughter—"The preacher has just phoned to say he is coming to call this afternoon."

Mother—"Gracious! We must make a good impression. Give the bady the hymn book to play with."

WHERE GO TO COLLEGE?

There are three major considerations that determine the greatness, or the potential greatness, of an educational institution.

1. The Plant, including grounds, library, classrooms, laboratories, and apparatus.

2. The Faculty.

3. The Student body and its democratic standards.

In addition to the thirty-four buildings already on the campus, the State of North Carolina is this year putting $1,650,000 into new buildings and equipment. The library of 115,000 volumes is spending $24,000 annually for books and periodicals. Eight thousand volumes were received in 1922-1923, and one thousand and five magazines and learned journals were received on subscription.

The Faculty numbers 128 of the country's best scholars.

Speaking of the student body of the University, Mr. Sherwood Eddy, of Yale University, who has spent the major portion of his life studying in four continents, said, that with one exception, it was the most seriously thoughtful and democratic group of students he had ever known.

WEAVER PIANOS

An appreciation

By B. F. McLendon

(Cyclone-Mack)

"We used a Weaver Modern Grand Piano in the Methodist Church for the B. F. McLendon Evangelistic Campaign in Corbin, Kentucky. We wish to give our hearty endorsement of this splendid instrument.

"The three dominant essentials to be found in all real pianos are here: durability, sweetness and purity of tone and superior workmanship.

"It gives us great pleasure to recommend this piano to the public."

THESE words coming from "Cyclone-Mack," one of the most successful of American evangelists, will strike a responsive chord in thousands of homes where there is now a Weaver Piano.

Wherever art and music are appreciated there you will find the Weaver—wherever pianos are selected for their exquisite tone, their beauty of line and finish, their delightfully responsive action and for their long years of perfect service.

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORK

dently expected. Hendersonville, Weaverville, Black Mountain, Leicester, Candler and other points will send delegations to the school.

THE SHELBY SCHOOL

Hurrying from the noon day set-up meeting at Asheville, Shelby was reached for a similar meeting Friday night. Following an earnest revival service in Central church conducted by Pastor A. L. Stanford and Mrs. Steidley, Shelby district evangelist, a large group of interested people from the Presbyterian and Methodist churches remained to organize the first Shelby Co-operative Standard Training School. The school got a jim dandy send off. Mr. William Lineberger, superintendent of the Methodist Sunday school, was chosen to head the board of managers, Supt. I. C. Griffin of the Shelby schools is secretary and J. S. McKnight, superintendent of the Presbyterian Sunday school, will handle the money, guaranteed by two leading churches of Shelby. Mrs. C. R. Hoey heads the entertainment committee, Mrs. G. A. Hoyle will handle the books and Mr. D. Z. Newton will keep the school before the public.

The school is to be held at Central Methodist church, Shelby, beginning Sunday afternoon, May 20th, at three o'clock. Five courses will be offered.

LENOIR AND DAVENPORT

Lenoir and Davenport College are in love with each other, and with everybody else. On a recent trip to Lenoir it was my good fortune to fall in with Rev. P. W. Tucker, our successful pastor there, and President C. A. Hornaday, the popular executive of Davenport, with whom an extensive survey of the college was made. Things are going mighty well at the college. Lenoir Methodism is solidly behind the administration and everybody is bouyant and happy. The Lenoir people did such a fine thing in patronizing our recent Hickory training school that I fell in love with them. The visit to their town intensified this love. A Standard Training School is scheduled for Lenoir and Davenport for early October.

LITTLEJOHNS

Have you never heard of Littlejohns church? If you have not, don't tell it. This church was a meeting house when General Lenoir passed on his way to fight the battle of King's Mountain. Bishop Asbury passed that way in his day and today his picture, along with that of Bishop Lambuth, adorns the walls of the church. Littlejohns has given us Revs. D. H., R. G. and M. H. Tuttle, R. M. Courtney, G. W. Clay and lots of other good folks. Miss Lelia Tuttle, of McTieme College, China, came from this congregation. Rev. F. H. Price and Supt. H. M. Courtney had arranged for me to come to Littlejohns Sunday, April 22, and I went. Brother Price met me at Lenoir, six miles away, and landed me at the beautiful old home of Bro. G. A. Tuttle, where I enjoyed fine fellowship, ate lots of fried chicken, slept well and then got up and looked right into the face of Grandfather Mountain. That was great living. This hard Sunday school job has its delights and this was one of them.

A bright Sunday morning brought a happy crowd to Littlejohns for Sunday School Day and an all-day Sunday school booster program at which Rev. P. W. Tucker, his young people's choir from First church, Lenoir, and your humble servant held forth. It was fine to be there and to note the good work of Mr. Price, the better work of Mrs. Price and the general signs of progress about the old church site. Supt. H. M. Courtney, Mrs. G. A. Tuttle, Rev. and Mrs. F. H. Price were presented with certificates for the good work they did in the Hickory school, twenty-eight miles away. In addition to the hard work done they had to travel 330 miles to do it. You can't down people like that. The Prices have spent four years on the Lenoir circuit and have wrought well. Price has got a good wife.

GOOD NEWS

Your favor of the 24th received. Central Sunday school will hold Sunday School Day exercise the second or third Sunday in May. We have been sending you heretofore $100 as our Sunday School Day offering, and it is our intention to send this amount or more this time.

With best wishes, L. B. Rogers. I am in receipt of your letter of the 24th, and replying beg to advise that we have not yet had our Sunday School Day celebration. We are planning to have this either the second or third Sunday in May. I doubt not that Main Street, Gastonia, can meet your wishes in regard to a splendid offering. With all good wishes, J. H. Separk.

CENTRAL CHURCH CONSIDERS PLANS FOR ENLARGEMENT

Plans for a larger edifice are being considered by officials of Central Methodist church and erection of a new and modern building at a cost of several hundred thousand dollars or enlarging of the present structure with new innovations and improvements are among the plans considered.

The architect who drew the plans for the present building on Church street has been in the city for the past few days and conferred with officials of the church in regard to the enlargement plans.

Rev. Dr. Ashley Chappell has met with success during his pastorate in Asheville and although the church auditorium has a capacity of at least 1,000, a number of visitors have been turned away each Sunday as a result of the lack of space and steps are being taken to prepare for seating a congregation of from 1200 to 1500, it is stated.

The Sunday school auditorium is also inadequate, according to officials, and plans for enlargement will include room to house the growing Sunday school as well as the church departments.

While members of the board of stewards have not announced any definite plan for enlargement it is the general opinion that something will be done in the near future to care for the growing membership.

It is understood that members of the board are practically unanimous in the opinion that the present location is ideal for the church, regardless of whether a new building is erected or the present structure remodeled.—Citizen.

WHY WAS EASTER APRIL FIRST INSTEAD OF APRIL EIGHT?

Some time ago I was looking in the almanac to see if the first Sunday in April, 1923, was really Easter Sunday. According to my understanding, I could not get it fixed, and so I concluded I was wrong. A few days ago (since April 1st) I saw in our local daily a statement coinciding with my understanding of it.

In Webster's New International Dictionary I find this: "In accord with the decree of the Council of Nice, Easter Day is always the first Sunday after the full moon that falls on or next after the 21st of March; if the full moon happens on Sunday, Easter is celebrated one week later."

Yet, with that statement, he gives Easter dates for the years 1900-1925, and says 1923, April 1st, with 5 as the golden number, 13 epact; and dominical letter G—whatever they mean. Now, if the epact, golden number, and dominical letter are responsible for the violation of the established rule, then I have nothing to say, and number it among the "exceptions to all rules." But, as I see it, the application of the rule would make Easter Sunday, this year, come on April 8.

Somebody please tell me how came Sunday, April 1st, to be Easter Sunday.

Some folks want a certain date for Easter, like Christmas, December 25; but it can't be done, because Easter comes on Sunday, and there is Good Friday to reckon with. It could be made to come on the second Sunday in April, for instance, but no given date.

After all that's said, will some one far wiser than I am or ever expect to be, please tell me why Easter, this year, was on the first Sunday in April instead of the second Sunday. Turner's almanac and Blum's almanac state that the first full moon in April was Sunday, April 1, 8:10 a. m. Now apply the rule.

Chas. C. Brothers.

TWENTY-ONE

So you are 21? You are a man! Did you ever think, son, how much it has cost to make a man of you?

Someone has figured up the cost in money in rearing a child. He says to bring a man to legal age, care for him and educate him costs $25,000. Which is a lot of money to put in flesh and blood. But that isn't all. You have cost your father many hard knocks and short dinners and worry and gray streaks in his hair. And your mother —ah, boy! You will never know. You have cost her days and nights of anxiety and wrinkles in her dear face and heartaches and sacrifice.

It has been expensive to grow up, but if you are worth what you think you are, you are worth all you cost much, much more.

Be sure of this. While father does not say much but "Hello, son," way down in his tough, staunch heart he thinks you are the finest ever. And as for the little mother, she simply cannot keep her love and pride for you out of her eyes.

Sometime you must step in your father's shoes. He wouldn't like you to call him old, but just the same he isn't as young as he used to be. You see, young man, he has been working hard for more than twenty years to help you! And already your mother is beginning to lean on you.

Your father has done fairly well, but you can do better. You may not think so, but he does. He has given you a better chance than he had. In many ways you can begin where he left off. He expects a good deal from you, and that is why he has tried to make a man of you.

The world will try you out. It will put to the test every fiber in you. But if you are made of good stuff, once the load is fairly strapped on your young shoulders, you will carry it and scarcely feel it—if only there be the willing and cheerful mind—Selected.

WEAVERVILLE'S TRIBUTE TO PROF. NORTON

Practically the entire citizenship—a list too long for these columns—has signed the following resolutions of appreciation:

"We, the undersigned residents of the town of Weaverville, being informed of the impending departure of Mr. and Mrs. Norton, who for the past three years have acted as president and secretary of Weaver College, wish to express to them these few words of appreciation of their service to the community.

"In business relations we have found them to be courteous, considerate, efficient and of the utmost integrity.

"In church relations they have been real factors in the workings of the Methodist Episcopal church, an inspiration to that which is high and moral.

"In relations of friendship, they have been kindly, agreeable and of extreme worth for their large heartedness, sympathetic attitude and breadth of vision.

"Therefore it is with deep regret that we contemplate their departure and the consequent loss to our community of valuable citizens.

IN MEMORIAM

ISRAEL—Miss Eva June Israel, a devout Christian and faithful member of the Methodist church at Avery's Creek, went to her reward on February 19, 1923. She is survived by her father, E. R. Israel, two brothers and sisters. Funeral services were conducted from her church by her pastor on the following Wednesday. Miss Eva was one of the brightest, sunshiny characters it has been our privilege to know. The church and community is grateful for her life and its hallowed influences.

J. O. Cox, Pastor.

STOWE—Mr. Caleb Stowe was born in Dare county September 4, 1845, died March 16, 1923.

He was confined to the home for about five years and kept his bed for more than a year before his death. He was reputed to be an honest and upright man in his dealings with his fellowmen. He leaves one brother, Frank Stowe, and three daughters, all married, and who were faithful to him throughout his affliction. The Lord reward them for their loyal devotion and comfort them in their bereavement.

J. M. Jolliff.

MIDGETT—David W. Midgett was born in Dare county December 5, 1851, died February 27, 1923.

For a number of years he was a leading member of the M. E. Church, South, at Frisco, N. C., and was a very good Bible scholar and much devoted to his church. Brother Midgett had been afflicted for a longtime and his mind had been impaired. His only child, Mrs. Arthur Stowe, nursed and cared for him like a little child. In her loneliness may she have the abiding presence of the Great Comforter to sustain her.

J. M. Jolliff.

GAMBILL—Martha Charity Mink was born January 19, 1851, and died March 10, 1923, age 72 years, one month and eight days. She was married to Jesse Gambill October 7, 1872. To this union eight children were born, six of whom are now living. She professed faith in Christ in early life and joined Helton church, of which she has been a member ever since. She was one of the most patient women in her sickness and trials I ever saw. She had lots of friends—all her neighbors loved her. But now she is gone to receive her reward, and while husband and children mourn their loss she is happy and at rest in her Father's bosom.

W. E. Moretz, P. C.

WATSON—Little Errol Watson was born to Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Miller of Buxton, N. C., July 10, 1921, and died March 23, 1923. The little fellow fought quite a battle with that dread malady, pneumonia, and for a while the doctor thought he would recover. God in His wisdom, however, saw fit to take him unto Himself. He was the only child of this young couple, and their hearts are torn and bleeding. To them and the grandparents we extend our deepest sympathy. May the Lord give them strength to bear their affliction and some day be a reunited family in our Father's house of many mansions.

J. M. Jolliff, Pastor.

STEWART—Mrs. Ada T. Shaw Stewart was born August 25, 1869. She departed this life January 10, 1923. She was married to Joann T. Stuart December 20, 1900. They lived happily together for twenty-two years, then God saw fit to take her to her reward. She professed religion and joined the Methodist church at Friendship when just a young girl. She was interested in the church work and was a Sunday school teacher most of that time. She bore her affliction with patience and often said the Lord knew what was best. The funeral was held at the Methodist church at Friendship, conducted by Rev. C. F. Sherrill, assisted by Revs. T. J. Rogers and J. E. Woosley, former pastors. She leaves a husband, two brothers and a host of relatives and friends to mourn their loss. Our loss is her eternal gain. May we all meet her in heaven.

"God touched her and she slept."

BALLANCE—Amelia Katherine Ballance was born August 14, 1921, died March 10, 1923. Captain Bernice Ballance and wife had just returned from visiting her parents at Chicomico on a Friday afternoon when for some unknown cause a coffee pot full of boiling coffee turned over and burned little Amelia so she only lived about 24 hours. She was a very bright child. They have two children left, both afflicted, Amelia being the only strong, healthy child they had. We extend to Captain Ballance and his wife our deepest heartfelt sympathy, and pray that some day they will embrace their little darling again where no farewell tears are shed.

J. M. Jolliff.

WALL—Mrs. Rosa Wall was born August 1, 1876, and died March 26, 1923, age 46 years, seven months and 25 days. Was married August 2, 1894, to Charles A. Wall, unto which union were born twelve children, all of whom survive except one, who died in infancy. Surviving also are her husband, mother and three sisters. She was converted immediately after her marriage and joined the M. E. Church, remaining a most consistent member to the end. Hers was a most beautiful Christian life, and a continuous exemplification of Paul's injunction to the Romans: "Overcome evil with good."

The loss is most keenly felt by the entire charge, but we rejoice in the consciousness that she now enjoys that rest which remains for the people of God. Her husband, Rev. C. A. Wall, is a faithful, consecrated local preacher in our church. May heaven's blessings attend all the bereaved ones.

M. E. Leftwich, P. C.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

On Tuesday morning, March 13, 1923, God called one of our beloved neighbors and co-workers to come and live in the mansion prepared for her.

Mrs. Nettie Wood was 58 years, two months and four days old. She joined the Methodist church in her early childhood and although for a number of years she had not been permitted by health to be an active member of the church and society, yet she was greatly interested in its work and faithful to His cause. She leaves behind to mourn her loss a husband and two daughters; one daughter and two sons were waiting to join mother in the home beyond. Therefore be it resolved:

That we, the members of Missionary Society of Edgar Long Memorial church, will miss her, still we bow in humble submission to our Lord who knows best.

That we extend our deepest sympathy to the members of the family and the loved ones who survive, and pray God's abounding grace will be with them in these trying days.

That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of our society, a copy sent the family, the Roxboro Courier and North Carolina Christian Advocate.

Mrs. J. G. Moore,
Mrs. B. G. Clayton,
Mrs. Maggie Strayhorn,

Committee.

HOYLE—On Sunday, April 1st, we were called to Shelby to the funeral of Mrs. L. J. Hoyle, who passed from earth last week. She was one of the most influential women in this part of the state. She was brought up in the best environment, the daughter of the late Prof. Round of Lenoir, N. C. A woman of high culture and sound religion, in every way fitted for companionship with L. J. Hoyle, who was recognized by all who knew him as a man of culture and Christian character.

Though by sad affliction cut off from her friends and from her work in the church and community for more than 20 years, she is still loved by those whose lives she blessed in her active days.

She was the sister of Rev. George Round, once an honored member of the N. C. conference, the mother of George A. Hoyle of Shelby, N. C., and of several daughters. Her oldest daughter was Mrs. M. B. Clegg of our conference. She met death in an automobile accident not many months since.

No, Ella, we have not forgotten you. You will hold your place in our hearts while we live her, and we hope to meet you in the sweet by and by.

R. M. Hoyle.

BURTON—John A. Burton was born in Davidson county, N. C., on March 31, 1849, and died in Walnut Cove March 16, 1923. In early manhood he came to Walnut Cove, where he has since resided. He was married January 2, 1895, to Miss Laura Lewis of Rockingham county, who with two surviving children are left to mourn their great loss.

Brother Burton was never a member of the Methodist church. His membership was with the Lutheran church at Tyro, N. C. Notwithstanding these facts he was a loyal supporter of the Methodist cause here in his town as long as he lived. He has been a reader and supporter of the North Carolina Christian Advocate for the past fifty years, his wife tells the writer.

A noble character is taken from us, a great friend of the needy and a familiar landmark in our midst is removed.

J. T. Ratledge.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

On February 19th the spirit of our co-worker, Mrs. J. H. Thomas, took its flight to rest with our Lord. Sister Thomas had been a member of our auxiliary since its organization. We shall miss her, yet can say as the beautiful song:

"Not lost, but gone before;
Safe in the Master's keeping.
Not lost, not lost, not dead,
But gone before."

Resolved first, That we lose her help in carrying on the work of our Master.

Second, That we miss her Christian influence in our community.

Third, That we extend to our bereaved brother and family our heartfelt sympathy.

Miss Nannie Ratliff,
Mrs. A. H. Dallas,
Mrs. Nat Anderson,
Mrs. S. W. Moir.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas, on March 12, 1923, our heavenly Father in His infinite love and wisdom called to Himself our dear friend and co-worker, Miss Robina Lazenby, one of the most loyal and faithful members of the Woman's Missionary Society, the woman's Bible class and the Local Workers of Broad Street church.

In her removal we feel most keenly the loss of her gentle, friendly personality. We wish to express to her bereaved family our deep sympathy in their great loss.

Resolved first, That we strive to emulate her beautiful example and incorporate in our lives the Christian graces which were so wonderfully reflected in her life among us.

Second, That our church and all of its numerous organizations will miss her presence and influence, especially the cordial handclasp which she never failed to give. She loved the church and was loyal and untiring in every department of its activities.

Third, That a copy of these resolutions be spread on the minutes of every organization of which she was a member and that a copy be sent the North Carolina Christian Advocate for publication.

(Signed)
Mrs. E. G. Gilmer,
Mrs. John H. Moore,
Mrs. George Poard,
Mrs. Jesse Brown.

MIDGETT—Oliver G. Midgett of Salvo, N. C., was born June 4, 1902, and was killed by a passenger train at Louisville, Ky., February 25, 1923. His remains arrived home on Saturday, March 3, 1923, and was buried in the family cemetery. A large concourse of friends was present to pay their last respects to him and to sympathize with the grief-stricken family. His death was a great shock to the entire community.

Oliver was an ideal young man of great ability and was making a good mark in the U. S. Coast Guard. To know him was to love him. He joined the Methodist church in early life and was assistant secretary of our Sunday school until he entered the U. S. Coast Guard. He always spoke in the highest terms of his church and his last letter that he wrote home was to the writer, which arrived two days after he was killed, with his conference collections paid in full.

May the God of love comfort the grief-stricken family and may we all meet him around God's white throne where parting will be no more in the prayer of my heart.

Luther Y. Gray.

BOBBITT—Mrs. Lucy Jane Bobbitt, wife of J. D. Bobbitt of Durham, N. C., died Tuesday morning, February 20, 1923, at her home on Markham street, following a very brief illness with pneumonia. She was born at Apex, N. C., February 21, 1884. She was buried on her 39th birthday. Sister Bobbitt was a member of the Methodist church and was actively interested in the religious and civic welfare of her community. She was married to Mr. Bobbitt 15 years ago and moved to Durham. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Walker of Apex, N. C.

Mrs. Bobbitt is survived by her husband and six children, three sisters, two brothers, six half-brothers, three half-sisters, an aged father and her step-mother, besides a large number of relatives and friends.

The funeral service was conducted from the home Wednesday afternoon, February 21, by her pastor, assisted by Rev. D. M. Sharpe, a former pastor, after which her remains were laid to rest in Maplewood cemetery to await the resurrection morn.

Her pastor, H. M. Wellman.

MERRITT—Owen F. Merritt, of Taylor's Bridge township, Sampson county, died November 12, 1922.

Brother Merritt belonged to one of the best families of his county—a son of pious, devout Christian parents, and grew up in an atmosphere congenial to right living. He joined Trinity Methodist church about the year 1886, and lived a consistent Christian life until he finished his earthly pilgrimage. He served as an official of his church and was a trustee when he died.

Brother Merritt was a matter-of-fact sort of man—loved the truth, and had a distinct disdain for sham and falsehood. He loved his church and ever sought to promote its cause. He was a good citizen of his community, ever standing for high ideals. He was a kind-hearted man, sympathetic with all who were in distress—a man of few words, gentle in his manner, but firm in his position for the right.

Perhaps his finest traits were those of husband and father. He loved devotedly his good wife and children.

He was a brother of Rev. W. C. Merritt, of the North Carolina conference, also D. W. Merritt of Bolton, N. C., H. H. Merritt, Dunn, N. C., A. S. Merritt and P. D. Merritt, Magnolia, N. C. His mother, Mrs. Phebe Merritt, Magnolia, N. C., still survives; also two sisters, Mrs. A. J. Merritt, Goldsboro, N. C., and Mrs. Chas. B. Page, Wallace, N. C. He leaves a wife and six children. He was about fifty-five years of age. He died of heart disease. May the blessings of God abide with his beloved family.

W. E. Hocutt.

KESLER—Mary Ann Charlotte Kesler, widow of the late Moses Kesler, departed this life March 8, 1923. This good woman was born October 27, 1837, age 86 years, four months, 11 days. She was the mother of nine children, three of whom have preceded her to the grave. The six living are: G. C. Kesler, with whom she made her home; Moses Kesler of Salisbury; George Kesler of Concord; Mrs. S. L. Canup of Salisbury; Mrs. Lindy Austin of Salisbury, and Sophia Lemley; also one step-son and step-daughter. She also leaves 41 grandchildren, 104 great-grandchildren and three great-great-grandchildren.

She became a member of the Methodist church when 18 years old, in which church she lived a faithful Christian life until she was called to her reward. May all the sorrowing relatives and friends meet her where parting is no more.

The writer has known this good woman for the past 39 years and I don't think there was a more faithful Christian woman than she. She told the family when she was taken sick that she would not be here long and was going home. So today she is wearing a crown of stars and singing praises of God. Her desire was for all her children to meet her in heaven.

The funeral service was held from the home of her former pastor, Rev. R. C. Kirk, and the body laid to rest in Chestnut Hill cemetery.

The children desire to thank the neighbors and friends for the kindness shown them during the sickness and after death of their mother. May the blessing of God rest upon them all.

Son-in-law.

"Backward, turn backward, oh Time, in your flight. Make me a child just again for tonight. Mother come back from the echoless shore, Take me again to your heart as of yore; Kiss from my forehead the furrows of care, Smooth the few silver threads out of my hair, Over my slumbers your loving watch keep. Rock me to sleep, Mother, rock me to sleep.

Backward, flow backward, O tide of the years!
I am so weary of toil and of tears,
Toil without recompense, tears all in vain,
Take them, and give me my childhood again!
I have grown weary of dust and decay,
Weary of flinging my soul-wealth away;
Weary of sowing for others to reap;
Rock me to sleep, mother—rock me to sleep!

* * * *

"Mother was one of those strong, restful, yet widely sympathetic natures, in whom all around seemed to find comfort and repose. She was of a temperament peculiarly restful and peace-giving. Her union of spirit with God, unruffled and unbroken even from early childhood, seemed to impart to her an equilibrium and healthful placidity that no earthly reserves ever disturbed."—Lyman Beecher.

* * * *

"God made mothers before He made ministers; the progress of Christ's kingdom depends more upon the influence of faithful, wise and pious mothers than upon any other human agency. My mother's discipline was loving but thorough. She never bribed me to good conduct with sugar plums; she praised every commendable deed heartily, for she held that an ounce of honest praise is often worth more than many pounds of punishment."—Theodore Cuyler.

TO MY MITHER AT HAME

Though wintry skies are wi' us here
And leaves are lyan' dank and sere,
The sun is smilin' ower there
And glintin' in yer silvered hair.
In summer's mellow golden hoors
I see ye walkin' 'mid the flooers,
Attendin' them wi' gentle hand,
As tho' it were the Lord's command.
Again, when mailin' ye a screed
(Which find I ken hoo aft ye'll read),
I see ye keekin' at the clock
And listenin' for the postie's knock.
I see ye gaun aboot yer trokes,
I hear ye laughin' at my jokes—
In fact, ye're in my fancy's e'e
By day and nicht whaue'er I be.
But mither, mark ye what I say,
It's comin' yet that wondrous day—
That golden croon o' a' my dreams—
When, spite o' everythin' that seems,
I'll wander hame, altho' 'tis late,
And find ye waitin' at the gate.
Guid-bye the noo, I'll say nae mair,
But juist repeat this fervent prayer:
God grant me this—aince mair tae trace
The holy beauty in yer face;
Tae hunker doon beside yer knee,
And feel yer hands caressin' me.

—W. A. T. in British Weekly.

THE CHARLOTTE DISTRICT

The Charlotte district with a membership according to the figures of last year that numbers 15,894 is one of the big districts of the Southern church. There are only seven districts in the entire connection with a larger church membership than the Charlotte. These are as follows:

Richmond, Va., 20,020; Charlottesville, Va., 18,180; South Atlanta, Ga., 17,421; Lynchburg, Va., 16,336; Petersburg, Va., 16,316; North Atlanta, Ga., 16,302; Birmingham, Ala., 15,894.

The Charlotte district has now just one-half as many members as there were white members in the entire North Carolina conference fifty-five years ago, when Rev. S. M. Davis, one of our superannuates, joined the conference.

Rev. Jas. B. Craven is the presiding elder of this great district and a busy man is he in the administration of affairs in that "moral vineyard."

J. B. Craven keeps a clear head on relative values. Essentials and non-essentials never get confused in his mind. Chaff is never mistaken for wheat, sound for sense or thunder for lightning. He keeps an eye on the things that are really worth while.

Hence in directing the affairs of the district conference, which held its annual session last Thursday and Friday at Morven, he held strictly to those items of business which were of prime importance and passed over the unessential matters. By adopting this method two days gave ample time to attend to such legal matters as licensing preachers, passing the character and renewing the licenses of local preachers, election of lay delegates to the annual conference and other items of a kindred sort. The visitors were given all the time needed to present their respective interests, the Centenary, the Sunday schools, the layman's work, education, missions and other great interests that lie near the heart of the church were discussed, and in addition to all this there was time for four sermons.

It was a busy, successful, interesting, and we believe, a profitable conference.

More people remained over in Morven for the night than we have seen at any conference this year. The geographical location of Morven in the extreme end of the district doubtless accounts for this. The large number who remained enjoyed the delightful entertainment provided by that hospitable town, as did all who feasted at the tables on the church yard each day at noon.

I might write at length of Rev. Seymour Taylor, who is now in his fourth year at Morven and is living in a new parsonage that is good enough for a prince, and who can as far as the people are concerned remain indefinitely, but I must give this space to his father, who is now on a visit to his son.

Mr. J. H. Taylor, the father of Seymour Taylor, is 97 years of age, has been a Methodist steward 75 years, and those who know him intimately say that he was never known to lose his temper. He is a veteran of the Civil War and enjoys incidents of army life. He is active and strong, can ride all day in an auto without apparent fatigue and appears to be a man in the seventies. He will in a few weeks return to his home in Boone.

My stay in company with Brother E. A. Cole at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Ratliff was delightful in every particular. A. W. P.

A SABBATH IN SALISBURY-SPENCER

During the early ministry of the business manager of the Advocate he enjoyed two delightful years in the railroad town of Spencer. The place has grown from a wayside station to a city of more than six thousand people since that time. The membership of our church has increased from about two hundred to nearly seven hundred. The salary of the pastor is more than three times what it was in 1902. A church building has been erected at a cost of about fifty thousand dollars and is one of the most convenient and beautiful houses of worship in the conference. Rev. Tom P. Jimison is the present leader of that congregation. He has won for himself a large place in the hearts of the people of Spencer. They love him and he fully reciprocates it. He is doing a work among the boys of the town that will tell on the community life for years to come. Brother Jimison is a good evangelistic preacher and receives many calls to assist in revival meetings. He was away last Sunday assisting Brother Clay at Gibsonville. The business manager had a fine congregation on Sunday night, and he fully enjoyed preaching to his old congregation, notwithstanding the fact that very few are there now who were there twenty years ago.

Main Street, Salisbury.

Rev. M. B. Woosley, the young pastor at Main Street, Salisbury, has as fine an opportunity to work for the upbuilding of the kingdom of God as any man that we know anything about at this time. He has a large membership in his church, and that part of the city is growing rapidly and his people are aggressive and enthusiastic. There is one thing that Brother Woosley and his people are forced to do, and that is to erect a larger and more modern church plant. A mistake was doubtless made when the present Sunday school building was erected that, in all probability, will have to be torn away with the old church. But it is not matter of choice with that excellent congregation. If it provides for the increasing congregation and growing Sunday school it will be necessary for a new house of worship to be erected in the near future.

Brother Woosley is doing a fine piece of work. He is greatly appreciated, and the people do not want any change this year. He looks after every interest of church work and keeps in touch with every movement of his people. They say he is a good preacher and deeply spiritual.

The writer tried to preach to a house full of people at this church on last Sunday morning and it was a joy to him to stand before such an appreciative congregation.

Woosley and Main Street are away up about the top in the matter of subscriptions to the Advocate.

First Church.

Rev. John F. Kirk, pastor of the First church of Salisbury, began a series of meetings with his people last Sunday. He has called Dr. Gilbert T. Rowe to his assistance. The first service was a very fine one. Every available seat in the church was occupied and Dr. Rowe was at his best. The meeting will continue for at least two weeks. Brother Kirk has just completed raising the indebtedness on the church building, and as soon as the collections can be made it is proposed to dedicate that magnificent house of worship. We were told that Brother Kirk is growing in popularity with his people and they feel that he is just entering upon a great pastorate at First church.

A PART DOES NOT INCLUDE THE WHOLE

Hasty induction, that is a generalization from a too limited number of individual cases, is not only false logic, but a serious error in everyday life. Christianity has not failed, as some seem to think, because one or two or even three or four preachers go wrong. All men are not liars because some men are. All men are not thieves because some men will steal. That some men will sell out is not conclusive proof that all men are for sale, and no man thinks so, except the man who is himself for sale. Whenever a man says, "Every man has his price," put it down once for all that he who utters such a dark saying is himself for sale. That man is judging other people by himself.

That some women are "soiled doves" is not proof that all women can be induced to surrender their chastity, and the man who prompted by such false logic declares that all women have their price should be ushered off to the department for the "criminal insane." For he has not only slandered his own mother, wife, sister, and daughter, but he has uttered a vile and gross slander against the mothers, wives, sisters and daughters of all other men.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Twenty years ago Henry Ford was a poor man, today he is the richest man in the world with a private fortune of over $500,000,000.

About twenty years ago the Wright brothers flew the first heavier-than-air machine over the sand dunes of Kitty Hawk, N. C. It was a short, wobbly flight. Only a few days ago two young army officers, Oakley G. Kelly and John A. MacReady, crossed the continent without a stop. These daring aviators left the Atlantic seaboard at 12:37 p. m. and arrived on the Pacific shore the following day at 12:27, which was 10 minutes less than a day when one eliminates the difference in time between the starting and the landing points.

What an age is this in which we live! The actual accomplishments thereof go far beyond the wildest dreams of men.

A STATEMENT BY THE BISHOPS

Whereas, the last General Conference in response to memorials from different sections of the church concerning loyalty to our standards of doctrines, for which as a church we have stood from the beginning—doctrines that have been the foundation and substance of our message through all the years; and

Whereas, the General Conference appointed a special committee on standards of doctrine to which all memorials on the doctrines of the church were referred; and

Whereas, this special committee submitted a report to the General Conference, which report was adopted by an almost unanimous vote on May 16th, 1922; and

Whereas, this report reaffirmed in no uncertain way the necessity for fidelity to the "time honored and universally accepted doctrines of our Methodism"; and

Whereas, this report called "upon all annual conferences, boards of trustees of institutions of learning, and other responsible officers of our church to take all necessary steps to banish and drive away all erroneous and strange doctrines to God's word"; and

Whereas, there continues in some sections of the church hurtful agitation on the subject of the doctrinal teaching of some of our preachers and teachers, at home and in the foreign fields, causing confusion, discouragement and divisions among our people, and resulting in some cases in the repudiation of financial obligations already made and in defeating in some degree the evangelistic program of the church;

Therefore, resolved:

First, That we call the attention of the Board of Missions, the secretaries of the Board of Missions and the committees on candidates to the facts as set out above and urge that great care be exercised in selecting men and women for the mission fields of the church, and especially on the points of doctrinal soundness, personal experience and fidelity to the church.

Second, That we strongly recommend that any missionaries who may find themselves out of harmony with the doctrine or polity of the church and are unable to accept the doctrinal statement of the General Conference, be discontinued as representatives of our church on the mission fields.

Third, We pledge ourselves to keep before our brethren and sisters who are charged especially with the responsibility of training our young men and women for Christian work, the importance of looking carefully to the doctrinal and experimental soundness of teachers in our schools and institutes.

Fourth, That we name a committee of three, of whom our chairman shall be a member, to bring this action to the attention of the Board of Missions, the missionary secretaries and to the active heads of our schools and institutes.

Presented to the Board of Missions at its session May 1-4, 1923, on motion received and concurred in unanimously by the board.

PEOPLE AND THINGS

Western North Carolina Conference, October 17.
North Carolina Conference, November 14.

"Announcing the arrival of Mary Ethel on 26th April, 1923. Mr. and Mrs. D. T. Poole, St. Pauls, N. C."

Rev. J. M. Ormond of Trinity College is this week holding revival services at the Methodist Orphanage at Raleigh.

The Methodist folks of West Durham are in a meeting this week led by their pastor, J. W. Bradley. Splendid attendance and much interest is shown.

Mrs. E. P. Hayes of Randleman did the Advocate the honor to call last Friday and spend a little while in the office. The visit of this good friend of the paper was greatly enjoyed.

"Mr. and Mrs. Wilber C. Lloyd announce the marriage of their daughter, Lelia Hermina to Mr. Samuel Hillard Barber on Saturday, the fifth of May, nineteen hundred and twenty-three, Columbus, Ohio."

Rev. J. E. Abernethy on April 29 received 43 into Trinity church by vows and eight by letter. This makes a total of 94 for this conference year. Brother Abernethy is having a very successful pastorate at Trinity, Charlotte.

"Reverend and Mrs. Lewis Edward Sawyer invite you to be present at the marriage of their daughter, Susanna Peele, to Mr. Douglas Marvin Clarkson, Thursday morning, May the twenty-fourth, at nine o'clock. At home, Maysville, North Carolina."

The revival services at Broad Street, Statesville, are largely attended and the people of that city greatly enjoyed the preaching of Rev. W. W. Peele. His good gospel messages cannot fail to prove of great value to all who hear this gifted minister.

Rev. and Mrs. E. C. Glenn have been in Greensboro for the last week. Mrs. Glenn is here under the care of a physician and her husband is with her. It may be necessary for them to remain several days yet before returning to their home at Rocky Mount, N. C.

Rev. E. O. Hobbs, one of our general evangelists who lives in Louisville, Ky., is assisting Rev. R. A. Truitt in a meeting at Bethel church, Greensboro. The services began last Sunday and will continue ten days or two weeks. The prospects are good for a fine revival.

Rev. H. C. Sprinkle and family are now comfortable and happy in the new district parsonage which is located at No. 20 Highland street, Asheville. The new parsonage is an excellent building, well furnished with new furniture and will meet every need of the presiding elder and his family.

The union evangelistic services at Reidsville began last Sunday night with 3,000 in attendance at Pinnix warehouse. The evangelist, Rev. Mr. Brown, did not arrive till Tuesday evening when he delivered his first sermon. Reidsville has made great preparations for this series of meetings.

The two weeks meeting at Kerr Street church, Concord, closed last Sunday night. It is said to have been one of the most successful revivals in the history of the church. Rev. D. V. York, who did the preaching, is now with Rev. M. A. Osborn in evangelistic services at Epworth, Concord.

Rev. J. A. J. Farrington, pastor of Southside, Winston-Salem, has been in a hospital for three weeks suffering from a severe attack of sciatica. He is better now, but may be laid up for a week or more yet. We sincerely trust that Brother Farrington may soon find relief from this painful affliction.

Rev. M. A. Osborne, from Epworth, Concord, writes: "Our church has been in debt more or less for the past sixteen years—ever since the church was moved to its present location. In 1921 and 1922 that debt was increased by about ten or twelve thousand dollars. We can see far enough ahead to say that by June first that debt, which is now about $8,000, is going to be wiped out, and in the language of the chairman of the board of stewards, 'We feel that we can then go out and ask people for their souls instead of their money.' Well, it is going to be a great day for us. We will let you hear from us later concerning the matter."

Rev. L. B. Hayes will next Sunday begin revival services at Park Place, Greensboro; to continue one week. Dr. E. K. McLarty will do the preaching. There will be services each evening at eight o'clock but no day services.

"The pleasure of your company is requested at the marriage of Lillian Myrtle Baber with the Rev. Lee Anderson Falls on Wednesday morning, the thirtieth of May, at eight o'clock, San Angelo Chapel, Brevard Institute, Brevard, North Carolina. At home after the fifteenth of June, Brevard, North Carolina."

Rev. L. B. Jones, our affable and successful pastor at Sanford, spent a few hours in Greensboro last Monday. It is always a pleasure for us to have the privilege of a chat with him or to take a ride in his Franklin. He reports success all along the line at Sanford. He speaks highly also of the work of his presiding elder, Rev. R. H. Willis.

Bishop Quayle comes of seafaring folk. None of his forbears (until his own father) died in bed. They went down with their fisherman's barks. They were true Manxmen. The poetry, wizardry of the island is in two of its greatest literary masters, Hall Caine and William Alfred Quale.—Central Christian Advocate.

Rev. P. E. Parker says that up to Monday night there has been 42 professions at South Thomasville, where he is assisting Rev. J. C. Richardson in a meeting. The meeting that Brother Parker held at East Thomasville resulted in 12 accessions with four others to join and the Sunday school has increased from 35 to 100.

Ever since that far away day when Bishop James Cannon, Jr., and this writer walked together about the haunts of Burns in Ayr, he has had a large place in our affections, as previous to that and all the while, he has had the place which independence of character, clear judgment, and courage always win.—Central Christian Advocate.

"Yesterday, fifth Sunday in June, was Laymen's Day at Hopewell. All the churches represented except Lee's Chapel and Calvary. Several of the brethren made talks on finance, Sunday school and general work of the church. The singing was splendid. We had morning service, dinner on the ground and afternoon round table discussion. Fifth Sunday in July we meet at Pollockville." This interesting message is from Rev. L. E. Sawyer.

Brother T. A. Groce has been released from the work of district evangelist in the Waynesville district by Bishop Denny and appointed to do service among the soldiers at Oteen. The emergency need of this work among our sick boys is so great that the Methodist churches of Asheville are financing the move till conference, when other and permanent arrangements must be made to meet the expenses of a man for full time service at this point.

Rev. R. E. Wood, the pastor, says that the Green-Newsom meeting held at Iotla on the Franklin circuit came to a close Sunday night, May 6th. The meeting was a success in many ways. The gospel sermons were edifying and uplifting. The singing was soul-stirring. Sinners were converted, backsliders reclaimed, and a goodly number of believers were filled with the Holy Spirit in His sanctifying power. Our church and community were greatly blessed. May the Lord richly bless these godly men as they go forth in their great work.

Rev. M. W. Mann, East End, Gastonia, writes: "We have just closed a very successful revival. Rev. Marvin W. Hester of the North Carolina conference was with us and did the preaching. Brother Hester is a forceful speaker, is earnest and is consecrated throughout. He preaches the pure undiluted gospel without compromise. He 'reproves, rebukes, exhorts with all longsuffering and doctrine' and makes no apologies. While there was not the visible results that are so many times expected, yet we feel confident that the meeting will have lasting and far-reaching influence for good. While writing permit me also to mention a pounding received. At the close of the meeting the preacher's family was pounded—not with soda, and rice, and potatoes, but nevertheless was pounded. We were presented with a real brand new automobile—a Star—and a star it is. Thanks to Brother Hester and Bro. W. C. Withers for promoting the project, and to Bro. J. H. Separk, his fine Sunday school class, the S. & D. Motor Co. and others who responded so beautifully and liberally towards the Star. God bless them all and daily we make mention of them in our prayers."

Rev. G. T. Bond, pastor of Spring Garden church, this city, preached the commencement sermon before the graduating class of the Pleasant Garden schools last Sunday. He will render the same service at the closing of the Randleman school next Sunday.

Dr. M. Bradshaw of Durham called at the Advocate office last Tuesday while we were at lunch, and in consequence we missed his visit. We regret this exceedingly. No man gets a warmer welcome here than he. Come again, Doctor, but come when we are in.

Rev. M. Bradshaw, pastor of Memorial church, Durham, was a visitor in the Advocate office Tuesday afternoon. We regret very much that we missed him. Brother Bradshaw underwent a surgical operation early in the year and has been forced to take a long rest, but we are glad to know that he is rapidly regaining his strength and hopes to take up his work again in the near future. He has a circle of friends as wide as his acquaintance, and all will rejoice when this good brother is back in his pulpit.

Rev. Jacob Simpson, a local preacher in the Southern Methodist church for forty-nine years, a veteran of the Civil War and for the past forty-one years a resident of the city of Concord, passed away Friday morning at 9:30 o'clock at his home on Simpson street. Mr. Simpson suffered a stroke of paralysis Tuesday afternoon, which until his death rendered him entirely unconscious. The funeral services were held in the Forest Hill Methodist church on Sunday afternoon at two o'clock and were conducted by his pastor, Rev. J. Frank Armstrong, assisted by several pastors of the city. All Civil War veterans of the city and county were asked to act as honorary pallbearers.—Times.

DAVENPORT COLLEGE "HOME COMING"

The local members of Davenport alumnae association are planning a "home coming" of all former students during commencement, May 21-23. We are preparing to entertain all visiting alumnae in our homes.

In mailing invitations we find our alumnae register so incomplete that it will be impossible to mail everyone an invitation. We are therefore extending through the Advocate an invitation to all former students to be present in Lenoir May 21-23.

There will be a banquet in the college dining hall Monday evening, May 21. We hope to have a great many visiting alumnae. If you can come be sure to notify Mrs. Will M. Goforth not later than May 15 if possible.

"I am sorry for any one who can not have the pleasure and benefit of a year's subscription to our church paper. I am enclosing a check for $2.00. Perhaps you can look around and find some one who would be glad to have the pleasure and the spiritual profit of a year's subscription to our Advocate, which deals largely in the precious things of the spirit." Thus wrote a good woman, enclosing her check for a year's subscription to be sent to another person. If our pastors could realize the great service the Advocate is to them in their work they would not be satisfied till it is more largely circulated in their congregations.

MOTHER

by

Roscoe C. Medlin

The arrival of this newcomer, Mother's Day, in the calendar of our national festivities is significant. That a day so rich in sentiment, so tender in meaning, should be officially adopted in a country which scoffs at sentiment and prides itself on its veneer of practicality is a hopeful sign. Like the old divining rod of old, it reveals underneath the crust of commercialism a perennial spring of idealism.

Mother's Day dates back into the old pagan idea of mother worship when a day was set apart to worship the "Mother of the Gods." Then the people made sacrifices and gave offerings which served the purpose of expressing their love for all mothers when they worshipped the "Mother of Gods."

When Christianity was introduced this pagan worship was abandoned for the elevated form of mother reverence. It was the custom for the faithful to visit the churches in which they were baptized and brought up, bearing gifts to the altar. This in itself grew to a form of Mother's Day, when once a year the sons and daughters visited their mothers bearing simple gifts which expressed the honor and reverence which they had for their mothers. One can readily imagine the joy and delight which the performance of this simple duty gave to the mothers and children.

After all what can equal a mother's love? The most perfect love on earth. The love that enables the mother to make a sacrifice for her children. To wash, scrub, iron and slave her life away to make something of her children. The love that will cause mothers to live in want and poverty, to go without food and clothing, to do without many things that they really need in order that John or Mary might have an education, that son or daughter might some day be something in this world. Many times the child fulfills the heart's desire of the mother, many times the son or daughter makes a name to be proud of. Then the old mother who has labored in poverty may point to this leading man or woman of the nation and say, "That's my boy, or my girl. I labored and slaved to give them an education and now I am proud of them. I count myself doubly paid for all the work I ever did. I feel repaid for going without clothing when I needed it in order to keep them in school."

What can equal a mother's love? There is in this cold and hollow world no other fount of deep, strong, deathless love like that within a mother's heart. A mother's love is indeed the golden link that binds youth to age, and he is still but a child, however time may have furrowed his cheek or silvered his brow, who can yet recall with softened heart the fond devotions of the best friend that God ever gave us. A mother's love is like a guiding star, sending out its beacon of love and hope to that erring child where'er he may be. Never is man so far from home, never has he tried to break old ties of love and friendship, but that some time he will feel the effects of his mother's prayers and love reach out to him. Fathers may fail him, brothers and sisters may desert him, but still a mother's heart is true. Still mother cannot believe that he is all bad. Very truly did Montgomery say: "A mother's love, how sweet the name. What is a mother's love? A noble, pure and tender flame, enkindled from above. To bless a heart of earthly mold; the warmest love that can't grow cold—this is a mother's love."

The mother in her office holds the key of the soul; and she it is who stamps the coin of character, makes the being who would be a savage but for her gentle cares a Christian man. Who has the influence of a mother? Who is able to fashion and mold the character of the coming generations as the mothers? In the mother's hands is the future of the world, and it is for the mothers to determine what the future is to be. Whether the world shall continue to grow in power, civilization and the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ or whether the future is to be sullied and black. God grant that woman suffrage will give to womankind that knowledge which its promoters said it would—a better, fuller and deeper knowledge of the world so that mothers will be more able to rear their children to combat the evils which now confront us. A good mother is the next best thing to heaven, it is said, and how true it is. What does the world owe to its good mothers? It owes its Washingtons, its Wilsons, its Franklins, and all men who have shone out like stars in heaven in the history of the world. It owes its missionary martyrs who have gladly placed their lives on the altar of God to save the world from sin; the men who have struggled and toiled and preached and prayed and died in the depths of Africa and other heathen nations that the world might be prepared for the coming of the Lord; the men who have led in the professions and trades, who have given up everything to discover something of benefit to mankind—all this does the world owe to good mothers. But a sully on motherhood are the bad mothers. A bad woman is the worst thing on earth, it is said. What does the world owe to its bad mothers? It owes its bums and its thieves, its dirty, filthy tenement districts in its big cities, its red light districts, and all that tend to disgrace a city. The woman who has borne a child but without a spark of motherhood in her is a menace to our nation. She it is who is the mother of our thieves, our murderers and our law-breakers.

God could not be everywhere, therefore He made mothers. A mother is the best thing on earth—a good mother—one to guide a boy's or girl's footsteps through life, to shape and fashion the young lives that as they grow older they might shine out like stars in heaven to proclaim to the world the greatness and glory of mothers. A mother was placed on earth, it seems to me, to take the place of God, to point out to the erring ones the road to heaven and finally in the world beyond. Mothers should rest in the arms of Jesus and receive their just reward. Boys and girls, make the most of your mothers while you have them. Don't let them want for anything that it is in your power to give them. Don't snap them off crossly when things don't suit you. "Honor thy father and thy mother that thy days might be long upon the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee." Our God in His ten commandments gives four to tell our duty to God, six others to tell our duty to our fellowman. The first of the six is our duty to father and mother. Even God placed duty to parents first after duty to God. Don't after you have gone to mother during your childhood for pity, cheer and encouragement, don't when you grow up and become successful in business, leave poor old mother to battle alone for a living or to go to the poor house. There is a beautiful story of a forsaken mother. An old woman was in a depot with a pass to the poorhouse. She missed the 3:20 train and had to wait until 1:05 a. m. for the next train. When the day agent left, he cautioned the night agent to see that the old lady was comfortable. But no sooner was the day agent gone than the night agent stretched out on the table and went to sleep.

But to tell it in the words of the author. "The fire had gone down, it was a cold night and the wind howled dismally outside. The lamps grew dim and flared, casting weird shadows on the wall. By and by I heard a smothered sob from the corner, then another. I looked. She had risen from her seat, and oh, the look of agony on the poor pinched face.

"I can't believe it! I can't believe it! My babies! How often have I held them in my arms and kissed them, and how often have they said to me, 'I love you, mama,'—and now, oh God! they've turned against me. Where am I going—to the poorhouse! No! No! I cannot! I will not! Oh, the disgrace!"

And sinking on her knees she sobbed out in prayer, "Oh God, spare me this and take me home; oh God, spare me this disgrace, spare me!"

At last she became quieter and ceased to moan. Then after twelve o'clock someone entered the station with the brightest light I had ever seen. It seemed to fill the place full of glory. I could see the person was a man. He walked to the kneeling figure and touched her on the shoulder. She started up and turned her face wildly around. He said, "Tis train time, ma'am; come!"

She whispered, "I am ready."

"Then give me your pass, ma'am."

She handed him a worn old book which he took and from it read aloud, "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest."

"That's the pass over our road, ma'am. Are you ready? Come."

Oh, don't treat mother like that after she has toiled and slaved all through life for you. Give her a happy ending to her days—free to do as she wishes. Don't neglect mother.

If you have a gray-haired mother, in an old home far away, Sit down and write her a letter; don't put it off from day to day.

If you have a tender message or a loving word to say,

Don't wait until you forget it, but whisper it today. Don't wait until her weary feet reach heaven's pearly gate.

But show her that you think of her before it is too late.

Be good to mother. Even He that died upon the cross for us, in the last hour, in the unutterable agony of death was mindful of His mother as if to teach us that this holy love should be our last worldly thought, the last point of earth from which the soul should take its flight to heaven. Follow the example of Christ. Accept the love which mother is eager to pour out for you, for the mother's love is that which points the nation to heaven, that by which the nations of earth are kept from savagery and led to the Christ. God grant that the United States will be given good mothers—mothers fit to rear children to fear God, to keep His commandments and to lead our nation victorious in this and all coming time.

AN APPRECIATION

At six o'clock on Sunday afternoon, April 29, 1923, the gentle redeemed spirit of Mrs. T. J. Dailey departed this life and went to be forever with her Lord in the "land of pure delight where saints immortal reign." For forty-two years she had been the devoted, faithful helpmeet of an honored itinerant Methodist preacher.

Miss Amanda Blackwell Watlington was born in Caswell county, N. C., November 19, 1850. On the third day of November, 1871, she was happily married to Mr. T. J. Dailey. To this union were born five children. From the parsonage in Taylorsville, N. C., a beautiful little babe was taken from them and carried to the mansions above, who, after a third of a century of waiting, on last Sunday afternoon was among the first to greet and welcome "mother" to the glory land. Her life was beautifully impressed upon the remaining two daughters and two sons, who are Mrs. A. G. Egerton, New York, Mr. E. E. Dailey, Wilmington, N. C., Mr. T. J. Dailey, Jr., White Oak, N. C., and Miss Roberta Dailey, Cary, N. C. These children without an exception rise up and call her blessed. All of them with the husband stood beside the bed and tearfully watched as she breathed her last. How pathetic and yet how sublime. Each could say "farewell" but not forever. For seven long weary weeks love and sympathy exhausted themselves endeavoring to stay the dread monster, but the Father needed her and had ordered otherwise. During this long illness one of the children said: "It is strange that mother should suffer so much when she had rendered such beautiful service to her Lord." The father answered: "Job was a man perfect and upright and one that feared God and eschewed evil, and he suffered greatly by the will of God, and why should not we suffer patiently if it be the will of the Lord?" The untiring devotion of husband and children was beautiful and was commented on by many who witnessed it.

The mother love was so definite and powerful in her that each child was a gift from God, committed to her to be nurtured for His glory. She lived not for herself but for others. How wonderfully and beautifully she exemplified those Christian graces of gentleness, kindness, meekness, patience. These were beautifully evidenced both at home and abroad.

To her a call to the ministry was a divine bestowment of honor upon a chosen servant of His; and when, nearly a decade after their marriage, her husband heard and answered the call she felt that God was calling her to co-operate with him in any way possible, and the wealth of her love and faith were poured into the service of her Lord in whatever field to which they were sent for stewardship.

At the cemetery just after the funeral rites had been concluded, the grief-stricken husband remarked to the writer, "In her passing the light has gone out of my life." Her life has left to her loved ones a priceless heritage.

FREMONT REVIVAL

The revival services began in the Fremont church the fourth Sunday in April and continued with increasing interest through the fifth Sunday, closing on Tuesday night, May 1st. Rev. L. D. Hayman of Weldon came to us on Monday of the first week and did the preaching throughout the series. Brother Hayman is a good, practical gospel preacher and his messages made a profound impression on the church and the entire community. We have been blessed with a deep work of grace, the church greatly revived and seventeen souls were added to the church as a direct result of the meeting.

I am inclined to speak a word about our men's meeting, which added no little interest to the success of the revival. Something more than a year ago, and at the beginning of our first revival here, the pastor called the men of the church to meet each morning at the church at six o'clock for half an hour's meditation and prayer. The attendance was remarkably good all through those days of the revival season. The impressions made on the men were so profound a desire was expressed that the special services be perpetuated in some manner. So it was decided that the men be called to the church every Thursday morning, just once a week, and now these meetings have been kept up right on the past year and will be kept running in the same manner. The effect of these services is very marked on those who attend, also the effect on the community is wonderful. The men generally are very regular in attendance, not so many in number, but men of serious purpose in life come and go away with a great seriousness. There is one physician in the "band of God touched men" who has missed but one meeting, and he was so far away he could not be here—off on his vacation—but wrote me regarding his absence. God is wonderfully blessing these men. So there need be no wonder at the fine revival in Fremont. There is a reason. J. A. Dailey.

SZECHOSLOVAKIA

Religious Situation.

The history of Bohemia centers around John Huss and the great religious principles for which he stood; namely, services in the language of the people, an open Bible for all the people, the communion in both kinds, with freedom of thought and action in religious matters.

Notwithstanding this, however, 90 per cent of the citizenship of Czechoslovakia is Roman Catholic. Much has been said in America concerning the people's turning away from Roman Catholicism. Thousands have left the Roman Catholic church, but these thousands have made a very little indentation in the Roman Catholic church.

The great leaders of Czechoslovakia are without religion and have been without religion for years and years. They rebelled against the superstition of Rome and turned to the other extreme, which was denial of a Deity and all religion. Most of the university professors, judges, leading attorneys, and professional men of every type, editors and others do not believe in God. It is a tragic situation.

Next in size to the Roman Catholic church would be what is called the Czecho-Slovak, or the National church. This church is composed of those priests and men and women who left the Roman Catholic church in a body about time of the creation of the Czechoslovak republic. They have accepted ordination at the hands of the Servian church, which is really Greek Catholic. This organization is anti-Catholic and patriotic, but of very little, if any, spiritual value. The only difference between the Roman Catholic church is that the priests claim the right to marry, the service is held in the Czech language and the communion is administered in both kinds. The moral standards are no higher than those of the church of Rome. It does give, however, an opportunity to build a better spiritual structure.

The next largest group is known as the Czech Brethren Evangelical and is operating only in Bohemia and Moravia. Four years ago an effort was made to unite all existing Protestant organizations into one organization. Only the Lutherans and Calvinists in Moravia and Bohemia joined hands. The Czech Brethren Evangelical church is the result. In Slovakia and Podkarpatska Rus the Lutheran church is still in existence and is the strongest Protestant factor in this section. There are also here and there a few Calvinistic churches.

No discussion of religious matters should leave out the Jew. One city in Podkarpatska Rus; namely, Munkacevo, boasts twenty-eight Jewish synagogues.

The Baptists have work scattered from one end of the republic to the other. Some of the Baptists claim to go back to the Waldensians. They are an aggressive group, and with the immense amount of money being sent them from America and England, they are laying plans for a great forward movement. Blessings upon them.

The American Congregational church has been at work in Bohemia and Moravia for about fifty years. Their church is very small, but it is a great spiritual factor. They hold absolutely to the necessity for regeneration through faith in Jesus Christ, the fundamental doctrines of the Bible as taught by the fathers and a holy life on the part of every minister and the church membership. They are far more spiritual than the parent church in America.

The smallest group, and yet the most historical group, is the Moravian church. They have but few congregations. Their influence, however, is deeply felt. They are not aggressive. Their doctrines, however, are very similar to our Methodist standards.

Spiritually Czechoslovakia is just about as dead as it is possible for a country to be. Ministers of the Czecho-Slovak, Czech Brethren Evangelical and Lutheran churches drink and do other things which are very abhorrent to an American Christian. Religion to them is a formal matter and does not reach the great heart centers. In the Czech Brethren Evangelical church there are many good men; on the other hand, there are many who deny the deity of Christ and who tear from the heart of the Bible its most precious elements.

Unless their leadership changes in spiritual power, Czechoslovakia cannot hope for redemption through them.

All the churches named, except the Congregational and the Baptist, receive aid from the government. In other words, they are all state churches. The constitution of Czechoslovakia provides for the separation of church and state, but this separation has never been completed, and it appears that many years will pass before it is, if ever, consummated.

What Methodism Is Doing.

There are many in America who thought, and still think, that Methodism should not have gone into this Republic of Czechoslovakia to establish a church. Their feeling is that we should have supported existing Protestant bodies. If Methodism should have established a church in England, and if there was need for Methodism to establish her own congregations in America, there has been, and is now, a much greater need for her to establish congregations throughout this republic. The existing Protestant bodies in England in Wesley's time were just as capable, even more so, to propagate the gospel of Jesus Christ as are the existing bodies in Czechoslovakia today. The Protestant bodies of America were better able to evangelize and hold steady the spiritual forces of America in the early days, without the aid of Methodism, than are the existing forces in Czechoslovakia. If I could command the language, I would make the above statement even stronger. With the exception of the Moravian church, there is no Christian body in all the world as closely allied to John Huss and the religious revival following his death, as the Methodist church. The existing Protestant bodies of Czechoslovakia, with the exception of the Moravians, derive their spiritual history from other sources. It is Calvinist, Lutheran, Baptist or Roman Catholic. Methodism, to a great extent, owes her spiritual fervor and her spiritual genius to the influence of the Moravian church on John Wesley. No other organization in all the world has more right to preach the pure gospel of Jesus Christ throughout this republic than Methodism.

Rev. Josef Dobes, at the time a missionary to the Bohemians in Texas, knew this history and his heart burned to bring the message back to his own people. The Board of Missions of our church gave him the privilege, and today we have more than five thousand applicants for church membership, with three well organized presiding elder districts. One year ago we had eight well organized churches. Today we have twenty-two.

The Sunday school is growing with a rapidity which is astonishing.

We are planning to enter the four largest cities in Czechoslovakia, outside Prague, this summer—namely, Brno, Budejovice, Bratislava and Pilsen. It is our earnest hope and prayer that these evangelistic efforts will meet with the same success our other efforts have met. To date we have not entered these cities because we did not have sufficient forces to conserve the results of such an evangelistic effort. The first term of our Biblical Seminary will close in May. We are proud of the fact that we have been able to give one year's good work to some very fine young men. These young men will continue their work in the seminary through a period of four years. At the same time, however, they will be able to supply the congregations opened in the cities named above.

What Czechoslovakia needs is the pure gospel of Jesus Christ preached and lived before its people. This the Methodist church is trying to do.

IF I COULD CALL HER BACK

If I could call her back for one short hour,
Who was, of love and truth, so fair a flow'r
And see her lovely face and smiling eye,
Just as they were, ere she was called to die,
I'd tell her how, that sad and lonely day,
Our spirits grieved when they took her away;
And, how we missed her footsteps at the door,
To which we knew she would return no more!

If I could call her back, for just one day,
I'd say so many things I failed to say,
'Till it was all too late, and she was dead,
Her gentle spirit to its God had fled,
And left us with the mockery of flow'rs—
Though dewed with tears, and culled from blooming bow'rs
And to our cries her dull cold ears were deaf,
Which ne'er before were turned away from grief.

PROGRESS AT WARRENVILLE

As I haven't seen anything in the Advocate from this part of the moral vineyard I will give a little sketch of our church work. Bro. F. H. West, our pastor, came here last December, and this being a new circuit we did not have any parsonage ready for him. So we have been all winter getting up funds and material to build a home for our pastor. Brother West being a good carpenter as well as a good preacher, has the contract to build the parsonage and hopes to have it ready to move into soon. We have a splendid new church erected here and hope to soon complete the church and then have a union protracted meeting, where all the members of the churches can come together and all feel at home and worship together to the glory of God and not for self.

We run a Sunday school and prayer meeting here. Brother West is doing a good work here, and he is well liked by all his churches and other denominations. We are looking forward to and praying for a great revival of genuine religion during the coming year.

I have been a reader of the Advocate for a good many years, and I think it is getting better all the while.

Brother John Green came here last June and held a ten days' meeting. He may never know the good he did here in this life. I hear he has a good paying charge. He deserves a good one. I am a well wisher to the Advocate.
A Reader.

THE YOUNGVILLE CIRCUIT

At our first and second quarterly conferences Brother Wooten was at his best in preaching two sermons of much comfort and great power. We had a fine large communion service at Youngville. The motion was carried increasing the salary one hundred dollars, also a pounding motion was made of circuit wide proportions. This motion that each church send in a poundage has been in a large measure carried out. Youngville reached the climax with a very near fifty dollar poundage. Many families have continuously remembered us with many nice things. During the winter in our sickness the neighbors were especially kind to us. The Lord has been so gracious to us all. For all these tokens of love we are truly grateful to the people and the Lord.

We have good prospects of paying off the parsonage debt of long standing. 'Tis tragic to see the wonderful opportunity of the work and yet the need of this is a consecrated local leadership in each community. Franklin is a county of wonderful agricultural resources. This is a typical landowner absentee and tenant charge in the country section of it.
T. S. Coble.

GOOD REVIVAL AT EAST HIGH POINT

We are entering upon the second week of our revival today. Bro. R. A. Taylor has been preaching very earnestly for the past week, and God has abundantly poured out His spirit upon the people of this community. There has been a large number of conversions and reclamations, and 18 have already given their names for membership in the church. People were turned away yesterday for lack of room. We have had extra good singing, led by Bro. John Dixon of Ramseur. The meeting will not close before May 13th. Pray for us.
E. J. Harbison.

A SPECIAL SERVICE AT MOUNT PLEASANT CHURCH

Old Mt. Pleasant church on the Haw River circuit, N. C. conference, was at one time an influential Methodist stronghold. Gradually, however, many of her members moved away in the mad rush to the cities; still others organized other Methodist churches in her borders, until some of her daughters became stronger than she. People came to think of Mt. Pleasant with sacred memory—sacred only in the past and remembered only for what she had been. They thought of the vast cemetery as place where loved ones were buried, and a place where they themselves would perhaps also be buried. The church became much dilapidated. But I am writing to tell you that Mt. Pleasant has taken on new life. The church building is being repaired and painted. Soon it will be again one of the prettiest and best country churches in the N. C. conference. Truly the "walls of Jerusalem" are being rebuilt.

It is our purpose to hold a memorial and home-coming service on May 27th. We invite all friends, former members and especially former pastors to be present. The program for the day will be as follows:

11 a. m. A sermon, after which a decoration service will be held in the cemetery.
1:00 p. m. Lunch.
2:30 p. m. Reunion; speaking by various friends.
John R. Edwards, P. C.

FIRST CHURCH, ELIZABETH CITY

Some time ago the pastors of Elizabeth City agreed to hold their revival services simultaneously. Some of the smaller churches were unable to join in the movement for one reason or another, but the six leading churches, three Baptist, two Methodist and the Episcopal, arranged to hold a simultaneous evangelical campaign April 15th to 29th. As a preliminary April 8th members of the churches in twos, representing each two denominations, canvassed the city and got the names, addresses, church relationship and preference of the white people and the ages of the children. Also whether or not they went to Sunday school. These facts proved of tremendous help to us in the work we did.

It was the first time that the simultaneous effort had been made in this place and there was considerable skepticism about its working. I think that all were satisfied that there is great power and opportunity in such a meeting. We desired to have a union day service, but found this impossible. So each church arranged its own hour for day service. This also worked well, for there was a natural desire on the part of the different congregations to hear the men who were preaching in the sister churches. The day services made this possible without leaving their own service. The attendance was said to be better in each church than had been heretofore when each had a separate meeting. The whole community was impressed, the workers from one church often did worthy service for other churches. A spirit of union and co-operation ruled. It is too early to state the results, but probably nearly 150 will come into the various churches.

It was our pleasure at First church to have Dr. E. K. McLarty of Wesley Memorial church, High Point, as our preacher. All who know Dr. McLarty know that that means that we had a man who threw himself into the work. Zeal, power, prayer, learning, unction—he possesses every needed quality and he used them freely for us. Many of our people responded with whole-hearted co-operation. The congregations were larger than had been in other meetings. A deep spirit of thoughtful and reverent earnestness was upon them. A large number resolved to lead a more consecrated life. The church was revived and blessed. Up to the present I have received twenty by letter and twenty-two on profession. Ten had joined Easter Sunday, making fifty-two received during the month of April. But with all this it only made more evident that a church cannot wisely depend wholly or even largely upon the annual revival. We hope that we will be able to plan and secure such organized activity that the good work may go on and on.
N. H. D. Wilson.

BALM GROVE EVANGELISTIC CAMPAIGN

Balm Grove a few years ago was a country church and constituted a part of the historic old Sulphur Springs circuit. Many a battle was fought and many a victory won for the Captain of our salvation in the old church in the heroic days of pioneer Methodism. The names of those devout men and women whose memories should be cherished deserve to be written in the bead-roll of the world's worthies. Hard by stands the old brick dwelling of "Uncle" John Reynolds, a noted pioneer itinerant preacher of the Holston conference. This home occupies a conspicuous point in what is now known as Westwood Place and was the first residence erected west of the French Broad river. Much might be said in praise of this venerable patriarch who so faithfully served his generation by the will of God and left to his posterity the rich heritage of a good name. "Emigravit might be written on the tombstone where he lies"—for the good man never dies.

The new Balm Grove church is a slightly, commodious building and occupies the site of the old one. It is picturesquely situated in a grove of stately native oak trees in the center of West Asheville and has a membership of about seven hundred. Their pastor, the Rev. Dr. L. W. Colson, started an evangelistic campaign in this church on the fourth Sunday in April by preaching an appropriate and inspiring sermon. Dr. Ashley Chappel had been engaged to do all the preaching during the two weeks.

Our conference was fortunate in securing these two able ministers as transfers from other conferences. One hails from the land of the long leaf pine and the other beyond the Mississippi river. Both are worthy and well qualified. Both of them have a genius for friendship. But what of the herald and his messages? The writer was present at most of the services and had a chance to renew his youth like the eagle. "It is well said, in every sense," Carlyle tells us in his "Hero Worship," "that a man's religion is the chief fact about him." The beauty of holiness is far more resplendent than mere brilliancy of intellect. Our brother was genuinely converted when a boy—twelve years old. He has tasted the powers of the world to come and there is no cloud on his title to a heavenly inheritance. His sermons are logic on fire. He is too deeply stirred by vital passion for souls to indulge in the mere declamations of the brilliant rhetorician. Sometimes his preaching rises to the pitch of the sublime and then you are reminded of Wm. Elbert Munsey, the sublimest preacher America ever produced.

Dr. Chappel, however, has a strong sense of humor and occasionally becomes anecdotal. He is thoroughly evangelistic—his sermons are lucid expositions of great gospel themes. His appeals to the unconverted are searching and powerful. Sometimes in tender, soothing, touching tones he seeks to win the sinner for his Divine Lord. At such times the tones of his voice are like the soft breezes from "the spice-islands of youth and love." In the social circle our brother is genial, affable, companionable; he enjoys a good story and knows how to tell one. I forgot to tell you that Dr. Chandler preached an able sermon on the second Sunday of the meeting in the morning and that Brother Jordan conducted one morning service during the second week. Fifty persons have applied for church membership.

Balm Grove has an excellent choir and with Prof. Curry as leader they rendered most admirable service during the evangelistic campaign. How it stirs the poetry and pathos of the soul to hear those "incomparable songs of Zion." Brother Curry is master of his profession.

POUNDINGS AT DOVER

Did you ever hear of two poundings in one year? Well, we had, but didn't think they were for ordinary folks like us. Our folks gave us the usual one when we moved in, but it is overshadowed by the second.

The wife's father was taken ill and we were called to his bedside at the end of March. My family were there for three weeks, I myself making two trips. This landmark at old Tabernacle, W. T. Williams, went to his reward April 10.

On our return the good people here pounded us very severely. It was such a thoughtful expression of love and sympathy. We appreciated very much the groceries which filled the larder, but what filled our hearts to overflowing was the realization of this love and sympathy.

Brethren, pray for us that we may be true to these good people. Truly "the lines are fallen to me in pleasant places."

CHURCH WORKERS' TRAINING SCHOOL AT ROCKINGHAM

Friday night, May 4th, a most enthusiastic and successful training school came to a close in the Rockingham graded school building. From the opening service there was intense interest. Rev. W. R. Shelton, pastor of the Methodist church of Wadesboro, delivered the initial address for this school on the night of April 29th.

A hundred and fifty students enrolled and took the course. Though it was a non-standard school, thirty-five are taking examinations for credit.

Four courses were offered by a competent faculty.

Mr. L. L. Gobbel, superintendent of Sunday school work in the North Carolina conference, was in charge of the school during the week and taught the subject of "The Organization and Administration of the Sunday School."

Miss Georgia Keene, superintendent of elementary work in the N. C. conference, taught a course in "Elementary Work."

A course called "A Methodist Church and Its Work" was taught jointly by Rev. J. H. Shore, presiding elder of the Rockingham district, and Rev. J. I. Bundy, pastor of Rockingham station.

"The Principles of Religious Teaching" was taught by Rev. D. A. Clark, pastor of Richmond charge.

Much of the success of the school was due to the preliminary work of the board of managers, which planned and worked out every detail several weeks before the school. The board consisted of the following: Rev. D. A. Petty, chairman; Rev. F. E. Dixon, secretary; Rev. D. A. Clark, treasurer; Rev. J. D. Bundy, Messrs. S. A. Lampley, W. H. Boggan, T. P. Wood, and T. F. Fletcher.

But without Miss Keene, who is an artist in teaching elementary workers, and Mr. Gobbel, who knows Sunday school work from A to Z, the school could not have been so successful.

D. A. Petty,
Chm. Board of Managers.

A REVIVAL AT MAGNOLIA

The greatest influence ever set in motion in any community is a genuine revival of religion. It is the only thing in this universe that can lift a poor fallen sinner out of his wickedness and harmonize his habits, will, and desires with the will of our heavenly Father. The fact that a revival can, and does do this, ought to give the revival the first and strongest emphasis in all our preaching and plans. Such a revival we have just closed at Magnolia. For three months before conference I prayed that God would direct me to some place where I could do good. I never ask Him for bigger salary, a pipe organ, or high steeple. So when I landed in Magnolia I found the church in rather a discouraged and somewhat backslidden condition, I did not grow grouchy over the outlook, but I felt that God had answered my prayers, and I was just in the place where He wanted me. My congregations have steadily grown till we could not provide seating room for the crowds who came to the meeting. We filled all empty space with chairs, and still many had to stand at the door. The meeting had been in progress several days before the "mighty demonstration" came—when perhaps something near a hundred men, women and children came forward for prayer. I scanned the faces of those who came, and I never saw signs of deeper conviction written on human faces. The meeting continued for twelve days and should have gone on a week longer at least, but the closing of the school was at hand, so we discontinued for the present. The interest was on the increase till the end. At the close 56 stood up and claimed to have been definitely blessed. But these did not include the great number that had been led to a closer walk with God. The people here are just as good to us as we could ask, and we are perfectly contented, working just where God wants us. My soul is filled with peace and contentment; His spirit abides, and all is well.

Toward the close of the meeting I was presented with a purse from unknown friends of $40, and another purse from my church for $61.67.
W. E. Hocutt.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

On March 22, 1923, God in His infinite wisdom called Mrs. C. T. Creason to her eternal reward. Her going has made a sad vacancy in our community. We, the Ladies' Aid Society of Liberty church realize our great loss. Therefore be it resolved:

First, That we bow in humble submission to the heavenly Father, and we commend the bereaved family to His loving care.

Second, That our church and society will greatly miss her because of the devout Christian life which she lived and the happy associations that we had with her.

Third, That we extend our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family, and that a copy of these resolutions be given them; that a copy be sent to one of our county papers and to the Christian Advocate for publication, and that a copy be spread on the minutes of our society.

Mrs. G. W. Everhardt,
Mrs. A. T. Lefler,
Mrs. G. P. Daniel.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

On the night of March 4th our heavenly Father sent His angel to bring home to Him our beloved friend and co-worker, Mrs. Jennie Turnage Pittman.

Fifteen years ago she moved into our midst, transferring her church membership from Ormondsville to Ayden. Since that day our church and all branches of its work have been greatly enriched by her faithful, loyal devotion and efficient service. From whatever source the call to duty came, among the first to respond was always this true and noble young woman. During her short life of 27 years she did much to further the cause of her Lord and King in this part of His vineyard. Therefore be it resolved:

That though the ranks of the Woman's Missionary Society be broken and our hearts unutterably saddened because she has left us, yet we trust His love and wisdom, and rest in the knowledge that He doeth things well.

That we assure the family we share their loss, and in loving sympathy we sorrow with them; yet emulating her example until we, too, shall receive the summons home; then, reunited, throughout a joyous eternity we shall serve the King, our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ.

That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, to the North Carolina Christian Advocate, and to the Ayden Dispatch for publication, and that a copy be spread upon the minutes of our Missionary Society.

Mrs. J. M. Deight,
Mrs. J. C. Andrews,
Miss Ida Edwards,
Mrs. C. C. Riddick.

All Over The State

How many of you have given the Advocate a chance in your congregation?

☐ All who have presented the claims of the church paper have met with success. The people are ready to renew their subscriptions and others to subscribe.

☐ Won't each pastor lay the claims of the Advocate before his people next Sunday? This is an earnest request.

☐ If the pastor cannot make a canvass for the paper may we ask that he appoint a committee to do so (some Sunday school class, Epworth League or other organization would be glad to do the work) and insist on it being done at once.

THE LOST FIVE DOLLARS

A Treasurer sat with haggard mien,
Two great deep lines her eyes between,
And there she sat and searched all day
For one little figure gone astray.

And the shades of night found her searching still—
For, though weary of brain, she was strong of will—
And when about to give up the fight,
That figure appeared just before daylight,
And stood on its one little curled-up leg,
As though it had never moved a peg,
But been standing round in the Treasurer's view,
Just where she ought to have seen it,
too!

Why didn't she make a sudden dive
And bring up that saucy, curled-up little 5?
And what do you think caused all this fuss,
Got the books of account in such a muss?

That five-dollar bill arrived too late
And had to come in at a little side gate,
When the door was shut and the light put out;
And that poor little figure wandered about
And never found its own little bed,
But slipped in a cold, dark corner instead.
And there it remained from that sad, sad night
'Till the spring house-cleaning brought it to light,
And the Treasurer was almost made to declare She'd give up her place at the end of the year!

Now who was to blame that that figure was late
And had to squeeze in at the little side
gate?

Was it carelessness on some treasurer's part

Who failed to give it an earlier start?
Or, did the subscriber lag behind
And drive her, too, 'most out of her mind?

Should any one read this who ever is late,
Please do not forget the pitiful fate
Of the poor little figure, at that side
gate,

Whose story I've had to sadly relate,
And call to your mind your Treasurer's state,
Ase she tears her hair at a terrible rate,
Because for your money she has to wait.

—Cumberland Presbyterian Record.

The remaining account of our annual meeting at Monroe will be given next week. Limited space does not permit a continuation of it this week, not even a "boiled down" account. Indeed, Monroe was so hospitable, and did so much for our pleasure and comfort during our stay there, that it is quite difficult to write an account in a few words.

We will say, however, that the outstanding features of the program were the inspirational addresses given by Miss Lelia Tuttle, whom W. N. C. has long known and loved, and by Mrs. B.
W. Lipscomb, to whom we have addressed many letters at Nashville. We have long anticipated a visit from her, and we enjoyed to the fullest extent her presence among us.

THE KINGDOM AND THE CHURCH

In every congregation there are women and men whose church lives have been so bounded by the demands of their local church homes that their hearts have never heard the Master's voice saying: "Go ye into all the world." In every church there are women who have never made Jesus Christ ruler and king of their lives, and they do not know that to follow Him means the secret place of prayer and the uttermost parts of the earth.
All these may be saved or won; and to us our Lord has committed this gracious task, saying: "I have chosen you and appointed you, that ye should go and bear fruit and that your fruit shall abide."—Belle H. Bennett, Lambuth-Bennett Book of Remembrance.

AN ANNOUNCEMENT

Mrs. W. R. Royall announces her first group meeting for the year, to be held in Lumberton, May 16th and 17th.
A full and comprehensive program has been arranged, and she urges that every auxiliary on the district send a good delegation.

JOTTINGS FROM THE N. C. WOM- AN'S MISSIONARY CONFERENCE

As the sessions of conference were so full and splendidly reported through the state and local daily papers, it is not our purpose to cover entirely the same ground again here. This conference was one of the most successful, full of information and inspiration, in our long history of good conferences.
The sense of every meeting was that we must go forward in our Lord's work; there must be no hesitancy, no resting on any laurels previously won, no losing of anything gained; there was no word of protest against tasks set before us that would require work and sacrifice to accomplish. It was pleasing and encouraging to us to hear that, as a conference, our rank is high in Southern Methodism, being third in number of societies, membership, and its contributions to home and foreign work. It was a privilege, highly valued, to have with us three of our missionary daughters: Miss Lelia Tuttle, who teaches history, literature and
Bible in McTyeire School, Shanghai, China, told us about the "Currents of Life in Shanghai, China"; Miss Sallie Lou McKinnon, who teaches and does social evangelistic work, Virginia School, Huchow, China, told in most interesting manner of her work, of new China, and the vital necessity for Christianity in the progress China is making; Miss Ida Hankins, superintendent of Mary Helm Industrial Department, Holston Institute, Songdo, Korea, gave very interesting information about her work among the married women. Another of our own women, whom we always welcome with pleasure, was Deaconess Ellen Gainey of Kingdom House, St. Louis, Mo., now at her home near Fayetteville on leave of absence.

We were so fortunate to have with us also two of our Council women,
Mrs. J. H. McCoy, administrative secretary for the Atlantic and Gulf States Division, whose address, "The Conquests of Jesus," thrilled and inspired us all, making us glad we had had a share in making these conquests, and Mrs. W. A. Newell, of Winston-Salem, Council superintendent of social service. Mrs. Newell's subject, "Inter-Racial Relationships," has not yet become a very popular subject with many, but she handled it with delicacy and tact and truth, helping all who heard her who honestly faced the situation and desired to be helped.

The "Poster Parade" by three of the district secretaries was a unique feature of the conference, and greatly enjoyed. This was so highly successful that next year we feel sure every department will want to go on "poster parade." All the district secretaries would have engaged in it this time, but there was a misunderstanding of the plan.

The conference are to take part in the campaign next year for the superannate fund, and this will be done through the department of supplies under Mrs. Ida T. Wilkins of Weldon, superintendent of supplies, and her assistant, Mrs. Pierce Johnson.

The Belle H. Bennett Memorial was presented by Mrs. J. H. McCoy, followed by a personal tribute to Scarritt by Miss Elizabeth Lamb, who moved that our conference pledge $25,000 to the memorial fund. Her motion was carried, and this amount will be managed by the district secretaries and collected, beginning this year, during three years.

The Korean pin, presented by Miss Ivey, was awarded a second time to the Raleigh district for having the largest number of auxiliaries on the honor roll. A check for the purchase of books for a missionary library was awarded to the New Bern district for the largest percentage of auxiliary missionary libraries.

Mrs. Lee Johnson of Weldon was elected superintendent of social service to succeed Mrs. F. S. Love of Wilson, who felt obliged to resign.
Mrs. L. W. Lee of Rose Hill succeeds
Mrs. James Bardin as secretary of Wilmington district, and Mrs. W. R.
Royall of Laurinburg, succeeds Miss Georgia Biggs as secretary of Rockingham district.

The reports of officers, superintendents and secretaries showed encouraging advance, but as we have not the space to give them here, we refer you to the next issue of "Our Missionary News," which will be, as usual, the conference number, and to the conference minutes, which will be out in a few weeks.

As a mark of our appreciation a gift of $75 was made by our women to the local auxiliaries towards the new church, in which they are all so interested and for which they are working so hard.

Our thanks as a conference are extended to our church host and hostess, Rev. T. G. Vickers and Mrs. Vickers; to our individual hosts and hostesses; to the entertainment committees for homes and lunches; to the Chamber of Commerce for allowing us to use their assembly room for our lunches; to the local newspapers for the space they gave our proceedings and their full, accurate reports of them; to Mrs. Foreman of Elizabeth City and Miss Russo, a product of our Sue Bennett School, for their delightful songs; to the church choir for very lovely special music; to the young people for the beautiful pageant, "The Call of the New Year"; to Mrs. Sam
Pease for the reception so much enjoyed at her attractive country place; to all the women of any denomination who opened their homes to us; to Mr.
A. W. Mohn for his splendid talk on "Our Work in a Mountain School"; to Mrs. Wilson of Durham, returned missionary, for her illuminating talk on Japan; to our visitors and our own women for their words of information and inspiration; and finally to our Father in heaven for the wonderful opportunity and privilege of working for Him in this part of His vineyard.

INTERESTING ITEMS OF NEWS

The election of a president, vice president, and three members of the executive committee of the Council was an important matter to come before the members at its session in Mobile. Mrs. F. F. Stephens was elected by a good majority as president of the Woman's Missionary Council for the remainder of the quadrennium; Mrs.
J. W. Perry, former Council superintendent of young people, was made vice president. And the three members of the Board of Missions elected to membership on the Council executive committee were as follows: Mrs.
J. H. Spilman, Harrodsburg, Ky.; Mrs.
R. L. Hobby, Union Springs, Ala.; and
Mrs. Lee Brit, of Suffolk, Va.

At its session in Mobile the Woman's Missionary Council voted to enter Manchuria-Siberia, sending two young women to work in that new field. The Council also voted to begin work in the Manchurian-Chinese Mission at Harbin. This new enterprise is to be the project of the native Christian Chinese.

Mexico shows progress in the Christian religion in the number of natives who have become evangelists. It was agreed at the Council meeting that the Missions and the General Board itself

OUR PASTORS ARE WITH US

Another notable thing about our Durham training school was the fine way most of the pastors of the co-operating churches stuck by the school. They not only boosted it in a publicity way, but ten of them attended classes regularly and earned certificates of credit. These ten are: Revs. J. W. Autrey, W. C. Ball, J. W. Bradley, J. H. Buffaloe, W. F. Craven, M. G. Erwin, D. M. Sharpe, S. J. Starnes, H. M. Wellman and G. G. Whitehurst.

It is coming to be the rule rather than the exception, however, for pastors to earn certificates in our training schools. For instance, in our Alamance school, at Graham, pastors of four of the six co-operating churches received certificates. The other two would doubtless have taken the work but for the fact that one was ill and the other found it impossible to attend regularly. Pastors who earned certificates in our Alamance school are Revs. G. M. Daniel, Lindsay Frazier, W. R. Hardesty and Dr. W. B. North.

RECOGNITION TO BE GIVEN

Proper recognition of that growing number of pastors earning one or more certificates of credit on the standard training course during the year will be given at the annual conference at Elizabeth City this fall. These certificates are being earned in our training schools and through correspondence, and quite a number will be earned at the Summer School for Preachers at Trinity in June, and still others at Lake Junaluska in July and August. A certificate is a certificate, however earned, and due recognition will be given. Just what form this recognition will take has not been definitely decided, although Bishop Denny, who is enthusiastically in favor of this emphasis on Sunday school work, may have a part in it.

SUNDAY SCHOOL DAY MONEY

By action of the North Carolina conference, in its last annual session in Raleigh, charges are not expected to send their Sunday School Day offerings to the treasurer of our Sunday School Board as heretofore, but to apply the money received on this day to their local budget. All Sunday schools, nevertheless, are expected to observe the day and take an offering, the only change being as to where the money is to go.

RAIN HELPED THIS MEETING

It showered hard Saturday and Sunday, April 28-29, down in the State of Robeson, and judged by common standards it wasn't much time for a great quarterly conference and Sunday school meeting. But at Regans, St. Pauls circuit, a great quarterly conference and Sunday school meeting it was, nevertheless. Saturday Rev. J. H. Shore, that princely presiding elder of the Rockingham district, held a remarkably fine conference with Rev. I. T. Poole and the officials of his charge, and in the afternoon your conference superintendent of Sunday school work presented briefly the interest he represents. It was Sunday when the rain proved most helpful. But for the downpour the churchyard would hardly have accommodated the crowds; as it was, the church was comfortably filled, just right for best work. Sunday morning Presiding Elder Shore preached, and he preached with power. (If you are ever inclined to accept the foolish notion that elders can't preach, you go to hear this one.) The afternoon was given over to the writer, who discussed worship in the Sunday school and presented the official Program of Work "C" which was adopted by Regans and Barker schools. St. Pauls school will work by Program of Work "B," having not long since moved into its splendid new $45,000 Sunday school and church building. At the conclusion of the program President Green of Carolina College and a delegation from Maxton told of Carolina College and its bright future.

DISTANCE NO OBSTACLE

While we were running our standard training school at Durham April 22-27, Miss Keene and Rev. A. S. Parker were holding a non-standard training school at Richlands and Jacksonville for the Jacksonville-Richlands charge, Wilmington district, and the latter was a real school too! Eighty-seven Sunday school and church workers were enrolled, and great interest was shown throughout the week, according to Miss Keene, who was immensely pleased with the fine way in which the people responded. Rev. Mr. Parker, the pastor, displayed rare qualities of leadership in preparing the way for the school. Every detail was carefully worked out, even to what seat in who's automobile each was to occupy in going to and from the school each day. Half of the work was done at Richlands and half at Jacksonville, the Jacksonville people going to Richlands half of the time and the Richlands people going to Jacksonville the other half. And they went! The distance of fifteen or twenty miles was nothing to these enthusiastic, earnest workers. And the fellowship was inspiring. Everybody had supper together each day, came to know each other better, and received a new inspiration and a clearer understanding of the great work of the Sunday school and how to do it.

ABOUT 150 AT ROCKINHAM

Approximately 150 Sunday school and church workers of Rockingham, Richmond, Piedmont, and Roberdel charges attended the non-standard training school at Rockingham last week. This school, held in the graded school building, gave four courses—"Elementary Work," Miss Keene, instructor; "Principles of Religious Teaching," Rev. D. A. Clarke, instructor; "Sunday School Organization and Administration," L. L. Gobbel, instructor; and "Methodist Church and Its Work," Rev. J. D. Bundy, instructor. In addition to the class work interesting devotional services were held, with Rev. Mr. Bundy, Rev. F. E. Dickson, Rev. J. H. Shore, and Rev. D. A. Petty leading. The opening address Sunday night was delivered by Rev. W. R. Shelton, of Wadesboro. The closing exercises Friday night were in the nature of a commencement program, with numerous interesting features, one of which was a tentative announcement of the program for the great Rockingham District Standard Training School to be held at Carolina College, Maxton, August 6-11. Much interest was shown, and indications are that many who attended the school last week will also go to the district school to learn more about the great work of the Sunday school.

SOME MORE SPLENDID WORK

Programs of Work were placed in Ebenezer, Mt. Zion and Hollands Sunday schools, Garner circuit, as a result of a visit by District Superintendent Prince April 15. Workers of this charge came together at Garner, and to them Mr. Prince presented the official program—a standard by which to measure the schools and definite objectives for improving their efficiency. Mr. James Holder is superintendent of Ebenezer, W. E. McCullers of Mt. Zion, and B. B. Turner of Hollands. Concerning his visit, Mr. Prince writes:

"We had good attendance at Garner, house about filled. Much interest shown. Each school favored us with a song, and all of this added interest. Brother Starling has the work at heart and, I believe, will stay behind it all the time. I am looking forward to other meetings with these people."

Other Raleigh district schools which have recently adopted Programs of Work are Edenton Street, Raleigh, and Franklinton, Mr. Joseph G. Brown and Mr. E. J. Cheatham, respectively, superintendents.

Western North Carolina Conference

OUR FRIENDS

Last year a fine young lady who makes her own living, a preacher's daughter attending our splendid Sunday school at Glenwood, Greensboro, had a balance out of her tithe of $15, which, after looking the field over, she gave to the Sunday school work of the Western North Carolina conference. Miss Field proved to be the only individual contributor of the year to our cause.

This year our splendid Sunday school folks at Trinity, Charlotte, observed Sunday School Day on time, the third Sunday in April, and after a fine program gave an offering of $78 to our work. Supt. E. R. Bucher thought this was not enough, so his school rounded out an offering of $100. These two instances serve to remind us that we have friends. To our other friends let it be said that next week our Sunday School Day Honor Roll will appear. Friends, fellow countrymen, Sunday school patriots, send your offering at once to Mr. H. A. Dunham, Asheville, N. C. You will help a good cause and get on a good honor roll. Thank you.

WESLEY FEDERATION

"What about our Federation?" Such is the question being asked on every hand. In answer let it be said that Mr. J. B. Ivey, our efficient president, is working out a fine program. You are going to have another treat well worth your while. Till this program can be announced you might as well be arranging your affairs to go to Lake Junaluska, Monday, July 9th, prepared to stay through the following Wednesday night at least. In a recent conference with Mr. Ivey and Mr. R. H. Graham Southern division passenger agent at Charlotte, it was agreed that the Southern Railway would run special cars to accommodate our "Wesleyites" from Greensboro, Winston-Salem, Charlotte, Gastonia, Shelby and contiguous points, all to merge into a special train on the western road. Be getting up some good, clean yarns and some thrilling songs for our train trip. We are going to have a goodtime and we are going to let the people know it.

GET THE DOCTOR

My good friend Gobbel, of the North Carolina conference, up and says, in effect, that his "Sandlappers" are ahead of us "Hillbillies" in the matter of Leadership Training credits. This is true, thanks to the great work Trinity College has done on the cause. Trinity would do just as well for us if our folks would come to her as well as do the Easterners. As a matter of fact, the Western North Carolina conference stands second; Virginia leading, among the thirty-eight conferences in credits obtained in Standard Training Schools last year, this in spite of the fact that our work is much newer than most of the other leading conferences. But folks, Gobbel and his fine workers, the "Sandlappers," have beat us once. Somebody send for the doctor. We need some medicine.

NEW SCHOOLS

In addition to our large Standard Training Schools at Asheville, Charlotte, Greensboro, Gastonia, Hickory, Salisbury-Spencer and Winston-Salem, already held, we will have some other large schools. Those arranged for are as follows: Shelby, May 20-25; Marion, August 19-24; Mooresville, September 2-7; Lenoir, September 30-October 5. The Concord school is as-

2. To assist in the work of the Junior league.

SOUTH MAIN STREET LEAGUE

The Epworth League of South Main Street, Salisbury, was organized last year by our pastor, Rev. M. B. Woosley, who is a great league booster. We began with twenty-five members on roll and have steadily grown until now we have eighty-five. Our devotional meetings each Sunday evening have an average attendance of fifty. The different superintendents have charge of the devotional meetings and either lead or get someone to lead. We find that this has worked splendidly.

The first department of the league under Mrs. R. L. Davis has done splendid work. Not only has she had a leader for each first Sunday evening, but has conducted meetings at the different chaingangs near Salisbury and has held prayer meetings for the "shut-ins" of the community.

The second department, that of social service, has not been neglected by the superintendent, Miss Mamie Heinceman. She has been active in carrying flowers and trays to the sick. The socials conducted by the third superintendent, Mrs. M. B. Woosley, with her committee, composed of Mrs. Clarence Hartman, Miss Bertha Ledwell and Miss Margaret Jordan, have been a great drawing for the league. These socials are held each month in the hut and are attended by nearly every leaguer. Interesting games, stunts, contests and good refreshments are some of the features. Three outstanding socials were "The Womanless Wedding," the "Halowe'en Party," and the party for five recent brides of the league.

Last but not least is the fourth department, under Miss Jessie Austin. The African Special has been stressed and we hope soon to have our pledge in full.

Our president, Mrs. J. S. Youngblood, has helped very much in the league. She has been wide awake to its needs and interests.

The secretary, Miss Blanche Rogers, treasurer, Mr. Clarence Hartman, and Epworth Era agent, Miss Bertha Ledwell, have all been on their jobs and helped to make things go.

We feel very proud of our league orchestra with its nine members. The orchestra furnishes music for the socials and also takes part in the church music, each Sunday morning and evening.

Last Sunday evening we gave the pageant, "The Modern Prodigal," under the direction of Mrs. M. B. Woosley. Each one taking part performed it in an excellent manner.

Homer G. Gardner, Cor. Sec.

NOTICE, LEAGUERS

Has your chapter observed Anniversary Day? If so, have you sent the offering to Mr. P. L. Plyler, Hickory, N. C.? If for any reason your chapter failed to observe Anniversary Day the second Sunday in April, will you not do this some time during the spring? It is important that each chapter observe Anniversary Day, as it is a good time to get your league and its work before the people and it is the only time during the year that a public offering is taken for carrying on the work of the Epworth League, so let's make a special effort to have this service between now and the Epworth League conference in June. Programs to be used for this service can be secured from the Central Office of the Epworth League, 810 Broadway, Nashville, Tenn. J. Paige King, Conf. First Dept. Supt.

THE EPWORTH LEAGUE SPECIAL

We hope every pastor and each league received their copy of "The Let's Go Carolina Leaguer." This first copy is only a starter, a step, we think, in the right direction. It is far from what the paper ought to be. We invite constructive criticism, helpful suggestions and co-operation on the part of all pastors and leaguers. We sent out a letter to every presiding elder, district league secretary and other league officers. Not one-half of them responded. We felt there was a need of such a paper. We were determined to go ahead and do the best we could practically without help from those we had expected most. We wrote letters to all our colleges asking for ads and articles on why our young people should attend Christian institutions. You saw the response. This is a busy age, but it has been proved that we as a great connectional church do not yet properly appreciate the young people, and therefore the young people's work. Our hopes and fears center here.

Our second and only other issue before the assembly will go to press the last of May. What this issue is will be largely decided by the individual chapters and district secretaries throughout the North Carolina Epworth League. We urge every one who is in a position to aid in any way, and believes there is a place for such a medium, to work through your district secretary who is local editor for his assigned page and district. We should by all means have a Junior and Intermediate department.

Our next issue is to be an Educational and Assembly number. Let's have something from or about every league in the North Carolina conference in the next issue. What say you? Let's go!

EDENTON STREET LEAGUE

Edenton Street League held their annual election of officers Sunday evening, April 22, and the following members were elected:

President—Caswell Riddle, 516 N. Bloodworth St.
Vice President—Eunice Blair.
First Supt.—Mamie Speas.
Second Supt.—Lola Allen.
Third Supt.—Mrs. Geo. S. Crawford.
Fourth Supt.—Alice Best.
Secretary—Geo. S. Crawford.
Cor. Secretary—George Moore.
Treasurer—Louise Hightower.
Era Agent—Mary Davis.
Pianist—Henrietta Owens.

The league will soon produce a one-act play, "The Man in the Straw Hat," under the direction of the district secretary.

Edenton Street League has enjoyed one of the most prosperous and successful years in its career, under the able leadership of the officers whose terms just expired. They have not only stood by their league but their district secretary as well. "More power to 'em!"

MEMORIAL LEAGUE, DURHAM, INSTALLS OFFICERS

Installation of the new officers for Memorial Epworth League occurred at the evening hour on Sunday, April 15. Rev. J. M. Ormond, professor of Biblical Literature at Trinity College, presided. He also delivered an inspiring address to the young men and women.

Quite a large number of people were present and the following are the officers for the ensuing year:

President—James Pate.
Vice President—Ralp Raiford.
First Supt.—Louise Crumacker.
Second Supt.—Lillie Mae Stanford.
Third Supt.—Nannie Andrews.
Fourth Supt.—E. S. Ware.
Secretary (re-elected)—Eunice Pate.
Treasurer—Isabelle Martin.

With these new officers coming in we hope to do great things for the Master in 1923-24. Much credit is due Mrs. Irene Blalock and the retiring president, Miss Lillie Mae Stanford, for their untiring and loyal efforts in helping the young people of Memorial League.

With the best of wishes for all Epworth Leagues, Eunice Pate, Secretary.

While the Raleigh district secretary has worked in other Epworth League fields and conferences he has yet to meet a more loyal group of young people than those he has met and found in the North Carolina conference. They don't come any better!

Constipation

Relieved Without The Use of Laxatives

Nujol is a lubricant—not a medicine or laxative—so cannot gripe.

When you are constipated, not enough of Nature's lubricating liquid is produced in the bowel to keep the food waste soft and moving. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it acts like this natural lubricant and thus secures regular bowel movements by Nature's own method—lubrication. Try it today.

THE METHODIST ORPHANAGE

OUR NEEDS

1. Baby Cottage.
2. Kitchen and Dining Hall.
3. Three Dormitories.
4. Central Heating Plant.
5. Jenkins building remodeled for school purposes.
6. Industrial building.

Our senior baseball team has played eight games and has lost only one. This is a fine record. We have the best team we have ever had. With such a fine team we expect to add many more victories before the season is over.

Our boys are working early and late now trying to get our little farm in fine shape. Most of our vegetables are planted. We plant a succession of some things like beans and corn. If the season is favorable we will have an abundance of vegetables in the near future.

We are seriously handicapped in getting from church to church with our singing class. Last Sunday we had to borrow two cars in order to get our class to Trinity church, Durham. We could go and come with ease and little expense if we had one seven passenger car. Unless we can get another car we shall be forced to make but few visits here and there through the conference. Such a step would deprive the churches of a rare opportunity to see and hear our orphanage children. I believe if our friends will bestir themselves we can get a good car for the use of our singing class. Let's do it!

New Bern is one of the oldest towns in the state. A fine type of people make up its citizenship. Our Methodism is strong in the city. Centenary church is one of the most imposing buildings in the conference. Brother W. V. McRae has entered upon the second year of his pastorate among those splendid folks. His cordiality was such as to win the confidence and love of our entire singing class. A great congregation greeted the class on the third Sunday morning. The audience was very responsive, and this added peculiar joy to the class.

It fell to my happy lot to be entertained at the parsonage where I enjoyed rare fellowship with two choice spirits. I am expecting fine results to follow our visit to Centenary. New Bern suffered heavily from fire, yet the members are going to make real sacrifices for our Methodist Orphanage.

The Tri-State Orphanage Conference was a great success. Our friends of the Thomasville Baptist Orphanage laid themselves out to be especially considerate of us. There were a number of good speeches and discussions. The Thomasville Orphanage is one of the largest in the country, and Dr. M. L. Kesler is one of the most successful orphanage superintendents in the South. He has been superintendent for nearly twenty years and has met with marked success. Mrs. Jenkins and the writer were the delegates from the Methodist Orphanage. Bro. C. A. Wood, superintendent of the Children's Home, Winston-Salem, made us a most excellent president. He has impressed the orphanage workers of Georgia and the two Carolinas as being a man who is eminently fitted for the responsible task to which he has been called.

Upon reaching Washington late in the afternoon on the third Sunday, we found a number of the friends of the church waiting to assign us to our homes. Brother J. H. McCracken regretted that we did not have several times as many as we took so that he could satisfy the large number who requested some one to entertain. The people of Washington turned out by the hundreds to hear our children at the evening hour. Brother McCracken was very gracious in his words of welcome to the town and to his church. The children were at their best because the congregation was so deeply interested in the sacred concert. My good friend, E. R. Mixon, took me in hand upon my arrival in Washington, and what delightful fellowship I had in his hospitable home! The good friends of New Bern conveyed us as far as Vanceboro and our Washington friends met us there and took us on to Washington. This kindly act on the part of both churches is sincerely appreciated by the class and myself. I can always count on our people to do the magnanimous thing for our orphanage children.

The fourth Sunday night found our children with the Trinity congregation, Durham. The day was an awfully rainy one and rather raw at night. Since the church was burned during the winter the membership has been worshipping in the Academy of Music. A tremendous audience welcomed us. The auditorium was so large the children found it difficult to make themselves heard in the rear. Since they are not accustomed to singing in such a large hall they failed to come up to their usual standard. The people were very complimentary, but the children did not do themselves justice. Trinity church is one of our most loyal and generous supporters. With Brother A. D. Wilcox as the aggressive pastor of this great church, it is confidently believed that the church, Sunday school, organized classes, missionary societies and individuals are going to do still greater things for us this year. We are grateful to Brother Wilcox for the privilege of giving our sacred concert in his church.

IN MEMORIAM

LEE—John W. Lee was born January 20, 1847, died November 26, 1922, age 75 years, ten months and six days. He joined the M. E. church in early life. Brother Lee was faithful to his church and was an official in the church. He was an affectionate father, a kind husband. Seven children survive him—four sons, Ben F., E. H., Will and Ernest; three daughters, Mesdames W. E. Fouls, I. G. Thomas, Charlie Plummer. He was buried with Masonic rites, funeral services conducted by T. B. Johnson, assisted by Revs. D. C. Cox and J. A. Palmer.

ROGERSON—A star appeared and shone for twenty brief years, and then the cloud hid it from view. Such was the case when influenza cut short the days of Wm. Horace Rogerson March 11, 1923. He was an exceptionally fine young man, member and worker in the church, leader in good things among the youth, and admired by those who knew him. Industrious, obedient and kind in the home, he will be greatly missed by all.

That one should be taken so early leads us to wonder why. No answer satisfies; yet we think "we were not made to die." N. M. Wright.

LEE—Mrs. Sarah P. Lee, wife of John W. Lee, was born January 29, 1848, died February 18, 1923, age 75 years and 20 days. Her husband preceded her but a few weeks to the home beyond. She joined the M. E. church early in life. She was a kind and loving mother. I visited her several times. As it was with her husband, so with her; all was well with her soul. We placed her body beside her husband, in Fair Grove church yard, to rest until the resurrection morn. Funeral services conducted by T. B. Johnson, assisted by Revs. D. C. Cox and J. A. Palmer.

COLE—Bro. Isaiah Cole, one of the oldest and most beloved members of Mann's Chapel church, passed away April 9, 1923. "Uncle Cole," as he was affectionately called, was 83 years old and had been quite feeble for some months. He was one of the finest Christians the writer has ever known. He lives and will continue to live in the lives of those who knew him.

We laid him to rest in the family burying place beside his wife, who preceded him many years.

Three sons, one daughter, three brothers, one sister and many friends remain, waiting to see "Uncle Cole" again when He shall come to make up His jewels.

John R. Edwards, Pastor.

ROGERSON—Hattie Belle Perry Rogerson, born May 28, 1894, and died March 11, 1923, lived to make others happy. Joining the Methodist church at eight, she was loyal to its teaching and faithful in its service. Loving and obedient to her parents, kind to her friends, faithful to her husband—Raymond Rogerson, and tender-hearted as the mother of three children, whom she leaves to cherish her memory, she lived an exemplary life, as her friends will testify. Funeral services were held at Anderson church by her pastor, assisted by Rev. Josiah Elliott. We need not mourn as those without hope, "for her price was above rubies." N. M. Wright.

ASBURY—In the death of Dr. Francis E. Asbury of Asheboro, Methodism of Randolph county loses a man who has served it well for 65 years.

Born in Virginia in 1845; fought four years for the Confederacy; founded and built the church at Asbury; a doctor of the old school for 50 years; served his church as a steward, Sunday school superintendent and conference delegate, and the rearing of a family of loyal Methodists were among his accomplishments.

He died in the harness. While attending district conference at Pleasant Garden the summons came. His body rests at Asheboro.

W. H. Willis.

MIDGETT—Capt. John Allen Midgett, Sr., of Rodanthe, N. C., died March 13, 1923, in the 69th year of his age. He had been afflicted about three years, but bore his afflictions with much patience. He was a member of the M. E. Church, South, and one of its benevolent supporters. With kind husband and father everybody was welcome and made pleasant who came into his home. In his last illness he evidenced the fact that he was leaning on the everlasting arm. He leaves a widow, two sons and four daughters and a number of relatives to miss his kind presence. The funeral service was held at his home and his remains buried in the cemetery at Manteo, N. C. May the Comforter be with the bereaved ones and bring them all together in the home beyond.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

One of our co-workers, Mr. C. G. Loftin, has been taken, and while we mourn the loss we rejoice in the fact that he lived and died a soldier of the Cross.

We shall miss him—his influence, his helpfulness, and his ever faithfulness to the Sunday school.

We, the Bible class of Maple Grove Sunday school, of which Brother Loftin was a member, shall ever cherish his memory and shall live in the hope of a happy and joyful meeting in the great beyond.

We extend to the family our love and sympathy and assure them of truest and closest friendship.

It is our desire that a copy be sent to the family and a copy be spread upon the minutes of our Sunday school record.

C. C. Smith,
Ed Kellum,
Lewis Andrews.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Since God in His great wisdom saw fit to remove from our league on March 13, 1923, one of our beloved and faithful members, Mrs. Avis Spivey Riddick, be it therefore resolved:

First, That while we, the members of Zion Epworth League, feel keenly our loss, still we bow in humble submission to our God who gave her and who hath taken her away.

Second, That we extend our deepest sympathy to her bereaved family and point them to God for comfort and consolation.

Third, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, a copy spread upon the minutes of our league and a copy sent to the North Carolina Christian Advocate for publication.

Mrs. O. L. Brown,
Sallie Hudgins,
Llewellyn Spivey,
J. W. Hudgins,
Committee.

HAMMOND—W. H. Hammond was born August 2, 1870, and died of pneumonia at his home in Trenton, N. C., April 8, 1923, having spent his entire life in Jones, county of his birth. For several years he taught school, and was for a while county superintendent. Later he was made clerk of superior court, which position he held faithfully for the last eight years. He was just beginning another term in this office when the end came. In his political life he has a clean record. He was a servant of the needy, an example of righteousness, a friend to his country. Hundreds of people, the largest throng ever witnessed in the town cemetery, gathered about his grave as we laid him to rest.

Brother Hammond was a loyal member of the Methodist church and a member of the board of stewards. He reared a large family and bore the name of being good in his home. Besides his widow, Mrs. Lillian Pearl, he is survived by two sons, Esli and William; four girls, Lillian, Tiny, Laura Koonce, and Ora Williams. He also leaves three brothers, Dr. A. F. Hammond, J. L. Hammond, and E. A. Hammond; three sisters, Mrs. Annie E. Noble, Mrs. Sallie Lewis, and Mrs. Julia Steel.

In his going, the county, the community and the church lose one of our best men. He was greatly beloved and merited it. Now that he has left us, we know where to find him. May our lives be such that we shall meet him again—in that country of delight, free from sin and sorrow, and where death cannot come—in that land we call Heaven.

K. F. Duval.

WARINER—Mrs. Ruth E. Wariner departed this life at her home in Leaksville, N. C., March 17, 1923, in her 69th year. She was born at Ruffin, N. C., August 3, 1854, daughter of the late Daniel E. and Malinda S. Guerrant. In childhood she professed faith in Christ, joined the Methodist church and was ever afterward a faithful, consistent and useful disciple of her Lord.

On November 23, 1874, she was married to Mr. Robert L. Wariner of Ruffin, with whom she lived happily until his death in May, 1911.

She leaves five children—R. H. Wariner of Cumberland, Md., Mrs. R. M. Clapp of Greensboro, and Mrs. J. L. Clayton, Daniel W. and Roy G. Wariner of Leaksville.

She was a good woman, faithful as wife, mother, friend and Christian, who after life's fitful fever fell asleep in Jesus.

The body was laid to rest in the Ruffin cemetery after a funeral service conducted by the writer, assisted by Rev. G. A. Stamper, a former pastor.

William L. Sherrill.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Clarence Percival Hathaway died February 9, 1923. After a lingering illness of several months God called him from his earthly abode to one "not made with hands, eternal in the heavens."

We, the members of Zion Epworth League of Gates circuit, wish to express our appreciation of his life; therefore be it resolved:

First, That in Clarence's going we feel a deep sense of personal bereavement, and while we miss his cheerful presence among us we do feel that he is enjoying the "rest that remains for the people of God."

Second, That we extend to the heart-broken wife and other relatives our deepest sympathy in this sad dispensation.

Third, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, a copy spread upon the minutes of our league and a copy sent to the N. C. Christian Advocate for publication.

PEACOCK—To the memory of Mary A. Watts Peacock, formerly of Ben Hill, Ga., but of recent years of Lexington, N. C.

In her death we feel the loss very keenly of one of our best Christian friends. She was one of the sweetest Christian characters we have ever known. She was a member of the Methodist church, being converted at a very early age, and living a devout Christian life to the end.

She lived to see her 80th year, departing this life February 17, 1923. The greater part of her life was spent as a member of Wesley Chapel church, near old Mt. Gilead Camp Ground, Fulton county, Ga., and the latter part of her life she was transferred to the First Methodist church in Lexington, N. C., in which she lived.

She was united in holy wedlock to John L. Peacock, of Atlanta, Ga., at about the age of 40 years, as his second wife. His first wife being her sister, and by doing so reunited a broken chain of the husband and six children, when seemingly there was no hope of anything combining the chain again.

She was a loving wife to the husband, devoted mother to the children. She lived to see four of the children buried, leaving two boys. The children were all true and loving to "Aunt Mary" as they called her, and in her last sickness the boys stood by her, day and night, with the help of her feeble husband.

She was buried at her old home church, Wesley Chapel, and was carried to her resting place by six of her nephews. She was survived by a number of relatives who mourn her loss.

Her life was one of service, not only to her Lord, but to everyone whom she thought she could serve. She numbered her friends by her acquaintances. She was always busy doing something for her Master.

The height of her ambition was in service of her Lord. She was steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the work of her Lord, for as much as she knew that her labor was not in vain in the Lord.

Mrs. J. M. Wallace.

ACROSS THE RIVER

Beyond the Alps lies Italy. Beyond the river is Fulton, a beautiful and well kept brick church, built years ago by the Hanes family, whose descendants now live in Mocksville and Winston-Salem. Fulton is one of the four congregations on the Advance circuit, served for the past four years by that painstaking-say-little-and-dots Rev. J. M. Varner. Brother Varner had Miss Jenkins and me to come over recently and conduct a circuit Sunday school institute in his beautiful little church as it sits on a bluff overlooking the Yadkin river, whose membership has been over doubled during present administration. We had a good day together as we talked about how the laity of the church can make the communities better by bettering their Sunday school work. Brother Varner helped us along. Bro. J. H. Ratledge, superintendent at Advance and brother to Rev. J. T. and A. P. Ratledge, among other good workers was present and helped the cause along. The day was well worth while and was marked down as "Another day's work for Jesus."

MISS JENKINS

I would like to tell you something about our Elementary work, but Miss Jenkins has been away so much of late that I am unable to keep a line on her. Last week she taught a course in one of Friend Gobbel's schools at Durham and this week she is teaching in a conference-wide school at St. Louis. Next week she will be engaged in our school at Asheville. Miss Jenkins is proving to be a very valuable worker. Those whose letters have not been answered will please be patient.

MORGANTON CIRCUIT

The Morganton circuit has the distinction of possessing nine appointments and two appointers, pastors. One of these appointments is a nice church just outside the limits of the asylum and I went to it, I mean the church. It was here that Pastors J. C. Gentry and J. M. Price had arranged for a charge-wide Sunday school rally-institute meeting for Sunday, August 29. It was a very rainy day and therefore the chartered trucks and gasoline buggies could not navigate, thus preventing the expected large crowd from assembling. As it was we had three churches represented and enjoyed a profitable meeting anyway, while the Administrator of the Universe watered the growing grain. But rain can't stop Gentry and Price. They are going to have that meeting over at Salem church on Saturday, July 28, and I shall be right there.

conference was well attended. Bro. Seymour Taylor, pastor for the past four years of the Morven circuit and conference host, stated that the official attendance was the largest of any conference during the past fifteen years, this in spite of the fact that Morven is at one extremity of the district. Presiding Elder Craven knows how to dispatch business, how to get at the gist of things without the superfluities, and therefore important measures were receiving their due consideration. He gave the first hour of the afternoon to the consideration of the Sunday school work, at which time Mr. D. E. Henderson, district Sunday school superintendent, called on Revs. C. C. Weaver, W. R. Shelton and T. F. Higgins, his sub-district superintendents for Union, Anson and Mecklenburg counties, respectively, to speak, which they did in telling effect. Following them your humble servant made his usual effort with main strength and awkwardness. Brothers Henderson and Craven are building up a fine Sunday school organization in the Charlotte district and great good is being accomplished. It was a great personal pleasure to be with the fine Morven people again where for four years my father worked as an itinerant.

HE'S RIGHT

"I have been enjoying my correspondence work with the Leadership Training Department at Nashville. Have stood four examinations already and have written for the questions on five other books. Expect to do the whole course during the next two months. I am getting a lot more out of it than I thought was possible. I believe every pastor should take the whole thing from the Cradle Roll to the Adult Department, specialization courses and all. That is what I am doing and I am ashamed that I put it off so long. Sincerely yours, W. A. Jenkins."

GOOD NEWS

"We had our Sunday School Day yesterday. I think the children did fine and we had a large congregation for a rainy day. Our offering amounted to $11.18, which we are sending to Brother Dunham. We have on our entire roll just 108 people, which is larger than our church membership. We have no church members who do not come to Sunday school. We are going to begin our Workers' Council meeting this week. Our Home department will also be begun right soon. Come to see us.
W. A. Johnson."

GO-TO-COLLEGE DAY PROGRAM

This program is prepared to be observed as the opening service of the Sunday school, or it may be used by the pastor in the morning or evening church service. The Christian Education committee will welcome and encourage the observance of this program in every church, as a most excellent opportunity for doing a fine service for Christian Education.

Let us suggest that young men and women who have recently attended college be used in the rendering of this program in as far as possible.

Suggestions.

(Let the committee in charge entertain the senior class of the high school, in the church or at a Methodist home, on Friday or Saturday night before the program is given at the church.)

It would be a fine thing if the pastor would preach upon Christian Education immediately after the program has been rendered, pointing out the wisdom of patronizing those institutions under the care of our church).

Program.

Song.

Prayer: Prayer especially for our young people.

Scripture lesson: Deuteronomy iv. 5-10.

(Superintendent or leader).

How fortunate it is for us and our children that our great church is today putting great emphasis upon Christian Education. At last we have come to realize that the home, Sunday school, Epworth League and church college belong to the same great family. That all are inter-dependent—for neither can do the work of the other. Each of these should do all in its power to inspire our boys and girls to attend college. The paramount task of the church of our day is the providing of an adequate course of religious instruction for the young people of the world. Therefore let us give ourselves unselfishly and sacrificially to this great task.

Leader: What are some of the advantages of attending college?

A teacher: Only one in a hundred Americans attend college, yet seventy-three per cent of the leadership of the nation are college trained men and women. A college education multiplies the capacity for leadership and service many hundred times.

Leader: What kind of a college education is the best?

Young man: True education is character education. Therefore education that is not distinctly Christian is distinctly dangerous.

Young man: Mr. James J. Hill, the great industrial builder of the west, and friend of young men, said: The small Christian college is the hope of America. Character is essential to statesmanship, and these colleges are a vital factor in the development of sterling Christian character.

President Thompson of the Ohio State University says: I am in no way untrue to state institutions when I say that in our day one might become a bachelor or a master in almost any one of the best of them, and be as ignorant of the Bible, the moral and spiritual truth it represents and the fundamental principles of religion, their nature and value to society, as if he had been educated in a non-Christian country. Who is to supply this lack, if not the Christian college?

Leader: What schools has the church for Christian education?

A teacher: We have vocational training schools, junior colleges, A-grade colleges and universities for both men and women.

Leader: Who will tell us about the colleges in North Carolina, which are so near us, and in which we are most interested?

A young lady: Greensboro college is located at Greensboro, North Carolina.

It is logically located for the education of Methodist young women of North Carolina. Many of the most wonderful women of the state have been prepared for life in this institution.

The State Department of Education gives it Class A standing, and confers highest grade certificates upon those completing the course in Education. In addition to the regular classic course superior courses are offered in Home Economics, Expression, Art, Education, Sunday School Teacher Training and Music.

There were 334 students enrolled during this year. Discriminating parents are delighted to have their daughters trained at Greensboro, because of the close personal care, home-like supervision and the rare advantages for cultivation of Christian character.

A young man: Rutherford and Weaver colleges are our two junior colleges.

Rutherford College is located in Burke county, among the foothills of the beautiful Blue Ridge mountains.

Weaver College is located in Buncombe county, eight miles from the city of Asheville. Maintains a good faculty, has a fine student body, and offers help to every one who will come. In both of these junior colleges there are winning athletic teams and a religious atmosphere.

The leader: Who will tell us about that great and historic old college, which has wrought itself into the very fabric of all North Carolina institutions?

A young man or young woman: Trinity College has eighty-five years of most honorable service behind it. Many thousand students have been educated there.

Trinity College has a large body of graduates, many of whom have won distinction in the world. Her sons have gone out into all the world as leaders of thought and builders of Christian civilization. The college has furnished a number of college presidents. And many of the most distinguished educators of America received their training here. It has furnished the two present United States senators, several congressmen, besides distinguished doctors, lawyers, farmers and business men have been trained at Trinity. Nearly one thousand students matriculated there this year.

At Trinity there is a Law School, Engineering School, School of Business Administration, School of Education, School of Religion and doubtless very soon there will be established a School of Medicine.

The management is fast developing a co-ordinate College for Women whose students have college life of their own, and full educational advantages of Trinity College. With the finest equipment and greatest endowment of any college in the South, no better place could be found for our sons and daughters than Trinity College.

Leader: Some one tell us about Davenport College.

A young lady: Davenport College is located in the beautiful town of Lenoir, North Carolina. And is our junior-woman's college.

It maintains a strong faculty, offers a variety of splendid courses, has a fine student body of young women.

Many of the most queenly women, mothers and home-makers have been prepared for life in this institution.

Leader: Have we any preparatory schools?

Young man: Yes, three. Brevard Institute located at Brevard, North Carolina, Wedding Institute located at Weddington, North Carolina, and Jefferson School located at Jefferson, North Carolina.

These schools have been for many years maintained for a large number of boys and girls who otherwise would not have had a chance in the world.

The leader: The expenses of our Methodist schools are never more than other schools of like grade, and the courses offered are as varied, strong and attractive as any other schools. Surely there is no reason why our sons and daughters should not be educated at our church schools.

IN MEMORIAM

READ—George B. Read was born June 22, 1867; died March 30, 1923, age 56 years, nine months and eight days. He was married to Miss Mary Twisdale the 8th of July, 1894. To this union was born three boys and five girls. Brother Read was converted and joined the church about a year before his death and was a man in whom the people had utmost confidence. He leaves a wife and eight children to mourn their loss. May the abiding presence of our Lord be with them day by day.

Julian L. Midgette.

KILPATRICK—It was with heavy hearts that we buried Luther Kilpatrick on December 24, 1922. He moved from Hookerton to Pine Level just a few years ago, where he had been a successful farmer till overtaken by influenza, which very quickly carried his body to Rainbow cemetery in Green county, and his soul to rest with a sainted mother in the "home over there. He was only forty-three years old, having been born in 1879, and leaves a host of bereaved loved ones—wife, three children, father, two brothers and two sisters—all who loved him and deeply mourn his going. God has and will keep them in the shodaws even though they be dark.

R. C. Grant.

TRAYWICK—Marcus C. Traywick was born December 7, 1857; died at his home in Peachland March 14, 1923. He was the son of Henry Traywick of Union county. He was twice married, his first wife being Miss Bettie Thomas, to whom were born two daughters. His second marriage was to Miss Susie Baucom, to whom were born two daughters. Brother Traywick enlisted as a soldier of the Cross early in life. Everyone who knew him found him a friend and a gentleman. He was a faithful member of the Methodist church at Peachland and will be missed by all who knew him; but heaven has been made sweeter and nearer to his relatives and friends.

Reid Harris, P. C.

THOMPSON—On March 14, 1923, at Goldsboro Mrs. Lucy Thompson, wife of Mr. Robert L. Thompson, was called from labor to reward.

She died as she lived—strong in the faith once delivered to the saints. Love would have kept her longer, but God needed her for some larger task on high. We shall find her again in the ranks of the blood-washed in our Father's house. She had no fear of death. Her suffering was borne patiently and she died triumphantly. She was an earnest member of St. John church—ever zealous for the advancement of all things that were right and good. A devoted wife, loving sister, and faithful friend has gone. May grace, mercy and peace abide with those who wait and sorrow. Precious in His sight is the death of His saints.

J. W. Potter.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

On the evening of March 26 God in His infinite love, wisdom and mercy called to Himself one of our beloved and faithful members, Mrs. T. W. Long. Mourning her loss so deeply we resolve:

First, That we, the Woman's Missionary Society of Newton M. E. Church, South, bow in perfect submission to the will of God as she did.

Second, That we strive to follow his example in cheerfulness of spirit in encouraging those who need it, in showing interest in everything about us, in helping whenever called upon, and in bearing trouble and affliction with patience and resignation.

Third, That we extend our heartfelt sympathy our love and prayers to her children in this great sorrow.

Fourth, That a copy of these resolutions be spread on our minutes, that copies be sent to her aged father and mother, her children, and to the Catawbo News-Enterprise and the N. C. Christian Advocate.

WEESNER—A wave of sadness came over the Arcadia community when the news was received that Mr. Cicero Clark Weesner had passed away on Sunday afternoon, April 1st. He had been in failing health for several months and but little hope entertained for his recovery. The funeral service was held at Mt. Olivet Methodist church by his pastor and Rev. P. E. Parker, a former pastor of the Davidson circuit. Revs. J. H. Green, J. C. Richardson, J. A. J. Farrington and R. F. Mock were present and took part in the service. A very large congregation was present.

Brother Weesner was born February 9, 1848, and died April 1, 1923. On April 19, 1868, he was married to Miss Harriet Fische, who preceded him by death 23 years ago. Three sons, four daughters, 23 grandchildren and one great-grandchild are among the immediate survivors. The sons are: Charles Weesner of Winston-Salem, Theodore and Theophilus Weesner of Arvadia; the daughters: Mrs. George Perryman, Arcadia, and Miss Clara Weesner, who resides at the parental home. The deceased was a natural leader, being very strong in the advocacy of any cause he espoused. He was for 36 years a member of the peace, and 52 years a member of Mt. Olivet Methodist church, where he served as class leader, Sunday school superintendent and steward. A good man has gone from our midst, but his influence will live on in his descendants and friends. May the Lord comfort the bereaved ones.

R. F. Huneycutt, Pastor.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

March 11th, 1923, God in His infinite love and wisdom took to Himself the spirit of our much loved friend and co-laborer, Mrs. Belle Perry Rogerson. She was a Bright Jewel, then a member of the Young People's Society, since her marriage a faithful worker in the Missionary Society of Anderson church. She leaves an aged father and mother, three dear, bright little children, a husband, three sisters and three brothers besides a host of friends to mourn her departure.

Weep not, loved ones; she has only been transferred to the fold of the Good Shepherd. We ask why must she go now—so young and so much needed everywhere? She may be gone to do her best work after reaching efficiency here.

She worked for everything that was for the upbuilding of her church and community. So great was our love for her and so keenly do we miss her that we resolve:

First, That we, the missionary society of Anderson church, although sad because of her going from us, will be resigned to the will of God who makes no mistakes out causes all things to work together for good to them that love Him.

Second, That we will extend our heartfelt sympathy to her family in their bereavement and point them to the Great Comforter.

Third, That a copy of these resolutions bent sent the family, a copy spread upon our minutes, one sent the North Carolina Christian Advocate our Missionary News for publication.

Volume LXVIII

GREENSBORO, N. C., THURSDAY, MAY 17, 1923

No. 20

BRANSON METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SOUTH, DURHAM, N. C., REV. H. C. EWING, PASTOR

Erected at a cost of $55,000, this church is an unusually attractive structure and is up-to-date in every particular. The formal opening of the church takes place next Sunday morning, May 20, at 11 o'clock. The pastor and the congregation are looking forward to a great day. There will be special services with a sermon by the editor of the North Carolina Christian Advocate.

RADIO PROBLEMS

With the sermons by radio come fresh problems. Among these is one for the Roman Catholics. How will they prevent their people's "listening in" when a Protestant minister preaches. Heresy by radio is the problem that the Roman Catholics will have to solve. This question has already been discussed by them.

The problem may be met by an attempt to keep Protestant ministers out of the broadcasting stations. It will be well for the public to keep an eye on this very matter and note whether Protestant ministers are not gradually and quietly withdrawn in response to Roman Catholic protest.

Another complaint raised in certain quarters where the radio is widely used is that people remain away from church and substitute the sermon by radio. This was easily foreseen from the very first uses of the radio and it is now in some sections of the country becoming a practical problem.

The radio does not to any extent affect church attendance in this section but it may eventually. A gentleman in Greensboro said recently that he stayed at home Sunday evening and listened to good sermons by radio. Whereupon his associate in business jocularly remarked: "He does that so he will not have to put a dime in the collection plate."

BIG METHODIST CHURCHES

First church, Houston, Texas, with a membership of 3,050 is the largest in the Southern Methodist church. There are in our church 13 with more than 2,000 members. Here is the list with the number in each church:

First church, Houston, Texas, 3,050; Centenary, St. Louis, Mo., 2,890; First church, Birmingham, Ala., 2,760; First church, Fort Worth, Texas, 2,503; First church, Dallas, Texas, 2,431; First church, Memphis, Tenn., 2,356; Mount Vernon Place, Washington, D. C., 2,217; St. Luke's Oklahoma City, Okla., 2,173; First church, Little Rock, Ark., 2,139; Travis Park, San Antonio, Texas, 2,067; First church, Shreveport, La., 2,064; Galloway Memorial, Jackson, Miss., 2,008; St. Paul, Atlanta, Ga., 2,003.

In the Northern Methodist church the largest membership is in East Calvary, Philadelphia, a Negro church, of which Rev. C. A. Lindley is the pastor. The largest white church has 3,150, which is just 100 more than the largest Southern church. The Northern church has 17 churches with a membership above 2,000 while the Southern church, as already stated, has 13 congregations in this class.

THE BISHOPS' MESSAGES

Do not fail to read carefully every word of the "Bishops' Message" in this issue of the Advocate. It is a comprehensive and instructive utterance from our chief pastors. The message in last week's paper from the same source which was a statement concerning purity of doctrine, which the board of missions in its annual meeting adopted unanimously, should be carefully pondered by every member of the church, especially by those who fear that the church in doctrine is drifting from its ancient moorings. Our bishops are zealous for sound doctrine but are not alarmists. Let no one become alarmed.

DR. THOMAS NEAL IVEY DIES SUDDENLY

Last Tuesday, May 15, at 5 o'clock in the afternoon, while on the golf links at Nashville, Tenn., Dr. Thos. N. Ivey, for 13 years editor of the Christian Advocate, was suddenly stricken with a heart attack and died 15 minutes later. He lacked just eight days of being 63 years of age.

The funeral services were held in Nashville Wednesday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock and the body forwarded to Raleigh, N. C., for burial. Dr. Ivey while editor of the Raleigh Christian Advocate lived 12 years in Raleigh, had never ceased to think of that city as home and was planning to make Raleigh his home when too old to work. It is fitting that his tired body should rest in the dust of the city that he loved.

Dr. Ivey had been editor of the Christian Advocate for 13 years, having been elected at the general conference in Asheville, May 1910. As already indicated he edited the Raleigh Christian Advocate 12 years and was a joint editor of the North Carolina Christian Advocate for two years before going to Raleigh.

After his graduation at Trinity College in 1880, he was principal of the Shelby high school three years, principal of Oak Institute, Mooresville, N. C., five years before entering the itinerant Methodist ministry in 1888. His pastoral charges were Lenoir station one year, Roxboro station two years, Wilson station four years.

As a pastor Dr. Ivey was eminently successful. On account of his scholarly attainment and gifts as a writer he was called into the work of religious journalism and met with eminent success in this admittedly difficult and laborious field of service. Twenty-six years of constant toil in an editorial office was enough to snap the strongest heart strings.

The church had honored this faithful man of God in many ways. He had been a member of the last six general conferences and since the election of John C. Kilgo bishop in 1910 has led the delegation from the North Carolina conference. He was a delegate to the ecumenical conference at Toronto in 1911, vice president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America and a member of the ecumenical commission for 1921, and a member of the commission on unification of Methodism.

His college honors were: Member of Phi Beta Kappa, Kappa Sigma and the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity from Trinity College in 1896.

Dr. Ivey in 1896 issued the first edition of the Southern Methodist Handbook and has been its editor from the beginning to the time of his death. "Bildad Akers—His Book" is a volume filled with homely philosophy written in the dialect of a plain old American who has been deprived of the advantages of the schools. The author came to be known among his close friends as Bildad Akers.

Dr. Ivey has wrought well in all the tasks assigned him. He went beyond all his predecessors in the time of service as editor of the Christian Advocate. None before him had served more than twelve years. He was a versatile and gifted editor and will go down in the history of the church as a leader in religious journalism.

Thos. N. Ivey was the son of George Washington and Selina Neal Ivey. His father was one of Methodism's greatest men, a circuit rider the equal of any who adorn the annals of itinerant history. His mother was in every way worthy of her honored husband. Of the brothers, J. B. Ivey of Charlotte, Geo. F. Ivey, and Eugene Ivey of Hickory, N. C., are living. There are two sisters, Mrs. J. H. White of Greensboro, N. C., and Mrs. George Ford of Statesville, N. C.

Mrs. T. N. Ivey was before her marriage Miss Lenora Ann Dowd of Charlotte, N. C., and a sister of Hon. W. C. Dowd, a well known newspaper man of that city. The children are Neal Ivey, the only son, who is in business in Philadelphia, Mrs. Edith Norris of Raleigh, Mrs. Lester Davis of Beaufort and Mrs. Harris of Baltimore.

The whole church will mourn the departure of this gifted and consecrated servant in the kingdom of God, but the Methodists of North Carolina will sorrow most on account of his being taken from us. "Ivey" is a great name in North Carolina and this son of the clan had added greatly to its distinction. He was highly appreciated in his own conference and the Western North Carolina conference held him in equally high esteem. In some respects the west had stronger claims upon him than the east. For the greater part of his father's incomparable ministry was in this territory. The dust of his father and mother sleep at Lenoir. His brothers and sisters are in the west.

Thomas N. Ivey belonged to North Carolina Methodism and all our flags are at half mast and our hearts are sorrowful.

IN THE WAYNESVILLE DISTRICT

Representative Methodists from Cherokee, Clay, Graham, Jackson, Swain, Haywood and Macon counties gathered more than a hundred strong last week in Franklin, the county seat of Macon, for the Waynesville district conference. The conference got a good start Wednesday night with an unusually strong and helpful sermon by Rev. Geo. D. Herman of Waynesville. There are few better preachers than G. D. Herman, who invariably stays four years with his church and who is now finishing four successful years at Waynesville. He expects to get into his new church at Waynesville before the annual conference meets October 17.

At the conclusion of the sermon Rev. R. S. Howie, the presiding elder, took charge and showed at once that he had everything in hand, knew just what ought to be done, understood how to do it and proceeded at once to organize the conference for the business that was to begin the following morning at 9 o'clock. L. L. Marr was elected secretary.

A Bishop's Cold Ride.

Bishop Denny reached Bryson Wednesday evening at seven o'clock and after supper he left Bryson at eight o'clock in company with Rev. W. O. Goode for the 30 mile drive to Franklin, 20 miles away as the "crow flies." That road with its reverse curves, horseshoe bends, "dead man's" cliff and other dangerous and picturesque points is in daylight interesting to the superlative degree. But at night on May 9, 1923, with ice and snow in evidence and a biting wind doing its work one would hardly choose this road for a "joy ride." Bishop Denny made no such choice. He was only proving himself a worthy successor of Bishop Asbury.

When the car of these night riders at ten o'clock rolled up to the home of Brother J. A. Porter there was a Methodist bishop chilled to the bone and a shivering secretary of education who sought the register in that steam heated house. But the warm and hospitable reception soon caused them to forget the winter weather on the outside.

Cordial Reception.

When did a district conference ever enjoy a more whole-hearted and open-handed hospitality than that dispensed by the people of Franklin? Every door was open and all hearts seemed open to the conference. Transportation to the railroad station and elsewhere was at all times ready and free. Just notify R. L. Porter and the car was at one's door.

The attendance at the conference especially at the preaching hour was the largest that I have seen. When G. D. Herman preached Wednesday evening, S. H. Hilliard Thursday morning, Bishop Denny Thursday night and Friday morning that big church was filled with interested listeners.

Two Churches Dedicated.

Saturday at 11 o'clock Bishop Denny dedicated the new brick church at Iotla. This structure cost $10,000 and is quite an attractive building in one of the best communities of Macon county. The church is a part of the Franklin circuit where Rev. R. E. Ward is now in his third year and has done successful work. Plans are on foot to divide this circuit and make two pastoral charges to cover the same territory.

Last Sunday was a great day for the Methodist people of Franklin. The new church from which a debt of $10,000 had been removed in the last few weeks was dedicated, Bishop Denny preaching the sermon.

The Franklin people have had a long siege in church building. Several years ago they erected a house of worship that had been planned to meet the needs of the community for long years to come. Just when completed the building caught fire and was completely destroyed without one cent of insurance. Overwhelmed but not destroyed by the disaster, the people with dauntless courage set themselves to the task of rebuilding, and the present commodious and beautiful church is the result. The present building has cost over $50,000 and seldom does one see a better or more attractive church auditorium than that at Franklin.

New Churches in That Western Territory.

With the new church at Franklin, a new church at Andrews, a church soon to be completed at Murphy and the Waynesville church in process of construction the larger congregations in the Waynesville district will be equipped with buildings that will meet their every need for years to come. Methodism is making progress in that section of the state. Every attendant upon the conference believed that he had the best home, but none could ask better than that of J. A. Porter, where Bishop Denny, Mr. and Mrs. J. Dale Stentz, Rev. L. T. Cordell, W. O. Goode and this editor found all that heart should desire.

CITY ROAD

Rev. H. E. Myers of Elizabeth City has put on his war paint because certain uncircumcised Philistines persist in calling his church City Roads instead of City Road. This is, according to the Rev. D. H. Tuttle, the only City Road church on earth and the distinction should be preserved.

After having declared what will be the fate of all who take liberties with the name of his church, this elect pastor writes us as follows:

"And this one City Road is doing pretty well, considering. You have probably heard that we had a simultaneous meeting here in our good town. We simulated under the leadership of Brother L. B. Hayes and Brother I. N. Fisher. It is customary for preachers to brag on each other. This is not needful in this case. Brother Hayes did us fine service, putting his very heart in the work, and bringing clear gospel messages at every service. The church was revived and interest in all of its work stimulated. We have received to date eight on profession of faith. Brother Fisher is a ripe saint who knows God in the experience of the gospel and sings this message into the hearts of his hearers. He is a good leader. His work and presence are a blessing in the community. It was a benediction to have these fine Christian leaders labor so effectively with us.

"We have been a little delayed in the Advocate campaign, due to the preparations for the meeting. I am sending you these renewals as a testimony to a good intention. The committee in charge of this work here will probably have a further report that I can forward soon.

"The paper is real good. It does good in the work in every particular."

The junior piano recitals that have been given this year in Greensboro College have been unusually successful. On April 11 Misses Lillian Hall, Lumber Bridge, and Mary Jo Dickson, York, S. C.; April 18, Rachel Glover, Salisbury, and Mildred Wilson, Marion; April 25, Agnes Edwards, Seaboard, and Louise Cunningham, Apex; May 2, Louise Beal, Gastonia, and Mabel Parker, Clinton; May 11, Bailey Watson, Greensboro, and Annyce Worsham, Ruffin; May 14, Mary Long, Bryson City, and Grace Johnson, Thomasville. The seniors in music are Misses Mary Scott Tucker, Raleigh; Bess Lewis, Whiteville, and Dixie Curtis, Liberty. Their recitals on April 23 and April 30 were splendid.

PEOPLE AND THINGS

Western North Carolina Conference, October 17.
North Carolina Conference, November 14.

Married, at the home of the bride, Bettie, N. C., Mr. Grady Whitehurst to Miss Maggie Arthur, May 12, 1923, Rev. H. M. Jackson officiating.

Rev. J. L. Midgette will begin revival services in his church at Halifax, N. C., May 21, and the preaching will be done by the pastor.

"And the other disciple did outrun Peter"—McLean hates the Ku Klux worse than Bailey does.—Mt. Olive Tribune.

Brother A. L. Aycock expects within six weeks to complete an excellent eight room parsonage at Canton. Bath rooms and all other modern conveniences are provided. The pastor expects to be living at no distant day in a bran new house.

Dr. Plato T. Durham, of Emory University, Atlanta, Ga., has been chosen for the baccalaureate sermon this year at the University of North Carolina. This gifted Carolinian will meet every demand of that important occasion.

Mrs. R. J. Colley, Birch Leaf, Va., mother of Mrs. G. T. Bond of Greensboro, has at an advanced age suffered a stroke of paralysis. Mrs. Bond in response to a telegram left Monday night to visit her mother, whose condition is regarded as critical.

Mrs. Edward M. Battis, one of the devoted members of Park Place church, Greensboro, and one of the choicest Christian spirits has gone to a hospital for a serious operation. Her numerous friends will hope for a speedy recovery.

Dr. George R. Stuart will deliver his lecture, "When the American Woman Becomes a Man, Then What?" Friday night, May 18, in Spring Garden Street church. Dr. Stuart will be greeted by a large audience and all who go will get more than their money's worth.

"Appropriate and attractive Mother's Day and Sunday School Day exercises were creditably rendered in the church in Roanoke Rapids last Sunday morning. The splendid program was prepared by Misses Clara Hearne and Otelia Vaughan. Both the attendance and offering were large."

Revs. Carlock Hawk of Asheville and J. P. Morris of Madison and George Hawkes of Cornelius enlivened the Advocate office with their presence one day last week. These pastors seldom come this way. If Brother Hawk since coming to North Carolina has at any time visited this village we do not recall the date. The twenty-story skyscraper brings some people to Greensboro now.

Rev. Thurston B. Price will on May 27 begin a union tent meeting in Waynesville to continue three weeks. On June 17 he will begin a union tent meeting in Canton to run at least three weeks. This may be followed by a similar meeting in Franklin for the whole of Macon county. Such plans are only tentative and may be changed. But he will be at Waynesville and Canton.

Of interest to a wide circle of friends throughout the state is the following: "Mrs. John Delap Grimes requests the honor of your presence at the marriage of her daughter, Maud, to Mr. Leonard Burwell Hurley on Wednesday evening, the sixth of June, at eight o'clock, First Methodist church, Lexington, North Carolina. At home after the first of August, five hundred and twelve West Market street, Greensboro, North Carolina."

The meeting at Center church, T. W. Hager, pastor, closed Sunday, May 13, after two weeks of services. At the service Sunday afternoon a class of 15 was received into the church. There will be some to receive later who could not be present Sunday. The Pisgah Sunday school will observe Sunday School Day Sunday, May 20. They expect to have an all day service.

A successful meeting is being held this week at Park Place church, Greensboro. Dr. E. K. McLarty of High Point is doing the preaching. The singing is led by Rev. E. P. Billups. Tuesday was women's night, Wednesday men's night, Friday is to be Sunday school night. These special delegations give added interest and at the same time increase the attendance. The singing is spirited, the preaching first class and the interest encouraging. Rev. L. B. Hayes, the pastor, is greatly pleased with the meeting.

Rev. F. B. Peele of Biscoe came in Tuesday with an attractive check from one of his churches and secured a list of Advocate subscribers in his other churches so that he might win other victories. Brother Peele reports that his sister, Mrs. H. C. Ritter, is home from China, where she is one of our missionaries and now on an 18 months furlough on account of failing health. Her husband is with her and they will spend part of the time in North Carolina. Mrs. Ritter is now in Columbia, S. C., for medical treatment.

The speakers for the approaching commencement of the North Carolina College, Greensboro, are as follows: Rev. John Haynes Holmes, pastor of the Community church, New York City, will deliver the annual sermon on the morning of June 3. He will also preach the sermon to the college Y. W. C. A. on Sunday night. Sir Israel Gollancz of London, England, will deliver the commencement address this year. This comes on Tuesday morning, June 5. The speaker is a noted English scholar and writer, and is professor of English language and literature in King's College, London. After the address diplomas will be awarded to the members of the graduating class, which this year numbers 124.

The urgent demand for a Methodist minister to care for the spiritual interests of the Methodist soldiers and sailors at Oteen convinced Bishop Denny and Revs. H. C. Sprinkle and R. S. Howie, the two presiding elders directly concerned, that some provision should be made at once to care for the situation. As a result, Bishop Denny has appointed Rev. T. A. Groce, evangelist for the Waynesville district to the work. Brother Groce has rendered valuable service on the district. His meetings were held mostly on mission charges and resulted in the additions on profession of faith of 78, of whom 58 were heads of families. Family altars erected 51 volunteers for life service 61, tithers pledged 91. Offerings in meetings amounted to $608, approximately one-half of the evangelist's expenses including salary. The other half was provided by the board of missions and the evangelistic committee of the Waynesville district. Brother Groce was rendering valuable service and only the urgency of the conditions at Oteen induced Bishop Denny to make the change.

WINSTON-SALEM DISTRICT CONFERENCE

In the midst of the rolling prairies of upper Davie lies the beautiful little village of Farmington. The Farmington circuit has joined with the village church and community in arranging for the entertainment of the Winston-Salem district conference which will convene May 24-25. Bishop Denny will be with us to preside and preach.

We are looking for a large attendance. The Sunday school superintendents of the district will be guests of the conference. The delegates have been elected and these are mighty fine representatives of the great Methodist hosts which make up the membership of the district. The local preachers, lay leaders, district stewards, recording stewards and members of the annual conference boards will be present and join with us in making this a great conference.

We extend a cordial invitation to every interest of the church to send representatives to the conference. We wish to hear all about your difficulties and successes. We wish to co-operate with you in all your plans. Come and tell us all about it.

Many of our district conferences have already been held. We should greatly appreciate the attendance of the other presiding elders of the conference. Come over and give us the inspiration of your presence and counsel.

Farmington is located some distance from the railroad. Let all come by auto who can conveniently do so. It will contribute to your pleasure and be of decided assistance to your hosts. For those who come by railway, transportation will be provided from Mocksville to the seat of the conference. If you plan to come by the latter method, please notify Rev. C. O. Kennerly, Farmington, N. C., of the day and hour of your arrival. Kennerly is a wise old boy, but would probably have some difficulty in guessing your intentions. Just drop him a pretty little postal card.

Sunday Schools, Lay Activities and Evangelism are to be the leading subjects of the conference.

The Spirit of the Lord Our God will be poured out upon us in answer to the prayers of His church.

W. A. Newell.

Rev. H. M. Blair 18 years ago bought the ground upon which the Advocate building was afterward erected for $1,600. The same land without any building, if one may judge by the amount a vacant lot lying alongside of it brought last week, is now worth $30,000. This shows the drift of land values in Greensboro and at the same time proves that Brother Blair did well in securing a permanent home for the Advocate.

Mr. A. Saunders sends us this interesting note: "The commencement sermon for the Whitney high school, Saxapahaw, N. C., was preached in the beautiful new building on the 13th inst. by Dr. W. B. North of Burlington. His text was 'Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might,' etc., and the theme was 'Industry.' The discourse was masterly, appropriate, a death blow to idleness and indifference, and in demonstration of the Holy Spirit. The young ladies and gentlemen on the program acquitted themselves with great credit to south Alamance. The last year's work was the most successful in the history of this growing school."

DR. W. A. SHELTON APPOINTED FRATERNAL DELEGATE

Our fraternal delegate to the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church which meets next May in Springfield, Mass., will be Rev. W. A. Shelton, D.D., head of Semitic Languages and Literature in Emory University.

TO THE PREACHERS AND PEOPLE OF MARION DISTRICT

I write to ask the people of Marion district to excuse their pastors from the 6th to the 16th of June that they may attend the Bible school at Trinity College. I also ask that the people make up a purse to pay the expenses of the pastors, and that all our pastors and as many of our laymen as can avail themselves of the wonderful opportunity of studying God's word.

Z. Paris, P. E.

COMMENCEMENT SPEAKERS AT TRINITY COLLEGE

Arrangements have been concluded for the three principal commencement speakers with the selection of Dr. Dugal Macfayden, of London, England, to deliver the baccalaureate address, Bishop Hoyt McWhorter Dobbs, of Brazil, the baccalaureate sermon, and Dr. William H. P. Faunce, president of Brown University, the commencement address.

The Reverend Dugal Macfayden, D.D., a native Englishman and a clergyman of universal note, is at present in America on an important mission in connection with fostering of an international Christian Entente between the United States and the United Kingdom. As first secretary of the Council for Higher Education, director of the London Missionary Society, secretary of the British and American Preachers and Speakers Interchange Commission, and prospective Liberal candidate from West Somerset, Dr. Macfayden is not only a speaker of unusual ability, but a man actively engaged in public and religious work, especially of an international character. During the World War he lectured with great acceptance to ministers, also workers, and troops in different camps and hospitals in France. As an author he has achieved distinct recognition, having written more than a dozen books on historical and religious subjects and contributed to the Encyclopedia Britannica and the Encyclopedia of Religion and Ethics.

Bishop Hoyt McWhorter Dobbs is also a clergyman of note and an educator. Bishop Dobbs was elected to the office of bishop at the last General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. In 1921 he delivered the convocation address at Emory University.

William Herbert Perry Faunce, who is to deliver the commencement address, is president of Brown University, Providence, R. I., and a former preacher. For several years prior to 1899 he was pastor of the Fifth Avenue church, New York, and since then he has been acting in his present capacity. From 1906-07 he was president of the Religious Educational Association, and through his career he has been a religious writer of repute. His writings include the following: "The Educational Ideal in the Ministry," "What Does Christianity Mean?" and "Religion and War." For many years he has been intimately associated with colleges and has a very sympathetic knowledge of student life.

A MESSAGE FROM THE BISHOPS

To the Ministers and Members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South—Beloved in Christ Jesus Our Lord: Grace and peace be multiplied unto you through the knowledge of God and of Jesus Christ, according as his divine power hath given unto us all things that pertain unto life and godliness, through the knowledge of Him that hath called us to glory and virtue.

Your general superintendents, after carefully reviewing the work of our beloved church during the year just passed and taking minute account of the conditions prevalent throughout all its borders, rejoice to inform you that its posterity is very marked and its program most cheering.

Upon all the fields in which it labors, both at home and abroad, have fallen refreshing visitations of grace which have steadied its faith, quickened its zeal, and increased the fruitage of its toils.

The number of its members is nearing 2,500,000 souls, of whom nearly or quite 50,000 are in the churches on foreign fields.

The success of our foreign missions is very gratifying. The bishops who have had charge of those fields report to their colleagues pleasing and promising conditions in the work of Methodism in those needy lands. The people are more eager for the gospel of Christ than ever before. They crowd our places of worship and hang upon the preaching of our ministry with a pathetic interest and pleading attention of starving souls. Neither the churches we have erected for them nor the faithful efforts of all our missionaries, assisted by the zealous activity of nearly three hundred native preachers, suffice to meet the demands of the multiplied thousands who seek from them the light of life.

The capacity of our Christian schools in these benighted lands is exceeded greatly by the number of students who desire the instruction which they offer.

Our hospitals and other humane enterprises are unable to do all the work of healing and help asked of them.

In Latin America, in Europe, in Asia, and in Africa we are glad to report that evangelical Christianity is advancing rapidly. The work in Korea is truly marvelous, and in China a fervent evangelism is propagating rapidly pure and undefiled religion.

Not in vainglory do we recount these victories of faith and love, but rather in humble gratitude would we spread these trophies at the feet of our Redeemer and crown him Lord of all.

Peace Throughout the Church.

With the greatest satisfaction we find peace and harmony prevailing generally throughout the church, notwithstanding some dissonant voices here and there, such as have been raised in divisive cries from the days of the apostles and the primitive church to the present time.

With the manifest favor of our risen and glorified Lord resting upon the labors of our beloved church, with an ecclesiastical polity which in all its past history has yielded most blessed results and which needs little amendment now, and with credal confessions and established standards of doctrine protected by constitutional defenses which even the highest legislative body of the church—the General Conference—cannot ignore or set aside, there is little or no occasion for bitter controversies and estranging contentions among our preachers and people.

We have received from the wise and devoted fathers of Methodism an inheritance in both a deposit of faith and a legacy of government which no man under any plea of individual liberty should dare impair and with which all devout souls should be abundantly satisfied.

The doctrinal platform of our Methodism is supported by both reason and revelation, and it is protected, as it should be, by constitutional safeguards. No one can be admitted to membership in the church without confessing steadfast belief of that venerable symbol of doctrine known as the "Apostles' Creed" and accepted by the great body of the faithful in all the churches. No pastor is authorized to receive into our communion any person who cannot or who will not make such a confession of his faith. As a condition of admittance into the order of deacons every preacher is required to declare that he "unfeignedly believes all the canonical Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments."

In the Apostles' Creed, our Articles of Religion, and our impressive Ritual the deity of Christ, his miraculous birth, his atoning sacrifice, and his resurrection from the dead are affirmed most clearly and unmistakably. With equal emphasis in these historic forms as set forth the revealed truths which concern personal salvation in the world that now is and the hope of life everlasting in the world to come.

As no one can obtain membership in our church or entrance into its ministry who denies or minimizes these great verities of our faith, it follows that anyone who desires to remain within its pale or retain a place in its service must continue to abide by its teachings. Otherwise its privileges must be surrendered or they must be held under false pretenses.

It is of the last importance that this faith be maintained in its pristine purity, proclaimed with authority to all who hear us, and propagated with burning zeal to the ends of the earth. In its maintenance and propagation is laid the mission of our Methodism; and if by any possibility our preachers and people should prove unfaithful to this mission, our church would cease to have a reason for its existence.

A Fervent Gospel Necessary.

At no time in our history was the fervent proclamation of the gospel committed to Methodism more necessary that it now is or the conditions more favorable for its world-wide propagation.

A war-worn, grief-stricken, and sin-cursed world lies before us calling piteously for the gospel of our Lord's redeeming grace. No discoveries of science, no progress of modern thought requires the revision of this gospel to adapt it to the wants of a weary and sinful race. Least of all can its negation be endured. It is so reasonable and roomy that it needs neither modification nor enlargement for the freest exercise of Christian liberty within it, and few, if any, feel their rightful freedom abridged by the acceptance of its saving truths.

The situation which confronts us calls for fidelity to the gospel and tireless effort to impart it to those who have it not. We are not called to the impossible task of discovering a newer and better gospel, but to the work of delivering to those who know it not that which in all ages has been and is now the power of God unto salvation. To all men everywhere, as far as in us lies, we are constrained by every sacred obligation of gratitude to our Lord and every tender consideration of the welfare of our humanity to proclaim this gospel with the power of the Holy Ghost sent down from heaven. And this will we do by the help of God.

The Centenary.

To this end our Centenary campaign was undertaken most opportunely. It was brought forward when the world had been prostrated by the most dreadful war in the history of mankind. The European nations in which were found the largest and most zealous bodies of evangelical Christians were bereft of multiplied thousands of their sons and greatly impoverished in their resources. Upon our country no such suffering fell. To the people of the United States the war brought sore griefs, perplexing problems, and heavy burdens, but it left them with increased wealth. And the Methodists share well with their fellow citizens the unprecedented opulence of the land. We were, therefore, prepared to respond to the appeal of such a movement as the Centenary campaign, calling for millions of money to meet the needs of an appalling crisis. The response of our church to that epochal movement led other churches to put forth similar efforts, by which vast sums were devoted to the cause of missions. Who can say what direful consequences to Christianity in unevangelized lands might have followed the world war if these American churches had not been able and willing to do these unusual things at a time when the spiritual needs of mankind were so urgent and the resources of the evangelical churches in Europe were so depleted? The Centenary Movement in the light of all these facts seems to have been divinely inspired and quite providential.

Our God has been graciously pleased to accept and bless the offerings of our people made through it, and we cannot now without sin turn back from the complete fulfillment of its great purpose. We must carry it to the consummation which we have set by the pledges that we have made for the glory of our Lord and the blessing of millions who sit in the dark places of the earth under the shadow of death.

Having set our hands to the plow, we dare not make ourselves unfit for Christ's kingdom by looking backward. In his name we must go forward. The offerings which we have solemnly vowed to God we must place with joy upon his altar.

Christian Education Movement.

And our Christian Education Movement must receive equal consideration by us. Besides being directly and vitally related to every part of the life and work of the church, it is complementary to the cause of missions and indispensable to it. For the work in our foreign mission fields thoroughly furnished missionaries are required. Pauline culture as well as Pauline consecration is necessary to fit one for an apostolic ministry among peoples who have never heard the message of salvation. And this type of culture cannot be secured by schools and colleges which are not penetrated by the gospel and filled with the Spirit of Christ. Secular institutions produce few ministers for the home field and fewer foreign missionaries.

Without our Methodist colleges and universities we cannot maintain the work of the church at home or abroad. From its earliest beginnings Methodism has recognized the necessity of highly educated men as well as devout men of limited culture to carry on its work. And nothing could be worse for evangelical Christianity than to have it identified with ignorance and superstition. "For the soul to be without knowledge is not good"; and just because the common people hear gladly the preaching of our church as they did the words of our Lord, we must provide for their educational needs. Methodism seems to have been anointed with a special unction for preaching the gospel to the poor, and hence to the children of the poor who are saved through its ministrations it must bring educational opportunities and privileges.

And the people of larger means also need Christian schools. Otherwise their sons and daughters will be educated outside the church and away from it. We see, therefore, that we are under weighty obligations to all classes to establish and maintain colleges and universities in which the highest education and the most elevated culture may be offered to all who will take it.

Upon the members of the faculties who serve in our institutions of learning rests a responsibility scarcely less than that which rests upon the preachers who minister at the altars of our churches for propagating the purest form of Christianity. They are the agents and ministers of the church for the enlightenment and development of its youth. In the fear of God they must teach the youth committed to their instruction by both example and precept. Nothing that dishonors our Saviour or is contrary to the accepted standards of our church must issue from the lips lest they set fermenting an evil leaven of unbelief and ungodliness. It behooves them to seek the salvation of the souls of their pupils not less than the improvement of their intellects. A vain and sterile intellectualism must not be allowed to displace or subordinate the higher spiritual purposes for the achievement of which the church establishes and maintains institutions of learning.

We are living in a high-powered world, and its power through processes of knowledge seems to be increasing more rapidly than its spiritual capacity for directing its enormous force to right ends. Already its culture outruns its conscience, and its power imperils its safety. Its self-destruction is inevitable unless its spiritual life shall speedily overtake and dominate its intellectual resources. Unholy aspirations for knowledge, inspired by diabolic subtlety, blighted paradise, and godless education, may eventually curse the whole earth if it be not overcome by the Christian learning which casts down imaginations and every high thing that exalteth itself against the knowledge of God and brings into captivity every thought to the obedience of Christ.

We cannot have such learning among our people if we withhold from our colleges and universities the support to which they are entitled.

Christian education in the United States is in a far worse case than it would have been if the churches had been more faithful and generous to their institutions of learning. The estrangement of colleges from the faith of their pious founders through the negligence and niggardliness of their rightful owners has been all too common in America, and Methodism has not always escaped this hurtful and humiliating process of alienation of educational enterprises.

Our Christian Education Movement will check, if it does not entirely arrest, this evil. If the pledges made to it are redeemed, a new era in our educational history will begin and shine more and more to the day of perfect deliverance from the menace of secularism.

It would be unreasonable to expect that every one of all our institutions of learning should be entirely exempt from every possible defect and perfectly clear of everything objectionable; but in no schools in the world can be found a more Scriptural type of Christianity or a purer spiritual atmosphere. Where else can we look for religious education if not to them? Whatever may be their failings, they have no faults which justify punishing them with the wretched confinement of an imprisoned poverty on a diet of bread and water. Generous support of them by the church will fasten upon them obligations to the church whereby their purity and their abiding influence for good will be more certainly assured. Neglect of them will weaken the hold of the church upon them and tend to make them the prey of a devouring secularism.

In the name of our divine Saviour and heavenly Sovereign we entreat you to promote these great missionary and educational enterprises of the church with scrupulous care and abounding liberality.

You will set forward also with renewed zeal all the great work committed to us by God. Participate in the evangelism of the church. Rebuild the altars of prayer in the homes where they have fallen down and rekindle their holy fires. Attend the worship of God's house, cultivate the fellowship of his people, and enter with joyousness into the communion of saints.

In this day of restlessness, disquietude and distraction, when so many are tossed to and fro and carried about by every gust of windy doctrine, "be ye steadfast, immovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, for as much as ye know that your labor is not in vain in the Lord."

Now the God of peace that brought again from the dead our Lord Jesus Christ, that great Shepherd of the sheep, through the blood of the everlasting covenant make you perfect in every good work to do his will, working in you that which is well pleasing in his sight, through Jesus Christ, to whom be glory forever and ever.

FORSAKING CHRISTIANITY FOR WITCHCRAFT

By Bishop Warren A. Candler.

Conan Doyle is reported to have said recently, "The so-called Christianity of today, a material religion, is dragging us down in our fight for a better world. Present day Christianity is dead, dead, dead."

The three statements contained in this utterance are untrue, and two of them are contradictory.

Christianity is not a materialistic religion. It opposes materialism in one extreme of thought, and spiritism in the opposite extreme. Its opposition to spiritism is what gives Doyle his distress. Other doubters object to its spiritual character. Indeed, this man is a materialist, and would, if he could, materialize the spiritual world.

Again, Christianity is not hindering any sane "fight for a better world." On the contrary, in it alone is found the only reasonable hope for a better world. The rejection of it by men is the source of their disorder and despair. The universal acceptance of it would result in the peace and purity of the world.

And it is not dead. The annual increase of membership in the Christian churches of the United States is a million of souls. The membership of the churches grows at a more rapid rate than the population of the country, and nobody believes the nation "is dead, dead, dead."

But if this Christianity is "dead, dead, dead," how can it be hindering "the fight for a better world?" It must be a lively corpse, if it has such great influence in the world.

Conan Doyle's speciality is not logical thinking, but crass superstition.

A few weeks ago he was informing the world that the Earl of Carnarvon had died from the curse of the Pharaoh whose tomb he had discovered and opened. This absurd nonsense he put forth with the utmost seriousness. He did not stop to inquire why death by such curses had not killed the thousands of European quacks who used to administer fragments of mummies as medicine. Nor did he undertake to explain why other men, who were more active than Lord Carnarvon in the exploration of the tomb, were not killed by the Pharaoh's curse. Would he have us believe that dead Pharaohs are partial in the matter of whom they slay, wreaking their vengeance on titled nobility alone, and permitting common men to escape death by their curses?

It is quite possible that Tutankhamen and all the other Pharaohs pronounced curses on anyone who might disturb their tombs. But even their contemporaries paid no slightest attention to their impotent imprecations. Their sepulchres have been opened and rifled time and again, and nobody died as a consequence.

It is quite probable that an insect bit Carnarvon's cheek and that he infected the wound by scratching the place when his hands were not free from germ-laden dust. Then the infection spread to his nose and throat, and so lowered his vitality that he was unable to overcome the pneumonia by which he was attacked about the same time.

If he and Tutankhamen have met in the world of spirits and know what Conan Doyle is saying, they must be amused by his ridiculous credulity. At least it is enough to make a disembodied spirit laugh, if laughing is possible and proper to such a soul.

Certainly the extreme credulity of sceptics in the world that now is affords ground for derisive merriment. They reject the well-attested miracles of Jesus, including His resurrection, and then proceed to swallow the most preposterous tales and unbelievable theories. They refuse to believe that the incarnate Lord of Life, standing by the grave of Lazarus called out of the tomb the beloved brother of Mary and Martha, but they believe without a doubt that Tutankhamen killed Carnarvon by an idle curse across a space of three thousand years.

Sir Edward Bulwer Lytton in "Zanoni," the strongest and most suggestive of all his books, points out the tendency of unbelief to run into the most fantastic superstition. In describing one of the characters in the story—"a creature of impulse and a slave of imagination"—he adverts to the conditions prevalent across the English Channel during the period covered by his novel, and says:

"It was then the period when a feverish spirit of change was making its way to that hideous mockery of human aspirations, the Revolution of France. And from the chaos into which were already jarring the sanctities of the World's Venerable Belief, arose many shapeless and unformed chimeras. Need I remind the reader that while that was the day for polished scepticism and affected wisdom, it was the day also for the most egregious credulity and the most cynical superstitions—the day in which magnetism and magic found converts amongst the disciples of Diderot, when prophecies were current in every mouth, when the salon of a philosophical deist was converted into an Heraclea, in which necromancy professed to conjure up the shadows of the dead, when the Crozier and the Book were ridiculed, and Mesmer and Cagliostro were believed. In that Heliacal Rising heralding the new sun before which all vapors were to vanish, stalked from their graves in the feudal ages all the phantoms that had flitted before the eyes of Paracelsus and Agrippa."

In our day, which has been called "an age of doubt," we observe similar conditions prevalent, not only in France but also in our own and other lands. What senseless cults abounds among us promoted by people who are both deceived and deceiving.

These cults are mistletoe growths feeding on diseased and dying faith. Unless extirpated they will destroy that upon which they subsist as parasites.

Moreover, these cults will bring decay to social and political institutions. They are not innocuous follies at which one may carelessly laugh. Sooner or later they will fasten themselves on the firmest supports of organized government.

Having lost his hold upon the God of Israel Saul resorted to the Witch of Endor, and the day following his night visit to the place where she practiced her necromancy, the misguided king pitched a battle in which his army was ignominiously defeated and thousands of men were slain, including himself and his noble son, Jonathan.

Religion—reliable religion, not fantastic cults—underlies the social and political institutions of our country. Ours is a nation founded by faith. We can not subvert its foundations without pulling down the whole structure, and, when it falls into ruin many precious things will perish with it.

Already it is beginning to show cracks and crevices of an alarming nature. All sorts of isms are penetrating it.

These disintegrating isms can not be overcome by argument. They can not be corrected by reason because they are not founded in reason.

Nothing but a revival of pure and undefiled religion can overthrow them and avert the perils which they bring. This fact should be seriously considered by the men of the commercial world and by the comparatively few statesmen whom we have left. It is a matter which seriously concerns their interests as well as it solemnly involves the sacred obligations which they owe to the nation.

There can be no uncertainty concerning the kind of religion which gave birth to the great republic, and the faith which rocked its cradle must preserve its life. Nothing else will suffice for its perpetuation.

No consideration of hospitality or requirement of courtesy should constrain us to welcome to our shores any of the foes of this faith, however prominent and pretentious they may be. The American people (mostly those in the larger cities of the North) have paid too much money for the lectures of the Doyles, Lodges, et id omne genus. All the people, including the owners and editors of many newspapers, are paying far too much for the loose lucubrations of Mr. H. G. Wells. Why pay so much for that which is worse than trash? Why purchase for use as wearing apparel a lot of infected rags?

In matters of religion these writers are ridiculously unreliable. Because their faith has died they imagine all religion is dead. Because they are freezing with doubt they fancy glaciers are overwhelming the whole world. They mistake the fermentations of their disordered digestive apparatus for the premonitions of earthquakes.

TRINITY COLLEGE SUMMER SCHOOL

Some hard problems of the Sunday school are solved when a live teacher in the public school can be induced to carry into the work of the Sunday school the ideals of preparation and training she is required to apply in her day school work. Some of the most conscientious school teachers hesitate to work in the Sunday school because they feel they do not have the same training for that work that they have for their daily work. To meet the needs of these teachers, the Trinity College Summer School has this summer offered the following courses: Old Testament History, The Bible as Literature, and The Use of the Bible in Public Schools, all offered by Professor Cannon; and The Elements of Religious Education, Masterpieces of Religious Literature, and Church and Society, offered by Professor Spence.

Any one of these courses may be taken in connection with two other Summer School courses and will count for a regular summer school's work toward raising the certificate of any teacher who holds a standard state certificate. The work is strictly of college grade and is planned to be of practical help to religious leaders. If you have one or more public school teachers in your pastoral charge whom you would like to take these courses, kindly have them write me, and send me their names. Summer School begins June 15 and ends July 28.

Holland Holton,
Director of Summer School.

To preach more than half an hour, a man should be an angel himself or have angels for hearers.—Whitefield.

FLOWERS UPON THE GRAVES OF METHODIST PREACHERS

This morning, May 10th, at sunrise about two dozen Epworth leaguers of First church, Morganton, gathered at the graves of Revs. E. W. Thompson and C. M. Anderson, had a beautiful service of songs, prayers and short talks. Then the graves of these faithful Methodist itinerants and soldiers of the Cross, also the grave of Sister Anderson were covered with beautiful flowers. It was good to be at this service and to think of the lives and influence of these saints of God. Perhaps the blood-washed spirits of these departed ones hovered near us, and doubtless the smile of the good Father was on us as we bowed with uncovered heads about their sacred dust.

It is beautiful to think and hope that all the graves of our preachers were visited and honored in some like way today. W. R. Ware.

THE REVIVAL AT GIBSON

A union revival composed of Gibson, St. Johns and Boykins Methodist churches and the Presbyterian and Baptist churches of Gibson was held in the town of Gibson, N. C., beginning April 7th and continuing for three weeks. The crowd was so large that no church building within the territory was large enough to hold the congregations. We secured a large tent 60x90 feet, seated and lighted it. We had a large choir, led by this writer. Mrs. Berta Adams presided at the piano and did valuable service. The preacher secured for this occasion was Rev. E. McWhorter of Aberdeen. One seldom hears a series of sermons equaled in power to those delivered by this gifted preacher.

Some four or five times during the meeting Prof. Gregg, superintendent of our public school, marched the entire school in a body to the eleven o'clock service. Every teacher was seated with the grade they taught.

On two occasions the Boykin public school under the leadership of Prof. Hook were also present. These together with the other part of the morning congregation taxed the tent to its capacity. It was an inspiring scene.

Brother McWhorter used a blackboard for his outline at these special services, and made the subject under discussion so helpful and interesting that he had almost the undivided attention of the children and young people. We have few men among us Brother McWhorter's equal as a preacher and especially is this true when he comes to speak to children. There was no great outbreak of demonstration, but quietly a meeting of great power. Places of business were closed, and wherever you found a few people gathered the meeting was the topic of their conversation. Many church members who were cold and indifferent were reclaimed and began a Christian life anew. There were 29 added to St. Johns and Gibson charges on profession of faith and eight by certificate.

The superintendent of Gibson Sunday school, Bro. Willie H. Gibson, was an untiring worker. Sunday School Day was observed in his Sunday school on April 29th, at which time as a part of that day's program these new members were received. It is a fact worth noting that every one of the 29 were members of the Sunday school. The Gibson Sunday school now has enrolled in all departments 246, against a church membership of 196.

The preachers taking part in the meeting were Revs. J. A. Campbell of the Brightsville charge, S. C. conference and pastor of the Boykins church, Rev. O. H. McManus of the Baptist church, Rev. Mr. Caligan of the Presbyterian church and this writer.

The meeting was a great success and our town and surrounding community is morally a better place in which to live since its close.

A. J. Parker, Pastor.

A HOST OF ANGELS

It was Saturday night and I had been reading an evening's lesson. The place was where "Jacob went on his way, and the angels of God met him; and when Jacob saw them he said, "This is God's host; and he called the name of the place Mahanann."

There was a call by the doorbell and I answered the call to find quite a bunch of our neighbors—men, women and children, all armed with packages, bundles and boxes all freighted with pounds for the pantry. These were our neighbors, led by Professors Aldrich and Cranford and Dr. Bowling, a good Baptist friend, who demanded the route to the dining room, which was readily surrendered to the company. Having entered they surrounded the table and loaded it with a splendid pounding of just such things as are necessary for the support and comfort of a well regulated preacher and his family. Prof. Aldrich addressed this "Forgotten Man" and his family with a few choice words of welcome to a home in the community. This was followed by words of good cheer by Prof. Cranford and Dr. Bowling. Then followed a hearty handshaking by the crowd. All seemed to be striving to make the superannuate and his family feel like exclaiming, "Surely the Lord is in this place." Do you believe in the ministry of angels? Well, I do; and that bunch of men, women and boys and girls who came to see us in our own hired house that night were as truly angels of God as were the bunch that Jacob met on his way mentioned in the lesson of the evening.

Our friends were brimming over with joy because they were bent on making the old preacher happy, and they succeeded in fine style. Did you ever aspire to serve as an angel? Then you may by ministering in the Bible way. Read Heb. 1:14.

"Are they not all ministering spirits sent forth to minister for them who shall be the heirs of salvation?"

F. L. Townsend.

EVANGELISTIC SINGER

Should any pastor desire the services of an evangelistic singer and chorus director for a meeting between the dates May 20 to June 17, I can recommend Holland R. Wilkinson of Richmond, Va. He is a good director, a very effective soloist, and a fine worker in a meeting. He has the happy faculty of "fitting in" to a situation, and by his tact and fine Christian spirit is a wonderful help in a revival. Up to May 20 he may be reached at Salisbury, N. C., in care of John F. Kirk. He is now conducting the singing for Dr. Rowe in the meeting at First church. John F. Kirk.

THE HOT SPRINGS CHARGE

The cornerstone of Fairview, the new Methodist church which is to take the place of Ottinger's Chapel, was laid May 1st at 10 o'clock a. m. After the ritualistic service by the pastor in charge, Rev. T. Handley, pastor of the Presbyterian church of this place, delivered a very interesting and able address. The occasion being favored with a beautiful sunny day seemed to say God was well pleased with the undertaking. The foundation being completed the sub-flooring is now down and practically all of the rough material is on the building ground. This week the framing will all be cut and next week there will be a church raising day and dinner on the ground. Several of the carpenters of Hot Springs and neighborhood will be there besides those who have the work in charge. The church is a modern equipped affair and has the most ideal site of any we know. Outsiders and all interested are most cordially invited to spend the day with us. Further notice will be given.

The Hot Springs church gave us another heavy bump Saturday night, May 5. Some one suggested that breadstuff would be acceptable, so there were five bags of flour and two of meal tumbled into the parsonage with other things too numerous to mention. Well, may the Lord add blessing for blessing to the good people of the Hot Springs charge—and see it go. A. A. Angel, P. C.

CLOSE OF REVIVAL AT MADISON

On last Wednesday evening we closed our meeting at Madison which had been in progress for twelve days.

We had a splendid meeting. It has been a long time since Madison had such a meeting as the one which came to a close last Wednesday evening. It has been a long time, if ever, since Madison closed all of her places of business for the meeting services. Even the theatre and the poolrooms were closed for the entire meeting. Not only were our Methodist people greatly helped and revived, but all the churches of the town.

Carlock Hawk of Haywood Street, Asheville, did the preaching and George Hawkes of Cornelius, did the singing. These brethren endeared themselves very greatly to our people of Madison of all denominations. Carlock Hawk is a strong gospel preacher and will, we think, climb very fast in our conference within the next few years. Keep your eyes on Carlock Hawk.

As for George Hawkes, we all know George. He has sung himself into the hearts of the people all over our conference. The Lord has hold of George Hawkes and we may expect great things of him.

There were three services held during this twelve days meeting which deserve special mention—Sunday morning, Monday evening and Tuesday evening. Sunday morning Brother Hawk held a reconsecration service, preaching a strong sermon to the church, followed by an appropriate solo by George Hawkes. After the solo an invitation was given to those who wished to rededicate their lives to God. Almost the entire church membership of all the churches of Madison came forward and pledged themselves to God to be more loyal to the church and to God's cause in the future.

Monday evening Brother Hawk preached a special sermon to the young girls. At the close of this service there were 22 young girls who came forward pledging themselves to life service in the kingdom of God. Tuesday evening a special service was given to the young men. This too was a great service.

We are expecting great things of Madison in the future. Madison should be a station and we expect this to happen in the near future.

At the close of the meeting Wednesday evening the Methodists of Madison voted their pastor a month's vacation with the cash to defray the expenses of he and his wife while on their vacation. (Thanks.)

All honor and glory be given to God. Praise His holy name for all He has done for us. Jas. P. Morris.

MEETING AT E. GREEN STREET, HIGH POINT

I spent 13 days with Rev. E. J. Harbison and his good people in a series of meetings which closed last Friday night. We had a great meeting. There were about 135 conversions and reclamations. Eleven pledged themselves to have family prayer, besides those who were already holding family prayer; 78 pledged themselves to tithe, this in addition to those already tithing. There will be a goodly number to join the different churches.

I begin a two weeks' meeting tonight, the 14th, with Bro. W. J. Miller at Roaring River. Pray for us that God may give victory.

R. A. Taylor.

A REVIVAL AT BETHANY

Little Bethany church on the Durham circuit has just enjoyed a good revival. Fourteen preaching services were held, besides some others conducted by the Epworth leaguers. The children took an active part and were attentive in all the services. Rev. D. L. Earnhardt, whose home is very near this church, preached once—a timely sermon that was much appreciated.

The two score years of fine work he has done on Carolina soil from mountain to sea has not taken from him all the rich things that nature and grace have put in him. He and his family are busy all the while, shining as lights, and are a blessing in our midst. Rev. D. E. Earnhardt, pastor of Calvary church, preached through the meeting. Every part of every sermon awakened a deep and general interest and went home to the heart. His work will not be forgotten. He is an impressive preacher, a practical interpreter of the gospel, a diligent student and a tireless worker. You will hear from him. Our closing service last night was attended by a down-pour of rain, but we had a good house. Two bright young persons were received into the church. The meeting was of genuine value and we are grateful. W. F. Craven.

A NEW CHURCH

At a largely attended church conference held at the Methodist church in Dallas recently, by unanimous vote it was decided to purchase the corner lot lying next to the Methodist parsonage which had recently been bought by Mr. H. T. Hovis from Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Cornwell to be the ground upon which a handsome new church will be erected in the near future.

This is one of the most desirable lots in the city of Dallas, beautifully located on a knoll overlooking the city, facing 128 feet on Main street and 200 feet on a broad cross street within one block of the new graded school building.

The members of the church are to be commended for this decision and are deemed fortunate in having the opportunity to purchase this lot.

Rev. H. H. Jordan, the presiding elder of the Shelby district, was present and called a meeting of the quarterly conference which authorized the board of trustees to close the deal with Mr. Hovis, which was done at this time, paying the sum of $50 to bind the trade. The quarterly conference also by vote authorized the trustees to proceed to sell any real estate now held by the church which they deemed advisable.

The entire meeting was of such harmony that it could be easily said, using Bible expressions, "they were of one mind and one accord."

Rev. A. S. Raper is pastor of this church and presided at the meeting. X.

REVIVAL AT FAISON

Our annual revival in the Faison church closed the first Sunday in May. Rev. R. H. Broom was with us for a week and rendered most excellent service. Brother Broom's preaching is largely expository—safe and sound. He is one of our best preachers and most successful pastors. We feel that the meeting did lasting good. Four were received into the church, three on profession and one by letter.

Chas. M. Lance.

ZEBULON REVIVAL AT METHODIST CHURCH

Rev. O. W. Dowd of Franklinton preaches his opening sermon to a large congregation of appreciative hearers, and received a warm welcome by the pastor, Rev. W. L. Loy, and the congregation.

The indications are that we are going to have a gracious revival. To the town and community we extend a most cordial welcome. C. T. Harper.

CHOIR LEADER

Please announce in the Christian Advocate that I shall be in a condition to make engagements for revival meetings and evangelistic work as song leader, choir director and personal worker beginning June 1st. I received training for this work at Moody Institute, Chicago, and have had the pleasure of working in many successful meetings for the past few years. Anyone who desires may reach me at College Station, Durham, N. C., until June 1st, after which my address will be Rowland, N. C.

A PLEASANT SURPRISE

While down at Monroe the other week when the Woman's Missionary Conference was in session the good women of the Ladies' Aid Society and others, all of Littlejohn's church, were busy painting the parsonage. They painted two rooms, the sitting room and the dining room. We did not know anything until we came back home; so we were surprised when we entered the parsonage and found the two rooms nicely painted—but it was a pleasant surprise.

And, too, to make it more pleasant for us Mrs. G. A. Tuttle was here the day we came from Monroe and had a nice warm dinner waiting us. So we not only came into newly painted rooms decorated with flowers, but also to a good dinner which we very much enjoyed.

We appreciate these acts of kindness very much and feel indebted to these good people for this, and the many other things they have done for us to make us feel good. May the Lord bless them and help us to serve them in the very best possible way.

F. H. Price.

A SUCCESSFUL MEETING IN HAMLET

We have just closed at First church, Hamlet, N. C., the most successful revival meeting ever held in this city. The church received a great blessing in the stimulation of the faithful, the reclamation of the backslidden, the conversion of sinners, the erection of more than a hundred family altars, and a like number promised to tithes. Old feuds were settled, minor differences forgotten and "great grace was upon them all. We have received 20 members as a result of the meeting and others will come.

Miss Emma L. Tucker of Enterprise, Fla., did the preaching. Large congregations heard her twice daily for 18 days and the interest increased with each service. Miss Tucker says she is not a preacher, but the multitudes who heard her for nearly three weeks proclaimed her to be a wonderful preacher. She claims not to be an evangelist, but a more gifted evangelist has not come this way. This great woman styles herself a Bible reader. She has a wonderful knowledge of the Bible and quotes whole chapters, and proves all of her statements by the Word and gives the chapter and verse on every occasion. Her earnestness and logic is pronounced. Her comparisons and illustrations are as clear as the noonday sun, and flash with all the brightness and force of the rays from a great searchlight, while her descriptions are beautiful in diction.

Since girlhood this good woman has been engaged in Christian work. For several years she was a city missionary in some of our larger cities. The Door of Hope, a home for fallen girls in Nashville, Tenn., was begun with her own funds. She and her sister had charge of this institution for a number of years. For thirty years she has been in the evangelistic work, conducting evangelistic services in nearly all the Southern and many of the Western states.

I cannot commend too highly the splendid work of this wonderful woman. I wish to bear testimony to her fitness for the work to which she has given her life. Miss Tucker is an attractive personality, and one of the most cultured women I know.

It is the unanimous opinion of our people that the meeting was the most fruitful of results (that really count) of any held in Hamlet. The thank offering was the largest this city ever gave an evangelist, and no one was asked to give. W. C. Martin.

RUTHERFORD COLLEGE NOTES

Every number of our recent commencement exercises was good, but special mention should be made of the sermon by Rev. R. M. Hoyle and the literary address by Dr. Spence of Trinity College. Mr. Hoyle's presentation of the divinity of Christ and sovereign power of the Holy Spirit were unsurpassed, while the statement by Dr. Spence that the students prepared by Rutherford College were among the very best that came to Trinity, and real prize winners was tonic to our faculty, and should shut the mouths of those who have been saying that R. C. had no standing among Southern colleges.

Professor Reep was confined to his room at Weaver Hall Sunday and Monday, but at this writing thinks himself improving.

Five of the professors at Rutherford College are going to attend summer school so as to be better prepared for the work assigned them, as follows: Profs. Johnston and Weaver to Columbia University, Profs. Hauss and Reep to N. C. University, and Prof. Bennett to Trinity College. Prof. Hauss is also expecting to carry up his conference course. Prof. Weaver is taking a brief vacation in Florida before entering the summer school.

Our two evangelists, Jim Green and R. A. Taylor, are both at home flushed with victory in the meetings recently held. Mr. Green goes Tuesday to enter another meeting at St. Pauls near Fayetteville. Mrs. Green remains quite feeble, but was able to motor with her husband Sunday to Lenoir to hear a splendid sermon by Presiding Elder Litaker. J. T. S.

"Who was George Washington, Nellie?" asked the teacher of a little girl in the primary department.

"He was Mrs. Washington's second husband," was the unexpected reply.

Sharing the Credit.

THE PLEA FOR TOLERATION OF DOUBTS

There is a growing tendency among us to listen without protest to those who claim for the "splendid, intelligent, inquiring" young people of our day the right to doubt. We are told that it is not Christ-like to condemn them for doubting; that most of the great minds, the earnest seekers after truth, have their doubts.

We are almost convinced that the champions of the intelligent, vital, open-minded doubters—those whose minds hunger and thirst for fellowship with the great scholars of the world—are superior to the prosaic minded folks that accept the Bible as truth because it is God's word and not because it appeals to their reason, or because it "conforms to the findings of science."

We must teach our young people that the Bible is the standard by which God will judge all men, and that not all the scholarship of all the ages nor all the books ever written can blot out one sin.

Jesus says in John 3:3, 14-16: "Verily, verily, I say unto you, Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God. And as Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the Son of Man be lifted up: That whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have eternal life. For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life. It is belief, faith, that saves.

Take Paul's list, in the eleventh chapter of Hebrews, and teach them the glorious victories of faith. Teach them that faith is the victory that overcomes the world (1 John 5:4).

Teach them that they do not have to grope blindly for truth; that God, knowing that the natural mind cannot receive or understand the "deep things of God" (1 Corinthians 2:10-14), sends to us the Holy Spirit to "guide us into truth." The Holy Spirit will never lead us to doubt God's word.

Yes, any person can doubt, and doubt, like any other sin, carries its own punishment. The line of doubters, or unbelievers, is marked by failure, suffering, remorse for the doubters, and victories for the devil. Eve doubted God's word and sinned (Genesis 3:4-6). The Israelites doubted and were not allowed to enter the promised land (Numbers 20:12-13). While Naaman doubted his leprosy clung to him (2 Kings 5:8-14). The Samaritan lord doubted, and was not allowed to eat of the bread God had promised (2 Kings 7:1-16). Zacharias doubted, and was dumb until the word of God was fulfilled (Luke 1:18-20). The disciples doubted and failed to cast the devil out of the child (Matthew 17:14-20). The chief priests doubted and they crucified Jesus (Luke 22:67). While Peter believed he walked on the water; when he began to sink Jesus asked him: "Wherefore didst thou doubt?" Jesus said to Peter in Luke 22:31, I have prayed for thee, that thy faith fail not. The two disciples on the road to Emmaus were disappointed and sad as a result of unbelief. Jesus said unto them: "O fools and slow of heart to believe all that the prophets have spoken" (Luke 24:25).

Teach the young people that doubt is one of the devil's most subtle and successful weapons, and that when we yield to doubt we cheat ourselves, because we fall short of the best our Father has for us.

The children can understand that unbelief, denial, means failure to believe God's word, or refusal to accept it as true. The path of doubt leads away from God, and the end of the path is found to open into the "lake which burneth with fire and brimstone: which is the second death" (Revelation 21:8). If we wish our young people to run the risk of spending eternity with the devil, allow them to yield their minds to the devil's suggestions; but if we wish our young people to spend eternity with God, teach them to yield their minds to the Holy Spirit that He may guide them into the truth.

Paul says in Hebrews 3:12, Take heed, brethren, lest there be in any of you an evil heart of unbelief, in departing from the living God. In Isaiah 7:1-9, God promises safety to Ahaz, but with this warning: "If ye will not believe, surely ye shall not be established."

Read "The Religion of Tomorrow" in the Literary Digest for May 5, 1923, and note this confession: "Tell it not in Gath, and publish it not in the streets of Askelon, but we may as well confess to each other that the glowing promises which we of the liberal movement made to ourselves twenty years ago of a rationalized and newly vitalized Christian faith which should fill the masses with a more spiritual religion and take the place of their old bondage to the letter have not been fulfilled. The bondage to the letter is rapidly going, but the new spiritual faith is not spreading with anything like the same rapidity." Any attempt by men to rationalize or vitalize Christian faith will sooner or later have to face like failure. Professor Platt admits that "one of the effects of this emancipation of the human mind has been to weaken incalculably the foundations of religious faith for millions of Christians before anything very substantial could be given them in place of what had been taken away." You do not allow your child to eat bricks and cream puffs and expect him to grow physically; why allow him to feed on doubts and theories and expect him to grow spiritually? What excuse will they of the "liberal movement" make to God for having caused millions of His little ones to stumble? In Matthew 18:6 Jesus gives a word of warning about that danger.

Let us pray earnestly that the Holy Spirit will teach our young people to "take the shield of faith, wherewith ye shall be able to quench the fiery darts of the wicked" (Ephesians 6:16).—Elizabeth Lamb, Bible Lessons in the May "Our Missionary News."

AN URGENT REQUEST

All auxiliary social service superintendents are requested to report to me not later than July 1st. All auxiliary presidents are urged to see that social service superintendents are furnished with literature for the meeting for which she is responsible. It will require patience, perseverance and prayer on the part of auxiliary officers if we give this work the place it should have. May we catch a vision of the need and go forth with greater inspiration and courage to render service to the communities in which we live. Let's make this a great year in social service work in our conference. With your help and your prayers, with the help of our Lord, we will do great things for Him this year.

Western North Carolina Conference

MR. HERBERT GIBSON

Mr. Herbert Gibson, the accommodating and efficient railway agent at Lake Junaluska, is not only one of the best Sunday school superintendents in the Western North Carolina conference, but he is also a member of the Sunday School Board of our conference, being the lay representative for the big Waynesville district. As Sunday school superintendent Mr. Gibson runs at Long's Chapel a one-room church, a modern departmentized school. First a little basement was made, then curtains were strung, then the nearby public school building was brought into use and finally the waiting rooms of the depot were utilized by this splendid fellow, who lets nothing stand between him and a successful output. Mr. Gibson is one fellow who does big things with small equipment and for this reason, among others, he was selected for our Sunday School Board, a board that is doing so very much with what it has at its command.

Mr. Gibson is a native of Swain county, but soon after birth was taken by his parents to Macon county, where his early school training began. Without completing his high school training he went with the Southern Railway Company at seventeen years of age and has been with this company ever since, serving them at Lake Junaluska since the establishment of that station over ten years ago. No man is held in higher esteem by the men of the "Murphy Branch" than our unassuming Gibson.

After conversion in early life Mr. Gibson joined the Baptist church, but on moving to Lake Junaluska he joined the Methodist church there and at once was put to work. Soon after arriving at "The Lake" he was happily married to Miss Robbie Reeves of Lake Junaluska and this union is blessed with three fine children: Herbert, Jr., who is a sprightly lad of eight, Evelyn, a pretty little sister of five, and Carolyn, a fine little Cradle Roll girl. Gibson, like most men, made a good bargain when he got married.

DR. ASHLEY CHAPPELL

Dr. Ashley Chappel is our new pastor at Central, Asheville, and he is filling the bill mightily well. It is simply wonderful to see the people hurry to Central morning and night to hear him preach. Last Sunday I arrived at one minute after eleven and found the church, Sunday school room, the galleries and the aisles full and therefore had to sit on the Sunday school rostrum behind the speaker. Brother Chappell is a very democratic fellow. One would never think of calling him "Doctor." Before I thought I had the other night presented him to our Asheville training school as "Some Boy." Dr. Chappell is this week delivering a series of addresses to our training school on the "Fine Art of Listening" and they are making a profound impression on our splendid school. Dr. Chappell is regularly enrolled in our Sunday School Training School and is working for credit.

OUR ASHEVILLE SCHOOL

Our Asheville Standard Training School is now in progress and we are having each evening about 150 bona fide students in our six courses. There are many additional visitors, but our actual enrollment is 154. Whatever may be lacking in quantity in our enrollment is certainly made up in quality for we have our pastors and superintendents, leading teachers and leading Sunday school supporters. Splendid delegations are coming each evening from Hendersonville, Weaverville and Biltmore, together with scattering delegations from a number of other points. A list of the credit students will appear next week.

LAKE JUNALUSKA

Lake Junaluska is all astir these days and it is simply beautiful as usual. I counted thirty men at work on the new Sunday school building last Wednesday as I stood on the elevation near the side of the upper lake and looked at the companion building, the Mission Building, over on the elevation near the lower lake and the dam. Some new cottages are being built and Bishop Atkins' new home is a thing of beauty. "The Lake" is the prettiest place I ever saw. If our Wesley Bible class people and our Sunday school leaders in general don't go to Lake Junaluska this summer they will miss a great deal. Next week I hope to give something about the programs that will be offered. Brother Stentz, the manager, tells me that the largest number of people by far that have ever come to "The Lake" is already being booked for reservations. Begin to save a little for this great opportunity.

THE JUNALUSKA CROSS

The Junaluska electric cross erected by the Wesley Bible classes of the Western North Carolina conference is lighted every night throughout the year and is a thing of beauty. Read what the last "Junaluskan" says:

"Why do you burn the lights in the Cross during these months when so few are at the Lake?" This question comes to us very often and we are telling you now.

The railroad men running through here at night asked that it be kept lighted as they looked forward to seeing it in the darkness as a beacon and a source of good cheer. Traveling men coming through have also requested that it be lighted, as it was such an inspiration to them as they drive along in the night. Then, too, one of Junaluska's devoted friends, Mrs. E. L. Hart, spoke of the cross on her deathbed, and said she felt this cross should always be kept lighted, and so we have this light each night. This beautiful symbol of the light of the world set on a hill. Who knows what its influence might be. Bishop Atkins has said that someone with a real gift should write a poem on "The Cross at Junaluska."

"THE HAPPY SHUT-INS"

Mrs. E. O. Chandley, the efficient recording secretary of our Western North Carolina Conference Wesley Bible Class Federation, has a most unusual Wesley class. It is composed of twelve Christian women in a sanitarium in Asheville. All twelve of these women are bedridden and three of them can even be propped up in bed. Yet they are in a Wesley class, and each Sunday Mrs. Chandley goes up to them and as they lie in bed discusses with them the Sunday school lesson. And these women are doing things. They have contributed $25 towards the new "Faith" sanitarium at Weaverville and are otherwise providing for unfortunates as they lie there on a screened porch trying to regain their health. They have named their class "The Happy Shut-ins." Will you not stop long enough to offer a prayer that these servants of the Lord may be permitted to continue the good work in His name, and that if it His will, their much desired health may be restored to them?

North Carolina Conference

LET'S GO, NORTH CAROLINA!

North Carolina conference Sunday schools, during the Centenary campaign, pledged $76,532.65. To May 1 only $26,676.08 of this amount had been paid, leaving a balance of $49,856.57. Percentage paid is only 34.8; percentage unpaid, 65.2.

As compared with records of other conferences, and none has paid in full, our record does not in the least flatter us. We are at the very bottom, at the very foot of the list, among the conferences of the entire connection in percentage paid. Mississippi has paid 86.4 per cent, Pacific 73.5, Denver 68.2, Kentucky 61.1, Virginia 59.8, Florida 59.4, and Western North Carolina, which is eighteenth on the list, 49.2. The connectional average is 47.9. And North Carolina, good old North Carolina, wealthy old North Carolina, proud old North Carolina, with 34.8, is the caboose of this missionary train!

Records furnished us by the Centenary office in Nashville indicate that 131 North Carolina conference Sunday schools, with Centenary pledges outstanding, have paid nothing on these pledges since 1921!

Some of our schools, however, be it said to our credit, have paid in full. Others are up to date in their payments. All, perhaps, expect to keep faith with the Centenary and with themselves and pay up some time. At present, however, we are not adding much luster to our record. During the month of April we paid a total of only $353.

Our honor and our self-respect are at stake. Let's meet our obligations and our opportunities. Let's conserve the normal impulse of our pupils to missionary giving. Let's send in our checks to Col. John E. Edgerton, Lambuth Building, Nashville, Tenn. Let's not trail at the end of the procession any longer.

Let's go, North Carolina!

WE ARE MAKING PROGRESS

We are making progress with our training work. Supplementing the work of training schools and training classes is the work of individual students, which, according to reports from the Department of Leadership Training, Nashville, assumes considerable proportions in the North Carolina conference. Credits recently issued to individual students and classes are as follows:

- Rev. W. W. Peele, Raleigh.
- Mrs. W. W. Peele, Raleigh (two certificates).
- Rev. L. T. Singleton, Rocky Mount (two).
- Rev. H. M. North, Rocky Mount.
- Miss Aldine W. Pleasant, Kenly.
- Miss Linna M. Burney, Ayden.
- Rev. J. A. Martin, Mt. Gilead.
- Miss Stella Etheride, Mt. Gilead.
- Miss Myrtle McIntyre, Mt. Gilead.
- Mrs. J. A. Martin, Mt. Gilead.
- Miss Sara Blanche Bruton, Mt. Gilead.

Other individual students working for certificates are Miss M. C. Bagley, Jackson, Rev. C. N. Phillips, Wilmington, and A. B. Yarbrough, Godwin.

Classes are being conducted at the following places: Wilmington, Rev. H. C. Smith, teacher, eight students; Rich Square, Mrs. J. H. Boyce, teacher, seven students; Duke, T. W. Sprinkle, teacher, ten students.

Only two conferences in the entire connection made a better record than North Carolina last year; they were Virginia and Alabama, and if they don't step lively we are going ahead of them this year. Thirty-six conferences trailed behind us last year. Let's make it thirty-eight!

CLASS OF SUNSHINE GIRLS

At Stantonsburg there has recently been organized a Wesley class of Intermediate girls. The name of this class is "Sunshine Girls," with Miss Martha Yelverton as president and Mrs. C. S. Whitley as teacher. It starts off with a membership of eight.

TO BE A STANDARD SCHOOL

Dr. J. H. Brown, superintendent of our Sunday school at Rich Square, has the active following of his school and is leading it on to greater efficiency. Mr. E. S. Yarbrough, district secretary of the Weldon district, visited this school the fifth Sunday in April, placed Program of Work C, and came away feeling it was one of the very best schools he had visited.

"They will soon have eight class rooms and eleven classes," says Mr. Yarbrough, "and hope to screen off every space in the auditorium for these three extra classes. They have a teacher training class, and all workers not attending this class are reading approved books on teaching. They hope to be a standard school by September."

GREENVILLE'S NEW BUILDING

Greenville Sunday school moved into its handsome new building last Sunday. Supt. J. H. Rose, in a letter to your conference superintendent inviting him to be present and take part in the opening program, says that the new structure cost approximately $65,000. In spite of the fact that the school has been using the high school building for the past six months it has kept up its attendance, having 550 present April 29. Rev. V. P. Scoville is the pastor.

What do your pupils read? Are your boys and girls feeding their minds and spirits on wholesome food or are they reading trashy literature and starving their better selves? What is your class, your school and your church giving them to read?

THE BOARD OF CHURCH EXTENSION

By Rev. T. D. Ellis, D. D.

The biennial meeting of the representatives of Conference Boards of Church Extension met in the chapel of the Board of Church Extension Building, Louisville, Kentucky, April 24th, and had a most interesting and profitable session.

The discussions in the meetings of these two bodies revealed certain important conditions in reference to church building and the problems arising out of the marvelous development in the South, the border states and the Far West.

The Board of Church Extension, because of the limit to its funds, is unable to meet the enlarging demands arising out of these conditions.

"Whereas, at each annual meeting of this Board of Church Extension, applications are made for donations and loans for church building far in excess of the funds received from assessments and other sources;

"Therefore be it resolved, first, That we call upon the bishops, presiding elders and pastors to present at every opportunity the crying need for increased contributions to the great work of church extension.

"Second, That applications for donations and loans, except in cases of extreme urgency, be discouraged by the bishops and presiding elders, and unless the conditions be such as are of great need and that cannot be otherwise handled, they refuse to endorse or approve the application."

Following a discussion of the need for church buildings in cotton mill communities, and other missionary territory in the home field, a committee composed of Bishop Collins Denny, Rev. J. H. Eakes, and Rev. T. D. Ellis, was appointed to act with a like committee from the Board of Missions to study the whole question of religious needs in these communities and report to the next annual meeting.

The calendar is often crowded with applications which are not mature. Communities have rushed the preparation of these applications when sufficient data and assets were not in hand upon which to base a proper application, and for the reason that the application must be presented to the annual meeting of the board, or wait for one year.

"Resolved, 1. The board shall appoint annually a committee on appropriations to be composed of twelve members, seven of whom shall be the members of the executive committee of the Board of Church Extension, and five to be appointed from among the members of this board upon nomination of the committee on nominations.

"Resolved, 2. That the committee on appropriations shall meet three times a year in addition to the annual meeting of the board, on the call of the president and secretary of the board.

"Resolved, 3. The appropriations committee shall have authority to make, by a three-fourths vote, grants of donations and loans under the same rules and regulations governing appropriations by the board in its annual meetings, except that at no meeting shall the appropriations for either donations or loans exceed one-fourth of the amount available for appropriations as estimated and approved at the preceding annual meeting of the board."

Those appointed on this committee on appropriations, in addition to the executive committee, are: Bishop U. V. W. Darlington, Bishop John M. Moore, Bishop Collins Denny, Dr. James Thomas and Dr. James H. Felts.

One of the committees appointed on the secretary's report made the following recommendation, which was adopted:

"The secretary's report shows that there are grants on the books made one, two and three years ago unpaid today because buildings have not yet been erected, or remain incomplete, possibly on account of poor financing or unnecessary delays on the part of the local communities. We recommend that all grants and loans expire at the end of eleven months from the date when they were made and can be continued or renewed only upon the application by the pastor and the official board, or the building committee having charge of the houses for which the grants were made, provided sixty days' notice has been given by the secretary."

The year that has just closed has been a busy one for the department of architecture. It has been a year of steady expansion and of increasing appreciation on the part of the church of the service available. The action of the last General Conference in creating a joint committee on church and Sunday school architecture has given increased importance and significance to this department. The committee is composed of Miss Minnie E. Kenney, M. W. Brabham, L. F. Sensabaugh and J. P. Jones from the Sunday School Board, and Bishop W. F. McMurry, J. A. Baylor, J. H. Wells, J. H. Wilson and T. D. Ellis from the Board of Church Extension.

Believing that money should not be granted to buildings which do not meet the needs of modern congregations, the board adopted the following rule:

"The secretary shall require the plans of all churches to which grants of either donations or loans are made, to be submitted to the department of architecture of the Board of Church Extension for approval. Should the plans be unsatisfactory, it is made his duty to suspend payment of the grant until plans are changed to conform to the suggestions of the department of architecture. Reasonable charge shall be deducted from the grant for this service rendered by the department of architecture."

The board has been studying the question of the protection of churches and parsonages against loss by fire and storm for several quadrenniums. It is thought that we have made real progress toward the completion of plans to this end. An announcement will be made whenever plans are complete.

The board gave serious consideration to the need for larger funds to meet the demands for aid in church building. There were 243 applications for donations, amounting to $697,118.53, and 145 applications for loans, amounting to $778,800. To these large needs, as shown in these applications, the board had only $94,655.47 donation money, and $282,902.05 loan fund. These figures will answer as no words can why so many were disappointed in not getting the aid asked. This is an era of church building and the board needs the sympathetic co-operation of the entire church in order to enable Methodism to erect churches in keeping with the church buildings of other denominations in the communities throughout our territory.

The net increase in the loan fund during the year was $175,585.35. The loan fund capital now amounts to $2,223,529.09.

RECORD FOR SAFE TRAVEL ON TRAINS OF SOUTHERN

Atlanta, Ga., May 14.—Figures just compiled by the safety department of the Southern Railway System show that a high degree of safety for passengers was accomplished during the year 1922 when the Southern handled a total of 17,668,605 passengers without a single fatality to any passenger as the result of an accident to a train or negligence on the part of the railway.

A total of 177,084 passenger trains were operated during the year and the average distance traveled by each passenger was 62.17 miles. Had one passenger ridden the entire distance that these passengers were carried, he would have traveled more than 44,000 times the distance around the earth.

Four passengers were killed as the result of their own acts in violation of the safety rules established for their protection, two fell from moving trains, one attempted to board a moving train and fell under it, and one jumped through the window of the coach in which he was riding.

"These figures," says a statement issued by the safety department of the Southern, "show that, while the Southern has attained a remarkable degree of efficiency in protecting the passengers who ride on its trains, no refinement of protective features can insure the safety of persons who carelessly or deliberately violate the common laws of safety and the rules which have been established for their protection."

Mrs. Mattie Jenkins .....Matron
Owned and maintained by the North Carolina Conference.

FORM OF BEQUEST

I do hereby will and bequeath to The Methodist Orphanage, Raleigh, N. C., contemplated by the charter under the Act of the General Assembly of North Carolina .....(here designate the bequest) .....

THE CHILDREN'S HOME WINSTON-SALEM, N. C.

Rev. C. A. Wood .....Superintendent

THE METHODIST ORPHANAGE OUR NEEDS

1. Baby Cottage.
2. Industrial Building.
3. Kitchen and Dining Hall.
4. Three Dormitories.
Jenkins Building Remodeled.
6. Central Heating Plant.
7. Seven Passenger Automobile for Singing Class.

* * * *

One of the most urgent needs at present is a good seven passenger automobile for use in taking the Singing Class to visit churches. We have a good Dodge, and with a seven passenger car we could easily reach many of our churches and especially in the country. It would be a fine thing if some one would furnish us this most needed car.

* * * *

The approach of summer reminds us very forcefully of our need of a swimming pool. The orphanages in our state who have them find them a real source of help in the development of their children. Swimming is not only fine exercise, but affords a great deal of fun for the children. Oxford-Orphanage, Thomasville Baptist Orphanage and the Children's Home at Winston have swimming pools for their children. Wish some man or woman would donate a swimming pool for our boys and girls. I can furnish by wire any information as to the cost of pool to any interested party.

* * * *

Miss Mary Ferree, our primary teacher, took our Junior Singing Class to Lucama for a sacred concert on the first Sunday. Brother A. M. Branch gave us a cordial invitation to visit the Lucama Sunday school. The class brought back a good report of their trip, and they enjoyed the novelty of it immensely. They were made very happy by the many complimentary words which were spoken to them and of them I regret that circumstances were of such a nature that I could not accompany the class. Lucama is in my old home county, and I was anxious to visit my many friends in that section. The people of that community are giving us their generous and loyal support, for which we are very thankful.

* * * *

Another donation of a fine selection of books to our orphanage. Our preachers are thoughtful and considerate of our needs and they never lose an opportunity to lend our cause a helping hand. Nothing contributes more to the permanent good of the Home than good books. We must have a great library for our boys and girls who have such eager minds for knowledge. Brother John C. Wooten is our generous donor this time. He has a genuine interest in the orphanage and is devoted to every child. His close proximity to the orphanage has given him a fine chance to know our children intimately. We shall miss sadly after this year. Without doubt he is one of the finest presiding elders in the Southern Methodism. We are grateful to him for many expressions of love and abiding friendship.

THE BISCOE MEETING

On Monday, April 9th, Rev. C. E. Peele of Abbeville, S. C., came to us to conduct a meeting in our church at Biscoe. From the first service the people manifested an interest in the meeting. Large crowds attended without being asked to do so, the business men of the town closed their places of business and went to church.

From the pulpit there went out appeals to men to renew their covenants with God and to be loyal to the church. The preacher insisted that it is the duty of men to lead in the work of the church, and so to consecrate themselves to God for this great service. On Sunday morning the Holy Spirit came upon the congregation in great power. The people reconsecrated themselves to God. Many men who had grown cold in their religious lives came to rededicate themselves to God and His church.

Judged by the number of accessions to the church, we were not satisfied. Wish the number had been greater. The church has been greatly strengthened. The membership is in a finer Christian spirit. Really we have had a great revival. T. B. Peele, Pastor.

YANCEYVILLE

Again I beg of you some more space in the columns of our Advocate.

We have been pounced again. This time Shady Grove is the guilty party. One day not long since on leaving Shady Grove church I opened the door of my automobile and found but little space left for a passenger. While I was in the church some people had made use of my automobile for a storage room. Space will not permit me to tell of all the good things I found. I can only mention a few: Chickens, eggs, butter, peaches, pickles, potatoes, strawberries, apples, pears, and many good things—and since the day mentioned they are sending me other good things to eat. Shady Grove is bringing things to pass. Since the church was so nicely painted the county commissioners have built a nice sand clay road by the church. A good nice church calls for a good nice road.

The Ladies' Aid Society is responsible for a part of the activity of this church. Those good ladies get things done. I hope to get these good ladies to assist me in putting the Advocate in each home represented in the church.

Our Little Folks

TWO CHILDREN ADRIFT IN A BOAT

By Mabel Ingold.

It was a beautiful summer day. The birds were singing and the bees and butterflies were busy among the sweet scented blossoms in the old flower garden, and Mother Marray was just as busy in the shiny little kitchen making cookies and pancakes for Jack and Mary's dinner—so busy that she was somewhat impatient when Jack came in and asked to go boating on the river. "Please, mamma, it's such a pretty day and Mary wants to go. I'll be ever so careful." "No, son, you aren't large enough to manage the boat alone, besides father will take you this evening when he comes home. Run away and don't bother me. I'm very, very busy. But don't go down to the boathouse, do you understand?" Jack, whimpering, sauntered out. It wasn't a bit of fun playing in the yard. Mary was cross and begged "to 'ide in the boat." Rover wouldn't permit his young master to harness him. It seemed as though father never would come.

Jack heard the clock in the living room strike ten. He could stand the loneliness no longer. "Come on, Mary," he called, cramming his cap down over his rebellious red locks and catching Mary's hand. "Mamma won't care if we just go down to the boathouse. We can get in the canoe and play like we are ridin'—we can be pirates."

The small boat was fastened by a long rope to the trunk of a stout maple on the bank. Jack assisted Mary into it and climbed in himself. The child laughed gleefully.

The boat had a sweep of six yards of rope and Jack plied the oars with apparent ease. "Aw' mamma don't know how to manage a boat. It's just fun."

He looked down the quiet river skirted by tall poplars. The sun glistened on its smooth surface. "I don't believe mamma 'ud care, do you May?" he whispered. The temptation was growing stronger.

He glanced toward the house obscured by a thicket of young spruce. "Anyway, she'll never know it. We'll just go a little way and come right back. You sit still. I'll cut the rope loose." Suiting the action to the word he rowed to the bank and carefully severed the rope near the tree trunk.

The boat caught by the current turned slowly and began moving down the stream. Three-year-old Mary clapped her hands in delight, pointing at the bobbing rope behind. Jack laughed. "Let's play it's a whale like Jonah's, only we're on it instead of in it. And that's its tail. My! Isn't this fun? I bet Jonah had some good time. Look! I don't even have to use the oars. It's like a whale sure 'nough."

On swept the boat with ever increasing swiftness. But both children were unaware of the distance they had traveled until Jack cried out in dismay: "Look, Mary, that's old 'Squire Brown's place. There's the big red barn up on the river bank. We've gone five miles. I expect we'd better start back. Mamma may miss us."

With difficulty he succeeded by aid of the oars to turn the light craft. But try as he might he was unable to row against the current. His strength gave out when he had gained not more than six feet. He dropped the oars and tried very hard to keep back the tears. He felt a choking sensation in his throat—but tried to laugh. A boy nine years old mustn't cry.

The boat began drifting down the stream again, and in spite of Jack's brave efforts the tears came. Seeing them Mary too began to cry, and call him "a mean old boy; take me to my mamma," she sobbed.

The roll of thunder smote the air. Suddenly a large drop of water fell upon Jack's upturned face—then another and another came—it was raining. The sky was black and threatening. A keen flash of lightning ripped the clouds, followed by a loud clap of thunder.

Mary clung to her brother, sobbing wildly, begging to go home.

Jack took off his jacket and wrapped his sister in it.

The rain fell faster and harder, ruffling the waters and making big rough waves all over it. The boat rocked uneasily and went faster than ever.

The lightning played across the sky, but the peals of rumbling thunder were growing more distant each time.

Mary sobbed on. Jack, frightened, sat silent, staring ahead. Oh, if he had only minded his mother. What was going to happen to them? Would no one ever come? How dark it was growing, though it could not be past noon. The rain fell in torrents.

Suddenly he heard a sound far up the river. It drew nearer and around a bend swept another canoe, a big brown one, with two men in it. As they approached Jack recognized his father and Uncle Harry. The big boat swept up alongside the small one and the children were lifted gently from their places. Father wrapped Mary in a warm robe and Jack nestled in fastened the small boat to the large Uncle Harry's big arms. His father one with the rope. And thus they proceeded up the river. Jack watched his father and Uncle Harry ply the oars with their strong arms, and he realized that after all mamma knew more about rowing than he, and he decided that it was decidedly for his good that he obey her the next time, for a boating in a rain storm was not such a wonderful experience after all.

DO NOT HARM THE BIRDS

R. Earnest Atkinson.

The beautiful, active and innocent birds are God's creatures and man's unfailing friend. They watch and serve daily and during all seasons, and with their shirp and melody they gladden and cheer. Their beauty, activity and glad good cheer bids the despondent and disconsolate soul arise and sing, and to the discouraged and faint hearted they inspire to greater efforts and purer motives. They are earth's choir. The whole earth is marching to their melody and music. There is no race of men who have not heard their carol and song, and are familiar with their every strain.

But little do they require of man for their entertainment and faithfulness in exterminating the swarms of insects that bite, bore, and bleed vegetation of every kind. In return for the service so faithfully and energetically rendered they often receive abuse and imprisonment, and for their daily recitals in the bough of the trees they receive punishment and death by means of a stone from a sling or a shot from a shell.

Be a friend to the birds. Feed them and build for them homes. Be a constant and unfailing friend of the birds. (I do not refer to the English sparrow. It is a nuisance. It is a trashy and expensive bird. It is an enemy to man. It destroys truck and prepares fire traps about the home. Kill them. Kill all of them. The sooner, the better).

We read of the savage and his savagery, and thank God that we live in a civilized land, where man is reformed, refined and cultured. We should not pat our backs too freely, or allow others to flatter the race too freely. The very highest civilized races still have coursing through their veins the blood and spirit of the half civilized. He who robs a bird's nest, or pitches into the air a crippled bird or birdling and bats them as if they were balls, as I have witnessed, has the spirit of a savage—he is a savage, pure and simple.

I cannot put too much emphasis here. Let him who robs a bird's nest adjudge himself no less than a thief and a robber, for the home of the bird, to the bird, is as dear, sweet and sacred as the orderly and cultured American home. Yes, the birds are God's grateful and happy creatures, and he who pilfers and destroys their home, much less the bird, will not be so unted guilty by Him who "watches the sparrow's fall," that clothes the lilies of the field, and hears the orphan's cry.

Friend and reader, were it not for the birds our barns would not be so full of grain and our granary so well supplied. Dr. Geo. R. Mayfield, of Vanderbilt University, estimates that if the insects destroyed by birds during the summer months in the United States were loaded on freight trains, a train of one thousand cars would be required to haul them.

He also says that if there were no birds there would, before three years, be a flood of worms, flies and caterpillars deep enough to submerge any one attempting to pass through the flood. Should they take flight and leave us, we would have a dull, silent and cheerful world. God has put them here to be a comfort to man, and to give him a foretaste of the heavenly home.

I make this one timely plea for one of man's truest and best friends—the birds.

Judge—"What's your occupation?"

Rastus—"I'se a business man, yo' honor. I'se manager of a family laundry."

Judge—"What's the name of that laundry?"

Rastus—"De name of de laundry is 'Liza, yo' honor."

Why Take Laxatives?

Discovery by Science Has Replaced Them.

Pills and salts give temporary relief from constipation only at the expense of permanent injury, says an eminent authority.

Science has found a newer, better way—a means as simple as Nature itself.

In perfect health a natural lubricant keeps the food waste soft and moving. But when constipation exists this natural lubricant is not sufficient. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it acts like this natural lubricant and thus secures regular bowel movements by Nature's own method—lubrication.

As Nujol is not a medicine or laxative, it cannot gripe and, like pure water, it is harmless and pleasant.

Nujol is used in leading hospitals. Get a bottle from your druggist today. (adv.)

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORK

your pupils: "Boys and Girls" for boys and girls under 10 years of age; "Torchbearer" for girls 10 to 17; "Haversack" for boys 10 to 17; and "Our Young People" for those 18 years of age and over.

The following is the list of subscriptions for the North Carolina conference: Boys and Girls, 1153; Torchbearer, 1387; Haversack, 1487; Our Young People, 1739; total 5766.

There are over 90,000 pupils enrolled in our schools. We ought to double our subscriptions to these splendid papers. Put in your order with your next order for supplies.

THEN, WHAT DO YOU READ?

Mr. Superintendent, Miss Teacher, what are you reading? Of course you are reading your Bible, the Sunday School Magazine, and the Advocate, but what else? Every superintendent ought to read regularly "The Methodist Superintendent and His Helpers," edited by Mr. M. W. Brabham and printed monthly by our publishing house. Then he ought to study Cunningham and North's "Organization and Administration of the Sunday School," Ferguson's "How to Run a Little Sunday School," and Brabham's "The Sunday School at Work in Town and Country." Teachers ought to read books pertaining especially to their particular group, such as Danielson's "Methods with Beginners," Lewis' "Methods for Primary Teachers," and Koontz's "Junior Department Organization and Administration."

And all should read II Timothy 2:15, "Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth."

ENFIELD SPECIAL PROGRAM

At Enfield May 27 there will be a special program in the interest of the Sunday schools of Enfield-Halifax charge. Rev. Rufus Bradley, the pastor, is arranging the program. Among those taking part in it will be District Secretary Yarbrough and the writer, who will go from Enfield Sunday afternoon for the non-standard training school to be held at Scotland Neck May 27-June 1.

BIG DAY ON MILTON CIRCUIT

Milton circuit is planning a big Sunday school program at New Hope Sunday, May 27, according to Rev. J. Bascom Hurley, the pastor. There will be speaking, singing, and other interesting features. Prof. R. N. Wilson, district secretary of the Durham district, will be the principal speaker. A splendid attendance and a profitable and enjoyable day is anticipated.

MEETING AT LASKER MAY 25

Rev. B. P. Robinson is making preparations for a big circuit Sunday school institute for the Northampton circuit at Lasker Friday, May 25.

Parents would think themselves strangely derelict if they did not put bread and meat on the table for their children. What about the parents who put no mental bread and meat on the table of the mind? Beef and vegetables and sweets for the stomach, but little or nothing for the intellect! No magazines, no books, no papers beyond a county paper, or, in some cases, a daily paper. We are casting no slur on the secular press, but our point is that the neglected side of human nature—the mind and the soul—is allowed to go unprovided for. Clothing for the body is no more a necessity than clothing for the mind; food is no more needed for the body than for the intellect.—Methodist Advocate.

Habits are to the soul what the veins and arteries are to the blood—the courses in which it moves.—H. Bushnell.

WHERE GO TO COLLEGE?

There are three major considerations that determine the greatness, or the potential greatness, of an educational institution.

1. The Plant, including grounds, library, classrooms, laboratories, and apparatus.
2. The Faculty.
3. The Student body and its democratic standards.

In addition to the thirty-four buildings already on the campus, the State of North Carolina is this year putting $1,650,000 into new buildings and equipment. The library of 115,000 volumes is spending $24,000 annually for books and periodicals. Eight thousand volumes were received in 1922-1923, and one thousand and five magazines and learned journals were received on subscription.

The Faculty numbers 128 of the country's best scholars. Speaking of the student body of the University, Mr. Sherwood Eddy, of Yale University, who has spent the major portion of his life studying in four continents, said, that with one exception, it was the most seriously thoughtful and democratic group of students he had ever known.

Registration for fall quarter, September 25, 26, 1923.

IN MEMORIAM

CALDWELL—Friday, March 30, little Ralph, the fourteen-months-old son of Brother and Sister W. I. Caldwell, went to be with the angels. For weeks the little frail flower hung by a very delicate thread, while everything possible was done to bring him back to robust health. The parents' hearts had hardly healed from the loss of another little one last year. They are especially lonely now. In their yearning over their own dear one they have come close to God, who yearns in motherly tenderness over us. They, too, understand better Him who was made perfect through suffering.

C. S. Kirkpatrick.

HOWIE—Dora Elizabeth Howie, wife of Albert M. Howie, passed to her reward April 23, 1923. She was a little more than 67 years of age. Her husband preceded her by nearly six years. She was converted when quite young and joined the Methodist church at Pleasant Grove. Loyal to her church vows, she lived that beautiful Christian life that would commend the love of Christ to others. She was in ill health for six months and suffered a great deal, but waited patiently till the Master said "Come up higher." It was my privilege to visit her often, and she talked freely of her going home. She leaves four children, Mrs. T. J. Huggins of Weddington, George, Lawson and Kittle Howie. She is gone but they know where to find her.

E. N. Crowder.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas, God in His wisdom has seen fit to remove from our midst one of our oldest and much loved members, Mrs. M. E. Reaves, who was a life member; and whereas, the Woman's Missionary Society of Red Springs Methodist church wishes to place upon record an expression of their love for her; therefore be it resolved:

First, That we feel a sense of personal bereavement in the loss of our dear friend, and that we extend to each of her children our heartfelt sympathy and pray that the loving Father may manifest to them the presence of His Holy Spirit and supply them with sufficient grace in their great loss.

Second, That we rejoice in the belief that her earthly life, after her conversion and joining the church, was wholly given to the service of her Master whom she loved so devotedly.

Third, That these resolutions be recorded on our minutes, that a copy be sent to the Christian Advocate, and a copy to the grief-stricken family.

Mrs. George Hall,
Mrs. M. J. Covington,
Mrs. R. C. Adams.

HONEYCUTT—Mrs. Honeycutt was born in Pittsylvania county, Virginia. She was educated at Louisburg College. She was married to W. A. Honeycutt in 1916.

On the night of January 19, 1923, her spirit took its flight to be with God. She leaves to mourn their loss a devoted husband, small son, an aged mother, three brothers and a host of friends.

She was one of the most faithful Sunday school teachers we ever knew. Her punctuality and loyalty to her class of more than 30 little children commanded admiration from all. She is missed in her church and community, but most of all in her home, where she was needed to and her companion in the rearing of their son. She is gone, but her influence will continue to live in the lives of those whom she so faithfully guided through their early Sunday career.

Her untimely going reminds us that "In the midst of life we are in death," for she was just in the prime of womanhood. But, thank God, we know that she is happy, because she died as she lived, with a smile which indicated all was well with her soul.

May God in His infinite love comfort and sustain the bereaved ones who are left here for a season, and give them the blessed assurance that if they run the race faithfully to the end they may again see her face to face in that celestial home.

W. L. Loy, Pastor.

McNEELY—Mrs. Mariah McNeely was born in Burke county, N. C., October 28, 1847, and died in Morganton April 25, 1923. She was married to T. H. McNeely August 23, 1883, who died several years ago. In early womanhood she professed religion and joined the Methodist church, and lived a consistent member of the same till her death. She was buried at Mount Pleasant church in the presence of a large number of sympathizing friends. Her children and grandchildren will greatly miss her, but they feel assured she is now free from suffering and have much to encourage them to try to so live that they will meet her in heaven.

W. R. Ware.

KINSEY—Sarah Royall Kinsey, baby daughter of Ralph E. and Mary Rachel Exum Kinsey of LaGrange, and granddaughter of Mrs. Gertrude Exum of Fremont, was born August 3, 1921, and died January 19, 1923. The dear little one was taken with measles and all was done by loving hands possible, but pneumonia ensued and quickly she passed to her heavenly home. Sarah Royall was a tender, affectionate child, and lived long enough to gather many friends about her, though graced earth but a brief season. Many and lovely were the designs brought to anoint her in memory at her burial. Tiny little girls bore the flowers in their tender hands as the remains of the precious one were borne to the cemetery nearby. It was given this writer to conduct the funeral service. A hot tear fell from the eye in sympathy for the heart-broken mother and the disappointed father, but we assured them that they would behold their child again some day if they will but only be true and faithful to He who suffered the little one to be taken. May His sustaining grace abound.

J. A. Dailey.

WOODWARD—Mrs. Alice H. Woodward, daughter of Alexander and Nancy Shuping, was born in Morganton 55 years ago last November and died in the same town April 14, 1923. She was happily married to J. F. Woodward in 1883 and filled well her place in the home as wife and mother. She was also a consistent, faithful, useful member of the Methodist church all her married life. She with her husband reared a happy family, several members of which have gone out into the world and are doing well for themselves and the church in which they were brought up. Two children preceded their mother to the better world. Sister Woodward was a long and patient sufferer. She loved God, her church, her family, friends and flowers. When the end came beautiful flowers were placed gracefully about her body and over her grave. Her funeral was largely attended by loving, appreciative friends. The home is lonely and desolate without her, but her loved ones know whither she has gone, and by God's grace will find her safe with her Savior and theirs.

W. R. Ware.

BRISSON—Joseph Henry Brisson passed away March 20, 1923, being 78 years, five months and 20 days of age when he answered his last roll call. This was done with great joy for real victory had come at last. He lived a few miles west of Purdies Methodist church, of which he was a member, received by old Brother C. P. Snow.

To him and his faithful and devout wife were born six children, Charley, Richard and James survive him. The other children, Minnie, Addie and little Billie died in childhood and infancy. Old Sister Brisson, wife, who is now nearly 86, had hoped that she might not be left behind; but on the day her husband was laid away she seemed to be rejoiced that "Joe certainly is in heaven." "Jesus has come," "I'm going to Tom," were some of the sayings of Uncle Joe at the end. (Tom fell at his side in the war.)

For four long years he showed himself a true Confederate at Ft. Fisher—volunteered when only 17. Two noted deeds are worthy of mention. He replaced the flag amidst great danger at one time. Another time a deadly missile fell in their midst by the cannon he operated. Only two seconds were left for action or death. Quick-wittedly Brisson immersed himself in the sponge-tub, saving himself and others.

H. E. Lance, Pastor.

FURR—Mrs. Minnie Irent Furr, wife of Brother M. M. Furr, was born November 11, 1868; died March 21, 1923, being 54 years, four months and ten days old when she died. Sister Furr is survived by her husband, Bro. M. M. Furr, and three children, Mrs. J. M. Talbert, Messrs. H. F. and Ralph Furr, all of Concord, N. C. She was converted and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in early childhood, and all through the years was a consistent member of the same. Some time before her death, realizing as she did that the end was not far away, in talking to her pastor she expressed a willingness and readiness to go when the end should come.

M. A. Osborne, P. C.

JOYNER—"Like as a shock of corn cometh in his season," so the full life of Brother Andrew J. Joyner has been gathered into the heavenly garner. Born near Woodland August 22, 1856; died at his home at Woodville, N. C., March 4, 1923. Between these two dates lie the sum of his earthly life. Was married to Lizzie Maitland Bunch July 23, 1891. To this union three sons were born. Brother Joyner was for many years a member of Saint Francis Methodist Episcopal Church, South, at Lewiston, N. C. Brother Joyner lived in the faith of the fathers and died with that blessed hope that characterizes the close of every life consecrated to its Lord. He was a great sufferer for some time before his death, but during it all he was patient and resigned to the will of the Master.

The funeral service was conducted by this writer from the home on Monday, March 5th, in the presence of a large concourse of sorrowing friends and loved ones. In the burying ground at Woodville sleeps this tenement of clay awaiting the morning of the resurrection. May the Holy Spirit comfort the widowed mother and sons, and may they too live in the faith and be prepared to meet their loved in the sweet by and by.

M. F. Hodges, P. C.

BRICE—Annie L., the wife of D. C. Brice, was born in Cumberland county and died in Scotland county, near Johns, N. C., April 26, 1923, in the 51st year of her age. At the age of seventeen she married and moved to Randolph county, where she lived for a number of years until the death of her husband. About twenty years ago she was married to Mr. D. C. Price of Scotland county, who still survives her. She was a faithful and consistent member of Oak Grove Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and was buried in Caledonia cemetery near Laurinburg, N. C., funeral service being conducted by her pastor, Rev. Frank Culbreth. The many beautiful floral designs were expressive of the high esteem in which she was held by her many friends. Sister Brice is survived by four brothers: S. B., G. F., J. H. Talbert, Fayetteville, N. C., and H. G. Talbert, Kerr, N. C. S. B., G. F. and a nephew, Emmitte Talbert, attended the funeral services. By this method they are expressing to their many friends their appreciation of the sympathy and many courtesies extended to them in their bereavement.

Frank Culbreth.

ROSE—Early Sunday morning, February 25, 1923, Mrs. Mattie Piland Rose, the wife of J. W. Rose, answered the summons of the grim warrior, Death, and passed to her eternal reward, leaving behind a heart-broken family, a devoted husband and four children, Spurgeon, Estelle, William and Mahlon, and one brother, Rev. W. A. Pilan, of the North Carolina conference, to mourn their loss.

As a Christian, her life was a fine exemplification of the teaching of her Master, true and faithful to her church in all of its work. In Sunday school, prayer meeting, regular services, missionary society and Epworth League, she was found ever ready to do what she could. Seaboard Methodist church has lost one of its most useful members.

Her neighbors bear witness as to her kind and loving helpfulness in every way that constitutes a true neighbor. Though encumbered by the cares of a family and not of great physical strength, yet she found time to make her life count for the real uplift of the community.

While the church and community have felt the effect of her worthy life, her greatest power was shown in her home life as a true and faithful wife and as a devoted and loving mother. Her home was indeed a Christian home. Her husband and children call her name blessed. Her greatest ambition was to train her children to be useful in the church, realizing that they would thereby be more useful as citizens. It is not surprising that at an early age they were found active members. What great joy filled her heart when her eldest son expressed his determination to dedicate his life to his Master and preach the gospel, and when her only daughter desired to train herself for the best service that she could render. Both of them were called home from Trinity College to look for the last time upon the earthly form of their best and truest friend. She was sick only a short time. Just a few hours before she passed away she asked the doctor if he thought she was near the end of her journey, stating that she was not afraid to die though her great desire was to live to see her children trained for life. Her death was in keeping with her life. Just a few moments before the end came, she told her husband that she hated to leave him, but she must. She turned her face from him and peacefully and quietly breathed her last.

The funeral services were conducted at the Methodist church by her pastor, Rev. Wm. Towe, assisted by Rev. L. L. Lanier, of the Baptist church, in the presence of her many friends who mingled their tears with those of her bereaved family. She was buried in the Seaboard cemetery. Her grave was covered with beautiful floral designs, the token of love and sympathy of those who felt their loss.

Seaboard has lost one of her best women. The entire community extends its condolence to the bereaved family, praying God's blessings upon them in this their hour of sorrow.

A Friend.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas, the great and supreme Ruler of the universe has in His infinite wisdom removed from among us one of our worthy and esteemed members of the Ladies' Aid Society, Mrs. Matilda A. Midgett.

And whereas, the long and intimate relation held with her in the faithful discharge of her duties makes it eminently befitting that we record our appreciation of her; therefore,

Resolved first, That the wisdom and ability which she has exercised in the aid of our organization by service contributions and counsel will be held in grateful remembrance.

Resolved second, That the removal of such a life from among our midst leaves a vacancy and a shadow that will be deeply realized by all the members and friends of this organization, and will prove a serious loss to the community and to the public.

Resolved third, That with deep sympathy with the bereaved relatives of the deceased we express our hope that even so great a loss to us all may be overruled for good by Him who doeth all things well.

Resolved fourth, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the records of this organization, a copy be sent to the bereaved family and a copy be sent to the North Carolina Christian Advocate for publication.

(Signed) The Members of the Ladies' Aid Society of South Rodanthe.

Mr. Jinks—Huh! You were no spring chicken when I married you!
Mrs. Jinks—No; I was a little goose.

IN MEMORIAM

BENNETT—Fisher Bennett, who lived near Polkton, died February 5, 1923. He was born August 20, 1864, and was 58 years old last August. He was a progressive farmer and had many friends. He was a friend to our church, and his home was always open to preachers. Many of our pastors found hospitality and rest there. He will be greatly missed in his community. D. C. Ballard.

WELLS—Mrs. Emma Wells, died of paralysis at her home near Hot Springs, N. C., April 2, 1923, at the age of 60. Mrs. Wells is survived in her immediate family by a husband, Bro. George Wells, a step-daughter, three brothers, one sister and one uncle, other more distant relatives and a host of warm friends. Mrs. Wells united with the church at the age of 15 and for 45 years lived a consistent Christian life until her call so sudden and shocking stole her from earth to heaven. A. A. Angel, Pastor.

OVERMAN—John Robert Overman was born in Wayne county, N. C., April 4, 1838, and died April 14, 1923. Brother Overman was converted about twenty-five years ago and joined the Methodist church, from which time he endeavored to live a true Christian life. He died in the faith. His last request was for the choir to sing, "Shall we gather at the river?" He leaves four sons, three daughters and a host of friends to follow on. May the Infinite Oone comfort and keep the sorrowing. R. Ernest Atkinson.

BEATTY—Brother Coleman Cash Beatty, one of our beloved members of the Rock Spring charge, Bethel church, departed this life on March 7, 1923, at the age of 74 years. He was married to Sarah Jane Harwell the 28th day of July, 1867. He had been a member of the Methodist church for more than 35 years, and was at the time of his death a trustee of Bethel church. His protracted illness that lasted for several months proved that he had a large number of friends. They came for miles around to show their interest in the good man. He was patient and submissive throughout his long illness and died triumphant. H. C. Byrum.

LEWIS—The subject of this sketch, Miss Lorena Lewis, was born July 23, 1864, and died February 23, 1923.

Miss Lorena was converted at the age of twenty at Dillon, S. C., and joined the Methodist church at that place. A little later she moved her membership to Whiteville, N. C., and from Whiteville to Fairmont, N. C., where she remained until her death.

Miss Lorena had a stroke of paralysis about twelve months before her death, from which she never recovered. She wanted to get well, but it seemed she could not.

Her remains were laid to rest in the cemetery at Whiteville, N. C. The pastor of the Baptist church and Rev. W. C. Merritt of the Methodist church assisted the writer in the funeral service at the grave. W. F. Trawick.

LANE—The sad news comes to me of the death of Bro. John Lane. The final summons came on the 8th of April. Brother Lane had been a sufferer from asthma for several years, and in addition to that last fall he fell from a ladder and sustained a broken leg. But amid it all he was patient and loyal to God. Five sons, a daughter and wife are grief-stricken because of his departure, besides his many friends.

Brother Lane had been a member of the Methodist church for more than 40 years. On Thursday before his death on Sunday he told his family that if they were willing for him to go that it would be more satisfactory to go than to continue suffering, as his troubles would then be over. I was Brother Lane's pastor for two years. I was personally acquainted with him; and I, too, believe that his sufferings are over and that he is safe in the arms of Jesus. S. Salyer.

JOHNSON—In the death of Mrs. Annie Woodward Johnson, wife of Mr. Richard Johnson, on March 22, 1923, Goldsboro has lost one of her best women, St. John church a most valuable member, and her own home is bereft of a most devoted wife and faithful mother.

In all these relationships she was a tower of strength. Sister Johnson lived close to her Lord, that all who associated with her took knowledge of her that she had been with Jesus. A warm spiritual atmosphere pervaded her home, and her godly example there was richly rewarded in seeing her children active in the service of her Lord. The grace of God was magnified and the power of the gospel emphasized in the life of this good woman. Notwithstanding long continued weakness and suffering, she was joyous in the Lord. She welcomed the call and now wears the crown. May the family circle be unbroken in our Father's house on high.

J. W. Potter.

NANNEY—George Washington Nanney passed from earth to his reward in the heavenly home on April 3, 1923. He entered the life of flesh in 1844, and came by faith in Jesus Christ our Lord into the kingdom of God in 1872. He was a member of old Gilboa church for more than a half century, in which and to which he was ever faithful.

Brother Nanney joined the Confederate army in June, 1863, and served until the close of that awful struggle in 1865. Bro. K. J. Carpenter, who was a fellow soldier with him in Co. I, 50th N. C. Regiment, testifies to his worth as a soldier in that awful conflict. In the long and dusty marches, in the camp or battle line, Geo. W. Nanney was a Christian and a soldier who met every test with courage and fortitude. After this strife was ended Brother Nanney returned to his home, married and reared a noble family, most of whom are left to honor his name as they move onward in the way of duty and rejoice in the hope of seeing father again, "In that day when Christ shall come to make up His jewels." His pastor, J. O. Ervin.

McCRACKEN—Mrs. Harriet McCracken, who for many years had been an acceptable member of the Methodist church at Mt. Zion in the Haywood circuit, W. N. C. conference, was buried at that church January 10, 1923. She was first married to D. R. Baldwin, to whom were born seven children, four still living. After the death of Mr. Baldwin she was married to Palmer McCracken, to whom were born seven children, two still living. She died at her son's, Mr. James Baldwin, in Buffalo, S. C., and her body was brought to Mt. Zion church, where it was laid to rest. Mrs. McCracken professes religion in early girlhood. She was faithful; had many friends and loved ones who will miss her. She lived to a good old age, being 87 years old, or would have been at her next birthday, when she was relieved from all earthly trials and labor, and we trust rest with the saints in the better world, where sickness, sorrow, pain and death are felt and feared no more. P. L. Terrell, P. C.

CARR—Thomas Milton Carr was born September 23, 1845; died February 28, 1923. He was therefore in his 78th year. On March 3, 1865, he was happily married to Miss Harriet McIntosh, and for nearly 57 years they shared each other's joys and sorrows and fought together life's battle. In early life joined the Trinity Methodist church, Longcreek township, Mecklenburg county, North Carolina, and was a true and devoted member throughout all these years. For several years was an official member of the church, faithfully meeting all his duties and obligations of trust imposed upon him. Always in his place ready for every emergency and doing his part. As a citizen of the community, he was fortunate in having a host of friends who loved and appreciated him. He leaves besides his faithful wife two sons, John W. and T. M. Carr, Jr., several grandchildren and great-grandchildren. The church has lost a faithful member and official, the community a good citizen, the Confederate veterans another comrade. B. F. Hargett, Pastor.

MIDGETT—Matilda A. Midgett, the wife of Rasmus S. Midgett, Sr., of Rodanthe, N. C., passed to her reward April 10, 1923, in the 71st year of her age. She had been a great sufferer for many years. This suffering was increased by a stroke last summer from which she never recovered. But through all her suffering she manifested a beautiful Christian spirit and the light of that beautiful life is still shining and will shine through eternity. She leaves a husband and six children in sorrow and many relatives to miss her presence. A good wife and loving mother is gone. She has entered the portals of glory. May the Master's love be with the bereaved, and may mother's prayers follow her children all the way through. Her funeral service was held at her home and her form was laid to rest in the family burying ground to wait the arising day. K. R. Pugh.

SELLERS—Bro. J. F. Sellers was born in Duplin county, 1857, and died at the James Walker Memorial hospital February 27, 1923.

Brother Sellers was a true and faithful member of Epworth church in Wilmington for many years. A few months before his death he moved to Winter Park and became a very active member of Wesley Memorial Methodist church and served faithfully in the Sunday school and church as a musician until death took him away.

His death came as a great shock to his family and friends. He left home well as usual and was stricken down as he started to return after his day's work was done. He had run his race, he had finished his task and we believe that he went to his heavenly home, there to receive that welcome plaudit, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joys of thy Lord."

He leaves behind his true and faithful wife, four sons, Eugene, Charlie, Preston and Willie Sellers, besides many friends to mourn their loss.

The funeral services were conducted from Wesley Memorial Methodist church and he was laid away in Bellevue cemetery under a mound of flowers, there to await the trumpet sound. C. N. Phillips.

SUMMEROW—Adaline Elizabeth Summerow, daughter of David and Susan Rudisill Summerow, was born in Lincoln county, near Iron Station, on the 31st of March, 1835, and died on March 29, 1923. If she had lived two more days she would have been 88 years old.

She was converted at Rock Springs camp meeting when 16 years old and became a member of the Methodist church, remaining a member for over 70 years.

On June 24, 1860, she was married to Robison Levi McLurd, the son of James McLurd. We notice this slight change in the spelling of the family name which has since prevailed.

She was the mother of seven children. The first born, James David, died in infancy. Henry M. died in 1895 at the age of 25. The living children are: Robert Lee and Carrie S. of Stanley; Edgar G., engaged in business at Gastonia; Hattie A., the wife of R. B. Babbington, engaged in business at Gastonia, and Mary R., the wife of J. W. Dellinger, a druggist and teacher of Stanley.

It was her privilege to live to see the transformation and development of our great country and the perfecting of all our modern conveniences and utilities. She had a very vivid recollection of the stirring events of slavery and four great wars. She had two great passions—her children and her church. The widow's task of rearing her children was never thought to be burdensome or impossible and was done as well. She lived to see them all settled in life and so situated that they could render loving service to their beloved mother and be near her in her declining years and last days.

She loved her church and was loyal to it in a way that was beautiful to witness. Her home was the preacher's home in that sweet old fashioned way that was so prevalent and that is still perpetuated in most village and rural sections. This pastor had the very great pleasure of being her pastor in 1898 and 1899, and again for the past two and a half years.

During his first pastorate she was strong and was a regular attendant at the church services, but for quite a while she had been too feeble to attend only once in a while. She practically grew up with the Methodist church in the country and loved to talk of her church's great achievements. She became a subscriber of the North Carolina Christian Advocate when it was first established and was taking it at her death. She is greatly missed in the home, the church and the community, because a great and good woman has gone from among us. Her life was characterized by piety, Scripture reading, thrift and frugality and she left these as an inheritance to those who are following in her footsteps.

After the funeral services, conducted at the Methodist church at Stanley Creek by her pastor, Rev. Albert Sherrill, assisted by Rev. H. H. Jordan, of Gastonia, her remains were laid to rest in the cemetery here to await the resurrection. Albert Sherrill.

KIRKPATRICK—Mrs. Sarah Ann Kirkpatrick, wife of Mr. J. T. Kirkpatrick, was born in Haywood county, N. C., January 27, 1848, and after a short illness died March 29, 1923. Her maiden name was Rogers. She married Mr. J. T. Kirkpatrick, with whom she lived a happy and useful life for 55 years. They reared a large and respectable family of 12 children, all living except two.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick had been an acceptable member of Mt. Zion Methodist Episcopal Church, South, for many years. She professed religion in youth and was faithful to the end. She took delight in having her children attend the church services, and all of them are members of the Methodist church. She was a good woman, a kind affectionate wife and mother. Like Dorcas of old, she was good to the poor, always ready to lend a helping hand to those in need and to the suffering, and cheerfully did her part in supporting the institutions of the church and her doors were always open wide to her preacher. She will be greatly missed by her many friends and loved ones. She was suddenly called from labor to reward. Her earthly trials are over and she has gone where the weary are at rest and "where the tree of life is ever blooming." In the presence of a large congregation her body was laid to rest at Mt. Zion church and the grave was covered with beautiful flowers. We extend our sympathy to the bereaved husband, children and loved ones. P. L. Terrell, P. C.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

At a meeting of the Sigma Tau class of Centenary M. E. Sunday school, Winston-Salem, the following resolutions were read upon the death of Miss Julia Bynum, one of its members:

Whereas, on Tuesday afternoon, February 20th, death removed from among us one of our most beloved members, Julia Bynum, and, whereas, we, the Sigma Tau class of Centenary M. E. Sunday school feel most keenly the loss which we have sustained; therefore be it resolved:

First, That although our hearts are filled with sorrow at her going, we acknowledge the unsearchable wisdom and love of our heavenly Father and yield our wills to His.

Second, That while we shall miss her visible presence among us, the memory of her fidelity to duty, her sweetness and goodness will abide with us as an inspiration. As a class we shall always remember her speaking words of welcome to the stranger among us, tender and sympathetic to those in pain or sorrow, especially thoughtful of the aged, deeply interested in all things pertaining to her Sunday school and church, willing to undertake any task, no matter how hard, if thereby she could be of service. And so her influence lives on making our duty clear and our service more loyal and effective.

Third, That we extend our deepest sympathy to her family and loved ones in their great bereavement.

Fourth, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, a copy to the North Carolina Christian Advocate, and a copy recorded in our minutes.

Dr. THOMAS NEAL IVEY: an Intimate Glimpse of the Man

The following tribute was read by Rev. M. T. Plyler, a life long friend of Dr. Ivey, at the funeral services held in Edenton Street church, Raleigh, N. C., Friday, May 18, 1923:

Birth and early surroundings favored Thomas Neal Ivey. Back of his noble father, George Washington Ivey, for fifty-two years an itinerant Methodist preacher of heroic mold, and his mother, Selina Neal, stretched a vigorous line to the land of Shamrock. For more than a hundred years the Iveys have had a full share in the secular and the religious life of this commonwealth; some of them being soldiers in the Revolution and others engaged in planting Methodism in the early days of pioneer effort. In the parsonage home where Tom, with his brothers and sisters grew to manhood and womanhood, economy, integrity, sincerity, piety and spiritual fervor had first place in the daily life of father and mother. Young Ivey never forgot his early days and always cherished the heritage which was his.

Born in Marion, South Carolina, May 22, 1860; entered Trinity College, in the Sophomore class, 1876, graduating second in his class, 1879; joined the North Carolina conference at Reidsville, 1886; became editor of the Raleigh Christian Advocate in 1898; elected editor of the Christian Advocate, Nashville, 1910; and died in Nashville, Tennessee, May 15, 1923; these are the chronicles that may be set down to mark the nearly sixty-three years sojourn among men of a rare and choice spirit. The most impressionable days of boyhood were spent in the little mountain town of Lenoir, N. C. Every road and hill and tree seem to have left its impress, and the associations in school and on playground followed him to the end. The lad whose early dream was to be an artist would wander far a-field and listen to the hum of bees and watch the changes in earth and sky. He was ever sensitive to the pulse of spring, to the stillness of the deep woods and to the sob of the sea. With the first tinge of the maple and the early pink of the peach, this sensitive soul began to watch the haze on the hills and long for the wide fields.

Thomas Neal Ivey had read most of the English poets, all the works of Dickens, Bulwar and Scott before he was sixteen. During college days, he spent much time rummaging the college library and in exploring the country for miles around, reserving spare moments for speaking and debate. Thus, dreaming, exploring, reading, idling, the days passed in the mountain town and in the village of Old Trinity as young Ivey left behind the parsonage home for the big world with its untried paths.

Eight years a teacher, nine years a pastor, and twenty-five years an editor were the three distinct divisions of this busy life. Each of these was lived in all fidelity and with marked success. One month before he left us, among his old parishioners in Person county, the pastor so dearly loved thirty years ago, and more, faced men and women whom he had received into the church and talked to them out of his heart. As these sat with streaming eyes and listened to the man so dearly loved, the soul of Thomas Neal Ivey was moved with a strange unusual pathos, filled with meditative sadness. This hour makes more intelligible the unexpressed of that Sabbath afternoon at Oak Grove.

This is not the place to recount the work done as editor by Dr. T. N. Ivey through a full quarter of a century. He did not feel that his work was done. Just two weeks before the end came, he expressed a desire to finish out twenty years as editor of the Christian Advocate—should the church so desire—and then have time in his last days to write a history of religious journalism as he had known it. How our life plans do go to pieces!

The church had honored T. N. Ivey again and again. Seven times a member of the General Conference, once a member of the Ecumenical, a member of the Commission on Unification of American Methodism, and a member of numerous boards of the church; he did his work well and to the honor of those who sent him. Academic and other honors came to him, but the best of all bestowed upon him was the love and loyalty of his most intimate friends. With them, his soul opened and they enjoyed the best in him. That fine sense of humor and quaint manner of utterance would then find best and freest expression. A last drive with him out to the Hermitage and the walk around the garden and about the house so intimately associated with Andrew Jackson seemed to bring out the real Ivey in a most notable way. The green on the fields under the softness of the afternoon in early May and the appearance of the flowers familiar to our grandmothers in this celebrated spot in Middle Tennessee seemed to bring back the old life and spirit. He jested with his co-laborer in the office for his driving like Jehu and reveled in the quaint and curious incidents of other days. The evening shadows were not in evidence. The "copy" was not all in—at least, so it seemed.

Though not of robust build T. N. Ivey went for eight years as editor of the Raleigh Christian Advocate and lost but two days on account of sickness. The highly strung, restless body would show signs of weakness, but a brief respite would bring relief. He was not so fortunate in later life. He found that he must take to the open and rejoiced much in the relief found on the golf course.

Some minds move in straight lines; his went with the grace of a curve. Of florid imagination, with a vein of poetry in his makeup, he reveled in the beautiful and worshiped in the presence of God manifest in nature, especially in those unusual manifestations that lie about us. He was at his best in vivid description.

As a preacher, Dr. Ivey was ornate and thought-provoking; at times rising into genuine eloquence. He was conservative in doctrine and evangelical in spirit. His free spirit and genuine evangelical fervor would none of your callousness in worship and reliance on empty forms. He was an evangelical Methodist preacher who spoke out of his experience. The tripod was his pulpit. He so looked upon it and allowed but few months to pass without reminding his readers that he would step down at once did he not believe that he was preaching as truly as though he was in a pulpit. But the pen has fallen and that voice is still. A great gap has been made among the leaders of our Methodism.

But sorer is the loss felt and more trying the experience to be endured by the devoted family circle so suddenly broken. It is no lonely experience that has come to anyone, for we have entered into the common fellowship of sorrow; it is the hour in which we need not try to explain or understand; we can only fall back on God and wait to see his salvation.

May we not be allowed to suggest that even while faith is struggling and hope is dim, we will strive to think of his radiant life and unwavering courage. No blot was on his escutcheon and not a breath of suspicion ever came across that fair name. He could walk calm and unafraid, true to his heritage, loyal to the knightly-souled itinerant who sleeps on the hillside at Lenoir, and devoted to the dear woman who walked by his side and the dear children who remain richer than they know.

It seems to us that our dear brother has gone all too soon. He had dreamed of doing a last and best work; perchance, as he moved among the oaks in this his capital city in the evening time. Since he must go, could the call have come in a more appropriate hour? No dull gray winter! Springtime was on the hills!

THE FUNERAL SERVICES OF DR. T. N. IVEY

These simple but impressive services were held Friday, May 18, at 11 o'clock in Edenton Street church, Raleigh, N. C. The body of Dr. Ivey, accompanied by Drs. J. W. Barton, junior publishing agent, and R. S. Satterfield, associate editor of the Christian Advocate, and by members of the family, reached Raleigh at an early hour Friday morning, and was taken directly to the church, where amid a wealth of flowers of surpassing beauty the body lay in state till the hour for the funeral services.

The services were conducted by Drs. W. W. Peele, pastor of the church, J. C. Wooten, presiding elder of the Raleigh district, R. S. Satterfield, associate editor of the Christian Advocate, M. T. Plyler, presiding elder of the Durham district, and L. B. Jones, pastor of Sanford station. The Edenton Street choir provided beautiful music.

Rev. L. B. Jones read the Old Testament lesson, Rev. W. W. Peele read the New Testament lesson, Rev. J. C. Wooten offered prayer, Rev. M. T. Plyler read an intimate sketch of the personal characteristics of Dr. Ivey, and Rev. R. S. Satterfield told of the incidents of his last hours. Dr. Satterfield related how he left the office a little earlier than usual, saying that he was not feeling well and intended to take a little exercise in the hope that it might do him good. He went to the golf links alone and had reached the tenth hole when he signaled to persons passing in an automobile to come to him. Just at that moment he fell. Those whom he had signaled for help hurried to him, put him in their car and carried him at once to the club house, where two prominent physicians of Nashville happened to be at that time. The doctors did all they could for him but without avail. In a few minutes he was gone. This was just after five o'clock in the afternoon.

Dr. Satterfield also reported that it had been the expectations of Dr. Ivey for several years to pass suddenly some day, but that he had said little about it to anyone. Neither had he brooded over it but cheerfully went to his tasks from day to day.

The body of T. N. Ivey, worn by the long and unending tasks that his church had from year to year assigned him, was upon a cloudless May day laid to rest in the Raleigh cemetery on a beautiful hillside carpeted with green where the mocking birds will sing in the trees round about his grave. It is a beautiful spot where sleeps the mortal remains of this lover of beauty and friend of the muses and of God.

THE NEW BRANSON METHODIST CHURCH

Last Sunday was a red letter day in the history of the Branson church, Durham, N. C. It was the opening of the beautiful and commodious new church which has just been erected at a cost of $55,000.

The congregation at the morning service that packed the church, both the main floor and the galleries, contained representatives from all the Methodist churches in Durham and even from other churches of the city.

The choir under the skilled leadership of Prof. G. B. Overton of the Southern Conservatory of Music added greatly to the occasion with special music. The pastor, Rev. H. C. Ewing, who has labored hard and effectively and through whose leadership the church has been built was in charge of the services. At the morning service after a sermon by the editor of the North Carolina Christian Advocate, the pastor passed cards and received a liberal contribution toward paying the debt on the church.

At the evening hour there was a union service of the Baptist, Presbyterian and Methodist churches of that section of the city. An address of welcome was delivered by the pastor and responses were made by Rev. C. S. Norville of the Baptist church and Rev. R. S. Carson of the Presbyterian church. Rev. A. D. Wilcox, pastor of Trinity Methodist church, preached at the evening service.

This building enterprise was begun during the pastorate of Rev. J. A. Martin. The people then not only decided to build, but under the leadership of Brother Martin collected considerable funds for the purpose even though the work of construction had not begun.

The first piece of good fortune that came to the church after Brother H. C. Ewing was appointed pastor 18 months ago was to secure the lot on the corner of Angier and Alston avenues, and at the same time to sell the old church and lot for a good price.

The location is admirable in every respect and the church is in all respects worthy of a place on this lot which seems to have been appointed for a church in that section of the city. The church is of dark red tapestry brick and stone trimmings. A cut appeared upon the front page of last week's Advocate. It is practically a duplicate of the Methodist churches in Lenoir and Lincolnton, N. C.

Rev. H. C. Ewing has done a monumental work in the erection of this church that is first class in every respect. There is nothing shoddy about the material or workmanship. Others would do well to get pews like those in this new church. In fact the church is a fine object lesson in every particular. The pastor and people had a right to be unspeakably happy on the day of the opening.

Branson has more than 400 members, a Sunday school enrollment of 500, and they expect now that they are in the new building a large increase in the membership of both the church and the Sunday school.

Before many years this church will number 1000 members and be one of the great churches of the city. The congregation and pastor in the building of the new house of worship have just begun to do big things for the glory of God and the good of mankind.

"NOW I LAY ME DOWN TO SLEEP"

The Raleigh News and Observer has directed attention to an incident that will bear repeating many times. In fact our humanity finds its chief glory in such instances of sacrifice and like manifestations of the spirit of little children without which one cannot enter into the kingdom of heaven. Here is the tender tribute to one whose name leads all the rest:

The Richmond papers, telling of the death of Dr. McGuire Newton, distinguished child specialist, whose death was caused by "a combination of diseases brought on by attempting to meet the calls of a practice he could not reduce," say that he was strengthened in his last illness by the knowledge that thousands of children in Richmond were praying for him. The News-Leader quotes a gentleman as saying:

The prayers were not unavailing. He was conscious that others were sustaining him and often in semi-delirium he would murmur the prayers he so often had heard from the lips of his little patients. It was touching in the extreme to hear this brilliant physician brought to childhood again and whispering at darkness, "Now I lay me down to sleep."

THOMASVILLE

The young and popular pastor of Main Street, Thomasville, was over at Clayton last Sunday preaching the commencement sermon for the high school in that town, and asked the business manager of the Advocate to "fill in" for him. The invitation was accepted with thanks. When we arrived Sunday morning Brother Charlie Lambeth was closing his Sunday school. He has a happy faculty of getting every one in that splendid school to do something. There were nearly four hundred present and the young superintendent was having his whole school to sing the closing selection. Brother Lambeth is enthusiastic himself and it spreads to the entire school. No wonder that Brother Gibbs brags on his Sunday school. The church building is entirely too small for comfort at the Sunday school hour and the same thing is true of the growing congregation.

No man is privileged to speak to a finer looking and a more intelligent congregation than is Brother Gibbs, and he is highly appreciated by his people. It was a great pleasure to us to speak to that splendid congregation, and to associate with that big-hearted former pastor, Rev. R. M. Courtney, who was at home Sunday and took part in the services.

It is a rare privilege to be permitted to spend a season in the hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Lambeth. In company of Brother and Sister Courtney we had that privilege last Sunday. It is no wonder that such splendid young people have gone out from that home to bless the world. They certainly had a good start.

William Jennings Bryan won in his fight in the General Assembly of the Northern Presbyterian church for a demand that every Presbyterian minister, church officials and faculties of the denomination's colleges sign the total abstinence pledge, but he lost in his effort to bar the schools of the church from teaching the evolutionary hypothesis. Good for the General Assembly of that church, which stands for personal abstinence on the part of its officials and its teachers.

PEOPLE AND THINGS

Western North Carolina Conference, Winston-Salem, October 17.

North Carolina Conference, Elizabeth City, November 14.

Dr. Theodore Copeland is in a meeting of great proportions in Lincoln, Cal.

The graduating class at Trinity College this year numbers 115, which is 27 more than any previous class.

The people of Mt. Airy were edified and thrilled with two great sermons at Central Methodist church by Bishop H. M. DuBose last Sunday.

Rev. H. F. Hardin, pastor of Tryon Street, Charlotte, preached the annual sermon last Sunday for the commencement at Mt. Olive, N. C.

Rev. Sam Maxwell, 1157 Yale University, New Haven, Conn., has an open date to give beginning June 17 to some pastor in North Carolina.

Dewey L. Maness, choir leader and music director in meetings, can be reached at College Station, Durham, N. C., till June 1. After that date at Rowland, N. C.

Rev. W. L. Dawson is assisting Rev. S. E. Richardson in a revival at China Grove. The meeting began last Sunday and will continue through the greater part if not all of next week.

Rev. D. E. Earnhardt is in a meeting at Calvary church, Durham. This is the second week of the meeting, the pastor does the preach, the congregations are large and the results are gratifying.

"Mr. Daniel Branson Coltrane requests the pleasure of your company at the marriage of his daughter, Elizabeth, to Mr. Robert Eldridge Jones on Tuesday, the fifth of June, at half after six o'clock, at the Central Methodist church, Concord, North Carolina."

Rev. J. H. Buffalo is now in the second week of a revival at Carr church, Durham. Brother Buffalo is doing the preaching and great success has attended his efforts. The music has been a feature of the meeting with a good chorus choir leading. The services are at 3 and 8 p. m.

"Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lee Knowles request the honor of your presence at the marriage of their daughter, Helen Lee, to Mr. Ernest Stevenson Douglas on Wednesday, June the sixth, at high noon, at the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in the city of Hertford, North Carolina. At home after July the first Hertford, North Carolina."

Dr. Ashley Chappell, pastor of Central church, Asheville, will in September assist Rev. Z. E. Barnhardt in a revival meeting at Centenary, Winston-Salem. Dr. Chappell recently delivered an address to the Men's Club at West End, Winston-Salem, and all who heard him were charmed by his eloquent address.

Rev. W. M. Smith, the pastor at Franklin in the Waynesville district, is giving the very greatest satisfaction as pastor and preacher. One of the leading laymen of Franklin was heard to say, "Daugherty and Hayes do not have any lead on Smith." When this particular layman places a man along with these two former pastors of his, he has said the last word in the way of praise.

Bishop Joseph F. Berry recently celebrated in Philadelphia the completion of 50 years of service in the ministry. At a dinner given in his honor by the Philadelphia Methodist Social Union a check for $12,000 was presented him, which was a gift from the ministers and laymen of the Philadelphia area, which is the territory over which he presides. Wouldn't it be a fine practice for his friends to present every minister who has served half a century a check that would be of real worth to him in his old age?

Mrs. H. K. Boyer of Mt. Airy was chosen at the last annual meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Western North Carolina conference to edit the Woman's Page of the Advocate in place of Mrs. J. V. Wilson of High Point, who has been the efficient editor for the Western conference. Mrs. Boyer begins her work with this issue. Mrs. Wilson has proven a delightful co-laborer, as Mrs. Harris before her had been in this work and we expect Mrs. Boyer to equal her predecessors. Mrs. J. LeGrand Everett of Rockingham continues her work for the North Carolina conference.

Rev. C. T. Thrift's people at Farmville last Sunday a week ago subscribed $34,000 toward a new $50,000 church. Good for Farmville Methodists and for Rev. C. T. Thrift.

Rev. R. G. Tuttle, pastor of Centenary church, Greensboro, delivered the annual commencement address at Fairfield this year. Brother Tuttle greatly enjoyed his trip to Hyde.

The North Wilkesboro district conference meets next Wednesday, May 30, at North Wilkesboro. An elaborate program has been prepared and Brother Williams is expecting a conference that will prove of real value to the work.

Rev. J. M. Price, junior preacher on the Morganton circuit, is hard at work with the pastor. The Sunday school day exercises, the communion services and the preaching of the Word are well attended. Brother Price is devoted to the work of the ministry.

Delegates and pastors expecting to attend the Epworth League Assembly to be held at Morehead City, June 18-23, are asked to send names at once to Miss Fannie E. Vann, Clinton, N. C., in order that reservations may be made for them. The charge per day will be $2.25.

The Methodists of Central church, Shelby, last Sunday voted to proceed with the erection of a new house of worship on the lot next to the postoffice. The lot faces the celebrated court house square of Shelby and is perhaps the finest in the city for a church. The proposed church with the lot, which is valued at $40,000, will approximate a total cost of $200,000. Central already owns the lot.

The South Main Street church, Salisbury, last Sunday received 50 new members by vows and others are bringing their church letters. The pastor, Rev. M. B. Woosley, has been assisted in a very successful revival by Rev. H. G. Allen of Walkertown. Prof. H. A. Duncan of Spencer did the singing. Services continue through this week. Rev. M. B. Woosley is doing a great work at South Main Street, and Rev. H. G. Allen has rendered fine service in the revival now going on.

The Nobles of the Mystic Shrine will have an opportunity of enjoying a special program at Mt. Vernon Place, the Representative church, in Washington during Shrine week, beginning Sunday, June 3. At the morning service the entire auditorium will be reserved for the "Red Fez" (and fezesses) until 11 o'clock. A special service will be held also at 3 p. m. Sunday. Monday night the sacred cantata, "Atonement," composed by the choir director of Mt. Vernon Place church, will be given complimentary to Shriners. Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday there will be an organ recital each night at 8 p. m., after which Dr. C. G. Chappell will preach. Friday night a sacred musical will be given. At all these services the main auditorium will be reserved for the Nobles. These services will give many visiting Methodist Shriners an opportunity to attend Mt. Vernon Place church, hear its pastor and enjoy the music of its great choir.

TO THE OFFICIAL BOARDS OF SHELBY DISTRICT

I am very anxious that every pastor in the district attend the summer school at Trinity College, from June 6 to 15, and am writing this to request you to grant your pastor a vacation covering this time and give him the opportunity to go. It would be a very gracious thing if you would make up a purse and pay his expenses. I am sure you would be amply repaid for this kindness. Several of the charges have already agreed to do this and I greatly hope many others will follow their example.

H. H. Jordan, P. E.

Rev. E. P. Billups led the singing last week at Park Place church during the meeting and his work greatly aided the revival.

Rev. J. Herbert Miller closed last Sunday night a very successful two weeks revival at Conetoe. The attendance was large, 15 have joined by vows and some will join other churches. Brother Miller did the preaching.

The Southern General Assembly through its committee appointed to investigate the reports of heresy in the mission fields and colleges of that church reports that such reports are without foundation. The committee was unable to find heretical teachers.

TO THE PREACHERS OF DURHAM DISTRICT

Will it not be advisable for all the pastors of this district to make plans to get full benefit of the work offered at Trinity, 6-16 of June? The people will be well paid to have their pastors profit by this occasion and the preachers will be helped for years to come. Our record was fine last year. Let us make it 100 per cent this year. Some of the other districts are making big plans; but let us be there when the roll is called. Some of you are quite busy, but remember that it is the busy men who do things. If your folks are wanting you very much now, it will not be long until you will be wanted everywhere.

Yours for better service,

M. T. Plyler.

AT TRINITY COLLEGE IN JUNE

G. Campbell Morgan, the great English preacher and lecturer on Bible themes, will preach the sermon on Sunday, June 10, and will remain to the close of the school. He will speak twice each day. This will allow the laymen who come to their meeting, June 15-16, to hear this noted lecturer.

Bishop Hoyt M. Dobbs, now in charge of our Brazilian work, will preach the sermon before the graduating class on Tuesday, June 5, and will remain over to lecture before the Methodist Summer School. Bishop Dobbs was once dean at Dallas, and he is in great demand as commencement preacher. He will be heard with pleasure at Trinity and will receive a warm welcome in North Carolina.

Dr. Andrew Sledd has a long string of academic titles following his name, indicating something of his attainments in the world of scholarship. He started in Virginia and now labors at Emory. Dr. Sledd's work in the class room will be well worth the attention of any and all; and he will bring some thrilling messages on the platform.

Rev. H. P. Atkins, secretary of the Federation of Churches of Cincinnati, graduated at the University of Cincinnati, and has done graduate work in the same University and in the University of Chicago. He has been pastor twelve years in Richmond, five years in Birmingham, and three years in Mexico, Missouri. He will give courses having to do with the work of the city church.

Dr. C. G. Thompson, professor of Philosophy at Emory, holds the M. A., B. D. and Ph. D. degrees from Yale University. He has studied also at the University of Chicago and at the University of Edinburgh. His courses will deal with the Principles of Religious Teachings.

Rev. S. A. Stewart, during the year at home from Japan, has given courses at Southern Methodist University and at Vanderbilt. He is a devoted missionary, a man of scholarship, and a man sensitive to the currents of thought in the new day in the Orient. A graduate of Trinity, with his B. D. from Yale, Stewart is admirably equipped to give a course on "The How and Why of Foreign Missions." He is president of the Hiroshima Girls' School in Japan.

Professors Spence and Ormond are so well known all over North Carolina that no word of introduction is needed here. That they are both eminently qualified to give the courses offered no one who knows will raise the question.

It must be apparent to all that selection must be made of the courses that happen to make special appeal, and then stick to these. No one will be able to take even half of all the valuable courses offered. But every one ought to find something of special interest and then stick to the finish. It will be well worth while.

It is from the mouth of the ignorant that we hear the words, "I know!" from the diligent and well informed we hear, "Let me learn."—Maria Hare.

A STORY CONCERNING THE LATE WALTER S. CREASY

I think it was in the year 1878 we had a great revival at Creasy's Chapel, named for Rev. Walter Creasy of the North Carolina conference, who was pastor of Patrick Mission before me, and died a few years ago an honored and beloved preacher of that conference. The old church was across the road from where the present church now stands on Peter's Creek, in Patrick county, Va. While I was pastor we built another church near the present location. Brother Creasy's parents lived on this charge while I was pastor. They related the following story to me: "When Walter was a small boy they lived in a mining section and his mother kept a boarding house for the miners. Walter was a great pet of the miners. One Sunday morning one of the miners put Walter on a stump and told him to preach for them. He began at once. The little boy's sermon made a wonderful impression on the congregation. His mother and father were convicted and converted under this sermon."—D. J. Traynham in Danville Methodist.

LETTER FROM DEAN OF SUMMER SCHOOL

I am mailing you a folder containing information concerning the Summer School for Preachers. I think you will agree with me that we have arranged the best school we have ever had. Our courses of instruction are more extensive, and perhaps the personnel of our faculty improved. Our inspirational speakers are among the best in the world. Now I know I am covering a great deal of territory, but I think you will agree with me that Dr. Morgan has no superior in Christendom. He will also bring his son along and we shall be able to use him for one or two lectures. We hope also to get President Faunce to stay over for one or more addresses.

As you know, our campus is a delightful place to spend a vacation. Recreation will be afforded and we hope you will have a great time.

You will receive a return postcard within the next two weeks and on that you will please notify me as to the time of your coming. If there are any special requests which you wish to make, feel free to write me at any time.

Trusting that we may have the pleasure of seeing you here and with all good wishes, I remain,

Very sincerely yours,

H. E. Spence,

Dean of Summer School.

KEEP TRINITY SUMMER SCHOOL FOR PREACHERS FIRST

Last year the school at Trinity went beyond all others in the church so far as attendance is concerned. More than a round dozen schools will be scattered over the south this summer. Why not keep the one at Durham in the front rank? We have the constituency in the two conferences capable of making a most attractive group; we have the campus and buildings at Trinity the superior of any other gathering place for a school; we have instructors and speakers that will rank well with any of the offerings made; and we have men who are earnestly giving themselves to saving men and women as they build them into the church, rather than a body of preachers who spend their efforts in idle disputings over the non-essentials.

Courses dealing with town and country, with Sunday schools and missions, and having to do with the New Testament and the problems of the day will certainly furnish sufficient variety to satisfy all comers. The men who will appear on the platform will please and instruct.

We are coming to know each better by these annual gatherings at Trinity and we are the better for it. With this one gathering place and one paper for our North Carolina Methodism, a fine sense of unity will result. The men on the Banks will feel to be one with the men over the Blue Ridge, and there will literally be one people from Dan to Beer-sheba—from Manteo to Murphy.

Once more and finally: Why not urge that your pastor go to Trinity, even if you have to hand him a small purse to get him off? Let all unite to make Durham memorable in June for having the best summer school in all the southland. This will go far to keep North Carolina Methodism in the band wagon.

GENERAL EUROPEAN CONDITIONS

I don't suppose there is a man living in Europe who would assume, or be able, to give a perfect analysis of present European conditions. There are a few things that we know, but what these things will lead to must, at the best, be only a matter of surmise, and a pure guess.

During all of 1922 there was much discussion concerning German reparations. The most serious situation, however, was in the Near East where England and France were really at war with each other.

Turkish, Greek, Armenian and so-called Christian minorities are as nothing in the eyes of the European nations. The main factors are the Dardanelles, the Suez Canal and the Mosul oil fields. England and France are striving for supremacy in these three realms, and I am of the opinion that either one of them will agree to almost anything, provided they have absolute control of these factors. At present there seems to be a cessation of discussions concerning the Near East. It is not settled, however, and only the situation in the Ruhr Valley is keeping it under cover at present.

My impression is that the Germans accepted the terms of the Armistice with the feeling that they would not be called upon to pay reparations. This was, no doubt, an erroneous feeling. Nevertheless, it is a feeling that has grown. They have deliberately made up their minds that they will not pay reparations. It is not a question of inability. Germany has money scattered all through the world. The German government was making no efforts whatsoever to collect taxes from her wealthy citizens towards payment of her reparations. German industries were intact and running at full blast. The German shipyards were producing more ships than any other country on earth. Her plans were to rehabilitate her world trade and leave France and Belgium to rebuild their own devastated areas.

Time only can answer the question of the justice of the French occupation of the Ruhr Valley. Personally, I cannot blame France. She did not intend to see Germany rehabilitate herself while France and Belgium stumbled and fell under the weight of rebuilding their waste places. She, therefore, took over the greatest industrial center in Germany, and by this act announced to the world that, "Though we may never get reparations, we are determined that Germany will not regain her lost economic position at our expense. Nobody knows what the outcome will be.

There is just one song that Europe sings in unison. In the singing of this song the national prejudices and racial hatreds are eliminated and the chorus is as if there were but one voice from Siberia on the east to the Atlantic on the west, and the song can be sung in these words, "America must give us money, or lend us money without our promise to pay."

Few persons in America have any conception of the amount of American money already given in various ways to Europe. The war loan will probably not count more than one-half of the total. My own feeling is that no more money should come from America at present for governmental and economic purposes.

It is not money that Europe needs, but God. Gold will never eliminate racial hatreds and national prejudices. Only God, through Christ, can change human life. Europe's need is for a great change in the life and feelings by the establishment of moral standards and living the principles of Jesus Christ. Without these, all the gold in the world will not stay the downward progress of European civilization. The fact is, the more gold available the more rapid the progress towards ultimate destruction. It may be that God has realized that there is no hope for the present civilization, and is allowing it to pass off the stage. God forbid. Europe's need, however, is for the gospel of Jesus Christ.

How fine if only a part of our tourists from America would live Christian lives while in Europe. Europe sees these wealthy visitors in their gaudy attire and idleness and draws her conclusions concerning the fundamental principles of American life. I also wish that something could be done to prohibit a certain class of individuals leaving our shores to visit other countries. How important that the gospel be preached with power and persuasiveness in America as well as in Europe.

DR. T. N. IVEY—A TRIBUTE

By Walt Holcomb.

A shock indescribable was felt this morning when I opened my paper and saw an account of the sudden death of Dr. T. N. Ivey, editor of the Christian Advocate.

Dr. Ivey was the first religious editor to take a personal interest in my work; and, while editor of the North Carolina Christian Advocate, to speak kindly and encouraging words of a young minister. I learned to love the first time I met him, and this love deepened through the succeeding years.

While recently associated with him in the Centenary Emergency Campaign, I realized more than ever his breadth of vision and his great interest in all of the affairs of the church. To say that he was one of the greatest, all-round editors that the Christian Advocate has had, is to express the consensus of opinion among the preachers and people of our connection. His editorials had both intellectual and spiritual strength.

As editor of our general organ, the accredited evangelists of the Southern Methodist Church have lost their best and truest friend. I am sure that I express the feeling of the fifty-two general evangelists when I make this statement. I want to be one of the number to lay a flower on his casket and shed a tear at his grave. How I shall miss him and look forward to meeting him again.

A SOFT-BOILED EGG FOR BREAKFAST

A man of usual resources of thought and activity of mind boasts that he has eaten a soft-boiled egg every morning for breakfast the last twenty years. He is a conservative in his tastes and sets himself against any change of diet. In thought and in the general processes of his mental machinery, his conservation in food is a progressive. This inconsistency in the matter of taste and thought on the part of this one man is typical of the want of consistency in the race of men at large.

The conservative believes that all change is dangerous; the progressive holds that change is essential. With some, the soft-boiled egg must be on hand with the beginning of each day, but they do not hold fast to the idea that is static; others demand a change of menu, every morning, but they hold fast to ideas until musty with age. In the order of the world, progress is welcomed on every hand in farm and field and market-place; in the deeper movements of life and religion, they count as dangerous any effort at change. So the conflict between the progressive and the conservative is always with us; sometimes in the same individual, but more often between groups of individuals.

When it comes to living, the preponderance or argument seems to be in favor of the progressive. This is also true in the matter of religion as taught us by Jesus. His favorite parables had to do with the growing seeds. The main theme of the sower that went forth to sow was the matter of the seeds and the harvests. The soils were only incidents. The same is true of the mustard seed. The dead stagnant water may be most interesting to the scientist in the laboratory but for the thirsty the demand is for the active, living water. The scientist explains the making of the rainbow by the reflection of the seven prismatic colors in the drop of water. This is a fixed and unchangeable order of the reflection of light. However, the element of value entering into our experience when we say, "The rainbow is beautiful," arises out of the ever shifting drops of water in the wake of the storm. The charm of the ocean with the music in its roar comes not out of the static main. The restless waters of the ever changing surface of the sea make possible the rapture on the lonely shore. Somehow, the living God seems to hate monotony so much that he has written variety and change over the face of nature, in the soul of man and in the coming of the Kingdom. It may not be a virtue to eat a soft-boiled egg every morning and to grow static in life and religion; it certainly is not an attractive course of procedure for one who places the garden of God above the haunts of dead men's bones.

No sermon is of any value, or likely to be useful, which has not the three R's in it: ruin by the fall, redemption by Christ, and regeneration by the Holy Spirit. My aim in every sermon is loudly to call sinners, to quicken saints, and to be made a blessing to all.—Ryland.

CALL MEETING BOARD OF MISSIONS

On call of the chairman of the executive committee of the Board of Missions was held on May 16th 11:30 in the Lambuth Building, Nashville, to take suitable action with reference to the sudden death of the Reverend T. N. Ivey, D.D., editor of the Christian Advocate.

The president and vice president being beyond call, Doctor Rawlings called the meeting to order, and on his nomination Mr. P. D. Maddins was elected temporary chairman.

F. S. Parker was elected secretary pro tempore.

There were present: P. D. Estelle Haskins, Mabel K. Howell, E. D. Chappell, E. H. Rawlings, C. G. Hounshell, W. W. Pinson, Esther Case, Mrs. F. H. E. Ross, F. S. Parker and A. C. Zumbunnen. Sitting with the board were W. G. Cram, directing secretary Centenary Commission, and W. M. Cassetty, Jr., acting treasurer.

A paper expressive of the mind of the board was presented by F. S. Parker for adoption. The motion to adopt was seconded by E. B. Chappell (paper attached).

It was further moved that the paper be conveyed to members of Doctor Ivey's family and given to the church press and the Nashville daily papers and the Raleigh, N. C., daily press.

After eulogistic remarks by Mr. Maddin, Dr. Chappell, Dr. Rawlings, Dr. Hounshell, Mr. Cassetty, Mrs. Ross and Dr. Pinson, the paper with the amendment was adopted.

On the Death of Doctor Ivey.

Whereas, by the sudden death of the Rev. T. N. Ivey, D.D., we are again called upon to contemplate the supreme challenge of life, it is our privilege to record:

First, Our consolation through the Christian's good hope of eternal life in Jesus Christ, of which we doubt not that our departed brother had long been a partaker, a hope that we trust he is now realizing with greater fullness in the open presence of the Lord.

Second, Our sense of loss by the removal of this eminent servant of Christ and the church from his high position as editor of the Christian Advocate, preacher of the gospel, wise participant in the councils of the church and strong advocate of every cause of righteousness and of progress toward the unity of the church.

Third, Our appreciation of the gracious and courtly attitude of this our friend and brother in all the social contacts of life; of his genial and kindly spirit; of his fidelity and loyalty in the relations of friendship, brotherhood and co-operation, as well as in those more intimate contacts of life in which the beauty of character is most distinctly and fully seen; and Fourth, Our sympathy with his bereaved family, whom we commend to the God of all comfort, who comforteth us in all our tribulations that we may comfort them who are in any trouble with the comfort wherewith we ourselves are comforted of God.

F. S. Parker,
E. B. Chappell.

On motion of E. H. Rawlings the two treasurers were instructed to provide a suitable floral tribute.

It was moved by W. W. Pinson that we adjourn business at 5 p. m. and that we attend the funeral service in McKendree church as a body and occupy seats reserved for us.

The motion prevailed.

The minutes were read and approved.

The board adjourned with prayer led by F. S. Parker.
Secretary Pro Tempore.

THE ROCKINGHAM DISTRICT CONFERENCE

The Rockingham district conference will be held at Aberdeen, beginning Tuesday night, June 19th, and closing Thursday, the 21st.

Rev. J. D. Bundy will preach the opening sermon Tuesday night. It is very greatly desired that every charge lay leader with a full delegation be present at the opening session, and remain until the benediction is pronounced at the close.

The pastors will prepare brief, written reports of the different activities of their work, according to the order, that is given in the Discipline.

All the local preachers must give written reports of their work, and those whose license are to be renewed must make application for the same, or their license may not be renewed.

A. J. Parker, J. L. Rumley and A. J. Groves will serve as a committee on license, orders and recommendations.

The other committees will be announced at the first session of the conference.

The brethren representing the different institutions of the church are cordially invited to be present and present their work.

An early morning devotional service will be held each day at seven o'clock.

Each pastor will see that his quarterly conference record is brought for examination.

We are praying and expecting a great district conference at Aberdeen. J. H. Shore, P. E.

THE SUMMER SCHOOL AT TRINITY COLLEGE, JUNE 6-15, 1923

Foreword.

One of the outstanding needs of the hour is for trained leadership. Nowhere is this more true than in the work of the church. In response to a realization of this need, there has been held for several years at Trinity College a Preachers' Institute for Sunday school and church workers—a school with capable instructors, offering courses in the various departments of church work. The school has constantly increased its scope until the coming session will provide for practically all interests of the church. While the inspirational addresses are still an outstanding and attractive feature, yet stress is being laid more and more upon class work. The school has really become what its name implies, a school.

Initial Meeting.

The first meeting will be Wednesday afternoon, June 6th, at 4 o'clock, in the Y. M. C. A. hall. At this time the courses will be explained, classes organized, and the lessons assigned.

Entertainment.

Rooms will be furnished free of charge in the dormitories of Trinity College. Meals may be secured at a reasonable price at the boarding houses near the campus or in the city cafeterias.

Schedule.

Inspirational addresses will be given at 11:30 a. m. and 8:30 p. m. each day. Schedule of classes will be furnished later.

Inspirational Speakers.

Bishop Hoyt M. Dobbs, Dr. G. Campbell Morgan, Dr. Andrew Sledd.

Courses and Instructors.

- (a) New Testament. Dr. Sledd.
- (b) Ministers' Message for the Needs of the Day. Dr. Sledd.
- (c) Rural Church Methods. Prof. Ormond.
- (d) The Church and Country Life. Prof. Ormond.
- (e) Program of Work for the City Church. Dr. Atkins.
- (f) Social Teachings of Jesus. Dr. Atkins.
- (g) Organization and Administration of the Sunday School. Prof. Spence.
- (h) Principles of Religious Teachings. Dr. Thompson.
- (i) The How and Why of Foreign Missions. Prof. Stewart.

Undergraduate Courses.

All the courses in the Conference Course will be given by competent instructors for each of the four years' work. Detailed announcement of these courses and names of instructors and place of meeting will be announced later. All young men taking the Conference Course of Study will do well to begin work on Wednesday afternoon and remain through until the next Friday afternoon. Otherwise, under the rulings of the General Board of Education, credits cannot be given for work done.

Sunday School Courses.

Two courses in Sunday school work are being offered, one in the Organization and Administration of the Sunday School, and the other in Principles of Religious Teachings. Certificates of credit on the Standard Training Course of the General Sunday School Board will be issued for these courses.

Courses in Missions.

For the first time, a course in the work of Foreign Missions is being offered by Rev. S. A. Stewart, of Japan. This will furnish an opportunity for the preachers and others to do some systematic work in this most important field, and also, to touch the life of a successful worker in the Orient.

Lay Activities.

Thursday and Friday, June 14 and 15, special attention will be given to Lay Activities. Mr. G. L. Morelock, secretary of the Board of Lay Activities of the Southern Methodist church, with other prominent laymen, will be heard in conference and on platform. Men interested and all lay leaders should plan to be at Trinity in June.

WHY ATTEND THE SUMMER SCHOOL AT TRINITY?

These free and frank suggestions are offered for the benefit of preachers with healthy livers, good consciences, a sense of humor, and cheerful views of religion. Those who have a grouch and are painfully serious would do well to pass this over. They would not care for such a gratuity.

1. Every preacher who has not rounded his mental land's end and gone into port for the last time would do well to come to Trinity in June and prepare for another voyage. Enough will be offered to aid, matters not what one's craft may be.

2. All who would like to be an elder some future day or care to have a better appointment than he now has must be sure to come. The man who simply marks time these days may be sure that neither of these will be a part of his good fortune.

3. One needs to get out of the grind of a tiresome routine for a ten days. The year is half gone and one should have a respite. Tough men of thought and vision and get a new start. If there should, perchance, be a preacher who has done nothing, he should come and repent of his shortcomings and do his first works over again.

4. If one happens to be an elder, he should come to set a good example for each preacher in his district that he may live up to his vows by bending all his thoughts in this direction; if he should have an elder who is determined not to leave his outgrown shell by life's unrelenting sea, he should come to declare to all the world that here is a preacher better fitted for being an elder than are some now on the job—or rather some who are sitting on a district.

5. The people should have some consideration. They need a rest and they want a fresh stirring message. Folks may not be able to analyze the situation, but they know something has gone wrong when mental and spiritual stagnation settles down upon them. One does not have to follow John Wesley far in his daily mental and spiritual struggles to know why something happened whenever he was around.

6. Time well spent is not time wasted. A preacher that cannot be absent one Sunday at a summer school and so improve the time that he will be worth more to his people the other fifty-one Sundays may be sure that he is not worth much any of the time. Jesus laid wonderful stress on preparation. Tarry till you are qualified to go.

7. Trinity in June is not a place to loll and hunt motes. The man who has some energy left and is willing to grant that the views of other men may be equally as sound as his own may profit much. The man who has settled all questions in heaven and earth and has once for all closed his mind to ideas may just as well come along. Not that he will profit by coming, but he will furnish so much quiet amusement for others that he is well worth his room. He does not count at home. For God is a living God and this is a growing world. Jesus dealt with seeds and children. A sower went forth to sow seeds.

8. Once more: There is the earnest, faithful man of God who knows his limitations. Let him come and think and play and talk and love and rest. Let him sit at the feet of the wise and rub elbows with the otherwise. He will contribute much and get no little. He will be able to sing and pray and look up at the stars.

These reasons may be consummate folly to some. Well and good! Here's our hand. Find better ones and come along. Such men are too valuable to be left at home. Come one and all! M. T. P.

As blows from sculptor's mallet on
The marble's dawning face,
Such are God's Yea and Nay unto
The Spirit's growing grace;
So work his making hands with what Does and does not take place.

—George Macdonald.

CENTRAL FALLS

We have just closed a fifteen days' campaign for God here. We held our services in a tent. Brother and Sister Jones of the Wesley Methodist church united with us in the work. We were glad to have with us Brother Willis of Asheboro Methodist church, who brought us two plain old gospel sermons. Also Brothers Shaw and Hill. We were glad to have all of them come out to the help of the Lord. It was our blessed privilege to see an old time revival. We prayed earnestly for the old time convicting and converting power of God, and God did wonderfully hear and answer prayer. The Holy Spirit moved in mighty convicting power and sinners were made to tremble. Twenty souls were saved and reclaimed during the meeting and Christians have had their strength renewed.

It was a feast to the soul, and may its influence go with us through life.

We devoted the afternoon service Sunday to Mother's Day, and it was an inspiration to hear the many beautiful tributes paid to mothers. Truly, we feel like saying "The kingdom is coming, and praise God from whom all blessings flow.

Mrs. J. A. Howell.

FROM WEST ASHEVILLE

This is my first request for space in your paper, not because I am ungrateful for my reception in this great conference, but because my contributions of a personal nature to the church press have ever been few and small.

But I desire thus to express my genuine appreciation of the gracious reception and unstinted courtesies uniformly accorded me both by my conference brethren and my splendid pastoral charge and all Asheville Methodism. My oldest and dearest Georgia friends can never know how you new-found friends have lightened the load laid upon me by the painful providence that sent me here a year and a half ago. And my loved ones live. Daughter is fully recovered, and the wife will later walk these hills of health in "The Land of the Sky."

Our revival campaign opened formally on April 22 and closed on May 6, but preaching and other appropriate preparation had been the policy of the church for several weeks before. Fifty have joined within the last few weeks, and eighteen applicants are now in pastoral training for membership. No church needs better preaching or singing than Dr. Ashley Chappell of Central Church, Asheville, and Mr. C. P. Curry of Hendersonville did throughout the entire evangelistic effort. I never before had such pre-eminently satisfying service from both preacher and singer at the same time. I was so impressed with these brethren that I think it would be very wise for the Methodist pastors and people of Asheville to make adequate preparation and have Dr. Chappell and Brother Curry to lead us in sermon and song for city-wide Methodism. I so believe it that I should be more than willing to do my part in projecting such plan, say in early September of this year. I have heard of nothing here in recent years that gave such returns as I believe this arrangement would certainly secure.

Asheville Methodism is active and achieving, and pastors and people seem mutually pleased. Presiding Elder Sprinkle is strong, at once conservative and aggressive, and his pastors and officials are responsive to his capable leadership.

Brother Hawk and I remember your promise to visit us and we cordially welcome your coming at will.

L. W. Colson.

NEWPORT CIRCUIT

Quarterly meeting was held at Riverdale church Saturday and Sunday, the 11th and 12th. The writer was not at the meeting on Saturday, but from who he saw Sunday one could tell about what was done. No wonder Brother Bruton carries a smile all the time, for it must be a delight to serve such good people as are at Riverdale, and we have no reason to doubt but that all of Newport circuit are made up with such good folks. Sunday morning the church at Riverdale was filled awaiting the time for the eleven o'clock hour to come. Brother Shamberger, the energetic presiding elder, was there, and using for a text the third verse of the 39th Psalm he launched out into one of the most powerful appeals for the old time Christianity and the home altar to be used. It will be a treat for anyone to hear Brother Shamberger who has not heard him. I thank God for such men as he, who fails not to declare the whole council of God, and who still upholds the old Methodist standard of religion that makes one happy soul and body. May he live long and be used by the Lord in turning many sons and daughters unto God. J. H. Hill.

SWANSBORO CHARGE

I did not attend last annual conference, as I was just out of the hospital from having undergone a surgical operation.

I was glad that the bishop and his cabinet saw fit to leave me at Swansboro for another year. God has graciously blessed me, and with few exceptions my people seemed glad to have me back for another year, and many have been the substantial tokens of their appreciation—for poundings have come in various ways and at frequent intervals. And judging from recent results it seems some are thinking that such is always in order when a Methodist pastor calls.

The good people of my churches and other churches, especially the Baptist, and also non-church members, were very kind and rendered much aid to me during my hospital experience last year.

Well, we have organized and are preparing to build two churches on the charge—one at Silverdale and the other at Bear Creek.

Wilmington district conference at Swansboro the 26th-28th of June is when we are expecting to have a great season of fellowship and refreshing, when we trust we shall have Bishop Denny, Rev. J. M. Daniel, our presiding elder, and preachers and laymen and women, making a sum total of one hundred and twenty-five or more to come and join with us in worship, work, eating, sleeping, enjoying the sea breezes, etc.

We are glad you are coming and will assure you that you will be given a hearty welcome and be well entertained.

Those coming on the train will be met at Jacksonville and brought out in automobiles. Therefore I will ask all who are coming on the train to please drop me a card ten days or more before conference so I will be sure to know in time and have a sufficient number of cars to take all out.

Those coming in automobiles will come via Jacksonville with the exception a few that may come via of Goldsboro, Kinston and Trenton or Newbern. They will come by Maysville.

We give below the best routes to take in coming from most of the points in the district:

1. Wilmington to Jacksonville, the highway to Newbern, which is about 55 miles.

2. Councils, Elwell Ferry, Atkinson, Burgaw, Maple Hill to Jacksonville, which is about 85 miles.

3. Clinton, Warsaw, Keenansville, Hallsville, Katherine's Lake, Jacksonville, which is about 62 miles.

It is 23 miles from Jacksonville to Swansboro. T. W. Siler, P. C.

LOUISBURG COLLEGE COMMENCEMENT

All has been gala around Louisburg College the major portion of the past week, celebrating the satisfactory closing of another successful school year. President A. W. Mohn and his able corps of assistants have done a wonderful work, as has been abundantly reflected in each of the many exercises during the commencement that began Friday evening and ended Wednesday. Louisburg College is one of the oldest institutions of learning in the South and is gaining in prestige and position each year, much to the gratification of the many friends of the institution scattered over the United States.

The art exhibit was open to guests at 5 o'clock on Saturday afternoon and was a source of much pleasure to a large number. The many beautiful exhibits in oil, pastel, water color, china paintings, etc., reflected much work and wonderful talent, and a master mind in charge. There were many showings all of which were excellent.

The campus was beautiful Saturday evening, when the Seniors held their class day exercises, which were unusually attractive and interesting. The program was as follows:

Class song, "Go on, and Keep a-Going"; salutatory, Margaret Ledbetter; history, Glandora Hardison; poem, Katherine Brady; prophecy, Margaret Ledbetter; vocal solo, Frances Russo; historian, Gracie Parker; last will and testament, Essie Liles; valedictory, Charlotte Pittman; bequeathing of caps and gowns, Genevieve Peltz; "Goodbye Girls, We Are Through," Senior class.

After the class day exercises the alumnae and friends adjourned to the banquet hall, which presented a scene of unusual beauty. The decorations were planned and carried out through the artistic taste of Mrs. W. P. Neal. The flower chosen by the Alumnae Association as its won is the Daisy, a selection most beautiful with its white petals a symbol of purity and its heart of gold standing for loyalty and truth. This bower, combined abundantly with ferns, formed the sole basis of the decorations, and the blending of our dear old college colors, Lavender and White, gave just the touch of individuality that was desirable.

Miss Sallie Williams most graciously and charmingly presided over the occasion as toast mistress, and the banquet was interspersed with the following toasts:

Welcome—Miss Williams, toast mistress.

Louisburg College—Miss Allen, '18.

The Class of '23—Miss Ashley, '22.

Today—Miss Peltz, '23.

From the Senior Alumnae—Mrs. Malone, '69.

The Oak—Mrs. King.

Opportunity and the Woman — Mr. Mohn.

Boosters—Miss Turner, '17.

Our Mothers—Mrs. Parham, 97.

Judging by the applause elicited, the toasts must have sparkled with wit and humor, with enough of the serious to denote an earnestness of purpose thrown in.

The commencement sermon at the Methodist church on Sunday morning was one of the strongest ever delivered here. Rev. F. S. Love, of Wilson, and a former president of Louisburg College, gave some sound advice to the many graduates and also impressed upon them that fact that the usefulness of their life would be measured a great deal by their interest and enthusiasm in spiritual things. Rev. Mr. Love also preached the sermon to the Y. W. C. A. at the Methodist church Sunday night.

The Senior concert Monday night was a most welcome portion of the commencement exercises and was largely attended and more than ever appreciated this year. The program was different in its arrangement and consisted of some of the most classical pieces. Each of the young ladies taking part did well in their renditions. The readings were amusing and mirthful, and the vocal and instrumental music was a treat. The two pieces requiring sixteen hands were wonderful in the masterful training of the participants to execute in such exacting time and precision.

The Piper by Josephine Peabody was presented on Tuesday night on the campus by the school of expression under the supervision of Miss Catherine Padwick, the director, assisted by Prof. H. B. Simpson, clarinet, and the Louisburg Orchestra. This play had its setting in Hamlin on the Weser in the year 1284 A. D., and the scenes and scenery were picturesque and the costumes beautiful.

The graduating exercises were held in the college chapel at 11 o'clock on Wednesday morning and were of a high order and much enjoyed. The program was especially prepared for the occasion. After the hymn, "Faith of Our Fathers," Rev. N. H. D. Wilson offered prayer. Miss Mae Campbell touchingly rendered "Ponchinelles" by Rachmaninoff, which was followed by Miss Frances Russo's rendition of "The Wren" by Benedict. President A. W. Mohn, in his happy and pleasing manner introduced to the large audience present Dr. H. W. Chase, president of the University of North Carolina, who delivered the graduating address.

The diplomas were awarded by President A. W. Mohn to the following graduates: Misses Katherine Brady, Garner; Bradie Parker, Woodland; Essie Liles, Littleton, classical diplomas. Carolyn Crowell, New London; Margaret Davis, Kinston; Josephine Fuller, Louisburg; Glandora Hardison, Washington; Bettie Holder, Youngsville; Margaret Ledbetter, Princeton; Kathryn Melvin, Linden; Genevieve Peltz, Hagerstown, Md.; Charlotte Pittman, La Grange; Mary Wilson, Louisburg; Minnie Lee Winstead, Roxboro, literary diplomas. Expression, Gracie Parker, Woodland; art, Nell Jones, Beaufort; music, Mae Campbell, piano, Siler City; Frances Russo, vice, New Orleans, La.

Rev. L. E. Thompson, college chaplain, presented a Bible to each of the graduates.

Rev. A. D. Wilcox, vice president of the board of trustees, made a number of interesting announcements for the coming year, among which were that the trustees had voted unanimously to launch a "Forward Movement Campaign" for the college in the near future, the objective of which is $500,000 for buildings and endowment. It is planned to remodel the main building and add to it, to erect an additional dormitory, an auditorium and music hall, a gymnasium and a teachers' building. This program will make Louisburg College one of the best equipped institutions in the South and will take care of the ever increasing number of students for years to come.

ANNUAL MEETING BOARD OF MISSIONS

Our General Board of Missions was in session in Nashville, Tenn., May 1-4. This board is composed of all the effective bishops; thirty-eight managers, one from each annual conference in the United States, of whom twelve are preachers, twenty-six lay members, fourteen of whom are women; five members at large; the secretaries of the general boards of the church; the treasurers of the General Department and the Woman's Department; and the editor of the Christian Advocate.

To say that the work of this board is very great, important and difficult is to express but little of what it means. The work is done by committees, who after passing upon it submit it to the board for final action.

The executive committee (which necessarily has large powers) meets once a month, and must pass upon many questions constantly arising in our mission fields both home and foreign.

The other committees are: Home Base, By-Laws, Candidates, Estimates, Foreign Work, Home Work, and Evangelism.

The committee on Evangelism met Monday night, April 30th, passed upon applications for general evangelists, discussing at length evangelism, the methods used by evangelists, and especially the methods used by those sometimes called "professional evangelists." In this connection there is a strong sentiment against the extreme methods used by some evangelists, and a healthy sentiment in favor of pastoral evangelism together with church evangelism.

It is impossible to give a detailed report of the work done at the recent meeting of the Board of Missions in an article of reasonable length. This can be had by securing a copy of the Year Book and the minutes therein which will contain more than two hundred pages and will be published as early as possible. The Estimates section alone covers more than one hundred pages, and will give statement of appropriations to all fields for salaries, buildings of all kinds with the names of missionaries, native workers, etc.

The board met in regular session Tuesday morning, May 1st, with Judge Rader, supreme court reporter for the state of Missouri, presiding.

Our secretaries and treasurers showed remarkable efficiency and conciseness in their reports, in the arrangement of the program of business for the full four days' session, with all needed information at hand. The discussions were free, frank, and at times spirited. Happily for all concerned the bishops are recognized and consider themselves as "just folks" with the balance of us in the discussions—give and take in fine spirit.

The general atmosphere was good. During the thirteen years I have served on this board I think the spirit of this meeting was better than any one previous; manifested in a better understanding, efficiency and helpfulness. The marvelous success, made possible by the Centenary, in all our Statesville District shows the way for all others. Greensboro, Marion and Shelby are close seconds.

Fayetteville and Rockingham are leading the North Carolina Conference. The results by districts are as follows:

You will notice that the Statesville and Greensboro Districts in the Western North Carolina Conference are ahead, and the Fayetteville and Rockingham in the North Carolina Conference, and that the Western North Carolina Conference is ahead of the North Carolina Conference. This does not take into account about 500 new subscribers that we are to receive from Central Asheville as soon as they can make up the list for us. We are publishing this for information, so that you may prosecute the work in your district in an intelligent manner.

We trust that during the next ten days you will work the campaign vigorously, as you can readily see that we have not received as many new subscribers or renewals as we should. Do your best for the next few days.

One more week of the campaign. Let's make it a big one.

fields was most heartening. Interest was intensified by the presence and brief reports of eleven missionaries from our foreign fields.

It was evident that great caution has been exercised by our secretaries, executive committee and treasurers to safeguard the church from embarrassment when the Centenary period ends. Every emergency possible to anticipate seems to have been carefully considered.

That some unforeseen problems and difficulties will arise in connection with our work, particularly in Europe will be but natural, since we have set up our headquarters for work in the midst of an old civilization—decadent to be sure. With the old and established habits, even among Protestants, they will consider our Americanism rather young and progressive. But our bishops in charge and the missionaries in Europe have given the matter careful consideration.

The College of Bishops brought before us a paper on doctrine which had their unanimous endorsement. This paper was in the nature of a re-declaration of the action of the General Conference, and was unanimously received by the Board of Missions. This was done in view of the fact that there has been considerable agitation in some sections of the church on so-called "heresy" "fundamentalism," etc. This declaration will probably satisfy all except those who will not be satisfied, because they look with suspicion upon the whole church and its tendencies.

Soon there will be published in all our papers results of the success of recent Centenary collections. It is confidently believed that the deficit for meeting the immediate demands will be small. If delinquent subscribers will pay up there will be no embarrassment.

A group of the best business experts of our country are to go over our entire plant in the Lambuth building that the work may be raised to the highest business efficiency, and the cost of the management reduced to the minimum. H. K. Boyer.

REVIVAL AT BETHEL CHURCH

Our congregation at Bethel, Greensboro, had the rare privilege of a visit from one of our general evangelists, Rev. E. O. Hobbs, of Louisville, Ky., beginning on Sunday, May 6th and closing on Wednesday evening, May 16th. This meeting had been arranged on short notice and Brother Hobbs did not get the hearing that he should have had and that he would if his coming had been thoroughly advertised. Nevertheless, the people of the immediate community, including most of the members of Bethel church, attended well, especially at night, and many were greatly blessed. Some twenty or more professions and six accessions to the church were among the visible results of the meeting.

Brother Hobbs gives special emphasis to the doctrine of a holy life and a victorious faith, and by far the greatest blessing of the meeting was his call to holy living. He was unsparing in his denunciation of sin, yet his messages were always full of the spirit of compassion for the lost. He is a strong preacher and combines the elements of an attractive personality with a great faith in God. The people were greatly impressed with his wonderful power in prayer.

His slate seems to be full till October, but any of our pastors would be fortunate to secure a date with him. Eternity alone will reveal the good done by his brief visit to Bethel. The people all love him and will never forget him.

Bethel has just recently finished a beautiful and comfortable parsonage and Brother Truitt and family have moved in. The parsonage is located on a lot adjoining the church and is in every way a credit to Greensboro Methodists. West Market, Centenary and Park Place congregations all helped generously on the parsonage and they have the thanks of the Bethel congregation. Brother Truitt is in good favor with his people and everything is looking up. H. M. Blair.

PARK PLACE REVIVAL, ETC.

Recently I asked a good man, a minister, how he liked a certain revival. He replied: "There was a little too much hell-fire in it to suit me."

For a week each night Dr. E. K. McLarty preached and Rev. E. P. Billups led the singing at Park Place. The singing was good and the preaching excellent. McLarty is a mighty force in the Kingdom—scholarly, consecrated, fearless. The church was divinely touched and inspired, humbled and helped. It suddenly dawned on me after the meeting that the preacher only used the word "hell" once that I can recall. He used it very appropriately in that one instance.

Is it not time that our evangelists become more sparing of their use of hell-fire? At least, a little less of the "lake of fire" in the next world and more of the hell people make in this world seems more nearly the truth.

L. B. Hayes.

"THE RELIGION OF MAIN STREET"

By Dr. Percy Stickney Grant.

Possibly the whole Christian world has paid more or less attention to the theological controversy between Bishop Manning and Dr. Percy Stickney Grant. It is generally known, too, that Dr. Grant has just published a little book of sermons, essays, and letters entitled, "The Religion of Main Street."

Dr. Grant claims to be preaching the gospel of intellectual freedom, economic freedom, and religious freedom; and he seems to want to make it appear that the rest of the Christian world favors intellectual deception, economic tyranny, and superstition as a substitute for religion. Dr. Grant believes that the Bible is an inspired Book, but he does not believe in its literal accuracy. He believes in Jesus Christ as one sent from God, but he does not believe that Christ had the power of God while He was on earth. He is of the opinion that the miracles of the Bible may be explained as allegories, or as expressions of superstition, or as bits of misinformation.

When I was in my latter teens I could have sympathized with Dr. Grant a great deal more than I can now. It seems to me that he is allowing himself to become exercised unduly over questions that either can never be settled or are of minor importance in themselves. I cannot understand how he hopes to build up Christianity by trying to make it appear that he is perhaps the only true Christian.

The book is fairly interesting, rather poorly thrown together, and somewhat vague. Perhaps the two concluding paragraphs of the book are worth quoting:

"Do we need to have a new religion? Yes, if the old religion will not make room for the modern mind; if it will not clean house and get rid of old fetishes inherited from centuries ago.

"Do we need a new religion? No, if the life of Jesus becomes the light of His church, a liberating, forgiving, brotherly, serving religion, that breaks down barriers and makes of all mankind one self-respecting and humanity-serving nation and force."

Western North Carolina Conference

My Dear Young People:

At the annual meeting of the Woman's Missionary Conference held at Monroe, April 24-27, Mrs. Charles C. Weaver was elected superintendent of Young People's Work, and as your former superintendent I want to express to you my thanks and appreciation of your great loyalty to me during the six years that I was your leader. I want to congratulate you on having Mrs. Weaver as your superintendent, and bespeak for her the same whole-hearted co-operation and faithful loyalty that you have given to me. The conference has made a wise selection in naming her to guide and direct the work of your department. Of a winning personality, thoroughly consecrated and highly capable, through her acquaintance with every department of our work, to make it a success, I am sure that through the working together of the young people and their new superintendent great things will be accomplished. With a great interest in the success of the work, I am,

Yours most sincerely,
Mrs. W. R. Harris.

The friends of Mrs. J. V. Wilson, former editor of our Woman's Page in the N. C. Advocate, will learn with regret of the death of her mother, Mrs. Kirkman, which occurred May 9th in High Point, following a brief illness. Our love and sympathy are with Mrs. Wilson.

WAYNESVILLE DISTRICT MEETING

The district meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Waynesville district will be held in Long's Chapel at Lake Junaluska, N. C., on May 29th and 30th. First session Tuesday evening 29th, and closing in time for the afternoon trains on Wednesday, 30th.

Several of our conference officers will be with us. A missionary play and demonstrations on work of our different departments will be special features.

Elect your officers and send names to Mrs. R. C. Long, Lake Junaluska, N. C. Plan to come and help make this our greatest meeting both in membership and inspiration.

Mrs. J. Dale Stentz, Dis. Sec.

INTRODUCING NEW BRANCHES ON HONORED FAMILY TREE

Elected to the official circle of the W. M. Society of the W. N. C. conference at the recent meeting in Monroe, we give the glad hand to representatives of four honored names in our Methodism—Ivey, Chritzberg, Stacy, Stuart.

Mrs. George Foard of Statesville, elected secretary of that district, is a daughter of the late Rev. George W. Ivey and sister of Dr. T. N. Ivey, late editor of the Nashville Christian Advocate. Mrs. Foard has always been full of good works and will fill her office admirably.

Mrs. W. J. Fraley of Salisbury, assistant to Mrs. P. N. Peacock, treasurer, is the daughter of Mrs. Foard and granddaughter of "Uncle Ivey." Mrs. Fraley gives promise of large usefulness in the church.

Mrs. Pierce Wyche of Charlotte, elected superintendent of social service, is the daughter of the late Dr. H. F. Chritzberg. Mrs. Wyche is prominent in the activities of her local church, and every interest with which she has to do prospers in her capable hands.

Mrs. J. Dale Stentz of Junaluska, elected secretary of the Waynesville district, is the daughter of Dr. George R. Stuart of everywhere, and a granddaughter of the late Dr. David Sullins. Mrs. Stentz has sung her way into the hearts of hundreds of people at Junaluska, and we hope to hear her beautiful voice at our future meetings, as well as have the benefit of her counsel.

Mrs. C. C. Weaver of Monroe, elected superintendent of young people's work, is the daughter of Rev. L. E. Stacy. Mrs. Weaver is eminently fitted for this work, recognized as the most difficult as well as the most vital we have to do.

These new officers are indeed valuable additions to our official family, and while with regret we "speed the going, we welcome the coming" co-workers.

PLATFORM DECORATIONS, FOLKS AND FLOWERS

Platforms and the people who sit thereon, and the other decorations, be they flowers or flags or what not, are always interesting because there we usually "see people we have read about" and things pleasing to the eye. So at Monroe the platform with its "decorations" was an interesting place. Cut flowers and blooming plants lent their charm, but more interesting were the official "folks" occupying the seats of honor and holding the reins of affairs.

Mrs. Robertson, our president, occupied central place, presiding as always with dignity and ease. On either side were Mrs. W. W. Hagood, vice president, and Mrs. H. A. Dunham, corresponding secretary, each alert and helpful in every possible way. To the front, busy at their tables, were Mrs. J. V. Wilson, retiring editor of this page, and Mrs. W. R. Harris, recording secretary pro tem.

Mrs. Wilson has given us the result of her work in the splendid report of the proceedings; and Mrs. Harris gave us minutes which were clear and concise, leaving nothing to be desired.

This record would not be complete without the name of Mrs. B. W. Lipscomb, our Council visitor. Mrs. Lipscomb won the heart of this conference, and her presence there was a source of joy to the entire body, adding greatly to the interest and inspiration of the occasion.

Miss Delia Tuttle, returned missionary from China, was also an interesting visitor and was warmly greeted by her scores of friends.

Mrs. Carrie Presson, district secretary, Charlotte district, is at home in Monroe, and is a hostess within herself. She spares not herself and things move where she moves, and that in the right direction.

Dr. C. C. Weaver and Mrs. Weaver left nothing undone for the comfort and pleasure of the visitors, anticipating every need and sharing themselves most generously with us.

The people of Monroe! What shall be said of them? They were not on the platform, but they were on the job of entertaining that conference, and Statesville or any other town in N. C. will have to do "works of supererogation" to be on a par with Monroe.

CRAWFORD MISSIONARY SOCIETY, REIDSVILLE

The Crawford Missionary Society was delightfully entertained Monday afternoon at the parsonage with Mrs. Moores and Mrs. Firesheets as hostesses. After the business meeting Miss Nettie Reid gave a most interesting report of the annual conference which convened in Monroe last week. This being the time for Pollyannas to be made known, dainty little stationery and envelopes were passed, and each one requested to write a note to her Pollyanna. Miss Martha Moores acted as postman and delivered them. There was much interest and fun when the person was revealed who had been playing the "glad game" to you for three months. Mrs. Jas. D. Womack was elected to serve as first vice president in the place of Mrs. P. E. Snead, who leaves next week to make her home in Charlotte. The society regrets very much to see Mrs. Snead leave as she has been one of the most faithful charter members. As a small token of their appreciation of her she was presented with a tiny suit case packed full and running over with packages containing many useful articles. Delightful refreshments consisting of block cream, cake and mints were served.

THE GREATER SCARRITT

The joint committee which was appointed by the executive committee of the Board of Missions and the executive committee of the Woman's Council, for the purpose of formulating an enlarged plan for missionary education for the whole church, submitted a comprehensive program to the Council at its last session, also to the Board of Missions which convened the first week in May. This program was unanimously adopted by both sides. Further resolutions were adopted by the Council which provided for an enlarged program for the Scarritt Bible and Training School, also for its removal to a central location; the program and the location to be decided upon by the joint action of the executive committee of the board, the executive committee of the Council, and the board of managers of the Scarritt Bible and Training School. Through these resolutions the Council requested the Board of Missions, General Work, to co-operate in the conduct of the new school which, it is planned, will be for the training of lay workers, both men and women.

These resolutions were adopted by the board with an amendment which referred the final decision concerning the future program for the school and its relocations to the board for action. It is expected that there will be a called meeting of the board after the joint committee has had time to formulate a report. This joint committee will seek in every possible way to recommend such location and organization of the new institution as will serve the church in the most effective way. To this end an investigation is being made to ascertain the best possible plan for such a school. An invitation is therefore extended to any community that wishes to be considered as the future location for such an institution.

The amendment to the report providing for the matter to be referred to the board for final action will delay somewhat the plans for the establishment of the Greater Scarritt, but the leaders have faith to believe that the delay will result in an even larger future for the school.

TRAINING WEEK AT ROXBORO.

Some pioneer work was accomplished by the Person Training School in session at Edgar Long Memorial church, Roxboro, last week. With an enrollment of around 100, representing the six pastoral charges of Person county—Roxboro, Brookdale circuit, Person circuit, Leasburg circuit, Mt. Tirzah circuit, and East Roxboro and Longhurst—this school broadcasted its influence and teachings over a wide area and, we believe, will bear fruit for months and years to come. Every one of the pastors—Rev. J. B. Hurley, Rev. B. C. Thompson, Rev. B. T. Hurley, Rev. S. J. Starnes, Rev. S. F. Nicks, and Rev. J. C. Williams—attended regularly and brought with them a considerable number of their workers and prospective workers. The school began Sunday evening and ran through Friday, with the following courses and instructors: Elementary Work, Miss Keene; Principles of Teaching, Prof. I. B. McKay; Church and Its Work, Rev. M. T. Plyler; and Organization and Administration of the Sunday School, L. L. Gobbel. Two or three social and fellowship features contributed to the pleasure of the week's work.

THAT PERSON COUNTY TEAM

Every Methodist preacher in Person county attended the training school at Roxboro last week and took courses. These pastors, who composed the board of managers, were there practically every evening. They are a team that's going to do great things through their Sunday schools for the boys and girls, men and women, of their respective communities. One of them, Rev. S. J. Starnes, who lives in Durham and attends Trinity College, went back and forth each day, traveling in all about 420 miles in order to take a course and stick by the school.

PRESIDENT ERNEST J. GREEN

Prof. Ernest J. Green, president of Carolina College, Maxton, has accepted the work of district secretary of the Rockingham district. This announcement will be received, no doubt, with great joy by our entire Sunday school constituency of the Rockingham district, for President Green, who is just now completing his first year as head of Carolina College, and who has already won a big place in the hearts of people of the Rockingham district, is an experienced Sunday school worker. For years he was superintendent of Trinity Sunday school, Durham, and he has ever been interested in the work of the religious training of boys and girls, and men and women. As district secretary President Green will co-operate with pastors, superintendents and teachers in the promotion of Sunday school enthusiasm and efficiency. Pastors and superintendents should communicate with him whenever his services are needed, and be sure to invite him as far in advance as possible, for he is a busy man already and his services as district secretary no doubt will be very much in demand.

The acceptance by President Green of this important work gives us two district workers in the Rockingham district, the other being Mrs. E. B. Ward of Rowland, who, as district elementary superintendent, is doing a fine work through the Sunday schools in the interest of Cradle Roll, Beginner, Primary and Junior children.

LAKESIDE TRAINING CLASS

Lakeside Sunday school, Durham, is conducting a training class for Sunday school workers and prospective workers. Superintendent V. E. Wilson, who is always alert in the interest of his school, is teaching a class of about a dozen in "The Organization and Administration of the Sunday School." Lakeside had a large representation in the Durham Standard Training School and is starting this training class in order to continue the fine work already begun.

SNOW HILL AND HOOKERTON

At Snow Hill this week there is being conducted a training school for Snow Hill and Hookerton charges, New Bern district. Rev. C. T. Rogers and Rev. R. R. Grant have been busy since the district conference preparing the way for this week of intensive training, and indications point to a successful issue of their efforts.

PREACHERS' SCHOOL COURSES

Preachers of the two conferences in the state will have an opportunity to study Sunday school organization and administration and principles of religious teaching in connection with the Trinity Summer School for Preachers June 6-16. As an important part of the summer school curriculum two Sunday school courses will be offered: One in "The Organization and Administration of the Sunday School" by Prof. H. E. Spence, head of the department of Biblical literature and religious education of Trinity College; the other in "Principles of Religious Teaching" by Dr. C. G. Thompson, professor of philosophy of Emory University, Atlanta, Ga. Make your plans now to attend the summer school, Mr. Pastor, enjoy the beauty of Trinity campus and the fine fellowship which abounds here, and take at least one of the Sunday school courses.

JUNALUSKA TRAINING SCHOOL

At Lake Junaluska, the summer capital of Southern Methodism, July 12, will begin the seventh session of the Junaluska Training School, and we are expecting a splendid representation from the North Carolina to attend. The plans announced by the General Sunday School Board anticipate the biggest and best session in the history of the school. Instead of only one term of two weeks as heretofore, the school will be divided into three terms of two weeks each. The first, which perhaps will be the most popular, comes July 12-26, the second July 27-August 9, and the third August 10-23. Two units of credit may be earned each term, and we ought to have many of our pastors, superintendents, teachers and prospective workers attending one or more terms.

MR. YARBROUGH AT AHOSKIE

District Secretary Yarbrough of the Weldon district held a Sunday school meeting at Ahoskie Sunday, May 6. Mr. E. J. Gerock is superintendent at Ahoskie, and this school expects to become a standard school before the year is gone. Like many other schools, it is handicapped on account of inadequate equipment but expects to work out plans for a new building.

APRIL SHOWER OF CREDITS

Our April "shower" of standard training course credits, according to the monthly report of the General Sunday School Board, added 149 to the number of certificates earned by Sunday school workers of the North Carolina conference. #### GREENSBORO DISTRICT UNION

The best yet is the only way to describe the last union meeting held at Wesley Memorial church, High Point, Thursday night, the 10th. Rev. T. J. Rogers, pastor of Main Street church, conducted the devotional services, pointing out the life of Paul as a guide and inspiration for leaguers.

The business of the evening was then transacted. Holt's Chapel again won the merit banner, while Wesley Memorial carried off the attendance honors. Carraway Memorial was declared winner over Wesley Memorial in the singing contest. The next meeting will be held on Thursday night, June 7th, the first Thursday night in the month, on account of conference being in session on the regular meeting night. The meeting place will be announced in due time. Two hundred and forty-seven leaguers were present, representing fifteen different leagues.

The district department superintendents for the coming year are as follows: First Dept., Mr. Hall, Wesley Memorial League, High Point; second Dept., Miss Elizabeth Bennett, Centenary League, Greensboro; third Dept., Miss Stella Coble, Bethlehem League, Climax; fourth Dept., Mr. Herman Edwards, Muir's Chapel League, Guilford College.

The following officers were elected in April: President, D. L. Webster; vice president, Carl Ljung; secretary, Miss Kathleen Pettit; treasurer, William Zink.

A district cabinet meeting will be held at Spring Garden Street church, Greensboro, on Monday night, June 4, at eight o'clock. All chapter presidents are urged to attend, bringing their pastors and cabinet with them. We want to make this a great meeting. The district policy will be submitted at that time and the work for the ensuing year outlined.

All leagues that have not paid their Africa Special in full take notice your pledge must be in Brother Plyler's office by the last day of May to count on the Standard of Efficiency.

Greensboro wants the 1924 League conference.

W. N. C. EPWORTH LEAGUE CONFERENCE, CHARLOTTE, JUNE 12 TO 15

The young Methodists of this district of the Methodist church are making great plans for the annual meeting of the Western North Carolina Epworth League conference that convenes in Charlotte June 12-15. This annual gathering of the Epworthians of the different chapters representing the Methodist churches of Western North Carolina is a gala event for them.

Charlotte leaguers have been working on the preparations for the conference for two months. In April the president of the conference, W. W. Edwards of Asheville, met with the Charlotte executive committee and assisted them in their preparations.

The officials are expecting at least three hundred delegates and they unhesitatingly say that they will not be surprised if the total reaches four hundred and fifty. Each chapter is allowed to send one delegate for each fifteen members or fraction. The president of the local chapter is a delegate by virtue of his office.

The faculty secured for the conference is the best ever assembled for such a purpose. There will be courses of study in methods of league work, personal work and missions. The addresses each evening will be delivered by outstanding ministers of North Carolina.

Charlotte leaguers will give the visitors a reception the first evening. On Thursday a drive over the city of Charlotte to be followed by a basket picnic will be a special feature of the conference.

Those in charge of the conference are urging presidents of local chapters of the different Methodist churches to select their delegates to the conference at an early date so Charlotte will know how many delegates to expect. Mrs. C. V. Fite, District Secretary.

A CORRECTION

In calling attention to the observance of Anniversary Day, I made error in Mr. Plyler's address, as he is at the present time in Morganton, N. C., instead of Hickory. So kindly bear this in mind when sending your Anniversary Day offering to him.

THE LET'S GO CAROLINA LEAGUER

By the time this issue is read our second edition, an Assembly Special, of the Let's Go Carolina Leaguer will be in the hands of the publishers. This time it means LET'S GO. Let's go where? Why, to the Morehead City, Atlantic Hotel, Summer Epworth League Assembly, June 18-24. Now is the time to get ready. It will be a good investment for every chapter to send a couple of the most capable and worthy old stand-bys to the assembly. At least let's have a representative from practically every league there. Don't forget the date, June 18th.

This above mentioned paper is supposed to go to every pastor and league of the conference. If you do not get yours, raise a kick. It is worth it. And next time you do nearer your part in giving this medium the carrying power it should have.

"BOOST RALEIGH DISTRICT"

That is some secretary the Raleigh district has, believe me. Rather, the Rev. Philip Schwartz has some district, for he has it, and is making it the coming district of the conference, and if somebody or something doesn't stop him he'll soon have the South stepping to keep a pace.

Listen to this, won't you! He writes: "We organized an Intermediate league with 15 members and a Senior league with 39 members at the Oxford Methodist church, Bro. E. M. Snipes, pastor. Miss Carrie Fuller is superintendent of the Intermediate league and Miss Pearle Fairbow, president. Mr. T. B. Rose is president of the Senior league. These folks are great and came out to be organized though it was raining 'pitchforks.' There are some thirty more Intermediates with about ten more Seniors to join. They

While the Raleigh district secretary has worked in other Epworth League fields and conferences he has yet to meet a more loyal group of young people than those he has met and found in the North Carolina conference. They don't come any better.

THE METHODIST ORPHANAGE

We are looking to our friends to give us their whole-hearted support. Our expenses are high, and we are counting on all to give us the means with which to run the home.

* * * *

The warm weather reminds me very forcefully of our great need of a swimming pool. Friends have provided other orphanages with pools. Shall our Methodists lag behind when we ought to be in the forefront in every great cause?

* * * *

We are in need of several buildings for our orphanage. It would be a fine thing if we could get friends to erect these buildings as memorials. The name and memory of some one who wrought well in life and endeared themselves to us ought to be perpetuated. A memorial building would serve that purpose and be the means of ministering to orphan children through the years to come. How I do wish that those who have been bereft of loved ones would build a monument in the shape of a dormitory or cottage here at the Methodist Orphanage. Possibly a great many have thought of doing just that particular thing, but have put it off from time to time. An immediate decision would help us so much now when our need is so pressing and imperative.

* * * *

While in Franklinton I had a few minutes in the hospitable home of Bro. S. C. Vann. It is always a delight to visit his lovely home. Brother Vann had a call to leave town immediately after the concert, so I missed the privilege of being with him for a short while. I was particularly glad to see the foundation of that great school building which Brother Vann is donating to his town people. It is going to be one of the best and most up-to-date school buildings in the state. It will cost more than two hundred thousand dollars. It will be a great monument to his character and vision through the years to come. I feel happy that the donor is our largest benefactor. Some time in the future he is going to spend a large amount in buildings at the Methodist Orphanage. As our need is so tremendously imperative we sincerely trust that he may see his way clear to begin a great building program in the near future. Being a man of vision and wonderful business sagacity we can rest assured that he will do the best thing possible for our Methodist Orphanage which he so ardently loves.

* * * *

Brother L. E. Thompson, our pastor at Louisburg, was exceedingly kind and gracious to our singing class when we visited his church lately. It was a delightful evening I had in his home. I was the recipient of many courtesies. For many years this devout man has wrought well in our conference, where he has a fixed place in the affections of the churches and brethren. As usual a great congregation was present to welcome us for the evening service. That was a fine body of young women from the college. Professor Mohns was present and expressed his appreciation of the class. One of our girls who has taken a prominent part in the sacred concert was given a scholarship by Professor Mohns and the Men's Bible class will pay her expenses through Louisburg college. That was a fine thing to do on the part of the college and Wesley class. Surely no one who has ever been among us deserves that advantage more than Katie Richardson. Such kindly consideration for one of our most worthy girls is sincerely appreciated by the Orphanage. Other Wesley classes might do a fine thing by following the example of the men's class at Louisburg.

* * * *

Our singing class gave their first sacred concert at Franklinton about four years ago. We received such a warm reception that we were encouraged to visit other towns. In answer to a cordial invitation from Brother Allison we gave a sacred concert at the Methodist church the first Sunday morning in May. The occasion was the county Baraca-Philathea convention and Brother Allison was president of the association. The largest congregation we ever witnessed in Franklinton was present. The interest in the concert was so intense that it was a joy to our boys and girls to do their best. At the conclusion of the concert a big barbecue dinner, with many other good things, was served. Kind friends helped to convey us from Raleigh to Franklinton and from Franklinton to Louisburg. We could not reach the churches were it not for the kindness of friends in conveying us to and from the Orphanage. Of course it was a joy to us to see our good friend, Bro. O. W. Dowd, and wife. Last year Brother Dowd held our revival and won everybody at the Home. He was very cordial to us. That was a delightful hour I spent in his home before going to Louisburg. Brother Dowd is a good preacher, helpful pastor and possesses fine executive ability. I am sure that the Franklinton saints have realized long before now how fortunate they are in having as their under shepherd such a capable, successful preacher of the Word.

* * * *

The revival at the Orphanage closed the second Sunday night after continuing for a week. The Methodist preachers of Raleigh held the noonday services, while Bro. J. M. Ormond, professor in Trinity College, did the preaching at night. On Sunday he was with us all day and held three services. During the year thirty-five children have come to the Orphanage and every one of them made a profession of faith in Christ. The entire Orphanage family, numbering two hundred and fifty, experienced a distinct blessing by reason of the revival. Brother Ormond brought us great messages of truth and inspiration. Being a man highly trained and ripe in Christian experience, he was enabled to lead us into a life of deeper consecration. All of his sermons were of a high order and made a profound impression on all who heard. His sermon to the outgoing class on Sunday p. m. when he spoke to them as a body was one of the finest utterances ever heard at the Orphanage. The sermon on Sunday night will never be forgotten. Two boys offered themselves for the ministry and two girls offered themselves for the foreign field, and a large number came forward pledging themselves to answer any call for service to which God might call them. For all these wonderful results we are profoundly thankful to our heavenly Father. Brother Ormond has won an abiding place in the hearts of officers and children. North Carolina Methodism should be congratulated on having such a teacher and leader as Prof. Ormond in our great college at Durham. His influence will tell mightily in the lives of the Trinity student body. His teaching is constructive, not destructive. Our college boys are absolutely safe in his hands.

Chronic Constipation

Relieved Without the Use of Laxatives

Nujol is a lubricant—not a medicine or laxative—so cannot gripe. When you are constipated, not enough of Nature's lubricating liquid is produced in the bowel to keep the food waste soft and moving. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it acts like this natural lubricant and thus secures regular bowel movements by Nature's own method—lubrication. Try it today.

WHEN MY DAD WAS A BOY

Wonder why I don't have fun
Like my pa sez he had
W'en he wuz some one else's son
An' got spanked by his dad?
Pa sez it used to snow so deep
The house was all hid
Jest in the night when he's asleep—
When my dad wuz a kid.

An' nex' day de'd climb out the roof
Wif snow so high about,
They made big fires—an' that's the roof—
To melt my grandma out;
An' men, he sez, he tuk his sleigh
Up top a hill, an' slid,
An' slid, an' never stopped all day—
When my dad wuz a kid.

An' nen pa made a big snow man,
More'n seventy feet high,
Wif reg'lar stairs inside wot ran
Most clean up to the sky.
O. golly! wouldn't I jes' shout
To have fun like pa did!
I guess it snowed the snow all out
When my dad wuz a kid.

IN "HOMESPUN" DAYS

The word homespun brings to mind attractive pictures of colonial days, when every home was self-sustaining and every family fashioned its own garments, tools, in fact, everything that was needed. It sounds interesting to us, removed to an age of progress and comfort, but to the children of those days many were the tasks that fell to their lot. The late John Burroughs' boyhood days were spent in the "homespun" era, and in an article which appeared in Harper's Magazine he described how homespun cloth was prepared on his father's farm:

In my early youth, he says, our house linen and our summer shirts and trousers were made from flax that grew on the farm. How vividly I remember those pioneer shirts! They dated from the stump of the clearing, and indeed, bits of the stump in the shape of shives were inwoven into their texture and made the wearer an unwilling penitent for weeks, or until use and the washboard had prevented them from scratching. Peas in your shoes are no worse than shives in your shirt. But those two shirts stood by you; if in climbing a tree you lost your hold and caught on a limb, your linen trousers would hold you!

The history of the stuff from which they were made is interesting. It was pulled up by the roots, rotted on the ground, broken with a "crackle," flogged with a swingle and then drawn through a hatchel—out of that ordeal came the flax. How clearly I remember father working with it in the bright, sharp March days—breaking it and then swinging it with a long wooden swordlike tool over the end of an upright board fixed at the base in a heavy block. That treatment was to separate the brittle fragments of the bark from the fibres of the flax. Then in large handfuls he would draw the flax through the hatchel, an instrument with a score or more of long, sharp iron teeth set into a board, row behind row. The hatchel combed out the tow and the other worthless material. It was a mighty good discipline for the flax; it straightened its fibres and made it as clear and fine as a girl's tresses. Out of the tow we twisted bag strings, flail strings and other strings. With the worthless parts we made huge bonfires.

Mother would mass the flax upon her distaff and spin it into threads. Then the flax was spun on a quill that ran by means of the foot, and the quills, or spools, that held the thread were used in a shuttle when the cloth was being woven. The old loom stood in the hogpen chamber, and there mother would weave her linen, her rag carpets and her woolen goods. I have quilled for her many a time—that is, run the yarn off the reel on spools to be used in the shuttle.—N. Y. Christian Advocate.

A WISE OLD HORSE

Long, long ago, before there were any automobiles, all farmers owned horses; they had carriage horses and work horses and all sorts of horses. Sometimes when the faithful animals grew too old for hard work and could no longer plow or draw hay wagons they were sold to cab drivers in the cities, which is a sad way for a farm horse to end his life.

But there was a farmer who loved one of his old horses so much that he wouldn't sell him when he grew too old for the hardest work. "Instead of doing that," he said, "I shall give good old Toby to Lucy for a pet." Then he laughed, because Lucy, his little girl, was only four years old. She was fond of pets and had a great number of them, but Toby was the biggest pet that she had ever owned.

He already loved the little girl, for she went to the pasture fence and called, "Come, Toby, Toby, Toby!" and when he came galloping across the field he was almost sure to find a lump of sugar in her hand. Then he would stand perfectly still while she climbed to the top of the fence and from there to his back.

After that when Lucy said, "Get up, Toby, get up!" Toby would give his head a toss and go stepping along, stepping along, slowly and carefully, so that the little girl shouldn't fall off; and she, hanging tight to Toby's rough mane, rode on, smiling and happy. Toby also liked to have Lucy walk up to him and say, "Good old Toby; good old Toby." Then he would put his head down low so that she could pat his long nose and brush the flies away.

But one day Toby and the little girl had a sad accident. Lucy was taking her usual ride and Toby was stepping along, stepping along, slowly and carefully, when something unusual happened.

It was a warm day, and Toby made up his mind that he wanted a drink of water; so he walked splash-splash, splash-splash into the creek, and stood there for a minute in the cool water and looked up the creek and down the creek. Lucy began to brush back her curls, which the wind had blown into her face.

Then Toby bent his head to drink, and in doing it made his neck into a steep hill, and he did it so suddenly that little Lucy, at the top of the steep, high hill, went slippin, sliding, slipping down the hill so fast that the next thing Toby knew his little friend had gone splash! into the deep water. It was a loud splash too—enough to scare any horse.

The creek was deep, and Lucy could not swim and would surely have been drowned had not Toby been a wise horse. Before she could sink even once he bent his head and stretched out his long neck and picked the little girl up by fastening his teeth in her gingham dress. Then he walked fast, splash-splash-splash, straight across the creek, and up the bank on the other side, and there he dropped Lucy, soaked and scared, on the soft green grass.

The hired man saw what had happened, for he was away up on a high platform, oiling the windmill. Down the ladder he slid as fast as he could slide, and when he reached the ground he ran over the little bridge across the creek as fast as he could run. Then he snatched up little Lucy and ran with her to her mother. By that time, although she was still dripping wet, she wasn't frightened, but was laughing.

Toby came home at last over the bridge, stepping along, stepping along, rather slowly, as if he expected to be scolded perhaps, and maybe wishing that he could say to the family, "Accidents will happen." But when he reached home, he was astonished.

The family came to meet him. They petted him with sugar and patted his long nose and called him "Good old horse, good old Toby!" just as if he were the most wonderful horse in the world. Lucy's mother put her arms around his neck and kissed him; the big brothers brushed his coat until it was as smooth as satin and combed his mane until it was soft and silky; and ever afterwards as long as he lived nothing was too good for him.—Youth's Companion.

MEMORY BOX

Let it be remembered that the Tru- ity summer school for preachers, and anybody else who wants to take it in, will begin June 6th. There will be two Sunday school courses offered in this school: "Organization and Admin- istration of the Sunday School" and "Principles of Teaching." It is hoped that many of our Western North Car- olina pastors will take one of these courses for credit.

There will be three two-week terms at Lake Junaluska this summer. The first term will begin July 12 and close July 26. The second term will begin July 27 and close August 9, and the third will begin August 10 and close August 23. Practically every course will be offered in these three schools. Those who can attend all three ses- sions will be enabled to obtain six credits or half of the Standard Training Course. Each term will offer an opportunity for two credits. The Jun- aluska school is the most outstanding thing of its kind in America and it is right in our midst.

OUR FEDERATION

The program for the fifth annual Wesley Bible Class Federation of the Western North Carolina conference is rapidly being completed. The date of this Federation is July 9, 10 and 11. A special train will be run, a special program will be offered and special people will go. Of course everybody will have a special train.

GOOD NEWS

"The Bessemer City Sunday school has decided to put Graded Lessons in for the Beginners, Primaries and Jun- iors. We want to start right away a teacher training class. Please advise me as to the course we should take. I want to take it for credit myself. We want the right course, we want to start right and then we will succeed. E. P. Stabler."

"About two years ago you were with us in an all-day Sunday school insti- tute and urged that we build Sunday school rooms. After thinking over the matter we got to work and have com- pleted seven large rooms, and now I am sure we are going to do much bet- ter work than we formerly did here at Fairview on the Davidson-Fairview charge. W. C. Thompson."

"Our Sunday school at Tabernacle has been paying its fourth Sunday col- lections to the Asbury Sunday school treasurer, as most of us are a part of the Asbury congregation. Since the Asbury-pledge has been paid we would like to take on a special at Tabernacle. Can you suggest one of about $100 a year for us to take on? G. B. Goodson."

"Our training class has finished their book, 'Learning and Teaching.' We first had 'Life and the Making' and then 'Learning and Teaching.' What book would you suggest for the next one?"

We had our Sunday School Day the first Sunday in May and had a good program. Our offering amounted to $9.00. We held our Four-Times-A-Year Sunday school institute last fifth Sun- day. We have the Sunday school Pro- gram of Work at Hopewell and are trying to make our school a Standard school. Alva Martin."

Education is not a thing that a per- son pours into a boy. All that his teacher can do is to stir up what is in him. If he has any education at all he educates himself. Some people think that education is like medicine, which you can take according to this school or that school, from this doctor or that doctor; but if a man is cured that which effects the cure is inside of him- self.—Beecher.

IN MEMORIAM

HARMON—Miss Ruannahr Hamon departed this life the 22nd of December, 1922, and at time of her death was 85 years old. She was a faithful member of Elbethel M. E. church from early childhood. For several years past she had not been able to attend church. Her Bible and Christian Advocate were the joys of her life. She was the last of eleven children. One brother was a Methodist minister.
By One Who Loved Her.

HYATT—S. R. Hyatt was born January 23, 1856, and died April 3, 1923, having lived 67 years, two months and ten days. He was a citizen of Polkton, and a member of the Polkton Methodist church. He was a son of David and Louise Hyatt. On November 24, 1895, he was happily married to Addie Dula. To this union were born three boys and five girls, all of whom together with the mother are still living. Brother Hyatt expressed his willingness and readiness to go. The funeral service was conducted by his pastor and assisted by Rev. W. R. Shelton of Wadesboro. He was buried in the family plot in the cemetery at Wadesboro. D. C. Ballard.

HARRELSON—On May 4, 1923, the spirit of William Hamilton Harrelson returned to God who gave it. The end was not unexpected. For some time he had suffered with paralysis of the throat and gradually grew weaker until the end came.

He was born near Mullens, S. C., November 4, 1869. Was converted about the age of twenty-two and joined Miller's church on the Mullens circuit. Later he moved to North Carolina and connected himself with Evergreen Methodist church, of which he lived a consistent member until his death.

He leaves a wife, two sons and three daughters to mourn their loss. May the great Comforter be very near to them in this sad hour. B. O. Merritt.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas, our heavenly Father has called from our midst little James Peter Leight, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Leight of Walkertown, we, the Ladies' Aid and Missionary Society of Love's church, extend our deepest sympathy to the members of the family and trust that God in His infinite love and mercy will comfort and sustain them in this hour of sorest trial.

His sudden and unexpected going was a great shock to our entire community, for he had barely started on life's journey, being only five and a half years old when the Father called him to his heavenly home, and we know that he is "Safe in the arms of Jesus,

Safe on His gentle breast;
There by His love o'er-shaded Sweetly his soul shall rest."

Mrs. P. Frank Hanes,
Mrs. H. C. Hawkins,
Miss E. Crews.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas, our all wise Father in tender love hath found need for one of our fairest flowers, be it resolved:

That in the transplanting from earth to heaven of our beloved Jennie, Ayden Methodist Sunday school has sustained an irreparable loss, but the courts of heaven are thereby much sweeter and more beautiful; our tear-dimmed eyes and aching hearts yearn for her dear presence, yet we are drawn closer to heaven by the knowledge that she is waiting for us there.

That, as best we may, we will strive to carry on the work which she so loved, and win from the Christ the plaudit already received by her, "Well done, good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

That we pray the blessed Comforter to come in all His healing power, and touch with faith, hope and peace the broken hearts of her loved ones left to linger yet a little longer here below.

That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family and a copy be placed upon the records of our school.

Mrs. J. C. Andrews,
Mrs. O. C. Stroud,
Mrs. C. R. Riddick.

FRANKLIN—Vergil L. Franklin was born in Forsyth county March 4, 1857, died January 6, 1923. On May 16, 1896, he was married to Mrs. J. F. Doub. The one child of this union died in infancy.

Brother Franklin was engaged for many years in farming and in the mercantile business. He was a quiet, unassuming kind of man with good character. He professed religion and joined Lewisville Methodist church when quite a young man. He died in peace. J. W. Vestal, P. C.

WINBORNE—Lambert Hill Winborne, son of John S. and Mary E. Winborne, aged 34 years, passed away on March 28, 1923, a victim of a second attack of "flu" and pneumonia in Washington, N. C., where he moved his home four years ago. In October, 1916, he married Miss Nancy Vann of Ahsokie. To this union three little girls are left. At the close and not the beginning of life can we get an estimate of the value and worth of an individual. The many friends present, the number of beautiful floral tributes, the favorable comments made by his pastor—"being faithful to his church, always prompt in business dealings, a fond husband, indulgent father"—by this test one would judge he gained respect and love of those who knew him. This should be a comfort to his loved ones and home friends who attended the funeral services near Ahsokie, N. C., conducted by Rev. J. H. McCracken, his pastor, and Rev. C. F. Hudson, of the Baptist church, both of Washington, N. C. Was buried by Masonic Order, being a member of Harrellsville Lodge. Winborne, and three sisters, Mrs. Fred White, Mrs. Lex Saunders of Harrellsville, Mrs. Milton Bowen of Merry Hill. May God bless the bereaved.

PITMAN—"Blessed are those servants whom the Lord when He cometh shall find watching."

Doubtless there are few men to whose lives the above words of our Saviour are more appropriate than to the life and character of R. Oscar Pitman, for indeed was his life like unto that of men who wait for their Lord. He lived not as one that beateth the air; but lived and endured as seeing Him who is invisible.

Into this life was builded one of the strongest and most noble Christian characters that ever lived to bless our community. His life was above reproach. Some of the highest tributes ever paid to any life were those which it has been our privilege to hear in the past years of his life—not flowers for the dead, but were spoken of him by those among whom he lived and upon whose hearts and lives he made lasting impressions while he yet lived.

Someone has said that in order to get along well with our fellowmen we must not live at the bottom of the ladder of life—that the bottom of the ladder is where we so often get on each other's feet, where the throngs of humanity gathering never make the first rounds. Probably this is one of the best reasons why R. Oscar Pitman lived and labored with such ease among his fellowmen was the fact that his noble Christian life and character lifted him far above the restless surge of humanity.

He was a man at whose hands no good cause ever suffered. He looked well after the interests of his church, having been a steward ever since we have known him, and we verily believe it will be no embarrassment to him to have to stand before his Lord and give an account of his stewardship. He was a man who heeded well his Saviour's admonition: "When thou doest thine alms let not thy left hand know what thy right hand doest," for during his life he gave much and did many good deeds which none other than the beneficiary ever knew, unless it was mentioned by them.

He was just past the age of three score and ten, being 72 years of age when he died.

We must all pass the way of the grave, but to those who live as this good man lived there need be no fear of death, for death hath no sting and the grave no victory. We thank God for giving us the assurance of such a victory through Jesus Christ our Lord.
One Who Loved Him.

Second, While we miss her, we rejoice in the hope that it is well with her and her reward is that of a faithful servant of God.

REYNOLDS—Ferdinand C. Reynolds was born in Forsyth county, September 4, 1834. Departed this life April 30, 1923.

On January 14, 1878, he was married to Henrietta Spaugh. This union was blessed with seven children, three of which preceded their father to rest. The mother, one daughter and three sons are left to follow. The living children are Mrs. W. T. Marsh, L. A., D. S. and D. N. Reynolds.

Brother Reynolds had been a member of Sharon Methodist church for 25 years. He saw four years of service in the Civil War. He was faithful to his church and community. A man of strongmind and splendid character has gone from among us.

J. W. Vestal, P. C.

SCARBOROUGH—James Walter Scarborough was born April 29, 1872, and closed his earthly life April 11, 1923. Had he lived eighteen more days he would have reached his fifty-first birthday.

His death came as a shock to his family and community, it was so unexpectedly. On Wednesday, April 11, he went out to do some repair work on a boat of which he was in charge. About 3:00 p. m. he had a stroke of paralysis, was brought ashore, carried to his home just a short distance from the landing, where he quietly passed away within a few hours.

He never accumulated any of this world's goods, but was a faithful worker. He worked hard, and by the toll of his hands and sweat of his brow managed to provide for his wife and four small children.

He was a kind husband, affectionate father and good neighbor. May the Lord richly bless his bereaved family and relatives during this time of sorrow.

ADVOCATE PIANO CLUB

Takes the Guess Out of Piano Buying

So many people have bought guaranteed pianos on the old-time installment plan only to find in a few years that they had a tin-panny instrument instead of a high-grade musical instrument of which they could feel proud. And, when they tried to get protection on the guarantee they find that the company from whom they bought had gone out of business. It is indeed a sad story.

The Advocate Piano Club insures its members against this outrage by enabling them to procure their instruments from one of the oldest and best known Piano Houses in America. Dozens of Clubs have been formed and never yet has a buyer been disappointed. Arrangements have been perfected with Ludden & Bates, Southern Music House, which makes piano buying safe and easy. Ludden & Bates have been selling Pianos and Player-Pianos throughout the South for over 50 years. It is a reliable house whose guarantee means exactly what it says. They are not in business today and out tomorrow, but are ever ready and willing to make good on every promise they make.

What the Advocate Piano Club Means to You

1st. It means that you are buying at wholesale prices instead of retail prices. Each Club consists of 100 members who by buying together gain a much better price than any one purchaser can procure. You are only responsible for your own purchase, but by joining the Club you are helping the other 99 members to get wholesale prices and they are helping you.

2nd. You are guaranteed perfect satisfaction by a reliable Music House. You try the Piano or Player-Piano in your own home before you obligate to keep it.

3rd. By joining the Club you are extended the most convenient terms of monthly, quarterly or yearly payments based on the lowest net cash price. This represents a tremendous saving as compared with the customary installment prices which are usually much higher than cash prices.

4th. The family of a Club Member is fully protected in case of the death of the purchaser. If the regulations of the Club have been complied with, the unpaid balance is cancelled and the family is given a receipt in full.

5th. You have the privilege of trading in your old piano at its real valuation, for a new piano or player-piano.

What Other Club Members Say

Ludden & Bates, Atlanta, Ga.

"The Piano is a treasure, and everyone remarks on the sweetness of tone, and it has been so much pleasure to the family. The Club Plan places the Piano in so many homes that otherwise would have to wait an indefinite time to buy. Accept my sincere thanks for your courteous treatment."

MRS. R. A. SPINKS.

College Grove, Tenn.

Ludden & Bates, Atlanta, Ga.

"In regard to the Piano, I am perfectly delighted with it, and everyone that has heard it, or has played on it says they never heard a finer toned one; and I can observe such a vast difference in this one and others that are in this community, that have been placed by agents. Too, every one, even those that know nothing about music, can tell the superiority of this piano over others. Wishing you much success, I am,"

MRS. JORDAN RIGGS.

Columbia, S. C.

Ludden & Bates, Atlanta, Ga.

"I have had one of your pianos in my home for several months and I find that it comes up to your representation in every particular. Your Club Plan for the payment of same strikes me as being very lenient and I think that every home can afford a Piano on this basis. Trusting that you have a very prosperous business along this line, I am,"

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas, God in His wisdom and mercy has taken from our community and church one of our best citizens and most efficient and faithful members of our board of stewards, Brother C. E. Weatherly, on April 19, 1923, we, the pastor and official board of Faison Methodist Episcopal Church, South, offer the following resolutions:

Resolved first, That while we feel most keenly the great loss we have sustained and know his place will be hard to fill, we nevertheless bow our humble submission to the great head of the church—to Him who is too wise to make a mistake and too good to be unkind."

Second, That we, the committee representing the official board, Sunday school and church extend our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family, and assure them of our continued love and abiding sympathy and prayers.

Third, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the board of stewards, that one be sent to the North Carolina Christian Advocate for publication, and that one be sent to the grief-stricken wife and two sons, Vernon and Corlton.

SHARP—Mr. W. G. Sharp of Elm City died April 2nd. He was 58 years old and had been a member of the Methodist church for more than 30 years. He loved the church and was a regular attendant upon the ministry of the Word. Brother Sharp was quiet and unassuming in his disposition. His funeral was conducted in the church by the writer, assisted by Rev. L. T. Singleton, a former pastor, and Rev. W. O. Biggs, pastor of the Baptist church. The large congregation that attended his funeral and the many beautiful floral offerings which were placed on his grave by loved ones attested the high esteem in which he was held in the church and community.

Brother Sharp was a successful business man and until recent years was in the mercantile business with Mr. L. S. Farmer of Elm City. He owned several farms and was a successful planter. He was much interested in education and was a member of the school board. He will be greatly missed in Elm City.

Brother Sharp leaves a wife, two sons, Lloyd and William; one daughter, Dorothy; one brother, Mr. J. T. Sharp of Raleigh; one sister, Mrs. William Simmons of near Wilmington, and a number of nephews and nieces to mourn their loss. Both the sons are students at Trinity College.

May the bereaved family have sustaining grace and all finally meet in heaven.

"A Human Threshing Machine, Propelled By Divine Power"

A Story-Sermon By Rev. W. E. Poovey

My story is prefaced by the statement that because the children of Israel did evil in the sight of God, he gave them over into the hand of Midian for seven years; and that each successive season of the seven, about the time the waving grain fields of Israel began to receive the first touch of gold, the wild, warlike, wandering hordes from the desert would descend upon the defenceless Land of Promise, bringing with them their cattle, camels and camp equipment, their flocks, families and fighting paraphernalia, and that the Israelites, in very dread and fear of their lives would flee to the hills and hide away in dens and caves until the invader had ravaged their cities, wrought his will upon the open country and returned laden with rich booty to his own land.

It is almost time for the seventh annual invasion of the Eastern tribes. Their lookouts are perhaps already spying upon the land from Lebanon and Nebo. One young Israelitish farmer is determined to outdo the invader, and save some half ripe grain from his field. So each morning the dawn sees him with cycle in hand selecting the armfuls of prematurely yellowing grain, and spreading it over the face of a wide flat rock to dry in the sun, and each evening the dusk hears the dull thud of his flail as he beats out the seed and hides it in the sunken wine vat nearby. The flat rock and the flail—Nature's first threshing machine, propelled by human power!

So absorbed was this young man with his flail that he was not aware of a presence one evening until he heard a voice saying, "Young fellow, I've got a job for you!" It was the voice of God.

Now, if this young farmer had been of the ordinary type he'd have made instant reply, "Lord, this is a very busy time with me. Please don't talk about other jobs till I get through with this one. This is harvest and wheat threshing time combined. The Midianites are already crossing the upper fords of the Jordan and any morning may witness their marauding hordes swarming over Gilboa. Please let me finish my own task first, and then I'll undertake anything you want me to do."

If such reply had been made, God would have reminded the young man that most human undertakings could better wait than any divine work; and furthermore, when divine tasks were to be well done, they had ever been and would continue to be entrusted to those who were already overwhelmed with their own work. For prophet and king have been called to holy tasks from fallowing fields and herding flocks, and busy fishermen have been taken from fruitless night toil and set at the task of catching men. So today, the performance of public tasks of church or state are best assured when entrusted to those who are already inured to habits of industry in private undertakings.

Not being of the common type, the man with the flail did not make excuse, but rather made inquiry as to the divine task.

"Your home town is a hot bed of idolatry," he was told; "your father is a priest of Baal; your task is to take the ox with which you fallowed the field for this crop, swing a cable round the altar of Baal erected in the grove before the city gates and pull it over, from the stones of the idol altar erect another, with the keen edge of the axe cut down the trees of the grove and kindle a fire upon the altar, then turning the poll of the axe against the poll of the ox, kill him, cut him up, and offer a burnt offering unto Jehovah."

So, by fidelity to a difficult, though divinely appointed task in his home town, a timid young man turned his fellowcitizens, as well as his own father, from the false to the true.

But God ever tries out with home tasks those who are to be entrusted with tasks more responsible in territory more remote. Hence the wielding of the flail was again halted in the evening by the voice from above. "My boy, that was a big job you undertook last night," methinks he heard, "but you finished it in such fine shape that I've decided to set you to work at a bigger one: The Midianites are encamped in the valley of the Kishon three hundred thousand strong. They are waiting for the advance of the season to begin their usual work of foraging and devastation. I want you to assemble the fighting men of Israel and drive out the invaders before they begin that work of foraging and devastation."

"Surely I must be dreaming," thought the young Jew, "or the Lord must be mistaken. I am not the most promising of the boys in my father's family, our family is among the very poorest of the tribe, and our tribe is only the half-tribe of Manesseh with a fourth of the inheritance of Joseph. I would be without influence or natural ability as a leader."

But the musing of the young man is interrupted with the reminder that the greatest factor in a God-given task is confidence in God, and that reliance on God in a crisis is in inverse ratio to reliance on self and, therefore, that the humble man under God would become the mighty man of God.

The great adventure to which the young civilian had been assigned was indeed appalling. It is not surprising then that he should have craved some fore-token of ultimate triumph. Neither is it surprising that God was willing to be put to the test by one who had already stood the test to which God had put him.

"Grant that this sheepskin," said the young fellow, flinging it down upon the flat rock with the fleece up, "may be wet with dew tomorrow morning though every other object hereabout be dry." And when he came down at dawn, though it was a dewless morning, he gave the fleece a twist and a bowlful of water was wrung out of it.

God gave him the token; and taking a trumpet he ascended to the top of Mt. Ephriam, blew a call to arms; and that trumpet blast, being relayed from ram's horn to ram's horn, ringing out on every mountain top and reverberating in every valley, got a ready response from the fighting men of Israel. But when all had been mustered the army numbered but little more than thirty thousand. A mere handful of raw recruits, setting forth against a seasoned army of overwhelming numbers. Surely the leader of this forlorn hope had need of the token of the fleece.

How sorely he must have been amazed, therefore, when God countermanded the first order to break camp, and made the startling announcement that there were too many men for the enterprise. Surely, again the young Jew must be dreaming, or God must be joking. Thirty thousand too many to go against ten times that number? Raw recruits against seasoned veterans?

However, God soon made it plain that it was not so much a matter of mass as a matter of morale. One coward at a crisis in the battle could stampede a whole company, or one pessimist could poison with doubt the heart of a whole division. So the volunteer army was sifted by the principle of the selective draft, and two-thirds of them were left in camp while ten thousand who possessed the combination of courage and confidence were allowed to set forth.

All day long this little army tramped in line of march, passing over rolling hills made barren by the herds of Midian on former forays, taking note of the blackened ruins of home and hamlet which reminded them of the enemy encamped in the plain of Esdraelon ready again to overrun their beloved land. Late in the afternoon as the little army, worn down with the forced march, and panting with thirst, rounded the northern end of Mt. Gilboa and rested for a moment on the long receding ridge, they could catch the scintillation of the slanting rays of the sun as they were reflected from the brook of Herod half a mile away. This was too much for either commander or common soldier. The order of march was about to be resumed in response to the beckoning of the sparkling brook, when upon the startled senses of commander-in-chief as it had been an echo from the wooded slopes of Gilboa: "Too many men!" "Not as an army," said God, "but of a certain sort." There are men here who are already thinking more about the rich booty with which they will return from the battle than of the good that is to come to their countrymen or of the glory that should be ascribed to Jehovah, if with his help they shall gain the victory. Their chief interest in this enterprise is a self-interest. Sift them again by the sign that I shall give at the brook of Herod."

A command rings out from the leader: "Attention! Men, yonder stream invites you to quench your thirst! Every man for himself! Forward!"

Thank God, there were three hundred men who did not cast aside their weapons as they covered the ground between ridge and rivulet. Nor did they halt at the water's edge; but stepping in ankle deep, knee deep, waist deep, they waded through, holding aloft a poised spear in the right hand while with the palm of the left they ladled the water to their parched lips. This was a sign of the sifting at the stream. By this token the three hundred were taken.

At midnight Gideon assembles his band of three hundred and explains to them the plan of concerted assault at a given signal. He deploys his men at intervals of a hundred paces along the slopes of Carmel, Tabor, and Moreh on three sides of the plain. At the zero hour each man lights his torch and hides it under the inverted pitcher, held in the same hand. In the other hand he grips the heavy ram's horn. Then a crash, beginning at the center of the formation and being relayed along the mountain sides as each pitcher is struck and broken with the heavy ram's horn, startles the Midianites from their heavy slumbers. As the blaze of circling torches and the blare of the sounding trumpet assail their startled senses, the Midianites imagine that an overwhelming army is rushing upon them from three sides in the darkness. Each seizes a weapon to withstand the expected assault, but amid the confusion as they rush together in the center of the camp each Midianite soldier mistakes his comrade for an enemy in the darkness and strikes him down. And so fighting among themselves they flee down the valley which becomes a veritable field of blood. An Armageddon!

While Gideon leads his shouting band in hot pursuit, he dispatches two couriers to the two camps left behind. His message to the nine thousand seven hundred encamped at Harod was: "The enemy is in full flight. Up! Head them off between Tabor and the hills of Nazareth!" To the twenty-two thousand encamped on Mt. Ephraim he sent the challenge: "The sword of the Lord and Gideon have gotten a great victory! The enemy is in utter rout! Take the upper fords of the Jordan and let no fleeing foe escape!" And it was done.

Behold the operation of "A Human Treshing Machine, Propelled by Divine Power," as it winnows the grain with successive siftings, and with the fan of the wrath of Jehovah drives away the chaff in the Plain of Armageddon!

THE RALEIGH DISTRICT CONFERENCE

When Rev. J. C. Wooten, presiding elder, called the Raleigh district conference to order in Princeton on the morning of May 23rd, he found one of the largest attendance of preachers, lay delegates and visitors present that has ever attended a district conference in that section. Practically every preacher was there and many of the charges had a full delegation. Brother Wooten opened the conference with the administration of the sacrament of the Lord's Supper, he being assisted by Revs. R. F. Bumpas, G. B. Perry and O. W. Dowd.

Rev. H. I. Glass of Central church, Raleigh, was elected secretary, and made a good one.

Rev. R. M. Courtney, the hard working Centenary missionary secretary of the two conferences, was presented and addressed the brethren in interest of the Centenary.

The presiding elder had his preachers to make reports of work done since the annual conference. It was found that about five hundred had been added to the churches within the bounds of the district—about half of these on profession of faith. Very few revival meetings have been held. Many are planning for the revival season which will begin in a few weeks. According to the reports of the pastors the material progress of the church has been on the upward grade. Several churches and parsonages have been improved and others are being planned.

At the 11 o'clock hour on the first day of the conference the singing class from the Methodist orphanage gave a concert in the church to a congregation that completely filled the house and overflowed into the church yard. This concert was enjoyed and was greatly appreciated. Brother Barnes was the happiest person present.

There were a number of "traveling representatives" present. Revs. R. M. Courtney, of the Centenary, W. M. Curtis, of Greensboro College, Mr. Swartz, of the Epworth League, Miss Vera Herring, representing the Woman's Work, Prof. Mohn, of Louisburg College, Mr. R. E. Prince, of the Sunday School Board, and the business manager of the Advocate. All received a gracious welcome from the presiding elder and had ample time to present the interest committed to their hands.

A paper testifying to the high esteem in which the late Dr. T. N. Ivey, D.D., was held in his own district was passed.

Resolutions of appreciation of the work that Brother Wooten has done during the past quadrennium was unanimously passed, but over the protest of the modest elder.

The conference completed its work in just a little over a day and a half, and there was no hurry, and no matter that demanded the attention of the conference was overlooked. Brother Wooten is a master when it comes to getting things done.

The next session of the conference will be held in the splendid new church at Four Oaks.

The good people of Princeton entertained the conference to the queen's taste. The writer, as usual, was put in one of the best homes in the town, and he is under obligations to Bro. W. G. Woodard and his good family for their hospitality.

We look to Brother Glass for the detailed story of the conference.

DAVENPORT COLLEGE COMENCEMENT

The sixty-eighth commencement of Davenport College embraced Tuesday and Wednesday, May 22-23. Bishop Denny on Tuesday at 11 o'clock preached the baccalaureate sermon in the First Methodist church of Lenoir. On Wednesday Dr. E. C. Brooks, superintendent of public instruction in N. C., delivered the annual address. The sermon and the address of these eminent men were features of the commencement exercises that marked the close of an eminently successful year for Davenport College.

Of the sixty-seven former classes of Davenport many came back to join in the festivities of the occasion. In addition to these, quite a few relatives and friends of the students were present. Some of these visitors were entertained in the college, but many of them in the homes of Lenoir.

THE NEW YORK LIQUOR CROWD

The liquor crowd of New York, that un-American city on American soil, is leaving no stone unturned to overthrow national prohibition. Those liquor advocates are guilty of many gross errors. One of these is the firmly grounded opinion in their own minds that New York City is the American nation and that New York not only ought to but can speak for the people of these United States. When will they learn that the tail cannot wag the dog?

Another of their numerous errors is that New York has under prohibition more drunkenness than before the days of national prohibition. With all the efforts put forth by the antis from Governor Smith to the lowliest citizen we would not be surprised if such a state of affairs really existed. But the statistics of the police department of the city show a very different state of affairs.

Twenty years ago, 1903, there were 45,369 arrests in New York for intoxication and 8,027 for being disorderly while intoxicated. Last year 8,578 were arrested for intoxication and 2,307 for being disorderly when intoxicated, and these last figures are larger than any year since prohibition became a national law.

The figures show that prohibition does in a measure prohibit even in New York City and this is one reason for the constant hue and cry against it.

A FEW HOURS AT THE WINSTON-SALEM CONFERENCE

Bishop Denny was in the midst of an impressive and beautiful service, the baptism of children, last Friday morning when I entered the Farmington Methodist church where the Winston-Salem district conference was in session. Following the baptismal service, the bishop preached to a large congregation.

After dinner which the Farmington people served upon a very long table in the grove on the church lawn, the conference was as busy as the proverbial bee-hive. Reports of pastors and of committees, talks by the bishop, by visitors and by pastors and laymen of the conference, selection of a place for the next conference, the completion of the election of lay delegates to the annual conference engaged the attention of the Friday afternoon session.

Among the fine arts of human speech one may place in the first rank the reports of Methodist preachers. These are replete with interest and reveal a commendable skill for what they do not contain, even as much, or more than for what they do contain. But most of these at Farmington had a rich content. For instance, A. C. Gibbs of Thomasville reported the addition of 84 members since conference, T. B. Johnson of the Thomasville circuit reported the building of three new churches and Sunday school rooms for another, G. A. Stamper is authority for the statement that every member of Green Street church, Winston-Salem, will lead in public prayer, and J. W. Vestal on the Lewisville charge reported that he is giving due attention to the administration of the sacrament of the Lord's Supper and that he carries with him a communion service with individual cups, just as he carries his Bible with him. This wise pastor expects thereby not only to take care of the immediate situation, but at the same time induce each congregation to provide such communion service as the church ought to have. Here is an object lesson in the due observance of a much neglected ordinance in the country churches that should be of value to scores and scores of pastors who may have been remiss at this point.

The Winston-Salem district is building new churches, increasing the pay of hard working pastors, looking after Centenary collections and in many ways forging ahead in that great territory.

Rev. W. A. Newell, the presiding elder, has an unusual capacity for hard work and he employs it to the limit. The impress of his leadership is being felt for good in every part of the district.

My stay was too limited to enjoy as I desired the good fellowship of that militant company of Methodists who are in the midst of many exacting duties and who at the same time glory in their opportunities, but I look forward to being in their midst a whole week at the annual conference next October. A. W. P.

Hon. Clyde R. Hoey of Shelby was the speaker in Greensboro last Wednesday at the Decoration Day exercise. This gifted North Carolina orator delivered an eloquent address to a large company of interested hearers.

PEOPLE AND THINGS

Western North Carolina Conference, Winston-Salem, October 17.

North Carolina Conference, Elizabeth City, November 14.

Rev. J. H. Barnhardt last Sunday preached the commencement sermon for the Roxboro high school.

Rev. G. F. Smith of Littleton and a member of the board of trustees of Greensboro College was at commencement.

The obituary in last week's Advocate by Rev. Albert Sherrill carried the caption "Summerow" when it should have been "McLurd." We gladly make the correction.

Hon. S. J. Durham and Mrs. Durham of Bessemer City attended the Greensboro College commencement. Mr. and Mrs. Durham while in the city were guests of Mrs. Durham's uncle, Mr. J. A. Odell on West Market street.

Rev. B. A. Sisk of Table Rock, N. C., will be at the service of any pastor who may wish to use him in revival meetings during the months of July and August. Brother Sisk has just finished his year's work at Rutherford College.

Mr. C. S. Wallace of Morehead City has been in Greensboro this week for commencement. Mr. Wallace is chairman of the board of trustees of Greensboro College and never fails to manifest a deep interest in all the affairs of the college.

"Mrs. Helene Whedbee Newby invites you to be present at the marriage of her daughter, Katherine McMullan, to Mr. Earl Ray Sikes, on Saturday, the sixteenth of June, at eleven o'clock, Methodist Episcopal church, Hertford, North Carolina."

"Mr. Adolphus Gaston Jones invites you to be present at the marriage of his daughter, Hulda, to Mr. Luther Glen Cheek on Saturday, June the ninth, at twelve o'clock noon, West Durham Methodist Episcopal Church, South, Durham, North Carolina."

Miss Frances Thompson, daughter of Rev. B. C. Thompson of the Person charge, completed the four year's course in the Roxboro high school this week. We are under obligations to her for a beautifully engraved invitation to attend. She will enter Trinity this fall.

Death overtook 129 persons while trespassing on the property of the Southern Railway System during 1922. While walking on tracks, 90 trespassers were killed and 62 injured, 39 were killed and 91 injured while stealing rides or "hopping" trains, and 18 were injured in miscellaneous accidents.

The American Bible Society reports the distribution of 4,667,839 volumes of Scriptures during the past year. Its work has been conducted in practically every country of the world and more than 2373 persons have been engaged during the year in this task. In the 107 years of its history this society has circulated 151,258,360 volumes.

Rev. S. A. Stewart, president of Hiroshima Girls' School, Japan, has been in Greensboro several days visiting friends and attending commencement. Prof. Stewart will teach a special course in missions at the summer school for preachers at Trinity College. He is also on the program at the Blue Ridge training school June 25 to July 5. Brother Stewart is a native of North Carolina who is rendering great service on the mission field of Japan.

"To my fellow classmates of Rutherford and Trinity colleges. (Now preaching.) As I will be out of school June 8th, I am anxious during the summer to help in revival meetings by singing, and possibly some preaching. Especially would I like to help some of the ministerial men whom I knew at Rutherford and Trinity. I can lead your singing for you. Drop me a card, care L. College. Reuben B. Young."

Considerably beyond the ninety-sixth milepost of earthly existence, and for more than three score years a consistent member of the Methodist church, Mrs. Amariah F. Jenkins of Nashville, N. C., answered the final summons of her Lord. Her life was one of beautiful faith, and she died in sleep as peaceful as that of an innocent baby. Her long fellowship with her Lord mellowed her heart with a peculiar tenderness. Numerous loved ones and hundreds of friends regretted her going, but each one is assuredly confident that she has entered into a world of eternal gain.

Thomas and Bennie, ten weeks old twins of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert J. Taylor (formerly Miss Ruth Holden) died the first week in May. Services conducted by Rev. M. Leo Rippy, assistant pastor Mt. Vernon Place church, Washington, D. C. Interment at Prospect cemetery.

"Rev. and Mrs. L. Berge Abernethy request the honour of your presence at the marriage of their daughter, Annie Elizabeth, to Mr. Chessley Bostwick Howard, Jr., on Saturday afternoon, June the ninth, at half after four o'clock, Central Methodist church, Mooresville, North Carolina."

Mrs. J. J. Barker, the wife of Rev. J. J. Barker, one of our superannuates who lives at Ahoskie, has been for more than three weeks in a hospital at Norfolk, Va. She has not yet undergone an operation, as her condition will not allow it. The Methodist public should remember this servant of the church amid these serious afflictions of Mrs. Barker.

The union meeting conducted by Rev. John Brown and party in Reidsville has closed with the following results. Forty sermons and addresses delivered during the 18 days; 1,000 hit the trail. The contingent expenses of $2,000 raised by loose collection. A purse of between $3,000 and $4,000 presented the evangelist. Total attending during meeting 100,000.

Mrs. S. T. Barber underwent a very serious operation in a Greensboro hospital two weeks ago last Wednesday. Her conditions was very serious for more than a week, but she is now greatly improved and hopes to return home before many days. This will be good news to her friends in various parts of North Carolina where her husband has served as pastor. On Friday following the operation of Mrs. Barber, her daughter, Mrs. Jack Rees was carried to the hospital and was dangerously ill for several days, but is better now. This is the twelfth surgical operation in the family of Rev. S. T. Barber. His friends will rejoice to know that the members of his family are improved and seem to be on the road to speedy recovery.

The Blue Ridge Conference is a great leadership training center in the Blue Ridge mountains, June 25th to July 5th. The only inter-denominational conference in the South. This conference is not in competition with the school of missions at Lake Junaluska. It offers to all our missionary workers an additional opportunity for training and preparation for their task in the church. The courses offered are the courses that will be studied in all the churches. The program this year is unusually strong. Among the speakers from our church are Bishop W. B. Beauchamp, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South; Rev. C. G. Hounshell, educational secretary Board of Missions, Methodist Episcopal Church, South, Nashville, Tenn.; Miss Grace Lindley, Board of Missions, Protestant Episcopal Church; Dr. O. E. Brown, dean of Vanderbilt School of Religion; Mrs. J. H. McCoy, secretary Woman's Council, Methodist Episcopal Church, South, Nashville, Tenn.; Miss Daisy Davies, Atlanta, Ga.; Mrs. L. W. Crawford, Nashville, Tenn.; Rev. S. A. Stewart, president of the Hiroshima Girls' School in Japan.

MEETING OF BOARD OF MANAGER OF METHODIST SUMMER SCHOOL

The members of the board of managers of the Methodist Summer School will meet in the Hesperian Hall, Trinity College, at 3 p. m. Wednesday, June 6.

Let all who are interested note that at four that afternoon the first meeting of the school will take place in the Y. M. C. A. hall, East Duke building, for the purpose of explanation of courses and the enrollment of classes. Instructors will be able to give needed information about the courses offered.

M. T. Plyler.

DR. E. C. BROOKS

Dr. E. C. Brooks will in all human probability become the new president of State College at Raleigh. That college is fortunate in securing the services of this gifted educator. He is a man of vision and at the same time eminently practical. Democratic to the core he is a past master in mingling among all classes of people. But he is no demagogue. He is a scholar, a writer of ability, a hard worker and has the daring and the ability to "put across" what he sees ought to be done.

DAVENPORT COLLEGE COMMENCEMENT

On last Wednesday, May 23, closed the sixty-seventh year at Davenport College. The commencement was inaugurated by the May Festival Monday afternoon with ideal weather, a great crowd and a most beautiful pageant and delightful music.

Monday night was marked by the Expression Recital under direction of Miss Katherine Weed, head of the department. After the recital was held the home-coming alumnae banquet with more than one hundred and fifty former students present. These ranged from several representatives of the last year's class to those who finished in the sixties.

Bishop Collins Denny on Tuesday morning preached the annual sermon. This was a great occasion with a great message. Practically all places of business in the town were closed and many visitors added to the concourse. The afternoon was taken up by alumnae meeting, and the art, domestic art exhibit.

At 5 o'clock the Class Day exercises were held on the front lawn. The final concert came at 8 o'clock. This was an especially enjoyable feature, directed by Prof. F. W. Kraft, head of the music department.

On Wednesday morning at 9:30 came the graduating exercises, the awarding of Bibles and diplomas and the president's message to the out-going class. At 10:30 Dr. E. C. Brooks delivered the literary address to the graduating class. With this masterly address came to an end a most enjoyable and helpful commencement occasion. X.

ROBERT DWIGHT WARE WINS THE FOUNDER'S MEDAL FOR ORATORY AT VANDERBILT UNIVERSITY

The Founder's medal is the most coveted prize in the gift of the University. The contest took place Friday evening, May 25. Dr. W. F. Tillett writes: "All the speeches were good, much above the average, which means that it is all the more an honor for Mr. Ware to have received the medal. He is making good with us, is an appreciative student, and is honoring North Carolina." Mr. Ware has a teaching fellowship in the University and will receive the M. A. at this commencement. Last year he received his A. B. at Trinity College. In his senior year at Trinity Mr. Ware won the Wiley Gray medal, the Trinity Debater's medal and the Columbian Literary Society orator's medal. Mr. Ware is a son of Rev. and Mrs. W. R. Ware of Morganton, N. C.

Our congratulations are hereby extended to Mr. Ware upon his winning Vanderbilt's most coveted prize:

BURKHEAD CHURCH DEDICATED

Last Sunday was a happy day for the members of Burkhead church, Winston-Salem, when Bishop Collins Denny preached the sermon and dedicated their new house of worship. The new church is in a growing section of the city and its future is filled with the promises of a large success. The pastor, Rev. J. S. Hiatt, who is now serving his fifth year in this charge, has led wisely and well. Not only has this elegant church been built, but there has been growth in every department of the church with conditions more promising now than at any previous time. The new building is valued at $65,000. Burkhead is one of the effectual units in the kingdom of God in the twin-city.

CALL MEETING EPWORTH LEAGUE BOARD

There will be a call meeting of our Conference Epworth League Board held in Charlotte on June 14th (Thursday) in the afternoon. The Epworth League Conference will be in session at that date, and we wish every member of the board to arrange to be present at the above mentioned date. If you will kindly let our host know it in time there will be entertainment provided for you. Make it a point to be on hand.

Lee A. Falls,
Pres. W. N. C. Epworth League Board.

When prayers have been denied, the denials were not losses, but gains. The refusal was not in anger but in tender mercy and loving kindness. Ah! if we know, how glad and grateful we should be that many an appeal has been refused and many a request denied!—J. G. Bomran.

What The Scientists Say About Evolution: by J. A. Glenn

Alfred Fairhurst (very modern, 1917,) says: Darwin speaks about "life with its several powers having been originally breathed by the Creator into a form or one." He introduces a miracle with which to start, but after that he excludes all miracles by the naturalistic process of evolution. If he is obliged to admit a miracle to begin life, then miracles are not excluded by the nature of things. He is obliged to accept a miracle as the foundation of the theory of evolution which absolutely excludes miracles. Here then are two things, diametrically opposed, that Darwin felt obliged to accept. But if, during the evolution of the earth, it came to pass that the Creator must perform a miracle to introduce life, why not more? Why not logical to create animals by miracles, and the various physical powers, including the mind of man. If possible, it would seem that there is a greater gulf between the first simple organism and the inorganic world. But the theory of evolution must not grant this, for it would be accepting a miracle. Darwin, having granted a miracle as his necessary starting-point, has mounted evolution as the steed which is to carry him up up the ascending mountainous road by way of evolution, has made him mount the steeps and leap the wide chasms that lay in his way until, at the close of the route, both rider and horse remind one of death's skeleton spurring in his bony steed.

"We start with the idea that the earth with all of its forces and agencies is the work of God.

"From a scientific point of view the first living thing on the earth had no ancestor except the different kinds of necessary matter and the forces that had been at work on them through the long ages. As a scientific problem, spontaneous generation had to take place. It is evident that the preparation of the world for life must be included as a part of the process of evolution, and that evolution must account for life as a part of its process. It must lift the dead into the living—a process which no evolutionist has ever been able to explain. It lies at the threshold of organic evolution. The evolutionist is not at liberty to thrust it aside. It is his legitimate problem. If evolution preceded the first living thing and if it has prevailed ever since life was first introduced, it must include the origin of the primordial organism. If evolution is the universal scientific process that it is claimed to be, it cannot eliminate any necessary link in the unbroken chain of its process."

Mr. Darwin says that "in many cases it is most difficult to conjecture by what transitions many organs have arrived at their present state," and yet he does not hesitate to draw a definite conclusion as to how they have been derived. His process reminds one of the game: Heads up, I win; tails up, you lose.

Professor Fleishmann one of the converts to anti-Darwinism, said: "The Darwin theory of the decent has not a single fact to confirm it in the realm of nature. It is not the result of scientific research, but purely the product of the imagination."

Dr. Ethridge, of the British Museum, one of England's most famous experts in fossilogy, says: "In all this great museum there is not a particle of evidence of transmutation of species. Nine-tenths of the talk of evolutionists is sheer nonsense, not founded on observation and wholly unsupported by fact. This museum is full of proofs to the utter falsity of their views."

Pasteur, one of the greatest scientists of all generations, who saved the world annually millions of dollars by investigating various germ diseases and providing cultures for preventing same, was a most devout believer. He wrote: "Posterity will one day laugh at the foolishness of modern materialistic philosophies. The more I study nature, the more I stand amazed at the works of the Creator."

Professor Townsend of the University of Boston said: "Except for a mind endowed with a conscience at the beginning, and with which organic evolution has nothing to do, and had not religion, especially the Jewish and Christian with their inspiring and uplifting power come to the aid of the human race, mankind would long since have disappeared from the face of the earth."

Professor Tyndall says: "If asked whether science has solved, or is likely to solve, the problem of the Universe in our day, I must shake my head in doubt. Behind and above and around us the real mystery of the Universe lies unsolved, and, as far as we are concerned, is incapable of solution."

It will be remembered that Tyndall had made nearly a thousand experiments, using organic infusions, to determine whether or not spontaneous generation would take place, and they failed to prove the doctrine. The evolutionist must accept this doctrine which is entirely destitute of facts to support it.

In 1903, Lord Kelvin said in an address: "Forty years ago I asked Liebig, walking somewhere in the country if he believed that the grass and flowers which we saw around us grew by mere chance force. He answered: 'No, no more than I can believe that a book of botany describing them could grow by mere chemical force.' It is not in dead matter that men live, move and have their being, but in a creative and directive power which science compels us to accept as an article of faith. Is there anything so absurd as to believe that a number of atoms, by falling together of their own accord, could make a crystal, a microbe, or living animals?"

Dr. Goette, the Srasburg professor, has published in The Unchou (1903) a natural history of Darwinism, which he says has passed through four stages, namely, (1) the beginnings, when it was received with great enthusiasm; (2) the period when it flourished and found general acceptance; (3) the period of transition and sober second thought, when its principles and teachings were called into question; (4) the final period, upon which the scientific world has just entered, and when its days will evidently soon be numbered."

Edward von Hartman also says that Darwinism has passed through four stages, which he indicates by giving dates, and says that the opposition "gradually swelled into a great chorus of voices, aiming at the overthrow of the Darwin theory." In the first decade of the twentieth century it has become apparent that the days of Darwinism are numbered. Among the latest opponents are such men as Eimer, Gustav Wolf, DeVries, Hoocke, Von Wellstenn, Fleishman, Reinke, and many others.

Speaking about evolution, Prof. Virchow of Berlin, who was styled the "foremost chemist of the globe," and who was the highest German authority in physiology, said: "It is all nonsense. It cannot be proven by science that man descended from the ape or from any other animal. Since the announcement of the theory, all real scientific knowledge has proceeded in the opposite direction. The attempt to find the transition from animal to man has ended in total failure." Virchow went so far as to denounce the theory as dangerous to the state and demanded that it be excluded from the schools.

Alfred Fairhurst says that the demand by Virchow was wise; for teaching the evolution of man from the brute is but the culmination of the fundamental principle of the doctrine of evolution that "might is right." The practical effect of this doctrine in the teaching of Germany has shown itself appallingly in the brutal conduct of her soldiers during the last four years. It harmonizes well with "German Culture" and with the practical atheism that evidently prevails among her rulers, and largely among her masses. It has come to pass that their evolved "superman" is only an incarnate devil, which the Christian world has been compelled to crush beneath its heel. The deification of physical power has had its last chance, and failed. What the prophet said long time ago is good for all time: "Not by might, nor by power, but by my spirit, saith Jehovah of hosts."

"This suggests one of the chief dangers of evolution, namely, that to many minds it seems that God is not needed in the process. And so it has come to pass that a large per cent of those who accept the theory are practically atheists, and treat with contempt the Bible as being the word of God to man."

"The teaching of evolution in the public schools is a matter of vast interest to the public. If it is an established science, by all means let it be taught; if it is only a theory, let it be fully discussed from the evidence, by teachers who are competent, and with those who are matured enough and well enough informed to understand what they are doing. Practically all of the teachers of this theory at present have accepted it as a dogma, and are not well enough acquainted with the facts to teach the subject in the proper way. The pupils, immature as they are, are only empty vessels ready to receive whatever the teachers put into them. And so the dogma, evolution, is widely propagated in our high schools and, in some places, in the grades below, and in our normal schools, among thousands of immature girls and boys who are to become the future teachers in our common schools, who will teach it dogmatically as they have received it from their dogmatic teachers. These teachers are especially fond of dwelling on what they regard as the evolution of man from some animal ancestor, and connecting him with the brute creation, both in his physical and mental being. According to the teaching of these dogmatists, it becomes highly important to understand that man's body bears all the stamps of the brute, but that especially the mind of the child during its development manifests in many ways the quality of its brute ancestors.

"The attitude of evolutionists at present is that evolution is a fact. Some claim that it has passed beyond the stage of theory and that it is established science. With most of them the question as to it being a fact is no longer debatable, and so the teachers in various schools and higher institutions of learning simply assume it to be a fact and thus they are relieved of trying to teach the method of evolution.

"There is a general stampede in certain quarters to make use of the word 'evolution.' The word has become a talisman, a fetish, a charm, a mascot, in some cases a god. Its adorers ought to have prepared and stamped with the word 'evolution' some special badge to be worn publicly over the heart of each disciple of this god."

"But" what does the word 'evolution' mean to these people? It may mean any of a hundred things. To the average student it means: 'I am up-to-date. I have adopted the scientific method. I am marching in the front of progress. I am in conformity with the scientific spirit of the age. I stand with the progressives. I am not afraid of being called an old fogey. I am not afraid of being looked upon as a back number. I can look all of the great scholars in the face and say: 'I am glad to be with you.' All of these things, and many more that might be added, give the young fellow in college a splendid opinion of himself and his attainments."

"He looks at the cattle and horses and hogs and chickens, and other domestic animals, and says: 'Yes, evolution is true. I see it going on among these animals all around me. I need feel no further proof. Living things have been in the world for millions of years, and they have progressed in structure from simple forms up to man."

"This is a fair summary by the average person who accepts the theory of evolution. It will be noticed that the great difficulties with regard to evolution are not considered at all in the above statement. Ignorance of the facts bearing on the theory, and the many objections to it is a source of bliss to the average evolutionist."

Dr. Wm. Andrews thinks that the ice age closed "not further away than from five to seven thousand years ago."

Prof. Rollin D. Salisbury and Dr. Warren Upham, among our American geologists, think that the ice age closed seven to ten thousand years ago. In a review article (1904) Dr. Upham, speaking of the post-glacial era, says that from the studies of Niagara by Wright and myself, coinciding approximately with the estimate of Winchell and with a large number of estimates and computations collected by Hanson from many observers in America and Europe, it certainly seems well demonstrated that this period (post-glacial) is from seven thousand to ten thousand years.

Prof. Edward Hall, secretary of the Victoria Institution, London, a specialist on these matters, says: "Not in one single case in the whole of Europe or America has a trace of man's deposits which we have a right to assume were developed and produced by the great ice sheets of the early glacial periods.

Alfred Fairhurst says: "The following estimates have been given as to the length that has elapsed since the glacial period in America: Prof. George Frederick Wright, 7,000 to 10,000 years; Prof. James Prestwich, 8,000 to 10,000 years; Dr. James Croll, not more than 11,000 years; Prof. Salisbury and Dr.

Upham, 7,000 to 10,000 years; Prof. Salisbury, State Geological Survey of New Jersey, 6,000 to 10,000 years; Prof. Alexander Winchell, 7,000 to 11,000 years."

"Considering the above estimates by these men of high standing in archaeological geology, and their conclusions after a careful study of facts, we think that we are justified in drawing the conclusion that man has not been here but a few thousand years at most. And yet Prof. Gesell announces triumphantly in the most dogmatic way in his book, written especially for the instruction of teachers, that man has been on this earth many millenniums and probably millions of years. And this is done in the name of modern science. It is taught as if it were known to be true; taught to the thousands who have neither opportunity, the ability nor the means of investigating this matter for themselves. One of the greatest values of true science is that it rests on known facts and is free from dogmatism. Why the public money should be spent to propagate this kind of teaching is beyond my imagination. I believe that the public, when informed, will see that this teaching which is being protected by the word 'science,' but lacks entirely the character of true science, will be banished from our public schools."

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL AND CHRISTIAN LIVING

By John Shackford.

From time to time there has appeared in print the statement that the work of the Sunday school is that of instruction, with the implication, if not the direct assertion, that this is the whole of its task. While this erroneous proposition can have no effect upon those who are intelligently informed concerning the nature and scope of religious education, it needs to be answered lest its unchallenged repetition should lead astray some who have not considered the absurd outcome of attempting to limit any school of religious teaching to instruction only.

It is not with any institution of the church that we are primarily concerned, but with the vital religious education of those for whom the church is responsible. It should be borne in mind that the Sunday school is the only school of the church which reaches a large majority of its children and young people with a definite program of religious teaching. There are now 2,065,674 members of the Sunday schools of our own church, the great majority being under twenty-five years of age. Nothing could be more fatal religiously or educationally to the future church, nor in the Sunday school, than to separate instruction from training in this school of Christian teaching.

The impartation of information about religious matters is not religious education. Religious education must also include training in worship and guidance in living the Christian life. We cannot say too strongly that the conception of teaching as merely that of giving information is fundamentally wrong. The very suggestion that this is the case is likely to lead to the dangerous conclusion, all too frequently accepted, that information about life may be made a substitute for vital experience in life.

The weakness of an educational program that begins and ends with instruction is today generally recognized by educators. Educational processes must not be separated from life. We must not content ourselves with substituting the mere description of things for the realities that can be known only by first hand acquaintance with things. A man may be a walking encyclopedia of information and yet be practically helpless in the world of affairs. But real knowledge is power. It is the knowledge developed in the doing, in that first-hand acquaintance with actual situations in life in which one tests his own powers, discovers his own limitations and struggles forward to achievement through mastery of difficulties.

No phrases, no descriptions found in books, can ever be substituted for these first hand contacts with life. No descriptions of athletic or moral achievements can develop physical, mental or moral fiber. The child whose home is a city apartment and whose playground the streets, who has never learned to do anything useful and never known what responsibility is, cannot be expected to develop the power of mastery and of leadership even though he may read many volumes on the subject.

He may become a marvel of information about the masterful men of the world and forever remain a weakling himself.

It is easy to deceive ourselves and to starve our own souls by talking much about prayer, and failing to live a life of fellowship with God. In like manner, it is impossible to require pupils in a class to become familiar with the Bible teachings on the subject of prayer, and yet never to learn how to pray. The teacher's instruction on the subject may be beyond criticism, while the worship program of a school may be bald and irreverent, with no provision in class or department or school as a whole to adapt worship to the needs of the growing boy or girl. The result may easily be a well stored memory and a prayerless life.

Instruction may familiarize the pupil with all the beatitudes of the Sermon on the Mount and leave him a stranger to their inner meaning. For the real meaning of these teachings of Jesus can be learned only by those who live them. One who imagines that the teacher's task in teaching the social message of the New Testament is ended when the pupil can recite the story of the Good Samaritan and repeat the words "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself," does not understand even the nature or the purpose of teaching. As well have an infant memorize a treatise on walking and yet never learn to walk, or a vigorous boy study the theory of swimming without going into the water.

All true teaching must join instruction and training. The purpose of impression is expression and real knowledge does not come without expression. Therefore, in the field of religion separation of instruction from training not only result in incomplete teaching, but tends to stop with mere knowledge about morals and religion and to leave the pupil deficient in the living experience of a moral and religious life.

Doctor George Albert Coe, in a recent article in "International Review of Missions," says:

"Influenced partly by the contemporary ferment in general educational thinking but partly also by direct analysis of the Christian experience of children and youth, students of religious education among us are generally agreed upon such conceptions as these: Christian education should by no means be identified with instruction in the Bible or in Christian beliefs—instruction is only a part. There must be likewise education in and through worship, by which is implied that children should be led into the actual experience of worship—yes, a graded or growing experience. Further, the 'applications' are not to be postponed; rather, children are to be engaged constantly and growing in active Christian service and in the entire struggle to live as children of God. Instruction, training in service and training in worship, are three terms that now go together as representing the minimum of Christian teaching."

Furthermore, it cannot be seriously maintained that the program of religious education in the Sunday school can be satisfactorily provided for on the expressional side through any agency however ideal whose program is not closely articulated with the Sunday school's program so as to make possible a unified and co-ordinated provision for the three-fold educational requirements as pointed above. Dr. Coe says further: "The whole notion that education is a thing per se, to be acquired in a school and later put into real life, should be thrown upon the rubbish heap. Let us think of religious education as primarily growth in Christian living here and now through guided practice therein. And in respect to Christian living we must put the emphasis, as Jesus did, upon serving God by loving service of one another."

The Sunday school then is not, and must never be thought of as an institution to deal merely with the forms and facts of Bible information. The Sunday school is dealing with living beings and it must help them to live their lives in the Christian way. It is a school of the Christian religion. Its primary function is to guide in Christian living. Its instructional program, its program of worship, its program of expressional activity is to this end. It is false to its mission if it does not attempt to assist the pupils in the school to enter into the experiences of the Divine life and to grow in that life, if it does not attempt to introduce them to Christ and the Father, it does not assist them in doing of the will of God.

Any effort to limit the Sunday school to a narrower field is not only hurtful and dangerous to the millions who are today enrolled in the Sunday schools of America, but will tend to make the work of the Sunday school superficial and ineffective and is out of harmony with sound education and sound religion alike.

PURE GOLD

W. S. Surratt.

Periodically one reads in the papers the account of a golden wedding celebration and sees the placid pictured faces of a man and woman who for fifty years have journeyed down the path of life together.

These old men and women who have weathered the storms of fifty years—what wise advice they could give us if we could but listen to them. It is not to be supposed that all their days have been days of sunshine and serenity—that great grief at times has not overwhelmed them—that anger and despair and hate have not shaken their souls—that there have been many times that each has been tried and found wanting in the court of the other's demand.

But they have learned at last the one great lesson in life—that all things pass. And for married folk it is well to remember that with all other things that vanish, so do the tempests of matrimony.

These old people have made their concessions, their endless sacrifices to one another; they have seen their children grow from cuddling babies to stalwart men and women; they have by chance watched them die.

They toiled together, laughed together, tasted together the bitter-sweet of existence, and have at last attained that high plateau of Peace, which is always reached in the end by those who have walked steadfastly in the path of duty, who have not shirked their responsibilities, who have endured much and forgiven much and have kept alive in their souls the faith of a higher resolve.

God bless them every one, those dear old men and women. Their lives are landmarks of our civilization.

THE FINE RECORD OF A YOUNG LADY

One of the most interesting announcements made Tuesday morning at the finals at Queens College was that Miss Ethel Abernethy, professor of psychology and education, is to be given a year's leave of absence. Dr. Fraser, president of the college, in making the announcement, paid highest tribute to the work she has done in her department. Miss Abernethy expects to spend several months visiting various experimental schools, and will continue research work in Chicago University, spending most of the coming winter in psychology laboratories. Miss Abernethy has served Queens College longer than any other teacher connected with the literary department of the college. Her work has covered several years and the high standard of scholarship which she has set for her students has had much to do with the high rank the graduates of the institution are taking in university circles and in the teaching profession. Her contribution to education in the state through the building up of a strong department of teacher training can hardly be estimated. One foremost in authority in directing the training of teachers in North Carolina recently said that he considers the professional training given at Queens equal to any in the state. Three strong departments have grown out of the work instituted by Miss Abernethy when she was first elected to teach social science. The department of education, now offering eight up-to-date, modern courses, will, after her return, require the full time of a professor and an assistant. Miss Abernethy is the daughter of Dr. Abernethy, pastor of the First Methodist church at Mooresville, and inherits a gift of charm and teaching from her forefathers of several generations.—Charlotte Observer.

To most of us, and in most respects, the world and life are what our own will makes them, because they reflect ourselves. The cheerful man and the melancholy man behold the same world, yet to the one it is all beauty and gladness, the heavens are sphered in light, and the mountains crowned with day; to the other all is dark and dismal, and the very heavens are hung in black. Life takes its coloring from the mind in which it is reflected.—Samuel Smith Harris.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES AT GREENSBORO COLLEGE

The exercises at Greensboro College this year were of more than usual interest. The class had done especially good work during the course, and a great deal was expected of them. They did not disappoint the hopes of their friends at their showing during the events of the commencement season.

A recital by the seniors and juniors of the department of expression held in the Odell Memorial building Saturday evening was the first number on the graduation program. The students appearing showed both grace and dignity in their presentations. Miss Aileen Lowrance read Looking After Clara, by Susan Glaspell. Miss Margaret Taylor presented a dramatic monologue, A Bill From the Milliner, by Miss May Isabel Fiske. The charming story, O Mary, Be Careful, was given by Miss Geraldine Smith. Misses Lowrance, Carlyle, and Taylor gave the tragedy of Jean-Marie. Misses Lily Kyle, Geraldine Smith, and Julia Little, appeared in Hearts to Mend. A scene from Romeo and Juliet was rendered by Misses Carlyle and Kyle.

The recital was a fitting close to the successful series of recitals given under the able direction of Miss Henninger, head of the department of expression. The interest in dramatics stimulated by her guidance gives promise of increased growth in dramatic art and public speaking next year.

The baccalaureate sermon was preached at West Market Street church by Dr. Franklin N. Parker, of Emory University, Georgia, dean of the School of Theology.

Dr. Parker was presented by Dr. S. B. Turrentine, president of Greensboro College. The prayer Sunday morning was by Dr. C. G. Hounshell, of Nashville, Tenn., candidate secretary of the board of missions of the Southern Methodist church. The regular church choir was augmented by several people from the college community, one of the notable features being the singing of "O, Divine Redeemer," by Gilman F. Alexander, of the college faculty. The members of the graduating class occupied reserved seats.

Dr. Parker Preaches.

As his text Dr. Parker chose Mark 10:38, 39, 40, those passages containing the significant declaration and interrogation: "But Jesus said unto them, Ye know not what ye ask: can ye drink of the cup that I drink of and be baptized with the baptism that I am baptized with?"

James and John had asked Jesus for the privilege of seats in his kingdom, one on his right hand, the other on his left hand, and it was then that Jesus sought to give them a new conception of life and heaven. The directness of his questions and answers constituted one of the most impressive features of Christ's ministry, the commencement speaker maintained. At that critical point he did not rebuke James and John for worldliness, he simply undertook to help them to visualize more clearly the real significance of his kingdom.

The challenge of the kingdom of God comes to men today just as it did in the time of Christ. He still calls youth to partake of the great experiences of service, and empowered by his strength, youth may answer the challenge, and accomplish noble things in the advancement of the kingdom of God.

Sunday evening at the Odell Memorial Dr. C. G. Hounshell of Nashville, Tenn., preached the annual sermon to the College Y. W. C. A.

The text upon which the sermon was based was from Matthew, 5:14, "Ye are the light of the world." The sermon was addressed primarily to the graduating class, but it was applicable to the lives of all who heard it. Dr. Hounshell centered his message round the responsibility of Christians to be the light of the world, through Christ, who Himself, is the light of the world.

College women, especially those from Christian institutions have had the opportunity of knowing, therefore, upon them must fall the greater responsibility of being consistently the light of the world. But this light cannot of itself remain bright; it must be kindled anew by devotional Bible study, by unceasing prayer, by loyalty to the church and by good works. This is Christ's challenge to those who know.

Class Day Exercises.

At three o'clock Monday afternoon the annual business meeting of the alumnae association was held. At five o'clock the class day exercises took place on the campus, directly in front of the main building. The program included the formal greeting, last roll call, reading of the class history, poem, prophecy, last will and testament, presenting of class gifts, love's last encircling, alumnae greetings, and the singing of the college song. Miss Virginia Lowrance guided her fellow students down the path of Love.

At six o'clock the alumnae-student dinner occurred. The afternoon events were all well attended, and those who remained for the dinner were charmed by the good taste and efficient management of Miss Brooks in charge of the college dining hall.

The annual concert was held at eighty-thirty in the Odell Memorial. The program was unique, and a fitting conclusion to the series of brilliant recitals given by the music department throughout the year. It contained the original compositions by each member in the composition class, and also counterpoint written by students of the junior class. All the members of the music faculty appeared in pleasing selections. The recital was one of the best ever given at the college, and the large audience was enthusiastic in its praise. Prof. Frank M. Church has won for himself a generous place in the esteem of the people who have grown familiar with his work. All the members of the music staff came in for a large amount of hearty appreciation on the part of the audience. Their work is becoming more and more one of the most tangible assets of the college.

Graduating Exercises.

At 10:30 Tuesday morning the academic procession led by President Turrentine and Dr. Harry Clark, the orator of the day, and composed of trustees and benefactors of the college, the faculty and the graduating class entered the Odell Memorial for the graduating exercises of 1923.

Graduation Address at Greensboro College, May 29.

The graduation address at the commencement exercises of Greensboro College was delivered by Dr. Harry Clark, educational secretary for the past two years of the Tennessee Baptist Convention. For nine years previously Dr. Clark was professor of secondary education at the University of Tennessee, the successor of Dr. P. P. Claxton, who later became U. C. Commissioner of Education. He was for four years secretary of the Southern Commission on Accredited Schools, and is well known in North Carolina. He has given frequent addresses in the state, and was at one time on the staff of the summer school of the State University.

Dr. Clark spoke of being consulted by a successful young business woman, who had determined to go into journalism. When he advised her to stay in the line in which she was then successful, she quoted the verse, "Neglect not the gift that is in thee," and said that she felt she had a special gift and talent for journalism. To wrap that talent in a napkin, even though it were the napkin of commercial success, would be for her to miss her destiny.

Applying her principle, the speaker said first, that each one of us does possess special gifts, and he illustrated the importance of those individual peculiar talents by Burbank's success in plant breeding through selecting plants which had individual differences, thus developing the Shasta daisy, the spineless cactus, and the white blackberry. He quoted Edwin Markham's poem, applying this to human life.

"To each one is given a day and a work for that day,
And once and no more he is allowed to travel that way;

And woe if he flee from the task, whatever the odds,
For the task is appointed to him on the scroll of the gods."

The speaker then said that each one of us has at times intimations of those special abilities through stirrings of our vast subconscious self, but that we usually let these inspirations die, as did the organist in Adalalde Proctor's Lost Chord. In dreams we have solved problems, or delivered orations, or written poems, that would be impossible in waking moments, thus revealing uncommon depths and possibilities of which we never used the tithe. He illustrated by cases of those who had used the inspirations and contrasted their success with the failures of those who had let these spirit promptings die like the Lost Chord.

In the third division of his address, Dr. Clark pleaded that no obstacles should thwart the hearers from living at their highest best instead of on the plane of their lesser possibilities. First, even if invalidism should come to them, let them remember Charlotte Elliott, who has saved thousands by her song, "Just as I am, without one plea." Second, if disgrace should come, he reminded them of North Carolina's writer who climbed from prison into fame. Third, youth should be no deterrent, as he showed by Elizabeth Prentiss, and Joseph Grigg. Fourth, household cares and domestic responsibilities ought to be worthily done, but he instanced noble housekeepers who had "neglected not the gift that was in them," among others Mrs. Phoebe Brown, author of "I love to steal a while away from every cumbering care."

Upon the conclusion of the literary address which was a gem, President Turrentine among other things announced that the Leroy Lee Smith prize offered for the best work in English by a member of the freshman class had been awarded to Miss Mary Dixon Hines of Clinton, N. C.; and that the T. C. Smith scholarship given for work in Religious Education had been awarded Miss Mary Eliza Sutton, Kinston, N. C.

Mr. C. H. Ireland of Greensboro gave $25 prize for the best picture submitted and a prize of $15 for the second best by the students in art.

Miss Margaret M. McMahan, Mocksville, won the first prize and the second was awarded Mrs. W. H. Hall, Greensboro, N. C.

Mr. C. S. Wallace, chairman of the board of trustees, announced that the board had determined to raise $500,000 additional endowment and that the alumnae association at its meeting Monday night had formulated plans and expected to secure $100,000 of this amount. The alumnae association is enthusiastically behind the movement and are confident of success.

ADMIRABLE WORK AT WEST HICKORY

I am happy to report a successful meeting in our West Hickory church, April 29-May 13. Brother Kirkpatrick did the preaching. It was well done. Our people did good coming, singing and working. There were forty professions of reclamation or conversion.

Our West Hickory church has raised the second quarter of conference collections. The whole charge is raising the second quarter.

Our Advocate list is now 103. West Hickory gave the pastor a great birthday dinner on April 29th. My people are so good to me that I desire to do more good for them.

WILLIAMSTON AND HAMILTON

"And the Lord God planted a garden eastward in Eden." The exact location is not known, but one might almost imagine that it was not far from Martin county—specifically, the Williamston and Hamilton charge. The people have received us most cordially, and we feel that we are among some of the best folks in the land.

We found the larder, cupboard and pantry thoroughly stocked with good things too numerous to mention, from hams to table salt. Then, as if that were not enough, hot dishes came in for days after we arrived.

Hamilton is a loyal place, too. Some weeks ago I was asked to remain until Monday for a meeting of the Ladies' Aid. After devotional exercises the hostess handed me a package with a string attached. I traced the string out into the hall, where I found several large baskets filled with all the necessary accessories for a pounding. I packed the back of my four-cylinder as full as the good roads of 1930 would warrant, and the good ladies stacked the rest about and upon me after I had taken my seat. I felt more like Santa Claus than ever I did before, and they said all I lacked was the whiskers.

We have just closed at Williamston what was known as the biggest revival the town has ever had. The people co-operated with us in a most excellent way. We had with us the Stewart-Goodchild party of Burlington, N. C. Rev. William Stewart was the preacher, and he preached with such force and power that the whole town was drawn to him and to God. Rev. R. C. Goodchild led the singing and was assisted by Mrs. Goodchild. They also took an active part in all our prayer meetings, and their very lives seemed to hallow any company in which they were.

The Christians were strengthened, differences of long standing were settled, and men and women came to God in the old-time way. Our services were for two weeks, and the entire town is wishing that the party had been engaged for a longer time.

Twenty-five have already joined the Methodist church, and we feel certain that several more will come in. There were several to go to other churches in town. Mr. Stewart proved himself a friend of sinners but a bitter and uncompromising enemy of sin. We are hoping to have them with us again next year for a month. If their services are secured the town will provide either a tent or a warehouse, as the church was crowded and many turned away during this meeting.

We have just begun a tent meeting at Hamilton with the Ed. G. Caldwell party of Dillon, S. C., and are hoping for a great meeting there also.

WINSTON-SALEM DISTRICT CONFERENCE

Met with the Farmington church May 24-25. Attendance was good, notwithstanding the unfavorable weather. Visitors to the conference: Rev. D. M. Litaker of the Statesville district, Rev. W. F. Womble of Greensboro district, Rev. A. W. Plyler of the Christian Advocate, Rev. W. O. Goode of the Christian Education Movement, Rev. R. M. Courtney, Centenary secretary, Miss Grace Bradley, field secretary for the Epworth League.

With the exception of the brief morning session, Thursday, Bishop Denny presided throughout the conference. His presidency of the conference was a blessing to all who attended. His sermons Thursday evening and Friday morning will long be remembered by those present as powerful messages from a prophet of God who showed us the things of Christ and who rightly divided the word of truth.

Reports from the various charges in the district showed that under the virile leadership of Presiding Elder Newell new churches are being built, church debts of long standing have been paid, Sunday schools are having unprecedented growth. Many additions to the membership reported and every interest of the church being taken care of.

William Oscar Nanny of Erlanger, William Adams Kerr of Davie circuit, and Daniel Grady Smith of Denton circuit were granted license to preach.

Henry R. Dwire of Winston-Salem was elected lay leader, Geo. L. Hackney of Davidson, and T. H. Redman of Davie county, were elected associate lay leaders.

Leon Cash, F. A. Stith, T. H. Redman, F. S. Lambeth, G. L. Hackney, Frank P. Hanes, J. F. Hanes and Mrs. W. A. Newell were elected delegates to the annual conference.

Mount Olivet church was selected as the meeting place for next year.

Farmington people gave to the conference unstinted hospitality. They did it with ease and pleasure; a better community could hardly be found. Their church is in a lovely grove, well kept grounds, church building is neat, attractive and well furnished. The pastor, C. O. Kennerly, is in high favor and acted the part of host well. The district conference will be glad to get another invitation to hold its session in Farmington.

Beginning with a Methodist testimony service, a fine sermon by Rev. Z. E. Barnhardt, continuing with reports that give the sound of victory, sermons, expositions, and lectures by the bishop, the fine spirit of the conference, the atmosphere of the community, altogether made this one of the most pleasant and successful district conferences in the history of the district.

THE JUNALUSKA CROSS

Mrs. Nannie M. Pleasants.

The night was dark and cheerless, too, As gloomy paths of sin, While trains and trains were passing through The mountains' western rim.

The tired trainmen with a sigh Watched o'er the gloomy plain, Through clouds that reached from earth to sky, As onward sped the train.

When shone a radiant beam across The hills and glorious plain— 'Twas Junaluska's gleaming Cross— It lighted heart and brain.

A traveler 'dear was passing through The shades of mortal night, And whispered, nearing heaven's view, Of Junaluska's light.

To let its light gleam ever on, For hearts with pain and loss Will hearten as they look upon The Junaluska Cross.

Let Calvary's sacred token stand— It joy and peace distills O'er Junaluska's beauty and These everlasting hills.

A GOOD SHORT SERMON

"And now abideth Faith, Hope, Love, these three; but the greatest of these is Love."

Few, if any, except the great Teacher Himself, for "never man spake like this man," could say more with fewer words than the apostle to the Gentiles. The Psalmist said, "The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament sheweth his handiwork; day unto day uttereth speech, and night unto night sheweth knowledge."

If we look into the northern heavens on a bright, clear night, we see one star greater than all the others, the North Star, "for one star differeth from another in glory,"—apparently fixed, immovable, which we designate as Love. We also see the Pleiades, the seven stars, moving in their vast orbit around it, but always pointing with unerring accuracy to it; these we name the seven virtues spoken of by St. Peter, and placing the scaling ladder upon the sure and safe foundation of "faith, without which it is impossible to please God," and "giving all diligence" we add to this faith virtue; a clean life, and to virtue knowledge, a wider and deeper comprehension of the wonderful gifts of our heavenly Father; and to knowledge temperance, a proper and well defined use of all the blessings granted unto us; and to temperance, patience, "by which we possess our souls"; and to patience godliness—God-likeness; for "beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be; we know that when he shall appear we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is"; and "to godliness kindness," for "he that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, how can love God whom he hath not seen?" and to brotherly kindness Love," the crown jewel, for "God is Love."

Having made these "additions," we are constrained again to exclaim with the Psalmist, "The heavens declare the glory of God and the firmament sheweth His handiwork, day unto day uttereth speech, and night unto night sheweth knowledge; there is no speech nor language wherein their voice is not heard, their line is gone out through all the earth and their words to the end of the world."

T. L. Rawley.

HOW CAN OLDER MEMBERS HELP YOUNG PEOPLE OF THE CHURCH?

In order to be prepared to be of service, and help our young people, the first requisite is to know them; get in personal touch with them; study the individuality and temperament of each one, and make them feel that we are interested in them and are anxious to help them; above all, make them know that we believe in them and are expecting of them great things. We must bring to them the realization that they must some day take our places.

And I want to say that if there is one word in the English language that stands out in bold relief against all others in reference to dealing with the young, it is patience, patience, and then patience. We can't emphasize it too strongly. The old adage, "You can't put old heads on young shoulders," is true. Don't expect too much of young people. The next best word that fits in here is sympathy. Patience and sympathy! With these two weapons, rightly aimed, we are ready for the battle and rest assured the conquest is ours. Let's be patient and sympathetic with our boys and girls.

Elderly people used to tell me to be blind and deaf to at least one-fourth of the misdeeds of my children. The same might be applied here.

And then, we remember how, when we were almost ready to give up the battle, some dear patient soul who understood us and sympathized with us, would come along and speak a word of comfort and encouragement, which meant so much, and would incite us to greater endeavor.

But for that matter, none of us are yet grown-ups in that respect. We all need encouragement. And by co-operation we can help each other. Let the strong help the weak, and vice versa. "A little child shall lead them."

The forbidden word, "don't," which is preached so much to parents might be applied here; we should not be forever telling our young people 'don't'. Let us entreat more and command less; guide more by example than precept.

Parents and teachers should live more with their children. We should enter more freely into their sports and little innocent ranks. And as they grow older, we should listen attentively and sympathetically to their views, and discuss with them the sterner and more serious problems of life.

Our young people must have amusement, they need and should have it, and they are going to get it from some source. It is our privilege, even duty, to see that they are provided with clean, wholesome, diversions to take the place of that which is detrimental to their moral and Christian character, which have a tendency to impede their spiritual growth.

Don't take anything from the young without giving something better in return.

As to the propriety of bringing swimming pools, tennis courts and such things into the church, there is diversity of opinion.

To my mind, what is good enough for the home, that is, the ideal home, is good enough for the church.

If dancing, that vile, disgraceful mode which is sometimes practiced in this enlightened, civilized age; if card playing, where prizes are given, and which is often called polished gambling, (for my part, I fail to see the polish), and which too often proves a veritable incubator for professional gamblers; if these indecent movies where obscene pictures are flashed upon the screen for the eyes of our young people to feast upon; I say, if all these things are good enough for our fine boys and girls, then they are good enough for the church.

We must provide for them something better and save them from these pitfalls.

We should sympathize and encourage them in their church work, and help them solve their problems.—Mrs. Ida Robinson Bostian.

How careful one ought to be to be kind and thoughtful of one's old friends. It is so soon too late to be good to them, and then one is always so grieved.—Sarah Orne Jewett.

THE CIRCLE PLAN

At a recent district meeting the question was asked, "Does the circle lessen the missionary spirit of the auxiliary, or tend to decrease the attendance upon the auxiliary monthly meetings?" As the circle was designed to foster and increase both, it seems wise to bring it to your attention at this time. This constitution and by-laws, drafted in 1914 by one of our conference auxiliaries for its own use, was adopted by our conference in session at Oxford in 1920, its by-laws subject to minor modifications to suit local conditions. The urgent appeal comes down to us from our leaders, "Keep the missionary society missionary." We are in danger of losing sight of our reason for being, because of the numerous activities introduced into our society through its different departments, all of which are necessary to be done by the Christian women of our church, but we must not forget that first of all we are missionary women, studying, planning, working and giving to carry or to send the gospel to those who have it not, whether they be in our midst or in far away foreign lands. The circle takes care of all our church activities, but the first and principal object of it is to stimulate interest in the cause of missions and to increase the membership of the auxiliaries and the attendance at the monthly meetings. Let's not allow the circle to become the means of defeating the very object for which it was created. It is up to you, presidents and church leaders, to make the circle what it should be, a missionary and spiritual uplift, or to allow it to degenerate into merely a business machine for making and collecting money, and an excuse for your members, if attending it, not to attend the regular auxiliary meeting.

Constitution.

Sec. 1. The name. The membership of the auxiliary shall be divided into groups or circles, by neighborhoods, or other arrangement to meet local conditions or preferences, each circle to be called "The _____ Circle of the Woman's Missionary Society of the M. E. Church, South."

Sec. 2. The object. The circle shall not be a separate organization from the auxiliary; its object shall be to increase the membership of; and the attendance upon the auxiliary; to stimulate interest in the cause of missions; to train our timid women for leaders and officers in the auxiliary; to carry on all the woman's work of the church to greater advantage by working in small bands; and to keep in closer touch with all the women of our church.

Sec. 3. The membership. The membership of the auxiliary shall be members of the circles as divided, and every new member of the auxiliary shall be cordially invited, and expected, to join one of the circles, if not brought into the auxiliary through some circle; all rules made by the Council applying to membership in the auxiliary, shall apply equally to membership in the circle.

Sec. 4. The officers. The officers of the circle shall be a leader, a secretary, a treasurer, who shall be elected annually to serve one year, or until the next subsequent election, at the same time as, and according to the rules, for the election of the auxiliary officers.

Sec. 5. Meetings. The circles shall each hold one regular meeting every month, on the Tuesday afternoon before the first Sunday; and shall be subject to a called meeting if an emergency in the church work shall arise to require it.

By-Laws.

Sec. 1. Dues. There shall be no circle dues, only the regular auxiliary dues, pledges, or assessments, which shall be collected through the circles.

Sec. 2. (a) Duties of the officers. The leader shall conduct all circle meetings; shall call up all her circle members, notifying them of time and place of meeting, urging them to attend; shall keep the pastor informed of any who are ill or in need in her neighborhood, holding herself ready to respond to any call from him for co-operation with him in his work, or to send one of her members in her place, whenever he calls for her aid.

The secretary shall take, and read the minutes of all meetings; shall keep and call the roll, shall read the Constitution and By-Laws, and the Standard of Excellence, at the appointed times in the meetings, shall write a very condensed report of the circle meeting, which she shall read and hand to the auxiliary secretary when her circle is asked for its report at the next auxiliary meeting.

The treasurer shall collect all dues, pledges, and assessments, at every meeting, from her circle members, who should have the contributions ready in small printed envelopes made especially for this purpose, enclose all in a large envelope, writing plainly upon the outside the whole amount within and from what circle it comes, and hand to the auxiliary treasurer when called for it at the next auxiliary meeting; shall in like manner collect the emergency fund dues and hand to the emergency fund treasurer at the auxiliary meeting; and shall keep a business-like account of all in her treasurer's book.

(b) Duties of the circle. At the regular monthly meeting of the circles, a devotional and missionary program shall be carried out, and such woman's business of the church be attended to, as shall come up from time to time for consideration and transaction. Each circle shall in regular order of rotation be responsible for arranging and conducting the missionary part of the program at the regular auxiliary meeting; shall seek out and visit strangers and members of our church moving into its neighborhood, giving them cordial invitations to our church services and missionary society, shall keep in touch with, and to try to help, those who are ill and in need in its neighborhood and elsewhere; shall carry on all the regular woman's work, and any extra work undertaken by the superintendent of social service, the president of the society, or at the request of the pastor, making report of all such at the next auxiliary meeting.

The Standard of Excellence.

Measuring up to which for a year entitles any circle to a place for the following year upon Roll of Honor:

1. Punctual attendance at and prompt opening of all meetings.
2. Each circle must hold one meeting every month.
3. At least ten visits must be made every month by every circle to the sick, needy, strangers, or to solicit new members.
4. One-half the membership must subscribe to the "Missionary Voice."
5. Two-thirds of the membership must be present at every meeting unless providentially hindered.
6. Every member of the circle must be present at the auxiliary meeting when that circle conducts the missionary program.
7. Each circle in regular rotation must be responsible for arranging and conducting the missionary part of the program at certain auxiliary meetings during the year.
8. Monthly contribution, by each member, of pledges made by or for her.

9. All dues and pledges must be paid up in full quarterly.

10. The circle programs must consist of Bible lesson, missionary items, discussion of, and planning for the work, and prayers for the work and the officers.

TO MISS BENNETT

O, peerless Leader! Whither shall we turn

For one to take thy place? Our sad hearts burn

Within us at the very thought of thee,
And thy great life of love and loyalty.
Soldier of Christ! The King's own messenger!

Thy words and work a benediction were!

Yet, infinitely more thy death shall be
To those whom thou dost serve so faithfully,

A constant call to higher things above,
By consecration to a life of love,
Great works like thine can never,
never die,

They call us on to immortality.

Ah, friend, we knew when last we walked with thee

Thy feet already touched eternity.

Thou seest today the Master face to face

And with those ministering saints, who by His grace

Forever serve, bound not by breadth or length

Of time, thy works go on from strength to strength.

So may those of us, who still linger here

To carry on the work to thee so dear,
Think not of thee as our departed friend,

But ever present, loving to the end.
May we, like thee, be fit to take our place

Around His throne, and serve Him face to face.

—Hortense L. McCleskey.

NOTICE

The literature for the Belle H. Bennett Memorial program has been distributed and it is hoped that each president has it well in hand by this time. It is explained that this program be substituted for the June Social Service leaflets. You are asked to choose one of the following suggestions concerning the Social Service program:

1. If your auxiliary is accustomed to holding more than one meeting each month, put the Social Service program on at your extra meeting.

2. If you hold only one meeting each month, make it an all-day meeting, presenting one program in the morning, and the other in the afternoon.

3. Have a special meeting some time during the month of June at which time the Social Service program may be presented.

Let the Belle H. Bennett Memorial program have a most careful and prayerful preparation. May the day that it is presented be a day of high spiritual power for the women of your auxiliary.

A WORD ABOUT THE PROGRAM

It is greatly hoped that this program may result in large things for the kingdom. We can best express our love for our great leader, Miss Belle H. Bennett, by undertaking a great advance for the cause of the Master whom she served. Obedient love called her to a life of self-sacrifice; through complete obedience to God's call, she accomplished what seemed impossible, establishing an institution which has blessed the lives of thousands upon thousands of women and children. May the Father inspire every member of the Woman's Missionary Society with a love like hers, and with the burning desire for the Kingdom which filled her heart. God is calling us today to take up the task which she has laid down, and to go forward in His name.

The enlargement of the kingdom requires above all more and better equipped workers. Our love for our leader, our love for the institution into which she put her best life, the command of the Master—all are calling us to make gifts of sacrificial love. May we respond in high obedience to our Master and our King.

The Shelby district meeting will be held in Fallston on Thursday, May 31. It is earnestly desired that every society in the district be represented, and also that the churches where no organizations exist will send delegates. Mrs. B. T. Morris, Dis. Sec.

The beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Wills of Greensboro was the scene of a very lovely party Tuesday, February 15th. The hostesses were the members of the executive board of the Margaret Foster Missionary Society. The guests were the members of the Student Volunteer bands of the N. C. College and Greensboro College.

Mrs. T. Moody Stroud added greatly to the pleasure of the evening with several brilliant piano solos and a group of clever compositions of her own.

Mr. William Monroe and Mr. J. Foster Barnes delighted all present with their voice numbers.

Delicious refreshments consisting of strawberry ice cream and white cake were served.

Hostesses and guests regretted when the time came for school girls to be on their way home.

My Dear Mrs. Boyer:

Please announce the following: There will be a great Social Service Week at Lake Junaluska July 1-8, under the auspices of the Commission on Temperance and Social Service of the M. E. Church, South.

We shall have specialists of nationwide fame to address audiences on the following topics each night. In the morning there will be intensive discussions and conferences on the same topics in which leaders of the thought of our church will participate.

Monday, July 1—Child Welfare. Speakers from Children's Bureau.

Tuesday, July 2—Social Hygiene. Speaker from the national association.

Wednesday, July 3—Race Relations, Mob Violence and Its Control.

Thursday, Friday and Saturday—Industrial and Economic Conditions with speakers from standpoint of the Worker, the Employer, the Church, and the Federal Bureaus of Women and Labor.

Sunday—A great sermon and addresses on International Peace.

The conference officers of missionary societies are especially urged to be present. Our work is represented in shaping this program. It is the wish of the commission that we have a large attendance of representative and outstanding women.

Mrs. W. A. Newell,
Ex-officio Member Representing the Woman's Missionary Council.

The following resolution by the executive committee of the Federation of Woman's Boards of Foreign Missions, and presented to the Council of Women for Home Missions for its adoption, is sent to you with the hope that you will give it as wide publicity as possible through your missionary and church publications, and that you will have action taken at every public meeting, urging the women to appeal to their state legislature and national congressman for support. Publication of this resolution in local daily papers will greatly aid. Aim to reach every local society.

Foreign mission boards will be responsible if they do not act with regard to this danger which strengthens the liquor men in their attempt to hold

THE SHELBY SCHOOL

The Shelby Co-operative Standard Training School for Methodist and Presbyterian Sunday school workers is in progress at this writing and is proving to be quite a success. In spite of continual rain the attendance has been constant and good. In addition to a good attendance from Central and LaFayette Street Methodist churches in Shelby and the Shelby Presbyterian church fine delegations have been attending regularly from the Polkville circuit, the Belwood circuit and Beulah, on the Cherryville circuit. Around 125 faithful Sunday school workers have braved the rain and have stuck to the school throughout, some of them coming distances of over twenty miles, or forty miles for the round trip. About half of the number are working diligently for credit. Five courses are being given.

A GOOD CLASS

One of the courses offered in the Shelby school is that of "Sunday School Organization and Administration," taught by your humble servant. So far as the personnel of the pupils go it is a mighty good class. Among the pastors we have Revs. A. L. Stanford, J. W. Ingle, D. H. Rhinehart, B. Wilson and W. A. Murray, of the Presbyterian church. Among the superintendents are noted William Lineberger, Marvin Blanton, A. B. C. DePriest, M. L. White, Edney Willis, S. R. Wolfe and P. L. Hennessa, of the Methodist churches, and I. C. Griffin and J. S. McKnight, of the Presbyterian church. The class has been regular and responsive.

LAFAYETTE STREET

After driving over one hundred miles late Saturday night and early Sunday morning I arrived at LaFayette Street, Shelby, last Sunday morning in ample time for the opening of Sunday school. The good music they have there soon restored me to a rejuvenated temperament and I thoroughly enjoyed the Sunday school, directed so well by Supt. Marvin Blanton and Pastor J. W. Ingle, both of whom were right on the job. Following the Sunday school hour I had the pleasure of speaking during the eleven o'clock hour to the congregation. One can speak after hearing the good music they make at LaFayette Street, helped as it is by an orchestra of six pieces. Since Sunday Brother Ingle has held a conference with interested parties with reference to making plans for a new church and Sunday school building that will take care of the growing situation. Prospects are good for enlargement right away.

CENTRAL, SHELBY

Rev. A. L. Stanford and his Central congregation are doing big things. One of the most convenient and best arranged parsonages I have seen anywhere is in course of construction. This parsonage is a brick veneered house of eleven well arranged rooms. Last Sunday the congregation decided unanimously to proceed at once towards the erection of a modern church plant on the lot purchased some years ago which adjoins the post-office and faces the public square. Nothing short of the best church plant will be built for the Sunday school and church services now being so largely attended. Supt. William Lineberger's departmentalized Sunday school numbers about 500 each Sunday and Pastor Stanford's congregations are overflowing the church building. I spoke last Sunday evening, a very inclement evening, to an audience that taxed the capacity of the building. This audience had come expecting that the regular services would be held. Not one person, but all persons seem to be on the job at Central and every one is happy. It is delightful to note the signs of progress. Shelby is one of the most delightful places one can come to anyway.

SIGNING UP

President J. B. Ivey, of the Western North Carolina Conference Wesley Bible Class Federation, has secured the services of three fine fellows for featuring the evening sessions of our approaching Federation which is to be held at Lake Junaluska next July 9-11. Mr. Clyde R. Hoey, statesman and Christian, the beloved teacher of the men's Bible class of Central Methodist church, Shelby, a class that numbers each Sunday over 150 stalwart men, will deliver the principal address Monday evening, July 9. Dr. Ashley Chappell, the beloved and effective pastor of Central Methodist church, Asheville, will feature the Tuesday evening program. Dr. Wade C. Smith, pastor of The Church by the Side of the Road, a Presbyterian church in Greensboro, will favor us with the closing address Wednesday evening. These three gentlemen will make our evening programs very much worth while and we are delighted to know that their services are secured.

UNITY

A fine lot of people dwell together in fellowship at Unity, the leading congregation on the Landis charge, the circuit that Rev. J. C. Brown is serving so well. According to promise Miss Jenkins and I went to Unity a few Sundays ago, the occasion being the third quarterly meeting for the charge held by Dr. T. F. Marr during the present year. After a sermon by the presiding elder at the morning hour and dinner served on the grounds a Sunday school Institute was held during the afternoon. Supt. M. C. Sercy and his good wife are leading in some mighty good work at Unity and the cause is progressing.

PARTICIPATING

Quite a number of our Sunday schools are still participating in the Centenary as shown by the following tabulation of facts. It is earnestly hoped that when the Centenary payments have been made in full that our helpful schools will want to continue to give to missions in some form of special giving. Already many pamphlets have been mailed out giving a list of specials that Sunday schools may be interested in, and others will be mailed from time to time. It is to be hoped that none of our schools will cease to be missionary schools. But note by districts the total tabulations:

BROTHER PASTOR

Kindly remember that two good Sunday school courses will be given this summer at the Preachers' Summer School at Trinity College beginning June 6 and extending six days. Organization and Administration of the Sunday School and Principles of Religious Teaching will be offered. Our Sunday School Board voted at our last annual conference to help out in the expense attached to the going of a number of our pastors who will this summer attend, either at Trinity or at Lake Junaluska, the standard training courses and work for credit, provided that this information be used in furthering the work back at home. Three two-week sessions of the Junaluska school will be held this year, the first one beginning July 11 and closing July 26, and the others following during the next four weeks.

NO HONOR ROLL

We have no Sunday School Day honor roll this week. But this is not because there are not some deserving Sunday schools. The mails have some way miscarried and I have not heard from Brother Dunham as to the Sunday schools reporting to him. Look for the honor roll next week.

North Carolina Conference

DOINGS DOWN IN GREENE

Your conference Sunday school workers spent a delightful week, May 20-25, with the Sunday school forces of Greene county. At Snow Hill we held a non-standard training school for the workers of Snow Hill and Hookerton charges, which embrace all the Methodist Sunday schools of the county, and there was a bano-fide enrollment of about 60 workers. Two courses were offered, two classes in each were held every evening in the high school building, and, in spite of public school commencement exercises and entertainments, the attendance was excellent.

The school began Sunday evening at Snow Hill church with a great union service. The auditorium was crowded. Rev. C. T. Rogers, Rev. R. R. Grant, Miss Keene, Senator J. S. Hargett, of Trenton, district secretary, and the writer had a part in the program. Special music by the Jerusalem choir of 45 voices was a pleasant feature. Class work began Monday evening and continued through Friday.

Snow Hill, the county seat of Greene, which, incidentally, is one of the foremost agricultural counties of the state, is showing signs of remarkable improvement. The streets have recently been paved and sidewalks put down. It also has a practically new and a thoroughly up-to-date brick high school building. With these improvements, electric lights, and handsome residences, Snow Hill has the appearance of an up-to-date municipality.

In order to keep abreast with these civic improvements and to meet the needs of the community religiously, which, again incidentally, is almost exclusively Methodist, the congregation at Snow Hill has in prospect the construction of a Sunday school and church building to take the place of the inadequate one-room wooden structure now occupying a prominent place in the heart of the town. A movement was launched a year or two ago, made considerable progress, and no doubt would have gone through but for the fact that, on account of unusual rains, crops were practically a failure last season. An adequate Sunday school and church building, nevertheless, is still in the thinking and planning of the pastor and many of the people, and no doubt in time be realized.

REV. MR. PLYLER-PROF. MCKAY

Zeal for the Sunday school cause and self-sacrifice for its promotion are not things of the past. We see examples and illustrations in the North Carolina conference almost every day. We still have men and women willing to deny themselves, take up their cross and follow Him. Rev. M. T. Plyler, presiding elder of the Durham district, and Prof. Irving B. McKay, of Trinity College, did not have to teach in our training school at Roxboro recently, they had an abundance of other things to do and might quite easily have offered good reasons for declining our request for their services. They did render this service, however, and traveled 70 miles through the country and over detours each day in order to do it, and they didn't expect and didn't receive a cent for their services. They gave their services to the Sunday School Board. We, therefore, gladly and thus publicly express our appreciation to them. Our main reason for writing this, however, is to call attention to the fact that hundreds and tens of hundreds of men and women are backing their prayers for the coming of the kingdom with unselfish efforts toward its establishment.

ON THE SILER CITY CHARGE

"We have a teacher-training class organized and going at Hickory Mountain church," writes Rev. O. I. Hinson, pastor of the Siler City charge. "We are studying 'The Pupil,' the first book in the training course, and the class seems to be enthusiastic. We have enrolled 24 members in this country church. We intend to organize a class here at Siler City right away."

A good start, say we. The way to have trained workers is to train them. Every Sunday school needs trained workers; therefore every Sunday school should have a training class. Does yours have one? If not, why not?

"I WANT TO MAKE IT BEST"

"Yesterday we at Bullock's church (Creedmoor circuit, Raleigh district) made an attempt to organize our adult class along the lines which you explained during the training course at Creedmoor some time ago, and as I am the only member of the class who attended the training course, they elected me president."

The foregoing is the introductory paragraph of a letter from the president of this class requesting further information. "As president of the class," says he, "I want to make it the best, and I need all the help I can get."

"We want to enroll as a Wesley Bible class," he continues, "and eventually we aim to get our school organized along the improved plan. We want to get the whole school organized and get our credit as a progressive school next fifth Sunday meeting."

We of course are always delighted to give all assistance possible to individuals, classes, and schools desiring to improve their organization and work, and we like to receive requests like the one referred to above.

"Good, better, best;
We should never rest
Until the good is better
And the better best."

WELDON DISTRICT REPORT

The April report of Mr. E. S. Yarbrough, Weldon district secretary, indicates that this splendid worker is not allowing grass to grow under his feet. During this month he traveled 752 miles, visited eight schools, made eight addresses, and placed five Programs of Work. Schools visited were North Henderson April 1, Middleburg and Providence April 8, Jackson April 12, Macon April 15, Murfreesboro and Winton April 22, and Rich Square April 29.

LET'S PAY OUR PLEDGES

Reference has previously been made to the fact that the Sunday schools of the North Carolina conference, as a whole, rank at the very foot of the list among the conferences of the entire connection in the percentage paid on their Centenary pledges. This is not a record of which to be at all proud, and the writer derives no pleasure from referring to it. It's the condition, nevertheless, and the only way to change it is to bestir ourselves and pay up. We intend to pay; nobody believes anything else. But let's be about this business NOW and save ourselves from this discreditable record.

HELENA CHURCH

The people of this church are glad to report the completion of their new church with five nice large Sunday school rooms at Helena and first services held yesterday—Sunday school in the morning, preaching in the afternoon and Epworth League that night.

This records one of the most remarkable and greatest undertakings that has been in our community for years, or perhaps at all—something that was at the time thought almost an impossibility. But for the untiring efforts, prayers and work of our much beloved pastor, Rev. J. C. Williams, and the absolute loyal support of the ladies of this church and men and even so many who are not members—people even hundreds of miles away. Hardly have I ever seen such a spirit shown and we feel so much indebted to so many of our friends and acquaintances and pray that God may some way, somehow or somewhere richly bless them for their loyal help by way of contributions and other ways.

Seven months ago today our pastor himself with a pole axe, marked the first forest pine tree over on the Mt. Tirzah road in that grand old neighborhood—the lumbar from that tree made part of the siding for this nice spacious new church. And we want to say by the second Sunday in June we feel that we shall have the church paid for—every dollar—only just a few hundred dollars behind at this writing; and more than that, it has been nicely painted outside.

We could go on writing about this church and praising our people and the pastor covering many pages, but we feel that it would be an imposition to hold all the columns of your paper at this writing.

However, in conclusion, it's the intention of our pastor to give you a detail of all work, material donations, at an early date, or as soon as same may be intelligently compiled.

We must say this, we give God the glory without question, as without his mysterious and spiritual prompting of the people to such hearty support and attention we could never have accomplished anything, and all without a simple hitch, mishap or discord among us whatever. That one thing is the greatest of all, and causes us to feel that God's spirit surely fully dominated. Then comes our pastor, Bro. Williams, and God must surely have been with him. We number him among the few who could have accomplished so great a work in such a short time. We doubt if we could hardly have put our hands upon, but a very few who could have carried this work to such a glorious finish, without discord or a halt. May God bless him and may we thank God for the services of Brother Williams.

Then next the ladies of this church who worked without tiring night and day, and gave their grandest support in every way that may be imagined towards this work—we cannot begin to describe their many labors and prayers—particularly do we boast in that respect and feel a life's indebtedness to them, as well as the children likewise.

Our men, too, they have done great work, and also so many people outside of the church. It has been the most glorious work that anyone may desire to be connected with, and we trust that such work in this community may not stop here, but go on as time sapses and he recorded in God's kingdom as among His sweetest diaries.

"Ty."

EAST DURHAM

The Epworth League of Carr M. E. church gave the beautiful pageant, "A Modern Prodigal," Sunday, April 29. The large auditorium was filled long before time for service.

Miss Eva Shackley presided over the meeting and made the opening address.

The character, "Hardy Mann" was taken by Odell Mansfield, who carried the part of a bum in a most excellent way. "The Angel Girl," Miss Ruth Goodwin, and the "Spirits" representing the four departments, all deserve special mention. The play was brought to a climax by a solo by Mr. Luther Glenn.

The city union meeting for May was held at Calvary church the first Sunday night, at which time the efficiency manner was awarded our league for the fourth consecutive month. Our report showed fifty per cent of our members signing covenant cards.

The revival services are now being held at our church, in which the Epworth Leaguers are taking an active part.

Gladys L. Rollins,
Cor. Sec.

SLAUGHTER WRITES BOOKLET

Rev. B. B. Slaughter, of Tarboro, has just published a booklet concerning the Workers' Council which will be of interest and no doubt helpful to Sunday school officers and teachers. The purpose of the booklet is to suggest various matters of business to be considered by Sunday school workers in the regular council meetings. It gives definite plans, so that no council should ever suffer for the lack of something to do. He is selling it for twenty-five cents, or twenty dollars a hundred.

OUR NEW CHURCH AT HELENA

I will call to the reader's attention a few facts concerning our new church at Helena. In seven months' time under the leadership of our pastor, Rev. J. C. Williams, a new church has been erected in our midst. Instead of our old one-room church we have a main auditorium with five Sunday school rooms. We had an elaborate opening service on the second Sunday in May with a large audience. Since that time there has been a marked increase in our audience both at Sunday school and preaching service. We have a small membership, but with a new church and new enthusiasm we have great hopes for increased spiritual interest and new membership.

We have our revival slated for July and with the preliminary work that our pastor is already doing we are praying for much good to be accomplished then.

Mr. Clifton Erwin, a student of Trinity College, is to assist our pastor in the work of this charge through the summer. We are positive that he and Brother Williams will do much good.

WAYNESVILLE DISTRICT CONFERENCE

The 25th session of the Waynesville district conference convened at Franklin, N. C., on the evening of May 9th, 1923, with Rev. R. S. Howie, presiding elder in the chair. The introductory sermon was preached by Rev. G. D. Herman of the Waynesville station.

After the sermon the organization for the session was perfected. L. Lee Marr of Bryson City was elected secretary and called the roll of members, after which conference adjourned until Thursday morning at 9 o'clock.

Thursday morning conference met promptly at nine o'clock with Bishop Denny presiding and continuously during the remainder of the session. The hishop was really hard on some of us in that he would not let us comment on the good things he said and did, but we can hold a very high opinion of the bishop nevertheless, and do say that he is worthy of all the good things that any of us may feel inclined to say for him. The fact that the conference was held at Franklin in the midst of some of the finest people we know, and having the hishop to sit with our worthy presiding elder to direct the proceedings made the session exceedingly interesting and profitable. Let us hope that we may meet again some time in Franklin under similar conditions.

It was interesting, furthermore, to have with us Revs. A. W. Plyler, T. A. Groce, W. O. Goode, W. M. Curtis, and also Mrs. J. Dale Stentz, who addressed the conference in the interest of their respective works.

The following were elected delegates to the next annual conference: R. L. Porter, Franklin; A. C. Reynolds, Waynesville; R. J. Roane, Whittier; Mrs. J. L. Reeves, Ravensford; M. Buchanan, Sylva; J. M. Boone, Andrews; J. Dale Stentz, Lake Junaluska; R. A. Aikin, Murphy.

Murphy station was selected as the place for holding the next district conference. The following resolution of thanks was presented and read by Prof. A. C. Reynolds, which was unanimously adopted:

Since letters were sent to all the delegates and other members of the Waynesville district conference urging them to attend, since all trains were met by men who knew how to make a safe trip by automobile through these picturesque mountains, since the people of Franklin have opened their homes and hearts for the entertainment of all who have come, since the delegation of the conference has been of the highest order, since good music has been furnished and the preaching has been of the best type; he it therefore resolved:

That the visiting members of the said district conference do now show our appreciation of the many favors shown by a rising vote of thanks; and he it further resolved that our secretary he requested to send a copy of these resolutions to the North Carolina Christian Advocate, to the Asheville Citizen, and to the local paper at Franklin for publication.

(Signed) A. C. Reynolds,
J. P. Hipps,
P. L. Terrell.

The splendid session of the Waynesville district conference now adjourned with benediction by Bishop Denny.

J. Lee Marr, Secretary.

MISSIONARY TEACHER WANTED

We are in need of a teacher for our school in Santiago, Cuha, which opens the 3rd of September. I feel sure that there are many young women in North Carolina who are anxious to work for the Master in just such work as we have for them to do here. This is an opportunity for some of the pastors who have a list of volunteers ready for the work. We need a teacher to teach English, piano, and to assist the pastor in all kinds of work in the church. A college education is not required, however, a college graduate is preferred. We pay a salary of $900 per year and travel expenses. Three months vacation is granted every two years. This affords an excellent opportunity for one to work for the Master, to master the Spanish language, and become acquainted with our near neighbor—Cuha. I am depending upon our brethren in North Carolina to help me get the teacher we need.

Our work in Santiago is progressing fine. We have had the best school ever this year and the prospects are bright for even a better one next year. God is wonderfully blessing our church in Cuha.

J. W. Fitzgerald,
Apartado 56, Santiago de Cuha.

RANLO DOING THINGS

The church has been rapidly increasing in both numbers and interest under leadership of Rev. R. L. Forbis. The members seem to have taken on new life and are working with a vim and determined spirit to make this community, through the help of God, a glorious and better place.

In fact the membership has so increased that when planning to build a church we found it advisable and necessary to build two, one at Smyre Mill and the other at Rex Rauls. The building sites and plans for these churches have been received and the workers will begin shortly upon the construction work.

This work has all been sponsored and worked since Rev. Mr. Forbis has been with us. We are glad to have a man of such ability and purpose.

The Epworth League chapter was organized a few Sundays ago and the work is fast getting under way through the able leadership of Mr. J. R. McFalls and his able leaders.

The Ladies' Aid Society, the live organization of ladies, continue their good work in discussing and settling the affairs pertaining to that body. The spirit manifested at the meetings, which are held once a month, is truly wonderful. These meetings are held in the homes of the members, where delightful courses are served.

Since the beginning of conference year the donations, plus dues of the members, has exceeded over one hundred and fifty dollars. The parsonage was furnished by this society and many donations have been made since. These ladies are to be highly commended for their work.

The leaders of the society are as follows: Mrs. Marshall Dilling, president; Mrs. R. W. Holland, vice president; Mrs. W. E. Beck, secretary; Miss Hattie Mill, treasurer.

The mother's Bible class, a new organization, led by Rev. Mr. Forbis, hold their meetings and accomplish much good in the study and discussion of Scriptures.

Mrs. W. E. Bell.

ROUEMONT CHARGE

We are getting a few things done over here. Two revivals have already been held on the charge, assisted by Revs. Wm. Stuart and R. C. Goodchild. These were good meetings—souls were born into the kingdom and hacksiders reclaimed. I highly recommend these brethren to anyone desiring the plain gospel message preached and sin painted in all of its evil ways of the modern day.

The work at all the churches looks hopeful for a fine year. Rougemont, Bahama and Sylvan are getting new visions and are making advanced steps. There is good work being done at all the places.

Our parsonage was finished just after conference and now we have the money ready and have given the contract to have it painted at once.

Bahama and some of the Tahor folks gave a fine substantial pounding a few nights ago which was highly appreciated these days when things are so scarce to find and money hard to get. May the Giver of all blessings remember them with the joys of life.

J. F. Starnes.

"To say that we can be just as good Christians outside the church as in it reminds us of the man who boasted that one may be a good soldier without joining the army."

In the matter of friendship I have observed that disappointment arises chiefly, not from liking our friends too well, or thinking of them too highly, but rather from an over-estimate of their liking for and opinion of us; and that if we guard ourselves with sufficient scrupulousness of care from error in that direction, and can be content and even happy to give more affection than we receive, we may manage to go through life with consistency and constancy, unemittered by that misanthropy which springs from revulsions of feeling.—Charlotte Bronte.

Nelson J. Miles is now making dates for spring and summer evangelistic services as choir leader, using Rodeheaver's Victory Songs. Pastors desiring his service may write him at Box 95, Dayton, Va.

How I wish some friend or friends would make possible that swimming pool and seven passenger automobile which would mean so much to our Orphanage.

* * * *

Dr. T. N. Ivey was a true friend of the Methodist Orphanage. He visited us every opportunity he had. For many years he served on the board of trustees. He wrought well in his day and generation. Methodism and the Kingdom of God have been advanced because he lived and labored among us.

* * * *

Brother J. S. Wynne, a member of our board of trustees, took dinner with us a few Sundays ago. He is one of the few original trustees. Through these years he has rendered valuable service to our Home. He spends the winter in Florida and the summer in the western part of North Carolina. He is always welcomed at the Orphanage.

* * * *

That was a much appreciated visit of Hon. Henry A. Page. He is deeply interested in the Orphanage and shows his faith by his works in our behalf. The beautiful campus impressed him very much. He remarked that our land is very valuable and becoming more and more so each year. Regardless of how much it may advance in value he was of decided opinion that we ought never to sell any part of it. He voiced the sentiments of our people in this particular. Our North Carolina Methodism is demonstrating to the world its high estimate of childhood.

It is a source of genuine joy to us to know that Mr. Joseph G. Brown is gradually improving. Next to Edenton Street church and Sunday school comes the Methodist Orphanage in his interest and love. In season and out of season he has worked for the good of our Home. When the history of our Methodist Orphanage is written, a large share of its success will be ascribed to Brother Brown. He has given the Orphanage his means, time and fine business judgment without stint. Because of his devotion and disinterested love for our cause, he has enlisted a great host of friends who delight to share their gifts and love with our children. We sincerely trust and pray that a kind Providence will speedily restore him to his usual good health.

The invitation of Brother G. T. Adams was readily accepted to take the singing class to Dunn on the third Sunday morning. Commencement occasation at Four Oaks made it necessary for Brother Adams to be away. Doubtless the people of that community heard a good sermon as he preached to the graduating class. Brother Adams has made a great hit at Dunn as he always succeeds in whatever field he is called to labor. The people of Dunn are enthusiastic over him and well they may be. I think he has already taken over fifty into the church since conference. Hon. H. L. Godwin, for a long number of years a member of Congress, is the successful superintendent of the Sunday school. Under his wise leadership the school will attain to still larger things. He gave me a warm welcome. During my college days at Trinity he was one of my best friends and I am glad to say he is still a brother dearly beloved. Brother Lee, chairman of the board of trustees, welcomed the class in behalf of the church. A great congregation greeted us. It fell to my happy lot to be entertained in the beautiful home of my good friend, Jeff Barnes, a successful business man and a loyal member of the Methodist church. For the past few years his health has been poor, but he maintains a lively interest in the church and community. I had the pleasure of attending the men's Wesley Bible class. There were present about seventy-five that morning. The class has put through college one of our best girls. Such service is highly commendable.

When Miss Hilda Poe undertakes a thing you can rest assured that it is going to be done well. She planned for our entertainment while we were the guests of Hay Street Methodist church the third Sunday night. Kind friends went to Dunn on cars for us and conveyed us to Fayetteville. Hospitable homes received us gladly. It fell to my lot to be entertained at the parsonage. Brother H. A. Humble and charming family made my brief visit very pleasant in every way. I was sorry that an engagement called Brother Humble to Four Oaks, where he has been engaged in a revival for the past two weeks. He has a great grip on the people of Hay Street and Fayetteville generally. Possibly he is having the most successful pastorate of his entire ministry. He has taken more than a hundred members into the church since conference. The whole community has been wonderfully revived and stirred. The revival fires are still burning and great zeal on part of the laymen is evident on all hands. The results seem permanent. The attendance upon the service the night we were there was very large; in fact, it was one of the largest gatherings that has ever greeted us. Prof. M. B. Andrews, in absence of Brother Humble, was master of ceremonies. He is a graduate of Trinity College and succeeding wonderfully well in the educational world. He is now the superintendent of the city schools. Brother D. U. Sandlin also welcomed us. I was glad to have Bro. E. C. Maness and many of his members from Person Street and Calvary churches present on that happy occasion. Bro. T. H. Sutton, an honored superannuate preacher of our conference, and his wife were also present. There are no more saintly spirits among us than these servants of the Lord. They have wrought well. Brother Sutton is far from being strong. May God's grace abound unto him and may there be light about him at eventide.

WHERE GO TO COLLEGE?

There are three major considerations that determine the greatness, or the potential greatness, of an educational institution.

1. The Plant, including grounds, library, classrooms, laboratories, and apparatus.
2. The Faculty.
3. The Student body and its democratic standards.

In addition to the thirty-four buildings already on the campus, the State of North Carolina is this year putting $1,650,000 into new buildings and equipment. The library of 115,000 volumes is spending $24,000 annually for books and periodicals. Eight thousand volumes were received in 1922-1923, and one thousand and five magazines and learned journals were received on subscription.

The Faculty numbers 128 of the country's best scholars. Speaking of the student body of the University, Mr. Sherwood Eddy, of Yale University, who has spent the major portion of his life studying in four continents, said, that with one exception, it was the most seriously thoughtful and democratic group of students he had ever known. Registration for fall quarter, September 25, 26, 1923.

Our Little Folks

MOTHER'S DAY

Let every day be Mother's Day—
Make roses grow along her way
And beauty everywhere.
O never let her eyes be wet
With tears of sorrow or regret,
And never cease to care!
Come, grown-up children, and rejoice
That you can hear your mother's voice.

A day for her? For you she gave Long years of love and service brave.
For you her youth was spent.
There was no weight of hurt or care
Too heavy for her strength to bear;
She followed where you went.
Her courage and her love sublime
You could depend on all the time.

LITTLE BEAR RUNS AWAY TO BLUEBERRY PLAINS

The Three Bears had never visited Blueberry Plains in blueberry season, and Little Bear could not understand why. He had teased and teased to go while the berries were ripe. The Plains were not far away, and the Three Bears had often fared forth on longer journeys just for a picnic.

"I could start in the morning and get there before sunset walking just like this!" explained Little Bear as he trudged slowly down to the gate and back, looking as if nothing could ever make him hurry.

Father Bear and Mother Bear couldn't help but laughing, but even so Father Bear said severely, "This family is never going to Blueberry Plains on a pleasure excursion during blueberry season. Now I do not wish to hear another word about it!"

"Try to get Blueberry Plains out of your mind," said Mother Bear. "There are pickers there when the berries are ripe, and it is no place for a little bear. Go roll downhill in a barrel and forget all about it."

Usually Little Bear liked the fun of rolling downhill in a barrel, but today he felt all out of sorts and cross; so he sat on a big stone with his chin in his paws and did nothing but think how he should like to visit Blueberry Plains where the berries grew so thick that the whole land looked sky-blue. He had heard the robins tell great tales of their doings there when the berries were ripe. At last Little Bear had this thought: "I shall run away some day and visit Blueberry Plains all by myself!"

Next he whispered softly: "I shall run away some day and visit Blueberry Plains all by myself."

Little Bear thought that the words sounded brave instead of foolish, as of course they were; so he walked away to the grapevine tangle and shouted: "I shall run away some day and visit Blueberry Plains all by myself!"

The very next morning Auntie Cinnamon's twins came to play. Just for fun Little Bear told them what he was planning to do some day.

"You wouldn't dare!" cried the twins together.

"I should too!" answered Little Bear.

"Our folks never go there when the berries are ripe," said one of the twins, "on account of the hundreds and hundreds of pickers!"

Pickers are thicker than the berries!" added the other twin.

Little Bear laughed. "Who is afraid of pickers?" he said.

Early the next day Little Bear sneaked out of bed and ran away. He met Yowler Wildcat on his way to the spring for a drink of water.

"Yowler," said Little Bear, "I wish that you would go to my folks just about noon and tell that I have run away to Blueberry Plains! Maybe I'll never come home! I don't want my folks to cry and feel bad, so you tell them, if you please, where I am."

"But, Little Bear," cried Yowler, "the Plains are full of pickers! The pickers will get you!"

"Who's afraid of pickers?" shouted Little Bear over his shoulder as he ran on.

Yowler waited until noon, then did his errand. He wasn't a bit astonished when Mother Bear began to cry. He had gone only as far as the grapevine tangle when he saw Father Bear traveling by like the wind in November. Yowler noticed that he carried a stick with something dangling from the end of it.

Imagine how Little Bear felt that afternoon when he looked back and saw Father Bear coming along the highway like the wind in November! Little Bear became suddenly too weak to stand; so he sat down on a log and began to take the prickles out of his little suit; he called them "pickers." Not knowing exactly what to do, he spoke first when his father arrived.

"The pickers are getting thick already," said he in an offhand way, and he kept on picking sweetbriar thorns and wild-rose prickles from his coat. "I am not a speck afraid of pickers, but I suppose I've got to go straight back home with you!"

"Oh, no," answered Father Bear cheerfully; "if you have decided to run away, why run along! I came to bring your bundle and stick. All runaways carry a bundle at the end of a stick."

Little Bear was startled and disappointed. He was homesick already and tired enough to cry. There were sharp prickles in his feet. He did wish that his father would make him go home.

"Well, we'd better be jogging on," Father Bear said after he had whistled a tune cheerfully and rested a bit by the side of a big oak tree.

So on they jogged. Father Bear took such long steps that Little Bear had to run to keep up and was very tired.

Afterwards Little Bear told his mother that he and Father Bear galloped and galloped along the highway until at sunset they reached the hilltop overlooking the Plains. There Father Bear turned aside and said that he had to see some Grizzly relative on business. He hoped Little Bear would always remember the day that he ran away and begged him not to forget the old folks, but to come back and see them sometime. That was all.

Little Bear couldn't speak; he could scarcely wink back the tears when Father Bear said "Good-by" and traveled away humming a cheerful tune. Then Little Bear sat down and cried because he was homesick and alone; he hadn't expected to be alone, but had supposed that many of his friends would be there to keep him company. His feet were sore from the prickles, his head ached, and he was hungry.

As Little Bear gazed about in a forlorn fashion he noticed blueberry plants on the hilltop stretching out as far as he could see; the ground was sky-blue with the berries, and they were as big as marbles. Little Bear began to eat blueberries. He ate them and ate them, crawling along on the ground as he picked the berries by the pawful, until he reached the brow of the hill.

There below him stretched the far-famed Blueberry Plains, but surrounding them were the white tents that belonged to the berry pickers. Little Bear understood at last what his mother, the Cinnamon twins and Yowler had meant when they spoke of pickers; they had meant berry pickers. From camp to camp the pickers shouted to one another and laughed and sang. Little Bear heard dogs barking and saw men carrying guns. He saw two little bears tied to stakes in front of one of the tents, and then he knew that Blueberry Plains when the berries were ripe was no place for him.

Back and back that frightened Little Bear crawled until he could not possibly be seen from the Plains. Then he searched for a hiding place and found a wee cave that was exactly the right size for a badly scared, homesick, blueberry-sick Little Bear.

When he cuddled down in the cave Little Bear didn't intend to go to sleep; indeed not in such a dangerous place! He intended to rest until he stopped trembling and then start for home like a March wind chasing winter away, but when the Man in the Moon looked in a while later he saw that Little Bear was sound asleep. And soon after that along came Father Bear with the Grizzly relatives to peep into the tiny cave and laugh. Father Bear had been watching Little Bear every minute to protect him from harm.

"He will sleep until broad daylight," Father Bear whispered, "and then he'll make tracks for home. He will come limping along safely enough soon after I get there if I don't start until noon."

That was once when Father Bear made a mistake. Before the moon went to bed Little Bear awoke and, feeling better, jumped up and started toward home, running as fast as he could run. You may be sure that he never forgot that night. He traveled softly because he didn't wish to waken strangers, and he didn't stop for another nap. The sun was high in the sky when he reached home.

His mother was glad to see him. She forgave him for running away, gave him a warm bath and a dose of castor oil and did everything else she could think of to make him feel better before she put him to bed. He slept long and soundly.

At supper time Father Bear arrived hungry and cheerful. "Do not look so sad, Mother Bear," said he; "Little Bear will be jogging home safely enough one of these days." And then he told her all that he knew about Little Bear's adventures. But Mother Bear didn't tell Father Bear all she knew; she was ever so quiet and tried hard to look troubled. She winked one eye and smiled a little for her own fun when Father Bear turned his back and acted fidgety as he gazed out of the window.

When darkness fell Mother Bear said, "Let's go to bed!"

"No," objected Father Bear; "let us sit up and keep a light in the window!"

"I do not see any sense in sitting up and keeping a light in the window," said Mother Bear, "but if we must, please go upstairs and light the candle and bring it down."

So Father Bear tramped heavily upstairs and lighted the candle. He saw something humpy in Little Bear's bed. It was Little Bear. Mother Bear came upstairs straightway and laughed at her joke on Father Bear; he laughed too. They made so much noise that they roused Little Bear.

He half opened his eyes and said sleepily, "Sorry I ran away—glad I'm home again—going to be a good Little Bear now for always and always!"

After that he never liked to hear anything said about Blueberry Plains.—Youth's Companion.

"Isn't Tom wonderful?" she exclaimed. "He's already been promoted "From private to field marshal in two months!" ejaculated the brother. "Why, that's impossible! The thing can't be did!"

"Did I say field marshal?" murmured the girl. "Well, maybe it's court marshal. I know it's one or the other."—The American Legion Weekly.

WOMAN'S PAGE

the saloon throughout the world. Let your board take action and publish that with the resolution. We have a constituency of millions of women who must help to prevent this dangerous propaganda from gaining ground.

Lucy W. Peabody.

The executive committee of the Federation of Woman's Boards of Foreign Missions of North America at its quarterly meeting, March 29, 1923, had brought to its attention a petition to Congress, being circulated by the Anti-Volstead League and the Women's Liberty League, to bring back wine and beer.

The committee deprecates this strongly organized propaganda in certain localities on the part of special interests, which is being forwarded by women, and wishes to call the attention of Christian women of the land to the insidious dangers involved.

The specious plea presented by this propaganda is that we will prevent law-breaking by the legalization of the manufacture of wine and beer.

The committee believes the arguments of these propagandists are fallacious and that any modification of the Volstead Act would bring back the saloon with its attending evils, would increase the dangers for young people by creating an appetite for alcohol, and instead of decreasing would further the illegal sale of intoxicants.

Therefore, the committee urges the woman's boards to give full publicity to the wealth of facts and arguments available and to stimulate their constituency to arouse an intelligent sense of the responsibility resting on Christian women in this great moral issue.

Reliable information may be secured from the temperance departments of many church boards and from the Anti-Saloon League headquarters in each state. We would especially recommend that all Christian women read:

(a) The speech of September 22, 1922, by Senator Morris Sheppard, published in The Congressional Record of that date.

(b) The pamphlet, "Hold Fast, America," which is the result of the investigation of Gifford Gordon, of Australia, on the operation of prohibition in the United States.

(c) The special article in The Outlook (New York City) of March 21, 1923, entitled, "Three Years of Prohibition."

While the advocates of light wines and beers make a claim for personal liberty, the Christian women of the land should emphasize the responsibility for the home and future generations, not only in America, but in foreign lands. Appeals have come from the so-called non-Christian lands urging the church to realize that the failure of prohibition in America will intensify their difficulties and greatly delay their progress.

CLARKTON METHODISTS WANT A CHURCH

For about four or five years a few true Methodists have been striving to build a church here in Clarkton. The M. E. Sunday school gives its collection every fourth Sunday to that cause and we have some small amounts promised by some good brethren, but yet we haven't enough to start the building.

We especially need a church here to take care of our M. E. strangers who move to town or nearby. They do not like to worship in the day school auditorium, so they join some sister church and in that way we do not increase in membership. We have about 25 members and there have been fully that many to join other churches here on account of having no church house.

We have our lot on which to build a church bought and paid for. We are praying, hoping and striving to start our building this summer or fall. X.

He was the friend and the supporter of the pastor in charge at all times. We can only say that Brother Grover was a good citizen, was loyal to his country, home and church. He was twice wedded, both wives now being dead. He leaves one son, Bro. William Grover of Adams Creek. A host of friends and relatives are left to mourn his departure.

In her modest way she, in the church work and in her home, did many things that endeared her to her loved ones and the people of this community.

Surviving this splendid young woman are her husband and four small children. Her death was one of the most triumphant I ever saw. We miss her.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT
Whereas, God in His infinite wisdom saw fit to take unto Himself on the morning of April the 14th, 1923, our beloved friend and co-worker, Mrs. Dan S. Jones, for many years one of the most loyal and earnest workers of the Elizabeth Hendren Missionary Auxiliary.
And, whereas, our love for her was so great, and we shall miss so much her cheerful presence in our midst; therefore be it resolved:
First, That we have lost one of our most useful and consecrated members.
Second, That we humbly submit to the will of Him who doeth all things well, knowing that our loss is her gain.
Third, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the members of the bereaved family, a copy to the N. C. Christian Advocate, also to the local papers, and one recorded on the minutes of this auxiliary.
Mrs. Carrie M. Willis,
Miss Anna Pearce,
Miss Lizzie Hancock.

PERRETTE—Thomas Perrette, one of the oldest and most influential citizens of Faison, N. C., died of pneumonia April 21, 1923. The funeral services were conducted by the writer the following day at his home. The interment followed in the town cemetery.

Brother Perrette was twice married. First to Miss Susan Oats of Faison. To this union was born one son, Thos. Perrette, Jr., who preceded his father in August, 1922.
His second marriage was to Miss Eloise Faison, also of Faison. This second union was blessed with two daughters—Mrs. A. R. Hicks, Jr., and Miss Mary Perrette, both of whom are still living and reside at the old home in Faison.
As a young man Brother Perrette taught for several years in the public schools of Chatham county. He later came to Faison and entered the mercantile business, and for a number of years did an extensive business.
He represented his county (Duplin) one or more terms in the state legislature. I am told he was the first man to introduce a prohibition bill to the N. C. state legislature. Throughout his life he was a staunch friend and supporter of the great cause of prohibition.
For the past several years his life was spent in a quiet, peaceful way in his home town, serving the people as justice of the peace, notary public, and "peacemaker." He often succeeded in getting men (both white and colored) to arbitrate and compromise their differences without going to law, and thus saved them from needless expense and envious feelings.
Had Brother Perrette lived a few days longer he would have numbered four score years. For several decades he was a consistent member of the Faison M. E. church, though for a number of years he was too feeble to attend the services regularly. He quietly waited for his Master's call, and we believe he was ready.
His life might be briefly summed up as follows: Teacher, Confederate soldier (several times wounded), Mason, merchant, justice of the peace, early advocate of the cause of temperance, and promoter of the best interest of his community, "peacemaker" and Christian gentleman.
"Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright; for the end of that man is peace."
Chas. M. Lance.

IN MEMORIAM

FOSTER—Noah Temple Foster was born June 19, 1905, and died February 19, 1923, after suffering for three days from an awful accident caused by a skidding machine. He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Foster of Newland, also six sisters, Mrs. E. A. Spence, Mrs. Mullin Sellings, Misses Alma, Elizabeth, Evelyn and Lois Foster of Newland, and three brothers, Messrs. John and Arthur Foster of Newland, and W. V. Foster of Norfolk, Va. The writer was with the young man at the hospital part of his last day on earth, and was caused to wonder at his effort to keep his mother from grieving. He said he hated to die, but in answer to his prayers since he came to the hospital the Lord had wonderfully blessed him, and that he was prepared to go and was not afraid to meet his Lord. He asked the writer to warn young men to be prepared to die, because they might not have time to pray or be in condition to pray because of pain, stating that probably he had to go to warn the boys around home. May God's richest blessings abide with those who are left to mourn the loss of their loved ones.

E. L. Stack.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas, on May 4, 1923, our heavenly Father in His infinite love and wisdom called to Himself our dear friend and co-worker, Mr. B. F. Moore, one of the most loyal and faithful members of the Raeford Methodist Sunday school.

In his removal we feel most keenly the loss of his gentle, friendly personality. We wish to express to his bereaved family our deepest sympathy in their great loss.

Resolved First, That we strive to emulate his beautiful example and incorporate in our lives the Christian graces which were so wonderfully reflected in his life among us.

Second, That our Sunday school will miss his presence and influence, especially the cordial greeting which he never failed to give. He loved the Sunday school and was loyal and untiring in all its activities.

Third, That a copy of these resolutions be spread on the records of the Sunday school, a copy sent to the Christian Advocate and a copy be sent to his bereaved family.

W. P. Hawfield,
J. M. Downer,
Zeb Hearn,

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

On Sunday morning, May 6th, at the dawning of the day, as the birds were singing their songs of praise to the great Giver of life, the soul of our beloved brother, A. L. Roobins, took its flight to the great beyond.

A messenger has approached our camp announcing that another patriot has obeyed the summons of the Great Captain, the Lord of Hosts, and has gone to bivouac around the campfire of the skies. As thou hast said in thy Holy Word, the bruised reed Thou wilt not break, we beseech Thee to be graciously near those who sorrow and administer to their saddened hearts the oil of consolation.

Help them to look beyond this arena of struggle and pain to that land where there is no light, where death and sorrow never enter and where "beyond these voices there is peace." Painful and dark the pathway seems To distant and earthly eyes; They only see the hedging thorns On either side that rise; They cannot know how soft between The flowers of love are strewn The sunny ways, the pastures green, Where Jesus leads His own.

Resolved First, That we, the members of Randleman Council No. 31, Jr. O. U. A. M., wish to extend our deepest sympathy to the bereaved family and point them to God, who is too wise to err and too good to be unkind.

Third, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the bereaved family, a copy to Jr. O. U. A. M. Journal, North Carolina Christian Advocate and Asheboro Courier, and a copy spread upon the minutes of our order.

B. B. Ferguson,
P. S. Kirkman,
Committee.

MEEKINS—Celia R. Meekins, the widow of James K. Meekins of Rodanthe, N. C., passed away April 30, 1923, lacking one month of being 75 years old. She had been suffering a long time. Some years ago she had lost control of her mind and had to be looked after like a child. She joined the M. E. Church, South, several years ago. She manifested much faith, and always seemed to enjoy a conversation concerning the Christ life. Before she lost her mind she spent much time in reading the Scripture, which she treasured very highly. She leaves two living daughters and two grandchildren whom she raised to miss their mother. Also a number of grandchildren and friends. Trust all will meet her in heaven. Her funeral was conducted at her home and her body laid in the family graveyard to await the resurrection.

K. R. Pugh.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas, God in His infinite wisdom has removed from our midst the spirit of Miss Baell Albea, April 10, 1923. She was a faithful member of the Ladies' Aid Society at Clarksbury church and will be greatly missed by the society, church, Sunday school and choir. Therefore be it resolved:

First, That we cherish her memory in the coming years.

Second, That our hearts are saddened by her passing, and that we shall miss her ever cheerful help in carrying on our work.

Third, That while we bow in humble submission to our heavenly Father's will, we wish to extend our love and sympathy to her friends and loved ones.

Fourth, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, a copy recorded in our minutes, and a copy be sent to the N. C. Christian Advocate for publication.

Mrs. Lacy Gaitber, Pres.
Mrs. Hattie Stroud, Sec.
Mrs. Lou Godbey,
Committee.

WEATHERBY—Carlton Eddy Weatherby was born in Baltimore, Md., April 15, 1868. He passed suddenly from us to his heavenly reward April 19, 1923, from the Parrett Memorial Hospital in Kinston, N. C. Here he and his good wife had spent about ten days in the hope of partially regaining his depleted health, and seeking some relief from the intense pain he had suffered at intervals for the past two weeks.

For eight years or more Brother Weatherby had battled heroically against the slow, but sure progress of an incurable disease, angina pectoris. But so silently and uncomplainingly did he bear this ever present "thorn in the flesh" that only his most intimate friends and associates knew of his illness.

On the afternoon of April 20th the funeral services were conducted from the beautiful Wetherby home in Faison by the writer, assisted by Revs. W. A. Stanberry, Walter Patton and E. H. Davis of the North Carolina conference, and P. McIntire of the Presbyterian church. The interment followed in the town cemetery.

The love and esteem in which the subject of this memoir was held as citizen, neighbor and friend was shown by the unusually large crowd (both white and colored) present, and by the many and beautiful flowers given by relatives and friends.

The entire service was unique in its beauty and simplicity—free from show and the usual formalities. This was in accord with Brother Weatherby's own request. While he was a member of the Pythian and Masonic fraternities, his expressed desire was that his pastor conduct the services and the Sunday school children take some part. At the grave a large number of the boys and girls passed in single file around the grave, each dropping a flower in token of their love and esteem for their superintendent and friend. After which they sang "Jesus Loves Me."

On July 25, 1898, Carlton E. Weatherby was happily married to Miss Nida Hicks, of Faison, N. C. Here at the Hicks homestead they decided to make their future home and share their joys and sorrows together. To this union was born two sons, Vernon K. and Carlton E., Jr., who with their mother survive.

It has not been the writer's privilege to know a more devoted husband and wife. The patient, tender and watchful care of Sister Weatherby for her husband through the several years of his declining health has been almost superhuman, often taxing her physical and nervous strength almost to the breaking point, and yet cheerful and without a murmur.

When the end came—sudden and sad as it was—the Christian faith, which had been their mutual strength through the years, was found to be an adequate support for the companionless companion. The promise, "My grace is sufficient for thee," was fully verified in her experience.

This tribute of love and esteem would be incomplete if we should fail to mention the public and official life of our friend in the church to which he belonged and sincerely loved.

He had been a faithful member and an efficient leader in the Faison M. E. Church, South, for about 25 years. At his death he was charge lay leader, Sunday school superintendent, treasurer of the board of stewards, and recording steward. He also served as ference in 1914 and 1915. He was lay leader of the North Carolina conference, and always enjoyed mixing and mingling with his brethren, both of the laity and the clergy.

One phase of the church at large upon which he had set his heart and affection was the Southern Assembly. Here at beautiful Lake Junaluska he, with his family, spent the summer months for the past decade or more. He was one of the early stockholders of this great church enterprise, always manifesting a keen interest in its affairs and sharing in its responsibilities.

This writer shall not soon forget the week or ten days spent as guest in his beautiful summer home ("Nida") last August. His home, like his heart, was always open to friends and visitors—yes, and strangers, too.

Besides his home at Lake Junaluska he had made other expenditures there. One among which was a beautiful little park overlooking the lake, which he donated to the Southern Assembly.

While his business interests were sufficient to occupy all his time and physical strength, he did not neglect the "King's business." Some time ago he remarked to me: "Often away from home I am thinking of the Sunday school and church, and planning for greater work." The day before the end came, in the hospital, he said: "Brother Lance, is there anything you want to suggest about the church work? If so, I'll try to do it."

Yes, we shall miss him. Even now we feel keenly the great loss the church and community has sustained. But we know where to find him. Recently he said, while suffering great pain, "I shall pass away under one of these (heart) attacks. But it is alright. I am not afraid to go." He could say, in spirit, with John Wesley, "The best of all is, God is with us." "I know 'bout art gone to the home of thy rest;

Then why should my soul be so sad?
I know thou art gone where the weary are blessed,
And the mourner looks up and is glad;
I know thou hast drank of the Lethe that flows

In the land where they do not forget,
That sheds over memory only repose,
And takes from it only regret."

Chas. M. Lance.

MEEKINS—The death of Nancy T. Meekins of Rodanthe, N. C., occurred April 1, 1923, in her 81st year. She was converted and joined the M. E. Church, South, in early life, and remained loyal to her profession to the end. She was sorely afflicted in her last days, but bore it in patience, often rejoicing and speaking of her home beyond. She was twice married. First to George M. Midgett, and to this union there are three living children. Her second marriage was to William Meekins. Of this union was one child living, with whom she lived here fell asleep in Jesus. Two sons and two girls mourn the loss of a devoted mother. We trust that all of them are looking forward to meet her again. Many grandchildren and loved ones will miss her presence. May her Christian influence go with them. Funeral service was conducted at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Charlie Midgett. Her form was laid to rest in the family graveyard to await the voice of the Master. K. R. Pugh.

WILLIAMS—William T. Williams was born November 9, 1848, died April 10, 1923. He married Miss Martha Stults in 1882, and to this union were born eight children, seven of whom are now living; also the wife and mother is still living. Brother Williams joined the Methodist church early in life when about twenty years of age, and remained a very consistent member until his death, thus giving his church more than fifty years service.

In the arduous duties that confronted him in his church life as a layman there was an unflinching fidelity of devotion that never waned. One of the chief characteristics of her life was his honesty and uprightness of purpose.

The body of Brother Williams was laid away to await the coming of Him who is the resurrection and the life.

To the bereaved family we would say, sorrow not as others who have no hope, but live in anticipation of the glory and happiness that shall be revealed when He shall appear with a message of resurrection over the tomb of every believer. J. E. Cummings.

GRAY—Mrs. Bettie P. Gray was born March 24, 1844, died March 15, 1923. She was twice married; first to Isaac K. Hooper. To this union were born I. K. Hooper, Jr., Mrs. M. T. Gray and Mrs. T. P. Gray. Having lost her faithful husband by death she was married the second time to Anderson Gray. To this union was born one son, J. G. Gray. She was the mother of four children who are still living.

Early in life she gave her life to God, joined the Methodist church and remained a faithful member till God called her home. For a number of years she had been in feeble health, but she bore her afflictions with patience, realizing that all things work together for good to them that love the Lord.

On Saturday, March 10th, she was stricken with paralysis, from which she never recovered, but peacefully passed away about 10:30 a. m. March 15, 1923.

The following day a short funeral service was conducted in the home, after which her remains were laid away in the family burying ground to await the resurrection of the just.

C. A. Johnson.

DUNCAN—My acquaintance with Mrs. Emily Jones Duncan dates back to my first pastorate in Beaufort, and during the thirty intervening years few have passed in which we have not met, and to me she has always seemed the same gentle, sweet, pure Christian character, a woman of culture and refinement.

She came of an old Carteret county family, a near relative of hers, the late Rev. John Jones, for some years pastor of Ann Street church, having been an influential pastor in building up Methodism in this section of the state.

Mrs. Duncan was born March 16, 1851, near Morehead City. She was liberally educated, and on October 1, 1873, was happily married to Mr. William B. Duncan of Beaufort. Her husband was an alumnus of Randolph-Macon College of Virginia, and was a true Southern gentleman of the old type, a man who was devoted to his friends and enjoyed their society.

By a former marriage with Miss Ramsey, Mr. Duncan was the father of Messrs. Ernest and Thomas Duncan of Beaufort, and of the late Hon. E. C. Duncan, a man whose friends were legion, and who wielded a large influence in railroad and political circles.

Brother and Sister Duncan were communicants of the Methodist church and were devoted to its interests. Unless the unusual accorded they were present at all church services.

Of the children of this marriage Miss Emily passed away in her lonely young womanhood and David in early married life, leaving two children. Two sons and one daughter survive, James F. Duncan of Greensboro and Julius F. and Miss Lillian Duncan of Beaufort.

Mrs. Duncan was of a quiet and unobtrusive disposition, never seeking prominence or making a display. She loved her home, her husband and her children, and was loved by a large circle of friends, whose companionship she enjoyed. She was devoted to the missionary society of her church, visited the sick and ministered to the suffering. Her presence will be greatly missed in the community of which she formed a vital part. May we join her in the better land.

WESLEY BIBLE CLASS, HAMLET, N. C.

This class was organized in 1921 with eight men, the present membership is a hundred and forty. From the beginning the class has faced the problem of room, and this has had much to do with creating sentiment for our new Sunday School building. The class co-operates with the pastor in carrying out his program of work for the church. In a word, this class is a mighty force for good in the church and community. Mr. O. T. Goodwin, chairman of the board of stewards, is the president, Mr. Hubert Sharp is the secretary and treasurer, and Mr. J. P. Gibbons is the beloved teacher.

“RUM, ROMANISM AND REBELLION”

Toward the close of the Blaine-Cleveland presidential campaign in 1884, Rev. S. D. Burdard, a Presbyterian minister of New York City, in presenting a large company of clergymen to James G. Blaine in the Fifth Avenue hotel, employed the foregoing suggestive terms. Upon that occasion the trio of words was used to grace an oratorical flight and to gild a pretty speech. But that racy alliteration can return after almost forty years to describe the actual condition in the Empire State when Governor Smith signed the bill that repeals the Mullan-Gage prohibition law, thereby withdrawing the state's legal support from the national prohibition laws.

Composed largely of a foreign population New York is rum-soaked and many of the people are violently opposed to our national liquor laws. For this state of affairs the Roman Catholic church is in a large measure responsible. If the Roman church through the years had stood boldly and uncompromisingly against liquor and for prohibition like most of the Protestant churches have done there would be another story to tell in New York and in all other places where the Roman Catholic church commands a far-reaching and powerful influence. But instead of doing that the Roman Catholic church with a few exceptions has been a constant and close ally of the liquor forces and has looked to the liquor crowd as the source of revenue for that church.

Rum, Romanism and Rebellion are now showing their cloven feet in New York. But this American nation does not propose that such disloyalty shall hold dominion over us as a people committed to temperance, liberty and loyalty to our flag.

THE J. WESLEY HIGGINS WILL

The Church Will Invoke the Power of the Courts in Order to Carry Out the Wishes of This Benefactor.

On April 2, 1923, Mr. J. Wesley Higgins, Yancey county's wealthiest citizen, died as a result of injuries sustained in an automobile accident a short time prior thereto and contemporaneous with the notice of his death the Associated Press carried news that he had left a will, under the terms of which practically his entire estate had been left to the Methodist church and its various institutions.

The news dispatches indicated that his estate was worth something like eight hundred thousand ($800,000) dollars and that, aside from bequests to certain relatives, the remainder of his estate was to be divided equally between the Children's Home, situated at Winston-Salem, and the Methodist church generally, including a special bequest of ten thousand ($10,000) dollars to Rutherford College. It was stated that a portion of the fund was to be used in the erection of a building at the Children's Home to be named in honor of Mr. Higgins' wife, who preceded him to the grave several years. Mr. Higgins had no children.

Within two or three days after the death of Mr. Higgins a nephew of his, with whom he resided prior to his death, appeared before the clerk of the superior court of Yancey county and made affidavit that there was no will and that he was permitted to qualify as administrator of the estate. No will has yet been found, although the will was duly drawn by local attorneys at Burnsville and properly attested at the time and no one seems to have any information of a change of purpose on the part of the testator at any time after he had made his will disposing of his property, as stated in the foregoing.

Under these circumstances the trustees of the Children's Home and the boards representing other interests of the Methodist church have felt it incumbent upon them to undertake to establish and put in force the will which Mr. Higgins made and which he had expressed on many occasions prior to his death was his fixed and definite purpose to make. With this end in view, attorneys have been employed and an effort will be made to set up the will and so far a true and exact copy of the will has been ascertained by transcribing the stenographer's notes so that the exact form in which the will was executed by Mr. Higgins has been ascertained and this will be of material assistance in presenting the document for probate.

The whole church will be interested in this effort to establish the will and carry into effect the purpose of this good man, who sought to make provision for the orphans and for the various interests of the church. It is important from two aspects that this course should be pursued:

1. Because of the aid and assistance which the bequests provided for in the will would give to the worthy causes which were so near and dear to the heart of this generous man;

2. Because it is of prime importance that the wish, plan and purpose, which Mr. Higgins had formulated and carried into effect as far as he could with the execution of his will, should not be thwarted after his death and when he is powerless to interfere.

TRINITY COLLEGE COMMENCEMENT

The seventy-first annual commencement of Trinity College—and the most largely attended in the history of the institution—began last Sunday evening with the baccalaureate address by Dr. Dugald Macfadyen of London, England. Monday evening representatives of the graduating class in Craven Memorial hall contested in oratory for the Wiley Gray medal, prizes for the year were awarded and these exercises were followed by the annual reception given by the senior class in the Duke Main building. At 11 o'clock Tuesday the baccalaureate sermon was delivered by Bishop Hoyt M. Dobbs of Brazil. At 1 o'clock p. m. was the alumni dinner in the Angier Duke gymnasium and the alumnae luncheon in the Southgate Memorial building; at 3:30 Carolina and Trinity played baseball at Hanes field, and at 8:30 was the presentation of "Ruth," a Biblical drama, on the Woodland stage. Wednesday was the final day of the exercises. At 11 o'clock came the commencement address by Dr. William Herbert Perry Faunce, president of Brown University, which was followed by the conferring of degrees. At sunset Wednesday the college flag was lowered amid impressive ceremonies.

These were the high spots in the commencement exercises of 1923. A story in detail follows:

Dr. Dugald Macfadyen at Trinity College.

The baccalaureate address in part Sunday evening was as follows:

"One of the front rank men in English life—son of an American mother—tells in his book on the World Crisis that in August, 1916, he was staying in a friend's home and being desperately anxious about the situation of affairs he opened a Bible which he found in his bedroom. The chapters to which he was directed were these, Deut. VIII, IX and X. A good chapter for such an occasion—full of the sovereignty of God and the egotism of men. Both illimitable and reminding us that there is no check on the egotism of man except in his full reverent and explicit recognition of the sovereignty of God—and that the meaning of that sovereignty is not the omnipotence of force but the omnipotence of love.

"The remedy against egotism—personal and national—is to 'Remember all the way the Lord thy God has brought thee.' A few days ago I stood on the stern of an Atlantic liner and watched the swirling green and white eddies that came from the screw as they left a long straight wake behind us in the ocean. I recalled other journeys when the wake was not straight—other times I crossed the Atlantic in the days of the submarine, when instead of a long straight wake we left behind us a continual 219-209. Instinctively one said—'An enemy hath done this.' The straight line meant security. The 219-209 line meant danger—uncertainty—a doubt whether we should reach our port.

"As you look backward over the way the Lord has brought you the straightness of the track will tell you whether you are steering for any known port. Nothing will keep you from doubt, danger and uncertainty.

"This was the method of Israel's prophets. It is very noticeable that when in every national crisis the automatic voice of prophecy in Israel always went back to the deliverance from Egypt. The God in whom they were to trust was the Lord who delivered them out of the hands of the Egyptians, while psalms are dedicated to recalling the memory of this great deliverance. Israel's God was a Redeemer, and no circumstances could look too black, no disasters could be bad enough to obliterate that certainty.

"It was the method of Jesus also. In the night on which he was betrayed when he was saying those last words which covered the whole nature and history of his life to a few disciples, ignorant, temperamental and uncertain, the climax of it all was—'Do this in remembrance of Me.' Remember and remember and remember come back in memory from wherever you may be to this point from which you now start.

"It was Paul's method also. Like the true man he was he based the life of the new Israel of God on the memory of a great deliverance. The new Israel was a race delivered out of the kingdom of darkness into the kingdom of the Son of God's Love. They were people of all nations and families of the earth who remembered that while we were yet sinners Christ died for the ungodly.

"These appeals to memory show selective judgment. The prophets, the apostles, the Master Himself might have remembered other things. They chose to forget. A British prime minister—"I never argue, never contradict, and I sometimes forget."

"This showed more judgment than some people who are anxious to remind us of a lot of undesirable ancestors whose habits were arboreal and whose tails on this continent were prehensile. The fact is of course that we all have lots of ancestors that we can afford to forget. The important thing is to use selective judgment in remembering the ancestors we ought to remember. But therein the prophets were wiser than the professors. These are great words of Thomas Carlyle.

"Every nation, I suppose, was made by God and every man too, only there are some nations, like some men, who know it, and some who do not. The great nations are they that have known it well. The small and contemptible both of men and nations are they that have either never known it or soon forgotten it, and never took it to heart."

"The religious use of memory is selective. It recalls, emphasizes, sets in solitary and unchallenged conscious facts that keep us in the right attitude towards God—'Thine ancient sacrifice—an humble, and a contrite heart,' says Kipling. Even more the attitude of thanksgiving of those who take all achievements as gifts of a great giver.

"Whatever your immediate task may be, live universally not luckily. Remember your guides who spake to you the Word of Truth. Remember that you belong to the most widespread fellowship on earth—the fellowship of those who are both redeemed and enlightened. You will serve your locality best if you live universally wherever you may be. It will take all your time. It will keep you growing. There is no discharge in this year. It will last your lifetime and if we are right in our ideas of the future you will find that you have eternalized your mortality."

Contest Monday Evening for the Wiley Gray Medal.

Speaking on the subject, "Americanism: Idealistic or Materialistic," last evening, T. B. Bradley, of Newman, Ga., won the Wiley Gray medal, the most coveted oratorical prize awarded to an undergraduate at Trinity College. The seniors contesting for the Wiley Gray medal were T. B. Bradley, of Newman, Ga.; W. Q. Grigg, of Lawndale; J. L. Jackson, of South Bend, Ind.; and Culver H. Smith, of Harmony.

The orations were all of the highest merit, and the competition for the medal was unusually keen. The four men competing for the prize were selected two weeks ago in a primary contest from a number of seniors who had oratorical aspirations. The judges for the contest were Dr. Albert Anderson, '83, Raleigh; J. P. Gibbons, '98, of Hamlet; and F. S. Love, '08, of Wilson. The subjects of the orations were as follows: T. B. Bradley, "Americanism: Idealistic or Materialistic"; W. Q. Grigg, "Common Sense vs. Race Annihilation"; J. L. Jackson, "World Democracy: The Road to Peace"; C. H. Smith, "The Passing of the American Frontier."

Jackson Wins Lee Prize.

Following the oratorical contest the medals and prizes for the year were awarded to students for their distinctive work in various activities of the college. J. L. Jackson, of South Bend, Ind., was awarded the Robert E. Lee prize of $100 as the member of the senior class who in character and conduct, in scholarship and athletic achievement on college teams, in manly virtues and the capacity for leadership has most nearly of his class realized the standard of the ideal student. The prize was established in the year 1922 by Rev. A. W. Plyler, of the class of 1892, and Mrs. Plyler.

Bishop Dobb's Sermon.

Bishop Dobbs in preaching the baccalaureate sermon Tuesday morning said in part:

To the graduating class of Trinity College: It is always a memorable day when, in the life of a college generation, the milestone of graduation is reached. Memorable for many reasons—personal, intellectual, emotional. Knowledge hereafter must become wisdom and the intellectual and emotional life of the past four years must now be tested in the school of experience.

Leadership, when reduced to its lowest terms, is the same in all spheres of human endeavor. The leader knows the way, he keeps ahead, and he has a following. The leader must know men and affairs, as well as books. We live in a world of relationships and we must therefore be careful how we handle lamps.

You are at the close of this hour to enter upon your several tasks leading toward self-expression and self-realization. You will reach life's noblest altitudes only when you "walk with God upon the level of a God-like task."

The new education of our time affirms that no man or woman can be called an educated man or woman into whose training the values of religion have not been placed. Religion represents the expression of the most powerful elements in human nature. The history of mankind is but the history of the race's hunger for God and hunger for bread. And men and civilizations have been classified according to their emphasis of one of these on the other. The civilizations which put bread before God have nearly always perished.

You have come upon a time in the world's history when everything has an enlarged significance. The years just ahead of you are to be crowded with events of vast and far-reaching influence. I congratulate you upon your opportunity and responsibility.

The home and the church and the school are perhaps our most ancient and our most precious valued institutions. Happy the commonwealth which honors and preserves these sacred shrines of civilization.

Men are as much distinguished by their faith as by their families. A great ideal is the most practical thing in the world. Our feet follow our eyes. We become like that upon which we habitually fix our thought.

To toil patiently up the slopes of service—to be brothers to the race—to love and be loved with a love everlasting—to forgive as He forgave—to have eternity in our hearts—to fear no more the meaning of death—these are the marks of an educated man.

And now you stand upon the banks of life's red Rubicon. Before you stretches the territory of manhood's future toil. Be loyal. Be faithful. Be true. Build with wisdom. Build with strength. Build upon foundations and convictions which will endure. The eyes of mankind are upon you. It is yours to be saved by the power of an endless life.

PEOPLE AND THINGS

Western North Carolina Conference, Winston-Salem, October 17.

North Carolina Conference, Elizabeth City, November 14.

Rev. J. W. Autry, Carrboro, N. C., will be glad to assist any of the brethren who can use him in revival meetings this summer.

Rev. R. C. Goforth preached the commencement sermon before the graduating class of Glen Alpine high school at 11 o'clock May 27.

Rev. A. C. Kennedy is leading the people of the Catawba charge in fine fashion and progress is the watchword of both pastor and people.

The Gastonia Methodists last Sunday raised $76,000 in cash and bankable notes to be applied upon their debt of $110,000. The whole amount will be raised in the next few days.

Rev. J. W. Bradley and family of West Durham are visiting his father, who has been ill for some time near Old Fort, N. C. We are glad to report that Brother Bradley is slowly improving.

Mr. Rollin Covington, Red Springs, N. C., will be at liberty June 10 to lead music in revival meetings. Those who wish to know about him can write Rev. L. S. Massey, pastor, Red Springs, N. C.

Mrs. R. A. Truitt and all the children were ill at one time with measles last week, but are better now. Rev. H. M. Blair preached last Sunday at Bethel for Brother Truitt, who was at home caring for his family.

"Reverend and Mrs. Hugh K. Boyer request the honor of your presence at the marriage of their daughter, Lillian Kate, to Mr. William Reid Garrison on Wednesday, the twentieth of June, nineteen hundred and twenty-three, at high noon, Central Methodist church, Mount Airy, North Carolina."

"Rev. John R. Walker, pastor of West Hickory Methodist church, was in the city Friday evening en route to Spartanburg, S. C., to attend the commencement exercises of Wofford College, where he graduated in 1898. His class is holding a reunion in celebration of the 25th anniversary of their graduation."—Gastonia Gazette.

That was a great meeting at South Main Street church, Salisbury, when over 100 joined on profession of faith. Rev. W. B. Woosley, the pastor, was ably assisted by Rev. H. G. Allen of Walkertown. It is a rare occasion for so large a number to join a church by vows even in the course of a whole year.

The News carries the following report of the sermon before the Mt. Airy high school graduates: "The baccalaureate sermon at the First Baptist church Sunday night by Dr. H. K. Boyer was a wonderful inspiration to them, and no doubt they will carry the thoughts received there through the coming years as they face life's duties and responsibilities."

Major Bruce Craven and family expect in a few weeks to start on a trip through the West to be gone about two months. Major Craven has kindly promised the Advocate some travel-letters on "Seeing the West." The readers of the Advocate will look with interest for the appearance of these stories of the West and by a man who has eyes that can see and a pen that can tell the story in vigorous and picturesque English.

Pleasant Garden church is to hold a four weeks' Bible school beginning June 11. The instructors are to be Mrs. Kate Kirkman, Miss Bonte Loftin, Miss Virginia Osborn, Mrs. J. B. Watlington, Miss Lilitia Weatherly, Prof. A. L. Teachy and W. B. Hunt, Jr. Children from 4 to 14 years of age are eligible. The Bible will be taught and in addition thereto will be taught woodwork, basket and rug making, and with it all abundant time will be given for recreation.

Rev. Robt. M. Price of the North Carolina conference and Miss Mary Yow of Greensboro, N. C., were married last Monday at 6:30 p. m. at the home of the bride. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Ralph Yow, brother of the bride, and a member of the Virginia conference, and Rev. J. M. Price, father of the bridegroom and a member of the Western North Carolina conference. Our good wishes and congratulations are hereby extended to these young people and we welcome the fair young bride into the ranks of the Methodist itinerancy. At home after July 1, New Haven, Conn.

Mrs. B. Cole sends us the following notice: "The district meeting of the W. M. S. of Fayetteville district will be held in Steele Street Methodist church, Sanford, beginning Wednesday night, June 13th and closing Thursday afternoon. Delegates who come in cars Wednesday afternoon are asked to go to the church, where they will be met by some ladies and shown where their homes will be. Those coming on train will be met at train. All delegates and visitors expecting to come should send their names to Mrs. B. Cole, Sanford, N. C."

Rev. O. P. Ader writes: "After a long and distressing illness Bro. R. K. Davenport went to rest May 15, 1923. Gaston county lost one of her strongest leaders in the death of Brother Davenport. His good record for many years as chairman of county commissioners is witnessed by the fine roads of this section and marks him as a constructive statesman. In his church Brother Davenport was a steward and leader of fine spirit, and his works here were noble and notable. He was a benefactor of his kind, and his friends are many who rise up to praise his good name. The church will greatly miss him, and we feel a deep grief at his going."

Rev. C. F. Sherrill and his people of Muir's Chapel are rejoicing in their new hut. It is a replica of the old log meeting house, made famous by a book of that name by the great preacher, Rev. John E. Edwards, who was converted in that old church. It is on the same spot. Brother Sherrill says he does not know of a rural church in the state of any denomination that has a hut, and doesn't know of a hut in Greensboro that is as beautiful. It is on the beautiful Muir's Chapel church grounds, lighted by electricity and has a large, old fashioned rock chimney and fireplace. It has a kitchen with lockers, stoves and all suitable furniture. It will be a great help to the people of that community in their church life and services. The Advocate sends its best wishes to this live, progressive church and community life.

Library of Dr. T. N. Ivey to Trinity College.

Mrs. T. N. Ivey has notified the college that she will give the library of Dr. Ivey to the library of Trinity College to be preserved there as a memorial to her husband. Dr. Ivey was a member of the class of 1879, received the degrees of A. M. and D. D. from Trinity and was for many years a member of the board of trustees.

NORTH CAROLINA COLLEGE COMMENCEMENT

The graduating class last Tuesday numbered 124. This is the largest class in the history of the college. The literary address was delivered Tuesday by Sir Israel Gollanez of London. He is a distinguished Shakespeare scholar and his subject was "Our Book and Our Great Human Being." This authority on Shakespeare was heard with evident pleasure.

Visitors from the families and friends of the graduates and former students were present in large numbers, and the exercises were up to the usual high standard from the beginning to the end.

WHY A FAILURE

Lily William Roberts.

'Twas evening and the twilight grim and gray
Had chased the glimmering sunbeams all away.
And day affrighted by approach of night
Had fled to wait the herald of the light.
As darkness' mantle smothered not the last
Dim distant gleam, a gloom was o'er me cast,
For deeds of duty—burdened hours seemed
But mockeries of the good I'd often dreamed
To do. Discouraged, on my knees I fell,
Of efforts all in vain the Lord to tell.
"Oh, Father, I no lighter make a load
Of me who struggles 'long a weary road.
No faint I cheer, no broken life I mend,
No balm I bring for hearts that grief doth rend.
The chambers of my soul he opened me
That I in penitence and grief might see
That self was on the throne in every one
Instead of Christ, His own beloved Son.

"Oh, God," I prayed, "to thee in faith I turn;
Teach me my helplessness, and may I learn
My hands to fold, my face serenely hide
Upon His garments' hem and there abide Till He doth lay His soothing hands with stains
Of blood upon my heart and from its veins
Draw all there is of self. Then wilt thou be,
I pray, a burden-bearer, Lord, through me."

Revs. W. F. Elliott and R. E. Hinshaw enlivened the Advocate office with their presence between trains Tuesday while on their way to the commencement at Trinity and to the summer school. The attendance at summer school promises this year to break all records of previous years.

Dr. E. C. Brooks at the Trinity alumni meeting said, "The steam that blows the whistle never turns the wheel." That was "the most unkindest cut of all." Does the learned professor not know that for safety every car must have a horn? Or does he object to a car having a multitude of horns?

"No man before whose eyes the glory of God is ever burning can become a cynic or a pessimist." This lofty declaration of G. Campbell Morgan is at variance with the opinion of those Christians who claim to have seen the glory of the Lord and are looking for his coming in still greater glory, but at the same time are the rankest pessimists. We think Morgan is right.

"If you are turning a grindstone every minute counts," says President Few, "but if you expect to be real men and women you must count precious those moments of inspiration that come into your life." Well said. Life is not a dead level. There are mountain top moments of inspiration. Into these are often gathered the story of decades. The measure of one's life is determined by the use of the transfiguration hours, when tents are satisfactory as a dwelling place.

A DAY ON THE WELCOME CHARGE

Through the kindness of Rev. John H. Green, the pastor of that young and vigorous charge, Welcome, the business manager of the Advocate was permitted to visit and preach in two of his churches last Sunday. In the morning we stood before one of the largest congregations that we have seen together in a long time at Midway. This church has a membership of about 400 and is in one of the finest rural sections in the state. It is a joy to preach to a congregation like that one at Midway.

In the afternoon the Sunday school was in charge of the exercises, it being Sunday School Day. One of the best programs that we have ever witnessed was rendered. The young people showed that much pains had been taken in their training. The singing was of a high order and the recitations were excellent.

This congregation is looking toward the erection of a modern church plant which it hopes to build within the next year, and then Midway will want a preacher all to herself and it can support one in fine style.

We had the privilege of preaching to the Vernon congregation in the afternoon, and found there a fine body of Christian workers.

Brother Green is in his first year on this work, and is starting off just as though he intends staying the full quadrennium. The people fully appreciate him and are standing with him in the work of the church. Midway church contributed money to pay their pastor's expenses to the summer school at Trinity and they were glad of it. It would be a fine thing for every charge in both conferences to make it a rule to follow the example of Midway every year.

OPENING AND HOME-COMING DAY AT STANLEY CREEK

We are expecting a great day at Stanley Creek Methodist church next Sunday, June 10. By that time we will have our church almost completed in all respects. The work will be near enough done that we can conscientiously call the service an "opening." We are also calling it a "home-coming day" and have invited all old members who are absent to be with us. Rev. A. W. Plyler, editor of the Advocate, will be with us and preach the 11 o'clock sermon. There will be a large table in the beautiful grove laden with dinner at the noon hour and all are invited to bring baskets and all are invited to seats with us.

In the afternoon Rev. M. T. Hinshaw, president of Rutherford College, will make an address.

The pastor and the entire congregation take this means of cordially inviting all the former pastors to be present with us and promise them a hearty welcome and an opportunity to speak a few words at the afternoon service. Albert Sherrill.

REPORT OF THE PRESIDENT OF TRINITY COLLEGE

The Board of Trustees

To the Board of Trustees:

As President of Trinity College I herewith submit my report for the year beginning September 16, 1922, and ending June 6, 1923.

Since my last published report there has died one of the two ex-presidents of Trinity known to this generation. The death of Bishop Kilgo occurred in Charlotte, N. C., August 11, 1922. John C. Kilgo came to the presidency of the college in 1894. He served for sixteen years, and in 1910 resigned to become a bishop in the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. Those sixteen years he spent in devoted and arduous service to the college and its causes. He has built for himself a secure place in the history of the state and in the traditions of the college. It is therefore most fitting that the new building planned to be the home of the School of Religious Training should bear his name. There has already appeared a volume of Chapel Talks, edited by D. W. Newsom of the class of 1899 and for long and in intimate ways associated with Bishop Kilgo. This book has had a large sale; and other addresses and papers of Bishop Kilgo should, and I believe will, be published without undue delay.

This building will hold in tangible form for future generations something of the sense of gratitude and affection of this generation for the man who stood pre-eminent among his contemporaries as a brilliant administrator, an eloquent spokesman and a far-reaching reformer in the cause of education and in many of the great moral and social causes of mankind; and the volumes, let us hope, will preserve some of his ruling ideas.

Mr S. C. Vann has given $10,000 to the General Alumni Fund. Mr. B. N. Duke has given $33,696 to the permanent funds of the college and $30,000 to this year's running expenses of the college. Mr. A. B. Duke has this year given $10,000 to the current expense fund. The General Education Board of New York has given $10,000 for increase of salaries.

Mr. James B. Duke has given $25,645.76 to the building fund of the Alumni Memorial Gymnasium; a million dollars to the endowment of the college; and has made most generous offers of contributions toward buildings for the Law School and for the School of Religious Training.

Rev. W. O. Goode, secretary-treasurer of the Christian Education Movement for the Western North Carolina conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, has made a report under date of March 24, 1923, of subscriptions towards the building for the School of Religious Training amounting to $25,920.

The North Carolina and the Western North Carolina conferences have established each one additional chair in the school of Religious Training which we are gradually building up.

The Law School alumni have shown much interest in Mr. Duke's proffered gift towards a suitable building for the Law School; and a committee of loyal and competent law alumni are trying to do their part in meeting the conditions of Mr. Duke's gift.

The gifts reported here for this year are larger than in any other year of our history. With this increased endowment for teaching and the added housing capacity of the Trinity Park School plant, we have been able to admit more students than ever before. While we are thus becoming equipped to teach more students, I believe we are fitting ourselves to do better work. And we can be depended on to emphasize more and more the quality of our intellectual work. No American state needs that a larger proportion of its people have a smattering of learning. There is everywhere too much of that. But there is an age-long need for men and women who are trained to think straight and to think through to right conclusions.

And more and more we shall put emphasis on the character of our students and graduates. Conduct is three-fourths of human life. Increased resources here will mean perhaps improved educational machinery, but it will especially mean more and more attention to the personal qualities of those who are taught and of those who teach. An institution like this is bound to grow and to enlarge its undertakings, but we will not consider new undertakings until we are ready for them. We shall be slow to assume new obligations, but determined to equip ourselves for those we do assume. For us to do well what we undertake to do—"there all the honor lies."

You will be pleased to know that the office of alumni secretary set up here three years ago has accomplished many things of value to the alumni and to the college. I am sure that this office, now firmly established, will never go backward, but will have an ever enlarging field of usefulness in binding together the college and all its former students and in holding them to their great common tasks. In January of this year Mr. R. E. Thigpen, a graduate of the college with one and a half years of training in our Law School and well fitted for his new duties, was employed for full time and put in charge of the plans adopted by the Alumni Council and the General Alumni Association for enlisting the co-operation of the alumni in causes of the college, particularly at this time in building up the general alumni fund. It is my candid opinion that the complete success of this fund, as it is now projected, will do more to assure the continued growth of the college than anything that has happened in all its history.

The alumni secretary and the Alumni Council have not only been busy this year about the general alumni fund, they have busily pushed the cause of the Alumni Memorial Gymnasium, both collections and new subscriptions. The building of this gymnasium is a great undertaking; and until it is paid for and equipped, I think these two should go together—the gymnasium fund and the general alumni fund—and upon them the attention of our alumni everywhere should be focused. It is highly important that the gymnasium be turned over to the college without debt.

I expect to see the Alumni Council find for itself an ever increasing field of operation. I will do my best to help in bringing to them this ever enlarging opportunity and I am sure the trustees will. I should be very happy if the Alumnae Association at its meeting in June would take steps to set up an Alumnae Council that could devote itself especially to women's education.

There is no doubt that the graduates are deeply interested in their alma mater. We only need to find more effective ways to keep them informed about the college, and they will more and more understand and participate in its serious educational activities. This will be helped by the increasing effectiveness of the alumni secretary's office and the organization of the alumni in local, sectional and general associations, by issuing the Alumni Register every month and giving it a wide circulation, by more frequent trips that officers and professors can make as the size of the staff grows larger, by Graduates' Day, which we hope to develop in connection with the autumn meeting of the Alumni Council.

For many years Trinity in a somewhat haphazard fashion has granted leave of absence to such teachers as might wish to pursue their own studies or to perform some special task elsewhere in America or Europe. I asked a committee of the faculty to study this whole question of the sabbatical year. During the year this committee made a full report. The substance of this report, endorsed by the faculty and in principle approved by the executive committee of the trustees, appears in the following paragraphs:

1. That members of the faculty after six years of continuous service shall be potentially eligible to a leave of absence for one year at half salary or a half year absence at regular salary.

2. That the sabbatical privilege shall be applied according to seniority of service as established by the roster of instructors as published in the annual catalogue. That each year a certain number of the potentially eligible be declared practically eligible.

3. That in case one who is practically eligible for the sabbatical shall desire not to accept the privilege that year he may exchange his privilege with one who is not practically eligible, provided the exchange be offered in order of seniority to those who are potentially eligible. Otherwise he shall forfeit his privilege until another six years.

4. That every participant in the sabbatical privilege shall spend his time in pursuits advantageous to his career as teacher or investigator and shall file with the president of the college a written statement of his activities during the year on leave upon his return to the college.

5. That the sabbatical privilege shall not be extended for the present to the faculty of the Law School or to those administrative officers not engaged in teaching, the president of the college excepted.

6. That the administration of the sabbatical shall be in charge of such committee as the president may designate.

7. That the policy thus outlined shall be applied in the academic year 1923-24 when not more than three members of the faculty shall be released for the sabbatical.

In accordance with this plan the executive committee voted to give leave of absence during the first term of 1923-24 to A. M. Webb, professor of Romance Languages since September, 1903; during the second term to W. H. Glasson, professor of Political Economy and Social Science since September, 1902; and if provision for his classes can be made, for the year at half salary to R. N. Wilson, professor of Chemistry and since 1910 a member of the faculty.

During the year the Robert E. Lee prize worth one hundred dollars in money has been established by Rev. A. W. Plyler, of the class of 1892, and Mrs. Plyler. This prize is awarded annually at commencement preferably to that member of the senior class who in character and conduct, in scholarship and athletic achievement on college teams, in manly virtues and the capacity for leadership has most nearly of his class realized the standard of the ideal student. The founders of the prize believe that students should be encouraged to appreciate and cultivate manliness, the spirit of co-operation and unselfish service in behalf of good causes, and the ability and the willingness, even at the cost of self-sacrifice, to assume positions of leadership. Their hope is that this prize may serve as an incentive to the cultivation among Trinity College students of such virtues.

The dean of the college, the graduate manager of athletics, and the president of the Student Council constitute a committee of award with authority to draft and adopt regulations governing the award.

The prize will be awarded for the first time at commencement this year. It has created much interest among the students and bids fair to do much good. It was most gratifying to us to find that a large number of seniors could qualify as at once good students and good athletes, with some gift for leadership. We could profitably use other prizes or scholarships to be awarded along the same general lines.

The summer school continues to grow in numbers, in usefulness, and influence. I hope that very soon, perhaps next year, we may be able to extend the six-weeks term into a double term of twelve weeks.

I think it worth while for me to call your attention to a suggestion made during the year by John Raymond McCrary, Esq., '91, of Lexington, N. C., that there should be erected somewhere on the Trinity grounds a bronze heroic figure of the "Primitive Methodist Circuit Rider." This would preserve in visible form for future generations one of the great features of our early national life, and would be peculiarly fitting in this place, especially if it were placed, as it probably should be, with reference to the building for the School of Religious Training which is now being planned for and the College Chapel which we must eventually have.

W. P. Few, President.

"Little words are the sweetest to hear; little charities fly farthest, and stay longest on the wing; little lakes are the stillest; little hearts are the fullest, and little farms are the best tilled. Little books are read the most, and little songs the dearest loved. And when nature would make anything especially rare and beautiful, she makes it little; little pearls, little diamonds, little dewdrops. Agar's is a model prayer; but then it is a little one; and the burden of the petition is for but little. The Sermon on the Mount is little, but the last dedication discourse was an hour long. Life is made up of littles; death is what remains of them all. Day is made up of little beams, and night is glorious with little stars."—Aurion not named.

ALUMNAE DAY AT GREENSBORO COLLEGE

Mrs. Helen Sparger Dickson.

Enlarged endowment was the keynote of Alumnae day, which was observed on May 28 at Greensboro College, with what was perhaps the largest attendance of alumnae in its entire history.

In her message to the alumnae, at the business meeting in the afternoon at 3 o'clock, the president, Mrs. Frank C. Boyles, nee Miss Myrtle Ham, of the class of 1908, presented to the association the recommendation of the executive committee that the Alumnae Association go on record as approving the proposed campaign for a half million dollar endowment, which the trustees have had under consideration for some time.

Mrs. Boyles said, "Let's get ahead of the trustees, and do what we can without their having to ask for it." She explained to the association that the recommendation of the committee is that the Alumnae Association favor a general scale of giving by its members to the endowment fund to be projected, the scale to be $10 per year for five years.

"Of course," she explained, "this scale is not fixed; there are great numbers of our alumnae who can give much more than that, while it is possible that there are a few who can not do that much." But using this as a basis this would mean $100,000 from the alumnae of the college, which would go far toward the goal suggested. The association, upon the motion of Miss Nannie Lee Smith, adopted the resolution unanimously and with great enthusiasm.

The routine business of the association moved with unaccustomed rapidity and dispatch and splendid reports were given from all the officers and chairmen of committees. In her report Mrs. Boyles also spoke of the great need and the desire of the girls for a recreational hut to be built on the campus, which had been put before the executive committee by a committee from the students. Just at this time, however, the executive committee had not approved of making any public campaign for funds, on account of the fact that the endowment campaign was so soon to be begun. She suggested, however, that there was no reason why the alumnae should not make personal contributions to this fund, which has been started by the students themselves, with $450 already in the treasury. She also reported that the four scholarships had been in this year, and made a stirring appeal to the alumnae to live up to the wonderful heritage that was theirs.

In this connection Mrs. Lucy H. Robertson, president emerita of the college, spoke of the crown of glory that the alumnae of Greensboro College wore, mentioning especially the work of the alumnae 19 years ago when the college was in ashes and urging that there be no falling off in loyalty and enthusiasm now when the institution was facing another great crisis, that of increasing the endowment.

One of the outstanding features of the meeting was the report from the memoirs committee, of which Mrs. P. W. Flagg is chairman. In a beautiful tribute she spoke of those members of the alumnae who had passed on during the past year and recommended that their families be sent a copy of the report of the committee with the expression of the deepest sympathy of the association, and that it be spread upon the minutes of the association. She then read personal tributes to the following: Lena Thompson Holt, Mary Augusta Lamb Hargrave, Elizabeth Ball Miller, Addie McKinne Hart, Jennie Turnage Pittman, Cora V. Smoot and Lillie B. Mohr. Mrs. Helen Sparger (V. S.) Dickson read a tribute to Ida Womack. Mrs. Flagg closed her report with a brief tribute to Mrs. Jennie Page Hancock, who was for many years connected with the college in the capacity of matron, and who is remembered with love and affection by hundreds of old girls.

In Dr. Turrentine's report to the association he spoke of the excellent standard of work which had been maintained by the student body during the past year, and stated that there was a growing interest in religious education. He told of the thirteen members of the Life Service Band this year at the college, five of whom expect to go into foreign missionary work. He concluded his remarks with a stirring appeal to the alumnae to stand by the college in this great undertaking for increased endowment, which would be launched as soon as it seemed advisable by the board of trustees of the college.

The reunion classes, those of 1911, 1917 and 1921, were introduced to the association by Mrs. E. L. Stamey, chairman of the courtesy committee, after which the report of the nominating committee, Mrs. J. Ed Albright, was heard and accepted. The following officers were elected for the new year: President, Mrs. Frank C. Boyles; first vice president, Mrs. W. C. Tucker; second vice president, Mrs. C. A. Cannon, of Concord; third vice president, Mrs. J. S. Turner, of Reidsville; treasurer, Mrs. E. L. Sides; corresponding secretary, Mrs. W. A. Bivens; recording secretary, Miss Nannie Lee Smith; assistant recording secretary, Mrs. J. M. Stone; recorder, Miss Linnie M. Ward, and assistant recorder, Miss Geraldine H. Smith.

The meeting was opened with a Scripture reading by Mrs. George F. Smith, of Littleton, and prayer by Mrs. Bettie Cunningham, of this city.

The student-alumnae dinner at 6 p. m. was perhaps one of the most unique and beautifully carried out affairs in the history of the college. The dining room was in gala attire, garlands of green and white, the college colors, extending from each corner of the big dining room. The tables were decorated with the colors and the flowers of the four classes, the senior table having as its centerpiece baskets of lovely red roses; the juniors, purple asters; the sophomores, violets, and the freshmen, sweet peas. The tables of the reunion classes were also decorated in their class flowers, carnations, daisies and violets.

Mrs. Frank Boyles, who acted as toastmistress, stated that this was a reunion of flowers, which idea was effectively carried out throughout the entire program. Each "old girl" wore at least one of the flowers of her class, and Mrs. Boyles gave the keynote of the whole evening in the original poem, with which she began the program:

'Tis summer and the music
Of the singing stream
By which I am resting
Lulls me into dream.

And in my fancy vision
The flowers have a meeting
Before me in a meadow
To exchange floral greeting.

An orchestra of blue bells
Sits upon a mossy knoll
And peals forth gentle music
That quite captures every soul.

To this glad occasion
Come the flowers of old G. C.
To bring a loving message
Of faith and loyalty.

Of loyalty to their college,
Of faith in her teachers dear,
And now if you will listen
Their messages you will hear!

Eight girls, members of the rising sophomore and junior classes, dressed in the pastel shades, as flowers, came tripping in, bearing baskets of lovely white sweet peas, which were distributed to the guests as favors. The girls were Misses Nellie Bird Woods, Virginia Lowrance, Ruth Hoyle, Dixie Reaves, Ruby Swindell, Frances Henninger, Sarah Edwards and Eva Smoot.

Mrs. Boyles then presented the reunion classes, the class of 1921 first, and called on Miss Annie Laurie Lowrance as the violet of 1921 to toast her sister class, 1923. She was responded to by Miss Esther Newberry, a rose of the senior class.

Mrs. Julia Crutchfield Kinzer, of Kentucky, of the class of 1911, gave a beautiful toast to "The Ideal Small College," closing with such a tribute to Mrs. Lucy H. Robertson, who was president of the ideal small college during her student days, and who lives in the memory of each of her girls, as all that is high and fine and noble in Christian womanhood, that there was hardly a dry eye in the whole room. The lovely basket of red and white carnations, which formed the centerpiece of the table of 1911, was then presented to Mrs. Robertson, with all the love and loyalty of that class.

Dr. Turrentine, in a most inspiring manner, responded to the toast, "Our Greatest Need," again emphasizing the crying need of the college, if she were going to hold her place in the educational world, the place that has been hers for so long, for enlarged endowment.

Mrs. Grace Wallace Taylor, of the class of 1917, spoke on "Broadcasting Sentiment for G. C." and Miss Julia Marshall Little, of the class of 1924, gave a toast "To Our College."

The program was interspersed by clever songs by the juniors to the trustees, by the sophomores, and two lovely vocal numbers by Gilman F. Alexander, of the music faculty of the college. The college orchestra, augmented by friends in the city, added greatly to the enjoyment and the informality of the occasion.

Just prior to the singing of the college song, with which the dinner was concluded, two of the little flower girls entered bearing a garland into which had been woven some of the flowers of each of the classes, and which Mrs. Boyles stated symbolized the blending of the hearts of the students and the alumnae united in love to their alma mater.

DR. T. N. IVEY

Dr. T. N. Ivey was an A. B. graduate of Trinity College in the class of 1879. He maintained intimate and life-long associations with his alma mater. He received here the degree of Master of Arts and the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity. He served for many years as a member of the board of trustees. He belonged to a great Trinity College family. One of the college's most cherished foundations, which now takes on an added significance, is the Ivey Professorship in Biblical Literature established by the Western North Carolina conference and named for Rev. George W. Ivey, the honored father of Dr. T. N. Ivey.

Dr. Ivey kept up equally close contacts with his home conference and with North Carolina in general. The home ties never weakened although he willingly went away to undertake a larger task, but his face was turned to the future. And this was the secret of his leadership. In his many years of editorial duties he had difficult questions to deal with. He handled them wisely. He did not occupy extreme positions in either direction. He stood strongly for the main things and subordinated the unessentials. He furnished the church an example of that comprehensive leadership which it has always needed and needs now.

Its great importance in the life of the church today makes me content with emphasizing this one element in Dr. Ivey's spiritual equipment. For the church must go forward today, as it has ever gone forward, through a leadership that has sufficient breadth of human sympathy, that is sufficiently comprehensive, to include men of many intellectual types but with hearts alike devoted to the interests of the church and the causes of the kingdom of God.

W. P. Few.

FOR EACH MAN A TASK

"For each man there is a task where only his hand can avail,
And if he falter, a chord in the music will fail.
He may laugh to the sky, he may lie for an hour in the sun.
But he dare not go home till the labor appointed is done.
For each man there is a marble to carve for the wall,
One stone that is needed to heighten the beauty of all.
And none but his soul has the magic to give it a grace,
And none but his hands have the cunning to put it in place.
Yes, for each man there is a task which only he is able to do,
And so your errand is waiting, it has waited long ages for you.
And now you appear, and the hushed ones are turning their gaze
To see what you do with your chance in the chamber of days."

—Edwin Markham.

CAROLINA COLLEGE CLOSES WITH INTERESTING PROGRAM

To one who entered the Carolina College grounds last week for the year's finals, it was very evident that the spirit of progress was there guiding and furthering some worth-while operations. On every hand vast improvements were noted. Ormond showed half of its rambling porches converted into cosy sun parlors, the work of the teachers themselves. The interior finished anew in old ivory and fitted with fresh dainty furnishings made an ideal home atmosphere. It is certain that many delightful evenings have been enjoyed there by the college family. Rustic benches, attractive flower beds and a hedge of roses and evergreens made the campus intensely inviting—a sight pleasing to look upon.

Mr. E. J. Green, the new president, who with exceptional zeal and faith, entered last fall into the task of building a "Bigger, Better Carolina," is making a fine headway towards this goal. Under his inspiration, and with his aid, the Maxton people went into a campaign in April to raise funds for a new dormitory. In two days $25,000 was pledged, and with this as a beginning the other half will be forthcoming from North Carolina Methodists, so the new dormitory is to be a reality.

On Wednesday afternoon, May 30th, the students entered into the college finals with their characteristic vim, and entertained a large number of visitors on the campus with a spring fantasia. This was especially well rendered and enjoyed.

The art exhibit was open at 5 p. m., as was also the work of the home economics department. The work of these departments was even more appreciated that night when an informal reception at the college brought most of the townspeople together in a most delightful way. The faculty and students entertained, and the degree of pleasure experienced by their guests was in a way estimated by the large number who availed themselves of this privilege. Delicious cream and cake and punch was served. One of the triumphs of the art department was the beautiful collection of hand painted china. Many ladies in town enrolled for this course, and a dinner set painted in forget-me-nots was the center of attraction, the work of Mrs. E. G. Green. There were many other sets as dainty as flowers in spring, though not so striking in appearance.

Taking his text, Phillipians, 4th chapter, 8th verse, Dr. J. E. Abernethy, pastor of Trinity church, Charlotte, N. C., preached the baccalaureate sermon at Carolina College Thursday morning at 11 o'clock. Dr. Abernethy delivered one of the most eloquent and spiritual sermons ever heard in Maxton. After the text "Think on these things," the speaker told of the wonderful power of thought, God's greatest gift to man. With this as a beginning Dr. Abernethy preached a wonderful sermon on the five laws of character: First, as we think, we are. Second, as we are, we see. Third, as we see, we enjoy. Fourth, as we enjoy, we live. Fifth, as we live, so shall we live hereafter. Prevlous to the sermon Miss Eva J. Lawrence, head of the voice department, sang most beautifully "O Divine Redeemer," by Gounod.

On Thursday evening the music department of Carolina College gave its annual recital, showing the work and progress of the students during the year. Both students of piano and voice departments made a splendid showing, and were an eloquent tribute to the teachers under whose training they had developed.

On Friday morning Dr. W. B. McIlwaine, so well known as a former Maxton pastor, delivered the closing address. Mr. McIlwain's central thought was "Building on the Ages." If one would build wisely, one must build on the laws of God. Character must be the outcome of our constructive efforts. Too truly, he said, America suffers two curses today, a disrespect of law, and individualism—thought for self alone. We are too much a nation of bargain hunters, he said, and character is not built on the bargain plan. It is a plant of slow growth. Bit by bit as it is built up. As the ocean isles grow the skeletons of tiny animals so we grow, and so our nation grows strong and fine from the deeds we do, or else we are dragged down to disgrace by our indifference and self-seeking.

After the award of diplomas to the following young ladies, Misses Gladys Phillips, Gladys Wright and Ikie Brock in the college department, Misses Pearl Jackson, Zelda Brooks and Myrtle Galloway in the preparatory department, Misses Alda Sasser, Marie Karnegay and Georgla Bethea from the home economics department, and Miss Alice McNair from the art department, the American Legion under their able representative, Mayor J. E. Carpenter, invited the audience to the campus at the close of the exercises, and there in very graceful style a fine American flag was raised. This flag was a gift to the college from the Legion.

A meeting of the board of trustees was held on Friday afternoon, and many interesting issues came up for discussion. Mr. Green gave in his report of the past year's work, and this was received with much approbation by the board. Mr. Green was unanimously re-elected and the Rev. R. B. John's resignation as a member of the board read and accepted. Mr. M. E. Newsome of Durham was chosen to fill the vacancy made by Dr. John. Mr. McKay McKinnon as chairman of the central committee on raising dormitory funds gave in his report from the Maxton campaign. This was received with applause, and a vote of thanks was given to him for marshalling the forces which made the raising of $25,000 possible. All were anxious that the work on the dormitory should proceed steadily, and the executive committee was authorized by the board of trustees to begin operations immediately.

MEMORIAL OF THE BOOK COMMITTEE ON THE LIFE AND WORK OF DR. THOMAS N. IVEY

Your committee appointed to prepare a paper on the death of Dr. Ivey beg leave to present the following:

The death of Dr. Thomas N. Ivey, coming so suddenly and unexpectedly, was a great shock to us, filling our hearts with sorrow and casting over us the pall of sadness. Our grief is not ours alone, but is shared by the whole church which he served so long and so faithfully.

His work as editor in chief of the connectional organ of our church has been before the people of Southern Methodism with every weekly issue of the Advocate for thirteen years and needs no commendation from us.

Dr. Ivey was not only a man of fine literary taste and judgment, but also possessed that rare gift of journalistic instinct which fitted him fully for his high editorial position. In this work he gained and held the esteem of the thousands of our Israel who followed his utterances from week to week through the years of his editorship. He served the church not only as editor and preacher, but as a member of many important boards, commissions, and committees, in all of which he was loyal to the best instinct of the church, painstaking in his activities and unbiased in his judgment by prejudice or favoritism.

Dr. Ivey was greatly loved by the members of the book committee and by all co-workers in the publishing house. Always considerate, genial and brotherly in his dealings with others, he will be greatly missed and his place will be hard to fill in our work and in our hearts.

Our profound and heartfelt sympathies go out to his loved ones in their bereavement and our prayers ascend to the God of all comfort that He may be their help and stay in their deep sorrow.

W. Louls Davis,
A. J. Lamar,
Committee.

CONFERENCE AT NORTH WILKESBORO

North Wilkesboro is the metropolis of the upper Yadkin valley and a hustling town is this youthful city in the "State of Wilkes." The vigor of the Methodist church under the leadership of that robust itinerant, Rev. M. T. Smathers, equals the vigor of the town as a mart of trade and a manufacturer of leather.

The Methodist clans from Ashe, Alleghany, Avery and Watauga had assembled in goodly numbers for the annual gathering Wednesday and Thursday, May 30-31. Rev. J. W. Williams, the presiding elder, was in charge and gave all who so desired a chance to be heard and presided with satisfaction from beginning to end.

The principal addresses of the conference were delivered by Prof. R. L. Flowers on education, C. H. Ireland on the layman's work, and E. K. McLarty on missions.

Among the visitors were O. V. Woosley, M. T. Hlnshaw, C. A. Wood, W. A. Newell, R. H. Daugherty and Miss Grace Bradley.

PRAYER MEETING NIGHT AT A JAPANESE CHURCH

N. S. Ogburn, Jr.

There was just one thing striking about this particular prayer meeting. It was led by the Japanese Bible Women. The reason for this was that the preacher was absent. Now think of a preacher being absent from prayer meeting! But why not? So many of his flock seem to think it their privilege, so why not his also? But he is presiding elder also, and there is his passport.

But a woman leading the prayer meeting in Japan! There were three women and five men present, and this woman was probably the youngest among them. She spoke of the Cross of Jesus and how Simon helped to carry it for Him; and then she spoke of how Jesus died for all mankind and how His sufferings should wring tears from the hearts of men.

Yes, a woman leading a public church meeting in Japan, where forty or fifty years ago she hardly dared to let her voice be heard too much in her own home! This may have been the reason for the old man's talk when the meeting was thrown open.

"The women of Japan cry and laugh too much. I have been struck in reading through the New Testament with how few times Jesus cried. Now there are times to cry and times to laugh and Japanese women must know them. I was in a neighboring town at a funeral about Christmas time. The funeral was that of a naval officer. The widow did not shed a tear at the funeral; but when I went to call at the home afterward I found her and her daughter in tears. A brave, brave woman! Foreigners see Japanese women and think they are always laughing, doing nothing but laugh. I wish to warn them against such things."

Is the dear old man's warning that of past Japan to coming Japan? Is he attempting to put on brakes? Is his a voice from the left-over feeling of once-followed Buddhism?

I do not know. But I do know that the woman led the meeting, and I know that she is going to continue to lead them. She has taken up the Cross, and as it did Simon, as it does all who lift it, it is lifting her to heights where she can hear more of the Voice which has said unto her, "Mary!"

Kwansei Gakuin, Kobe, Japan.

THE CONSTRUCTIVE CRITIC ESTEEMED

No one has any use for the fault-finder and the persistent knocker; but for the one who can weigh and measure, able to note the weakness and to suggest the better way, every sensible man has the highest esteem. Such a critic is a builder, able to aid all who would make a contribution to their age.

The man who accuses all that do not agree with his little coterie of being unsound on the fundamentals of religion and untrue to the teachings of the Bible and dangerous to the church does nothing more than advertise how far he is from the mind of the Master and from the spirit of Him who had no harsh word for any one save for the ancient Pharisees who, like these modern ones, would compass land and sea to make one proselyte. But one who can keep from the sin of the world and live so as to draw little children to him and win to a higher life men and women broken by sin, until the most prodigal can find the way back to the Father's house, does much to make the kingdom come. It is marvellous how quarrelsome some folks who claim to be perfect can be, and how unlike Him who went about doing good are many of those who are so sound in the faith. They have become common knockers without being aware of the low level to which they have fallen. None are so blind as those who are lost in the dungeon of their own egotism and self-righteousness.

Fortunate are we that most men and women are plain, pleading, faithful souls who are striving to fill their places in the world, many of these with the fear of God before their eyes and the love of God in their hearts. The knockers are like wandering wolves in the dark woods rendering night hideous for all normal creation; the fault-finding critics save none and do nothing for the building of the kingdom.

Many a meandering discourse one hears, in which the preacher alms at nothing, and—hits it.—Whately.

FIRST CHURCH, ROCKY MOUNT, REVIVAL SERVICES

Special revival services were held here from May 13th to May 27th. The pastor did the preaching and Mr. Jas. V. Reid of Oakland City, Ind., conducted the singing. Twenty-four persons were received into the church on profession of faith and eleven by letter. The church has had a net gain of 72 for this conference year.

The services of Mr. Reid as chorus leader, soloist, as well as pianist, were of the highest order. He is indeed a master of this line of work.

H. M. North, Pastor.

A GOOD MEETING

We have just closed a very gracious meeting here at Long's Chapel, Lake Junaluska. The interest was fine from start to finish, and there were quite a number of conversions and reclamations. Thirty have already joined the church on profession of faith, and I think others will join later.

Some outstanding features of the meeting were: The preaching, which was done by Rev. C. S. Kirkpatrick of Hickory, N. C.; the music, which was led by Bro. J. Dale Stentz; and the personal work. I have never seen finer personal work done anywhere than was done in this meeting. I would not pass up the personnel of workers in this meeting for Billy Sunday's outfit.

Let me say to the Advocate readers, if any of you are casting about for a place to spend a few days this summer, come to Lake Junaluska. It's one of God's beauty spots.

W. M. Robbins, Pastor.

BIG MEETING AT SPRAY

According to my best judgment we closed Sunday night, May 20, one of the best and most thorough revivals ever conducted in the Spray Methodist church. We have had a revival in the truest sense of the term. No, we have had no monkey-shines, no circus sideshows no undue emotionalism, no wildfire; but a genuine revival, going down beneath the mud, the sand, the soapstone, laying hold on the rocks and springs beneath. Every service from start to finish was attended by the unusual presence and power of the Holy Spirit. The spiritual life of the church has been quickened, deepened and sweetened beyond expectation. A goodly number of converts will be added to the church as a result of the meeting. A number of backsliders were reclaimed, and the whole community has felt the sobering effects of the meeting.

Dr. P. B. Wells, pastor Trinity Methodist church, Opelika, Ala., did the preaching. Dr. Wells is beyond doubt one of the Lord's anointed. I have heard many of the great preachers of our own connection and of other connections, but I must say that the series of revival sermons delivered by Dr. Wells, while in Spray, I have never quite heard their equal. He preaches the gospel with a clearness, efficiency and power seldom equaled. He is one of the most untiring workers I have ever been associated with in a revival meeting. His messages come direct from a warm heart and a strong shoulder. His style in the pulpit is superb, while his ability to adapt himself to all the circumstances of the occasion is all that could be desired. The entire membership join the pastor in saying, Dr. Wells, come again.

C. W. Bowling, Pastor.

REVIVAL OF RELIGION

Calvary Methodist church experienced a real revival of religion during the past week. At the beginning of the services, which were conducted by Rev. R. E. Pittman of La Grange, the attendance was very small. The interest in the meeting had a gradual growth, but it was not until Sunday after the meeting began (Monday, May 21st,) that the church was filled with people. During the day we received 22 into the church on profession of faith. At our next service—Monday night—which was the closing service of the revival, we received nine on profession of faith; a total of 31. This addition to the church is 70 per cent of the membership of the church before the revival. Besides, four names have been handed to the Baptist pastor to be received into their church. This, of course, is only an outward sign of what has taken place. The community as a whole has been blessed by the revival.

W. Norman Vaughn.

REVIVAL AT NORTH MAIN, SALISBURY

We have just closed one of the most successful meetings ever held at North Main. The church was divinely touched and inspired, humbled and helped. It received a great blessing in the stimulation of the faithful, the reclamation of the backsliders and the conversion of sinners. Old feuds were settled, minor differences forgotten, and great grace was upon all of us.

We were fortunate in having Rev. W. A. Rollins of Concord to do the preaching. Brother Rollins preaches with power. He lays special emphasis on the doctrine of a holy life and a victorious faith, and by far the greatest blessing of the meeting was his call to holy living. He was unsparing in his denunciation of sin, yet his messages were always full of the spirit of compassion for the lost. If you want a safe, sane, sound gospel preacher, get Rollins. One seldom hears a series of sermons equaled in power to those delivered by this gifted preacher.

The meeting continued 18 days, resulting in more than 50 conversions and reclamations. Fourteen have already joined our church, and there are others to join at an early date.

The church has been greatly revived and we are looking to the future with courage. F. J. Stough, Pastor.

LITTLE MARY MORRISON ALEXANDER

Sadness fills many Asheboro homes because of the sudden going of the eldest child, aged five, of Kemp and Annie Moring Alexander, and granddaughter of those staunch Methodists, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Moring.

Baptized in her infancy, sent early to Sunday school, taught the Scriptures at home, these young parents hoped to make of Mary a fine Christian woman. But a passing automobile suddenly wrecked their holy plans. Overwhelmed, they do not bear this sorrow alone, for all who knew their lovely child are sharing their grief—and the heavenly Father has underneath the everlasting arm. Blessings on the parents and grandparents.

A TIMELY THOUGHT

With a song in our heart let's greet each day,
And the tasks that the day may bring;
For God's blest love shines on our way—
What can we do but sing?

MISSIONS

There is a land across the sea
Where you and I have never been;
Where children never hear of Christ,
Nor that His blood can cleanse from sin.

They have no Bibles there to read,
To tell of Christ and heaven above,
And they know naught of life beyond,
Where all is duty, joy and love.

They see not God in tree or flower,
They know not of His love and care,
Nor how He keeps them all each hour;
They do not know the power of prayer.

They hear Him not in running brook,
Nor in the sweet song of the bird;
No praise to Him is ever sung,
No voice of prayer to Him is heard.

We want to tell them how to live,
We want to teach them of God's love,
We want to tell them when they die
They'll have a home in heaven above.

So now we ask you for your aid
To spread His kingdom o'er the earth.
O help us now to bring to them
A higher, holier, happier birth!

And may God's blessing on us rest,
And as we pray "Thy will be done"
Here in our homes, let's help them,
too,
And helping say "Thy kingdom come."
Mrs. E. M. Anderson.

"SAY IT WITH FLOWERS"

"What is so rare as a day in June?"
This quotation takes us back to the days of thrills and frills and moonlight and flowers and—lots of lovely things. But what I'm saying is that June is flower month and amid so much loveliness the thought comes to me that in connection with the June program we shall where possible, as a love offering to the memory of Miss Bennett, "say it with flowers"—not to her, for she no longer needs the ministry of flower or loving word, but to the living, the shut-ins, the aged, hospital wards, prisons the bereaved—everywhere where there is suffering and need. How the great heart of our translated Leader would rejoice in such expression!

WHAT THE WORLD NEEDS

What the world needs today according to Forbes' Magazine:
More kindness, less creed.
More giving, less greed.
More smile, less frown.
Less kicking a man when he's down.
More "we," less "I."
More laugh, less cry.
More flowers on the pathway of life.
Fewer on graves at the end of the strife.

LAKE JUNALUSKA

Has anybody said "Junaluska, the gem of the mountains?" Very well, then, we will not say it, but whoever said it first said it right; whoever said it has been there, and know whereof they speak. She—for it must have been a woman—has an eye for the truly beautiful, as God creates beauty, and an ear for the harmonies He puts in the treetops, in the birds' throats, in the mountain streams and in the thundering cataracts. An ear also for messages of lofty thinking and heroic living, for here come men and women (and many children) from the four corners of the earth, who serve God and their fellows and talk out of great and wonderful experiences of great and wonderful work—all, all about the coming of the kingdom. So, friends, if you need a mountain-top view of service, and a mountain-top experience while you look, to Junaluska this summer, and you will have something delightful and helpful to think over for a whole year, when the grey days come and blue Monday is bluer than common.

Special meeting of the young people of Greensboro district at Muir's Chapel June 8.

Every Young People's society is urged to send a delegate to the district meeting June 7 and 8. Every member of the young people's societies is invited to be present on June 8. Special plans for the young people! Special dinner!

GREENSBORO DISTRICT MEETING

The missionary societies of Greensboro district will meet June 7 and 8 at Muir's Chapel. Please send delegates' names as soon as possible to Mrs. G. W. Baxter, Guilford College, N. C., stating on what train you will arrive. Sessions, June 7, at 3 p. m. and 7:30 p. m.; June 8, at 9 a. m. and 2 p. m. Automobiles will meet the street cars at the Masonic Home. Miss Delia Tuttle has a message for every missionary worker in the district.
Mrs. W. G. Ballard, Dis. Sec.

SALISBURY DISTRICT MEETING

The Salisbury district meeting of missionary societies will be held at New London on June 28-29. All adult, young people's and children's societies should elect delegates at first meeting in June and send name to Mrs. J. S. Folger, New London, N. C.
Mrs. W. W. Weant, Dis. Sec.

Mrs. Loy D. Thompson of Charlotte has the warm sympathy of many friends in the death of her mother, Mrs. W. A. Rudisell, which occurred May 25th at her home in Lincolnton.

Friends of Mrs. M. B. Goodwin of Morantown will be interested in the announcement that her daughter, Miss Miriam Goodwin, who graduated from N. C. C. in June, and who had expected to have two years at Scarritt, has recently been appointed to teach next year in the school for missionaries' children in Songdo, Korea. Miss Goodwin will sail early in August, giving her but a short time with her parents after commencement. We congratulate Miss Goodwin because a more delightful appointment could scarcely be imagined in connection with work in a foreign field. She will carry with her the loving interest of scores of her own and her mother's friends in the W. N. C. conference.

SOCIAL SERVICE CONFERENCE

The annual Social Service Conference, to be held at Lake Junaluska, July 1-8, under the auspices of the General Conference Commission on Temperance and Social Service, of which Bishop James Cannon, Jr., is chairman, promises to be one of the most significant gatherings of the kind ever held in Southern Methodism. It is the feeling of the commission that the time has come when our church must go to the bottom of many of the social and industrial problems which are so sorely vexing the world today and prepare itself to point the way toward Christian solutions. To that end the commission is inviting to Junaluska the leadership of the church, clerical and lay, and is preparing a thorough-going program relative to these questions.

Outstanding subjects to be studied will be "The Home and Family," including the questions of marriage and divorce and protection of women in industry; "Child Welfare," with special reference to legislation needed to conserve and protect childhood; "The Church and Industry," a most timely topic to which two days will be given; "Christian Race Relations," which will occupy a day, and "Prohibition and Law Enforcement," which will have another.—The Junaluskan.

IN JERUSALEM, JUDEA AND SAMARIA

Our homeland, with a conglomerate population of more than one hundred and ten millions of people, representative of every race and nation on the globe, is unquestionably "the greatest mission field in the world." Sixty-five per cent of this population is non-Christian and wholly unreached by the church. Christian civilization makes its impress upon it, but Jesus Christ as Saviour and Redeemer is unknown to this great mass of humanity.—Belle H. Bennett, Lambuth-Bennett Book of Remembrance.

In behalf of the women of the N. C. conference we extend to Mrs. J. V. Wilson of High Point, former editor of our page from our sister conference, our sincere sympathy in the death of her mother, Mrs. Kirkman, regretting that she found it necessary to sever her official connection with "Our Page."

We wish also to assure Mrs. H. K. Boyer of Mt. Airy a warm welcome into our "sanctum sanctorum," feeling sure that with the weapon which is "mightier than the sword" she will make her way into our hearts, to the edification of our minds and spiritual natures as well.

Lines written on Green Hill House, Louisburg, N. C., where the first Methodist conference was held:

There's a great Methodist sentinel just beyond the town
So quaint, picturesque, tho' now bereft of its own.
'Tis naught but a house, at glance you might say,
As you hastily speed by the road on your way.
But pause, and it will tell you of other days
When its walls re-echoed "Amen's" and sounds of joyful praise.
For good shepherds once grazed within its fold.
Choice spirits they were, and great warriors bold,
Who met right there, 'twas a call from God
To seek more definitely the way He trod.
The bishops and others, you should know them all.
Tho' there weren't so many that were subject to call.
But 'twas the spirit of Wesley that seemed there enshrined
In the hearts of his followers, and few then divined
How thro' prayer and great wrestling there came such power,
That afterwards made them the men of the hour;
For their names ring out from the silent past,
In the voice and sound of the itinerant's blast.
And the impress they planted has been borne on down the time
Which characterized these pioneers and made their lives sublime.
So it stands a precious landmark, tho' weather beaten and grey,
With its inmates hushed in silence—long since passed away.

Now when'er you meet in body, in a common brotherhood,
And join your songs and praises in a holy, happy mood,

When your work has been completed, and all is said and done,
Just chirp some notes for Green Hill where conference first begun.
L. K. Foster.

A TRIBUTE

In the death of Dr. T. N. Ivey Southern Methodism has lost one of her most outstanding and representative men, one not easy to be replaced. A man of influence because of his absolute Christian integrity. A man who possessed the confidence and esteem of his conferees, of those who know him only in his editorial capacity, to whom his friends were loyally devoted, because of the spirit of Christ that was in him showing itself in his life, in his teachings, in his preaching, in his writing. A man of high peculiar culture that comes only with Christian education, who believes in a liberal education as a stimulus to belief, and not as a license to doubt.

We feel a personal sorrow, a sense of loss, in the passing of this splendid Christian gentleman, and would extend our heartfelt sympathy to those who loved and will miss him.

DISTRICT GROUP MEETINGS

The first group meeting of the Wilmington district will be held by the new district secretary, Mrs. T. W. Lee, of Rose Hill, in Faison June 1st. An interesting and helpful program has been planned and a large attendance expected.

Mrs. Emma Hunter of Fayetteville has called her district together in Sanford at Steele Street church, June 13th and 14th, for its annual meeting. She has some good things in store for her people, one of which is an address by our loved missionary to China, Miss Sallie Lou McKinnor, on her work in China. Delegates, please send names to Mrs. B. Cole, Sanford, N. C.

Coming next is the Washington district meeting in Nashville June 19th and 20th. Mrs. Blount's meetings are always stimulating and instructive, and her program will without doubt provide information and inspiration to all who will attend it.

The Rockingham district with its new secretary, Mrs. W. R. Royall, (and may we say, by way of parenthesis, that the earnest plea comes from our conference in Henderson that these two preachers, T. W. Lee and W. R. Royall, and their wives—the wives particularly—be not removed from the Wilmington and Rockingham districts) met in most interesting and successful session in Lumberton recently. In addition to the splendid reports from the auxiliaries, Miss Lillie Duke and Mrs. W. P. Webb, presented the young people's and children's work; Mrs. LeGrand Everett, the mission and Bible study and Our Missionary News; Mrs. Harvey Boney, the Greater Scarritt; Mrs. Emma Hunter, Missionary Day at Council; and Miss Floy Martin, one of the best presentations of Stewardship we have heard. The special music was lovely, and the delicious lunch served in the church by the women of the church was the occasion for a social season, in which everybody could relax and get acquainted. Miss McKinnor was a great help in all that she said, and the district feels it a great honor and a delightful privilege to be able to claim her for its own. In August she will return to her post in Virginia School, Huchow, China, followed by the prayers of many here who know and love her, and all deeply interested in her welfare.

SCHOOL AT SCOTLAND NECK

Sunday school workers of Scotland Neck, Enfield, Hobgood, and Palmyra came together at Scotland Neck last week in a splendid non-standard training school, and they stayed by it with a faithfulness and interest that bespeak marked improvement in the work for training boys and girls, men and women, in Christian character and leading them in paths of Christian service. The school began Sunday evening and continued through Friday, with three courses. Fifty or more persons enrolled in the three classes.

Courses offered and the instructors were: "Elementary Work," Miss Georgia Keene; "Principles of Religious Teaching," Rev. E. L. Hillman; and "Organization and Administration of the Sunday School," Mr. L. L. Gobbel. Rev. Mr. Hillman, at whose initiative the school was arranged, had charge of preliminary arrangements for the school and did his work so well that the workers were in an expectant mood when we arrived on the scene and entered into the work with a spirit that defied defeat. Pastors and superintendents were 100 per cent in attendance; there was not one who stayed away. And the teachers were there too!

THAT ENFIELD DELEGATION

From Enfield, about 16 miles from Scotland Neck, came workers each evening, headed by Rev. Rufus Bradley, the pastor, and Mr. W. N. Sherrod, the superintendent. These leaders and workers seemed not to mind traveling 32 miles each day in order to become better trained for the great work in hand.

The writer spent Sunday morning at Enfield, conducting the worship program of the Sunday school and speaking to the congregation at 11 o'clock. These good people are seeking to strengthen their forces and extend their sphere of influence, and it is through the Sunday school that they expect to accomplish much of this. The enlargement of the church auditorium and the construction of adequate Sunday school equipment are included in the program which they hope to work out as soon as possible.

SCOTLAND NECK METHODISM

Scotland Neck, the home of the Kitchins and a great Baptist stronghold, where Methodism at times has had pretty rough sailing, is coming to realize, if she has not done so before, that Methodism is a real live, virile institution, and to Rev. Edgar Lafayette Hillman and his good wife much credit is due for this favorable impression. To their leadership the people are responding in a big way, and all departments of the work are showing the results. They have a great hold on the people, and the people a hold on them. The people seem to want to keep them always, and they seem not at all anxious to move. They occupy a cozy parsonage, made so largely through their own initiative, and are busy building fences, beautifying the lawns, and otherwise improving the premises. So whether they remain a long time or a very short time, those who come after them will find a congregation and a parsonage made better and attractive by their having lived and labored in this field.

Co-operating with these workers in the whole program, particularly the Sunday school, is Mr. J. G. Madry, who, as superintendent of the Sunday school is alive and alert, always on the job and studying how better to do the big task assigned to him.

PREACHERS' SUMMER SCHOOL

Preachers of the two conferences in the state begin this morning courses of study in the Trinity Summer School for Preachers. The undergraduates are taking the regular conference course of study. Others are studying Sunday school organization and administration and principles of religious teaching, while still others are studying courses in rural and city church work. Then, perhaps a few are simply taking the campus course. All are having a great time and no doubt will go back to their charges refreshed and ready to serve their Sunday schools and churches better on account of these days at Trinity.

ACTION OF GENERAL BOARD

Following is a copy of an action of the General Sunday School Board relative to missionary funds contributed on Missionary Sunday, which action is self-explanatory:

"In view of certain growing tendencies to divert to other worthy channels the funds contributed for missions by the Sunday school on Missionary Sunday, thus doing violence to fundamental ethical and pedagogical principles in our work of religious education, that the Sunday School Board record its disapproval of such diversion and request the conference superintendents to make special efforts in all their contacts and communications with local Sunday schools to correct this evil."

IN THIS VACATION SEASON

With the closing of our schools and colleges the opening of swimming holes and summer resorts, the call of the mountains and seashore, there comes a tendency, in some schools, to "let up" in interest, attendance and effort. If you, good Sunday school worker, are planning a vacation, will you not first help your superintendent to find a good substitute to take care of your class until your return? And why not consider spending that vacation at Lake Junaluska, the "summer capital of Southern Methodism," in western North Carolina? There you can get the swimming, fishing, and boating of the seashore, the mountain climbing, cool breezes, and fine freedom of the mountains, and the fellowship, inspiration, and instruction of the greatest training school in the South. Plan to go to Junaluska July 12 for two weeks. You and your school both will be tremendously benefited.

YOUR WORKERS' COUNCIL

The General Conference considers a Workers' Council so essential to successful Sunday school work that it says (see Discipline) that every Sunday school "shall" have one. A Workers' Council is as necessary to a Sunday school as is a directors' meeting to a bank. If you are an officer or teacher in your school, you are a member of your council, and to it and to yourself you owe regular attendance, regular reports, and consistent co-operation.

IS YOURS A WESLEY CLASS?

Is your class organized? If its members are twelve years of age or over, it should be. And its own interests and its loyalty to the church which fosters it should lead it to become a Wesley class. Write for literature explaining the whole Wesley class organization and aim. You should know about it whether your class ever becomes a part of it or not. We believe it will want to organize, secure a Wesley charter, and function as a Wesley class.

Western North Carolina Conference

GROWING

The number of devoted and consecrated Sunday school officers and teachers who are willing to better prepare themselves for the great work they have to do is constantly growing. Whereas last year there were 553 officers and teachers in the Western North Carolina conference who received credits in our Standard Training Schools this year there have already been recorded 778 credits in such schools with a bona fide enrollment of 1381, which of course does not include many visitors. There will be many others who are willing to pay the price of hard study as soon as the opportunity is presented them. Our record for this conference year in Standard Training School work is as follows: First figures for enrollment, second for credits:

Charlotte School ... ..	274	143
Gastonia School .....	190	123
Greensboro School .....	184	118
Winston-Salem School .....	201	108
Hickory School .....	142	90

HALLELUJAH!

In the list of forty-one Western North Carolina pastors who have, during this conference year, taken one or more units of credit in the Standard Leadership Training Course given in the Advocate a short while ago the name of M. W. Mann was inadvertently left out. He belongs in the select company and he and other recruits are hereby listed. Note them: Rev. John Hoyle, Jr., Rev. J. W. Ingle, Rev. M. W. Mann, Rev. D. H. Rhinehart, Rev. A. L. Stanford. This makes forty-six. Hallelujah!

GREATLY APPRECIATED

"I read with pleasure your Sunday school page in the North Carolina Christian Advocate and want to congratulate you on the fine work you are doing as assistant editor. Your page is full of valuable information and at the same time thoroughly readable. That is an excellent way to get our Sunday school work before the people. May you have increasing joy and success in your great task.

Yours faithfully,
E. B. Chappell."

NO TRESPASSING

My good friend, Gobbel, of the North Carolina conference, is making a good Sunday school promoter. He is a good claim agent. Lest he get some more of our fine "Hillbillies" we will put up a "No Trespassing" sign. I greatly enjoyed reading this letter when it came a day or two ago:

"I have just read the Sunday school page in the last Advocate. I always read it. I notice under head of "April Showers of Credits" in the North Carolina Conference column I am listed at the tail end with four credits. I recently got the four credits; but the point I am making is "I ain't no Sandfiddler." I'm a "Hillbillie."

I lack one unit, on which I am working, of having the blue seal diploma, and Mrs. Hoyle was recently accredited with eight units in the form of an incomplete diploma and other units not so arranged as to give the blue seal.

We both have a little bit of a sneaking notion of trying to make the gold seal before conference

The Sunday school work in the Leicester charge looks better than it did a few months ago. Three of the schools have enrollments larger than the churches do and their average attendance is from 90 to 120 per cent as much as the church membership.

With best wishes, I am,
Respectfully,
John Hoyle, Jr."

A GREAT REVIVAL

Rev. M. B. Woosley, assisted by Rev. H. G. Allen, has closed a wonderful meeting at South Main Street, Salisbury. The pastor at this church is a thorough believer in the Sunday school, in which he regularly teaches a fine lot of young men, the Epworth League and a systematized program of recreational activities. All these agencies helped greatly in the furtherance of the wonderful meeting just closed. In a personal letter just received the pastor writes as follows:

"Allen and I have just closed our meeting. We received into the church 103 on profession and I have a few more to go after. There will be quite a number to be received by certificate. I never saw two Bible classes work like our two men's classes did. At times the altar was full of men and my young men shouted with joy. An old man, a drunkard, joined the church and says no more whiskey for him. One entire family joined the church. You need not tell me that Sunday schools, leagues and basket ball teams do not pay. They do pay. Sixty-four of my league volunteered for life service. The Lord has been gracious unto us."

CREDIT STUDENTS

Out of an enrollment of 120 students in the Shelby Co-operative Standard Training School for Methodist and Presbyterian Sunday school workers held last week at Central Methodist church the following students attended regularly and did all the required work. These students were presented with certificates of credit Sunday morning in their various churches as follows: Central Methodist 28, Shelby Presbyterian 12, Polkville 9, Beulah 4, Rehobeth 3, LaFayette Street 3, Saint Peters 2, El Bethel 1, Elliotts 1, Belwood circuit 1, making a total of 63 credits, 52 being Methodists and 12 Presbyterians. Methodist credit students are below given by courses:

UNIQUE INSTALLATION SERVICE

The installation service for the new officers of the Senior and Francis Asbury Intermediate Epworth leagues of Grace Methodist church, Wilmington, on May 27, was unique and withal a very beautiful one. A candle service was used.

After a very appropriate sermon by the pastor on "The Light That Gives Light," the retiring president of each league took his place within the chancel, lighting his candle from one already burning. The other retiring officers lighted their candles from those of the presidents and took their places inside the altar in proper order. The officers-elect assembled on the other side, each taking his station in front of the officer whom he succeeded. In very carefully chosen words, each old officer gave the charge of office to the new one, lighting his candle as he did so.

As the last vow of leadership was taken, the entire group knelt at the altar and remained while the choir sang "Teach Me to Do Thy Will, O God."

Ten Intermediates were promoted to Senior league.

The new officers of each league are as follows:

Senior: President, E. G. Burkhead; vice president, A. H. Young; recording secretary, Miss Marion Summerell; corresponding secretary, Miss Emma Bowden; treasurer, T. B. Lilly; Era agent, Miss Thelma Bordeaux; 1st Dept., Miss Maude Carr; 2nd Dept., Miss Lillian Carpenter; 3rd Dept., Miss Virda Brinson; 4th Dept., Miss Hattie Willis.

Francis Asbury Intermediate: President, F. M. James; vice president, Miss Carolyn Black; secretary, Miss Dorothy Oldham; treasurer, Miss Miriam Taylor; 1st Dept., Miss Jessie Lee Thomas; 2nd Dept., Gilvrey Powell; 3rd Dept., Miss Merle Edwards; 4th Dept., Douglas Upchurch.
Emma Bowden, Cor. Sec.

"THE LET'S GO CAROLINA LEAGUER"

When this issue of the Advocate is read the second number of our North Carolina League Special, which is an Assembly copy, should be in the hands of the pastors, league presidents and officers.

We sincerely hope that our effort and investment in this little paper, and in this week's Advocate special appeal, will be fruitful in bringing many hitherto undecided leaguers to our splendid summer seaside assembly. Leaguers, you just cannot afford to miss it. Let's go!

BECKWITH LEAGUE, SMITHFIELD

The Epworth leaguers in Smithfield still fill an important place in the church life of our town. During the winter months quite a few prayer meetings were held in the jail and county home by the leaguers.

Anniversary Day was fittingly observed at a Sunday evening hour a few weeks ago. The committee having charge of the decorations transformed the church into a scene of loveliness. "All for Christ," the League motto, was made of yellow roses on a white background with a large Maltese cross of gold in the center.

The following officers were installed May 20th at the Sunday evening hour:

President—Tilden Honeycutt.
Vice President—Delma Brown.
First Dept.—Mrs. Clifton Beasley.
Second Dept.—Arah Hooks.
Third Dept.—Sarah Patterson.
Fourth Dept.—Maybeth McGraw.
Secretary—Mary Louise Turner.
Treasurer—Vera Sanders.
Era Agent—Rose Grantham.
Supt. Int. League—Mrs. Jesse Coats.
We are expecting to send four delegates to the conference at Morehead City, two from the Senior and two from the Intermediate league.

We are looking forward with pleasure to the district institute to be held in our church in August. Send a large delegation. We will be glad to welcome you to our church and to our homes.

HOME MISSIONS

An Indiana mother has hit upon an excellent plan for getting her daughters home at a satisfactory hour at night. She requires the last one to arise first and prepare the family breakfast.

TRAINS AND RAILROAD FARE TO THE ASSEMBLY

All persons coming to Morehead City for the assembly should ask for summer excursion rates when they buy their ticket. This is a great deal cheaper than the regular fare.

Extra coaches will be run on the regular Norfolk Southern train from Goldsboro Monday afternoon, June 18. The Southern from Burlington and Raleigh connects with this train at Goldsboro. The A. C. L. from Wilmington, Norfolk, Weldon, Rocky Mount and Wilson connects at Goldsboro. The A. C. L. from Wilmington connects with this train at New Bern. So also does the Norfolk Southern from Washington and Oriental. All delegates coming from towards Elizabeth City should come via Washington and New Bern. Those coming from Rockingham, Hamlet and Laurinburg may come by either of three ways: By way of Hamlet and Raleigh over the S. A. L. and the Southern to Goldsboro; by way of Wilmington over the S. A. L. and the A. C. L. from Wilmington to New Bern; or via Maxton, Fayetteville, Selma and Goldsboro.

Delegates should not get off the train at the station at Morehead City. The train will stop at the hotel a quarter of a mile beyond the station. The hotel will have supper ready upon arrival, and will have all delegates sending in their names in advance already assigned to room. All who expect to attend should send their name to Miss Fannie Vann, Clinton, N. C., at least a week in advance. This will enable the hotel to give the best accommodation.

THE MAXWELL EVANGELISTIC PARTY

This party consists of Sam Maxwell, evangelist, Howard P. Powell, song evangelist and business manager, and Rollin H. McKeehan, pianist and director of personal evangelism. Maxwell and Powell have been together in the work for three years with many successful campaigns. This party stands squarely for the old time Methodism and employs no questionable methods in their work. We are not money fiends and do not employ the use of hospital tragedies in pressing people. The following can be consulted concerning our work: B. B. Slaughter, B. T. Hurley, J. W. Strider, J. C. Umberger, J. O. Long, H. E. Spence, Dr. W. P. Few, Dr. H. C. Morrison, G. G. Adams, C. A. Jones, J. C. Williams, W. N. Vaughan, W. A. Rollins, W. L. Clegg, S. W. Phillips, George Williams, W. M. Hester, and Prof. R. M. Hauss. Sam Maxwell will attend the summer institute at Trinity and any pastor desiring the service of this party may arrange for a meeting. Mail should be addressed to him at Trinity College, Durham, N. C.

SOONER OR LATER

Have you ever thought of how much pleasure and happiness you are depriving yourself and family by neglecting to provide that which affords the most elevating and educative pleasures, and which relieves life of its every-day monotony?

Sooner or later you must have a Piano or a Player-Piano in your home. You cannot afford to be without one or the other, for this is pre-eminently an age of musical accomplishments and the home which does not afford some opportunity for its young people to acquire a knowledge of music, will have fallen short of its duty toward them.

The Advocate Piano Club makes it possible for you to have the very best of musical instruments at a tremendous saving in price and on terms that will suit your circumstances. Satisfaction is guaranteed to every Club member. Hundreds have placed their orders through the Club and are enthusiastic in their praise of it. You are cordially invited to join. Write today for your copy of the catalogue and full information. Address the Managers, Ludden & Bates, Advocate Piano Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga.

THE CHILDREN'S HOME WINSTON-SALEM, N. C.

Rev. C. A. Wood ..... Superintendent

LIFE AT THE CHILDREN'S HOME

The typewriter that I use has stood silent in a corner of upstairs sitting room for some time. Every time that I dust it I am reminded that I ought to be writing some more Home news to the Advocate. But there are so many interesting outdoor things to be done in the spring that typewriting seems a poor way to be spending the morning when every green leaf and bud seems to be saying come out and play with growing things.

The seasons follow each other rapidly where everyone is busy. It seems as though the children hardly get through coasting down hill in the snow before the birds are heralding spring and it is time to plan the summer gardening, make flower beds, coops for the baby chickens, weed out the strawberry bed and plant out shrubery.

Maybe it is queer taste for a lady, but a garden hoe and spade are more entertaining to me than rattling typewriter keys. I have acquired a lovely bunch of light-weight garden tools that stand in a convenient corner of the back yard. It is no wonder that sewing and writing occupations get side-tracked.

However, the garden and the flower plants are well advanced now, and with warm weather, indoor tasks renew their interests.

It was a pleasant change to move the old school quarters into a modern school building with well lighted rooms of simple dimensions, individual desks, long blackboard space and walls of a soft neutral tint.

The auditorium, too, contributes to the pleasure and efficiency of school life. The auditorium seats have not arrived yet, but they are on the way. We have been using the chairs from the music room and primary grade chairs for the little folks.

For three Sundays we have had Sunday services there, on account of an epidemic of measles over in town. So far we have escaped.

Kind friends have been giving the children some delightful automobile rides on Saturday afternoons. A long, long ride with an ice cream cone treat in addition makes an ideal pleasure from a child's point of view. Though as for that matter I do not know that there is any age limit to the enjoyment of that combination. Riding through the country is fine at this season when everything is a lovely fresh green and the flowers are at their best.

I read in a paper the other day a lament concerning a town where a writer had stopped and discovered that the town had five gas stations and only one newspaper outfit. The writer did not say whether he had stopped to buy gas or newspapers, but he seemed to figure that a town that had only one newspaper published and ran five gas supply stations was lacking in culture and flush on jazz, and that if the proportions had been reversed it would have been an indication of a more intelligent citizenship. But I suspect, the average little town is wise to stick to its present ratio of ink and gas. Five newspaper geniuses are not likely to concentrate in one little town, and good gas has many intelligent possibilities.

Time was when it took all day to go from here to Farmington and back with horse power. When you had to ferry the Yadkin in a flat, and pay the ferryman a toll for his labor, while the horses rested from their pull through the stiff red mud and looked around with wide eyes curiously at the yellow water surging by.

I have a faint recollection of, as a tiny little girl, fording the Yadkin somewhere in an old fashioned carriage when the water was higher than the driver had calculated, and washed through the foot of the carriage and floated off some of the baggage—a hat box, with my mother's best hat in it, particularly, which was rescued with difficulty.

Now, thanks to a growing enlightened willingness to pay taxes, one crosses the river on a fine, substantial iron bridge without pause or hindrance.

But a very rainy day on the date of the Winston district conference lengthened the distance between here and Farmington considerably. We had to stop and put chains on the car wheels to make the slick hills in safety, and were late in arriving.

And, as the superintendent had to get back to Winston in time to take the five-thirty train to Salisbury to get to Marion for an important business engagement, our stay at the district conference was short.

A number of boys and girls joined the church at West End several Sundays ago—Children's Day. As they have not had much opportunity to get personal religious instruction that goes with church membership, the superintendent has planned a few days of religious services here soon. Rev. J. W. Moore of Statesville has promised to come over and conduct the meeting.

By having the services before school closes, Mr. Bradshaw and the other teachers can be with us.

The superintendent has been having some plans made of the grounds and future building sites. A kind of guide outline to work forward to, so that in locating roads and building sites, improvements may be permanent and as wisely placed as possible. The first sketch that the blue print artist submitted was impractical as a model for a children's institution, but by taking the proportions furnished and the sketch that we have, we have finally got worked out an intelligent, seeming and attractive looking plan of roads and possible building sites. If it meets with the approval of the board authorities, work will be begun soon on some of our roads that we are needing.

The last old plank cottage is, after so long a time, leveled to the ground and most of the lumber hauled away, and when the plastering and brick have followed, and grass sown over the spot, all of the old "cottages on the line" will be but a memory.

WHY DRUGS FAIL

Many chronic diseases fail to respond to drug treatment, even in the hands of the best physicians, whereas acute diseases usually respond readily. When a disease has become chronic, drugs often seem to do as much harm as they do good, for the system rebels against them. It is just this class of cases which derive the greatest benefit from drinking Shivar, America's best stomach, liver and kidney Water. If you suffer with chronic dyspepsia, indigestion, sick headache, rheumatism, kidney or liver disease, uric acid poisoning or other curable conditions due to impure blood do not hesitate to accept the Spring's liberal offer as printed below. Their records show that only two in a hundred, on the average, have reported "no benefit." This is a wonderful record from a truly wonderful Spring. Sign the following letter:

Our Little Folks

"DAD"

Dad never had much to say;
Jogged along in his quiet way.
Contentedly smoking his old duceen
As he turned the soil in the golden sheen.

Used to say, as he slapped the mare,
One horny hard in his tangled hair,
"Rest is joy when your work's well done,
So pitch in, son."

Sometimes he an' I'd hitch;
Couldn't agree as to which was which,
Fought it out on the same old lines
As we grubbed an' hoed 'mong the runnin' vines.
And his eyes would light with a gentle quiz.
And he'd say in that old soft way of his,
As he idly stroked his wrinkled chin,
"All right, son, you win."

Dad was never on hand to fuss;
Used to hurt him to hear us cuss;
Kind o' settled in his old ways,
Born and raised in the good old days,
When a tattered coat hid a kindly heart,
An' the farm was home, not a toilin' mart,
An' a man was judged by his inward self;
Not his worldly pelf.

Seems like 'twas yesterday we sat
On the old back porch for a farewell chat
Ere I changed the farm and the simple life
For the city's roar an' bustle an' strife.
While I gayly talked of the city's charm
His eyes looked out o'er the fertile farm,
An' he said as he rubbed where the hair was thin,
"All right, son, you win."

'Member the night I trudged back home,
Sinkin' deep in the fresh-turned loam,
Sick and sore for the dear old place,
Hungerin' most for a loved old face.
When I climbed the hilltop o'er
There stood dad in the kitchen door,
An' he says in a voice from deep within,
"Hello, son, come in."

One winter's day, the first of snow,
He went the way that we all must go;
An' his spirit soared to the realms above
On the wings of a simple-hearted love.
An' I know that when I cross the bar
I'll find him there by the gates ajar,
An' he'll say, as he idly strokes his chin,
"Hello, son, come in."
—William Edward Ross, in Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

THE MAY FAIRY

"Oh, it is beautiful!" shouted Ted and Helen when they reached the park. They were the first of the primary school children to see the Maypole.

"Miss Donald said that it was going to be just like the Maypole that she had seen in England," Ted said as they skipped along.

"Yes, it was going to be tall and have a ribbon for each child," added Helen. "I choose a pink ribbon," she went on happily and took a long pink streamer in her hand; "I suppose that all the girls in our class will want the pink, and you boys the blue ones."
"Let's count the streamers," said her brother, "and see if there is one for everybody." So the two children went round the tall Maypole that stood on a grassy knoll in the green park and touched each one of the ribbons, naming a classmate as they did so.

"Madge, Janet, Dorothy," Helen counted, and "Tom, Harold, Billy," said Ted. When the two children met on their way round the Maypole Ted had a blue streamer in his hand and Helen had a pink one in hers. Those should have been the last streamers, but they were not. There still hung a long, lovely pink one.

"We must have made a mistake," Ted said; "Miss Donald never counts wrong."

"Yes," replied Helen, "we must have made a mistake."

So they began the counting all over again, touching the ribbons and naming them carefully, but the count came out the same way again.

"Just as if it were for the fairy of the May," Helen said softly.

"Pooh!" Ted began, but then—very suddenly—he stopped.

He and Helen ran as fast as they could into a clump of trees close by that hid them from sight, for out of the green spaces of the park the fairy of the May had appeared.
