(Formerly State Normal and Industrial College)

SUMMER SESSION

JUNE 18-JULY 30

COURSES for Primary, Grammar Grade, and High School Teachers, and for College Entrance and College Credit. FACULTY of Specialists, Practical Teachers and Administrators. SPECIAL Courses in Public School Music, Domestic Science, School Supervision, Playground Work, Penmanship, etc. OBSERVATION SCHOOL, Lectures, Recreation and Entertainment, Teachers' Bureau, etc. Living Arrangements comfortable and attractive. EXPENSES FOR SIX WEEKS, $40.00. For Bulletin, or further information, address

W. C. JACKSON, Director, GREENSBORO, N. C.

PRESBYTERIAN COLLEGE of South Carolina

One of the most modern and best equipped colleges for men under the control of the Presbyterian Church. Beautiful buildings, strong faculty, high standard of work, broad course, attractive student body, best moral influences, Reserve Officers' Training Corps and strong athletic team.

For Catalogue and information apply to

President Davison M. Douglas, Clinton, S. C.

Chicora College for Women

THE PRESBYTERIAN COLLEGE OF SOUTH CAROLINA

A Standard College of Distinction and Character

Religion and Philosophy

Letters and Science

Home Economics

The Fine Arts

(Music, Art and Expression)

For Catalogue and Information, address

Pres. S. G. BYRD, D.D., Columbia, S. C.

made about sixty-nine thousand inspections last year; Lowell, Massachusetts, over fifteen thousand; and Springfield, in the same State, over eleven thousand, to give figures for only a few cities.

Ordinances.

Ordinances and inspections are closely allied. In some cities the fire departments have insufficient authority to enforce their orders. In others, however, statutes with "teeth" have been enacted and the lax owner or tenant is compelled to obey orders.

"Clean-up Weeks"

In addition to the general inspection work, which has become a matter of department routine carried on at all times of the year, most cities and towns now observe a "Clean-up Week" every Spring so as to dispose of the Winter's accumulation of rubbish.

This is a matter in which the co-operation of the public is needed, and the fire departments usually secure it by means of individual circulars addressed to the heads of families and to those in charge of places of business. There is generally a widespread use of placards also, as well as bill posters and street car dash board signs. Last, but not least, the aid of the newspapers is enlisted to do their part in acquainting the public with the danger of fire which exists on every side. The local chambers of commerce and other trade organizations usually become interested in the campaign, as do the women's clubs, the churches and the educational authorities, all contributing to the success of the occasion.

It has become the habit in many cities where the co-operation of theater managers has been secured, to display stereopticon slides which depict the results of carelessness and show how fire may be avoided.

THE MINISTER AND OTHER MEN.

The Rev. David Dunn, of the Reformed Church, read a paper in the Presbyterian Ministers' Association, Monday morning, in which he discussed the question whether the minister is different from other men. He spoke of the clerical dress and clerical manners that created a line of cleavage and sometimes interfered with the minister's usefulness. The paper was well received, and, in the discussion that followed, it seemed to be the consensus that marks of professional distinction, whether in dress or manners, were not very important so long as the minister is a real, honest, upright, manly man, a man just and generous, kind and courteous to all classes and conditions, when brought in contact with them, a man who lives in touch with God. All were agreed that the top-lofty, professional minister, who is neither in touch with God nor in sympathy with men, is of no use to either God or man.—Presbyterian Banner.

DAISY FLY KILLER PLACED ANYWHERE ATTRACTS AND KILLS ALL FLIES. Neat, clean, ornamental, convenient, cheap. Lasts all season. Made of metal, can't spill or tip over; will not soil or injure anything. Guaranteed effective. Sold by dealers, or 5 by EXPRESS, prepaid, $1.25.

HAROLD SOMERS, 150 De Kalb Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

CHURCH ENVELOPES. Double and single envelope systems. Samples and prices sent upon request. Double Envelope Corporation, Roanoke, Va.

CHARLOTTE MARBLE & GRANITE WORKS

MEMORIALS OF QUALITY
"WE LEAD"
Quality First
Prices Right
Workmanship
Unsurpassed

Memorials in Silver Georgia Marble are unsurpassed in beauty and durability.

CHARLOTTE MARBLE & GRANITE WORKS
 WEST 7th ST. AND SOUTHERN RAILWAY
 Cemetery Gate Phone 281-CHARLOTTE, N.C.

They'll Make You Say, "More"

Take one bite out of a crisp, light, hot muffin made from OCCO-NEE-CHEE Self-Rising Flour, and you'll keep right on eating more and more. OCCO-NEE-CHEE Self-Rising Flour makes muffins, biscuits, waffles and cakes that are more than good—they're great. It takes the guess out of baking.

It has mixed with it, in the exact proportions, the very best baking powder, soda and salt. You don't have to buy them extra. That's real economy. Bake the family plenty of the good things they like from this flour. Buy a bag of OCCO-NEE-CHEE Self-Rising Flour today. Look for the Indian Head on the bag. At all grocers.

OCCO-NEE-CHEE
Self-Rising Flour

Takes the Guess out of Baking and Saves you Money

When you prefer to bake with plain flour buy Peerless—the best.

AUSTIN-HEATON CO., Durham, N. C.

Corn will out-grow itself if you use

Nitro-A-Germ

Use it on soy beans, peas, beans, peanuts. Costs $2.00 per acre, delivered. Write Nitro-A-Germ, Savannah, Ga., for booklet.

Join THE Presbyterian Standard Piano Club

SEE ANNOUNCEMENT ON PAGE 31

SAVE Waste-Labor
Time-Money
GAIN Comfort-Convenience-Beauty
Economy-Satisfaction-Durability

In Building Your New Home.

QUICKBILT

BUNGALOW NO. 50

A complete bungalow, built to give the small family all that can be desired in a modern, substantial, attractive, well-built home, at a reasonable price.

COMFORT- It is closely built to stand the severest weather. Well lighted, well ventilated, easily heated.

CONVENIENCE- The plans, prepared after careful study by the best and most experienced of architects, are so designed to cover every need of the average family.

DURABILITY- Made with the very best of materials. Designed for greatest strength. Each part securely locks into the other. Erected after perfected patented locking process. Will stand the roughest of tempests without strain and will far outlast the average house.

BEAUTY- The designs are graceful and represent the most modern architectural art. It will blend readily with its surroundings and furnish a beautiful, appropriate home.

ECONOMY- QUICKBILT Bungalows are built in an immense plant in which hundreds of other houses are being built simultaneously. Every short cut to perfection and economy is used and thereby, you gain the advantage of the low cost of quantity production. The architect's and contractor's fees are avoided, for you are furnished free a complete set of specifications and plans, and with them the erection of the house is so simple that any carpenter of average intelligence can erect it. Many owners build them themselves. In purchasing a QUICKBILT Bungalow you eliminate all extra middle-man's commissions and profits, as you are dealing direct with the source of material; with the mill, manufacturer and forests in one.

SATISFACTION- Once in your QUICKBILT Bungalow you will be highly satisfied with its convenient arrangement, its artistic finish and its coziness.

COSTS LITTLE TO ERECT.

With the material already prepared for the house, waste is eliminated from the cost. As a large portion of the house comes already built in panels, preliminary preparation is avoided. The systematic, simple, thorough plans and instructions save time and make it possible for a carpenter and two helpers to erect the house in less than 10 days. A saving in waste, labor, time and material is

A SAVING IN MONEY.

Shipped complete F. O. B. Charleston with all necessary material except brick work and plumbing. A cozy, attractive, bungalow of six rooms. Size over all 33-ft. 7-in. x 21-ft. 5-in. Two large bed rooms, one 9-ft. x 12-ft., and one 12-ft. x 12-ft., a spacious living room 12-ft. x 15-ft., a cozy, convenient dining alcove 12-ft. x 6-ft., kitchen 9-ft. x 12-ft., bath room 9-ft. x 6-ft. Closets and attractive front porch 12-ft. x 6-ft. Woodwork of the best grade of North Carolina Pine, "The Wood Universal." Walls in panels of siding lined with heavy paper to insure warmth.

Durable, fire-resisting, Standard Asphalt Strip Shingles, with slate green or red finish. Artistic paneled inside finish. All necessary nails and hardware furnished. House comes with exterior walls stained any one of a number of standard colors, or painted with one heavy coat of priming paint. Exterior trim and interior finish with one heavy coat of priming paint.

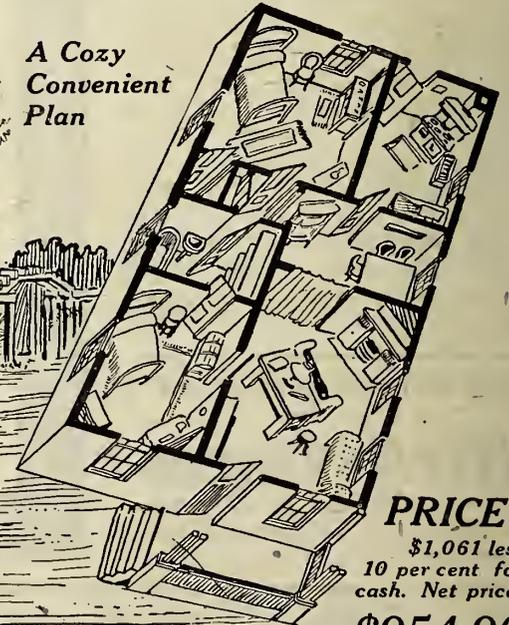

WRITE TO-DAY

for a copy of our book "QUICKBILT Bungalows" No. D-9. It will give a full explanation of No. 50 and many other attractive Bungalows. Or better still, if No. 50 pleases you instruct us to ship it immediately and give us the color desired.

QUICKBILT Bungalow Department,
A. C. Tuxbury Lumber Co., Charleston, S. C.

*A Cozy
Convenient Plan*

PRICE
$1,061 less
10 per cent for cash. Net price,
$954.90

QUICKBILT BUNGALOW DEPARTMENT,
 A. C. TUXBURY LUMBER CO., Charleston, S. C.
 Please send me a copy of your book "QUICKBILT Bungalows" No. D-9.
 Am especially interested in a room house.
 NAME
 ADDRESS

Under the caption "What's Wrong with the World?" in a recent issue of the American Lutheran Survey, G. H. Gerberding says:

"Scientific apologetics is not to be preached. Belief in the Bible as God's Word is to be taken for granted. The preacher is not sent to defend but to preach the gospel. It needs no defense. Proclaim it as God's message. Make it clear. Drive it home. It has its own appeal. The conscience, the heart, the inner spirit respond to it. Use illustrations and applications to show the power of the truth of the Bible. Make the strongest appeal to consciousness and experience. This is always the final apologetic. Thus we need to preach more emphatically than ever the old doctrine that the Bible is the Word of God. By so teaching and preaching we can drive out doubt and strengthen faith. This is what the church in and after the war needs."

"Go to Church" Newspaper Advertising Service

Written to induce the other sixty million people of America to attend church. Weekly matrix service. Three column nine inches. Artistic borders, striking typographical arrangement. Copy indorsed by leading ministers. Churches of each city should unite in paying for running these ads on Saturday in every daily in America. Write for first series of twenty-six ads. The Church must advertise.

JAMES B. SPILLMAN
Religious Advertising Agency Columbia, S. C.

NitrA-Germ

takes the place of fertilizer with peas, peanuts, beans. Try it.

Costs $2.00 per acre, delivered.

Write NitrA-Germ, Savannah, Ga., for booklet.

It Will Pay

you to consult the house of Allan if interested in Diamonds, Watches, Jewelry or Silverware.

The most skilful artists and artisans produce their goods. The quality and price are guaranteed by this firm, whose sixty years of service prove that the past and present generations are well pleased.

A catalogue on request.

JAMES ALLAN & CO.,
Department A.,
283 King Street,
CHARLESTON, S. C.

DR. J. M. BELK, MONROE, N. C.

W. H. BELK, CHARLOTTE, N. C.

Belk Bros. Dept. Stores

CHARLOTTE, NORTH CAROLINA

Here is a Special Line of Regular Goods that we handle all the year.
Send us your mail orders. Can fill them any time.
"WE PAY THE PARCEL POST."

UNDERWEAR MUSLINS—Made of fine Sea Island Cottons. These goods we have been selling for years and the values are very hard to equal.
No. 200 Long Cloth—10-yard bolts.....$1.95 bolt
No. 250 Long Cloth—10-yard bolts.....$2.95 bolt
No. 10 Victory Long Cloth, nice and soft.....$1.39

FINE SOFT MERCERIED NAINSOOKS

Oyama, Japanese—$4.00 value—10-yard box....$2.95
1908 Imperial Nainsooks—$4 value—10-yd box..$3.50
Cinderella Nainsooks, 39 inches wide.....$3.50
Chemosa Lingerie Cloth—very fine and soft, either in plain cloth or stripes, especially pretty—$5 values—39 and 42-in. 10 yd. box..$3.95

PRINCESS NAINSOOKS—Made expressly for Belk Bros. Our name on each bolt.

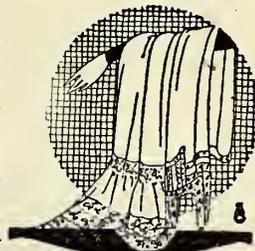

No. 22—36 inches wide, 10-yard bolts.....$2.95
No. 35—36 inches wide Belk's Special. 10 yd ..$3.69
No. 55—40 inches wide, very sheer and pretty..$3.95

DIMITY CHECKS "FOR THE LITTLE FOLKS"—Small, medium or large checks. Our regular numbers that we handle from year to year. These in customary length.

SKN—Assorted size checks.....25-29c yard
SON—Assorted Size checks.....35c yard

WHITE UNDERWEAR FLANNELS

Oxford B—36-inch Wool Flannel.....75c yd.
Calias C— $\frac{1}{2}$ -yard, \$1.25 value Flannel98c
G H Cordova—36 ins wide. This number we consider our finest value. We know it to be a $1.50 Flannel today. Special $1.19.

DIAPER CLOTHS

Lullaby Brand — 24x24—bolt$1.69
Lullaby Brand—27x27$1.79
Practical Brand—24x24$1.98
Practical Brand—27x27$2.25
Practical Brand—30x30$2.45
Practical Ready Hemmed—24x24—dozen.....$1.95
Practical Ready Hemmed—27x27—dozen.....$2.48
Practical Ready Hemmed—30x30—dozen.....$2.75

FINE SILK UNDERWEAR—Kayser and Niagara Maid. This is considered the best on the market. Very best of Crepe de Chine and Kayser Silk.

Separate Vests.....$1.98, $2.50, $2.98
Bloomers$2.98, $3.48
Envelope Chemise.....$2.98, $3.48, $3.98, $4.95
Crepe de Chine Gowns..$3.98, $4.98, $5.98 to $10.00
Crepe de Chine Combinations..$1.98, $2.48, $2.98, $3.98, $4.95, $5.95.

All Delivery Charges Prepaid and Satisfaction is Guaranteed

TELL WOMEN OF PENDING LAWS.

With the idea of educating women about labor laws affecting themselves the Y. W. C. A. is conducting classes on existing laws, improvements needed and any such laws now before legislatures. The minimum wage, the eight-hour day and health insurance are among the subjects receiving attention. The association is also sending speakers to hold open forums in localities where the women have no other means of becoming intelligent on questions before the legislature. There is no reason why the woman in the home should loiter behind the industrial workers in becoming enlightened on existing and prospective laws concerning women, particularly in her own State. If an over-busy association does not offer an open forum, resourceful women will organize one for themselves.—Continent.

FOR MEN ONLY.

Here's your chance to get the famous "Hemshaw Quality" Socks direct from mill, saving retail profit—practically half retail price. Direct by mail, post-paid, 1/2-dozen, $1.60 or 1 dozen, $3.00. Colors: white, black, dark brown, silver gray, navy blue. Sizes: 10 to 11 1/2. State size of your shoes and color wanted.

"Hemshaw Quality" Socks are mer- cerized special yarn, special knit. Very elastic, very durable, and unusually comfortable. They absorb perspiration, adding greatly to comfort. Every statement made above absolutely guaranteed. money refunded if not fully satisfied. Order now.

Hemshaw Hosiery Mills, Mail Order Dept. C-18, Oxford, N. C.

UNITED STATES RAILROAD ADMINISTRATION.

ROUND TRIP EXCURSION

Summer tourist tickets on sale May 15th limited for return to October 31st, 1919, to

- Virginia Beach, Va.
- Cape Henry, Va.
- Norfolk, Va.
- Morehead City, N. C.
- Beaufort, N. C.
- Nag's Head, N. C.
- Manteo, N. C.

WEEK-END FARES

to above named points. Tickets on sale every Saturday and Sunday, May 24th, to September 7th, limited to return Tuesday following date of sale.

SUNDAY EXCURSIONS

- Virginia Beach, Va.
- Norfolk, Va.
- Morehead City, N. C.
- Cape Henry, Va.
- Beaufort, N. C.

Tickets on sale every Sunday limited to day of sale May 25th to September 8th.

For fares, descriptive folders and other information apply to nearest ticket agent.

We secure positions for teachers, who are normal and college graduates, throughout the South and Southwest. Write us. THE YATES-FISHER TEACHERS' AGENCY, 326 Stahlman Building, Nashville, Tenn.

190 bushels of peanuts to the acre with

NitrA-Germ

Costs $2.00 per acre, delivered. Try it. Write NitrA-Germ, Savannah, Ga., for booklet.

"THE VALLEY OF VISION."

Henry Van Dyke.

Varied stories dealing with human love and faith, with dreams and realities, with things that will last now that the war is ended but not forgotten. One of the longest is a vision of three unknown days in the life of Jesus of Nazareth. It belongs with "The Story of the Other Wise Man," which has gone around the world.

PRICE $1.50, Net.

—Order from—

— Order from —

PRESBYTERIAN COMMITTEE OF PUBLICATION

Richmond, Va. Texarkana, Ark.-Tex.

Aberdeen & Rockfish Railroad

Between Aberdeen and Fayetteville

Eastbound		Westbound		STATIONS		No. 41		No. 21
Daily Ex.	Sunday Mixed	Daily Ex.	Sunday Mixed			Pass.	Mixed
No. 22	No. 38			Lv. Aberdeen Ar.	6 41 pm	5 00 pm
7 30 am	9 10 am			Rae ford	5 55 pm	lv 3 50 pm
ar 8 55 am	10 00 am			Ar. Fayetteville Lv.	4 50 pm	1 00 pm
lv 2 10 pm	4 00 pm

WAGRAM BRANCH

Southbound		Northbound		STATIONS
Daily Ex.	Sun. Mixed	Daily Ex.	Sun. Mixed
No. 11		No. 12
Lv. 10 30 am		Ar. 12 40 pm		Rae ford
Ar. 11 15 am		Lv. 12 00 noon		Wagram

W. A. BLUE, General Supt., Aberdeen, N. C.

FOOT COMFORT ASSURED
Brooklyn Man Solves the Problem.

It is no longer necessary to suffer agonies that are caused by misfit shoes, for Mr. Simon of Brooklyn has proven that he can fit perfectly by mail. Simon's EzWear shoes are built to give every possible foot comfort; they are soft and stylish and do not need breaking in. They fit like the proverbial pair, the minute you wear them. Every pair is guaranteed to give satisfaction and to fit perfectly.

Mr. J. R. Simon will gladly send a free catalogue of over 500 styles of EzWear shoes to all who write him, along with his scientific self-measuring blank. Write for your copy today and give your feet their much needed happiness. Address all communications to Mr. J. R. Simon, 1589 Broadway, Brooklyn, N. Y., and you will receive personal attention.

WRITE FOR A FREE CATALOGUE

of the largest and most complete Business College in the South.

The Draughton Business College

Knoxville, Tenn. Jacksonville, Fla.

BOOKKEEPING AND SHORTHAND

thoroughly taught. Enroll any time. Address Greensboro Commercial School, Greensboro, N. C., for Catalogue. Special Summer Rates now on.

YOUR FACE?
Is the Complexion Muddy, Tanned, Freckled?
If troubled with skin eruptions, sunburn, pimples, try
PALMER'S SKIN-SUCCESS SOAP
It cleanses, softens and clears the skin and tends to remove sunburn, tan, freckles, blackheads, pimples and eczema.
Thoroughly antiseptic. Ask your druggist, or write for free samples to
THE MORGAN DRUG CO.,
1521 Atlantic Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

NEW SONG BOOKS
For Your Church

A wonderful value; 83 familiar songs of the Gospel, words and music. Used all over the world. Round or shape notes. Only 8¢ per hundred for No. 1 or No. 2, or $10 for No. 1 and No. 2 combined. Send 20¢ for samples. Money back if not pleased. Send 60¢ for 100 cards, "A Prayer by the Sunday School." E. A. K. HACKETT, Dept. 56., FORT WAYNE, IND.

Yes, Preachers and Teachers

are human. They should have no discount and no cheaper railroad fares than you and I. They should be paid for services rendered, amply paid. If he can't earn enough for family use and the nest egg for the future, he made a sad mistake as to family, else he should change his calling instanter,

The Mutual Building & Loan

will save a man and his family if they're worth saving, but they must help. It furnishes the "sure cure," but boasts no regrets at the demise of a feller who deliberately refuses to take the medicine.

E. L. KEESLER Sec. & Treas., 25 S. Tryon St., CHARLOTTE, N. C.

Save A Hundred Dollars on a High Grade Piano

You are cordially invited to take advantage of the great money saving opportunity which is presented to all the readers of this paper by the Presbyterian Standard Piano Club. If your home needs a good piano or player-piano, or if you would like to exchange your old instrument for a new one, we invite you to write for a catalogue and full information.

By clubbing your order with the orders of ninety-nine other Club members in a great factory order for one hundred instruments (eight carloads) you receive your part of the tremendous saving in cost, amounting to about one-third the price of your instrument and totaling a hundred dollars or more on a high-grade piano or player-piano.

Convenient Terms-Strongest Guarantees

The Club is organized for the economy, convenience and protection of piano buyers. It insures the lowest possible prices, the most convenient terms of payment, and gives you the strongest guarantees of the quality and durability of your instrument. It assures you of present and future satisfaction and protects you against defects of workmanship and materials.

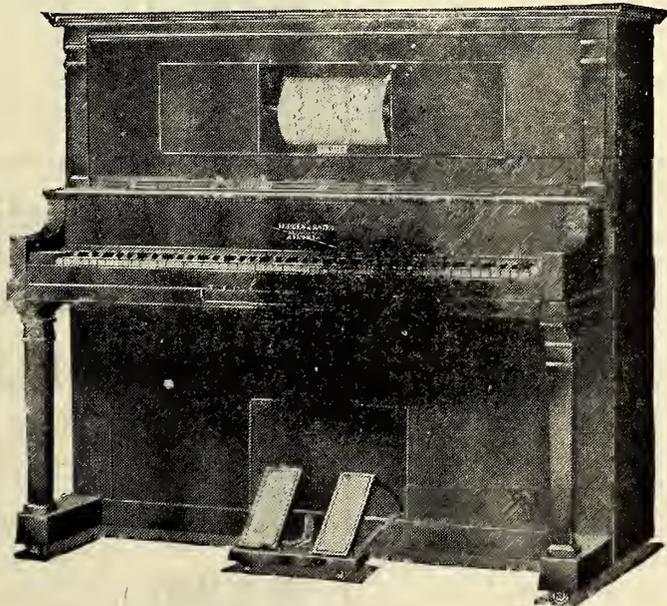

An Old Reliable House

The house of Ludden & Bates, under whose management the Club is directed, was established in 1870. It is known and honored wherever good musical instruments are appreciated. For nearly half a century it has enjoyed the largest patronage throughout the South. Under its administration the Club has served many readers of this paper and in each case has made an appreciative and enthusiastic friend.

Let Us Serve You

We most cordially invite you to investigate the many attractive money-saving features of the Club. Let us send you a copy of the handsomely illustrated catalogue describing the new and beautiful styles of pianos and player-pianos, with full information as to the saving in price, convenient terms and the guarantees of quality and durability.

Address the Managers,

Ludden & Bates Standard Piano Club Dept. Atlanta, Ga.

Sparkles

More Cheerful Name.

Jane Addams, of Hull House, said at a mothers' meeting:

"How quaint the minds of children are! One New Year's Day I gave a little girl a present of a diary.

"This is a diary," I explained to her. 'Every day you must write in it a record of your life, a record of how you live.'

"The little girl turned the blank pages of the book and asked:

"But why isn't it called a livery instead of a diary, ma'am?"—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Suggestive Number.

The little man made his way back to the box-office. "This seat number sounds like a German submarine; it's U-19," he said.

"You don't want to exchange it merely on that account, do you?" asked the ticket man.

"No, but I thought you might be able to supply me with a periscope to see over that big woman sitting just in front."—Boston Transcript.

Crabshaw—Why do you wish to leave school and go to work when you're so young?

Willie—It's this way, dad. School is going to be a tough place for the next few years. We'll have a new map of Europe to study and if we fall down on it the teacher is likely to give us the constitution of the League of Nations to learn by heart.—Life.

Why the Tars Kept Awake.

A careless compositor can play havoc with a serious poem, as one did a short time ago across the water. As printed, the lines read:

They faced the terrors of the deep
And guarded our snores while we were asleep. —Kansas City Star.

The Psalm of Life.

Chill.
Ill.
Pill.
Bill. —Brooklyn Citizen.

In Indiana a German saloonkeeper, whose first name is August, has a card in his window upon which he yields up the ghost after this fashion:

"The first of July will be the last of August."—Ex.

In Life, In Death—More Pep.

It was a death-bed scene, but the director was not satisfied with the hero's acting.

"Come on!" he cried. "Put more life in your dying!"—Film Fun.

Mrs. Crabshaw—When I was a child my mother never caught me telling stories.

Willie—How did you manage to do it, ma?—Life.

WHEN THE BOYS COME HOME

Remember to care for their feet. The Government supplied the troops with 1,500,000 pounds of powder for the feet because it made the men more efficient. They could walk twice as far and be comfortable if they had some Allen's Foot-Ease in each shoe. Try it yourself and see what comfort you get from this standard remedy. Ask for Allen's Foot-Ease, for tired, aching, swollen feet, blisters and sore spots. Sold everywhere.

Nadine Face Powder

(In Green Boxes Only)

Keeps The Complexion Beautiful

Soft and velvety. Money back if not entirely pleased. Nadine is pure and harmless. Adheres until washed off. Prevents sunburn and return of discolorations. A million delighted users prove its value. Tints: Flesh, Pink, Brunette, White. By Leading Toilet Counters or Mail, Dept. R P. National Toilet Company Paris, Tenn.

4 Per Cent

Time Certificates of Deposit

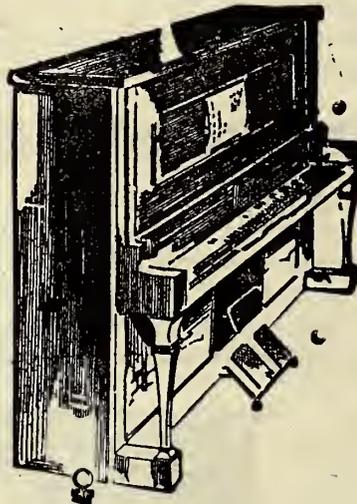

They are Interest Bearing. They are Payable on Demand. They Afford a Good Income for Funds Awaiting Permanent Investment

GET ONE AMERICAN TRUST COMPANY

Charlotte

North Carolina

THE NICE THING ABOUT A PLAYER PIANO

Is the fact that every member of the family can play it and derive a full measure of pleasure from it. We know of one case where a little chap of three years operates the family player with success and enjoyment. Then it's so fine a thing to be able to have really worthwhile music in the home—and with a player you may always have the best.

Ask us today about our "Play-As-You-Pay" plan. It makes purchasing easy and pleasant.

Chas. M. Stieff

INCORPORATED

Established 1842 : Telephone 196

M. D. MANNING, Manager

219 S. Tryon Street Charlotte, N. C.

Charlotte's Musical Headquarters

Charlotte National Bank Resources $4,000,000.00

CHARLOTTE, N. C.

PAYS FOUR PER CENT.

On Either Time Certificates of Deposit or Savings Accounts

MAIL ORDER Business Solicited and PROMPT ATTENTION Given

JOHN M. SCOTT	President
W. J. CHAMBERS	Vice-President
J. F. ROBERTSON	Vice-President
W. H. TWITTY	Cashier
C. W. BUTT	Assistant Cashier

N. C. Library Dept.

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

REV. J. R. BRIDGES, D. D.

EDITORS

REV. R. C. REED, D. D.

VOL. LX.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., June 4, 1919.

No. 22.

School Days.

Lord, let me make this rule
To think of life as school,
And try my best
To stand each test,
And do my work,
And nothing shirk.

If weary with my book
I cast a wistful look
Where posies grow,
O let me know
That flowers within
Are best to win.

These lessons thou dost give
To teach me how to live,
To do, to bear,
To get and share,
To work and play,
And trust alway.

Some day the bell will sound,
Some day my heart will bound,
As with a shout
That school is out,
And lessons done,
I homeward run.

—Maltbie Babcock.

Editorial

Dr. Alexander to Dr. Smythe.

WE have just come across an old letter, bearing date September 19, 1834, written by Dr. Archibald Alexander to Dr. Thomas Smythe. Readers of the Standard will be interested in some of its statements.

Dr. Smythe, a highly gifted young man, born and reared in Ireland, had but recently married into a prominent Charleston family, and entered on the pastorate of the Second Presbyterian Church of that city. He was writing to the venerable Princeton Professor about two things. First, he asks whether it would be wise for him to prepare himself for a professorship of theology. Dr. Alexander was pleased with the idea and strongly advised him to go forward, on the ground that "one of the wants of the Church and of the country most difficult to be supplied, was properly qualified men to fill the important offices of Seminaries and Colleges." Then follows this very significant statement: "In pursuing a course of study suited to prepare a young man for a professorship, he runs no risk, for if Providence should open no door to such an office, his attainments will not be lost: he will be better qualified to fill an important station as pastor; and will be furnished with materials for usefulness by means of the press if there should be occasion for the exercise of his pen."

Any one acquainted with Dr. Smythe's life will recognize the value of this advice. Dr. Smythe never became a theological professor, but he became a notably great preacher and useful pastor; and his well stored mind poured through the press volume after volume of able discussions to constitute a permanent part of the Church's riches.

Would that the young ministers of our day, who have a taste and talent for study, would take to heart this advice of the sage of Princeton. The want is even greater in our day than in his for capable young men to fill the important offices in our Seminaries and Colleges. And it is still true that in preparing for such work they run no risk: for if Providence should open no door the preparation would augment their power and usefulness as preachers and pastors and contributors to the press.

The other matter about which Dr. Smythe asked the advice of Dr. Alexander was the expediency of his travelling in Europe, and spending some time in Germany with a view to improvement and preparation for the professorship to which allusions had been made. In response Dr. Alexander said: "If convenient, it would be expedient, principally because it satisfies the mind that nothing of any great importance can be obtained in the German Universities, which cannot as well be learned from books. All the best lectures of their professors are published, and many which appear as better than the loose confused notes which have never been digested and arranged. As to the advantage of hearing these men, it is worse than nothing, for their elocution and manner is almost universally disagreeable, and totally destitute of taste."

Possibly this advice saved Dr. Smythe from wasting a part of his valuable life, all too short, in seeking in Germany what he could find in better form elsewhere. Many young preachers have gone to Germany with a view to improvement and preparation for the office of teaching, and while finding abundant opportunities for study under learned teachers, they have come back with lowered spiritual vitality owing to the chilly atmosphere of the German Universities, and not a few have become infected with German rationalism to the detriment of their whole life work. We believe that good will result to the Church of God in Great Britain and this country from the recent war by the lasting blight cast upon things made in Germany including theology. It had come to be too much the custom to regard no theology as entirely up to date unless it wore the German label. Henceforth it will not be necessary for one to furnish as the only credential of thorough scholarship the proof that he has sat at the feet of some German Gamaliel.

Sidelights On the General Assembly.

He who reads the mere account of the Assembly is apt to picture it as a machine, grinding out, day by day, a certain amount of routine business. But if, instead of reading the account of the proceedings, he should follow them in person, he would find the Assembly a very much alive creature, or, to change the figure, a very animated picture with its lights and shadows. Our ministerial readers who revel in dry sermons, always read the Assembly reports, but the ordinary reader rarely does, and it is for these sober minded brethren that we have tried in the preceding articles to give a running account of what of importance was done, and now we propose to indulge in a bit of harmless gossip concerning men and things.

* * *

We have already referred in a former article to the Foreign Missions popular meeting. It was a pleasant break in the reading of reports and recording of votes.

* * *

The Home Missions Committee can always present an attractive program, because their workers are more available and their fields of work vary in color and nationality. Owing to the fact that New Orleans is such a cosmopolitan city, the Home Mission work there is as variegated as a crazy quilt, embracing negro, Chinese, Italian, Indian, and plain Americans. The China exhibit was unusually good. We had young men from 12 to 18 years, young girls, from 6 to 16. The girls sang English hymns that sounded like Chinese, while the boys sang Chinese hymns that sounded like English, which proves the versatility of the Chinese people.

An educated Indian made an address which surprised the audience. He is a graduate of one of our Colleges and has oratorical talents above the average. He gave the white race more than one keen thrust, yet did it in such a good humored way that we were forced to laugh instead of cry. Referring, for example, to the popular conception of an Indian as one covered, as to his face, with paint and, as to his head, with feathers, he assured the audience that such was the Indian of the past. Now the Indian is different, as the white men have taken his land, and the white women have taken his paints and his feathers.

The white men had their innings when Rev. W. B. Guerrant, nephew of Dr. Guerrant, gave us a few chapters of his life in the mountains.

The hit of the evening was the singing of the colored evangelist Young, assisted by several of the colored ministers. Rev. W. A. Young, the evangelist, has a voice of wonderful sweetness and power. There is something in the singing of these negroes that reminds one of the sighing of prisoners. One can picture the race, having caught a glimpse of a higher life, yet unable to shake off the weights that bind them to their own race. They are educated, they have a taste of a higher life, yet when they try to advance to that life, they are like caged birds beating their breasts against the bars. We should not wonder then that there is a note of hopelessness in their music.

In the discussions it was frequently charged by one side or the other that the majority wished to muzzle men in speaking. This was always said when it was proposed to limit the discussions in any way. This entire question presents a psychological puzzle. Each man thinks discussion useless, as far as the other man is concerned, and he will assure you that all minds are made up and discussion will change none—yet he himself will do his utmost to speak. The only explanation is that the pride of paternity causes us to value our own ideas above those of others, so that we feel that our contribution must be an exception to the rule and a contribution to the general store of knowledge.

* * *

It is evident that we are drifting away from the old moorings, which may be a good or bad sign, according to the personal views of our readers.

The time was when applause in a church would be instantly corrected, but that day seems to have passed away. Now it is as spontaneous as in any public hall or political convention. More than once during the sessions of the Assembly speakers were applauded without bringing forth a rebuke.

* * *

The three editors of our Church papers were more fortunate than usual. The lot of an editor at an Assembly is generally one of constant work, with no recognition of his many attractive qualities. Such was not the case at this Assembly. In the first place, instead of being left unprovided with entertainment as at Atlanta a few years ago, they were given a large room apiece in the home of Dr. Summey, where they lived in comfortable luxury. They were invited to sit in the pulpit with the Moderator on Sunday, by the courtesy of Dr. Mooney, the pastor, and three times during their stay they were guests at the Louisiana restaurant, that place of coffee, the taste of which lingers like a dream. Each one is back at his desk, but throughout the grind of the coming year he will bring back pictures of the past.

Dr. Hemphill, with that rare insight into motives, which has placed him in the front rank of teachers, has suggested that the reason Dr. Summey took all three as his guests, was because no one else would be burdened with them.

* * *

In this Assembly, as in every preceding one, a few men did all the talking. One had no need to be a prophet to tell beforehand who would speak on every question. It would be cruel to name them, yet it was also cruel to inflict speeches of the same kind upon a long suffering audience.

* * *

A moth will fly around a candle, even at the risk of being burnt. A murderer will come back to the scene of his crime—and they tell us that ex-Congressmen hang around Washington, longing for "the sound of a voice that is still." Without pushing the comparison we may remark that each Assembly sees a number of ex-Moderators present, who come back to the scene of their triumphs. However, the ex-Moderators enjoy this advantage over the others who return. They are always welcomed, and oftentimes they give the Assembly, when called upon, the benefit of their experience.

Two of the ex-Moderators, Vance and Wells, were members of the Assembly, while Dr. Lyons, Dr. Mc Alexander and Dr. Hemphill were appreciated visitors. Dr. Vance and Dr. Wells rendered valued service on the floor, while Dr. Lyons by request addressed the Assembly concerning the Federal Council. Dr. Hemphill beamed upon us with his attractive smile and privately enlivened us with his wit, while Dr. Alexander, taking the direct route to an editor's heart entertained us and others with a most toothsome dinner at the Louisiana restaurant.

We have just been reading about a homesick soldier in the hospital, whose homesickness retarded his recovery—but who was started on the road to health by the sight of a mince pie, such "as mother used to make," though he could not eat it. In like manner a homesick editor, longing for the red hills of Mecklenburg, received a whiff of home air, when he heard speaker after speaker roll out most glibly his old friend, "Absolutely." This word in public and private seems to be on constant duty.

* * *

We were also delighted to meet so many of our old friends in the ministry and eldership. Years ago, 36 in number, we last saw the younger brother of our old classmate, Rev. W. H. Woods. Since then he has been living in Mexico, but being in New Orleans at this time, he renewed our acquaintance. Time has dealt kindly with him since he was a student at Hampden-Sydney, though for the life of us we cannot understand any man's fondness for Mexico at the present time.

Dr. Paulus Irving, of Farmville, Va., another old acquaintance of Hampden-Sydney, has grown into aldermanic proportions. Rev. L. E. Scott, of our Seminary class, now throws the average alderman into the shade, as far as expansiveness is concerned.

Then there is Rev. Keff Smith, who was once introduced by Dr. Henry Alexander as the man who could sing bass to thunder. Another old friend and chum is Rev. R. H. Fleming with whom we enjoyed sweet intercourse for many years in Old Virginia—a man who never will grow old, even if he is called a moss-back. Last, but by no means the least, there is C. P. Jenney, of Leesburg, Va., an elder of our first pastorate, who did so much for our comfort when we brought home our young bride. He is older now, though his cheeks are as rosy and his heart as young and tender as in those good old days of long ago.

The charm of every Assembly is the fellowship of old friends.

* * *

The meetings of our Assembly always present an opportunity for getting together the alumni of our Colleges and Seminaries. These gatherings always take the form of a banquet, presided over by some representative of the institution, who not only does the honors of the occasion, but foots the bills.

The Southwestern University, the Louisville Seminary and Union Seminary each had its banquet, where the faithful sons gathered to do honor to their alma mater and to eat the good things so generously provided. Being an alumnus of Union Seminary, we were found in our place and did full justice to the plate.

Dr. Lingle, in the absence of Dr. Walter Moore, presided. He gave a faithful record of the year's work and the plans for the future.

Dr. D. N. McLaughlin was then introduced. No written description can do justice to his address, for no written words can describe the tone of the voice, the solemn countenance, the funny stories, the sharp digs into the student body. Dr. McLaughlin is by long odds the best after dinner speaker in our Church. As an aid to digestion and a vanquisher of the "blues," he is invaluable.

Other men spoke in a more serious vein, thus making what the hygienists term a well balanced ration. Of course Union Seminary being the oldest institution in our Church, always has the largest number of ministers present at each Assembly.

As we grow older we live more in the past than in the present, and when men who were students together thirty and forty years ago touch elbows at the banquet table, old memories flood upon us, and once more we are green and callow youths with the fresh dew of early life upon us.

To many a hard worked and discouraged preacher these gatherings come as a blessing, and all through the coming years with their many demands upon his strength and faith, he is kept fresh and young by these memories of old days.

Contributed

The Labor Movement in England

R. E. Magill, Secretary.

ENGLAND faces many problems and new conditions which will test to the limit the wisdom and patience of every grade of her complex citizenship.

Naturally of a slow moving character, and having a peculiar veneration for the established order and traditions of the empire, it took the wrench of a world war to make her leaders face the reconstruction policies that must follow the upset of kingdoms, empires, autocracies and traditions.

The most anxious week the United Kingdom has known since the dark days of March, 1918, when General Haig, as he faced overwhelming odds, issued his despairing message "We are fighting with our backs to the wall, send reinforcements quick," was the last week in March, 1919, when she faced the probability of a paralysis of her economic life through a strike of the railway employees, the miners and allied organizations of the country.

The government met the situation in a statesmen-like manner and appointed a special commission with limited powers to deal with the labor union leaders. A date for the strike had been fixed and about two million men were ready to obey the order "Down Tools." The spirit of the men was very ugly and the demand that their leaders should stand for every point in their program was strong. This program included the fixing of an eight hour day, the continuation of war time wages until 1920, the nationalization (Government ownership) of all major industries, participation in control and a share with the government in profits of industry, better housing for laborers, and a number of other revolutionary changes. The government commission promised continuation of present wage basis until January, 1920, recognition of the eight hour principle, aid in providing better houses for workers and a careful study of the big question of nationalizing industries.

The labor leaders wisely decided to suspend the strike order in view of the conciliatory attitude of the government and the employers' associations, but their ability to control the rank and file of the labor union membership hung in the balance for several days.

Bonar Law issued a concise statement for the Government showing the concession made to labor and pledging the government to enact necessary laws making the concessions effective. He pointed out the disastrous consequences to the whole empire of a strike and appealed to labor for the same unselfish patriotic spirit it had shown throughout the war. He closed with the terse statement "The government will act promptly and effectively if a strike is called."

Wise counsels finally prevailed in labor circles and the strike was averted for the present, although 200,000 miners in Wales quit work before the cancellation of the strike order reached them. London had but a three days' coal supply ahead and the country is still so close to the war that there has been no accumulation of food supplies and the people are dependent upon the daily distribution from coast terminals if they continue to live and work. As temporary sojourners in London our commission was greatly interested in the outcome. Placing the whole country under martial law would have added to the already serious difficulty of getting through England as the transportation service is still far below par.

Our concern was trivial, however, compared with the anxiety of the English public and we watched with keen interest the course of public sentiment as reflected in the daily press. We were greatly impressed with the moderate and conciliatory tones of the editorials, contributed articles, and interviews with men of international reputation.

We had Mr. Arthur Henderson, the head secretary of the labor movement in England, as our guest for an afternoon during this eventful week and it was quite interesting to get the viewpoint of such an authority on the labor situation in England and on the international aspects of labor demands. We found Mr. Henderson to be a man of striking force and personality and it was easy to understand why he had been kept in parliament for sixteen years as labor's representative, and why he is the leading exponent in the world today of labor aspirations and demands.

He had come up from the ranks, as he is an iron moulder by trade, and has experienced in person all the hardships that are the lot of the average laborer in England. He knows, first hand, of the long hours, the low wages, the unsanitary housing conditions that have caused the growing tide of unrest among wage earners and he has espoused their cause with all the zeal of a crusader.

With a great enthusiasm for his cause, he possesses unusual organizing and executive ability and while the various labor organizations of England are not federated into as close an organization as in America, there is a political labor party of which he is also the head. This organization controls such a large vote that it is a great factor in all English elections and has been able to demand and secure from parliament many long needed reforms in labor laws.

Mr. Henderson is a very forceful speaker and a keen debater, and it was interesting to us to learn that he has been a Bible class teacher and lay preacher in the Wesleyan Methodist Church for forty years and that he still spends most of his Sundays occupying pulpits in the free churches of England, Scotland and Wales, while many of the liberal Episcopal churches are opening their doors to him for special services in the interest of labor reforms.

As an evidence of the high esteem in which he is held by the government he was offered the post of Ambassador to Russia, but for reasons highly creditable to his sense of honor he declined the post.

His strong conviction often led him to oppose movements supported by the ruling powers of the government and as he apparently does not know the meaning of the word "compromise" he went down in defeat in the December election of members of Parliament. His defeat this time was due chiefly to his choosing to stand for election in a new district in Wales instead of his old one, which had returned him for sixteen years. This queer twist in a representative form of government has both advantages and disadvantages but it is a safe bet that Mr. Henderson will not long remain out of Parliament if he really wishes to go back.

In addition to being a ready speaker he wields a facile pen and his book, "The Rights of Labor," is a notable contribution to the discussion of labor problems in their international aspects. It has had almost as wide a reading in America as in England and on the continent.

Although advised that our commission consisted largely of editorial writers whose papers reach a constituency of over thirty million church people in the United States, Mr. Henderson expressed himself with the utmost frankness. His criticisms of government agencies, of employers and corporations, while keen and pointed, were without bitterness, and he impressed us as sincerely desirous of giving the employing class a square deal while seeking privileges for wage earners which are far beyond anything hitherto asked or obtained.

His attack, as he put it, is not upon employers and corporations but upon the old systems of treating men as mere cogs in a machine and denying them the privileges of living the lives of normal human beings.

Asked as to the attitude of organized labor toward the Church he said it is a libel to say that the labor leaders regard the church as an ally of the capitalistic class and catering only to the well-to-do of the community.

(Continued on page 7)

The Sanctity of the Sabbath

Sermon Before Fayetteville Presbytery by Rev. J. A. Caligan

Text: Exodus 20:8-11. "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy. Six days shalt thou labor and do all thy work; but the seventh day is the Sabbath of the Lord thy God: in it thou shalt not do any work, thou, nor thy son, nor thy daughter, thy manservant nor thy maidservant, nor thy cattle, nor thy stranger that is within thy gates; for in six days the Lord made heaven and earth, the sea, and all that in them is, and rested the seventh day; wherefore the Lord blessed the Sabbath day and hallowed it."

JESUS expressly tells us that the Sabbath was made for man—that is, for man's advantage, for the promotion of man's welfare.

The Sabbath is old, but it is not the oldest provision which God made for man. Salvation is older, for the Word tells us that we were chosen in Him before the foundation of the world.

The Sabbath and the home, however, were the two first institutions which God provided for man after his creation. These were made for man in the Garden of Eden, and have survived the fall, and remain with us emblems, not only of the paradise lost but also of that which is to be regained.

The fact that these two institutions were given to man at the very beginning of his history is in itself proof of their fundamental importance, and the history of humanity all down the ages confirms the truth that man's destiny is involved in these two institutions. Without exception, with ominous certainty, their sanctity has measured man's noblest attainments, their desecration has measured man's lowest degeneracy.

Another proof of the permanent and sacred importance of the Sabbath is seen in the fact that it is the one duty selected by Jehovah to commemorate the work of creation.

It was always necessary for man to remember that God is the Creator, for this truth in itself establishes, by necessary inference, God's absolute authority and his absolute ownership.

Still another proof of the permanent and sacred importance of the Sabbath is seen in the fact that God established it by his own example.

Notice: "For in six days the Lord made Heaven and earth, the sea, and all that in them is, and rested the seventh day; wherefore the Lord blessed the Sabbath day and hallowed it."

Beyond question there must be something essentially and profoundly sacred about an institution which the God of absolute perfection establishes by his own example.

But the great crowning proof of the Divine origin, the permanent and sacred importance of the Sabbath is seen in the fact that it is placed in the very heart of the decalogue.

It is one of the immortal "Ten Words" each one of which is intrinsically, eternally right.

Notice how clearly the Bible recognizes the permanent and fundamental importance of these Ten Commandments. They always have been and always will be unchangeably intrinsically right.

Before the decalogue was written, murder was condemned in Cain, Jacob enjoined his family to put away strange gods, Isaac recognized his filial obligations, so did the sons of Noah, Joseph resented adultery because it was a sin against God, stealing is noted as a sin by Jacob and Laban, the sin of falsehood is noted in the case of Abraham, and in a striking sense, before the decalogue was written, the Sabbath obligation is definitely recognized in the gathering of the manna, and the special emphasis given it is shown by the peculiar use which those ancient people made of the number seven.

Jesus recognized the permanence of the decalogue, both in his teaching and in his example. He expressly says, "Think not that I am come to destroy the law." And the Apostles recognized its permanence, for Paul says, "Cursed is every one that continueth not in all things written in the book of the law to do them."

The Fourth Commandment is one of those eternal, unchanging laws of God. It is one of those Ten Commandments which were delivered amid the ominous lightnings of Sinai. It, too, was proclaimed in a voice of thunder. It, too, was written upon the tables of stone by the finger of God. Jehovah himself has placed its obligations in the category of those about murder, and adultery, and stealing, and falsehood.

It is not only one of the Ten Commandments, but it is the longest one, written out in the fullest detail. It is the only one having the word "remember" standing before it, like a sentinel of warning, pointing to its vital importance. "Remember the Sabbath day"—you have heard this command before. "Remember the Sabbath day"—there will be peculiar temptations to forget it. "Remember the Sabbath day"—for if you forget this command you will forget all God's commands.

Again, this claim as to the divine origin and permanent importance of the Sabbath is corroborated by the fact that its necessity is written in the very constitution of nature.

When God makes a law there is an intrinsic reason for it.

It has been attested by authoritative scientific demonstration that man, and beast, and even machinery, need a stated period of rest.

The infidel Commune of the French Revolution found it necessary to appoint a day of rest to take the place of the Sabbath, which they tried to abolish.

Man's body, mind, and soul must have this rest.

The laborer who observes no Sabbath soon becomes a physical wreck, the professional man who observes no Sabbath soon becomes a mental weakling, and the individual, home, or nation that has no Sabbath invariably drifts into moral and spiritual degeneracy.

The Sabbath was, indeed, made for man.

It is an economic necessity. It is a notable fact that the business man who spends the Sabbath with his account books, and the industrial enterprise which observes no day of rest, are economic failures.

It is a social necessity. There is nothing which so preserves and purifies man's social nature as the reunion of the family, in the home and at the church, under circumstances which inspire him with the social graces of neatness, refinement, and good behavior.

But, above all, it is a spiritual necessity. If the Sabbath were abolished, the church would soon cease to exist. No orthodox student of history denies this. If the church goes down, then religion goes down. If religion goes down, then civilization goes down. There is not a single exception to this in all the world's history.

Man is a creature of habit. Unless he has a stated time to retreat from the engrossing care of business and industry, these will overwhelm his soul, and he will forget God and the things of God.

One reason, I believe, why the order of Masonry has survived several thousand years of the world's history is the fact that it reverently recognizes the obligations of God's holy Sabbath Day.

The enterprises of religion are co-operative, hence common sense shows there must be uniformity. Every agency of the church depends primarily upon its public ordinances, but unless there is a stated time, authoritatively fixed, for these, there will be only blank confusion.

Let us notice, in the next place, that the change of the day from the seventh to the first day of the week, by the example of the Apostles, and with the evident approval of our risen Lord, did not abrogate the Sabbath Law or in any degree weaken the force of its obligation.

The change in itself argues perpetuity, and when we con-

(Continued on page 8)

"Come Over and Help Us"

Distress in the Near East.

By Harrison A. Maynard, Treasurer Armenian Relief Fund in the Caucasus.

I FOUND from 13 to 17 in one room, as many as five in bed. They say that they are sick. Probably their illness is really only slow starvation. I found four small children living alone, two sick abed. On a cold, snowy day they had no fire and were dressed only in one thin ragged cotton garment, with skin showing in many places. One boy had tied muslin rags on his feet.

1. In one place a woman was making soup of an onion and a teaspoonful of grease. There were two quarts of dish-water soup to feed six persons.

2. In two places I found parts of the corpse of a horse, not one that had been killed, but one that had died of himself. The flesh was being cooked and eaten while I was there. Two emaciated children in bed were gnawing at pieces of this flesh. The piece of one child was smaller than that of the other. When he finished his or rather when she finished hers, for it was a girl, she tried stealthily to take some from the other child. Six persons were in bed in that room, emaciated and wild looking. Two persons had died in that room on the previous day.

3. In other places I saw sheep's entrails, slaughterhouse blood, picking from chaff being eaten or being prepared for food. Some said that they were living on potato skins from the soldiers' barracks.

4. Two hundred orphans are nominally kept by the government, in three orphanages. Instead of the bright cheerful faces and awful noise of our orphans they had full, lifeless faces and were perfectly quiet, thus showing the effects of underfeeding. It seems plain to us that we will have to take over all orphanages. Disease will soon get into their midst and they will die off like flies, not being able to withstand anything. Typhus is now common everywhere.

At a place called Karakillisse not far within the boundary of the new Republic of Armenia, we stopped thirty-two hours on account of heavy snows. There I talked with several people, natives, who are supposed to have the care of the refugees in their hands, though they have no funds now to work with, and twice I went around the town visiting hovels where the refugees have taken refuge from the winter and a mighty cold filthy refuge they have. All figures practically agreed. In and about Karakillisse there are about 22,000 Turkish Armenian refugees besides about 5,000 impoverished native or local Armenians. These figures I give as an illustration of one section. To them has been given during the last two months about one ton of potatoes and six tons of wheat and barley. Besides this they have had a sort of soup kitchen for one month, which is now closed. I will later describe a similar one though probably a better one which I saw in Alexandropol. From that you will see how little a soup kitchen supplies. Besides this food they receive a little by begging and I suppose a little is received as a wage once in a while. In this region forty or fifty are said to die daily. I believe the figures are far too small.

So much for Karakillisse. The estimate of the British Intelligence Department is that there are 330,000 people in distress in the Caucasus. If they are not as bad off as those whom I have described, they will be by the time help has reached them. Those whom I have told you about will be dead when this reaches you.

In Alexandropol I visited refugees and the city soup kitchens. The city gives soup to 26,173. In the three soup kitchens which I visited I saw and heard exactly the same things. The menu is like this. Eight pounds of wheat and about twenty-nine pounds of meat and bone are made into a soup which is divided amongst 200 people once a day. Thirty-seven pounds of solid food for 220 people, about three ounces to the person. The share of soup with its portion of wheat and meat for each person was less than a teacupful.

It makes one sort of crazy to see such things, and to hear the tales of the sufferers. The hardest hearts are touched.

One purpose burns itself into our hearts. We expect to do all we can to get food to the whole 330,000 even though we be now but three men. At Alexandropol I left a trustworthy man who was my manager when I organized the Industrial Work in Alexandropol in 1916. He continued as manager there until compelled to flee from the Turks last spring. He promised to have a real soup kitchen (where people may receive more than a taste of food) going within two days. He is capable of doing it. You will be interested to know that the French Government has appropriated about 500,000 rubles for "soup kitchens" in Kars, Alexandropol and Erivan. Col. Chardigny of the French Mission is turning the money over to us. It will be a starter and we shall try to get more out of him. Of course that sum will not last more than ten days in Alexandropol and Erivan. Kars is not yet open to Armenians and there are none there.

The stores of Alexandropol are bare, like a harvested field. The merest gleanings are to be seen. The place is desolate. The Armenians have a picture which one sees everywhere. It is of a woman sitting on the ruins of a city. "Armenia," they call it. It is truer now than it ever was before. Armenia is a devastated country. The Turks should be made to repatriate the Armenians.

March 4th:

I have been interrupted in the composition of this letter two or three times.

When we arrived in Erivan we heard terrible tales, less heartrending than those heard in other places only because the industrial orphanage, hospital and other work of the committee has continued under the excellent management of Elder and Arrol. They have provided work, and relief of other forms, but also encouraged great numbers not to flee before the Turks. Those who remained were safe as the Turks never entered the city. Arrol and Elder are the heroes of a nation, as they have a right to be. They are worshipped by the nation. I suppose that their names will go down in history of the nation.

The $100,000 you sent through Consul Heizer of Bagdad and paid by Mr. Boyce in Teheran was converted into the best Russian money and brought up to the Caucasus as we, Arrol, Elder and I, came in. That was spent, almost swallowed up, by the hungry work in Tiflis and Erivan.

In order to facilitate my work the Armenian Government has given me a special car to live in, as I go up and down the line looking after my work. Arrol also has one to enable him to go up and down on the transportation work.

After remaining four days in Erivan I secured a train to come up to Nakhichevan for wheat and then planned to go on to Tabriz after money. The trip, still unfinished, is a romance, and so interesting, as to be worth the taking, though it has required constantly the exhibition of nerve, brass, and labor along with wakefulness. I hope to get into Erivan tonight. I may not, though. My engineer has been several hours getting up steam on cottonwood. It took him twelve hours to fill his engine with water from an irrigation stream. We had to repair a bridge on one place. And so the tale goes.

In Nakhichevan I established an orphanage, promised by Elder and the goods prepared by him. This is for Tartars. Our workers are Armenians as we trust only those whom we have tried. The Tartars are very bitter against the Armenians and the Orphanage workers are afraid to leave the orphanage. Col. Loughton, the British Governor here, has promised to jail the chief of police if our people are injured. I have told them to go out and endure the cursing they will receive for a few days until they are a common sight. The manager is a nervy fellow and with an old man is the only one who has dared to go out. The Tartars do not know

The Labor Movement in England.

(Continued from page 4)

He said the thoughtful leaders in the labor movement recognize that the principles contended for by the Christian Church, if translated into life, would give to wage earners everything they are contending for and he claims that the best element of the labor movement recognize the fact that their cause will be triumphant only when the principles of Christianity govern state policies and economic relations between employer and employees.

He criticises the church quite sharply for its failure to deliver itself in an official way upon the moral aspects of the labor movement and thinks the ministers fail in a great opportunity by not championing more strongly the cause of the wage earner.

He expressed great disappointment that the efforts of the labor movement to secure recognition at the Peace Conference had not received the backing of some great world organization of Christian churches which was authorized to voice the sentiment of the constituencies of these communions.

He had a large part in shaping the paper which is now before the Peace Conference as embodying the views of the World's Labor Congress held at Bern, Switzerland, last winter.

He favors admitting representatives of the best type of labor in Russia and Germany to the labor section of the League of Nations and holds that this is the best method of combating Bolshevism and anarchy in these countries. He sharply criticised Gompers and the other American Labor leaders for refusing to attend the Bern Labor Congress on account of the presence of German labor representatives, as the congress was called at the suggestion of the American Labor Federation.

It is to be regretted that the labor movement everywhere is not directed by men of the Christian character and high purpose which Mr. Henderson seems to have, and if the world's labor organizations would adopt the five year program of the English Labor Party (which is also the handiwork of Mr. Henderson) the conflicting interests of capital and labor would soon be reconciled, and the reconstruction of this poor war-scarred world would proceed apace.

A Correction.

In a recent communication to your paper relative to the election of Dr. Scofield to membership in the Societe Academique d'Histoire Internationale of France, the statement was quoted by me from press reports that this organization, with a very limited foreign membership, is a part of the famous French Academy. I accepted the press statement that a change in the plan of the Academy, reported now to be divided into departments, allowed a limited foreign membership. This is wholly erroneous.

I am in receipt of a letter from Mr. Trumbull, editor of the Sunday School Times, enclosing the following communication from a secretary of the French Legation at Washington:

their friends. This scrap between the Armenians and Tartars is very unfortunate. The Tartars were unwilling to sell food stuffs for me to take away. Though they did sell me six carloads of salt which are needed up the way. This salt I can resell. I suppose they do not call salt a food.

In Tabriz I got considerable money in rubles and Turkish gold. I bought also some dried fruit, about 14 tons, and about two tons of meat from Tabriz. With the money Col. Loughton is going to secure six carloads of grain from a section which he can get and I cannot. That is, he will use part of the money which I secured in Tabriz. So I feel that the trip has been profitable, if I do not die or get killed before I get back.

I seem now to be delivered from one of my trials. We are about to leave Nakhichevan after eight and one-half hours of making steam and forming the train. We did devote an hour and a half to trying to pull Col. Loughton's

"In answer to your kind letter of May 6th, I take pleasure in informing you that the 'Societe Academique d'Histoire Internationale' referred to is a French scientific society of which to be made a member is very honorable indeed.

Its late President, Frederic Minstral, was one of our great poets. But this society is not the same as the 'Academie Francaise' which, as you say, was founded in 1635 by Cardinal de Richelieu and is limited to 40 members. No one but a Frenchman can belong to it and, for this only reason, when, during the war, the desire was expressed that the illustrious Belgian poet Maurice Maeterlinck become one of the 'immortels,' even in this case an exception could not be made."

This correction in no wise detracts from the honor conferred upon Dr. Scofield. No higher honor can be given an American man of letters by France than has come to him. President Wilson was recently reported in the press as honored by an election to a similar limited membership society in Paris.

Exchanges that copied the original report please copy.

R. T. C.

The Sin of the World.

By Rev. S. F. Tenney.

John the Baptist said, "Behold the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world." Jno. 1:29. The word sin is in the singular, and seems to refer to some definite sin—"the sin"—"the sin of the world"—as some very conspicuous, notorious, world-wide, prevailing sin. What is that sin? Notwithstanding man's many sins—heinous crimes against God, as well as against man, there is a way by which all these sins may be canceled. God in His mercy and grace has provided a way when man had no right to expect that He would. That way is by Christ being provided as a substitute in men's stead—to die in men's place, and thus satisfy the demands of Justice, and let men be permitted to go free. Now, if man rejects this Saviour as his all sufficient sacrifice to atone for men's sins—then is not this rejection of the Saviour the most conspicuous, heinous of all sins—casting away salvation and eternal life, when this offer comes to men freely, without money and without price—is not this rejection of the Saviour—rejection of the only possible way of salvation—is not this the sin of the world—the sin of sins? When our Saviour has paid the debt, all the debt we owe to divine justice, is it not the most conspicuous of all sins—the sin of sins—to decline to accept of God's way by which God may be just and yet the justifier of the ungodly—is not this the crowning sin of man—when the acceptance of Christ carries with it the blotting out of all man's sins? All other sins may be cancelled through faith in Christ, but this sin of rejecting Christ as the only Saviour shuts the door of Heaven against sinful man—because there is no other way—can be no other way than God's way of atoning for all man's sins through the death of our Saviour.

Crockett, Texas.

engine onto the track. A careless switchman threw a switch too soon and put all but the front pair of drive wheels off the track. But these trials don't worry us much. They are so common we get used to them.

What is the matter with the men at Paris? Why do they not permit the repatriation of all people who have had to flee from their homes during the war. If these folks are not sent home within this month they will have to be fed during the whole of the ensuing year. That is, if they do not plant and harvest this year, they will have to be fed until the harvest of 1920 is in. How many will die in the interim! for no relief work can be so well carried on as to reach all the distress.

[The Standard is glad to receive funds for this needy cause from its readers and to forward same to the Treasurer. Through this medium our readers have already contributed over $1,000, and the need continues great.—Ed.]

The Sanctity of the Sabbath.

(Continued from page 5)

sider the purpose in this change, its sanctity becomes all the more sacred and obligatory to the Christian.

It could not be abolished for it was one of God's intrinsic, changeless moral laws. It was not a part of the Levitical Ceremony, it was a part of the Decalogue. It was not changed till the day of the resurrection. Until that time, Jesus and his disciples celebrated the seventh day. Time and again it is said, "Jesus went into the synagogue on the Sabbath day."

Then, why was it changed, and what authority have we for the change?

It was not an accident that Jesus rose from the dead on the first day of the week. Invariably after this, the Apostles celebrated the first day of the week as their Sabbath, and it is so stated a number of times. The Apostles were inspired. It would be altogether unreasonable to suppose that they would give us an invariable example, involving one of God's intrinsic moral laws, a fundamental sacred institution, unless they were divinely authorized to do so. And, we have the historic testimony, though uninspired, of the early writers, Pliny, Ignatius, Justin Martyr, Tertullian, and others, that the Apostles did establish this change.

Now, why was the change made? It was made to commemorate the resurrection of Jesus. In the change we still rest because God rested, we still commemorate the first creation, and, in addition, we commemorate the more glorious creation when "all things were made new."

It cost God more to provide a salvation for lost souls than it did to create the universe. When God gave his Only Begotten Son, he gave the greatest price that heaven had to offer, and when Jesus triumphed over death it was the greatest victory of all eternity. Should it not be commemorated? Should it not be honored?

If we commemorate the resurrection of Jesus only on Easter Sunday, we have surrendered the real grounds for this change it seems to me, certainly for the other fifty-one Sundays of the year.

How should the Sabbath be observed?

God's word is our best teacher here, and it is particularly explicit, I think, with reference to this duty.

The fact that God sanctified the day is in itself very definite. To sanctify is to set apart from a common to a sacred use. As to how it should be sanctified, God teaches us both by injunction and by example. "In it thou shalt not do any work," "God rested the seventh day."

It is to be a day of rest for man and beast, a day of rest for body, mind, and soul.

"In it thou shalt not do any work." None in the factory nor the field, none in the lawyer's office nor in the editor's sanctum.

The soul, too, must have its rest.

Really there is a sense in which this physical and mental rest is but the negative part of Sabbath sanctity. True, such rest benefits body and mind, but the idea in sanctifying the day, as in everything else, is to make a positive use for a sacred purpose.

A profligate idleness wearies the soul, does not rest it.

How does the soul rest? Only in communion with God, in meditation about God, and in harmony with God. Out of harmony with God and away from God, the soul is like a drifting derelict upon the restless billows of the sea, tossed to and fro.

This rest is secured through the private and public ordinances of worship. Time and again it is said that Jesus went into the synagogue on the Sabbath day, and it was for worship and service. This is how Jesus sanctified the Sabbath. Again it is said, the disciples came together on the first day of the week, and it was for prayer and communion and preaching. The Apostle John was in the spirit on the Lord's day. This is how the Apostles sanctified the Sabbath.

Let us notice here, that in our Savior's interpretation of the Fourth Commandment, and by his example, he clearly teaches that the works of necessity and mercy are in complete accord with the true sanctity of the Lord's day.

Let us notice, however, that leading the ox to water, and rubbing out the ears of corn, while not an absolute necessity, were nevertheless a sanitary necessity, and would not prevent attendance upon the public nor the private ordinances of worship, and ministering to the sick on the Sabbath, as Jesus did, is not only a work of necessity and mercy, but is an express part of pure religion itself.

Sunday baseball, Sunday excursions, and Sunday theaters are entirely out of this category. These are features of the continental Sunday—the German Sunday—which became with them the most unsanctified day of the week; and it would lead to the same pagan results in America that it did in Germany.

Now, let us notice briefly the peculiar nature of our responsibilities with reference to the Sabbath obligation.

Notice the peculiar way in which these are pointed out in the Command itself.

"In it thou shalt not do any work, thou"—the individual's responsibility, "nor thy son, nor thy daughter"—the parent's responsibility, "thy manservant, nor thy maidservant, nor any cattle"—the employer's responsibility, "nor thy stranger that is within thy gates"—the citizen's responsibility.

Why this peculiar emphasis and distribution? One thing, it shows the universal importance of the Sabbath for all classes; again, since all are benefited all should assume responsibility; again, one class cannot carry out the purposes of the Sabbath if all others are permitted to desecrate it.

We are, today, passing through one of the most plastic periods of reconstruction in the world's history. The exigencies and necessities of war have caused many to set aside the claims of the Sabbath day.

At this time, when the world has seen anew that God's way is best, and when our institutions are being re-established upon a better basis than ever, we hope, what an opportune time for every Christian to strive with his best efforts to have the true Sabbath also re-established.

Let us notice, in conclusion, that the transgression of the Fourth Commandment is a sin. It is a great sin. It is a sin which propagates all other sins. It is a sin which propagates vice in the home, it propagates crime in the nation.

It is a great sin. It is a violation of God's unchanging moral law, it is a transgression of God's command. "Blessed are they that do his commandments." This commandment is repeated with more frequency than any other of the ten.

It is a peculiarly dangerous sin. It will bring degeneracy into any life, it will bring degradation into any home, it will bring ruin into any nation.

"Cursed is every one that continueth not in all things written in the book of the law to do them." This command was written in the Book of the Law. It was the Lord Jehovah, King of all the earth, who said "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy," therefore it is a sin which must be repented of or it will damn the soul. It must be confessed, we must turn away from it, we must turn unto God.

Forgiveness.

My heart was heavy, for its trust had been Abused, its kindness answered with foul wrong;
So, turning gloomy from my fellowmen,
One summer Sabbath day I strolled among
The green mounds of the village burial place;
Where pondering how all human love and hate
Find one sad level; and how soon or late,
Wronged and wrong-doer, each with meekened face
And cold hands folded over a still heart,
Pass the green threshold of our common grave,
Whither all footsteps tend, whence none depart;
Awed for myself and pitying my race,
Our common sorrow, like a mighty wave,
Swept all my pride away and trembling I forgave.

—Whittier.

A Statement From the Home Mission Committee

By Rev. Homer McMillan, D.D.

THE Executive Committee of Home Missions was able to report to the General Assembly in New Orleans, La., the best year in its history, and is profoundly grateful to the Church for the splendid increase in contributions for the maintenance of the various departments of the work entrusted to it by the Assembly. This increase we believe is largely the result of the Three Million Campaign for benevolences conducted by the Stewardship Committee. Not only were all obligations met, but for the first time in many years there was a substantial balance.

Because of this enlarged income the committee was able to grant a small increase in the salary of the Home Mission workers—a simple act of justice delayed. It is hoped that during the year it will be possible to make another increase so that the salary of the deserving and self-sacrificing Home Missionaries may in a measure be commensurate with their actual needs and the splendid service they are rendering the Church and the Nation.

It was necessary to devote a considerable part of the balance to the payment of unexpired appropriations—that is, appropriations that had been voted but for which the funds were not then available; and for sorely needed buildings and equipment for some of the missions that had entirely outgrown their quarters, and where enlargement was imperatively necessary.

The Committee is projecting its work this year on a still larger scale. The old standards will not answer in this day when so many large things are being done in the world. Not only must the splendid advance be maintained, but a larger program must be undertaken.

There are two things that must be done.

The salary of the workers must be brought to a living wage as speedily as possible. The Church must not leave these noble men and women, with the hardships and privations of the Home Mission field, without the necessities of life. They are the Church's representatives, and the Church must supply their needs. They have no other resource.

More and better buildings must be provided. The committee has been able to do something, but $100,000 additional is needed immediately to give some of the more important missions adequate buildings for the work they are trying to do. This does not mean opening up new fields, but equipping and strengthening the work already begun.

Many churches made provision for Assembly's Home Missions in the Three-and a Half Million Campaign in March. But many churches did not make an Every Member Canvass, and in others the canvass was not completed. It is for this class of churches, and for those that wish to supplement the canvass by a voluntary thank-offering that the Assembly has designated the month of June for Assembly's Home Missions in the schedule of collections.

Never in the history of the Nation was the work of the Church more vitally important. There is no dynamic outside the Gospel of Christ that can make America what it ought to be. This is no time to halt in the great task of evangelization. The work must go forward! Home Missions is the agency for bringing the Gospel in its converting, uplifting and conserving power to bear upon the waste places of our country, and to make real in the life of our Nation the ideals and principles of righteousness, justice and truth which Jesus taught and for which He died.

The committee earnestly requests the continued aid of all our churches and people in the great work which the Assembly has committed to its care.

Send offerings to A. N. Sharp, Treasurer, Executive Committee of Home Missions, 1522 Hurt Building, Atlanta, Ga.

The Twin Meetings in Atlanta.

The Woman's Auxiliary Program, Baptist Tabernacle, June 10-12.

Program Committee: Mrs. W. C. Winsborough, Mrs. S. D. Walton, Mrs. Archibald Davis.

At the opening session on Tuesday morning the special features will be greetings from Mrs. Stephen Barnett, of Atlanta; response by Mrs. S. D. Walton, of Farmville, Va., and addresses by Drs. Morris, McCaslin and Dobyns. At the afternoon session, an address by Dr. Rice, of Union Seminary, and the Korean pageant by the missionaries from Korea. An address of special interest to women will be given at this session by Miss Anna Milligan, of Philadelphia, on "The Challenge of the Hour." At the evening hour the addresses will be delivered by Dr. Pratt, of New York, and Dr. Chafer, of East Orange, N. J.

The theme for Wednesday, the second day, will be "Our Young People." The speakers at the morning hour will be the church's "Specialists" on young people's work, Dr. Glass, of the Sunday School; Karl Lehmann, of the Christian Endeavor, and Dr. Sweets, of Christian Education, with Mr. Robt. McQuilkin and Mr. Innis as additional speakers. At the afternoon session Dr. McMillan, Miss Hall, Mrs. Winsborough, Mrs. Archibald Davis and Miss Haskin will bring messages of interest on this great theme, but viewed from different angles. At this hour also Mrs. E. C. Cronk, of New York City, popular as an inspiring and earnest speaker, will address the women on "Sighs or Service." The evening speakers will be Dr. Doughty and Dr. E. W. Smith, recently returned from the orient.

The final day of the convention has for its themes, at the morning session, "Efficiency," with talks by women who have tested the meaning of that word, Mesdames Winsborough, Bruce, of Birmingham; Whitman, of Waycross, Ga.;

Davis, of Atlanta, and Cronk, and Miss Milligan; and at the afternoon session, "Stewardship," with Rev. Messrs. Poteat, of New York, and Guille, of Athens, Tenn., as speakers. At this hour also an address will be made on "The Stewardship of a Younger Race," by Mrs. Booker T. Washington, widow of the great leader of the negro race, Booker Washington. This will prove of special interest. Dr. Campbell White will close the conference with an address at the evening session.

The mere outline of the program shows that the conference will be worth while. The attendance should be large.

Korean Pageant.

One of the most unique and interesting features in connection with the great parallel conventions, Laymen's Missionary Movement and Woman's Auxiliary, Atlanta, Ga., June 10-12, 1919, will be a Korean pageant. This is made possible at this time because a number of Korean missionaries are now at home on furlough.

The following scenes typical of Korean customs and life will be enacted:

Scene 1—The Korean Home.

This scene will present a Korean native home, showing the preparation of food; serving of meals; washing and ironing, and the manner of presenting the Gospel to the heathen by the missionaries.

Scene 2—Korean Heathen Wedding.

The Korean heathen wedding is attended with much pomp and ceremony. In this scene will be shown the dressing of the bride; the arrival of the groom; bowing before ancestral tablets; the ceremony and the wedding feast.

Scene 3—Korean Funeral.

The unusual hearse, borne on the shoulders of coolies; the hired mourners; the streaming banners carried on long

News of the Week

The recommendation of President Wilson that the war time prohibition act, as far as it touches wine and beer, be repealed, has aroused much opposition among the temperance people. North Carolinians are writing their Congressmen opposing any repeal.

Reduced passenger fare tickets to conventions will not be sold for meetings earlier than June 10, the railroad administration has announced. More stringent regulations than have been customary will surround sale of such tickets after that date this year to make certain that only bona fide delegates receive the privilege of the lower rate of one and one-third fare for round trips.

Permits for the shipment of grain from interior markets will be used by the railroad administration this year to control the movement of the mammoth harvest which is just beginning.

J. S. Wannamaker, president of the American Cotton Association, has issued a statement declaring that the excessive rains of the past ten days have practically ruined the South Carolina cotton crop and had seriously hurt it in other States. "In South Carolina it is going to be necessary to replant a very great portion of the crop," said Mr. Wannamaker.

With credits—annual stipulated contributions for missions—officially reported subscriptions in the centenary campaign of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, amount to $48,000,000, the subscriptions aggregating $32,077,000.

Senator Smith attributes the recent advance in cotton prices to the raising of restrictions upon cotton exports to German-Austria, and Jugo-Slavia. The principal cotton mills of Austria were in German-Austria and Jugo-Slavia and all of this territory is now open to cotton shipments without restrictions. The quantity restrictions of shipments of Switzerland, Holland, Denmark, Norway and Sweden have also been removed.

Free running crude oil has been found in England. The location is on the Midlands, Duke of Devonshire's property, and in the coal mining district near Chesterfield. Petroleum will be developed under government control, which will grant licenses for all boring.

It is reported that Germany will refuse to sign the treaty unless she is admitted into the League of Nations. She also demands plebiscite in all disputed territories.

Secretary Daniels has decided, in view of the trend of the world toward universal peace, to abandon the plans for a naval policy second to none.

Senator Simmons of this State, who has been one of President Wilson's staunchest supporters, refuses to follow him in voting to repeal the prohibition on wine and beer.

The Atlantic ocean has been crossed in an aerial passage, the American navy winning the honor. The American naval seaplane NC-4 accomplished the feat by winging its way to Lisbon from Azores, where it had already flown from the shores of Newfoundland.

The arrival of the NC-4 at Lisbon marks the completion of the first trans-Atlantic air flight in history, with the coveted honor going to a machine designed, built and manned by Americans. The actual flying time was 26 hours and 41 minutes.

Dr. W. J. McGlothlin was elected president of Furman University by the board of directors of that institution, during their annual meeting. Dr. McGlothlin holds the chair of Church History at the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville, Ky., and is one of the most noted Baptists of the South. We understand that he has accepted.

A statement issued by the trustees of the N. C. State College of Agriculture and Engineering completely exonerated President W. C. Riddick from the charges against him made by the students in their recent round robin, demanding his resignation. Trustees declare the college management deserving utmost confidence.

After three hours of sharp partisan conflict with the Democrats, the Republicans have completed organization of the Senate by electing chairmen and majorities of all important committees, including Senators Penrose, Pennsylvania, and Warren, Wyoming, as heads of the finance and appropriations committees, respectively.

The Republican Progressives did not carry their opposition to Senators Penrose and Warren to the Senate floor, voting solidly against a Democratic motion designed to oust Senator Penrose as chairman of the finance committee.

At a great roads meeting held in Monroe, N. C., the counties pledge aid to the Mountain-to-Sea Highway. Lumberton will be the next place of meeting.

A new revolution has begun in Mexico. General Angeles has been proclaimed Provisional President of Mexico and Villa, Secretary of War.

All units of the 81st, or "Wild Cat" Division, are home-ward bound. The first contingent will land at Newport News, Va., June 7th.

The mid-biennial council of the General Federation of Women's Clubs of America voted unanimously to adopt the revised covenant of the League of Nations. They have so informed the President and the Foreign Relations Committee of the Senate.

While complete figures are lacking, there is every indication that the Salvation Army passed the $13,000,000 goal in its home service campaign by approximately $3,000,000, according to an announcement made by former Governor Charles S. Whitman, of New York, chairman of the National Committee.

poles; the funeral song—in all its Oriental splendor will be faithfully carried out.

Scene 4—Korean School.

Showing scenes from our Mission schools, introducing the foreign teacher, and giving some of her problems.

Scene 5—Native Church.

There is perhaps no one religious organization of greater interest to the Christian than the Korean Church. Here will be shown the native congregation on its way to church; the singing; the offering; the preacher—a true reproduction of a Korean church service.

The pageant will be given on Wednesday, June 11th, and the missionaries and their assistants will be in full Korean costume. It is hoped this realistic presentation will give all a clearer understanding of mission work.

A COURTESY TO OUR FOREIGN MISSIONARIES AT WINONA LAKE.

A letter received at our office from Dr. A. Christy Brown, who is in charge of the Sylvester Horne Memorial at Winona Lake, brings the offer of free admission to the grounds and free lodging during the Bible Conference at Winona August 22nd to 31st for any of our missionaries who are now at home on furlough. Any of the missionaries who may be able to avail themselves of this courtesy are requested to correspond with Dr. Brown, who will give them the necessary information as to matters of detail.

S. H. Chester, Secretary.

Christian Endeavor

By Rev. S. H. Hay.

M., June 9—We Owe Ourselves: 1 Pet. 1:17-25.
 T., June 10—Ready to Pay: Isa. 6:1-8.
 W., June 11—We Owe Our All: 1 Cor. 4:1-7.
 T., June 12—Ready to Pay: Luke 21:1-4; 1 Chron.
 22:14.
 F., June 13—We Owe Our Talents: Luke 19:11-27.
 S., June 14—Ready to Pay: Rom. 1:13-17.

* * *

Topic for Sunday, June 15—What We Owe and How to Pay It—2 Cor. 8:1-15.

* * *

We owe to God all that He may desire of us. He made us, He redeemed us from the sentence of death with the life of His Son, and by His Providence He preserves us and keeps us alive. Our hearts would cease beating and our beings leave off breathing if He would withdraw for one instant His life-power from us.

* * *

God wants our whole selves, and we owe them. Paul was speaking for the Holy Spirit when he commended the Macedonians because they "gave first their own selves to the Lord." Paul regarded himself as the "bondservant" of Christ. He belonged to Jesus, soul, heart, mind, will, and body. He felt he ought to recognize God's ownership of him, and he said, "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" In the old days, when a rich man bought a slave, he was buying not merely the slave's labor, but the man himself. Men no longer may own one another as they once did; but God will always own us with full and exclusive title. We can never finish paying Him, for we shall always be His.

* * *

Since we owe our whole selves to God, we owe each separate faculty to Him. The whole includes all of the parts.

The mind belongs to God. It is under obligation to engage only in those thoughts which glorify God and advance His cause. Such thoughts will always be found most wholesome also for ourselves.

The heart belongs to God. It is at liberty to love and crave and cherish only those things which God considers valuable. Whatever He deems worthy and desirable, we ourselves may profit by.

God owns our wills and energies. We are bound to attempt all of those things, and those only, which our great Owner desires to have done. If we work for Him earnestly and only, we shall discover that we did precisely what was best also for ourselves. The interests of God and of His loved bond-servants are bound up together into one.

* * *

We owe to God all that we can produce. If we earn a salary, or learn a trade, or master an art, or buy a farm, or make a crop, or build a home, or achieve a friendship, or write a book, or build up a business, it all belongs to God. It is all His, intended to be used for the advancement of His Kingdom. When money is the article produced, we should turn it in proportionately as He prospers His business in our hands. Many Christians find the giving of a tenth of the income brings personal joy and a blessing. Most of us should give more, for God probably judges our devotion as much by what we retain for ourselves as by what we turn in for Him.

* * *

Who paid our greatest debt to God?

Do we still owe anything to God?

What are you doing to pay what you owe?

Will God become angry and collect bad debts? Luke 19:24.

The Prayer Meeting

TOPIC FOR WEEK BEGINNING JUNE 8, 1919:
 HEARTS OF THE FATHERS AND OF THE CHILD-

DREN—Mal. IV:6; Lu. 1:17.

The mission of the second Elijah is summed up by Malachi in the rebuilding of Godly Homes among the people of God. In Luke the angel takes up the refrain, and sums up the work of the Baptist in such a revival of religion as will purify the homes of the people, give new life to the spirit of obedience, and prepare a people to receive the Messiah. But in both Covenants the emphasis is placed upon the rebuilding of the Christian home. Unique is Malachi's way of saying this: "He shall turn the heart of the fathers to the children, and the heart of the children to the fathers." Love is at the divine core of Christianity. Hatred and disobedience and indifference and a brutal interestedness are the marks of worldliness.

One of the first symptoms of true religion on the part of fathers is an unselfish love for their children. This is the cornerstone of the home. Without this holy, unselfish love of mother and father the Christian home does not exist. It

(Continued on page 12)

THAT MEETING IN ATLANTA.

Railroad Rates.

All arrangements have been perfected for the Sixth General Convention of the Laymen's Missionary Movement, Atlanta, June 10-11-12. Registrations are coming in more rapidly as the day of the convention approaches. Already a number of churches have written in notifying the committee the number of their delegates, and having reservations made.

One noteworthy feature that has developed this year has been the fact that many churches have definitely appointed representatives and a large number of churches have appointed a Convention Committee, charged with the responsibility of seeing that their churches are well represented.

This is most significant, and we believe indicates that many feel that this is a time when the work of the church should be brought to the attention of men as never before, and we believe is going to mean that the convention in Atlanta will perhaps be the most representative that has ever assembled in the history of our church.

As far as the headquarters of the movement can tell now, every speaker whose name appears on the program will be in his place at the appointed hour. No matter in what sphere of service one is engaged, there will be something helpful for him, as the Program Committee has sought this year, not only to make the convention practical, but likewise to give large place for the delegates to be heard and for questions to be propounded from the floor, and to be answered by the best experience of the entire church.

The Executive Committee have been most fortunate in securing reduced railroad rates. This is one of the few occasions to which reduced rates have been obtained for many months, and the Laymen's Missionary Movement is to be congratulated upon having achieved such a marked success in this regard, and it is confidentially expected that these reduced rates will greatly increase the attendance. The movement, in connection with the reduced rates, requests that we state the following, which should be observed by all delegates, as the orders of the Southern Passenger Traffic Committee:

"Full fare going, one-third fare returning, is authorized to holders of certificates or receipts secured from agent selling full fare going ticket to Atlanta, this certificate or receipt to be signed by official of convention and vised by railroad agent. This gives privilege of purchasing tickets going between June 6th to 11th, good returning until June 16th." BE SURE TO GET CERTIFICATE OR RECEIPT FROM AGENT.

Sunday School

By Rev. H. G. Hill, D.D.

OBEDIENCE.

Golden Text—Jno. 15-14: "Ye are My friends if ye do whatsoever I command you."

Matt. 7:16-29.

June 8, 1919.

There is no substitute for obedience to God. Samuel said to Saul "To obey is better than sacrifice and to harken than the fat of lambs." Our Saviour teaches the same thing, and our lesson shows that piety beginning with a Divine change of nature, produces fruit according to that nature, in doing God's will, that nothing short of this will prove real discipleship which Christ will acknowledge, and to rest our hopes of heaven and of Divine favor upon profession and service without sincere obedience is like building not on the rock but on the sand. These teachings are all the more important and valuable because they are authoritative, coming from the Son of God, who certainly knows who are His true disciples.

I. The Tree is Known by Its Fruits.

Its nature is revealed by the products it bears. "A good tree can not bring forth evil fruit, neither can a corrupt tree bring forth good fruit." The same is true of a human being. If he is a depraved being, hostile to God and not submissive to His law, he will not try to do His will, and render Him obedience and service. If he is a regenerate person a "New creature in Christ Jesus," he will try to obey God, and to keep His commandments. Indeed the very first term of Christ's discipleship is "renouncing our own will and enthroning His in heart and life. "If any man will come after me, let Him deny, renounce, Himself." When Saul of Tarsus was converted to Christ his first words as a disciple were: "Lord, what wilt Thou have me to do?" According to the Apostle, we are "Created in Christ Jesus unto good works," and every tree that bringeth not good fruit is hewn down and cast into the fire.

II. Profession Without Obedience.

Profession without performance is vain. "Not every one that saith unto Me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the Kingdom of Heaven, but he that doeth the will of My Father which is in heaven." Our Saviour, too, warns us that many at the last day of final account will be self-deceived, and will claim to be His disciples and to have performed wonderful works in His name, whom He will disown. He declared "Many will say to Me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in Thy Name, and in Thy Name have cast out devils, and in Thy Name have done many wonderful works? And then will I profess unto them I never knew you, depart from Me, ye that work iniquity." Profession leading to many works in Christ's name, without any regard to the Divine Will or sincere obedience to the Divine commands, will not prove discipleship nor save the soul. How vital then is it that a Christian profession shall be verified by habitual obedience to the expressed will of God!

III. Rock and Sand Building.

Christ compares profession of faith in Him, without keeping His Teachings to building a house on the sand. He intimates, too, that as the stability of the house is tested by the rains, floods and winds, so the enduring character of a man's religion will be subjected to severe trial, and that if the foundation is sandy and frail, it will fall into hopeless ruin. If, however, a man builds on a rock, on an avowed faith in Jesus, sustained by a due regard for His sayings and a habitual sincere obedience to His commands, though His piety may be tried by the severest test, it will not be destroyed. Those who rest on the rock of Faith in Jesus and obedience to Him, are upheld by the power of God." They are kept by the power of God through faith unto salvation.

"Tho the righteous fall he shall not be utterly cast down, for the Lord upholdeth him with His hands."

IV. Christ's Authoritative Teachings.

Many things about our Saviour's public instructions rendered them attractive to the multitude. Their profound wisdom commended them to the intelligent and thoughtful. Their clearness appealed to those who were ignorant and dull of comprehension. Their beauty and concrete form rendered them impressive to all classes of hearers. Even the Pharisees, when reproved by His parables, could but admire the force and aptness of His metaphors. But the feature of Christ's teachings that seems most to have impressed His hearers was their authoritativeness. We are told that "They were astonished at His doctrines for He taught them as One having authority and not as the scribes." The scribes or Jewish religious teachers were accustomed to appeal to well-known doctors of the law as sanctioning their instructions and interpretations. But it was not so with Jesus. He appealed to no human authority. He settled truth by His own assertion. Indeed instead of agreeing with human teachers, He often opposed their explanations and doctrines, and put His own authority in direct conflict with their teachings. Many examples of this final authority differing from human assertions are found in Christ's Sermon on the Mount. Here Jesus presents Himself as the law giver expounding His own law and silencing opposition with the words, "I say unto you." It was not wonderful that His hearers said "Never man spake like this man."

Prayer Meeting.

(Continued from page 11)

perishes in any other atmosphere. Such a love does not look upon a daughter born as a misfortune: does not expose girl babies to die or to be eaten by dogs: does not look upon a son as a slave or merely one whose chief end is to add honors to the elders of the family.

Such a love seeks to make out of sons and daughters all that loving care and tactful and able educators can accomplish; and above all such a love yearns to see the children of the home enter into the holy of holies of the Father's love and into the sacred arena of God's service.

It is patient, expectant, hopeful, confiding, companionable—all this without at all sacrificing that necessary authority which inheres in parents for the welfare of their children. Every true revival of religion awakens this love in the parent's heart for the children of the home. But it does not stop here. It calls into life the love of the child for the parent. It is distressing to see about us so much heartlessness in children as regards their parents. One sometimes sees children who lord it over their parents. Again one sees sons and daughters whose only regard for their parents is selfish and material. Their only relation to the home is: "What and how much can I get out of it?" If it were only convenient they would leave it only too gladly. But when young people are inspired by a deep and permanent and living faith in Jesus Christ, it is very different. Their hearts are then turned to their parents; and of course to their brothers and sisters. This is so true that one ought to doubt seriously his interest in Christ if he have no love to the parents and the other children of the household. Love is the heart and center of a Christian home. Of course, all the members of a home are frequently not Christians: the father or the mother may be either a nominal Christian, or an unbeliever; and some of the children may be mere nominal church members or outspokenly unbelievers. But the principle holds as far as the really Christian members of the family are concerned. Love is the heart of Christianity; and if we be truly Christ's then we will love one another. How sweet and blessed such a home. There ought to be earnest prayer and a widely concerted movement to the end that such homes may be multiplied—to the glory of God and to the vast enlargement of human welfare and happiness.

Devotional

PRAYER IS COSTLY.

Is it true that we are too cowardly and too stingy to really pray? O, yes, the majority of us have ventured into a form of prayer, feeling no sense of danger or personal expense in the innocent zone of formality. And there is no danger of financial cost or personal sacrifice there, but there is great moral danger ever lurking near the prayer rug of the formalist.

But what about the season's earnest, heart-searching, agonizing communion with the Lord God of heaven and earth? Do we dare venture into such holy of holies with our Lord and in the secret of His presence, where no mortal ear can hear and no curious eye can see, talk to Him in perfect sincerity of heart about our lives and His plans for us? Do we dare tell Him to cleanse us and use us where He thinks best for bringing His kingdom to earth? Do we dare speak to Him face to face with honest hearts about unsaved friends and the lost multitudes in heathen lands? With no reservation in mind or heart do we dare do it?

It may prove to be a costly hour in our life. Brainerd prayed for the savage red men of the forest, and it cost him fearful hardships and a premature death. Carey began praying for the conversion of the world, and God thrust him out to help answer his agonizing prayer. David Livingstone prayed for China. Then he prayed for God to send him to the help of China, and he was so earnest about it that God ventured to send him to a harder and more dangerous field than China. He went gladly, but at a fearful cost.

Sabbath after Sabbath we heard a mother, a widow with one precious child, try to pray for the lost children of Africa as she led a group of bright children in a mission study of the Dark Continent. But her prayers were weak, faltering and formal. At last, with that company of innocent, trusting children kneeling around her, with her own precious one held close to her heart and with tear-stained face uplifted toward heaven, we heard her with sobs, but with a note of triumph in her voice say: "Dear Lord Jesus, we pray for your poor little ones in the dark regions of Africa who are without light and love and home and God. We pray that you may send some of these children in the coming years to help them. And, Master, you may send my own precious child if you see best to do so." We who heard felt that her prayer would some day cost her the child of her heart, but that her Lord and Saviour would be glorified in many other lives thereby.

Reader, will you dare spend an hour with your Lord in telling Him of the need in your heart or of the evil in your life? Will you venture to spend a season with Him telling Him how you are burdened about his lost sheep? Will you in all sincerity speak to Him about the fearful need of service and money in your Church? Will you dare challenge God to do as He sees best with your life and your possessions, let it cost what it may? Will you?—Rev. C. W. Hardon, in Nashville Christian Advocate.

Many of us would love to have sin taken away. Who loves to have a hasty temper? Who loves to have a proud disposition? Who loves to have a worldly heart? No one. You ask Christ to take it away, and he doesn't do it. Why does he not do it? It is because you wanted him to take away the ugly fruits while the poisonous root remained in you. You did not ask him that the flesh should be nailed to his cross, and that you should henceforth give up self entirely to the power of his spirit. Do you suppose that a painter would want to work out a beautiful picture on a canvas which did not belong to him? No. Yet people want Jesus Christ to bestow his trouble upon them in taking away this temper or that other sin while as yet they have not yielded themselves utterly to his command and his keeping.—Andrew Murray.

Home Circle

THE PERIL OF OVER-FACILITY.

"I tossed that essay off in a half hour. I had been so busy that I left it until the last moment, and as I had no time to look up references on the subject, I trusted to memory for my quotations and proofs. It is just possible that I may gain a high mark for this work. I have been successful several times in winning one hundred per cent when I have been pushed into a corner and have had to hurry through an examination without being prepared."

The youth of sixteen, who was talking to a friend, had a quick, mobile face, bright with intelligence and a manner alert and eager. His friend, who was older than himself, looked grave as he listened to the recital of the haste in which an important essay had been written for a prize competition and then said: "I am afraid, Dick, that in days to come you will regret your gift of facility. In the long run it is the fellow who takes pains and who knows his subject thoroughly who gains the prizes of life. Your cleverness may help you to win in a school contest, but if cleverness is allied to shallowness and if your mental discipline is imperfect you will get on very slowly when you are in business or a profession."

Whenever and wherever you see splendid work done with precision and without error you may take it for granted that the one who accomplishes it has had long and careful training. The rule holds good in every vocation. The boy who tosses off the task in the hope that he may hit on the proper answers, the boy who trusts to a certain quickness in catching a suggestion here or there is, of course, superior to the one who stoops to cribbing and deceit, but he is not doing wisely for himself and he is mortgaging his future.

Young people dislike to acknowledge that their success in study costs labor and close attention. They often speak with complacency about the ease and rapidity with which they perform the work of the classroom, yet in the department of sports and athletics they do not object to continual practice and strenuous training. The man who wins honors as a runner, who is known far and near for his skill in baseball or football, the man who handles an oar or a sail to perfection, has not in any case arrived at finished grace and scientific accuracy without arduous drill. The training that fits a youth to serve his country in the army or the navy is rigid and severe. The same thing may be said of the training of the mining engineer, of the railway official and of the judge on the bench. Everyone whose work in this world counts for something in the public eye or for private advancement has been obliged to serve a careful apprenticeship.

Facility of toil and study is an altogether different affair from facility that discounts honest endeavor. When a student declares that he has not opened a book, but if called upon in a recitation will make a bluff in the right direction, it is to be hoped that his bluff will bring him disappointment. The pity is when success is gained undeservedly.

This is not an argument for mere plodding. What we need to cultivate in ourselves is poise and balance. We want the rounded life. Each must work according to his temperament. To put the emphasis or effort on that which is for us most difficult, and never to trust to haste and dash are the indications of good judgment and common sense.—Forward.

The psalmist tells us that "the fool hath said in his heart, No God, no God." It was a fool who said it, and even a fool had to say it in his heart, for even a fool's head knew better than that. Atheism, of whatever kind, is a freezing void, an arctic breath, a lifeless life, an atmosphere in which no wing can soar, no heart can beat, and no soul rejoice. Atheism can transform a rare day in June into a raw day in January.—R. S. MacArthur.

Presbyterian Standard

PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY AT CHARLOTTE, N. C.
ESTABLISHED JANUARY 1, 1858.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, $2.50 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE.
REV. W. L. BOGGS, Circulation Manager.

A Religious Newspaper for the Family, Devoted to the Interest of Christ's Kingdom as Represented by the Southern Presbyterian Church.

Entered at the Post Office at Charlotte, N. C., as second class matter.

CONTENTS OF THIS ISSUE

EDITORIAL—	PAGE.
Dr. Alexander to Dr. Smythe.....	2
Sidelights on the General Assembly.....	2-3
CONTRIBUTED—
The Labor Movement in England—By R. E. Ma- gill	4-7
The Sanctity of the Sabbath—By Rev. J. A. Cali- gan	5-8
Come Over and Help Us—By Harrison A. May- nard	6
A Correction—By R. T. C.....	7
The Sin of the World—By Rev. S. F. Tenney.....	7
Forgiveness	8
A Statement From the Home Mission Committee— By Rev. Homer McMillan, D.D.....	9
The Twin Meetings in Atlanta.....	9
A Courtesy to Our Foreign Missionaries at Winona Lake	10
That Meeting in Atlanta.....	11
DEPARTMENTS—
News of the Week	10
Christian Endeavor—By Rev. S. H. Hay	11
Prayer Meeting—By Rev. C. D. Waller	11
Sunday School—By Rev. H. G. Hill, D.D.	12
Home Circle and Devotional	13
Church News, Etc.	14-19

ANNOUNCEMENT.

 The label on the paper gives the date to which subscription is paid.

When change of address is desired, give both the old and the new address.

Church News

Collections for June are for Home Missions. Treasurer,
A. N. Sharp, 1522 Hurt Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

The collections for June in the North Carolina Synod are for Synodical Home Missions, as ordered by the Synod.
The Synod further orders that one good, well-announced collection be taken in each Sunday School for this work, in June. Treasurer: Rev. A. W. Crawford, Greensboro.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

Since the spring meetings of Presbytery, ministers who have changed their post offices and Foreign Missionaries at home on furlough, will please notify me at once of their present addresses, that I may mail properly their copies of the Minutes of our recent Assembly.

Spartanburg, S. C. Thos. H. Law, Stated Clerk.

PERSONALS.

Rev. H. M. Pressly's address is changed from Live Oaks,
Fla. to Elizabeth City, N. C.

Mr. R. E. McClure, a student at Union Theo. Seminary, is doing evangelistic work during the summer months. His address is Cooleemee, N. C.

THE YOUNG PEOPLE'S CONFERENCE.

When the Synod of North Carolina planned a Conference for Young People and appointed Rev. J. G. Garth, the Executive Secretary, they did a far better work than they imagined.

Not only did they make a wise selection in the appointment of a secretary, but his committee also did a wise thing in the choice of Queens College as a place of meeting.

Far out from the noise and distraction of the city, yet easily accessible by street cars, surrounded with ample grounds, the college building is housing about 175 delegates and a faculty of 10.

So great is the crowd that the girls, by joining two single beds, are sleeping three in a bed, while the large gymnasium room is fitted with cots where the boys sleep.

The afternoons are devoted to recreation. The Charlotte people on Saturday afternoon will give the delegates an automobile ride. The singing, led by C. F. Carr, of Asheville, is of a decided spiritual nature, while the vesper services, conducted by Dr. A. D. McClure, of Wilmington, are designed to turn the thoughts of all towards spiritual matters.

Taken altogether, the meeting thus far has exceeded all expectations, though as yet it has scarcely begun. We venture to say that the young people who attend will return to their own Churches with a broader vision and deeper faith.

On Sunday next, June 8, Dr. E. W. Smith of our Foreign Mission Committee will make two addresses before the Conference. The Charlotte people are especially invited.

Much credit is due Rev. C. G. Lynch, who, as chairman of the Committee of Arrangements, has added much to the comfort of the delegates.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

Columbia, Woodrow Memorial—After two strong sermons by the pastor, Dr. Thornton Whaling, on the duties of elders and deacons, two elders and two deacons were ordained last Sunday evening.

Columbia, Eau Claire—This church has recently added to its official force two elders and two deacons. Under the efficient leadership of Mr. J. O. Vanmeter, a student of Columbia Seminary, the church is making decided progress.

Columbia—At a congregational meeting of the Arsenal Hill Presbyterian Church Sunday two new elders and four new deacons were elected. June 8th has been set as the date for the installation of these officers, if they accept the election. The new elders are E. C. Bernard and Dr. W. R.
Barron. The new deacons are Reid Stewart, D. T. Faulkenberry, C. O. Cooper and Austin McCreight.

The Synod's Evangelistic Work—Rev. William Black, evangelist of the Synod, closed a good meeting at North Wilkesboro Sunday night, May 25th, assisting the pastor, Rev. C. W. Robinson.

The attendance from first to last was good and the last service found the church packed.

Sixty persons indicated their acceptance of Christ, 13 of whom expressed their preference for the Presbyterian Church.

A downpouring rain prevented some from attending upon the meeting of the session, but nine persons presented themselves and were received into the church at the time.

Nine persons promised to establish family worship and about 250 to read the Bible and pray daily.

A contribution of $184 was made for the Synod's work.
A. W. C.

Florence—During the church year just ended, we have had thirty-two accessions to our membership, six of these on profession of faith, twenty-three by certificate and three by return to the city after a long absence therefrom, which gives us a total enrollment of 505 resident members. For the same period there were seventeen baptisms, six adults and eleven infants.

Our total contributions for all causes for 1918 were $5,760, while for the present year our people have already subscribed $8,322. The benevolences for 1918 amounted to $1,934, while for this year they are $3,621, or nearly double. In 1918 the gifts to foreign missions were $504, while for this year we have $1,127 subscribed, or more than half of the total benevolences of 1918.

We are grateful for these evidences of progress, and feel that they are the earnest of a great future for this church.

Union Church Group—Owing to the neighborhood being sparsely settled with white people, and the great distance from the church that most of the members reside, the Sabbath school of Union Church, in Harmony Presbytery, was almost in a moribund condition. On a recent Sabbath, however, there was a manifestation of new life. A congregational meeting was held, Mr. Henry N. Shepherd was elected superintendent, and, although he lives nearly 12 miles distant from the church, it was felt that his election meant a revived interest in the Sabbath school. One of the elders who owns a church building about 100 yards distant from his dwelling announced to the congregation also that he would soon organize a Sabbath school for those who could not attend any other Sabbath school.

Immediately after the adjournment of the congregational meeting the session met and received four young people into the full fellowship of the church, two of whom received the ordinance of baptism. That same afternoon the pastor baptized ten infants of Union Church.

At Central Church the pastor recently baptized five infants, and at Lake City four infants were baptized and one person a young lady, received into the full fellowship of the church on confessing Christ. In this field of about 240 communicants, 19 infants have been baptized in about five weeks' time.

W. I. Sinnott, Pastor.

NORTH CAROLINA.

Albemarle Presbytery—There will be an adjourned meeting of Albemarle Presbytery, held in the First Presbyterian Church, Raleigh, on Tuesday, the 10th of June, at 11 a. m.

P. McIntyre, Moderator.

Presbyterian Church, Bridgewater—Beginning the morning of the third Sunday in May and closing the evening of the fourth Sunday, the pastor, Rev. W. T. Wadley, preached a series of fifteen sermons to appreciative audiences though at times, on account of much rain and mud, the attendance was small. But when the weather would let up a little, the attendance was larger than had been known for many years at a meeting in this church. The people seemed to have a desire to hear the word of the Lord, but the weather was such that it was next to impossible for many to come.

The visible results did not meet the expectations of some. However, Christians generally were revived, many non-Christians manifested a desire to be saved, one middle-aged man and prominent in the community was received into the church on profession of faith, and six children were baptized. We thank God for these results.

Attention, Young People of Fayetteville Presbyterial—Remember the dates, June 17th, 18th and 20th. Remember the places, Manchester, Center and Jackson Springs. Remember the opening hour, 10 a. m. Appoint your delegates to attend the rally nearest you. Societies are invited to attend en masse. We hope every society, of whatever name, will be represented at one of these rallies. The dinner will be good, and the program will be better. Bring a picnic basket.

Remember Manchester, June 17th; Center, June 18th, and Jackson Springs, June 20th.

Mrs. D. H. Shaw, Sev. Y. P. Work.

Lumberton—Last Sabbath we elected three additional deacons, Messrs. J. D. McAllister, Regan McIntyre and A. V. Wishart.

Rev. G. E. Moorehouse, Ph.D., has been pastor of this church for the past three years. During that time he has preached 500 sermons and 55 members have been added to the church. His annual salary three years ago was $1,500. During the three years his salary has been raised twice, and he now receives $2,000, with nice manse near the church. One of the most convenient and elegant houses of worship in Fayetteville Presbytery has been erected and paid for during his pastorate. Our church this year is trying to raise for all purposes $4,500, while the Sunday School has agreed to raise $500 for benevolent causes.

We learn from a history written by the late J. A. McAllister that this church was organized in 1852 by Rev. J. P. McPherson with 13 members; that the first Presbyterian church in Robeson county was Raft Swamp, now Antioch, five miles above Red Springs, now Hoke county, established in 1757 by Rev. James Campbell. A call was given to him in 1758, which was the first call given to a Presbyterian minister in North Carolina. "In 1812 the Presbytery of Fayetteville was cut off from the Presbytery of Orange with only five ministers."

M. G. McKenzie.

Ida Mill Church, Laurel Hill—Rev. Charles R. Bailey, pastor. This church has recently enjoyed a visit from Rev. John C. Bailey, of Rock Hill, S. C., who delivered a missionary address on "The Japanese, the Britons of the East." The address was illustrated by maps and charts and Balopticon pictures. These pictures showing glimpses of the country, the people, the customs and the religious rites of the Japanese were especially enjoyed by the children.

At the Richmond Mill Village, in the bounds of this congregation, the pastor has a regular preaching appointment. A week's meeting was recently held there in which Rev. C. B. Craig, of Laurinburg, preached. The congregations were good and there was quite a deal of interest manifested. Some 25 children and 15 grown people signified their desire to love the Lord Jesus by giving the preacher their hands. It was found that there were more than 330 children out of Sunday school in the village. In view of this fact since the close of the meeting a Sunday school has been organized at this place with Mr. Edwin Morgan, president of the mill, as superintendent. The Sunday school had an initial attendance of 75 people and begins its work with good prospects.

ARKANSAS.

Ouachita Presbytery met in Womble, Ark., May 8. The opening sermon was preached by Dr. C. P. Bridewell since the moderator, Rev. J. Walter Cobb, had removed from Ouachita to Arkansas Presbytery. Fifteen ministers and fifteen ruling elders attended.

Officers: Ruling elder, A. L. Compton, of Bingen Church, moderator, and Ruling Elder W. R. White, Jr., of Prescott Church, temporary clerk.

Received: Rev. J. L. Adams was received from Washburn Presbytery.

Dismissed: Candidate Stewart R. Oglesby, Jr., was dismissed to East Hanover Presbytery. He is to have charge of the church in Oxford, N. C., after his graduation from Union Seminary.

Dissolution: The pastoral relation between Rev. John Stanly Thomas and the El Dorado Church was dissolved. Mr. Thomas is now supplying the Scotland Church near Junction City.

Call: The call of the Mount Holly Church for the pastoral services of Rev. James W. Marshall for all his time was placed in his hands and accepted by him. Rev. John T. Barr, Rev. J. A. Stanley and Ruling Elder A. H. Whitmarsh, of Texarkana, were appointed a commission for his installation.

Arkansas College: Rev. W. S. Lacy, president of Arkansas College at Batesville, presented the cause of that institution. It is nearly as well situated financially as any evangelical institution in the whole State. It is proposed that no one be employed for the head of any department for less than $1,800 per year. The endowment fund has reached about $90,000 with $40,000 more pledged. About $954 was contributed by Ouachita Presbytery for the current expenses during the past year.

Presbyterial Sermon: Rev. J. C. Williams, D.D. preached the Presbyterial sermon on "The Second Coming of Christ." The next sermon is to be preached by Rev. E. D. Brown on "Infant Baptism."

Pastors' Salaries: The stated clerk, in obedience to Presbytery's instructions, had written to all the churches urging increases in salaries. His report showed increases in Arden, Bingen, Hope, Iona, Malvern, Marlbrook, Prescott, Scotland and Stamps churches.

Christian Education: The Student's Loan Fund committee was discontinued, its work being merged with the work of the committee on Christian Education and Ministerial Relief. Its funds are to be administered from the office of the Executive Committee in Louisville, Ky. Sabbath for "Arkansas College Day" was appointed for June 22.

Home Missions: All home mission churches were urged to attain self-support which was interpreted to mean $1,200 as a minimum for a single man and $1,500 for a married man. In a year of exceptional difficulty the home mission churches have had an encouraging growth.

Overture: An overture to the Assembly was sent asking that the report blanks be made of such mechanical form that they may be filled out on a typewriter.

Systematic Beneficence: There is a marked increase in the offerings for all the benevolent causes of our church. If a special gift of the Texarkana Church for Arkansas College last year be deducted, the increase for this year would be $24,245 over last year. Especially is this increase noticeable in the reports of the Women's Societies. These increases are no doubt the direct result of the $3,000,000 campaign last year. Rev. LeRoy Thompson was re-elected Presbyterial Manager.

Through the hospitality of Rev. John T. Barr, our host, and his faithful associates in the Womble Church, Presbytery enjoyed a refreshing season during the recesses as well as during the services. The Womble Church has made strides in the last five years as is shown by their annual report.

Next Meeting: Mount Holly Church in the country was chosen as place of next meeting, October 8.

Jas. W. Marshall, S. C.

ALABAMA.

Birmingham, Third Church—We have received an invitation to attend the services connected with the thirtieth anniversary of the pastorate of Rev. J. A. Bryan, which takes place June 1, 1919. Mr. Bryan is one of the most devoted and best beloved men in our church, and it would give us real pleasure to pay our respects to him.

GEORGIA.

Columbus—Rev. William P. McElroy, a chaplain of the 30th Division, just home from France, filled the pulpit of the First Church the first Sabbath of May. He was heard with peculiar pleasure, being the son of our pastor. His address for the present is 1029 Fourth Avenue, Columbus, Ga.

Pryor Street, Atlanta—A very successful revival of ten days has just been closed at the Pryor Street Church during which there were 28 additions to the church, making a total of 58 for the year so far. The pastor, Rev. J. Edwin Hemphill, was ably assisted during this revival by Rev. Robt. M. Stimson, pastor of the Gordon Street Church. A special feature was the baptism of ten children on the Sunday afternoon of the close of the revival. It is a fact to be noted that the attendance on the night services at this church are large, and extra seats have had to be provided. The mission work of this church at Lakewood Heights is booming with an increasing interest shown in a growing attendance.

C. F. Allen.

Valdosta—May 14-18 the Presbyterian Church of Valdosta celebrated in delightful manner its semi-centennial, which was also the tenth year of the new church building and the tenth year of the pastorate of Rev. Dr. Bitzer. At the first service of the celebration greetings and felicitations were brought the pastor and the congregation by the pastors of the other churches in Valdosta; on Thursday evening Dr. Neal L. Anderson, of Savannah, made a fine address on "What Presbyterians Believe; the Doctrine of Grace Stated;" Friday evening the Woman's Auxiliary of the church served a banquet to the men of the church, which proved a delightful occasion with after dinner speeches and special music; and on Sabbath evening Dr. Anderson preached the anniversary sermon on "What Presbyterians Believe; the Doctrine of Grace Defended."

Its fiftieth anniversary finds the church in a healthy condition; 20 members have been received recently into its membership, and a substantial appreciation of the pastor has been shown in the form of an increase of $300 in his salary.

KENTUCKY.

Transylvania Presbytery met at Danville, Ky., April 15, and at the request of the Moderator, Elder J. B. Paxton, was opened with a sermon by Rev. C. A. Ray.

Officers—Rev. C. A. Ray, moderator, and Elder J. R. Sterrett, temporary clerk.

Candidate—Mr. F. W. Candill, a student of Centre College, from Letcher county, was taken under care of Presbytery as a candidate for the ministry.

Licensed—Mr. A. E. Dallas, a student of the Louisville Theological Seminary, was licensed as a probationer for the Gospel ministry.

Received—Rev. J. J. Rice, from the Presbytery of Ebenezer, and the following order was taken for his installation as pastor of the Harrodsburg United church, on the second Sabbath of May, viz.: President W. A. Canfield, of Centre College, was invited to preach the sermon; Rev. W. M. Eldridge to preside, propound the constitutional questions, and deliver the charge to the people; Rev. Clyde Sheltman to deliver the charge to the pastor.

A bequest amounting to $844 was received by the will of the late J. L. Edmonds, of Lebanon, Ky., for the work of Home Missions in the Presbytery.

The Committee of Home Missions presented a very encouraging report, and the following recommendations were adopted: 1. That all our pastors be urged to watch for opportunities of increasing the scope of the work of this committee, either by the organization of new Sunday schools, or by locating new preaching places, or by any other sort of evangelistic work which may properly come under the committee's care, the time having come for a forward step in the work of Home Missions in this Presbytery. 2. That Presbytery urge that ten per cent of all the benevolent gifts of our churches be sent to this committee. 3. That special stress be laid on the work of evangelism during the coming year, and that as far as possible evangelistic services be held in each of our churches.

The Foreign Mission report presented a comprehensive view of the work, and the following recommendations were adopted, viz: 1. That sessions make the effort to place the "Missionary Survey" in every home. 2. That as missionary education in the Sunday schools has been definitely approved and urged by three consecutive General Assemblies, we again call the attention of sessions and superintendents of Sunday schools to this matter; that each Sunday school observe Foreign Mission Day and take an offering for this cause.

Christian Education and Ministerial Relief—The following recommendations in the report were adopted: 1. That the churches be called upon for continued prayer for a larger number of capable ministers. 2. That special prayer be made at this time for the families of those candidates for the ministry who have given their lives in the service of their country, and that other young men may be raised up to take their places.

Fall Meeting—Paint Lick church the first Tuesday of September, and Rev. J. J. Rice was appointed to preach a sermon at that meeting on Family Religion.

E. M. Green, S. C.

Louisville Presbytery—An adjourned meeting of the Presbytery of Louisville was held May 6, 1919, at the Presbyterian Theological Seminary, Louisville, Ky.

Licentiate H. J. McGehee was dismissed to the Presbytery of Red River.

An overture was forwarded to the General Assembly asking for a closer co-ordination of the Home Mission agencies of the church and a presentation of a large plan of action worthy of the faith, effort and resources of our Church.

Licentiate E. W. Newland was received from the Presbytery of West Lexington. He accepted a call to the group of churches composed of Carrollton and LaGrange. Licentiate Thomas Brewster accepted the calls of the Glasgow and Munfordville Churches. These two men were examined with view to ordination.

Commissions were appointed to ordain and install Mr. Brewster as follows. At Munfordville, Rev. A. A. Higgins to preside, preach and propound the questions; Rev. L. O. Spencer to charge the pastor; Rev. W. H. Hopper to charge the people; Ruling Elder H. A. Watkins; alternates, Rev. W. T. McElroy, W. B. Lile and Ruling Elder C. C. Winston.

At Glasgow: Rev. A. A. Higgins to preside and propound the constitutional questions and charge the people; Rev. L. O. Spencer to preach the sermon; Rev. W. H. Hopper to charge the pastor; Ruling Elder Norris Warder. Alternates, Rev. W. T. McElroy, Rev. W. B. Lile and Ruling Elder E. Y. Kilgore.

Commissions were appointed to ordain and install Mr. Newland as follows at LaGrange: Rev. G. R. Hemphill, D.D., to preside, propound the constitutional questions and charge the pastor; Rev. A. Killough to preach the sermon; Rev. A. M. McLaughlin to charge the people; Ruling Elder F. W. Simpson. Alternates, Rev. D. M. Sweets, D.D., Rev. H. H. Sweets, D. D., Rev. W. R. Anderson and Ruling Elder J. A. Crabb.

At Carrollton: Rev. A. M. McLaughlin to preside and propound the constitutional questions and charge the people; Rev. C. R. Hemphill, D. D., to preach the sermon; Rev. A. Killough to charge the pastor; Ruling Elder F. W. Simpson. Alternates, Rev. W. R. Anderson, Rev. D. M. Sweets, D.D., Rev. H. H. Sweets, D.D., and Ruling Elder J. A. Crabb.

Rev. W. R. Anderson was appointed to preach the Presbyterial sermon at the Fall meeting of the Presbytery.

The Presbytery adjourned to meet at the call of the Moderator.
W. H. Hopper, Stated Clerk.

LOUISIANA.

New Orleans—Rev. Dr. A. R. Shaw will supply the pulpit of the First Church till July 15. Dr. Cornelson is recuperating in South Carolina.

Presbytery of New Orleans met at Kentwood, La., April 22, with 16 ministers and nine elders present. Moderator, Rev. Dr. J. N. Caldwell; Temporary Clerk, Geo. Battalora.

Rev. Geo. D. Booth was received from the Presbytery of Meridian and Rev. Dr. J. W. Caldwell dismissed to the Presbytery of Atlanta to take effect May 16, Presbytery reluctantly accepting his resignation after a pastorate in the Carrollton Church of 23 years.

A commission was appointed looking to the consolidation of the Third and Esplanade Churches.

The Presbytery will seek to secure a Sunday school worker for its territory by correspondence with the Richmond Committee.

The Presbytery approves the plan suggested by Elder Spillman of obtaining the quota in the campaign for benevolence, but is not prepared to endorse his "clearing house" plan, though it sees features in it worthy of future consideration.

An adjourned meeting will be held Tuesday, May 6, at 11 a. m., in the First Church, New Orleans.

Next stated meeting, Tuesday, October 21, at 8 p. m., in the St. Charles Avenue Branch of the First Church.

Louis Voss, S. C.

TEXAS.

The Presbytery of Fort Worth met in the First Presbyterian Church of Cleburne, Texas, April 14, 1919, at 8:30 p. m. There were present during its sitting seventeen ministers and seventeen ruling elders.

An institute on Sabbath Schools and Young People's Work occupied the evening of the first and the morning of the second day.

Officers: Rev. E. A. Lindsey, Moderator; Rev. T. M. Cunningham, Temporary Clerk; Rev. S. J. McMurry, Permanent Clerk.

Schools and Colleges: The Synod's Committee made a report on the coming Every Member Canvass for this cause. The Presbytery endorsed the plan.

Licentiate S. Brooks McLane was dismissed to the Presbytery of Western Texas.

Received: Rev. Julian S. Sleeper from the Presbytery of Central Texas, and order taken for his installation at Hillsboro on May 11, 1919.

Commissioners changed: Rev. A. F. Carr, D.D., resigned and Rev. C. M. Dellinger was elected principal in his stead and Rev. G. L. Smith was elected alternate.

Taken under care of Presbytery as candidate for the ministry, Mr. John E. McLean, Jr. Presbytery has now eight candidates, three of whom are still in France.

Home Missions: Work last year crippled by war conditions and the epidemic. Three thousand two hundred and ninety-five dollars thus far pledge for the work this year. Committee instructed to increase the salary of all Home Missionaries to $1,500 per year as soon as possible.

Foreign Missions: Presbytery addressed by one of its own members, Rev. C. H. Smith, missionary at Yencheng, China.

Dissolved: The pastoral relations between Rev. T. M. Cunningham and the Stamford Church.

Presbyterial sermon preached by Rev. S. J. McMurry on "the Scriptural Form of Church Government."

Societies: In the Presbytery there are 23 Women's societies, 17 Young People's and two Men's and Boys'.

Systematic Beneficence: Total raised during the year, $22,033. Twenty-three churches report an Every Member Canvass.

Increase of Salaries of all ministers to be brought before every church by a special committee. North Fort Worth, College Avenue, Cisco, Graham and Weatherford Churches granted permission to increase pastor's salary.

Time and place of next meeting, September 9, 1919, 8:30 p. m., at Throckmorton, Texas.

The delightful hospitality of the pastor and people of the First Church of Cleburne and the courtesy of its two daily papers was highly appreciated by the Presbytery.

C. L. Altfather, Stated Clerk.

VIRGINIA.

Olivet, near Staunton, Va.—Olivet closed on Sunday night, May 25th, a two weeks meeting which proved to be the most wonderful meeting she has ever had, from the standpoint of wonderful conversions. From the standpoint of numbers the meeting two years ago was greater, but not from the standpoint of what might be called wonderful conversions.

This time there were twenty-six professions, with several other professions of Christ on the part of church members, and quite a large number of reconsecrations. Among the twenty-six were three mothers, of which one was also a grandmother, and six fathers. Among the number there were four from each of three families. Men and women came forward to accept Christ who had been prayed for by loved ones and friends, and appealed to in public and private for years and years. Never before in the history of the church, nor in the short ministerial experience of the pastor who was doing the preaching, has the power of God to save been so powerfully manifested. The influence of parents over children was graphically shown when at one service after a mother came to accept Christ, three of her sons followed, one of whom was in the church, and a daughter came at a later service. A man and wife accepted Christ at one service, and at the next one two sons and the wife of one son also professed their faith in Christ.

Fourteen have already been received into the church and others will be received next Sunday, June 1st.

The Presbytery of Winchester met in the Opequon Church, Kernstown, Va., Tuesday, April 22, 1919, at 8:00 P. M., and was opened with a sermon by the retiring moderator, Rev. B. H. Franklin.

There were present 24 ministers and 19 elders. The Rev. A. N. Perryman was elected moderator, and the Rev. T. A. Painter, temporary clerk.

Three ministers were added to the roll, Rev. W. G. Greenlees, who had been ordained by a commission since the last meeting of Presbytery, Rev. J. Hodge Smith, and Rev. A. F. Eddins, from other Presbyteries.

Milldale Church was added to the roll, having been recently organized.

The Presbytery adopted a new plan for Benevolent offerings, in accordance with which the churches will be asked to send their Benevolent funds monthly to the Presbytery's treasurer of Benevolences. They will be further requested not to designate special objects, but to send the whole Benevolent fund to be distributed among the various causes by the Presbytery's treasurer according to the percentages adopted by the Presbytery. In cases where churches or societies have made pledges to special objects, these funds will be sent to the objects designated. The Rev. C. D. Gilkeson was elected Treasurer of Benevolences for the ensuing year, and he will send to the churches a full explanation of the plan.

The report of the Home Mission Committee showed the work to be in excellent condition, with every field acceptably filled, and the largest receipts for the support of the work in the history of the Presbytery.

The general state of religion throughout the Presbytery has features both of encouragement and discouragement. The increased liberality is recognized by the churches as a manifestation of the Holy Spirit's power, but this is offset by a decline of interest in family religion and by the very small number of additions on profession of faith. In view of these and similar conditions the committee on Evangelistic Work was authorized to designate a day of special prayer in all the churches, and the churches are asked to devote the coming year largely to evangelistic effort.

Orders were taken for the installation of Rev. J. L. Rogers at Tuscarora, Rev. L. Cook Campbell at Berkley Springs and Duckwall, and Rev. J. Hodge Smith at Nineveh, Milldale, Cedar Cliff and Cedar Creek.

The Presbytery gave its consent to the amendment to the Book of Church Order, in regard to candidates for the ministry, as proposed by the Assembly in its overture.

An overture was adopted asking the General Assembly to undertake some definite work for the evangelization of the Jews.

The Presbytery's organization for the Progressive Program was continued, and Rev. C. D. Gilkeson was re-elected manager.

A public meeting in the interest of Foreign Missions was held, and Rev. Henry M. Woods, D.D., of China, delivered a strong and interesting address. Dr. Woods has been engaged to visit the churches of the Presbytery during the next few weeks.

The people of Round Hill Church co-operated with the people of Opequon in the entertainment of Presbytery, and the hospitality of both congregations was unbounded. They are enthusiastic about their new pastor, Rev. J. S. Kennison, and the work is prospering.

Presbytery will meet next with the Berkley Springs Church, on Sep. 2, 1919. J. A. McM., S. C.

Martinsville.—At a meeting of the Session of Anderson Memorial Church, held May 11, 1919, the following resolutions, offered by Elder E. L. Williamson, were adopted and ordered to be inscribed in our minutes, and copies furnished the Henry Bulletin and our church press for publication:

Resolved, by the Session of the Anderson Memorial Church:

1. That as our beloved pastor, Rev. Wm. P. McCorkle, has resigned the pastorate of this church, we feel impelled to express our appreciation of him as an able, consecrated and highly cultured minister of the gospel, sound in doctrine and with a mind well stored with knowledge.

2. That he has labored faithfully, earnestly and efficiently as pastor of this church for twelve years, adapting his ministrations to all classes, and has accomplished a vast deal of good. Under his ministration the church has made steady and substantial progress, and he is specially beloved by those who have known his sympathetic ministrations in the house of affliction.

3. That both he and his beloved wife have greatly endeared themselves to a large circle of friends whose hearts will be made sad at giving them up. We desire also to bear our testimony to the fact, that Mrs. McCorkle has ably seconded her husband in the work of the church, being a gifted teacher in the Sunday School and a most zealous and tactful worker in the societies of the church, as well as a most attractive and honored member of our social circle.

4. That our most earnest prayers shall follow them as they leave us, and we ask that our Heavenly Father, who is the giver of every good and perfect gift, may abundantly bless them in all their future.

Done in Session, this 11th day of May, 1919, Teste:
Jas. L. Stultz, C. of S.

WEST VIRGINIA.

Huntington—The First Presbyterian Church sent to Presbytery its report for the last year, which shows gratifying growth. One hundred and thirty-five new members were received, giving a total membership of 1,109, with an enrollment in the Sunday School of 781.

The gifts for all purposes total $51,491, of which amount $22,550 were for benevolent causes. The report of the various societies showed:

The Ladies' Aid with membership of 130.....	$1,487
The Gleaners with membership of 112.....	1,221
The Missionary Society with membership of 105....	1,396
The Young People's Societies with membership of 82	222

The pastor, Dr. Mauze, has been granted time to raise the balance of the $50,000 necessary to secure the gift of Mr. Davis of 600 acres of farm land and $50,000 for the establishment of an orphanage near Lewisburg. Forty-three thousand dollars of the $50,000 necessary has already been subscribed.

Educational

QUEENS COLLEGE.

On Tuesday, May 27th, this College closed a very successful year.

On Saturday, May 24th, there was a domestic art exhibition, which reflected credit upon the teacher.

On Sunday, the 25th, the baccalaureate services were held in the First Presbyterian Church, Dr. A. A. McGeachy preaching the sermon.

On Monday there was an art exhibit, class day exercises and a grand concert in the evening.

The commencement exercises proper came off on Tuesday. Dr. John Henry MacCracken, president of Lafayette College, delivered the address. Certificates and diplomas were given to the following young ladies:

Bachelor of Arts: Elizabeth Adelaide Brown, Mary Helen Liles, Margaret Elizabeth Rucker, Elizabeth Sloan, Margaret Virginia Wilkinson.

Domestic Science: Annie Price Carr, Clara Elizabeth Henderson, Mary Elizabeth Wearn.

Art: Mattie Harlee Townsend.

Expression: Lavinia Elizabeth Boyer, Minnie Bachman Doar.

Certificate in English: Mary Dixon.

Certificate in French: Beatrice Otterlie Denham, Alwilda Van Ness.

Certificate in Domestic Science: Margaret McQueen, Mary Elizabeth Morrison.

Certificate in Expression: Margaret Faye Kidd.

Post-Graduate in Expression: Elizabeth Adelaide Brown.

STILLMAN INSTITUTE.

Stillman Institute is now rapidly approaching the end of its forty-second year of useful existence. In spite of the unusual difficulties, experienced in common with all other schools, this has been one of Stillman's very best years. There will be nine graduates, two from the Theological School and seven from the Normal School. Rev. Robt. H. McCaslin, D.D., of Montgomery, Ala., will preach the commencement sermon and Dr. W. H. Sheppard, the Y. M. C. A. sermon, Sunday, May 25th, at 3:30 p. m. and 8 p. m., respectively. Rev. Homer McMillan, D.D., of Atlanta, Ga., will deliver the graduating address Tuesday night, May 27th.

A large student body of high class men is expected next term. Provision is already being made to meet the demands. A sixty-acre farm adjoining the present property has been purchased that the students may put in their spare hours at profitable labor. A new residence will be erected on the grounds to meet the needs of the faculty. All of the dormitory rooms are being overhauled and refurnished throughout. Improvements, too, are being made in the courses of study.

The Executive Committee of Home Missions, which owns and controls the institution, seems to be doing everything in its power to increase the efficiency and usefulness of this very important department of its work.

In connection with the closing exercises of Stillman and running through May 30th, Snedecor Memorial Synod will
(Continued on page 22)

Woman's Auxiliary

WHY NOT AN ECHO MEETING?

Montgomery Presbyterial, always alert and wide-awake in promoting efficiency, has just had an "Echo meeting" of the Presbyterial, which convened this Spring.

Some Presbyterial officers living in Lynchburg were not willing that the influence of the wonderful annual meeting should cease when that meeting closed, so they decided to take to the home churches in Lynchburg as much of the meeting as possible. One of them writes as follows:

"We have just had a most successful 'Echo meeting of Montgomery Presbyterial' in Lynchburg—a joint meeting in one of our five Presbyterial churches. We had borrowed all the Presbyterial wall charts for the occasion and had them displayed conspicuously. By the way, we are leaving them on the walls over Sunday, that all may read. The entire program was in charge of the delegates who attended the Presbyterial, each one reporting some phase of the meeting. Reports were made of the outstanding features of the Presbyterial program, and each Lynchburg Society gave its own report which it had rendered to the Presbyterial."

"Of course we had simple refreshments for the social hour, at the close and the Sunday school room was bright with flowers. Our offering, quite a good one, went to a Presbyterial object in which we were all interested. The meeting was so successful that we plan a City Presbyterial Union, with three meetings during the year: In the Fall, a union meeting, with a home mission speaker, preferably a woman; in the winter, a foreign mission meeting, with a woman missionary speaker; and in the Spring, a Presbyterial Echo meeting. The churches will each in turn be hostess church for these meetings. We believe it is going to mean much for the advance of the work of the societies in our city."

There are many cities throughout our church which could profitably follow the above plan, and the situation is only awaiting the initiative of some far-seeing and hard-working woman who will start the movement.

In February there was effected in the First Church at Charlotte, N. C., a County Presbyterial Union, which included in its membership every Society or Auxiliary in the county. Such organizations make possible the rapid and effective passing on of information and policies to the local groups and mean much to the growth of the work. How about your town? Is there such a possibility there?

May 27, 1919.

(Signed) H. P. W.

ATTENTION, NEW SECRETARIES.

Throughout the entire Auxiliary many new officers have been elected, both in Synodicals, Presbyterials and local Auxiliaries. Some of these secretaries are entirely ignorant of the duties of their office.

We have a special leaflet for each Cause Secretary, as well as for the Recording Secretary, and each new officer should have this leaflet at hand.

Send two cents and the name of your new office and we will forward you this leaflet and other free literature. Do it now!
(Signed) The Woman's Auxiliary,
520 Delmar Building, St. Louis, Mo.

YOUR LITERATURE TABLE.

Every Auxiliary meeting should have good missionary literature distributed.

If you have a literature table, so much the better. It is not well to have too much on it, but its contents should be well selected and fresh each meeting.

In order to encourage this feature of the meeting, we are making the following generous offer: for 25 cents per year.

Every society using the Year Book of Programs which desires free literature on the subject they are studying for that day may procure this for a year by sending us 25 cents for postage and telling us the average number in attendance at their meetings. We will send each month, at the time the Year Book literature goes out, a package of interesting leaflets for free distribution.

(Signed) The Woman's Auxiliary,
520 Delmar Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.

Marriages and Deaths

Marriages.

Bowling-Northcott — In Rocky Mount, N. C., at the home of the bride's mother, May 17, 1919, by Rev. H. N. McDiarmid, Mr. William H. Bowling and Mrs. Anna A. Northcott, both of Rocky Mount.

Deaths.

IN MEMORIAM.

Rev. T. J. Allison.

On Thursday afternoon, May 22, Rev. T. J. Allison died at the Presbyterian Hospital, of Charlotte, after a long illness which he bore with Christian fortitude.

Several months ago he came to Charlotte from Florida, acting upon the advice of his physician, Dr. C. C. Wilson, who saw that he needed a cooler climate.

He was born in Cabarrus County, May 30, 1849.

His first wife was Miss Jeanette Tillett, daughter of Rev. Jno. Tillett and sister of C. W. Tillett, of Charlotte. She died in September, 1897, leaving the following children, T. T., C. W. and H. J. Allison, all of Charlotte; J. C. Allison, of Raleigh, and J. H. Allison, now with the Marines in Cuba.

June 15, 1899, he was married to Miss Bessie Neely, of Salisbury, N. C., who survives him.

April 1, 1919, Mrs. Allison came from Lakeland, Fla., and up to the time of his death she was his special daily nurse at the hospital, and was with him in his last moments.

Mr. Allison was educated at Davidson College and the Union Theological Seminary, Virginia.

Between 1877 and 1891 Mr. Allison held pastorates at Rockingham and Lumberton, Mebanesville and the Third Creek and Fifth Creek churches near Elmwood.

In 1891 Mr. Allison engaged in evangelistic work in the Savannah, Ga.,

Presbytery. From this work he was called to the pastorate of the First Presbyterian Church at Decatur, Ala. After four years of successful work there, he accepted a call to Sugar Creek Church, remaining as pastor eight years. From there he went to Asheville to take charge of work in that Presbytery, residing at Bryon City.

Going to Florida for his health he did much hard work there.

As pastor of Sugar Creek Church and evangelist of Mecklenburg Presbytery, he was widely known in this section, and had many friends.

For a short time he was connected with the Presbyterian Standard.

He represented an element of our ministry that has always made its influence felt. So that their death is always a distinct loss, both to the Church and the community.

We have known him for over 40 years—as a man of keen mind and warm heart, and who in a quiet way did much to build up our waste places.

J. R. B.

Children's Department

VASES MADE OF SHELLS.

Dear Standard:

I am a little girl nine years old. We have just had a visit from my Uncle. He has come home from France and he brought us two beautiful vases made from shells. One he picked up in Verdun and the other in Argonne Forest. I love to read the stories in your paper and the letters the other children write you. Your little friend, Janie McDiarmid.

Fayetteville, N. C.

TO RIDE HORSE BACK.

Dear Standard:

I am a little girl nine years old. I am in the fourth grade at school. We have our preacher living with us. His name is Rev. James Lapsley. I go to Sunday School every Sunday I can. I go to Nahala Presbyterian Sunday School.

We have a little pony, black and white. I want to learn how to ride horseback. I will close by telling Bessie Kelly a short Bible verse. God is love.

Your little friend,

Louise Van Landingham.

Scotland Neck, N. C.

A SURPRISE LETTER.

Dear Standard:

I am a little girl twelve years old and I go to Sunday School every Sunday.

My teacher's name is Mrs. Etta Downer. I like her fine. And my Uncle is our Superintendent. Our Pastor is Mr. Goodman. I want to surprise my little friends. Your friend, Shannon, N. C. Willa Conoly.

'BOUT BIG AS A MINUTE.

Dear Standard:

I am a little boy five years old and have a baby brother, John Guyton Farmer, nine months old. Also a fox terrier dog named "Tip," 6 years old. He's not much bigger than a minute and can stand on his hind legs and beg.

I'm in the infant class at Sunday School. Mrs. Townsend is my teacher who tells us the most beautiful Bible Stories. My favorite song is "How Precious is Jesus" and I love to sing all the Sunday School songs.

I love to play soldier so much. I had three Uncles to go to France. One was killed and is lying 'way over the ocean.

I have lots more to say but for fear my letter will reach the waste basket I must close. Your little friends,

Jim Farmer, Jr.

N. Anderson, S. C.

EMMY MAY'S ROSES.

Emmy May, was a little girl who was very fond of flowers, so when mamma said she might have a rose bush for her very own, she was greatly delighted. Mamma had quite a little garden, which papa looked after, and kept in fine condition. The roses were especially lovely and Mr. Bradley took much pride in them and enjoyed attending to them when he came home from work.

One beautiful morning in the early summer Emmy May came to her mother, looking rather downcast.

"Well, dear," said mamma, "what's happened, has Pussy refused to play with you, or has Peter growled when you pulled his tail?"

Emmy laughed. "No, mamma, but—I want to earn some money, all the girls are making money. Lucy Dean sells candy, and Mary Allen helps with the ironing, you know they've such a big family, an' Grace does errands for her uncle, and, oh, they're all making money for the po' little starv'n' children, an' I—I haven't made a cent." And here Emmy May's voice trailed off into a wail.

"Oh," said mamma, "I see."

"I've thought of a plan," said Emmy May, slowly, "I thought maybe I could sell some of my roses, the bush is just full, an' I could make them into bunches an' take them down to the gate, an' maybe some of the people who go by would buy them."

"Why, yes," said mamma, "perhaps they would."

Although Mr. Bradley's home was in the city, he possessed more ground than most people, and the old-fashioned house stood well back from the street. Emmy May ran to get a basket and a pair of shears, and soon she was cutting the beautiful roses and making them into bunches. There was a green bench near the gate and Emmy May sat down, carefully shading her flowers from the sun. Everything was very quiet out here away from the city's smoke, for Mr. Bradley's home was some distance out. There was no pavement in front, only a plank walk. The street car stopped just a little farther on. Emmy May liked to watch them as they went by.

Presently a tired-looking woman came quite close up to Emmy May's gate. She looked a little doubtfully at the approaching street car.

"Does this car go right straight to the city?" she asked.

The little girl nodded "Yes'm."

"But I have to take it farther back, don't I?" said the woman. Then she caught sight of the roses and she almost jumped.

"Oh, dear, what lovely flowers! My land, but they're exactly like what I got at home. I guess my rose bush is all lit up with 'em by now."

She put out a thin hand and touched one of the bunches.

"My, but they're sweet," she breathed.

"They're mine," said Emmy May, proudly; "they came offen my rose bush."

"Did they now?" said the woman, smiling; "well, it does hearten me up to smell 'em—seems like I ain't so far from home after all."

"Oh!" cried Emmy May, "are you lonesome for home?"

The woman nodded; tears were in her tired eyes.

"You take this bunch along with you," cried the little girl, "I want you to have it."

When the woman had thanked her warmly and gone on, Emmy May counted her bunches. There were five left.

"I'll make fifty cents anyway," she said to herself.

Just then she looked up. A little boy stood outside the gate; he held a bundle of papers.

"Say, kin I smell your posies? I'm goin' to git the next car, but I thought maybe you'd let me smell 'em; I bin watch'n' you."

"They're for sale," said Emmy May, "but"—she looked at his thin, keen face, his eager eyes—"but I reckon you can have that bunch," she added.

His lace glowed. "Honest? Kin I have 'em?"

"Yes," said Emmy May, gravely. To herself she thought, "I'll have forty cents, that'll be enough."

She watched him as he sprang on board the car, shrilly selling his wares; she saw how tenderly he shielded his roses. "I'm taking 'em to my mother," he had said; "it'll be a breath of the country to her."

After that no one passed for some time and Emmy May grew quite sleepy sitting there in the sunshine. Then suddenly she opened her eyes with a start. A girl about fifteen or more stood looking at her.

"How long 'fore the next car come, Kid?" said she.

Emmy May regarded her steadily; she did not like to be called "Kid."

"They run every ten minutes out here," she replied.

"Oh, they do; then I've just missed one. Say, may I see your flowers?"

Emmy May handed her a bunch through the palings. The girl looked at the exquisite roses; she gently touched the delicate petals. Suddenly she dropped the flowers and buried her face in her hands. Emmy May could see that she was crying. The little girl was frightened, but she put out a timid hand. "Oh, please don't cry," she said.

The girl stopped and picked up the bunch of roses and held them out to Emmy May.

"If I had any money 'cept'n' my fare, I'd buy 'em of you," she said, brokenly.

Emmy May looked at her and somehow it came to the little girl that her roses were needed here even if there was no money to pay for them. She gathered up the bunches and thrust them towards her companion.

"I want you to have them," she cried, "they're mine."

The girl looked at her in astonishment. "Bless your little heart!" said she. "No, I won't take but one bunch, an' I won't forget you, little one."

She looked back to wave to Emmy May, tears in her eyes. Emmy May looked at her remaining three bunches, they were beginning to droop a little.

"I'm afraid I won't make very much, after all," she moaned, sadly. A gentleman who had alighted from the car came up to the gate. He smiled at her.

"I'm afraid your posies are fading," said he, "but I'd like to have a bunch to take my little girl, who is sick; she is lame and can never play with the other children, but she loves flowers."

"Oh!" said Emmy May, "how dreadful not to be able to run. Take her these from me, an—tell her I'm—I'm so sorry." She put the three bunches in his hands.

The gentleman looked at her, his voice was very low when he spoke:

"Thank you, my dear, and, yes, I will tell her." He stooped and lifting Emmy May's little brown head, kissed it reverently. Then he lifted his hat and went away. Emmy May stood staring after him, then all at once she jumped, for her mother's voice sounded quite near her.

"Well, darling, how much have you made? I see all your roses are gone."

"Oh, mamma, I—I haven't made anything," began Emmy May. Then she started, for there on the bench lay a bright shining dollar. Emmy May stared, bewildered. She leaned over and touched it gently. "It's a really, truly dollar," said she, "an' I'll never, never know where it came from." And she never did.—S. L. Bacon in Advance.

THE PLUM JAM BONNET.

Little Lucy Harding has been helping her mother make plum jam. As Lucy was only seven she could not help a great deal, but as she thought she did she was perfectly happy. Most of the time she sat on a little stool in the corner of the big kitchen and licked the spoons and her fingers with a very red little tongue, and so she succeeded in getting most of her face covered with the sweet, sticky juice.

"Now, Lucy," said her mother. "I must go over to Aunt Caroline's to see how her cold is, but you are so sticky and dirty that you can't go. You must stay right here, and don't eat any more jam, but look at your picture books till I get back."

Then her mother washed Lucy's face and hands and left her for a little while alone in the house.

Lucy did not mind being alone; in fact, she rather enjoyed it. She wandered about, and at last she peeped into the big box where her new bonnet was packed away. Lucy was going to wear that bonnet for the first time on the very next day. It was of white straw, with a pink lining, and it had pink roses on top of it; and, best of all, it had beautiful pink-satin ribbon strings to tie in a huge bow under Lucy's chin. It really was a very grand bonnet indeed.

Lucy lifted it from its box, and said to herself, "Oh, my!" as she turned it over and looked at its pink beauty. "I guess it wouldn't hurt it if I put it on," she said; so she put it on top of her yellow curls and smiled at herself in the long glass. "I must not tie the ribbons 'cause they'll muss up," she said, as she smoothed them with her hand.

Then she thought she heard mother coming and went to look, but no one was in sight down the long, white road. So Lucy went downstairs to see how her bonnet looked in the sitting-room mirror. "My!" she said to herself. "I guess the other children will wish they had a bonnet like mine!"

Then she went to the pantry to get a cooky, and there she found the jam. "Mother said not to touch it," said the good little voice in little Lucy's heart. "Mother won't know," said a bad little voice. "Mother will feel bad," said the good little voice.

But the bad little voice was the louder, and so Lucy took a little, teeny-weeny taste, just enough to see if it tasted the same as it had tasted in the morning. Then she wanted to see if the next glass tasted just like the first one, and so she took another little, teeny-weeny taste; and before she knew it, she had eaten so much plum jam that she did not want any more, and she began to feel sick.

But she ran to the glass to see how her bonnet looked, and there she found that her face and hands were sticky and that purple stains covered her chin. So she climbed to the sink to wash her hands and face, and, looking down, she saw that a dreadful thing had happened.

Educational.

(Continued from page 19)

meet and the Colored Ministers' Annual Bible Conference will be held. The opening sermon of the Synod will be preached by Rev. R. M. Golightly, retiring Moderator, Sunday, May 25th, 11 a. m., in Salem Presbyterian Church. Many distinguished speakers have been secured for the conference. Among many others are: Drs. Homer McMullan, C. M. Boyd, J. A. Bryan, John Little, Judge A. S. Van De Graff, Mr. J. S. Lambert, and Drs. W. H. Shepard, Spencer Jackson, I. H. C. Champney, L. J. Washington, McKinzie, M.D., etc., etc.

The week of May 24-30 should prove for all the colored ministers of our church a week of happy Christian fellowship, inspiring religious instruction, and mutual helpfulness, and for the colored people of Tuscaloosa, a week of unusual privilege and opportunity.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES OF ARKANSAS COLLEGE.

The baccalaureate sermon of Arkansas College will be delivered Sunday, June 1st, by Rev. Henry H. Sweets, D. D., of Louisville, Ky. Rev. Leroy Thompson, pastor of First Presbyterian Church of Hope, Ark., will deliver the sermon before the Y. M. C. A.

The annual contest between representatives of the Philomathean and Erosophic Literary Societies will be held June 2nd. The Board of Trustees will meet in annual session 10 a. m., June 3rd, and the alumni banquet will be the feature of the evening.

The baccalaureate address will be delivered June 4th, at 10 a. m., by Hon. H. L. Ponder, of Walnut Ridge, Ark. Both Mr. Ponder and Rev. Leroy Thompson attended Arkansas College.

This has been another year of marked progress in the history of the institution, and with high hopes and good cheer the friends and alumni of the College will assemble to enjoy the commencement exercises.

OGLETHORPE UNIVERSITY.

Announcement is made that Dr. Henry Alford Porter, pastor of the Second Baptist Church of Atlanta, will preach the commencement sermon of Oglethorpe University in the auditorium of the First Presbyterian Church of Atlanta on Sunday morning, June 8th, at 11 o'clock.

This will be the third commencement sermon of Oglethorpe and the exercises will commemorate the ending of the third collegiate year. While a small group of men have completed their credits entitling them to their degrees, no diplomas will be awarded by the University until 1920, at which time the Freshman class, who began their student life at Oglethorpe in the Fall of 1916, will be graduated.

Announcement is also made that Oglethorpe University is now operating on an all the year round basis, the calendar year consisting of four terms of approximately three months each, the work during the Summer term being especially designed for teachers who desire standard college courses, offering credits on college degrees. The Summer term at the University will open on July 8th, the regular faculty being in charge of instruction.

Oglethorpe is closing a brilliant year, both financial and academic. Many large gifts have been made to the institution during this period, notable among them $50,000.00 from Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Lupton; $5,000.00 from Mr. and Mrs. John King Ottley, and $5,000.00 from Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Lesh.

The student body has also been the largest in the history of the institution and the athletic and other inter-collegiate records have been matters of congratulation and encouragement to all the friends of the institution.

BELHAVEN COLLEGE.

Belhaven College, Jackson, Mississippi, has just closed the best year in its history. The commencement exercises were held May 17-20. On May 17 was the exhibition of Fine and Domestic Art. On May 18, at 11 o'clock, Dr. A. A. Little, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Meridian, preached the Baccalaureate sermon, presenting Christ as the ideal. At 8 o'clock Dr. Little preached the sermon before the Y. W. C. A.

On May 19 the Senior Class Day exercises were held in the morning, and from 1 to 3 p. m. the home-coming luncheon was enjoyed by many of the former students of Belhaven. In the evening the students in Music and Expression gave a fine concert which showed faithful work that had been done in these departments.

On May 20 Dr. C. H. Williamson, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Memphis, delivered the literary address on the subject of Efficiency. The diplomas were delivered by the president to nine full graduates, four graduates in Home Economics and to one in the commercial department.

The college has been under the efficient management of Dr. W. H. Frazer for two years and has made gratifying progress in every way. The attendance has increased by 40 per cent, the college property has been much improved and enlarged by the building of an annex, and in other

Her beautiful bonnet strings were stained purple, just like her chin. For six inches each string was a dull, ugly, purple color.

Lucy tried to scrub and rub and wash the strings, but they looked very bad when she ran up to put the bonnet in the box.

As she finished putting it away, she heard her mother's step in the hall and ran downstairs to meet her.

It seemed to poor Lucy that mother must see the word "jam" written right on her face. But no, mother said nothing at all about jam, but went into the pantry and got supper ready. She never even mentioned jam. She went upstairs too, and Lucy wondered if she saw the poor, ruined bonnet strings. If she did see them, she said nothing. She went about her work as she did every day at supper time.

Lucy ate her supper with father and mother as usual. Nothing happened. She played with her little yellow-and-white kitten after supper, and still nothing happened. Mother did not tell father that she had made jam. Bedtime came, and mother tucked her little girl into bed, but said never a word about jam.

Then the next morning church time came. Lucy, with tears in her eyes, looked at those rumpled, faded, stained pink-satin ribbons, lying in the box. Then, very slowly, she dressed for church. She could not bear to tell. She could not bear to wear the bonnet.

But a queer little voice away down in her heart said to her:

"Lucy, you disobeyed your mother. You stained your own bonnet strings. Now you must wear it. That will be your punishment."

So when Lucy's mother came in to put the bonnet on, Lucy never flinched. Mother said, "Now, Lucy, we'll put it on," and she tied it under the little girl's chin, and never said a word about the dark, ugly spots on the ribbon.

Poor little Lucy cuddled up to her father's great rough coat as they drove to church. She never spoke or smiled, and once or twice tears came that she slyly wiped away. A very meek and quiet little girl sat close to her father in church, and a very quiet little Lucy went into Sunday school, where she chose the darkest corner all by herself, so that no one would see those ugly, dark stains.

For one month Lucy wore that dreadful bonnet to church and Sunday school. Then, one beautiful morning, when she lifted her bonnet from its box, she could hardly believe her eyes. She rubbed them and looked again. There was a pair of lovely fresh new strings sewed on her bonnet, and on one was pinned a little note that read:

"For a brave little girl, who can take her own punishment."
—Marion Willard, in The Youth's Companion.

ways, and the financial profits have been most gratifying, exceeding by far the best report of any previous year. The most important feature of the institution is its high Christian tone and its excellence in all that contributes to the building of noble Christian womanhood.

DAVIDSON.

The character of the eighty-third annual commencement of the College coming to a close May 28th marked the fact that the institution has recovered entirely from the disorganization created by the entrance of the United States into the world war and the call of both professors and students to war work service of various kinds. Conditions are again normal and save for the absence of Dr. Thos. W. Lingle, who will remain in the Y. M. C. A. for some weeks yet, stationed at Camp Meade in charge of the religious work of the camp, and the presence of Lieut.-Col. J. W. McConnell in uniform and many of the soldier alumni gathered to take part in the exercises of the season, there was nothing to indicate that a year ago the outlook was dark and that in the fall with the feign of the S. A. T. C. the College was little more than an army post of youthful soldiers.

Commencement proper was featured by the able and thought provoking address of Dr. J. M. McCracken, president of LaFayette College. His subject was "Defining the College Man Anew." After a pleasing introduction setting forth the bonds of sympathy and friendship that unite Davidson and LaFayette, Dr. McCracken argued in persuasive and convincing style that the war has taught us in no uncertain tone the importance of having an objective.

In the absence of President Martin, who is still in the South, but rapidly regaining his strength, as all are glad to know, Rev. Dr. W. L. Lingle, president of the Board of Trustees, presided.

The B.S. degree was conferred on 15 men, the A.B. on 21, the M.A. on 3. The degree of D.D. was conferred on Rev. D. P. McGeachy, of Decatur, Ga., in absentia; Rev. T. W. Thompson, Knoxville, Tenn.; Rev. B. R. Lacy, Atlanta, Ga.. The LL.D. was conferred on Dr. J. P. Munroe, of Charlotte.

Dr. Lingle announced the election to the chair of English of Professor E. F. Shumate, of the University of Virginia, a graduate of William and Mary, and M.A. of Columbia University, New York, and soon to take his doctor's degree at the University of Virginia. He further announced that the trustees had ordered an appreciable increase in the salaries of the officers and professors of the College for the coming year.

The salutatory (second honor) was delivered by Emery Flinn, of Atlanta, the valedictory (first honor) by E. A. Woods, of China. The representatives of the senior class delivering orations on Tuesday were: E. G. Lilly, W. M. Currie, R. D. Hall, O. P. Hart, Mr. Hall winning the orator's medal.

Representatives in the Junior contest speaking the same evening were: D. W. Roberts, H. P. Brown, D. M. Chalmers, A. L. Wilson, W. F. Hall, C. A. McGirt, the medal going to D. M. Chalmers.

The scholarship alumni medal (limited to Freshmen) was won by J. M. Richards, the Bible medal by E. A. Woods.

Tuesday of commencement is always a crowded day. Special features of the day were the memorial meeting held in the afternoon in the church, in which a beautiful address, touching, appealing in its pathos, and yet brightened and lighted up by inspiring thoughts of patriotism, self-sacrifice, heroism in life and in death, thoughts given expression in artistic and sometimes poetic form.

At the alumni meeting, the largest possibly in attendance in many years, there was an hour or two of good fellowship and of good eating. A number of returned soldier boys and officers, among them "Fighting Parson" Lacy, Major Irvin Graham, Captain Reid Morrison, Lieut.-Col. J. W. McConnell, made brief talks. Mr. Robert Miller, of Charlotte, was re-elected president, Mr. Lacy, vice-president, F. L. Jackson again secretary and treasurer. The "Davidsonian" was given a great boost, the athletic association endorsed with liberal subscriptions and in other practical ways, and Coach "Bill" Fetzer in absentia notified that Davidson would not hear of his entertaining attractive offers coming to him from other institutions bidding for his services. Davidson will not and cannot give up her most popular and most excellent head of athletics.

Sunday, baccalaureate day, despite the clouds and rain of the morning, in the excellence of Dr. J. L. Mauze's practical sermon of counsel and of exhortation and Dr. Lilly's deeply spiritual sermon before the Y. M. C. A. but the earnest and promise of a commencement season of merits many and shortcomings none, save for the absence throughout the days of too many of the lower classmen who had hurried home with the close of examinations. So marked has become this practice of early departure that the Board of Trustees have asked the faculty to use their best efforts to check an evil growing here as at so many other institutions of learning.

Medals won this year are as follows in the Phi. and Eu. Societies, respectively: Declaimer's, A. L. Currie, Houston White; debater's (Fresh.-Soph.), J. K. McKeithen, A. P. Ormond; Junior-Senior, D. M. Chalmers, E. A. Woods; essayists, D. M. Chalmers, R. T. Liston; debater's emblems, W. M. Currie, E. G. Lilly; E. Flynn, R. D. Hall; alumni debating cup, Phi. Society; athletic trophies (class championships), baseball, class of '20, football ———; track, class of '21. This last a beautiful gift from L. Richardson, class of '14. O. D. K. medal, E. G. Lilly.

AGNES SCOTT COLLEGE.

The session recently closed has been the most remarkable in the history of Agnes Scott College. The enrollment for 1918-1919 reached the high water mark of 388—the utmost capacity of the College for both boarders and day students. Last summer and autumn it was necessary to refuse enough other applications to fill an additional large dormitory if it had been available.

The boarding capacity of the College—300 students—was reached more than a month ago for next September. The applications with paid registration fees are already in hand. Of course some of those now enrolled will drop out and a few additional ones thus get in; but the College is reaching its capacity three months earlier than ever before, and it means that probably 200 well prepared young women will apply for entrance without being able to secure rooms. The condition affords food for serious thought as to whether or not Agnes Scott should be enlarged.

Agnes Scott College graduates this year the second largest class in its history. Two are student volunteers for mission work; eight will go into Y. W. C. A. or other social service work; three expect to continue studying in advanced work; and most of the others will teach. All are church members, and nearly all have been active in the Christian work of the college.

CHRISTIANSBURG INDUSTRIAL INSTITUTE.

A notable feature of the fifty-third commencement exercises of the Christiansburg Industrial Institute was the address of Mrs. H. C. Winsbrough, of St. Louis, Mo., to the graduating class.

Mrs. Winsbrough was invited to make the address not only because of her well known success as the head of the Woman's Auxiliary but because Anna Long, the wife of the principal of the school, was a member of a notable conference for colored women, held at Tuscaloosa, Ala., last year by Mrs. Winsbrough.

Plans are being formulated to hold a similar conference in Christiansburg in September. If successful, delegates would be in attendance from Virginia, North Carolina and Tennessee.

W. H. Woods.
Christiansburg, Va.

Miscellaneous

FIFTEEN HOSTESS HOUSES IN FRANCE

On the first of January there were seven Y. W. C. A. Hostess Houses in France. Now there are fifteen such houses and the one criticism of the work, according to Margaret Cook, of Troy, N. Y., director of this branch of the Y. W. C. A. overseas, is the inadequacy of the houses to care for all American women with the A. E. F.

The most pretentious is the Hostess House at Chaumont in the chateau which was formerly General Pershing's headquarters. The chateau was taken over by the Y. W. C. A. as the only suitable place available for a Hostess House.

The smallest of these houses is the one at Neufchateau, which has done more emergency work in proportion to its size than any other in France. Sleeping accommodations for six guests have been expanded to take care of as many as twenty when that many nurses were unexpectedly forced to spend the night there.

The le Mans Hostess House is the favorite of the army. It is a big house set in the middle of a large garden which is open to enlisted men and officers alike and is accordingly crowded with khaki uniforms both day and night as thousands of American troops are at this port at all times waiting to sail for home.

The newest of the Hostess Houses is the women's club at Nice which was opened on request of the officer commanding the southern leave area in order to furnish a comfortable place for American women to stay while on leave.

One of the best known is the house at Coblenz which will be open until the Army of Occupation leaves Germany.

HENS MOULT FAST.

E. J. Reefer, the poultry expert, has discovered a scientific product that hastens the moult and revitalizes the organs of the hen and puts her in fine laying condition. The tonic is called "More Eggs" and a package of it is enough to carry the ordinary chicken raiser over the entire moulting season. First to say is first to pay. "Since using 'More Eggs' I get forty to fifty eggs a day, instead of eight or nine," writes A. P. Woodward, of St. Cloud, Fla. A million dollar bank guarantees that you can have your money back if you want it. So, you don't take any risk. Send $1.00 for a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic. If you want to hurry the moult and get more eggs, act at once; it means more profit for you. Don't wait, but order today. Send $1 today to E. J. Reefer, 4th Floor, Poultry Bldg., Kansas City, Missouri. Or ask Mr. Reefer for his valuable poultry book free, that tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry.

SERVANT PROBLEM PUZZLES ENGLAND.

Because of the scarcity of servants, England is flooded with schemes for daily servants and servants by the hour, says Ruth Clark, British Y. W. C. A. worker, in a letter recently received at headquarters of the National War Work Council of the Y. W. C. A. in New York.

"These schemes have every element of success," Miss Clark says. "The only drawback is that girls cannot be found to take them up, whereas mistresses are clamoring at the doors. The problem is acute and a solution must be found which will tempt girls who have been in industry to return to domestic service. Conditions being offered now seem attractive enough, very fair and just, and proclaim a revolution in the status of this type of service.

"The general unrest, which was inevitable, will, I believe, soon settle down. Meanwhile it is splendid fun to watch things grow happy again. In the old days London was a walking hospital for wounded soldiers, but now there are few to be seen. Hundreds are getting back into mufti again.

"All over the place houses are being painted. Next month the butter ration goes up to two ounces a week. Cream buns and fruit are reappearing in the shops. The newspapers have grown fat again and there is going to be a wonderful season."

WHEN WRITING OUR ADVERTISERS PLEASE MENTION THIS PUBLICATION

SUPERIOR SOX BY MAIL FROM MILL to YOU

Our Sanitary Knitting Mill is as near you as your letter box. Save retailer's and middleman's profits. We manufacture the best sox, in medium weight, full length, any size, and in seven colors. Our sox are made of the best grade yarns, double heels and soles, and are the best "sox quality" at the price in U. S. A. Prices per dozen pairs: Lisle No. 1, $2.35; Lisle No. 2, $1.65; Combed Peeler No. 1, $2.10; Combed Peeler No. 2, $1.35.

Be sure you state grade, size and color when you order. Buy your Sox by the Box and Save Money. We do not sell less than half dozen pairs to a customer. We Guarantee Safe Delivery. Your order will be shipped same day as received. Our sox are perfect fitting, long wearing. Remit with order to ROYSSTER KNITTING MILLS - SHELBY, N. C.

JUST MILK

and

JELL-O

Ice Cream Powder

without cooking and without adding anything else, make the finest Ice Cream.

Dissolve the powder in the milk and freeze it. That is all there is to do to make Ice Cream in the new and easy way.

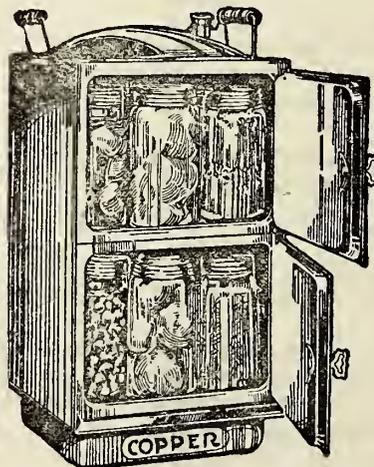

Anybody can do it.

Made in five kinds: Vanilla, Strawberry, Lemon, Chocolate, and Unflavored.

Two packages 25 cents at grocers'.

THE GENESEE PURE FOOD COMPANY
Le Roy, N. Y.

THE TOLEDO STEAM COOKER and CANNER

Here is a household convenience and economy that should be in every home. Cooks an entire meal over one burner of any style stove, besides being one of the finest and simplest canning devices ever used. The price is only $11 f. o. b. any town in North or South Carolina.

W. T. McCoy & Co.
Charlotte, N. C.

THE HOME OF GOOD FURNITURE

POULTRY EXPERT GIVES AWAY CHICK FOOD

To introduce to the poultry raisers of this section a Chick Food that is nationally known, E. J. Reefer, the Poultry Expert, 3rd Floor Poultry Bldg., Kansas City, Mo., is giving away free a one dollar package of Chick Food absolutely free to every poultry raiser who agrees to tell his neighbor about it. This medicated Baby Chick Food is sold on an absolute guarantee to raise chicks for six weeks and it is backed by the National Reserve Bank of Kansas City. Send Mr. Reefer one dollar and he will not only send you one regular dollar size package of Chick Food, but he will include in the same shipment an extra package absolutely free, which means he will send you two regular full size dollar packages of this scientific medicated Baby Chick Food for only one dollar. And he will prepay all the charges on the first order. Considering that this product is guaranteed by the National Reserve Bank and that it keeps baby chicks for six weeks, every poultry raiser should certainly try this scientific medicated Baby Chick Food without further delay. It will pay you to write Mr. Reefer today.

FOR RENT—Furnished cottage at Montreat. Close in. Address P. O. Box 545, Fayetteville, N. C.

PARALYSIS ABROAD.

American Machinery is the only thing that can bring a quick peace to Europe, according to American business men who have completed tours of various sections abroad. The vast army of unemployed is being increased daily by the demobilization of the military forces. In England more than a million people are receiving regular grants from the government, amounting to a total of more than $5,000,000 a week, because of their unemployment. In Belgium there are 800,000. Holland is supplying her crowd of unemployed with subsidized food. The conditions grow worse as one goes from Italy to Poland and then to Czechoslovakia. The farmers of Roumania have no horses to till their vast fields, even if they had seed enough to plant them. The destruction of machinery by wholesale has been one of the terrible activities of the German armies wherever they went. Now the whole industrial world, built up through the busy last few decades, finds itself without a job in Europe. Machines alone can make these jobs again, and America is the only country in the world with the material and equipment to turn out the machinery in large quantities. There is a need in Europe for large amounts of rolling stock and for raw materials, but the most needed thing is the machine.—Continent.

Cancer Treated Successfully at the Kellam Hospital

The record of Kellam Hospital is without parallel in history, having restored, without the use of the Knife, Acids, X-Ray or Radium, over ninety per cent. of the many hundreds of sufferers from cancer which it has treated during the past twenty-two years. We want every man and woman in the United States to know what we are doing.

KELLAM HOSPITAL, 1617 W. Main St., Richmond, Va.

The McCallie School

A Home School for Boys

On historic and beautiful Missionary Ridge. 1000 feet above sea level. Sound preparation for college and technical schools. Boys live in Christian homes. Our Honor System is conspicuously successful. Student self-government. Large and competent corps of teachers with small classes. Boys are taught how to study. Boys engage in all athletic sports in both indoor and outdoor gymnasiums, or on one of the best Athletic Fields in the South. Diving tower, swimming, rowing at McCallie Lake. Military Drill. Send for well illustrated catalogue.

Headmasters { S. J. McCallie, M. A.
J. P. McCallie, M. A., Ph. D.
 Chattanooga, Tennessee

After Vacation, What?
 To College, of Course!

Y are familiar with Davidson's athletic record;
O know of the success of her debating teams;
U have doubtless thought of the fact that "Pep" and unbounded college spirit, such as characterizes Davidson students, can live only in wholesome campus conditions.
U are acquainted with Davidson alumni in places of responsibility and trust in politics, in business, and in religion.

BUT do you know about the 20 courses Davidson offers; the entrance requirements; the assignment of rooms; the cost of a college education?

Catalogue containing this and other information will be sent free.

Address Davidson College
Davidson, N. C.

HENRY J. HEINZ.

Pittsburgh lost a most loyal and useful citizen on last Wednesday, in the death of Mr. Henry J. Heinz. His illness was a brief one, and he was gone before his friends were alarmed about his condition. For seventy-five years he was permitted to live, and he made his life count in many ways.

By his ability and industry, Mr. Heinz had gained a place of prominence in the business world. Beginning in the smallest way he had developed a worldwide trade, and the products of his factories, the "57 Varieties," were sold in all the markets. The central plant in Pittsburgh has four thousand employees, and there are many branches. Four hundred traveling salesmen are engaged in the firm's business, and both in the United States and abroad tens of thousands of acres are under cultivation supplying the materials which his workmen have been preparing for the tables of the world. Not only did Mr. Heinz have the highest standards for the quality of his products, but he had the highest principles for the welfare of his employers, and there is no better proof of the fairness of his dealings with them and of the pleasantness of their relationships than that no strike has ever occurred in his factories.

Mr. Heinz had one other great business besides preparing pickles and condiments and other foods. He has been known the world over as a leader in the organized work of the Sabbath schools. He has been honored with the most prominent positions among those enlisted in the teaching of the Bible. To this portion of the Church's work he seems to have devoted as much thought and energy as he put into his business enterprises. At great conventions of Sabbath

BARIUM ROCK WATER RELIEVES WEAK AND NERVOUS PEOPLE.

Barium Rock Water is being prescribed by many physicians in the treatment of nervous debility and as a tonic and flesh-builder. They also recommend it in cases of indigestion, dyspepsia, rheumatism, gout, eczema and diseases arising from uric acid poisoning and for disorders of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels.

Mr. J. W. McCoy, of Charlotte, N. C., writes: "I had a violent case of typhoid fever and for three years was a nervous wreck. I was totally unfit for any kind of business. I suffered continually from my stomach. My improvement began with the use of Barium Rock Water and I was entirely cured."

If you are weak and nervous, if you suffer from melancholia, hysteria or are afflicted with any of the above diseases, send $2.00 for ten gallons. If it fails to relieve your case, we will refund your $2.00. It is understood that the empty demijohns are to be returned prepaid. Address Barium Springs Co., Box E-21, Barium Springs, N. C.

STATE COLLEGE SUMMER SCHOOL

(June 10 to July 23)

FOR TEACHERS---FOR COLLEGE ENTRANCE---FOR COLLEGE CREDIT
---FOR CATALOGUE, ADDRESS---

W. A. WITHERS, Director : : : WEST RALEIGH, N. C.

The University of North Carolina SUMMER SCHOOL

THIRTY-SECOND SESSION

JUNE 24-AUGUST 8, 1919

Standard Courses in the regular departments of the University. Special professional and refreshment courses for primary, grammar grade, and high school teachers, principals, superintendents, and supervisors. Cultural and professional courses leading to the B. A. and M. A. degrees. Able corps of teachers and lecturers of national reputation. Unsurpassed recreational and entertainment features. Spacious campus, modern library and laboratory facilities, delightful climate. Highest service. Low cost. Write for complete announcement.

N. W. WALKER, Director, CHAPEL HILL, N. C.

OAK RIDGE INSTITUTE

OAK RIDGE, N. C.

T. E. WHITAKER, PRESIDENT

An old-fashioned Southern school dating from 1852. In its long history it has enrolled thousands from the Carolinas and adjoining states. Preparation that opens the way to bigger accomplishments in college, business, and life. 250 acres in campus, athletic grounds, orchards and farms. Modern school buildings. Steam heat and showers. Library. Military training. Healthful, accessible location near Greensboro. More than a thousand feet above sea level. Sane, moral influences.

Courses thoroughly covering literature, science, teaching, bookkeeping, shorthand and music. Athletics encouraged. All male teachers. Discipline mild but firm. Costs reasonable, $350 for the year. Fall session opens September 9, 1919. Write for illustrated catalogue. Address

Oak Ridge Institute,
Oak Ridge, N. C.

PRESBYTERIAN COLLEGE of South Carolina

One of the most modern and best equipped colleges for men under the control of the Presbyterian Church. Beautiful buildings, strong faculty, high standard of work, broad course, attractive student body, best moral influences, Reserve Officers' Training Corps and strong athletic team.

For Catalogue and information apply to

President Davison M. Douglas, Clinton, S. C.

Chicora College for Women

THE PRESBYTERIAN COLLEGE OF SOUTH CAROLINA

A Standard College of Distinction and Character

Religion and Philosophy

Letters and Science

Home Economics

The Fine Arts

(Music, Art and Expression)

For Catalogue and Information, address

Pres. S. C. BYRD, D.D., Columbia, S. C.

school workers he was a conspicuous figure, and among the host of friends he made through his activities in that important department of the Church's work his wise counsel and cheery presence will be missed sadly.

As a collector of art treasures and curios Mr. Heinz was not so well known, but his collection is said to show great discrimination and to be of rare value. He was a lover of flowers and an unfailing friend of the children and the needy.

In one thing the example of Mr. Heinz might be followed by any others with profit. He had a genius for money making, but he early discovered that money making develops a man into a distorted creature unless it is balanced by the careful giving of money to worthy causes. He recognized his responsibility as a steward of his wealth. With great liberality he responded to a host of appeals when the worth of the philanthropy impressed him.—United Presbyterian.

"THE GRAND OLD MAN OF JAPAN."

An American business man, traveling in Japan, one day noticed a crowd collected around a third-class carriage of a railroad train standing at the station in a small town. He hastened up to see what was causing the excitement, expecting an accident or perhaps a brawl among the humble occupants of the car. Instead, he saw a distinguished, strong-featured man, of decided military bearing despite his threescore and ten odd years—a man clearly out of place among the coolies traveling third class.

This man the little group of Japanese townfolk were cheering, in polite Japanese style. He smiled and returned their greetings cordially. The American business man was puzzled. His curiosity was aroused. He tried to find out who this third-class passenger was who could stir a Japanese crowd to cheers. After some difficulty he found a man who could speak English, and his astonishment was only increased when this man said:

"It's Ebara, the great Christian. He has given away his fortune for Christian work, and now he travels third class."

Gradually the American learned the story, and with it his preconceived convictions about Japanese immorality, hard-heartedness, militarism, Prussianism and imperviousness to kindly altruism melted away. He saw what the example of Jesus Christ was meaning to one Japanese leader of today.

Ebara Soroku has been called the "Grand Old Man," and few in Japan better deserve the title. He is the foremost Christian layman of the Mikado's empire.

He began life as a militarist; he is spending his last days spreading the Gospel with all the eloquence and forcefulness he possesses.—Herald and Presbyterian.

Greensboro College for Women
The A-Grade Woman's College of the Two Methodist Conferences of North Carolina
 Classed in Group A by State Board of Examiners
 Chartered 1838. Confers the degrees of A. B., and B. S., in the literary department, and B. M., in the music department.
 In addition to our regular classical course, special attention is called to the departments of Home Economics, Expression, Business, Art, Education, Sunday School Teacher Training, Piano Pedagogy, and to our complete School of Music.
 Modern new $50,000.00 Dormitory completed 1918. Conservatory of Music to cost $100,000.00 being erected in 1919.
FALL TERM OPENS SEPT. 10, 1919. For further information apply to
REV. S. B. TURRENTINE, A. M., D. D., President, GREENSBORO, N. C.

COLUMBIA THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY
COLUMBIA, S. C.
THORNTON WHALING, D.D., LL.D., President of the Seminary
 Professor of Didactic and Polemic Theology
WILLIAM M. MCPHEETERS, D.D., LL.D.
 Professor of Old Testament Literature and Exegesis
HENRY ALEXANDER WHITE, Ph.D., D.D., LL.D.
 Professor of Ecclesiastical History and Church Polity
RICHARD C. REED, D.D., LL.D.
 Professor of the English Bible and Homiletics
EDGAR D. KERR, A.B., B.D.
 Instructor in Hebrew and Greek Languages
GEORGE S. FULBRIGHT, A.B.
 Instructor in Elocution
WILLIAM M. MILLS, A.B., D.D.
 Instructor in Rural Sociology
J. O. REAVIS, D.D., LL.D.
 Professor of English Bible, Pastoral Theology and Missions
 Our most progressive Theological Seminary, grown from twenty-four to sixty four students in seven years. Full curriculum and special courses in Pedagogy, Sunday School Organization, Missions, Evangelisms, Rural Sociology and Elocution. Scholarships for prepared students. For further information, write to THORNTON WHALING, President.

PEACE INSTITUTE, Raleigh, N. C.

For Young Women

Established 1857

Courses: Junior College. Preparatory to Standard Colleges. Three years Preparatory School, Classical, Literary and Scientific Courses leading to Diplomas. Special Diplomas awarded in Piano, Voice, Art and Expression, Home Economics. Excellent Commercial Course.
Instruction: Specialists in all departments.

LULA B. WYNNE HALL,
 Home School for Girls

Situation: Location in capital city gives special opportunities. Delightful social advantages. Climate permits out-door life all Winter.
Athletics: Supervised indoors and outdoors by Athletic Director. Special attention individual development. Cheerful home-like surroundings. A good school that students really enjoy attending. For room reservation, catalogue or further information, write at once to

Miss Mary Owen Graham, Pres.

THE SOLDIERS ARE DRY.

On December 12, 1917, the late Theodore Roosevelt wrote to Dr. Clarence True Wilson, of the Board of Temperance of the Methodist Church, saying:

"I may mention that my sons who are now in the army in France write me most strongly, just as General Pershing has expressed his public opinion most strongly, as to the harm done to the men of the army by permitting the sale of liquor to them, stating that they believe in absolute prohibition for the army in war time—and one of them adding that his experience has made a permanent prohibitionist of him."

The stay of the American Expeditionary Forces on French territory has made many a prohibitionist. Before they went abroad they were told that nobody ever got drunk in France and that "light" wines were the true solution of the liquor problem. As they return they know that few people in France are really ever sober, and that the universal use of so-called "light" wine drugs a nation until the betterment of living conditions is made almost hopeless.

One marine, commenting upon the effect of universal drinking in France, said: "It makes me heartsick to think of what the French people have to face during the coming years. They have to recover from a terrific shock and they have to do it while kept half asleep by alcohol. They are a wonderful people, and at their best would quickly reach a commanding position of prosperity, but the use of wine has them doped until the mass of the people are content with living conditions that are absolutely startling."

Harry B. Hunt, staff correspondent of the Cincinnati Post, was at Newport News when the boys of Batteries B and C of the 325th Field Artillery landed from France. Mr. Hunt said a number of the boys volunteered opinions on the wet and dry question, and one of them expressed the views of the others when he said:

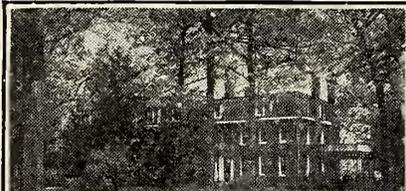

"This talk of the returning soldier helping to overthrow the dry gains is all rot. As a whole, the American soldier has put two and two together and decided that France's lack of development in general living conditions is due largely to the national use of wines and liquors. Nine-tenths of the fellows have been turned against all alcoholic beverages by their experience in France, rather than receiving it more tolerantly."

TEACHERS WANTED—Several vacancies in Grove Institute—Preparatory School for Girls. State subject best prepared to teach, and send testimonials in first letter, with stamp for reply. Inexperienced teachers not considered. W. F. Hollingsworth, Kenansville, N. C.

AGENTS WANTED—To sell the THREE BOOKS OF KNOWLEDGE. Just off the press. You can make money and do good. We have some agents who sell them by the hundreds. Write us today.
J. B. Sanders & Co., Box 239, Cincinnati, Ohio.

ALLEN'S FOOT-EASE DOES IT.

When your shoes pinch or your corns and bunions ache so that you are tired all over, get Allen's Foot-Ease, the anti-septic powder to be shaken into the shoes and sprinkled in the foot-bath. It will take the sting out of corns and bunions and give instant relief to Smarting, Aching, Swollen, Tender feet. Used by the American, British and French troops. Sold everywhere. Don't accept any substitute.

GUILFORD COLLEGE

GUILFORD COLLEGE, N. C.

A coeducational College of the highest type. High standards in scholarship and morals. Christian environment. Confers B. A., and B. S. degrees. Excellent musical training. Domestic Science. Strong Preparatory Department. Able Faculty. Fine Athletic Record. Ten Modern and Completely Equipped Buildings. Large Campus. Healthful Climate. Pure Water. Rates Reasonable. For Catalogue or further information, write

THE PRESIDENT

Individual Cups

Every church should use. Clean and sanitary. Send for catalog and special offer. Trial free.

Thomas Communion Service Co. Box 310 Lima, Ohio

Meredith College

Raleigh

No. 608

For Young Women

Offers four years of genuine college work based upon 14 units of high school credit. Courses lead to A. B. and B. S. degrees. Diplomas in Art and Music after completing four years of work.

Location in center of the Capital City, gives unusual advantages.

Library facilities excellent. Attention to physical education. Charges moderate.

For catalogue or further information write

Chas. E. Brewer, Pres.,
Raleigh, N. C.

The Measure of a College

Elegance of buildings and grounds and wealth of equipment and endowment do not make a college. The REAL MEASURE of a college is found in its ideal—in the personality of its teaching force, and in the quality of its teaching. The real work in education is accomplished by the person. The school can rise no higher than the character of those who give it life.

MITCHELL COLLEGE

maintains a faculty of men and women of strong Christian character and influence, whose qualifications for teaching have been gained by years of thorough preparation and experience. The classes at Mitchell College are small, insuring for each student the utmost benefit of individual instruction.

Well Planned Courses Offered in All College Subjects

Courses of superior excellence in English, Bible, Music, Expression, Home Economics, and Business. The Department of Music is in charge of a graduate of the Hague Conservatory.

Measure These Advantages

Invigorating climate, small classes, efficient instruction, supervised evening study for all, home life, and positive Christian influence; moderate expenses.

A Preparatory Department offering the best advantages is maintained. Catalog on request.

J. M. MOORE, President, STATESVILLE, N. C.

PENNIES FROM THE CHILDREN.

Jim Robinson was foreman of the shop and a good fellow when he got married. Folks could never understand why from a good fellow Jim deteriorated into a soak. Finally he became so bad that some one nicknamed him "Scandalous Jim," and the name stuck. And Jim continued to go from bad to worse.

One evening there was a sensation down in "Scandalous Jim's" neighborhood. In ten years Jim had never refused a drink. Half the time he was drunk. But drunk he was as good a workman as most of his fellows, so he managed to put in about half time, and his family lived from hand to mouth.

"Time for a snifter, Jim; come on," Jake Nease invited that evening.

"Nothing doing," Jim exploded his bombshell. "I'm off the stuff."

Jim went on home, and thereafter he stuck to his job and his resolution. Jim's family shortly began wearing better clothes.

President Davis was the first man to SAVE PIANO MONEY.

The savings in the price of your piano or player-piano, if you purchase it through the Standard Piano Club, is sufficient to pay for two years of instructions under a good music teacher. Or, to illustrate the saving in another way, if you should purchase a similar piano on payments covering three years the Club would save you approximately one year's payments. But the Saving in price is only one of the many advantages offered you by the Club. It gives you absolute protection as to the quality and durability of your instrument. It provides the most convenient and the fairest terms of payment.

You cannot afford to overlook the economies and conveniences incident to ordering your piano or piano player through the Club. You have everything to gain, nothing to lose, by clubbing your order with ninety-nine other Club members in a wholesale order for eight carloads of instruments. You are responsible only for your own purchase, the Club attends to the rest. Write for your copy of the handsomely illustrated Club catalogue today. Address the Managers, Ludden & Bates, Standard Piano Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga.

"Go to Church" Newspaper Advertising Service

Written to induce the other sixty million people of America to attend church. Weekly matrix service. Three column nine inches. Artistic borders, striking typographical arrangement. Copy endorsed by leading ministers. Churches of each city should unite in paying for running these ads on Saturday in every daily in America. Write for first series of twenty-six ads. The Church must advertise.

JAMES B. SPILLMAN
Religious Advertising Agency Columbia, S. C.

DR. J. M. BELK, MONROE, N. C.

W. H. BELK, CHARLOTTE, N. C.

Belk Bros. Dept. Stores

CHARLOTTE, NORTH CAROLINA
19 STORES

Send us your orders for Bibles, Testaments, Confession of Faith, or Book of Church Order, for quick delivery. 10 percent discount for Sunday Schools, Societies, or Churches, Preachers or Teachers—and in dozens we will give you wholesale price.

WHY NOT HAVE A BIBLE OR TESTAMENT IN EVERY SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLAR'S HANDS EVERY SUNDAY? WE WILL HELP DO THIS. WRITE TO US FOR THE PLAN.
NELSON'S BIBLES

1184—Sunday School Scholar's Bible. Practical Helps for Young People. How to study the Bible. How to study the lesson. Bible questions and answers all in this Bible. Good black type, red edges, leatheroid binding. Size 5½x4x1. Special.....98c

Same Bible, gilt edge, better leather binding, illustrated ..$1.25 and $1.50

12—Linen Card Back Bible. Good big print. Fine for the Sunday School classes, about 6x5x1.....75c

1148—Sunday School Bible. Linen board backs, black type, 5x4x1...59c
7764—Teacher's Bible, $5.00.

India Linen Paper, self pronouncing Bible Dictionary, Combined Concordance, 12 Colored Maps, Morocco Binding, Silk Sewed, good print. Size 7¾x5½x1¼$5.00

6512—Teacher's Edition Bible—New and instructive maps, 14 maps, placed throughout the Bible, illustrating the Scripture, 20 beautifully colored pictures, complete Bible Dictionary, new Concordance and Helps. Leather binding, strongly made. Black face type. Size 7x5x1½$2.50

6512—Teacher's Bible, $3.95.
Linen Paper, thumb index, illustrated colored pictures, 12 new maps, Bible Dictionary, Morocco leather binding. Black face type, convenient size, 7x5-1¼. Special$3.95

1212—Illustrated Bible. 4,000 questions and answers, short history of each book of the Bible by A. T. Pierson, D.D. Harmony of the four Gospels. How to study the Bible. Colored maps. 7x5½x1½.....$2.00
7764—Teacher's Bible, $5.95.

Self pronouncing Bible, new, improved maps, finely illustrated, combined Concordance, 12 colored maps, newest and most complete dictionary yet printed. Morocco binding, silk sewed, a beautiful Bible. 8x5½...$5.95
Why not have a Confession of Faith in Every Home? We carry them in stock for your convenience—50c, 75c.

BOOK OF CHURCH ORDER. Every officer in the Presbyterian Church ought to have this Book and study it. We will mail you one for 25c.

NELSON'S TESTAMENTS

402—New Testament, 65c.
Bound in leatheroid, large black face type. Size 6x5.

321—New Testament, 48c.
Bound same as 402. Black type. Size 5x3½.

400—New Testament, 25c.
This is a special number. Large black type, cardboard back, clear white paper—the quality equals most 50c books. Special25c

29—New Testament. Vest pocket size, leatheroid binding, fine for the children25c
403—New Testament, 98c.

This is leather bound. Large black type, gilt edge. Size 6x4½.

403P—New Testament and Psalms. Leather bound, gilt edge. Large print $1.19

SCHOFIELD BIBLES

We carry these in the newest Editions, bound in good, heavy Linen Cardboard backs, or can send you the finest Leather Bound. If you want a Bible to get "REAL HELP" right at home—the newest improved help—a Schofield Bible is the one to buy.

No 50—Linen Cardboard Backs. Good black type, with every help at home. Same helps as the highest price Bible. Size of Book 7x5-1¼.....$1.50

No. 70—Same as above, only larger size type and book, 8½x6½x1¼ $2.00

We carry Schofield Bibles in all kinds of Bindings—Morocco, Persian, Etc. Real Linen Paper, from $5.00 to $10. Let us send you one on approval.

We carry all kinds of New Testaments from 15c to $2.00.

shake "Scandalous Jim's" hand when he made his subscription to the Victory Liberty Loan. Jim's shoulders were squared and his head up when the president drew him aside, but there were tears in his eyes.

"It was like this," he confided, finally. "I'd been on a toot as usual. Had spent my last cent. And I was just sneaking out with the kid's little savings bank when my wife caught me.

"Don't do that, Jim," she protested. "Don't take the pennies from the children." Mr. Davis, in ten years, that was the first thing that had ever got under my hide.

"I gave her the bank. 'Mollie,' I said; 'it never hit me just that way before. But, God help me, for ten years I've been doing just that thing. Taking the pennies from the children, and from you. But I'll never do it again. I'm through! Maybe I'll never be able to make up for lost time, but I'll try.'

"And she put her arms around me just as I've seen her do with my boy a hundred times after I'd licked him. 'I've always felt you'd do this some day, Jim,' she said. 'I've never lost faith in you.'

"And," he added, proudly; "I'm to get the foremanship against the first."—Exchange.

FOR MEN ONLY.

Here's your chance to get the famous "Hemshaw Quality" Socks direct from mill, saving retail profit—practically half retail price. Direct by mail, post-paid, 1/2-do. prs., $1.60 or 1 doz. prs., $3.00. Colors: white, black, dark brown, silver gray, navy blue. Sizes: 10 to 11 1/2. State size of your shoes and color wanted.

"Hemshaw Quality" Socks are mer- cerized special yarn, special knit. Very elastic, very durable, and unusually comfortable. They absorb perspiration, adding greatly to comfort. Every statement made above absolutely guaranteed. money refunded if not fully satisfied. Order now.

Hemshaw Hosiery Mills, Mail Order Dept. C-18, Oxford, N. C.

United States Railroad Administration ROUND-TRIP SUMMER TOURIST FARES

to
SEASHORE RESORTS
Special Reduced Fares From All Points
to

Morehead City, N. C.
Beaufort, N. C.
Norfolk, Va.
Virginia Beach, Va.
Cape Henry, Va.
Nag's Head, N. C.
Manteo, N. C.

Tickets on sale daily, May 15th to Sept. 30th, 1919, final limit for return October 31st, 1919.

For additional information ask your nearest ticket agent or write to
J. F. DALTON, G. P. A.,
Norfolk Southern R. R.,
Norfolk, Va.

COUPONS ON LIBERTY BONDS.

Prompt clipping of Liberty Bond coupons and reinvestment in War Savings Stamps is urged by the Savings Division of the United States Treasury Department as a sure way for the individual to make money with money.

People who invested their money in Liberty Bonds will receive approximately $810,000,000 in interest this year.

Coupons left unclipped, while retaining their value, are of no active good to the owner. In most instances owners of Liberty Bonds do not actually need to spend the interest as it becomes due; and unless this great majority places the interest in some safe investment it will slip away in useless expenditure. War Savings Stamps are the safest and most accessible small security. They pay four per cent interest compounded quarterly. If the coupons should be too small for the purchase of a War Savings Stamp outright—amounting to a little over four dollars—Thrift Stamps, costing twenty-five cents each, may be bought and sixteen of them with a few additional pennies exchanged later for a War Savings Stamp.

Coupons of Liberty Bonds are accepted at all banks and other War Savings Stamp agencies for Thrift and War Savings Stamps.

Reinvestment of Liberty Bond interest in War Savings Stamps not only means making interest with interest: but is an excellent help in establishing those habits of intelligent thrift which make for solidity and prosperity. SAVE FIRST is the cornerstone of profitable economy. Immediate conversion of Liberty Bond coupons into War Savings Stamps is an effective move toward getting the cornerstone into place.

Interest dates are as follows:

May 15—Second Liberty Loan.

June 15—First Liberty Loan.

September 15—Third Liberty Loan.

October 15—Fourth Liberty Loan.

November 15—Second Liberty Loan.

December 15—First and Fifth Liberty Loans.

THE ROGUE WHO THOUGHT AGAIN.

An Arab owned a certain horse whose fame spread far and wide, so that every Bedouin who saw it or heard of it wished to buy it. One tribesman offered first two camels, then all the camels he owned, and at last, in addition, he was ready to pay money as well as give up his own animals. But the owner of the horse refused to part with his prize, and thereupon the would-be buyer decided to get it by deceit.

Disguising himself as a beggar, and pretending to be sick, he lay by the roadside on a route that the owner of the horse was to pass. Presently the rider came to the spot, and, touched by the sight of the supposed sick man, dismounted and offered to put him on to the horse and carry him to a place where

AGENTS
Get the Money

An opportunity to make over $10 a day. Sell Concentrated Soft Drinks. Greatest Summer seller introduced. Small compact, condensed. Everybody wild about it. Every home, fair, ball game, lawn fete, picnic, a sure customer. Sells on sight—one taste and they come back for more. So good, so cheap, so easy to make, always ready. Many kinds—Orange-ade, Wild Cherry, Vinola. Guaranteed pure.

ENORMOUS DEMAND—BIG PROFITS

Startling, astonishing wonderful seller. Field hardly touched. So convenient—carry right in your pocket. All or spare time. No competition. Exclusive territory being snapped up. Get busy during the warm weather. Just a postal today. We'll show you a quick money maker.

AMERICAN PRODUCTS CO.
1221 American Bldg. Cincinnati, Ohio

The Art of Preaching

A HISTORY OF PREACHING

Dargan, Edwin Charles, D.D., LL.D.

This monumental record of the great Christian preachers from the Apostolic Fathers down to the end of the 19th century is very much more than a history. The unusual value of the book is in the author's ability to fire the imagination of the minister who reads it, and to teach him how to employ in his work today the enthusiasms and methods of the master preachers of the ages. In two volumes.

Vol. I. Apostolic Fathers to the Great Reformers. A. D. 70 to 1572.

Vol. II. Close of the Reformation to End of the 19th Century, 1572-1900.

8vo. Cloth. Each, Net, $2.50

PREPARING TO PREACH

Breed, Prof. David R.

An indispensable guide book for the Christian minister, characterized by originality and practical value, and containing a wealth of suggestions not found in any other similar book. Some of the chapter titles are: "The Attack Upon the Text," "Pulpit Manners," "Originality," "Homiletical Maxims." Seven general kinds of sermons are described and analyzed. This great aid to a successful pulpit delivery should be in the library of every student and preacher. 8vo. Cloth. Net, $2.00

ON THE PREPARATION AND

DELIVERY OF SERMONS

Broadus, John A., D.D., LL.D.

A new and revised edition of a book long recognized as a leader in its class. Its remarkable success is eloquent proof of its practical value. "One of the books which do not grow old with time, but are as fresh and suggestive as ever."—Advance. 8vo. Cloth. Net, $1.75

THE PREACHER: His Life and Work

Jowett, J. H., D.D.

The inimitable power and spiritual force of this great preacher-author overflow from every page. Both the student in the seminary and the minister in his study will find his mind and heart kindled to new enthusiasm for his high calling by reading this masterly book. 12mo. Cloth. Net, $1.25

THE PREACHER AND HIS MODELS

Stalker, James, M.A., D.D.

Dr. Stalker's lectures are notable for their depth of thought, combined with simplicity and clarity of expression. His viewpoint is fresh and original. The preacher will find rare stimulus and inspiration in the study of this volume. Its influence on his preaching will be lasting and immensely beneficial. 12mo. Cloth. Net, $1.25

Use this form in ordering above books

THE PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

Charlotte,
N. C.

For the $ enclosed send me
the titles checked
in above list.

Signed _____

help could be secured. But the beggar did not move.

"I have been without food for days," he said faintly. "I cannot rise; I have no strength left."

The owner of the horse thereupon stooped down, and, tenderly lifting the beggar, placed him upon the saddle, intending to mount himself and ride to an oasis. But no sooner was the sham invalid safely on the horse than he galloped it away, leaving the owner astounded in the place where he had dismounted.

At last the latter called to the thief to stop, and when the rogue was at a safe distance he did so.

"You have taken my horse," said the true owner, "but I implore you never to tell anyone how you obtained it."

"Why not?" asked the other.

"Because one day another man may lie by the roadside really ill, and if your act is known men may hesitate to stop and assist him."

The thief was so struck with shame that he rode back and gave up the animal to its rightful owner.—Exchange.

ICE-CREAM AND PIE
Y. W. C. A. SPECIALS

American ice-cream and pie are two things for which Y. W. C. A. Hostess Houses in France are famous.

Anna S. Jenkins, who is responsible for the banking and marketing for the Toul Hostess House, described her difficulties in maintaining the custom of Sunday night ice-cream by saying that it frequently means a special trip to Nancy for ice when there is none to be had in Toul, and an argument with a

UNITED STATES RAILROAD
ADMINISTRATION.
ROUND TRIP EXCURSION

Summer tourist tickets on sale May 15th limited for return to October 31st, 1919, to

- Virginia Beach, Va.
- Cape Henry, Va.
- Norfolk, Va.
- Morehead City, N. C.
- Beaufort, N. C.
- Nag's Head, N. C.
- Manteo, N. C.

WEEK-END FARES

to above named points. Tickets on sale every Saturday and Sunday, May 24th, to September 7th, limited to return Tuesday following date of sale.

SUNDAY EXCURSIONS

- Virginia Beach, Va.
- Norfolk, Va.
- Morehead City, N. C.
- Cape Henry, Va.
- Beaufort, N. C.

Tickets on sale every Sunday limited to day of sale May 25th to September 8th.

For fares, descriptive folders and other information apply to nearest ticket agent.

Frenchman to persuade him to sell it for such a purpose.

"Nancy has a large public market," Miss Jenkins continued, "and the women there know me now and display their best as I pass or remind me that last week's purchase must have been satisfactory.

"To buy legs of mutton enough to feed 125 while the French stand around to watch me choose the animals and the legs I wish, is rather comic."

WHEN WRITING OUR ADVERTISERS
PLEASE MENTION THIS PUBLICATION

"THE VALLEY OF VISION."

Henry Van Dyke.

Varied stories dealing with human love and faith, with dreams and realities, with things that will last now that the war is ended but not forgotten. One of the longest is a vision of three unknown days in the life of Jesus of Nazareth. It belongs with "The Story of the Other Wise Man," which has gone around the world.

PRICE $1.50, Net.

— Order from —

PRESBYTERIAN COMMITTEE OF PUBLICATION

Richmond, Va. Texarkana, Ark.-Tex.

Aberdeen & Rockfish Railroad

Between Aberdeen and Fayetteville

Eastbound		Westbound		STATIONS		Pass. Mixed
Daily Ex.	Sunday	Daily Ex.	Sunday
No. 22	No. 38	No. 41	No. 21
7 30 am	9 10 am	6 41 pm	5 00 pm	Lv. Aberdeen Ar.
ar 8 35 am	10 00 am	5 55 pm	ar 2 50 pm	Rae ford
lv 2 10 pm		4 50 pm	1 00 pm	Ar. Fayetteville Lv.
4 00 pm	11 20 am

WAGRAM BRANCH

Southbound		Northbound		STATIONS
Daily Ex.	Sun. Mixed	Daily Ex.	Sun. Mixed
No. 11		No. 12
Lv. 10 30 am		Ar. 12 40 pm		Rae ford
Ar. 11 15 am		Lv. 12 00 noon		Wagram

W. A. BLUE, General Supt.,
Aberdeen, N. C.

UNITED STATES RAILROAD ADMINISTRATION

Norfolk Southern Railroad

Passenger Train Schedules.

(Arrivals and departures Charlotte daily unless otherwise shown). Published as information only and not guaranteed.

Leave	Arrives
6:30 A.M.	Mt. Gilead.
	Star,
	Asheboro,
	Varina,
	Raleigh,
	Wilson,
	Greenville,
	Washington,
	Norfolk, 2:45 P. M.

For full information call on your nearest ticket agent or write to

- G. R. Steele, J. T. Helms,
- C. T. A., D. T. A.,
- Charlotte, N. C. Charlotte, N. C.
- W. J. Williams, Traf. Agt.,
- Raleigh, N. C.

Church Furniture
WORK OF THE HIGHEST QUALITY
AT REASONABLE PRICES.
Write for Catalogue
BUDDE & WEIS MFG. CO.
JACKSON, TENNESSEE

YOUR FACE?
Is the Complexion Mud-dy, Tanned, Freckled?
If troubled with skin eruptions, sunburn, pimples, try
PALMER'S SKIN-SUCCESS SOAP
It cleanses, softens and clears the skin and tends to remove sunburn, tan, freckles, blackheads, pimples and eczema.
Thoroughly antiseptic. Ask your druggist, or write for free samples to
THE MORGAN DRUG CO.,
1521 Atlantic Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

NEW SONG BOOKS
For Your Church 6c
A wonderful value; 83 familiar songs of the Gospel, words and music. Used all over the world. Round or shape notes. Only $6 per hundred for No. 1 or No. 2, or $10 for No. 1 and No. 2 combined. Send 20c for samples. Money back if not pleased. Send 60c for 100 cards. "A Prayer by the Sunday School."
E. A. K. HACKETT, Dept. 56, FORT WAYNE, IND.

Yes, Preachers and Teachers

are human. They should have no discount and no cheaper railroad fares than you and I. They should be paid for services rendered, amply paid. If he can't earn enough for family use and the nest egg for the future, he made a sad mistake as to family, else he should change his calling instanter,

The Mutual Building & Loan

will save a man and his family if they're worth saving, but they must help. It furnishes the "sure cure," but boasts no regrets at the demise of a feller who deliberately refuses to take the medicine.

E. L. KEESLER Sec. & Treas., 25 S. Tryon St., CHARLOTTE, N. C.

Sparkles

Unsolved.

Jack London, the novelist had a great affection for children.

In San Francisco there were twin sisters, little girls of six years, of whom Mr. London was very fond.

On the way to his boat one morning, Mr. London met one of the twins.

He stopped and shook her hand.

"Good morning, my dear," he said.

"And which of the twins are you?"

The little girl answered gravely:

"I'm the one what's out walkin'."

— Selected.

According to an English periodical two ladies were talking of a naval officer who had received many medals and decorations.

"But isn't he getting tremendously fat!" exclaimed one of the ladies. "He seems to be putting on flesh every day."

"Well, what can you expect, my dear?" answered the other lady. "The poor man has to find room somehow for all his medals."—Youth's Companion.

Tom—"Are you deaf to my pleadings?"

Eva—"I am."

Tom—"But what if I were to offer you a diamond ring?"

Eva—"Oh, I'm not stone deaf."—New Success Magazine.

"My dear," moaned the patient, as he tossed restlessly on his bed, "it's the doctor I'm thinking of. What a bill his will be!"

"Never mind, Joseph," said his wife. "You know there's the insurance money."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

"And before we were married you said you would be willing to die for me."

"I know it."

"And yet you refuse to beat the rugs!"

"Sure. Dying is my limit."—Houston Post.

Waiter: "All right, sir, all right. You'll get served in time." Diner: "I dare say I shall; but I'm anxious to get through this meal before the prices rise again!"—Passing Show.

"Going to get a new car with this?" asked the paying teller, as he handed Hussey a roll of bills. "No," sighed Hussey, "I'm going to get my old car out of the repair shop."—Judge.

"Bobby," said the minister to a little fellow aged six, "I hear you are going to school now." "Yes, sir," was the reply. "What part of it do you like best?" "Comin' home," was the prompt answer.—Boys' Life.

FASSIFERN

A HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

is situated on a plateau over two thousand feet above sea level and completely surrounded by the majestic Appalachian mountains, in the city of Hendersonville, N. C., far-famed for its year-around delightful and health-giving climate.

Fassifern suffered not a single case of influenza during term 1918-19 and was not closed for a day. Fassifern offers thorough preparatory courses both for entrance to colleges of highest rank and professional work.

Accredited by the Association of Southern Colleges, the University of North Carolina and prepares for Smith and Wellesly colleges of Massachusetts and other colleges of high rank which no longer receive certificate students.

Next session opens September 17th, 1919.

For catalog, book of views and special information, address

MISS KATE C. SHIPP,

HENDERSONVILLE, N. C.

4 Per Cent

Time Certificates of Deposit

They are Interest Bearing. They are Payable on Demand. They Afford a Good Income for Funds Awaiting Permanent Investment

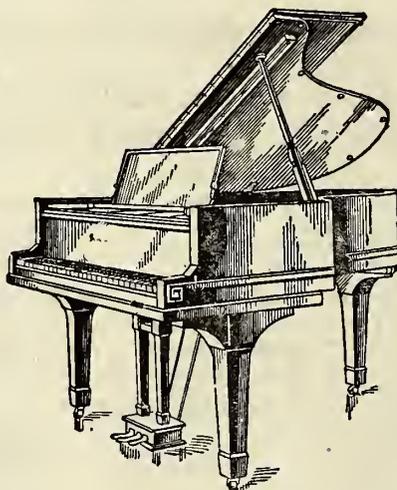

GET ONE

AMERICAN TRUST COMPANY

Charlotte

::

North Carolina

THE SHAW PIANO

As piano values are measured the SHAW is easily the leader of the popular priced line. In material, workmanship, design and tone it is far superior to any instrument sold within one hundred dollars of its price.

The SHAW is a really worth-while investment, and is sold on our famous "Factory-to-Home" plan and manufactured by us.

Write for catalog.

Chas. M. Stieff

INCORPORATED

Established 1842

Telephone 196

M. D. MANNING, Manager

219 S. Tryon Street Charlotte, N. C.

Charlotte's Musical Headquarters

Charlotte National Bank

Resources $4,000,000.00

CHARLOTTE, N. C.

PAYS FOUR PER CENT.

On Either Time Certificates of Deposit or Savings Accounts

MAIL ORDER Business Solicited and PROMPT ATTENTION Given

JOHN M. SCOTT

President

W. J. CHAMBERS

Vice-President

J. F. ROBERTSON

Vice-President

W. H. TWITTY

Cashier

C. W. BUTT

Assistant Cashier

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

REV. J. R. BRIDGES, D. D.

EDITORS

REV. R. C. REED, D. D.

VOL. LX.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., June 11, 1919.

No. 23.

Work--A Song of Triumph.

Work!

Thank God for the might of it,
The ardor, the urge, the delight of it—
Work that springs from the heart's desire,
Setting the brain and the soul on fire—
Oh, what is so good as the heat of it,
And what is so glad as the beat of it,
And what is so kind as the stern command,
Challenging brain and heart and hand!

Work!

Thank God for the pride of it,
For the beautiful, conquering tide of it,
Sweeping the life in its furious flood,
Thrilling the arteries, cleansing the blood,
Mastering stupor and dull despair,
Moving the dreamer to do and dare.
Oh, what is so good as the urge of it,
And what is so glad as the surge of it,
And what is so strong as the summons deep,
Rousing the torpid soul from sleep?

Work!

Thank God for the swing of it,
For the clamoring, hammering ring of it,
Passion of labor daily hurled
On the mighty anvils of the world.
Oh, what is so fierce as the flame of it,
And what is so huge as the aim of it?
Thundering on through dearth and doubt,
Calling the plan of the Maker out,
Work the Titan; Work the friend,
Shaping the earth to a glorious end,
Draining the swamps and blasting the hills,
Doing whatever the Spirit wills—
Rending a continent apart,
To answer the dream of the Master heart.
Thank God for a world where none may shirk—
Thank God for the splendor of work!

—Amelia Morgan.

Editorial

Old Time Religion.

SO much is said about the "new era," the "new day," and the "new age," that we may come to suspect that a new religion is needed. Indeed, many voices are proclaiming as much. We have hardly yet forgotten the noise created by Dr. Henry Emerson Fosdick as he cried aloud for a new type of religion to supplant the old individualistic religion typified by and incarnated in Jonathan Edwards. He awakened many echoes. "What we want," said they, "is a religion that will appeal to our returning soldiers. They have been performing such heroic service for others, making such splendid sacrifices in behalf of a noble cause, and finding such exaltation of spirit and such exaltation of life in this service and these sacrifices that they will scorn a religion that appeals to self-interest, that centers its attention on saving the soul, that warns of hell, and lures to heaven. Our soldiers are too noble to have a care about their souls, or to feel concern about hell and heaven. They are utterly absorbed in concern for others."

Now if we could feel perfectly assured that all this is true, we should feel perfectly assured that our returning soldiers need no new type of religion. The "old time religion" which was "good for Paul and Silas" is good enough for them. It is just exactly the kind of religion that makes one forgetful of self and mindful of others, that makes each one seek to please his neighbor for his good to edification. If the dear boys that followed the flag really went overseas on a holy crusade and with high courage counted not their lives dear unto themselves that they might serve others the only way to account for it is that they took the old time religion with them. And if they took it with them, they were indebted for it to the preaching of pre-war times. Hence the conclusion that whatever is meant by the "new era," the "new day," etc., it is not meant that we need a new type of religion.

What seems to be needed is a new and stronger emphasis on the "old time religion," the religion that begins with the individual, and has for its primary aim the saving of the individual's soul. Its fundamental philosophy is that you cannot get good fruit without a good tree, and therefore in dealing with corrupt humanity the starting point is to make the tree good. And the way to make the tree good is to change its nature. This is what the old time religion proposes to do. This is the first great objective in the scheme of redemption. It reaches this objective by regenerating the individual and setting him in right relations with God.

The danger of our day is that those who are clamoring for a new departure will devote their energies to preaching the secondary truths of Christianity to the neglect of the primary. They are intent on the good fruit, on those activities which tend to the uplift of humanity, and they proceed on the assumption that the way to secure these is to preach the social message of Jesus, to aim directly at the transformation of society. In other words, they would lift into chief place the ethics of Christianity. They would reverse the commandments, and put first, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."

No greater calamity could befall the church than would result from such reversal of God's order. Christ's social message is not His prime message. "Seek first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness." First the good tree, and then the good fruit, first your duty to God and then to man. First in order is evangelical doctrine, and then the ethics of the gospel. This is the old time religion, and it is the religion of Christ. "It was good enough for Paul and Silas," and it is good enough for the new era, and the new age on which we have entered. It is good enough for our returning soldiers.

Rotation in Church Officers.

The last Assembly sent down to the Presbyteries an overture for endorsement, the purport of which was to establish rotation in the offices of elder and deacon. This has been voted down more than once, but the fact that it is so often sent up shows that there is a general desire to have some change made whereby congregations can rid themselves of undesirable officers.

In our account of the proceedings of the Assembly we stated that the proposed amendment would contradict our Book of Church Order. A brother for whose knowledge of Church law we have the most profound respect has taken issue with us on this point; and has asked us to show him in what way it will do so. Homer may have nodded, but we have no idea that this expert will ever be caught napping, so that when he questions our statement, it must be that this proposed amendment has a different meaning to each of us.

The Assembly, in substance, sends down to the Presbyteries for their approval or rejection the following: Ruling elders or deacons may be chosen for an active term of service of five years, and upon the expiration of this term of service may be considered for re-election together with any other eligible members of the Church.

There are two possible constructions to be placed upon this amendment. These officers cease to be elders or deacons in any respect at the expiration of their term of office, and if re-elected, must be re-ordained—or they cease to be elders or deacons in any particular Church at large, and if re-elected, must be merely installed again.

If the former be the meaning, then our Book is contradicted, because it teaches that both the offices of the elder and the deacon are perpetual. But if the latter be the meaning, then the Book will still be consistent. We are sure that our brother holds the latter view of the meaning of the amendment, while we regarded it as requiring the elder or deacon whose time had expired, to fall back into private membership, divested of any power that his ordination or installation had conferred upon him.

A Correction.

In our account of the action of the late General Assembly on the Woman's Societies, we inadvertently made a misstatement of facts. We wrote as follows:

"On Tuesday there sprang up a sharp debate over the question whether the contributions of the Ladies' Societies should be sent direct to the Executive Committees or to the Woman's Auxiliaries. It was decided that the report of the committee, of which Dr. Henderlite was chairman, should be sustained, which was that such moneys should be sent to the Executive Committee."

What we should have stated was that the Assembly recommends to the Women's Societies that only such contributions as come through the channels of the women's organizations of the Churches, and not through the regular Church envelopes, should be reported as the gifts of the Women's Auxiliaries or Societies.

Ephraim and His Idols.

Hosea's charge against Israel was idolatry, and therefore he said, Ephraim is joined to idols, let him alone.

For years the Northern Church has been clamoring for union. They have made the situation so unpleasant along the border States that many of our men who prefer to be left alone have become converts to union, because they assure us that in no other way can they have peace.

Those of us who have no such trials long to be left alone, because we are doing good work, are growing fast, and we are at peace with each other. We are opposed to union with our Northern brethren for many reasons—chief among which is their habit of meddling with the affairs of the State, and placing the Church in a false position. We are constantly assured by those of our number who are urging union that our friends over the way have reformed, and that we need have no fear on that ground. It seems, however, that Ephraim is not yet prepared to give up his idols.

At their last Assembly in St. Louis the majority adopted resolutions approving of the League of Nations, and called upon the Senate of the United States to accept this league. Then in their temperance report the following preamble and resolutions were unanimously adopted:

"This Assembly learns with pain and shame that the President of the United States has recommended to Congress that it repeal a part of wartime prohibition, and in view of this fact we most earnestly petition Congress that it not only retain the measure, but that the measure be enforced to the fullest extent, to the end that the needs of the world for food may be met, and that the efficiency and morale of our own people be preserved.

"Resolved, That this resolution be telegraphed to Congress and sent by cablegram to the President of the United States."

Before the resolutions were sent, the word "shame" was stricken out. Our brethren ought to understand that in the event of any union such resolutions will constantly be offered and passed, which will be a constant source of irritation. Then read these overtures, which reveal the sentiment of certain parts of that Church:

Dallas Presbytery memorializes the General Assembly "to appoint a committee to take under advisement the matter of granting more power and fuller representation to the women of our Church in the Church courts; also, in case it is thought advisable to grant such power and representation to the women of the Church, that this committee be authorized to suggest a possible reorganization of women's work in harmony with the suggested change."

The Presbytery of Columbia River overtures the Assembly to take such action as may be necessary to authorize women to act as ministers and as elders, and to grant sex equality in the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A.

The Presbytery of Saginaw overtures the Assembly to grant the women election and ordination to the office of ruling elder on a parity with male members.

It is true that the final decision was to refer it to a committee which will report at the next Assembly. Of course we have no fear that the Northern Church will at present endorse any such change—but we do not wish to be in a Church where even one Presbytery has so far departed from the old paths as to desire any such change. Lot chose Sodom because of the advantages offered, yet Peter assures us that among the many trials he underwent in Sodom was the vexing of his soul by the filthy conversation of the wicked. We do not mean to compare the Northern Church with Sodom, because the good and sound men are in the majority there. The only point of resemblance lies in the fact that Lot found himself in uncongenial company, which was a constant source of irritation to his righteous soul. In the same way our men who have been trained in different ideas will find themselves involved by the action of some Assembly or Presbytery in a way that will be unpleasant, with the result that there will be strife or bickering. At present we are at peace with each other, and when their Assembly or Synods do things that we do not endorse, we feel no responsibility. If united, however, everything will be different.

Let us agree to keep peace within our own bounds. Seriously we trust that our brethren will let affairs in each Church remain as they are. Both Churches are doing a good work. Bring them together and make one Church of them, and you will thereby open the door to strife and discontent, because our ways are not their ways, nor are our thoughts their thoughts.

Montreat and the Action of the General Assembly.

For years this gathering place of the tribes of Israel has had to depend upon private liberality in order to make necessary improvements. That it has so many of the essentials of civilized life speaks well for the interest of our people. Sewerage, fine water in the home, electric lights and passable walks and roads have all been provided for by good management and wise outlay of funds.

The Association, however, has at last reached a point where outside aid must be given if we are not to lose all we have gained. The old Auditorium has outlived its day. As instruments of torture the seats were a brilliant success, as also was the Auditorium, if used for heating purposes. In keeping with the plans of the management, these are to be changed, and a handsome Auditorium with modern seats is to be built. Then our roads and walks are to be improved after the manner of a modern summer resort. Great complaint has been made of the hotels, as being out of date. The management proposes to erect one or two modern hotels in order to meet the demand for first class entertainment, and also cottages where families can live at less cost. In order to appeal to the Church at large the president, Rev. R. C. Anderson appeared before the last Assembly and stated his plans. The Committee to which this address was referred brought in the following report:

"We recommend that the General Assembly endorse a campaign throughout the church by the Mountain Retreat Association for $200,000 for the proper equipment of Montreat in buildings, such as new Auditorium, hotel, cottages, and lighting plant, and in macadamized roads, pavements, sewer, etc."

The Atlanta Conferences, June 10-12.

Two great movements, that of the men and that of the women, of our Church have fully justified their organization, and those who once questioned, now endorse the wisdom of the plan. Even as we go to press, the Laymen's Missionary Movement and the Woman's Auxiliary of the Southern Presbyterian Church are gathering for simultaneous Conventions in the city of Atlanta, where big things are conceived and executed. From every part of our Church from Maryland to the far borders of Mexico the men and women will come.

The leaders will plan, and the others will catch inspiration, to be carried to distant fields, and to show results in quickened spiritual life and more generous giving. Everything points to a record-breaking attendance. The list of speakers is most attractive.

Contributed

The Simplicity of Our Church

By Rev. Andrew W. Blackwood, D.D.

IN a recent study of the Book of Acts I have been impressed by the simplicity of the Apostolic Church. It was much more simple than the Old Testament Church, and vastly more so than the Church immediately before the Advent. Religion tends to grow complex and mysterious; ritual and ceremony, vestments and feasts, tend to displace simplicity; but in the Acts religion is as simple as it is great.

The Apostle Paul, himself a convert from Pharisaic complexity, feared that the Church would be corrupted from the simplicity that is toward Christ. This is exactly what occurred in the Church of the Middle Ages, when religion became as complex and mysterious as it had been immediately before the Advent.

The Protestant Reformation restored the simplicity of the Apostolic Church; and of all Protestant bodies, the Presbyterian seems to us to conform most closely to the pattern set before us in the Acts. We love and respect all other churches of Christ, and we are conscious of our own failings, but at least in our ideals we aim at perfection, which is the simplicity of Christ.

Simplicity of Belief.

We believe in the Holy Bible, and especially in what we learn from the New Testament about Jesus Christ. We are orthodox. We believe what all other evangelical churches believe, and so we heartily subscribe to the Apostles' Creed, with an added emphasis upon the death of Christ as the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world.

Our distinctive belief is the sovereignty of God, as He makes Himself known in Jesus Christ. He is the holy God, the God who is holy love, the God who is infinite wisdom and power. When America went into the war we did not need to revise our beliefs about God so as to teach that He abhors unrighteousness among the nations.

In one of our leading newspapers a recent editorial, entitled "A Presbyterian Peace," says that President Wilson and many other world leaders are Presbyterians, and hence that we must expect justice as well as mercy to enter into the negotiations for peace. For the God in Whom Presbyterians believe loves righteousness and truth, and He makes the supreme sacrifice to save the world from sin.

Simplicity of Worship.

In our worship also we strive to conform to the teachings of the Bible, and especially of the New Testament. We strive to learn not so much what men enjoy as what God requires, and the result is a high degree of simplicity, the sort of simplicity to which the war has taught the modern world to return.

Presbyterians have always given a large place to preaching. We strive to attach almost as much importance to preaching as the Apostolic Church attached. If you register on Saturday at the leading hotel of almost any town, and then ask the clerk where you should go to church, he will say that if you wish to hear a sermon you should go to the Presbyterian Church.

We believe in an educated ministry. So do other churches now, but in this respect at least they are following in the historic footsteps of Presbyterians, who long since learned from the Bible the need of intelligence in preaching. "The Lord hath given me the tongue of the learned that I should know how to speak." "He that received the seed into good ground is he that heareth the Word and understandeth it." "Understandeth thou what thou readest?" "How can I except some man teach me?"

Especially do we believe in simplicity of prayer. From the Acts we learn how the men who led public worship in the Apostolic Church spoke to their Heavenly Father in prayer, voicing the needs and hopes, as well as the doubts and fears, of the friends whose hearts they were leading to the throne of grace. These men spoke to God as simply as children speak to a worthy father, and that is our own ideal of prayer. As Dr. Eliot has said, there is on earth no more beautiful scene than a minister leading a devout congregation in extemporaneous prayer.

Our pulpit prayers are not so majestic as the prayers of the ages. We strive at all times to be reverent, and if we supposed that our God cared above all things for majesty and for that impersonal sort of religion which voices the feelings of men in general, but not of the particular individuals who worship together at the hour, we, too, might gather together prayers which would please our critics, but we prefer the simplicity of the apostles.

We have no desire to impose our spiritual freedom upon our brethren. We gladly grant them the privilege of worshipping God in the way that brings them closest to Him and makes Him seem closest to them, but we believe that we conform to the example of the Apostles when we give the leaders of our public worship a large measure of freedom. We find our ways of prayer so helpful that we seldom feel the need of change, save that we always yearn for more simplicity.

Our worship is comparatively free from forms. In the Acts the disciples worshiped in certain ways which quickly became habits, for all things must be done decently and in order. But in public worship, as in all other social gatherings, no form should call attention to itself. If there is anything in our ways which calls attention to itself, either by its beauty or by its ugliness, we ought quickly to change, for in worship we strive to see no man but Jesus only.

A few years ago a friend came to Columbia to arrange for the funeral of President Wilson's sister. In conferring with the pastor of the First Church, where Mr. Wilson had worshiped as a boy, his friend said that the President had only one request. He wished the exercises to be simple. No change was made in our usual customs, which are always simple, especially in times of deepest sorrow; and when Mr. Wilson expressed his appreciation, the one fact of which he spoke was the simplicity; for he is a Presbyterian.

Simplicity of Church Government.

In the Church, as in the State, there are two extremes in government, the absolute monarchy and the pure democracy. The Presbyterian Church, like the United States Government, stands between the two extremes, but closer by far to the pure democracy. We approximate the form of the Apostolic Church, which was a representative democracy.

The trend in modern statecraft is toward the representative democracy, and as Dr. Egbert W. Smith has shown in his brilliant little work, "The Creed of Presbyterians," the world owes modern democratic forms largely to Presbyterian and allied churches.

Among the churches, as among the nations, representative democracy is the last word in government. The churches which have had monarchical forms, whether absolute or limited, are becoming more democratic; and the churches which have had the purest democratic forms are giving more and more place to carefully chosen representatives. Both extremes are tending toward Presbyterianism.

In Canada three great denominations are concluding negotiations for union. One of them may loosely be termed a limited monarchy, and the second is theoretically a pure democracy. In the United Church these two have voluntarily accepted the form of the third, the Presbyterian, which is a representative democracy.

(Continued on page 8)

To the Jordan in an American-Made Motor Lorry

R. E. Magill, Secretary.

THE Motor Lorry carrying twenty-five men will leave Monday morning at 6:45 sharp for Jericho, the River Jordan and the Dead Sea: Rising at 5:30; Breakfast 6 o'clock." No, we weren't dreaming and this was the terse announcement of our leader concerning our program for Easter Monday, April 21, 1919, and his in Jerusalem.

Visions of trips to Jericho and Jordan in former days rose before the minds of those who had made the long hot trip on horseback or in jolting carriages down into the gorge that lies 1,400 feet below sea level, or 4,000 feet lower than Jerusalem. Memories, not pleasant, of the night spent in the so-called hotel of Jericho also revived, so it was with almost skeptical wonder that we climbed into the big three-ton truck (American-made) on the eventful Monday and speculated as to how it would get down the donkey trails and climb out again.

We swung on the Jaffa gate and skirted around the old city to St. Stephens gate and found ourselves driving under Gethsemane Garden and over the Mount of Olives, not on the old Jericho road but on a splendid macadam driveway built by the British army when Jerusalem was the prize for which the two great armies of the Allies and the Entente were contending in 1918.

The old Jericho road has witnessed the passing of many contending hosts but none more picturesque than the Turkish and the British armies of 1917-18, as they contested every foot of this ancient highway—and never were greater issues at stake than hung in the balance during this great conflict.

We had as one of our guests for the day, Capt. Davis, a Welch chaplain, or Padre, as they are called in English Army parlance, who was with the Army of General Allenby when it fought its way inch by inch into Jerusalem, and later as it drove the Turks by slow stages down the Jericho road into the Jordan Valley and to the staggering defeat which ended with the capture of 97,000 Turks by the British.

Every foot of ground and every camp site had memories for the Padre and he was a most charming narrator of stirring events with just enough of a Welch burr in his voice to add interest to his stories.

He pointed out how the Turks took advantage of the towering hills for observation posts and gun emplacements and showed what the British guns did for the old Good Samaritan Inn and the old Crusader Monastery which lie some eight miles east of Jerusalem.

The artillerymen of the English army located big guns on the top of the Mount of Olives between the imposing palace, erected by the German Emperor for himself, and the Russian Church. From this position the Jericho road was under observation and far up to and beyond the great hill on which is located the Good Samaritan Inn. The Turks used the old ruins as a fort and the English shelled them out from the Mount of Olives, and it interested us to pick up all over the hillsides fragments of shrapnel, bullets and even hand grenades showing the terrific bombardment to which the Turks were subjected as they fell back toward the Jordan Valley. A new and pathetic interest is added to the old Jericho road by the small groups of white crosses at three points which mark the graves of some splendid British troops who lost their lives in this drive against the Turks. Many a mother's heart in England, Canada, New Zealand and Australia is near the breaking point as they think of the dear boys, who lie on the hill slopes of the most desolate and forbidding section in all Palestine.

We saw and photographed some of the dummy horses and camouflaged camps General Allenby used to make the Turks think he was preparing for a drive against their front while he was actually planning a great smash against their rear and flank far to the north up the Mediterranean Sea road. He took the Turkish army and its German commander completely by surprise and before they knew what had hit them the commander Van Sanders was making a run for his life from his headquarters at Nazareth, and 97,000 Turks found themselves prisoners and the war at an end as far as Turkey was concerned.

We found small detachments of British troops on guard at Jericho and down on the Jordan River near the point where our Lord is said to have been baptized by John the Baptist.

The site of the Old Testament Jericho and also of the New Testament city of same name proved interesting because of their historic association but the modern Jericho, a collection of miserable mud huts, only add to the troubles and discontent of the poor boys who must do guard duty in the most desolate looking spot in all the earth. No group of men in all the out of the way corners we have visited appealed as strongly to our sympathy as the boys who are helping to make this a better world by doing faithful guard duty down near the Dead Sea.

We motored back to Jerusalem up the 4,000 feet rise and over about 30 miles of as hot and dusty roads as one will ever care to see and made the run in two and three-quarter hours without a skip on the part of the splendid American truck, so we said again with fervor, "Hurrah for America's part in the war!"

From Thornwell Orphanage.

Thornwell Orphanage is closing a splendid year with the first of June. A good average of work has been done in the school, notwithstanding the interruptions from "Flu" and smallpox.

Just recently a shorthand course has been introduced and it will be of great benefit to the young people who wish to fit themselves for business life.

There will be four graduates from the college department. One has already accepted a business position in Atlanta and the other three expect to teach. The State of South Carolina gives teacher's certificates to our graduates without examination. This recognition is highly appreciated.

The friends of the children have not forgotten their needs. Funds have been forthcoming month by month to meet financial obligations. But the reserve laid by in winter has been exhausted and we face the summer with an empty treasury. We urge every church in the controlling Synods that put the Orphanage in the budget to have the treasurer remit promptly each month that we may not be embarrassed. A contribution larger or smaller from every church will save the day.

We face the future with confidence.

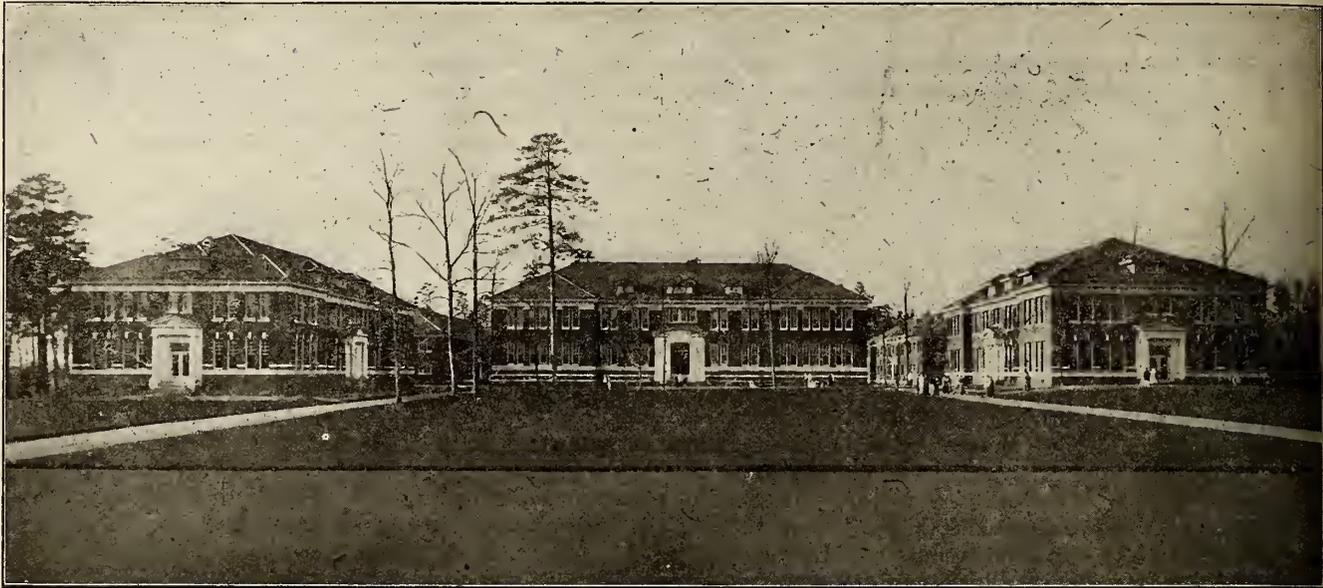

Clinton, S. C.

L. Ross Lynn, President.

The Prayer of a Tired Heart.

Our Father all compassionate, to Thee
I bring a bruised and tired heart today!
Only the tender touch of Thy dear hand
Can take the weariness and ache away.
As at Thy feet I kneel and long for rest,
Bow down Thy pitying ear, and let me feel
The touch I long for soft upon my brow,
The touch that never fails to soothe and heal.
Thou knowest, Lord, the secrets of our hearts:
Thou knowest our discouragements, and all
Our weary efforts to combat the wrong
That in us lies. O Father, heed my call
For help and rest, and as I come to Thee
Give me the touch of Thy dear hand today;
Help me to drop my burden at Thy feet,
Then rise refreshed with peace, and go my way.
—Mary D. Brine in The Christian Intelligencer.

The Young People's Conference of North Carolina Synod

Queens College, Charlotte, June 2-8, the "hostess house" for the first independent state-wide convention of its young people that North Carolina Synod has conducted.

This century has been one of many discoveries. At no period in its history has the world made greater advancement than in this present. This advance has been largely due to utilizing powers and agencies that since the beginning of the world have lain dormant. Our rivers have been running to the sea since they first began to run, but it was not till this age that their wasted power was recognized and then utilized—so that what was wasted is now running great factories and lighting great cities.

Since the Church was first organized, it has been dealing with adults—the children being ignored, as far as using their super abundant energies was concerned.

Dr. Clark first began to systematize that overflowing energy in the organization of the Christian Endeavor movement, but in our own section, it made slow headway.

Nearly 30 years ago, the writer, then a pastor in Virginia, organized a Christian Endeavor Society in his church but he had to defend it in the press and in the Synod.

Here and there societies of the young were formed, some under one name and some under another, but all were regarded, more or less, with suspicion by those who were opposed to any innovations. With all of these discouragements, the movement, however, grew, and as its benefits become more apparent, its friends increased.

Finally in our own Synod certain earnest women and men resolved to harness this energy and, if possible, divert it into a channel that the Church could use. An excellent committee was appointed by the Synod of 1917, with Rev. J. G. Garth as chairman, who prayerfully undertook the work, chose Queens College, Charlotte, as the place, and June as the time. It being an experiment, they had some misgivings, but when it opened, the attendance exceeded their wildest expectations. About 200 were in attendance and a fine faculty was present, and for nearly a week these young people have, with deep earnestness, devoted themselves to hard study.

We spent a short time on Friday listening to Rev. H. C. Hammond of St. Charles, S. C., lecturing to a room full of young people. If the other lecturers have the same gifts of teaching, then their students are well fed.

Among those who came to teach were Dr. Theron Rice, Dr. H. F. Williams, Dr. Sweets, Dr. Glass, Dr. Myers, of Greensboro, N. C.; Dr. Blackwood, of Columbia, S. C.; Rev. S. M. Glasgow, with a possibility of having Dr. E. W. Smith. Having been for seven days under such influence and teaching, these young people will return to their home churches, ready to take hold of church work. It lies with pastors and elders whether their good intentions are to evaporate or whether they are to be crystalized in earnest work that is to strengthen the church and be the mainstay of the future.

J. R. B.

Worry and Its Cure.

By Rev. W. A. Murray.

Worry never gets you anywhere except into a deeper state of gloom. The Bible frequently warns against worry and gives as its antidote trust in our Heavenly Father.

Yet we cannot shift on God the responsibility for that condition of affairs that causes mental and spiritual depression. For we are responsible for those conditions. The only way to avoid worry is to do nothing nor contract any obligation that can in any way mortgage our happiness and peace of mind tomorrow.

For TODAY, God promises grace and strength for all our needs. As thy days, so shall thy strength be. This promise is for immediate acceptance only. He promises nothing for tomorrow. So child of God, do well thy part today and do not mortgage tomorrow. Because tomorrow is not yours, therefore you have no more right to mortgage it, than you have a right to mortgage a piece of property belonging to another. Today only is yours. Tomorrow is God's.

Shelby, N. C.

The Law of a King.

The law of a king is service,
And the kingliest serve the most.
Then, ye who are sons of promise
And would royal lineage boast,

Get under the common burden,
Go, brother the brotherless sons,
And win the royal guerdon,
The thanks of comforted ones.

For suffering is numberless,
The sorrowing are a host,
The law of a king is service,
And the kingliest serve the most.

—Stanley F. Davis.

Courtesy Among Ministers

GENERALLY speaking, they are the most courteous gentlemen on earth, but sometimes they seem to manifest derelictions in conduct that go to disprove the infallibility of, at least, the Protestant clergy. Once upon a time at the commencement exercises of Union Theological Seminary in the remote ages when it flourished at Hampden-Sidney, an address was delivered to the graduating class by Dr. Jacob Henry Smith, nomen clarum et venerabile (I know that's a trite expression, but here it says just what I mean and I'm going to use it), in which he vigorously expounded the historic advice of Paul to Timothy, "Let no man despise thy youth." Along with other applications he stressed particularly the contempt that would fall to their lot in the social world for neglect in matters of breeding. Doubtless the class in question profited by his counsel and have shown themselves models of courtesy to this day. But in these more modern times it would not be amiss for some such monitor as Dr. Smith to pronounce a similar address, enforcing the principle of it by applications to daily life. He might expound in some such style as this:

"Gentlemen of the graduating class, you must always rise when a lady enters a private room in which you are sitting; you should remove your hat in her presence everywhere but in places of public gathering; you should show by your general demeanor that you are actuated by true chivalry, that chivalry that prompts alertness and kindness towards women and children; above all things you should take for your shibboleth in the social world those immortal lines of Tennyson,

"Manners are not idle, but the fruit
Of loyal nature and of noble mind,"

To hope to influence spiritually those whom you offend socially by your lack of breeding and kindly feeling is vain."

Having heard this posthumous sermon, we shall now turn to some shining illustrations.

Not long ago a young lady was riding to the train in a public vehicle in which were three other persons. Two of these were ministers, returning from a meeting of Presbytery, and the third was a lady on her way to a Presbyterial. The young lady avers that the older woman was agreeable and affable to all the occupants of the car, apparently taking it for granted that all of them had something in common. These two gentlemen responded with as much geniality as their view of their own sacerdotal importance would permit. (Sacerdotal importance signifies that disease that tends to magnify everything that concerns the ego and to minify all that pertains unto the alter. It so often attacks the clergy, specially those whom the world counts great that it has been frequently diagnosed as Clericus Morbus. The outstanding symptom is the belief that everything pertaining to the past, present and future, as well as to the wife and children of the ego, is of paramount importance to the universe, while the personal affairs of the alter are dust in the balance, too contemptible to merit any effort of the auditory nerve. Selah!)

After a drive of several miles the station was reached at an hour where an eastbound and a westbound train usually met. This time, however, the train of the Presbyterial lady got there first. The young lady would have offered to carry her suitcase to the car but took it for granted that one of the male companions de voyage would render that service. They, however, stood upon the platform at a distance of a few feet, puffed their cigars composedly and watched her "tote her own suitcase" to the car. "O South, where is thy chivalry?" ejaculated the girl in the waiting room. The other train arriving in a few minutes, these two gentlemen grabbed their own baggage and disappeared, enveloped in the odor of sanctity and of tobacco smoke. The girl related the incident later to some friends and declared that nothing that either one of these ministers could say, either in or out of the pulpit, could have the least influence for good as far as she was concerned, not though they spoke with the tongues of men and of angels."

Another suggestive tale that has never yet met the public eye or ear is that of a poor, hard-working woman in a home mission field in the Ozark Mountains. Like Jack and Jill she came to a mountain spring to fetch a pail of water. It happened that just at that hour her pastor and a visiting minister were sitting on a stone ledge above the spring, drinking in the glories of the morning air. The spring was of such a nature that the woman had to stoop and dip the water up in small quantities. The pastor dangled his legs from the superior height of the ledge and of ministerial dignity and calmly watched her poor, thin form bend to the task. His surprised companion at once climbed down and, asking her name, filled her bucket and, after chatting kindly with her, lifted his hat as she walked away. She doubtless had that gracious feeling of restored womanhood as she went back to her cabin. All women have it when they receive the tribute of real courtesy. The station and the garb do not alter that instinct in womanhood.

A Woman.

Ovation for President Wilson.

At the meeting of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A., in session last week at St. Louis, Mo., an ovation for President Wilson occurred. The "Presbyterian Banner" says:

"Woodrow Wilson, the Presbyterian," was honored by a sweeping and spontaneous demonstration of the General Assembly at the Odeon on Saturday. Beginning with a statement by the Stated Clerk, Rev. Dr. W. H. Roberts, that 'pastors should make their congregations feel that the Presbyterian Church is a world organization,' which Dr. Roberts illustrated with 'the presence at the peace table of a Presbyterian ruling elder, known as Woodrow Wilson,' the enthusiasm of the 1,000 commissioners reached such heights that they all rose to their feet and the climax was reached in sending a cablegram of 'felicitation' to President Wilson. Said the Moderator, John Willis Baer: 'As your demonstration and spontaneous standing is a tribute to the President of the United States, I would suggest that we bow our heads and offer prayer for this man, who needs it quite as much as any man in all the wide world.' The prayer for the President was offered impromptu by Rev. Dr. S. Hall Young, of Alaska (who on the first day was almost elected Moderator). He said:

"Lord God of hosts, God of all nations, Prince of Peace and Captain of our salvation, we implore thy blessing, fresh, full, free, infinite upon the Peace Congress assembled in France, upon all the representatives of all the nations there assembled, that the great questions of world peace, of world prosperity, of world freedom, and if it please Thee, of world Christianity, may come before that congress and be settled in a way that pleases thee and satisfies the world. To this end we ask that Thy special blessing be upon that representative of our great church whom the votes of his people have placed at the head of the affairs of the United States and whom the votes and the wishes of his people and of the Allied nations have placed in a commanding position in this great peace conference. Give him the principles of the great church which he represents, in his heart, and above all, the love of God, and the love of Jesus Christ, and the loyalty to the faith that that church represents. May he and may all his associates do the will of God and bring about such an era of peace and prosperity and freedom and righteousness and Christianity as the world has never seen. We ask for his sake, Prince of Peace, and the Captain of our salvation, Jesus Christ. Amen."

Two Bits of Testimony at Fourscore

By Rev. Geo. L. Leyburn, D.D.

I HAVE reached and passed the Psalmist's super-limit of human life. For not only have "the days of my years been three score years and ten," but "by reason of strength they be fourscore years." And somehow a goodly number of my friends found out the age and date and made me "celebrate" the day by their hearty congratulations and their kindly expressions of interest, confidence, appreciation and love—some in person and not a few by letter. This was unexpected, a surprise: very gratifying of course, yet very humbling as well, for with such a motive—"the love of Christ"—and with such supplies—the power and grace of God—how poor and small and imperfect seems even the best we do. Such an experience can only find expression in "By the grace of God I am what I am," "Not I but Christ in me." "To the praise of the glory of His GRACE."

In meeting and speaking with some of these friends, it seemed to me that a little personal testimony as the result of a long life, a wide observation and a varied experience might be helpful in bringing cheer and courage, steadfastness and strength to other Christian hearts. And with the prayer that some readers of The Standard may also find here something to encourage and cheer and comfort, I seek this larger audience.

My first bit of testimony is: Nothing in this life brings and gives satisfaction except the love and service of the Lord, our Lord Jesus Christ. Nothing else does or can: for sooner or later everything with the "earthly" element and the taint of sin about it, upon it, within it, ends in disappointment, disaster, trouble, suffering, sorrow, or to sum up in one dread word—Death. To this are no exceptions, and from it no release.

But in the service of our Lord how different. Every one can truly say: "The Son of God who loved me and gave himself for me," and can add "whose I am and whom I serve" has that which never disappoints and never brings trouble or sorrow, but always satisfies and ever gives rest and peace and joy—complete satisfaction, perfect peace, fullness of joy, and all forevermore.

Then, too, the beauty and blessedness of it is twofold; everyone may test and prove it for himself, may "taste and see that the Lord is good:" then the longer and fuller the test the more satisfactory the experience. For "It's better farther on," "It's brighter higher up." "The path of the just—justified or righteous—is as the shining light,—that shineth more and more unto the perfect day." "I shall be satisfied when I awake with thy likeness."

My second testimony is: That the Bible is true, God's Word. And "Thy Word is truth." It has been tested and stood every test, attacked and withstood every attack. And it still stands firm, strong, immovable, "The Impregnable Rock of Holy Scripture." To this witness of the ages I can add my wee bit of testimony, for I have seen it tried and have tested it myself. And it never failed, but was always sure and true. Was it not Dean Farrar that said (in substance), that whenever a fact of history was well authenticated, or a truth of science well established, and a passage of Scripture thoroughly understood, the very mind of the Spirit found and stated, he had never known any contradiction between such fact of history or such truth of science, and such statement of God's Word, but finally complete agreement and harmony. Many lesser lights can give the same witness. Besides every one may here have that best of all testimony, the witness of experience. Just try it and see. "Prove me now herewith, saith the Lord."

I close with a few Scripture texts, and which I trust I may reverently use as part of my testimony, though much broader and better than any of my own, viz:

"Trust ye in the Lord forever, for in the Lord Jehovah is everlasting strength—or the Rock of Ages." "I know whom I have believed, and am persuaded that He is able to keep that which I have committed unto him against that day." "The grass withereth and the flower falleth, but the Word of the Lord endureth forever." "This God is our God forever and ever." "Beloved, now are we children of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be; but we know that when He shall appear we shall be like him, for we shall see Him as he is." ("And I shall see Him face to face, And tell the story—Saved by grace.") "Now unto him that is able to keep you from falling, and to present you faultless before the presence of his glory with exceeding joy, to the only wise God, our Saviour, be glory and majesty, dominion and power, both now and ever."

Los Angeles, Calif.

The Simplicity of Our Church.

(Continued from page 4)

In China a number of the leading denominations are coming together in a Union Church, which is returning as nearly as may be to the simplicity of the Apostles. The leaders of all these churches have agreed upon a form of government which is essentially Presbyterian; that is, a representative democracy.

Simplicity of Christian Life.

A tree is judged by its fruits, and so is a church. We have always upheld a high standard of Christian character, taking as our motto the Master's words, "Be ye perfect even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect." While there is room and a welcome in our church for weak and imperfect Christians, we do not consider them typical, and we prefer to be judged by our giants rather than by our babes.

We require our members to pledge personal loyalty to Jesus Christ as Lord, but instead of laying down complicated, minute rules, we leave to their enlightened conscience the interpretation of questions of conduct. As a result Presbyterians have always been known for their simplicity and their steadfastness, for their loyalty to Christ and His Church, as well as to their homes and their state.

Our Church has always been notable for her missionary zeal. Her gifts of men and women, and of money to support them in their task of making our world Christian, have always been far in excess of her members and her wealth, because Presbyterian simplicity of doctrine and of life have consistently fostered both the desire and ability to give.

Christian Simplicity.

Glancing back now we see that as a rule the Presbyterian Church takes a middle ground. Some churches believe a great deal not to be found in the Bible, and so their doctrines are vastly complicated. Others, partly in protest, believe little. We accept the faith of the fathers as taught in the Book. Some churches tend toward a highly complicated ritual; others prefer practically no form; we follow only such forms as the Apostles found necessary.

Our representative democracy, so far as it is true to our ideals, combines the merits of both the absolute monarchy and the pure democracy. We take the middle ground between those churches which bind the conscience by all sorts of petty rules, and those which afford their members no great assurance of divine sympathy and support. Hence it appears that in all things we strive to conform to the simplicity of the Apostolic Church.

A Personal Invitation.

If you believe in spiritual simplicity, you should unite with the Presbyterian Church. Here is our one requirement for membership: "Do you accept Jesus Christ as your personal Saviour, and do you promise to obey Him as your Lord?"

In receiving our friends into the Church we strive to preserve the simplicity of the apostles. The door into the Presbyterian Church is as broad, we believe, as the door into the Kingdom of Heaven; and God forbid that it should ever be any broader.

Columbia, S. C.

The Prizes Awarded.

Early last fall the Executive Committee of Christian Education and Ministerial Relief offered $50 in prizes, $20 to be given to the author of the best program submitted, $15 for the second, $10 for the third, and $5 for the fourth.

On account of the many interruptions of the war, the influenza, and the signing of the armistice, the decision has been put off from time to time.

One hundred and twenty-six programs were submitted. These were carefully gone over by a committee composed of Miss Alice Eastwood, Mrs. W. M. Charlton, and Mrs. J. G. Fulton.

Scores of the programs were found to be of highest excellence and it was extremely difficult to reach a just decision. The work of those securing the prizes was marked with greater originality and suggestiveness than the others. It was decided to give two first prizes and four fourth prizes.

Miss Mary C. Wily, of Winston-Salem, N. C., submitted "A playlet on Ministerial Relief for Young People's Meetings." Miss Mamie McElwee, of Statesville, N. C., submitted a young people's program on "Christian Education, the Student Loan Fund and Ministerial Relief." As it was impossible to decide between these two a prize of $20 each was forwarded to them.

The second prize was won by Mrs. J. F. Forsyth, of Caledonia, Mo., on a program, "Recruiting for the Ministry," to be used in the Woman's Auxiliary meetings.

The third prize was won by Mrs. Robert S. Sanders, of Thomasville, Ga., on the program, "Christian Education and the Student Loan Fund," to be used in children's meetings.

Two fourth prizes were won by Miss Eva Cavers, of California, Mo., one on the Student Loan Fund and the other on Schools and Colleges, program for young women.

Another prize of $5 was given to Miss Cecil Bowman, of Stuart Robinson College, Indian Bottom, Kentucky, who presented "A Playlet for Ministerial Relief," and the other prize was given to Mrs. G. H. Eversole, of Caledonia, Mo., for a program on "Schools and Colleges."

Many of the other programs submitted are of the very highest rank and will be published from time to time.

We can never fully express our debt of gratitude to these friends who have worked so faithfully and so successfully for the advancement of this department of the Church's work.

In a short while another contest will be opened. We expect to offer the prizes for this in a little more definite way.

Many of those who entered the last contest tried to cover too large a field and made the program too long.

We have a fine assortment of leaflets that will be mailed free of cost to any of the members of our Church who desire to enter the next contest, announcement of which will be made in the near future.

For further information address Henry H. Sweets, Secretary, 410 Urban Bldg., Louisville, Ky.

"Y" Criticisms.

When criticism of the Y. M. C. A. and its work overseas is heard throughout the land—and it is still heard occasionally—it may be just as well to bear in mind the comments of a Presbyterian minister who went overseas as a chaplain after training in the army chaplain's school at Camp Taylor.

"Since the day I entered Camp Taylor to train for the chaplaincy, I have never been out of sight of the wonderful work of the Y. M. C. A.," he writes.

"With all my heart, I am grateful for what it has done for all of us, and it has been with great dissatisfaction that I have observed the criticism. I think it arises out of several facts; some defects in the 'Y' which all admit (but which needn't be harped upon too much, either) the intrinsic difficulty and the overwhelming dimensions of the task, and possibly some malicious purpose to cultivate hostility to the 'Y' for ulterior motives.

"Then, too, soldiers are human, and as such, sometimes have to be disbelieved for their own good. Part of the army has gone home; the sick, insane, wounded and some branches that could be spared first, and some fortunate organizations. Most of us are over here yet and will be here for a while.

"I think I speak for the lads I know when I say that the croakers who are knocking at home are guilty of an ingratitude which we emphatically disavow, and are saying things calculated to kill or cripple the best friend of the million and a half of us who are still here. I will not burden you with details of what the 'Y' has done for me and my men, but will say that it has been great and God bless its efforts."

Five Largest Presbyteries in Our Church.

By Rev. W. E. McIlwaine, D.D.

In a recent issue of the Standard there is this statement: "The Atlanta Presbytery is one of the Great Presbyteries of the Church. Numerically, there are only two that are larger, Fayetteville and Orange, in North Carolina. Mecklenburg runs a close race for a third place but falls short by 136. There are four Synods, each of which has fewer numbers than Atlanta Presbytery and come behind it in gifts and benevolences. It sends six delegates to the General Assembly, a privilege enjoyed by only three others." The author of this statement, generally so very accurate, was evidently incorrect in this case.

The largest Presbytery in our Assembly is the Presbytery of Lexington, in Virginia. Unfortunately the minutes of the Assembly for 1918, which reports the whole number of communicants in this Presbytery, 3,427, made a mistake of 10,000 communicants. The proper number therefore would be 13,427 communicants. The minutes of 1917 credit Lexington Presbytery with 13,212 communicants.

The next largest Presbytery is Fayetteville, in North Carolina. Here the Scotch clans have been gathering for more than a century and a half. There are no large cities in this Presbytery but perhaps more large and flourishing country churches than in any other Presbytery of our Church. Fayetteville Presbytery stands second among the large Presbyteries, with 12,278 communicants.

Mecklenburg Presbytery in 1896 surrendered eleven counties of her territory to form the new Presbytery of Asheville. And again in 1902 gave five more counties to form the new Presbytery of Kings Mountain. This left Mecklenburg Presbytery with only four counties out of an original territory of twenty counties. Notwithstanding this great loss of territory, carrying with it the loss of 2,657 members in Asheville Presbytery and 3,840 members in Kings Mountain Presbytery, this Presbytery stands third among the large Presbyteries of our Church. If these two new Presbyteries were united with the Mother Presbytery, Mecklenburg Presbytery would number over 17,000 communicants. Mecklenburg Presbytery as now constituted numbers 10,710 communicants and is now the third largest Presbytery in our General Assembly.

Atlanta Presbytery is a great Presbytery, in a great city and in a great State, and has made wonderful progress in all the elements of a solid, substantial growth. According to the minutes of 1918, it is credited with 10,366 communicants and is therefore fourth numerically among the largest Presbyteries of our Church.

Orange Presbytery is the Mother Presbytery of all the Presbyteries in North Carolina. It was organized by the Synod of New York and Philadelphia in 1770, at Hawfields Church, in Orange County, N. C. In 1795 the Presbytery of Concord was set off from the Presbytery of Orange. In 1812 the Synod of the Carolinas set off from Orange Presbytery, the Presbytery of Fayetteville. In 1889 the Presbytery of Albemarle was organized from the Presbytery of Orange. Despite these repeated divisions of her territory with consequent loss of ministers, churches and communicants, Orange Presbytery stands fifth numerically among the large Presbyteries of our General Assembly with 9,861 communicants. This article is written simply to keep the record straight.

Pensacola, Fla.

News of the Week

In the Salvation Army drive the Southern States went "over the top."

The proposal to repeal the luxury tax has met unexpected opposition in the House, but its supporters contend that it will be adopted.

In the 500-mile motor race at Indianapolis, two men were burned to death and another killed.

Hon. Wm. J. Bryan will deliver an address in Charlotte, Friday night, June 13th.

Samuel Gompers has promised local Textile Union members to come to Charlotte on Labor Day.

In a naval battle seven British warships routed the Bolshevik fleet in the Gulf of Finland.

The Rhine republic has been proclaimed in various Rhine cities. The population welcomed the event with satisfaction and expressed the hope that it would put an end to the painful uncertainty prevailing in the Rhine provinces regarding the allied nations and Germany.

During a meeting in Burlington, N. C., the tent in which Gypsy Smith was holding a meeting was blown down during an electric storm. Several persons were injured.

Two lives were lost in a fire that destroyed one of the buildings of the Valle Crucis Episcopal Mission School at Valle Crucis, in Watauga County, N. C. Meager reports say two students were burned to death. They were sleeping in the dormitory.

The Second Pan-American Commercial Congress, held in Washington, has adjourned. Twenty-one American republics were represented and 500 delegates were present.

During the past week the bomb throwers began again their work. Explosions took place in seven other cities, besides Washington. Attorney General Palmer's house was wrecked. Thus far nothing definite has been learned.

At their regular monthly meeting recently the Asheville Ministers' Association, composed of every minister in the city, passed resolutions declining to take any Sunday papers and asking that all members of their churches decline to read them.

The charge of Senator Lodge that he has seen in the hands of business interests in New York a copy of the treaty with Germany has led Senator Hitchcock to move the appointment of an investigating committee.

The North Carolina State Federation of Women's Clubs, held at Hendersonville, adjourned to meet next time in Charlotte. Mrs. C. C. Hook, of Charlotte, was elected president.

A Republican committee has been appointed to investigate the war expenses. It consists of 10 Republicans and five Democrats.

The Senate has adopted the Woman's Suffrage resolution by a vote of 56 to 25.

Establishment of new steamship routes between the United States and South and Central America with resultant exchange of mail facilities of the Western Hemisphere, were outlined at session of the Pan-American Commercial Congress by Edward N. Hurley, chairman of the Shipping Board, and Otto Praegar, assistant postmaster general.

The announcement by Chairman Hurley that the Shipping Board plans within six months to institute direct steamship service connecting American Atlantic, Gulf and Pacific ports with South and Central America aroused the greatest enthusiasm of the Congress.

Parcel post service is already instituted between the United States and the Latin-American countries.

A fire of unknown origin last week caused a damage of $1,000 to the warehouse room of the Elliott Knitting Mills in Hickory, N. C. The boxes used for shipping hosiery were stored in the warehouse.

Heretofore it has been illegal to make requests in the United Kingdom for the saying of masses for the dead. The money so left reverted back to the estate for the benefit of the next of kin. The House of Lords recently brought joy to the hearts of Roman Catholics by changing this law. From now on, it is lawful here to make such bequests.

Many anti-prohibition Senators, according to a statement by Senator Jones of Washington, intend to oppose President Wilson's proposition to repeal the provision against beer and wine.

The strike of the employes of the Western Union is still on.

The debates at the Peace Conference among the "Big Four" are said to have been bitter. Lloyd George favors relaxing some of the demands, while Wilson and Clemenceau insist upon the original terms.

The N. C. State Christian Endeavor Convention, which met in Burlington, was a success. Many were in attendance.

It is reported that Secretary Josephus Daniels is to be made President of the University of North Carolina.

High Point, N. C., has purchased at a cost of $35,000 a site for the proposed furniture exposition to be held there.

By an explosion of 3,000 pounds of black powder in a tunnel at Wilkes Barre, Pa., eighty-three persons were killed and fifty others wounded.

A Crown for Every Cross.

The truest words we ever speak
Are words of cheer.
Life has its shade, its valleys deep;
But round our feet the shadows creep,
To prove the sunlight near.
Between the hills those valleys sleep,
The sun-crowned hills,
And down their sides will those who seek
With hopeful spirit, brave though meek,
Find gently-flowing rills.

For every cloud a silver light:
God wills it so.
For every vale a shining height,
A glorious morn for every night;
A birth for labor's throe.
For snow's white wing a verdant field;
A gain for loss.
For buried seed, the harvest yield;
For pain, a strength, a joy revealed,
A crown for every cross.

—The British Weekly.

Christian Endeavor

By Rev. S. H. Hay.

M., June 16—Idolatry: Jer. 10:1-11.
 T., June 17—Philosophical Foolishness: Rom. 1:18-23.
 W., June 18—Converted Idolaters: 1 Thess. 1:2-10.
 T., June 19—The Gospel "Whosoever:" Rev. 22:17.
 F., June 20—Invitation to India: Isa. 55:1-13.
 S., June 21—Offer of Reconciliation: 2 Cor. 5:11-20.

* * *

Topic for Sunday, June 22—Christianity and the Toilers of India—Isa. 40:18-31. (Missionary Meeting).

* * *

India and China are the greatest mission fields of the world. Two-fifths of the human race are packed into these countries. Such teeming, congested masses of humanity live here as cannot be conceived of by those who have not visited these lands.

India, the subject of our study for the week, is not only one of the two major mission fields, but it is one of the most difficult in which to work. The caste system, which is both social and religious, offers the most effective barrier ever raised against the gospel.

Rev. C. A. R. Janvier tells us there are five separate classes—priests, soldiers, traders and agriculturists, laborers, and Pariahs or outcasts. The last named have no social or religious rights that one is bound to respect, and their degradation is almost worse than slavery. Not only their touch, but even contact with their shadow, is counted a pollution by those of the upper grades or caste.

* * *

The gospel collides at once with the caste system. Jesus taught the dignity and high value of a human soul, and commanded that we be not respecters of persons. In the Scriptural view nothing makes one person superior to another but righteousness—and one that has it is the last to claim it and its prerogatives. The missionary is shocked and discouraged in India by the monstrous pride of members of the upper castes, and at their violent opposition to the Christian idea of equality and fraternity.

* * *

When Christ gets into the hearts of the people of India, the system of caste must crumble. The toilers of the lowest classes will no longer be considered as lower than beasts. They will come into their rights as human beings for whom Christ died, and who by title from God are brothers and equals of other men. Along with recognition of the essential value of the soul of the outcast toiler, will come to him also a new character and self respect, and he will begin a new life. There is only one force in the universe that is able or that really cares to break the shackles of the debased toilers of India, and that force is Christianity.

* * *

It will take generations for Christianity to give full social freedom to the toilers of India. Millions of these now wretched human creatures of God's hand must perish without relief during the years before this freedom comes. But now, yes, today the message of the gospel is giving hope to these darkened lives—hope of a better life to come through Jesus Christ. How sweet to them must be the name of Jesus, telling them of His love and of their own infinite worth. How precious must be the assurance the gospel brings that they may be and are heirs of the Father's home in light! Shall we carelessly withhold from them the knowledge of such a Saviour?

* * *

Why has the Southern Presbyterian Church no mission stations in India? Where are the missions of this denomination?

What are you doing to help through missions the toilers of India? What can you do?

If Jesus went to India which one of the castes would he company with?

Mooresville, N. C.

Educational

DAVIDSON.

The following men attained the honor roll (an average grade of 95 or more) for the session just closed: Post-graduates: McCloy, S. T., 98; Craig, A. R., 96.67. Seniors: Woods, E. A., 97; Pharr, N. Y., 96.80; McKeithen, L. B., 96.17; Dunlap, W. T., 95.80 (the two latter of Charlotte); Scott, G. P., 95.50; Lilly, E. G., 95.20. Juniors: Chalmers, D. M., 96.67 (of Charlotte); Calhoun, L. G., 95.50; Askew, S. H., 95.14. Sophomores: Brown, C. K., 96.30; Cumming, W. P., 95.84; Cassell, J. E., 95.67; Boulware, J. R., 95. Freshmen: Richards, J. M., 96.77; Price, J. P., 95.87.

Last week's issue of the "Davidsonian" is by far the most ambitious and the largest in size of the paper ever brought out. While a commencement number and carrying a full write up of the events of the last week, it is especially devoted to the idea of a "Greater Davidson," with an enrollment next session of at least 400 students. The Greater Davidson Club, organized some six weeks ago, states as its aim a bigger and better Davidson through (1) the preservation of the best traditions and highest ideals of the College in the past, (2) greater loyalty and co-operation of the students in all college activities, (3) the wider extension of the College's influence by student and alumni effort.

This issue of the Davidsonian, 10 large pages, carries a number of pictures and photographs. Among these are photographs of Miss Elizabeth Grey, sponsor for the paper, of the graduating class, of Mr. Robt. M. Miller, president of the Alumni Association, and (on the military page) of Lieutenant-Colonel Mueller and of Lieutenant-Colonel J. W. MacConnell.

The class reunions, notably that of the class of '99, were special features of the commencement and give basis for the hope that hereafter these gatherings are to be a more prominent part of the commencement season.

President and Mrs. Martin returned from Pass Christian the first of the week and after a short stay here will go for the summer to Montreat. Dr. Martin is greatly benefited by his visit South and is rapidly regaining strength.

PEACE INSTITUTE.

The finals which occurred May 30-June 3 at Peace Institute brought to a close a year that was the most successful in the history of the school. Although two new buildings have been added the present indications are that capacity for next year will soon be reached and the application list will have to be closed.

On Friday evening, May 30, the Expression Department, under direction of Miss Alice Le Sueur Horsh, presented Sardon's three-act comedy, "A Scrap of Paper." On Saturday evening the intermediate students of the music department gave their recital.

On Sunday morning, at the First Presbyterian Church, Rev. W. D. Moss, of Chapel Hill, preached the baccalaureate sermon. He chose for his text Matthew 5:41, "And whosoever shall compel thee to go a mile, go with him twain." He brought an inspiration to all who heard him to try harder to meet the obligations of life. Sunday evening on the campus the Y. W. C. A. service was led by Miss Mercer, president, and others of the senior class.

The annual concert was given on Monday evening. Class Day events were held Monday afternoon at 5:15. The girls of the college appeared in processional, the graduating seniors coming last, all singing "Alma Mater." Class exercises were simple and occupied about an hour. Miss Lenoir Mercer, president of the class, made a short speech of welcome, and resigned the platform to the honorary class officers. Miss Mary Reed Buchanan was class historian. Miss Isabel Bowen class poet, Miss Mary Steele class prophet, and Miss Jeannie Smith read the last will and

(Continued on page 22)

Sunday School

By Rev. H. G. Hill, D.D.

PRAYER.

Golden Text—Phil. 4-6: "Be careful for nothing but in everything by prayer and supplication, with thanksgiving, let your requests be made known unto God."

Luke 18:1-5-9-15.

June 15, 1919.

Prayer, in a general sense, means speaking to God or an address to Deity. It includes many kinds of speech. It embraces adoration, praise, thanksgiving, confession and petition. There are various kinds of prayer, according to the character of the offerer, the emotions he experiences and the motives which regulate his conduct. Even profane oaths, in which a sinful mortal asks God to inflict injury on his fellow men, are prayers, although the impious speaker may not realize it. Our lesson directs attention to four topics: Importunate Prayer, Proved Prayer, Humble Prayer and the Results of Prayer.

I. Importunate Prayer.

This is Prayer repeated with earnestness and persistence despite discouragements. It is illustrated by the conduct of the selfish, unjust Judge, who had no reverence for God, nor reward for man, and yet was influenced by importunate application to hear the poor widows' complaint and to punish her adversary. He only regarded himself and his own comfort, and granted her petition from purely selfish motives. But if importunity prevailed with such a man, how much more may we expect it to be successful with God Who is not selfish but benevolent, Who is just and wise and good, and Who desires to promote the well-being of His creatures. Jehovah sometimes delays to answer and allows repeated petitions to test our faith and earnestness and to develop patience and perseverance. But He will finally grant prayer for real and promised blessings.

II. The Pharisees' Prayer.

This was dictated by pride and manifested it in many ways. It contains no petition and was addressed as much to himself as to God. He has an exalted opinion of His own character, and conduct. He tells Jehovah what an excellent man he is and how well he performs his duties. He obtains this good opinion of himself by comparing himself with those he deems lower than himself, "the unjust, adulterers and extortioners," and even the despised publican. He does not measure himself with mature saints, nor use divine standards of duty. He affirms that "he fasts twice in the week and gives tithes of all he possesses," as if fasting and tithing, embraced the sum of human duty. His prayer pertained to self and earth, did not reach heaven at all and brought no blessing. It was the utterance of a self-righteous, self-deceived hypocrite.

III. The Publicans' Prayer.

It was the plea of an humble suppliant. He showed his humility by His position, his acts and his words. With a sense of unworthiness he stood afar off from the temple. With bowed head, he smote upon his breast. He cried "God be merciful to me a sinner." Comparing himself with the Divine law and Gospel precepts, he is convinced that he is a sinner. He confesses his sin and seeks forgiveness from Jehovah in his own appointed way. He desires mercy to be shown in the pardon of sin, the renewal of his nature and his restoration to the Divine favor. The Publicans' Prayer is brief but comprehensive and effective. It is humble, trustful, accords with the Divine will and is based upon God's unfailing promise, "Let the wicked forsake his way and the unrighteous man his thoughts and let him return unto the Lord and he will have mercy upon him and to our God for He will abundantly pardon."

IV. The Results of Prayer.

These vary with its nature, the needs of the suppliant and the Divine will. Sometimes prayer is unwise and dictated by improper motives, or lacking in essential element, and can not be granted. At times the things asked for do not accord with the real needs of the suppliant and will not be bestowed by a gracious God. Often our petitions do not agree with the will of God as to their bestowment or as to the time when they shall be given, and we can have nothing that the Divine will does not sanction. In the two prayers of our lesson, that of the Pharisee, did not justify, nor obtain pardon, nor secure blessings. He attempted to justify himself to prove himself a righteous man, and to show that he was entitled to Divine favor. But God affirms of the human race "There is none righteous, no not one." "Our righteousness is as filthy rags." The Pharisee does not admit that he is a sinner; he sought no forgiveness and obtained none. The humble, trustful, penitent Publican, by his prayer, secured "justification." He confessed that he was not just with God. He did not attempt to justify himself or to render himself a just person entitled to Divine favor and the rewards of obedience. He casts himself in all his helplessness and misery upon the Divine mercy, and entreats God to justify Him. This Jehovah does not only by granting Him pardon on account of the atonement made by Christ, but by imputing to him Christ's righteousness and the recreating work of the Holy Ghost.

INTERCHURCH WORLD MOVEMENT OF NORTH AMERICA.

Arrangements have been completed for the Southern Conference of the Interchurch World Movement of North America, which is to be held in Blue Ridge, North Carolina, from June 24 to July 3, according to announcement by R. D. Lodge, director of the conference.

Leaders of national thought in religious, missionary and welfare endeavor have been assigned to present the message of the co-operative project, report the progress already made and lay the foundation for more thorough-going organization in the South. Classes in specialized phases of practical Christianity will be conducted by experts trained in the various home and foreign fields.

This conference and six similar ones in other parts of the country are largely directed by the former personnel of the Missionary Education Movement, which has given up to the Interchurch Movement all the facilities for the missionary training conferences it conducted in past summers. The Laymen's Missionary Movement in like fashion has turned over the service of its forces, which will be employed to strengthen this and the six other meetings this summer.

Blue Ridge expects to receive delegates from practically every Southern organization of any magnitude connected with the missionary and welfare work of the Protestant Churches. Besides these regularly accredited representatives, many other persons from the Southern States, particularly the Carolinas, Virginia, West Virginia, Tennessee, Georgia and Alabama, are making reservations for the full period or part of the conference.

W. E. Doughty, J. Campbell White and Charles H. Pratt are leaders who will address the conference.

Three authors of text books have been secured to lead classes in their own books—Dr. Charles A. Brooks, of New York, author of "Christian Americanization, a Task for the Churches;" David McConaughy, of New York, "Money the Acid Test," and Dr. W. D. Weatherford, the most thorough student of the negro question in the South, "Negro Forces."

Others who will conduct classes are Dr. Herman H. Horne, of New York University; Dr. E. M. Potat, of Boston; Franklin D. Cogswell, of New York; Dr. H. F. Williams, of Nashville, and Miss Grace Lindley, of New York; Miss Gertrude Hutton, of New York; Mrs. Luke Johnson, of Newman, Ga.; Mrs. W. C. Winsborough, of St. Louis; Dr. E. C. Cronk, of New York; Dr. W. Taliaferro Thompson, Knoxville, Tenn.; Mrs. E. C. Cronk, of New York; Miss Nathilde Vossler, of Richmond; Miss Sallie Dean, of Richmond; Mrs. B. E. Copenhagen, of Marion, Ga.; and Dr. Robert W. Patton, director of the nation-wide campaign of the Episcopal Church.

Devotional

LACK OF PRAYER.

The great lack of our life is that we do not pray enough. And there is no failure so disastrous or criminal as this. It is very difficult to account for it. If in all times of discouragement and vicissitude we could have access to one of the wisest and noblest of our fellow-creatures, or to some venerated departed saint, or to the guardian angel deputed to attend our steps, or to the archangel that presides as vicegerent over this system of worlds, how strong and brave we should become. Whatever our need, we would at once seek his august presence, and obtain his counsel and assistance. How extraordinary is our behavior, then, with respect to prayer, that we make so little of our opportunities of access into the presence of our Father, in whom wisdom, love and power blend perfectly, and who is always willing to hear us—nay, is perpetually urging us to come!—F. B. Meyer.

"OUR FATHER."

Hector was going to his last battle. His wife, Andromache, went with him as far as the gates of the city, and with them was a nurse carrying an infant child. When he was about to depart Hector put out his arms to take the child and embrace it in an affectionate farewell, but the little one was terrified by the burnished helmet and the waving plume, and with screams of fear clung to the neck of the nurse. In a moment the father divined the cause of the child's alarm and took off his armor; then, smiling through his tears the little fellow leaped into the father's arms. When men interpret the heavenly Father through the revelation that is sometimes made they take alarm, and, like the children of Israel, ask that he speak to them no more. But to see him as he is revealed in Christ Jesus shows him as a pitying, tender and loving Father, full of grace and love. Through Christ they may come boldly to a throne of grace and find help for every time of need. One of the grandest and most comforting truths that Christ taught the world is embodied in the simple but sublime prayer, "Our Father, which art in heaven."—Methodist Protestant.

THE LORD COMES TO BLESS.

While Dr. Arnot was pastor at Glasgow, his attention was called to a woman who was in great distress, being unable to pay her rent. So he went to her for the purpose of giving her assistance. He rapped at the door, listened and believed he heard someone in the house. He rapped again. The third time he rapped very hard, listened, but heard nothing. After waiting a little while, he made a great noise, and finally went away. A few days afterwards he met the woman on the street and said: "I was at your house the other day; I heard that you could not pay your rent, and I came to assist you." "O, was that you. I was in the house the whole time, but I thought the owner of the house had come to demand the rent, and as I had not the money, I kept the door locked." This woman was a picture of the sinner. He thinks God comes to demand something of him, while in reality God comes to give and to bless. Sinner, open your door and allow Him to enter! "Behold I stand at the door and knock: if any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with Me."—Rev. 3:20.—Ex.

In general, prosperity does not promote piety, but in some cases it does. Here and there are men and women whose delight is in making money for the furtherance of the gospel. The more they make the more they give and the happier they become. There are others, however, who strive to make money and when they succeed they consume it on their own lusts. Their prosperity is their peril.

Home Circle

THE REASON.

By Emilie Holladay Caldwell.

It used to be, the boys' room
Was plenty good for brother,
But now that he's come home again,
You bet, he gets another.
The comp'ny room is all rigged out
In Ma's best rugs and such—
O yes! He can use the things
That us kids dasn't touch.

And in the mornin' brother sleeps
'Till all our breakfast's over
'N we've got our books all strapped for school
And fed the cats and Rover.
But Ma don't seem to mind at all,
Just sits there lookin' cheerful—
When I don't come downstairs on time.
Gee, my reception's fearful!

Why, every day there's comp'ny grub,
Our plates gets helped up heapin',
Pa talks to brother, says, "My son,
They sowed, and now they're reapin'."
'N sure, us kids just lets 'em talk—
We don't care for conversation,
Just so we get six helps and more
And 'scape Ma's observation.

I guess you wonder why this change
Has taken place so recent,
Why we boys stay all washed up
And keeps our clothes half decent;
Why Pa comes early from his work,
Ma's eyes look blue and shinin',
'N she keeps on talkin' 'bout the clouds
Has shown their silver linin'.

The reason is that at our house
We got a hero stayin'—
My brother, he's come home from France
Where he didn't do no playin'.
He's got a wound stripe on his arm—
Shucks! Napoleon ain't in it—
Hush! Did you call me, Brother Tom?
Sure, I'll do it right this minute!

Winnsboro, S. C.

A GOOD REST CURE.

It is found in a very very old-fashioned book, but really it is quite modern and up-to-date, scientific if you will. "Rest in the Lord," the formula reads. Have you ever tried it? We commend it highly. It will do you much more good than either the mountains or the seashore. You know the matter with you is not that you have been working too hard or are bearing too heavy a load of responsibility and duty. The real trouble is that you are carrying around with you too many anxieties and worries about yourself and other people, and the whole world in general. If you could roll these all off once in a while and get an unburdened, fresh, sane outlook upon life in general, and your own life in particular, the tension would leave you and you would find rest and refreshment right down in your very soul. The man who wrote that old recipe knew life to its very core and reality, and spoke out of an experience that sounded the very depths. God is the soul's rest, man's only true sanctuary.—Christian Guardian.

Presbyterian Standard

PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY AT CHARLOTTE, N. C.
ESTABLISHED JANUARY 1, 1858.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, $2.50 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE.
REV. W. L. BOGGS, Circulation Manager.

A Religious Newspaper for the Family, Devoted to the Interest of Christ's Kingdom as Represented by the Southern Presbyterian Church.

Entered at the Post Office at Charlotte, N. C., as second class matter.

CONTENTS OF THIS ISSUE

EDITORIAL—	PAGE.
Old-Time Religion	2
Rotation in Church Officers	2
A Correction	2
Ephraim and His Idols	3
Montreat and the Action of the General Assembly.	3
The Atlanta Conference, June 10-12.....	3
CONTRIBUTED—
The Simplicity of Our Church—By Rev. Andrew W. Blackwood, D.D.....	4-8
To the Jordan in an American-Made Lorry—By R. E. Magill	5
From Thornwell Orphanage—By Rev. L. Ross Lynn	5
The Prayer of a Tired Heart—By Mary D. Brine.	5
The Young People's Conference of North Carolina Synod—By J. R. B.....	6
Worry and Its Cure—By Rev. W. A. Murray..	6
The Law of a King—By Stanley F. Davis.....	6
Courtesy Among Ministers	7
Ovation for President Wilson	7
Two Bits of Testimony at Fourscore—By Rev. Geo. L. Leyburn, D.D.....	8
The Prizes Awarded	9
"Y" Criticisms	9
Five Largest Presbyteries in Our Church—By Rev. W. E. McIlwaine, D.D.....	9
Evangelistic Notes—By Rev. R. F. Kirkpatrick..	18
DEPARTMENTS—
News of the Week	10
Christian Endeavor—By Rev. S. H. Hay	11
Prayer Meeting—By Rev. C. D. Waller	11
Sunday School—By Rev. H. G. Hill, D.D.	12
Home Circle and Devotional	13
Church News, Etc.	14-19

ANNOUNCEMENT.

 The label on the paper gives the date to which subscription is paid.
When change of address is desired, give both the old and the new address.

Church News

Collections for June are for Home Missions. Treasurer, A. N. Sharp, 1522 Hurt Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

The collections for June in the North Carolina Synod are for Synodical Home Missions, as ordered by the Synod. The Synod further orders that one good, well-announced collection be taken in each Sunday School for this work, in June. Treasurer: Rev. A. W. Crawford, Greensboro.

DEATH OF REV. GEORGE W. BUTLER.

A cablegram received from Rev. W. M. Thompson, of our North Brazil Mission, brings the sad intelligence of the death of our veteran missionary, Rev. G. W. Butler, on May 30. The cable contained only the words "Dr. Butler asleep," and gave no particulars as to the circumstances of his death.

He was one of the great missionary heroes of our Church and the story of his life, if it could be given, would be one of thrilling interest.

Dr. Humphrey Butler, his son, lived with his father at Canhotinho, Brazil, and will carry on his father's work in the hospital until some one can be sent out to supply his place. Mrs. Butler is now at her home in Goldsboro, N. C. We are sure that the sympathies of our entire Church will go out to these friends in their bereavement. The Executive Committee of Foreign Missions feels that in Dr. Butler's death we have sustained an almost irreparable loss.
S. H. Chester.

PERSONALS.

Rev. R. M. Phillips, of Summerville, S. C., has moved to Pittsboro, N. C., and his address has been changed accordingly.

We enjoyed a visit from Rev. F. O. Hellier, pastor of Laurel Hill and Smyrna Churches, near Laurinburg. He has been over the sea at the front and has just returned home.

Rev. Julian S. Sibley, pastor of Tenth Avenue Church of this city, has been called to the pastorate of the First Presbyterian Church, Waycross, Ga. The call was hearty and unanimous. He has not yet announced his decision.

At the conclusion of the Young People's Conference, held at Queens College, Charlotte, from June 2-8, thirteen young people offered themselves for the mission field. Dr. E. W. Smith was present the last day and made two fine addresses.

We have received the announcement of the marriage at Soochow, China, of Rev. Lacy Little to Miss Nellie Peck Sprunt, the daughter of Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Alexander Sprunt, of Charleston, S. C. Our best wishes are extended to both.

Rev. S. W. Moore, who has been for fourteen months engaged in Y. M. C. A. work with the American troops in France, has resumed his pastoral work at Bluefield, W. Va. His brother, Rev. L. L. Moore, who supplied his pulpit during his absence, has returned to his pastorate at Taylorsville, N. C.

The Executive Committee of Foreign Missions has a large number of photogravures of the late Dr. W. H. Forsythe and the late Rev. Wm. M. Junkin, former missionaries of our Church to Korea. The pictures are 13x16 inches in size, in duotone brown, on extra heavy cream enamel paper, with velvet finish, giving soft, pastel effect. The price is 25 cents each, postpaid. These pictures should be unveiled in every Southern Presbyterian Sunday school this year. Order from Rev. John I. Armstrong, D.D., Educational Secretary, P. O. Box 158, Nashville, Tenn.

Rev. John Allan MacLean, of Maxton, N. C., who has been for the past year and a half a chaplain in the Army, expects to sail from Liverpool about July 12. For several months he has been taking a course at the University of Edinburgh, having received the appointment from the educational department of the A. E. F. Chaplain MacLean's friends will be gratified at the following extract from a report of his commanding officer of the 315th Field Artillery:

"I desire to mention that I consider Chaplain John A. MacLean one of the best chaplains I have ever known in my seventeen years' service. I have known Chaplain MacLean since December, 1917, and he has been untiring in his work for the men not only of this command, but others, when we were at the front. The weather was never too bad, the night too dark, or the fighting too hard to prevent him from going about his acts of mercy for the living and performance of the last rites for the departed."

NORTH CAROLINA.

Banks—At the morning service at Banks Church last Sabbath there was one addition to the membership on confession and baptism.

Salisbury—The First Church has engaged Rev. R. S. Arrowood, Jr., to supply their pulpit during the absence of Dr. Byron Clark, who has been for some time under treatment for cataract of the eye.

Mooresville First—As an appreciation of his faithful services the congregation of the First Presbyterian Church, Saturday evening, presented its pastor, Rev. S. H. Hay, with a nice automobile.—Statesville Landmark.

Kings Mountain—We learn that this Church has made out a call for the pastoral services of Rev. Fred J. Hay, of Liberty, S. C. Mr. Hay is a recent graduate, and is a brother of Rev. S. H. Hay, of Mooresville, N. C., whose notes for the Christian Endeavor Societies are highly valued by our readers.

Pineville—There were received last Sabbath into the Pineville Church nine members on confession and examination, as a result of a union meeting recently held by the Methodist, Baptist and Presbyterian Churches. Rev. A. LaMonds, of Greer, S. C., did the preaching.

Bethesda Church, Aberdeen—This church recently received eleven new members—three by letter and eight on profession of faith. We are looking forward with pleasure and interest to a protracted service to be conducted by Dr. O. G. Jones during June 15-22.

V. R. Gaston, Pastor.

Montreat—The N. C. Religious Workers' Home at Montreat will be open about June 25. Board and lodging will be furnished our workers at the lowest possible terms, to give them opportunity to attend the conferences.

For rates write Mrs. N. A. Barnes, Davidson, N. C., until June 20. After that date address her at Montreat.
C. M. Richards, Chairman Com.

Lincolnton—The following new officers were recently ordained and installed in this church: Elders—John C. Ramsaur, J. B. Johnston, V. M. Ramsaur and J. W. Mullen. Deacons—J. L. Hunter, W. T. Hall, P. M. Keever, M. A. Putnam, Fred H. Ramsaur, Richard A. Ramsaur. These choice men have greatly strengthened our organization and we have also been encouraged by the reception in the last few weeks of seventeen new members, ten on profession of their faith and seven by letter.

Raeford—This church has just enjoyed a splendid revival. Rev. C. Connor Brown, our Synodical Evangelist, preached two weeks, closing May 11. His preaching was plain, pointed and practical, making no compromise with sin, but enforcing the truth concerning sin. The church was revived and we believe that much lasting good was done. More than 300 signed the cards rededicating themselves to Christ and more than 50 signed decision cards. Of these, 25 have joined the Presbyterian Church and five the M. E. Church.

The offering of the congregation for Synodical Home Missions was $240.58. Mr. Brown made many friends here who would be glad to have him come again.

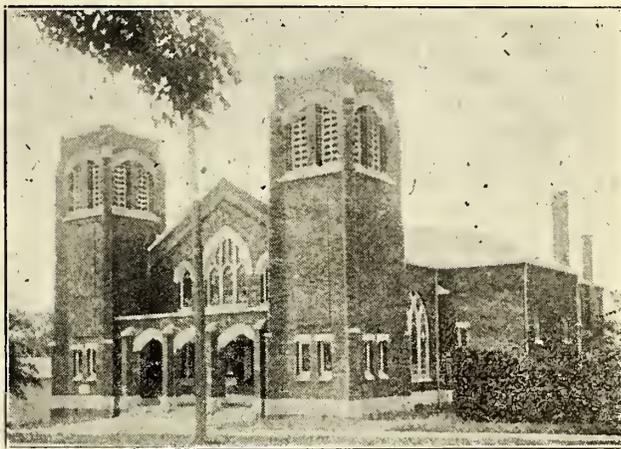

St. Pauls—Rev. E. C. Murray, D.D., was installed pastor Sunday afternoon, May 25. Dr. G. E. Moorehouse preached the sermon, Rev. J. K. Hall presided and charged the pastor, and Elder, Dr. Thomas Stamps, gave a very effective charge to the people.

The next Sunday, Rev. C. E. Parker, a Methodist missionary reared in this neighborhood, told a thrilling story of the miraculous work of grace among the Telugus of India. That evening about forty of our young people acted the Four-Square Pageant prepared by the pastor's wife, exhibiting the work of our church in its four great departments, which was very instructive and inspiring. The offering for the Korean Mission amounted to about $60.

A supplementary canvass of the congregation for the Flora Macdonald endowment completes a subscription list of $4,273.

Last Sunday afternoon fifteen teams of young men from the three congregations took a thorough census of the town and mill villages, and the pastors are now tabulating the results and following up the canvass.

Lincolnton Church, Rev. W. S. Wilson, D.D., Pastor.

Lincolnton—The Presbyterian Church at Lincolnton, which is shown above, was begun in July, 1917, and was completed in the spring of 1918, the first service being held on Easter Sunday of that year. The new church is built on the site of the old church, which was used exactly twenty-five years and was built during the pastorate of Rev. R. Z. Johnston, of blessed memory not only in Lincolnton but throughout the Synod of North Carolina. The plans were drawn by Mr. C. C. Hook, of Charlotte, on the same general lines as the Westminster Church of Greensboro, of which he was also the architect. The walls are faced with Tennessee rug brick, trimmed with Indiana limestone, which with the style of the architecture gives the building a very massive as well as pleasing appearance. The general plan of the interior is the Akron plan with two auditoriums, the one opening into the other by means of a large sliding door hung on counter weights. The main auditorium is in the form of a square seating three hundred with entrance from three vestibules. The pulpit is in the corner opposite the main entrance with choir alcove at the left of the speaker and Sunday School auditorium on his right. This auditorium is pleasingly lighted with four large and three small stained glass windows, nearly all of which are memorials to former devoted members of this congregation who are held in loving recollection by the present generation. The Sunday School is departmentized, the departments being arranged around the Sunday School auditorium. The beginners and primary departments are in the rear and can be separated when desired from the S. S. auditorium and from each other by rolling partitions. The ladies' parlor and session room are also on this floor and open into the S. S. auditorium. They can also be entered from a side entrance, which gives access to the choir loft and to the pulpit platform from the rear. The junior and intermediate departments are on another floor over the primary department and the ladies' parlor and session room. The class rooms in these departments are separated by folding doors which allow each department to be thrown into one room when desired. On this floor there is also a small library room and a large room for the Men's Bible Class. The Sunday School auditorium can be entered from a main entrance on the side of the building, or from the main auditorium, or through the session room.

The church has a well lighted basement under the S. S.

auditorium, which is designed for social purposes. The heating is by hot air furnace with a fan driven by an electric motor. This fan forces the warm air into the two auditoriums and drives the impure air out through an air duct back of the pulpit platform. This fan is also used in summer for ventilation.

The church is equipped with three lavatories. Both auditoriums are carpeted and seated with handsome oak pews. The inside walls are tinted in an attractive color scheme designed by the architect and the lighting is by indirect light. The acoustics are ideal. The total cost of the building exclusive of furniture for the class rooms and ladies' parlor was $25,000.00.

Charlotte—Capt. H. M. Laurene, who spent 18 years and two months in a Turkish Dungeon and who was recently released by the French and British is traveling in the United States lecturing on his fearful experiences. Several weeks ago he came to Charlotte and, being ill, was taken to the Presbyterian Hospital, where the treatment he received so impressed him that he sent the following appreciation to the Charlotte Observer:

"Two weeks ago I was brought to this hospital, weak from wounds, emaciated from long imprisonment, and prostrated from illness. I was a helpless stranger in a strange land, but from the depths of a grateful heart I want to say that from my first conscious moments I knew I was among people akin to God. Having been a soldier all my life I should know something of hospitals and hospital nurses, those Angels of the Death beds and battlefields.

"Never in my experience have I found a purer, truer, and more faithful and sympathetic body of prospective nurses than I found at the Presbyterian Hospital. They are offering their pure young lives a willing sacrifice upon the altar of human misery, and no one but a helpless patient from a foreign land knows the extent of that sacrifice and the ineffable holiness of its purpose.

"There are many things that I would be glad to forget but I want to remember throughout eternity the cheering words, the sun-kissed smile and kindly, loving services that made suffering a pleasure and pain a myth.

"Should I wish to mention someone who performed some kindly loving service I should begin with the name of Dr. J. R. Alexander and end with the latest probationer and conclude the long list of nurses, not omitting one, with the following tender lines:

"The heart, the heart, that's truly blest,
 "Is never all its own;
 "No ray of glory lights the breast
 "That beats for self alone.

"Though it should throb at gentlest touch
 "Or sorrow's faintest call
 "'Twere better it should ache too much
 "Than never ache at all."

"I know their limbs are weary and their young hearts pain them when the night time comes, but if days spent in deeds of mercy bring peaceful slumbers, they rest as peacefully as do the palid tenants of the tomb and you know that hearts of dust do not break; the dead do not weep.

"May God protect the Presbyterian Hospital and bless and broaden the sacrifices of its corps of earnest, faithful nurses.

"H. M. Laurine,
 "June 5, 1919. "Bordeaux, France."

Fayetteville Presbytery met, pursuant to adjournment, in the First Church, Fayetteville, June 3, 1919, at 12 o'clock noon, and was called to order and led in prayer by the Moderator, Rev. J. J. Hill. There were in attendance 24 ministers and eight ruling elders.

Red Springs and Lumberton churches were granted permission to increase the salaries of their pastors from $1,800 per annum to $2,000 per annum, beginning April 1 last.

A communication from Rev. J. F. Gorrell was received, and he was excused for non-attendance upon former meetings.

Arrangements have been completed for Rev. J. J. Hill to supply Shannon Church until next meeting of Presbytery. The salaries of two of our Home Mission workers, Revs. J. A. Caligan and E. E. Washburn, have been increased to $1,460 and $1,500, respectively, by increases from their fields and from the Home Mission funds.

A committee consisting of Revs. J. K. Hall and A. R. McQueen, and Ruling Elder I. A. Murchison, was appointed to investigate the title and ownership of the Smithfield manse and report for suitable action at the next meeting.

The committee to install Rev. E. C. Murray at St. Paul's reported this duty performed on Sunday, May 25, 1919.

The Committee on Church and Christian Education recommended an application to the Assembly's Committee for aid to Rev. J. McL. Wicker for the sum of $400 per year. Adopted.

The church at Elise School, with several school houses was constituted a mission field, and an effort will be made to get a young man to take charge of it in the near future.

Rev. L. Smith, our faithful evangelist, was granted a vacation of one month at such time as he sees fit to take it.

Rev. J. M. Clark, of Concord Presbytery, was requested to meet with this Presbytery at Jackson Springs, and remain over Sabbath and preach for the local church—this was done at the special request of the church.

Rev. G. E. Moorehouse, chairman of the committee on the Sabbath, submitted an able report on the Sabbath, which was adopted. One of the recommendations adopted was as follows: "That this Presbytery records its objection to the suggestion of the Assembly's committee that even any part of the Sabbath day be used for worldly amusements and outdoor recreations, as driving, automobiling, boating, etc., in hours other than the hours of public worship."

The following additional appointments were made for the Summer Evangelistic campaign: To hold meeting at Pittsboro, G. E. Moorehouse. To hold meeting at Haywood, E. E. Washburn. To hold meeting at Mt. Vernon Springs, F. O. Hellier.

It was ordered that the treasurer, in sending out statements to the churches, regarding contributions for Presbyterian Home Missions, inform them that these apportionments have been increased 50 per cent.

Messrs. F. M. Bain and D. McD. Monroe, candidates under our care, were licensed as probationers for the Gospel ministry. Licentiate Bain was dismissed to Norfolk Presbytery, and Licentiate Monroe to Greenbrier Presbytery.

Presbytery adjourned to meet at Jackson Springs, September 30, 1919, at 8 o'clock p. m.

E. L. Siler, Stated Clerk.

Synodical Home Missions—Receipts Spring Meetings of Presbyteries to May 31.

Albemarle Presbytery:
St. Andrew's (Rev. Wm. B.)	$ 64.53
Washington First	25.00
	$ 89.53
Concord Presbytery:
Barium Springs L. M. S.	5.00
Hickory	20.00
	$ 25.00
Fayetteville Presbytery:
Alaska (Rev. A. W. C.)	18.40
Big Rockfish	11.70
Fayetteville First (Rev. Wm. B.)	142.13
Lumber Bridge	40.00
Parkton	5.00
Raeford (Rev. C. C. B.)	240.58
Sardis L. H. and F. M. Soc.	5.00
Sherwood	2.85
	$ 465.66

Kings Mountain Presbytery:

Gastonia First	$ 100.00
Loray (Rev. O. G. J.).....	65.00
	<hr/>
	$ 165.00

Mecklenburg Presbytery:

Charlotte Second S. S.....	$ 10.00
Hamlet	6.00
	<hr/>
	16.00

Orange Presbytery:

Alamance (A. W. C.)	$ 30.00
Alamance (S. S. $3.09)	8.59
Clerk Mem.	2.85
Danbury	2.00
Greensboro First	30.09
Milton (A. W. C. $12.09)	16.09
N. Wilkesboro (Rev. Wm. B.).....	184.00
Reynolda S. S.	4.00
Spray (Draper), (Rev. O. G. J.).....	163.87
Thomasville	2.00
Waighton W. Aux.	8.15
Winston First W. Aux.	17.99
	<hr/>
	$ 469.63

Wilmington Presbytery:

Bethany W. Aux. Alb. Supt.....	$ 3.00
Grove (Rev. O. G. J.)	40.00
Immanuel (Rev. C. C. B.).....	105.00
Jauksonville (Rev. C. C. B.).....	60.50
Mt. Olive S. S.	4.32
Mt. Zion	17.00
Pollocksville (Rev. O. G. J.).....	25.00
South River W. Aux. Alb. Supt.....	3.00
Wilmington First	100.00
	<hr/>
	$ 357.82

Total Spring Meetings Presbyteries to May 31. $ 1,588.64
 Previously reported 14,597.12

Total Synod to May 31.....$16,185.76
 A. W. C.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

Westminster Presbyterian Church, Charleston—Miss Ellen King, of this Church, left a legacy of two thousand dollars ($2,000.00) to the Woman's Missionary Society, to be dedicated to Foreign Missions. The Society recently sent the money to the Executive Committee of Foreign Missions, to establish memorial scholarships in the Hangchow Christian College, Hangchow, China. The fund is to be known as "The Ellen King Memorial of Westminster Presbyterian Church, Charleston, S. C."

Pee Dee Presbytery—At a called meeting of Pee Dee Presbytery, held in Florence, S. C., June 5th, the pastoral relation between Rev. T. F. Haney and the Hartsville Church was dissolved and Mr. Haney was at his own request dismissed to the Presbytery of Concord, N. C., in order that he might accept a call to the Second Presbyterian Church of Mooresville, N. C.

Rev. John McSween, who recently returned from France, where he served as a chaplain in the A. E. F., was granted a letter of dismissal to Fayetteville Presbytery. He has accepted calls from the churches of Rowland and Ashepole.
 A. H. McArn, S. C.

Waxhaw (N. C.), Bethel Presbytery—Tirzah Church celebrated the eighty-eighth birthday of their pastor, Rev. W. W. Ratchford, with a picnic at the manse. It was a very pleasant day. Owing to the very busy season there was not as large a crowd as would have been if it had been otherwise. Mr. Ratchford has been pastor of Tirzah more than twenty years. He preaches every Sunday with as much vigor and force as a man of thirty. The congregation presented Mr. Ratchford with a gift on his birthday, and Tirzah deserves to be placed on the honor roll, they having raised his salary one hundred dollars.—Christian Observer.

GEORGIA.

Atlanta, Westminster—This congregation is rejoicing in the coming of their new pastor, Rev. Jno. W. Caldwell, Jr., D.D. Dr. Caldwell has been greeted by large audiences and has entered upon his pastorate here with great acceptance.

Atlanta—On Sabbath, June 1, this congregation called Dr. Jno. H. Elliott, of Philadelphia, to be its pastor, and they have every assurance that Dr. Elliott will accept. Dr. Elliott has been supplying the North Avenue Church in the absence of Dr. Flynn, who is in Europe at present. This church feels that it will be very fortunate to secure his services.

Atlanta, Inman Park—Mr. Norman Johnson, of the recent graduation class of Union Theological Seminary, has accepted the hearty call extended him recently by this congregation and expects to enter upon his ministry the first of July.

Atlanta, Peachtree Heights—For some time past, the First Church has been conducting a Sabbath School at this point. Recently Rev. F. D. Stevenson was secured as minister and it is confidently believed that in a short while a flourishing church will be developed there.

Cedartown—Rev. T. M. Stribling, for nearly six years pastor of this Church, has accepted a call to the group of churches at Jefferson, Ga., and expects to enter upon his new duties at once. On May 23, the Presbytery of Cherokee, at an adjourned meeting at Rome, Ga., dissolved the pastoral relation between Rev. Mr. Stribling and the Cedartown Church in order for him to accept this call. At his last service as pastor five young people of the Sabbath School assumed for themselves the vows of church membership and five children of the covenant were baptized at the preceding service.

Atlanta, West End—The Men's Association of this church is making splendid progress and doing a really great work. On Sunday night, May 25th, the men took charge of the evening service and conducted a wonderful meeting in the presence of a large congregation. The following Sunday about twenty of them went out to a mission point just beyond the city limits and conducted a gospel service there with great acceptance. They propose now to conduct at least one Sunday evening service each month and two of the prayer meetings, in addition to any other religious service that they may be called upon for at other places.

At a recent congregational meeting Messrs. J. S. Boardman, R. M. Clayton, L. A. Hollingsworth and Geo. H. Seal were unanimously elected as deacons, and on the following Sabbath were ordained and installed.

KENTUCKY.

Lexington, Maxwell Street—On the 28th of May, Rev. R. G. McLees, of Chatham, Va., closed an eleven-day meeting with us. The attendance at all the services was good, and a deep interest was manifest from the beginning. The congregation was thoroughly prepared for his coming by six weeks of intensive work, and by a week of prayer immediately preceding the opening of the meeting. Personal visits were made by the officers and other workers to those whom we hoped to reach through the meeting.

There is a universal feeling that no more helpful meeting has ever been held in the church or community. While Mr. McLees was with us forty-four were received into the church. Thirty-one of these were received on profession of faith, seven by statement, and six by letter. About twelve will go to other churches, and others who made a decision during the meeting will later be received into this church. Since the first of April the church has had an increase in membership of seventy-five.

LOUISIANA.

New Orleans Presbytery—The Home Missions Committee misses Dr. J. W. Caldwell, Jr., for so many years its faithful treasurer. Dr. Louis Voss, of 819 First Street, New Orleans, will for the present fill his place. Church treasurers, pastors, and others interested, are asked to note this.

New Orleans—Rev. Dr. A. R. Shaw, recently of the Southwestern Presbyterian University, Clarksville, Tenn., has been engaged as supply of the First Church for six weeks, beginning June 8. Following him, Rev. Dr. D. H. Ogden, of Louisville, Ky., will supply the pulpit for a few weeks.

New Orleans Notes—The people of the Presbyterian Churches are resting, with most happy memories, after the great Assembly meeting. They are receiving scores of letters from their recent guests, and appreciate them. They are especially pleased with the realization by their guests of the peculiar difficulties of domestic service these days. The Carrollton Church had Rev. W. G. Harry for its preacher last Sunday, it and the Palmer Park Church uniting in the service. Favorable reports come as to Dr. Cornelson, pastor of the First Church.

New Orleans—In the great automobile trip given the New Orleans Assembly, there were more than eighty machines. Seven were sent by the mayor, Hon. Martin Behrman, and six by the Association of Commerce and Banks. Most of the cars were driven by their owners, who acted as intelligent guides for the visitors. The trip was one of a little more than sixty miles, and took three hours and a half, without stop. Every point of interest connected with Presbyterianism in New Orleans was passed, for it was truly "A Presbyterian Pilgrimage," and most other points of interest in the city were seen, from the vast steel docks on the Mississippi River banks to the great Sea Wall and Drive on the shore of Lake Ponchartrain. The credit for the organization and accomplishment of this great trip is due to Hon. W. O. Hart, a member of the First Church, a man noted for his activity in everything that will add to the information and pleasure of the people and visitors of New Orleans.

Clinton—The Silliman Collegiate Institute, the only Presbyterian institution in Louisiana, closed its sixty-seventh year on May 27. Under the able management of Rev. U. B. Currie and his wife, with a fine faculty, the year just past has been a most successful one in every way, with large attendance, fine health, and good financial results. The commencement exercises began with a striking sermon by Dr. Jasper K. Smith, of Shreveport, on "Keep thy heart with all diligence, for out of it are the issues of life." Successful expression and musical recitals were held. The graduating exercises took place Tuesday evening. Twenty-one young ladies received diplomas. The address to the graduates was delivered by Dr. George Summey, of New Orleans, on the theme, "The Extraordinariness of the Ordinary." In addition to their diplomas, all the young ladies received special certificates showing completion of the required course in "First Aid," given by the health officer of the parish. The chapel in the attractive, stately building of the Institute was filled with eager listeners at all the exercises, and there was every manifestation of pride and satisfaction in the successful institution.

An active minister of our Church for good reasons wishes to secure a new field of labor. Address Editor of the Standard.

Woman's Auxiliary

Program for the Young People's Rally of Orange Presbyterial at Durham, June 17-18:

Tuesday Night, 8:30—Music; prayer; pageant, Durham young people; address, "Our Work Over There," Mrs. W. B. Ramsey, Hickory.

Wednesday Morning, 10 O'clock—Devotional, Miss Mary Roan, Winston; Welcome, Miss Helen Beall, Durham; Response, Miss Blanche Scott, Graham; enrollment of delegates; "The Least of These," Mrs. A. W. McAlister, Greensboro; duet, Misses Bron and Crawford, Greensboro; "Our Young People's Organization, Mrs. Lynn Williamson, Graham; address, "The home Fires," Rev. J. G. Walker, Greensboro; reports of delegates.

Wednesday Afternoon, 2 O'clock—Devotional, Miss Evangeline Brown, Greensboro; report of Charlotte Conference; "Christian Endeavor and Church Causes," Miss Agnes Jones, Greensboro; Young People's Conference at Montreat; report of delegates completed; adjournment.

EVANGELISTIC NOTES.

Rev. Trigg A. M. Thomas, D.D., has just closed a splendid meeting in the Central Presbyterian Church, Oklahoma City, in which there were 27 professions of faith and 12 recorded decisions to move their church letters to the Central Church. The church was graciously revived, and a splendid sum was raised for local expenses and church support.

Rev. F. E. Fincher, D. D., began his labors as one of our General Evangelists with a meeting at Muskogee, Okla., in which 147 decision cards were signed for confession and church membership. This meeting was followed by a 10-day meeting in the First Church, Wilmington, N. C., which was remarkably successful, though a detailed report has not reached the office.

Dr. Fincher's labors in the evangelistic field have begun under the most auspicious circumstances, and any pastor or church desiring to secure the services of Dr. Fincher should address him at Houston, Texas.

Rev. Geo. W. Belk, D.D., has recently closed a meeting at Leesburg, Fla., in which there were 30 professions of faith. From Leesburg, Dr. Belk goes to Farmville, Va.

Rev. R. A. Brown has begun his work with us as Regional Evangelist in Arkansas and Oklahoma, and is rendering fine service in a variety of ways. His list of engagements is rapidly filling up, and we believe he is entering upon a useful ministry in those important states.

Rev. W. H. Miley, D.D., is engaged at present in a steady and very fruitful campaign among the churches in Charleston Presbytery. He recently closed a meeting at the Harmony Church, in which there were 21 professions, and a splendid offering for the support of the work.

The Executive Committee is happy to offer its good offices to any pastor in the Assembly who may desire the services of a minister or an evangelist for special services. Correspondence should be addressed to the undersigned at 1522 Hurt Building, Atlanta, Ga.

Rev. R. F. Kirkpatrick, D.D., Chairman,
Sub-Committee on Evangelism.

Say not, "It matters not to me;
My brother's weal is his behoof."
For in this wondrous human web
If your life's warp, his life is woof.
Woven together are the threads,
And you and he are in one loom;
For good or ill, for glad or sad,
Your lives must share one common doom.
Author unknown.

Story and Incident

The Home-Coming of Curley.

NANCY ELLEN hurried down the path which led to the "settlement." The rhododendrons swished her skirts as she hastened on, but she did not see them. In a tall poplar a Kentucky Cardinal was fairly bursting his throat with delirious music, but she did not hear him. Only one thought occupied her mind: Curley was coming home today! The one-train-a-day came in at three fifteen, and she must be there. Curley mustn't come home and find no one to meet him; he who had been a soldier in France for more than a year.

"A year?" Nancy tried to think it was only a little over a year, but she couldn't. It seemed a lifetime since Curley had given up his place as weigher down at the coal mines, and kissing Nancy and Granny good-bye, had bravely gone away to serve his country.

A year, and every week of that year, Nancy had gotten out the big stone ink-bottle, and the old stub pen, and with her cramping and aching fingers, had penned a letter to Curley. The burden had fallen heavy on Nancy, for Granny couldn't write. But Nancy had been faithful to her task. And if she had only known it, many were the times that tears fell on those scratched and blotted pages when they arrived over there—"somewhere in France."

But now Curley was coming home! He'd been a good soldier, Nancy knew that. He could shoot. My! How he could shoot! No squirrel could climb high enough in the tall poplars to escape his unerring aim. He had been a "sniper" over in France. He'd written that. Nancy didn't know what that was, but she thought it was about the same as General, and she had told Granny so. Curley had been wounded, too. He had written that, and now—now, in just an hour she would see him. It seemed to Nancy that her heart would burst with pride and joy. It thumped so hard that it ached, and she wanted to put up her hand to still it.

Aud Curley didn't need to be ashamed of the little old cabin either. Nancy swelled up with pride when she thought of that cabin.

"Mebby he won't know it when he sees it," she murmured.

When Curley went away there hadn't been a window in the cabin. Granny had always said that enough light and air came in at the door when the sun was shining, and if it were night there wouldn't be any more light if the whole cabin was made of windows. So what was the good of these new-fangled contraptions?

But one day all this had changed. It was several months after Curley had gone. Nancy had been down at the settlement selling eggs, and had noticed that many of the little frame houses of the town had small red and white flags hung in the windows. And on the white part there were blue stars; some had one star, others had two, and one even had three.

"What they for?" Nancy had asked of one of her egg customers.

"Land sakes, child!" the woman had exclaimed, "are you that ignorant you don't know? Them's service flags."

"What they for?" Nancy had asked.

"Why to show that you got some one in the army. Sort of shows you're loyal, you know."

"We're loyal," Nancy had said slowly. "Granny and I, we're loyal, all right, and we got somebody in the army, too—Curley. But we ain't got a service flag like that."

She had gone home thinking soberly about it. The next day she had gone to the hills "sengin" and fortune had favored her. Hid away, under some dead leaves, she had found three splendid roots of ginseng.

"I'll buy a service flag with it," she had said, and then her heart had stopped beating and she had slumped down in the pile of dead leaves.

"We ain't got a winder," she moaned, "and how can you hang out a service flag without a winder? And h'its for Curley!"

She rose then, fiercely determined. There should be a window. She'd earn the money herself. And she had done it. Then one day, when Granny was gone down to the village, "Hen" Tumbleton had come up and "sawed it in." There it was, service flag and all, when Granny came laboring up the hill.

"Land of Goshen!" she had panted at sight of it. "Where'd it come from?"

Nancy had hardly known whether to laugh for joy or cry for fear, so she had done both. Then Granny had caught her and crooned over her.

"That's all right, child; that's all right. I jest found out about them flags today, and I said to myself, 'H'it ain't right not to have one for Curley.' And land sakes! Here one is right now!"

That had been months ago, but the service flag was still hanging in the window, and Curley was coming home on the three fifteen.

But, what was this? As Nancy hurried around a point that brought her almost within sight of the settlement, the air was suddenly filled with martial music.

"That's the fife and drum corps," she said to herself, "wonder what they're playing for?" She was getting a bit frightened. She was always afraid of crowds, but she must go on. Curley must not come home and not be met.

As she came in sight of the depot she stopped dead still. The little station seemed an island surrounded by a sea of people, flags and banners.

"Now ain't that the worst luck!" She stamped her foot. "Them goin' on a picnic, or somethin', and me comin' to meet Curley. I just know I can't get up to the train!" But suddenly her face took on a determined look, "I got to!" she said fiercely, "and I just will!"

Her timidity had disappeared, as she reached the outer edge of the throng and heard the train screeching around the curve a mile away.

A big miner, standing at the edge of the crowd, suddenly found his back being pummeled by small fists.

"Git out 'o my way, can't you?" Nancy panted. "Can't you see I got 'a get there to meet my brother?"

"Huh!" grinned the man, "you've got a fine chance to meet your brother! Why, child! Don't you know? H'it's our first soger coming home?"

"And I guess my brother's a soldier," almost wailed Nancy. "And he's been in France for a year, and he's been a General—er somethin', and he's been wounded. Curley—h'its Curley, and he's comin' home. Let me by, can't you? Oh, please, mister, help me by?" Nancy was sobbing now in earnest.

The man was staring at her.

"Curley—he ain't your brother, is he? Why, child! Well! There, now, I told 'em he must have some relative. Here you are. Now don't cry, I'll take you right up."

He swung Nancy to his shoulder, and with a bellow that drowned the train's whistle, he started pushing his way through.

"H'it's his sister! H'it's Curley's sister!" He roared, "Clear the track for Curley's sister!"

Slowly it dawned on Nancy that all this crowd, with the band and the flags, had gathered to welcome her brother home. And when she knew it, she thought she'd surely burst. She just had to do something, so she screamed—screamed to the tune of the train's whistle. And all the people, thinking this was the beginning of the welcome, began to scream with her. The flags began to wave, the band began to play, and in the midst of it all the train pulled in, and there was Curley on the platform, looking big and handsome in his uniform. And in just a moment

(Continued on Page 22)

Marriages and Deaths

Marriages.

Stevenson-Ward—In the Presbyterian Church, Hendersonville, N. C., May 8, 1919, by Rev. J. F. Ligon, pastor of the bride, Rev. Thomas M. Stevenson, of Summerville, S. C., and Miss Annie Lu Ward, of Hendersonville, N. C.

Godwin-Lancaster—At the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. W. S. Lancaster, Raeford, N. C., June 1, 1919, by Rev. W. C. Brown, Mr. Ralph Godwin, of Laurinburg, N. C., and Miss Ida Lancaster, of Raeford, N. C.

Carr-Rouse—On May 4, 1919, at the home of Mr. C. C. Rouse, near Rose Hill, N. C., Mr. Rufus Carr and Miss Adell Rouse, Rev. W. P. M. Currie officiating.

Owens-Boney—At the residence of Mr. W. S. Boney, Wallace, N. C., June 4, 1919, by Rev. W. P. M. Currie, Mr. C. L. Owens, of Fountain, N. C., and Miss Gertrude Boney, of Wallace, N. C.

Farrior-Southerland—At the residence of Mrs. Rachel Southerland, Rose Hill, N. C., June 5, 1919, by Rev. W. P. M. Currie, Mr. H. Ward Farrior and Miss Lucy L. Southerland, all of Rose Hill, N. C.

Deaths.

Jones—Alfred Puett Jones, infant son of Rev. and Mrs. D. L. Jones, died at his father's home, Hope Mills, N. C., May 30th, and was laid to rest the following day in Rockfish cemetery.

IN MEMORIAM.

John Fairley McEachern.

John Fairley McEachern, son of Archibald McEachern and Margaret Ann (Fairley) McEachern, was born in the northern part of Robeson (now Hoke) County, N. C., June 11, 1852. He died at his home in Raeford, N. C., April 5, 1919, in his 67th year, and was buried at Laurinburg, N. C. His only brother, A. A. McEachern, preceded him to the grave. He leaves two sisters, Mrs. Sallie F. McNeill, of Laurinburg, N. C., and Mrs. J. C. Powell, of Jacksonville, Fla. In 1883 Mr. McEachern married Miss Maggie Baker, of Cumberland County, N. C., who survives him. To them were born five sons and four daughters as follows:

Rev. John McEachern, a missionary of Korea; Walter M., of Savannah, Ga.; Mrs. C. L. Black, of Philadelphia, Pa.; Graham, of the U. S. Army, in France; Eliza, Charleston, S. C.; Archie, Laurie, Annie B. and Sarah, of Raeford, N. C.

In 1880, Mr. McEachern moved to Georgia and engaged in the turpentine business. In 1905 he settled in Savannah, Ga., where he was a stockholder in the Savannah Lumber Co., a stockholder and director of the Savannah Lighting Co., etc.

In 1910 he returned to his native State and resided at Red Springs, N. C., until 1913, when he moved to Raeford, where he spent the remaining years directing the work on his farms near this place.

Mr. McEachern was a splendid type of the old time Southern gentleman. He was courteous, kind and considerate of the comfort and wishes of those about him. His generous hospitality and friendly spirit drew and bound to him a large circle of friends, who, with his many kindred, love his memory and mourn their loss.

Being a Scotch Presbyterian, he believed that the doctrines of his church are the doctrines of the Bible. He brought up his children in this faith. All of them are members of the church and they rise up to call him blessed.

During his last protracted illness, though he suffered much, his faith did not waver and when he saw the end approaching he was not afraid.

IN MEMORIAM.

Miss Fannie Watson.

Since God in His Almighty wisdom has seen fit to remove from our midst our dear friend and co-worker, Miss Fannie Watson, we, as members of the Ladies' Auxiliary of Ashpole Presbyterian Church, wish to express our love for her and our great loss in her death. She died at her home near Rowland, N. C., April 28, 1919, after several weeks of intense suffering. She was a devoted member of Ashpole Presbyterian Church, having joined there when a child. Her lovely Christian character was beautifully portrayed all her life, and especially during her last illness, when her suffering was so great she bore the pain without a murmur. And so ended on earth this beautiful life to begin anew in heaven. The funeral services were held at Ashpole Church and were conducted by Rev. I. N. Clegg.

Not now but in the coming years,

It may be in the better land.
We'll read the meaning of our tears,
And there sometime we'll understand.

(Signed) Mrs. A. L. Bullock,
Mrs. J. Mc. Bracy,
Miss Eva McKay.

Children's Department

A LITTLE FARMER.

Dear Standard:

I am a little boy eight years old. I love to hear sister read the letters in your nice paper. I have a little calf, 31 little chicks, and papa is going to give me a corn field. I am in the second grade at school. Miss Pattie Johnston is my teacher. I like her fine. I hope this won't reach the waste basket, as I want to surprise papa.

Perry Pinyan.

A BROTHER AND A SISTER.

Dear Standard:

I am a little girl ten years old. I go to the Presbyterian Sunday School every Sunday I can at Maxton, N. C. My teacher's name is Miss Elizabeth Alford. I have one brother. His name is Alvin, and one little sister. Her name is Mary Bell.

I hope my letter won't reach the waste basket. Your unknown friend, Thelma Ledbetter.

Maxton, N. C. R. F. D. 2.

SEVENTEEN CHICKENS.

Dear Standard:

I have just finished reading your paper and I saw so many nice letters until I thought I would write again. I go to church at the new Presbyterian church. Our pastor is Mr. Hardon, and we like him fine. I have seventeen chickens and a garden. I have a brother eight years old and he is going to write.

I will close for this time, as my letter is getting long. Your friend, Beulah Pinyan.

HELPS MAMA.

Dear Standard:

I am a little girl eight years old and I am in the second grade at school. My teacher's name was Miss Clara Shealey, of Ballentine, S. C. Our school closed the 23rd of May.

We have lots of little chickens and I like to feed them for mama. My papa died with the "Flu" last October.

I hope my letter won't reach the waste basket, as I want to surprise my mama. Your little unknown friend, Maggie Burgess.

New Zion, S. C. R. F. D.

WANTS TO COME HOME.

Dear Standard:

I am a little girl nine years old. I am in the second grade at school. My teacher's name was Miss Clara Shealey, of Ballentine, S. C. I liked to go to school. Our school closed on the 23rd of May. I went to school at Oakdale.

I have a little sister eight years old. I have an uncle who is in Germany and wants to come home.

Hope this won't reach the waste basket. Your unknown friend,

New Zion, S. C. Francis Burgess.

BILLY'S COAT AND BETTY'S DRESS.

By Patten Baird in The Continent.

Billy needed a new coat. Betty's last year's dress was sadly the worse for school wear but neither of them fully realized this till the Simpkins' present came. It came by the parcel post mail man. It was a big package done up in brown paper and it really did look interesting.

Billy poked it when he brought it to his mother. "I suppose it's a dress for Betty," he said. "Betty always has to wear out the Simpkins' last-year clothes. Sally Simpkins ought to wear them out herself!"

"I don't want any more of Sally Simpkins' clothes," echoed Betty. "I want a nice new dress that's just come from a store. I won't wear anybody else's clothes at all! Mother, please, I don't want to wear it!"

But they unwrapped the parcel and the first thing to come out was a big wooly overcoat evidently designed for Billy. (And Ted Simpkins had evidently begun to grow too, now, so it looked as if Billy would have to wear his suits too!) You see the Simpkins were old friends of Mother's and whenever there were clothes to be worn out, they were handed down to Betty—and now, probably, Billy also! Almost every new season, Betty confronted the Simpkins' clothes and fought over them. This time, it was a red plaid dress! Plaid! Betty's soul rebelled. Suddenly she hated plaid and decided she would never wear out another Simpkins dress! She wouldn't even examine the dress though Mother insisted upon trying it on. It fitted. Billy said it "looked nice." Mother said it looked really like new. But as for Betty, Betty would none of it. "I won't wear out Sally Simpkins' clothes any more," she cried. "I want to have mine all new and nice from a store."

"But," explained Mother, "this looks exactly as if it had come from a store—look at it, Betty. And it's very kind of Mrs. Simpkins to send you Sally's dresses, I think. It is a great help to me and a great saving too. We're not rich, dear, and you ought to be glad to have a new dress that is as pretty as this."

Betty flounced out of the room. "I won't wear it!" she said, as she slammed the door and rushed up to her own room to throw herself on the bed and cry, "I won't!"

She heard quite well what Mother called after her, "Betty, either you'll wear this or have none." She smothered her head in the bed quilt and cried. Billy hadn't minded his coat at all. But boys are queer. He said it was nice. He couldn't understand why Betty didn't welcome the dress too. Boys don't think of clothes anyway, thought Betty. They never care!

It was afterwards while she was washing her face with cold water and deciding to stick it out and continue to wear the old last year's dress, that Billy poked his head in at her door. "Sis," he said, "I'm going down town. Mother's going to let me buy a new necktie because I didn't act horrid about the coat the way you did about the dress. I'm going to get the dandiest tie that ever was! Don't you wish you were me?"

That was almost too much for Betty. She turned her back. When Billy had gone downstairs, she had to cry some more. It was Billy, of course. Oh, yes, it was Billy who was going to have something nice and new!

And then her door opened and in came Billy again. "Say, Sis," he urged. "Why don't you behave and like that dress? I think it's ever so good looking on you, I do—honest!"

"You're just saying that!"

"No, I'm not—sure I'm not! I like it."

"Well, I don't! So there!" Betty stamped her foot. "I won't wear it," she said.

"Well, forget it anyhow," Billy urged. "Come! You come with me and help select the tie! It'll be fun!"

It was good of Billy to suggest that. Shopping was fun, especially as Betty rarely had a chance to go to stores to buy things. She mopped her face again and put on her cloak over the old, old dress. Then she followed Billy downstairs, where he donned his Simpkins overcoat.

"It's an awfully nice coat," he urged. "It is better than my old one. What do I care if it was Ted's—I'm glad I've got it."

But Betty couldn't see things that way. "I want new things," she said. "I don't want to wear things that others have had. I want my very own!"

They turned down the street and looked in at windows and Billy talked much of the necktie and wondered if he could get one that knotted in a scarf and had red dots in it. Then they elbowed their way into the department store.

In the crowd whom should Betty spy but Annabelle Lee! Annabelle Lee was known to be both rich and fashionable. She had all she wanted and usually more, too! Betty looked up to her in all matters of dress, for Annabelle Lee knew the styles and followed them. Betty, moreover, wanted always what Annabelle Lee wore. If it was a pink gingham, if it was blue serge, or a white middy dress—that became the envy of Betty. Of course she never had had anything like Annabelle Lee's! Oh, no! But as they met in the crowd, Betty's eyes were suddenly riveted upon Annabelle Lee's dress that showed its skirt beneath her jacket—why it was a red plaid exactly like that that Mrs. Simpkins had sent her, Sally Simpkins' dress! Did you ever!

Billy winked one eye at her back and poked Betty—but Betty had already seen! Why, why! Wasn't it strange!

"Billy," she urged. "You go to the counter and be looking at the ties. I want to speak to Annabelle about home work." And she escaped.

"Annabelle," she called, "I want to know about arithmetic! I forgot what page the teacher gave us with rules. . . . Oh, Annabelle, let me see your new dress! I think I've got one just like it!"

Annabelle obligingly slipped off her coat halfway. "It's just come from Stuart's," she said. "They were having a sale and I begged Mother to get it. Maybe yours came from Stuart's too—is it like mine?"

"Exactly," said Betty. "But I didn't like mine—I think I like it better now, though. Was the dress expensive? I don't know how much mine cost."

"Stuart's sell only nice things," explained Annabelle Lee. "All my clothes come from there. They cost more than most stores—the dresses do. This cost about $25. I wish you'd wear yours to school and then we'd be twins!"

Betty smiled. "Maybe I will," she said. "I'm awfully glad I met you—funny I didn't like that dress when I first saw it. But I do like yours on you! It's just as becoming as it can be."

She found Billy with his necktie all chosen. He had bought one with the red dots that he had wanted. She told him about the dress. "It is really a nicer dress than I thought," she explained. "Annabelle Lee has one exactly like it. There was a special sale of them at Stuart's and Stuart's is a very splendid store—funny that Sally Simpkins should send that dress. It was a very expensive dress, Annabelle said, and it really did seem very fresh and new, didn't it?"

"You going to wear it after all?" inquired Billy.

"Maybe," said Betty.

And when she reached home there was Mother with a letter. "It's from Mrs. Simpkins, Betty," she said. "She says that the dress is a perfectly new one, and that Sally never was able to wear it. Her aunt bought it for her testament and gave presents to faculty members and prominent students. The cap and gown, worn by little Miss Mary Crow, was then presented by the seniors to Edward Graham, small sponsor for the junior class.

Educational.

(Continued from page 11)

The Alumnae Association of Peace Institute held its regular business meeting of the year at noon on Tuesday, when Mrs. William Fenner, of Rocky Mount, was elected president; and Mrs. S. M. Harrell, of Tarboro, secretary and treasurer. Mrs. B. R. Lacy, retiring president, presided over the meeting.

The luncheon followed at one o'clock in the dining hall at Peace Institute, when the student body sang the school songs and the class of 1919 was received as alumnae. The annual meeting of the trustees was held after luncheon.

The graduating exercises began at 8:30 in the evening.

Dr. W. McC. White, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, offered the invocation. Then started the musical program which was interspersed between the announcements of honors, the address of the occasion, and the presentation of diplomas. The graduates who last night received their diplomas at the hands of Miss Graham were the following:

Literary course: Isabelle Worth Bowen, Raleigh; Lucile Wyatt Buchanan, Lexington; Mary Reed Buchanan, Lexington; Lillian McRae Purvis, Scotland Neck; Mary Woodward Medlin, Raleigh.

Scientific course: Ethel Maye Buffalo, Raleigh.

Special diploma in art: Isabelle Worth Bowen, Raleigh.

Home economics: Hattie May Morisey, Goldsboro; Jennie Isabel Smith, Raleigh; Julia Pomelia Young, Raleigh.

Piano—Margaret Stockard Bradshaw, Durham.

Voice—Annie May McDade, Raleigh; Lenoir Cook Mercer, Elm City; Esther Pate, Apex; Theo John Wooten, Warsaw.

Expression—Mary Southerland Steele, Mount Olive.

Mrs. Josephus Daniels, first woman to deliver the annual commencement address at Peace Institute, told the graduates, undergraduates and guests crowded into the chapel at Peace that the war has not changed the fundamental woman but it has shown her that as she loves her home, she must concern herself with civic housekeeping. Seeing in the ballot neither the panacea for all ills nor the menace to woman in her proper sphere, Mrs. Daniels declared that the war has enabled woman to get rid of her hobbles of body, soul, mind, expression and action.

Mrs. Daniels was presented to her audience by Miss Graham, with a brief introduction in which she was characterized as an "ideal woman; wife, mother and homemaker, whom Peace Institute, Raleigh and North Carolina was glad to welcome."

OGLETHORPE UNIVERSITY.

The new Oglethorpe catalog just out announces for the Summer term a number of special courses designed to enable school teachers to improve their efficiency by Summer work and at the same time work towards the attainment of a college degree. These are offered in addition to a complete curriculum of college work. Among others are a course on how to teach Latin as a live subject and a course in Psychology as the basis of educational work.

The plan presented by Oglethorpe is novel in that it provides for twelve weeks of work instead of the customary six weeks offered by most Southern summer schools. Each of the larger, standard classes meets for an hour and a half every day, which will enable a student by concentrating to do the work of a whole academic year on those two subjects in the twelve weeks.

Other courses of less strenuous proportions are offered for residents of Atlanta who wish to visit the University twice a week for cultural studies without the grind of regular college work.

Work will be done with all the languages, in science, mathematics, and literature, in connection with which last is offered a series of studies in the short story. The Winter faculty of the University will be enlarged by the addition of Mr. J. R. Terrell, Jr., who will be assistant in English and German.

The courses all start on July 8th and end on September 19th. College students will thus be enabled to attain a term's credit instead of the fractional credits offered by six weeks' Summer schools.

The Home-Coming of Curley.

(Continued from page 19)

Nancy was in his arms, but she couldn't hear a word for the shouting.

After that everything became quiet, and there came from the crowd, "Speech! Speech!"

Curley stood there choking for a moment, and it wasn't much of a speech he made, just "I thank you." But the people went wild again. Then he and Nancy were put in a big automobile, and they went bumping over the river-road toward home.

"I got one little surprise for you yet," whispered Nancy.

And just then they came in sight of the little cabin.

"A service flag for me!" murmured Curley. Then the hug he gave Nancy made the day complete.—Roy J. Snell in Congregationalist and Advance.

PRAYER AND WORK.

No answer comes to those who pray
And idly stand
And wait for stones to roll away
At God's command.
He will not break the binding cords
Upon us laid,
If we depend on pleasing words
And do not aid.
When hands are idle, words are vain
To move the stone;
An aiding angel would disdain
To work alone.
But he who prayeth and is strong
In faith and need,
And toileth earnestly,
He will succeed.

at Stuart's, where there was a sale, and it didn't fit Sally after all. And Sally suggested that her mother send it on to you, for Stuart's would not exchange it because it was a dress bought at a sale. So, Betty, the fuss was over nothing, wasn't it, little girl!"

Betty hung her head. "I'm ashamed," she said. "I won't be silly about Sally Simpkins' clothes any more. And I do think it was kind of Mrs. Simpkins to send me that perfectly new dress. I'll—I'll even like to wear Sally's old ones, if she sends me any more. I guess I'll write and thank her myself, Mother May I?"

POULTRY EXPERT GIVES AWAY CHICK FOOD.

To introduce to the poultry raisers of this section a Chick Food that is nationally known, E. J. Reefer, the Poultry Expert, 3rd Floor Poultry Bldg., Kansas City, Mo., is giving away free a one dollar package of Chick Food absolutely free to every poultry raiser who agrees to tell his neighbor about it. This medicated Baby Chick Food is sold on an absolute guarantee to raise chicks for six weeks and it is backed by the National Reserve Bank of Kansas City. Send Mr. Reefer one dollar and he will not only send you one regular dollar size package of Chick Food, but he will include in the same shipment an extra package absolutely free, which means he will send you two regular full size dollar packages of this scientific medicated Baby Chick Food for only one dollar. And he will prepay all the charges on the first order. Considering that this product is guaranteed by the National Reserve Bank and that it keeps baby chicks for six weeks, every poultry raiser should certainly try this scientific medicated Baby Chick Food without further delay. It will pay you to write Mr. Reefer today.

Miscellaneous

WORLD OF ACTION HAS NO TIME FOR MAN WHO CAN'T KEEP UP RACE.

In the midst of the war, when things were very tense, two "dollar-a-year" men in Washington were in conference concerning a third man who was wanted for a position of large responsibility, writes Bruce Barton in the June Association men.

"He worked with you some years ago," one of them said. "What do you think about him?"

"He is a good man," the other replied slowly. "Loyal, hard-working, knows his business—no trouble at all on those grounds."

"In fact, there is just one reason why he isn't working with me today. Whenever we came into a period of real strain he would invariably break down."

"We had a strike four years ago, and every man of us was working night and day to hold the business together. Right in the midst of it he played out and had to go away, leaving his work to be added to the burden of the rest of us."

"It isn't his fault, of course; but that thought doesn't ease things much when he drops his share of the load."

"He simply hasn't the physical stamina to see things through."

The world of action has no time for the man whose health is not sufficient to carry them through.

"Too bad about Brown," the Busy World says. "He had to go off to a sanitarium just when his big opportunity was before him."

For just a moment everybody stops to pity Brown; and then another man steps up into the place that was his; and the procession moves forward again.

The race is to the swift in business and the battle to the strong; and there is no time for the straggler who drops out beside the road.

HENS MOULT FAST.

E. J. Reefer, the poultry expert, has discovered a scientific product that hastens the moult and revitalizes the organs of the hen and puts her in fine laying condition. The tonic is called "More Eggs" and a package of it is enough to carry the ordinary chicken raiser over the entire moulting season. First to lay is first to pay. "Since using 'More Eggs' I get forty to fifty eggs a day, instead of eight or nine," writes A. P. Woodward, of St. Cloud, Fla. A million dollar bank guarantees that you can have your money back if you want it. So, you don't take any risk. Send $1.00 for a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic. If you want to hurry the moult and get more eggs, act at once; it means more profit for you. Don't wait, but order today. Send $1 today to E. J. Reefer, 4th Floor, Poultry Bldg., Kansas City, Missouri. Or ask Mr. Reefer for his valuable poultry book free, that tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry.

QUITE A RECORD.

The "Church Advocate" tells of one of its pastors who can not get in his congregation a single subscriber to his church paper. Now can you guess why he can not? One brother guesses: "It is because he does not try." But he was wrong. Another guesses: "It is because the people of his congregation are so poor they can not pay for a paper." That, too, is wrong. "Then," said another, "it must be because the people are so ignorant that they do not appreciate the value of religious literature," but he, too, was mistaken. Well, now, let us give you the true reason, as the editor of that church paper gave it. He said: "This pastor could not get a single subscriber in all his church because he had already put the paper into every family in his church," and then the editor declared that he thought so highly of this man that he had put his name on a special roll of honor.

The American soldier's idea was to capture the town's first and learn to pronounce them afterward.—Ex.

We secure positions for teachers, who are normal and college graduates, throughout the South and Southwest. Write us. THE YATES-FISHER TEACHERS' AGENCY, 326 Stahlman Building, Nashville, Tenn.

SUPERIOR SOX BY MAIL FROM MILL TO YOU

Our Sanitary Knitting Mill is as near you as your letter box. Save retailer's and middleman's profits. We manufacture the best sox, in medium weight, full length, any size, and in seven colors. Our sox are made of the best grade yarns, double heels and soles, and are the best "sox quality" at the price in U. S. A. Prices per dozen pairs: List No. 1, $2.35; List No. 2, $1.65; Combed Peeler No. 1, $2.10; Combed Peeler No. 2, $1.35.

Be sure you state grade, size and color when you order. Buy your Sox by the Box and Save Money. We do not sell less than half dozen pairs to a customer. We Guarantee Safe Delivery. Your order will be shipped same day as received. Our sox are perfect fitting, long-wearing. Remit with order.

ROYSTER KNITTING MILLS - SHELBY, N. C.

Poor, Foolish Woman

Think of her attempting to make ice cream in the old disappointing way! With

JELL-O ICE CREAM Powder

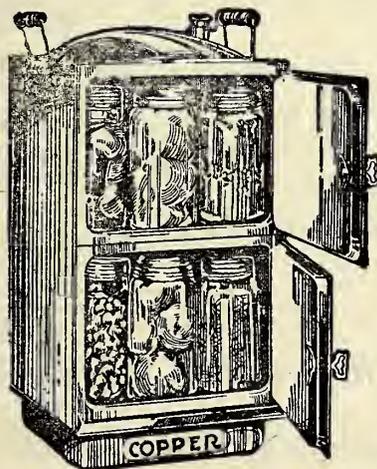

she can make the most delicious ice cream in ten minutes, freezing and all, at a cost of about one cent a dish, and never go near the stove.

Vanilla, Strawberry, Lemon and Chocolate flavors and Unflavored.

Two packages 25 cents, at grocers'.

THE GENESEE PURE FOOD COMPANY
Le Roy, N. Y.

THE TOLEDO STEAM COOKER and CANNER

Here is a household convenience and economy that should be in every home. Cooks an entire meal over one burner of any style stove, besides being one of the finest and simplest canning devices ever used. The price is only $11 f. o. b. any town in North or South Carolina.

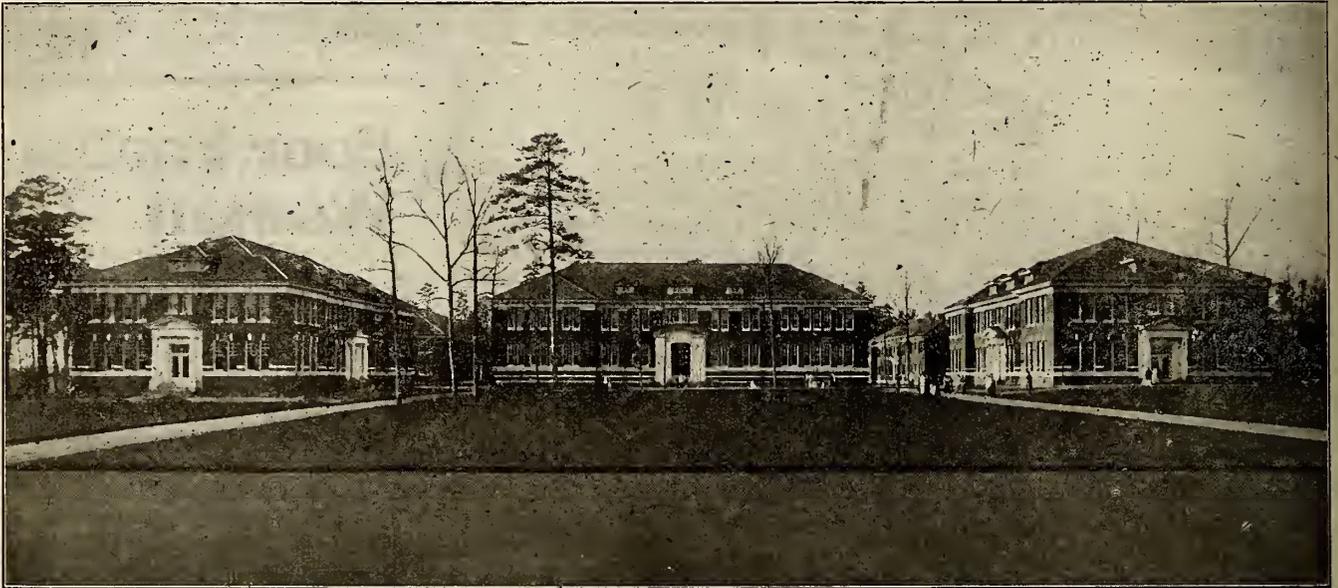

W. T. McCoy & Co.
Charlotte, N. C.

THE HOME OF GOOD FURNITURE

Queens College for Women

Charlotte, North Carolina

Established More Than Sixty Years Ago as "Charlotte Female Institute"

It is Now Recognized as the Best Equipped College for Women in the Entire South

We have five new two-story brick buildings with modern fire extinguishers, designed and erected solely for convenience, comfort, efficiency and safety. These buildings are located in the beautiful suburb of Myers Park, three and one-half miles from the center of the city.

We have a splendid wooded campus of 25 acres.

15 units required for entrance. Graduates from recognized State High Schools admitted on certificate.

This College is built on a firm belief in the inspiration of the Bible. Thorough Bible courses provided.

Standard college course leading to B. A. degree. Most complete equipment for thorough education.

Physical, Chemical and Biological Laboratories; Library, Gymnasium, Preparatory department. Able faculty. Dormitories divided into units of two rooms and connecting with bath, accommodating four students. Large, well-ventilated rooms, big closets. Buildings as near fire-proof as possible. Water, gas, electricity. Convenient street car service.

School of Music, Expression and Art offers superior opportunities. Music building has twenty-six rooms equipped exclusively for this department. Complete, thorough course leading to diploma. Post graduate course in music offered.

Our Motto: "Christian Women for Christian Homes"

Necessary expenses very moderate, about $300.00 for the regular literary course, including board. FALL TERM begins September 10, 1919.

For further information send for catalogue or write

WM. ANDERSON, Registrar, Box 300, Charlotte, N. C.

WHY NOT?

When our boys who canned the Kaiser, or who stopped in camp or ship, come back home and pound the pavement, yell your heads off, let 'er rip.

Open up your toothless cavern or your lunch-room filled with pearls, foot until your ears are aching and your top-piece reels and whirls.

When Old Glory passes by you, bare your head, salute your flag, you can thank your Uncle Sammy that it's not a German rag.

Cap until your lungs are bursting, rock the buildings, shout and sing.

Show the boys they own the city and can have 'most everything.

Fill them up with pies and good things, till they split their vest and jeans, Turkey, goose, and young spring chicken, put the lid on army beans.

Let them smoke like traction engines, till it's like a London fog, tuff them full of fun and pleasure till they're tired as a dog.

Part them home on rubber tires, let them sleep at least a week, put a muffler on the door-bell, throw alarm-clocks in the creek.

When, when each and every fellow once again is clean and sane, pay him for his loss in wages; give him back his job again.

Pvt. Leland Hayden, in The Cro, Bourges, France.

POSTAL ABBREVIATIONS.

By changing the abbreviation of California to Calif., to avoid chances for mistake, a suggestion may be accepted to change Miss. to Mrs., so that Mississippi may be wholly differentiated from Missouri.—Lowell Courier-Citizen.

There are experiences sweet and sour in every life. And is it not well that our menu should contain pickles as well as candy? Moreover to know how sweet the sweet is we must have a taste of the sour now and then.—Baptist Boys and Girls.

WANTED—Second-hand church pews. Any church having same for sale will write W. C. Pou, Elmwood, N. C.

MONTREAT SUMMER SCHOOL

Six weeks, July 1st to August 12th. Delightful climate. Ideal surroundings for study. Excellent instruction. Faculty of high scholarship and wide experience. For circular and terms, address

MISS FRANCES M. BOWMAN, Director
Montreat, North Carolina

WRITE FOR A FREE CATALOGUE

of the largest and most complete Business College in the South.

The Draughon Business College

Knoxville, Tenn. Jacksonville, Fla.

BOOKKEEPING AND SHORTHAND

thoroughly taught. Enroll any time. Address Greensboro Commercial School, Greensboro, N. C., for Catalogue. Special Summer Rates now on.

The University of South Carolina

1801

1919

The University offers courses leading to the following degrees:

1. School of Arts and Science, A. B. and B. S.
2. School of Education, A. B.
3. Graduate School, A. M.
4. School of Engineering, C. E.
5. School of Law, LL. B.
6. Military Science and Tactics compulsory for Freshmen and Sophomores. Reserve Officers Training Corps.

For students of Education, Law, Engineering and those pursuing higher graduate work, the University offers exceptional advantages.

Next session begins September 17, 1919. For information, write

W. S. CURRELL, President, COLUMBIA, S. C.

After Vacation, What? To College, of Course!

Y are familiar with Davidson's athletic record;
O know of the success of her debating teams;
U have doubtless thought of the fact that "Pep" and unbounded college spirit, such as characterizes Davidson students, can live only in wholesome campus conditions.

BUT do you know about the 20 courses Davidson offers; the entrance requirements; the assignment of rooms; the cost of a college education?

Catalogue containing this and other information will be sent free.

Address Davidson College
Davidson, N. C.

INDIAN PRINCESS VISITS Y. W. C. A.

Transient guests at the Y. W. C. A. Hostess House in Coblenz during the past month have included an Indian Princess, a French Countess, five members of the French Red Cross, two members of the Jewish Welfare Board, two heads of the Women's Overseas Hospitals, two navy nurses, 186 Y. M. C. A. workers, 14 Y. W. C. A. workers, 123 Red Cross workers, 165 Army nurses, 10 reconstruction aides and two members of Queen Mary's Auxiliary Army Corps.

All women entering the bridgehead area are billeted through the army with the Y. W. C. A. Forty women live at the Hostess House all of the time in addition to the transient guests.

When the house is overcrowded the Y. W. C. A. is responsible for finding living space in the city for the women.

Originally the Y. W. C. A. opened the Hostess House for women war workers but it has become, now, the social center of Coblenz. During the first ten days it was open 5,000 people were served in the dining room.

HENS MOULT FAST.

E. J. Reefer, the poultry expert, has discovered a scientific product that hastens the moult and revitalizes the organs of the hen and puts her in fine laying condition. The tonic is called "More Eggs" and a package of it is enough to carry the ordinary chicken raiser over the entire moulting season. First to lay is first to pay. "Since using 'More Eggs' I get forty to fifty eggs a day, instead of eight or nine," writes A. P. Woodward, of St. Cloud, Fla. A million dollar bank guarantees that you can have your money back if you want it. So, you don't take any risk. Send $1.00 for a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic. If you want to hurry the moult and get more eggs, act at once; it means more profit for you. Don't wait, but order today. Send $1 today to E. J. Reefer, 4th Floor, Poultry Bldg., Kansas City, Missouri. Or ask Mr. Reefer for his valuable poultry book free, that tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry.

CHURCH ENVELOPES. Double and single envelope systems. Samples and prices sent upon request.
Double Envelope Corporation, Roanoke, Va.

VIRGINIA, Danville

Randolph Macon Institute FOR GIRLS Limited to 100

College preparatory and special course for those not wishing to go to college. Vocal and instrumental Music, Art, and Expression. Attractive home life. Gymnasium. Branch of the Randolph-Macon System. Rates $300. Catalogue. Address Chas. G. Evans, A. M., Principal, Box C.

The McCALLIE SCHOOL

A HOME SCHOOL FOR BOYS

Able men train boys for college. Individual attention 1,000 feet elevation. Big athletic field. All sports. Swimming. Boating. Military drill. Honor System. Boys live in Masters' homes, under their personal guidance. Address

Headmasters: S. J. & J. P. McCallie
Missionary Ridge, Chattanooga, Tenn.

STATE COLLEGE SUMMER SCHOOL

(June 10 to July 23)

FOR TEACHERS---FOR COLLEGE ENTRANCE---FOR COLLEGE CREDIT

FOR CATALOGUE, ADDRESS

W. A. WITHERS, Director : : : : WEST RALEIGH, N. C.

THE BAYLOR SCHOOL FOR BOYS A THOROUGH EDUCATION Castle on the Tennessee

1. Thorough Scholastic Training. Small Classes. Experienced Teachers.
 2. Religious Influences through School Y. M. C. A. and daily Chapel Exercises.
 3. Compulsory Public Speaking, Writing, and Spelling for every student.
 4. Six fine brick buildings, new equipment, 40-acre campus in mountains.
 5. Splendid Library, Laboratory, and large Gymnasium.
 6. Athletic Fields, Track, Tennis Courts, Swimming and Boating.
 7. Beautiful Scenery and Historic Surroundings. Ideal Location.
 8. The Honor System. 9. Compulsory Exercise. 10. Same Headmaster for 25 years.
 11. Military Training in the Essentials, not in the Spectacular, under officers of the A. E. F.
- Baylor School is an accredited school of Southern Association of Schools and Colleges.
For particulars, address J. R. BAYLOR, BAYLOR SCHOOL, Chattanooga, Tenn.

BINGHAM Is the only Boys' School in the United States which has been administered by THREE SUCCESSIVE generations of PRESBYTERIAN ELDERS for 125 YEARS.

1793 Since 1861 the ACADEMIC work has been supplemented with the 1919 MILITARY feature. Special rates to Ministers of the Gospel (As long as we have vacancies)

Address COL. R. BINGHAM, Supt., Route 4, Asheville, N. C. or CAPT. JOHN A. PERRY, U. S. Army, Retired, Military Professor, Asheville, N. C.

PREPARE FOR A LARGER SALARY

In times of Peace prepare for a better job at a larger salary. Modern business demands trained men and women experts. The better the training the larger your salary will be. Today our graduates are in the front ranks of modern business. Enroll with this well-equipped business college, and help to make your future success secure. Handsome catalogue mailed on request. You can enter any time. School open all summer.

Kings Business College

Raleigh, N. C. and Charlotte, N. C.

PRESBYTERIAN COLLEGE of South Carolina

One of the most modern and best equipped colleges for men under the control of the Presbyterian Church. Beautiful buildings, strong faculty, high standard of work, broad course, attractive student body, best moral influences, Reserve Officers' Training Corps and strong athletic team.

For Catalogue and information apply to

President Davison M. Douglas, Clinton, S. C.

Chicora College for Women

THE PRESBYTERIAN COLLEGE OF SOUTH CAROLINA

A Standard College of Distinction and Character

Religion and Philosophy Letters and Science

Home Economics

The Fine Arts

(Music, Art and Expression)

For Catalogue and Information, address

Pres. S. C. BYRD, D.D., Columbia, S. C.

Agriculture, Chemistry, Engineering, CLEMSON COLLEGE Textiles, Military Training

NEXT SESSION OPENS SEPTEMBER 10, 1919

Courses of Study---Four Year Degree Courses

AGRICULTURE with an opportunity to specialize in either AGRONOMY, ANIMAL INDUSTRY, BOTANY, CHEMISTRY, DAIRYING, ENTOMOLOGY, HORTICULTURE, SOILS, TEACHING OF AGRICULTURE, VETERINARY SCIENCE.

TEACHING OF TRADES AND INDUSTRIES CHEMISTRY
CHEMICAL ENGINEERING
ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING MECHANICAL ENGINEERING
CIVIL ENGINEERING
TEXTILE INDUSTRY

ARCHITECTURE
GENERAL SCIENCE

SHORT COURSES

(Regular Session)

ONE-YEAR COURSE IN AGRICULTURE

October 1st to June 1st. Requirements 18 years of age, 3 years farm experience, eight grades in school.

TWO-YEAR COURSE IN TEXTILES

Requirements: 18 years of age, one year of mill experience, eight grades in school.

LOCATION AND ENVIRONMENT

Clemson is located on the old homestead of John C. Calhoun, and later of his son-in-law, Thomas G. Clemson. The College is in the Piedmont section of the State in Oconee and Pickens Counties at the foot of the Blue Ridge mountains. The climate is healthy and invigorating. The students are under military government, and every effort is made to train up young men who will reflect credit upon the College and the State.

Temptations to dissipate or spend money foolishly are reduced to a minimum.

RELIGIOUS INFLUENCES

Four churches are located in the community. The College contributes to the salary of the four ministers who do pastoral work among the students, as well as conduct divine services. Five Sunday Schools are largely attended by the students.

A large and modern Y. M. C. A. building is used as a religious and social center by the students and the faculty. The Y. M. C. A. conducts night services and Bible Study classes. This organization seeks to maintain about the students a high moral atmosphere.

REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION

An honorable discharge from the last school or college attended is required.

Twelve high school units required for admission to the Freshman Class on certificate, without examination. Scholastic requirements are given in detail in the college catalog.

No student will be admitted who is not at least sixteen years old at the time of entrance.

No student will be accepted whether for re-admission or first entrance, unless he has filed the pledge of prescribed form not to haze.

Hazing is forbidden by the laws of the State as well as the laws of the College.

SCHOLARSHIPS

The college maintains 169 four-year scholarships in the Agricultural and Textile courses, and 51 in the One-year Agricultural Course.

Each scholarship is worth $100.00 per session and free tuition.

Vacancies in four-year scholarships in 41 counties to be filled this summer. Vacancies in the One-year Agricultural Course Scholarships in every county.

An excellent opportunity to secure a college training at a minimum of cost.

Write now for the necessary application blanks and full information in regard to the scholarship open in your county.

Free tuition ($40.00 per session) is granted to students judged unable to pay.

The State Board of Charities and Corrections is charged with investigating the financial standing of all applicants for four-year scholarships and free tuition, and reporting their findings to the Board of Trustees of the College. This Board passes upon the matter, accepting as correct the information gathered by the State Board. Appeal from the decision of the Trustees may be made to the State Board of Education.

SCHOLARSHIP AND ENTRANCE EXAMINATIONS

Scholarships and entrance examinations will be held by each County Superintendent of Education on July 11th, 1919, beginning at 9 A. M.

It will be worth your while to try for one of the scholarships in your county. A four-year scholarship means $400.00 to help pay expenses and $160.00 in tuition, divided equally over the four years.

Applicants seeking to enter by examination are advised to take the entrance examinations on July 11th, rather than wait until they come to the college this fall. Credit toward entrance will be given for all examinations passed at the County seat.

Copies of old examination questions will be furnished upon request.

SUMMER SCHOOL

Courses for—Agricultural Teachers

(June 30th to July 26th)

Cotton Graders

(June 30th to July 19th)

Corn Club Boys

(July 7th to July 19th)

Dairy Week

Also intensive one-week courses

Animal Husbandry Week

(June 30th to July 5th)

Horticultural Week

(July 7th to July 12th)

Poultry Week

(July 7th to July 12th)

FARMERS' WEEK—JULY 21st to JULY 26th

This school will enable you to combine the pleasures of a vacation with an opportunity for study. A dormitory will be reserved for married couples and single women. Prominent speakers—Access to College Library—Moving Pictures—Swimming Pool—Athletics—A Pleasant Time.

Write for booklet giving full information.

ONE-YEAR AGRICULTURAL COURSE

Is for young men who have neither the time nor the money to take the four-year course. It is open to young men 18 years old, and over, who have worked three or more years on the farm.

It is designed to give the simple scientific principles upon which good farming rests.

The idea is to take a man who is already a farmer and make him a better farmer.

The course begins October 1st and ends June 1st. Fifty-one scholarships are open to men in this course. Examinations for the award of these scholarships will be held by each County Superintendent of Education on Friday, July 11th.

MILITARY TRAINING

Clemson College is a member of the Senior Division of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps. All students are required to wear uniform and are under military discipline at all times.

All Freshmen, Sophomores and Short Course students are required to take the Basic Course of three hours military instruction each week. Juniors and Seniors may enter the advanced course if physically and otherwise qualified, and if admitted, are required to take additional military instruction.

The War Department has established R. O. T. C. units in the Infantry, Coast Artillery and Signal Corps branches of the service. Only a limited number of students will be admitted to the Coast Artillery and Signal Corps Units. Modern equipment supplied by the U. S. Government.

All students in the R. O. T. C. receive financial assistance from the U. S. Government. Juniors and Seniors at present are paid $12.00 per month, which may be applied to the living expenses. All R. O. T. C. students are given an allowance on uniforms by the War Department. The amount has not been fixed for the coming session, but it is expected that it will be sufficient to cover at least half the cost of the service uniforms.

No obligation rests upon the graduate of the Advanced Course.

Membership in the Advanced Course amounts practically to a two-year scholarship furnished by the Federal Government. A student who holds a regular scholarship and takes the Advanced Course receives enough money to pay for all expenses except books.

CLEMSON MEN IN THE SERVICE

The Clemson Service Flag contains approximately 1,000 stars, 18 of which are gold as well as a number of blue ones.

Relatives and friends of Clemson men who entered the service are earnestly requested to send to the College the name, rank, division, regiment, or any other information that will aid in the publishing of a complete list. Clemson men are asked to do the same.

For Catalogue, Application Blanks, Etc., Write at Once to W. M. RIGGS, President, Clemson College, S. C.

BLOOD TRANSFUSION.

One of the many wonders of the war has been the increasing employment of transfusion of blood to save severely wounded men.

In the great casualty clearing stations might be seen vessels containing a supply of human blood for this noble purpose. The blood was freely given by men at the front, who found that they were none the worse for the loss of it.

A full account of the methods employed is given in "Surgery at a Casualty Clearing Station," which is an intensely interesting book even for the lay reader.

Practical tests have shown that there are four distinct classes of blood, distinguished according to their coagulating properties. The wrong kind of blood may kill. But when the right kind is injected the dying man returns to life.

"Many cases of severe loss of blood hitherto considered as inoperable, and others as exceedingly bad surgical risks, may often be revived to a degree which insures a good prospect of ultimate recovery. Again, where an operation has been performed and there has been great shock, blood transfusion is a permanent feature of immense value."

HOW TO SAVE MONEY ON YOUR PIANO.

Write for a free copy of the illustrated catalogue of the Standard Piano Club which explains the best plan that has ever been devised for saving money in the purchase of a good piano or player piano. The Club is the result of nearly half a century's study of the problem of piano buying and it presents the best thought and experience of one of the oldest, largest and most reliable piano houses in America.

Thousands have taken advantage of this money saving plan and everyone is thoroughly delighted with the saving in price and the superior quality of the instrument, for the Club insures perfect satisfaction to every one of its members. There is hardly a community in the South where you will not find one or more Club members, and they are always glad to recommend the Club most enthusiastically.

If you have been hesitating to purchase a piano on account of the cost, we invite you to write for full particulars and we think that you will find that the Club has solved your own problems and difficulties perfectly. Address the Managers, Ludden & Bates, Standard Piano Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga.

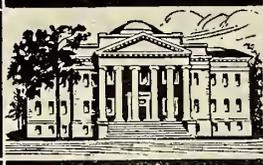

TEACHERS WANTED—Several vacancies in Grove Institute—Preparatory School for Girls. State subject best prepared to teach, and send testimonials in first letter, with stamp for reply. Inexperienced teachers not considered. W. F. Hollingsworth, Kenansville, N. C.

OAK RIDGE INSTITUTE

OAK RIDGE, N. C.

Prepares for bigger accomplishments in college, business and life. A very high standard of scholarship is maintained. Thorough courses are given in literature, science, book-keeping, shorthand and music. Athletics encouraged. Buildings modern; steam heat and showers. Cost reasonable—$350 per year. Fall session opens September 9, 1919. For illustrated catalog and fuller information, write

T. E. WHITAKER, 'PRESIDENT.

VIRGINIA CHRISTIAN COLLEGE

Lynchburg, Virginia.

This College, a leading Senior College of Virginia, affords a wholesome religious life and Christian atmosphere, including educational advantages under university trained professors. The College campus containing eighty-six and one-half acres in view of the distant mountains and landscape beauty, together with modern FIRE-PROOF buildings containing every modern convenience for the students, makes this an ideal institution to which to send your daughter or son.

The health conditions are unsurpassed. Five mineral and two fresh water springs give abundant proof that the health conditions are ideal.

A Christian education is the hope of America. The College is equipped with excellent laboratories and studios for the study of all courses, including the Bible, Art, Music, Voice, etc. The cost per annum is as low as $255. We invite your patronage and support. Write for catalogue.

J. T. T. HUNDLEY, President.

PEACE INSTITUTE

RALEIGH, NORTH CAROLINA

For Young Women. Established 1857

College Courses. Preparatory Courses for Standard College Requirements. Special Diplomas. Piano, Voice, Art, Expression and Home Economics. Commercial Course. Teacher Training Course. Specialists in all departments.

LULA B. WYNNE HALL, Home School For Girls.

MISS MARY OWEN GRAHAM, Pres.

The Measure of a College

Elegance of buildings and grounds and wealth of equipment and endowment do not make a college. The REAL MEASURE of a college is found in its ideal—in the personality of its teaching force, and in the quality of its teaching. The real work in education is accomplished by the person. The school can rise no higher than the character of those who give it life.

MITCHELL COLLEGE

maintains a faculty of men and women of strong Christian character and influence, whose qualifications for teaching have been gained by years of thorough preparation and experience. The classes at Mitchell College are small, insuring for each student the utmost benefit of individual instruction.

Well Planned Courses Offered in All College Subjects

Courses of superior excellence in English, Bible, Music, Expression, Home Economics, and Business. The Department of Music is in charge of a graduate of the Hague Conservatory.

Measure These Advantages

Invigorating climate, small classes, efficient instruction, supervised evening study for all, home life, and positive Christian influence; moderate expenses.

A Preparatory Department offering the best advantages is maintained. Catalog on request.

J. M. MOORE, President, STATESVILLE, N. C.

HEARTACHE.

"How are you today?" she asked her pastor. "Quite well, thank you; could not wish to feel better physically. But of late I have had the heartache rather more than usual," he replied. "The heartache! Oh, you should not have that at all," she answered. Was she right? Should we never have the heartache? Indeed, can any true, normal Christian escape having it? "And when he drew nigh, he saw the city and wept over it, saying, If thou hadst known in this thy day, even thou, the things which belong unto peace! but now they are hid from thine eyes" (Luke 19:41, 42). Was his great heart not throbbing with anguish over their sin-caused blindness? "O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, that killeth the prophets, and stoneth them that are sent unto her! how often would I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not" (Matt. 23:37). Who can tell the depth and poignancy of the heartache here? Paul wrote (Acts 20:31), "Wherefore watch ye, remembering that by the space of three years I ceased not to admonish every one night and day with tears." Never weep over sin? You must.—Advance.

AN OLD TEACHER.

Some one started a question as to the oldest Sabbath school teacher. Reports showed that there are many teachers who hold their classes when far past three-score and ten. Now comes word from Belfast, Maine, that Mrs. John H. Stewart, 93 years old, and the oldest resident of the city, is one of the best attendants at the Methodist church, and has been a teacher in the Sabbath school, and even with her advanced age, continues the work.—Herald and Presbyterian.

THE WAR IS OVER.

But the soldiers and sailors will never stop talking about the comfort they got from the Allens Foot-Ease, the antiseptic powder to be shaken into the shoes, which their sweethearts, mothers or sisters sent them. Until it is tried no one knows what a quick and wonderful relief Allens Foot-Ease is to painful, aching, swollen, tender feet, Corns, Bunions and Callouses. It makes walking a delight. Sold everywhere.

"Go to Church" Newspaper Advertising Service

Written to induce the other sixty million people of America to attend church. Weekly matrix service. Three column nine inches. Artistic borders, striking typographical arrangement. Copy indorsed by leading ministers. Churches of each city should unite in paying for running these ads on Saturday in every daily in America. Write for first series of twenty-six ads. The Church must advertise.

JAMES B. SPILLMAN Religious Advertising Agency Columbia, S. C.

DR. J. M. BELK, MONROE, N. C.

W. H. BELK, CHARLOTTE, N. C.

Belk Bros. Dept. Stores

CHARLOTTE, NORTH CAROLINA

19 STORES

Send us your orders for Bibles, Testaments, Confession of Faith, or Book of Church Order, for quick delivery. 10 percent discount for Sunday Schools, Societies, or Churches, Preachers or Teachers—and in dozens we will give you wholesale price.

WHY NOT HAVE A BIBLE OR TESTAMENT IN EVERY SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLAR'S HANDS EVERY SUNDAY? WE WILL HELP DO THIS. WRITE TO US FOR THE PLAN. NELSON'S BIBLES

1184—Sunday School Scholar's Bible. Practical Helps for Young People. How to study the Bible. How to study the lesson. Bible questions and answers all in this Bible. Good black type, red edges, leatheroid binding. Size 5 1/2 x 4 x 1. Special 98c

Same Bible, gilt edge, better leather binding, illustrated . . $1.25 and $1.50

12—Linen Card Back Bible. Good big print. Fine for the Sunday School classes, about 6 x 5 x 1 75c

1148—Sunday School Bible. Linen board backs, black type, 5 x 4 x 1 . . . 59c
7764—Teacher's Bible, $5.00.

India Linen Paper, self pronouncing Bible Dictionary, Combined Concordance, 12 Colored Maps, Morocco Binding, Silk Sewed, good print. Size 7 3/4 x 5 1/2 x 1 1/4 $5.00

6512—Teacher's Edition Bible—New and instructive maps, 14 maps, placed throughout the Bible, illustrating the Scripture, 20 beautifully colored pictures, complete Bible Dictionary, new Concordance and Helps. Leather binding, strongly made. Black face type. Size 7 x 5 x 1 1/2 $2.50
6512—Teacher's Bible, $3.95.

Linen Paper, thumb index, illustrated colored pictures, 12 new maps, Bible Dictionary, Morocco leather binding. Black face type, convenient size, 7 x 5 - 1 1/4. Special $3.95

1212—Illustrated Bible. 4,000 questions and answers, short history of each book of the Bible by A. T. Pier-son, D.D. Harmony of the four Gospels. How to study the Bible. Colored maps. 7 x 5 1/2 x 1 1/2 $2.00
7764—Teacher's Bible, $5.95.

Self pronouncing Bible, new, improved maps, finely illustrated, combined Con- cordance, 12 colored maps, newest and most complete dictionary yet printed. Morocco binding, silk sewed, a beautiful Bible. 8 x 5 1/2 . . . $5.95
Why not have a Confession of Faith in Every Home? We carry them in stock for your convenience—50c, 75c.

BOOK OF CHURCH ORDER. Every officer in the Presbyterian Church ought to have this Book and study it. We will mail you one for 25c.

NELSON'S TESTAMENTS
402—New Testament, 65c. Bound in leatheroid, large black face type. Size 6 x 5.
321—New Testament, 48c. Bound same as 402. Black type. Size 5 x 3 1/2.
400—New Testament, 25c.

This is a special number. Large black type, cardboard back, clear white paper—the quality equals most 50c books. Special 25c

29—New Testament. Vest pocket size, leatheroid binding, fine for the children 25c
403—New Testament, 98c.

This is leather bound. Large black type, gilt edge. Size 6 x 4 1/2.

403P—New Testament and Psalms. Leather bound, gilt edge. Large print $1.19

SCHOFIELD BIBLES
We carry these in the newest Editions, bound in good, heavy Linen Card-board backs, or can send you the finest Leather Bound. If you want a Bible to get "REAL HELP" right at home—the newest improved help—a Schofield Bible is the one to buy.

No 50—Linen Cardboard Backs. Good black type, with every help at home. Same helps as the highest price Bible. Size of Book 7 x 5 - 1 1/4 $1.50

No. 70—Same as above, only larger size type and book, 8 1/2 x 6 1/2 x 1 1/4 $2.00

We carry Schofield Bibles in all kinds of Bindings—Morocco, Persian, Etc. Real Linen Paper, from $5.00 to $10. Let us send you one on approval.

We carry all kinds of New Testa-ments from 15c to $2.00.

United States Railroad Administration
ROUND-TRIP
SUMMER TOURIST FARES
 to
SEASHORE RESORTS
 Special Reduced Fares From All Points
 to
 Morehead City, N. C.
 Beaufort, N. C.
 Norfolk, Va.
 Virginia Beach, Va.
 Cape Henry, Va.
 Nag's Head, N. C.
 Manteo, N. C.

Tickets on sale daily, May 15th to Sept. 30th, 1919, final limit for return
 October 31st, 1919.

For additional information ask your nearest ticket agent or write to
J. F. DALTON, G. P. A.,
 Norfolk Southern R. R.,
 Norfolk, Va.

SMALL CHANGE.

If you want to keep on the good side of the paper boy, the milk man, the vender of vegetables, and all the other tradesmen with whom women have to deal at front and back doors, keep plenty of small change on hand. Most women do not like to bother with large purses, but in the end it pays, and it pays in money. Every person who serves you will give you better service and will be more prompt and willing if you have the money ready and the right amount. No one would think of taking a head of cabbage or a pint of milk from a dealer, but ten minutes of his valuable time means more than a head of cabbage in these days of sharp competition.

When you have the money ready instantly, and the right amount, the man with whom you deal will show his appreciation in various ways. A neighbor was very much astonished to see her vegetable man slipping out a bunch of beautiful flowers with a small order, while her own heaped-up basket was bare of decoration. The explanation was simple. The one who ordered largely took up a great deal of extra time while she hunted for the money, while the other woman handed out the right change and went about her business.—The Mother's Magazine.

THE TEST OF TIME.

When an article is without merit public sentiment condemns it. It immediately dies a natural death. When an article has merit, it will be everlastingly in demand. Gray's Ointment has now been used for a full round century. No greater proof can be offered of its effectiveness. One hundred years of honest, good old-fashioned value for money received has made it a family word in every household. Effective for sores, boils, burns, cuts, bruises, stings, eczema and the many forms of skin eruption.
 Ask your druggist. If he can't supply you send his name to W. F. Gray & Co., 843 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn., and a liberal sample will be sent you free.

Nadine
Face Powder
 (In Green Boxes Only)
 Keeps The Complexion Beautiful
 Soft and velvety. Money back if not entirely pleased. Nadine is pure and harmless. Adheres until washed off. Prevents sunburn and return of discolorations.
 A million delighted users prove its value.
 Tints: Flesh, Pink, Brunette, White.
 By Leading Toilet Counters or Mail, Dept. R. P.
 National Toilet Company Paris, Tenn.

Children's Sermons

THE EXPOSITORS' TREASURY OF CHILDREN'S SERMONS

By Sir W. Robertson Nicoll, M. A., LL.D.

In this greatest of all collections of sermons for Boys and Girls, subjects taken from thirty-five Old and from twenty New Testament books are treated. The arrangement follows the books of the Bible. There are nearly 800 pages in this encyclopedia of Children's Sermonology.
 Cloth. 4to. Net, $5.00

OUTLINE SERMONS TO CHILDREN

Edited by Sir W. Robertson Nicoll, M. A., LL.D.

A collection of 97 sermons to children by 29 well-known preachers. These talks cover a wide range of themes and are replete with unusual and entertaining anecdotes and stories. Has complete Index of subjects and of texts. Cloth. 12mo. Net, $1.00

FIFTY-TWO STORY TALKS TO

BOYS AND GIRLS

By Rev. H. J. Chidley
 A series of fifteen-minute story sermons for boys and girls from seven to twelve years.
 One for each Sunday in the year. Characterized by the art of an inspired story teller.
 Skillfully conceived and of absorbing interest.
 Cloth. 12mo. Net, $0.75

THE MAN WITH THE IRON SHOES

By Rev. Howard J. Chidley

A reviewer says of this second collection of 52 fifteen-minute Children's Sermons:
 "Happy is the minister who has so mastered the high art of addressing children, and happy are the children who have such a teacher." Cloth. 12mo. Net, $1.00

WANDERING STARS

By Rev. Andrew Hanson

"The author of this book has the great gift of reaching the child heart. In this book he has planted fifty beautiful gardens for children in which spring up all Christian virtues."—Christian Evangelist.
 A choice collection of sermons for little people. Cloth. 12mo. Net, $1.00

MORNING FACES

By Rev. George McPherson Hunter

A well-known minister writes: "I have read 'Morning Faces' with much pleasure and profit. Its apt and original illustrations, its just and natural treatment, and its clear and vital teaching combine to place it among the best books of story sermons for boys and girls."
 Cloth. 12mo. Net, $1.25

Use this form in ordering above books

THE PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

Charlotte,
 N. C.

For the $.....
 enclosed send me
 the titles checked
 in above list.

Signed _____

It Will Pay
 you to consult the house of Allan if interested in Diamonds, Watches,
 Jewelry or Silverware.
 The most skilful artists and artisans produce their goods.
 The quality and price are guaranteed by this firm, whose sixty years of service
 prove that the past and present generations are well pleased.
 A catalogue on request.
JAMES ALLAN & CO.,
 Department A.,
 283 King Street,
 CHARLESTON, S. C.
 THE
 HALL MARK
 STORE

WHEN WRITING OUR ADVERTISEKS
 PLEASE MENTION THIS PUBLICATION

CHARLOTTE MARBLE & GRANITE WORKS

MEMORIALS OF QUALITY

"WE LEAD"

Quality First
Prices Right
Workmanship
Unsurpassed

Memorials in Silver Georgia Marble are unsurpassed in beauty and durability.

CHARLOTTE MARBLE & GRANITE WORKS
 WEST 7th ST. AND SOUTHERN RAILWAY
 Cemetery Gate Phone 281-CHARLOTTE, N. C.

PERSHING ON THE NEGRO SOLDIER.

Rumors from overseas have persistently decried the efficiency of the negro soldier when led by colored officers, the product of a division so officered being held as proof. These men, it is said on high authority, not only failed under fire, but their colored officers had to be court-martialed for cowardice.

Pershing's version of this story, given to the white and colored men who at the government's request investigated it, should be given as full publicity as the stories emanating from less distinguished sources. Any officer, of any race, commanding general said, might well have failed in the same way under similar circumstances. The troops had been brought near the front to receive several weeks of intensive training before being put under fire for the first time. But the Germans broke through; and in the desperate need these green troops were thrown in the gap, along with every other man available. Twelve of the colored officers lost their heads, and were afterwards court-martialed, though some of them were acquitted on trial. Other colored officers in the same division were promoted for conspicuous courage in the same battle, and were awarded the Distinguished Service Cross.

It was also stated at American headquarters that the morals of the negro soldiers, as evidenced by the number of charges brought against them, were not below those of the white troops. This is interesting in view of much that has been said. It deserves wide circulation, not only in justice to men who did their duty and risked their lives for their country, but as an antidote to those misunderstandings and antagonisms which enemy propaganda seeks to foster in so many quarters.

It would seem that for a generation, at least, any tale calculated to make one group of American citizens censure or despise any other group should be sharply questioned by those who hear it. The Hun wants nothing more than to divide the country whose united effort was his undoing; he will stop at no "lying invention" which holds out a hope of discord. Our colored troops honored themselves and their country; rumors should not be allowed to obscure that fact.

"THE VALLEY OF VISION."

Henry Van Dyke.

Varied stories dealing with human love and faith, with dreams and realities, with things that will last now that the war is ended but not forgotten. One of the longest is a vision of three unknown days in the life of Jesus of Nazareth. It belongs with "The Story of the Other Wise Man," which has gone around the world.

PRICE $1.50, Net.

— Order from —

PRESBYTERIAN COMMITTEE OF PUBLICATION

Richmond, Va. Texarkana, Ark.-Tex.

Aberdeen & Rockfish Railroad

Between Aberdeen and Fayetteville
Eastbound		Westbound
Daily Ex.	Sunday	Daily Ex.	Sunday
Mixed	Pass.	Pass.	Mixed
No. 22	No. 38	STATIONS	No. 41 No. 21
7 30 am	9 10 am	Lv. Aberdeen Ar.	6 41 pm 5 00 pm
ar 8 35 am	10 00 am	Rae ford	5 55 pm 1v 3 50 pm
lv 2 10 pm		Ar. Fayetteville Lv.	4 50 pm ar 2 50 pm
4 00 pm	11 20 am		1 00 pm

WAGRAM BRANCH

Southbound		Northbound
Daily Ex.	Sun.	Daily Ex.	Sun.
Mixed	Pass.	Mixed	Pass.
No. 11		No. 12
Lv. 10 30 am		Ar. 12 40 pm
Ar. 11 15 am		Lv. 12 00 noon

W. A. BLUE, General Supt., Aberdeen, N. C.

UNITED STATES RAILROAD ADMINISTRATION

Norfolk Southern Railroad

Passenger Train Schedules.

(Arrivals and departures Charlotte daily unless otherwise shown). Published as information only and not guaranteed.

Leave	Arrives
6:30 A.M.	Mt. Gilead.
	Star,
	Asheboro,
	Varina,
	Raleigh,
	Wilson,
	Greenville,
	Washington,
	Norfolk, 2:45 P. M.

For full information call on your nearest ticket agent or write to

G. R. Steele, J. T. Helms,
C. T. A., D. T. A.,
Charlotte, N. C. Charlotte, N. C.
W. J. Williams, Traf. Agt.,
Raleigh, N. C.

Kill All Flies! They Spread Disease

Placed anywhere, Daisy Fly Killer attracts and kills all flies. Neat, clean, ornamental, convenient, and cheap.

Lasts all season. Made of metal, can't melt or tip over; will not scorch or injure anything. Guaranteed effective. Ask for Daisy Fly Killer Sold by dealers, or 6 sent by express, prepaid, $1.00.

HAROLD SOMERS, 150 DeKalb Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

YOUR FACE?

Is the Complexion Mud-dy, Tanned, Freckled?

If troubled with skin eruptions, sunburn, pimples, try

PALMER'S SKIN-SUCCESS SOAP

It cleanses, softens and clears the skin and tends to remove sunburn, tan, freckles, blackheads, pimples and eczema.

Thoroughly antiseptic. Ask your druggist, or write for free samples to

THE MORGAN DRUG CO.,
1521 Atlantic Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

NEW SONG BOOKS

For Your Church

6c

A wonderful value; 83 familiar songs of the Gospel, words and music. Used all over the world. Round or shape notes. Only $6 per hundred for No. 1 or No. 2, or $10 for No. 1 and No. 2 combined. Send 20c for samples. Money back if not pleased. Send 60c for 100 cards. "A Prayer by the Sunday School."

E. A. K. HACKETT, Dept. 56, FORT WAYNE, IND.

UNITED STATES RAILROAD ADMINISTRATION.

ROUND TRIP EXCURSION

Summer tourist tickets on sale May 15th limited for return to October 31st, 1919, to

- Virginia Beach, Va.
- Cape Henry, Va.
- Norfolk, Va.
- Morehead City, N. C.
- Beaufort, N. C.
- Nag's Head, N. C.
- Manteo, N. C.

WEEK-END FARES

above named points. Tickets on sale every Saturday and Sunday, May 24th, September 7th, limited to return Tuesday following date of sale.

SUNDAY EXCURSIONS

- Virginia Beach, Va.
- Norfolk, Va.
- Morehead City, N. C.
- Cape Henry, Va.
- Beaufort, N. C.

Tickets on sale every Sunday limited to day of sale May 25th to September 7th.

For fares, descriptive folders and other information apply to nearest ticket agent.

Yes, Preachers and Teachers

are human. They should have no discount and no cheaper railroad fares than you and I. They should be paid for services rendered, amply paid. If he can't earn enough for family use and the nest egg for the future, he made a sad mistake as to family, else he should change his calling instanter,

The Mutual Building & Loan

will save a man and his family if they're worth saving, but they must help. It furnishes the "sure cure," but boasts no regrets at the demise of a feller who deliberately refuses to take the medicine.

E. L. KEESLER Sec. & Treas., 25 S. Tryon St., CHARLOTTE, N. C.

Sparkles

Real "Pot Luck."

A stylishly dressed woman entered the restaurant. The waiter handed her a bill of fare written in French, and said: "Please mark off the dishes you wish to order."

Could a woman, dressed in the height of fashion, confess that she was unable to read French? Taking the pencil, she made a few dashes, and the order read:

"Dinner, 2s., "March 20," "Vegetables," "Please pay at the desk," "No tips."

The waiter brought her a beefsteak and chip potatoes, but she did not dare to raise a word in protest.—London Tit-Bits.

The Wonder of Today.

During recitation in a certain primary school the instructor asked her pupils what wonders can be seen today that were not in existence fifty years ago. There were many answers: Air-planes, the telegraph, the telephone, electric lighting, automobiles, etc. Finally one little fellow contributed his wonder: "Me and me brother."—Harper's Magazine.

Efficiency.

In the year 2000 the ceremony over the last American veteran of the great war was taking place.

Through the crowd there pushed his way excitedly a postman who laid upon the bier a package.

It was the dead veteran's Christmas box, mailed to him in France from New York in October, 1918.—Life.

Johnny had just finished his first term at school. The prizes had been distributed and the rejoicing scholars had gone home.

"Well, Johnny," asked a lady who was having tea with his mother, "did you get a prize?"

"No," replied Johnny, "but I got horrible mention."—Ex.

Too True.

Doughboy (made irritable by shell shock, parading with his regiment through a crowd of vociferously cheering citizens): I wish dey'd shut up.

Pessimistic Doughboy (marching at other side): They will if you asks dem for a job.—Life.

The Vice in Advice.

Kloseman—"Let me give you a piece of advice."

Knox—"What's the matter with it?"—Boston Transcript.

A Rest Cure.

"Some men," said Uncle Eben, "goes fishin' not so much foh de sake of de fish as foh de chance to loaf without bein' noticed."—Washington Star.

This is Introducing Our JOB PRINTING DEPARTMENT

PRESBYTERIAN :: STANDARD :: PUBLISHING :: COMPANY
CHARLOTTE, NORTH CAROLINA

ESTABLISHED FOR YEARS
But Perhaps Unknown to You

Doing better and more work now than ever before. Get from us the last word on Catalogs, Booklets, Letter and Bill Heads and every other kind of printing. And with this get also ideas and suggestions from our EXPERIENCED PRINTERS to solve your printing troubles. Write us or come to see us.

4 Per Cent

Time Certificates of Deposit

They are Interest Bearing. They are Payable on Demand. They Afford a Good Income for Funds Awaiting Permanent Investment

GET ONE
AMERICAN TRUST COMPANY

Charlotte

::

North Carolina

You Want the Best

In view of the amount of money involved in the purchase of a Player Piano, it is perfectly consistent that the prospective purchaser should carefully survey the field before making his decision. By selecting a STIEFF PLAYER you will eliminate all risk. Its rank is supreme.

M. D. MANNING
Manager

CHAS. M. STIEFF
ESTABLISHED 1842

219 South Tryon Street
CHARLOTTE, N. C.

TUNING

REPAIRING

MOVING

Charlotte National Bank Resources
$4,000,000.00

CHARLOTTE, N. C.

PAYS FOUR PER CENT.

On Either Time Certificates of Deposit or
Savings Accounts

MAIL ORDER Business Solicited and PROMPT ATTENTION Given

JOHN M. SCOTT	President
W. J. CHAMBERS	Vice-President
J. F. ROBERTSON	Vice-President
W. H. TWITTY	Cashier
C. W. BUTT	Assistant Cashier

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

REV. J. R. BRIDGES, D. D.

EDITORS

REV. R. C. REED, D. D.

VOL. LX.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., June 18, 1919.

No. 24.

"It is the Lord."

When the day breaks along the beach
And turns to gold the yellow sand,
When singing waves stretch forth and reach
The welcome of the meeting land,
I see Him stand!

What though the night has fruitless been,
And no hope gild the morning hour?
New beauty thrills the common scene,
And song of birds, and kiss of flower
Witness His power.

He comes, and lo, the world is glad!
The hours forget the gloom of night;
Mirth cheers the hearts that once were sad,
The landscape lies in floods of light,
And all is bright.

I know Him when He breaks the bread,
And when He stills the roughened sea,
Or when the morning meal is spread,
He manifests Himself to me,
So gracious He!

He calls to me to break my fast,
And care and sorrow flee away.
The dreary way is overpast,
And in the rapture of the day
With Him I stay.

And so I think that when ere long
I meet the time I sometimes fear,
My heart will sing its joyful song
And gladly say, "Be of good cheer; Thy Lord is here!"

—Marianne Farningham.

Editorial

A Unique Obligation.

BOTH France and Belgium are Catholic countries. In Belgium, the few Protestant churches enroll about 15,000 communicants. In France the Protestant churches have a membership of approximately 100,000. This means that in Belgium there is one Protestant to 140 Catholics and in France one Protestant to 60 Catholics.

When American Protestants heard the cry of distress from those countries, they did not pause to ask what their type of religion, or whether they professed any religion. Enough that they were human beings suffering for the necessities of life. Promptly our people responded to the call, and gave with a liberality that was equal to the need. They would have brought shame and discredit on themselves had they done otherwise. When men, women and children were starving, had the Protestants of the United States hesitated to send relief because the relief was going to those of a different and hostile faith, they would have merited the condemnation of their divine Master and the just reproach of the world. It was no time to think of warring creeds, no time to recall the centuries of persecution to which the Protestants of France and Belgium had been subjected, it was the time for a Christian people to show a love broader than all creeds.

But now the great war is over, the immediate and crying needs of all the people have been met. The time has come when we may properly discriminate, when we may think of our nearest of kin, of those who belong to our own ecclesiastical family, when we may listen to the voice of those whose appeal is peculiarly affecting, because they are the exponents of that system of evangelical faith for which we stand, and for which their fathers suffered even unto death.

The Protestants of France and Belgium are not appealing for meat and bread, but for aid in rebuilding their institutions of religion. Their churches and manses were destroyed, their preachers are destitute, and their people impoverished. Great spiritual needs are crying to them, the needs of their own bereaved and scattered people, and the needs of multitudes around them who are ready now as they have never been before to receive their ministrations. The war has opened doors of opportunity, and given them access to hearts that were hitherto closed to them.

Perhaps no call has ever come to the Protestant churches of this country that contained more elements of urgency. It is not a call of charity, nor a call of humanity, it is distinctly a religious call. Those devoted churches which we are asked to help rebuild have a mission to fulfill, the importance of which cannot easily be exaggerated. Those countries have been suffering from a corrupt form of Christianity. The Reformation which freed all English speaking Christendom from the Papal thralldom, failed to bring this unspeakable boon to France and Belgium. For those countries the elements of reform were not strong enough to throw off the monstrous incubus. The result was that with the progress of enlightenment, the papacy, becoming more corrupt as its power became more absolute, lost its hold on the educated and influential classes. France especially came to be largely a nation of free thinkers and atheists.

The war, we are told, has awakened the people to serious thought and turned their minds toward God. This then is the day of opportunity for the Church that has a pure gospel to preach. Surely the Protestant Churches of France and Belgium have come to the Kingdom for such a time as this. We should not think so much of aiding these Churches to recover from their material losses as of using them as evangelizing agencies to bring the truth, the pure Word of God to those who have had to choose between the corruptions of Catholicism and no religion. The call to us is a call to missionary work. The missionaries are on the ground, full of zeal, ready to lay themselves out for the saving of their fellow-countrymen. Our part is to aid in furnishing the equipment.

The Relation of Children to the Covenant.

Sometimes there comes a crisis in a man's life, when he feels bound by conscience to cut loose from old beliefs, because he is unable to subscribe to them, though in doing so, he knows that he will estrange friends and wound those dear to him. Though we may regret the necessity that compels a man to take such a course, nevertheless we have no reproach for him, but only a feeling of sympathetic pity. Several times in our ministry we have known brethren to become beclouded concerning some of the doctrines of our Church and have left its fold, yet we never cease to hope that they may yet eventually return.

Recently we had a letter from a man who had abandoned his father's Church and entered the Baptist Church, because he could not believe in infant baptism. As he grew older, he thought more on the subject, and the more he thought, the more unsettled he became. He could not escape the conclusion that the children are, and must of necessity be, included in the Covenant of Grace, and that in some very vital and tender sense they are related to the Covenant. He is still in the fog, and as yet he has not reached the truth. We have great confidence in the power of truth when it once begins to work in the heart of a consecrated man.

There may be many others who are thus unsettled, and who would like to have some suggestions. We shall not pretend to go thoroughly into the subject, because we have no taste for controversy. We propose merely to suggest a few lines of thought that will, if followed, bring him some light.

When the human race began in our first parent, Adam, with a will unbiased to good or evil, it was necessary to test one for all, or each one separately. God chose the test for one as the easier and fairer for the race of man and thereby He so connected the children with the obedience or disobedience of the parent that the act of the parent became as to its effects the deed of the child. That connection between the parent and the child is also seen in the saving of Noah's children on account of Noah's faith.

It is seen in the promise to Abraham's seed by reason of Abraham's faith, a promise that was repeated in that oft recurring phrase, "the God of Abraham and of Isaac and of Jacob."

This relation continued in the New Testament dispensation. When Peter preached at Pentecost, he told the Jews that it was still in force. He said that this new promise was unto them and to their children; and when Paul answered the jailor of Phillippi's question, "What must I do to be saved?" he told him that his belief on Christ would not only save him, but his children.

Paul afterwards is writing to the Ephesians, whom he styles "saints and faithful." He addresses wives and husbands, servants and masters, and children and parents, thus showing that at that early age of the Church children were regarded as members of the Church. The child of an unbeliever can have no such relation, because the parent himself has no claim to the Covenant. In fact, under the New Testament dispensation, there seems to be some mysterious impertation of the benefit of faith to those who are without.

In writing to the Corinthian Christians (1 Cor. 7:14) he proves that an unbelieving husband is sanctified by a believing wife—and he proves it by the assumed fact that the children of a believing wife are holy. His argument runs thus: An unbelieving husband is sanctified by a believing wife. If this were not so, the children would be unclean, which is impossible, for now are they holy.

If the children of believers are not related to the Covenant of Grace, then you must explain these and other facts, equally as strong, and in such an attempt you will find a more difficult task than the apparent unreasonableness of infant Church membership.

The Presbyterian Church and the Sabbath.

That our ideas of the Sabbath have undergone a change in this generation, the most careless observer can see. The typical Presbyterian Sabbath is more a tradition than a practice. We are proud of our past record with regard to the Sabbath, but very few wish to revive the old practices. It may be that our fathers went to an extreme, but it was at least the extreme right—while we on the other hand in our efforts to sugar coat the Sabbath, have made its laws of no effect.

In that most excellent report on the Sabbath, presented to the General Assembly by Dr. Robert Hill, there was a plain intimation that ministers and elders were in too many instances guilty of using the Sunday trains, while only recently we heard a Presbyterian say that his pastor regularly reads the Sunday papers. It is a significant fact that, when, in the Northern Assembly, the report on the Sabbath was presented, the clause protesting against Sunday newspapers and games was vigorously attacked by two ministers.

Dr. J. A. MacCallum, of Philadelphia, opposed the reference to Sunday papers, on the ground that he had seen on the Sunday before two ex-Moderators of the Assembly and several members and secretaries of Church boards buying Sunday papers and reading them at the breakfast table. He declared that they were doing right, and quoted in defence of his position the remark of one of the professors in one of the Seminaries that a pastor could not do his work efficiently unless he knew what was going on in the world and in his own community. His remarks brought forth applause, and when the vote on the amendment was taken, he was supported by half as many votes as the other side.

Dr. L. A. Gates, of Buffalo, tried to have stricken out of the report any denunciation of Sunday games and sports. He, too, received some support, but not as many votes as the defender of the Sunday paper. These two incidents are straws showing how the wind is blowing. Times have indeed changed, since the days of our Scotch forbears, when reputable ministers, representing influential city Churches, will boldly advocate such changes in our Sabbath observance, and find even a minority in sympathy with them.

Our opposition to the Sunday paper is not based upon the charge that it requires Sunday work in the printing office. Any newspaper man knows that the work done is done on Saturday, and that of the two days, the Monday paper is the greater sinner in this respect. We base our opposition on other grounds. In the first place the Sunday paper violates the quiet and sanctity of the Sabbath by filling our streets with business cries and it tempts young boys to roam the streets selling papers, and thus deprives them of the instruction of the Sabbath Schools. Then it so engrosses the minds of men with what is going on in the world that what is going on in heaven has no interest for them. The man whose mind is filled with the happenings of the world, as set forth in the Sunday paper, has little room for Bible truths or spiritual lessons. God has wisely planned for man to devote one day in the week to the sole consideration of spiritual matters. If you crowd in worldly matters you interfere with God's plans to the detriment of man's better nature.

Those who expressed such views concerning Sunday papers and Sunday sports may not be sinners above other Galileans, but on the other hand, there may be many others in our churches who would be found to have similar views, if they would express them with the same openness.

There are no doubt many in Presbyteries and Synods who keep silent when such resolutions are passed and who continue to do these things, on the ground of personal liberty. With such we have no quarrel—to their own Master, they must stand or fall.

Rev. Dr. R. F. Campbell, pastor of the First Church, Asheville, in connection with the Ministerial Association of that city, has been engaged in an effort to eliminate the Sunday paper. The press of the State, in the spirit of Demetrius, the shrine maker of Ephesus who opposed Paul preaching against idol worship upon the ground "that by this craft we have our wealth," is up in arms against the proposal to forbid the Sunday paper. It may be too much to expect that the Asheville preachers will succeed, but they have at least borne their testimony and placed the responsibility for the Sabbath paper upon the readers of the same whether they be saint or sinner, layman or preacher.

Since writing the above the following extract from a sermon on the Sabbath, preached June 8th by Rev. Hay Watson Smith, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, Little Rock, Ark.: "I know that Sunday baseball, tennis or golf cuts across the grain of the early training of many people I am talking to, but I believe it is right. If the time comes when Mr. Balding can get these boys together again to play baseball, I am going to play with them. I am going to do it to get acquainted with them, to show them that religion is not a narrow thing that cannot enter into a boy's pleasure." "If they do these things in a green tree, what shall be done in the dry?"

"The Vicious Circle."

Logicians warn us against the vicious circle, and assure us that nothing is more common in argument, either public or private. However that may be, we are convinced that the Southern Presbyterian Church is also suffering from the vicious circle. If one will take the pains to consult and compare the Minutes of our Assembly for the past ten years, he will find that a few men have constituted the material from which nearly every ad-interim committee has been formed, and also have represented our Church in all outside organizations.

When we examine the speakers at the various Conferences of the laymen we find that they too have gone in a circle. Then when the Moderator of each Assembly goes to form his committees, he seems to feel bound to select the chairmen according to the same rule. Believing as we do in the parity of the ministry we would protest against this circular bestowal of honors. It tends to discourage the humble men of the Church, and it also tempts the chosen ones to imagine that they are made of finer material than their brethren. In the ranks of these village preachers you are apt to find "some mute inglorious Milton," or a "Cromwell guiltless of his country's blood."

It is never safe to judge according to appearance. For example, at the last Assembly there was present the pastor of two weak churches. Judged by appearance he would attract no attention, and on the floor of the Assembly his voice was not heard, yet we doubt whether there was a person who knew more about doctrine, the history of the Church, or things in general. Such men need to be brought out, and the would be leaders given a well-earned rest.

Contributed

"Honor Roll" of Churches Increasing Pastors' Salaries

Different Viewpoints—No. 2—The Physical Versus the Intellectual and Spiritual.

By Rev. W. H. Miley, D.D.

IN a former article, attention was called to the fact that various Unions, Brotherhoods, Fraternities and other organizations had taken concerted action for increased wages, larger salaries and better income to meet the tremendous increase in the cost of living. This call has received favorable response in almost every quarter from the Government down. From the very nature of the case, ministers, however great their need of an increased income, can say but little, much less think of trying to enforce it by methods used by others. Realizing this fact, many of our churches have voluntarily increased their pastor's salary, and done it nobly. We believe one reason why others have not done so is found in the different viewpoint of "Self Versus Service" as set forth in the previous article. Close akin to this is Viewpoint No. 2.

The Physical Versus the Intellectual and Spiritual.

The merely physical things of this world are so tangible, and press so closely upon us, that we are apt to fix our attention, if not our affections on them, and attach undue importance to them as compared to things loftier and more enduring.

Our meaning here may be illustrated by two advertisements that recently appeared in parallel columns of one of our leading papers. One of these was for a barber, and offering a straight salary of $25.00 per week—$1,300.00 per year, and to this was added a bonus of 60 per cent of all income over a certain amount—the bonus amounting to perhaps several hundred dollars.

The other advertisement was for a school teacher, offering $65.00 per month—$520.00 per year. Four months of the year he not only draws no salary, but often spends a large part of that time in labor and expense in preparing for better service. The absurdity of this situation ought to be apparent to every one. About the only accomplishment the barber has is in the use of a razor and pair of scissors. He has spent a few months in acquiring his skill to be used on the physical wants of his patrons.

The teacher has spent many years of labor and expense in preparation for his work. He is devoting his time and talent to the intellectual, moral, and, if a true teacher, spiritual uplift of those about him, training our sons and daughters to be leaders in the affairs of life that make for the peace and safety of the world. Yet he receives less than one-third the salary of the barber. Along with the teacher comes the minister. No congregation cares to listen to a pastor or evangelist that is not well prepared for his work. He is expected to be a leader in all that pertains to the betterment of the individual, the community and the nation. He is an "Under Shepherd" in every sense of the word, seeking to protect, nourish and train men in the physical, intellectual, moral and spiritual world. He is concerned in all that affects men for time and eternity. Few people realize the deep interest felt by their pastor in their every joy and sorrow, and especially his deep concern for their spiritual welfare. We recently heard an intelligent business man criticize a minister for drawing a contrast between the salary of the average minister and the railroad engineer. The business man said: "There is no comparison between the two. Think of the feeling of responsibility the engineer must have for the lives of his passengers!"

That man simply had no conception of the weight of responsibility that rests on the heart of the faithful minister, concerned as he is, not simply for the life of the body, but for the life of the soul. Yet how meager often is his support! The whole situation reminds us of the following:

School teacher to her pastor: "Doctor, this question of microbes is getting on my nerves. I can't read a paper that does not warn against them, until I can almost see them crawling everywhere."

Her pastor: "But, my dear friend, that is something you and I need not worry about."

Teacher: "Not worry about microbes! Pray why?"

Her pastor: "Because no microbe could live on our salary."

We hear a great deal today about strikes and threatened strikes, but if the wage of the laboring man were lowered to the average salary of the teacher and preacher, a cry would be raised that would be heard from shore to shore.

We are not criticising the paying of a liberal wage in the business world, or field of labor, but the failure to provide proportionate remuneration for other things. We are forced to look at these things in a practical way, and under present conditions, the prospect is not reassuring to one planning for life's work. The contrast in remuneration is too great.

A boy and girl grow up together as friends, and pass through high school as sweethearts. The girl takes a three months course in a Business College, and steps into a position that pays her $100.00 per month.

The boy feels called to the ministry, takes a four years' course in college, and spends three years in a Theological Seminary, seven additional years of labor and expense. He graduates, and is offered a field that promises $50.00 per month—half as much as his girl friend has been receiving for seven years. But, some one will say: "Business is business, and the money it promises justifies the larger investment."

But that is the very spirit against which we are protesting. The more important and abiding work is not with the physical, but the intellectual, moral and spiritual. "A man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth." Gain is not godliness, and "Riches are not forever." "The things which are seen are temporal; but the things which are not seen are eternal." The safest investment, and the one that yields the largest dividends, is the investment in the moral, intellectual and spiritual life. And the sooner we put first things first, giving to each its proper value, the sooner will we climb to loftier things.

Here is where Micah made his fatal mistake—Jud. 17-18, "The man Micah had an house of gods, . . . and consecrated one of his sons, who became his priest." Shortly after that a Levite came to Micah's house: "And Micah said unto him 'Dwell with me, and be unto me a father and a priest, and I will give thee ten shekles of silver by the year, and a suit of apparel, and thy victuals'"—about $65.00 and his board. Micah knew that the Levite was not allowed to engage in secular affairs, and that his son could go back to herding the sheep, and probably make ten times that much. So he struck the bargain with him, went on worshipping his gods, starving the Levite and crying, "Now know I that the Lord will do me good seeing I have a Levite to my priest."

But it was not long until Micah was crying after the Danites, "Ye have taken away my gods which I made, and the priest, . . . and what have I more?" Micah had lost all. Is it not for a similar reason that there are fifty thousand vacancies in the teaching forces of the schools of our country, a great scarcity in the supply of ministers, and other troubles that are hard to meet, while we are in danger of losing all that is worth while?

Davidson, N. C.

The Present Dearth of Parsons

A Very Ancient and Troublesome Problem.

By Rev. C. E. Raynal, D.D.

ONE of the hardest and most perennial of all pious problems is that which the Church urges upon the people's attention in the various expressions of that question: Why do not more young men seek to enter the Gospel Ministry?

This question is the theme for numberless sermons and the inspiration for continual prayer. It is inquired into by lonely students burning midnight electricity, and is discussed by multitudes in those great gatherings of ecclesiastics mistakenly called Laymen's Conferences. It forms the subject for special pamphlets, for repeated communications to the Presbyterian Standard, for committee reports to Presbytery, for resolutions by Synod, and is a venerated member of that body of spiritual questions and answers called sessional narratives which are digested each year by stated clerks and sent up to the General Assembly. The question however stated, however discussed, however answered, always ends with the indispensable formula: "Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest that he send forth laborers into His harvest."

This problem has always been discussed by the Church and always will be. In its very nature it is co-extensive with time and can end only in eternity. It has no final terms of statement, it has never been settled by an Ecumenical Council, and any possible answer will leave it still to be debated by succeeding generations. It would be impossible to add anything new to the already vast literature on the subject and so the present investigation is intended purely as a work of supererogation. The only possible excuse for this paper is found in the fact that someone must write it, no matter who refrains, and besides it may afford an opportunity for saying some very detached and impertinent things.

Of course it would be perfectly orthodox to answer the question by saying that more young men do not seek to enter the Gospel Ministry because more young men are not called of God to do so. If this answer were given it would be in substantial accord with the fundamental conception, firmly held by the Church, that the ministry must be so called to its task. But such an answer would leave us face to face with the inscrutable, and the discussion would have ended before it was fairly begun. Another approach to the same result would be to say that more young men do not seek this sacred office because the Lord already has about all the preachers that He wants. When we remember how many denominations there are that ought to be united, and how many there are that apparently cannot be united, and how many there are that ought not to be at all, we can readily see that there might be all the preachers that God wants and yet not enough to go around. The problem of too few candidates would then resolve itself into that other problem of too many Churches. But while such an answer might be our problem's end, it would undoubtedly be the beginning of endless strife, and so all haste is made to affirm that this answer would be, at best, only a partial solution.

And then to answer this problem by affirming that more young men do not come forward because the Church has not called them, would be to meet a bold and unanswerable denial. In disproof of such a slanderous suggestion all the activities described above could be cited—activities of talking and writing, activities of appointing committees and voting resolutions, activities of overtures, pamphlets, exhortations and earnest, fervent prayer. Who would dare say that the Church had been recreant here, or that she had not, by every means at her disposal, called young men to the Gospel Ministry. There is all this literature on the subject which he who runs may read, and the printing press is still at work. Legible documentary evidence, good in any court, would dispose of such an answer.

But it will never do to acknowledge humbly that we do not know the answer, and so we will divide the subject, in purely arbitrary fashion, as Caesar did Gaul and as every preacher does a text, into three parts and proceed as follows:

1. Looked at from the young man's point of view there might be several reasons why he feels no very compelling desire to enter the Gospel Ministry. He might be able to say to the Church in spite of her really vociferous calls, "I can't hear what you say—your actions speak so loud."

For instance the young man who considers the Gospel Ministry has to face at once the fact that the Church has never made her call an effectual means of livelihood. The ministry in the world today, while rated as one of the learned professions, is paid less for its labors than the brick-mason or the village blacksmith. With himself, his future wife, and his inevitable offspring, to feed, clothe, warm and educate, the young man knows that his monthly, quarterly, or semi-monthly stipend will leave him, either in debt to the world, or in the most common obligations that a man owes to his wife and children, naked in the sight of God. He knows that he will be expected three times a week to speak to the Church upon subjects which have to do with all the manifold wisdom of God, and yet he will be absolutely morally debarred, by poverty, from clothing his soul even with such rags of inspiration as an adequate library would afford. Such a thing as an occasional return to the Schools of the Prophets or a brief visit to the fountains of all wisdom and understanding, except such as Chautauqua offers, would be beyond his utmost horizon of hope. The vow of poverty which he takes when he feels the ordaining hands of Presbytery upon his devoted head will be dark for him with somewhat the lurid meaning of Dante's legend—"All hope abandon ye who enter here."

The young man considering this office is confronted also with the certainty that, with a training requiring seven years in the schools and an apprenticeship extending over an indefinite term thereafter, he will have the briefest period of mature service known to any trade or profession whatsoever. At the age when any ordinarily successful business man, lawyer or physician is just entering upon security and comfort he will be doomed to the consecrated shelf. No Church will call him at that age unless so poverty stricken that no other course seems open, and any Church encumbered with him at that age will earnestly desire to relieve him of the cares of so important a congregation. As he reaches that ripeness of wisdom and that understanding of his office that only age can give, he will certainly return to the byways and hedges or his congregation will thenceforward wear an air of sacrifice and martyrdom visible to all beholders.

Besides this the Church makes it clear to his vision, beyond any need of spectacles, that the preacher holds the most insecure office known to man. Any disapproval on the part of a minority, even the smallest, can be made so general in apparent effect that if the parson does not move—mainly because he has nowhere to move to—he will continue in his pastorate in bitterness of spirit, earnestly desiring to be translated and with the offering up of prayers and supplications with strong crying and tears unto God. Not unknown to the young man is the experience of certain preachers of his acquaintance who, having spent freely and without hope of worldly reward, all that they possess, have been given to understand with brutal clearness that the peace and growth in grace of the congregation of saints will best be served by their resignation. He will have but two open doors of glory before his vision haunted eyes: the one will be to die and go to his eternal reward, and the other will be to get a call to a wealthier congregation.

The young man also knows that while his heart may be

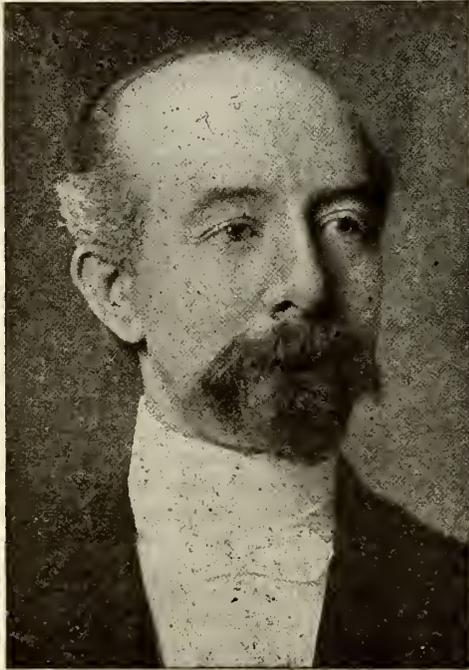

(Continued on page 9)

The Twin Conventions in Atlanta

By S. W. Grier.

AFTER a three days' meeting in progressive and beautiful Atlanta, with an attendance of men and women which in numbers possibly fell short of pre-convention expectations, but in zeal and consecration left nothing to be desired, the Sixth General Convention of the Laymen's Missionary Movement and the First General Convention of the Woman's Auxiliary passed into history.

It is a significant fact that in these super-busy times in which we are living men by hundreds will leave important work at home and travel far to sit for three days of intensive study of the things of God. The explanation is these are troublous and thought provoking times, these days of readjustment, and thoughtful men are coming to realize more and more that just the principles learned in such a school and applied in business and social life, are the principles that will solve their problems.

Dr. Egbert W. Smith, just returned from the Orient with a great missionary message.

The Convention Homes.

The two conventions had separate meeting places for the day sessions but largely the same program; in the evening a joint meeting was held.

The men's meetings were in the Wesleyan Memorial Methodist Church, a beautiful and commodious building; the women's in the Baptist Tabernacle, made famous during the pastorate in Atlanta of Rev. Len Broughton as the Len Broughton Tabernacle. The latter place had become for the time being quite "a woman's hall with flowers in her hair," for beautiful palms and ferns and exquisitely executed missionary posters, and large Japanese parasols suspended over the Foreign Missionary literature tables, labeled her "For women," and lent an indescribable charm.

Missionary Posters.

These posters attracted much attention so instructive and so beautiful were they, and one heard with interest that they were designed by Miss Isabel Arnold, whose connection with the Foreign Mission office has educated her in sympathy as well as in understanding of all phases of mission work.

Some Happy Features.

There are many charms about a convention of this kind: the meeting of friends from distant states, the happy greeting of old friends, the making of new ones; the seeing the leaders of the church and the learning to know personally her missionary heroes.

The Pageant.

This convention was particularly happy in its number of missionaries present, and especially from Korea, and there was nothing more impressive in the entire convention than the Korean Pageant participated in by these missionaries. Korean life in its pathos was made to live before the eye as no mere reading of books could make it live. The native wedding and funeral and the home life of the Korean moved one with pity, while the Church scene in which Dr. Reynolds conducted the service, impressed one deeply with the air of reverence and earnestness so apparent in the worshippers. The pageant was under the management of Rev. Mr. Swinehart and the following Korean workers took part: Revs. S. D. Winn, L. T. Newland, J. C. Crane, John McEachern, W. D. Reynolds and W. A. Linton, and Misses Emily Winn, Lavalette Dupuy, Lillian Austin and Ethel Kesler and Mrs. M. L. Swinehart.

And missionaries from other countries were present also to move the heart with the Macedonian cry. Brazil, cursed by Catholicism, was presented by Miss Douglas; Africa, with her witch-craft and superstition, by Mrs. Robert King, formerly a Belgian missionary, who married our own Dr. King, and by Rev. F. W. McElroy, whose story of the Dark Continent's longing for the light was indeed appealing; Japan, by Rev. and Mrs. Ostrum; and Mexico, our turbulent next-door neighbor, by Mr. Alfred D. Mason, who had visited the field so recently.

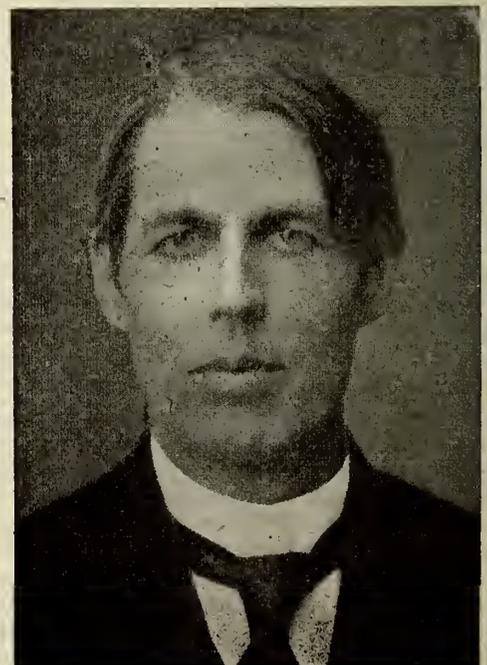

Dr. Smith.

And then what was possibly the outstanding address of the convention was a missionary one. This was from Dr. Egbert W. Smith and was an account of his recent visit to the Orient and to the various Mission fields of the Southern Church. Its humor provoked to laughter at one moment and at the next the immensity of the task of missions, the self sacrifice of those soldiers on the far flung battle line and the fearful burden of the unsaved as Dr. Smith had felt it, moved one tremendously.

The Work At Home.

Ranking equal with the Foreign work is always the work at home.

The opening address of the convention by Dr. Mauze of West Virginia presented most emphatically and earnestly this work at our door. Later in the program Drs. Morris

Dr. T. H. Rice, of Richmond, Va., who brought a deeply spiritual message to the Convention.

Mr. J. B. Spillman, of Columbia, S. C., who believes that Church advertising is worth while.

and McMillan made strong addresses on this subject, while workers in the mountain sections of our southern states brought concrete examples of the needs.

Mrs. Winsborough's excellent address to the women was also on Home Missions. She presented the biggest, because the nearest home, challenge, the call to elevate and evangelize the negro right in our back yards. Mrs. Winsborough handled this great subject in a practical and sympathetic manner.

The Young People of the Church.

One of the sensations of the Convention was the charge brought by Mr. Robert McQuilkin of Philadelphia that scores and hundreds of colleges in the United States are teaching anti-Christian doctrines. Mr. McQuilkin has given much time and effort in studying the conditions in the colleges and universities of the country. This charge was the strongest possible argument for the Christian school.

At this time also Dr. Glass spoke on the Sunday School and Mr. Lehmann on the Christian Endeavor. Both of these men have given special study to their subjects and had expert advice to give on developing these, the greatest training schools of the young.

Dr. Theron H. Rice's address on "The Leadership of the Holy Spirit in the Work of the Church" was one of the most inspiring and spiritual messages of the Convention.

At the Wednesday evening session Dr. Charles E. Pratt presented the Interchurch World Movement, and Dr. Lewis H. Chafer spoke on The Seven Major Biblical Signs of the Times.

Something Practical.

The session of the men's meeting on Wednesday morning took a most practical turn. The talks were by men who have "specialized" or who have found out something good and are willing to share it with others. Mr. Spillman on the Church advertising was specially convincing. He has studied this subject and he presented it well. Dr. McGeachy, of Decatur, Ga., when he assured the Convention that young people will have amusements and asked to whom they should look for it, the Church or the World, and when he declared that we had long heard of sounding boards in the Church and now let's have some diving boards, no doubt gave a new line of thought to many a preacher and layman, too. The organized Bible class, a questionnaire for church members and other practical questions were discussed in a most practical way.

But even at this time the spiritual was never lost sight of and the appeal for the family altar made by Dr. Sevier, of Augusta, was excellent. It was rightly placed in the "business in the church" conference, for he made it clear that there is no better "home insurance" than a family altar.

Something Inspirational.

The Thursday morning meeting, by way of contrast, was inspirational in character. At this session the Convention reached high water. Dr. Dobyns opened the session with an address in his own inimitable style on Stewardship as God's Word Teaches It. Dr. Poteat of New York followed with "Stewardship of Property," and Dr. Doughty on "Releasing the Power of the Church Through Prayer." Each speaker carried tremendous inspiration to his hundreds of listeners.

Mr. McQuilkin of Philadelphia closed this service with a talk on The Victorious Life, which, while beautiful, sounded to one listener at least like a close approach to the doctrine of sinless perfection.

And Now For the Test.

The sessions closed Thursday night with a stirring address by Dr. J. Campbell White on "Will We Accept the Challenge of the Hour?" and forth from the Convention hall went the men and the women who had listened so earnestly, to put to the real test the good of the Convention.

Should we not live better and practice these precepts we have learned in our social, civic and religious life, then it were good for us if we had not sat at the feet of these leaders; or as Dr. Doughty expressed it: "If any man goes out of this place without his life having been shaken to its foundation, then it were better he had not come."

Some After Convention Thoughts.

There is nothing that adds so much to a meeting as hundreds of men's voices lifted up in the great hymns of the church. The convention quartet, composed of former members of two Union Seminary quartets, Rev. Messrs. S. K. Phillips, C. B. Craig, C. V. Carson and W. T. Mann, added variety and charm to this part of the program. No more beautiful sermon was heard than "The Riches of Love in Christ Jesus" as sung by these young men.

* * *

There is a lot of repetition in the speakers on the programs of these Conventions. Some speakers have appeared on practically every program since the initial meeting. The Presbyterian Church and the church at large have too much talent for any man to be over worked.

* * *

Agnes Scott College is a household word in many homes, the alma mater of many of the South's fairest daughters. The reception that Dr. and Mrs. Gaines tendered the ladies of the Convention on Wednesday afternoon afforded an opportunity to many to visit the college for the first time and to many others to renew happy memories. This was the one distinctly social event of the Convention.

* * *

An open conference, or old-time "experience meetin'," was held Thursday afternoon, conducted by J. Campbell White, and it did one's heart good to hear business men, many of whom have achieved great success, testify that New Testament principles will do to sell goods by on Monday as well as worship the Lord by on Sunday. Our old friend, The Tithes, did not fail to bear witness at this session.

* * *

One cannot always gauge the benefits of a convention during its sessions, but must digest at his leisure the abundant food, for nothing is so wearying to the physical man as a strict attendance on the sessions of a convention. One member found herself after a strenuous day and a popular night meeting at the auditorium, in her room at eleven o'clock with a report to prepare, weary in body and mind, without an idea, and with notes a foot high in short hand that she could not read, and if, when at 2 a. m., she crept into bed, it was to the tune of "Home, Sweet Home," surely it was no reflection on either the spirit of the Convention or the cordiality of the hostess city.

* * *

The Pre-millennial note was strong in the convention. Should one side of a disputed question be presented not once, but many times, and the other not at all? Or rather should

(Continued on page 8)

Montreat Young People's Conference.

By John I. Armstrong.

THE third Annual Young People's Conference at Montreat will be held June 26th through July 6th. The original purpose of this Conference was to get representative young people of our Church together for ten days, to study the whole work of the Church and to train for leadership, under conditions that make possible worthy work and wholesome play in proper combination.

This main purpose has not been changed, but much has been learned from experience and there will be several new features this year. Special mention may be made of three.

1. Bible Courses. Instead of the Bible hour in which all delegates came together heretofore to hear a lecture each working day of the Conference, there will be this year four groups for Bible study. One group will consider the message of the Bible to the individual Christian in his personal devotions, the aim being to help the young people form and confirm habits of intelligent, devotional use of the Bible. Another group will study the social message of the Bible. A third group will have a class in the use of the Bible in personal work, and a fourth group will consider the Missionary message of the Bible. Each of these groups will work under the direction of an experienced teacher and the managers of the Conference are hoping for great results from these Bible courses. It may be said in passing that this new feature of several Bible courses was arranged after repeated requests from the young people who attended former Conferences.

2. Joint Conference on the Work of the Church. This new feature is also in answer to requests from former delegates. Formerly there were separate Conferences on each department of the work and delegates selected the Conferences they wished. This year there will be one Conference, meeting each working day, under one leader, who will arrange for the proper consideration of each department of the work in a united whole. Methods of work will be presented in a practical way by actual demonstration.

3. Story Hour. Each afternoon a story hour will be conducted for demonstration and practice in the art of storytelling as a means of missionary and religious instruction.

Text Book Courses. Four of these courses will be offered, one by the Foreign Mission Committee, one by the Home Mission Committee, and two by the Committee on Sabbath Schools and Young People's Work. Leaders of delegations should see that delegates select text book and Bible courses so as to take back from the Conference to the home Church the broadest and fullest message possible.

Recreation. Every afternoon and all day July 2nd (Stunt Day) will be devoted to the various forms of recreation and social and athletic activities. Competent leaders will direct all these activities. Delegates are requested not to plan for trips away from Montreat during the time of the Conference. Such trips interfere with the Conference, not only for those who go, but for those who do not go.

Who Should Go? Young people between 16 and 25 years of age who will make leaders in the work of the home Church are the ones the Conference is planned for. All who select delegates are requested to observe these age limits. In addition to the young people between 16 and 25, all leaders of young people's work in local churches and in Presbyteries and Synods will be cordially welcomed. The managers want and expect all who come to have a good time, but every delegate is expected to give attention to the work of the Conference, during working hours, according to the regular daily schedule, and to confine recreation to the time set apart for this purpose.

Expenses. There are no special railroad rates this year. Black Mountain is a regular summer tourist point and local ticket agents should be asked for information about the cheapest way to buy tickets. The Conference fee is $3.00 and the charge for board and lodging for the Conference period is $17.00. Transportation from Black Mountain to Montreat and back, and books and incidentals will require three or four dollars more. A safe estimate of expense is $25.00, in addition to traveling expenses, which will of course depend on distance and mode of travel.

Program. A full program is being printed and will be sent promptly on request. Write to Jno. I. Armstrong, P. O. Box No. 330, Nashville, Tenn.

The Twin Conventions in Atlanta.

(Continued from page 7)

a controverted question be presented in a Convention of this kind at all?

* * *

Speakers, and this applies especially to the women, should speak so as to be heard. Much that was good was lost in the women's convention because the speaker's voice was weak.

* * *

Dr. Dobyns says to successfully answer the question of stewardship to God we must answer four questions: 1 Cor. 4:7; Luke 16:5; Mal. 3:8, Ex. 4:2. Look these up and see if they solve the stewardship matter for you.

* * *

Mrs. E. C. Cronk's address to the women on "Sighs or Service" made such a strong appeal to consecrate what we have and not sigh for what we have not that we would every woman and man, too, in the church could have heard it.

* * *

Possibly no one thing adds so much to the success of a session as a good leader. Mr. Alfred D. Mason made the best we have ever seen. He had the right word for every occasion. Nothing lagged while Mr. Mason presided.

* * *

Mrs. Winsborough made a delightful presiding officer at the women's meetings. Her tact and consideration were unflinching. Mrs. Winsborough is fast becoming as much an essential to women's conventions as Mr. Rowland is to men's.

* * *

Dr. Wells of Wilmington made a wonderfully fine appeal for a church paper in every home. The wonder to us was that any man could leave that building without having subscribed for the Standard at least, and the other papers if he could afford several.

* * *

Generally speaking the man who talks for over an hour at a convention with a full program is talking unpopularity to himself.

* * *

Mrs. Booker T. Washington was a speaker at the women's Convention who was heard with interest. She presented the cause of her race with dignity and earnestness.

* * *

South Carolina's women had a record to be proud of. Their's was the only Synodical that reached the standard of excellence, every Presbyterian in the Synodical having reached this standard. This announcement made in the Convention was received with enthusiastic applause.

* * *

Silk banners were presented as awards for the largest attendance at the convention to four Atlanta churches and four out-of-town churches. The Atlanta North Avenue Presbyterian Church received the banner for the largest number of delegates attending, while the Central Presbyterian Church received the banner for the largest percentage of membership attending. The Atlanta Associate Reformed Church was awarded the banner for the largest number of women, and the Kirkwood Church that for the largest percentage of women.

The Chester, S. C., Church was awarded the banner for the greatest number of men, and the Durham, N. C., Church for women. The Raeford, N. C., Church had the largest percentage of men present, and the Trenton, Tenn., Church the largest percentage of women.

* * *

The local committee on arrangements had made every arrangement for the convenience and comfort of their guests and left the visitors nothing to wish for. Atlanta is an ideal convention city, her people cordial and gracious.

The Present Dearth of Parsons.

(Continued from page 5)

charmed with the pastoral beauty of the Scriptural ideal of this office, he will have small chance of ever realizing that ideal. The conception of the preacher as a shepherd feeding his spiritual sheep and safely folding them, is to his eyes blurred by the vision of the preachers he knows busily impersonating Noah. For more like the Ark afloat upon the troubled waters of the flood, is the Church, than like the peaceful fold, star guarded and angel visited. Instead of sheep, his eyes behold every living thing of all flesh, of birds, of cattle and creeping things after their kind—male and female. No worthy young man would fear to become a shepherd of sheep, but looking at the preachers that he knows he sees that their normal attitude is that of men anxiously and uneasily on guard against something that the hypothesis of tending sheep would utterly preclude.

2. Secondly, as the young man's parson always says if his discourse is properly articulated, the influences under which he must grow up in the home of his saintly parents are such that no very strong impulse toward the sacred desk seems possible.

America has placed the rewards of genius as entirely in the world of business as Germany has placed them for the last fifty years in her tremendous Army. The young American of today lives in a home where the national standards are evident in every room and apparent in every word of conversation. If fate has cast his lot among the well to do he is cushioned upon fair upholstery; his feet tread upon good rugs; his going forth is upon the wings of the wind in an expensive automobile, but his home is innocent of the furniture of good books. He hears momentarily, after the brief hour of family prayers, the highest estimate placed upon all things measurable in the terms of money, but in direct contradiction to the implications of family prayer—he knows that the things of the spirit are not so ratable. If born in a home of poverty he is even more cognizant of the importance of the e pluribus unum in which we trust.

In an atmosphere surcharged with the restless energies that make up our present life what room is there for the influences of a culture that can tend to respect for ideas other than those native to material ambitions, or that can give a background of fine sentiment and convictions necessary to the creation of a prophet of God? How can the young man escape the influences received with his mother's milk, and confirmed in his father's daily walk and conversation? The young man is not a fool. He learns by many infallible signs that the thoughts of the mind, the emotions of the soul, the high calls of youthful inspiration are not of ponderable value among the people of his little world at home, and are still less likely to seem of practical use in the larger one where he must spend his life.

If the men about him feel energetic they go out and make some money. If their hearts grow hungry for companionship they go to the club. If their minds are restless they do not seek the gracious vehicles of ideas found in books or in intelligent conversation, but the relief afforded by a high power automobile. If they feel weary from a surcharged week of energy they go to Church and drift softly into the oblivion of innocent slumber. The young man understands, as a general thing, what he sees. And he values the Gospel Ministry at the exact rating given it in his world. He has never been able to find a preacher's name in Bradstreet.

3. And finally; the young man may escape the influence of the world, the flesh and the devil, but he cannot escape the impressions made upon him by the ministry itself.

He can certainly feel no very vast or irresistible impulses toward a long tailed coat and a limp backed Bible. He sees in the world of forthright men and women a sort of tertium quid—a thing that gives the impression of belonging to neither sex. This phenomenon impinges itself upon his consciousness in a way that carries with the effect produced, the inescapable suggestions of an anxious uncertainty, and a humble and apologetic desire not to be kicked.

He may picture to himself the blazing heroism of a prophet of God speaking, not what men desire to hear, but all that God commands him. He may remember the noble figure of Paul moving alone between the world empire of Greek philosophy and the universal sway of the Roman Army and see that figure tending resistlessly toward the creation of all modern civilization. He may think of Calvin, undeterred by the casuistry of what is Caesar's and what God's, creating a decent city out of a corrupt Geneva. He may recall John Knox whose pulpit was more effectual than Scotland's throne, and whose prayer stormed at the gates of Heaven with the cry "Give me Scotland or I die." But to save his life he cannot get away from the thought of mush when he sees or hears the modern parson functioning.

Like people, like priest, the old prophet scornfully taunts us. The people have what they want, and they have undoubtedly procured what they have paid for. It is to be suspected that nowhere else on earth do they get so little for nothing as in the matters of their religion.

As things now stand there is but one power that can induce the right sort of young man to seek the Gospel Ministry, and this power is the irresistible call of God. That some such men have always heard the voice of God and heeded it, should be the cause for our confidence still. But until the Church can show before the Lord a desire more earnest than can be expressed in yearning paper resolutions or even prayers that it does not mean, we will have to rest the problem where it stands.

But and if the people want some better things and by deeds can prove it at the throne of God, then will their cry bring His answer to their questioning souls when they say each to the other: "Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest that he thrust forth laborers into His harvest."

Statesville, N. C.

The Young People's Conference.

By Rev. J. G. Garth, Executive Secretary.

The Young People's Conference, which closed June 8, was a far greater success than was expected, but God often gives us more than we ask. When the president and secretary of young people's work of the Woman's Auxiliary came to the chairman of Synod's Committee and proposed that we carry out the Synod's order to put on this conference, it was undertaken with much trepidation and anxiety. But the committee voted for it, and a committee of arrangement was appointed that met March 18 in the chairman's room at the hospital, and the conference was launched. The Woman's Auxiliary put its organization at the disposal of the executive secretary, and the secretary is free to admit that the success was due to the faithful, sympathetic, joyful cooperation of that splendid society of women of this Synod. They furnished nearly two-fifths of the money, the other being raised by Dr. Henderlite, they helped Dr. Richards advertise the conference, they persuaded many young people to come, and some of the leaders came themselves. The Charlotte Auxiliary circles furnished much of the linen, supplemented by the hotels and the Presbyterian Hospital. And so, through many slept three in the beds, and the gymnasium was full of boys, on cots, all seemed to be comfortable. Queens College gave us excellent fare, and made the bill for exact cost. The beautiful and convenient grounds and buildings were all that could be desired for class work and recreation.

The program was fine. Dr. Rice's Bible hour was a wonderful inspiration, and the leaders of the study classes, engaged the interest and application of their pupils. Miss Harpham, of Salisbury, taught "Fifty Years in China;" Miss Berry, of Atlanta, "The Task That Challenges," Dr. Morris' book; Rev. H. C. Hammond had an enthusiastic class in "Making Life Count;" Dr. Sweets had a class in Christian Education and Miss Elizabeth Shields, of Richmond, led one in Sunday school work, while Mrs. W. B. Ramsay gave some idea of the Woman's Auxiliary and its work. The Young People's Conference each day was supervised by Miss Shields, who came as the representative of Dr. Gil-

(Continued from page 17)

News of the Week

The N. C. State Nurses' Association, which met recently in Asheville, will meet in Charlotte in 1920. Resolutions adopted asked Congress to enact the Lewis Raker bill to provide military rank for army nurses. The association offers its aid to the Red Cross in giving instruction in practical nursing and hygiene and decided to give more time to public health nursing activities.

The Travelers' Protective Association of America, in session at New Orleans, sent a cablegram to President Wilson expressing confidence in his course at the Peace Conference.

The standing committee of the Irish Unionists Alliance has resolved that this committee of Irish Unionists, representatives of both the North and South, indignantly resent the intervention of the American Senate in pressing the Irish problem on the notice of the Peace Conference, as questions of Irish Government and administration are purely domestic ones for the decision of the Imperial Parliament.

The strike of the wire employes still continues. Postmaster General Burleson says that it is not justified.

The investigation started by the Republican Senators to prove that the copy of the Peace Treaty found in New York was by the connivance of the Administration has come to grief, as Elihu Root voluntarily testified that Henry P. Davidson brought it over and showed it to him.

Secretary Glass has approved a contract for converted Government insurance held by men in the military forces under which beneficiaries may receive lump sum payments instead of annuity payments over a period of 20 years as at present. The contract was sent to the Attorney General for decision as to the legality of some of its features.

A resolution expressing organized labor's disapproval of war-time prohibition and strongly urging that 2 3/4 per cent beer be exempt from the provisions of the eighteenth amendment to the constitution and from the war-time prohibition measure which goes into effect July 1, was adopted by the reconstruction convention of the American Federation of Labor.

Representative Dyer, Republican, of Missouri, has cabled President Wilson, urging him to exercise his authority by appealing war-time prohibition of beer and light wine, in view of the apparent fact that Congress would not do so.

Those who are informed predict that the Woman's Suffrage question will be a factor in the coming gubernatorial race in North Carolina. Thus far, O. Max Gardner is the only candidate who has spoken in its favor.

The strike at Concord, N. C., has been amicably settled at a conference. The open shop basis has been adopted. The cotton mills have been closed ten weeks.

The three States of Illinois, Wisconsin and Michigan, through their legislatures, have ratified the Woman's Suffrage amendment.

General Candido Aguilar, son-in-law of President Carranza, who is now in Washington, came to the United States to enlist the aid of the American Government in obtaining admission for Mexico to the League of Nations, according to advices from Mexico City.

Churchill L. Godfrey, 32-year-old white man, for whose trial a special term of court was convened by Governor T. W. Bickett, of North Carolina, was convicted of criminal assault on a nine-year-old white girl and sentenced to be electrocuted August 8.

Southerners in the Nation's Capital including many Government officials paid tribute Memorial Day to the memory of the Confederate soldier and sailor dead buried in Arlington National Cemetery with commemoration services in the Confederate section of the cemetery. Representative Clarence N. Stedman, of Greensboro, N. C., made the memorial address.

Gaston Quin, also known as Lute, who it is believed played a prominent part in the betrayal of Miss Edith Cavell, English nurse, who was executed by the Germans at Brussels in October, 1915, will be tried next month.

Miss Ada Tyler, daughter of Bishop John Poyntez Tyler, of Fargo, North Dakota, suffered a fractured skull in an automobile accident in Raleigh, N. C., and is at a hospital in that city in a critical condition. After operating on Miss Tyler doctors in charge stated that her recovery was probable.

Jubilee services, celebrating the twenty-ninth anniversary of Rev. L. R. Pruette's pastorate in Charlotte, N. C., were held at the Ninth Avenue Baptist Church last week. At both services the audience filled the main auditorium and overflowed into the Sunday school room.

Both Democrats and Republicans demand the early return of American troops from Europe. It is proposed to reduce the army from the 509,000 figure proposed by Secretary Baker to 400,000.

Solicitor Huffman, in Morganton, N. C., averted a threatened lynching of a negro charged with criminal assault.

The new packing company, headed by John A. Hawkinson, formerly vice president of Wilson & Company, which has taken over a number of independent packing plants in various parts of the United States and Canada, will be known as Allied Packers, Incorporated. F. S. Snyder, formerly head of the meat division of the United States Food Administration, and Albert W. Schenck, of Wheeling, W. Va., will be vice presidents, the announcement said.

To preserve a natural flow of wheat from the farm, periodical premiums covering storage charges will be added to the basic price at various guarantee markets, according to an announcement by Julius H. Barnes, United States wheat director. The premiums will not be introduced during July, when basic prices prevailing for the last year will remain in effect. For each succeeding month, however, premiums will be announced 30 days in advance.

Capt. Aycok and Lieut. Brown, British aviators, succeeded in making a non-stop flight across the Atlantic, making the trip in 16 hours and 12 minutes.

Hon. Wm. J. Bryan addressed an audience of 3,000 persons in the Charlotte, N. C., Auditorium, Friday evening of last week, on the general subject of prohibition and our future work.

Professor Edwin F. Shewmate, Jr., for the past three years adjunct professor of English in the University of Virginia, has resigned and will become head of the English department of Davidson College in North Carolina after September 1.

The Prayer Meeting

TOPIC FOR WEEK BEGINNING JUNE 22, 1919:
NOAH'S FOREHANDNESS—Gen. 6:5-17; Heb. xi:7.

In a passage of wonderful suggestiveness and restraint the depravity of society is portrayed. Ungodly marriage is placed at the forefront as the main cause of the vicious and unhappy condition of society.

Noah lived in this wicked environment a life of piety; and "he found grace in the eyes of the Lord." This is a remarkable expression; and shows to us not only the loving kindness of God which is the same from age to age; not only that in every age we are saved by grace; but it shows that Noah was the most remarkable man of his generation. As God raises up men in all ages to do his will, so He raised up Noah; and Noah responded nobly to the high calling of God.

In an age universally corrupt it was no trifling matter to defy the spirit of the age. In a society gone mad in its materialism and pleasure seeking, it was a notable thing that the patriarch heard the voice of God at all; and having heard it that he implicitly believed so remarkable a message. Paul's—or was it Apollos?—interpretation is that "By faith
(Continued on page 12)

Reduced Rates for Montreat Conference.

By Rev. R. C. Anderson.

Tickets will be on sale for the Montreat Conferences at reduced rates on dates given below. Full fare will be charged on going tickets one way, and return tickets will be sold for one-third of the price of the regular fare on the following conditions: Certificates must be secured on purchase of ticket showing that full fare has been paid, and return tickets will be sold at any time from June 23rd to August 31st, at one-third of the full fare one way, provided certificate is presented, showing that full fare has been paid on going ticket and signed by A. R. Bauman, Secretary at Montreat, and the railway ticket agent at Black Mountain, N. C.

The reduced return ticket is also conditioned on having as many as 250 in attendance upon conference who hold certificates of paying full fare one way.

The dates for sale of reduced railway tickets to Black Mountain, N. C., are as follows:

Young People's Conference, Montreat, June 26-July 6; Conference of Missionary Education Movement, Blue Ridge, June 24-July 3; Southern High School Conference, Y. M. C. A., Blue Ridge, June 24-July 3; Summer School of Student Secretaries, Blue Ridge, June 24-July 19. Selling dates, June 23, 24, 25 and 26:

First General Conference, Montreat, July 7-13; Southern Summer School, Y. M. C. A., Blue Ridge, July 5-20. Selling dates, July 4, 5 and 6.

Women's Summer School of Missions, Montreat, July 13-20. Selling dates, July 11 and 12.

Sunday School Conference, Montreat, July 20-27; City Conference, Y. M. C. A., Blue Ridge, July 22-31; Evangelistic Conference, Montreat, July 27-August 3. Selling dates, July 18-22 inclusive.

Conference on Christian Education and Ministerial Relief, Montreat, August 3-6; Southern Summer School of Social Service and Christian Workers (first half), Blue Ridge, August 4-17; Home Mission Conference, Montreat, August 6-10. Selling dates 1, 2, 3, 4.

Bible Conference, Montreat, August 17-24; Southern Summer School of Social Service and Christian Workers (last half), Blue Ridge, August 16-31. Selling dates, August 15, 16 and 17.

Be sure to inquire of railway ticket agents for these rates, and be sure to get certificate in buying going ticket, showing that you have paid full fare, for without this no reduction will be given on return ticket.

Christian Endeavor

By Rev. S. H. Hay.

- M., June 23—Loyalty to Country: Ps. 137:1-6.
- T., June 24—Loyalty to God's House: Ps. 84:1-12.
- W., June 25—A Call to the Service—Judg. 6:11-23.
- T., June 26—A Call to Sacrifice: 2 Cor. 12:10-21.
- F., June 27—A Call to Clean Living: Eph. 4:1-8.
- S., June 28—A Call to Righteousness: Amos 5:7-15.

* * *

Topic for Sunday, June 29—What Does Loyalty to Our Church and Country Call for?—Matt. 22:15-22.

* * *

Those who selected our topic for the week have sent us straight to Jesus for an answer to the question, What does loyalty to our church and country call for? They have done wisely, for Jesus is the Truth, and the Light of the world. If men would always go to Jesus to learn duty, and would lean less upon their own puny minds and their vain theories of right and obligation, the world would be vastly better off. Most of the deeper tragedies of human history, from Eden until now, have befallen men because they have assayed to walk by the light of their own limited wisdom instead of by God's revealed rule. We are safe only when we know and heed the counsel of the Lord.

* * *

Jesus makes it plain that we have obligations toward our country that ought to be discharged. When He says Render to Caesar, He means Render to your civil government. Often we hear men proclaiming Jesus' command to render to God His dues, in a jealous sort of way that seems to ignore the fact that He commanded also that we pay all obligations to the state. Disloyalty to our country is definitely a sin against God. No man should regard himself a well-rounded Christian, if he is not dutiful to his country.

* * *

Jesus calls with equal clearness for the discharge of duties that we owe to God entirely apart from the country. We owe Him much that is spiritual and devotional, much with which the government has no concern whatever. We believe Jesus refers here to all those duties which we owe through the church—duties of faith, of stewardship of money, of soul-winning work and prayer, and of practical loyalty to the church as the organized society of those who know Jesus and wish to give a like privilege to all the world. The church is engaged in a purely spiritual enterprise, and Jesus claims in no uncertain terms our utmost devotion to it.

* * *

Surely Jesus teaches also in our Bible lesson that we must not mix our civil and religious duties. What we owe the country and what we owe the church must be kept in separate and unconfounded spheres. The state is not a spiritual enterprise, but the church is. The state is God's natural provision by which men are able to live helpfully together, whether they be Christian or pagan. But the church is a supernatural organism from God for building up in the knowledge and likeness of Christ the souls of men that have been supernaturally born again from above, and for spreading the knowledge of this Christ to all men everywhere. The confounding of our duties to church and state has been the cause of wreckage for both church and state, and a mother of woes for humanity. We should follow the wise counsel of Jesus, and keep them separate.

* * *

Name five qualities a good citizen must have.

Name five qualities a good churchman must have.

If Jesus was the only perfect man that ever lived, in whose example can we find the true balance for a Christian life?

Mooresville, N. C.

Sunday School

By Rev. H. G. Hill, D.D.

LOVE.

Golden Text—"And now abideth Faith, Hope, Love, these three, but the greatest of these is love."—I Cor. 13:13.

I Cor. 13:1-13.

June 22, 1919.

The Word rendered "Charity" in this chapter means Christian Love. Charity is only one form of pious love, that shown to the poor needy and guilty. Christian Love as presented by Christ has many more manifestations. He revealed pity for the needy and sinful, the love of beneficence towards all classes of men, and the love of complacency or delight in His own disciples, so far as they were conformed to His will and likeness. Many admirable things are affirmed in the Scriptures of Christian. It is written "God is Love," and this is the only single attribute chosen to represent God. Love is described as "The bond of perfectness," and it is the only perfect bond of Union between rational beings. Love it is declared is "The fulfilling of the law," and is the only principle that will cause man to obey God's law perfectly. Our lesson presents Christian Love in different aspects.

I. Love is Essential to Piety.

A man may have many things given to pious men, and yet be impious, without love. The Apostle says "He may speak with the tongues of men and angels, and yet devoid of love be as sounding brass or a tinkling cymbal." He may have "The gift of prophecy and understand all mysteries, and all knowledge, and yet without love be nothing." He may have the faith of miracles, or "To remove mountains," and yet destitute of love be nothing. He may practice the largest charity or "give all his goods to feed the poor," and still without love is without religion. He may even endure martyrdom, or "Give His body to be burned" and yet if He has not love it will profit him nothing." No gifts nor kind deeds, nor sufferings will prove a person pious if He is devoid of Christian love.

II. Love's Fruits.

The Apostle next describes the effects or conduct produced by love. It is an active controlling principle in the life where it exists. Fifteen things are mentioned that love will prompt, and we can easily test its possession by ourselves. "Love suffereth long" and enables us to suffer much from our fellows without complaint or retaliation. "It is kind" like God to the unthankful and the evil. "It envieth not" others' attainments or prosperity. "It vaunteth not itself," it is not boastful. "It is not puffed up" or inflated with pride. "It doth not behave itself unseemly," is not guilty of indecorous conduct. "It seeketh not her own," is not selfish, preferring self to all others. "It is not easily provoked" or readily moved to anger. "It thinketh no evil," does not plot evil, nor treasure it up when done by others. "It rejoiceth not in iniquity," does not find pleasure in evil, done by self or others. "It rejoiceth in the truth," or finds delight in precious truths. "It beareth all things," it nerves to endure all the ills of life. "It believeth all things," all things properly attested however unpleasant. "It hopeth all things," that human experience and Divine promise justify us in expecting. "It endureth all things," that a wise Providence causeth us to encounter.

III. Love Abiding.

"Love never faileth." Many things needful in our present life will fail because no longer essential. Prophecies shall fail to be useful or to be given when fulfilled, or no longer required. The miraculous gift of tongues shall cease when no longer needed to attest or proclaim the Gospel. Our earthly knowledge shall vanish away before the more complete knowledge of heaven, just as the light of the stars disappears before the more radiant brilliancy of the sunshine. Our temporal knowledge is said to be partial, and is to be supplanted by that which is more perfect. It is compared to that of childhood, when contrasted with that of mature manhood. Our vision here is represented as "seeing through a glass darkly," while in a future life we will "see face to face." The imperfect knowledge of the present state of being, as to God, His purposes, His works and His dealings, will be succeeded by a time when we "shall know even as we also are known." But while many of God's gifts to the Church and our defective temporal knowledge, shall pass away, it is not so with Christian Love. She shall never fail, and the eternal days of God are hers. She shall survive the destruction of the sin-cursed earth, and her life time is eternity.

IV. Love's Supreme Excellence.

Love's superior character is revealed, not only by making her represent the Godhead, by showing her to be essential to true piety, by indicating that she is more precious than many of God's gifts to the Church, but by showing her marvelous power over human conduct, and the eternal duration of her existence. But the Golden Text of our lesson contains another convincing proof of Love transcendent excellence. "Now abideth Faith, Hope, Love, these three, but the greatest of these is love." These chiefest of the Graces are all Eternal. There never will be a period when Faith in God, His Works, and His teachings, will not be exercised. There will never be a time in coming ages when redeemed men will cease to hope for some new display of Jehovah's wisdom, goodness and power. There will never come a season in eternity's revolving circles when Love for God, His redeemed and the Holy will fail to be experienced. But while these graces are all unailing and everlasting; the greatest of these is Love. The power of Love, the functions of love, the effects of Love and the results of Love are greater than those of other graces.

Prayer Meeting.

(Continued from page 11)

Noah being warned of God of things not seen as yet, moved with fear, prepared an ark for the saving of his house."

But he had no house when the "warning" came, for it came, and he began to build the ark, twenty years before the birth of Shem—and also when the keel of that unique vessel was laid, he was four hundred and eighty years of age. Yet he believed God, when He said: "With thee will I establish my covenant," etc.

Here then both in the flood itself and in the faith of Noah we have a transaction without parallel.

Surely Noah was wonderfully forehanded. He was laying up treasure in heaven. It was an unprecedentedly long apprenticeship; but it was an unique ministry of building and preaching and conservation. He was to be a new Adam.

The secret of Noah is the secret of every Christian. He discovered the wisdom of life in the beauty and glory of faith in God. This it was—being true to this vision, following the voice that came from the excellent glory—this it was that hewed, and sawed, and chiseled amidst the cypress timber; that animated the voice and heart of the preacher; that trained the children in the household, that kept the life pure and the heart warm, and that withstood in quiet dignity the biting sarcasms and ironic laughter of his age.

When the flood came, Noah was ready. He alone was ready—though God had not hidden this thing from the men and women of that age.

But to them it was only a joke—a huge madness. They said: "Nobody believes this folly except Noah:" and they thought that that universal unbelief made the flood impossible.

God has commanded us to build an ark—not only to save our houses—our own nation: but to save the whole world; and He has told us of the second coming of our Lord Jesus. He has also commanded us to be ready for that great day. Have we faith like that of Noah?

Devotional

IN THE FOURTH WATCH.

There was great excitement throughout the crowd, for they had heard the wonderful Prophet for many hours. His message had thrilled them. The climax was reached when he fed them with the five loaves and two fishes. Is not this the Messiah? Let us make him King. And with that they were ready to make him their King, thinking he would free them from the hated Romans and supply bread to the hungry. Perceiving the tendencies, Jesus forestalled such rash action by dismissing the multitudes, by sending the twelve to the boat and by withdrawing into the quiet of the mountains for rest and communion.

It is only six or seven miles across the lake, but the night is dark and the winds are contrary. For hours the brawny muscled men, accustomed to long, hard days' work, pulled and tugged against the dashing billows. Little progress is made. All through the first long watch they pulled, and still no sign of land. Ten o'clock, eleven, twelve, and still they toss hopelessly on the raging waters. Men like those are not easily frightened. They had seen rough weather before. The third watch, one, two, three o'clock passes, and still the mad billows baffle their weary, exhausted effort. What a night. It is dark and dismal, a night memorable for its storm and blackness. Strong men despair. The waves are filling the boat. But wait. Their eyes are riveted on a strange sight. "A ghost," they cry in terror.

How true it is that the Lord is so often misunderstood. Poor, frail humanity sees only a terrifying ghost. "Jesus is a myth," said the German philosopher, and they left him out of their sky, out of their thought and life. "A mere Jew," say others, and all his life and work is ignored. "A good man," admit others, but his atoning work is spurned. "An imposter," declare the self-righteous. Thus men of ignorance and self-righteousness rob themselves of a Saviour. Yet this same Lord Jesus sees helpless, hopeless men toiling and rowing, rowing and toiling. He knows their danger. He comes in most unexpected times and ways. He comes in mercy, for he knows the rowing is hard, and the night is dark, the winds contrary, and strength is exhausted.

Property losses, bereavements come like floods. Our day becomes a starless night. Did we dream that Jesus sees our loneliness and despair? Can we see a Helper, a Friend, a Saviour, or do we see only a frightful ghost? He has come to help, but can he? Will we let him? He comes to his own and his own lock the door against him. He stands at the door and knocks. He walks unknown with the men on the way to Emmaus and unless they invite him in he will pass by. "He's a stranger, lone and tall," to the seven unsuccessful fishermen in the early dawn, and only a disciple of love can recognize him.

"He comes just when we need him most." Just when we are fearful his voice is heard above the roar of wind and wave. "It is I, be not afraid." Have you heard him? Have you listened? Above all the turmoil and strife his voice can be heard, and the eye of faith can see even in the gloom of the valley or amid the storm at sea. Instead of a ghost, we find a Friend. Instead of one who would destroy we have a Saviour. The storm retreats and the waves are still.

May this not be the fourth watch of the night in the world's darkness? Does he not see the sorrow and the gloom of the soul? Does he not hear a dying world's cry? Will he not come again, and that right speedily, and in a most unexpected way? Even now he is speaking to us, "It is I, be not afraid," or as he spoke to Jairus, "Be not afraid, only believe." The very fact that men deny his return, or exclaim in derision, "Where is the promise of his coming?" is strong evidence that the time is near.—W. H. Jordan.

Home Circle

A BEAUTIFUL IDEA.

When the family came to divide up the personal belongings of an elderly lady, after her death, they were surprised to find every article of any value designated for the person to whom it belonged. She had a number of fine old quilts and coverlets, and to the corner of each piece was pinned securely an envelope telling who was to have the article. The china teapots and pitchers had envelopes inside them, while envelopes were tucked away among the plates and other things. The books, the vases, the bits of lace, the fancy work made by her own hands, and everything of value, was disposed of fairly and accurately. The date on each piece of paper showed that the marking had been done ten years before, when she had no thought of dying, but when she was well able to judge who would best appreciate the gifts she was willing to give them. And the heirs were delighted to find that she had remembered their individual preferences.

But she had done another thing. Along with each signed note, telling which relative was to receive the gift, she had added a little personal history about the article. For instance, one old-fashioned quilt bore this information: "This quilt is for my great granddaughter, Esther Mary H—. It was made by Esther Mary Blake, in 1812, as a part of her wedding outfit when she was married to John Saunders. It contains pieces of every dress the bride had for best up to and including her wedding gown. The pale blue delaine in the corner was a part of her wedding dress." A large, old-fashioned teapot, that had been used to serve tea to the governor of the state years before, was bequeathed to the young woman in the family interested in old china, with a concise statement as to the party on that occasion, and even inclosing a faded clipping from a newspaper telling of the occasion. The members of the family had heard these stories from their relatives' lips many times, but they were more than thankful to have them written out and authenticated by clippings and old letters.

It was such a beautiful idea that many of the heirs copied it at once. They wanted to enjoy their possessions while they lived, and they wanted to know that appreciative persons would get them if they died suddenly, so they wrote out bits of history about their belongings and followed the example of the relative dead and gone. And, what is more, they went home to be more careful and accurate about writing down family history, for they suddenly saw how interesting and how precious knowledge of one's ancestors is. What we are doing and buying now will be of interest to our descendants, and if it were not it helps us in this present life to record the important happenings, whether they be many or few.—Hilda Richmond.

EXPOSED.

When we find fault we expose our own faults. The chronic fault-finder is simply letting every one know that he is to blame. And the man who constantly sees a great deal to be thankful for is unconsciously showing people how much they have to be thankful for in him. There is a searching thrust in the homely lines:

"If you want to live in the kind of a town

Like the kind of a town you like,

You needn't slip your clothes in a grip

And start on a long, long hike.

You'll only find what you left behind,

For, there's nothing that's really new;

It's a knock at yourself when you knock your town,
It isn't the town—it's you."

Neither "knockers" nor "boosters" are created by their surroundings. They create their surroundings.

Presbyterian Standard

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, $2.50 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE.
REV. W. L. BOGGS, Circulation Manager.

CONTENTS OF THIS ISSUE

EDITORIAL—	PAGE.
A Unique Obligation	2
The Relation of Children to the Covenant.....	2
The Presbyterian Church and the Sabbath.....	3
The "Vicious Circle"	3
CONTRIBUTED—
"Honor Roll" of Churches Increasing Pastors' Salaries—By Rev. W. H. Miley, D.D.....	4
The Present Dearth of Parsons—By Rev. C. E. Raynal, D.D.	5-9
The Twin Conventions in Atlanta—By S. W. Grier	6-7-8
Montreat Young People's Conference—By Jno. I. Armstrong	8
The Young People's Conference—By Rev. J. G. Garth	9-17
Reduced Rates for Montreat Conference—By Rev. R. C. Anderson.....	10

Church News

TO LEADERS OF Y. P. SOCIETIES, S. S. SUPERINTENDENTS AND PASTORS:

The Presbyterian Y. P. Conference of the Synod of North Carolina was attended by 200 young people, representing 96 churches. We believe these delegates have a message for their churches and we hope they will be given an opportunity to make a report at an open meeting as early as possible. Sincerely yours,
Mamie McElwee,
Statesville, N. C. Synodical Sec'y. Y. P. Work.

THE DEATH OF DR. J. B. SHEARER.

One by one the "old guard" is passing away. Dr. Shearer was among the last and now he, too, has joined his contemporaries who in times past made the history of the Southern Church.

At the ripe age of 87 years he has passed away, but he has left behind a record of a very busy and useful life. A graduate of Hampden-Sidney College, Va.; of the University of Virginia; and of Union Theological Seminary, Va., he, from the beginning, impressed himself upon the Church as an educator who had a vision. In 1870 Dr. Shearer was elected president of Southwestern Presbyterian University, of Clarkville, Tenn. He held that position until 1888, then came to assume the presidency of Davidson College. While at the Tennessee institution Dr. Shearer introduced a system of using the English Bible as a school and college text book, he being the first educator of note to advocate such a procedure.

As the president of Davidson College Dr. Shearer had what was considered a successful administration, and he was 68 years old when he gave up the more strenuous duties to take second place in the administrative work of the institution.

He was not only an educator of high order, but he stood high as an author. In recent years he wrote "Modern Mysticism," "Studies in the Life of Christ," and "The Sermon on the Mount."

In memory of his wife, who was Miss Lizzie Gessner, of Virginia, he presented to Davidson College "The Shearer Memorial Hall." He was a man of simple tastes, inexpensive habits, but of wide and generous liberality.

DEATH OF REV. A. D. RICE.

A cablegram from China announces the death of Rev. A. D. Rice at his home in Tonghai on May 31. No particulars were given. Dr. Smith left Mr. Rice in apparently good health when he left Tonghai shortly before sailing for home. This is the fourth announcement of death in our missionary ranks in the last few weeks. Mr. Rice leaves a widow, formerly Miss Emma Bissett, of Birmingham, Ala., and four children. His widowed mother went with him to China when he returned from his furlough about two years ago and is now at Tonghai. He has one sister living at Lancaster, Texas, and another in New Mexico. His father, who was a Home Missionary pastor in Texas, died a few years ago. The sympathy of many friends will go out to the bereaved family and especially to the beloved wife, who is left with such heavy burdens of responsibility to be borne in her loneliness so far from home and friends.

PERSONAL.

Rev. Jno. E. Wool's address is changed from Derita, N. C., to Villa Heights Station, Charlotte, N. C.

Dr. A. R. Shaw's address is 1729 Coliseum St., New Orleans, La. He will supply the First Church, New Orleans, until the middle of July.

Rev. Eugene Bell, D.D., of Kwangju, with his two children, is now on his way home, and is expected to arrive the last of this month. His address will be Shelbyville, Ky., Route 7.

Rev. R. A. McLeod's address has been changed from Camp Lee, Va., to Rockfish Gap, N. C. He has been discharged from military service, and has resumed his work in his old pastorate.

In another column will be found a well-written account of the Laymen's Conference, written by Miss Sadie Grier of our office force. It proves that the personnel of our office in the matter of writing, is "to the manner born."

The Synod of North Carolina adjourned last Fall, to meet in Raleigh at a time that would not conflict with other public gatherings, the time being left to the judgment of the pastor and stated clerk. They have decided upon October 28, 1919, at 8 p. m.

On the first Sabbath in June Rev. W. Moore Scott, D.D., who has served the First Church of Savannah, Ga., as pastor for the past eleven years, preached his farewell sermon to the congregation. Dr. Scott goes to Batesville, Ark., where he will immediately enter upon his work as superintendent and evangelist for that Synod.

At their annual meeting on June 3, the board of trustees of King College, Bristol, Tenn., conferred the degree of Doctor of Divinity upon Rev. Thomas S. McCallie, pastor of the Central Presbyterian Church, Chattanooga, Tenn., and upon Rev. J. A. Bryan, pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, Birmingham, Ala.

The Board of Trustees of Park College, Missouri, on commencement day, conferred the degree of D.D. on Rev. Bunyan McLeod, Ph.D., for a number of years pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Harrodsburg, Ky., and now pastor of Westminster Presbyterian Church, Charlotte, N. C. Dr. McLeod preached the annual sermon before the Y. W. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. of Park College on the evening of June 1. This was the only D.D. conferred at this commencement.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

Pendleton—This church has recently enjoyed a week's preaching by Dr. J. O. Reavis. The services were especially intended for the members of the church, and nearly all of the sermons were directed to them. They were of a very high order, and made a profound impression, greatly strengthening the spiritual life of God's people.

Dr. Reavis also gave a very interesting account of his visit to our mission fields in Japan and Korea last summer.

One member was received into the church on profession of faith.
Robert Adams.

Kingstree—The old historic Williamsburg Presbyterian Church was dedicated on Sunday, June 8, with appropriate exercises. The dedicatory sermon was preached by the Rev. P. S. McChesney, now of Anderson, former pastor of the Kingstree church and during whose pastorate the present handsome church was built in 1914. On the last Sunday of Mr. McChesney's pastorate in Kingstree, the debt on the church was paid in full and it was eminently fitting that he should return to preach the sermon on this solemn occasion. After Mr. McChesney left Kingstree to accept the call to a church in Anderson in the fall of 1917, the Williamsburg Presbyterian Church was without a pastor until the coming of the Rev. J. G. Herndon, of LeGrange, Ga., in April, 1919. It was for this reason that the dedication of the church was so long postponed.

The pulpit chairs of the church were occupied on Sunday by the only three living pastors of the church, the Rev. J. G. Herndon, the present pastor, the Rev. P. S. McChesney and the Rev. Cuttinow Smith of Chester, whose pastorate of nine years in this church ended 32 years ago, but who is affectionately and respectfully remembered by all the older members of the church. Mr. Smith made the dedicatory prayer at the close of the sermon.

At the conclusion of the services a genuine ovation was given the two former pastors by their loyal congregations of years gone by.

Great Falls—The membership of the church here has been more than doubled during the past year (closing June 1), and many others will doubtless come in as a result of the Orr-Armstrong meeting recently held here. Dr. W. W. Orr, of Charlotte, N. C., preached for us for two weeks, closing June 1. Few men can appeal to the unsaved as Dr. Orr does. There is a gentleness of his method par excellence, and Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong, his singer and pianist, added much to the spirit of the revival.

The results are remarkable. Four hundred and one cards were signed, making profession of faith and asking for admission into some church. And the whole community seems to be really revived. So that the religious life of Great Falls is on a higher plane than ever before.

Greenville, Second Church—An additional ruling elder was ordained and installed in the Monaghan Church, near Greenville, S. C., on the second Sabbath in June. The Sunday School is in a flourishing condition and meets in the new house of worship every Sunday morning. The Ladies' Missionary Society meets monthly on the second Sabbath just after the Sunday School classes. Mrs. William Plumer Mills, who, with her husband, has been doing Young Men's Christian Association work in China, made an interesting talk to the society at the last meeting on "The Needs of China." Rev. Paul Patrick, of Menlo, Ga., will assist the pastor, Rev. J. F. Brown, in a series of services beginning on the fifth Sabbath in June.

NORTH CAROLINA.

The Fayetteville Presbyterial calls upon the various auxiliaries within its bounds to send all funds for the new circulating library to the Secretary of Literature, Mrs. J. T. Johnson, Aberdeen, N. C.

Committee on Evangelism, Albemarle Presbytery, recommends the following appointments—adopted: Farmville and Wake County, Rev. C. Connor Brown; Edenton, Belhaven, Smithville, Rev. Wm. Black; Bethlehem, Hyde county (three weeks), Rev. O. G. Jones; Geneva, Rev. Lewis Collins; Nut Bush, Rev. Peter McIntyre; Weldon, Rev. J. B. Massey; Snow Hill, Rev. H. N. McDiarmid; Payne Memorial, Rev. H. F. Morton; LaGrange, Rev. N. N. Fleming; Pinetops, Rev. R. A. White; Enfield, Rev. T. P. Allen; Fountain, Rev. S. K. Phillips; Young Memorial, Rev. Stanley White.

Belmont—This church has just enjoyed a successful revival which embraced the first two Sabbaths of the month. The pastor, Rev. J. T. Dendy, was ably assisted by Rev. G. W. Belk, one of our Assembly's evangelists, of Hendersonville, N. C. Mr. Belk is a direct, plain, powerful and gospel preacher, and makes no compromise with sin. The attendance was large from the first, and we believe much good has been accomplished. Twelve (12) persons united with the church, eleven by profession of faith and one by letter. Others are expected to join soon. Two young ladies from this church attended the Young People's Conference in Charlotte and four others went as delegates to the State Convention of Christian Endeavor at Burlington. We look for better things in the future.

Sunday School Institute Drive in Scotland County—The Sunday Schools of Scotland County, Fayetteville Presbytery, are preparing with some earnestness to take part in the Institute Drive inaugurated by the Committee on Sabbath Schools of Fayetteville Presbytery. In this drive it is planned to hold a one-day institute in every school in order that all the pupils and teachers may gain the benefits of the Institute.

The purpose of the drive is to enable all schools to obtain a larger vision of their work, to encourage and stimulate weaker schools especially, and in general to emphasize the importance of the Sunday School and make it more efficient.

Our Assembly's Standard of Efficiency Chart will be largely used in every Institute. In Scotland County a preliminary conference of pastors and superintendents has been held appointing the dates for each school in the drive period, July 6-11, and assigning subjects to speakers. It is hoped that increased spirituality and renewed enthusiasm may result under the blessing of God from these institutes.

Wilmington, First Church—On last Sunday morning at the Sunday School, official notice was taken of the completion of forty-seven years of effective and consecrated service in the School by Miss Nellie Cook.

The letter, prepared for the session by Mr. C. W. Worth, and published in last Sunday's calendar, was read. Dr. Wells presented to Miss Cook, in behalf of the session, a purse of $100.00 in gold, to which she made a feeling response.

It is permitted to very few to serve so long and so well in one department of the Lord's work. Miss Cook has very deeply influenced the life of this church for Christ and righteousness.

She has felt impelled to resign as superintendent of the primary department and Mrs. John Hall has been selected as her successor. Mrs. D. C. Whitted has been named as Mrs. Hall's successor as principal of the beginners division.

—Church Bulletin.

Schedule of Evangelistic Services to be Held in Concord Presbytery During the Present Ecclesiastical Year—Mooreville First, Rev. C. Conner Brown; McKinnon, Rev. J. M. Clark; Back Creek, Rev. S. L. Cathey; Clio, Rev. E. D. Brown; Cooleemee, Rev. J. M. Clark; Stony Point, Rev. J. C. Story; Gilwood, Rev. J. Andrew Smith; Poplar Tent, Rev. J. M. Clark; Salisbury Second, Rev. Wm. Black; Bridgewater, Rev. W. T. Wadley; Bethany, Rev. C. M. Richards; Tabor, Rev. J. M. Clark; Yadkinville, Rev. J. E. Robinson; Davidson College, Rev. C. Conner Brown; Fifth Creek, Rev. J. H. Pressly; Bethesda, Rev. J. T. Hall; Clinchfield Mills, Rev. W. C. Wauchope; Sevier, Rev. T. F. Haney; Old Fort, Rev. J. M. Clark; Siloam, Rev. J. T. Hall; Glen Alpine, Rev. J. M. Clark; Lenoir, Rev. Wm. Black; Kannapolis, Rev. S. H. Hay; Prospect, Rev. J. M. Clark; Elmwood, Rev. J. C. Story; Beatty Memorial, Rev. J. M. Clark; Rocky River, Rev. A. R. McQueen; Unity, Rev. Wm. Black; Waldensian, Rev. J. M. Clark; Franklin, Rev. T. H. Spence; Taylorsville, Rev. S. L. Cathey; New Salem, Rev. E. D. Brown; Shiloh, Rev.

C. B. Heller; Brown's Mill Mission, Rev. W. C. Wauchope; Newton, Rev. Leonard Gill; Harrisburg, Rev. J. M. Clark; Cleveland, Rev. O. G. Jones; Third Creek, Rev. S. H. Hay; Cannonville (to be supplied); Quaker Meadows (to be supplied); Marion, Rev. C. Conner Brown; Sherrill's Ford (to be supplied); Patterson Mill, Rev. R. O. Lucke; Spencer (meeting held). Rev. J. M. Clark, Superintendent and Evangelist.

The Dallas Church is building a handsome and commodious manse for the use of its much esteemed pastor, Rev. W. S. Hamiter. This is a church small in numbers but large in its zeal and self-sacrificing spirit, and under its present leadership is making good progress.

The Synod of North Carolina—After a careful canvass of this situation, in relation to the State Fairs and other probable conflicts, the Rev. Dr. White and the stated clerk have determined to announce the meeting of the Synod of North Carolina in accordance with the standing rule, therefore, the Synod of North Carolina will meet in the First Presbyterian Church, Raleigh, N. C., on Tuesday, October 28, 1919, at 8 o'clock p. m. D. I. Craig S. C.

St. Andrew's Church, Wilmington—The Children's Day exercises were held by the Sabbath School of this Church on the last Sabbath of May and $50.03 was contributed to the work in Korea. At the June communion fourteen new names were announced of members received since the last communion in March. Six young people of the Church attended the Conference in Charlotte with the pastor, who had a part in the program. The Westminster Society of Christian Endeavor of this Church attended the State Convention in Burlington. A new Sabbath School will be started soon at a mission point of the Church.

Charlotte, West Avenue—The installation services of Rev. C. C. Anderson as pastor of West Avenue Church took place Sunday evening, June 15. Rev. A. A. McGeachy, D.D., preached the sermon and propounded the constitutional questions, Rev. J. E. Wool charged the pastor, and Ruling Elder W. E. Price, of Knox Church, charged the people.

Mr. Anderson begins his work under most encouraging circumstances. His field is cut off by the railroad from the other churches of our faith, while the membership is loyal and aggressive.

Charlotte, Tenth Avenue—Dr. Julian S. Sibley announced to his congregation Sunday that he had decided to accept the call recently given him by the First Church of Waycross, Ga., subject to Presbytery's action. Dr. Sibley's pastorate began Nov. 1, 1914. During that time he has received into the church 296 members. The membership at the beginning was 262, and now it is 465. The net gain in membership has been 203. The liberality of this church has developed greatly. Dr. Sibley has been a useful man in the Presbytery and city.

He is chairman of Presbytery's Home Mission Committee, and during his time of office the current expense debts of the committee has been paid off, amounting to $2,600.00, and several hundred dollars on the Church and Manse Erection Fund debt has been paid. He is a member of Synod's Executive Committee of Home Missions.

He is chairman of Presbytery's Committee on Theology. During the war he was chairman of the Charlotte Ministerial Association in preparing plans for the soldiers at Camp Greene, and in the various war fund campaigns he was one of the Four-Minute Men.

Albemarle Presbytery, adjourned meeting, Raleigh, June 10th, Rev. Peter McIntyre presiding. A letter of dismission to Atlanta Presbytery was granted to Rev. B. R. Lacy, D.D.

Rev. N. N. Fleming was duly reported as having been installed pastor at Falkland on May 25th.

Cobbs Mill Church was dissolved, though preaching was deemed necessary there on two Sunday afternoons each month by the pastor of the Atkinson Memorial Church, to which the members of Cobbs Mill were ordered transferred.

A commission, with power to act, was appointed to look into the matter of recommending Licentiate J. P. Watkins to the Assembly's Home Mission Committee as a worker among prisoners. Commission, Revs. W. McC. White, R. A. White and Elder W. T. Watkins.

Licentiate S. R. Oglesby was received as a licentiate from East Hanover Presbytery. A call from the Oxford Church was placed in his hands, accepted, and the following commission was appointed to ordain and install him on June 29th, 11 a. m.: Revs. T. P. Allen, Dr. White, S. K. Phillips, R. A. White; Elders E. B. Crow and C. A. Lewis.

Presbytery adjourned to meet at Bethlehem Church, near Rocky Mount, September 30th, 8 p. m. S. C.

Gastonia—Two additional deacons were ordained and installed in the First Church of Gastonia on Sunday, June 8, Mr. E. N. Pegram and Dr. Ralph Ray. The church now has a strong working force in the way of officers, twenty ruling elders and twenty-four deacons.

The pastor, Dr. Henderlite, announced the names of seventeen members received on profession of faith.

At a congregational meeting held recently it was voted to proceed at once with the erection of a church in South Gastonia to be used in the work of the assistant pastor, Rev. G. R. Gillespie, and to make very substantial additions to the Sunday school room of the Central Church, to accommodate the needs of the growing school. These plans are to be carried out without delay, at a cost of something like $40,000.

The Board of Deacons of the Gastonia Church has presented Rev. G. R. Gillespie, the assistant pastor, with a handsome automobile for use in his work in the mill districts of the town.

FLORIDA.

Ocala—Rev. John R. Herndon, who has been pastor of the First Presbyterian Church for the last four years, has accepted a call to the Waughtown Presbyterian Church, of Winston-Salem, N. C., and expects to move to his new field the first of August. A call meeting of Suwanee Presbytery will be called for July 1 to act upon his resignation.

TEXAS.

Daniel Baker College, Brownwood—The twenty-ninth annual commencement exercises of Daniel Baker College were held June 1 to 4. The baccalaureate sermon and address to the Christian Associations were delivered by Rev. F. W. Thompson, D.D., at the First Presbyterian Church. On Monday night the Fine Arts Department gave a farewell concert. Tuesday afternoon the Alumni Association held its annual meeting and discussed plans for the coming year. A hearty welcome by a large concourse of alumni and friends of the college was extended to the new president, Dr. F. W. Thompson, at a reception which was given in his honor on Tuesday night at the girl's dormitory.

The graduating exercises were held in the college chapel Wednesday morning. Rev. A. F. Carr, D.D., of Fort Worth, president of the Board of Trustees, delivered the address, conferred the degrees, and awarded the diplomas to the graduating class. The following are the graduates of this year's class: Isham Curtis Bagwell, B.A.; Theodotia Freeland, B.A.; Conrad Vernon, B.A.; Pauline Ragsdale, Oratory; Theodotia Freeland, Voice.

The Doctor of Divinity degree was conferred upon Rev. C. L. Altfather, of Fort Worth, and upon Rev. W. R. Potter, of Mineral Wells.

Dr. Thompson's acceptance of the presidency has awakened a new interest in the institution. Under his experienced leadership in educational work, a constructive program has been approved by the Board of Trustees which will mean much for the future growth and usefulness of Daniel Baker College. Plans have been made for installing the Domestic Science Department by the opening of the fall term. Ground will be broken in a few weeks for the erection of the Coggin Memorial Chapel. We believe that a new era of prosperity is opening before us and we are entering in with renewed faith and zeal into this field of opportunity to train young men and young women for Christian leadership and service.

VIRGINIA.

Norfolk, Lafayette Church—Rev. Harold Shields was installed pastor of this church Sunday, June 1. Mr. Shields was dismissed from Albemarle Presbytery at its spring meeting, and took up the work in Norfolk the middle of April. For five years he has served a group of country churches in Vance County, North Carolina. At the installation service, Rev. W. H. T. Squires, D.D., pastor of the Knox Church, presided and preached; Rev. Stuart Nye Hutchison, D.D., pastor of the First Church, charged the pastor; Rev. T. H. Dimmock, pastor of the Armstrong Memorial Church, charged the people. Rev. D. N. McLaughlin, D.D., pastor of the Second Church; Rev. R. B. Grinnan, pastor of the Colley Memorial Church; Rev. I. D. Terrell, assistant pastor of the First Church, took part in the service. Lafayette Church is located in an attractive and rapidly growing residential section of the city of Norfolk. It has a splendid opportunity and bright prospects for future usefulness.

WEST VIRGINIA.

Marlington Church—Sunday, June 8, was Foreign Mission day in the Sunday School. Attendance, 285. Offering, $222.40. Many with boxes are yet to be heard from, due to the fact that many scholars were kept away from the service by a most terrific rainstorm at the hour of assembling and during the time of service.

This church is looking forward with much interest to the revival meeting to begin next Sunday, June 15. Dr. J. Layton Mauze, of Huntington, comes to us to do the preaching. J. M. Walker, pastor.

MONTREAT YOUNG PEOPLE'S CONFERENCE.

Special Railroad Rates.

The United States Railroad Administration has just announced special railroad rates for this Conference, on the certificate plan, which entitles the purchasers of tickets to a one-third fare returning, provided there are 250 or more persons holding certificates in attendance on the Conference. Delegates when purchasing tickets should ask the selling agent for a certificate, and should bring this certificate for use at Black Mountain, North Carolina, in securing the one-third fare on return ticket. Careful attention to this matter will help all the delegates to save on railroad transportation. Jno. I. Armstrong.

EVANGELISTIC NOTES.

The work of Rev. Trigg A. M. Thomas, D.D., one of the Assembly's general evangelists, is meeting with increasing favor. Dr. Thomas recently conducted a most successful meeting at Forrest City, Ark., at which there were eighty-five professions of faith. Fifty thousand dollars was subscribed for a new church building. There was also an offering of $1,100 for the expenses of the meeting, besides a liberal purse for Dr. Thomas. This insures the largest and best equipped church building for Presbyterians in all eastern Arkansas, and at the same time our church has been wonderfully revived and the entire community greatly helped.

At the recent meeting of the executive committee, plans were adopted with great heartiness for a church-wide campaign of evangelism to be inaugurated this fall under the leadership of the department of evangelism, and carried on through the various Presbyteries of the Assembly. Our church stands foremost among all the churches in America in soul-winning, but it is the desire of the committee to largely increase the church's activities in this direction.

The committee also authorized the department of evangelism to secure and place in the field as rapidly as possible additional evangelists. This step has been made recently by the increased calls that have come to the department for evangelistic services.

The Young People's Conference.

(Continued from page 9)

bert Glass. Dr. Glass was kept from coming by sickness. This conference elected Mr. John M. Gaston, of Lowell, president, and Miss Nellie Jones, of Roanoke Rapids, secretary. The young people worked hard, and many went home with resolves to start work for themselves, and over a dozen volunteered for some form of religious work. Two young people made a profession of faith in Christ. The evening addresses were of a high order, and their appeal struck home to these young hearts. Dr. Myers, Mr. Glasgow, Dr. Blackwood, Mr. Newland, of Korea, Dr. Williams, Dr. Smith, all seemed inspired by the audience of young people, sitting before them, and gave wonderful messages. All enjoyed Dr. McClure's vesper services. Rev. G. F. Bell made a fine platform manager. Mr. Claude T. Carr, of Asheville, led the music with great success.

The co-operation of the young people was great. They submitted to refusals to leave the campus with splendid grace, and thus helped the faculty to keep the unity of the conference. Very few left before the conference was over. The enthusiasm, the overflowing life of boys and girls, was manifested at the dining room tables, in the halls, and on the grounds, but beneath all was the earnest purpose and the desire to be in touch with the great currents of religious truth and power, and every face was filled with expectancy and resolves were in every heart. Truly, time only can reveal the significance of this gathering, and the kingdom of Christ is sure to feel its impact.

The committee in charge is deeply grateful for the response to its plans, grateful for the co-operation of all, the prayers that ascended. The question is, Do we need another conference and should our young people be organized in this Synod? The chairman of Young People's Work is ready, by the help of a caucus of men and women that met on Thursday of the conference, to present a plan to his committee for consideration, and to ask Synod to give us the right to organize. The young life of the churches is flowing a stream that is rushing down with tremendous power unused to the sea. Please give us a chance, is all we ask, and we will let you harness our power to the kingdom.

Please read the statistics of this conference. Total attendance, young people, faculty and helpers, 230; attendance by Presbyteries: Mecklenburg, 42; Kings Mountain, 23; Wilmington, 12; Fayetteville, 40; Albemarle, 10; Orange, 13; Concord, 64; making 204 young people, including six leaders. Miss McElwee had charge of girls and Rev. C. C. Myers of the boys. There were 35 young men and 163 young ladies, not counting the leaders. Most of the young people were around 18 years of age.

Representation by churches: City churches, 33; large towns, 65; small towns, 39; country churches, 47; Barium Springs Orphanage, 7.

The executive secretary has presented his financial report to the committee of the conference, and will present it to the committee of Young People's Work and to Synod. Suffice it to say, that ample funds were provided by the churches, the Woman's Auxiliary, and registrations, and while we feared a deficit, the summing up showed all obligations would be fully met. It is but fair to say that this outcome was due to the management of the Queens College registrar, Mr. Wm. Anderson, and his splendid matron, Mrs. Shay, who not only gave us most excellent meals, but did it so elegantly and economically.

Educational

PRESBYTERIAN THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY OF KENTUCKY, LOUISVILLE.

The members of the faculty of the seminary have been keeping busily at work since the seminary closed a few weeks ago. President Charles R. Hemphill, who has just returned from the centennial celebration of Centre College, is shaping up his work so as to have a period of rest in the mountains of North Carolina. Dr. Henry E. Dosker is at Holland, Michigan, preparing for a series of lectures to be delivered at Grove City College, Pennsylvania, in August. Dr. Jesse L. Cotton, who has been supplying the Covenant Presbyterian Church, Louisville, for some months, will supply the Bellefield Presbyterian Church, Pittsburgh, during August. Dr. T. M. Hawes, who is on a leave of absence, has been spending the last two months in New York and will spend July and August on the New England coast. His work at the Highland Presbyterian Church, Louisville, has since March been in charge of Dr. J. Gray McAllister, of the seminary faculty, who leaves for his vacation the last of June and who during August will supply the Central Presbyterian Church, Washington. Dr. James H. Taylor, an alumnus of the seminary, is the pastor of this church, of which President Wilson is a member, and on the services of which he is a regular attendant. Dr. Edward L. Warren, librarian and intendant of the seminary, returned recently to Louisville after attending the sessions of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A. at St. Louis and is now in Philadelphia, busy with his important work as permanent clerk of this great Assembly.

THE COMMENCEMENT OF THE MONTREAT NORMAL.

The exercises of the third commencement of the Montreat Normal School took place in the auditorium of the school building on June 5th. The two graduates in the junior-college department were Misses Clara Kilgore, of South Carolina, and Mary Whitson, of Swannanoa, N. C. Certificates in the academic department were also awarded to Misses Grace Watson, Greenville, S. C.; Christine Ellis, Chattanooga, Tenn., and Vera Coe, of Richlands, S. C. Excellent musical numbers were furnished by the Choral Club of the Normal, under the direction of Mr. Crosby Adams, of Montreat. Mr. and Mrs. Adams, who have charge of the piano and choral departments of the Normal, are residents of Montreat and well known composers and teachers.

The chief address of the occasion was delivered by Rev. Anton Ver Hulst, recently of Jonesboro, Arkansas, the newly-installed pastor of the Montreat Church. Mr. Ver Hulst began by humorously proclaiming that he was going to deliver a "perfect commencement address," the two chief characteristics of perfection being the lack of anything new, anything that savored of novelty or originality and the fact that it undertook to solve with consummate ease all problems of the universe, known to all ages. Notwithstanding these ominous words, he delivered an exceedingly stimulating address, grouping his admonitions around three central ideas of the greatest needs of America today. These were great love, love of the highest type, the power of independent thought and vigorous effort along the line of righteous and patriotic ambition.

This address was followed by two brief talks, the one by Dr. R. C. Anderson, representing Dr. R. F. Campbell, president of the board of trustees, who was unable to be present, and the other by Miss Frances M. Bowman, principal of the Montreat Normal. These addresses set forth clearly and forcibly the aim of the school, the work already achieved and the plan for its future development. Emphasis was placed upon the appeal made by it to those who desire to invest their wealth where it will be used to promote, and in a very high degree, the interests of the Master's Kingdom.

The exercises preceding this final day consisted of a very suggestive sermon to the graduates by Rev. R. C. Anderson on Sunday, June 1, the subject being the power of woman's influence, and an operetta, "Hiawatha's Childhood," beautifully and artistically rendered in the large auditorium to a great audience of residents and visitors. On the afternoon of June 4th a beautiful reception was given by the faculty of the Normal to the residents and visitors of Montreat, as well as to the relatives of the students, many of whom were in attendance. In the receiving line were the members of the faculty, Misses Kilgore and Whitson, while the students gracefully performed the various functions assigned to them in the matter of entertainment of the guests. An interesting feature of this reception was an attractive exhibit by the department of Domestic Science, placed on the wide veranda overlooking the lake. From all indications the prospects of the Montreat Normal for future years are very bright.

PRESBYTERIAN COLLEGE OF SOUTH CAROLINA.

The commencement exercises at the Presbyterian College of South Carolina on June 4 brought to a close one of the most successful years in the history of the college. These exercises were begun with two most excellent and appropriate sermons: The baccalaureate sermon, preached in the morning by Rev. H. Tucker Graham, D.D., pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Florence, and the sermon before the Y. M. C. A., preached in the evening by Rev. J. P. Marion, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Sumter.

On Monday evening the declaimers' contest was held, when three representatives from each literary society contended for the medal; it was won by Mr. Frank K. Sims, Jr., of Dalton, Ga. On Tuesday evening the orators' contest was held, and the medal was won by Mr. M. R. Williamson, of Lancaster, S. C.

The commencement exercises proper were held on Wednesday morning. On account of the war the graduating class was unusually small, having in it only eleven members. The valedictory was delivered by Mr. W. E. Smith, of Cades, S. C., and the oration by Mr. G. W. Wise, Jr., of Trenton, S. C. An unusually fine commencement address was delivered by Dr. R. H. Bennett, of Emory University.

It was announced that Dr. W. E. Hoy, Ph.D., had been elected professor of Biology and would take charge of this department at the opening of college next September. Dr. Hoy is a Ph.D. of Princeton University; he taught for three years in Rochester University, then went into scientific work for the Government during the war. Mr. Walter A. Johnson will be back in September to take charge of athletics and physical training. Major Frederick J. deRohan has organized the Reserve Officers' Training Corps and will be back next year and have charge of this work. Students desiring military training will find it given under most favorable conditions at the college next Fall. The president was directed by the Board of Trustees to secure a professor in Physics to take charge of this department next year.

The college closes the year with unusually bright prospects for a large attendance of students at the opening in September. Practically all old students expect to return with the exceptions of the seniors, and there is every indication that the freshman class will be the largest in the history of the college.

It was announced that the president is trying to raise $150,000 for the immediate needs of the institution. Mr. C. E. Graham, of Greenville, has promised to give $30,000; Col. Leroy Springs, of Lancaster, has promised to endow a chair for $30,000; Mrs. John S. Kennedy, of New York, has given $10,000 and Mrs. Cyrus H. McCormick, of Chicago, has given $2,500. The town of Clinton is now being canvassed for $30,000, and the canvas has progressed sufficiently far to make it practically sure that the full amount will be raised. The professors' salaries were increased $400.

No college in the Church has made such wonderful progress during the past few years as the Presbyterian College of South Carolina. The faculty has been doubled in the last eight years, and also the salary of each professor has been doubled.

UNION THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY, RICHMOND, VA.

Although this is the largest of our theological seminaries there are always more calls for men than can be supplied. Not only are all the graduates already placed but all the undergraduates also have been engaged as supplies for the summer. This shows that there is still an inadequate number of candidates for the ministry and accentuates the duty of presenting the claims and opportunities of the ministry to the young men of our congregations and colleges. Our people will be glad to know, however, that the registration of new students for next session is considerably larger than usual at this season. Some of the candidates who are in the army and navy and who wish to enter the seminary this year have made themselves so useful in the service of the country that they are having much difficulty in getting discharged. The government knows a good thing when it sees it and the desire to hold on to these capable young Christian men is not unnatural, but, now that the war is over, the government should not hinder them from resuming promptly their direct preparation for their life work.

The seminary community was greatly interested in the bestowment of honors by Davidson College this year, as all three of the ministers selected for the doctorate of divinity are graduates of the seminary: Rev. D. P. McGeachy, of Decatur, Ga. (1899), Rev. W. Taliaferro Thompson, of Knoxville, Tenn. (1909), and Rev. B. R. Lacy, Jr., of Atlanta, Ga. (1913).

The professors have begun their usual summer activities at commencements and conferences, Dr. T. H. Rice having the Bible-hour at the Young People's Conference at Charlotte, N. C., this week; Dr. W. W. Moore preaching the baccalaureate sermon at Winthrop College, S. C.; Dr. Edward Mack at King College, Tenn., and Dr. W. L. Lingle at Hampden-Sidney and Clemson College, S. C.

FLORA MACDONALD COLLEGE.

During the past year the staff of the Pine and Thistle—the magazine published by the literary societies of Flora Macdonald College—offered cash prizes for the best poems and short stories written by members of the two societies. When all four issues of the magazine had been printed, they were given the following committee of Red Springs people, who consented to act as judges: Mrs. D. P. McEachern, Mrs. Virginia Conoly, and Mr. J. C. Snoddy. By the decision of the judges five dollars was given to the poets, Miss Annie Burt Stainback, of the Zetesian Society, for her poem, "The Spirit of the Leaves," and Miss Flossie Lassiter, of Smithfield, of the Epsilon Chi Society for her poem, "Our Refuge." The prize-winning stories were "The Law and the Lawyer," by Miss Lucille Stewart, of Greensboro, of the Epsilon Chi Society, and "The Practice Period—An Allegory," by Miss Dena Habink, of Yonkers, N. Y., of the Zetesian Society.

On commencement day among other announcements made it was mentioned that the St. Andrew's Society, of Charleston, S. C., had voted unanimously to found a scholarship at Flora Macdonald; and it was also announced that Colonel Walter Scott, of New York, had given a second scholarship—he had given one a year ago—and the afternoon mail of the same day brought a letter from Colonel Scott, enclosing another cheque, and saying that he had decided to double the amount of his second scholarship. The class of 1919 received a telegram of greetings and congratulations from him on the day of their graduation.

Gifts to the Scottish Library have already been made, both of books and of money. Mr. James Macdonald, of Edinburgh, Scotland, has sent the Edinburgh edition of Robert Louis Stevenson's works, which are now valued at $350.00; Colonel Scott has purchased and sent what is known as the Osborne Collection of Scottish poets and poetry; Mr. Christopher Wren, of Plymouth, Pa., has sent Tales of the Scottish Border, and Mrs. D. P. McEachern, of Red Springs, has given an interesting collection of books brought from Scotland many years ago.

Friends will be interested in the announcement that Mr. Charles G. Vardell, Jr., succeeds his gifted mother, Mrs. Linda L. Vardell, as director of the Conservatory of Music at Flora Macdonald. Mrs. Vardell, who has built an enviable monument for herself in the fine reputation which the College has in its department of music, has resigned her position. This will be a matter of great regret to many who know of her splendid service and thorough work; but they will also be glad that the same fine ideals will be kept up in the music of the institution, for the successor had all of his training from his mother except two years at the Damrosch School in New York.

THE SALISBURY NORMAL AND INDUSTRIAL INSTITUTE.

The Salisbury Normal and Industrial Institute closed a most successful school year on May 27th.

Rev. R. S. Sanders, of Thomasville, Ga., preached two excellent sermons on Sunday, May 25, the annual Y. W. C. A. sermon in the morning from the text, "We would see Jesus," "And they shall behold His face;" and the baccalaureate sermon in the evening on "What is your life?" Mr. Sanders' visit and messages were a great blessing and delight to all who heard him.

The commencement exercises were on Tuesday morning, the annual address being delivered by ex-Gov. Martin F. Ansell, of Greenville, S. C. Gov. Ansell's address on "Vocational Education" was most timely and practical. His presence is a great benediction to any gathering. The choruses and trios by the students were splendidly rendered. Miss Kathlene Culbertson, of Concord, N. C., sang her solo most beautifully. The four graduates were Miss Elizabeth Buerbaum, Salisbury, N. C.; Miss Leola Belk, R. F. D., Monroe, N. C.; Miss Kathlene Culbertson, R. F. D., Concord, N. C.; Miss Margaret Thompson, R. F. D., Salisbury, N. C. The attendance during the year was eighty-one. Every effort will be made this summer to get into the beautiful new building in the fall.

This excellent school is going to have the strongest faculty in its history next year, which will be announced latter. It only costs a young lady $105.00 for board and tuition for the nine months school year.

To every Ladies' Aid, Missionary, Young People's Society, also Sunday School and individual sending a young woman to this institution, the Salisbury Normal and Industrial Institute will give three gallons of paint to help paint their church, manse or rural school.

In fact, if any young woman wishes to paint her home we will gladly help her if she gets the required number of young women to come to our institution. Our purpose is fourfold, "to give each pupil a vital grasp of fundamental facts, to develop in them the power to think for themselves, to train the hand in some useful industry, and to lay the foundations of worthy Christian character.

Special study is made of each pupil, of her limitations and possibilities, for the purpose of aiding her in her highest development. Some of the tools with which we work are "the text-book, the needle, the loom, the broom, the cook stove, the handsaw and the Bible."

G. H. Atkinson, Pres.

Marriages and Deaths

Marriages.

Lanier-Parker—At the manse in Lillington, N. C., June 8, 1919, Mr. Silas Lanier and Miss Estelle Parker, Rev. G. F. Kirkpatrick officiating.

Shields-Douglass—At Hopewell Church, Mecklenburg County, N. C., June 10, 1919, by Rev. R. S. Burwell, Mr. William G. Shields and Miss Ruth Douglass.

Bowen-Craig—At the residence of the bride's father, Greenville, S. C., June 11, 1919, by Rev. E. P. Davis, Mr. Lawrence Bowen, of Easley, S. C., and Miss Alice Marie Craig.

Deaths.

Clark—John Alexander Clark, of Barbecue Township, Harnett County, N. C., died at his home after a long illness on June 2, 1919. He joined Barbecue Church on profession of faith just three months before he died.

Atkins—Benjamin Franklin Atkins, seventy-three years of age, died in Lillington, N. C., at the home of his niece, Mrs. W. F. Hockady, on June 7, 1919, and was buried in Summerville Cemetery. He joined Summerville Presbyterian Church on profession of faith just one year before he died.

IN MEMORIAM.

Mrs. Laura Stirling McKeown.

Mrs. H. J. McKeown quietly passed away at her home near Cornwell, S. C., Tuesday evening, May 27, 1919.

She was Miss Laura Stirling, only daughter of Thomas Pressley and E. C. Stirling, born in the Cornwell-Boyd community, September 2, 1862, and reared from her second year in the homes of her grandfather, Robert Boyd, and her uncle, Rev. R. W. Boyd. Her father was mortally wounded in a skirmish at Deep Bottom, August 14, and died in Richmond, Va., August 25, 1864. Before Mr. Stirling died, his brother-in-law, R. W. Boyd, promised him that if he was spared with life, he would watch over his only surviving child with a father's care. This promise was faithfully kept.

She was taught at home until her tenth year, when she went to Winnsboro, to her cousin, Miss Maggie Blain, boarding in the home of her kinsman, Mr. Charles Cathcart. Afterward she was taught at home for a year or more till her uncle moved to Woodleaf, Rowan County, N. C., to become pastor of churches. She attended school at Woodleaf for a time, then she was a pupil in Kirkwood School, Lenoir, N. C. This was a select school for fifteen girls taught by the Misses Rankin, daughters of the Rev. Jesse Rankin, pastor of Lenoir Church. She entered Simonton Female College, Statesville, N. C., in 1877, graduating there in the class of 1881. This institution was conducted by Mrs. E. N. Grant and Miss M. E. Mitchell, daughters of Prof. Mitchell, for whom Mount Mitchell, N. C., is named. After graduation she taught schools in Rowan County and at Wellridge, S. C.

She was married to H. J. McKeown October 14, 1886. Five children were born of this union—one dying in infancy. Those surviving are Mrs. J. A. B. Boyd, Chester No. 6; Mrs. J. T. Boyd, Cornwell No. 1; Miss Myrtle McKeown and T. O'Neal McKeown, of Cornwell, also survived by her husband, her aged mother, Mrs. E. Carrie Stirling, more aged aunt, Mrs. Martha R. Strong, and her uncle and foster father the venerable Rev. R. W. Boyd, of Mooresville, N. C., besides many kindred and friends who mourn her departure.

She had been a great sufferer during the past twenty-one years from a complication of troubles. Had not been able to walk since February, 1907. For several years past she had been as helpless as a babe from rheumatism except she could sit in her roller chair or ride in auto when placed there by loving hands. Only a week before her death she spent several days visiting in the home of one of her daughters. She enjoyed being carried around to visit relatives and friends. She lost her right eye in 1903 and had had a hard and constant fight to save the other one for the past ten years. It had been much worse for the past eighteen months and she could see but little. Her hearing was also much impaired so that she feared becoming both deaf and blind. She had a very retentive memory and by conversation kept well posted, not only in the affairs of her own household but in matters of general interest. Amidst all her sufferings, her cheerfulness and good counsel was a wonder and an inspiration to all who knew her or came in contact with her.

She joined old Hopewell A. R. P. Church in early life where she took an active interest. After marriage, she transferred her membership to Pleasant Grove Presbyterian Church where she was a faithful and influential member until death. She had recently signed to become a charter member of proposed new church at Cornwell, but was not permitted to see it organized. She was deeply interested in everything tending to the upbuilding of the community and the advancement of Christ's kingdom. In her going she has gained greatly; her family and friends lost irreparably.

Funeral was held at residence by her former pastor, Rev. C. G. Brown, Thursday morning, the 29th, at ten o'clock, and her remains were followed to the McKeown graveyard by a large concourse of sorrowing relatives and friends.

Children's Department

'MOST SWIMMIN' TIME.

Dear Standard:

I am a little girl ten years old. I go to school at the Derby Memorial. I go to Sunday School at Jackson Springs. Our pastor's name is Rev. W. L. Wilson. We like him fine.

I live on a farm near Jackson Springs and about one hundred yards from Drowning Creek. I have three sisters and two brothers.

I like to live in the country because it is so beautiful.

I love to watch the creek and in the summer go wading and go in swimming most every day.

My cousin has just come home from France. I love to hear him tell of his adventures in France.

I hope my letter will not reach the waste basket, as I want to surprise my mother. Your friend,

Grace Currie.

Jackson Springs, N. C.

LOVES HER TEACHER.

Dear Standard:

I am a little girl twelve years old. I go to church at Jackson Springs. Our pastor's name is Rev. W. L. Wilson. I have recited the child's catechism and got my Testament.

I go to the Derby Memorial school and am in the eighth grade. I love my teacher very much. Her name is Miss Margaret McCleod.

I live on a farm. Our house is about a hundred yards from Drowning Creek. In the summer we go in bathing every day. Sometimes we go fishing in the creek.

I like to read the letters in the Standard every week. I hope this letter will not reach the waste basket, for I want to surprise my friends.

Bernice Currie.
Jackson Springs, N. C.

LIKES THE LETTERS.

Dear Standard:

I am a little girl eleven years of age. I like to read the interesting letters from other little people. I am in the fifth grade and my teacher is Miss Ethel Bynum. I go to the Presbyterian church. My teacher is Mrs. W. L. Covington. I hope my letter will not reach the waste basket, as I want to surprise my mother and father.

Your friend, Jaksie Moore.
Raeford, N. C.

LIVES ON A FARM.

Dear Standard:

I am a little boy twelve years old. I live on a farm with my grandfather.

I go to Sunday school at Jackson Springs. My Sunday school teacher is Mrs. W. L. Wilson. I like her fine. I have two sisters and three brothers. I go in swimming in Drowning Creek and have lots of fun. I hope you will accept this letter, for I want to surprise my mother.

Everett Hinson.
Jackson Springs, N. C.

THE RED-HEADED BOY.

"There's that awful red-headed boy in a fight!" The sharp voice belonged to the sharp-faced teacher of the fifth grade, who happened to be on duty at the noon recess. She hurried to the struggling boys, and with the assistance of another teacher managed to pull them apart.

"Young man," she addressed the owner of the red hair, "this is not the first fight you've had on these grounds, but I certainly hope it will be the last." She marched the panting boys to the principal's office.

In the meantime, a red head had appeared at an upstairs window; one glance from a pair of intelligent brown eyes took in the situation, and the head disappeared.

"Yes, I saw him, with my own eyes, rush at the other boy, grab him by the collar and fling him down!" The sharp voice was pitched so as to enter the principal's ear, and penetrate to his rather kind heart, arousing it to execute a righteous judgment on the red-headed culprit.

"Be seated, boys. What grade are you in?" The red-headed boy looked up.

"Indeed, I'm sorry to say he is still in mine!" The sharp voice had emphasized "still."

"Did you attack this boy first?"

"With my hands, yes, sir."

"Why do you say 'with your hands?'"

"Because he attacked me first, with his tongue."

The principal looked at the other boy, who grinned and flushed.

There was tap on the door. "Come in!" called the principal; and a tall young woman with red hair and brown eyes entered. She looked sympathetically into the eyes of both boys, causing them both to blush with shame.

The red-headed boy blushed, because he remembered the fight he had the previous year; and how this red-headed teacher from another grade had walked all the way home with him; and how she had told him that God had made both their heads red; how he had numbered each of those red hairs; how that it did not first happen to be red, but that God had permitted it to be that color; and that it was wrong to fight about it, because it was like reproaching his heavenly Father for making it red.

"Have a seat, Miss McClain; I'm glad you have come. Now," to the black drooping head, "how did you attack him first with your tongue?"

Both boys' faces got redder. After an embarrassing silence, the red head was thrown back, and a pair of honest blue eyes looked at the principal.

"He don't want to tell you, because Miss McClain is here. Please, Miss McClain, go out! then you can come back when we holler 'Come.'"

The blue eyes looked beseechingly into the brown ones. The principal raised his eyebrows; the thin lips of the sharp-faced teacher curled contemptuously; Miss McClain laughed merrily.

"Excuse me, professor; but perhaps you don't understand. Why, it's something about red heads. You see Pat is so sensitive on the subject, that he can't realize that I'm not at all so. Don't mind me, Earnest; just speak the truth," but the boy only looked more ashamed of himself.

Miss McClain smiled knowingly at the principal. "He called his a red-headed, freckled-faced Irishman, I expect. Was that it, Pat?"

"Ask him." Pat Dillon nodded his red head toward Earnest's black one.

Earnest raised his black eyes, full of tears of shame, to his teacher's intellectual face; and the look in her eyes brought him to his feet.

"Professor," he stammered. "I—that's exactly what I said, only—that wasn't all. I said that his mother nearly whipped him last night because she saw a light through the transom and thought he was still reading after she had told him to put out his light and go to bed, but she found it was only the light from his head. I—I didn't know how low down it was, until—until Miss McClain came in."

Miss McClain's eyes regarded him. She was proud of her pupil.

Pat was on his feet before Earnest had finished.

"It was my fault! I promised Miss McClain last year that I would stop and spell 'God made it red,' before I fought about it; and I forgot today; but it is the first red-headed fight I've had since I promised her," and they all believed it.

The principal rose and shook hands with the boys.

"Now shake hands with each other!—that's right. Pat, my boy, I believe this is to be your last fight on account of your hair. Now, I want you to study your hardest, so I can promote you to Miss McClain's room. I think there you would soon learn to appreciate red hair."

Pat Dillon was promoted at Christmas, and from the day he entered Miss McClain's room—and looked into her eyes—he became a different boy. He was from the beginning her messenger, because, when she looked up to select some one, a pair of eager blue eyes begged to be of service.

The principal watched with interest the developing of the red-headed boy, by the tactful, intelligent, red-headed teacher.

"Miss McClain has the best-behaved grade in school. I've taught it twice," declared one senior to another whom she met in the hall, on her way to fill Miss McClain's vacant seat.

"I'm certainly glad to hear it, for I'm awfully nervous about teaching boys and girls of from ten to thirteen; they are simply at an abominable age! I'm not surprised that she has these violent headaches to come on suddenly."

"Don't you worry. If you want any information, just ask that red-headed boy; he's a treasure."

The nervous senior found the report to be true, and everything had gone on smoothly until the arithmetic class was called, and eight pupils were at the board, when suddenly the fire alarm rang.

"The fire drill!" exclaimed the senior, excitedly.

"Fire, fire, fire!" shouted a voice in the street below.

The senior sprang from her seat and rushed from the platform. Pat raced down the aisle, caught her in his arms and hurried her back to Miss McClain's desk.

Interest in Pat's maneuvers had saved the grade from panic.

Holding the struggling, half-hysterical senior, Pat gave the necessary number of sharp, commanding taps. The grade responded mechanically; but when the little girl who led the line looked into the smoky hall, and saw white-faced teachers struggling desperately to control themselves, and the crooked lines of crying girls and excited boys, she hesitated.

"Earnest, lead the line!" commanded Pat, "and every one hold on to the one in front!"

From the foot of the stairs the principal saw Miss McClain's grade holding their lawful place next the wall. A line too compact to be broken, they came on past him, and in their rear came a red-headed boy, dragging an unconscious senior.

In the morning paper was the principal's account of how Pat Dillon, in the absence of his teacher, had preserved the honor of the sixth grade. Miss McClain read it, and was proud of her red headed boy.—Christian Instructor.

SOME RIDDLES FOR YOU.

What was it a blind man took at breakfast which restored his sight? He took a cup and—saw, sir (saucer).

Why are teeth like verbs? Because they are regular, irregular and decayed. Goodness gracious! We mean defective, not decayed.

UNIVERSITY OF VIRGINIA

Founded by Thomas Jefferson

Offers standard University training leading to academic degrees as well as to degrees in Law, Medicine, Engineering, Education, Chemistry, etc. The R. O. T. C. will be under the supervision of an army officer detailed by the War Department.

Numerous buildings of classic architecture; beautiful grounds located in the foothills of the Blue Ridge. The athletic field consists of 21 acres, and contains a concrete stadium seating 8,000. Rooms are provided with steam heat and running water. Cost of living as moderate as at any institution of equal rank. The ninety-fifth session opens September 18, 1919.

For Catalogue and Information, address
Registrar, University, Va.

Which are the two smallest things mentioned in the Scripture? The widow's mite and the wicked flee.

How many soft-boiled eggs could the giant Goliath eat upon an empty stomach? One, after which his stomach was not empty.

What is it we all frequently say we will do and no one has ever yet done? Stop a minute.

What kin is that child to its own father who is not his own father's son? His daughter.

United States Railroad Administration ROUND-TRIP SUMMER TOURIST FARES

to
SEASHORE RESORTS
Special Reduced Fares From All Points

to
Morehead City, N. C.
Beaufort, N. C.
Norfolk, Va.
Virginia Beach, Va.
Cape Henry, Va.
Nag's Head, N. C.
Manteo, N. C.

Tickets on sale daily, May 15th to Sept. 30th, 1919, final limit for return October 31st, 1919.

For additional information ask your nearest ticket agent or write to
J. F. DALTON, G. P. A.,
Norfolk Southern R. R.,
Norfolk, Va.

Montreat Camp for rent for season. Two shacks, partly furnished and tent platform. Price $25.00. D. C. Whitted, Box 941, Wilmington, N. C.

WHEN WRITING OUR ADVERTISEKS
PLEASE MENTION THIS PUBLICATION

90¢ MUSIC FREE ROLL

Send Your Name

and address and those of your friends who own 88-note Player Pianos, and we will send you absolutely free the latest Q. R. S. Popular Hit Word Roll entitled "Lonesome That's All"

This liberal offer is made to introduce our Mail Order Music Roll Service and Catalogue—the most complete in the Southeast.

Ludden & Bates

SOUTHERN MUSIC HOUSE

Established 1870

ATLANTA,

GA.

Complete Catalogue

Sent Free

DO YOU KNOW

Flora Macdonald College?

If you do, that is sufficient. If you do not, a catalogue will interest you, especially if you are seeking

An Up-to-Date Christian College for Women

WRITE THE REGISTRAR

FLORA MACDONALD COLLEGE, RED SPRINGS, N. C.

Miscellaneous

THE LITTLE CHILDREN OF LEBANON.

Solomon's beautiful temple in Jerusalem was called the "house of the forest of Lebanon" because it was built of the famous "cedars of Lebanon."

Now nearly one-half of the population of 127 Lebanon villages is dead. Of the remaining 64,972 residents, 26,181 are in need of help. The total number of orphans needing help is 6,642. This is the official report of the American Commission.

A new "House of the Forest of Lebanon" is an orphanage among these mountains. The Moslems started this orphanage in the building of a Christian college they had seized. They had spared only the younger children of murdered Syrians and deported Armenians, giving them shelter, one coarse garment each and just enough food to sustain life, evidently intending to rear them as Mohammedans. But at the coming of General Allenby and the British forces the Turks fled.

The orphanage was at once taken over by American relief workers and is supported by the American Committee for Relief in Near East. And now after years of being always hungry, after nearly starving to death, these children have all they can eat. They are clean, they have tops and rag dolls to play with, they have work to do and lessons to learn and are so happy this Easter of 1919 after all they have suffered. But they are only 644 out of the more than six thousand in the Lebanon district alone who are still homeless and hungry.—Exchange.

Encircle your soul with faith and let the divine electricity of the love of Jesus Christ charge it. Then you can lift anything.—Theodore L. Cuyler.

HENS MOULT FAST.

E. J. Reefer, the poultry expert, has discovered a scientific product that hastens the moult and revitalizes the organs of the hen and puts her in fine laying condition. The tonic is called "More Eggs" and a package of it is enough to carry the ordinary chicken raiser over the entire moulting season. First to lay is first to pay. "Since using 'More Eggs' I get forty to fifty eggs a day, instead of eight or nine," writes A. P. Woodward, of St. Cloud, Fla. A million dollar bank guarantees that you can have your money back if you want it. So, you don't take any risk. Send $1.00 for a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic.

If you want to hurry the moult and get more eggs, act at once; it means more profit for you. Don't wait, but order today. Send $1 today to E. J. Reefer, 4th Floor, Poultry Bldg., Kansas City, Missouri. Or ask Mr. Reefer for his valuable poultry book free, that tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry.

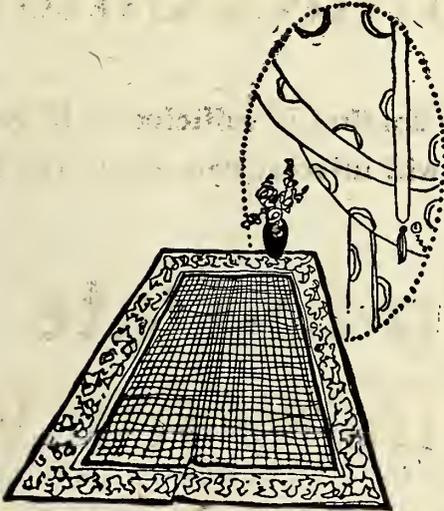

HIGH COST.

It has come to the point where a body has to earn twice as much as he is worth in order to get half enough to live on.—Jefferson City Democrat-Tribune.

THE FLOUR CITY ORNAMENTAL IRON CO.
 MINNEAPOLIS, MINNESOTA
SOLDIERS' MEMORIALS IN BRONZE
 Service and Honor Rolls—Monuments in Bronze and Granite for Churches, County and Municipal Boards.
 Address D. F. HOOVER, Southern Representative, Box 224, Charlotte, N. C.

THE WESTMINSTER SCHOOL
 A PREPARATORY SCHOOL
 FOR BOYS
 Operated by Kings Mountain Presbytery
 $300.00 Per Year
 Write for Catalogue to
 Rev. T. E. P. Woods, Box 6, Rutherfordton, N. C.

Artistic, Cool, Sanitary SUMMER RUGS

We are showing a big stock of pleasing colors in cool, sanitary rag rugs in all of the popular sizes — the nicest cheap bed room rug on the market.

We have also the "Waite Grass" rugs for porch, summer living room and dining room, and the finest quality of grass rugs for bed rooms—the "Vogue" and "Marie Antoinette."

Don't forget that we are headquarters for summer floor coverings.

W. T. McCoy & Co.
 Charlotte, N. C.
 THE HOME OF GOOD FURNITURE

Did You Ever

It used to be an awful task to make ice cream. Did you ever try it?

Now you will find it easy enough to make ice cream if you use

JELL-O

Ice Cream Powder

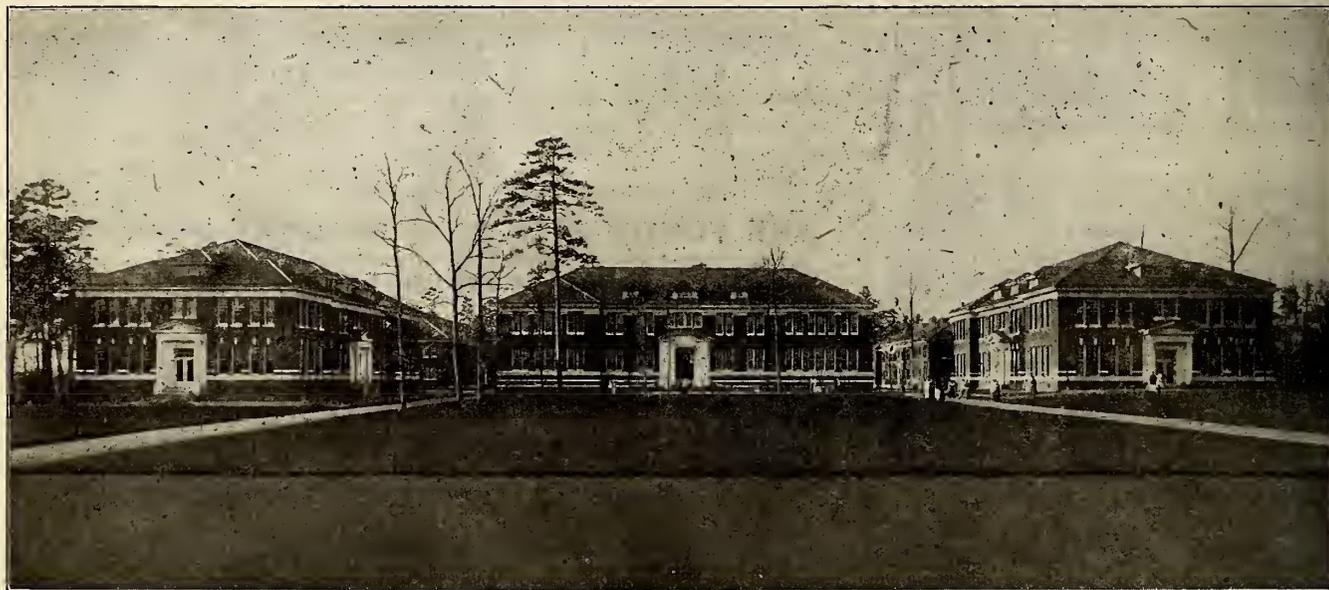

Stir one package into a quart of milk and freeze it—there is absolutely nothing else to do—and you have two quarts of delicious ice cream at a cost of less than two cents a dish.

2 packages 25 cents, at grocers'.
 Five flavors: Vanilla, Strawberry, Lemon, Chocolate, Unflavored.

THE GENESEE PURE FOOD COMPANY
 Le Roy, N. Y.

Queens College for Women

Charlotte, North Carolina

Established More Than Sixty Years Ago as "Charlotte Female Institute"
It is Now Recognized as the Best Equipped College for Women in the Entire South

We have five new two-story brick buildings with modern fire extinguishers, designed and erected solely for convenience, comfort, efficiency and safety. These buildings are located in the beautiful suburb of Myers Park, three and one-half miles from the center of the city.

We have a splendid wooded campus of 25 acres.

15 units required for entrance. Graduates from recognized State High Schools admitted on certificate.

This College is built on a firm belief in the inspiration of the Bible. Thorough Bible courses provided.

Standard college course leading to B. A. degree. Most complete equipment for thorough education.

Physical, Chemical and Biological Laboratories; Library, Gymnasium, Preparatory department. Able faculty. Dormitories divided into units of two rooms and connecting with bath, accommodating four students. Large, well-ventilated rooms, big closets. Buildings as near fire-proof as possible. Water, gas, electricity. Convenient street car service.

School of Music, Expression and Art offers superior opportunities. Music building has twenty-six rooms equipped exclusively for this department. Complete, thorough course leading to diploma. Post graduate course in music offered.

Our Motto: "Christian Women for Christian Homes"

Necessary expenses very moderate, about $300.00 for the regular literary course, including board. FALL TERM begins September 10, 1919.

For further information send for catalogue or write

WM. ANDERSON, Registrar, Box 300, Charlotte, N. C.

A CHILD IN COMMAND.

A Senator tells a story of President Roosevelt.

"A little boy and girl succeeded in getting in to the President's office," said Senator Carter. "It was a busy time, and the President was worried over the Wall Street crisis. The little girl demanded the President's signature in a book which she placed before him.

"The President smiled, took the book and started to write his name.

"Not there, over here."

"The President obeyed, and was about to write, when the little girl again interrupted. 'Not there; at the top of the page,' she said.

"The President wrote his name and passed the book over. 'Will that do?' he asked pleasantly.

"Blot it," commanded the little girl.

"The President blotted the signature. This done, the two children walked out with the dignity of grown-ups."—Watchman-Examiner.

SAVE YOUR SHOES.

Allen's Foot-Ease, the antiseptic powder to be shaken into the shoes, not only stops the pain of corns and bunions, and gives quick relief to sweating, callous, tired, aching, tender feet, blisters and sore spots, but Allen's Foot-Ease rests the feet, keeps them cool and comfortable all the time, saving the constant wear on shoes caused by nervousness of the feet. Shoes and stockings wear twice as long when you walk in comfort. Try Allen's Foot-Ease today.

MONTREAT SUMMER SCHOOL

Six weeks, July 1st to August 12th. Delightful climate. Ideal surroundings for study. Excellent instruction. Faculty of high scholarship and wide experience. For circular and terms, address

MISS FRANCES M. BOWMAN, Director
Montreat, North Carolina

The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom. The highest form of love is a holy reverence.

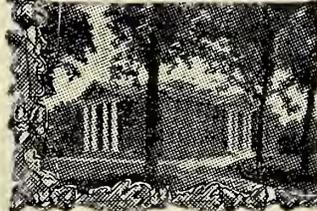

WANTED—Second-hand church pews. Any church having same for sale will write W. C. Pou, Elmwood, N. C.

OAK RIDGE INSTITUTE

OAK RIDGE, N. C.

T. E. WHITAKER, PRESIDENT

An old-fashioned Southern school dating from 1852. In its long history it has enrolled thousands from the Carolinas and adjoining states. Preparation that opens the way to bigger accomplishments in college, business, and life. 250 acres in campus, athletic grounds, orchards and farms. Modern school buildings. Steam heat and showers. Library. Military training. Healthful, accessible location near Greensboro. More than a thousand feet above sea level. Sane, moral influences.

Courses thoroughly covering literature, science, teaching, bookkeeping, shorthand and music. Athletics encouraged. All male teachers. Discipline mild but firm. Costs reasonable, $350 for the year. Fall session opens September 9, 1919. Write for illustrated catalogue. Address

Oak Ridge Institute,
Oak Ridge, N. C.

North Carolina State College of Agriculture and Engineering
WEST RALEIGH

A Land Grant College founded under an act of Congress by the State Legislature of North Carolina in March, 1887. Splendidly equipped for the education of the sons of the State in the technical and industrial arts.

Four year courses in Agriculture, in Agricultural Chemistry, and in Civil, Electrical, Mechanical, Chemical and Textile Engineering. New departments in Agricultural Engineering and Highway Engineering.

Numerous short courses.

Unit of Reserve Officers Training Corps. Seniors and Juniors receive pay amounting to $118 annually. All students receive free uniforms amounting in four years to $164.

Strong athletic teams.

$40,000 Y. M. C. A. building. Regular paid secretary.

Two hundred and forty free scholarships.

Requirement for admission: eleven units—practically equivalent to the completion of tenth grade work.

Board $16.00 per month. Tuition $45.00 per year. Room rent, heat and light $30.00 per year.

Enrollment last session 1,020, exclusive of all summer students.

Fall term begins September 3.

For catalogue, illustrated circular or entrance blanks, write

E. B. OWEN, Registrar

PEACE INSTITUTE, Raleigh, N. C.

For Young Women

Established 1857

Courses: Junior College. Preparatory to Standard Colleges. Three years Preparatory School, Classical, Literary and Scientific Courses leading to Diplomas. Special Diplomas awarded in Piano, Voice, Art and Expression, Home Economics. Excellent Commercial Course. Instruction: Specialists in all departments.

LULA B. WYNNE HALL,
Home School for Girls

Situation: Location in capital city gives special opportunities. Delightful social advantages. Climate permits out-door life all Winter.

Athletics: Supervised indoors and outdoors by Athletic Director. Special attention individual development. Cheerful home-like surroundings. A good school that students really enjoy attending. For room reservation, catalogue or further information, write at once to

Miss Mary Owen Graham, Pres.

PIANOS PRICED AT TRAIN-LOAD RATES

Since the Standard Piano Club was formed, many years ago, the Managers, Ludden & Bates, have been distributing these Club pianos at the rate of about thirty-two car loads a year. By having these splendid instruments made in tremendous numbers without the expense of changing patterns and designs; and by selling them in clubs of one hundred buyers (about four clubs each year) we are able to give Club members the most attractive prices, terms, quality and guarantees that it has ever been possible to offer.

Long experience and the utmost of care were exercised in the selection of the patterns and designs. The Specifications are exacting, for the Club must guarantee perfect satisfaction to every one who places an order through it. The object of the Club is to make piano buying economical, safe, convenient and permanently satisfactory.

The management of the Club has studied your problems and difficulties more thoroughly than you have, and is prepared to help you in every detail of piano buying. Write for illustrated catalogue and full particulars today. Address the Managers, Ludden & Bates, Standard Piano Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga.

Deed not only rhymes with creed, it must chime with it.

THE DESSERT PROBLEM.

For some reason or other a good dessert cook is a rarer bird than a good meat and vegetable cook. It is the sweet course in our dinner that falls short of our hopes oftener than the other courses. At the average boarding house or dormitory or club or other place where cooking is carried on on a large basis, but where there is not a special dessert cook in the kitchen you will notice this. Especially there is a lack of variety. Somehow cooks seem to lack imagination when it comes to sweets. They make a dessert and find that the plates come out empty and then they make mental note and serve that dessert two nights out of every ten. The cook who can manage good pie crust falls back on pie three nights out of six, if left to her own devices. In some places as a matter of fact one does not say What sort of dessert tonight? but what kind of pie?

The only remedy for this trouble is to have a good recipe book and to read it, or to keep on the lookout for dessert recipes in the women's magazines or in the newspapers. Once in a while you will find one that will seem on perusal to be something that would serve your purpose. Make it, and if the people for whom you cook or plan like it, don't for pity sake make it again next week. Keep the recipe and have it perhaps two weeks from now or a month and then save the recipe for future time.

STATE COLLEGE SUMMER SCHOOL

(June 10 to July 23)

FOR TEACHERS---FOR COLLEGE ENTRANCE---FOR COLLEGE CREDIT

FOR CATALOGUE, ADDRESS---

W. A. WITHERS, Director : : : : WEST RALEIGH, N. C.

BINGHAM

Is the only Boys' School in the United States which has been administered by THREE SUCCESSIVE generations of PRESBYTERIAN ELDERS for 125 YEARS.

1793 Since 1861 the ACADEMIC work has been supplemented with the 1919 MILITARY feature. Special rates to Ministers of the Gospel (As long as we have vacancies)

Address COL. R. BINGHAM, Supt., Route 4, Asheville, N. C. or CAPT. JOHN A. PERRY, U. S. Army, Retired, Military Professor, Asheville, N. C.

PRESBYTERIAN COLLEGE
of South Carolina

One of the most modern and best equipped colleges for men under the control of the Presbyterian Church. Beautiful buildings, strong faculty, high standard of work, broad course, attractive student body, best moral influences, Reserve Officers' Training Corps and strong athletic team.

For Catalogue and information apply to
President Davison M. Douglas, Clinton, S. C.

Chicora College for Women

THE PRESBYTERIAN COLLEGE OF SOUTH CAROLINA

A Standard College of Distinction and Character

Religion and Philosophy

Letters and Science

Home Economics

The Fine Arts

(Music, Art and Expression)

For Catalogue and Information, address

Pres. S. G. BYRD, D.D., Columbia, S. C.

Meredith College
Raleigh, N. C.

For Young Women

Offers four years of genuine college work based upon 14 units of high school credit. Courses lead to A. B. and B. S. degrees. Diplomas in Art and Music after completing four years of work.

Location in center of the Capital City, gives unusual advantages.

Library facilities excellent. Attention to physical education. Charges moderate.

For catalogue or further information write

Chas. E. Brewer, Pres.,
Raleigh, N. C.

Meantime try something else. An ordinary cook should know how to make at least forty desserts. This does not mean that she should have these by note. For she is never so situated that she cannot refer to a note book. And it does not mean that they should be absolutely different. Five out of the forty may be based on a plain boiled custard. Five can be various sorts of creams, based on the combination of gelatine and whipped cream with some sort of flavoring. Five can be kinds of pie, five can be ice creams or desserts made with the addition of a very little ice cream. Then there are all the fruit desserts, and pudding and cake desserts—it isn't hard to find forty.

Especially trying is this dessert problem for the woman who cooks or plans for a family of but two. There are not so many things that will do for just two. Most recipes are written for six or more portions. However, it is possible to work out these recipes for two in most cases and it is a good plan to do this on paper and then to save the paper for future reference instead of having to make the reduction every time you want to have that dessert.—Ex

POULTRY EXPERT GIVES AWAY CHICK FOOD.

To introduce to the poultry raisers of this section a Chick Food that is nationally known, E. J. Reefer, the Poultry Expert, 3rd-Floor Poultry Bldg., Kansas City, Mo., is giving away free a one dollar package of Chick Food absolutely free to every poultry raiser who agrees to tell his neighbor about it. This medicated Baby Chick Food is sold on an absolute guarantee to raise chicks for six weeks and it is backed by the National Reserve Bank of Kansas City. Send Mr. Reefer one dollar and he will not only send you one regular dollar size package of Chick Food, but he will include in the same shipment an extra package absolutely free, which means he will send you two regular full size dollar packages of this scientific medicated Baby Chick Food for only one dollar. And he will prepay all the charges on the first order. Considering that this product is guaranteed by the National Reserve Bank and that it keeps baby chicks for six weeks, every poultry raiser should certainly try this scientific medicated Baby Chick Food without further delay. It will pay you to write Mr. Reefer today.

No matter how strong you think you are, no man has ever conquered Satan in his own strength.

FOR SALE.

Beautiful mountain farm, 288 acres. Water and timber in abundance; 24 Jersey cattle; mules, hogs, wagons, etc. Three attractive bungalows, five servants' houses, garage, etc. Will sell as whole or divide any number acres with bungalow to suit purchaser.

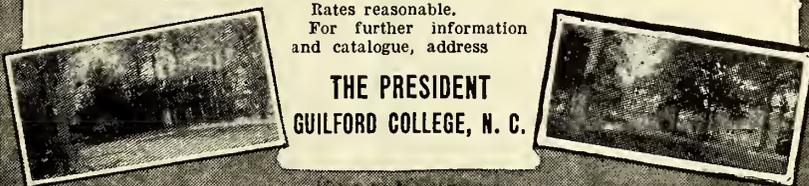

ERNEST H. KAMINER,
Arden, N. C.

GUILFORD COLLEGE

A Christian Co-educational College with high standards in scholarship and morals. Thorough Literary Courses leading to the degrees of B. A. and B. S. Excellent training in Music and Domestic Science. Strong preparatory department. Able faculty. Fine athletic record. Large beautiful campus with ten modern and completely equipped buildings. Healthful climate. Pure water.

Rates reasonable.
For further information and catalogue, address

THE PRESIDENT
GUILFORD COLLEGE, N. C.

THE CITADEL Founded 1842. Charleston, S. C. "Distinguished Military College," rated by War Department.

Full courses in engineering, sciences and languages, leading to B. S. and C. E. degrees.

"It is so superior in all its methods it must be classed alone."—Report of War Department.

For catalogue address
COL. O. J. BOND,
Charleston, S. C.

14 High Units required for admission. Limited enrollment makes early application necessary.

Greensboro College for Women

The A-Grade Woman's College of the Two Methodist Conferences of North Carolina

Classed in Group A by State Board of Examiners

Chartered 1838. Confers the degrees of A. B., and B. S., in the literary department, and B. M., in the music department.

In addition to our regular classical course, special attention is called to the departments of Home Economics, Expression, Business, Art, Education, Sunday School Teacher Training, Piano Pedagogy, and to our complete School of Music.

Modern new $50,000.00 Dormitory completed 1918. Conservatory of Music to cost $100,000.00 being erected in 1919.

FALL TERM OPENS SEPT. 10, 1919. For further information apply to
REV. S. B. TURRENTINE, A. M., D. D., President, GREENSBORO, N. C.

Select Your College Now

Certificates of Credits and Applications For Rooms Are Steadily Coming In

DAVIDSON will again have the R. O. T. C. This, with supervised athletics under a coach of long experience and wide reputation, will insure proper development of the body. The work of the class room, the literary societies, and the editing and issuing of three college publications will give ample field for mind training. A Christian faculty and a choice body of clean-living young men afford a most wholesome influence for character making. The average student body is 350 (last year), from fourteen states and three foreign countries. It is possible for a student to know every man on the campus. Your college will inevitably impress its stamp upon you. Select a SAFE college—one that you can look back upon after four years and say with pride: "There is my alma mater."
Fifteen units required for entrance.
Write for bulletin.

DAVIDSON COLLEGE

DAVIDSON, N. C.

WHY ALCOHOL IS NOT A FOOD.

For many years alcohol was supposed to be a food, and for a long time armies were supplied with it, as it was supposed to contribute to the men's strength and staying power for long marches and hardships; but the light of science has been turned upon this subject, and from experiments made at the Nutrition Laboratory of the Carnegie Institute, located in Boston, it has been determined that alcohol in very moderate beverage doses is always a consistent depressant, impairing the organic efficiency of the heart, circulation and nervous system. It adds nothing to muscular or mental power, but gives a false sense of power, which requires constant drugging to maintain the illusion, as is the case with all narcotics. —The New Success.

BARIUM ROCK WATER RELIEVES WEAK AND NERVOUS PEOPLE.

Barium Rock Water is being prescribed by many physicians in the treatment of nervous debility and as a tonic and flesh-builder. They also recommend it in cases of indigestion, dyspepsia, rheumatism, gout, eczema and diseases arising from uric acid poisoning and for disorders of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels.

Mr. J. W. McCoy, of Charlotte, N. C., writes: "I had a violent case of typhoid fever and for three years was a nervous wreck. I was totally unfit for any kind of business. I suffered continually from my stomach. My improvement began with the use of Barium Rock Water and I was entirely cured."

If you are weak and nervous, if you suffer from melancholia, hysteria or are afflicted with any of the above diseases, send $2.00 for ten gallons. If it fails to relieve your case, we will refund your $2.00. It is understood that the empty demijohns are to be returned prepaid. Address Barium Springs Co., Box E-21, Barium Springs, N. C.

TEACHERS WANTED—Several vacancies in Grove Institute—Preparatory School for Girls. State subject best prepared to teach, and send testimonials in first letter, with stamp for reply. Inexperienced teachers not considered. W. F. Hollingsworth, Kenansville, N. C.

Individual Cups

Every church should use. Clean and sanitary. Send for catalog and special offer. Trial free.

Thomas Communion Service Co. Box 310 Lima, Ohio

NEW SONG BOOKS

For Your Church

6c

A wonderful value; 83 familiar songs of the Gospel, words and music. Used all over the world. Round or shape notes. Only 8¢ per hundred for No. 1 or No. 2, or $10 for No. 1 and No. 2 combined. Send 20¢ for samples. Money back if not pleased. Send 60¢ for 100 cards, "A Prayer by the Sunday School." E. A. K. HACKETT, Dept. 56, FORT WAYNE, IND.

HENS MOULT FAST.

E. J. Reefer, the poultry expert, has discovered a scientific product that hastens the moult and revitalizes the organs of the hen and puts her in fine laying condition. The tonic is called "More Eggs" and a package of it is enough to carry the ordinary chicken raiser over the entire moulting season. First to lay is first to pay. "Since using 'More Eggs' I get forty to fifty eggs a day, instead of eight or nine," writes A. P. Woodward, of St. Cloud, Fla. A million dollar bank guarantees that you can have your money back if you want it. So, you don't take any risk. Send $1.00 for a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic. If you want to hurry the moult and get more eggs, act at once; it means more profit for you. Don't wait, but order today. Send $1 today to E. J. Reefer, 4th Floor, Poultry Bldg., Kansas City, Missouri. Or ask Mr. Reefer for his valuable poultry book free, that tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry.

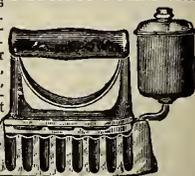

NEW MONITOR

SELF-HEATING IRON AGENTS WANTED

$30 to $50 a week actually being made now by men and women. The original—the best—the lowest priced. Nickel plated—looks good—makes good—sells fast—guaranteed. No experience needed. Women do as well as men. Exclusive territory. Work all or spare time. Mrs. Nixon, Vt., sold 8 first half day. Evans, N. C., sold 2 doz. one Saturday. Liberal terms. Prompt Service. Write today.

MONITOR S&D IRON CO.
708 Orange St., Hickory, N. C.

Send for Free Outfit Offer

YOUR FACE?

Is the Complexion Muddy, Tanned, Freckled? If troubled with skin eruptions, sunburn, pimples, try

PALMER'S SKIN-SUCCESS SOAP

It cleanses, softens and clears the skin and tends to remove sunburn, tan, freckles, blackheads, pimples and eczema. Thoroughly antiseptic. Ask your druggist, or write for free samples to

THE MORGAN DRUG CO.,
1521 Atlantic Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

FASSIFERN

A HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

is situated on a plateau over two thousand feet above sea level and completely surrounded by the majestic Appalachian mountains, in the city of Hendersonville, N. C., far-famed for its year-around delightful and health-giving climate. Fassifern suffered not a single case of influenza during term 1918-19 and was not closed for a day. Fassifern offers thorough preparatory courses both for entrance to colleges of highest rank and professional work. Accredited by the Association of Southern Colleges, the University of North Carolina and prepares for Smith and Wellesly colleges of Massachusetts and other colleges of high rank which no longer receive certificate students.

Next session opens September 17th, 1919.
For catalog, book of views and special information, address

MISS KATE C. SHIPP,

HENDERSONVILLE, N. C.

The Measure of a College

Elegance of buildings and grounds and wealth of equipment and endowment do not make a college. The REAL MEASURE of a college is found in its ideal—in the personality of its teaching force, and in the quality of its teaching. The real work in education is accomplished by the person. The school can rise no higher than the character of those who give it life.

MITCHELL COLLEGE

maintains a faculty of men and women of strong Christian character and influence, whose qualifications for teaching have been gained by years of thorough preparation and experience. The classes at Mitchell College are small, insuring for each student the utmost benefit of individual instruction.

Well Planned Courses Offered in All College Subjects

Courses of superior excellence in English, Bible, Music, Expression, Home Economics, and Business. The Department of Music is in charge of a graduate of the Hague Conservatory.

Measure These Advantages

Invigorating climate, small classes, efficient instruction, supervised evening study for all, home life, and positive Christian influence; moderate expenses.

A Preparatory Department offering the best advantages is maintained. Catalog on request.

J. M. MOORE, President, STATESVILLE, N. C.

"TIN HAT FOR A HALO! AH!
SHE WEARS IT WELL.

"Home is where the heart is—
Thus the poet sang;
But 'home is where the pie is'
For the doughboy gang!
Crullers in the craters,
Pastry in abris—
This Salvation Army lass
Sure knows how to please!

"Tin hat for a halo!
Ah! She wears it well!
Making pies for homesick lads
Sure is 'beating hell!'
In a region blasted
By fire and flame and sword,
This Salvation Army lass
Battles for the Lord!

"Call me sacrilegious
And irreverent, too!
Pies? They link us up with home
As naught else can do!
'Home is where the heart is'—
True, the poet sang;
But 'home is where the pie is'
To the Yankee gang!"
"Stars and Stripes," reprinted in "The War Romance of the Salvation Army," Lippincotts.

The First Doughnut.

Right on the heels of the first detachment of the American Expeditionary

UNITED STATES RAILROAD
ADMINISTRATION.
ROUND TRIP EXCURSION

Summer tourist tickets on sale May 15th limited for return to October 31st,
1919, to

- Virginia Beach, Va.
- Cape Henry, Va.
- Norfolk, Va.
- Morehead City, N. C.
- Beaufort, N. C.
- Nag's Head, N. C.
- Manteo, N. C.

WEEK-END FARES

to above named points. Tickets on sale every Saturday and Sunday, May 24th, to September 7th, limited to return Tuesday following date of sale.

SUNDAY EXCURSIONS

- Virginia Beach, Va.
- Norfolk, Va.
- Morehead City, N. C.
- Cape Henry, Va.
- Beaufort, N. C.

Tickets on sale every Sunday limited to day of sale May 25th to September 8th.

For fares, descriptive folders and other information apply to nearest ticket agent.

Cancer Treated Successfully at the Kellam Hospital

The record of Kellam Hospital is without parallel in history, having restored, without the use of the Knife, Acids, X-Ray or Radium, over ninety percent. of the many hundreds of sufferers from cancer which it has treated during the past twenty-two years. We want every man and woman in the United States to know what we are doing.

KELLAM HOSPITAL, 1617 W. Main St., Richmond, Va.

DR. J. M. BELK, MONROE, N. C.

W. H. BELK, CHARLOTTE, N. C.

Belk Bros. Dept. Stores

CHARLOTTE, NORTH CAROLINA
19 STORES

Send us your orders for Bibles, Testaments, Confession of Faith, or Book of Church Order, for quick delivery. 10 percent discount for Sunday Schools, Societies, or Churches, Preachers or Teachers—and in dozens we will give you wholesale price.

WHY NOT HAVE A BIBLE OR TESTAMENT IN EVERY SUN-DAY SCHOOL SCHOLAR'S HANDS EVERY SUNDAY? WE WILL HELP DO THIS. WRITE TO US FOR THE PLAN.
NELSON'S BIBLES

1184—Sunday School Scholar's Bible. Practical Helps for Young People. How to study the Bible. How to study the lesson. Bible questions and answers all in this Bible. Good black type, red edges, leatheroid binding. Size 5½x4x1. Special.....98c

Same Bible, gilt edge, better leather binding, illustrated ..$1.25 and $1.50

12—Linen Card Back Bible. Good big print. Fine for the Sunday School classes, about 6x5x1.....75c

1148—Sunday School Bible. Linen board backs, black type, 5x4x1...59c
7764—Teacher's Bible, $5.00.

India Linen Paper, self pronouncing Bible Dictionary, Combined Concordance, 12 Colored Maps, Morocco Binding, Silk Sewed, good print. Size 7¾x5½x1¼$5.00

6512—Teacher's Edition Bible—New and instructive maps, 14 maps, placed throughout the Bible, illustrating the Scripture, 20 beautifully colored pictures, complete Bible Dictionary, new Concordance and Helps. Leather binding, strongly made. Black face type. Size 7x5x1½$2.50
6512—Teacher's Bible, $3.95.

Linen Paper, thumb index, illustrated colored pictures, 12 new maps, Bible Dictionary, Morocco leather binding. Black face type, convenient size, 7x5-1¼. Special$3.95

1212—Illustrated Bible. 4,000 questions and answers, short history of each book of the Bible by A. T. Pierson, D.D. Harmony of the four Gospels. How to study the Bible. Colored maps. 7x5½x1½.....$2.00
7764—Teacher's Bible, $5.95.

Self pronouncing Bible, new, improved maps, finely illustrated, combined Concordance, 12 colored maps, newest and most complete dictionary yet printed. Morocco binding, silk sewed, a beautiful Bible. 8x5½...$5.95
Why not have a Confession of Faith in Every Home? We carry them in stock for your convenience—50c, 75c.

BOOK OF CHURCH ORDER.
Every officer in the Presbyterian Church ought to have this Book and study it. We will mail you one for 25c.

NELSON'S TESTAMENTS

402—New Testament, 65c.
Bound in leatheroid, large black face type. Size 6x5.

321—New Testament, 48c.
Bound same as 402. Black type. Size 5x3½.

400—New Testament, 25c.
This is a special number. Large black type, cardboard back, clear white paper—the quality equals most 50c books. Special25c

29—New Testament. Vest pocket size, leatheroid binding, fine, for the children25c
403—New Testament, 98c.

This is leather bound. Large black type, gilt edge. Size 6x4½.

403P—New Testament and Psalms. Leather bound, gilt edge. Large print$1.19

SCHOFIELD BIBLES

We carry these in the newest Editions, bound in good, heavy Linen Cardboard backs, or can send you the finest Leather Bound. If you want a Bible to get "REAL HELP" right at home—the newest improved help—a Schofield Bible is the one to buy.

No 50—Linen Cardboard Backs. Good black type, with every help at home. Same helps as the highest price Bible. Size of Book 7x5-1¼.....$1.50

No. 70—Same as above, only larger size type and book, 8½x6½x1¼ $2.00

We carry Schofield Bibles in all kinds of Bindings—Morocco, Persian, Etc. Real Linen Paper, from $5.00 to $10. Let us send you one on approval.

We carry all kinds of New Testaments from 15c to $2.00.

Forces came the Salvation Army, and found the boys seeing indigo blue; rain falling for thirty-six days, intensive training in the rain and mud no cure for homesickness. But the Salvation Army wasn't wanted there by the military authorities; no supplies were to be had; what could they do to help? A bright Salvation Army lass scraped together what materials could be found, and over a smoking wood fire she cooked in a pan that held but seven doughnuts at a time, one hundred and fifty "honest-to-goodness" home doughnuts, fat and sugary. Did the boys sit up and take notice? Out in the rain eight hundred of them formed into line, as the enticing fragrance was wafted to their hungry noses, and waited for hours their turn. "Gee!" exclaimed one of the lucky one hundred and fifty; "If this is war, let it continue!" The news spread fast and far; orders came by automobile and aeroplane for doughnuts and pies; and the heart of military commanders melted as they got their share of goodies. As the army moved forward, the Salvation Army doughnut went too, with its sweet-faced maker, the Salvation Army lassie. But there ought surely to be a monument somewhere to the inventor and the first doughnut!

"THE VALLEY OF VISION."

Henry Van Dyke.

Varied stories dealing with human love and faith, with dreams and realities, with things that will last now that the war is ended but not forgotten. One of the longest is a vision of three unknown days in the life of Jesus of Nazareth. It belongs with "The Story of the Other Wise Man," which has gone around the world.

PRICE $1.50, Net.

— Order from —

PRESBYTERIAN COMMITTEE OF PUBLICATION
Richmond, Va. Texarkana, Ark.-Tex.

UNITED STATES RAILROAD ADMINISTRATION
Norfolk Southern Railroad
Passenger Train Schedules.

(Arrivals and departures Charlotte daily unless otherwise shown). Published as information only and not guaranteed.

Leave	Arrives
6:30 A.M. Mt. Gilead.
Star,
Asheboro,
Varina,
Raleigh,
Wilson,
Greenville,
Washington,
Norfolk,	2:45 P. M.

For full information call on your nearest ticket agent or write to
G. R. Steele, J. T. Helms,
C. T. A., D. T. A.,
Charlotte, N. C. Charlotte, N. C.
W. J. Williams, Traf. Agt.,
Raleigh, N. C.

Aberdeen & Rockfish Railroad

Between Aberdeen and Fayetteville

Eastbound		Westbound
Daily Ex. Sunday		Daily Ex. Sunday
Mixed	Pass.	Pass.	Mixed
STATIONS
No. 22	No. 38	No. 41	No. 21
7 30 am	9 10 am	Lv. Aberdeen Ar.	6 41 pm 5 00 pm
ar 8 55 am	10 00 am	Rae ford	5 55 pm lv 3 50 pm
lv 2 10 pm		Ar. Fayetteville Lv.	4 50 pm ar 2 50 pm
4 00 pm	11 20 am		1 00 pm

WAGRAM BRANCH

Southbound		Northbound
Daily Ex. Sun.		Daily Ex. Sun.
Mixed		Mixed
STATIONS
No. 11		No. 12
Lv. 10 30 am		Rae ford	Ar. 12 40 pm
Ar. 11 15 am		Wagram	Lv. 12 00 noon

W. A. BLUE, General Supt.,
Aberdeen, N. C.

Yes, Preachers and Teachers

are human. They should have no discount and no cheaper railroad fares than you and I. They should be paid for services rendered, amply paid. If he can't earn enough for family use and the nest egg for the future, he made a sad mistake as to family, else he should change his calling instanter,

The Mutual Building & Loan

will save a man and his family if they're worth saving, but they must help. It furnishes the "sure cure," but boasts no regrets at the demise of a feller who deliberately refuses to take the medicine.

E. L. KEESLER Sec. & Treas., 25 S. Tryon St., CHARLOTTE, N. C.

SAUER'S
OLD VIRGINIA
FRUIT-PUNCH
TRADE MARK
FLAVOR

Something you have been looking for
A New Temperance Beverage and a New Flavor

ALWAYS ready for any occasion as a beverage, served with plain or carbonated water. A base for fruit punches, blends with any fruit or can be combined with Sauer's Pure Strawberry, Raspberry or Pineapple Flavors for sherbets, water ices, milk shakes, etc.

A Flavor which is adaptable for any use.

A 35c bottle makes 35 glasses of punch. For sale by all good grocers. If you cannot get it at your grocers, send us 10c together with the name of your grocer, and we will send you a sample bottle—enough for a pint of syrup, to make 10 glasses, also will send recipe booklet.

QUALITY HAS MADE SAUER'S THE
Largest Selling Brand in the U. S.

Quality Has Won for Sauer's
Seventeen Highest Awards for
Purity, Strength and Fine Flavor
including four conferred at expositions held in countries now allied with us. Manufacturers of 32 other flavors, including Vanilla, Lemon and Spice Flavors.

The C. F. SAUER COMPANY

C. F. Sauer President
RICHMOND, VIRGINIA

LET EUROPE GO BACK TO WORK.

The quickest way, perhaps the only way, to quench the red riot in Hungary, in Poland, in Germany—in all Europe—is to get men back to work, get communities back to work, get nations back to work. While the Paris Conference delays the peace treaty interminably and insufferably they can not go back to work.

Get the peace treaty ready for signing. Let Europe go back to work.—New York Sun.

This cozy home may be ~ Your Home.

An attractive, snug, convenient, roomy little bungalow;

Graceful lines, embodying the most modern of architectural ideas; securely, substantially built to make it lasting and comfortable in the most severe weather. Built with a view to convenient arrangement. While small in appearance, its rooms are in reality of ample size for every comfort.

QUICKBILT BUNGALOW NO. 44

while beautiful, convenient, roomy and thoroughly substantial, is built at a tremendously reduced cost, due to the immense savings in quantity production. From the flooring to the roof, from the siding to the interior finish, it is already prepared for erection and partially built. In buying a QUICKBILT Bungalow you

SAVE

WASTE. All the material is already prepared and the large waste piles of scrap lumber are thus eliminated. Every foot of lumber is used. You buy no surplus material.

TIME. Every piece of material has its own place. Everything is numbered and systematized. The instructions to the carpenter are complete and the order of erection simple. No time is lost in looking for material. The time ordinarily required in preliminary cutting and trimming is saved. Furthermore, as a large portion of the house is already built in panels, just that much time and cost is eliminated in construction.

LABOR. With the entire process of erection systematized and instructions complete and the great building "bugaboo"—preliminary preparations—eliminated, the labor in the erection of a QUICKBILT Bungalow is reduced to a minimum, and therefore, of minor consideration. A carpenter of average speed and experience with two laborers, can erect the house in 8 days. The ordinary house will take almost as many weeks.

MONEY. A saving in waste of material, time and labor, is a saving in money. With a QUICKBILT Bungalow the expense of erection is cut in half, but that is not all. You need not pay a contractor's fee. The erection is so simple and systematic that any carpenter of average intelligence can erect it with ease. Many owners build them themselves. You pay no architect's fee. The complete plans with all specifications and instructions are furnished FREE. And yet, the plans are made after careful study by the best and most experienced of architects, with a view to eliminating waste and gaining the greatest possible convenience, economy and strength. The cost of the material is further reduced by the fact that you buy it from the mill, manufacturer and forest in one. Our complete plants cover the entire process, from the tree to the completed house. You pay no middle-man a profit. You buy direct from the source of material. In our complete plants in which hundreds of houses are built simultaneously, every short cut to perfection is used and every waste avoided. As the houses are made in great quantities you gain the advantage of the low cost of quantity production.

PRICE $952 less 10 per cent. $856
for cash. Net price

F. O. B. Charleston. The price includes all necessary material, except the brick work and plumbing. Size over all, 21-ft. 5-in. x 30-ft. 6½-in. There are two large bedrooms, one 9-ft. x 12-ft., the other 12-ft. x 12-ft., one spacious living room 12-ft. x 18-ft., a kitchen 9-ft. x 12-ft., a bath room 9-ft. x 6-ft., and an attractive front porch 12-ft. x 6-ft. The house is well lighted, spacious, well ventilated and convenient. The construction is largely of North Carolina pine—"the Wood Universal," thoroughly kiln dried. Excellent flooring and ceiling. Walls built in panels of siding, lined with heavy builders' paper to insure warmth. Durable, fire-resisting, standard asphalt strip shingles with slate green or red finish. Artistic paneled inside finish. Excellent doors and sash. All necessary nails and hardware furnished. House comes with exterior walls stained any one of a number of standard colors or painted one heavy coat of priming paint. Exterior trim and inside finish painted with one heavy coat of priming paint.

WRITE TODAY

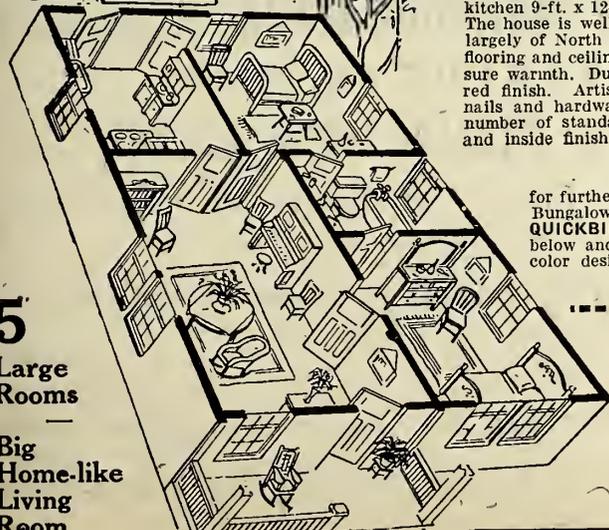

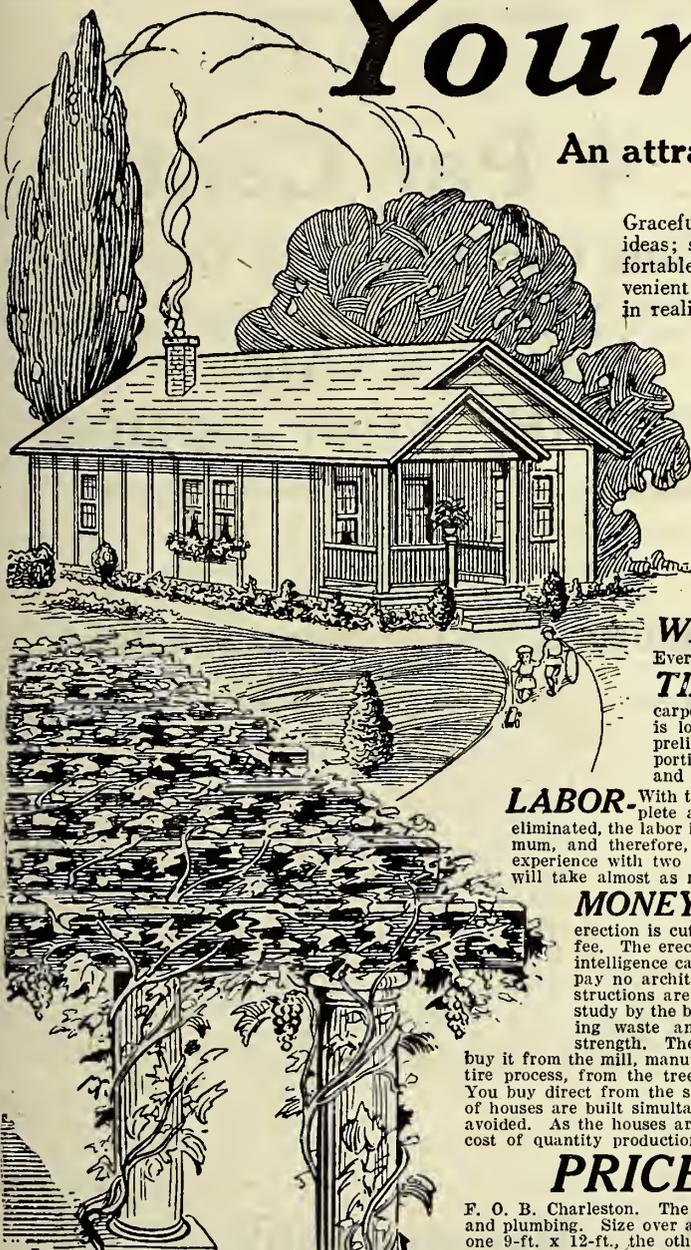

for further information and a copy of our attractive, illustrated book, "QUICKBILT Bungalows" No. A-9. It will explain all about No. 44 and many other attractive QUICKBILT Bungalows. It is FREE for the asking. Merely fill out the coupon below and mail it. Better still, if Bungalow No. 44 fills your needs, tell us the color desired and instruct us to ship immediately.

COUPON—CLIP HERE AND MAIL TO-DAY

QUICKBILT Bungalow Dept.,
A. C. Tuxbury Lumber Co., Charleston, S. C.

Please send me your book "QUICKBILT Bungalows" No. A-9. Am especially interested in a room house.

NAME
ADDRESS

5
Large Rooms

Big Home-like Living Room

Sparkles

His Real Feelings.

"Do you know," roared the little man, "that your great hulking brute of a bulldog killed my wife's dear little, unoffending, ethereal, heavenly pet poo-dle."

"What about it?" asked the brute.

"Well," said the little man, looking carefully round to see that no one was spying, "would you be offended if I presented your dog with a new collar?"—London Tit-Bits.

Jackson came tripping merrily into his tiny hall one day and almost spoiled his manly beauty by tripping over someone's shoes left lying about.

"Whose ferry boats are those in the hall?" he asked later when he entered the drawing room.

"Ferry boats?" his mother-in-law cried, angrily. "Why, those are my shoes!"

"My dear, good ma," Jackson said, hurriedly, "who said ferry boats? You misunderstood. Fairy boots, you know—fairy boots!"

And then he wiped the sweat from his brow.

Johnny came home from Sunday school quite thrilled by the lesson. "It was all about the Midnights," he said.

"The what," asked his father.

"The Midnights," repeated the boy. "Teacher told us how Gideon fought the Midnights and knocked the day-lights out of 'em in no time."—Boston Transcript.

A returned officer, his wife says, used to write her glorious letters from France. Now that he's back, she finds him unchanged.

"You're not noble any more," she complained.

"No," was his waggish reply. "I was denobleized after November 11."

This Joke Has Teeth.

Sergeant Thomas, departing from the dental clinic, was heard to remark that the dentists who went over there certainly must have been numbered among the yanks.—Over Here, General Hospital, No. 3, Colonia, N. J.

He (silly with the season): "Really, I'm so fond of strawberries that I'd like to be straw-buried."

She: "Well, I'd prefer to be ice-cremated."—Boston Transcript.

"What dirty hands you have, Johnny," said his teacher. "What would you say if I came to school that way?"

"I wouldn't say nothin'," replied Johnny. "I'd be too polite."

Its Limits.

"What is heredity?"

"Something a father believes in until his son starts to act like a fool."—Life.

This is Introducing Our

JOB PRINTING DEPARTMENT

PRESBYTERIAN :: STANDARD :: PUBLISHING :: COMPANY
CHARLOTTE, NORTH CAROLINA

ESTABLISHED FOR YEARS
But Perhaps Unknown to You

Doing better and more work now than ever before. Get from us the last word on Catalogs, Booklets, Letter and Bill Heads and every other kind of printing. And with this get also ideas and suggestions from our EXPERIENCED PRINTERS to solve your printing troubles. Write us or come to see us.

4 Per Cent

Time Certificates of Deposit

They are Interest Bearing. They are Payable on Demand. They Afford a Good Income for Funds Awaiting Permanent Investment

GET ONE

AMERICAN TRUST COMPANY

Charlotte

::

North Carolina

COLUMBIA THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY COLUMBIA, S. C.

THORNTON WHALING, D.D., LL.D., President of the Seminary

Professor of Didactic and Polemic Theology

WILLIAM M. MCPHEETERS, D.D., LL.D.

Professor of Old Testament Literature and Exegesis

HENRY ALEXANDER WHITE, Ph.D., D.D., LL.D.

Professor of Ecclesiastical History and Church Polity

RICHARD C. REED, D.D., LL.D.

Professor of the English Bible and Homiletics

EDGAR D. KERR, A.B., B.D.

Instructor in Hebrew and Greek Languages

GEORGE S. FULBRIGHT, A.B.

Instructor in Elocution

WILLIAM M. MILLS, A.B., D.D.

Instructor in Rural Sociology

J. O. REAVIS, D.D., LL.D.

Professor of English Bible, Pastoral Theology and Missions

Our most progressive Theological Seminary, grown from twenty-four to sixty four students in seven years. Full curriculum and special courses in Pedagogy, Sunday School Organization, Missions, Evangelisms, Rural Sociology and Elocution. Scholarships for prepared students. For further information, write to THORNTON WHALING, President.

Charlotte National Bank Resources $4,000,000.00

CHARLOTTE, N. C.

PAYS FOUR PER CENT.

On Either Time Certificates of Deposit or Savings Accounts

MAIL ORDER Business Solicited and PROMPT ATTENTION Given

JOHN M. SCOTT	-	-	-	-	-	President
W. J. CHAMBERS	-	-	-	-	-	Vice-President
J. F. ROBERTSON	-	-	-	-	-	Vice-President
W. H. TWITTY	-	-	-	-	-	Cashier
C. W. BUTT	-	-	-	-	-	Assistant Cashier

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

REV. J. R. BRIDGES, D. D.

EDITORS

REV. R. C. REED, D. D.

VOL. LX.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., June 25, 1919.

No. 25.

Christ the Builder.

If I could hold within my hand
The hammer Jesus swung,
Not all the gold in all the land,
Nor jewels countless as the sand,
All in the balance flung,
Could weigh the value of that thing
Round which His fingers once did cling.

If I could have the table He Once made in Nazareth,
Not all the pearls in all the seas
Nor crowns of kings or kings to be .
As long as men have breath,
Could buy that thing of wood He made—
The Lord of lords who learned a trade.

Yea, but His hammer still is shown
By honest hands that toil,
And 'round His table men sit down,
And all are equals, with a crown
Nor gold nor pearls can soil;
The shop at Nazareth was bare—
But brotherhood was builded there.

—Dr. Charles M. Sheldon, in "Speeches of the Flying Squad."

Editorial

Racing to Catch Up.

ONE difficulty about organic union is that of catching up. Some while ago we heard an Episcopal minister say: "All the denominations are coming toward us. If we had stood still the Methodists would have been up with us by this time." He was thinking about the cheap imitations of other churches in their Easter service, their responsive readings, their creed recitals and such like flummery.

Had the church from which we separated stood still we would have been a constituent part of it long ago. After the passions of the war were over and a few of the venerated leaders who had taken part in the strife were called to their reward, there would have been little difficulty in removing obstacles. But the church from which we separated ceased to exist after 1870. By merging with the New School Church, it removed far from the position which it had occupied since 1837. By this removal it put a long distance between it and our Church. To all intents and purposes it became the New School Church by accepting and making its own the history, traditions, and methods of interpretation of that Church.

As the years passed, our Church grew accustomed to the new order in the Northern Church, and ceased to think of it as a very serious departure from the old landmarks. A sentiment favorable to union sprang up and was spreading and gaining strength. It was confidently predicted that in a short while this sentiment would sweep all before it, and result in bringing the two bodies together. Then came the union with the Cumberland Presbyterian Church. By this union, the Church from which we separated underwent another transformation. From being a New School Church, it became to all intents and purposes a Cumberland Presbyterian Church by lowering its doctrinal tests to admit that body. It is the persistent claim of the Cumberland element that it entered the union without the slightest alteration of belief or change of historic position. It is a safe assumption that the preachers belonging to that element are preaching the same doctrines as before, and their right to do so goes uncontested. They are still charging that our Church is upholding a fatalistic creed; and have declared that we will not be permitted to join the Northern Church without altering our Confession of Faith.

By this second union, the space which was rapidly diminishing, was widened again. Some thought the old Church had left us so far behind that we should never catch up, that consequently union was forever out of the question. But as time slips by we again become accustomed to the new order, and familiarity dulls the sensibilities. A desire for union is once again abroad in our Church. It has reached a point where it demands recognition. The effort at federated union having failed, the recent Assembly felt constrained to continue negotiations.

From present indications union is in the near future, provided the Protean Church with which we are trying to unite does not speedily undergo another change. Such a change seems imminent. The women are to the front, Chenning Presbytery has already given one woman a license to preach, while there is a protest, and an effort to have the Presbytery reverse its action, there is a significant step taken by the Assembly. It appointed an ad interim committee to consider the question of admitting women to the eldership and to the ministry. The very fact that the Assembly gave such serious consideration to the question may well calm all apprehension on the part of Chenning Presbytery.

Obviously if we are to have union, our Church must let nothing deter or discourage it in the chase to catch up.

Mistakes of Preachers.

By One of Them.

Ingersoll had a famous lecture on the "Mistakes of Moses," but he by no means identified himself with Moses. Another charming writer once wrote an essay on "Fools, By One of Them," thus identifying himself with them.

Of the two examples we prefer to follow the last named, because we are conscious that whatever mistakes we find in others, they will be found to a greater degree in our own case.

With the consent of our brethren of the ministry let us offer ourselves for dissection in order to help those who are to follow in our steps and fill the places we now occupy.

It is true that we no longer occupy the pulpit, and that our sins are those of our youth, but that does not rid us of them, for "Some men's sins are open beforehand, going before to judgment; and some men they follow after."

As a critic then we can sit in the pew and as a disinterested spectator point out the mistakes which we otherwise would not be able to see.

Memory brings back the mistakes of the young preacher, yet how natural they were. He spend three years under trained teachers and stores his mind with theological truth and the nice discriminations of exegesis. To him they represent three years of hard work, and when he stands before his flock he is apt to imagine that he is in the professor's chair instead of the pulpit, and to feel that he ought to share with his people the riches of knowledge that he has gathered.

Theology is a noble science and without it a preacher will drift and make shipwreck of his faith, yet it should be seen, but not heard. Like the skeleton of the body it is essential, but to make it prominent will repel rather than attract.

Let your theology flavor your sermons and give body to them, but let it be unobtrusive. Other young men in their effort to avoid this extreme, swing to the other, and try to feed their people upon sentimentality—with the result that the hearers are never nourished. The average congregation will enjoy the beautiful phrases about birds and flowers, dewdrops on the grass and the sighing of the winds, but in the end what good does it all do except to please? Preaching the gospel is a serious business and while imagery may help to kindle the emotions and thus gain a hearing for the truth, a sermon is a failure that does not teach truth. Between these two extremes the greater danger lies in the latter. The young have a horror of the commonplace and in their effort to give something novel in the treatment of a text, they get out of it everything except the gospel message.

The preacher should remember that what is commonplace to him is not necessarily so to others, and he should also remember that when a man tries to find something new in interpretation, the chances are that he will soon be on dangerous ground.

Those of us who have lived long and are thinking seriously of the end, have found in our own experience as well as in that of others that the human heart craves the truth, and that when a heart is conscious of sin, it craves the Gospel above all things else.

The old Gospel story may be trite, but to those conscious of sin and also conscious of the approach of eternity, there can be nothing trite about it. It is the power of God unto salvation.

The great need of the pulpit, as it is the great need of the pew, is earnestness springing from a firm belief in the reality of hell and the value of a soul.

We have heard men who ordinarily were dull but in preaching their earnestness set their sermons on fire. Such men can always move men, and they can always bring souls to Christ. If the preacher would learn where he has failed, let him read Baxter's "Reformed Pastor." He will either reform or else conclude that he has missed his calling.

Our Mountain Schools.

Our Church has produced more than one man with a statesmanlike vision of the future, having plans that reached far beyond the span of any one man's life. Such a man was Dr. E. O. Guerrant, of Kentucky, who left monuments scattered through the mountain regions of his native State, testifying not only to his Christian foresight, but to his earnest and self-sacrificing life. He has long since passed to his reward, but his work remains, and no one can view it now without recalling that burning apostle of personal evangelism, who travelled through the wildest coves of the mountains, swimming swollen creeks, braving drenching storms, sharing with the rough mountaineer his still rough fare, and withal winning his confidence and then his soul.

By means of these schools and churches founded by him, the most lawless communities are now clothed and in their right mind, and the church and school house have taken the place of the grogeries. The devil, however, has not yet abdicated, but he is making renewed efforts to regain lost ground. The Christian workers are trying to hold their own.

Rev. E. V. Tadlock, who has proved himself a worthy follower of Dr. Guerrant, has an appeal in another column to which we gladly call attention.

Those who worship God in comfortable churches or even do charity work from comfortable homes, have no conception of the life of a mountain missionary. He needs encouragement in a substantial way as well as sympathy. We listen to these workers when they present their cause to us at Montreat, and some of us may wipe away a stray tear brought to the surface by our sympathy with them. That is very well, and does credit to our heart and proves that we are not entirely wrapped up in self, but it would look better in the sight of heaven to see something more substantial than a tear. Tears never fill empty mouths or do they clothe the naked.

Stones Instead of Bread.

For months past the daily papers have been filled with glowing accounts of receptions tendered the returned soldiers, and of plans to commemorate their prowess in monuments of stone or in memorial buildings. We recall the reception given in this city, the bands of music, the plaudits of the multitude, the waving of flags, the tables groaning with tempting food, and the liberty of the city. In the city of Birmingham we witnessed a similar scene, and in addition to the efforts mentioned above, we saw the khaki clad boys almost covered with flowers. It was very beautiful and touching, yet the question would arise, what good will it do the boys? When a man is confronted with the question, what shall I eat? or, what shall I drink? or, where-withal shall I be clothed? such attentions, however well meant, do little to answer that question, and it is a poor commentary on human nature that men prefer to express their gratitude in a lump, thus getting rid of it the sooner, rather than in a more substantial way that requires time and self-denial. This city, as well as others, is filled with heavy-hearted young men who having offered themselves for two and three years to the horrors of war in defence of their country, are now roaming our streets with no visible means of support, while stalwart young slackers who by false swearing or influence remained at home, are living care free.

We have heard of one desperate soldier who, tired of being refused work, took poison in his despair, while others have re-enlisted, though for years they have dreamed of home life and a grateful country.

Talk and cheers are cheap, yet nothing could be more worthless to a man out of work. There was a stinging indictment in the reply given by one soldier to another who was worn out by the parade and was wondering how they could stop the cheers and noisy attention. "Ask them for a job," was the reply.

Licensing the Sale of Liquor.

For many years the sale of liquor in this State has been unlawful, and by reason of this prohibition we have made wonderful advancement in every line of business. North Carolina is recognized as a prohibition State, yet practically our courts are nullifying our prohibition laws, and by a system of fines are winking at the violation of the laws of our statute books. Recent statistics show that this State leads in the manufacture and sale of liquor, notwithstanding the will of our people as expressed by an overwhelming majority at the polls, and also in direct opposition to our laws. This contradictory condition of affairs is due to practice of fining men caught selling liquor, instead of punishing them by a chain gang sentence.

Mr. A, for example, in the days when whiskey selling was by license, paid a certain license tax and sold whiskey, thereby supporting his family. Now, Mr. A sells whiskey at $10.00 per quart, thus making an enormous profit. If he is caught he pays a fine and returns to his traffic, and finds at the end of the year, that the selling of liquor in prohibition days is far more profitable than in the days of whiskey license, when the license was high and the price of whiskey was comparatively low.

Of course this does not apply to the negro thus caught. He has to go to the chain gang, but the white man is generally let off with a fine, which, however large, is a trifle when compared with his profits. The remedy lies with the courts of law. Let each offender when convicted be put upon the roads, and then let the Governor keep hands off, and in a short time we shall see a lessening in the number of cases. When a man deliberately violates the law, as these liquor makers and liquor venders are doing, he deserves no mercy, nor any consideration. If his family is disgraced by his being on the chain gang, the disgrace is put upon them by the man himself, and not by the court.

The object of law is to deter men from crime, and it is the duty of a judge to see that this object is attained. His own feelings of sympathy should not come in. He has only to execute, not make laws. Such partiality in executing law tends to bring law into contempt, and when men begin to despise law, then there is little hope of the prevalence of law and order.

Contributed

"A Lordly Pleasure House"

(Moods of the Atlanta Laymen's Missionary Convention.)

By Rev. J. Walter Cobb.

"I built myself a lordly pleasure house

 Full of long-sounding corridors it was,
 That over-vaulted grateful gloom,
 Through which the livelong day my soul did pass,
 Well-pleased, from room to room.

Full of great rooms and small the palace stood,
 All various, each a perfect whole
 From living Nature, fit for every mood
 And change of my still soul."

—The Palace of Art.

IN the heart of the city of Atlanta, whose Candler building, erected, it is said, at a cost of three millions of dollars, "Flat Iron" building, and other piles of brick and mortar, whose "Five Points," and whose rushing streams of living humanity all combine to remind one of America's greatest metropolis, the Southern Presbyterian Church builded for herself "a lordly pleasure house"—the Laymen's Missionary Convention—wherein she for three days and three nights did dwell.

It was a palace the variety of whose rooms—"fit for every mood and change"—made it a pleasurable dwelling place for the Church's "still Soul." Let us observe some of these moods and changes of soul which came over her as she occupied first one and then another of these rooms "all various."

The Court of the Women.

The Laymen's Movement originally concerned itself with foreign missions only. The Birmingham convention in 1909 confined itself to a consideration of that phase of the church's work. So Chattanooga. Memphis added the subject of home missions. The twins, Charlotte and Dallas, were again exclusively foreign. Lexington and New Orleans enlarged the scope further, embracing not only the subjects of foreign and home missions, but also such topics as prohibition, the juvenile court, etc. Atlanta added the subjects of Christian Education and Ministerial Relief and Publication and Sunday School Extension—so that as one listened to representatives of our four Executive Committees, one might almost imagine one's self to be in a meeting of the General Assembly.

And there was enlargement from another source. At first the Movement's task was thought of in the light of a "man's job;" emphasis was put upon the responsibility which belongs to the "red-blooded American;" and the appeal was made exclusively to the masculine element of the church. Then the Movement began to take cognizance of the church's feminine feelings; saw that it was "not good that man should be alone;" and sought out "an help meet." So Atlanta, desiring to make provision for the pleasure of the church in an expression of her tenderer moods, put up the Woman's Annex. It bore the same relation to the palace proper as the apartment for women in the ancient Jewish temple bore to the rest of the temple: while the men came and went at liberty through this court, the women were not allowed beyond its precincts—which is as it should be.

It was in view of this enlarged scope of the work that Mr. Rowland was led to speak, in his opening address of this Convention, as "the most significant and far-reaching convention we have ever had."

Hung in Black.

The grandmother of Mary Queen of Scots, on account of the death of her husband, lived at a considerable distance from Paris in seclusion, and in a state of austere and melancholy grief. Instead of forgetting her sorrows, she gave herself up to inconsolable grief and did all she could to perpetuate the mournful influences of her sorrows. She lived in an ancient and gloomy mansion, of vast size, and she hung all the apartments in black, to make it more desolate and gloomy and to continue the influence of grief upon her mind.

A goodly portion of her time the Soul of the Church spent in an apartment in sable shades, dedicated to melancholy thoughts, indulging the pleasure which comes from contemplating the sad and sorrowful.

Early in the sessions of the convention allusion was made to the sad accident in Montgomery on the preceding Saturday, which resulted in the death of Dr. McCaslin's little boy, and the secretary was directed to send Dr. McCaslin, who was on for an address before the convention, a message of love and sympathy.

On the second day, a telegram was received by Rev. J. E. Hixson, of Memphis, bearing the sad tidings of the death of his sister in Bridgeport, Ala.

Dr. Glass impressed the convention with the sense of responsibility in the department of Sunday school extension by repeating a sad story of the religious destitutions of the mountains. He said there was a boy who grew up amid the environment of wickedness peculiar to the mountaineer life. The oaths which he learned to swear were inexpressibly wicked. In hopes of getting him out of the habit, the missionary taught him to use the expression instead, "I'll be dogged." Being questioned afterwards by the missionary as to his knowledge concerning God, the lad made the pathetic reply, "Mr. Harris, I'll be dogged if I know who God is; and I'll be dogged if I know where he lives; but I know he does not live upon Big Rock Creek."

Ostrom of Japan, according to whom Japan is to be America's future greatest competitor in textile industry, said that of the 200,000 recruits from country girls needed annually for the textile factories, only 80,000 of them ever return home, and that of these twenty-five per cent are touched with consumption.

Dr. Smith, in recounting the experiences of his recent trip to China, Japan and Korea, said: "The most moving and impressive sight in China was that long succession of village after village, of village after village, of village after village, all filled with friendly faces that looked out upon us of those who had not once heard the name of Christ."

Dr. McQuilkin, of Philadelphia, associate editor of the Sunday School Times, came into the convention with the enthusiasm of consecrated youthfulness, with boyish manner, and a face like the morning. He said in a voice of peculiar sweetness and sorrow: "My heart is broken for the young men and young women of America." He spoke out of an experience of ten years of Christian work among the colleges and universities of this country. He pictured the paganism which has found its way into the schools of the North, declaring that it is not confined to the professedly unitarian schools, but exists as well in the supposedly Christian and denominational institutions. He made the outlook less hopeful still when he said that the spirit of worldliness, a more insidious vice than paganism, permeates all the schools, both North and South. A gentleman up North had sent a son and a daughter to a denominational school in the South. Worldliness in that institution had diverted the boy from his purpose, before formed, of studying for the gospel ministry, and the same influence had destroyed the daughter's spiritual power.

In Jovial Vein.

Happy the arrangement of the house which furnishes opportunity for one to flee from the apartments of sadness to those whose decorations are bright and suggestive of good cheer. The convention had its room provided with joke-crackers.

(Continued on page 8)

The Value of Our Church Papers

By Rev. J. M. Wells, D.D.

Address at Atlanta Laymen's Convention.

WHEN I was at the Seminary one of the budding theologs there, prepared a sermon; that with divisions, sub-divisions and sub-sub-divisions is said to have contained one hundred and thirty-two heads. And the hard-hearted faculty insisted on his discussing that mass of divinity in twenty-five minutes.

And now I am to discuss the value of our church papers, one of the biggest and most vital subjects that can come before us, in six minutes. As an orthodox Presbyterian preacher I will divide my six-minute talk into three heads.

First, consider the tremendous importance of the church papers to the individual. Many of you men here before me learned your letters from the names at the top of those papers. The literature that our aged saints love next to their Bible, is those papers. And in the long stretch of life that lies between, there is no better food for our souls than the church papers. There is something radically wrong about the food the average Christian is giving his soul today. One of my friends once said that he did not like asparagus because it tasted to him like it was raw at one end and rotten at the other. I don't agree with him as to asparagus, but if he had said that about the food that many are giving their minds and souls today, he would have been absolutely right. That food is made up of the daily papers and the monthly magazines; and it is raw at one end and rotten at the other. What he gets from the daily papers is raw. When it ceases to be raw it ceases to be news and the papers don't want it. And great as is their influence and potent as is their power for good or evil, the reading they give is not food that enriches the mind and develops the soul. It is raw. And what he gets from the monthly magazines is rotten. There are exceptions, of course. But they are scarce and difficult to find. The most of those magazines are not fit to read. They are crude, suggestive, frothy, when they are not actually filthy. That stuff is not fit food for Christian men and women. It is rotten. It will give you moral and spiritual ptomaine poisoning.

The individual Christian needs the church papers that he may have pure, wholesome, true food for mind and soul. "Whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue and if there be any praise, think on these things." And these are the things you find to think about, and to feed your soul with, on the page of our church papers.

Second, consider the tremendous importance of the church papers to the family. These papers are well nigh essential in the life of the family.

What is the great need of today? I might mention many things, but unhesitatingly I say the great need is family religion. To supply the church with needed workers, to supply the state with needed leaders, yea, to supply the world in its great crisis time with the men and women to save it, will require real, old-time family religion. And the church papers are a powerful aid in promoting family religion. They help to solve the Sabbath problem in the home, by providing wholesome and entertaining reading. They give to the young a taste for pure reading. They help to make religion attractive to the young. The families in our church that are building the church generation after generation are those that take the church papers.

My father was once at a General Assembly, where in a group the conversation turned to the church papers. Some one asked him what in those papers he read first on Sunday afternoon. He said, "I often turn to the children's letters." A general laugh followed. What could a mature jurist find there to interest him. But he went on, "I don't find much in the letters, but the names profoundly interest me. They are the children and grandchildren of the men and women in our church that I have known and loved and honored."

"Showing mercy unto the thousandth generation of them that love me and keep my commandments."

The family will not swing far off that feeds its children's minds with the church papers.

Third, consider the tremendous importance of the church papers to the church.

How could the work of the church be kept before the people of the church without this agency?

How could the great Foreign Mission work—the news from our far flung battle line for Christ, the news of heroism, of sacrifice and of victory, be kept freshly and powerfully before our people without them?

How could our great Home Mission work, the news of mountain work, of colored work, of work among the immigrants, be kept before our people as a mighty call without them?

How could our Ministerial Education work, our church's call for volunteers to take their places in the thinning ranks, be brought to the rank and file of our young people without them?

How could our Ministerial Relief work, the privilege of caring for our veterans and their dependent loved ones, be kept on the conscience of a thoughtless church, without them?

How could our Sunday School work, with its challenge to the church to reach and save the young, be made vivid and real without them?

These church papers are potent in the life and work of our great church.

Often the building of our church comes before my mind as the building of a great temple. Stone by stone we are building high, symmetrical and beautiful. God is richly blessing our building. Whether because we are old-fashioned enough to believe in His Word and not doubt it at the call of German criticism, or because we still believe in and trust and glory in a blood-stained cross, He is blessing our work.

He is permitting us to grow faster in members and gifts than any other church.

As we build, I like to think of the influence of our church papers as the mortar holding the stones of the temple together firmly as we build.

If they are the mortar, two things are needful.

The mortar should be good mortar. Our church papers are good. Mr. Editors, see that they grow steadily stronger and better in the future as they have done in the past.

The mortar should be freely used. Those papers should be in every home in the church.

Go back home and see that an agency, so powerful for good, is put where it will bless every individual and every family in our church and blessing them will bless the great church we love so well.

Never Despair.

The oak in the tempest grows strong by resistance.

The arm at the anvil gains muscular power,
And firm self-reliance that seeks no assistance,

Goes onward, rejoicing, through sunshine and shower;
For life is a struggle to try and to prove us,

And true hearts grow stronger by labor and care,

While Hope, like a seraph still whispers above us:

"Look upward and onward, and never despair!"

—Phillip Efnon in Leslie's Weekly.

Woman's Auxiliary Convention

By Miss Carrie Lee Campbell.

WHAT: A notable gathering of women to confer about vital matters of the kingdom at such a time as this and paralleling the Laymen's Convention.

Where: In beautiful, busy, welcoming Atlanta, and in a large-hearted, hospitable Baptist tabernacle.

When: June 10-12, 1919. And "what's so rare as a day in June?" And we had the rarest.

Who: Women from fourteen States of our Southern Church and from five of our mission fields. His blessed imprimatur was found in the fact that the women numbered seven hundred. "The women who published the tidings were a great host."

Originators: Mrs. W. C. Winsborough, the honored superintendent of the Auxiliary; Mrs. Walton, chairman of the W. A. C.; Mrs. Archbold Davis, a former chairman, and others did this great thing, but so kept themselves hid that the whole truth was hard to discover.

Speakers: Many missionaries came from far: J. Campbell White and others from the North, our Indian brother from the West, and Dr. E. W. Smith back from the land of Sinin. Messages from these and other men were straight and strong and stirring. (See report of Laymen's meeting.) And not one of the four executive secretaries failed to give of their best to this woman's program.

Visiting Speakers: Miss Milligan, a leader of national reputation, raised mission study to a higher plane than just studying a book, and Mrs. E. C. Cronk, likewise known everywhere, besides other stirring addresses, brought the closing message of the convention a challenge to "American Women in a Time Like This"—and our hearts burned within us.

Bible Study: Mrs. A. Davis packed into her allotted time telling suggestions on how to study the Bible; this one will point the way. "Take time for study: pray about the study: Go in to God; go out to service."

Mountain Work: Miss Mabel Hall, who has been there, lived there, and who knows at first hand, thrilled our hearts and "teared our eyes" as she told of the women who walked long distances over the mountains to get and take back with them "the pretty talk," and who cried out of yearning hearts, "Oh! Sunday school woman, why didn't you come sooner?"

The Negro: Mrs. Winsborough appealed to the very souls of us as she pleaded for this race, better justice before the law, better schools, proper recognition of merit and success; a school of our own for negro girls, and the gospel for every negro. Mrs. Booker T. Washington, in a most sane talk about her people, made an earnest plea for better training for the negro along all lines, and for better schools, saying that now they have "pitiful schooling." In fifteen States in the South $10 is expended for each white child, as against $2 for each colored child. She pleads that more may be done to raise their ideals of living, of home, of the duties of womanhood, and that to them all the gospel may be preached.

Tuscaloosa Conference: This work for colored women was reported by Mrs. Winsborough. Last September there were fifty delegates from twenty-nine towns, including five denominations. There will be another conference next September. Send a colored woman from your town. Small cost; large results. Program very practical: First: word of God (most popular course); second, sewing; third, practical living: sanitation, hygiene, care of children.

Relations of Presbyterian and Synodical: When Mrs. Bruce, president of Alabama Synodical, made her subject so clear, each listener wished for short-hand skill, that she might take home in exact form the message that the Synodical is intended as an arm; a help to the Presbyterian, but not as the ruling body.

Mrs. S. D. Walton, chairman of the Woman's Advisory Council, made her hearers stop, listen, then think, as she pressed home the thought that our church membership increase is not at all keeping pace with the increase of population in the United States.

Korea: This mission had as its speaker Mrs. Swinehart, the alive: but this pen cannot describe Mrs. Swinehart: you must see her and have her in your meetings. But if you could see through her what you are doing out there in Korea, nothing—heat, children, illness—could keep you from your own missionary meetings.

Africa: Mrs. Robert King, born in Belgium, living and married in Africa, and now in the United States, gave a series of pictures of life in Congo, moving pictures showing the improvement of the men, women and children as they come to know Christ. "And they need more workers." "And they need more doctors." These appeals, spoken with her sweet French accent, went to our hearts, our memories, and our prayers. Beside Dr. and Mrs. King and the junior, other missionaries from Africa were Mr. Hillhouse, Mr. and Mrs. McElroy, Mr. and Mrs. Stegall, and another junior.

Japan: Mrs. Ostrom (and we were so proud of all our missionaries) gave four pictures of femininity in Japan: Childhood, girlhood, motherhood, grandmotherhood. These pictures all had their high and low lights, "according as they know Christ."

Brazil: Miss Douglass took us to this vast spreading country, and showed the first commandment is broken, the second left out of the prayer book, the fourth violated by the holiday Sabbath, and others shattered because they have not Christ.

That Korean Pageant: It was then we saw before our very eyes how they live and how they learn; how they worship and how they die; and are given in marriage in that far-away little country—that heart-broken country.

Our Belgian Baby, Robert King, Jr. His appeal. He didn't ask anybody to say it for him, for he is only about eighteen inches long, and cannot speak a word of American; but he spoke it loud to all on-looking hearts—this youngest member of these conventions, and it is this: "If you would send a few more doctors for Congo, I could stay and grow up there with my Belgian mother and American father. Won't you do it, please?"

Congratulations to all the women who went. Pass on the good things you got.

Sympathy to all who could not go. Plan now for the next Woman's Auxiliary Convention.

My Gifts.

"And opening their treasures they offered unto him gifts, gold and frankincense and myrrh."

Lord, I would bring my gold to Thee,

And lay it at Thy feet;

A lesser offering to a King

I know would not be meet;

And as I lay it down,

It may become a crown,

Some overcoming soul to greet.

To Thee my frankincense I bring,

No perfume bought in mart,

But pure aroma from the flower

That grows within my heart;

And as I give it Thee,

I pray that it may be

A fragrance that shall ne'er depart.

And oh, my Lord, wilt Thou accept

The myrrh I proffer here,

Unspoiled by any sin,

Unmixed with any tear?

It may be Thou wilt use

My gifts, if Thou shalt choose,

To give some saddened soul Thy cheer.

—Charles M. Sheldon.

Rev. George W. Butler, M. D.

By Rev. S. H. Chester, D.D.

The death of Dr. Butler at his home in Canhotinbo, Brazil, on May 30th, leaves a vacancy in our missionary ranks that cannot be filled. He was both medical and evangelistic missionary and his character and life work were both unique. In his medical and surgical work he always made it a condition of undertaking a case that the first step in the treatment should be prayer with the patient, and by the power of prayer combined with his remarkable professional skill he wrought cures that often seemed to border on the miraculous.

People came to him for treatment from all over Northern Brazil. Those who were able paid, and several churches were built from the proceeds of his practice. But none were turned away and hundreds, probably thousands during the thirty-seven years of his missionary service were entertained and treated at his home sometimes for weeks at a time, free of charge. Over the whole state of Pernambuco he was called "The father of the poor." Those who heard his wonderful address at Montreat last summer on "The Gospel of the Power of God" can imagine something of the burning earnestness and eloquence of his preaching to the crowds that always came to hear him. He spoke the Portuguese language like a native, and he could sway the multitude as no other native or foreigner could do.

We have not the material in hand for any satisfactory account of Dr. Butler's life and work, but we are asking those who were associated with him in his work to send us a sketch which we can publish both in the survey and in leaflet form. We give one characteristic incident, related by himself, of which there were many others equally remarkable, illustrating how by the prayer of faith he was in the habit of overcoming difficulties:

"Once at Maranhao we had trouble with a circus owner. We had chosen for our church the only site in a square where there was no Catholic church with clanging bells to annoy us. Our meetings were progressing. A circus owner set up his tent right behind our building and wanted to catch our people after church at night. He argued with me to have me change our hour and let him commence sooner. I told him Sunday was God's day and I could not change the hour. He commenced and we were greatly annoyed and hindered. I prayed once or twice like this: 'Oh Lord God, this is Thy house, this Thy day, the Sabbath, and our neighbor has set up his circus at our very door and he is hindering the witness we give of Jesus Christ. Stop it, oh Lord, for Jesus' sake. Amen.' The circus never performed after that and he never was able to take down the poles nor the tent cloth; but it stood there and flopped and flopped and rattled to the glory of God, and there are witnesses still living who will testify to the fact."

Dr. Butler's wife, who was Miss Mary Rena Humphreys, of Goldsboro, N. C., was a good gift to him from God and possessed all the qualifications, physical strength, mental ability, courage, faith and self-sacrificing devotion, that fitted her to be the helpmeet of such a man as he was in such a life work as God called him to do. From first to last they were devoted lovers, and both of them had a consuming love for the Brazilian people to whose service in the gospel they had devoted their lives. And the people also loved them devotedly. We feel confident that there was no other man in Northern Brazil whose death would evoke the heartfelt sorrow of so many people as did the death of Dr. Butler.

Preparatory Service

By Dr. George L. Petrie.

A special service preparatory to the communion seems to be peculiar to the Presbyterian Church. When and where did the Preparatory Service originate? What were the conditions of observance? Through what changes has its observance passed? To what extent is it observed in these days? It is regularly observed by the Presbyterian Church in Charlottesville, Va., and is a service very dear to some members of the Church.

Many years ago, within the memory of the writer, neighboring churches, especially in the country, united on communion occasions. The preparatory services were extended through several days, culminating on the Sabbath with all-day services. The pastors of the uniting Churches did the preaching. These were occasions of delightful fellowship. The communion services in each Church occurring twice a year, these joint services afforded to all the Churches at least quarterly communions. They were great occasions, eagerly anticipated and intensely enjoyed. I can not adequately describe the profound impression made upon my boyhood mind and heart by these occasions: an impression not of awe and dread, not of weariness, but of sweet solemnity and gracious privilege.

Attendance of members at the preparatory service was obligatory in the sense that those who were not there were not expected to be at the communion service. At the preparatory service "Tokens" were distributed, entitling the holder to participate in the communion service.

The communion service was observed at tables placed in front of the pulpit. At these the members gathered and were seated in succession till all were served. The first action of the elders was to collect the "tokens" from those seated at the table. If any had not been at the preparatory service, they were expected to withdraw from the table.

Time brought changes in the manner of observance. First, the tokens were omitted. Then, as many as could be accommodated sat at the table, the rest remaining in the pews, all being served at the same time. Then, the table was dispensed with altogether. All the members gathered together in the pews, a compact group, non-communicants removing to the side pews. I can recall how solemnly impressive this was to me as a child, to be thus separated from communicants. Eagerly I anticipated the time when I might take my seat amongst God's people, as they gathered thus in the upper room of Christian privilege. It was to me a happy day when I was invited to sit with those I loved, a participant in the Sacred Feast.

Now the general custom seems to be for the communicants not to change seats at all, and for non-communicants to leave the church.

The few large silver goblets have been generally displaced by individual communion cups.

The whole drift is to greater freedom of communicants and diminishing power of the preparatory service. How much of the change is loss? How much of it is gain?

It is usually a little group of Christians that attend preparatory service in these days, those who live in a state of preparation for the communion. If a pastor wishes to prepare the people for the sacramental service in a particular manner, he has to speak his words of preparation on Sabbath morning in the sacramental service.

Notwithstanding this drift away from the preparatory service, there is a band of Christians, perhaps in every Presbyterian Church, still attached to the service, bound to it by tenderest and holiest associations. Such Christians would regret its abandonment. They regard it a great privilege and a very helpful service in the cultivation of devout religious life, a season of spiritual refreshment and an opportunity of more thorough consecration.

It would be interesting to learn more about the origin and history of this preparatory service, and more about the extent and manner of its present observance.

"A Lordly Pleasure House."

(Continued from page 4)

It was rich in its fund of anecdote of a lighter vein, and many were the mirth provoking utterances of the speakers. The funniest thing in the convention was the wedding scene in the Korean pageant; the most humorous, that of the funeral scene in the same. One doesn't usually laugh at a funeral; but one would have little sense of humor who could keep from smiling at the combination of pathos and ridiculousness portrayed by the actor missionaries now in this country on furlough under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Swineheart of Kwangju.

Dr. Wells, of Wilmington, made an effort to elevate the convention's taste in reading above the mere daily paper and the monthly magazine by comparing the one to one end of an asparagus tip and the other to the other, and relating the story of the man who assigned as a reason for disliking asparagus that "it is raw at one end and rotten at the other."

The one who contributed most to the enlivenment of the occasion was A. D. Mason, the well known Sunday school superintendent of Memphis, who presided over more than one session of the convention. He is a master of assemblies. He mixes pleasure with business. While wielding the gavel with almost cruel relentlessness, having no need for a buzzer, but telling a speaker in good plain English, when his time was up or he is sidetracking, to sit down, at the same time his ready wit and genial manner enable him to keep all in good spirits. When one speaker got off the track and gave signs of starting a controversy, he set him down with the remark, "Brother, don't start a row in the Amen corner!" When the young leader of the singing omitted the third stanza, Mr. Mason chased him from the platform, and told about the man who said that he would dislike to be the third stanza, because it is always being left out. He secured the attention of the audience which had been distracted by the sputterings of a motorcycle just outside the church window by remarking, "Listen to me. That motorcycle has a long time to run, and I have only a few moments!"

The Room of Red.

Anger is essentially a virtuous passion. It may, therefore, have its legitimate place in a gathering of this sort. And the indulgence of anger is a pleasure giving sensation. The convention experienced such sensation, and gave expression to it, by its disapproval of a speaker who suggested the propriety, and even value, of Sunday newspaper advertising for the purpose of increasing church attendance. A gentleman from Tampa, Fla., introducing himself, when he rose to speak, as the editor of a Tampa daily, drew a ripple of applause when he stated his position. A moment later, as he continued his remarks, he gave occasion for an expression of those of the contrary opinion, and they did it in no unmistakable manner by sudden and angry applause. This seemed to nettle the speaker, who remarked, "Yes, you may applaud now; but wait till I get through." But he never got through. So evident was the temper of the crowd in opposition that a heckling scene might easily have ensued, and the speaker sat down, doubtless wondering at the spirit of the company into which he had come.

The Pessimism of Premillennialism.

There was one room in the "lordly pleasure house," through the window opening into which the Soul of the Church caught for a moment a gloomy prospect. From this point she could only behold the darkening clouds of desolation sweeping up the valley, and contemplate with despair the cry of the lost sheep in the thunder riven mountains beyond.

That the Soul of the Church would be asked to occupy, for a while at least, this cheerless apartment was predicted before the delegates to the convention left home. A member of the programme committee is reported to have said: "We are going to make the convention strike fire on the Second Coming"—meaning the Premillennial.

Dr. Rice, of Union Seminary, was very clever in his allusion to the subject; deploring what he calls "the wretched distinction between the Premillennial and the Postmillennial views of 'the blessed hope.'" His meaning probably was—there is but one tenable view, the Pre.—and it is a wretched situation that any other view of "the blessed hope" should be entertained.

Dr. Dobyms was more frank in his assertion, and gave evidence of impatience with the restraint imposed by the presence of those of a contrary view when, in speaking on "The Crown Rights of Christ" he said "I am not talking Premillennialism to you now—it is the only kind to talk—but I am not talking that now."

Dr. Shafer, of whom it has been said that he "knows more about the Devil than the Devil knows about himself," painted the outlook in its most pessimistic coloring when he indicated his lack of faith in the present agencies God is using for the conversion of the world. Not satisfied with the delivery of an address on "Seven Major Signs of the Times," which occupied more than an hour of time in the delivery, Dr. Shafer spent $150.00 of a friend's money in the distribution of the address in pamphlet form.

That the Laymen's Movement in our church should be turned into a Premillennial propaganda is believed by many to be, if not a breach of courtesy, at least a great mistake. What effect the injection of this controverted question into the discussions of the convention will have on future conventions remains to be seen. The Atlanta convention by all tokens should have been one of the largest; but from the point of view of the attendance of men, and especially of ministers, it was a disappointment. Some are wondering if the slump in attendance was not due in large measure to the prominence given this side of a debatable question and the speakers who advocate it. Some have even expressed the belief that this may be the last of the great conventions. It should be if it is the purpose of the management to persist in the use of them for this propaganda.

The Optimism of Faith.

In sharp contrast with the pessimistic mood referred to above was the hopeful spirit which as a whole pervaded the meeting, such spirit being the result of the stress which was placed upon the church's opportunities, her resources and God's power to make use of them.

Dr. Mauze, in the opening address of the convention, referred to the church's enlarged opportunity for world service. He said: "The war has brought the church into great favor. At first she was criticised for not preventing the war; afterwards for not pushing it more vigorously; and finally the government turned to her, saying, 'Unless you co-operate with us, we cannot win.' The church is looked to today to save society, as it did for the Roman Empire 1500 years ago. The church now has more enthusiastic friends and fewer enemies than ever in her history."

The greatest of all the interdenominational missionary movements, according to Secretary Pratt, is the Interchurch World Movement. He declared that it has come into the kingdom for just such a time as this. He believes that if as a result of the movement we can get the facts in terms of men and money, the church can go out with that sort of appeal and get what she wants. Protestantism, 25,000,000 strong, said he, can accomplish anything.

Doughty, by a review of the past achievements of prayer, led the convention into a deep realization of the possibilities of service through the release by prayer of the church's powers and resources.

The Infinite, "And teach him to attain by shadowing forth the unattainable."—Timbuctoo.

Finally the Soul of the Church was led into the observatory where she sat down in great delight contemplating the glories of the heaven's infinite expanse.

This was especially so at the quiet hour, which followed the morning and afternoon sessions, during which the meditations of the convention were directed by Messrs. McQuilkin and Guille, Bible teachers of note and power. These men brought some wonderfully sweet and inspiring messages concerning the victorious life which is possible through the power of the Holy Spirit and the completely surrendered life. Such high ground did they occupy that their teachings smacked of the doctrine of a sinless perfectionism. The believer has but to make the complete surrender. The Holy Spirit acts in the capacity of a big twin brother to fight for the believer his battles in the flesh. There is no longer any struggle on the part of the believer. The indwelling Spirit conquers sin all unconscious to the subject.

Whatever, however, may have been just the import of these teachings which somewhat mystified the delegates, there was a wonderful uplift from them, and it was the pleasure of the convention to live for the time being in the infinitive mood, and to make resolves anew to seek in Christian experience to attain "the unattainable," which is indicated in the Saviour's own blessed words—Matt. 5:48.

Blytheville, Ark.

Results of the Every Member Canvass for Benevolences in Mecklenburg Presbytery.

The following report of the recent Systematic Beneficence campaign in Mecklenburg Presbytery has been greatly delayed by the slowness of many of the churches in reporting. It is hoped, though, that it will still be of interest:

Church.	Gave 1918	Quota 1920	Sub. 1920	Pct. Inc.
Albemarle	$ 496.00	$ 2,100.00	$ 1,400.00	182
Altan	30.00	260.00	100.00	233
Amity	174.00	690.00	550.00	216
Badin	0.00	200.00	100.00	*
Bethany	43.00	400.00	200.00	365
Bethlehem	62.00	340.00	50.00	Dec.
Beulah	31.00	420.00	50.00	61
Biscoe	195.00	410.00	300.00	53
Cameronian	7.00	430.00	75.00	971
*Charlotte First.	12,534.00	16,240.00	18,500.00	47
Charlotte Sec.	8,192.00	14,600.00	8,500.00	4
Gen. Steele Crk.	583.00	950.00	745.00	28
Cooks	168.00	690.00	450.00	167
Carmel	400.00	570.00	550.00	37
Ellerbe	85.00	460.00	125.00	47
Hopewell	555.00	1,970.00	500.00	Dec.
*Huntersville	1,182.00	2,075.00	2,075.00	75
Indian Trail.	25.00	300.00	50.00	100
Knox	506.00	3,000.00	1,890.00	273
Marks Creek.	160.00	580.00	175.00	9
Mt. Gilead.	146.00	480.00	175.00	19
McGee	71.00	1,025.00	303.00	326
Midland	0.00	75.00	25.00	*
*Monroe	7,834.00	7,440.00	7,440.00	Dec.
Morven	208.00	570.00	205.00	Dec.
Mt. Carmel.	48.00	520.00	75.00	56
Mulberry	324.00	1,020.00	359.00	10
Newell	82.00	725.00	200.00	144
N. Charlotte.	118.00	520.00	75.00	Dec.
Oakboro	0.00	170.00	73.00	*
Pageland	28.00	170.00	40.00	42
Paw Creek.	810.00	2,160.00	1,200.00	48
Pegram St.	242.00	1,660.00	150.00	Dec.
Pleasant Hill.	1,055.00	1,420.00	877.00	Dec.
Philadelphia	285.00	3,020.00	300.00	5
Pee Dee (Rich.)	255.00	360.00	75.00	Dec.
Rehoboth	22.00	320.00	25.00	16
Rockingham	169.00	975.00	297.00	75
Rock River.	16.00	90.00	15.00	Dec.
Robinson	92.00	810.00	144.00	56
Salem	6.00	460.00	50.00	733
Sharon	904.00	1,460.00	1,050.00	16
Siler	11.00	400.00	100.00	809
Steele Creek.	2,532.00	4,900.00	1,800.00	Dec.
St. Paul's.	304.00	2,680.00	400.00	31
Sugar Creek.	1,502.00	2,520.00	1,000.00	Dec.
Tenth Ave.	1,759.00	4,440.00	1,131.00	Dec.
Troy	140.00	325.00	100.00	Dec.
Unionville	6.00	190.00	25.00	316
Wadeville	0.00	210.00	60.00	*
Walkersville	69.00	590.00	200.00	189
Waxhaw	218.00	1,440.00	724.00	232

West Ave.	584.00	1,630.00	650.00	11
Westminster	1,776.00	3,770.00	1,850.00	4
Wilmore	73.00	400.00	114.00	56
55 Churches.	$47,117.00	$95,900.00	$57,692.00	22
30 Churches.	2,558.00	18,910.00	No Report
Total	$49,675.00	$114,810.00	$57,692.00	16

An * means that the apportionment was reached, this honor going to Charlotte First, Huntersville and Monroe.

Gifts for the year ending April 1, 1918, are taken as a basis for comparison in the columns above because they are the last published figures.

As Miscellaneous Benevolences occupy a very small place in Presbytery's apportionment, the very large gifts credited to the Charlotte First and Second Churches in that column of the Assembly Minutes are eliminated, so as to obtain a proper basis for comparison.

In justice to several of the churches it should be said that their gifts for the current year will largely exceed their advance subscription. It would greatly facilitate the work, however, if these churches could be induced to subscribe in advance something like what they will give in the course of the year.

It is probably safe to estimate that the total gifts during the current year will reach $65,000.00.

Some of the apportioned quotas seem abnormally large. They are the result, however, of a rigid and impartial mathematical calculation based on membership, pastor's salary and previous gifts to benevolences. Some churches report an inflated membership and pastor's salary and suffer the consequences in apportionments. Presbytery's instructions are that only what is contributed by the local church shall hereafter be reported in the Pastor's Salary column. Whatever is given to the pastor's support by the Home Mission Committee is reported in the Home Mission column and of course should not be enumerated twice. If churches will report to the chairman of the Systematic Beneficence Committee any extraordinary special gifts that can not be reckoned on regularly and any extraordinary conditions in the way of large debts and building funds, corresponding deductions will hereafter be made in the apportionments. These apportionments are in no sense a tax nor an assessment but simply an attempt to inform each church what sum would represent its proportionate part of the whole.

For N. C. Secretaries of Synodical, Presbyterial and Congregational Home Missions.

By Mrs. E. C. Murray.

Now that the July meeting is at hand, let us get ready for our S. P. and C. Home Mission program. With only two meetings a year for this cause, we should give especial attention to gathering up results attained since January, and making sure of reaching our due proportions by next fall in order to reporting the full amount pledged to our Albemarle fund, and also our fair share of gifts to the general fund. In sending amounts to Rev. A. W. Crawford, Greensboro, N. C., please designate clearly as to where you wish your funds credited. Let us remember that as citizens of a heavenly kingdom, every one of us has been called of God to enlist under the Captain of our salvation, either on the field, or in the "Service of Supplies."

Each of us is being tested as to our spiritual fitness. Can we pass the test of love and service to God and our fellow-man?

Many of us have tuberculosis of the soul, caused by the germs of sloth and indifference.

The spiritual cure is the same as the physical, rest, and proper food. Rest from our worldly cares and pleasures, from worry and fretfulness, and from all that would separate us from God.

Proper nourishment on the sincere milk of God's word and the strong meat of the Scriptures. This treatment will

News of the Week

Our forces on the border have been having trouble again with Villa. They have crossed into Mexico and in a running battle defeated the forces of Villa. Carranza, the Mexican President, who has always been pro-German, has given notice that he will not run for office again.

Eugene V. Debs, Socialist leader who was recently convicted and sentenced to ten years' imprisonment for violation of the espionage act, has arrived at the Federal prison at Atlanta. He was transferred there from Moundville, W. Va., where he had been held several weeks after losing his appeal in the United States Supreme Court.

The 60-foot pleasure launch, Mary Francis, with 53 persons, mostly children, on board turned turtle in the Warrior River, three miles above Tuscaloosa, Ala. Eighteen persons are known to have been drowned and fifteen others are missing.

Herman Mueller, majority Socialist leader and whip in the German National Assembly, in a speech recently delivered before the Socialist Convention, declared that the former Emperor William belongs to the pathological ward, and is not wanted in Germany. The speaker declared the former ruler was dangerous to the country, and blamed his verbosity for Germany's misfortunes.

At Columbia, S. C., last week some of the striking employees of the telephone and telegraph lines cut 31 long distance telephone wires and 44 Western Union wires.

Dr. H. W. Chase, chairman of the faculty of the University since the death of Dr. N. H. Stacy, was elected president of the University of North Carolina, at Chapel Hill, to succeed the late Dr. E. K. Graham. Dr. Chase is 38 years of age, a native of Massachusetts and has been a member of the faculty of the University of North Carolina for ten years.

President Wilson, facing a divided Senate, has decided to carry his fight for ratification of the League of Nations covenant directly to the people in a countrywide speaking tour. He expects to begin the trip as soon as he returns from Paris. Republican Senators propose to follow him and present the opposition side to the people also.

Information has been received from Brussels that not only Cardinal Mercier, but the King and Queen of the Belgians will visit America this Fall.

enable us to "put on the whole armour of God" and to wield "the sword of the Spirit while being protected by the shield of faith.

With our State but little more than half Christian, can we claim that we have done our bit? Have those of us who are officers stirred up our societies in regard to this cause, and are we keeping them alive as to their part of this great foundation work?

Do we each one of us realize and feel our responsibility? "Not everyone that saith unto Me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the Kingdom of Heaven; but he that doeth the will of My Father which is in heaven." Get the latest leaflet on S. P. and C. H. M. from your Presbyterial Secretary, and have the leader ask the questions on the Synod's work.

Have some one give facts from your Presbytery's field of Home Missions, and give each member in your Auxiliary one county in the Presbytery to be responsible for as regards reporting special work done and to be done in that county. Let each one lead in prayer for her particular field and mission workers, and have prayers for our superintendents and evangelists.

With devotional exercises and suitable music, etc., you

Heavy rains in Texas are reported. The crops are in danger, especially the cotton. Houston, Texas, reports a downfall of 7.5 inches from Saturday, 7 p. m., to Monday, 8:45 a. m., while Galveston reports in less than three days, 9.55 inches.

In session at Atlantic City the American Federation of Labor voted against the proposed general strike in behalf of Tom Mooney.

According to report of Third Assistant Postmaster General the Government has averaged a profit of $1,000,000 on parcel post insurance. The average time to settle a claim is 28.05 days.

It is reported from Washington that Prof. J. M. McConnell, of Davidson College, N. C., will be appointed census supervisor of the ninth district. He is well equipped for the work.

The daylight saving law which we have enjoyed as a time saver has been repealed and with the last Saturday of October it will cease.

The North Carolina Merchants' Association, in session at Wrightsville Beach, N. C., gave full endorsement of President Wilson's efforts to work out a world peace.

The Virginia Bankers' Association has adopted a resolution endorsing the League of Nations and calling on Virginia Representatives in Congress to support it to the last, at its annual three-day convention which opened at Old Point Comfort, Va., June 19.

Mr. D. E. Rhyne, of Lincolnton, N. C., has given $2,500 to Mount Pleasant Institute, of this State, at which he was a pupil in his early life.

The business men of Richmond, Va., have formed a million dollar housing plant. At the initial meeting in Chamber of Commerce $100,000 was subscribed by a score of men.

The Italian Chamber of Deputies, having refused a vote of confidence, the Cabinet has resigned.

The American Federation of Labor has also endorsed the League of Nations.

should have an instructive and inspirational meeting, and we will reach our full amount of $500 for the Albemarle fund if every Auxiliary will get down to this work in earnest.

Finish Your Task.

It's easy enough to begin a task,
But to finish it—that's the thing:
The completed work holds the honey sweet
While the undone yields a sting.
Oh, the feet will lag and the heart grow faint
Ofttimes ere the stint is done;
But what joy is yours, as you rest at last,
With the hard-fought battle won!
Then here's to the lad who will see it through,
Whatever the task may be.
For my heart goes out to the boy of pluck;
But no half-done boy for me.

—Florence Jones Hadley.

Christian Endeavor

By Rev. S. H. Hay.

M., June 30—God's Attitude Toward Enemies: Matt. 5:43-48.

T., July 1—Jesus' Instruction: Luke 6:27-36.

W., July 2—Serve With Kindness: Exod. 23:4-5.

T., July 3—Pray for Enemies: Luke 23:34; Acts 7:60.

F., July 4—The Correct Attitude: 2 Tim. 2:23-26.

S., July 5—Enemies of Righteousness: Acts 13:6-12.

* * *

Topic for Sunday, July 6—Our Relation to Others—Toward Our Enemies. Rom. 12:17-21.

* * *

Our Bible lesson tells us to make every effort to have no enemies. "If it be possible, as much as lieth in you, be at peace with all men." If there is to be enmity, let the other party be wholly responsible, and ourselves blameless. A great judge once said that in every quarrel he ever knew, both sides were at fault. Christians simply must see to it that their acts and attitude do not form a part of the cause of enmity. And they must allow the Bible, not their own self-justifying views, to settle the question as to what constitutes blamelessness.

* * *

The Christian has not done his full part until he has rendered good for evil. If thine enemy hunger, feed him; if he thirst, give him drink: for in so doing, thou shalt heap coals of fire upon his head. And this rendering of good for evil must not be limited to some past period or occasion; it must be continued as long as the evil continues. If we grow weary of rendering good for evil, and cease, then if enmity continues we are in part to blame. We have not left the fault all with the other man, and we have not done all that lieth in us to be at peace with him who insists on being our enemy. The truth is, when we successfully force the other party to continue to be wholly responsible for an enmity, he refuses, and the enmity dies.

* * *

The Christian must leave to God the infliction of punishment upon an enemy. Our lesson tells us we must not avenge ourselves. Vengeance belongs to God. Sin is against Him, rather than against us; and it is His right to inflict the penalty. When we take on ourselves the duty of inflicting vengeance we blasphemously assume the rights of God. If two men were in court contending at the bar, what would you think if one of them should push the judge from his seat and proceed to pass sentence and begin to carry it out? He would be put in prison at once for contempt of court. And in the same way, God is offended when we attempt to take His place and punish sin. Vengeance belongs to God alone.

* * *

Jesus says we must pray for and love our enemies. Some think that Jesus commanded an impossible thing when He said this about loving them. They say, We cannot make ourselves love what we more naturally hate. But Jesus never called for that which is impossible. To love an enemy means two things. First, it means, Treat him with kindness. Second, it means, Have affection for him. Now, if we will do the first—and we surely can—we shall find that the second will always follow. When we supply the kind treatment, the Spirit gives rise to affection in our hearts.

* * *

How did Jesus treat His enemies? Luke 23:34.

How did Stephen follow Christ's example? Acts 7:60.

What could Christ have done to His enemies if He had wished? Matt. 26:53.

He leadeth me into the still waters of the spiritual joys of life, the things of the divine love that come to us to refresh life and to transfigure it with a tinge and glow of heaven.—Oliver Huckel.

The Prayer Meeting

TOPIC FOR WEEK BEGINNING JUNE 29:
SYNODICAL HOME MISSIONS—Romans 1:8-15.

By Rev. C. D. Waller.

From his boyhood it had been one of his dreams to see Rome. The Eternal City has for many centuries had a strange fascination for all cultivated men. Now, a new interest was drawing Paul to the banks of the Tiber. She was not only the mistress of the world, a city of palaces, and the home of talent, and profligacy, and power, but she held in her bosom a company of brethren. And what an opportunity for casting out the net of the gospel. But

(Continued on page 12)

Witnessing Christians.

By Rev. William T. McElroy.

There are many texts in the Bible which show that it is supreme duty of every follower of Christ to witness for Him. Such texts we find in John 15:26 and 27: "But when the Comforter is come, whom I will send unto you from the Father, even the Spirit of truth, which proceedeth from the Father, He shall bear witness of Me; and ye also bear witness, because ye have been with Me from the beginning." Origin (Acts 1:8): "But ye shall receive power, when the Holy Spirit is come upon you; and ye shall be My witnesses both in Jerusalem, and in all Judea and Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth."

Man's great need of a Saviour, God's work of redeeming love, and our responsibility as bearers of the Gospel light to a sin-darkened world all point to the fact that unless a Christian witnesses for Christ he is falling short of the fulfillment of God's plan for his life. It is the business of the Christian to spread the Gospel—the "good news"—of salvation through Christ to all the world.

How May We Witness?

1. By Living Christ-Like Lives—"Let your light shine before men; that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father who is in Heaven."

2. By Inviting Others to the Services of God's House—"I was glad when they said unto me, Let us go into the house of the Lord." Men are more pleased to receive such an invitation than they are usually believed to be.

3. By Coming to the Services Ourselves—"Not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is; but exhorting one another."

4. By Striving to Win Individuals to a Saving Knowledge of Christ—"He brought him to Jesus."

5. By Teaching in the Sunday School—"Train up a child in the way he should go; and when he is old, he will not depart from it."

6. By Engaging In Any Other Form of Service to Which We May be Called or For Which We May be Suited—"He that had received five talents came and brought other five talents, saying, Lord, Thou deliveredst unto me five talents; behold, I have gained beside them five talents more. His lord said unto him, Well done, good and faithful servant; thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things; enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

7. By Giving Our Money for the Spreading of the Gospel—"Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in Mine house, and prove Me now herewith, saith the Lord, if I will not open you the windows of Heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it."

8. By Praying Always for the Coming of the Kingdom.—"After this manner pray ye . . . Thy Kingdom come."

Louisville, Ky.

Sunday School

By Rev. H. G. Hill, D.D.

REVIEW.

From Matt. 6:24-34 to I Cor. 13:1-13.

I. Matt. 6:24-34—April 6, 1919—God Our Heavenly Father—Golden Text: Matt. 6-9, "Our Father Which Art in Heaven, Hallowed Be Thy Name." Time: A. D. 28. Place: Hattin. Persons: Christ Disciples. Topics: (1) Serving God and Mammon; (2) Anxiety About Temporal Wants; (3) Helps for Avoiding Anxiety; (4) The Christian's Chief Concern.

II. John 11:35-51—April 13, 1919—Christ Our Saviour—Golden Text: Jno. 3:16, "For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him, shall not perish but have everlasting life." Time: A. D. 27. Place: By Jordan. Persons: Jesus, John Baptist, Andrew, Peter, Philip. Topics: (1) John's Testimony to Jesus; (2) Bringing Disciples to Christ; (3) The Effects of Coming to Christ; (4) Whoso Come His Growing Proof.

III. Matt. 28:1-10—April 20, 1919—Our Risen Lord—Golden Text: Matt. 28-6, "He is Risen as He said." Time: April 9, A. D. 30. Place: Jerusalem. Persons: Christ, Angels, Disciples. Topics: (1) The Angels at the Resurrection; (2) The Angel's Words to the Women; (3) The Effects of His Word; (4) Jesus Met Them.

IV. Acts 2:1-8, 14-18—April 27, 1919—The Holy Spirit Our Helper—Golden Text—Luke 11-13, "If ye then being evil know how to give good gifts unto your children, how much more shall your Heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to them that ask Him?" Time: A. D. 30. Place: Upper Room, Jerusalem. Persons: Apostles, Disciples, Multitudes. Topics: (1) The Baptism of the Spirit; (2) The Assembly Gathered; (3) The Effects Produced; (4) Peter's Sermon.

V. Gen. 1:26-28, 2-7-8—May 4, 1919—"Man Made in the Image of God"—Golden Text: Gen. 1-27, "God created man in His own Image." Time: Unknown. Place: Garden of Eden. Persons: Adam, Eve, Jehovah. Topics: (1) Man's Creation and Dominion; (2) God's Mode of Creating Man; (3) Man's Home in Eden; (4) Man's Recreation.

VI. Gen. 3:1-13—May 11, 1919—Sin and Its Consequences—Golden Text: Rom. 6-23, "For the wages of sin is death but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ Our Lord." Time: Unknown. Place: Eden. Persons: Jehovah, Satan, Adam, Eve. Topics: (1) Satan's Temptations; (2) Eve's Disobedience; (3) The Effects of Transgression; (4) Man's Responsibility to God.

VII. Eph. 2:4-10; Titus 2:11-14—May 18, 1919—The Grace of God—Golden Text: Acts 15-11, "But we believe that through the grace of Our Lord Jesus Christ we shall be saved even as they." Time: A. D. 62-65. Places: Ephesus, Crete. Persons: Paul, Ephesians. Topics: (1) God's Mercy Revealed; (2) Salvation by Grace; (3) The Life Grace Prompts; (4) The Goal Grace Secures.

VIII. Jonah 3:1-10—May 25, 1919—Repentance—Golden Text: Mark 1-15, "Repent ye and Believe the Gospel." Time: About 862 Before Christ. Place: Nineveh. Persons: Jehovah, Jonah, Ninevites. Topics: (1) Jonah's Mission; (3) Jonah's Message; (3) Ninevites Repentance; (4) God's Mercy.

IX. Heb. 11:1-10, 12-1—June 1, 1919—Faith: What It Is and What It Does—Golden Text: John 14-1, "Ye believe in God, believe also in Me." Time: Unknown. Place: Unknown. Persons: Paul, Hebrews, Enoch, Abel, Noah, Abram. Topics: (1) Faith Defined; (2) Abel's Faith; (3) Enoch's Faith; (4) Abram's Faith.

X. Matt. 7:16-29—June 8, 1919—Obedience—Golden Text: John 15-14, "Ye are My friends if ye do whatsoever I command you." Time, A.D. 28. Place: Horns of Hattin: Persons: Christ, Disciples. Topics: (1) The Tree is Known by Its Fruits; (2) Profession Without Obedience; (3) Rock and Sand Building; (4) Christ's Authoritative Teachings.

VI. Luke 18:1-5, 9-15—June 15, 1919—Prayer—Golden Text: Phil. 4-6, Be careful for nothing; but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God." Time: A. D. 30. Place: On the Way to Jerusalem. Persons: Christ, Disciples, Pharisees, Publicans. Topics: (1) Importunate Prayer; (3) The Publican's Prayer; (4) The Results of Prayer.

XII. I Cor. 13:1-13—June 22, 1919—Love—Golden Text: "And now abideth Faith, Hope, Love: these three, but the greatest of these is love." Time: A. D. 57. Place: Ephesus. Persons: Paul, Corinthians. Topics: (1) Love Essential to Piety; (2) Love's Fruits; (3) Love Abiding; (4) Love's Supreme Excellence.

Prayer Meeting.

(Continued from page 11)

hitherto Paul has not been able to reach Italy: and he now is writing where speech is impossible. He blesses them in the Name of his Master, and he blesses God for them. His heart is full of love for them, and his great heart is poured out in doctrine and precept that will live forever. Everywhere he went men were talking of the church in Rome, and in every city he met "strangers from Rome" with news from the brethren, their simple faith in Christ, and their loving fidelity to Him. Then follows Paul's solemn assurance to the Romans of his constant prayers for them. In Col. II:1 he calls his intercessions "a great wrestling." So in our Home Mission work we ought not to be satisfied with giving our money with a casual knowledge of the Synod's home mission fields, but it is especially incumbent upon us to wrestle with God in prayer for the men and women and children of the Synod and for those who labor for them.

One thing that Paul prayed for, viz., that God would open the way for him to visit Rome, may not be possible for many of us as pertaining to the mission fields of the Synod; but certainly where we can find it possible we ought to visit these fields, and show by our presence and by the word of exhortation and fraternal greetings our deep interest. There was a kind of nostalgia at Paul's heart for these unseen brethren, and he earnestly desired to pour himself out in labor and gifts of grace for them. If we felt thus, or in such fashion for our Synod's Home Mission fields, what a rich blessing would come in consequence.

Then follows a characteristic touch: He would not have them ignorant that the main purpose of his heart in visiting them was fruit. His visits to other cities had been fruitful, unless Athens was an exception; and he yearned to serve fruitfully in Rome. He desired for them a fuller life in Christ, and he knew that that was the most blessed thing that could come into their lives. Nay, he owes this to the Romans. He was in debt to all men. This was the gracious obsession that went away with him, whether he was among Greeks or Barbarians, Jews or Gentiles, bond or freemen. Why should we not feel the same way about our mission fields? The debt we owe to Christ we must pay to these for whom He died. This debt can never be liquidated. It grows with our apprehension of our Saviour's gracious and atoning love. And Paul felt that the preaching was the best way to keep on praying. Suppose that our ministers and elders and our people felt this great obligation. How our mission work would flourish. How our ministers would seek occasions of visiting and preaching in the mission fields, and how glad would be the hearts of the people. And how we would thus honor the Saviour.

Devotional

GOD CARES FOR EACH LIFE.

Happy is the man who feels that God cares for him, that he journeys forward under divine convoy, that his Father is regent of universal wisdom, and represents the whole commonwealth of love, who is all nature and who commands all nature to serve his child. Such a man is weaponed against every enemy, and is invincible. He dwells in the very realm of restfulness. He abides far above all fear, as eagles above the arrow's flight. He who ever carries with him this sense of God's loving providence is fitted to pass through fire, through flood, through all the thunder of life's battle. He has in himself the pledge of victory in the midst of things unvictorious, conquers midst things low, things hard, things strife-ful. God cares for you—then you cannot be too rich, for riches make you the almoner of divine bounty; and you cannot be too poor, for the whole realm of life is thine. God cares for you—then you cannot live too long, and you cannot die too soon, for heaven ever lies all about you. God cares for man—then from every storm there is a harbor in the eternal heart and a place of refuge within the everlasting arms. God cares for you—therefore his providence, smiting the rock in the desert, shall bring forth living water. God cares for you—therefore in thy wild and stormy night he shall come to thee, walking upon the wave, to bid thy storm be still. God cares for thee—therefore thou shalt see his angels sitting at the door of the sepulchre digged in thy life garden. Because he cares for you, the whole kingdom of love yearns and waits for your home-coming. Therefore, every day reach up and shake down the bough of infinite bounty and fruitfulness. Let every thought and feeling sing as an Aeolian harp gives music to every wandering wind. Put away care and anxiety, and cast out all fevered fears. Joy and song betoken royal kinship. He who bears commission from royalty wears not sackcloth unless he has fallen among robbers. The insignia of royal commission are royal apparel, kingly equipment, abundant treasure. Because thou art the child of providence, thou shouldst be the child of hope and trust. God careth for you—therefore live a trust-ful, tranquil, God-centered life.—Selected.

"It is a good thing to give thanks to the Lord." Then why do we not do more of it? Probably we would have to think awhile before we could answer that question. And why is it such a good thing? It might take a philosopher to really answer that question, but any ordinary individual can at least glimpse an answer.

It is a good thing because it is a seemly thing and no man can afford to go through life neglecting to do that which an enlightened intelligence and a good heart would unhesitatingly tell him he ought to do. It is a good thing because the one and only way that a man may hope to really enjoy the gifts and blessings and opportunities of his life is to have a spirit that is appreciative of and thankful for them.

Men are miserable and grasping and dissatisfied, not because they have not enough to make life comfortable and happy, but because in their eagerness to grasp for more they fail to rightly appreciate and enjoy what they have. A proper spirit of appreciation would turn thousands of miserable lives into happy ones.—Christian Guardian.

Ye who weep, come to this God,
For acquainted is He with grief;
Ye who suffer, come to Him,
For rest can He give and relief;
Ye who tremble, come to Him,
For His smile from fear secures;
Ye who pass, oh come to Him!
For eternally He endures.

—Victor Hugo.

Home Circle

TRAINING LITTLE CHILDREN.

The child is a primitive little being. His desires are near the surface, and primarily very selfish. He wants all things for his own. He must also be first in everything, and, if he is the biggest force in the play group, what more natural than that he should try to make everything conform to his wishes? But this child, if once actuated by the right, becomes the most generous, the most considerate and the gentlest of little fellows. A few words, a firm but kind insistence on your part, and he knows the pleasure of giving up for others.

All children have their difficulties with one another, and sometimes, if one judges by the noise in the backyard, they are very big ones.

A moment's wait will usually show whether it is wise to run and help the children readjust their little world. Do this only when necessary. Hold your breath behind the door, and see if happily they are not righting the situation themselves. Even the physical hurts need much less sympathy than the average mother is apt to bestow. Would we coddle our children into becoming physical cowards? From earliest babyhood begin to turn their attention, when hurt, to some new interest, and observe how quickly the pain is forgotten.

A strong conviction has grown out of the passing years of my motherhood that the greatest service a mother can do her child is to teach him self-reliance. If you begin with the baby, the habit forms easily, and before you know it self-reliance has really become a habit with him. Hold yourself free from fear as he tries out his growing powers. Watch alertly, but wait. Let him try the reach that may topple him over, but secures for him the bright ball. Let him make all the moves he wants to, and, if necessary, be there to catch him as he falls. Hesitate long before you turn a child deliberately away from the thing he has set his heart on doing. Strong initiative is too glorious a characteristic to nip in the bud. Try for one day to stop and think before you deprive your child of the pleasure of simple achievement.

There are countless little tasks a child can do for himself to help mother. Each mother will think of many of these in the course of a day. Remember that in the child's world of new impressions the most trite acts to us are, to him, the most delightful of plays.

Play is the vital employment of childhood. The art of playing alone, being friends with himself, is a foundation for self-reliance in greater things later in life. A child can not be more than contented. So hesitate, dear mother, to interfere when your child is quietly employing himself in his own chosen way, even if it is only baby with his toes. Let the spell last as long as it will; the next will last longer. Soon your child of three will play hours by himself. The busy mother often needs this respite.

SELF-JUDGMENT.

The joy of doing one's duty may be quiet and without demonstration, but there is no finer experience in all life. On the other hand, nothing spoils the genial currents of life so quickly as the consciousness that one is a shirker. However much he may try to persuade the world that he is a great worker, he can not quiet the discontent in his own soul. A man can stand a great deal of criticism in the world if he knows deep down in his own heart, that he is true.—Ex.

Adaptation is the one secret of genuine enjoyment of human intercourse. In the world we scarcely seek it, and if we do we seldom find it, but in the other world it is the law of life.—Parsons.

Presbyterian Standard

PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY AT CHARLOTTE, N. C.
ESTABLISHED JANUARY 1, 1858.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, $2.50 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE.
REV. W. L. BOGGS, Circulation Manager.

CONTENTS OF THIS ISSUE

EDITORIAL—
Racing to Catch Up.....	PAGE. 2
Mistakes of Preachers	2
Our Mountain Schools	3
Stones Instead of Bread.....	3
Licensing the Sale of Liquor.....	3
CONTRIBUTED—
“A Lordly Pleasure House”—By Rev. J. Walter Cobb	4-8
The Value of Our Church Papers—By Rev. J. M. Wells, D.D.	5
Woman's Auxiliary Convention—By Miss Carrie Lee Campbell	6
My Gifts—By Chas. M. Sheldon.....	6
Rev. Geo. W. Butler, D.D.—By Rev. S. H. Chester, D.D.	7
Preparatory Service—By Dr. Geo. L. Petrie....	7
Results of the Every Member Canvass for Benevolences in Mecklenburg Presbytery.....	9
For N. C. Secretaries of Synodical, Presbyterian and Congregational Home Missions—By Mrs. E. C. Murray	9-10
Finish Your Task—By Florence Jones Hadley..	10
Witnessing Christians—By Rev. Wm. T. McElroy	11
DEPARTMENTS—
News of the Week	10
Christian Endeavor—By Rev. S. H. Hay	11
Prayer Meeting—By Rev. C. D. Waller	11
Sunday School—By Rev. H. G. Hill, D.D.	12
Home Circle and Devotional	13
Church News, Etc.	14-19

ANNOUNCEMENT.

 The label on the paper gives the date to which subscription is paid.

When change of address is desired, give both the old and the new address.

When the date of the label is behind the date of this issue of the paper the label is a reminder that the subscription price is past due. When the date of the label is in advance of the date of this issue it is a receipt for the last subscription paid.

Church News

Collections for June are for Home Missions. Treasurer, A. N. Sharp, 1522 Hurt Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

The collections for June in the North Carolina Synod are for Synodical Home Missions, as ordered by the Synod. The Synod further orders that one good, well-announced collection be taken in each Sunday School for this work, in June. Treasurer: Rev. A. W. Crawford, Greensboro.

ARMENIAN RELIEF.

Received for this cause:

“From a Friend”	$ 2.00
R. J. Murphy	10.00
H. M. Bailey	1.00

SUTSIEN, CHINA, NEWS.

Our missionaries need our prayers. Recent letters tell of typhoid fever in the family of Dr. J. W. Bradley, John W., Jr., and Julia being down with pretty severe cases, it seemed. They had been to Shanghai a week or two before with their parents, who went on necessary business. It was thought they got the infection probably at a hotel where the drinking water was only filtered, not boiled. Last winter there were weeks together when most missionary families were troubled with what we in America called the “Flu.” Strangely there the children were most severely affected, while in America it was the grown people. In Dr. Bradley's home the little baby (now seven or eight months old) was most dangerously attacked. Dr. Bradley himself, being in the room with him, happened to look around and saw him blue in the face with suffocation, though he had not made enough outcry to attract the attention of the doctor's keen ear. It took more than half an hour's hard work by the skilled physician and surgeon to bring him to approximate safety. For days they did not dare leave him unwatched day or night.

Doubtless it was in just such a spell that Baby Dick Vinson, in Haichow, was taken. Though the nurse and father were within hearing of any cry, no sound was heard from him and when found he was past recovery, though every possible effort was made. He had been suffering from cold for some days but seemed much better, that morning—indeed practically well—and after being bathed and fed was put into his crib for his customary midday nap of two or three hours. One can only imagine the shock to the parents and nurse too who loved him devotedly of finding him dead with milk and mucus around his mouth.

Recent news of the death of Mrs. Bell and Mr. Crane and the item in this week's paper announcing Rev. A. D. Rice's death at Haichow with such news as this of fever in Sutsien urge all to remember our missionaries in incessant prayer. For they live in foreign lands in the midst of most unsanitary and dangerous conditions—risking their own lives and those of their loved ones with whole-hearted devotion for the advancement of the cause of our Master.

PERSONAL.

At its recent commencement Erskine College, Due West, S. C., conferred the following honorary degrees: On Rev. S. L. Morris, D.D., the degree of LL.D., and on Rev. W. T. Matthews, of Commerce, Texas, the degree of Doctor of Divinity.

Rev. T. E. Simpson, formerly pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Hendersonville, N. C., which he resigned fifteen months ago to serve in the army through the American Red Cross, and who has been connected with the Home Service Office, of the Potomac Division of the Red Cross in Washington, D. C., will resign from this work the first of July and will be ready to take up pastoral work again. Mr. Simpson may be addressed at Society Hill, S. C. He is ready to serve where the Lord may call.

NORTH CAROLINA.

Graham—During Dr. A. R. Shaw's supplyship at Graham, there were ten additions to the Presbyterian Church on profession of faith.

Mooreville—Rev. Dr. R. C. Reed, of Columbia Seminary, also the associate editor of the Standard, preached in Mooreville last Sunday. He will continue the services through the week.

Raeford—This church was represented by six men and two women at the Laymen's Convention in Atlanta last week. The men were very agreeably surprised by winning the banner offered for the largest delegation of men from any church outside of the State of Georgia.

At our “Echo Service” Sunday, Mr. E. S. Smith present-

(Continued on Page 16)

One Million Dollars for Christian Education IN THE SYNOD OF NORTH CAROLINA WITHIN THE NEXT 12 MONTHS

Schools and Colleges Have Come to a UNANIMOUS AGREEMENT

ALL of them in a fine spirit of give and take have adjusted all differences, and have united in a whole-hearted effort, for the first time in the history of this great Synod, to put our Educational Institutions on their feet. To every one who has been close to these negotiations there is every evidence that Providence has led the way. A better spirit of co-operation could not be wished for than is displayed by all the schools. Every one of them made concessions that made the final plan possible. A year ago no one would have ventured to predict such unanimity of action.

DR. McCLURE, of Wilmington, after the plan was adopted unanimously, said: "We ought to congratulate ourselves at the outcome."

DR. HENDERLITE, of Gastonia, says: "A systematic, whole-hearted, thorough-going, every-church canvass of the entire Synod for the purpose of helping our entire educational system in North Carolina, without distinction and partisany and with an adequate goal that, reached, will put the schools in the way of getting and staying on their feet, so that the men of the Church can feel that something worth while—substantial and permanent—is being done, making an appeal to their business judgment and to their pride in their church's educational standing—any such policy will have my heartiest approval and endorsement."

A DULY ELECTED REPRESENTATIVE FROM EACH SCHOOL including Union Seminary and all the preparatory schools met in Greensboro Friday, June 13th, and organized for work

Mr. A. M. Scales is the permanent chairman; Dr. C. M. Richards the Secretary, and Mr. R. G. Vaughn, president of the American Exchange National Bank, of Greensboro, has consented to act as treasurer of the Million Dollar Fund

Headquarters will be in room 302 Southern Life Building, of Greensboro, N. C., and the Campaign will begin July first

Now let everybody forget the things that are behind and press forward to the things that are before. We can put our institutions where they ought to be, and can give the entire Church a demonstration of what real co-operation on a big scale can do for

C H R I S T I A N E D U C A T I O N

Watch This Page Every Week

Church News.

(Continued from Page 14)

ed the banner and he and Mr. J. E. Conoly made unusually interesting talks on the convention.

The most encouraging feature of our work here during the last few years has been the increasing interest of our men in the work of the Kingdom.

Mallard Creek—On last Sabbath afternoon Rev. C. C. Anderson, pastor of West Avenue Church, Charlotte, preached most acceptably for the Mallard Creek congregation. This church has been without a pastor since the resignation of Rev. J. E. Wool, to accept a call to Pegram Street Church. Its membership is composed of as loyal and substantial folk as one finds in any community.

Charlotte—Tenth Avenue—At the morning service last Sabbath reports were made on the recent laymen's meeting in Atlanta by Messrs. Walter L. Wallis, E. G. Cochran and Walter Mitchell, the delegates who had attended from the congregation. That they had brought home with them much of real good from this great convention was evidenced by the practical talks made.

Pegram Street, Charlotte—The Rev. John E. Wool was installed pastor of Pegram Street Church, Charlotte, N. C., on Sabbath evening, June 22, by a commission of Mecklenburg Presbytery. The Rev. W. R. McCalla, of Sugar Creek Church, presided, and charged the pastor. The sermon was preached by the Rev. C. H. Little, of Sharon Church, and the charge to the people was delivered by the Rev. C. G. Lynch, of St. Paul's Church, Charlotte.

Charlotte, Second Church—The pastor, Dr. McGeachy, is being greeted at recent prayer meeting services with such large congregations as to explode the theory that hot weather and a good church attendance are incompatible. The subjects of his Wednesday night talks are the Marys of the Bible and treated in Dr. McGeachy's delightful style are proving both helpful and entertaining. Beginning next Sabbath evening he will preach a series of two sermons at the evening service that are specially pertinent to these troublous times, the subjects being "Armageddon" and "The Overdue Christ."

Wilmington, Wrightsville Beach—Rev. J. Oscar Mann preached an excellent sermon at the Beach Chapel on last Sunday night to a small congregation.

The most tremendous indictment of indifference and lack of consecration of the Christian people who go to Wrightsville Beach that could be made, they make themselves by their failure to attend the worship at the Beach Chapel on Sunday evening.

When God gives them the means and opportunity of enjoying the cool breezes and glorious air of the beach while others are suffering in the heat at home, they show their appreciation by neglecting His day and His worship. A religion that does not bear transplanting to the beach is a very poor sort.—First Church Bulletin.

An Earnest Appeal to the Pastors and Sessions of Concord Presbytery—Dear Brethren: An evangelistic campaign, including nearly all the churches of Concord Presbytery, has been arranged for the present ecclesiastical year. These meetings will be in progress during the next five or six months especially, and it is sincerely hoped that great results will follow them. To this end you are earnestly requested to remember this campaign in your daily prayers. It is possible that this campaign will result in the greatest revival that ever came to the churches of Concord Presbytery, a blessing greatly to be desired and sought. There are indications that many of our churches are ready and waiting for such a visitation of God's Spirit, in convicting and converting power, as they have never experienced before. Let us all adopt Carey's motto: "Ask great things of God and expect great things from God." Yours in His Name,

J. M. Clark,
Superintendent and Evangelist.

Red Springs—The summer school for the teachers of Robeson and the four adjoining counties closes its four weeks' term this week. It has been a very successful session and the fine body of teachers who have been in attendance have derived much benefit from the instruction given in the several departments.

The instructors included T. E. Cochran, professor of Education at Wake Forest College; Mrs. Faye Craig, of Marion, N. C.; Miss Ethel Terrell, of the Asheville city schools; Mrs. W. C. Young, of Spruce Pine, N. C.; Rev. C. G. Vardell, D.D., and Miss Anna Spencer Daniel, of the Flora Macdonald faculty.

Lenoir—Rev. A. A. McLean, pastor. Rev. Wm. Black, general evangelist for the Synod, closed a meeting in this church Sunday night, June 15th, and writes that they were greatly blessed in this meeting, and that their new pastor, Rev. A. A. McLean, has gotten a good grip on the work here and is much beloved by his people. The attendance from the very first was good, and the church seemed greatly revived. There were eighty professions, forty of which expressed a preference for the Presbyterian Church, and of these 36 joined the Presbyterian Church before the meeting closed. Three persons promised to establish family worship and some 250 to read the Bible and pray daily. The collection for Synod's Home Mission work was $255.25.

A. W. Crawford.

Fayetteville Presbytery Sunday Institutes—Teams and schedule of institutes in Moore County S. S. Drive: Team No. 1, Rev. V. R. Gaston, St. of Efficiency, Teacher Training; Mr. W. M. Currie, Organized Class, Adult and Secondary. Team No. 2, Rev. M. D. McNeill, S. S. Ex. and Home Missions; Prof. A. B. Cameron, Workers Conference; Team No. 3, Rev. A. G. Bridgman, St. of Efficiency, Organized Class, etc.; Prof. W. C. McColl, Teach Training. Team No. 4, Rev. R. S. Arrowood, S. S. Ex. and Home Missions; Mr. W. H. McNeill, Teacher Training. Team No. 5, Rev. W. L. Wilson, S. S. Ex. and Home Missions; Mr. J. W. Graham, Workers Conference. Team No. 6, Rev. J. K. Roberts, St. of Efficiency and Organized Class, etc.; Mr. J. R. McQueen, Workers Conference.

Schedule for Sunday, July 6, 1919: Vass, Team No. 1, a. m., Team No. 5, p. m.; Cameron, a. m., Team No. 5; p. m., Team No. 1; Eureka, a. m., Team No. 2, p. m., Team No. 3, Carthage, a. m., Team No. 3, p. m., Team No. 2; Bethesda, a. m., Team No. 4, p. m., Team No. 6; Jackson Springs, a. m., Team No. 6, p. m., Team No. 4.

Monday, July 7, 1919: Manly, a. m., Team No. 5, p. m., Team No. 4; Union, a. m., Team No. 4, p. m., Team No. 5; West End, a. m., Team No. 1, p. m., Team No. 3; Culdee, a. m., Team No. 3, p. m., Team No. 1; Bensalem, a. m., Team No. 2, p. m., Team No. 6; Elise, a. m., Team No. 6, p. m., Team No. 2.

J. K. Roberts, Ch.

North Carolina Christian Endeavor Convention—With more than 500 registered delegates in attendance and over 1,000 present in the closing session, the North Carolina Christian Endeavor Union held the largest state convention in its history in Burlington-Graham, June 6-8. State President E. P. Barker and his committee had planned a well rounded program crowded full of good things. The Endeavorers of the two entertaining cities handled the convention most beautifully, every delegate was cared for in the homes and hotels as the guests of the Endeavorers and friends. On Saturday a State Junior Convention, under the direction of Mrs. Lewis McFarland was a great success. The splendid Junior Rally Sunday afternoon was carried out by the children themselves. The report of the state secretary showed 54 new societies organized during the year, 35 Y. P. S. C. E., 15 Junior and four intermediate, there are now 338 societies in the state with 13,520 members. North Carolina passed her goal of $1,500 for denominational missions for the year in eight months time, and set its goal for $2,500 for next year. It was unanimously voted that the committee be continued beyond the five year period which ends at the New Orleans Convention next year, and that Secretary Lehmann be asked to continue his work as Southern States Secretary and editor of the "Dixie Endeavorer." The state banner for the best all-round work was awarded to the Friends Society, of High Point; second best, to the Presbyterian Society, of Graham. The state junior banner was awarded to the First Presbyterian Society, of Wilmington, which has held it for several years. The convention next year will meet June 11-13 at Greensboro. J. Vincent Knight, of Greensboro, was elected president.

Rocky Mount—Two splendid meetings have been held recently in the Home Mission field around this city by Rev. A. J. Crane and Rev. H. N. McDiarmid. At Bethlehem, three miles from the city, services were conducted for ten days, which resulted in reviving the spiritual life of the church, a fact testified to by the increased activities of the Christian people of the community. Two adult members were received on confession, one of these a head of a large family, he being the first church member in the family.

The other meeting was conducted for two weeks for Second church organization in the city. Here there is no church building and the meeting was held upstairs in a hall that is used for general purposes, such as Morman Sunday schools, low-grade dances, and other sinful things for fostering evil. But God honors His Word wherever preached and He proved it to us in this meeting in bringing twenty-two to a confession of their faith in Christ and causing fifteen of these to unite with our new organization in this community. Twenty-five others rededicated themselves to God's service. A short time ago the work at this point was started with five members. God has blessed us in this work in such measure that the organization now numbers fifty-four. Truly, these are blessings against almost insurmountable obstacles! God, with the help of this loyal people, is going to win the victory.

At the conclusion of this meeting steps were taken for the immediate beginning of a church building. Plans have already been drawn and we are now ready to begin the building. We need more money. If you would like to help God's work that is prospering against difficulties, send a check for the Second Church of Rocky Mount.

Too much cannot be said of Rev. A. J. Crane's splendid work in these meetings. In the Second Church meeting Miss Lyda Southerland aided greatly with her talent for making friends and by her excellent work at the piano.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

Sumter—Rev. Frank Hall Wright, D.D., the well known evangelist, is conducting a two weeks' evangelistic meeting in the First Church of this city.

Fort Mill—At the evening service, June 15, the Rev. James B. Black was duly installed as pastor of the Fort Mill Presbyterian Church, the commissioners convening immediately after the sermon, which was preached by the Rev. E. E. Gillespie, D.D., pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of York, S. C., and being led in prayer by Mr. J. K. Roach, an elder from the First Presbyterian Church of Rock Hill, S. C. The charge to the pastor was delivered by the Rev. F. W. Gregg, D.D., pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Rock Hill, S. C., and the charge to the congregation by the Rev. J. C. Bailey, pastor of Ebenezer Presbyterian Church.

At the morning service to be held on the fourth Sunday of the present month the ceremony of ordaining and installing eight deacons recently elected at a congregational meeting will be observed.

C. S. Link.

Concord Church is near Woodward station, a church of over 100 years standing, one of the old landmarks of Bethel Presbytery, it was my privilege to preach at this church last Sabbath, and moderate a call for the services of J. E. Coker, of Charleston, S. C. It was a unanimous call, and to a people that are appreciative and pleasant to serve, after the call was signed by the elders and deacons, the congregation went into the election of two additional elders, Messrs. Brice and Coleman were elected. In the evening I preached at Blackstock and moderated a call for J. E. Coker. This church is just four miles from Woodward station, making it a very desirable field, the congregation was large, and the call was unanimous. Close attention was paid to the preaching of the Word, and the best of all, God was with us. We pray that this brother and his family will accept the call and enter the manse to feed the flock of God and glorify His name.

James Russell.

McColl—That there are compensations even for birth-days was proven recently in McColl. The Christian Endeavor Society of the Presbyterian Church on the evening of June 3 enjoyed a social gathering at the home of Mr. H. L. McLaurin, which soon resolved itself into a happy birthday party for the pastor, Rev. J. J. Harrell, this being the anniversary of his birth. A tray of gifts that would have delighted the heart of any man was presented the guest of honor by Mr. Melvin McLaurin and, what was infinitely better, a little talk was made by Mr. McLaurin, in which he expressed in happy style the love and appreciation that the young people of the church felt for the faithful loving service that the pastor had never failed to give them during his seven years among them. This was but another of the many kindnesses that the McColl people are constantly showing their pastor.

ALABAMA.

Mobile—At a meeting of the congregation of the Government Street Church on June 4 it was reluctantly agreed to concur with the pastor, Rev. H. W. DuBose, D.D., in his request for a dissolution of the pastoral relation, in order that he might accept a call to the First Church of Danville, Va. On June 8 the communion service was observed and at this time five infants were baptized and twenty-five persons were publicly received into the church. Five additional elders and nine deacons were also ordained and installed.

ARKANSAS.

Mt. Holly—Rev. James W. Marshall has changed his address to Mt. Holly from Camden, having taken the former church for all his time instead of half time as formerly.

First Church, Little Rock—That family history makes church history is proven in the following remarkable record: On June 1, 1919, the name of William Simonton, son of Mr. Charles S. and Mrs. Frances Walker McCain, was placed on the cradle roll of the First Presbyterian Church of this city. He is the fifth generation on the maternal side and the third on the paternal side in the life of this church. He is the great-great grandson of the late Dr. Roderick L. Dodge, and the great-grandson of the late George E. Dodge, respectively, faithful elder and deacon in this church for many years. His paternal grandfather, whose name he bears, the late Judge W. S. McCain, was for many years an honored deacon in this church, and his father and uncle, Mr. W. Ross McCain, serve in this office now. He has two living grandmothers, Mrs. W. S. McCain and Mrs. Tullis C. Walker; two great-grandmothers, Mrs. George E. Dodge and Mrs. A. J. Walker; one great-great grandmother, Mrs. Anne Osborn, now in her ninety-fourth year, the oldest member of this church which is in its ninety-second year. With such a genealogy can this youngest scion of noted families fail of long life and escape being a deacon?—Christian Observer.

FLORIDA.

Ocala—Rev. Jno. R. Herndon has accepted a call to the Waightown Church of Winston-Salem, N. C., and will begin work in his new field August 1. Mr. Herndon has been pastor of the First Church of Ocala for the past four years and has accomplished a fine work here.

Ponce de Leon—Beginning on June 5, a series of services was held at this point and continued through June 10. The preaching was done by Rev. Fred F. Schhell, of Chipley, Fla., and was greatly enjoyed by those fortunate enough to hear him. He preached the truth of God's Word very plainly and with power. God's people were strengthened and two young men openly professed Christ as their Savior. Ponce de Leon is an out-station of DeFuniak Springs pastorate and the DeFuniak Springs pastor preaches there once a month in the afternoon. The outlook is promising for the organization of a church there later on. A commission, appointed by the Presbytery of Florida, met there on Monday, June 10, and adjourned to meet later on at the call of the chairman, Rev. R. Q. Baker.

Daniel J. Currie.

GEORGIA.

Jefferson—Rev. T. M. Stribling, recently of Cedartown, Ga., entered upon his new work as pastor of the church at Jefferson about two weeks ago.

Atlanta Presbytery—The constitutional requirements having been complied with, I hereby call Atlanta Presbytery to meet in the Central Church, Atlanta, Ga., June 23, 1919, at 11 o'clock a. m., to act upon the following items of business, if the way be clear.

1. To receive Rev. T. D. Bateman from the Presbytery of Missouri, to act on the call of the LaGrange Church for Mr. Bateman's pastoral services, and arrange for his installation.
2. To receive Rev. B. R. Lacy, D.D., from the Presbytery of Albemarle, to act on the call of the Central Church for the pastoral services of Dr. Lacy, and arrange for his installation.
3. To receive Rev. J. W. Caldwell, D.D., from the Presbytery of New Orleans, to act on the call of the Westminster Church for the pastoral services of Dr. Caldwell, and arrange for his installation.
4. To license Candidate Norman Johnson.
5. To act on the call of the Villa Rica and Tallapoosa Churches for the pastoral services of Licentiate L. D. King, and arrange for his ordination and installation.
6. To act on the call of the West Point Church for the pastoral services of Rev. A. H. McNair, and arrange for his installation.
7. To dismiss Candidate I. D. Terrell to the Presbytery of Norfolk.
8. To receive report of commission to install Rev. J. W. Allen at Ingleside.
9. To receive Licentiate J. R. McGregor from Presbytery of Pee Dee, and arrange for his ordination.

E. L. Merrill, Moderator.

KENTUCKY.

Madison Avenue Church, Covington—The congregation of this church, of which the Rev. I. Cochrane Hunt, D.D., is the pastor, has recently done two notable things which should go to record as inspiring to others:

In a local campaign for the organization of a supporting society for the Protestant Children's Home of Covington, this church, with a quota of sixty-nine memberships at five dollars a year each, raised one hundred and one memberships in seven days, exceeding, by twenty or thirty, churches of double its membership.

On the evening of Wednesday, June 18, when the pastor reached the mature age of forty-three, the lecture room was packed at the service hour and immediately on the con-

Woman's Auxiliary

THE WOMAN'S DEPARTMENT'S NEW EDITOR.

The reason, dear friends, this Woman's Auxiliary Department has been running low, finally playing out in the last issue of the paper, is not due to any loss of interest or to a lack of news items to report. This has been the best year in the history of the Synodical Auxiliary, special advance being made in the organization of the local auxiliaries according to the circle plan. We know of scores of items that are waiting to get into this column. Our trouble is the department has been without a head.

Mrs. E. D. Brown found it impossible to serve as editor and sent in her resignation. We deeply regret losing Mrs. Brown's services, but we rejoice to announce that we have secured in her place a woman, who because of her love for the Auxiliary and her experience in the work is specially qualified to fill this office. We take great pleasure in introducing Mrs. J. M. McIver, of Gulf, as editor of this department.

Mrs. McIver is now serving the Synodical Auxiliary as chairman of the permanent committee on Young People's work. For the past five years she was the efficient president of Fayetteville Presbyterial, the largest Presbyterial not only in our Synodical but in the whole Assembly. The service for which Mrs. McIver is honored in the church-wide Auxiliary is her production of the detachable report blank.

We bespeak for Mrs. McIver your loyal support.

Sincerely yours,

Mrs. W. B. Ramsay,
President N. C. Synodical Auxiliary.

The Woman's Advisory Committee—The annual meeting of the Woman's Advisory Committee will be held in the Winsborough Building at Montreat, N. C., July 9-12, inclusive.

The chairmen of the following standing committees will welcome any helpful suggestions from any of our women; along any line of work. New and successful methods of work should be submitted to Mrs. Winston Lynes, Chairman Committee on Methods, Fulton, Mo. Mrs. W. H. Whitaker, chairman of Committee on Organization, will be glad to hear plans that would benefit our organization, and Mrs. J. R. Whitman, Waycross, Ga., Chairman of Committee on Young People's Work, would appreciate sympathetic help on her most important committee.

clusion of the regular service Mr. F. D. Van Winkle, one of the elders, came forward and in a very graceful speech expressed the good-will of the congregation for their pastor and presented him with a lovely birthday cake which contained, besides love and good wishes, eighty dollars in gold as a substantial token of that affection. Mr. Van Winkle was followed by Mr. Gene Wallingford, of the First Presbyterian Church, who brought the greetings and good wishes of the community at large in a very unique and attractive original poem.

The Sabbath School will send two of its young people, Miss Margaret Oelrich and Mr. Robert Turrell, to the Young People's Conference at Montreat on June 26.

TENNESSEE.

First Church, Nashville—At the communion service on Sunday, June 15, forty new members were welcomed into the fellowship of the church.

The Presbytery of Memphis, at a special meeting held in the Second Church, Memphis, Tenn., June 9, 1919, dismissed Rev. M. P. Cain to the Presbytery of Western Texas; received Rev. George Kerns from the Presbytery of Norfolk, approved a call for his pastoral services from the Dyersburg Church, and appointed a commission to install

Educational

COMMENCEMENT AT TEXAS PRESBYTERIAN COLLEGE.

The seventeenth commencement of this school was held May 30 to June 4 under especially pleasing circumstances both as to weather and attendance.

The seven public functions of addresses, sermons and entertainments by students were of unusual high order and each one deserves special mention if space permitted.

The sermons on Sabbath by Dr. W. R. Minter, Austin, Texas, and Rev. Samuel L. Joekel, Waxahachie, were both inspiring and pleasing to the large audiences. The address by Dr. C. T. Caldwell, Waco, Texas, to the graduating class on the closing day was a scholarly presentation of the sphere and field of woman's work. The exhibits of the Art, Needle Work and Domestic Economy departments won large praise from the many visitors to the commencement. And no less appreciated were the beautiful plays given by the several organizations of the school.

The announcement by the president of the board that T. P. C. had been classed a standard college brought spirited applause from the student body and the audience. The board also won the praises of the college people by appropriating an additional $1,000 to add to the already well equipped science department. The Harpold scholarship was him on the first Sunday in July as follows: Rev. Wm. Crowe, D.D., to preside, preach and propound the questions, Rev. C. W. Sommerville, D.D., to charge the pastor and Ruling Elder James R. Hall, of the Covington Church, to charge the congregation. Rev. R. P. Walker, D.D., as alternate to the ministers and Elder J. G. Latta, of Dyersburg, alternate to Mr. Hall.
(Continued on Page 22)

Presbytery appointed a commission to organize, if the way be clear, a church at Warren, Tenn., in response to a petition signed by sixteen persons asking organization. That commission is: Ministers, C. A. Harper, J. B. Carpenter, O. W. Wardlaw; ruling elders, J. M. Hull and J. P. Matthews.

Presbytery was informed that the Presbytery of Arkansas, aided by the Presbyterian Ministers' Association of Memphis, was putting on a summer conference at Batesville, Ark., Aug. 5-15, and as an act of courtesy Presbytery received this report and granted permission to members of its churches to participate in this conference.

At this meeting Presbytery had expected to act on application of Rev. W. L. Carson to be received from the Presbytery of East Hanover, but owing to failure to get his letter of dismission this could not be done, and Presbytery adjourned to meet for this business in Second Church, Memphis, June 23, 1919, 11:30 a. m.

J. H. Lumpkin. S. C.

VIRGINIA.

Union Theological Seminary, Richmond—The scarcity of labor and other difficult conditions created by the war for the printing business have delayed the appearance of the annual catalogue of the Seminary. It is now out and shows an attendance for the past year of 63 undergraduates and 42 post graduates. The States having the largest representation are North Carolina 30, Virginia 29, Georgia 8, West Virginia 8, South Carolina 6, and Tennessee 6. There were three from Japan and three from Korea.

A letter recently written from France to one of the professors speaks in high terms of the chaplains from the Seminary who have been in the service. The writer says they are earnest to the core and fearless, and adds: "It may interest and gratify you when I tell you that I have come into contact with about 400 chaplains, and Heinz did not have them beat on varieties. Your boys are the real thing; they did not forget what they were here for; I am proud that I know them." The splendid record made by the Union Seminary men in the war is a source of gratification to all our people. Quite a number of the prospective students, who enlisted and served cheerfully in the ranks till the war was over, are having some difficulty in getting discharged in time to enter the Seminary at the beginning of the next session. They have made themselves so useful that the government seems disposed to hold on to them, somewhat regardless of their plans for next year; but it is believed that, by making, fully supported applications through the proper channels, most of them can be released in time for the opening of the session on October 1.

REDUCED RATES FOR MONTREAT CONFERENCE.

Tickets will be on sale for the Montreat Conferences at reduced rates on dates given below. Full fare will be charged on going tickets one way, and return tickets will be sold for one-third of the price of the regular fare on the following conditions: Certificates must be secured on purchase of ticket showing that full fare has been paid, and return tickets will be sold at any time from June 23 to August 31, at one-third of the full fare one way, provided certificate is presented, showing that full fare has been paid on going ticket and signed by A. R. Bauman, Secretary at Montreat, and the railway ticket agent at Black Mountain, N. C.

Be sure in buying going tickets to get certificate from railway agent showing full fare has been paid.

The reduced return ticket is also conditioned on having as many as 250 in attendance upon conference who hold certificates of paying full fare one way.

The dates for sale of reduced railway tickets to Black Mountain, N. C., are as follows:

Young People's Conference, Montreat, June 26-July 6; Conference of Missionary Education Movement, Blue Ridge, June 24-July 3; Southern High School Conference, Y. M. C. A., Blue Ridge, June 24-July 3; Summer School of Student Secretaries, Blue Ridge, June 24-July 19. Selling dates, June 23, 24, 25 and 26th.

First General Conference, Montreat, July 7-13; Southern Summer School, Y. M. C. A., Blue Ridge, July 5-20. Selling dates, July 4, 5 and 6.

Women's Summer School of Missions, Montreat, July 13-20. Selling dates, July 11 and 12.

Sunday School Conference, Montreat, July 20-27; City Conference, Y. M. C. A., Blue Ridge, July 22-31; Evangelistic Conference, Montreat, July 27-August 3. Selling dates, July 18-22, inclusive.

Conference on Christian Education and Ministerial Relief, Montreat, August 3-6; Southern Summer School of Social Service and Christian Workers (first half), Blue Ridge, August 4-17; Home Mission Conference, Montreat, August 6-10. Selling dates, August 1, 2, 3 and 4.

Foreign Mission Conference, Montreat, August 10-17; Bible Conference, Montreat, August 17-24; Southern Summer School of Social Service and Christian Workers (last half), Blue Ridge, August 16-31. Selling dates, August 15, 16 and 17.

Be sure to inquire of railway ticket agents for these rates, and be sure to get certificate in buying going ticket, showing that you have paid full fare, for without this no reduction will be given on return ticket.

R. C. Anderson.

Marriages and Deaths

Marriages.

Bethea-Lindsay—In Fayetteville, N. C., at the home of the officiating minister, Dr. W. E. Hill, June 13, 1919, Mr. Frank Bethea and Miss Portia Lindsay, both of Rockfish, N. C.

Gardner-Campbell—May 16, 1919, at the home of the bride, "Douglas Place," Louisville, Ky., by Rev. J. Gray McAllister, D.D., Eugene H. Gardner, of Noblesville, Ind., and Miss Estella Campbell.

Mohr-Krider—April 21, 1919, in the Highland Presbyterian Church, Louisville, Ky., by Rev. J. Gray McAllister, D.D., Alfred M. Mohr and Miss Pauline Ruth Krider, both of Louisville.

Deaths.

Smith—At his home in Louisville, Ky., May 9, 1919, John W. Smith, 86 years old, a devoted member of the Highland Presbyterian Church.

Brown—Mrs. Marietta S. Brown was stricken with apoplexy while driving her automobile on the streets of Kinston, N. C., on Saturday afternoon, June 7, 1919, and died in Parrott Memorial Hospital on Monday, June 9th. She was a consistent Christian woman and a loyal member of Atkinson Memorial Presbyterian Church.

Pharr—Mrs. Martha Means Pharr, the tenderly beloved wife of the late Hugh Smith Pharr, entered into her Heavenly rest at the "Twilight Hour," May 12, 1919, on the 42d anniversary of her father's, Capt. John S. Means', Heavenly translation. Mrs. Pharr was a fine Christian woman, and a life-long member of the First Presbyterian Church of this city. She was a lovely mother and leaves two daughters, Mrs. C. G. McManaway and Miss Gertrude Means Pharr, to mourn her loss, besides a host of relatives and friends, but theirs is the loss only, for gain, eternal gain is hers. She has joined the friends of her youth, her husband and her darling little son, her father and mother, ten brothers and sisters, and is safe forevermore in the glorious presence of God. Another gem in the Saviour's crown, another soul in Heaven.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

Mrs. Marietta Swann Brown.

Whereas, God in His infinite wisdom has removed from our midst, our beloved sister and co-worker, Mrs. Marietta Swann Brown, who was a faithful member of our Woman's Auxiliary, Sunday School, Christian Endeavor, Church and Choir;

Whereas, she was a fond mother, a devoted daughter, a faithful sister and a self-sacrificing neighbor. Not confining her interests to her immediate family, but found time to mother others. No woman in town gave more of her time to the work of the Red Cross and other war activities.

Therefore, be it resolved, that we bow in humble submission to the Will of our Heavenly Father.

That her death makes a vacancy in our Church and community.

That we extend to the bereaved family our heartfelt sympathy, assuring them of our prayers, that our Father may comfort them in their irreparable loss.

That a page in our minute book be inscribed to her memory, a copy be sent to the family of the deceased, a copy be printed in the local papers and a copy sent to the Presbyterian Standard.

Respectfully submitted,

Mrs. H. H. Grainger,

Mrs. J. H. Parham,

Mrs. H. H. Taylor,

Woman's Auxiliary, Atkinson Memorial Presbyterian Church, Kinston, N. C.

IN MEMORIAM.

Augustus Doane Hicks.

Augustus Doane Hicks was born in Duplin County, North Carolina, near the present town of Mount Olive, November 9, 1842, and departed this earthly life at his home in Faison, North Carolina, April 12, 1919. Our brother was a lover of his native State and her people, hence he was never tempted to seek a home elsewhere. His entire life of more than 76 years was spent in the county in which he was born, save the months he was serving in the Confederate army, and the years during which he was a prisoner of war.

He enlisted in the service of the Confederacy as a soldier at the age of 20, and was a valiant defender of the cause in the various battles preceding Gettysburg; here he was captured, and he remained a prisoner of war until the Great Conflict ended in 1865.

At the age of 21, while confined in a Federal prison, our brother accepted Christ as his Savior, and during all the succeeding 55 years of his life he was faithful to the trust that his Lord had committed to him. Through the years he was a key-man, holding positions of trust and responsibility in the Church. For 38 years he was an honored and faithful ruling elder, the last 12 of which he served as clerk of the session. He was actively engaged in charge of Sabbath school work for a quarter of a century, and we have never known a more faithful superintendent or one more devoted to his work.

Our brother was not of the heroic but of the gentler type, full of tenderness and love to all with whom he mingled, but especially to the poor and the unfortunate. Encouraging and helping the dependent and those who needed a friend and adviser, all these characteristics are monuments to an unselfish and Christ-like life. So good a man needs no eulogy, and requires no monument of granite or bronze to perpetuate his memory with those who knew him. A life so filled with the true and good could not fail to meet the last enemy without fear or dismay. Calmly he was found ready and anxious to pass on to that place which had been prepared for him by his Savior whom he had so devotedly loved and served, into "the house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens," furnished ready for those who love and obey.

Our brother was twice married; first to Miss Isabel Holmes, May 18, 1882, who died October 20, 1884. Of this union were born Helen Claire and Augustus Doane, Jr., the latter deceased. On June 24, 1908, he was united in marriage with Miss Keturah Witherington, who survives him, together with the daughter, Helen Claire, and five brothers: Albert R., of Faison, N. C.; Rufus W., of Wilmington, N. C.; Hardy R., of Washington, D. C.; Frank Deems, of Adel, Ga., and Ernest R., of Mount Olive, N. C.

Such is but a bare outline sketch of the life of a good man. A faithful and kind husband, an affectionate and indulgent father, a wise counsellor in the councils of the Church which he devotedly loved and faithfully served, and withal a conscientious and devout Christian. Always kind and courteous, gentle under the severest trials and pains, he was justly loved by his devoted family and appreciated by his community and Church.

The funeral services were held in the Presbyterian Church, Faison, Sabbath afternoon, April 13, conducted by his pastor, the writer. The auditorium and Sabbath School assembly room were packed with representative people of his home town and the surrounding country, with many friends and relatives from distant points. The large number of colored people present, who had asked the privilege of attending the service, was eloquent testimony of the love of these lowly folk for one who had ever been their friend and counselor.

The mortal part of our brother was tenderly laid to rest in the Faison cemetery in the midst of those of his family who had preceded him, there to rest until the resurrection morn. We commend the loved ones of our departed brother into the keeping of Him who doeth all things well.

J. W. Purcell.

Children's Department

PICNIC SUPPER.

Dear Standard:

I am a little girl nine years old. I will be in the fourth grade next year. I have a little kitty and William, my cousin, is playing with it now.

We had a picnic supper last night. Hoping my letter won't reach the waste basket, your unknown friend,
Davidson, N. C. Lucy Currie.

SECOND LETTER.

Dear Standard:

I am a little girl twelve years old. I go to the Presbyterian Sunday School every Sunday I can at Burlington, N. C. My teacher's name is Miss Maud Sharpe. I like her fine. Our school closed the 30th of May. I have lots of pretty flowers. I will close by asking where was the first battle fought of the world war? Your friend,

Harriette Cates,

Burlington, N. C.

LIKES BEN BEST.

Dear Standard:

I enjoy reading the little letters in your paper. I am eight years old. I have a horse named Ben. "Daddy" and Mamma have a car but I like my horse better. I have a little sister named Jean. My sister Martha is writing you a letter too. Your friend, Dorothy Johnston.

Harrisburg, N. C.

VISITING IN GREENVILLE.

Dear Standard:

I am a little girl eleven years old. I go to Sunday School every Sunday. My teacher's name is Mrs. M. H. Wooten. I am visiting my aunt in Greenville, and am having a fine time. My grandma has been taking the Standard for years, and I want to surprise her with my letter, so I hope it won't reach the waste basket. Your friend, Warsaw, N. C. Sallie F. Best.

CAN HARNESS OLD TOP.

Dear Standard:

I am a little girl six years old. I go to school to my Aunt Pattie. I have a horse named Tess. I have a shepherd dog named Top. I can put harness on him and drive him to a wagon.

Your little friend,

Martha Johnston.

Harrisburg, N. C.

"Here, Binks, I wish you'd take my garden seeds and give them to your hens, with my compliments. It will save them the trouble of coming over after them."—Life.

NIP AND TUCK.

His little fat legs swung slowly back and forth. Occasionally his heels would strike the tree against which the bench was leaning; but the blow seemed to make no impression on the boy, whose mind was traveling away off, following a bit of a pony that had gone into the big world outside.

"I reckon Nip wasn't the worst pony in the world," sighed the child. "Looks like papa made a mighty big fuss over his kickin' a little. An' the other horses needn't 'a' kicked back. He was too little to do 'em any harm—much." Tuck's sense of fairness made him add that "much," for he remembered well how his father had been compelled to dress the wounds that Nip had seen fit to give with his heels as he frisked around the horses and cows.

Tuck's mother looked out the kitchen window and saw the boy. "It will break his heart," she said to her husband as he came in the room.

"I reckon not. You know I stood it as long as I could. It looked as if the pony would never grow up. His antics were as bad this year as they were when we first bought him." But his heart was ready to sympathize with his boy, and he too stood looking out of the window with worry on his face.

Tuck didn't know that anybody was sorry except himself. It was only yesterday that Nip went away with a man from Durham. Where Durham was Tuck couldn't say, because miles more or less were beyond his grasp. Across the ocean and down to Durham meant—O, a long, long way off. And the pony was gone that far. He had begged his papa to keep him. And his papa had tried. O what did make Nip kick so much? Was that all the fun a pony could have? Why couldn't he run when he was loose and kick up his heels? What made him go into the stable where he could back up against one of the horses and kick, kick, kick?

Tuck tried to get mad with Nip, but he just couldn't. When he was about to blame him for his badness, the thought of the pony as he left yesterday melted the warm little heart till the tears came. "Boo-oo-oo!" And Tuck broke down. He got up and walked away, because he couldn't keep still a minute longer.

His chubby feet naturally turned in the direction they had gone many a time when he wanted Nip, the kicker. As he trudged along the lane that leads to the barn, he stopped crying and fell to thinking out loud. "Funnest thing 'bout Nip! If he couldn't help cuttin' up, what made him be so good to me? What, I don't see. Never did kick when I was on 'im. Never did run faster'n I wanted 'im to. Always just as good, a-rubbin' his nose 'gainst me an' a-waitin' for me to climb up on 'em. If I had him back, I'd be 'most willin' to set on his back all day long, so's to make 'im good." And Tuck smiled, for the first time in years, it seemed to him.

Just then—what—What? Funnest thing! Tuck felt the gentlest rubbing against his shoulder. His heart jumped square into his throat and stopped there to choke him. Nothing on earth could rub like that except Nip. Turning slowly, while his throat was unchoking, Tuck looked into the face of the loveliest little pony that ever kicked.

"O Nip, Nip!" And the child threw his arms around the pony's neck, drew his head down, and kissed him softly between the eyes, where there's such a nice, white spot all ready.

Then there was more nose-rubbing and hugging, while the boy talked love to that scrap of a pony. After so long it came into Tuck's mind that he once had a papa and a mamma. Leading Nip up to the horse block near the barn, he climbed on his back, clucked, stuck his heels into the pony's side, and the two started toward the house at a rattling good pace.

"Whoopee! Come out here, mamma." Mamma came, threw up her hands in wonder, and called for papa.

"Well, well! He must have stolen off in the night and walked all the way from Durham, twenty-eight miles. Such a pony!" And papa laughed at the chubby little boy who sat on the chubby little pony, with his face spread all over with smiles—the boy's face, not the pony's, though I am sure Nip was happy enough to smile if he had only known how to do so.

"Papa." And the smiling little boy looked serious all at once. "You won't let 'im go 'way any more, will you?"

"Why, Tuck, it isn't our pony any more. I reckon the man will be after him in three shakes of a sheep's tail."

A sad little face it was that turned away when Tuck slowly started to the barn. "I'll give 'im something to eat, anyway, papa; but I was a-thinkin' 'bout tellin' you that I'd set on Nip's back 'most all the time, so's he'd be good. You know he don't ever do anything bad when I'm on 'im."

Tuck didn't see why papa and mamma laughed so at that, but it pleased him mightily when mamma said: "I think you'll have to get Nip back some way. Suppose you offer to pay the man five or ten dollars if he'll trade again. Then have a separate lot for the pony and never let him get at the other horses or the cows."

That's just what happened. Tuck's papa paid the man's money back that afternoon when he came hunting for the pony. Then Nip had a separate pasture, a new little stable, and the happiest little master that ever you did see.—Mrs. F. L. Townsend.

Educational.

(Continued from page 19)

won by Miss Mary Ellen McCall, of Mt. Peasant, Texas, and the honors of the academy went to Miss Mame Purcell, Archer City, Texas.

The Sabbath following commencement the Church of Milford made its drive for the million dollar fund for the schools of Texas and went "over the top" liberally. The quota for this church was $30,000 and more than $31,000 were subscribed. The outlook for the college for the coming year is very promising.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES ARKANSAS COLLEGE.

The commencement exercises of the forty-seventh session of Arkansas College began with the baccalaureate sermon by Rev. Henry H. Sweets, D.D., of Louisville, Ky. The simple text of his great sermon was "Follow Me." Rev. Leroy Thompson, of Hope, Ark., delivered the sermon before the Y. M. C. A. It was a thoughtful and earnest setting forth of the great teaching of the book of Ecclesiastes, and logically led to the conclusion that to fear God and keep His commandments, brings the greatest blessedness and is the wisest and sanest course for every young man and young woman to pursue.

Monday evening a special recital was given, when Mr. Henry Wells Sanderson, an advanced piano student, was presented, assisted by Miss Corinne McMahan, reader. Tuesday evening, the alumni banquet was held in the S. A. T. C. barracks and was the main social feature of the commencement exercises. Covers were laid for one hundred alumni and ex-students. C. W. Maxfield, president of the association, acted as toastmaster, and the roll of classes was called when there were many happy responses, some of which were of a reminiscent mood, and others bore in mind the greater Arkansas College which is being realized.

The graduating exercises were held on Wednesday morning. The graduates were Miss Mary Fitzhugh and Miss Corinne McMahan.

The president of the board, Mr. Jas. P. Coffin, expressed the appreciation of the college for the liberal donations on the part of the citizens of Batesville in the erection of the barracks. Grateful recognition was made also of the splendid gift of $15,000 made by Messrs. Allen and Will C. and Misses Jean and Josephine Brown. This was the largest gift received during the past session.

Prof. R. C. Sommerville, who has recently been engaged in war work and who previous to this was president of the Texas Presbyterian College at Milford, Texas, was announced as an additional member of the faculty. Arkansas College is fortunate in securing Professor Sommerville, who has a reputation as a strong educator, and is most highly commended in every way.

The honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity was conferred upon Rev. Flournow Shepperson, a former graduate of the college and now pastor of the church at Monticello, and Rev. W. K. Johnston, pastor of the church at Marianna, Ark.

It was announced that both of the dormitories now under construction will be completed in midsummer.

The enrollment for this session in literary department, including Student Army Training Corps, was 117. This shows the largest enrollment for literary department for a number of years.

WANTED TO BE SURE.

The spread of tuberculosis had come up in class, and teacher had spoken most impressively of the opportunity the Red Cross stamps provided to help in the cure and prevention of the dread disease. The children listened eagerly, much impressed. By and by a boy in a rear seat asked anxiously:

"Please, teacher, where do you have to put the stamps to cure you?"

The House of the Massachusetts Legislature is worthy of commendation for having killed for a second time a bill permitting amateur baseball and other outdoor sports Sunday afternoon. The House took a stand against the proposal originally, but the Senate passed the measure and the House was obliged to face the issue a second time, which it did, defeating the proposition by a vote of 110 to 97. Attempts to break down the Sabbath must be constantly watched and vigorously opposed.—Ex.

WANTED—Working Matron for mountain mission school, beginning Aug. 6th. Opportunity for real service under favorable conditions. Write Rev. E. V. Tadlock, Indian Bottom, Kentucky.

EXPERT KODAK FINISHING

Developing and printing done by artists. Most beautiful work guaranteed at all times. Satisfaction or no charge. Developing, 10c. per film. Printing: 2 1/4 x 3 1/4, 3c.; 2 1/4 x 4 1/4, 4c.; 3 1/4 x 5 1/2, 5c. Quick delivery. Send one film to test our service. Ligon Drug Co., Spartanburg, S. C.

United States Railroad Administration

DIRECTOR GENERAL OF RAILROADS

Seaboard Air Line Railroad

Reduced Summer Excursion Round-Trip Tickets on sale May 15th to September 30th, final limit October 31st, 1919, to the following points:

Alta Pass, N. C.	$ 7.14	Pensacola, N. C.	$ 9.06
Hickory, N. C.	3.30	Rutherfordton, N. C.	4.32
Johnson City, Tenn.	10.80	Shelby, N. C.	2.88
Lenoir, N. C.	4.50	Switzerland, N. C.	6.96
Norfolk, Va.	17.46	Virginia Beach, Va.	18.26
Old Point, Va.	18.06	Wrightsville Beach, N. C.	10.66

The above rates do not include war tax. Also attractive rates to other resorts. For particulars as to fares, trains, schedules, etc., apply to any Railroad Ticket Agent.

E. W. LONG, P. S. A.,
CHARLOTTE, N. C.

JOHN T. WEST, D. P. A.,
RALEIGH, N. C.

Miscellaneous

THE PARABLE OF SAFED THE SAGE.

The Parable of the Grindstone that Dulled the Scythe.

There came to me one of the sons of the prophets. And I bade him enter, and he came in and made obeisance and sat down. And he said unto me, I have need of thy wisdom. For I minister to a Little Congregation, and behold they are Stiffnecked and Hard of Heart. And albeit I preach to them Faithfully, yet do they not heed. Yea, and the more earnestly I preach, the fewer of them come to hear me.

And his heart was hot and sore, and I looked on him and mine heart was sad for him.

And I asked him what he had been preaching about, and what were the duties that he had been exhorting his people to attain unto.

And I discovered that he had an Hobby, which he rode incessantly, so that in nearly every sermon he did mount it and make at least one circle round the ring. And it did not happen to be the Hobby of his people. Nay, it was of such a nature that they Disliked it and Resented it. And the more he preached on that subject the less they cared to do that duty or any other.

And I said unto him, When I was a lad, I visited my Grandsire, who did live on a farm. And he was an aged man. And he had a Scythe which he desired to sharpen, that he might cut Thistles in the Pasture. And he desired to Grind the Scythe.

And he commanded me to Turn the Grindstone, which I did, but I liked it not.

And my Grandsire was aged, and his sight was not good, and he had left his Glasses in the house.

Now after we had ground the Scythe until it should have been sharp, he took it and looked at the edge thereof, and behold, the edge was like unto that of a Saw.

And he sent me to the House that I might bring him his Glasses, and he examined the Grindstone, and there was in the surface of it a Small Flinty Stone, as large as the head of a Pin. And every time that stone came around, it made a nick in the thin edge of the Scythe. And he took an Hammer and a Cold Chisel, and Cut Out the Small Flinty Stone. Then did we grind the Scythe again, and the stone ground all parts of the edge evenly so that it was sharp. And it cut the Thistles good and plenty.

And I said unto the son of the prophets, The preacher who hath in his mind any one Notion or Idea or Doctrine or Duty which he feeleth called to air in every sermon, behold he is like unto a Grindstone, with a Small Flint that

(Continued on page 24)

HENS MOULT FAST.

E. J. Reefer, the poultry expert, has discovered a scientific product that hastens the moult and revitalizes the organs of the hen and puts her in fine laying condition. The tonic is called "More Eggs" and a package of it is enough to carry the ordinary chicken raiser over the entire moulting season. First to lay is first to pay. "Since using 'More Eggs' I get forty to fifty eggs a day, instead of eight or nine," writes A. P. Woodward, of St. Cloud, Fla. A million dollar bank guarantees that you can have your money back if you want it. So, you don't take any risk. Send $1.00 for a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic. If you want to hurry the moult and get more eggs, act at once; it means more profit for you. Don't wait, but order today. Send $1 today to E. J. Reefer, 4th Floor, Poultry Bldg., Kansas City, Missouri. Or ask Mr. Reefer for his valuable poultry book free, that tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry.

THE WESTMINSTER SCHOOL

A PREPARATORY SCHOOL FOR BOYS

Operated by Kings Mountain Presbytery
$300.00 Per Year

Write for Catalogue to

Rev. T. E. P. Woods, Box 6, Rutherfordton, N. C.

CORRECT DRAPERIES

Rightly Bought Are Worth Far More Than They Cost

You are invited to see our assortment of beautiful cretonnes. It is a pleasure to see the gorgeous patterns and color combinations we have on display.

Now is the time to plan for your fall draperies and curtains. Come to see us or write for our drapery man to call on you.

W. T. McCoy & Co.
Charlotte, N. C.

THE HOME OF GOOD FURNITURE

THE PARABLE OF SAFED THE SAGE.

(Continued from Page 23)

that maketh a Nick whenever he turneth the Crank.

And I said unto him, Go thou back, and as for the doctrine and duty which thou hast preached so unremittingly, take thy Cold Chisel and from thy sermons of the next year, Cut It Out.

And he had sense enough to follow my Advice; which is not true of all people who come to me that they may obtain it. And he and his people lived happy ever after. — Congregationalist and Advance.

THE OBJECTS OF THE PIANO CLUB.

Briefly stated, the object of the Club is to knock the bottom out of piano prices without knocking the Quality out of the Pianos. Cheap instruments, as ordinarily marketed, are unfortunately, cheap in Quality as well as in Price. The difficult problem which confronted the founders of the Club was "How can we supply "Quality" Pianos to our Club members at "Cheap Prices?" The problem would have staggered the average piano dealer who sells pianos in the same old way that his father and grandfather sold them.

The Club has proven a tremendous success because its organizers had faith in the power of the principle of co-operation, intelligently and honorably conducted. They knew that quite a large part of the money paid for pianos represented waste, pure and simple. They therefore, built their plans with a view to cutting out the waste in marketing pianos, for they knew that the piano-buyer was paying for that waste.

If your home needs a good Piano or Player-Piano you can make a tremendous saving by clubbing your order with those of ninety-nine other members in a big wholesale factory transaction which will give you the lowest price and the most convenient terms that are possible under any considerations. Write for your copy of the Club's catalogue, which contains full particulars, descriptions of the numerous styles of instruments and letters of commendation from those who have secured their instruments through the club in former years. Address the Managers, Ludden & Bates, Standard Piano Club, Dept., Atlanta, Ga.

Note:—In addition to the numerous styles of new Pianos and Player-Pianos, we are now able to offer Club members some rare bargains in used instruments which have been thoroughly renewed in our Atlanta Repair Factory. Write for special descriptive price list if interested.

What we need is a law that will make an unjust strike impossible and a just strike unnecessary. — Greenville Piedmont.

Dr. J. H. Jowett has quickly resumed his former place in the front ranks of English preachers and the frequency of allusion in the British papers to his sermons shows that the message and personality which only recently crowded Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, New York City, are finding a similar response at Westminster Chapel in London. His strong grasp of the essentials of Christianity and his power of stating them are of peculiar value just now to our brethren over the ocean, so many of whom need the consolations and incentive of the gospel just at this time. Nor is Dr. Jowett failing to strike the social note. Preaching the other day on pulling down strongholds, he mentioned the British factory system as the first stronghold which Christians should demolish. A second is the fortress of Mammon, the third carnality, and the fourth international jealousy and ill will.—Congregationalist.

WANTED—Second-hand church pews. Any church having same for sale will write W. C. Pou, Elmwood, N. C.

FOR RENT AT MONTREAT

For the month of July, my furnished cottage. All conveniences. Address MRS. J. R. BRIDGES, Charlotte, N. C.

MONTREAT SUMMER SCHOOL

Six weeks, July 1st to August 12th. Delightful climate. Ideal surroundings for study. Excellent instruction. Faculty of high scholarship and wide experience. For circular and terms, address

MISS FRANCES M. BOWMAN, Director
Montreat, North Carolina

THE BAYLOR SCHOOL FOR BOYS A THOROUGH EDUCATION Castle on the Tennessee

1. Thorough Scholastic Training. Small Classes. Experienced Teachers.
 2. Religious Influences through School Y. M. C. A. and daily Chapel Exercises.
 3. Compulsory Public Speaking, Writing, and Spelling for every student.
 4. Six fine brick buildings, new equipment, 40-acre campus in mountains.
 5. Splendid Library, Laboratory, and large Gymnasium.
 6. Athletic Fields, Track, Tennis Courts, Swimming and Boating.
 7. Beautiful Scenery and Historic Surroundings. Ideal Location.
 8. The Honor System. 9. Compulsory Exercise. 10. Same Headmaster for 25 years.
 11. Military Training in the Essentials, not in the Spectacular, under officers of the A. E. F.
- Baylor School is an accredited school of Southern Association of Schools and Colleges. For particulars, address J. R. BAYLOR, BAYLOR SCHOOL, Chattanooga, Tenn.

GROVE INSTITUTE

(Formerly James Sprunt Institute)

KENANSVILLE : NORTH CAROLINA

A Preparatory School for Girls. High Grade, Thoroughly Christian. Very Moderate Cost. Students receive Close, Personal Attention in a Home-Like Atmosphere.

NEXT SESSION BEGINS SEPTEMBER 10th.

For Catalog and Particulars, address REV. W. F. HOLLINGSWORTH, Pres.

East Carolina Teachers' Training School

A State school to train teachers for the public schools of North Carolina. Every energy is directed to this one purpose. Tuition free to all who agree to teach. Fall term begins Sept. 24, 1919. For catalog and other information, address ROBERT H. WRIGHT, President, Greenville, N. C.

ELIZABETH COLLEGE, SALEM, VIRGINIA

A College for Young Women, Under Positive Christian Influence

Handsome new building, with dormitories arranged in suites. Unexcelled views. A competent faculty, Courses: Literary, leading to the A. B. degree; Art, Expression, Home Economics, Piano, Voice, Stenography and Typewriting. Outdoor sports: Basket Ball, Hockey and Tennis. For catalogue, write to PAUL SEIG, Acting President.

CHURCH ENVELOPES. Double and single envelope systems. Samples and prices sent upon request. Double Envelope Corporation, Roanoke, Va.

The McCALLIESCHOOL

A HOME SCHOOL FOR BOYS

Able men train boys for college. Individual attention. 1,000 feet elevation. Big athletic field. All sports. Swimming. Boating. Military drill. Honor System. Boys live in Masters' homes, under their personal guidance. Address

Headmasters: S. J. & J. P. McCallie
Missionary Ridge, Chattanooga, Tenn.

VIRGINIA, Danville Randolph-Macon Institute FOR GIRLS Limited to 100

College preparatory and special course for those not wishing to go to college. Vocal and instrumental Music, Art, and Expression. Attractive home life. Gymnasium. Branch of the Randolph-Macon System. Rates $300. Catalogue. Address Chas. G. Evans, A. M., Principal, Box C.

Many Young Men and Women

Have doubled and trebled their salary after taking a course with Draughon. Do you want to earn more money? If so, let us teach you how to do it. More calls for help than we can supply. Write us at once.

DRAUGHON'S BUSINESS COLLEGE
Knoxville, Tenn. Jacksonville, Fla.

BOOKKEEPING AND SHORTHAND

thoroughly taught. Enroll any time. Address Greensboro Commercial School, Greensboro, N. C., for Catalogue. Special Summer Rates now on.

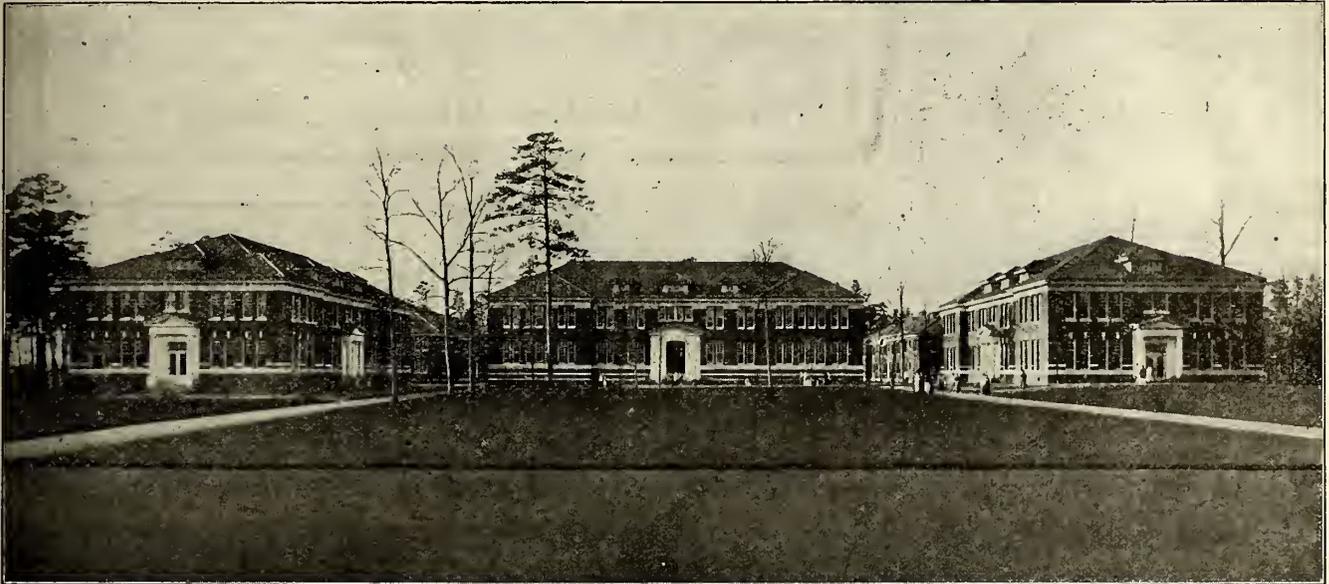

DAISY FLY KILLER PLACED ANYWHERE ATTRACTS AND KILLS ALL FLIES. Neat, clean, ornamental, convenient, cheap. Lasts all season. Made of metal, can't spill or tip over; will not soil or injure anything. Guaranteed effective. Sold by dealers, or 6 by EXPRESS, prepaid, $1.25.

HAROLD SOMERS, 150 De Kalb Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Queens College for Women

Charlotte, North Carolina

Established More Than Sixty Years Ago as "Charlotte Female Institute"

It is Now Recognized as the Best Equipped College for Women in the Entire South

We have five new two-story brick buildings with modern fire extinguishers, designed and erected solely for convenience, comfort, efficiency and safety. These buildings are located in the beautiful suburb of Myers Park, three and one-half miles from the center of the city.

We have a splendid wooded campus of 25 acres.

15 units required for entrance. Graduates from recognized State High Schools admitted on certificate.

This College is built on a firm belief in the inspiration of the Bible. Thorough Bible courses provided.

Standard college course leading to B. A. degree. Most complete equipment for thorough education.

Physical, Chemical and Biological Laboratories; Library, Gymnasium, Preparatory department. Able faculty. Dormitories divided into units of two rooms and connecting with bath, accommodating four students. Large, well-ventilated rooms, big closets. Buildings as near fire-proof as possible. Water, gas, electricity. Convenient street car service.

School of Music, Expression and Art offers superior opportunities. Music building has twenty-six rooms equipped exclusively for this department. Complete, thorough course leading to diploma. Post graduate course in music offered.

Our Motto: "Christian Women for Christian Homes"

Necessary expenses very moderate, about $300.00 for the regular literary course, including board. FALL TERM begins September 10, 1919.

For further information send for catalogue or write

WM. ANDERSON, Registrar, Box 300, Charlotte, N. C.

UNFREE AMERICA.

A Frenchman might wear a straw hat in a snowstorm and no other Frenchman would bother about it. It would be assumed that he had reasons sufficient to him for his preference. It would be considered his own affair, a bit of the variety of life, and of no concern to any one else.

In America he would be a nine days' wonder. Some would jeer and pelt. Others would call the police. Others would form a society for the prohibition of straw-hat wearing in the winter months.

In French civilization there is profound respect for individuality. In America there is little or none. The French recognize that without a free play of personality life must lose its spontaneity, its sincerity, its wholesome elasticity, its grace, and color, and zest. In America we incline more and more toward standardization, and the rule of the majority in matters which should be left open to the individual.

American democracy is headed away from freedom in this respect. American democracy on this path will not produce a high civilization, which always must be founded on the mind and spirit. It will evolve only a crude mechanism without beauty or strength.—Chicago Tribune.

A CENTURY OF SERVICE.

In 1820 a good old-fashioned doctor in North Carolina prepared an ointment for skin eruptions. It met the needs of his patients, and has likewise met the needs of millions of other doctors' patients. Grey's Ointment, the compound he prepared, is now rounding its hundredth year of honest, good old-fashioned service and value. It is very effective for sores, boils, cuts, bruises, burns, stings, eczema and the many similar forms of skin eruption. It soothes the pain, cleanses the wound, kills the germs and begins healing. If your druggist can not supply you, send his name to W. F. Gray & Co., 843 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn., and a liberal sample will be sent you.

UNIVERSITY OF VIRGINIA

Founded by Thomas Jefferson

Offers standard University training leading to academic degrees as well as to degrees in Law, Medicine, Engineering, Education, Chemistry, etc. The R. O. T. C. will be under the supervision of an army officer detailed by the War Department.

Numerous buildings of classic architecture; beautiful grounds located in the foothills of the Blue Ridge. The athletic field consists of 21 acres, and contains a concrete stadium seating 8,000. Rooms are provided with steam heat and running water. Cost of living as moderate as at any institution of equal rank. The ninety-fifth session opens September 18, 1919.

For Catalogue and Information, address Registrar, University, Va.

PRESBYTERIAN COLLEGE of South Carolina

One of the most modern and best equipped colleges for men under the control of the Presbyterian Church. Beautiful buildings, strong faculty, high standard of work, broad course, attractive student body, best moral influences, Reserve Officers' Training Corps and strong athletic team.

For Catalogue and information apply to

President Davison M. Douglas, Clinton, S. C.

Chicora College for Women

THE PRESBYTERIAN COLLEGE OF SOUTH CAROLINA

A Standard College of Distinction and Character

Religion and Philosophy

Letters and Science

Home Economics

The Fine Arts

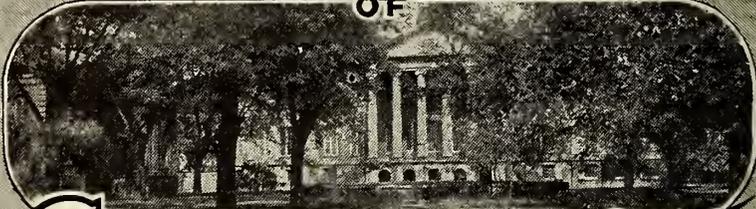

(Music, Art and Expression)

For Catalogue and Information, address

Pres. S. C. BYRD, D.D., Columbia, S. C.

COLLEGE

OF

CHARLESTON

Rich in historic associations. In its one hundred and thirty-fourth year of reputation as a college of highest standard. Co-educational.

The limited number of its students insures individual instruction for every student.

Excellent equipment, including spacious buildings, athletic grounds, well equipped laboratories and unexcelled library and museum facilities.

Four year courses leading to the degrees of A. B. and B. S. and Pre-Medical courses, special features.

A leader in thoroughness of training.

Unsurpassed climate and fine sea air. Expenses moderate. For catalogue and illustrated booklet, address

HARRISON RANDOLPH, President.
Charleston, S. C.

ESTABLISHED 1785.

HOW THE BIBLE CHEERS IN TIME OF NEED.

A Young Presbyterian elder of Philadelphia, in an interesting letter to his father, who is also an elder, after speaking of many army experiences, thus continues:

"How thankful we all are that the war is over! We are looking forward with pleasure to the time when we shall again be in the good old United States. Many a time, in the thick of the fight, we would feel like giving up, and would stop and ask if it was all worth while; then we would offer a little prayer, think of the loved ones at home and the country we represented, and pitch in harder than ever. When we would see men dropping all around us, we would ask ourselves: "What is man, that Thou art mindful of him?" Then would come the thoughts, 'His eye is on the sparrow, and I know He watches me.' 'Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil, for Thou art with me.' 'If God be for us, who can be against us?' So with such inspiring thoughts in my mind, I put my trust in God and went forward. He put His arms around me and protected me. The same faith and trust will take care of me now, and will return me to you in due time."

POULTRY EXPERT GIVES AWAY CHICK FOOD.

To introduce to the poultry raisers of this section a Chick Food that is nationally known, E. J. Reefer, the Poultry Expert, 3rd Floor Poultry Bldg., Kansas City, Mo., is giving away free a one dollar package of Chick Food absolutely free to every poultry raiser who agrees to tell his neighbor about it. This medicated Baby Chick Food is sold on an absolute guarantee to raise chicks for six weeks and it is backed by the National Reserve Bank of Kansas City. Send Mr. Reefer one dollar and he will not only send you one regular dollar size package of Chick Food, but he will include in the same shipment an extra package absolutely free, which means he will send you two regular full size dollar packages of this scientific medicated Baby Chick Food for only one dollar. And he will prepay all the charges on the first order. Considering that this product is guaranteed by the National Reserve Bank and that it keeps baby chicks for six weeks, every poultry raiser should certainly try this scientific medicated Baby Chick Food without further delay. It will pay you to write Mr. Reefer today.

FOR SALE.

Beautiful mountain farm, 288 acres. Water and timber in abundance; 24 Jersey cattle; mules, hogs, wagons, etc. Three attractive bungalows, five servants' houses, garage, etc. Will sell as whole or divide any number acres with bungalow to suit purchaser.

ERNEST H. KAMINER,
Arden, N. C.

OAK RIDGE INSTITUTE
OAK RIDGE, N. C.

Prepares for bigger accomplishments in college, business and life. A very high standard of scholarship is maintained. Thorough courses are given in literature, science, book-keeping, shorthand and music. Athletics encouraged. Buildings modern; steam heat and showers. Cost reasonable—$350 per year. Fall session opens September 9, 1919. For illustrated catalog and fuller information, write

T. E. WHITAKER, PRESIDENT.

BINGHAM Is the only Boys' School in the United States which has been administered by THREE SUCCESSIVE generations of PRESBYTERIAN ELDERS for 125 YEARS.

1793 Since 1861 the ACADEMIC work has been supplemented with the 1919 MILITARY feature. Special rates to Ministers of the Gospel (As long as we have vacancies)

Address COL. R. BINGHAM, Supl., Route 4, Asheville, N. C. or CAPT. JOHN A. PERRY, U. S. Army, Retired, Military Professor, Asheville, N. C.

THE CITADEL Founded 1842. Charleston, S. C. "Distinguished Military College," rated by War Department.

Full courses in engineering, sciences and languages, leading to B. S. and C. E. degrees.

"It is so superior in all its methods it must be classed alone."—Report of War Department.

For catalogue address
COL. O. J. BOND,
Charleston, S. C.

14 High Units required for admission. Limited enrollment makes early application necessary.

The University of South Carolina

1801 1919

The University offers courses leading to the following degrees:

1. School of Arts and Science, A. B. and B. S.
2. School of Education, A. B.
3. Graduate School, A. M.
4. School of Engineering, C. E.
5. School of Law, LL. B.
6. Military Science and Tactics compulsory for Freshmen and Sophomores. Reserve Officers Training Corps.

For students of Education, Law, Engineering and those pursuing higher graduate work, the University offers exceptional advantages. Next session begins September 17, 1919. For information, write

W. S. CURRELL, President, COLUMBIA, S. C.

Select Your College Now

Certificates of Credits and Applications For Rooms Are Steadily Coming In

DAVIDSON will again have the R. O. T. C. This, with supervised athletics under a coach of long experience and wide reputation, will insure proper development of the body. The work of the class room, the literary societies, and the editing and issuing of three college publications will give ample field for mind training. A Christian faculty and a choice body of clean-living young men afford a most wholesome influence for character making. The average student body is 350 (last year), from fourteen states and three foreign countries. It is possible for a student to know every man on the campus. Your college will inevitably impress its stamp upon you. Select a SAFE college—one that you can look back upon after four years and say with pride: "There is my alma mater."

Fifteen units required for entrance.
Write for bulletin.

DAVIDSON COLLEGE
DAVIDSON, N. C.

The Blue Cross, a paper published in Switzerland in the interest of total abstinence, gives some particulars in regard to President Wilson's habits in Europe which have not reached this country by the usual channels of news. It appears, for example, that at a great banquet given in his honor at Paris, President Wilson drank only water and a cup of tea. The report says that the formula "I raise my glass in your honor" was replaced by a simple "I greet you." The newspaper remarks that he declined the wines of which France is so proud, and observed the prohibition that his people had imposed upon the soldiers and sailors. The statement is copied also from a French paper that "The President of the United States drinks only water."

Wise men say that if we could see ourselves as others see us, we wouldn't believe it.—Tit-Bits.

HENS MOULT FAST.

E. J. Reefer, the poultry expert, has discovered a scientific product that hastens the moult and revitalizes the organs of the hen and puts her in fine laying condition. The tonic is called "More Eggs" and a package of it is enough to carry the ordinary chicken raiser over the entire moulting season. First to lay is first to pay. "Since using 'More Eggs' I get forty to fifty eggs a day, instead of eight or nine," writes A. P. Woodward, of St. Cloud, Fla. A million dollar bank guarantees that you can have your money back if you want it. So, you don't take any risk. Send $1.00 for a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic. If you want to hurry the moult and get more eggs, act at once; it means more profit for you. Don't wait, but order today. Send $1 today to E. J. Reefer, 4th Floor, Poultry Bldg., Kansas City, Missouri. Or ask Mr. Reefer for his valuable poultry book free, that tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry.

TEACHERS WANTED—Several vacancies in Grove Institute—Preparatory School for Girls. State subject best prepared to teach, and send testimonials in first letter, with stamp for reply. Inexperienced teachers not considered. W. F. Hollingsworth, Kenansville, N. C.

YOUR FACE?
Is the Complexion Mud-dy, Tanned, Freckled?
If troubled with skin eruptions, sunburn, pimples, try
PALMER'S SKIN-SUCCESS SOAP
It cleanses, softens and clears the skin and tends to remove sunburn, tan, freckles, blackheads, pimples and eczema.
Thoroughly antiseptic. Ask your druggist, or write for free samples to
THE MORGAN DRUG CO.,
1521 Atlantic Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

PREPARE FOR A LARGER SALARY

In times of Peace prepare for a better job at a larger salary. Modern business demands trained men and women experts. The better the training the larger your salary will be. Today our graduates are in the front ranks of modern business. Enroll with this well-equipped business college, and help to make your future success secure. Handsome catalogue mailed on request. You can enter any time. School open all summer.

Wings Business College
Raleigh, N. C. and Charlotte, N. C.

VIRGINIA CHRISTIAN COLLEGE
Lynchburg, Virginia.

This College, a leading Senior College of Virginia, affords a wholesome religious life and Christian atmosphere, including educational advantages under university trained professors. The College campus containing eighty-six and one-half acres in view of the distant mountains and landscape beauty, together with modern FIRE-PROOF buildings containing every modern condition are ideal.

The health conditions are unsurpassed. Five mineral and two fresh water springs give abundant proof that the health conditions are ideal.

A Christian education is the hope of America. The College is equipped with excellent laboratories and studios for the study of all courses, including the Bible, Art, Music, Voice, etc. The cost per annum is as low as $255. We invite your patronage and support. Write for catalogue.

J. T. T. HUNDLEY, President.

PEACE INSTITUTE
RALEIGH, NORTH CAROLINA
For Young Women. Established 1857

College Courses. Preparatory Courses for Standard College Requirements. Special Diplomas, Piano, Voice, Art, Expression and Home Economics. Commercial Course. Teacher Training Course. Specialists in all departments.

LULA B. WYNNE HALL, Home School For Girls.
MISS MARY OWEN GRAHAM, Pres.

The Measure of a College

Elegance of buildings and grounds and wealth of equipment and endowment do not make a college. The REAL MEASURE of a college is found in its ideal—in the personality of its teaching force, and in the quality of its teaching. The real work in education is accomplished by the person. The school can rise no higher than the character of those who give it life.

MITCHELL COLLEGE

maintains a faculty of men and women of strong Christian character and influence, whose qualifications for teaching have been gained by years of thorough preparation and experience. The classes at Mitchell College are small, insuring for each student the utmost benefit of individual instruction.

Well Planned Courses Offered in All College Subjects

Courses of superior excellence in English, Bible, Music, Expression, Home Economics, and Business. The Department of Music is in charge of a graduate of the Hague Conservatory.

Measure These Advantages

Invigorating climate, small classes, efficient instruction, supervised evening study for all, home life, and positive Christian influence; moderate expenses.

A Preparatory Department offering the best advantages is maintained. Catalog on request.

J. M. MOORE, President, STATESVILLE, N. C.

A SUCCESSFUL SOCIETY.

Some one furnishes the following "Helps to a Successful Young People's Society:"

- A consecrated president.
- Business-like business meetings.
- Committees that are active.
- Devotional meetings that are spiritual.
- Enterprising advertising committees.
- Faithful members.
- Godly living by the members.
- Holy Spirit to aid.
- Intelligent interest in the church.
- Juniors encouraged.
- Knowledge of God's Word and the Church.
- Literature wisely distributed.
- Money freely given for society expenses.
- New methods occasionally.
- Open-hearted cordiality.
- Prayerful preparation.
- Quarreling unknown.
- Reading good literature.
- Soul-saving a constant object.
- Thorough preparation of the topic.
- United action in all things.
- Voluntary participation.
- Work, work, work.
- 'Xtra efforts when the work lags.
- Young people all enlisted.
- Zeal and consecration.

LADIES CAN WEAR SHOES

One size smaller and shoes last longer after using Allen's Foot-Ease, the anti-septic powder for the feet. Shaken into the shoes and sprinkled in the foot-bath, Allen's Foot-Ease makes tight or new shoes feel easy; gives instant relief to corns and bunions, prevents Blisters, Callous and Sore Spots. It's the greatest comfort discovery of the age. Try it today. Sold everywhere.

He who lends a hand to others will find others footing his bills.

MONTREAT LOT FOR SALE—
Beautiful situation near postoffice. For particulars, address W. F. Hollingsworth, Kenansville, N. C.

PASTOR WANTED.

The Edgemont Presbyterian Church of Durham, N. C., is without a pastor and wishes to enter into correspondence with any one seeking a pastorate. For particulars address T. B. Fuller, Durham, N. C.

Montreat Camp for rent for season.
Two shacks, partly furnished and tent platform. Price $25.00. D. C. Whitted, Box 941, Wilmington, N. C.

We secure positions for teachers, who are normal and college graduates, throughout the South and Southwest. Write us. THE YATES-FISHER TEACHERS' AGENCY, 326 Stahlman Building, Nashville, Tenn.

DR. J. M. BELK, MONROE, N. C.

W. H. BELK, CHARLOTTE, N. C.

Belk Bros. Dept. Stores

CHARLOTTE, NORTH CAROLINA

19 STORES

Send us your orders for Bibles, Testaments, Confession of Faith, or Book of Church Order, for quick delivery. 10 percent discount for Sunday Schools, Societies, or Churches, Preachers or Teachers—and in dozens we will give you wholesale price.

WHY NOT HAVE A BIBLE OR TESTAMENT IN EVERY SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLAR'S HANDS EVERY SUNDAY? WE WILL HELP DO THIS. WRITE TO US FOR THE PLAN. NELSON'S BIBLES

1184—Sunday School Scholar's Bible. Practical Helps for Young People. How to study the Bible. How to study the lesson. Bible questions and answers all in this Bible. Good black type, red edges, leatheroid binding. Size 5½x4x1. Special.....98c

Same Bible, gilt edge, better leather binding, illustrated ..$1.25 and $1.50

12—Linen Card Back Bible. Good big print. Fine for the Sunday School classes, about 6x5x1.....75c

1148—Sunday School Bible. Linen board backs, black type, 5x4x1...59c
7764—Teacher's Bible, $5.00.

India Linen Paper, self pronouncing Bible Dictionary, Combined Concordance, 12 Colored Maps, Morocco Binding, Silk Sewed, good print. Size 7¾x5½x1¼$5.00

6512—Teacher's Edition Bible—New and instructive maps, 14 maps, placed throughout the Bible, illustrating the Scripture, 20 beautifully colored pictures, complete Bible Dictionary, new Concordance and Helps. Leather binding, strongly made. Black face type. Size 7x5x1½$2.50
6512—Teacher's Bible, $3.95.

Linen Paper, thumb index, illustrated colored pictures, 12 new maps, Bible Dictionary, Morocco leather binding. Black face type, convenient size, 7x5-1¼. Special$3.95

1212—Illustrated Bible. 4,000 questions and answers, short history of each book of the Bible by A. T. Pierson, D.D. Harmony of the four Gospels. How to study the Bible. Colored maps. 7x5½x1½.....$2.00
7764—Teacher's Bible, $5.95.

Self pronouncing Bible, new, improved maps, finely illustrated, combined Concordance, 12 colored maps, newest and most complete dictionary yet printed. Morocco binding, silk sewed, a beautiful Bible. 8x5½...$5.95
Why not have a Confession of Faith in Every Home? We carry them in stock for your convenience—50c, 75c.

BOOK OF CHURCH ORDER.
Every officer in the Presbyterian Church ought to have this Book and study it. We will mail you one for 25c.

NELSON'S TESTAMENTS

402—New Testament, 65c.
Bound in leatheroid, large black face type. Size 6x5.

321—New Testament, 48c.
Bound same as 402. Black type. Size 5x3½.

400—New Testament, 25c.
This is a special number. Large black type, cardboard back, clear white paper—the quality equals most 50c books. Special25c

29—New Testament. Vest pocket size, leatheroid binding, fine for the children25c
403—New Testament, 98c.

This is leather bound. Large black type, gilt edge. Size 6x4½.

403P—New Testament and Psalms. Leather bound, gilt edge. Large print$1.19

SCHOFIELD BIBLES

We carry these in the newest Editions, bound in good, heavy Linen Cardboard backs, or can send you the finest Leather Bound. If you want a Bible to get "REAL HELP" right at home—the newest improved help—a Schofield Bible is the one to buy.

No 50—Linen Cardboard Backs. Good black type, with every help at home. Same helps as the highest price Bible. Size of Book 7x5-1¼.....$1.50

No. 70—Same as above, only larger size type and book, 8½x6½x1¼ $2.00

We carry Schofield Bibles in all kinds of Bindings—Morocco, Persian, Etc. Real Linen Paper, from $5.00 to $10. Let us send you one on approval.

We carry all kinds of New Testaments from 15c to $2.00.

ROOM FOR YOUR BROOM.

Every housewife's problem is far simpler if she has a good place in which to keep brooms, brushes and other cleaning-day equipment than if she just tries to find place for these things any place and every place. If you are living in your own house, no matter how small that place may be, you should find room for a special broom closet. If you have to have a corner taken off from your kitchen for it, or a niche out of the back hall to accommodate it, it is well worth while. If you can not have a real closet then it is worth while to have a special locker for these things. Get the carpenter in the neighborhood to construct a sort of wardrobe that you can set up in your kitchen to take these things, and you can take it with you from the house if you move.

Such a closet should have hooks on which brooms and brushes can be hung. There are broom clamps that can be fastened on the wall that will hold brooms and if you can get some of these they are a good idea. There should be a shelf about a foot or six inches from the floor, wide enough to accommodate cleaning pails and scrub brushes. Pails should be turned on their side when not in use. So should scrub brushes. Cleaning clothes should first be well rinsed out and then dried outdoors if possible. If not they should be spread in the broom closet. Therefore have a towel rack arranged on the side of the closet where you can hang these clothes. There should be a shelf at the top of the closet where you can keep piles of clean dusters and cloths, and perhaps a bag in which you can quickly deposit clean old clothes which you think would make good floor cloths or other house rags. A good idea is to have extra soap and other cleaning agents in this closet.

Good brooms and brushes are very high in price nowadays, and they should, therefore, be well taken care of. Brooms should not be allowed to get very soiled, but should be free from grime. Never use a broom that you have for rugs and carpet for outdoor work. A broom that is too old for inside work should be saved for this.

An example of the careless way in which news concerning the Methodist Episcopal Church is often handled by some daily newspapers, was given last week when one of the great papers of Boston published what purported to be an account of the Boston Methodist Social Union held the previous evening in People's Temple. The fact of the matter was that the banquet had been postponed until June 2 on account of the Centenary drive, and the newspaper in question had not taken the pains to investigate whether or not the meeting was held, writing an account from the original announcement. It solemnly told among other things that "there were about three hundred present." One of the most inexplicable things about many daily newspapers is the slight attention which they give to church news. Experts are employed for baseball, and finance, and markets, and every other special interest, but almost anybody is good enough—or bad enough—to handle religious gatherings. Why is this so?—Zion's Herald.

CHARLOTTE MARBLE & GRANITE WORKS

MEMORIALS OF QUALITY

"WE LEAD"

Quality First

Prices Right

Workmanship

Unsurpassed

Memorials in Silver Georgia Marble are unsurpassed in beauty and durability.

CHARLOTTE MARBLE & GRANITE WORKS
WEST 7th ST. AND SOUTHERN RAILWAY
"Cemetery Gate" Phone 281-CHARLOTTE, N. C.

Get Better Baking at Less Cost

OCCO-NEE-CHEE Self-Rising Flour is the most economical flour you can buy. You don't have to use either baking powder, soda or salt, you save their cost. Mixed with OCCO-NEE-CHEE Self-Rising Flour, in the exact proportions, are the very best baking powder, soda and salt. It's a real pleasure to bake with this flour because

OCCO-NEE-CHEE Self-Rising Flour

Takes the Guess out of Baking and Saves you Money

And talk about good biscuits, muffins or waffles—OCCO-NEE-CHEE Self-Rising Flour makes the best you ever tasted. Get a bag of OCCO-NEE-CHEE Self-Rising Flour today. Bake an extra supply of these good things because they'll be eaten mighty fast. Look for the Indian Head on the bag. At all grocers.

When you prefer to bake with plain flour buy Peerless—the best.

AUSTIN-HEATON CO., Durham, N. C.

It Will Pay

you to consult the house of Allan if interested in Diamonds, Watches, Jewelry or Silverware.

The most skilful artists and artisans produce their goods. The quality and price are guaranteed by this firm, whose sixty years of service prove that the past and present generations are well pleased.

A catalogue on request.

JAMES ALLAN & CO.,
Department A.,
283 King Street,
CHARLESTON, S. C.

THE HALLMARK
STORE

QUEEN OF THEM ALL.

Here is a pass-it-around poem that is making the circuit in the Northern Michigan papers: "A health to the girl that can dance like a dream, and the girl that can pound the piano; a health to the girl that writes verse by the ream, or toys with high C in soprano; to the girl that can talk, and the girl that does not, to the saint and the sweet little sinner, but here's to the cleverest girl of the lot—the girl that can cook a good dinner."

"THE VALLEY OF VISION."

Henry Van Dyke.

Varied stories dealing with human love and faith, with dreams and realities, with things that will last now that the war is ended but not forgotten. One of the longest is a vision of three unknown days in the life of Jesus of Nazareth. It belongs with "The Story of the Other Wise Man," which has gone around the world.

PRICE $1.50, Net.

— Order from —

PRESBYTERIAN COMMITTEE OF PUBLICATION

Richmond, Va. Texarkana, Ark.-Tex.

UNITED STATES RAILROAD ADMINISTRATION

Norfolk Southern Railroad

Passenger Train Schedules.

(Arrivals and departures Charlotte daily unless otherwise shown). Published as information only and not guaranteed.

Leave Arrives

6:30 A.M. Mt. Gilead.
Star,
Asheboro,
Varina,
Raleigh,
Wilson,
Greenville,
Washington,
Norfolk, 2:45 P. M.

For full information call on your near est ticket agent or write to
G. R. Steele, J. T. Helms,
C. T. A., D. T. A.,
Charlotte, N. C. Charlotte, N. C.
W. J. Williams, Traf. Agt.,
Raleigh, N. C.

Aberdeen & Rockfish Railroad

Between Aberdeen and Fayetteville

Eastbound		Westbound
Daily Ex. Sunday	Mixed Pass.	Daily Ex. Sunday	Mixed Pass.
No. 22	No. 38	No. 41	No. 21
7 30 am	9 10 am	Lv. Aberdeen Ar.	6 41 pm
8 25 am	10 00 am	Rae ford	5 55 pm
12 10 pm		Ar. Fayetteville Lv.	4 50 pm
4 00 pm	11 20 am		1 00 pm

WAGRAM BRANCH

Southbound		Northbound
Daily Ex. Sun.	Mixed	Daily Ex. Sun.	Mixed
No. 11		No. 12
Lv. 10 30 am	Rae ford	Ar. 12 40 pm
Ar. 11 15 am	Wagram	Lv. 12 00 noon

W. A. BLUE, General Supt.,
Aberdeen, N. C.

THE PARABLES OF SAFED THE SAGE.

The Parable of the Bumble Bee.

We came, I and Keturah, to the place where we are wont to spend our Summers. And we walked under the great Pine Trees, and I went with uncovered head, for I reverence them. And we came nigh unto the nest of a Bumble Bee, and I knew it not. And a Bumble Bee flew at me furiously, and he assailed my head, and he thrust out his sting.

And Keturah saw him, and she cried out, Alas, my husband, for he hath stung thee on the forehead.

And I answered, and said, I am very grateful to that Bumble Bee.

And she said, Hasten, and put something on it, ere it swell.

And I said, My head is not swelled, neither shall that Bumble Bee swell it. He stung me not, and I am very thankful to him.

And she said, If he stung thee not, I am glad. But I know not why I should be thankful. For it was in his heart to sting.

And I said, My hair groweth thin, and my friends say, Safed groweth toward baldness. But this bee got tangled in my hair. He that hath hair enough to entangle a Bumble Bee is not bald.

And I considered how many are the annoyances of life, and even of its threatened dangers, that afford us ground for joy, if we only know how to interpret them.—Congregationalist and Advance.

LULLABY FOR A BABY TANK.

By H. T. Craven.

(Apologies to Lord Tennyson.)

Squat and low, squat and low,
Tank of the Western Front,
Feared by foe, brave Gouraud
Welcomes thy features blunt.
Over the rugged trenches go,
Crawling from Soissons or Belleau,
Trundle foreshortened runt.
Creep, my little one, over each brittle
Hun, creep.

Creep and rest, creep and rest,
Rest on the Teuton's toes;
Sleep, sleep, on the France we'll keep,
Victory bring thee repose.
Lie in thy cradle—a crater deprest
Deep as German hopes in the west,
Sunk in their August woes.
Sleep, my gritty one, wee, unpretty one, sleep. —Public Ledger.

Education must not be narrow. We go to the school of manual arts, but our mind goes far beyond manual arts to languages, to religion, to philosophy. Education should be made all-around. The world is big, and it is all ours to know about, to conquer. Manual arts for living, perhaps, but the whole world for an education.

You can help your fellow men, you must help your fellow men; but the only way you can help them is by being the noblest and best man that it is possible for you to be.—Phillips Brooks.

Nadine Face Powder

(In Green Boxes Only)

Keeps The Complexion Beautiful

Soft and velvety. Money back if not entirely pleased. Nadine is pure and harmless. Adheres until washed off. Prevents sunburn and return of discolorations. A million delighted users prove its value. Tints: Flesh, Pink, Brunette, White. By Leading Toilet Counters or Mail, Dept. R. P. National Toilet Company Paris, Tenn.

UNITED STATES RAILROAD ADMINISTRATION.

ROUND TRIP EXCURSION

Summer tourist tickets on sale May 15th limited for return to October 31st, 1919, to

- Virginia Beach, Va.
- Cape Henry, Va.
- Norfolk, Va.
- Morehead City, N. C.
- Beaufort, N. C.
- Nag's Head, N. C.
- Manteo, N. C.

WEEK-END FARES

to above named points. Tickets on sale every Saturday and Sunday, May 24th, to September 7th, limited to return Tuesday following date of sale.

SUNDAY EXCURSIONS

- Virginia Beach, Va.
- Norfolk, Va.
- Morehead City, N. C.
- Cape Henry, Va.
- Beaufort, N. C.

Tickets on sale every Sunday limited to day of sale May 25th to September 8th.

For fares, descriptive folders and other information apply to nearest ticket agent.

United States Railroad Administration

ROUND-TRIP

SUMMER TOURIST FARES

to SEASHORE RESORTS' Special Reduced Fares From All Points

- to
- Morehead City, N. C.
- Beaufort, N. C.
- Norfolk, Va.
- Virginia Beach, Va.
- Cape Henry, Va.
- Nag's Head, N. C.
- Manteo, N. C.

Tickets on sale daily, May 15th to Sept. 30th, 1919, final limit for return October 31st, 1919.

For additional information ask your nearest ticket agent or write to

J. F. DALTON, G. P. A.,
Norfolk Southern R. R.,
Norfolk, Va.

Sparkles

A Diplomat.

He was not a man of wealth, but of comfortable means; all the same, he resented exorbitant charges which the hotel manager imposed.

"Why, look here!" he complained, thrusting the bill into the manager's face. "I see you have charged up fifty cents a day for attendance, and I couldn't get any! I'm sure I tugged at the bell rope in my room dozens of times, but got no answer."

"In that case you had better give me the bill and I will have it altered," was the reply.

When, however, the bill was again presented, the total was found to be the same, and upon the visitor pointing it out, the manager explained:

"Yes, sir, but I have substituted 'physical exercise' in place of the attendance items."

"Physical exercise!" repeated the bewildered visitor.

"Quite right, sir," was the answer. "According to your own statement you have been exercising on the dumb bells for a week."—Ex.

Henry's mother had cautioned him about eating too much when he was invited out.

One day the little boy was visiting a rather cross old aunt and after he had asked three times for more dessert she exclaimed:

"My goodness, child, you do certainly eat an awful lot for a small boy!"

"Well, Aunt Grace," replied Henry, somewhat conscience stricken, "maybe I'm not as little as I look from the outside."—Harper's Magazine.

For the Complexion.

For giving the face a good color, buy a box of rouge and a rabbit's foot. Bury them two miles from where you live and walk out and back once a day to see that they are still there.—Times-Star.

"It is the duty of every one to make at least one person happy during the week," said a Sunday school teacher. "Have you done so, Freddy?" "Yes." "What did you do?" "I went to see my aunt, and she was happy when I went home."—Exchange.

Counting the Cost.

Prospective Bridegroom. (in furniture shop)—"These prices make me give up all thoughts of marriage. I now realize it'll be cheaper to let her sue me for breach of promise."—London Opinion.

Past vs. Present.

"Strange Edith should invite that horrid grass-widow to her wedding; she has such a disagreeable past."

"Yes, my dear, but she's rich enough to furnish a very agreeable present."—Boston Transcript.

"THERE'S A REASON" Is More Than a Slogan---IT'S A FACT

There Is a Reason Why Most Things Are as They Are. SOME FACTS:

We do printing for concerns in five states. 70 per cent of our business comes to us unsolicited. When we once get a customer we rarely lose him. 50 per cent of our business is handed us without a request for a quotation on prices. Our business is growing all the time. These are the facts. Can you find the reason?

SEND US YOUR JOB PRINTING AND FIND OUT WHY OTHERS ARE PLEASED.

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD PUBLISHING COMPANY
CHARLOTTE (Telephone 643) NORTH CAROLINA

4 Per Cent

Time Certificates of Deposit

They are Interest Bearing. They are Payable on Demand. They Afford a Good Income for Funds Awaiting Permanent Investment

GET ONE

AMERICAN TRUST COMPANY

Charlotte

::

North Carolina

YES, Preachers and Teachers Are Human

They should have no discount and no cheaper railroad fares than you and I. They should be paid for services rendered—amply paid. If he can't earn enough for family use and the nest egg for the future, he made a sad mistake as to family, else he should change his calling instanter.

The Mutual Building & Loan

Will save a man and his family if they're worth saving, but they must help. It furnishes the "sure cure," but boasts no regrets at the demise of a feller who deliberately refuses to take the medicine.

E. L. KEESLER, Sec. & Treas., 25 S. Tryon St., CHARLOTTE, N. C.

Charlotte National Bank Resources $4,000,000.00

CHARLOTTE, N. C.

PAYS FOUR PER CENT.

On Either Time Certificates of Deposit or Savings Accounts

MAIL ORDER Business Solicited and PROMPT ATTENTION Given

JOHN M. SCOTT	President
W. J. CHAMBERS	Vice-President
J. F. ROBERTSON	Vice-President
W. H. TWITTY	Cashier
C. W. BUTT	Assistant Cashier

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

REV. J. R. BRIDGES, D. D.

EDITORS

REV. C. REED, D. D.

VOL. LX.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., July 2, 1919.

No. 26.

America the Blessed

George Henry Hubbard, in Zion's Herald.

America the blessed,
In this thy Golden Age,
With "Liberty" thy watchword
And faith thine heritage,
Thou hast the prophet's vision
Of world-wide unity,
And thou the gift transcendent
Of opportunity.

In pain the whole creation
Is groaning for release;
The peoples, battle-weary,
Await the Prince of Peace.
The Star of Hope ascending
Illumes the eastern skies:
Oh, haste! before its setting
Achieve thy great emprise.

The Lord of hosts, thy Leader,
Doth gird thee for the fray;
His trumpet calls to action
In this eventful day.

Be truth thy shield and buckler,
Thy sword the Word of God,
The cross thy radiant banner,
Thy feet be Gospel-shod.

No diadem imperial Shall crown thy victory,
But righteousness and justice
And true democracy.
Thy lure a world delivered,
Thy quest the common good,
The freedom of the nations
And human brotherhood.

Go forth to bloodless conquest:
The world before thee lies.
Be thine the meed of service,
The joy of sacrifice:
Until in splendor rises
Upon earth's hallowed sod
One nation undivided,
The kingdom of our God.

July 4, 1776 - July 4, 1919

Editorial

Buy the Book.

MRS. LOUISE SEYMOUR HOUGHTON has written a Handbook of Protestantism in France and Belgium with a distinctly altruistic purpose. It is published for the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America by the Missionary Education Movement. This points it out at once, not as a work for personal profit, but as a means of Christian propaganda. It is designed to supply information which all American Christians ought to have, and which should be of special interest to all Presbyterian Christians.

The Protestants of France and Belgium are not all Presbyterians; there are some Lutherans, some Methodists and a few Baptists, but at least eighty per cent are Presbyterians. The majority are descendants of the old Huguenot Church—a Church whose children were scattered in all lands.

This book by Mrs. Seymour is abundantly worth having for its own sake. It tells briefly and skillfully the history of the Reformed Church in France from its origin in the early years of the 16th Century down to the present. This history possesses all the interest which attaches to the progress of the gospel amid perils and persecutions, trials and tragedies, massacres and martyrdoms. The symbol of the Huguenot Church was the burning bush, the bush that burned but was not consumed. The fire that was kindled in the middle of the 16th Century ceased not to burn with varying intensity until it was quenched by that deluge of blood which marked the famous Revolution of 1789. Even this did not mean the end of trouble. Napoleon laid his heavy hand on the Church, and set a close limit to its activities and expansion.

Mrs. Seymour in giving the later history of the Church has had superior advantages. She has not only had access to all the ordinary sources of knowledge but she has had the assistance of all the present-day workers in the Churches of France and Belgium. Professors in the theological schools, chairmen of missionary committees, and leading pastors have been more than willing to furnish abundant data as to present conditions and methods of work. This has enabled the author to fill her pages chock full of detailed information touching the many enterprises of the Church. Those who wish to do so, can acquaint themselves with the attitude of French Protestantism toward all the outstanding problems of the day—its attitude toward the relation of Church and State, toward social Christianity, toward industrial reforms, and what it is doing in missions at home and abroad. They will discover that the influence of French Protestantism is entirely disproportionate to its numerical size. It is taking the lead in all movements tending to bring France abreast with modern methods of moral and religious progress. Protestantism has introduced into France the Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A., the Boy Scouts, homes for working girls, fresh air funds, and other forms of humanitarianism. Since 1818, it has distributed 15,000,000 Bibles and New Testaments, and has made extensive use of Religious Tract Societies.

Those who do not care for so much detailed information, will find themselves amply repaid for the price of this book by the general sketch of the history contained in the first fifty pages, and the thrilling story of what our Protestant brethren in France and Belgium have done and suffered in the great war. They have won merited recognition for brave and patriotic service. While they have suffered grievous losses, those that remain occupy high vantage ground.

Never in its history has France been so well prepared by providential circumstances to listen to the message which Protestantism has to give. We want to help them give it, we must help them give it. We must help them rebuild their churches, their manses, their schools, and thus enable them to respond to the call of God's gracious Special Providence.

Buy this book. It was written for you. It was commended to you by the recent General Assembly. The price is only 75 cents. You can order it from the Missionary Education Movement, New York. Order immediately, lest you forget.

A Word for the Parsons.

Parsons in general, like good wine, need no bush, it is true, yet there are times when a few words are needed to clear up any misunderstanding of that most worthy class of men. Our esteemed friend, Dr. Raynall, in his charming article, entitled "Present Dearth of Parsons," published in our issue of June 18th, after mentioning the drawbacks in a young man's home that kept him from the ministry, gives the following as the final obstacle:

"3. And finally, the young man may escape the influence of the world, the flesh and the devil, but he cannot escape the impressions made upon him by the ministry itself. He can certainly feel no very vast or irresistible impulses toward a long tailed coat and a limp back Bible. He sees in the world of forthright men and women a sort of tertium quid—a thing that gives the impression of belonging to neither sex. This phenomenon impinges itself upon his consciousness in a way that carries with the effect produced, the inescapable suggestions of an anxious uncertainty and an humble and apologetic desire not to be kicked."

This is very bright, but it speaks more for the head than the heart, and those who know the gentle spirit of the writer, his fairness at all times and his unflinching charity in judging the weaknesses of men, are confident that he did not intend this charge to be as sweeping as the context would demand. The long tailed coat has been relegated to innocuous desuetude, and has been replaced by the bob-tailed jacket, while the fact that a Bible has a limp back does not prevent it from being the Sword of the Spirit. The preacher of this day with but few exceptions is by no means "a thing of neither sex," nor does he impress one as being desirous of escaping without a kick.

We have been in the ministry for nearly forty years and during that time we have met thousands of parsons, but at the present time we can recall none that filled the above description. We have met rough ones and smooth ones; some that murdered English and some that murdered theology; some that reeked of nicotine and some of cheap perfume, but take them all, in all, they measured up to real men. Among those we have known and admired for the qualities of head and heart, our friend who wrote the above words stands first. It is for this reason therefore that we are confident that these words carry a meaning that he by no means intended.

Of course you can find some exceptions in the ministry—but these freaks constitute such a small proportion of the goodly company that they should be overlooked. Let the novel-writers and moving pictures caricature the parsons, but let us remember that none of us can afford to cast the first stone.

The Growing Evil of Divorce.

The family is the foundation of the State, and as the stream can never rise above its source, so the State can never be pure when the family life is corrupt. History teaches that corrupt family life and loose marriage ties are always the precursors of the State's downfall, while on the other hand, no matter how poor may be the soil and cheerless the climate, that State is great that is founded upon pure home life. Our lawmakers seem blind to these plain teachings of history, and though in this State, for example, it was once the law that divorce could be granted only on one Scriptural ground, each session of our Legislature our representatives tinker with this law and add to it till now our record of divorces threatens to become a disgrace to the State.

When we learn that the annual divorce decrees are 32 to every 100,000 people we begin to realize the pace at which we are going. Last year there were 900 divorces granted in this State, and when we read the records of the courts, it would appear that the judges spend more time in granting divorces than in dispensing justice. The Apostle speaks of certain given over to a strong delusion that they should believe a lie. This generation seems to be in that condition. There seems to be a lowering of the moral standard between men and women. It is seen in the relation between boys and girls, liberties being allowed that would never have been permitted less than 50 years ago. Mock marriages have taken from the marriage ceremony much of that sacred sense of responsibility, with the consequence that it is too often entered into without one thought of its solemn nature. The courts too have felt the influence of these prevailing customs, and they cut asunder ties that God says must be for life. Marriages entered into thus thoughtlessly are bound to result in a demoralized family life, which in turn will react upon the life of the State with the result that, unless history teaches false, the State will perish.

The Christian people are in the majority in this country, yet they quietly allow their law makers to overturn God's laws and bring ruin to the family life. They need to remember that God will hold them responsible for their failure to make their influence felt. They should rise in their wrath and let it be known that this covert attack upon our family life must cease, and that when men and women are joined together no man must put them asunder save for the Scriptural ground.

We rejoice to learn that the Ministerial Union of Danville, Va., numbering seventeen ministers, took the following action: "That we put ourselves on record as unwilling to officiate at the marriage of any divorced person unless satisfied that the said divorced person was the innocent person in a divorce granted on Scriptural grounds."

Statistics are dry reading, yet they sometimes startle us out of our smug complacency. Think of over 100,000 divorces in one year in this country. With more than 70,000 children, mostly under 10 years of age, deprived of one or both parents. To follow statistics further would sicken one. Something must be done to arouse the public conscience, else only ruin awaits our land.

Labor and Its Beer.

In judging the merits of the struggle between capital and labor, it is well to remember that labor's case gets no such hearing as that of capital, which should make us cautious about taking sides in the controversy. Like all controversies, it has two sides, and if we know one side as well as the other, no doubt our judgment would be modified. While labor in the main, under the guidance of Mr. Gompers, loyally supported the President in his war measures, there were many cases in which labor did not show up very well. Since the armistice it certainly has done little to win the sympathetic support of the public; but on the other hand it has taken advantage of the disturbed conditions of the business world to foment strikes and unsettle business in every way.

In their recent meeting they protested against any failure to repeal the prohibition of beer and light wine. Then thousands assembled in Washington, near the Capitol, and in a striking way they tried to frighten Congress into repeal of this provision. There were orators, male and female, and the female especially indulged in language that would seem to indicate that thus far in her case there had been no prohibition of either beer or wine. Since then Mr. Gompers has warned the Administration that however much he may try, he may be unable to restrain his followers, if the repeal is not carried.

Here is a man who claims to control the labor party of the United States, and who has often threatened to call a national strike, merely by issuing an order, yet when the question is one of upholding a law, he professes his inability to control. There is a great difference between a demagogue and a statesman. The latter are never very abundant. Labor would gain much stronger support if its leaders would show more regard for law, than they have been doing these past years.

Man's Will and God's Will.

The history of the human race is a conflict between man's will and God's will. It greets us in Eden, when God willed that man should not eat and man willed that he would eat. Down, from the fall of man through the long history of man's descent, we see the will of man over-riding the will of God, with the result that while man advanced in some features of civilization, he steadily declined in spiritual life. When our Lord laid down faith as the sole condition of salvation, He did so in order that man's reason should be subordinate to God's commands. There are many commands in the Bible for which we can see no reason why they should be given, yet it is not ours to reason why, but only to obey.

Unfortunately man in his pride imagines that he has a right to do whatever he pleases to do, unless he can see a moral evil in it, forgetting that the value of obedience lies in the fact that we obey, because God commands and not because we can understand. The equality of woman with man, on its face, appeals to our sense of justice, and it is reinforced by our conviction that in the finer qualities that enter into life she is his superior, and for that reason it is sweeping the country, with the almost certainty that it will soon be the law of our land.

It is in vain that you remind Christian men and women that the subordination of woman is plainly taught in the Bible, as the penalty of woman's first transgression, and that the woman's elevation in the State is in direct conflict with Scripture.

You are answered, not by Scripture, but by human reasons, as if the best of human reasons can stand in the presence of the divine teachings. One is the product of man's will, while the other is God's will. Thus we are drifting far away from the old moorings. We are losing that keen sense of spiritual values, and instead of being anxious to do only what He wills, we are becoming more intent on doing our own.

Some of us may have a conscience that magnifies the little things, yet it is far safer than to brush aside God's plain teachings, because our own reason tells us that it is expedient, or that it is in keeping with the trend of the advanced thought of a new age.

Contributed

Mountains to the Fore

By Rev. E. V. Tadlock.

IF there is joy in heaven over one sinner that repenteth more than over ninety and nine just persons that need no repentance, progress in remote and difficult mission fields must be a source of peculiar satisfaction to the heavenlies and should be an inspiration to the church.

The campaign outlined in the June Missionary Survey by the Assembly's Home Mission Committee for mountain institutions is dictated by a development that should make the church sit up and take notice. Many will learn with interest that these were the schools founded by the late E. O. Guerrant, maintained by the Society of Soul Winners, and transferred to the Assembly's Committee as the Guerrant Inland Mission.

They are Highland School, Geurrant, Ky.; Beechwood Seminary, Heidelberg, Ky.; Stuart Robinson School, Blackey, Ky.; Brooks Memorial Academy, Canoe, Ky., and Canyon Falls Academy, Canyon Falls, Ky., all lying in the counties of Breathitt, Lee and Letcher. Each is ideally located to do an unique and needed work.

Beechwood Seminary is in the heart of the Kentucky oil fields, at the center of large lumber interests. The school's superiority attracts students from neighboring town, numbers riding the train daily from Beatyville, the county seat. The children of oil operators, townsmen and rural mountaineers mingle under the tuition of cultured, Christian teachers. Beechwood has been assigned to the Christian Endeavor Societies of the church and largely interesting the young people in mountain missions. It has outgrown its school building, and Mr. McDuffee, the pastor-principal, is also asking for a church building, representing a total outlay of $15,000.

Highland School, on the waters of remote and picturesque Punccheon Camp, is a typical mountain mission school of the larger class. Its agricultural lands enable it to inculcate the principles of Christian rural life. This school is well known throughout the Assembly, and has received favorable comment from numerous quarters. The allied evangelistic activities under the direction of the Rev. W. B. Guerrant are making notable progress. Highland is asking for a new school building, and for a home for the orphans which have been committed to it. Thirty thousand dollars is the sum needed.

Brooks Memorial and Canyon Falls Academies are secondary schools, but their location makes them valuable educational and evangelistic centers. One is developing a boarding department and needs a dormitory, the other a new school building. The outlay will be $6,000.

Stuart Robinson School, near the mouth of two of the largest tributaries of the North Fork of the Kentucky River, is in the heart of one of the richest coal fields in America. While ministering to communities that will long remain remote, it must at the same time face the difficult problems of a mining section. The managements of two nearby coal operations are asking the school to prepare to care for the educational interests of their employees. This source alone will contribute to an enrollment of five hundred students once the operations are well under way. In two years the boarding department has grown from two to fifty and stops there for lack of accommodations.

Properly supported, this should become one of the largest and most useful mountain schools in America. Stuart Robinson is asking for a girls' dormitory to cost $10,000 and a hospital to cost the same.

It is estimated that all these buildings equipped will cost about $80,000. The committee proposes to give dollar for dollar, leaving $40,000 to come from the friends of mountain missions.

No section of America is in more rapid transition. The feudist, like the cowboy, will shortly live only in the romance of the movies. The mountains are writing a different sort of history. "Bloody Breathitt" gave more volunteers to the service than some entire eastern states, and Lee was not far behind. Letcher oversubscribed its apportionment of the Fourth Liberty Loan by a larger per cent than any other county in the Union. The mountaineers are red-blooded Americans, lacking only opportunity to produce a culture equal to any. Those familiar with missions in the mountains of Kentucky believe that God is preparing to write a mighty page.

Money invested in mountain mission schools secures the largest variety of service possible. It provides Christian education, the preaching of the Gospel, the mothering of orphans, the care of the sick, the resident influence and ministrations of lives rich in love. In what more appropriate and blessed way could loved ones be memorialized than in the erection of the above named buildings?

Information will be gladly furnished by Rev. J. W. Tyler, D.D., Winchester, Ky.; Rev. S. L. Morris, D.D., Atlanta, Ga., or by the principals of the schools.

1 Thessalonians 4:13-18.

By Rev. G. F. Robertson.

I would not have you ignorant be
Concerning those who sleep;
Nor like to those whose friends have died,
O'er whom they hopeless weep.

If we believe that Jesus died,
And soon was raised again,
So those who sleep in Him God brings,
A great triumphant train.

For by His Word we say to you
That we who live till then Shall not prevent the dead in Christ
When He shall come again.

When Christ Himself from heav'n descends
With shout and trumpet clear
And angel's voice—the dead in Him
Shall from their graves appear.

When we who live and here remain
Shall with them Jesus meet,
In clouds of heaven, and worship there
At His once-pierced feet.

Wherefore, my Brethren, with these words
Each other comfort give;
I'd have you know that when He comes
The dead in Christ shall live.

A Call for Chaplains for the Navy.

Recently an urgent call has come from the Navy through Chaplain Frazier for additional chaplains to the number of about one hundred.

I have been asked to nominate a few good men from our denomination to be considered in connection with this kind of ministerial work.

The position of Navy Chaplain offers a good field for Christian service. Ministers who would like to be considered for such positions are asked to send me at once a statement to that effect, in order that I may forward their names to the committee.

James I. Vaance,
Chairman of War Work Council.

The World's Flags in Churches of Our Lord and God

By C. T. Hancock.

"My kingdom is not of this world"—John 18-36.

"God has not intrusted to his church the construction of Governments"—Southern Presbyterian General Assembly, session 1861.

"Whenever any Christian church at large has expressed its sentiment about any line * * * * * what is the duty of its loyal members? Unquestionably, obedience while the law stands, unless an enlightened Christian conscience says it will be sinful to obey that law."—Rev. L. C. Vass, D.D.

IT seems from statements that have appeared in our church papers that about the time of the beginning of the conflict of arms between the United States and Germany that some of the Presbyterian churches in the southern portion of the former country put on display in God's house a national flag of their country and in some instances ceremoniously installed the flag therein. Other congregations in the same section of the same country and in the same general ecclesiastical organization took no step whatever in this direction.

Of course, no church of either of these sets intended anything in the least out of the way, that is, there was no intentional withholding by the churches that did not install a flag and keep it on display, either any allegiance or any expression of allegiance that was properly due by each church to the government of the country of which all or most all of its members were citizens; nor on the other hand was there any intention of intruding into the house of God, by those that did install the flags, of anything that did not belong to have a place in God's house.

It seems as if there has been an intention on the part of some, if not all, of the churches that installed these flags to remove them at the end of the war, that is when peace was formerly declared. Of course, if some investigation has indicated that a mistake was made in installing these flags in the churches that have them in, ought not all the churches that have them in to remove them as quickly as possible, and either as quietly as possible, or with some acknowledgement of the mistake that was made if any church believes that the circumstances call for any such acknowledgement on its part?

But, on the other hand, if it is a good thing to have had these flags in some of the churches in time of war, would it not be a good thing to have them in all churches in times of peace as well as in times of war?

And, further if it comes to be counted a certainty that it is a right, appropriate and good thing to have flags of an earthly government in God's house, would it not be a good thing not only for those churches that now have them in to keep them in, but would it not also be a good thing for the other churches that have not yet installed them to follow even now the example set by their sister churches that have led the way along this line?

This divergence in their line of thought and conduct of similar individual organizations, of the same professed faith and in the same general organization gave rise to more or less discussion and controversy as to whether the matter herein spoken of was an optional one, leaving each individual church the right to act for itself in the matter from beginning to end without reference to any other authority; or whether some expression from some higher authority to which each individual church and each individual member of all the churches owed allegiance and obedience made it so that the line of conduct that ought to be followed was at least indicated.

The unexpected differences of opinion and practice that developed along this line at a time of sudden emergency seems to show a need for all our pastors and all our church papers to place before their respective congregations and readers as fully as possible, at reasonably frequent intervals, the teachings of the Bible, and consequently of our church upon every practical subject, but as the war and the exigencies that arose from it are now happily practically things of the past, it does not appear that there is still any need to continue agitation of this subject, except so far as to bring to the front some additional light upon the teachings of the Bible on this subject, and of the stand that our church takes thereon based upon these Bible teachings.

Consequently it is not the intention of the writer to express in this connection any opinion of his own, nor of any other single individual, nor does he intend either to express in his own language what he considers is the position (if any) that our church has taken, based on the teachings of the Bible on the question that has been somewhat under discussion;

But, instead thereof, he will content himself with merely giving certain short extracts from pretty full and plain deliverances of the Southern General Assembly which it would seem ought to enable each reader to judge for himself or herself whether or not our church has taken a position on these matters or not, and if it has what the position is that she has taken.

It appears that the General Assembly of our church has never passed directly upon the specific, comparatively minute particular of the rightfulness or wrongfulness of installing and keeping a national or other civic flag in God's house, but it has given at considerable length broad utterances upon the relationship that should properly be observed between Christian churches on the one side and political institutions on the other, which will apparently reasonably well cover everything involved in this topic.

Not all, but considerable of what has been said by our General Assembly, that is the General Assembly of the Southern Presbyterian Church, was caused to be said by the exigencies of the war between the Northern and Southern States of the American Union. Without any comment the extracts selected will now be given with references to the pages in Alexander's digest of the edition of 1910 where they can be found. They are as applicable now as they were then.

Extracts from Southern Presbyterian General Assembly Deliverances, session 1861:

Alexander's Digest, January, 1910, Page 507—"We expected it [The undivided General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the entire United States before any separation occurred between the Northern and Southern Presbyterian Churches] to bow in reverence only at the name of Jesus. Many dreamed that it would utterly refuse to know either Confederates or Federalists and utterly refuse to give any authoritative decree without a 'Thus saith the Lord.' * * * * * But, alas, for the weakness of man, these golden visions were soon dispelled * * * * * A political theory was to all intents and purposes propounded. Without saying anything here as to the righteousness or the unrighteousness of these decrees what we maintain is that whether right or wrong the church had no right to make them. It transcended its sphere and usurped the duty of the state * * * * *

"The Assembly driven from its ancient moorings was tossed to and fro by the waves of popular passion and like Pilate it obeyed the clamor of the multitude, and though acting in the name of Jesus, it kissed the sceptre, and bowed the knee to the mandates of frenzy."

Page 508—"We [The Southern Presbyterian Church] have never confounded Caesar and Christ, and we have never mixed the issues of this world with the matters that properly belong to us as citizens of the Kingdom of God."

Pages 510 and 511—"God has not entrusted to his church * * * * * the construction of governments."

Session 1865, Page 519—"In regard to conflicts between existing governments * * * * * the church, as such, has no more control over them than it has over the polls of the country. * * * * * To assert the contrary is to

(Continued on page 8)

Dedication of the New Sunday School Building

Of the First Presbyterian Church, Nashville, Tenn.

WHAT some Sunday school experts have pronounced "the most complete Sunday school building in America" was dedicated at Nashville, Tenn., on Sunday afternoon, June 15, 1919. The formal dedicatory exercises had been preceded by a week of congregational gatherings in connection with the event.

New Sunday School Building of the First Presbyterian Church, Nashville, Tenn.

On Sunday, June 8, "Rose Sunday" was observed, when the promotions from the various departments took place, and the Sunday school marched in a body to the church auditorium for the morning service. Monday night Mr. Marion Lawrence delivered a most effective and helpful address to Sunday school workers. Tuesday night the officers of the church met and considered various matters connected with the work of the church.

Wednesday night was "Community Night," when representatives of the other Presbyterian churches in Nashville brought greetings. Addresses were made by Rev. A. S. Allen, Rev. W. C. Alexander, Rev. J. H. McNeilly, Rev. D. H. Scanlon, and Rev. S. H. Chester. Dr. McNeilly's eighty-first birthday had occurred only two days before, and the congregation stood to honor a man who is greatly beloved. Rev. C. T. Wharton, who had just arrived from the Congo, was also present and brought greetings from our mission workers in Africa.

Thursday night there was a church reception, when the entire building was thrown open for inspection, and Friday night there was a men's dinner with the returned soldiers of the church as guests of honor. There are one hundred and thirty-four of these men on the honor roll of the church, and the occasion was one never to be forgotten by those present.

Sunday afternoon the building was formally dedicated. Dr. Vance presided, and spoke on "The Sunday School as a Spiritual Force." A history of the building enterprise was given by Mr. W. Ridley Wills, and a brief sketch of the Sunday school for the one hundred and five years of its history was presented by Mr. W. H. Raymond, who has been superintendent for the last twenty-five years. The ritual of dedication was read, and the keys to the building turned over by Mr. Thomas P. Kennedy, chairman of the building committee, to Mr. A. Tillman Jones, chairman of the church property committee.

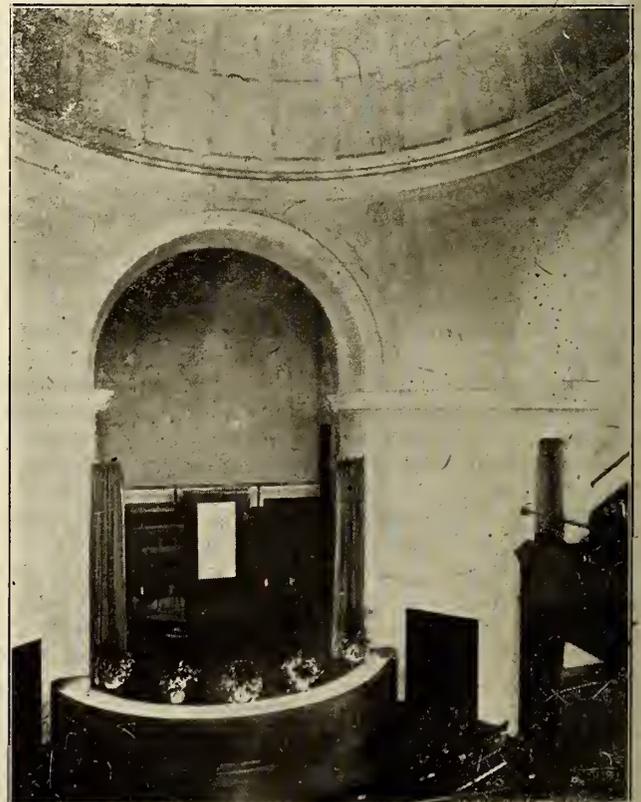

The building is one hundred feet square and four stories in height. In the center is a rotunda the height of the building and culminating in a dome, under which is the main assembly room. Around this are the various departments and class rooms. On the first floor are three large rooms for the beginners, primary and junior departments. Double folding doors, with air space between to deaden sound, separate these rooms from the main assembly room, into which they may be thrown when desired. On the second floor are three balconies for seating the intermediate classes during public exercises, and built around these balconies are the two stories of individual class rooms, spacious, well lighted, and easily accessible.

Mr. Marion Lawrence expressed himself as greatly pleased with the construction, combining as it does the advantages of the old Akron plan with those of the modern departmental plan. There are also rooms for the various church societies, a modern kitchen, social rooms, and a suite of offices for the pastor and his helpers.

The fourth floor has been constructed with special reference to the needs of the Executive Committee of Foreign Missions, and is turned over to that committee by the church, rent free, the only stipulation being that the committee shall pay the interest on $25,000 until subscriptions which are being paid on the annual plan mature. Real estate men estimate the rental value of these offices at $5,000 a year. The staff of workers took possession of them May 1, and at the May meeting the Executive Committee adopted the following resolution, prepared by Dr. E. W. Smith, Executive Secretary:

"The members of the Executive Committee of Foreign Missions, in their own name and that of the whole Southern Presbyterian Church, desire to express to the pastor, officers and members of the First Presbyterian church, of Nashville, Tenn., their profound appreciation of the spacious quarters furnished them in the new Sunday school building, to be their permanent official home and the executive center of

(Continued on page 9)

Interior View of Auditorium of New Sunday School Building of First Presbyterian Church, Nashville, Tenn.

The Law of the Tithe

By Rev. M. B. Lambdin.

AT the very outset it is to be held rigidly in mind, that the sole and conclusive source of information relative to the tithe, is found only in the Word of God. All else, whether it be the reputed views of the fathers, the deliverances of ecclesiastical bodies, the teachings and practices of eminent churchmen, have no logical force or authority, whatever, but are nothing more nor less than human opinion, and to be received and estimated as such.

That the law of the tithe is neither legally nor morally binding upon the conscience and practice of the Christian Church we hold to be true, and from the following considerations:

The Tithe Belonged Solely to the Mosaic Dispensation or Economy.

It was part and parcel of a system of "carnal ordinances" that subserved its temporary and immediate purposes, and then passed away. The first mention of the tithe is where Abraham offered to Melchizedek a tenth of the share of the spoil taken from the Babylonian kings. Gen. 14:20. The second, in which Jacob promised to give the tenth to the Almighty, Gen. 28:22. In the first instance it is specifically stated (Heb. 7:4) that "Abraham gave the tenth of the spoil," not the tithe of his income. The case of Jacob is hedged about by qualifying conditions and saving clauses which smack strongly of a canny quid pro quo arrangement.

While these two instances may seem to hint, that the tithe had some kind of standing or recognition in the customs of the times, they are entirely too meagre and isolated to warrant a hard and fast claim, that the tithe was of general practice; or, was of habitual observance by the patriarchs and their households.

It is only when Jehovah brought the Hebrews into the "Land of Promise," divided up its territory among its tribes, with the exception of the priestly tribe of Levi, with an assignment of land to each household, which allotment was to remain inalienable as the family inheritance, that we see the law of the tithe taking a substantive place in the State. The reason for it is clearly given: "And the Lord spake unto Aaron, Thou shalt have no inheritance in their land, . . . I am thy part and thine inheritance among the children of Israel." (Num. 18:20.) For their support the tithe was imposed upon the rest of the people, "and behold, I have given the children of Levi all the tenth in Israel for an inheritance, for their service which they serve." (Num. 18:21.)

This tithe was of the increase of the fields and the cattle, after the first fruits were taken out. In its essential nature the tithe was a "land tax." Not one foot of the soil belonged in fee simple to the Hebrew who occupied and worked it; he was merely its tenant. "The land is mine," said Jehovah, (Lev. 25:23). The tithe was a rental return for the use of the land. This unique feature in Hebrew land occupancy was practiced, to a limited extent, in after times among the Romans, who may have adopted it from the Hebrews. "Any one who obtained a part of the public land, 'ager publicus,' in a conquered country, paid a tenth of the revenue from it as a rent to the State." It was also a familiar one under the feudal system of Europe and England, where the tenants of the estate paid a land tax, in addition to rendering military service, to their "overlord." In our own times and country land is "worked on shares;" a certain agreed portion going to owner as his rental or tithe.

It is thus something that adheres in the very nature of things, where one person uses the land of another for his own profit or advantage. Jehovah was the Sole Owner, the Divine Proprietor, the "Overlord" of the land, and, as tenants, the Hebrews paid Him their "land tax," or tithe, which went to the support of the State religion. The tithe was thus an integral and essential part of the Mosaic system; a social, economic, political and religious fabric, nowhere else existent, and impossible under modern conditions of life.

If we attempt to transfer the legal obligation of the tithe over into the Christian Church, then we must also, in logical consistency and necessity, transfer along with it, the apportionment of homestead lands in perpetuity to each householder, in order to establish the basis for it.

When the set time came, in the purpose of God, that the Jews ceased to exist as a nation, then the Temple was destroyed, and their priesthood abolished; the people sifted among the other nations of the earth, with their lands occupied by the Gentiles, then the law of the tithe faded into the mist, along with the system from which it had grown, and by which it had been nourished.

When the foundation gives way, the superstructure also goes down, and shares with it in the common ruin.

The Law of the Tithe is Nowhere Imposed Under the Gospel Dispensation.

The old order is vocal with it; the new order is silent. From the belfry of the Old Testament we hear its notes ringing out clearly and incessantly, all the way through from Leviticus to Malachi. But when the last book is reached, its last note is struck, and there it stops—short off!

And you can search the New Testament through, with microscopic scrutiny, and not find the shadow of a hint, explicit or implicit, in its support. This absolute silence is eloquent in its deep significance. Where God fails to speak, who has the right to break that silence with an utterance which He has never made nor warranted?

The spirit of this Mosaic law is indeed recognized, but the letter has been abolished with a new set of motives installed within the heart, for "We are not under law, but under grace."

Under the Gospel of Grace two great principles come to the fore: Christ's Ownership; Christian Stewardship.

We are not our own, we belong to Christ, "Who hath purchased us with His own precious blood." Not as a poetic sentiment or iridescent fiction, but as a sublime fact. What then? Why, this, as a necessary and beautiful sequence, or corollary, that we are "stewards of the grace of God," and in the recognition of the sweet spirit of stewardship we are liberally and lovingly to make use of our possessions as "trust funds" in His service. The whole atmosphere enveloping this matter of "church finances" is entirely different as one steps from the zone of the law into that of the Gospel. No longer is it the legal demand of "the tenth" to regulate our giving, but a newer and a finer rule—"as the Lord has prospered him." (1 Cor. 16:1.) Not only so, but it puts the matter of giving into the category of graces, along with the graces of love, faith, diligence and so on, and with the gentle reminder, "See that ye abound in this grace also." (II Cor. 8:7.)

The spirit and the tone of the old dispensation and the new are radically different: The tithe law says: "Pay;" the Gospel rule says: "Give." Under the law it was a tax, under grace it is an offering. Under the Mosaic regime the tithe payer was assured of certain positive and stipulated material returns in like kind, if the tithe law was honestly obeyed. See Lev. 25:18-22; Deut. 28:11, 12; Prov. 3:9, 10; Mal. 3:10-11. But not so under the Gospel, the returns there are not material, but spiritual.

But doesn't Christ endorse and re-enforce the obligatory nature of the tithe for His Church when He said to certain of His own times who practiced it, "These ought ye to have done." Not at all, The Mosaic economy was yet in existence, and the Jews were in duty bound to obey its various ordinances, so long as it yet stood.

The Imposition of the Law of the Tithe Would Be Inequitable and Oppressive Under Modern Conditions of the Church.

While a small minority of the membership in the various churches are people of affluence, or in easy circumstances, the larger majority are "the Lord's poor."

They have no "vine and fig tree," no piece of land as-

(Continued on page 9)

The World's Flags in Churches of Our Lord and God.

(Continued from page 5)

corrupt the church and its principles, forever embroil with the strifes of the world and plunge it headlong into ruin.

Comment on Preceding Extracts—The above extracts are sufficiently full and clear to enable any intelligent reader to see and judge for himself or herself what is the position that our church-at-large holds upon all political questions—local, national or international—alike both in times of war and peace.

As to what was and is the duty of each individual local Presbyterian church, and of each individual church member, we will refrain, as we have all along been doing, from expressing any opinion except to make a quotation. This quotation, a brief one, was given under the heading of this article and will be repeated here. It is taken from a published sermon of Rev. L. C. Vass, D.D., one of the talented and prominent former ministers of the Southern Presbyterian Church, who for a quarter of a century was the beloved pastor of the New Bern, North Carolina, Presbyterian Church.

In that sermon Dr. Vass said in part: "Whenever any Christian church-at-large has expressed its sentiment about any line * * * * * what is the duty of its loyal members? Unquestionably, obedience while the law stands unless an instructed conscience says it will be sinful to obey that law."

New Bern, N. C.

The Honor Roll of Ministers.

In a recent issue of the Standard which has just come to hand, I have read a very interesting and timely article on the ministers and candidates of our church who have lost their lives in the war. Please allow me to mention a name which I am sure you will agree deserves a place in the list. I am sorry I cannot tell you his initials; nor home address, but our regiment was separated most of the time he and I were with it, and I only saw him two or three times. I can't remember his initials or his Presbytery, but I can't forget the man and his spirit. My recollection is that he went to French Camp or one of the schools in Mississippi, and I think Dr. Melvin probably can tell you all about him.

His name was Wheeler, private in the Medical Detachment of the 150th Infantry. He was a candidate for the ministry, and intended to enter Davidson College when he got out of the army. He was present at two services I conducted before we left Camp Shelby, and I remember a very interesting and encouraging conversation I had with him after the service. We were soon traveling in separate battalions, but the chaplain with his battalion said that Wheeler was always a power for anything good among the boys. We crossed over on small English freighters, and their ship ran abreast of ours the whole way, both ships having an epidemic of influenza aboard. When we finally got together in England, the Medical Major with them told me that he had had to bury two of his best men at sea, one of them was Wheeler. I told him I was surprised that a powerful and robust fellow like Wheeler should come down with it, and he said: "Chaplain, it would have killed any man to work like he worked with them." I am sure, from all they told me, that Wheeler truly laid down his life in the service of his comrades. He was, as the Major said, a splendid helper with the sick, and he did not spare himself.

I hope Dr. Melvin can tell you more about him, or that you can find it somewhere, for he was one of the kind of whom our church should be proud.

With best wishes, very truly yours,

William S. Golden, Chaplain.

La Pallice, A. P. O. 735, France, June 2, 1919.

Dr. Melvin writes: "I knew Wheeler well, and had helped him some in his education at French Camp, Miss., during my administration as superintendent of schools in Mississippi. He was a candidate under the care of Central Mississippi Presbytery, and was one of the most deserving boys I ever knew."

"The Consuming Fire."

A New Book by Dr. Harris E. Kirk.

Dr. Harris E. Kirk is rapidly becoming known as one of the most brilliant and forceful preachers in America. In his former volume, "The Religion of Power," he established his reputation as an author, and by the present work he will doubtless win an even higher place as an interpreter of the most virile sort of Christianity.

These nine chapters consist of expository sermon-lectures, based on selected portions of the first thirty-nine chapters of Isaiah, and delivered last year at the Northfield Assembly, where they are said to have been the outstanding event of the season. These studies are popular, in the best sense of that abused word, and by no means exegetical, although they are eminently true to the spirit of Isaiah, as he is made known in the writings of Dr. George Adam Smith, to whom Dr. Kirk gladly confesses his large indebtedness.

"The Consuming Fire!" The book is well named, for it glows with a zeal and a passion more than a little like that of the prophet himself. When ordinary men write about Isaiah, they quickly make us conscious of the distressing discrepancy between the majestic sweep of his style and the commonplace words of his interpreters; but when Dr. Kirk writes about Isaiah, he makes us feel from the very first page that his style is worthy of his theme, and that his lectures must have sounded even better than they read. Such a style doubtless reflects the long hours spent with Isaiah and with Dr. G. A. Smith.

No former interpreter of Isaiah has undertaken quite so difficult a task, for Dr. Kirk strives to show us how these prophecies enable us to understand the moral issues of the war, and even to solve the problems of reconstruction. Surely he must be a disciple of Isaiah, who was very bold!

"The teaching of Isaiah lends itself with singular felicity to the social and religious understanding of the times. He lived in an age which in most aspects of its thought and life strikingly resembled our own. The same moral principles were involved, and the same issues decided on the hills of Palestine, which after four years of suffering and sacrifice have been successfully determined upon the fields of France."

Dr. Kirk is perhaps more completely successful in his application of prophetic principles to the war, now that the facts are before him, than in his teachings about the reconstruction period, where the future is all unknown; but even in the closing chapters he is uniformly true to the spirit of Isaiah, and he is profoundly conscious of the needs of the world today; so that he is everywhere as suggestive as he is powerful.

This book will scarcely appeal to two groups of devout men: one group will say that it ignores one of the primary functions of prophecy, namely, to predict the details of modern history; whereas the other group will insist that this book dares to attempt to bridge the New Testament gulf between the Church and the State. All will agree, however, that Dr. Kirk has done a notable piece of work, and personally I thank him for the best war book which has come to the manse.

"The Consuming Fire" is neatly published by the Macmillan Company, and it may be ordered from our Committee in Richmond, or from your local dealer. It contains two hundred pages, counting the worthy preface, and it sells for $1.50, net.

Columbia, S. C.

Andrew W. Blackwood.

The Passing of June.

By John Jordan Douglass.

The roses blushed like newly-vintaged wine;
The mock-bird sang a rippling roundelay.
Bright with its beauty dawned the dream-girt day
Like some red rose upon a cool green vine.
Sweet-June passed on with garlands on her breast;
The balm of woodlands in her golden urn;
Her virage set toward where the soft stars burn
Little twinkling tapers in the wondrous West.

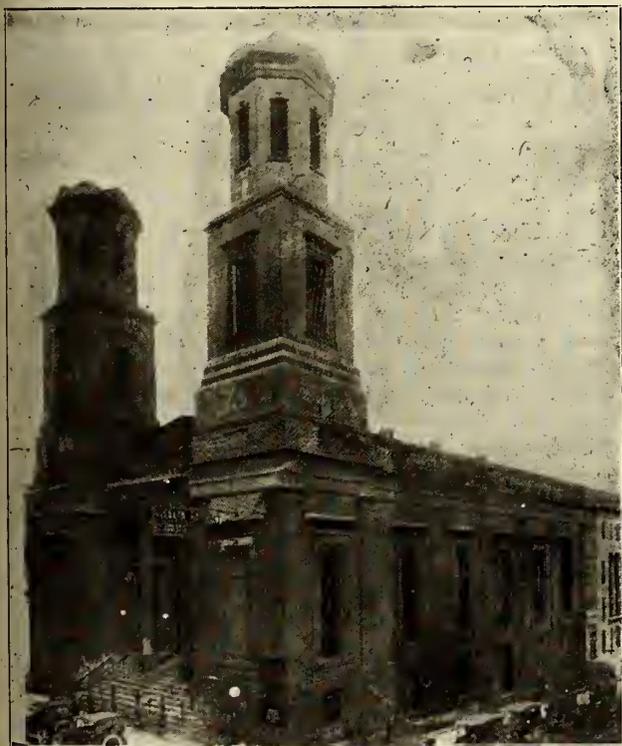

Dedication of New Sunday School Building.

(Continued from page 6)

their far-reaching missionary work. We believe that this great gift of the First church, of Nashville, was prompted by the same Holy Spirit that directed the first church of Antioch to send forth the first foreign missionaries. Under the same guidance may your church long continue to add new and authentic chapters to the Acts of the Apostles, being assured that in all your noble work for Christ you are most cordially and gratefully remembered in the prayers of the Executive Committee of Foreign Missions."

The building is stone, in Egyptian architecture to harmonize with the old church. Its cost has been approximately $100,000, not including site, although if constructed at present day prices the cost would be seventy-five per cent more. The church was fortunate enough to place its contracts before war prices in construction had so greatly advanced; and contractors in cost cases enjoyed the same advantage with regard to materials.

The building is immediately in the rear of the church, and connects with it on the first and second floors. In addition to the facilities afforded for the comfortable handling of a Sunday school of eight hundred members, its striking architectural beauty provokes the admiration of all who visit the building. The land on which the First church is located is probably as valuable as any real estate in the city, and will become increasingly valuable. The erection of this handsome addition to the old church ties it to its downtown site. There has been no thought of removal on the part of the church authorities, for the church was never more richly blessed in its work; but the construction of the new building has shown the public that here is a downtown church that has come to stay.

First Presbyterian Church, Nashville, Tenn.

The building committee which has so successfully led the congregation in this important enterprise is made up of the following: Messrs. T. P. Kennedy, W. H. Raymond, M. G. Buckner, George White, W. Ridley Wills, Leland Hume, Percy Warner, E. W. Foster, and the pastor, Dr. James I. Vance.

Nashville, Tenn.

The Law of the Tithe.

(Continued from page 7)

signed in perpetuity with an assured living from it. Their only income in salary or wages is meagre, irregular and uncertain.

To cut into that paltry, insufficient and precarious support for their dependent families with the stern demand: "Pay your tithe, or, consider yourself a robber of the Lord's money," has the ring of a heartless claim for the "pound of flesh."

Here are two persons, the rich man and the poor man. The first renders his tithe several times over, one may imagine even to the half of his income; and he walks around with a smug complacency, that he has done his full duty in the matter of giving to the Lord. But has he come up to the requirement of the Gospel rule—"as the Lord has prospered him?" Not a single luxury or comfort has he foregone for himself or loved ones. The future has no threats, the coming days no fears for him.

The poor man wearily reads his expense account for the past month: Rent bill, water bill, grocery bill, dry goods bill, shoe bill, doctor's bill, with "more to follow." There's no surplus with him, but a big deficit, and unpaid obligations to be carried over into the next month's problem. Does the gracious Lord demand that the law of the tithe should bind the giving of that man? "How readeest thou?" "For if there be first a willing mind, it is accepted according to that a man hath, and not according to that he hath not. For I mean not that other men be eased and ye burdened. . . but that there be equality." (II Cor. 8:12-14.)

What "equality" is there, when the cold law of the tithe rests hard and severe upon the man with the paltry income of one dollar per day, and lightly upon the man with the income of $100 a day? The one comes through with his big surplus, the other is swamped with his big shortage.

And yet we hear the advocates of the legal requirement of the tithe sternly saying: "If you give less than the tenth you will be convicted of having 'robbed God,' and of 'covetousness which is idolatry.'" "God forbid!" Not the tenth, but ten tenths belong to Him, "whose we are, and whom we serve."

But a warm hearted and a liberal hearted love is to determine in the light of one's circumstances or ability, what proportion of the Lord's "trust funds" are to be used for specifically religious purposes. It may be the tenth, or considerable more than the tenth; or even less than the tenth. And when the claim is continually advanced, and persistently pressed, that it should be "at least the tenth," even for the poor, it is sufficient to reply: "Put your finger on the Gospel Scripture for its support."

But some one rejoins, "Don't you think the tithe is an admirable and successful plan for raising an adequate revenue for Church purposes?" Possibly so. But that is not the point at issue. Other schemes of human devisement could be suggested even more successful. Nor do we deny the right of any one to adopt the law of the tithe for himself; that is entirely within the right of his own Christian liberty; but not the right to impose their yoke upon others for whom the Lord makes free, he is free indeed. Not free, mark you, from obligation to give of their substance to the support of the ordinances of religion, and to give lovingly, and to give liberally, up to the full measure of their means, however poor they may be. None are to be exempt, even though encompassed by honest debt, they are to make the Lord "a preferred creditor" in the expression of this form of devotion and loyalty to His cause.

But they are free, we hold, of a relentless, arbitrary fixed per centum rate to determine the extent of their giving.

"Now of the things which we have spoken this is the sum:" Under the Mosaic system the tithe was compulsory; under the Gospel it is abolished; to impose it now upon the Christian conscience and practice would be a yoke, "grievous to be borne." "The Lord loveth a cheerful giver," not a compulsory tax payer.

Kesyer, W. Va.

News of the Week

On the day when a new ministry in Germany, under Bauer, was formed for the purpose of meeting the demands of the Allies with respect to the Peace Treaty, the officers and sailors on the interned battleships and cruisers in Scapa Flow opened the seacocks of the vessels and sent them to the bottom with the exception of the smaller craft. The Allies have notified the German Government that they will have to pay for these ships and that those concerned in it must be delivered for punishment.

The Federation of Labor has again elected Gompers as their head at a salary of $10,000.

Last week a tornado swept over Minnesota and exacted a toll of about 200 lives. At Fergus Falls more than 100 homes were leveled, and 21 miles west of that city a train was blown from the track, leaving only the engine and one car on the track.

Dr. Epitacio Pessoa, President-elect of Brazil, is in this country, and special honors have been paid him.

The last act of the American Federation of Labor was to pledge itself to obtain a 44-hour week for workers of all crafts throughout the United States and for employes in the Government service.

Last week yeggmen cracked the safe of W. T. Sherman, of Ettrick, a suburb of Petersburg, Va., and took about $1,200.

According to a recent action of the House of Representatives a man can stow liquor in his own home for personal use.

The Senate and House have agreed to release Government control of telegraph, telephone and other wire systems on July 31, 1919. The present telephone rates are to continue four months unless changed by State authorities.

The wheat director of the United States has announced that the President has signed a proclamation putting under license of the wheat director all persons dealing in wheat and wheat flour.

The Pacific fleet will sail for the west coast in July, and Secretary Daniels will probably be one of the passengers. They will pass through the Panama Canal.

The Senate and House conferees on the Army appropriation bill have reached an agreement to fix the average size of the 1920 Army at 325,000 officers and men. This is 75,000 less than that proposed by the Senate and 25,000 more than the strength originally authorized by the House.

As the law has not yet definitely decided what strength of liquor is intoxicating, the Boston saloon keepers have decided to sell $2\frac{3}{4}$ per cent beer.

Lieut. John Beggs, of Kansas City, Mo., is under arrest in Germany, charged with murder.

A. B. Williams, a North Carolinian, who was appointed to office by Senator Ransom and kept in by Senator Simmons, has been turned out of office by the Republican head of the Capitol police force for going to church on Sunday.

Colonel Ayres has prepared a statistical table showing that the American casualties in the Meuse-Argonne drive were 120,000.

Mrs. Burdine Piggs, of Monroe, N. C., was burned to death at her home in Buford township when her clothes caught fire as she was kindling a fire in her home with oil.

Convinced that the bomb throwers and anarchists are preparing to overthrow the Government, the Senate's committee has appropriated $2,000,000 fund with which to wage war against them.

Last Thursday, the Seashore Hotel at Wrightsville Beach, N. C., was destroyed by fire. There were more than 200 guests, but no lives were lost, though the loss of personal property was very heavy.

T. J. Cornwell, of Chester, S. C., clerk of the court, accidentally shot himself last week.

On Saturday the Peace Treaty was signed. China alone refused to sign on the ground that she was not allowed to make any reservations concerning the Province of Shantung. President Wilson started home Saturday evening.

The President has announced that he will not lift war-time prohibition. He holds that he has no legal power to lift the ban. He intimates that he will do so when demobilization is completed.

As soon as the Treaty of Peace is ratified by the German Government the blockade against Germany will be lifted.

Greenville, S. C., has asked that the growing mill town of Greer be annexed to that city. Greer has a population of several thousands.

York, S. C., is to have a new $450,000 cotton mill.

The North Carolina Cotton Manufacturers will meet in Asheville, July 4. The past year has been the greatest in growth in its history.

"Just a Song at Twilight."

By Rev. Andrew J. Howell.

It was the twilight of a life and, as I recall now, near the twilight of a day. A man was taken suddenly sick. It was his heart and his family were alarmed. His wife sent for me, for she was a member of my church. But her husband was not. I had spoken to him several times about making the Christian profession; but he was always non-committal and apparently indifferent.

When I went into the room, I saw at once it was a desperate case. I was expected to say something to him, and I felt it was my duty to do so. So, quietly, I tried to direct his thoughts to the Lord who could help him. He answered feebly, and I asked him if I should pray. He said "Yes."

I knelt and prayed just as one would naturally do who was deeply concerned about the welfare of a soul which might soon go into eternity unprepared. When I arose, a new light and strength seemed suddenly to come to him. He raised his hand in a quick gesture and exclaimed, "Thank the Lord, my soul is saved!"

We tried to quiet him and soothe away the excitement. It would be bad for him, for his life was hanging by a thread. But it was good to feel that the Lord can save to the uttermost of His opportunity and had made this weak soul to trust in Him.

In a few minutes everything was quiet, and I sat a while longer. The wife wanted me there. We said nothing, only looking at him.

The Prayer Meeting

TOPIC FOR WEEK BEGINNING JULY 6, 1919:
Ps. 144:1-4.

THE LORD OUR STRENGTH.
Suggested Reading: Ps. 144:1-4.

By Rev. C. D. Waller.

In all ages true believers in Jehovah have rejoiced in the mighty power of God. They have regarded this power as pledged to them in the covenant, as supplementing their weakness.

"Man is like to vanity. His days are as a shadow that passeth away," but "happy is that people whose God is the Lord."

History teaches that all peoples, when making war, bless their God or gods "which teacheth my hands to war and my fingers to fight." The pulpits of the Central powers in recent years resounded with this acclaim, though they were violating every principle of religion and morality. "Whose mouth speaketh vanity, and their right hand is a right hand of falsehood." He would indeed be rash who would indict war absolutely. War is often an integral part of the age-long battle against evil, and to preserve the very best things of religion and civilization. In that case the believer in Jehovah can go forth to battle with the sustaining
(Continued on page 12)

Then the sick man began to speak. It was a very feeble effort, and we could not at first catch the words. After a moment or two the wife said, "He's trying to sing." And I saw that to be the case. The first words I understood were "Bosom fly." I then knew what it was, and, softly, I joined with him and sang:

"While the nearer waters roll;
While the tempest still is high.
Hide me, O my Saviour, hide,
Till the storm of life is past.
Safe into the haven guide;
Oh, receive my soul at last."

The next morning, when I called I learned he had gone. He had traveled home on the wings of a hymn that breathes the sweetest trust of the human heart.

Latta, S. C.

The Procrastinator.

By Rev. L. T. Newland.

I said, "O Lord, as soon as I
Have made my crop and laid it by,
I'll take some time to feed my soul,
When I have reached my farming goal."

I said, "O Lord, this year I find
I am so busy, if you don't mind
I'll just put off my soul's concern
Until some leisure I have earned."

I said, "O Lord, you see I've got
Some boys that take an awful lot
To keep in clothes and books and shoes—
I've nothing left for you to use."

"But now, O Lord, my debts are paid,
My boys are gone, my fortune's made.
I have some time left on my hands,
I'll listen now to your demands."

What's that you say? "Since all your days
Were spent in foolish, selfish ways,
I know you not and you are lost."
O God! can wealth repay such cost!

Christian Endeavor

M., July 7.—Lessons from the Past: I Cor. 10:1-12.
T., July 8.—The First Principle: Matt. 16:13-19.
W., July 9.—Church Origins: Acts 2:14, 36-47.
T., July 10.—Church Organization: Acts 6:1-8.
F., July 11.—Missions Begun: Acts 13:1-3.
S., July 12.—Persecution: Acts 19:13-41.

Sunday, July 13, Topic—Our Denominational History and principles. Ps. 44:1-8. (May be led by the pastor.)

We ought to be loyal to the denomination of which we are a part, just as a soldier is loyal to his division. Of course we must be generous toward other denominations, and we must co-operate with them, for all the divisions are under one great General. But we must love our own best, and do our work through it, as a soldier loves and works in his own division. If a soldier won't or cannot work in his own company and division, he is not a good soldier anywhere. A Christian's missionary value to God depends largely on how vitally he can become a part of his own fighting unit, of his own division of God's missionary army.

It is not becoming in any denomination to plume itself a great deal on its past history. Pride is as deadly to the Christian spirit in a denomination as in an individual. The easiest thing in the world for a church to do is to glide into Pharisaism. Gloating over the heroic deeds of our fathers, we settle into an inglorious self-righteousness and a sloth, exhibiting the form of godliness but denying the power thereof. One of the sad sights one sees in the world is a degenerate son of a noble father. Perhaps the commonest tragedy in church history is a denomination grown proud and self-sufficient which was once alive with the warmth of love and with a zeal for missions. Our denomination, like our individual selves, is worthy only when we do the deeds of worthy fathers. Jesus said to a proud Pharisee, If ye were Abraham's children ye would do the works of Abraham.

Our denomination is a worthy one only if it is living today a life that is according to the Scriptures. Some denominations have become so broad that the Bible seems to them to be narrow and out of date. One would never associate them in his mind with the strait gate and narrow way. They have become so vain about their own thoughts that Jesus seems narrow and antiquated. They forget that the same Jesus that lived nineteen hundred years ago is still the head of the church, and that which calls itself a church is not a church unless Christ is its head. To be a loyal and helpful Presbyterian we who think we stand must take heed lest we fall from the humble trust our fathers had in the truth of God's book.

The current history of our denomination is in some respects not worthy of its past. We have so far forgotten ourselves as to become leaders in worldliness. We are in danger of becoming like the church which the New Testament tells about, which said it was rich, and knew not that it was miserable and poor and lame and blind and naked. What shall we do about it? Shall we wash our hands of the denomination, and "stand from under?" No—forever No! Let us rather devote ourselves to its true interests with a new devotion and prayerfulness, and God will make us what we ought to be.

What can you do to strengthen our denomination?
Tell something about Calvin's life.
Tell all you can learn about Samuel Lapsley.

Lord Bryce has said that "the one sure hope of a permanent foundation for world peace lies in the extension throughout the world of the principles of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ."

Sunday School

By Rev. H. G. Hill, D.D.

THE CHURCH, ITS LIFE AND WORK.

Golden Text—Eph. 5-25, "Christ also loved the Church and gave Himself for it."

Acts 2:37-47; I. Thess. 5:11-15.

July 6, 1919.

The Christian Church is the most valuable institution known to the world. Defective as it is, it does more to promote the welfare of mankind than any other agency, operating on earth. It is the custodian and dispenser of Divine oracles, conserves social morals and imparts light where all is darkness. It alone shall survive the destruction of the sin-cursed earth and shall possess "The New Heavens and the new earth wherein dwelleth righteousness." Its preciousness is shown by the fact that the God Man Christ loved the Church and gave Himself for it." The spiritual life of the Church towards God and holiness is given by the Holy Ghost. Its work is partly within its pale and in part in an ungodly world. Our lesson presents its converts at Pentecost, the conditions under which it grew, the way in which the Word was received and the duties of believers to each other.

I. The First Apostolic Converts.

When the baptism of the Holy Ghost was received, Peter and the other disciples preached though only Peter's sermon in outline is given. Peter's first objects were to convince of sin, point to the Saviour they needed, and state the terms of salvation. He tells his hearers that they had with their rulers crucified Christ, that He was without fault and that He was the Saviour appointed of God. He also declares to them that if they would be saved from their sins, they must repent, believe, and confess this Saviour before men by being baptized in His Name. He encouraged them to do this by assuring them that "The promise is to you and to your children, and to all that are afar off, even as many as the Lord Our God shall call." The means employed was the Word of God, revealing sin, describing the Saviour, indicating the terms of salvation, and promising salvation to every earnest seeker. "Faith cometh by hearing and hearing by the Word of God." But the Word was faithfully and plainly preached. There was no omission of its truths, nor lowering of its terms of salvation. The Holy Spirit too not only aided the preaching, but applied the Word to the minds and hearts of the hearers, giving it proper effect upon every part of the rational nature. It is His province to "Convince the world of sin, righteousness, and of a judgment to come," and to render sinners willing to accept a Divine salvation. The Word thus preached and the Spirit's power is needful to make real converts to Christ now.

II. The Word Received.

The Word of God when preached may be received or rejected. Blinded by the Devil and their own hearts' lusts, men may refuse to admit guilt and to accept salvation upon God's prescribed terms. This is one of the fatal results of their misused free agency, and if they perish they seal condemnation upon their own heads. But the hearers at Pentecost did not so act. They received the Word gladly, and thus shall all sinners do in regard to the glad tidings of salvation. They not only received the Word with gladness, but immediately entered upon the duties enjoined to confess and to unite with Christ's disciples. "They were baptized" and "the same day there were added unto them about three thousand souls. Wise and prompt acceptance of God's Word gave large accessions to the Church.

III. The Conditions Under Which the Church Grew.

The Church increased in grace and membership. It is important to mark these, for they are essential to Church growth now. We are told "They continued in the apostles doctrine or teaching and fellowship and in breaking of bread and in prayers." The Church makes progress when it attends upon religious teaching regularly, has brotherly fellowship, observes the Lord's Supper and habitually engages in prayer. The Church untaught in the Word, devoid of Christian fellowship, unmindful that Christ died for it and prayerless, does not grow. This Apostolic Church too manifested reverent fear of God and witnessed many evidences of Divine power. So every Church realizing God's presence, and revealing reverence for Him, will witness manifestations of Divine power in transformed hearts and lives. This Church furthermore realized their Christian stewardship, and held their property subject to the needs of brethren and of Christ's Kingdom. They continued in public worship in brotherly communion from house to house. "They did eat their meat with gladness, and singleness of heart, praising God and having favor with all the people. Under such conditions, "The Lord added to the Church daily such as shall be saved. Church members did their duty and God added saved persons to the Church.

IV. The Duty of Believers to Each Other.

The latter part of our lesson states some duties of disciples to their brethren. These duties are to meet the needs of different classes. We learn that we are to "Comfort one another," edify each other, know and esteem laborers and be at peace among yourselves. "We shall warn the unruly, admonish the disorderly, encourage the faint-hearted, be patient towards all men." We are urged not to retaliate evil for evil to any man but to follow after that which is good, both among yourselves and towards all men." These precepts obeyed would render the Church harmonious and attractive.

Prayer Meeting.

(Continued from page 11)

conviction that God "teacheth my hands to war, and my fingers to fight." But men are too readily controlled by selfishness, and in the attainment of unholy ends, too like the Hun. Men are only too ready to separate what God hath joined together—religion and morality. In the warfare against license we need the strength of Jehovah. Our own strength is too inadequate and too readily perverted. Morality without religion is a lifeless thing, and religion without morality a delusion. Paul could not say the final amen in his epistle to the Romans at the end of the eleventh chapter, nor could he withhold his hand from writing the Corinthian letters. In our world it must needs be that offenses come, but woe to those who offend, unless with true repentance they turn from them unto God. "I can do all things through Christ who strengtheneth me." These words are our assurance of divine help and of glorious victory. Who does not stand amazed and ashamed in the presence of his sins? Who does not wake to the realization that defeat has overtaken him? that the leprous spot is upon his forehead?

He has in his forgetfulness let go the Saviour's hand; he has done with heart or hand the accursed thing. Satan is weaving about him the cords of bondage and death.

Now he needs to awake and blessed be the Lord if he he can cry "The Lord my rock, which teaches my hands to war and my fingers to fight."

It is a fine line that begins the "In Memoriam" of Tennyson: "Strong Son of God—immortal love:" for our Lord is both power and love. This love is ours as we see in Calvary—this power, this measureless strength is ours as we have seen in victories past—as we may see in still more glorious conquests of today and tomorrow.

Let the light and glory of our religion be fused with its moralities; let us see that indeed these are only separable in thought, but not in life. By way of the cross let us approach the throne: nay let us realize that they also are one and inseparable. Then if He be Saviour, He will also reign within us, and our life will be hidden in his, only to come forth refreshed and victorious and beautiful on the rough and disordered arena of life.

Home Circle

"ALL HERE."

A gentleman, seeking to read the thoughts and tastes of a bright boy who was an applicant for a place in his office, said, "You are fond of playing ball?" "Yes, sir!" replied the boy very frankly, and then added: "I like ball, but when I'm here I shall be all here, and when I play ball I shall be all there. I'm not big enough to divide!" This lad showed the right spirit, and many an older person, in order to succeed, would do well to imitate his practical deal. Success comes from being all here or all there—not, in either thought or desire, bobbing back and forth between two alternatives. In the Bible times a proverb ran, "A house divided against itself cannot stand," which teaches the truth that a separation of interests and undue competition of ambitions mean weakness. "No man can serve two masters" emphasizes the same lesson. Concentration of time and thought means power. One of the most evident and deplorable signs of the times is a general tendency to frivolity, shallowness in thinking, and dissipation of physical and moral energies. Progress can never come that way. Every life must have its center of gravity, its focus of faith, its point of keenest regard—some plane or position where it is most at home, and of which it can be said that it is "all there." Play and recreation are all right in their place, and it is as commendable to be enthusiastic in our amusements, if they are properly chosen, as in our work; but when the bell or the clock recalls us to duty, even if it be dreary routine service, we must be "all here" at the desk, the counter, the kitchen table, or the garden plot. There is never enough of any one of us to be divided around in scattered portions of attention and ambition. But when we put the whole man in at the task or the struggle we begin to be successful with a triumph that will outlast the world itself.—Zion's Herald.

SHARING HAPPINESS.

Our six children, the oldest not yet twelve years old, have learned that most things in this life have to be divided and shared. For this reason I have tried to make as much as possible of their birthdays in order that each may feel that he has something absolutely his own. The gifts are always inexpensive but we try to have some especially good time on that day.

With a festive greeting from each of the seven other members of the family, the honored one starts the day happily. There is always rivalry to see who will be the first to say, "Happy Birthday." A birthday cake with candles is a permanent feature and I try to have things on the table that the child is particularly fond of; sometimes I let him help me in planning the menu. Usually a friend or two comes in to eat the cake with us or we go on some trip adapted to the occasion.

We have a little camp in the woods where we go to work off our spirits and we shall never forget the chestnut party we had last Fall on the Saturday between two birthdays. We like to search out other birthdays that come near our own and plan surprises for our friends, sometimes taking them to our camp.

Our most memorable trip was a year ago when the eight of us piled into an automobile hired for the day and rode forty miles to take dinner with the Grandmother on her eighty-fifth anniversary. The little girl had never even seen Grandmother's house and on that afternoon we had her christened at the old home by the beloved pastor who baptized me when I joined the church and who married us in the same room where we brought the child for baptism. The actual birthday that caused the most excitement in our own household and among our friends was when the Little Sister came, almost a Christmas gift, after five boys had prepared the way for her.

The Primary Department of the Sunday School has a pleasant habit of remembering the birthdays. Without fail, a card comes to each child from his teacher and on the Sunday following the date a little exercise by the whole class is enjoyed by all. The Superintendent lights candles corresponding to the number of years and the child brings the same number of pennies to be added to a birthday fund. Then the class say a prayer and sing an appropriate song.

The attempt to make the children happy on these days is reacting on Father and Mother for now they plot and plan all sorts of nice things for us. Altogether we count the six birthdays our greatest blessings.

I call the head of the family Abraham because he is the "Father of a Multitude," but I am sure no Patriarch ever had such good times with his children and we intend to continue to play with them.—Congregationalist and Advance.

Devotional

A MODERN "FAITH CHAPTER."

Do you know how large a part faith plays in science? No man ever made a great discovery that was wholly an accident. There are many modern names of scientists which we might add to the great muster-roll of faith in the eleventh chapter of Hebrews.

By faith Columbus, when he was called of God to discover a new world, went out, not knowing whither he went. By faith he sailed strange waters, as did Cabot, Magellan, Vesputius, and Balboa, the heirs with him of the same promise.

By faith Copernicus lifted the earth from its solid base and set it to moving in rhythmic order round the sun; and all the suns and suns of suns with planets in bright array that circle round the throne of God. This he beheld by faith. By faith the men of science, who did not always call themselves men of faith, found substance in the things hoped for, and moved from experiment to hypothesis and from hypothesis to theory, and from theory to faith, and from faith to sight; and all these were the children of faith.

And what shall I more say? For time would fail me to tell of Stephenson and Fulton, of Morse and Roentgen and Edison and Lister, of Cyrus Field and Alexander Bell and Marconi and Wilbur Wright, who through faith made iron float, yoked chariots to the invisible power of steam, caused the voice of man to be heard by his fellow man at a distance of a thousand miles, filled the air with voices inaudible to the ear, and lifted the bodies and the minds of men on wings of wonder, and set them to sailing amid the clouds.

And wherein we have learned from saints and apostles, and the Lord of life, and have found sure footing for faith, let us not count it unreasonable that still we follow and live the life of faith. (From Tarbell's "Guide," 1919.)

NOT FOR SALE.

Some folks think that the only things in the world that have value are the things one can handle and buy and sell. There are things that are not on the market. They are not for sale, and they cannot be bought. The church stands for value. It counts its assets not in the amount of money its members possess, but in the character they possess. Money may pass, and business fail, and houses burn, but character will last through eternity. This is what Jesus was talking about all the time. Salvation through Christ's blood will be manifested in character. Character cannot be bought; it is what a man is. The church deals with the timeless and the eternal verities. Reputation is what we think a man is, but character is what he is. That is a wide difference. The church stands for the noblest, the best. Let us give ourselves to the real meaning of Christ and the church, and welcome with all our hearts that gospel which brings uplift and cleanness of soul and heart. Let us welcome it in our hearts, so that we may be, in fact, the children of God.—Pittsburgh Christian Advocate.

Presbyterian Standard

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, $2.50 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE.
REV. W. L. BOGGS, Circulation Manager.

CONTENTS OF THIS ISSUE

EDITORIAL—	PAGE.
Buy the Book	2
A Word for the Parsons.....	2
The Growing Evil of Divorce.....	3
Labor and Its Beer.....	3
Man's Will and God's Will.....	3
CONTRIBUTED—
Mountains to the Fore—By Rev. E. V. Tadlock	4
1 Thessalonians 4:13-18—By Rev. G. F. Robert- son	4
A Call for Chaplains for the Navy—By Rev. Jas. I. Vance, D.D.....	4
The World's Flags in Churches of Our Lord and God—By C. T. Hancock.....	5-8
Dedication of New Sunday School Building.....	6-9
The Law of the Tithe—By Rev. M. B. Lamb- din	7-9
"Just a Song at Twilight"—By Rev. Andrew J. Howell	10
The Procrastinator—By Rev. L. T. Newland....	11
DEPARTMENTS—

Church News

REDUCED RATES ON RAILWAY FOR MONTREAT CONFERENCES FOR JULY.

The dates for sale of reduced railway tickets to Black Mountain, N. C., on account of Montreat Conferences are as follows:

First General Conference, July 7-13. Selling dates, July 4, 5 and 6.

Woman's Summer School of Missions, July 13-20. Selling dates, July 11 and 12.

Sunday School Conference, July 20-27; Evangelistic Conference, July 27-August 3. Selling dates, July 18-22, inclusive.

In order to secure reduced rates tickets they must be bought on the above given dates, full fare must be paid on the going ticket and regular "Certificate Plan" tickets be secured from railway agents when tickets are bought and at least two hundred and fifty certificates must be secured for each of the seven groups of dates for sale in order to secure reduction of two-thirds on the purchase of return tickets. If there are less than two hundred and fifty certificates secured on any of the groups of dates for sale of tickets as indicated above there will be no reduction on the return ticket for that conference.

Inquire of your railway agent in advance to ascertain whether or not he has the "Certificate Plan" form of ticket, as only this "Certificate Plan" form of ticket will be honored. Be sure to call on your local agent, in advance of the day of departure, and ascertain if "Certificate Plan" tickets can be had from your agent; if not, you should purchase local tickets to the first interline coupon ticket office and buy "Certificate Plan" tickets from that point. Reduced rate return tickets can be had on the above conditions, good to return on any date from June 26 to August 31.

R. C. Anderson, President.

DR. GALBRAITH.

To All Ministers and Members of the Southern Presbyterian Church:

As convener of the General Assembly's new committee on Systematic Beneficence and Stewardship, I wish hereby to introduce to you the Rev. W. F. Galbraith, D.D., the new secretary of Stewardship of our Church.

Dr. Galbraith has been the pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Texarkana, Tex. For two years he has also been the manager of the Benevolent Campaign in Texas and it was his splendid success in this large and difficult field that brought him to the attention of the Stewardship Committee and caused his election by this committee to this position of larger responsibility. The importance of this position is greatly increased by the fact that all the committees have entrusted their interest to the Systematic Committee and have pledged their hearty and loyal support in carrying out all of its plans.

Dr. Galbraith has accepted the position, has been released by his Presbytery and has moved to Montreat for the summer, where he can now be addressed. It gives us great pleasure to commend him to our entire Church as a most worthy successor of our late lamented Rev. R. L. Walkup.

I trust that he may have the heartiest co-operation and support.

Most cordially,
A. D. P. Gilmour

SOUTH CAROLINA.

Cornwell—A Presbyterian Church was organized Sunday at Cornwell with 31 members. W. C. Cunningham and T. O. McKeown were elected elders and Milton Body and J. T. Body deacons. The erection of a church and the calling of a pastor will soon be considered by the congregation.

Timmonsville—The Rev. John McSween, Jr., with a State-wide reputation as a chaplain of the Thirtieth Division and one of the most popular men in the Carolinas, has accepted a call to the Presbyterian Church at Rowland, N. C. Mr. McSween and family will probably move to their new home in July.

Woodruff—The four new deacons recently elected to office in the Woodruff Church were installed on June 8. Messrs. J. G. Gaston and J. C. DuPree served as deacons in their former churches, while Messrs. T. S. Kilgore and G. S. Irby are two of our own boys, raised and trained in our own congregation. This gives us a diaconate of seven and organized to give all a share in the work. We held our communion service on the 15th, which was a helpful service to our people. Two new members, representing new families, were received into the church. / T. D. Johnston.

Florence—This church had several services in May that were of very unusual interest.

A "welcome meeting" was held for those who had been in the service. The church has 47 stars on its flag, representing the Army, Navy, and one Red Cross nurse. Everyone of those who entered upon this great adventure has returned in safety. The welcome service was, therefore, an occasion of special gratitude to God for his protecting care.

Mr. R. B. Fulton spoke for the Army and Mr. M. R. McCown for the Navy. The pastor, Dr. H. Tucker Graham, expressed the gratitude of the congregation, as well as his own, in having the boys safely home again. The music was an especially interesting feature to the great congregation present.

On the following Wednesday evening a delightful supper was served by the ladies on the church lawn, primarily for "The Boys," and incidentally as a kind of "get together" occasion for the whole congregation. The weather was perfect, the attendance large, the supper delicious and abundant, and everyone went away grateful and happy.

During the pastor's absence at the General Assembly, Rev. John McSween, Jr., chaplain 105th Ammunition Train, 30th Division, preached with great acceptance at the morning service, and at night spoke to a crowded congregation of a chaplain's work here and abroad. It was a notable address, and left a deep and lasting impression upon all who heard it.

(Continued on Page 16)

One Million Dollars for Christian Education IN THE SYNOD OF NORTH CAROLINA WITHIN THE NEXT 12 MONTHS

By the direction of the General Assembly the Executive Committee of Christian Education has organized an efficient team of men under the leadership of Rev. M. E. Melvin, D.D., Field Secretary, to assist the Synods and educational institutions to secure the sympathy, the prayers and the financial support that is absolutely necessary for their existence.

The Methodist Church, North and South, the Baptist Church, the Church of the Disciples, the Congregational and all the other principle denominations of the United States are at this time in similar campaigns:

We have now undertaken to raise One Million Dollars in the Synod of North Carolina, for Union Theological Seminary, Davidson, Queens, Flora Macdonald, Peace and Mitchell Colleges, and for the Westminster School, Albemarle, Glade Valley, Elise and Grove Academy.

All differences between these institutions have been adjusted. With united efforts this large sum can be secured and these institutions saved to the Church, their capacity multiplied and their influence enlarged.

In a campaign under the direction of Dr. Melvin for Westminster College in the Synod of Missouri, $688,000 was added to the resources of that institution. The manager of the Synod in "The $3,500,000 Campaign" of the General Assembly states that there was no injury whatever done to the Every Member Canvass by reason of this campaign. A great number of the pastors have written that it was an actual help to them in their work. We must meet in this special way the accrued liabilities of the neglect of past years.

The men who compose the team are prayerful, consecrated, gifted men, who believe in Christian Education, and who try to convince the people of the importance of this work.

We request for Dr. Melvin and his men the sympathetic interest and the earnest help of every Presbyterian within the Synod of North Carolina. You can pray, you can talk, you can give, and in directing your energies in the lines of Christian Education, you will find you are making the best possible investment.

Presbyterian Church in the United States

DEPARTMENT OF CHRISTIAN EDUCATION - HENRY H. SWEETS, Secretary

410 Urban Building, Louisville, Kentucky

Watch This Page Every Week

Church News.

(Continued from Page 14)

NORTH CAROLINA.

Maxton—Dr. H. G. Hill writes: "We held a memorial service at the Maxton Church yesterday, June 22, 1919. It was largely attended by citizens and soldiers from Maxton and Centre Churches and from the adjacent towns and surrounding country. We had several addresses from ministers and laymen and one from a returned soldier."

Wadesboro—The church at this place has taken on new life with the pastorate of Rev. John Jordan Douglass. Several new members have been added to the church, and an order has been given for a handsome pipe organ. Mr. Douglass has recently been elected president of the Ministers' Union, composed of the local pastors. Mr. Douglass is the only Presbyterian minister in Anson county.

Second Church, Charlotte—On Sunday evening, Dr. A. A. McGeachy preached to an audience that filled the auditorium of the church, the Sunday school room and the galleries of the house, a sermon on "Armageddon," in which he held that the present time was either the period of the final struggle between Good and Evil, or else may be the beginning of it. His next subject will be "The Overdue Christ."

Cooleemee—On last Monday night I closed a nine days' meeting at Cooleemee, the splendid mill town owned and governed by the Cotton Mill Co. located there. This town has a population of something like three thousand. The Presbyterian Church there is small and weak, but has some splendid people in it. The visible results of the meeting are as follows: 11 professed conversions, 68 reconsecrations, seven accessions to the church, four promises to remove church letters. Several others will join other churches in Cooleemee.

J. M. Clark.

Charlotte, Tenth Avenue—Dr. J. R. Bridges preached at the morning service and Rev. C. C. Anderson, the new pastor of West Avenue Church of this city, preached at the evening service. After the morning service Dr. Bridges moderated a congregational meeting at which the congregation united with Dr. J. S. Sibley in the request to Presbytery to dissolve the pastoral relation, to take effect August 1, in order that he may accept the pastorate of the church at Waycross, Ga.

Dr. A. R. Shaw, formerly the beloved pastor of this church, will supply the pulpit for August.

Bethesda Church, Aberdeen—Rev. O. G. Jones, D.D., concluded on June 22 a very profitable week's meeting for the Bethesda Church, and the people of Aberdeen. From the first day of the meeting all the people of the town united in the services. The business houses were closed each morning from 10 to 11 so that all could attend services. Brother Jones preached with power and all heard him gladly and with profit. He is conservative in his methods, yet aggressive enough to reap the legitimate fruits of his preaching. Ten joined the Presbyterian Church on profession of faith and some will join the other churches of the town. The number of professions is no index to the good resulting from the meeting due to the fact that almost all the people of the town are already church members. Besides quite a number joined the churches of the town on profession just before the meeting began. Twenty-two have joined the Presbyterian Church since April 1, eighteen of them on profession of faith. The meeting led a great number of Christians to consecrate themselves anew. On the last day of the services an offering was taken for Synodical work which amounted to $142. We feel that the Lord used Brother Jones to accomplish a great work in our community, and we pray that the Master's blessing may continue with him.

V. R. Gaston, Pastor.

Davidson—Rev. C. E. Ervin will have the profound sympathy of a large circle of friends in the sorrow that has come to him and his five children in the death of his beloved wife, which occurred here suddenly Monday night. Mrs. Ervin, a niece of the late Dr. J. B. Shearer and an inmate of his home in former years and here recently again, helping to nurse him during his long illness, went to the Statesville sanatorium for a slight operation about three weeks ago, when Dr. Shearer's supposed improved condition warranted this step. He died during her absence. She had returned home the afternoon of her death, seemingly on the road to a complete recovery. About 10 o'clock a few moments after saying good night to her children, she died suddenly. Mr. Ervin had just left the room and before he could return she had passed away. Mrs. Ervin was universally esteemed and loved by all who knew her. She was a woman of fine character and beautiful Christian spirit.

Mr. Robert Miles, accompanied by Mrs. Miles, has returned to Davidson from the Blue Ridge Conference to take up his duties at once as secretary of the Greater Davidson Club.

Attractive folders containing excellent pictures of the campus and various buildings, some three or four in number, are ready for distribution from the president's office. Space in the new dormitories has been taken so rapidly that it looks as if the new session is surely to see a very large enrollment of students. The registrar's office so interprets conditions.

Dr. Martin and family leave in a few days for Blowing Rock, where he hopes to regain his strength completely this summer and be ready for the work in the fall.

Morganton—The following resume of good accomplished by Rev. C. E. Gregory while their pastor and expression of regret at his leaving them was recently drawn up by the Morganton Church:

"When reverses or disappointments come, we are prone to forget the blessings which a kind Heavenly Father has hitherto bestowed.

"And so when we are to lose our pastor are our hearts saddened, and we view the future of our church with gloomy forebodings, instead of counting the many blessings which have come to us through his ministry.

"Since Mr. Gregory came to us, our church has lost much in the death of its older members, and while he still mourns with us their going, it should be a comforting thought to him that through his ministrations their last days were sweetened by the living Word, and the shadows of death which gathered around them were brightened as they entered into glory.

"Mr. Gregory has been the means in God's hands of bringing to the foot of the cross numbers of our kindred and friends who had long resisted the sweet call of the Gospel, and in this he, with us, has cause for thanksgiving.

"And again, the influence of our pastor for good has not been confined to our own congregation: Mr. Gregory, by his quiet, unassuming, godly life has made his impress for good upon this entire community; many who are not of our fold grieve with us at his leaving. Time and again, those of other denominations accost us with the statement:

"We are so sorry you are going to lose your pastor,"

"The prayers of this church, with the love and friendship of the whole community, go with Mr. Gregory to his new field of labor.

"Resolved, that the session be requested to spread this testimonial on its minutes, and that a copy be sent to Mr. Gregory, and the county paper, and that the Presbyterian Standard be asked to publish."

Fayetteville Presbytery—Sunday school drive, July 6-11. Reports from the districts give promise of a successful drive. In District No. 2 Scotland and Robeson counties are well organized for the drive. No report as yet has been received from Hoke county; but we know her work of faith in the Sunday schools of old, and that her workers will not fall short of full success. In District No. 3, Moore, Lee and Chatham counties, the plans for the drive are well laid. Several laymen will help on the speaking teams. In Distract No. 1, Cumberland county is ready to go over the top. Nothing less could be expected of her workers. The drive in Harnett and Johnston counties has been postponed until outside help can be brought in to aid these hard pressed brethren who have been laboring so faithfully in this, our greatest Home Mission territory.

The ultimate success of the drive depends upon making the religious survey. In answer to the question, Why make a religious survey in view of the fact that the Government takes a census every ten years, we beg to say that the Government census and our religious survey are not alike, and the objects to be attained are not the same. The Government tabulates certain data and gives the totals for towns, counties, states, etc.; while our religious survey separates the individual by name from the mass of population for the purpose of enabling the church to reach him with the Gospel, and to bring him into the Sunday school in order that he, too, may try to help win others in the community which the survey reveals as unsaved. Furthermore, Dr. Carroll's religious statistics are not only useless but are worthless as a basis for ascertaining the religious conditions in the bounds of our congregations inasmuch as he merely compiles the reports submitted to him by the pastors who copy the same from the minutes of their church courts.

Our survey classifies every person in the community from infants to grandparents as to church affiliation and Sunday school attendance. It gives the information necessary for personal work, for the organization of the home class and cradle roll departments, and for the gathering into the Sunday school those as yet unreached by the church.

One country has made its survey. The boundary of this congregation is 8x10 miles, or 80 square miles. This survey did not cost this church $500, no, not 50 cents. The Sunday school workers of all our churches are ready to follow aggressive leadership. If the leadership fails the survey will fail.

J. K. Roberts, Ch.

ALABAMA.

Woodlawn—Rev. W. C. Clark had the pleasure, in the closing month of his pastorate at Woodlawn, of receiving four adult members and of baptizing four infants. Two of the persons received were sons of an elder who officiated for the first time in this church at the communion and whose father, a minister of the Presbyterian Church, assisted the pastor in the administration of the Lord's Supper, thus three generations were represented. Dr. Clark has now removed to Sheffield and taken charge of the First Church there as pastor-elect, and is also assisting the work in the Government reservation at Plant No. 2. Dr. Jno. McNeill has been received into the Presbytery of North Alabama and has been installed pastor of the South Highlands Church.

ARKANSAS.

First Church, Blytheville—Ten new members were welcomed into this church Sunday, June 8, all on confession of faith. This makes 23 additions to the membership since the beginning of the present pastorate three months ago.

On Thursday night, June 19, the Sunday school, J. Nick Thomas, superintendent, saw what is believed to be the beginning of larger things. A preliminary meeting had been held about a month before and arrangements made for the organization of adult Bible classes—one for men and one for women. Rev. J. B. Carpenter, a Sunday school man of experience, was invited to come down from Memphis to assist. A drive had been put on. More than a hundred invitations had gone out. And notwithstanding a down-pour of rain at the hour appointed, and very slick streets, the people came on foot and in the automobiles that were sent for them, until there was a company of about forty people in the church and the manse. The two organizations were effected separately. The Sunday following there was an increase of about forty per cent in attendance, and apparent "pep" and determination to make the two classes a go. Following is the organization—Men's Class—President, C. H. Windt; vice-president, Clyde Dorr; secretary, Chas. Gray; treasurer, T. J. Mahan; teachers, Messrs. Walton and Browning. Women's Class—President, Mrs. J. G. Craig; vice-president, Mrs. J. W. Cobb; secretary, Mrs. F. D. Underwood; treasurer, Mrs. J. Z. Smith; teachers, Mesdames Keck and King.

J. Walter Cobb, Pastor.

FLORIDA.

St. Petersburg—The Rev. W. J. Garrison is waking up at St. Petersburg. On last Sabbath, besides other very plain truths, he stated that St. Petersburg was not a Christian city, that if only one in four persons living in the city attended church on the Lord's day the churches would not be able to seat the worshippers even in summer; and that in the winter months only one in eight were present in the House of God.

Dr. Davis and Dr. Lynch each gave glowing accounts of the laymen's meeting in Atlanta, and such enthusiasm was evoked that the church has undertaken the support of at least one missionary for the foreign field.

On the 22nd Dr. Wilkie concluded the twentieth year of service with the church at Dunedin.

Tampa—The Hyde Park Church is waiting anxiously to hear from Rev. J. E. Hemphill, of Atlanta, as to whether he will accept the call to its pastorate.

The First Church is redoubling its activities, and the renewed spirit and energies of the congregation are manifest in the largely increased attendance on the prayer meeting and the Sabbath services. Dr. Tims is greatly encouraged in regard to the building of a more commodious house of worship.

At Seminole Heights Mission, under the charge of the Rev. Ray M. Busler, the Rev. J. H. Patterson has concluded a very fruitful series of evangelistic services. There were many professions of faith, and on the 29th a church will be organized with about forty members to start with. A new building will have to be provided, as the present one is altogether inadequate to the necessities of the work in that growing section of the city.

GEORGIA.

North Avenue Presbyterian Church, Atlanta—The Sunday school of the North Avenue Church went back to before the war times, and had a regular old-fashioned basket picnic at Silver Lake last week. About 300 pupils gathered at the church at 2:30 Saturday afternoon and were taken in trucks and automobiles to the grounds at Silver Lake, which is near Oglethorpe University. Everybody did what they liked best to do in the way of games, stunts, and swimming until late in the afternoon when supper was served, and then the picnic crowd turned toward home happy and tired.

The Howell Mill Mission Sunday School also had a thoroughly enjoyable picnic at Grant Park which rivaled the parent Sunday school in the fun and good times the pupils had.

Dr. John H. Elliott, who has been serving as acting pastor for four months during Dr. Flinn's absence overseas, has accepted the unanimous call of the College Park Presbyterian Church and will begin his pastorate there July 1. North Avenue has been greatly blessed during his stay with us, and the people are glad indeed that he will remain in the South and in Atlanta. The prayer meetings have been made particularly interesting by Dr. Elliott, as each Wednesday evening he has brought up some vital questions and led in a general discussion of the same.

Grace Titman, Sec.

LOUISIANA.

Amite and Kentwood—Rev. Geo. R. Ratchford, of Edwards, Miss., has given the last two Sundays to this field, vacant since Rev. C. O.N. Martindale left for South Carolina.

New Iberia and Jeanerette—Lieut. Glenn R. Morrow, a candidate for the ministry under the care of Lafayette Presbytery, and recently honorably discharged from the service of his country is the summer supply of Rev. M. R. Paradis' field, and is rendering most acceptable service there.

Presbytery of New Orleans—Upon a constitutional request, the Presbytery is called to meet at the First Presbyterian Church on Thursday, July 3, 1919, at 11 a. m., to consider and act upon a request to Presbytery from the Palmer Park Church. In the absence of the Moderator, Louis Voss, Stated Clerk.

New Orleans—From the "Times-Picayune" we take the following:

"At eventide there will be light," was the text used by the Rev. A. R. Shaw, formerly professor of theology at Southwestern University, Clarksville, Tenn., in his sermon Sunday morning at the First Presbyterian Church, where the annual service for the lame, the old, invalids and the blind was held.

Dr. Shaw urged the congregation not to be disheartened by their afflictions. "You are in the evening of life," he said. "Many of you may think that you are 'on the shelf,' so to speak; but remember, there are no 'shelves' in God's kingdom. The depressing influences considered nowadays but natural with the advent of old age are simply the result of false ideas, and should not be tolerated. The great sublimity of life enters your being with the coming of later years, and though the houses of flesh in which you live are now dilapidated and weakened, your souls—your true selves—were never stronger, never wiser, never more beautiful, and surely you have cause to rejoice."

Many inmates from the Home for Incurables and from various institutions throughout the city were brought to the church Sunday in automobiles loaned for that purpose. Some of these persons were over 90 years of age. Dr. Shaw spoke in the place of Rev. Dr. George Cornelson, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, who was called away from the city recently.

VIRGINIA.

Bethesda—This church has received 17 additions recently.

Oxford—This church has invited Rev. J. C. Johnson, of West Virginia, to be their pastor.

Waynesboro—Gypsy Smith is now conducting a meeting at this place. Later he will preach at Bethel and New Providence Churches for two weeks.

New Monmouth—Rev. D. N. Yarbrow, pastor of this church for over 10 years, has resigned to accept a very important work in Roanoke Presbytery. Mr. Yarbrow has done valuable work. New Monmouth has a model Sunday school building, the church is well organized and in excellent condition. It supports a missionary pastor. The church by a practically unanimous vote declined to unite with their pastor, but he felt that he ought to go.

Timber Ridge—This church, since the resignation of Rev. F. F. Jones, has been supplied by various ministers. Rev. M. R. Turnbull will supply the church for a time.

The Moderator of the Synod of Virginia, Rev. E. W. McCorkle, D.D., has appointed the following committee to prepare a memorial of Rev. Wm. N. Scott, D.D.: Rev. D. K. Wallthall, Rev. A. M. Fraser, Rev. A. H. Hamilton, Rev. C. A. Lawrence, Dr. D. J. De Jarnette, with Elders S. B. Allen, of Staunton, and Edwin A. Pleasants, of Richmond.

Woman's Auxiliary

Conducted by Mrs. J. M. McIver, Gulf, N. C.

WOMAN'S AUXILIARY.

Dear Co-Workers in Synodical Auxiliaries:

In her more than gracious words introducing me as the editor of this department of the Presbyterian Standard, Mrs. Ramsay gave as her first reason for thinking me "especially qualified" to fill this office my love for the Auxiliary. I am so glad she put it just that way, for in taking an honest inventory of what I really have in the way of gifts for this special work it seems to me that the outlook for you is rather discouraging. So, dear friends, if we are to get "the best" out of this space that Dr. Bridges has so kindly turned over to us, love must play a large part, not only my love for the work, but, in addition to the "loyal support" that Mrs. Ramsay bespeaks for me, there must be an abundance of that love on your part that "suffereth long and is kind."

What I want you to realize though, is that the success of this department depends upon you more than upon the editor, for she must have not only your sympathy, but your help and hearty co-operation. This is your column to be used for the presentation and discussion of Auxiliary Work. Synodical Auxiliary officers, Presbyterial Presidents, Secretaries of Y. P. work, Cause Secretaries, Secretaries of Literature, of S. P. and C. Home Missions and Orphans' work, please take notice. Send items to me a week ahead. Presbyterial Secretaries of Y. P. Work, please "write up" your Rally Days and send to me as soon as possible.

Owing to the fact that I have been so closely associated with the work of Fayetteville Presbyterial, if other Presbyterials fail to send me items I may have to fall back on what I know about Fayetteville Presbyterial and you must not let that happen too often.

Of course we are not forgetting the date for the "Woman's Summer School of Missions," Montreat, July 13.20. Let us see if we cannot have the largest attendance this year we have ever had.

May I ask, in closing, that we pray for God's guiding hand upon us in this new work. Faithfully yours, Mrs. Jno. M. McIver.

SOME INTERESTING STATISTICS.

The North Carolina Synodical Auxiliary is the largest in the Assembly; total membership, 8,393; contributions to all causes, $98,475, or $11.73 per capita.

To reach the Auxiliary Standard of Excellence requires a 20 per cent increase in gifts and a 10 per cent increase in membership. North Carolina Synodical Auxiliary last year made a 24 per cent increase in gifts, but lacked just 22 names of making 10 per cent increase in membership.

North Carolina reports the largest number of mission study classes, but this does not mean that she leads in this department. Based on the number of societies North Carolina has a grade of 60 per cent. In comparison, Florida has 112 per cent; Texas, 101 per cent; Arkansas, 90 per cent; Missouri, 80 per cent; Georgia, 70 per cent; South Carolina, 70 per cent. (North Carolina is seventh on the list).

How about the missionary survey? North Carolina Synodical Auxiliary subscribes for 3,312 copies; but compared with her membership she again takes seventh rank. Those leading her in percentage of membership subscribing are: Missouri, 52 per cent; South Carolina, 49 per cent; Mississippi, Texas, Virginia, each 41 per cent; West Virginia and North Carolina, 39 per cent.

In per capita gifts, North Carolina ranks fourth, Alabama leading with $13.40. Of the 81 Presbyterials, Albemarle ranks second in her per capita gift. Albemarle, $21.31; Mobile, $31.79.

We may give other statistics again if these prove interesting. Yours sincerely,

Mrs. S. A. Robinson,
Synodical Secretary.

Marriages and Deaths

Marriages.

Taylor-Sessions—At the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Ella Sessions, in McClellanville, S. C., by Rev. Daniel P. Junkin, on May 31, 1919, Mr. Jesse L. Taylor, of Mt. Pleasant, S. C., and Miss Mary Sessions of McClellanville, S. C.

Deaths.

Weber—Entered into rest, April 28, 1919, George Henry Weber, aged 66, and May 16, 1919, his widow, Mrs. Kate J. Weber, both earnest members of the Highland Presbyterian Church, Louisville, Ky.

IN MEMORIAM.

Mary Rankin McKnight.

Mrs. Mary Catharine Rankin McKnight was born March 19, 1848, in Guilford County, the daughter of Albert and Mary McMurray Rankin. She died May 10, 1919, at her home near Greensboro. On Dec. 21, 1869, she was united in marriage to John E. McKnight, of near Greensboro, Rev. J. C. Alexander pronouncing the vows. To this union there were born nine children, C. H., W. A., T. A. and R. G. McKnight, Mrs. W. G. Wharton, Mrs. J. A. Wilson, of Greensboro; Mrs. H. S. McNairy, of Guilford County, and J. S. McKnight, of Shelby. All the children and twelve grandchildren and the husband survive, there never having been a death before in the immediate family.

Her friends and relatives made up a large number, as was attested by the many beautiful floral tributes and the unusually large attendance upon the funeral service. In early childhood she made a profession of faith and united with the Buffalo Church, from which her funeral service was conducted May 11th by her pastor, who was assisted by Rev. S. M. Rankin.

May the God of all grace give grace and comfort to the sorely stricken family.
E. Frank Lee, Pastor.

Edward M. Hendrix.

Edward M. Hendrix, the son of John L. and Martha Hendrix, was born in Guilford County, about four miles from Greensboro, on June 4, 1859, and died on May 18, 1919, being almost exactly sixty years of age. He came of strong, virile ancestors who feared God and who served well their generation. Edward, as a youth, moved to Greensboro and at first was a clerk in a store and afterwards became a successful merchant and commission broker. By careful attention to business, by excellent judgment in investments and by thrifty habits, he accumulated a competency and established himself as one of the prominent business men of the city.

On January 8, 1885, he was married to Miss Lillie C. Denny, of Guilford County, who survives him. His married life was an ideal one, and for thirty-four years they lived together with rare devotion. As a boy he became a Christian and joined Buffalo Presbyterian Church. After his marriage and his removal to Greensboro, he joined the First Presbyterian Church of Greensboro and remained in that communion until his death. He was thoroughly devoted to the church and interested in its activities, and in 1897 was elected a deacon.

He was unusually interested in matters of a public nature, always taking a stand on public questions effecting the city, State and Nation, and could always give his reason for his convictions. In 1911 his health failed and for eight years he was a great sufferer. During all these weeks, months and years of suffering he was blessed with the most tender ministrations of his devoted wife, and throughout this period he showed unusual patience and resignation. For a long time he had been conscious of his approaching end and expressed himself as ready to depart. The time had come and he had laid himself down to rest in peace. A Friend.

Drayton N. Oliver.

Suddenly, without warning, at Dillon, S. C., Sunday, June 15, 1919, while dressing preparatory to going to Sunday School and church, Mr. Oliver was summoned from the scenes of earth, to enter upon the glories of eternity.

He had passed, but a month ago, the 66th milestone in life's journey, and was so well preserved and active that his friends thought of him as being in the very prime of life; but his Lord knew best, and summoned him suddenly into His presence forever.

The writer knew him intimately, and counts it a privilege to have been his pastor for six years at Montreat. Before moving to Montreat, he served as a deacon in the Dillon, S. C., church; and while at Montreat he was faithful in attendance, and always showed a deep interest in the work of the church. Especially as a member of the Montreat choir he did what he could to help lead the service of song. But it was in his daily life the writer knew him best, and appreciated him for his sterling worth. Always modest and unassuming, his friendship was as true as steel; and so cheerful was he at all times that he brought much sunshine into many other lives. He seemed always to be thinking of others, and living for their happiness and not his own.

He leaves to mourn his loss a devoted wife, who for more than a quarter of a century had walked and wrought by his side, sharing equally his joys and sorrows. In the presence of a large concourse of friends from Dillon, Marietta and St. Pauls, his mortal remains were laid to rest in the cemetery at St. Paul's to await the resurrection morn.

Following is a part of a beautiful poem he loved very much, and often had his wife read to him:

COMING.

"At even, or at midnight, or at the cock-crowing, or in the morning."

"It may be in the evening,
When the work of the day is done,
And you have time to sit in the twilight
And watch the sinking sun;

While the long bright day dies slowly
Over the sea,

And the hour grows quiet and holy
With thoughts of Me.

While you hear the village children
Passing along the street,

Among those thronging footsteps
May come the sound of My feet.

Therefore I tell you, Watch
By the light of the evening star,

When the room is growing dusky
As the clouds afar;

Let the door be on the latch

In your home,
For it may be through the gloaming
I will come.

"It may be in the morning,
When the sun is bright and strong,
And the dew is glittering sharply

Over the little lawn;
When the waves are laughing loudly

Along the shore,
And the little birds are singing sweetly

About the door.
With the long day's work before you,

You rise up with the sun,
And the neighbors come in to talk a little

Of all that must be done.
But remember that I may be the next

To come in at the door,
To call you from your busy work

For evermore.
As you work your heart must watch,

For the door is on the latch in your room,

And it may be in the morning
I will come.

"So I am watching quietly
Every day.

Whenever the sun shines brightly
I rise and say,

'Surely it is the shining of His face,'
And look unto the gates of His high place

Beyond the sea,

For I know He is coming shortly
To summon me.

And when a shadow falls across the window

Of my room
Where I am working my appointed task,

I lift my head to watch the door and ask

If He is come;
And the Angel answers sweetly

'Only a few more shadows,
And He will come.'

—E. L. Siler.

Children's Department

ATTENTION, DR. LACY AND MR. SPENCE.

Dear Standard:

I am a little girl nine years old today. I just want to tell you I recited the catechism for young children on the 29th of January, 1919, and on May 7th I recited the Westminster Shorter Catechism. I have my Testament and Bible and am so proud of them. Be sure to print this, as I want Rev. B. R. Lacy, D.D., of Atlanta, and Rev. T. H. Spence, from near Concord, to see it. Both of them used to preach for us. Daddy and mother gave me five dollars this morning for a birthday present. I forgot to tell you Rev. D. M. McGeachy preaches for us now and they have a cute little baby. With best wishes for the Standard, I am, your little friend,
Alice Hart Turner,
Garner, N. C.

MOTHER HIS TEACHER.

Dear Standard:

I am a little boy seven years old. Our pastor is Mr. Baker. I like him so much. I am in the high first grade. My Sunday School teacher is my mother. The superintendent is my papa. I want to surprise my grandmother. Your little friend,
Henry Southerland, Jr.
Mt. Olive, N. C.

WHO KNOWS THIS?

Dear Standard:

This is my second letter to you. I have recited the Child's Catechism and have received my Testament. I forgot to tell you my music teacher's name the last time I wrote you. Her name is Miss Eva McDonald. I am promoted to the fifth grade. I will close in asking a question: What is the largest desert in the world. Your little friend, Roslyn Southerland.
Mt. Olive, N. C.

WAS PROMOTED.

Dear Standard:

I am a little boy nine years old. I take your nice paper and enjoy reading the good stories in it. I go to Elmwood school. My teacher's name is Miss Ethel Chansin. My school closed the 17th of May, and I was promoted to the fifth grade. I go to Sunday School every Sunday. My teacher's name is Aunt Willie Fleming. I recited the Child's Catechism two years ago and got my Testament. Our pastor is Rev. J. T. Hall. I like him very much. I will close for this time, as I want to surprise my father. Your friend, Earl F. Thompson.
Barber, N. C.

A RUN ON PINWHEELS.

Two days before the Fourth, and not a speck of fun on the whole horizon! Not a firecracker, for the city had decided, this year to have a sane Fourth. Not a picnic, for mother was so ill that the rest of the family could not think of leaving her. Not a frolic, even, for everybody was too busy to think of the children, except to hush them if they made a noise.

"I guess," said Harold, gloomily, "we'll just have to sit on the grass and let our feet hang off. Oh!" he cried suddenly. "That red, white and blue paper up in my old desk! Could we make—"

"Pinwheels!" chimed in Helen before he could get the word out. And so it was unanimously decided.

For two days there was little trouble keeping the children quiet. Every minute that they were not needed to help about the house they were out on the upstairs balcony, making their fingers fly.

Father had given them permission to have a pinwheel store on the Fourth, if only they would hold it out on the lawn at the side of the house farthest from mother's room, and make as little noise as possible with it. So they were happily preparing for the fun, making up a big supply of pinwheels in the most patriotic of lines. It was all to be a surprise for the other children, so Harold and Helen kept their work up there on the balcony and never whispered a word of it outside of the house.

When the morning of the Fourth came the twins were up bright and early. Their father set a table outside on the lawn for them, and they arranged the pinwheels along the edge to make the finest possible showing.

At last it was all done, and Helen agreed to stand guard while Harold went out to act as agent in the neighborhood. It seemed a long, long time that she stood there, but she was too eager to sit down. She counted the pinwheels over, deciding how many pins to charge for each one guess.

And then, Harold came back. Her heart went quite down at the sight of his face. He was all alone, and if he had been a girl he would have been ready to cry, "Might have known it," he said. "Every last one of them's gone away some place. Not a thing doing."

The twins dropped to the ground and sat looking at each other, too disappointed to speak or stir. Their beautiful pinwheel store all ready and not a soul to buy! And the long, lonely day before them.

It seemed a long time that they sat there in silence. Suddenly they were roused by a shout from the street. They looked up to see a huge automobile truck, gay with flags and bunting and loaded with children, trundling slowly past the house. Like a flash they ran out to the street.

"Water, water!" shouted the children with one voice. "Give us a drink."

"Yes," Harold called back. The shouting ceased and the truck slowed, then stopped. "We'll get you some water," Harold went on, "only please be as quiet as you can, 'cause my mother's very sick."

In a few minutes the twins were back with a pail of cold water and several cups with which to pass it. Then they were kept busy as bees for a few minutes while the thirsty children drank and passed back for more and thanked them heartily. They explained that they had come from a playground in the heart of the city, that some one was giving them this ride to the park as a holiday treat. There was no need to add that they were children who did not have many such treats, for their eager, pale faces showed it all too plainly, while their voices and speech classed them mostly as new little Americans, who had scarcely lived on our side of the water long enough to know what the Fourth of July means.

Suddenly Harold turned to Helen and whispered a word to her.

"Oh, yes, let's!" she cried happily. They asked the driver to wait a minute, and soon came flying back from the house with their arms full of pinwheels.

"How much cost they?" asked a serious-looking little girl, holding a penny out to them.

"Oh, nothing but a pin. We always sell them for pins," answered Helen. She had meant to give them away, but now she thought perhaps it would be more fun for the children to buy them, and she told them about the store as she handed them out. Pins appeared mysteriously from nowhere to pay for them, till every child in the load had one of the gay little trophies. The driver finally grew impatient and started up, so that the last one had to be tossed to an eager mite who was hanging half way out of the truck to receive it.

"Hurrah for the Fourth!" shouted the twins as the truck moved away, quite forgetting that they meant to be quiet.

"Hurrah for the Fourth!" returned twenty happy voices.

"Hurrah for the red, white and blue!"

"Hurrah for the red, white and blue!"

Then the twins scampered back to the pinwheel table, which was now quite empty. The only pinwheel left was the one they had dropped as they ran a few moments before.

"I've heard papa talk about a run on the bank," said Harold, "but this looks to me like a run on pinwheels."

"Well," answered Helen, "it feels to me like the Fourth of July, and that's more than I expected."—Ethel Rogers, in The Child's Hour.

WHAT HAPPENED TO DUMPS.

Once upon a time there was a queer little elf named Dumps who lived all by himself in a dark little house down in a valley. Ever since he could remember, things had gone wrong with him.

He shivered in the cold and kicked the coal bucket when the fire wouldn't burn. He howled when he stumbled over his own dinner pots that he had left sitting in the middle of the floor, and he stood in his front door and scowled when the other, happy elves went by, without speaking to him.

He and his family had lived like that for years. When any elf wanted to describe something very sad he would say it was "Down in the Dumps," and so Dumps went on without a single happy day.

But the elves decided, suddenly, to give a party. Oh, it was going to be a very jolly party, indeed, and Dumps heard about it. Almost every elf who passed was whistling, or singing something cheerful. And some of them were carrying their best green suits to the Wood Fairy's house to be pressed. And when Dumps heard about the party, he cried so loudly because he knew that he wouldn't be invited that the Wood Fairy heard him. The noise disturbed her so much that she went right down to Dumps's house to see what was the matter with him now.

"Tell me all about it from the beginning, my dear," she asked poor little Dumps.

"I can't see the sunshine!" Dumps howled.

"Of course you can't," said the Wood Fairy. "Your windows are dirty. Get some nice spring water in your little pail and wash them."

Dumps had never thought of doing that. When he washed the windows the sunbeams streamed in like a golden ladder.

"Is there something else the matter?" the Wood Fairy asked.

"My fire won't burn, even though I kick the coal bucket every day," Dumps sobbed.

"Well, do try blowing the fire," the Wood Fairy suggested.

Dumps had never thought of doing that. His bellows were stiff, but he blew them very hard and, crackle, there was a nice bright fire and his tea kettle began to sing.

"Is that all?" asked the Wood Fairy.

"Oh, no!" Dumps sighed, "the other elves are giving a party and I am not invited."

"It is for all the elves and you don't have to be invited," the Wood Fairy said. "Stand up straight and let me brush your suit. Now run along, my dear."

So Dumps started up the hill to the party, laughing all the way for he just couldn't stop. You see he had so many years of being one of the Dumps to make up for. He laughed until all his wrinkles were gone and he was puffed out with happiness. He started bees buzzing and grasshoppers fiddling and crickets chirping, and a whole crowd of yellow butterflies flew along with him.

"Who can this new, fat, cheerful elf be?" asked all the other elves as Dumps arrived at the party, turning a double somersault into their midst. "We are all here except Dumps, and, of course, this isn't he?"

Then Dumps showed them how he could turn back somersaults and make a see-saw out of a rush leaf. He taught them how to play baseball with white clover heads, and how to make a swing of braided grasses. He surprised himself with all the good time he was able to think up.

"Of course, this isn't Dumps," the other elves decided. "His name must be Delight," and Dumps never told them their mistake, for it wasn't really a mistake at all. Now, was it?—Carolyn Sherwin Bailey in Bureau of Education.

"THE VALLEY OF VISION."

Henry Van Dyke.

Varied stories dealing with human love and faith, with dreams and realities, with things that will last now that the war is ended but not forgotten. One of the longest is a vision of three unknown days in the life of Jesus of Nazareth. It belongs with "The Story of the Other Wise Man," which has gone around the world.

PRICE $1.50, Net.

— Order from —

PRESBYTERIAN COMMITTEE OF PUBLICATION
Richmond, Va. Texarkana, Ark.-Tex.

Chicora College for Women

THE PRESBYTERIAN COLLEGE OF SOUTH CAROLINA

A Standard College of Distinction and Character

Religion and Philosophy

Letters and Science

Home Economics

The Fine Arts

(Music, Art and Expression)

For Catalogue and Information, address

Pres. S. C. BYRD, D.D., Columbia, S. C.

North Carolina State College of Agriculture and Engineering

WEST RALEIGH

A Land Grant College founded under an act of Congress by the State Legislature of North Carolina in March, 1887. Splendidly equipped for the education of the sons of the State in the technical and industrial arts.

Four year courses in Agriculture, in Agricultural Chemistry, and in Civil, Electrical, Mechanical, Chemical and Textile Engineering. New departments in Agricultural Engineering and Highway Engineering.

Numerous short courses.

Unit of Reserve Officers Training Corps. Seniors and Juniors receive pay amounting to $118 annually. All students receive free uniforms amounting in four years to $164.

Strong athletic teams.

$40,000 Y. M. C. A. building. Regular paid secretary.

Two hundred and forty free scholarships.

Requirement for admission: eleven units—practically equivalent to the completion of tenth grade work.

Board $16.00 per month. Tuition $45.00 per year. Room rent, heat and light $30.00 per year.

Enrollment last session 1,020, exclusive of all summer students.

Fall term begins September 3.

For catalogue, illustrated circular or entrance blanks, write

E. B. OWEN, Registrar

A NEW OLD AIR.

A "seedy-looking chap" sitting on a rock, picking a mandolin, is credited by Knight Logan, writer of popular waltzes, with furnishing the melody and inspiration for one of Logan's best sellers, "The Missouri Waltz." The composer was walking along a country road when he saw the stranger thumping a weird, tantalizing strain. When asked where he had heard it the man replied: "It's old as the hills, mister. My grandfather told me he used to whistle it when he was a boy in Missouri, and he said he first heard an Indian hum it in Oklahoma."

Logan said the strain haunted him until he could get to a piano, where he worked the melody into his famous waltz.—Detroit News.

HENS MOULT FAST.

E. J. Reefer, the poultry expert, has discovered a scientific product that hastens the moult and revitalizes the organs of the hen and puts her in fine laying condition. The tonic is called "More Eggs" and a package of it is enough to carry the ordinary chicken raiser over the entire moulting season. First to lay is first to pay. "Since using 'More Eggs' I get forty to fifty eggs a day, instead of eight or nine," writes A. P. Woodward, of St. Cloud, Fla. A million dollar bank guarantees that you can have your money back if you want it. So, you don't take any risk. Send $1.00 for a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic. If you want to hurry the moult and get more eggs, act at once; it means more profit for you. Don't wait, but order today. Send $1 today to E. J. Reefer, 4th Floor, Poultry Bldg., Kansas City, Missouri. Or ask Mr. Reefer for his valuable poultry book free, that tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry.

Figure it Out

A quart of milk and a package of Jell-O Ice Cream Powder make

two quarts of ICE CREAM

There is nothing else to put into it and nothing to do but stir the powder into the milk and freeze it.

Made in four flavors and also unflavored.

Flavors: Vanilla, Strawberry, Lemon, Chocolate, and Unflavored.

Two packages 25 cents, at any grocery or general store.

THE GENESEE PURE FOOD COMPANY
Le Roy, N. Y.

THE FLOUR CITY ORNAMENTAL IRON CO.
MINNEAPOLIS, MINNESOTA
SOLDIERS' MEMORIALS IN BRONZE

Service and Honor Rolls—Monuments in Bronze and Granite for Churches, County and Municipal Boards
Address D. F. HOOVER, Southern Representative, Box 224, Charlotte, N. C.

COLUMBIA COLLEGE
COLUMBIA, S. C.

A College for Women ranked in Class "A" by Board of Education, M. E. Church, South. Recognized for its high type of Christian culture.
Unusually complete educational facilities, strong university-trained faculty, thorough equipment, ideal location.
Handsome fire-proof buildings, elegantly fitted with every convenience for health, comfort and safety. Beautiful 20-acre campus, affording ample opportunity for outdoor games.
Library of upwards of 5,000 volumes in large, well-lighted quarters. Fine collection of magazines.
Thorough courses leading to degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Science.
Conservatory of Music under direction of skilled instructors.
Thorough courses in Art, Expression, Business, and Home Economics.
1919 session begins September 17th. For descriptive catalogue, address

G. T. PUGH, Ph. D., President, Columbia, S. C.

OAK RIDGE INSTITUTE

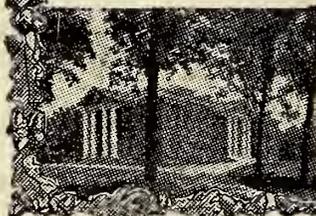

OAK RIDGE, N. C.

T. E. WHITAKER, PRESIDENT

An old-fashioned Southern school dating from 1852. In its long history it has enrolled thousands from the Carolinas and adjoining states. Preparation that opens the way to bigger accomplishments in college, business, and life. 350 acres in campus, athletic grounds, orchards and farms. Modern school buildings. Steam heat and showers. Library. Military training. Healthful, accessible location near Greensboro. More than a thousand feet above sea level. Sane, moral influences.

Courses thoroughly covering literature, science, teaching, bookkeeping, shorthand and music. Athletics encouraged. All male teachers. Discipline mild but firm. Costs reasonable, $350 for the year. Fall session opens September 9, 1919. Write for illustrated catalogue. Address

Oak Ridge Institute,
Oak Ridge, N. C.

CORRECT DRAPERIES

Rightly Bought Are Worth Far More Than They Cost

You are invited to see our assortment of beautiful cretonnes. It is a pleasure to see the gorgeous patterns and color combinations we have on display.

Now is the time to plan for your fall draperies and curtains. Come to see us or write for our drapery man to call on you.

W. T. McCoy & Co.

Charlotte, N. C.

THE HOME OF GOOD FURNITURE

BARIUM ROCK WATER RELIEVES WEAK AND NERVOUS PEOPLE.

Barium Rock Water is being prescribed by many physicians in the treatment of nervous debility and as a tonic and flesh-builder. They also recommend it in cases of indigestion, dyspepsia, rheumatism, gout, eczema and diseases arising from uric acid poisoning and for disorders of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels.

Mr. J. W. McCoy, of Charlotte, N. C., writes: "I had a violent case of typhoid fever and for three years was a nervous wreck. I was totally unfit for any kind of business. I suffered continually from my stomach. My improvement began with the use of Barium Rock Water and I was entirely cured."

If you are weak and nervous, if you suffer from melancholia, hysteria or are afflicted with any of the above diseases, send $2.00 for ten gallons. If it fails to relieve your case, we will refund your $2.00. It is understood that the empty demijohns are to be returned prepaid. Address Barium Springs Co., Box E-21, Barium Springs, N. C.

"Victories are won by science, that is true," said General Foch on the anniversary of the starting of the German drive toward Amiens, "but also by faith. When one has faith one does not retire, one stops the enemy where he finds him. You tell me that I gave victory to France. It was our admirable soldiers who gave it. I have but one merit, that of never despairing."

In kindness of heart and life,
In purity of will and deed,
Oh, may we follow him who shared
Our deepest griefs, our sorest need.

SAUER'S
FRUIT PUNCH
FLAVOR

Something you have been looking for
A New Temperance Beverage and a New Flavor

ALWAYS ready for any occasion as a beverage, served with plain or carbonated water. A base for fruit punches, blends with any fruit or can be combined with Sauer's Pure Strawberry, Raspberry or Pineapple Flavors for sherbets, water ices, milk shakes, etc.

A Flavor which is adaptable for any use.

A 35c bottle makes 35 glasses of punch. For sale by all good grocers. If you cannot get it at your grocers, send us 10c together with the name of your grocer, and we will send you a sample bottle—enough for a pint of syrup, to make 10 glasses, also will send recipe booklet.

QUALITY HAS MADE SAUER'S THE
Largest Selling Brand in the U. S.

Quality Has Won for Sauer's
Seventeen Highest Awards for
Purity, Strength and Fine Flavor

Including four conferred at expositions held in countries now allied with us. Manufacturers of 32 other flavors, including Vanilla, Lemon and Spice Flavors.

The C. F. SAUER COMPANY

C. F. Sauer President
RICHMOND, VIRGINIA

United States Railroad Administration
DIRECTOR GENERAL OF RAILROADS
Seaboard Air Line Railroad

Reduced Summer Excursion Round-Trip Tickets on sale May 15th to September 30th, final limit October 31st, 1919, to the following points:

Alta Pass, N. C.	$ 7.14	Pensacola, N. C.	$ 9.06
Hickory, N. C.	3.30	Rutherfordton, N. C.	4.32
Johnson City, Tenn.	10.80	Shelby, N. C.	2.88
Lenoir, N. C.	4.50	Switzerland, N. C.	6.96
Norfolk, Va.	17.46	Virginia Beach, Va.	18.26
Old Point, Va.	18.06	Wrightsville Beach, N. C.	10.66

The above rates do not include war tax. Also attractive rates to other resorts. For particulars as to fares, trains, schedules, etc., apply to any Railroad Ticket Agent.

E. W. LONG, P. S. A.,
CHARLOTTE, N. C.

JOHN T. WEST, D. P. A.,
RALEIGH, N. C.

IN COMMITTEE.

The appointment of a committee to accomplish a worthy task is often an opportunity to put a crown on the head of the undeserving rather than a call to pick a winner. Clemenceau says, "After forty-eight years of public life I am satisfied that the larger the committee the less it accomplishes." Had the ark been built by a committee it would hardly be ready "to this day."—Christian Advocate.

QUITE A NAME.

Just think of the mental agony of the sergeant who had charge of Anastacios George Honohopapatheodor Komoubtourgeotopoulos in the army. He—we don't repeat the name—was discharged the other day—Epworth Herald.

YOUNG LADY, having finished combined business course with one year's experience, desires position in college office; also wishes to take music. Address "Young Lady," care Presbyterian Standard, Charlotte, N. C.

MONTREAT SUMMER SCHOOL

Six weeks, July 1st to August 12th. Delightful climate. Ideal surroundings for study. Excellent instruction. Faculty of high scholarship and wide experience. For circular and terms, address

MISS FRANCES M. BOWMAN, Director
Montreat, North Carolina

East Carolina Teachers' Training School

A State school to train teachers for the public schools of North Carolina. Every energy is directed to this one purpose. Tuition free to all who agree to teach. Fall term begins Sept. 24, 1919. For catalog and other information, address ROBERT H. WRIGHT, President, Greenville, N. C.

GROVE INSTITUTE

(Formerly James Sprunt Institute)

KENANSVILLE : NORTH CAROLINA

A Preparatory School for Girls. High Grade, Thoroughly Christian. Very Moderate Cost. Students receive Close, Personal Attention in a Home-Like Atmosphere.
NEXT SESSION BEGINS SEPTEMBER 10th.

For Catalog and Particulars, address REV. W. F. HOLLINGSWORTH, Pres.

COLUMBIA THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY
COLUMBIA, S. C.

THORNTON WHALING, D.D., LL.D., President of the Seminary

Professor of Didaactic and Polemic Theology

WILLIAM M. MCPHEETERS, D.D., LL.D.

Professor of Old Testament Literature and Exegesis

HENRY ALEXANDER WHITE, Ph.D., D.D., LL.D.

Professor of Ecclesiastical History and Church Polity

RICHARD C. REED, D.D., LL.D.

Professor of the English Bible and Homiletics

EDGAR D. KERR, A.B., B.D.

Instructor in Hebrew and Greek Languages

GEORGE S. FULBRIGHT, A.B.

Instructor in Elocution

WILLIAM M. MILLS, A.B., D.D.

Instructor in Rural Sociology

J. O. REAVIS, D.D., LL.D.

Professor of English Bible, Pastoral Theology and Missions

Our most progressive Theological Seminary, grown from twenty-four to sixty four students in seven years. Full curriculum and special courses in Pedagogy, Sunday School Organization, Missions, Evangelisms, Rural Sociology and Elocution. Scholarships for prepared students. For further information, write to THORNTON WHALING, President.

DO YOU KNOW

Flora Macdonald College?

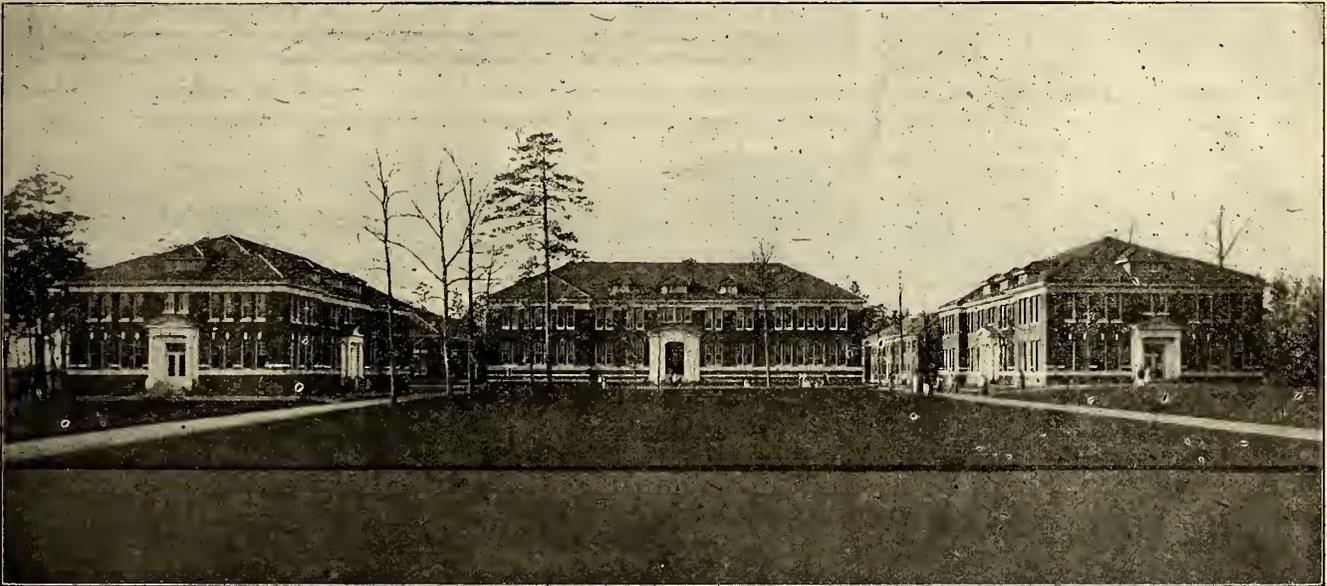

If you do, that is sufficient. If you do not, a catalogue will interest you, especially if you are seeking

An Up-to-Date Christian College for Women

WRITE THE REGISTRAR

FLORA MACDONALD COLLEGE, RED SPRINGS, N. C.

Queens College for Women Charlotte, North Carolina

Established More Than Sixty Years Ago as "Charlotte Female Institute"

It is Now Recognized as the Best Equipped College for Women in the Entire South

We have five new two-story brick buildings with modern fire extinguishers, designed and erected solely for convenience, comfort, efficiency and safety. These buildings are located in the beautiful suburb of Myers Park, three and one-half miles from the center of the city.

We have a splendid wooded campus of 25 acres.

15 units required for entrance. Graduates from recognized State High Schools admitted on certificate.

This College is built on a firm belief in the inspiration of the Bible. Thorough Bible courses provided.

Standard college course leading to B. A. degree. Most complete equipment for thorough education.

Physical, Chemical and Biological Laboratories; Library, Gymnasium, Preparatory department. Able faculty. Dormitories divided into units of two rooms and connecting with bath, accommodating four students. Large, well-ventilated rooms, big closets. Buildings as near fire-proof as possible. Water, gas, electricity. Convenient street car service.

School of Music, Expression and Art offers superior opportunities. Music building has twenty-six rooms equipped exclusively for this department. Complete, thorough course leading to diploma. Post graduate course in music offered.

Our Motto: "Christian Women for Christian Homes"

Necessary expenses very moderate, about $325.00 for the regular literary course, including board. FALL TERM begins September 10, 1919.

For further information send for catalogue or write

WM. ANDERSON, Registrar, Box 300, Charlotte, N. C.

THE POEM IN THE SONG OF THE REFUGEE SHIRT

Refugee garments made by American women for the destitute of war-ridden lands all conformed to standards built on the clothing customs of the people for whom the articles were intended. To American eyes the patterns were often grotesque, even wasteful, but they were followed.

"Anything more clumsy and out-of-date according to American standards could hardly be imagined," writes Wila Sibert Cather, in the July number of the New Red Cross Magazine, discussing the prompt willingness of the workers to accept instructions. "Yet in Red Cross rooms under the Court House and in the basement of the Public Library, out in the farm-houses all over our great rich country, women sat day after day and made underdrawers

GUILFORD COLLEGE

GUILFORD COLLEGE, N. C.

A coeducational College of the highest type. High standards in scholarship and morals. Christian environment. Confers B. A., and B. S. degrees. Excellent musical training. Domestic Science. Strong Preparatory Department. Able Faculty. Fine Athletic Record. Ten Modern and Completely Equipped Buildings. Large Campus. Healthful Climate. Pure Water. Rates Reasonable. For Catalogue or further information, write

THE PRESIDENT

UNIVERSITY OF VIRGINIA

Founded by Thomas Jefferson

Offers standard University training leading to academic degrees as well as to degrees in Law, Medicine, Engineering, Education, Chemistry, etc. The R. O. T. C. will be under the supervision of an army officer detailed by the War Department,

Numerous buildings of classic architecture; beautiful grounds located in the foothills of the Blue Ridge. The athletic field consists of 21 acres, and contains a concrete stadium seating 8,000. Rooms are provided with steam heat and running water. Cost of living as moderate as at any institution of equal rank. The ninety fifth session opens September 18, 1919.

For Catalogue and Information, address
Registrar, University, Va.

FASSIFERN

A HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

is situated on a plateau over two thousand feet above sea level and completely surrounded by the majestic Appalachian mountains, in the city of Hendersonville, N. C., far-famed for its year-around delightful and health-giving climate.

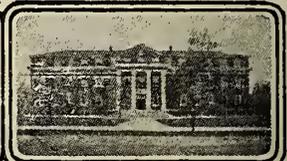

Fassifern suffered not a single case of influenza during term 1918-19 and was not closed for a day. Fassifern offers thorough preparatory courses both for entrance to colleges of highest rank and professional work.

Accredited by the Association of Southern Colleges, the University of North Carolina and prepares for Smith and Wellesly colleges of Massachusetts and other colleges of high rank which no longer receive certificate students.

Next session opens September 17th, 1919.

For catalog, book of views and special information, address
MISS KATE C. SHIPP,

HENDERSONVILLE, N. C.

PRESBYTERIAN COLLEGE
of South Carolina

One of the most modern and best equipped colleges for men under the control of the Presbyterian Church. Beautiful buildings, strong faculty, high standard of work, broad course, attractive student body, best moral influences, Reserve Officers' Training Corps and strong athletic team.

For Catalogue and information apply to

President Davison M. Douglas, Clinton, S. C.

A Home School
for Boys

Your boy lives happily in a Christian home while he receives a thorough preparation for college, technical school or for entering business life. Masters of the highest ability and character give your boy individual attention, wise guidance and friendship. The classes are small. Your boy is taught how to study. Student government and the Honor System are conspicuously successful.

The McCallie School is situated in the midst of a 40-acre campus on the side of beautiful and historic Missionary Ridge. The Athletic field is one of the best in the South; There are both outdoor and indoor gymnasiums. Diving towers, swimming and boating on McCallie Lake. Military drill under competent instructors.

For well illustrated catalogue, address

*Good scholarship required.
Examinations are frequent.
Boys who use tobacco will not be retained. The McCallie School stands for Educated Christian Manhood.*

The McCallie School

Headmasters: S. J. McCallie, M. A., and J. P. McCallie, M. A., Ph. D.
Chattanooga, Tennessee

with from ten to fifteen buttons, and worked the button-holes.
 "Why did they do it? Why didn't they send the old men X. Y. Z. underclothes, such as their own husbands wore? Or explain to the Belgians that they didn't need buttonholes and that Belgium would get on better if she adopted modern methods?"

"I believe the answer is that our women simply admired Belgium too much; they had no suggestions to offer to such a people. Their one wish was that those old men and women should have the kind of clothes they had always lived in, with no feeling of strangeness. A great deal of verse has been written to Belgium, but when I saw our smart, capable Western women patiently making drawers with fifteen buttonholes and chuckling with a kind of pride in their work, I thought that was poetry. I knew how many old feelings must have been rooted out and new feelings born, to make them want to do it, love to do it, in that tedious way that was against the tempo of their whole lives."

EXPERT KODAK FINISHING

Developing and printing done by artists. Most beautiful work guaranteed at all times. Satisfaction or no charge. Developing, 10c. per film. Printing: 2 1/4 x 3 1/4, 3c.; 2 1/4 x 4 1/4, 4c.; 3 1/4 x 5 1/2, 5c. Quick delivery. Send one film to test our service.

Ligon Drug Co., Spartanburg, S. C.

OAK RIDGE INSTITUTE
 OAK RIDGE, N. C.

Prepares for bigger accomplishments in college, business and life. A very high standard of scholarship is maintained. Thorough courses are given in literature, science, book-keeping, shorthand and music. Athletics encouraged. Buildings modern; steam heat and showers. Cost reasonable—$330 per year. Fall session opens September 9, 1919. For illustrated catalog and fuller information, write

T. E. WHITAKER, PRESIDENT.

BINGHAM Is the only Boys' School in the United States which has been administered by THREE SUCCESSIVE generations of PRESBYTERIAN ELDERS for 125 YEARS.

1793. Since 1861 the ACADEMIC work has been supplemented with the MILITARY feature. 1919 Special rates to Ministers of the Gospel (as long as we have vacancies).
 Address COL. R. BINGHAM, Supt., Route 4, Asheville, N. C. ARMY OFFICER DETAILED

THE CITADEL Founded 1842. Charleston, S. C. "Distinguished Military College," rated by War Department.

Full courses in engineering, sciences and languages, leading to B. S. and C. E. degrees.

"It is so superior in all its methods it must be classed alone."—Report of War Department.

For catalogue address
COL. O. J. BOND,
 Charleston, S. C.

14 High Units required for admission. Limited enrollment makes early application necessary.

Blue Ridge School for Boys

Hendersonville, N. C.

A select home school, on accredited list, offering to a limited number of boys, from 9 to 20 years old, a more intensive system of training than public schools can give.

Ideally located in healthful, invigorating climate, conducive to study. Each boy's personality carefully studied and directed by efficient teaching staff composed of virile, patriotic men with successful teaching careers.

A teacher for every seven or eight boys insures individual attention in studies. Boys taught HOW TO STUDY.

MILITARY DRILL, BOY SCOUT activities, and all branches of athletics directed and supervised by able instructors.

High moral tone; cultured, home-like environment; parental discipline. Total charge for session, September 17 to June 4, $480. Summer term, July and August. For catalog, address

J. R. Sandifer, Headmaster, Hendersonville, N. C.

A Southern Presbyterian University, owned and controlled by a Board of Representative Presbyterians from every Southern State.

THE SCHOOLS

Of Liberal Arts, Science, Literature and Journalism, and Commerce are open all the year and students may enter at the beginning of any one of the four terms as follow: Sept. 24, Jan. 2, Apr. 1 and July 6.

A beautiful Book of Views, illustrating Student Life at the University, will be sent free, with catalogue, on application. Address

Oglethorpe University
 Oglethorpe University, Ga.
 (Suburb of Atlanta)

Select Your College Now

Certificates of Credits and Applications For Rooms Are Steadily Coming In

DAVIDSON will again have the R. O. T. C. This, with supervised athletics under a coach of long experience and wide reputation, will insure proper development of the body. The work of the class room, the literary societies, and the editing and issuing of three college publications will give ample field for mind training. A Christian faculty and a choice body of clean-living young men afford a most wholesome influence for character making. The average student body is 350 (last year), from fourteen states and three foreign countries. It is possible for a student to know every man on the campus.

Your college will inevitably impress its stamp upon you. Select a SAFE college—one that you can look back upon after four years and say with pride: "There is my alma mater."

Fifteen units required for entrance. Write for bulletin.

DAVIDSON COLLEGE

DAVIDSON, N. C.

HENS MOULT FAST.

E. J. Reefer, the poultry expert, has discovered a scientific product that hastens the moult and revitalizes the organs of the hen and puts her in fine laying condition. The tonic is called "More Eggs" and a package of it is enough to carry the ordinary chicken raiser over the entire moulting season. First to lay is first to pay. "Since using 'More Eggs' I get forty to fifty eggs a day, instead of eight or nine," writes A. P. Woodward, of St. Cloud, Fla. A million dollar bank guarantees that you can have your money back if you want it. So, you don't take any risk. Send $1.00 for a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic. If you want to hurry the moult and get more eggs, act at once; it means more profit for you. Don't wait, but order today. Send $1 today to E. J. Reefer, 4th Floor, Poultry Bldg., Kansas City, Missouri. Or ask Mr. Reefer for his valuable poultry book free, that tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry.

WANTED—Working Matron for mountain mission school, beginning Aug. 6th. Opportunity for real service under favorable conditions. Write Rev. E. V. Tadlock, Indian Bottom, Kentucky.

YOUR FACE?
Is the Complexion Muddy, Tanned, Freckled?
If troubled with skin eruptions, sunburn, pimples, try
PALMER'S SKIN-SUCCESS SOAP
It cleanses, softens and clears the skin and tends to remove sunburn, tan, freckles, blackheads, pimples and eczema.
Thoroughly antiseptic. Ask your druggist, or write for free samples to
THE MORGAN DRUG CO.,
1521 Atlantic Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Greensboro College for Women

The A-Grade Woman's College of the Two Methodist Conferences of North Carolina

Classed in Group A by State Board of Examiners

Chartered 1838. Confers the degrees of A. B., and B. S., in the literary department, and B. M., in the music department.

In addition to our regular classical course, special attention is called to the departments of Home Economics, Expression, Business, Art, Education, Sunday School Teacher Training, Piano Pedagogy, and to our complete School of Music.

Modern new $50,000.00 Dormitory completed 1918. Conservatory of Music to cost $100,000.00 being erected in 1919.

FALL TERM OPENS SEPT. 10, 1919. For further information apply to
REV. S. B. TURRENTINE, A. M., D. D., President, GREENSBORO, N. C.

The Measure of a College

Elegance of buildings and grounds and wealth of equipment and endowment do not make a college. The REAL MEASURE of a college is found in its ideal—in the personality of its teaching force, and in the quality of its teaching. The real work in education is accomplished by the person. The school can rise no higher than the character of those who give it life.

MITCHELL COLLEGE

maintains a faculty of men and women of strong Christian character and influence, whose qualifications for teaching have been gained by years of thorough preparation and experience. The classes at Mitchell College are small, insuring for each student the utmost benefit of individual instruction.

Well Planned Courses Offered in All College Subjects

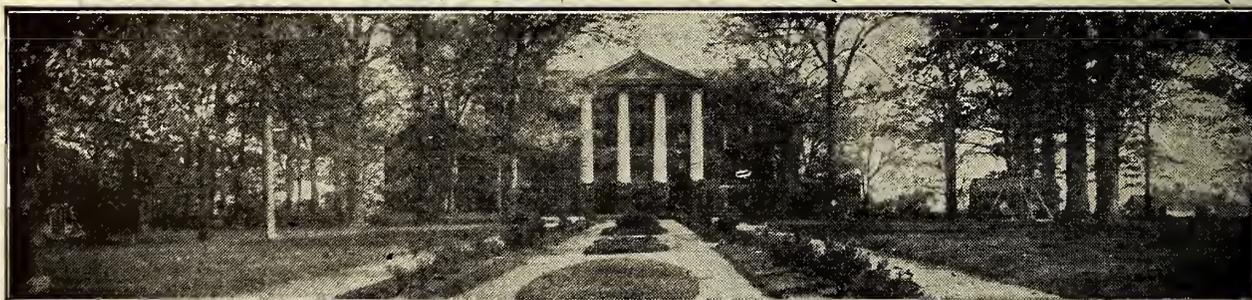

Courses of superior excellence in English, Bible, Music, Expression, Home Economics, and Business. The Department of Music is in charge of a graduate of the Hague Conservatory.

Measure These Advantages

Invigorating climate, small classes, efficient instruction, supervised evening study for all, home life, and positive Christian influence; moderate expenses.

A Preparatory Department offering the best advantages is maintained. Catalog on request.

J. M. MOORE, President, STATESVILLE, N. C.

PEACE INSTITUTE, Raleigh, N. C.

For Young Women

Established 1857

Courses: Junior College. Preparatory to Standard Colleges. Three years Preparatory School. Classical, Literary and Scientific Courses leading to Diplomas. Special Diplomas awarded in Piano, Voice, Art and Expression, Home Economics. Excellent Commercial Course.

Instruction: Specialists in all departments.

LULA B. WYNNE HALL,
Home School for Girls

Situation: Location in capital city gives special opportunities. Delightful social advantages.

Climate permits out-door life all Winter.

Athletics: Supervised indoors and outdoors by Athletic Director. Special attention individual development.

Cheerful home-like surroundings. A good school that students really enjoy attending. For room reservation, catalogue or further information, write at once to

Miss Mary Owen Graham, Pres.

If you can not carry out your present plans, make bigger ones.

MONTREAT LOT FOR SALE— Beautiful situation near postoffice. For particulars, address W. F. Hollingsworth, Kenansville, N. C.

PASTOR WANTED.

The Edgemont Presbyterian Church of Durham, N. C., is without a pastor and wishes to enter into correspondence with any one seeking a pastorate. For particulars address T. B. Fuller, Durham, N. C.

Montreat Camp for rent for season. Two shacks, partly furnished and tent platform. Price $25.00. D. C. Whitted, Box 941, Wilmington, N. C.

Personal Instruction

is the prime secret of a thorough education. An excellent standard and high curriculum maintained for one hundred and thirty-four years and an intentionally limited enrollment insure a most thorough-going literary training at the

COLLEGE OF CHARLESTON

Excellent equipment. Climate unsurpassed. Expenses moderate. CO-EDUCATIONAL. For catalogue and illustrated booklet address Harrison Randolph, Pres., Charleston, S. C.

Meredith College

For Young Women

Offers four years of genuine college work based upon 14 units of high school credit. Courses lead to A. B. and B. S. degrees. Diplomas in Art and Music after completing four years of work.

Location in center of the Capital City, gives unusual advantages.

Library facilities excellent. Attention to physical education. Charges moderate.

For catalogue or further information write

Chas. E. Brewer, Pres., Raleigh, N. C.

DR. J. M. BELK, MONROE, N. C.

W. H. BELK, CHARLOTTE, N. C.

Belk Bros. Dept. Stores

CHARLOTTE, NORTH CAROLINA

19 STORES

Send us your orders for Bibles, Testaments, Confession of Faith, or Book of Church Order, for quick delivery. 10 percent discount for Sunday Schools, Societies, or Churches, Preachers or Teachers—and in dozens we will give you wholesale price.

WHY NOT HAVE A BIBLE OR TESTAMENT IN EVERY SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLAR'S HANDS EVERY SUNDAY? WE WILL HELP DO THIS. WRITE TO US FOR THE PLAN. NELSON'S BIBLES

1184—Sunday School Scholar's Bible. Practical Helps for Young People. How to study the Bible. How to study the lesson. Bible questions and answers all in this Bible. Good black type, red edges, leatheroid binding. Size 5 1/2 x 4 x 1. Special.....98c

Same Bible, gilt edge, better leather binding, illustrated ..$1.25 and $1.50

12—Linen Card Back Bible. Good big print. Fine for the Sunday School classes, about 6x5x1.....75c

1148—Sunday School Bible. Linen board backs, black type, 5x4x1...59c
7764—Teacher's Bible, $5.00.

India Linen Paper, self pronouncing Bible Dictionary, Combined Concordance, 12 Colored Maps, Morocco Binding, Silk Sewed, good print. Size 7 3/4 x 5 1/2 x 1 1/4$5.00

6512—Teacher's Edition Bible—New and instructive maps, 14 maps, placed throughout the Bible, illustrating the Scripture, 20 beautifully colored pictures, complete Bible Dictionary, new Concordance and Helps. Leather binding, strongly made. Black face type. Size 7x5x1 1/2$2.50

6512—Teacher's Bible, $3.95.
Linen Paper, thumb index, illustrated colored pictures, 12 new maps, Bible Dictionary, Morocco leather binding. Black face type, convenient size, 7x5-1 1/4. Special$3.95

1212—Illustrated Bible. 4,000 questions and answers, short history of each book of the Bible by A. T. Pierson, D.D. Harmony of the four Gospels. How to study the Bible. Colored maps. 7x5 1/2 x 1 1/2.....$2.00
7764—Teacher's Bible, $5.95.

Self pronouncing Bible, new, improved maps, finely illustrated, combined Concordance, 12 colored maps, newest and most complete dictionary yet printed. Morocco binding, silk sewed, a beautiful Bible. 8x5 1/2...$5.95
Why not have a Confession of Faith in Every Home? We carry them in stock for your convenience—50c, 75c.

BOOK OF CHURCH ORDER. Every officer in the Presbyterian Church ought to have this Book and study it. We will mail you one for 25c.

NELSON'S TESTAMENTS

402—New Testament, 65c. Bound in leatheroid, large black face type. Size 6x5.

321—New Testament, 48c.

Bound same as 402. Black type. Size 5x3 1/2.

400—New Testament, 25c.

This is a special number. Large black type, cardboard back, clear white paper—the quality equals most 50c books. Special25c

29—New Testament. Vest pocket size, leatheroid binding, fine for the children25c

403—New Testament, 98c.

This is leather bound: Large black type, gilt edge. Size 6x4 1/2:

403P—New Testament and Psalms. Leather bound, gilt edge. Large print$1.19

SCHOFIELD BIBLES

We carry these in the newest Editions, bound in good, heavy Linen Cardboard backs, or can send you the finest Leather Bound. If you want a Bible to get "REAL HELP" right at home—the newest improved help—a Schofield Bible is the one to buy.

No 50—Linen Cardboard Backs. Good black type, with every help at home. Same helps as the highest price Bible. Size of Book 7x5-1 1/4$1.50

No. 70—Same as above, only larger size type and book, 8 1/2 x 6 1/2 x 1 1/4$2.00

We carry Schofield Bibles in all kinds of Bindings—Morocco, Persian, Etc. Real Linen Paper, from $5.00 to $10. Let us send you one on approval.

We carry all kinds of New Testaments from 15c to $2.00.

POULTRY EXPERT GIVES AWAY CHICK FOOD.

To introduce to the poultry raisers of this section a Chick Food that is nationally known, E. J. Reefer, the Poultry Expert, 3rd Floor Poultry Bldg., Kansas City, Mo., is giving away free a one dollar package of Chick Food absolutely free to every poultry raiser who agrees to tell his neighbor about it. This medicated Baby Chick Food is sold on an absolute guarantee to raise chicks for six weeks and it is backed by the National Reserve Bank of Kansas City. Send Mr. Reefer one dollar and he will not only send you one regular dollar size package of Chick Food, but he will include in the same shipment an extra package absolutely free, which means he will send you two regular full size dollar packages of this scientific medicated Baby Chick Food for only one dollar. And he will prepay all the charges on the first order. Considering that this product is guaranteed by the National Reserve Bank and that it keeps baby chicks for six weeks, every poultry raiser should certainly try this scientific medicated Baby Chick Food without further delay. It will pay you to write Mr. Reefer today.

And the toast will be dry, too!—Philadelphia Enquirer.

Aberdeen & Rockfish Railroad

Between Aberdeen and Fayetteville

Eastbound		Westbound
Daily Ex. Sunday	Mixed	Daily Ex. Sunday	Pass. Mixed
No. 22	No. 38	No. 41	No. 21
7 30 am	9 10 am	Lv. Aberdeen Ar.	6 41 pm 5 00 pm
ar 8 35 am	10 00 am	Rae ford	lv 3 50 pm
lv 2 10 pm		Ar. Fayetteville Lv.	6 55 pm ar 2 50 pm
4 00 pm	11 20 am		4 50 pm 1 00 pm

WAGRAM BRANCH

Southbound		Northbound
Daily Ex. Sun.	Mixed	Daily Ex. Sun.	Mixed
No. 11		No. 12
Lv. 10 30 am	Rae ford	Ar. 12 40 pm
Ar. 11 15 am	Wagram	Lv. 12 00 noon

W. A. BLUE, General Supt., Aberdeen, N. C.

Cancer Treated Successfully at the Kellam Hospital

The record of Kellam Hospital is without parallel in history, having restored, without the use of the Knife, Acids, X-Ray or Radium, over ninety per cent. of the many hundreds of sufferers from cancer which it has treated during the past twenty-two years. We want every man and woman in the United States to know what we are doing.

KELLAM HOSPITAL, 1617 W. Main St., Richmond, Va.

Individual Cups

Every church should use. Clean and sanitary. Send for catalog and special offer. Trial free.

Thomas Communion Service Co. Box 310 Lima, Ohio

Church Furniture

WORK OF THE HIGHEST QUALITY AT REASONABLE PRICES.

Write for Catalogue

BUDE & WEIS MFG. CO. JACKSON, TENNESSEE

SAVE YOUR BODY

Conserve Your Health and Efficiency First
"I Would Not Part With It for $10,000"

So writes an enthusiastic, grateful customer. "Worth more than a farm," says another. In like manner testify over 100,000 people who have worn it.

THE NATURAL BODY BRACE

Overcomes WEAKNESS and ORGANIC AILMENTS of WOMEN and MEN. Develops erect, graceful figure. Brings restful relief, comfort, ability to do things, health and strength.

Wear It 30 Days Free At Our Expense

Does away with the strain and pain of standing and walking; replaces and supports misplaced internal organs; reduces enlarged abdomen; straightens and strengthens the back; corrects stooping shoulders; develops lungs, chest and bust; relieves backache, curvatures, nervousness, ruptures, constipation. Comfortable and easy to wear.

Keep Yourself Fit

Write today for illustrated booklet, measurement blank, etc., and read our very liberal proposition.

Howard C. Rash

Pres. Natural Body Brace Co.

289 Rash Bldg., Salina, Kansas

For Boys and Girls Also

MOUNT MITCHELL, NORTH CAROLINA

• 6711 Feet High •

The Highest Mountain in Eastern America
(20 Miles East of Asheville)

Many Attractive Resorts in the Mountains of Western North Carolina

Average Elevation 2500 Ft. Above Sea Level, Insures Healthful and Delightful Summer Climate

ASHEVILLE • HENDERSONVILLE • HIGHLAND LAKE • BREVARD • BLACK MOUNTAIN • WAYNESVILLE • LAKE JUNALUSKA • TRYON • SALUDA • FLAT ROCK, • KANUGA LAKE • BLOWING ROCK • LINVILLE • TATE SPRING, TENN. • SIGNAL MOUNTAIN, TENN.

One Hundred Thousand or More Visitors go to these

WESTERN NORTH CAROLINA RESORTS

Every Summer Because of the Delightful Summer Climate

Good Hotels and Boarding Houses

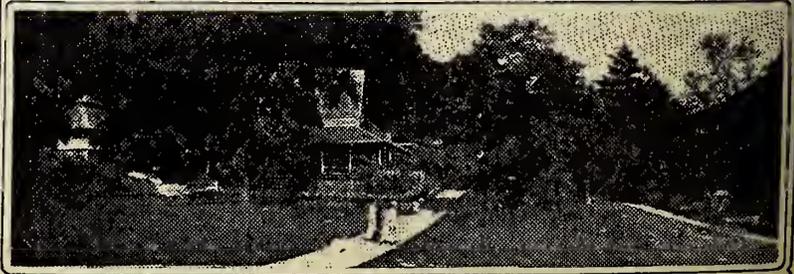

• EXCURSION FARES •
• CONVENIENT SCHEDULES •

• • • AND SERVICE • • •

United States Railroad Administration,
Director General of Railroads.

VACATION • LAND •

SOUTHERN RAILROAD LINES

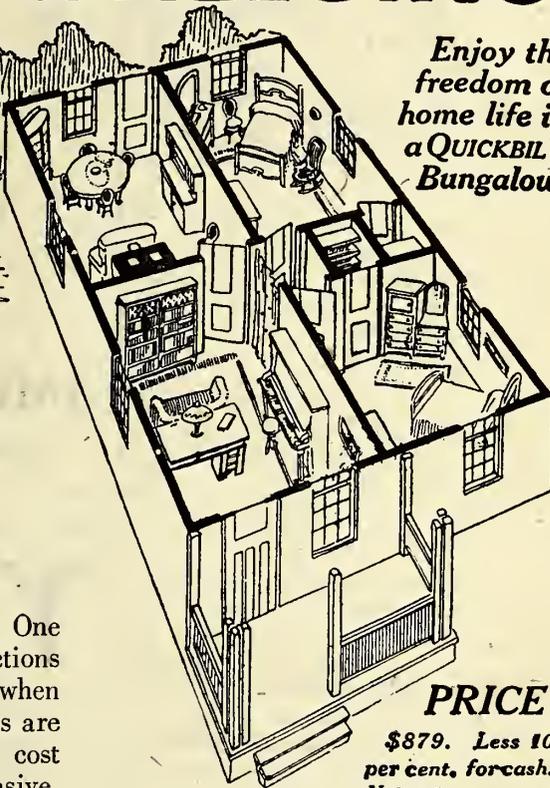

A delegation left New York last week to teach France the arts of private canning and drying of food. It goes at the request of the French Government and consists of three women and one man, two of the women government agents from French-speaking Louisiana. They will have headquarters in Paris and will teach the teachers of the French agricultural schools in different parts of France in a proposed campaign of four or five months.—Ex.

Happiness is a by-product of work well done.

Own Your Own Home

Enjoy the freedom of home life in a QUICKBILT Bungalow.

Life Isn't Life

in a rented house, a boarding house or a crowded flat. One is too cramped, formalities too burdensome and restrictions too numerous. It is a useless nuisance. Especially when it is so easy to own your own home. Building materials are high, but modern methods of manufacture reduce the cost and place a home within your reach. Labor is expensive, but systematic construction makes possible the erection in only a few days. Build Today—Stop Paying Rents.

PRICE
$879. Less 10 per cent. for cash.
Net price
$791.10

QUICKBILT BUNGALOW NO. 42

An attractive, snug, convenient, roomy little bungalow with graceful lines embodying the most modern of architectural ideas. Securely and substantially built to make it lasting and comfortable in the most severe weather. Especially built for convenience. While small in appearance, and snug its rooms are in reality of ample size for every comfort. Built at a tremendously reduced cost, due to the immense savings in quantity production. From the flooring to the roof; from the siding to the interior finish, it is already prepared for erection and partially built. In buying a QUICKBILT Bungalow, you turner and forest in one. Our complete plants cover the entire process, from the tree to the completed house. You pay no middle-man a profit. You buy direct from the source of material. In our complete plants in which hundreds of houses are built simultaneously, every short cut to perfection is used and every waste avoided. As the houses are made in great quantities you gain the advantage of the low cost or quantity production.

SAVE

WASTE—All the material is already prepared and the large waste piles of scrap lumber are thus eliminated. Every foot of lumber is used. You buy no surplus material.

A CONVENIENTLY PLANNED HOME

The house is shipped F. O. B. Charleston, complete with all necessary material except the brick work. Size over all, 33-ft. x 21-ft. There are two large bed rooms, size 9-ft. x 12-ft., with closets, one spacious living room 12-ft. x 15-ft., kitchen 12-ft. x 12-ft. and an attractive front porch 12-ft. x 6-ft. The house is well lighted, spacious, well ventilated and convenient. The construction is largely of North Carolina Pine, "The Wood Universal," thoroughly kiln dried. Excellent flooring and ceiling. Walls built in panels of siding lined with heavy builders' paper to insure warmth. Durable, fire-resisting, standard asphalt strip shingles with slate green or red finish. Artistic paneled inside finish. Excellent doors and sash. All necessary nails and hardware furnished. House comes with exterior walls stained any one of a number of standard colors or painted with one heavy coat of priming paint. Exterior trim and inside finish painted with one heavy coat of priming paint.

TIME—Every piece of material has its own place. Everything is numbered and systematized. The instructions to the carpenter are complete and the order of erection simple. No time is lost in looking for material. The time ordinarily required in preliminary cutting and trimming is saved. As a large portion of the house is already built in panels, just that much time and cost is eliminated in construction.

LABOR—With the entire process of erection systematized and complete, the great building "bugaboo"—preliminary preparation—eliminated, the labor in the erection of a QUICKBILT Bungalow is reduced to a minimum, and therefore, of minor consideration. A carpenter of average speed and experience with two laborers, can erect the house in 7 days. The ordinary house will take almost as many weeks.

MONEY—A saving in waste of material, time and labor, is a saving in money. With a QUICKBILT Bungalow the expense of erection is cut in half, but that is not all. You need not pay a contractor's fee. The erection is so simple and systematic that any carpenter of average intelligence can erect it with ease. Many owners build them themselves. You pay no architect's fee. The complete plans with all specifications and instructions are furnished FREE. And yet, the plans are made after careful study by the best and most experienced of architects, with a view to eliminating waste and gaining the greatest possible convenience, economy and strength. The cost of the material is further reduced by the fact that you buy it from the mill, manufacfor further information and a copy of our complete and attractive, illustrated book, "QUICKBILT Bungalows" No. B-9. It will explain all about No. 42 and many other attractive QUICKBILT Bungalows. It is FREE for the asking. Merely fill out the coupon below and mail it. Better still, if Bungalow No. 42 fills your needs, tell us the color desired and instruct us to ship immediately.

WRITE TO-DAY

COUPON—Clip Here and Mail To-Day.

Please send me your book, "QUICKBILT Bungalows" No. B-9. Am especially interested in a room house.

NAME

ADDRESS

QUICKBILT Bungalow Dept., A. C. Tuxbury Lumber Co., Charleston, S. C.

Sparkles

While the minister was making a call the little girl of the house was busy with pencil and paper.

"What are you doing?" he asked, when her mother had left the room for a moment.

"I'm making your picture," said the child.

The minister sat very still, and she worked away earnestly. Then she stopped and compared her work with the criminal and shook her head.

"I don't like it much," she said. "Tain't a great deal like you. I guess I'll put a tail to it and call it a dog."—Boston Evening Transcript.

Two British soldiers went into a restaurant at Salonica and asked for Turkey with Greece. The waiter said: "I'm sorry, gentlemen, but I can't Serbia." Whereupon the Tommies cried, "Fetch the Bosphorus!"

When that gentleman arrived and heard the complaint the manager said: "Well, gentlemen, I don't want to Russia, but you cannot Rumania."

And so the poor Tommies had to go away Hungary.—Ex.

An old Scotchman deemed it his duty to administer some sound advice to a youth placed under his charge.

"Keep your temper, Dougal. Never quarrel wi' an angry person, especially wi' a woman. Mind ye, a soft answer's ay best. It's commanded—and forby it makes them far madder than anything else you could say."—Exchange.

"What is the difference between a general practitioner and a specialist?" "A general practitioner is a man to whom you pay a fee for telling you to what specialist you should go."—Typographic Messenger.

Butcher—"I am in need of a boy about your size. I would pay you ten shillings a week." Applicant—"Will I have a chance to rise?" Butcher—"Oh, yes; I want you to be here at four every morning."—Ottawa Evening Citizen.

Teacher—"If a farmer sold 1,470 bushels of wheat at $3.17 a bushel, what would he get?"

Boy—"An automobile. — American Boy.

Patient (with a broken arm): "It's awful not to be able to do any war work while I'm laid up!" "That's all right, my dear Mrs. Willney—your bones are knitting."—Life.

"Hurrah! Five dollars for my latest story, 'A Modern Husband.'" "Congratulations, young man. From whom did you get the money?" "From an express company. They lost it."—Santa Fe Magazine.

THE WESTMINSTER SCHOOL A PREPARATORY SCHOOL FOR BOYS

Operated by Kings Mountain Presbytery
$300.00 Per Year

Write for Catalogue to

Rev. T. E. P. Woods, Box 6, Rutherfordton, N. C.

4 Per Cent

Time Certificates of Deposit

They are Interest Bearing. They are Payable on Demand. They Afford a Good Income for Funds Awaiting Permanent Investment

GET ONE

AMERICAN TRUST COMPANY

Charlotte

::

North Carolina

YES, Preachers and Teachers Are Human

They should have no discount and no cheaper railroad fares than you and I. They should be paid for services rendered—amply paid. If he can't earn enough for family use and the nest egg for the future, he made a sad mistake as to family, else he should change his calling instanter.

The Mutual Building & Loan

Will save a man and his family if they're worth saving, but they must help. It furnishes the "sure cure," but boasts no regrets at the demise of a feller who deliberately refuses to take the medicine.

E. L. KEESLER, Sec. & Treas., 25 S. Tryon St., CHARLOTTE, N. C.

Charlotte National Bank Resources $4,000,000.00 CHARLOTTE, N. C.

PAYS FOUR PER CENT.

On Either Time Certificates of Deposit or Savings Accounts

MAIL ORDER Business Solicited and PROMPT ATTENTION Given

- | | |
|-----------------|-------------------|
| JOHN M. SCOTT | President |
| W. J. CHAMBERS | Vice-President |
| J. F. ROBERTSON | Vice-President |
| W. H. TWITTY | Cashier |
| C. W. BUTT | Assistant Cashier |

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

REV. J. R. BRIDGES, D. D.

EDITORS

REED, D. D.

VOL. LX.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., July 9, 1919.

No. 27.

Sight.

He prayed beside the city gate,
A youth who longed for sight.
And passing by, the Master gave
To his blind eyes the light.

So faring down the World's Highway,
Oh, Master, touch mine eyes
That I may see Thy hills and dales,
The wonder of Thy skies;

That I may see Thy hand of love,
In wood and field and grass,
In ev'ry humble bloom that stars
The wayside, as I pass.

And let me find in every soul
Some likeness unto Thee;
Let fall Thy healing touch again,
Oh, Master, make me see!

Give unto me a vision clear,
To see, and choose the right;
To see, and help a brother's need,
Oh, Master, give me sight!

—Anna Deming Gray, in New York Advocate.

Editorial

One Church for Jew and Gentile.

“THEY shall come from the East and the West and the North and the South, and shall sit down with Abraham and Isaac in the Kingdom of God.”

Abraham and Isaac were in the Kingdom of God, the same Kingdom of God about which the New Testament has so much to say. Jesus was not introducing something new. He was giving new ordinances, fresh impetus and an enlarged mission to that which was old.

“The Kingdom of God shall be taken from you and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof.” One must have a thing before it can be taken from him. The Jews therefore had the Kingdom of God before Jesus came and preached to them. It was the same Kingdom of God to which Abraham and Isaac belonged. This is the Kingdom into which the Gentiles coming from the four points of the compass were to be introduced, the Kingdom which was to be taken from the Jews and given to them.

“I will give unto thee the keys of the Kingdom.” Peter was made a door keeper of the Kingdom. Henceforth the Kingdom is not to be entered by birth. It must be entered through the door, the keys of which are in the keeping of those appointed by Christ to this high trust. Peter was the first, and he discharged the function of his office for the first time on the day of Pentecost. The 3,000 admitted on the day of Pentecost were admitted to the same Kingdom from which the former “children of the Kingdom had been cast out.” True these were Jews but not as such were they admitted to the Kingdom. They had lost their old standing and were admitted on the same terms on which all must henceforth be admitted. They came in not as Jews but as Christians. From this time forth there is to be neither Greek nor Jew, Barbarian, Scythian, bond nor free, but Christ is to be all in all.

Soon the Jews ceased to enter the Kingdom in any large numbers, and their place was taken by the Gentiles. As Paul teaches, the natural branches were broken off and the Gentiles who were a wild olive tree were “grafted in among the branches and were made partakers of the root and fatness of the olive tree.” The old olive tree roots back into Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. To quote the pertinent language of Dr. Hodge, that prince of Biblical exegetes, “The ancient theocracy was merged in the Kingdom of Christ. The latter is but an enlargement and elevation of the former. There has, therefore, never been other than one family of God on earth, existing under different institutions, and enjoying different degrees of light and favor. This family was composed of old of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and their descendants. At the advent, its name and circumstances were changed; many of its old members were cast out, and others introduced, but it is the same family still. It is the same tree, some of the branches only being changed.”

“In thee shall all the families of the earth be blessed.” Since Pentecost, this promise to Abraham has had an ever enlarging fulfillment. The same blessings bestowed on Abraham and for many centuries restricted almost entirely to his descendants, overflowed their narrow channel, and for nearly two millenniums have been spreading ever more and more widely and will continue to spread until they have enriched all nations. Not only are the blessings the same, but they are linked to the same old covenant. “If ye be Christ’s, then are ye Abraham’s offspring and heirs according to the Promise.”

There is a golden age in front of the Church. “Blindness in part has happened to Israel until the fullness of the Gentiles be come in. And so all Israel shall be saved.” This Scripture points us to the time when the Jews, recovered from their blindness, shall be brought back to enjoy with the converted Gentile nations the blessings of the same old Kingdom from which they had been cast out.

This Kingdom is identical with the Church. “The Church which the Lord Jesus Christ has erected in this world for the gathering and perfecting of the saints is his visible Kingdom of grace, and is one and the same in all ages.” Such is the doctrine of our Book, and it rests on an ample foundation of Scripture.

The League of Churches.

We are an enthusiastic advocate of the League of Nations because we believe that such a league is the only way to avoid another war such as we have just passed through. We have our doubts, however, as to the League of Churches—because the difference between Churches are founded upon conscientious scruples, and in matters where conscience enters, compromises are not possible.

In the first place experience has shown that in the past one great Church always becomes corrupt. A number of smaller bodies act as restraints upon each other, as well as incentives to good works, but when there is one big Church the ambitious secure the offices, and the corresponding temptations become a snare. Denominational differences may at times cause bitterness and strife, yet the benefits far outweigh the drawbacks. Each one is put on its good behavior with the result that doctrinal purity is preserved.

It is doctrine that gives backbone to men, because it appeals to conscience and reminds him that there are eternal truths in comparison with which earthly ideas are as nothing. In order to get your big Church together, you will have to bring all denominations into one, which can only be done by compromises, and when you compromise truth you are engaged in dangerous business. There will be nothing distinctive for man to believe, with the result that men will soon do away with the difference between right and wrong, and like the men of Isaiah’s day, call good evil and evil good.

There seems, however, such a fascination about the idea of a big Church that we find men are beginning to minimize doctrine, and to contend for union at any price. The history of our Church in the past has been one of which we have reasons to be proud. It may be that we have been unduly so, and imagined that we were righteous above others. If such has been the case, may the good Lord forgive us, but at the same time keep us from wandering after strange gods. We realize fully the danger of indulging in spiritual pride, on one hand, and, on the other, of being so broad that we are willing to swallow the Romish and Greek Churches with all of their errors.

Let our effort be to hold to the old truths, even if we have to stand alone, praying God to keep us humble, and at the same time offering the prayer of the old monk who prayed the Lord to make him humble and also to keep him from being proud that he was humble.

The Assembly’s Minutes for 1919.

We congratulate Dr. Law upon his feat of issuing the Minutes of the Assembly about one month after the session closed.

We have had no time for a comparative study of them but the mechanical work seems well done. Let us hope that they are free from the errors of last year, due, as Dr. Law claims, to no fault of the stated clerk.

The Reformer in Trouble.

W. T. Ellis is one of the most versatile as well as brilliant correspondents of this age, which is distinguished for the many brilliant men who act as scouts for the newspapers of our land. He is not only a traveller who has traveled every land, but he is the master of a charming style that enables him to picture what he sees in a way that his readers see as he does. His expositions of the Sunday School lessons are always readable and spicy, if not always sound. In the social circle he is a most charming man, who out of the abundance of his experience can entertain as well as instruct.

During the past few years, like Alexander, he has sighed for more worlds to conquer, and has appeared in the role of an ecclesiastical reformer. He has pointed out, sometimes too accurately, the foibles of the ministry, and he has appeared as the evangel of a new religion. The old had served its purpose, and now he would have men accept a new gospel that grew out of the war and the doughboy's experience. We had hoped that he would stay content with this new work, but, according to the secular press, he proposes to play the role of a political reformer.

It seems that there is a national movement in Egypt seeking to free that land from the rule of the British. We are too far from Egypt to know whether the British rule has been free from abuse. We do know, however, that England has always developed every country under her care, and among the nations of the earth she is a striking example of how a great nation can help the weaker ones.

It seems from the press despatches that Mr. Ellis has rendered himself so obnoxious to the authorities by speaking at a nationalist meeting at the center of all present sedition, El Azhair University, where he received a great ovation, that the authorities had to complain to our diplomatic agent. We learn that he has since been permitted to leave Egypt and go to Constantinople. We would regret very much to see him overturn the British rule in Egypt, but if this new interest will fully occupy his attention and his efforts, we of the ministry will feel more at ease, and plan our work ahead, without having hanging over us the thought that before our plans can be carried out, the old Church may be no more.

Then a great many of us have been living by the old religion for more years than we care to confess, and it has always been our hope that we may die by it, a consummation that will be impossible, unless some one either imprisons our old friend or else gives his active mind something else to reform.

The Elise High School.

There is no work in the Home Mission field carried on by the Synod of North Carolina that has brought forth more fruit than its educational work. It is a literal carrying out of the lesson taught by James in his epistle when he warns us against the tendency on our part to say to the naked and hungry, "Be ye warmed and filled." It has long been the custom for the Churches to express sympathy with the isolated lives of the mountaineers and with the illiteracy that prevailed there, but beyond that we went little further. Now we express our sympathy in a more tangible way. We build school houses and we gather the illiterate, and then through the refining influence of the school we change the social life of the mountains. Moreover, we teach the useful arts, so that the living conditions are improved and aspirations after higher things are planted among the people.

On other occasions we have spoken of the schools at Banner Elk and Plum Tree, which we value highly. Now we would call attention to another, one of the same high grade, but differing from the others in being co-educational. The Elise High School at Hemp, N. C., is worthy of help and patronage. We have looked over their catalogue and have been impressed with the thorough provisions made for excellent work. Those who have the Lord's money on hand and wish it to be placed where it will do the most good can find no better investment than our mountain schools.

The Coming of the General Assembly.

Though the next meeting of the General Assembly is a long way off, yet it is not too soon to form plans for the entertainment, such as we wish to give. After the example set by New Orleans, Charlotte will have to make extra effort. This is a meeting that concerns not Charlotte only, but the Presbytery of Mecklenburg is also concerned. Neither is it to be a First Church affair, but it is to benefit every church in Charlotte, and also the churches of the county and entire Presbytery. Men will come here from the Potomac to the Rio Grande and from the Atlantic ocean to the edge of Kansas—and what they find here will largely determine their idea of our Synod.

The Assembly lasts about a week, but there will be much expense attending its entertainment. The cities in which we meet generally contribute on the ground that the city receives a return value in the advertising among the very best people. Much of this expense can be lessened by entertaining the commissioners in our homes. Of course the domestic situation makes this more difficult than it once was, yet for a week any family can manage. Let us remember that it is not a one-sided affair, but on the contrary it is give as well as take. We entertain, but the coming together of such a large body, living in our homes and touching our family life carries with it a blessing that cannot be measured. Then it is no small matter to have the opportunity of coming into touch with such men in public assembly, to hear the addresses and the debates. It is in itself an education to any community.

We hope that the Charlotte people will even now begin to prepare, so that when they come and then leave, they may leave a blessing behind them and carry with them the memory of the most delightful entertainment in their experience.

The End of the Tithe Discussion.

If our readers are as wearied by the discussion of the tithe as the editor, they will learn with pleasure that with the article by Dr. Harding, the case is closed. When we shut down the discussion in early June, there were two articles left over, which we had weeks before promised to publish. Last week we had Rev. M. B. Lambdin in opposition, and this week we give one by Dr. Richmond Harding, of Davidson College, strongly in favor of it. In making this valedictory we wish our readers to understand clearly our position in thus starting the discussion.

It has ever been our custom to let our ministers use the Standard as a forum for the discussion of questions affecting the Church, provided that the discussion be conducted without personalities. Those who have written against the tithe have written, not against the tithe as a system of giving, but against the claim that a man breaks a direct law of God when he fails to tithe. This point their opponents seem unable to grasp, and they have charged that they were crippling the work of the Church by checking the generosity of our people.

Some harsh and uncalled for charges have been made against these brethren, who have merely repeated the deliverances of every Assembly that has expressed itself upon the subject. The Standard would urge the adoption of the tithe law, not as a moral obligation, but an excellent method by which we can honor God with our substance. In this sense the editor tries to tithe.

Contributed

How the Score Was Evened

By R. E. Magill.

TOROS GHARGHAIN was one of over six hundred Armenian children who found himself in the hands of the Turks down in the Lebanon mountains after a weary march of over five hundred miles from his home in Gurzin in the district of Sevas in Asia Minor.

The story of the suffering and hardships of the people who were driven out of their homes and forced to march hundreds of miles over mountain and desert, always tortured by hunger and thirst, and how they dropped by the roadside to die one by one until only about one in five survived, is too pitiful and long to relate here, but the record is not lost and the God of eternal justice will surely hold to a strict account the leaders and the nation who were guilty of the foulest crimes that ever blackened the pages of history.

Toros, along with his companions in suffering, was herded into a big monastery which the Turks took by force from an order of Monks who were trying to provide school privileges for the boys of the Lebanon Mountains.

The Turks were not prompted to spare the lives of these children by humanitarian motives, but finding them alive and on their hands after incredible sufferings they decided to make Turks out of them by force, so gathered the wanderers into what they were pleased to call an orphanage. The institution also sheltered a few Kurdish children who had lost their parents as a result of the war. The first step in the process of making Turks out of the Armenian children was to prohibit the use of their native tongue and to order them to speak only the Aramis language. Next they were ordered to surrender their Bibles, Testaments and crosses and were forced to go through all the forms of worship required by the Mohammedan religion.

Many of the children were so loyal to the faith of their fathers that they hid their Testaments and Bibles and concealed their crosses about their persons and thus braved the cruel punishment and torture they knew the Turks would inflict if they were caught disobeying orders.

The Turks suspected that some of the Armenian children were disobeying their orders, particularly in the matter of recanting the Christian religion and they employed a lot of the Kurdish boys to act as spies and gave them unlimited authority to impose upon the unfortunate Armenians.

There is an age-long feud between the Armenians and Kurds and the world war has intensified this racial hatred so the children of the two races were ready at a moment's notice to engage in "scraps." Giving the Kurds special privileges and authority to spy upon and annoy the Armenians caused a "near-riot" but the Turks upheld them and they used all their ingenuity to harass their unfortunate victims.

The climax came when the Kurdish boys ordered the Armenians to march into the chapel of the institution and publicly spit upon the cross which to the mind of an Armenian Catholic represented all that was most sacred in their old life. There was no appeal, however, from this brutal pagan order as the Turks threatened fire punishment to all who disobeyed. The horror and hot indignation of the Armenian children cannot be described or even imagined and a more pathetic sight was never seen in this land of tragedy and despair than these helpless children marching by and spitting upon the most sacred emblem of their faith.

The day of evening scores was closer at hand than they imagined, however, for the British and French armies were making a rapid drive up the Mediterranean coast to hem the Turkish army down in the Jordan Valley and before the Turks realized their danger the biggest part of their army was captured.

The few Turks outside the net made a quick dash to get back to Constantinople and the officials in charge of the orphanage at Antonea did not wait to say good-bye but left 600 orphans without any one in charge but some four or five faithful nuns.

The Armenian boys heard the news with great rejoicings and the next morning at breakfast Toros Gharghain, one of the older boys, sprung his surprise on the Kurdish boys who had so brutally imposed on the Armenians. He had made a wooden cross about 18 inches in length and he took his stand at the door of the dining hall at breakfast time and as the Kurdish boys appeared he ordered them to kiss the cross.

This was a bitter pill for the Mohammedans as they felt they were imperilling their souls to recognize in any way the symbol of Christian faith.

Toros was inflexible, however, and stood with his cross until every Kurd in the orphanage had kissed the cross.

The orphanage passed at once under British control and later to the Armenian Relief Committee of New York and since then the Armenians have been bountifully cared for but no one in the institution is such a hero in the eyes of the other children as the loyal Christian Toros Gharghain.

Salvation and Service.

By Rev. Wm. P. McCorkle.

A wise old minister once remarked to me in speaking of the duty of preparation for the pulpit, "It is a fearful sin to talk non-sense in the name of the Lord." Is it not a sin even more fearful to speak lies in the name of the Lord? Jeremiah declared that Jehovah is against the prophets who cause his people to err by their lies. And yet in this day, when "new statements" of old truth are demanded on every hand, and the unpardonable sin in the pulpit is to be commonplace, ministers are sometimes tempted to risk falling upon the Scylla of error in seeking to avoid the Charybdis of triteness. Their light must shine brilliantly, even if it flash the wrong signal. Thus, not long ago I read in a sermon preached by a popular orator on a notable occasion, this singular falsehood: "Salvation is a by-product of service." That is, not merely the product, but an incidental product, as gelatine and ammonia become by-products of our great meat-packing establishments and as coal-tar is a by-product of gas work. Let no man concern himself specially about the salvation of his soul. All he needs to do is to be zealous of good works. His salvation will result necessarily from his personal righteousness.

From this it follows that Paul was wrong when he taught that we are "saved by grace through faith;" wrong when he declared that salvation is not of works, lest any man should boast; wrong when he affirmed that we are saved "not by works done in righteousness, which we did ourselves," (R. V.) but "according to his mercy," etc.

And "one Jesus" was wrong also, when He taught that salvation is not a by-product of service, but that service is the purposed outcome of salvation. "Ye have not chosen me," He said, "but I have chosen you and ordained you, that ye should bear much fruit." Our fathers thought they were expressing the sense of these words and others, when they put into the Catechism this statement, "The chief end of man is to glorify God and to enjoy Him forever." But up-to-date preachers, desiring to be original and striking, would not condescend to quote the Catechism. They can make definitions that are brighter and more popular.

But, after all, is it not worth while to ask whether these new oracles are inspired, and whether it is altogether safe for the church to commit herself to the guidance of leaders who have so far forsaken the old paths?

Charlotte, N. C.

Graduates of Our Theological Seminaries

By Henry H. Sweets, D.D., Secretary.

We are enabled to furnish below a list of the candidates for the ministry who graduated from the three theological seminaries of the Church in May, 1919. The name, Presbytery and field of labor accepted is as follows.

Union Theological Seminary.

Franklin M. Bain, Fayetteville, Accomac, Va.
 Frank E. Baker, East Hanover, Tinkling Spring Church, Fishersville, Va. (Later will go to Brazil).
 Marion A. Boggs, Jr., Piedmont, Grace Covenant Church, Richmond, Va.

Graham F. Campbell, East Hanover, Colored Mission Work, Atlanta, Ga.

Lloyd McF. Courtney, Holston, Stony Point, Tenn.

J. E. Cousar, Jr., Harmony, Moses D. Hoge Fellow, Union Theological Seminary, Richmond, Va.

Albert Ray Howland, Mecklenburg, Samuel Davies Church, Hanover Co., Va.

Norman Johnson, Atlanta, Inman Park Church, Atlanta, Ga.

Charles L. King, East Hanover, Grace Covenant Church, Richmond, Va.

Fred S. McCorkle, North Miss., East Radford, Va.

William A. McIlwaine, East Hanover, Missionary to Japan.

Robert W. Miles, Jr., East Hanover, Sec'y. Y. M. C. A., Davidson College, N. C.

Alfred H. Miller, Athens, School, Va. (Later will go to the Congo, Africa).

Dougald McD. Monroe, Fayetteville, Greenbank, W. Va.

Stuart R. Oglesby, Jr., Ouachita, Oxford, N. C.

William C. Rourk, Wilmington, Spruce Pine, N. C.

Henry Allan Scott, East Hanover, Marietta, Okla.

Clyde J. Walsh, Mecklenburg, Madison Heights, Va.

Joseph T. Williams, Concord, Ocala, Va.

David C. Young, Mecklenburg, Charlotte, N. C.

Columbia Theological Seminary.

Edward S. Brown, Savannah, Greensboro, Ala.

John William Davis, Red River, Choudrant, La.

Jason Gardner, Congaree, R. F. D. No. 8, Box 62, Birmingham, Ala.

Iverson Graham, South Carolina, Rutherfordton, N. C.

Fred J. Hay, Jr., Concord, Liberty Hill, S. C.

Alfred Hal Key, Athens, Dewey Rose, Ga.

Lemuel D. King, Atlanta, Box 308, Covington, Ga.

John R. McGregor, Pee Dee, Hopkins, S. C.

Louis K. Martin, Athens, Athens, Ga.

David A. Miller, Bethel, Rock Hill, S. C.

June Nee Neely, Mecklenburg.

John R. Offield, Holston, Emmett, Tenn.

Irby D. Terrell, Atlanta, assistant pastor, First Presbyterian Church, Norfolk, Va.

Kentucky Theological Seminary.

Grover C. Bidwell, Arkansas, Ward, Ark.

Thomas Brewster, Louisville, Glasgow and Munfordville, Ky.

Virgil Leon Bryant, Central Miss., Vaiden, Miss.

E. A. Dallas, Transylvania, Mt. Vernon, Ind.

Willis S. Fordyce, LaFayette, Odessa, Mo.

Bluford B. Hestir, Arkansas, Grayson, Ky.

David S. Hotchkiss, North Ala., Central City, Ky., for the summer. (Intends to go as Foreign Missionary).

Bertram M. Larson, Knoxville, Etowah, Tenn.

Henry J. McGehee, Louisville, Nacogdoches, La.

James White McNutt, Potosi, Lewisville, Ark.

Ernest W. Newland, West Lexington, Carrollton and LaGrange, Ky.

William Lee Newman, Louisville.

James C. Watson, Central Miss., Louisville, Miss.

The following graduates belonging to the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America were also graduated from this Seminary:

Henry Blanco, Louisville, U. S. A., mission work among Mexicans, in New Mexico.

T. V. D. Dillon, Southport, Ind.

C. M. Franklin, Transylvania, U. S. A., Crossnore, N. C.

K. C. Kondo, Missionary to Hawaiian Islands.

R. R. Murphy, Ebenezer, U. S. A., Missionary to China.

Young People's Conference, Montreat, N. C.

By John I. Armstrong, D.D.

The third annual Young People's Conference at Montreat, N. C., held its opening session Thursday evening, June 26. The total registration up to Monday, June 30, was 282, as follows: Alabama, 13; Arkansas, 1; District of Columbia, 3; Florida, 5; Georgia, 18; Kentucky, 7; Louisiana, 2; Maryland, 2; Mississippi, 2; Missouri, 2; North Carolina, 101; South Carolina, 56; Tennessee, 18; Texas 2; Virginia, 33; West Virginia, 16; Korea, 1.

The personnel of the Conference includes the leaders and young people from 16 to 25, together with a number of others, especially interested as active leaders of Young People's work. All the leaders agree that the young people gathered at the Conference this year have a seriousness of purpose, and a readiness to engage earnestly in all the activities of the Conference, such as have not been known in Conferences of former years.

Four text book courses are being given as follows:

1. "Making Life Count," taught by Rev. H. C. Hammond, St. Charles, S. C. Enrollment, 87.
2. "Home Missions in Action," taught by Miss Eleanor A. Berry, Atlanta, Ga. Enrollment, 38.
3. "Expert Christian Endeavor," taught by Rev. Wesley Baker, Abingdon, Va. Enrollment, 72.
4. "The Life of Christ," in Standard Teacher Training, taught by Rev. G. F. Bell, Charlotte, N. C. Enrollment, 57.

Four Bible courses are being given as follows:

1. "The Bible and the Individual," taught by Miss Julia Lake Skinner, Faunsdale, Ala. Enrollment, 75.
2. "The Bible and Society," taught by Mrs. Alma Sydenstricker, Agnes Scott College. Enrollment, 57.
3. "The Bible and Personal Work," taught by Mr. W. C. Smith, Richmond, Va. Enrollment, 72.
4. "The Bible and Missions," taught by Rev. Asa D. Watkins, Hampden-Sidney College, Va. Enrollment, 50.

It is interesting to note that the total enrollment in text book courses and in the Bible courses is exactly the same, being 254 each.

In addition to the text book courses and the Bible courses all the delegates meet together each day in a general conference on the whole work of the church, under the direction of Miss Anna Branch Binford, Richmond, Va.

The speakers for the evening addresses are as follows: Rev. Henry Wade DuBose, D.D., Danville, Va.; Rev. W. Taliferro Thompson, Jr., Knoxville, Tenn.; Rev. Chas. F. Myers, D.D., Greensboro, N. C., and Rev. Henry H. Sweets, D.D., Louisville, Ky. The preachers for the Sunday sermons are Rev. Homer McMillan, D.D., Atlanta, Ga., and Rev. W. L. Lingle, D.D., Richmond, Va. Montreat, N. C.

The Proposed Amendments on Rotation in Office

By Rev. Robert Adams, D.D.

These amendments will not be adopted without thorough consideration of two questions. The first is, Are they constitutional? and the second, Are they desirable?

This is intended as a contribution towards the settlement of the first question.

Since the General Assembly recommended the amendments, it is clear that a majority of its members saw no constitutional difficulties in the way. To others, however, such difficulties do appear; and, it must be admitted, apparently with good reason. Our form of government distinctly says, "The offices of ruling elder and deacon are perpetual." To limit these offices, then, to five years seems to be a violation of this principle; and it doubtless would be. But is this what the Assembly asks the Presbyteries to do?

The answer depends upon the interpretation of paragraphs 113-115. When they are read together, it is seen that the makers of our law drew a distinction between office and official relation. Whether their language was wisely chosen may be questionable; but the meaning of the distinction drawn seems clear enough. By office they evidently mean the eldership or the diaconate; by official relation, the exercise of the functions of either, or the right to such exercise.

It is the office, not the official relation, that is declared to be perpetual, or for life, as we understand it. It may not "be laid aside at pleasure." Nevertheless, two ways are provided by which it may be lost: deposition and divestiture without censure. The provision for the latter is in paragraph 236.

There are also two ways in which the official relation may be dissolved without loss of the office: by action of the session because of unacceptability and by removal of residence. The latter ipso facto dissolves the relation, though membership in the church may be retained.

Ordination is to office, and is for life. Installation establishes the official relation, which may or may not be for life, but which certainly does not carry within it the principle of perpetuity. Hence, "when a ruling elder or deacon, who has been released from his official relation, is again elected to his office in the same or another church, he shall be installed after the above form (in paragraph 112) with the omission of ordination." (Paragraph 115).

The case of a pastor is similar. He is ordained to the ministerial office, and, barring deposition or divestiture, remains a minister for life. He is installed as pastor of a particular church, and thus an official relation is established between him and the church which may be for the remainder of his life, but rarely is. The dissolution of the pastoral relation by the Presbytery breaks his official connection with the church, but does not affect his ministerial office.

Since our law already provides four ways by which the official relation of an elder or deacon may be limited, how can it be unconstitutional to provide a fifth? If in every ordination and installation, there is the inherent possibility that the very office may be lost, or the official relation terminated without the loss of office, the well chosen language of the proposed amendments seems to be in entire harmony with all these constitutional provisions: "Ruling elders (or deacons) may be chosen for an active term of service of five years." Then they may be re-elected and reinstated, but not reordained. The proposed amendments provide only for re-election. It is not necessary that they should say anything about reordination or reinstallation. The teachings of the Book are already sufficiently clear as to these matters, and have only to receive their proper application, and the present law and the new will—"live happily together ever after."

I am fully aware, however, of the difficulty of making statute law so plain that two interpretations will be impossible. What is perfectly satisfactory to one mind is quite unsatisfactory to another. So I cannot hope that all who may read this will agree with me. The conclusion of the whole matter to my mind is that the Assembly does not ask the Presbyteries to limit the office, but only the official relation, and that this can be done without, in any way, violating the principle that ordination is for life.

A warning was uttered on the floor of the Assembly (not by an elder, though), that we might be paving the way for a time-limit to the pastorate. I think it quite probable that we are; and I have not the slightest objection to it. Indeed, it seems to me to be quite desirable, and I hope to have an opportunity to vote for it some day.

I wished to say this to the Assembly; but the question was ordered before I could get the floor to do so.

Pendleton, S. C.

Modern Isms in the Limelight.

A ranking book of immediate value by Dr. Thomas Cary Johnson. A splendid service has been done the church by throwing the searchlight of truth on Mormonism, Eddyism, Russellism and Nietzscheism as is done in this book. It is small, up to date and readable, clear and striking, written as it is in robust Anglo-Saxon.

Mormonism, that cancer in the western shoulder of our republic, is shown to be a real menace with its continued polygamy, political power and powerful propaganda reaching our own mountains. Its travesty on the Bible and theology is strongly set forth, also:

Eddyism, like Mormonism, has a human head and is exposed by the telling scalpel as neither science nor religion. In spite of that it is the most virile of all our western fads. And this is due to the fact, as the author admits, of the influence of the mind over the body and with oriental pantheism, quosticism and mysticism it does its work among the semi-nervous, credulous folk. People are fond of being humbugged, hence the success of Pastor Russell. Though his mask has been torn off, he has deluded thousands by his plausible pleas. In this book his vaporings are set out in box car capitals. Dr. Johnson shows that he denies almost every fundamental fact in the gospel.

The conception of the German superman as set out by Nietzsche is the most modern, in the havoc it has wrought, of them all. It is the pagan reaction against Christianity.

Its amoral and immoral views confounding as they do right and sight and buttressing the old deadly end justifying the means have almost wrecked civilization. As one will see these isms are living and getting in their disastrous work and need to be combatted by a man of force like the author of this book.

E. W. McCorkle.

Rockbridge Baths, Va.

A New Church Building Every Year.

By Rev. A. H. Doak, Chairman Home Mission Com.

This is the achievement of West Texas Presbytery during the past few years. This year we are building one at Quicksand, a large lumber camp just above Jackson, Ky. It is to be named the Loveland Memorial in honor of the former superintendent of the mill and a man held in the highest honor by the whole community. He died there during the recent epidemic of influenza. The interest of the local people in this new church is most gratifying. They gave the lot and a substantial contribution to the building fund. Our work there is very encouraging. These new churches are paid for outside of the regular budget of Home Missions and are due solely to the enterprise of our superintendent, T. B. Talbot. The money has come from the most distant States as well as our own Presbytery. All of which is gratefully acknowledged.

All our fields are manned by unusually efficient men.

Christian Endeavor Abroad

By Wyatt A. Taylor.

A South Carolina Endeavorer's Message to Europe.

ONE of the finest Christian Endeavorers of all America is Lex Kluttz, of Chester, S. C. He is now a soldier with the American Army in Europe. He is just now taking a course on Uncle Sam's orders at the University of Edinburgh. A recent letter told of an address he made before a great gathering of Endeavorers at Edinburgh, and immediately after that gathering he left for London to attend the British Christian Endeavor Union convention, attended by thousands.

Lex Kluttz was in the hospital service, and a few months ago he wrote an intimate friend in Columbia, S. C., that he had on one Sunday led ten Christian Endeavor meetings in the wards of the hospital where he was stationed. This was during last Winter, when the American soldiers were suffering in the hospitals of France.

Before he entered the army several years ago there were some soldiers stationed near Chester, guarding a railroad restle. Lex Kluttz and other members of his Christian Endeavor Society held regular services at this little camp, and during the few months that the men were camped near Chester there were a half dozen conversions among their number, as a result of these meetings which the Chester Endeavorers conducted.

Lex Kluttz's life will live forever, telling for Jesus Christ. The Endeavorers of South Carolina will rejoice when he gets back to their ranks, for there was never a finer.

An Endeavorer in Siberia.

Bert Corcoran, former president of the South Carolina Christian Endeavor Union, is now in Y. M. C. A. work in far-away Siberia. He recently made a 4,000 mile journey to his location, and the trip across Russia took a month. It was made in a box car, fixed up for traveling, with sleeping, cooking and dining rooms. Mr. Corcoran's address is Care American Y. M. C. A., Vladivostok.

Endeavorer From Brazil.

How the influence and power of Christian Endeavor has spread is illustrated by the fact that about September 15 a leader of Christian Endeavor from Brazil will arrive in the States to take a course at the Union Theological Seminary at Richmond, Va., a man who has been the leader of the North Brazil Christian Endeavor and who comes to America with a greeting from the organization he represents, which was started by a young lady who received her training as a Christian Endeavorer in a North Carolina town and who was instrumental in organizing the Endeavorers of North Brazil.

The Brazil leader is Rev. Antonio Almeida, and Endeavorers of the South are asked to write him letters of greetings. He will also be available for conventions during the coming Winter and Spring and he is an interesting speaker. He will be at the Seminary at Richmond after September 15.

Mr. Almeida helped to organize the North Brazil Christian Endeavor Union, which held its first conventions last December. His leadership was inspired by Miss Leora James, who went as a missionary to Brazil from Rocky Mount, N. C., and who carried with her her Christian Endeavor experience. The convention was a great success, and now the union is a permanent organization.

The North Brazil Christian Endeavorers are sending Mr. Almeida as their special representative to confer, while in North America, with Dr. Clark and other world Christian Endeavor leaders regarding the work in South America. Mr. Almeida has done a great deal to put into operation in Brazil the Christian Endeavor Efficiency chart and the "Expert Endeavor." Mr. Almeida is a man of deep vision, consecrated and anxious to count. Doubtless many Christian Endeavor societies and other church organizations will be glad to use Mr. Almeida while he is in America.

Columbia, S. C.

The Assembly Minutes

By Rev. Thos. H. Law, Stated Clerik.

The minutes of the New Orleans Assembly are now all printed and will be going out this week. I am gratified that just one month after the Assembly closed I am able to lay before the Church this handsome volume of over 300 pages filled with very valuable and important matter to our people. Of course some errors will appear, they are unavoidable in the circumstances. I have been advised of several in the printed reports which were handed me for the Appendix; and the chairmen of some of the committees would doubtless be surprised at the number of errors I had to correct in the typewritten reports which they read before the Assembly and had it to adopt. Critics have been accustomed to ascribe such errors to undue haste in getting out the minutes. But there has been no hurry on the part of either clerk or printer this year. We have bestowed all the time and care needed; but by beginning early, taking time by the forelock, keeping steadily on the job, and working together thoroughly and efficiently we have accomplished the heavy task successfully.

The statistics this year, except as to contributions, are disappointing, and somewhat surprising, especially as to total communicants. Last year, when the printing was done in Richmond, and the machine additions and entry of the figures were made in our publishing house, very serious errors appeared. So I had expected that with 13,587 added on examination, our total membership would reach 375,000; and I was amazed when the competent and experienced bank clerk whom I had employed to do the machine adding, showed that the reports footed up only 364,230. I then compared last year's Synodical totals with those of this year, and could discover no general falling off, so I went back to last year's figures to see if I could discover the error there. But unable to find how the sum had been obtained, I began adding and subtracting to correct the errors of last year which had been pointed out in our Church papers, and thus secured the figures as to total communicants which appear in the comparative summary. These figures may not be absolutely correct, but they show approximately what the Presbyteries reported in 1918.

As to the falling off this year in Sabbath school enrollment, I am utterly unable to discover where the secretary, who filled in the figures, got 336,480 which appear in last year's summary. They are not found in either the Sabbath school table or the general summary. Those I have inserted this year are taken from the summary of Presbyterial statistical reports. They fall a few hundred short of the total in this year's Sabbath school table, which was not before me when I prepared the comparative summary. But as the figures in both the Presbyterial statistical tables and the Sabbath school reports come from the same source, they ought to be identical, and I supposed that they agreed.

In general, we should bear in mind that the last has been a very abnormal year in our Church's work. The war has called into the service of the country so many of our young men and women, and then having so many of our ministers from their charges, and the widespread epidemic of influenza so seriously interrupted our services, and caused thousands of deaths, that we could hardly expect the usual progress. Besides this, the reports from the Presbyteries have been, from various causes, the most defective upon the whole that I have ever handled.

Spartanburg, S. C.

The Tithe--A Moral Obligation

By Dr. C. R. Harding.

WELL, MR. EDITOR, you and your coadjutors have been giving the tithers by law some pretty severe jars and jolts, not to say knockout blows, and so doubtless feel that no one but an obdurate idiot would dare have anything further to say by way of reply and yet, and yet, there is a great deal that could be said and written by way of rebuttal, if only the writers had time and the Standard space—not it should be confessed the case of those who insist that they have an irrefragable argument and incontrovertible proofs that there still remains a law, a binding law of the tithe, written in the inspired record; such would be hard put to in their effort to establish such a claim. But there is such a thing as a fair inference as to the binding force of a law not expressly abrogated and one can never prove that a law is abrogated merely by the absence of a specific statement to the effect that it is not abrogated. And this latter is what many of those who oppose the law of the tithe are doing.

But concede for the moment that these have proved beyond doubt that the law of the tithe no longer exists, grant that the Christian is not under law but under grace, that his giving is to be regulated by the principle of liberality and gratitude to God for His wondrous gift of eternal life. Why is the tithe opponent afraid to say, or at any rate why does he refuse to say boldly and emphatically that the Christian is under moral obligation to do at least as much in the way of giving as the Jew of old was required under law to do and until he does give as much he has not a particle of right to claim that he is giving liberally? Why not preach that simple doctrine that liberality, the principle that is to govern the Christian, cannot begin till at least the standard set for the Jew under the old economy is reached?

Moral obligation—what does it mean? Why, it means that if we love God, if we love His cause and kingdom, if we are His sons, if we are really and truly to obey the first and great commandment, there are obligations involved that are preemptory. Filial obedience as enjoined in the fifth commandment implies moral obligation in sonship. No less so is there moral obligation in obeying the spirit of the first and great commandment as taught by Jesus himself.

Can one imagine that he is obedient as a son, that he is loyal or generous or liberal as a son, with the great commission of Jesus to His disciples as yet not carried out, if he is not giving to that work of home and foreign evangelization as much as God commanded the Jew to give in support of a work infinitely smaller and simpler?

Why hesitate for a minute to declare in all the churches that no man has any right to lay claim to liberality until he is giving at least, as a minimum a tithe of his income, and why hesitate to say with all the earnestness and force of truth that there is a moral obligation upon every Christian to live his life under this principle of liberality and generous giving. Here is something definite, something positive, something by which a man may know beyond a doubt whether he has at least started on the path of liberal giving, the moral obligation of which rests upon him.

Professor Addison Hogue presents a very able and altogether illuminating discussion of the subject but he closes his second article with a statement that shows an unwillingness to come down flat-footed and say without qualification that there is an imperative duty, a truly moral obligation. Possibly he thinks there is none, his inapt illustration about the undutiful son implies that he sees no moral obligation. Says he: "Our present obligation is not that of the Jewish law; but it is the spirit of noblesse oblige, sanctified and ennobled and elevated by the Holy Spirit." I contend that it is far more than any "noblesse oblige." As a son the Christian is under a moral obligation to do his Father's will in all things, and as the greater includes the less, a thinking earnest soul must know that if God demanded under law a tenth, He cannot be pleased with anything less for the support of a cause indefinitely wider in its reach and compass, and in the light of that revealed will.

God wishes our love. He does not wish our money without the love prompting to give, but He has made Himself and the cause dear to the heart of Jesus Christ—His kingdom here on earth—dependent on the gifts of His people and it is not true to say that I am free as a child of God to give as little or as much as I please.

And nobody arguing for the tithe has intimated that he who gives a tithe has necessarily done his duty. Its advocates claim that it is only a starting point toward liberality in giving, and if we may judge by the begging centuries through which the Christian Church has passed, not until the church wakes up to a realization that the tithe is but a starting point and yet at the same time is the lowest limit for a starting point in Christian liberality, will it cease to beg for money.

One cannot run away from Robert E. Speer's sentence, "The gospel of Jesus Christ ought to lead and enable men to do more than pagans and Jews."

Let them show if they will and can, and as probably they do, that there is no "Law of the Tithe" but for truth's sake, for the church's sake let them not deny the moral obligation of the tithe.

But, Mr. Editor, when it comes to drawing conclusions from premises that will not justify such inferences some of our friends arguing against the tithe as a law are past masters. Let it be said again, this humble scribe is not claiming that there is any "thus sayeth the Lord;" he only insists that there is no warrant from the references to the tithe in the Scriptures for casting it out as a thing passing away in toto with the Mosaic ceremonial law. It antedates this law and while the coming of Jesus Christ removed all reason for any further observance of this ceremonial law, this coming of Jesus unhappily has not removed the need of some practical rule or standard by which Christian men can gauge their liberality in giving.

Among some of these unproved statements let there be named the following though in the naming the scribe incur the charge of folly as rushing in where angels fear to tread.

Standard, April 9, page 5, from John Milton: "The tithes were ceremonial, is plain, not being given to the Levites till they had been first offered a heave-offering to the Lord. He then, who by that law brings tithes into the gospel, of necessity brings in withal a sacrifice and an altar."

Granted that tithes were in part ceremonial, they were not necessarily only ceremonial and, in support of the Gospel of Him who was the great Sacrifice and who sanctified the gift that God claims, they are in no sense un sanctified or polluted. Given in loyal obedience and love to God they are anything else.

Again John Milton would see in the tithes that Abraham paid to Melchisedec nothing but an example, no command at all and like everything else that "was done in religion before the law was written, is not presently to be counted moral," but rather more or less ceremonial. Pure assumption without any authority to back it. Where did Abraham get that idea of the tithe, where did Jacob get it? Where did the pagan world get it (this idea of a tithe to his god)? Does it not look as if it points back to a prehistoric period does it not suggest revelation and a foreshadowing of what God afterwards embodied in the Mosaic law? Who shall deny this?

Again John Milton argues in regard to the tithe of the land that the Lord "declares it so here for the land of Canaan only * * * * * Where did God ever clearly declare to all nations, or in all lands that He required the tenth due Him or His Son perpetually and in all places?" Speaking to the Jews, there is nothing significant in the fact that the Lord did not here speak of all lands and all nations. To negative proves nothing as to the perpetuity of the tithe a guiding standard acceptable to God. It was acceptable

Him in dealing with His chosen people, surely no less can be thought acceptable now. Again says Milton: "Yet I shall further prove them (tithes) abrogated by an express ordinance of the Gospel founded not on any type or that municipal law of Moses, but on moral and general equity given us instead: Know ye not that they who minister about holy things live of the things of the temple; that they which wait at the altar are partakers with the altar? So also the Lord hath ordained that they who preach the Gospel should live of the Gospel." That is to say the priests under the Mosaic law, living under the tithe system and by means of the tithe minister about holy things and live of the things of the temple, so or in like fashion or in like manner—a livelihood provided similarly—they that preach the Gospel should live of the Gospel. Certainly this does not say live under a tithing system, but it comes a thousand times nearer saying this than what Milton says it declares, viz., by express ordinance on abrogation of the tithe.

Again absurdity in argument can hardly go further than to see annulment of the law of the tithe in the following (from Milton): "As therefore Abraham paid tithes to Melechisedec because Levi was in him (See Hebrews 7-9. The author of Hebrews does not say that this was the reason of Abraham's paying tithes to Melechisedec), so ought we to pay none because the true Melechisedec is in us, and we in him, who can pay to none greater, and hath freed us by our union with himself from all compulsive tributes and taxes in his church." The same argument "because the true Melechisedec is in us and we in him" would free us from all obligation to pay tribute of any kind voluntary or involuntary, a freedom that the boldest of the anti-tithers would hardly claim.

And then Dr. Webb, of Louisville Seminary, said: "Samuel admonished the people that if they set aside the divine government and erected a monarchy, they would find it a very costly business" (I Sam. 8:10-18). The royal support would require a heavy part of the tithes and additional taxes.

If, therefore, we are to follow the ancient Hebrew example, the State, the Church, the schools and all charities, are to be a-charge upon our tithes. Not at all so. Samuel told the people that "the king will take the tenth of your seed and of your vineyards, and give to his officers and to his servants." There is no statement here of a divine warrant. And further still scholars of standing deny that the tithe, while enjoined by divine command, was other than voluntary, and it is altogether fair to assume that had it been otherwise instead of the prophets complaining that the people were robbing God, these kings of Israel would have seen to it that the tithe as any other revenue for the state was paid in due form. The tithe was a religious tax or assessment, at any rate conclusive evidence to the contrary is lacking.

In Dr. Reed's formidable summary of arguments against the tithe as a law there is not a line that proves by positive, direct evidence (do not say inference) that the obligation to tithe was no longer recognized and furthermore the practice of the early church after the Apostolic days was not a practice under inspiration. The Apostolic church was a development from a continuation out of the synagogue of Jews and proselytes (in all probability) to whom tithing was as natural and as a matter of course as worship on the Lord's day.

The late Rev. Dr. A. W. Miller, of Charlotte, a fine scholar and a profound theologian, wrote these words: "The law of the tithe is binding upon the Christian Church according to the judgment of the Fathers and the voice of the church uncontradicted for more than a thousand years. * * * * But we Christians remain the only incurable infidels, and we refuse to pay God that which by a universal decree He has from the beginning reserved to Himself."

Iraenaus, the disciple of that Polycarp who was the friend of the Apostle John, says: "We ought to offer to God the first fruits of his creatures. As Moses says: Thou shalt not appear before the Lord empty. Christ came not to diminish but to increase our obligations."

Cyprian, the leader of the Church in the third century * * * * says: "Now we do not even give tithes of our patrimony (certainly an implied rebuke and censure as neglect of manifest duty), and when God commands us to sell, we purchase and amass."

Ambrose, bishop of the fourth century, says: "The Lord commands our tithes to be paid every year. He has given you nine parts, but He has reserved the tenth for Himself." Davidson, N. C.

Drive for Three Thousand Members for Church and Manse Erection League.

Mecklenburg Presbytery.

Presbytery at the Spring Meeting at Marshville very enthusiastically endorsed the plan set on foot to secure 3,000 members to the League, realizing that this was the solution to the demands and great need for the erection of church buildings and manses.

The second Sunday in May was set apart as the day when every church should put on this drive, in the hope that all would enter very earnestly into the campaign. Some have done so, others have done nothing. Brethren, what cause is of greater importance than this? Is there a man that will not invest one dollar in the erection of a new church? I feel sure that if the pastors will only give their people an opportunity to subscribe to this work that they will do so heartily and enthusiastically.

We are herewith giving the churches, showing number of members who have subscribed to the league and the amount. If we are to make this drive a success we must have at least one-third of the membership of each church members of the league.

See if your church has conformed to the order of Presbytery as you read the list of churches below. This call is for the Badin Church and we are delaying the work there and holding them back, for they must know what to expect from the league before commencing work on their building. This campaign must be completed by the end of this month and all funds paid in to the hands of the treasurer by August 15.

Churches.	Members.	Amount.
Biscoe	9	$ 20.00
Badin	11	24.00
Central Steele Creek.....	4	9.00
Banks	14	23.50
Cooks Memorial	21	37.00
Charlotte First	146	328.00
*Charlotte Second	17	38.00
Hopewell	34	44.00
Morven	15	21.50
McGee	9	10.00
North Charlotte	12	13.50
Pleasant Hill	28	32.50
Paw Creek	30	31.50
*Marks Creek	1	5.00
St. Paul's	39	65.00
*Pegram Street	1	1.00
Troy	8	9.00
Westminster	25	25.00
West Avenue	43	63.50
Wadeville	8	8.00
Waxhaw	7	15.00
Wilmore	10	9.00

Totals 498 $833.00

*Not made drive yet.

Thus you see that 19 churches have responded to the call of the Presbytery and to the assistance of the Badin Church, others have done so but we have not yet received their report. We are all going to do this, but my brethren, we need it now. We have not reached one-third of the amount set to give to the Badin Church. Let your Church appear in our next report, with at least one-third of your membership as members of the league. F. S. Neal, Chmn.

News of the Week

The superior blockade council has been instructed to be prepared to raise the economic blockade of Germany immediately upon ratification by the German National Assembly of the peace treaty. This announcement was made in a dispatch to the State Department from Paris.

Dr. J. K. Wilkins, convicted of wife murder at Mineola, N. Y., hanged himself in jail.

Governor Bickett, of North Carolina, in a public statement, characterized the "Loyal Order of Klansman" as "the wildest of wildcat schemes," and calculated to stir up race prejudice.

Cedar rust and other apple tree diseases have caused considerable injury to orchards in the lower Shenandoah Valley, the principal apple growing district of Virginia, and only about 60 per cent of a normal crop is expected, according to fruit growers. The injury is reported to extend over adjoining sections of West Virginia and elsewhere in the Shenandoah-Cumberland district, from Staunton, Va., to Harrisburg, Pa.

The Revenue Department has decided to eliminate revenue tax on all county fair tickets, admission and grandstand, where fairs are not conducted for profit.

The British flag was burned in Dublin recently. Outside of Trinity College, a number of Union Jacks were seized, and the torch applied. Cheers were given for De Valera, "President of the Irish Republic," and revolutionary songs were sung. Sinn Fein demonstrations occurred in other parts of the city also.

The first bale of 1919 Texas cotton, weighing 471 pounds, sold at auction for $2.12 per pound, amounting to $1,000.

Earthquake shocks in Italy, June 29, caused 127 deaths and the injury of thousands.

Representative John H. Small, of North Carolina, contends that Congress has no right to put prohibition into effect.

On July 1, prohibition went into effect over the United States, but the Government announced that it would not stop the sale of 2¾ per cent beer. The courts are yet to determine what per cent intoxicates. Congress has, however, taken steps to stop the sale of this grade of beer, and to reduce the limit to one-half per cent.

Minerva's Punishment.

MINERVA was missed. She was at church and Sunday School on Sunday, the 6th. On Wednesday evening she was not at prayer meeting, and when Sunday, the 13th, came, the girls spoke about her absence. They came to the conclusion that she had gone out of town on a visit, and let the matter go at that. But Wednesday evening came, and as she was not present at meeting, some one said to her father, Mr. Samuel Nash:

"Minerva gone visiting?"

"No," was Mr. Nash's short answer. But then, he was always curt in what he said, except at prayer meeting, when his prayers were the longest and his exhortations interminable.

"She isn't away!" the girls said to each other. Then—"Is she sick, Mr. Nash?" Delia Smith asked.

"No," again.

The week went past. Saturday afternoon was the meeting of the young women's mission circle, of which Minerva was president. She had never been absent except when out of town, when she always sent a message. But she did not come, and nothing was heard from her.

Sunday morning came, and when the people assembled Mr. Nash went into the pulpit and announced that the pastor, Dr. Clarke, had gone to Boston, and that at his request he, Mr. Nash, would read the sermon that the Doctor had prepared. He had done the same thing on previous occasions when the pastor was ill. An excellent, and indeed quite an eloquent reader, the congregation was not in the least displeased.

As usual, he read well. The text was Psalm 119:130 "The entrance of Thy words giveth light; it giveth understanding unto the simple."

It was an able plea for the circulation of the Scriptures. The "words" that enlightened the hearers were the word of God; the word in which one must continue in order to win and sustain discipleship with the Redeemer; the word Cherryville, N. C., is to have another cotton mill. Two hundred thousand dollars of the stock has been subscribed.

Senator Simmons has taken up with the director general of railroads, the question of giving Wilmington and the other South Atlantic ports, freight rates from the interior upon the same basis as given Northern ports.

Herbert Hoover has resigned as chairman of Grain Corporation directors, but will continue as a director.

The Baptist Assembly, in session at Wrightsville Beach, N. C., adopted resolutions favoring the ratification of the Peace Treaty with the Covenant feature.

In Baltimore, Md., a big navy dirigible C-8 exploded with terrific force. Seventy-five persons were burned and otherwise injured.

The child labor and compulsory school attendance law passed by the last Legislature of North Carolina is effective July 1. Under the execution the special commission, created for the purpose by the Legislature, consisting of the superintendent of public instruction, secretary of the State Board of Health, and the commissioner of public welfare. This commission has selected Dr. E. F. Carter as the executive officer for the state-wide enforcement of this law.

Jno. M. Geer, a prominent cotton mill man, died last week in Greenville, S. C.

The citizens of Rock Hill, S. C., have voted overwhelmingly to spend $450,000 for improvements within the city limits.

The strike of telegraph operators, begun June 11, has been called off by Konencamp, the president of the union.

Dr. Anna H. Shaw is dead at the age of 71 years. She was honorary president of the National American Woman's Suffrage Association, and was one of the most remarkable women of this age.

President Wilson urges soldiers to hold their insurance policies, as they will be changed from term insurance to permanent policies.

Five judges representing the five great powers will sit in the trial of the Kaiser, which is to be held in London.

In the great championship fight Dempsey, by defeating Willard, becomes the heavyweight champion of the world.

ing of the young women's mission circle, of which Minerva was president. She had never been absent except when out of town, when she always sent a message. But she did not come, and nothing was heard from her.

Sunday morning came, and when the people assembled Mr. Nash went into the pulpit and announced that the pastor, Dr. Clarke, had gone to Boston, and that at his request he, Mr. Nash, would read the sermon that the Doctor had prepared. He had done the same thing on previous occasions when the pastor was ill. An excellent, and indeed quite an eloquent reader, the congregation was not in the least displeased.

As usual, he read well. The text was Psalm 119:130 "The entrance of Thy words giveth light; it giveth understanding unto the simple."

It was an able plea for the circulation of the Scriptures. The "words" that enlightened the hearers were the word of God; the word in which one must continue in order to win and sustain discipleship with the Redeemer; the word

The Prayer Meeting

By Rev. C. D. Waller.

TOPIC FOR WEEK BEGINNING JULY 13, 1919:
THE DUTY OF UPLIFTING OTHERS—Eccl.
4:9-12.

There never has been before now such a widespread consciousness of the duty of lifting up the fallen, the oppressed, the unfortunate. Never before have the misfortunes, and the miseries of mankind been so persistently, so powerfully, and by so many agencies, presented to the heart and conscience. Every news sheet, every magazine, and millions of news letters are bearing the tidings of men's miseries into every home in the civilized world. These are sermons on the parable of the Good Samaritan: they are voices that variously speak the word of Jesus. Also never before could our arm of helpfulness reach so far, and with so unflinching power. We can help the oppressed, the starving, the persecuted of every land. Our dollar will feed and clothe and which must have a free and glorified course; the words which may not return unto our Lord void of effect, By the entrance of the words the simple are given understanding; Christ is made understanding to them. Who are the simple? They who are not given the words. And they?

(Continued on page 12)

The reader's voice broke. He hesitated: read a few words: stopped. Then, applying his handkerchief to his nose, he managed to say:

"An attack of nose-bleed. Will Brother Davis come up and finish reading?"

And out at the pulpit door he hurried, while at the same time Mrs. Nash left her seat and went out.

Mr. Davis went forward and finished the reading of the sermon.

The "simple" are those who are deprived of God's word; the Italians, the Spanish, the South Americans. They must have it. They must have Christ. It is Christian duty to give it them.

When Sunday School session was opened, who should walk in and take her place in her class but Minerva Nash! The girls were not impertinent enough to ask her any questions, and she had no explanation to make for her three weeks' absence. When Mr. Davis inquired if her father was better, she replied that she did not know that he had been indisposed.

It was some years later. Dr. Clarke, in another pastorate in a Western State, told this story in the ministers' meeting:

"In a former pastorate I had a man who was opposed to giving the Bible to others than Protestants. When his daughter got to giving them to the Hungarians and Italians, he was so angry that he confined her in her chamber for punishment. One afternoon when I called at his house, and he was out, I walked into the garden, when, looking up at a rear window, I saw the girl. She explained the circumstances. I went home, and wrote a strong sermon on the mission of God's Word, and managing to be called to Boston, asked her father to read it for me on Sunday morning. He did so; but before he had finished he broke down and went home, and—released his daughter."

When, a little later, the ministers were talking about pastors' assistants, Dr. Clarke said:

"Mine, Miss Minerva Nash, is a jewel. Among our foreign people she shines, I assure you. Her parents, down east, help to furnish our sinews of war."

Hartford, Conn.

The highest service may be prepared for and done in the humblest surroundings. In silence, in waiting, in obscure, unnoticed offices, in years of uneventful, unrecorded duties, the Son of God grew and waxed strong.—B. F. Westcott.

Christian Endeavor

By Rev. S. H. Hay.

M., July 14—Spirit-filled, Not Wine-filled: Eph. 5:18; Luke 1:15.

T., July 15—Drink and God's Service: Lev. 10:8-11

W., July 16—Drink and Rulers: Isa. 28:1-8.

T., July 17—Drink and Boasting: I Kings 20:1-21.

F., July 18—A Sober Nation: Deut. 29:1-6.

S., July 19—For the Sake of Others: Rom. 15:1-4.

* * *

Sunday, July 20, Topic—Crusading Against Intemperance—Eph. 6:10-20.

* * *

The Lord Himself was the first crusader against drunkenness. He spoke against it through His servants who wrote the Bible. In the twenty-third chapter of Proverbs He tells us to look not upon the wine when it is red and sparkling in the cup, for at the last it biteth like a serpent. In the twenty-eighth chapter of Isaiah He says, The crown of pride of the drunkards of Ephraim will be trodden under foot. In the sixth chapter of first Corinthians He says through the great apostle Paul that no drunkards shall inherit the Kingdom of God.

* * *

God was not only the first, but He is still the leading, crusader against intemperance. Other persons and agencies that have nobly championed the temperance cause have been and are workers with Him. His voice is the first and last word on the subject. No other law or argument should be necessary. Every breach of the law of intemperance is a sin primarily against Him, and as such must be answered for at the Judgment.

* * *

Among those who join the crusade against intemperance are many of the drunkards themselves. With earnest admonition they beseech others to avoid a fate like to their own, as a certain rich man when in hell would have sent Lazarus back to the earth to warn his brothers from the horrors into which himself had fallen. The condition of a drunkard is itself a sermon of warning. From gutter and police stations and from early graves of drunkards comes in every community the strongest of temperance appeals. It is not the loathsome drunkard that advances the cause of intemperance; it is rather the respectable undrunken drinker who is the devil's decoy to lead men into drinking which ends for them in drunkenness. Nobody wants to follow a drunkard's example; but many who follow a drinking man who never gets drunk, find themselves all too soon drunkards beyond ordinary hope of redemption.

* * *

Practically all agencies which make use of human wits and labor have joined the crusade against drunkenness. Even the brewers want sober workers. The railroad managements have placed drink under the ban. They dislike to pay for sorry work and expensive wrecks. There is not a business firm in America but prefers workers of known sobriety. The army and navy, especially the latter, have made and are sustaining the most strenuous efforts to eliminate drinking from the service. And the overwhelming majority of our doctors concur now with the views of these agencies, and they preach the total abstinence for the sake of happiness, health, and length of life.

* * *

Let us not suppose that national prohibition destroys the drink evil. A great gain has been made, undoubtedly; but the old fight against intemperance must go on for years to come. The great human safeguard for you and me will continue a total abstinence. Let us never touch an alcoholic drink of any kind whatever.

* * *

What caused the downfall of Noah after he had weathered the flood?—Gen. 9:20-21.

Have a soldier tell how temperance helped the army. Why is drunkenness wrong?

Sunday School

By Rev. H. G. Hill, D.D.

BAPTISM.

Golden Text—Gal. 3:27: "For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ."

Matt. 28:18-20; Acts 8:34-40.

July 13, 1919.

Baptism with water is the outward sign prescribed by Christ for confessing Him before men and for indicating membership in the visible Church. The children of believers are baptized because in the Abrahamic Covenant God made them Church members, and has ever since recognized them as such. Baptism, too, is the outward sign of the baptism of the Holy Ghost by which the real disciples of Christ are made members of the invisible Church of the redeemed. We are "saved by the washing of regeneration and the renewing of the Holy Ghost." Our Saviour bases His commission to the apostles and the Church to make disciples upon His possession of all power. Our lesson directs attention to the Gospel Commission, the conversion of the Eunuch, the Baptism of the Eunuch and the effects of receiving Christ.

I. The Gospel Commission.

Christ commands "Go ye and disciple all Nations." Some men say "The heathen are satisfied with their own religion, why disturb them?" The reply is, Their religion is false and unsaving, and to let them alone is contrary to the Divine Master's express command. He directs not only, Carry the Gospel and preach it to every creature, but "baptize them in the Name of the Father, of the Son and of the Holy Ghost." He requires them to confess Him before men in this prescribed way. Confession as well as faith is needful. "With the heart man believeth unto righteousness and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation." Jesus demands acceptance of the Gospel, baptism and confession before men, and promises salvation to every one that believeth. He furthermore enjoins instruction in the doctrines and duties of vital religion. He says "Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you." To encourage His disciples in their assigned task He adds "Lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world." This promise was essential as only Divine power can render men Christians. The promise has been fulfilled in all ages, for nowhere has the Gospel been preached without evidence of the Divine presence and power.

II. The Conversion of the Eunuch.

The Ethiopian Eunuch was an earnest seeker after truth, and a sincere religious inquirer. He came a long journey to Jerusalem desiring pious instruction. He searched the Scriptures by the way. God marked and approved his efforts and sent Philip to guide him to Christ and salvation. The means of his conversion, as of many others, were the Word, human agency and the Holy Ghost. Philip asks him if he understood what he was reading in Isaiah. He admits his ignorance and invites the evangelist to ride with him in the chariot. Philip, beginning at the same Scripture, "preached unto him Jesus." It must have been a very comprehensive and enlightening sermon. It revealed Christ's personality, His sacrificial death, His grand teachings, His wonderful deeds, His triumphant resurrection, His great salvation, the terms of His discipleship, and the duties of practical piety. The Holy Spirit applied the truth to the mind and heart of the Eunuch and made him willing to accept Christ as a personal Saviour. The Holy Ghost must enlighten the mind, arouse the conscience, move the heart and win the will of every true convert.

III. The Eunuch Baptized.

On the road they come to water. The Eunuch says

"See here is water, what doth hinder me from being baptized?" He wanted without delay to confess Christ. Philip replies "If thou believest with all thy heart thou mayest." The Eunuch answers "I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God." This was a complete and far-reaching creed. If Jesus Christ is the Son of God, a Divine Person having true deity, then His claims and doctrines are all true, the Bible is God's Word and all the duties of the Christian religion are beyond question. Philip is very candid with the Eunuch and tells him plainly, don't profess what you don't believe. No man is entitled to baptism unless he is satisfied that Jesus is the Divine Saviour, and accepts him as his own Redeemer. But when the Eunuch avows his faith, Philip makes no further objection. They both enter the water and he baptizes him. Entering the water does not determine the mode of baptism. The earliest pictures representing baptism present the administrator and subject as standing in the water, while the baptizer pours the water on the head of the convert. The Mosaic mode of baptism, no matter what the element, was by sprinkling or pouring, and those who had been taught the Mosaic law would naturally perform it in that way.

IV. The Effects of Receiving Christ.

These are well illustrated in the case of the Eunuch. He becomes a saved man. He has entered into new relations. He has new hopes, aims and aspirations. His purposes and motives in life and his prospects in this world and in the life to come are far higher and grander than before. Philip having performed his functions is caught away and he loses his counsels and example. But he has a Divine Saviour and the indwelling of the Holy Ghost and "He goes on his way rejoicing."

Prayer Meeting.

(Continued from page 11)

hearten the fallen. For our enterprises of helpfulness we command ocean grayhounds, world encircling cables, banking houses, and well organized agencies of distribution which impress every means and mode of conveyance.

Greatest triumph of all, diplomacy itself, which has been the age long instrument of social pride and oppression and cruelty, is now reaching out its hand in real earnest to solve the problems of ethnology, to reassemble racial groups, to vitalize the currents of brotherly kindness, to stay the hand of oppression, and to make the world a better dwelling place for the nations. Thus even statesmen are playing the Good Samaritan, and a great hope is nestling at the heart of uncounted millions who have for centuries been the under dogs of society.

Nor are these statesmen overlooking the problems of education so overwhelmingly necessary in the uplift of the fallen and in rendering them useful citizens of the world. It is dawning upon the consciousness of men that the heart of our Lord was sound and wise and great in seeing a true brother over the wall that divides one nation from another. The sunrise of a new era is upon us. The unity of the race is becoming more than a theory—a detested theory at best. National lines will not fade, as our state lines will remain: but our arms will reach beyond these boundaries to raise the fallen, to take the chill agony out of life, to enrich the world with true brotherliness. Charles W. Eliot, the former president of Harvard, calls some of the arguments in the United States Senate for the old policy of isolation and selfishness, "dastardly and ignominious." He says: "Other arguments used against the treaty suggest that the American people should be careful about assuming new responsibilities for the welfare of other nations, and should keep its breath to cool its own hot porridge. These, too, are arguments which appeal to the less generous and idealistic side of the American character. Hence, they will be unsuccessful."

How wonderful then is the progress toward the acceptance and the realization of the ideal given us in the life and teaching of the Son of Man.

Devotional

THE THORN THAT REMAINED.

"I besought the Lord thrice that it might depart from me." Was the prayer answered? The apostle was troubled by some physical ailment which drained his strength and seemed to interfere with the fruitfulness of his work. It was like a thorn in the flesh; it continually obtruded itself and mixed its pain with everything. And he prayed that God would remove the thorn, but the thorn remained. Shall we then say that the prayer was unanswered? Was the Lord heedless? Might the apostle just as well have saved his breath? Quite other is the teaching of the Word. The unremoved thorn does not mean the unanswered prayer. God most certainly answered the prayer, but in quite another way than the apostle dreamed. There was not less thorn, but more grace. The burden was not reduced, but the sufferer was endowed with more power. "My grace is sufficient for thee."—J. H. Jowett.

A GOOD NAME—GREAT RICHES.

A man with an untarnished name is rich. Respectability is a form of wealth. Good name in man or woman is the immediate jewel of their souls. Who steals his purse steals trash, but he who filches from him his good name leaves him poor indeed. To be born in a respectable family, to have behind one a long line of ancestors with untarnished reputations, to go among one's fellows with a name that has never been stained, this surely is great fortune. Every such man is a man of wealth.

Material possessions are not all. There are possessions of the mind. Grain is not the only valuable commodity. Culture is also worth something. Education is not to be despised. Ideas and ideals are not to be lightly esteemed. The interior life is worth taking account of, and he who has interior riches should never count himself poor. Many a man with great material accumulations knows in his heart that he is not rich. Every man or woman who has disciplined his mental powers and who has stored up the treasures of knowledge should always rank himself with the millionaires.—Charles E. Jefferson.

Facing the morning, have you ever thought how much it means? The morning is a challenge. It is easy to face it if it comes with flooding sunshine, and a world clothed in beauty, but sometimes it comes with lowering clouds, and sometimes with depressing rain. Whether in sunshine or rain, we set the pace of the day in the way we face the morning. If we start out discouraged and gloomy, fearing to meet the unknown, we will have a hard time to recover ourselves in the fret and burden of the later hours. To face the morning cheerfully, hopefully, bravely will ease and lighten the burden all the day long. There is no way to face the morning which is half so good as to find a fellowship with Jesus at the breaking of the day. In the closet, the secret place of love's tryst, you will find Jesus ready to walk the way with you. Take Him along, and the weariest day will have its sunshine.—The Methodist Protestant.

We make light of dignity in these days. In our dress we earnestly affect the slouch. It is the swing of the pendulum back from a too great stiffness in everything in past days, but there is a proper dignity in dress and in manner which lends beauty and worth to life. Great souls do not affect dignity, but they have had dignity of bearing which has set them apart as different from ordinary men. A proper dignity grows out of a sensible self-esteem, and a serious purpose in life. No man can face the great facts of life without being sobered by them.—Methodist Protestant.

Home Circle

PLAIN DUTIES FOR A TROUBLED TIME.

Only those who shared the searching experiences of the Civil War have known so troubled a time as now. We live in a world of unhealed wounds and dissolving orders—nothing seems assured but change. Something of this was to be expected—it is the ground-swell of the storm. In every region of life from finance and industry to our spiritual states we are experiencing the inevitable reactions, and the duty of finding a way through into a more nobly ordered world is as much a part of the conflict as were the battles.

The first duty of the time is mental and spiritual poise. The stability of the world depends upon the stability of our souls. We cannot command all the forces of public opinion but we can at least refuse to add to the unrest of others, to magnify difficulties or unreasonably anticipate disaster, or pass on useless rumors.

The second duty is to take account of our words. Exaggerated speech, always mischievous, now may be a crime. Unconstructive criticism, always "sand in the gears," now is potential dynamite. Denunciatory agitation, always a twofold weapon, now may be fruitful in consequences whose unhappy outcome no one may foresee.

The third duty is hard work and economy. For five years the savings of the past, the productions of the present and the anticipations of the future have all been consumed in the flaming struggle whose dying fires still glow. What has been destroyed must be rebuilt, wealth re-created; and labor is the secret of it all. Manufacturers and workmen must see to it that not a wheel is needlessly stopped. There is little margin as yet for any kind of luxury in a world so poor. Least of all is it a time to try to cure the ills of an immense material destruction by quarrels among producers. Wages depend upon production and production depends upon co-operative toil. It is a time for venturing too much, rather than too little in normal commercial and industrial enterprises.

The fourth duty is clear recognition of our own responsibility for the solution of our own problems. This is not Washington's world, nor Monroe's world, nor Lincoln's world—it is our world. They walked in what light they had with no guide but their faith, their courage, their passion for a better world. They refused to be in bonds to their past and they would ask us to imitate only their high capacity to build new roads into a nobler future. Those who quote Washington's farewell address with its wise counsel for a new-born state a century and a half ago might well also quote the words in which he sought to establish a company of men who gathered together to frame a document which was in its own day as daring an experiment as the League of Nations is in ours. "Let us raise," he said, "a standard to which the wise and good may repair. The event is in the hand of God."

This is a time to be guided by principles and not precedents, to remember that principles themselves gain new meanings and demand new applications in the passing years. It is a time for faith—faith in God, which is faith in justice and truth and brotherhood. There are fundamental stabilities against which the storms of time beat in vain. The world will never be what it has been. It changes with every dawn, but we have light enough to go by—the light of duty, of love, of fair dealing, of generous confidence in other men. We can always follow the nobler vision and trust the larger hope.

And when we have done all this we can rest untroubled in our Father's care and go on step by step as the road grows plain. In such ways as these we shall re-create an ordered world and be the stronger for the travail of our souls.—Congregationalist and Advance.

Presbyterian Standard

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, $2.50 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE.
REV. W. L. BOGGS, Circulation Manager.

PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY AT CHARLOTTE, N. C.
ESTABLISHED JANUARY 1, 1858.

Entered at the Post Office at Charlotte, N. C., as second class matter.

A Religious Newspaper for the Family, Devoted to the Interest of Christ's Kingdom as Represented by the Southern Presbyterian Church.

CONTENTS OF THIS ISSUE

EDITORIAL—
One Church for Jew and Gentile.....	2
The League of Churches.....	2
The Assembly's Minutes for 1919.....	2
The Reformer in Trouble.....	3
The Elise High School.....	3
The Coming of the General Assembly.....	3
The End of the Tithe Discussion.....	3
CONTRIBUTED—
How the Score Was Ended—By R. E. Magill..	4
Salvation and Service—By Rev. Wm. P. McCorkle.	4
Graduates of Our Theological Seminaries—By Rev. Henry H. Sweets, D.D.	5
Young People's Conference, Montreat, N. C.—By Rev. John I. Armstrong, D.D.	5
The Proposed Amendments on Rotation in Office—By Rev. Robert Adams, D.D.	6
Modern Isms in the Limelight—By E. W. McCorkle	6
A New Church Building Every Year—By Rev. A. H. Doak	6
Christian Endeavor Abroad—By Wyatt A. Taylor	7
The Assembly Minutes—By Rev. Thos. H. Law	7
The Tithe—A Moral Obligation—By Dr. C. R. Harding	8-9
Drive for Three Thousand Members for Church and Manse Erection League—By F. S. Neal..	9
Minerva's Punishment	10
DEPARTMENTS—
News of the Week	10
Christian Endeavor—By Rev. S. H. Hay	11
Prayer Meeting—By Rev. C. D. Waller	11
Sunday School—By Rev. H. G. Hill, D.D.	12
Home Circle and Devotional	13
Church News, Etc.	14-19

Church News

PERSONAL.

Rev. R. M. Pegram has changed his address from Moultrie, Ga., to Hazard, Ky.

We have heard with pleasure, and in this announce the fact, that our dear brother Dr. R. F. Campbell has been married to Miss Julia Berryman, of Shelby, Ky.

Rev. and Mrs. W. A. Nicholson, of Woodleaf, N. C., will have the sympathy of their many friends in the loss of their infant daughter, Eugenia Pressley. The earthly life was only three days but the Heavenly life will be an endless eternity. "Even so it is not the will of your Father which is in heaven, that one of these little ones should perish." (Matt. 18-14.)

Rev. L. O. McCutcheon writes: "We in Korea are having trying times. The agitation for independence here has left a grave suspicion in the minds of officials against Christians. It extends to the American missionaries. Our work has been so much under police and secret service men's surveillance that it has been impractical for us to get out to the country for the prosecution of our ordinary work this spring. How long this is going to continue is uncertain. Bear us up in your prayers." Let us pray continually for our missionaries.

NORTH CAROLINA.

Notice—N. J. Carter, Hemp, N. C., is now Treasurer of the Elise High School. All persons having funds for the school are requested to remit to him.

Robt. S. Arrowood.

Pegram Street Church, Charlotte—Last Sabbath, the 6th inst., was the first communion held at Pegram Street Church, Charlotte, since the installation of Rev. John E. Wool as pastor. Five were added to the church by letter, and four on confession of faith in Christ.

Charlotte—Second Church—Dr. A. A. McGeachy preached again to a crowded audience last Sunday evening. His subject was, "The Delayed Christ." He showed that all the signs that were to usher in the coming of Christ had been fulfilled except one, the preaching of the Gospel to all nations, and that that failure on our part stood in the way of His return.

Mooreville First—The greatest meeting held here in a long time was conducted by Rev. R. C. Reed, D.D., of the Presbyterian Theological Seminary, Columbia, S. C., at the First Presbyterian church, last week, and closed with a great service Sunday night with 23 accessions to the church membership by profession of faith—mostly young people. Dr. Reed is a fine preacher and expounds the Scriptures in the good old-time way.—The Landmark.

Gastonia—One of the prettiest and choicest lots in Gastonia has been chosen for the site of the new Broad Street Presbyterian Church and will, eventually, be the center of the prettiest suburban district. With a one hundred foot frontage on Broad street, just inside the corporation and just outside the mill district proper, in close proximity to our members of Osceola and Seminole mills, a more conveniently located site could not have been chosen.

Mecklenburg Presbytery—At a called meeting of Mecklenburg Presbytery held in the Charlotte First Church on Monday, July 7, 1919, the Rev. Dr. Julian S. Sibley resigned as pastor of the Tenth Avenue Church of Charlotte. The resignation was received and the pastoral relation dissolved. He was then dismissed to Savannah Presbytery, where he goes to become pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Waycross, Ga.

The Rev. J. W. Orr was elected chairman of Presbyterian Home Missions till the next stated meeting, in Dr. Sibley's place, and Dr. A. S. Johnson was made chairman of the Committee on Theology. John E. Wool, S. C.

Alamance—The Christian Endeavor of this church has just closed a thrilling contest. The object was to secure new members, and to obtain a better attendance. We feel that this has done much good. It has put a new spirit into the society, and has aroused an awakening. Thirty new members were added to the 36 regular members, making a total enrollment of sixty-six members.

Children's Day was observed here the fifth Sunday in June. A collection was taken for the Korean missions, which amounted to $25.00. An inspiring address was made by Rev. Mr. Milne from Florida, who is filling the pulpit at present, but it is thought that he will be called to take up the work.

(Continued on Page 16)

The Statesman of Foreign Missions in the U. S.

On Christian Education

Hear what DR. ROBERT E. SPEER has to say on Christian Education, in an address delivered on THE WAR and the RELIGIOUS OUTLOOK

"The war has revealed to us the magnitude and gravity of our whole problem of education. A democracy is not safe with such a mass of illiteracy as the war has uncovered. But the problem is not solved simply by decreasing the percentage of illiterates to the whole population. We need not simply education, but Christian education—training that issues in religious conviction and Christian personality. Among all the things that the chaplains and others who have been in touch with the religious life of the army have revealed to us, few are more appalling than the lack of comprehension of the meaning of Christianity and of the elements of religious life, which were found to be characteristic of great masses of our men, side by side with a widely prevalent and child-like religious instinct. Such ignorance is a central flaw in a self-controlled and self-governing nation. Our strength lies in the intelligent religious convictions of our people. In the more comprehensive sense of the term the WHOLE PROBLEM OF THE CHURCH is now more clearly seen to be one of education. We have to bring every available resource to bear to make the pulpit, the Sunday school, the day school, the university, the theological seminary—all our educational factors—efficient in carrying out the great task of the Church of training men and women in Christian character.

How is That for a Man Thinking in World Terms, With Foreign Missions as His Special Work? AND HE IS DEAD RIGHT ABOUT IT

The Presbyterians of North Carolina have set themselves to the task of RAISING ONE MILLION DOLLARS AS A MINIMUM for Christian Education, to be DISTRIBUTED among ALL their INSTITUTIONS

This is a Tremendous Undertaking. We Must Begin It in Prayer

If you are willing to engage daily in prayer for the success of this great effort, cut out the pledge form, sign and mail to Campaign Headquarters. Praying must precede giving. No use for us to go out on the road for money unless we are backed up by the earnest prayers of our pastors and people. It will give us confidence if we know you are praying for us.

PRAYER PLEDGE

Believing in the fundamental importance of Christian Education; interested in the success of the Million Dollar Campaign for our schools in North Carolina; with faith in God and the power of prayer, I covenant to pray daily, or as near thereto as possible, for the success of this effort.

Name _____

Address _____

Date _____

(This pledge will be kept in confidence and not used publicly)

Campaign Headquarters
Presbyterian Schools.
Greensboro, N. C.

M. E. MELVIN, Manager
Assembly's Field Secretary

Church News.

(Continued from Page 14)

Morven—The church at Morven, which is one of the most beautiful structures in Mecklenburg Presbytery, and would do honor to any city, is making fine progress under the leadership of the pastor, Rev. John Jordan Douglass, of Wadesboro, who preaches there once a month. Large congregations attend each service, and the church is mapping out a progressive program which will mean increased offerings to all purposes of the church and an increase in the pastor's salary.

Fayetteville Presbytery—Simultaneous Sunday School Conferences. Conferences for six of the churches of Lee county were held June 28. The speaking teams were composed of Revs. J. K. Roberts, J. A. Caligan, C. T. Wicker and L. A. McLaurin, and Messrs. R. E. Carrington, J. W. McIntosh, W. H. Fitts and D. E. Shaw. Vital topics were discussed before large congregations and the unusual interest shown gratified the speakers. Some fruit has already appeared and we are confident that a new interest in Sunday School work in many of our churches will result from these conferences.

Steele Creek Church—Next Sunday is to be "Home-coming" day in Steele Creek, in recognition of our returned soldiers. We are to have an all-day service with dinner on the grounds. Sermon in the morning, in the afternoon an open service with short talks by a number of the "boys" and others, with songs and prayers of thanksgiving and praise. We have 62 stars on the service flag and all represented on this flag have returned except three, who are in France and Germany. We invite all soldiers within our bounds to be present and take part with us, and all friends of the church are also invited to be present.

J. W. Orr, Pastor.

Gastonia—The result of a very fine eight-day tent meeting in which he was assisted by Rev. Leonard Gill is reported by Rev. Geo. R. Gillespie as follows: "South Gastonia is one of the mill fields of our Congregational Home Mission and Church Extension work and, despite inclement weather and lack of publicity, one of the best protracted meetings ever held in Gastonia was that of last week. The eight meetings netted for the Kingdom, twelve decisions, Baptist preference, eight Methodist preference, one Lutheran preference, thirty-two additions to First Presbyterian Church. Total, 53. Beside countless numbers of requests for the prayers of Christian people. A very wonderful little meeting. As assistant to Dr. James H. Henderlite, I am in charge of three mill Sunday schools, three preaching stations and community work for six mills, all organized and established by the First Church since last September."

Thomasville—Beginning May 19, Rev. L. T. Wilds, of Lexington, N. C., assisted the pastor in a meeting at Thomasville.

Owing to the condition of the weather and some other hindrances, the congregations were not what we had hoped they would be but notwithstanding these, Brother Wilds was at his best and gave to us messages of which he is gifted, and we had a wonderful meeting.

The visible results were the confession of their faith in Christ of three young people and the church was greatly edified.

The congregation of this church has recently made a drive to raise an indebtedness from the church with the result that the amount has been pledged and will be paid by July 15.

Dacotah—A meeting began at Dacotah June 8, continuing through the 15th. Rev. J. G. Walker, of Greensboro, N. C., assisted the pastor in this meeting. The people having been prepared by a series of cottage prayer meetings greeted Brother Walker with good congregations and a deep spirit of interest was shown from the beginning.

Brother Walker seemed to be the man for this meeting and precious truth spoken in his forceful and attractive manner held the people under a spell throughout.

The visible results of this meeting was the reconsecration of six persons and the confession of their faith in Christ of twenty-one. Some of them have signified their preference of the Presbyterian Church; others will join the various churches of the town.

Synodical Home Missions, Receipts for June, 1919—
Albemarle Presbytery: Farmville (Rev. C. C. B.), $65.00; Goldsboro, $100.00; Wilson, $100.00. Total, $265.00.

Concord Presbytery: Concord (Iredell), $15.00; Elmwood, $2.00; Glen Alpine (Rev. A. W. C.), $1.51; Lenoir (Rev. Wm. B.), $255.25; Tabor, $5.00; Third Creek, $4.40. Total, $283.16.

Fayetteville Presbytery: Benson (Rev. C. C. B.), $113.55; Bethesda (Rev. O. G. J.), $142.13; Cameron, $50.00; Duke S. S., $3.79; Elise S. S., .42; Godwin (S. S. $9.00), (W. Aux. Alb. Supt., $5.00), $14.00; Gulf, $8.03; Ida Mills, $25.00; Pocket (S. S. $1.75), $5.55; Sardis L. M. Soc., $5.00; Spence, $5.00; Union, $5.00. Total, $37.47.

Kings Mountain Presbytery: Bessemer City, $6.75; Gastonia First, $50.00; Gastonia First (Rev. L. Gill) Mission, $112.48; Kings Mountain, $30.00; Long Creek, $2.63; Union, $73.00; Union Mills, $2.00. Total, $276.86.

Mecklenburg Presbytery: Albemarle, $20.00; Carmel, $16.00; Cook's Memorial, $5.00; Indian Trail, $20.00; Paw Creek, $12.50; Sugar Creek, $4.10; Tenth Avenue, $45.60; Waxhaw, $15.10; West Avenue, $5.00. Total, $143.30.

Orange Presbytery: Bethel, $9.30; Durham First, $48.00; Fairfield, $4.73; Red House, $15.00; Winston First, $250.00; Winston First W. Aux., $12.60; Winston First S. S., $20.09. Total, $359.72.

Wilmington Presbytery: Beth Car S. S. and W. Aux., $10.25; Hebron, $1.60; Sweet Home (Rev. O. G. Jones), $41.00; Willard (Rev. A. W. C.), $64.02. Total, $116.87.

Total for June, $1,822.38. Previously reported, $16,185.76. Total Synod to June 30, 1919, $18,008.14.

A. W. C.

Elise High School—Where are you planning to send your children to school this year? Elise High School in Moore County, N. C., is an ideal place. It will reopen the third of September and it is hoped the enrollment will be the largest ever. You cannot do better for your children than to have them ready to enter the first day and continue throughout the year.

Several changes are being made in the way of conveniences, teachers, matron, etc., and a splendid program for the year's work is being prepared. A special lecture course will be arranged for as well as lectures on health from the leading physicians of the state. Presbytery will meet near here in September and it is being planned that all the ministers in Fayetteville Presbytery be invited to visit us at that time. A special missionary rally will be held here in October which will be a rare treat for the students. Many plans which will help the boys and girls mentally and physically as well as socially will be carried out.

Hemp is located in one of the most healthful parts of North Carolina, the scenery is beautiful. It is an ideal location for a school. The management is entirely Christian and while not sectarian the pupils are taught many habits which will remain with them throughout life and help them to become better citizens in Church, home and country.

The work of the year 1918-1919 was unusually good. A class of twelve splendid young people was graduated and most of them are preparing to enter some college this fall. The war took many of the young men from school this year but it is hoped that during the coming term there will be a larger number than ever before. The boys and girls of today must be given an education as never before, for the men of tomorrow will have a task to perform large than has ever faced the men of the present or past generations.

The new catalog is now ready. Be certain to write for yours immediately and prepare to send your children to a Christian school where every care will be taken for their upbuilding in every way.

Camden—About five miles south of Wadesboro at Camden, a Sunday School was started not many years ago. Rev. J. J. Douglass, pastor of Wadesboro, preaches there twice a month regularly, in the afternoons. They have 85 members, which shows a regular increase. The work in this section is growing fast and under the efficient leadership of Mr. Douglass, Presbyterianism is not only holding its own, but it is advancing.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

Laurens—At a congregational meeting at the First Presbyterian Church last Sabbath four deacons were elected to fill vacancies caused by the recent promotion to the eldership of several junior officers. The deacons elected were: Rufus T. Dunlap, Dr. Charles P. Vincent, Jr., Sam M. Wilkes and J. McD. Moore. The new ruling elders are: Dr. H. K. Aiken, Sam R. Dorroh, L. B. Blackwell and M. H. Hunter.

Chester—The Chester churches continue to increase its preachers' salaries. Sunday at a congregational meeting at Purity Presbyterian Church the salary of the pastor, the Rev. John Edwin Purcell, Jr., was increased from $2,400 to $3,000, which also includes a manse free of rent, and last week the salary of the Rev. D. G. Phillips, D.D., pastor of the Associate Reformed Presbyterian Church, was increased from $1,800 to $2,400, this likewise including a manse free of rent.

The Piedmont Sunday School observed Children's Day, June 29, with an elaborate program, consisting of songs, recitations and special selections and a short talk on Korea by the pastor. The program was under the supervision of one of our elders. A large congregation was present and many said that the music was beautiful. A free-will offering was taken, amounting to $25.00. The Sunday School is growing and the church membership increasing.

The Broadway Church is planning for a revival August 10-17, to be conducted by a brother of the pastor, Rev. B. E. Wallace, D.D., pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Paris, Texas. Sunday School observed Children's Day June 1, using the program sent out by our committee. It was a delightful service. A free-will offering was taken and the Sunday School took three shares in our mission work in Korea.

Florence—The annual Children's Day exercises were held on the first Sunday of June. Everything spectacular was avoided, and the service was made impressive and instructive by its very simplicity. The singing and other participation on the part of the children was of special interest and excellence. An unusual feature of the program consisted of brief addresses delivered by young men just returned from the service—Messrs. R. B. Fulton and T. R. Miller. An offering was made for Foreign Missions.

Sunday, June 15, was observed as "Home-coming Day" by this church. A large congregation was present. The Scripture readings, prayers, hymns and special music were all woven into the main thought of the service—Church Attendance.

The theme of the pastor, Dr. H. Tucker Graham, was "The Ideal Church-goer"—who was none other than the Blessed Master Himself. He emphasized the reasons why Jesus was always in the sanctuary, stated the excuses he might have given for absenting Himself had he chosen to stay away, and then made pointed application of these various reasons to his own congregation and community.

The service was deeply impressive and helpful. All present greeted the pastor cordially and then passed out to their homes, feeling that it was good to have been there.

Synod of South Carolina—The Committee of Home Missions and Evangelism of the Synod of South Carolina has extended a hearty call to Dr. W. H. Miley to take up work with them July 1. Dr. Miley has accepted the call, but feels constrained to continue with the Executive Committee of Home Missions through July and August in order to carry out a previously arranged program in West Hanover Presbytery. His address for these two months will be Charlottesville, Va. He will take up the work with the Synod of South Carolina September 1, and a vigorous program is being arranged for the fall and winter. Since January 20 (little over five months) he has held twelve evangelistic services. Nine of these meetings have been in the Home Mission churches of Charleston Presbytery, and in some cases the resident membership has been increased as much as fifty per cent.

Clemson College—The baccalaureate sermon at the commencement exercises of Clemson College was preached Sunday, June 15, by the Rev. W. L. Lingle, D.D., formerly pastor of the Presbyterian Church in Rock Hill and now professor of church history in Union Theological Seminary, Richmond, Va. The text was "Thy kingdom come, thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven," and the subject was "Jesus' Ideals for the World."

The sermon was clear, forceful, eloquent and appropriate. After showing how far the world is from the ideals of Jesus and how men are longing for a new world, Dr. Lingle explained the various interpretations of the "kingdom of God" and the "will of God" and then gave some of the laws or principles governing the kingdom, self-sacrifice, service, the golden rule, stewardship and love. He then urged the graduates to go out and seek to build their own lives and to rebuild the world in accordance with Christ's plans.

Charleston, Second Church—The following having been elected to the offices of elder and deacon, respectively, in the Second Presbyterian Church, were ordained and installed, Sunday, June 22: Elders—Mr. F. G. Patton, Mr. A. G. C. McDermid, Mr. W. W. Clement, Mr. R. W. Hutson. Mr. C. A. Stevenson, having been ordained previously, was installed. Deacons—Mr. Geo. R. Lunz, Mr. R. E. DeHay, Mr. J. J. Murray. Two elders-elect, Mr. J. C. Clark and Mr. Walter M. Wolfe, were out of the city and will be installed at a later date.

The increase in membership makes the increase in the officers desirable and necessary. The Second Church, when all these have been inducted into office, will have fifteen elders and eleven deacons.

It was both refreshing and encouraging to see the five new elders and two of the new deacons present at prayer meeting. It ought to be obvious to every elder and deacon in our church that a church cannot well go forward unless the leaders lead. When our elders awake to this fact and begin to invest their lives in the work of the church, occupying the place of leadership in the evening service, the prayer meeting and the Sunday school, we will see a new day dawn in the life of our church. Cor.

Charleston Presbytery—For some time Rev. W. H. Miley, D.D., has been conducting evangelistic services in Charleston Presbytery, giving especial attention to the smaller churches.

June 1 to 8, inclusive, Dr. Miley preached in Barnwell, one of the old historic churches, which is now very small and weak in membership. The meeting began with a big union service in the Baptist church, which is the only building large enough to accommodate the congregation. Then, all during the week, both morning and night each day, he preached to good audiences in the Presbyterian Church. The morning congregations were good and the night congregations were exceptionally fine. The meeting closed with union services in the Baptist church, both morning and night.

June 15 to 22, inclusive, Dr. Miley held a meeting in Denmark. It began and closed with union services, the other pastors giving away to Dr. Miley. The congregations here, too, were very good, and as in Barnwell, everyone was greatly taken with Dr. Miley himself, and with the deep, strong, spiritual messages which he brought.

Dr. Miley has done a great service in this field, and the results of his work will keep on showing through the coming months. One of the noticeable features of both meetings was the cordiality and co-operation of all denominations. He not only did the Presbyterian churches good, but made a telling impression on both towns.

P. W. DuBose.

GEORGIA.

Presbytery of Athens—The constitutional requirements having been met, I hereby call the Presbytery of Athens to convene in the First Presbyterian Church in Gainesville, Ga., on Tuesday, July 15, 1919, at 12 o'clock noon, to examine, and if the way be clear, to license Candidate A. Hoyt Miller, and to ordain Licentiate A. H. Key, and also to license or to ordain any other candidate or licentiate who may be present.

R. L. J. Smith,
Moderator.

Atlanta—Oglethorpe University is to be congratulated on the following additions she has made to her faculty:

Dr. J. F. Sellers is to be the head of the Department of Science. Dr. Sellers is one of the best known scientists in the Southeast. Since 1918 he has been Educational Secretary, A. E. F., stationed in England, and professor of Chemistry of Beaune, France. He holds his A.B. and A.M. degrees from the University of Mississippi and the degree of LL.D. from Mississippi College, and he has done special work in the University of Virginia and the University of Chicago.

Dr. Arthur Stephen Libby is to be head of the School of Commerce at the University. Dr. Libby's degrees come to him from Bowdoin College, Ph.D., from University of Maine, A.B. and A.M., from Sorbonne, Paris, A.M., from Brown University, A.M., and from the University of Paris, Ph.D. Dr. Libby comes to Oglethorpe with the highest recommendations as a great teacher and a civic leader.

The Rose Hill Church, Columbus—A joyful thanksgiving and dedicatory service was held in the Rose Hill Presbyterian Church of Columbus, Ga., Sunday morning, June 22. Dr. S. L. Morris, chairman of the Assembly's Home Mission Committee, delivered an inspiring and forceful sermon, taking as his text, "And thou mayest add thereto," an expression from David's charge to Solomon regarding the building of the temple.

The Rose Hill Church has been for several years greatly handicapped in its effort to do the Master's work by a heavy debt. The membership was small, but the zeal and faith were great. No work seemed too arduous, no sacrifice too great for this little band. Perhaps no other structure of equal size was ever built with money which represented as many needed coat-suits and much-desired summer trips as this one. Some families discarded hired domestics and donated the money thus saved to the building fund. Various methods of making money were employed. When Rev. Thos. K. Currie, of Davidson, N. C., accepted a call to the church three years ago, the debt was seven thousand dollars. Realizing at once what a great drawback this was, he put forth a mighty effort to liquidate it, and it is due to his indefatigable energy and wonderful executive ability that it has been accomplished. The removal of this burden gives a brighter outlook than the church has ever enjoyed, and the energy and sacrifices that were required for the payment of interest and of notes falling due will now be directed along different lines of work which heretofore have necessarily been left undone.

The members of this church are deeply grateful to Mr.

Currie for his invaluable work. Both he and Mrs. Currie, who, before her marriage was Miss Lilius Cary, of Richmond, Va., as well as little Tom, Jr., are much beloved by the congregation.

MISSISSIPPI.

Synod's Training School—The seventh session was held in Jackson, June 17-26. It was most successful throughout. There was a record attendance. Fifty or sixty preachers were in the throng. The Training School was held in the splendid buildings of Belhaven College, of which Dr. W. H. Frazer is president. The rooms were all filled, and the great dining-room was packed. In the lectures and at the conferences and demonstrations everything was earnest and stately, though conducted with a certain degree of informality in some cases. In the dining-room the whole company gave way to mirth and liveliness. It was altogether a great social gathering as well as a serious Training School. The daily lectures were delivered by Drs. Frazer, Wells, Reavis, Summey, while less frequent lectures were given by Drs. Whaling, Crowe, Gray, Kirkpatrick, W. McF. Alexander, Hutton, and Revs. R. E. Hough, G. T. Gillespie, J. C. Crane, C. O. Grove. Dr. Crowe's lecture on deacon should have been heard by every man holding that great office. Dr. Alexander's address on "Why I Am a Presbyterian" should by all means be printed and widely circulated. Dr. Geo. S. Roudobush, in the ninety-second year of his age, was a marked figure in the gathering, and the venerable man took a lively interest and part in all that was going on. Very tender memorial services were held for Rev. Dr. R. A. Webb, who had been identified with the Training School in all its history, and Rev. R. L. Walkup, who had much to do with its organization and conduct. Mrs. Winsborough, of St. Louis, was present and took an active part in instruction and demonstration as to the woman's work. The last day of the Training School was a great Education Day, with special attention devoted to the enterprises of the Synod of Mississippi.

TEXAS.

Sherman—Austin College—The commencement exercises brought to a close a year of marked success, especially when the unusual interruptions incident to the war are taken into consideration. The graduating class was small because a number of its members had gone into the service of their country, and had failed to return, some of them having not yet been released. Five of the number receiving diplomas had been in some form of the service aside from the S. A. T. C. One graduate student, Lardner W. Moore, of Susaki, Japan, received the degree of Master of Arts. The salutatory address was given by Carl Robinson, of Detroit, Texas (second honor), and the valedictory was delivered by James C. Paxton, of Sherman (first honor). R. E. Hooker, of the graduating class, was awarded the medal in the oratorical contest on Monday evening. The honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity was conferred upon Rev. J. G. Varner, of Denton, Texas, and Rev. Thos. W. Currie, of Austin, Texas.

Rev. A. A. McGeachy, D.D., of Charlotte, N. C., former pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Sherman, was given a hearty welcome. He preached the baccalaureate sermon on Sunday morning, and also delivered the address to the class on Tuesday evening. Much interest centered in the memorial service on Sunday evening in honor of the ten Austin College men whose lives were given in the service of the country. Dr. Geo. W. Truett, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Dallas, Tex., spoke on this occasion. He had spent some months in France and England ministering to the men in uniform, and his address was one that stirred the hearts of all present.

Austin College is very vitally interested in the intensive campaign now being conducted in the Synod of Texas for the raising of $1,350,000 for her educational institutions. Most encouraging reports have been received up to date.

(Continued on page 19)

Woman's Auxiliary

Conducted by Mrs. Jno. M. McIver, Gulf, N. C.

COUNTRY SOCIETIES, ATTENTION-

The Auxiliary Circle plan for city churches is proving a remarkable success and no church having upon its roll of membership more than 35 women and girls can afford to neglect this plan.

There are, however, in our church a large number of country churches with scattered membership which are doing splendid missionary work. These churches have various forms of organization for the women. In order to learn the best forms of organization for these conditions the Auxiliary is urging every country society that has a successful plan of work to write a description of it to us in order that we may pass it on to others.

We want to make the September number of the Survey a country church number in the Auxiliary department, and we want to know what your church in the country is doing.

Will you not write to us at once about it. Address Mrs. W. C. Winsborough, Alba Hotel, Montreat, N. C.

RALLY DAYS FOR YOUNG PEOPLE.

The Secretary of Young People's Work of Fayetteville Presbyterian Auxiliary, Mrs. D. H. Shaw, sends a splendid report of her "Rally Days."

These rallies were held at Manchester, Center and Jackson Springs on June 17, 18 and 20. There were two sessions, morning and afternoon, with an hour and a half intermission, when a "picnic dinner," to which the delegates contributed by each bringing a basket, was served by the hostess society and greatly enjoyed by all.

The attendance was about five hundred, seven of the nine counties in the Presbytery sending delegates. Ida Mills church sent the largest delegation.

The programs for Manchester and Center were prepared by Mrs. Shaw. Mrs. W. L. Wilson arranged the program for Jackson Springs. The meetings were largely in the hands of the young people; the devotionals conducted and greetings and response given by them. Special music given by delegates from different societies, solos and choruses. The girls gave at two of the rallies a dialogue, "The Tale of Boxes."

The most notable feature of the program was the reports from delegates to the Young People's Conference at Charlotte. Ten of these young people gave these reports. Their subjects were: "Our Platform Speakers," "The Morning Watch," "Vesper Service," "Making Life Count," "Students' Conference Hour". One young girl gave a general sketch of life at the Conference, and another summaries of a number of courses and addresses.

Wonder how many of our Presbyterials follow up our Conferences for young people by giving the delegates an opportunity of passing on to groups of societies the good they have gotten from the Conference?

The Woman's Auxiliary of the First Church, Fayetteville, gave at one of the meetings "The Survey Pageant," which took up each department of the Survey and made it attractive and instructive. It showed what was in the Survey and how to use it.

Mrs. Shaw talked on Mission Study books and the scholarship in "Student Loan Fund" that the young people in Fayetteville Presbyterian are taking for their special work this year. At Jackson Springs she spoke on the Conference at Queens College.

The Presbyterian secretary of Literature was at all of the rallies; she called attention to the splendid missionary literature that is gotten out for young people now, especially recommending "Mook" for study the coming year, and urging mission study classes.

Miss Mabel Hall, who attended the three meetings, gave wonderful visions to these young people of the possibilities of service in the life of a Sabbath School missionary in the mountains. Miss Davis, at Jackson Springs, gave some impressions of Korea and the Koreans, telling of the heroism of Korean Christians in the face of persecution.

Rev. Charles Bailey and Rev. Dougald McIntyre gave exceptionally good sermons to the young people. Rev. J. K. Roberts made a devotional talk, his theme being, "As we have had the best in life, we should pass it on to others." Mr. J. T. Johnson gave a talk on "How Young People Can Help Their Pastor," saying only nice things about him, coming out to hear him, being sociable with him, and paying him. Lieut. (Rev.) Eugene Alexander talked most interestingly on "The Doughboy."

Such a program of course meant a great deal of hard work on the part of the secretary of Young People's Work. She has not, I am sure, wanted a minute of her time back since seeing the interest and enthusiasm of the young people evidenced by their willingness to take their parts in the program and the wonderful attendance.

Please save the copy of the Standard with Mrs. Robinson's statistics. We want to say something about them next week.

Church News.

(Continued from page 18)

President Clyce is giving much of his time to the active work of the campaign. Austin College confidently looks forward to next year as one of the best in her history.

VIRGINIA.

West Hanover Presbytery—The Elon and Pedlar Mills Presbyterian Churches in Amherst County gave a cordial welcome to their new pastor, Clyde J. Walsh, who arrived on May 24 to take charge of this end of the field in Amherst County. The Ladies' Aid Society of Elon Church is raising funds to enlarge the church building, adding a recess to the pulpit and also a session room. Work on the manse at Elon also will be begun soon. The Sunday schools at Elon, Pedlar Mills, and Morris School House are going in full swing, but an epidemic of whooping-cough has kept down the attendance to a considerable extent. Miss Mary Glauber, of the Assembly's Training School, is doing excellent work in the Morris School House community this summer.

South Boston—On Sunday, June 29, our session ordained and installed Mr. J. O. Lovelace elder and Messrs. Jno. Harris and C. W. Walters deacons.

Rev. W. T. Doggett, of Danville, was present by invitation and preached a strong sermon on "The Covenant of Peace."

Mrs. S. D. Walton, of Farmville, had recently addressed the ladies of the church upon the Assembly's Auxiliary plan and, pursuant to that idea, the ladies met and proceeded to organize. Mrs. T. F. Fry was elected president; Mrs. Carrie Clarke, vice-president; Mrs. Geo. Stover, secretary, and Mrs. Chas. Brookes, treasurer.

Electric fans have recently been installed and the work of collecting funds and securing plans for a modern Sunday school room is making progress.

The pastor's salary had been increased three hundred dollars and in March an additional bonus of two hundred dollars was added. In these days of H. C. L. this is appreciated by the pastor.

Mrs. Mary S. Haines, who had been our efficient choir leader for some years, recently removed to Norfolk, leaving a host of friends and carrying with her as a token of our regard a handsome wrist watch. C. W. Maxwell.

The disciples when they were fishermen spent much time in mending their nets. They knew they could not get their fish if the nets were full of holes. There is much need of mending our nets if we want to be fishers of men. An inconsistent walk, a foolish tongue are holes in the net of our character through which sinners slip back into the sea of worldliness.—Ex.

Marriages and Deaths

Marriages.

Dupuy-Younger—At the home of Mr. J. C. McSween, DeFuniak Springs, Fla., on May 27, 1919, by Rev. Daniel J. Currie, Mr. Samuel Worth Dupuy, of St. Louis, Mo., and Miss Ruth Younger, of Baltimore, Md.

Weaver-McDonald—At the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. L. C. McDonald, DeFuniak Springs, Fla., on June 18, 1919, by Rev. Daniel J. Currie, Mr. William E. Weaver, of Pensacola, Fla., and Miss Helen McDonald, of DeFuniak Springs, Fla.

Neathery-Kleabert — In Richmond, Va., June 7, 1919, by Dr. F. T. McFaden, Alisha Cassada Neathery and Rosa Agnes Kleabert, both of Richmond, Va.

Stone-Bolen—In Richmond, Va., June 14, 1919, by Dr. F. T. McFaden, Raymond E. Stone, of Betterton, Md., and Dorothy E. Bolen, of Richmond, Va.

Kindred-Kindred—In Richmond, Va., June 19, 1919, by Dr. F. T. McFaden, Alexander G. Kindred, of Flagstaff, Arizona, and Margaret W. Kindred, of Richmond, Va.

McDowell-Hewitt — In Richmond, Va., June 24, 1919, by Dr. F. T. McFaden, Thomas B. McDowell and Edith R. Hewitt, both of Richmond, Va.

Deaths.

McNeill—Mrs. Jane Smith McNeill, wife of J. A. McNeill, of Laurel Hill, N. C., departed this life June 27, 1919, after several months of declining health. She was born April 19, 1860. She was a faithful and zealous member of Aberdeen Presbyterian Church.

Ramsaur—Died May 30, 1919, at Grace Hospital, Morganton, Mr. George Shuford Ramsaur. He was born in Lincoln Co., June 30, 1863, was married July 29, 1891, to Mrs. Annie Forney Corpening, who with the following sons and daughters, all grown, survive: Wm. Forney Ramsaur, who had been in Germany with the Army of Occupation and returned home six days after his father's death; Mary, Lewis, Clarence, Kate, Kana and Sallie. He was an elder in Quaker Meadow Presbyterian Church. Truly a good man, as he was generally spoken of, a kind husband and father, has gone from us.

Donnan—Died in Richmond, Va., May 21, 1919, Mrs. Lizzie Glenn Hunt Donnan, wife of John Donnan, of Richmond, Va. Mrs. Donnan was born in Milton, N. C., the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eustace Hunt. For thirty-two years she and her husband have walked together, in happiness and joy, illustrating all the true characteristics of a Christian home. A true helpmeet she has been, and a devoted Christian woman. A loyal member of the First church, and helpful in all good works, she was a tower of strength to her husband and a source of encouragement to her pastor. When the end came she was ready to answer the call and have her faith lost in sight and her hope in fruition. Her funeral services were conducted by Dr. McFaden from the First church in the presence of many of her friends and loved ones. Her works do follow her.

Children's Department

LIVES ON A FARM.

Dear Standard:

I am a little girl ten years old. I go to Sunday school every Sunday. We have church once a month. Mr. P. L. Clark is our preacher and we like him fine. I live on the farm and we have lots of chickens and pigs. I have a little sister and her name is Lucile, and I have a little brother. His name is Forest. Your friend, Burgaw, N. C. Mildred Mallard.

LIKES THE LETTERS.

Dear Standard:

I am a little girl eleven years old. I have a dear little baby brother. His name is Charles. He is so sweet. I go to Sunday school every Sunday I can. My teacher's name is Miss Annie Williams. I like her fine. My Daddy takes your paper and I like to read the letters and stories. This is my first letter to the Standard. I hope my letter don't reach the waste basket. Your little friend,
Parkton, N. C. Anita McNatt.

One can buy ten cents' worth of almost anything now for thirty cents.—
Toledo Blade.

GRANDMOTHER'S END OF THE ICE CREAM.

Grandma dropped wearily into a chair. Her sweet face was full of the little tired lines that were nearly always there on Tuesdays. She held up one slender hand with the fingers spread.

"Churning's done—thumb," she said, folding down the thumb, "Ironing's done—first finger; beds are made—thimble finger; dishes washed—ring finger."

Only the little finger was left, standing up in the wobbly, little-finger way of standing up.

"The little finger stands for dinner," smiled tired Grandmother. "That isn't done! Now when one has company, I wonder what one gets for dinner"—

There was a stir across the room. The "company" with one accord scrambled to its feet and formed in line.

"Ice cream!" in chorus.

"O," said tired Grandmother. Then she said, "O," again. She had not thought of ice cream! Dear, no, not ice cream! She lowered her spectacles from her pretty white hair to her nose and glanced up at the clock.

"It's after ten," she said. "It takes a good while sometimes to freeze ice cream. I don't suppose the company would like it unfrozen? There's some nice soft custard out in the pan—"

The company made a wry face—three wry faces.

"That wouldn't be ice cream, Grandma," pouted Olive.

"Nothing but just custard!" pouted Terence. Terence was Olive's twin and always did the things she did. The third "company" was little Puss-in-Boots.

"I'd ruvver have I-scream a good dealer," Puss said.

Tired Grandmother got up stiffly, a patient smile on her dear old face, then sat down again with a sudden twinge of rheumatism. Olive was afraid it meant no ice cream for dinner, and Olive was ice cream hungry. Weren't all three of the company ice cream hungry? Hadn't they talked about having it sure when they went to spend the day with Grandma? Grandma always gave folks two saucersful—

"We s'posed we'd have it," Olive said in an injured tone.

"Yes, we s'posed," said Terry in exactly the same tone.

"Because we're company, that's why. We s'posed you'd give your company"—

"Ice cream," smiled tired Grandmother. "Well, dears, you shall have it, but you will have to wait till supper

—it's too late to freeze it for dinner. Will supper do?"

"O, yes'm, thank you," Olive said politely, and of course Terry said, "O, yes'm," politely, too. Supper was farther away than dinner, but it would do. And custard was pretty good for dessert. The company was not greedy—just ice cream hungry. Usually it was quite a thoughtful company and noticed the little tired lines in Grandmother's face, but not today.

Grandmother got dinner and cleared it away. It seemed to her she grew tired and tired. It was lucky nap time was so near—dear, dear, she had forgotten the children's ice cream!

"If Father was only at home to chop the ice!" she sighed gently. Grandfather's being away made it so much harder—he always knew just how much salt to mix with the ice, and he always turned the crank of the big freezer.

Grandmother turned it alone today. She made the cream and packed the ice around it, and turned—turned—turned. Something must be wrong. Why didn't the cream begin to stiffen? The tired old arms throbbed with pain. She counted one, two, three, four—she would not stop to rest till she got to a hundred. But she did stop at fifty. She got more ice and chopped it in the chopping tray—more salt and mixed it in. Then she turned again and counted. This time she counted twenty-five between rests. It was cooler out on the back porch under the vines, and she dragged the freezer and the kitchen chair out there.

"Creak, creak, creak—one, two, three, four—creak, creak, five, six, seven. Still the handle went round just the same, and tired Grandmother knew the cream had not yet thickened.

The company was playing housekeep out in the grape arbor. It was pleasant and rustly out there, with the leaves everywhere whispering things to each other. Olive said it was beautiful spending the day at Grandmother's, wasn't it? And Terry said, wasn't it!

"And there's I-scream a-comin'!" chanted Puss-in-Boots.

"Goody!"

"I'm glad we asked for it, aren't you? Grandma might not have remembered our—our ice cream 'tooth.'"

"Teeth," corrected Olive—"yours and mine and Pussey's. Yes, indeed, I'm glad we remembered!"

"I hope there'll be chockerlate in," Puss said, "and that 'minds me to wish we'd asked for two kinds."

"I wish we had!"

"Maybe we can now—come on, let's hurry like everything!"

The company was in good racing trim. There was a scurry of nimble little feet and the three little housekeepers arrived, breathless, at the back porch. Olive got there a little in advance.

"O, Grandma, can't we have two kinds of ice"—then she stopped. A strange little change came over her round, brown face. For an instant she looked at tired Grandmother in the kitchen rocker, then noiselessly she sped away to meet the rest of the company.

"O, sh, sh, sh!" she panted softly, "you come with me, but sh! Don't do a thing but look at Grandma."

She was fast asleep in the old stuffed rocking chair. Her head had fallen back a little, sidewise, and her dear old face wore a patient look. The weary old fingers had released their hold on the crank of the big red freezer.

"Sh!" whispered Olive, but there was no need of it. All the company was sh-ing. They stole away on tiptoes back to the grape arbor.

"She's very tired," Olive said severely. "Aren't you 'shamed of yourselves for asking for ice cream!"

"My gracious! You went and asked the first ask yourself, Olive Tripp! And if you've gone and most killed Grandmother!"

"O, it was us all! We've all most killed her!" wailed Olive in sudden remorse. "And she's the dearest, grandmotherest Grandmother! We never thought of her end o' the ice cream."

"No, we never"—groaned Terence.

"We just thinked of our end—O, my shole!" Pussy lamented.

They lapsed into shamed, gloomy silence. It was awful to sit there in the grape arbor and feel like—like—pigs! And what made it worse, they could distinctly hear a grunting sound in the direction of Grandpa's pigpen.

"They sound like relations," Olive groaned.

When Grandmother woke up in the late afternoon, the first thing she saw was a jagged piece of white wrapping paper propped up conspicuously on the top of the freezer. It was covered over with great lead-pencil words. She felt in her soft white hair for her glasses and read it—not once, but twice, three times.

"We are Pigs but Pussy is onley a little one. We never thort of your end of the ice cream. We have gorn Home for Fear youl finnish making it and it would Choak us. Please dont Wake Up but keep rite on Resting. We are sorry weve most kiled you, Honest.

"Terry and Me and Puss."

"The little dears!" rested Grandmother murmured.—Annie Hamilton Donnell in Congregationalist and Advance.

THE CATERPILLAR'S WISH.

A dark, brown caterpillar, with stiff black hairs standing out upon his back, crawled slowly along the ground.

"I wish I wasn't plain and ugly," he complained. "All those beings called people hate me. I wish I was beautiful so that they could admire me, as beautiful—" he gazed about him—"as those flowers over there. I wish I didn't have to crawl on the ground. I wish I could walk, or no, I want to fly and go flitting about in the air as the birds do."

"You shall have your wish, little caterpillar," promised a sweet voice, and, looking up, he beheld the kind face of Mother Nature gazing at him. "You shall be as beautiful as a flower and shall fly like a bird. Only be patient and wait."

Did she really mean it? The caterpillar could hardly believe her words. He was about to ask more questions, but dear Mother Nature was gone. It could not be true. He as beautiful as a flower and able to fly like a bird! And yet she had said it would be so. He would trust her words.

For days afterward he crawled about upon the ground. Sometimes he wondered if he were beginning to gain his beautiful colors, but when he heard the children exclaim, "See that horrid caterpillar!" his hopes were dispelled. When he tried to rise from the ground, thinking that his wings might be starting, he found all his efforts in vain.

Finally he felt a change coming over him. Obeying an instinct within him, he spun a little knob of silk to which he hooked his hind legs. Then his skin split open and wriggling his way out of it he fastened himself securely to the silk knob where he hung suspended from a twig to which this was attached. He felt now that he was about to die. Instead of attaining his wish he must end his existence, and he had never been anything but a crawling worm. Mother Nature had deceived him. But even as he seemed to sink into the sleep of death he heard her soft voice as she bent over him:

"Hope on, little caterpillar. Your wish will yet come true."

He did not know how long he remained in this state, but one day he aroused from his slumber. He was not dead after all. He must break his bands and see what further thing awaited him. As he made the effort the covering which encased him split open and he crawled forth upon the twig in the same manner in which he had always done. But then he began to feel new life flow through his body. Something seemed to protrude from his sides and to expand moment by moment. He found that he could move these and he waved them gently up and down. Then a thrill passed over him. Were these wings which he had acquired during his long sleep? He spread them forth; and the next instant he was sailing off into the air like the bird he had wished to be. As he poised upon a flower stalk to rest some children passed by him.

"See that handsome butterfly!" cried one.

"What pretty colors!" exclaimed another. "Look! his wings are bronze and have a yellow border with a chain of blue spots inside. There are yellow streaks on his upper wings, too. He's as pretty as those flowers."

The happy insect again raised his new wings and flew away. He was no longer a caterpillar. He was a butterfly, as beautiful as a flower, and with wings which enabled him to fly like a bird. Mother Nature's words were true after all.—By Edith M. Larrabee.

DEATH ABROAD IN BEIRUT.

There is at least one city in the world where there aren't any dogs, and that is Beirut, Syria. Most of the dogs have been eaten by the hungry population; the rest have starved to death.

This is according to Dr. Howard S. Bliss, president of the Protestant Syrian College at Beirut, who has arrived in this country. Ordinarily, he says, dogs are the natural scavengers of Syria, and are to be seen in large numbers in every town and hamlet. Now, in Beirut, they have disappeared entirely.

"Hundreds were dying every day in Beirut," said Dr. Bliss. "One could not step out of the college grounds without coming face to face with starvation and death on every hand. The heart-rending part of it was that we could do nothing for the starving multitudes who came to the college daily begging for help, for while we had so much more than they, our supplies were insufficient for the 250 students in our care, and they were our first responsibility.

"When you think that we were so invoverished that we had to turn our suits and improvise shoes from old foot-

HENS MOULT FAST.

E. J. Reefer, the poultry expert, has discovered a scientific product that hastens the moult and revitalizes the organs of the hen and puts her in fine laying condition. The tonic is called "More Eggs" and a package of it is enough to carry the ordinary chicken raiser over the entire moulting season. First to lay is first to pay. "Since using 'More Eggs' I get forty to fifty eggs a day, instead of eight or nine," writes A. P. Woodward, of St. Cloud, Fla. A million dollar bank guarantees that you can have your money back if you want it. So, you don't take any risk. Send $1.00 for a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic. If you want to hurry the moult and get more eggs, act at once; it means more profit for you. Don't wait, but order today. Send $1 today to E. J. Reefer, 4th Floor, Poultry Bldg., Kansas City, Missouri. Or ask Mr. Reefer for his valuable poultry book free, that tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry.

"THE VALLEY OF VISION."

Henry Van Dyke.

Varied stories dealing with human love and faith, with dreams and realities, with things that will last now that the war is ended but not forgotten. One of the longest is a vision of three unknown days in the life of Jesus of Nazareth. It belongs with "The Story of the Other Wise Man," which has gone around the world.

PRICE $1.50, Net.

— Order from —

PRESBYTERIAN COMMITTEE OF PUBLICATION
Richmond, Va. Texarkana, Ark.-Tex.

balls you can imagine the extremity of the poor who had sold all they had for food—even their beds. Many families had but one real garment left, which they would take turns in wearing to go out begging for food. The others would remain indoors. I have seen human beings scratching in the dust of the

COLUMBIA COLLEGE

COLUMBIA, S. C.

A College for Women ranked in Class "A" by Board of Education, M. E. Church, South. Recognized for its high type of Christian culture
Unusually complete educational facilities, strong university-trained faculty, thorough equipment, ideal location.

Handsome fire-proof buildings, elegantly fitted with every convenience for health, comfort and safety. Beautiful 20-acre campus, affording ample opportunity for outdoor games.

Library of upwards of 5,000 volumes in large, well-lighted quarters. Fine collection of magazines.

Thorough courses leading to degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Science.

Conservatory of Music under direction of skilled instructors.

Thorough courses in Art, Expression, Business, and Home Economics.

1919 session begins September 17th. For descriptive catalogue, address

G. T. PUGH, Ph. D., President, Columbia, S. C.

Chicora College for Women

THE PRESBYTERIAN COLLEGE OF SOUTH CAROLINA

A Standard College of Distinction and Character

Religion and Philosophy

Letters and Science

Home Economics

The Fine Arts

(Music, Art and Expression)

For Catalogue and Information, address

Pres. S. C. BYRD, D.D., Columbia, S. C.

CORRECT
DRAPERIES

Rightly Bought Are Worth
Far More Than They Cost

You are invited to see our assortment of beautiful cretonnes. It is a pleasure to see the gorgeous patterns and color combinations we have on display.

Now is the time to plan for your fall draperies and curtains. Come to see us or write for our drapery man to call on you.

W. T. McCoy & Co.

Charlotte, N. C.

THE HOME OF GOOD FURNITURE

dour for bits of grain, which they would devour eagerly.

"Once you have lived through a siege like that, and know the torment of hunger, it is appalling to witness the dreadful waste still going on in America. Bread that would save hundreds of lives in that famine-stricken land is thrown away here every day."

The relief work in Syria now is handled by the American Committee for Armenian and Syrian Relief, which has accomplished a great deal, in spite of the difficulties of transportation. It was this lack of transportation facilities, according to Dr. Bliss, that was responsible in large measure for the famine. As an illustration of the difficulty of communication, Dr. Bliss told of a man of means who, during the war, could not get to his home. When he finally succeeded in reaching it, he found that his wife had died of starvation, and his children were wandering the streets begging.

Dr. Bliss said that the needs now are homes for the refugees and orphanages for the children. There are thousands of orphans, he said. Their parents died of disease and starvation.

BOILS VANISH

and are gone for good when Gray's Ointment is applied. It enters the pores of the skin, cleanses the wound, soothes the pain, kills the germs and immediately begins healing. The blood is permanently relieved of the disease. Just so with sores, bruises, cuts, burns, stings, eczema and the many similar forms of skin eruptions. Its constant use for a century has made it a family word in every household. You should have it on your medicine shelf for emergencies. Phone your druggist. If he cannot supply you send his name to W. F. Gray & Co., 843 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn., and a liberal sample will be sent you free.

CHURCH ENVELOPES. Double and single envelope systems. Samples and prices sent upon request. Double Envelope Corporation, Roanoke, Va.

CATAWBA COLLEGE

An old, time-honored institution located in the Piedmont section of North Carolina. Established in 1851. The following courses are offered: Classical, modern Language and Scientific, with degrees of A. B. and B. S.; Music, Expression, Art and Business. Trained specialists in each department who take personal interest in your boy and girl. Christian influences. Fine climate. Modern conveniences. Moderate cost. For catalogue and book of views, address

A. D. WOFFINGER, D. D., President, NEWTON, N. C.

ELISE HIGH SCHOOL
MOORE COUNTY HEMP NORTH CAROLINA

A SCHOOL FOR BOYS AND GIRLS

Courses thorough, covering regular High School work, Music, Bible, Shorthand and Typewriting. Discipline mild but firm. Write for illustrated catalog.

W. C. McCOLL, Principal, HEMP, N. C.

United States Railroad Administration

DIRECTOR GENERAL OF RAILROADS

Seaboard Air Line Railroad

Reduced Summer Excursion Round-Trip Tickets on sale May 15th to September 30th, final limit October 31st, 1919, to the following points:

Alta Pass, N. C.	$ 7.14	Pensacola, N. C.	$ 9.06
Hickory, N. C.	3.30	Rutherfordton, N. C.	4.32
Johnson City, Tenn.	10.80	Shelby, N. C.	2.88
Lenoir, N. C.	4.50	Switzerland, N. C.	6.96
Norfolk, Va.	17.46	Virginia Beach, Va.	18.26
Old Point, Va.	18.06	Wrightsville Beach, N. C.	10.66

The above rates do not include war tax. Also attractive rates to other resorts.

For particulars as to fares, trains, schedules, etc., apply to any Railroad Ticket Agent.

E. W. LONG, P. S. A.,
CHARLOTTE, N. C.

JOHN T. WEST, D. P. A.,
RALEIGH, N. C.

Did You?

Did you ever tumble around in the dark to look for a match and find that—
Doors stand out nine feet from the wall?

The table reaches entirely across the room?

The electric light switch has disappeared?

The wall advances to the center of the room to meet you?

The chairs each have twenty-seven legs?

And the bureau, on which you left the matches, has disappeared entirely?—
Baltimore Evening Sun.

MONTREAT LOT FOR SALE—

Beautiful situation near postoffice. For particulars, address W. F. Hollingsworth, Kenansville, N. C.

PASTOR WANTED.

The Edgemont Presbyterian Church of Durham, N. C., is without a pastor and wishes to enter into correspondence with any one seeking a pastorate. For particulars address T. B. Fuller, Durham, N. C.

The McCALLIESCHOOLA HOME SCHOOL FOR BOYS

Able men train boys for college. Individual attention. 1,000 feet elevation. Big athletic field. All sports. Swimming. Boating. Military drill. Honor System. Boys live in Masters' homes, under their personal guidance. Address

Headmasters: S. J. & J. P. McCalle
Missionary Ridge, Chattanooga, Tenn.

BIBLES

All Kinds All Sizes

WRITE FOR CATALOGUE

JOHN T. ALLEN

LITTLETON NORTH CAROLINA

Many Young Men and Women

Have doubled and trebled their salary after taking a course with Draughon. Do you want to earn more money? If so, let us teach you how to do it. More calls for help than we can supply. Write us at once.

DRAUGHON'S BUSINESS COLLEGE
Knoxville, Tenn. Jacksonville, Fla.

BOOKKEEPING AND SHORTHAND

thoroughly taught. Enroll any time. Address Greensboro Commercial School, Greensboro, N. C., for Catalogue.

Special Summer Rates now on.

Medical College of Virginia

(State Institution—Co-Educational)

STUART MCGUIRE, M.D., LL.D., Pres.

MEDICINE DENTISTRY
PHARMACY NURSING

New buildings, completely equipped. Laboratories under full time instructors. Unusual clinical facilities offered in three hospitals owned by the college, also in city hospitals and institutions.

81st session begins September 17, 1919.

For catalogue, address

J. R. McCAULEY, Secretary

1121 East Clay Street RICHMOND, VA.

East Carolina Teachers' Training School

A State school to train teachers for the public schools of North Carolina. Every energy is directed to this one purpose. Tuition free to all who agree to teach. Fall term begins Sept. 24, 1919. For catalog and other information, address ROBERT H. WRIGHT, President, Greenville, N. C.

GROVE INSTITUTE

(Formerly James Sprunt Institute)

KENANSVILLE : NORTH CAROLINA

A Preparatory School for Girls. High Grade, Thoroughly Christian. Very Moderate Cost. Students receive Close, Personal Attention in a Home-Like Atmosphere.
NEXT SESSION BEGINS SEPTEMBER 10th.

For Catalog and Particulars, address REV. W. F. HOLLINGSWORTH, Pres.

THE BAYLOR SCHOOL FOR BOYS A THOROUGH EDUCATION Castle on the Tennessee

1. Thorough Scholastic Training. Small Classes. Experienced Teachers.
 2. Religious Influences through School Y. M. C. A. and daily Chapel Exercises.
 3. Compulsory Public Speaking, Writing, and Spelling for every student.
 4. Six fine brick buildings, new equipment, 40-acre campus in mountains.
 5. Splendid Library, Laboratory, and large Gymnasium.
 6. Athletic Fields, Track, Tennis Courts, Swimming and Boating.
 7. Beautiful Scenery and Historic Surroundings. Ideal Location.
 8. The Honor System. 9. Compulsory Exercise. 10. Same Headmaster for 25 years.
 11. Military Training in the Essentials, not in the Spectacular, under officers of the A. E. F.
- Baylor School is an accredited school of Southern Association of Schools and Colleges.
For particulars, address J. R. BAYLOR, BAYLOR SCHOOL, Chattanooga, Tenn.

Coker College

Hartsville, S. C.

Equipment

A modern, up-to-date College for young women. $400,000 in buildings. 82,000 gallon swimming pool open all the year. Eighty-two baths. Boating on Prestwood Lake. Athletics. Operates its own heating, lighting, water, laundry, and refrigerating plant. College physician and registered nurse. Expert dietitian. Director of Physical Education.

Literary Course

No Preparatory Department. Four-year courses leading to B.A. and B.S. degrees. Home Economics required for graduation without extra charge. Full-time librarian with a course in library methods. Teachers with both college and university training.

Music Department

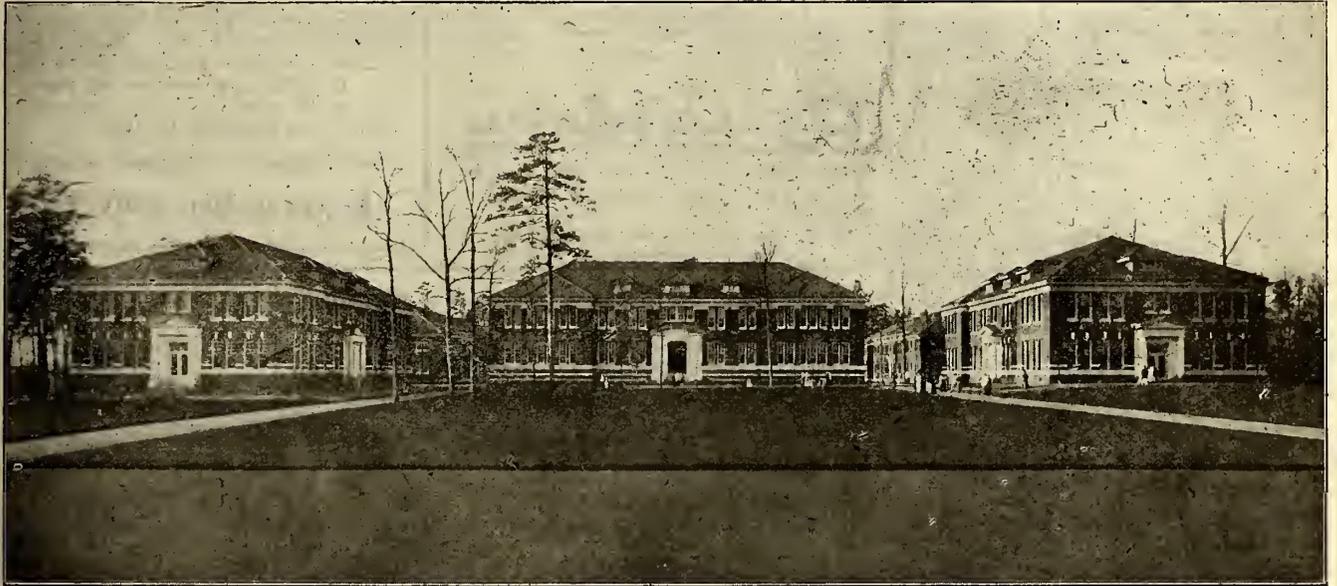

Ten studios. Teachers use Grand Pianos. Four years' course leading to B. Mus. degree. No short courses. Only diplomas awarded. Piano, Pipe Organ, Voice, and Violin. Annual May Festival.

Capacity limited to 300 boarding students.

E. W. SIKES, M. A., Ph. D., President

Queens College for Women

Charlotte, North Carolina

Established More Than Sixty Years Ago as "Charlotte Female Institute"

It is Now Recognized as the Best Equipped College for Women in the Entire South

We have five new two-story brick buildings with modern fire extinguishers, designed and erected solely for convenience, comfort, efficiency and safety. These buildings are located in the beautiful suburb of Myers Park, three and one-half miles from the center of the city.

We have a splendid wooded campus of 25 acres.

15 units required for entrance. Graduates from recognized State High Schools admitted on certificate.

This College is built on a firm belief in the inspiration of the Bible. Thorough Bible courses provided.

Standard college course leading to B. A. degree. Most complete equipment for thorough education.

Physical, Chemical and Biological Laboratories; Library, Gymnasium, Preparatory department. Able faculty. Dormitories divided into units of two rooms and connecting with bath, accommodating four students. Large, well-ventilated rooms, big closets. Buildings as near fire-proof as possible. Water, gas, electricity. Convenient street car service.

School of Music, Expression and Art offers superior opportunities. Music building has twenty-six rooms equipped exclusively for this department. Complete, thorough course leading to diploma. Post graduate course in music offered.

Our Motto: "Christian Women for Christian Homes"

Necessary expenses very moderate, about $325.00 for the regular literary course, including board. FALL TERM begins September 10, 1919.

For further information send for catalogue or write

WM. ANDERSON, Registrar, Box 300, Charlotte, N. C.

A PROMINENT MINISTER PRAISES THE CLUB.

The following letter from a well-known minister is especially appreciated by the Management of the Standard Piano Club for the reason that he and his cultured wife are probably as competent critics as could be found anywhere and their opinion is therefore authoritative. He writes:—

"The piano arrived in good time and in first class condition and we find that it measures up in every particular to what you claimed for it. We are delighted with it and take pride in showing it. The first comment after a test is 'Oh, hasn't it a sweet tone!' and the next is 'What did it cost?' and then, 'Where did you get it?' The wonder is how a piano of its appearance and tone can be sold on the terms on which you offer it. The Club plan is a blessing to the poor man who must buy and would not otherwise be able."

On receipt of a letter from the Management of the Club thanking him for his endorsement, this minister replied as follows:

"You are cordially welcome to my testimonial, but if it had not been true you could not have pumped it out of me with a high power engine. All that I said is true, and more. We would not think of trading it off or back,— no, not for four hundred dollars,—except to make the same trade again."

Every reader of the Standard is invited to join the Club and save one-third the cost. For catalogue and particulars address the managers, Ludden & Bates Standard Piano Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga.

Land Sour?

Neutralize the acidity, sweeten and enrich the soil and increase your yield with

RELCO MARL

Effective, inexpensive, economical. Guaranteed 90 per cent. lime carbonate. For prices, free soil test papers and literature, write Dept. 8-A, Roanoke Lime Co., Inc., Roanoke, Va.

UNIVERSITY OF VIRGINIA

Founded by Thomas Jefferson

Offers standard University training leading to academic degrees as well as to degrees in Law, Medicine, Engineering, Education, Chemistry, etc. The R. O. T. C. will be under the supervision of an army officer detailed by the War Department,

Numerous buildings of classic architecture; beautiful grounds located in the foothills of the Blue Ridge. The athletic field consists of 21 acres, and contains a concrete stadium seating 8,000. Rooms are provided with steam heat and running water. Cost of living as moderate as at any institution of equal rank. The ninety-fifth session opens September 18, 1919.

For Catalogue and Information, address Registrar, University, Va.

PRESBYTERIAN COLLEGE
of South Carolina

One of the most modern and best equipped colleges for men under the control of the Presbyterian Church. Beautiful buildings, strong faculty, high standard of work, broad course, attractive student body, best moral influences, Reserve Officers' Training Corps and strong athletic team.

For Catalogue and information apply to
President Davison M. Douglas, Clinton, S. C.

A Southern Presbyterian University, owned and controlled by a Board of Representative Presbyterians from every Southern State.

THE SCHOOLS

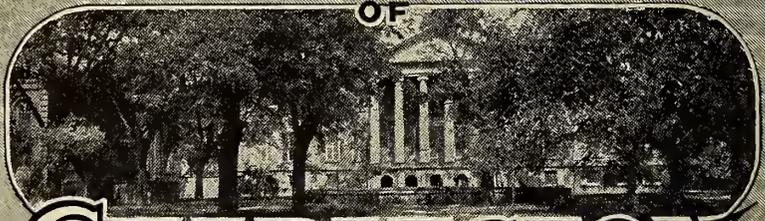

Of Liberal Arts, Science, Literature and Journalism, and Commerce are open all the year and students may enter at the beginning of any one of the four terms as follow: Sept. 24, Jan. 2, Apr. 1 and July 6.

A beautiful Book of Views, illustrating Student Life at the University, will be sent free, with catalogue, on application. Address

Oglethorpe University
Oglethorpe University, Ga.
(Suburb of Atlanta)

COLLEGE

OF

CHARLESTON

Rich in historic associations. In its one hundred and thirt fourth year of reputation as a college of highest standard. Co-educational.

The limited number of its students insures individual instruction for every student.

Excellent equipment, including spacious buildings, athletic grounds, well equipped laboratories and unexcelled library and museum facilities.

Four year courses leading to the degrees of A. B. and B. S. and Pre-Medical courses, special features.

A leader in thoroughness of training.

Unsurpassed climate and fine sea air. Expenses moderate. For catalogue and illustrated booklet, address

HARRISON RANDOLPH, President.
Charleston, S. C.

ESTABLISHED 1785.

LOOKS ARE OFTEN DECEIVING.

Some years ago a Vermont boy, a farmer's son, was sent to East Poultney, by himself, with a load of potatoes to sell. It was a great event for him—the proudest day of his life. He sold out his load, then drove out to the tavern, put up his horses, and went in to dinner on his own account and paying his own bill!

A good many people were in the dining-room, among the rest a distinguished looking gentleman, no less a personage than the sheriff of the county who had been formerly a member of Congress. Pretty soon our young fellow's eyes fell upon a "tall, pale, white-haired, gawky boy," sitting at the farther end of the table in his shirt sleeves, paying attention to nobody, and eating as if he were starved.

"This is a pretty sort of a tavern, anyhow, to let such a fellow as that sit at the same table with all these gentlemen!" thought our proud potato merchant.

Before long the conversation turned upon some political subject, some act of an early Congress, and there was a difference of opinion as to how certain members had voted upon it. All at once the sheriff turned to the white-haired boy at the end of the table and said:

"Ain't that right, Greely?"

(Continued on Page 30)

We secure positions for teachers, who are normal and college graduates, throughout the South and Southwest. Write us. THE YATES-FISHER TEACHERS' AGENCY, 326 Stahlman Building, Nashville, Tenn.

VIRGINIA, Danville

Randolph-Macon Institute FOR GIRLS Limited to 100

College preparatory and special course for those not wishing to go to college. Vocal and instrumental Music, Art, and Expression. Attractive home life. Gymnasium. Branch of the Randolph-Macon System. Rates $425. Catalogue. Address Chas. G. Evans, A. M., Principal, Box C.

MARY BALDWIN SEMINARY For Young Ladies

Established 1842. Term begins Sept. 12th. In the beautiful and historic Shenandoah Valley of Virginia. Unsurpassed climate, modern equipment. Students from 31 states. Courses: Collegiate, 3 years; Preparatory, 4 years. Music, Art and Domestic Science. Catalogue. STAUNTON, VIRGINIA

EXPERT KODAK FINISHING

Developing and printing done by artists. Most beautiful work guaranteed at all times. Satisfaction or no charge. Developing, 10c. per film. Printing: 2-1/4 x 3-1/4, 3c.; 2-1/4 x 4-1/4, 4c.; 3-1/4 x 5-1/2, 5c. Quick delivery. Send one film to test our service.

Ligon Drug Co., Spartanburg, S. C.

Sweeten Your Land

Increase your yield and save on your fertilizer bill. Use

RELCOMARL

Costs little, means much. Guaranteed 90% Lime Carbonate. For prices, free soil test papers and literature, address

Dept. 8-B, Roanoke Lime Co., Inc., Roanoke, Va.

OAK RIDGE INSTITUTE

OAK RIDGE, N. C.

Prepares for bigger accomplishments in college, business and life. A very high standard of scholarship is maintained. Thorough courses are given in literature, science, book-keeping, shorthand and music. Athletics encouraged. Buildings modern; steam heat and showers. Cost reasonable—$350 per year. Fall session opens September 9, 1919. For illustrated catalog and fuller information, write

T. E. WHITAKER, PRESIDENT.

BINGHAM Is the only Boys' School in the United States which has been administered by THREE SUCCESSIVE generations of PRESBYTERIAN ELDERS for 126 YEARS.

1793 Since 1861 the ACADEMIC work has been supplemented with the MILITARY feature. 1919 Special rates to Ministers of the Gospel as long as we have vacancies.

Address COL. R. BINGHAM, Supt., Route 4, Asheville, N. C. ARMY OFFICER DETAILED

ELIZABETH COLLEGE, SALEM, VIRGINIA

A College for Young Women, Under Positive Christian Influence

Handsome new building, with dormitories arranged in suites. Unexcelled views. A competent faculty. Courses: Literary, leading to the A. B. degree; Art, Expression, Home Economics, Piano, Voice, Stenography and Typewriting. Outdoor sports: Basket Ball, Hockey and Tennis. For catalogue, write to PAUL SEIG, Acting President.

The University of South Carolina

1801

1919

The University offers courses leading to the following degrees:

1. School of Arts and Science, A. B. and B. S.
2. School of Education, A. B.
3. Graduate School, A. M.
4. School of Engineering, C. E.
5. School of Law, LL. B.
6. Military Science and Tactics compulsory for Freshmen and Sophomores. Reserve Officers Training Corps.

For students of Education, Law, Engineering and those pursuing higher graduate work, the University offers exceptional advantages.

Next session begins September 17, 1919. For information, write-

W. S. CURRELL, President, COLUMBIA, S. C.

Union Theological Seminary

RICHMOND, VA.

W. W. Moore, D. D., LL.D.
C. C. Hersman, D. D., LL.D.
T. C. Johnson, D. D., LL.D.
T. H. Rice, D. D., LL.D.
W. L. Lingle, D. D.
E. C. Caldwell, D. D.
Edward Mack, D. D.
George Sleeth

Biblical Literature
Greek Language
Systematic Theology
English Bible and Pastoral Theology
Church History, Missions and Sunday School
New Testament Exegesis
Hebrew Language and Exegesis
Public Speaking

Session begins October 1, 1919

For catalogue, apply to

REV. W. W. MOORE, President

CHARLOTTE MARBLE & GRANITE WORKS

MEMORIALS OF QUALITY

"WE LEAD"

Quality First
Prices Right
Workmanship
Unsurpassed

Memorials in Silver Georgia Marble are unsurpassed in beauty and durability.

CHARLOTTE MARBLE & GRANITE WORKS

WEST 7TH ST. AND SOUTHERN RAILWAY Cemetery Gate Phone 281-CHARLOTTE, N. C.

HENS MOULT FAST.

E. J. Reefer, the poultry expert, has discovered a scientific product that hastens the moult and revitalizes the organs of the hen and puts her in fine laying condition. The tonic is called "More Eggs" and a package of it is enough to carry the ordinary chicken raiser over the entire moulting season. First to lay is first to pay. "Since using 'More Eggs' I get forty to fifty eggs a day, instead of eight or nine," writes A. P. Woodward, of St. Cloud, Fla. A million dollar bank guarantees that you can have your money back if you want it. So, you don't take any risk. Send $1.00 for a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic. If you want to hurry the moult and get more eggs, act at once; it means more profit for you. Don't wait, but order today. Send $1 today to E. J. Reefer, 4th Floor, Poultry Bldg., Kansas City, Missouri. Or ask Mr. Reefer for his valuable poultry book free, that tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry.

WANTED—Working Matron for mountain mission school, beginning Aug. 6th. Opportunity for real service under favorable conditions. Write Rev. E. V. Tadlock, Indian Bottom, Kentucky.

Kill All Flies! They Spread Disease

Placed anywhere, Daisy Fly Killer attracts and kills all flies. Neat, clean, ornamental, convenient, and cheap. Lasts all season. Made of metal, can't spill or tip over; will not soil or injure anything. Guaranteed effective. Ask for

Daisy Fly Killer

Sold by dealers, or 6 sent by express, prepaid, $1.00.

HAROLD SOMERS, 160 DeKalb Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

YOUR FACE?

Is the Complexion Muddy, Tanned, Freckled? If troubled with skin eruptions, sunburn, pimples, try

PALMERS SKIN-SUCCESS SOAP

It cleanses, softens and clears the skin and tends to remove sunburn, tan, freckles, blackheads, pimples and eczema. Thoroughly antiseptic. Ask your druggist, or write for free samples to

THE MORGAN DRUG CO.,
1521 Atlantic Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Make Big Money THIS SUMMER

Here is a good chance, a great opportunity. I have started hundreds of men and women in this high class, profitable business who are now making $25 to $40 a week and more. No experience of any kind is required. I want to show you a way to make big money this summer. Woods made $16 first day. Margaret Emerick made $21 two days. Harris made $9 one hour. Anyone can make money easy, quick, sure—taking orders for "Zanol" Concentrated Soft Drinks and Ciders, for making delicious summer drinks at home. Every popular drink, Orangeade, Lemonade, Cherry, Apple Cider, &c. In concentrated form—small package—makes 80 glasses. Always ready, any time, just add water. Guaranteed under U. S. Pure Food Laws. Big seller for picnics, parties, fairs, ball games, &c. Big line of 250 other fast selling popular household necessities. I furnish complete outfit and full instructions. Act quick. Write today for exclusive territory and free trial offer. I will show you how to make money.

ALBERT MILLS, Mgr. Dept 1222 Cincinnati, O

PREPARE FOR A LARGER SALARY

In times of Peace prepare for a better job at a larger salary. Modern business demands trained men and women experts. The better the training the larger your salary will be. Today our graduates are in the front ranks of modern business. Enroll with this well-equipped business college, and help to make your future success secure. Handsome catalogue mailed on request. You can enter any time. School open all summer.

Kings Business College

Raleigh, N. C. and Charlotte, N. C.

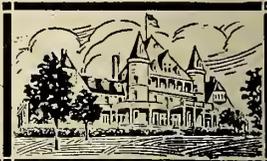

VIRGINIA CHRISTIAN COLLEGE
Lynchburg, Virginia.

This College, a leading Senior College of Virginia, affords a wholesome religious life and Christian atmosphere, including educational advantages under university trained professors. The College campus containing eighty-six and one-half acres in view of the distant mountains and landscape beauty, together with modern FIRE-PROOF buildings containing every modern convenience for the students, makes this an ideal institution to which to send your daughter or son.

The health conditions are unsurpassed. Five mineral and two fresh water springs give abundant proof that the health conditions are ideal.

A Christian education is the hope of America. The College is equipped with excellent laboratories and studios for the study of all courses, including the Bible, Art, Music, Voice, etc. The cost per annum is as low as $255. We invite your patronage and support. Write for catalogue.

J. T. T. HUNDLEY, President.

PEACE INSTITUTE

RALEIGH, NORTH CAROLINA

For Young Women. Established 1857

College Courses. Preparatory Courses for Standard College Requirements. Special Diplomas. Piano, Voice, Art, Expression and Home Economics. Commercial Course. Teacher Training Course. Specialists in all departments.

LULA B. WYNNE HALL, Home School For Girls.
MISS MARY OWEN GRAHAM, Pres.

The Measure of a College

Elegance of buildings and grounds and wealth of equipment and endowment do not make a college. The REAL MEASURE of a college is found in its ideal—in the personality of its teaching force, and in the quality of its teaching. The real work in education is accomplished by the person. The school can rise no higher than the character of those who give it life.

MITCHELL COLLEGE

maintains a faculty of men and women of strong Christian character and influence, whose qualifications for teaching have been gained by years of thorough preparation and experience. The classes at Mitchell College are small, insuring for each student the utmost benefit of individual instruction.

Well Planned Courses Offered in All College Subjects

Courses of superior excellence in English, Bible, Music, Expression, Home Economics, and Business. The Department of Music is in charge of a graduate of the Hague Conservatory.

Measure These Advantages

Invigorating climate, small classes, efficient instruction, supervised evening study for all, home life, and positive Christian influence; moderate expenses.

A Preparatory Department offering the best advantages is maintained. Catalog on request.

J. M. MOORE, President, STATESVILLE, N. C.

OLD-FASHIONED MOLASSES CANDY.

Stir to a smooth, light-colored cream three cupfuls of molasses and one of brown sugar. Beat for at least three minutes, and hard, before stirring in an even tablespoonful of cider vinegar. Bring to the boil slowly, and use the spoon freely as it begins to bubble. In fifteen minutes begin to test the mixture by dropping a little into iced water. When these bits harden after repeated trials, stir into the boiling syrup a heaping teaspoonful of butter. When this is melted, add immediately a teaspoonful of soda dissolved in a tablespoonful of boiling water, and without the delay of a minute remove the kettle from the fire and pour into buttered platters to cool. As soon as you can handle it comfortably, begin to pull into ropes. When these are light yellow and brittle, cut into lengths, or braid several strips into such size as you wish.

Caramels may be made of the cooling candy by cutting it into small cubes with a sharp, buttered knife. Or you may cut it into rounds with the top of a bottle. It is particularly nice when pulled with the finger-tips and handled as little as possible with the rest of the hand. Butter or flour very lightly the deft tips to prevent stickiness.—Marion Harland in The Christian Herald.

Montreat Camp for rent for season. Two shacks, partly furnished and tent platform. Price $25.00. D. C. Whitted, Box 941, Wilmington, N. C.

DAVIS-WAGNER NEW BUILDING, ACCOMMODATING 500 STUDENTS.
Business College
 POSITIONS FOR GRADUATES. 306 East Freemason St. NORFOLK, VA.
 CATALOGUE FREE.

NEW SONG BOOKS
 For Your Church 8c
 A wonderful value; 83 familiar songs of the Gospel, words and music. Used all over the world. Only 8c per hundred for No. 1 or 2, round or shaped notes, and $13 for No. 1 and 2, combined, round notes only. Send 30c for samples. Money back if not pleased.
 E. A. K. HACKETT, Dept. No. 56, FT. WAYNE, IND.

Nadine Face Powder

(In Green Boxes Only)

Keeps The Complexion Beautiful

Soft and velvety. Money back if not entirely pleased. Nadine is pure and harmless. Adheres until washed off. Prevents sunburn and return of discolorations. A million delighted users prove its value. Tints: Flesh, Pink, Brunette, White. By Leading Toilet Counters or Mail, Dept. R P. National Toilet Company Paris, Tenn.

DR. J. M. BELK, MONROE, N. C.

W. H. BELK, CHARLOTTE, N. C.

Belk Bros. Dept. Stores

CHARLOTTE, NORTH CAROLINA

19 STORES

Send us your orders for Bibles, Testaments, Confession of Faith, or Book of Church Order, for quick delivery. 10 percent discount for Sunday Schools, Societies, or Churches, Preachers or Teachers—and in dozens we will give you wholesale price.

WHY NOT HAVE A BIBLE OR TESTAMENT IN EVERY SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLAR'S HANDS EVERY SUNDAY? WE WILL HELP DO THIS. WRITE TO US FOR THE PLAN. NELSON'S BIBLES

1184—Sunday School Scholar's Bible. Practical Helps for Young People. How to study the Bible. How to study the lesson. Bible questions and answers all in this Bible. Good black type, red edges, leatheroid binding. Size 5½x4x1. Special.....98c

Same Bible, gilt edge, better leather binding, illustrated ..$1.25 and $1.50

12—Linen Card Back Bible. Good big print. Fine for the Sunday School classes, about 6x5x1.....75c

1148—Sunday School Bible. Linen board backs, black type, 5x4x1...59c
 7764—Teacher's Bible, $5.00.

India Linen Paper, self pronouncing Bible Dictionary, Combined Concordance, 12 Colored Maps, Morocco Binding, Silk Sewed, good print. Size 7¾x5½x1¼$5.00

6512—Teacher's Edition Bible—New and instructive maps, 14 maps, placed throughout the Bible, illustrating the Scripture, 20 beautifully colored pictures, complete Bible Dictionary, new Concordance and Helps. Leather binding, strongly made. Black face type. Size 7x5x1½$2.50
 6512—Teacher's Bible, $3.95.

Linen Paper, thumb index, illustrated colored pictures, 12 new maps, Bible Dictionary, Morocco leather binding. Black face type, convenient size, 7x5½x1¼. Special$3.95

1212—Illustrated Bible. 4,000 questions and answers, short history of each book of the Bible by A. T. Pierson, D.D. Harmony of the four Gospels. How to study the Bible. Colored maps. 7x5½x1½.....$2.00
 7764—Teacher's Bible, $5.95.

Self pronouncing Bible, new, improved maps, finely illustrated, combined Concordance, 12 colored maps, newest and most complete dictionary yet printed. Morocco binding, silk sewed, a beautiful Bible. 8x5½...$5.95
 Why not have a Confession of Faith in Every Home? We carry them in stock for your convenience—50c, 75c.

BOOK OF CHURCH ORDER.

Every officer in the Presbyterian Church ought to have this Book, and study it. We will mail you one for 25c.

NELSON'S TESTAMENTS

402—New Testament, 65c. Bound in leatheroid, large black face type. Size 6x5.

321—New Testament, 48c.

Bound same as 402. Black type. Size 5x3½.

400—New Testament, 25c.

This is a special number. Large black type, cardboard back, clear white paper—the quality equals most 50c books. Special25c

29—New Testament. Vest pocket size, leatheroid binding, fine for the children25c

403—New Testament, 98c.

This is leather bound. Large black type, gilt edge. Size 6x4½.

403P—New Testament and Psalms. Leather bound, gilt edge. Large print$1.19

SCHOFIELD BIBLES

We carry these in the newest Editions, bound in good, heavy Linen Cardboard backs, or can send you the finest Leather Bound. If you want a Bible to get "REAL HELP" right at home—the newest improved help—a Schofield Bible is the one to buy.

No 50—Linen Cardboard Backs. Good black type, with every help at home. Same helps as the highest price Bible. Size of Book 7x5-1¼.....$1.50

No. 70—Same as above, only larger size type and book, 8½x6½x1¼ $2.00

We carry Schofield Bibles in all kinds of Bindings—Morocco, Persian, Etc. Real Linen Paper, from $5.00 to $10. Let us send you one on approval.

We carry all kinds of New Testaments from 15c to $2.00.

LOOKS ARE OFTEN DECEIVING.

(Continued from Page 27)

"No," said the boy, "you are wrong."
 "There!" said one of the other men, "I told you so."
 "And you're wrong, too," continued the boy, and he proceeded to give the history of the measure in question from beginning to end.

Our dealer in potatoes was astonished out of measure, the more so because the whole company took these statements as law and gospel, settling the whole dispute at once and without a word of opposition.

The tall, awkward lad was Horace Greely, who was then at work in a printing office at East Poultney. The other boy became a prominent New York physician. The two did not see each other again for many years. Then the famous physician met the famous editor one day in the street, and told him the story, to his great amusement.—Selected.

POULTRY EXPERT GIVES AWAY CHICK FOOD.

To introduce to the poultry raisers of this section a Chick Food that is nationally known, E. J. Reefer, the Poultry Expert, 3rd Floor Poultry Bldg., Kansas City, Mo., is giving away free a one dollar package of Chick Food absolutely free to every poultry raiser who agrees to tell his neighbor about it. This medicated Baby Chick Food is sold on an absolute guarantee to raise chicks for six weeks and it is backed by the National Reserve Bank of Kansas City. Send Mr. Reefer one dollar and he will not only send you one regular dollar size package of Chick Food, but he will include in the same shipment an extra package absolutely free, which means he will send you two regular full size dollar packages of this scientific medicated Baby Chick Food for only one dollar. And he will prepay all the charges on the first order. Considering that this product is guaranteed by the National Reserve Bank and that it keeps baby chicks for six weeks, every poultry raiser should certainly try this scientific medicated Baby Chick Food without further delay. It will pay you to write Mr. Reefer today.

An exchange says:
 "The best way to become round is to eat square meals."

ROOMS at "Minnehaha Lodge" for rent at $3.00 and $4.00 per week, with or without privileges of light housekeeping. Mrs. M. E. Oliver, Montreat, N. C.

Test Your Soil

If it's sour, no plant food will help. Enrich and sweeten your soil with

RELCO MARL

Neutralizes acid, produces a big crop, lasts 5 years. Guaranteed 90% Lime Carbonate. For prices, free soil test papers and literature, address Dept. 8-C, Roanoke Lime Co., Inc., Roanoke, Va.

Aberdeen & Rockfish Railroad

Between Aberdeen and Fayetteville
Eastbound		Westbound
Daily Ex. Sunday		Daily Ex. Sunday
Mixed	Pass.	Pass.	Mixed
No. 22	No. 38	STATIONS
7 30 am	9 10 am	Lv. Aberdeen Ar.	No. 41 No. 21
8 35 am	10 00 am	Rae ford	6 41 pm 5 00 pm
lv 2 10 pm		Ar. Fayetteville Lv.	5 55 pm 1v 3 50 pm
4 00 pm	11 20 am		ar 2 50 pm
			1 00 pm

WAGRAM BRANCH

Southbound		Northbound
Daily Ex. Sun.		Daily Ex. Sun.
Mixed	Pass.	Mixed	Pass.
No. 11		STATIONS
Lv. 10 30 am		Rae ford	Ar. 12 40 pm
Ar. 11 15 am		Wagram	Lv. 12 00 noon

W. A. BLUE, General Supt., Aberdeen, N. C.

MOUNT MITCHELL, NORTH CAROLINA

• 6711 Feet High •

The Highest Mountain in Eastern America (20 Miles East of Asheville)

Many Attractive Resorts in the Mountains of Western North Carolina

Average Elevation 2500 Ft. Above Sea Level, Insures Healthful and Delightful Summer Climate

- ASHEVILLE • HENDERSONVILLE • HIGHLAND LAKE • BREVARD • BLACK MOUNTAIN • WAYNESVILLE • LAKE JUNALUSKA • TRYON • SALUDA • FLAT ROCK, KANUGA LAKE • BLOWING ROCK • LINVILLE • TATE SPRING, TENN. • SIGNAL MOUNTAIN, TENN.

One Hundred Thousand or More Visitors go to these

WESTERN NORTH CAROLINA RESORTS

Every Summer Because of the Delightful Summer Climate

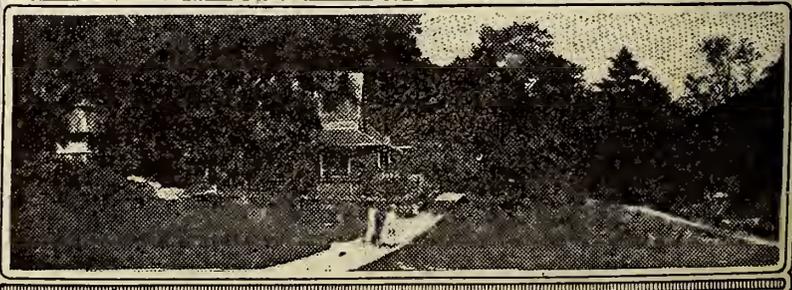

Good Hotels and Boarding Houses

- EXCURSION FARES •
- CONVENIENT SCHEDULES •
- • • AND SERVICE • • •

VACATION LAND

United States Railroad Administration, Director General of Railroads.

SOUTHERN RAILROAD LINES

It Will Pay

you to consult the house of Allan if interested in Diamonds, Watches, Jewelry or Silverware.

The most skilful artists and artisans produce their goods. The quality and price are guaranteed by this firm, whose sixty years of service prove that the past and present generations are well pleased.

A catalogue on request.

JAMES ALLAN & CO.,
 Department A.,
 283 King Street,
 CHARLESTON, S. C.

THE HALLMARK STORE

DAVIDSON COLLEGE

"The greatest single institution, in point of service, controlled by the Southern Presbyterian Church."

THORNTON WHALING, President
Columbia Theological Seminary.

COURSES OF STUDY: Literary, Scientific, Classical, preparing for ministry, medicine, law, engineering, business, teaching. Faculty experienced and University trained.

COLLEGE SPIRIT: The boys work in season and out for a "Bigger and Better Davidson." The typical Davidson student, or alumnus, is loyal, enthusiastic, and successful in whatever he undertakes.

Y. M. C. A. SECRETARY will be continued next year. Rev. R. W. Miles, General Secretary, will be a big factor in the boys' college life.

LITERARY SOCIETIES at Davidson have a rightful place on the campus. Davidson has contested 20 intercollegiate debates and has won 14, or 70 per cent. The student gets a fine parliamentary training.

IN ATHLETICS Davidson has football, baseball, tennis, track, golf, outdoor gymnasium, large new gymnasium, R. O. T. C.

MUSICAL TALENT has expression and development through the Glee Club and Orchestra, an enthusiastic organization that furnishes music for public functions at the college, and gives concerts each year in other towns and colleges.

Students find the climate bracing and beneficial, and the social atmosphere friendly and congenial.

EXPENSES Exceptionally Reasonable.

OLD STUDENTS have registered for next year from the following states: North Carolina, South Carolina, Florida, Mississippi, Maryland, Alabama, Tennessee, Texas, Arkansas, Virginia, Georgia, W. Va., D. C., La., China and Japan.

NEW STUDENTS from the following states: N. C., S. C., Ga., Fla., Tex., Va., W. Va., Tenn., Miss., Ala., Mo., D. C.

REGISTER EARLY---MAKE SURE OF ROOM

PICTURE FOLDERS and other literature will be sent immediately upon receipt of your request.

DAVIDSON COLLEGE

Davidson : North Carolina

Sparkles

The Ticket Chopper.

She was a ticket chopper, and every day
 She passed her working hours
 In the bowels of the earth,
 Counting blue paper slips that fluttered
 Into a glass box.
 She had relieved a man for war
 And now—
 Whether he came back or not,
 She meant to stick.
 And Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Brown
 Rustling by,
 Looked back whispering
 "Sixty a month I'd give her
 And her keep,
 If she would come and cook,
 Or sweep,
 Or wait upon the door."
 But the ticket puncher hearing,
 Grinned derisively,
 For she did not mean to cook,
 Or wash or sweep
 For anyone again
 Ever.

There was a guard,
 Big and blond, who clanged
 The doors of the express,
 And one day smiled,
 The next day winked,
 And after that they walked out in the Park.
 Now the erstwhile chopper cooks,
 Washes and scrubs,
 Yet draws no pay at all,
 For the ways of nature are immutable.
 And the man who went to war
 Has got his job.

—Josephine Hemsley, in Life.

Quit Scores.

Church Usher (confidentially): That woman I just seated is Mrs. Stuckup.
 She had me sent around to the back door when I called one day on a business errand and made me transact the business through a servant, too. But I've got even with her.

Friend: You have given her one of the best pews in the church.

Usher: Wait an hour. She's right where a stained glass window will throw a red light on her nose.—London Ideas.

Who's Got It?

"What is worrying you now?"

"Oh, nothing much," replied the man who is perpetually pensive. "I am merely trying to figure out what has become of all the daylight I saved since we set the clocks forward."—Washington Star.

"Pa, what is a Socialist?"

"A Socialist, my boy, is a man who thinks he ought to have as much as you have."

"But supposing he is earning more than you are, dad?"

"Then, my boy, he ceases to be a Socialist."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

THE WESTMINSTER SCHOOL

A PREPARATORY SCHOOL FOR BOYS

Operated by Kings Mountain Presbytery
 $300.00 Per Year

Write for Catalogue to

Rev. T. E. P. Woods, Box 6, Rutherfordton, N. C.

4 Per Cent

Time Certificates of Deposit

They are Interest Bearing. They are Payable on Demand. They Afford a Good Income for Funds Awaiting Permanent Investment

GET ONE

AMERICAN TRUST COMPANY

Charlotte

::

North Carolina

YES, Preachers and Teachers Are Human

They should have no discount and no cheaper railroad fares than you and I. They should be paid for services rendered—amply paid. If he can't earn enough for family use and the nest egg for the future, he made a sad mistake as to family, else he should change his calling instanter.

The Mutual Building & Loan

Will save a man and his family if they're worth saving, but they must help. It furnishes the "sure cure," but boasts no regrets at the demise of a feller who deliberately refuses to take the medicine.

E. L. KEESLER, Sec. & Treas., 25 S. Tryon St., CHARLOTTE, N. C.

Charlotte National Bank Resources
$4,000,000.00

CHARLOTTE, N. C.

PAYS FOUR PER CENT.

On Either Time Certificates of Deposit or
 Savings Accounts

MAIL ORDER Business Solicited and PROMPT ATTENTION Given

JOHN M. SCOTT	President
W. J. CHAMBERS	Vice-President
J. F. ROBERTSON	Vice-President
W. H. TWITTY	Cashier
C. W. BUTT	Assistant Cashier

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

REV. J. R. BRIDGES, D. D.

EDITORS

REV. R. C. REED, D. D.

VOL. LX.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., July 16, 1919.

No. 28.

Tonight.

For all who watch tonight—by land or sea or air—
O Father, may they know that Thou art with them even there.

For all who weep tonight, the hearts that cannot rest,
Reveal Thy love, that wondrous love which gave for us
Thy best.

For all who wake tonight, love's tender watch to keep,
Watcher Divine, Thyself draw nigh, Thou who dost never sleep.

For all who fear tonight, whate'er the dread may be,
We ask for them the perfect peace of hearts that rest in Thee.

Our own belov'd tonight, O Father, keep, and where Our love and succor cannot reach, now bless them through our prayer.

And all who pray tonight, Thy wrestling hosts, O Lord,
Make weakness strong, let them prevail according to Thy Word.
—Canadian Churchman.

Editorial

The Deacon.

“RESIST the devil and he will flee from you. Resist the deacon and he will fly at you.” This witty reflection on the deacon is ascribed to Mr. Spurgeon. It does little credit to the genius of that great man. While evidently meant as a reflection, it turns out on inspection to be anything else. It credits the deacon as acting in a way exactly the opposite of the devil. And since when has this been considered as reflecting on a man? If the devil goes one way, and the deacon the other the presumption of right is in favor of the deacon.

The office of deacon is a great office and the man who worthily fills it is entitled to high honor. “He purchases to himself a good degree and much boldness in the faith which is in Christ Jesus.” The nature and scope of the office are such as to enable the worthy occupant to render most valuable service to the cause of Christ. It is a serious mistake to think of the office as quasi secular, and demanding, therefore, for the proper discharge of its functions men of merely good natural gifts. It is in the highest degree spiritual, for while it has to do mainly with what are called the temporalities of the Church, it is to deal with these for the promotion of spiritual ends. Hence the Apostles in designating the character of men for the office stressed in the strongest manner the spiritual. The result was the selection of such devout souls as Stephen, the first Christian martyr, and Philip, the Evangelist. The Church of later days has suffered from not following Apostolic example.

We note with interest a movement to magnify the office, and to enlarge its practical scope. The Presbytery of Central Texas overtured the last Assembly on the subject, and the response of the Assembly was to appoint an ad interim committee to consider whether the deacons might not be so related to the superior courts of the Church as to relieve these courts of the task of looking after finances, so that they might make their meetings more inspirational and devotional. This would seem to be well worth considering. Why confine the duties of the deacon any more than the duties of the elders to the local church? After they have been intrusted with the finances of the local church, why should these be taken out of their hands, to be managed henceforth in Presbytery, Synod and General Assembly by preachers and elders? Why should not a deacon be the treasurer of Presbytery or Synod? Why should he not have some advisory relation to the committee of systematic beneficence? Why should not the deaconate have large representation on all of our executive committees?

By restricting the deacon's duties to the local church, his vision is confined to a narrow sphere, and his interest is not likely to extend beyond his vision. It often happens that the Board of Deacons feels a languid interest in, if it does not flatly oppose, the larger schemes of beneficence proposed by pastor and elders. We have known of cases of deadlock because the deacons positively refused to co-operate with the session. May not the lack of enlarged interest on the part of deacons be due to the fact that they have never been brought into official contact with the larger affairs of the Church? Could they attend the higher courts of the Church and hear the discussions, and have some humble part in devising and administering the larger affairs of the Church, would not this broaden their vision, and likewise their interest?

The Church is one. The local congregation is a part of the whole Church. The work of the deacon in the local congregation is vitally related to the work of the entire Church. But being restricted to the little sphere the deacon does not see this vital relation, nor concern himself about the work of the whole. He has to do with only one little cog in the machinery, and consequently can hardly be expected to feel a lively interest in the operations of the machinery as a whole.

Whether it is practicable to devise a plan by which the deacons can be brought into a workable relation to the higher courts of the Church remains to be seen. Doubtless the Assembly's ad interim committee would welcome suggestions. The authors of the overture from Central Texas Presbytery might give the committee and the church at large the benefit of what they had in mind.

Fluency as an Asset.

There is nothing a young preacher desires more than fluency of speech. Indeed the preacher of the family is often chosen because he is fluent, and many a young man has failed to obey the call to preach because he was conscious that he lacked fluency, and therefore was unfit for public speaking. Of course a fluent speaker is more agreeable to the ear than one of slow speech, and fluency as a side line is an excellent addition to a preacher's make-up.

The fluent man, however, has his handicaps. Moses and Aaron were two brothers who differed in that respect. One was fluent and the other was slow of speech, yet one moved men, while the other played second fiddle. One did the talking, but the other did the acting. The temptation besetting the fluent man is to depend upon his ability to talk, which builds up a temporary popularity, but being devoid of thought, he soon moves on. We recall a man in our earlier ministry of fine presence—straight, six feet and over, handsome face, and a glib tongue. It was, however, “a voice and nothing else.” He would flourish for a time and then move on to new fields and new hearers. He was a ministerial Bedouin, leading the life of a nomad.

The natural mind craves succinct statement of truth, because it not only is more easily grasped, but it leaves the hearer an opportunity to supply what is lacking, which is an implied compliment to his intelligence. The jury style is suitable to the pulpit only to a limited extent. The truth should be stated clearly in language that the common mind can grasp, but the hearer should not be wearied by repeated repetitions, by going over the same ground with different words. We once knew a young preacher who could give the same notice in several different ways, while another would spend fifteen minutes in making his point, and the next fifteen minutes in serving up the same ideas clothed in different words, which was not only a weariness to the flesh, but an insult to one's intelligence.

Lord Brougham once apologized for writing a long letter on the ground that he was too busy to write a short one. There is a most useful lesson for the young preacher in that remark. Take your time to work out your thoughts and then present them in as few words as you can use, in order to make the thoughts clear. Cut out all unnecessary adjectives and declare war against the synonyms, and your people will arise and bless you. What has been said of the sermon can with double force be said of the contributions to the Church paper. Men refuse to wade through a pile of words to find an idea. Let the idea be conspicuous, and use the words only as vehicle for presenting the idea. When Tallyrand said that words were of use only to conceal thought, he did not intend for us to use them for that purpose.

The Anti-Sabbath Drift.

Those who make a study of the religious life of our days are bound to be impressed by the growing disregard of the Sabbath by the people at large. We are fast drifting toward the Continental Sabbath, though history has given us many proofs of its dangers. There are people of high station in life who rarely, if ever, are seen in a Church, but who spend the Sabbath day in a round of visiting or entertaining. The game of golf has somehow acquired an odor of sanctity, and church officers feel that it is a game of such respectability that it can be played on the Sabbath without infringing on the Sabbath laws. This were bad enough, and for some time past we have viewed the encroachment of this class of men, and trembled at the consequences.

When, however, we find that the ministers of our churches and church papers of great respectability are trying to minimize these offenses, we may well ask what the end will be.

A Church paper representing the great Congregational Church of New England, in an editorial pleading for a liberalizing of our Sabbath laws, has this to say: "We very much doubt if the Church ought to take the position that all games on Sunday afternoon, especially in crowded industrial communities, ought to be tabooed." In Worcester, Mass., the question of a more liberal construction of the Sabbath laws aroused such public interest that after a public meeting on the subject the churches through their ministers were heard, and the sentiment of the hearing was in favor of more liberal Lord's Day laws. Many of the ministers pleaded for more liberal laws permitting amateur sports, under proper regulation.

As New England has always been more progressive along theological and ultra moral lines than the South, we were not much surprised, but when such a paper as the "Continent," of Chicago, that enters the homes of many of our ministers and elders has, in its editorial, entitled "The Sabbath for Man," we are alarmed. He begins by saying that the Church today is uncomfortably uncertain with regard to Sabbath observance. He describes the Puritan Sabbath as coming from the priestly idea, not from the prophetic. It was a day when there were to be "no smiles, no cheer, no gayety or mirth, only a solemn waiting before God until the time He claims is past."

Opposed to this he gives what he thinks was Christ's idea, as expressed in the words that the Sabbath was made for man. There is much in this editorial that is fine. Yet there is an under current that seems to imply that the writer is drifting away from the idea of the Sabbath that has made the men of the past men of moral might and backbone, and that has given to the Presbyterian Church the unconscious homage of ecclesiastics and statesmen.

If we were asked to point out the exact statement that was wrong we could not do so, yet we do not like the article. It leaves one under the impression that the writer is on the fence, ready soon to get over among the liberals. We of the Southern Church, as we intimated some weeks ago, cannot cast stones at our sister churches—because we too have some who are drifting. One indeed has been swept from the old moorings and is far from the rest of his brethren.

It is easy enough to point out the danger, but not so easy to show the remedy. Church courts may warn and pastors may plead, but still the people will sin. Let each Christian resolve to go back to the old idea of the Sabbath. It may be a relic of the priesthood, yet it has hitherto borne good fruit. No man becomes weaker in morals or less respected because he is strict in his observance of the Sabbath, but on the contrary the strictest observer of the Sabbath that we ever knew made an indelible impression upon the wickedest and most worldly of men.

Read the promises to those who keep the Sabbath, and then ask yourselves if golf playing, baseball, joy riding or Sunday entertaining would satisfy the Lord, if you claimed those promises.

Heavier Penalties Needed.

There are more puzzling questions in all that concerns the liquor problem than man has dreamed of in all his philosophy. It has always been so—and now that prohibition is national, these questions increase. In the old days the law licensed a man to sell liquor, and then punished the man who drank liquor and committed a crime. It gave the sanction of the law to liquor selling, and then taxed the people for means with which to build jails and penitentiaries in which to confine those who committed crime under the influence of licensed liquor, and it also levied a tax to build poor houses and insane asylums, the great need of which depended upon the licensed liquor traffic.

Now that prohibition is here and it has become a crime to sell liquor, the law imposes a slight fine upon the seller who by the sale of liquor realizes tenfold more than he is fined. Whether under the license system or prohibition, the State is still doing business at the old stand, and is making money through the sale of liquor.

Recently in this city a negro, crazed by drink, shot his wife through the head, killing her instantly, and then wept over his act. He will probably be electrocuted, while the man who sold the whiskey, if caught, will be fined, if a white man of any prominence, or sent to the chain gang if poor or black. What we need in this State is an aroused public sentiment that will place in authority men who act not from silly and soft sentiment, but from a strict moral impulse—men who will make law a terror to evil doers, as the great Apostle said it should be. The Mexican State of Sonora evidently has no sentiment in its laws. It has lately made an anti-liquor law that makes death the penalty for selling liquor. If rigidly enforced, it ought to be effective, and should result not only in stopping an evil, but also in effectually disposing of a very undesirable element of society.

Since writing the above we read in the proceedings of the Superior Court, now in session, that Judge Shaw, that upright judge, is giving heavier penalties for violations of the liquor law. To him be the thanks of the people.

The Educational Campaign.

North Carolina Synod has under way one of the most ambitious campaigns for education ever inaugurated within our bounds. The day for big things has come, and the world looks for big things, and during the past four years the world has done big things. The Church does not propose to be distanced in the race, so in every Church of all denominations they are asking for great sums, and the people are giving freely.

The Episcopalians first set the pace. Then the Baptists in the South caught the fever, the Methodists are not far behind. From time immemorial the Presbyterian Church has been the leader in education. If we get what we ask, we shall not lose our rank.

Dr. Melvin has a band of skilled and consecrated workers, who have never yet been defeated in any canvass. That Dr. Melvin is not only a veteran in such campaigns, but is a skillful leader, can be shown by his advertisement in our last issue. We do not know when we have read an advertisement more admirably worded. It appeals to the conscience, and no reader can lightly pass it by. It will stick in the memory and appeal to the conscience. If you failed to see it, look up our issue of July 9 and read it.

Contributed

John Bunyan Shearer, D. D.

An Appreciation.

By Dr. C. R. Harding.

AFTER weeks not to say months of long and lingering illness in which the strong and vigorous constitution that was his by inheritance gradually gave way, age enfeebling his body and disease sapping his vitality slowly but steadily, the venerable and greatly beloved Dr. J. B. Shearer was called from earth to heaven and entered into the eternal rest at 8 o'clock Saturday, June 14. He lacked only a month and five days of being 87 years old. The funeral services were conducted Monday afternoon in the Davidson College church by Rev. Dr. C. M. Richards, assisted by Rev. Dr. Wilson McKay, of Sumter, who paid a beautiful tribute to the deceased. Remarks were also made by President Martin and Dr. C. R. Harding.

Though for the past several years Dr. Shearer had been practically an invalid, though only during the past session had he failed to conduct a lecture course in the college, yet his removal from this college community and from the circle of his colleagues in the faculty and from his place as counselor and friend of students and teachers, of the young and the old of this vicinity, marks a distinct loss in the life of Davidson and removes a figure that in college and in town, in church and in civil life was a conspicuous and commanding one for thirty-one years. His work, however, had already been done and his life of pronounced usefulness and service long since rounded out, so that in these later months there was remaining only the benediction of his presence and the blessing that the godly, pious life of a great and noble man of God drawing to a peaceful and serene end brings to those that come within its hallowed influence.

In many particulars John Bunyan Shearer was a great man. His physical greatness, his tall commanding figure, such it must have been before disease laid its hand upon him and made a stoop in his broad shoulders, was but indicative of the commanding intellect, the virile, active brain and noble heart that characterized the man.

His reputation as a preacher, as an educator, as an administrative officer, as a leader in the thought and enterprises of the church, as practically the founder of the chair of the English Bible in the Christian schools and colleges of the Southern Assembly, not to say of the Union—a man who has left his impress upon the church, notably in all its educational departments and fields of activity, does not depend upon any posthumous eulogy. Truly it may be said of him—if any seek his monument, let him look around. He has written his own eulogy, he has erected his own monument, he has placed on record his own achievements not in one place only but in many, not in one way simply but in divers. He has done this in the buildings he erected with his own money on the Davidson campus, on the Mitchell College campus and on the campus of the Southwestern Presbyterian University, not to speak of the hundreds and thousands of dollars that he has contributed during his long life to help others build churches, and schools, and hospitals.

He has done this again in his published works, books written in defence of the Christian religion, in support of "sound doctrine," in behalf of Church and Christian Education, in the exposition and scholarly unfolding of some of the great truths and teachings of the Holy Scriptures, in college text books designed for systematic study of the English Bible.

He has done this still again in the impress that he has left upon hundreds of students that have sat under his instruction in the class room and listened to his lectures, many of these same students the beneficiaries of his liberal and generous gifts of money to them individually and many others of his fatherly counsel, of his gentle and kindly, but serious admonitions and of his shielding, gracious protection that often held off the severe discipline, the condign punishment that but for his pleas for mercy would have fallen upon them.

Further still his monument stands in the addresses spoken and written in which he argued eloquently for Church and Christian Education, urged the duty of the Church to rally to the support of her institutions of learning, that they might at once be worthy of patronage and by virtue of their excellence stand in fair and generous rivalry with state-supported institutions and at the same time by virtue of the fact that they were distinctly and pre-eminently Christian in tone and teaching, in atmosphere and character, notably in their emphasis on the Bible as a co-ordinate branch of study with the most severe courses of the curriculum, might make an appeal for and to the youth of the church, an appeal that a non-Christian institution with no responsibility or claim to teach the truth of the Christian religion could not possibly make. In this latter field of activity and endeavor it is quite likely that Dr. Shearer did his best and most lasting work. Constantly and with power and eloquence through many years he preached and proclaimed Christian Education with the "Bible on the Pedestal," the paramount need of this age and of every age for the conversion of a sin-darkened world, for the uplift and ennoblement of mankind.

Trained to habits of economy, thrift and simple living these habits remained with him to the end, and a simple, plain life characterized all his days. Somewhat paradoxical as it may seem, he had a genius for making money, in a trade no one could surpass him in honest cleverness, and yet with the grace of God in his heart and a kindly love for and sympathy with all the needy and deserving causes, he had a like genius for giving his money out with a free hand where he believed it would do good.

Useful, noble in the service of his fellows as was the life he lived as preacher, educator, presbyter, one who knew him well and his talent for making money and his grace of liberality wonders whether, had his activity been turned into another channel and he had become a financier and capitalist, devoting his time to money making, this generous giver to the Lord's work would not have accomplished even more good in the world by having set the example of how to acquire and then how to give in spendthrift fashion to all the deserving causes which God has made dependent for their support upon the liberality of His people.

Dr. Shearer was a man of wonderfully simple faith and unquestioning belief in the truth of the Bible. Infidel and rationalistic arguments and attacks upon the inspiration of the Scriptures, though he was familiar enough with them, seemed to make no impression at all upon him; never a jolt or a jar did his child-like faith sustain. So little importance did he attach to the writings and sayings of all those who were wise above that which is written that he was unable patiently to sit down and answer their objections and arguments. He simply brushed them away as one would cobwebs, apparently blind to any force that others equally strong in their belief in inspiration might see in these attacks. Dr. Shearer would not deign to argue other than by ridicule. He would laugh his opponent out of court. The living who must walk by faith alone and who can see only with the eye of faith might well pray for the peace and happiness and joy that such a sublime confidence in God's revealed truth brought into his life.

Dr. Shearer has for so many long years been an outstanding figure in the Southern Assembly and has been so prominently connected with the Church's work, notably in its educational departments that the main facts of his life are on record in many publications. They have appeared in print so often as to call for only the briefest mention here.

(Continued on page 8)

A Record of Fidelity and Efficiency.

Forty-seven years ago a young lady came from Fayetteville to Wilmington, N. C., on a visit, expecting to stay a few weeks, but she liked Wilmington and we liked her, and Miss Nellie Cook's "visit" has lasted nearly half a century. Miss Cook took a class in the First Presbyterian Church Sunday School and became very efficient, so much so that she attracted the attention of Mrs. Joseph R. Wilson (whose husband was then pastor of the church and whose eldest son, Woodrow, is now President of the United States). Mrs. Wilson organized the primary department of our Sunday School (up to that time taught as a class in the school) and called to her assistance Miss Bettie Price, Miss Julia Stevenson (who afterwards married Mr. R. N. Sweet and subsequently died) and Miss Nellie Cook. When Dr. Wilson and his family left Wilmington, Miss Cook was placed in charge as superintendent of the primary department and has held that position ever since. Her skill, her fidelity and regularity and her spirituality have been remarkably noteworthy. In this capacity she has taught little children, they have grown up, and married and have carried their little ones to "Miss Nellie" to be taught. So, for 47 years she has taught and led and influenced in our Sunday School, always present, always prompt, always prepared. Isn't that a wonderful record? Now Miss Cook has resigned. Recently we had a "Good-bye service" in the Sunday School. The teachers and the elders of the church stood around Miss Cook in front while Mr. C. W. Worth read a letter of appreciation from the session and Dr. Wells presented her with a little case containing $100 in gold from the session as a small token of their appreciation of the great work she has done for our church. Miss Cook made a feeling reply and the school sang "Blest be the tie that binds our hearts in Christian love."

Incidentally I would mention that for many, many years Miss Cook has been and is principal of one of our largest city schools—the Union—and in these years has taught generation after generation of the public school children to learn and recite more Scripture than any Sunday School in North Carolina. Her influence will long be felt in Church and State. God bless Miss Nellie Cook and her successor, Mrs. John Hall!

The Superintendent.

An Appeal That Should Be Heard.

A Bible Encyclopedia, which is at once scholarly, up-to-date and conservative, would be an untold blessing to the Christian Church in China at the present time. It would open up the Scriptures and greatly help ministers to preach the Gospel to the millions of China who are now receptive as they never were before. It is doubly needed because books are now being widely circulated in China which present the views of German destructive criticism and undermine men's faith in the Holy Scriptures.

In order to maintain evangelical truth and repel the insidious attacks made on the Bible, we propose to publish a Bible Encyclopedia in the Chinese language based on the International Standard Bible Encyclopedia, edited by Dr. James Orr, which is a very recent, scholarly and conservative work. It will consist of two volumes of about 1,000 pages each, printed in substantial form, good paper, clear type, cloth binding, and the aim is to make the price so low that it will be in reach of every poor minister and Bible class teacher in the land. A staff of leading men of different denominations, well qualified by scholarship and experience, are now engaged in translating and preparing articles.

The influence of such an Encyclopedia will be most helpful and far-reaching. It will strengthen men's faith in the Bible, as the "Word of God that liveth and abideth forever." It will be interdenominational, and will aid Christian workers of all churches and of all societies. And its influence will be lasting, for it will continue to help pastors and people, and through them the 400 millions of China long after the generous donor, or donors, who have made its publication possible, have gone to their reward.

The first edition of 5,000 copies, it is estimated will cost at least $4.00 a set of two volumes, or $20,000.00 for the whole edition. In order not to interfere with the usual contributions to Foreign Missions, no collections or donations are solicited from churches or societies. What we wish is to bring this great need of the Chinese Church to the attention of individual Christians of means, who would count it a privilege to help an undertaking which will mean so much for the advancement of God's Kingdom in China. This is a rare opportunity to render a lasting service to a noble cause. Will you not help to render it?

"Let me do all the good that I can now,
For I shall not pass again this way."

Henry M. Woods, Hwaiianfu, China.

Present address: Arrowhead, Charlottesville, Va.

Union Theological Seminary,

Richmond, Va., Feb. 5, 1919.

The members of the faculty of Union Theological Seminary in Virginia wish to express to the public the deep interest they feel in the projected Biblical Encyclopedia for use in Christian work in China. Sane and scholarly works of reference are needed in every land for the use of Christian ministers, teachers and people, but there is a special need of such a work in China at this time, in order to inform the growing body of Christians in that country, and in order to counteract the rationalistic views which are being urged upon the people of the far East. We earnestly trust that some of our people of means in this favored land, where all manner of learned helps in the study of the Scriptures are in easy reach of everybody, will provide the means necessary to bring out a work which is so urgently needed at this time in China.

(Signed) W. W. Moore, C. C. Hersman, T. C. Johnson,
T. H. Rice, W. L. Lingle, Edward Mack, M. R. Turnbull.

Our Boys at Satan's Second Line Trench in China.

By Rev. E. W. McCorkle, D.D.

The first line trench of paganism in China has been pierced by Evangelism; but the second line must be broken. Satan sees the danger and he is facing our missionaries there with western weapons. He is teaching the Chinese to quote glibly from the destructive critics as they are fed upon the vagaries of Strauss and the German Rationalists, made in Germany and imported through institutions in America where Satan's seat is. The blatant infidelity of Ingersoll is there also, as well as atheism, sugar-coated, as here with science and philosophy, Spencer, Darwin and Mill are diffusing their new gospel.

Education is being linked with infidelity. The higher schools and universities are tainted with skepticism masquerading under the name of culture, falsely so called. These things are made plain upon the tablets. Only our faithful men and women, they know how the emissaries of the devil are busy sowing the tares in the mission field and actually furnishing the pagan with a coat of mail with which to ward off the arrows of the Truth.

Our press, suffering from financial drought, sends its little rill of pure water into desert places. Satan's presses, with royal riches at their disposal, flood the land with the poisoned streams of western skepticism. There is the house of heathenism, out of which the unclean spirit has gone, but we leave it empty, and seven other spirits more wicked than the first enter in and dwell there, and the last state is worse than the first.

Oh, for a man or men who would give $20,000 to put a Bible Encyclopedia like Dr. Orr's into the tongue and hand of China! This would save the situation and put the two-edged sword into the hand of every native Christian and worker. If you wish to assist in the demolition of the second line trench and hearten our missionaries in China, ask Dr. Henry M. Woods, Arrowhead, Charlottesville, Va.

The Woman of the New Day

By Mrs. Josephus Daniels.

Summary of address given at the recent commencement of Peace Institute, Raleigh, N. C.:

"IT is back to our husbands and our homes for us," said Major Helen Bastedo a few days ago when the trimly uniformed and efficient Woman's Motor Corps of America was mustered out after having rendered conspicuous service to the Army and the Navy.

And this surely expresses the sentiment of organized bodies of American womanhood who have given up war work after having discovered themselves and their powers during the last two strenuous years.

Woman has proved herself very active and efficient during the emergency of war but now the duty of women will be to follow in the footsteps of their mothers and to keep alive the memories of these days and the deeds of valorous men and women; to rebuild those shattered in mind and body; and to make homes the places of happiness and brightness the boys dreamed of in France.

Old Fashioned Home.

The world may prosper and become rich by woman in trade, woman in science, woman in labor. But it would not be the world of cheer and gladness without the indefinable influence of the old-fashioned home.

The joy with which women have put aside uniforms and have thrilled with the return to home duties has answered those who shook their heads with grave fears when they saw women doing new and untried things. Women will always have as chief concern the sheltered life into which love brings a greater happiness than any career can promise, and really there is no real conflict between home and the larger interests which profoundly affect the home and family life.

Civic Housekeeping.

Indeed the woman who is the best lover of home must concern herself with civic housekeeping, with the purity of water, the efficiency of schools and the problems of health and sanitation and wholesome conditions which are as vital to her as to any man.

War will not change the fundamental woman. She will be just like her mother, ready to give her heart and her life with it and find in love the most light for her and her generation. But she will understand more and more that neither ignorance of great questions nor indifference to world problems will make her a better home maker.

Woman's Discovery of Herself.

On the contrary one of the best by-products of the war has discovered woman to herself. She sees that if she is to make her home the abode of happiness and health, to keep the love of her husband and those she holds most dear, she must live in the large world of thought and action, taking her place as a partner and comrade with those men and women who labor that the world may be a better place to live in, but there is so much to be done that we must all, men and women, enlist in the new war against dirt and appetite and disease and bad sanitation and ignorance of health laws which both increase the death rate and decrease the earning power of those of both sexes.

Part Women Can Play.

What part can women take in the national, state and municipal housekeeping? Government was once limited to punishing crimes and its symbol was courts, the police, the jails. In our new day its functions have vastly enlarged and government touches every being from the cradle to the grave. The new-born child must be registered and docketed in the archives. Protection against infectious disease, once disregarded, is justly regarded as the inherent right of every child. A time to play and live in God's out-of-doors is essential to development, and therefore child labor laws forbid the employment of young children.

Government Not Absolute.

At last we have learned the government in our country is not something absolute imposed upon us, but that government is merely home-keeping on a large scale. It is good or it is otherwise in proportion as the average intelligence in the community. Here in Raleigh and other North Carolina towns and cities we have seen women with knowledge lead in civic betterment. Women on school boards is a natural outcome of the new duty to the child and to the race, and the surprise is that it was not welcomed long ago. Women on library and other like boards is now almost a matter of necessity, and will soon be universal.

By Aid of the Ballot.

This development of government to keep the weak and preserve the health and train the youth has been mightily promoted by the activities of women, who have only recently learned the power of organization. They have done much without the ballot and will do more with or without it, but even as I am speaking the constitutional amendment which will result in the full emancipation of women in passing the Senate. Those who look to it as the universal panacea are doomed to disappointment, for I fear we women will not be wise enough to be free from the mistakes of male voters, and we will doubtless make some mistakes on our own hook. But the result of woman suffrage where it has been tried has demonstrated that, while women usually share their father's political faith, in great questions touching purity and cleanness of life and protection to youth of both sexes they are vigilant and co-operate with the best men in the conservation of the best manhood and womanhood. Those who believe the ballot will take women out of the home, unsex them, and make them all politicians and deprive them of the indispensable attributes of the home-makers are also doomed to disappointment.

No Menace Either.

Just as the ballot will prove no perfect panacea, so it will prove no menace to the sweetness and power of the home. The great new thing that the war has done for woman has been to enable her to get rid of her hobbles—hobbles of body and soul and mind and expression and action. New reforms will prevent a return to old hobbles that compelled women to sweep the streets with her long skirts and endanger her health while taking the place of paid white wings.

We shall not be hobbled in body by being slaves to fashions which are injurious to development and freedom of action, but here we know we will have to wage our greatest battle against age-long traditions and submission to the decrees which fashion imposes. But, while not deigning to lay aside our love of the beautiful, why should not women design their costumes for comfort and health without the sacrifice of grace and good taste and sensible styles? Women are breaking the hobbles of the mind. They no longer keep their minds in the grooves cut for them a century ago. They choose to question old formulas and to follow where truth leads. By nature, conservative, religion and all fundamental truths have nothing to fear from woman's new attitude. On the contrary, the light which woman's unerring intuition and faith will throw upon the grave problems that follow the war, will insure their solution upon the basis that will guarantee protection to the home, through church, through agencies that work for the betterment of the world—they will feel, as well as see, that permanent settlement requires kindness to the weak, help to the poor, care to the sick, and pity to the distressed, along with full opportunity to the able, justice to the strong, and widening doors open to all who have the vision of a New World and a New Heaven.

It has recently been my good fortune to go abroad. In sailing from New York we were on the largest passenger ship afloat, the old Vaterland, of the Germans, re-named the Leviathan. As the whistles blew and the great ship was to leave her pier and go into the channel that was to

(Continued on page 8)

The Great Need of the Church.

On account of the war a great number of our students for the ministry dropped out from the educational institutions. More than 188 were in the Army and Navy and ten gave their lives for the country.

There is a great need for a large increase in the number of candidates for the ministry at this time. The reports from the Presbyteries to the General Assembly showing a decrease of sixty-one from the number reported last year, leaving only 371 candidates on the rolls of the Presbyteries.

It is certainly a time when the Church should with great purpose of heart obey the command of the Lord and Master. "Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest that He will send forth laborers into His harvest."

The Executive Committee has put in most attractive form some of the beautiful stories by "Mildred Welch." The leaflets of this "Student Series" are enclosed in a beautifully decorated envelope which may be addressed and sent through the mail. They will be forwarded, free of cost, to any of the boys and girls of our Church whose names and addresses are forwarded. They will also be sent free of cost to parents or Sunday school teachers who desire them, to place in the hands of the youth of our own Church.

The early records of our Church show that the Sessions frequently called before them the choice boys of the congregation and laid upon their consciences the work of the Gospel ministry. Numerous instances are recorded where the apprenticeship of such youth was purchased by the Church and they were sent off to college or the theological seminary.

The Church has not yet fully appreciated the great responsibility laid upon it by the Lord of the Harvest.

The Executive Committee desires to co-operate to the fullest extent with parents, pastors, sessions, schools, colleges, and teachers, in the matter of holding before the youth of our Church the problem of their life's work until it ceases to be a problem to them and they clearly discover the plan of God for their lives.

For fuller information or literature, address Henry H. Sweets, Secretary, 410 Urban Building, Louisville, Ky.

The Divorce Question.

There is an article in a recent issue of your paper for which I want to thank you. I am glad you have taken up the matter of divorce. One of the noticeable things in it is the fact that there are so few children. Your figures give the appalling statement that there are 60,000 people, 30,000 men and a like number of women, among that proportion who have obtained divorce, 60,000 married people and not one child among them. Surely this is one of the reasons for divorce. But particularly I note that you draw attention to a most barbaric form of entertainment which has been prevalent, in many places, and to the lasting shame of the religion which we profess, it has often been found in the churches. I refer to the "mock marriage." No wonder there is a lowering of the standard of morals when a sacred thing like marriage is made a means of entertainment, and even by the Church of Christ, to raise money. In your article you refer to various reasons for the lowering of the moral standards, but there is one thing which you failed to mention, which I fear has done more than is generally accepted to lower the meaning of the sacredness of marriage. I have noticed many times when reading reports of weddings in churches; the building is turned into an opera house by certain fixtures and decorations, the pulpit is removed and the place of the pulpit made into a stage, then a secular concert is given for about an hour or so, in the House of God, to entertain the people who have gathered out of curiosity, as they would to any other free "show." Then comes the worst of all, and the thing which I note you failed to mention, that while the marriage ceremony is being "performed," and this word is quite properly used in this case, while the ceremony is being performed, in which two people are supposed to be entering into the most solemn and sacred covenant human beings ever enter into, some person, entirely lacking in the sense of appropriateness, and yet who frequently figures as a "Friend of the Bride," sings some silly, secular song, such as "A Wild Rose," or "Because," and this while the minister of the Lord Jesus Christ is witnessing and hearing their vows and invoking God's blessing. How can people who show so little respect for sacred things be expected to keep the vows so frivolously entered into? And is it reasonable to expect that such disrespect for sacred things and sacred places will be likely to develop any lasting respect for the merely earthly vows then and there taken.

Is there not a reason for much of the laxity in morals in this general tendency to make a farce of sacred things in the name of a fashionable church wedding? This is something that the ministers could correct. There are many things charged to ministers that they are not to blame for, but it seems as if this matter could be discouraged.

Presbyter.

A Momentous Movement Among Chinese Students.

By Rev. Lowry Davis.

After properly discounting all rumors, there seems to be proof that several of the Chinese high officials have been secretly negotiating with the Japanese, and have been negotiating at China's expense. At least the Chinese students feel convinced of this, and have begun a movement which, if properly conserved, will result in such a movement for real independence as was led by the American patriots at Valley Forge.

Recently in Peking the students began a campaign which has spread down through Shantung (where Japanese abound) to Kiangsu and Chekiang provinces. The present idea of the student body is thoroughly to organize themselves into a union all over China, and stand firm for the great principles of democracy. Many of these students are Christians and pray and work for their land as did Washington and Jefferson of old. This article is written especially to let the American people know of this new student movement of real patriotism and its possibilities. This is to call for constant prayer on the part of the American people for the Chinese students in this their time of need and yet time of new determination to hold on to the end till their country is freed of traitors and other oppressors.

Recently a delegation of five accomplished Koreans, all Christians, including one pastor, visited some of the cities in Cheking province and with eloquence not even surpassed by that of Patrick Henry described the slavery of Korea and the possibility of a similar slavery for China by the same power unless immediate steps were taken by the whole country of 400,000,000 people. They are looking to America for help, and so is China, as the watchman waits for the morning. The story of these Koreans so nearly resembles that of Belgium that a child would have no trouble in forming his own conclusions as to the real possibility of a repetition in Asia of the horrors perpetrated by Germany in Europe. According to these Koreans, their country has already suffered in a way similar to Belgium.

Never before has China needed the prayers and the assistance of America as at the present. Well did Samuel G. Blythe write of the Tremendous Triangle in the Saturday Evening Post two years ago. China and America form two of the points in this triangle. Read the article to find the third.

Bread is the gift of God, but we sow for it and we reap for it. So with these other gifts of God—power, wisdom, strength, love. They are the gifts of God, but we have to pray for them, and therefore prayer comes to be the most beautiful work in the world, the most glorious work, to be done with a method, to be done with perseverance and at regular times, and yet to pervade the whole life, so that in a true sense we pray without ceasing.—A. F. W. Ingram.

John Bunyan Shearer, D. D.

(Continued from page 4)

These facts are given at some length and in appreciative form in a biographical sketch prepared by the late Rev. Dr. J. Rumble, of Salisbury, for the Biographical History of North Carolina, Vol. VIII (Ashe, Weeks, VanNoppen).

John Bunyan Shearer was born in Appomattox County, Va., July 19, 1832. He was the oldest son of the seven children of John Akers Shearer and his wife, Ruth Akers Webber. The Akers were Welsh stock, the Webbers Dutch, the Shearers English Puritan, so that the subject of this sketch was a composite of three nationalities in equal proportion.

He was educated at Hampden-Sidney College (A.B. A.M., '49-'51) and at the University of Virginia (A.M., '51-'54). His record at both institutions were prophetic of the distinction that was to mark all of his subsequent life. After teaching a year, he entered Union Theological Seminary, Virginia, from which institution he was graduated in '57. He acted as stated supply for several churches in Virginia prior to being called to the pastorate at Chapel Hill, where he remained from '58 to '62. From '62 to '70 he was stated supply at Spring Hill and Mt. Carmel churches, Halifax County, Va. While here he established and conducted the Cluster Springs High School, an institution that still lives and continues under other managements to testify to his wisdom in its founding.

In '70 Dr. Shearer was called to the presidency of Stewart College, Clarkesville, Tenn., in which capacity he served till '75, when he inaugurated a movement for the reorganization and enlargement of the institution, under the care of the Southwestern Synods, to be called the Southwestern Presbyterian University. This excellent institution, it is scarcely any exaggeration to say, was his own creation though based on Stewart College as a foundation, which college he had placed on its feet and brought to a position of such standing in that section of the Middle West that his appeal for a greater institution could not be denied. His appeal met at once with a sympathetic response and the synods concerned rallying to his call and enthused by his inspiring vision followed his splendid leadership in the establishment and support of the Southwestern.

As president, financial agent and instructor, Dr. Shearer overtaxed his strength and with the permanent organization effected in '79, he ceased to be the head of the institution, retiring in favor of Rev. Dr. John N. Waddell, whom he nominated as Chancellor of the University. During the years '79-'88 he was professor of the chair of English Bible.

In the year 1888 Dr. Shearer was called to the presidency of Davidson College, which position he filled with marked ability and success. In 1901 on account of advancing years and with the conviction that the work demanded the services of a younger and physically stronger man, and further because of his desire to put in permanent form many of his lectures and addresses, he retired from the office of president, recommending as his successor Dr. Henry Louis Smith, now president of Washington and Lee University. Dr. Shearer was immediately made vice-president, which office he continued to hold till the day of his death.

What he accomplished as president of Davidson is abundantly evidenced in what has been said in the earlier part of this article, setting forth his work in Church and Christian Education. The success of his administration is further evidenced in the growth of the college that has been steady from the day he came to Davidson till the present moment. There were enrolled less than 90 students the year that he was called to the presidency. During his first year of incumbency 96 men were registered—in 1901 when he retired the registration amounted to 173. But this doubling in numbers furnishes but a poor standard for estimating the importance, the greatness, the wide-reaching influence in the upbuilding of a greater Davidson of Dr. Shearer's administration and tells but faintly what Davidson owes to his wisdom, vision, pronouncements in season and out of season throughout the church in behalf of denominational education and the duty of the Church of Christ to train its youth in its own schools and colleges.

Dr. Shearer was honored with the degree of D.D. by Hampden-Sidney College, and with the degree of LL.D. by the Southwestern Presbyterian University.

No sketch of Dr. Shearer's life would be complete at all or meet with any approval from him—could his voice be heard or his thought expressed—that did not make mention of his beloved wife, Lizzie Gessner, who was of foreign birth. He married her in 1854, before he finished his education. He loved and cherished her with a devotion and a tenderness that was beautiful, touching and exemplary beyond words. He always said that under God she was his inspiration and his strength.

Mrs. Shearer died in January, 1903. As a memorial to her Dr. Shearer remodelled or one may say rebuilt the "Old Chapel," now known on the Davidson campus as the Shearer Biblical Hall. He also edited "Prayermeeting Papers," prepared by Mrs. Shearer, intending the book which contains a sketch of her life as a memory volume.

The Woman of the New Day.

(Continued from page 6)

Take her into the sea, a great lesson was impressed on me as I looked over the side and saw that this mighty ship, over 900 feet long, could not go into her course without the help of fifteen little tugs; very small, but each one pushing with all its power—seven at the bow and eight at the stern. To me this pictured Life. None of us, no matter how strong, nor no undertaking no matter how great, can go on without the combined help of smaller forces. Does it not seem to you that this is illustrative of what we, as Alumnae of Peace, should do? We should each, no matter how small our strength, put our power either at the bow or at the stern, and see that everything is done to keep this institution in the broad stream of progress where she will be able to hold her own in the great Sea of Time. What a wonderful heritage is behind this institution! Here, in the days of the Civil War, men come to a hospital to be healed. Later it was a refuge for the wounded and always the word "Peace" hovered over her. "Peace!" The name inspires the faith that we shall see the end of the madness of war.

A Light Set Upon a Hill.

May we hope that in the years to come, the women who come out of this institution shall realize that no matter what field they are called, they shall take with them a love for mankind, a faith in human beings, and a love of the world that will make them a power for good among all women. May their homes be like a light set upon a hill, and radiate cheer and good will in the community where they reside. I bespeak for Peace the best that is in all our girls. May we realize that as we live, so will be judged our Alma Mater.

Beauty.

Beautiful faces are those that wear—
It matters little if dark or fair—
Whole-souled honesty printed there.

Beautiful eyes are those that show,
Like crystal panes where heart-fires glow,
Beautiful thoughts that burn low.

Beautiful lips are those whose words
Leap from the heart like songs of birds,
Yet whose utterance prudence girds.

Beautiful hands are those that do
Work that is honest and brave and true,
Moment by moment the long day through.

Beautiful feet are those that go
On kindly missions, to and fro—
Down lowliest ways, if God wills so.

—Ellen Palmer Allerton.

Sunday School

By Rev. H. G. Hill, D.D.

THE LORD'S SUPPER.

Golden Text—I Cor. 11:26, "For as often as ye eat this bread and drink this cup, ye do shew the Lord's death till He comes."

Matt. 26:26-30; I Cor. 11:23-26.

July 20, 1919.

Baptism and the Lord's Supper, though two sacraments of the Christian Church, point to the saving work of the Holy Ghost and of Christ. Baptism indicates the cleansing power of the Holy Ghost in the heart. The Lord's Supper shows Christ freeing from guilt and making atonement for those that trust Him. The supper was instituted on the night of Christ's betrayal, in an upper room at Jerusalem. It was preceded by the Passover, which commemorated Israel's deliverance from the destruction of the first-born, and emancipation from Egyptian bondage but also pointed to the coming of "Christ, Our Passover," Who was to rescue His people from eternal death, and free them from a far more grievous bondage. The lesson suggests preparation for the Supper, its celebration, the purposes it serves, and the truths it proclaims.

I. The Preparation for the Supper.

Our Saviour first determines the disciples who shall partake of it and sees to it that only His real disciples were present. Judas, the traitor, was dismissed beforehand and did not partake of the Supper. We are told that when the "Lord had given Him the sop, taken from the passover dish, and indicating his treachery, he went immediately out." Christ had told him "What thou doest do quickly," and he had departed before the Lord's Supper was instituted. Christ, having chosen the partakers, selects the elements. He appoints bread and wine as the articles to be used, and no one has a right to substitute any others. He also pronounces a blessing upon the Sacrament and those who rightfully partake of it. We also learn that "He gave thanks," and it is an impressive fact that Jesus offered thanks to the Father over the symbols of His own death, that He was permitted to die to save guilty man. If Christ could thus give thanks that He was allowed to save an imperiled race, how much more should each pardoned sinner return thanks when he comes to the Lord's table and shares in the blessings of His redemption.

II. The Celebration of the First Supper.

Preparation being made Jesus and His real disciples participate in the Supper. He explains to them the significance of the symbols. He takes bread and breaks it, saying "This is my body, or represents my body, broken for you, Take, eat." The bread and the act of breaking were both symbolic and picture Christ's broken body, crucified for us. Much human speculation and controversy has been experienced in the visible Church as to whether Christ's bodily presence was in the elements used in the Lord's Supper. It has ranged from transubstantiation, maintaining that the priest's blessing changed the elements into the actual body and blood of Jesus Christ, to consubstantiation, affirming that Christ is bodily present under the elements, though no actual change takes place. It is sufficient to say that neither theory will stand the test of the senses, which Jesus told His disciples to use to identify the actual presence of His body after His resurrection. That Christ is spiritually present at the Supper, just as He is at the mercy seat, is unquestioned but no physical sense can discern Him.

Having explained the symbolism, and given the bread and wine to His disciples, Jesus urges them to partake of both elements and declares that "As often as ye eat of this bread and drink of this cup ye do show the Lord's death till He come. The eating and drinking, forming a vital union between the elements and the persons, intimate our need of a vital union by faith with a crucified Christ. The Supper closed with a hymn.

III. Some Purposes Served by the Lord's Supper.

It keeps before the minds of believers that Jesus died a sacrificial death, that "He died for our sins according to the Scriptures." It shows that He was not merely the innocent victim of priestly envy and malice but the God appointed sin-bearer for humanity. It emphasizes the fact that "He bore our sins in his own body on the tree." It brings Him vividly to our remembrance, and shows how great was His sufferings, how marvellous was the love that prompted such sacrificial agony. It suggests how great are our obligations to Him and stimulates our devotion to Him, and nerves us to more vigorous efforts to promote His Kingdom. Thus "The Lord's Supper," like the inspired Word, under the Divine Spirit's guidance, becomes a means of grace, and of progress in Christian living.

IV. Some Truths Enforced by the Supper.

There are some vital truths that men are prone to forget. One is that "By the deeds of the law shall no flesh be justified." If man could justify himself by his own obedience, Christ would not have died. Another truth is that "Without the shedding of blood there is no remission of sin." Life must be sacrificed or there is no pardon, because there is no atonement. God says "I have given you the blood to make atonement for your souls." The blood of slain animals made only a typical atonement, no real meeting of the penalty. "The blood of Jesus Christ cleanseth us from all sin." How important to proclaim His death!

IN BEHALF OF THE JEW.

Resolutions adopted by two thousand Christians assembled at the Jewish Prophetic Conference, held at the Auditorium of the Moody Bible Institute, under the auspices of the Chicago Hebrew Mission, Chicago, May 20 to 23, 1919:

Whereas, during the past years of the great world-war, the Jewish people have suffered untold agonies, and whereas these sufferings still continue with indications that still greater tribulations are impending; and

Whereas, we Christian believers gathered in the Jewish Prophetic Conference in the Auditorium of the Moody Bible Institute, under the auspices of the Chicago Hebrew Mission, have a deep love for God's ancient people and great sympathy for them, realizing our great debt to the Jews, chiefly because that unto them were committed the oracles of God (Romans 3:2), as well as preserved by them, and because we know that theirs is the adoption, and the glory, and the covenants, and the giving of the Law, and the service of God, and the promises; whose are the fathers, and of whom as concerning the flesh Christ came, who is over all, God blessed forever. (Romans 9:4-5).

Therefore, be it resolved that we pledge ourselves daily to pray to the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, David's Son and David's Lord, that the day may speedily come when the dark shadows of 2,000 years may flee away, and the long promised day of righteousness and peace may come for Israel's race.

We also pledge ourselves to pray that the hearts of the beloved Jewish people may be turned to their own sacred Scripture, and that they may turn back to the Law and to the testimony, so that they may see Him who is our Saviour and their coming King, and learn from their own prophets that which will soon come to pass.

And furthermore, be it resolved that we express in every other possible way our sympathy to the Jewish people in the present crisis, doing whatsoever we can in their behalf, and that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the President of the United States.

Home Circle

UNCONSCIOUS IMPRESSIONS MADE ON OUR CHILDREN.

Some years ago a Southern woman told me that as a little girl in Maryland, she had been placed at the gate by her mother with a bucket of cool spring water and as the soldiers of both armies, Federal and Confederate, marched past, they had dipped their cups in her bucket and had been refreshed and strengthened for their long march. What a lesson in showing mercy to friend and foe was taught to that little girl that day.

A woman who had decided to wear her winter coat for the third season and felt that she was really making quite a sacrifice, remembered that in her childhood, her mother had worn the same bonnet with various trimmings for several years, because their church had been destroyed by a cyclone and every penny which could possibly be spared must go to help build the new church.

One mother, on being importuned many times on the subject of knitting on Sunday, said "I do not say that it is right or wrong for others; that must be left to each woman's own conscience to settle, but as for myself, I would not dare set such an example to my boys. I have tried to teach them that secular work must be put away on the Sabbath and if they saw Mother knitting, would it not let down the bars to work and play of their own?"

It will not be the speeches on patriotism that our children will remember in the days to come, but it will be the little acts of sacrifice, of mercy, of forgetfulness of self which we unconsciously have been implanting in their minds.

Did not the many mothers who followed strictly the food conservation orders, teach their children lessons not only in thrift and patriotism but the broader lesson of our responsibility to our fellow men? The mothers whose hands already seemed so full, yet found the time to knit the socks and fold the bandages surely have left an imprint of unselfishness on the little lives around them.

What lasting impressions have been made on the boys and girls who were encouraged by their parents to give up their candy, their sodas, their little pleasures, to put those extra nickels and dimes not only into thrift stamps, but to give them outright to the orphaned and hungry children all over the world!

Surely the mothers all over our broad land have in these past months (and for the most part unconsciously), by their attitude toward the many questions which have so suddenly been thrust upon us, left an impress for all time on the lives of their boys and girls. In revealing their own characters daily to the clear young eyes about them, they are forming others. "In that momentous fact lies the peril and responsibility of our existence," says Elihu Burritt, and Spurgeon tells us that the "serene, silent beauty of a holy life is the most powerful influence in the world, next to the might of the Spirit of God."—"A Mother," in The Presbyterian.

WORRYLAND.

Worryland's a wilderness

Where no tree nor flower will grow,
Where no sunbeam's sweet caress
Cheers the desert place below.

Worryfolk are sure to frown,
Be the weather what it may;
Keep in sight of Sunny Town,
And you cannot lose the way.

Hill paths are the best, you'll find,
Sunshine falls on every hand;
So beware of paths that wind
Down the vale to Worryland.

—British Weekly.

News of the Week

At the Methodist Centenary in session at Columbus, Ohio, resolutions were passed approving the League of Nations.

A test case in Kansas City under the war-time prohibition act has been ordered instituted by Attorney General Palmer in a letter received by United States District Attorney Francis M. Wilson. "The test case," Mr. Wilson said, "will be brought on the point that beer containing more than one-half of one per cent alcohol is in violation of the war-time measure, regardless of whether or not it is intoxicating. Previous interpretations have always included the word 'intoxicating' and this latest order clarifies this theory."

The Kaiser seems to have no trouble in securing a substitute. His five sons now offer to take his place, but the Allies are not trading at present.

The Ohio Board of Moving Picture Censors has refused to permit the Willard-Dempsey fight pictures to be exhibited and the Charlotte authorities have also forbidden the motion picture films in which Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, famous in the trial of Harry K. Thaw, to be exhibited in this city.

On July 8, President Wilson returned to this country after an absence of four months at the Peace Conference. He was given a tremendous ovation in New York, surpassing any ever given to a public man. On Thursday, July 10, he addressed the Senate.

Trouble has broken out between French and Italians. At Fiume new clashes between French and Italians are reported.

John Fox, Jr., author, died at Big Stone Gap, Va., of pneumonia. Mr. Fox was one of America's most popular writers of fiction, his novels dealing with life among the mountain peoples of the South having a wide sale. His leading books are considered to be "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come," "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," "The Kentuckians," and "The Heart of the Hills."

The Seashore hotel, recently burnt at Wrightsville Beach, N. C., is to be replaced by a five-story fireproof building modeled after Hotel Chamberlain, Old Point Comfort, Va.

Senator Simmons has come out openly in support of Cameron Morrison for the governorship of North Carolina.

The U. S. Shipping Board has relinquished all control over the ocean freight rates.

American prohibition workers have opened headquarters in London. They propose to win England over but confess that the task is by no means an easy one.

Austria is anxious to enter Peace League. Entrance has been promised as soon as they have will and power to meet obligations.

The tension between Austria and Hungary has become so great that the recall of the Hungarian minister has been demanded.

Uneasiness is felt over the fact that German officers and soldiers are located on the Petrograd front.

The Prayer Meeting

TOPIC FOR WEEK BEGINNING JULY 20, 1919:
PERSISTENT INDUSTRY LEADS TO SUCCESS.

Nehemiah 6:1-9.

By Rev. C. D. Waller.

"So the wall was finished—in fifty and two days." It was a grand success in spite of Sanballat, and Tobiah, and Geshem the Arabian, and Noadiah the prophetess, and others. "I am doing a great work, so that I can not come down: why should the work cease whilst I leave it and come down to you?" This is an admirable answer to a thousand industrious enemy solicitors, who would stop our work. In their way Sanballat and company were as persistently industrious as Nehemiah. They were fertile in schemes and in mischief. Every Nehemiah has his Sanballat and his prophetess Noadiah. If one scheme fails, perhaps the other may succeed. But Nehemiah was faithful, first to God, and then to the work.—This insured vigilant and unceasing industry: and finally a glorious success. This is a twice told tale, but one worth telling twice. We are slow to learn it. Too often we are only too grateful for the solicitations of some Sanballat. We do not perhaps consider whether he be a friend to the work or not. Our natural indolence is sometimes Sanballat enough. Our work is therefore interrupted and neglected without the wiles of any veritable foe. Our success is jeopardized, perhaps sacrificed, simply because of indolence. Nor are we the only sufferers. Had Nehemiah inclined his ear to Sanballat and his fellow conspirators, not only he, but the Jews: not only the Jews, but God's great work would have suffered. So with us. The work committed to Christians by our Master is one that demands and deserves persistent industry. The minister, the teacher in the Bible school, the officer in the Church—all Christian workers should watch the wiles of indolence, and sternly send answer not once only, but whenever tempted. "I am doing a great work, so that I can not come down." But they also tried intimidation. They were determined that the work should stop. So they framed an accusation of disloyalty to the King. They even bribed a prophetess to bring fear to the heart of this stout worker and leader.

Ah, how some men hate God's work! There is a colony of Swedes in Chicago where infidelity is taught persistently. The voice, the pen, the press, all are employed to spread infidelity and to fight Christianity. We have also seen how effectively the work was made to cease in the German Empire, and the fearful world-wide consequences. There are Sanballats in our pulpits, in our eldership, in our membership. Dr. Robert E. Speer speaks of attending a meeting of college presidents and professors—fifteen or twenty men. One of the group, a minister, and a college president, "expressed it as his own opinion that the question of the divinity of Jesus Christ was a matter of metaphysics about which we need not trouble ourselves, and about which we had no right to burden the minds and consciences of young men and women in our colleges and universities."

Thus, for various reasons, men leave the great work. If we are to be successful in our work, we must be perseveringly industrious. This is especially a timely word for teachers in Bible schools. How many so-called "teachers" meet their classes unprepared; no prayer, no study, no plan, no fishing tackle ready to catch souls for Jesus. Nothing will take the place of prayer and work. If Jesus sends us, He sends us to work, to be successful, to win men and women and children to Himself. Beware of the Sanballats and Tobiahs, the Geshems and the prophetesses Noadiahs and the rest of the prophets that would put us in fear—that would call us, or seduce us, or frighten us from the great work that our Lord has entrusted to us.

Christian Endeavor

By Rev. S. H. Hay.

M., July 21—Confess With the Mouth: Rom. 10:1-11.
T., July 22—With the Life: Matt. 5:14-16.
W., July 23—By Our Behavior: I Pet. 2:18-24.
T., July 24—Deny by Rejection: Mark 15:1-15.
F., July 25—Religious Infidels: 2 Tim. 3:1-9.
S., July 26—Deny by Selfish Life: Jude 3-11.

* * *

Sunday, July 27—Topic—How Do Men Confess Christ and How Deny Him?—Rom. 10:9; Luke 22:55-61.

* * *

We confess Christ with our lips. This is one of the means by which the gospel is to be spread. Jesus said we were to be His witnesses in all parts of the earth.

We confess Him with the lips for the purpose also of strengthening our own positions in Christ. After we have stood up and said with our mouths that we believe in Him, we are committed openly to Him, and we are then less likely to desert Him.

We confess Him with the lips, because also His glory demands it. How much glory do we throw upon the name of Christ if we are ashamed to say openly that we believe in Him! Lip-confession is often found without true religion, but true religion is never found without lip-confession.

* * *

As we confess Christ with our lips, with our lips we also deny Him. There is no such thing in the world as serving Christ with the heart and life, while denying Him with the lips. The lip-confession does not prove that we have true religion, but the absence of lip-confession proves that we do not have true religion. If Peter had, without repentance, continued to deny the Lord, it would have proven he was but little better than Judas.

* * *

"Doctor," said a wounded soldier to the physician who had bound up his wounds, "what is your name?"

"No matter," answered the doctor.

"But," said the soldier, "I want to tell my wife and children who saved me."

Can we do less with Christ than this? (From Ends. Da. Companion.)

* * *

We confess Christ also with our hearts. Man looketh on the outward part but God looketh on the heart. As a man is in his heart, so is he in reality. Man listens at the verbal confession, and is seldom sure about the state of heart. God hears the heart-beat as clearly as the words, and He knows when the heart is true. There is no confession of Christ so precious to God as the confession of the heart. When the deliverance of the heart is right, the rest is sure to be.

* * *

We confess Christ with our actions. This is the great practical method of showing our allegiance. Talk, though necessary, is cheap. But actions are more serious, and they carry stronger proof than words do. When the mouth speaks one way and the deeds the other, we say in righteous wrath and sadness, "Your actions speak so loudly that I cannot hear your words." We judge a tree by its fruits. And whenever we see fruit, we know there was a tree to bear it. When we see Christian conduct, we know there was religion to produce it. All other confessions are vain unless they carry with them also the confession by deed.

* * *

Give reasons why we so often deny Christ.

How can we guard against denying Christ?

What must we do when we find we have denied Him?

Presbyterian Standard

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, $2.50 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE.
REV. W. L. BOGGS, Circulation Manager.

PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY AT CHARLOTTE, N. C.
ESTABLISHED JANUARY 1, 1858.

Entered at the Post Office at Charlotte, N. C., as second class matter.

A Religious Newspaper for the Family, Devoted to the Interest of Christ's Kingdom as Represented by the Southern Presbyterian Church.

CONTENTS OF THIS ISSUE

EDITORIAL—		PAGE.
The Deacon		2
Fluency as an Asset		2
The Anti-Sabbath Drift		3
Heavier Penalties Needed		3
The Educational Campaign		3
CONTRIBUTED—
John Bunyan Shearer, D.D.—By Dr. C. R. Harding	4-8
A Record of Fidelity and Efficiency.....	5
An Appeal That Should Be Heard.....	5
Our Boys at Satan's Second Line Trench in China. By Rev. E. W. McCorkle, D.D.....	5
The Woman of the New Day—By Mrs. Josephus Daniels	6-8
The Great Need of the Church.....	7
The Divorce Question	7
A Momentous Movement Among Chinese Students—By Rev. Lowry Davis	7
Beauty—By Ellen Palmer Allerton	8
In Behalf of the Jew	9
DEPARTMENTS—
Sunday School—By Rev. H. G. Hill, D.D.....	9
News of the Week	10
Christian Endeavor—By Rev. S. H. Hay	11
Prayer Meeting—By Rev. C. D. Waller	11
Home Circle and Devotional	13
Church News, Etc.	12-16

Church News

Collections—July is not assigned to any one of our Church causes, but in many of the Synods and Presbyteries it is assigned to Synodical, Presbyterian, or congregational Home Missions. Pastors and churches can obtain information from the chairman of the committee of their own Presbytery.

PERSONAL.

Rev. W. P. McCorkle, D.D., is now in Charlotte. His address is 220 East Morehead Street.

The address of Rev. Frank D. Hunt is changed temporarily from Albany, Ga., to Snowville, Va.

Rev. W. M. Hunter, who is engaged in the Million Dollar Campaign for Education, has changed his address from Atlanta, Ga., to Huntersville, N. C.

Rev. Dr. R. C. Reed is supplying the church at Brunswick, Ga., for two Sabbaths, while the pastor-elect, Rev. F. D. Thomas, is recuperating at Staunton, Va.

In our last week's issue we had an interesting story by our esteemed correspondent, Dr. W. H. Morse, of Hartford, Conn. By some oversight, Dr. Morse's name was omitted. The title of the story was "Minerva's Punishment."

SOUTH CAROLINA.

Laurens—The ordination and installation service was held Sabbath morning, July 6, in the First Presbyterian Church, Laurens, S. C. Our new ruling elders are: Dr. Hugh K. Aiken, Logan B. Blackwell, Samuel R. Dorrah and M. Hampton Hunter. The new deacons: Samuel M. Wilkes, John McD. Moore, Rufus T. Dunlap and Dr. Charles P. Vincent, Jr. Our official corps now numbers ten elders and ten deacons. At its meeting June 15 the congregation voted a $300 increase in the pastor's salary.

Columbia—Dr. S. C. Byrd, of Columbia, president of Chicora College, has returned from Savannah, where he filled the pulpit at two services Sunday in the First Presbyterian Church, at which time a new pastor for the church was called, the Rev. J. H. Henderlite, D.D., of Gastonia, N. C., well known in Columbia. Dr. Henderlite, if he accepts the Savannah call, will succeed the Rev. W. Moore Scott, D.D., who resigned to become synodical director of evangelical work in Arkansas.

Efforts will be made to have Dr. Henderlite visit the Savannah church and conduct the regular communion services Sunday.

Blacksburg—Interesting and impressive services were held at the Presbyterian Church Sunday afternoon, July 6, when the Rev. J. L. Yandell, of York, was installed as pastor of the church. The visiting Presbyterians were Dr. Alexander Martin, of Rock Hill; Rev. G. W. Nickell, of Bethel, and Rev. J. E. Berryhill, of Clover.

Dr. Martin was the preacher and delivered an eloquent and instructive sermon.

The charge to the new pastor was given by the Rev. Mr. Berryhill, which was impressive and replete with good advice and sound doctrine. The Rev. Mr. Mickell outlined to the members of the church in a clear and forceful manner their duties to their pastors and to each other. The Rev. Mr. Yandell will have services here on the first and third Sabbaths of each month.

NORTH CAROLINA.

Fayetteville Presbytery—A meeting of Fayetteville Presbytery will be called in the near future. Anyone having business for the Presbytery will please communicate at once with the Moderator, J. J. Hill, Red Springs, N. C.

Charlotte—The Tabernacle A. R. P. Church is having at intervals a series of addresses by celebrated speakers on subjects pertinent to the times in which we are living. On last Sabbath evening the second one of the series was delivered by Dr. Henry Louis Smith, of Washington and Lee University. Dr. Smith's subject, which he handled in a practical and at the same time most interesting manner, was "Christian Education." He was heard by a large audience.

Charlotte—At the Second Church the pastor, Dr. McGeachy, continues his special sermons at the evening service on great and thought provoking themes and the people continue to show their interest by coming in such throngs that the last seat in the large auditorium and annex is filled. The theme last Sabbath evening was the very solemn one of the Judgment Day, which was treated in a masterly way. Dr. McGeachy's subject for next Sabbath evening is based on God's first question to man, "Where art thou?"

Pastors, Sessions, Treasurers of Churches in Fayetteville Presbytery—Please send the first quarter of your Presbyterial Home Missions apportionment to the treasurer, J. J. Hill, Red Springs, N. C., at once. The committee began the year on a cash basis and if the churches will respond promptly the work can be kept on this high plane. The work is prospering. Let us pay the workers. J. J. H.

Statesville—The Board of Home Missions of the Presbyterian Church met in Statesville yesterday. Those present were Dr. J. M. Clark, of Statesville; Dr. C. M. Richards, of Davidson; Rev. T. H. Spence, of Harrisburg; Mr. Z. V. Turlington, of Mooresville, and Mr. I. T. Avery, of Morganton. Among business transacted was the decision made that a mission should be established at Burkemont, in Burke county.

Do Not Fail to Do It—That is, to take the collection for Presbyterian Home Missions in Fayetteville Presbytery during the month of August. This is our month for that collection; so let every church send a contribution to treasurer, Dr. J. J. Hill, of Red Springs, N. C., just as soon as possible after the time of the collection in your church. This is the time we are always short of funds, so this is the time for your special effort.
L. Smith, Supt. and Clerk.

Monroe—Twenty-seven were welcomed to the membership of the Monroe church on Sunday, July 6, six by letter and twenty-one on profession of faith. In the number uniting upon profession, there were two whole Sunday school classes, one of boys, Miss Anna Blair, teacher, and the other girls, with Miss Ollie Alexander, teacher. Three newly elected deacons were ordained and installed. A large congregation was present to participate in the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper. The pastor is assisting Rev. W. E. Furr in special services at Biscoe this week.

Albemarle—Dr. Black and Mr. Burr began a meeting for the Presbyterian Church of Albemarle June 22, which continued through July 1. On account of the church being too small, a large tent was secured and erected in a vacant lot near the center of the town. Large crowds attended these services, especially at night. The meeting is regarded as having been very successful. There were in all 114 professions. One hundred and four cards were signed and eleven joined the Presbyterian Church at the Sunday School hour on Sunday morning, who had not signed cards. There were about forty whose preference was the Presbyterian Church. The rest were divided among the other churches of the town.
Geo. W. Cheek.

Mecklenburg Presbytery—The constitutional requirements having been set, Mecklenburg Presbytery is called to meet in special session at the Charlotte First Church, on Monday, July 21, 1919, at 2:30 p. m., to transact the following items of business if the way be clear:

1. The report of the Home Mission Committee on the Rocky River Springs School for Boys.
2. To recommend that the Assembly's Home Mission Committee at Atlanta take over the school and conduct it.
3. The report of the Committee on the Fiftieth Anniversary of the organization of this Presbytery.
4. To consider changing the time of the fall meeting.

John E. Wool, Stated Clerk.

Concord—Rev. J. M. Clark, D.D., superintendent and evangelist of Concord Presbytery, has just closed an eight days' meeting in the McKinnon church in Concord, with the following results, viz.: Twenty-six conversions; 86 reconsecrations; 14 accessions to the McKinnon church; some will join other churches; 10 infant baptisms by the pastor; six adult baptisms; three promises to remove church letters to churches in that city. An interesting thing connected with the meeting was the conversion and reception into the church of a whole family of three, father, mother and son. The parents are considerably beyond the meridian of life. The church also made a handsome offering for Home Missions.
J. M. Clark,

Supt. and Evangelist of Concord Presbytery.

Fountain—This church has just been strengthened and helped by a twelve days' meeting, which came to a close July 3. Rev. S. K. Phillips, of Greenville, preached to large and attentive congregations every night. The cottage prayer meetings, of which we held two nearly every afternoon, were the only other services but these were well attended and a source of great spiritual uplift. Mr. Phillips' sermons were highly praised and appreciated by the people. One of them, "What a Father Owes His Children," in which he stressed the family altar and parental training in the home, was especially commented upon. There were four additions to the church, two more have signified their intention of coming in at the first opportunity, and one other intelligent profession of faith. A thank offering of $68.00 was extended Mr. Phillips the last night of the meeting.

H. F. M., Cor.

Farmville—Our church here was very much helped by a two weeks' meeting, June 1-15. Rev. C. Connor Brown preached for ten days of this time, the preceding services being taken care of by Rev. S. K. Phillips, of Greenville, the Episcopal rector here, and the pastor of this church. On account of the heat and small size of our building, we held these services in a tobacco warehouse. Mr. Brown preached the word with great force and power. He has some of the most heart-searching sermons ever heard here and he delivers them in a most convincing manner. There was much conviction but only seven professions of faith, four of whom united with our church. One other is to come by letter. Our very small congregation gave Mr. Brown $65.00 for Synod's Home Missions and will follow him with our prayers wherever he goes.
H. F. M., Cor.

FLORIDA.

St. Petersburg—This congregation has decided to support another foreign missionary, and Rev. C. F. Hancock, of China, has been assigned by the committee in Nashville. Mrs. Tate of Korea is the other missionary for whose support this church is responsible. At the quarterly communion service, July 6, Rev. W. J. Garrison, the pastor, announced the names of fifteen persons received by certificate and two by confession. This is partly the result of the recent two-weeks' union revival services held by eight churches in this city. The family altar league is taking steps to arouse greater interest in the much-neglected Christian duty of family worship. During July and August union meetings will be held on Sunday evenings in the city park, and may be continued through September.
E. J. Young.

GEORGIA.

Savannah—Rev. James H. Henderlite, D.D., of Gastonia, N. C., was unanimously called to the pastorate of the First Presbyterian Church at Savannah on July 6. He preached once in this church a single sermon ten years ago. It is not known if he is available or will accept, but instead of asking him to come to Savannah a committee will visit him to ask his acceptance of the call.

Decatur—The pastor, Dr. D. P. McGeachy, at the communion service July 6, announced the names of thirty (30) new members who have joined the church during the past quarter. Quite a number of them were on profession of faith, and several of these were adults.

A new church secretary, Miss Marion Bucher, began her work in July and she will greatly increase the efficiency of the Sunday school, Christian Endeavor Societies, and other branches of the church work.

During the pastor's vacation in August, Dr. A. A. Little, of Meridian, Miss., will fill the Decatur pulpit for several Sundays.

Pryor Street Church, Atlanta—Rev. J. Edwin Hemphill, the pastor, announced that during the past quarter 65 new members have been received and welcomed into this church. Half of these came from the Sunday school, the majority were on profession of faith. This church prays and works for and expects conversions every Sunday. God is blessing the united efforts of His people in a most wonderful way. Evangelistic services are held every Sunday evening, the invitation is usually given to accept Christ and unite with the church in these evening services. With the exception of only one or two Sundays during the quarter, there have been additions every Sabbath. Many others have accepted Christ in the services here and united with other churches. Another one of our young men has just dedicated his life to the gospel ministry, making three of our young men now in preparation for the ministry. Out of a sense of gratitude to God, and in recognition of the peculiar evangelistic gifts of our pastor, this church has recently unanimously voted him a leave of absence for an aggregate of six weeks in each year, aside from his monthly vacation, in which to do evangelistic work wherever God in His Providence may lead him.

Cor.

Agnes Scott College—The General Education Board of New York City recently sent its president, Dr. Wallace Buttrick, to make a thorough investigation of Agnes Scott. In 1909 this board gave the college $100,000, and one object of Dr. Buttrick's visit was to see whether an advantageous use had been made of this gift. Another object was to put the work of the institution to an acid test and see whether it is worth another gift from the General Education Board.

As a result of the visit of Dr. Buttrick, the board has donated to Agnes Scott the sum of $175,000 in cash, provided the college and its friends will raise a net sum of $325,000 additional. This is an unusually fine offer from this board, which generally offers only one-fourth of the total sum to be raised, and it gives the opportunity of a lifetime to the college.

The Agnes Scott trustees are taking vigorous hold on the situation and plan during October and November to raise the required amount to secure the $175,000 gift. The trustees have agreed to give personally $100,000 of the amount to be raised. It is believed that generous friends of the college will supply the remainder of the amount needed and that by December 1 there may be announced the addition of $500,000 to the endowment of the college.

Atlanta—The new departure of Oglethorpe University in making its college courses co-educational, is to be continued next winter. All junior and senior classes in the college are open to women, but as the college has operated only three years, the upper classes have hitherto been very small. Next winter a large enrollment is expected in these classes, and their work will be conducted in exactly the same manner as in a co-educational institution. A start in such work was made last spring, when one woman registered for regular Oglethorpe work, and entered one of the classes in literature.

During the summer term, all classes will be open to women. The details of this new development will be worked out as time progresses. Problems will arise concerning women's fraternities and women's organizations, but no difficulties are anticipated on these grounds.

Oglethorpe at the same time takes the additional move of practically dividing its four years course into two parts, a junior part devoted to general cultural studies, and a senior part, comprising the present junior and senior years, devoted to the earlier work of professional studies. This scheme is already in operation at Chicago, and has been recommended at Harvard. By means of it the student is enabled to start earlier on his professional course without sacrificing his A.B. degree. The women will be admitted to the senior portion of this course, and to the post graduate courses.

A still further shortening of the student's college career will be effected by the inauguration, on July 8, of the four term year. A high school graduate entering Oglethorpe July 8, and taking only one month's holiday during his college career each year, instead of the four months previously taken, can complete his college course in three years, instead of four, without in any way shortening the total time of study. At the same time the student can in the last half acquire a part of his professional training, and so enter upon the duties of later life a year or two earlier than was possible under the older system.

Oglethorpe was the first Southern college to inaugurate this system, and will be the first Southern institution of religious character to throw open its doors to men and women on terms of equality.

TENNESSEE.

The First Presbyterian Church, Murfreesboro, Rev. J. Addison Smith, pastor, received eleven members at the July communion.

Nashville—Rev. S. W. McGill, secretary of the local Y. M. C. A., after a service of six months with the American troops in France, has returned to the city.

Nashville Presbytery—At a special meeting of Nashville Presbytery in the First Church of Nashville on June 21, Rev. George E. Eubank was received from the Tennessee Conference of the M. E. Church, South. Mr. Eubank has taken charge of the Cottage Presbyterian Church of Nashville. W. C. Alexander, S. C.

Nashville—At the Glen Leven Church at the communion on July 16, fourteen members were announced as having been received since the beginning of the former quarter, seven of these being on profession. This church has taken its place on the honor roll, having increased the salary of the pastor, Dr. W. C. Alexander, thirty-three and one-third per cent.

Nashville's First Citizen—The birthday of Dr. J. H. McNeilly on June 9 was a happy occasion giving pleasure not only to him but also to his many friends in this city and elsewhere who rejoice in his good health and who honor him for his high character and his long and faithful service. He was the recipient of many tokens of love and appreciation. Among these was a check for $81 sent by the treasurer of the Glen Leven church, but representing equally the love of all four of our churches of which he is the pastor emeritus. In addition he received the following letter through the clerk of our Session:

"The Session of the Glen Leven Church extend to Dr. James H. McNeilly their hearty congratulations on this, his eighty-first anniversary, with the hope and prayer that the Heavenly Father whom he has served so long, so faithfully and well will continue to preserve and bless with all good things, his long and useful life which has been such a great blessing to so many."

In a public address in the First Church the Doctor stated that his anniversary was one of the sweetest days of his life. May he have many more such days and may his life be like "the shining light that shineth more and more unto the perfect day."

VIRGINIA.

Home Mission Notes From East Hanover Presbytery—A glance through the statistic report of the minutes of the Presbytery reveals the encouraging fact that during the last year, with very few exceptions; and the smallest of the churches with no regular supply; all of the churches enjoyed accessions by profession of faith to a most encouraging degree.

This should stimulate every church to make a special effort to have the meeting held as per assignment by Presbytery. It should encourage all of the ministers to make a special effort to carry out the wish of Presbytery as regards their assigned meeting. Every church in the Presbytery is enjoying a regular supply, and all have their Sunday schools. There are now more Sunday schools in the Presbytery than there are churches. Mission points outside of Richmond and Petersburg are being developed with a considerable amount of enthusiasm. It is hoped that this will become contagious in all the churches.

Rev. O. E. Buchholtz has been placed in charge of the
(Continued on Page 16)

A Call to United Prayer

For Christian Education in Synod of North Carolina

The Movement to Raise ONE MILLION DOLLARS for Christian Education in the Synod of North Carolina Was Not an Accident

It bears every evidence of God's leading. United prayer to Him is therefore not only fitting, but is IN EVERY WAY NECESSARY

JESUS SAID: "whatsoever ye shall ask the Father in my name He will give it you."

"all things whatsoever ye shall ask in prayer, believing, ye shall receive."

"I say unto you, that if two of you shall agree on earth as touching anything that they shall ask, it shall be done for them of my Father which is in Heaven."

AIMS

1. To help North Carolina Presbyterians, 50,000 strong, to appreciate the fundamental place of the Christian college in training effective Christian leaders.
2. To visit practically every member in every church in the Synod of North Carolina; to discover and enlist many friends able to give largely; large numbers able to give in small sums; hosts willing to pray and work.
3. To reach the minimum goal of One Million Dollars within the time limits.

PRAY

1. That God may be honored in all the methods, efforts and spirit of the Campaign.
2. That the money secured may be so given as to bless the givers as well as the colleges.
3. That many young men and women may be inspired to enter one of these Christian colleges for better preparation for their life's work, and that through these colleges many may find God's plan for themselves.
4. That the men directing the Campaign—the committee: Mr. A. M. Scales, of Greensboro, chairman; M. E. Melvin, the manager, and all the men who work in the field—may have God's blessing upon them and His direct leadership in this great effort; that they may be wise, patient, tactful and victorious—and helpful.
5. That the Campaign may kindle many fires among the Presbyterians of North Carolina that shall light up the darkest parts of the earth.

PRAYER PLEDGE

Believing in the fundamental importance of Christian Education; interested in the success of the Million Dollar Campaign for our schools in North Carolina; with faith in God and the power of prayer, I covenant to pray daily, or as near thereto as possible, for the success of this effort.

Name _____

Address _____

Date _____

(This pledge will be kept in confidence and not used publicly)

Will you not sign the attached pledge and mail to Headquarters? You can pray as well without signing it, but we can work better and harder if we know you are praying.

Campaign Headquarters
Presbyterian Schools
Greensboro, N. C.

Church News.

(Continued from Page 14)

development of a church in the far West End of Richmond. Already things are beginning to move towards the organization of another church in that section of the city.

Montrose Church has its own Mission Sunday school on the Government road. They say it's fine to be responsible for a mission work. In six months this church has received on profession of faith some 40 members.

Fulton Church has moved into its new home. It will not be long until their new auditorium will be about as full as the old one. "Nothing like being in a big brick building that people cannot help seeing," so that fine Fulton band tells us.

Milford recently had the superintendent with them for a week. Good congregations met him at every appointment and towards the last record breaking congregations. Rev. R. G. Gilmore, of Fredericksburg, gives this church a sermon once a month and does a great deal of pastoral work in and around Milford. It was largely due to his work that such good congregations were had. The people are very much encouraged over the outlook. It is the only church of any denomination in the little village of 100 or more people.

Hopewell, under the leadership of its student supply, is beginning to reach out and go forward. They are working to get free of their long standing debt. Quite a successful meeting was conducted by Mr. Honey a few weeks ago. It resulted in a large ingathering both by letter and on profession of faith.

L. W. Curtis, Supt..

Samuel Davies—On June 15, with the Salem congregation, Mr. A. Ray Howland was ordained and installed pastor of the old historic Samuel Davies Church, in Hanover County.

Rev. Chas. L. King preached the sermon, Rev. T. H. Rice, D.D., gave the ordination charge, Mr. Owsley Sanders charged the people, Rev. Chas. Hershman, D.D., presided and propounded the constitutional questions. It was a delightful day. Under the leadership of their young pastor, much is hoped for by way of development for this church, the mother of Presbyterianism of Virginia and the Carolinas. This church is the outcome of the Rev. Wm. Robinson's first sermon preached July 6, 1743, from Luke 13:3. In 1746, Rev. Samuel Davies took charge of the field which was composed of the Morris reading rooms. Other places of worship were in New Kent, King William, Henrico (near Richmond city), and Goochland counties.

Abingdon—Stonewall Jackson College—On June 4, 1919, Rev. M. E. Melvin, D.D., field secretary of the Committee of Christian Education of the General Assembly of the Southern Presbyterian Church, with a team of six, Messrs. R. K. Axson, A. C. Ormond, H. H. Brownell, Chas. E. Guice, T. J. Caughley and R. M. Good, undertook to raise, in thirty days, $30,000 for Stonewall Jackson College, within the bounds of Abingdon Presbytery. At 8:30 o'clock on the evening of July 3, Mr. Axson and his co-workers met the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees of the college and handed to them "convertible securities," bearing six per cent interest, covering the amount. These energetic, conscientious men reported that they had

(Continued on Page 17)

Story and Incident

Unpleasant Pleasantries.

Once I met a man whose surname was Salt. When he was introduced as "the salt of the earth" his face showed no sign of either impatience or resignation, so he must have become used to it. Probably it was the nine hundred and ninety-ninth time that some dunce had tried to be funny. When people are condemned to bear all their lives such names as Cain, Hogg, Doolittle or Savage, it would seem to be only charitable to refrain from twitting them with their misfortune.

I remember being indignant on behalf of a portly and favorite cousin of mine who was visiting her brother, when he kept us all waiting at the table while he pretended to try a chair to see if it was strong enough to bear her weight. Not unwisely has the best society decreed that personalities must be avoided in conversation, for the victim of them, however good-natured he may seem, is never really amused. After you have at last succeeded in persuading your bashful son to meet your friends, it does not help him to conquer shyness to have them exclaim, "Why, how you grow! The ceilings will have to be raised presently."

One who had been ill all summer long at last managed to get out in the air and was greeted with, "How well you look! You can't call yourself an invalid now." It took all the self-control acquired in years of being rallied in this fashion to prevent the retort, "Madam, you deprive me of an inestimable privilege." People look at things differently, which may be the reason why so many annoying remarks are tolerated. When a gray-haired woman, who evidently was diverted by the incident, told me that a boy in his teens had replied, when she asked him to take a chair, "I may not take it but I will sit on it," my sole feeling was one of strong disapproval of the saucy speech. Generous natures do not make these blunders, because they are in the habit of considering the feelings of others; witty people do not make them, because they have at their command fun of a higher order; the infliction comes from those who want to show off.

It seems a pity that one of the most sacred of human feelings is not exempt from mockery by the bantering spirit. In a country village the least symptom of absent-mindedness calls forth the comment, "You must be in love," and a man and a maid cannot be together twice without becoming a target for foolish jokes. In such a community, some years ago, one girl was shut out from the good times of the rest. It was not wholly her fault, though she was plain looking and uninteresting. Her mother talked too much about her and schemed in vain to get attention. At last, when a general sleigh ride, to be followed by an oyster supper, was planned, the more benevolent of the young men declared it was a shame to leave Augusta out always, some one ought to take her and they would draw lots for the uncovered honor. It fell to a young fellow noted for fun and high spirits, so they rather expected him to beg off. However, he agreed, as was only fair, to sacrifice pleasure for duty, that once. The next day he rang the doorbell of Augusta's home. Her mother must have seen him coming, for she rushed to the door and exclaimed, archly, "I know what you've come for—she can go!" The youth was so provoked by this unpleasant pleasantry, which took things for granted, that he favored the woman with a stony stare and asked if she had any turkeys to sell. They may have made a trade, but Augusta lost her ride; a warning to managing mammas, if they could only hear and heed it.

The capsheaf of all rallying performances which I have observed during a long life was a pleasantry which would be beyond belief if I had not been an ear-witness of it. A widow was married again; her tall son, fifteen that very day, stood up with her. He had known the bridegroom for some time and was on the best of terms with him. The relatives had taken pains to enlarge only on the pleasant aspects of the change and his own duty in the case. Imagining their consternation when, after the ceremony, the minister said to him, "Now, I've given you a stepfather. Take care you don't let him punish you too often." The boy took it good-naturedly, as far as is known, but his father's sisters resented it and were obliged to remind themselves that it was the only tactless remark they had ever heard the reverend gentleman make, in the course of an acquaintance of years, in order to be able to forgive him.

"The man who hails you Tom or Jack,
And proves, by thumping on your back,
His sense of your great merit;
Why, such a man must surely need
Be very much your friend indeed,
To pardon, or to bear it."

—Anna Stevens Reed, in Presbyterian Banner.

For Love's Sake Only.

The committee meeting broke up abruptly when Louise ran out into the hall to answer the telephone. Janet rolled up her knitting in no time and jabbed the needles home with a dramatic sigh.

"Twenty rows," she announced as though that had been the object of the meeting. Down went the sweater into her knitting-bag and out came her engagement book. "Oh, yes, Red Cross Sale next. Coming along, Rita?"

Rita smiled slowly, and went on folding up her half-finished scarf with a deliberation that contrasted sharply with Janet's impetuous dive.

"If a whirlwind like you wants company," she assented. "I'm only going as far as Flossie's, though."

Deep in Saturday's page, Janet had hardly waited for an answer to her own question.

"Jordan's for wool, see Miss Rowe for the Red Cross, call up Mrs. Martin about the rummage sale, then Work Committee—" Janet went pounding on down her afternoon list till she became conscious of Rita's waiting eyes upon her.

"What was that? Oh, Flossie Morrison!" she demanded instantly: "What on earth do you want to see her for! You won't get a thing out of her. I've tried. I've been after her for the Defense League, and the Patriotic League, the Liberty Loan and the Y. W. C. A., and there didn't seem to be a thing she could do for us. Wouldn't even distribute a hundred Hoover pledge cards. Works in Drury's and does the work at home and takes care of her mother and grandmother. Positively out if it."

Janet rapped out the words with pitiless efficiency, quite as though she had just turned up Flossie's card in a catalogue. Rita's black eyes had begun to smoulder and deepen.

"All the same, she might need—"

"No, she doesn't. I thought of that, too." Janet was crisply certain. "But it's not a case where you could give food and clothes, even if they needed them. Or maybe you were going to teach her to knit?" The gathering storm in her friend's widening eyes forced a certain politeness into the last question.

"You don't understand one bit, Jan!" Rita's voice had a compelling quality when she was really roused. "There is such a thing as friendship without a string tied to it either way, anything to get, or anything to give. You seem to have everybody just indexed in your mind nowadays, what you're going to do for her, or what she's able to do for you. Aren't there any people you're glad to see, except those you have to?"

"Why, Flossie's my friend. I just love her, that's all. If you could see how dear she is with her mother! She entertains her evenings, that's why she wouldn't go out with your pledge cards. I won't teach her to knit, we're going to play the Midsummer Night's Dream music together. Jan, you didn't let your war garden this summer crowd out all your personal flowers, did you? I couldn't have stood it not to have my pansies, for love's sake only."

Her voice trembled a moment. Janet dropped her knitting-bag and swung an impulsive arm over Rita's shoulder.

"So Flossie's a pansy!" she laughed. "It took you to discover that. Rita, you goose, you peach, you! Don't take me too seriously. If I've got to the point where I catalogue my friends as viciously as all that, I don't deserve to have any. I would have my dahlias and gladioli this summer. Mother kept them picked, though."

Her tense face relaxed into momentary tenderness. She bent down for the engagement book again, consulted her wrist watch and laughed aloud.

"Half an hour early? Why, I believe I'll stop at the house and call on mother!" she decided briskly. "She is such a brick, and I haven't seen her for a week. It's a pity if I can't put in half an hour for love's sake only."—Mary Jenness, in Lutheran.

Resignation to the will of God is the whole of piety; it includes in it all that is good; and is a source of the most settled quiet and composure of mind. Our resignation to the will of God may be said to be perfect, when our will is lost and resolved up into His; when we rest in his will as our end, as being itself most just, and right, and good. And where is the impossibility of such an affection to what is just and right and good, such as loyalty of heart to the Governor of the universe, as shall prevail over all sinister indirect desires of our own?—Joseph Butler.

Church News.

(Continued from page 16)

never done a more agreeable piece of work and had never canvassed for a college that had more loyal friends. The management of the college desires to extend to the Committee on Christian Education, Rev. H. H. Sweets, D.D., executive secretary, and Rev. M. E. Melvin, D.D., field secretary, and their co-workers, the profound thanks of the college for this faithful and successful piece of work.

WEST VIRGINIA.

Charleston—(Those who know Dr. Sydnor will endorse all that is said.—Editor).

Rome, Ga., June 17, 1919.

Board of Elders,
Presbyterian Church,
Charlestown, W. Va.

Dear Brethren:

In view of recent events touching our common interests, we feel it not only our duty, but a pleasure to notify you that our session has called a congregational meeting for next Sabbath morning to consider the request of our pastor for a dissolution of present ties. It is the unanimous opinion of our board that his request be granted, and it is our purpose to so recommend, both to the congregation and to the Presbytery. We, however, are constrained to do this only because of his own desire after a two weeks fight between his love for us and what he has decided to be a providential call. If we should see fit to resist this call, we believe that we would have the support of practically a solid front, both in our local church and in our Presbytery. In our opinion, no minister here or elsewhere is more popular than he. This applies to the whole community and district as well as to our church.

He is the leader in our Presbytery, and in view of this fact we will feel a severe loss, especially as we are just entering upon a most active and encouraging Presbyterian laymen's movement.

In him you will find a rare combination—a good preacher, earnest and consecrated—a pastor, sacrificing and sympathetic—a good mixer and extraordinary musical talent. In fact, altogether we regard him the best equipped minister we know. His family is ideal—especially is the wife just such a helpmeet as is needed in his work. May you both be very happy and useful in your work is our earnest prayer. "Blessing upon you." Fraternal yours,

Board of Elders First Presbyterian Church.

Rome, Ga.

Marriages and Deaths

Marriages.

Gregory-Cobb—At the manse, Piedmont, S. C., May 6, 1919, by Rev. Albert E. Wallace, Mr. Samuel Story Gregory, of Greenville, S. C., and Miss Ethel Lyon Cobb, of Piedmont, S. C.

Campbell-Berryman—At Shelbyville, Ky., June 18, 1919, by Rev. W. R. Anderson, Rev. Robert F. Campbell, D.D., of Asheville, N. C., and Miss Julia Berryman, of Shelbyville, Ky.

Bernhardt-Wakefield—At the home of the bride's father, Mr. Edward F. Wakefield, in Lenoir, N. C., by Rev. C. M. Pickens, on June 25, 1919, Mr. George Harper Bernhardt and Miss Lillian Kent Wakefield, all of Lenoir, N. C.

Graham-Epps—By Rev. W. H. Workman, on June 17, 1919, Mr. Edward Graham, of Aynor, S. C., to Miss Margaret Du Rant Epps, of Clarendon Co., S. C., at the home of the bride's parents, Clarendon Co., S. C.

Snipes-Lasley—At the home of the bride in Bethlehem community, near Mebane, N. C., on June 25, 1919, by Rev. Jonas Barclay, Mr. Manley Snipes and Miss Mary Lasley.

Scott-White—On July 2, 1919, in the Hawfields Presbyterian Church, near Mebane, N. C., by Rev. Jonas Barclay, Mr. William Kerr Scott and Miss Mary E. White.

Deaths.

McBryde—John A. McBryde, a highly respected and devoted member of Antioch Presbyterian Church, died at his home in Hoke County, N. C., May 8, 1919, age 74 years, 6 months and 12 days. He leaves a widow, who was Miss Anabel C. Graham, of Lumber Bridge; one son, William A. McBryde, and one brother, James McBryde, to mourn his loss. He will be greatly missed also by a large number of other relatives and friends. He was quiet, unassuming, but well informed, of sound judgment and of the strictest integrity and high Christian ideals, and enjoyed the utmost confidence and respect of all who knew him. J. W. G.

Townsend—Mr. Pinkney P. Townsend was born at Harrisburg, April 14, 1847. Died there June 10, 1919. He united with Poplar Tent Presbyterian Church in his youth, but transferred his membership to the Patterson Mill Church when it was organized. He was elected ruling elder and clerk of session at that time, which offices he faithfully fulfilled for a period of twenty-three years. To these duties were added that of Sunday school superintendent in 1904. As such he discharged that duty punctually and zealously. "Blessed are the dead that die in the Lord."

B. W.

IN MEMORIAM,

Geo. W. M. Aitken.

Just as the beautiful Easter sun was sinking and the day was fading away into night, April 20, 1919, "A still small voice" gently whispered, "Well done, good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joy of thy Lord," and the great soul of our beloved brother elder, George W. M. Aitken, returned to God who gave it.

No more shall we know his genial smile, his winsome manner or his wise counsel, but our loss is his eternal gain, and we bow submissively to our Master and say: "Not our will but Thine be done."

Be it resolved, therefore, that a copy of this resolution be spread on the minutes of the session of Westminster Presbyterian Church, that a copy be sent his esteemed and bereaved wife and that a copy be sent to the Presbyterian Standard for publication.

H. C. Alexander,
J. P. Kirkpatrick,
P. S. Gilchrist, Committee.

IN MEMORIAM.

Mrs. Julia E. Woodcock.

Following a stroke of paralysis the previous week, Mrs. Julia E. Woodcock, one of Asheville's best known and loved women, passed away the morning of July 4 at 8 o'clock at her home on Montford avenue, unconscious for the past few days and unattended by pain.

Julia Emma (Johnston) Woodcock, the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. S. X. Johnston, was born March 10, 1840, on the ancestral plantation in Gaston county, eighteen miles from Charlotte, the home of the prominent Johnston family identified with that section since 1740 and represented in the Continental army of officers whose graves are in the nearby cemetery.

It was here that Mrs. Woodcock was reared and grew to the grace and beauty which characterized her younger years, and it was here that she married I. A. Woodcock, of Mobile. They lived in Lincolnton and Charlotte before removing in 1886 to Asheville where Dr. Woodcock died in 1887. Three children survive, Dr. S. Johnston Woodcock, Julian A. Woodcock, and R. J. Woodcock, of Asheville, and a stepson, Dr. John H. Woodcock, of Black Mountain.

Mrs. Woodcock was a lady whose fine countenance reflected her refinement and gentle soul. Modest and gentle, her kindly disposition found practical expression in the many forms of benevolence her ample means enabled her to effect. A member of the First Presbyterian Church of Asheville, Mrs. Woodcock held deep religious convictions which were reflected in her every day life. Ever courteous and charitable, her charm of manner won her a wide circle of friends who hold her memory dear.

The funeral services took place at the Woodcock residence and were conducted by Dr. R. F. Campbell. The burial was in Riverside cemetery.

IN MEMORIAM.

Mrs. Margaret E. Adams.

Mrs. Margaret Edwards Adams, who died Thursday morning in the Baker Sanatorium, was the last survivor of the twelve children of the late William Henry and Margaret Ramsey (Green) Holmes, of Charleston, S. C. Five of these children were Confederate soldiers, of whom Robert Little Holmes was the first man killed in the war between the States. Mrs. Adams was married to Rev. William Hooper Adams, who for twelve years was the pastor of the Circular church and member of the Presbytery of Charleston. He was the elder son of the eminent theologian of the Congregational Church, Nehemiah Adams, of Boston, who was also a supporter of the Southern cause.

Mrs. Adams was an ardent lover of her native Charleston, and with the exception of five years, spent her entire life here. In her last illness she was attended by her two children, Miss Pauline Adams, of Washington, and Rev. W. Hooper Adams, of the Tabernacle Presbyterian Church, Springfield, Mo.

Mrs. Adams, after the death of her husband, united with the Second Presbyterian Church, and for more than a quarter of a century has been a devoted member of that church. On Saturday afternoon her body was laid to rest by the still waters in beautiful Magnolia cemetery. The services were conducted by her pastor, Rev. Dr. Melton Clark, assisted by Dr. Alexander Sprunt.

Mrs. Adams was gentle and retiring in her disposition, and her whole life was one of unselfish devotion and faithfulness. "Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, shall give me at that day; and not to me only, but unto all them also that love His appearing."

Children's Department

A PATRIOTIC BIRTHDAY.

Dear Standard:

I wrote you a letter myself, but I feared you could not read it, so I asked mother to copy it for me.

This is my birthday, July 4. I am six years old today.

I can read nearly all the little letters in the Standard, and the stories, too. Mother and my brother read to me when I come to hard words.

I go to Sunday school at Mt. Pisgah. Mr. James McNeill is our superintendent and mother is my teacher.

I have many little chickens, and they will run to me, and let me take them in my arms.

My brother found a nest of little birds yesterday that had fallen on the ground, and they were crying, and the mother bird was crying, so John fixed the nest back in the tree and put the baby birds in again, so now they're happy. Your little friend,

Woodrow W. Caligan.

[Our little friend enclosed a picture that he drew for us all by himself of a railroad engine, a "Fourth of July special," for which we thank him.—Ed.]

A JOLLY PICNIC.

Dear Standard:

I am a little boy five years old. I live on the farm and enjoy helping Daddy do his work. If my little brother, Roderick Wilton, were living he would be large enough to play with me now. My other little brother, James McQueen, died with influenza in February. He was just five months old and so sweet.

I go to Sunday school every Sunday that I can. I won a prize last year for being there every Sunday and I am working for a prize again this year. Cousin Gertrude McInnis is my teacher. We had our Sunday school picnic last week and had such a jolly good time.

I have a collie puppy named Jack.

Your little friend,

Malcolm John McDonald.

Little Rock, S. C. Route 1.

AN UNCLE IN FRANCE.

Dear Standard:

I am a little girl six years old. We live on a farm. This is my first letter. I go to the Presbyterian Church at Black Mountain. I go to Sunday school. My teacher's name is Mrs. White. I am sick and my sister, who is in the second grade, is writing for me. I have two little kittens. I have an uncle in France. I want to surprise my mother. Your little unknown friend,

Eugenia Randolph.

Black Mountain, N. C.

JIMMY BUTLER'S MISSIONARY TREE.

Jimmy Butler had lived way up on the side of Lookout Mountain; not on the top, by any means—but about half-way up the steep mountain. Years and years ago, some of Jimmy's ancestors staked off a claim of land which had passed from generation to generation, until at last it fell into the hands of Jimmy Butler's father. So it happened that when Jimmy Butler came into the world, his home was a comfortable cottage on the old, handed-down land on the side of the mountains.

Jimmy was an only child, and there being scarcely any neighbor children to play with, the little boy grew up with the little children of nature in the woods. He knew just where old Molly Cottontail kept her little family; he knew where Gray Bunny stored his winter food; he knew where the old black vulture made her nest, and every spring hatched her snowy babies from speckled eggs. He knew the hiding-place of the mocking-bird, bob-white, and Jenny Wren. Yet Jimmy was often lonely; he wanted a companion. But boys very seldom went to the mountains, and Jimmy very seldom went down the mountain to Chattanooga, so friendship with boys was almost out of the question; so day by day he became more and more interested in his nature companions.

But one day an unusual thing happened. The mail-carrier stopped at the gate and left a letter in the mail-box.

In a state of excitement Jimmy got the letter and hurried to the house. "Look, mother," he exclaimed, "what a funny letter we've got."

Mrs. Butler took the oblong letter from Jimmy's fingers and uttered an exclamation of surprise.

"It's from father!" she cried, eagerly tearing open the envelope and hastily scanning the page.

"O Jimmy," she murmured, "your grandfather is coming to see us! He's never seen you, and you have never seen him, but I know you both will enjoy each other. He'll be here Saturday," the woman continued; "day after tomorrow, Jimmy, you shall see your Grandfather Gordon."

And Mrs. Butler immediately began to set the house in company order. Jimmy, as usual, sought the woods.

"I wonder what a preacher is like?" he mused aloud. "I wonder if he'll like my wood friends? I hope so, anyway," the boy concluded, "especially if he's going to stay long."

Jimmy was one of those characters we seldom find, who never built castles or bridges until he was sure it could or must be done, so he decided not to puzzle his brain over what his grandfather would be like until he arrived, for Jimmy only knew his grandfather had been a missionary in Japan for fifteen years, and that he was coming home on a visit.

"We'll just wait and see what he's like, Jenny Wren," he said to the little brown bird in the grapevine, and Jenny Wren warbled a song in answer.

Two days later Grandfather Gordon arrived. Father Butler met him in Chattanooga and brought him up the mountain road in a buckboard drawn by a big red horse, for Jimmy Butler lived on the steep side of Lookout Mountain, where, as yet, no car has been able to come near his door.

Together they tramped over the mountains, Jimmy introducing him to his nature friends, which to the boy's surprise, seemed to take to the grandfather as lovingly as they had to himself; and Grandfather Gordon, in turn, told Jimmy of the days when the Chickasaw Indians occupied Lookout, and later, how the Confederates spent a miserable winter there. He knew all the old tales that accompanied the mountains, and he and Jimmy were inseparable.

So it happened, they left the mountains one morning and went for a day in Chattanooga. Jimmy had often been there, but never for a whole day before, so he thoroughly enjoyed the visit.

But just as they were preparing to go home, Jimmy spied a new species of plum in a fruitdealer's window.

"What kind of a plum is that, grandfather?" Jimmy asked.

"It's called a Japanese plum," the man answered, "and it's delicious."

"Suppose I take one home to mother," Jimmy suggested. "She always brings me something when she comes alone."

"That's a lovely idea," the man answered. "Run in and get a bagful."

"No, I don't want a bagful, grandfather; I just want one for mother. See, it wouldn't be her gift if I took enough for everybody."

"You're a queer youngster," grandfather answered; "but the thought is rather good, and I like it. Just get one."

When they got home, the man noticed the pleased expression on the mother's face as she received the gift and heard the story.

"It's the most delicious thing I ever ate," she declared, as she tasted the luscious fruit.

"Here, Jimmy boy," she laughed, when at last only the seed was left, "you may have the seed."

"Thank you, mother," Jimmy replied as he took the seed and carefully examined it.

Suddenly a light came into his boyish face. "Say, grandfather," he exclaimed; "you were telling me the other day about the missionary trees you had planted in Japan. Why couldn't I plant one here?"

"You can, sonny," the old man answered, "and I told you the story, hoping you would do that."

"Then I will, grandfather," Jimmy replied. "I'll plant this plum-seed on the south side of the hill, and whatever it yields I will contribute to the missionary funds."

Five years have passed away since Jimmy planted the plum tree, and during those years Jimmy Butler has been a very busy boy. He has attended school through the winter, made his tuition through the summer by being a guide to the visitors on Lookout, and not long ago the missionary in Japan, who now is a hale and hearty old man, received a check for thirty-two dollars from his grandson, Jimmy, with a note, saying he was a boy of his word, and the enclosed was the result of the first year's crop on the missionary tree.—A. L. Whitson in World-Wide.

MRS. BED'S PARTY.

"Seems to me it's time to get ready for the party. Put away your playthings, children."

Dotty pouted just a little, but Bobby put his soldiers away at once; their mother always made Mrs. Bed's parties seem very attractive.

"Who will be at the party, mother?" they asked. It was always the same people at every party, but the children were never tired of hearing their mother name the guests.

"Well, Mrs. Mattress will be there. She always helps Mrs. Bed make her guests happy and contented. As she is of a retiring nature, very little will be seen of her, but her presence will be felt; then Mr. and Mrs. Sheet will help receive; the Misses Pillow will come with their cousin, Mr. Bolster; the Misses Blanket will be there tonight—one of them has been away during the summer. As they are twins you will not know one

NORTH CAROLINA COLLEGE FOR WOMEN

Offers thorough instruction and excellent advantages in the training of young women for the mastery of courses fitting themselves to become self-supporting. There are courses leading to the degrees of Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science and Bachelor of Music. Total number registered last year, 1299. Free tuition to those students who agree to teach in the schools of North Carolina after leaving the college. Excellent equipment, expenses moderate. For catalogue and other information, address J. I. FOUST, President, Greensboro, N. C.

SAUER'S

OLD VIRGINIA
FRUIT PUNCH
TRADE MARK
FLAVOR

Something you have been looking for
A New Temperance Beverage and a New Flavor

ALWAYS ready for any occasion as a beverage, served with plain or carbonated water. A base for fruit punches, blends with any fruit or can be combined with Sauer's Pure Strawberry, Raspberry or Pineapple Flavors for sherbets, water ices, milk shakes, etc.

A Flavor which is adaptable for any use.
A 35c bottle makes 35 glasses of punch. For sale by all good grocers. If you cannot get it at your grocers, send us 10c together with the name of your grocer, and we will send you a sample bottle—enough for a pint of syrup, to make 10 glasses, also will send recipe booklet.

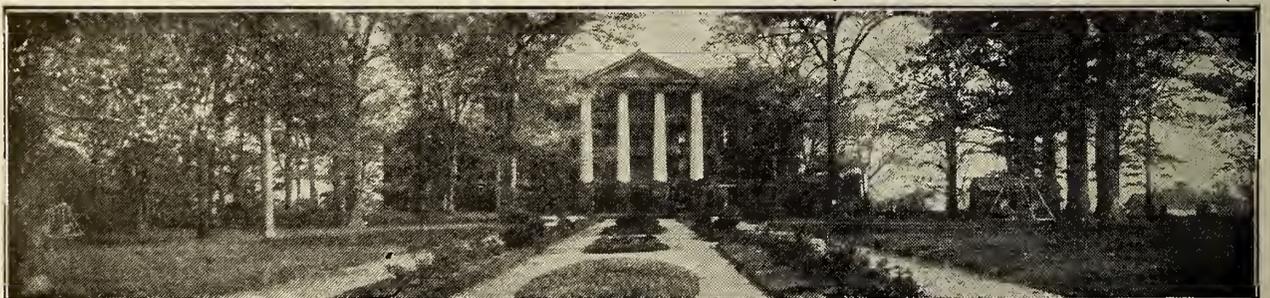

QUALITY HAS MADE SAUER'S THE
Largest Selling Brand in the U. S.

Quality Has Won for Sauer's
Seventeen Highest Awards for
Purity, Strength and Fine Flavor

including four conferred at expositions held in countries now allied with us. Manufacturers of 32 other flavors, including Vanilla, Lemon and Spice Flavors.

The C. F. SAUER COMPANY

J. I. Sauer President
RICHMOND, VIRGINIA

PEACE INSTITUTE, Raleigh, N. C.

For Young Women

Established 1857

Courses: Junior College. Preparatory to Standard Colleges. Three years Preparatory School, Classical, Literary and Scientific Courses leading to Diplomas. Special Diplomas awarded in Piano, Voice, Art and Expression, Home Economics. Excellent Commercial Course.

Instruction: Specialists in all departments.

LULA B. WYNNE HALL,
Home School for Girls

Situation: Location in capital city gives special opportunities. Delightful social advantages. Climate permits out-door life all Winter.

Athletics: Supervised indoors and outdoors by Athletic Director. Special attention individual development. Cheerful home-like surroundings. A good school that students really enjoy attending. For room reservation, catalogue or further information, write at once to

Miss Mary Owen Graham, Pres.

from the other, but you will not care; both are agreeable.

"Mr. Spread will be there early in the evening, but before the party begins he usually goes away with Mr. Foot-board. It is the same with Miss Counterpane. She helps during the day, but she never stays to the party."

Dotty took her little candle, and Bobby held his trailing, white gown, and joyously they followed their mother up the broad stairs to Mrs. Bed's party.—Youth's Companion.

THE GARDEN GATE.

Early and late, early and late,
Little Boy swings on the garden gate.

"It isn't a gate; it's a motor car!
I'm traveling fast, and I'm traveling far.
I toot my horn, and I turn my wheel,
And nobody knows how grand I feel."

Early and late, early and late,
Little Boy swings on the garden gate.

"It isn't a gate; it's a great big ship!
I'm off to the pole on a 'sploring trip.
I'll ride a white bear, holding on by his hair,
And I'll hurry him up with a whale-skin whip."

Early and late, early and late,
Little Boy swings on the garden gate.

"It isn't a gate; it's a big balloon!
I'm going to sail till I reach the moon.
I'll play with the man as hard as I can,
And I'll stir up the stars with a great horn spoon."

Early and late, early and late,
Little Boy swings on the garden gate.

"It's not a gate; it's"—off runs he,
His mother is calling: "Come in to tea!"

It's a wonderful gate, but it just isn't able

To turn itself into a supper table.

—Laura E. Richards, in Woman's Home Companion.

THOSE CONTEMPLATING A
A VISIT TO MONTREAT may secure good board and rooms by writing

MRS. MATTIE P. FROST,
Montreat, N. C.

Aberdeen & Rockfish Railroad

Between Aberdeen and Fayetteville

Eastbound		Westbound
Daily Ex.	Sunday	Daily Ex.	Sunday
Mixed	Pass.	Pass.	Mixed
No. 22	No. 38	STATIONS	No. 41 No. 21
7 30 am	9 10 am	Lv. Aberdeen Ar.	6 41 pm 5 00 pm
ar 8 35 am	10 00 am	Rae ford	5 55 pm lv 3 50 pm
lv 2 10 pm		Ar. Fayetteville Lv.	4 50 pm 1 00 pm

WAGRAM BRANCH

Southbound		Northbound
Daily Ex.	Sun.	Daily Ex.	Sun.
Mixed		Mixed
No. 11		STATIONS	No. 12
Lv. 10 30 am		Rae ford	Ar. 12 40 pm
Ar. 11 15 am		Wagram	Lv. 12 00 noon

W. A. BLUE, General Supt.,
Aberdeen, N. C.

Blue Ridge School for Boys

Hendersonville, N. C.

A select home school, on accredited list, offering to a limited number of boys, from 9 to 20 years old, a more intensive system of training than public schools can give.

Ideally located in healthful, invigorating climate, conducive to study.

Each boy's personality carefully studied and directed by efficient teaching staff composed of virile, patriotic men with successful teaching careers.

A teacher for every seven or eight boys insures individual attention in studies. Boys taught HOW TO STUDY.

MILITARY DRILL, BOY SCOUT activities, and all branches of athletics directed and supervised by able instructors.

High moral tone; cultured, home-like environments; parental discipline.

Total charge for session, September 17 to June 4, $480. Summer term, July and August.

For catalog, address

J. R. Sandifer, Headmaster, Hendersonville, N. C.

FASSIFERN

A HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

is situated on a plateau over two thousand feet above sea level and completely surrounded by the majestic Appalachian mountains, in the city of Hendersonville, N. C., far-famed for its year-around delightful and health-giving climate.

Fassifern suffered not a single case of influenza during term 1918-19 and was not closed for a day. Fassifern offers thorough preparatory courses both for entrance to colleges of highest rank and professional work.

Accredited by the Association of Southern Colleges, the University of North Carolina and prepares for Smith and Wellesly colleges of Massachusetts and other colleges of high rank which no longer receive certificate students.

Next session opens September 17th, 1919.

For catalog, book of views and special information, address

MISS KATE C. SHIPP,

HENDERSONVILLE, N. C.

GUILFORD COLLEGE

A Christian Co-educational College with high standards in scholarship and morals. Thorough Literary Courses leading to the degrees of B. A. and B. S. Excellent training in Music and Domestic Science. Strong preparatory department. Able faculty. Fine athletic record. Large beautiful campus with ten modern and completely equipped buildings. Healthful climate. Pure water.

Rates reasonable.
For further information and catalogue, address

THE PRESIDENT
GUILFORD COLLEGE, N. C.

MEDICAL COLLEGE
OF THE STATE OF
SOUTH CAROLINA

Schools of Medicine and Pharmacy

Owned and Controlled by the State

RATED IN CLASS A by the American Medical Association. Registered by the New York State Board of Regents, member of the Association of American Medical Colleges. Member of the American Conference of Pharmaceutical Faculties.

New Building With Well Equipped Laboratories. A full corps of efficient all-time teachers.

Located opposite the Roper Hospital and very near the Charleston Museum, thus affording the students more extensive opportunities for research and training.

Requirements For Admission to the Medical School are certificate from a four-year high school which requires not less than 14 units for graduation, and two years of college work. The college work must include physics, biology, chemistry.

Women Admitted on the same terms as men. Session opens Sept. 26, 1919. For Catalogue, address.

H. GRADY CALLISON, Registrar
Charleston, S. C.

UNITED STATES RAILROAD ADMINISTRATION.

Regional Director's Office, Southern Region.

New high records for on-time passenger train service in the Southern region were set in May by the railroads under government control. Reports made public today by the United States Railroad Administration show that of nearly fifty thousand trains operated during the month by the twenty-eight roads, 95.3 per cent maintained their schedules. This topped the April record of 94.3, which was believed to represent a hitherto unequalled performance.

Such service was made possible by enthusiastic individual effort and team work among the railroad men, stimulated by competition among the different roads. For months special attention has been given to the passenger train performance, with the purpose of making it generally as nearly 100 per cent perfect as possible. Through the Regional Director's office, each line has kept informed of what the others were doing, and a spirited race for supremacy has resulted.

For seventeen larger roads, operating 47,403 trains, the May on time rec-

HENS MOULT FAST.

E. J. Reefer, the poultry expert, has discovered a scientific product that hastens the moult and revitalizes the organs of the hen and puts her in fine laying condition. The tonic is called "More Eggs" and a package of it is enough to carry the ordinary chicken raiser over the entire moulting season. First to lay is first to pay. "Since using 'More Eggs' I get forty to fifty eggs a day, instead of eight or nine," writes A. P. Woodward, of St. Cloud, Fla. A million dollar bank guarantees that you can have your money back if you want it. So, you don't take any risk. Send $1.00 for a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic. If you want to hurry the moult and get more eggs, act at once; it means more profit for you. Don't wait, but order today. Send $1 today to E. J. Reefer, 4th Floor, Poultry Bldg., Kansas City, Missouri. Or ask Mr. Reefer for his valuable poultry book free, that tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry.

"THE VALLEY OF VISION."

Henry Van Dyke.

Varied stories dealing with human love and faith, with dreams and realities, with things that will last now that the war is ended but not forgotten. One of the longest is a vision of three unknown days in the life of Jesus of Nazareth. It belongs with "The Story of the Other Wise Man," which has gone around the world.

PRICE $1.50, Net.

— Order from —

PRESBYTERIAN COMMITTEE OF PUBLICATION

Richmond, Va. Texarkana, Ark.-Tex.

CATAWBA COLLEGE

An old, time-honored institution located in the Piedmont section of North Carolina. Established in 1851. The following courses are offered: Classical, modern Language and Scientific, with degrees of A. B. and B. S.; Music, Expression, Art and Business. Trained specialists in each department who take personal interest in your boy and girl. Christian influences. Fine climate. Modern conveniences. Moderate cost. For catalogue and book of views, address

A. D. WOFFINGER, D. D., President, NEWTON, N. C.

GROVE INSTITUTE

(Formerly James Sprunt Institute)

KENANSVILLE

NORTH CAROLINA

A Preparatory School for Girls. High Grade, Thoroughly Christian. Very Moderate Cost. Students receive Close, Personal Attention in a Home-Like Atmosphere.

NEXT SESSION BEGINS SEPTEMBER 10th.

For Catalog and Particulars, address REV. W. F. HOLLINGSWORTH, Pres.

Chicora College for Women

THE PRESBYTERIAN COLLEGE OF SOUTH CAROLINA

A Standard College of Distinction and Character

Religion and Philosophy

Letters and Science

Home Economics

The Fine Arts

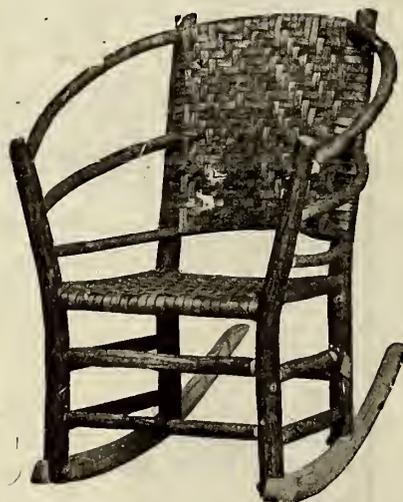

(Music, Art and Expression)

For Catalogue and Information, address

Pres. S. G. BYRD, D.D., Columbia, S. C.

Another Big Shipment of Popular Rustic Hickory Furniture

Just In

This most popular style rocker---No. 23---is only $6.10, freight prepaid to any point in North or South Carolina.

Write for catalogue of our complete line of Rustic Hickory Furniture.

W. T. McCoy & Co.

Charlotte, N. C.

THE HOME OF GOOD FURNITURE

ord was 95.4 per cent, compared with 94.6 in April. The eleven smaller roads maintained an average of 95.3 compared with 94.3 in April. Only one of the larger lines fell below 91 per cent. One of the smaller group, the Macon, Dublin & Savannah, accomplished the extraordinary feat of sending every one of its 124 trains through on schedule. Southern railroad lines record was 96 per cent.

MOST POPULAR PIANO.

If you should take a vote throughout the Southern States as to the most popular piano on the market there is no question but that the instrument selected by the Standard Piano Club would be elected by an overwhelming majority. This is proven by the fact that the instrument we have selected, the Ludden & Bates Cabinet Grand Upright, has been on the market for nearly half a century and is sold in larger numbers than any other make of instrument on the Southern market. The owners of Ludden & Bates pianos, wherever you find them, are delighted.

The quality and durability of the Ludden & Bates instruments are superb. They are built especially to endure the trying Southern climate, whose excessive moisture ruins many good instruments that are not especially built for the South.

By placing your order through the Club, with the orders of ninety-nine other members, you may have one of these beautiful and sweet-toned instruments at a price that is actually lower than you must pay for a common piano, and on terms to suit your convenience. Write for your copy of the Club's beautifully illustrated catalogue with full particulars. Address the Managers, Ludden & Bates, Standard Piano Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga.

COLUMBIA COLLEGE

COLUMBIA, S. C.

A College for Women ranked in Class "A" by Board of Education, M. E. Church, South. Recognized for its high type of Christian culture
 Unusually complete educational facilities, strong university-trained faculty, thorough equipment, ideal location.
 Handsome fire-proof buildings, elegantly fitted with every convenience for health, comfort and safety.
 Beautiful 20-acre campus, affording ample opportunity for outdoor games.
 Library of upwards of 5,000 volumes in large, well-lighted quarters. Fine collection of magazines.
 Thorough courses leading to degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Science.
 Conservatory of Music under direction of skilled instructors.
 Thorough courses in Art, Expression, Business, and Home Economics.
 1919 session begins September 17th. For descriptive catalogue, address

G. T. PUGH, Ph. D., President, Columbia, S. C.

ELISE HIGH SCHOOL
 MOORE COUNTY HEMP NORTH CAROLINA

A SCHOOL FOR BOYS AND GIRLS

Courses thorough, covering regular High School work, Music, Bible, Shorthand and Typewriting. Discipline mild but firm. Write for illustrated catalog.

W. C. McCOLL, Principal, HEMP, N. C.

United States Railroad Administration

DIRECTOR GENERAL OF RAILROADS

Seaboard Air Line Railroad

Reduced Summer Excursion Round-Trip Tickets on sale May 15th to September 30th, final limit October 31st, 1919, to the following points:

Alta Pass, N. C.	$ 7.14	Pensacola, N. C.	$ 9.06
Hickory, N. C.	3.30	Rutherfordton, N. C.	4.32
Johnson City, Tenn.	10.80	Shelby, N. C.	2.88
Lenoir, N. C.	4.50	Switzerland, N. C.	16.96
Norfolk, Va.	17.46	Virginia Beach, Va.	18.26
Old Point, Va.	18.06	Wrightsville Beach, N. C.	10.66

The above rates do not include war tax. Also attractive rates to other resorts.

For particulars as to fares, trains, schedules, etc., apply to any Railroad Ticket Agent.

E. W. LONG, P. S. A.,
 CHARLOTTE, N. C.

JOHN T. WEST, D. P. A.,
 RALEIGH, N. C.

RELIGIOUS AFFILIATIONS OF THE CABINET.

No doubt there are many who are interested in knowing the religious affiliation of the United States Cabinet. Some of the daily papers have made inquiry of the President's secretary with the following results, according to the "Central Christian Advocate:" "President Wilson, Presbyterian; Secretary of State Lansing, Presbyterian; Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo (resigned), Episcopalian; Secretary of War Baker, Episcopalian; Attorney-General Gregory, Presbyterian; Postmaster General Burleson, not officially affiliated, family mostly Baptists; Secretary of the Navy Daniels, Methodist; Secretary of the Interior Lane, Presbyterian; Secretary of the Agriculture Houston, Episcopalian; Secretary of Commerce Redfield, Episcopalian; Secretary of Labor Wilson, Presbyterian. The President is not a member of any secret lodge or organization other than college fraternities."

MONTREAT LOT FOR SALE—

Beautiful situation near postoffice. For particulars, address W. F. Hollingsworth, Kenansville, N. C.

PASTOR WANTED.

The Edgemont Presbyterian Church of Durham, N. C., is without a pastor and wishes to enter into correspondence with any one seeking a pastorate. For particulars address T. B. Fuller, Durham, N. C.

BIBLES

All Kinds All Sizes

WRITE FOR CATALOGUE

JOHN T. ALLEN

LITTLETON NORTH CAROLINA

Roanoke College

SALEM, VA.

- Location Situated in the Roanoke Valley, noted for healthful climate and grandeur of mountain scenery.
 - Rank A STANDARD AMERICAN COLLEGE FOR MEN. Its degrees recognized everywhere.
 - Curriculum Courses arranged in groups for A. B. and B. S. degrees, preparing for life and looking to professional training.
 - Facilities A very superior faculty, library of 25,000 volumes, eight buildings, and working laboratories.
- Roanoke is devoted to Christian education for service of Church and State.
- Sixty-seventh session opens September 17.
For catalogue and all information, address
DR. J. A. MOREHEAD, President

Medical College of Virginia

(State Institution—Co-Educational)

STUART MCGUIRE, M.D., LL.D., Pres.

MEDICINE DENTISTRY
PHARMACY NURSING

New buildings, completely equipped. Laboratories under full time instructors. Unusual clinical facilities offered in three hospitals owned by the college, also in city hospitals and institutions.

81st session begins September 17, 1919.
For catalogue, address

J. R. McCAULEY, Secretary

1121 East Clay Street RICHMOND, VA.

East Carolina Teachers' Training School

A State school to train teachers for the public schools of North Carolina. Every energy is directed to this one purpose. Tuition free to all who agree to teach. Fall term begins Sept. 24, 1919. For catalog and other information, address ROBERT H. WRIGHT, President, Greenville, N. C.

COLUMBIA THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY COLUMBIA, S. C.

THORNTON WHALING, D.D., LL.D., President of the Seminary

Professor of Didactic and Polemic Theology

WILLIAM M. McPHEETERS, D.D., LL.D.

Professor of Old Testament Literature and Exegesis

HENRY ALEXANDER WHITE, Ph.D., D.D., LL.D.

Professor of Ecclesiastical History and Church Polity

RICHARD C. REED, D.D., LL.D.

Professor of the English Bible and Homiletics

EDGAR D. KERR, A.B., B.D.

Instructor in Hebrew and Greek Languages

GEORGE S. FULBRIGHT, A.B.

Instructor in Elocution

WILLIAM M. MILLS, A.B., D.D.

Instructor in Rural Sociology

J. O. REAVIS, D.D., LL.D.

Professor of English Bible, Pastoral Theology and Missions

Our most progressive Theological Seminary, grown from twenty-four to sixty four students in seven years. Full curriculum and special courses in Pedagogy, Sunday School Organization, Missions, Evangelism, Rural Sociology and Elocution. Scholarships for prepared students. For further information, write to THORNTON WHALING, President.

Coker College

Hartsville, S. C.

Equipment

A modern, up-to-date College for young women. $400,000 in buildings. 82,000 gallon swimming pool open all the year. Eighty-two baths. Boating on Prestwood Lake. Athletics. Operates its own heating, lighting, water, laundry, and refrigerating plant. College physician and registered nurse. Expert dietitian. Director of Physical Education.

Literary Course

No Preparatory Department. Four-year courses leading to B.A. and B.S. degrees. Home Economics required for graduation without extra charge. Full-time librarian with a course in library methods. Teachers with both college and university training.

Music Department

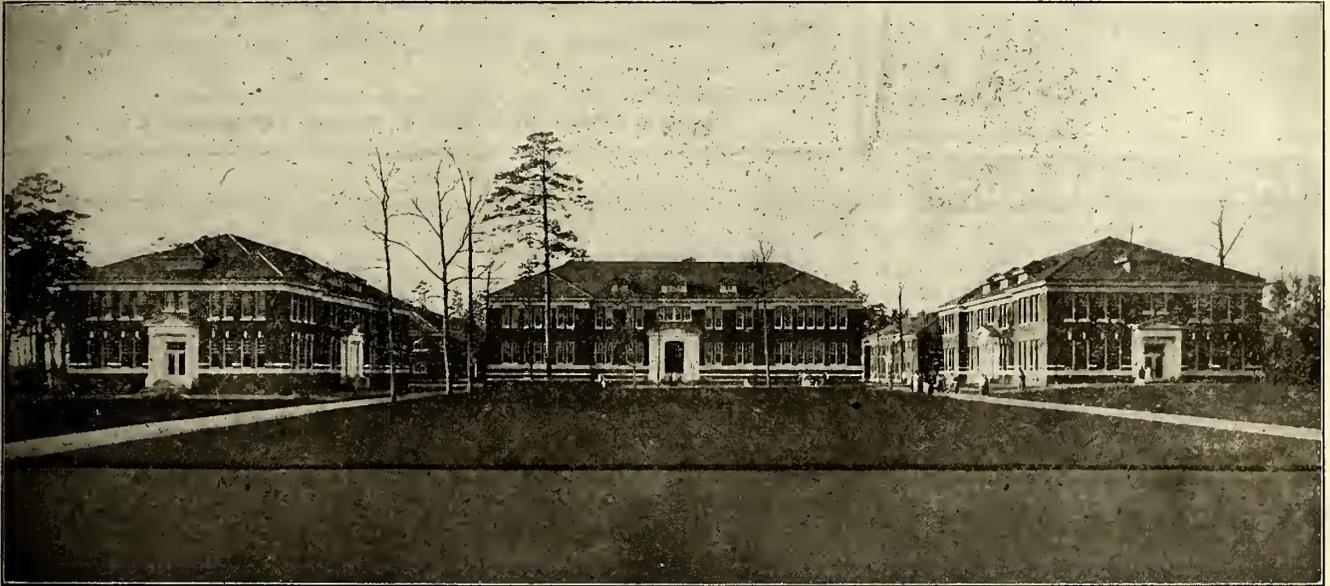

Ten studios. Teachers use Grand Pianos. Four years' course leading to B. Mus. degree. No short courses. Only diplomas awarded. Piano, Pipe Organ, Voice, and Violin. Annual May Festival.

Capacity limited to 300 boarding students.

E. W. SIKES, M. A., Ph. D., President

Queens College for Women

Charlotte, North Carolina

Established More Than Sixty Years Ago as "Charlotte Female Institute"

It is Now Recognized as the Best Equipped College for Women in the Entire South

We have five new two-story brick buildings with modern fire extinguishers, designed and erected solely for convenience, comfort, efficiency and safety. These buildings are located in the beautiful suburb of Myers Park, three and one-half miles from the center of the city.

We have a splendid wooded campus of 25 acres.

15 units required for entrance. Graduates from recognized State High Schools admitted on certificate.

This College is built on a firm belief in the inspiration of the Bible. Thorough Bible courses provided.

Standard college course leading to B. A. degree. Most complete equipment for thorough education.

Physical, Chemical and Biological Laboratories; Library, Gymnasium, Preparatory department. Able faculty. Dormitories divided into units of two rooms and connecting with bath, accommodating four students. Large, well-ventilated rooms, big closets. Buildings as near fire-proof as possible. Water, gas, electricity. Convenient street car service.

School of Music, Expression and Art offers superior opportunities. Music building has twenty-six rooms equipped exclusively for this department. Complete, thorough course leading to diploma. Post graduate course in music offered.

Our Motto: "Christian Women for Christian Homes"

Necessary expenses very moderate, about $325.00 for the regular literary course, including board. FALL TERM begins September 10, 1919.

For further information send for catalogue or write

WM. ANDERSON, Registrar, Box 300, Charlotte, N. C.

The New York Sun drew attention in its edition of June 10 to the fact that fifty years ago that day the legislature of the territory of Wyoming passed a bill granting equal civil rights to women—the first legislation of the kind adopted in America.

“What is left for us, save, in growth
Of soul, to rise up, far past both,
From the gift looking to the giver
And from the cistern to the river,
And from the finite to infinity,
And from man’s dust to God’s divinity?”
—Browning.

Individual Cups

Every church should use. Clean and sanitary. Send for catalog and special offer. Trial free.

Thomas Communion Service Co. Box 310, Lima, Ohio

MARY BALDWIN SEMINARY For Young Ladies

Established 1842. Term begins Sept. 12th. In the beautiful and historic Shenandoah Valley of Virginia. Unsurpassed climate, modern equipment. Students from 31 states. Courses: Collegiate, 3 years; Preparatory, 4 years. Music, Art and Domestic Science. Catalog. STAUNTON, VIRGINIA

EXPERT KODAK FINISHING

Developing and printing done by artists. Most beautiful work guaranteed at all times. Satisfaction or no charge. Developing, 10c. per film. Printing: 2 1/4 x 3 1/4, 5c.; 2 1/4 x 4 1/4, 4c.; 3 1/4 x 5 1/2, 5c. Quick delivery. Send one film to test our service.

Ligon Drug Co., Spartanburg, S. C.

Greensboro College for Women

The A-Grade Woman’s College of the Two Methodist Conferences of North Carolina

Classed in Group A by State Board of Examiners

Chartered 1838. Confers the degrees of A. B., and B. S., in the literary department, and B. M., in the music department.

In addition to our regular classical course, special attention is called to the departments of Home Economics, Expression, Business, Art, Education, Sunday School Teacher Training, Piano Pedagogy, and to our complete School of Music.

Modern new $50,000.00 Dormitory completed 1918. Conservatory of Music to cost $100,000.00 being erected in 1919.

FALL TERM OPENS SEPT. 10, 1919. For further information apply to

REV. S. B. TURRENTINE, A. M., D. D., President, GREENSBORO, N. C.

PRESBYTERIAN COLLEGE of South Carolina

One of the most modern and best equipped colleges for men under the control of the Presbyterian Church. Beautiful buildings, strong faculty, high standard of work, broad course, attractive student body, best moral influences, Reserve Officers’ Training Corps and strong athletic team.

For Catalogue and information apply to

President Davison M. Douglas, Clinton, S. C.

DO YOU KNOW

Flora Macdonald College?

If you do, that is sufficient. If you do not, a catalogue will interest you, especially if you are seeking

An Up-to-Date Christian College for Women

WRITE THE REGISTRAR

FLORA MACDONALD COLLEGE, RED SPRINGS, N. C.

DAVIDSON COLLEGE

"The greatest single institution, in point of service,
controlled by the Southern Presbyterian Church."

THORNTON WHALING, President
Columbia Theological Seminary.

COURSES OF STUDY: Literary, Scientific, Classical, preparing for ministry, medicine, law, engineering, business, teaching. Faculty experienced and University trained.

COLLEGE SPIRIT: The boys work in season and out for a "Bigger and Better Davidson." The typical Davidson student, or alumnus, is loyal, enthusiastic, and successful in whatever he undertakes.

Y. M. C. A. SECRETARY will be continued next year. Rev. R. W. Miles, General Secretary, will be a big factor in the boys' college life.

LITERARY SOCIETIES at Davidson have a rightful place on the campus. Davidson has contested 20 intercollegiate debates and has won 14, or 70 per cent. The student gets a fine parliamentary training.

IN ATHLETICS Davidson has football, baseball, tennis, track, golf, outdoor gymnasium, large new gymnasium, R. O. T. C.

MUSICAL TALENT has expression and development through the Glee Club and Orchestra, an enthusiastic organization that furnishes music for public functions at the college, and gives concerts each year in other towns and colleges.

Students find the climate bracing and beneficial, and the social atmosphere friendly and congenial.

EXPENSES Exceptionally Reasonable.

OLD STUDENTS have registered for next year from the following states: North Carolina, South Carolina, Florida, Mississippi, Maryland, Alabama, Tennessee, Texas, Arkansas, Virginia, Georgia, W. Va., D. C., La., China and Japan.

NEW STUDENTS from the following states: N. C., S. C., Ga., Fla., Tex., Va., W. Va., Tenn., Miss., Ala., Mo., D. C.

REGISTER EARLY--MAKE SURE OF ROOM

PICTURE FOLDERS and other literature will be sent immediately upon receipt of your request.

DAVIDSON COLLEGE

Davidson : North Carolina

HENS MOULT FAST.

E. J. Reefer, the poultry expert, has discovered a scientific product that hastens the moult and revitalizes the organs of the hen and puts her in fine laying condition. The tonic is called "More Eggs" and a package of it is enough to carry the ordinary chicken raiser over the entire moulting season. First to lay is first to pay. "Since using 'More Eggs' I get forty to fifty eggs a day, instead of eight or nine," writes A. P. Woodward, of St. Cloud, Fla. A million dollar bank guarantees that you can have your money back if you want it. So, you don't take any risk. Send $1.00 for a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic. If you want to hurry the moult and get more eggs, act at once; it means more profit for you. Don't wait, but order today. Send $1 today to E. J. Reefer, 4th Floor, Poultry Bldg., Kansas City, Missouri. Or ask Mr. Reefer for his valuable poultry book free, that tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry.

The Kingdom of God is not going to be submerged by the intellectual wavellets of one restless period. It is only preparing, as in past emergencies when men thought it utterly overthrown, for a new advance with more invincible weapons and a Divine strategy.—Ibid.

Too many seem to think more about going to heaven than seeking to lead others there.—The Quiver.

Cancer Treated Successfully at the Kellam Hospital

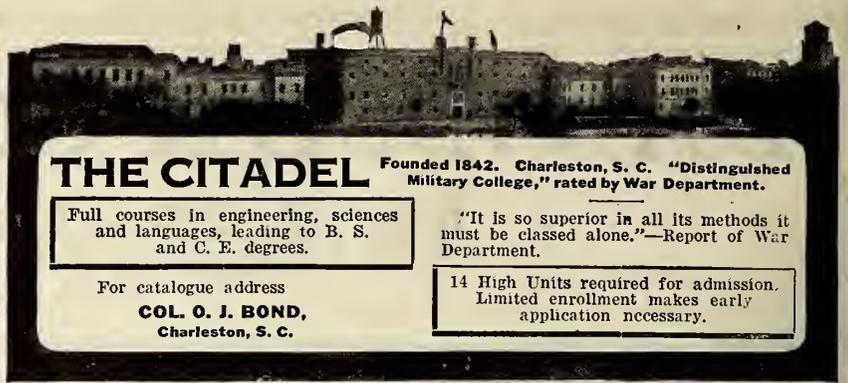

The record of Kellam Hospital is without parallel in history, having restored, without the use of the Knife, Acids, X-Ray or Radium, over ninety per cent. of the many hundreds of sufferers from cancer which it has treated during the past twenty-two years. We want every man and woman in the United States to know what we are doing.

KELLAM HOSPITAL, 1617 W. Main St., Richmond, Va.

YOUR FACE?
Is the Complexion Muddy, Tanned, Freckled?
If troubled with skin eruptions, sunburn, pimples, try
PALMER'S SKIN-SUCCESS SOAP
It cleanses, softens and clears the skin and tends to remove sunburn, tan, freckles, blackheads, pimples and eczema.
Thoroughly antiseptic. Ask your druggist, or write for free samples to
THE MORGAN DRUG CO.,
1521 Atlantic Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Personal Instruction
is the prime secret of a thorough education. An excellent standard and high curriculum maintained for one hundred and thirty-four years and an intentionally limited enrollment insure a most thorough-going literary training at the
COLLEGE OF CHARLESTON
Excellent equipment. Climate unsurpassed. Expenses moderate. CO-EDUCATIONAL. For catalogue and illustrated booklet address Harrison Randolph, Pres., Charleston, S. C.

THE CITADEL Founded 1842. Charleston, S. C. "Distinguished Military College," rated by War Department.
Full courses in engineering, sciences and languages, leading to B. S. and C. E. degrees.
For catalogue address
COL. O. J. BOND,
Charleston, S. C.
"It is so superior in all its methods it must be classed alone."—Report of War Department.
14 High Units required for admission. Limited enrollment makes early application necessary.

North Carolina State College of Agriculture and Engineering
WEST RALEIGH
A Land Grant College founded under an act of Congress by the State Legislature of North Carolina in March, 1887. Splendidly equipped for the education of the sons of the State in the technical and industrial arts.
Four year courses in Agriculture, in Agricultural Chemistry, and in Civil, Electrical, Mechanical, Chemical and Textile Engineering. New departments in Agricultural Engineering and Highway Engineering.
Numerous short courses.
Unit of Reserve Officers Training Corps. Seniors and Juniors receive pay amounting to $118 annually. All students receive free uniforms amounting in four years to $164.
Strong athletic teams.
$40,000 Y. M. C. A. building. Regular paid secretary.
Two hundred and forty free scholarships.
Requirement for admission: eleven units—practically equivalent to the completion of tenth grade work.
Board $16.00 per month. Tuition $45.00 per year. Room rent, heat and light $30.00 per year.
Enrollment last session 1,020, exclusive of all summer students.
Fall term begins September 3.
For catalogue, illustrated circular or entrance blanks, write
E. B. OWEN, Registrar

The Measure of a College

Elegance of buildings and grounds and wealth of equipment and endowment do not make a college. The REAL MEASURE of a college is found in its ideal—in the personality of its teaching force, and in the quality of its teaching. The real work in education is accomplished by the person. The school can rise no higher than the character of those who give it life.

MITCHELL COLLEGE

maintains a faculty of men and women of strong Christian character and influence, whose qualifications for teaching have been gained by years of thorough preparation and experience. The classes at Mitchell College are small, insuring for each student the utmost benefit of individual instruction.

Well Planned Courses Offered in All College Subjects

Courses of superior excellence in English, Bible, Music, Expression, Home Economics, and Business. The Department of Music is in charge of a graduate of the Hague Conservatory.

Measure These Advantages

Invigorating climate, small classes, efficient instruction, supervised evening study for all, home life, and positive Christian influence; moderate expenses.

A Preparatory Department offering the best advantages is maintained. Catalog on request.

J. M. MOORE, President, STATESVILLE, N. C.

NEW SONG BOOKS

For Your Church

8c

A wonderful value; 83 familiar songs of the Gospel, words and music. Used all over the world. Only $8 per hundred for No. 1 or 2, round or shaped notes, and $15 for No. 1 and 2 combined, round notes only. Send 30c for samples. Money back if not pleased.

E. A. K. HACKETT, Dept. No. 56, FT. WAYNE, IND.

The McCallie School

A Home School for Boys

On historic and beautiful Missionary Ridge. 1000 feet above sea level. Sound preparation for college and technical schools. Boys live in Christian homes. Our Honor System is conspicuously successful. Student self-government. Large and competent corps of teachers with small classes. Boys are taught how to study. Boys engage in all athletic sports in both indoor and outdoor gymnasiums, or on one of the best Athletic Fields in the South. Diving tower, swimming, rowing at McCallie Lake. Military Drill. Send for well illustrated catalogue.

Headmasters } S. J. McCallie, M. A.
J. P. McCallie, M. A., Ph. D.
Chattanooga, Tennessee

A Southern Presbyterian University, owned and controlled by a Board of Representative Presbyterians from every Southern State.

THE SCHOOLS

Of Liberal Arts, Science, Literature and Journalism, and Commerce are open all the year and students may enter at the beginning of any one of the four terms as follow: Sept. 24, Jan. 2, Apr. 1 and July 6.

A beautiful Book of Views, illustrating Student Life at the University, will be sent free, with catalogue, on application. Address

Oglethorpe University
Oglethorpe University, Ga.
(Suburb of Atlanta)

DR. J. M. BELK, MONROE, N. C.

W. H. BELK, CHARLOTTE, N. C.

Belk Bros. Dept. Stores

CHARLOTTE, NORTH CAROLINA
19 STORES

Send us your orders for Bibles, Testaments, Confession of Faith, or Book of Church Order, for quick delivery. 10 percent discount for Sunday Schools, Societies, or Churches, Preachers or Teachers—and in dozens we will give you wholesale price.

WHY NOT HAVE A BIBLE OR TESTAMENT IN EVERY SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLAR'S HANDS EVERY SUNDAY? WE WILL HELP DO THIS. WRITE TO US FOR THE PLAN.
NELSON'S BIBLES

1184—Sunday School Scholar's Bible. Practical Helps for Young People. How to study the Bible. How to study the lesson. Bible questions and answers all in this Bible. Good black type, red edges, leatheroid binding. Size 5½x4x1. Special.....98c

Same Bible, gilt edge, better leather binding, illustrated ..$1.25 and $1.50

12—Linen Card Back Bible. Good big print. Fine for the Sunday School classes, about 6x5x1.....75c

1148—Sunday School Bible. Linen board backs, black type, 5x4x1...59c
7764—Teacher's Bible, $5.00.

India Linen Paper, self pronouncing Bible Dictionary, Combined Concordance, 12 Colored Maps, Morocco Binding, Silk Sewed, good print. Size 7¾x5½x1¼$5.00

6512—Teacher's Edition Bible—New and instructive maps, 14 maps, placed throughout the Bible, illustrating the Scripture, 20 beautifully colored pictures, complete Bible Dictionary, new Concordance and Helps. Leather binding, strongly made. Black face type. Size 7x5x1½$2.50
6512—Teacher's Bible, $3.95.

Linen Paper, thumb index, illustrated colored pictures, 12 new maps, Bible Dictionary, Morocco leather binding. Black face type, convenient size, 7x5-1¼. Special$3.95

1212—Illustrated Bible. 4,000 questions and answers, short history of each book of the Bible by A. T. Pier-son, D.D. Harmony of the four Gospels. How to study the Bible. Colored maps. 7x5½x1½.....$2.00
7764—Teacher's Bible, $5.95.

Self pronouncing Bible, new, improved maps, finely illustrated, combined Concordance, 12 colored maps, newest and most complete dictionary yet printed. Morocco binding, silk sewed, a beautiful Bible. 8x5½...$5.95
Why not have a Confession of Faith in Every Home? We carry them in stock for your convenience—50c, 75c.

BOOK OF CHURCH ORDER. Every officer in the Presbyterian Church ought to have this Book and study it. We will mail you one for 25c.

NELSON'S TESTAMENTS

402—New Testament, 65c. Bound in leatheroid, large black face type. Size 6x5.

321—New Testament, 48c. Bound same as 402. Black type. Size 5x3½.

400—New Testament, 25c. This is a special number. Large black type, cardboard back, clear white paper—the quality equals most 50c books. Special25c

29—New Testament. Vest pocket size, leatheroid binding, fine for the children25c
403—New Testament, 98c.

This is leather bound. Large black type, gilt edge. Size 6x4½.

403P—New Testament and Psalms. Leather bound, gilt edge. Large print $1.19

SCHOFIELD BIBLES

We carry these in the newest Editions, bound in good, heavy Linen Card-board backs, or can send you the finest Leather Bound. If you want a Bible to get "REAL HELP" right at home—the newest improved help—a Schofield Bible is the one to buy.

No 50—Linen Cardboard Backs. Good black type, with every help at home. Same helps as the highest price Bible. Size of Book 7x5-1¼.....$1.50

No. 70—Same as above, only larger size type and book, 8½x6½x1¼ $2.00

We carry Schofield Bibles in all kinds of Bindings—Morocco, Persian, Etc. Real Linen Paper, from $5.00 to $10. Let us send you one on approval.

We carry all kinds of New Testaments from 15c to $2.00.

POULTRY EXPERT GIVES AWAY CHICK FOOD.

To introduce to the poultry raisers of this section a Chick Food that is nationally known, E. J. Reefer, the Poultry Expert, 3rd Floor Poultry Bldg., Kansas City, Mo., is giving away free a one dollar package of Chick Food absolutely free to every poultry raiser who agrees to tell his neighbor about it. This medicated Baby Chick Food is sold on an absolute guarantee to raise chicks for six weeks and it is backed by the National Reserve Bank of Kansas City. Send Mr. Reefer one dollar and he will not only send you one regular dollar size package of Chick Food, but he will include in the same shipment an extra package absolutely free, which means he will send you two regular full size dollar packages of this scientific medicated Baby Chick Food for only one dollar. And he will prepay all the charges on the first order. Considering that this product is guaranteed by the National Reserve Bank and that it keeps baby chicks for six weeks, every poultry raiser should certainly try this scientific medicated Baby Chick Food without further delay. It will pay you to write Mr. Reefer today.

Let not your soul coop itself up in a corner. For, instead of attaining to greater sanctity in proud, and disdainful and impatient seclusion, the devil will keep you company there and will do your sequestered soul much mischief.—Santa Teresa.

Meredith College
Raleigh No. Car.

For Young Women

Offers four years of genuine college work based upon 14 units of high school credit. Courses lead to A. B. and B. S. degrees. Diplomas in Art and Music after completing four years of work.

Location in center of the Capital City, gives unusual advantages.

Library facilities excellent. Attention to physical education. Charges moderate.

For catalogue or further information write

Chas. E. Brewer, Pres.,
Raleigh, N. C.

BINGHAM

Is the only Boys' School in the United States which has been administered by THREE SUCCESSIVE generations of PRESBYTERIAN ELDERS for 126 YEARS.

1793 Since 1861 the ACADEMIC work has been supplemented with the MILITARY feature. 1919 Special rates to Ministers of the Gospel as long as we have vacancies.
Address COL. R. BINGHAM, Supt., Route 4, Asheville, N. C. ARMY OFFICER DETAILED

OAK RIDGE INSTITUTE

OAK RIDGE, N. C.

T. E. WHITAKER, PRESIDENT

An old-fashioned Southern school dating from 1852. In its long history it has enrolled thousands from the Carolinas and adjoining states. Preparation that opens the way to bigger accomplishments in college, business, and life. 250 acres in campus, athletic grounds, orchards and farms. Modern school buildings. Steam heat and showers. Library. Military training. Healthful, accessible location near Greensboro. More than a thousand feet above sea level. Sane, moral influences.

Courses thoroughly covering literature, science, teaching, bookkeeping, shorthand and music. Athletics encouraged. All male teachers. Discipline mild but firm. Costs reasonable, $350 for the year. Fall session opens September 9, 1919. Write for illustrated catalogue. Address

Oak Ridge Institute,
Oak Ridge, N. C.

MOUNT MITCHELL, NORTH CAROLINA

• 6711 Feet High •

The Highest Mountain in Eastern America
(20 Miles East of Asheville)

Many Attractive Resorts in the Mountains of Western North Carolina

Average Elevation 2500 Ft. Above Sea Level, Insures Healthful and Delightful Summer Climate

ASHEVILLE • HENDERSONVILLE • HIGHLAND LAKE • BREVARD • BLACK MOUNTAIN • WAYNESVILLE • LAKE JUNALUSKA • TRYON • SALUDA • FLAT ROCK, KANUGA LAKE • BLOWING ROCK • LINVILLE • TATE SPRING, TENN. • SIGNAL MOUNTAIN, TENN.

One Hundred Thousand or More Visitors go to these

WESTERN NORTH CAROLINA RESORTS

Every Summer Because of the Delightful Summer Climate

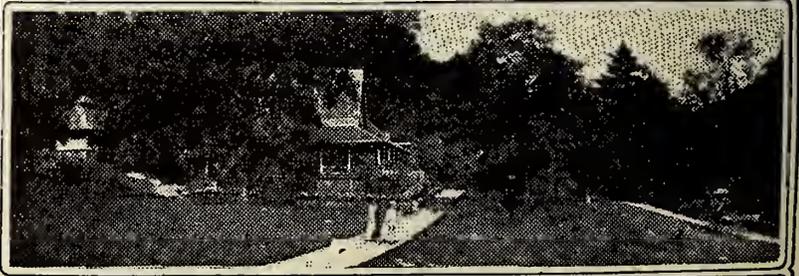

Good Hotels and Boarding Houses

EXCURSION FARES • CONVENIENT SCHEDULES • AND SERVICE • • •

VACATION LAND

United States Railroad Administration,
Director General of Railroads.

SOUTHERN RAILROAD LINES

An Attractive House Is Easily Rented

At all times the artistic dwelling is in demand, whether large or small, expensive or inexpensive. An attractive, inexpensive house, however, is an exception. QUICKBILT Bungalows combine beauty and economy.

QUICKBILT

BUNGALOW NO. 43

thoroughly covering the needs of the average renter; is especially built for renting purposes. It is well built, cozy, convenient, well lighted well ventilated, attractive both inside and out, and small, but cozy. It is inexpensive in construction, but will bring a good rent. A house top large is as much a drawback as a house too small. This one is just the right size. Bungalows are always in demand. QUICKBILT Bungalow No. 43 is neither cheap nor elaborate. It is especially designed to make the best investment from a rent standpoint.

In erecting this bungalow you will

SAVE

WASTE. All the material is already prepared and the large waste piles of scrap lumber are thus eliminated. Every foot of lumber is used. You buy no surplus material.

TIME. Every piece of material has its own place. Everything is numbered and systematized. The instructions to the carpenter are complete and the order of erection is simple. No time is lost in looking for material. The time ordinarily required in preliminary cutting and trimming is saved. As a large portion of the house is built in panels, just that much time and cost is eliminated in construction.

LABOR. With the entire process of erection systematized and complete, the great building "Bugaboo"—preliminary preparation—eliminated, the labor in the erection of a QUICKBILT Bungalow is reduced to a minimum and therefore, a minor consideration. A carpenter of average speed and experience with two laborers can erect the house in 7 days. The ordinary house will take almost as many weeks.

MONEY. A saving in waste of material, time and labor, is a saving in money. With the QUICKBILT Bungalow the expense of erection is cut in half, but that is not all. You need not pay a contractor's fee. The erection is so simple and systematic that any carpenter of average intelligence can erect it with ease. Many owners build them themselves. You pay no architect's fee. The complete plans with all specifications and instructions are furnished FREE. And yet the plans are made after careful study by the best and most experienced of architects, with a view to eliminating waste and gaining the greatest possible convenience, economy and strength. The cost of the material is further reduced by the fact that you buy it from the mill, manufacturer and forest in one. Our complete plants cover the entire process, from the tree to the completed house. You pay no middle-man a profit. You buy direct from the source of material. The price is therefore rock bottom. In our complete plants in which hundreds of houses are built simultaneously every short cut to perfection is used and every waste avoided. As the houses are made in great quantities, you gain the advantage of the low cost of quantity production.

A Safe, Profitable Investment.

One of the best investments obtainable is the attractive, serviceable, rentable house. That is, if the cost of the house is not too great. It is difficult to lower the cost without cheapening the house. It is possible, however, with the QUICKBILT Bungalow No. 43, for it is built for just that purpose. A house and lot costing $1,500.00 and renting for an average of $25 per month, is bringing 20 per cent. interest. Taxes, insurance, repairs, etc., will reduce it to about 16 per cent. Can you make a better investment? The rent incomes from an attractive QUICKBILT Bungalow at this time of high rents and universal demand for houses, will make it a profitable investment.

Build On Your Undeveloped Lot.

WRITE TO-DAY

for further information and a copy of our attractive illustrated book, "QUICKBILT Bungalows" No. C-9. It will explain all about No. 43 and many other attractive QUICKBILT Bungalows. It is FREE for the asking. Merely fill out the coupon below and mail it. Better still, if Bungalow No. 43 pleases you, tell us the color desired and instruct us to ship immediately.

Popular for its Convenience.

The house is shipped F. O. B. Charleston, complete with all necessary material except brick work. Size, over all, 21-ft. x 30-ft. There are two large bed rooms, one 12-ft. x 12-ft., and one 12-ft. x 9-ft., a spacious living room, 12-ft. x 13-ft., a kitchen, 15-ft. x 9-ft., closets and an attractive front porch, 16-ft. x 6-ft. The construction is largely of North Carolina Pine, the "Wood Universal," thoroughly kiln dried. Excellent flooring and ceiling. Walls built in panels of siding lined with heavy paper to insure warmth. Durable, fire-resisting, standard asphalt shingles, with slate green or red finish. Excellent doors and sash. All necessary nails and hardware furnished. House comes with exterior walls stained any one of a number of standard colors, or painted with one heavy coat of priming paint. Exterior trim and inside finish painted with one heavy coat of priming paint.

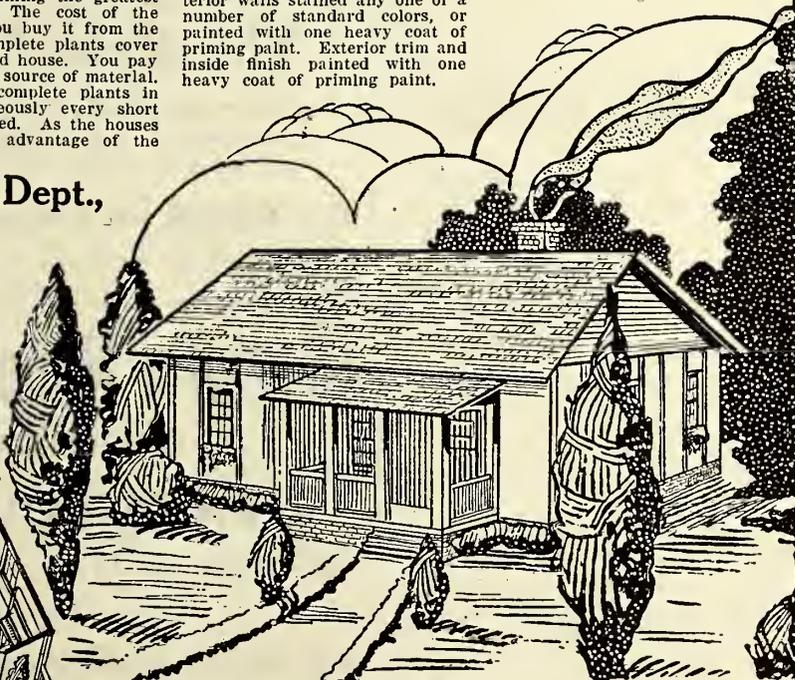

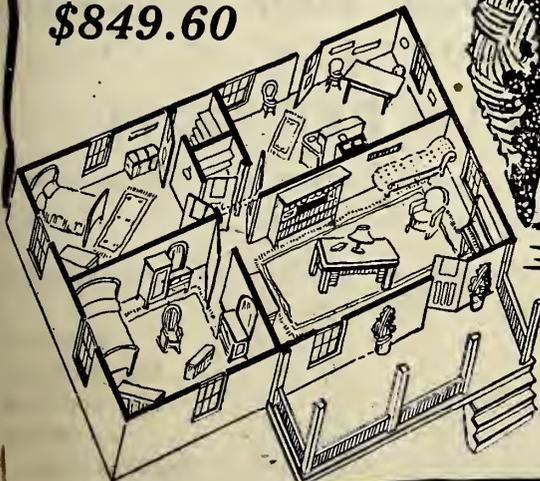

QUICKBILT Bungalow Dept.,

A. C. Tuxbury Lumber Co.,
Charleston, S. C.

PRICE

$944 less 10 per cent. for cash, Net price,

$849.60

QUICKBILT BUNGALOW DEPARTMENT,
A. C. TUXBURY LUMBER CO., Charleston, S. C.

Gentlemen:—Please send me your Book, "QUICKBILT Bungalows" No. C-9. Am especially interested in a room house.

NAME
ADDRESS

Sparkles

The late Sir John P. Mahaffy, provost of Trinity College, Dublin, was brilliantly witty, and many of his good sayings are in general circulation. But he occasionally met his match. One of his encounters was with the late Dr. Salmon, provost of Trinity before Dr. Traill. Mahaffy was one day inveighing against corporal punishment for boys, which he declared never did any good. "Take my own case," he exclaimed. "I was never caned but once in my life and that was for speaking the truth." "Well," Salmon retorted caustically, "it cured you."—The Manchester Guardian.

Bobby's Excuse.

Bobby's mother was often very much distressed by her small son's lapse from correct speech, all the more, because his reports from school were always good.

"Bobby," she said plaintively, "why do you keep telling Major to 'set up,' when you know 'sit up' is what you should say?"

"Oh, well, mother," Bobby answered, "I don't like to waste grammar on Major when he doesn't know the difference, being a dog."

An Honor of Peace.

"What are your impressions of No Man's Land?"

"I didn't get into the war," answered the morose citizen. "My only vivid idea of No Man's Land is home while spring housecleaning is going on."—Washington Star.

A Frenchman learning English said to his tutor: "English is a queer language. What does this sentence mean: 'Should Mr. Noble, who sits for this constituency, consent to stand again and run he will in all probability have a walkover?'"

A barrister, not so discreet as he might have been in the expression of his ideas, was engaged on a case concerning some pigs.

"Gentlemen of the jury," he began, "there were twenty-four pigs in the drove, just twenty-four; exactly twice as many as there are in that jury box."—Ex.

Expensive Fish—"Cheer up, old man! There's other fish in the sea."

Rejected Suitor—"Yes, but the last one took all my bait."—Life.

Peace Notes.

It is true that the dove of peace is cooing, but it cooes as if it had adenoids.—Chicago Daily News.

There, little brewery, don't you cry; you'll grind sausages by and by.—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

THE WESTMINSTER SCHOOL

A PREPARATORY SCHOOL FOR BOYS

Operated by Kings Mountain Presbytery
$300.00 Per Year

Write for Catalogue to

Rev. T. E. P. Woods, Box 6, Rutherfordton, N. C.

4 Per Cent

Time Certificates of Deposit

They are Interest Bearing. They are Payable on Demand. They Afford a Good Income for Funds Awaiting Permanent Investment

GET ONE

AMERICAN TRUST COMPANY

Charlotte

::

North Carolina

YES, Preachers and Teachers Are Human

They should have no discount and no cheaper railroad fares than you and I. They should be paid for services rendered—amply paid. If he can't earn enough for family use and the nest egg for the future, he made a sad mistake as to family, else he should change his calling instanter.

The Mutual Building & Loan

Will save a man and his family if they're worth saving, but they must help. It furnishes the "sure cure," but boasts no regrets at the demise of a feller who deliberately refuses to take the medicine.

E. L. KEESLER, Sec. & Treas., 25 S. Tryon St., CHARLOTTE, N. C.

Charlotte National Bank Resources $4,000,000.00

CHARLOTTE, N. C.

PAYS FOUR PER CENT.

On Either Time Certificates of Deposit or Savings Accounts

MAIL ORDER Business Solicited and PROMPT ATTENTION Given

JOHN M. SCOTT	President
W. J. CHAMBERS	Vice-President
J. F. ROBERTSON	Vice-President
W. H. TWITTY	Cashier
C. W. BUTT	Assistant Cashier

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

REV. J. R. BRIDGES, D. D.

EDITORS

REV. R. C. REED, D. D.

VOL. LX.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., July 23, 1919.

No. 29.

If You Were.

If you were busy being kind,
Before you knew it you would find
You'd soon forget to think 'twas true
That some one was unkind to you.

If you were busy being glad
And cheering people who are sad,
Although your heart might ache a bit,
You'd soon forget to notice it.

If you were busy being good,
And doing just the best you could,
You'd not have time to blame some man
Who's doing just the best he can.

If you were busy being true
To what you know you ought to do,
You'd be so busy you'd forget
The blunders of the folks you've met.

If you were busy being right,
You'd find yourself too busy quite
To criticise your neighbor long
Because he's busy doing wrong.

—The Continent.

Editorial

"Christian Bodies Call for Justice."

SUCH is the headline in a secular paper, reporting a statement issuing from the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ. As our Church is one of those Christian bodies calling for justice, it is eminently proper that we should take heed.

What is the injustice of which complaint is here made? The injustice of the poor laboring man who is made the victim of the employer's greed. "The living wage should be made the first charge upon industry before dividends are considered. The resistance of labor to general wage reductions, even when accompanied by reduced hours of work, should receive moral support from the community, except when the demand is clearly unreasonable. Wage levels must be high enough to maintain a standard of living worthy of responsible free citizenship in a democracy." As we read this our hearts went out, after a fashion, to these oppressed wage earners. We thought of the two plumbers, who kindly condescended to listen to our oft-repeated and earnest entreaties. They came and spent a large part of a day in repairing a leak, so generous were they of their time. They were both boys, one just out of knee pants, and when we came to settle we found the wage was merely the paltry pittance of a dollar an hour for each. Then we thought of the firm who sent a man to put an electric light fixture in our study. He charged only at the rate of ten dollars a day for this man, and he was a full grown man, apparently of Irish extraction who had not enjoyed the benefits of a liberal education, poor fellow.

When we think of cases of this kind, we are not surprised that Christian bodies, made up of preachers, most of whom, as everybody knows, enjoy princely salaries and roll in luxury, should feel deeply sympathetic with "the resistance of labor to general wage reduction, even when accompanied by reduced hours of work." Think of how many hours a day the laboring man must work in order to "maintain a standard of living worthy of responsible free citizenship in a democracy." Preachers, who do no work at all, are excusable for being touched with compassion for men who must work at least a fraction of almost every day in order to live as decent democratic citizens.

However, the most interesting feature of this statement of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ is the illustration it affords of how far these churches have travelled in advance of Christ. When a certain man asked him to right an injustice that had been done him He said "Man, who made me a judge or a divider over you?" He studiously played hands off in reference to matters lying beyond the religious sphere. But listen to these Churches: "It is a false idea that the Churches are concerned only with religious, educational and charitable enterprises. They are or should be vitally concerned with civic, economic and other social interests." Then they proceed to discharge some of the functions of their high calling. They issue a warning to "those who are the actual industrial, political and social leaders of the nation;" they read a lesson to the "possessors of wealth and education;" they point an admonitory finger at the State and municipal officials "who deny a fair hearing to radical offenders;" and make known their will to legislatures and judges as to how they should act "without bluster and violence." In Christ's day His "Kingdom was not of this world," but that was the first century and this is the 20th. That was before democracy was born, and there was no need that men should "maintain a standard of living worthy of responsible free citizenship in a democracy."

How much at home our own Church is coming to feel in the society of these more progressive Churches. We were very shy at first. We would go forward a bit and then draw back. We were amazingly shy. But now we are joining with full voice in all these demands for civil and economic reforms. We must help to establish a league of nations, and aid in the many readjustments of civic and economic affairs that were dislocated by the war. We wish to be known as the poor man's friend, and as the champion of the laboring man's rights. Paul "knew no man after the flesh," but Paul did not live in these tremendous days. We used to claim Paul as a Presbyterian, but that was when we like him determined to "know nothing save Jesus Christ and Him crucified," before we learned that the mission of the Church extended to civic, economic and other social interests.

Reforming the Dance.

It seems that the preachers were right who for ages past have been insisting that the dance was evil, and only evil continually. This proposed reformation did not start in the Church, but in the estimation of the city authorities in London and there, who found that unless some check was put upon the extremes to which the dance was tending, the coming generations would be lost to all sense of shame.

The Church has known this all the time, and the preachers have proclaimed it, but they were laughed at, and advised to keep to subjects about which they knew. We have followed this advice, though our sense of decency was frequently shocked as we caught a glimpse of the liberties taken at summer resorts. This protest now comes with greater force, for it must be very bad, if men of the world are aroused over it. Yet it is simply the expression of the age. Whether seen in dress or in the dance, it is the sense of sensuousness, else it would have no charm. Unless reformation sets in, some future writer will describe the age in terms very similar to those in which Paul described the life of the Romans.

A Wandering Star Gone Out.

Many years ago Dr. C. H. Toy was one of the brilliant men of the Baptist Church, being a professor in their theological seminary. He became enamoured of German Kultur and by degrees he wandered from the old paths. At the time his departure from the faith of his brethren excited much comment, but he was soon forgotten. Instead of the Old Ship of Zion changing her course because of new views, she sailed quietly on.

It is true that some timid ones feared lest the foundation might give way, and that some felt that perhaps we needed a new Gospel, but on the whole the Church's foundations stood fast, having the Lord's seal.

Now at an advanced age, when his memory had almost passed away we have a notice of his death, far away in New England. There seems something almost pathetic in the brilliant men who could be so useful in the Church, wandering into forbidden paths and adopting new views with the result that their usefulness ends and they fade into obscurity.

The Church Paper.

The lot of the Church paper has always been a hard one. In the eyes of many it is regarded as a necessary nuisance to be paid for when convenient. Its columns are supposed to be free for all, and when men make use of them it is really conferring a benefit upon the paper, giving it an endorsement. Then every preacher believes not only that he can edit a paper, but also that he can do the job much better than the man in charge.

Another fancy is that Church papers make money. To the initiated their ideas are amusing. You should reserve a certain space for advertisements, which they think will pay the running expenses, thus giving the subscriptions as clear profit. They are surprised when you inform them that advertisements in a Church paper are always hard to get, and that if secured, they by no means pay the running expenses in these days of high material and still higher labor. Their surprise is still greater when you inform them that between securing a subscriber and securing his money there is many a slip.

Just at present our Northern exchanges are discussing the proposal of their Assembly to publish "The New Era Magazine." It seems that this is to be a subsidized Church paper, supported by the missionary offerings of the Church and controlled editorially by the boards of the Church. We understand that this paper is to be furnished to the members at 50 cents, but the boards are to give $50,000 or more, which must be taken from the missionary contributions. Of course such proposals do not concern us of this section, but still we are interested in the outcome. In the first place we can see no need of such a paper. The religious press of the Northern brethren amply and ably covers the field, and if the object is to put a paper into every home, they can do it far more effectively and cheaply by letting each church subscribe for the paper already published, and putting that item into their annual budget.

A private-owned Church paper has an individuality of its own that you never find in one edited by some Board or Conference. On the other hand the paper conducted by a Board is machine made, and never secures a hold upon its readers. The other paper may be erratic or extreme, or too ready to scrap, all of which should be avoided. Yet with all of these objections, it is more human and reaches men in some way, making them think, even if it be in an angry mood.

The Reassessment of Property.

According to a law passed by the last Legislature, there is to be a reassessment of property in this State, upon which the taxes of 1921 will be levied. This assessment will be unique in two respects. In the first place the real estate is to be assessed at its real value, and in the second place the property owner is to say what the value is, though his valuation is subject to review by a higher party—appointed for that purpose. It will be something entirely new in the way of taxation. Heretofore we have listed our property and the assessors placed a valuation on it which sometimes served to show their absurd sense of valuation, or their partiality for a friend. Now you are to value your own property, and in so doing you will be placed upon your honor.

Let the Christian be on his guard, for "When self the wavering balance shakes, 'tis rarely right adjusted." Some sensitive consciences may overestimate but the majority will find it hard to be impartial and strictly honest. Governor Bickett has in another column a letter which should appeal to all men. Read that letter, then pray that you be guided aright, and then, as in the sight of God, tell the truth, without reference to profit or loss.

Notes Here and There.

Now that prohibition will soon close up the saloons, the distillers and brewers are seeking "fields green and pastures new." They propose to invade China, as if Japan was not enough of an affliction. It is reported that the Japanese are shipping opium into China, which means that poor China is "between the devil and the deep blue sea."

Among the many chaplains in our Army, there was only one found guilty of disloyalty. F. J. Feinler, a chaplain in the American Army, was convicted of speaking disrespectfully of the President, charging that our soldiers were a drunken mob and that the sinking of the Lusitania was justifiable. General Pershing ordered him from France, pending the review of his case by the President. He was a Roman Catholic.

In striking contrast is the fact that every Protestant chaplain in the French Army has been given the War Cross for bravery. Many of them lost their lives in going over the top with their men.

Some of our Northern Presbyterian ministers may be a bit off in doctrine, but the rank and file must be sound and consecrated, if their gifts to foreign and home missions be a fair test. For foreign missions they raised $2,260,000, and for home missions $328,000 in excess of any previous year.

In these days of monuments our friends of the Romanist persuasion are not going to let the Virgin Mary be slighted. They are asking all loyal sons of the Church to raise $1,000,000 with which to begin a Cathedral at Washington in honor of the Virginia Mary. In their call the trustees say:

"We feel that to the intercession of Mary Immaculate we owe our liberation from the horrors of war, and from the greater horror of an intolerable slavery. We appeal also to all those who desire to manifest in this way their belief in the supernatural life and who revere in the Mother of God, the wonderful privilege which the poet Wordsworth calls, "Our tainted nature's solitary boast."

If this surmise be true, and to the Virgin's intercession, "We owe our liberation from the horrors of war; and from the greater horrors of an intolerable slavery," then her position as an intercessor must have been rather embarrassing when the Pope was using his influence in favor of the Germans, especially in Italy, and the faithful sons of the Church over here were praying for the Allies.

Southerners who lament the prevalence of lynching in the South will learn with pleasure that the San Antonio, Texas, Express has established a fund of $100,000 to wipe out lynching in Texas. Whoever brings about the conviction of a lyncher will get a reward of $500, which will be doubled if the lynched party be a negro. We hope that other States will follow the example of Texas.

The relations between the Pope and the Vatican are not what one would describe as cordial. The Pope refuses to receive any one coming from the royal palace, so that a visitor however distinguished can never come direct from the palace to the Vatican, but must break his trip by stopping at some other place. We are generally willing to endorse whatever Mr. Wilson does, but when he consented in going from the royal palace to the Vatican, to stop at the American embassy and change carriages in order to meet this requirement, we object. We are no great admirer of Colonel Roosevelt, but we did admire him when under similar conditions, he refused to visit the Pope at all.

Contributed

Effective Relief Work in the Near East

By R. E. Magill, Secretary.

WHEN the full story of the efforts to relieve the suffering and need of the people of the Near East is written it should credit the missionaries of the Protestant churches of America and England with having ministered to these unfortunate victims of the world war in the most effective manner possible—and with standing at their posts of duty when staying involved the risk of loss of life and countless hardships and inconveniences.

There is glory enough to give unstinted praise to the Red Cross, Jewish Clubs and Catholic orders, and many local charitable organizations for great and timely service in a desperately needy land. The missionaries, however, were in position to render prompt and effective aid by reason of being on the ground and knowing the peculiar racial traits of the sufferers through years of personal contact with them.

The war gave the mission workers an unusual opportunity to demonstrate in a concrete way that Christianity stands for the well being of the whole man and for the welfare of every class and condition of humanity and their program of war relief included feeding the starving, clothing the naked, healing the sick, caring for the orphans, and teaching the way of life as opportunity offered.

The dire need of the people made it necessary for the missionaries to undertake large measures of relief without waiting for authority from their home boards, and to convert the mission plants into great hospital, orphanages and relief institutions. While every missionary who had a part in the great program of relief work in the Near East should and will have their names inscribed on the roll of honor, this article can only mention in the briefest way a few workers our commission had the privilege of meeting as we journeyed from Cairo, Egypt, up through Palestine, Syria, Armenia and the Turkish Empire on our mission of mercy.

Our hats are off to the men we met who "endured hardness as good soldiers of the cross" but for the women who braved the fiendish hatred and brutality of the Turks we can find no words strong enough to express our admiration and respect. A few typical cases only can be mentioned in the compass of this brief article.

At Savas, a city in the interior of Turkey and about 150 miles from the nearest railway, Miss Graflin was left absolutely alone in charge of a large and important station of the Congregational Board of Missions by the inability of other American workers to get back through the war zone. A large school, orphanage and medical work were in operation at the opening of the war and Miss Graflin had a staff of eight men and seven women, all Armenians, assisting her. Seven of the eight Armenian men were murdered by the Turks and all of her Armenian women assistants were driven into exile.

About twenty-eight thousand Armenians were driven from their homes in the Savas district and Miss Graflin had a careful count made as 26,000 of the Armenians of her city were marched across a bridge at the beginning of an exile which meant death for the vast majority of the victims.

For three weeks Miss Graflin went with her people as a voluntary exile and shared their hardships and witnessed the narrowing spectacle of groups of men being separated every day from their families and driven out and done to death with horrible brutality by the Turkish soldiers.

She felt that the mission property must have her attention and certain measures of relief must be instituted for the help of the remnant of the people in Savas, so she returned to the city and directed the whole work of relief throughout the entire war.

She became treasurer and business manager of the mission and of the relief work, reopened the school, opened a medical hospital with the help of native doctors, organized an orphanage and was so active in relief measures for the war victims that the Turks put her first on a list of prominent Armenians to be murdered in the next massacre.

When the armistice was signed in November, 1918, the leader of the Armenian persecutions in Savas found it wise to flee from the country to save his life and he turned over to Miss Graflin a large property for which he was trustee with no conditions as to its return.

It develops that the property belongs to the German Kaiser, although never standing in his name, and Miss Graflin finds herself in possession of a large and valuable estate which she plans to convert into a great institution for Armenian orphans and on which she has already located 700 children. It may be assumed that the Kaiser never intended to make such a contribution to Armenian relief work.

When the relief workers reached Savas they found Miss Graflin with a great relief work already in operation and plans maturing for helping the poor exiles to starting life again as the remnant make their way back to their devastated homes. Up to June 1 less than two thousand of the twenty-eight thousand, who were driven out, had returned and it is believed that fully twenty thousand perished of starvation and hardships or were massacred by the Turks.

Miss LaGrange, of the Presbyterian Mission at Tripoli, in Syria, is another worker who stood at her post throughout the war, although her furlough was four years overdue and she has been in the Syrian field for 43 years. She has built up a great school for girls and the mission owns a splendid plant in which the school is located. Miss LaGrange suspended the regular school work where the pupils had been paying a small tuition fee and converted the plant into a great relief institution for women and children. Three hundred needy children were gathered and they were fed, clothed and taught by a staff of workers organized and directed by Miss LaGrange.

At Sidon in Syria the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A., has one of its most successful stations and two splendid schools and an orphanage have been conducted in buildings owned by the mission.

Dr. and Mrs. Jessup are in charge at this important station. And like all other workers of this Church they suspended the regular work of the mission and converted the plant into a great relief station. Two orphanages have been operated in the school buildings, which accommodate about 500 children and a food depot was operated at which 1,500 people were fed daily.

Mrs. Jessup personally superintended the cooking of food for the 500 orphans and in addition looked after her own household, and nursed one of their children through an operation for appendicitis. The six out stations of the mission were converted into relief stations and only about 70,000 people are left alive in the district superintended by Dr. Jessup out of an original population of 110,000.

The Turks did not deport the Syrians from their homes as was done with the Armenians but they deliberately withheld food supplies and murdered the helpless people by the slow process of starvation.

Dr. James Nicol, of the Presbyterian Mission at Beirut, is director of relief work for all of Syria and Palestine and has represented the Red Cross as well as his Church and will now direct the activities of the American Committee for Relief in the Near East. He is fitted by years of service for his Church in the Syrian field to direct this great relief enterprise and he has shown that he possesses rare tact, executive ability of the highest order and tireless energy by his masterly handling of the appalling situation during the past four years. He called to his aid 435 Sy-

(Continued on page 8)

Jesus a Disappointment

By Rev. J. G. Anderson, D.D.

"He shall grow up as a root out of a dry ground; he hath no form nor comeliness, and when we shall see him there is no beauty that we should desire him." (Isa. 53:2.)

DISAPPOINTMENT is one of the saddest words in the English language. It contains too much of distress to be found widely prevalent. And yet its application is found in every sphere of human existence. Its territory is as broad as the field of human experience. Childhood is disappointed with childhood; youth with youth; middle age with middle age; old age with old age. The higher the aspirations the bitterer the disappointment; the broader the sphere the more extensive the desolation.

Amongst the Jews there was no hope so fraught with blessed anticipations as the coming of their Messiah. It pervaded individual and national life.

Amidst poverty, persecution and captivity they were buoyed up with the hope of the Coming One. The coming of no being was ever looked forward to with such glorious, gleeful expectation. There was never such a disappointment to any people as Jesus of Nazareth was to the Jews as their Messiah. The prophetic record of it is contained in the text. In expectation he was the rose of Sharon, the lily of the valley, the fairest among ten thousand, the one altogether lovely. In reality he was a root out of dry ground. He had no form nor comeliness, and when they saw him there was no beauty that they desired him. His birth, his manner of presenting himself to his race, his teachings and his conduct were a distinct disappointment to the great mass of his people. He came unto his own, and his own received him not.

The study of the Jew will not reveal such racial peculiarities, nor remove him so far from us that we may not learn practical, profitable, personal lessons from their conduct in this matter.

Jesus was a disappointment to many of the educated, cultured ones of his day. These were represented in the main by the Sadducees. The test of truth was what commended itself to their reason. They were strongly agnostic. God to them was an abstract, distant Being, taking no interest in human affairs. There was no future existence for the soul. This life ended all. According to the teachings of Jesus, God was a heavenly Father, taking a tender, loving interest in His children, hearing their prayers and strewing their pathway with many tokens of His eternal love and care. Man would live forever in heaven or in hell.

The simple statement of this matter makes of itself the application to certain classes of our own time.

Jesus was a disappointment to the Pharisees. The purpose of the Pharisee in origin was to keep the Jew pure from contamination with his environment. This, however, degenerated into superficial marks of distinction. He tithed mint, rue, anise and cumin, and neglected the mightier matters of the law. Religion was simply compliance with forms and ceremonies. Again and again, like peals of thunder, Jesus said: "Woe unto Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites." This same element today is distinctly disappointed in the teachings of Jesus.

There was nothing in which Jesus was a bitterer disappointment to the Jew than in his not falling in with their idea of a temporal, worldly kingdom. The Jew was in his own land, and in bondage to Caesar. The Roman yoke was more galling to them than that of sin. They could conceive of no higher mission their Messiah could accomplish than to deliver them from the power of Rome, and they once wanted to take him by force and make him a king. His positive refusal to serve in such a capacity spoiled with them his every claim to being the Messiah. This thought has had its application ever since, wherever men have wanted Christianity and the church to turn away from its Christly mission and devote itself simply to the accomplishment of some temporal good. Much of it was manifested in the world war. Whilst Christ was and is a disappointment to such classes, he is not to all. He was and is not a disappointment to any real, earnest seeker after the salvation of the soul.

Nicodemus struggling with the corruption of his sinful nature is told of a new birth and the Holy Spirit its author.

Zaccheus the lost one finds salvation come to his house.

Mary Magdalene, demon possessed, sits in her right mind at the feet of Jesus.

Afflicted ones were not and are not disappointed in Jesus. Mary and Martha found in him a Savior that could weep, and bring their dead to life again. The widow of Nain was told by Jesus, and for good reason, "Weep not."

Jesus was not a disappointment to those who sought high attainments in spiritual life. John the Beloved and Paul the Apostle testify in this matter.

How is it with you and me? Is he a disappointment to us? We, like the Jew, have been taught to look to Christ as the great and mighty one. Has he been to you anything that would justify his reputation in the world today? Have you wanted him only for some temporal worldly advantage? Won't you seek him as a Savior, and by sweet experience be able to say:

"All my capacious powers can wish
In them most richly meet;
Nor to mine eyes is life so dear,
Nor friendship half so sweet."

Be assured disappointment in Jesus means disappointment in God. He is God manifest in the flesh; the image of the invisible God. Disappointment with one means disappointment with the other. It is an awful condition for a creature to be disappointed in his Creator, a man in his God, a final, unutterable, eternal disappointment.

Gainesville, Fla.

Resolutions of Montreat Y. P. Conference.

The Findings Committee submits the following report for adoption by the Conference:

1. The 1919 Montreat Young People's Conference fully indorses the fourfold conception of life—mental, physical, religious and social; and urges the Church to take the responsibility of seeing that all of its young people through their activities are offered the chance to increase in wisdom and stature and in favor with God and man.

2. We advise that each local church create a Young People's Council, composed of those responsible for the young people's work and sufficient representatives from the young people themselves to direct the work of young people along fourfold development. (See 1919 Report of the Executive Committee of Sunday School Extension and Young People's Work.)

3. Realizing the importance of a Christian education to the individual and the value of college trained youth in the church and community we advocate that every church establish a student loan fund.

4. That the young people of this Conference realize that if these recommendations are to be put into effect, the responsibility rest largely upon them.

(Signed) Dorothy Bowron (Chairman),
Francis Dean,
Phyllis Harpole,
Ray Doubles,
Adelaide Van Noppen,
Guy Fletcher,
James Oeland,

Findings Committee.

A Letter From the Governor to Mr. Average Citizen

AN intimate acquaintance with you, extending over a number of years, leads me to write you this intensely personal letter. I know that you love the truth, that you despise injustice, that you are a robust champion of the square deal. The possession by you of the cardinal virtues makes North Carolina a truly great State.

The most vital power of the State is the power to tax, and you believe that this vital power should be exercised with a full knowledge of the truth. You believe that from this full knowledge of the truth there will flow perfect equality in taxation.

For the first time in the history of the State you, Mr. Average Citizen, have it in your power to write the full truth and perfect equality in the tax books of the State. You have never been called upon to do this before; indeed, you have never been permitted to do this before. But now the General Assembly has enacted a law that places the matter entirely in your hands. The new tax law is written on correct principles. The machinery for its enforcement is adequate and appropriate. The law is so written that it will be easy for the citizen to do right and hard for him to do wrong. But on you, Mr. Average Citizen, rests the responsibility of determining whether or not the wise and just purpose of the law shall be carried out.

Now, Mr. Average Citizen, you will receive a questionnaire and will be called upon to swear before God and to all your fellow-citizens what is the fair market value of your property. When you come to take this solemn oath it will be helpful to you to put to your own conscience this question: "If I did not own this property, but wanted to buy it, what would I be justified in paying for it?" and, again: "If I wanted to sell this property, not at a forced sale, but in the way and on the terms that property of this class is generally sold in this community, what do I really believe I could get for it?" The answer to these questions will point with reasonable accuracy to the fair market value of your property. This fair market value you must write down in your questionnaire, else you will cease to be Mr. Average Citizen and become Mr. Undesirable Citizen.

When you, Mr. Average Citizen, tell the truth about your property, it will do no good for your neighbor, Mr. Undesirable Citizen, to tell a lie about his property, because when the books show truly what the property of Mr. Average Citizen is worth, this evidence will clearly and conclusively show what the property of Mr. Undesirable Citizen is worth. The local and district assessors, when they come to fix the value of property, will be governed by the sworn testimony of Mr. Average Citizen.

And when you, Mr. Average Citizen, tell the unvarnished truth about your property, that truth will wipe out every discrimination and every inequality in taxation in North Carolina. True values are always equal values, but the greatest expert cannot equalize a series of falsehoods.

When all the property in the State shall be placed on the books at its fair market value, many benefits will accrue to you, Mr. Average Citizen.

1. You will have the great satisfaction of knowing that the record written by all the people of the State is a true record and not a libel on the commonwealth. This knowledge will wonderfully strengthen the moral fiber of our people.

2. You will know that every discrimination in taxation is wiped out, and that every citizen is carrying his fair part of the burden.

3. As the values go up the rate of taxation will go down, and hereafter North Carolina will be known far and wide as a wealthy State with a low rate of taxation instead of a poor State with a high rate of taxation.

4. The General Assembly has made a pledge not to collect, under the proposed true valuation of property, revenues greater than ten per cent in excess of the revenues collected under the present false values. This means that the total revenues collected by the State shall not be greater than ten per cent in excess of the total revenues collected under the present law. This most emphatically does not mean that no particular citizen will have to pay taxes in excess of ten per cent of the amount he has heretofore paid. A particular citizen may pay less taxes than he has ever paid before. He may pay double what he has heretofore paid. This depends on whether or not he has heretofore paid his fair share of the taxes according to his true worth. If he has paid more than his fair share the increase as to him will be less than ten per cent; if he has paid less than his fair share, the increase as to him will be more than ten per cent.

You, Mr. Average Citizen, will at once perceive the essential justice in thus equalizing the public burden. I call on you to lend your vigorous support, first, by example, and then by precept, to this attempt by the General Assembly to build up a taxation system in North Carolina grounded on perfect truth and perfect justice. By so doing you will help to practically demonstrate that it is profitable in money and in morals to a people as well as to an individual to tell the truth and shame the devil.

Sincerely yours,

Raleigh, N. C., July 11, 1919.

T. W. Bickett.

Musings on Physical Force and Life.

By Philip A. Emanuel.

The Standard:

I read your paper every Sabbath with the greatest pleasure. I think like you do, along the same current lines and one is always proud to have some one express what oft was thought but ne'er so well said as you, and some of your readers and contributors write. I am an old Presbyterian elder; now in my 73rd year. My studies have caused me to ponder often on the life and the physical forces we see in operation every day around about us. Their complete want of objectivity. Gravitation in operation pulls all matter back to the surface of the earth. The acorn may sprout and bring forth the tree, which climbs aloft and bears acorns. But gravitation establishes its hold on each and every acorn on that tree, and with an invisible string, pulls it towards the earth. And when the acorn is ripe and the hold of the tree upon its fruit is lessened, the stress upon the invisible string brings it down to the bosom of Mother Earth.

Now we learn from this a great lesson. And it is this: That when the Spirit of God works a change in our hearts, and enters there to dwell, an invisible string couples us up with the bosom of God, our Father; and that when the hold of the flesh is weakened and the human soul is ripe, it is pulled up to the bosom of our God. In other words spiritual gravitation is real. It is the law of nature in the spiritual world.

Aiken, S. C.

A Little Prayer.

Where'er thou be
On land or sea,
Or in the air,
This little prayer
I pray for thee—
God keep thee ever,
Day and night—
Face to the light—
Thine armor bright—
Thy 'scutcheon white—
That no despite—
Thine honor smite!
With infinite
Sweet oversight,

God keep thee ever,
Heart's delight!
And guard thee whole,
Sweet body, soul,
And spirit high;
That, live or die,
Thou glorify
His Majesty;
And ever be,
Within His sight,
His true and upright,
Sweet and stainless,
Pure and sinless,
Perfect knight!

—John Oxenham.

Northern Assembly

By Rev. J. W. Moseley, Jr.

THE papers and magazines of the Presbyterian Church, U. S., together with many of its members, have a habit of referring to the U. S. A. Presbyterian Church as the "Northern" Presbyterian Church. As missionary minister of the U. S. Presbyterian Church in Oklahoma, I wish to enter a mild protest and to show the reasonableness of the position.

The cheapest reason that I would suggest is that it is policy. As the pastor of the Durant Presbyterian Church it was my invariable rule never to say "Southern" or "Northern" Presbyterian Church. This church was based on its career of wonderful success by the organic union of a U. S. A. and U. S. Church. The Durant church as I remember never lost a member on sectional grounds. No sectional feeling was ever developed in the church by the use of sectional terms and this was the strong secret for success in that typical Oklahoma city.

As a matter of fact there is no such institution as the "Northern" Presbyterian Church. The U. S. A. Church has always had strong Synods in the South made up of Southern people. Since the union with the Cumberland Presbyterian Church it has had a membership in the South of Southern people nearly as numerous as the U. S. Presbyterian Church has in the same section. This membership is not "Northern" in the sectional sense but almost wholly "Southern." If the truth were known there are possibly no "Northern" people in the U. S. Presbyterian Church except in the Southern Synods of the U. S. A. Presbyterian Church. Historically and geographically the U. S. A. Presbyterian Church has a prior right to that greatest of all names, "The American Presbyterian Church."

In Oklahoma when you say "Southern" or "Northern" Presbyterian it puts a bad taste in the mouth of the average American who knows nothing about and cares less for the so-called distinctive differences. All that he thinks of when he hears this unfortunate misnomer is the bloody-shirt with its brutality and its bitterness; and he is thoroughly disgusted that everybody can bury the dead past but the ecclesiastics. The philosophy of these unchurched thousands in the Middle West is "Settle your sectional differences and then come talk to me about the cosmopolitan Christ."

A convincing reason that ought to appeal to the cultured "Southerner" is that the epithet "Northern" is extremely offensive to very many Southerners who are native and conscientious members of the U. S. A. Presbyterian Church. Common courtesy should compel us to be careful how we hurl sectional names at our brethren in Christ. I have an idea that the Presbyterians of the U. S. A. Church are just as much members of the family of God as those of the U. S. Church. If this is true then it would be better to have a mill stone around one's neck, out in the deep blue sea, than to offend the least one of these.

In conclusion, if there is to be no organic union as our conservative cousins of the Far East tell us, then let us begin to smooth down the rough places so that we can live together in peace. The U. S. A. Presbyterian Church is in the South to stay. And why not if there are distinctive differences that constitute insuperable obstacles to organic union? She is here to play a great part in evangelizing the millions never to be reached by the U. S. Presbyterian Church. She has hundreds of pious men and women, and millions of consecrated money to help overcome the awful destitution of our beloved Southland. My prayer is that the church of my fathers may be able to rise above every selfish interest and say with sincerity, "On! On! with your wonderful work and God be with you and bless you abundantly."

Lawton, Okla.

The Church and the Boy Scout Movement.

By Rev. Roswell C. Long.

Along with the many other good things that the war has done for us, it has served to focus our attention on the Boy Scout Movement. By their successful activities in connection with the Liberty Loans, and War Savings movement, and conservation of food and gardening, they have proved beyond doubt their worth to the social, civic, school and home life of our nation. In other words, they have proved the value of patriotism when their type of patriotism was needed.

Eighty per cent of the Boy Scouts are connected with the churches, and owe their first allegiance to the church. The latent powers of boy life as proved in the war, and now in the future, can be utilized by the church, if the church so desires to utilize that strength. The church now has the greatest opportunity of its life time in the United States to direct boy activities into church channels. And the Boy Scout movement perhaps forms the most perfect link to be made between the boy's world and the church's life.

The Boy Scout movement does not attempt to thrust on the boy any religious teaching other than that given by the church that parents the organization. The Scout promises that he will do his duty to his God, and the church determines through the leader it chooses, how God shall be interpreted to the Scout, and it teaches the boy his duty in positive rather than negative terms. It ties him to his home at the period of his life when he is tempted to leave it. Between the ages of twelve and eighteen he finds in Jesus the true Scout Master, and is led along a reasonable road into companionship with Him as well as with his Scout leaders. The Scout movement provides for the boy a world vision and training in true citizenship that cannot find elsewhere. The church has the opportunity to direct the boy in this quest for better things.

The nation has demanded of the Boy Scout during the war the best that he could give, and he has given nobly and effectively of all that he has had. This same nobility of purpose and effectiveness can now be directed into the life of the church if the church will provide the necessary interest and leadership. No better program has ever been offered to the church strictly in the interest of the boys.

The church agrees to support the program with the necessary equipment in money and meeting places and the like. But as was said in the Northern Baptist Convention in 1918, "The cost to a church for the maintenance of scouting for the boys is in the deeper and more valuable things of character—men, not money; interest, not equipment; leadership, not latitude."

Richwood, W. Va.

An Answered Prayer.

We asked that he might live—Eternal Love
From out the fullness of his boundless store
Hath granted him to share the life above,
"Alive forevermore."

We asked for health—and faith can almost see
His radiant face, his movements swift and strong;
With every power quickened joyously
His soul is breathing song.

We prayed at last that he again might come
To see the home that he had held so dear—
And peacefully he reached a fairer home
And dearer—but not here.

O Wisdom infinite and Love supreme;
This light on sorrow, care, and death is thrown—
Beyond our prayers, our hopes, our brightest dreams,
What God doth give His own.

—Mary Isabella Forsyth.

Effective Relief Work in the Near East.

(Continued from page 4)

rians who had been trained in the mission schools and they showed great executive ability in most trying situations and Dr. Nicol says everyone of them "made good."

He has been ably seconded by Drs. Doolittle, Shearer, Nelson, Jessup, Fowler and in fact by the entire staff of the Presbyterian Mission in Syria, many of whom refused to accept furloughs during the war period.

Special mention should be made of the treasurer of this mission, Mr. Dana, who has suffered persecutions and hardships that if inflicted on a British subject would have moved that country to demand satisfaction and reparation at a cannon's mouth.

Mr. Dana was arrested and imprisoned thirteen times for refusing to turn over Syrian relief fund to the Turkish authorities and the crowning atrocity was sending him with an invalid wife and his children on open flat cars through the Taurus mountains in mid-winter to Constantinople where he was thrown into a Turkish dungeon and kept for seven months.

On the trip through the frozen heights of the Taurus mountains thirty-one of Dr. Dana's fellow prisoners died of cold and privation and several members of his family would have perished but for timely aid rendered by Miss Cushman, a missionary of the Congregational Church, who remained at her post at Adana, Turkey, through the war. Mr. Dana handled over two million dollars in relief funds sent by his Church Board and by Syrians in America to help their suffering countrymen in the homeland.

This memorandum about heroic and efficient service would not be complete without a further word concerning the remarkable devotion and service of Miss Cushman, mentioned above.

Adana was the ancient capital of the old Kingdom of Armenia and is still one of the most important Armenian centers in the Turkish Empire. It has, therefore, been the scene of numerous atrocities and a fearful massacre of Armenians occurred here in 1908. Miss Cushman was left alone to direct the important work of her Church at Adana for the four years of the war through no fault of the Mission board, as they were unable to get reinforcements to her.

Her experiences with the beastly Turks would make the stories of our pioneers in the days of Indian warfare seem quite tame. Her life was spared, although she was marked for massacre early in the war and her resourcefulness and high courage enabled her to render priceless aid to the persecuted Armenians.

The consular representatives of several of the allied governments had to flee from Adana for their lives and Miss Cushman was made their representative and for about two years she carried this additional burden which greatly added to the peril of her situation.

She kept up a semblance of friendship with the local Turkish officials and obtained facts of the highest value which were promptly communicated to the allied government through trusted Armenian helpers. One messenger was arrested and he destroyed his dispatches and went to his death without betraying Miss Cushman.

Members of our relief committee had a part in a notable piece of rescue work she accomplished on May 18, 1919, when she defied the Turkish Governor of the Province, the Mayor of Adana and his entire force of Turkish police. Armenian relief workers had found 180 orphans in the hands of Turkish families in Ceaseres where they were being held as slaves and prisoners and these children were gathered and started by train to an orphanage in Constantinople. The Turks sought the aid of the Turkish Governor and Mayor to stop the children at Adana, and turn them back into Turkish hands.

The Armenians at Ceaseres wired Miss Cushman to see that the children were not molested at Adana and she acted with the usual courage and promptness. On going to the station she found Turkish women had gained access to the cars and had enlisted the help of the Adana police to take children from the train with the purpose of giving them to Turkish families.

Miss Cushman promptly appealed to the British soldiers in Adana to thwart the nefarious plan and had two Turkish police arrested and put in the military prison.

She openly defied the Turkish official, a tongue lashing in good American style, which they will never forget and which had Tobasco added as she remembered her trying experiences during the past four years of war.

Our commissioners could not understand Turkish but they did understand the spirit with which Miss Cushman "blew up" the Turks and they backed her to the limit.

The result was the 180 orphans were sent on to Constantinople, escorted by an armed British guard and four members of our commission, and were safely delivered to the proper authorities.

Miss Cushman has coined an Armenian name for the thousands of orphans who have been held captives so long by the Turks, Arabs and Kurds that they have forgotten their names, their native tongue and all facts that would help establish their identity. The name is Axorian, meaning "Child of the Exiles."

For the next quarter of a century it is probable that thousands will bear this as a family name, thus identifying them with the most tragic event in the history of the Armenian people.

There is no desire to magnify one group of workers over another, as all are worthy of the highest praise, but space does not permit of further personal mention. It is sufficient to say the effective relief work that has been done would have been impossible but for the intelligent and tireless efforts of the Protestant missionaries in Syria and Turkey. I add that it is my conviction, after three months of observation, that no new organization can come in with untrained workers who know neither the language nor traditions of the people, and do as effective a piece of relief work as can be done by trained missionaries who add to the humanitarian motive the imperative that inspires all missionary enterprises.

A Comparison--Is it Fair?

The writer of this recently visited the home of a friend in a prosperous town in South Carolina. The question of the support of the ministry was raised. While the conversation was being carried on a young girl, about 16 years of age, entered the building. She had a good face, but no unusual display of intelligence; and her use of the English language indicated lack of education.

The hostess explained to her guest, "This is one of our mill girls, and she is making over a hundred dollars a month." "Well," asked her guest, "how does that compare with the salary of your pastor?" Her reply indicated that the salary of her pastor was less than that of the little mill operative (and her pastor a man with a family to support). Is it fair? That minister is a man who holds his high school certificate, he was a tri-medalist of his college, and a graduate of one of the foremost seminaries of the South; and he spent hundreds of dollars in preparing to preach the Gospel. And he is pastor of a church which is able to pay him a much larger salary. Is it fair, to him and his family, or even to the church itself, for a pastor to thus be handicapped, and in a constant struggle to make ends meet; trying to live on a smaller salary than a teenage operative in a cotton mill?

That pastor may never utter one word of complaint, and may continue his efforts there; but shame on the church which forces him to it.

My reader, is the salary of your pastor a living salary? Can your pastor live comfortably on the salary your church pays? Take him into your confidence and ask him about it. And if he needs a larger salary, give it to him (if possible). For, it is indeed unfair to the ministry, and indirectly a hindrance to the cause of Christ for any church to keep a pastor trying to live on less than the wages of an ordinary day laborer.

A Visitor.

Sunday School

By Rev. H. G. Hill, D.D.

CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP.

Golden Text—I John 4-7, "If we walk in the light, as He is in the light, we have fellowship one with another and the blood of Jesus Christ His Son cleanseth us from all sin."

Phil. 4:10-20.

July 27, 1919.

Mutual interchange of blessings between those intimately related constitutes fellowship. It may exist between friend and friend, between husband and wife, or between members of the same family. The more intimate the relation, the more abiding and delightful the fellowship. The most desirable fellowship is that manifested by Christian hearts, for they are most closely and permanently united. Paul greatly rejoiced in the Christian fellowship, the sympathy and care manifested between Him and the Philippian Church. He had planted and fostered the Church, and its members had shown much interest in his welfare. Our lesson presents the Lesson of Contentment, the Peculiar Privilege of the Philippian Church, the gifts Paul received, and Their Chief Source of Supply.

I. The Lesson of Contentment.

Paul declares, "I have learned in whatsoever state I am therewith to be content," "I know both how to be abased and how to abound." I am instructed how to be full and to be hungry, how to abound and to suffer need. The Apostle had learned a very difficult lesson even for a Christian, how with cheerful faith and patience and contentment, without murmuring or complaining, or without undue exaltation to encounter privation and loss, or prosperity with abundance. Only one conscious that a gracious God and Saviour rules his life and directs all his experiences, and promises that "All things shall work together for good to them that love God" can attain the contentment that Paul describes. This contentment originates in submission to the Divine will as revealed in His providence, after we have done all in our power to escape temporal ills. There is a contentment with our condition that is not praiseworthy and that is produced by inertia or idleness. A person may be content in ignorance, or immorality, or poverty, not because it is the will of God, but on account of lack of energy or effort for improvement. Such contentment is neither pious nor commendable.

II. The Peculiar Privilege of the Philippian Church.

Paul says of them, "Ye have well done: that ye did communicate with my affliction, ye know that in the beginning of the Gospel, when I departed from Macedonia, no church communicated with me concerning giving and receiving but ye only." Of all the churches planted by Paul in his early ministry, only that at Philippi was allowed to minister to his wants. By so doing they cheered him in his labors, released him in some measure from physical toil and gave him more time for serving Christ and winning souls. He cherished for them a most tender affection, and gave them counsel, encouragement, warning, commendation and many prayers. The Christian fellowship of Paul and this Church in the interchange of kindly offices was excellent and beneficial.

III. The Philippian Gifts to Paul.

These were repeated and frequent. Habitually Paul supported himself and those with him by personal labor that he might make the Gospel without cost to the hearers, and remove all pretext for charging selfish motives. But with the Philippians he acted differently, knowing their affection for him, and that they would not misunderstand his receiving gifts, nor hinder the progress of the Gospel. He received them, too, when sent by agents, not merely because they lightened his toil and rendered his labors more efficient, but because he desired "fruit that might abound to their account. The Philippians by their gifts to Paul proved the reality of their piety, and the controlling power of their Christian principles.

IV. The Chief Source of Supply.

While Paul acknowledges the benefactions of the Philippians and imparts to them much excellent teaching, he does not fail to point them to the chief source of supply for all our need. He says, "But my God shall supply all your need according to His riches in glory by Christ Jesus." However helpful to each other, human beings may be our main source of supply for all needs, and of satisfying blessings is Jehovah. Christian fellowship and mutual helpfulness meet many needs and promotes human happiness. But Divine fellowship with its accompanying fruits is far more essential to the believer's welfare and blessedness. The apostle affirms "Truly our fellowship is with the Father and with His Son Jesus Christ." When we think of the Divine character and resources, we can but rejoice in our union with Him. God is wise, good, merciful and Almighty. His resources are infinite and He "Can do for us far above all we can ask or think." He has bestowed upon man His Word, His Son and the Holy Ghost, the most precious spiritual gifts, besides those included in creation and a constant gracious providence. We may well be assured with the apostle that "He Who spared not His own Son but delivered Him up for us all, how shall He not with Him also freely give us all things." Can we not rest satisfied with His assertion and promise "For the Lord God is a sun and shield, no good thing will He withhold from them that walk uprightly." If in fellowship with Christ can we withhold anything that He claims?

"A Good Soldier of Jesus Christ."

[The following poem by Mrs. Margaret J. Preston, of Lexington, Va., has been sent us by a valued subscriber who signs herself "A reader of your paper since its very first number, years ago," with this comment: "These verses are as appropriate to this war as to that of 1861." To this we agree.—Ed.]

"O! soldiers! well ye bear your part;
The world awards its praise;
Be sure, this grandest tourney o'er,
'Twill crown you with its bays!
But there's sublimer work than even
To free your native sod
Ye may be loyal to your land,
Yet traitors to your God!

"No moslem heaven for him who falls
A bribed requital doles;
And while ye save your country—ye,
Alas! may lose your souls!
No glorious deeds may urge their claim
No merits entrance win,
The pierced hand of Christ alone
Must freely let you in."

Prayer.

I know not by what methods rare,
But this I know; God answers prayer.

I know not when He sends the word
That tells us fervent prayer is heard.

I know it cometh soon or late;
Therefore, we need to pray and wait.

I know not if the blessing sought
Will come in just the guise I thought.

I leave my prayers with Him alone
Whose will is wiser than my own.

—Record of Christian Work.

Home Circle

"MUSIC HATH CHARMS."

A few instances of what has been done in some homes through the power of music will, I know, tell you more than the mere advancement of theories.

A little girl who was very miserable and managed to make mother or nurse most unhappy all through the process of hairdressing and getting into bothersome clothes, would submit most graciously if mother sang:

"My mother bids me bind my hair
With knot of fairest hue;
Tie up my sleeves with ribbon rare,
And lace my bodice blue;
For why, she says, sit still and weep
While others are at play?"

an adaptation of Haydn's beautiful air.

Another mother learned to help her little boy work off some of his stormy fits of temper by going to the piano and playing some stormy, impetuous bit like Schumann's "Wild Rider."

My sister remembers that even as a child she recognized this power of music to bring sweetness out of temper. She was very angry one day with a sense of some injustice done her and in this mood started to play her beloved piano. As she did this she realized that if she played she would soon cease to be angry, and not being ready to give up her resentful mood, she rejected the gentle ministry of music and went to her room to nurse her unhappiness.

As an incitement to bravery, music has often been used in the home. A little boy much afraid of the dark would go upstairs to a dark room for mother when she played a strong march for him as he went.

If mothers could realize how many times a bit of music would be of greater service than even the kindest remonstrance, they would have crashing chords ready for the angry boy, nonsense songs to drive scowls from the face of little daughter, and jolly jig to set lagging feet and drooping spirits dancing; while a gay little tune improvised or adapted for the occasion, would often bring cheerful obedience in response to the request to pick up playthings or perform some other unwelcome task, where a stern command would start an unhappy time for all concerned.

One of my childhood memories is of visiting in a country home where the mother would often get up from the breakfast table and say, "Come let us sing a little before we do the work." Bad housekeeping, perhaps, but good homemaking, for I have since learned that this method was always resorted to when the morning atmosphere of the home threatened to be gloomy or quarrelsome; and the singing never failed to drive away the clouds. Of course, this use of music is most effective with a child who is either endowed by nature with the ability to respond to musical influence or has been trained in ear and heart to feel its effects.

Another memory of my childhood is of a visit to a dear auntie who, on Sabbath afternoons, took her little visitor and read from a volume of sacred poems. The cadence of her sweet low voice will always echo through my memory.

It is truly a part of music's ministry to speak through the charm of a well-modulated, pleasant-toned voice, lending itself freely to the various moods of the fine nature it serves. It is truly one of the duties of the mother and the kindergarten to be a model for her children in this respect as in many others, for children are very sensitive to voice quality.

To sing the lilting measure when the heart is gay, to give thanks for cherished blessings in the glad hymn of praise, to send upon wings of song a prayer for strength to bear the burden and grief too heavy to be borne alone—this is what God's great gift of music should mean to us. Let us help the little children to enter into their heritage of song.—Mrs. Jean N. Barrett.

News of the Week

President Wilson, since his arrival, has been busy catching up with his work. He offered to go before the Senate Foreign Affairs Committee, but with a discourtesy hard to be explained, they have ignored his offer.

Mr. Wilson has vetoed the repeal of the Daylight Savings Law. He has also urged the State of Alabama to ratify the Woman Suffrage amendment.

Brand Whitlock, who has been Minister to Belgium since 1913, and who did such a great work during the war, has been named as American Ambassador to Italy, to succeed Thomas Nelson Page, who recently resigned.

Sir Edward Carson, the leader of the Ulster party in Ireland, is justly provoked by the present campaign in America in behalf of the Irish. He suggests that we busy ourselves with our own affairs.

The North Carolina State Board of Charities and Public Welfare refuse to approve the appointment of W. S. Porter as superintendent of public welfare for Mecklenburg County, on the ground that the appointee should be a man of experience in that kind of work.

A readjustment of export rates will soon be started by means of which the South Atlantic and Gulf ports will win the fight they have been making.

North Carolina's cotton acreage has been decreased 10 per cent, indicating a crop of 1,454,000 acres which, at its 83 per cent condition, forecasts a yield of 745,000 bales for the State.

The Illinois department of agriculture claims that enormous quantities of meats, butter and eggs are now in storage in Chicago, under the control of the five big packers.

Replying to a speech of a few weeks ago to the effect that moonshining in North Carolina is on the increase made by Representative Pou, Representative Doughton on July 19 made a speech in the National House of Representatives in which he questioned the correctness of the statement and pointed out the benefits that the State had gotten from prohibition.

Forest fires are raging in northern Idaho, western Montana and eastern Washington and are causing grave concern. Every man who could qualify for the arduous work of fire fighting has been employed. The work has been handicapped somewhat on Rattle Snake Creek, Montana, by agitators urging the fighters to strike for 14 hours pay for 12 hours work. Twenty-four men quit in response to the appeals.

Aroused by repeated attacks on white women by negroes in Washington, on July 19 soldiers and sailors invaded a negro section and severely beat one negro and fired several shots before the police could interfere.

On July 19 the triumphal victory parade, marking the return of peace, was held in London. It was a most gorgeous spectacle, participated in by land, sea and air forces of the British empire and her allies. The pageant was viewed by several million of persons, and was accounted the greatest celebration that England has witnessed since the celebration of Queen Victoria's diamond jubilee in 1897. The Americans with Pershing led the procession. Marshal Foch, Field Marshal Haig and other celebrated commanders led their contingents.

After a week in Virginia waters preparing for their voyage, the Pacific fleet, the grim superdreadnaughts and swift destroyers, weighed anchor on July 19 and began a voyage that is to furnish the first real test of the Panama canal and take to the Pacific coast the first great fleet assigned to its defense.

More and more serious attacks by Mexicans are gradually coming to light. On July 6 a boatload of American sailors from the U. S. S. Cheyenne were held up in the

(Continued on Page 14)

The Prayer Meeting

TOPIC FOR WEEK BEGINNING JULY 27, 1919:
MINISTERING WOMEN—Matt. 27:55-56.

By Rev. C. D. Waller.

Christianity is a religion of service. In this fundamental aspect of our faith, woman has always held an honorable place. It was a woman upon whom God placed the honor of giving birth to the Saviour of mankind. It was a woman who watched over his infancy, and budding boyhood and young manhood. Women were believers in his message, his personality evoked their profoundest trust and gratitude and love; and women constantly saw to it that his simple wants were supplied.

Jesus discovered the woman that was to be, and through Him she came into her own. No thoughtful woman can forget this, or be ungrateful to Jesus.

Mary of Magdala is a type of the sex as influenced and saved and elevated by Christ. A cruel and selfish civilization had enslaved woman, and had consequently degraded her. This social creed was as the seven devils who tortured and enslaved Mary. An occasional woman by force of character, and by the help of generous males, rose to distinction and service in that ancient society. But Jesus only saw the true beauty and dignity of womanhood, and in love and gratitude she instantly became, and has continued from his day, a ministering woman. Her dignity and beauty and queenly qualities are indissolubly linked with service. When she ceases to serve, she immediately reverts to the pre-Christian type, and forges again the chains of her servitude. This paradoxical statement will be indignantly questioned by many not followers of Jesus, but history teaches nothing if not this. Her true freedom is the freedom of the spirit, and expresses itself in loving service. Responsibility, conscience, acceptance of obligations, fidelity to opportunities of service—it is this that constitutes woman's true beauty and glory. There is no middle ground.

A group of men once offered Mr. Schwab sixty millions for one-half interest in Bethlehem. "It is a big sum," he said to Mrs. Schwab. "Half of what I have is yours. What shall we do? If we sell, your share, invested at five per cent, will bring you an income of over a hundred thousand dollars a month for the rest of your life."

Note the reply.

"We wouldn't sell for five times that," she said. "What would I do with the money? And what would you do without your work?"

Schwab continues: "I have seen more men fail in business through the attitude taken by their wives in their younger days than from all the vices put together." These words of Mr. Schwab should be published from housetops, posted in show windows, printed in large type in papers, posted on billboards.

What is true as here stated of the wife is true also of woman in the church. The writer has known one woman to dominate, and paralyze the initiative of a whole church. The writer knows other churches immeasurably blessed by the ministry of women. It was no accident that women were last at the cross and first at the tomb—that Jesus, risen in His glory, first appeared to a ministering woman.

TRUST.

I've many a cross to take up now,
And many left behind;
But present troubles move me not,
Nor shake my quiet mind.
And what may be tomorrow's cross
I never seek to find;
My Father says, "Leave that to me,
And keep a quiet mind."

—Anon.

Christian Endeavor

By Rev. S. H. Hay.

M., July 28—Practical Piety: 1 Tim. 5:1-8.
T., July 29—Testifying at Home: Mark 5:1-20.
W., July 30—Mutual Love: Ruth 1:1-18.
T., July 31—Example of Jesus: Luke 2:51.
F., Aug. 1—No Jealousy: Gen. 4:3-16.
S., Aug. 2—Toward a Guest: John 12:1-3.

Sunday, Aug. 3, Topic—Our Relation to Others. II.
Toward Parents and Others in the Home. Exod. 20:12;
Eph. 6:1-9. (Consecration meeting).

If there is one place more sacred than all others, surely it is the home. It is here that God is worshipped every day, here we live in steady contact with the lives of the people to whom we owe the largest debt of love and deference and purity, and here we do our growing into good or evil. The home makes our personal history, and the collective history also of our race. No stream can rise higher than its source, and no nation can be better than the homes in which its people are made.

Our lives are what our habits make them, aren't they? Wherever we go, and under whatever varied conditions we live from week to week and from month to month, our behavior is a repetition of what we have learned by habit to do. Our Christian conduct itself is established by habit. It is a sort of balance wheel to keep the engine going right. We repeat again and again the Christian deeds until they become as second nature to us. The home is an institution designed to teach us habits of right and lovableness. It is hard to be a Christian in our relation to others anywhere away from home if we have not learned the grace by habit in the home.

The home should be the last place on earth to be willingly or thoughtlessly desecrated by worldliness, discourtesy, or inconsiderateness.

When we are young we owe our parents in the home a full and cheerful obedience. Even when we are old enough to have attained our full majority and therefore owe no longer a literal obedience, we still owe the utmost deference and honor. As long as our parents live they are the prime earthly objects of our veneration and respect. To have it otherwise is to confuse the natural order and incur the displeasure of God.

But what shall we do about others than our parents in the home? Brothers and sisters, aunts and uncles, guests, and servants all must come in for their share of our Christian love and courtesy. Our religion must be such that others shall enjoy our having it, as well as ourselves. If those that live in the home with us get no benefits from the fact that we are Christians, perhaps we are not Christians after all.

One loving spirit sets another afire, says Augustine. One loving spirit can transform a home.—Lewis.

I never heard my father's or mother's voice raised in any question with each other; nor saw any angry or even slightly hurt or offended glance in the eyes of either. I never heard a servant scolded, nor even blamed. I never saw a moment's trouble or disorder in any household matter.—John Ruskin.

Greed and laziness and love of pleasure, in fact, all forms of selfishness, are what ruin homes.—Morton.

Tell some of the things you think Jesus did every day in the home when a youth.

Name some of the selfish things often done in the home. Tell who is benefited by Christian conduct in the home—Is Christ? If your church? Yourself? Other members of the home?

Presbyterian Standard

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, $2.50 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE.
REV. W. L. BOGGS, Circulation Manager.

PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY AT CHARLOTTE, N. C.
ESTABLISHED JANUARY 1, 1858.

Entered at the Post Office at Charlotte, N. C., as second class matter.

A Religious Newspaper for the Family, Devoted to the Interest of Christ's Kingdom as Represented by the Southern Presbyterian Church.

CONTENTS OF THIS ISSUE

EDITORIAL—	PAGE.
"Christian Bodies Call for Justice".....	2
Reforming the Dance	2
A Wandering Star Gone Out.....	2
The Church Paper	3
The Reassessment of Property	3
Notes Here and There	3
CONTRIBUTED—
Effective Relief Work in the Near East—By R. E. Magill	4-8
Jesus a Disappointment—By Rev. J. G. Anderson, D.D.	5
Resolutions of Montreat Y. P. Conference.....	5
A Letter From the Governor to Mr. Average Citizen	6
Musings on Physical Force and Life—By Philip A. Emanuel	6
A Little Prayer—By John Oxenham.....	6
Northern Assembly—By J. W. Moseley, Jr....	7
The Church and the Boy Scout Movement—By Rev. Roswell C. Long	7
An Answered Prayer—By Mary Isabella Forsyth	7
A Comparison—Is It Fair?	8
"A Good Soldier of Jesus Christ"—My Mrs. Margaret J. Preston	9
Prayer	9
DEPARTMENTS—
Sunday School—By Rev. H. G. Hill, D.D.....	9
News of the Week	10
Christian Endeavor—By Rev. S. H. Hay	11
Prayer Meeting—By Rev. C. D. Waller	11

ANNOUNCEMENT.

 The label on the paper gives the date to which subscription is paid.

When change of address is desired, give both the old and the new address.

When the date of the label is behind the date of this issue of the paper the label is a reminder that the subscription price is past due. When the date of the label is in advance of the date of this issue it is a receipt for the last subscription paid.

No charge is made for the insertion of marriage and obituary notices of fifty words or less. For all over fifty words remit at the rate of one cent a word. Correspondents are requested to give the post office address of married couples when marriage notices are sent.

TREASURERS OF BENEVOLENT CAUSES.

Foreign Missions—Edwin F. Willis, 154 Fifth Ave., N., Nashville, Tenn.

Home Missions—A. N. Sharp, 1522 Hurt Building, Atlanta, Ga.

Christian Education and Ministerial Relief—John Stites, Fifth and Market Streets, Louisville, Ky.

Publication and Sabbath School Work—R. E. Magill, 6-8 N. Sixth Street, Richmond, Va.

Bible Cause—Wm. Foulke, Bible House, New York.

Church News

Collections—July is not assigned to any one of our Church causes, but in many of the Synods and Presbyteries it is assigned to Synodical, Presbyterian, or congregational Home Missions. Pastors and churches can obtain information from the chairman of the committee of their own Presbytery.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

Dr. W. H. Miley, Evangelist Synod S. C.

As chairman of the Synod's Committee of Local Home Missions in the Synod of South Carolina, I wish to announce that Rev. W. H. Miley has been elected by our committee as evangelist of our Synod and will commence his work within our bounds the first of September. Dr. Miley has done most excellent work as evangelist of the General Assembly and we have great expectations of a most fruitful ministry in the churches of the Palmetto State. Churches desiring engagements for meetings should confer at once with their respective Presbyterial chairman. A most cordial welcome awaits Dr. Miley.

E. E. Gillespie, Chairman.

RESOLUTION OF APPRECIATION.

Resolved: That the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees of Stonewall Jackson College desire to express the board's high appreciation of the valuable services of Dr. Melvin and his co-workers, Messrs. R. K. Axson, A. C. Ormond, H. H. Brownell, Charles Guice, J. T. Caughley and R. M. Good, in raising the Land and Equipment Fund, of $30,000.00, for Stonewall Jackson College, and desire to say that they not only appreciate their success but regard them as exceedingly capable and splendid men, and wish to give them their commendation without reserve, and to express their gratification of having the pleasure and honor of meeting and knowing them, and further wish for them great success in their future work for the Church, and for their individual happiness and prosperity.

Unanimously Adopted, July 3, 1919.

PERSONAL.

Rev. and Mrs. L. T. Newland and children, who have been at home on furlough for the past year, left the past week for Vancouver, whence they will sail for Korea.

Rev. John Jordan Douglass, the pastor of the Wadesboro church, is contemplating publishing a book of poems this fall. The booklet, "The Quest of the Star," published by Mr. Douglass two years ago, went into several editions and was in every way a success.

NORTH CAROLINA.

The Church at Morven has just made a substantial increase in the pastor's salary and the call will be amended at the next session of Mecklenburg Presbytery to incorporate the increase. Large congregations attended both services last Sunday, despite the extremely hot weather, and the prospects at this point are exceedingly encouraging.

Belmont—Our regular quarterly communion was celebrated on the first Sabbath of the month. The pastor announced the names of three more new members, making sixteen who have joined the church since the spring communion. We have recently ordained and installed three new elders: Messrs. W. R. Stowe, John D. Tucker and Frank Lewis, and five new deacon: Messrs. Graham Dixon, Geo. W. Stowe, William D. Crawford, R. F. Cox and Charles Sloan. These additional-officers form a good working team of eight elders and nine deacons. The Junior Christian Endeavor Society has presented the church with a handsome hymnboard and a set of splendid collection plates. Our young people are taking much interest in the work of the church.

Ida Mill Group—Laurel Hill, N. C. The pastor, Rev. Charles R. Bailey, is enjoying leave of absence from his duties, which he is spending in White's Bible School, New York City. This group recently had the pleasure of entertaining one of our missionaries, Rev. W. C. Buchanan, of our Japan mission.—All enjoyed his visit. Well attended Sunday school institutes have recently been held in the Sunday schools of the county.

Sunday School Institutes—Dr. H. G. Hill writes: "Last week there were Sabbath School Institutes held, which I attended, at Centre, Harmony School House, Midway Church, Maxton and Laurinburg. They were well attended at all places and many phases of Sabbath School work were presented. When conducted in the morning, either in town or country, sumptuous dinners were served. Most of the churches of Robeson and Scotland counties have had institutes."

Orange Presbytery met in Greensboro July 8, 1919, and transacted the following business:

1. The pastoral relation between Rev. J. G. Walker and the Bessemer Avenue and Glenwood churches, Greensboro, N. C., was dissolved and Mr. Walker was dismissed to Enoree Presbytery, South Carolina.
2. The Rev. E. N. Caldwell was received from the Nashville Presbytery and a call from the Graham Church was placed in his hands and accepted by him, and arrangements were made for his installation for July 20, 1919.
3. There being no request before Presbytery from either the Rev. K. L. McIver or the Edgemont Church, Durham, N. C., no action was taken in regard to his resignation and request for dismission to another Presbytery.

Stated Clerk.

Wilmington—Rev. and Mrs. L. T. Newland left Charlotte last week after a year's furlough. They are to sail for their return journey to Korea on the S. S. Empress of Japan from Vancouver, B. C., July 24. They go out entirely supported by St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. Classes of the Sabbath School have pledged support for several helpers in their work. The Woman's Auxiliary sent out several weeks ago to be ready for the work of Mr. Newland a two-seated motorcycle for his itinerary work. A committee of ladies has sent letters enclosing each some small token that Mrs. Newland may have a letter from some member of the church to be opened one each day during their voyage. The visits of both Mr. and Mrs. Newland greatly increased the intelligent interest of the members of St. Andrew's Church and the people of Wilmington in Korea and in the work of Foreign Missions and made many warm personal friends for them in and outside of this church, all of whom follow them with their prayers and sympathy.

Charlotte—Rev. and Mrs. Silas A. Ewart were engaged as missionaries to Korea by the Men's Society of the Second church at a meeting of the society at the church Monday night. Rev. and Mrs. Ewart were married last Tuesday. They plan to leave in the fall for the foreign field.

The Men's Society will pay the whole salary and supply the equipment for the two missionaries, the expense a year amounting to $2,400. Mr. Ewart, who has been pastor of the Presbyterian church at Newton, volunteered some time ago for foreign mission work. The society has raised a fund of $3,200 for mission work.

It was announced that this society plans to engage a home missionary in the near future. The society plans to put one home missionary in the field for every two missionaries, it was explained. The engagement of Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Ewart was announced to be the first definite undertaking of the society.

About 75 members of the society were present at the meeting, and workers reported that 75 new members had been secured during the past week. The membership now numbers more than 200.

H. J. Knebel, who was recently engaged as executive secretary of the Second church, was a guest of the society and made an address. Mr. Knebel, who has been secretary of the Salisbury Y. M. C. A. for several years, plans to begin his work here the last of this week. His family will move to Charlotte in the fall. He was boys' work secretary of the Charlotte Y. M. C. A. a number of years ago.

President A. E. McCausland presided at the meeting.

Waynesville—Rev. W. M. Sikes, D.D., the pastor, has just completed a series of eight sermons on the various aspects of the Holy Spirit's work, which he has delivered to his congregation. These sermons have created considerable interest among his people. The subjects and their texts are as follows: "The Holy Spirit in the Life of Christ on Earth," from Luke 3:21-22, "Now when all the people were baptized, it came to pass, that Jesus also being baptized, and praying, the heaven was opened, and the Holy Ghost descended in a bodily shape like a dove upon him, and a voice from heaven, which said, Thou art my beloved Son; in thee I am well pleased."

"The Holy Spirit in the Scriptures; or the Inspiration of the Bible," from II Timothy 3:16, "All Scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness." The plenary and verbal inspiration of the Bible which makes it the infallible rule of faith and practice was set forth.

"The Necessity of Our Receiving the Holy Spirit," from Acts 19:2, "He said unto them, Have ye received the Holy Ghost since ye believed? And they said unto him, We have not so much as heard whether there be any Holy Ghost." The need for the indwelling of the personal and divine Spirit in the believer for assurance and service was taught from this text.

"The Danger of Quenching the Spirit," from I Thessalonians 5:19, "Quench not the Spirit." The operations of the Holy Spirit are often set forth in the New Testament under the figure of fire. By refusing to obey the Holy Spirit and by other forms of sin we may quench his power for service in our lives.

"The Co-Operation of the Holy Spirit with the Preacher in Preaching," from text Isaiah 61:1, "The Spirit of the Lord God is upon me, because the Lord hath anointed me to preach." The burden of this message was to the effect that the minister truly called of God preaches under the power and by the direction of the Holy Spirit, and so delivers a message from God.

"The Holy Spirit and the Hearer of the Preached Word," from II Corinthians 2:14-16, "Now thanks be unto God, which always causeth us to triumph in Christ, and maketh manifest the savour of his knowledge by us in every place. For we are unto God a sweet savour of Christ, in them that are saved, and in them that perish; to the one we are the savour of death unto death; and to the other the savour of life unto life."

"The Holy Spirit and the Church; or the Golden Candlestick and the Two Olive Trees," from Zechariah 4-6, "Then he answered and spake unto me, saying, This is the Word of the Lord unto Zerubbabel, saying, Not by might, nor by power, but by my spirit, saith the Lord of hosts." The church which is set to be the light of the world is fed by the ceaseless inflow of grace from the Holy Spirit which enables it to accomplish its god-given task in the world.

"The Holy Spirit and the Music of the Church," from Ephesians 5:18-19, "Be not drunk with wine, wherein is excess; but be filled with the Spirit; speaking to yourselves in Psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, making melody in your heart to the Lord." The purpose of this discourse was to give the hearers a more exalted conception of music as a means by which our spirits are brought into closer relationship with the eternal Spirit of God. The chief mission of music is religious, or spiritual, although it is often prostituted to sinful ends.

Charlotte—Rev. A. C. Ormand, D.D., of Davidson, N. C., filled the pulpit of the Second Presbyterian Church last Sabbath morning, preaching a very fine sermon. The pastor, Dr. McGeachy, was in New York for a part of the week.

Charlotte—The Baird School of this city has opened a department for youths who have finished the fifth and sixth grades of the city schools. Rev. J. G. Garth, formerly pastor at Hickory and recently in war work at Camp Greene, will have charge of this department.

Montreat—Churches in territory adjacent to Montreat desiring supplies for one or more Sundays may write to Rev. Anton Ver Hulst, pastor of the Montreat Church, who will endeavor to arrange supply work by the ministers who are at Montreat for the summer. Occasionally missionaries are also available.

Charlotte, First Church—The pastor of this church, Dr. A. S. Johnston, will have the month of August for his vacation, a part of which he will spend at Montreat. During his absence the following ministers will supply his pulpit:

Rev. W. A. Cleveland, Jacksonville, Fla., August 3rd.
 Rev. Geo. L. Bitzer, D.D., Valdosta, Ga., August 10th.
 Rev. W. R. Dobyns, D.D., St. Joseph, Mo., August 17th.
 Rev. Thornton Whaling, D.D., Columbia, S. C., August 24th.
 Rev. John Garth, Charlotte, N. C., August 31st.

Montpelier, Wagram—This church has just passed through one of the best revivals of its history. Rev. A. W. Crawford preached twice each day, beginning with July 6 and going through July 13. The congregations were splendid throughout the meeting, and the people of the entire community listened with interest and profit to Brother Crawford's earnest and able expositions of God's Word. Additions to the churches could not be large because almost everybody in this Scotch community is already a member of some evangelical church. We earnestly desired a real revival of religion and we believe that the Master has fulfilled that desire. The church expressed its appreciation of Brother Crawford's stay in our midst by making an offering of $163 to the Synod's work. V. R. G.

Washington—The following new officers have recently been elected and installed: B. G. Moss, C. M. Brown and R. L. Stewart, elders, and F. J. Berry, H. H. McLean and B. B. Ross, deacons. Our official boards will be greatly strengthened by the addition of these members.

Our deacons have decided to renovate our church building. It will be repaired and painted within and without.

We have a beautiful new Sunday school building, and when the main edifice is renovated we shall have a very commodious and handsome property.

Our July communion was well attended. Six new members were received during the quarter, four by letter and two on profession of faith.

We thank God and take courage. H. B. Searight.

Statesville—On Thursday, July 17, at 11 a. m., a very interesting and enthusiastic conference was held in the auditorium of Mitchell College in the city of Statesville, N. C., in the interest of the Million Dollar Campaign for the benefit of the educational institutions of the Synod of N. C. This conference was attended by ministers, elders and deacons of Concord Presbytery, together with Dr. M. E. Melvin and seven of his committee who are now engaged in the canvass of the churches of Concord Presbytery in behalf of this great cause.

About forty people were present at this conference, and the Alumnae Association of Mitchell College served an excellent lunch to all present on the occasion.

Several very instructive and inspiring addresses were made on this occasion both by members of the Campaign Committee and ministers and elders of the Presbytery, and

(Continued on Page 16)

Woman's Auxiliary

Conducted by Mrs. Jno. M. McIver, Gulf, N. C.

CONFERENCE WOMAN'S ADVISORY COMMITTEE.

The Woman's Advisory Committee of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Presbyterian Church, U. S., convened in Montreat, North Carolina, July 9, for its seventh annual conference. At the opening session the chairman, Mrs. S. D. Walton, introduced Mrs. W. J. Webster, of Front Royal, Va., as leader of the Bible study hour. Mrs. Webster chose the Holy Spirit as the theme of the series of Bible lessons to be given at the conference. Mrs. Webster possesses the power of presenting new truths with great clearness, and old ones with an added freshness and conviction. No feature of the program was more instructive or impressive.

No changes had been made during the past year in the personnel of the Woman's Advisory Committee, as very few State meetings were held on account of the epidemic of influenza. Executive committee meetings were substituted where synodical meetings were impossible. The secretary, Mrs. Wm. M. Charlton, Kentucky, enrolled the following members: Synodical presidents: Mrs. J. W. Bruce, Alabama; Mrs. W. S. Payne, Louisiana; Mrs. W. B. Ramsay, North Carolina; Mrs. G. T. Ralls, Oklahoma; Miss Ella Cummins, Tennessee; Mrs. Chris Dulnig, Texas; Mrs. S. D. Walton, Virginia; Mrs. Winston Lynes, Missouri; Miss Agnes Davidson, Florida; Mrs. Ernest Thompson, West Virginia; Mrs. W. H. Whitaker, Mississippi; Miss Anna Belle McLaughlin, alternate for Mrs. J. B. Nunn, of Arkansas; Mrs. R. L. Pomroy, alternate for Mrs. J. R. Whitman, of Georgia; Mrs. F. L. Mayes for Mrs. Bramlet, of South Carolina; Mrs. W. C. Winsborough, superintendent, and Mrs. D. A. McMillan, treasurer.

Reports of officers and superintendent and the various State presidents revealed that the women had indeed done a wonderful work in spite of all the outside work they had been called upon to do. These very conditions had been conducive to that result—and also developed leaders with initiative and wide vision for aggressive church work. The year's work had not been unfruitful either in its material or spiritual results.

The superintendent's address, and also the address of the chairman, were delivered before the Woman's Summer School of Missions the following week.

Dr. Anderson, president of Montreat Association, presented the material plans for a larger Montreat and solicited the co-operation of the women in accomplishing this. Some of the sessions were strictly executive and dealing with method for the better carrying out of the policies of the Auxiliary. Information concerning the deliberations of those sessions will be found in the minutes, which the secretary will gladly furnish upon request. Saturday morning's session was devoted largely to a conference with the Supervisory Committee. Officers of the Woman's Advisory Committee for the ensuing year are as follows: Chairman, Mrs. J. W. Bruce; vice-chairman, Mrs. W. B. Ramsay; secretary, Miss Agnes Davidson.

The seventh annual conference of the Woman's Advisory Committee adjourned at noon Saturday, July 12, 1919.

Mrs. Winston Lynes.

News of the Week.

(Continued from page 10)

Temess river, nine miles from Tampico, and the sailors robbed. The boat was flying the American flag.

Lt.-Col. Samuel T. Ansell, former acting judge advocate general of the army and the central figure in the controversy within the war department regarding military justice, has handed his resignation to Secretary Baker. His friends claim that Col. Ansell will continue his fight for radical changes in the whole system of military justice.

A Call to United Prayer

For Christian Education in Synod of North Carolina

The Movement to Raise ONE MILLION DOLLARS for Christian Education in the Synod of North Carolina Was Not an Accident

It bears every evidence of God's leading. United prayer to Him is therefore not only fitting, but is IN EVERY WAY NECESSARY

JESUS SAID: "whatsoever ye shall ask the Father in my name He will give it you."

"all things whatsoever ye shall ask in prayer, believing, ye shall receive."

"I say unto you, that if two of you shall agree on earth as touching anything that they shall ask, it shall be done for them of my Father which is in Heaven."

AIMS

1. To help North Carolina Presbyterians, 50,000 strong, to appreciate the fundamental place of the Christian college in training effective Christian leaders.
2. To visit practically every member in every church in the Synod of North Carolina; to discover and enlist many friends able to give largely; large numbers able to give in small sums; hosts willing to pray and work.
3. To reach the minimum goal of One Million Dollars within the time limits.

PRAY

1. That God may be honored in all the methods, efforts and spirit of the Campaign.
2. That the money secured may be so given as to bless the givers as well as the colleges.
3. That many young men and women may be inspired to enter one of these Christian colleges for better preparation for their life's work, and that through these colleges many may find God's plan for themselves.
4. That the men directing the Campaign—the committee: Mr. A. M. Scales, of Greensboro, chairman; M. E. Melvin, the manager, and all the men who work in the field—may have God's blessing upon them and His direct leadership in this great effort; that they may be wise, patient, tactful and victorious—and helpful.
5. That the Campaign may kindle many fires among the Presbyterians of North Carolina that shall light up the darkest parts of the earth.

PRAYER PLEDGE

Believing in the fundamental importance of Christian Education; interested in the success of the Million Dollar Campaign for our schools in North Carolina; with faith in God and the power of prayer, I covenant to pray daily, or as near thereto as possible, for the success of this effort.

Name _____

Address _____

Date _____

(This pledge will be kept in confidence and not used publicly)

Will you not sign the attached pledge and mail to Headquarters? You can pray as well without signing it, but we can work better and harder if we know you are praying.

Campaign Headquarters
Presbyterian Schools
Greensboro, N. C.

Church News.

(Continued from Page 14)

considerable enthusiasm was manifested by all present in behalf of the great movement to promote our educational interests in this Synod, and the prospects of "Going over the top" in the enterprise. On account of the location of Mitchell College in this city, and the needs which confront it, there is considerable local interest manifested here in behalf of this campaign, and it is confidently believed that the people of this community will subscribe considerably more than Mitchell's proportion of the million dollars.

The following resolution was unanimously adopted by the conference, viz:

"Resolved, That this informal assembly of ministers, elders and deacons of Concord Presbytery endorse heartily the plans for raising the million dollars for our educational institutions in the Synod of North Carolina, as outlined by the committee working under the Assembly's department of Christian education and ministerial relief, and urge all our churches to fully co-operate in this timely and vital effort, affectionately reminding them of the Presbytery's request that all our pulpits be opened to the leaders of this movement. We also recommend the reading of this resolution to all our churches"

C. M. Richards, Chairman.
J. M. Clark, Sect'y.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

Belton—Broadway Church is planning a series of services to be held from August 10 through 17 and to be conducted by a brother of the pastor, Rev. B. E. Wallace, D.D., pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Paris, Tex.

Salem—This strong country church near Winnsboro, in Congaree Presbytery, is supplied during the summer by Rev. Henry Alexander White, D.D., professor in Columbia Seminary.

Columbia, Woodrow Memorial—Rev. J. Spole Lyons, chaplain, preached on the second Sunday of this month in the Woodrow Memorial Church. He has some engagements for the summer in Kentucky; and expects to come to Columbia Seminary in the fall for some post-graduate study.

Columbia, First Church—The pastor, Rev. A. W. Blackwood, D.D., has announced that he would take a four weeks' vacation, beginning after the first Sunday in August. His pulpit will be supplied in his absence by the following ministers: Rev. Melton Clark, D.D., Rev. Edwin Muller, D.D., Rev. Davison M. Douglas, D.D., and Rev. L. Ross Lynn, D.D.

Liberty—This church has recently received four members—two by letter and two on profession of faith. On last Sunday two additional deacons, Messrs. A. L. Boggs and J. H. Boggs, were ordained and installed. It has been decided to make extensive improvements on the manse. The money has been pledged and work has already begun.

H. A. Knox, Pastor.

Columbia, Arsenal Hill—Rev. Marion A. Boggs, co-pastor of the Grace-Covenant Church, Richmond, Va. preached for his brother, Rev. W. H. Boggs, in the Arsenal Hill Church on the third Sunday.

The pastor of this church, Rev. W. H. Boggs, leaves next week for a three weeks' vacation in the upper part of the State. He will hold a week's meeting in Fair Play Church, in Piedmont Presbytery, the early part of August.

Bishopville—Harmony Presbytery held a called meeting in the Bishopville Church on Wednesday evening, the 16th inst., for the purpose of ordaining to the ministry a son of that church, James Cousar. He spends next year at Union Seminary as fellow on the Hoge Fellowship Foundation, then goes as missionary to China. Rev. A. W. Blackwood, pastor of First Church, Columbia, on invitation of Presbytery, preached the ordination sermon.

To the Ministers of the Synod of South Carolina—The William Brearley Home at Montreat, N. C. (the South Carolina Ministers' Home), is open again for the comfort and convenience of the ministers of the Synod for the season. Comfortably furnished rooms, with light and water, are offered them free of charge, and one of the most entrancing of mountain views awaits all who will avail themselves of the splendid provision a kind friend has provided for them. Rev. M. R. Kirkpatrick will be there during the season and care for the comforts of all. Address all communications for rooms or information to Wm. Brearley Home, or to Rev. M. R. Kirkpatrick, Montreat, N. C.

APPALACHIA.

Asheville, N. C.—Rev. Wm. P. Chedester is serving the Ora Street Church of this city. Under Mr. Chedester's leadership the Sunday School and Church are both showing signs of growth.

Morristown, Tenn.—The First Church of this city has increased the salary of the pastor, Rev. Lynn R. Walker, for the second time since his pastorate began. The second increase amounts to $300 a year.

ARKANSAS.

Dermott—We recently had a splendid co-operative meeting of two weeks. Rev. G. W. Belk, of North Carolina, one of the General Assembly's evangelists, did the preaching, and Rev. A. L. Carter, of Springfield, Mo., a minister of the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A., led the singing. The preaching was thoroughly Scriptural and of a high order, and was enjoyed by all who attended the services. Mr. Carter won the hearts of the people by his splendid singing and genial, sunny personality. Much good was accomplished, and the seed sown in this meeting will bear fruit in eternity.

GEORGIA.

Griffin—The pastor of the First Church, Rev. J. Marion Stafford, has as his assistant for the summer months Mr. Richard F. Simpson, a student of Columbia Theological Seminary, who is doing fine work at Orsborn chapel and in the outlying districts.

Atlanta, North Avenue Church—Following a four months' service at North Avenue, where he endeared himself very much, Dr. John H. Elliott has begun work at the College Park Presbyterian Church, College Park, Ga. This church is very fortunate in securing Dr. Elliott, who is a most able and consecrated minister and whose work is well known in the United States and other countries.

During the months of July and August, Dr. Jas. O. Reavis, of Columbia, S. C., will supply the pulpit. North Avenue gives to him a hearty welcome, and is exceedingly glad it is their good fortune to have two such ministers as Dr. Elliott and Dr. Reavis with them during Dr. Flinn's absence overseas.

Grace Titman, Sec.

Atlanta—One June 29 Rev. B. R. Lacy, D.D., was installed pastor of the Central Church. In honor of the occasion all the Presbyterian churches of the city united with the Central congregation, making a splendid audience to enjoy the services. The sermon, as preached by Rev. R. D. Stinson on "The Mission of the Church" was peculiarly fitting to this particular church which on account of its location seems in close proximity to the "sin-burdened, the afflicted and the outcast," and carried an impressive message to both pastor and people. The constitutional questions were propounded by Rev. J. S. Lyons, D.D., the charge to the pastor delivered by Dr. McCain, and the charge to the people by Mr. Hemphill. Dr. Lacy is a young man who has done wonderfully fine work wherever he has been placed, whether in college or seminary, in the home mission fields of North Carolina or as adviser and friend to the doughboy in France, and much success is predicted for him in his city pastorate also.

Elberton—Rev. H. W. Koelling, who has recently returned from overseas where he labored as a chaplain with the 371st Infantry, has accepted a call to the Presbyterian church at Elberton, and began his work as pastor July 1. Mr. Koelling was cited for gallantry in the Champagne offensive of September 26-October 6, 1918. He was also recommended for citation for Croix de Guerre for faithful and courageous services in attending the wounded and recovering and burying the dead, regardless of astillery fire, through the battle of September 28-October 5, 1918. The recommendation for citation was made by Colonel P. L. Miles, of the 371st Infantry. The Croix de Guerre was received by Mr. Koelling on February 15, 1919.—Christian Observer.

LOUISIANA.

Bogalusa—Mr. R. S. Woodson, a student at Columbia Seminary under the care of Mecklenburg Presbytery, has been secured as supply for this field for the summer months. Mr. Woodson has been serving in the Navy for the past year but has received his discharge and will enter the seminary again in the fall.

VIRGINIA.

Christiansburg—This church observed for the first time "Decision Day" in the Sunday school on a recent Sunday. Rev. Bolling Hobson, evangelist of Potomac Presbytery, was present the previous week and preached the Gospel twice daily, the result of these services and of the personal efforts of members of the congregation being that twenty-five of the children made a profession of faith in Christ.

Danville—The congregation of the First Presbyterian Church has opened a subscription list for the William R. Laird Scholarship at Union Theological Seminary, Richmond. It is proposed to raise the sum of $10,000, which will be invested, the interest to defray the expenses of some worthy young man who wishes to fit himself for the ministry. The scholarship will be a permanent memorial to the late pastor of the First church, and will be known as the "W. R. Laird Scholarship." No contributions will be solicited by the church, and all will be voluntary. It is expected that the fund will have been raised before July 18, the date on which the minister died a year ago.—Christian Observer.

WEST VIRGINIA.

Sutton and Gassaway—Rev. Geo. H. Rector was installed pastor in each of these two churches, Sunday, June 29, at Sutton in the morning and at Gassaway the same night. The commission appointed by Tygart's Valley Presbytery was composed of the following ministers and elders: Drs. F. H. Barron and R. M. Hall, and Rev. W. A. Reveley, together with ruling elders, R. H. Humphreys and C. W. King. Dr. Hall was the only ministerial member of the commission present, so it fell to his lot to preach both sermons and deliver all four charges. The day was ideal, prophetic, we trust, of the relationship officially established between pastor and people. Cor.

Marlington Church—This church has experienced recently the greatest revival of religion in its entire history. Not only can this be said of the church, but the same may be said of the whole town. The church life of the community has been wonderfully quickened. Dr. J. Layton Mauze, of Huntington, W. Va., was with us for practically two weeks, beginning Sunday, June 15. His preaching of the gospel was with wonderful power and great conviction. Men and women were moved under his preaching as they had never been before. In all there were about sixty conversions, and a great number of reconsecrations. The pastor is receiving Sunday by Sunday a large number both on profession of faith and by letter. J. M. W.

West Virginia Notes—The Lewisburg Bible Conference will open its doors for the regular annual session at Lewisburg, W. Va., on the evening of July 30, at 8 o'clock. The Rev. S. M. Glasgow, of Charleston, W. Va., will open the Young People's Conference with an address that night. Miss Katie Belle Abney, also of Charleston, will have the Bible hour during the Young People's Week, i. e., the first week of the Conference. Dr. W. McC. White, of Raleigh, N. C., will have charge of the Bible hour through the second week, which is to be the regular Bible Conference week.

Such additional names as Rev. and Mrs. Walter A. Snow, of the West Virginia State Sunday School Association; Supt. Thos. B. Talbot, of Kentucky; Dr. Gilbert Glass, Richmond, Va.; Dr. W. T. Palmer, Lynchburg, Va.; Dr. Ernest Thompson, Charleston; Dr. A. M. Fraser, Staunton; Dr. F. H. Barron, Elkins; Rev. Gill I. Wilson, Parkersburg; Dr. D. P. McGeachy, Decatur, Ga.; Mr. Wade C. Smith, Richmond; Rev. J. L. Lineweaver, Beckley, W. Va.; Rev. M. B. Porter, Richmond; Rev. W. H. Dubose, Lewisburg, W. Va., and others, render the success of the program a certainty. Besides these, Miss Lucy Winston Paine, of Charleston, will be in her old place at the piano during the Young People's Conference, while Mr. Virgil L. Hall, of Milton, W. Va., will lead the young people in their singing, and Rev. J. H. Viser, of Charleston, will be their athletic director.

Various and sundry interesting features, some of them not on the program, will be announced in due season. Ample accommodations, at reasonable rates, will be provided in the Seminary buildings for all that come.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, U. S. A.

At a meeting of the congregation of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, New York City, the Rev. Dr. John Kelman, of Edinburgh, Scotland, was named as the new pastor, to succeed Dr. John Henry Jowett, who resigned last year to go to the Westminster Congregational Chapel in London. It was said that Dr. Kelman had accepted the appointment and would take up his new post on the first Sunday of October.

Dr. Kelman, who is in his fifty-fifth year, was educated at the Royal High School, Edinburgh University, and the New College in Edinburgh. In 1897 he was called to the North United Free Presbyterian Church, Edinburgh. He visited the United States about a year ago and preached at Princeton, and also delivered through many cities in the West and in the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church a lecture on "Life in the Trenches." This Spring he spent almost two months in this country, preaching here and in several Western cities and delivering a course of lectures at the Yale Divinity School. Some of his publications are "The Holy Land," "The Faith of Robert Louis Stevenson," "The Light That Saves," and "The Courts of the Temple." It was said at the meeting that he will be the highest paid Presbyterian minister in this country.

Here is the prayer which every Christian ought often to make: "Search me, O God, and know my heart; try me and know my thought, and see if there be any evil way in me; and lead me in the way everlasting." It is the part of cowardice and of criminal indifference to disregard the tendencies in our lives that are destructive. We may well welcome anything whatever that points attention to the defects and indicates the remedy.

Marriages and Deaths

Marriages.

Dupuy-Younger—At the home of Mr. J. C. McSween, DeFuniak Springs, Fla., on May 27, 1919, by Rev. Daniel J. Currie, Mr. Samuel Worth Dupuy, of St. Louis, Mo., and Miss Ruth Younger, of Baltimore, Md.

Weaver-McDonald—At the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. L. C. McDonald, DeFuniak Springs, Fla., on June 18, 1919, by Rev. Daniel J. Currie, Mr. William E. Weaver, of Pensacola, Fla., and Miss Helen McDonald, of DeFuniak Springs, Fla.

Wood-Shaw—In Atkinson Memorial church, Kinston, N. C., June 24, 1919, at 6:30 p. m., by the Rev. G. B. Hanrahan, pastor of the bride, Mr. Carroll Emory Wood, of Roanoke, Va., and Miss Jennie Powers Shaw, of Kinston, N. C.

Alexander-Withers — In Norfolk, Va., June 30, 1919, by Rev. Harold Shields, Rev. Eugene Alexander, of Raeford, N. C., and Miss Ruth Campbell Withers, of Henderson, N. C.

Abrahams-Whitehead—In Norfolk, Va., June 21, 1919, by Rev. Harold Shields, Geo. Tucker Abrahams, of Richmond, Va., and Nina Genevieve Whitehead, of Norfolk, Va.

Blanton-Trexler—In Richmond, Va., July 10, 1919, by Dr. F. T. McFaden, Dewey W. Blanton and Violet E. Trexler, both of Richmond, Va.

Hill-Dull—In Richmond, Va., July 10, 1919, by Dr. F. T. McFaden, Frank H. Hill, of Elmont, Va., and Mildred A. Dull, of Richmond, Va.

Wilkinson-Cooper—May 28, 1919, at "Millwood," the home of the bride, near Wisacky, South Carolina, by Dr. George L. Petrie, of Charlottesville, Va., Dr. Henry Brookman Wilkinson, of Montgomery, Ala., and Miss Mary Elizabeth Cooper, daughter of Mr. Robert Muldrow Cooper.

Deaths.

Wicker—Died in Raleigh, N. C., June 30, 1919, Hugh Miller Wicker, of Brooklyn, N. Y., aged 58 years and six months. Since his fifteenth year he had been a follower of Christ. He was the youngest child of the late Alexander M. and Caroline McIver Wicker, and was buried beside his parents' graves in Buffalo cemetery, near Sanford, N. C.

Cumpton—In Baltimore, Md., June 17, at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Mary Cowman, Edward H. Cumpton, in the 71st year. He was buried in the Presbyterian cemetery, Lynchburg, Va.

He was the son of Rev. Edward H. Cumpton, pastor of the Second church, Lynchburg, 1842-'47, and later of churches in Virginia and Maryland.

IN MEMORIAM.

Mrs. M. W. Moore.

Resolutions of the Woman's Auxiliary of Bethlehem Presbyterian church, Mebane, N. C., on the death of Mrs. M. W. Moore.

Whereas, God in His all-wise Providence has called to her reward our beloved co-worker, Mrs. Jeannette Moore; therefore, be it resolved by this society that, while we bow in humble submission to the will of our Father Who doeth all things well, yet we deeply mourn our loss in the taking of our dear friend whose sunny disposition and loving heart brought cheer to all in her presence. Her lively interest in our society and church work was an inspiration to us all, and her Christian influence will long be felt for her Savior. Be it further resolved, we extend our sincere sympathy to her loved ones in their bereavement and we would point them to our sympathizing High Priest, who has promised that His grace shall be sufficient for us all in every time of need.

Mrs. W. G. Stafford,
Mrs. G. W. Lasley,
Miss Susan G. Thompson.

Children's Department

ON A VISIT.

Dear Standard:

I am a little girl nine years old. My mamma takes your nice paper. I like to read the letters and stories in it. My home is in Hamlet. I am now visiting my cousins near Raeford. We have been having a good time together. I will be in the fourth grade next year at school. Miss Lucas was my teacher last year. I hope my letter won't reach the waste basket, for I want to surprise mamma and papa. Your little friend,
Hamlet, N. C. Ruth Adams.

A MISSIONARY COTTON PATCH.

Dear Standard:

I am a little girl eleven years old. I live in the country. I go to Sunday school every Sunday that I can. I haven't missed but two Sundays this year. My Sunday school teacher is Miss Lucy Wilks.

I belong to the Junior Christian Endeavor Society of Bethel Church. I have a cotton patch to make my missionary money. My pastor is Rev. Eugene Alexander. He was married last Monday and is now on a trip north. We are expecting him and Mrs. Alexander back this week.

My papa takes your nice paper and I enjoy reading the little letters and stories in it. I will stop now for fear of the waste basket. Your little friend, Martha Lee McLean.

Raeford, N. C. Route 1.

DESTRUCTIVE HAIL STORM.

Dear Standard:

I am a little boy ten years old. I live on the farm. A hail storm came in June and tore up our crop. I go to school. My school is out. My teacher's name was Miss Jessie Alexander. She was from Providence, N. C. I go to Sunday school every Sunday I can. Our pastor's name is Mr. G. W. Nickel. I am in the Child's Catechism. Your friend,
Leslie Thompson.

York, S. C.

A SWIMMING POOL.

Dear Standard:

I am a boy eight years old. I go to school at my home in Warsaw. My teacher is Miss Margaret Barclay. I am visiting my aunt in Greenville now and I go in a nice cement swimming pool every day.

I read the letters in your paper this week and want to surprise my grandmama with mine.

I have several pigeons. Your little friend,
James Hicks Peirce.
Greenville, N. C.

The sign hanging on his breast read: "Help me, please. I am deaf and dumb." "My poor man," exclaimed the woman, "how long have you been afflicted?" The deaf and dumb man promptly replied, "About twenty years, ma'am," and the old lady gave him a half dollar.

Hold yourself responsible for a higher standard than anybody else expects of you.—H. W. Beecher.

WHAT HAPPENED IN THE GARDEN.

It was a warm day. Betty rolled over to where the clover was thick and soft and cool and saw close beside her what she at first thought was a fairy's lace bedspread illuminated with row upon row of tiny electric lights.

"Why, I believe it is Mr. Spider's house!" declared Betty. "There he is at the window now!"

Sure enough, Mr. Spider, gorgeously arrayed and wearing many jewels—a watch chain of yellow topaz around his neck, rubies in his shirt front, and other beautiful ornaments on his head and body—was gazing haughtily at the little girl in a blue gingham frock.

"Hello!" cried Betty.

Mr. Spider, however, did not answer Betty. Instead, he commenced to hum softly to himself. "Will you walk into my parlor?" were the words Betty caught. She knew the rest of it; it was in one of her books. Mr. Spider was on the lookout for his breakfast!

"Oh, dear! what shall I do?" cried Betty, as she caught sight of young Master Fly, dressed in a bottle-green waistcoat and black cutaway coat of thin material, befitting a warm June morning, coming gayly along.

Although young Master Fly's mother had warned him many times about the whole Spider family, he thought he was quite capable of taking care of himself, so he loitered a little to inspect the Spider House.

Mr. Spider kept right on humming:

"I've got a little parlor
And a little dining-room,
I've also got a little den
Which I will show you soon."

This song quite charmed the visitor. He circled nearer and nearer to the Spider House, not heeding Betty, who cried, "Mr. Fly, Mr. Fly, O please—" but just then something happened!

A big, fat Grandfather Grasshopper in green jacket and tight-fitting cap, leaped from a great white dandelion blow which was right in front of the Spider House, and so startled young Master Fly that away he flew.

Betty drew a sigh of relief, while the Grasshopper, smiling all over his queer little face, said, "Summer's the time for grasshopper fun."

"I wonder what will happen next?" said Betty.

Just as Betty said this a little bird in a brown-and-white striped coat, with a black collar button under his chin, alighted on a twig right over her head and cocking his head to one side, said, "Good morning!"

"Good morning!" answered Betty. "How is your family this morning?"

"O, we are all right!" answered the bird in the brown-and-white striped coat, "but we would not have been if it had not been for the string you gave me. Flutter was crowded to the edge of the nest, yesterday, and if he hadn't been stopped by the string, he would have fallen."

"I'm very glad I gave you the pink string for your nest," said Betty. "Have all the eggs hatched?"

"All four!" answered Mr. Song Sparrow, proudly. "Now, I shall have to be busier than ever," and away he flew to the nestful of babies over in the sweet brier bush.

Just then Betty spied a funny, white worm, fat and round and not a bit pretty, coming out of a small round hill that the ants had built. "What's your name?" asked the worm.

"Betty. What's yours?" laughed the little girl.

"Cetonia Aurata," answered the worm.

"Oh! what a nice name," exclaimed Betty.

"Soon," went on the worm, "I shall be wearing a richer coat than ever you wore."

"What color?" asked Betty.

"A beautiful green and gold," answered the worm.

"Oh, my!" said Betty. "I should think you would be in a hurry to change your coat," she was going to add, when she heard a tiny voice say:

"Oh, dear! Oh, dear me!"

Turning, Betty saw a small beetle dressed entirely in black, climbing laboriously up a swaying blade of grass. As Betty watched, it lost its balance and tumbled down on the grass.

"I am all ready to begin housekeeping," began Madame Beetle. "I want to get to that tree. Won't you please help me, Betty?"

"Of course I will," said Betty; "but how did you know my name?"

"I heard you tell Cetonia," answered Madame Beetle. "We are of the same family."

"And will you change your black coat some day for one of green and gold?" asked Betty.

"Oh, no!" answered Madame Beetle. "I belong to the engraver beetles. We always dress in black. Thank you very much for bringing me to the tree."

"What are you going to do?" asked Betty.

"Funnel into the bark and make a room for myself, then, make a smaller one for my husband," answered the Beetle.

"Why doesn't he make his own?" inquired Betty.

"O, Mr. Beetle is a lazy fellow and never helps with the work," returned Madame Beetle, carelessly.

It was very interesting to watch Madame Beetle at work, but presently Betty saw something even more interesting and that was a green, orange and black caterpillar making a silk swing on the side of a twig.

"Please, what are you doing?" asked Betty, politely, after she had watched the caterpillar for a long, long time.

"All swallow-tail caterpillars make these swings before they cast their last skin," answered the caterpillar. He pushed the head part of his body through the loop or swing, then he stopped working and took no further notice of Betty.

Out upon a large maple leaf, which he used for a stage, stepped a beautiful locust with wings of gauze and a green body marked off in a darker color.

He nodded at Betty and started at once to sing. He sang from low Z to high Z and back again without a break, for the hotter the day, the better a locust can sing.

Betty enjoyed the concert very much and she told the locust so.

"O, singing is easy," replied the locust.

"I don't think so," said Betty.

But the most wonderful of all the wonderful things which Betty saw in the garden was a little creature performing acrobatic feats.

Betty first saw him on the fence and his coat was gray, the color of the fence. Then he hopped on to a green leaf and immediately his coat was green. From the leaf he made a flying leap to the tree trunk, then Mr. Tree-Toad wore a suit of tree-trunk brown.

Betty was so pleased to see him she clapped her hands, but very, very softly for fear of frightening him away.

He seemed very much surprised to see Betty, and winked and blinked at her for a full minute. He was only about two inches long, with a star-shaped patch on his back. When he found that the little girl with the yellow hair and blue eyes lying on the green grass meant him no harm, he told her how long he had lived in the tree, what he liked best to eat and what a merry time he had when he went hunting on moonlight nights.

He was still talking when something crawled over Betty's little pink hand that lay in the grass. A whole family of ants were carrying off Betty's sugar cookie!—Gertrude Winham Fielder, in The Churchman.

TALKS WITH NATURE.

"I think you're quite funny," I said
To the River, "for while you've a bed,
You're awake night and day,
And run on, yet you stay;
And your mouth is so far from your head."

I said to the Hill: "I'll allow
You have a most wonderful brow,
But you've such a big foot
That you never can put
On a shoe of the style they use now."

I said to the Tree: "You are queer;
Your trunk is all packed, but I fear
You can't leave until spring
When—a curious thing—
You must still remain standing right here."

To a green red Blackberry I said:
"I know you are green when you're red,
And you're red when you're green,
But to say what I mean
Is enough to befuddle one's head."

—St. Nicholas.

Story and Incident

"Only a Servant Girl."

Mrs. George Brown's door bell rang rather early one morning, and, as she opened the door, there stood a bright-faced, rosy-cheeked young girl of eighteen.

"Is this Mrs. George Brown?" she asked.

"Yes, that is my name."

"I noticed in the paper last night that you want some one to work for you. My name is Mary Smith; I live on Fifth street, about half a mile from here. I have no recommendations, for I have never worked away from home. I have helped my mother as I could while attending school; graduated orly last June. I am quite anxious to take part of the burden from my father, who works by the day to support my mother and two younger sisters."

"What wages do you expect?"

"I hardly know, for I am so inexperienced. Whatever you think would be right. But there is one thing before I promise to come."

"I think I comprehend you. You want to know what evenings you can have off, and whether you may receive company here."

Mary blushed scarler, and said firmly, "No, and yes. You see, I have been accustomed to attending church services on Sabbath and prayer meeting Thursday nights."

Mrs. Brown opened her eyes very wide. This was something new for a servant girl. She was not a Christian, though she had been reared in a Christian home. Her husband was a man of wealth, and his chief aim was to add to the happiness of his wife, so far as he knew how. He gave ten dollars a year to the support of the little chapel where his working people worshiped, a few blocks from his home.

From that very hour Mrs. Brown regarded Mary with more than ordinary interest. A servant girl, a graduate, a Christian—one who wanted to help her hard-working father. "Surely, surely, this is no ordinary girl," she thought, and after a time she realized that she was not mistaken.

Often when Mary had gone to prayer meeting and Mr. Brown was not at home, Mrs. Brown would sit alone and think serious thoughts. One Thursday night she said:

"Mary, I have half a notion to go to prayer meeting with you. Mr. Brown will be away and somehow I feel lonely. I have not been in such a place in years, and you must not laugh at me if I am a little awkward."

That night after Mrs. Brown came home she was silent. She found her mind running back to other days—to the home of long, long ago; to the village church, to the family altar, while visions of father and mother came vividly before her. Why was it? All these things and more she pondered in her heart, until she found the peace in believing, which the world can not give and can not take away. Her husband noticed the change, and said, "Say, Margaret, what has got into you? You look so much brighter; you seem so much happier. You are twenty years younger."

Then she told him all that was in her heart. He was pleased and he was troubled with conflicting emotions. He went to the church, and said, "Say, I want to increase my subscription to the church. I've been giving ten dollars a year. Now I want to give a hundred dollars, for it's worth that to see my wife so happy."

When prayer meeting night came, Mr. Brown would often walk with his wife and Mary as far as the chapel door, and sometimes go in with them. There was such a sweet spiritual personality about his wife that he became afraid he might lose her.

One night he noted how plain and unattractive the room looked. His pride was touched. When they were alone, he said, "Margaret, I don't like to have you go to church in that old shell of a chapel. You can just as well go down town where others of your class go."

The wife smiled and put her finger upon his lips, and said, "There, there, George, dear. I know how you feel, but you do not understand. I found my best friend in that chapel. He met me there; he is always there. Any place that is good enough for him is good enough for me; and you know the 'common people' heard him gladly. I do not feel the least above the humblest old washerwoman who worships in the chapel. And then, Mary led me there, that I might find him there. Oh, George, if I could only lead you to see as I see." Then she kissed his brow, and there was a long silence.

A few days after that Mr. Brown went to one of the trustees, and said, "Say, why don't you folks do something to make that chapel a little more like a church? Fact is, I don't like my wife to worship in such a place."

"We are all poor people, Mr. Brown, and it takes all we can raise to keep up running expenses," was the reply. "We would gladly make the building more attractive if we could, or we would let any one do it who has the means and the disposition."

"You don't mean you would let me do it, do you? Would you folks let me put the building in better shape?"

"I do not think anyone would object, Mr. Brown, and I will let you know soon."

The trustee did let Brown know, and that not many days after. Then it was noised about that Brown was going to send carpenters and masons and painters over there to fix up the "meetin' house," and he was to pay the bills. It was no idle report. The carpenters came, the masons came, the painters came, and the chapel was transformed into a neat and really beautiful house of worship, quite large enough for those who needed it. Before six months had passed from the time of reopening, George Brown had learned that sweetest and most important lesson of life, and he became a devout follower of the meek and lowly Jesus. Often and often he would say, "Margaret, I just believe with all my heart that God sent Mary to us to lead us to Christ. Truly, his ways are past finding out."—C. W. Stephenson.

The Laborer's Task is O'er.

Now, the laborer's task is o'er,
Now the battle day is past,
Now, upon the farther shore,
Lands the voyager at last.

Father, in thy gracious keeping,
Leave we now thy servant sleeping.

There the tears of earth are dried,
There the hidden things are clear;
There the work of life is tried
By a juster Judge than here.

There the sinful souls that turn
To the cross their dying eyes,
All the love of Christ shall learn
At his feet in paradise.

There no more the powers of hell
Can prevail to mar their peace;
Christ the Lord shall guard them well,
He who died for their release.

Earth to earth, and dust to dust,
Calmly now the words we say,
Left behind we wait in trust
For the resurrection day.

Father, in thy gracious keeping
Leave we now thy servant sleeping.

PRESENT-DAY SUPERSTITIONS.

Caleb Cobweb Presents a Silly List.

Professor Conklin, of the University of Oregon, has been investigating the superstitious beliefs of his students, and finds a considerable number of these beliefs current among them. They include:

- Knocking on wood.
- Four-leaf clover.
- Prophetic dreams.
- Number 13.
- Opening umbrella in house.
- Fortune-telling (cards, tea-cup, palm).
- Sleep on wedding-cake.
- Black cats.
- Post coming between two walking.
- Picking up pins.
- Friday, or Friday, the 13th.
- Walking under a ladder.
- Breaking wish-bone.
- Wishing on stars.
- Moon over shoulder, through trees, etc.
- Premonitions.
- Breaking mirrors.
- Hoodooos, jinxes, charms.
- Number 3.
- Wishing on a load of hay.
- Weather signs (ground-hog, etc.)
- Carrying implement through house.
- Five-leaf clover unlucky.
- Wish upon simultaneous remark.
- Third smoke lighted from same match.—Ex.

FOR SOUR LAND.

Sour land is frequently the cause of crop failure, though other causes get the blame. Most lands have a goodly supply of plant foods (nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash), but when the soil is in a soured condition the food elements, even though abundant, are not available. They are insoluble and of no value to the plant.

To avail oneself of these plant foods one must necessarily sweeten the soil by neutralizing the acidity; must decompose the soil and set the plant foods free.

It is not always easy to tell when land is sour. Frequently many crops are ruined and much labor, money and time lost before the real cause of the trouble is found. It is unwise to try to raise a crop on sour land. Every farmer should keep a record of the acidity of his soil at all times. It will save in the long run.

The method is simple. Litmus paper is manufactured for the purpose. It would be simple work to obtain some litmus paper and test samples of the various types of soil taken from various sections of the farm. Dampen the soil a bit and apply one end of the litmus paper strip. If the dampened end remains blue the soil is not sour. If it turns pink the soil is sour and needs attention.

Sour soil is not such a very serious problem, though it is one that is frequently overlooked. Lime carbonate will quickly neutralize the acids, release the bountiful supply of plant foods and sweeten the soil. Tests throughout the country have proven its worth. Relco-Marl which contains over 90 per cent lime carbonate when applied to the land at any time will affect the very next crop and its effect will last for over five years. Two tons to the acre is enough for the average land. The yield is immediately increased and as it is a natural soil builder the land will improve from year to year. It is inexpensive and easily handled. Free litmus papers for testing your soil, literature and prices may be had by addressing Dept. 8-G, Roanoke Lime Co., Roanoke, Va. Incidentally, RelcoMarl when placed in the stable floor under a blanket of leaves, sawdust, etc., acts as the very best absorbent. It holds the ammonia in the manure that otherwise would be lost, particularly the liquid manure and will make each head of stock save over $20.00 per year in your ammonia bill. At the same time it improves the mechanical condition of the stable manure and acts as a deodorizer.

STATEMENT
SKANDINAVIA INSURANCE COMPANY
COPENHAGEN, DENMARK.

Condition December 31, 1918, as Shown by Statement Filed.

Amount of Capital paid up in cash.....	$ 400,000.00
Amount of Ledger Assets December 31st of previous year..	2,042,668.78
Income—From Policyholders, $4,920,212.87; Miscellaneous, $575,382.80; Total	5,495,595.67
Disbursements—To Policyholders, $1,531,467.33; Miscellaneous, $1,546,878.32; Total	3,078,345.65

ASSETS.

Value of Bonds and Stocks.....	$3,376,033.12
Deposited in Trust Companies and Banks not on interest..	150,268.13
Deposited in Trust Companies and Banks on interest.....	90,334.39
Agents' balances, representing business written subsequent to October 1, 1918	499,174.26
Interest and rents due and accrued.....	44,685.20
All other Assets, as detailed in statement.....	344,108.90
Total	$4,504,604.00
Less Assets not admitted.....	11,783.12

Total admitted Assets$4,492,820.88

LIABILITIES.

Net amount of unpaid losses and claims.....	$ 541,735.47
Unearned premiums	3,066,087.66
Salaries, rents, expenses, bills, accounts, fees, etc., due or accrued	30,000.00
Estimated amount payable for Federal, State, county, and municipal taxes due or accrued.....	12,435.85
Contingent commissions, or other charges due or accrued..	2,500.00
All other liabilities, as detailed in statement.....	1,373.97

Total amount of all Liabilities except Capital.....$3,654,132.95
Capital actually paid up in cash.....$400,000.00
Surplus over all liabilities..... 43,887.93

Surplus as regards Policyholders 838,687.93

Total Liabilities$4,492,820.88

BUSINESS IN NORTH CAROLINA DURING 1918:

Fire risks written, $5,255,399.00; Premiums received.....	$ 38,531.48
Losses incurred—Fire, $25,731.77; Paid	26,178.71

U. S. Manager, Sumner Ballard; Home Office in U. S., New York City; Manager for North Carolina, Home Office.

STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA,
INSURANCE DEPARTMENT.

Raleigh, April 15, 1919.

I, James R. Young, Insurance Commissioner, do hereby certify that the above is a true and correct abstract of the statement of the Skandinavia Fire Insurance Company, of Copenhagen, Denmark, filed with this Department, showing the condition of said Company on the 31st day of December, 1918.

Witness my hand and official seal, the day and year above written.

JAMES R. YOUNG,
Insurance Commissioner.

GET YOUR PIANO THROUGH THE STANDARD PIANO CLUB.

There has never been a time when the Club's money-saving plan was so attractive and so much appreciated as it is this year. The styles are even more beautiful than ever, the quality is still absolutely protected, in spite of all the difficulties arising from the war, and the big saving in price is even more important because of the high cost of living and the necessity of economizing. The Club offers you the opportunity to save approximately one-third the price and secure absolute protection as to the quality and durability of your instrument. The terms of payment are made to suit your convenience on a plan which Club members who have tried it pronounce the most attractive, liberal and convenient plan they have ever known.

In price, in quality, in durability and in terms of payment, the Club offers you an opportunity which cannot be equalled. You are cordially invited to place your order through the Club. Write for your copy of the handsomely illustrated catalogue with full particulars. Address the Managers, Ludden & Bates, Standard Piano Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga.

HENS MOULT FAST.

E. J. Reefer, the poultry expert, has discovered a scientific product that hastens the moult and revitalizes the organs of the hen and puts her in fine laying condition. The tonic is called "More Eggs" and a package of it is enough to carry the ordinary chicken raiser over the entire moulting season. First to lay is first to pay. "Since using 'More Eggs' I get forty to fifty eggs a day, instead of eight or nine," writes A. P. Woodward, of St. Cloud, Fla. A million dollar bank guarantees that you can have your money back if you want it. So, you don't take any risk. Send $1.00 for a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic. If you want to hurry the moult and get more eggs, act at once; it means more profit for you. Don't wait, but order today. Send $1 today to E. J. Reefer, 4th Floor, Poultry Bldg., Kansas City, Missouri. Or ask Mr. Reefer for his valuable poultry book free, that tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry.

"THE VALLEY OF VISION."

Henry Van Dyke.

Varied stories dealing with human love and faith, with dreams and realities, with things that will last now that the war is ended but not forgotten. One of the longest is a vision of three unknown days in the life of Jesus of Nazareth. It belongs with "The Story of the Other Wise Man," which has gone around the world.

PRICE $1.50, Net.

— Order from —

PRESBYTERIAN COMMITTEE OF PUBLICATION

Richmond, Va. Texarkana, Ark.-Tex.

CATAWBA COLLEGE

An old, time-honored institution located in the Piedmont section of North Carolina. Established in 1851. The following courses are offered: Classical, modern Language and Scientific, with degrees of A. B. and B. S.; Music, Expression, Art and Business. Trained specialists in each department who take personal interest in your boy and girl. Christian influences. Fine climate. Modern conveniences. Moderate cost. For catalogue and book of views, address

A. D. WOFFINGER, D. D., President, NEWTON, N. C.

GROVE INSTITUTE

(Formerly James Sprunt Institute)

KENANSVILLE : NORTH CAROLINA

A Preparatory School for Girls. High Grade, Thoroughly Christian. Very Moderate Cost. Students receive Close, Personal Attention in a Home-Like Atmosphere.

NEXT SESSION BEGINS SEPTEMBER 10th.

For Catalog and Particulars, address REV. W. F. HOLLINGSWORTH, Pres.

Chicora College for Women

THE PRESBYTERIAN COLLEGE OF SOUTH CAROLINA

A Standard College of Distinction and Character

Religion and Philosophy

Letters and Science

Home Economics

The Fine Arts

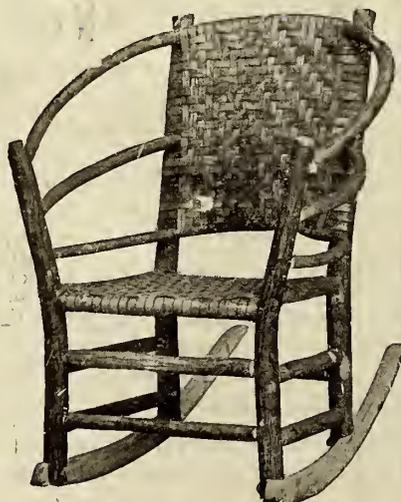

(Music, Art and Expression)

For Catalogue and Information, address

Pres. S. G. BYRD, D.D., Columbia, S. C.

Another Big Shipment of Popular Rustic Hickory Furniture

Just In

This most popular style rocker---No. 23---is only $6.10, freight prepaid to any point in North or South Carolina.

Write for catalogue of our complete line of Rustic Hickory Furniture.

W. T. McCoy & Co.

Charlotte, N. C.

THE HOME OF GOOD FURNITURE

YANKS MAKE THE FAIR RIVIERA "KHAKI COAST"

The Riviera, garden spot of France, where "day after day from the fairest of skies a brilliant sun shines down upon the bluest of waters," is so completely in the hands of holidaying American soldiers that instead of "the azure coast" it is now more appropriately "the khaki coast," writes Reginald T. Townsend in the July number of the New Red Cross Magazine.

"An army of doughboys, averaging 25,000 a week, completely inundated the Riviera all last winter and this spring. Just as surely as the Army of Occupation is in full possession of the Rhineland, so is the Leave Army in full possession of the Riviera. But there is a world of difference between the two. The Army of the Rhine is there for serious business; it has a grave responsibility; it is the Army of Occupation. There is nothing serious about the other army on the Riviera; it has no responsibility and no set purpose unless the pursuit of pleasure be dubbed a purpose; it is carefree and happy; it is the Army of No Occupation.

"Every day a special train—the A. E. F. express—leaves Paris for the south crowded to 'standing room only' capacity with doughboys, colonels, Red Cross girls, generals, correspondents — in short, a regular cross section of the A. E. F. All are setting out with the time. And they have it, rest assured of that."

THE NEGLECTED CHILD.

The child of four is often-times neglected because of its apparent ability to take care of itself.

A little child of four years of age was recently seen in a physician's office undergoing a thorough examination, and was found defective in several different ways—the child was underweight and underheight for age, had adenoids and defective tonsils, both of which affected the hearing. This child showed signs of nervousness and lack of control and the mother was almost beside herself with anxiety over what the doctor was intimating to her as regards condition of her child. This is not an unusual thing, even with the most loving and tender mothers, but a thing which should never exist.

It is often said that the child of four is the most neglected child in the family and there is much reason for this condition. The child of four in many instances has been superceded in the nursery by another baby who occupies the time and attention of its mother; it is apparently sufficiently able to do for itself, and likes and eats what is prepared for its parents. For all of these reasons this child falls into bad habits of rest and eating, for, as a child of four cannot do the muscular labor of an adult, neither can it get along on the same amount of rest of an adult, nor digest the same sort of food which makes good meals for the parent. The child of four is still an infant and is daily developing mental and physical powers, the development of which are entirely due to the quality of the care received. With this instruction in view, the State Board of Health has ready for distribution a pamphlet which is devoted to this child, entitled "The Child of the Pre-School Age." This pamphlet can be procured by writing to the Bureau of Infant Hygiene, State Board of Health, Raleigh, N. C., and clubs writing for same will be furnished with them in sufficient quantities to supply their membership.

You've done what you thought was best; now you want to stop thinkin' about it. The decidin' time was the time for worryin'. Now what you want to do is to brace up your sperrits.—Alice Hegan Rice.

What we are is the result of the free choice of good and evil we have made through life.

We secure positions for teachers, who are normal and college graduates, throughout the South and Southwest. Write us. THE YATES-FISHER TEACHERS' AGENCY, 326 Stahlman Building, Nashville, Tenn.

CUTS AND BRUISES,

burns, stings, sores, boils and the numerous other mishaps amount to little. If left alone, however, and if aided by the careless touch of a dirty hand an ugly sore will result and frequently blood poison. It is dangerous. Don't trifle. Apply Gray's Ointment immediately. It will instantly soothe the wound, cleanse the sore, kill the germs and put it on a steady road to recovery. Keep it on your shelf for every emergency. Its constant use for a hundred years has made it a family word in every household. Ask your druggist. If he can't supply you send his name to W. F. Gray & Co., 843 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn., and you will receive a liberal sample free.—Adv.

VIRGINIA, Danville
Randolph-Macon Institute FOR GIRLS
 Limited to 100
 College preparatory and special course for those not wishing to go to college. Vocal and instrumental Music, Art, and Expression. Attractive home life. Gymnasium. Branch of the Randolph-Macon System. Rates $425. Catalogue. Address Chas. G. Evans, A. M., Principal, Box C.

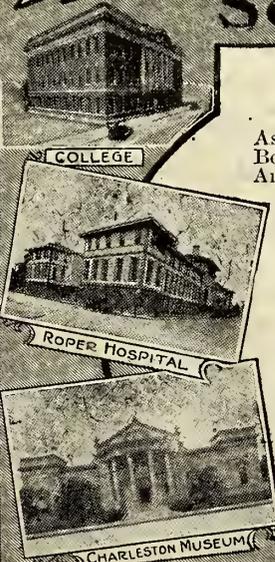

THOSE CONTEMPLATING A VISIT TO MONTREAT may secure good board and rooms by writing
MRS. MATTIE P. FROST,
 Montreat, N. C.

COLUMBIA COLLEGE
 COLUMBIA, S. C.

A College for Women ranked in Class "A" by Board of Education, M. E. Church, South. Recognized for its high type of Christian culture.
 Unusually complete educational facilities, strong university-trained faculty, thorough equipment, ideal location.
 Handsome fire-proof buildings, elegantly fitted with every convenience for health, comfort and safety.
 Beautiful 20-acre campus, affording ample opportunity for outdoor games.
 Library of upwards of 5,000 volumes in large, well-lighted quarters. Fine collection of magazines.
 Thorough courses leading to degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Science.
 Conservatory of Music under direction of skilled instructors.
 Thorough courses in Art, Expression, Business, and Home Economics.
 1919 session begins September 17th. For descriptive catalogue, address

G. T. PUGH, Ph. D., President, Columbia, S. C.

MEDICAL COLLEGE
 OF THE STATE OF
SOUTH CAROLINA

Schools of Medicine and Pharmacy
 Owned and Controlled by the State

RATED IN CLASS A by the American Medical Association. Registered by the New York State Board of Regents, member of the Association of American Medical Colleges. Member of the American Conference of Pharmaceutical Faculties.

New Building With Well Equipped Laboratories. A full corps of efficient all-time teachers.

Located opposite the Roper Hospital and very near the Charleston Museum, thus affording the students more extensive opportunities for research and training.

Requirements For Admission to the Medical School are certificate from a four-year high school which requires not less than 14 units for graduation, and two years of college work. The college work must include physics, biology, chemistry.

Women Admitted on the same terms as men. Session opens Sept. 26, 1919. For Catalogue, address.

H. GRADY CALLISON, Registrar
 Charleston, S. C.

FOOLING THE FAMILY.

Uncle Sam is spending millions that the boys maimed in the war may become self supporting, independent members of society. He is not baffled by any form of disability, says Samuel Hopkins Adams in the May number of the Red Cross Magazine. A stone deaf patient returned to his home after an intensive course in lip reading, determined not to let his family know the nature of his "wound." After forty hours at home the doughboy wrote: "I have them buffaloesd yet. But I went out after lunch to get a paper and when I came in I sat down with my back to the door, like a simp, to read it. My sister came in quietly and spoke to me four times behind my back. Then she came around in front and I saw her say, 'What's the matter with you? Are you deaf, or are you trying to have some fun with me?' So I had to own up. But I don't think they half believe it yet."

Necessity is not only "the mother of invention," but it is the father of industry and the grandfather of prosperity.

When men speak ill of thee, so live that nobody will believe them.—Plato.

MONTREAT LOT FOR SALE—
Beautiful situation near postoffice. For particulars, address W. F. Hollingsworth, Kenansville, N. C.

BIBLES
All Kinds All Sizes
WRITE FOR CATALOGUE
JOHN T. ALLEN
LITTLETON NORTH CAROLINA

Roanoke College

SALEM, VA.

- Location Situated in the Roanoke Valley, noted for healthful climate and grandeur of mountain scenery.
 - Rank A STANDARD AMERICAN COLLEGE FOR MEN. Its degrees recognized everywhere.
 - Curriculum Courses arranged in groups for A. B. and B. S. degrees, preparing for life and looking to professional training.
 - Facilities A very superior faculty, library of 25,000 volumes, eight buildings, and working laboratories.
- Roanoke is devoted to Christian education for service of Church and State.
Sixty-seventh session opens September 17.
For catalogue and all information, address
DR. J. A. MOREHEAD, President

Medical College of Virginia

(State Institution—Co-Educational)

STUART MCGUIRE, M.D., LL.D., Pres.

MEDICINE DENTISTRY
PHARMACY NURSING

New buildings, completely equipped. Laboratories under full time instructors. Unusual clinical facilities offered in three hospitals owned by the college, also in city hospitals and institutions.

81st session begins September 17, 1919.
For catalogue, address

J. R. MCCAULEY, Secretary

1121 East Clay Street RICHMOND, VA.

East Carolina Teachers' Training School

A State school to train teachers for the public schools of North Carolina. Every energy is directed to this one purpose. Tuition free to all who agree to teach. Fall term begins Sept. 24, 1919. For catalog and other information, address ROBERT H. WRIGHT, President, Greenville, N. C.

OAK RIDGE INSTITUTE
OAK RIDGE, N. C.

Prepares for bigger accomplishments in college, business and life. A very high standard of scholarship is maintained. Thorough courses are given in literature, science, book-keeping, shorthand and music. Athletics encouraged. Buildings modern; steam heat and showers. Cost reasonable—$350 per year. Fall session opens September 9, 1919. For illustrated catalog and fuller information, write

T. E. WHITAKER, PRESIDENT.

Albemarle Normal and Industrial Institute

(Founded by Miss F. E. Ufford in 1893)

UNDER AUSPICES OF MECKLENBURG PRESBYTERY

Christian School with home atmosphere. Beautiful and healthful location. Course of study from fifth through eleventh grade. Excellent musical advantages. Special classes in Bible, Sewing, Cooking and Home Nursing. Pupils prepared for college, for teaching, and for duties of home. Experienced and capable teachers. Terms very reasonable. For catalogue and information, write (MRS.) ELVA C. HARRIS, Superintendent, ALBEMARLE, N. C.

Coker College

Hartsville, S. C.

Equipment

A modern, up-to-date College for young women. $400,000 in buildings. 82,000 gallon swimming pool open all the year. Eighty-two baths. Boating on Prestwood Lake. Athletics. Operates its own heating, lighting, water, laundry, and refrigerating plant. College physician and registered nurse. Expert dietitian. Director of Physical Education.

Literary Course

No Preparatory Department. Four-year courses leading to B.A. and B.S. degrees. Home Economics required for graduation without extra charge. Full-time librarian with a course in library methods. Teachers with both college and university training.

Music Department

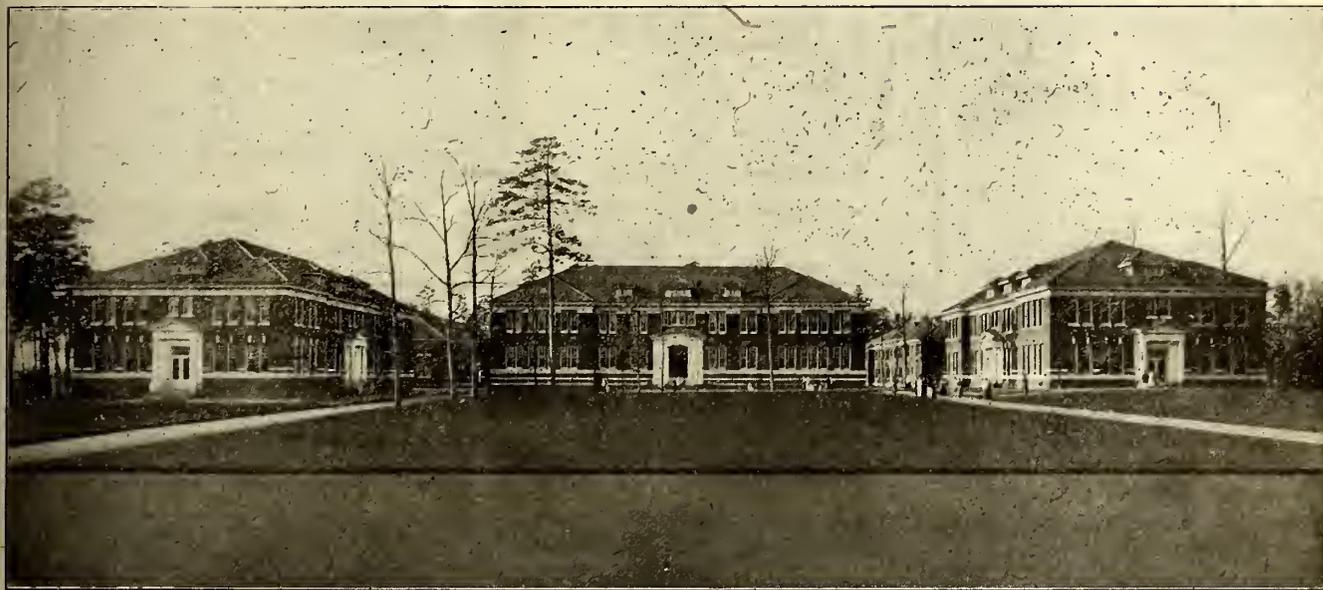

Ten studios. Teachers use Grand Pianos. Four years' course leading to B. Mus. degree. No short courses. Only diplomas awarded. Piano, Pipe Organ, Voice, and Violin. Annual May Festival.

Capacity limited to 300 boarding students.

E. W. SIKES, M. A., Ph. D., President

Queens College for Women

Charlotte, North Carolina

Established More Than Sixty Years Ago as "Charlotte Female Institute"

It is Now Recognized as the Best Equipped College for Women in the Entire South

We have five new two-story brick buildings with modern fire extinguishers, designed and erected solely for convenience, comfort, efficiency and safety. These buildings are located in the beautiful suburb of Myers Park, three and one-half miles from the center of the city.

We have a splendid wooded campus of 25 acres.

15 units required for entrance. Graduates from recognized State High Schools admitted on certificate.

This College is built on a firm belief in the inspiration of the Bible. Thorough Bible courses provided.

Standard college course leading to B. A. degree. Most complete equipment for thorough education.

Physical, Chemical and Biological Laboratories; Library, Gymnasium, Preparatory department. Able faculty. Dormitories divided into units of two rooms and connecting with bath, accommodating four students. Large, well-ventilated rooms, big closets. Buildings as near fire-proof as possible. Water, gas, electricity. Convenient street car service.

School of Music, Expression and Art offers superior opportunities. Music building has twenty-six rooms equipped exclusively for this department. Complete, thorough course leading to diploma. Post graduate course in music offered.

Our Motto: "Christian Women for Christian Homes"

Necessary expenses very moderate, about $325.00 for the regular literary course, including board. FALL TERM begins September 10, 1919.

For further information send for catalogue or write

WM. ANDERSON, Registrar, Box 300, Charlotte, N. C.

HISTORY TEACHES US VIRTUES OF SIMPLICITY

The great things of the world—men, or women, or mountains, or ideas—are simple, declares Angelo Patri in the July number of the New Red Cross Magazine.

"They are easy to understand. They are exactly what they say they are. They do not pretend. They 'come clean.'

"The founders of America were simple folk. They landed on a rock that became the corner-stone of a great nation. They gave it a simple name—Plymouth Rock. Their dress was very plain. You would know a Pilgrim Father and Mother if you met them anywhere today. And you would take off your hat to them, * * *

"Too many things, too many plans, choke up our lives. You know people who are so busy taking care of their things that they have no time to live. Some folks do not know at the end of the day whether the sky was blue or gray. They did not hear the song-sparrow although he sang bravely. They did not glimpse the road border of dusty mulleins and skyblue chicory and ox-eye daisies. Too busy. Daily they miss the salt and savour of the earth. They have forgotten the simple, beautiful things."

MARY BALDWIN SEMINARY For Young Ladies

Established 1842. Term begins Sept. 12th. In the beautiful and historic Shenandoah Valley of Virginia. Unsurpassed climate, modern equipment. Students from 31 states. Courses: Collegiate, 3 years; Preparatory, 4 years. Music, Art and Domestic Science. Catalog.

STAUNTON, VIRGINIA

EXPERT KODAK FINISHING

Developing and printing done by artists. Most beautiful work guaranteed at all times. Satisfaction or no charge. Developing, 10c. per film. Printing: 2 1/4 x 3 1/4, 3c.; 2 1/4 x 4 1/4, 4c.; 3 1/4 x 5 1/2, 5c. Quick delivery. Send one film to test our service.

Ligon Drug Co., Spartanburg, S. C.

The McCALLIE SCHOOL

A HOME SCHOOL FOR BOYS

Able men train boys for college. Individual attention 1,000 feet elevation. Big athletic field. All sports. Swimming. Boating. Military drill. Honor System. Boys live in Masters' homes, under their personal guidance. Address

Headmasters: S. J. & J. P. McCallie
Missionary Ridge, Chattanooga, Tenn.

Horner Military School

Parents desirous of securing a good school for their sons, where they will be taught all the necessary things that go to make a man, are asked to write at once for handsome new catalogue, showing advantages, courses and price per session.

Horner Military School

No. 5 Selwyn Ave. Charlotte, N. C.

BOOKKEEPING AND SHORTHAND

thoroughly taught. Enroll any time. Address Greensboro Commercial School, Greensboro, N. C., for Catalogue. Special Summer Rates now on.

PREPARE FOR A LARGER SALARY

In times of Peace prepare for a better job at a larger salary. Modern business demands trained men and women experts. The better the training the larger your salary will be. Today our graduates are in the front ranks of modern business. Enroll with this well-equipped business college, and help to make your future success secure. Handsome catalogue mailed on request. You can enter any time. School open all summer.

Kings Business College

Raleigh, N. C. and Charlotte, N. C.

Union Theological Seminary

RICHMOND, VA.

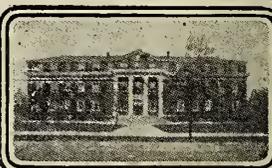

W. W. Moore, D. D., LL.D.
C. C. Hersman, D. D., LL.D.
T. C. Johnson, D. D., LL.D.
T. H. Rice, D. D., LL.D.
W. L. Lingle, D. D.
E. C. Caldwell, D. D.
Edward Mack, D. D.
George Sleeth

Biblical Literature
Greek Language
Systematic Theology
English Bible and Pastoral Theology
Church History, Missions and Sunday School
New Testament Exegesis
Hebrew Language and Exegesis
Public Speaking

Session begins October 1, 1919

For catalogue, apply to

REV. W. W. MOORE, President

PRESBYTERIAN COLLEGE of South Carolina

One of the most modern and best equipped colleges for men under the control of the Presbyterian Church. Beautiful buildings, strong faculty, high standard of work, broad course, attractive student body, best moral influences, Reserve Officers' Training Corps and strong athletic team.

For Catalogue and information apply to

President Davison M. Douglas, Clinton, S. C.

COLLEGE

OF

CHARLESTON

Rich in historic associations. In its one hundred and thirty-fourth year of reputation as a college of highest standard.

Co-educational.

The limited number of its students insures individual instruction for every student.

Excellent equipment, including spacious buildings, athletic grounds, well equipped laboratories and unexcelled library and museum facilities.

Four year courses leading to the degrees of A. B. and B. S. and Pre-Medical courses, special features.

A leader in thoroughness of training.

Unsurpassed climate and fine sea air. Expenses moderate. For catalogue and illustrated booklet, address

HARRISON RANDOLPH, President.

Charleston, S. C.

ESTABLISHED 1785.

DAVIDSON COLLEGE

"The greatest single institution, in point of service,
controlled by the Southern Presbyterian Church."

THORNTON WHALING, President
Columbia Theological Seminary.

COURSES OF STUDY: Literary, Scientific, Classical, preparing for ministry, medicine, law, engineering, business, teaching. Faculty experienced and University trained.

COLLEGE SPIRIT: The boys work in season and out for a "Bigger and Better Davidson." The typical Davidson student, or alumnus, is loyal, enthusiastic, and successful in whatever he undertakes.

Y. M. C. A. SECRETARY will be continued next year. Rev. R. W. Miles, General Secretary, will be a big factor in the boys' college life.

LITERARY SOCIETIES at Davidson have a rightful place on the campus. Davidson has contested 20 intercollegiate debates and has won 14, or 70 per cent. The student gets a fine parliamentary training.

IN ATHLETICS Davidson has football, baseball, tennis, track, golf, outdoor gymnasium, large new gymnasium, R. O. T. C.

MUSICAL TALENT has expression and development through the Glee Club and Orchestra, an enthusiastic organization that furnishes music for public functions at the college, and gives concerts each year in other towns and colleges.

Students find the climate bracing and beneficial, and the social atmosphere friendly and congenial.

EXPENSES Exceptionally Reasonable.

OLD STUDENTS have registered for next year from the following states: North Carolina, South Carolina, Florida, Mississippi, Maryland, Alabama, Tennessee, Texas, Arkansas, Virginia, Georgia, W. Va., D. C., La., China and Japan.

NEW STUDENTS from the following states: N. C., S. C., Ga., Fla., Tex., Va., W. Va., Tenn., Miss., Ala., Mo., D. C.

REGISTER EARLY---MAKE SURE OF ROOM

PICTURE FOLDERS and other literature will be sent immediately upon receipt of your request.

DAVIDSON COLLEGE

Davidson : North Carolina

HENS MOULT FAST.

E. J. Reefer, the poultry expert, has discovered a scientific product that hastens the moult and revitalizes the organs of the hen and puts her in fine laying condition. The tonic is called "More Eggs" and a package of it is enough to carry the ordinary chicken raiser over the entire moulting season. First to lay is first to pay. "Since using 'More Eggs' I get forty to fifty eggs a day, instead of eight or nine," writes A. P. Woodward, of St. Cloud, Fla. A million dollar bank guarantees that you can have your money back if you want it. So, you don't take any risk. Send $1.00 for a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic. If you want to hurry the moult and get more eggs, act at once; it means more profit for you. Don't wait, but order today. Send $1 today to E. J. Reefer, 4th Floor, Poultry Bldg., Kansas City, Missouri. Or ask Mr. Reefer for his valuable poultry book free, that tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry.

The tendency to persevere, to persist in spite of hindrances, discouragements, and impossibilities; it is this that in all things distinguishes the strong soul from the weak.—Carlyle.

YOUR FACE?

Is the Complexion Muddy, Tanned, Freckled?

If troubled with skin eruptions, sunburn, pimples, try

PALMER'S SKIN SUCCESS SOAP

It cleanses, softens and clears the skin and tends to remove sunburn, tan, freckles, blackheads, pimples and eczema.

Thoroughly antiseptic. Ask your druggist, or write for free samples to

THE MORGAN DRUG CO.,
1521 Atlantic Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

It Will Pay

you to consult the house of Allan if interested in Diamonds, Watches, Jewelry or Silverware.

The most skilful artists and artisans produce their goods. The quality and price are guaranteed by this firm, whose sixty years of service prove that the past and present generations are well pleased.

A catalogue on request.

JAMES ALLAN & CO.,
Department A.,
283 King Street,
CHARLESTON, S. C.

THE HALL MARK STORE

THE BAYLOR SCHOOL FOR BOYS A THOROUGH EDUCATION Castle on the Tennessee

1. Thorough Scholastic Training. Small Classes. Experienced Teachers.
2. Religious Influences through School Y. M. C. A. and daily Chapel Exercises.
3. Compulsory Public Speaking, Writing, and Spelling for every student.
4. Six fine brick buildings, new equipment, 40-acre campus in mountains.
5. Splendid Library, Laboratory, and large Gymnasium.
6. Athletic Fields, Track, Tennis Courts, Swimming and Boating.
7. Beautiful Scenery and Historic Surroundings. Ideal Location.
8. The Honor System. 9. Compulsory Exercise. 10. Same Headmaster for 25 years.
11. Military Training in the Essentials, not in the Spectacular. under officers of the A. E. F.

Baylor School is an accredited school of Southern Association of Schools and Colleges.
For particulars, address J. R. BAYLOR, BAYLOR SCHOOL, Chattanooga, Tenn.

The University of South Carolina

1801 1919

The University offers courses leading to the following degrees:

1. School of Arts and Science, A. B. and B. S.
2. School of Education, A. B.
3. Graduate School, A. M.
4. School of Engineering, C. E.
5. School of Law, LL. B.
6. Military Science and Tactics compulsory for Freshmen and Sophomores. Reserve Officers Training Corps.

For students of Education, Law, Engineering and those pursuing higher graduate work, the University offers exceptional advantages.
Next session begins September 17, 1919. For information, write
W. S. CURRELL, President, COLUMBIA, S. C.

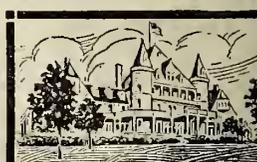

VIRGINIA CHRISTIAN COLLEGE
Lynchburg, Virginia.

This College, a leading Senior College of Virginia, affords a wholesome religious life and Christian atmosphere, including educational advantages under university trained professors. The College campus containing eighty-six and one-half acres in view of the distant mountains and landscape beauty, together with modern FIRE-PROOF buildings containing every modern convenience for the students, makes this an ideal institution to which to send your daughter or son.

The health conditions are unsurpassed. Five mineral and two fresh water springs give abundant proof that the health conditions are ideal.

A Christian education is the hope of America. The College is equipped with excellent laboratories and studios for the study of all courses, including the Bible, Art, Music, Voice, etc. The cost per annum is as low as $255. We invite your patronage and support. Write for catalogue.

J. T. T. HUNDLEY, President.

The Measure of a College

Elegance of buildings and grounds and wealth of equipment and endowment do not make a college. The REAL MEASURE of a college is found in its ideal—in the personality of its teaching force, and in the quality of its teaching. The real work in education is accomplished by the person. The school can rise no higher than the character of those who give it life.

MITCHELL COLLEGE

maintains a faculty of men and women of strong Christian character and influence, whose qualifications for teaching have been gained by years of thorough preparation and experience. The classes at Mitchell College are small, insuring for each student the utmost benefit of individual instruction.

Well Planned Courses Offered in All College Subjects

Courses of superior excellence in English, Bible, Music, Expression, Home Economics, and Business. The Department of Music is in charge of a graduate of the Hague Conservatory.

Measure These Advantages

Invigorating climate, small classes, efficient instruction, supervised evening study for all, home life, and positive Christian influence; moderate expenses.

A Preparatory Department offering the best advantages is maintained. Catalog on request.

J. M. MOORE, President, STATESVILLE, N. C.

"A FACE LIKE THE DAWN."

Stephen at the council was the center of attraction. "Fastening their eyes upon him they saw his face as it had been the face of an angel." The massage for removal of wrinkles, the coloring to pencil the eyebrows, the reddening of the lips by artistic touches—these are the tricks of the stage and the poor mimics on the street. There is a spiritual training which eventuates in a pleasing countenance and an attractive expression in ordinary conversation.

They say "money talks." Yes, and, like some people, it talks too much and talks too loud, and thus makes itself offensive.

DR. J. M. BELK, MONROE, N. C.

W. H. BELK, CHARLOTTE, N. C.

Belk Bros. Dept. Stores

CHARLOTTE, NORTH CAROLINA
19 STORES

Send us your orders for Bibles, Testaments, Confession of Faith, or Book of Church Order, for quick delivery. 10 percent discount for Sunday Schools, Societies, or Churches, Preachers or Teachers—and in dozens we will give you wholesale price.

WHY NOT HAVE A BIBLE OR TESTAMENT IN EVERY SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLAR'S HANDS EVERY SUNDAY? WE WILL HELP DO THIS. WRITE TO US FOR THE PLAN.
NELSON'S BIBLES

DAVIS-WAGNER NEW BUILDING, ACCOMMODATING 500 STUDENTS.
Business College
POSITIONS FOR GRADUATES. 306 East Freemason St. CATALOGUE FREE. NORFOLK, VA.

NEW SONG BOOKS
For Your Church 8c
A wonderful value; 83 familiar songs of the Gospel, words and music. Used all over the world. Only $8 per hundred for No. 1 or 2, round or shaped notes, and $15 for No. 1 and 2, combined, round notes only. Send 30c for samples. Money back if not pleased.
E. A. K. HACKETT, Dept. No. 56, FT. WAYNE, IND.

A Southern Presbyterian University, owned and controlled by a Board of Representative Presbyterians from every Southern State.

THE SCHOOLS
Of Liberal Arts, Science, Literature and Journalism, and Commerce are open all the year and students may enter at the beginning of any one of the four terms as follow: Sept. 24, Jan. 2, Apr. 1 and July 6.

A beautiful Book of Views, illustrating Student Life at the University, will be sent free, with catalogue, on application. Address

Oglethorpe University
Oglethorpe University, Ga.
(Suburb of Atlanta)

1184—Sunday School Scholar's Bible. Practical Helps for Young People. How to study the Bible. How to study the lesson. Bible questions and answers all in this Bible. Good black type, red edges, leatheroid binding. Size 5½x4x1. Special.....98c

Same Bible, gilt edge, better leather binding, illustrated ..$1.25 and $1.50

12—Linen Card Back Bible. Good big print. Fine for the Sunday School classes, about 6x5x1.....75c

1148—Sunday School Bible. Linen board backs, black type, 5x4x1...59c

7764—Teacher's Bible, $5.00.

India Linen Paper, self pronouncing Bible Dictionary, Combined Concordance, 12 Colored Maps, Morocco Binding, Silk Sewed, good print. Size 7¾x5½x1¼$5.00

6512—Teacher's Edition Bible—New and instructive maps, 14 maps, placed throughout the Bible, illustrating the Scripture, 20 beautifully colored pictures, complete Bible Dictionary, new Concordance and Helps. Leather binding, strongly made. Black face type. Size 7x5x1½$2.50

6512—Teacher's Bible, $3.95.

Linen Paper, thumb index, illustrated colored pictures, 12 new maps, Bible Dictionary, Morocco leather binding. Black face type, convenient size, 7x5-1¼. Special$3.95

1212—Illustrated Bible. 4,000 questions and answers, short history of each book of the Bible by A. T. Pierson, D.D. Harmony of the four Gospels. How to study the Bible. Colored maps. 7x5½x1½.....$2.00

7764—Teacher's Bible, $5.95.

Self pronouncing Bible, new, improved maps, finely illustrated, combined Concordance, 12 colored maps, newest and most complete dictionary yet printed. Morocco binding, silk sewed, a beautiful Bible. 8x5½...$5.95

Why not have a Confession of Faith in Every Home? We carry them in stock for your convenience—50c, 75c.

BOOK OF CHURCH ORDER. Every officer in the Presbyterian Church ought to have this Book and study it. We will mail you one for 25c.

NELSON'S TESTAMENTS

402—New Testament, 65c.

Bound in leatheroid, large black face type. Size 6x5.

321—New Testament, 48c.

Bound same as 402. Black type. Size 5x3½.

400—New Testament, 25c.

This is a special number. Large black type, cardboard back, clear white paper—the quality equals most 50c books. Special25c

29—New Testament. Vest pocket size, leatheroid binding, fine for the children25c

403—New Testament, 98c.

This is leather bound. Large black type, gilt edge. Size 6x4½.

403P—New Testament and Psalms. Leather bound, gilt edge. Large print$1.19

SCHOFIELD BIBLES

We carry these in the newest Editions, bound in good, heavy Linen Cardboard backs, or can send you the finest Leather Bound. If you want a Bible to get "REAL HELP" right at home—the newest improved help—a Schofield Bible is the one to buy.

No 50—Linen Cardboard Backs. Good black type, with every help at home. Same helps as the highest price Bible. Size of Book 7x5-1¼.....$1.50

No. 70—Same as above, only larger size type and book, 8½x6½x1¼ $2.00

We carry Schofield Bibles in all kinds of Bindings—Morocco, Persian, Etc. Real Linen Paper, from $5.00 to $10. Let us send you one on approval.

We carry all kinds of New Testaments from 15c to $2.00.

POULTRY EXPERT GIVES AWAY CHICK FOOD.

To introduce to the poultry raisers of this section a Chick Food that is nationally known, E. J. Reefer, the Poultry Expert, 3rd Floor Poultry Bldg., Kansas City, Mo., is giving away free a one dollar package of Chick Food absolutely free to every poultry raiser who agrees to tell his neighbor about it. This medicated Baby Chick Food is sold on an absolute guarantee to raise chicks for six weeks and it is backed by the National Reserve Bank of Kansas City. Send Mr. Reefer one dollar and he will not only send you one regular dollar size package of Chick Food, but he will include in the same shipment an extra package absolutely free, which means he will send you two regular full size dollar packages of this scientific medicated Baby Chick Food for only one dollar. And he will prepay all the charges on the first order. Considering that this product is guaranteed by the National Reserve Bank and that it keeps baby chicks for six weeks, every poultry raiser should certainly try this scientific medicated Baby Chick Food without further delay. It will pay you to write Mr. Reefer today.

NEW MONITOR SELF-HEATING IRON AGENTS WANTED

$30 to $50 a week actually being made now by men and women. The original—the best—the lowest priced. Nickel plated—looks good—makes good—sells fast—guaranteed. No experience needed. Women do as well as men. Exclusive territory. Work all or spare time. M. S. Nixon, Vt., sold 8 first half day. Evans, N. C. sold 2 doz. one Saturday. Liberal terms. Prompt Service. Write today.

Send for Free Outfit Offer

MONITOR SELF-HEATING IRON CO.
708 Orange St., Hickory, N. C.

Nadine Face Powder

(In Green Boxes Only)

Keeps The Complexion Beautiful

Soft and velvety. Money back if not entirely pleased. Nadine is pure and harmless. Adheres until washed off. Prevents sunburn and return of discolorations. A million delighted users prove its value. Tints: Flesh, Pink, Brunette, White. By Leading Toilet Counters or Mail, Dept. R P. National Toilet Company Paris, Tenn.

Aberdeen & Rockfish Railroad

Between Aberdeen and Fayetteville

Eastbound		Westbound
Daily Ex. Sunday	Mixed Pass.	Daily Ex. Sunday	Pass. Mixed
No. 22	No. 38	STATIONS	No. 41
7 30 am	9 10 am	Lv. Aberdeen	Ar. 6 41 pm
Ar. 8 35 am	10 00 am	Raeferd	5 00 pm
Lv. 12 10 pm			Ar. 3 50 pm
4 00 pm	11 20 am	Ar. Fayetteville	Lv. 4 50 pm
			1 00 pm

WAGRAM BRANCH

Southbound		Northbound
Daily Ex. Sun.	Mixed	Daily Ex. Sun.	Mixed
No. 11		STATIONS	No. 12
Lv. 10 30 am		Raeferd	Ar. 12 40 pm
Ar. 11 15 am		Wagram	Lv. 12 00 noon

W. A. BLUE, General Supt.,
Aberdeen, N. C.

PEACE INSTITUTE

RALEIGH, NORTH CAROLINA

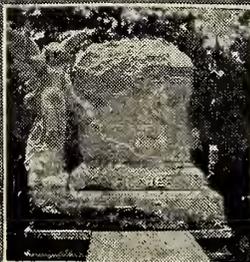

For Young Women. Established 1857

College Courses. Preparatory Courses for Standard College Requirements. Special Diplomas, Piano, Voice, Art, Expression and Home Economics. Commercial Course. Teacher Training Course. Specialists in all departments.

LULA B. WYNNE HALL, Home School For Girls.

MISS MARY OWEN GRAHAM, Pres.

CHARLOTTE MARBLE & GRANITE WORKS

MEMORIALS OF QUALITY

"WE LEAD"

Quality First

Prices Right

Workmanship

Unsurpassed

Memorials in Silver Georgia Marble are unsurpassed in beauty and durability.

CHARLOTTE MARBLE & GRANITE WORKS
WEST 7TH ST. AND SOUTHERN RAILWAY
Cemetery Gate Phone 281-CHARLOTTE, N.C.

What wonderful muffins!

What a delight when your teeth sink into that light, soft, perfectly cooked muffin.

Why not have muffins like that often? Not a bit of trouble!

OCCO-NEE-CHEE Self-Rising Flour

Takes the Guess out of Baking and Saves you Money

This wonderful flour assures perfect muffins, biscuits, waffles or cakes every time. No risk at all because the baking powder, soda and salt are already in the flour. You don't have to buy them. You don't have to mix them. They're all there in the proportions that make the amateur a perfect baker. Try this time-saving, money-saving flour. Your grocer has it in bags with the Indian head on them.

Try Peerless when you want plain flour.

AUSTIN-HEATON CO.

Durham, N. C.

WORK AND DISCIPLINE.

If all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy; all play and no work is often worse. A child should have his tasks, which should so far as possible be related to the family life. He should very early be made to understand his duty of taking part in the life of the community — if only by respecting the rights of all.

My life is a brief, brief thing, I'm here for a little space; but while I stay, I'd like, if I may, to brighten and better the place.

CHURCH ENVELOPES. Double and single envelope systems. Samples and prices sent upon request.
Double Envelope Corporation, Roanoke, Va.

The College of William and Mary
1693—1919
FOR MEN AND WOMEN

Thorough academic courses leading to the degrees of A. B., B. S., and M. A.; well equipped laboratories and excellent library; unexcelled health conditions, historic environment and intimate contact with the best ideals of VIRGINIA.

WILLIAM and MARY is also the STATE TEACHERS' COLLEGE FOR MEN AND WOMEN.

Special Teacher's Training Courses. Course in Home Economics under the Smith-Hughes Act, Pre-Medical courses, Pre-Electrical and Pre-Chemical Engineering courses. Courses in business administration and commerce. Courses for commercial teachers.

State scholarships for those preparing to be teachers and superintendents. Loan fund for Virginia students.

Next session begins September 18th, 1919.

For particulars address
J. A. C. CHANDLER, Pres.,
Williamsburg, Va.

SONG BOOKS Send 35c. for a copy of "RESURRECTED SONGS," or 50c. for "VAUGHAN'S REVIVAL" R.S. Contains a greater number of old hymns, and a less number of the revival songs, while V. R. has a greater number of new, live gospel songs, and a less number of the old hymns.

JOHN B. VAUGHAN MUSIC CO.
Mrs. Vaughan, Mgr. ATHENS, GA.

Many Young Men and Women
Have doubled and trebled their salary after taking a course with Draughon. Do you want to earn more money? If so, let us teach you how to do it. More calls for help than we can supply. Write us at once.
DRAUGHON'S BUSINESS COLLEGE
Knoxville, Tenn. Jacksonville, Fla.

'In the A. E. F. With an Artist'
The sketch book and diary of Lieut. J. B. Mallard. Send $1.00 for your copy to
J. B. MALLARD
Box 625 CHARLOTTE, N. C.

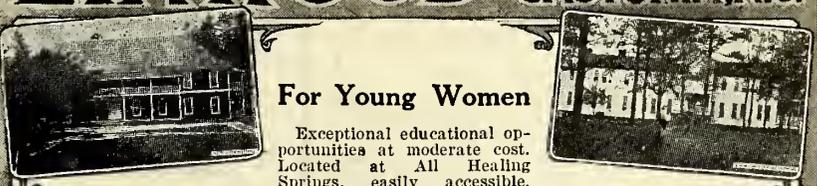

ELIZABETH COLLEGE, SALEM, VIRGINIA

A College for Young Women, Under Positive Christian Influence
Handsome new building, with dormitories arranged in suites. Unexcelled views. A competent faculty. Courses: Literary, leading to the A. B. degree; Art, Expression, Home Economics, Piano, Voice, Stenography and Typewriting. Outdoor sports: Basket Ball, Hockey and Tennis. For catalogue, write to PAUL SEIG, Acting President.

NORTH CAROLINA COLLEGE FOR WOMEN

Offers thorough instruction and excellent advantages in the training of young women for the mastery of courses fitting themselves to become self-supporting. There are courses leading to the degrees of Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science and Bachelor of Music. Total number registered last year, 1299. Free tuition to those students who agree to teach in the schools of North Carolina after leaving the college. Excellent equipment. Expenses moderate. For catalogue and other information, address J. I. FOUST, President, Greensboro, N. C.

LINWOOD COLLEGE GASTONIA, N.C.

For Young Women
Exceptional educational opportunities at moderate cost. Located at All Healing Springs, easily accessible. Finest water; health conditions of the very best. Unexcelled health record.
Modern Dormitories. Able, conscientious faculty. Small classes permit the utmost personal attention and instruction. School conducted as a well-ordered Christian home; discipline and influences that bring out the highest in character. Non-sectarian. Thorough courses in Languages, History, Mathematics, Sciences, Bible, Piano, Voice, Expression, Art, leading to degrees of A. B., B. L., and B. S. Board and tuition, $175 per year. Next session opens Sept. 17, 1919. For catalog, address,
REV. A. T. LINDSAY, President, Gastonia, N. C.

United States Railroad Administration
DIRECTOR GENERAL OF RAILROADS
Seaboard Air Line Railroad

Reduced Summer Excursion Round-Trip Tickets on sale May 15th to September 30th, final limit October 31st, 1919, to the following points:

Alta Pass, N. C.	$ 7.14	Pensacola, N. C.	$ 9.06
Hickory, N. C.	3.30	Rutherfordton, N. C.	4.32
Johnson City, Tenn.	10.80	Shelby, N. C.	2.88
Lenoir, N. C.	14.50	Switzerland, N. C.	6.96
Norfolk, Va.	17.46	Virginia Beach, Va.	18.26
Old Point, Va.	18.06	Wrightsville Beach, N. C.	10.66

The above rates do not include war tax. Also attractive rates to other resorts. For particulars as to fares, trains, schedules, etc., apply to any Railroad Ticket Agent.
E. W. LONG, P. S. A., CHARLOTTE, N. C. JOHN T. WEST, D. P. A., RALEIGH, N. C.

Sparkles

The Thrifty Little Thrift Stamp.
 You may talk about investments,
 You have purchased by the block
 (And some you never mention
 As, for instance, mining stock).
 And may be you have pinched and saved,
 And, everything you've got
 Is placed on deposit in
 An ancient coffee pot;
 Or possibly you've tucked it
 In a hole within the wall—
 But the thrifty little Thrift stamp
 Is the thriftiest of all!
 The thrifty little Thrift stamp
 Is a faithful little pal;
 He warns us to be provident
 When we are prodigal.
 When silly trifles lure us on,
 He's sure to interpose,
 Which saves a lot of trouble
 For the foolish, goodness knows!
 A gleaner, and he gathers
 All the heads of scattered grain,
 And plants it for a harvest
 That shall gladden us again.
 He helps to clothe an army
 When the country sounds its call—
 Say, the thrifty little Thrift stamp
 Is the thriftiest of all!

—G. B. H.—The Liberty Line.

James came home from school with strong evidences of a mysterious disagreement with some of his associates. As he entered the room his mother looked at him and in surprise inquired: "Why, James, how did you get your clothes so badly torn?" "Trying to keep a good little boy from being licked." "And did you?" "You bet I did." "That is just like my brave little son," said the mother fondly. "Who was the good little boy?"—"Me."—Exchange.

Hard on Malaria.

"Never hear much about malaria out this way any more."

"No," answered Uncle Bill Bottle-top. "Malaria gets terrible unpopular when there is nothing to cure it with except quinine."—Washington Star.

Boy—A man called while you were out, sir. He said he wanted to thrash you.

Editor—And what did you say to him?

Boy—I said I was sorry you were out, sir.—The Lookout.

"Who discovered America?"

"Ohio," replied the little girl.

"No; Columbus discovered America."

"Yes'm. Columbus was his first name."—Washington Star.

"Sad ending for a story." "What?"
 "To see a novel marked down from $2 to 28 cents."—Kansas City Journal.

THE WESTMINSTER SCHOOL

A PREPARATORY SCHOOL FOR BOYS

Operated by Kings Mountain Presbytery
 $300.00 Per Year

Write for Catalogue to

Rev. T. E. P. Woods, Box 6, Rutherfordton, N. C.

4 Per Cent

Time Certificates of Deposit

They are Interest Bearing. They are Payable on Demand. They Afford a Good Income for Funds Awaiting Permanent Investment

GET ONE

AMERICAN TRUST COMPANY

Charlotte

::

North Carolina

YES,

Preachers and Teachers Are Human

They should have no discount and no cheaper railroad fares than you and I. They should be paid for services rendered—amply paid. If he can't earn enough for family use and the nest egg for the future, he made a sad mistake as to family, else he should change his calling instanter.

The Mutual Building & Loan

Will save a man and his family if they're worth saving, but they must help. It furnishes the "sure cure," but boasts no regrets at the demise of a feller who deliberately refuses to take the medicine.

E. L. KEESLER, Sec. & Treas., 25 S. Tryon St., CHARLOTTE, N. C.

Charlotte National Bank

Resources $4,000,000.00

CHARLOTTE, N. C.

PAYS FOUR PER CENT.

On Either Time Certificates of Deposit or Savings Accounts

MAIL ORDER Business Solicited and PROMPT ATTENTION Given

JOHN M. SCOTT	President
W. J. CHAMBERS	Vice-President
J. F. ROBERTSON	Vice-President
W. H. TWITTY	Cashier
C. W. BUTT	Assistant Cashier

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

REV. J. R. BRIDGES, D. D.

EDITORS

REV. R. C. REED, D. D.

VOL. LX.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., July 30, 1919.

No. 30.

The Call.

They were mending their nets, those brothers,
In their ship on Galilee,
And the golden beams of the morning
Left sparkling trails on the sea,
When along the shore, through the sunshine,
O'er the paths they daily trod,
Came that lover of light and beauty,
The glorified Son of God.

They were mending their nets, those brothers,
He called them to follow Him.
Did they question His right or wisdom?
Nay, their eyes with joy grew dim
As they left the nets with their father,
And over that shining sand,
With gladness they went with the Master
To love and to understand.

They were mending their nets, those brothers,
And they loved the seething foam,
As it tossed and caressed their boat-craft,
The fisherman's sun-kissed home.
But they heard the voice of the Savior,
Jesus, Redeemer, their Friend—
And with wonder and great rejoicing,
They followed Him to the end.

We are mending our nets, my brothers,
And we love our ships at sea.
If our Father asks us to serve Him,
Shall we stay on Galilee?
Though our treasures are at our hearthstones,
If our country needs our best,
Shall we not offer loyal service,
And leave with our God the rest?

—Belle McKinney Swope, in The Presbyterian.

Editorial

The Irish Question.

IF IT WERE really an Irish question it would hardly be an appropriate topic for discussion in a religious paper. In the last analysis it is not an Irish question. The Sinn Feiners are not wailing over the oppression and tyranny of England because they are Irish. As Irishmen they are without any ground of quarrel. They are living under precisely the same laws that hold sway in England, Scotland and Wales. They are behind other subjects of the British Empire in no respect. They are not handicapped in the pursuit of happiness. They have fertile lands and unhampered opportunities. They are as free as the air they breathe, free as the sunshine, free as the waters that wash their shores. The laws under which they live do not curb their liberties, but only seek to secure ordered liberty.

Irishmen living in the North of Ireland, in the province of Ulster, in the counties of Antrim and Down, do not wish to separate from England. They boast that they are the most prosperous part of the Empire. They have all the liberty they want, they enjoy the freest scope for their energies, and receive ample rewards as the fruit of their industry. They love England, they love her laws and think them most liberal and equitable. Nothing is more repellant to them than the idea of separating from England. They were preparing to shed their life blood rather than separate when the Home Rule Bill passed the Parliament just before the outbreak of the great war.

Obviously it is not because they are Irish that those in the South of Ireland wish to separate. They are no more Irish than those in the North of Ireland who do not wish to separate. Here is just the difficulty. If all the Irish wished to sever connection with England the problem would be easy of solution. England would wash her hands of her troublesome neighbor in short order. But England can't satisfy both ends of the island. She can satisfy the south end only by violently thrusting from her her loyal and loving subjects of the north.

The Irish question is religious and not Irish. Three-fourths of the people are Roman Catholics, and because they are Roman Catholics and not because they are Irish they wish to sever their connection with England. One-fourth of the people are Protestant, and because they are Protestant, and not because they are Irish they wish to remain subjects of England. Roman Catholics and Protestants are living under precisely the same laws. The advantage of soil and climate is with the Roman Catholics in the south of Ireland. If they are not as prosperous and happy as the Protestants, it is not the fault of England. In an economic way, the chief difference is that the Protestants put their energies into agriculture and manufactures, while the Roman Catholics devote themselves chiefly to raising political revolutions and Roman Catholic priests. They raise enough of these latter to supply home consumption and export enough to the United States to supply most of the demand here.

As England cannot satisfy both parties, is it not in the interest of justice and is harmony with the democratic spirit of our age that she should satisfy the three-fourths who wish to separate rather than the one-fourth who oppose separation? Perhaps so, and it may come to this in the end. But it is not a pleasant duty, if duty it be, to satisfy enemies by sacrificing loyal subjects. Home Rule for Ireland means Roman Catholic rule, and Sir Edward Carson and his fellow Protestants have said they would not submit to it. This may seem a very ugly spirit, but while they constitute only one-fourth of the population, they own three-fourths of the property. It is not altogether surprising that they should be reluctant to pay three-fourths of the expenses of a detested government, a government in which they would have practically no voice.

Perhaps it shows a narrow religious bigotry for the Protestants to shrink with such horror from the control of the Catholics. But some allowance must be made for the fact that ever since the first Protestants set foot on Irish soil there has existed a bitter hostility between the adherents of the two creeds. This hostility has been punctuated from time to time with wars, and insurrections and massacres. It is less bloody now than formerly, but scarcely less bitter.

If the positions were reversed, if three-fourths were Protestants and England were Catholic, doubtless the Protestants would wish separation. But would England, Catholic by supposition, be prompt to grant the wish when it meant subjecting one-fourth of the population, devoted adherents of the Catholic Church and of the mother country, to Protestant rule? We more than doubt it. We sympathize with Protestant England in this dilemma. With a million loyal children in the North of Ireland clinging to her skirts and pleading to remain with her, it is not a pleasant task to tear their hands loose, and thrust them under the rule of their hereditary enemies.

Missionaries on Furlough.

Theoretically every missionary has a right to a furlough at a regular interval, and in accordance with this rule they return to this country and to their home friends. This is the theory, but practically his furlough is merely a change of scenery and work. From the time he lands in this country, he is going from place to place, talking, speaking and travelling, with the result that he welcomes the time when he can cut loose from home pleasures and once more put on the yoke of foreign service.

Certain goodly women, always ready to look after the Lord's workmen, have for years been trying to provide a place where the overworked missionary, like his Lord before him, may withdraw from the crowd and rest a bit. That place has been found at Montreat, where rest can be had and also association with visitors from every part of the Church. It is an ideal resting place for any man, but peculiarly so for the missionary who sorely needs rest, yet who craves a knowledge of what is going on in the various branches of church work. Here the committees gather and each one has a week in which to present its work, and here the plans for the coming year are laid. These good women have raised enough to make a start on the "Home," but they need the help of our readers.

A Generous Provision.

The First Church, Nashville, Tenn., is not only a big church, but it does everything in a big way. It has a new Sunday School building that would cost, if built under present high-cost conditions, at least $200,000. It has a membership of over 1,600 souls, and it has a preacher who can preach. In keeping with its bigness, when it built the new Sunday School building, it had the fourth floor constructed with special reference to the needs of the Executive Committee of Foreign Missions. This floor it has turned over to the committee rent free, the only condition being that the committee shall pay the interest on $25,000 until subscriptions which are being paid on the annual plan mature.

As the estimated rental value of this floor is given by real estate men at $5,000, the committee has no cause to complain.

The Need of "Moderation."

By "moderation" we mean what Paul meant when he wrote to the Philippians, "Let your moderation be known unto all men," using a Greek word which has a slightly different meaning from our word moderation. He means let your "forbearingness" be known unto all men. The man who has another man in his power so that he can do with him as he pleases should not go to extremes, but forbear to use his power.

The man who holds a mortgage against another man's home has a legal right to foreclose if the terms of the mortgage have not been complied with. The Christian, however, should not merely consider the legal side, but the human side also. He should consider the man's family, his standing in the community, his future in business, so that if possible, he should forbear to press his claims too far. He should stop before he reaches the limit of his power or his rights.

This injunction of the Apostle is peculiarly needed just now in the temperance legislation. The temperance forces have a strong majority in Congress and they have wisely enacted laws that will secure prohibition in this country and destroy the saloons. Now the greatest drawback to the temperance movement in the past was the intemperate men connected with it, and by intemperate we mean the tendency to go to extremes, to repel sensible men by their radical measures. Such seems to be the danger now. We find in the measures proposed in Congress and advocated by temperance leaders many measures that if carried out are bound to drive sensible men to the other side.

We are against the saloon, against liquor in clubs, and against liquor stored in the homes of the rich. We are against beer, whether for the laboring man or the rich man. When, however, it is proposed to forbid the presence of alcohol in flavoring extracts, without regard to whether that alcohol has been so changed as not to produce intoxication, we would urge a halt. Flavoring extracts can only be made by the use of some alcohol, and science has already devised a means of rendering it non-intoxicating and the health of men depends largely upon the seasoning of their food. To forbid the use of such extracts is to interfere with health, and to do that means in the end to drive men back to the unrestricted use of alcohol.

Then we do not believe it wise to interfere with the making of cider or domestic wine upon the farm, provided that such be kept for family use and not for sale. In reading the proceedings of Congress on the liquor question we fear that many friends of prohibition will be driven to the other side. In making laws it is always wise not to irritate unnecessarily, because the good of a law depends largely upon the sentiment behind it. Our law books are loaded with dead-letter laws, because the people do not wish them enforced, with the result that we are fast losing our respect for law—a sure forerunner of a decadent State. The liquor men well know that the surest way to nullify a law is to make it obnoxious to the majority, and therefore they are rejoicing in the intemperate zeal of our temperance law-makers.

Of course there will be those who will accuse us of half-hearted support of temperance measures. This we expect, but that makes no difference. This paper has always taken its stand without reference to what others think. To its own Master, it standeth or falleth. We wish our moderation to be made known unto all men. We have the power to enact any temperance legislation, but we prefer that our people show forbearings in unessentials in order to secure whole-hearted support in the essentials of temperance, and in order to destroy the liquor traffic in our land.

The extreme temperance measure passed by the House of Representatives will do the temperance cause more harm than good. Temperance legislation has always suffered from the fanaticism of some of its advocates. It would seem as if these same men are again in control.

The Covenant of Grace and the League of Nations.

Elsewhere we publish a most timely article from the pen of one of our wisest ministers, one who has spent a long ministry in building up Zion, and who still holds to the teachings of the Presbyterian Church of the past. As citizens all of us have a right to discuss this League and to view it from every point, but when the minister enters the pulpit, he does not appear as a citizen of the State, but as ambassador of heaven. In vain he will seek in the Bible for a commission to do aught else than preach Christ and Him crucified, and the closer he clings to this commission the stronger will his influence be among those to whom he ministers. When a secular paper gives such a stinging rebuke as that given by the Baltimore Sun, it behooves those who mingle the affairs of Caesar with the affairs of God, to pause. The editor is a firm believer in the League, regarding it as the most advanced step ever taken by the State in any age, and he believes that this step could never have been taken, if our President, representing the enlightened Christian conscience of this country had not been present and, aided by the great English Nation, impressed his Christian ideas upon the nations represented.

We believe this and we talk it, and in due time, we may discuss it in our columns, but when we enter the pulpit, we would sooner discuss the Greek prepositions or perpetual motion. We find it difficult to be patient with those who oppose, but if some opponent of the League would rise in a church where the preacher was discussing the League and take issue with him, we would listen to him with deep sympathy and approval, feeling that the pulpit had been degraded by the preacher rather than by the hearer.

"Fighting For a New World."

The many friends of Dr. Charles M. Dabney will read with interest his recent book entitled "Fighting for a New World." Dr. Dabney is the son of Dr. Robert L. Dabney, of Union Seminary, Va., who was by long odds the greatest man from an intellectual standpoint that the South has ever produced.

It is seldom that great men have sons who begin to measure up to their father, but Dr. Charles Dabney is an exception. He has occupied many positions of prominence, and is now president of the University of Cincinnati. He lectures to his students on current topics, and the published book is from the lectures so delivered. They are abreast of the times, embellished with historical references and withal breathe a spirit of sincere religious faith, just what we would expect from the son of such a father. So strongly are they imbued with patriotism that their delivery in Cincinnati, where the German element is strong, was made the occasion of an attempt to depose him from the presidency of the University of Cincinnati.

In these days when the heads of our higher institutions of learning seem called upon rather to decry religion than to uphold it, it is refreshing to find one who stands by the teachings of his father and does credit to the training of his home.

Contributed

Across the Turkish Empire in a Side-Door Pullman

By R. E. Magill, Secretary.

EVERY traveller in the Near East will have experiences that are unique and different from those of other tourists but I feel justified in saying no travellers of the future can possibly duplicate the rare privileges and experiences of our group of relief workers as we made our way across the old Turkish Empire in May, 1919.

Our work was to check up the methods of relief being instituted by the American Committee of Relief in the Near East and to aid the workers in making their service more effective by suggesting plans to the New York office for relief measures for the future.

Our mission had the cordial approval and support of the military authorities of both the English and French Governments and we could only travel by their courtesy and with their help as all transportation systems are in the hands of the armies of occupation.

It was first necessary to get a military permit from the R. T. O. (railway transit officer), to go from point to point before you could apply to the booking office for a ticket and your application was granted only on condition that the troops did not need all the space on the day on which you wished to travel.

The military officials were very courteous and as a rule had passes issued for the transport of our group of six.

Our investigation extended from Port Said, Egypt, to Constantinople and carried us through Palestine, Syria and the Turkish Empire just at a time when these war-worn and famine stricken countries are beginning the process of reconstructing their civilization and form of government.

In every province and district the problem has different angles but the common factor is the intense desire of the people for a stable government and one that will respect property rights and provide safety for human life.

Our trip of four months was filled with interesting experiences but this outstanding memory will always be the harrowing stories and pitiful appearance of the thousands of Armenians and Syrians who had suffered unspeakable atrocities at the hands of the beastly Turks.

At another time I hope to relate some of our experiences in Syria and Palestine but this chronicle must be confined to our seven-day trip from Beirut to Constantinople.

Travel in normal times in the East is quite different from the luxury to which tourists in the west are accustomed and four years of war has made pitiful wrecks of the poor railroad equipment with which the East was supplied.

We were advised that the most comfortable way to make the 800-mile trip which would require seven days was in a regular box car which the "Tommies" have dubbed "Side-door Pullmans."

American readers will think of the big 80,000 pound box cars, 40 feet in length, of the American railways and it will be hard for them to visualize the dinky little box cars of the East—24 feet long mounted on four wheels and with a capacity of only 16,000 pounds.

Such was the combination observation—dining, sleeping and smoking car in which six Americans and two Armenian refugees were to travel for seven days through a country in which heavily armed guards are still necessary on every train and at every station. The trains are scheduled to go three times a week but they go only when it pleases the military to move them. The international mix-up will be appreciated when I explain that our passports were issued by the English Army, the railway is under control of the French and the trains were operated by Arabs and Turks, while our guard consisted in turn of soldiers from the East Indian Girkaha Arabian Army, British Tommies, French Army, Italian Army and Serbian Army.

We provided ourselves with folding cots for sleeping and charcoal braziers for cooking, and as I was treasurer of the group, it fell to my lot to be mess sergeant with a strong accent on the mess.

If you wish to try an interesting experiment I suggest that you make out a list of supplies for eight men to eat in seven days and then attempt to buy these supplies in an army canteen and from profiteers who want seven times the value of each article from Americans and who can't speak a word of good "United States."

The task was accomplished after a fashion and we got under way with a fairly well stocked larder and installed one of our refugees as cook and the other as interpreter. They did not make a brilliant success in their roles but they were extremely grateful for a chance to get home alive and probably did the best they could.

They showed a lack of appreciation of American cooking by throwing away untouched quantities of good oatmeal and eating instead the black sour native bread that is heavy enough for boat anchors, and they ate a whole tin of sliced bacon without cooking it.

They were regular sharks on sweets and as the larder had no locks the mess sergeant had trouble to provide a balanced ration for the crew.

Our route took us over the anti-Lebanon range of mountains, then by the help of a cogwheel incline across the Lebanon mountains, which we crossed at an elevation of about 5,800 feet, where we looked down on one of the most beautiful and fertile valleys on the face of the earth, the plain of Hamah.

The snow clad height of Mt. Herman was almost constantly in view and from Beirut to Constantinople we were never out of sight of snow clad mountains.

The presence of soldiers on our train and armed guards at every station reminded us we were in a country still at war and at Ryak Junction, where we had a lay-over of seven hours, we saw fresh evidences of the destructive power of war. The Turks had established here their largest depot of supplies and the Germans had supplied them with every type of modern munitions and equipped for them large and complete aviation headquarters, in which they had over fifty fighting and observation planes.

The sudden appearance over the mountain top of a cloud of British fighting machines made it impossible for them to get the Turkish planes into the air, and long range guns from the surrounding mountains completed the rout and destruction. The British captured enormous quantities of munitions and stores and for four months have been blowing up ammunition which will not fit their guns.

I was permitted to get near enough to photograph some of the explosion so we were literally under German shell fire as fragments of shrapnel fell uncomfortably close to the snap shot adventurer. I secured good pictures of thirty-seven airplanes piled in one great mass of wreckage just as left by the unexpected attack of the British.

Our next stop was Aleppo, the ancient city at which tradition says Abraham milked his great flock of goats and gave the place the Arabic name which means "milk." It is a fanatical Mohammedan city of about 180,000 inhabitants and is the present rendezvous for about 40,000 Armenians whom the British Army has gathered from their places of exile with the purpose of sending them to their old homes as fast as the British or French troops occupy the territory. It would simply invite a repetition of former butcheries to send them back into Turkish territory not occupied by allied troops so the process of repatriation is necessarily slow.

The tragedy of the destruction of a race of people is written in the faces of the poor refugees and the world's history does not record as black a page as that which tells of the

(Continued on page 8)

God's Mysterious Ways

PROFESSOR DAVID SMITH, in one of his letters in his "Correspondence" column in the British Weekly gives an admirable answer to a question which is tugging at the hearts of many a mourner today. A correspondent wrote Dr. Smith:

"A dear friend has died of wounds after leading his men into action and whilst giving water to a wounded German. I want to look at it in the right way, but find myself always saying, 'Why did God allow it to happen when He could have kept him in perfect safety?' He seemed to be wanted by everyone; and then others who seem as if they would hardly be missed are kept safely. I seem as if I cannot go on with the ordinary duties of every-day life, but wish so that I could be taken too. It seems dreadful to me to think that probably years and years of life are before me now he has gone from our sight. But I want to learn from this great sorrow the lessons that God wants to teach me, and I have earnestly prayed for comfort and help, and still none seems to be given me. Do you think that God wanted him for his work so much in the next life, and that is why He took him, and that our love will go on growing until we meet again?"

To this Dr. Smith replied:

Lucian tells a profitable story of the philosopher Demonax. A man in Athens had been bereaved of his son, and he was inconsolable. He shut himself up in a darkened room and made lamentation. Demonax visited him. "I am a wizard," he said, "and I can bring up the spirit of your child, if only you will name to me three human beings who have never sustained any bereavement." The mourner hesitated long, and at last confessed that he could not think of one. "Then," said the philosopher, "you ridiculous person! Do you fancy yours is the only intolerable experience, when you see no one exempt from bereavement?" This is just the truth which Shakespeare has proclaimed;

"Thou seest we are not all alone unhappy;
This wide and universal theatre
Presents more woeful pageants than the scene
Wherein we play in."

Do not reject the lesson because it comes from the lips of a pagan philosopher. Consider rather how inexcusable we are if, encompassed by all the rich consolations, and immortal hopes of the Blessed Gospel, we play the part of a pagan mourner and need a pagan philosopher's rebuke. And do not think me unfeeling if I say that excessive grief is born of selfishness. It may be pardonable in ordinary times, when the unceasing tragedy of life is hidden from us; but in days like these, when the tide of anguish is pouring through our land, and hardly a home is untouched, it is worse than weakness. It seems to me that "the plague of your heart" is discovered by that complaint of yours that "others who seem as if they would hardly be missed are kept safely." I wonder who these can be. Surely you are not thinking of lads from poor homes where comforts are few. Much of my time is spent in writing to fathers and mothers in my dear old congregation and elsewhere who have been stricken; and I confess it is the poor folks' sorrow that seems to me the sorest and moves my keenest sympathy; and I have marvelled at the heroism, inspired by faith in the Blessed Saviour, which I have found in toil-worn mothers, widows whose heads are turning grey and their hands feeble, when their boys, their sole earthly stay, nurtured by long and heavy privation, have perished. And these are an innumerable multitude in our land at this hour. Perhaps there may be some lads who die on the battlefield and have no one to miss them and mourn them; but these, if there be such, are the most pitiful cases of all. It would in truth be the extremity of tragedy to die unlamented. If we really love our dead, we will thank God that this was not their case. See how true it is that unrestrained grief betokens selfishness. When we indulge it, the reason is that it is not our dead that we are bewailing, but our precious selves. The remedy lies, not in "praying for comfort and help," but in girding ourselves to helpfulness, which is the only spring of comfort. Remember the story which John Bright has told of the beginning of his own career of beneficence. His young wife was lying dead, and his friend Cobden visited him, and, after some words of condolence, said: "There are thousands and thousands of homes in England at this moment where wives and mothers and children are dying of hunger. Now, when the first paroxysm of your grief is passed, I would advise you to come with me, and we will never rest until the Corn Laws are repealed." I cannot tell why God has so dealt with you and countless others. His purposes are hidden, from us, but they are wise and gracious; and this much is certain—that sorrow is the universal lot, and we are called to take up our crosses and follow Him who bore the Cross for us. And the antidote of personal sorrow lies in helping others. "He that watereth others shall himself be watered."

"Mission Court."

By Mrs. J. Calvin Stewart.

The committee in charge of the erection of "Mission Court," the Home for our missionaries on furlough, expect, D. V., to "let the contract" August 1 for the erection of the Central building, provided we can raise $5,000 additional by that time. We have in hand about one-third of the proposed cost of the building, over one-third in good pledges, and we hope to raise $5,000 by August 1. In order to secure this amount we have sent out circular letters to some of our friends, whom we supposed would be interested in the movement and glad to contribute. We have received varied replies and some disappointments, but we want the readers of this good paper to know of some of the encouragements that we have received.

One writes: "We send $100 and wish we could make it larger, for it is a cause close to our hearts."

The appeal went to one of our elders, and not only he, but his wife sent $100 each, because "We are deeply interested in the cause."

We take pleasure in publishing the following letter, which thrilled our hearts and inspired us with fresh courage. It truly breathes the spirit of the Christ, and all who read it must feel uplifted. The good man believes "that it is more blessed to give than to receive." May many reading these words catch the beautiful spirit and follow the example of these servants of Christ, and thus hasten the day when this Home will throw open its doors to our noble, though tired and overworked missionaries:

"My Dear Mrs. Stewart:

"Yours of July 12 came to me today with circular which you asked me to read. I thank you for writing me on the subject. If the others to whom you have written, and to whom you refer, feel as I do towards the cause you plead for, I am sure you will find no difficulty in having favorable responses, and that you will soon get the sum for which you ask. I take great pleasure in enclosing check for $100 and assure you that it gives me pleasure to send it. It is a magnificent work you have entered upon and one much needed."

Thankfulness.

Go home then and be thankful. Think not upon what you have not got, but rather remember what you have. Face the future with trust and courage. Take your part in the mighty stir of our time; lend a willing hand to whatever has a scent of good or a savor of salvation in it. Serve your generation according to the will of God, and so make ready for the harvest of the world and the endless thanksgiving in heaven.—J. Sparhawk Jones.

Miss Rose Tries Sunday School Teaching

(A Playlet in Three Scenes).

By Mary Callum Wiley.

SCENE I.

A COMFORTABLE home scene. Father, mother, Rose, and small brother seated around the living-room light.

Rose (reluctantly putting her knitting aside)—Surely it can't be ten o'clock.

Tom—The clock has just struck.

Rose (searching nervously through the magazines and papers on the table)—Has anyone seen my Earnest Worker? I laid it on this table Sunday morning when I came home from Sunday School.

Father—As if anything could stay on this table from Sunday morning to Saturday night!

Mother—I saw an old Earnest Worker with the back torn off—

Rose (still searching)—Mine was a new one; just got it Sunday. Tom, you've done something with that paper.

Tom—I started to kindle the fire with it—

Rose—Tom Dillard, aren't you ashamed of yourself, starting a fire with a Sunday School paper!

Tom—The best kind, so dry!

Rose—Mother, make Tom tell me what he did with my paper. Here it is a quarter past ten and I haven't looked at my lesson.

Father—The lesson's in the Bible, daughter. Why not study out of that?

Rose—I don't know where it's found.

Father—What's the subject of the lesson?

Rose—Moses at—at—

Tom—Moses at the Fair!

Rose—Moses at Miribah—that's the place—no, we've finished with Moses. It must be something about Caleb (turning the leaves of the Bible). He came after Moses, didn't he?

Mother—A great many people came after Moses.

Father—Tell me the subject of last Sunday's lesson and perhaps I can help you find tomorrow's lesson.

Rose—I declare, I just can't remember one thing about last Sunday's lesson.

Tom—A pretty Sunday School teacher you—

Rose—Mother, I wish you would make Tom shut up! Oh, dear, there it's striking half-past ten, and I haven't looked at my Sunday School lesson, and I won't have time in the morning, for I promised to go before Sunday School and help arrange the flowers in the Church.

Mother—'Phone to somebody and find out the lesson.

Rose—The very thing! Mother, you are a treasure.

SCENE II.

A class room in the Sunday School—three or four girls of the teen age fidgeting about.

Bess (flinging her Earnest Worker on the table)—This is the third time in the last two months we haven't had any teacher. I think it's a shame!

Mabel—I do, too.

Maude—Maybe Miss Rose is sick.

Bess—Sick nothing! She just don't want to come—that's all.

Mabel—She don't take any interest in us anyway.

Jessie—Miss Alice goes to see her girls when they are sick and invites them to her house and takes them to movies.

Bess—I saw Miss Rose at the movie yesterday afternoon.

Mabel—Did she speak to you?

Bess—Why, I don't know. Yes, I remember now, she did nod.

Mabel—It's a wonder. She passes me on the street sometimes and doesn't even know me.

Maude—No wonder, Mabel—you come to Sunday School so seldom.

Mabel—Well, I'd come oftener if things were more interesting.

Bess—I just come 'cause mother makes me.

Jessie—Same here, Bess.

Bess—I told mother last night that I just despised Sunday School. I used to love to come when Miss Florence had us. I wish to patience she hadn't gotten married and moved away. We've just got the bummiest class in Sunday School. We don't ever win the attendance banner or—

Mabel—Have class meetings and elect officers and do things like other classes.

Bess—Well, here it is a quarter past ten and Miss Rose hasn't come yet.

Maude—Well, I think when she's not coming she might tell us so we could stay at home, too.

Jessie—She—there she comes.

Miss Rose—Good morning, girls. Did you think I was never coming? Really, though I've been here some time arranging the flowers in the Church. I meant to come before Sunday School and arrange the flowers but I overslept myself. Why, what a small class we have this morning. You must try to do better, girls, and come more regularly, and I do wish you would invite some new girls to join our class. It's so poky having just three or four. I mean it would be more inspiring to have every chair filled. Don't you think so? Well, I hope you have a good lesson for me this morning.

What, Maude, you haven't an Earnest Worker? Nor you, Jessie? Now, girls, I think you ought to take more interest in your Sunday School lesson and study it harder. Here, Maude, you may read the lesson out of my Bible, and Jessie, you and Mabel look on together. Bess, what is the subject of the lesson?

Bess—I couldn't get anything out of it, Miss Rose. It's a temperance lesson and—

Miss Rose—A temperance lesson! (hurriedly turning the pages of the Earnest Worker she had procured at the secretary's table as she entered Sunday School).

Bess—Yes, ma'am, and I never could get anything out of a temperance lesson.

Mabel—Nadab and Abihu (reading from her Earnest Worker)—Miss Rose, who in the world were Nadab and Abihu? I never heard of them.

Maude (in a whisper)—Where do you find them, in the Old Testament or the New?

Miss Rose—Why, girls, really I must confess, I've got the wrong lesson. Nadab and Abihu (glancing nervously through the lesson)—Now, Bess, I'm sure you can tell us who they were. Your mother is such a splendid Bible student and—

Bess (mischievously)—But I'm not, Miss Rose; and as I said, I couldn't get a thing out of the lesson. I wanted to ask you—

Miss Rose—We're no time for questions this morning, Bess. We must read the lesson over verse by verse. You begin, please. (The electric bell rings). Just five minutes, now. Jessie, read the next verse.

Jessie—Miss Rose, how do you pronounce E-lea-zar, and I—

Miss Rose—Mabel, you read the verse, please.

Mabel—But I can't pronounce them either, Miss Rose. Let Bess read it. (Second bell rings).

Miss Rose—Then, we'll have to stop our reading.

Bess (in a whisper to the girls)—And before next Sunday see how to pronounce the words.

SCENE III.

At the Thursday Morning Whist Club.

Miss Eunice Johnson—I didn't see you at Sunday School Teachers' Meeting last night, Rose.

Rose—O, I'm going to give up my class, Eunice.

Eunice—You are! Why, how come?

Rose—It just bores me to death.

Miss Annie Lou Brown—Why, Rose, the last I heard of

Should the Pulpit Take Part in This Debate?

The Baltimore Sun in a recent editorial on this subject, after naming some of the ministers of the Gospel who made the League of Nations the subject of their sermons, adds:

"We are not sure that the friends of the League have reason to welcome the aid of these pulpit propagandists. But we do feel quite sure that no matter how much they may help the League, they will not strengthen religion ultimately with the masses of the people by abandoning the Bible covenant for the Paris covenant. Politics and religion do not mix well outside the church: they do not mix at all in a place where people assemble ostensibly to worship God and to confess their sins. If the Church is to be turned into a forum for the discussion of public questions, then the members of the congregation should be permitted to take part in the debate as well as the minister. A good many persons may disagree with him, and they should have a chance in that case to have their say. What the result would be, so far as religious service is considered, is obvious. We do not believe that it would add to ministerial influence or dignity to substitute the fourteen points for the Ten Commandments, or the League of Nations for the Gospel of Christ. Certainly it will not add to public respect for the clergy to have them get up in their pulpits and denounce those who disagree with them on public questions as 'pitiful paterers.' That may do for the United States Senate or for the political stump, but it will not tend to increase confidence in those representatives of religion who go in for this sort of a thing. As citizens clergymen have a right to their own views. As ministers in their pulpits they are supposed to represent their Church and their creed. If their Church and their creed are not broad enough for them, they ought to set up a new ecclesiastical shop for themselves in which they can deal in all kinds of moral and political wares. There are millions of old-fashioned people in this country who do not want to mix their politics and religion, and who resent strongly any attempt from the pulpit to dictate to them as to public matters, or to feed them on treaties and international relations instead of on moralities and eternal hope."

The next day a minister in Baltimore replied in the "Forum," a department of the Sun, expressing surprise at the editor's position, and defending the ministers who had spoken in their pulpits on the League of Nations.

"He cares little for the matter of ministerial dignity when it is a matter of conscience, and he feels perhaps that the 'fourteen points' might have as just a place in the religious history of the race as the Ten Commandments, and that the League of Nations might be a part of the Gospel of Christ. * * * *"

As I happen to be a Presbyterian clergyman I would ask you to consult the reports of the special committee of the late General Assembly meeting in the city of St. Louis. You may be surprised at some of the things which the General Assembly considers to be within the province of her ministry. And you will find something perhaps in regard to the League of Nations."

The editor of the forum placed at the head of this letter of a Presbyterian minister these words: "The League of Nations Might Be a Part of the Gospel of Christ." Evidently both the Old and the New Testaments need another revision:

R. H. F.

our class, they were the brightest, sweetest things in the world.

Rose—Oh, well, they are nice, sweet girls so far as girls go. But you know girls are not interesting.

Blanche—Indeed!

Rose—Oh, I mean girls about thirteen and fourteen; they are so giggly and simpering and so full of themselves, and won't study their Sunday School lesson, except Bess Walker, and she keeps me on pins all the time for fear she will ask me something I can't answer.

Annie Lee—I think she's the cutest thing!

Rose—You just wait till you teach her a while and you'll change your mind. She keeps me stirred up all the time.

Annie Lee—She generally keeps things stirred up around her.

Rose—She can just make the other girls do anything. I believe if it wasn't for her I could hold their attentions; but all the time I'm trying to hear the lesson, she's got them giggling and whispering behind their books and I can't do a thing with them. And it's so strange, too, for when Miss Florence Davis had them they were the nicest, best behaved class in Sunday School and I used to look over at them with envious eyes. My boys were such a trial!

Eunice—I can testify to that.

Rose—They were just about to drive me distracted; so when Mr. Norris asked me if I would give them up for Miss Florence's girls I jumped at the chance. But, I'll be blessed, if I didn't jump from the frying pan into the fire!

Blanche—Poor Rose!

Rose—It's no laughing matter. I tell you, boys are risky and up to all sorts of tricks; but girls, especially girls of thirteen and fourteen, are the limit. They are so silly and simpering and always thinking about their beaux—

Annie Lee—Their b-o-y-s and their b-e-a-u-x.

Rose—Yes, they bring their vanity boxes to Sunday school and when I'm trying to get them to look on their quarterlies, they are primping with their mirrors in their hands or making eyes at the boys.

Kate—Don't tell me anything about "Misses," my dear. I have a small sister at home and I had rather teach boys any day than girls of her age.

Margaret—If you'll believe me, teaching boys or girls is no easy thing. I know, for I tried it for three months. It took all my time running around after my Sunday School pupils on week days, giving up card parties and social calls to take them picnicking or have them 'round home, phoning them when they were sick, racking my brains to find some way of interesting them. Why, I worked harder those weeks I supplied for Lelia Lucks while she was in hospital than I ever worked in my life.

Eunice—I believe you Margaret. But, then, you go at everything so hard.

Margaret—You have to go at Sunday School teaching hard if you go at it at all.

Eunice—Oh, I don't think so. I don't lose any sleep over my class and I get along very well.

Rose—That's because you are a born teacher, Eunice. Everybody says so. Now, I don't believe I was cut out for a teacher and I'm not going to worry myself to death any longer trying to be one. But come, all the girls are here; let's begin our game. Oh, I do love a good game!

523 Spruce St., Winston-Salem, N. C.

HIS CHURCH.

"The secret of the Lord is with them that fear him." How close this brings the Lord to us! He, too, has his secrets. Not every one is taken into his confidence. We reveal our personal and important matters only to those who love us and whose love has been tried and proved. It is just—be it said in all reverence—with God. Why should we expect Him to take us into His inner sanctuary and unveil to us the deep things of His nature and work, unless we have learned already something of what dutiful, tender intimacy with Him means? And if we have thus learned, in some measure, is not such a revelation of Himself the very thing which is natural for Him as well as most precious to us?—S. F. Day.

Mercifulness manifests itself in two ways: first, in patience and forbearance toward those who do wrong, leniency toward those who fail; and, secondly, in ministrations of kindness and love to those who are in need. The first of these manifestations is negative. The other phase of the quality is active and positive.—Rev. J. R. Miller, D.D.

Across the Turkish Empire in a Side-Door Pullman.

(Continued from page 4)

horrible butchery of a helpless people by the heartless Turks.

At Aleppo we took the famous Berlin to Bagdad Railway, a tremendous factor in Germany's plan for building an Empire and which they expected to use in severing the connection between England and her East Indian possessions. The road runs up through the Taurus mountains and the great upland plains of the Turkish Empire which are so extensive and fertile that they amaze even an American who is familiar with the boundless resources of our own land.

The road itself is a masterpiece of engineering skill and the section through the Taurus mountains shows rocky gorges and towering peaks equalling in grandeur anything in the American Rockies.

Forty-two tunnels blasted through solid rock are found on the mountain section, the longest of which is seven miles in length, and it took our train forty-three minutes to pass through it.

Ventilation is provided by blasting shafts through to the deep ravines which the road skirts in its passage through the mountains.

The immense rifts in the towering masses of rock through which passage is had from one deep valley to another are peculiar to this range of mountains and these Sicilian gates will be factors in the reconstruction of this land as they were famous in the history and tradition of the past.

The Germans did not have the Broad Gauge Railway completed from Constantinople to Aleppo at the outbreak of the war and the heavy work in the Taurus mountain was their biggest task.

They put all their resources into the completion of this important link as they were transporting troops and supplies for the Turks across these towering mountains in motor trucks at an enormous cost of time and money.

The Russian and Serbian prisoners of war were sent into the mountains and put to work by the thousands to rush the tunnel sections of the railway to completion—and so inhuman was their treatment that they died like flies.

It seemed the irony of fate that the mountain section was opened for through broad gauge trains just two days before the armistice was signed and this immensely valuable piece of railroad fell at once into English hands.

We have no direct news from Paris having been out of touch with the world for three months, but it is safe to predict that this monumental engineering feat will remain under English control and be used by the allies as the main transportation system for troops and supplies that will be needed to restore order in the tumultuous corner of the earth.

The Turks did not destroy the property of their own people as is shown by the vast herds of cattle, sheep and goats which dot the plains and the long trains of wooden wheel carts bringing wheat and barley to the railway stations attest the fact that there is now no food shortage in this section of the Turkish Empire.

The crowds of Turks and Kurds one sees at the stations makes cold chills run up the spine of a traveller in spite of the presence of an armed guard, for it is impossible not to think of their bloody hands as you look into their coarse and sinister faces.

Our train carried about 600 returning refugees and they were packed with their pitiful belongings, about sixty to a car while we Americans felt crowded with only eight in our car. We dropped them in groups as they reached their home villages or cities and some of the scenes as families were reunited after four years exile were touching indeed. In every case only a remnant of the family came home and in hundreds of cases only one or two were left out of family groups of six or eight that started on the tragic exile march three and four years ago.

At the station of Bozante in the heart of the Taurus mountains our train was sidetracked and we were told we would have a nineteen-hour lay-over.

The writer and one other man from the South vowed that we would never again complain of the delays on American railroads, not even at a Southern Railway schedule!

Such a delay would have run a load of passengers in the states entirely wild but it was accepted over here as the usual thing. We had an interesting time with the four carloads of refugees on our train and gave our cook orders to serve them with hot tea as they only had the cold army rations furnished by the British Army. The cook asked if he might include sugar and was told to spare nothing our larder afforded. I have seen the bread lines and soup lines but this was my first view of a tea line and it was a never-to-be-forgotten sight. They came with tin cups, bowls, wash pans and kettles of every conceivable size and shape and stated how many they wanted tea for and we made an effort to catch the repeaters.

We made and poured tea for over two hours and used nine pounds of our ten-pound stock of sugar—but the investment of time and sugar was well worth while.

Another interesting experience grew out of the interpreter's mistake in dubbing me "Doctor" along with the D.D.'s of our party. The refugees got the impression that it meant "Medical Doctor" and began at once to bring the lame, blind and halt to our car for treatment. I attempted to maintain the reputation of American medicine and prescribed for bone felons, chills, headaches, cholera-morbus, and divers other ailments, always playing safe, however, by giving them something I knew would not hurt them.

My star patient was a young man the interpreter solemnly introduced with the statement that he had a serpent in him which he wanted me to get out. I confess I was stumped, for I didn't dare try surgery and I knew I had no power over evil spirits if this was a case of demoniacal possession.

It finally dawned on me that his trouble was tape worm but I found none of the party had any eradicators in their medicine kits. A consultation was held and I ended by prescribing hot squash seed tea and he went away happy with a carefully written prescription telling how to make the tea, how often to take it and how to observe the preliminary fast of twenty-four hours.

We suppose all our patients survived their treatment as we got out of the country without being indicted for malpractice.

Constantinople was finally reached and our refugees were distributed through apparently safe districts to begin all over again the slow process of rebuilding a wrecked nation. Just a few miles outside of Constantinople on the Sea of Marmora the Turks and Germans had built some enormous grain warehouses which they had transformed into ammunition depots during the war. Upon the surrender of the city the army of occupation turned over these warehouses to our American Relief Committee for Armenia and Syria, and already over three million dollars' worth of food, clothing and medical supplies have been received from the states and distributed through this depot to the destitute people of the Near East.

The work of relief must go on until the people have time to rebuild their homes and make a new start in life and orphans by the thousand must be gathered into institutions and trained for citizenship and self-support. This is the unfinished task of the churches of America.

Salonika, Greece, May 31, 1919.

What is it that counts here? Only that which is truly given; only that which is done for the love of doing it; only those plans in which the welfare of others is the master thought; only those labors in which the sacrifice is greater than the reward; only those gifts in which the giver forgets himself—these are the things that the King never forgets—Henry Van Dyke.

We cannot be called to any path of action, or to any endurance for the furtherance of the glory of Christ, without finding in it deep and it may be even exhilarating joy. We may and do miss this now, but the reason is because we are so often occupied with ourselves and not with Him.—Power.

News of the Week

rolle with Mexico is again looming up. Armed Mexs hid up and robbed a boat load of American sailors n th United States flag flying over them. The Mexi-Government has expressed regrets and intention of pun-ing te guilty when found.

a seous riot has occurred in Washington City between nd colored. Aroused by frequent assaults upon te en some soldiers and sailors took matters in their hads and began an attack upon negroes. Like all such ble the innocent began to suffer with the guilty, with rst; that many of both races were killed.

J. Konenkamp, president of the Commercial Telegra-nion of America, the man who recently tried to hold the business of the country by a strike of the wiremen, esned.

The University of North Carolina Medical School had members out of the 82, who recently passed the State ard f Examiners. D. W. Kluttz led the new class of tore with a grade of 92 per cent. N. C. Riddle, another rolin man, came second.

senar Kenyon, of Iowa, is preparing to fight the meat
cker who, he claims, are holding up the price of meat.

To ttle the long standing dispute between farmers and n lyers as to a proper price basis for wheat, the United tes Grain Corporation has entered into a contract with vers hereby the latter agree "to reflect properly to proce t Government's guaranteed price for various grades whc."

The east week has witnessed a repetition of floods almost series as those of 1916. In the Piedmont section of orth Carolina heavy crop loss has been wrought along the lans of the Yadkin, Catawba and smaller streams.

A digible balloon, after cruising back and forth across s loop district for hours, bearing five persons, ex-ded and the blazing wreckage crashed through the sky-nts a Savings Bank in the financial district, with the ult that ten were killed and more than a score wounded.

In te House of Representatives the Enforcement Bill s posed by a vote of nearly three to one. Exactly 100 mbs voted against it—52 Democrats and 48 Republits provisions and penalties are so drastic that many nts iends fear that it will drive others to the opposite e.

An phatic negative was returned by the Senate Foreign s Committee to President Wilson's request that it provisional appointment of an American represenwe n the international reparations commission without aiti; ratification of the peace treaty.

The President has been ill since his return and was un-meet several engagements, but he is again at work, nter; ng with Senators.

Hay ng found that the price per acre now demanded from e Government for land requisitioned in building the em-katn terminal at Charleston, S. C., would represent ouo,000 per cent increase" over the purchase price of es ago, the war department board of appraisers has omitd a report recommending a flat refusal.

In te vote on prohibition the North Carolina represen-es voted as follows: Six voted for it, two voted unsit, and two were absent.

J. V. Ragsdale, for six years a member of Congress from arolina, dropped dead in Washington July 23 while ng a physician.

J. F. Densmore, special agent of the Department of La-ira report, says that Thos. J. Mooney was unjustly

(Continued on Page 10)

Home Circle

VISUALIZING HER HUSBAND'S POSSIBILITIES.

In his "Reminiscences," Dr. Lyman G. Abbott says of his wife: "I do not think her dead, nor have I lost her companionship. Her ambition for me keeps me young at seventy-eight; her faith still inspires me with faith in myself."

For all of his success in life, Dr. Abbott gives his wife more than half the credit. "When I was a lawyer," he says, "she helped me with my briefs. When I was in the ministry, she was co-pastor. When I was editor, she was my keenest critic. How many of my books have been a joint product, not in formal composition, but in preparatory thought, neither I nor she could have told. In time of failure, when I had wholly lost faith in myself, she never lost faith in me, and her courage forbade my discouragement."

The influence of the true wife upon her husband's career is a noticeable fact in the lives of the majority of great men. Like Dr. Abbott, they owe half their success to the inspiration, encouragement and active help of their wives, who ask no reward but their success.

The husband's very consciousness that his wife is proud of him, and is always thinking about his advancement and trying in every possible way to help him get on in the world, has a stimulating effect upon his mentality. It braces him, keeps him from yielding to the temptation to let up in his efforts, to take things easier, to slide along the line of least resistance, to yield to the blues and discouragement, to give up. There are thousands of instances in this country where, by their help and inspiration, wives have enabled their husbands to win out in an infinitely larger way than they could ever have done without them.

In this connection, it is rather a curious thing that while most of these men in a way appreciate their wives' vision and encouragement, yet they take the credit for their larger success themselves. They do not, as a rule, measure the creative force of their wives' ambition for them and the large part it plays in their careers.

It is noteworthy, too, that the ambitious wife who vitalizes her husband and pushes him forward is usually a woman of large ability herself. In the past she has been cut off from developing her own special ambition or talent because of the race belief in the man-made conventions that have restricted woman's sphere and practically all of her activities to the home. She is now discovering her own possibilities and finding that she can not only help her husband to the larger success he aims at, but that she herself can have a career outside of the home, without losing or sacrificing anything pertaining to the home.

Men do not have the same power of visualizing possibilities that women have, nor are they as good judges of human nature. Few husbands realize how much they owe to their wives' intuition in keeping them from employing, or associating themselves with, unreliable characters. How often it has happened that a single short interview with a man with whom the husband is about to have very close business relations has given the wife an insight into his character that makes her caution her husband to look out for that man and thus saves him from business disaster! On the other hand, how often husbands tell their wives that the man against whom they caution them is all right, and that their fears are groundless, only to come to grief afterwards because they did not heed the feminine intuition in the matter!

I have often seen the suffering of wives who had protested without avail against risky, foolish business connections, unfortunate partnerships, foolish investments of their husbands. They had to move out of their homes, which had become involved in the unfortunate business affairs, and compelled to undergo all sorts of humiliations, sufferings and deprivations, which might have been prevented, at least

(Continued on page 10)

Sunday School

By Rev. H. G. Hill, D.D.

CHRISTIAN WORSHIP.

Golden Text—John 4:24, "God is a Spirit and they that worship Him must worship Him in spirit and in truth."

John 4:1-10, 19-24.

August 3, 1919.

Two of our Saviour's longest and most important sermons were addressed to a single person. One was to Nicodemus, the ruler, and the other to the Samaritan Woman at the well. Both these sermons presented the truths most needed by the hearer and both resulted in making the hearers the disciples of Jesus. To the Samaritan Woman and to the healed blind man at Jerusalem Jesus declared in plain words that "He was the Messiah." We will consider Christ and the Samaritan Woman at the Well, His Description of Living Water, He revealing Himself and her need, and His Exposition of True Worship.

I. Christ and the Woman at the Well.

Here extremes meet. She is an abandoned woman by her own confession and Christ's testimony. He is the Son of God, the long-promised Messiah, and the only Saviour of the world. There is much difference in their physical condition. She is strong, fresh, able to draw water and to dispense it. He is weary, hungry, thirsty and waiting alone for His disciples who have gone into the city of Sychar to buy food. He asks her for a drink of water. Instead of courteously giving it to Him, she brings up the alienation between the Jews and Samaritans and demands why he being a Jew should ask drink of her, a Samaritan? Jesus replies: "If thou knewest the gift of God and Who it is that saith give Me to drink, thou wouldst have asked of Him and He would have given thee living water." She desires to know whence He could obtain that living water, and if He was greater than their father Jacob who gave them the well? Jesus then explains what He meant by "Living Water."

II. Christ's Description of Living Water.

He says: "Whosoever drinketh of this water shall thirst again. But whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst but the water that I shall give him shall be in him a well of water springing up into everlasting life." She expresses a desire to have this water, but understands His words in a literal and not a figurative sense. She says: "Sir, give me that water that I thirst not, neither come hither to draw." Christ employs "Living Water" as an image of the Holy Spirit's influences, imparting new life and refreshment to the soul, abiding with the believer, always satisfying his thirsting and unfailling in its power. Hence He pictures these influences in their abundance and abiding nature, not only as "living water" but as a "Well of water springing up into everlasting life." He affirms that one having the Spirit or this "Well of living water, that out of him shall flow rivers of living water." The regenerated man, having the Spirit of God, shall furnish saving and blessing influences like "Rivers of living water."

III. Jesus Reveals to the Woman Himself and Her Need.

His teachings cause her to regard Him as a prophet or religious teacher and to divert attention from her own personal needs or to discuss and solve a controverted question, she brings up a dispute between the Jews and the Samaritans as to the proper place for worship. But Christ was not to be turned aside from regarding and treating religion as a personal matter. He had already by His teachings indicated that He was the Saviour. But when the woman declared that "Christ when He came would tell us all things," Jesus said to her: "I that speak unto thee am He." But it was necessary for her salvation, not only that she should know Him as Christ, but that she should realize her own need of just such a Saviour. He therefore conceals her of sin and guilt. To do this he says: "Go call thy husband." She answers: "I have no husband." He rejoins: "Thou hast had five husbands, and he whom thou now hast is not thy husband, in that thou saidst truly." She thus shewed her that He knew her past life, that she had been a vicious one, and that she was then living in disobedience to God's law. He did this not to distress her, but to cause her to feel her sore need of His Gospel, to prepare her to receive the offered "living water" and to bring her to Himself as a trusting disciple.

IV. Christ Expounds True Worship.

It needed exposition and does yet. Men then as we were disposed to confound worship with places, times, forms, ceremonies, and pageantry, and even to substitute these for real worship. Jesus tells the Samaritan woman that worship does not depend on the place, or the surroundings, or the forms, or the mode of utterance. He declares that "God is a Spirit" and can not be worshipped by images or in a material way. Hence the Second Commandment of the decalogue which forbids the worship of God by such means. Affirming Jehovah's spirituality, Jesus teaches that "God must be worshipped in spirit and in truth." A Spiritual Being must be worshipped not merely by the senses or voice but by the rational soul. His perfections must be adored. His gifts prompt thanks and praise and His attributes receive homage from all our faculties. This worship, too, should not only emanate from the soul but be marked by sincerity.

News of the Week.

(Continued from Page 9)

convicted, being the victim of corporate interests in San Francisco.

Editor R. R. Clark, of the Statesville, N. C., Landmark, is reported as slated for the postmastership of that city.

Rev. Baxter McLendon, the noted evangelist, will begin a series of meetings in Wadesboro, N. C., August 10. It will be a union meeting, the various denominations having extended the invitation.

On Wednesday last in Charlotte, N. C., one and one-half inches of rain fell in 50 minutes. Thus far the rainfall for the month has been 7.22 inches.

Discharged service men who let their Government insurance lapse were given the privilege of reinstating their policies within 18 months without payment of back premiums, under an order signed by Secretary Glass.

Home Circle.

(Continued from page 9)

to a very great extent, if their husbands had only listened to the protests of their instinct.

Without the influence of noble women "a learned man is in danger of becoming a pedant; a religious man, a bigot; a vain man, a fool; and a self-indulgent man, a slave." The power of good women can hardly be over-estimated. They draw men from the whirlpools of folly; break up degrading habits; dissipate the unhealthy charm of money getting; stimulate the soul and inspire it with the loftiest sentiments.

The good wife and mother spreads an atmosphere of helpfulness, of serenity and joy wherever she goes. By the chemistry of love she transmutes everything she touches into the pure gold of happiness. She is the apple of her husband's eye, her children worship her, her neighbors love her.

The woman who not only spurs her husband to do the best of which he is capable, but who, in addition, makes a real home, is a public benefactor. She is working not for herself and her family alone, but for her country, for all humanity. Every boy, every girl, who has a cheerful, happy home is a magnetized unit for the advancement of the general happiness and well-being.—Orison Swett Marden, in the New Success Magazine.

Christian Endeavor

By Rev. S. H. Hay.

- M., Aug. 4—Judged by Words: Matt. 12:33-37.
 T., Aug. 5—Backbiters: Jer. 9:1-11.
 W., Aug. 6—Slanderers: 2 Sam. 10:1-5.
 T., Aug. 7—Jesus, Master Pleader: John 6:57-71.
 F., Aug. 8—Rash Words Lose a Kingdom: 2 Chron. 10:1-11.
 S., Aug. 9—A God-Taught Speaker: Isa. 50:4-11.

Topic for Sunday, Aug. 10—Speech, Wise and Unwise—
 Jas. 3:1-18.

* * *

Any speech that is unkind is unwise. No situation can be bettered by injecting unkindness into it. Stern justice in act and word is sometimes necessary of course, but in the great majority of cases God does not intend this justice to be dealt out by us. It is His province, not ours, to inflict the pains of justice, and we should not fondly imagine ourselves commissioned by Him to do it simply because we feel the impulse. Our tendency is to color justice with unkindness; and when we do, evil comes instead of good. Wisdom lies in kindness always, in act and speech.

* * *

It is always wise to speak the truth. Falsity is always the height of folly. Some have called the lie an ever present help in emergency, and the lubricating oil of society. No view could be itself more false and contrary to the will of God, or more productive of harm for humanity. The lie has always been man's worst enemy. It betrayed him in the Garden of Eden, and ever since has been the chief impediment to hold him back from the recovery of Paradise. Jesus is the ladder to Paradise, and He says, I am the Truth. No combination of circumstances should lead us into the tragic blunder of telling an untruth. The lie may seem to serve a handy purpose at the time, but in the long run brings either fatal complications here on earth or doom in the world to come.

* * *

If we are wise our speech will be restrained. The natural human tendency is to give the tongue free rein to run its course. Free rein for the tongue always proves to be at least enough rope to hang itself and its owner. But that is not all. It starts consequences that no one can control. Changing our figure to the better one of the Scripture, a little fire of the tongue starts a great conflagration, which like a prairie fire sweeps all before it—how great a matter, says James, a little fire kindleth! Let us hold our words in wise restraint.

* * *

Speech must be tactful and timely. To the essentials of truth and kindness and restraint we must give the finishing touch of right time and right occasion. Some words of kindest intention wound and crush us. Often the truth spoken tactlessly spoils a fine prospect. Even restraint is often misused and misunderstood. But when kindness, restraint, and truth are accompanied by tact and timeliness, there is no end of power and good results.

* * *

Here is a team of four draft horses—Truth Kindness, Tact, Timeliness. Over them are the reins of restraint to guide them, and behind is the mind of the driver. He trains them all to work together with precision and power; and in due time he can move by conversation and public speech great weights for God.

Tell how falsehood first ruined the world—Gen. 3:1-8.

Tell how a wise man helps to keep the peace—Prov. 15:1.

The Prayer Meeting

By Rev. C. D. Waller.

TOPIC FOR WEEK BEGINNING AUG. 3, 1919:
 OUR SYNODICAL ORPHANAGES—James 1:27.

James does not mince words. He demands fruit. It matters not "if any man thinketh himself to be religious" if he does not put a bridle on his tongue. How terrible to know that one may "deceive his heart"—that one's "religion may be vain." And when we see the injustice and callous selfishness that prevails we are obliged to believe that multitudes have been "deceiving their hearts" and that there is much vain religion in the world. And the widows and orphans—thousands of them, with destitution and neglect as their portion, while the church possesses means abundantly to care for them!

It is happily true that we have our orphanages. It is happily true that hundreds of orphans are in these homes carefully nurtured, and we believe lovingly cared for. But the report comes of other hundreds and thousands of these children who are destitute, and who need the blessed ministry of the church. What shall we do? Shall we be content with the present equipment? Shall we not enlarge our accommodations and our hearts? But James would perhaps be astonished at the way we minister to the unfortunate by proxy. He talks of the personal touch—the personal ministry. "Pure religion and undefiled—is to visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction." To give of our money is good and necessary. Perhaps it may be an advantageous substitute as far as others are concerned. But what of ourselves? Do not we need the discipline of the heart and spirit that comes of the sympathetic personal contact? Are we to neglect ourselves while our money goes out to heal the wounds of poverty and destitution? Are good ministrants of our gold and silver to be the sharers with the orphans and widows of blessings, while we neither touch or taste the blessing?

There are multitudes upon whom time hangs heavily; who seek "to kill time" at parties of questionable character, who might be visiting the fatherless, the widow, the sick, the destitute. And how such a course would enrich their lives, dispell the ennui, and make religion a sweet and precious reality. Without personal service religion tends to degenerate into formalism; and it is only "by their fruits" that Christians may be known either by themselves or others. This commonplace is so vital that we must ring the changes upon it. The peril of a church constituency ignorant of personal service is real and imminent. The temptation to permit "giving" to constitute the whole of one's activity is to many quite irresistible. The orphanage is of course a glory to the church; but co-operation with the orphanage in its work on the part of every Christian is the ideal. It is more: it is essential to the health of Christians and the vitality of the body of Christ. If we could have this co-operation, our plants would be enlarged and our equipment perfected. Such a condition would react upon the whole church. "Pure religion and undefiled" glorifies our Saviour and brings untold blessings among men.

God is good,

And flight is destined for the callow wing,
 And the high appetite implies the food,
 And souls must reach the level whence they spring;
 O Life of very-Life! set free our powers
 Hasten the travail of the yearning hours.
 Thou to Whom old Philosophy bent low,
 To the wise few mysteriously revealed;
 Thou, Whom each humble Christian worships now,
 In the poor hamlet and the open field;
 Once an idea, now Comforter and Friend,
 Hope of the Human Heart, descend, descend!

—Mitner.

Presbyterian Standard

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, $2.50 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE.
REV. W. L. BOGGS, Circulation Manager.

PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY AT CHARLOTTE, N. C.
ESTABLISHED JANUARY 1, 1858.

Entered at the Post Office at Charlotte, N. C., as second class matter.

A Religious Newspaper for the Family, Devoted to the Interest of Christ's Kingdom as Represented by the Southern Presbyterian Church.

CONTENTS OF THIS ISSUE

EDITORIAL—	PAGE.
The Irish Question	2
Missionaries on Furlough	2
A Generous Provision	2
The Need of "Moderation".....	3
The Covenant of Grace and the League of Nations	3
"Fighting for a New World".....	3
CONTRIBUTED—
Across the Turkish Empire in a Side-Door Pullman—By R. E. Magill	4-8
God's Mysterious Way	5
"Mission Court"—By Mrs. J. Calvin Stewart..	5
Miss Rose Tries Sunday School Teaching—By Miss Mary Callum Wiley.....	6-7
Should the Pulpit Take Part in This Debate?—By R. H. F.....	7
DEPARTMENTS—
News of the Week	9
Home Circle	9
Sunday School—By Rev. H. G. Hill, D.D.....	10
Christian Endeavor—By Rev. S. H. Hay	11
Prayer Meeting—By Rev. C. D. Waller	11

ANNOUNCEMENT.

 The label on the paper gives the date to which subscription is paid.

When change of address is desired, give both the old and the new address.

When the date of the label is behind the date of this issue of the paper the label is a reminder that the subscription price is past due. When the date of the label is in advance of the date of this issue it is a receipt for the last subscription paid.

No charge is made for the insertion of marriage and obituary notices of fifty words or less. For all over fifty words remit at the rate of one cent a word. Correspondents are requested to give the post office address of married couples when marriage notices are sent.

Advertising rates furnished on application. The size and character of this paper indicate the size and character of its constituency. For reputable advertising there is no better medium for North Carolina and the most prosperous section of the South.

TREASURERS OF BENEVOLENT CAUSES.

Foreign Missions—Edwin F. Willis, 154 Fifth Ave., N., Nashville, Tenn.

Home Missions—A. N. Sharp, 1522 Hurt Building, Atlanta, Ga.

Christian Education and Ministerial Relief—John Stites, Fifth and Market Streets, Louisville, Ky.

Publication and Sabbath School Work—R. E. Magill, 5-8 N. Sixth Street, Richmond, Va.

Bible Cause—Wm. Foulke, Bible House, New York.

Church News

Collections—July is not assigned to any one of our Church causes, but in many of the Synods and Presbyteries it is assigned to Synodical, Presbyterian, or congregational Home Missions. Pastors and churches can obtain information from the chairman of the committee of their own Presbytery.

A REQUEST.

We have lost from our files the issue of July 16. Any one having a copy will confer a favor by sending it to this office.
Presbyterian Standard, Charlotte, N. C.

ARMENIAN RELIEF.

Received for this cause since our last issue:
Mrs. M. E. Norfleet.....$10.00
Little Miss Anne Magill West..... 1.00
Circle No. 5, Tenth Ave. Church..... 3.50

"TILL WE MEET AGAIN."

To the Dear Friends in America:

The furlough year has closed and we are waving goodbye to you and the land that stands for all that's red and white and blue.

We love America and you Americans and not for any other reason given among men would we leave you. Our ideas of Heaven are all mixed up with those of America, and the saints in glory cannot be fairer than you, our friends.

We cannot know exactly the conditions that await us on the other side in disturbed Korea, but we are certain of one thing, and that is that neither of us can vote for seven years! Of course one of us never has voted, but she liked to think that she could toy with the privilege anyway.

We leave "houses, and brethren, and sisters, and mothers, and children, and lands with persecutions" on this side the great water, but three weeks hence we shall be in the midst of our adopted children, the Koreans. God will take care of you whom we love better than life. He has asked us to feed His lambs in that far-away fold.

Faithfully yours,

Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Swinehart.

A CALL FOR MISSIONARY DOCTORS.

The Executive Committee of Foreign Missions is anxious to receive applications from some of our young Christian physicians returned from the war, who would be willing to give their lives to service on the foreign field.

One man is urgently needed to supply the vacancy in our hospital at Chunju, Korea, caused by the temporary retirement of Dr. M. O. Robertson.

Another is needed for Taichow, China, funds for a hospital at that place having recently been placed at the disposal of the committee.

Any persons interested in this announcement are invited to correspond with the undersigned.

Rev. S. H. Chester, Secretary.

Address: Box 158, Nashville, Tenn.

PERSONAL.

Rev. and Mrs. M. L. Swinehart change their address this week to Kwangju, Korea, Asia, as they are returning to Korea to take up their work again after furlough in this country.

Dr. J. S. Sibley, who leaves Charlotte August 1 for his new field at Waycross, Ga., was presented with a handsome gold watch by the Masonic Lodge with which he has been connected during his stay in Charlotte. This mark of appreciation was deserved and spoke as much for the Masons as for the receiver.

Rev. D. N. McLaughlin, D.D., pastor of Second Presbyterian Church, Norfolk, Va., and his family will spend the month of August with Dr. McLaughlin's mother at Vass, N. C.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

Bullock's Creek—The salary of Rev. J. B. Swann has been increased by this congregation $200.

Liberty Hill—The congregation here has recently increased the salary of Rev. T. W. DeVane $100.

Rock Hill—The congregation of the First Presbyterian Church recently increased the salary of their pastor, Rev. F. W. Gregg, six hundred dollars, an increase of 33 1-3 per cent.

Great Falls—In consideration of the high cost of living and in appreciation of their pastor, Rev. W. L. Latham, the congregation of the Great Falls Church recently increased the pastor's salary $300.

Clover—A special meeting of Bethel Presbytery was held in the Clover Presbyterian Church Thursday morning at 11 o'clock to consider the dismissal of Mr. Hay and Mr. Miller to King's Mountain and Florida Presbyteries, respectively. The meeting was presided over by the Rev. G. W. Nickel, Moderator. Others present were: The Rev. J. G. Wardlaw, clerk; the Rev. A. E. Spencer, the Rev. J. M. McClain, the Rev. J. E. Berryhill, and R. L. Wylie, elder.

York—An interesting and impressive service was held in the First Presbyterian Church last Sunday morning. Messrs. E. A. Hall, H. E. Neil, J. M. Ramsey and F. C. Riddle were ordained and installed deacons. A short, practical charge was delivered to the deacons and congregation. The communion service followed these exercises. Twenty-two members have been received since the first of April, twelve by letter and ten on profession of faith.

Charleston—At a called meeting of the Charleston Presbytery July 22 the pastoral relations existing between the Rev. J. E. Coker and the Knox Presbyterian Church of Charleston were dissolved and Mr. Coker was granted permission to go to the Bethel Presbytery, where he has accepted pastorates at Blackstock and Concord. He will assume his new pastorate August 1. Mr. Coker came to Charleston five or six years ago from Jonesville and has endeared himself to the people of his community, who regret to see him leave.

NORTH CAROLINA.

Charlotte, First Church—At a meeting of the Men's Foreign Missionary Society last Sabbath Dr. and Mrs. H. Maxey Smith, of Soochow, China, were taken as the foreign representatives of this organization. Their support amounts to $2,400 a year.

Mallard Creek—Rev. W. W. Pharr, of West Virginia, recently returned from the Army, filled the pulpit of this church last Sabbath morning, preaching an excellent sermon. Mr. Pharr's grandfather, Rev. W. W. Pharr, of honored memory, was for many years the loved pastor of this old church and for this reason as well as for his own sake Mr. Pharr's visit proved a pleasure to the congregation.

Rev. D. McIntyre, D.D., who has been acceptably serving Laurel Hill and Smyrna Presbyterian churches during the absence in France of their pastor, Dr. Hellier, has accepted a call to serve the churches at Blenheim, Dunbar and Reedy Creek, S. C. That is a fine country and must be a good field for the minister. The family will probably move to Blenheim about the latter part of August.—Scottish Chief.

Charlotte—The service last Sunday night at the Westminster Church proved a very delightful innovation. The old hymns of the church with their spiritual and beautiful messages were made the theme of the service. The pastor, Dr. McLeod, gave the history of the writing of each hymn selected and the congregation led by the choir then sang it.

This church since the coming of Dr. McLeod has grown both in numbers and in the spirit of liberality. At a recent meeting of the congregation it was voted to give the pastor an increase in salary, and the substantial sum of $900 was accordingly added.

At its last communion there were several additions, making 44 members received during the quarter.

Davidson—The town is greatly interested in a union meeting that is being held here this week under the joint direction of all the churches. A tent has been erected in the grove, in front of the postoffice, and as far as the rains permit the services are being held there, though it has been necessary to move over from the tent to the Presbyterian church, some hundred or more yards away, for several services on account of the downpour. The preaching is being done by Rev. L. D. Thompson, of Statesville. The singing is led by his helper, Rev. Mr. Allen, of Granite Falls. Everything that can be done in the way of organized effort for the success of the meeting is being attempted. Last week cottage prayer meetings were held on different streets throughout the town.

Steele Creek—This congregation is looking forward to a series of evangelistic services to be held in their church beginning the first Sabbath in August and continuing for a week, with Rev. J. J. Hill, D.D., assisting the pastor. As a preliminary to these services on last Sabbath the pastor, Rev. J. W. Orr, preached a very earnest sermon on the need of a revival. He appealed to the people to be much in prayer for God's blessing on the services. At the close of the sermon Elder F. S. Neal, of Sugar Creek, by request, presented the cause of the Church and Manse Erection League of Mecklenburg Presbytery and subscriptions to the League were taken. G.

Mecklenburg Presbytery met in called session in the Charlotte First Church on Monday, July 21, 1919.

The Presbytery recommended that the Assembly's Home Mission Committee at Atlanta take over the Rocky River School for Boys at Aquadale, N. C., and run it, if the Home Mission Committee of Presbytery thinks it advisable.

The Committee on the Semi-Centennial Celebration of the organization of Presbytery presented a report and program. The mother Presbytery, Concord, and the two daughters, Asheville and Kings Mountain, are to take part in the celebration, which will be held Wednesday, September 17, 1919, during the fall meeting of Presbytery at Steele Creek Church. John E. Wool, S. C.

The First Presbyterian Church of Wilmington has recently been richly blessed in a meeting held by Rev. Frank E. Fincher, D.D., recently pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church of Houston, Texas, and now one of the evangelists of the General Assembly's Committee of Home Missions.

The preaching of Dr. Fincher was of a very high degree of excellence, strong, clear and scriptural. His methods were conservative and efficient.

The people of this church were very much delighted with his manner of conducting the meeting, as with his preaching.

There were 82 professions of faith old enough to unite with the church and several hundred reconsecration cards signed. As the result of the meeting there have been forty-five additions to the First Church, with others yet to join; besides additions to other churches.

The Assembly's Committee is indeed fortunate to secure Dr. Fincher as an Evangelist; and any church that can secure his services for a meeting is to be congratulated.

John M. Wells.

Britain—This old church has just experienced a season of great refreshing. Rev. Wm. Black, one of our Synodical evangelists, came here on July 5 and conducted an eight days meeting which brought us twenty-six additions on profession of faith and one other by restoration. A number of professions were made by persons with intention of uniting with neighboring churches.

Mrs. Rufus Williams, of Maxton, was present throughout the meeting and by her inspiring singing added greatly to the effect of the preaching. The organization and training of the local musical talent by Mrs. Williams added no little to the interest and benefit of the occasion.

All the officers of the church and several of the members and visitors took part in the prayer services. A hundred new "Life and Service" hymn books were purchased for the use of the church, and $65 contributed to Synodical Missions.

The total membership of the church is now one hundred and fifty-one. It is but just to say that some of this new growth and spiritual strength is due to the presence and influence of the Westminster School. J. L. B.

McKinnon, Concord—In several respects the meeting conducted here June 28 to July 6 by Dr. J. M. Clark was the best ever held at this church. The attendance, interest and results were satisfactory. The sermons were strong yet plain and practical. The methods used by Dr. Clark are very conservative yet effective in substantial results. I can most heartily endorse him as a safe, sane, and strong evangelist. Of the 26 conversions, 18 have already united with McKinnon and others will do so later. The greater part of these are children. These with the 20 children received in March make a total of increase in membership of the church in four months of 20 per cent from the children of the Sunday School. A notable incident of the meeting was the conversion of a family of mother, father and son from personal work of a lady. She was putting into practice a recent sermon of the pastor. On Sunday afternoon, July 6, ten children were dedicated to the Lord. Dr. Clark preached a very appropriate and effective sermon. The daily morning services were held at 8:30 o'clock, at which time the children formed the choir. On Sunday, July 6, the attendance on the celebration of the Lord's Supper was the largest in the history of the church, and only two or three people left the building. H. F. B., Pastor.

Oakland Church, Fayetteville Presbytery—On the night of the 26th of June the pastor of this good old church and his wife were taken by surprise by the arrival of a great part of the members and other friends at the manse. They came armed with full ice cream freezers and loaded cake plates, and for a while they were in full possession of the place. After a time spent in friendly conversation, and also tending to those ice cream freezers, the friends scattered to their home. Then the pastor and his wife turned back to the house to find the dining room crowded with good things for the table, good things for the car, good things for the house. This is but one of the many times that these people have shown their love for the Master's cause, and we appreciate it all as done for Him, and we take up the work with stronger hearts.

The work in the newer parts of this field has been helped greatly this summer by the faithful efforts of Mr. G. L. Cooper. Mr. Cooper came to us at the close of the Seminary in Richmond, and he has been in most of the homes of that part of the field. He has found the homes of the people close together, and he has made many friends as he has passed along.

On the night of the Fourth of July Dr. O. G. Jones, of the Synod's evangelistic force, began a meeting in this church. It was his first visit to us, and he found our people rushed with the last of the farm work in laying by their tools, but the news quickly spread that here was a man with a message. By Tuesday night we had moved out of the church into a tent, and every service from then on to the end of the meeting was attended by the best crowds we have ever had. Dr. Jones brought us a message that no one could misunderstand, and it was one that was tenderly and patiently presented. Six accepted Christ as their Saviour, and two of these united with this church. The last night of the meeting a collection of $58 was taken for Synod's work. The meeting closed too soon for us. It helped us to give ourselves more truly to the Master. M.

ALABAMA.

Mobile—Rev. Finley M. Grissett has accepted a call to Broad Street Presbyterian Church of Mobile. His address is 206 Spring Hill avenue.

Mobile—Rev. A. F. Fogartie has resigned as assistant to the pastor of the Government Street Church to accept a call to Belhaven, Miss. He will leave Mobile August 1.

GEORGIA.

Pryor Street, Atlanta—The Woman's Auxiliary has recently installed two large, handsome pedestal drinking fountains, which were impressively dedicated in the Sunday morning service, July 20.

Athens Presbytery—The constitutional requirements having been met, a special meeting of the Athens Presbytery was called by the Moderator, Ruling Elder R. L. J. Smith, to assemble in Commerce Church on Monday, July 21, "to examine, and if the way be clear, to license and ordain Candidate A. Hoyt Miller, and also to receive Rev. T. M. Stribling from the Presbytery, and if the way be clear, to arrange for his installation as pastor of Jefferson, Thyatira, Mizpah and Arcade Churches." In accordance with the call of the Moderator, this meeting convened and was opened with prayer by Rev. Jno. A. Simpson. Rev. S. J. Cartledge, Stated Clerk, called the roll. There was an unusually large attendance of ministers and ruling elders present.

Rev. A. Hoyt Miller passed a rigid examination upon all the theological and biblical subjects required and was unanimously sustained by the Presbytery, and he was regularly licensed and then ordained with "the laying on of hands" of ministers and ruling elders as a minister of the Gospel, "to preach the Word."

As a part of his examination, Mr. Miller was required to preach "a trial sermon," and took for his subject "Missions," and delivered one of the strongest sermons upon this subject that has ever been heard here. His sermon gave evidence not only of the thorough study and special preparation and prayer devoted to it, but also that the preacher's whole heart was filled with his subject. So profound an impression did his sermon create upon the heart of a layman of the Commerce church that this layman, through a friend, informed Mr. Miller that he would contribute the sum of fifty dollars per annum for the next five years towards his support in foreign fields, to which work Mr. Miller has decided to devote his life. Mr. Miller was married last week to Miss Merle Little, of near Commerce, Ga., and they will sail about the middle of August for Luebo, Congo Belgium, Africa, where they will labor together in carrying the Word to the heathen of that country.

Rev. T. M. Stribling then stood the usual examination upon the fundamentals of the Presbyterian Church, which examination was entirely satisfactory, and he was then received into the Athens Presbytery from the Presbytery of Cherokee and was given permission to "labor within the bounds" of this Presbytery until the next meeting of Presbytery in September, at which time arrangements will be made for his installation as pastor of the churches at Jefferson, Thyatira, Mizpah, and Arcade. After the business calling the Presbytery together had been transacted, the ladies of the Commerce Church provided a splendid "basket dinner" at the church, which was greatly enjoyed by all.

Commerce—A congregational meeting was held at the Presbyterian Church in this place last Sunday for the pur-

(Continued on Page 16)

SILENT PARTNERSHIP

In the Million Dollar Campaign For Christian Education

SYNOD OF NORTH CAROLINA

Let us create a great Corporation of Silent Partners---Mostly, Viz.:

- CHARTER: The Promises of Jesus to Answer Prayer.
- PURPOSE: To Arouse and Unite the Whole Synod on Christian Education.
- STOCKHOLDERS: The Head of the Church as the Principal---
A Great Host of Silent Ones Praying Daily.
- CAPITAL STOCK: What We Now Have---Plus a Million More---Then Some.

WILL YOU BECOME A STOCKHOLDER BY PRAYING?
THE APOSTLE PAUL IN THREE EPISTLES SAID SOMETHING LIKE THIS:
"HELPING TOGETHER BY PRAYER"

AIMS

- To help North Carolina Presbyterians, 50,000 strong, to appreciate the fundamental place of the Christian college in training effective Christian leaders.
- To visit practically every member in every church in the Synod of North Carolina; to discover and enlist many friends able to give largely; large numbers able to give in small sums; hosts willing to pray and work.
- To reach the minimum goal of One Million Dollars within the time limits.

PRAY

- That God may be honored in all the methods, efforts and spirit of the Campaign.
- That the money secured may be so given as to bless the givers as well as the colleges.
- That many young men and women may be inspired to enter one of these Christian colleges for better preparation for their life's work, and that through these colleges many may find God's plan for themselves.
- That the men directing the Campaign—the committee: Mr. A. M. Scales, of Greensboro, chairman; M. E. Melvin, the manager, and all the men who work in the field—may have God's blessing upon them and His direct leadership in this great effort; that they may be wise, patient, tactful and victorious—and helpful.
- That the Campaign may kindle many fires among the Presbyterians of North Carolina that shall light up the darkest parts of the earth.

PRAYER PLEDGE

Believing in the fundamental importance of Christian Education; and in the necessity of the Million Dollar Campaign for our Synod; with faith in God and the power of prayer, I pledge myself, or as near thereto as possible, for the duration of this effort.

Name _____
Address _____
City _____
(This pledge will be kept in confidence and not used publicly)

Will you not sign the attached pledge and mail to Headquarters? You can pray as well without signing it, but we can work better and harder if we know you are praying.

Campaign Headquarters
Presbyterian Schools
Greensboro, N. C.

Church News.

(Continued from Page 14)

pose of considering advisability of either building or buying a manse for the pastor of this church. At this meeting it was unanimously decided to provide the local pastor with a manse, and next it was decided to purchase the house now being built by Mr. W. Y. Harber, at the price offered by Mr. Harber, $6,000, Mr. Harber having reduced the price from $7,000 to $6,000, thereby, in effect, making a contribution of $1,000 himself to the church for this purpose. A voluntary subscription of thirty-eight hundred dollars was immediately made by those present at this meeting, and a committee was appointed to see the balance of the congregation and solicit sufficient funds with which to complete the $6,000 necessary to purchase this manse.

The house being built by Mr. W. Y. Harber is now rapidly nearing completion, and when finished will be one of the prettiest, most conveniently arranged and most modern equipped residences in Commerce, and the Presbyterians may feel proud of such, their ability to purchase and possess such a handsome home as a manse for their splendid pastor, Rev. John A. Simpson.

R. L. J. Smith.

LOUISIANA.

Slidell—The Slidell Church, near New Orleans, has called to its pastorate Rev. J. M. Williams, of Wesson and Crystal Springs, Miss., and it is announced in a secular paper that Mr. Williams has accepted the call. The Slidell Church was served many years, in connection with the Covington Church, by this beloved minister, and now that the church has reached the stage of taking charge of itself entirely and having a pastor for all its time, it turns to its former minister and unanimously calls him, offering him a full salary and a house.

New Orleans—The commission of New Orleans Presbytery, to which were referred the overtures of the Third and Esplanade Churches, the pastoral charge of Dr. Summey, for a merging of these two churches, has considered and acted on the case, directing the merging, to take place officially October 1, 1919. While the name Third Church will be continued, one is not received by the other but the two are simply consolidated, sessions, boards of deacons, pastor, and all being united in the one body just as they stand.

TENNESSEE.

Revival at Woodbury—Evangelist George Tucker, of Jackson, Tenn., has been holding a union meeting in the Presbyterian Church at Woodbury. Deep interest has been kindled, and certain ones desired to unite with the Presbyterian Church. As the church has no pastor at present, and as the writer did not have to preach Sabbath night at the union service in his city, he went over by the request of the session and had the joy of receiving ten into the church. There are some noble people in the above church, and it is hoped that soon arrangements will be consummated that they can have a pastor.

J. Addison Smith.

Murfreesboro, Tenn.

VIRGINIA.

Winchester—This church has just increased by $400 the salary of its pastor, Rev. J. Horace Lacy, D.D., thus bringing the salary up from $2,000 to $2,400 and manse.

Cor.

TOO LITTLE PRAYING,

If we had prayed more we need not have worked so hard. We have too little praying face to face with God every day. Looking back at the end I suspect there will be great grief from our sins of omission—omission to get from God what we might have got by praying.—Andrew A. Bonar.

Woman's Auxiliary

Conducted by Mrs. Jno. M. McIver, Gulf, N.

Rally Days for the Young People's Societies in Presbytery will be held at the following places: August 14; Fifth Creek, August 15; Bethpage, 16.

Sunday school superintendents and ministers are call attention to these meetings. All young people are to attend. Bring a picnic lunch. Program will 10:30 a. m.

Group No. 1, Hickory—Sherrill's Ford, Lenoganton, Bridgewater, Sevier, Newton, Beatz M. Quaker Meadow, Marion, Siloam, Waldensian, C. Glen Alpine, Clinchfield Mill, Old Fort.

Group No. 2, Fifth Creek—Franklin, Third Creekwood, Bethany, Concord (Iredell), New Salem, S. First, Unity, Cleveland, Mocksville, Tabor, Clio, ville, Statesville, Front Street, Cooleemee, Bethsakinville, Harmony, Stony Point, Shiloh, Barium Sp.

Group No. 3, Bethpage—Mooresville First, Baymorial, Thyatire, Davidson, Rocky River, Center, Chapel, Mooresville Second, Cannonville, Kannapolisbury First, Harrisburg, Gilwood, McKinnon, First, Patterson Mill, Back Creek, Salisbury Secular Tent, Prospect, Spencer.

E. P. Bradl

Chairman Y. Ps. W. Concord Pres

Mrs. A. D. Life

Presbyterial Auxiliary Sec'y. Y. Ps.

Report of Kanawha Presbyterial Auxiliary—The tenth annual meeting of Kanawha Presbyterial was held in the Bream Presbyterial Church at Clark W. Va., May 13, 14 and 15.

The opening address of Presbyterial was made by Leadingham, M. D., a returned medical missionary to Korea. His subject was Foreign Missions in general and Korea in particular.

The meeting was called to order on Wednesday morning by the president, Mrs. William E. Mohler, of Sta. W. Va. The devotional exercises were conducted by Katie Belle Abney, whose theme was the Missionary.

Miss Abney also gave a very convincing address on the Needs of West Virginia and What We Can Do to Help. She was in a position to know these things, as she has spent eleven weeks traveling over the State. All enjoyed her talk very much, and it made everyone feel a desire to wish to do their bit in this great work.

Mrs. Ernest Thompson, who is our president of the Synodical of West Virginia, gave the Presbyterial an excellent description of the new school at Madison, Boone County, West Virginia, and showed the plans of the building which is now under construction.

Mrs. Graham Campbell, of Huntington, W. Va., suggested some very excellent and comprehensive plans for furnishing this school. These plans were immediately adopted with enthusiasm.

A motion was made on the floor of Presbyterial to organize our Presbyterial which carried unanimously. A committee was then appointed consisting of the president of each organization, with Mrs. B. S. Preston, Mrs. Katie Belle Abney and Rev. S. M. Glasgow, who is chairman of the Woman's Work in Kanawha Presbytery, to formulate plans for this great undertaking.

The next morning Rev. S. M. Glasgow appeared before the Presbyterial with a report from the above mentioned committee which consisted of several very important plans and suggestions as to the method of proceeding in regard to the evangelization of Kanawha Presbyterial.

The Presbyterial enjoyed an excellent address given by Mrs. Graham Campbell, of Huntington, W. Va. Mrs. Campbell is a returned missionary, and has spent several years in Africa only one-half degree north of the equator.

Wednesday night Mr. Thomas B. Talbott, who is intendent of Home Missions in the Synod of Western Kentucky, gave a wonderful address on the mountain work in Kentucky. He brought out that those people will outstrip others if the opportunity is only given them, for they are very eager for knowledge.

Regrets were expressed that our Presbyterial did not meet in the fall when representatives from each society would go home full of plans and ready for real effective work instead of meeting in the spring when all closes up for summer, and enthusiasm dies.

The round table was on "How to Strengthen the Local Church" under the following heads:

(a) Circle Plan, Service Card; (b) Reading Contest; (c) Summer Conference; (d) Pageant; (e) Mission Study Classes; (f) Missions in the Sunday School.

The local auxiliary served a very elaborate luncheon on both days in the spacious and splendidly equipped basement dining room of the church.

Complete and very encouraging reports were given by all Presbyterial officers and also from the delegates from the individual societies.

Officers were elected for the ensuing year with Mrs. W. E. Mohler still our president.

The West Virginia Synodical will meet in Charleston, W. Va., next fall.

The Presbyterial then adjourned with Logan, W. Va., as the place of the meeting next April.

Mrs. Theodore B. Anderson,
Sec'y. Kanawha Presbyterial.

St. Albans, W. Va.

WOMAN'S SUMMER SCHOOL OF MISSIONS.

The sixth annual Woman's Summer School of Missions convened at Montreat, N. C., July 13, 1919. Dr. Egbert Smith delivered the opening address. Dr. Smith's messages are always strong and helpful; but on this occasion, coming as he does fresh from the foreign field where he spent eight months in intimate fellowship with the missionaries, he brought to us a burning message which stirred our hearts and fired our imagination. Much material advantage should come to the cause of Foreign Missions as a result of Dr. Smith's message.

Mrs. Winsborough opened the conference Monday morning by announcing the hymn, "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name," thus sounding the keynote of this conference: emphasis upon the spiritual in woman's work.

Daily Features.

Efficiency class, led by Mrs. Winsborough. Her clear, concise, and forceful way of presenting "Best Methods" should make every woman present a more efficient leader in the work of her society in her home church.

Mrs. W. J. Webster, of Front Royal, Va., was in charge of the Bible study hour. Her theme for the series of lessons was: "The Fundamentals" or "God's Salvation." She brought out strongly the fact that the Bible is one book. The new Testament infolded in the Old; the Old, unfolded in the New. The picture of Salvation in Exodus; the story in Romans—the same Salvation.

The vesper hour at 7:00 p. m. was led by Dr. H. F. Williams. This precious evening hour was spent in singing familiar hymns, and quietly waiting upon God to speak to us, rather than in much speaking. When our hearts were made tender and yielding they were more open to a sympathetic reception of the message always brought to us by some missionary. Mrs. Ross, of Mexico; Miss Emily Winn, of Korea; Dr. and Mrs. King, of Africa; Mrs. Reynolds, of Korea.

All spoke impressively in behalf of their work on the field. Saturday evening Mrs. H. F. Williams told in a way all her own something about the work in Brazil. Sunday evening Mr. Magill moved all hearts as he told of the heroic women missionaries of the Near East with whom he came in contact during his recent travels in the Orient.

The Home Mission study book, "In Black and White," was presented by the author, Mrs. L. H. Hammond, in two lessons and one evening's address. Mrs. Hammond, the wife of a Southern Methodist minister, herself a Southern woman, could bring an unprejudiced view of the negro problem. She plead for justice for the negro—God's negro, God's child and our black brother. She urged God's viewpoint—the long look—with whom a thousand years are but as a day. Mrs. Hammond is a philanthropist with rare sympathy.

Dr. Morris presented his new Home Mission study book, "Christianizing Christendom," in one review and one evening's address. It would seem an impossible task; but it was a masterful presentation of a veritable gem in Home Mission study. All who heard Dr. Morris will certainly look forward with eagerness to a closer study this fall of his book.

Mrs. Sydenstricker's illuminating presentation of Dr. Woodbridge's book, "Fifty Years in China," was quite interesting. She brought to us many possibilities of an attractive and effective presentation of the chapters to a study class. While the book in the main is a backward look at China there are many helps suggested that are prophetic of China's future.

A normal mission study class was conducted by Dr. H. H. Horn, of New York University. Dr. Horn used Diefendoffer's "Missionary Education" for the text-book. This was one of the very best features of the conference and most helpful.

A parliamentary law class was taught by Mrs. Chas. L. Shawhan and Mrs. A. G. Ward, of Mobile, Ala. The women manifested an eagerness to learn how to conduct meetings with order and dispatch, large numbers attending the classes.

Miss Helen Cook, of Danville, Va., delighted the children each evening at the story hour.

Special Features.

On Monday evening Mrs. Winsborough told in her inimitable way "What the Year Has Brought Us," and Mrs. Walton gave her impressive message, "Looking Forward."

Dr. E. M. Poteat, secretary of the Laymen's Movemest, New York City, delivered a moving address on "The Stewardship of Family Life." Personal emphasis was given to his message by the fact that he has two sons on the foreign field. Mrs. D. B. Cobbs, of Mobile, Ala.; Miss Mary Weddell, of Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Ross, missionary to Mexico; Mrs. King and Mrs. Motte Martin, of Africa, all gave interesting addresses.

Saturday evening was, as usual, given over to entertainment. Miss Carrie Lee Campbell, in "Four Reels," demonstrated some of the departmental work of our committees. Miss Campbell is very resourceful and clever; and has made herself so generally useful, that she has obtained the sobriquet of "Handy Man" on the ground.

Dr. Cannon, of St. Louis, delivered the sermon Sunday morning, which was a splendid climax to a splendid program. Dr. Cannon's subject was the two miracles of tongues. The one in Genesis, a miracle of judgment, the other in Acts, a miracle of grace.

He showed how confusion has always followed an attempt on man's part to make for himself a name in the earth; and that power and grace has come to those who exalt the name of God and seek to do His will. Too much praise cannot be accorded to the superintendent and chairman of the W. A. C. for bringing into one program so much to educate and inspire.

Mrs. Winston Lynes.

Fulton, Mo. (Montreat, N. C.)

Doing nothing for others is the undoing of ourselves. We must be purposely kind and generous or we miss the best part of existence. The heart that goes out of itself gets large and full. This is the great secret of the inner life. We do ourselves the most good by doing something for others.—Horace Mann.

"One of the Baltimore adult Bible classes has one thousand two hundred members. These modern classes are all organized and prove very helpful to the congregations to which they belong."

Marriages and

Marriages.
 chin—At the home of mouth, Va., July 16,
 Maxwell, of Savannah,
 Madie McEachin, Rev.
 ating.

On June 18, 1919,
 the bride's parents, near
 Mr. William Farrow
 na Williams, Rev. W. officiating.

land—At the manse,
 June 22, 1919, by Rev.
 rie, Mr. Richard Rouse
 ie Hiram Southerland,
 1 County, N. C.

At the home of Mrs.
 other of the bride, Rose uly 2, 1919, Mr. Rowland iss Cornelia Carr, Rev.
 urrie officiating.

Scott—On July 16, 1919, of the bride's mother, Rose by Rev. W. P. M. Currie, lderman and Miss Goldie
 f Rose Hill, N. C.

retired apparently in his us but before midnight his sp quickly and peacefully from t
 the morning dawn of earth and
 him in eternity.
 He was the son of the late Nancy Williams, and was born in lin County, N. C., and spent his life in the community where he the light. He was sixty-two years old, and is survived by five brothers, all of whom lived near by him, and he is said to their praise that no one of them ever forgot that he was brother to the others.

In the year 1881, Mr. Williams was happily married to Miss Ida Wells, who for thirty-eight years walked through life with him and who during that time proved herself a devoted, faithful and helpful companion. God blessed their union with one son, Dr. T. Graham Williams, who at the time of his father's death was serving his country in France, and only his devoted wife, Mrs.
 Amanda Williams, and his little son,
 T. Graham, Jr., were left at home to comfort, cheer and help the lonely and broken-hearted mother in her hour of darkness and sorrow.

In the year 1854, in the very prime and vigor of his young manhood, when life was full of hope and promise, the deceased chose that good part "which shall not be taken away from him," and consecrated his strong young life to the service of his Master, uniting with Oak Plains Presbyterian Church, of which he was the same year elected a deacon.
 As a member of the church, he endeavored daily to personify the religion which he professed, and as an officer he was faithful and devoted. As a man he was of a quiet disposition, retiring in his manner, entirely unassuming, never pushing himself forward into conspicuous places, yet of high ideals of right ual health, and of strong convictions, not carried it passed about by every wind of doctrine, but he scenes steady and true to what he believed to found be right and loyal to his conception of duty, and withal, he possessed a welland balanced judgment which caused others Dup- to frequently go to him for counsel and tire advice.

 aw

Mr. Williams loved his family and his home. The best interest of his house-as an object to which he devoted him-continually and affectionately. As a and father, he was thoughtful, betic, tender and loving. He church of which he was a con-ber and a faithful officer.
 and help will be missed by rs and by the congregawas seldom vacant at church.

sel husba sympath loved the sistent men.
 His presence
 his fellow office
 tion, for his seat
 the services of his c

The body of this band, faithful deacon,
 true friend, good neighbor, zen, humble Christian lies in city of the dead, nearby Oak Church. And the large concou.
 sad and sympathetic friends presen.
 his funeral and the beautiful floral ferings spread on his grave testified the esteem in which he was held.

The ways of God are past finding out, but we shall know by and by. We shall sit down in the Kingdom with those we have known and loved, and then wonder why we ever wept or complained while on the earth.

"It little matters at what hour of the day,
 The righteous fall asleep. Death can not come
 To him untimely, who has learned to say,
 The less of this brief life, the more of heaven."

Deaths.

MEMORIAM.

nothy Rhodes Williams.

ire community, about his greatly shocked when it was t Mr. Timothy Rhodes Wil-died suddenly at his home
 Hill, N. C., on the night of 1919. After a busy day on e returned to his home in the oon and after attending to ary duties about the home, he

Children's Department

LE CAT STILL ALIVE.

andard:
 te you a little letter about two o and you were kind enough to so I will try again. I am nine d now and go to school and school when there is any. My was Miss Thelma Giles and I er very much. She promoted me ourth grade. I still have the lit-that I told you of in my last let-also have a calf and ten little
 I haven't but one sister, so you ave to have something to play
 I have learned the Child's Cate-and recited last Sunday. With good wishes, your friend,
 N. C. Elsa Craig.

GENERAL JOFFRE.

Dear Standard:
 I am a little girl nine years old. I help my mother dry dishes. I go to the mountains every summer at Montreat, N. C. There is a big lake there, and I enjoy going in. Santa Claus brought me a bicycle Christmas, and I enjoy riding
 it. My Grandpapa and my uncle are coming this summer to see us. My other uncle who came back from the war brought me a small statue of Gen. Joffre. I enjoy reading the stories in the Standard. Our Junior Christian Endeavor has closed for the summer, and I miss it so much. I will close, as I want to surprise both of my Grandfathers and Grandmothers. Your friend, Harriette Garlington Todd.

 Laurens, S. C.

LIKES CROQUET.

Dear Standard:
 I am a boy ten years old. This is my first letter. I am in the fourth grade.
 My teacher's name is Miss Fitzgerald.
 My Sunday school teacher's name is Mrs. Sams.
 We have a croquet set. I love to play croquet. It is the best outdoor game with the exception of one which is baseball. My cousin Lily B. Parish and my grandmother are staying with us. I will close by asking a question: Does the U. S. want Mexico? From your unknown friend,
 Glenwood, N. C. Henry Goodwin.

little girl is Margerie Efrid, of s, N. C. She is only ten and rs old and is a member of the an Church. She has recited the Child's Catechism, the Catechism, the nineteenth,
rd, twenty-fourth and fiftym, ms, and the fifth, sixth and apters of Matthew, and the esus Lover of My Soul."
ie's record is one of which her very proud and he publishes it hope that it shall encourage follow the lead of this little suring up in their lives, while "Word of God which is able ee wise unto salvation."

Neill McInnis, Pastor.

REAL LIVE BABY.

and the Blue-Dress-Lady
g on the porch enjoying the sunshine. They had been ether a long time without be-pted at all—such a long time
t the Blue-Dress-Lady stop-n what she was saying to ask:
where are Nancy and Pollyey're in the garden playing Denton children. They are aland quiet when they can be his very moment there came am from the garden. After s weren't quiet any more.

e cries and sobs and yelps and f heavy blows. Mother and ress-Lady rushed around the on, dear! the new green grass ered with sawdust and pieces
l overturned doll furniture.
Mammy with a long stick g as fast as ever she could frisky puppies, and four tear-rls were weeping over a heap china heads and hands.

ry rushed into mother's out-
ms. "Oh, mummy, mumailed. "It's those horrid dogs nton's. You see we were dital. The dollies were all

Us four were nurses like ress-Lady. We had to go off Dentons' house for a conference. You know there's a tree of cherries just ripe there and we stayed longer than we meant, I s'pose. And when we got back, the dogs had torn everytning up just like this, and now we haven't any children any more."

Mother hugged Polly-Cary very tight in the comforting way she has, but the Blue-Dress-Lady said very loud, so she could be heard over the noise, "Girls, stop crying a minute. I want to ask you something. It's very hard having your dolls broken up like this; but now that they're gone, why don't you have a real live baby instead? Dolls are only sawdust, you know."

"Oh," said Polly-Cary, lifting her head from mother's shoulder.

"Oh, oh!" exclaimed May-may and Sister Denton, forgetting to sob.

"Where can we get a real live baby?"
asked Nancy.

"Come around to the porch and I'll tell you," said the Blue-Dress-Lady.

So they all piled into a porch hammock, the Blue-Dress-Lady in the middle, and she immediately opened her black bag and took out a photograph.
It was a very queer picture. There was a little girl about the size of Nancy maybe, but she had on a grown-up woman's dress, the kind Mammy used to wear on hot summer afternoons and which she called a "caliker wrapper."
This dress, which was much too big for the little girl, was wrapped all around her and dragged on the ground in the back. She had rags tied on her bare feet and she held in her arms a tiny baby, bundled in a potato sack. A boy and a girl, about four or five years old,
were standing beside the older girl.
They also wore the strangest clothes.

"That is the baby I thought you might like to have," said the Blue-
Dress-Lady, pointing to the picture.

"But why is it wrapped in that horrid rag, and why do they all look so queer?" asked May-may, not at all sure that she wished to be a mother to any such disreputable-looking child as that.

So then the Blue-Dress-Lady told them the story. The house where these poor little French children lived had been smashed in the night by a German shell. The mother and one little brother had been killed; the father had already been shot in the war; so Therese, the oldest, had collected the children and run with them. She didn't know where she was going—anywhere away from the Germans.

"I wish you could have seen them when they reached the town where I was staying," said the Blue-Dress-Lady.
"The Methodist minis'er found them first and he sent for me to see what I could do for them. They had walked a hundred miles, Therese carrying the baby all the way. They had had very little to eat, and were plastered with mud. Their clothes had given out and they were forced to get along with whatever they could find. The dress Therese has on in the picture was one that was thrown away by a fat old lady who was also running away from the Germans."

"And what did you do for them?"
asked Nancy, breathlessly.

"First I took them to my room and washed them and found good clothes for them and gave them all they could eat. They were a very different-looking set of children after that, I can tell you.
Then I sent Therese and her sister to Grenoble, the loveliest old country house, which the good people of your church have made into a home for just such unfortunate little girls as these; the brother was sent to another home, very much like this one, at Lyons. They are getting along beautifully. But the baby —poor little mite!—his stomach was so poisoned by the food that he had to eat on that runaway trip that he had to be sent to a hospital; we don't know what we're going to do with him when he gets well enough to leave the hospital.
He is too young to go where his brother is at Lyons, and there is nobody to love him. That is the reason I want you girls to be his mothers."

"Will he belong to us?" asked Polly-Cary, clapping her hands.

"If you will work for him."

"Oh, we will, we will!" cried Nancy.

"We'll take turns looking after him and first he'll sleep at our house and then at the Dentons' and"—

"Not too fast, dear," said the Blue-
Dress-Lady, taking Nancy's eager hand.
"Little Jacques will belong to you, but you can't have him here. He lives 3,000 miles away. When I said you must ork for him, I meant not taking care of him with your own hands, but providing money for his support. For $100 we can find a good home for him with a kind woman who will do everything in the world for him. But his real mothers are the people who earn or save enough money to buy him the food and clothes he needs so much. Now I wonder if you girls aren't big enough to adopt this little Jacques and be his mothers?"

"I've got some money," said Nancy,
"I'll get my bank."

There was a scampering of little feet and in a moment the contents of four banks jingled and tinkled into the Blue-Dress-Lady's lap.

"Just $10.75," she announced, after counting it carefully.

"Oh, dear!" said Polly-Cary, "that isn't near enough. Well, daddy gives me ten cents every Saturday night. I put five in Sunday school and I spend five on candy. I could always give the candy money."

Each of the other children thought she could make a similar contribution.
"Still," said Nancy, "twenty cents a week isn't much."

Just then Ned Denton sauntered up with his dogs. "What's the excitement?" he asked, seeing the bright heads hobbing over the pile of coin.

The little girls in their eagerness forgot to take him to task about his mischievous pets. Instead, they poured out the story of Baby Jacques, and exhibited the picture.

(Continued on Page 21)

Story and Incident

How Polly Carpeted the Church.

"MY, OH MY, how shabby the carpet is in our church!" sighed Grandmother Primrose.

"And there are no funds to buy a new one. It took a great deal of money to buy the Sunday school library," answered Mrs. Kirke, the minister's wife.

Polly Primrose, who was sitting on the steps watching a particularly wiry squirrel, in view of sketching him for a study in nature drawing, dropped her pencil in her lap and listened. The folks on the porch were discussing the old carpet that ran up the aisles and across the pulpit of the church.

"Seems as if it wouldn't piece together another spring cleaning. Year after year I've stretched and patched that blessed old carpet an' tried all sorts of reviving, but there's nothing will take out that faded look," declared grandmother.

"Wouldn't a bright, new carpet gladden the hearts of all of us," laughed Mrs. Kirke, "how long has the old carpet been down, Mrs. Primrose?"

"Let me see—twenty—twenty-odd years, I should say," reflected grandmother. "No wonder it's worn out and then to think the folks that have helped to wear it out. Some folks are far away from Hillsboro nowadays. There's Mazie Heath—she's a wonderful singing girl in New York. And Dan Burchell—he's sort of a millionaire out west. Just seems the other day he used to trot up the church aisle along with his grandpa."

"Didn't Dr. Huntley preach here, when he was a student?" questioned Mrs. Kirke, "you know he has a big, big city church with two or three missions connected with it."

"Yes, Hillsboro was Dr. Huntley's first church," agreed grandmother, "but there's folks here in town as helped to wear out the carpet, who never tread it nowadays. Take Captain Frost and Miss Hemans for instance."

Suddenly Polly leaned forward and snatched up her pencil; opening her scribbler she jotted down the names of Mazie Heath and those others, who had helped wear out the carpet. Polly had an idea. Suppose somebody wrote and told these folks about the carpet wearing out. Perhaps they would send some dollars to help buy a new carpet.

Suppose she—Polly Primrose—wrote the letters. Springing to her feet, she ran up the steps into the house to her desk. Opening her box of birthday writing paper with its blue monogram, she sat down to write. Several sheets of paper were spoiled before she had written a letter that suited her. Then with a sigh of satisfaction, she read it over:

"Hillsboro, March, 1918.

"Dear Miss Heath:—

Do you remember the days when you trod the aisle of the church at home? Perhaps you forget the carpet. I want to tell you now it's all worn and faded so bad, that the women can't piece it together any more. The folks all want a pretty, new carpet to put down at house-cleaning—I mean church-cleaning time. But there isn't any money to buy one. Perhaps if all the folks that helped wear out the old one, will give a few pennies, we could buy a new one. Would you like to help?

Your friend,
"Polly Primrose."

Polly did not finish writing her letters that afternoon and it took three afternoons to hunt up the addresses of folks out of town. Grandmother was easily coaxed into telling her of many other far-away people who had helped wear out the church carpet.

Two weeks after Polly had mailed her first batch of letters, she ran excitedly down the postoffice steps. Among grandfather's papers nestled two letters, addressed to her in strange handwriting. Half way home, Polly dropped down under the lilac hedge and opened the envelopes.

Out of the first there fluttered a long blue slip of paper and Polly's eyes snapped with excitement. "It is a check like grandfather carries to the bank and has changed for money. And it is marked five dollars," she exclaimed.

Opening the letter, she read it with glowing and rosy cheeks.

"Dear Little Polly Primrose:—

"I had almost forgotten that I ever did tread the aisle of the old home church. Your blessed letter made me think a lot about it. It's a long time since I walked up the aisle and I'm sorry. I'm so busy singing in concerts nowadays that I forget. But, Polly, I'm glad you wrote to mind me, and I'm going to the meeting house this very Sunday. I enclose a few pennies to help buy the new carpet. Your friend,
"Mazie Heath."

The second envelope proved even more startling. A green slip of paper marked "fifty dollars," dropped from the letter, which read:

"Dear Miss Polly:—

"You positively made me homesick. Indeed I do remember the old church carpet—green with white spider webs hanging over it, wasn't it? It's a long time since I walked the Hillsboro church aisle. But if all goes well, never fear I shall tread the new carpet. I enclose a few dollars to help buy it. Sincerely,
"Daniel Burchell."

"I never thought they would be sending me money!" gasped Polly, "I guess maybe I had better take it to the manse."

Scrambling to her feet, she ran up the street waving the envelopes at the astonished minister. In one, excited and less jumble, she poured out her story. But the minister understood and hugged the breath out of Polly.

"Polly Primrose, we are surely going to have a new carpet," she exclaimed joyfully.

"There are some folks like Captain Frost and Miss Hemans, who helped wear out the carpet and who do not tread up the church aisle nowadays. I'm going to see them and posed Polly.

"Run along," urged the minister.

There were more letters and more green and blue slips of paper in the mails of other days. But the one that Polly most came from Dr. Huntley—minister in the big city church.

"Dear Polly:—

"Your letter gladdened my heart, for I am proud that the church where I first preached, has worn out its carpet. Just think how many, many feet have trod the aisle of the church Sunday after Sunday to wear out the old carpet. God bless you and I trust the new carpet will also be worn by many feet of worshippers. Faithfully,
"Paul Huntley."

The early spring brought joy to the heart of Polly Primrose, for that meant an early cleaning. Never before had the women folks worked with such energy in putting the church into order. Then one bright spring Sabbath with Grandmother Primrose walked down the church aisle over the new carpet—a rich, soft brown, that harmonized with the stained woodwork.

With shining eyes Polly looked across the aisles. Captain Frost sat beside his grandfather. The minister's face was radiant with joy and as the congregation sang a hymn of thanksgiving, Polly drew a sharp breath and whispered within her heart of hearts, "I'm thankful for the new carpet and I'm thankful God has given me two weeks to walk up the church aisle. I don't mean ever to forget all the days of my life."—Blanche G. Robbins, in Aunt Sarah's

A ship might as well try to sail north with her bowsprit east with her foresale, and south with her mainmast. A man to go one way in conduct, and another way in character, and another way in destiny. What we are, and what we are to be, is what we are. —Van Dyke.

IR REAL LIVE BABY.

Continued from Page 19)

ood up very straight and gave istle. "I guess that kid ought ome fathers, too," he said, tell you what I'll do. I'll the fellows in my room at d we'll get to work and raise ey. Nancy, you're the oldest get after all your friends and n a little club together, and,
d was a big boy and had istory—"we'll call it the 'Jab,' and it'll be a funny thing
t manage among us to do prety our kid."
it turned out. Every month bin Club" meets, and usually brand-new set of pictures of ques to be admired; and the hich the pennies are multiply-club treasury, gives a very pect to the future of one ord in France.—M. Bones, in erald.

POULTRY EXPERT GIVES AWAY CHICK FOOD.

To introduce to the poultry raisers of this section a Chick Food that is nationally known, E. J. Reefer, the Poultry Expert, 3rd Floor Poultry Bldg., Kansas City, Mo., is giving away free a one dollar package of Chick Food absolutely free to every poultry raiser who agrees to tell his neighbor about it. This medicated Baby Chick Food is sold on an absolute guarantee to raise chicks for six weeks and it is backed by the National Reserve Bank of Kansas City. Send Mr. Reefer one dollar and he will not only send you one regular dollar size package of Chick Food, but he will include in the same shipment an extra package absolutely free, which means he will send you two regular full size dollar packages of this scientific medicated Baby Chick Food for only one dollar. And he will prepay all the charges on the first order. Considering that this product is guaranteed by the National Reserve Bank and that it keeps baby chicks for six weeks, every poultry raiser should certainly try this scientific medicated Baby Chick Food without further delay. It will pay you to write Mr. Reefer today.

Trials borne for Christ bring us to the heart of Christ.—Robertson Nicoll.

Aberdeen & Rockfish Railroad

Between Aberdeen and Fayetteville

Eastbound		Westbound
Daily Ex. Sunday	Mixed Pass.	Daily Ex. Sunday	Mixed Pass.
No. 22	No. 38	No. 41	No. 21
7 30 am	9 10 am	Lv. Aberdeen Ar.	6 41 pm 5 00 pm
ar 8 35 am	10 00 am	Rae ford	5 55 pm lv 3 50 pm
lv 2 10 pm	11 20 am	Ar. Fayetteville Lv.	4 50 pm ar 2 50 pm
4 00 pm			1 00 pm

WAGRAM BRANCH

Southbound		Northbound
Daily Ex. Sun.	Mixed	Daily Ex. Sun.	Mixed
No. 11		No. 12
Lv. 10 30 am		Rae ford	Ar. 12 40 pm
Ar. 11 15 am		Wagram	Lv. 12 00 noon

W. A. BLUE, General Supt., Aberdeen, N. C.

In Memory of

Quiet Hero of the Kentucky Hills

"The Loveland Memorial Presbyterian Church"

QUICKSAND, KENTUCKY

GREATER LOVE HATH NO MAN."

Mr. C. H. Loveland was the superintendent of extensive lumber operations, which formed the pride of the town of Quicksand, Breathitt county, Ky., three miles from Jackson. When the "flu" raged in fury through the hills Mr. Loveland was engaged in his ministry to the sick and dying, being at last stricken himself, and died, having literally given his life for his people. He had been a leader in the Sunday school, an elder in the Presbyterian church there, and his life and death were a testimony to the power of Christianity.

"MORE BLESSED TO GIVE"

To make a living and witnessing memorial for so heroic a spirit, the people of Quicksand want to build their church and name it in honor of him who gave his all in the hour of their need. Already they have provided the ground and $800 in money, and they rightly believe that those whom God has blessed will be glad to share in this beautiful tribute to Christian faithfulness and love. To finish the church and dedicate it free of debt will take $2,200 more.

"GO—PREACH THE GOSPEL."

The Presbytery of West Lexington has for its mountain slogan, "A church built, dedicated and paid for every year." Jackson, Shoulder Blade and Highland are the fruits of the last three years, and "The Loveland Memorial" is proposed as this year's task. If God has prospered you, does not this word come with a strong appeal that you may have a part in this noble effort? Would you like to feel that by your help the sacrifice by Mr. Loveland becomes a living, throbbing center of Christian influence in the mountains of Breathitt county?

You Will Be One to Help, in Any Amount, However Small, Send Your Offering to THOMAS B. TALBOT, Dept. of Home Missions, Box 24, Lexington, Kentucky

THE PARABLES OF SAFED THE SAGE.

The Parable of Him Who Was Put Out at First.

There came to me a friend, even a man of mine own age. And he abode with me certain days. And I said unto him, Thou hast gray hairs, and thou art in danger of growing old.

And he said, Thou hast more gray hairs than I.

And I said, Yea; for I have not so large a bald spot.

And he said, Mine head is not bald upon the inside.

And I said, Lest we grow old, let us go to a ball game. For there is a great game scheduled for this afternoon.

And it came to pass at the ninth inning that the score was tied. And two men were on bases, and none out.

Then came a man to the bat, and he let the ball go by. And the umpire said in a loud voice, strike one.

And my friend said, That was not fair. He struck not at it.

And I said unto him, Thou art an old fogey. As they play the game now, the umpire doth call strikes on a man for

HENS MOULT FAST.

E. J. Reefer, the poultry expert, has discovered a scientific product that hastens the moult and revitalizes the organs of the hen and puts her in fine laying condition. The tonic is called "More Eggs" and a package of it is enough to carry the ordinary chicken raiser over the entire moulting season. First to lay is first to pay. "Since using 'More Eggs' I get forty to fifty eggs a day, instead of eight or nine," writes A. P. Woodward, of St. Cloud, Fla. A million dollar bank guarantees that you can have your money back if you want it. So, you don't take any risk. Send $1.00 for a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic. If you want to hurry the moult and get more eggs, act at once; it means more profit for you. Don't wait, but order today. Send $1 today to E. J. Reefer, 4th Floor, Poultry Bldg., Kansas City, Missouri. Or ask Mr. Reefer for his valuable poultry book free, that tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry.

"THE VALLEY OF VISION."

Henry Van Dyke.

Varied stories dealing with human love and faith, with dreams and realities, with things that will last now that the war is ended but not forgotten. One of the longest is a vision of three unknown days in the life of Jesus of Nazareth. It belongs with "The Story of the Other Wise Man," which has gone around the world.

PRICE $1.50, Net.

— Order from —

PRESBYTERIAN COMMITTEE OF PUBLICATION
Richmond, Va. Texarkana, Ark.-Tex.

CATAWBA COLLEGE

An old, time-honored institution located in the Piedmont section of North Carolina, founded in 1851. The following courses are offered: Classical, modern Language and Science with degrees of A. B. and B. S.; Music, Expression, Art and Business. Trained specialists in each department who take personal interest in your boy and girl. Christian influences, climate. Modern conveniences. Moderate cost. For catalogue and book of views, address

A. D. WOFFINGER, D. D., President, NEWTON, N. C.

GROVE INSTITUTE

(Formerly James Sprunt Institute)

KENANSVILLE

NORTH CAROLINA

A Preparatory School for Girls. High Grade, Thoroughly Christian. Very Moderate. Students receive Close, Personal Attention in a Home-Like Atmosphere.

NEXT SESSION BEGINS SEPTEMBER 10th.

For Catalog and Particulars, address REV. W. F. HOLLINGSWORTH, F.

Chicora College for Women

THE PRESBYTERIAN COLLEGE OF SOUTH CAROLINA

A Standard College of Distinction and Character

Religion and Philosophy Letters and Science
Home Economics The Fine Arts
(Music, Art and Expression)

For Catalogue and Information, address

Pres. S. C. BYRD, D.D., Columbia, S. C.

Another Big Shipment of Popular Rustic Hickory Furniture

Just In

This most popular style rocker---No. 23---is only $6.10, freight prepaid to any point in North or South Carolina.

Write for catalogue for our complete line of Rustic Hickory Furniture.

W. T. McCoy & Co.
Charlotte, N. C.

THE HOME OF GOOD FURNITURE

stages in the f-supportin and Ba ents wh uipmer
nt, Gr

July 30, 1919.

PRESBYTERIAN STAND

the balls he ought to strike at, even if he striketh not at them.

And again the ball went by, and the umpire spake in a loud voice and said, strike twb.

And a third time the ball came over the plate, and he struck it lightly, so that the shortstop got it, and put it to first, so that he was put out.

And my friend said, Verily, that was a shame. For he might have struck earlier and harder and had won his base.

And I said, O thou venerable old mossback, thy knowledge of this great game is hoary with antiquity, and goeth back to the days when a ticket and a ketch was sure to fetch and over the fence was out. Didst thou not see, neither consider that in the final innings and with a tied score, it was more important to get the men who were on the bases nearer home than it would have been to get another man on first base? Didst thou not see that while the umpire was calling strikes, the man on second stole to third, and the man on first made a quick getaway and slid to second? And dost thou not remem-

SAVE MONEY ON YOUR PIANO

The Management of the Standard Piano Club estimates that the Club has saved its members approximately one hundred thousand dollars during the past five years; has given each member "perfect satisfaction" as to the quality and durability of the instrument selected, and has provided convenient terms of payment to all.

The Club announces the beginning of a new year and every reader of this paper who is interested in high-grade pianos and player pianos, or in good rebuilt instruments is cordially invited to write for catalogues and full explanation of the money saving and protective features of the Club.

By placing your order through the Club, with the orders of ninety-nine other members, you obtain the very lowest price at which a thoroughly satisfactory instrument can possibly be marketed when shipped from the Factory to your home. You have a wide variety of the newest and most attractive styles and makes from which to make your selection. Your instrument is guaranteed by one of the oldest, largest and most reputable piano houses in America. The plan of payment is so easy and fair that everyone who has looked into it is surprised at its liberality and delighted with its practical operation.

If you have hesitated to provide a good piano or player piano for your home, church or school, investigate the Club, which makes piano-playing so economical, safe and convenient that almost anyone can gratify their wish for a thoroughly good instrument. Write for your copy of the beautifully illustrated catalogues and booklet containing letters of enthusiastic endorsements from Club members. Address Ludden & Bates, Managers, Standard Piano Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga.

NORTH CAROLINA

Offers thorough instruction and excellent advantage of courses fitting themselves to become several degrees of Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science, graduated last year, 1299. Free tuition to those students of North Carolina after leaving the college. Excellent equipment and other information, address J. I. FOUST, President.

LINWOOD

Established 1883. Offers exceptional education for men and women. Located at foot of beautiful Crowder Piedmont section. Water supply from the famous Crowder Reservoir. Healthful record unsurpassed. Able to lead to degrees of A. B., B. L., and B. S. Modest finances. Board and tuition, $175 per year. Next session, 1919. For catalog address REV. A. T. LINDSAY

THE School for You

Nothing is so effective in the training of the youth—in guarding his moral character as a military training. All young men should begin with a military training. BLACKSTONE MILITARY ACADEMY is conducive of culture, refinement, thorough literary foundation and a gentlemanly character. Thorough academic, preparatory and commercial courses. Excellently equipped modern gymnasium, infirmary and 40 new rooms now under construction. Two U. S. Army officers in charge of the B. O. T. C. Trained nurse in charge of infirmary. For literature, write, COL. E. S. LIGON, President, Blackstone Military Academy, Box R, Blackstone, Va.

COLUMBIA COLLEGE

COLUMBIA, S. C.

A College for Women ranked in Class "A" by Board of Education, M. E. Church, South. Recognized for its high type of Christian culture. Unusually complete educational facilities, strong university-trained faculty, thorough equipment, ideal location. Handsome fire-proof buildings, elegantly fitted with every convenience for health, comfort and safety. Beautiful 20-acre campus, affording ample opportunity for outdoor games. Library of upwards of 5,000 volumes in large, well-lighted quarters. Fine collection of magazines. Thorough courses leading to degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Science. Conservatory of Music under direction of skilled instructors. Thorough courses in Art, Expression, Business, and Home Economics. 1919 session begins September 17th. For descriptive catalogue, address

G. T. PUGH, Ph. D., President, Columbia, S. C.

MEDICAL COLLEGE OF THE STATE OF SOUTH CAROLINA

Schools of Medicine and Pharmacy
Owned and Controlled by the State
RATED IN CLASS A by the American Medical Association. Registered by the New York State Board of Regents, member of the Association of American Medical Colleges. Member of the American Conference of Pharmaceutical Faculties.
New Building With Well Equipped Laboratories. A full corps of efficient all-time teachers. Located opposite the Roper Hospital and very near the Charleston Museum, thus affording the students more extensive opportunities for research and training.
Requirements For Admission to the Medical School are certificate from a four-year high school which requires not less than 14 units for graduation, and two years of college work. The college work must include physics, biology, chemistry.

Women Admitted on the same terms as men. Session opens Sept. 26, 1919. For Catalogue, address, H. GRADY CALLISON, Registrar, Charleston, S. C.

ber that there is only one man out, and there are two good chances of getting a man over the home plate and winning the game?

Now, when the game was over, and that side had won, behold, the players came by the bleachers where we were; and I spake to them, and they stopped and spake courteously unto me. For some of them knew me.

And I said, It was good work, boys.

And they said, It was Billy that did it. He is the bully boy. He won the game by his sacrifice hit.

And I said, Say that word again, and tell me once more the name of it.

And they said, When a man hath a chance to make a grandstand play for his own advantage, but chooseth rather to suffer defeat that he may help his team, we call it a sacrifice hit. Yea, and we love the fellow that hath the sand to do it.

And I said, Boys, ye have chosen a good name. Listen, for I would speak unto you. There was a time when the great game between good and evil was pretty nearly tied, and the Lord Jesus Christ came to the bat. And men looked for Him to make a great strike, and a quick trip around the bases, and an easy home run. But He made a sacrifice hit, and was put out at first, that so His side might win the game.

And I said, Boys, when ye crown the victors who have won in the great game of life by losing their own advantage for the good of the game, remember that it is for that sake that God hath highly exalted Him, and given Him the name that is above every name.

And the boys said, Thank you, sir; we will remember.

And I rather think that they will.—
Congregationalist and Advance.

Lesser things will drop out as the hand closes upon the larger duty or the greater blessing, just as the hand that reaches out to grasp the great strong oak lets go the blade of grass it had gathered.—Phillips Brooks.

MONTREAT LOT FOR SALE—

Beautiful situation near postoffice. For particulars, address W. F. Hollingsworth, Kenansville, N. C.

Individual Cups

Every church should use. Clean and sanitary. Send for catalog and special offer. Trial free.

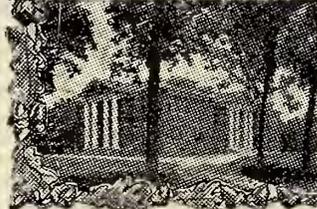

Thomas Communion Service Co. Box 310 Lima, Ohio

OAK RIDGE INSTITUTE

OAK RIDGE, N. C.

T. E. WHITAKER, PRESIDENT

An old-fashioned Southern school dating from 1852. In its long history it has enrolled thousands from the Carolinas and adjoining states. Preparation that opens the way to bigger accomplishments in college, business, and life. 250 acres in campus, athletic grounds, orchards and farms. Modern school buildings. Steam heat and showers. Library. Military training. Healthful, accessible location near Greensboro. More than a thousand feet above sea level. Sane, moral influences.

Courses thoroughly covering literature, science, teaching, bookkeeping, shorthand and music. Athletics encouraged. All male teachers. Discipline mild but firm. Costs reasonable, $350 for the year. Fall session opens September 9, 1919. Write for illustrated catalogue. Address

Oak Ridge Institute,
Oak Ridge, N. C.

North Carolina State College of Agriculture and Engineering
WEST RALEIGH

A Land Grant College founded under an act of Congress by the State Legislature of North Carolina in March, 1887. Splendidly equipped for the education of the sons of the State in the technical and industrial arts.

Four year courses in Agriculture, in Agricultural Chemistry, and in Civil, Electrical, Mechanical, Chemical and Textile Engineering. New departments in Agricultural Engineering and Highway Engineering.

Numerous short courses.

Unit of Reserve Officers Training Corps. Seniors and Juniors receive pay amounting to $118 annually. All students receive free uniforms amounting in four years to $164.

Strong athletic teams.

$40,000 Y. M. C. A. building. Regular paid secretary.

Two hundred and forty free scholarships.

Requirement for admission: eleven units—practically equivalent to the completion of tenth grade work.

Board $16.00 per month. Tuition $45.00 per year. Room rent, heat and light $30.00 per year.

Enrollment last session 1,020, exclusive of all summer students.

Fall term begins September 3.

For catalogue, illustrated circular or entrance blanks, write

E. B. OWEN, Registrar

PEACE INSTITUTE, Raleigh, N. C.

For Young Women

Established 1857

- I College Courses.
 - II Courses preparatory to Standard Colleges.
 - III Four years Preparatory School.
- Special diplomas awarded in Piano, Voice, Art, Expression and Home Economics. Secretarial and Commercial Courses.

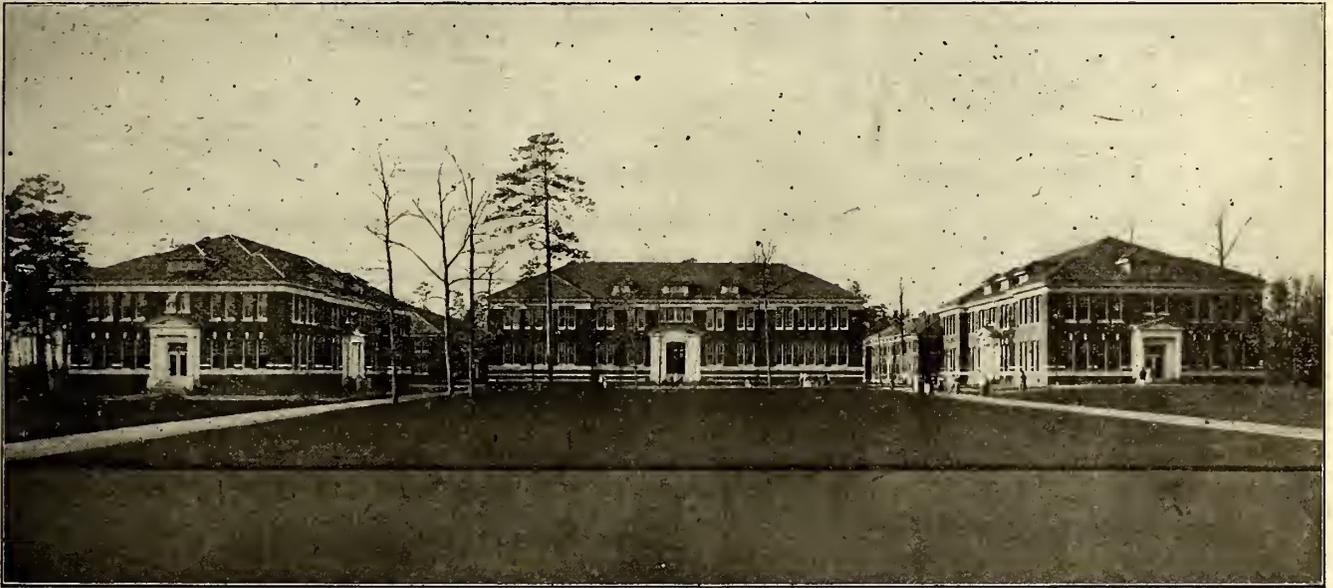

LULA B. WYNNE HALL,
Home School for Girls

Situation: Location in capital city gives special opportunities. Delightful social advantages. Climate permits out-door life all Winter.
Athletics: Supervised indoors and outdoors by Athletic Director. Special attention individual development. Cheerful home-like surroundings. A good school that students really enjoy attending. For room reservation, catalogue or further information, write at once to

Miss Mary Owen Graham, Pres.

Queens College for Women

Charlotte, North Carolina

Established More Than Sixty Years Ago as "Charlotte Female Institute"

It is Now Recognized as the Best Equipped College for Women in the Entire South

We have five new two-story brick buildings with modern fire extinguishers, designed and erected solely for convenience, comfort, efficiency and safety. These buildings are located in the beautiful suburb of Myers Park, three and one-half miles from the center of the city.

We have a splendid wooded campus of 25 acres.

15 units required for entrance. Graduates from recognized State High Schools admitted on certificate.

This College is built on a firm belief in the inspiration of the Bible. Thorough Bible courses provided.

Standard college course leading to B. A. degree. Most complete equipment for thorough education.

Physical, Chemical and Biological Laboratories; Library, Gymnasium, Preparatory department. Able faculty. Dormitories divided into units of two rooms and connecting with bath, accommodating four students. Large, well-ventilated rooms, big closets. Buildings as near fire-proof as possible. Water, gas, electricity. Convenient street car service.

School of Music, Expression and Art offers superior opportunities. Music building has twenty-six rooms equipped exclusively for this department. Complete, thorough course leading to diploma. Post graduate course in music offered.

Our Motto: "Christian Women for Christian Homes"

Necessary expenses very moderate, about $325.00 for the regular literary course, including board. FALL TERM begins September 10, 1919.

For further information send for catalogue or write

WM. ANDERSON, Registrar, Box 300, Charlotte, N. C.

ARGENTINA FIRST TO RATIFY THE LEAGUE.

Entrance of Argentina into the League of Nations without reservations has been approved by the Argentina Senate, the State Department was informed in dispatches quoting Buenos Ayres newspapers. The approval was by a unanimous vote. The action of the Argentina Senate, according to information at the State Department, made that republic the first nation to assent through its treaty-ratifying body to the League of Nations covenant.—Presbyterian Banner.

"In the A. E. F. With an Artist"

The sketch book and diary of Lieut. J. B. Mallard. Send $1.00 for your copy to

J. B. MALLARD

Box 625

CHARLOTTE, N. C.

SONG BOOKS Send 35c. for a copy of "RESURRECTED SONGS," or 50c. for "VAUGHAN'S REVIVAL" R.S. Contains a greater number of old hymns, and a less number of the revival songs, while V. R. has a greater number of new, live gospel songs, and a less number of the old hymns.

JOHN B. VAUGHAN MUSIC CO.

Mrs. Vaughan, Mgr.

ATHENS, GA.

Cancer Treated Successfully at the Kellam Hospital

The record of Kellam Hospital is without parallel in history, having restored, without the use of the Knife, Acids, X-Ray or Radium, over ninety per cent. of the many hundreds of sufferers from cancer which it has treated during the past twenty-two years. We want every man and woman in the United States to know what we are doing.

KELLAM HOSPITAL, 1617 W. Main St., Richmond, Va.

The Cumberland General Hospital, of Fayetteville

N. C., offers to young ladies between the ages of eighteen and thirty-five the following courses of training for nurses: Three years practical and theoretical work which prepares for State Board Examinations. Fall classes being formed now. Apply at once to Supt. of Nurses.

MARY BALDWIN SEMINARY For Young Ladies

Established 1842. Term begins Sept. 12th. In the beautiful and historic Shenandoah Valley of Virginia. Unsurpassed climate, modern equipment. Students from 31 states. Courses: Collegiate, 3 years; Preparatory, 4 years. Music, Art and Domestic Science. Catalog. STAUNTON, VIRGINIA

EXPERT KODAK FINISHING

Developing and printing done by artists. Most beautiful work guaranteed at all times. Satisfaction or no charge. Developing, 10c. per film. Printing: 2 1/4 x 3 1/4, 3c.; 2 1/4 x 4 1/4, 4c.; 3 1/4 x 5 1/2, 5c. Quick delivery. Send one film to test our service.

Ligon Drug Co., Spartanburg, S. C.

Horner Military School

A distinctive Christian school, embodying high ideals. Has 68 years of enviable record to its credit, and is still moulding boys into men fitted to take up the duties of life.

Next session promises to be one of the best in its history. Parents desiring a good, safe school for their boys should write Col. J. C. Horner at once for catalogue giving the courses, price and advantages of the school. Enroll early. Address

Horner Military School

No. 5 Selwyn Ave. Charlotte, N. C.

COLUMBIA THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY COLUMBIA, S. C.

THORNTON WHALING, D.D., LL.D., President of the Seminary

Professor of Didactic and Polemic Theology

WILLIAM M. MCPHEETERS, D.D., LL.D.

Professor of Old Testament Literature and Exegesis

HENRY ALEXANDER WHITE, Ph.D., D.D., LL.D.

Professor of Ecclesiastical History and Church Polity

RICHARD C. REED, D.D., LL.D.

Professor of the English Bible and Homiletics

EDGAR D. KERR, A.B., B.D.

Instructor in Hebrew and Greek Languages

GEORGE S. FULBRIGHT, A.B.

Instructor in Elocution

WILLIAM M. MILLS, A.B., D.D.

Instructor in Rural Sociology

J. O. REAVIS, D.D., LL.D.

Professor of English Bible, Pastoral Theology and Missions

Our most progressive Theological Seminary, grown from twenty-four to sixty four students in seven years. Full curriculum and special courses in Pedagogy, Sunday School Organization, Missions, Evangelisms, Rural Sociology and Elocution. Scholarships for prepared students. For further information, write to THORNTON WHALING, President.

PRESBYTERIAN COLLEGE of South Carolina

One of the most modern and best equipped colleges for men under the control of the Presbyterian Church. Beautiful buildings, strong faculty, high standard of work, broad course, attractive student body, best moral influences, Reserve Officers' Training Corps and strong athletic team.

For Catalogue and information apply to

President Davison M. Douglas, Clinton, S. C.

1693 Historic in Association;
Modern in Equipment; 1919
Progressive in Spirit;

William and Mary offers every advantage of a modern, liberal education in a cultured and historic community. Chartered by King William and Queen Mary, developed by such officials as Jefferson, Washington and John Tyler, it has for 226 years served the cause of American education. It educated John Marshall, James Monroe, Winfield Scott, George Wythe, Peyton Randolph, Jefferson and Tyler; its recent students are leaders in Virginia today.

Full Collegiate courses leading to the A. B., B. S., and M. A. degrees. Large, efficient faculty. High entrance and academic standards. Excellent laboratory facilities for the study of the natural sciences, drawing and manual arts. 12 buildings with modern equipment; heating and power plant; large shaded campus; 25 acre athletic grounds.

The College of William and Mary is the Teachers' College of Virginia; special two-year course, based on high school graduation, for the teachers' diploma. 132 scholarships for men and women training to be teachers. Free tuition to ministerial students. Special pre-medical course. Pre-electrical and chemical engineering. Courses in business administration and commerce. Courses for commercial teachers. All courses open to men and women.

The honor-system of student government had its origin at William and Mary. Pure religious and social surroundings; student life free from harmful and costly habits; low expenses made possible through state aid and situation in an inexpensive community.

THE COLLEGE OF WILLIAM AND MARY

J. A. C. CHANDLER,
President.

For catalogue and information, address,
THE PRESIDENT, College of William and Mary, Williamsburg, Va.

DAVIDSON COLLEGE

"The greatest single institution, in point of service,
controlled by the Southern Presbyterian Church."

THORNTON WHALING, President
Columbia Theological Seminary.

COURSES OF STUDY: Literary, Scientific, Classical, preparing for ministry, medicine, law, engineering, business, teaching. Faculty experienced and University trained.

COLLEGE SPIRIT: The boys work in season and out for a "Bigger and Better Davidson." The typical Davidson student, or alumnus, is loyal, enthusiastic, and successful in whatever he undertakes.

Y. M. C. A. SECRETARY will be continued next year. Rev. R. W. Miles, General Secretary, will be a big factor in the boys' college life.

LITERARY SOCIETIES at Davidson have a rightful place on the campus. Davidson has contested 20 intercollegiate debates and has won 14, or 70 per cent. The student gets a fine parliamentary training.

IN ATHLETICS Davidson has football, baseball, tennis, track, golf, outdoor gymnasium, large new gymnasium, R. O. T. C.

MUSICAL TALENT has expression and development through the Glee Club and Orchestra, an enthusiastic organization that furnishes music for public functions at the college, and gives concerts each year in other towns and colleges.

Students find the climate bracing and beneficial, and the social atmosphere friendly and congenial.

EXPENSES Exceptionally Reasonable.

OLD STUDENTS have registered for next year from the following states: North Carolina, South Carolina, Florida, Mississippi, Maryland, Alabama, Tennessee, Texas, Arkansas, Virginia, Georgia, W. Va., D. C., La., China and Japan.

NEW STUDENTS from the following states: N. C., S. C., Ga., Fla., Tex., Va., W. Va., Tenn., Miss., Ala., Mo., D. C.

REGISTER EARLY---MAKE SURE OF ROOM

PICTURE FOLDERS and other literature will be sent immediately upon receipt of your request.

DAVIDSON COLLEGE

Davidson : North Carolina

HENS MOULT FAST.

E. J. Reefer, the poultry expert, has discovered a scientific product that hastens the moult and revitalizes the organs of the hen and puts her in fine laying condition. The tonic is called "More Eggs" and a package of it is enough to carry the ordinary chicken raiser over the entire moulting season. First to lay is first to pay. "Since using 'More Eggs' I get forty to fifty eggs a day, instead of eight or nine," writes A. P. Woodward, of St. Cloud, Fla. A million dollar bank guarantees that you can have your money back if you want it. So, you don't take any risk. Send $1.00 for a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic. If you want to hurry the moult and get more eggs, act at once; it means more profit for you. Don't wait, but order today. Send $1 today to E. J. Reefer, 4th Floor, Poultry Bldg., Kansas City, Missouri. Or ask Mr. Reefer for his valuable poultry book free, that tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry.

In the economy of God, no effort, however small, put forth for a right cause, fails of its effect.—Whittier.

YOUR FACE?

Is the Complexion Muddy, Tanned, Freckled? If troubled with skin eruptions, sunburn, pimples, try

PALMER'S SKIN-SUCCESS SOAP

It cleanses, softens and clears the skin and tends to remove sunburn, tan, freckles, blackheads, pimples and eczema. Thoroughly antiseptic. Ask your druggist, or write for free samples to

THE MORGAN DRUG CO.,
1521 Atlantic Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Roanoke College

SALEM, VA.

- Location Situated in the Roanoke Valley, noted for healthful climate and grandeur of mountain scenery.
 - Rank A STANDARD AMERICAN COLLEGE FOR MEN. Its degrees recognized everywhere.
 - Curriculum Courses arranged in groups for A. B. and B. S. degrees, preparing for life and looking to professional training.
 - Facilities A very superior faculty, library of 25,000 volumes, eight buildings, and working laboratories.
- Roanoke is devoted to Christian education for service of Church and State.
- Sixty-seventh session opens September 17.
For catalogue and all information, address
DR. J. A. MOREHEAD, President

Medical College of Virginia

(State Institution—Co-Educational)
STUART MCGUIRE, M.D., LL.D., Pres.

MEDICINE DENTISTRY
PHARMACY NURSING

New buildings, completely equipped. Laboratories under full time instructors. Unusual clinical facilities offered in three hospitals owned by the college, also in city hospitals and institutions.

81st session begins September 17, 1919.
For catalogue, address

J. R. McCAULEY, Secretary
1121 East Clay Street RICHMOND, VA.

THE CITADEL Founded 1842. Charleston, S. C. "Distinguished Military College," rated by War Department.

Full courses in engineering, sciences and languages, leading to B. S. and C. E. degrees.

"It is so superior in all its methods it must be classed alone."—Report of War Department.

For catalogue address
COL. O. J. BOND,
Charleston, S. C.

14 High Units required for admission. Limited enrollment makes early application necessary.

Grind Your Corn the Simple Way

Delicate, Complicated Machinery is neither necessary nor economical. Save money in grinding your grain with—

The Gibbes Corn Mill

Simple—Fast—Economic—Durable

No complicated parts, whole machine easily handled. With ball-bearing system it is light running and rapid, requiring very little power. Little wear, smooth running, seldom a part to replace. Made of the best of materials. Absolutely guaranteed. For illustrated literature and prices address—

GIBBES MACHINERY CO., Dept. A-2, Columbia, S. C.

SAUER'S

FRUIT-PUNCH

FLAVOR

TRADE MARK

Something you have been looking for
A New Temperance Beverage and a New Flavor

ALWAYS ready for any occasion as a beverage, served with plain or carbonated water. A base for fruit punches, blends with any fruit or can be combined with Sauer's Pure Strawberry, Raspberry or Pineapple Flavors for sherbets, water ices, milk shakes, etc.

A Flavor which is adaptable for any use.

A 35c bottle makes 35 glasses of punch. For sale by all good grocers. If you cannot get it at your grocers, send us 10c together with the name of your grocer, and we will send you a sample bottle—enough for a pint of syrup, to make 10 glasses, also will send recipe booklet.

QUALITY HAS MADE SAUER'S THE Largest Selling Brand in the U. S.

Quality Has Won for Sauer's Seventeen Highest Awards for Purity, Strength and Fine Flavor

Including four conferred at expositions held in countries now allied with us. Manufacturers of 32 other flavors, including Vanilla, Lemon and Spice Flavors.

The C. F. SAUER COMPANY

J. F. Sauer President
RICHMOND, VIRGINIA

NEW SONG BOOKS

For Your Church

8c

A wonderful value; 83 familiar songs of the Gospel, words and music. Used all over the world. Only $3 per hundred for No. 1 or 2, round or shaped notes, and $13 for No. 1 and 2 combined, round notes only. Send 30c for samples. Money back if not pleased.

E. A. K. HACKETT, Dept. No. 56, FT. WAYNE, IND.

DR. J. M. BELK, MONROE, N. C.

W. H. BELK, CHARLOTTE, N. C.

Belk Bros. Dept. Stores

CHARLOTTE, NORTH CAROLINA

19 STORES

Send us your orders for Bibles, Testaments, Confession of Faith, or Book of Church Order, for quick delivery. 10 percent discount for Sunday Schools, Societies, or Churches, Preachers or Teachers—and in dozens we will give you wholesale price.

WHY NOT HAVE A BIBLE OR TESTAMENT IN EVERY SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLAR'S HANDS EVERY SUNDAY? WE WILL HELP DO THIS. WRITE TO US FOR THE PLAN. NELSON'S BIBLES

Personal Instruction

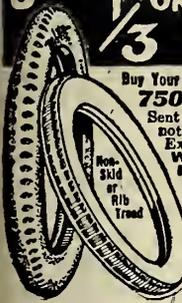

is the prime secret of a thorough education. An excellent standard and high curriculum maintained for one hundred and thirty-four years and an intentionally limited enrollment insure a most thorough-going literary training at the

COLLEGE OF CHARLESTON

Excellent equipment. Climate unsurpassed. Expenses moderate. CO-EDUCATIONAL. For catalogue and illustrated booklet address Harrison Randolph, Pres., Charleston, S. C.

Save 1/3 ON TIRES

Buy Your Tires at DEALERS COST PRICES
7500-Mile Guarantee!
Sent Free for inspection. It costs you nothing. Express charges prepaid. Examine them before you pay. Write us about our PUNCTURE PROOF TUBES Absolutely Guaranteed for 6000 Miles or a New Tube FREE.
A Revelation of Quality. Our low prices will astonish you.
PIONEER TIRE and RUBBER CO.
61. Traders Bldg., Kansas City, Mo.

A Southern Presbyterian University, owned and controlled by a Board of Representative Presbyterians from every Southern State.

THE SCHOOLS

Of Liberal Arts, Science, Literature and Journalism, and Commerce are open all the year and students may enter at the beginning of any one of the four terms as follow: Sept. 24, Jan. 2, Apr. 1 and July 6.

A beautiful Book of Views, illustrating Student Life at the University, will be sent free, with catalogue, on application. Address

Oglethorpe University
Oglethorpe University, Ga.
(Suburb of Atlanta)

1184—Sunday School Scholar's Bible. Practical Helps for Young People. How to study the Bible. How to study the lesson. Bible questions and answers all in this Bible. Good black type, red edges, leatheroid binding. Size 5½x4x1. Special.....98c

Same Bible, gilt edge, better leather binding, illustrated ..$1.25 and $1.50

12—Linen Card Back Bible. Good big print. Fine for the Sunday School classes, about 6x5x1.....75c

1148—Sunday School Bible. Linen board backs, black type, 5x4x1...59c
7764—Teacher's Bible, $5.00.

India Linen Paper, self pronouncing Bible Dictionary, Combined Concordance, 12 Colored Maps, Morocco Binding, Silk Sewed, good print. Size 7¾x5½x1¼$5.00

6512—Teacher's Edition Bible—New and instructive maps, 14 maps, placed throughout the Bible, illustrating the Scripture, 20 beautifully colored pictures, complete Bible Dictionary, new Concordance and Helps. Leather binding, strongly made. Black face type. Size 7x5x1½$2.50
6512—Teacher's Bible, $3.95.

Linen Paper, thumb index, illustrated colored pictures, 12 new maps, Bible Dictionary, Morocco leather binding. Black face type, convenient size, 7x5-1¼. Special$3.95

1212—Illustrated Bible. 4,000 questions and answers, short history of each book of the Bible by A. T. Pier-son, D.D. Harmony of the four Gospels. How to study the Bible. Colored maps. 7x5½x1½.....$2.00
7764—Teacher's Bible, $5.95.

Self pronouncing Bible, new, improved maps, finely illustrated, combined Concordance, 12 colored maps, newest and most complete dictionary yet printed. Morocco binding, silk sewed, a beautiful Bible. 8x5½...$5.95
Why not have a Confession of Faith in Every Home? We carry them in stock for your convenience—50c, 75c.

BOOK OF CHURCH ORDER. Every officer in the Presbyterian Church ought to have this Book and study it. We will mail you one for 25c.

NELSON'S TESTAMENTS

402—New Testament, 65c. Bound in leatheroid, large black face type. Size 6x5.

321—New Testament, 48c. Bound same as 402. Black type. Size 5x3½.

400—New Testament, 25c. This is a special number. Large black type, cardboard back, clear white paper—the quality equals most 50c books. Special25c

29—New Testament. Vest pocket size, leatheroid binding, fine for the children25c
403—New Testament, 98c.

This is leather bound. Large black type, gilt edge. Size 6x4½.

403P—New Testament and Psalms. Leather bound, gilt edge. Large print$1.19

SCHOFIELD BIBLES

We carry these in the newest Editions, bound in good, heavy Linen Card-board backs, or can send you the finest Leather Bound. If you want a Bible to get "REAL HELP" right at home—the newest improved help—a Schofield Bible is the one to buy.

No 50—Linen Cardboard Backs. Good black type, with every help at home. Same helps as the highest price Bible. Size of Book 7x5-1¼.....$1.50

No. 70—Same as above, only larger size type and book, 8½x6½x1¼ $2.00

We carry Schofield Bibles in all kinds of Bindings—Morocco, Persian, Etc. Real Linen Paper, from $5.00 to $10. Let us send you one on approval. We carry all kinds of New Testaments from 15c to $2.00.

CLEMENCEAU.

With the resignation of Georges Clemenceau from office as soon as the peace treaty is promulgated, as announced from Paris, there retires from public life one of the most picturesque personalities of our times. He has well earned the rest he seeks. At seventy-eight years of age, when most men have long since laid aside the cares of life, he has been one of the two or three outstanding personalities in negotiating what is in many ways the most momentous instrument of modern history. "The Tiger" he has been for years in French politics and "the Tiger" he has been at times during these deliberations, as he was also during the progress of the war. He has never allowed himself to be deceived concerning the character of the foe. "For forty-nine years," he said as he read the despatch announcing that Germany would sign the treaty, "the mailed fist of the reître [German trooper] who has governed Germany has menaced the world. Whether the man's name was Bismarck or William II, it was still the same reître of the Middle Ages surrounded by soldiery and drunk with pride. This reître's dogma was that might is right, that a state's obligation is its own interest, that treaties do not exist when they clash with the interest of a state, and get rich by any means." In many ways Clemenceau has typified during the war the aroused spirit of France and of the Allies against this theory. He will go down in history as one of the greatest statesmen of the age. America will ever take pride in the fact that for a time in his youth he lived in this country, learning by personal contact something of the spirit of the great republic with which he was later to be associated in the defense of civilization. As he retires to enjoy the peace he helped so splendidly to establish, he will be followed by the best wishes of a world grateful for his noble services.—Zion's Herald.

A UNIQUE MEMORIAL TO OUR DEAD SOLDIERS.

Possibly one of the most unique and beautiful tributes any community has paid its dead soldiers was offered at Clarinda, Iowa, on Decoration Day, when a group of public-spirited citizens contributed a fund for the care of one French war orphan for each of the twenty-one boys from Clarinda who sacrificed their lives in the world war. The fund will be administered by an American organization, "The Fatherless Children of France," through its Paris office, which will arrange that the adoption of each of the twenty-one children be made in the name of and as a memorial to a dead soldier of Clarinda.

There could be no finer memorial for any American soldier who fought and died in France; who oftentimes was saved from lonely and homesick hours through the devotion and friendliness of these little French children, than that one of these war waifs should be aided through his supreme sacrifice, and his name held in reverence during the child's whole lifetime.

There are now on the waiting list of The Fatherless Children of France for "adoption" 60,000 little French war waifs. Just ten cents a day will care for one of them in France among its own kin. This supplements an allowance of a similar amount which the war widows and children receive from the French Government.

Mrs. Walter S. Brewster, vice-chairman of the organization in America, is conducting, from the Chicago of-ice, Room 635, 410 S. Michigan Ave., a campaign for a year's care for each of these last 60,000 war orphans of France, making a big effort to have the entire number sponsored by warm-hearted American "godmothers" and "godfathers," within three months, either by donations of dimes and dollars, or by specific yearly pledges of $36.50 per child.

A few months ago an American who is the representative of certain large industrial interests was the guest of a British captain of industry at a London business men's club. While luncheon was being served the men around the table began to prod the American with questions relative to the prohibition situation in "the States." They were inclined to make fun of what they seemed pleased to look upon as an unwarranted invasion of personal liberty, and some were not slow to declare that such a thing as the triumph of prohibition in Great Britain was an absolute impossibility, for "the Englishman would not allow anybody or anything to rob him of his beer." But one man at that table took exception to that statement, and said: "Gentlemen, America is right and England is wrong on this matter. I am not a teetotaler, as you know, but I have observed the economic effects of drink, and I am convinced that England will lose her economic supremacy to America within a generation unless England sobers up and keeps sober. The clearheadedness of America will triumph over the middleheadedness of England in the struggle for commercial supremacy upon which the two nations are about to enter. The best thing that England can do is to follow the example of America and drive drink out of the realm."—New York Advocate.

United States Railroad Administration

DIRECTOR GENERAL OF RAILROADS

Seaboard Air Line Railroad

Reduced Summer Excursion Round-Trip Tickets on sale May 15th to September 30th, final limit October 31st, 1919, to the following points:

Alta Pass, N. C.	$ 7.14	Pensacola, N. C.	$ 9.06
Hickory, N. C.	3.30	Rutherfordton, N. C.	4.32
Johnson City, Tenn.	10.80	Shelby, N. C.	2.88
Lenoir, N. C.	14.50	Switzerland, N. C.	6.96
Norfolk, Va.	17.46	Virginia Beach, Va.	18.26
Old Point, Va.	18.06	Wrightsville Beach, N. C.	10.66

The above rates do not include war tax. Also attractive rates to other resorts.

For particulars as to fares, trains, schedules, etc., apply to any Railroad Ticket Agent.

E. W. LONG, P. S. A.,
CHARLOTTE, N. C.

JOHN T. WEST, D. P. A.,
RALEIGH, N. C.

The greatest miracle that I know of is that of my conversion. I was dead and I live; I was blind and I see; I was a slave and I am free; I was an enemy of God and I love Him.—Vinet.

"It doesn't make any difference what you believe if your conduct is good, is a phrase often used by men who are well aware that electric cars will not run unless the power house is in order."

Furloughs were in order. "Every man who has a good reason for requesting a furlough, step forward." "Company, halt!" the captain roared.—Everybody's.

SAVE Waste-Labor
Time-Money
GAIN Comfort-Convenience-Beauty
Economy-Satisfaction-Durability

In Building Your New Home.

QUICKBILT

BUNGALOW NO. 50

A complete bungalow, built to give the small family all that can be desired in a modern, substantial, attractive, well-built home, at a reasonable price.

COMFORT—It is closely built to stand the severest weather. Well lighted, well ventilated, easily heated.

CONVENIENCE—The plans, prepared after careful study by the best and most experienced of architects, are so designed to cover every need of the average family.

DURABILITY—Made with the very best of materials. Designed for greatest strength. Each part securely locks into the other. Erected after perfected patented locking process. Will stand the roughest of tempests without strain and will far outlast the average house.

BEAUTY—The designs are graceful and represent the most modern architectural art. It will blend readily with its surroundings and furnish a beautiful, appropriate home.

ECONOMY—QUICKBILT Bungalows are built in an immense plant in which hundreds of other houses are being built simultaneously. Every short cut to perfection and economy is used and thereby, you gain the advantage of the low cost of quantity production. The architect's and contractor's fees are avoided, for you are furnished free a complete set of specifications and plans, and with them the erection of the house is so simple that any carpenter of average intelligence can erect it. Many owners build them themselves. In purchasing a QUICKBILT Bungalow you eliminate all extra middle-man's commissions and profits, as you are dealing direct with the source of material; with the mill, manufacturer and forests in one.

SATISFACTION—Once in your QUICKBILT Bungalow you will be highly satisfied with its convenient arrangement, its artistic finish and its coziness.

COSTS LITTLE TO ERECT.

With the material already prepared for the house, waste is eliminated from the cost. As a large portion of the house comes already built in panels, preliminary preparation is avoided. The systematic, simple, thorough plans and instructions save time and make it possible for a carpenter and two helpers to erect the house in less than 10 days. A saving in waste, labor, time and material is

A SAVING IN MONEY.

Shipped complete F. O. B. Charleston with all necessary material except brick work and plumbing. A cozy, attractive, bungalow of six rooms. Size over all 33-ft. 7-in. x 21-ft. 5-in. Two large bed rooms, one 9-ft. x 12-ft., and one 12-ft. x 12-ft., a spacious living room 12-ft. x 15-ft., a cozy, convenient dining alcove 12-ft. x 6-ft., kitchen 9-ft. x 12-ft., bath room 9-ft. x 6-ft. Closets and attractive front porch 12-ft. x 6-ft. Woodwork of the best grade of North Carolina Pine, "The Wood Universal." Walls in panels of siding lined with heavy paper to insure warmth.

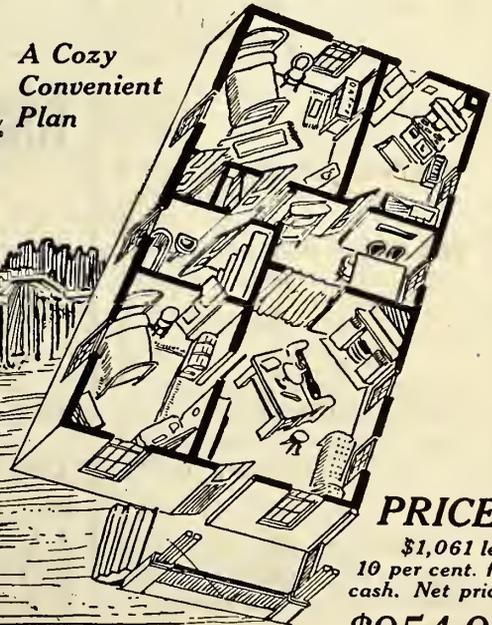

Durable, fire-resisting, Standard Asphalt Strip Shingles, with slate green or red finish. Artistic paneled inside finish. All necessary nails and hardware furnished. House comes with exterior walls stained any one of a number of standard colors, or painted with one heavy coat of priming paint. Exterior trim and interior finish with one heavy coat of priming paint.

WRITE TO-DAY

for a copy of our book "QUICKBILT Bungalows" No. D-9. It will give a full explanation of No. 50 and many other attractive Bungalows. Or better still, if No. 50 pleases you instruct us to ship it immediately and give us the color desired.

QUICKBILT Bungalow Department,
A. C. Tuxbury Lumber Co., Charleston, S. C.

A Cozy
Convenient
Plan

PRICE

$1,061 less
10 per cent. for cash. Net price,

$954.90

QUICKBILT BUNGALOW DEPARTMENT,
A. C. TUXBURY LUMBER CO., Charleston, S. C.
Please send me a copy of your book "QUICKBILT Bungalows" No. D-9.
Am especially interested in a room house.
NAME
ADDRESS

Sparkles

A Sonnet in a Lodging-House.

Men lodgers are the best, the Mrs. said;
 They don't use my gas jets to fry sardines,
 They don't leave red-hot irons on the spread,
 They're out all morning, when a body cleans.
 A man ain't so secretive, never cares
 What kind of private papers he leaves lay,
 So I can get a line on his affairs
 And dope out whether he is likely pay.
 But women! Say, they surely get my bug!
 They stop their keyholes up with chewing-gum,
 Spill grease, and hide the damage with the rug,
 And fry marshmallows when their callers come.
 They always are behindhand with their rents—
 Take my advice and let your rooms to gents!
 —From "The Rocking Horse" (Doran), by Christopher Morley.

The old practice of badgering witnesses is still kept up in some western courts, sometimes, however, to the detriment of the cross-examiner.

Lawyer Smith, partially bald and a very infrequent patron of the local barber shop, was grilling a witness on the stand. "Now, Mr. Barker, you pass for an intelligent farmer, and yet you can't tell how old this barn is. And you have lived on the next farm for years. Come now, tell us how old your own house is, if you think you know." Whereupon the old farmer somewhat testily replied, "Well, it's just about as old as you are, and needs snuggling about as bad."

Sign of the Times.

The most striking reminder of the end of the war is the new issue of Sloppy Stories magazine, with the girl on the cover being kissed by a civilian. —London Opinion.

A Quorum.

Peck—"But, my dear, I thought we had planned to go to the theater this evening?"

Mrs. Peck—"Yes, I know, but I have changed our mind."—Boston Transcript.

Why?

One—Yes, in a battle of tongues a woman can always hold her own.

The Other—Perhaps she can. But why doesn't she?—The Sydney Bulletin.

Revised Advice.

If you want a thing well done don't do it yourself unless you know how.—Boston Transcript.

THE WESTMINSTER SCHOOL

A PREPARATORY SCHOOL
 FOR BOYS

Operated by Kings Mountain Presbytery
 $300.00 Per Year

Write for Catalogue to

Rev. T. E. P. Woods, Box 6, Rutherfordton, N. C.

4 Per Cent

Time Certificates of Deposit

They are Interest Bearing. They are Payable on Demand. They Afford a Good Income for Funds Awaiting Permanent Investment

GET ONE

AMERICAN TRUST COMPANY

Charlotte

North Carolina

YES, Preachers and Teachers Are Human

They should have no discount and no cheaper railroad fares than you and I. They should be paid for services rendered—amply paid. If he can't earn enough for family use and the nest egg for the future, he made a sad mistake as to family, else he should change his calling instanter.

The Mutual Building & Loan

Will save a man and his family if they're worth saving, but they must help. It furnishes the "sure cure," but boasts no regrets at the demise of a feller who deliberately refuses to take the medicine.

E. L. KEESLER, Sec. & Treas., 25 S. Tryon St., CHARLOTTE, N. C.

Charlotte National Bank

Resources
 $4,000,000.00

CHARLOTTE, N. C.

PAYS FOUR PER CENT.

On Either Time Certificates of Deposit or
 Savings Accounts

MAIL ORDER Business Solicited and PROMPT ATTENTION Given

JOHN M. SCOTT	President
W. J. CHAMBERS	Vice-President
J. F. ROBERTSON	Vice-President
W. H. TWITTY	Cashier
C. W. BUTT	Assistant Cashier

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

REV. J. R. BRIDGES, D. D.

EDITORS

REV. K. N. D. D.

VOL. LX.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., AUGUST 6, 1919,

No. 31,

Sanctuary.

Sometimes we lose Him in the streets of town,
Where there are noise and people everywhere,
But when I go out to the woods and fields
I find Him there.

For when I am alone and stand quite still,
Where all is quiet, save perhaps a bird,
It seems to me His loving, gentle voice
Might soon be heard.

It seems to me the trees and flowers and leaves
Were silent with the secret of His ways,
As if they knew His presence intimate
Through all their days.

As if the whispered murmurs of the breeze
Were little messages divinely sent,
And though I cannot hear the words He says,
I am content.

So when I lose Him in the streets of town,
Where there are noise and people everywhere,
Oh, then I go out to the woods and fields
And find Him there.

—Jessie Grahame, in the British Weekly.

Editorial

The Innocent By-Stander.

WHEN some one asked our national humorist, Irwin Cobb, what was his attitude toward religion, he is reported to have replied that he was merely an "innocent bystander." This suggests some serious reflections. While meant for humor, there is reason to think that it expresses the real sentiments of many. It is not unusual to hear one who is a tacit and practical rejector of Christianity commended for having "great respect for religion." This is virtually the attitude of one who assumes to be "an innocent by-stander."

The by-stander is a passive observer, a chance looker-on. He has no personal interest in the conflict, and proposes to take no hand in it. He may have very decided views as to the merits of the different parties to the conflict. He may much prefer that victory should go to one side rather than the other. But it is none of his funeral. He is under no obligation to imperil his safety, or subject himself to harm or inconvenience to help decide the issue. As a neutral his sympathies may be warmly enlisted, but he proposes to remain neutral regardless of how the conflict may terminate.

It is recognized that the innocent by-stander may get hurt. The blow aimed at others may land on him. It often happens that the only fatal casualty in a squabble happens to the innocent by-stander. The stray bullet reaches him and all others come through unscathed. But this was accidental. The shot was not intended for him. His innocence goes unquestioned.

Such an attitude toward religion is intolerable. There are no neutrals. "He that is not for me is against me; and he that gathereth not with me scattereth abroad." Christianity means a world war. Jesus Christ flings out a challenge to the whole world. "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to the whole creation. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved, and he that believeth not shall be damned." There are but two classes—those who respond to the call of the Great Captain, and those who refuse. The one are loyal, and the other are slackers. The "innocent by-stander" belongs to the latter class. He is a slacker, whatever his excuses or pretences.

Great harm comes to religion, and to the souls of men by blotting out, or dimming this distinction. This was one of the evil accompaniments of the war through which we have just passed. Many religious teachers, whose voices carried far, confounded loyalty to country with loyalty to God. They refused to recognize that one might be a valiant soldier in defence of the flag of his country, and at the same time a rebel against the banner of Christ. His patriotism did not atone for his rebellion. To fulfill our obligation does not even palliate the sin of repudiating an immeasurably higher obligation.

To call the "innocent by-stander," where the interests of religion are concerned, a slacker is to use far too mild a term. He is actively aiding and abetting the enemy. "I came to destroy the works of the devil," said Christ. He that refuses His call is opposing His mission. The sin of men is the same in kind with the sin of the devil. The "innocent by-stander" is doing precisely the same kind of work as the devil. He is helping to build up what Christ came to destroy. Consequently he has but one alternative, and that is, to change sides or suffer the fate of the devil.

There are no exemptions in this war. "There is no release in this warfare." No quarter will be shown to "conscientious objectors," if such there be. "If the light that is in thee be darkness how great is that darkness." If the conscience, which was given to light one's pathway to God, be turned so as to throw its light in the opposite direction, then but makes the condition the more hopeless. The "innocent by-stander" is the most helpful agent the devil has. When a man's character becomes so soiled as to injure his standing with his fellowmen he loses in power for evil. The drunkard in the gutter, the libertine with the marks of his sin on him, the gambler who has reached the stage of the black leg—these and such as these sound the alarm bell, and help the preacher of sobriety and decency. Such sinners are specimens of the devil's work which unveil his deceit. His efficient agents are those who vie in moral respectability with the disciples of Christ. These are the ones who weaken the call to repentance and quiet the consciences of the young.

What is meant by "great respect for religion?" Religion has its source in God, so it must mean "great respect for God." Has the innocent by-stander great respect for God? He positively and persistently refuses to do what God bid him do. "Turn ye, turn ye; for why will ye die? saith the Lord." And the innocent by-stander practically says: "It's turn or die, I will die. If it is turn or burn, then I choose to burn." That does not show much respect. It is very much as if a governor should offer a criminal a pardon, on condition that he should hereafter prove himself a good, loyal citizen, and the criminal should say: "I have great respect for you, governor, but if that is the best you have to offer I had rather wear the stripes till I rot in prison."

The innocent by-stander needs to be told, and to be told often, that he is in a dangerous place. If he remains there it will not be a stray bullet that hits him, but an arrow from the quiver of the Almighty, and we are told that this makes a wound from which none ever recover.

The Romanist Protestants.

This is not a combination of two churches, as its name would imply, for the lion and lamb are not yet lying down together, but it is a term used to describe the attitude of the Roman Catholic Church with reference to our efforts to restore Protestant Churches in Belgium, Italy and France. The Methodist Church proposes to spend in these three countries $2,500,000 and the Presbyterian Church will spend $500,000 in the same work, in order to rebuild manse and churches and provide an adequate living for the preachers.

This seems not only a commendable, but a very necessary charity, fully in keeping with the example and teachings of Christ. It has, however, been like a bomb thrown into the Romanist camp. They have seen in it a wholesale campaign to proselyte these countries and buy them up. The most aggravating feature of the protest is that they tacitly assume that these countries belong to Rome. The truth is that while France, for example, is largely Romanist, it is only nominally so. A large portion of the French are irreligious more freethinking than religious. When they forget that in the past France was largely Protestant, but these protestant Romanists, by the use of such agencies as the St. Bartholomew massacre, almost eradicated it. Really in view of their past history, one would think that almost any other subject than proselyting would be chosen.

Before the war Protestantism was gradually gaining in France, not so much in numbers as in influence, having among its adherents some of the most prominent men of the nation. The Protestants of these three countries have been sorely afflicted, their living has been swept away, and the country ravaged. They call upon us for help and we know the heart of Protestant America well enough to be consider that no criticism or protest from Rome will check the flow of benevolence.

The Pulpit as Judged by the Pew.

The Latins had a very wise adage, "Sutor ad crepidam," but we fear that few, if any, ever gave heed to it. Freely translated it means that a shoemaker should stick to shoemaking, and not meddle with other things. The fact that this advice was needed proves that the men of that generation were very much like the men of our day. They were fond of trying other things than those with which they were acquainted by experience. In the same way we find men now, especially our brethren of the ministry, always trying their hand on other things rather than the gospel. When we hear Paul crying out, "Woe is me if I preach not the Gospel," and then read the subjects of Sunday sermons, we wonder what the great Apostle would say if he could return to earth.

We are not referring to their activities in civic matters, as citizens of the community. Such are needed, and when no one else will give the time and attention, these men are to be commended. We rather refer to their changing the pulpit from a place where the offer of the gospel is made to dying men to a rostrum for discussing civic economics, advising Congress what laws to make, or teaching the President how to run this government. We are opposed to this, not only because the ministry is not trained in civil matters, and what they say often exposes them to ridicule, but chiefly because they lower the profession in the eyes of the world, and destroy their own influence as ambassadors of Jesus Christ.

The Frank Leslie's Weekly is by no means a religious paper nor is it one that we particularly admire. The following extract from a recent editorial expresses the impression made upon the world by these seekers after notoriety, these would-be reformers:

"Preachers and teachers who are being carried away by those who clamor for a new social order that will bring about the millennium should bear in mind that the greatest Teacher in all the world, speaking for and to the masses, besought them to "Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's and unto God the things that are God's." The mob would not listen. They nailed Him to the cross and acclaimed the murderer Barabbas. And a rich man came and carried away the body of the crucified one to give it a resting place in his own tomb.

Isn't there work enough for our clergymen to do in preaching the Gospel of salvation to sinners rather than a gospel of unrest and discontent? For which work have they been ordained? Ask Chancellor Day, ask the Rev. Mr. Tinsley, of Philadelphia, or other eminently successful preachers of Truth.

When someone asked John Wesley, after he had passed fourscore years and ten, the secret of his long life, the venerable patriarch replied that it was by keeping his heart full of gladness. We commend this fine example of optimism to those teachers and preachers who see nothing but clouds in the sky and a world that must be upset. What a confession of the failure of the Christian religion!"

That men will crowd to hear such sermons by no means proves that the preacher is right. It is the thirst for the sensational, the desire to hear the novel, for the Athenians were not the only people who "spent their time in nothing else but either to tell, or to hear some new thing." The real test of the crowd's appreciation of your preaching comes when trouble enters your hearer's home.

When death enters that home and lays its hand upon a dear one, or when it draws near the hearer himself, or when your hearer being under conviction longs to know how to be saved, he will not call upon you, for in his eyes you are merely an entertainer, but he will turn to him whom you consider a commonplace preacher, because he is really God's ambassador. "And if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things."

A Teaching Ministry.

A great many years ago one of the ministers of our Church who had been successful in Sunday School work and who was a teaching preacher wrote an article urging the extension of the Sunday School so as to include the adults of the family as well as the children, upon the ground that in no other way would they ever learn the Bible. Since then we have paid particular attention to the character of the preaching, and we agree with our brother that we have produced a generation of Christians whose ignorance of the Bible is appalling. The great war revealed many unknown defects in our people, though at the same time it also revealed many unknown virtues.

The physical defects of our manhood were enough to cause us anxious thought. To say nothing of the many rejections by reason of defective teeth, eyesight, flat foot and flabby muscles, the large proportion found to be with the nameless diseases makes us hang our heads in shame. From the spiritual side, it is equally discouraging. The chaplains tell us that the most intelligent and educated men were found to be as ignorant of the Bible as if they were from a heathen land. Add to this the experience of those who have taught the Bible in schools and colleges—that it is a rare experience to find either boy or girl with any knowledge of the fundamental facts of the Bible. This shows that Bible teaching is neglected in the home and in the pulpit.

The ministry must awake to this danger, and instead of preaching from texts as a topic, they must expound the Scriptures in a regular and systematic way. When John came preaching, the world was full of civil corruption yet his theme was repentance. In our Lord's day, the same conditions existed, yet He passed by everything else and called men to repentance. Paul went through Asia and Europe, where political evils abounded, yet he determined to know nothing save Jesus Christ and Him crucified. Think what a field he had for a social service crusade, how he could have arraigned the magistrates of Corinth and laid bare the evils of civic rule. He preached the crucified Christ, and through his various tours he expounded the Scriptures.

Dr. Dabney once said to his students that expository preaching was the only kind to use for instructing the people, but that it would never be popular, because it required too much work, to do it well. We trust that the new era in religion that the modern prophets assure us is coming will witness a revival of old-time Bible study and, above all, Bible preaching.

Lowering the Pulpit.

When at the Methodist Centenary Celebration at Columbus, Ohio, "a sermon was preached from the sky" in an airplane, in one sense it was raising the pulpit, but in a moral sense and in the estimation of all sensible men, it was a decided lowering.

This is an age of irreverence, when every tendency is toward levity, yet we find a great church indulging in such a mountebank performance, as preaching the solemn gospel from an airplane. If the preacher could get the Prince of the power of the air and his demons as an audience and if they were not beyond redemption, such preaching would be commendable, but when he is supposed to be preaching to a gaping audience, more interested in his pulpit than in his message, then we are not surprised that the leading paper of the Northern Methodist Church should protest against it. The danger in all Church exhibitions such as the Centenary Celebration is that men lacking in judgment generally take the lead, and compromise the Church. After all, perhaps the Apostolic style of preaching is best.

Contributed

Education and Life.

(Address delivered June 26, 1919, before the Christian Workers School of the Synod of Mississippi by Alfred Hume.)

IN discussing the subject assigned me—"Education as Related to the Making of a Life Rather Than the Making of a Living"—I may be pardoned for referring to an address delivered before Synod's Training School four years ago in which, under the title, "Educational Essentials," my platform of principles was fully set forth. This was then my confession of faith in regard to education and was, and is, subject to revision, inasmuch as it dealt with matters no one has ever been found competent to speak the word of ultimate authority. While it is better to be right than to be merely consistent, yet, whether right or wrong, my views have undergone but little, if any, change since that summer of 1915. Upon this occasion, therefore, I may repeat a few things already said and dwell at greater length upon one point in the older discussion which, in my judgment, remains fundamental and unchanging.

For a generation and more education has been rapidly and radically changing until who will now undertake to mark its metes and bounds or to determine its content? As a climax to the forces which have been at work upon principles once regarded as basic and permanent, the war has produced a severe shaking up, tending toward revolution, not only industrial, moral and religious, but educational as well. What Moses will lead us out of the wilderness? Where is the star to guide amid the maze? What anchor will hold us back from shipwreck?

Even a cursory survey of the field of education almost overwhelms with the variety of its products and the vastness of its stretches. What subjects shall be selected, how many, and how much? Where shall the emphasis be put, on the classical or the scientific, the liberal or the technical, the practical or the cultural? Which shall we favor, music and art or home economics, algebra or agriculture? What shall be said of vocational subjects in general? Should our education look forward to the making of a life or the making of a living?

These and other such matters, asked in all seriousness by many people, may, after all, be unintentionally unfair if not, indeed, sophistical and positively misleading in their implications. They suggest another question, namely, are the things contrasted necessarily mutually exclusive? And I answer, no. Surely, so far from discounting or discrediting the kind of education that fits one to make a living, it should be insisted that every single soul so equip himself as that he will not be a drone or a dependent in a world where much needs to be done. But, at the same time, let us be careful to place the emphasis where it belongs. We need to think carefully, honestly and clearly here lest we blindly follow the time-worn track of traditional error, on the one hand, or, on the other, fly off at a tangent along some unknown and untried path suddenly illuminated by the flash of a meteor, unstable in its movement, uncertain as to destination, evanescent and illusive as a will-o'-the-wisp.

It was President Hadley, of Yale, I think, who said that his first lessons in science were given him by his father, then a college professor. And what did he teach? Greek, but he handled it in such a way that the work was thorough and thoroughly scientific in spirit. Shall we not learn a lesson from this man? It is not so much what is taught as who teaches it and how. We cannot afford to be dogmatic when it comes to classifying the various studies of the school course or the college curriculum. What cocksure wiseacre shall divide them into cultural and practical and say that the ones here yield culture and the ones over there do not, these make for life and those listed lower down do not?

Nonsense! Not one of them is productive of any sort of life above that of the human intellect.

It was the same author who, in an article published some years since told of the difference between a trade and a profession. Said he, in effect (I think that I am not misrepresenting him), the difference is not that preparation for the one is through an apprenticeship and for the other by long years of study—it is not how he gets into his life-work but the manner in which he does it after getting in. The carpenter who is more interested in doing an absolutely honest and workmanlike job than in the question of his wages may properly regard himself as following a profession. On the other hand, the so-called professional man may be a mere mercenary time-server. Even the minister of the Gospel who is more concerned with the size of his salary than with the salvation of souls has prostituted his high calling and is himself a trader, and a traitor, too.

Was not the president of Yale University right? There is more in the man and his motives than in means and methods and subject-matter. If the old education, more than the new, has seemed to make for life, it is not so much because of any inherent virtue in it, but rather because teachers of the older school were men of strong character and the very atmosphere about them was surcharged with something conducive to moral growth, a veritable tonic to spiritual development. No mere education—classical, scientific, vocational, or what-not—will, itself, produce life. Does not the tragedy of Germany's downfall forever sound the death-knell and doom of all hopes based on any and every kind of intellectual culture? There is nothing in the classics to regenerate the soul. Latin, Greek and Mathematics are every whit as impotent to work the mighty change as are typewriting and stenography, manual training or book-keeping. French is no more a character builder than is farming. Biology is as barren of the bread of life as is blacksmithing. Not even geology, which marks the footprints of the Creator, or that beautiful queen of the natural sciences, astronomy (and it has been truly said that the undevout astronomer is mad) can lead one into life. Surely, if anything in the realm of man's intellect alone could lift into spiritual life, these noble sciences might well lay claim to universal recognition, for the reverent in these fields of investigation strive earnestly to think God's thoughts after Him.

And yet, it must needs be repeated, education does not and cannot, in the very nature of the case, impart life, virtuous character, Christian graces. And this is just as true of church schools as of state schools. Arithmetic, in itself, is precisely the same wherever taught. It, as with grammar, geography, and practically everything else, in both school and college, has no moral quality whatever. If, as has been charged, culture creates a lofty disdain of that which soils the hands, what shall be said of the even greater folly of these moderns claiming for education the power of moral cleansing? What branch of human learning, pray, will prevent the soiling of the soul? What subject, mental or manual, will remove a single stain from character or enable one to keep himself unspotted from the world? Shall we so soon forget how a falso philosophy in the schools, colleges, and universities of that lost land, how dependence on education, not scientific alone, mind you, but the culture that comes from literature and art, philosophy and phiology, too, led to a Christless civilization in Germany which marred the world with its madness and scarred it for centuries to come with its more than barbaric cruelty and worse than pagan vandalism? Is not that kind of refinement the devil's deceptive dross and that sort of culture the veneering of a savage?

We, today, in these United States of America, stand upon the threshold of wonderful material progress. Such progress is perilous unless accompanied by moral force and spir-

(Continued on Page 7)

Schauffler Hall.

UNION THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY, Richmond, Va., announces the placing of an order for the immediate erection of its new, model, Sunday School building, called Schauffler Hall in honor of Rev. A. F. Schauffler, D.D., the great Sunday School leader. It is the gift of Mrs. John S. Kennedy, of New York.

Schauffler Hall will be interesting as a building, aside from the interest derived from the distinguished name it bears and from the fact that it is a pioneer "laboratory of Sunday School Work." It is in the English Collegiate Gothic style, as are all the other ten buildings on Union Seminary campus. Its tower is like that of Watts Hall, the main building of the group, but it has features of its own, and in its commanding location on Chamberlayne Avenue will attract the attention of all passers-by because of its beauty. This building, designed by Baskerville & Lambert, architects, of Richmond, is intended to be a model of Sunday School construction and arrangement. The departmental idea is emphasized, each department having ample and appropriate provision for carrying on its work. Many individual class rooms are provided, and the building is arranged to admit of as many as twenty-four additional class rooms when needed. The auditorium, or assembly room, is in the center and can be reached from all parts of the building with the least confusion and loss of time. In this auditorium will be installed a pipe organ which has been given to the Seminary by the First Presbyterian Church of Charleston, W. Va. There are rooms for the Boy Scouts and the Camp Fire Girls, and there is a very large recreation room where the entire Sunday School can gather for social purposes. The building will be occupied by the Ginter Park Presbyterian Sunday School, of which Mr. Owsley Sanders is superintendent. This school is widely known as one of the leading Sunday Schools in the Southern Assembly.

In order to give Schauffler Hall the commanding position its importance deserves, it has been decided to remove one of the professor's houses facing Chamberlayne Avenue, and locate the Sunday School building on that site. That building will then be re-erected on the campus on the south side of Melrose Avenue in an enlarged form so as to make two large apartments, instead of a single residence.

In commenting on the importance of this enterprise, Dr. W. W. Moore, president of the Seminary, says "Union Seminary is the first of our seminaries to establish a separate Department of Sunday School Work for the scientific study of all phases of Sunday School organization, equipment and management, pedagogy, pedagogy, teacher-training and field extension. It has received the gift of $125,000 for the erection, equipment and maintenance of a model Sunday School building, up-to-date in every particular, where 'laboratory work' will be done the year round. It has received also a gift of $60,000 for the endowment of this 'Department.' Both of these gifts have been in hand for a year or more, but the building was delayed because of the war. No other institution was ever so well equipped and endowed for his special work, and its aim is to make this the greatest center in America of expert training in everything that pertains to this fundamental department of the church's work. The fact that Richmond is the headquarters of the General Superintendent of Sunday Schools and Young People's Work in our General Assembly and also the headquarters of the Assembly's Publication Work, where all our Sunday School literature is published, makes it a pre-eminently suitable place for the establishment of the great Sunday School 'power house' of the Church."

"The Southern Presbyterian Church."

There is the same objection to calling "The Presbyterian Church in the United States" the "Southern Church" that there is to naming "The Presbyterian of the United States" the Northern Church. Brother Mosely has protested against the latter. Let me offer reasons why the former name should not be applied:

1. For one thing, it is not the name of the Church referred to and surely our Church has a right to be called by its own name. It is not "old side," nor "Southern," but Presbyterian Church in the United States.

2. The use of the name needlessly offends. An elder who passed from the U. S. A. Church to the U. S. Church in Kentucky pointed out to me "Southern Presbyterian" on a label in a hymn book and asked me what I thought of it. I told him it was not the proper name nor in good taste. A Northern man came South and entered the house of worship of a Methodist Church and saw "M. E. Church, South," and passed on to the Presbyterian Church and not seeing the descriptive term attached, united with that church, remarking, "They may think the same way but they do not poke it in your face."

3. It narrows the sphere of usefulness of the Church. Why offend and tend to exclude any whose lots are cast in our land? Why define so narrowly the sphere in which we labor?

This evil practice is spreading. The literature of "The Laymen's Movement," "The Systematic Beneficence Committee" and even of "The Foreign Mission Stations" uses this terminology. Let us discard it for the good of the cause and through Christian courtesy. If we would not be called Southern Presbyterians, let us not speak of others as Northern nor as American Presbyterians, but as "Presbyterians of the United States," remembering that, we are "Presbyterians in the United States." W. C. C.

The Law and The Gospel.

The law says, this do and thou shalt live.

The law says, pay me that thou owest.

The law says, make you a new heart, and a new spirit.

The law says, thou shalt love the Lord Thy God, with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind.

The law says, cursed is every one who continueth not in all things written in the book of the law, to do them.

The law says, the wages of sin is death.

The Gospel says, live, and thou shalt do.

The Gospel says, I frankly forgive thee all.

The Gospel says, a new heart will I give you, and a new spirit will I put within you.

The Gospel says, herein is love not that we loved God, but that He loved us and sent His Son to be the propitiation for our sins.

The Gospel says, blessed is the man whose iniquities are forgiven, and whose sin is covered.

The Gospel says, the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ Our Lord.

A subscriber sends me the above, saying it was given him years ago by an old saint now with her Saviour, and with the request that we publish.—Ed.

A Result of the Atlanta Laymen's Meeting.

ONE of the practical results growing out of the Atlanta Convention of the Laymen's Missionary Movement was the decision to seek to arouse the laymen in every Presbytery to organize into associations similar to the one in Red River Presbytery in Louisiana, which reported to the committee very splendid things accomplished. The following is quoted from a report of the chairman of the organization:

"The result of the meeting of the laymen of Red River Presbytery was our organization, and the pledge of those present was almost a sufficient fund to finance the movement, and a further pledge from all those present obligating themselves as Christian men and laymen to go anywhere at any time when called upon by the chairman. Since that time as chairman, I have sent laymen, two together usually, to many of the churches in Presbytery, never having had a man to refuse to go to date.

After a long delay we secured an evangelist and he has been in the field since January 1. He has taken in through his meetings more than one hundred members; some five or six churches have come off the Home Mission Committee and are now self-supporting; four new ministers have been called to churches for all their time, and the condition in the Presbytery has improved more than 100 per cent.

At a meeting of our executive committee a few days ago we decided to put another evangelist in the field. The ladies of the Presbytery, seeing what the men have done, raised $1,200 to put a Sunday School worker in the field, and this amount has been added to by the Assembly Committee to justify the employment of a first-class man."

The following is a brief outline of the plan proposed by the Laymen's Missionary Movement, which they are ready to help the laymen of any Presbytery to put over:

"Form an organization committee of laymen representing several churches to have charge of the work and plans up to the actual organization of the association.

"All men in all the congregations of the Presbytery should be requested and urged to become members of such association, seeking specially your young men.

"All who enroll from any one church should form the Laymen's Association of that church, and organize by electing officers and by appointment of committees seek to enlist every man in some form of local church.

"Hold a mass meeting of laymen of the Presbytery at some central point for organization."

"Have a program of talks by laymen showing plans and purposes of the organization, needs of the Presbytery, such as vacant and weak, struggling churches, unoccupied fields, and unsatisfactory social conditions that the church should take the lead in correcting.

"Show opportunities for Christian service by laymen in leading services and starting and helping carry on Sunday Schools, furnishing adequate program and leadership in boys' and young men's work, supporting and co-operating with a Presbyterian evangelist, and generally having a part in the work of the Presbytery.

"Have prepared before your organization meeting a questionnaire asking each man present to check this for the kind of service he is willing to render when called upon. The chairman elected by each local church to together form a general committee of the Presbyterian Association and to be the men in each church to whom communications will be sent for his church from time to time.

"In addition to the annual mass meeting of the association, which should be strongly featured, the executive and general committees might profitably meet parallel to the meeting of Presbytery, and reports should be made by each church to the executive committee prior to these semi-annual meetings, that a consolidated report of the work of the association may be compiled and read in the Presbytery for its information and sent back to the churches to show results accomplished."

The Laymen's Missionary Movement, Athens, Ga., will be glad to furnish full outlines and details of this plan upon request of the laymen of any church or Presbytery, and will co-operate to help put the plan into working shape.

The Assembly's Committee on Systematic Beneficence and Stewardship.

By Rev. W. F. Galbraith, D.D., Sect'y.

The Assembly's Committee on Systematic Beneficence and Stewardship met at Montreat, N. C., July 16, 1919, at the call of the convener, Rev. A. D. P. Gilmour.

At this meeting Rev. S. H. Chester represented the Foreign Mission Committee and Rev. Gilbert Glass that of Publication and Sabbath School Extension, in place of Rev. Jno. I. Armstrong, and Mr. R. E. Magill, respectively, who could not be present. Rev. Homer McMillan and Rev. Henry H. Sweets represented the Executive Committees of Home Missions and Christian Education and Ministerial Relief, respectively.

The Synods were represented by the following: Alabama, Rev. D. F. McConnell; Appalachia, Rev. L. R. Walker; Arkansas, Mr. A. H. Whitmarsh; Florida, Mr. T. F. West; Georgia, Mr. W. M. Everett; Kentucky, Rev. W. H. Hopper; Louisiana, Rev. U. D. Mooney; Mississippi, Rev. F. R. Graves; North Carolina, Rev. E. R. Leyburn; South Carolina, Rev. A. D. P. Gilmour; Tennessee, Mr. W. H. Raymond; Texas, Rev. Wm. Fred Galbraith; Virginia, Rev. F. T. McFaden.

The history of the abolishing of the two former committees (Systematic Beneficence and that of Stewardship) and the consolidation of the two under the name of the "Assembly's Committee on Systematic Beneficence and Stewardship," with all the functions and powers of both former committees, was reviewed by the temporary chairman.

One of the purposes of this meeting was the organization of the new committee and the following officers were elected: Chairman, Rev. A. D. P. Gilmour, Spartanburg, S. C.; Vice-Chairman, Rev. E. R. Leyburn, Durham, N. C.; Treasurer, Mr. R. E. Magill, Richmond, Va.; Clerk, Rev. Wm. Fred Galbraith, Montreat, N. C.

The following Campaign Committee was elected: Rev. Homer McMillan, Chairman; Rev. H. H. Sweets, Rev. Jno. I. Armstrong, Mr. R. E. Magill, Rev. A. D. P. Gilmour, Rev. L. R. Walker and T. F. West. This committee is charged with "The conduct of the Presbyterian Progressive Program, subject to the review and control of the Assembly's Systematic Beneficence and Stewardship Committee."

Chattanooga, Tenn., was selected as the permanent headquarters for the Assembly's Committee on Systematic Beneficence and Stewardship.

Capt. F. L. Slaymaker, Athens, Ga., secretary of the Laymen's Missionary Movement, and Rev. C. H. Pratt, representing the Inter-Church Movement, addressed the committee on these subjects, respectively, after which both addresses were referred to the Committee on Co-operative Effort.

The following resolution was unanimously passed: "Resolved, that we recommend that we express to the Laymen's Missionary Movement our appreciation of their offer of co-operation in the Assembly's Progressive Program, and that we accept the offer and refer the details and control of the program and co-operation to the Campaign Committee."

A committee was appointed to investigate and report the result of their findings as to the Inter-Church Movement, and our relationship to same, as this matter was referred to this committee by the General Assembly.

The next meeting of the committee will be held in Chattanooga, Tenn., September 10, 1919, at 10 a. m., and a conference of Synodical Managers will be held at the same place beginning at 8 P. M., and continuing in session through September 11.

The Value of Education.

By Rev. G. E. Moorehouse.

THERE is much said and written in these days on the subject: "Why do young men not enter the ministry?" In some recent issues of our Presbyterian literature there may be one answer to the question. For instance, the Christian Observer for July 23 contains a diagram illustrating values as taken from the average wages paid by the New York Bridge department. The diagram in question is a representation of three money bags containing different sums, representing the yearly average income of men with different grades of education, from what might be termed the grammar grades of the public school to about one-half a proper collegiate or technical education, or as it is stated: "High school and two or three years college or technical education." The average income of the three classes as they are set down ranges from $982 for the lowest to $2,400 for the highest. I looked into the Assembly's minutes for 1919, published this year, and Dr. Craig's figures are as follows: Number of ministers, 250; the amount paid for salaries to these 250 men is $242,893. Now supposing these men are all employed, the amount paid actually to the ministers in North Carolina for the year 1918 is almost identical with the amount paid the man employed in the New York bridge department who has received the least education, and therefore, it is to be presumed the most unfit. That is to say, the average amount paid the ministers in North Carolina for the past year is on a par with what is paid for manual labor to men who have passed not more than the eighth grade of the public school. And yet we are asking young men to attend the high school three to four years, college four years, and then spend three years in the Seminary, a total of ten or eleven years more preparation, and then the average income will be about equal to the income of an unskilled laborer with a graded school training. This is not likely to attract young men, and what is more, it proves that the argument used by the Observer is false. For these men, practically all of them in our ministry in North Carolina, have had training quite equal, and many of them have far surpassed that of the most highly trained who are mentioned in the diagram aforesaid. Judging the value of an education by the same circle of reasoning as set forth in the Observer's article, i. e., by returns in income, religious colleges and theological seminaries are not only useless, but far worse than useless.

Now, I wish to say here that I personally have no such idea. I believe they have their place and are as necessary as either medical, law or technical colleges, but I am sure of this, such silly arguments as those used on page 727 of the Observer, and especially the illustration referred to, are not likely to induce young men to enter the ministry nor are they likely to be thereby drawn to religious colleges.

Then there is another thing to which I wish to call attention, namely, that in some of our Sabbath School literature there seems to be a lack of the sense of what is appropriate in many of the suggestions. In the July number of the Earnest Worker, page 360, the question is asked: "Do the members of your Sunday School have a chance to worship God?" and the question is emphasized by various suggestions. Then on page 417 in the August number of the same periodical we have a sample program for the instruction of the workers with adolescents, and in this program there is suggested the use of selections from two German operas. It may be the writer of that program can "Worship" God to the varied strains from Tannhauser, or to some of Schumann's operatic performances but some of the rest of us would be more content to try to teach religion with religious things. What has become of the grand old hymns of the church, and the great Oratorio's, that we must needs bring German propaganda into our Sabbath Schools. Some of us had begun to think that after the display of German tactics in the past five years we might be able to get along without bringing them into the house of God. It may be that what I have written is beside the mark, but it may be worth while to consider just where we are drifting, before we are too far away.

Lumberton, N. C.

Education and Life.

(Continued from Page 4)

spiritual power. There can be no doubt but that Christian education will prove a potent factor in stemming the threatening tide of materialism. But what is Christian education? Except for Bible schools and theological seminaries, no educational institutions devote more than a very small fraction of their time and energy to the teaching of subjects distinctly religious. In fact, there is little difference between the curricula of denominational and state colleges. Witness catalogue claims and announcements of courses. The term, Christian education, then, is a misnomer if applied to the course of study in the church school. It is applicable to the extent that the men and women who constitute the teaching force are genuinely Christian, no more and no less. Influence, life, example, are what count. It follows that the education in a church school may, sometimes, be less Christian than that in a state school. A church school has no valid reason for being unless unequivocally and uncompromisingly Christian in all its activities and in every official from the president to the humblest instructor. In its athletic program, its business management, its promises and professions as to educational standards, it must be transparently truthful, it must live in an atmosphere clean, clear and pure, above the blinding dust and stifling smoke of commercialism. Yes, it must be true to Him whose holy name it bears. If not definitely, positively and wholly Christian, the church school is like the lump of stone in the load of coal which weighs heaviest for the dealer but is at once the most costly and the most worthless for the consumer.

The point that I am trying to make is that education, no matter what the brand, is lacking in the peculiar power of imparting life. Feeding the mind on ancient lore or modern language, informing it with science, natural, political, social, mental or moral training in mathematical analysis, cannot evolve the kind of life for which the church of God stands, at which Christian education aims, and without which nothing is worth while. Everything after its kind is still law. That which is born of the flesh is flesh. It is not a question primarily of curriculum, of equipment, of ownership or control, but it is a matter of the teacher's attitude towards things spiritual.

Perhaps I may make my meaning plainer by a parable. I shall call it "Four Views of the Stars" and, in telling it, you will kindly permit me to regard this assembly as a large family circle as, otherwise, what I shall say would be too personal or too sacred to mention for, ere I am done, I shall recall fond memories and even handle with tender touch the wealth of immortelles that has long lain on a little grave.

"When a boy I thought the stars
Were candles held by angels bright."

It was then that I lived in the land of fancy, of fable and of make-believe. Poor and to be pitied the person who, too soon, passes out of childhood's fairy-land with its dreams, poetry and song, saying good-bye to the care-free hours of innocent, unalloyed enjoyment which rightly belongs to this period, and enters upon the matter-of-fact, prosy duties of this work-a-day world.

"Twinkle, twinkle little star,
Let me wonder what you are,
Up above the world so high,
Like a diamond in the sky."

The days went swiftly by and, in college, I studied astronomy. The same stars twinkled as of yore, but the observer occupied a different attitude. No longer a dreamer, I was a student, searching for truth, learning facts, acquiring knowledge. Farewell had been said to the imagry and imaginings of childhood. The candles in the sky had gone out forever, and in their places were gigantic suns, burning and blazing as they moved majestically through space with tremendous speed and at distances so vast as to stagger belief.

A summer vacation offered a third view of the stars. The scene changed from the observatory on the college campus to all out-of-doors in the Cumberland mountains. The ability to calculate eclipses and the orbits of comets, to determine time, latitude and longitude was to be used in the making of a living. Information was to be tested by efficiency. Both fancy and fact were to pay homage to the financial. Here was still another attitude. What can you do with your knowledge? was the question. What is your education worth? Not pleasure, not culture, but business had the right of way. A powerful syndicate had bought some valuable mineral lands and it had become necessary to locate with accuracy and precision a point on the boundary line between two states. This necessitated astronomical observations with subsequent deductions. Night after night the telescope was turned on the stars, the same that had twinkled merrily in boyhood and then, during the university days, had stolen very far away.

A few more years and the youth, grown to manhood now with wife and child, stood beside the cradle where lay the first-born baby boy and, with aching heart, heard the doctor say, "I don't think he'll breathe any more." That night I held in my arms the fast stiffening form of our little one, ours for two brief summers only, while the carriage swayed and reeled down the rock mountain road from the cottage at the summit to the girlhood home of the little mother in the valley below. Through the leafy branches of the trees overhanging the sorrowful way, the stars looked down with cold and pitiless stare or, it may be, in mute and tender sympathy. Kind friends clothed the wee body in white and put a rose in the folded hands, and we journeyed nearly four hundred miles that his last sleep might be in the bosom of Mississippi near by the place of his birth. As the train sped onward in the darkness, I looked through the car window at the stars and said to the companion at my side, "Never before did I feel so entirely certain of immortality." The word for the frame of mind in this last view of the stars was not fancy or fiction, facts, fame or fortune, but faith—faith in Him who made one star to differ from another star in glory.

What are the stars for? To be played with, to be studied, to be worked with, or to steady the soul and to stay it on the eternal One? How do they appeal to you? What word best describes your attitude towards them? Pleasure, power, pelf and profit, or prayer and praise? Fancy, fact, fortune, or faith?

Men's emotions and motives, aspirations and ambitions, purposes and plans, as related to education are not unlike the ones portrayed in this simple story of the stars. Is not the vital question, in either case, one of attitude or of emphasis?

I am not very greatly concerned with what my child studies, if, only, he remember that "man does not live by bread alone," that "a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things that he possesseth." Let him be a thoroughgoing student of natural science, if first, he know that "In the beginning God created," that man was made in his Maker's image, and that "In the beginning was the Word." Let him master all the philosophies of earth, if he will, provided always he clasp close the hand of Him who said, "I am the way, the truth, and the life." Let him take any kind of an education and make an honest living as he pleases, and I shall not fear, so long as he "labor not for the meat that perisheth" and "seek first the kingdom of God and His righteousness." Let him acquire all sorts and any amount of learning if only there may abide in his inmost soul that great trinity—faith, hope, love. Let him work with microscope or telescope, test-tube, scalpel, or what not. If, above and beyond these, he sees "the things which are unseen," remembering that the "things which are seen are temporal while they that are not seen are eternal."

President Wilson was introduced to the Senate of France as "The man having ideals." I cannot forget (nor do I care to, for therein, I firmly believe, lies the secret of his greatness) that he was the son of a preacher, a Presbyterian preacher, a Southern Presbyterian preacher. Oh, for the ideal, the vision, the dream, the mighty forces of the spiritual world! Give us these as they come uplifting, inspiring, and with saving power, from the leadership of Christian men and women in school, college and university, and I care comparatively little about the curriculum. "For though I speak with the tongues of men and of angels, though I understand all mysteries and all knowledge, and have not love, it profiteth me nothing."

MODERN PUNCTUATION—Its Utilities and Conventions. By George Summey, Jr., Ph.D., Associate Professor of English in the North Carolina State College, formerly managing editor of the North Carolina Review, page 277. $1.50. New York, London, Toronto, Melbourne and Bombay: Oxford University Press, 1919.

He who supposes that such a theme as that of the pointing of a sentence is too small for a dissertation of nearly three hundred pages will be quickly disabused by even a hasty glance at this handsomely printed volume. Its variety of subjects and wealth of citations and illustrations, and the extensive bibliography attached to it, show that the theme is worthy of serious attention. It deals with an everyday matter, too. The mass of readers, especially of the daily press and of the periodical literature of the day, hardly appreciate the value of the seemingly insignificant marks that punctuate all good writing or fully appraise the comfort that their correct use and uniformity lend to even the clearest style of writing.

Dr. Summey's basic principle, in this historical study, is to make of punctuation an art and not a code. He seeks to elevate it into something not to be practiced blindly, but intelligently, by all who speak through pen or type. His aim is not to present here any set of rules, or to use the imperative in his studies, analyses, and conclusions. This, indeed, may be the one fault of the book, and has been so characterized by a few technical critics of it, that it leaves the reader to question just what practice the author would have him follow. This feature, however, is intentional, as the book is designed to be a study of facts and principles, to be followed shortly by another work designed for practical use as a text book in schools and colleges and as a guide in editorial offices and on publishers' desks.

The author lays great stress upon the relation of the progress of thought to the pointing, and the bearing of the structural boundary at the line-end to the points within the line. This is simply the application to punctuation of the principle that governs the close relation between an end in thinking and its context. In this the author evinces his philosophical handling of his themes, and lays the foundation for an intelligent practice of the art which he teaches. In this and many other ways, he shows great breadth of thought and a scholarship which is rare in its fullness and accuracy. Among the specially interesting chapters and paragraphs are those on modifying elements, afterthought matter of ellipses, emphasis, and quotations. The careful reader will be surprised to find the importance of the theme, and to see the light which has been thrown upon it.

Says Dr. R. W. Dale: "We ask God to forgive us for our evil thoughts and evil temper, but rarely, if ever, ask him to forgive us our sadness. Joy is regarded as a happy accident of our Christian life, an ornament and a luxury, rather than a duty."

News of the Week

Home Circle

CHARLES DICKENS' ADVICE TO HIS BOY.

The past week has been enlivened by race riots, not only in Washington, D. C., left as a legacy from the preceding week, but they have also broken out in Chicago, where the whites and negroes have been bathing along the beach separated by an imaginary line. Several have been killed. The race feeling is spreading and to make it worse the fanatics in the North, assuming that the whites are the aggressors, are doing all they can to stir up antagonism. To prevent a possible recurrence of fires which on August 2 destroyed six blocks of homes of stockyard workers in Chicago, negro labor will be barred from the yards. There are 15,000 of these negro workers who will be debarred from returning to the yards.

Charles Dickens' youngest boy, Edward Bulwer Lytton Dickens, was born in 1852. When he was 16 years old he left home and went to Australia, says Thomas C. Richards in "Young Men and Prayer" (The Pilgrim Press). His father wrote him a letter of comradeship and advice, part of which is worth passing on to every boy leaving home.

In view of the trouble Chicago is having the Herald-Examiner of that city has wired Governors of Southern States asking that many negroes are wanting to return to the South asking how many the different States can absorb. Governor Bickett of North Carolina has replied giving the number that this State can take care of but adding that not one negro who has absorbed any of the ideas of social equality might in Chicago could be among the number.

"I put a New Testament among your books for the very same reasons and with the very same hopes, that made me write an easy account of it for you, when you were a little child. Because it is the best book that ever was or ever will be known in the world; and because it teaches you the best lessons by which any human creature who tries to be truthful and faithful to duty can possibly be guided. As your brothers have gone away, one by one, I have written to each such words as I am now writing to you and have entreated them all to guide themselves by this book, putting aside the interpretations and inventions of man. You will remember that you have never at home been harassed about religious observances or mere formalities. I have always been anxious not to weary my children with such things, before they were old enough to form opinions respecting them. You will therefore understand the better that I now most solemnly impress upon you the truth and beauty of the Christian religion, as it came from Christ himself, and the impossibility of your going far wrong if you humbly but heartily respect it. Only one thing more on this head. The more we are in earnest as to feeling it, the less we are disposed to hold forth about it. Never abandon the wholesome practice of saying your own private prayers, night and morning. I have never abandoned it myself, and I know the comfort of it."

It is reported that the President will begin his "swing around the circle" about August 5, though no authoritative statement has come from the White House.

FOR MOTHERS.

Governor Harrington of Maryland proposes to take some action against the profiteers in foodstuff, similar to that taken by Governor Cox of Ohio.

Nella Foss Ford, writing in the Mother's Magazine, has four "don'ts" in her vocabulary, which she wishes to impress upon mothers.

The Treasury Department will issue loan certificates for $100,000,000 each month. They will mature in five months and pay four and one-half per cent interest.

Don't, she says first, consider it necessary to systematically underrate your child. Your adult friends will know you do not mean it, but the child will not, and probably more characters are weakened by the lack of self-confidence engendered by such a process than by the vanity which follows the silly bragging of overfond parents.

The Pacific fleet now floats in the Pacific ocean, having successfully passed through the Panama Canal. The dreadnaughts which are the largest ships passed through without difficulty.

Don't think that the moment you are alone with your boy or girl you must find fault or endeavor to improve the occasion by a little moralizing, no matter in how loving a spirit. This is the hardest don't of all, for no one is so anxious to help a child toward perfection as is the parent, yet it surely leads to an avoidance of the moments alone together, which should be times of happy confidences.

The Berlin papers now claim that the Kaiser never did renounce his throne, but that Prince Maximilian, in order to avert the rising storm of revolution, took it upon himself to make this announcement.

Don't correct the child before others. Never mind if a well-meaning relative does say, "My dear, I am surprised that you do not show more force of character; your children are suffering from a lack of discipline." Pass the matter over until you and the small offender can have it out alone. If the circumstances are such that it cannot be passed over, take him out of the room.

Austria has requested the Peace Conference to extend the time given to reply to the second part of the peace terms.

Lastly, laugh often with, but never at, your child. This takes self-denial, but it pays. Make up your mind that whatever others may say, he can depend upon you for a quick, sure understanding, without quibble or joke at his expense. This does not mean that he must not take his share of harmless fun. It is wholesome, and too much sheltering would make him oversensitive; but the mother who lets her child know that she never makes fun of him will be surprised at the confidence with which he relies upon it.

General Mannerheim, known as the "Strong Man of Finland," has been defeated in the presidential race. This regarded as a victory for bolshevism.

The shipping strike which has tied up ships along the Atlantic coast for three weeks has at last been settled. An agreement on wages has been reached with the engineers.

The Americans have established 28 orphanages in Armenia.

The Arkansas Legislature, called in special session, has rejected the federal woman's suffrage amendment by a vote of 29 to 2 and in the House 76 to 19. This is the second Southern State to ratify.

According to Colonel Herron, who commanded the 15th Infantry who interred the fallen Americans in foreign soil, less than one-half of one per cent of the Americans who died in World War I were buried unidentified.

V. Thompson, connected with the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, says there are in Germany cotton spindles worth 10,000,000 ready to operate. They will be used during the coming year 1,000,000 bales of cotton.

John Henry Hilt Watkins took the oath of office as judge of the Federal Court of the Western District of North Carolina on July 28, in the presence of a few friends and members of the Anderson bar.

Epitacio Pessoa has been inaugurated as the tenth president of Brazil.

(Continued on page 10)

Sunday School

By Rev. H. G. Hill, D.D.

WINNING OTHERS TO CHRIST.

Golden Text—Acts 1-8, "Ye shall be witnesses unto Me both in Jerusalem and in Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth."

Acts 11:9-15; Jas. 5:19-20.

August 10, 1919.

Winning souls is the most important business done on earth. To win a soul for Christ, heaven, glory and eternal life, is the grandest achievement a human being can accomplish. It has more to do with his standing and happiness in Eternity than anything else he can secure. He may win wealth, fame, learning, and honor among men, and yet fail to attain what winning souls would bestow. The Apostle Paul was a wise and successful winner of souls. He was the chiefest of the apostles and "labored more abundantly than they all." No man of the apostolic age and few since that period have made so many disciples for Christ. Our lesson shows his mode of doing this work.

I. Paul Obedient to the Vision.

The Lord gave him a vision and revealed to him existing need, and where he should go. He saw in vision "A Man of Macedonia saying, Come over and help us." He was not disobedient to the heavenly vision, but immediately took steps to go where he was directed and to enter Philippi, the principal city of that region, and the place from which the Gospel could exert the widest influence. At the very outset of his mission the Holy Ghost had revealed Himself as the Commander in Chief of the world's evangelization, and at this crisis Paul showed himself a good soldier of the cross in promptly obeying orders. The Lord gave him vision of duty and how to perform it, and by promptly acting on this vision he secured marvelous success. In all departments of life, in business, in learning, in heroic struggle, as well as in religion, men succeed who without delay act upon their God-given vision. "The Kingdom of Heaven suffereth violence and the energetic take it by force." Energy or force is power in action, and many have much power but little energy.

II. Paul's First Sabbath in Philippi.

He was in a strange city. Where shall he go on the Sabbath? He was there not to see attractive places, not to obtain benefits for himself, but to win souls for Christ. There was no church or synagogue there, but there were some who worshipped Jehovah. He sought in the Sabbath day their company. He repaired to the place where prayer was wont to be made. Here he could become acquainted with brethren, obtain the most spiritual benefit for himself and have the best opportunity of exerting an influence for the Master and of winning souls. Had Paul not habitually sought the sanctuary on the Sabbath, even in strange cities, he would not have been so successful in winning souls for Christ. His is a good example in this respect for all Christians. Are you from home in an unknown place, seek the sanctuary on the Sabbath day and associate with those who worship Jehovah. By so doing you will know your brethren, satisfy your soul's needs, honor your Divine Master and aid in winning Him disciples.

III. Lydia's Conversion.

Among the women worshippers by the riverside near Philippi was Lydia. She was a worshipper of God from Thyatira, absent from her native place, but keeping house where she was. She was a business woman, a seller of purple dye or goods, and yet not too busy to remember her Divine obligations, and to worship Jehovah on the Sabbath day. Though a devout woman, she was not perfectly instructed as to Gospel doctrines and duties. She was like Apollos, who had to be taught by Priscilla and Aquilla, or the Ethiopian Eunuch, who was instructed by Philip the Evangelist. As the Lord provided persons to more fully instruct these, so He sent Paul to expound to Lydia the way of life. He spoke to her of the Gospel salvation and testified to Christ as the Saviour provided of God for all trusting souls. "Faith cometh by hearing and hearing by the word of God." The Gospel must be preached and expounded or there will be no conversions. Paul not only acted of his vision and sought the sanctuary, but preached the word in order to become a winner of souls. But even these agencies, needful as they are, will not make converts to Christ without one thing more. Divine Grace or Power must act on the heart. "No man can say that Jesus is the Lord but by the Holy Ghost." Hence we are told that "The Lord opened the heart of Lydia to attend unto things spoken by Paul." These things made Paul a wise winner of souls.

IV. The Results of Conversion.

What follows real conversion to Christ's discipleship? Lydia's case the first result was confession by baptism. She also dedicated her household to God. "She and her household were baptized straightway." Another result was fellowship. She shared the comforts of her home with God's servants, Paul and Silas. The Apostle James tells us other results of conversion. He says "He that converteth the sinner from the error of his ways shall save a soul from death and shall hide a multitude of sins." What nobler ends can be attained than saving a soul from eternal death and blotting out many and aggravated sins?

News of the Week.

(Continued from page 9)

Ex-Judge W. B. Council, of Hickory, N. C., announced that if Yates Webb is appointed Judge, he will be a candidate to represent this district in Congress.

The President, contrary to his usual custom, did not present the special treaty with France in person, but sent it by messenger.

The Senate smashed precedent in considering the Cobden treaty in open session. For a century treaties have been considered in secret session.

It is charged in Paris that the settlement in the Near East is being complicated by the absence of any definite indication of America's willingness to accept the mandate for Armenia and Constantinople.

Secretary Baker has been requested by Congress to release $120,000,000 worth of surplus foods, now held by the War Department.

In South Carolina the 26th of August has been appointed for holding the primaries. Congressmen are to be elected in the sixth and seventh districts. Ex-Governor Cole Blease refuses to enter the primaries, but will run as an independent candidate.

Austria has been granted seven additional days for considering the peace terms.

The Aberfoyle Manufacturing Company, of Chester, S. C., has provided ten scholarships for the textile school at North Carolina State College. The North Carolina Textile School is recognized as one of the very best in the South, and the Aberfoyle Company in establishing these scholarships is making an effort toward the greater textile development in the South.

The Corporation Commission of North Carolina has decided that the telegraph rates shall remain unchanged.

H. S. Cummings, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, after making a two months' trip through the Western States assures the President that these Western States are overwhelmingly in favor of ratifying the Peace Treaty without reservation.

The grand chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers gives the Government the alternative of either increasing the cost of living or else raising their wages.

The Senate and the President are still at loggerheads over the Peace Treaty, with the odds in favor of the President.

Christian Endeavor

The Prayer Meeting

By Rev. S. H. Hay.

By Rev. C. D. Waller.

- M., Aug. 11—Selling Through Bitterness: Exod. 16:1-13.
 T., Aug. 12—Through Weariness: Exod. 17:1-7.
 W., Aug. 13—Through Suffering: Job 1:1-22.
 T., Aug. 14—Through Love of Pleasure: Isa. 22:13.
 F., Aug. 15—Through Appetite: Num. 11:1-9.
 S., Aug. 16—Through Ambition: 2 Sam. 15:1-12.

TOPIC FOR WEEK BEGINNING AUG. 10, 1919:
 THE PRAISE DUE TO THE FAITHFUL—Rom. 16:17 to 20.

Topic for Sunday, Aug. 17.—How Do Men Sell Their Heritage?—Gen. 25:27-34.

What was regarded as Esau's heritage? It was the privilege of being the father's successor in family affairs. And in the case of this particular family the matter of chief importance and value was the right to be in special covenant relation with God. This was the privilege to which all thought Esau had the right. But he esteemed the blessing lightly, selling out for a mess of pottage. God was grieved, as we might expect, and Esau's life was ruined.

What is our heritage today? It is the right we have to a better life on earth and to heaven hereafter. This better life on earth consists of knowing Jesus, becoming more like Him, and working with Him for the salvation of souls. And heaven hereafter will still consist of knowing God, and being with Him forever in glory.

In our times the eldest son shares alike in privilege with all his brothers and sisters. All may enjoy as much of the glorious heritage as they will have. There is enough and to spare for all. But, alas, too many of us sell this good heritage for a mess of worldly pottage.

Men sell their birthright today, as they did in Esau's time, for the sake of bodily appetite. Gluttony, drunkenness, and other lusts still drown the souls of men, leaving them dead to the higher life which religion offers. It is a very solemn truth that all reap death who sow to the flesh. God's love has prompted Him to warn us from it, and to hearten us with the assurance that he that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap eternal life.

Men sell their heritage for what they wrongly call their liberty. They want to be free and unfettered by duty or the general rules of the church. They wish to live the broad and unrestricted life which leads to destruction, rather than follow the strait and narrow way that leads to life. They do not realize that the only way to enjoy our heritage is to become the willing slave of Christ, doing His will, not our own. When we do this, we discover that we are happier and freer after all, for when we insist on our own so-called liberty, we find ourselves slaves to a hard taskmaster who is the Devil.

Men sell their heritage for the world. It has so many pleasures and high places, and so much money-power, that we sometimes give ourselves up to the pursuit of it. Jesus knew we would, and He gave us timely warning. I think He was sad when He said to us, What will it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?

Does a church ever sell its heritage? Tell how.
 Give all the reasons that you can why Judas sold his heritage.
 Tell some things it costs to retain our spiritual heritage.

The most Pilate and Caiaphas could do was to kill the body of Jesus. Then the infinite love of God came rushing over the earth, that power at last greater than all, and that in which and with which men face and overcome evil.—J. H. Eccleston.

The commendation addressed by Paul to the Roman Church occurs in a parenthetical passage written to warn his correspondents probably against the Judaizers who had shadowed Paul's footsteps from province to province. It is of these perverters of truth that the apostle writes: "Whose god is their belly, and who mind earthly things." "If a man bring you into bondage, devour you, take of you, ye suffer it." "Beware of dogs, beware of evil workers." These men evidently had not yet begun to do their evil work at Rome; but it was as certain as anything that they would soon invade the Eternal City an arena of their pernicious activity. "I warn you as I have just done it is because the report of your obedience to the gospel having spread everywhere, those men will not fail to hear your church spoken of, and to break in on you to make gain of your faith, as they have done elsewhere." As he had previously written to them (1:8): "Your faith is spoken of throughout the whole world." Their evangelical faith rejoiced his heart: and he does not hesitate to commend them and to say how glad he is.

The example of Paul in commending what is excellent in his correspondents is one that should by all means commend itself to all of us. How often do we remember to blame the shortcomings of others while forgetting to commend whatsoever things are beautiful, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, of good report in them!

A guest recently observed that a father never failed to commend everything that was good in the actions of his children: and while a mild, firm discipline kept perfect order in the home, the children evinced an eager desire to win the praise of the father. How delightful was the atmosphere of that home, and how different from that of others where this guest had been entertained.

It is also a good example to the pastor and to the teacher. A lad was once won to study from idle practices by the wise attitude of a new teacher, who never failed in a word of praise for honest effort.

The problem of securing personal workers in the church is closely related to a just commendation for such workers by the pastor and elders. Some pastors seem to look with disdain upon such "tactics." But Paul's example is not to be lightly esteemed; and above all is not our Lord constantly saying to the faithful: "Well done, good and faithful servant; enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

And whether the pastor praises us or not, whether the elders take cognizance or not of our faithful efforts, let us never forget that our faithfulness cannot possibly go unnoticed and unrewarded. The encomiums of our Lord are sure, and are enough. It is the peculiar glory of Christianity to have placed faithfulness at the head of the virtues. This is a fact that will when properly recognized stimulate millions of humble followers of Jesus to unremitting efforts for the glory of God. Paul was a wise master-builder; but it is good to believe that his praise flowed spontaneously from the heart; it was not the result of subtle policy. Goodness, largeness of heart, and a genuine human sympathy are a tremendous asset in the minister, and in any man; and from such praise for faithfulness comes naturally and with good effect. We need not fear that such praise, honestly won and honestly bestowed, will do harm. Instead of ministering to pride, it will make men grateful, happy, and even more faithful in service. Then the father or the minister who does not praise faithfulness is in a poor position to administer warnings or blame when deserved. A minister once preached and preached against a form of worldliness; and the more he preached, the more the practice increased. He had no human sympathy—he never commended his people.

Presbyterian Standard

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, $2.50 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE.
REV. W. L. BOGGS, Circulation Manager.

PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY AT CHARLOTTE, N. C.,
ESTABLISHED JANUARY 1, 1858.

Entered at the Post Office at Charlotte, N. C., as second class matter.

A Religious Newspaper for the Family, Devoted to the Interest of Christ's Kingdom as Represented by the Southern Presbyterian Church.

CONTENTS OF THIS ISSUE

The Innocent By-Stander	2
The Romanist Protestants	2
The Pulpit as Judged by the Pew.....	3
A Teaching Ministry	3
Lowering the Pulpit	3
CONTRIBUTED—
Education and Life—By Alfred Hume.....	4-7-8
Schauffler Hall	5
“The Southern Presbyterian Church”—By W. C. C.	5
The Law and the Gospel.....	5
A Result of the Atlanta Laymen's Meetings.....	6
The Assembly's Committee on Systematic Benevolence and Stewardship—By Rev. W. F. Galbraith, D.D.	6
The Value of Education—By Rev. G. E. Moorehouse	7
DEPARTMENTS—
News of the Week	9
Home Circle	9
Sunday School—By Rev. H. G. Hill, D.D.....	10
Christian Endeavor—By Rev. S. H. Hay	11
Prayer Meeting—By Rev. C. D. Waller	11

ANNOUNCEMENT.

 The label on the paper gives the date to which subscription is paid.

When change of address is desired, give both the old and the new address.

When the date of the label is behind the date of this issue of the paper the label is a reminder that the subscription price is past due. When the date of the label is in advance of the date of this issue it is a receipt for the last subscription paid.

No charge is made for the insertion of marriage and obituary notices of fifty words or less. For all over fifty words remit at the rate of one cent a word. Correspondents are requested to give the post office address of married couples when marriage notices are sent.

Advertising rates furnished on application. The size and character of this paper indicate the size and character of its constituency. For reputable advertising there is no better medium for North Carolina and the most prosperous section of the South.

Church News

PERSONAL.

The pastor at Monroe, N. C., Rev. H. E. Gurney, is spending the month of August in the North, visiting his native place in Canada and other points. He will also attend the “Stony Brook” Conference on Long Island, N. Y.

Rev. Byron Clark, D.D., who recently underwent a very serious operation on his eyes, is improving. A recent editorial in the Clarkton, N. C., “Bladen Journal” will be of interest to Dr. Clark's many friends throughout the church:

“His many friends in Bladen are glad to see Rev. Dr. Byron Clark, of Salisbury, in their midst, and to know that there are strong hopes that he may have his eyesight restored. In fact he can now see to get along without help. He is one of the ablest ministers in the State, and a man that the whole of his native county feels proud of.”

NORTH CAROLINA.

Bensalem—A week's meeting will be held at Bensalem, beginning August 10, by Rev. Eugene Alexander, of Raeford.

Concord—Rev. H. F. Beaty, of McKinnon Church, has announced to the congregation that he is considering several calls and will offer his resignation within a short time.

Jackson Springs—Senior and Junior Christian Endeavor Societies were organized here this spring, and are doing good work among the young people. Ten members have recently joined this church by letter. The members of this church are eagerly looking forward to the meeting of Presbytery here this fall.

Rev. Frank B. Rankin has accepted calls to the Unity, Machpelah and Castanea Grove Churches of Kings Mountain Presbytery and will take up the work in this field at once. He has been very successfully engaged in Army Y. M. C. A. work for more than a year.—From Lincolnton Paper.

Lincolnton—Rev. W. R. Minter, D.D., of Austin, Tex., is on a visit to his former charge, expecting to preach for them August 3. Dr. Minter is greatly beloved by his old flock and will be heard with pleasure. Col. Adger Fair, who has just returned from France, on Tuesday, July 29, made an address before a union meeting in the Presbyterian Church on “The Religious Attitude of the Doughboy.” It was a lecture full of information and was greatly enjoyed.

Culdee—Beginning July 13, Rev. O. G. Jones assisted the pastor in a meeting at Culdee Church. Owing to severe storms and heavy rains, the congregations were not as large as usual, but Dr. Jones was at his best in presenting the plain Gospel message. He was compelled to leave Friday noon and the pastor, Rev. W. L. Wilson, continued the meeting till Sunday. The visible results of this meeting were 15 additions to Culdee Church on profession of faith in Christ.

Grover—This community has just experienced a gracious revival. The meeting began July 20 and continued through July 27. From the first the attendance was good and continued to increase through the last day when the church could not accommodate the crowds at both morning and evening services. The pastor, Rev. W. A. Murray, did the preaching. There were several professions of faith and a large number of reconsecrations. Sunday morning eight persons united with the church.

Old Franklin Church has had a gracious season of revival. Brother Neill McInnis, of Kannapolis, came to us on Sunday, July 20, and remained through Sunday, the 27th. He preached the old Gospel in great power and demonstration of the Spirit. The results so far are: Eleven accessions to the church; eight children baptized; reconsecration of the church members; the setting up of more family altars. The interest in and attendance on the services were good despite the heavy rains of the week.

Union Mills—This church has just had a precious revival season. Rev. F. B. Rankin, of Rutherfordton, N. C., preached here for eight days including the third and fourth Sundays of July. His messages were to the church and were heard by large congregations of the Presbyterian, Methodist and Baptist people of the community. One-half of the Presbyterian families now worship God in their homes. The future of this church looks bright.

J. L. B.

Newton—This church has just recently enjoyed a splendid revival. Rev. Leonard Gill, of Charlotte, did the preaching. Mr. Gill presented the word with clearness and power. The entire membership of this church was quickened and much lasting good will come from this meeting. There were several additions to this church and some in the other churches. The whole community felt the influence of the meeting.

A special collection for Synodical Home Missions was taken. Our people were especially liberal for this work, the collection being $167.

S. A. E.

Gastonia—Dr. J. H. Henderlite has declined the call to Savannah. The following from the Church Bulletin is what he says:

"The pastor is very glad to feel able to say to the congregation today that he considers it his duty to remain with this church. It has never been anything but a question of duty that had to be decided, and when duty and personal inclination thus coincide the result is a very happy one. Seven years' experience in Gastonia makes it a difficult and painful thing to leave. That the Lord may show His approval and sanction of this decision by strengthening our bonds of fellowship and service and richly blessing our united labors in the future, should be our earnest prayer."

Albemarle Presbytery—The constitutional requirements having been complied with, I as Moderator, do hereby call a meeting of Albemarle Presbytery at Rocky Mount, N. C., August 8, 1919, at 4 p. m., to transact the following business:

1. To act on the resignation of the Wilson pastorate by Rev. J. B. Massey, and if the way be clear, to dismiss him to the Presbytery of Lexington.
2. To arrange for any vacancies on committees that may be necessary by Brother Massey's dismissal.
3. To act, if necessary, upon any applications by candidates, to be received under call of Presbytery.

Peter McIntyre, Moderator.

Goldsboro, N. C., July 29, 1919.

"The Covenant Presbyterian Church of Lowell" was organized at Lowell, N. C., by a commission of King's Mountain Presbytery on Sunday afternoon, July 27. The commission was composed of Rev. G. A. Sparrow, chairman, Rev. W. J. Roach and Rev. J. H. Henderlite, with Ruling Elder J. H. Kennedy, of the Gastonia First Church. Some-thing over thirty members were enrolled, with others soon to follow. Messrs. P. P. Murphy and F. D. Phillips were elected, ordained and installed ruling elders, and Messrs. M. Robinson and A. W. Titman deacons. Rev. W. J. Roach will serve this church in connection with the Loray Church of Gastonia, dividing his time equally between the two. A committee was appointed to proceed once to secure a suitable lot and arrange for the erection of a church building. This new organization has good prospects of growth and usefulness, located as it is in the thriving mill town of Lowell.

Rocky Mount, First Church—At a recent service two elders and five deacons were ordained and installed. Mr. L. Tillery and Prof. R. M. Wilson, formerly deacons, were elected into the eldership; Mr. H. H. Littrell was installed as deacon, and Messrs. R. B. Spencer, B. J. Weatherford, J. A. Edgerton and C. C. Clough were ordained and installed in the latter office. At the same service, the force of the city attended in a body.

The names of thirteen persons were announced at the communion as having united with the church during the quarter. Two of these were on profession of faith, by restatement, and nine by letter. A changeable letter steel bulletin board, mounted on the lawn of the church, has elicited much favorable comment, and it is preaching day by day to the passers-by.

Sunday night, July 27, the first of a series of outdoor union services was held in Braswell Park. Churches participating are the First Presbyterian, First Methodist, First Baptist, Christian, and Episcopal. The music was led by members of the various choirs of the city, and instrumental support was given by several pieces—violin, clarinet, trombone and cornet. The sermon of the evening was delivered by Rev. Frederick Diehl, of the Church of the Good Shepherd, from the text, I Corinthians 13:13—"The Greatest of These is Charity." The attendance was gratifying, being much larger than the naturally anticipated congregations of all the churches combined.

Prospect Church—On last Sunday night, 27th inst., I closed a delightful meeting in Prospect Church. Great congregations attended the services twice every day for eight days, and splendid interest was manifested throughout the entire meeting.

The following are some visible results of the meeting, viz: Professions, 19; definite reconsecrations, 176; church letters removed, 6; volunteers for the ministry or mission work if God opens the way, 3; offering for Presbyterial Home Missions, $37.80; additions to the Prospect Church, about a dozen or more. Others will join other churches.

J. M. Clark,

Supt. and Evang. of Concord Presbytery.

Davidson—The union meeting held here during the past ten days, conducted by Rev. L. B. Thompson, of Statesville, and his co-worker, as leader of the music, Rev. Mr. Allen, of Granite Falls, came to a close last week. As already announced Mr. Thompson came on invitation of the churches of the town to conduct a series of services under a tent. Cottage prayermeetings during the week preceding the services had been well attended and evidenced a sincere desire of the community for a great and gracious revival. As a further proof that the Christian people of the town were in earnest in their desire to have the unconverted reached as never before a complete census was taken of all persons over 12 years of age not in the communion of the church and upon the completion of this census, showing something more than ninety names, committees were appointed for every section of the town and practically every one of the ninety was approached and urged both to attend the meetings and to make a profession of faith. The results from this systematized endeavor, the earnest preaching, the appealing and beautiful song services and the unceasing activity of the Christian people of the town, under the blessing of God, are that between 80 and 100 people, many of them children of course, have made a public profession of faith in Jesus Christ.

In many ways the meeting has been the most effective in reaching the unsaved of any held here since the Pearson meeting many years ago. The ingathering into the churches is a challenge to the faith and the zeal and the activity of Christian people everywhere in whose communities there are scores of unreached persons, persons that can be reached in the providence of God, if prayer and faith and work are all combined. This great meeting at Davidson that in a quiet but none the less effective way has moved the entire town, high and low, educated and uneducated, well-to-do and poor alike, grew out of a sermon preached by Dr. Richards urging his people to reach out after the unsaved. That exhortation was taken up by one of his members, who suggested that the town be worked as an insurance man would work it, thoroughly, systematically, carefully, individually and in confident faith in God.

The suggestion was heartily approved by the pastor and his session. The idea was presented to the pastor of the Methodist church and he and his people endorsed the movement and promised their full co-operation. Various committees were appointed. A complete program was mapped out and the undertaking pushed along despite a good many seemingly serious obstacles to its success. There are none in Davidson today to deny that there has been wrought in the town a wonderful work of grace and there is therefore gratitude to God and rejoicing in many glad hearts. No one would make absurd claims and pretend that the town is now a holy place, full only of saved sinners or saints, but unquestionably the meeting will long linger in the memory of the Davidson people as a great event in the religious life of the town. The visiting ministers for their faithful and acceptable labors have the grateful thanks of the town, and in testimony of this gratitude a suitable purse was presented to them.

Rev. and Mrs. Thos. K. Currie and child, of Columbus, Ga., have arrived here to spend a month with relatives. They will occupy the residence of Professor Reed.

Dr. (Lieut.-Col.) and Mrs. J. W. McConnell and son, Courtney, have returned home from Baltimore and Fort McHenry. Dr. McConnell is on a sick furlough, still awaiting his discharge, conditioned apparently upon his restoration to normal health. In recent months he has had some unpleasant but not dangerous experiences, the result of injuries he sustained with a fellow officer at Camp Jackson more than a year ago when he was struck by a runaway horse, prior to his going to France.

Applications for rooms on file in the President's office indicate that Davidson will most likely have the largest enrollment in her history next year.

It is pleasant to know that as going to balance the loss of Coach Wm. Fetzer, the college will have as athletic director Major L. B. Crayton, a well known athlete of the Davidson campus and since graduation coaching two years at Fishburne, in Virginia, prior to his going to France.

Durham—Rev. E. R. Leyburn, D.D., for seventeen years pastor of the First Church, Durham, N. C., has received a unanimous and hearty call to the First Church, Rome, Ga. Dr. Leyburn has signified his acceptance of the call, subject to the action of his Presbytery, and plans to take up his new work October 1.

Charlotte—Rev. Daniel Iverson, pastor of the church at St. Matthews, S. C., has been given a very hearty and unanimous call to the pastorate of the Tenth Avenue Church of this city, to succeed Rev. J. S. Sibley, DD., who recently resigned to accept a call to Waycross, Ga. Mr. Iverson has been the pastor of the St. Matthews church since leaving the Seminary. He is a preacher of ability and a zealous and enthusiastic worker. He is no stranger in Charlotte, having served as religious director for a number of months at Camp Greene, where he did very effective work among the soldiers. It is earnestly hoped by the congregation that he may accept the call extended him. For the present month the pulpit of the Tenth Avenue church is being supplied by a former beloved pastor, Rev. A. R. Shaw, D.D., who served this church during a long and successful pastorate. He has been given a most cordial welcome on the occasion of his return.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

Wedgefield—Dr. S. C. Byrd is supplying the Wedgefield Presbyterian Church during July and August.

Fort Lawn—The pastor was assisted in a meeting of eight days by Rev. R. C. Reed, D.D., of Columbia Seminary. There were two accessions to the church by profession.

Columbia—Chaplain J. Sprole Lyons supplied the preaching at Arsenal Hill Presbyterian Church last Sunday in the absence of the pastor, Rev. W. H. Boggs. He did his work greatly to the satisfaction of the congregation. The evening service was in the open air across the street from the church.

At this service Chaplain Lyons told something of his experience in France, and what he said was not intended to inspire love for the German Army.

Nazareth—This historic old church reports for the past year 145 members (of whom 140 are resident), giving $438 Foreign Missions, $189 Assembly's Home Missions, $91 Presbytery's Home Missions, $79 Christian Education and Ministerial Relief, $134 Sunday School Extension and Publication, $40 Schools and Colleges, $10 Bible Cause, $150 Orphans' Home, $209 Miscellaneous Benevolences, $46 current expenses and Presbyterial tax, $600 pastor's salary. Added on examination three. Attendance is quite good and improving.

Oakland Avenue—The following officers have been installed recently in Oakland Avenue Presbyterian Church, of which Dr. Alexander Martin is pastor: Elders, Ira B. Dunlap, R. S. Hanna, T. A. Quantz, A. D. Gilchrist; deacons, S. R. Spencer, J. Roy Barron, S. Geo. Moore, O. S. Poe, H. Loraine Simrill, W. J. Roddey, Jr.

York—This congregation has granted the pastor, Dr. E. E. Gillespie, a month's vacation and his organized Bible class of men presented him with a check for $150 to be used on a trip in any way he deems best. He leaves for Montreal this week with his family, to be absent from the city for part of his vacation. This generous act of his class is but one of the many expressions of loyalty and kind thoughtfulness on the part of this congregation.

Beersheba—Rev. Geo. F. Robertson, of Pineville, N. C., is assisting Rev. J. L. Yandell this week, commencing Monday evening. Dr. Robertson held a meeting in this church about two years ago and very greatly endeared himself to all the people. The prospects are good for a most gracious meeting.

Antioch—The church here reports 104 members (88 being resident), the last year raising $144 for Foreign Missions, $81 Assembly's Home Missions, $35 Presbytery's Home Missions, $34 Christian Education and Ministerial Relief, $38 Sunday School Extension and Publication, $17 Schools and Colleges, $7 Bible Cause, $6 Orphans' Home, $40 Miscellaneous Benevolences, $11 current expenses and Presbyterial tax, $200 for pastor's salary. Our work here is developing nicely and the prospects are brightening.

Reidville—The report to the Presbytery of Enoree shows that, with 179 members (of whom 157 are resident), this church the past year gave $613 to Foreign Missions, $57 Assembly's Home Missions, $116 Presbytery's Home Missions, $115 Christian Education and Ministerial Relief, $9 Sunday School Extension and Publication, $187 Schools and Colleges, $10 Bible Cause, $123 Orphans' Home, $440 Miscellaneous Benevolences; and $199 for current expenses and Presbyterial tax, $698 pastor's salary. Additions on examination nine, by certificate three. Fresh interest is being manifested in the work under the leadership of Rev. C. O. Martindale, the pastor not only of this church but also of Nazareth and Antioch Churches. This group furnishes an opportunity for genuine service.

Sullivan's Island—This is one of Charleston's beautiful watering places and is much sought after. It was my privilege to preach for them and I found a well organized Sabbath School of 80 children. They were well up in their lessons, as they had a good, live superintendent. I think was an old-time Presbyterian elder who knew well how to hold the children and they seemed to love him. At preaching service, the house was well filled with attentive hearers who heard the message and seemed to appreciate the same. We did not have all of the Island out. Oh, This Island and Isle of Palms on that Sabbath had over a thousand people on them, but they were the pleasure seekers.

(Continued on Page 16)

The Story of a Praying Woman

The late Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman told this story at Montreat:

"When I was called to the Bethany Church in Philadelphia, I asked, soon after arriving, at the conclusion of my morning sermon, for volunteers for any kind of service that could be rendered. Mr. Wannamaker came and tendered his carriage day or night (this was before autos), others came and offered other forms of service. And the congregation had about all gone when I noticed an old woman lingering to speak. I went up to her and she said: 'Pastor, I have no money to offer, and am unable to work, but at the head of the little stairway in my home is a small room. You will see it when you come. I want you to know that every day at noon I will be in there talking to the Lord about you.' Then she left. I want to tell you that this was the greatest help I had at Bethany Church."

There are lots of people in North Carolina not able to give much money for the Million Dollar Fund for Christian Education. But they can pray.

Will you not join that increasing number praying for this, the greatest effort the Presbyterian Church of North Carolina has ever undertaken?

AIMS

1. To help North Carolina Presbyterians, 50,000 strong, to appreciate the fundamental place of the Christian college in training effective Christian leaders.
2. To visit practically every member in every church in the Synod of North Carolina; to discover and enlist many friends able to give largely; large numbers able to give in small sums; hosts willing to pray and work.
3. To reach the minimum goal of One Million Dollars within the time limits.

PRAY

1. That God may be honored in all the methods, efforts and spirit of the Campaign.
2. That the money secured may be so given as to bless the givers as well as the colleges.
3. That many young men and women may be inspired to enter one of these Christian colleges for better preparation for their life's work, and that through these colleges many may find God's plan for themselves.
4. That the men directing the Campaign—the committee: Mr. A. M. Scales, of Greensboro, chairman; M. E. Melvin, the manager, and all the men who work in the field—may have God's blessing upon them and His direct leadership in this great effort; that they may be wise, patient, tactful and victorious—and helpful.
5. That the Campaign may kindle many fires among the Presbyterians of North Carolina that shall light up the darkest parts of the earth.

PRAYER PLEDGE

Believing in the fundamental importance of Christian Education; interested in the success of the Million Dollar Campaign for our schools in North Carolina; with faith in God and the power of prayer, I covenant to pray daily, or as near thereto as possible, for the success of this effort.

Name _____

Address _____

Date _____

(This pledge will be kept in confidence and not used publicly)

Will you not sign the attached pledge and mail to Headquarters? You can pray as well without signing it, but we can work better and harder if we know you are praying.

Campaign Headquarters
Presbyterian Schools
Greensboro, N. C.

Church News.

(Continued from Page 14)

ers of America. This generation has forgotten the Sabbath and the God of their fathers. They worship the goddess of pleasure and some seek after gold, and they seem to be getting what they desire—Ecclesiastes, eleventh chapter and ninth verse. James Bussell.

James Island Church—This church is about ten miles from Charleston on a large island, with fine farms on it which grow long staple cotton and rice. They have a handsome brick church, just in the middle of the island, and a fine congregation of well-to-do farmers and Presbyterians of the old stamp. I preached for them, held meeting of session, and received one young man. The session requested a congregational meeting to be held on the first Sabbath in August at 4 p. m. Preaching by Dr. Melton Clark, at which service he will moderate a call for the services of Rev. A. C. Bailey, of Edgefield, S. C., as pastor for this charge. They will give him a comfortable manse, as they wish him to live among them. They are a people who will appreciate good preaching. There are good fishing grounds around this island. Peter did good work around the Sea of Galilee. In one time he led three thousand souls for Christ. Mad God guide Brother Bailey to this field and give him many souls for his hire. The voice of the people is the voice of God; come help them. James Russell.

Bishopville—The Christian Endeavor Society of the church at Bishopville, of which Rev. L. L. Legters is pastor, has a remarkable record in the matter of producing life work recruits. This society has never had more than twenty-five members at any one time, and yet from this membership have come the following: One young woman missionary in China; three young men in the seminary, two preparing for the foreign field, one under appointment; one young man in Johns Hopkins preparing for Africa; one young woman, junior in college, preparing for a foreign field; one young man, freshman in college, preparing for medicine in China; one young man, sophomore in college, and another young man, junior in college, preparing for the ministry; one other member of the society supporting a native worker in China, and still another volunteered for the field but could not be sent. "And," writes Mr. Legters, "we have a good crop coming up from the juniors and intermediates." We doubt if many churches can equal this wonderful record for life work recruits, which speaks volumes not only for Christian Endeavor as a challenge for life service, but for the remarkable pastoral work done by Mr. and Mrs. Legters.—Christian Observer.

ALABAMA.

Montgomery—At the July communion, Dr. McCaslin welcomed 37 new members into the First Church.

Eufaula—Rev. J. D. McPhail has declined the call recently extended him by the Demopolis Church.

Auburn—This church is vacant since the resignation of Rev. T. J. Hutchison. The pulpit is being filled each Sunday by visiting ministers.

Mobile—The pulpit of the Government Street Church will be filled July 13 by Dr. U. D. Mooney, of New Orleans, and on July 20 by Dr. W. A. McLeod, of Austin, Tex.

Shorters—Rev. C. K. Taffe recently held a most successful evangelistic meeting in the Calabee Church. There were a number of additions to the church and the membership much strengthened.

Alexander City—This group of churches, which have been vacant for several months, have recently called a pastor, and are eagerly hoping for his acceptance. This field offers a most inviting opportunity.

Montgomery—The East Alabama Home Mission Committee has secured the services of the Assembly's regional evangelist, Rev. J. McD. Lacy, for special evangelistic meeting. He is now engaged in holding meetings. Churches who desire his services should communicate at once with Dr. W. E. Hinds, of Auburn, Ala.

GEORGIA.

Rome—Rev. R. C. Reed, D.D., of the Theological Seminary, Columbia, S. C., and of the editorial staff of the Presbyterian Standard, is supplying the First Church of Rome during August. This church was left vacant by the resignation of Rev. G. G. Sydnor, D.D., who recently accepted a call to Charlestown, W. Va.

Atlanta, West End—Rev. R. F. Kirkpatrick, D.D., pastor. In spite of the advent of summer the work of this church has gone on almost without interruption. Practically all of church activities have been maintained with a high degree of efficiency, and interest, and the congregations at the Sunday services have been large. On a recent Sunday the congregation voted with great heartiness to increase the pastor's salary by $300, this being a second increase within twelve months.

Inman Park, Atlanta—Sunday afternoon, July 13, a commission of Atlanta Presbytery ordained and installed Mr. Norman Johnson as pastor of the Inman Park church. Rev. R. F. Kirkpatrick presided and preached the sermon; Rev. Ben R. Lacy delivered the charge to the pastor, and Rev. Carl Barth charged the congregation. Mr. Johnson is a recent graduate of Union Seminary, and begins his pastorate in this splendid church under the most auspicious circumstances.

Columbus—Our pastor, Dr. McElroy, will spend the month of August resting at Virginia Beach. At a congregational meeting recently held his salary was increased to $3,000 and the free use of our commodious manse. It was also decided to make considerable improvements in our house of worship, including additional class rooms for our Sabbath School. At this meeting of the congregation four additional deacons were elected, whose names are: Paul K. McKenney, James C. Fox, A. P. Wade and C. R. Medley. Mr. Geo. Hudson, student of Columbia Theological Seminary and son of our beloved missionary to China, Rev. W. H. Hudson, D.D., is giving his four months' vacation to the mission work of our church and he will have charge of our prayer meeting service during the absence of our pastor.

KENTUCKY.

A Sunday School Institute and Christian Workers' Conference for the Presbyterians of Kentucky will be held at Jackson, Ky., August 20-24, under the auspices of West Lexington Presbytery. Every church and Sunday School in the State is invited to send its pastor and one or more of its workers to this conference, which will be both an inspirational gathering and a school of methods. It is hoped that not less than five hundred delegates will attend the conference this year. Among the speakers that have already been secured are Rev. Drs. Henry H. Sweets, Egbert W. Smith and Homer McMillan, of our Assembly committees; Mrs. W. C. Winsborough, head of the Woman's Auxiliary; Rev. Dr. J. Ernest Thacker, the Assembly evangelist; Alfred D. Mason, of Memphis, and many others. The music, which will be an important feature of the conference, will be under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Harry P. Armstrong, of Pittsburg, who are experienced song leaders, and who will in the future be associated with Dr. J. Ernest Thacker in his evangelistic work. Mr. Thomas B. Talbot, superintendent of Home Missions for West Lexington Presbytery, will preside. Three conferences of especial importance will

Woman's Auxiliary

Conducted by Mrs. Jno. M. McIver, Gulf, N. C.

A WORD TO PRESBYTERIAL VISITORS OR COUNTY VICE-PRESIDENTS AS THEY ARE CALLED IN SOME PRESBYTERIALS.

While in the large town and city churches this may not be the best season for aggressive work, in our country churches it is. Most of the evangelistic meetings are held in these churches during the summer months and the Presbyterian visitor would have a splendid opportunity of meeting the women of the missionary societies if she could attend these meetings in her county. She might arrange for an afternoon meeting of the women; help them plan the work for this year and start them on the new plans now, not waiting until October, when six months of the church year has gone. Tell them about the meeting of the Presbyterian and of the outstanding features of the meeting—possibly the few that I suggest were common to all of the meetings: "The Discussion of the Auxiliary Circle Plan," its splendid adaptability to our large country churches as well as to the town and city churches, the adoption of a questionnaire for the delegates instead of the old "narrative reports," the report of the delegate to the Tuscaloosa Conference, the school for negro girls that the Southern Presbyterian women are going to build, the addresses by the Home and Foreign missionaries, etc. You may say that the delegate to the Presbyterian is supposed to do all of this. Well, I know she is, but sometimes you know there are not even all of the members of the society at the meeting when she makes her report, so you see you have a great advantage in speaking to all or most of the women of the churches. And be sure and tell them of the wonderful increased interest in our young people's work, the young people present will want to hear about this and there are always lots of them at these meetings in the summer, of the splendid conferences at Charlotte for young people of the North Carolina Synod, and the one at Montreat. The very best speakers and leaders at both conferences that could be had—225 delegates at Charlotte and 289 at Montreat. Find out how many churches in your county did or did not have a delegate at either of these conferences. Make this one of your goals for next year, "Every church in my county a young people's organization, with a delegate at one or more conferences." If you cannot visit the churches during these evangelistic meetings do it sometime during the early summer. Take with you some attractive literature, and be sure and take a number of "The Woman's Auxiliary Service Cards"—40 cents per 100; Woman's Auxiliary, 520 Delmar Building, St. Louis, Mo. One Presbyterian secretary of literature had 100 of these cards at meeting of Presbyterian, and gave them to the visiting delegates. I know of nothing that has come out in connection with our woman's work that is so calculated as this little service card is to make a woman stop and think, and wonder, "Well, just what do I count for in the work of my auxiliary and church anyway?" Have you seen one of them? If you have not you want to, quick. There are eleven items, and at the bottom of the card is this: "If no item is checked it means 'I will do nothing.'" Think of that—not even "Attend Auxiliary meetings" (4) or "Secure subscribers for Missionary Survey or Church Papers."

The Presbyterian visitor should more and more magnify her office. Hers is a wonderful opportunity. Begin your work now. I know of one "Visitor" who has since the meeting of her Presbyterian in April written to the thirteen auxiliaries in her county, visited all but four, organized a Junior and Senior Christian Endeavor Society, gotten up a program for a Presbyterian Young People's "Rally" and planned for a Rally Day in October for the Auxiliaries in her county.

I rather think we will hear from that county when the reports come in next spring.

be held, these being known as "Mountain Workers' Day," "Sunday School Day" and "Woman's Day." Saturday night will be "Stunt" night, when both speakers and delegates will be given an opportunity to "perform" for the entertainment of the audience. The meetings of the conference will be held in the auditorium of Lees Collegiate Institute, and the delegates will be taken care of in the dormitories of that institution. Since the conference last year new lighting and waterworks systems have been installed, which will add much to the comfort of the delegates. Send your pastor and delegates from the Sunday School and other organizations of your church to this conference. It will not be expensive and they and the work of your church will be greatly benefited. For further information write to Mr. Thomas B. Talbot, Box 24, Lexington, Ky. Address inquiries concerning accommodations, rates, etc., to Rev. J. C. Hanley, Jackson, Ky.

TEXAS.

The Presbytery of Central Texas will meet in the First Presbyterian Church, Cameron, Texas, Tuesday, September 16, 1919, 8 p. m. Blanks for fall narratives will be mailed to clerks of sessions in due time. M. C. Hutton, S. C.

VIRGINIA.

Suffolk—On July 20 at a congregational meeting a unanimous call was extended to Rev. R. Beverly Eggleston, D. D., to become the pastor. Dr. Eggleston has been supplying this pulpit for the past fifteen months.

Richmond—The following Richmond ministers are away on their much needed season of rest: Rev. Dr. Cecil is in the New England States; Dr. McFadden in the Valley of Virginia; Rev. Chas L. King at Montreat; Dr. Fair in the mountains of Western North Carolina; Rev. H. J. Williams in the Western Virginia mountains; Rev. Dr. Mack is spending a couple of months in Western Virginia; Dr. Rice is taking his rest in Baltimore and Atlanta, while Dr. Lapsey is out in the Valley of Virginia.

East Hanover Presbytery—The evangelistic services being conducted by the various ministers and the superintendent of Home Missions are bearing fruit in a most encouraging manner.

Several mission points and churches in Rev. D. P. Rogers' fields have enjoyed quite a number of accessions on profession of faith. A specially good meeting was held with the Genito Church by Rev. Dan Graham; another one by Rev. I. J. Williams at the mission point of Matoax, in Amelia county.

The Hollywood mission, under the care of the Third church, Petersburg, had with them Rev. W. B. McMillaine, Jr. There were eight additions on profession of faith. A helpful meeting was held with the Bethany Church Charles City county. While the rain interfered, excellent congregations were had at each of the services until the last one, when the very heavens opened and put a stop to preaching.

WEST VIRGINIA.

Huntington—The First Church of this city is supporting thirteen representatives in mission work, Mrs. M. L. Swinert, of Kwanju, Korea, being the latest one added to the

EVANGELISTIC NOTES.

Rev. R. F. Kirkpatrick, Chairman Sub-Committee on Evangelism.

Following a very successful meeting in the First Presbyterian Church at Wilmington, N. C., in which there were

(Continued on Page 20)

Marriages and Deaths

Marriages.

Carver-Thorne—At the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Thorne, of Airlie, N. C., Lieut. Gordon Carver, of Durham, and Miss Lula Thorne, by Rev. J. M. Millard, of Littleton, N. C., July 22.

Rogers-McMurray—At the pastor's study, First Presbyterian Church, Asheville, N. C., July 14, 1919, by Rev. G. A. Nickles, Mr. Benjamin L. Rogers, of Roebuck, S. C., and Miss Ethel McMurray, of Lancaster, S. C.

Deaths.

Currie—Died June 26, 1919, Charlotte, N. C., Edward Womack Currie, M. D., of Salisbury, N. C. Born October 17, 1877. Second son of Rev. James L. Currie, deceased, and of Violet W. Currie.

Phillips—At her home in Manley, N. C., on May 8, 1919, Christian Shaw, wife of John W. Phillips, fell asleep after eighteen months of illness.

She was a daughter of Peter C. and Mrs. Rebekah Shaw, and leaves three children, Misses Mary and Cornelia, and William.

"Father, in Thy gracious keeping,
Leave we now Thy servant sleeping."

McInnis—Anna McInnis, age twenty-two months, and daughter of D. B. and Myrtle Robertson McInnis, died at the home of her parents near Clio, S. C., July 10, 1919. She was a bright, gay little girl who endeared herself to everyone she met with, and the sympathy of the entire community goes out to her parents and loved ones in their sudden bereavement. She has joined the throng of angels around the throne of God in Heaven.

Men do not enter heaven because they have seen the shadow of the Sovereign, but because they have embraced and loved and served the Saviour.—Joseph Parker.

IN MEMORIAM.

Isabell McQueen.

Since God in His Almighty wisdom has seen fit to remove from our midst our dear friend and co-worker, Isabell McQueen, we, as members of the Junior Auxiliary of Rowland Presbyterian Church, wish to express our love for her and our great loss in her death. She died at her home in Rowland on July 10, 1919, after several months of intense suffering. She was a devoted member of Rowland Presbyterian Church, having joined Carolina Presbyterian Church at the age of eleven, and later moving her membership to Rowland. Her lovely Christian character was beautifully portrayed all her life, and especially during her recent illness when her suffering was so great she bore the pain without a murmur, and so ended on earth this beautiful life to begin anew in heaven. The funeral services were held at Carolina Church and were conducted by Rev. John McSween.

(Signed) Thelma Hedgpeth, Aletha Bracey,
Margaret Robertson.

IN MEMORIAM.

Mrs. Martha McMurray Grey.

Mrs. Martha McMurray Grey "fell on sleep" at Davidson, N. C., July 16, 1919. Had she lived a few months longer she would have completed the four-score years allotted to the strong.

At an early age she confessed the Saviour and united with the Presbyterian Church at the home of her childhood in the State of Georgia. In 1884 she was married to the well known educator, the late Professor Hugh Alexander Grey, of North Carolina. To them were born two children. The first of them died very young; the second survives in Mr. Murray M. Grey, of Davidson, N. C., and grieving with him as sister and brothers are Professor Grey's children of a previous marriage:

Dr. W. R. Grey, Davidson; Rev. Jno. Grey, Bedford City, Va.; Parks, Charles and Miss Loula Grey, of Hendersonville, N. C.

Mrs. Grey was for a long time practically confined to her home, where she delighted to see her friends and acquaintances. She was always keenly interested in the life of her church. Her faith supported her to the end and even in semi-consciousness she was still quoting some of the previous promises of her Heavenly Father.

IN MEMORIAM.

Miss Flora Monroe.

Resolutions adopted by the Ladies' Missionary and Christian Endeavor Societies of Midway Presbyterian Church upon the death of our beloved associate, Miss Flora Monroe.

Whereas, God in his wisdom has seen fit to call from our midst our loyal worker. Resolved, that we feel deeply our irreparable loss. We will miss her helpful hand, that kind and loving face as she greeted us all.

Second. That her consecrated Christian life, so pure and unselfish, will ever be a blessing to our society, church and Endeavor. She was a loving mother, faithful sister, and self-sacrificing neighbor and friend of all.

Third. That we extend to the bereaved family our heartfelt sympathy, assuring them of our prayers, and may God watch over and comfort them in their loss.

"There was an angel band in heaven not quite complete,
So God took our loving friend to fill the vacant seat."

Fourth. That a page in our minute book be inscribed to her memory, a copy be sent to the local paper and a copy be sent to the Presbyterian Standard, and a copy to family.

Respectfully submitted,
Mrs. Duncan McCallum,
Mrs. N. J. McRimmon,
Miss Mary McRae.

Children's Department

A LITTLE WEE BROTHER.

Dear Standard: —

I am a little girl 11 years old. My school closed April 11, 1919. I have a dear little brother six weeks old. He is so sweet. I go to Sunday school at Barbecue Church. Miss Mary Thomas is my teacher. Hoping this won't reach the waste basket, as I want to surprise my parents. Sincerely, Marguerite Cameron.

Jonesboro, N. S.

DAN BOW NOT FOR SALE.

Dear Standard:

I am visiting up in Lincolnton. My name is Ann Macgill West. I am most five and a half years old the end of this month. I have a dog way down in Florida named Dan Bow. Our cook's name is "Cella." We sold our place but we didn't sell Dan Bow. I know Daddy wouldn't sell Dan Bow for anything. We don't know what to do with the ducks. I have a little sister named Isabel. I call her little tiny Isabel. I want to surprise my mamma and Daddy, so please put this in your paper.

Ann Macgill West.

Winter Haven, Fla.

BROTHER AT HOME.

Dear Standard:

This is my second letter to you. My brother, who has been in the Navy for eleven months, has come home. My school closed the 27th of June and w had a picnic. The same teacher is coming back next term.

I will close by answering Roslyn Southerland's question: The Sahara desert is the largest desert in the world.

Your little friend,
Santuc, S. C. Katherine White.

PICNIC TIME.

Dear Standard:

My daddy takes your paper and I enjoy the little girls' letters so much. I want to surprise mamma. I am five years old. I have two little brothers. My Uncle Clinton, who has been in France, is visiting us now. We are having heaps of fun picnicking. I have a red calf. My grandmother gave it to me. Your little friend,

Margaret Guy.

Newland, N. C.

GRANDMA'S BOY.

Dear Standard:

I am a little boy five years old. I stay with my Grandma most of the time and Aunt Patience reads the little letters for me. I enjoy them so much, sometimes I want them all read over the second time. I go to Sunday school at Ashpole every Sunday. Aunt Mary is my teacher. I have three little sisters and one little tiny baby brother. I love them so much. Your little friend,

Murray Hugh Moody, Jr.

Rowland, N. C.

THE SPOON AGE.

There was one thing that made the other little Taylors ashamed of Georgie. It was the way he behaved at table. Otherwise he was without blame. He played and worked with might and main. When the big snow came while his father was away and almost buried the little brown house where the Taylors lived, it was Georgie who first dug through the drifts so the milkman, the postman, and the butcher could get to the house. He spent his Saturday afternoons piling the kindling in long straight rows along the basement wall, while John and Elsie and little Martha were playing games upstairs. If his mother wanted an errand done in a hurry, she could rely upon Georgie.

But even hard work and lively play were no excuse for a little boy's forgetting himself at meal time. Grand-aunt Sarah Satterlee sent him a pretty solid silver fork on his birthday, but Georgie paid no attention to it, and ate his dinner usually with a spoon. It was an odd thing for a child to do. Mother pleaded, but it did little lasting good.

Just what might have happened if Uncle Thomas Satterlee had not come a-visiting I dare not say. Uncle Thomas was very wise. You could hardly ask him a question that he could not answer.

At dinner he looked at Georgie with his spoon. Over the rims of his spectacles curiously he looked as if here were a new specimen. All the other little Taylors looked at Georgie and at Uncle Thomas and wondered what would happen.

"Young man," said Uncle Thomas, "it seems to me that you belong to the spoon age."

"I am eight years old," said Georgie, turning red and dropping his spoon.

"Oh ho, are you?" said Uncle Thomas. "I never should have dreamed it. Perhaps you can tell me what year it is, and the country, also."

"W-why," stammered Georgie, wondering what this clever uncle meant, "this is America, and it's 1919."

"Dear, dear, what a mistake," sighed Uncle Thomas. "When I looked at you I was sure we were all back in old England in the year 1600, when little boys ate with spoons and knives, because forks had not yet been invented."

Georgie picked up his fork and looked at it carefully. The other little Taylors did likewise. Then John said:

"Do tell us about the spoon age, Uncle Thomas. How did people get along without forks?"

"Why, just the way Georgie does, I suppose," Uncle Thomas answered. "They dipped bits of bread in the gravy and meat juices. Then they wiped their plates with other pieces of bread. Besides, they had spoons and knives, though I should have thought they would have been afraid of cutting their lips or their tongues. Their knives were not silver ones like ours, but sharp, steel ones, worn thin by much use."

"Do you know, the first fork was brought to Venice by a princess who came from the East on a visit? The Italian people liked this new way of eating so much that forks were soon used all over Italy."

"Later on, Thomas Coryate brought some forks to England, but English people were still living in the spoon age. They preferred to eat their meat with their fingers. But in 1688 forks, we are told, were widely used. Even then they belonged only to noblemen, who owned perhaps a dozen or more and used them only on very great occasions, such as the visit of a king. A table fork was a great luxury."

Uncle Thomas leaned back in his chair and smiled at the eager circle of faces.

"Were their forks like ours?" asked John.

"No, the first ones had only two tines. Getting food from your plate to your mouth must have been a rather hard task. At last they began to make them with three tines. This was quite an improvement. Now we have all sorts of forks for all sorts of food."

Just then Nora brought in a creamy, crusty custard pie for dessert. When Georgie received his share he picked up his fork and began carefully to use it, as a little boy should.

"I am not going to live in the spoon age any longer, Uncle Thomas," he said.

"Fine, Nephew George," he answered. "You will please me very much if I hear from your mother you have kept your word for a year."

Uncle Thomas spoke to Georgie's mother alone after dinner, and the children knew something was in store for them. They waited month after month. It was a year to the day when, without any notice, Georgie saw in front of the house, tied to the hitching-post, all saddled and bridled and ready to ride, a pretty little bay pony. Fastened to the rippling mane was a note which said, "Be sure to give him his hay with a fork."—Pearl Howard Campbell, in The Christian Register.

THE ONE THAT WOULDN'T FUSS.

Mrs. Marshall was running some long tucks on her machine, and every time she got to the end of a tuck she stopped to fasten off her thread. And while the machine was silent she kept hearing a little voice below her window, talking in loud, angry tones.

"You are jus' horrid," said the voice, "I don't love you a bit."

And another time: "You are jus' as ugly an' stupid as you kin be—so there!" And about the end of the sixth tuck: "I've a great mind to knock you in the head."

"Dear me—dear me!" exclaimed Mrs. Marshall; "who in the world can this be that Daisy Bell is quarrelling with? I must call her in."

But when she put her head out of the window and called, "Daisy—Daisy Bell," a smiling little face looked up through the leafy bushes. "Who is that with you, daughter?" asked the mother.

"Nobody, mother dear, except Peggy-from-Paris," answered Daisy Bell, holding up her best doll. "I have been trying to get up a quarrel with her, but she won't say a word, and you just can't keep on fussing with a body that won't answer back."

"No, you can't," laughed Mrs. Marshall.

Another day the lady was writing a letter on the porch, but this time she was disturbed by the same sounds as before, only today somebody was answering back. Daisy Bell and her brother Wilfred were fussing over a croquet game.

"Come here, daughter, just a minute," said Mrs. Marshall; "I want to ask a favor of you."

The little girl came at once to her mother's side, and listened to something whispered into her small, pink ear: "Will you try it?" asked the mother, kissing Daisy Bell's cheek.

The little croquet player nodded and ran back to strike her ball. After that there was no more fussing.

Would you like to know what Mrs. Marshall whispered in the small pink ear? I will tell you: "Try Peggy-from-Paris' plan for not fussing!"

My little reader, I recommend the "Peggy-from-Paris" plan to you!—Sunshine.

Story and Incident

A Boy Wrote Home.

Herma N. Clark, in The Continent.

A FEW LINES a boy wrote home to his mother. How little he dreamed what great results they would have!

They put over the third Liberty loan in Chicago when it was lagging. They have been acclaimed as the finest expression of American patriotism written during the war. They have been read into the records of Congress for preservation to the country. Over thirty-five million copies of the words, including Liberty loan posters, have been printed, according to the estimate of a newspaper man. They have touched countless hearts all over the world and have led men and women in China, Australia, Africa, England and France, as well as in America to write their appreciation of the heroic sentiment expressed.

This boy was Dinsmore Ely, a Chicago lad, not yet out of college. He came of Scotch ancestry and was dedicated to God at a Presbyterian altar. He was truly a "happy warrior" always—not an excitable youth, who sought the aviation service because of its thrills, but happy in doing his duty and helping to save his country.

Dinsmore Ely was studying architecture at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology when America declared war against Germany and feeling at once that his place was at the front he joined an ambulance corps as the quickest way to get to France. Once over there, he transferred to the Lafayette flying corps, and after six months' training, he began flying with a French escadrille. He received a commission in the American Army, but was assigned, at his own request, as a detached volunteer officer, to go into battle with his old French escadrille. It was here in April, 1918, near Villa Coubla, France, that death came to him.

He is buried at Versailles, and on the stone that marks his grave are the words he wrote home only a few days before his death: "It is an investment, not a loss, when a man dies for his country."

A French woman, whose own son, an aviator, was reported missing early in the war and who has never had the consolation of knowing where his body rests, stood by this grave one day last November, the French equivalent of our Decoration day, and for hours translated the English words into French for the benefit of the crowds who paused to ask her what was written on the cross. This French friend has suggested that the whole message be put into French on a tablet. This suggestion Dr. and Mrs. Ely, parents of Dinsmore Ely, have accepted, and soon the noble words of the American boy—words comparable to Nathan Hale's, "My only regret is that I have but one life to give for my country," will speak to the French passersby from his grave in their own language.

These are the words which will be translated: "And I want to say, in closing, that if anything should happen to me, let's have no mourning, in spirit or in dress. Like a Liberty bond, it is an investment, not a loss, when a man dies for his country. It is an honor to his family, and is that a time for weeping? I would rather leave my family rich in pleasant memories of my life than numbed in sorrow at my death."

The words have spoken to mother hearts everywhere and one letter received by Mrs. Ely from a young mother is so touching that, in spite of its personal nature, permission has been given to present it here. If anyone, reading divorce statistics, despairs of the rising generation and fears the American home is a failure, let him read these words of a Chicago mother of five children, and take heart.

This mother wrote: "I am a stranger to you in name, but bound by the same ties of motherhood that are bringing so many mothers together during these war times. I, too, am the mother of a boy, but my boy is only a wee babe, just over three weeks old. I read in the paper of the beautiful bravery of your son, and of his fixed courage and valor for his country's cause. I conceived the idea that I would love to name my baby after your boy, because my boy came into the world to take up life's burden, just as God was preparing the heavenly roll call of your dear son. May I do this please?"

"My son is a fine, strong specimen of babyhood and already shows signs of a good soldier. He is the son of a Scotch family, and I'm confident he will not bring anything but good to the name of Dinsmore Ely. When he grows older, we will tell him all about the brave soldier he is named for. This is my fifth baby. I am only a young mother and have not yet had the heartaches of older mothers. Our children are all bonny and sturdy and normal, and we are a very happy family, although we must live very simply in our small four-room flat, and need also to plan carefully, to live within our Daddy's income of $17 a week. But we manage somehow. We only long to bring each child up to be a blessing and comfort, and, if need me, a sacrifice to the people of their country."

Again and again, though "above his grave the grass and snow their soft antiphonal strophes" have written for a year, echoes of the deathless words of the young aviator come to his friends, and in Baltimore recently this worthy comment on them was found on the bulletin of a Methodist church:

"Not lost but invested. What a sublimely tonic word! In the spirit of it we are asked, as good stewards, to think of our gifts and our sacrifices. When we contribute to a worthy cause, we are making an investment. When we spend our strength for the sake of others and for their good, we are not poorer but richer. We have put by, at heavenly interest rates, some part of the fund of life. When we worthily wear a crown of thorns, or triumphantly mount a cross, as our Master did, we are not victims, but conquerors. We have made the ultimate investment of life's greatest asset."

A boy wrote home, revealing the spirit that flamed within him, and that flame has kindled fires all over the world.

EVANGELISTIC NOTES.

(Continued from page 17)

140 confessions, and at Port Gibson, Miss., in which there were 88 confessions, Dr. Frank E. Fincher is engaged for the summer in an extended campaign at points in West Texas, which has been attended by the most blessed results. The indications are that this campaign will result in between 300 and 400 confessions.

During the month of May, Rev. Geo. W. Belk conducted a very successful meeting at Farmville, Va., in which there were 51 professions of faith.

Rev. Trigg A. M. Thomas, D.D., has just concluded a meeting at Beale Heights Church, Lawton, Okla., with 36 professions of faith, 27 of whom united with the Presbyterian Church.

Rev. R. A. Brown continues his labors among the weaker churches in Arkansas and Oklahoma, and his efforts are meeting with increasing favor.

Dr. W. H. Miley, after completing a most successful campaign in the smaller churches of Charleston Presbytery, has entered upon a two months' campaign in West Hanover Presbytery, beginning at Orange, Va.

The Department of Evangelism is very fortunate in securing the services of Rev. J. McD. Lacy for evangelistic work for a period of three months. Mr. Lacy has only recently received his discharge as a chaplain in the American Expeditionary Forces, and it is confidently believed that he is going to prove a valuable addition to the Assembly's evangelistic force. Mr. Lacy enters upon his labors at once.

ARMY NURSES PLAY GOOD BASEBALL.

"Army nurses make splendid baseball players."

This is the statement of Miss Mary H. Pope, Y. W. C. A. secretary, who is directing the recreation of army nurses at Camp Mills and Aviation Field No. 2, where large numbers of nurses are stationed.

"When I first came to the camps I was surprised at the lack of play spirit among these nurses and their eagerness to be initiated into it. One girl came to me and said she never knew 'just girls could have so much fun together.' When we began to play baseball they forgot all of the reserve that has come with the intense nature of their work and they have flung themselves into the spirit of the game with remarkable results."

Army nurses who are arriving in New York City every few days from overseas, are being well taken care of and entertained by the Y. W. C. A. Boat rides on the Hudson River, sight-seeing trips over the city, theater parties and teas are among the attractions which the Y. W. C. A. offers as a welcome to nurses.

An information bureau at Hotel Alton furnishes information to nurses assistance in finding comfortable places to stay during their visit in New York. Nurses are not only directed to places of interest in New York, but they are given booklets showing the varied Y. W. C. A. privileges open to them. Among them are: swimming pools, tennis courts, use of sewing machines, laundryettes and ironing boards, magazine rooms and libraries, rest and writing rooms, host-esses, nurses' club rooms, cafeteria and living quarters.

Except for damage to eyes and time involved in moving picture is not necessarily an advantage. Yet, with the photoplays what a great influence on the young is being made. In Chicago 237 school teachers were asked questions concerning the effect of moving pictures upon children. Some of the answers in the survey are here tabulated:

What effect do the films have on children's views of life and duty? 20; yes with reservations, 24; no report, 39; non-committal, 26. Bad effect on modesty and purity: Yes, 97; no, 24; yes with reservations, 11; no report, 29; non-committal, 23. This is Christian America. In Japan there is some attempt to improve the films. Recently the Tokyo censors killed 17 murder scenes from imported plays, and in six months annulled 2,350 kisses. It is said that the only osculation left intact was the one granted to Christopher Columbus by Queen Isabella!—New York Advocate.

Do the photo-plays weaken respect for authority? Yes, 84; no, 62; yes with reservations, 85; no report, 18; non-committal, 15.

Do they influence sex? Precocious on sex, 112; no, 27; yes with reservations, 39; non-committal, 35; no report, 1.

Do they influence marriage ties? Yes, 75;

no, 20; yes with reservations, 24; no report, 39; non-committal, 26. Bad effect on modesty and purity: Yes, 97; no, 24; yes with reservations, 11; no report, 29; non-committal, 23.

This is Christian America. In Japan there is some attempt to improve the films. Recently the Tokyo censors killed 17 murder scenes from imported plays, and in six months annulled 2,350 kisses. It is said that the only osculation left intact was the one granted to Christopher Columbus by Queen Isabella!—New York Advocate.

I thank Thee that I learn Not toil to spurn; With all beneath the sun It makes me one— For tears, whereby I gain Kinship with human pain; For Love, my comrade by the dusty ways, I give Thee praise.

—Emily Read Jones.

"The secret of hypocrisy is the desire to appear well without being willing to pay the price of being right."

STATEMENT SKANDINAVIA INSURANCE COMPANY COPENHAGEN, DENMARK.

Table with financial data: Condition December 31, 1918, as Shown by Statement Filed. Amount of Capital paid up in cash... $ 400,000.00. Amount of Ledger Assets December 31st of previous year... 2,042,668.78. Income—From Policyholders; $4,920,212.87; Miscellaneous, $575,382.80; Total... 5,495,595.67. Disbursements—To Policyholders, $1,531,467.33; Miscellaneous, $1,546,878.32; Total... 3,078,345.65.

ASSETS.

Table with asset details: Value of Bonds and Stocks... $3,376,033.12. Deposited in Trust Companies and Banks not on interest... 150,268.13. Deposited in Trust Companies and Banks on interest... 90,334.39. Agents' balances, representing business written subsequent to October 1, 1918... 499,174.26. Interest and rents due and accrued... 44,685.20. All other Assets, as detailed in statement... 344,108.90. Total... $4,504,604.09. Less Assets not admitted... 11,783.12. Total admitted Assets... $4,492,820.88.

LIABILITIES.

Table with liability details: Net amount of unpaid losses and claims... $ 541,735.47. Unearned premiums... 3,066,087.66. Salaries, rents, expenses, bills, accounts, fees, etc., due or accrued... 30,000.00. Estimated amount payable for Federal, State, county, and municipal taxes due or accrued... 12,435.85. Contingent commissions, or other charges due or accrued... 2,500.00. All other liabilities, as detailed in statement... 1,373.97. Total amount of all Liabilities except Capital... $3,654,132.95. Capital actually paid up in cash... $400,000.00. Surplus over all liabilities... 43,887.93. Surplus as regards Policyholders... 838,687.93. Total Liabilities... $4,492,820.88.

BUSINESS IN NORTH CAROLINA DURING 1918.

Table with business data: Fire risks written, $5,255,399.00; Premiums received... $ 38,531.48. Losses incurred—Fire, $25,731.77; Paid... 26,178.71. U. S. Manager, Sumner Ballard; Home Office in U. S., New York City; Manager for North Carolina, Home Office.

STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA, INSURANCE DEPARTMENT.

I, James R. Young, Insurance Commissioner, do hereby certify that the above is a true and correct abstract of the statement of the Skandinavia Fire Insurance Company, of Copenhagen, Denmark, filed with this Department, showing the condition of said Company on the 31st day of December, 1918.

Witness my hand and official seal, the day and year above written.

JAMES R. YOUNG, Insurance Commissioner.

THE ORPHANAGE AT MT. ZION.

Upon a hill that overlooks the Holy City, the Mount of Olives, the mountains of Moab, and the hills back of Bethlehem, is the home for children orphaned by the war. The Mount Zion Home was founded several months ago by the American Red Cross Commission for Palestine, but has since been entrusted to the Juniors to maintain. They have adopted the home fully equipped with orphans. The running expenses are to be provided for by the school children of America out of the million dollar fund which they have pledged to carry on their works of relief this year for children throughout the world. Their little proteges have seen months, even years of hardship, cruelty and fear. But their future will be one of rosy promises, as the dream of their proud American sponsors, the Juniors, gradually unfolds. First, there is the home where they have care and love and laughter that they may become physically normal girls and boys again; secondly, a school and a church where they may study to become powers for good in the world. This is only one of the many undertakings of the Junior Red Cross to start European children on the road to a happier life.

CHURCH ENVELOPES. Double and single envelope systems. Samples and prices sent upon request.
Double Envelope Corporation, Roanoke, Va.

Meredith College
Raleigh No. Car.

For Young Women

Offers four years of genuine college work based upon 14 units of high school credit. Courses lead to A. B. and B. S. degrees. Diplomas in Art and Music after completing four years of work.

Location in center of the Capital City, gives unusual advantages.

Library facilities excellent. Attention to physical education. Charges moderate.

For catalogue or further information write

Chas. E. Brewer, Pres.,
Raleigh, N. C.

Albemarle Normal and Industrial Institute

(Founded by Miss F. E. Ufford in 1893)

UNDER AUSPICES OF MECKLENBURG PRESBYTERY

Christian School with home atmosphere. Beautiful and healthful location. Course of study from fifth through eleventh grade. Excellent musical advantages. Special classes in Bible, Sewing, Cooking and Home Nursing. Pupils prepared for college, for teaching, and for duties of home. Experienced and capable teachers. Terms very reasonable. For catalogue and information, write (MRS.) ELVA C. HARRIS, Superintendent, ALBEMARLE, N. C.

GROVE INSTITUTE

(Formerly James Sprunt Institute)

KENANSVILLE

NORTH CAROLINA

A Preparatory School for Girls. High Grade, Thoroughly Christian. Very Moderate Cost. Students receive Close, Personal Attention in a Home-Like Atmosphere.
NEXT SESSION BEGINS SEPTEMBER 10th.

For Catalog and Particulars, address REV. W. F. HOLLINGSWORTH, Pres.

Chicora College for Women

THE PRESBYTERIAN COLLEGE OF SOUTH CAROLINA

A Standard College of Distinction and Character

Religion and Philosophy

Letters and Science

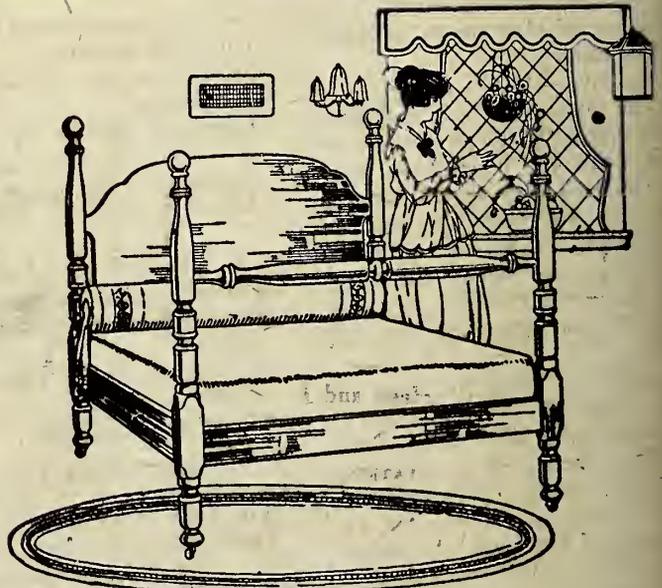

Home Economics

The Fine Arts

(Music, Art and Expression)

For Catalogue and Information, address

Pres. S. C. BYRD, D.D., Columbia, S. C.

The Kind of Furniture Our Forefathers Had

Those magnificent solid mahogany "Post Colonial" bed-room suits that we are sure will be priceless treasures when handed down to the succeeding generations. Let us show you some real furniture.

W. T. McCoy & Co.

Charlotte, N. C.

THE HOME OF GOOD FURNITURE

HOUSEKEEPERS AND THE WINGED HUN.

During the war, Professor Howlett tested all manner of advertised nostrums against the house-fly, and found them of little use. It's a curious fact that we know more about the elephant than we do about the house-fly. How does he survive the winter? I know great entomologists of the Natural History Museum who cannot answer this question. But where science fails, the housewife can make a practical showing. Kitchen refuse should be burned, and all food kept under wire covers. Larder, scullery, and yard should have no fly-paradise available. And it's a good plan to wash the window frames with petroleum two or three times a month. An efficient trap for the kitchen and other rooms is a saucerful of water, with a teaspoonful of formalin in it, and a little "island" of bread in the middle as a rest for the drinking fly. We owe it to ourselves and to our neighbors to wage a fly-offensive this summer. "The remedy"—as a great doctor, like Sir Frederick Treves declares—"is in the hands of the people." And "fly-borne disease should cease to exist." Typhoid depends largely on the fly, just as typhus—now so rare in England—depended on a much more loathsome insect.—London Telegraph.

Honor must grow out of humility, freedom out of discipline, righteous out of righteous sorrow, true strength out of true knowledge of our own weakness, sound peace of mind out of sound contrition.—Charles Kingsley.

There is no being so poor and contemptible who does not think there is somebody still poorer and still more contemptible.—Dr. Johnson.

"And what did you say the patient did?" asked the doctor, "when you ripped off the dressing?" "Swore, doctor!" exclaimed the nurse. "He swore frightfully!" "I reckon you can let him sit up tomorrow!"

HOSIERY—Darnproof; 12 pairs gents' or ladies', assorted, intense black, guaranteed, $1.50, parcel post, to introduce our high-grade hosiery.

Dixie Hosiery Mills, Kernersville, N. C.

Aberdeen & Rockfish Railroad

Between Aberdeen and Fayetteville

Eastbound		Westbound
Daily Ex. Sunday	Mixed	Daily Ex. Sunday	Mixed
No. 22	No. 38	No. 41	No. 21
7 30 am	9 10 am	6 41 pm	5 00 pm
ar 8 35 am	10 00 am	Rae ford	lv 3 50 pm
lv 2 10 pm			ar 2 50 pm
4 00 pm	11 20 am	Ar. Fayetteville Lv.	4 50 pm
			1 00 pm

WAGRAM BRANCH

Southbound		Northbound
Daily Ex. Sun. Mixed	STATIONS	Daily Ex. Sun. Mixed	STATIONS
No. 11		No. 12
Lv. 10 30 am	Rae ford	Ar. 12 40 pm
Ar. 11 15 am	Wagram	Lv. 12 00 noon

W. A. BLUE, General Supt., Aberdeen, N. C.

NORTH CAROLINA COLLEGE FOR WOMEN

Offers thorough instruction and excellent advantages in the training of young women for the mastery of courses fitting themselves to become self supporting. There are courses leading to the degrees of Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science and Bachelor of Music. Total number registered last year, 1299. Free tuition to those students who agree to teach in the schools of North Carolina after leaving the college. Excellent equipment, expenses moderate. For catalogue and other information, address J. I. FOUST, President, Greensboro, N. C.

ELIZABETH COLLEGE, SALEM, VIRGINIA

A College for Young Women, Under Positive Christian Influence

Handsome new building, with dormitories arranged in suites. Unexcelled views. A competent faculty. Courses: Literary, leading to the A. B. degree; Art, Expression, Home Economics, Piano, Voice, Stenography and Typewriting. Outdoor sports: Basket Ball, Hockey and Tennis. For catalogue, write to PAUL SEIG, Acting President.

THE School for Your Boy

Nothing is so effective in the training of the youth—in guarding his morals, his physique—as a military training. All young men should begin with a military training. The training of is conducive of culture, refinement, thorough literary foundation and a gentlemanly bearing. Thorough academic, preparatory and commercial courses. Excellently equipped modern buildings. Gymnasium, Infirmary and 40 new rooms now under construction. Two U. S. Army officers in charge of the R. O. T. C. Trained nurse in charge of Infirmary. For literature, write, COL. E. S. LIGON, President, Blackstone Military Academy, Box R. Blackstone, Va.

BLACKSTONE MILITARY ACADEMY

COLUMBIA COLLEGE

COLUMBIA, S. C.

A College for Women ranked in Class "A" by Board of Education, M. E. Church, South. Recognized for its high type of Christian culture.

Unusually complete educational facilities, strong university-trained faculty, thorough equipment, ideal location.

Handsome fire-proof buildings, elegantly fitted with every convenience for health, comfort and safety. Beautiful 20-acre campus, affording ample opportunity for outdoor games.

Library of upwards of 5,000 volumes in large, well-lighted quarters. Fine collection of magazines.

Thorough courses leading to degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Science.

Conservatory of Music under direction of skilled instructors.

Thorough courses in Art, Expression, Business, and Home Economics.

1919 session begins September 17th. For descriptive catalogue, address

G. T. PUGH, Ph. D., President, Columbia, S. C.

MEDICAL COLLEGE OF THE STATE OF SOUTH CAROLINA

Schools of Medicine and Pharmacy

Owned and Controlled by the State

RATED IN CLASS A by the American Medical Association. Registered by the New York State Board of Regents, member of the Association of American Medical Colleges. Member of the American Conference of Pharmaceutical Faculties.

New Building With Well Equipped Laboratories.

A full corps of efficient all-time teachers. Located opposite the Roper Hospital and very near the Charleston Museum, thus affording the students more extensive opportunities for research and training.

Requirements For Admission to the Medical School are certificate from a four-year high school which requires not less than 14 units for graduation, and two years of college work. The college work must include physics, biology, chemistry.

Women Admitted on the same terms as men. Session opens Sept. 26, 1919. For Catalogue, address,

H. GRADY CALLISON, Registrar Charleston, S. C.

There's a smile for you and a smile for me,
 And a smile for every one;
 There's a tear for you and a tear for me—
 But grief is quickly done;
 While a sunny smile will live the while,
 In memory and song,
 The cheery, heart-upspringing smile
 Of a boy who's true and strong.
 So don't face Life in gloom and strife,
 Or bicker by the way,
 When a smile or two will bring to you
 New triumphs every day.
 —H. J. O'Brien.

The children of God, if they rightly take their Father's mind, are always disburdened of perplexing carefulness, but never exempted from diligent watchfulness.—Archbishop Leighton.

MOTHER'S ALLY.

There is always one good remedy on the family medicine shelf that mother can use in all accidents and mishaps to the members of the family. Burns, bruises, cuts, stings, boils, sores and various forms of skin eruption are quickly soothed and steadily healed with Gray's Ointment. Its constant use for a hundred years has made it a family word in every household. You should keep a box of it on your shelf for emergencies. If your druggist cannot supply you send his name to W. F. Gray & Co., 843 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn., and a liberal sample will be immediately sent you free.—Adv.

"SONG BOOK" for your Revival and Church work
 Send 35c for a copy of Resurrected Songs, a book containing more than 225 old hymns, with more than 75 new, live Gospel songs combined for $3.75 per dozen. Both round and shape notes. The church is coming to realize more and more the value of old hymns. Send today.
JOHN B. VAUGHAN MUSIC CO.
 Mrs. Vaughan, Mgr. Athens, Ga.

BOOKKEEPING AND SHORTHAND
 thoroughly taught. Enroll any time. Address Greensboro Commercial School, Greensboro, N. C., for Catalogue. Special Summer Rates now on.

Increase Your Yield

It can't be done with sour land. Sweeten the soil and free the abundant supply of plant foods your soil contains with

RELCOMARL

Guaranteed 90% Lime Carbonate. Makes big crops possible. Lasts 5 years. For prices, free test papers and literature, write Dept. 8-D, Roanoke Lime Co., Inc., Roanoke, Va.

It Will Pay

you to consult the house of Allan if interested in Diamonds, Watches, Jewelry or Silverware.

The most skilful artists and artisans produce their goods. The quality and price are guaranteed by this firm, whose sixty years of service prove that the past and present generations are well pleased. A catalogue on request.

JAMES ALLAN & CO.,
 Department A.,
 283 King Street,
 CHARLESTON, S. C.

THE BAYLOR SCHOOL FOR BOYS A THOROUGH EDUCATION Castle on the Tennessee

1. Thorough Scholastic Training. Small Classes. Experienced Teachers.
2. Religious Influences through School Y. M. C. A. and daily Chapel Exercises.
3. Compulsory Public Speaking, Writing, and Spelling for every student.
4. Six fine brick buildings, new equipment, 40-acre campus in mountains.
5. Splendid Library, Laboratory, and large Gymnasium.
6. Athletic Fields, Track, Tennis Courts, Swimming and Boating.
7. Beautiful Scenery and Historic Surroundings. Ideal Location.
8. The Honor System. 9. Compulsory Exercise. 10. Same Headmaster for 25 years.
11. Military Training in the Essentials, not in the Spectacular, under officers of the A. E. F.

Baylor School is an accredited school of Southern Association of Schools and Colleges. For particulars, address J. R. BAYLOR, BAYLOR SCHOOL, Chattanooga, Tenn.

A COLLEGE THAT IS BETTER THAN ITS CATALOG GREENVILLE WOMANS COLLEGE

GREENVILLE, S. C.
 1854—1919

COURSES:—Standard courses, requiring 14 units entrance, and 64 hours work for B.A. and B.S. degrees; degree M.A. conferred. Actual practice teaching under supervision required in Education for all. Courses in Kindergarten Normal Training Department, Commercial Department, Domestic Science; Conservatory of Music; piano, voice, organ, violin, other stringed and brass instruments, theory, public school music, sight-singing, Glee Club, choral work; degree B. Mus. awarded. Diplomas in Expression, Art, Physical Culture.

EQUIPMENT:—Modern classrooms, laboratories, domestic science equipment. Handsome library, reading rooms, literary society halls. Beautiful halls and parlors, given over to student activities. Complete and modern dormitories; all rooms furnished with single beds, mission furniture, running water. Large attractive dining-room; other culinary departments complete in appointments.

HEALTH:—Of prime consideration; physician, nurse, athletic director in charge, physical culture compulsory; wide campus, athletic fields, large swimming pool. Pure bracing mountain air. Perfect climate the year around.

MANAGEMENT:—One of the strongest student government organizations ever worked out; Administration, Dean, and faculty in close personal supervision, Democratic atmosphere, happy social and home life.

Accessory Advantages:—In the great City of the Piedmont, the best lecturers, musicians, etc., under various auspices appear before students, Greenville is center of meetings of various organizations, bring talent from all parts of United States.

A Christian College; in precept and example instills a deep religious consciousness. In addition to the required Bible Study, there were during the past session classes in mission study and Christian Culture, enrolling all the students; Sunday School Pedagogy required of all. Social service work.

Correspondence invited; for catalog and information, address

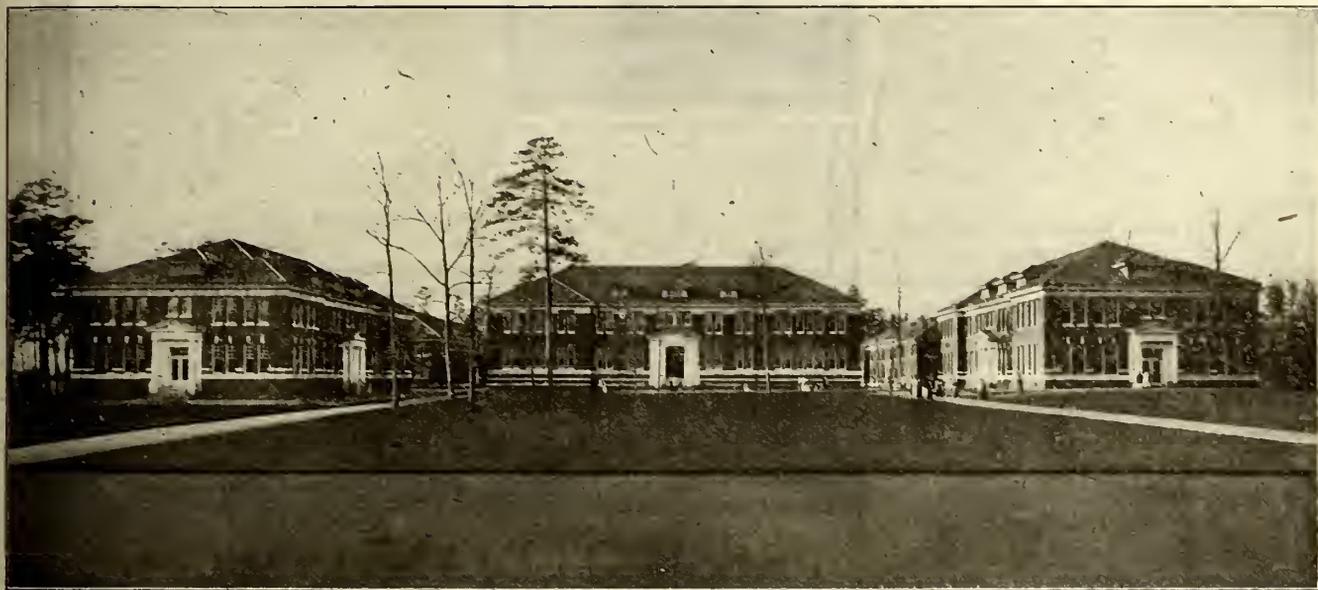

President DAVID M. RAMSAY, D. D., Greenville, S. C., or

ROSA PASCHAL, Dean.

Queens College for Women

Charlotte, North Carolina

Established More Than Sixty Years Ago as "Charlotte Female Institute"

It is Now Recognized as the Best Equipped College for Women in the Entire South

We have five new two-story brick buildings with modern fire extinguishers, designed and erected solely for convenience, comfort, efficiency and safety. These buildings are located in the beautiful suburb of Myers Park, three and one-half miles from the center of the city.

We have a splendid wooded campus of 25 acres.

15 units required for entrance. Graduates from recognized State High Schools admitted on certificate.

This College is built on a firm belief in the inspiration of the Bible. Thorough Bible courses provided.

Standard college course leading to B. A. degree. Most complete equipment for thorough education.

Physical, Chemical and Biological Laboratories; Library, Gymnasium, Preparatory department. Able faculty. Dormitories divided into units of two rooms and connecting with bath, accommodating four students. Large, well-ventilated rooms, big closets. Buildings as near fire-proof as possible. Water, gas, electricity. Convenient street car service.

School of Music, Expression and Art offers superior opportunities. Music building has twenty-six rooms equipped exclusively for this department. Complete, thorough course leading to diploma. Post graduate course in music offered.

Our Motto: "Christian Women for Christian Homes"

Necessary expenses very moderate, about $325.00 for the regular literary course, including board. FALL TERM begins September 10, 1919.

For further information send for catalogue or write

WM. ANDERSON, Registrar, Box 300, Charlotte, N. C.

YOUR LITTLE GIRL'S PIANO.

Have you a daughter or a wife or a sister whose present happiness and future development are being hampered for the lack of a good piano? Why not get the piano now? The Standard Piano Club has made it easy, convenient and perfectly safe for others like you, why not let the Club help you?

By clubbing your order with those of ninety-nine other members, making a maximum factory order, we all get the benefit of the maximum factory discount. That is why you save about one-third the price on a high-grade instrument, whose quality and durability are permanently guaranteed by one of the oldest and largest piano houses in the country.

In arranging the terms of payment the Club has kept your needs and requirements in mind and has evolved a plan which Club members claim is the fairest, most liberal and convenient plan of payment ever devised.

You are cordially invited to place your order for a piano through the Club. Write for your copy of the handsomely illustrated catalogue and full particulars as to prices, terms and guarantees. Address the Managers, Ludden & Bates, Standard Piano Club Dept., Atlanta, Ga.

VIRGINIA, Danville

Randolph-Macon Institute FOR GIRLS Limited to 300

College preparatory and special course for those not wishing to go to college. Vocal and instrumental Music, Art, and Expression. Attractive home life. Gymnasium. Branch of the Randolph-Macon System. Rates $425. Catalogue. Address Chas. G. Evans, A. M., Principal, Box C.

"In the A. E. F. With an Artist"

The sketch book and diary of Lieut. J. B. Mallard. Send $1.00 for your copy to

J. B. MALLARD

Box 625

CHARLOTTE, N. C.

The Cumberland General Hospital, of Fayetteville N. C., offers to young ladies between the ages of eighteen and thirty-five the following courses of training for nurses: Three years practical and theoretical work which prepares for State Board Examinations. Fall classes being formed now. Apply at once to Supt. of Nurses.

MARY BALDWIN SEMINARY For Young Ladies

Established 1842. Term begins Sept. 12th. In the beautiful and historic Shenandoah Valley of Virginia. Unsurpassed climate, modern equipment. Students from 31 states. Courses: Collegiate, 3 years; Preparatory, 4 years. Music, Art and Domestic Science. Catalog. STAUNTON, VIRGINIA

EXPERT KODAK FINISHING

Developing and printing done by artists. Most beautiful work guaranteed at all times. Satisfaction or no charge. Developing, 10c, per film. Printing: 2 1/4 x 3 1/4, 3c.; 2 1/4 x 4 1/4, 4c.; 3 1/4 x 5 1/2, 5c. Quick delivery. Send one film to test our service.

Ligon Drug Co., Spartanburg, S. C.

Church Furniture
WORK OF THE HIGHEST QUALITY
AT REASONABLE PRICES
Write for Catalogue
BUJDE & WEIS MFG. CO.
JACKSON, TENNESSEE

OAK RIDGE INSTITUTE

OAK RIDGE, N. C.

Prepares for bigger accomplishments in college, business and life. A very high standard of scholarship is maintained. Thorough courses are given in literature, science, book-keeping, shorthand and music. Athletics encouraged. Buildings modern; steam heat and showers. Cost reasonable—$350 per year. Fall session opens September 9, 1919. For illustrated catalog and fuller information, write

T. E. WHITAKER, PRESIDENT.

FASSIFERN

A HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

is situated on a plateau over two thousand feet above sea level and completely surrounded by the majestic Appalachian mountains, in the city of Hendersonville, N. C., far-famed for its year-around delightful and health-giving climate.

Fassifern suffered not a single case of influenza during term 1918-19 and was not closed for a day. Fassifern offers thorough preparatory courses both for entrance to colleges of highest rank and professional work.

Accredited by the Association of Southern Colleges, the University of North Carolina and prepares for Smith and Wellesly colleges of Massachusetts and other colleges of high rank which no longer receive certificate students.

Next session opens September 17th, 1919.

For catalog, book of views and special information, address

MISS KATE C. SHIPP,

HENDERSONVILLE, N. C.

PRESBYTERIAN COLLEGE
of South Carolina

One of the most modern and best equipped colleges for men under the control of the Presbyterian Church. Beautiful buildings, strong faculty, high standard of work, broad course, attractive student body, best moral influences, Reserve Officers' Training Corps and strong athletic team.

For Catalogue and information apply to

President Davison M. Douglas, Clinton, S. C.

The Measure of a College

Elegance of buildings and grounds and wealth of equipment and endowment do not make a college. The REAL MEASURE of a college is found in its ideal—in the personality of its teaching force, and in the quality of its teaching. The real work in education is accomplished by the person. The school can rise no higher than the character of those who give it life.

MITCHELL COLLEGE

maintains a faculty of men and women of strong Christian character and influence, whose qualifications for teaching have been gained by years of thorough preparation and experience. The classes at Mitchell College are small, insuring for each student the utmost benefit of individual instruction.

Well Planned Courses Offered in All College Subjects

Courses of superior excellence in English, Bible, Music, Expression, Home Economics, and Business. The Department of Music is in charge of a graduate of the Hague Conservatory.

Measure These Advantages

Invigorating climate, small classes, efficient instruction, supervised evening study for all, home life, and positive Christian influence; moderate expenses.

A Preparatory Department offering the best advantages is maintained. Catalog on request.

J. M. MOORE, President, STATESVILLE, N. C.

The war has already brought a few of its foreign celebrities to America, and a great welcome they have had. Not since Lafayette has a Frenchman been so greeted as was Marshal Joffre. The peace will bring us many more. We are already promised a visit from the idolized King and Queen of the Belgians and the heroic Cardinal Mercier, whose calm defiance of the brutal invader furnished one of the greatest spiritual lessons of the whole dark quadrennium. We are likely to see Marshal Foch and Sir Douglas Haig and Admiral Beatty before the year closes.—New York Advocate.

Let your light so shine. Live your own life in your own way. The lights along the shore are of many kinds. Oscillating, revolving, intermittent, flash, fixed, etc. They all tell the same story, though in different fashion. The great thing is to shine.

Soil Test Free

Litmus papers to show if land is sour will be mailed free. If land is sour, use

RELCO MARL

It sweetens the soil, frees the plant foods, increases the yield, costs little, lasts 5 years. Guaranteed 90% Lime Carbonate. For prices, free test papers and literature, address Dept. 2, Relco Marl Co., Inc., Roanoke, Va.

PREPARE FOR A LARGER SALARY

In times of Peace prepare for a better job at a larger salary. Modern business demands trained men and women experts. The better the training the larger your salary will be. Today our graduates are in the front ranks of modern business. Enroll with this well-equipped business college, and help to make your future success secure. Handsome catalogue mailed on request. You can enter any time. School open all summer.

Kings Business College
Raleigh, N. C. and Charlotte, N. C.

Blue Ridge School for Boys

Hendersonville, N. C.

A select home school, on accredited list, offering to a limited number of boys, from 9 to 20 years old, a more intensive system of training than public schools can give. Ideally located in healthful, invigorating climate, conducive to study. Each boy's personality carefully studied and directed by efficient teaching staff composed of virile, patriotic men with successful teaching careers. A teacher for every seven or eight boys insures individual attention in studies. Boys taught HOW TO STUDY. MILITARY DRILL, BOY SCOUT activities, and all branches of athletics directed and supervised by able instructors. High moral tone; cultured, home-like environment; parental discipline. Total charge for session, September 17 to June 4, $480. Summer term, July and August. For catalog, address

J. R. Saudiler, Headmaster, Hendersonville, N. C.

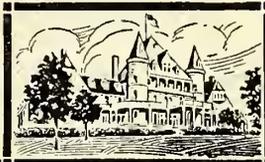

VIRGINIA CHRISTIAN COLLEGE Lynchburg, Virginia.

This College, a leading Senior College of Virginia, affords a wholesome religious life and Christian atmosphere, including educational advantages under university trained professors. The College campus containing eighty-six and one-half acres in view of the distant mountains and landscape beauty, together with modern FIRE-PROOF buildings containing every modern convenience for the students, makes this an ideal institution to which to send your daughter or son.

The health conditions are unsurpassed. Five mineral and two fresh water springs give abundant proof that the health conditions are ideal.

A Christian education is the hope of America. The College is equipped with excellent laboratories and studios for the study of all courses, including the Bible, Art, Music, Voice, etc. The cost per annum is as low as $255. We invite your patronage and support. Write for catalogue.

J. T. T. HUNDLEY, President.

DAVIDSON COLLEGE

"The greatest single institution, in point of service, controlled by the Southern Presbyterian Church."

THORNTON WHALING, President.

Columbia Theological Seminary.

COURSES OF STUDY: Literary, Scientific, Classical preparing for ministry, medicine, law, engineering, business, teaching.

FACULTY experienced and University trained.

COLLEGE SPIRIT: The boys work in season and out for a "Bigger and Better Davidson." The typical Davidson student, or alumnus, is loyal, enthusiastic, and successful in whatever he undertakes.

Y. M. C. A. SECRETARY will be continued next year. Rev R. W. Miles, General Secretary, will be a big factor in the boys' college life.

LITERARY SOCIETIES at Davidson have a rightful place on the campus. Davidson has contested 20 inter-collegiate debates and has won 14, or 70%. The student gets a fine parliamentary training.

IN ATHLETICS Davidson has football, baseball, tennis, track, golf and outdoor gymnasium, large new gymnasium. R. O. T. C.

MUSICAL TALENT has expression and development through the Glee Club and Orchestra, an enthusiastic organization that furnishes music for public functions at the college, and gives concerts each year in other towns and colleges.

Students find the climate bracing and beneficial and the social atmosphere friendly and congenial.

Expenses exceptionally reasonable.

Old Students have already registered for next term from the following States: North Carolina, South Carolina, Florida, Mississippi, Maryland, Alabama, Tennessee, Texas, Arkansas, Georgia, West Virginia, District of Columbia, Louisiana, China, Japan.

New Students from the following: North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Texas, Virginia, West Virginia, Tennessee, Mississippi, Alabama, Missouri, District of Columbia, Colorado, Kentucky, Indiana, Japan, Register early; make sure of room.

Illustrated folder and other literature will be sent immediately upon receipt of your request.

DAVIDSON COLLEGE : Davidson, N. C.

Personal admiration even of Christ will not save a man's soul; that admiration must be changed into adoration and the adoration must be a deliberate, purposeful adoration of Christ the God, not Jesus the man.—Exchange.

Nadine Face Powder

(In Green Boxes Only)

Keeps The Complexion Beautiful

Soft and velvety. Money back if not entirely pleased. Nadine is pure and harmless. Adheres until washed off. Prevents sunburn and return of discolorations. A million delighted users prove its value. Tints: Flesh, Pink, Brunette, White. By Leading Toilet Counters or Mail, Dept. R P. National Toilet Company Paris, Tenn.

Many Young Men and Women

Have doubled and trebled their salary after taking a course with Draughon. Do you want to earn more money? If so, let us teach you how to do it. More calls for help than we can supply. Write us at once. DRAUGHON'S BUSINESS COLLEGE Knoxville, Tenn. Jacksonville, Fla.

YOUR FACE?

Is the Complexion Mud-dy, Tanned, Freckled? If troubled with skin eruptions, sunburn, pimples, try PALMER'S SKIN-SUCCESS SOAP. It cleanses, softens and clears the skin and tends to remove sunburn, tan, freckles, blackheads, pimples and eczema. Thoroughly antiseptic. Ask your druggist, or write for free samples to THE MORGAN DRUG CO. 1521 Atlantic Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Roanoke College

SALEM, VA.

- Location Situated in the Roanoke Valley, noted for healthful climate and grandeur of mountain scenery.
 - Rank A STANDARD AMERICAN COLLEGE FOR MEN. Its degrees recognized everywhere.
 - Curriculum Courses arranged in groups for A. B. and B. S. degrees, preparing for life and looking to professional training.
 - Facilities A very superior faculty, library of 25,000 volumes, eight buildings, and working laboratories.
- Roanoke is devoted to Christian education for service of Church and State.
- Sixty-seventh session opens September 17. For catalogue and all information, address DR. J. A. MOREHEAD, President

Medical College of Virginia

(State Institution—Co Educational)

STUART MCGUIRE, M.D., LL.D., Pres.

MEDICINE DENTISTRY
PHARMACY NURSING

New buildings, completely equipped. Laboratories under full time instructors. Unusual clinical facilities offered in three hospitals owned by the college, also in city hospitals and institutions.

81st session begins September 17, 1919. For catalogue, address

J. R. McCAULEY, Secretary

1121 East Clay Street

RICHMOND, VA.

PEACE INSTITUTE

RALEIGH, NORTH CAROLINA

For Young Women. Established 1857

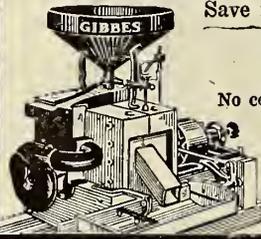

College Courses. Preparatory Courses for Standard College Requirements. Special Diplomas, Piano, Voice, Art, Expression and Home Economics. Commercial Course. Teacher Training Course. Specialists in all departments.

LULA B. WYNNE HALL, Home School For Girls.

MISS MARY OWEN GRAHAM, Pres.

Grind Your Corn the Simple Way

Delicate, Complicated Machinery is neither necessary nor economical. Save money in grinding your grain with—

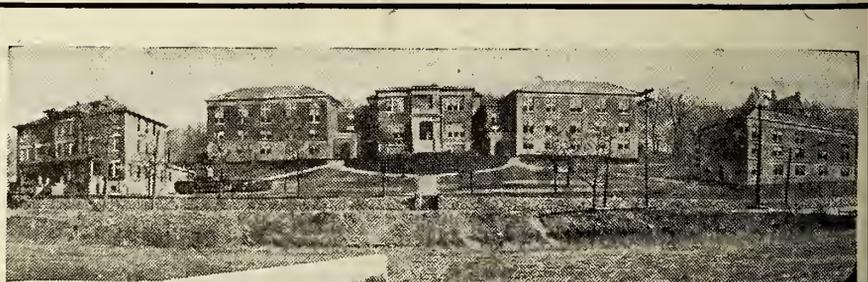

The Gibbs Corn Mill

Simple—Fast—Economical—Durable

No complicated parts, whole machine easily handled. With ball-bearing system it is light running and rapid, requiring very little power. Little wear, smooth running, seldom a part to replace. Made of the best of materials. Absolutely guaranteed. For illustrated literature and prices address—

GIBBES MACHINERY CO., Dept. A-2, Columbia, S. C.

A Home School for Boys

Your boy lives happily in a Christian home while he receives a thorough preparation for college, technical school or for entering business life. Masters of the highest ability and character give your boy individual attention, wise guidance and friendship. The classes are small. Your boy is taught how to study. Student government and the Honor System are conspicuously successful.

The McCallie School is situated in the midst of a 40-acre campus on the side of beautiful and historic Missionary Ridge. The Athletic field is one of the best in the South; There are both outdoor and indoor gymnasiums. Diving towers, swimming and boating on McCallie Lake. Military drill under competent instructors.

For well illustrated catalogue, address

Good scholarship required. Examinations are frequent. Boys who use tobacco will not be retained. The McCallie School stands for Educated Christian Manhood.

The McCallie School

Headmasters: S. J. McCallie, M. A., and J. P. McCallie, M. A., Ph. D. Chattanooga, Tennessee

NEW SONG BOOKS

For Your Church

8c

A wonderful value; 83 familiar songs of the Gospel, words and music. Used all over the world. Only $8 per hundred for No. 1 or 2, round or shaped notes, and $15 for No. 1 and 2 combined, round notes only. Send 30c for samples. Money back if not pleased.

E. A. K. HACKETT, Dept. No. 56, FT. WAYNE, IND.

Personal Instruction

is the prime secret of a thorough education. An excellent standard and high curriculum maintained for one hundred and thirty-four years and an intentionally limited enrollment insure a most thorough-going literary training at the

COLLEGE OF CHARLESTON

Excellent equipment. Climate unsurpassed. Expenses moderate. CO-EDUCATIONAL. For catalogue and illustrated booklet address Harrison Randolph, Pres., Charleston, S. C.

Save 1/3 ON TIRES

Buy Your Tires at DEALERS COST PRICES
7500-Mile Guarantee!
Sent Free for inspection. It costs you nothing. Express charges prepaid. Examine them before you pay. Write us about our PUNCTURE PROOF TUBES Absolutely Guaranteed for 6000 Miles or a New Tube FREE.
A Revelation of Quality. Our low prices will astonish you.
PIONEER TIRE and RUBBER CO.
111. Traders Bldg., Kansas City, Mo.

A Southern Presbyterian University, owned and controlled by a Board of Representative Presbyterians from every Southern State.

THE SCHOOLS

Of Liberal Arts, Science, Literature and Journalism, and Commerce are open all the year and students may enter at the beginning of any one of the four terms as follow: Sept. 24, Jan. 2, Apr. 1 and July 6.

A beautiful Book of Views, illustrating Student Life at the University, will be sent free, with catalogue, on application. Address

Oglethorpe University

Oglethorpe University, Ga.
(Suburb of Atlanta)

DR. J. M. BELK, MONROE, N. C.

W. H. BELK, CHARLOTTE, N. C.

Belk Bros. Dept. Stores

CHARLOTTE, NORTH CAROLINA

19 STORES

Send us your orders for Bibles, Testaments, Confession of Faith, or Book of Church Order, for quick delivery. 10 percent discount for Sunday Schools, Societies, or Churches, Preachers or Teachers—and in dozens we will give you wholesale price.

WHY NOT HAVE A BIBLE OR TESTAMENT IN EVERY SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLAR'S HANDS EVERY SUNDAY? WE WILL HELP DO THIS. WRITE TO US FOR THE PLAN.
NELSON'S BIBLES

1184—Sunday School Scholar's Bible. Practical Helps for Young People. How to study the Bible. How to study the lesson. Bible questions and answers all in this Bible. Good black type, red edges, leatheroid binding. Size 5½x4x1. Special.....98c

Same Bible, gilt edge, better leather binding, illustrated ..$1.25 and $1.50

12—Linen Card Back Bible. Good big print. Fine for the Sunday School classes, about 6x5x1.....75c

1148—Sunday School Bible. Linen board backs, black type, 5x4x1...59c

7764—Teacher's Bible, $5.00.

India Linen Paper, self pronouncing Bible Dictionary, Combined Concordance, 12 Colored Maps, Morocco Binding, Silk Sewed, good print. Size 7¾x5½x1¼$5.00

6512—Teacher's Edition Bible—New and instructive maps, 14 maps, placed throughout the Bible, illustrating the Scripture, 20 beautifully colored pictures, complete Bible Dictionary, new Concordance and Helps. Leather binding, strongly made. Black face type. Size 7x5x1½$2.50

6512—Teacher's Bible, $3.95.

Linen Paper, thumb index, illustrated colored pictures, 12 new maps, Bible Dictionary, Morocco leather binding. Black face type, convenient size, 7x5-1¼. Special$3.95

1212—Illustrated Bible. 4,000 questions and answers, short history of each book of the Bible by A. T. Pierson, D.D. Harmony of the four Gospels. How to study the Bible. Colored maps. 7x5½x1½.....$2.00

7764—Teacher's Bible, $5.95.

Self pronouncing Bible, new, improved maps, finely illustrated, combined Concordance, 12 colored maps, newest and most complete dictionary yet printed. Morocco binding, silk sewed, a beautiful Bible. 8x5½...$5.95

Why not have a Confession of Faith in Every Home? We carry them in stock for your convenience—50c, 75c.

BOOK OF CHURCH ORDER. Every officer in the Presbyterian Church ought to have this Book and study it. We will mail you one for 25c.

NELSON'S TESTAMENTS

402—New Testament, 65c. Bound in leatheroid, large black face type. Size 6x5.

321—New Testament, 48c.

Bound same as 402. Black type. Size 5x3½.

400—New Testament, 25c.

This is a special number. Large black type, cardboard back, clear white paper—the quality equals most 50c books. Special25c

29—New Testament. Vest pocket size, leatheroid binding, fine for the children25c

403—New Testament, 98c.

This is leather bound. Large black type, gilt edge. Size 6x4½.

403P—New Testament and Psalms. Leather bound, gilt edge. Large print$1.19

SCHOFIELD BIBLES

We carry these in the newest Editions, bound in good, heavy Linen Cardboard backs, or can send you the finest Leather Bound. If you want a Bible to get "REAL HELP" right at home—the newest improved help—a Schofield Bible is the one to buy.

No 50—Linen Cardboard Backs. Good black type, with every help at home. Same helps as the highest price Bible. Size of Book 7x5-1¼.....$1.50

No. 70—Same as above, only larger size type and book, 8½x6½x1¼ $2.00

We carry Schofield Bibles in all kinds of Bindings—Morocco, Persian, Etc. Real Linen Paper, from $5.00 to $10. Let us send you one on approval.

We carry all kinds of New Testaments from 15c to $2.00.

Do thy part with industry and leave the event with God. I have seen matters fall out so unexpectedly that they have taught me, in all affairs, neither to despair nor to presume; not to despair, for God can help me; not to presume, for God can cross me. I will never despair, because I have a God. I will never presume, because I am man.—Feltham.

"If we want light," says a wise man, "we must conquer darkness." The darkness may be around us, or in our own souls, but God's light always is ready for those who pray.—Selected.

DAVIS-WAGNER NEW BUILDING, ACCOMMODATING 500 STUDENTS.
Business College
 POSITIONS FOR GRADUATES. 306 East Freemason St. CATALOGUE FREE. NORFOLK, VA.

Stable Manure holds its strength when you use as a stable absorbent. Spread on the floor under the blanket. Saves hundreds of dollars of ammonia a year. Excellent for sour lands. It sweetens the soil immediately, makes bigger crops and lasts five years. For literature and prices, address Dept. 8-F, Roanoke Lime Co., Inc., Roanoke, Va.
RELCO MARL

Union Theological Seminary
 RICHMOND, VA.

W. W. Moore, D. D., LL.D.	Biblical Literature
C. C. Hersman, D. D., LL.D.	Greek Language
T. C. Johnson, D. D., LL.D.	Systematic Theology
T. H. Rice, D. D., LL.D.	English Bible and Pastoral Theology
W. L. Lingle, D. D.	Church History, Missions and Sunday School
E. C. Caldwell, D. D.	New Testament Exegesis
Edward Mack, D. D.	Hebrew Language and Exegesis
George Sleeth	Public Speaking

Session begins October 1, 1919 For catalogue, apply to
REV. W. W. MOORE, President

CHARLOTTE MARBLE & GRANITE WORKS

MEMORIALS OF QUALITY

"WE LEAD"

Quality First
Prices Right
Workmanship
Unsurpassed

Memorials in Silver Georgia Marble are unsurpassed in beauty and durability.

CHARLOTTE MARBLE & GRANITE WORKS
 WEST 7th ST. and SOUTHERN RAILWAY
 Cemetery Gate Phone 281-CHARLOTTE, N.C.

Flora Macdonald College

Can accept no more registrations

All rooms have been taken and we never crowd our students

If you desire a place for 1920-21 it may be well to register now

C. G. VARDELL, President

Red Springs, N. C.
 July 18, 1919.

"Some time between the dawn and dark,

Go thou, O friend, apart,
That a cool drop of heaven's dew
May fall into thy heart.

Thus with a spirit soothed, and cured
Of restlessness and pain,
Thou mayest, nerved with force divine,
Take up thy work again."

God is necessarily so much to man, men are necessarily so bereft without Him, that clear vision and strong action are utterly impossible apart from a humble dependence upon Him.—R. F.
Horton.

The College of William and Mary
1693—1919
FOR MEN AND WOMEN

Thorough academic courses leading to the degrees of A. B., B. S., and M. A.; well equipped laboratories and excellent library; unexcelled health conditions, historic environment and intimate contact with the best ideals of VIRGINIA.

WILLIAM and MARY is also the STATE TEACHERS' COLLEGE FOR MEN AND WOMEN.

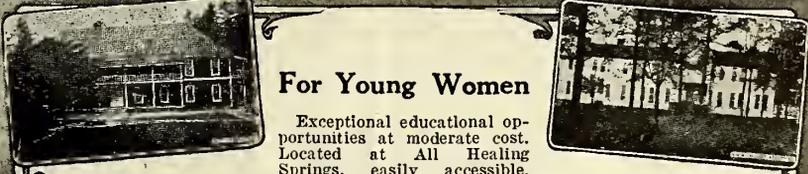

Special Teacher's Training Courses.
Course in Home Economics under the Smith-Hughes Act, Pre-Medical courses, Pre-Electrical and Pre-Chemical Engineering courses. Courses in business administration and commerce. Courses for commercial teachers.

State scholarships for those preparing to be teachers and superintendents.
Loan fund for Virginia students.

Next session begins September 18th, 1919.

For particulars address
J. A. C. CHANDLER, Pres.,
Williamsburg, Va.

LINWOOD COLLEGE
GASTONIA, N. C.

For Young Women

Exceptional educational opportunities at moderate cost. Located at All Healing Springs, easily accessible. Finest water; health conditions of the very best. Unexcelled health record.

Modern Dormitories. Able, conscientious faculty. Small classes permit the utmost personal attention and instruction. School conducted as a well-ordered Christian home; discipline and influences that bring out the highest in character. Non-sectarian. Thorough courses in Languages, History, Mathematics, Sciences, Bible, Piano, Voice, Expression, Art, leading to degrees of A. B., B. L., and B. S. Board and tuition, $175 per year. Next session opens Sept. 17, 1919. For catalog, address,

REV. A. T. LINDSAY, President, Gastonia, N. C.

SAVE YOUR BODY

Conserve Your Health and Efficiency First
"I Would Not Part With It for $10,000"

So writes an enthusiastic, grateful customer. "Worth more than a farm," says another. In like manner testify over 100,000 people who have worn it.

THE NATURAL BODY BRACE

Overcomes WEAKNESS and ORGANIC AILMENTS of WOMEN and MEN. Develops erect, graceful figure. Brings restful relief, comfort, ability to do things, health and strength.

Wear It 30 Days Free At Our Expense

Does away with the strain and pain of standing and walking; replaces and supports misplaced internal organs; reduces enlarged abdomen; straightens and strengthens the back; corrects stooping shoulders; develops lungs, chest and bust; relieves backache, curvatures, nervousness, ruptures, constipation. Comfortable and easy to wear.

Keep Yourself Fit

Write today for illustrated booklet, measurement blank, etc., and read our very liberal proposition.

Howard C. Rash

Pres. Natural Body Brace Co.
289 Rash Bldg., Salina, Kansas

For Boys and Girls Also

United States Railroad Administration

DIRECTOR GENERAL OF RAILROADS

Seaboard Air Line Railroad

Reduced Summer Excursion Round-Trip Tickets on sale May 15th to September 30th, final limit October 31st, 1919, to the following points:

Alta Pass, N. C.	$ 7.14	Pensacola, N. C.	$ 9.06
Hickory, N. C.	3.30	Rutherfordton, N. C.	4.32
Johnson City, Tenn.	10.80	Shelby, N. C.	2.88
Lenoir, N. C.	14.50	Switzerland, N. C.	6.96
Norfolk, Va.	17.46	Virginia Beach, Va.	18.26
Old Point, Va.	18.06	Wrightsville Beach, N. C.	10.66

The above rates do not include war tax. Also attractive rates to other resorts.

For particulars as to fares, trains, schedules, etc., apply to any Railroad Ticket Agent.

E. W. LONG, P. S. A.,
CHARLOTTE, N. C.

JOHN T. WEST, D. P. A.,
RALEIGH, N. C.

Sparkles

A Bazaar Ballad.

"A Soldier Young and brave was he
That sought the big Bazaar;
A Maiden Sweet and fair was she,
As Maidens often are.

"He spoke, in Whispers passion fraught,
Of Love that could not fail;
She spoke (no Matter what she thought)
Of Things that were for Sale.

"I want," declared the ardent Youth,
"The Sweetest Sweet of All!"
'Oh, yes!' she said, 'the Candy Booth
Is just across the Hall.'

"A Rose," he breathed, "of Edenglade
I seek, my life to crown!"
'The Flower Stand,' observed the Maid
'Is four Aisles farther down.'

"Then be my Bride!" that Soldier
cried,
'My Own, my Heart's Delight!
'Engagement Rings,' she softly sighed,
'Three Counters foward the Right.'

—Arthur Guiterman, in "The Mirth-ful Lyre." Harper & Bros., New York.

"Why do you object to the League of Nations?"

"On musical grounds. After singing,
'My country, 'tis of thee,' all these years, I don't want the mental effort of changing to 'Our countries, 'tis of those.'"—Washington Star.

A grammar school teacher having asked for a short essay employing certain words ending with "tion," a pupil handed in this astonishing production:

"Father's hair is a recollection; mother's is an acquisition; sister's is an aggregation; brother's is a conflagration; and baby's is a mere premonition."

As the Poet Might Now Remark.

We are living, we are living,
In a grand and awful time!
And a quarter we are giving
For things not worth a dime!
(Windsor) Border Cities Star.

Private Austin: "Have you any elastic blankets?" Corporal Arnold:
"What do you want elastic blankets for?" Private Austin: "So they'll stretch when I do."—Overseas Camp Dodges.

At twenty you left the farm and came to the city. And for thirty years you have been working like mad. What for? In order to get money enough to live in the country.—New York Evening Sun.

Up to Date.

Blessed are the peacemakers—blessed slow—Boston Transcript.

THE WESTMINSTER SCHOOL

A PREPARATORY SCHOOL FOR BOYS

Operated by Kings Mountain Presbytery
$300.00 Per Year

Write for Catalogue to

Rev. T. E. P. Woods, Box 6, Rutherfordton, N. C.

4 Per Cent

Time Certificates of Deposit

They are Interest Bearing. They are Payable on Demand. They Afford a Good Income for Funds Awaiting Permanent Investment

GET ONE

AMERICAN TRUST COMPANY

Charlotte

::

North Carolina

YES, Preachers and Teachers Are Human

They should have no discount and no cheaper railroad fares than you and I. They should be paid for services rendered—amply paid. If he can't earn enough for family use and the nest egg for the future, he made a sad mistake as to family, else he should change his calling instanter.

The Mutual Building & Loan

Will save a man and his family if they're worth saving, but they must help. It furnishes the "sure cure," but boasts no regrets at the demise of a feller who deliberately refuses to take the medicine.

E. L. KEESLER, Sec. & Treas., 25 S. Tryon St., CHARLOTTE, N. C.

Charlotte National Bank Resources $4,000,000.00

CHARLOTTE, N. C.

PAYS FOUR PER CENT.

On Either Time Certificates of Deposit or
Savings Accounts

MAIL ORDER Business Solicited and PROMPT ATTENTION Given

JOHN M. SCOTT	President
W. J. CHAMBERS	Vice-President
J. F. ROBERTSON	Vice-President
W. H. TWITTY	Cashier
C. W. BUTT	Assistant Cashier

PRESBYTERIAN STANDARD

REV. J. R. BRIDGES, D. D.

EDITORS

REV. R. C. REED, D. D.

VOL. LX.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., AUGUST 13, 1919.

No. 32.

The Set of the Sail

I stood on the shore beside the sea;
The wind from the west blew fresh and free,
While past the rocks at the harbor mouth
The ships went north and the ships went south,
And some sailed out on an unknown quest,
And some sailed in to the harbor's rest,
Yet ever the wind blew out of the west.

I said to one who had sailed the sea
That this was a marvel unto me;
For how can the ships go safely forth,
Some to the south and some to the north,
Far out to sea on their golden quest,
Or into the harbor's calm and rest,
And ever the wind blow out of the west?

The sailor smiled as he answered me,
"Go where you will when you're on the sea,
Though head winds baffle and plans delay,
You can keep the course by night and day,
Drive with the breeze or against the gale;
It will not matter what winds prevail,
For all depends on the set of the sail."

Voyager soul on the sea of life,
O'er waves of sorrow and sin and strife,
When fogs bewilder and foes betray,
Steer straight on your course from day to day;
Though unseen currents run deep and swift
Where rocks are hidden and sandbars shift,
All helpless and aimless, you need not drift.

Oh, set your sail to the heavenly gale,
And then, no matter what winds prevail,
No reef shall wreck you, no calm delay;
No mist shall hinder, no storm shall stay;
Though far you wander and long you roam
Through salt sea-sprays and o'er white sea-foam,
No wind that can blow but shall speed you home.

—Annie Johnson Flint.

Editorial

Saved by Grace.

PERHAPS none who accept the Bible as our only rule of faith would deny that salvation is by grace. Yet there are many who deny the plain and necessary implications of this doctrine. It means that we do not deserve to be saved, that God is under no obligation to save us. What God does as a matter of grace He is not bound to do. He might leave it undone without violating any principle of righteousness, without giving rise to any just reflection on his character.

Are all the heathen eternally lost? This question is often asked by pious people in a spirit of protest against so monstrous a supposition. It is a question which no one has a right to answer with a dogmatic positiveness. But one has a right to answer that the heathen do not deserve to be saved, that God is under no constraint to save them. If they are all eternally lost, no one will be to blame but themselves. On such a supposition God's character will suffer no reproach. By so much as we are better off than they, by so much are we better off than we deserve to be. We owe the difference not to divine justice but to divine grace.

"The wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life." One can earn death. Every sinner does earn death. It is something to which he is entitled on the ground of justice—"the laborer is worthy of his hire." But one cannot earn a gift. What one earns is a debt, not a gift. Suppose instead of reading "God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son," we read "God was so indebted to the world that He was constrained to sacrifice his only begotten Son." This eliminates the idea of grace and destroys the gospel. It completely revolutionizes our idea of God and His relation to the world. It makes God little and man great. God is the debtor and man the creditor.

Saved by grace means that man is already lost. He is as truly lost here and now as he ever can be. "The Son of Man is come to seek and save that which was lost." Grace is not interposing to prevent our being lost, but to rescue us from a present lost condition. It is only a question as to how long this lost condition may continue. If, without reflecting on God's character, it may continue an earthly lifetime, then without reflecting on His character, it may continue forever. God is no more under obligation to save a man for the next world than to save him for this world, to save him eternally than to save him temporarily. There is no middle ground between grace and debt. It is either all of grace, or all of debt. God is either bound to save all here and now, or He is not bound to save any either now or hereafter. He does not save all here and now. Many go through life unsaved, and consequently they may go through eternity unsaved.

Saved by grace means that no one is in heaven because he deserved to go there. The saints in glory sing: "Unto him that loved us, and washed us from our sins in His own blood, and hath made us kings and priests unto God and his Father; to him be glory and dominion for ever and ever." To my mind steeped in the teachings of Scripture, it is inconceivable that any glorified soul should claim aught of credit for the blessedness that is his. He knows that "by nature he was a child of wrath even as others."

Saved by grace points to the inevitable conclusion that all mankind are in a state of alienation from God, and may righteously be left in this condition forever. They deserve nothing better. They are traveling the broad road, and they will reap only their deserts if permitted to travel on to the awful terminus. In plain simple words, saved by grace mean that sinners are hell-deserving.

Harsh doctrine, this. Out of harmony with the soft, emasculated type of religion that holds the center of the stage in our day. But it is the type to which we commit ourselves when we sing:

"Grace first contrived the way
To save rebellious man;
And all the steps that grace display
Which drew the wondrous plan.
Grace first inscribed my name
In God's eternal book
'Twas grace that gave me to the Lamb
Who all of sorrow took."

The Union Seminary Review.

The fourth number of this Review has been received. Besides the book reviews which, as usual, are worth reading, it contains five papers, a review of the Southern Assembly, a review of the Northern Assembly, Religions in Russia, a well deserved tribute to Dr. R. A. Webb, and a description of the Union Seminary Cemetery at Hampden Sidney. These papers are admirably adapted to summer reading, with the possible exception of the Religion of Russia, which, though not light, is at least stimulating.

Dr. Lingle's review of the General Assembly is one of the most readable articles of the number. In his graphic and artistic way he sets before his readers the chief proceedings of the Assembly, enlivening what might otherwise be rather dull stuff for the average reader. We by no means agree with his interpretations of the Assembly's action on certain matters, though in the main we do. Separated as we are from our files we cannot recall just what we wrote about the Assembly's action on union. The point we intended to dispute was that published in the Associated Press dispatches and rejoiced over by the Continent and other Northern Church papers, that the Assembly had expressed itself in favor of organic union.

If we stated that the committee was restricted by the action of the Assembly to the consideration of Federal Union, it was not our intention to do so. We only wished to refute the idea that the Assembly announced itself in favor of organic union. We listened to the debates and we talked with the members, and the impression made upon our mind was that the majority of the Assembly, if forced to vote on the question of union, would have rejected it.

To our mind the only time when anything like a test vote was taken was when the Moderator was elected. Dr. Fraser has for years been known as a strong and uncompromising opponent of union, while Dr. Dobyms has for years been the representative of the union sympathizers.

Some few may have voted for one or the other on personal grounds, yet the bulk of them considered it in casting their votes. The Assembly, it is true, rejected Dr. Fraser's resolution proposing to discontinue the consideration of the question of union, yet to our mind it did not prove that the Assembly was in favor of union, but only proved that they wished to keep their minds open to conviction, and also to show that they were ready to follow the guidance of Providence, as it might in the future be made known unto them. Dr. Lingle thinks otherwise, and of course it is possible that he may be correct.

We generally see what we want to see, and each of us saw and heard things that were different. Some of the strongest anti-union men voted against Dr. Fraser's paper because they were opposed to taking the position that under no circumstances would they consider union. This paper is utterly opposed to union, because we do not believe it best to develop the Church in the South, yet we would never declare that under no circumstances would we acquiesce in union. If the Lord would make it plain to us that it is His will that union should come, we would fall in line with the Church. We rejoice that thus far no bitterness has been shown, but that each man is giving his brother the liberty of thinking according to his own judgment.

Montreat, 1919.

There is at least some comfort in the fact that prophesy has ceased, else the predictions of certain, uttered many years ago, as to the success of Montreat, might have been realized. Those of us who have stood by Montreat from its opening season down to the present time, can recall the dark predictions that were made, and the many reasons given that the whole scheme was impracticable, yet today the enterprise has not only passed the danger point, but it is successful beyond our hopes. That mistakes have been made, we all know, and that there are many petty annoyances connected with the management which a broader policy could avoid, those of us who have prayed for its success see more keenly even than the critics, yet the fact that notwithstanding these defects it is growing and each year is more crowded, proves that the conception of a great gathering of the tribes in one place once a year was not the dream of a mere dreamer.

This season we find the hotels crowded, the cottages overflowing, and many are turned away for want of room. New homes are springing up on every side, and along the walks and the shaded nooks of the woods old age and youth are cheek by jowl, and all are happy. Of course there has been rain, as has been the case everywhere, but now the rain is over, the sun is shining and balmy breezes are blowing, and in the early morning a small fire is not uncomfortable.

One of the most encouraging features of this season is not only the increased attendance, but also the many States represented. The time was when the visitors were confined chiefly to North and South Carolina, with an occasional sprinkling from other States. Now the entire South sends its representatives, and each season the circle enlarges. Then the cottage owners are also increasing, which means permanency. The increase in permanent residents means an increase of family life, which demands of the management more attention to insure the common conveniences of family life. If visitors find that it is impossible to have clean clothes and those keeping house are confronted with a lack of ice and vegetables, they will be compelled to make a short stay and to give up housekeeping entirely. Before another season opens, let us hope that there will be an ice factory and a laundry, both necessary to health and cleanliness.

Our first Sabbath on the grounds was the occasion where Dr. Vander Meulen, formerly of Louisville, but now of Chicago, made his first appearance before a Montreat audience. The audience which greeted him was calculated to bring out the best in a man. Every seat was filled and the space about the rostrum and along the aisles was crowded with chairs. Not only was the audience worthy of the preacher, but the sermon was worthy of the audience. The text was Matt. 16-24, If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, etc. Rarely have we heard a simpler gospel sermon, one that gripped the hearers' intellect and heart. Then the clear enunciation and the burning earnestness made an appropriate setting for the sermon.

In the evening he preached on the training of a child, laying special emphasis upon training as distinguished from teaching.

In the afternoon we heard Rev. W. H. Richardson, of Nashville, preach to the colored people. Dr. Richardson is one of our successful evangelists who has spent his life in the Southern States, where his work has been attended with the blessings of God. His sermon was on Paul's conversion, illustrated by his own experiences as an evangelist. We always try to attend these services for the negroes, because in the first place we enjoy the singing and we always hear the simple gospel, for which every heart hungers, and then we sincerely love the negro and sympathize fully with him in his hard lot and cheerless future. The only future that holds any hope for him is the future pictured by the gospel, the reign of Christ among men.

On Monday morning, though pressed by other duties, we took time enough to hear Dr. Vander Meulen again. His subject was "The Making and the Need of the Modern Minister." This was, if possible, even an advance upon his other addresses, enlivened by humor and delivered with unction, and characterized by practical sense. His last address was about the Rewards of the Ministry—what God gives him and what man denies him. It was an address that the preacher whining over the hardships of the ministry and the people who try to get ministers at bargain-counter prices should have heard. It was humorous, pathetic and keen-cutting. We would suggest that the committee print it in two parts—sending the first part to the preachers and the second part to the people. Montreat fully enjoyed Dr. Vander Meulen and will always have a warm place in its heart for him.

Dr. Douglas, of Clinton, S. C., made a strong address that will bear fruit in time. He spoke of the needs in the South of high grade colleges; of the possibility of getting such a college; and of the present opportunity. On Wednesday the entire morning was devoted to the orphans of the Assembly. The various superintendents were present, and had the orphans to sing and recite. These little ones appealed to the hearts of the immense audience, and unless we are mistaken, the cause of the helpless will be remembered in a substantial way when the Thanksgiving offering is made for the orphanages.

On Wednesday evening the Chapman Home was presented to the Montreat Association. Rev. Dr. Ottman, a friend of Dr. Chapman and a co-worker, made an address on the life of Dr. Chapman, and, in Mrs. Chapman's name, presented this beautiful home for the use of ministers and missionaries. Rev. R. C. Anderson, in the name of the Association, received the gift, as did Dr. Fraser, Moderator of our General Assembly. Dr. Walter Lingle in his attractive way gave some interesting reminiscences of Dr. Chapman in his connection with Montreat.

As we close the Home Mission Conference is beginning, of which we hope to give an account in our next.

"In the A. E. F. With an Artist."

By Lieut. John B. Mallard, U. S. A.

This is a very creditable book of sketches and views of the great war. The author and artist is a Lincolnton, N. C., boy, who was on the front with ears open and hands busy, and as a result we have scenes drawn from life, such as fell under his own eye, which insure the real instead of visions of the imagination.

The descriptions are really pen pictures which economize in words, but leave to the reader to supply what is lacking. We commend the taste, as generally the young author tries his wings in too ambitious flights. Those who wish to preserve for future generations the memory and sights of the world war would do well to invest in this book and preserve it for future reference.

Contributed

Why China is Worth Watching With Expectant, Observing Eyes

By Mildred C. Watkins.

EVEN the Revolution of 1911, which changed China from an Empire ruled by the Manchus to an imitation Republic with a so-called President, Parliament, and attempted constitution, is not so mighty an awakening, some of us believe, as the not so named "revolution" now a-working in the hearts and minds of the Chinese; for the former, after all, was brought about by a few leaders, and the multitudinous mass of the nation had nothing to do with it, nor did it lighten the distress and poverty one iota, neither has it produced any less corrupt officials, any less brutal, free-looting soldiery, or any fewer murderous bandits. Today, however, not a pupil in any school in all China from the primary grades to the highest universities, not a tiny girl, not a "returned student" A. M. from an American college, but heart, soul, strength, and mind has eagerly entered into the mighty enterprise of saving China from its internal foes of ignorance, narrowness, and selfishness, as well as from possible external plotters against her good.

The hopeful features, the characteristics of the movement, that make us watchers, thank God, are many, and I am recording what have come to my personal knowledge in Shanghai where there are so many, many institutions of learning, and where there has been and is still fine, centralizing, propagating, permeating organization; and also what I have seen in one of our stations where is one of our own Middle Schools.

In Shanghai there have been regrettable incidents, attacks on persons foolishly suspected of poisoning food or the water supplies, but never did this happen where the students had control; it was only when the mob spirit was aroused among the ignorant; one incipient riot, caused by the order of the Municipal Council that no processions should be permitted by the police in the foreign settlement, would probably never have occurred if the students had been allowed to be there and lead the parades. I have in my hand a paper given to each foreigner by students headed thus: "An Appeal to Our Foreign Friends," begging us to believe they can "insure the preservation of peace and order," and requesting our "sympathy" not our "interference;" I have also seen the bands marching quietly with their shoulders be-sashed with papers on which were printed the warning, "No Violence," in Chinese, and they practiced what they there preached.

Of course the newspaper cablegrams have told that it began with the granting by the Peace Conference of Chin Tao and Shantung to Japan, that all Japanese goods have been boycotted, and that there has been a demand that the officials "who have sold China to Japan" be ousted, but perhaps you do not know that the Christians at least realize "it is not Japan but China herself who is to blame for this; Japan took, as every nation has always done, what she could get, our own officials have been the traitors." Such was the confession in one crowded church with not one vituperative word against Japan; as some one remarked: "It was one anguished sob of a congregation on its knees."

The Japanese are slandering the missionaries, especially the Americans, against whom they are particularly enraged, as their newspapers evidence in their ravings against us, ravings absolutely absurd, for there are accusations that we bribed students to get up this movement, that we preach assassination, etc. They are keen enough to see that the Bible brings love of freedom, that Americanism means independence of thought. One of our Christian young college boys, one I know and love, when told that the Japanese believed thus, answered slowly: "No, the foreigners did not start this, but the missionary did bring to us the spirit of righteousness, justice and freedom, and this is the fruit of that spirit."

Some of our graduates now in college are prominently connected with the mighty movement, yet a few years ago they were, some of them, from raw heathen families, but are now active followers of Jesus and are seeking to establish first the Kingdom of God. A by-product is the establishing of free summer schools to be taught by the school boys and girls for the truth of the utterance, "My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge" is recognized. This means self-sacrifice, in itself a rare and needed virtue in China.

Some instances of even more touching self-sacrifice have come to my ears in letters from a Chinese minister, a leader in the Yunnan expedition, so often mentioned before, China's own Home Missionary Movement. Some one said that the finances for it came from foreign pockets; the carefully kept balance sheets prove that more than nine-tenths come from Chinese givers, some of them poverty stricken ones. One young teacher has in three years saved seventeen dollars and three cents and she sent it all, even to the three cents; one old, old woman gave a tenth of everything she possessed, the tenth amounting to $100.00, more money than she had ever had at any one time; a country girls' school halved all they had and gave $14.00. There were larger gifts from richer people; a young woman of Hong Kong, a graduate of Wellesley, pledged a thousand dollars and raised two thousand, better yet, organizing a Woman's Auxiliary in her city.

This article could be lengthened indefinitely with instances to strengthen our faith in the promise to him "that goeth forth weeping bearing precious seed," but Oh! the field is so vast and the sowers so few!

The Foreign Missionary Record of Lexington Presbytery.

The contributions of this Presbytery last year were the largest in her history.

Each year for the past few years the gifts have been increasing at the rate of about $5,000 a year. This year they were more than $10,000. The total gifts were $40,398. This gives the Presbytery first place in the Assembly. This does not include a gift of $20,000 to a special object.

For four years in succession practically every one of her sixty-three churches have made a contribution to this cause.

Besides their special home missionaries, these churches support in whole or in part more than twenty-five foreign missionary pastors or workers.

The goal of the Presbytery is a missionary pastor or worker for every church or group of churches. And a missionary union in every county or section thereof.

To the faithful pastors and people whose constant cordial and prayerful co-operation, through God, have made these splendid results possible, the executive committee wishes to convey, through the Presbyterian chairman, "the profound appreciation of that committee for this magnificent forward movement." We are sure, adds the committee, that our appreciation is small compared with that of Him who loved the whole world, and whose last command was "Go ye and disciple all nations."

E. W. McCorkle, Chairman.

Rockbridge Baths, Va.

A man with no sense of religious duty is he whom the Scriptures describe, in such terse but terrific language, as living without God in the world. Such a man is out of his proper being, out of the circle of all his happiness, and away, far, far away, from the purpose of his creation.—Daniel Webster.

Some Thrills at Columbia University.

By Mary Jasper Willis.

ANY one of the nine thousand four hundred students at the summer school of Columbia University has almost daily opportunity of experiencing shocks, thrills and throbs of some sort. On Sunday, July 27, Dr. Robert E. Speer completed his month of occupancy of the pulpit of the great Fifth Avenue Church. His text for the morning sermon was Luke 18:1, "And he spake a parable unto them to this end, that men ought always to pray, and not to faint." Dr. Speer's personality, as many of your readers know, presents a rather unusual combination of qualities. When he prayed that our fickle, irresolute, wavering lives might find rest and strength in the communion with the Father, we felt that we were being led through the wide open door as little children to the knees of a loving parent. When he prayed that our great nation might not turn back from the outstretched hands of a pleading world, might not let slip this opportunity for a wider, fuller service, we knew his conception of the great stage upon which America may now enter and enact the leading role of the world's history. There was the assured note of the teacher who had passed along the road as he clearly unfolded the teaching of Christ about prayer; the tragedy of unanswered prayer, known to all of us (unanswered in order that we may be prepared for a greater gift); the vital necessity felt by our Lord Himself, for communion with the Father, even in the deepening shadows of death when he breathed as a tired child, the prayer, "Father, into Thy hands I commend my spirit." The usual objections of those who sneer at prayer were answered with the force of a thinker who realizes the spaciousness of God's plan and its ability to comprehend the scope of our petitions and of our development. The delivery of Dr. Speer is characterized by none of that oracular bearing, that air of unscrutable and infallible profundity that some of our Presbyterian ministers are pleased to assume. He seemed the embodiment of the "big brother" idea and carries with him that inalienable youthfulness, that air of kindly helpfulness, that has in it no smirk of superiority or clericism.

Last summer some of us heard in the Brick Presbyterian Church a series of war addresses by Dr. Hugh Black, uttered with the splendid eloquence of a great, patriotic heart on fire for the victory of right. The great audience, almost in a frenzy of war fervor, thronged the building week after week and were swayed like reeds before the wind by the apotheosis of America and her ideals of glory. But, the Christ of Gallilee, as Man and Saviour, was far off. No touch of his finger was felt, except by indirect inference, as the duties of our country were outlined. He might loom up for a moment as a great Teacher, never as an atoning Saviour. But it has been so with the teaching of Dr. Speer.

Some of our summer thrills, however, have possessed the element of disgust rather than pleasure. To walk into a rest room for ladies only and see the words, "No smoking allowed," takes the very marrow out of the spinal column of us old fogies. To go into another rest room for ladies only, innocent of any such placard, and see a group of young women, supposedly well-bred, primping for the matinee, produces something like moral nausea. Paint daubed up to eyelids and cheek-bones, attire so scanty that it rivalled evening dress (nuf ced), ease and aplomb in the manipulation of matches and cigarette—all these fashions of modern young womanhood were so prominent that there was injected, like a flash of lightning, into the mind of one spectator the thought, "The Lord Jesus, when on earth, had great pity on fools! I hope his mind has not changed." And this, without any of the rancor that would have brought the utterer under the condemnation of the man who says to his brother, "Thou fool!" It was only the outcome of vast pity for the present generation and, incidentally, for the generation to come.

He who receives a kindness should never forget it; he who does one should never remember it.—Charron.

Sensuality.

By Rev. N. Macleod Caie, Hamilton.

"The chambers of his imagery."—Ezek. viii. 12.

HAVING reached the seventh terrace his fellow-pilgrims emerge upon a very perilous defile. The hillside which slopes up to the Earthly Paradise immediately above, emits a flame which sweeps so much of the terrace that there is scarcely room to walk. And in this flame the penitents are being purified and cleansed. Virgil cautions Dante to impose a sedulous watch upon his eyes, as one false step might mean his destruction. It is manifestly a poetic picture of the way in which the sin of sensuality originates in the realm of thought and imagination within. One recalls Ezekiel's weird and terrifying trance, in the course of which the profanities and excesses of Jewish worship are vividly traced by his dazzling Guide to the people's inward degradation. "Son of man, hast thou seen what the ancients of the house of Israel do in the dark, every man in the chambers of his imagery?"

That the gross and carnal sin of licentiousness in its many forms centres in these chambers of the imagination, is one of the plainest and most frequently reiterated of the ethical teachings of Jesus. When youthful feet are on the fender and the hour is late, licentious words may be spoken in defiance of chastity and self-respect. When coarse and unscrupulous men find themselves in situations in which the restraints of social purity and decency may be flung off with impunity, licentious acts may be committed in utter disregard of the dictates of humanity. But thought is action. It is the dream that shapes the life. And the polluted current of word and act must flow from the fountain of defiled imaginations and polluted minds and thoughts, murders, adulteries, fornications, thefts, false witness, blasphemies: these are the things which defile a man."

In a careless moment, the younger Channing was overheard by his father to exclaim, "I will write across my forehead 'To let to the highest bidder,'" "Not, I hope, 'unfurnished,'" rejoined his father. Everything depends upon how we furnish the chambers of imagination. Our imaginations are unborn events, premonitions of beautiful or hateful things to come. But this "hall of fantasy"—as Nathaniel Hawthorne once called it—which we possess within, is exposed to tragic perils. Deny it the best furnishings, and it will make shift to find the worst. And the stain and taint of the inward defilement will ultimately disclose themselves in the pollutions of the outward life. Happy the man whose "hall of fantasy" is hung with pictures beautiful and pure. Such inward pictures are more precious than the Old Masters; and the spirit which contains them is like the cell of Fra Angelico whose walls were covered with seraph's faces and angels' wings. But very different are the fancies harboured sometimes by the human mind. A few years ago a house was excavated near the buried city of Pompeii. When the workmen entered, they found the blue and crimson hangings wonderfully preserved. But Bacchus was also there, the god of drunkenness, and Venus the goddess of lust. The licentious mind of the profligate who owned the house was reflected upon its very walls.

It is possible to pollute thus the temple of the mind. And nothing is more apt to do it than the tainted and "suggestive" books which young people occasionally meet. Such depraved forms of reading matter are much less common today than they were two centuries ago; and we may be devoutly thankful that the greatest masters in poetry and prose, during the Victorian Age, wielded an influence which was morally ennobling. Yet it cannot be doubted that books and "storyettes" emanate from sections of the press today which seriously imperil youthful and innocent minds. The testimony of Salvation Army and other workers in the lower strata of society with regard to the evils wrought by such prurient and often openly demoralizing type of "literature" is convincing and ample. To the young there is an urgent call to guard well the hollowed chambers of the mind. Let the imagination be kept pure as the pencils of the sunlight.

(Continued on Page 7)

The Sabbath a Sign

By Rev. Jno. A. Scott, D.D.

Ezekiel 20:12: "I gave them my Sabbaths to be a sign between me and them, that they might know that I am the Lord that sanctify them."

THESE words were spoken by the Lord God. They were addressed to His ancient people, Israel. The occasion of the message was that Israel was in deep trouble, enduring chastisement from God because of sin. And now God, through His prophet, was uttering this testimony as to their guilt and was calling them to repentance.

I will attempt to preach to you about Sabbath observance, and I will take these words of the prophet for a text.

There is today a need that the claims of the fourth commandment be reasserted. We have drifted far away from the strict keeping of God's Holy Day that marked the lives of our pious ancestors. Passenger and freight trains are run on the Sabbath and are used for travel and traffic by many church members as well as by the ungodly. The postoffices are open on the Sabbath, and mail is delivered to all who call for it; and church members as well as others come and get business and other letters and the secular papers and magazines and read them, thus profaning God's Day. The owners of automobiles are using them largely for "joy riding" and for travel on the Sabbath, to the neglect of church attendance and of religious work. We see these things constantly: and because church members have grown remiss and careless, ungodly and selfish men have been emboldened to assail the Sabbath and to attempt to break down the legal barriers that in our country protect it. Brethren, the Christian Sabbath is in danger! Shall we maintain and defend it? And shall our soldier boys, who have been exposed for months now to the wretched "European Sabbath," and to the experiences of camp life and a secularized Sabbath there, come back to America to find the home people faithful to God's Sabbath, or shall they find them remiss and unfaithful?

The theme of our text is "The place that the Sabbath has in a Christian's life."

1. How has it come to pass that the Sabbath is being broken? Why do members of the church use the trains on Sabbath for travel? Why do they use the day for business trips? Why do they use the Sunday mail service? And why do they read on Sabbath or allow to be brought into their homes that wretched stuff, the Sunday editions of secular papers?

The answer must be: (1) They do not consider how their conduct dishonors and grieves the Lord, (2) or they have been misled by the example of careless ministers and church leaders, (3) or they have not been taught in the home life as to the sanctity of the Sabbath and their duty to keep it, (4) or they "have lost their first love" for Jesus and His cause, (5) or they are being spiritually enervated and corrupted by the worldly prosperity of these times and by the pleasures of this life.

Whatever be the true explanation of the conduct of Christians in regard to God's day, the fact is plain! And they need to hearken to the warning of God uttered in my text.

2. We note that God sends this message primarily to His own people, admonishing them of their sin and calling them to repentance. This is as it should be! Sinners do not know how to enter into the holy pleasure and duties of Sabbath keeping. The day is a weariness to them, and they readily break it. But Christians should keep the day. Their very position demands it. (1) They are called "friends of God." If God's Law is broken and God's name is dishonored by those who violate the Sabbath shall not Christians, as "friends of God," be careful to observe God's Holy Day?

(2) Christians are called "the salt of the earth." As salt arrests putrefaction, so their life gives tone and soundness to the life of the ungodly about them. Shall they not so observe God's Day that they shall influence the people about them to do likewise? "But if the salt have lost its savor wherewith shall it be salted? It is fit neither for the land nor for the dunghill, but men cast it out!"

(3) They are rendering service to God. Unto this they are called: and this is the life of a Christian. Shall not the servant obey the commands of his master? If so, there stands the fourth commandment! And the Christians violations of the Sabbath call for God's admonition and rebuke.

And so our text is rightly adapted to the people of God. Insofar as they have dishonored God's Sabbath they are guilty: and "judgment must begin at the house of God."

3. God speaking to His people about Sabbath breaking asserts the authority of the fourth commandment. "I gave them my Sabbaths." There are here two solemn assertions: "I gave," and "My Sabbaths."

It is evident that this statement refers to the giving of the Law at Mt. Sinai. There God came down in cloud and fire upon the quaking mountain to declare to His people the duty that He required of them. The Divine authority and holiness are embodied in the fiery law. God uttered the ten commandments in the hearing of the assembled tribes, and wrote the Words with His own finger upon the tables of stone and gave them to Moses. His Holy Law therefore stands unchanged forever.

An integral part of that Law is the Fourth Commandment, "Remember the Sabbath Day to Keep it Holy." It stands with the same authority and permanence as do the other nine commandments. It can no more pass away or cease to bind human obedience than can the First Commandment, or the Second, or the Third, or the Fifth, or the Sixth, or the Seventh, or any other. This commandment like the others, is based in essential duty and is asserted by Divine authority. Men may break this commandment as they do the others, but if they do so they sin!

But some one will say "The Christian Sabbath is the first day of the week, not the seventh." That is true. The Law of the Sabbath is unchanged: but the day was changed by the direction of the Lord Jesus and by the action of the Apostles as is abundantly shown in the New Testament Scriptures. Jehovah-Jesus gave the Law at Mt. Sinai: Immanuel-Jesus as the "Lord of the Sabbath" expounded and enforced the day when He dwelt among men; and He gave to His Apostles the guidance of the Holy Spirit, that they might perfectly guide and shape the life of His church in regard to the Sabbath day and all other things. And so while the day of the week was changed, the law of the Sabbath remains unchanged, and its authority is undiminished.

4. In our text God teaches the covenant meaning of the Sabbath, and His holy purpose in imposing it upon His people: "I gave them my Sabbaths to be a sign between me and them, that they might know that I am the Lord that sanctify them." The symbolic force of the words is plain: e. g., a married woman wears her wedding ring. It is to her a sign of the pledged troth between her and her husband. A good woman will not dishonor or repudiate that ring! Christians, the Sabbath is the ring that the Church, the Bride of Christ, wears upon her finger. Shall she dishonor it?

The flag of the United States is to our soldiers a sign of country and duty and patriotism. They will follow the flag as it goes forward into battle, they will defend it, they will, if need be, die to save it from capture and dishonor. The Sabbath is the battle flag of the sacramental host of God. Christians, will you dishonor the Sabbath or permit it to be trampled in the dust? Nay! The Sabbath is a sign between God and them. They must observe and maintain the day. The day signifies on God's part, that He is Creator, that He is the Risen and Glorified Saviour, that

(Continued on page 8)

"Some Fun Now and Then."

QUESTIONNAIRE ON ANATOMY.

By Rev. W. H. Miley, D.D.

Where can one find a "cap" for his knee?
Or a key for a "lock" of his hair?
Can his eyes be called an academy
Because there are "pupils" there?

In the "crown" of his head, what gems shine forth?
Who travels the "bridge" of his nose?
Can he use for shingling the "roof" of his mouth,
The "nails" from the end of his toes?

Has he dual nature like Jekyll and Hyde,
Because each foot has a "sole"?

Does his "heart-beat" the blood because it is bad?
Will it stop when it's good as gold?

Has he "eye-teeth" to see what food is best?
Do dates grow on his "palms"?

Does he keep his clothing in his "chest"?

Do his "ear-drums" call to arms?

Does he always choose the good with zest,
When his "wisdom-teeth" have come?

Is he thinking only of bodily rest,
When he carries his "palate" home?

Will the "calf" of his leg grow into an ox,
If fed on the "corn" from his toes?

Will the "heel" of his boot cure the rent in his sox?
Or the broken rib in his hose?

Can we say that his "crop" has never been good,
'Cause he's had but two "ears" since born?

Or that his pantry is scarce of food,
Because on his "ears" is no corn?

Can the "crook" of his elbow be sent to the "Shades"?

And if so, what did it do?
Where can he sharpen his "shoulder-blades"?

I declare I don't know, do you?

WE are glad our General Assembly's greatly beloved evangelist, Dr. Miley, the superintendent of Assembly's evangelistic work, has a liberal streak of humor running through him, as evidenced by those clever verses at the top of this column. Here is a man bound up heart and soul in a great life work of winning men into the kingdom by preaching and by personal work with individuals. Yet he pauses by the roadside, takes off his hat, mops his brow with his handkerchief and regales himself (and others) with a bit of bright, clear, sparkling humor. The Lord put that oasis by the road that leads through the strenuous life. It is to give relaxation to the tense cords of seriousness and keep them from snapping. Some of God's servants would actually burn out or break in two before their work was ended if there were not just such moments of digression. I always feel safer with a man who has a bit of humor in his make-up. I remember once riding through a swamp forty miles in a buggy with a man who had a hard face; the liveryman who engaged "to deliver me to the next town" had explained that he had no driver except this fellow who had drifted in from somewhere and asked for a job. Some miles out, as we silently drove along, the uncomfortable thought got hold of me that perhaps I was in the hands of a bad man. I told him a story away down there in the dark swamp—just a simple little story—that had a humorous point in it, and what a relief I instinctively felt when he laughed heartily and then, after a little, told me a story that was funnier than mine. After we had laughed a good hearty laugh together I felt safe, and the next day we parted, the best of friends.

A good friend of Onward wrote suggesting that we ask Dr. Miley for his verses on "The Anatomy" to put in the Does This Make You Smile Column, and the suggestion was followed. But they are too good for the Smile Column, and we usher them over to the front seat on this page that they may carry this little lesson of "Smiles on the Big Highway." Life's big work is God's service. Dr. Gordon says a man's life can reach no higher level than to be a roadway over which Jesus Christ may walk; then a man's life itself becomes the Big Highway. God's word is shot through with the idea that it is a highway, not of moanings and regrets, but of joy. Thank the Lord for a bit of humor now and then, as one of the by-products of a deep-seated joy.—Onward.

Saving Daylight.

By Rev. A. W. Pitzer, D.D.

In one of the oldest records of the human race, we read that God made two great lights, to divide the light from the darkness; to be for signs and seasons, and for days and years; and to rule over the day and night.

The sun and the moon have served these purposes since man began to live upon this earth.

The entire vegetable and animal world are ruled by these two great lights.

These two worlds, on which man is dependant for his living, move and perform all of their functions by daylight and moonlight.

The amount of daylight cannot, by man, be increased or diminished. It has remained the same through all the ages of the past.

An attempt has been made in the last few years to increase the amount of daylight; and thus improve on God's plan of ruling the world.

The fuel dictator told us that if we would "turn our clocks and watches forward one hour for six months in the year we would save 182½ hours of daylight every year," to say nothing of millions of tons of coal, the thousands of cords of wood, the gallons of oil we would save.

The public took this delicious morsel with eager delight and greedy avidity.

But in a little while the people who live in the country, and who make all our living from the vegetable world and the animal world, began to ask, "How is this? If we take one hour off in the morning and put it in the evening, there is no more daylight than before; the sun is all light, as he has always been, and our clocks are all wrong. The clocks' lie has not saved even a moment of daylight much less 182½ hours."

The two worlds of animals and eatables are up in arms against this popular humbug of saving the sunlight; and all countrymen, who live in the open world, much prefer to be ruled by God's great timekeeper set high in the heavens above.

Salem, Va.

P. S.—If putting the clock forward saves one hour of daylight, why not put it two hours forward and save two hours?

Sensuality.

(Continued from page 5)

Let a book be shut the instant a dark stain falls across its page. "I look only at the best pictures," said Ruskin; "a bad one spoils my eye."

Robertson of Brighton somewhere tells how the imagination of a soldier seizes upon a piece of painted bunting and makes it "colours," for which he will live and die. Let the "colours" of the imagination be the Christ. If mind, heart, and imagination are to be kept free from sensual taint, one must learn to know and love Him who is "the brightness of God's glory and the express Image of His person."—Life and Work.

The Sabbath a Sign.

(Continued from page 6)

He is Lord and Master. It signifies on the part of believers, that they are God's creatures, that they are followers of Jesus, and that they are by His Grace serving God. Thus the day binds God and His people together in covenant bonds. And shall Christians disregard the day or profane it? Nay, they must love the holy Sabbath, and observe it and guard it!

5. How is the Sabbath to be sanctified? Many of you, brethren, can answer in the words of the Shorter Catechism. That answer is correct! But let me point to the Fourth Commandment as being simpler. The words are "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy." There are two things to be done: "Remember" and "keep holy." "Remembering the Sabbath" is recognizing its nature as God's day, putting a difference between it and other days, observing its approach and getting ready for it.

"Keeping the Sabbath holy" is dedicating it to God by spending the day in the way that God commands. For this information we go to the Bible. We are there taught that the day is to be filled up with holy worship and service that honor God and that bring his people near to Him. The first duty affects the home. Parents are to so order all matters of routine, and work, and clothes, and transportation that they and their children may be able to observe properly the day. A most prominent feature of the observance of the day is of course public worship. There parents and children with their neighbors assemble in God's house to worship Him and to give ear to His Word. After this the day offers to God's people a good opportunity for Bible reading and personal devotions—a thing much needed in these strenuous times!

The Sabbath is a time for Christian hospitality. The proper entertainment of strangers in God's name is right and wholesome. Thereby "some have entertained angels unawares."

The Sabbath is preeminently "Mother's day"—and for that matter "Father's day" also—the day for parents to get acquainted with their children and to teach them God's truth.

And if these duties fill not out the whole day in service to God there is Christian visiting that may properly be engaged in: visiting the sick, the destitute, the afflicted, and seeking to carry the Gospel to the ignorant and to win souls to Christ!

But note this: in order that we may keep the Sabbath holy there are certain evil things that we must refuse and put away from us. Let me mention some of them: (1) Sunday travel (by public or private conveyance) for secular business or for saving our own time; (2) The use of the Sunday mails and the getting of our letters and papers from the postoffice on the Sabbath; (3) The reading of secular books, magazines and newspapers on the Sabbath, and especially the Sunday editions of such papers; (4) Joy riding, picnicking, and convivial gatherings for pleasure on the Sabbath. These things must be avoided if we would keep God's day.

6. The result of Israel's refusal to heed God's warning is that her Apostasy became complete. Sabbath breaking was but one of the indications that Israel was turning away from God. God called His people to return from this and other sins to a faithful life. They refused. Their end was utter rejection!

(1) The first result of Israel's unfaithfulness towards God's service was that they failed in their high and holy calling. They were the repositories of the Gospel. To them pertained "the adoption, and the glory, and the giving of the Law, and the service of God, and the promises, whose were the fathers and of whom as concerning the flesh Christ came who is over all God blessed forever." Their mission was to know Him and to publish His grace to a perishing world. But, alas! they knew Him not. Wedded to their sins and blinded by them they crucified the Lord of Glory!

(2) Through their sin Israel was helpless before their enemies. The heathen peoples pressed upon them and overcame them and led them captive. They were cast out from their own land and became wanderers and a by-word upon the face of the earth, to this day!

(3) When they persisted in disobedience to God, their apostasy became complete; and God rejected them from being His people! Shall we heed this solemn fact?

7. The practical lesson that we may gather from our text is the duty of Christians to keep God's day: (1) by personal observing of it, (2) by making the home what it should be on the Sabbath, and (3) by exerting their influence as citizens to protect the day from evil influences, and to maintain its proper observance, and this duty rests first on God's people!

In these days the hideous nature of sin is shown. We imagined two years ago that when autocracy was crushed order and righteousness would be established, and all would be well! Autocracy has been crushed! and lo! the greater horror of Bolshevik lawlessness and cruelty and madness the emerged and is assailing the world.

There is only one remedy for fallen mankind and for a ruined world, it is the Gospel of Jesus Christ. This does avail. It is the hope of the world. It is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth." And this Gospel is committed to God's people. How great is their responsibility since this treasure is committed to them! How needful it is that they who testify this Gospel shall so live that they can effectively commend it to their fellow men!

They must be endued with power from on high for their work, and certainly they must live faithfully toward God in order that He may send His Spirit upon them in their Gospel work! They must keep God's ordinances and His Statutes and His Sabbaths if they would effectually do His great work of saving souls!

Hear and heed God's admonition: "I gave them my Sabbaths to be a sign between me and them, that I am the Lord that sanctify them:"—and resolve "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord: we will keep His Holy Sabbath."

Brookneal, Va.

The Little Towns.

Oh, little town in Arkansas and little town in Maine,
And little sheltered valley town and hamlet on the plain,
Salem, Jackson, Waukesha, and Brookville and Peru,
San Mateo and Irontown, and Lake, and Waterloo,
Little town we smiled upon and loved for simple ways,
Quiet streets and garden beds and friendly sunlit days,
Out of you the soldiers came,
Little town of homely name,
Young and strong and brave with laughter,
They saw truth and followed after,
Little town, the birth of them,
Makes you kin to Bethlehem!

Little town where Jimmy Brown ran the grocery store;
Little town where Manuel fished along the shore;
Where Russian Steve was carpenter and sandy Pat Mc-Quade
Worked all day in overalls at his mechanic's trade;
Where Allen Perkins practiced law, and John, Judge Harper's son,
Planned a little home for two that never shall be done—
Little town, you gave them all,
Rich and poor and great and small;
Bred them clean and straight and strong,
Sent them forth to right the wrong.
Little town, their glorious death
Makes you kin to Nazareth!

—Hilda Morris, in "The Come Back," published by disabled soldiers in Walter Reed Hospital, District of Columbia.

News of the Week

The most serious development of the past week has been the attitude of organized labor. Not only have strikes increased, with the resulting disturbance of business, but labor seems to be getting beyond the control, even of its leaders. In several strikes the strikers refused to obey the advice of their leaders. It would seem that having taught the man its power the leaders now find that they are powerless. On Monday last organized labor gave notice that it would present to Congress on Wednesday certain demands. In brief they propose and demand that private capital be retired from the railroads and that there shall be a tri-partite control composed of the public, the operating management and the employer.

In response to the declaration of President Wilson that their claims would not be considered as long as the strike was in defiance of the international officers of the shop craft unions, the federated railway shopmen are slowly returning to work. The President has authorized Director General Hines to take up the demands of the shopmen and decide them on their merit.

The North Carolina merchants who some time ago protested against the passage of the Kenyon bill which is aimed at the packing industry are now taking the back track and confessing that they were misled by agents of the packers.

According to the counsel of the United States Brewing Association the prohibition act is unconstitutional.

The high cost of living and the demand for higher wages is having the effect of speeding the work of Congress. After playing politics since its opening, that body is now buckling down to earnest work.

Bela Kun, the Hungarian soviet leader, has been deposed and placed in an internment camp.

Deputy Sheriff Lloyd Cloninger, of Mooresville, N. C., was shot and fatally wounded by an unknown negro, while attempting to arrest Connor, a notorious colored man, near the colored camp meeting grounds at Morris school house.

The National News says a suggestion that the British West Indies be ceded to the United States in part payment of Great Britain's war debt is being considered seriously on both sides of the Atlantic.

Secretary Baker has presented to Congress the War Department's program for military training. The bill provides a peace strength of 510,000 enlisted men and a war strength of 1,250,000. Its effect will be to give army training to all young men.

The former Chief of the Air Service testified before a Congressional Committee that no aircraft of the A. E. F. had been wantonly destroyed, but only worthless machines were burned.

The Senate has given to the foreign relations committee authority to bring out all the facts about Mexican outrages on Americans and their property and to find a remedy for same.

The High Cost of Living is occupying the front of the stage for the present as President Wilson has begun his probe into the cause of same. On August 3 the President appeared before Congress and addressed them on the subject. He says that no shortage in supplies is causing the present conditions but that they are created "artificially and deliberately" by "vicious practices." Some of the specific recommendations by the President were:

Licensing of all corporations engaged in interstate commerce, with specific regulations designed to secure competitive selling and prevent "unconscionable profits" in the method of marketing.

Extension of the food control act to peace times and the application of its provisions against hoarding to fuel, clothing and other necessities of life as well as food.

(Continued on page 10)

Home Circle

RESTFUL TASKS.

At least a few of the sanitariums and institutions highly advertised as "perfect rest cures" for women all over the country would have to curtail their business, if only women could be induced to save a part of each day for restful tasks. It is the popular opinion that rest consists always and only of inactivity, but there are delightful tasks that do more than absolute cessation from work to refresh tired body and mind.

It is the business of every woman to set aside such tasks as her recreation, and not to whip her tired body to do hated work, no matter how necessary. When nature runs up the danger signal of weariness, irritability, depression and lack of interest in necessary duties, nine out of every ten women immediately think it their duty to conquer that feeling by undertaking some big task, usually a task that they despise in days when they feel normal. One woman in our neighborhood, whenever she feels below par, gets at a certain cluttered closet, where her husband and children generously cast their belongings regardless of order. The result is there is no living with her that day and for several days thereafter. "But I simply will not humor myself because I feel tired or depressed," she says virtuously. "I don't go to pieces as other women do. I work it off." And in working it off she destroys her own comfort and the happiness of her family for several days.

Fine Cooking Her Recreation.

In direct contrast is another neighbor drives off the blues or physical troubles by indulging in the baking of toothsome cakes or crisp cookies. She does not have the chance to indulge often in rich foods, because her children are small and she doesn't believe in anything but simple foods for all of them; but once in a while, when depressed or irritable or discouraged, she does indulge her passion for fine cooking. To some women it might be a hated task to turn out an elaborate and delicious cake, but to her it is a tonic, and she comes through her troubles serenely. One fine cake a month or a batch of frosted cookies will not ruin the stomachs of a healthy family, so no harm is done, and a great deal of good.

Some find in a long white seam rest and tranquility, while others enjoy knitting or embroidery. One woman who spends her days teaching music has discovered that cooking rests her when she is tired, while another who must do the family cooking three times a day turns to letter writing for rest and recreation. She thinks of the letters as she works, and when ready to "take her pen in hand" weaves into the missives all the quaint thoughts and homely news her little world contains, finding rest and comfort and amusement in sending them out and in reading the replies.

Making buttonholes is one of my most restful tasks, while a neighbor of mine shirks that particular bit of work until she can shirk no longer. A friend of mine likes nothing better than to tinker at a balky clock or sewing machine or anything that needs oiling or mending. A caller at a fashionable house was amazed when the little daughter of the hostess explained that her mother could not come in for a few minutes, because she was boiling the kitchen ware in a lye solution to remove the black that will accumulate in spite of all efforts. And she was still more amazed to find that the society lady found in that homely, dirty task rest and recreation when weary of the world.

Ride Your Hobby.

So whatever may be your work hobby don't be afraid to ride it when the dull, depressed moments come, as they will come to every one. Save up something that rests you and sit down even in the midst of a hundred more pressing tasks to enjoy the useless thing and get back to your normal state. Your family will profit by the indulgence, and when the days come that you need every bit of nerve force to carry you through some domestic emergency you will not have frittered away your surplus energy proving to yourself that

(Continued on Page 10)

Sunday School

By Rev. H. G. Hill, D.D.

CHRISTIAN MISSIONS.

Golden Text—Mark 16-15, "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature."

Acts 1:8; 14:8-20.

Aug. 17, 1919.

The effort to give the Gospel to the world commenced at Antioch, in Syria, under the power, leadership and guidance of the Holy Ghost. He assumed the position of the "Commander-in-Chief" of the forces for evangelizing mankind. He said to the eldership of the church at Antioch, "Separate me Barnabas and Saul unto the work whereunto I have called them." When the two men chosen entered upon their appointed mission we find that the Holy Ghost continually guided their steps, protected their lives, selected their fields of labor, and blest their efforts. Our lesson presents their experience at Lystra, a town in Asia-Minor, in the region of Lyconia. We may profitably consider the source of their power as well as the effects of its exercise.

I. The Baptism of the Holy Ghost Gave Power.

The Saviour had told them, "But ye shall receive power after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you and ye shall be witnesses unto Me, both in Jerusalem and in all Judea and in Samaria and unto the uttermost part of the earth." The power shown by these evangelists verified this prediction and promise. He gave them power to understand the truth, to proclaim it clearly to Jew and Gentile, and to attest the Divine origin of their message by working miracles of healing. He aided them in making converts to Christ wherever they went by operating on the minds and hearts of their hearers, and persuading and enabling them to comply with the terms of salvation and to become Jesus' disciples. The Holy Ghost wrought in them by the Divine Word, faith, repentance and a willingness to obey the Gospel. The Holy Ghost, too, sustained these evangelists under the trials they encountered, delivered them from the dangers faced, and cooperated with them in all efforts to advance Christ's Kingdom. The same is true now. The Holy Ghost is still the Church's power for converting mankind. Not by human logic or eloquence, or wealth or combined effort, though they may be used, can Christians be made. "Paul may plant and Appolos water, but God must give the increase." Jehovah says the world is to be won "Not by might or power but by My Spirit saith the Lord of hosts."

II. The Cripple at Lystra Healed.

He heard Paul speak. Paul fixed his eyes on him and perceived that he had faith to be healed. The evangelist "said with a loud voice, stand upright on thy feet." "And he leaped up and walked." He had been a cripple from birth and had never walked. The effect of the command was immediate. No remedies were used, and no gradual process of improvement was witnessed. The cure was prompt and complete. He not only could stand and walk but leaped. He had bestowed upon him a power that he never possessed or exercised. It was manifest that Divine power had wrought the change. It could not be denied, that the power of God had wrought the miracle. The mistake made by the people was in imputing this power to Paul and Barnabas. They affirm "The Gods have come down to us in the likeness of men." They apply to them the names of their heathen deities. They call "Barnabas Jupiter and Paul Mercurius because he was the chief speaker." They attempt to render them Divine worship by offering sacrifice to them. Paul and Barnabas reject the honors tendered, and running in among them declare that "They are men of like passions with themselves."

III. The Evangelists Proclaim Some Important Truths.

They affirm that men shall not be worshipped as Gods. They assert that idols are false, vain and profitless. They point them to the living God, who made heaven and earth and the sea and all things that are therein. They declare that in time past God suffered all nations to walk in their own ways, without any direct Divine revelation. Elsewhere in the Scriptures we are told that He did this because of their sinfulness. They did not like to retain God in their knowledge, and Jehovah permitted them to walk in their own ways, that they might realize the bitterness of sin, the helplessness of the sinner and their need of a Divine salvation. Yet the Lord "did not leave Himself without witness in that He did good, and gave us rain from heaven and fruitful lessons, filling our hearts with food and gladness."

IV. The Fickleness of Human Favor.

On account of the miracle of healing wrought on the cripple, the people of Lystra were disposed to pay homage to Paul and Barnabas and even to give them Divine honors. But their favor did not abide. Certain hostile Jews from Antioch and Iconium, where Paul and Barnabas had been preaching, came to Lystra. They persuaded the people and "they stoned Paul and drew him out of the city supposing that he was dead. One day they were disposed to acclaim them deities to be worshipped, and a few days later they attempted to put Paul, the miraculous healer, to a cruel and shameful death. Man being in honor often does not long thus abide with his fellows. Some of the multitude that greeted Jesus with "Hosanna to the Son of David" a few days later cried, "Crucify Him."

News of the Week.

(Continued from page 9)

A penalty in the food control act for profiteering.

A law regulating cold storage, limiting the time during which goods may be held, prescribing a method of disposing of them if held beyond the permitted period and requiring that when released goods bear the date of storage.

Laws requiring that goods released from storage for interstate commerce bear the selling prices at which they went into storage and requiring that all goods destined for interstate commerce bear the prices at which they left the hands of the producer.

Enactment of the pending bill for the control of security issues.

Additional appropriations for government agencies which can supply the public with full information as to prices at which retailers buy.

Early ratification of the peace treaty so that the "free processes of supply and demand" can operate.

The entire Secret Service of the United States has been put on the trail of the "food gougers," the people or corporations that are hoarding food.

Professor Ernest Haeckel, professor of zoology at the University of Jena, and famous throughout the world for his research work supporting the theory of evolution, died on August 9.

The Kenilworth Army Hospital, Asheville, N. C., has been ordered vacated by September 1, by order of Surgeon General Gorgas.

Restful Tasks.

(Continued from Page 9)

you can conquer the blues by doing some task that you hate. You may indeed sin against a tired body and frazzled nerves in that foolish fashion, but some day you will have to pay the bill. Dame Nature makes no discount for foolishness of that kind, and when she does undertake to collect what is due her she does it with compound interest, as many women have found to their sorrow. Better pamper yourself by indulging in the thing you enjoy, and in the end you will rise up to call yourself blessed, as well as hear that glorious word from your husband and children and friends; for a far pleasanter companion than a nerve-racked woman is a serene, happy, well poised wife, mother, sister, daughter and friend. —Hilda Richmond, in Continent.

Christian Endeavor

By Rev. S. H. Hay.

- M., Aug. 18—National Pride: John 8:33-34.
- T., Aug. 19—Pride of Power: Exod. 5:1-13.
- W., Aug. 20—Spiritual Pride: Rev. 3:14-22.
- T., Aug. 21—Knowledge Makes Proud: I Cor. 8:1-13.
- F., Aug. 22—A Cure for Pride: Phil. 2:1-5.
- S., Aug. 23—The End of Pride: Rev. 18:7-20-24.

* * *

Topic for Sunday, Aug. 24—The Folly of Pride—Prov. 16:1-19.

* * *

Nothing is more foolish than pride. It makes us the laughing stock of the universe. It lacks all sense of proportion, thinking itself great when it is small. It deceives one into the ludicrous attitude of the poor little fly of Aesop's fable, which sat on the axle-tree of the chariot and exulted, saying, "What a dust I am raising!" That poor little fly has made us smile for many generations. And pride causes us to make just such a spectacle of ourselves.

* * *

Illustrating further the folly of pride—it is said that there was once a frog in the rushes of a meadow where a great bull was grazing. The frog noted the size of the magnificent animal, and began to inflate himself with air in the attempt to become as large as he. It was a proud and foolish effort, and directly the poor creature burst—and that was the end. The only thing left of him was a history for generations to laugh at.

* * *

Pride is foolish because it is sin. Sin is always folly. No folly was ever so tragic as Adam's sin. It ruined everything for him and his posterity. When he afterwards reflected on his sin, no doubt he was pained not only because of his guilt but because he had played the fool. Few things so make our ears burn as the sense of having played the fool. And sin is still folly, as it was in Adam's day. It carries always a germ of destruction. But pride carries this germ in more deadly form than most sins do, and it is a crowning folly.

* * *

Pride is folly because God is against the proud. He sets Himself to bring the proud to nought. He hates a high look. Our Bible lesson says, Every one that is proud in heart is an abomination to Jehovah: though hand join in hand, he shall not be unpunished. For a young person setting out upon a career, the greatest misfortune is to get at cross purposes with God, and the greatest asset is to have God on one's side. David climbed up from the sheepfold to greatness. And the explanation is not far to seek. Over and over we are told that the Lord was with him. Obstacles melted before him. On the other hand Balaam had God against him. Angels stood in the way to defeat him, and all that he tried to do God subverted. So God is determined to defeat our lives also and bring us low if we are proud.

* * *

Quoted illustrations:

- (1) The chimney overlooks all the rest of the house; is it not for all that the basest part of the building?—Bishop Hall.
- (2) It is with men as with wheat; the light heads are erect even in the presence of Omnipotence, but the full heads bow in reverence before Him.—Joseph Cook.

* * *

Name the things of which we sometimes become sinfully proud.

Give four advantages of sincere humility.

Tell first how we know pride is a sin, then tell why it is a sin.

Prayer is not an accidental expression that comes suddenly to the mind; it is the soul's recognition of its need.—Statham.

The Prayer Meeting

By Rev. C. D. Waller.

TOPIC FOR WEEK BEGINNING AUG. 17, 1919:
SPIRITUAL PAUPERISM—Luke 12:13-21.

The request of "one out of the multitude" was perfectly natural: in fact it was just and inevitable; only it should have been addressed to a civil magistrate. The following remarks (verses 15-21) were suggested, not by this request, but by the conduct of the withholding "brother." Regardless of unjust laws of primogeniture, this man was entitled to his part of the inheritance, and it was not wrong for him to seek to secure his rights. Nevertheless the request of this man out of the multitude suggested to our Lord the sordid avarice of men which induced them to act on the principle that a man's life does consist of the things which he possesses. This theory is and has ever been widely held. It has led to crime, it has been the root of selfishness, and the mainspring of untold misery. It has for centuries controlled the dealings of nation with nation, has caused thousands of wars, and the expenditure of millions of lives and billions of treasure.

It is a falsehood which has a million lives, and men will read this passage from the lips of Jesus, they will take part in the most solemn acts of worship, and then go right on acting as if God had never said: "Thou fool;" as if Jesus had never rebuked and condemned this base and bloody principle.

Jesus does not rebuke the holding in possession of private property. What he does do is to rebuke and condemn both those who would dispossess others who rightfully hold property, and those who withhold from others what is justly due to them. Also he scathingly rebukes the holding of property as if material riches could and should satisfy the cravings of man's soul. "So is he that layeth up treasure for himself and is not rich toward God."

There are then two kinds of riches. The "riches toward God" are the truest, highest, most satisfying riches; the material riches are not an end in themselves, but a means only.

Perhaps, after all, the difficulty is to get men to see and to realize the reality and the value of the "riches toward God." "The jingle of the guinea helps the hurt that honor feels." Honor like religion is immaterial—one cannot see it, handle it, hear it. The necessities of the soul are not so evident as the necessities of the body. Hence many who are rich in lands and gold and goods, are poor in all the wealth of the soul. Many who are poor in gold are rich toward God.

Avarice debases everything it touches. It transmutes the noble sentiment of patriotism into a mere instrument of making money. It turns church fellowship into an instrument of gain. It introduces the canker of rust and decay into the vital places of the heart and life.

Every man may be rich toward God. Spiritual pauperism is self-imposed. The gospel spells disillusionment from the fallacies of avarice, freedom from the virus of vital decay. It proffers a wisdom that will cure the insanity of the gold fever. It offers a riches which rust cannot destroy, or the moth consume; which is currant in earth and heaven. Jesus is the teacher of a divine economy which makes gold a blessing to the world, and which reveals a riches paramount: a riches free to every believer, blessing him that possesses it, and those that possess it not. To be rich toward God is the goal of Christ's labor and passion for man: a permanent and indestructible blessing to us.

God is our Father; He will do us all that good to which we are created and designed by His grace; and, because He is almighty, He is able to perform it all; and, therefore, we may safely believe in Him and rely upon Him.—Jeremy Taylor.

Presbyterian Standard

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, $2.50 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE.
REV. W. L. BOGGS, Circulation Manager.

PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY AT CHARLOTTE, N. C.
ESTABLISHED JANUARY 1, 1858.

Entered at the Post Office at Charlotte, N. C., as second class matter.

A Religious Newspaper for the Family, Devoted to the Interest of Christ's Kingdom as Represented by the Southern Presbyterian Church.

CONTENTS OF THIS ISSUE

Saved by Grace	2
The Union Seminary Review	2
Montreat, 1919	3
"In the A. E. F. With an Artist"	3
CONTRIBUTED—
Why China is Worth Watching With Expectant, Observing Eyes—By Miss Mildred C. Watkins	4
The Foreign Missionary Record of Lexington Presbytery—By E. W. McCorkle.....	4
Some Thrills at Columbia University—By Mary Jasper Willis	5
Sensuality—By Rev. N. Macleod Caie, Hamilton	5-7
The Sabbath a Sign—By Rev. Jno. A. Scott, D. D.	6-8
"Some Fun Now and Then"—By Rev. W. H. Miley, D. D.	7
Saving Daylight—By Rev. A. W. Pitzer, D.D. . .	7
The Little Towns—By Hilda Morris.....	8
DEPARTMENTS—
News of the Week	9
Home Circle	9
Sunday School—By Rev. H. G. Hill, D.D.....	10
Christian Endeavor—By Rev. S. H. Hay	11
Prayer Meeting—By Rev. C. D. Waller	11

ANNOUNCEMENT.

 The label on the paper gives the date to which subscription is paid.

When change of address is desired, give both the old and the new address.

When the date of the label is behind the date of this issue of the paper the label is a reminder that the subscription price is past due. When the date of the label is in advance of the date of this issue it is a receipt for the last subscription paid.

No charge is made for the insertion of marriage and obituary notices of fifty words or less. For all over fifty words remit at the rate of one cent a word. Correspondents are requested to give the post office address of married couples when marriage notices are sent.

TREASURERS OF BENEVOLENT CAUSES.

Foreign Missions—Edwin F. Willis, 154 Fifth Ave., N., Nashville, Tenn.

Home Missions—A. N. Sharp, 1522 Hurt Building, Atlanta, Ga.

Christian Education and Ministerial Relief—John Stites, Fifth and Market Streets, Louisville, Ky.

Publication and Sabbath School Work—R. E. Magill, 6-8 N. Sixth Street, Richmond, Va.

Bible Cause—Wm. Foulke, Bible House, New York.

Church News

Collections—August is not assigned to any one of our Church causes, but in many of the Synods and Presbyteries it is assigned to Synodical, Presbyterian, or congregational home missions. Pastors and churches can obtain information from the chairman of the committee of their own Presbytery.

PERSONAL.

Rev. Daniel A. McNeill, recently at Camp Funston as chaplain, may be addressed during August at Raeford, N. C.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Wilson, of Hangshow, China, have arrived in Louisville, Ky., on their first furlough since going to the foreign field. They were accompanied by Dan Blain, son of Rev. and Mrs. J. Mercer Blain, of Hangchow, who will continue his studies in this country this fall at Washington and Lee University.

We have received a very attractive "souvenir" of Lees-McRate Institute, Banner Elk, N. C., which shows pictorially what this school in the mountains of North Carolina is accomplishing and from what it has grown. There is possibly no more important factor in the developing of our great country than Christian schools like this one, and they should have the support and prayers of our people.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

Enoree Presbytery will meet in Greer, S. C., September 30, 1919, at 7:30 p. m. E. P. Davis, S. C.

Hartsville—Sunday, July 27, Rev. Mr. McAlphine, from Georgia, filled this pulpit and preached two able sermons. Sunday, August 3, Rev. Mr. Young, of Camp Wadsworth, at Spartanburg, S. C., filled this pulpit. He preached two excellent sermons to large and appreciative audiences. James W. Knox, Cor.

York—A warm welcome was extended the members of the congregation who have returned from the world war at a special service held in their honor at the First Presbyterian Church Sunday evening, July 27. The Rev. E. E. Gillespie, D.D., presided and after telling the soldiers, who occupied seats on the rostrum, of the gratification felt by all over their return called on them to narrate their experiences or discuss topics pertaining to the war. In response to this request talks were made by Col. W. W. Lewis, Capt. G. C. McCelvey, Capt. P. W. Hunter, J. G. Lawton, Perry Ashe and Capt. B. J. White, the latter of Rock Hill. The service was held on the church lawn and was attended by a large congregation.

Florence—The work here has been going forward steadily and with many elements of encouragement. Twenty members have been received during the past six weeks. Since April 1 there have been thirty-two (32) additions to this church, twelve (12) on profession and twenty (20) by letter.

In spite of the extreme heat the congregations have continued large, the church being filled at morning service, with a surprisingly good attendance also at night, as well as at the mid-week prayer meeting.

Our pastor, Dr. H. Tucker Graham, and his family are spending their vacation in Virginia, but all the regular services will be maintained in his absence. With generous thought for his comfort the officers of this church have made an increase in our pastor's salary twice during the current year. B.

Antioch—Rev. J. F. Matheson, of Union, lately (August 3-8) assisted Rev. C. O'N. Martindale in a series of gospel meetings at Antioch Church, preaching the gospel with great earnestness, simplicity, and power, five being added to the membership. Mr. Matheson's winsome personality and consecrated air greatly impressed all who came in contact with him. There was a good degree of interest, the night services being attended by a crowd of people.

Reidville and Nazareth—The pastor, Rev. C. O. N. Martindale, was aided in a delightful series of evangelistic meetings, conducted by Rev. Geo. F. Robertson, D.D., of Pineville, N. C., July 20-26, at Reidville, and July 27-August 1 at Nazareth Church. Dr. Robertson's sermons were quite instructive and inspiring, and greatly enjoyed. Among the subjects treated were "Prophecy," "The Kingdom," "The Mystery," "The Signs of the Times," "The Devil," "The First and Second Comings of Christ," "The Child in the Midst," "Assurance of Salvation," "The Judgment." Prior to these services the pastor preached a week on Mrs. B. M. Anderson's lawn. As results of the efforts put forth by preachers and people, thirteen were received into the church at Reidville and eight into Nazareth church, while four went to the Baptist church. Notwithstanding occasional rains, the attendance was quite large and the interest good. Dr. Robertson's genial manners and solemn urgencies won many hearts. He is a firm preacher and deserves a good audience. To God be all the praise!

Monaghan Mill is a new work, and a new church building was completed in December, 1918, our membership then being only fourteen. At a recent revival service we had twenty-two additions, and at a formal opening of the church, March 2, we received nine members, six on profession of faith. The revival services were conducted by Rev. P. D. Patrick, of Menlo, Ga., and his earnest Gospel messages have been a blessing to us all. Our present membership is forty-eight, having received, since February, thirty-one members into our church. We have a splendid and wide awake missionary society. Our Sunday school for the present church year will average eighty or eighty-five, and we feel proud of the compliments which come from so many sections about our children singing so well. Mr. G. M. Davis is superintendent, and Mr. J. W. Glenn, secretary-treasurer. We are very ably assisted by several members of the Second Presbyterian church, of Greenville. We expect to start a Christian Endeavor here next week. This church, located at Monaghan Mill, is a kind of mission station for the churches of Greenville. These churches have donated $1,000 on our building and also helped to support the pastor. Our entire indebtedness will not exceed $325.

J. P. Brown, Pastor, in Christian Observer.

NORTH CAROLINA.

Caldwell Reunion—The annual reunion of the Caldwells will be held this year at Sugar Creek Church on Tuesday, September 2. All the Caldwells and all the connection are expected to come with basket for picnic dinner.

C. H. Caldwell.

Reedy Creek Church—The services conducted in this church by Rev. E. C. Bailey, of Edgefield, are well attended with great interest. Already a dozen young ladies and young men have professed faith in Christ. Services close Sunday night.

Barbecue—A meeting of five days was closed in this church Friday, August 8. Rev. R. A. McLeod, of Hope Mills, did the preaching, assisted in the services by the pastor, Rev. J. A. Caligan. Mr. McLeod preached the pure Gospel in a most attractive and edifying way, and large congregations attended and listened with marked attention. While there were but four public professions of faith, there were more than eighty reconsecrations.

Broadway—On Sunday night, August 3, a revival meeting closed in this church. Rev. Donald McIver, of Burlington, did the preaching, assisted in the services by the pastor, Rev. J. A. Caligan. Mr. McIver presented the simple yet wonderful truths of the Gospel in a most striking way. Every sermon was Scriptural, and large congregations, especially at the night services, listened with earnest attention. While there was but one profession of faith, there were more than one hundred reconsecrations. It was found on the last day of the meeting that every one present was a professing Christian.

Badin—This church is entitled to a place on the honor roll, having on last Sunday increased the pastor's salary 20 per cent. This is very commendable, since we shall have a new church to build and incur heavy expense this year. The pastor, Rev. T. G. Tate, is spending a two weeks' vacation at Montreat and Old Fort, N. C. We are very anxious to commence the building of the church, and plans are being laid to start in the early fall. This church is located in the new and thriving town of Badin, the home of the Tallasee Power Company.

Hopewell—A series of meetings will begin at this church on Friday, August 22, 9 o'clock p. m. Rev. Samuel W. Moore, Bluefield, W. Va., will be present to assist the pastor for three or four days. Then Rev. Jno. H. Grey, of Bedford City, Va., is to come and the meeting will continue through the fifth Sabbath, the 31st, which is to be "Communion Day."

Tuesday, August 26, is to be observed as "Home-coming Day," and the people and pastor expect to welcome many friends, and they extend a hearty invitation to all or any of these services.

Orange Presbytery—At the request of the pastor of the North Wilkesboro church, and of his people, and of some of the brethren of Presbytery, I hereby change the time of the meeting of the Presbytery of Orange from September 9 to September 16, 1919, at 8 o'clock p. m. Done in accordance with Book of Church Order, paragraphs 55 and 79.

E. R. Leyburne, Moderator.

Therefore Orange Presbytery will meet in the North Wilkesboro Presbyterian Church on Tuesday, September 16, 1919, at 8 o'clock p. m.

D. I. Craig, Stated Clerk.

First Church, Hickory—A special meeting of Concord Presbytery was ordered to convene in this church on Saturday, August 9, at noon, for the purpose of receiving the Rev. E. M. Craig, D.D., into the Presbytery and ordering his installation as pastor of this church.

The installation of the Rev. E. M. Craig, D.D., as pastor of this church took place on Sunday morning, August 10, the service being in charge of a commission of ministers appointed by Presbytery. Both morning and evening services were conducted by the visiting ministers.

Montreat—A service more impressive has not been held at Montreat during its entire history than was the one in memory of Rev. J. Wilbur Chapman, D.D., who for four seasons, 1914, 1915, 1916 and 1917, was in charge of the evangelistic period of the Montreat Summer Conference. A more popular speaker has not been heard at Montreat than Dr. Chapman, nor one who was more greatly loved by the scores and hundreds of people who heard him gladly each year. In speaking of this fact at the memorial service, Rev. Walter L. Lingle, D.D., of Richmond, Va., chairman of the program committee of the Montreat Conferences and who presided at this service, said that the secret of the popularity of Dr. Chapman at Montreat was the fact that Dr. Chapman loved Montreat and the people gathered here to hear him loved Dr. Chapman.

The principal speaker at this service was Rev. Ford C. Ottman, D.D., of New York, an intimate friend of Dr. Chapman for a number of years and the one whom Mrs. Chapman has requested to write the life of her husband. Dr. Ottman gave an interesting sketch of the life of Dr. Chapman, speaking especially of his life and work as pastor and evangelist, and dwelling with emphasis upon the fact that the secret of the great influence and power of his ministry was found in the deep spirituality and consecration of the man and the oneness of his desire and effort to be used of God in winning many others to Him.

In the year 1915 Dr. and Mrs. Chapman erected a beautiful home at Montreat and occupied it in the summer of the two years following. An outstanding feature of the memorial service to Dr. Chapman was the presentation of the Chapman home to the Mountain Retreat Association, Dr. Ottman making the presentation, at the request of Mrs. Chapman. The home is a gift from Mrs. Chapman as a memorial to her husband and it is to be used for the free entertainment of ministers and their wives during the Montreat conference season each year. Responding to Dr. Ottman's words of presentation, Rev. R. C. Anderson, president of the Mountain Retreat Association, accepted the Chapman home for the association, Dr. Lingle for the program committee and Rev. A. M. Fraser, D.D., of Staunton, Va., Moderator of the General Assembly of 1919, for the Southern Presbyterian Church. All of these paid high tribute to the life and work of Dr. Chapman and of the love of Southern Presbyterians for him, and expressed deep appreciation to Mrs. Chapman for this memorial gift to him at Montreat. Mrs. Chapman and son, Alexander Hamilton Chapman, were present at the memorial service.

The principal musical selections at the memorial service were the hymns "Ivory Palaces" and "One Day." The first of these was written at Montreat by Henry Barraclough, following a sermon by Dr. Chapman. It was sung by Mrs. A. R. Bauman, of Montreat, as a solo, at this service. Dr. Chapman wrote the hymn "One Day" and it has been used frequently in his evangelistic meetings.

Rev. H. G. Hill, D.D., of Maxton, N. C., and Rev. Alexander Sprunt, D.D., of Charleston, S. C., led the opening and the closing prayer, respectively, at this memorial service.

Mamie Bays.

Synodical Home Missions—Receipts for July, 1919: Albemarle Presbytery: Howard Mem., $46.75; Howard Mem., Alb. Supt., $25.00; Warrenton, $13.50—total, $85.25.

Concord Presbytery: Back Creek, $12.86; Barium Springs, $25.00; Bayless Mem., $3.00; Cannonville, $10.00; Davidson College, $65.00; Davidson College W. M. Soc., Alb. Supt., $5.00; Gilwood, $10.00; Hickory, $20.00; Marion (Rev. C. C. B.), $12.80; Marion, L. M. Soc., Alb. Supt., $2.00; Mocksville W. M. Soc., $10.00; Mooresville First, $82.72; Mooresville First S. S., $8.03; McKinnon S. S., $6.00; Newton (Rev. L. Gill), $167.00; Poplar Tent, $6.40; Prospect, $6.00; Rocky River A. P. Miss. Soc., $2.50; Salisbury First, $50.00; Statesville First, $100.00; Tabir, $1.00; Third Creek, $10.00; Thyatira, $23.50; Thyatira L. M. Soc., $1.75; Mocksville, $32.48—total, $673.04.

Fayetteville Presbytery: Antioch (S. S. $5.00), (W. Aux. Alb. Supt., $5.00), $61.00; Buie's Creek, $10.00; Centre, $27.59; Ch. of Cov. W. Aux., $3.35; Culdee (Rev. O. G. J.), $29.92; Dunn, $25.00; Elise, $2.75; Fayetteville First, $150.00; Iona, $15.00; Laurell Hill, $40.00; Leaflet, $2.35; Maxton, $46.18; Maxton L. Austin Miss. Soc. Alb. Supt., $2.25; Milton, $14.49; Montpelier (A. W. C.), $163.16; Oakland (Rev. O. G. J.), $53.08; Oak Grove, $8.93; Philippi, $2.25; Pittsboro, $5.00; Pocket, $3.00; Red Springs, $56.00; Red Springs L. M. S., $9.15; Rex, $5.00; Rock Branch, $5.20; Sandy Grove, $8.90; Sanford, $29.38; St. Andrews, $11.35; St. Paul's, $56.00; St. Paul's W. Aux. Alb. Supt., $6.00—total, $852.29.

Kings Mountain Presbytery: Brittan (Rev. Wm. B.), $70.65; Gastonia First, $102.52; Lincolnton, $50.00; Rutherfordton L. Soc., $4.80—total, $227.97.

Mecklenburg Presbytery: Albemarle (Rev. Wm. B.), $187.13; Knox, $12.27; Philadelphia (Rev. Wm. B.), $176.09; Steele Creek, $50.00; Troy, $4.27; Westminster, $25.00—total, $454.76.

Orange Presbytery: Bethesda, $1.89; Buffalo, $40.00; Burlington, $7.00; Ebenezer, $6.00; Efland, $1.00; Elmira, $3.00; Gilead, $5.00; Glade Valley, $3.55; Glenwood, $3.75; Greensboro First, $75.17; Jefferson, $6.00; Mebane, $6.84; Obids, $6.00; Piedmont, $3.00; Riedsville, $48.00; Shiloh, $2.00; Westminster, $31.00—total, $249.20.

Wilmington Presbytery: Ch. of Cov. W. Aux., $35.00; Ch. of Cov. W. Aux. Alb. Supt., $5.00; Clarkton, $28.00; Clarkton S. S., $18.80; Mt. Olive, $50.00; St. Andrew's, $77.82; Wilmington First, $50.00—total, $264.62.

Total for July, $2,807.13; previously reported, $18,008.14; total Synod to July 31, $20,815.27. A. W. C.

Charlotte—The pulpit of the Second Church was occupied on last Sabbath by Rev. J. Ernest Thacker, D.D. Dr. Thacker is always a welcome visitor in this city and he was heard yesterday with great pleasure at both the morning and evening service.

